This form also may be modified for use in situations in which a vacancy occurs in the office of fewer than all personal representatives. In such cases, the remaining personal representatives must complete the administration of the estate unless the will provides otherwise, or unless the court exercises its discretion to enter a contrary order. On the filing of a petition, the court may order the clerk to issue appropriate amended letters to the remaining personal representatives [Prob. Code § 8521].

For discussion of requirements governing appointments of personal representatives, bonds, and letters, see Ch. 442, Probate: Initiating Probate Administration .

[3] State Statutes

Appointment of administrator with will annexed. Prob. Code § 8440

Testator's power to designate executor. Prob. Code § 8422

Vacancy in office of personal representative by resignation, death, or removal from office. Prob. Code § 8520

Interim protection of estate after vacancy occurs in office of personal representative. Prob. Code § 8523

Powers and duties of successor personal representative. Prob. Code § 8524

Effect of vacancy in office of personal representative. Prob. Code § 8525

Petition for authority under Independent Administration of Estates Act. Prob. Code § 10450(a)

[4] Text References

Witkin, Summary of California Law, vol. 14, Wills and Probate, §§ 462, 463 (10th ed. 2005)

[5] Cross References

For related forms, see §§ 458B.50, 458B.51.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458B PROBATE: SUSPENSION, REMOVAL, AND RESIGNATION
PART IV. FORMS

39-458B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458B.59

§ 458B.59 Order Appointing Successor Personal Representative and Issuing Letters [Prob. Code §§ 8422, 8440, 8460, 8522]

[1] FORM Order Appointing Successor Personal Representative and Issuing Letters [Prob. Code §§ 8422, 8440, 8460, 8522]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
	)	ORDER APPOINTING
	)	SUCCESSOR PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE
Estate of _____ [name],	)	AND ISSUING LETTERS
also known as _____ [name],	)	_____
Deceased.	)	[TESTAMENTARY or OF ADMINISTRATION
	)	WITH WILL ANNEXED or OF
	)	ADMINISTRATION]
		[Prob. Code § 8522]

_____

This proceeding to appoint _____ [name] as the successor personal representative of the estate of _____ [name], deceased, and to issue letters _____ [testamentary or of administration with the will annexed or of administration], on the petition of _____ [name], came on regularly for hearing before this court, sitting without a jury, on _____ [date]. Petitioner appeared by counsel _____ [name] [, and _____ (specify other parties, if any, who appeared) also appeared].

[The court finds that special notice of the time and place of the hearing was _____ (given to _____ (name(s)), as requested or requested and waived by _____ (names(s))).]

[The court (further) finds that notice of the time and place of the hearing was given as required by _____ (specify, e.g., the court's order prescribing notice of hearing).]

On proof made to the satisfaction of the court, the court finds that the facts alleged in the petition are true, and grants the petition as follows:

IT IS ORDERED that:

_____ [Name] is appointed _____ [executor or administrator with will annexed or administrator], [with _____ (full or limited) authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act] and letters _____ [testamentary or of administration with will annexed or of administration] shall be issued to _____ [name] on his/her taking the oath required by law _____ [, bond having been waived and no bond being necessary or and giving bond in the sum of $ _____ if executed by an authorized corporate surety or in twice that sum if executed by individual sureties].
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

This form is an order for use when appointing a successor personal representative to take the place of a personal representative who has resigned or died, or who has been removed from office [see Prob. Code §§ 8520-8522].

[3] Cross References

For a related form, see § 458B.58.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 458C.syn

§ 458C.syn Synopsis to Chapter 458C: PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION

§ 458C.01 Scope of Chapter

§§ 458C.02-458C.09 [Reserved]

§ 458C.10 Governing Statutes

§ 458C.11 "Personal Representative," "General Personal Representative," and "Interested Person" Defined

§ 458C.12 Petition for Preliminary Distribution

[1] Availability in General

[2] Distribution to Estate of Nonresident Decedent

[3] Time for Filing

[4] Notice of Hearing

§ 458C.13 Objection to Petition

[1] By Interested Persons

[2] By Personal Representative

[3] Manner of Objecting

[4] Grounds for Objection

[a] In General

[b] Challenging Provisions of Will

[c] Challenging Petitioner's Right to Property

[d] Character of Property

[e] Equitable Defenses

[f] Insufficiency of Petition

[g] Lack of Sufficient Cash to Pay Expenses, Claims, and Devises

§ 458C.14 Effect of Previous Determination of Heirship

§ 458C.15 Effect of Pending Will Contest on Preliminary Distribution

§ 458C.16 Conditions Precedent to Ordering Preliminary Distribution

[1] Statutory Requirements

[2] Loss to Creditors

[3] Injury to Estate or Interested Person

[4] Additional Determinations

§ 458C.17 Order

[1] In General

[2] Contribution in Case of Abatement

[3] Payment of Debts on Settlement of Account

[4] Writ of Mandate to Compel Distribution

[5] Modification of Order

[6] Conclusiveness of Order

§ 458C.18 Bond

[1] When Necessary

[2] When Discretionary

[3] Giving and Filing

[4] Conditions of Bond

[5] Stay of Order Pending Filing

§ 458C.19 Costs

§ 458C.20 Distribution

§ 458C.21 Petition for Preliminary Distribution of Independently Administered Estate

§ 458C.22 Partial Allowance of Personal Representative's Compensation

[1] In General

[2] Notice Requirement Regarding Personal Representative's Compensation

[3] Amount of Personal Representative's Compensation Allowed

[4] Special Administrator's Compensation

§ 458C.23 Partial Allowance of Attorney's Compensation

[1] In General

[2] Notice Requirement Regarding Attorney's Compensation

[3] Amount of Attorney's Compensation Allowed

§§ 458C.24-458C.39 [Reserved]

§ 458C.40 State Statutes

[1] Account

[2] Appeal

[3] Cash

[4] Compensation

[a] Attorney

[b] Personal Representative

[5] Hearings Generally

[6] Heirship

[7] Notice

[a] In General

[b] Petition for Partial Allowance of Attorney's Compensation

[c] Petition for Partial Allowance of Personal Representative's Compensation

[d] Petition for Preliminary Distribution

[8] Objections and Responses

[9] Orders in General

[10] Parties

[11] Petitions

[12] Preliminary Distribution

[a] In General

[b] Bond

[c] Costs

[d] Order

[13] Procedure in General

[14] Verification

§ 458C.41 California Rules of Court

§ 458C.42 Decisions

[1] Compensation

[2] Preliminary Distribution

[a] Bond

[b] Creditors' Rights

[c] Duty of Personal Representative

[d] Hearing

[i] Effect of Pending Petition to Determine Heirship

[ii] Effect of Pending Will Contest

[iii] Evidence

[iv] Jury Trial

[v] Questions of Fact

[vi] Scope of Inquiry

[e] Jurisdiction

[f] Nature of Proceeding

[g] Notice

[h] Objections

[i] Grounds

[ii] Manner of Making Objections

[iii] Persons Entitled to Object

[i] Order

[i] Conclusiveness

[ii] Conditions Precedent

[iii] Form of Order

[iv] Mandatory Nature of Order

[v] Modification of Order

[vi] Scope of Order

[j] Property Subject to Distribution

[k] Public Policy

§§ 458C.43-458C.59 [Reserved]

§ 458C.60 Petition for Preliminary Distribution of Decedent's Estate [Prob. Code § 11600]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Signing and Verification

[4] Who May File Petition

[5] When Petition May Be Filed

[6] Account

[7] Contents of Petition

[a] State Law

[b] Local Court Rules

[8] Allegations

[a] Identity of Petitioner (Paragraph 1)

[b] Residence and Date of Death (Paragraph 2)

[c] Whether Decedent Died Testate or Intestate (Paragraphs 3)

[d] Inventory and Appraisal (Paragraph 4)

[e] Heirs and Devisees (Paragraph 5)

[f] Issuance of Letters (Paragraph 6)

[g] Notice to Creditors and Claims (Paragraphs 7-9)

[h] Federal Estate Tax (Paragraphs 10)

[i] Property on Hand (Paragraph 11)

[j] Proposed Distribution (Paragraph 12)

[i] Description of Distributees

[ii] Description of Property

[k] Value of Remaining Estate (Paragraph 13)

[l] Condition Preventing Closing of Estate (Paragraph 14)

[m] Bond (Paragraphs 15)

[n] Prior Distribution (Paragraph 16)

[9] Assignment or Transfer of Interest by Beneficiary

[10] Partial Allowance of Commission or Fees

[11] State Statutes

[12] Local Rules of Court

[a] Alameda County

[b] Los Angeles County

[c] Orange County

[d] City & County of San Francisco

[e] Santa Clara County

[13] Decisions

[a] Petition

[b] Petitioner

§ 458C.61 Order for Preliminary Distribution of Decedent's Estate [Prob. Code §§ 11621, 11622]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Contents of Order

[a] In General

[b] Drafting

[c] Findings

[i] Sufficiency

[ii] Notice of Hearing

[d] Order

[4] State Statutes

[5] Local Court Rules

[a] Alameda County

[b] Los Angeles County

[c] Orange County

[d] City & County of San Francisco

[e] Santa Clara County

[6] Decisions

[7] Cross References

§ 458C.62 Petition for Partial Allowance of Compensation for Ordinary and Extraordinary Services [Prob. Code §§ 10801, 10811, 10830(a)(1), (2) (Proceeding Commenced on or After July 1, 1991); Former Prob. Code §§ 901, 902, 904, 910, 911 (Proceeding Commenced Before July 1, 1991)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Time for Filing Petition

[4] Who May File Petition

[5] Showing Required

[6] Extra Allowances for Extraordinary Services

[7] Form and Contents of Petition

[8] Verification of Petition

[9] Combined Petition

[10] Limitations on Request

[a] Ordinary Fees and Commissions

[b] Extraordinary Services

[11] Notice of Hearing

[12] State Statutes

[13] Local Court Rules

[a] Alameda County

[b] Los Angeles County

[c] Orange County

[d] City and County of San Francisco

[e] Santa Clara County

[14] Decisions

[a] Generally

[b] Attorney's Fees

[c] Constitutionality of Statutes

[d] Extraordinary Services

[e] Final Account

[f] Nature of Allowance on Account

[g] Personal Representative's Commissions

[15] Cross References

§ 458C.63 Order for Partial Allowance of Compensation for Ordinary and Extraordinary Services [Prob. Code §§ 10801, 10811, 10830(a)(1), (2) (Proceeding Commenced on or After July 1, 1991); Former Prob. Code §§ 901, 902, 904, 910, 911 (Proceeding Commenced Before July 1, 1991)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459

Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION

PART I. SCOPE

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.01

§ 458C.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter describes procedures for use in obtaining a distribution of property from a decedent's estate before the estate is ready to be closed. Interim accounts are mentioned in this chapter because they are often required to be on file when an order for preliminary distribution is made and may actually be combined with a petition for preliminary distribution. For a detailed discussion of accounts together with a combined form for an account and petition for final distribution, see Ch. 458D, Probate: Accounts, Final Distribution, and Compensation . Preliminary distribution of an estate administered under the Independent Administration of Estates Act (Prob. Code § 10400 et seq.) is discussed in § 458C.21 and in the comments to § 458C.60. For a detailed discussion of the Independent Administration of Estates Act, see Ch. 445, Probate: Independent Administration of Estates .

Because a partial allowance on the statutory compensation to which the personal representative and his or her attorney are entitled is frequently sought with preliminary distribution, that topic is also discussed in this chapter. Compensation, including compensation for extraordinary service, is discussed in detail in Ch. 458D, Probate: Accounts, Final Distribution, and Compensation , and appropriate forms are included in that chapter.

This chapter contains a petition for preliminary distribution [see § 458C.60], an order directing preliminary distribution [see 458C.61], a petition for partial allowance on the statutory compensation for ordinary services of an executor or administrator or attorney and compensation for extraordinary services [see § 458C.62], and an order granting the petition [see § 458C.63].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART I. SCOPE

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 458C.02-458C.09

[Reserved]

§§ 458C.02[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.10

§ 458C.10 Governing Statutes

Preliminary distribution of estate property is governed by Prob. Code §§ 11600-11624. Distribution of property to a sister-state personal representative is governed by Prob. Code §§ 12540-12542.

The Probate Code was repealed and a new Probate Code enacted by Stats. 1990, ch. 79, §§ 13 and 14. Notwithstanding their repeal, former Prob. Code §§ 900-904 as they existed on June 30, 1991, govern the partial allowance of the personal representative's statutory commission in proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991, and former Prob. Code §§ 900, 901, 910, and 911, as they existed on June 30, 1991, govern the partial allowance of the attorney's statutory fee in proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991 [Prob. Code §§ 900(a)]. Compensation for extraordinary services in such proceedings is governed by former Prob. Code §§ 902 (personal representative) and 902, 910 (attorney). That is, the applicable law in effect before July 1, 1991, governing compensation of the personal representative and his or her attorney continues to apply in any proceeding for administration of a decedent's estate commenced before July 1, 1991 [Prob. Code § 10850(b)].

In proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991, compensation of the personal representative is governed by Prob. Code §§ 10800-10805 and compensation of the attorney for the personal representative is governed by Prob. Code §§ 10804 and 10810. Compensation for extraordinary services is governed by Prob. Code §§ 10801 (personal representative) and 10810 (attorney). Partial allowance of the personal representative's compensation is governed by Prob. Code § 10830(a)(1), and that of the attorney by Prob. Code § 10830(a)(2). Prob. Code §§ 10800-10850 do not apply in any proceeding for administration of a decedent's estate commenced before July 1, 1991 [Prob. Code § 10850(a)].

Accounts filed under the Probate Code are governed by Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064, which became operative on July 1, 1997 [Prob. Code § 1060.5]. Sanctions for failure to account are governed by Prob. Code §§ 11050-11052.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.250 governs the listings needed in a petition for preliminary distribution when the petitioner is acting under the Independent Administration of Estates Act.

A wide variety of local court rules also govern probate practice. To ensure complete compliance, the attorney should consult the applicable rules.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.11

§ 458C.11 "Personal Representative," "General Personal Representative," and "Interested Person" Defined

"Personal representative" means executor, administrator, administrator with the will annexed, special administrator, successor personal representative, public administrator acting under Prob. Code § 7660, or a person who performs substantially the same function under the law of another jurisdiction governing the person's status [Prob. Code § 58(a)]. The term "general personal representative" excludes a special administrator unless the special administrator has the powers, duties, and obligations of a general personal representative under Prob. Code § 8545 [Prob. Code § 58(b)].

"Interested person" includes any of the following [Prob. Code § 48(a)]:

- An heir, devisee (defined in Prob. Code § 34; see also Prob. Code § 32), child (defined in Prob. Code § 26), spouse, creditor, beneficiary (defined in Prob. Code § 24), and any other person having a property right in or claim against a trust estate or the estate of a decedent that may be affected by the proceeding;

- Any person having priority for appointment as personal representative; and

- A fiduciary representing an interested person.

The meaning of "interested person" as it relates to particular persons may vary from time to time and is to be determined according to the particular purposes of, and matter involved in, the proceeding in which the question arises [Prob. Code § 48(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesAppointmentEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in

ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.12

§ 458C.12 Petition for Preliminary Distribution

[1] Availability in General

The personal representative or an interested person may petition the court for an order for preliminary distribution of the decedent's estate to the persons entitled to it [Prob. Code § 11600]. Preliminary distribution of an estate administered without court supervision under the Independent Administration of Estates Act (Prob. Code § 10400 et seq.) is discussed in § 458C.21.

A petition for partial allowance of compensation [see Prob. Code § 10830(a)(1) (personal representative), (2) (attorney)] if the proceeding was commenced on or after July 1, 1991, or of commission and fees [see former Prob. Code §§ 904 (personal representative), 911(attorney)] if the proceeding was commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code §§ 900(a), 10850], as well as a first or interim account [see Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064], may be combined with the petition for preliminary distribution.

The interest of an assignee of a "legatee" (now devisee), entitling the assignee to petition for preliminary distribution of the "legacy" (now devise) to himself or herself, cannot be defeated by the fact that the legatee was indebted to the estate, and the amount of the debt cannot be set off against the amount of the legacy, when the cause of action on the debt is barred by the statute of limitation [see Estate of Clifford (1936) 16 Cal. App. 2d 123, 125-126, 60 P.2d 302 (dictum), citing Estate of Cates (1925) 195 Cal. 319, 232 P. 972 , and In re Estate of Smith (1895) 108 Cal. 115, 40 P. 1037] .

A successor in interest need not be entitled to all attributes of ownership in the property in question but, rather, may file a petition for preliminary distribution even though his or her interest amounts to less than title, that is, a right merely to possession [Estate of Baldwin (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 586, 591-592, 134 P.2d 259 (receiver is entitled to possession of legacy only, entitled to file petition; construing a former statutory provision, now see Prob. Code § 11600)].

Case law has held that the following persons also may file a petition for preliminary distribution:

- A special administrator having general powers pursuant to Prob. Code § 465 (repealed, now see Prob. Code § 8545) [see Estate of Buchman (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 81, 105, 281 P.2d 608 (implication from ruling that court has jurisdiction to determine petition filed by distributee, when executor was thereafter removed and replaced with special administrator having general powers)]. This is now confirmed by statute. Prob. Code § 11600 authorizes the filing of a petition for preliminary distribution by the "personal representative," which is defined in Prob. Code § 58(a) as including a special administrator. Prob. Code § 11620 authorizes the filing of the petition when two months have elapsed after letters are first issued to a "general personal representative"; that term is defined in Prob. Code § 58(b) as excluding a special administrator unless the special administrator has the powers, duties, and obligations of a general personal representative under Prob. Code § 8545.

- A beneficiary of a testamentary trust (distribution to be made to the trustee) [Estate of McGirl (1932) 125 Cal. App. 310, 313, 13 P.2d 746 (dictum), citing In re Mackay (1895) 107 Cal. 303, 307, 40 P. 558] . This also appears now to be confirmed by statute. Prob. Code § 11600 authorizes the filing of the petition by an interested person and Prob. Code § 48(a)(1) defines "interested person" as including a "beneficiary, and any other person having a property right in or claim against a trust estate or the estate of a decedent which may be affected by the proceeding." In addition, "beneficiary" is defined as a person to whom a donative transfer of property is made or that person's successor in interest and, as it relates to a trust, means a person who has any present or future interest, vested or contingent [Prob. Code § 24(c)].

[2] Distribution to Estate of Nonresident Decedent

If a person dies while domiciled in a sister state, the court in an ancillary administration proceeding [see Prob. Code §§ 8000 et seq., 12520(b), 12500-12530] may make an order for preliminary or final distribution of all or part of the decedent's personal property in this state to the sister-state personal representative if distribution is in the best interest of the estate or interested persons [Prob. Code § 12540(a); final distribution is discussed in Ch. 458D, Probate: Accounts, Final Distribution, and Compensation].

The order is made as provided in, and is subject to, Prob. Code §§ 11600-11642 (relating to preliminary and final distribution of the decedent's estate) [Prob. Code § 12540(b)]. If necessary to make distribution, real property in the nondomiciliary decedent's estate may be sold, and the court may order the proceeds to be distributed to the sister state personal representative (defined in Prob. Code § 12507). The sale is made in the same manner as other sales of a decedent's real property [Prob. Code § 12541]. If the nondomiciliary decedent's estate in the sister state where the decedent was domiciled is insolvent, distribution may be made only to the sister state personal representative and not to the beneficiaries [Prob. Code § 12542].

[3] Time for Filing

A petition for preliminary distribution may be filed at any time after two months have elapsed since the date letters (defined in Prob. Code § 52(a)) were first issued to a general personal representative as defined in Prob. Code § 58(b) (discussed in § 458C.11) [Prob. Code § 11620]. The petition must be signed and verified (although, unless expressly provided to the contrary, verification of a document constitutes signature of that document) [Prob. Code §§ 1020, 1021].

[4] Notice of Hearing

When the petition is filed, the court clerk sets the matter for hearing [Prob. Code § 1041]. The petitioner must cause notice of the hearing to be given at least 15 days before the time set for the hearing as provided in Prob. Code § 1220 [Prob. Code § 11601]. In addition, the same notice must be given to all of the following persons:

- Each person listed in Prob. Code § 1220 [Prob. Code § 11601(a)];

- Each known heir (defined in Prob. Code § 44) and each known devisee (defined in Prob. Code § 34) whose interest in the estate would be affected by the petition for distribution [Prob. Code § 11601(b), (c); see Prob. Code §§ 1206 (heirs or devisees to whom notice must be given), 1207 (exceptions); see also Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements];

- The Attorney General, at the office of the Attorney General in Sacramento, if any portion of the estate is to escheat to the state and its interest in the estate would be affected by the petition [Prob. Code § 11601(d)]; and

- The Controller, if property is to be distributed to the state because there is no known beneficiary or if property is to be distributed to a beneficiary whose whereabouts is unknown [Prob. Code § 11601(e) (a copy of the latest account filed with the court must be served on the Controller with the notice)].

Unless notice has been dispensed with by court order, notice must also be given to all persons who have requested special notice pursuant to Prob. Code § 1250 [Prob. Code §§ 1220(a)(2)(B), (c), 1252(a)].

For further discussion and forms for giving notice, see Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.13

§ 458C.13 Objection to Petition

[1] By Interested Persons

Any interested person may oppose the petition [Prob. Code § 11602; see Prob. Code § 48 (discussed in § 458C.11)].

Several cases decided prior to the original enactment of Prob. Code § 48 [Stats. 1983, ch. 842, effective January 1, 1985] discussed whether a party is sufficiently interested in the matter to entitle him or her to object to an application for preliminary distribution. It appears that the holdings in these cases are consistent with Prob. Code § 48(a)(1) by requiring that an objector have at least an interest in the property sought to be distributed that would be impaired by the distribution before he or she is entitled to resist an application for preliminary distribution. For example, a person is "interested in the estate" if he or she has at least a direct contingent interest in the subject in question [see Estate of Sandy (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 309, 314, 40 Cal. Rptr. 837 (reviewing case law; collateral heirs of decedent's deceased wife not sufficiently interested in decedent's estate to object to preliminary distribution)]. As a general rule, a person who has an interest sufficient to entitle him or her to contest decedent's purported will has an interest sufficient to entitle him or her to resist an application for preliminary distribution [Estate of Molera (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 993, 999, 100 Cal. Rptr. 696] . However, if a contest is pending when the preliminary distribution is sought, the court may look to the asserted grounds for contest when determining whether the contestant has a sufficient interest to entitle him or her to resist the application for preliminary distribution. If it appears that the requested distribution would not impair the rights of the contestant, then the court may find that the contestant is not sufficiently interested to resist the application for the preliminary distribution [see Estate of Molera (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 993, 999-1002, 100 Cal. Rptr. 696 (concluding contest did not affect portion of will bequeathing property sought to be preliminarily distributed)].

[2] By Personal Representative

The personal representative may oppose the petition [Prob. Code § 11602; see also Estate of Baldwin (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 586, 593, 134 P.2d 259 (construing former legislation)]. If the objecting personal representative is also a devisee or an heir, then he or she should be careful to make clear whether he or she resists as the personal representative or as a devisee or an heir. If resistance is made in both capacities, then two papers setting out objections should be filed [see Estate of Murphy (1904) 145 Cal. 464, 465-468, 78 P. 960 (order for preliminary distribution held conclusive against executrix as defaulting legatee (now devisee), when she resisted in official capacity only)].

[3] Manner of Objecting

An interested person (see § 458C.11) may appear and respond or object to the petition [see Prob. Code §§ 1040, 1043]. The objection is required to be in writing and verified; it may be filed at or before the hearing on the petition [see Prob. Code §§ 1020, 1021; but see Prob. Code § 1043(b), (c) (authorizing oral response or objection at hearing and allowing court to hear and determine issue or grant continuance to allow response or objection to be made in writing, but providing that request for continuance does not constitute a response or an objection)].

The court may continue a matter to allow a written objection or response to be made. If the court does so, however, and the responding or objecting party fails to serve and file a timely objection or response, the court may deem the objections or responses waived [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.801].

[4] Grounds for Objection

[a] In General

There is no statutory statement of the grounds on which objection to an application for preliminary distribution may be based. However, certain conditions are required to exist before a preliminary distribution can be ordered [see Prob. Code §§ 11603(a), 11621, 11622 (discussed in § 458C.16)]. The absence of any one of those conditions would be a ground for objection to the distribution.

An objection may not be made in the nature of a plea in abatement. The only purpose of an objection to an application for preliminary distribution is to rebut the evidence of the applicant that the required conditions exist [see In re Painter (1897) 115 Cal. 635, 639, 640, 47 P. 700 (construing and applying former Code Civ. Proc. § 1661, a predecessor to Prob. Code §§ 11603(a), 11621, and 11622)].

[b] Challenging Provisions of Will

An objection to the preliminary distribution on the ground that the provisions in the will on which petitioner bases his or her right to the property had been revoked by decedent cannot be raised in a proceeding for preliminary distribution. Such an objection is in the nature of a will contest which is subject to the procedural requirements and 120-day period of limitation provided for in former Prob. Code § 380 (now see Prob. Code § 8270(a)) [see Ch. 444, Probate: Will Contests]. The objection, therefore, cannot be raised because it would impugn the prior order admitting the will [see In re Estate of Parsons (1925) 196 Cal. 294, 299-300, 237 P. 744] .

[c] Challenging Petitioner's Right to Property

It is not a ground for objection that the petitioner's asserted right to receive property in a preliminary distribution is invalid or nonexistent if the source of the asserted right is regular on its face. The court does not have jurisdiction, in a proceeding for preliminary distribution, to determine a controversy involving the asserted right, other than to determine whether it is in conformity with the terms of the will or the laws of succession. Thus, for example, the court cannot question the validity of an order, regular on its face, entitling the petitioner to possession of the property sought in the preliminary distribution proceeding [see Estate of Baldwin (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 586, 592-593, 134 P.2d 259 (order appointing receiver, the petitioner, and entitling him to possession of legacy is not subject to collateral attack by objecting legatee in proceeding for preliminary distribution)].

However, if an objector files a complaint seeking adjudication of petitioner's asserted right to receive the property sought to be distributed, then that action may be pursued simultaneously with, and in the same court that hears, the proceeding for preliminary distribution, if all parties and the court agree to do it [Estate of Arms (1921) 186 Cal. 554, 557-558, 199 P. 1053 (complaint by widow, also objector to preliminary distribution, asserting property sought to be distributed was community property, not decedent's separate property)].

[d] Character of Property

The character of the property sought to be distributed, that is, whether it is separate or community property, is an issue that may be raised in the form of a ground for objection to the petition [see Estate of Raphael (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 931, 935, 206 P.2d 391 (objection raised)]. The character of the property may be relevant to both who is entitled to receive a distribution and what property or share of the estate that person is entitled to receive.

[e] Equitable Defenses

Equitable defenses, such as estoppel, may be raised in opposition to a petition for preliminary distribution [see Estate of Glenn (1908) 153 Cal. 77, 79-81, 94 P. 230 (petitioner held estopped to claim share of estate preliminarily, when result would have been injury to other interested persons who made agreement with petitioner dependent on his not receiving preliminary distribution)].

[f] Insufficiency of Petition

If the petition for preliminary distribution is insufficient, the defect must be brought to the attention of the probate court. It cannot be raised for the first time in the appellate court [Estate of Morelli (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 39, 43, 226 P.2d 716] .

The personal representative cannot object that the petition is insufficient if it is worded in statutory language and alleges the ultimate facts that the court is required to find in order to direct a preliminary distribution. The personal representative is presumed to have greater knowledge of the value and character of the property, the amount of cash on hand, and the amount of indebtedness than any other person and, therefore, cannot object if the petition omits to allege these matters in any detail [Estate of Murphy (1904) 145 Cal. 464, 465-468, 78 P. 960] .

[g] Lack of Sufficient Cash to Pay Expenses, Claims, and Devises

It is a valid ground for objection that there is not enough cash in the estate to pay the expenses of administration, the claims presented and allowed, and the "legacies" (now devises) payable under the will, and that after the estate assets have been converted to cash it will be necessary to distribute prorated portions of the legacies instead of the full amounts [In re Estate of Parsons (1925) 196 Cal. 294, 300, 237 P. 744] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawWill ContestsStandingGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.14

§ 458C.14 Effect of Previous Determination of Heirship

If a determination of heirship has already been made pursuant to former Prob. Code §§ 1080-1082 (now see Prob. Code §§ 11700-11705), it appears that the issue is foreclosed in a later proceeding for preliminary distribution, at least as to those persons covered by the earlier order determining heirship [see Estate of Simmons (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 217, 220, 49 Cal. Rptr. 369, 411 P.2d 97 (dictum reporting case law)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.15

§ 458C.15 Effect of Pending Will Contest on Preliminary Distribution

If a will contest is pending when the court undertakes to hear the petition for preliminary distribution, and if the petitioner's right to receive a share of the estate may be defeated by the decision in the will contest, then the court must not order a preliminary distribution until the contest has been decided and the right of the petitioner to receive a share of the estate has thereby been affirmed [see Estate of Hill (1928) 94 Cal. App. 113, 116-118, 270 P. 708 (order for preliminary distribution reversed with direction to trial court to suspend distribution until contest decided and petitioner's right to receive share of estate affirmed)].

However, the mere fact that the will may still be open to contest does not necessarily preclude a partial distribution. If the conditions of the governing statutes (former Prob. Code §§ 1000 and 1001 (now see Prob. Code §§ 11603(a), 11621, and 11622)) are met, the court, by virtue of the mandate of those statutes, which implement the public policy of California favoring the earliest possible distribution of estates, must make an order of preliminary distribution [Estate of Molera (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 993, 999-1000, 100 Cal. Rptr. 696 (affirming decrees of preliminary distribution on ground that successful contest of portion of will under attack would have no affect on right of parties seeking preliminary distribution to receive their bequests)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawWill ContestsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.16

§ 458C.16 Conditions Precedent to Ordering Preliminary Distribution

[1] Statutory Requirements

To order a preliminary distribution of the decedent's estate, the court must determine that the requirements for distribution are satisfied [see Prob. Code §§ 11603(a), 11620]. Thus, the court must determine that:

- When the petition was filed, at least two months had elapsed from the time letters were first issued to a general personal representative [Prob. Code § 11620];

- The beneficiary is entitled to the share of the decedent's estate to be distributed to him or her [Prob. Code § 11620];

- Distribution may be made without loss to creditors [Prob. Code § 11621(a)];

- Distribution may be made without injury to the estate [Prob. Code § 11621(a)]; and

- Distribution may be made without injury to any interested person [Prob. Code § 11621(a)].

If a preliminary distribution is to be ordered less than four months after letters were first issued to a general personal representative, the court must require a bond from the distributee in the amount of the distribution [Prob. Code § 11622(a), (c), discussed in § 458C.18[1]].

[2] Loss to Creditors

One of the statutory requirements for preliminary distribution is that the distribution can be made without loss to creditors [Prob. Code § 11621(a)]. Under a prior statute (former Prob. Code § 1001), it was held that, although the debts of the estate may, in the aggregate, amount to a large sum, the creditors cannot prevent a partial distribution if enough assets remain in the estate to render them secure [Estate of Morelli (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 39, 42, 226 P.2d 716] . It would appear that this rule would continue to apply to a distribution ordered under Prob. Code § 11621(a).

Moreover, it would appear that if a bond is posted [see discussion in § 458C.18] in the amount of the distribution, the creditors would be adequately secured insofar as the preliminary distribution is concerned.

[3] Injury to Estate or Interested Person

Preliminary distribution of income producing property, which would deprive the personal representative of the opportunity to continue receiving income for the benefit of the estate over as long a period as possible before final distribution became necessary, is not injurious to the estate or persons interested in it if the estate would not be rendered insolvent by the distribution. "Injury to the estate or any person interested therein," as that phrase was used in former Prob. Code § 1001 [now see Prob. Code § 11621(a)] (substituting the term, "injury to the estate or any interested person"), is not equivalent to depriving the estate of income which is not needed for the payment of creditors' claims [see Estate of Brickell (1935) 4 Cal. App. 2d 54, 57-58, 40 P.2d 579] .

When considering whether a preliminary distribution can be made without injury to any person interested in the estate, the court may properly insist that enough property or cash be left in the estate to pay the personal representative's commission and the attorney's fee [see Estate of Straus (1904) 144 Cal. 553, 556, 77 P. 1122] .

[4] Additional Determinations

In addition to the statutory requirements discussed in [1]-[3], above, the court on a petition for preliminary distribution is called on to determine whether distribution should then be made. A showing that distribution cannot be then made is a complete answer to the application [Estate of Molera (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 993, 1000, 100 Cal. Rptr. 696] .

Moreover, before a court can make a preliminary distribution, it must know who the parties entitled to the estate are, and, in such a proceeding, the court may determine who the heirs are and to what proportion of the estate each is entitled [Estate of Molera (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 993, 1000, 100 Cal. Rptr. 696 ; Estate of Stephenson (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 120, 123-124, 150 P.2d 222 ; proceedings to determine heirship (Prob. Code §§ 11700-11705) are discussed in Ch. 458, Probate: Determination of Heirship]. In making these determinations, the court will rely on the same considerations as bear on those issues in a proceeding for final distribution [Estate of Stephenson (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 120, 124, 150 P.2d 222 ; see Ch. 458D, Probate: Accounts, Final Distribution, and Compensation].

Other relevant questions may present themselves at the hearing, among which are such questions of law as the construction of a will [Estate of Molera (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 993, 1000, 100 Cal. Rptr. 696] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsInterpretationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsInterpretationRules of ConstructionGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.17

§ 458C.17 Order

[1] In General

If it appears at the hearing that the conditions prescribed in Prob. Code §§ 11603(a) and 11621 exist, then the court must order the personal representative to deliver the property to the person entitled to it [Prob. Code § 11603(a); see Prob. Code §§ 12 (defining "shall" as mandatory), 11621(a); see also Estate of Stephenson (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 120, 123, 150 P.2d 222 (involving a predecessor statute)]. For a form of order of preliminary distribution, see § 458C.61.

[2] Contribution in Case of Abatement

In any case in which there is abatement when a distribution is made during estate administration, the court must fix the amount each distributee must contribute for abatement, and the personal representative must reduce the distributee's share by that amount [Prob. Code § 21405(a)]. If a specific gift must be abated, the beneficiary of the gift may satisfy the contribution for abatement out of the beneficiary's property other than the property that is the subject of the specific gift [Prob. Code § 21405(b)]. The foregoing applies only to gifts made on or after July 1, 1989 (that is, to gifts by will of a decedent who dies on or after that date (see Prob. Code § 21406(b)), and prior law applies to gifts made before that date [Prob. Code § 21406(a)].

[3] Payment of Debts on Settlement of Account

On the settlement of any account of the personal representative after the expiration of four months after letters are first issued to a general personal representative, the court must order payment of debts, as the circumstances of the estate permit. If property in the estate is insufficient to pay all the debts, the order must specify the amount to be paid to each creditor [Prob. Code § 11422(b)]. For further discussion and forms regarding payment of debts of the estate, see Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate .

Because distribution can be ordered only if it appears at the hearing that it can be made without loss to creditors [see § 458.16[2]], it appears unlikely that Prob. Code § 11422(b) applies to an order settling an interim account that accompanies a petition for partial distribution. However, counsel should be aware that the statute refers to "any account," and thus might be applicable if an interim account is included with the petition or is filed pursuant to a court order [see Prob. Code § 10950(a)] as a condition to ordering a preliminary distribution [see Comments to § 458C.60].

[4] Writ of Mandate to Compel Distribution

If the court refuses to act on a petition for preliminary distribution, then the court may be compelled by writ of mandate to hear the petition and make an order on the merits [see Lissner v. Superior Court (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 711, 717-718, 146 P.2d 232] . Lissner involved a petition by a receiver, appointed to take charge of the parties' community property and the husband's separate property in a divorce action, which he filed in the probate court for ratable distribution of a monthly bequest to the husband in his mother's will. The Supreme Court pointed out that, although former Prob. Code § 1240 (now Prob. Code § 7240) authorized an appeal from "an order refusing to make an order distributing property," a writ of mandate may issue to compel the probate court to pass on a petition for ratable distribution, a matter properly before the court for decision, when, in declining to act, the court neither granted nor denied the petition, but refused to act on the petition on the ground it lacked subject matter jurisdiction [Lissner v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 711, 146 P.2d 232] .

[5] Modification of Order

If facts come to light after the order for preliminary distribution has been made, and it appears that the conditions precedent specified in former Prob. Code § 1001 (now see Prob. Code § 11621(a)) did not exist, or no longer exist, then the petitioner may apply to the court for an appropriate modification of the order [see Estate of Johnson (1933) 218 Cal. 501, 504, 23 P.2d 1012 (personal representative, the petitioner, as entitled to apply for modification of order if facts reveal existence of liability for payment of inheritance tax and order made no provision therefor)].

[6] Conclusiveness of Order

When the order becomes final, it binds and is conclusive as to the rights of all interested persons [Prob. Code § 11605].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsFailure of BequestsAbatementsFamily LawMarital Termination & Spousal SupportDissolution & DivorceProperty DistributionClassificationInheritances

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.18

§ 458C.18 Bond

[1] When Necessary

If the court orders distribution before four months have elapsed after letters are first issued to a general personal representative (defined in Prob. Code § 58(b)), the court must require a bond in the amount of the distribution [Prob. Code §§ 12, 11622(a), (c)].

[2] When Discretionary

If the court orders distribution after four months have elapsed since letters were first issued to a general personal representative (defined in Prob. Code § 58(b)), the court may require a bond in such amount as the court orders [Prob. Code § 11622(b)].

[3] Giving and Filing

Any bond required by the court must be given by the distributee and filed with the court [Prob. Code §§ 12, 11622(c)].

[4] Conditions of Bond

The bond must be conditioned on payment of the distributee's proper share of the debts of the estate, not exceeding the amount distributed [Prob. Code §§ 12, 11622(c)].

[5] Stay of Order Pending Filing

The order for distribution must be stayed until any bond required by the court is filed [Prob. Code §§ 12, 11621(b)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.19

§ 458C.19 Costs

The costs of a proceeding for preliminary distribution of a decedent's estate are paid by the distributee or the estate in proportions determined by the court [Prob. Code § 11624].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.20

§ 458C.20 Distribution

Distribution in compliance with the court order entitles the personal representative to a full discharge with respect to the property included in the order [Prob. Code § 11753(a)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.21

§ 458C.21 Petition for Preliminary Distribution of Independently Administered Estate

Notwithstanding Prob. Code § 11601, relating to notice of hearings on petitions for distribution generally, the personal representative to whom authority has been granted to administer an estate without court supervision under the Independent Administration of Estates Act (Prob. Code § 10400 et seq.), may petition the court for an order for preliminary distribution on notice as provided in Prob. Code § 1220, except that the court may not dispense with notice as provided in Prob. Code § 1220(c) unless the time for filing creditor claims has expired [Prob. Code § 11623(a)(1)].

The aggregate of all property distributed, however, must not exceed 50 percent of the net value of the estate [Prob. Code § 11623(a)(2)]. "Net value of the estate" means the excess of the value of the property in the estate, as determined by all inventories and appraisals on file with the court, over the total amount of all creditor claims and of all liens and encumbrances recorded or known to the personal representative not included in a creditor claim, excluding any estate tax lien occasioned by the decedent's death [Prob. Code § 11623(a)(2)].

In the petition for preliminary distribution, the petitioner is required to list and describe all actions taken without prior court approval under the Independent Administration of Estates Act if notice of the proposed action was required [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.250(a)]. The description of the action is required to include the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.250(a)]:

- The nature of the action.
- When the action was taken.
- A statement of when and to whom notice was given.
- Whether notice was waived, and if so, by whom.
- Whether any objections were received.

An action taken under the Independent Administration of Estates Act that was properly listed and described in a prior accounting, report, or petition for distribution, and that was approved by the court, need not be listed and described in a subsequent account, report, or petition for distribution [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.250(b)].

In addition to a Prob. Code § 11601 petition, which is subject to general notice of hearing requirements [see Prob. Code § 11623(a)(1); see also Prob. Code § 1220], the personal representative of an independently administered estate has the power to make preliminary distributions of certain property upon giving a notice of proposed action [see Prob. Code §§ 10510, 10520, 10580 et seq.; for discussion of the powers exercisable after giving notice of proposed action, see Ch. 445, Probate: Independent Administration of Estates]. However, this type of preliminary distribution may be made only if the time for filing claims has expired and it appears that distribution may be made without loss to creditors or injury to the estate or any interested person [see Prob. Code § 10520].

For discussion and a petition for preliminary distribution that may be adapted for use in petitioning for preliminary distribution of an estate under Prob. Code § 11623, see § 458C.60.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.22

§ 458C.22 Partial Allowance of Personal Representative's Compensation

[1] In General

At any time after four months from the issuance of the letters in any proceeding for administration of a decedent's estate commenced on or after July 1, 1991, the personal representative, or any personal representative if there are two or more, may file a petition requesting an allowance on his or her compensation for ordinary services [Prob. Code § 10830(a)(1); see also Prob. Code § 10832]. If the proceeding was commenced before July 1, 1991, the personal representative may petition the court for an allowance on account of his or her commission under former Prob. Code § 904 [see Prob. Code § 10850].

If the administration continues over a lengthy period of time, successive petitions for partial allowances may be filed [see Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 914, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491] . Any compensation granted before the final account is merely a partial allowance toward the full fee allowable for ordinary for ordinary services. When the full amount due the personal representative is determined on the final account, any partial allowances previously made will be deducted from the amount allowed [see Estate of Heck (1958) 160 Cal. App.2d 162, 165-166, 324 P.2d 733] .

It is important to distinguish between a petition for a partial allowance on account of compensation for ordinary services and a petition for compensation for extraordinary services [for extraordinary compensation, see Prob. Code § 10801; see also discussion of extraordinary compensation in Ch. 458D, Probate: Accounts, Final Distribution, and Compensation]. A petition for a partial allowance for ordinary services is a request for an advance against the statutory compensation provided for ordinary services in the administration of the estate [see Prob. Code § 10800]. At the time the petition is filed, some of the ordinary services may have been performed and others may yet remain to be performed. A petition for compensation for extraordinary services is a request for compensation for extraordinary services already performed. Extraordinary services are not covered by the statutory compensation and rest in the sound discretion of the court [see Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 918-919, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491] . Both types of petitions may be filed before the final account, and both types of compensation may be the subject of successive petitions [see Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491] . For calculation of the compensation, see Ch. 458D, Probate: Accounts, Final Distribution, and Compensation .

[2] Notice Requirement Regarding Personal Representative's Compensation

When the petition is filed, the court clerk sets the matter for hearing [Prob. Code § 1041]. The petitioner must cause notice of the hearing to be given at least 15 days before the time set for the hearing as provided in Prob. Code § 1220 [Prob. Code § 10830(b) (proceeding for estate administration commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 904(b) (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991); see Prob. Code § 10850].

In addition, the same notice must be given to all of the following persons:

- Each person listed in Prob. Code § 1220 [Prob. Code § 10830(b)(1) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991)];

- Each known heir (defined in Prob. Code § 44) and each known devisee (defined in Prob. Code § 34) whose interest in the estate would be affected by the payment of the compensation [Prob. Code § 10830(b)(2), (3) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991)] or commission [former Prob. Code § 904(c)(1), (2) (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991); see Prob. Code §§ 900(a), 10850; see also Prob. Code §§ 1206 (heirs or devisees to whom notice must be given), 1207 (exceptions); for further discussion, see Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements]; and

- The Attorney General, at the office of the Attorney General in Sacramento (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991) or the State of California (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991), if any portion of the estate is to escheat to the state and its interest in the estate would be affected by the petition [Prob. Code § 10830(b); former Prob. Code § 904(c)(3); see Prob. Code § 10850].

Unless notice has been dispensed with by court order, notice must also be given to all persons who have requested special notice pursuant to Prob. Code § 1250 [Prob. Code §§ 1220(a)(2)(B), (c), 1252(a)].

For further discussion, see § 458C.12[4] and Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements .

[3] Amount of Personal Representative's Compensation Allowed

The court is authorized by Prob. Code § 10830(c) and former Prob. Code § 904 to allow such portion of the compensation or commission for ordinary services as it deems proper for services rendered up to the time of the hearing. In deciding whether to make a partial allowance, the court is not required to fix partial compensation on the basis of the statutory schedules in Prob. Code § 10800 and former Prob. Code § 901 [Estate of Heck (1958) 160 Cal. App.2d 162, 165-166, 324 P.2d 733] . Nor is it required to fix a precise value on the services performed to date [Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 914, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491] . It may simply estimate the total ordinary services that will be required in the administration of the estate and endeavor to make certain that the services performed to date are a large enough proportion of the total services to justify the partial award [Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 914, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491] .

An order granting a partial allowance is appealable [Prob. Code § 7240(l)]. Once the time for appeal has expired, however, a partial allowance is not subject to downward modification [Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 909-910, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491] . The personal representative is entitled to know the amount of the ordinary compensation that has been earned to date; and, after a partial allowance has become final, the court has no power to require that any part of the fees paid pursuant to the allowance be refunded [Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 909-910, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491] .

[4] Special Administrator's Compensation

The special administrator's compensation will not be allowed until the close of administration unless the general personal representative joins in the petition for allowance of the special administrator's compensation or the court in its discretion so allows [Prob. Code § 8547(b); for further discussion, see Ch. 458D Probate: Accounts, Final Distribution, and Compensation .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistribution

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.23

§ 458C.23 Partial Allowance of Attorney's Compensation

[1] In General

At any time after four months from the issuance of letters, the personal representative or the attorney for the personal representative may petition for an allowance on the attorney's compensation for ordinary services [Prob. Code § 10830(a)(2) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991)]; or any attorney who has rendered services to the personal representative may apply to the court for an allowance on the attorney's fee for ordinary services [former Prob. Code § 911 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991); see Prob. Code §§ 900(a), 10850]. A petition for a partial allowance on account of the attorney's compensation, like a petition for a partial allowance on account of the personal representative's compensation, is addressed to the sound discretion of the court [see § 458C.22[1]]. Partial allowances are not determined by the statutory schedules in Prob. Code § 10800 and former Prob. Code § 901 [Estate of Heck (1958) 160 Cal. App.2d 162, 165-166, 324 P.2d 733] , nor do they require that the court precisely value the services performed to date [Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 914, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491] . An estimate of the total services that will be required in the administration of the estate will suffice, provided the court makes sure that the services performed to date are substantial enough to justify the partial award [Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 914, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491] . Once a partial award has become final, it may not later be reduced [Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 909-910, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491 ; see § 458C.22[1]]. Regarding calculation of the fee, see Ch. 458D, Probate: Accounts, Final Distribution, and Compensation .

[2] Notice Requirement Regarding Attorney's Compensation

When the petition is filed, the court clerk sets the matter for hearing [Prob. Code § 1041]. The petitioner must cause notice of the hearing to be given at least 15 days before the time set for the hearing as provided in Prob. Code § 1220 [Prob. Code § 10830(b) (proceeding for estate administration commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 911(b) (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991); see Prob. Code § 10850].

In addition, the same notice must be given to all of the following persons:

- Each person listed in Prob. Code § 1220 [Prob. Code § 10830(b)(1) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991)];

- Each known heir (defined in Prob. Code § 44) and each known devisee (defined in Prob. Code § 34) whose interest in the estate would be affected by the payment of the compensation [Prob. Code § 10830(b)(2), (3) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991)] or commission [former Prob. Code § 911(c)(1), (2) (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991); see Prob. Code §§ 900(a), 10850; see also Prob. Code §§ 1206 (heirs or devisees to whom notice must be given), 1207 (exceptions); for further discussion, see Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements]; and

- The Attorney General, at the office of the Attorney General in Sacramento (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991) or the State of California (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991), if any portion of the estate is to escheat to the state and its interest in the estate would be affected by the petition [Prob. Code § 10830(b); former Prob. Code § 911(c)(3); see Prob. Code § 10850].

Unless notice has been dispensed with by court order, notice must also be given to all persons who have requested special notice pursuant to Prob. Code § 1250 [Prob. Code §§ 1220(a)(2)(B), (c), 1252(a)].

For further discussion, see § 458C.12[4] and Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements .

[3] Amount of Attorney's Compensation Allowed

In determining what portion of the compensation or fee should properly be allowed for services rendered up to the time of the hearing, the court is not required to fix that partial compensation on the basis of the provisions of Prob. Code §§ 10800 and 10810 or former Prob. Code § 901, which establish a graduated scale by which the total compensation or fee is to be calculated [Estate of Heck (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 162, 165-166, 324 P.2d 733] . If partial allowance of the compensation or commission is given to the personal representative under Prob. Code § 10830(a)(2) or former Prob. Code § 904, the court may also give the same amount as a partial allowance of the attorney's fee under former Prob. Code § 911 [see Estate of Heck (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 162, 164, 324 P.2d 733 (award of fees under former Prob. Code § 904)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 458C.24-458C.39

[Reserved]

§§ 458C.24[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.40

§ 458C.40 State Statutes

[1] Account

Signing and verification of account. Prob. Code §§ 1020, 1021

Contents of account. Prob. Code § 10900

When account is required. Prob. Code §§ 10950-10954

Settlement of account. Prob. Code §§ 11000-11005

Compelling account. Prob. Code §§ 11050, 11051

[2] Appeal

Order distributing or refusing to distribute property as appealable. Prob. Code § 7240(n); see also Prob. Code § 17207 (appealable orders regarding trusts)

[3] Cash

Personal representative's duty to keep cash invested. Prob. Code § 9652

[4] Compensation

[a] Attorney

Compensation of attorney for personal representative. Prob. Code §§ 10800, 10810, 10830(a)(2) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code §§ 910, 911 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850])

Compensation to attorney for ordinary and extraordinary services, including extraordinary services of paralegals. Prob. Code § 10810 (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 910 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850])

Personal representative or attorney for personal representative is entitled to petition for allowance on attorney's compensation at any time after four months from issuance of letters. Prob. Code § 10830(a)(2) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991)

Notice requirements for petition for allowance on attorney's compensation. Prob. Code § 10830(b) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 911(b), (c) (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850])

Court is permitted, on hearing petition for allowance on attorney's compensation, to make order allowing portion of compensation on account of services rendered up to that time as court deems proper, and order is required to authorize personal representative to charge against estate amount allowed. Prob. Code § 10830(c) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991)

Attorney who has rendered services to personal representative is entitled to apply to court, any time after four months from the issuance of letters, for allowance on fee. Former Prob. Code § 911(a) (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850])

Court is required, on hearing application for allowance on fee, to order personal representative to pay attorney out of estate such compensation, on account of services rendered up to that time, as court deems proper; payment must be made forthwith. Former Prob. Code § 911(a) (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850])

[b] Personal Representative

Compensation of public administrator. Prob. Code §§ 7604, 7623, 7666

Compensation of special administrator. Prob. Code § 8547

Compensation of personal representative. Prob. Code §§ 10800-10805, 10830(a)(1) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code §§ 900-904 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850])

Compensation to personal representative for extraordinary services. Prob. Code § 10801(a) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 902 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850])

Retention and payment of tax experts. Prob. Code § 10801(b) (proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 902 (proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991)

Personal representative is entitled to petition for allowance on his or her compensation at any time after four months from issuance of letters. Prob. Code § 10830(a)(1) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991)

Notice requirements for petition for allowance on personal representative's compensation. Prob. Code § 10830(b)

(proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 904(b), (c) (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850])

Court is permitted, on hearing petition for allowance on compensation to personal representative, to make order allowing portion of compensation on account of services rendered up to that time as court deems proper, and order as required to authorize personal representative to charge against estate amount allowed. Prob. Code § 10830(c) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991)

Personal representative is entitled to apply to court, any time after four months from the issuance of letters, for allowance on commission. Former Prob. Code § 904(a) (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850])

Court is required, on hearing application for allowance on commission, to allow such portion of commission, for services rendered up to that time, as court deems proper; portion allowed is thereupon chargeable against estate. Former Prob. Code § 904(a) (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850])

[5] Hearings Generally

Setting matters for hearing. Prob. Code § 1041

Hearing must be on notice unless statute that provides for hearing dispenses with notice. Prob. Code § 1042

Continuance or postponement of hearing. Prob. Code § 1045

Matters to be heard and determined. Prob. Code § 1046

[6] Heirship

Determination of heirship. Prob. Code §§ 11700-11705

[7] Notice

[a] In General

General notice provisions. Prob. Code §§ 1200-1221

Proof of giving notice. Prob. Code §§ 1260-1265

[b] Petition for Partial Allowance of Attorney's Compensation

Notice of hearing on petition for partial allowance of attorney's compensation in proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991. Prob. Code § 10830(b)

Notice of hearing on petition for partial allowance of attorney's fees commenced before July 1, 1991. Former Prob. Code § 911(b), (c) [see Prob. Code § 10850].

[c] Petition for Partial Allowance of Personal Representative's Compensation

Notice of hearing on petition for partial allowance of personal representative's compensation in proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991. Prob. Code § 10830(b)

Notice of hearing on petition for partial allowance of commission to personal representative commenced before July 1, 1991. Former Prob. Code § 911(b), (c) [see Prob. Code § 10850].

[d] Petition for Preliminary Distribution

Notice of hearing on petition for preliminary distribution. Prob. Code § 11601

[8] Objections and Responses

Form and signature. Prob. Code §§ 1020, 1023

Verification. Prob. Code §§ 1021, 1023

Objection or response to petition by interested person. Prob. Code § 1043

[9] Orders in General

Contents. Prob. Code § 1047

Entry and filing. Prob. Code § 1048

Recordation when real property affected. Prob. Code § 7263

Delivery of order to county treasurer. Prob. Code § 11853

[10] Parties

Petitioner or other party affirming is plaintiff and party objecting or responding is defendant. Prob. Code § 1044

[11] Petitions

Petition for partial allowance of personal representative's or attorney's compensation in proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991. Prob. Code § 10830(a)

Petition for preliminary distribution of decedent's estate to persons entitled to it. Prob. Code § 11600

Petition for partial allowance of personal representative's commission in proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991. Former Prob. Code § 904 [see Prob. Code § 10850].

Petition for partial allowance of attorney's fees in proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991. Former Prob. Code § 911 [see Prob. Code § 10850].

[12] Preliminary Distribution

[a] In General

Personal representative or interested person is authorized to petition court for order for preliminary distribution of estate to persons entitled to it. Prob. Code § 11600

Preliminary distribution of decedent's estate. Prob. Code §§ 11600-11624

Delivery by personal representative in accordance with order for preliminary distribution fully discharges personal representative in relation to all property embraced in order. Prob. Code § 11753(a)

[b] Bond

Bond requirement if court orders distribution before four months have elapsed after letters were first issued to general personal representative. Prob. Code § 11622(a)

Authority of court to order bond if distribution is ordered after four months have elapsed after letters are first issued to general personal representative. Prob. Code § 11622(b)

Any bond as given by distributee; terms of bond; filing. Prob. Code § 11622(c)

[c] Costs

Unless otherwise provided by Probate Code or rules adopted by Judicial Council, either superior court or court of appeal has discretion to order payment of costs by any party or out of estate assets. Prob. Code § 1002

Costs of proceeding for preliminary distribution is to be paid by distributee or estate in proportions determined by court. Prob. Code § 11624

[d] Order

On determination that requirements for distribution are satisfied, court is required to order distribution of estate, or such portion as court directs, to person entitled to it. Prob. Code § 11603(a)

Contents of order. Prob. Code § 11603(b)

Procedure if whereabouts of beneficiary named in order is unknown. Prob. Code § 11603(c)

Procedure if distribution is to be made to beneficiary's transferee or any person other than beneficiary under agreement or request of beneficiary. Prob. Code § 11604

Order, on becoming final, is binding and conclusive on rights of all interested persons. Prob. Code § 11605

If it appears at hearing on petition for preliminary distribution that preliminary distribution may be made without loss to creditors or injury to estate or any interested person, court is required to order distribution. Prob. Code § 11621(a)

Order for preliminary distribution is stayed until any bond required by court is filed. Prob. Code § 11621(b)

Procedure when authority is granted to administer estate under Independent Administration of Estates Act (Prob. Code §§ 10400-10592). Prob. Code § 11623

[13] Procedure in General

Applicability of rules of practice applicable to civil actions in proceedings under Probate Code. Prob. Code § 1000

[14] Verification

Verification of petition, report, plan, or account and of objection or response to petition, report, plan, or account. Prob. Code § 1021(a)

Who may verify. Prob. Code § 1021(b)

Signing and verification when party is absent from county or otherwise unable to verify. Prob. Code § 1023

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.41

§ 458C.41 California Rules of Court

Listing required for petition for preliminary distribution when acting under Independent Administration of Estates Act.
Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.250

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.42

§ 458C.42 Decisions

[1] Compensation

Rules governing compensation for attorney services for decedents' estates do not arise from contract but are founded on statutory enactment; compensation awarded for extraordinary services requires exercise of judicial discretion to determine what amount is just and reasonable; because attorney who has performed probate work is person interested in estate, fee petition is not required to be presented by representative, but may be presented directly by attorney, who may appeal from adverse ruling; moreover, when right to counsel fees is based on statute, recovery for fee-related services is allowed. Estate of Trynin (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 868, 873-874, 264 Cal. Rptr. 93, 782 P.2d 232 (extraordinary services compensable under former Prob. Code § 910 (now see Prob. Code § 10810) include work reasonably performed by attorney to establish and defend his or her fee claim)

Statutory compensation of administrator based on 1948 appraised values of estate's real property rather than 1978 values, when testator died in 1948 and executor died in 1978, was proper because former Prob. Code § 600 (now see Prob. Code § 8850) (providing that inventory must be based on date of death of testator) and former Prob. Code § 901 (now see Prob. Code § 10800) (providing that compensation must be based on total amount of inventory) must be read together and are mandatory. Estate of Downing (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 256, 264-266, 184 Cal. Rptr. 511

Partial allowance of commission under former Prob. Code § 904 (now see Prob. Code § 10830) is within court's discretion, and court is not required to measure appropriate amount according to schedule in former Prob. Code § 901 (now see Prob. Code § 10800). Estate of Heck (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 162, 165, 324 P.2d 733 (partial allowance, prior to final account and settlement, as merely advance on total commission)

Special administrator is not entitled to allowance of commission before issuance of general letters, regardless of being special administrator with general powers and having nearly completed administration. Kohn v. Superior Court (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 100, 101-103, 68 P.2d 755 (applying former Prob. Code § 467 (now see Prob. Code § 8547))

[2] Preliminary Distribution

[a] Bond

Bond is required except when time for presenting claims has expired and all claims paid or sufficiently secured. Estate of Mitchell (1898) 121 Cal. 391, 394, 53 P. 810 (decided under former statutes (now see Prob. Code § 11622))

Evidence supported court's discretionary decision not to require bond from preliminary distributee, when time for filing claims had passed. Estate of Buchman (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 81, 107, 281 P.2d 608 (decided under former statutes (now see Prob. Code § 11622))

[b] Creditors' Rights

Court had inherent power on petition of creditor to order sole distributee, who was also executrix, to whom apartment house had been distributed under decree of partial distribution, to pay estate specified sum of money to discharge creditors' claims when creditors' consent to distribution and waiver of any right for repayment or redelivery of property by distributee was given on consideration (in addition to statutory bond) that distributee warranted to creditors that their claims would be paid and claims were not paid. Estate of Bettingen (1935) 7 Cal. App. 2d 276, 278-279, 46 P.2d 793 (decided under former Prob. Code §§ 1001, 1002 (now see Prob. Code §§ 11603(a), 11621, 11622, 11624))

[c] Duty of Personal Representative

Failure of executor to inform court of existence of known heir is extrinsic fraud justifying imposition of constructive trust. Stevens v. Torregano (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 105, 122-123, 13 Cal. Rptr. 604 (dictum)

Failure of personal representative carrying on administration in normal course to file prompt petition for preliminary distribution to each interested person entitled thereto does not constitute neglect of duty. Estate of Phelps (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 850, 853, 283 P.2d 293

Personal representative was not responsible to attaching creditor of legatee for distribution made before order therefor, when premature distribution was approved in later order for preliminary distribution. Estate of Stern (1937) 24 Cal. App. 2d 282, 284, 74 P.2d 799

[d] Hearing

[i] Effect of Pending Petition to Determine Heirship

Filing of petition to determine heirship under Prob. Code § 1080 (repealed; now see Prob. Code § 11700), after petition for preliminary distribution had been filed, as not divesting court of jurisdiction to determine heirship in proceeding for preliminary distribution. Estate of Stephenson (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 120, 124, 150 P.2d 222

[ii] Effect of Pending Will Contest

Mere fact that will may still be open to contest does not necessarily preclude preliminary distribution. Estate of Molera (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 993, 999-1000, 100 Cal. Rptr 696

Court is disabled from ordering preliminary distribution until after pending will contest, which may defeat petitioner's right to receive share of estate, has been determined and petitioner's right was thus affirmed. Estate of Hill (1928) 94 Cal. App. 113, 116-118, 270 P. 708

[iii] Evidence

Determination whether estate is but little indebted and whether preliminary distribution can be made without loss to creditors or injury to estate or person interested in it depends on comparison of value of estate with amount of debts, on character of property, expense of maintaining it and, if part of business venture, operating it, and net income, among other evidence. Estate of Buchman (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 81, 106-107, 281 P.2d 608 (involving former Prob. Code § 1001 (now see Prob. Code § 11621(a))), citing Estate of Hinkel (1917) 176 Cal. 563, 567, 169 P. 70

[iv] Jury Trial

Either party in proceeding for partial distribution is entitled to demand trial by jury of any issue of fact. Estate of Buchman (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 81, 101, 281 P.2d 608 , citing Estate of Perkins (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 561, 567, 134 P.2d 231 , and Estate of Baird (1916) 173 Cal. 617, 623, 160 P. 1078

[v] Questions of Fact

Propriety of preliminary distribution is question of fact, and probate court is not required to delay partial distribution because litigation is pending against estate; in such cases, court is influenced by well-established maxim that public policy favors speedy distribution of probate estates. Estate of Anderson (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1016, 137 Cal. Rptr. 727

Whether estate is but little indebted, and whether preliminary distribution can be made without loss to creditors or injury to estate or person interested in it are questions of fact. Estate of Buchman (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 81, 106-107, 281 P.2d 608 (involving former Prob. Code § 1001 (now see Prob. Code § 11621(a))), citing Estate of Hinkel (1917) 176 Cal. 563, 567, 169 P. 70

[vi] Scope of Inquiry

Determination of who is entitled to property is proper in proceeding for preliminary distribution, when there has been no determination of heirship under Prob. Code § 1080 (repealed, now see Prob. Code § 11700). Estate of Simmons (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 217, 220, 49 Cal. Rptr. 369, 411 P.2d 97

Court, before it can make order for preliminary distribution, is required to determine that distribution can then be made and to know who parties entitled to estate are, and in that proceeding, court is able to determine who heirs are and to what proportion of estate each is entitled; other questions that may arise include questions of law, such as construction of will. Estate of Molera (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 993, 1000, 100 Cal. Rptr. 696

Court, before it can make order for partial distribution, is required to know whether proposed distributee is entitled to any part of estate. Estate of Buchman (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 81, 101, 281 P.2d 608

Court, in order to exercise power given by Probate Code to make partial distribution of estate, is required to determine what persons are entitled to order and what portion or portions of estate should be distributed to them. Estate of Stephenson (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 120, 123-124, 150 P.2d 222

Determination of issues in proceeding for preliminary distribution are dependent on same considerations as determination of issues in proceeding for final distribution. Estate of Stephenson (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 120, 124, 150 P.2d 222

[e] Jurisdiction

Court hearing petition for preliminary distribution is without jurisdiction to determine controversy involving asserted right to receive distribution on basis other than terms of will or laws of intestate succession. Estate of Baldwin (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 586, 592-593, 21 Cal. 2d 586, 134 P.2d 259 (stating rule, but holding it inapplicable to case before it)

Court sitting in probate had jurisdiction to hear and decide simultaneously both petition for preliminary distribution of property in California and complaint in equity by objector, decedent's widow and one of his heirs, seeking to impose constructive trust on California property, which she alleged was community property or her separate property, when all parties consented to it. Estate of Arms (1921) 186 Cal. 554, 557-558, 199 P. 1053

Pending appeal of order admitting document to probate as codicil to decedent's will did not stay proceeding for preliminary distribution. Estate of Duraind (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 206, 211, 124 P.2d 330 (former Code Civ. Proc. § 949 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 916(a); see also Prob. Code § 7241), providing that appeal stays proceedings on judgment or order appealed from, as not applicable)

[f] Nature of Proceeding

Proceeding for distribution of estate in probate is in nature of proceeding in rem, res being estate that is in hands of executor under control of court and that executor brings before court for purpose of receiving directions as to its final disposition; by giving notice directed by statute, entire world is called before court, and court acquires jurisdiction over all persons for purpose of determining their rights to any portion of estate. Gladding v. Superior Court (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 408, 416, 60 P.2d 857

Nature of proceeding for preliminary distribution explained. In re Painter (1897) 115 Cal. 635, 639-640, 641, 47 P. 700

[g] Notice

Heirs are not entitled to personal notice of petition for distribution unless they have filed request for special notice. Estate of Lor ing (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 423, 429, 175 P.2d 524 ; Miller v. Pitman (1919) 180 Cal. 540, 543, 182 P. 50 ; Stevens v. Torregano (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 105, 122, 13 Cal. Rptr. 604 , citing Federal Farm Mortgage Corp. v. Sandberg (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 1, 5, 215 P.2d 721

Personal notice to interested persons is not necessary unless required by statute, and absence of statutory requirement for personal notice in probate proceedings does not deprive interested person of any constitutional right. Lilienkamp v. Superior Court (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 293, 298, 93 P.2d 1008

[h] Objections

[i] Grounds

Order admitting will to probate as decedent's will is conclusive, in later proceeding for preliminary distribution, on issue whether certain provisions in will had been revoked. In re Estate of Parsons (1925) 196 Cal. 294, 299-300, 237 P. 744

Insufficient cash in estate to pay expenses of administration, claims, and legacies, and necessity of paying legacies in prorated portions rather than full amount once assets have been converted to cash, is valid ground for objection to preliminary distribution. In re Estate of Parsons (1925) 196 Cal. 294, 300, 237 P. 744

Equitable defenses in opposition to petition for preliminary distribution. Estate of Glenn (1908) 153 Cal. 77, 79-81, 94 P. 230

Personal representative is not entitled to object that petition is worded in statutory language; personal representative is presumed to know details as to value and character of property, cash on hand, and indebtedness. Estate of Murphy (1904) 145 Cal. 464, 465-468, 78 P. 960

Objection that petition for preliminary distribution is insufficient is not raisable in appellate court unless presented to trial court. Estate of Morelli (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 39, 43, 226 P.2d 716

Inability to distribute property, because of its character, in manner prayed for is valid ground of objection. Estate of Raphael (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 931, 935, 206 P.2d 391

Issue whether property is community or separate is raisable in form of ground for objection to petition for preliminary distribution. Estate of Raphael (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 931, 935, 206 P.2d 391

[ii] Manner of Making Objections

Written objections to petition for preliminary distribution is not required; appearance at hearing for purpose of resisting petition is sufficient. Estate of Levy (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 223, 225-226, 48 P.2d 675 (applying former statutory provision; form of objections is now covered in Prob. Code §§ 1020, 1021, 1023, 1043; Prob. Code § 11602 provides that personal representative or any interested person may oppose petition for preliminary distribution)

[iii] Persons Entitled to Object

Receiver authorized to take possession of legacy that legatee seeks to have preliminarily distributed to himself is entitled to resist petition for preliminary distribution. Estate of Baldwin (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 586, 594-595, 134 P.2d 259 (construing former statutory provision; now see Prob. Code § 11602)

Personal representative is entitled to resist petition for preliminary distribution filed by someone else not a coexecutor or coadministrator. Estate of Baldwin (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 586, 594-595, 134 P.2d 259 (construing former statutory provision; now see Prob. Code § 11602)

Person entitled to contest decedent's will generally has interest sufficient to allow him or her to resist application for preliminary distribution. Estate of Molera (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 993, 999, 100 Cal. Rptr. 696

Court is entitled to look to purported ground for contest of will, if contest pending, when determining whether contestant has sufficient interest to allow resistance to petition for preliminary distribution; and is entitled to find contestant not sufficiently interested if distribution would not impair his or her rights even if contest successful. Estate of Molera (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 993, 999-1002, 100 Cal. Rptr. 696

Person is "interested in estate" if having at least direct contingent interest in subject in question. Estate of Sandy (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 309, 314, 40 Cal. Rptr. 837 (reviewing case law)

[i] Order

[i] Conclusiveness

Order for preliminary distribution purporting to determine matter not essential to preliminary distribution is not conclusive respecting such nonessential determination and does not bar later determination of same matter raised in different proceeding. Estate of Simmons (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 217, 220, 49 Cal. Rptr. 369, 411 P.2d 97

When personal representative is also legatee, order is conclusive against personal representative in capacity of legatee when he or she did not oppose petition for preliminary distribution in capacity of legatee. Estate of Murphy (1904) 145 Cal. 464, 465-468, 78 P. 960

Unless heirship is specifically in issue, order for preliminary distribution is conclusive as to rights of all persons claiming interest in property distributed thereunder; rule limiting conclusiveness of order for preliminary distribution to rights in assets distributed thereunder is consistent with policy that Probate Code sections permitting preliminary distribution were designed to encourage early distribution of property to legatees whenever it can be accomplished without jeopardizing rights of others interested in estate; of course, if construction of will has been litigated and determined in proceeding for preliminary distribution, that determination as res judicata and controlling final decree for distribution. Estate of McCallen (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 142, 148, 125 Cal. Rptr. 645

Order for preliminary distribution directing executor to withhold stated sum for purpose of paying expenses of defending legal action against executor is not conclusive distribution of that sum, even when order has become final; executor remains accountable for portion of sum not legitimately used for stated purpose. Estate of Miller (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 888, 904-906, 41 Cal. Rptr. 410

Order for preliminary distribution is final if no appeal taken and no motion timely made to modify or set aside. Estate of O'Connor (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 187, 192, 322 P.2d 616

Order allowing attorney's fee is conclusive when final and not subject to attack thereafter in objections to account listing payment; liability for payment has status of approved claim; payment is properly included in next account. Estate of Olcese (1934) 1 Cal. App. 2d 72, 79-80, 36 P.2d 215

[ii] Conditions Precedent

Specific finding that inheritance taxes are paid or due is unnecessary when order states finding that distribution can be made without injury to any person interested in estate. Estate of Johnson (1933) 218 Cal. 501, 504, 23 P.2d 1012 (decided prior to repeal of California Inheritance Tax Law)

Requirement that estate be "but little indebted" is protection of rights to creditors. Estate of Hinkel (1917) 176 Cal. 563, 567, 169 P. 70 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 1661; now see Prob. Code § 11621(a))

Personal representative's commission and attorney's fee are proper subjects for protection when court considers whether preliminary distribution can be made without injury to persons interested in estate. Estate of Straus (1904) 144 Cal. 553, 556, 77 P. 1122

Requirement that estate be "but little indebted" means that estate's debts be relatively small compared to value of estate. In re Crocker (1895) 105 Cal. 368, 372, 38 P. 954 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 1661; now see Prob. Code § 11621(a))

Evidence shows estate to be but little indebted and that preliminary distribution could be made without loss to creditors or injury to estate or person interested in it. Estate of Buchman (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 81, 107, 281 P.2d 608 (construing former Prob. Code § 1001; now see Prob. Code § 11621(a))

Creditors unable to prevent preliminary distribution, although debts aggregate large sum, if enough assets remain in estate to secure creditors. Estate of Morelli (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 39, 42, 226 P.2d 716

Injury to estate or person interested in it is not necessarily equivalent to loss of profit that could be gained if preliminary distribution was denied and executor was permitted to retain income-producing property as long as possible. Estate of Brickell (1935) 4 Cal. App. 2d 54, 57-58, 40 P.2d 579

[iii] Form of Order

Specific finding recited in order is controlling contradictory general finding. Estate of Ross (1921) 187 Cal. 454, 468, 202 P. 641 (specific findings as to identities of heirs as controlling contradictory general finding that all allegations of petition are true)

Order is required to recite what sum or other property is to be distributed to each distributee, and failure to deduct amount already paid as partial payment, if acknowledged by distributee, is error. Estate of Mitchell (1898) 121 Cal. 391, 395, 53 P. 810

Order is sufficient if stating findings required by statute; statutory language in order is appropriate and implies all specific findings necessary to support those general findings. Estate of Clifford (1936) 16 Cal. App. 2d 123, 126-127, 60 P.2d 302 (applying former Prob. Code §§ 1000, 1001; now see Prob. Code §§ 11603(a), 11620, 11621)

Finding stated in order that on proof made to the satisfaction of the court, notice was duly given as required by law, was conclusive on appeal in absence of contradictory evidence in record. Estate of Dam (1932) 126 Cal. App. 70, 73-75, 14 P.2d 162

[iv] Mandatory Nature of Order

Mandate is appropriate remedy when court refuses to act on petition for preliminary distribution, rather than denying petition. Lissner v. Superior Court (1944) 23 Cal. 2d 711, 717-718, 146 P.2d 232 (order declining to act on ground of lack of jurisdiction as not appealable under Prob. Code § 1240 (repealed, now see Prob. Code § 7240))

Order directing preliminary distribution is mandatory when prescribed conditions exist. Estate of Stephenson (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 120, 123, 150 P.2d 222 (construing former statutory provision; now see Prob. Code § 11621(a))

[v] Modification of Order

Petitioner is entitled to apply for modification of order for preliminary distribution when facts show necessity therefor. Estate of Johnson (1933) 218 Cal. 501, 504, 23 P.2d 1012

Set aside of settlement agreement effectively set aside order for preliminary distribution derived from settlement. Estate of Beard (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 753, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 276

[vi] Scope of Order

Order for preliminary distribution to life beneficiary under decedent's will distributed only life estate in property covered by order; order was not a determination that distributed property represents value of distributee's life interest in bequest. Estate of Toler (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 460, 465, 319 P.2d 337

[j] Property Subject to Distribution

Chose in action that personal representative is trying to enforce in pending action was improper, but not unlawful, subject of distribution, when personal representative and certain parties in interest oppose distributing it. In re Estate of Colton (1912) 164 Cal. 1, 4, 127 P. 643

Complete distribution in proceeding for preliminary distribution is contrary to intent of law. In re Estate of Gird (1910) 157 Cal. 534, 550, 108 P. 499

[k] Public Policy

Established policy of California is to encourage distribution of property to legatees as soon as it can be done without jeopardizing rights of others interested in estate. Estate of Beach (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 623, 641, 125 Cal. Rptr. 570, 542 P.2d 994 , cert. denied, 434 U.S. 1046, 98 S. Ct. 891, 54 L. Ed. 2d 797

Petition for partial distribution implements policy of law favoring earliest possible delivery of inherited property to legatees or devisees consistent with proper administration. Estate of Buchman (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 81, 100-101, 281 P.2d 608 , cert. denied, 350 U.S. 873, 76 S. Ct. 118, 100 L. Ed. 772

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 458C.43-458C.59

[Reserved]

§§ 458C.43[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART IV. FORMS

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.60

§ 458C.60 Petition for Preliminary Distribution of Decedent's Estate [Prob. Code § 11600]

[1] FORM Petition for Preliminary Distribution of Decedent's Estate [Prob. Code § 11600]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
Estate of _____ [name],	)	PETITION FOR PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION
Deceased.	)

_____

Petitioner(s) _____ [name(s)] hereby petition(s) the court for an order for a preliminary distribution of the above-entitled estate and, in support thereof, respectfully represent(s):

1. Petitioner(s) _____ [name(s)] is/are _____ [the duly qualified, appointed, and acting personal representative(s) or specify relationship showing that petitioner(s) is/are interested person(s) within the meaning of Prob. Code § 48, e.g., devisees] of [the estate of] _____ [name], deceased (hereinafter, "the decedent").

2. The decedent died on _____ [date], and at the time of death was a resident of _____ [specify, e.g., _____ County, California].

[EITHER]

3. The decedent's will was admitted to probate by order of this court on _____ [date].

[OR]

3. The decedent died intestate.

[ADD, if the Inventory and Appraisal has been filed]

4. The Inventory and Appraisal was duly filed herein on _____ [date], and shows that the assets of the estate are valued at $_____.

[CONTINUE]

5. The name, age, address, and relationship to the decedent, of each _____ [heir or devisee] are _____ [set forth in Exhibit A, which is attached hereto and made a part hereof or as follows: _____ (specify)].

6. Letters _____ [testamentary or of administration or of administration with the will annexed] were issued to _____ [petitioner(s) or _____(name(s)) (hereinafter, "the personal representative(s)")] on _____ [date at least two months before this petition is filed], and are still in full force and effect.

7. Notice to creditors _____ [has not yet been published or was published in the manner prescribed by Probate Code Section 9001]. Notice of administration under Probate Code Sections 9050-9052 _____ [is not required in this matter or was duly mailed to all known and reasonably ascertainable creditors of the decedent, other than those described in Probate Code Section 9054, on _____ (date)].

8. The statutory period for filing creditors' claims _____[has or has not] expired.

[EITHER]

9. No claims have been presented or filed against the decedent's estate.

[OR]

9. The status of each claim against the estate filed or presented, including the name of the claimant, the amount claimed, and the disposition, is _____ [set out in Exhibit B, attached hereto and made a part hereof or as follows: _____ (specify)].

[EITHER]

10. No federal estate tax return is required to be filed for the estate.

[OR]

10. A federal estate tax return _____ [has been or will be] filed for the estate showing that no estate tax is due.

[OR]

10. A federal estate tax return has not been filed for the estate, but one will be filed. The estimated total tax due is $_____ [and $_____ has been prepaid on account].

[CONTINUE]

11. The property of the estate in _____ [my hands or the hands of the personal representative(s)] is _____ [set forth in Exhibit C, which is attached hereto and made a part hereof or as follows: _____ (describe each item, or group of items, of property and appraised value of each)].

12. The following described property can be distributed to the _____ [petitioner(s) or below-named _____ (beneficiary or beneficiaries)] in accordance with the _____ [decedent's will or law of intestate succession] without loss to creditors or injury to the estate or any interested person for the reasons hereinafter specified: _____[specifically describe property and state the name and address of the heir or devisee to whom it is to be distributed; if any distributee is a minor, so state, giving the date of birth].

13. The value of the estate remaining in _____ [my hands or the hands of the personal representative(s)] after the preliminary distribution will be $_____, which is [more than] sufficient to pay all [anticipated] creditors' claims, [all other devises,] and all commissions, fees, and costs of administration.

14. The estate is not in a condition to be closed because _____ [specify, e.g., the time for filing claims against the estate has not yet expired].

15. To satisfy the statutory requirement that a bond be posted, [or that a bond may be required,] the _____ [petitioner(s) or distributee(s), _____ (name(s))], _____ [agree(s) or has agreed or have agreed] to post a corporate surety bond in the amount(s) and on the conditions required by law.

[EITHER, if no prior distribution has been made]

16. No prior distributions have been made in this matter.

[OR, if prior distribution has been made]

16. _____ [number, e.g., One] prior distribution was/were made in this matter on _____ [date].

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays as follows:

1. That portion of the decedent's estate listed in Paragraph 12 be ordered distributed to the _____ [petitioner(s) or beneficiary named or beneficiaries named], and in the manner set out, in that paragraph.

2. The costs of this proceeding be ordered paid by the _____ [petitioner(s) or distributee(s)] or the estate in proportions determined by the Court.

3. For all other proper orders.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Petitioner

[ADD separate signature blocks for each petitioner, if more than one]

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Petitioner

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am [one of] the petitioner(s) in the above-entitled proceeding. I have read the foregoing petition and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters that are therein stated on information and belief and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

This petition is for use by the personal representative of the decedent's estate or an interested person to secure a court order for distribution of all or a portion of the share of a decedent's estate to which a beneficiary is entitled prior to the time of final distribution [see Prob. Code §§ 11600, 11620]. "Beneficiary" is defined as a person to whom a donative transfer of property is made or that person's successor in interest and, as it relates to the estate of a decedent who died intestate, means an "heir," and, as it relates to the estate of a decedent who died testate, means a "devisee" [Prob. Code § 24(a), (b)]. For the required notice that must be given of the hearing, see § 458C.12[4].

This form may also be used by the personal representative to petition for preliminary distribution of an estate being administered under the Independent Administration of Estates Act (Prob. Code § 10400 et seq.) by;

- Changing the title of the petition to "PETITION FOR PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION (ESTATE ADMINISTERED WITHOUT COURT SUPERVISION)."

- Changing the code section cited in the caption to Prob. Code § 11623.

- Changing Paragraph 1 to read "Petitioner is the duly qualified, appointed, and acting personal representative of the [the estate of] _____ [name], deceased (hereinafter "the decedent"), and on _____[date], petitioner was granted _____ [full or limited] authority under the Independent Administration of Estates Act to administer the decedent's estate without court supervision."

- Adding a new Paragraph 10 to read "Petitioner has taken certain actions without prior court approval, under the Independent Administration of Estates Act, for which notice of the proposed action was required. These actions are as follows: _____ [describe each action not yet listed in a prior accounting, report, or petition for preliminary distribution that was approved by the court; list each separately, including the nature of the action, when the action was taken, a statement of when and to whom notice was given, whether notice was waived and if so, by whom, and whether any objections were received]." (Renumbering the paragraphs that follow accordingly) [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.250].

- Including a statement of facts in Paragraph 12 showing the value of the portion of the estate sought to be preliminarily distributed and that it is less than 50 percent of the net value of the estate [see Prob. Code § 11623, discussed in § 458C.21].

Before drafting the petition, counsel should check the local rules of the court in which the proceeding is pending to be sure he or she complies with any rules that apply in that court to petitions for preliminary distribution of estates being administered under the Independent Administration of Estates Act [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.69].

[3] Signing and Verification

The petition must be signed by all petitioners [Prob. Code § 1020] and verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1); but see Prob. Code § 1020 (verification of document constitutes signature of that document)] by the petitioner or by one of them if there is more than one [Prob. Code § 1021(b)(1)]. However, if the petitioner is absent from the county or for some other cause is unable to sign or verify the petition, the petition may be signed or verified by the petitioner's attorney, but this does not apply if the petitioner is a fiduciary. This term includes the personal representative [Prob. Code §§ 39, 1023].

[4] Who May File Petition

A petition for preliminary distribution may be filed by the personal representative (defined in Prob. Code § 58(a)) or by an interested person (defined in Prob. Code § 48) [Prob. Code § 11600]. If the estate is being administered under the Independent Administration of Estates Act, a petition for preliminary distribution may be filed only by the personal representative [see Prob. Code § 11623(a)].

[5] When Petition May Be Filed

A petition for preliminary distribution may not be filed unless at least two months have elapsed after letters are first issued to a "general personal representative" (defined in Prob. Code § 58(b)) [Prob. Code § 11620].

[6] Account

The statutory provisions governing preliminary distribution [Prob. Code §§ 11600-11624] do not require that an account be filed before a preliminary distribution can be made. Nevertheless, statute does provide that the court may, on its own motion or on petition of an interested person, order an account at any time [Prob. Code § 10950(a)].

Moreover, it appears that even without a court order an account may be included with a petition for preliminary distribution by the personal representative [see, e.g., Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.1.2]. For an account that may be adapted for use as a First Account and incorporated into this petition, see Ch. 458D, Probate: Accounts, Final Distribution, and Compensation . For discussion of when an account may be waived, see Prob. Code § 10954.

If an interim or first account is included with the foregoing petition by the personal representative, the description of the nature of the paper in the title of the form in the caption should reflect that fact [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(6); *see also, e.g.,*Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.9; Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 601.05.

[7] Contents of Petition

[a] State Law

Although a preliminary distribution may be made without the filing of an account, sufficient facts must be set forth in the petition to allow the court to ascertain that the requirements for distribution are satisfied [see Prob. Code § 11603]. Although the statutes authorizing a petition for preliminary distribution do not specify the matters the petition must contain, the statute does provide that the court "shall" order preliminary distribution if at the hearing it appears that the distribution may be made without loss to creditors or injury to the estate or any interested person [Prob. Code § 11621; see Prob. Code § 12, defining "shall" as mandatory]. It would therefore appear that, at a minimum, the petition should allege facts sufficient to show not only that the distribution is in accordance with the will [see Prob. Code §§ 6100-6390] or the laws of intestate succession [see Prob. Code §§ 6400-6455], but also that the preliminary distribution may be made without loss to creditors or injury to the estate or any interested person, that is, that the estate is solvent [see, e.g., Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.02].

[b] Local Court Rules

Local court rules to a large extent have filled in the legislative gap with respect to matters that the petition must contain. Consequently, before drafting the petition, counsel should check the local rules of the court in which the estate is being probated for any rules, memoranda, or policies that apply to preliminary distributions. Some of these are discussed below.

[8] Allegations

[a] Identity of Petitioner (Paragraph 1)

There is no express statutory requirement that the identity of the petitioner be alleged in the body of the form, but this is frequently included for the sake of clarity and precision in pleading.

[b] Residence and Date of Death (Paragraph 2)

There is no requirement that decedent's date of death or residence at the time of death be alleged because these facts are a matter of record appearing in the petition to administer the estate [see Prob. Code § 8002(a)(1), (2)]. Nevertheless, they are frequently included to advise the court of the status of the estate.

[c] Whether Decedent Died Testate or Intestate (Paragraphs 3)

The allegation as to whether decedent died testate or intestate is another fact of record [see Prob. Code §§ 8000, 8002(b), 8005(a)(4), 8422, 8440, 8460] that need not be, but frequently is, included in the petition. It may be helpful to the court to have before it a statement as to whether distribution is governed by a will [see Prob. Code §§ 6100-6390] or by the laws of intestate succession [see Prob. Code §§ 6400-6455].

[D] Inventory and Appraisal (Paragraph 4)

An inventory and appraisal must be filed within four months, or such other reasonable time as the court allows, after letters are first issued to a general personal representative [Prob. Code § 8800(b)]. Some courts by local rule require that before a preliminary distribution can be ordered, an inventory and appraisal must be on file [see, e.g., Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.21(8)] or that it should be on file [see, e.g., San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.83]. If this rule exists and the inventory and appraisal has been filed, its filing should be alleged for the information of the court. For discussion and forms for inventory and appraisal, see Ch. 451, Probate: Inventory and Appraisal .

[e] Heirs and Devisees (Paragraph 5)

The names, ages, addresses, and relationship to the decedent of the heirs and devisees are matters of record appearing in the petition for administration [see Prob. Code § 8002(a)(3)] and need not normally be alleged in a petition for preliminary distribution. Nevertheless, they are frequently included because preliminary distribution can be ordered only if the court determines that distribution may be made without, among other things, injury to any interested person, which term is defined as including, among others, heirs and devisees [Prob. Code § 11621(a); see Prob. Code § 48(a)(1)].

[f] Issuance of Letters (Paragraph 6)

The issuance of letters is a fact appearing of record [see Prob. Code §§ 8400, 8405] but should be alleged because the petition cannot be filed until at least two months have elapsed after the letters were issued, and whether the bond requirement is mandatory or left to the court's discretion depends on when the order for distribution is made with respect to the issuance of letters [see Prob. Code §§ 11620, 11622; see also § 458C.18].

[g] Notice to Creditors and Claims (Paragraphs 7-9)

The giving of notice to creditors and the filing of any claims [see Prob. Code §§ 9000-9399], as well as their disposition, should be alleged in a petition by the personal representative, because distribution can be ordered only when it appears that it can be done without loss to creditors [see Prob. Code § 11621(a)]. For the same reason, this information, if known, should also be alleged in a petition by an interested person.

Some courts by local rule expressly provide that it is not sufficient in a petition for preliminary distribution to allege merely that all claims have been paid, but, rather, that the claims presented must be listed, showing the claimant, the amount claimed, and the disposition of each claim, and that, if any claim has been rejected, the date of service of the notice of rejection of claim must be stated [see, e.g., Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 5.9(L)].

[h] Federal Estate Tax (Paragraphs 10)

An allegation concerning federal estate tax is normally included in a petition by the personal representative because, if a tax liability exists and has not been fully paid, its subsequent payment might impact on the amount of property available for distribution to the heirs or devisees, and, in ruling on the petition for preliminary distribution, the court must determine whether the distribution can be made without loss to creditors or injury to the estate or to any interested person [see Prob. Code § 11621(a); *see also, e.g.,*San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.83 (petition required to state estimate of total amount of unpaid taxes)].

[i] Property on Hand (Paragraph 11)

A listing of the property on hand and its appraised value are not specifically required by statute, but should be included since distribution can be ordered only when it can be done without loss to creditors or injury to the estate or to any interested person [see Prob. Code § 11621(a)].

[j] Proposed Distribution (Paragraph 12)

[i] Description of Distributees

The petition for preliminary distribution must identify the distributees by name, and this is expressly required by some local court rules [see, e.g., Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.2]. Heirs who take by virtue of intestacy must also be sufficiently described to permit the court to determine if the laws of intestate succession [see Prob. Code §§ 6400-6455, discussed in Ch. 458D, Probate: Accounts, Final Distribution, and Compensation] have been properly applied [see, e.g., Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.4].

[ii] Description of Property

The petition must also list and describe in detail the property to be distributed, either in the body of the petition, or in the prayer, or by a schedule in an account incorporated in the petition by reference Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.20; Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 5.9(I). Describing the property by reference to the inventory is generally not acceptable [see, e.g., Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.1.2 (prohibiting description by reference to the will or inventory); Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.111 (prohibiting description by reference to the inventory); Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.12 (same); San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.85(A) (same)].

Some courts further require that a petition for distribution contain an allegation as to the character of the property, whether separate or community, in all cases in which its character may or will affect distribution [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.114; Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.12; San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.86], and that, if some portion of the assets consists of community property (defined in Prob. Code § 28), the allegation must show whether the interest included is only the decedent's one-half interest in the community property or 100 percent of the community property of both spouses [see Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.114].

[k] Value of Remaining Estate (Paragraph 13)

Some courts require that the petition state the approximate value of the property remaining in the estate after the proposed distribution [see, e.g., San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.83].

[l] Condition Preventing Closing of Estate (Paragraph 14)

Although there is no statute expressly requiring that this fact be alleged, the petition should state why the estate cannot be closed. If the estate is in condition to be closed, a petition for preliminary distribution would appear to be unnecessary [see Prob. Code §§ 11640, 12200].

[m] Bond (Paragraphs 15)

If the court orders distribution before four months have elapsed after letters are first issued, it must require the distributee to file a bond in the amount of the distribution conditioned on payment of the distributee's proper share of the debts of the estate, not exceeding the amount distributed [Prob. Code § 11622(a), (c)]. If distribution is ordered after four months have elapsed, the court may require a bond in such amount as it orders [Prob. Code § 11621(b)]. In this latter situation, some courts may require a distributee's bond unless an account has been filed, and approved, showing the estate to be solvent [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.122].

[n] Prior Distribution (Paragraph 16)

This statement as to whether there have been any prior distributions is not required by statute but is frequently included to further advise the court of the estate's status.

[9] Assignment or Transfer of Interest by Beneficiary

Special requirements apply when distribution is to be made to the transferee of a beneficiary (defined in Prob. Code § 24) or to any person other than the beneficiary under an agreement, request, or instructions of a beneficiary or a beneficiary's attorney in fact [see Prob. Code § 11604(a)]. In such a case, the court on its own motion, or on motion of the personal representative or other interested person or of the public administrator, may inquire into the circumstances surrounding the execution of, and the consideration for, the transfer, agreement, request, or instructions, and the amount of any fees, charges, or consideration paid or agreed to be paid by the beneficiary [Prob. Code § 11604(b)]. If the court finds either that (1) the fees, charges, or consideration paid or agreed to be paid by a beneficiary are grossly unreasonable, or (2) the transfer, agreement, request, or instructions were obtained by duress, fraud, or undue influence, it may refuse to order distribution, or may order distribution on any terms it deems just and equitable [Prob. Code § 11604(c)]. A $122,000 distribution to an heir hunter was not grossly unreasonable even though the probate court had authorized a $5,000 fee to an heir hunter employed by the estate. The heir hunter who actually located the heir spent approximately 150 hours searching data bases and interviewing leads and had spent two days searching for the heir. The heir's assignment of her interest in the estate was also not obtained by duress, fraud or undue influence where the heir hunter gave the heir time to consider the matter and gave her his cell phone number [Estate of Wright (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 228, 239, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 572] .

Notice of the hearing on the motion must be served on the beneficiary and on the persons described in Prob. Code § 11604(a) at least 15 days before the hearing in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10 (personal delivery) or 415.30 (mail and acknowledgment of receipt), as the court may direct [Prob. Code § 11604(d)].

Local courts may impose additional requirements. For example, in Los Angeles County, in any case in which the estate representative has reasonable cause to believe that there exists an assignment or transfer of the estate interest of any heir, devisee, or legatee, the estate representative, prior to or concurrently with the filing of, or hearing on, a petition for preliminary distribution, shall advise the court thereof by a verified instrument in writing setting forth the facts and circumstances of the assignment or transfer then known to the representative [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.118(a)].

[10] Partial Allowance of Commission or Fees

A petition for an allowance on the personal representative's compensation or commission [see Prob. Code § 10830(a)(1) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 904 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991); see also Prob. Code § 10850] or on the attorney's compensation or fee [see Prob. Code 10830(a)(2)(proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 911 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991); see also Prob. Code § 10850] is sometimes included with a petition for preliminary distribution. In this event, the notice provisions of Prob. Code § 10830(b) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991) or former Prob. Code §§ 904, 911 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991) [see Prob. Code § 10850], and Prob. Code § 11601, as the same may apply, must be complied with. For a form of petition for allowance on account of commissions or fees that may be included in the petition, see § 458C.62.

If the petitions are combined, the nature of the paper in the caption must identify both and the relief sought by each [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.111(6); *see also, e.g.,*Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.9; Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 601.05; San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.117].

[11] State Statutes

"Beneficiary" defined. Prob. Code § 24

"Devise" defined. Prob. Code § 32

"Devisee" defined. Prob. Code § 34

"Heirs" defined. Prob. Code § 40

"Interested person" defined. Prob. Code § 48

"Personal representative" and "general personal representative" defined. Prob. Code § 58

Requirement that inventory and appraisal be filed within four months after letters are first issued to general personal representative. Prob. Code § 8800(b)

"Full" and "limited" authority of personal representative administering estate without court supervision defined. Prob. Code §§ 10402, 10403

Requirement that personal representative administering estate without court supervision, whether granted full or limited authority, obtain court supervision for preliminary distribution. Prob. Code § 10501(a)(4)

Petition for preliminary distribution of decedent's estate. Prob. Code § 11600

Notice of hearing on petition. Prob. Code § 11601

Who may oppose petition. Prob. Code § 11602

Conditions requiring granting of petition. Prob. Code §§ 11603(a), 11621(a)

When petition may be filed. Prob. Code § 11620

When bond must or may be required. Prob. Code § 11622

Preliminary distribution of estate under Independent Administration of Estates Act (Prob. Code § 10400 et seq.). Prob. Code § 11623

Allocation of costs of proceeding. Prob. Code § 11624

[12] Local Rules of Court

[a] Alameda County

Titles and preparation of petitions. Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.1.10

Prior court order required before assets from decedent's estate may be distributed by personal representative. Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.1.1

Description of property in petition for distribution. Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.1.2

Names of distributees and assets to be distributed must be set forth in petition or attached schedule incorporated by reference. Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.2.1

Cash distributions. Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.2.2

Description of distributees. Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.3

Heirs who take by intestacy. Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.4

Property of predeceased spouse. Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.5

Allegation whether property is separate or community and which items can be traced from prior marriage of decedent. Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.6

Distribution to minors, deceased heir or devisee, missing heir, or when civil suit pending against estate. Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.11-12.11.14

Payment of federal estate tax with relation to distribution. Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.15

[b] Los Angeles County

Caption of petition is required to be all-inclusive as to relief sought. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.9

Description of property to be distributed. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.111

Allegation as to whether property is separate or community. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.114

Description of distributees. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.115

Requirements when estate representative has reasonable cause to believe assignment or transfer of estate interest of heir or devisee exists. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.118

Distribution on minor's behalf. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.120

Distribution establishing testamentary trust. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.121

Preliminary distribution bond. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.122

[c] Orange County

Caption of petition is required to be all-inclusive as to relief sought in petition. Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 601.05

Verification of petitions. Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 601.11

Petition for distribution as required to contain allegation concerning separate or community property nature of assets. Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.12

Description of property to be distributed. Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.20

Documents to be on file before distribution ordered. Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.21

[d] City & County of San Francisco

Caption of pleading are required to disclose nature of all relief sought or actions taken. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.24

Description of assets in petition for distribution. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.85(A)

Petition for distribution is required to state how estate is to be distributed. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.85(B)

Petition for distribution is required to allege separate or community character of property. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.86

Agreement required to be on file if distribution is to be other than according to will or laws of intestate succession. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.87

Assignment is required to be on file if distribution is to be made to assignee of heir or devisee. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.88

Distribution to persons under conservatorship or guardianship. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.89

Distribution to minors. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.90

Distribution to trustee. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.91

Distribution to representative of deceased heir or beneficiary. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.92

Distribution to intestate heirs. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.93

[e] Santa Clara County

Allegation reclaims. Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 5.9(B)

Description of property to be distributed and distributees. Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 5.9(I)

[13] Decisions

[a] Petition

Sufficiency of petition for preliminary distribution is dependent on both allegations and prayer; petition is sufficient if prayer is for necessary findings and order; allegations conforming with statutory requirements for maintenance of proceeding are appropriate. Gladding v. Superior Court (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 408, 414-415, 60 P.2d 857 (involving former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1658, 1663; now see Prob. Code §§ 11603(a), 11620, 11621(a))

Petition for order directing preliminary distribution is required to show existence of situation within contemplation of statute. Estate of Ross (1921) 187 Cal. 454, 465, 202 P. 641

Petition worded in statutory language is sufficient as against personal representative when it alleges ultimate facts that court must find in order to direct preliminary distribution. Estate of Murphy (1904) 145 Cal. 464, 465-468, 78 P. 960

Former Prob. Code § 1000 (now see Prob. Code § 11621(a)) does not require any particular allegations in petition for preliminary distribution but as requiring only that certain facts should appear at the hearing. Estate of Brown (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 575, 579, 129 P.2d 713 (construing former statutes)

[b] Petitioner

Receiver succeeding to right of possession of legacy is entitled to petition for preliminary distribution, notwithstanding receiver's failure to acquire legatee's title. Estate of Baldwin (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 586, 590-592, 134 P.2d 259 (construing former statutory provision; now see Prob. Code §§ 48, 11600)

Petition of surviving spouse in capacity of legatee seeking preliminary distribution is governed by Prob. Code §§ 1658, 1663 (repealed; now see Prob. Code §§ 11600-11624). Gladding v. Superior Court (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 408, 413-414, 60 P.2d 857

Person whose only interest in estate is as potential creditor of devisee has no sufficient interest to entitle him to petition for preliminary distribution. Estate of Schlegel (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 255, 257, 88 Cal. Rptr. 734

Special administrator having general powers pursuant to former Prob. Code § 465 (now see Prob. Code § 8545) is entitled to file petition for preliminary distribution. Estate of Buchman (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 81, 105, 281 P.2d 608

Petition of surviving spouse for distribution of half of community property belonging to that spouse is not required to conform to petition for preliminary distribution under former Prob. Code §§ 1000-1003 (now see Prob. Code §§ 11600, 11603(a), 11620, 11621(a)); distribution of such property not governed by those sections but by Prob. Code § 201 (repealed; now see Prob. Code § 100). Estate of Brown (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 575, 579, 129 P.2d 713

Beneficiary of testamentary trust is entitled to petition for preliminary distribution to trustee. Estate of McGirl (1932) 125 Cal. App. 310, 313, 13 P.2d 746 , citing In re Mackay (1895) 107 Cal. 303, 307, 40 P. 558

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART IV. FORMS

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.61

§ 458C.61 Order for Preliminary Distribution of Decedent's Estate [Prob. Code §§ 11621, 11622]

[1] FORM Order for Preliminary Distribution of Decedent's Estate [Prob. Code §§ 11621, 11622]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
Estate of _____ [name],	)	ORDER FOR PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION
Deceased.	)

_____

The petition of _____ [name(s)] for preliminary distribution of _____ [all or a portion of] the share of the above-entitled estate to which _____ [petitioner(s) or name(s)] is/are entitled came on regularly for hearing [in Department _____ (number)] of the above-entitled Court, on _____ [this date or specify date], the Honorable _____ [name] presiding. Petitioner appeared [in person and] by his/her attorney, _____ [name]. _____ [There was no opposition to the petition or _____(name), _____ (specify relationship showing that opposing party is an interested person within the meaning of Prob. Code § 48, e.g., a devisee under the decedent's will,) (filed written objections and) appeared (in person) and by his/her attorney, _____(name), in opposition to the petition].

On evidence given to the satisfaction of the court, THE COURT FINDS as follows:

1. Notice of the time and place of the hearing was _____[given as required by Probate Code Section 11601 or waived by the person(s) entitled to it]. [Special notice, was _____(given to _____ (name(s)), as requested or requested and waived by _____ (name(s))).]

2. Notice to creditors was given as required by _____ [law or Probate Code Sections 8120, 9001, and 9050-9054].

3. Notice to creditors _____ [has not yet been published or was published in the manner prescribed by Probate Code Section 9001]. Notice of administration under Probate Code Sections 9050-9052 _____ [is not required in this matter or was duly mailed to all known and reasonably ascertainable creditors of the decedent, other than those described in Probate Code Section 9054, on _____ (date)].

4. The time for filing claims against the above-named estate _____ [has or has not] expired.

5. All claims filed have been paid or are sufficiently secured[, except as follows: _____ (specify)].

6. The estate is not in a condition to be finally closed and distributed at this time because _____ [specify].

7. _____ [Petitioner(s) or Name(s)] is/are _____ [a beneficiary or beneficiaries] entitled to a share of the above-named estate under the _____ [decedent's will or laws of intestate succession] in that _____ [he/she is a or they are] _____ [specify, e.g., devisee(s) under the decedent's will] entitled to the property described below.

8. The property described below may be distributed to the above-named _____ [petitioner(s) or beneficiary or beneficiaries] at this time without loss to the creditors or injury to the estate or any interested person because the value of the estate remaining in the hands of the personal representative after the preliminary distribution is $_____, which is more than sufficient to pay all [anticipated] creditors' claims[, all other devises,] and all commissions, fees, and costs of administration of the decedent's estate[, and, as a condition precedent to distribution, _____(the or each) distributee will give and file a bond in an amount equal to the _____ (amount of money and/or value of the property) distributed to him/her].

IT IS, THEREFORE, ORDERED that

1. _____ [Petitioner or Name], the decedent's personal representative, distribute the following property in the decedent's estate to the following person(s):

a. _____ [Describe particularly, in separate paragraphs for each item, what property is to be distributed and to whom, indicating whether the distribution is in accord with the will or with the laws of intestate succession, e.g.: To John J. Doe, as a portion of a devise of $5,000 given to him in Paragraph 10 of the will, the sum of $2,500 in cash].

b. _____ [Continuing example: To Mary H. Roe, as the devise to her in Paragraph 17 of the will, the real property described as follows: _____ (legal and common descriptions), having an appraised value of $_____].

c. _____ [Example of intestate succession: To Mary Doe, the surviving spouse of the decedent, and John Doe, the only surviving child of decedent, each an undivided one-half interest in all the real property located at _____ (street address and city), more particularly described as _____ (full legal description), having an appraised value of $_____].

d. _____ [Continue in manner illustrated above].

[EITHER, if a bond is required]

2. _____ [The or Each] _____ [petitioner or distributee] shall give and file with the court a bond in _____ [either, if order is made less than four months after letters were first issued, an amount equal to the amount of money and/or appraised value of the property to be received by him/her pursuant to this order or, if order is made more than four months after letters were first issued, the following amount(s): _____(specify)], conditioned on payment of _____ [the or each] _____ [petitioner's or distributee's] proper share of the debts of the estate, not exceeding the _____ [specify, e.g., amount of money and/or appraised value of the property] distributed to him/her].

[OR, if no bond is required]

2. No bond shall be required of the _____ [petitioner(s) or distributee(s)] on the distribution.

[CONTINUE]

3. _____ [The estate and/or name(s) of distributee(s)] shall pay the costs of this proceeding in the amount of $_____ [in the following proportions: _____(specify, e.g., $_____ payable by _____ (name) and $_____ payable by _____ (name))].

[ADD, if bond is required]

4. This order is stayed until _____ [the bond or all bonds] required by this order is/are filed.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use when the court grants a petition for preliminary distribution of a portion of the decedent's estate to the person or persons entitled to it [see Prob. Code §§ 11600, 11603(a), 11621(b), 11622].

In some counties, the clerk will prepare the order [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.39(a)]. Some courts may provide a printed form of the above order in blank available at the court clerk's office, and, if available, should be used.

[3] Contents of Order

[a] In General

Orders in probate proceedings normally include the date of the hearing and the name and department if any of the judge presiding [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.42(a)]. As a general rule, they also include the appearances of the parties and/or their attorneys.

[b] Drafting

Courts generally require that orders of distribution be so drawn that their full extent may be determined without reference to the petition on which they are based, and without reference to any documents which are not part of the order [see, e.g., Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.7; Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.42(a); Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, 5.9(I)].

[c] Findings

[i] Sufficiency

The order will be sufficient if it makes findings of the ultimate facts required by Prob. Code §§ 11603(a), 11620, and 11621, and a statement of those findings in the language of the statute, although general in form, is sufficient. Such a statement of findings in general statutory language will be taken as implying all specific findings necessary to support the general findings [see Estate of Clifford (1936) 16 Cal. App. 2d 123, 126-127, 60 P.2d 302 (involving predecessor statutes)].

However, a specific finding will be taken as controlling a contradictory general finding [In re Estate of Ross (1921) 187 Cal. 454, 468, 202 P. 641 (specific findings as to identities of heirs as controlling contradictory general finding that all allegations of petition are true)].

[ii] Notice of Hearing

Proof of giving notice of the hearing must be made to the satisfaction of the court at or before the hearing, and a finding that notice was regularly given, or that the party entitled to notice has waived it, must be made in the court's order [see Prob. Code § 1260(b)]. When the order becomes final, the finding is conclusive on all parties [Prob. Code § 1260(c); see also Estate of Dam (1932) 126 Cal. App. 70, 73-75, 14 P.2d 162 (decided under a predecessor statute and holding that in the absence of contradictory evidence in the record, such a statement in the order will be taken as conclusive if the order is reviewed on appeal, foreclosing the issue whether the trial court had jurisdiction pursuant to proper notice)].

[d] Order

The order must set forth the names of the distributees and the share to which each is entitled [Prob. Code § 11603(b)(1)]; and, if partial payment has already been made and acknowledged by the distributee, it is in error not to deduct the amount already paid from the sum to be distributed [Estate of Mitchell (1898) 121 Cal. 391, 395, 53 P. 810] . Some courts by local rule require that the names of persons and the descriptions of property or amounts of money affected be set forth with the same particularity required of judgments in civil matters [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.42(a)], or that the order contain complete legal descriptions of the assets distributed and set forth the full names of the distributees [see, e.g., Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 5.9(I)].

The order should also specify in what proportions the costs are to be paid by the distributee or the estate [see Prob. Code § 11624].

[4] State Statutes

Finding that notice of hearing was regularly given or waived and conclusiveness of finding. Prob. Code § 1260

Order distributing or refusing to distribute property as appealable. Prob. Code § 7240(n)

Contents of order of distribution. Prob. Code § 11603(b)

Procedure if whereabouts of beneficiary named in order is unknown. Prob. Code § 11603(c)

Stay of preliminary order for distribution until any required bond is filed. Prob. Code § 11621(b)

Allocation of costs of proceeding for preliminary distribution. Prob. Code § 11624

[5] Local Court Rules

[a] Alameda County

Court order is required for preliminary distribution of assets from decedent's estate. Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.1

Form of decree of distribution. Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.7

Distribution establishing testamentary trust. Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.8

Preliminary distribution bond. Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.18

[b] Los Angeles County

Orders that are to be prepared by court clerk or by attorney and listing of printed forms of orders available. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.39

Contents of orders. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.42(a)

Preliminary distribution bond. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.122

[c] Orange County

Form and content of probate orders. Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 601.14

[d] City & County of San Francisco

Submission of proposed order before hearing. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.6

Form and content of probate orders. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.27

[e] Santa Clara County

Preparation of orders and printed probate forms. Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 5.2(A)

Orders of distribution establishing testamentary trusts. Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 5.9(J)

[6] Decisions

In granting petition for preliminary distribution, court is required to make findings as to ultimate facts that are prerequisite to preliminary distribution, and findings are permitted to be contained in preliminary distribution order itself and are not required to be formally set forth in separate document. Estate of Downing (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 256, 270-271, 184 Cal. Rptr. 511 (court's failure to make findings when expressly requested to do so resulted in postponing time to appeal until order was set forth in final account)

Person aggrieved by judgment adverse to his or her interest on petition for preliminary distribution and who was properly a party to hearing on petition is permitted to appeal. Estate of Effron (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 915, 921 n.3, 173 Cal. Rptr. 93 , appeal dismissed, 454 U.S. 1070, 102 S. Ct. 622, 70 L. Ed. 2d 606

[7] Cross References

For discussion and forms of orders generally, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders

For discussion and forms of bonds and undertakings, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings

For a related form, see § 458C.60.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART IV. FORMS

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.62

§ 458C.62 Petition for Partial Allowance of Compensation for Ordinary and Extraordinary Services [Prob. Code §§ 10801, 10811, 10830(a)(1), (2) (Proceeding Commenced on or After July 1, 1991); Former Prob. Code §§ 901, 902, 904, 910, 911 (Proceeding Commenced Before July 1, 1991)]

[1] FORM Petition for Partial Allowance of Compensation for Ordinary and Extraordinary Services [Prob. Code §§ 10801, 10811, 10830(a)(1), (2) (Proceeding Commenced on or After July 1, 1991); Former Prob. Code §§ 901, 902, 904, 910, 911 (Proceeding Commenced Before July 1, 1991)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
	)	PETITION FOR PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF
Estate of _____ [name],	)	COMPENSATION FOR ORDINARY [AND EX-
Deceased.	)	TRAORDINARY] SERVICES
		[Prob. Code §§ (10801,) (10811,) 10830(a)(1), (2) (Proceeding Commenced on or After July 1, 1991) or Former Prob. Code §§ 901, (902,) 904, (910,) 911 (Proceeding Commenced Before July 1, 1991)]

_____

Petitioner _____ [name] hereby petitions the court for an order for partial allowance of _____ [compensation if proceeding was commenced on or after July 1, 1991, or commissions or fees if proceeding was commenced before July 1, 1991] and, in support thereof, respectfully represents:

1. Petitioner is the [attorney for the] personal representative of the estate of _____ [name], deceased.

2. Letters _____ [testamentary or of administration or of administration with will annexed] were issued to _____ [petitioner or _____ (name of personal representative)] on _____ [date], and are in full force and effect.

3. As shown by the Inventory and Appraisal herein filed, the appraised value of the estate is $_____.

4. The estimated total statutory compensation due to petitioner should be calculated on the basis of $_____ [total amount of inventory; and, if account has been filed, add gains over appraised value on sales, plus receipts, less losses on sales, without reference to encumbrances or other obligations on the property in the estate] as follows:

Amount of Estate		Compensation
[Set out calculation according to schedule in Prob. Code § 901, as in following example for basis of $237,220.13:]
$ 15,000.00	at 4%	$ 600.00
85,000.00	at 3%	2,550.00
137,220.13	at 2%	2,744.40
$237,220.13	.....	$5,894.40

5. Petitioner is entitled to receive a partial allowance, as prayed for, on an estimated total statutory _____ [commission or fee] of $_____ [specify, e.g., $5,894.40].

[ADD, if compensation is sought for extraordinary services]

6. Petitioner has performed the extraordinary services set out in Exhibit A, which is attached hereto and made a part hereof, on behalf of the estate, for which petitioner should be allowed a reasonable further compensation, in addition to the statutory _____ [compensation if proceeding was commenced on or after July 1, 1991, or commission or fee if proceeding was commenced before July 1, 1991] to which petitioner is entitled. The reasonable compensation for such extraordinary services is $_____.

[CONTINUE]

7. The estate is not in a condition to be closed because _____ [specify what remains to be done before the estate can be closed].

8. Notice of the time and place of the hearing will be given as required by _____ [*Probate Code Section 10830(b) if proceeding was commenced on or after July 1, 1991, or*former Probate Code Section 904(b), (c) or 911(b), (c)if proceeding was commenced before July 1, 1991]. [Special notice will be given as required by Probate Code Section 1252 to _____ (name(s)) pursuant to their request(s) filed herein pursuant to Probate Code Section 1250.]

WHEREFORE, Petitioner prays for an order as follows:

1. That petitioner be allowed a partial allowance in the sum of $_____, on account of the statutory _____ [compensation if proceeding was commenced on or after July 1, 1991, or commission or fee if proceeding was commenced before July 1, 1991] to which petitioner is entitled;

[2. That petitioner be allowed the sum of $_____, as compensation on account of the extraordinary services rendered as alleged in this petition;] and

3. For all other proper orders.

_____ [signature]

Petitioner

[Verification. See § 458C.60.]

EXHIBIT A--EXTRAORDINARY SERVICES

[Describe the extraordinary services rendered, showing that they were necessary or beneficial to the estate. See former Prob. Code § 902 for an illustrative list of extraordinary services by a personal representative (Prob. Code § 10801, which applies to proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991, omits the list), and see Prob. Code § 10811 (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991) or former Prob. Code § 910 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code § 10850) for the authority of the court to award fees for extraordinary legal services, including the service of any paralegal performing the extraordinary services under the direction and supervision of the attorney. Former Prob. Code § 910, by virtue of its reference to the "previous article," makes former Prob. Code § 902 (which applies to proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991) applicable to legal services, as well as to the services of the executor or administrator (Estate of Schuster (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 337, 341-342, 209 Cal. Rptr. 289).]

[2] Use of Form

This petition may be used by the executor or administrator of an estate or by his or her attorney to petition the probate court for a partial allowance on either the statutory compensation or commission to which the executor or administrator is entitled [see Prob. Code §§ 10800, 10830(a)(1) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code §§ 901, 904 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991); see also Prob. Code § 10850], or for the statutory compensation or fee to which the attorney is entitled [see Prob. Code §§ 10810, 10811, 10830(a)(2) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code §§ 901, 910, 911 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991)]. In either case, the petition may include a request for compensation for extraordinary services rendered by the executor or administrator or the attorney [see Prob. Code §§ 10801, 10811 (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code §§ 902, 910 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991); see also Prob. Code § 10850].

[3] Time for Filing Petition

A petition for partial allowance on the statutory compensation to which the executor or administrator or the attorney is entitled may be filed at any time after four months have elapsed since letters were issued [Prob. Code § 10830(a) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code §§ 904, 911 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code § 10850]. No time period for requesting compensation for extraordinary services is specified in the relevant code sections [see Prob. Code §§ 10801, 10811, 10830(a) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code §§ 902, 904, 910, 911 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991)].

[4] Who May File Petition

If the executor or administrator is not also the attorney representing the estate, a petition for a partial allowance of compensation is prepared by the attorney for signature and verification by the executor or administrator, and the attorney represents the executor or administrator at the hearing.

An application for a partial allowance of attorney's compensation may be made directly by the attorney [Prob. Code § 10830(a)(2) (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 911 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991); see Prob. Code § 10850; Hutchinson v. Gertsch (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 605, 614, 159 Cal. Rptr. 40 ; see also Hatch v. Bush (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 692, 704, 706, 30 Cal. Rptr. 397 ; Estate of De Barry (1941) 43 Cal. App. 2d 715, 725, 111 P.2d 728] . However, an executor or administrator who is a lawyer and acts as his or her own attorney in the probate of the estate is entitled to the executor's or administrator's compensation but not to compensation for his or her legal services [see Estate of Downing (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 256, 263, 269, 184 Cal. Rptr. 511 (distinguishing Estate of Lankershim (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 568, 573-574, 58 P.2d 1282 , which recognized the foregoing general rule but involved an exception in that, in Lankershim, the executor, at the time of his appointment with the consent of all parties, waived his commission and agreed to seek only such compensation as might be allowed as attorney's fees)].

[5] Showing Required

The only showings required to grant the petition for partial allowance are that services were performed and estate funds are available to pay for them [see Estate of Algee (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 691, 696, 323 P.2d 221] .

[6] Extra Allowances for Extraordinary Services

Additional allowances for extraordinary services are authorized by Prob. Code §§ 10801, 10811 (personal representatives and attorneys, respectively, in proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991) and former Prob. Code §§ 902, 910 (personal representatives and attorneys, respectively, in proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850]). Former Prob. Code § 902, relating to personal representatives, lists a number of services constituting extraordinary services and, by the reference in former Prob. Code § 910 to the "previous article" (i.e., to former Prob. Code §§ 900-904), has been held to apply to attorneys as well [see Estate of Schuster (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 337, 341-342, 209 Cal. Rptr. 289] . The services listed in former Prob. Code § 902 are not, however, carried over into Prob. Code § 10801, the superseding statute.

[7] Form and Contents of Petition

Neither former Prob. Code § 904 nor former Prob. Code § 911 imposes any requirements on the form or contents of the petition, and this is also true of the superseding legislation, Prob. Code § 10830. Local courts, however, frequently do.

For example, most courts require that the captions of all petitions filed in probate proceedings be all-inclusive as to the relief sought so that the matter may be properly calendared and posted and filing fees, if any, determined [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.9; Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 601.05; San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.24].

In addition, many courts impose specific requirements on petitions for commissions or fees. For example, in Los Angeles County, in all petitions requesting both ordinary and extraordinary fees or commissions, a specific sum must be requested, not merely "a reasonable amount" [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.133, 10.141; *see also*San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.117]. And an application for compensation for extraordinary services will not be considered unless the prayer of the petition contains a reference to the application for extraordinary fees or commissions [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.133, 10.141]. In Alameda County, an application for compensation for extraordinary services will not be considered unless both the caption and the prayer of the petition contain a reference to the application for extraordinary compensation [Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.10.6.1]. In Santa Clara County, the calculation of the fees or commissions must be set forth in the petition in which they are sought, and the court prefers that the extraordinary services for which additional compensation is requested be separately stated and the amount of compensation for the services also be separately stated [Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 5.9(E), (G)].

With respect to extraordinary services, the petition need not state the supporting facts with all the preciseness and detail required in a complaint, and the sufficiency of the petition need not be tested by the rules applicable to pleadings. Nevertheless, the petitioner has the duty to state his or her claim with sufficient particularity so that the court, as well as those interested in the estate and authorized to object to it, may be informed fully of the nature of the extraordinary services allegedly rendered, as well as of their necessity and value to the estate, and be thereby enabled to distinguish the items that are a proper charge from those that may be unjust and improper. The petitioner is charged with the burden of proof as to the necessity of the services, and there should be a full and complete disclosure of their extent and character, from which the court may properly determine the just and reasonable amount to be allowed [Estate of Herbst (1938) 26 Cal. App. 2d 249, 251, 79 P.2d 139] .

[8] Verification of Petition

The petition must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1); see also discussion in Comments to § 458C.60].

[9] Combined Petition

Requests for an allowance on the compensation of both the personal representative and the attorney [see Prob. Code § 10830(a)] or, in the language of the former statutes, on both commissions and fees [see former Prob. Code §§ 904, 911] may be combined in the same petition and brought in the name of the executor or administrator alone [see, e.g., Estate of Effron (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 915, 919, 173 Cal. Rptr. 93 , appeal dismissed, 454 U.S. 1070, 102 S. Ct. 622, 70 L. Ed. 2d 606] . However, under former law (which continues to apply to proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991), it would appear that, if allowances on both commissions and fees are sought at the same time, the better practice would be for the executor or administrator and the attorney to petition separately or to join as petitioners in the same petition, each seeking a partial allowance on his or her commissions or fees, respectively. The reasons are the following: (1) the petition must be signed by all petitioners [see Prob. Code § 1020]; (2) it must be verified by the petitioner, or by one of them if there is more than one [see Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1), (b)(1)]; (3) the petition must allege sufficient facts to warrant the order granting the partial allowance [see discussion in § 458C.62[7]]; and (4) not all the facts respecting the other's claims may be within the personal knowledge of the executor or administrator or attorney, as the case may be. If a single petition in which both the executor or administrator and the attorney are petitioners is filed, the introductory phrase to the body of the combined petition may read, "Petitioners, each for himself/herself, alleges:" etc. The petition should then be signed by each as a petitioner [see Prob. Code § 1020]. If all the facts set forth in the petition are within the personal knowledge of either the attorney or the personal representative, then either could verify the entire petition [see Prob. Code § 1021(b)(1)]. If they are not, then each should verify that portion of the petition relating to his or her claim for an allowance.

Under the current law, which applies in proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850], statute expressly provides that (1) the personal representative may file a petition requesting an allowance on the compensation of the personal representative, and (2) the personal representative or the attorney for the personal represenative may file a petition requesting an allowance on the compensation of the personal representative's attorney [Prob. Code § 10830(a)].

[10] Limitations on Request

[a] Ordinary Fees and Commissions

Some courts impose limitations on allowances for fees and commissions. For example, in Los Angeles County, the policy of the court is to allow payment on account of statutory fees or commissions only in proportion to the work actually completed, and, in any event, not to allow payment of the last 30 percent of the statutory fees or commissions prior to the approval of the final account and the decree of distribution. The reason stated is that, until the final account is settled, the court is unable to fix the total amount of the statutory fees and commissions and any allowance made prior to that time must be low enough to avoid the possibility of overpayment [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.132, 10.141].

The San Francisco, Alameda County, and Orange County Superior Courts follow a similar policy, except that the last 25 percent of the statutory fees or commissions will not ordinarily be allowed before the approval of the final account and the decree of distribution [San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.116; Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.10.3; Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.03; *see also*Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 5.9(G) (allowances on account of statutory compensation will be allowed in proportion to the work completed)]. In Alameda County, the full statutory fee will be allowed only in cases in which the estate or heirs will benefit, for example, when it would be beneficial to reduce income taxes in a given fiscal year [Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.10.3].

If apportionment of statutory fees among multiple executors or administrators or attorneys is necessary [see Prob. Code § 10805, 10814 (proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code §§ 901, 910 (proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991); see also Prob. Code § 10850], the policy of the Los Angeles County Superior Court is ordinarily not to allow partial payment but to defer all statutory fees until the final account is settled [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.134, 10.141].

[b] Extraordinary Services

Some courts impose limitations on when they will allow compensation for extraordinary services. In Alameda County, for example, such compensation will not be approved before the final account, except in cases in which the estate or heirs will benefit, for example, when it would be beneficial to reduce income taxes in a given fiscal period [Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.10.6.3]. In the San Francisco Superior Court, extraordinary compensation will be allowed before final distribution only when it appears likely that the estate will remain in probate for an unusually long time, whether because of litigation or other cause, or on a showing that present payment will benefit the beneficiaries of the estate [San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.116]. In Orange County, the court prefers to reserve determination of all requests for compensation for extraordinary services to the time of final distribution [Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.03; *see also*Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 5.9(E) (allowances on account of compensation for extraordinary services ordinarily will not be allowed)].

[11] Notice of Hearing

Notice of the hearing for an allowance on compensation of the personal representative or attorney for the personal representative must be given as provided in Prob. Code § 1220 to all of the following: (1) each person listed in Prob. Code § 1220; (2) each known heir whose interest in the estate would be affected by the payment of the compensation; (3) each known devisee who would be affected by the payment of the compensation; and (4) the Attorney General, at the office of the Attorney General in Sacramento, if any portion of the estate is to escheat to the state and its interest in the estate would be affected by the petition [Prob. Code § 10830(b) (applies to proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991)]. Substantially the same is true if the proceeding was commenced before July 1, 1991, in which case the provisions of former Prob. Code §§ 904(b), (c), 911(b), (c) continue to apply [see Prob. Code § 10850]. The former statutes provide that notice of the hearing for partial allowance of commissions or fees must be given as provided in Prob. Code § 1220 [former Prob. Code §§ 904(b), 911(b)]. Additionally, notice of the hearing must be given as provided in Prob. Code § 1220 to (1) each known heir or devisee whose interest in the estate is affected by the payment of the commissions or fees, and (2) the State of California if any portion of the estate is to escheat to it and its interest in the estate is affected by the payment [former Prob. Code §§ 904(c), 911(c)].

Local courts may impose additional requirements. For example, in Los Angeles County, an application for compensation for extraordinary fees or commissions will not be considered unless the notice contains a reference to the application for extraordinary fees [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.137, 10.141]. Local rule may also specify additional persons who must receive notice [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.119 (when there has been a change of personal representative or a substitution of counsel)].

[12] State Statutes

Law applicable before July 1, 1991, continues to apply to proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991. Prob. Code § 10850

Appealability of order directing, or refusing to direct, payment of attorney's or personal representative's compensation. Prob. Code § 7240(l)

Right of personal representative to compensation. Prob. Code § 10800 (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 900 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991)

Schedule of compensation allowed personal representative. Prob. Code § 10800 (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 901 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991)

Extra allowances to personal representative for extraordinary services. Prob. Code § 10801 (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 902 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991)

Contract with heir, devisee, or legatee for higher compensation is void. Prob. Code § 10803 (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 903 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991)

Attorney's fees for ordinary services; schedule of compensation allowed attorney. Prob. Code § 10810 (proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 910 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991)

Additional compensation allowed attorney for extraordinary services. Prob. Code § 10811 (proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 910 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991)

Agreement between personal representative and attorney for higher compensation for attorney is void. Prob. Code § 10813 (proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991)

Partial allowance of executor's or administrator's compensation or commissions. Prob. Code § 10830(a)(1) (allowance on personal representative's compensation in proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 904 (allowance on executor's or administrator's commissions in proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991)

Partial allowance of attorney's compensation or fees. Prob. Code § 10830(a)(2) (allowance on attorney's compensation in proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 910 (allowance on attorney's fee in proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991)

[13] Local Court Rules

[a] Alameda County

Commissions and fees. Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.10

[b] Los Angeles County

Attorney's fees and personal representative's commissions in decedents' estates. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.131 et seq.

[c] Orange County

Accounts, compensation, and distribution. Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.01 et seq.

[d] City and County of San Francisco

Commissions and fees. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.107, 14.108, 14.113, 14.115 et seq.

[e] Santa Clara County

Fees and commissions. Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 5.9(D)

[14] Decisions

[a] Generally

Statutory commissions and fees are not gratuities, but compensation given by statute to personal representative and his or her attorney for all services performed by them from commencement of probate until estate is wound up and distributed, except for those services that are remarkable, uncommon, or rare; personal representative and attorney are entitled to statutory fees (former Prob. Code §§ 901, 910 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991); Prob. Code §§ 10800, 10810 (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991) as matter of right, and fact that estate is simple and fees larger than would be adequate compensation for work involved does not affect right to full statutory compensation. Estate of Getty (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 455, 465-466, 191 Cal. Rptr. 897 ; Estate of Buchman (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d 228, 235, 291 P.2d 547

Executor's or administrator's commissions and equivalent attorney's fees ais based on values set forth in inventory compiled as of date of decedent's death. Estate of Downing (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 256, 264-265, 184 Cal. Rptr. 511 (citing Prob. Code §§ 600, 901; now see Prob. Code § 10800 (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 901 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991); Prob. Code §§ 8800, 8802)

Order granting executor's petition for distribution of attorney's fees for probate services is appealable under former Prob. Code § 1240 (now see Prob. Code § 7240), even though allowance of attorney's fees is preliminary in nature. Estate of Effron (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 915, 921 n.3, 173 Cal. Rptr. 93 , appeal dismissed, 454 U.S. 1070, 102 S. Ct. 622, 70 L. Ed. 2d 606

Right of executor, administrator, or attorney to ordinary compensation is absolute, but does not accrue until order for payment is made; same as true of compensation for extraordinary services. Hatch v. Bush (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 692, 705, 30 Cal. Rptr. 397

[b] Attorney's Fees

Petition for partial allowance of fees to administrator's attorney provided for by former Prob. Code § 911 (applicable to proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code § 10830(a)(1) for proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991) is permissive only and not exclusive means by which court may authorize allowance for fees; statute is inapplicable when administrator is seeking authority to compromise wrongful death claim under Federal Tort Claims Act in accordance with applicable federal statutes (28 U.S.C. §§ 2677, 2678), including appropriate allowance for attorney's fees as part of terms of that settlement. Estate of Ledbetter (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 283, 287, 324 P.2d 884

Attorney's fees in probate proceedings are strictly statutory and as not arising from contract. Estate of Lee (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 687, 693, 177 Cal. Rptr. 229

Under former Prob. Code §§ 910 and 911 (applicable to proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code §§ 10810, 10830(a)(1) for proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991), attorney's fees are required to be paid "out of the estate" and, hence, attorney's only right to recover fees for services is against estate, and not against executor or administrator personally. Estate of Lee (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 687, 693, 177 Cal. Rptr. 229

Liability for attorney's fees as expense of administration. Hutchinson v. Gertsch (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 605, 613, 159 Cal. Rptr. 40

On attorney's petition for allowance of fees on account for services rendered up to certain time, trial court did not abuse its discretion in deferring immediate award until filing of accounting or petition for final distribution when, although administratrix had discharged attorney and substituted other counsel after a number of legal services had been performed, no inventory or appraisal had yet been filed and newly appointed counsel was unable to give opinion as to value of estate. Estate of McManus (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 390, 396-397, 29 Cal. Rptr. 543

[c] Constitutionality of Statutes

Statutory attorney's fees are valid and fall within state action exemption to Sherman Antitrust Act (15 U.S.C.S § 1 et seq.) enunciated in Parker v. Brown (1943) 317 U.S. 341, 87 L. Ed. 315, 63 S. Ct. 307 ; and statutory schedules providing for compensation to lawyers and executors does not violate due process of law. Estate of Effron (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 915, 920, 927, 173 Cal. Rptr. 93 , appeal dismissed, 454 U.S. 1070, 102 S. Ct. 622, 70 L. Ed. 2d 606 (tracing legislative history of California statutes specifying compensation of personal representatives of estates and attorneys for representatives)

[d] Extraordinary Services

Petition for extraordinary fees is filed to recover fees out of estate for extraordinary services rendered to estate. Estate of Linnick (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 752, 760 n.8, 217 Cal. Rptr. 552

Statute authorizing allowance for attorney fees for extraordinary services that did not cover services involved at time they were rendered but that was amended to include those services while probate proceeding was still pending applied to those services; probate proceeding is still pending for this purpose when appeal is pending, even though only issue on appeal is right to attorney's fee for those services. Estate of Schuster (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 337, 341, 209 Cal. Rptr. 289

Probate court has discretion under former Prob. Code §§ 902, 910 (applicable to proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code §§ 10801, 10811 for proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991) to award fees out of estate being probated for successful preprobate defense of will contest, even though "success" consisted of settlement of case before trial. Estate of Schuster (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 337, 341-342, 209 Cal. Rptr. 289

Award of commissions to executor or administrator and of attorney's fees for extraordinary services is within trial court's discretion. Estate of Downing (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 256, 267, 184 Cal. Rptr. 511

Language of former Prob. Code § 902 (applicable to proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991: see Prob. Code § 10801 for proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991) makes clear that allowance of fees for extraordinary services rendered in probate proceedings by executors or administrators and their attorneys is discretionary with probate court. Estate of Downing (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 256, 267, 184 Cal. Rptr. 511 ; Estate of Walker (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 792, 795, 34 Cal. Rptr. 832

Probate court is proper forum for determining validity and reasonableness of extraordinary compensation sought from estate by executor or his or her legal representative; such determinations are made by court and issues arising over such fees is not triable by jury. Hutchinson v. Gertsch (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 605, 613, 159 Cal. Rptr. 40

In making allowance, or disallowing claim, for extraordinary services, court is permitted to take into consideration all matters relating to administration of particular estate, such as value of estate, kind and character of assets, effort involved in care and preservation of estate property, and such other facts as bear on labor and effort of executor or administrator and of attorney in routine administration of estate; amount of ordinary fees to which persons are entitled under former Prob. Code §§ 901 and 910 (applicable to proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code §§ 10800, 10810 for proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991) is permitted to be considered and, if, under all facts and circumstances bearing on administration of estate, sum allowed by law as ordinary compensation appears to be adequate, just, and reasonable compensation for all services rendered, even though some extraordinary services may have in fact been performed, probate court is permitted, in exercise of discretion conferred on it by statute, to disallow all claims for extraordinary compensation. Estate of Walker (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 792, 795, 34 Cal. Rptr. 832

Former Prob. Code §§ 902 and 910 (applicable to proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code §§ 10801, 10811 for proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991) authorize court to allow such amounts as it may deem just and reasonable for extraordinary services rendered by executor and his or her attorney. Estate of Herbst (1938) 26 Cal. App. 2d 249, 251, 79 P.2d 139

[e] Final Account

Court is required on final account to deduct from total commissions and fees due amounts paid on account to executor or administrator or attorney and allow balance under rates prescribed in former Prob. Code § 901 (applicable to proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code § 10800 for proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991), as it reads at time final account is approved. Estate of Heck (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 162, 165-166, 324 P.2d 733

[f] Nature of Allowance on Account

Executor's commissions and attorney's fees are allowed in accordance with statute in effect at time of approval of final account and entry of final decree of distribution; any compensation granted before final accounting is merely an advance allowance or "on account of" full commission or fee allowable, which can be determined only on final account. Estate of Heck (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 162, 165-166, 324 P.2d 733

[g] Personal Representative's Commissions

Court is empowered by former Prob. Code § 904 (applicable to proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code § 10830(a)(1) for proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991) to allow portion of commissions it deems proper for services rendered up to time of hearing; statute as not requiring court to fix this compensation on basis of provisions of former Prob. Code § 901 (schedule of commissions allowed). Estate of Heck (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d

162, 165, 324 P.2d 733

[15] Cross References

For a related form, see § 458C.60.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458C PROBATE: PRELIMINARY DISTRIBUTION AND PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION
PART IV. FORMS

39-458C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458C.63

§ 458C.63 Order for Partial Allowance of Compensation for Ordinary and Extraordinary Services [Prob. Code §§ 10801, 10811, 10830(a)(1), (2) (Proceeding Commenced on or After July 1, 1991); Former Prob. Code §§ 901, 902, 904, 910, 911 (Proceeding Commenced Before July 1, 1991)]

[1] FORM Order for Partial Allowance of Compensation for Ordinary and Extraordinary Services [Prob. Code §§ 10801, 10811, 10830(a)(1), (2) (Proceeding Commenced on or After July 1, 1991); Former Prob. Code §§ 901, 902, 904, 910, 911 (Proceeding Commenced Before July 1, 1991)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
Estate of _____ [name],	)	ORDER FOR PARTIAL ALLOWANCE OF COM-
Deceased.	)	PENSATION FOR ORDINARY [AND EX-TRAORDINARY] SERVICES

_____

The petition of _____ [name] for a partial allowance on the statutory compensation to which the petitioner is entitled for ordinary services as the [attorney for the] _____ [Executor or Administrator] of the above entitled estate [and for compensation for extraordinary services] came on regularly for hearing [in Department _____ (number)] of the above-entitled Court, on _____ [this date or specify date], the Honorable _____ [name] presiding. Petitioner appeared _____ [in person and/or by his/her attorney, _____ (name)]. _____ [There was no opposition to the petition or _____ (name) appeared _____ (in person and/or by his/her attorney, _____ (name)), in opposition to the petition].

On evidence given to the satisfaction of the court, THE COURT FINDS that

1. Notice of the time and place of the hearing was _____[given as required by _____ (Prob. Code Section 10830(b) if proceeding was commenced on or after July 1, 1991, or former Prob. Code Section(s) 904(c) and/or 911(c) if proceeding was commenced before July 1, 1991)) or waived by the person(s) entitled to it]. [Special notice, was _____ (given to _____ (name(s)), as requested or requested and waived by _____ (name(s))).]

2. The allegations of the petition are true.

IT IS ORDERED that

1. _____ [Name], as [attorney for] the _____ [Executor or Administrator] of [the estate of] _____ [name], is allowed $_____ as a partial allowance on account of the statutory _____ [compensation if action was filed on or after July 1, 1991, or, if action was filed before July 1, 1991, commissions or fees], and _____ [he/she is authorized to withdraw that sum from the funds of the estate and to pay it to himself/herself or _____ (name), as the _____ (Executor or Administrator), is directed to withdraw that sum from the funds of the estate and to pay it to _____ (name of attorney)].

[ADD, if compensation for extraordinary services is ordered]

2. _____ [Name], as [attorney for] the personal representative of the estate, is allowed $_____ as compensation for the following extraordinary services rendered by him/her: _____ [specify services compensated, as alleged in petition]; and _____ [he/she is authorized to withdraw that sum from the funds of the estate and to pay it to himself/herself or _____ (name), as the _____ (Executor or Administrator), is directed to withdraw that sum from the funds of the estate and to pay it to _____ (name of attorney).]

[CONTINUE]

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

This form is an order for use when the court grants a petition for an allowance on statutory compensation in a proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10830(a), (c)] or, in a proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991, on statutory commissions (former Prob. Code § 904) or fees (former Prob. Code § 911). In some counties, the clerk will prepare the order [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.39(a)]. A form of the order printed in blank may be available in some counties from the court clerk, and, if available, should be used.

In a proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850], on hearing the petition, the court is required to make an order allowing such portion of the commissions or fees, for services rendered up to that time, as the court shall deem proper, and the portion of commissions so allowed may be thereupon charged against the estate [former Prob. Code § 904(a)], or make an order requiring the executor or administrator to pay the attorney out of the estate such compensation on account of services rendered up to that time as the court shall deem proper, and payment of the fees allowed must be made forthwith [former Prob. Code § 911(a)].

In a proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991, on the hearing of the petition, the court may make an order allowing the portion of the compensation of the personal representative or the attorney for the personal representative, as the case may be, on account of services rendered up to that time that the court determines is proper, and the court must authorize the personal representative to charge against the estate the amount allowed [Prob. Code § 10830(c)].

[3] Cross References

For related forms, see §§ 458C.61 and 458C.62.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 458D.syn

§ 458D.syn Synopsis to Chapter 458D: PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION

§ 458D.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 458D.02 Cross References

§§ 458D.03-458D.09 [Reserved]

§ 458D.10 Governing Law

§ 458D.11 Applicability of Former Law

§ 458D.12 Definitions

§ 458D.13 "In Chambers" Powers

§§ 458D.14-458D.29 [Reserved]

§ 458D.30 When Account Is Allowed or Required

§ 458D.31 Duty to Render Account

[1] By Personal Representative

[2] By Resigned or Removed Personal Representative

[3] On Death, Incapacity, or Abscondence of Personal Representative

§ 458D.32 Compelling Account

§ 458D.33 Form and Format of Account

§ 458D.34 Supporting Documents

§ 458D.35 Setting Account for Hearing

§ 458D.36 Notice of Hearing on Settlement

[1] To Whom Given, Manner of Giving, and Proof of Notice

[2] Form and Contents of Notice

§ 458D.37 Effect of Stipulation

§ 458D.38 Hearing on Account; Citing Personal Representative to Appear; Appointment of Referees

§ 458D.39 Duty and Discretion of Court

§ 458D.40 Supporting Evidence

§ 458D.41 Scope of Inquiry

[1] Property Received

[2] Advances to Distributees

[3] Settlement of Claim Not Properly Filed

[4] Title to Property

[5] Liability of Personal Representative

§ 458D.42 Reservation of Ruling on Particular Items

§ 458D.43 Certificate of Franchise Tax Board That Taxes Have Been Paid on Certain Distributions to Nonresidents

§ 458D.44 Allowance of Expenses of Administration

§ 458D.45 Contest of Account

[1] Matters That May Be Contested

[2] When Contest May Be Made

[3] Who May Contest

[4] Manner of Contesting

[5] Effect of Failure to Cross Examine Personal Representative

[6] Award of Costs and Fees on Determination of Contest

§ 458D.46 Effect of Order Settling Account

§ 458D.47 Setting Aside Order for Extrinsic Fraud

§ 458D.48 Setting Aside Order to Correct Clerical Mistake

§ 458D.49 Final Account When Payment of Debts Exhausts Estate

§ 458D.50 When Account Is Not Required

[1] Waiver, Acknowledgment, or Adequate Provision Made

[2] Report of Administration

[3] Exception for Unsatisfied Creditor

§ 458D.51 Objections When Account Waived

§§ 458D.52-458D.69 [Reserved]

§ 458D.70 Petition for Final Distribution or Status Report

[1] Time Limit on Filing

[2] Independent Administration of Estates Act Distribution

[3] Status of Administration Report

[a] Contents and Filing

[b] Notice of Hearing

[c] Hearing and Orders

[4] Failure to File Petition or Report

[5] Continuation of Administration to Pay Family Allowance

[6] Failure to Comply

[7] Continuation of Administration Beyond Limitation in Will

§ 458D.71 Petition for Final Distribution of Estate

[1] Who May File

[2] When Petition Must Be Filed

[3] Description of Property in Petition

§ 458D.72 Notice of Hearing on Petition--To Whom Given, Manner of Giving, and Proof of Notice

§ 458D.73 Who May Oppose Petition for Final Distribution

§ 458D.74 Hearing

§ 458D.75 Inquiry by Court When Beneficiary's Interest Has Been Transferred

§ 458D.76 Order for Distribution

§ 458D.77 Effect of Final Order

[1] As to Rights of Interested Persons

[2] As Construction of Will

[3] On Title to Property

[4] Exceptions to Conclusiveness

§ 458D.78 Distribution Under Laws of Intestate Succession

[1] Governing Law

[2] Definition of Terms Used in Intestate Succession Statutes

[a] "Heirs"

[b] "Child," "Parent," and "Issue"

[c] "Predeceased Spouse" and "Surviving Spouse"

[d] "Surviving Domestic Partner"

[3] Inheritance by Relatives of the Halfblood, Afterborn Relatives, and Aliens

[4] Establishing Parent-Child Relationship for Purpose of Intestate Succession

[a] Natural Parent

[b] Adoptive Parent

[c] Foster or Stepparent

[d] Equitable Adoption

[5] Posthumously Conceived Children

[a] Burden of Proof

[b] Delayed Distribution

[6] Dower and Curtesy

[7] Failure to Survive Decedent

[8] Advancements by Decedent

[9] Debts Owed to Decedent

[10] Distribution to Surviving Spouse

[11] Distribution to Surviving Domestic Partner

[12] Distribution to Other Heirs

[13] Distribution of Estate Attributable to Decedent's Predeceased Spouse

[a] Real Property

[b] Personal Property

[c] Portion of Estate Attributable to Predeceased Spouse

[d] Quasi-Community Property

[e] Inheritance by Afterborn Relatives of Predeceased Spouse

[f] Inheritance by Person Related Through Two Lines of Relationship

[14] Distribution to Issue of Unequal Degree

[15] Escheat in Absence of Heirs

§ 458D.79 Disclaimer of Interest in Estate

§ 458D.80 Rules of Construction of Will

[1] Generally

[2] Devises Classified

[3] Law Governing Meaning and Legal Effect of Disposition

[4] Property Passing by Will

[5] Direction to Convert Real Property to Money

[6] Common Law Rule of Worthier Title

[7] Death of Devisee

[8] Condition of Death With or Without Issue

[9] Devise to Class

§ 458D.81 Rules for Distribution Under Will or Trust

§ 458D.82 Exoneration and Ademption

[1] Governing Law

[2] No Exoneration

[3] Ademption by Partial or Total Extinction

[a] Change in Form of Securities Specifically Devised

[b] By Sale or Taking by Eminent Domain of Specifically Devised Property, or Obtaining Property as Result of Foreclosure of Security for Specifically Devised Obligation

[4] Ademption by Satisfaction

§ 458D.83 Abatement

[1] Generally

[2] Order of Abatement

[3] Abatement Within Classes

[4] Exoneration of Specific Gift From Mortgage, Deed of Trust, or Lien

[5] Contribution in Case of Abatement

§ 458D.84 Gift in Will to Witness

[1] In General

[2] Effect of No Contest Clause in Will

§ 458D.85 Omitted Spouse

[1] Statutory Share of Decedent's Estate

[2] Exceptions; When Spouse Not Entitled to Share of Estate

[3] Satisfaction of Spouse's Share

[4] Application of Rules; Prior Law

[5] Public Policy

§ 458D.86 Effect of 1981-1984 Property Settlement Renouncing Right to Inherit

§ 458D.87 Surviving Spouse's Waiver of Rights at Death of Spouse

[1] Applicability of Statutory Provisions

[2] Waiver Defined

[3] Rights That May Be Waived

[4] Effect of Language Waiving All Rights

[5] Formal Requirements for Waiver

[6] Prerequisites to Enforcement

[7] Defenses to Enforcement

[8] Power of Court

[9] Agreement Altering, Amending, or Revoking Waiver

§ 458D.88 Setting Aside Nonprobate Transfer of Community Property

§ 458D.89 Omitted (Pretermitted) Child

[1] Statutory Share of Decedent's Estate

[2] Exceptions; When Omitted Child Not Entitled to Share of Estate

[3] Satisfaction of Omitted Child's Share

[4] Application of Omitted-Child Rules; Prior Law

§ 458D.90 Partition or Allotment of Property Before Distribution

§ 458D.91 Distribution of Property

[1] On Finality of Order

[2] Receipt for Property or Recordation of Court Order or Deed

[3] Inventory by Life Tenant

§ 458D.92 After Acquired or Discovered Property

§ 458D.93 Valuation of Assets Distributed to Satisfy Pecuniary Devise

§ 458D.94 Interest, Income, and Expenses Accruing During Administration

[1] Applicability of Statutes

[2] Rate of Interest

[3] Income and Expenses of Specific Devises and Interest

[4] Interest on General Pecuniary Devise

[5] Interest on Annuity

[6] Interest on Devise for Maintenance

[7] Remaining Income to Residuary or Intestate Distributees

§ 458D.95 Distribution When Distributee Is Deceased

§ 458D.96 Distribution of Money or Property to Minor

[1] In General

[2] Power of Personal Representative

§ 458D.97 Deposit With County Treasurer When Distribution Cannot Be Made

[1] When Authorized

[2] Deposit of Money or Other Personal Property

[3] Delivery of Certified Copy of Order of Distribution for Money Deposit

[4] Receipt for Deposit and Treasurer's Liability

[5] Procedure to Claim Property

§ 458D.98 Distribution to the State of California

[1] In General

[2] Distribution in Trust for Class

[3] Duties of Personal Representative

[4] No Deposit in County Treasury

[5] Claims to Property Distributed to State

§ 458D.99 Right of Distributee to Recover Share of Estate

§ 458D.100 Effect of Distribution on Good Faith Purchaser

§ 458D.101 Discharge of Personal Representative

§ 458D.102 Continuing Jurisdiction Until Discharge

§ 458D.103 Administration After Final Settlement

§ 458D.104 Liability of Personal Representative for Wrongful Concealment of Estate Property

§ 458D.105 Unpaid Creditors

§ 458D.106 Distribution of Property in Ancillary Administration Proceeding

§ 458D.107 Assignment of Interest in Estate for Cash Advance or Other Consideration

[1] Assignment of Beneficiary's Interest to Transferee for Value

[2] Assignment and Affidavit Must Be Filed With Court

[3] Contents of Assignment Agreement

[a] Required Terms

[b] Prohibited Terms

[c] Translation Requirement

[4] Powers of Court

§§ 458D.108-458D.119 [Reserved]

§ 458D.120 Reimbursement for Expenses

[1] In General

[2] Expenses Before Issuance of Letters

[3] Travel Expenses

§ 458D.121 Personal Representative's Commission or Compensation

[1] Applicability of Former Law

[2] Special Administrator

[3] Public Administrator

[4] Statutory Commission or Compensation

[a] Calculation

[b] Basis of Calculation

[c] Inclusion of Property When Personal Representative Denies Title of Estate

[d] Allowance on Account of Statutory Compensation

§ 458D.122 Effect of Negligent Administration

§ 458D.123 Reduction of Compensation on Failure to Close Estate in Timely Manner

§ 458D.124 Two or More Personal Representatives

§ 458D.125 Successive Personal Representatives

§ 458D.126 Contract With Beneficiary

§ 458D.127 Extraordinary Services and Expenses

[1] Allowances of Additional Compensation

[2] Considerations Regarding Allowance

[3] Examples of Extraordinary Services

[a] In General

[b] Sale Directed in Will

[c] Continuing Decedent's Business

[d] Services Regarding Nonestate Property of Which Personal Representative Mistakenly Takes Possession

[e] Preparing Account When Personal Representative Dies or Becomes Incapacitated

§ 458D.128 Locating Estate Assets as Nonextraordinary Service

§ 458D.129 Employment of Tax Auditors, Accountants, or Other Tax Experts

§ 458D.130 Attorney's Fee or Compensation

[1] Ordinary Services

[2] Attorney for Special Administrator

[3] Attorney for Public Administrator

[4] Two or More Attorneys

[5] Payable by Estate

[6] Standing to Sue

[7] Fee Agreement for Services Under Prob. Code §§ 13650-13660

§ 458D.131 Personal Representative Acting as Attorney

[1] In General

[2] Effect of Waiving Claim to Personal Representative's Commission

[3] When Personal Representative and Attorney Are Law Partners

§ 458D.132 Extraordinary Services by Attorney

[1] In General

[2] Services Rendered on Contingent Fee Basis

[3] Considerations Regarding Allowance of Extraordinary Compensation

§ 458D.133 Extraordinary Services Distinguished From Ordinary

§ 458D.134 Use of Paralegals in Performance of Extraordinary Services

§ 458D.135 No Advance Compensation

§ 458D.136 Compensation Based on Provision in Will

§ 458D.137 Petition to Fix and Allow Compensation for All Services Rendered on Filing of Final Account and Petition for Final Distribution

§§ 458D.138-458D.149 [Reserved]

§ 458D.150 Federal Statutes

§ 458D.151 Federal Administrative Regulations

§ 458D.152 State Statutes

[1] Accounts

[2] Application of "New Law" and "Old Law"

[3] Compensation

[4] Final Distribution

[a] In General

[b] Ademptions and Advancements

[c] Appeal

[d] California Personal Income Tax

[e] Definitions

[f] Devises

[g] Interpretation of Instruments

[h] Intestate Succession

[i] Limitation on Time to Close Estate

[j] Minors Generally

[k] Nonresidents

[l] Order for Distribution

[m] Partition Before Distribution

[n] Procedure for Distribution

[o] Property That Cannot be Distributed

[p] Real Property

[q] Receipts for Property and Inventory of Life Tenant

[r] Right of Distributee

[5] Notices Generally

[6] Taxes

[a] When Decedent Died Before January 1, 1987

[b] When Decedent Died on or After January 1, 1987

§ 458D.153 California Rules of Court

§ 458D.154 Local Rules of Court

[1] Administration Costs to Be Paid.

[2] Allegations in Petition for Final Distribution Relating to Independent Acts

[3] Allegations re Claims

[4] Assignment by Heir, Devisee, or Legatee, and Agreements for Distribution

[5] Attorney's Fees to Be Fixed by Court

[6] Basis for Compensation When Account Waived

[7] Caption of Petitions to Be All-Inclusive as to Relief Sought

[8] Character of Property to Be Distributed Must Be Listed

[9] Claims and Debts to Be Itemized in Petitions for Final Distribution

[10] Community Property as Factor in Calculation of Compensation

[11] Computation of Statutory Compensation

[12] Debts Paid Without Verified Claims

[13] Description of Heirs in Case of Intestacy

[14] Determination of Statutory Fees

[15] Distributees to Be Named

[16] Distribution in Case of Minor, Deceased Distributee, or Missing Heir

[17] Distribution in Case of Civil Suit Pending Against Estate

[18] Distribution to Persons Under Conservatorship or Guardianship

[19] Distribution Under Prob. Code § 6402.5

[20] Extraordinary Fees

[21] Federal Estate Tax to Be Paid Before Distribution

[22] Fees to Be Stated Even Though Account Waived

[23] Form of Order for Final Distribution

[24] Franchise Tax Board Certificate Under Rev. & Tax. Code § 19513 Required When Appropriate

[25] Interest on General Pecuniary Legacies

[26] Payment of Interest on Funeral Claims

[27] Pleadings to Be Signed by Personal Representative

[28] Property to Be Distributed to Be Listed

[29] Proposed Distribution to Be Indicated

[30] Provision of Order in Case of Distribution to Trustee

[31] Reporting Income and Principal

[32] Required Form of Accounts

[33] Required Use of Judicial Council or Local Forms

[34] Waiver of Account

§ 458D.155 Decisions

[1] Accounts

[a] In General

[b] Contesting Account

[i] In General

[ii] Persons Who May Object

[iii] Persons Who May Not Object

[iv] Pleading

[v] Procedure

[c] Hearing on Settlement of Account

[i] Issues

[ii] Parties

[iii] Procedure

[d] Order Settling Account

[e] Reopening Account

[f] Waiver of Account

[2] Compensation

[a] In General

[b] Apportionment

[c] Attorney of Personal Representative

[d] Calculation

[e] Extraordinary Services

[f] Personal Representative

[g] Reimbursement of Expenses

[3] Effect of Order for Preliminary Distribution on Order for Final Distribution

[4] Final Distribution

[a] In General

[b] Action to Recover Distributive Share

[c] Failure to Provide in Will for Surviving Spouse by Later Marriage

[d] Inquiry Into Validity of Assignment of Beneficiary's Interest in Estate

[e] Intestate Succession

[f] Issues at Hearing

[g] Judgment

[h] Omitted (Pretermitted) Heirs

[i] Putative Spouse

[j] Ademption

[5] Interest on Monetary Devises

[6] Will Construction

§§ 485D.156-485D.169 [Reserved]

§ 485D.170 [Reserved]

§ 458D.171 Preliminary Determinations

§ 458D.172 Account

§ 458D.173 Petition for Final Distribution

§ 458D.174 Notice of Hearing

§ 458D.175 Contest of Account and Opposition to Petition for Distribution

§ 458D.176 Hearing and Order

§ 458D.177 Posthearing Proceedings

§§ 458D.178-458D.189 [Reserved]

§ 458D.190 Final Account [Prob. Code §§ 10900, 10951] and Petition for Settlement of Final Account, Final Distribution [Prob. Code § 11640], and for Allowance of Compensation for Ordinary Services [Prob. Code §§ 10800, 10810, 10831(a) (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced on or After July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code §§ 901, 910 (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced Before July 1, 1991)] and Extraordinary Services [Prob. Code §§ 10801, 10811, 10831(a) (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced on or After July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code §§ 902, 910 (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced Before July 1, 1991)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Local Rules

[4] When Account and Petition Must Be Filed

[5] Effect of Waiver of Account

[6] Use of Form When Account Waived

[7] Joinder by Attorney

[8] Form and Format

[9] Contents of Petition

[a] Report of Administration

[b] Compensation of Personal Representative and Attorney

[c] Final Distribution

[10] Allegations

[a] Petitioner's Capacity [Paragraph 1]

[b] Residence and Date of Death [Paragraph 1]

[c] Whether Decedent Died Intestate, Admission of Will and Issuance of Letters [Paragraphs 2, 3, 4]

[d] Independently Administered Estate [Paragraph 5]

[e] Notice to Creditors [Paragraphs 6, 7]

[f] Notice to Public Entities [Paragraph 8]

[g] Creditors' Claims [Paragraphs 9-11]

[h] Actions Taken by Petitioner [Paragraphs 12-17]

[i] Investment of Cash [Paragraph 18]

[j] Inventory and Appraisal; Account [Paragraph 20]

[k] Taxes [Paragraphs 21-26]

[l] Condition of Estate [Paragraph 27]

[m] Character of Decedent's Property [Paragraph 28]

[n] Devisees and Heirs [Paragraph 29]

[o] Proration of Federal Estate Tax [Paragraph 30]

[p] Condition Precedent [Paragraph 31]

[q] Condition Subsequent [Paragraph 32]

[r] Income Received During Administration [Paragraph 33]

[s] Devise to Minor Subject to California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act [Paragraph 34]

[t] Disclaimer of Interest [Paragraph 35]

[u] Preliminary Distribution [Paragraph 36]

[v] Names of Distributees and Shares to Which Each Is Entitled [Paragraph 37]

[w] Statutory Compensation [Paragraphs 38, 39]

[x] Allowances or Previous Payments of Compensation [Paragraphs 38, 39]

[y] Compensation for Extraordinary Services [Paragraphs 40, 41]

[z] Reserve [Paragraph 42]

[11] Prayer

[12] Los Angeles County Allegations and Statements

[13] San Francisco Allegations and Statements

[14] Statement of Compensation [Exhibit A]

[15] Extraordinary Services [Exhibit B]

[16] Contents of Account

[a] Probate Code Rules

[b] Summary

[c] Statutory Format

[d] Standard Schedules

[e] Additional Schedules

[f] Personal Representative Entitled to Rely on Account of Conservator or Guardian

[g] No Requirement for Other Information

[17] State Statutes

[a] Accounts

[b] Compensation of Personal Representative and Attorney

[c] Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury

[d] Definitions

[e] Devises

[f] Disclaimer of Interest

[g] Final Distribution

[h] Income and Interest

[i] Independent Administration

[j] Taxes

[18] California Code of Regulations

[19] California Rules of Court

[20] Local Rules of Court

[a] Allegation in Petition Regarding Claims

[b] Amount Requested as Extraordinary Fees Must Be Specified

[c] Caption and Prayer of Petition Must Contain Reference to Application for Extraordinary Fees

[d] Character of Property Must Be Alleged in Petition

[e] Distribution to Minors

[f] Form of Account

[g] Form of Calculation of Statutory Compensation

[h] Petition Must List and Describe in Detail All Property to Be Distributed

[i] Proposed Distribution Must Be Alleged in Petition

[j] Title of Petition Must Reflect All Relief Asked for in Prayer

[21] Decisions

§ 458D.191 Allegation--Death of Beneficiary Before Distribution [Prob. Code §§ 11801, 11802]--General Form

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Death of Beneficiary Before Distribution

[4] Effect of Advancement

[5] State Statutes

[6] Decisions

[7] Cross References

§ 458D.192 Allegation--Death of Beneficiary Before Distribution [Prob. Code §§ 11801, 11802]--Beneficiary Was Unemancipated Minor Issue of Decedent and Died Intestate

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] State Statutes

[4] Cross References

§ 458D.193 Allegation--Receipt by Heir of Advancement [Prob. Code § 6409]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] State Statutes

[4] Cross References

§ 458D.194 Allegation--Ademption by Satisfaction of Devise by Gift Before Death [Prob. Code § 21135]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] State Statutes

[4] Cross References

§ 458D.195 Allegation--Whereabouts of Distributee Is Unknown [Prob. Code § 11603(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] State Statutes

[4] Cross References

§ 458D.196 Allegation--Amount of Contribution for Abatement Required of Each Distributee Because of Payment of Expenses, Debts, etc. [Prob. Code § 21401]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Governing Law

[4] State Statutes

§ 458D.197 Allegation--When Devisee Is Subscribing Witness to Will [Prob. Code § 6112]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] State Statutes

[4] Decisions

§ 458D.198 Allegation--Omission to Provide in Testamentary Instrument for Surviving Spouse or Registered Domestic Partner by Later Marriage [Prob. Code §§ 26110-21612]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] When Omitted Spouse or Registered Domestic Partner Is Not Entitled to Share

[4] State Statutes

[5] Decisions

§ 458D.199 Allegation--Failure to Provide for Child Who Was Subsequently Born or Adopted, or Who Was Believed Dead, or of Whose Birth Testator Was Unaware [former Prob. Code §§ 90, 91; Prob. Code §§ 6570-6573, 6580]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] State Statutes

[4] Decisions

§ 458D.200 Allegation--Predeceased Devisee [former Prob. Code § 92; Prob. Code §§ 21109(a), 21110, 21111(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] State Statutes

[4] Decisions

§ 458D.201 Allegation--Property Is Unclaimed, Whereabouts of Distributee Is Unknown, or Distributee Refuses Property [Prob. Code § 11850(a), (b)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] State Statutes

§ 458D.202 Allegation--No Fiduciary Appointed for Minor or Incompetent Distributee and No Person Authorized to Give Receipt for Property [Prob. Code § 11850(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] State Statutes

[4] Cross References

§ 458D.203 Allegation--Minor Distributee of Personal Property Not Exceeding $5,000 in Value [Prob. Code §§ 3400, 3401]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

[4] State Statutes

§ 458D.204 Written Assurance Under Oath of Parent Entitled to Custody re Value of Minor's Estate [Prob. Code § 3401]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 458D.205 Petition for Order Relating to Money to Be Distributed to Minor [Prob. Code §§ 3411, 3413]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Terminology

[4] Notice of Hearing

[5] Signature and Verification

[6] Cross References

[7] State Statutes

[8] Local Rules of Court--Petition Requirements

§ 458D.206 Order on Ex Parte Application That Money to Be Distributed to Minor Be Deposited in Blocked Account [Prob. Code § 3413(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 458D.207 Notice of Hearing of Final Account and Petition for Final Distribution [and for Allowance of Compensation for Extraordinary Services] [Prob. Code §§ 1220, 10831(a), 11000, 11601]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] 1990 Legislation

[4] Persons Who Must Be Given Notice

[5] Contents of Notice

[6] State Statutes

[7] Local Rules of Court

§ 458D.208 Supplemental Account of Subsequently Acquired or Discovered Property [Prob. Code § 11642(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Distribution of After Acquired or Discovered Property

[4] Verification

[5] State Statutes

§ 458D.209 Contest of Account [Prob. Code § 11001]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Title of Pleading

[4] Capacity of Contestant

[5] Account

[6] Matters Subject to Contest

[7] Specification of Matters

[8] Appointment of Referees

[9] Prayer

[10] Verification

[11] State Statutes

§ 458D.210 Petition to Inquire Into Circumstances Surrounding Execution of, and Consideration for, Transfer of All or Portion of Distributive Share [Prob. Code § 11604]--By Transferor

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Petition vs. Motion

[4] Petitioner

[5] Notice of Hearing

[6] Scope of Inquiry

[7] Court Order

[8] Verification

[9] State Statutes

[10] Local Rules of Court

[11] Decisions

§ 458D.211 Order Settling Final Account [Prob. Code § 7250(a)], Directing Final Distribution [Prob. Code §§ 11605, 11640], and Allowing Compensation for Extraordinary Services [Former Prob. Code §§ 902, 910 (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced Before July 1, 1991)] or Fixing and Allowing Compensation [Prob. Code §§ 10800, 10810 (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced on or After July 1, 1991)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Findings

[a] In General

[b] Notice Duly Given

[c] Creditor's Claims

[4] Allowance of Compensation for Extraordinary Services

[5] Ademptions and Advancements

[6] Names of Distributees and Shares; Conditions

[7] Whereabouts of Distributee Unknown

[8] Distribution of Unknown Property

[9] State Statutes

[a] Allowances

[b] Appeal

[c] Compensation

[d] Distribution of Estate

[e] Effect of Finality of Order

[f] Findings

[g] Judgment

[h] Judgment Roll

[10] Orders

[a] In General

[b] For Distribution

§ 458D.212 Provision in Order--Distribution of Minor's Property Less Than $5,000 in Value to Custodial Parent [Prob. Code §§ 3400-3402]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

[4] State Statutes

§ 458D.213 Provision in Order--Money Distributable to Minor to Be Deposited in Blocked Account Until Majority [Prob. Code § 3413(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

[4] State Statutes

§ 458D.214 Provision in Order--Distribution to Trustee

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Distribution to Trustee as Validation of Trust

§ 458D.215 Waiver of Account [Prob. Code § 10954]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] When Account Is Not Required

[4] Execution of Waiver or Acknowledgment

[5] Conditional Waiver

[6] State Statutes

[7] Decisions

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART I. SCOPE

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.01

§ 458D.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and includes forms relating to accounts of the personal representative, final distribution of the estate, and compensation of the personal representative and his or her attorney. The chapter starts with several provisions that apply generally [see § 458D.10 et seq.]. The chapter then discusses accounts [see § 458D.30 et seq.], distribution [see § 458D.70 et seq.], and compensation [see § 458D.120 et seq.].

The forms in this chapter include:

- A final account and petition for final distribution, which may or may not include a request for compensation for extraordinary services [see § 458D.190].

- Particular allegations that may be included in the petition for final distribution [see §§ 458D.191 -458D.203].

- Written assurance by a custodial parent to secure distribution under Prob. Code § 3401 of money or property to the parent of a minor distributee who has no guardian of the estate and whose total estate does not exceed $5,000 [see § 458D.204].

- A petition and order for distribution under Prob. Code §§ 3410-3413 of money belonging to a minor [§§ 458D.205, 458D.206].

- A notice of hearing on the final account and petition for final distribution [see § 458D.207].

- A supplemental account [see § 458D.208].

- A contest of an account [see § 458D.209].

- A petition to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the execution of, and the consideration for, the transfer of an heir's or devisee's interest in an estate to another [see § 458D.210].

- An order settling the account, for final distribution, and allowing compensation for extraordinary services [see § 458D.211] and provisions for use in the order when property is to be distributed under Prob. Code §§ 3400-3402 [see § 458D.212], under Prob. Code §§ 3410-3412 [see § 458D.213], or to a trustee [see § 458D.214].

- A waiver of the personal representative's account [see § 458D.215].

For the distribution of property in California in an ancillary proceeding to the sister-state personal representative of a nondomiciliary decedent [Prob. Code §§ 12540-12542], see Ch. 458C, Probate: Preliminary Distribution and Partial Allowance of Compensation .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART I. SCOPE

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.02

§ 458D.02 Cross References

For discussion and forms relating to claim and delivery and the recovery of personal property in connection with an action to recover a distributee's share of the estate, see Ch. 119, Claim and Delivery

For discussion and forms relating to ejectment in connection with an action to recover a distributee's share of the estate consisting of real property, see Ch. 241, Ejectment

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART I. SCOPE

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 458D.03-458D.09

[Reserved]

§§ 458D.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.10

§ 458D.10 Governing Law

Accounts by the personal representative are governed principally by Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064. Final distribution of estates is governed principally by Prob. Code §§ 11600-11605, 11640-11642, and 11750-12252. Compensation for the personal representative and his or her attorney in proceedings for administration of a decedent's estate commenced before July 1, 1991, is governed by former Prob. Code §§ 900-911 [see Prob. Code § 10850(b)]. Compensation for the personal representative and his or her attorney in proceedings for administration of a decedent's estate commenced on or after July 1, 1991, is governed by Prob. Code §§ 10830-10832 [Prob. Code § 10850(a); see also discussion in § 458D.11].

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 7.250 and 7.403 govern the listings needed in a petition for final distribution when the petitioner is acting under the Independent Administration of Estates Act.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.650 governs a decree of distribution establishing a testamentary trust.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.801, governs the failure to file and serve an objection or response when the court has continued a matter to allow for a written objection or response to be made.

Many courts have adopted local rules also governing probate proceedings, which must be complied with and should be checked if counsel is unfamiliar with them. Some of these rules, insofar as they relate to accounts, distribution, or compensation, are cited in the Research Guide in this part.

Some statutes discussed in this chapter use the term "personal representative," whereas others refer to the "executor or administrator." These terms are used interchangeably in the following discussion unless a distinction is noted [see Prob. Code § 58 and discussion in § 458D.12].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.11

§ 458D.11 Applicability of Former Law

If a petition, account, report, inventory, appraisal, or other document or paper is filed before July 1, 1991, its contents, execution, and notice are governed by the prior law. Any subsequent proceedings taken after July 1, 1991, concerning the petition, account, report, inventory, appraisal, or other document or paper, including an objection or response, a hearing, an order, or other matter relating thereto, is governed by current law rather than former law [Prob. Code § 3(d)].

In addition, former Prob. Code §§ 900-911 (repealed by Stats. 1990, ch. 79, operative July 1, 1991), as those sections existed on June 30, 1991, continue to apply in any proceeding for the administration of a decedent's estate commenced before July 1, 1991. Prob. Code §§ 10800-10850 (compensation of the personal representative and his or her attorney; operative July 1, 1991) do not apply in any proceeding for administration of a decedent's estate commenced before July 1, 1991 [Prob. Code § 10850(a)]. Among the changes effected by Prob. Code §§ 10800-10850, the word "compensation" was substituted for the words "commission," "fee," and "fees" in the former statutes.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.12

§ 458D.12 Definitions

The term "interested person" includes the following [Prob. Code § 48(a)]:

- An heir, devisee, child, spouse, creditor, beneficiary, and any other person having a property right in or claim against a trust estate or the estate of a decedent that may be affected by the proceeding;
- Any person having priority for appointment as personal representative; and
- A fiduciary representing an interested person.

However, the meaning of "interested person" as it applies to particular persons may vary from time to time and must be determined according to the particular purposes of, and matter involved in, the proceeding [Prob. Code § 48(b)].

The term "personal representative" means executor, administrator, administrator with the will annexed, special administrator, successor personal representative, public administrator acting under Prob. Code § 7660, or a person who performs substantially the same function under the law of another jurisdiction governing the person's status [Prob. Code § 58(a)]. "General personal representative" excludes a special administrator unless the special administrator has the powers, duties, and obligations of a general personal representative under Prob. Code § 8545 [Prob. Code § 58(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesAppointmentEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.13

§ 458D.13 "In Chambers" Powers

A judge of the court, in chambers, may grant all orders that are usually granted in the first instance on an ex parte application, hear and dispose of those orders, appoint referees, require and receive accounts to be filed, order notice of settlement of supplemental accounts, suspend the powers of personal representatives, and direct the issuance of all writs and process necessary in the exercise of the judge's powers in matters of probate [Code Civ. Proc. § 166(a)(1)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersRefereesAppointmentsEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 458D.14-458D.29

[Reserved]

§§ 458D.14[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.30

§ 458D.30 When Account Is Allowed or Required

The court on its own motion or on petition of an interested person may order an account at any time [Prob. Code § 10950(a)]. The court is required to order an account on petition of an interested person if it has been more than a year since the last account was filed or, if no previous account has been filed, if it has been more than a year since letters were issued to the personal representative [Prob. Code § 10950(b)]. When the court orders an account, it must specify the time within which the personal representative must file the account [Prob. Code § 10950(c)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.31

§ 458D.31 Duty to Render Account

[1] By Personal Representative

The personal representative must file a final account and petition for an order for final distribution of the estate when the estate is in a condition to be closed [Prob. Code § 10951].

[2] By Resigned or Removed Personal Representative

A personal representative who resigns or is removed from office or whose authority is otherwise terminated must, file an account not later than 60 days after termination of authority, unless the court extends the time. Should the personal representative fail to do so, the court may compel an account under Prob. Code §§ 11050-11052 (discussed in § 458D.32) [Prob. Code § 10952].

[3] On Death, Incapacity, or Abscondence of Personal Representative

If a personal representative dies or becomes incapacitated and a legal representative is appointed, the legal representative, not later than 60 days after his or her appointment, unless the court extends the time, must file an account of the administration of the deceased or incapacitated personal representative [Prob. Code § 10953(b)]. A "legal representative" is the personal representative of a deceased personal representative or the conservator of the estate of an incapacitated personal representative [Prob. Code § 10953(a)(2)]. "Incapacitated" means lack of capacity to serve as personal representative [Prob. Code § 10953(a)(1)].

If no legal representative is appointed, or if the personal representative absconds, the court may compel the attorney for the deceased, incapacitated, or absconding personal representative or the attorney of record in the estate proceeding to file an account of the administration of the deceased, incapacitated, or absconding personal representative [Prob. Code § 10953(c)].

The legal representative or attorney must exercise reasonable diligence in preparing the account, which must be settled by the court as in other cases [Prob. Code § 10953(d)]. The court must allow reasonable compensation to the legal representative or attorney for preparing the account, and the amount allowed is a charge against the estate that was being administered by the deceased, incapacitated, or absconding personal representative [Prob. Code § 10953(d)]. Legal services for which a fee will be allowed to the attorney under Prob. Code § 10953(d) include those services rendered by any paralegal performing the services under the direction and supervision of an attorney, but the petition or application must set forth the hours spent and services performed by the paralegal [Prob. Code § 10953(d); see also discussion in § 458D.120 et seq].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersAccountingEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesRemoval & TerminationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesRemoval & TerminationVoluntary Resignation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.32

§ 458D.32 Compelling Account

If the personal representative does not file a required account, the court must compel the account by punishment for contempt [Prob. Code § 11050]. A citation must be issued, served, and returned, requiring the personal representative to appear and show cause why he or she should not be punished for contempt [Prob. Code § 11051(a)]. A personal representative who does not appear and file the required account after having been duly cited may be punished for contempt or removed from office, or both, in the discretion of the court [Prob. Code § 11052; see also Prob. Code § 8505(a) (removal of personal representative found in contempt)].

A personal representative who purposefully evades personal service of the citation must be removed from office [Prob. Code § 11051(b)].

Prob. Code §§ 11050-11052 may also be used to compel an account by a personal representative who has resigned or been removed from office or whose authority has otherwise terminated [Prob. Code § 10952 (discussed in § 458D.31[2])].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.33

§ 458D.33 Form and Format of Account

All accounts filed under the Probate Code are subject to the requirements of Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064 [Prob. Code § 1060.5]. Every account filed under the code must include a financial statement and a report of administration as provided in those sections Prob. Code § 10900(a). Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064. Every account must also state the period that it covers, and contain a summary showing matters specified in Prob. Code § 1061(a).

All accounts must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1)]. An account must be verified by the person who has the duty to make it or, if there are two or more parties with that duty, by any of them [Prob. Code § 1021(b)(2)]. When an account is filed by the legal representative or attorney of a deceased, incapacitated, or absconding personal representative (discussed in § 458D.31[3]), it maybe verified on information and belief [Prob. Code § 10953(d)].

The filing of an account is deemed to include a petition requesting its approval [Prob. Code § 1064(b)].

The final account or report filed in every decedent's estate proceeding commenced on or after August 18, 2003, must include a separate schedule containing specified information that the court may use to determine whether any adjustment in the fee paid for filing the petition is warranted [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.552].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.34

§ 458D.34 Supporting Documents

On court order, or on request by an interested person (defined in § 458D.12) filed with the clerk and a copy served on the personal representative, the personal representative must produce for inspection and audit by the court or interested person the documents specified in the order or request that support the account [Prob. Code § 10901; see also discussion in § 458D.40].

Prob. Code § 10901 supersedes former Prob. Code § 925, extending the voucher procedure to supporting documents generally [Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to Prob. Code § 10901].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.35

§ 458D.35 Setting Account for Hearing

When an account is filed, the court clerk sets the matter for hearing, for which notice is required [Prob. Code §§ 1041, 1042].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.36

§ 458D.36 Notice of Hearing on Settlement

[1] To Whom Given, Manner of Giving, and Proof of Notice

At least 15 days before the hearing on the account, notice of the time and place of the hearing must be given to the following persons [Prob. Code § 11000(a); see Prob. Code § 1220(a)(2)]:

- Any nonpetitioning personal representative.

- All persons who have requested special notice in the estate proceeding pursuant to Prob. Code § 1250.

- All known heirs (defined in Prob. Code § 44) and devisees (defined in Prob. Code § 34) whose interests in the estate would be affected by the account.

- The Attorney General, if any portion of the estate is to escheat to the state and its interest in the estate would be affected by the account.

- If the estate is insolvent, each creditor who has filed a claim that is allowed or approved but is unpaid in whole or in part.

In the case of persons requesting special notice, the notice must be mailed to the address set forth in the request [Prob. Code § 1252(a)]. In the case of the Attorney General, notice is to be given at the office of the Attorney General in Sacramento [Prob. Code § 11000(a)(4)]. In the case of others entitled to notice, the notice must be mailed to the person's business or residence address, if known; if not known, the court may order that the notice be given in a manner reasonably calculated to give actual notice to that person [Prob. Code §§ 1212, 1220(a)(3); see Code Civ. Proc. § 413.30]. If any person entitled to notice is represented by an attorney of record, the notice must also be given to that attorney [Prob. Code § 1214].

Personal delivery of the notice is the equivalent of notice by mail [Prob. Code § 1215(a), 1216].

The court may, for good cause, dispense with the notice required to be given to a person [Prob. Code §§ 1220(c), 1252(a)].

Proof of giving notice of the hearing must be made to the satisfaction of the court at or before the hearing, in the manner provided in Prob. Code §§ 1260-1265 [see Prob. Code § 1260(a)].

Waiver of notice is governed by Prob. Code §§ 1204, 1210.

For discussion and forms for giving notice, see Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements .

[2] Form and Contents of Notice

The general form and contents of a notice are set forth in Prob. Code § 1211. However, if the petition for approval of the account requests allowance of all or a portion of the compensation of the personal representative or his or her attorney, the notice of hearing must so state [Prob. Code § 11000(b); for proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991, see former Prob. Code § 11000(c)]. If the account is a final account and is filed together with a petition for an order for final distribution of the estate, the notice of hearing must also so state [Prob. Code § 11000(c); for proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991, see former Prob. Code 11000(d)].

For a form for a notice of hearing on a final account and petition for final distribution, see § 458D.207. For further discussion and forms for notice, including a Judicial Council form for notice of hearing for optional use, see Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.37

§ 458D.37 Effect of Stipulation

The court has authority to settle the accounts of a personal representative, freefrom the control of any parties. Although it may, if it chooses, settle an account in accordance with a stipulation, the court is not bound to do so [Estate of Richards (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 259, 269, 109 P.2d 923 (decided under former Prob. Code §§ 920-932 (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199, operative July 1, 1989; now see Prob. Code §§ 10900-11052))].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.38

§ 458D.38 Hearing on Account; Citing Personal Representative to Appear; Appointment of Referees

The court may conduct any hearing that may be necessary to settle the account, and may cite the personal representative to appear before it for examination [Prob. Code § 11002(a)]. It may also appoint one or more referees to examine the account and make a report on it, subject to confirmation by the court, and may allow a reasonable compensation to the referee(s) to be paid out of the estate [Prob. Code § 11002(b)]. The court may make any order it deems necessary to effectuate the foregoing provisions [Prob. Code § 11002(c)]. For discussion, forms, and procedural guides relating to referees generally, see Ch. 38, Reference .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudicial OfficersRefereesAppointmentsEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.39

§ 458D.39 Duty and Discretion of Court

It is the court's duty to scrutinize the final account of the personal representative and to disallow any item that is not a proper and legal charge against the estate, whether or not any person contests the account (see discussion in § 458D.45) [Estate of Bennett (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 354, 368, 90 P.2d 84] . In ruling on a petition for final distribution and settlement of an account, the court is vested with broad discretion that will not be disturbed on appeal except when abused [see Estate of Lock (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 892, 902, 176 Cal. Rptr. 358] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.40

§ 458D.40 Supporting Evidence

The evidence that the court may require the personal representative to produce in support of the correctness of any account is largely a matter within the court's discretion. When there is no contest of the account, it is the duty of the court to satisfy itself that the account is correct, and, within reason, it may require the personal representative to produce such evidence as will satisfy it in this respect [Estate of Barreiro (1932) 125 Cal. App. 752, 773-774, 14 P2d 786 ; see also Prob. Code § 10901, discussed in § 458D.34].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.41

§ 458D.41 Scope of Inquiry

[1] Property Received

By virtue of a court's power to settle the final account of a personal representative and to determine what remains to be distributed, the court is authorized to determine the amount of money or property of the estate that has come into the hands of the personal representative and to charge him or her accordingly, adversely to his or her individual claim or right against the estate if that be the case [see Estate of Chamberlain (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 193, 204, 112 P2d 53] .

[2] Advances to Distributees

In the settlement of the final account, the court has no authority to allow the personal representative credit for money advanced to distributees without a court order. However, the court may properly consider and allow such credits in the hearing on the petition for final distribution [Estate of Bennett (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 354, 362, 90 P.2d 84 ; see also Estate of Guglielmi (1934) 138 Cal. App. 80, 91, 31 P.2d 1078 (issue can be determined only on hearing for preliminary or final distribution of estate)].

[3] Settlement of Claim Not Properly Filed

If a debt has been paid within the time prescribed in Prob. Code § 9154 but without a claim having been filed and established in the manner prescribed by statute, the court, in settling the account, must allow the amount paid if it is proved that the debt was justly due and paid in good faith, the amount paid did not exceed the amount reasonably necessary to satisfy the indebtedness, and the estate is solvent [Prob. Code § 11005].

[4] Title to Property

In a probate proceeding, the court has no authority to determine title to property when the dispute is between the estate or heirs or devisees on the one hand and a stranger to the estate on the other. However, as an incidental procedure to the settlement of a final account, the court may determine title to property claimed by the personal representative adversely to the estate [see Waterland v. Superior Court (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 34, 38-39, 98 P.2d 211] .

[5] Liability of Personal Representative

A personal representative has the duty to preserve the estate's property by paying taxes legally imposed when there is sufficient money on hand for that purpose, and when it is proper to surcharge a negligent executor for losses suffered by an estate due to penalties or interest paid on delinquent taxes, or to deny settlement of an executor's account or final distribution in the absence of such surcharge [Estate of Lock (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 892, 903, 176 Cal. Rptr. 358 ; see Prob. Code § 9601(a) (personal representative's liability for breach of fiduciary duty)].

Whether or not the personal representative unreasonably delayed the payment of monetary devises, and whether or not he or she ought to be charged with interest because of the delay, are issues that should be determined on thesettlement of the final account [Estate of Reed (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 94, 96, 48 P.2d 177 (decided under former law); see Prob. Code § 9600 (personal representative's duty to exercise ordinary care and diligence)].

For further discussion regarding the liability of a personal representative, see Ch. 456, Probate: Management of Estate Assets .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureSettlementsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.42

§ 458D.42 Reservation of Ruling on Particular Items

The court has authority to reserve its ruling on any portion of the account as to which the court deems the evidence of propriety and reasonableness to be unsatisfactory or incomplete [Estate of Barreiro (1932) 125 Cal. App. 153, 184, 13 P.2d 1017] . The court should not reserve its ruling in any case in which such reservation threatens to cause an indefinite postponement of distribution and possibly the complete divestiture of a devisee's claim under the decedent's will [Estate of Shannon (1941) 43 Cal. App. 2d 425, 428-429, 110 P.2d 1017] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.43

§ 458D.43 Certificate of Franchise Tax Board That Taxes Have Been Paid on Certain Distributions to Nonresidents

The court may not approve a final account in an estate that has a total appraised value or more than $1,000,000, when more than $250,000 of the estate has been distributed or is distributable to beneficiaries who are not California residents, until the executor or administrator has filed the Franchise Tax Board's state income tax certificate showing that all state personal income taxes, additions to tax, penalties, and interest imposed on the estate or the decedent have been paid or that payment has been secured [Rev. & Tax. Code § 19513; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.551(a); see 18 Cal. Code Reg. § 19513(b)]. If a final account is waived under Prob. Code § 10954 in such an estate, the court may not approve the final report required by Prob. Code § 10954(c)(1) until the state income tax certificate is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.551(b)]. When the Franchise Tax Board issues the certificate on the condition that the court must approve the final account or report before a date specified in the certificate, the court may not approve the final account or report after that date unless the executor or administrator first files a new or revised certificate [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.551(c)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewTax LawState & Local TaxesEstate & Gift TaxEstate TaxGeneral OverviewTax LawState & Local TaxesIncome TaxIndividuals, Estates & TrustsImposition of Tax

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.44

§ 458D.44 Allowance of Expenses of Administration

The personal representative shall be allowed all necessary expenses in the administration of the estate, including, but not limited to, necessary expenses in the care, management, preservation, and settlement of the estate [Prob. Code § 11004].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateCosts & Expenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.45

§ 458D.45 Contest of Account

[1] Matters That May Be Contested

Under Prob. Code § 11001, all matters relating to an account may be contested for cause shown, including but not limited to the following:

- The validity of an allowed or approved claim not reported in a previous account and not established by judgment [Prob. Code § 11001(a)].

- The value of property for purposes of distribution [Prob. Code § 11001(b); see Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comments to Prob. Code § 11001 (Prob. Code § 11001(b) permits a contest of the value of property for purposes of distribution only; objections to the inventory and appraisal are provided for separately under Prob. Code § 8906)].

- Actions taken by the personal representative not previously authorized or approved by the court, subject to Prob. Code § 10590 (relating to Independent Administration of Estates Act) [Prob. Code § 11001(c); see § 458D.209; see also Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comments to Prob. Code § 11001 (Prob. Code § 11001(c) makes clear an interested person's right to obtain court review of the personal representative's actions through a contest of an account)].

[2] When Contest May Be Made

The validity of an allowed or approved claim (see Prob. Code §§ 9250, 9251) may be contested by any interested person (defined in § 458D.12,) at any time before settlement of the report or account of the personal representative in which it is first reported as an allowed or approved claim [see Prob. Code § 9254(a) (also providing for burden of proof); see also Prob. Code § 9254(b) (Prob. Code § 9254(a) does not apply to a claim established by a judgment)].

For further discussion and forms relating to claims against the estate, see Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate .

Failure of an interested person to object specifically in written exceptions to the account constitutes a waiver of the objections not so alleged [Estate of Kirkpatrick (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 709, 713, 241 P.2d 555 (decided under former law)].

The court may continue a matter to allow a written objection or response to be made. If the court does so, however, and the responding or objecting party fails to serve and file a timely objection or response, the court may deem the objections or responses waived [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.801].

[3] Who May Contest

Neither Prob. Code § 11001 (discussed in § 458D.45[1]) nor Prob. Code§ 11003 (discussed in § 458D.45[6]) specifies who may contest an account. It appears, however, that a contest may be filed only by an interested person (defined in § 458D.12). Prob. Code § 1043, applicable generally to court hearings under the Probate Code, provides that an interested person may make a response or objection to an account [Prob. Code § 1043(a), (b); see Prob. Code §§ 1040, 1041; see also Prob. Code § 1021(a)(2)]. Also, Prob. Code § 9254(a), discussed in § 458D.45[2], provides that the validity of an allowed or approved claim may be contested by any interested person [see also Prob. Code § 8906(a)]. Finally, the Law Revision Commission's Comment to Prob. Code § 11001 notes that Prob. Code § 11001 restates portions of former Prob. Code § 927 (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199, operative July 1, 1989), which provided in pertinent part that "[a]ny person interested in the estate may appear and file written exceptions to the account, and contest the account, including objecting to the value of assets shown on the inventories and appraisements filed in the proceedings."

A person who is entitled to contest the account and does not do so has no standing to appeal from the order settling the account [Estate of Vizelich (1932) 123 Cal. App. 651, 653, 11 P.2d 870 (decided under former law)]. If there is any doubt as to whether a person has an interest sufficient to entitle him or her to contest the personal representative's account, the doubt should be resolved in favor of the person claiming the interest [see Estate of Reinicke (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 271, 273-274, 112 P.2d 311] .

The following persons were specifically held to have standing to object to the personal representative's account under former law; they still appear to be within the current definition of interested person (defined in § 458D.12):

- A coexecutor or coadministrator, when there are two or more personal representatives serving simultaneously, whether or not the objecting personal representative participated in the conduct that is the basis for the attack on the account [see Estate of Auslender (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 615, 627-628, 2 Cal. Rptr. 769, 349 P.2d 537 (participation in fraud held no bar)].

- A person named as a beneficiary in the decedent's will, whether the person has a vested interest or merely a contingent future interest [Estate of Brown (1938) 24 Cal. App. 2d 573, 574-575, 75 P.2d 658] .

- The heir of a predeceased beneficiary named in the decedent's will [Estate of Cummings (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 801, 803, 11 Cal. Rptr. 465] .

- The residuary legatee, even though there would be no residue if the objections are sustained [Estate of Harrison (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 12, 15-16, 228 P.2d 881] .

- The attorney for the personal representative, because he or she is entitled to a statutory allowance out of the estate [Estate of McMillin (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 121, 127, 292 P.2d 881] .

- A tax expert employed by the personal representative and paid from the funds of the estate for the services [Estate of McMillin (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 121, 127, 292 P.2d 881] .

- A creditor of the decedent's estate, as distinguished from a creditor of the personal representative, whether or not he or she was a creditor of the decedent during the decedent's life [Estate of McMillin (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 121, 127, 292 P.2d 881] .

- A creditor whose claim was rejected and who then filed a civil action to collect it [Estate of Mailhebuau (1933) 218 Cal. 202, 204, 22 P.2d 514] .

- The judgment creditor of a sole beneficiary under a decedent's will, whose judgment exceeded the total value of the estate and who had levied execution against the beneficiary's interest [Estate of Reinicke (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 271, 273-274, 112 P.2d 311] .

In other cases, it has been held that the assignee or grantee of an heir, the judgment creditor of a devisee who had acquired title under execution, and the judgment creditor of a legatee who had levied execution on the legatee's interest were interested persons entitled to contest the account [see Estate of Reinicke (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 271, 273, 112 P.2d 311 and cases cited therein].

[4] Manner of Contesting

An account may be contested by appearing and filing a written contest [Prob. Code §§ 11001, 11003; see § 458D.209], or objections in writing at or before the hearing or orally at the hearing [see Prob. Code § 1043(a), (b)]. Failure of the heirs or devisees to appear and contest the account will be considered a consent that the account may be settled as filed [see Estate of Kent (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 154, 164, 57 P.2d 901 (construing former law)].

Written objections to, or a written contest of, the account appear to be the only responsive pleading that is expressly authorized or required to be filed in a proceeding for settlement of an account [see Prob. Code § 1043(a); see also Estate of Smith (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 383, 388, 73 P.2d 239 (affirming order striking cross complaint)].

[5] Effect of Failure to Cross Examine Personal Representative

If the personal representative testifies that the account is true and correct and that all debts paid were justly due, and if the objector does not cross examine on this testimony, the objector will be precluded from questioning the account on appeal [Estate of Rindge (1934) 136 Cal. App. 263, 267, 28 P.2d 705] .

[6] Award of Costs and Fees on Determination of Contest

If the court determines that the contest was without reasonable cause and in bad faith, it may award against the contestant the compensation and costs of the personal representative and other expenses and costs of litigation, including attorney's fees, incurred to defend the account. The amount awarded is a charge against any interest of the contestant in the estate and the contestant is personally liable for any amount that remains unsatisfied [Prob. Code § 11003(a)].

If the court determines that the opposition to the contest was without reasonable cause and in bad faith, it may award the contestant the contestant's costs and other expenses and costs of litigation, including attorney's fees, incurred to contest the account. The amount awarded is a charge against the compensation or other interest of the personal representative in the estate, and the personal representative is liable personally and on the bond, if any, for any amount that remains unsatisfied [Prob. Code § 11003(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Administrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityStandingEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationClaims Against EstatesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.46

§ 458D.46 Effect of Order Settling Account

When an order settling an interim or final account of the personal representative becomes final, it releases the personal representative and any sureties on the personal representative's bond from any claims of heirs, devisees, or other affected persons based on any act or omission directly authorized, approved, or confirmed in the order [Prob. Code § 7250(a)]. However, an order settling an account will not release the personal representative or the sureties from claims if it was obtained by fraud or conspiracy, or by misrepresentation of any material fact in the petition or account. Failure to disclose a material fact also constitutes misrepresentation for this purpose [Prob. Code § 7250(c)].

Cause for reopening an account cannot be shown if the only objection is that the account reflects a distribution made earlier pursuant to a valid order that has become final and, therefore, conclusive [Gladding v Superior Court (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 408, 418, 60 P.2d 857 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 1637 and former Prob. Code § 931 (conclusiveness of order settling account))].

When final distribution has been made and the order has become final, the order settling the final account is conclusive against all persons interested in the estate, including minors or other persons who might have been entitled before distribution to move for reopening the account under former Prob. Code § 931 (conclusiveness of order settling account) [Carr v. Bank of America etc. Assn. (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 366, 371-372, 79 P.2d 1096] .

A probate court's approval of the final accounting, that survives on appeal, is conclusive as to the personal representative's veracity and exercise of due care [Estate of Regli (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 878, 881, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 514 (because former administrator of decedent's estate would have been adversely affected by remaining potential beneficiaries' motion seeking stipulated partial reversal of several probate court orders, motion could not be granted)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust

LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.47

§ 458D.47 Setting Aside Order for Extrinsic Fraud

When the order settling the account has been obtained through extrinsic fraud, it may be set aside, even though long since final, by an independent suit in equity. Extrinsic fraud is fraud in the obtaining of the order [see Lazzarone v. Bank of America (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 581, 595-597, 226 Cal. Rptr 855 (finding no extrinsic fraud); Bank of America v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 705, 711, 713-717, 226 Cal. Rptr. 685 (finding no extrinsic fraud in obtaining order under Prob. Code § 2103 settling guardianship account); see also Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comment to former Prob. Code § 9612].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentFraudEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.48

§ 458D.48 Setting Aside Order to Correct Clerical Mistake

Even though an order settling and allowing an account has become final, it may be set aside in a proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), for the purpose of correcting a clerical mistake [Estate of Soboslay (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 177, 180, 47 P.2d 714 ; see also Prob. Code § 1000 (application of general rules of civil practice in probate proceedings); for further discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentExcusable Neglect & MistakesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.49

§ 458D.49 Final Account When Payment of Debts Exhausts Estate

On the settlement of any account of the personal representative after the expiration of four months after the date letters are first issued to a general personal representative, the court must order payment of debts as the circumstances of the estate permit. If property in the estate is insufficient to pay all the debts, the order must specify the amount to be paid to each creditor [Prob. Code § 11422(b)]. If the estate will be exhausted by the payment ordered, the account of the personal representative constitutes a final account, and notice of hearing must be the notice given for the hearing of a final account. The personal representative is entitled to a discharge when he or she has complied with the terms of the order [Prob. Code § 11422(c); for further discussion, see Ch. 458E, Probate: Discharge].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersAccountingEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateCosts & Expenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.50

§ 458D.50 When Account Is Not Required

[1] Waiver, Acknowledgment, or Adequate Provision Made

Under Prob. Code § 10954(a), the personal representative is not required to file an account if any of the following conditions is satisfied as to each person entitled to distribution from the estate:

- The person has executed and filed a written waiver of account or a writtenacknowledgment that the person's interest has been satisfied [Prob. Code § 10954(a)(1)].

- Adequate provision has been made for satisfaction in full of the person's interest. However, this does not apply to a residuary devisee or to a devisee whose interest in the estate is subject to abatement, payment of expenses, or accrual of interest or income [Prob. Code § 10954(a)(2); see Prob. Code § 34 (defining "devisee")].

For a form for a waiver, and discussion of the manner in which a waiver of the account or acknowledgment must be executed, see § 458D.215.

[2] Report of Administration

Even though an account is not required under Prob. Code § 10954(a), the personal representative must file a final report of administration at the time the final account would otherwise have been required, and the final report must include the amount of compensation paid or payable to the personal representative and to the attorney for the personal representative and must set forth the basis for determining the amount [Prob. Code § 10954(c)(1); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 7.550(a), 7.705]. Although the details of receipts and disbursements need not be listed, the report must list the information required by law, including information as to creditors' claims, sales, purchases or exchanges of assets, changes in the form of assets, assets on hand, whether the estate is solvent, detailed schedules of receipts and gains or losses on sale (if an amount other than the amount of the inventory and appraisal is used as a basis for calculating fees or commissions), costs of administration (if reimbursement of these costs is requested), the amount of any fees or commissions paid or to be paid, the calculation of these fees or commissions, and (for decedent's estate proceedings commenced on or after August 18, 2003) the information required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.552(a) and (b) (relating to graduated filing fee adjustments) [see discussion in Ch. 442, Probate: Initiating Probate Administration, § 442.14[4]] for making any adjustment to the filing fee [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.550(b)].

[3] Exception for Unsatisfied Creditor

A creditor whose interest has not been satisfied may, notwithstanding Prob. Code § 10954(a), petition for an account under Prob. Code § 10950 (discussed in § 458D.30) [Prob. Code § 10954(c)(2)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.51

§ 458D.51 Objections When Account Waived

If an account is waived, the remedy of a disaffected person interested in the estate is to object to distribution on the ground that the account has not been settled [see Estate of Moore (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 945, 951, 61 Cal. Rptr. 722 (decided prior to 1984 enactment of Prob. Code § 933, the predecessor to Prob. Code § 10954)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accounts

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 458D.52-458D.69

[Reserved]

§§ 458D.52[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.70

§ 458D.70 Petition for Final Distribution or Status Report

[1] Time Limit on Filing

The personal representative must petition for an order for final distribution of the estate or make a status of administration report either [Prob. Code § 12200]:

- Within one year after the date letters were issued in an estate for which a federal estate tax return is not required, or

- Within 18 months after letters were issued in an estate for which a federal estate tax return is required.

[2] Independent Administration of Estates Act Distribution

In a final report or a petition for final distribution under the Independent Administration of Estates Act, the personal representative is required to list each claim presented, as well as the claimant's name, the date of filing of the claim, the nature of the claim, the amount claimed, the disposition of the claim, and if the claim was rejected, the date of service of the rejection and whether or not a lawsuit was filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.403].

In the petition for final distribution, the petitioner is also required to list and describe all actions taken without prior court approval if notice of the proposed action was required [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.250(a)]. The description of the action is required to include the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.250(a)]:

- The nature of the action.

- When the action was taken.

- A statement of when and to whom notice was given.

- Whether notice was waived, and if so, by whom.
- Whether any objections were received.

An action taken under the Independent Administration of Estates Act that was properly listed and described in a prior accounting, report, or petition for distribution, and that was approved by the court, need not be listed and described in a subsequent account, report, or petition for distribution [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.250(b)].

[3] Status of Administration Report

[a] Contents and Filing

If a status report is filed, it must show the condition of the estate, the reasonswhy the estate cannot be distributed and closed, and an estimate of the time needed to close administration of the estate [Prob. Code § 12201(a)].

The report must be filed with the court [Prob. Code § 12201(b)].

[b] Notice of Hearing

Notice of hearing of the report must be given as provided in Prob. Code § 1220 to persons then interested in the estate, and must include a statement in not less than 10-point boldface type, or a reasonable equivalent if printed, or in all capital letters if not printed, in substantially the following words: "YOU HAVE THE RIGHT TO PETITION FOR AN ACCOUNT UNDER SECTION 10950 OF THE CALIFORNIA PROBATE CODE" [Prob. Code § 12201(b)].

[c] Hearing and Orders

On the hearing of the report, the court, if it determines that continuation of administration is in the best interests of the estate or of interested persons, may order that administration of the estate continue for the time and on the terms and conditions that appear reasonable, including an account under Prob. Code § 10950 (discussed in § 458D.30), or it may order the personal representative to petition for final distribution [Prob. Code § 12201(c)].

[4] Failure to File Petition or Report

If the personal representative does not petition for final distribution or make a report within the prescribed time, he or she may be cited to appear before the court. On its own motion, or on petition of any interested person, the court may, for good cause shown on the record, cite the personal representative to appear before the court and show the condition of the estate and the reasons why it cannot be distributed and closed [Prob. Code § 12202(a)].

On the hearing of the citation, the court may either order the administration of the estate to continue or order the personal representative to petition for final distribution, as provided in Prob. Code § 12201 (discussed in § 458D.70[3][c]) [Prob. Code § 12202(b)].

[5] Continuation of Administration to Pay Family Allowance

For the purposes of Prob. Code §§ 12200-12206, continuation of the administration of the estate in order to pay a family allowance (discussed in Ch. 448, Probate: Family Allowance) is not in the best interests of the estate or interested persons unless the court determines both that (1) the family allowance is needed by the recipient to pay for necessaries of life, including education so long as pursued to advantage, and (2) the needs of the recipient for continued family allowance outweigh the needs of the decedent's beneficiaries whose interests would be adversely affected by continuing the administration of the estate for this purpose [Prob. Code § 12203(a)].

However, nothing in Prob. Code § 12203 is to be construed either to authorize continuation of a family allowance beyond the time prescribed in Prob. Code § 6543 or to limit the power of the court to order a preliminary distribution of the estate [Prob. Code § 12203(b), (c) (discussed in Ch. 458C, Probate: Preliminary Distribution and Partial Allowance of Compensation)].

[6] Failure to Comply

Failure of the personal representative to comply with an order made under Prob. Code §§ 12200-12206 is grounds for removal from office [Prob. Code § 12204]. Moreover, the personal representative or attorney may suffer a reduction in compensation [Prob. Code § 12205; see also discussion in § 458.120 et seq.].

[7] Continuation of Administration Beyond Limitation in Will

A limitation in a will of the time for administration of an estate is directory only and does not limit the power of the personal representative or the court to continue administration of the estate beyond the time limitation in the will if the continuation is necessary [Prob. Code § 12206].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.71

§ 458D.71 Petition for Final Distribution of Estate

[1] Who May File

Either the personal representative or an interested person may petition the court for an order for final distribution [Prob. Code § 11600; see also discussion in § 458D.12].

[2] When Petition Must Be Filed

When all debts have been paid or adequately provided for, or if the estate is insolvent, and the estate is in a condition to be closed, the personal representative must file for, and the court must make, an order for final distribution of the estate [Prob. Code § 11640(a)]. "Debt" means (1) Prob. Code §§ 9000-9399 or that is otherwise payable in the course of administration; (2) an expense of administration; and (3) a charge against the estate including, but not limited to, taxes, expenses of last illness, and family allowance [Prob. Code § 11401].

[3] Description of Property in Petition

The petition must list and describe in detail the property to be distributed, either in the body of the petition or in an attachment incorporated in the petition by reference. When an account is filed with the petition, the description must be included in a schedule in the account [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.651(a)]. The description must do all of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.651(b)]:

- Include the amount of cash on hand.

- Indicate whether promissory notes are secured or unsecured, and describein detail the security interest of any secured notes.

- Include a complete legal description, street address (if any), and assessor's parcel number (if any) of real property.

- Include the complete description of each individual security held in "street name" in security brokers' accounts.

If the character of property to be distributed may affect the distribution, the petition must allege both of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.652(a)]:

- The character of the property, whether separate, community, or quasi-community.

- That the community or quasi-community property to be distributed is either the decedent's one-half interest only, or the entire interest of the decedent and the decedent's spouse.

If any property is to be distributed to the surviving spouse outright, the spouse must file a written election, complying with Prob. Code § 1513.2, and the petition must show the date the election was filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.652(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.72

§ 458D.72 Notice of Hearing on Petition--To Whom Given, Manner of Giving, and Proof of Notice

At least 15 days before the hearing on the petition, notice of the time and place of the hearing must be given to the following persons [Prob. Code § 11601(a); see Prob. Code § 1220(a)(2)]:

- Any nonpetitioning personal representative.

- All persons who have requested special notice in the estate proceeding pursuant to Prob. Code § 1250.

- All known heirs (defined in Prob. Code § 44) and devisees (defined in Prob. Code § 34) whose interests in the estate would be affected by the petition.

- The Attorney General, if any portion of the estate is to escheat to the state and its interest in the estate would be affected by the petition.

In the case of persons requesting special notice, the notice must be mailed to the address set forth in the request [Prob. Code § 1252(a)]. In the case of the Attorney General, notice is to be given at the office of the Attorney General in Sacramento [Prob. Code § 11601(d)]. In the case of others entitled to notice, the notice must be mailed to the person's business or residence address, if known; if not known, the court may order that the notice be given in a manner reasonably calculated to give actual notice to that person [Prob. Code §§ 1212, 1220(a)(3); see Code Civ. Proc. § 413.30]. If any person entitled to notice is represented by an attorney of record, the notice must also be given to that attorney [Prob. Code § 1214].

Personal delivery of the notice is the equivalent of notice by mail [Prob. Code §§ 1215(a), 1216].

Proof of giving notice of the hearing must be made to the satisfaction of the court at or before the hearing, in the manner provided in Prob. Code §§ 1260-1265 [see Prob. Code § 1260(a)].

The court, for good cause, may dispense with the notice required to be given to a person [Prob. Code §§ 1220(c), 1252(a)]. Waiver of notice is governed by Prob. Code §§ 1204, 1210.

For further discussion and forms for notice, see Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.73

§ 458D.73 Who May Oppose Petition for Final Distribution

The personal representative or any interested person may oppose the petition [Prob. Code § 11602; see also discussion in § 458D.12)]. When there are two or more personal representatives, any of them may oppose a petition made by one or more of the other personal representatives or by any other person [Prob. Code § 9630(d)(1)]. For further discussion regarding objections to petition, see Ch. 458C, Probate: Preliminary Distribution and Partial Allowance of Compensation .

When the interest of an heir or devisee who is a judgment debtor becomes subjected to levy of execution, and the property that he or she would have been entitled to receive is sold by the sheriff, the heir or devisee loses his or her interest in the estate [Estate of Pierce (1938) 28 Cal. App. 2d 8, 13, 81 P.2d 1037] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.74

§ 458D.74 Hearing

The court must hear and determine and resolve in the order all questions arising under Prob. Code § 21135 (discussed in § 458D.82[4]) or Prob. Code § 6409 (discussed in § 458D.78[8]) [Prob. Code § 11640(b)].

If debts remain unpaid or not adequately provided for or if, for other reasons, the estate is not in a condition to be closed, the administration may continue for a reasonable time, subject to Prob. Code §§ 12200-12206 (discussed in § 458D.70) [Prob. Code § 11640(c)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.75

§ 458D.75 Inquiry by Court When Beneficiary's Interest Has Been Transferred

When distribution is to be made to the transferee of a beneficiary or any person other than a beneficiary under an agreement, a request, or the instructions of abeneficiary or the attorney in fact of a beneficiary [Prob. Code § 11604(a)], the court on its own motion, or on motion of the personal representative or other interested person or of the public administrator, may inquire into the circumstances surrounding the execution of, and the consideration for, the transfer, agreement, request, or instructions, and the amount of any fees, charges, or consideration paid or agreed to be paid by the beneficiary [Prob. Code § 11604(b); see § 458D.210]. The court may refuse to order distribution, or may order distribution on any terms that the court deems just and equitable, if it finds either (1) the fees, charges, or consideration paid or agreed to be paid by a beneficiary are grossly unreasonable, or (2) the transfer, agreement, request, or instructions were obtained by duress, fraud, or undue influence [Prob. Code § 11604(c)]. Notice of hearing on the motion must be served on the beneficiary and on the persons described in Prob. Code § 11604(a) at least 15 days before the hearing in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10 or 415.30, as the court may direct [Prob. Code § 11604(d); for further discussion relating to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.10 and 415.30, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawDefensesDuress & Undue InfluenceGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.76

§ 458D.76 Order for Distribution

If the court determines that the requirements for distribution are satisfied, it must order distribution of the decedent's estate to the persons entitled to it [Prob. Code § 11603(a)].

The order must (1) name the distributees and the share to which each is entitled; and (2) provide that property distributed subject to a limitation or condition, including, but not limited to, an option granted under Prob. Code §§ 9960-9966, is distributed to the distributees subject to the terms of the limitation or condition [Prob. Code § 11603(b)].

If the whereabouts of a distributee named in the order is unknown, the order must provide for alternate distributees and the share to which each is entitled. The alternate distributees are the persons, to the extent known or reasonably ascertainable, who would be entitled under the decedent's will or under the laws of intestate succession if the distributee named in the order had predeceased the decedent, or in the case of a devise for a charitable purpose, under the cy pres doctrine. A distributee named in the order who does not claim the share to which he or she is entitled within five years after the date of the order is deemed to have predeceased the decedent for the purpose of the order, and the alternate distributees are entitled to the share as provided in the order [Prob. Code § 11603(c)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.77

§ 458D.77 Effect of Final Order

[1] As to Rights of Interested Persons

An order for distribution binds and is conclusive as to the rights of all interested persons [Prob. Code § 11605].

[2] As Construction of Will

Prob. Code § 11603 (discussed in § 458D.152[4][l]) requires the court to order distribution of the estate to the persons entitled to it and to "name the distributees and the share to which each is entitled" [Prob. Code § 11603(b)(1)]. The order for distribution is the instrument that determines and concludes the rights of the devisees, and resort may be had to the will only when by apt language the will is incorporated into the order for distribution. In other words, the will is only evidence on which the court passes in rendering its judgment embodied in the order for distribution [Estate of Den (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 638, 640, 45 P.2d 963 (involving predecessor statutes); see In re Estate of Lockhart (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 574, 578-579, 69 P.2d 1001 (same; disapproved on another point in Estate of Platt (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 343, 349, 131 P.2d 825)].

Thus, an order of distribution is a judicial construction of the will arrived at by the court ascertaining the intent of the testator. Once final, the order supersedes the will and becomes the conclusive determination of the validity, meaning, and effect of the will, the trusts created in it, and the rights of all parties under it [Estate of Callnon (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 150, 156, 74 Cal. Rptr. 250, 449 P.2d 186 ; see also Estate of McCallen (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 142, 148, 125 Cal. Rptr. 645 (decree of final distribution constitutes a conclusive construction of the will as against all interested parties, including beneficiaries of a testamentary trust)]. If the order erroneously interprets the intention of the testator, it must be attacked, if at all, by appeal and not collaterally. If not corrected by appeal, an erroneous order is as conclusive as an order that contains no error. When the order of distribution is contrary to the provisions in the will, the order controls and prevails over the terms of the will with respect to the distribution of the property. If the language of the order is uncertain, vague, or ambiguous may resort be had to the will to interpret, not to contradict, the order; if the distributive portions of the order are free of ambiguity, resort may not be had to the provisions of a will in order to create an ambiguity [Estate of Callnon (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 150, 157, 74 Cal. Rptr. 250, 449 P.2d 186 (involving predecessor statutes)]. Additionally, if the will is incorporated by reference into the order for distribution, resort to the will may be had to ascertain the intent of the testator [see Estate of Heil (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1503, 1508, 259 Cal. Rptr. 28] .

However, where the construction of a will has been litigated and determined in a proceeding for preliminary distribution (discussed in Ch. 458C, Probate: Preliminary Distribution and Partial Allowance of Compensation), the determination is res judicata and controls the final order of distribution [Estate of McCallen (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 142, 148, 125 Cal. Rptr. 645] .

[3] On Title to Property

A proceeding for distribution is a proper one to determine questions of title to properties in which the decedent had an interest and that are claimed by the personal representative, adversely to the estate, as his or her own [Estate of Basso (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 294, 299, 156 P.2d 476] . Moreover, in the distribution of a decedent's estate, the court, acting in its probate capacity, may pass on equitable interests in the property being distributed, such as a contingent remainder after termination of a life estate in trust [Estate of White (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 749, 758, 160 P.2d 204] .

However, the probate court has no jurisdiction to determine adverse claims to the properties of an estate in course of administration when asserted by a stranger to the estate or to try the question of title to property as between a representative of the estate and strangers to the estate [Estate of Dabney (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 672, 676, 234 P.2d 962] . Nor does an order for distribution determine the title between a devisee whose right has vested and his or her grantee. It is conclusive only as to the claims and rights of heirs and devisees on whom the estate devolved at the time of death. The court has jurisdiction to determine who are the heirs of a deceased person who died intestate, and who are the devisees of one who died testate; but its determination of such matters, rather than creating any new title, merely declares the title that accrued under the law of descent or under the provisions of the will. The order for distribution has nothing to do with contracts or conveyances that may have been made by heirs or devisees respecting their shares of the estate, whether among themselves or with others [Kingsbury v. Ross (1933) 217 Cal. 484, 486, 19 P.2d 784] .

Moreover, an order for distribution does not determine that the decedent had any title to the property distributed, nor does it bind third persons who claim an interest adverse to that of the decedent. It merely determines the succession or testamentary disposition of such title as the decedent may have had [Romagnolo v. Romagnolo (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 315, 319, 40 Cal. Rptr. 807 (holding probate court had no jurisdiction either to determine title to partnership property or to administer assets of partnership on death of one of the partners)].

[4] Exceptions to Conclusiveness

Although an order for distribution is normally final and conclusive as to the rights of all heirs and devisees, it is not conclusive against a distributee who procures it by means of extrinsic fraud [Platnauer v. Forni (1933) 131 Cal. App. 393, 399, 21 P.2d 638 (decided under former Prob. Code § 1021, predecessor to Prob. Code § 11605)]. Thus, the fact that an order for distribution has become final and conclusive does not divest a court of equitable jurisdiction to afford a remedy for an erroneous distribution of property or to construe a declaration of trust when it appears that the order for distribution was procured by fraud or mistake; nor does it divest the court of jurisdiction when it is sought to modify the order by consent of all the interested parties [Security First Nat. Bank v. Easter (1934) 136 Cal. App. 691, 694-695, 29 P.2d 422 (decided under former Prob. Code § 1021, predecessor to Prob. Code § 11605)].

In addition, just as the probate court has no jurisdiction to determine adverse claims to the properties of an estate in the course of administration when asserted by a stranger to the estate, the court's order of distribution is not binding on one who is claiming adversely to an estate properties that have been included in the estate [Estate of Dabney (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 672, 676-677, 234 P.2d 962] .

It has also been held that in a proper case an order for distribution may be set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [see Estate of Ampusait (1933) 131 Cal. App. 533, 537-538, 21 P.2d 691 (order vacating judgment affirmed)]. Although the court in Ampusait did not specify which of the several provisions in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 it was applying and the case was decided before the 1933 amendment of that section, it would appear the court was relying on what is now Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (relief from order, judgment, or other proceeding taken through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect), rather than the provision authorizing a defendant who was not personally served one year after rendition of the judgment in which to answer to the merits (now Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5) or the provision authorizing a court to set aside any void judgment or order (now Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)). Correction of clerical errors in an order or judgment is, on the other hand, expressly authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) [Estate of Goldberg (1938) 10 Cal. 2d 709, 713-714, 76 P.2d 508 (affirming order correcting judgment to include name inadvertently omitted); see also Prob. Code § 1000 (application of general rules of civil practice in probate proceedings)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudgmentsRelief From JudgmentGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.78

§ 458D.78 Distribution Under Laws of Intestate Succession

[1] Governing Law

When a decedent dies intestate (that is, without a will), or when any property is not effectively disposed of by the will of a testate decedent, the property not disposed of by will is distributed to the decedent's heirs according to the laws of intestate succession [see Prob. Code § 6400]. These laws are set out in Prob. Code §§ 6400-6455. Except as discussed in § 458D.78[6]. Prob. Code §§ 6400-6455 apply only when the decedent died on or after January 1, 1985 [Prob. Code § 6414(a)]. The intestate succession of a decedent who died before January 1, 1985, is governed by former Prob. Code §§ 200-258 (repealed by Stats. 1983, ch. 842, operative January 1, 1985) [Prob. Code § 6414(a); see also Prob. Code §§ 3, 6414(c)].

The right to succession is defined by statute [Estate of Griswold (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 904, 907, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 24 P.3d 1191] . Courts have no authority to change the statutory rules governing the law of succession [Estate of McCrary (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 100, 102, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504] .

[2] Definition of Terms Used in Intestate Succession Statutes

[a] "Heirs"

"Heirs," as used in the Probate Code, means the persons, including the surviving spouse, who are entitled under the statutes of intestate succession to the property of a decedent [Prob. Code § 44].

[b] "Child," "Parent," and "Issue"

As used in the Probate Code, "child" means any individual entitled to take as a child by intestate succession from the parent whose relationship is involved [Prob. Code § 26].

"Parent" means any individual entitled to take as a parent by intestate succession from the child whose relationship is involved [Prob. Code § 54].

"Issue" of a person means all his or her lineal descendants of all generations, with the relationship of parent and child at each generation being determined by the definitions of child and parent [Prob. Code § 50].

[c] "Predeceased Spouse" and "Surviving Spouse"

"Predeceased spouse" means a person who died before the decedent while married to the decedent, but the term does not include the following [Prob. Code § 59]:

- A person who obtains or consents to a final decree or judgment of dissolution of marriage from the decedent or a final decree or judgment of annulment of their marriage, which decree or judgment is not recognized as valid in California, unless they (1) subsequently participate in a marriage ceremony purporting to marry each to the other, or (2) subsequently live together as husband and wife.

- A person who, following a decree or judgment of dissolution or annulment of marriage obtained by the decedent, participates in a marriage ceremony to a third person.

- A person who was a party to a valid proceeding concluded by an order purporting to terminate all marital property rights.

"Surviving spouse" does not include any of the following [Prob. Code § 78]:

- A person whose marriage to the decedent has been dissolved or annulled, unless, by virtue of a subsequent marriage, the person is married to the decedent at the time of death.

- A person who obtains or consents to a final decree or judgment of dissolution of marriage from the decedent or a final decree or judgment of annulment of their marriage, which decree or judgment is not recognized as valid in California, unless they (1) subsequently participate in a marriage ceremony purporting to marry each to the other, or (2) subsequently live together as husband and wife.

- A person who, following a decree or judgment of dissolution or annulment of marriage obtained by the decedent, participates in a marriage ceremony with a third person.

- A person who was a party to a valid proceeding concluded by an order purporting to terminate all marital property rights. Under this provision, a spouse who obtains a judgment of legal separation that resolves the parties' marital property rights does not qualify as a "surviving spouse" on the subsequent death of the other spouse for purposes of intestate succession [Estate of McDaniel (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 458, 463, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 907] .

In addition, the following individuals do not qualify as a "surviving spouse" for purposes of intestate succession:

- A spouse who has waived his or her rights to take from the decedent's estate by entering into a written property settlement agreement [see Prob. Code §§ 140-147; Estate of Lahey (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1056, 1058 fn. 2, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 30] .

- An undivorced bigamous spouse with respect to the estate of his or her legally recognized first spouse [Estate of Anderson (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 436, 441-444, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 266 (inheritance is precluded by doctrine of judicial estoppel when claimant states in application for marriage license to second spouse that he or she has never been married)].

- An individual who married the decedent in a purported marriage ceremony that did not result in a valid marriage, because the parties had not obtained a marriage license [see Estate of DePasse (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 92, 107, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 143 (when day before decedent's death from terminal illness, hospital chaplain performed marriage ceremony for petitioner and decedent, but they had not obtained marriage license because of imminence of her death, there was no valid marriage and petitioner could not qualify as surviving spouse)].

[d] "Surviving Domestic Partner"

A "domestic partner" is one of two persons who have filed a Declaration of Domestic Partnership with the Secretary of State under Fam. Code § 297 et seq., provided that the domestic partnership has not been terminated under Fam. Code § 299 [Prob. Code § 37(a)]. Notwithstanding Fam. Code § 299, if a domestic partnership is terminated by the death of one of the partners and neither partner filed a Notice of Termination before the date of the decedent's death, the domestic partner who survives the deceased is a surviving domestic partner and is entitled to the rights of a surviving domestic partner as provided in the Probate Code [Prob. Code § 37(b)]. This includes the right to an intestate share of the deceased partner's separate property [Prob. Code § 6401(c) (effective July 1, 2003); see discussion in § 458D.78[11]].

[3] Inheritance by Relatives of the Halfblood, Afterborn Relatives, and Aliens

Relatives of the halfblood generally inherit the same share they would inherit if they were of the whole blood [Prob. Code § 6406], and relatives of the decedent conceived before the decedent's death and born thereafter inherit as if they had been born in the decedent's lifetime [Prob. Code § 6407]. No person is disqualified to take as an heir because that person, or persons through whom he or she claims, is or has been an alien [Prob. Code § 6411].

[4] Establishing Parent-Child Relationship for Purpose of Intestate Succession

[a] Natural Parent

The relationship of parent and child exists, for the purpose of intestate succession, between a person and the person's natural parents, regardless of the parents' marital status [Prob. Code § 6450(a)]. In determining whether a parent is a "natural parent," the following rules apply:

- A natural parent and child relationship is established if that relationship is presumed and not rebutted under the Uniform Parentage Act (Fam. Code § 7600 et seq.) [Prob. Code § 6453(a)]. For example:

  - A man is presumed to be the natural father of a child if he receives the child into his home and openly holds the child out as his natural child [Fam. Code § 7611(d)].

  - A woman may also be a presumed mother of a child of her lesbian partner if they agree to raise the child together, she receives the child into her home, and she holds the child out as her natural child [see Elisa B. v. Superior Court (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 108, 125, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 46, 117 P.3d 660 (both of child's parents can be women, and woman with no biological connection to child can be child's presumed mother under Fam. Code § 7611(d)); see also K.M. v. E.G. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 130, 142-143, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 61, 117 P.3d 673 (when woman provides ova to her lesbian partner so that partner can bear child who will be raised in their joint home, both women are child's parents); Kristine H. v. Lisa R. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 156, 166, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 81, 117 P.3d 690 (lesbian mother of child was estopped from challenging validity of stipulated judgment declaring that she and her lesbian partner were child's parents)].

- A man who acknowledges a child conceived during marriage is entitled to inherit as a natural parent, regardless of the man's alleged failure to pay child support or the lack of a meaningful parent-child relationship [see Estate of Shellenbarger (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 894, 896, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 862 (court cannot disinherit a natural parent who abandoned a child who later died intestate, when the deceased child was conceived during the parents' marriage and the father acknowledged paternity)].

- A natural parent and child relationship may be established under any provision of the Uniform Parentage Act, except that the relationship may not be established by an action under Fam. Code § 7630(c), governing actions to determine the existence of a father-child relationship when the child has no presumed father or whose presumed father is deceased, unless one of the following conditions exists [Prob. Code § 6453(b)]:

  - A court order was entered during the father's lifetime declaring paternity [see Estate of Griswold (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 904, 921-924, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 24 P.3d 1191 (judgment in bastardy proceeding, in which decedent's biological father confessed paternity, established father as decedent's natural parent for purposes of intestate succession)]. A finding in a proceeding for dissolution of marriage between the decedent and his or her spouse that the claimant is their child establishes, for the purpose of intestate succession, that the claimant is the decedent's issue [Weir v. Ferreira (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1518-1522, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33] .

  - Paternity is established by clear and convincing evidence that the father has openly held out the child as his own [see Estate of Burden (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1021, 1030 ; 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 390 (decedent's acknowledgements during his lifetime of son born out of wedlock, which included (1) decedent's written acknowledgement that he was a party to conception; (2) that he had asked the child's mother to marry him; and (3) his admissions to his own mother, brother, and sister, as well as to the child himself and his mother, that the child was the decedent's son, were sufficient to meet the evidentiary burden of Prob. Code § 6453(b)(2))].

  - It was impossible for the father to hold out the child as his own and paternity is established by clear and convincing evidence. This alternative does not require proof of any specified conduct by the father, but merely proof that he is (or was) the child's biological father [Cheyanna M. v. A.C. Nielsen Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 855, 867, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 335 (statute does not limit type or source of permissible evidence)]. It governs a situation in which the father dies before the child is born [Cheyanna M. v. A.C. Nielsen Co. (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 855, 870, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 335] .

- A natural parent and child relationship may be established for a posthumously conceived child under Prob. Code § 249.5 [Prob. Code § 6453(c); see § 458D.78[5]].

If a child is born out of wedlock, neither a natural parent nor a relative of that parent inherits from or through the child on the basis of the parent and child relationship between that parent and the child, unless the parent or a relative of the parent acknowledged the child and contributed to the support or care of the child [Prob. Code§ 6452]. For example, when the natural father of a decedent who wasborn out of wedlock acknowledged the decedent as his child by confessing to paternity in court and contributed to his support, the decedent's half siblings were entitled to inherit from the decedent's estate through their father who was also deceased [see Estate of Griswold (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 904, 910-920, 924, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 24 P.3d 1191 (no requirement that father receive child into his or her home or have personal contact with child)].

[b] Adoptive Parent

The relationship of parent and child exists, for the purpose of intestate succession, between an adopted person and his or her adopting parent or parents [Prob. Code § 6450(b)].

An adoption severs the relationship of parent and child between an adopted person and a natural parent of the adopted person, unless the natural parent and the adopted person lived together at any time as parent and child (or the natural parent was married to or cohabiting with the other natural parent at the time the person was conceived and died before the person's birth), and the adoption was by the spouse of either of the natural parents or after the death of either of the natural parents [Prob. Code § 6451(a)]. Neither a natural parent nor a relative of a natural parent, except for a wholeblood sibling of the adopted person or the issue of that sibling, inherits from or through the adopted person on the basis of a parent and child relationship between the adopted person and that natural parent, unless the adoption is by the spouse or surviving spouse of that parent [Prob. Code § 6451(b)]. A prior adoptive parent and child relationship is treated as a natural parent and child relationship [Prob. Code § 6451(c)].

[c] Foster or Stepparent

The relationship of parent and child exists, for the purpose of intestate succession, between a person and the person's foster parent or stepparent if (1) the relationship began during the person's minority and continued throughout the joint lifetimes of the person and the person's foster parent or stepparent, and (2) it is established by clear and convincing evidence that the foster parent or stepparent would have adopted the person but for a legal barrier [Prob. Code § 6454; Estate of Furia (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384 (Prob. Code § 6454 governs intestate succession by and through stepparent)]. The barrier to adoption must have begun during the child's minority and have continued throughout the joint lifetimes of the child and the decedent [Estate of Joseph (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 203, 211-212, 216-217, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 619, 949 P.2d 472 (not sufficient that barrier only existed at time when adoption was contemplated or attempted; legal barrier must have continued until decedent's death or at least until such point in time before death as to amount to a factual barrier to adoption in the period remaining); Estate of Furia (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1, 4-5, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384 (biological father's refusal to consent to adoption was not legal barrier when child reached age of majority more than 20 years before decedent's death)]. The benefits of Prob. Code § 6454 are not limited to minors, but also apply to adult foster children or stepchildren [Estate of Joseph (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 203, 214, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 619, 949 P.2d 472] .

[d] Equitable Adoption

These statutes do not affect or limit application of the judicial doctrine of equitable adoption for the benefit of the child or the child's issue [Prob. Code § 6455; see Estate of Furia (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1, 5-7, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384 ; In re Marriage of Lewis & Goetz (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 514, 250 Cal. Rptr. 30 (applying doctrine)]. This doctrine allows a person who was accepted and treated as a natural or adopted child, and as to whom adoption was promised or contemplated but never performed, to share in inheriting the property of the equitable "parent" [Estate of Ford (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 160, 165, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 541, 82 P.3d 747] . Under the doctrine, an equitable adoption may be found to exist based on an express contract to adopt [see Estate of Cleveland (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1700, 1713 fn.15, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 590] . The doctrine also applies to individuals who have filled the place of a natural born child, but through inadvertence or fault have not been legally adopted, as long as there is evidence of an intent to adopt [Estate of Furia (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1, 5, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384] .

Although California decisions have explained equitable adoption as the specific enforcement of a contract to adopt, the doctrine rests less on ordinary rules of contract law than on considerations of fairness and intent [Estate of Ford (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 160, 169, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 541, 82 P.3d 747] . However, the California law of equitable adoption does not recognize an estoppel arising merely from the existence of a family relationship between the decedent and the claimant. While a person with whom the decedent had a close, caring, and enduring relationship may be seen as more deserving of inheritance than the decedent's heirs whose personal relationships with the decedent may have been more attenuated, the doctrine of equitable adoption is not a means of compensating the child for services rendered to the parent or a device for avoiding the unjust enrichment of other more distant relatives who will succeed to the estate under the intestacy statutes. Absent proof of an intent to adopt, a court must follow the statutory law of intestate succession [Estate of Ford (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 160, 170, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 541, 82 P.3d 747] . There is, however, no legal barrier requirement under the doctrine of equitable adoption as there is for a stepparent adoption under Prob. Code § 6454 [Estate of Furia (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1, 5, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384] .

Although an equitable adoption claimant need not prove all the elements of an enforceable contract to adopt, the claimant must demonstrate the existence of a direct expression by the decedent of an intent to adopt the claimant. This intentmay be shown by proof of an unperformed express agreement or promise to adopt. It may also be shown by proof of other acts or statements directly showing that the decedent intended the claimant to be, or to be treated as, a legally adopted child, such as an invalid or unconsummated attempt to adopt, the decedent's statement of his or her intent to adopt, or the decedent's representation to the claimant or to the community at large that the claimant was the decedent's natural or legally adopted child [Estate of Ford (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 160, 171, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 541, 82 P.3d 747] . In addition to a statement or act by the decedent that unequivocally shows the decedent's intent to adopt, the claimant must show that the decedent acted consistently with that intent by forming with the claimant a close and enduring family relationship that must persist up to, or at least not be repudiated by the decedent before, the decedent's death [Estate of Ford (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 160, 171 n6, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 541, 82 P.3d 747] . These elements of an equitable adoption must be shown by clear and convincing evidence [Estate of Ford (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 160, 173, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 541, 82 P.3d 747] .

The doctrine applies principally when the equitable "parent" dies intestate, but may also be applied when the parent dies with a will [Estate of Furia (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1, 5-7, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384] . However, an equitably adopted child does not have a right to inherit the property of a testate "grandparent," whose will directs that her property is to go to the "surviving issue" of her children; an equitable child only has a contractual right to a portion of the parent's estate, and has no right to inherit through the parent [Estate of Furia (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1, 6-7, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384] .

[5] Posthumously Conceived Children

[a] Burden of Proof

For purposes of determining rights to property to be distributed on a decedent's death, a child of the decedent who was conceived after the decedent's death is deemed to have been born in the decedent's lifetime, and after the execution of all of the decedent's testamentary instruments, if the child or the child's representative proves, by clear and convincing evidence, that all of the following conditions are satisfied [Prob. Code § 249.5]:

- The decedent specified in writing that his or her genetic material could be used for the posthumous conception of a child of the decedent. This writing must be signed by the decedent, and dated [Prob. Code § 249.5(a)(1)].

- The person the decedent designated to control the use of the genetic material has given written notice by certified mail, return receipt requested, that the decedent's genetic material was available for posthumous conception. The notice must have been given to a person who has the power to control the distribution of the decedent's property or death benefits payable by reason of the decedent's death, within four months of the date of issuance of a certificate of the decedent's death or entry of a judgment determining the fact of the decedent's death, whichever event occurs first [Prob. Code § 249.5(b)].

- The child was in utero using the decedent's genetic material within two years of the date of issuance of a certificate of the decedent's death or entry of a judgment determining the fact of the decedent's death, whichever occurs first. This provision does not apply to a child who shares all of his or her nuclear genes with the person donating the implanted nucleus as a result of the application of somatic nuclear transfer technology commonly known as human cloning [Prob. Code § 249.5(c)].

[b] Delayed Distribution

The person with the power to control the distribution of the decedent's property or death benefits payable by reason of the decedent's death may not make a distribution of property or pay death benefits before two years following the date of issuance of a certificate of the decedent's death or entry of a judgment determining the fact of the decedent's death, whichever occurs first, if the person receives timely notice under Prob. Code § 249.5(b), or has actual knowledge, of the availability of the decedent's genetic material for posthumous conception [Prob. Code § 249.6(a)]. This provision does not apply to, and the distribution of property or the payment of death benefits may proceed in a timely manner as provided by law with respect to, any property if the birth of the posthumously conceived child or children will not affect the proposed distribution of the decedent's property, the payment of death benefits payable by reason of the decedent's death, the determination of rights to property to be distributed on the decedent's death, or the right of any person to claim a probate homestead or probate family allowance [Prob. Code § 249.6(b)]. The provision for delayed distribution also does not apply if the person the decedent designated to control the use of the genetic material sends written notice by certified mail, return receipt requested, that he or she does not intend to use the genetic material for the posthumous conception of a child of the decedent. The notice must be signed by the person and at least one competent witness, and dated [Prob. Code § 249.6(c)].

The person with the power to control the distribution of the decedent's property or death benefits payable by reason of the decedent's death is not liable for making a distribution of property or paying death benefits before receiving notice or acquiring actual knowledge of the existence of genetic material available for posthumous conception purposes [Prob. Code § 249.6(d)]. Each person to whom payment, delivery, or transfer of the decedent's property is made is personally liable to a person who, under Prob. Code § 249.5, has a superior right to the property. A person's aggregate personal liability cannot exceed the fair market value, valued as of the time of the transfer, of the property paid, delivered, ortransferred to the person, less the amount of any liens and encumbrances on the property at that time [Prob. Code § 249.6(e)]. In addition, any person who fraudulently secures the payment, delivery, or transfer of the decedent's property is liable to the person having a superior right for three times the fair market value of the property [Prob. Code § 249.6(f)]. Any action to impose liability must be filed within three years after the distribution to the holder of the decedent's property, or three years after the discovery of the fraud, whichever is later. This three-year period may not be tolled for any reason [Prob. Code § 249.6(g)].

If the notice required by Prob. Code § 249.5(b) is not given in a timely manner, the person with the power to control the distribution of the decedent's property or death benefits payable by reason of the decedent's death may make the distribution in the manner provided by law as if any child of the decedent conceived after his or her death had predeceased the decedent without heirs. A posthumously conceived child, or that child's representative, is barred from making a claim for wrongful distribution against either the person making the distribution or the recipient of the distribution, when timely notice was not given [Prob. Code § 249.7].

Any interested person may file a petition under Prob. Code §§ 248 or 17200 requesting distribution of the decedent's property or death benefits payable by reason of the decedent's death that are subject to the delayed distribution provisions of Prob. Code § 249.6 [Prob. Code § 249.8]. At the hearing, if it appears that distribution can be made without any loss to any interested person, including any loss (either actual or contingent) to the decedent's posthumously conceived child, the court may order distribution of all, or a portion, of the property or death benefits. The order is stayed until any bond required by the court is filed [Prob. Code § 249.8].

[6] Dower and Curtesy

Except to the extent provided in Prob. Code § 120, the estates of dower and curtesy are not recognized [Prob. Code § 6412; see In re Marriage of Dajani (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1387, 1388 n.2, 251 Cal. Rptr. 871 (distinguishing "dower" and "dowry")]. This is true whether the decedent died before, on, or after January 1, 1985 [Prob. Code § 6414(b)].

Under Prob. Code § 120, the surviving spouse of a decedent who died not domiciled in California but who left a valid will disposing of real property in California that is not the community property of the decedent and the surviving spouse has the same right to elect to take a portion of or interest in the property against the decedent's will as though the property were situated in the decedent's domicile state at death.

[7] Failure to Survive Decedent

A person who fails to survive the decedent by 120 hours is deemed to have predeceased the decedent for the purpose of intestate succession, and the heirs are determined accordingly. If it cannot be established by clear and convincing evidence that a person who would otherwise be an heir has survived the decedent by 120 hours, it is deemed that the person failed to survive for the required period. The requirement that a person who survives the decedent must survive by 120 hours does not apply if the application of the 120-hour survival requirement would result in the escheat of property to the state [Prob. Code § 6403(a) (applicable if all persons on whom disposition of the property depends died on or after January 1, 1990)].

[8] Advancements by Decedent

If a person dies intestate as to all or part of his or her estate after January 1, 1985, property the decedent gave during his or her lifetime to an heir is treated as an advancement against that heir's share of the intestate estate if (1) the decedent declares in a contemporaneous writing that the gift is an advancement against the heir's share of the estate, or that its value is to be deducted from the value of the heir's share of the estate, or (2) the heir acknowledges in writing that the gift is to be so deducted or is an advancement or that its value is to be deducted from the value of the heir's share of the estate [Prob. Code § 6409(a)].

The property advanced is to be valued as of the time the heir came into possession or enjoyment of it or as of the time of the decedent's death, whichever occurs first [Prob. Code § 6409(b)]. However, if the value of the property advanced is expressed in the decedent's contemporaneous writing, or in the heir's acknowledgment made contemporaneously with the advancement, that value is conclusive in the division and distribution of the intestate estate [Prob. Code § 6409(c)].

If the recipient of the property advanced fails to survive the decedent, the property is not taken into account in computing the intestate share to be received by the recipient's issue unless the declaration or acknowledgment provides otherwise [Prob. Code § 6409(d)].

[9] Debts Owed to Decedent

A debt owed to the decedent is not charged against the intestate share of any person except the debtor [Prob. Code § 6410(a)] and, if the debtor fails to survive the decedent, the debt is not taken into account in computing the intestate share of the debtor's issue [Prob. Code § 6410(b)].

[10] Distribution to Surviving Spouse

The surviving spouse's intestate share of community property (defined in Prob. Code § 28) and quasi-community property (defined in Prob. Code § 66) is the one half of the community property and of the quasi-community property thatbelongs to the decedent under Prob. Code §§ 100 and 101, respectively [Prob. Code § 6401(a), (b)]. With respect to the decedent's separate property, the intestate share of the surviving spouse is as follows [Prob. Code § 6401(c)]:

- The entire intestate estate if the decedent did not leave any surviving issue, parent, brother, sister, or issue of a deceased brother or sister.

- One half of the intestate estate if the decedent leaves (1) only one child or the issue of one deceased child, or (2) no issue but leaves a parent or parents or their issue or the issue of either of them.

- One third of the intestate estate if the decedent leaves (1) more than one child, or (2) one child and the issue of one or more deceased children, or (3) the issue of two or more deceased children.

[11] Distribution to Surviving Domestic Partner

A surviving domestic partner [see Prob. Code § 37(b) (definition), § 458D.78[3][d]] is entitled to the same intestate share of the decedent's separate property to which a surviving spouse would be entitled [Prob. Code § 6401(c); see discussion in § 458D.78[1]]].

Beginning January 1, 2005, a surviving registered domestic partner, following the other partner's death, has the same rights, protections, and benefits, and is subject to the same responsibilities, obligations, and duties under law that are granted to and imposed on a surviving spouse [Fam. Code § 297.5(c); see Fam. Code § 297.5(j) (when necessary to implement statutory rights of domestic partners, gender-specific terms referring to spouses must be construed to include domestic partners); see also Knight v. Superior Court (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 14, 22-31, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 687 (enactment of Fam. Code § 297.5 is not an improper legislative amendment of Proposition 22, codified in Fam Code § 308.5, which states that only marriage between a man and a woman is valid or recognized in California); Bouley v. Long Beach Memorial Medical Center (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 601, 606, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 813 (domestic partner has right under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60 to bring wrongful death action for death of his or her partner); Armijo v. Miles (2005) 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 623 (giving domestic partner right to bring wrongful death action for death of his or her partner does not violate Proposition 22, codified in Fam. Code § 308.5].

The legislature has made clear its intention in the domestic partnership law to substantially equalize the status of registered domestic partners and spouses [Koebke v. Bernardo Heights Country Club (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 824, 839, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 565, 115 P.3d 1212] . To couples who meet the requirements of establishing a domestic partnership under the domestic partnership law and who have registered under that law, the legislature has granted legal recognition comparable to marriage, both procedurally and in terms of the substantive rights and obligations granted to and imposed on the partners, which are supported by policy considerations similar to those favoring marriage. These rights and responsibilities are not shared by couples who cohabit or who have not registered as domestic partners [Koebke v. Bernardo Heights Country Club (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 824, 845-846, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 565, 115 P.3d 1212 (finding that in light of domestic partnership law, Unruh Act requires businesses to treat registered domestic partners same as spouses)].

[12] Distribution to Other Heirs

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 6402.5 (decedent who had a predeceased spouse but no surviving spouse or issue, discussed in § 458D.78[13],), or to a surviving domestic partner under Prob. Code § 6401(c) (discussed in § 458D.78[11]) the part of the intestate estate not passing to the surviving spouse or surviving domestic partner under Prob. Code § 6401 (discussed in § 458D.78[10]), or the entire intestate estate if there is no surviving spouse or surviving domestic partner, passes as follows [Prob. Code § 6402]:

- To the decedent's issue. If they are all of the same degree of kinship to the decedent they take equally, but, if of unequal degree, those of more remote degree take in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 240 (discussed in § 458D.78[14]).

- If there is no surviving issue, to the decedent's parent or parents equally.

- If there is no surviving issue or parent, to the issue of the parents or either of them. The issue take equally if they are all of the same degree of kinship to the decedent, but, if of unequal degree, those of more remote degree take in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 240 (discussed in § 458D.78[14]).

- If there is no surviving issue, parent, or issue of a parent, but the decedent is survived by one or more grandparents or issue of grandparents, to the grandparent or grandparents equally, or if there is no surviving grandparent, to their issue. The issue take equally if they are all of the same degree of kinship to the decedent, but, if of unequal degree, those of more remote degree take in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 240 (discussed in § 458D.78[14]).

- If there is no surviving issue, parent or issue of a parent, grandparent or issue of a grandparent, but the decedent is survived by the issue of a predeceased spouse, to such issue. The issue take equally if they are all of the same degree of kinship to the predeceased spouse, but, if of unequal degree, those of more remote degree take in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 240 (discussed in § 458D.78[14]).

- If there is no surviving issue, parent or issue of a parent, grandparent or issue of a grandparent, or issue of a predeceased spouse, but the decedent is survived by next of kin, to the next of kin in equal degree; however, if there are two or more collateral kindred in equal degree claiming through different ancestors, those who claim through the nearest ancestor will be preferred to those claiming through an ancestor more remote.

- If there is no surviving next of kin of the decedent and no surviving issue of a predeceased spouse of the decedent, but the decedent is survived by the parents of a predeceased spouse or the issue of those parents, to the parent or parents equally, or to the issue of the parents if both are deceased. The issue take equally if they are all of the same degree of kinship to the predeceased spouse, but if of unequal degree, those of more remote degree take in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 240 (discussed in § 458D.78[14]).

A person who is related to the decedent through two lines of relationship is entitled to only a single share based on the relationship that would entitle the person to the larger share [Prob. Code § 6413].

[13] Distribution of Estate Attributable to Decedent's Predeceased Spouse

[a] Real Property

For the purposes of distributing real property, if the decedent left no surviving spouse or issue but had a predeceased spouse who died not more than 15 years before the decedent, the "portion of the decedent's estate attributable to the decedent's predeceased spouse" (defined in § 458D.78[13][c]) passes as follows [Prob. Code § 6402.5(a)]:

- If the decedent is survived by issue of the predeceased spouse, to the surviving issue. If they are all of the same degree of kinship to the predeceased spouse they take equally, but if of unequal degree, those of more remote degree take in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 240 (discussed in § 458D.78[14]).

- If there is no surviving issue of the predeceased spouse but the decedent is survived by a parent or parents of the predeceased spouse, to the surviving parent or parents equally.

- If there is no surviving issue or parent of the predeceased spouse but the decedent is survived by issue of a parent of the predeceased spouse, to the surviving issue of the parents or either of them. The issue take equally if they are all of the same degree of kinship to the predeceased spouse, but if of unequal degree, those of more remote degree take in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 240 (discussed in § 458D.78[14]).

- If the decedent is not survived by issue, parent, or issue of a parent of the predeceased spouse, to the decedent's next of kin in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 6402 (see Prob. Code § 6402(f), discussed in § 458D.78[12]).

- If the portion of the decedent's estate attributable to the decedent's predeceased spouse would otherwise escheat to the state because there is no kin of the decedent to take under Prob. Code § 6402, the portion of the decedent's estate attributable to the predeceased spouse passes to the predeceased spouse's next of kin, who will take in the same manner as the next of kin of the decedent under Prob. Code § 6402.

[b] Personal Property

For the purposes of distributing personal property, if the decedent left no surviving spouse or issue but had a predeceased spouse who died not more than five years before the decedent, the "portion of the decedent's estate attributable to the predeceased spouse" (defined in § 458D.78[13][c]) passes as follows [Prob. Code § 6402.5(b)]:

- If the decedent is survived by issue of the predeceased spouse, to the predeceased spouse's surviving issue. If they are all of the same degree of kinship to the predeceased spouse, they take equally, but if of unequal degree, those of more remote degree take in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 240 (discussed in § 458D.78[14]).

- If there is no surviving issue of the predeceased spouse but the decedent is survived by a parent or parents of the predeceased spouse, to the predeceased spouse's surviving parent or parents equally.

- If there is no surviving issue or parent of the predeceased spouse but the decedent is survived by issue of a parent of the predeceased spouse, to the surviving issue of the parents or either of them. They take equally if they are all of the same degree of kinship to the predeceased spouse, but if of unequal degree, those of more remote degree take in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 240 (discussed in § 458D.78[14]).

- If the decedent is not survived by issue, parent, or issue of a parent of the predeceased spouse, to the decedent's next of kin in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 6402 (see Prob. Code § 6402(f), discussed in § 458D.78[12]).

- If the portion of the decedent's estate attributable to the decedent's predeceased spouse would otherwise escheat to the state because there is no kin of the decedent to take under Prob. Code § 6402, the portion of the decedent's estate attributable to the predeceased spouse passes to thepredeceased spouse's next of kin, who will take in the same manner as the next of kin of the decedent under Prob. Code § 6402.

Under Prob. Code § 6402.5(b), the claimant heir bears the burden of proof to show the exact personal property to be disposed of to the heir [Prob. Code § 6402.5(c)].

The term "personal property," as used in Prob. Code § 6402.5(b), means the personal property in which there is a written record of title or ownership and the aggregate value of which is $10,000 or more [Prob. Code § 6402.5(e)].

[c] Portion of Estate Attributable to Predeceased Spouse

For the purpose of distributing that portion of the decedent's estate that is attributable to his or her predeceased spouse, the term "portion of the decedent's estate attributable to the decedent's predeceased spouse" means all of the following property in the decedent's estate [Prob. Code § 6402.5(f)]:

- One half of the community property in existence at the time of the predeceased spouse's death.

- One half of any community property, in existence at the time of the predeceased spouse's death, that was given to the decedent by the predeceased spouse by way of gift, descent, or devise.

- That portion of any community property in which the predeceased spouse had any incident of ownership and that vested in the decedent on the death of the predeceased spouse by right of survivorship.

- Any separate property of the predeceased spouse that came to the decedent by gift, descent, or devise of the predeceased spouse, or that vested in the decedent on the predeceased spouse's death by right of survivorship.

[d] Quasi-Community Property

For the purposes of Prob. Code § 6402.5, quasi-community property (defined in Prob. Code § 66) is treated in the same manner as community property (defined in Prob. Code § 28) [Prob. Code § 6402.5(g)].

[e] Inheritance by Afterborn Relatives of Predeceased Spouse

Relatives of the predeceased spouse conceived before the decedent's death but born thereafter inherit as if they had been born in decedent's lifetime [Prob. Code § 6402.5(h)(1)].

[f] Inheritance by Person Related Through Two Lines of Relationship

A person who is related to the predeceased spouse through two lines of relationship is entitled to only a single share based on the relationship that would entitle the person to the larger share [Prob. Code § 6402.5(h)(2)].

[14] Distribution to Issue of Unequal Degree

When a statute calls for property to be distributed or taken in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 240, the property must be divided into as many equal shares as there are living members of the nearest generation of issue then living and deceased members of that generation who leave issue then living, each living member of the nearest generation of issue then living receiving one share and the share of each deceased member of that generation who leaves issue then living being divided in the same manner among his or her then living issue [Prob. Code § 240]. Distribution of an intestate decedent's estate cannot be limited to surviving first cousins and the children of predeceased first cousins while excluding grandchildren of predeceased first cousins because the statutes do not limit the surviving issue of a predeceased heir entitled to inherit to the first generation. Rather, the surviving issue includes all lineal descendents of all generations [Estate of Beckel (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 34, 38, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 890] .

For example, in distributing the estate of a decedent who died intestate and who was not survived by any children, parents, siblings, grandparents, aunts, or uncles, but who was survived by four material first cousins and the issue of 14 predeceased paternal first cousins, the court properly divided the decedent's estate into 18 shares and distributed 4/18ths of the estate to the first cousins and 14/18ths of the estate to the decedent's relatives who were the issue of the 14 deceased paternal first cousins. The paternal first cousins were not of a different generation of issue by reason of being descendants of a different grandparent; the degree of the grandparents' issue is measured by their degree of kinship to the decedent, not their degree of kinship to the grandparents [see Estate of McCrary (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 100, 102-105, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504 (rejecting contention of maternal first cousins that they were entitled to entire estate, and that nothing should have been awarded to more remote relatives, because first cousins were nearest generation of issue then living from any of decedent's grandparents)].

Prob. Code § 240 applies to decedents who die on or after January 1, 1985; if the decedent died before that date, prior law continues to apply [Prob. Code § 241].

[15] Escheat in Absence of Heirs

If there is no taker of the intestate estate under the provisions of Prob. Code §§ 6400-6455, the property escheats to the estate as provided in Prob. Code §§ 6800-6806 [Prob. Code § 6404].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewReal Property LawOwnership & TransferDeath & IncapacityIntestate Succession

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.79

§ 458D.79 Disclaimer of Interest in Estate

A beneficiary may disclaim any interest in an estate, in whole or in part, by filing a disclaimer as provided in Prob. Code §§ 260-295 [Prob. Code § 275]. A spendthrift provision or similar restriction has no effect on a beneficiary's right to disclaim [Prob. Code § 286]. A disclaimer on behalf of a conservatee is made by the conservator of the estate [Prob. Code § 276]. A disclaimer on behalf of a minor is made by the guardian of the minor's estate, or, if none, a guardian ad litem of the minor [Prob. Code § 277(a)]. A disclaimer on behalf of a decedent ismade by the decedent's personal representative [Prob. Code § 277(b)]. A disclaimer on behalf of a minor or decedent is not effective unless made pursuant to a court order obtained under Prob. Code § 277(c)-(f) [Prob. Code § 277(a), (b)].

The disclaimer must be in writing and signed by the disclaimant, identify the creator of the interest, describe the interest to be disclaimed, and state the disclaimer and the extent of it [Prob. Code § 278]. The disclaimer must be filed within a reasonable time after the person able to disclaim acquires knowledge of the interest [Prob. Code § 279(a)]. The disclaimer of an interest created under a will or by intestate succession is conclusively presumed to have been filed within a reasonable time if it is filed within nine months after the death of the creator of the interest or within nine months after the interest becomes indefeasibly vested, whichever occurs later [Prob. Code § 279(b)(1), (2)].

Unless the creator of the interest provides for a specific disposition in the event of a disclaimer, the interest disclaimed shall descend, go, be distributed, or continue to be held (1) as to a present interest, as if the disclaimant had predeceased the creator of the interest; or (2) as to a future interest, as if the disclaimant had died before the event determining that the taker of the interest had become finally ascertained and the taker's interest indefeasibly vested. A disclaimer relates back for all purposes to the date of the death of the creator of the disclaimed interest or the determinative event, as the case may be [Prob. Code § 282(a); for when the beneficiary is not treated as having predeceased the decedent, see Prob. Code § 282(b)].

A disclaimer, when effective, is irrevocable and binding on the beneficiary and all persons claiming by, through, or under the beneficiary, including the beneficiary's creditors [Prob. Code § 281].

A beneficiary who has accepted an interest cannot thereafter disclaim it [Prob. Code § 285(a); see Prob. Code § 285(b)

(acts constituting acceptance)].

A person who could file a disclaimer may instead file a written waiver as set forth in Prob. Code § 284.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsBeneficiariesDisclaimers & Renunciations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.80

§ 458D.80 Rules of Construction of Will

[1] Generally

The Probate Code sets forth general rules for the construction of instruments [see Prob. Code § 21101 et seq.]. These rules apply broadly to wills, trusts, deeds, and other instruments [Prob. Code § 21101].

The first and most important rule for the construction of a will is that the intention of the testator as expressed in the will controls the legal effect of the dispositions made in the will [Prob. Code § 21102(a)]. Accordingly, the other rules apply only when the intention of the testator is not otherwise indicated by the will [Prob. Code § 21102(b)]. These statutory provisions do not, however, limit the use of extrinsic evidence, to the extent otherwise authorized by law, to determine the transferor's intent [Prob. Code § 21102(c)].

Under the Probate Code, all parts of a will are to be construed in relation to each other and so as, if possible, to form a consistent whole. If the meaning of any part of a will is ambiguous or doubtful, it may be explained by any reference to or recital of that part in another part of the instrument [Prob. Code § 21121]. The words of a will must be interpreted in such a way as to give some effect to every expression in the instrument, and not so that any of the expressions will become inoperative. Preference must be given to an interpretation that will prevent intestacy or failure of a transfer, rather than one that will result in an intestacy or failure of a transfer [Prob. Code § 21120].

The words of a will are to be given their ordinary and grammatical meaning, unless the intention to use them in another sense is clear and their intended meaning can be ascertained. Technical words are not necessary to give effect to a disposition in a will. However, technical words are to be considered as having been used in their technical sense unless the context clearly indicates a contrary intention or it satisfactorily appears that the will was drawn solely by the testator and the testator was unacquainted with the technical sense [Prob. Code § 21122].

Words used in a will are ordinarily given the same effect as by statute or case law, in the absence of a showing of contrary intent [Estate of Furia (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1, 3, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384] . For example, when there is no evidence that the testator used the word "issue" in the will with the intention of including or excluding any particular persons, the court will give the term its statutory meaning [Estate of Furia (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1, 3, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384] .

As an illustration of application of the foregoing rules, the statutory rules of construction were applied in one case to determine what the phrase "my money" meant in the dispositive provisions of a holographic will. The court concluded that it meant all of the testator's financial assets (including treasury bills, money market accounts, and savings bonds), and not merely his bank accounts, when this construction would avoid intestacy, was in accord with the general scheme of the will to benefit the two beneficiaries named in the will, and was also in accord with the testator's lack of legal sophistication, as shown in other parts of the will, supporting the conclusion that the testator used the term "my money" in its most flexible sense to include all of his financial assets [Estate of Goyette (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 67, 71-72, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 760] .

[2] Devises Classified

The Probate Code recognizes six classifications of devises (referred to in the code as "at-death transfers") [Prob. Code § 21117; see Prob. Code § 21101 (ruleapplicable to transfers under wills, trusts, deed, and other instruments)]:

- A specific devise is a transfer of specifically identifiable property [Prob. Code § 21117(a)].

- A general devise is a transfer from the general assets of the decedent's estate that does not give specific property [Prob. Code § 21117(b)].

- A demonstrative devise is a general devise that specifies the fund or property from which the transfer is primarily to be made [Prob. Code § 21117(c)].

- A general pecuniary devise is a devise that is expressly stated as a fixed dollar amount or is a dollar amount determinable by the provisions of the will [Prob. Code §§ 21117(d), 21118(b)].

- An annuity is a general pecuniary devise that is payable periodically [Prob. Code § 21117(e)].

- A residuary devise is a transfer of property that remains after all specific and general devises have been satisfied [Prob. Code § 21117(f)].

[3] Law Governing Meaning and Legal Effect of Disposition

The meaning and legal effect of a disposition in a will is determined by the local law of a particular state selected by the testator in the will, unless the application of that law would be contrary to the rights of the surviving spouse to community and quasi-community property, to the family protection provisions of the Probate Code [Prob. Code § 21103; see Prob. Code § 6500 et seq. (family protection)], or to any other public policy of California applicable to the disposition [Prob. Code § 21103].

[4] Property Passing by Will

For most purposes, a will is effective to pass all property the testator owns at death, including property acquired after execution of the will [Prob. Code § 21105].

This rule, however, is subject to the following exceptions:

- A general residuary clause in a will, or a will making a general disposition of all of the testator's property, is not effective to exercise a power of appointment held by the testator unless specific reference is made to the power or there is some other indication of intent to exercise the power [Prob. Code §§ 641(a), 21105; see Prob. Code § 641(b)].

- If a power of appointment existing at the donee's death but created after the execution of the donee's will is exercised by the will, the appointment is not effective if the creating instrument manifests an intent that the power may not be exercised by a will previously executed, or if the will manifests an intent not to exercise a power subsequently acquired [Prob. Code §§ 642, 21105].

[5] Direction to Convert Real Property to Money

Absent a contrary intention indicated by the will, if the will directs the conversion of real property into money at the testator's death, the real property and its proceeds are deemed to be personal property from the time of the testator's death [Prob. Code § 21107; see Prob. Code § 21102 (testator's intent controlling)].

[6] Common Law Rule of Worthier Title

The common law doctrine of worthier title, under which a testator cannot devise an interest to the testator's own heirs, has been abolished in California, as has the presumption (or rule of interpretation) that a transferor does not intend, by a transfer to the transferor's own heirs or next of kin, to transfer an interest to those heirs [Prob. Code § 21108]. Rather, the Probate Code provides that the meaning of a transfer of a legal or equitable interest to a transferor's own heirs or next of kin must be determined by the general rules applicable to the interpretation of instruments [Prob. Code § 21108 (rule applicable to all cases in which final judgment has not been entered as of September 18, 1959)].

[7] Death of Devisee

A devisee who does not survive the testator, or who does not survive until a future time required by the will, does not take under the will [Prob. Code § 21109(a); see Prob. Code § 21101 (rules applicable to wills, trusts, deeds, and other instruments)]. Unless the will provides otherwise, a devisee will be presumed not to have survived until a future time required by the will unless there is clear and convincing evidence that he or she did in fact survive until that time [Prob. Code § 21109(b)].

Under the so-called "anti-lapse statute" [see Prob. Code § 21110], if a devise is made to "kindred" of the testator (or to "kindred" of a surviving, deceased, or former spouse of the testator), and if the "kindred" devisee is dead when the will is executed, is treated as if he or she predeceased the testator, fails to survive the testator, or fails to survive until a future time required by the will, the issue of the deceased devisee take in his or her place in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 240 [Prob. Code § 21110(a), (c); see Prob. Code § 21101 (rules applicable to wills, trusts, deeds, and other instruments); see also Estate of Mooney (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 654, 663, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 115 (antilapse statute provides that when a bequest to a protected transferee would otherwise lapse due to the transferee's death, that bequest passes by right of representation to his or her descendants)]. However, the issue of the deceased devisee do not take if the will expresses a contrary intention or makes a substitute disposition [Prob. Code § 21110(b), (c)]. For this purpose, a requirement that the initial devisee survive the testator or survive for a specified period of time after the testator's death, or until a future time that is related to the probate of the will orthe administration of the testator's estate, constitutes a contrary intention [Prob. Code § 21110(b); Burkett v. Capovilla (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1444, 1451, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817] .

If a transfer (other than a residuary gift or a transfer of a future interest) fails for any reason, the property is transferred as follows [Prob. Code § 21111(a); see Prob. Code § 21101 (rule applicable to wills, trusts, deeds, and other instruments)]:

(1) If the transferring instrument provides for an alternative disposition in the event the transfer fails, the property is transferred according to the terms of the instrument.

(2) If the transferring instrument does not provide for an alternative disposition but does provide for the transfer of a residue, the property becomes a part of the residue.

(3) If the transferring instrument does not provide for an alternative disposition and does not provide for the transfer of a residue, or if the transfer is itself a residuary gift, the property is transferred to the decedent's estate.

If a residuary gift or a future interest is transferred to two or more persons and the share of a transferee fails for any reason, and no alternative disposition is provided, the share passes to the other transferees in proportion to their other interest in the residuary gift or the future interest [Prob. Code § 21111(b)].

Both provisions of Prob. Code § 21111 are expressly subject to Prob. Code § 21110. A transfer of "all my estate,"or words of similar import, is a residuary gift for purposes of Prob. Code § 21111 [Prob. Code § 21111(c)]. If failure of a future interest results in intestacy, the property passes to the transferor's heirs determined under Prob. Code § 21114, discussed in § 458D.80[9] [Prob. Code § 21111(d)].

For distribution of property when the distributee has died before distribution, see Prob. Code §§ 11801 and 11802, discussed in § 458D.95.

[8] Condition of Death With or Without Issue

Unless the will provides otherwise, a condition in a transfer of a present or future interest that refers to a person's death "with" or "without" issue, or to a person's "having" or "leaving" issue or no issue, or a condition based on words of similar import, is construed to refer to that person's being dead at the time the transfer takes effect in enjoyment and to his or her either having or not having, as the case may be, issue who are alive at the time of enjoyment [Prob. Code § 21112; see Prob. Code § 21102 (testator's intent controlling)].

[9] Devise to Class

If a statute or a will provides for transfer of a present or future interest to, or creates a present or future interest in, a designated person's heirs, heirs at law, next of kin, relatives, family, or words of similar import, the transfer is to the persons, including the state under Prob. Code § 6800, and in the shares that would succeed to the designated person's intestate estate under the intestate succession law of the transferor's domicile, if the designated person died when the transfer is to take effect in enjoyment [Prob. Code § 21114(a)]. If the designated person's surviving spouse is living but is remarried at the time the transfer is to take effect in enjoyment, the surviving spouse is not an heir of the designated person for this purpose [Prob. Code § 21114(a)]. The term "designated person" includes the transferor [Prob. Code § 21114(b)].

A devise of an interest to "children" or "issue" must be interpreted in the light of the statutory definitions of those terms in effect at the time the will is executed. Unless a contrary intention is expressed in the will, if the will makes a devise to "children" or "issue," the testator is presumed to be aware of the public policy reflected in the statutory definitions and to intend that those definitions be followed in the construction of the will. If the statutory definitions are later changed, the will must still be interpreted in light of the statutory definitions in effect at the time the will is executed [Newman v. Wells Fargo Bank (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 126, 136, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 926 P. 2d 969 (statutory definition of child adopted out of natural parent's family in former Prob. Code § 257, repealed 1985, modified after execution of will but before distribution of devise); now see Prob. Code § 6451].

Unless otherwise provided in the will, the following rules apply [Prob. Code § 21115; see Prob. Code § 21102

(testator's intent controlling)]:

- Except as provided below, half-bloods, adopted persons, persons born out of wedlock, stepchildren, foster children, and the issue of all such persons when appropriate to the class, are included in terms of class gift or relationship in accordance with the rules for determining relationship and inheritance rights for purposes of intestate succession.

- In construing a devise by a testator who is not the natural parent, a person born to the natural parent will not be considered the child of that parent unless the person lived while a minor as a regular member of the household of the natural parent or of that parent's parent, brother, sister, spouse, or surviving spouse. In construing a devise by the testator who is not the adoptive parent, a person adopted by the adoptive parent will not be considered the child of that parent unless the person lived while a minor (either before or after the adoption) as a regular member of the household of the adopting parent or of that parent's parent, brother, sister, or surviving spouse [see In re Estate of DeLoreto (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1048-1053, 118 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1053, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 513 (adopted adult children of beneficiary of father's trust were not members of class of settlor's grandchildren whowere trust beneficiaries); see also Ehrenclou v. MacDonald (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 364, 373, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 411 (person adopted by adoptive parent in another state was entitled to inherit parent's distributive share of decedent's estate as parent's "living lawful issue" only if out-of-state adoption decree created parent-child relationship between them)].

- The preceding two requirments also apply in determining (1) persons who would be kindred of the testator or kindred of a surviving, deceased, or former spouse of the testator under Prob. Code § 21110 (discussed in § 458D.80[7]); (2) persons to be included as issue of a deceased devisee under Prob. Code § 21110; or (3) persons who would be the testator's or other designated person's heirs in Prob. Code § 21114, discussed above.

The rules for determining intestate succession under these provisions are those in effect at the time the transfer is to take effect in enjoyment [Prob. Code § 21115(d)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawWillsInterpretationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsInterpretationRules of ConstructionGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsInterpretationRules of ConstructionConstruction Favoring TestacyEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsInterpretationRules of ConstructionStatutory RulesEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsInterpretationTestator's IntentGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsInterpretationTestator's IntentExtrinsic Evidence

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.81

§ 458D.81 Rules for Distribution Under Will or Trust

If a will, trust, or other instrument calls for property to be distributed or taken "in the manner provided in Section 240 of the Probate Code," or if a will, trust, or other instrument that expresses no contrary intention provides for issue or descendants to take without specifying the manner, the property to be distributed must be distributed in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 240 (discussed in § 458D.78[14]) [Prob. Code § 245(a)]. Use of the words "per capita," when living members of the designated class are not all of the same generation, or contradictory wording such as "per capita and per stirpes" or "equally and by right of representation," standing alone, is not an expression of contrary intention [Prob. Code § 245(b)].

If a will, trust, or other instrument calls for property to be distributed or taken "in the manner provided in Section 246 of the Probate Code," the property to be distributed is divided into as many equal shares as there are living children of the designated ancestor, if any, and deceased children who leave issue then living. Each living child of the designated ancestor is allocated one share, and the share of each deceased child who leaves issue then living is divided in the same manner [Prob. Code § 246(a)]. Unless the will, trust, or other instrument expressly provides otherwise, if a will, trust, or other instrument executed on or after January 1, 1986, calls for property to be distributed or taken "per stirpes," "by representation," or "by right of representation," the property must be distributed in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 246(a) [Prob. Code § 246(b)]. Additionally, if a will, trust, or other instrument executed before January 1, 1986, calls for property to be distributed or taken "per stirpes," "by representation," or "by right of representation," the property must be distributed in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 246(a), absent a contrary intent of the testator or trustor [Prob. Code § 246(c)].

If a will, trust, or other instrument calls for property to be distributed or taken "in the manner provided in Section 247 of the Probate Code," the property to be distributed is divided into as many equal shares as there are living members of the nearest generation of issue then living and deceased members of that generation who leave issue then living. Each living member of the nearest generation of issue then living is allocated one share, and the remaining shares, if any, are combined and then divided and allocated in the same manner among the remaining issue as if the issue already allocated a share and their descendants were then deceased [Prob. Code § 247(a)]. Unless the will, trust, or other instrument expressly provides otherwise, if a will, trust, or other instrument executed on or after January 1, 1986, calls for property to be distributed or taken "per capita at each generation," the property must be distributed in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 247(a) [Prob. Code § 247(b)]. Additionally, if a will, trust, or other instrument executed before January 1, 1986, calls for property to be distributed or taken "per capita at each generation," the property must be distributed in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 247(a), absent a contrary intent of the transferor [Prob. Code § 247(c)].

On distribution involving a testamentary trust, the court is required to do all of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.650(a)]:

- Determine whether or not a valid trust has been created by the will.
- Determine the terms of the trust.
- Order distribution of the trust property to the trustee.

The order for distribution is required to incorporate the terms of the trust, to give effect to the conditions existing at the time distribution is ordered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.650(b)]. The pertinent provisions are to be stated in the present tense and in the third person, instead of quoting the will verbatim [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.650(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawTrustsGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawTrustsTestamentary Trusts

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.82

§ 458D.82 Exoneration and Ademption

[1] Governing Law

Exoneration and ademption are governed by Prob. Code §§ 21131-21139, which apply when the testator's intention is not otherwise indicated by the will [see Prob. Code §§ 21101, 21102].

The provisions governing ademption, Prob. Code §§ 21133-21135, are not exhaustive, and nothing in those sections is intended to increase the incidence of ademption under California law [Prob. Code § 21139; see Estate of Worthy (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 760, 765, 252 Cal. Rptr. 462] .

[2] No Exoneration

A specific devise passes the property transferred subject to any mortgage, deed of trust, or other lien existing at the date of the testator's death, without right of exoneration, even when there is a general directive in the will to pay the testator's debts [Prob. Code § 21131; see Prob. Code § 21101 (rule applicable to wills, trusts, deeds, and other instruments); see also Estate of Worthy (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 760, 767, 252 Cal. Rptr. 462] .

[3] Ademption by Partial or Total Extinction

[a] Change in Form of Securities Specifically Devised

If the testator executes a will that makes an at-death transfer of securities and the testator then owned securities meeting the description in the will, the devise includes additional securities the testator owned at death to the extent the testator acquired them after executing the will as a result of his or her ownership of the described securities [Prob. Code § 21132(a)]. The securities must be:

- Securities of the same organization acquired by reason of action initiated by the organization or any successor, related, or acquiring organization, excluding any acquired by exercise of purchase options [Prob. Code § 21132(a)(1)].

- Securities of another organization acquired as a result of a merger, consolidation, reorganization, or other distribution by the organization or any successor, related, or acquiring organization [Prob. Code § 21132(a)(2)].

- Securities of the same organization acquired as a result of a reinvestment plan [Prob. Code § 21132(a)(3)].

Cash distributions before death with respect to a described security are not part of the devise [Prob. Code § 21132(b)].

[b] By Sale or Taking by Eminent Domain of Specifically Devised Property, or Obtaining Property as Result of Foreclosure of Security for Specifically Devised Obligation

A recipient of an at-death transfer of a specific gift has a right to the specifically given property, to the extent the transferor owned the property at the time the gift takes effect in possession or enjoyment, and all of the following:

- Any balance of the purchase price (together with any security agreement) owing from a purchaser to the transferor at the time the gift takes effect by reason of a sale of the property [Prob. Code § 21133(a)].

- Any amount of an eminent domain award for the taking of property unpaid at the time the gift takes effect [Prob. Code § 21133(b)].

- Any proceeds unpaid at the time the gift takes effect on fire or casualty insurance on or other recovery for injury to the property [Prob. Code § 21133(c)].

- Property owned by the transferor at the time the gift takes effect and acquired as a result of foreclosure, or obtained in place of foreclosure, of the security interest for a specifically given obligation [Prob. Code § 21133(d)].

If, after the execution of the instrument of gift, specifically given property is sold or mortgaged by a conservator or an agent acting within the authority of a durable power of attorney for an incapacitated principal, the transferee of the specific gift has the right to a general pecuniary gift equal to the net sale price of, or the amount of the unpaid loan on, the property [Prob. Code § 21134(a)]. If an eminent domain award for the taking of specifically given property is paid to a conservator or agent acting within the authority of a durable power of attorney for an incapacitated principal, or if the proceeds on fire or casualty insurance on, or recovery for injury to, specifically given property are paid to a conservator or agent acting within the authority of a durable power of attorney for an incapacitated principal, the recipient of the specific gift has the right to a general pecuniary gift equal to the eminent domain award or the insurance proceeds or recovery [Prob. Code § 21134(b)]. These provisions do not apply with respect to a conservator if, after the sale, mortgage, condemnation, fire, casualty, or recovery, the conservatorship is terminated and the transferor survives the termination by one year [Prob. Code § 21134(c)]. For purposes of these provisions, the term "incapacitated principal" means a principal who is an incapacitated person, no adjudication of incapacity before death is necessary, and the acts of an agent within the authority of a durable power of attorney are presumed to be for an incapacitated principal [Prob. Code § 21134(d)]. The right of the transferee of a specific gift under these provisions must be reduced by any right the transferee has under Prob. Code § 21133 [Prob. Code § 21134(e)].

[4] Ademption by Satisfaction

Property given by a transferor during his or her lifetime to a person is treated as a satisfaction of an at-death transfer to that person, in whole or in part, only if one of the following conditions is satisfied:

- The instrument provides for deduction of the lifetime gift from the at-death transfer [Prob. Code § 21135(a)(1)].

- The transferor declares in a contemporaneous writing that the gift is in satisfaction of the at-death transfer or that its value is to be deducted fromthe value of that transfer [Prob. Code § 21135(a)(2)].

- The transferee acknowledges in writing that the gift is in satisfaction of the at-death transfer or that its value is to be deducted from the value of that transfer [Prob. Code § 21135(a)(3)].

- The property given is the same property that is the subject of a specific gift to that person [Prob. Code § 21135(a)(4)].

For the purpose of partial satisfaction, property given during the testator's lifetime is valued as of the time the devisee came into possession or enjoyment of the property or as of the time of death of the testator, whichever occurs first [Prob. Code § 21135(b); see Prob. Code § 21101 (rule applicable to wills, trusts, deeds, and other instruments)]. However, if the value of the gift was expressed in the contemporaneous writing of the testator, or in an acknowledgment of the devisee made contemporaneously with the gift, that value is conclusive in the division and distribution of the estate [Prob. Code § 21135(c); see Prob. Code § 21101 (rule applicable to wills, trusts, deeds, and other instruments)].

If the transferee fails to survive the transferor, the gift is treated as a full or partial satisfaction of the gift in applying Prob. Code §§ 21110 and 21111 [see discussion in § 458D.80[7]], unless the transferor's contemporaneous writing provides otherwise [Prob. Code § 21135(d)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsFailure of BequestsAdemptions

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.83

§ 458D.83 Abatement

[1] Generally

Except as provided in Probate Code §§ 20100-20255 (proration of taxes) and 21600-21630 (inheritance rights of omitted spouses and children), shares of beneficiaries abate as provided in Prob. Code §§ 21400-21406 for all purposes, including payment of the debts, expenses, and charges specified in Prob. Code § 11420, satisfaction of gifts, and payment of expenses on specifically devised property pursuant to Prob. Code § 12002, and without any priority as between real and personal property [Prob. Code § 21401].

However, notwithstanding any other provision of Prob. Code §§ 21400-21406, if the instrument provides for abatement, or if the transferor's plan or the purpose of the transfer would be defeated by abatement, the shares of the beneficiaries abate as is necessary to effectuate the instrument, plan, or purpose [Prob. Code § 21400].

Prob. Code §§ 21401-21406 apply to a gift made on or after July 1, 1989. Gifts made before that date are governed by the law that would have applied had Prob. Code §§ 21401-21406 not been enacted [Prob. Code § 21406(a)]. For this purpose, a gift by will is made on the date of the decedent's death [Prob. Code § 21406(b)].

[2] Order of Abatement

Shares of beneficiaries abate in the following order [Prob. Code § 21402(a)]:

(1) Property not disposed of by the instrument.

(2) Residuary gifts.

(3) General gifts to persons other than the transferor's relatives.

(4) General gifts to the transferor's relatives.

(5) Specific gifts to persons other than the transferor's relatives.

(6) Specific gifts to the transferor's relatives.

As used in above, a "relative" of the transferor is a person to whom property would pass from the transferor under Prob. Code § 6401 or 6402 (intestate succession) if the transferor died intestate and there were no other persons having priority [Prob. Code § 21402(b)].

General statements in a will that the executor must pay expenses out of the testator's estate are not sufficiently specific to override the abatement order established by Prob. Code § 21402 [Burkett v. Capovilla (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1444, 1452, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817] .

[3] Abatement Within Classes

Shares of beneficiaries abate pro rata within each class specified in Prob. Code § 21402, discussed in § 458D.83[2]. [Prob. Code § 21403(a)]. However, gifts of annuities and demonstrative gifts are treated as specific gifts to the extent that they are satisfied out of the fund or property specified in the gift and as general gifts to the extent that they are satisfied out of property other than the fund or property specified in the gift [Prob. Code § 21403(b)].

[4] Exoneration of Specific Gift From Mortgage, Deed of Trust, or Lien

If an instrument requires property that is the subject of a specific gift to be exonerated from a mortgage, deed of trust, or other lien, a specific gift of other property does not abate for the purpose of exonerating the encumbered property [Prob. Code § 21404].

[5] Contribution in Case of Abatement

In any case in which there is abatement when a distribution is made during estate administration, the court must fix the amount each distributee must contribute for abatement. The personal representative must reduce the distributee's share by that amount [Prob. Code § 21405].

If a specific gift must be abated, the beneficiary of the specific gift may satisfythe contribution for abatement out of the beneficiary's property other than the property that is the subject of the specific gift [Prob. Code § 21405(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsFailure of BequestsAbatements

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.84

§ 458D.84 Gift in Will to Witness

[1] In General

Unless there are at least two other subscribing witnesses who are disinterested witnesses, a devise to a subscribing witness creates a presumption that the witness procured the devise by duress, menace, fraud, or undue influence. This presumption is one affecting the burden of proof [Prob. Code § 6112(c)]. The presumption does not apply, however, when the witness is a person to whom the devise is made solely in a fiduciary capacity [Prob. Code § 6112(c); see Estate of Tkachuk (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 14, 19-20, 139 Cal. Rptr. 55 (decided under former Prob. Code § 51)]. Even though fraud or undue influence is not presumed in the latter case, it may still be proven as a question of fact [see Cal. Law Revision Comm'n Comment to Prob. Code § 6112; see also Prob. Code § 6112(d)].

If a devise made by the will to an interested witness fails because the presumption established by Prob. Code § 6112(c) applies to the devise and the witness fails to rebut the presumption, the interested witness takes the proportion of the devise made to the witness in the will that does not exceed the share of the estate that would have been distributed to the witness if the will had not been established. However, nothing in Prob. Code § 6112(d) affects the law that applies when it is established that the witness procured a devise by duress, menace, fraud, or undue influence [Prob. Code § 6112(d)].

[2] Effect of No Contest Clause in Will

The purpose of a no contest clause is to discourage will contests by imposing a penalty of forfeiture against any beneficiary who challenges the will [Estate of Gonzalez (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th, 1296, 1302, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 332] . A no contest clause also is known as an "in terrorem" clause.

A no contest clause in a will creates a condition on the gifts and dispositions provided for in the instrument [Burch v. George (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 246, 254, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 866 P.2d 92 ; Estate of Lindstrom (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 375, 381, 236 Cal. Rptr. 376] . In essence, a no contest clause in a will conditions the rights of the devisees named in the will to take the devises provided for in the will on their acquiescence in its terms. To the extent that a particular devisee acquiesces in those terms, the devisee is entitled to take the devise; to the extent that the devisee does not acquiesce, the devisee cannot take [see Burch v. George (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 246, 254, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 866 P.2d 92] .

No contest clauses are valid and enforceable in California [Burch v. George (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 246, 254, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 866 P.2d 92] . The rules governing no contest clauses were significantly revised effective January 1, 2010 [Prob. Code § 21315; see Prob. Code §§ 21310-21315]. The revised statute governs the enforcement of no contest clauses in "protected instruments" [see Prob. Code § 21310(e) (definition)] that are filed on or after January 1, 2010, whenever executed, provided that the protected instrument became irrevocable on or after January 1, 2001 [Prob. Code § 21315]. Common law continues to govern no contest clauses in all other instruments [Prob. Code § 21315].

Under the revised rules, a no contest clause is only enforceable in three specific circumstances [Prob. Code § 21311(a)]:

- A direct contest brought without probable cause.
- A challenge to the transfer of property (provided the no contest clause provides).
- The filing of a creditor's claim (provided the no contest clause provides).

The provisions of Prob. Code §§ 21310-21315 apply notwithstanding any contrary provisions in an instrument [Prob. Code § 21314].

For further discussion of the enforceability of no contest clauses, see Ch. 444, Probate: Will Contests .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawWill ContestsUndue InfluenceGeneral OverviewEvidenceInferences & PresumptionsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.85

§ 458D.85 Omitted Spouse

[1] Statutory Share of Decedent's Estate

If a decedent fails to provide in a testamentary instrument for a spouse who married the decedent after the execution of all of the decedent's testamentary instruments, the omitted spouse generally will be entitled to receive a share of the decedent's estate prescribed by statute [Prob. Code § 21610; but see Prob. Code § 21611 (no share if spouse intentionally omitted or otherwise provided for) and discussion below]. The share consists of all of the following [Prob. Code § 21610]:

- The one half of the community property that belongs to the decedent under Prob. Code § 100(a) (unless the spouses agreed to a non pro rata division of their community property [see Prob. Code § 100(b)]).

- The one half of the quasi-community property that belongs to the decedent under Prob. Code § 101(a) (unless the spouses agreed to a non pro rata division of their quasi-community property [see Prob. Code § 101(b)]).

- A share of the decedent's separate property equal in value to the share the spouse would have received if the decedent had died without having executed a testamentary instrument, but in no event is the share to be more than one half of the value of the separate property in the estate.

For purposes of this rule, a "testamentary instrument" is either a will or a trust instrument that was executed by the decedent and that became irrevocable on the decedent's death [Prob. Code § 21601(a)] and "estate" is the decedent's probate estate and all property held in any revocable trust executed by the decedent that became irrevocable on the decedent's death [Prob. Code § 21601(b)].

[2] Exceptions; When Spouse Not Entitled to Share of Estate

Notwithstanding the general rule discussed in § 458D.85[1], the spouse is not entitled to receive a share of the estate if any of the following is established [Prob. Code § 21611]:

- The decedent's failure to provide for the spouse in the decedent's testamentary instruments was intentional and that intention appears from the testamentary instruments.

- The decedent provided for the spouse by transfer outside of the estate passing by the decedent's testamentary instruments and the intention that the transfer be in lieu of a provision in those instruments is shown by statements of the decedent or from the amount of the transfer or by other evidence.

- The spouse made a valid agreement waiving the right to share in the decedent's estate [see Estate of Butler (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 311, 315-317, 252 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

[3] Satisfaction of Spouse's Share

In satisfying the omitted spouse's share, the share must be taken first from any part of the decedent's estate that is not disposed of by will or trust [Prob. Code § 21612(a)(1); but see Prob. Code § 21612(b) (exception to rule) and discussion below]. If that is not sufficient, as much as may be necessary to satisfy the share must be taken from all beneficiaries of the decedent's testamentary instruments in proportion to the value they may respectively receive [Prob. Code § 21612(a)(2); but see Prob. Code § 21612(b) (exception to rule) and discussion below]. This value must be determined as of the date of the decedent's death [Prob. Code § 21612(a)(2)]. However, if the obvious intention of the decedent in relation to some specific gift or devise or other provision of a testamentary instrument would be defeated by satisfying the omitted spouse's share in this way, the specific devise or gift or provision may be exempted from the apportionment and a different apportionment, consistent with the decedent's intention, may be adopted [Prob. Code § 21612(b)].

[4] Application of Rules; Prior Law

The foregoing rules apply only if the decedent died on or after January 1, 1998 [Prob. Code § 21630]. If the decedent died before January 1, 1998, but on or after January 1, 1985, former Prob. Code §§ 6560-6562 (repealed effective January 1, 1998 by Stats. 1997, ch. 724, § 34) govern the rights of omitted spouses.

Although these rules were substantially similar to the post-1998 rules described above, they applied only when the decedent failed to provide for a spouse married after the execution of a will that did not provide for the spouse [see former Prob. Code § 6560]. The rules applicable on and after January 1, 1998, differ from the former rules in that they apply not just when the decedent failed to provide for the spouse in a will, but also when the decedent failed to provide for the spouse in a trust instrument that becomes irrevocable on the decedent's death [see Prob. Code § 21610]. Conversely, an intention not to provide for the surviving spouse, under the rules applicable on and after January 1, 1998, may shown not just by the decedent's will, but also by a trust instrument executed by the decedent that becomes irrevocable on the decedent's death [see Prob. Code § 21610]. If the decedent died before January 1, 1985, former Prob. Code § 70 (repealed effective January 1, 1985) governs the rights of omitted spouses [see former Prob. Code § 6580 (repealed effective January 1, 1998)].

[5] Public Policy

The rules protecting the inheritance rights of omitted spouses are declarative of public policy in California [Estate of Butler (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 311, 315, 252 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral

OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationAllowancesSpousesEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.86

§ 458D.86 Effect of 1981-1984 Property Settlement Renouncing Right to Inherit

Former Prob. Code § 80(a) provided that if, after executing a will or codicil, the testator's marriage is dissolved or declared a nullity by a final judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction, and if the testator and his or her former spouse have executed a property settlement agreement waiving and renouncing all rights to inherit the estate of the other at the other's death, or to receive any property of the other under a will executed prior to the agreement, the former spouse of the testator and the lineal descendants of the former spouse of the testator are deemed to have predeceased the testator for purposes of the will or codicil, unless the will or codicil expressly provides otherwise. For purposes of the above provision, lineal descendants include all lineal descendants of the former spouse of the testator who are not also lineal descendants of the testator [former Prob. Code § 80(a)].

Former Prob. Code § 80(a) apply only to wills or codicils executed on or after January 1, 1981, and do not apply if the testator's death occurs during a remarriage to the former spouse [former Prob. Code § 80(b), (c)]. Wills or codicils executed on or after January 1, 1985, must comply with the requirements of Prob. Code §§ 140-147 [see Prob. Code §§ 147(a); see also discussion in § 458D.87]. However, nothing in Prob. Code §§ 140-147 affects the validity or effect of any waiver, agreement, or property settlement made before January 1, 1985, and the validity and effect of such a waiver, agreement, or property settlement will continue to be determined by the law applicable to the waiver, agreement, or property settlement before that date [Prob. Code § 147(b)]. Thus, if a decedent executed a property settlement agreement during the period 1981-1984, the provisions of former Prob. Code § 80(a) continue to apply to that agreement.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsCodicilsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.87

§ 458D.87 Surviving Spouse's Waiver of Rights at Death of Spouse

[1] Applicability of Statutory Provisions

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 147(c) and (d), discussed below, a waiver, agreement, or property settlement made after December 31, 1984, is invalid insofar as it affects the rights listed in Prob. Code § 141(a) unless it satisfies the requirements of Prob. Code §§ 140-147 [Prob. Code § 147(a)].

Prob. Code § 147(c) provides that nothing in Prob. Code §§ 140-147 affects the validity or effect of any premarital property settlement, whether made before, on, or after January 1, 1985, insofar as the premarital property settlement affectsthe rights listed in Prob. Code § 141(a), and the validity and effect of such a premarital property agreement are determined by the law otherwise applicable to the premarital property agreement [Prob. Code § 147(c)]. Nothing in Prob. Code § 147(c) limits the enforceability under Prob. Code §§ 140-147 of a waiver, made under Prob. Code §§ 140-147 by a person intending to marry, which is otherwise enforceable under Prob. Code §§ 140-147 [Prob. Code § 147(c)].

Prob. Code § 147(d) provides that nothing in Prob. Code §§ 140-147 limits any right one spouse has to revoke a consent or election to disposition of his or her half of the community or quasi-community property under the will of the other spouse [Prob. Code § 147(d)].

Nothing in Prob. Code §§ 140-147 affects the validity or effect of any waiver, agreement, or property settlement made before January 1, 1985, and the validity and effect of such a waiver, agreement, or property settlement will continue to be determined by the law applicable to the waiver, agreement, or property settlement before January 1, 1985 [Prob. Code § 147(b)].

[2] Waiver Defined

As used in Prob. Code §§ 140-147, "waiver" means a waiver by the surviving spouse of any of the rights listed in Prob. Code § 141(a) (discussed in § 458D.87[3], whether signed before or during marriage [Prob. Code § 140].

[3] Rights That May Be Waived

The right of a surviving spouse to any of the following may be waived in whole or in part by a waiver under Prob. Code §§ 140-147 [Prob. Code § 141(a)]:

- Property that would pass from the decedent by intestate succession.
- Property that would pass from the decedent by testamentary disposition in a will executed before the waiver.
- A probate homestead.
- The right to have exempt property set aside.
- Family allowance.
- The right to have an estate set aside under Prob. Code §§ 6600-6615 (relating to small estates).
- The right to elect to take community or quasi-community property against the decedent's will.
- The right to take the statutory share of an omitted spouse under Prob. Code §§ 21610-21612.
- The right to be appointed as the personal representative of the decedent's estate.
- An interest in property that is the subject of a nonprobate transfer on death under Prob. Code §§ 5000-5032.

Nothing in Prob. Code §§ 140-147 affects or limits the waiver or manner of waiver of rights other than those referred to in Prob. Code § 141(a), including, but not limited to the right to property that would pass from the decedent to the surviving spouse by nonprobate transfer on the death of the decedent, such as the survivorship interest under a joint tenancy, a Totten trust account, or a pay-on-death account [Prob. Code § 141(b)].

[4] Effect of Language Waiving All Rights

Unless the waiver or property settlement provides to the contrary, a waiver under Prob. Code §§ 140-147 of "all rights" (or equivalent language) in the property or estate of a present or prospective spouse, or a complete property settlement entered into after or in anticipation of separation or dissolution or annulment of marriage, is a waiver by the spouse of the rights described in Prob. Code § 141(a) [Prob. Code § 145].

[5] Formal Requirements for Waiver

A waiver under Prob. Code §§ 140-147 must be in writing and must be signed by the surviving spouse [Prob. Code § 142(a)]. Enforcement of the waiver against the surviving spouse is subject to the same defenses as enforcement of a contract, except that [Prob. Code § 142(c)]:

- Lack of consideration is not a defense to enforcement of the waiver.
- A minor intending to marry may make a waiver under Prob. Code §§ 140-147 as if married, but the waiver becomes effective only on the marriage.

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 142(c), a waiver under Prob. Code §§ 140-147 is enforceable only if it satisfies the requirements of Prob. Code § 142(a) and is enforceable under either Prob. Code § 143 or Prob. Code § 144 (discussed in § 458D.87[6] and [7] [Prob. Code § 142(b)]).

[6] Prerequisites to Enforcement

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 144(b), discussed in § 458D.87[8], and subject to Prob. Code § 142, discussed in § 458D.87[5], a waiver is enforceable if the court determines either of the following [Prob. Code § 144(a)]:

- The waiver at the time of signing made a fair and reasonable disposition of the rights of the surviving spouse.

- The surviving spouse had, or reasonably should have had, an adequateknowledge of the property and financial obligations of the decedent and the decedent did not violate the duty imposed by Fam. Code § 721(b) (husband and wife in confidential relationship).

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 144(a)(2), Fam. Code § 721(b) does not apply if the waiver is enforceable under Prob. Code § 144 [Prob. Code § 144(c)]. When a waiver complies with the requirements of Prob. Code § 144, it is enforceable regardless of whether the document containing the waiver is enforceable [Estate of Will *(*2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 902, 908, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 502 (waiver was enforceable regardless of whether document containing the waiver was enforceable as a prenuptial agreement under Fam. Code § 1615)].

[7] Defenses to Enforcement

Subject to Prob. Code § 142, a waiver is enforceable under Prob. Code § 143 unless the surviving spouse proves either of the following [Prob. Code § 143(a)]:

- A fair and reasonable disclosure of the property or financial obligations of the decedent was not provided to the surviving spouse before the signing of the waiver unless the surviving spouse waived such a fair and reasonable disclosure after advice from independent legal counsel.

- The surviving spouse was not represented by independent legal counsel at the time of signing the waiver.

Fam. Code § 721(b) (husband and wife in confidential relationship) does not apply if the waiver is enforceable under Prob. Code § 143 [Prob. Code § 143(b)].

[8] Power of Court

If, after considering all relevant facts and circumstances, the court finds that enforcement of a waiver under Prob. Code § 144(a) would be unconscionable under the circumstances existing at the time enforcement is sought, the court may refuse to enforce the waiver, enforce the remainder of the waiver without the unconscionable provisions, or limit the application of the unconscionable provisions to avoid an unconscionable result [Prob. Code § 144(b)].

[9] Agreement Altering, Amending, or Revoking Waiver

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 147(c) and (d) (discussed in § 458D.87[1]), unless the waiver specifically otherwise provides, a waiver under Prob. Code §§ 140-147 may not be altered, amended, or revoked except by a subsequent written agreement signed by each spouse or prospective spouse [Prob. Code § 146(b)].

The enforcement of an agreement altering, amending, or revoking a waiver under Prob. Code § 146 essentially depends on the same factors used to determine the enforceability of the original waiver. Thus, except for lack of consideration and the minority of a contracting party, enforcement is subject to the same defenses as any other contract [compare Prob. Code § 146(d) with Prob. Code § 142(c) (discussed in § 458D.87[5])]. An agreement altering, amending, or revoking a waiver under Prob. Code § 146 is enforceable unless the party against whom the agreement is sought to be enforced proves either lack of disclosure or lack of representation by independent counsel [compare Prob. Code § 146(e) with Prob. Code § 143(a), discussed in § 458D.87[7]]. The court must determine that the agreement made a fair and reasonable disposition of the rights of the spouses [compare Prob. Code § 146(f) with Prob. Code § 144(a)(1), discussed in § 458D.87[6]]. The court also has the power not to enforce an unconscionable agreement, or to limit its enforcement if necessary [compare Prob. Code § 146(g) with Prob. Code § 144(b), discussed in § 458D.87[8]].

Fam. Code § 721(b) (husband and wife in confidential relationship) does not apply if the agreement altering, amending, or revoking a waiver is enforceable under Prob. Code § 146 [Prob. Code § 146(h)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationAllowancesSpousesEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsPremarital AgreementsGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsPremarital AgreementsEnforcement

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.88

§ 458D.88 Setting Aside Nonprobate Transfer of Community Property

On the death of a married person, one-half of the community property belongs to the decedent and the other half belongs to the surviving spouse [Prob. Code § 100(a)]. Each spouse has the right of testamentary disposition over that spouse's half of the community property [Estate of Miramontes-Najera (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 750, 756, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 240] .

Although the phrase "one-half of the community property," as used in Prob. Code § 100(a), on its face, could mean either one-half of the total value of all community property or one-half of each item of community property, the courts have concluded that the statute means a decedent has a right to dispose of only one-half of each community property asset to someone other than a spouse [Estate of Wilson (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 67, 70, 227 Cal. Rptr. 794] . This rule is based on the nature of community property. Each spouse has a vested, undivided one-half interest in the community property. A spouse's death only dissolves the community. It does not affect the character of the property acquired or rights vested before the spouse's death. Because each asset is only half of his or hers to give, a spouse cannot make a testamentary disposition to a third party of any specific item of community property except by a "forced election" requiring the surviving spouse to elect to take under the testamentary scheme or to take his or her community property share [Estate of Wilson (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 67, 72, 227 Cal. Rptr. 794] . For example, a spouse cannot devise the family residence to a third party, even if there are sufficient other community assets to counterbalance the value of the gift, because each spouse only owns an undivided one-half interest in the residence [Estate of Wilson (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 67, 73, 227 Cal. Rptr. 794] .

Although this rule makes less practical sense with respect to fungible assets such as money, it applies nevertheless [Estate of Wilson (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 67, 73, 227 Cal. Rptr. 794] . Thus, for example, when a spouse has transferred community property into pay-on-death accounts for third persons without the surviving spouse's consent, the surviving spouse may enforce his or hercommunity property interest in each account on an asset-by-asset basis, even if the surviving spouse is already receiving more than one-half of the total community property [Estate of Miramontes-Najera (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 750, 753, 756-760, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 240 ; see Prob. Code § 5020 (provision for nonprobate transfer of community property on death executed by married person without spouse's written consent is not effective as to nonconsenting spouse's interest in property)]. Only one-half of the community property funds in the account belong to the third person. The other one-half, which is the surviving spouse's share of the community property, belongs to that spouse [Estate of Wilson (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 67, 68-69, 227 Cal. Rptr. 794] .

In a proceeding to set aside a nonprobate transfer of community property on death made pursuant to a provision for transfer of the property executed by a married person without his or her spouse's written consent, the court must set aside the transfer as to the nonconsenting spouse's interest in the property, subject to terms and conditions or other remedies that appear equitable under the circumstances, taking into account the rights of all interested persons [Prob. Code § 5021(a); see Estate of Miramontes-Najera (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 750, 753, 756-760, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 240 (Prob. Code § 5021(a) codifies rule of Estate of Wilson (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 67, 227 Cal. Rptr. 794)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawNonprobate TransfersGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.89

§ 458D.89 Omitted (Pretermitted) Child

[1] Statutory Share of Decedent's Estate

If a decedent fails to provide in a testamentary instrument for a child born or adopted after the execution of all of the decedent's testamentary instruments, the omitted child generally will be entitled to receive a share of the decedent's estate prescribed by statute [Prob. Code § 21620; but see Prob. Code § 21621 (no share if child intentionally omitted or otherwise provided for) and discussion in § 458D.89[2]; see also Estate of Mowry (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 338, 344, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 855 (daughter adopted before decedent executed holographic will, and who failed to prove mistaken omission, was not omitted heir)]. The share will be equal in value to the share the child would have received if the decedent had died without executing any testamentary instrument [Prob. Code § 21620]. For purposes of this rule, a "testamentary instrument" is either a will or a trust instrument that was executed by the decedent and that became irrevocable on the decedent's death [Prob. Code § 21601(a)], and "estate" is the decedent's probate estate and all property held in any revocable trust executed by the decedent that became irrevocable on the decedent's death [Prob. Code § 21601(b)].

[2] Exceptions; When Omitted Child Not Entitled to Share of Estate

Notwithstanding the general rule stated above, an omitted child is not entitled to receive a share of the estate if any of the following is established [Prob. Code § 21611]:

- The decedent's failure to provide for the child in the decedent's testamentary instruments was intentional and that intention appears from the testamentary instruments.

- The decedent had one or more children and devised or otherwise directed the disposition of substantially all the estate to the other parent of the omitted child.

- The decedent provided for the child by transfer outside of the estate passing by the decedent's testamentary instruments and the intention that the transfer be in lieu of a provision in those instruments is shown by statements of the decedent or from the amount of the transfer or by other evidence.

If, at the time of the execution of all of the decedent's testamentary instruments effective at the time of the decedent's death, the decedent failed to provide for a living child solely because the decedent believed the child to be dead or was unaware of the birth of the child, the child must receive a share in the estate equal in value to the share the child would have received if the decedent had died without having executed any testamentary instruments [Prob. Code § 21622].

[3] Satisfaction of Omitted Child's Share

In satisfying an omitted child's share, the share must be taken first from any part of the decedent's estate that is not disposed of by will or trust [Prob. Code § 21623(a)(1); but see Prob. Code § 21623(b) (exception to rule) and discussion below]. If that is not sufficient, as much as may be necessary to satisfy the share must be taken from all beneficiaries of the decedent's testamentary instruments in proportion to the value they may respectively receive [Prob. Code § 21623(a)(2); but see Prob. Code § 21623(b) (exception to rule) and discussion below]. This value must be determined as of the date of the decedent's death [Prob. Code § 21623(a)(2)]. However, if the obvious intention of the decedent in relation to some specific gift or devise or other provision of a testamentary instrument would be defeated by satisfying the omitted child's share in this way, the specific devise or gift or provision may be exempted from the apportionment and a different apportionment, consistent with the decedent's intention, may be adopted [Prob. Code § 21623(b)].

[4] Application of Omitted-Child Rules; Prior Law

The preceding rules apply only if the decedent died on or after January 1, 1998 [Prob. Code § 21630]. If the decedent died before January 1, 1998, but on or after January 1, 1985, former Prob. Code §§ 6560-6562 (repealed effective January 1,1998 by Stats. 1997, ch. 724, § 34) govern the rights of omitted spouses [Prob. Code § 21630].

Although pre-1998 rules were substantially similar to the rules described above, they applied only when the decedent failed to provide for a child born or adopted after the execution of a will that did not provide for the child [see former Prob. Code § 6570]. The rules applicable on and after January 1, 1998, differ from the former rules in that they apply not just when the decedent failed to provide for the child in a will, but also when the decedent failed to provide for the child in a trust instrument that becomes irrevocable on the decedent's death [see Prob. Code § 21620]. Conversely, an intention not to provide for the child, under the rules applicable on and after January 1, 1998, may be shown not just by the decedent's will, but also by a trust instrument executed by the decedent that becomes irrevocable on the decedent's death [see Prob. Code § 21620].

If the decedent died before January 1, 1985, former Prob. Code §§ 71, 90, and 91 (repealed effective January 1, 1985) govern the rights of omitted children [see former Prob. Code § 6580 (repealed effective January 1, 1998)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsPretermitted HeirsGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsPretermitted HeirsAdopted ChildrenEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsPretermitted HeirsIntent to OmitEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsPretermitted HeirsStatutesFamily LawAdoptionChild RightsInheritance Rights

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.90

§ 458D.90 Partition or Allotment of Property Before Distribution

If two or more beneficiaries are entitled to the distribution of undivided interests in property and have not agreed among themselves to a partition, allotment, or other division of the property, any of them, or the personal representative at the request of any of them, may petition the court to make a partition, allotment, or other division that will be equitable and will avoid the distribution of undivided interests [Prob. Code § 11950(a); see also Prob. Code §§ 11950(b)-11956 (procedure)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 456, Probate: Management of Estate Assets .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.91

§ 458D.91 Distribution of Property

[1] On Finality of Order

The personal representative is responsible for distribution of the property in the estate in compliance with the terms of the court order for distribution [Prob. Code § 11750]. When an order settling a final account and for final distribution is entered, the personal representative may, without further notice or proceedings, immediately distribute the property in the estate to the persons entitled to it [Prob. Code § 11641].

[2] Receipt for Property or Recordation of Court Order or Deed

The personal representative must obtain the receipt of the distributee for property in the estate distributed by the personal representative. In the case of real property, the personal representative must record the court order for distribution or the personal representative's deed or both in the county in which the real property is located. Recordation of the order or deed is deemed to be a receipt of the distributee for the property [Prob. Code § 11751].

[3] Inventory by Life Tenant

If personal property in the possession of a distributee is subject to possession by the distributee for life only, the personal representative must demand an inventory of the property from the distributee. On receipt, the personal representative must file the inventory with the court and deliver a copy to the distributee of the remainder [Prob. Code § 11752].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewReal Property LawEstatesPresent EstatesLife Estates

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.92

§ 458D.92 After Acquired or Discovered Property

Any property acquired or discovered after the court order for final distribution is made must be distributed as follows [Prob. Code § 11642]:

- If the order disposes of the property, distribution shall be made in the manner provided in the order. The court may, in an appropriate case, require a supplemental account and make further instructions relating to the property.

- If the order does not dispose of the property, distribution must be made either (1) in the manner ordered by the court on a petition for instructions; or (2) under Prob. Code § 12252 (administration after discharge), if the personal representative has been discharged.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.93

§ 458D.93 Valuation of Assets Distributed to Satisfy Pecuniary Devise

If the will authorizes the personal representative to satisfy a pecuniary gift wholly or partly by distribution of property other than money, the assets selected for that purpose are required, unless the will otherwise expressly provides, to be valued at their respective fair market values on the date or dates of distribution [Prob. Code § 21118(a); see Prob. Code § 21101 (rule applicable to wills, trusts, and other instruments); see also Estate of Simoncini (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 881, 890-891, 280 Cal. Rptr. 393 (enforcing will provision valuing real property at amount less than market value)].

If the will permits the personal representative to value the property selected for distribution as of a date other than the date of distribution, the property selected for that purpose must fairly reflect, unless the will expressly provides otherwise, net appreciation and depreciation (occurring between the valuation date and the date of distribution) in all of the assets from which the distribution could have been made [Prob. Code § 21118(a); see Prob. Code § 21101 (rule applicable to wills, trusts, and other instruments)].

As used in Prob. Code § 21118, the term "pecuniary gift" means a transfer ofproperty made in an instrument that either is expressly stated as a fixed dollar amount or is a dollar amount determinable by the provisions of the instrument [Prob. Code § 21118(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.94

§ 458D.94 Interest, Income, and Expenses Accruing During Administration

[1] Applicability of Statutes

If the intention of the testator is not otherwise indicated by the will, the interest, income, and expenses accruing during administration are governed by Prob. Code §§ 12000-12007 [Prob. Code § 12000; see also Prob. Code § 16320 et seq. (Uniform Principal and Income Act)].

[2] Rate of Interest

The rate of interest payable under Prob. Code §§ 12000-12007 is three percentage points less than the legal rate on judgments in effect one year after the date of the testator's death. The rate may not be recomputed if the applicable rate changes [Prob. Code § 12001].

[3] Income and Expenses of Specific Devises and Interest

A specific devise carries with it income on the devised property from the date of death, less expenses attributable to the devised property during administration of the estate. Expenses attributable to the property are those expenses that result directly from the use or ownership of the property, including property tax and tax on the income from the property, but excluding estate tax and generation-skipping transfer taxes [Prob. Code § 12002(b)].

If the income of specifically devised property is not sufficient to pay the expenses attributable to the property, the deficiency must be paid out of the estate until the property is distributed to the devisee or until the devisee takes possession of or occupies the property, whichever occurs first. To the extent that a deficiency paid out of the estate is attributable to the period that commences one year after the testator's death, whether paid during or after expiration of the one-year period following the date of death, the amount paid is a charge against the share of the devisee, and the personal representative has an equitable lien on the specifically devised property as against the devisee in the amount paid [Prob. Code § 12002(c)].

If specifically devised property is sold during administration of the estate, the devisee is entitled to the net income from the property until the date of sale, and to interest on the net sale proceeds thereafter, but no interest accrues during the first year after the testator's death [Prob. Code § 12002(d)]. Otherwise, a specific devise does not bear interest [Prob. Code § 12002(a)].

[4] Interest on General Pecuniary Devise

If a general pecuniary devise, including such a devise in trust, is not distributed within one year after the testator's death, the devise bears interest thereafter [Prob. Code § 12003].

[5] Interest on Annuity

An annuity commences at the testator's death and must be paid at the end of the annual, monthly, or other specified period [Prob. Code § 12004(a)]. If it is not paid at the end of the specified period, it bears interest thereafter, but no interest accrues during the first year after the testator's death [Prob. Code § 12004(b)].

[6] Interest on Devise for Maintenance

A devisee of a devise for maintenance is entitled to interest on the amount of any unpaid accumulations of the payments held by the personal representative on each anniversary of the testator's death, computed from the date of the anniversary [Prob. Code § 12005].

[7] Remaining Income to Residuary or Intestate Distributees

Net income received during administration not paid under the provisions of Prob. Code §§ 12000-12007 and not otherwise devised, must be distributed pro rata as income among all distributees who receive either residuary or intestate property. If a distributee takes for life or for a term of years, the pro rata share of income belongs to the tenant for life or for the term of years [Prob. Code § 12006].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateCosts & Expenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.95

§ 458D.95 Distribution When Distributee Is Deceased

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 11801(b), the share in a decedent's estate of a beneficiary who survives the decedent but who dies before distribution is distributed under Prob. Code §§ 11801 and 11802 with the same effect as though the distribution were made to the beneficiary while living [Prob. Code § 11801(a); see Estate of Stoddart (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 1132-1133, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 770 (when will plainly stated husband's intent to pass residue of his estate to wife if trust they established was inoperative or invalid and wife survived husband, wife, who did survive husband, was not required under will or Prob. Code § 11801(a) to survive distribution of husband's estate to receive residue)]. Subject to Prob. Code § 21525 (relating to conditions on marital deduction gifts), distribution may not be made under Prob. Code §§ 11801 and 11802 if the decedent's will provides that the beneficiary is entitled to take under the will only if the beneficiary survives the date of distribution or other period stated in the will and the beneficiary fails to survive the date of distribution or other period [Prob. Code § 11801(b); see also Prob. Code §§ 21109-21111, discussed in § 458D.80[7]].

If the beneficiary satisfies the requirement of Prob. Code § 11801, his or her share in the decedent's estate must be distributed as follows [Prob. Code § 11802]:

- Except as provided below, distribution must be made to the personal representative of the beneficiary's estate for the purpose of administration in the beneficiary's estate [see § 458D.191].

- If the beneficiary was issue of the decedent and died intestate while under the age of majority and not having been emancipated, distribution must be made directly to the beneficiary's heirs without administration in the beneficiary's estate [see § 458D.192].

- If a person entitled to the beneficiary's share proceeds makes application under Prob. Code § 13000 et seq. (Disposition of Estate Without Administration), distribution shall be made under those statutes.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsBeneficiariesGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.96

§ 458D.96 Distribution of Money or Property to Minor

[1] In General

Money or other property not exceeding $5000 and belonging to a minor not having a guardian of the estate may be paid or delivered to a parent of the minor entitled to the minor's custody to be held in trust for the minor until he or she reaches majority [see Prob. Code § 3401]. If the minor has no guardian of the estate and there is money belonging to the minor, the court may order that a guardian be appointed, or may order one or more of the arrangements set forth in Prob. Code § 3413 relating to deposit of the money [see Prob. Code § 3413]. For discussion of the requirements and procedure for distribution of money and property to minors without guardians, see Ch. 364, Minors: Claims and Property of Minors .

If the minor has a guardian of the estate, and the sole asset of the guardianship estate is money, the court may order that the guardianship be terminated and may also order any one of the dispositions set forth in Prob. Code 3412 [see Prob. Code § 3412]. For discussion of the requirements and procedure for distribution of money and property to minors with guardians, see Ch. 290, Guardianships and Conservatorships: Maintenance of Ward or Conservatee .

[2] Power of Personal Representative

A personal representative may make an irrevocable transfer to another adult or trust company as custodian for the benefit of a minor pursuant to Prob. Code § 3909, in the absence of a will or under a will that does not contain an authorization to do so [Prob. Code § 3906(a)]. However, such a transfer may be made only if all the following requirements are satisfied [Prob. Code § 3906(c)]:

- The personal representative considers the transfer to be in the best interest of the minor.

- The transfer is not prohibited by or inconsistent with provisions of the applicable will or other governing instrument. For this purpose, a spendthrift provision [see Prob. Code § 15300] will not prohibit or be inconsistent with the transfer.

- The transfer is authorized by the court if it exceeds $10,000 in value. However, court authorization is not required when the transfer is to a custodian who is a trust company or an individual designated as a trustee by the terms of a trust instrument that does not require a bond.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawConservators & GuardiansGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewFamily LawGuardiansAppointment

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.97

§ 458D.97 Deposit With County Treasurer When Distribution Cannot Be Made

[1] When Authorized

Subject to Prob. Code § 11851 (discussed in § 458D.97[2]), the personal representative may deposit property to be distributed with the county treasurer of the county in which the proceedings are pending in the name of the distributee in any of the following cases [Prob. Code § 11850]:

- The property remains in the possession of the personal representative unclaimed or the whereabouts of the distributee is unknown.

- The distributee refuses to give a receipt for the property.

- The distributee is a minor or incompetent person who has no guardian, conservator, or other fiduciary to receive the property or person authorized to give a receipt for the property.

- For any other reason the property cannot be distributed, and the personal representative desires discharge. However, notwithstanding Prob. Code § 11851, deposit may not be made under this provision except on court order.

[2] Deposit of Money or Other Personal Property

If the property to be deposited consists of money, the personal representative may deposit the money [Prob. Code § 11851(a)]. Money deposited with the county treasurer, however, does not bear interest for the benefit of the distributee [see Gov. Code § 53844 (interest on funds deposited with county treasurer as credited to county's general fund)].

If the property consists of personal property other than money, the personal representative may not deposit it except on court order [Prob. Code § 11851(b)]. If it appears to the court that the sale is for the benefit of interested persons, thecourt must order the personal property sold, and the proceeds of sale, less the expenses of sale allowed by the court, must be deposited in the county treasury [Prob. Code § 11851(b)]. If it appears to the court that sale is not for the benefit of interested persons, the court must order the personal property deposited with the Controller, to be held subject to Prob. Code §§ 11900-11904 (discussed in § 458D.98) [Prob. Code § 11851(b)].

[3] Delivery of Certified Copy of Order of Distribution for Money Deposit

If money is deposited or is already on deposit with the county treasurer, the personal representative must deliver to the county treasurer a certified copy of the order for distribution [Prob. Code § 11853].

[4] Receipt for Deposit and Treasurer's Liability

The county treasurer must give a receipt for the deposit and is liable on his or her official bond for the money deposited. The receipt has the same effect as if executed by the distributee [Prob. Code § 11852].

[5] Procedure to Claim Property

A person may claim money on deposit in the county treasury by filing a petition with the court that made the order for distribution. The petition must show the person's claim or right to the property [Prob. Code § 11854(a)]. Unless the petition is filed by the person named in the decree for distribution of the decedent's estate, or the legal representative of that person or the person's estate, the petition must state the facts required to be stated in a petition for escheated property filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 1355 [Prob. Code § 11854(a)]. On the filing of the petition, the same proceedings must be had as are required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1355, except that the hearing must be ex parte unless the court orders otherwise [Prob. Code 11854(a)].

If the court so orders, a copy of the petition must be served on the Attorney General, who may answer the petition at his or her discretion [Prob. Code § 11854(b)]. If the court is satisfied that the claimant has a right to the property claimed, the court must make an order establishing the right. On presentation of a certified copy of the order, the county auditor must draw a warrant on the county treasurer for the amount of money covered by the order [Prob. Code § 11854(c)].

A claim for money distributed in the estate of a deceased person made after the deposit of the property in the State Treasury is governed by the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1335-1355 (relating to escheat) [Prob. Code § 11854(d)]. For a discussion of escheat and forms that may be adapted for use, see Ch. 252, Escheat (Unclaimed Property).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesDeposits in CourtEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.98

§ 458D.98 Distribution to the State of California

[1] In General

The court must order property that is not ordered distributed to known beneficiaries to be distributed to the State of California, and, insofar as practicable, any real property or tangible personal property must be converted to money before distribution to the state [Prob. Code § 11900].

[2] Distribution in Trust for Class

If the court's order of distribution of property in the decedent's estate to the state includes words that otherwise create a trust in favor of unknown or unidentified persons as a class, the distribution vests both legal and equitable title to the property in the state [Prob. Code § 11901].

[3] Duties of Personal Representative

If the court orders distribution to the state, the personal representative must promptly do the following [Prob. Code § 11902(a)]:

- Deliver any money to the State Treasurer;
- Deliver any personal property other than money to the Controller for deposit in the State Treasury;
- Cause a certified copy of the order to be recorded in the office of the county recorder of each county in which any real property is located.

At the time of making a delivery of property or recordation, the personal representative must deliver to the Controller a certified copy of the order for distribution, together with a statement of the date and place of each recording and other appropriate recording information [Prob. Code § 11902(b)].

[4] No Deposit in County Treasury

If any property in the estate is to be or has been distributed to the state, the personal representative must make no deposit of other property in an estate in the county treasury. Rather, the property that would otherwise be deposited in the county treasury must be transmitted promptly to the State Treasurer or Controller, as the case may be [Prob. Code § 11904].

[5] Claims to Property Distributed to State

The state Treasurer must hold the property for a period of five years from the date of the order for distribution, and at any time within this period any person may claim the property in the manner provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1300 et seq. (relating to unclaimed property) [Prob. Code § 11903(a); for discussion and forms, see Ch. 252, Escheat (Unclaimed Property)].

A person who fails to claim the property within the five-year period is forever barred, and the property vests absolutely in the state, subject to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1300 et seq. [Prob. Code § 11903(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.99

§ 458D.99 Right of Distributee to Recover Share of Estate

A distributee may demand, sue for, and recover from the personal representative or from any person in possession, property to which he or she is entitled [Prob. Code § 11750(b)].

For a general form for a complaint to recover personal property or its value and for damages for wrongful detention, see Ch. 119, Claim and Delivery . For a general form for a complaint to recover possession of real property and damages for wrongful detention, see Ch. 241, Ejectment .

A beneficiary of a testamentary trust is apparently entitled to take advantage of the provisions of Prob. Code § 11750(b) [see Estate of Loring (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 423, 430-431, 175 P.2d 524 (involving predecessor statutes)]. The period of limitation for an action under Prob. Code § 11750(b) is 10 years, under Code Civ. Proc. § 337.5 (action on judgment or decree) [Gay v. Straube (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 683, 684, 54 Cal. Rptr. 293 (involving predecessor statute)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsReal Property LawTitle QualityAdverse Claim ActionsEjectment

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.100

§ 458D.100 Effect of Distribution on Good Faith Purchaser

A distribution of property made in compliance with the terms of the court order for distribution is valid as to a person acting in good faith and for a valuable consideration [Prob. Code § 11750(c)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.101

§ 458D.101 Discharge of Personal Representative

Distribution in compliance with the court order entitles the personal representative to a full discharge with respect to property included in the order [Prob. Code § 11753(a)]. For a discussion of discharge and appropriate forms and procedures, see Ch. 458E, Probate: Discharge .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesRemoval & TerminationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.102

§ 458D.102 Continuing Jurisdiction Until Discharge

Jurisdiction of the court sitting in probate continues until the final discharge of the person whom the court directs to make its order effective, and until that person is discharged, the court retains jurisdiction for the purpose of compelling execution of its order [Estate of Evans (1944) 62 Cal. App. 2d 249, 256, 144 P.2d 625] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesRemoval & TerminationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateJurisdiction & VenueGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.103

§ 458D.103 Administration After Final Settlement

If, after the personal representative has been discharged, subsequent administration of an estate is necessary because other property is discovered, or because it becomes necessary or proper for any cause, the court must appoint as personal representative the person entitled to appointment in the same order as is directed in relation to an original appointment, except that the person who served as personal representative at the time of the order of discharge has priority [Prob. Code § 12252(a)].

Notice of hearing of the appointment must be given as provided in Prob. Code § 1220 to the person who served as personal representative at the time of the order of discharge and other interested persons. If property has been distributed to the State of California, a copy of any petition for subsequent appointment of a personal representative and the notice of hearing must be given as provided in Prob. Code § 1220 to the Controller [Prob. Code § 12252(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesAppointmentEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesRemoval & TerminationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.104

§ 458D.104 Liability of Personal Representative for Wrongful Concealment of Estate Property

A personal representative who wrongfully conceals estate property may be held liable to the beneficiaries long after the estate is closed and the personal representative is discharged.

In Strasberg v. Odyssey Group, Inc. [Strasberg v. Odyssey Group, Inc. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 906, 917, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474] , the special administrator of the estate of Marilyn Monroe prepared an inventory and stored and inventoried Monroe's personal effects and clothing, all of which Monroe had willed to her close personal friend Lee Strasberg. Monroe died in 1962. The special administrator's distribution of the estate was approved and the special administrator was discharged in 1963. Strasberg died in 1982, devising all of Monroe's personal effects and property to Strasberg's widow. The special administrator died in 1985. In 1994, Strasberg's widow learned that the son of the special administrator's sister-in-law was advertising the auction of a large sale of Marilyn Monroe's personal property. The widow immediately filed suit against the son and the auction house, alleging that the property had been converted by the special administrator and fraudulently concealed from Lee Strasberg, and seeking to subject it to a constructive trust. The son and the auction house argued that the action was barred by the three-year statute of limitations for taking, detaining, or injuring goods or chattels set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 338(c). Both the trial court and the Court of Appeal ruled that the action was not barred by the statute, holding that in an action against a fiduciary for conversion of trust property the statute of limitations is tolled until the beneficiary discovers or should have discovered the conversion [Strasberg v. Odyssey Group, Inc. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 906, 917, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474] .

Since a fiduciary has a duty to make full disclosure of all facts that materially affect the rights of the beneficiaries, any act by the fiduciary amounting to aconversion of trust property is akin to fraudulent concealment. The general rule is that the statute of limitations does not begin to run against an action for breach of trust until there has been a repudiation of the trust which is brought home to the beneficiary [Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 561, 305 P.2d 20 ; Strasberg v. Odyssey Group, Inc. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 906, 917, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474] . The cause of action did not accrue when the personal representative filed reports failing to disclose the existence of the concealed property, because repudiation of a trust is not effective and does not trigger the running of the statute of limitations unless and until the fact is "brought home to the beneficiary" [Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 561, 305 P.2d 20 ; Strasberg v. Odyssey Group, Inc. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 906, 917, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474] . The death of the special administrator and transfer of the property to the administrator's successor also does not cause the statute to begin to run. Because the original conversion was still concealed, the beneficiary had no reason to discover it just because the special representative died and the special representative's successors in interest acquired the converted property [Strasberg v. Odyssey Group, Inc. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 906, 918-919, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesClaims By & AgainstEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral OverviewTortsIntentional TortsConversionGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.105

§ 458D.105 Unpaid Creditors

When the accounts of the personal representative have been settled and an order made for the payment of debts and distribution of the estate, a creditor who is not paid, whether or not included in the order for payment, has no right to require contribution from creditors who are paid or from distributees, except to the extent provided in Prob. Code § 9392 [Prob. Code § 11429(a)]. However, nothing in the foregoing precludes recovery against the personal representative personally or on the bond, if any, by a creditor who is not paid subject to Prob. Code § 9053 [Prob. Code § 11429(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationClaims Against EstatesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.106

§ 458D.106 Distribution of Property in Ancillary Administration Proceeding

If a person dies while domiciled in a sister state, the court in an ancillary administration proceeding may make an order for preliminary or final distribution of all or part of the decedent's personal property in California to the sister-state personal representative if distribution is in the best interest of the estate or interested persons [Prob. Code § 12540(a)]. The court order must be made in the manner and pursuant to the procedure provided in, and is subject to the provisions of, Prob. Code §§ 11600-11642 (order for distribution) [Prob. Code § 12540(b)].

If necessary to make distribution, real property in the nondomiciliary decedent's estate may be sold and the court may order the proceeds to be distributed to the sister-state personal representative. The sale must be made in the same manner as other sales of real property of a decedent [Prob. Code § 12541].

If the nondomiciliary decedent's estate in the sister state where the decedent was domiciled is insolvent, distribution may be made only to the sister-state personal representative, and not to the beneficiaries [Prob. Code § 12542].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateAncillary ProceedingsEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.107

§ 458D.107 Assignment of Interest in Estate for Cash Advance or Other Consideration

[1] Assignment of Beneficiary's Interest to Transferee for Value

When a beneficiary has assigned all or part of his or her interest in a decedent's estate to a "transferee for value" in exchange for a cash advance or other consideration, specified requirements must be met. For purposes of these provisions, a "transferee for value" is a person who purchases the interest from a beneficiary for consideration pursuant to a written agreement, and who, directly or indirectly, regularly engaged in the purchase of beneficial interests in estates for consideration [Prob. Code § 11604.5(b)]. These provisions do not apply to a transferee who is a beneficiary of the estate or a person who has a claim to distribution from the estate under another instrument or by intestate succession, to a transferee who is either the registered domestic partner of the beneficiary or is related by blood, marriage, or adoption to the beneficiary of the decedent, a transaction made in conformity with the California Finance Lenders Law [Fin. Code § 2200 et seq.], or to a transferee who is engaged in the business of locating missing or unknown heirs and who acquires an interest from a beneficiary solely in exchange for providing information or services associated with locating the heir or beneficiary [Prob. Code § 11604.5(c)].

[2] Assignment and Affidavit Must Be Filed With Court

The agreement assigning the interest must be filed with the court within 30 days after it is executed or, if administration of the decedent's estate has not commenced, within 30 days after issuance of the letters of administration or letters testamentary, but in no event later than 15 days before the hearing on the petition for final distribution [Prob. Code § 11604.5(d)(1)]. Within these time limits the transferee must file with the court a declaration or affidavit attesting that the requirements of Prob. Code § 11604.5 have been met, and must serve the personal representative (or the attorney of record for the personal representative) with notice of the assignment [Prob. Code § 11604.5(d)(4), (5)].

[3] Contents of Assignment Agreement

[a] Required Terms

The assignment agreement (and any other documents signed by or provided to the beneficiary) must be printed in at least 10 point type [Prob. Code § 11604.5(d)(3)]. The assignment must contain the following terms, in addition to any other terms [Prob. Code § 11604.5(e)]:

- The amount of consideration paid to the beneficiary.
- A description of the transferred interest.
- If the written agreement so provides, the amount by which the transferee for value would have its distribution reduced if the beneficial interest assigned is distributed prior to a specified date.
- A statement of the total of all costs or fees charged to the beneficiary resulting from the transfer for value, including, but not limited to the following:
    - Transaction or processing fees.
    - Credit report costs.
    - Title search costs.
    - Due diligence fees.
    - Filing fees.
    - Bank or electronic transfer costs.
    - Any other fees or costs.

If all the costs and fees are paid by the transferee for value and are included in the amount of the transferred interest, then the statement of costs need not itemize any costs or fees. These requirements are inapplicable to costs, fees, or damages arising out of a material breach of the agreement or fraud by or on the part of the beneficiary [Prob. Code § 11604.5(e)].

[b] Prohibited Terms

The assignment agreement may not contain provisions doing any of the following [Prob. Code § 11604.5(f)]:

- Holding harmless the transferee for value, other than for liability arising out of fraud by the beneficiary.
- Granting to the transferee for value agency powers to represent the beneficiary's interest in the decedent's estate beyond the interest transferred.
- Requiring payment by the beneficiary to the transferee for value for services not related to the written agreement or services other than the transfer of interest under the written agreement.
- Permitting the transferee for value to have recourse against the beneficiary if the distribution from the estate in satisfaction of the beneficial interest is less than the beneficial interest assigned to the transferee for value, other than recourse for any expense or damage arising out of the material breach of the agreement or fraud by the beneficiary.

If any such provision is included, that provision is void [Prob. Code § 11604.5(f)].

[c] Translation Requirement

If the negotiation or discussion between the beneficiary and the transferee for value leading to the execution of the written agreement by the beneficiary was conducted in a language other than English, the beneficiary must receive the written agreement in English, together with a copy of the agreement translated into the language in which it was negotiated or discussed [Prob. Code § 11604.5(d)(2)].

[4] Powers of Court

The court, on its own motion, or on the motion of the personal representative or other interested person, may inquire into the circumstances surrounding the execution of, and the consideration for, the assignment agreement, to determine that the requirements of Prob. Code § 11604.5 have been met [Prob. Code § 11604.5(g)]. The court may refuse to order distribution under the agreement, or may order distribution on any terms it considers equitable, if it finds that the transferee did not substantially comply with the statutory requirements, or if it finds that the fees, charges, or consideration paid or agreed to be paid by the beneficiary were grossly unreasonable or that the transfer of the beneficial interest was obtained by duress, fraud, or undue influence [Prob. Code § 11604.5(h)]. The court may require the transferee to pay to the beneficiary up to twice the value paid for the assignment if the court finds that the transferee willfully violated the statutory requirements in bad faith [Prob. Code § 11604.5(i)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawDefensesDuress & Undue InfluenceGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Distribution

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 458D.108-458D.119

[Reserved]

§§ 458D.108[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.120

§ 458D.120 Reimbursement for Expenses

[1] In General

The personal representative must be allowed all necessary expenses in the administration of the estate, including, but not limited to, necessary expenses in the care, management, preservation, and settlement of the estate [Prob. Code § 11004]. This means that a personal representative who personally incurs a liability on account of necessary matters related to the estate may be reimbursed out of the assets of the estate [Harm v. Frasher (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 405, 421, 5 Cal. Rptr. 367] .

[2] Expenses Before Issuance of Letters

The personal representative is not allowed expenses incurred in proceedings unrelated and prior to his or her petition for appointment and issuance of letters [Estate of Tubbs (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 305, 308, 186 P.2d 7] .

[3] Travel Expenses

If proper administration of the estate requires the personal representative or his or her attorney or agent to travel, the travel expenses thus incurred may be allowed as a necessary expense in the management of the estate [Estate of Turner (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 332, 335, 123 P.2d 66] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesTravel ExpensesEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.121

§ 458D.121 Personal Representative's Commission or Compensation

[1] Applicability of Former Law

The entire Probate Code was repealed and a new code enacted by 1990 legislation (Stats. 1990, ch. 79), operative July 1, 1991. Former Prob. Code §§ 900-904 as they existed on June 30, 1991, continue to apply in those administration of estate proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850(b)]. Although many of the statutes in the former code were carried over intact into the current code, or with minor changes and with the same code number, the compensation of personal representatives and their attorneys in the current code is governed by Prob. Code §§ 10800-10850. These latter provisions do not apply in any administration of estate proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991 [Prob. Code § 10850(a)]. The word "commission" used in former Prob. Code §§ 900-904 was changed to "compensation" in the current statutes.

For proceedings commenced after June 30, 1991, the law in effect on the date of the court's order awarding statutory compensation determines the amount of that compensation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.707].

[2] Special Administrator

Subject to the limitations imposed by Prob. Code § 8547, the court fixes the compensation of a special administrator [Prob. Code § 8547(a)]. Compensation will not be allowed until the close of administration, unless the general personal representative joins in the petition for allowance of the special administrator's compensation or the court in its discretion so allows [Prob. Code § 8547(b)]. If the same person does not act as both special administrator and general personal representative, the compensation (see discussion in § 458D.127[1]) must be divided in such proportions as the court deems just or as may be agreed to by the special administrator and general personal representative [Prob. Code § 8547(b)].

[3] Public Administrator

A public administrator is entitled to receive the same compensation granted to a personal representative generally, provided, however, that the compensation may not be less than the compensation in effect at the time of the public administrator's appointment or $1,000 (the minimum amount provided in Prob. Code § 7666(b)), whichever is greater [Prob. Code § 7622(b)]. The compensation of a public administrator under Prob. Code § 7660 et seq. (summary disposition of small estates) is set forth in Prob. Code § 7666. Recovery by a public administrator of the reasonable costs incurred for the preservation of the estate, together with a reasonable compensation for services, when another person is subsequently appointed personal representative is provided for in Prob. Code § 7604.

[4] Statutory Commission or Compensation

[a] Calculation

The statutory commission or compensation of the personal representative is calculated on the value of the estate accounted for [former Prob. Code § 901; Prob. Code § 10800(a)].

The calculation of the personal representative's commission in administration of estate proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991, is governed by former Prob. Code § 901 [see Prob. Code § 10850(b)]; in a proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991, the personal representative's compensation is governed by Prob. Code § 10800 [see Prob. Code § 10850(a)].

Effective October 11, 2001, the following compensation schedule applies [Prob. Code § 10800(a)]:

4 percent on the first $100,000 ($4,000) = $4,000

plus 3 percent on the next $100,000 ($3,000) = $7,000

plus 2 percent on the next $800,000 ($16,000) = $23,000

plus 1 percent on the next $9 million dollars ($90,000) = $113,000 plus 1/2 of 1 percent on the next $15 million dollars ($75,000) = $188,000 plus a reasonable amount to be determined by the court for any remainder over $25 million.

Before October 11, 2001, the compensation schedule (which was the same under both former Prob. Code § 901 and Prob. Code § 10800 as then in effect) was as follows:

4 percent of first $15,000 ($600) if estate accounted for is valued at $15,000 or more = $600

plus 3 percent of next $85,000 ($2,550) = $3,150

plus 2 percent of next $900,000 ($18,000) = $21,150

plus 1 percent of the next $9 million ($90,000) = $111,150

plus 1/2 of 1 percent of the next $15 million ($75,000) = $186,150

plus a reasonable amount to be determined by the court for any remainder over $25 million.

[b] Basis of Calculation

A petition for statutory commissions or attorney's fees must state the amount of statutory compensation that is payable, and set forth the estate accounted for and the calculation of statutory compensation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.705(a)]. If an account has been waived, the final report of administration must list the information required by law, including information as to creditors' claims, sales, purchases or exchanges of assets, changes in the form of assets, assets on hand, whether the estate is solvent, detailed schedules of receipts and gains or losses on sale (if an amount other than the amount of the inventory and appraisal is used as a basis for calculating fees or commissions), costs of administration (if reimbursement of these costs is requested), the amount of any fees or commissions paid or to be paid, and the calculation of these fees or commissions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 7.705(b), 7.550]. If the report is accompanied by a request for statutory commissions or fees, the basis for their computation must be included in the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.705(b)].

The basis for calculation of the personal representative's commission or compensation is the same regardless of whether the administration proceedings were commenced before or after July 1, 1991. It is the total amount of the appraisal value of property in the inventory, plus gains over the appraisal value on sales, plus receipts, less losses from the appraisal value on sales, without reference to encumbrances or other obligations on estate property [see former Prob. Code § 901 (applicable to proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991), Prob. Code § 10801(b) (applicable to proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); see also Recommendation Proposing New Probate Code, 20 Cal. Law Revision Com'n Reports 1763-1764 (1990); Recommendations Relating to Probate Law: Hiring and Paying Attorneys, Advisors, and Others]. Once this basis is properly calculated, the correct commission can easily be determined [Estate of Lampman (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 212, 215, 100 P.2d 488 ; Estate of Getty (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 455, 466-468, 191 Cal. Rptr. 897 (rejecting contention that statute allowed employment of alternative method of computing commission's fees)].

When the estate includes a business that is operated by the personal representative, the phrase "plus receipts" means the net profits of the business, not its gross receipts [Estate of Sanchez (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 239, 243-244, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 141] . The result is the same when the estate holds an apartment house that is operated as a business by the personal representative. In such a case, the net and not the gross income of the apartment house is the proper basis for calculating the statutory commissions or compensation [Estate of Reinhertz (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 156, 163-164, 185 P.2d 858] .

[c] Inclusion of Property When Personal Representative Denies Title of Estate

Property accounted for by the personal representative pursuant to the court's order to do so may be included in the amount of the estate accounted for, for the purpose of calculating the commission and attorney's fee, even though the personal representative erroneously objected, in good faith, that the property did not belong in the estate [Estate of Raphael (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 92, 95, 274 P.2d 880] .

[d] Allowance on Account of Statutory Compensation

The court may authorize an allowance of statutory fees or commissions on account before approval of the final account and decree of final distribution [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.701]. Any allowance before settlement of the final account must be low enough to avoid the possibility of overpayment and must be (1) based on the estimated amount of statutory compensation payable on the estate determined as of the date of the petition for allowance, (2) in proportion to the work actually performed, and (3) based on a detailed description of the ordinary services performed and remaining to be performed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.701].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesAttorney Expenses & FeesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.122

§ 458D.122 Effect of Negligent Administration

A personal representative does not lose the right to the statutory compensation because he or she is guilty of mismanagement of the estate. A personal representative should be charged with losses resulting from his or her default or neglect, but should be allowed the compensation [Estate of Roberts (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 70, 76, 162 P.2d 461 ; Estate of Carver (1898) 123 Cal. 102, 105, 55 P. 770] . The amount of compensation due the personal representative may be set off against the loss incurred by the estate as a result of the personal representative's default or neglect [see Estate of Roberts (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 70, 76, 162 P.2d 461 ; Estate of Smith (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 844, 849-850, 268 P.2d 53] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesClaims By & AgainstEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.123

§ 458D.123 Reduction of Compensation on Failure to Close Estate in Timely Manner

The court may reduce the compensation of the personal representative or the attorney for the personal representative by an amount the court determines to be appropriate if the court makes all of the following determinations [Prob. Code § 12205(a)]:

- The time taken for administration of the estate exceeds the time required by Prob. Code §§ 12200-12206 (that is, one year from the date letterswere issued in estates not required to file a federal estate tax return, or 18 months from that date in estates required to file such a return [Prob. Code § 12200 (discussed in § 458D.70[1])]) or prescribed by the court;

- The time taken was within the control of the personal representative or attorney whose compensation is being reduced; and

- The delay was not in the best interest of the estate or interested persons.

The order reducing compensation may be made regardless of whether the compensation otherwise allowable under Prob. Code §§ 10800-10850 would be reasonable compensation for the services rendered by the personal representative or attorney [Prob. Code § 12205(b)]. The order may be made at either the hearing for final distribution or the hearing for an allowance on the compensation of the personal representative or attorney [Prob. Code § 12205(c)]. In making its determination the court must take into account any action taken under Prob. Code § 12202 (discussed in § 458D.70[4]) as a result of a previous delay [Prob. Code § 12205(d)]. Reducing compensation under Prob. Code § 12205 is within the trial court's discretion, and the court's determinations will be upheld in the absence of manifest abuse of discretion [Estate of Heller (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 862, 864, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 274] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral

OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.124

§ 458D.124 Two or More Personal Representatives

There is only one statutory commission for ordinary services by the personal representative of the estate, regardless of the number of personal representatives performing the services [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.704(a)]. If there are two or more personal representative (whether successive or concurrent), the court must apportion the statutory commission among them based on their agreement or, if there is no agreement, according to the services actually rendered by each of them [Prob. Code § 10850; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.704(a)].

If there has been a change of personal representative, notice of hearing of any interim or final petition seeking or waiving an award of statutory compensation must be given to all prior personal representatives unless: (1) a waiver of notice executed by all prior personal representatives is on file or is filed with the petition; (2) a written, signed agreement on the allocation of statutory commissions between the present personal representative and all prior personal representatives is on file or is included in or filed with the petition; or (3) the court's file and the petition demonstrate that the commissions of the prior personal representatives have been previously provided for and allowed by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.704(b)].

If there is disagreement, each coexecutor or coadministrator should present his or her own argument for apportionment at the hearing on settlement of the final account. The order settling the final account is the means by which the compensation and extraordinary compensation are allowed, and when it becomes final, it will be held conclusive against all coexecutors or coadministrators [see Dobbins v. Title Guar. & Trust Co. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 64, 69-70, 136 P.2d 572] .

Furthermore, each coexecutor or coadministrator should take care to ensure that the order allowing compensation or a commission specifically states how it is to be apportioned. When a stated sum is allowed for two personal representatives, but the order does not determine apportionment between them, the question of apportionment remains open and may be determined in a civil action between the two personal representatives. Language in the order that the stated sum "is hereby ordered to be paid to said executors," or words to that effect, will not be taken as allowing half of the stated sum to each, since each is entitled to share in the compensation according to the time spent, the responsibility assumed, and the services rendered [see Kelly v. Conroy (1928) 91 Cal. App. 350, 354-355, 266 P. 1022 (construing former Code Civ. Proc. § 1618, substantially the same as former Prob. Code § 901 and present Prob. Code § 10805 regarding apportionment)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.125

§ 458D.125 Successive Personal Representatives

When there are two or more personal representatives in succession rather than simultaneously, the court is authorized to apportion the statutory compensation between or among them, according to the services rendered by each [see Estate of Gonzales (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 440, 442-443, 209 P.2d 21 (60 percent of commission allowed to public administrator, 40 percent allowed to executor named in will found after public administrator had been appointed)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.126

§ 458D.126 Contract With Beneficiary

All contracts between a personal representative and an heir, devisee, or legatee, for a higher compensation than that provided for in former Prob. Code § 901 or present Prob. Code § 10800 are void [Prob. Code § 10803; former Prob. Code § 903; see Prob. Code § 10850].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.127

§ 458D.127 Extraordinary Services and Expenses

[1] Allowances of Additional Compensation

Former Prob. Code §§ 900-904 apply to the "commissions" of a personal representative in all administration of estate proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991. Present Prob. Code §§ 10800-10850 govern the "compensation" of a personal representative in proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850]. Prob. Code §§ 7623 (public administrators) and 8547 (special administrators) apply to all proceedings.

If the personal representative has performed extraordinary services, he or shemay claim a further compensation, and the court may allow such further compensation for extraordinary services as the court deems just and reasonable [Prob. Code § 10801; former Prob. Code § 902]. The court may allow compensation to the personal representative for extraordinary services before final distribution if (a) it appears likely that the administration of the estate will continue, because of litigation or otherwise, for an unusually long time, (b) present payment will benefit the estate or the beneficiaries of the estate, or (c) other good cause is shown [Prob. Code § 10832 (applicable in administration of estate proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); see Prob. Code § 10850(a)].

A petition for extraordinary compensation must include, or be accompanied by, a statement of the facts on which the petition is based, which must: (1) show the nature and difficulty of the tasks performed; (2) show the results achieved; (3) show the benefit of the services to the estate; (4) specify the amount requested for each category of service performed; (5) state the hourly rate of each person who performed services and the hours spent by each of them; (6) describe the services rendered in sufficient detail to demonstrate the productivity of the time spent; and (7) state the estimated amount of statutory compensation to be paid by the estate, if the petition is not part of a final account or report [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.702].

An order allowing compensation for extraordinary services is appealable [Prob. Code § 7240(l)]. After the time for appeal has expired, however, the court cannot reduce the allowance. By allowing extraordinary compensation, the court necessarily finds that the compensation was justified, and if the same parties are involved in a later request to reduce the earlier allowance the court is collaterally estopped from determining that it was not justified [Estate of Hilton (1996)

44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 910, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491] .

Extra allowances of a special administrator may be allowed on settlement of the final account of the special administrator. However, the total compensation paid and extra allowances made to the special administrator and general personal representative must not, together, exceed the sums provided for compensation and extra allowances for the services of a personal representative [Prob. Code § 8547(b)].

An award of additional compensation to a public administrator is authorized by Prob. Code § 7623.

[2] Considerations Regarding Allowance

In determining whether to allow compensation for extraordinary services, the court may consider all matters relating to the administration of the estate, including the value of the estate, the time spent in rendering the services, the skill exercised, and the results obtained [Estate of Beach (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 623, 645, 125 Cal. Rptr. 570, 542 P.2d 994 , cert. denied, 434 U.S. 1046, 98 S. Ct. 891, 54 L. Ed. 2d 797 (1978)] .

The court may also consider the amount of the statutory compensation for ordinary services [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.703(a)]. If the court reasonably concludes that the amount of the statutory compensation is adequate to fully compensate the personal representative or attorney for all services rendered in the estate, including extraordinary services, it may deny a request for extraordinary compensation [Estate of Walker (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 792, 795 , Cal. Rptr. 832]. The court has discretion to deny extraordinary compensation when the statutory compensation reasonably compensates the representative or attorney for both the ordinary and the extraordinary services actually rendered [Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 914, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491] . When there are successive petitions for extraordinary compensation, each request requires the probate court to determine whether the compensation already awarded compensates the representative or the attorney not only for the services for which compensation was previously awarded, but also for services for which compensation is currently sought [Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 917, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491] .

The award of extraordinary compensation rests in the sound discretion of the court. When a representative or attorney requests extraordinary compensation, the court must consider the value of the estate, both the ordinary and the extraordinary services rendered, and the amount of the ordinary compensation allowed by law. If the ordinary compensation appears to be reasonable compensation for all the services rendered, the court has discretion to deny extraordinary compensation even when it is not disputed that extraordinary services have been rendered [Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 918-919, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491] .

When the personal representative or the attorney have rendered extraordinary services and it is not expected that the estate will be closed in the near future, a request for extraordinary compensation should be made at an early date. It is unwise to wait until long after extraordinary services have been rendered, or until it is time for the estate to be closed, to request compensation for the services; the representative or attorney may then be unpleasantly surprised to find that the court does not agree that extraordinary compensation has been earned or is due [see Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 923, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491] .

[3] Examples of Extraordinary Services

[a] In General

The following is a nonexclusive list of activities for which the personal representative may be awarded extraordinary compensation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.703(b)]:

- Selling, leasing, exchanging, financing, or foreclosing real or personalproperty.

- Carrying on the decedent's business if necessary to preserve the estate or under court order.
- Preparing tax returns.
- Handling audits or litigation connected with tax liabilities of the decedent of the estate.

[b] Sale Directed in Will

The fact that the decedent's will directs the executor to sell estate property does not make the selling of the property an ordinary service and is not a basis for denying the executor additional compensation for extraordinary services [see Estate of Neff (1943) 56 Cal. App. 2d 728, 730-732, 133 P.2d 413] .

[c] Continuing Decedent's Business

The amount of further compensation due to a personal representative on account of continuing the decedent's business (see Prob. Code § 9760) should be calculated according to the extra work involved for the personal representative, regardless of whether the business turns out to be successful or the estate becomes insolvent through the personal representative's management of the business [In re Estate of Allen (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 346, 353, 108 P.2d 973] .

It should be noted that former Prob. Code § 902 contains the qualification that carrying on the decedent's business is a compensable extraordinary service if done "pursuant to an order of the court." The personal representative has no duty to carry on the decedent's business and, except as provided in Prob. Code § 9760 (discussed below), will be held to have done so at his or her own risk if he or she undertakes the task without having been ordered by the court to do so [Estate of Burke (1926) 198 Cal. 163, 166, 244 P. 340] .

However, in at least one case, the personal representative was allowed expenses incurred in carrying on the decedent's business (an extraordinary service [see former Prob. Code § 902]), even though the personal representative had not obtained an order from the court directing him to carry on the business [see former Prob. Code § 902], but the expenses were characterized as necessary for preservation of the asset, all known heirs had consented, and the personal representative was experienced enough that his carrying on the business was actually a benefit to the estate [see In re Estate of Messena (1933) 129 Cal. App. 255, 258-261, 18 P.2d 779] .

Notwithstanding the foregoing, if it is to the advantage of the estate and in the best interest of the interested persons, the personal representative, with or without court authorization, may continue the operation of decedent's business, but may not do so for a period of more than six months after the date letters were first issued to the personal representative unless a court order is obtained [Prob. Code § 9760(b)]. As used in Prob. Code § 9760, "decedent's business" means an unincorporated business or venture in which the decedent was engaged or that was wholly or partly owned by the decedent at the time of his or her death, but does not include a business operated by a partnership in which the decedent was a partner [Prob. Code § 9760(a)]. With respect to partnerships, the personal representative may, after authorization by order of court on a showing that it would be to the advantage of the estate and in the best interest of the interested persons, continue as a general or a limited partner in any partnership in which the decedent was a general partner at the time of death [Prob. Code § 9762(a)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 456, Probate: Management of Estate Assets .

[d] Services Regarding Nonestate Property of Which Personal Representative Mistakenly Takes Possession

A personal representative who takes possession of real or personal property in the good faith belief that it is property of the estate, and makes reasonable efforts to determine its true nature and title is not criminally liable or civilly liable to any person for so doing [Prob. Code § 9651(a), (b)]. Although this is not one of the extraordinary services enumerated in former Prob. Code § 902 for which compensation may be allowed, the personal representative may be awarded reasonable compensation for services rendered in connection with the duties specified in Prob. Code § 9651 if the property is later determined not to be property of the estate, and the court finds either that (1) the services were of benefit to the estate, or (2) the services were essential to the preservation, protection, and maintenance of the property [Prob. Code § 9651(d)].

If the court finds that the services were of benefit to the estate, the compensation and the expenses and costs of litigation, including attorney's fees of the attorney hired by the personal representative to handle the matter, are a proper expense of administration [Prob. Code § 9651(d)(1)]. If the court finds that the services were essential to preserve, protect, and maintain the property, the court must award compensation and the expenses and costs of litigation, including attorney's fees of the attorney hired by the personal representative to handle the matter, as an expense deductible from the rents, issues, and profits received by the personal representative to be turned over to the true owner or, if these are insufficient, as a lien against the property [Prob. Code § 9651(c), (d)(2)].

[e] Preparing Account When Personal Representative Dies or Becomes Incapacitated

If a "legal representative" is appointed and obliged to render an account because the personal representative has died or become incapacitated (see Prob. Code § 10953, discussed in § 458D.31[3]), the court is required to allow thelegal representative compensation for preparing the account [Prob. Code § 10953(d)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.128

§ 458D.128 Locating Estate Assets as Nonextraordinary Service

Locating assets of the estate is an ordinary service of the personal representative and is compensated for by the statutory compensation [see Estate of Tubbs (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 305, 309, 186 P.2d 7] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.129

§ 458D.129 Employment of Tax Auditors, Accountants, or Other Tax Experts

The personal representative may employ or retain tax counsel, tax auditors, accountants, or other tax experts for the performance of any action that such persons, respectively, may lawfully perform in the computation, reporting, or making of tax returns, or in negotiations or litigation that may be necessary for the final determination and payment of taxes, and may pay from the funds of the estate for such services [Prob. Code § 10801(b) (proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 902 (proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991); see also Estate of McMillin (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 121, 127, 292 P.2d 881 (payment of tax expert retained pursuant to former Prob. Code § 902 constitutes expense of administration entitled to priority under former Prob. Code § 950 (now see Prob. Code § 11420(a)(1))]. If, however, the personal representative hires a professional to perform "ordinary duties of being a personal representative," the professional's fee will be charged to the personal representative, or deducted from his or her compensation [see Estate of Brignole (1901) 133 Cal. 162, 164, 65 P. 294 (executor not permitted to pay his personal attorney for services classified as executor's work); Estate of Billings (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 426, 431-432, 278 Cal. Rptr. 439 (court deducted from personal representative's compensation that portion of accountant's fee attributable to "general probate accounting" as opposed to tax return preparation)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.130

§ 458D.130 Attorney's Fee or Compensation

[1] Ordinary Services

Former Prob. Code §§ 910 and 911 as they existed on June 30, 1991, continue to apply in those administration of estate proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850(b)]. Although many of the statutes in the former Probate Code were carried over intact into the current code (Stats. 1990, ch. 79), or with minor changes and with the same code number, the compensation of personal representatives and their attorneys in the current code is governed by Prob. Code §§ 10800-10850. These latter provisions do not apply in any administration of estate proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991 [Prob. Code § 10850(a)]. The words "fee" or "fees" used in former Prob. Code §§ 910 and 911 were changed to "compensation" in the current statutes.

For ordinary services, attorneys for personal representatives receive compensation based on the value of the estate, calculated using the same statutory formula as that used for calculating compensation of personal representatives [see Prob. Code § 10810 (proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 910 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991); see also Prob. Code § 10800 (compensation of personal representative for ordinary services; proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 901 (compensation of personal representative for ordinary services; proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991)]. For a general discussion of statutory compensation, see § 458D.121[4].

With respect to estates in which administration commenced on or after July 1, 1991, any agreement between the personal representative and the attorney for compensation greater than that provided by the Probate Code is void [see Prob. Code § 10813].

For discussion of when the attorney's compensation may be reduced because of unreasonable delay in the distribution and closing of the estate, see the discussion relating to personal representatives in § 458D.123.

[2] Attorney for Special Administrator

Subject to the limitations imposed by Prob. Code § 8547, the fees or compensation of a special administrator's attorney are fixed by the court [Prob. Code § 8547(a)]. The total fees or compensation paid to the attorneys both of the special administrator and of the general personal representative must not, together, exceed the sums provided as compensation for the ordinary and extraordinary services (discussed in § 458D.132[1]) of attorneys for personal representatives. When the same attorney does not act for both the special administrator and general personal representative, the fees or compensation must be divided between the attorneys in such proportions as the court determines to be just or as agreed to by the attorneys [Prob. Code § 8547(c)].

[3] Attorney for Public Administrator

The attorney for the public administrator is entitled to receive the same compensation as Prob. Code § 7000 et seq. grants to an attorney for a personal representative generally. However, the compensation of the public administrator's attorney may not be less than the compensation in effect at the time of the public administrator's appointment or $1,000 (the minimum amount provided in Prob. Code § 7666(b)), whichever is greater [Prob. Code § 7622(b)]. The compensation of a public administrator's attorney under Prob. Code §§ 7660-7666 (summary disposition of small estates) is set forth in Prob. Code § 7666.

[4] Two or More Attorneys

There is only one statutory attorney fee for ordinary legal services to the personal representative, regardless of the number of attorneys performing the services [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.704(a)]. If there are two or more attorneys for the personal representative (whether successive or concurrent), the court must apportion the statutory attorney fee among them based on the attorneys' agreement or, if there is no agreement, according to the services actually rendered by each attorney [Prob. Code § 10814; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.704(a)].

If there has been a substitution of attorneys for the personal representative, notice of hearing of any interim or final petition seeking or waiving an award of statutory compensation must be given to all prior attorneys unless one of the following applies [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.704(b)]:

- A waiver of notice executed by all prior attorneys is on file or is filed with the petition.

- A written, signed agreement on the allocation of statutory fees between the present attorney and all prior attorneys is on file or is included in or filed with the petition.

- The court's file and the petition demonstrate that the fees of the prior attorneys have been previously provided for and allowed by the court.

[5] Payable by Estate

The personal representative is not liable for payment of the fee or compensation to the attorney hired to represent him or her in the administration proceedings; rather, the attorney must look to the estate for the fee or compensation [Houghton v. Coberly (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 820, 823-824, 20 Cal. Rptr. 489] .

[6] Standing to Sue

The attorney for the personal representative has standing to sue for his or her fee and to appeal from an order denying the fee in whole or in part [Estate of Merrill (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 520, 523, 175 P.2d 819 ; Estate of Lagersen (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 788, 791, 26 Cal. Rptr. 783 ; see also Prob. Code § 7240(l) (appeal from making or refusing to make order directing or allowing payment of attorney's fee)].

[7] Fee Agreement for Services Under Prob. Code §§ 13650-13660

The attorney's fees for services performed in connection with the filing of a petition and obtaining a court order under Prob. Code §§ 13650-13660 (petition that administration is not necessary for parts of the estate passing to the surviving spouse) are determined by private agreement between the attorney and the client, and are not subject to approval by the court [Prob. Code § 13660 (operative July 1, 1987)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesClaims By & AgainstEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewLegal EthicsClient RelationsAttorney FeesGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.131

§ 458D.131 Personal Representative Acting as Attorney

[1] In General

A personal representative who is also an attorney may receive the personal representative's compensation but may not receive compensation for acting as the attorney for the personal representative unless the court specifically approves the right to the compensation in advance and finds that the arrangement is to the advantage, benefit, and best interests of the estate [Prob. Code § 10804; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.706(a)].

Before January 1, 1994, an attorney could properly receive compensation both as personal representative and as attorney for the personal representative if the decedent left a will nominating the attorney as executor and the will expressly authorized such dual compensation [Estate of Thompson (1958) 50 Cal.2d 613, 616-617, 328 P.2d 1 ; Estate of Crouch (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 801, 802, 49 Cal. Rptr. 926] . Under the amendment of Prob. Code § 10804 that became operative on that date, however [see discussion in § 458D.131[1]], the rule barring an attorney from receiving dual compensation unless the arrangement is approved in advance by the court governs, even when the will contains a contrary provision [Prob. Code § 10804].

A law firm in which the personal representative is a partner or shareholder may request compensation for legal services in addition to the personal representative's compensation if a written agreement not to participate in each other's compensation, signed by the personal representative and by authorized representatives of the firm, has been filed in the estate proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.706(b)].

[2] Effect of Waiving Claim to Personal Representative's Commission

An attorney who elects to render services not only as personal representative but also as attorney for the personal representative cannot waive his or her compensation as executor and thereafter claim attorneys' fees. This is because the rule prohibiting an attorney-personal representative from receiving attorneys' fees [see Prob. Code § 10804 and discussion in § 458D.131[1]] is based on public policy, and private waivers are ineffective to controvert public policy [Estate of Hart (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 634, 639, 22 Cal. Rptr. 495] .

[3] When Personal Representative and Attorney Are Law Partners

Before January 1, 1994, it was possible for an attorney to receive compensation as personal representative and for the attorney's law firm to receive compensation as attorneys for the personal representative if the attorney and the firm agreed that the attorney would not receive any part of the attorney's fees [Estate of Parker (1926) 200 Cal. 132, 137, 251 P. 907] . The amendment of Prob. Code § 10804 that became operative on that date [for discussion, see § 458D.131[1]] does notdirectly address this question. It can be logically argued that, when the attorney and the law firm agree not to share the attorney's fees, the attorney is not "receiving" any part of those fees and the statute is not violated. Whether the courts will find this argument persuasive remains to be seen. If an agreement of this kind is made, however, it should be in writing and filed with the court, since in the absence of proof to the contrary the court may presume that the fees will be shared [Estate of Parker (1926) 200 Cal. 132, 138, 251 P. 907] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.132

§ 458D.132 Extraordinary Services by Attorney

[1] In General

Attorneys for personal representatives are allowed out of the estate, in addition to the fee for ordinary services, such further amount as the court may deem just and reasonable for extraordinary services [Prob. Code § 10811(a); former Prob. Code § 910; see also Prob. Code § 9651, discussed in § 458D.127[3][d]]. These services include extraordinary services rendered by a paralegal under the direction and supervision of an attorney, in which event the petition or application for compensation must set forth the hours spent and services performed by the paralegal [see Prob. Code § 10811(b); former Prob. Code § 910].

If the attorney is obliged to render an account because the personal representative has died, become incapacitated, or absconded (see Prob. Code § 10953, discussed in § 458D.31[3]), the court is required to allow the attorney added compensation for this "extraordinary service" [Prob. Code § 10953(d)]. Furthermore, this extraordinary service includes services rendered by a paralegal under the direction and supervision of the attorney [see Prob. Code § 10953(d)].

Extraordinary services for which the attorney may apply to the court for compensation include those services rendered by any paralegal performing the extraordinary services under the direction and supervision of the attorney, but the petition or application for compensation must set forth the hours spent and services performed by the paralegal [Prob. Code § 10811(b)]. Fees of an attorney for extraordinary services to a special administrator may be awarded in the same manner and subject to the same standards as extraordinary services to a general personal representative, except that the award of fees to the attorney may be made on settlement of the final account of the special administrator [Prob. Code § 8547(d)].

[2] Services Rendered on Contingent Fee Basis

An attorney for a personal representative may agree to perform extraordinary services on a contingent fee basis [Prob. Code § 10811(c); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.703(d)]. Any contingent fee agreement must be in writing and comply with all of the requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6147 [Prob. Code § 10811(c)(1); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.703(d)(1); for discussion of contingent fee agreement requirements, see Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics].

Any contingent fee agreement signed with the attorney for the personal representative must be approved by the court after notice has been given to all of the persons entitled to notice in the proceedings [Prob. Code § 10811(c)(2); see Prob. Code §§ 1220, 10812]. The court must determine that the compensation provided in the agreement is just and reasonable and that the agreement is to the advantage of the estate and in the best interests of the persons who are interested in the estate [Prob. Code § 10811(c)(3)]; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.703(d)(2)]. Absent an emergency or other unusual circumstances, the personal representative must obtain the court's approval of the agreement before services are performed under it [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.703(d)(3)].

[3] Considerations Regarding Allowance of Extraordinary Compensation

The matters considered by the court in making an allowance of extraordinary compensation with respect to the personal representative's right to claim extraordinary compensation have already been discussed [§ 458D.127[3]]. The same considerations apply in the case of extraordinary compensation for the personal representative's attorney [see Estate of Walker (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 792, 795, 34 Cal. Rptr. 832 ; see also Prob. Code § 10810; former Prob. Code § 910].

The following is a nonexclusive list of activities for which the attorney may be awarded extraordinary compensation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.703(c)]:

- Legal services in connection with the sale of property held in the estate.
- Services to secure a loan to pay estate debts.
- Litigation undertaken to benefit the estate or protect its interests.
- Defense of the personal representative's account or defense of a will that is contested after its admission to probate.
- Successful defense of a will that is contested before its admission to probate or successful defense of a personal representative in a removal proceeding.
- Extraordinary efforts to locate estate assets.
- Litigation in support of the attorney's request for extraordinary compensation when prior compensation awards are not adequate compensation under all of the circumstances.
- Coordination of ancillary administration.
- Accounting for a deceased, incapacitated, or absconded personal representative under Prob. Code § 10953.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewLegal EthicsClient RelationsAttorney FeesGeneral OverviewLegal EthicsClient RelationsAttorney FeesContingency Fees

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.133

§ 458D.133 Extraordinary Services Distinguished From Ordinary

Statutory commissions and fees are not gratuities, but are the compensation given by former Prob. Code §§ 900 and 910 (repealed by Stats. 1990, ch. 79, but continuing to apply to administration of estate proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; now see Prob. Code §§ 10800, 10802, 10810 (applicable in proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991, and using term "compensation" instead of "commissions" and "fees")) to the personal representative and the attorney for all services performed by them in their respective capacities from the commencement of probate proceedings until the estate is wound up and distributed, except those that are extraordinary in their nature, that is, services that are remarkable, uncommon, or rare [Estate of Getty (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 455, 465-466, 191 Cal. Rptr. 897 ; Estate of Buchman (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d 228, 235, 291 P.2d 547] . The personal representative and the attorney are entitled to statutory fees as a matter of right, and the fact that the estate is a simple one and the fees larger than would be adequate compensation for the work involved does not affect the right to the full statutory compensation [Estate of Getty (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 455, 466, 191 Cal. Rptr. 897 (involving largest estate ever probated in California at the time, $1,357,877,342, consisting of an essentially liquid, one-asset estate (stock), in which commissions and fees totaled $27,179,846); Estate of Buchman (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d 228, 235, 291 P.2d 547] . Conversely, if the estate is more complicated and requires more work, effort, and skill than is required in the simple estate, the nature of the services does not change from ordinary to extraordinary [Estate of Getty (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 455, 466, 191 Cal. Rptr. 897 ; Estate of Buchman (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d 228, 235, 291 P.2d 547] .

Fees in excess of the statutory fees are not a matter of right, but the court may and should, in determining whether or not to award them and their amount, take into consideration several factors, including whether or not the statutory fee constitutes adequate compensation not only for the ordinary services, but for the extraordinary services rendered; whether or not the service rendered was beneficial to the estate, and whether it was necessary; and the character of the service rendered--that is, was it performed in carrying out the ordinary duties of the personal representative, or was it in fact extraordinary [Estate of Buchman (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d 228, 235, 291 P.2d 547] .

The services rendered in reducing the estate to possession of the personal representative, the payment of claims, and the collection of debts are not extraordinary services, but are ordinarily performed by personal representatives and their counsel in the handling of the estate, unless the claims are contested in good faith or the debtor resists payment and litigation results [Estate of Buchman (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d 228, 235, 291 P.2d 547] .

Former Prob. Code § 902 covers the matter of extraordinary services of personal representatives. The section does not restrict the court in the allowance of extraordinary services to the matters expressly referred to in the section, but it does restrict the services for which extraordinary compensation may be awarded to matters of a similar kind to those enumerated in the statute; in other words, the section is descriptive of the general nature of the services for which extra compensation may be awarded [Estate of Buchman (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d 228, 236, 291 P.2d 547 (analyzing and categorizing as ordinary or extraordinary many items in an account)]. The examples of extraordinary services listed in former Prob. Code § 902 were not carried over into the successor statute (Prob. Code § 10801) in the new code.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.134

§ 458D.134 Use of Paralegals in Performance of Extraordinary Services

Extraordinary legal services may include the services of a paralegal acting under an attorney's direction and supervision [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.703(e)]. A request for extraordinary legal fees for a paralegal's services must: (1) describe the paralegal's qualifications (including education, certification, continuing education, and experience); (2) state the hours the paralegal spent and the hourly rate requested for the paralegal's services; (3) described the services the paralegal performed; (4) state why it was appropriate to use the paralegal's services in the particular case; and (5) demonstrate that the total amount requested for the attorney's and paralegal's extraordinary services does not exceed the amount appropriate if the attorney had performed the services without the paralegal's assistance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.703(e)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.135

§ 458D.135 No Advance Compensation

The personal representation may not pay or receive, and the attorney for the personal representative may not receive, statutory commissions or fees, or fees for extraordinary services in advance of a court order authorizing their payment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.700(a)]. In addition to removing the personal representative and imposing any other sanctions authorized by law against the personal representative or the attorney, the court may surcharge the personal representative for payment or receipt of statutory commissions or fees, or fees for extraordinary services, in advance of a court order authorizing their payment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.700(b)]. This surcharge may include interest at the legal rate from the date of payment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.700(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewLegal EthicsSanctionsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.136

§ 458D.136 Compensation Based on Provision in Will

If administration of estate proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991, and the decedent, in his or her will, made provisions for compensating the personal representative that differ from the statutory provisions, the compensation provided for by the decedent will be deemed full compensation to the personal representative, unless, by a written instrument filed in court, he or she renounces all claims for compensation provided for in the will [former Prob. Code § 900; see Prob. Code § 10850(b)].

With respect to estates in which administration is commenced on or after July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850(b)], if the decedent's will makes provision for compensation of the personal representative or the personal representative's attorney, the compensation provided in the will is the full and only compensation for the personal representative or attorney, except as otherwise provided in Prob. Code §§ 10802, 10812 [Prob. Code §§ 10802, 10812]. Those sections allow either the personal representative or the attorney to petition the court to be relieved of the will provision [Prob. Code §§ 10802(b) (personal representative), 10812(b) (attorney)], specify the notice of the hearing on the petition [Prob. Code §§ 10802(c), 10812(c)], and authorize the court to allow a greater amount than that provided in the will if the court determines that it is to the advantage of the estate and in the best interests of the persons interested in the estate to do so [Prob. Code §§ 10802(d), 10812(d)]. For a more detailed discussion of compensation based on a will provision, see California Probate Practice, ch. 26, § 26.05A (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.137

§ 458D.137 Petition to Fix and Allow Compensation for All Services Rendered on Filing of Final Account and Petition for Final Distribution

At the time the final account and petition for final distribution are filed, the personal representative may petition the court for an order fixing and allowing his or her compensation for all services rendered in the estate proceeding [Prob. Code § 10831(a)(1)]. Either the personal representative or his or her attorney may also petition the court for an order fixing and allowing the compensation of the attorney for all services rendered in the estate proceeding [Prob. Code § 10831(a)(2)]. The request for compensation may be included in the final account or the petition for distribution or may be made in a separate petition [Prob. Code § 10831(b)]. Notice must be given as provided in Prob. Code § 1220 to the persons listed in Prob. Code § 10831(c) [Prob. Code § 10831(c)]. On the hearing, the court must make an order fixing and allowing the compensation for all services rendered in the estate proceeding [Prob. Code § 10831(d)].

In the case of an allowance to the personal representative, the order must authorize the personal representative to charge against the estate the amount allowed, less any amount previously charged against the estate pursuant to Prob. Code § 10830 (allowance of compensation before final distribution) [Prob. Code § 10831(d)].

In the case of the attorney's compensation, the order must require the personal representative to pay the attorney out of the estate the amount allowed, less any amount paid to the attorney out of the estate pursuant to Prob. Code § 10830 [Prob. Code § 10831(d)].

Prob. Code § 10831 applies only in administration of estate proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850(a)]. The fixing and allowing of compensation of the personal representative and his or her attorney in proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991, are governed by former Prob. Code §§ 900-910 [see Prob. Code § 10850(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral

OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Compensation

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 458D.138-458D.149

[Reserved]

§§ 458D.138[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.150

§ 458D.150 Federal Statutes

Imposition and collection of federal estate tax. I.R.C. § 2001 et seq.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.151

§ 458D.151 Federal Administrative Regulations

Imposition and collection of federal estate tax. Treas. Reg. §§ 20.0-1-20.7101-1

Temporary estate tax regulations. Treas. Reg. §§ 22.0-24.1

Generation-skipping transfer tax. Treas. Reg. § 26.2601-1

Temporary generation-skipping transfer tax. Treas. Reg. § 26a.2621-1

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.152

§ 458D.152 State Statutes

[1] Accounts

Report or account as required to be in writing, signed by person making it, and filed. Prob. Code § 1020

Report, plan, or account and objections to it as required to be verified by person filing report, plan, account, or objections; exception. Prob. Code §§ 1021, 1023

Contents, schedules, format. Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064

Issuance, contents, and service of citation. Prob. Code §§ 1240-1242

Validity of allowed or approved claim as subject to contest by interested person before settlement of report or account in which claim is first reported, unless claim is established by a judgment; burden of proof. Prob. Code § 9254

Production by personal representative of supporting documents for inspection and audit. Prob. Code § 10901

Court-ordered account. Prob. Code § 10950

Personal representative as required to file final account and petition for final distribution of estate when estate is in condition to be closed. Prob. Code § 10951

Account after authority terminated. Prob. Code § 10952

Rendering and settlement of account when personal representative dies, absconds, or becomes incapacitated. Prob. Code § 10953

When account is not required. Prob. Code § 10954

Personal representative as required to give notice of hearing on account as provided in Prob. Code § 1220. Prob. Code § 11000(a)

Additional persons to whom notice must be given. Prob. Code § 11000(a)

If petition for approval of account requests fees, notice as required to so state. Prob. Code § 11000(b)

If final account is filed together with petition for order for final distribution, notice as required to so state. Prob. Code § 11000(c)

Contest of account. Prob. Code § 11001

Hearing on account. Prob. Code § 11002

Litigation expenses on contest of account. Prob. Code § 11003

In settling account, personal representative as allowed all necessary expenses in administration of estate. Prob. Code § 11004

Settlement of claim not properly filed. Prob. Code § 11005

Court or judge as required to compel account by punishment for contempt if personal representative fails to file required account. Prob. Code § 11050

Removal from office of personal representative who purposefully evades personal service of citation re contempt. Prob. Code § 11051

Removal from office, punishment for contempt, or both in discretion of court if personal representative does not appear and file required account after having been duly cited. Prob. Code § 11052

[2] Application of "New Law" and "Old Law"

"New law," "old law," and "operative date" defined. Prob. Code § 3(a)

Determining which law applies. Prob. Code § 3(b)-(h)

[3] Compensation

Compensation of public administrator and his or her attorney. Prob. Code §§ 7622(b), 7623, 7666

Compensation of special administrator and his or her attorney. Prob. Code § 8547

Services of representative and attorney in taking possession of property in good faith that is later determined not to be property of estate as compensable in specified circumstances. Prob. Code § 9651

Calculation of statutory compensation of personal representative. Prob. Code § 10800 (administration of estate proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 901 (proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991); see Prob. Code § 10850

Personal representative as entitled to additional compensation for extraordinary services. Prob. Code § 10801(a) (administration of estate proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 902 (proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991); see Prob. Code § 10850

Retention and payment of tax experts. Prob. Code § 10801(b) (proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 902 (proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991)

Provision for compensation stated in will as providing full compensation for personal representative unless claim for compensation under will is renounced in writing. Prob. Code § 10802 (administration of estate proceedings commenced on or afterJuly 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 900 (proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991); see Prob. Code § 10850

Contract between personal representative and heir, devisee, or legatee for higher compensation than provided in statute as void. Prob. Code § 10803 (administration of estate proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 903 (proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991); see Prob. Code § 10850

Attorney's fees for ordinary services; schedule of compensation allowed attorney. Prob. Code § 10810 (proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 910 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991)

Additional compensation allowed attorney for extraordinary services, including services performed by paralegal under direction of attorney. Prob. Code § 10811 (proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 910 (proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991)

Agreement between personal representative and attorney for higher compensation for attorney is void. Prob. Code § 10813 (proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991)

Partial allowance of compensation prior to distribution. Prob. Code § 10830 (administration of estate proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code §§ 904, 911 (proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991); see Prob. Code § 10850

Court on petition as fixing and allowing compensation for all services rendered on filing of final account and petition for final distribution. Prob. Code § 10831

Allowance before final distribution to personal representative of compensation for extraordinary services when any of specified requirements are met. Prob. Code § 10832

Legal representative or attorney is entitled to compensation for preparing account of absconding, deceased, or incapacitated personal representative. Prob. Code § 10953(d)

Attorney's fees for services performed in connection with filing of petition and obtaining court order under Prob. Code §§ 13650-13660 (property passing to surviving spouse) are determined by private agreement between attorney and client, and are not subject to approval by court. Prob. Code § 13660

Personal representative as entitled to statutory compensation and allowance for necessary expenses. Former Prob. Code § 900 (administration of estate proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991); see Prob. Code § 10850

[4] Final Distribution

[a] In General

Attachment of debtor's interest in personal property in decedent's estate as heir or devisee. Code Civ. Proc. § 488.485

Surviving spouse's waiver of rights to take. Prob. Code §§ 140-147

Rules for distribution under will or trust to members of different generations. Prob. Code §§ 245-247

Delayed distribution if there is posthumously conceived child of decedent. Prob. Code §§ 249.5-249.9

Prohibition against right to take of person who feloniously and intentionally killed decedent. Prob. Code §§ 250-257

Disclaimer of testamentary and other interests by or on behalf of beneficiary. Prob. Code §§ 260-295

Petition, report, or objection must be in writing, signed by all persons making it, and filed. Prob. Code § 1020

Verification of petition, report, and objection; exception. Prob. Code §§ 1021, 1023

Jurisdictional recitals in orders are not required except as otherwise provided in Probate Code. Prob. Code § 1047

Gift to subscribing witness to will is presumed to have been procured by duress, menace, fraud, or undue influence and, if presumption is not rebutted, witness takes only such proportion of devise as does not exceed share of estate that would have been distributed to witness had will not been established. Prob. Code § 6112

Provisions and dispositions in will revoked by subsequent dissolution or annulment of marriage unless will expressly provides otherwise. Prob. Code § 6122; see also Prob. Code § 6123

Except as otherwise provided in Prob. Code §§ 641 and 642 (relating to powers of appointment), unless contrary intention is indicated by will, will passes all property owned by testator at death including property acquired after execution of will. Prob. Code § 21105

Effect of testator's subsequent marriage on will executed before marriage. Prob. Code §§ 6560-6562

Omitted (pretermitted) children. Prob. Code §§ 6570-6573

Distribution of property in compliance with order for distribution is valid as to person acting in good faith and for valuable consideration. Prob. Code § 11750(c)

Interest and income accruing during administration. Prob. Code §§ 12000-12006

Discharge of personal representative. Prob. Code §§ 12250, 12251

Administration after final settlement. Prob. Code § 12252

Abatement of shares of gifts to beneficiaries. Prob. Code §§ 21400-21406

Transfer of decedent's motor vehicle without probate. Veh. Code § 5910

[b] Ademptions and Advancements

When property given during lifetime of person who dies intestate as to all or part of his or her estate is treated as advancement against that heir's share of intestate estate. Prob. Code § 6409

Change in form of securities. Prob. Code § 21132.

Unpaid proceeds of sale, condemnation, or insurance; property obtained as result of foreclosure. Prob. Code § 21133.

Ademption by satisfaction. Prob. Code § 21135.

Rules in Prob. Code §§ 21133-21135 not exhaustive. Prob. Code § 21139.

[c] Appeal

Appealable orders. Prob. Code § 7240

[d] California Personal Income Tax

Certificate of Franchise Tax Board is required if value of assets of estate at death of decedent and distributable to one or more nonresidents exceed amounts prescribed by board regulations. Rev. & Tax. Code § 19513

[e] Definitions

"Beneficiary" defined. Prob. Code § 24

"Community property" defined. Prob. Code § 28

"Devise" and "devisee" defined. Prob. Code §§ 32, 34

"Family allowance" defined. Prob. Code § 38

"Fiduciary" defined. Prob. Code § 39

"Heirs" defined. Prob. Code § 44

"Interested person" defined. Prob. Code § 48

"Issue" defined. Prob. Code § 50

"Personal representative" defined. Prob. Code § 58

"Predeceased spouse" defined. Prob. Code § 59

"Quasi-community property" defined. Prob. Code § 66

"Real property" defined. Prob. Code § 68

"Surviving spouse" defined. Prob. Code § 78

[f] Devises

Devises to minors subject to California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act (Prob. Code § 3900 et seq.). Prob. Code §§ 6340-6349

Probate Code rules for interpretation of instruments as applicable to wills, trusts, deeds, and other instruments. Prob. Code § 21101

[g] Interpretation of Instruments

Prob. Code §§ 21101 et seq. applicable to wills, trusts, deeds, and other instruments. Prob. Code § 21101

Intention of transferor controlling. Prob. Code § 21102

Choice of law. Prob. Code § 21103

"At-death transfer" is transfer that is revocable during transferor's lifetime, but does not include joint tenancy or joint account with right of survivorship. Prob. Code § 21104

Will passes all property testator owns at death. Prob. Code § 21105

Lapsed transfers. Prob. Code §§ 21109-21111

Transfers to "heirs," "heirs at law," "next of kin," "relatives," or "family," under intestate succession law. Prob. Code § 21114

Transfers to halfbloods, adopted persons, persons born out of wedlock, stepchildren, foster children, and the issue of these persons. Prob. Code § 21115

Classifications of at death transfers. Prob. Code § 21117

Valuation of property transferred in lieu of money at fair market value. Prob. Code § 21118

Preference for interpretation that will give effect to every expression in instrument; preference to testacy over intestacy. Prob. Code § 21120

All parts of instrument are to be construed in relation to each other. Prob. Code § 21121

Words in instrument must be given ordinary and grammatical meaning. Prob. Code § 21122

Exoneration and ademption of transfers. Prob. Code § 21131 et seq.

[h] Intestate Succession

Survivor's right to one half of community property, distribution of other half to survivor in case of intestacy. Prob. Code §§ 100(a), 6401(a)

Survivor's right to "quasi community" property. Prob. Code §§ 101(a), 6401(b)

Surviving spouse's right to restoration to decedent's estate of property, in which surviving spouse had expectancy under Prob. Code § 101, transferred without adequate consideration. Prob. Code § 102

Intestate distribution by representation based on nearest generation with living members. Prob. Code §§ 240, 241

Surviving spouse's intestate share of deceased spouse's separate property. Prob. Code § 6401(c)

Surviving domestic partner's intestate share of deceased partner's separate property. Prob. Code § 6401(c)

Surviving registered domestic partner has same rights, responsibilities, protections, and benefits as surviving spouse. Fam. Code § 297.5(c)

Descent of separate property to heirs other than surviving spouse or surviving domestic partner. Prob. Code § 6402

Distribution of portion of decedent's estate attributable to decedent's predeceased spouse. Prob. Code § 6402.5

Requirement that heir survive decedent. Prob. Code § 6403

Prob. Code §§ 6800-6806 (escheat) apply if there is no taker of intestate estate under Prob. Code §§ 6400-6414. Prob. Code § 6404

Inheritance rights of relatives of the half blood. Prob. Code § 6406

Inheritance by afterborn heirs. Prob. Code § 6407

Inheritance by alien. Prob. Code § 6411

Person related to decedent through two lines of relationship as entitled to only single share based on relationship that would entitle person to larger share. Prob. Code § 6413

Applicability, with respect to when decedent died, of Prob. Code § 6400 et seq.. Prob. Code § 6414

Right to intestate succession based on relationships between natural parent and natural child and adopted parent and adopted child. Prob. Code § 6450

Effect of adoption on right to intestate succession based on relationship between natural child and natural parent. Prob. Code § 6451

Right of parent and parent's relatives to intestate succession when natural child born out of wedlock. Prob. Code § 6452

Rules for determining whether person is natural parent for purposes of intestate succession. Prob. Code § 6453

Right to intestate succession based on relationship between stepparent and stepchild and foster parent and foster child. Prob. Code § 6454

Statutory recognition of judicial doctrine of equitable adoption. Prob. Code § 6455

Survivor's right to elect against will. Former Prob. Code § 201.7 (repealed operative January 1, 1985, but still applicable if decedent died before that date)

[i] Limitation on Time to Close Estate

Personal representative required to either petition for order for final distribution or to make report of status of administration within one year after letters issued if no federal tax return is required or within 18 months if federal tax return is required. Prob. Code § 12200

Content and filing of status of administration report. Prob. Code § 12201

Procedure when personal representative fails to petition for final distribution or make report as required by Prob. Code §§ 1200, 12201; effect of failure to comply with court order. Prob. Code §§ 12202, 12204

Continuation of administration to pay family allowance. Prob. Code § 12203

Sanction for failure to close estate in timely manner. Prob. Code § 12205

Limitation in will of time for administration of estate as directory only. Prob. Code § 12206

[j] Minors Generally

Distribution of $5,000 or less without court order to parent entitled to custody of minor when total estate of minor, including money or other property to be paid or delivered, does not exceed $5,000. Prob. Code §§ 3400-3402

Distribution on court order when minor has guardian of estate and sole asset of guardianship estate is money or when minor has no guardian of estate and there is money belonging to minor; procedure. Prob. Code § 3410-3412

California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act. Prob. Code § 3900 et seq.

[k] Nonresidents

Distribution of estates of nondomiciliary decedents. Prob. Code §§ 12500-12591

[l] Order for Distribution

Order for distribution is required to be entered at length in judgment book or other permanent record of court. Prob. Code § 1048(b)

Form and contents of order for distribution. Prob. Code § 11603

Order for distribution when final as conclusive as to rights of all interested persons. Prob. Code § 11605

Personal representative is required to file peition for, and court is required to make, order for final distribution if all debts have been paid or adequately provided for, or if estate is insolvent, and estate is in condition to be closed; otherwise, administration of estate may continue for reasonable time, subject to Prob. Code §§ 12200-12206 (limitation on time to close estate). Prob. Code § 11640

Personal representative must deliver to county treasurer certified copy of order for distribution if money is deposited or is already on deposit with county treasurer. Prob. Code § 11853

[m] Partition Before Distribution

Petition for partition of property before distribution. Prob. Code § 11950

Procedure for obtaining partition before distribution. Prob. Code §§ 11951-11955

[n] Procedure for Distribution

When petition, report, account, or other matter that requires hearing is filed, clerk must set matter for hearing. Prob. Code § 1041

Personal representative must file final account and petition for final distribution of estate when estate is in condition to be closed. Prob. Code § 10951

Either personal representative or interested person may petition court for order for final distribution of decedent's estate. Prob. Code § 11600

Notice of hearing on petition. Prob. Code § 11601

Personal representative or any interested person may oppose petition. Prob. Code § 11602; see also Prob. Code §§ 1020-1023, 1043 (objections to petition), 9630(d)(1) (opposition by one of two or more personal representatives)

When distribution is to be made to beneficiary's transferee or person other than beneficiary, under agreement, request, or instructions of beneficiary or beneficiary's attorney in fact, court is authorized to inquire into circumstances surrounding execution of, and consideration for, transfer, agreement, request, or instructions, and amount of any fees, charges, or consideration paid or agreed to be paid by beneficiary, and to refuse to order distribution, or to order distribution on terms it deems just and equitable, on finding that fees, etc., are grossly unreasonable, or transfer, agreement, request, or instructions, was obtained by duress, fraud, or undue influence. Prob. Code § 11604

Personal representative is authorized to immediately distribute property when order settling final account and for final distribution becomes final. Prob. Code § 11641

Distribution of property acquired or discovered after order for final distribution is made. Prob. Code § 11642

Personal representative is responsible for distribution of property in compliance with order for distribution. Prob. Code § 11750(a)

Distribution when beneficiary dies during administration. Prob. Code §§ 11801, 11802

[o] Property That Cannot be Distributed

Deposit with county treasurer of property that is unclaimed or when (1) whereabouts of distributee is unknown; (2) distributee refuses to accept or give receipt for property; (3) distributee is minor or incompetent person without guardian, conservator, or other fiduciary to receive property or person authorized to give receipt for property; or (4) for any other reason property cannot be distributed and personal representative desires discharge; procedure for making deposit and procedure for claiming money on deposit with county treasury. Prob. Code § 11850

Procedure for depositing property with county treasurer and procedure for claiming it. Prob. Code §§ 11851-11854

Distribution to State of California of property not ordered by court distributed to known beneficiaries and procedure for claiming it from state. Prob. Code §§ 11900-11903

Prohibition against depositing property in county treasury when any other property in estate has been or is to be distributed to State of California under Prob. Code §§ 1900-1904. Prob. Code § 11904

[p] Real Property

Personal representative must record in office of county recorder in which any portion of real property is situated certified copy of order distributing real property, or determining any other matter affecting title to real property in estate. Prob. Code § 7263

In case of real property, personal representative must record court order for distribution or personal representative's deed, or both, in county in which property is situated. Prob. Code § 11751

Certified copy of order for final distribution of real property to State of California must be recorded. Prob. Code § 11902(a)(3)

[q] Receipts for Property and Inventory of Life Tenant

Personal representative must obtain receipt for property from distributee. Prob. Code § 11751

Requirement that personal representative receive from distributee in possession of personal property for life only inventory of property and that, on receipt, inventory be filed with court and copy delivered to distributee of remainder. Prob. Code § 11752

Filing receipts and discharge of personal representative. Prob. Code § 11753

[r] Right of Distributee

Distributee is entitled to demand, sue for, and recover distributive share. Prob. Code § 11750(b)

[5] Notices Generally

General notice provisions. Prob. Code §§ 1200-1209

Statutory form of notice. Prob. Code § 1211

Mailing notices in general. Prob. Code §§ 1215-1217

Mode of mailing notice of hearing. Prob. Code § 1220

Requests for special notice. Prob. Code §§ 1250-1252

Proof of giving notice. Prob. Code §§ 1260-1265

[6] Taxes

[a] When Decedent Died Before January 1, 1987

Federal or California estate tax to be prorated among beneficiaries. Former Prob. Code § 970

Court to make proration of federal estate tax. Former Prob. Code § 971

In prorating federal or California estate tax, court to make allowance for exempt property. Former Prob. Code § 972

Proration of federal or California estate tax when trust created. Former Prob. Code § 973

Federal estate tax must be paid, or agreement for payment must be filed, before court makes distribution. Former Prob. Code § 974

Duty of personal representative to recover tax when property is not in his or herpossession is included in gross estate for purpose of calculating federal estate tax. Former Prob. Code § 975

Court to order personal representative to charge beneficiaries with prorated portions of federal estate tax. Former Prob. Code § 976

Definitions of "person interested in the estate" and "gross estate" as used in former Prob. Code §§ 970-976. Former Prob. Code § 977

Release of personal property tax. Former Prob. Code § 1024

[b] When Decedent Died on or After January 1, 1987

Definitions relating to proration of estate taxes. Prob. Code § 20100

Federal and state estate taxes are prorated among persons interested in estate. Prob. Code § 20110

Manner of proration. Prob. Code § 20111

In making proration of federal and state estate taxes, allowances must be made for enumerated credits, exemptions, and deductions. Prob. Code § 20112

If trust is created, or other provision made whereby person is given temporary interest, in any property, estate tax on both temporary interest and remainder is charged against corpus of property without apportionment. Prob. Code § 20113

Proration of additional tax on certain qualified real property. Prob. Code § 20114

Proration of additional tax on excess retirement accumulations. Prob. Code § 20114.5

Proration of extended estate tax. Prob. Code § 20115

Personal representative not in possession of all property must recover proportionate amount of estate tax from persons interested in estate. Prob. Code § 20116

Right of reimbursement of person charged with or required to pay estate tax greater than amount prorated to that person because another person does not pay. Prob. Code § 20117

Judicial proceeding to determine proration. Prob. Code §§ 20120-20125

Court is to direct personal representative in possession of any property or interests of persons against whom estate tax has been prorated to charge prorated amounts against those persons, and to summarily direct all other persons to make payment of prorated amounts to personal representative. Prob. Code § 20123

Proration of taxes on generation-skipping transfer. Prob. Code §§ 20200-20225

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawPowers of AppointmentEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawWillsInterpretationRules of ConstructionConflicts of Laws

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.153

§ 458D.153 California Rules of Court

Listings required for petition for final distribution when acting under Independent Administration of Estates Act. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 7.250, 7.403

Effect of waiver of account. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.550

Decree of distribution of testamentary trust. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.650

No advance compensation. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.700

Allowance on account of statutory compensation. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.701

Petition for extraordinary compensation. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.702

Examples of extraordinary services by personal representative. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.703(b)

Examples of extraordinary services by attorney. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.703(c)

Contingency fee agreement for extraordinary legal services. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.703(d)

Use of paralegals in performance of extraordinary services. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.703(e)

Apportionment of statutory compensation between two or more personal representatives or between two or more attorneys. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.704

Calculation of statutory compensation. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.705

Compensation when personal representative is an attorney. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.706

Application of compensation provisions. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.707

Objections or responses waived if not timely filed after matter continued to allow for their filing. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.801

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewLegal EthicsClient RelationsAttorney FeesContingency Fees

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.154

§ 458D.154 Local Rules of Court

[1] Administration Costs to Be Paid.

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.108

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.09

[2] Allegations in Petition for Final Distribution Relating to Independent Acts

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.95(B)

[3] Allegations re Claims

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.17

Contra Costa Co. Prob. Pol. Man., § 610

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.107

Marin Co. Rule, Probate 5.49

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.08

San Bernardino Co. Prob. Pol. Mem., §§ 701, 907

San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. IV, Rule 1.98

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.95(A)

[4] Assignment by Heir, Devisee, or Legatee, and Agreements for Distribution

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.10

Marin Co. Rule, Probate 5.50

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.16

Sacramento Co. Local Ct. Rules, Rule 15.70

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.87, 14.88

[5] Attorney's Fees to Be Fixed by Court

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.10.1

San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. IV, Rule 1.112

[6] Basis for Compensation When Account Waived

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.10.4

[7] Caption of Petitions to Be All-Inclusive as to Relief Sought

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.9

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 601.05

[8] Character of Property to Be Distributed Must Be Listed

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.114

Marin Co. Rule, Probate 5.49

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.12

Sacramento Co. Local Ct. Rules, Rule 15.68

San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. IV, Rule 1.102

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.86

[9] Claims and Debts to Be Itemized in Petitions for Final Distribution

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.95(a)

Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 5.9

[10] Community Property as Factor in Calculation of Compensation

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.10.10

[11] Computation of Statutory Compensation

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.142

Marin Co. Rule, Probate 5.84

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.03

Sacramento Co. Local Ct. Rules, Rule 15.63

San Bernardino Co. Prob. Pol. Mem., § 906

[12] Debts Paid Without Verified Claims

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.7.10

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.86, 10.112

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.08

San Bernardino Co. Prob. Pol. Mem., § 907

[13] Description of Heirs in Case of Intestacy

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.4

Marin Co. Rule, Probate 5.55

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.93

[14] Determination of Statutory Fees

Contra Costa Co. Prob. Pol. Man., § 605

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.142

Sacramento Co. Local Ct. Rules, Rule 15.66

San Bernardino Co. Prob. Pol. Mem., § 906

San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. IV, Rule 1.114

[15] Distributees to Be Named

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.2.1

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.85

[16] Distribution in Case of Minor, Deceased Distributee, or Missing Heir

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.11-12.11.13

Marin Co. Rule, Probate 5.52, 5.54, 5.56

Sacramento Co. Local Ct. Rules, Rule 15.71

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.90, 14.92

[17] Distribution in Case of Civil Suit Pending Against Estate

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.14

[18] Distribution to Persons Under Conservatorship or Guardianship

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.89

[19] Distribution Under Prob. Code § 6402.5

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.5

[20] Extraordinary Fees

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.10.6

Marin Co. Rule, Probate 5.86

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.03-608.05

Sacramento Co. Local Ct. Rules, Rule 15.65

San Bernardino Co. Prob. Pol. Mem., § 906

San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. IV, Rule 1.115

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.108

[21] Federal Estate Tax to Be Paid Before Distribution

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.15

Marin Co. Rule, Probate 5.49

[22] Fees to Be Stated Even Though Account Waived

Alameda Unified Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.10.2

Contra Costa Co. Prob. Pol. Man., § 605

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.110, 10.135

Marin Co. Rule Probate 5.48, 5.86

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.03

Sacramento Co. Local Ct. Rules, Rule 15.63

San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. IV, Rule 1.100

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.107

[23] Form of Order for Final Distribution

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.7

Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 5.9(I)

[24] Franchise Tax Board Certificate Under Rev. & Tax. Code § 19513 Required When Appropriate

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.16

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.126(a)

Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 5.9(C)

[25] Interest on General Pecuniary Legacies

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.94

[26] Payment of Interest on Funeral Claims

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.7.7

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.84

San Bernardino Co. Prob. Pol. Mem., § 706

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.61

[27] Pleadings to Be Signed by Personal Representative

Contra Costa Co. Prob. Pol. Man., § 104

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.12

San Bernardino Co. Prob. Pol. Mem., § 903

San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. IV, Rule 1.10

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.25

[28] Property to Be Distributed to Be Listed

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.1

Contra Costa Co. Prob. Pol. Man., § 602

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.111

Marin Co. Rule, Probate 5.48

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.20

Sacramento Co. Local Ct. Rules, Rule 15.68

San Bernardino Co. Prob. Pol. Mem., § 908

San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. IV, Rule 1.101

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.85

[29] Proposed Distribution to Be Indicated

Marin Co. Rule, Probate 5.48

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.85

[30] Provision of Order in Case of Distribution to Trustee

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.8, 12.11.9

Marin Co. Rule, Probate 5.53

[31] Reporting Income and Principal

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.77

[32] Required Form of Accounts

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.9.1-12.9.5

Contra Costa Co. Prob. Pol. Man., § 603

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.106

Marin Co. Rule, Probate 5.42

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.01, 608.20

Sacramento Co. Local Ct. Rules, Rule 15.60

San Bernardino Co. Prob. Pol. Mem., § 901

San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. IV, Rule 1.95

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.74 et seq.

[33] Required Use of Judicial Council or Local Forms

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 601.02

[34] Waiver of Account

Alameda Co. Unified Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.9.5

Marin Co. Rule, Probate 5.45

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.02

Sacramento Co. Local Ct. Rules, Rule 15.62

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.81

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawCommunity PropertyGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust

LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewFamily LawMarital Duties & RightsProperty RightsCharacterizationCommunity Property

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.155

§ 458D.155 Decisions

[1] Accounts

[a] In General

Matters stated in account need not be stated with nicety, precision, and detail required in pleadings in civil actions; claims to be set out with sufficient certainty to identify them accurately so as to pass on their validity. Estate of McKenzie (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 393, 398, 18 Cal. Rptr. 680

Court as authorized in appropriate case to require personal representative to account for property in foreign jurisdiction of which personal representative took control, and to account for transactions relating to such property. Estate of Barreiro (1932) 125 Cal. App. 752, 767, 14 P.2d 786 (personal representative held accountable for property of foreign corporation wholly owned by decedent)

[b] Contesting Account

[i] In General

Doubts regarding whether person has sufficient interest within meaning of former Prob. Code § 927 (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199; now see Prob. Code §§ 48, 1041, 1043, 11001) to object to executor's account as required to be resolved in favor of party claiming interest in estate. Estate of McMillin (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 121, 127, 292 P.2d 881 ; Estate of Reinicke (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 271, 273-274, 112 P.2d 311

[ii] Persons Who May Object

Administrator of estate as entitled to file written objections to account rendered by coadministrator on ground of fraudulent administration, regardless of fact that objecting administrator participated in fraud. Estate of Auslender (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 615, 627-628, 2 Cal. Rptr. 769, 349 P.2d 537

Creditor of decedent as interested person within meaning of former Prob. Code § 927 (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199; now see Prob. Code §§ 48(a)(1) (defining "interested person" as including creditor), 1041, 1043 ("interested person" as authorized to appear and make response or objection to account), and 11001 (contest of account)) entitled to except to administrator's account, and such person as not required to be creditor of decedent by virtue of contractual relationship created by decedent during his or her lifetime; pivotal question as being whether he or she is creditor of estate as distinguished from creditor of personal representative. Estate of McMillin (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 121, 127, 292 P.2d 881

Attorney for personal representative, being entitled to statutory allowance "out of the estate" [Prob. Code § 910 (repealed by Stats. 1990, ch. 79, but continuing to apply in administration of estate proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 900(a)]); now see Prob. Code § 10830(a)(2) (applying in proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991)], as person "interested in the estate" under former Prob. Code § 927 (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199; now see Prob. Code §§ 48, 1041, 1043, 11001) entitled to file written exceptions to personal representative's account. Estate of McMillin (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 121, 127, 292 P.2d 881

Because Prob. Code § 902 (repealed by Stats. 1990, ch. 79, but continuing to apply in administration of estate proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 900(a)]) authorizes personal representative to employ tax experts to do tax work and to pay experts from funds of estate for such services, tax expert so employed as having demand against estate, as contemplated by former Prob. Code § 950 (order of payment of claims) (repealed by Stats. 1987, ch. 923, operative July 1, 1988; now see Prob. Code § 11420 (priority for payment)), entitling him or her to object to administrator's final account that fails to provide for payment for his or her services. Estate of McMillin (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 121, 126-128, 292 P.2d 881

"Interested person" within meaning of former Prob. Code § 927 (who may contest account) (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199; now see Prob. Code §§ 48, 1041, 1043, 11001) as including creditor whose claim was rejected and whose civil action to collect it is pending; obtaining final judgment on rejected claim as not necessary in order to contest account. Estate of Mailhebuau (1933) 218 Cal. 202, 204, 22 P.2d 514

Assignee or grantee of property of an estate as having same right to object toadministrator's account that assignor or grantor would have had as heir. Estate of Ross (1918) 179 Cal. 358, 359, 182 P. 303

Heirs at law of beneficiary named in decedent's will as persons "interested in the estate" under former Prob. Code § 927 (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199; now see Prob. Code §§ 48, 1041, 1043, 11001) entitling them to file written objections to personal representative's account when beneficiary predeceased decedent whose will gave portion of decedent's estate to beneficiary or his heirs. Estate of Cummings (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 801, 803, 11 Cal. Rptr. 465 (nevertheless affirming judgment overruling objections on ground objectors were not aggrieved by matters objected to)

Residuary legatee of estate in which there is no residue as "interested person" entitled to file written exceptions to personal representative's account. Estate of Harrison (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 12, 15-16, 228 P.2d 881

Judgment creditor of sole beneficiary under will whose judgment exceeds total value of estate and who has levied execution on beneficiary's interest, as "an interested person" within meaning of former Prob. Code § 927 (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199; now see Prob. Code §§ 48, 1041, 1043, 11001) who may file objections to administrator's account. Estate of Reinicke (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 271, 272-274, 112 P.2d 311 ; see also Estate of Lind (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 291, 293, 34 P.2d 486

"Interested person" under former Prob. Code § 927 (who may contest account) (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199; now see Prob. Code §§ 48, 1041, 1043, 11001) as any person named as beneficiary in decedent's will, including person having contingent future interest as well as person having vested interest. Estate of Brown (1938) 24 Cal. App. 2d 573,

574-575, 75 P.2d 658

[iii] Persons Who May Not Object

Fact that person asserting adverse interest to estate is claiming more than total assets of estate as not making person "a person interested in the estate" within meaning of former Prob. Code § 927 (who may contest account) (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199; now see Prob. Code §§ 48, 1041, 1043, 11001) so as to be entitled to be heard in opposition to administrator's account; lack of necessary interest as arising from nature of claim, not its extent. Estate of Hart (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 819, 824-825, 337 P.2d 73

Person claiming adversely to estate as not person "interested in the estate" under former Prob. Code § 927 (who may contest account) (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199; now see Prob. Code §§ 48, 1041, 1043, 11001) and as not entitled to file written exceptions to personal representative's account. Estate of Hart (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 819, 824, 337 P.2d 73

Executor of predeceased husband's estate as not a person interested in estate of wife so as to be entitled to file written exceptions to account on ground that property claimed to belong in wife's estate was in fact property of predeceased husband. Estate of Zavadil (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 32, 36, 19 Cal. Rptr. 132

[iv] Pleading

Term "written exceptions," as used in former Prob. Code § 927 (who may contest account) (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199; now see Prob. Code §§ 48, 1041, 1043, 11001) as to be given broad scope, in absence of statutory limitations; thus, written exceptions as properly including exceptions not only to what is affirmatively stated in account, but also to what is omitted therefrom, and as properly praying that account be surcharged with what is omitted. Estate of McMillin (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 121, 128, 292 P.2d 881

Contestant's pleading as properly called either "objections" or "exceptions" to account. Estate of McMillin (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 121, 127, 292 P.2d 881 (decided under former law); Estate of Pardue (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 918, 920, 135 P.2d 394 (same, pointing out that two words are equivalent terms)

Probate Code contains no provision for filing any pleading in proceeding for settlement of account other than written exceptions to account. Estate of Smith (1937) 23 Cal. App. 2d 383, 388, 73 P.2d 239 (applying former Prob. Code § 927 (who may contest account) (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199; now see Prob. Code §§ 48, 1041, 1043, 11001) and affirming order striking cross complaint)

[v] Procedure

Heirs and legatees who fail to appear on settlement of account are considered to consent that account may be settled. Estate of Kent (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 154, 164, 57 P.2d 901

Failure of contestant in written exceptions to specifically allege objections constituting new and affirmative matter in opposition to account as waiver of objections not so alleged. Estate of Kirkpatrick (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 709, 713, 241 P.2d 555

Contestants are limited by exceptions presented, and evidence is limited accordingly; while it is duty of court to scrutinize account and correct all errors in it, it is only when independent investigation is set on foot by court that rule limiting evidence is inapplicable. Estate of Roberts (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 71, 81, 120 P.2d 933 , quoting from Estate of Mallory (1929) 99 Cal. App. 96, 102, 278 P. 488

Contestant who does not cross examine personal representative on testimony that account is true and correct and that all debts paid were justly due is precluded from questioning account for first time on appeal. Estate of Rindge (1934) 136 Cal. App. 263, 267, 28 P.2d 705

Person who does not appear and contest account is not entitled to appeal from order settling account. Estate of Vizelich (1932) 123 Cal. App. 651, 653, 11 P.2d 870

[c] Hearing on Settlement of Account

[i] Issues

Issues at hearing on settlement of account, in absence of independent inquiry by court, is limited by account and report on the one hand and written exceptions on the other. Estate of Fraysher (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 131, 139, 301 P.2d 848

Court sitting in probate is without authority to determine title to property in dispute between heirs, devisees, or estate on the one hand and stranger to estate on the other, but is authorized in settling final account to determine title claimed bypersonal representative adversely to estate. Waterland v. Superior Court of Sacramento County (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 34, 38-39, 98 P.2d 211

Court is without authority, in hearing on settlement of final account, to allow credit for money advanced to distributees without court order, but is authorized to consider and allow such a credit in hearing on petition for final distribution. Estate of Benett (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 354, 362, 90 P.2d 84

If, after conducting evidentiary hearing, probate court concludes any one of petitioners' grounds for invalidating a settlement and assignment has merit, court has discretion to either modify parties' agreement or rescind it. Estate of Bennett (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1303, 1311, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 435

Function of court in settling account is to determine what property is in hands of personal representative. Estate of Chamberlain (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 193, 204, 112 P.2d 53

Court settling account is authorized to determine amount of money or property of estate coming into hands of personal representative and to charge personal representative therewith adversely to his or her individual claim or right against estate if that is the case. Estate of Chamberlain (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 193, 204, 112 P.2d 53

Whether personal representative unreasonably delayed payment of legacies and should be charged with interest because of delay are issues to be determined in settlement of final account. Estate of Reed (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 94, 96, 48 P.2d 177

Propriety of personal representative having made advances on distributive shares of estate in absence of any prior order for partial distribution is not an issue to be determined on settlement of account; rather, issue is to be determined in hearing on distribution, either preliminary or final. Estate of Guglielmi (1934) 138 Cal. App. 80, 91, 31 P.2d 1078

[ii] Parties

Probate administrator's surety permitted to participate as interested person under Prob. Code § 48, without intervening under procedures set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 387, in probate hearing on final account and petition for final distribution in which creditor requested that special administrator be personally surcharged for estate's insolvency. Estate of Davis (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 663, 667-668, 268 Cal. Rptr. 384 .

[iii] Procedure

Court is entitled but not required to settle account in accordance with stipulation respecting it; stipulation respecting account is not binding on court, which by statute has authority to settle accounts of personal representatives, free from control of any parties. Estate of Richards (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 259, 269, 109 P.2d 923 (applying former Prob. Code §§ 920-932 (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199, operative July 1, 1989; now see Prob. Code §§ 10900 et seq.))

Court has duty, when sitting in probate, to scrutinize final account and to disallow any item not a proper and legal charge against estate, whether or not any person contests account. Estate of Bennett (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 354, 368, 90 P.2d 84

Reservation of ruling not recommended when it threatens to cause indefinite postponement of distribution and possibly complete divestiture of devisee's claim under decedent's will. Estate of Shannon (1941) 43 Cal. App. 2d 425, 428-429, 110 P.2d 1017

Court is required, even when account is not contested, to satisfy itself that account is correct, and is authorized to require personal representative to produce such evidence, within reason, as will satisfy court in this respect. In re Estate of Barreiro (1932) 125 Cal. App. 752, 773-774

Court authorized to reserve ruling on any portion of account as to which court deems evidence of propriety and reasonableness to be unsatisfactory or incomplete. In re Estate of Barreiro (1932) 125 Cal. App. 752, 774, 14 P.2d 786

[d] Order Settling Account

After probate court has issued judgment approving administrator's final account at hearing of which legatees had notice and at which they appeared and objected, and from which approval they failed to appeal, and has discharged administrator, legatees are collaterally estopped from seeking damages from administrator for imprudently negotiating settlement and reimbursement agreements on behalf of estate when those claims were settled and resolved by judgment of probate court approving account; legatees further prohibited from claiming damages against administrator, because administrator owed no duty to legatees and could not be held liable to them in negligence. Goldberg v. Frye (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1258, 1263-1264, 266 Cal. Rptr. 483 .

Order settling final account is conclusive against all persons interested in estate, including minors or other persons who might have moved before distribution for reopening account, when distribution has been made and judgment has become final. Carr v. Bank of America etc. Assn. (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 366, 371, 79 P.2d 1096 (decided under former Prob. Code § 931; see Prob. Code § 7250)

Order settling and allowing account is subject to being set aside in proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 for purpose of correcting clerical mistake, even though it has become final. Estate of Soboslay (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 177, 179, 47 P.2d 714

Probate court's approval of final accounting, that survives on appeal, is conclusive as to personal representative's veracity and exercise of due care. Estate of Regli (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 878, 881, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 514

Order settling one account, which has become final, does not conclude objections to later account covering payments after the earlier account had been settled, even though objections are identical to those overruled in order settling earlier account. Estate of Mailhebuau (1933) 218 Cal. 202, 205, 22 P.2d 514

Minute order, even though there is no direction in it for preparation of written order, is not the appealable order under former Rules on Appeal, Rule 2(b)(2) (now Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104) if it omits any essential portion of a valid order, such as findings when necessary; thus, minute order settling account and allowing fees for extraordinary services is not appealable when it omits essential finding that required notice of hearing was given. Estate of Mills (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 83, 83-84, 243 P.2d 889 (applying former Prob. Code § 1200 (repealed by Stats. 1987, ch. 923, operative July 1, 1988; now see Prob. Code §§ 1260, 11000-11005))

Court not required to adopt formal findings on settlement of personal representatives' accounts. Estate of Bell (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 333, 339, 136 P.2d 804 , citing Estate of Machado (1921) 186 Cal. 246, 248, 251, 199 P. 505

Finding in judgment settling final account that notice was given as required by law is correct for purpose of appeal, unless contrary evidence appears in record. Estate of Bell (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 333, 338, 136 P.2d 804

[e] Reopening Account

Cause for reopening account by minor grandchildren under former Code Civ. Proc. § 1637 (repealed; now see Prob. Code § 11006) not shown when only objection to account was that it reflected earlier distribution made pursuant to valid order that had be come final and, therefore, conclusive. Gladding v. Superior Court (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 408, 418, 60 P.2d 857

[f] Waiver of Account

Waiver of account properly conditioned on court's approval of plan of distribution requested in petition for final distribution. Estate of Simmons (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 217, 223, 49 Cal. Rptr. 369, 411 P.2d 97

Waiver of account is not of statutory origin but is permitted by case law; remedy of person interested in estate disaffected by waiver as objection to distribution under former Prob. Code § 1000 (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199, operative July 1, 1989; now see Prob. Code §§ 11600-11624), on ground account has not been settled. Estate of Moore (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 945, 951, 61 Cal. Rptr. 722 (decided prior to enactment of former Prob. Code § 933 by Stats. 1984, ch. 451 (repealed operative July 1, 1989; now see Prob. Code § 10954; see also Prob. Code § 900(b), (c), as to version of Prob. Code § 10954 applicable in administration of estate proceedings), setting forth circumstances in which account is not required, including waiver)

[2] Compensation

[a] In General

1987 modification of statutory fee schedule for personal representatives and attorneys, lowering statutory fees computed on value of estate between $10 million and $25 million to one-half of one percent and changing statutory fee on value of estate over $25 million from one percent to reasonable amount to be determined by court, not retroactively applicable to impair integrity of previous partial statutory fee orders. Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 907-908, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491

Delay in settling estate is not ground for denying compensation to personal representative or attorney if otherwise justified by services rendered. Estate of Taylor (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 855, 860, 59 Cal. Rptr. 437, 428 P.2d 301 (now see Prob. Code § 12205 for sanctions that may be imposed for failure to timely close estate)

Right of personal representative and attorney to commission and fee is absolute but as not accruing until order for payment is made. Estate of Johnston (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 265, 272, 303 P.2d 1

Commission of personal representative and fee of attorney as not founded on contract but arises from statute. Estate of Johnston (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 265, 272, 303 P.2d 1

Allowance of compensation as made in and by settlement of final account. Dobbins v. Title Guar. & Trust Co. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 64, 69-70, 136 P.2d 572

Court has no power to depart from statutory scheme for commissions and fees and has no authority to impose standard of reasonableness in such matters, although estate was largest estate probated in California to date and consisted primarily of stock in a single corporation. Estate of Getty (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 455, 465-466, 191 Cal. Rptr. 897

Statutory compensation provisions [Prob. Code §§ 901, 910] are exempt from Sherman Anti-Trust Law because set fee program derives its authority and efficacy from legislative command of state. Estate of Effron (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 915, 922-927, 173 Cal. Rptr. 93 , appeal dismissed, 454 U.S. 1070, 102 S. Ct. 622, 70 L. Ed. 2d 606 (1981)

Nature of statutory compensation analyzed and explained. Estate of Buchman (1955) 138 Cal. App. 2d 228, 235-236, 291 P.2d 547 (analyzing and categorizing as ordinary or extraordinary many items in an account)

Order describing amount of extraordinary compensation allowed in terms of percentage rather than dollar amount is void. Estate of Rowe (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 594, 603-606, 152 P.2d 765 (disapproved on another point by Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. McConnell (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 715, 726, 285 P.2d 636)

[b] Apportionment

Order settling final account and allowing entire amount of additional compensation for extraordinary services to one of two coexecutors having become final, as res judicata on issue of apportionment and binding on other coexecutor. Dobbins v. Title Guar. & Trust Co. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 64, 69-70, 136 P.2d 572

Probate court authorized under various circumstances to determine validity and effect of contracts when ancillary to proper judgment by it; thus, as necessary incident of its general power to apportion compensation on basis of services performed, probate court was obligated also to determine validity and effect of any agreement between coexecutors affecting apportionment. Dobbins v. Title Guar. & Trust Co. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 64, 67-69, 136 P.2d 572 (overruling In re Estate of Carter (1901) 132 Cal. 113, 64 P. 123 , and disapproving Kelly v. Conroy (1928) 91 Cal. App. 350, 266 P. 1022)

Requirement of former Prob. Code § 901 (repealed by Stats. 1990, ch. 79, but continuing to apply in administration proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code § 10805, applicable in proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991) that commission be apportioned when there are two or more personal representatives is applicable to compensation for extraordinary services as well as to statutory commission. Dobbins v. Title Guar. & Trust Co. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 64, 66-67, 136 P.2d 572

[c] Attorney of Personal Representative

Rules governing compensation of attorney for personal representative arise not from contract but are founded on statutory enactment; attorney who has rendered services to personal representative is permitted to petition court for order requiring representative to pay attorney out of estate; because attorney is person interestedin estate, petition is not required to be presented by representative but directly by attorney, who may appeal from adverse ruling; because attorney's right to compensation is statutory, court is not bound by compensation specified in employment contract between personal representative and attorney. Estate of Trynin (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 868, 873, 264 Cal. Rptr. 93, 782 P.2d 232

Compensation of attorney for extraordinary services includes work reasonably performed to establish and defend claim for compensation. Estate of Trynin (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 868, 880, 264 Cal. Rptr. 93, 782 P.2d 232

Final probate judgment finding that disputed fees were not expenses of estate did not bar law firm from making quantum meruit claim to recover fees for services rendered to client personally, and not as executor of estate; firm's evidence was sufficient to raise factual question as to whether firm reasonably expected to be paid by client personally. Miller v. Campbell (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1331, 1340, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 649

Court's discretion to deny attorney's request for extraordinary compensation when ordinary fees reasonably compensate attorney for both ordinary and extraordinary services actually rendered. Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 910, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491

Double compensation to attorney who serves as personal representative and represents himself in that capacity as allowable where decedent's will expressly provides that double compensation may be paid. Estate of Thompson (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 613, 615-617, 328 P.2d 1 (allowing double compensation); see also Estate of Scherer (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 133, 139, 136 P.2d 103

Refusal to make order directing or allowing attorney's fee in administration proceeding is appealable under former Prob. Code § 1240 (repealed by Stats. 1987, ch. 923, operative July 1, 1988; now see Prob. Code § 7240(l)). Estate of Merrill (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 520, 523, 175 P.2d 819

Attorney for personal representative has standing to sue for fee and to appeal from order denying fee in whole or in part. Estate of Merrill (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 520, 523, 175 P.2d 819 ; Estate of Lagersen (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 788, 791, 26 Cal. Rptr. 783

Rule that executor, being attorney, who acts as own attorney may not have allowance for professional services is rule of equity, not of law. Estate of Lankershim (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 568, 572, 58 P.2d 1282 (parties in interest estopped to deny administrator compensation for services as attorney, when administrator waived compensation for administration services and those parties allowed him to proceed)

Personal representative entitled to credit for fees paid to law firm of which he is a member and that served as attorney for him, if he and his partners agreed he would not share in money received by firm for such services. Estate of Parker (1926) 200 Cal. 132, 137, 251 P. 907

Attorney's fees paid by executor from estate for purpose of defending challenge to codicils are necessary expenses [former Prob. Code §§ 902, 910, repealed by Stats. 1990, ch. 79, but continuing to apply in administration proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code §§ 10800, 10801, applicable in proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991] given executor's duty to defend testamentary instrument that has been admitted to probate. Estate of Stokley (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 461, 474, 166 Cal. Rptr. 587

Personal representative acting as own attorney is not entitled to compensation for professional services, ordinary or extraordinary, even though waiving right to personal representative's commission. Estate of Hart (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 634, 639-640, 22 Cal. Rptr. 495

Personal representative is not personally liable for payment of fee to attorney hired to represent him in administration proceedings. Houghton v. Coberly (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 820, 823-824, 20 Cal. Rptr. 489

Personal representative is not entitled to compensation for services as such plus for services of himself or firm of which he is partner as attorneys for personal representative, in absence of agreement not to share in fee of partnership. Estate of Anderson (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 39, 43, 332 P.2d 785

Attorney who rendered services to personal representative and then was replaced by substitution of another attorney as entitled to apply under former Prob. Code § 911 (repealed by Stats. 1990, ch. 79, but continuing to apply in administration proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code § 10830(a)(2), (c), applicable in proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991) for pro rata share of statutory attorney's fee, and court is authorized on such an application to order payment forthwith of appropriate amount out of estate. Estate of Algee (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 691, 692-696, 323 P.2d 221

Attorney representing personal representative in both individual and representative capacity is entitled to fee from estate for services rendered to personal representative in representative capacity. Estate of Raphael (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 92, 97-98, 274 P.2d 880 (personal representative as defendant, both individually and in representative capacity)

Attorney for legatee or claimant is required to look to client for fee, not to estate. Estate of Feldman (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 778, 795, 178 P.2d 498

Provisions of Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1702, providing that in civil cases a notice of motion for attorney's fees must be filed and served within 60 days of entry of judgment, do not apply to probate court proceedings. Hollaway v. Edwards (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 94, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 166

[d] Calculation

Property in personal representative's possession is property includable in "estate accounted for" for purpose of calculating commission. Estate of Lampman (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 212, 216-217, 100 P.2d 488 (construing former Prob. Code § 901 before addition of second paragraph in 1965; see Prob. Code § 10800, applicable in proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991)

Amount of estate accounted for as basis for calculating personal representative's commission. Estate of Lampman (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 212, 215, 100 P.2d 488 (construing former Prob. Code § 901 before addition of second paragraph in 1965; see Prob. Code § 10800, applicable in proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991)

Statutory compensation of administrator based on 1948 appraised values of estate's real property rather than 1978 values, when testator died in 1948 and executor died in 1978, was proper because former Prob. Code § 600 (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199, operative July 1, 1989; now see Prob. Code § 8802), providing that inventory must be appraised as of time of decedent's death, and former Prob. Code § 901 (now see Prob. Code § 10800), providing that compensation must be based on total amount of inventory, must be read together and are mandatory. Estate of Downing (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 256, 264-266, 184 Cal. Rptr. 511

Commission and attorney's fee was properly based in part on value of property that personal representative was ordered by court to account for, over personal representative's good faith objection that estate did not own property. Estate of Raphael (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 92, 95, 274 P.2d 880

Because it is subject to administration, share of community property belonging to surviving spouse was properly included in estate accounted for by personal representative, for purpose of calculating commission and attorney's fee. Estate of Phillips (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 570, 573-574, 266 P.2d 954

Property held by decedent in joint tenancy was not includable in estate for purpose of calculating commission and fee. Estate of Fritz (1934) 140 Cal. App. 487, 488, 35 P.2d 643 (joint tenancy bank account passing to executor by right of survivorship was not includable in estate for purpose of calculation of commission)

[e] Extraordinary Services

Compensation of attorney for extraordinary services includes work reasonably performed to establish and defend claim for compensation. Estate of Trynin (1989) 49 Cal.3d 868, 880, 264 Cal. Rptr. 93, 782 P.2d 232

In making partial allowance to attorney for personal representative on account of compensation for ordinary services [see Prob. Code § 10803], court is not required to fix precise value of ordinary services performed to date, but simply to estimate total ordinary services that will be required and endeavor to make certain that services performed to date are large enough proportion of total to justify partial award. Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 914, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491

After time for appeal has expired, award of extraordinary compensation to attorney is protected from reduction by court; award of extraordinary fees includes implied finding that fees were justified; in later proceeding between same parties, court is collaterally estopped from determining that fees were not justified. Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 910, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491

Court's discretion to deny attorney's request for extraordinary compensation when ordinary fees reasonably compensate attorney for both ordinary and extraordinary services actually rendered. Estate of Hilton (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 890, 910, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491

Court is authorized to allow extraordinary compensation for purpose of remedying injustice resulting if estate on which commission and fee are allowed is small and extraordinary services particularly burdensome. Estate of Lampman (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 212, 219, 100 P.2d 488

Personal representative has no duty to carry on decedent's business without order of court and does so at own risk if not so ordered. Estate of Burke (1926) 198 Cal. 163, 166, 244 P. 340

Because former Prob. Code § 910 (repealed by Stats. 1990, ch. 79, but continuing to apply in administration proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code § 10810, applicable in proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991) provided that attorneys rendering extraordinary services will be allowed out of estate such amount "as the court may deem just and reasonable," any settlement agreement between estate's personal representative and third party with regard to attorney's fees necessarily reserves to court power to allow "just and reasonable" amount. Estate of Baum (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 744, 750, 257 Cal. Rptr. 566

Code Civ. Proc. § 1036, relating to award of attorney's fees to plaintiff in inverse condemnation proceedings, does not prevail over former Prob. Code § 910 (repealed by Stats. 1990, ch. 79, but continuing to apply in administration proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code § 10810, applicable in proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991), which gave probate court large and very wide discretion in awarding reasonable fee to attorney for extraordinary services; hence, probate court as not bound under Code Civ. Proc. § 1036 to award as fee figure used by attorney and defendant public entity in negotiating settlement of inverse condemnation proceeding by estate against public entity. Estate of Baum (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 744, 751-754, 257 Cal. Rptr. 566

Attorney is entitled to extraordinary fees under Prob. Code § 902, as amended January 1, 1984, when contest was brought before probate was successfully settled and probate proceedings were still pending on January 1, 1984. Estate of Schuster (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 337, 341-345, 209 Cal. Rptr. 289

Trial court did not abuse its discretion by awarding extraordinary fees to administrator and counsel but denying their requests for additional extraordinary compensation pursuant to former Prob. Code § 902 (repealed by Stats. 1990, ch. 79, but continuing to apply in administration of estate proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code § 10810, applicable in proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991), when court made express finding that services performed were ordinary as opposed to extraordinary and did not result in any unusual benefit to estate. Estate of Downing (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 256, 266-268, 184 Cal. Rptr. 511

Court has jurisdiction to vacate portion of order for final distribution directing payment of attorney's fees for extraordinary services if services were rendered in connection with property owned by executor as individual. Estate of Lee (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 687, 692-693, 177 Cal. Rptr. 229

Former Prob. Code § 902 (repealed by Stats. 1990, ch. 79, but continuing to apply in administration proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code § 10801, applicable in proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991) authorizes executors to be reimbursed for account services that they provide, even though executor hires own firm to do account. Estate of Haviside (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 365, 369-370, 162 Cal. Rptr. 393

Phrases describing extraordinary services in petition for extraordinary compensation held insufficient because they were too general and not informative of time consumed in performing each item of extraordinary service. Estate of Fulcher (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 710, 717, 44 Cal. Rptr. 861

Considerations of court in making allowance of extraordinary compensation to personal representative or attorney. Estate of Walker (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 792, 795, 34 Cal. Rptr. 832

Locating assets of estate is ordinary service and compensable by statutory commission. Estate of Tubbs (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 305, 309, 186 P.2d 7

Fact that will directs executor to sell estate property is no basis for denying compensation for extraordinary services in selling property. Estate of Neff (1943) 56 Cal. App. 2d 728, 729, 731-732, 133 P.2d 413 (affirming allowance of additional compensation for extraordinary service in selling bonds which will directed executor to sell)

Extraordinary commission for running decedent's business was properly based on amount of extra work involved for personal representative, not on whether business was successful or estate eventually became insolvent under personal representative's management. Estate of Allen (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 346, 353, 108 P.2d 973

Court not bound by unrefuted expert testimony on value of extraordinary services, but as authorized to exercise independent judgment on basis of evidence of value of services. Estate of Pomin (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 544, 546-549, 92 P.2d 479

Application for extraordinary compensation not required to state facts with precision and detail of allegations of complaint; sufficiency of application as not to be tested by rules applicable to pleadings; applicant as required to state claim particularly so nature, necessity, and value of extraordinary services can be determined. Estate of Herbst(1938) 26 Cal. App. 2d 249, 251, 79 P.2d 139

[f] Personal Representative

Personal representative who mismanaged estate is nevertheless entitled to statutory commission but is chargeable with losses resulting from such mismanagement. Estate of Roberts (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 70, 76, 162 P.2d 461

Amount of commission due personal representative was properly set off against losses incurred by estate as result of personal representative's default or neglect. Estate of Roberts (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 70, 76, 162 P.2d 461 ; Estate of Smith (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 844, 849-850, 268 P.2d 53

Personal representative whose appointment is attacked by appeal is entitled to commission for services rendered up to time of filing of notice of appeal, at which time personal representative's authority was suspended. Estate of Schwartz (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 569, 573, 197 P.2d 223 (steps taken by personal representative after notice of appeal from order of appointment was filed were void)

Personal representative whose appointment was voidable, rather than void, and who acted as executor in good faith until appointment was revoked, and attorney for that personal representative, were entitled to commission and fee for services rendered. Estate of Clark (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 523, 525-527, 92 P.2d 505

Executor who, on own initiative without order of court, withdrew funds of estate to pay himself commission in addition to that allowed by statute was chargeable with amount withdrawn including interest from date of withdrawal. Estate of Guglielmi (1934) 138 Cal. App. 80, 90, 31 P.2d 1078

Provision in will that executor should serve without compensation was ineffectual to deny executor compensation if it is claimed. Estate of Fritz (1933) 130 Cal. App. 725, 731-732, 20 P.2d 361

[g] Reimbursement of Expenses

Expense of defending on appeal items of account, challenged by creditor who appealed from order settling account, is chargeable against estate, even though executor thereby defends items that deprive estate of property. Ludwig v. Superior Court (1933) 217 Cal. 499, 500, 19 P.2d 984

Personal representative is entitled to reimbursement out of estate assets for liability incurred on account of necessary matters related to estate. Harm v. Frasher (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 405, 421, 5 Cal. Rptr. 367

Expenses incurred by successful applicant for letters of administration is not allowable under former Prob. Code § 900 (repealed by Stats. 1990, ch. 79, but continuing to apply in administration proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code § 10850, applicable in proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991). Estate of Tubbs (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 305, 308, 186 P.2d 7

Travel expenses of personal representative and attorney or agent are allowable, if necessary for proper administration of estate. Estate of Turner (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 332, 335, 123 P.2d 66

Personal representative is entitled to allowance for expenses incurred in carrying on decedent's business even though without court order to do so when items allowed were intended and necessary for preservation of property belonging to estate and administrator was experienced in business concerned and had consent of all known heirs at time expenses were incurred. In re Estate of Messena (1933) 129 Cal. App. 255, 258-261, 18 P.2d 779

[3] Effect of Order for Preliminary Distribution on Order for Final Distribution

Decree rendered in proceeding for preliminary distribution is not controlling on issue of heirship at time of final distribution as against those heirs who were unaware of proceeding on partial distribution, were not parties to it, and whose existence was not known to court at time proceeding for preliminary distribution was heard and determined, and consequently whose claims were never before court to be considered or passed on. Estate of McCallen (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 142, 149, 125 Cal. Rptr. 645 ; In re Estate of Ampusait (1933) 131 Cal. App. 533, 538, 21 P.2d 691

Order for preliminary distribution is conclusive only as to rights of all persons claiming interest in property distributed under it, while decree of final distribution as constituting conclusive construction of will as against all interested parties, including beneficiaries of a testamentary trust. Estate of McCallen (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 142, 148, 125 Cal. Rptr. 645

When construction of will has been litigated and determined in proceeding for preliminary distribution, that determination is res judicata and controlling on final decree of distribution. Estate of McCallen (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 142, 148, 125 Cal. Rptr. 645

[4] Final Distribution

[a] In General

Persons who have no interest in estate has no standing to question manner of its distribution, and how it is distributed as no concern of theirs. In re Estate of Spreckels (1913) 165 Cal. 597, 604, 133 P. 289

Distribution to trustee under will as adjudication of validity of trust. Estate of White (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 749, 755, 160 P.2d 204

Court continues to have jurisdiction until final discharge of person whom court directs to make order effective, and retains jurisdiction until discharge, for purpose of compelling execution of order. Estate of Evans (1944) 62 Cal. App. 2d 249, 256, 144 P.2d 625

Judicial sale of legatee's interest in estate divests legatee of any interest. Estate of Pierce (1938) 28 Cal. App. 2d 8, 13, 81 P.2d 1037

[b] Action to Recover Distributive Share

Beneficiary under testamentary trust as heir, legatee, or devisee within meaning of former Prob. Code § 1021, requiring that order for distribution name persons and proportions or parts to which each is entitled, and providing that such persons may demand, sue for, and recover their respective shares from the executor or administrator, or any person having the same in possession, and that order or decree, when it becomes final, is conclusive as to right of heirs, devisees, and legatees (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199, operative July 1, 1989; now see Prob. Code §§ 24(c), 48(a)(1), 11603(b), 11605, 11750(b)). Estate of Loring (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 423, 430-431, 175 P.2d 524

Limitation period for action to recover share of estate under former Prob. Code § 1021 (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199, operative July 1, 1989; now see Prob. Code §§ 24(c), 48(a)(1), 11603(b), 11605, 11750(b)) as 10 years under Code Civ. Proc. § 337.5(3) (action on judgment or decree). Gay v. Straube (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 683, 684, 54 Cal. Rptr. 293

[c] Failure to Provide in Will for Surviving Spouse by Later Marriage

Language in codicil, facially made in contemplation of testator's subsequent marriage to his surviving widow, stating that codicil (and will republished in it) "shall not berevoked by the marriage" expressly declared testator's intention, within meaning of former Prob. Code § 70 (repealed by Stats. 1983, ch. 842, operative January 1, 1985; now see Prob. Code § 6560), that his impending marriage to surviving widow should not revoke bequests he had made to his children and grandchildren in will. Estate of Cooper (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 118, 119-121, 190 Cal. Rptr. 826

Revocation of will in favor of intestate succession by surviving spouse who has been omitted was presumed under former Prob. Code § 70 (repealed by Stats. 1983, ch. 842, operative January 1, 1985; now see Prob. Code § 6560) unless will manifests intention to disinherit future spouse. Estate of Green (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 589, 593, 174 Cal. Rptr. 654

[d] Inquiry Into Validity of Assignment of Beneficiary's Interest in Estate

Clear implication of former Prob. Code § 1020.1 (giving probate court power to inquire into consideration for assignment of or agreement for interest in an estate (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199, operative July 1, 1989; now see Prob. Code § 11604)) is that court may determine validity of agreement that property is to be distributed in certain manner, and, under it, court is empowered to look to value of consideration in determining whether agreement or assignment is grossly unreasonable and to set aside that portion of it found to be grossly unreasonable; probate court has jurisdiction to determine rights under contracts ancillary to exercise of its probate jurisdiction, and order under former Prob. Code § 1020.1 when final is binding on parties in all further actions. Burchell v. Strube (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 828, 834-836, 279 P.2d 1

Distribution of $122,000 to heir hunter was not grossly unreasonable even though probate court had authorized a $5,000 fee to an heir hunter employed by estate, because heir hunter who actually located heir spent approximately 150 hours searching data bases and interviewing leads and had spent two days searching; heir's assignment of her interest in estate also was not obtained by duress, fraud or undue influence when heir hunter gave heir time to consider matter and gave her his cell phone number. Estate of Wright (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 228, 239, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 572

Application of former Prob. Code § 1020.1 (inquiry into consideration for assignment (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199, operative July 1, 1989; now see Prob. Code § 11604)) is not limited to heir hunters, the original object of the enactment, but includes any assignee or transferee; terms of section are general. Estate of Peterson (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 492, 506, 66 Cal. Rptr. 629 ; see also Burchell v. Strube (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 828, 836, 279 P.2d 1 (former Prob. Code § 1020.1 as statute of general applicability and, if consideration is grossly unreasonable, burden is on heir hunter or other assignee to prove their real value)

Party has no right to trial by jury of petition for inquiry under former Prob. Code § 1020.1 (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199, operative July 1, 1989; now see Prob. Code § 11604). Estate of Cazaurang (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 217, 225, 226, 170 P.2d 694

[e] Intestate Succession

Trimble v. Gordon (1977) 430 U.S. 762, 97 S. Ct. 1459, 52 L. Ed. 2d 31 , below, decided April 26, 1977, applies to estate of decedent who died before that date so as to allow inheritance by illegitimate child who did not file claim in estate proceeding until after that date. Reed v. Campbell (1986) 476 U.S. 852, 852-854, 106 S. Ct. 2234, 90 L. Ed. 2d 858

Intestate succession statute prohibiting inheritance by illegitimate child is unconstitutional violation of equal protection clause of Fourteenth Amendment. Trimble v. Gordon (1977) 430 U.S. 762, 776, 97 S. Ct. 1459, 52 L. Ed. 2d 31 (see Prob. Code § 6450(a), providing that relationship of parent and child exists between person and person's natural parents for purposes of determining intestate succession by, through, or from that person, regardless of marital status of natural parents)

Distribution of intestate decedent's estate could not be limited to surviving first cousins and children of predeceased first cousins while excluding grandchildren of predeceased first cousins because governing statutes (Prob. Code §§ 50, 240, 6402(d)) do not limit surviving issue of a predeceased heir entitled to inherit to the first generation; rather, surviving issue includes all lineal descendents of all generations. Estate of Beckel (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 34, 38, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 890

Right to succession is defined by statute. Estate of Griswold (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 904, 907, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 24 P.3d 1191

Judgment in bastardy proceeding, in which decedent's biological father confessed paternity, established father as decedent's natural parent for purposes of intestate succession. Estate of Griswold (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 904, 921-924, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 24 P.3d 1191

Decedent's widow was not entitled to a statutory share of the decedent's trust or estate, when waiver of the widow's inheritance rights was in writing, signed by the widow, and complied with the requirements of Prob. Code § 144; waiver was enforceable regardless of whether the document containing the waiver was enforceable as a prenuptial agreement under Fam. Code § 1615. Estate of Will *(*2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 902, 908, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 502

Court cannot disinherit a natural parent who abandoned a child who later died intestate, when the deceased child was conceived during the parents' marriage and the father acknowledged paternity; father's alleged failure to pay child support or the lack of a meaningful parent-child relationship does not affect father's right as an intestate heir. Estate of Shellenbarger (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 894, 896, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 862

California's antilapse statute provides that when a bequest is to a protected transferee would otherwise lapse due to the transferee's death, the bequest passes by right of representation to her descendants. Estate of Mooney (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 654, 663, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 115

Decedent's former wife was not entitled to inherit from decedent's estate because she was a party to a valid dissolution proceeding which concluded in an order terminating all marital property rights; therefore, she was not a surviving spouse under Prob. Code § 78(d) at time of decedent's death. Estate of McDaniel (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 458, 463, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 907

Individual who married decedent in purported marriage ceremony that did not result in valid marriage was not "surviving spouse." Estate of DePasse (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 92, 107, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 143

Spouse who obtains judgment of legal separation that resolves parties' marital property rights does not qualify as "surviving spouse" on subsequent death of other spouse for purposes of intestate succession. Estate of Lahey (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1056, 1059-1060, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 30

Courts have no authority to change statutory rules governing law of succession. Estate of McCrary (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 100, 102, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504

When decedent's estate is to be distributed to issue of decedent's grandparents (decedent's cousins) because there is no surviving issue, parent, issue of a parent, or grandparents, grandparents' issue are entitled to take equally if they are all of the same degree, and in the manner provided in Prob. Code § 240 if they are not of the same degree; one cousin or group of cousins is not entitled to take to exclusion of another cousin or group of cousins merely because first cousin or group of cousins is nearer in degree to grandparents. Estate of McCrary (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 100, 104-105, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504

If one group of cousins are all children of grandparents (and thus first cousins of decedent), while another group are grandchildren of grandparents (and thus first cousins onceremoved), they are all equally entitled to distribution, but shares to which they are entitled are determined under Prob. Code § 240. Estate of McCrary (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th

100, 104-105, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504

When neither decedent nor predeceased husband left issue, fact that predeceased husband and sister of predeceased husband had been alienated for 28 years preceding his death does not prevent application of former Prob. Code § 229 (which created rights of succession in favor of designated relatives of predeceased spouse, regardless of whether predeceased spouse had issue (repealed by Stats. 1983, ch. 842, operative Jan 1, 1985; now see Prob. Code § 6402.5)); principles of equity are unavailable to avoid mandate of statute; moreover, evidence presented fell far short of establishing that under equitable principles sister would be estopped from claiming her statutory share of estate. Estate of McInnis (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 949, 956-959, 227 Cal. Rptr. 604 (tracing legislative history of former Prob. Code § 229)

Unadopted stepchildren not entitled to share in estate when intestate dies leaving issue. Estate of Davis (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 93, 95, 165 Cal. Rptr. 543 (see Prob. Code § 6454 for rules governing intestate succession from or through stepparent)

[f] Issues at Hearing

Court authorized at hearing on petition for final distribution to credit personal representative with preliminary distribution made without court order. Estate of Bennett (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 354, 358, 362, 90 P.2d 84

Court in its probate capacity is authorized, when distributing property from a decedent's estate, to pass on equitable interests in property. Estate of White (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 749, 758, 160 P.2d 204

Proceeding for distribution is proper one for determining title to properties in which decedent had an interest and that are claimed by personal representative adversely to estate. Estate of Basso (1945) 68 Cal. App. 2d 294, 299, 156 P.2d 476

Court is required at hearing on petition for final distribution to determine whether debts have been paid and, if they have not, is authorized on proper showing by creditor whose contingent or not yet due debt is unpaid, to make provision for that debt under former Prob. Code § 953 (repealed by Stats. 1987, ch. 923, operative July 1, 1988; now see Prob. Code § 11463) and then proceed with distribution. Dabney v. Dabney (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 695, 700, 129 P.2d 470 (suggesting that petitioner for distribution has duty to ask for such provision when creditor does not appear in response to petition for distribution to raise question)

[g] Judgment

Rule that order for final distribution controls over terms of will with respect to distribution of property when order is contrary to will's provisions is subject to exceptions when will is incorporated by reference into decree, or decree is uncertain or ambiguous; resort to will to ascertain testator's intent is permissible when exception applies. Estate of Heil (1989) 210 Cal. App.3d 1503, 1508, 259 Cal. Rptr. 28

Court has equitable jurisdiction to set aside judgment of distribution obtained by extrinsic and collateral fraud; executor as fiduciary; extrinsic fraud found in concealment by executor, who was also primary beneficiary, of fact that decedent had made second will revoking major bequest to other beneficiaries and statements of executor that he was looking after other beneficiaries' interests, and that they need not appear. Estate of Sanders (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 607, 613-619, 221 Cal. Rptr. 432, 710 P.2d 232

Trial court's finding that property is either separate or community is binding if supported by sufficient evidence. Estate of Leslie (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 186, 197, 201, 207 Cal. Rptr. 561, 689 P.2d 133

Scope and effect of judgment of final distribution. Estate of Callnon (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 150, 156-157, 74 Cal. Rptr. 250, 449 P.2d 186 ; Kingsbury v. Ross (1933) 217 Cal. 484, 486, 19 P.2d 784

Person claiming, adversely to estate, property included in judgment for distribution is not bound by judgment. Estate of Dabney (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 672, 677, 234 P.2d 962

Notice requirements in motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to have judgment for distribution set aside. Lilienkamp v. Superior Court (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 293, 297-304, 93 P.2d 1008

Clerical errors in judgment for distribution are subject to being corrected pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473. Estate of Goldberg (1938) 10 Cal. 2d 709, 716-717, 76 P.2d 508 (affirming order correcting judgment so as to include name of distributee inadvertently omitted)

Judgment for distribution determines and settles rights of legatees and devisees; will is only evidence on which judgment is based. Estate of Den (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 638, 640, 45 P.2d 963 ; In re Estate of Lockhart (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 574, 578-579, 69 P.2d 1001 (disapproved on another point in Estate of Platt (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 343, 349, 131 P.2d 825)

Judgment of distribution does not determine that decedent had title to property distributed and is not binding on third persons claiming interest adverse to decedent's, but merely determines succession or testamentary disposition of such title as decedent had. Romagnolo v. Romagnolo (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 315, 319, 40 Cal. Rptr. 807

Purpose and effect of omnibus clause in judgment for distribution. Estate of Heigho (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 360, 368, 9 Cal. Rptr. 196

Finding that due notice of petition for settlement of final account and final distribution was given ordinarily is essential to show jurisdiction of record, but requirement is waived by parties who appeared at hearing and proceeded on basis that hearing was on final account and on petition for distribution. Estate of Toler (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 764, 770, 345 P.2d 152

Distribution of "all other property belonging to said estate whether described herein or not" vests title in distributees. Howe v. Brock (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 271, 275, 194 P.2d 762

Conclusiveness of judgment for distribution does not divest court of equitable jurisdiction to remedy erroneous distribution, to construe declaration of trust when judgment procured by fraud or mistake, or to modify judgment with consent of all interested parties. Security-First Nat. Bank v. Easter (1934) 136 Cal. App. 691, 694-695, 29 P.2d 422

Judgment for distribution is subject to being set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473. Estate of Ampusait (1933) 131 Cal. App. 533, 537-538, 21 P.2d 691

Judgment for distribution is not conclusive against distributee who procured it by means of extrinsic fraud. Platnauer v. Forni (1933) 131 Cal. App. 393, 399, 21 P.2d 638

[h] Omitted (Pretermitted) Heirs

When will intentionally disinherited decedent's child but was silent regarding children of that child, presumption of former Prob. Code § 90 (repealed by Stats. 1983, ch. 842, operative January 1, 1985; now see Prob. Code §§ 6570-6573) is prevailing to allow grandchildren to share in estate; extrinsic evidence, such as deposition of attorney whodrafted will, is admissible to resolve ambiguities or to support presumption of unintentional omission but is inadmissible to prove omission was intentional. Smith v. Crook (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 245, 248-249, 206 Cal. Rptr. 524

No-contest clause (provision denying person who challenges will anything more than nominal sum) that also precludes heirs as class from participating (disinheritance provision) is valid against contention that it lacked sufficient specificity to prevent operation of omitted heir statute (former Prob. Code § 90; repealed by Stats. 1983, ch. 842, operative January 1, 1985; now see Prob. Code §§ 6570-6573); however, claimant is still permitted to show absence of decedent's intention to disinherit children or grandchildren. Estate of Leonetti (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 378, 383, 171 Cal. Rptr. 303

Alleged grandchild of decedent is not omitted heir when will shows that person's omission was intentional (former Prob. Code § 90; repealed by Stats. 1983, ch. 842, operative January 1, 1985; now see Prob. Code §§ 6570-6573), even though different article of will stated that decedent's only child had predeceased decedent leaving no issue. Estate of Hirschi (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 681, 684, 685, 170 Cal. Rptr. 186

[i] Putative Spouse

Putative spouse (see Fam. Code § 2251) is entitled to intestate share of decedent's separate property (decided under former Prob. Code § 221 (repealed by Stats. 1983, ch. 842, operative January 1, 1985; now see Prob. Code § 6401(c))). Estate of Leslie (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 186, 197, 204, 207 Cal. Rptr. 561, 689 P.2d 133

[j] Ademption

Prob. Code § 21134(a) and case law prohibit ademption of specific gifts of corporate stock contained in living trust due to liquidation and dissolution of the corporation, when settlor's conservator, acting as trustee of the revocable trust, participates in the sale of the corporations assets. Brown v. Labow (2008) 157 Cal. App. 4th 795, 816, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 417

[5] Interest on Monetary Devises

Award of interest to beneficiary of trust created in 1948 was proper, despite fact that former Prob. Code § 162 (authorizing interest) (repealed by Stats. 1983, ch. 842, operative January 1, 1985) was expressly inapplicable to estates of persons dying prior to 1959 (Stats. 1959, ch. 1882, § 3), because law regarding payment of interest on general pecuniary legacies in trust was unclear in 1948 and trial court did not base its interest award solely on former Civ. Code § 162, but expressly found interest was also authorized by former Civ. Code § 2262 (requiring trustee who failed to in vest trust moneys to pay simple interest on it if omission was negligent merely and compound interest if it was willful) (repealed by Stats. 1986, ch. 820, operative July 1, 1987). Estate of Downing (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 256, 271-272, 184 Cal. Rptr. 511 (devises that may carry interest and distribution of income accruing during administration are now covered in Prob. Code §§ 12000-12007; measure of liability of trustee for breach of trust is covered in Prob. Code §§ 16440, 16441)

[6] Will Construction

Rules that apply to construing wills. Estate of Edwards (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1366, 1371-1375, 250 Cal. Rptr. 779

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesCosts & Attorney FeesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesClaims By & AgainstEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateJudicial Review

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 485D.156-485D.169

[Reserved]

§§ 485D.156[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 485D.170

[Reserved]

§ 485D.170[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.171

§ 458D.171 Preliminary Determinations

In consultation with personal representative, determine whether estate is in a condition to be closed.

1. Reread will to make sure that all provisions have been, or will be, complied with and determine if any provisions of a trust created by the will need to be clarified by court order.

2. Check probate court file for any liens, attachments, assignments, and unpaid claims of which personal representative may have no record.

3. Review any interim accounts filed and any orders of partial distribution, stipulations, agreements, assignments, or court orders affecting the estate to be sure they have been, or will be, complied with.

NOTE:
With respect to any preliminary distribution, check with the personal representative to be sure that proper receipts have been received from the distributees and, in the case of personal property in possession of a life tenant, a proper inventory [see Prob. Code §§ 11751, 11752]. With respect to a transfer or assignment by a beneficiary of his or her right to estate property, see Prob. Code § 11604, authorizing the court to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the execution of, and the consideration for, the transfer, agreement, request, or instructions, and the amount of any fees, charges, or consideration paid or agreed to be paid by the beneficiary, and to refuse distribution or order it on terms, and setting forth the procedure to be followed [see discussion in § 458D.75 and § 458D.210].

4. Determine what, if any, provision should be made for any contingent tax liabilities.

5. Determine which expenses of administration (see former Prob. Code § 902 (applies in administration of estate proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850]); Prob. Code §§ 10801 (applicable in proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991, but does not carry over list of extraordinary services and expenses set forth in former statute), 11004, 11420(a)(1), 11421) have or have not been paid.

6. Determine that all debts have been paid or adequately provided for (see Prob. Code § 11420 et seq.).

NOTE:

"Debt" means (1) a claim established under Prob. Code §§ 9000-9399 or that is otherwise payable in the course of administration; (2) an expense of administration; and (3) a charge against the estate including, without limitation, taxes, expenses of last illness, and family allowance [Prob. Code § 11401].

7. Ascertain whether any debt was paid by personal representative without a claim having been filed and established in the manner prescribed by statute and, if so, the amount.

NOTE:

Except for funeral expenses, expenses of last illness, family allowance, and wage claims (see Prob. Code § 11421), the personal representative is not required to pay a debt until payment has been ordered by the court [Prob. Code § 11422(a)]. However, if the personal representative paid a debt within the time prescribed inProb. Code § 9154 without a claim having been filed and established in the manner prescribed by statute, the court must, in settling the account, allow the amount paid if it is proven that the debt was justly due and paid in good faith, that the amount paid did not exceed the amount reasonably necessary to satisfy the indebtedness, and that the estate is solvent [Prob. Code § 11005; see also Prob. Code § 11422(d)].

8. If all debts have not been fully paid, ascertain which debts are contingent or not due, or are disputed, and which debts cannot be paid because the creditor cannot be found.

NOTE:

If a debt is contingent or not due, the court may provide for the debt in various ways. It may (1) approve an agreement of interested persons as to the manner of providing for the debt [Prob. Code § 11462], (2) order funds deposited in a blocked account [Prob. Code § 11463], (3) order that property be distributed subject to an assumption of liability [Prob. Code § 11464], (4) appoint a trustee to receive payment [Prob. Code § 11465], (5) order that property be distributed subject to a bond [Prob. Code § 11466], or (6) continue administration of the estate [Prob. Code § 11467]. For discussion, see § 458D.190, Comments in § 458D.211[3][c].

9. Determine whether any devisees have died since the decedent's death and, if so, how their share or shares are to be distributed.

NOTE:

The share in a decedent's estate of a beneficiary who survives the decedent but who dies before distribution is distributed as provided in Prob. Code §§ 11801, 11802.

10. Determine whether whereabouts of any distributee are unknown and, if so, who alternate distributees are.

NOTE:

If the whereabouts of a distributee is unknown, the order must provide for alternate distributees and the share to which each is entitled [Prob. Code § 11603(c)].

11. Review estate assets to determine whether any problems exist relating to distribution.

NOTE:
The order for distribution must provide that property distributed subject to a limitation or condition, including, but not limited to, an option granted under Prob. Code §§ 9960-9966 (option to purchase), is distributed to the distributees subject to the terms of the limitation or condition [Prob. Code § 11603(b)(2)].

12. Determine whether any proration of estate tax is required.

NOTE:
The proration of estate taxes is covered in Prob. Code §§ 20100-20125, which are discussed in Ch. 452*, Probate: Proration of Estate and Generation-Skipping Transfer Taxes* .

13. Prepare a schedule of final distribution, taking into account will provisions and whether specific devisees are entitled to income accruing during administration or to payment of interest, and compute probate income or interest, if any.

NOTE:
The order for distribution must name the distributees and the share to which each is entitled [Prob. Code § 11603(b)]. Interest and income accruing during administration, unless the testator otherwise indicates in the will, are governed by Prob. Code §§ 12000-12007.

14. If estate is not in a condition to be closed, and time limit for petitioning for final distribution is approaching, prepare Report of Status of Administration showing the matters specified in Prob. Code § 12201 and file it with court.

NOTE:
The personal representative must either petition for an order for final distribution of the estate or make a report of the status of the administration within one year after the date letters were issued if no federal estate tax is required and within 18 months after letters were issued if a federal estate tax is required [Prob. Code § 12200].

15. If the estate is in a condition to be closed, prepare the Account and Petition for Final Distribution and the petition for an order fixing and allowing personal representative's and/or the attorney's compensation for all services rendered in the estate proceeding, if any [see Prob. Code § 10831(a)].

NOTE:
The request for compensation may be included in the final account or the petition for final distribution, or may be made in a separate petition [Prob. Code § 10831(b); see § 458D.190]. If the petition for approval of the account requests allowance of all or a portion of the compensation of the personal representative or of his or her attorney, the notice of hearing must so state [Prob. Code § 11000(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationAllowancesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.172

§ 458D.172 Account

NOTE:

Except when an account is not required (see Prob. Code § 10954), the personal representative, must, whether or not an interim account has been filed, file a final account when the estate is in a condition to be closed [Prob. Code § 10951; see § 458D.190]. The court may, however, on its own motion or on the petition of an "interested person" (defined in Prob. Code § 48),order an account at any time [Prob. Code § 10950(a)], and must order an account on petition of an interested person made more than one year after the last account was filed or, if no previous account has been filed, made more than one year after issuance of letters to the personal representative [Prob. Code § 10950(b)]. In either case, the order must specify the time within which the personal representative must file the account [Prob. Code § 10950(c)]. The filing of an account is deemed to include a petition requesting its approval [Prob. Code § 1064(b)].

1. Prepare account with original and a copy for personal representative, an office copy, and additional copies for any persons who must be served with one.

NOTE:

The account must be in writing [Prob. Code § 1020]. For persons who must be served with a copy of the account, see Paragraph D(1), below.

2. Have the personal representative sign the account.

NOTE:

The account must be signed by all of the persons making it [Prob. Code § 1020].

3. Have the account verified by the personal representative.

NOTE:

The account must be verified [Prob. Code §§ 1021(a)(1)] by the person who has the duty to make it or, if there are two or more of them, by any of them [Prob. Code §

1021(b)(2)*].

4. Obtain all documents necessary to support the account.

NOTE:
On either the order of the court or the request, of an interested person, filed with the clerk and a copy served on the personal representative, the personal representative must produce for inspection and audit by the court or interested person the documents specified in the order or request that support an account [Prob. Code § 10901].

5. Present the original of the account (together with the Petition for Final Distribution and the petition, if any, for an order fixing and allowing the personal representative's and attorney's compensation for all services rendered in the estate proceeding [see Prob. Code § 10831(a), (b)]) at the court clerk's office for filing.

NOTE:
The account must be filed with the court [Prob. Code § 1020].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.173

§ 458D.173 Petition for Final Distribution

NOTE:
When all debts have been paid or adequately provided for, or if the estate is insolvent, and the estate is in a condition to be closed, a petition must be filed for final distribution of the estate [Prob. Code § 11640(a); see § 458D.190]. Normally, a petition for distribution may be filed by either the personal representative or an interested person [Prob. Code § 11600]. However, if the estate is in a condition to be closed, the personal representative, on filing a final account, must also file a petition for an order for final distribution of the estate [see Prob. Code § 10951; see § 458D.190].

1. Prepare the petition for final distribution [Prob. Code § 11600] in an original, one copy for the personal representative, an office copy, and sufficient copies to give one to each person on whom a copy must be served.

NOTE:
The petition must be in writing [Prob. Code § 1020]. For persons who must be served with a copy of the petition, see § 458D.174.

2. Have the personal representative sign the petition.

NOTE:
The petition must be signed by all of the petitioners [Prob. Code § 1020].

3. Have the petition verified by the personal representative.

NOTE:
The petition must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1)] by the petitioner or, if there are two or more parties joining in the petition, by any of them [Prob. Code § 1021(b)(1)].

4. Present the original of the petition for final distribution, together with the Final Account, at the court clerk's office for filing.

NOTE:
The petition must be filed with the court [Prob. Code § 1020].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersAccountingEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.174

§ 458D.174 Notice of Hearing

NOTE:

The clerk of the court is required to set the account and the petition for final distribution for hearing [see Prob. Code § 1041].

1. Prepare the notice of hearing in a sufficient number of copies to serve one copy on each person to be given notice [see Prob. Code § 1211; Form No. 649] and an office copy.

NOTE:

The notice of hearing on the account and the petition for final distribution, as well as notice of hearing on the petition, if any, to fix and allow compensation for all services rendered in the estate proceeding by the personal representative and his or her attorney, must be given as provided in Prob. Code § 1220 to all of the following persons: (1) each person listed in Prob. Code § 1220; (2) each known heir whose interest in the estate would be affected by the account; (3) each known devisee whose interest in the estate would be affected by the account; and (4) the Attorney General, at the office of the Attorney General in Sacramento, if any portion of the estate is to escheat to the state and its interest would be affected by the account [Prob. Code §§ 10831(c) (petition for compensation in administration of estate proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991), 11000(a)(1)-(4) (account), 11601(a)-(d) (petition for distribution)]. If the estate is insolvent, notice of the hearing on the account must also be given to each creditor who has filed a claim that is allowed or approved but is unpaid in whole or in part [Prob. Code § 11000(a)(5)]. Notice of the hearing on the petition for final distribution must also be given to the Controller if property is to be distributed to the state because there is no known beneficiary or if property is to be distributed to a beneficiary whose whereabouts is unknown. A copy of the latest accountfiled with the court must be served on the Controller with the notice [Prob. Code § 11601(e)]. Prob. Code § 1220 requires that the notice be given to the personal representative [Prob. Code § 1220(a)(2)(A)] if he or she is not the petitioner [see Prob.

Code § 1201], and to all persons who have requested special notice in the estate proceeding pursuant to Prob. Code § 1250 [Prob. Code § 1220(a)(1)(B)].

2. Prepare a proof of mailing for each person to whom a copy of the notice will be mailed in at least three copies (original for filing, one unsigned copy for inclusion with the copy of the notice served (see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(b); Prob. Code § 1000), and one office copy).

NOTE:

If a copy of the account or a copy of the petition for final distribution is mailed with the notice of hearing, that fact should be set forth in the proof of mailing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a; for a form of proof of service by mail under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

3. At least 15 days before the date set for hearing, mail the notice of hearing, together with a copy of the account and of the petition for final distribution when required, and an unsigned copy of the proof of mailing, to the person to be served or, if the person appeared by attorney, to the person's attorney; if the notice is to be mailed to a person's attorney, the better, if not required, practice is to enclose two copies of each paper, one for the attorney and one for his or her client.

NOTE:

Prob. Code § 1220* requires that notice be given at least 15 days before the time set for hearing [Prob. Code § 1220(a)(1)]. In the case of persons requesting special notice, the notice must be mailed to the address set forth in the request [Prob. Code § 1252(a)]. In the case of others entitled to notice, the notice must be mailed to the person's business or residence address, if known; if not known, the court may order that the notice be given in a manner reasonably calculated to give actual notice to that person [Prob. Code §§ 1212, 1215(d), 1220(a)(3); *see Code Civ. Proc. § 413.30]. If any person entitled to notice is represented by an attorney of record, the notice must also be given to that attorney [Prob. Code § 1214].

Notwithstanding the above, if the court determines that the notice in the particular circumstances is insufficient, it may require that further or additional notice, including a longer period of notice, be given [Prob. Code § 1202]. Orders shortening the time of notice are authorized by Prob. Code § 1203, waiver of notice by Prob. Code § 1204, and orders dispensing with notice by Prob. Code § 1220(c).

4. Present the originals of the proofs of mailing at the court clerk's office for filing.

NOTE:

Proof of giving notice of the hearing must be made to the satisfaction of the court at or before the hearing [Prob. Code § 1260(a)]. A filed proof of mailing (which is part of the judgment roll [see Prob. Code § 1050(a)(3)]) made in the manner prescribed in Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a is sufficient to establish the fact of mailing [see Prob. Code § 1261]. Nevertheless, proof of notice, however given, may be made by evidence presented at the hearing [Prob. Code § 1265].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeService of ProcessMethodsMailCivil ProceduresPleading & PracticeService of ProcessProofGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust

LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.175

§ 458D.175 Contest of Account and Opposition to Petition for Distribution

NOTE:
All matters relating to an account may be contested for cause shown [Prob. Code § 11001], and any interested person may oppose the petition for distribution [Prob. Code § 11602]. The petitioner, or other party affirming, is the plaintiff and the party objecting or responding is the defendant [Prob. Code § 1044].

1. If the account or any part of it is contested [see § 458D.209], marshal any evidence, including the testimony of witnesses, that may be available to oppose the contest.

NOTE:
If the court determines that the opposition was without reasonable cause and in bad faith, it may award the contestant the contestant's costs and other expenses, and costs of litigation, including attorney's fees, incurred to contest the account. The amount awarded is a charge against the compensation or other interest of the personal representative in the estate, and the personal representative is liable personally and on the bond, if any, for any amount that remains unsatisfied [Prob. Code § 11003(b)]. For the award of fees, commissions, and costs if the court determines the contest was without reasonable cause and in bad faith, see Prob. Code § 11003(a) and the Comments to § 458D.209.

2. If the petition for final distribution is opposed, obtain any evidence to present that will support the distribution proposed in the petition for distribution.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust

LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.176

§ 458D.176 Hearing and Order

NOTE:

The court must hear and determine any matter at issue and any response or objection presented, consider the evidence presented, and make appropriate orders [Prob. Code § 1046]. The personal representative must be allowed all the necessary expenses in the administration of the estate [Prob. Code § 11004]. Moreover, when a petition for final distribution is filed, the court must order final distribution of the estate if it determines that the requirements for distribution are satisfied [Prob. Code § 11603], that is, that all debts have been paid or adequately provided for, or that the estate is insolvent, and that the estate is in a condition to be closed [Prob. Code § 11640]. The court must hear and determine and resolve in the order all questions arising under Prob. Code § 21135 (ademption by satisfaction) or Prob. Code § 6409 (advancements) [Prob. Code § 11640(b)]. If debts remain unpaid or not adequately provided for, or if, for other reasons, the estate is not in a condition to be closed, the administration may continue for a reasonable time, subject to Prob. Code §§ 12200-12206 (specifying the time for closing an estate) [Prob. Code § 11640(c)].

The court may continue or postpone any hearing, from time to time, in the interest of justice [Prob. Code § 1045]. If a hearing is continued or postponed,no further notice of the continued or postponed hearing is required unless the court so orders [Prob. Code § 1205].

1. Have the personal representative attend the hearing, if required by the court to do so, and take the witness stand to identify the account as his or hers and to testify that the contents of the account are true.

NOTE:

An affidavit or verified petition must be received as evidence when offered in an uncontested proceeding [Prob. Code § 1022]. Hence, some courts, by local court rule, do not require an appearance when the account is verified and there is nothing unusual about the distribution or the commissions or fees requested. The court may, however, order the personal representative to produce specified documents that support the account [Prob. Code § 10901], and may conduct any hearing that may be necessary to settle the account [Prob. Code § 11002]. The court may also appoint one or more referees to examine the account and make a report on it, subject to confirmation by the court [Prob. Code § 11002(b)], and the court may make any orders it deems necessary to effectuate the provisions of Prob. Code § 11002 [Prob. Code § 11002(c)].

2. If a debt was paid by the personal representative within the time prescribed by Prob. Code § 9154 but without a claim having been filed and established in the manner prescribed by statute, be ready to prove that the debt was justly due and paid in good faith, that the amount paid did not exceed the amount reasonably necessary to satisfy the indebtedness, and that the estate is solvent.

NOTE:

If the foregoing facts are proved, the court must, in settling the account, allow the amount paid [Prob. Code § 11005; see also Prob. Code § 11422(d)].

3. If the court makes an order settling the account and ordering final distribution, draft the order, if this has not already been done, and present it to the judge's courtroom clerk for signature by the judge. At the same time, deliver to the clerk any copies of the order that counsel wishes to have conformed [see Paragraph 4, below].

NOTE:

When an order settling an interim or final account of the personal representative becomes final, it releases the personal representative and the sureties from all claims of the heirs or devisees and of any persons affected thereby based on any act or omission directly authorized, approved, or confirmed in the order [see Prob. Code § 9612]. The required contents of an order for distribution are set forth in Prob. Code §§ 11603, 11640(b) [see §§ 458D.211 -458D.214]. An order for distribution, on becoming final, binds and is conclusive as to the rights of all interested persons [Prob. Code § 11605].

4. Prepare a notice of the court's order settling the account and ordering final distribution in a sufficient number of copies to give a copy to each person to whom a copy of the notice of hearing was mailed, attach to each a conformed copy of the court's order if desired, prepare a proof of mailing in the same number of copies as the notice, cause the notice (and attached order) with an unsigned copy of the proof of mailing to be mailed to each person affected by the court's order, and file the original of the notice and the proofs of mailing with the court.

NOTE:

Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5* provides that when a motion is granted or denied, unless the court otherwise orders, notice of the court's decision or order must be given by the prevailing party to all other parties or their attorneys in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020 (see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers), unless notice is waived by all parties in open court and is entered in the minutes. Although a motion is defined by Code Civ. Proc. § 1003 as an application for an order for the purposes of Part Two of the Code of Civil Procedure, governing civil actions, and Prob. Code § 1000 provides that, except to the extent that the Probate Code provides applicable rules, the rules of practice applicable to civil actions apply to, and constitute the rules of practice in, proceedings under the Probate Code, it is not altogether clear whether Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5 applies to a petition to settle an account or for final distribution of an estate. Nevertheless, in the absence of any express authority to the contrary, it would appear that the safer practice would be to comply with it and to mail a notice of the court's ruling, to which a conformed copy of the order may be attached, to the persons to whom the notice of the hearing were mailed.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureCounselGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersRefereesAppointmentsEstate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.177

§ 458D.177 Posthearing Proceedings

1. After the order settling the account, ordering the payment of compensation and fees, and ordering final distribution has been signed and filed, obtain from the court clerk's office certified copies as required.

2. Have the personal representative prepare the necessary receipts for signature by the distributees of the estate [see Ch. 458E, Probate: Discharge, § 458E.50].

3. When the order is entered, have the personal representative pay or deliver to the respective distributees the estate property to which each is entitled, and have each distributee sign the prepared receipt.

NOTE:
When an order settling a final account and for final distribution is entered, the personal representative may immediately distribute the property to the persons entitled to distribution, without further notice or proceedings [Prob. Code § 11641]. The personal representative must obtain the receipt of the distributee for property in the estate distributed by the personal representative [Prob. Code § 11751].

4. Have the personal representative obtain from the distributee of personal property subject to possession by the distributee for life only an inventory of the property, file the inventory with the court, and deliver a copy of it to any distributee of the remainder [see Prob. Code § 11752].

5. Have the personal representative make any necessary transfers of securities.

6. Have a certified copy of the order for distribution of real property recorded in the counties in which a certified copy is required to be recorded.

NOTE:
Prob. Code § 7263* provides that if real property is being distributed, a certified copy of the order must be recorded in the county in which the property is located. Prob. Code § 11751, however, provides that in the case of real property, the personal representative shall record the court order for distribution or the personal representative's deed or both in the county in which the real property is located, and that recordation of the order or deed is deemed to be a receipt of the distributee for the property.

7. Deposit with the county treasurer any property ordered deposited with the treasurer, as well as a certified copy of the order for distribution, and obtain from the treasurer a receipt for the property [see Prob. Code §§ 11850-11853].

8. If personal property other than money is ordered deposited with the Controller pursuant to Prob. Code § 11850 (see Prob. Code § 11851(b)), or if personal property other than money is ordered distributed to the state, have the personal representative deliver the property to the Controller, together with a certified copy of the order for distribution [Prob. Code § 11902(a)(2), (b)], and obtain a receipt for it [Prob. Code § 11751].

NOTE:
Insofar as practicable, any tangible personal property must be converted to money before distribution to the State of California [Prob. Code § 11900(b)].

9. If money is to be distributed to the state, have the personal representative deliver it to the State Treasurer [Prob. Code § 11902(a)(1)], and obtain a receipt for it [Prob. Code § 11751], and deliver to the Controller a certified copy of the order for distribution [see Prob. Code § 11902(b)].

10. If real property is to be distributed to the state, have the personal representative cause a certified copy of the court's order to be recorded in the office of the county recorder of each county in which any of the real property is situated [Prob. Code § 11902(a)(3)], and at the same time deliver to the Controller a certified copy of the order for distribution, together with a statement of the date and place or location of each recording and other appropriate recording information [Prob. Code § 11902(b)].

NOTE:
Recordation of the order is deemed to be a receipt of the distributee for the property [Prob. Code § 11751]. However, insofar as practicable, any real property must be converted to money before distribution to the state [Prob. Code § 11900(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesCompensationEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 458D.178-458D.189

[Reserved]

§§ 458D.178[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.190

§ 458D.190 Final Account [Prob. Code §§ 10900, 10951] and Petition for Settlement of Final Account, Final Distribution [Prob. Code § 11640], and for Allowance of Compensation for Ordinary Services [Prob. Code §§ 10800, 10810, 10831(a) (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced on or After July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code §§ 901, 910 (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced Before July 1, 1991)] and Extraordinary Services [Prob. Code §§ 10801, 10811, 10831(a) (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced on or After July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code §§ 902, 910 (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced Before July 1, 1991)]

[1] FORM Final Account [Prob. Code §§ 10900, 10951] and Petition for Settlement of Final Account, Final Distribution [Prob. Code § 11640], and for Allowance of Compensation for Ordinary Services [Prob. Code §§ 10800, 10810, 10831(a) (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced on or After July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code §§ 901, 910 (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced Before July 1, 1991)] and Extraordinary Services [Prob. Code §§ 10801, 10811, 10831(a) (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced on or After July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code §§ 902, 910 (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced Before July 1, 1991)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
	)	_____ [PETITION FOR SETTLE-
Estate of_____ [name],	)	MENT OF Number, e.g., FIRST] AND FINAL AC-Deceased.	)	COUNT AND FINAL DISTRIBUTION [AND FOR )	_____ (ALLOWANCE OF COM-)	PENSATION FOR EXTRAORDINARY
		SERVICES or ORDER FIXING AND ALLOWING COMPENSATION FOR ALL SERVICES RENDERED)]

_____

Petitioner, _____ [name], respectfully represents:

1. Petitioner _____ [name] is the duly appointed, qualified, and acting personal representative of the estate of _____ [name], decedent.

2. Decedent died on _____ [date], in _____ [specify place of death], and was on the date of death a resident of _____ [name of county and state or foreign country].

[EITHER]

3. Decedent's will, dated _____, was duly admitted to probate on _____ [date].

[OR]

3. Decedent died intestate.

[CONTINUE]

4. Letters _____ [testamentary or of administration or of administration with the will annexed or of special administration] (hereinafter "letters") were issued to petitioner on _____ [date], and are in full force and effect. [The special administrator was granted the same powers, duties, and obligations as a general personal representative.]

[ADD, if estate is administered under Independent Administration of Estates Act]

5. The petitioner was granted _____ [full or limited] authority under the Independent Administration of Estates Act to administer decedent's estate without court supervision.

[CONTINUE]

6. Notice to creditors was published in the manner prescribed by Probate Code Section 9001.

[EITHER, if notice to known creditors was not required]

7. No notice of administration was required under Probate Code Sections 9050 through 9052.

[OR, if notice was mailed to known creditors]

7. The notice of administration prescribed by Probate Code Sections 9050 through 9052 was duly mailed to all known and reasonably ascertainable creditors of the estate, other than those described in Probate Code Section 9054, and more than 30 days have elapsed since the date notice was given. _____ [That notice was or Those notices were] filed with the court on _____ [date].

[EITHER, if no notice to public entity is required]

8. Petitioner knows of no public entity to which notice is required under Probate Code Section 9201(a), and no notice is required under Probate Code Section 9202, since the decedent received no Medi-Cal benefits during his/her lifetime and was not the surviving spouse of a person who received Medi-Cal benefits.

[OR, if notice to public entity was given]

8. On _____ [date], notice of the decedent's death and of theseproceedings was given to [for those estates in which letters were first issued on or after July 1, 2008: the Franchise Tax Board and] _____ [name of public entity or officer, e.g., the State Director of Health Services in the manner prescribed by _____ (law or Probate Code Sections 215, 1215, and 9202)] because _____ [specify, e.g., petitioner believed that the decedent had received health care from the state or petitioner believed that decedent was the surviving spouse of a person who had received health care from the state], _____ [but no claim has been filed and the time in which to file a claim has expired or and a claim was filed, the status of which is set forth under Paragraph 10, below].

[CONTINUE]

9. The time for filing claims against the estate expired on _____ [date].

[EITHER, if no claims were filed]

10. No claims against the estate have been filed.

[OR, if claims were filed in a case not under the Independent Administration of Estates Act]

10. The claims filed against the estate, including the name of the claimant, the amount of the claim, the date the claim was filed, and the action taken on the claim, are as follows [set forth each claim filed and its disposition in a separately lettered subparagraph, e.g.]:

a. BROWN & SMITH MORTUARY, claim for $3,895.00, filed on _____, for funeral services, _____ [allowed or approved] and paid on _____ [date].

b. PEACEFUL VALLEY CEMETERY, claim for $2,105.00, filed on _____, for grave site and interment of decedent's remains, _____ [allowed or approved] and paid _____ [date].

c. PEACEFUL VALLEY CEMETERY, claim for $1,020.00, filed on _____, for marker for decedent's grave, _____ [allowed or approved] and paid _____ [date].

d. PETER JONES, M.D., claim for 3,500.00, filed on _____, for expenses of decedent's last illness, _____ [allowed or approved] and paid _____ [date].

e. All Right Pharmacy, claim for $499.00, filed on _____, for prescriptions filled for decedent, _____ [allowed or approved] and paid _____ [date].

f. RICHARD C. BUTLER, wage claim for $1,500.00, filed on _____, for services rendered as domestic servant during decedent's life, rejected on the grounds the claim was not substantiated and, if it was valid, was barred by the statute of limitations. Written notice of rejection was served on _____ [date], no action on the claim has been brought against the estate, and the time for bringing an action has expired.

[Set forth in subsequently lettered subparagraphs similar information for each claim filed.]

[OR, if claims were filed in a case under the Independent Administration of Estates Act]

10. The claims presented, including the claimant's name, the date of filing of the claim, the nature of the claim, the amount claimed, the disposition of the claim, and if the claim was rejected, the date of service of the rejection and whether or not a lawsuit was filed, are as follows:

_____ [set forth each claim filed and the stated items of information about each, in a separately lettered subparagraph]

(a) _____.

(b) _____.

(c) _____.

[CONTINUE]

[If all creditor claims have been satisfied]

11. There are no creditor claims that have not been paid, satisfied, or adequately provided for.

[OR, for each claim that is not paid, satisfied, or adequately provided for, and for which distributee will post a bond]

11. The claim of _____ [name] has not been paid or satisfied, because it is a _____ [contingent or disputed] debt. This claim is _____ [not due or became due on _____ (date) or will become due on _____ (date)]. _____ [No action has been brought on the claim or Action was filed on the claim on _____ (date) in _____ (name of court and action number)]. The claim is _____ [unsecured or secured by _____ (describe mortgage, deed of trust, lien, or other encumbrance) on _____ (describe real or personal property in estate), which has a fair market value of $_____]. Before distribution, _____ [name of distributee] will post a bond pursuant to Probate Code Section 11466 conditioned on payment of the claim should it become _____ [absolute or established]. The amount of the claim is $_____ and its present value is $_____. The fair market value of the property to be distributed, less the amount of liens and encumbrances on the property is $_____.

[OR, for each claim that is not paid, satisfied, or adequately provided for, and for which the parties have agreed on a method for satisfying the claim]

11. The claim of _____ [name] has not been paid or satisfied, becauseit is a _____ [contingent or disputed] debt. This claim is _____ [not due or became due on _____ (date) or will become due on _____ (date)]. _____ [No action has been brought on the claim or Action was filed on the claim on _____ (date) in _____ (name of court and action number).] The claim is _____ [unsecured or secured by _____ (describe mortgage, deed of trust, lien, or other encumbrance) on _____ (describe real or personal property in estate), which has a fair market value of $_____]. All persons interested in the estate have agreed on a method to provide for payment of the claim. The terms of the agreement are _____ [as follows: _____ (describe terms) or set forth in Exhibit _____ attached to this petition and made a part hereof]. This agreement reasonably protects all interested persons and will not extend administration of the estate unreasonably. [Add, if appropriate: Petitioner is informed and believes and thereon represents that this agreement will, in fact, accelerate administration of the estate, because _____ (explain facts)].

[OR, for each claim that is not paid, satisfied, or adequately provided for, and for which a court order requiring deposit of funds as security for the claim is sought]

11. The claim of _____ [name] has not been paid or satisfied, because it is a _____ [contingent or disputed] debt. This claim is _____ [not due or became due on _____ (date) or will become due on _____ (date)]. _____ [No action has been brought on the claim or Action was filed on the claim on _____ (date) in _____ (name of court and action number).] The claim is _____ [unsecured or secured by _____ (describe mortgage, deed of trust, lien, or other encumbrance) on _____ (describe real or personal property in estate), which has a fair market value of $_____]. Petitioner hereby petitions for an order that $_____ in funds belonging to the estate be deposited in _____ [name and address of financial institution in California]. Petitioner further petitions that _____ [describe assets, e.g., the funds] be subject to withdrawal only on authorization of this court, either to be paid to _____ [name of creditor] when this claim becomes _____ [absolute or established or due], or to be distributed _____ [specify distribution pursuant to Prob. Code § 11642, e.g., as follows: _____ (describe distribution)] if the claim does not become _____ [absolute or established or due].

[OR, for each claim that is not paid, satisfied, or adequately provided for, and for which a court order appointing a trustee to invest estate funds for the creditor's benefit is sought]

11. The claim of _____ [name] has not been paid or satisfied, because it is a _____ [contingent or disputed] debt. This claim is _____ [not due or became due on _____ (date) or will become due on _____ (date)]. _____ [No action has been brought on the claim or Action was filed on the claim on _____ (date) in _____ (name of court and action number).] The claim is _____ [unsecured or secured by _____ (describe mortgage, deed of trust, lien, or other encumbrance) on _____ (describe real or personal property in estate), which has a fair market value of $_____]. Petitioner hereby petitions the court for an order appointing _____ [name] as trustee to receive payment from funds in the estate in the amount of $_____, to invest that amount and, from that investment, to pay _____ [name of creditor] the full amount of this claim. In paying this amount to the trustee, petitioner requests the court to compute the present value of the claim, which is $_____ giving consideration to a reasonable return on the amount to be invested. Petitioner further petitions the court to order the trustee to invest the payment in investments that would be proper for a personal representative. Petitioner further petitions the court for an order that the trustee pay the claim _____ [specify, e.g., in monthly installments of $_____ each, beginning on _____ (date) and continuing on the _____ (specify, e.g., first) day of each and every month thereafter until the claim is paid in full] and that, when the claim is fully paid, any excess in the trustee's possession be distributed _____ [specify distribution pursuant to Prob. Code § 11642, e.g., as follows: _____ (describe distribution)].

[CONTINUE]

12. During the period embraced in the account, there were no sales, purchases, changes in the form of assets, or other transactions that are not otherwise readily understandable from the account and schedules.

[OR]

12. During the period embraced in the account, the following securities were sold or redeemed: _____ [specify].

[OR, if claim is under Independent Administration of Estates Act]

12. Petitioner has taken certain actions without prior court approval, under the Independent Administration of Estates Act, for which notice of the proposed action was required. These actions are as follows: [describe each action not yet listed in a prior accounting, report, or petition for preliminary distribution that was approved by the court; list each action separately, including the nature of the action, when the action was taken, a statement of when and to whom notice was given, whether notice was waived and if so, by whom, and whether any objections were received].

[CONTINUE]

[INCLUDE, If appropriate]

13. During the period embraced in the account, the following securities werepurchased or subscribed for:_____ [specify, setting forth authority under which seller acted].

[INCLUDE, If appropriate]

14. During the period embraced in the account, the following securities were received as a result of stock dividends or stock splits: _____ [specify].

[INCLUDE, If appropriate]

15. During the period embraced in the account, the following other assets of the estate were sold: _____ [specify].

[INCLUDE, if appropriate, when including any of optional Paragraphs 12-15]

16. _____ [Petitioner or The decedent's personal representative] acted as set forth in Paragraphs 12-15, without court supervision after having served, when necessary, notice of proposed action on or obtained a written waiver of notice of proposed action from all persons entitled.

[INCLUDE, if appropriate]

17. Apart from the actions set forth in Paragraphs 12-15, during the period embraced by the account, _____ [petitioner or the decedent's personal representative] took the following actions without court approval after serving notice of proposed action on or obtaining a written waiver from all persons entitled: _____ [specify].

[CONTINUE]

18. During the period covered by this account, the personal representative has kept all cash in his/her possession invested in _____ [interest-bearing accounts or investments as authorized by law or investments authorized by the will or interest bearing accounts and other investments authorized by law], except such amounts of cash as were reasonably necessary for the orderly administration of this estate.

19. During the account period, petitioner has not hired any person who has a family or affiliate relationship with the petitioner.

[OR]

19. During the account period, petitioner hired _____ [name], who is _____ [describe family or affiliate relationship to petitioner, e.g., the son of the petitioner or the Black Corporation, a California corporation of which petitioner is currently the president and chief executive officer] _____ [describe capacity in which hired or duties performed, e.g., to act as a bookkeeper for the estate or to act as a real estate broker for the purpose of selling real estate belonging to the estate].

[CONTINUE]

20. [On or about _____ (date), an inventory and appraisal was filed showing the value of this estate to be $_____.] This inventory lists all the assets of the decedent's estate that have come into petitioner's possession [or under his/her control]. A complete, true, and correct account of decedent's estate for the period from _____ [date] to _____ [date], inclusive, is filed herewith. [Add, if appropriate: Petitioner has heretofore filed, and the court has settled and allowed, a _____ (number, e.g., First) Account for the period from _____ (date), to _____ (date), inclusive.]

[EITHER]

21. No personal property taxes are due or payable by the estate.

[OR]

21. All personal property taxes due and payable by the estate have been paid.

[EITHER]

22. No real property taxes are due or payable by the estate.

[OR]

22. All real property taxes due and payable by the estate have been paid.

[EITHER]

23. No _____ [California or federal or California or federal] income tax(es) is/are due or payable.

[OR]

23. All _____ [California and/or federal] income tax(es) due and payable have been paid.

[ADD. if income tax applies, EITHER, if certificate of Franchise Tax Board is not required]

24. There is/are _____ [no nonresident devisee(s) of the estate or (a) nonresident devisee(s), but the value of the state is less than $400,000 or (a) nonresident devisee(s), but the total value of the assets distributable to the nonresident devisee(s) is less than $100,000].

[OR, if certificate of Franchise Tax Board is required]

24. The fair market value of the assets in the estate at the time of decedent's death exceeded $1,000,000, and the value of the assets distributable to one or more nonresident beneficiaries exceeded $250,000. Therefore, the certificate of the Franchise Tax Board prescribed by Section 19513 of the Revenue andTaxation Code has been filed with the court.

[EITHER]

25. The estate is of insufficient value to require the filing of a federal or California estate tax return and therefore, no federal or California estate tax return has been or will be filed for the estate.

[OR]

25. A federal estate tax return has been filed for the estate showing a total tax liability of $_____, which has been paid. The return _____ [has or has not] been audited.

[OR]

25. A federal estate tax return has been filed for the estate showing a total tax liability of $_____. The tax has not been paid, but evidence of a written agreement for the payment of the tax, executed between the Internal Revenue Service and _____ [the personal representative or certain persons interested in the estate, to wit: _____ (names), who are _____ (specify basis for interest, e.g., heirs)], has been filed with the court.

[ADD, if California estate tax applies]

26. A California estate tax return has been filed for the estate showing a total tax liability of $_____, which has been paid.

[EITHER]

27. Petitioner has performed all the duties required of him/her as _____ [specify, e.g., the Executor of decedent's will]. The estate is insolvent and is in condition to be closed.

[OR]

27. Petitioner has performed all the duties required of him/her as _____ [specify, e.g., the Executor of decedent's will]; all costs of administration, except _____ [specify unpaid costs, e.g., petitioner's compensation, and the compensation of his/her attorney, for services rendered to the estate], and all debts have been paid [or adequately provided for], and the estate is in condition to be closed.

[CONTINUE]

28. _____ [Specify character of estate property, e.g., (Except as otherwise herein expressly stated,) (T)he whole of the estate is decedent's separate property].

29. The name, age, relationship to the decedent, and address of each _____ [heir or devisee (who has not already received his or her devise in full pursuant to court order)] is as follows:

Name and Relationship	Age	Address
_____	_____	_____ _____
_____	_____	_____ _____
_____	_____	_____ _____

[ADD, if federal estate tax has been paid]

30. The federal estate tax paid should be prorated as follows among the following persons:

Beneficiary	Proration

[List persons interested in the estate or benefited by the payment of the estate tax, who should bear prorated shares of the tax pursuant to former Prob. Code § 970 (if decedent died before January 1, 1987), or Prob. Code § 20110 (if decedent died on or after January 1, 1987), and calculate the proration that each should bear. For a discussion of the proration of estate taxes, see Ch. 452, Probate: Proration of Estate and Generation-Skipping Transfer Taxes .]

[CONTINUE]

[INCLUDE if decedent's will contains a condition precedent to a disposition]

[31. The will expresses the condition precedent that disposition of _____ (specify property or interest affected) to _____ (name) shall not take effect unless and until _____ (state condition); this expression appears _____ (specify location in will, e.g., on page 2, lines 20 through 21, and on page 3, lines 1 and 2). As far as is known to petitioner, that condition _____ (has or has not) been fulfilled in that _____ (state facts known to petitioner relevant to whether the condition has or has not been fulfilled).]

[INCLUDE if a testamentary disposition is subject to a condition subsequent that has been fulfilled before distribution]

32. Decedent's will gives _____ [specify property or interest given] to _____ [name] subject to a condition subsequent expressed in the following language, to wit: _____ [quote language]; this language appears _____ [specify location in will, e.g., on page 2, lines 3 through 10]. That condition has been fulfilled during the period of administration in that_____[state facts showing fulfillment of condition].

[INCLUDE if income, including net income from property sold during the period, has been received during the period of administration from real or personal property not otherwise devised]

33. During the period of administration, petitioner received net income in the amount of $_____ from the following described _____ [real or personal or real and personal] property not otherwise devised, _____ [add, if property yielding income was sold during period, including net income from such of the property as was sold during the period,] which property does not include a general pecuniary devise in trust: _____ [describe property, indicating which items, if any, were sold during administration]. The following persons are entitled to receive the following shares of the _____ [residuary or intestate] property and should receive prorated shares of such income:

Distributee	Distributive Share
_____	_____
_____	_____

_____ _____

[INCLUDE if decedent's will gives property to a minor subject to the California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act (Prob. Code § 3900 et seq.)]

34. In _____ [location in will, e.g., Paragraph IV, on page 2, lines 6 through 10,] decedent's will provides that _____ [specify property] is given to _____ [name] as custodian for _____ (name of minor) under the California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act, in the following words, to wit: _____ [quote provision].

[INCLUDE if a beneficiary has filed a written disclaimer of his/her interest in the estate, in compliance with Prob. Code §§ 260-295]

35. On _____ [date][, and within nine (9) months after the death of decedent], _____ [name] filed a written disclaimer of any interest to which _____ [he or she or name of beneficiary] would otherwise have succeeded as a beneficiary. [If disclaimer made on minor's behalf by guardian of minor's estate or guardian ad litem, or made by a personal representative on behalf of a decedent, add: The disclaimer was filed pursuant to a court order obtained under Probate Code Section 277(c)-(f).] Had the disclaimer not been filed, _____ [name] would have been entitled to take _____ [specify interest or property]. Decedent has _____ [either specified _____ (indicate manner of specification, e.g., in his/her will) that in the event of a disclaimer by _____ (name), his/her interest shall be distributed or not specified how the interest of _____ (name) should be distributed in the event of his/her disclaimer, and the interest, which is a _____ (present interest, should be distributed as if he/she had predeceased decedent or future interest, should be distributed as if he/she had died before the event determining that his/her interest had become finally ascertained and his/her interest indefeasibly vested], as follows:

Distributee	Distributive Share
_____	_____
_____	_____
_____	_____

[INCLUDE if a preliminary distribution has been made to any beneficiary of all or a portion of his or her share of the estate property]

36. Pursuant to the order of this court, a preliminary distribution of property has been made to beneficiaries as set forth in Paragraph 12, Schedule G, above.

[EITHER, if decedent died testate]

37. By the terms of decedent's will, the [remaining] property in the estate should be distributed to the following persons:

[List the names of the persons who are to receive property, the capacity, if appropriate, in which he or she is to receive the property, the property that each is to receive, the paragraph or other part of the will under which the distribution is to be made, and the inventory item number of the property unless it is cash. The devises may be listed as set forth in Prob. Code § 21117 (cf. Prob. Code § 21402 (order of abatement)), that is, beginning with specific devises, and continuing in order with general devises, if any, demonstrative devises, general pecuniary devises, annuities, and residuary devises, or they may be grouped under the devisee's name, when a devisee is to receive more than one item or group of items of the estate property; for example:]

a. [Specific devise of real property (see Prob. Code § 21117(a)):] To _____ [name], absolutely, pursuant to _____ [e.g., Paragraph VII] of decedent's will, Inventory Item No. _____, _____ [e.g., decedent's farm commonly known as Blackacre, located in Sonoma County, California].

b. [Specific devise of personal property (see Prob. Code § 21117(a)):] To _____ [name][, as custodian for _____ [name] under the California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act], pursuant to _____ [e.g., Paragraph VIII, lines three through six, on page two] of decedent's will, InventoryItem No. _____, _____ [e.g., decedent's 57 shares of Class A preferred stock of the First National Bank and Trust Company of Citytown, California].

c. [Demonstrative devise (see Prob. Code § 21117(c)):] To _____ [name][, as trustee for _____ (name)], pursuant to _____ [e.g., Subparagraphs A through F of Paragraph XI] of decedent's will, the sum of $_____, to be taken from the proceeds of sale of Inventory Item No. _____, to wit: _____ [e.g., 100 shares of the common stock of the Hupmobile Automobile Corporation].

d. [General pecuniary devise (see Prob. Code §§ 21117(d), 21118):] To _____ [name], pursuant to _____ [e.g., Paragraph X] of decedent's will, the sum of $_____.

e. [Annuity (see Prob. Code § 21117(e)):] To _____ [name], pursuant to _____ [e.g., Paragraph XI] of decedent's will, an annuity of $_____ [e.g., per year, payable every three months, for life].

f. [Residuary devise (see Prob. Code § 21117(f)):] To _____ [name], pursuant to _____ [e.g., Paragraph XX] of decedent's will, all the remaining property in the estate not disposed of by the will.

[OR, if decedent died intestate]

37. Under the law of intestacy, the property in decedent's estate should be distributed to the following persons:

[List the persons who are to receive property and the property or interest that each is to receive, beginning with the spouse, if any, and continuing with the heirs in order from nearest to farthest degree of kinship (see Prob. Code § 6400 et seq.), and the inventory item number of the property unless it is cash, as in the following examples.]

a. To _____ [name], decedent's surviving spouse, decedent's half of all community property, plus one _____ [half or third] of decedent's separate property, as follows:

(i) Inventory Item No. _____, _____ [e.g., real property commonly known as 123 Main Street, Citytown, California (community property)].

(ii) Inventory Item No. _____, _____ [e.g., the sum of $_____, being _____ [one half or one third] of the balance at the date of decedent's death in Savings Account No. 12345 at the First National Bank and Trust Company of Citytown, California (separate property)].

b. To _____ [name], decedent's _____ [e.g., only surviving son], _____ [one half or one third] of decedent's separate property, namely, _____ [one half or one third] of the balance in Savings Account No. 12345 at the First National Bank and Trust Company of Citytown, California, Inventory Item No. _____.

[c. To _____ (name), the son of decedent's deceased daughter, one third of decedent's separate property, namely, one third of the balance in Savings Account No. 12345 at the First National Bank and Trust Company of Citytown, California, Inventory Item No. _____.]

[CONTINUE]

38. Petitioner is entitled to a total statutory compensation of $_____. [If court has made a partial allowance, add: As set out in Schedule _____ to the _____ (specify, e.g., first and final) account of decedent's estate, filed herewith, petitioner has pursuant to court order received a partial allowance on his/her compensation in the sum of $_____, leaving a balance due of $_____.] _____ [If petitioner has not received any other compensation from the assets subject to the account: Petitioner has not received any other compensation from the assets subject to the account or, if other compensation has been paid: As set out in Schedule _____ to the _____ (specify, e.g., first and final) account of decedent's estate, filed herewith, petitioner has received a payment _____ (of or on account of his/her) compensation in the sum of $_____, without prior court order, leaving a balance due of $_____].

39. Petitioner's attorney, _____ [name], is entitled to a total statutory compensation of $_____. [If court has made a partial allowance, add: As set out in Schedule _____ to the _____ (specify, e.g., first and final) account of decedent's estate, filed herewith, petitioner's attorney has pursuant to court order received a partial allowance on his/ her compensation in the sum of $_____, leaving a balance due of $_____.] _____ [If no other compensation has been paid to petitioner's attorney from the assets subject to the account: Petitioner's attorney has not received any other compensation from the assets subject to the account or, if other compensation has been paid: As set out in Schedule _____ to the _____ (specify, e.g., first and final) account of decedent's estate, filed herewith, petitioner's attorney has received a payment _____ (of or on account of his/her) compensation in the sum of $_____, without prior court order, leaving a balance due of $_____].

[Add, if compensation for extraordinary services is sought by petitioner]

40. Petitioner has, for the benefit of the estate, performed the extraordinary services set out in Exhibit B, which is attached hereto and made a part hereof, for which he/she is entitled to a reasonable compensation in addition to his/her statutory compensation. A reasonable compensation for these services is $_____.]

[Add, if compensation for extraordinary services is sought by petitioner's attorney]

41. _____ [Name], attorney for petitioner, has, for the benefit of the estate, performed the extraordinary services set out in Exhibit B, which is attached hereto and made a part hereof, for which he/she is entitled to a reasonable compensation in addition to his/her statutory compensation. A reasonable compensation for these services is $_____. [The extraordinary services for which compensation should be allowed include services rendered by _____ (name), a paralegal who _____ (specify qualifications and experience).

The paralegal's services, performed under the petitioner's direction and supervision, were as follows: _____ (specify the hours spent and services performed by the paralegal).]

[EITHER]

42. Petitioner requests authorization to withhold $_____ for closing expenses and as a reserve for any liabilities that may hereafter be determined to be due from the decedent or the estate, including any estate or income tax deficiencies, penalties, and interest, and to pay any additional attorneys' fees relative to communication with beneficiaries, work with regard to estate tax or fiduciary income tax, and preparation of income tax returns. Any unexpended portion of the reserve will be distributed to _____ [specify, e.g., _____ (name), the residuary beneficiary under the decedent's will,] without further order of this court.

[OR]

42. No reserve is needed to cover closing costs or future unanticipated expenses, such as possible costs associated with any estate or income tax deficiencies, penalties, interest, tax audits, or disputes of the estate, or to pay any additional attorneys' fees relative to communication with beneficiaries or work with regard to estate tax or fiduciary income tax, and preparation of income tax returns.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays for an order that:

1. The administration of this estate be closed.

2. Petitioner's _____ [number, e.g., First] and final account as filed herewith be settled, allowed, and approved.

3. The property in the estate be distributed as set forth herein.

[ADD if distribution is conditioned on posting of bond to provide for contingent or disputed debt EITHER]

4. The bond of _____ [name] as distributee to secure payment of the claim of _____ [name of creditor] be set in the amount of $_____.

[OR]

4. The agreements of _____ [names of all distributees], set forth in Exhibit "_____" to this petition, assuming liability with regard to the _____ [contingent or disputed] debt of _____ [name of creditor] be approved.

[OR]

4. The agreement between all persons interested in the estate, set forth in Exhibit "_____" to this petition, regarding a method to provide for the debt to _____ [name of creditor], which is _____ [contingent or disputed or not due] be approved.

[OR]

4. Funds belonging to the estate in the amount of $_____ be deposited in _____ [name and address of financial institution in California], subject to withdrawal only on authorization of this court, either to be paid to _____ [name of creditor] when his/her claim becomes _____ [absolute or established or due], or to be distributed _____ [specify distribution pursuant to Probate Code Section 11642, e.g., as follows: _____ (describe distribution)] if the claim does not become _____ [absolute or established or due].

[OR]

4. _____ [Name] be appointed as trustee to receive payment from funds in the estate in the amount of $_____, to invest in _____ [specify, e.g., investments that would be proper for a personal representative], and from such investments, to pay _____ [name of creditor] the full amount of his/her claim _____ [specify payment manner of payment, e.g., monthly until _____ (date), when the claim shall be deemed paid in full], and that, on completion of payment, any excess in the trustee's possession be distributed _____ [specify distribution pursuant to Probate Code Section 11642, e.g., as follows: _____ (describe distribution)].

[CONTINUE]

[5. If petitioner has made an agreement with the Internal Revenue Service for payment of the estate tax: The agreement between the Internal Revenue Service and petitioner, referred to in Paragraph 24, for payment of the federal estate tax be approved and ratified, and that petitioner be authorized to withhold from each distributee a prorated portion of his or her distributive share, for the payment of the tax.]

[6. If an estate tax has been paid: The estate tax paid by petitioner be prorated among the persons named in Paragraph 29 of this petition.]

7. All acts, transactions, sales, and investments of the personal representative be ratified, approved, and confirmed.

[8. Petitioner be allowed the sum of $_____ out of the estate as (the unpaid balance due on) the statutory compensation to which petitioner is entitled.]

[9. Petitioner be allowed the additional sum of $_____ as reasonable compensation for extraordinary services rendered for the benefit of the estate.]

[10. _____ (Name), attorney for petitioner, be allowed the sum of $_____ out of the estate as (the unpaid balance due on) the statutory compensation to which he/she is entitled.]

[11. _____ (Name), attorney for petitioner, be allowed the additional sum of $_____ as reasonable compensation for extraordinary services rendered for the benefit of the estate.]

[12. Petitioner be authorized to withhold $_____ for closing expenses and as a reserve for liabilities of the estate.]

13. For such other and further orders as the court may deem proper.

_____ [signature]

Petitioner

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Petitioner

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the petitioner in the above-entitled proceeding. I have read the foregoing petition and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.
_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

EXHIBIT A

STATEMENT OF COMPENSATION

Commission or Fee Base

Inventory and Appraisal	$_____
Receipts, excluding Principal.....	$_____
Gains On Sales.....	$_____
Losses on Sales.....	$_____
Total Commission or Fee Base.....	$_____

Commission or Fee Computation

4% on first $100,000.00	($_____)	$_____
3% on next $100,000.00.....	($_____)	$_____
2% on next $800,000.00.....	($_____)	$_____
1% on next $9,000,000.00.....	($_____)	$_____
1/2% on next $15,000,000.00	($_____)	$_____
Amount requested from the court for estates above $25,000,000	($_____)	$_____

Total Commission or Fee

EXHIBIT B
SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
Estate of_____ [name],	)	_____ [DECLARATION OF Deceased.	)	_____ (NAME) IN SUPPORT OF
	)	REQUEST FOR COMPENSATION
	)	FOR _____
	)	(PARALEGAL SERVICES
	)	or EXTRAORDINARY SERVICES)]

_____

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am _____ [identify declarant, e.g., an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before all the courts of the State of California or other statement as appropriate].

[Set forth in detail the services rendered by the personal representative, attorney or paralegal, including the amount of time spent (see Prob. Code §§ 10801, 10810, 10850(a); former Prob. Code §§ 900(a), 902; see also Prob. Code § 10850(b)).]

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.
_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA
COUNTY OF _____

	)
Estate of_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Deceased.	)	_____ [number, e.g., FIRST] AND
	)	FINAL ACCOUNT OF PERSONAL REPRESENT-)	ATIVE OF THE ESTATE OF
		_____

[name of decedent]

_____

SUMMARY OF ACCOUNT
(From _____ [date], to _____ [date])

CHARGES

Property on hand at beginning of account period.....	$_____
Additional property received (or supplemental inventor-ies).....	$_____
Income receipts during account period (Schedule A)	$_____
Principal receipts during account period (Schedule B).....	$_____
Net income from trade or business (Schedule E).....	$_____
Gains on sales or other dispositions (Schedule F).....	$_____
TOTAL CHARGES	$_____

CREDITS

Income disbursements during account period (Schedule C).....	$_____
Principal disbursements during account period (Schedule D).....	$_____
Net loss from trade or business (Schedule E).....	$_____
Losses on sales or other dispositions (Schedule G).....	$_____
Distributions to beneficiaries (Schedule H).....	$_____
Property on hand at end of account period (carry value) (Schedule I).....	$_____
TOTAL CREDITS	$_____

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the personal representative in the above-entitled proceeding. I have read the foregoing account and the schedules attached hereto, and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.
_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

SCHEDULE A: INCOME RECEIPTS DURINGACCOUNT PERIOD[Unless otherwise required by local court rule or practice, income receipts may be listed by category, rather than in chronological order, e.g.:]

	Amount	Total
Dividends
Widget Company, 100 shares, common Period 1/1/95-12/1/95.....	$ 75.00
Gadget Co., 100 shares, common
Period 1/1/95-9/1/95.....	25.00	$100.00
Period 1/1/95-12/31/95.....	$ 94.91
City Savings, Money Market
Account Period 6/19/95-5/5/96	443.47
$50,000 in U.S. Treasury Notes,
due June 1, 1996.....	4,110.00	$4,648.38
TOTAL INCOME RECEIPTS.....		$4,748.38

SCHEDULE B: PRINCIPAL RECEIPTS DURINGACCOUNT PERIOD[Unless a chronological list is required by local court rule or practice, list and total cash and noncash assets separately e.g.:]

	Amount	Total
Cash
National Insurance Co., payment on claim under Policy
No. 10092.....	$20,000.00	$20,000.00
Other
Antique sideboard, purchased by decedent prior to death, pursuant to contract with Watson & Co., Ltd. dated 9/27/96
Value.....	1,200.00	$1,200.00
TOTAL PRINCIPAL RECEIPTS.....		$21,200.00

SCHEDULE C: INCOME DISBURSEMENTS DURING ACCOUNT PERIOD[Unless otherwise required by local court rule, income disbursements, like receipts, may be listed according to category, rather than in chronological order, e.g.:]

Expenses Related to Income Producing Property		Totals
1/25/96 Jobee Roofing Company --repair roof of rental unit, 3158 Ritchie Lane, #2 Nicetown, CA.....	$ 525.00	$ 525.00
Income Taxes
4/15/96 I.R.S.

--Fiduciary Income Tax	$ 3,000.00	$ 3,000.00
TOTAL INCOME DISBURSEMENTS.....		$ 3,525.00

SCHEDULE D: PRINCIPAL DISBURSEMENTS DURING ACCOUNT PERIOD[Unless otherwise required by local court rule, principal disbursements, like receipts, may be listed according to category, rather than in chronological order, e.g.:]

Debts of Decedent		Totals
2/02/96 Peter Jones, M.D.
--last illness expenses.....	$ 3,500.00
2/02/96 All Right Pharmacy --prescriptions.....	499.00	$ 3,999.00
Funeral Expenses
1/19/96 Brown & Smith Funeral Home --funeral expenses.....	$ 3,895.00
1/19/96 Peaceful Valley Cemetery --grave site and interment.....	2,105.00
1/19/96 Peaceful Valley Cemetery --grave marker.....	1,020.00	$ 7,020.00
Administration Expenses
12/5/95 Clerk of Court --filing fees.....	$ 97.00
1/14/96 Worldwide Bonding --premium on executor's bond.....	300.00
1/15/96 Nicetown City Tribune --publication of notice.....	250.00
2/15/96 Jack Jones, Jeweler --appraisal of jewelry.....	200.00
2/28/96 Jack L. Green, Probate Referee --appraisal of balance of estate property.....	400.00	$ 1,247.00
Federal and State Taxes
8/20/96 I.R.S.
--federal estate tax.....	$10,249.00	$ 10,249.00
Compensation
3/15/96 Partial Allowance on Personal Representative's Compensation per Court Order.....	$ 500.00
3/15/96 Partial Allowance on Attorney's Compensation per Court Order
--to _____ [name of attorney	$ 500.00	$ 1,000.00

].....

TOTAL PRINCIPAL DISBURSE-MENTS..... $ 23,515.00

SCHEDULE E: NET INCOME OR LOSS FROM TRADE OR BUSINESS

Income Received During Account Period from

_____

[name of business]

_____ [describe item]..... $_____

_____ [describe item]..... $_____

_____ [describe item]..... $_____

_____ [describe item]..... $_____

Expenses During Account Period from

_____

[name of business]

_____ [describe item]..... $_____

_____ [describe item]..... $_____

_____ [describe item]..... $_____

_____ [describe item]..... $_____

NET INCOME (OR LOSS)..... $_____

SCHEDULE F: GAINS ON SALES OR OTHER DISPOSITIONS

Inventory Item No.

_____,

_____ [describe]

Appraised at ..... $_____

Sold for ..... $_____

Gain ..... $_____

[Describe other items as necessary]

TOTAL ..... $_____

SCHEDULE G: LOSSES ON SALES OR OTHER DISPOSITIONS

Inventory Item No.

_____,

_____ [describe]

Appraised at ..... $_____

Sold for ..... $_____

Loss ..... $_____

[Describe other items as necessary]

TOTAL ..... $_____

SCHEDULE H: DISTRIBUTIONS TO BENEFICIARIES[List property included in the inventory or the schedules of thelast account that is no longer in the personal representative'spossession and is not otherwise accounted for, e.g.:]

To decedent's widow, Joanne Appleby, pursuant to court order in partial satisfaction of the devise under Paragraph 11 of decedent's will:

4/14/96	Cash	$ 50,000.00	$ 50,000.00

To decedent's sister, Mary Appleby, pursuant to court order in satisfaction of the devise under Paragraph 14 of decedent's will:

4/14/96	(Inventory item no. _____) 201 piece sterling silver flatware set.....	$ 12,500.00
4/14/96	(Inventory item no. _____) 18" ruby/sapphire necklace.....	29,000.00
4/14/96	(Inventory item no. _____) Family photo album.....	0.00
4/14/96	Cash	10,000.00	$ 51,500.00

To decedent's brother, Tony Appleby, pursuant to court order and in satisfaction of the devise under Paragraph 15 of decedent's will:

4/15/96	(Inventory item no. _____) 1-carat white diamond ring set in platinum	$ 12,500.00
4/15/96	Cash	15,000.00	$ 27,500.00

SCHEDULE I: PROPERTY ON HAND AT END OF ACCOUNT PERIOD(CARRY VALUE)

[List all property on hand at end of account period, setting forth value at which property is carried on books:]

Cash on hand.....	$_____
Inventory Item No. _____, 40 acres of unimproved real property situated in San Cristobal, California	$_____
Inventory Item No. _____, U.S. stamp collection	$_____

[List additional items as necessary]

TOTAL

SCHEDULE J: PROPERTY ON HAND AT END OF ACCOUNT PERIOD(ESTIMATED MARKET VALUE)

[List all property on hand at end of account period, setting forth estimated market value of each item]

Cash on hand..... $_____

Inventory Item No. _____, $_____
40 acres of unimproved real property situated in San Cristobal, California .....

Inventory Item No. _____, $_____
U.S. stamp collection .....

[List additional items as necessary]

TOTAL

SCHEDULE K: PROPERTY ON HAND AT BEGINNING OF ACCOUNT PERIOD(ESTIMATED MARKET VALUE)

[In this account, which is required only if the account is not an initial account, list all property on hand at beginning of account period, setting forth estimated market value of each item:]

Cash on hand ..... $_____

Inventory Item No. _____, $_____
House and lot at 4111 Navidad Lane,
San Cristobal, California .....

Inventory Item No. _____, $_____
Original oil painting by Jasper Johns .....

[List additional items as necessary]

TOTAL

SCHEDULE L: PURCHASES OR OTHER CHANGES IN FORM OF ASSETS DURING ACCOUNT PERIOD

[Set forth any purchases or other changes in forms of assets, such as by sale, exchange, or otherwise, during account period:]

Inventory Item No. _____, $_____
Steinway Grand Piano, Model D, sold on July 1, 1998, for cash in the amount of.....

Inventory Item No. _____, $_____
real property improved by warehouse building located at 6630 Cabrillo Boulevard, San Cristobal, California, exchanged on August 31, 1998, for 40 acres of unimproved real property at 2000 Vizcaino Road, San Cristobal, California, with a fair market value of .....

[List additional items as necessary]

TOTAL

SCHEDULE M: PROPOSED DISTRIBUTION, INCLUDING DISTRIBUTION OF NET INCOME

Petitioner proposes to distribute assets of the estate as follows:

To _____ [name]

1. Inventory Item No. _____, $_____ original oil painting
by Winslow Homer.....

2. Inventory Item No. _____, $_____
40 acres of unimproved real property at 2000 Vizcaino Road, San Cristobal, California,.....

3. Net income received during account period from Item No. 2 $_____ above .....

Total distributions to _____ [name]

To _____ [name]

1. Inventory Item No. _____, $_____
1997 Buick Le Sabre,.....

2. Inventory Item No. _____, $_____
2,000 shares of the Class B stock,
Micro Force Corporation,.....

3. Inventory Item No. _____, $_____
Net income received during account period from Item No. 2
above .....

4. Inventory Item No. _____, $_____
house and lot located at 2000 Shady Lane, San Cristobal, California,.....

5. Inventory Item No. _____, $_____ household furniture and furnishings located at 2000 Portola Lane, San Cristobal, California,.....

Total distributions to
_____ [name]

[Set forth additional items of distribution as needed]

TOTAL DISTRIBUTIONS

SCHEDULE N: ALLOCATION OF RECEIPTS AND DISBURSEMENTS BETWEEN PRINCIPAL AND INCOME

RECEIPTS ALLOCATED TO PRINCIPAL

World Concepts, Inc., $_____
100 shares, common stock,
dividend for period 1/1/98-12/31/99 .....

Travelwide Company, $_____
500 shares, common stock,
dividend for period 1/1/98-12/31/99 .....

[Add additional items as necessary]

TOTAL RECEIPTS ALLOCATED TO PRINCIPAL $_____

SCHEDULE N: ALLOCATION OF RECEIPTS AND DISBURSEMENTS BETWEEN PRINCIPAL AND INCOME

RECEIPTS ALLOCATED TO INCOME

First Trust Co., savings account, interest for period 1/1/98-12/31/98 ..... $_____

City Savings, money market account, dividend for period 1/1/98-12/31/98 ..... $_____

$50,000 face value, U. S. Treasury notes, interest paid June 1, 1998 ..... $_____

TOTAL RECEIPTS ALLOCATED TO PRINCIPAL $_____

SCHEDULE O: INCOME, DISBURSEMENTS, AND PROCEEDS OF SALE ATTRIBUTABLE TO SPECIFICALLY DEVISED PROPERTY

INCOME ATTRIBUTABLE TO SPECIFICALLY DEVISED PROPERTY

To Inventory Item No. _____, real property improved with warehouse building located at 6630 Cabrillo Boulevard, San Cristobal, California, net rents received during account period from same ..... $_____

To Inventory Item No. _____, 2,000 shares of the Class B stock, Micro Force Corporation, dividends received during account period from same ..... $_____

[Add additional items as needed]

SCHEDULE P: CALCULATION OF INTEREST TO BE PAID TO [GENERAL PECUNIARY DEVISES or ANNUITIES or DEVISES FOR MAINTENANCE]

INTEREST TO BE PAID TO GENERAL DEVISE OF $2,000 TO _____ [name]

Interest at the rate of _____percent per annum computed from _____ [date] to _____ [date]..... $_____

[Add additional items as necessary]

SCHEDULE Q: LIABILITIES OF ESTATE[List all liabilities of estate, including liabilities which are a lien on estate assets, taxes due but unpaid as shown on filed returns or assessments received after filing returns, all notes payable, any judgments for which estate is liable, and any other material liability:]

Unsecured liability owing to Down Home Loan Company, for money lent to decedent on or about _____ [date], principal plus interest accrued to _____ [date]..... $_____

Judgment in favor of Bulldog Creditors, Inc., entered on _____ in the Superior Court of the State of California for the County of Imperial, principal plus interest accrued to _____ [date $_____

].....

[Add additional items as needed]

CAUTION:

The account must be verified by the personal representative or any of them if there is more than one [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1), (b)(2)]. A petition must be verified by the petitioner or any of them if there is more than one [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1), (b)(1)], or, if the petitioner is absent from the county or for some other cause is unable to verify the petition, it may be verified by the petitioner's attorney, provided that the petitioner is not a fiduciary [Prob. Code § 1023]. An affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) or verified petition must be received as evidence when offered in an uncontested proceeding [Prob. Code § 1022].

This form includes the allegations required by the California Rules of Court when the estate has been administered under the Independent Administration of Estates Act [Prob. Code § 10400 et seq.; (see Ch. 442, Probate: Initiating Probate Administration)]. However, some local court rules may require additional allegations [see, e.g., discussion in § 458D.190[12], [13]].

[2] Use of Form

This form may be used by the "personal representative" [defined in Prob. Code § 58; see also Prob. Code § 8546(c) (verified account of special administrator on termination of powers)] for any combination of the following: to render to the court his or her final account for settlement [Prob. Code § 10951]; to petition the court for an order for final distribution of the estate [Prob. Code §§ 10951, 11600, 11640]; and, if administration of the estate proceeding was commenced before July 1, 1991, to petition the court for an order for compensation for extraordinary services rendered by the personal representative or by the attorney [see former Prob. Code §§ 902, 910; Prob. Code § 10850(b))]; or, if the estate proceeding was commenced on or after July 1, 1991, to petition the court for an order fixing and allowing the amount of compensation of the personal representative and of the attorney for all services rendered by each in the estate proceeding [Prob. Code § 10831(a); see Prob. Code § 10850(a)]. The request for compensation may be included in the final account or the petition for final distribution, as is done in the foregoing form, or it may be made in a separate petition [Prob. Code § 10831(b)].

The filing of an account is deemed to include a petition requesting its approval [Prob. Code § 1064(b)].

This form may also be adapted for use by an "interested person" (defined in Prob. Code § 48) to petition for an order for final distribution when the personal representative fails to do so [see Prob. Code § 11600].

Portions of the foregoing form were adapted from California Probate Practice (Matthew Bender).

[3] Local Rules

Many superior courts by local rule impose precise and detailed requirements on accounts, petitions for distribution, petitions for allowance of compensation for extraordinary services, and the documents that must be on file before making an order for distribution, and those rules must be complied with. Hence, before drafting this form, counsel should carefully review any rules of the court in which the proceeding is pending to be sure that he or she complies with them.

[4] When Account and Petition Must Be Filed

Unless the account has been waived [see Prob. Code § 10954 and see § 458D.215], the personal representative must, when the estate is in a condition to be closed, file a final account and petition for an order for final distribution of the estate [Prob. Code § 10951; see discussion in § 458D.30 et seq.].

[5] Effect of Waiver of Account

The account may be waived [see Prob. Code § 10954(a)] as provided in Prob. Code § 10954(b) [see § 458D.215]. But even if it is waived, the personal representative must file a final report of administration at the time the final account would otherwise have been required, and the final report must include the amount of compensation paid or payable to the personal representative and to the attorney and set forth the basis for determining the amount [Prob. Code § 10954(c)(1)].

Moreover, even if an account is waived by the beneficiaries, a creditor whose interest has not been satisfied may petition under Prob. Code § 10950 for an account [Prob. Code § 10954(c)(2)].

[6] Use of Form When Account Waived

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing form may also be used when the account is waived [see Prob. Code § 10954]. If the account is waived, only the petition should be filed, modified to omit all reference to the account [see e.g., Paragraph 19].

Although the account is waived, the personal representative must file a final report of administration at the time the final account would otherwise have been required, and the final report must include the amount of compensation paid or payable to the personal representative and to his or her attorney, and it must set forth the basis for determining the amounts [Prob. Code § 10954(c)(1)].

If the account is waived and this petition is to be used, the following paragraph should be included:

No account is required because _____ [specify legal reason (see Prob. Code § 10954), e.g., as shown by the records and file herein, each of the personsentitled to distribution from the estate has executed and filed herein a written waiver of account or acknowledgment that the person's interest has been satisfied].

[7] Joinder by Attorney

The attorney for the personal representative may petition for an order for fees for extraordinary services [former Prob. Code §§ 902, 910 (applicable in administration of estate proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991); see Prob. Code § 10850(b)], and for this purpose may join in the petition filed by the personal representative, as in the foregoing form. In administration of estate proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991 [see Prob. Code § 10850(a)], either the personal representative or the attorney may, at the time the final account and petition for final distribution are filed, petition the court for an order fixing and allowing the attorney's compensation for all services rendered by him or her in the estate proceeding [Prob. Code § 10831(a)(2)]. The request for compensation may be included in the final account or the petition for final distribution, or it may be made in a separate petition [Prob. Code § 10831(a)(2)].

[8] Form and Format

Both the account and the petition must be in writing [Prob. Code § 1020]. The account must be signed by all persons making it (for example, where there are two or more joint personal representatives [see Prob. Code §§ 9630, 9631], by each of them) [Prob. Code § 1020]. Joint personal representatives may consist of coexecutors appointed by the court when so provided in the will [see Prob. Code § 8422] or, in the case of intestacy, of coadministrators appointed by the court [Prob. Code § 8460(b)]. In addition, the petition must be signed by all petitioners, but an exception exists when the petitioner is absent from the county or for some other cause is unable to sign the petition; in this event, the petition may be signed by the petitioner's attorney if the petitioner is not a fiduciary [Prob. Code §§ 1020, 1023]. Because the personal representative is a fiduciary [see Prob. Code § 39], the exception would not apply when a petition for final distribution is filed by the personal representative, but would apply when it is filed by some other "interested person" (defined in Prob. Code § 48) under Prob. Code § 11600.

The format for the petition is not prescribed by statute. However, certain matters that must be set forth in the petition are mandated by statute [see, e.g., Prob. Code §§ 1064, 10900, 10954(c)]. The format and contents of all accounts filed under the Probate Code are governed by Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064, which became operative on July 1, 1997 [Prob. Code § 1060.5]. For a discussion of Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064, see § 458D.190[16]

Many courts have local rules relating to accounts and petitions that must be complied with; hence, counsel should, if unfamiliar with them, check them before the account and petition are drafted.

[9] Contents of Petition

[a] Report of Administration

The report of administration required when an account is filed [see Prob. Code § 10900(b)] is generally combined with the petition for approval of the account.

The petition for approval must include all of the following [Prob. Code § 1064(a); see Prob. Code § 39 ("fiduciary" means personal representative)]:

- A description of all sales, purchases, changes in the form of assets, or other transactions occurring during the period of the account that are not otherwise readily understandable from the schedule (Paragraphs 12-15).

- An explanation of any unusual items appearing in the account;

- A statement of all compensation paid from the assets subject to the account to the personal representative or the attorneys for the personal representative other than pursuant to a prior court order (Paragraphs 38-39).

- A statement disclosing any family or affiliate relationship between the personal representative and any agent hired by the personal representative during the accounting period (Paragraph 19). For this purpose, "family" means a relationship created by blood or marriage, and "affiliate" means an entity that directly or indirectly through one or more intermediaries controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with, the trustee [Prob. Code § 1064(c)].

- An allegation disclosing whether all of the cash has been invested and maintained in interest bearing accounts or in investments authorized by law or the governing instrument, except for an amount of cash that is reasonably necessary for the orderly administration of the estate (Paragraph 18).

The report of administration must include a statement of liabilities that includes all of the following information [Prob. Code § 10900(b)]:

- Whether notice to creditors was given under Prob. Code § 9050 (Paragraph 7);

- Creditor claims filed, including the date of filing each claim, the name of the claimant, the amount of the claim, and the action taken on the claim (Paragraph 10);

- Creditor claims not paid, satisfied, or adequately provided for (Paragraph11). As to each such claim, the statement must indicate whether the claim is due and the date due, the date any notice of rejection was given, and whether the creditor has brought an action on the claim. The statement must also identify any real or personal property that is security for the claim, whether by mortgage, deed of trust, lien, or other encumbrance.

[b] Compensation of Personal Representative and Attorney

The final report of administration required to be filed when an account is waived must include the amount of compensation paid or payable to the personal representative and to the attorney, as well as the basis for determining the amount [see Prob. Code § 10954(c) (when account is not required)]. Therefore, a fortiori, it would appear that this information must be contained in the report of administration when an account is not waived [see Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Comments to Prob. Code § 10900], and this is expressly required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.705. Further, a petition for approval of an account must include a statement of all compensation paid to the attorney for the personal representative from the assets subject to the account other than pursuant to a prior court order (Paragraph 39) [Prob. Code § 1064(a)(3); see Prob. Code § 39 ("fiduciary" means personal representative)]. A separate statement of compensation should be attached to the petition as an exhibit, demonstrating to the court the computation used to arrive at the amount of compensation requested [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.705 and Exhibit A]. The amounts claimed to be owing should also be set forth in the body of the petition [see Paragraphs 37-40].

The compensation of the executor or personal representative and his or her attorney for both ordinary and extraordinary services are governed by Prob. Code §§ 10800, 10801, 10810, 10811 (applying in administration of estate proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991) or by former Prob. Code §§ 901, 902, 910 (applying in proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code § 10850(a)) [see § 458D.121, § 458D.127, and § 458D.130]. The compensation of a special administrator and the fees of his or her attorney are fixed by the court and normally allowed only on settlement of the special administrator's final account [see Prob. Code § 8547].

Because compensation of the personal representative and his or her attorney is based on percentages of the value of the amount of the estate accounted for [see Prob. Code §§ 10800, 10810 (applying in administration of estate proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code §§ 901, 910 (applying in proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code § 10850(a))]; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.707 (for proceedings commenced after June 30, 1991, law in effect on date of court's order awarding statutory compensation determines amount of that compensation), any petition for compensation must set forth sufficient facts for the court to determine the amounts to be allowed [see Prob. Code § 10954(c) (requiring that the report of administration to be filed when an account is waived include the amount of compensation paid or payable and the basis for determining the amount)]; Cal. Rules of Ct. 7.705 (calculation of statutory compensation when account has been filed and when account has been waived)].

There is only one statutory commission for ordinary services by the personal representative of the estate, regardless of the number of personal representatives performing the services [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.704(a)]. If there are two or more personal representative (whether successive or concurrent), the court must apportion the statutory commission among them based on their agreement or, if there is no agreement, according to the services actually rendered by each of them [Prob. Code § 10850; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.704(a)].

If there has been a change of personal representative, notice of hearing of any interim or final petition seeking or waiving an award of statutory compensation must be given to all prior personal representatives unless: (1) a waiver of notice executed by all prior personal representatives is on file or is filed with the petition; (2) a written, signed agreement on the allocation of statutory commissions between the present personal representative and all prior personal representatives is on file or is included in or filed with the petition; or (3) the court's file and the petition demonstrate that the commissions of the prior personal representatives have been previously provided for and allowed by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.704(b)].

When compensation for extraordinary services is sought, any request for compensation should set forth the amount requested and the method of calculation, including a detailed description of the services rendered and the number of hours expended. Each extraordinary service for which fees are claimed should be separately stated, as is frequently required by local rule [see, e.g., Riverside Co. Consol. Ct. Rules, Rule 6.1004(B); Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 5.9(E)]. See also discussions in §§ 458D.190[10][y], and § 458D.190[15]. Exhibit B to the petition is a declaration supporting a request for compensation for extraordinary services [see also Paragraphs 39, 40].

[c] Final Distribution

A petition for final distribution must show that all debts have been paid or adequately provided for, or that the estate is insolvent, and, in either event, that it is in a condition to be closed [see Prob. Code § 11640(a)]. Local court rules may amplify this requirement. For example, in the Santa Clara County Superior Court, the allegations regarding disposition of all claims must appear in the petition for final distribution even though they may have appeared in whole or in part in prior petitions [Santa Clara Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 5.9]. Because this form is a combined form of account and petition and the disposition of claims is set forth in the report of administration portion of the form as required by Prob. Code§ 10900(b), it would appear to be unnecessary to repeat them in the part of the form dealing with final distribution.

The petition must also name the distributees and the share to which each is entitled and advise the court of any property that is to be distributed subject to a limitation or condition [see Prob. Code § 11603 (contents of order)]. Again, precise requirements may be imposed by local court rule.

[10] Allegations

[a] Petitioner's Capacity [Paragraph 1]

Paragraph 1 alleges the petitioner's capacity and standing [see Prob. Code §§ 10951 (final account and petition for final distribution must be filed by personal representative), 11600 (personal representative of interested person may petition for preliminary or final distribution)].

[b] Residence and Date of Death [Paragraph 1]

An allegation of decedent's date of death and residence at that time is not expressly required by statute because these facts are matters of record appearing in the petition for letters; nevertheless, the allegation is customary. The decedent's residence will not necessarily have been the county in which the probate proceeding is pending; but if it was, the name of the county may be replaced with "this county."

[c] Whether Decedent Died Intestate, Admission of Will and Issuance of Letters [Paragraphs 2, 3, 4]

Whether decedent died intestate, the admission of decedent's will to probate, and the fact and date of the issuance of letters are also facts appearing of record, but they are frequently included to establish the personal representative's standing to render the final account and petition for final distribution [see Prob. Code §§ 10951, 11600].

[d] Independently Administered Estate [Paragraph 5]

If the estate was administered under the Independent Administration of Estates Act (Prob. Code § 10400 et seq.), that fact should be alleged, since local court rules may impose additional requirements on the contents of the petition for final distribution in such a case [see, e.g., discussion in § 458D.190[13]]. Even if the personal representative has authority for independent administration of the estate, court supervision is required for the allowance of compensation, settlement of accounts, and preliminary and final distributions and discharge [Prob. Code § 10501(a)(1)-(4)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 445, Probate: Independent Administration of Estates .

[e] Notice to Creditors [Paragraphs 6, 7]

The report of administration must state whether notice to creditors was given under Prob. Code § 9050 [Prob. Code § 10900(b)(1)], and Paragraphs 6 and 7 do so. Because the first notice to creditors is included in the notice of petition to administer estate that must be served, as provided in Prob. Code §§ 8110-8113, and published as provided in Prob. Code §§ 8120-8125, an allegation of compliance is included in these paragraphs.

[f] Notice to Public Entities [Paragraph 8]

Except as otherwise provided in Prob. Code §§ 9200-9205, a claim of a public entity must be filed within the time otherwise provided by law and is normally barred if it is not [Prob. Code § 9200(a)]. However, certain claims are barred only after a written notice or request is given to the public entity and the period provided in the applicable code section has expired [see Prob. Code §§ 9201, 9202]. Paragraph 8 alleges compliance with these provisions.

The inclusion of this, or a similar, allegation may be expressly required by local court rule. For example, in the Los Angeles Superior Court, before the court will authorize distribution, there must be a showing of compliance with Prob. Code § 9202 or a showing that the notice thereunder is not required because the decedent did not receive Medi-Cal (or was not the surviving spouse of a recipient), or that no claim can be made by the Department of Health Services because decedent died before June 28, 1981, was under age 65, or was survived by a spouse, minor child, or disabled child [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.79(b), (c); see Prob. Code §§ 215, 1215, 9202]. If the proceeding is pending in another county, counsel should check with the local court rules in that county to ascertain if a similar rule is in effect. For discussion of the right of the Department of Health Services to claim against the estate of a deceased Medi-Cal recipient an amount equal to payments for health care services received, see Welf. & Inst. Code § 14009.5 and Kizer v. Hanna (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 1, 4-13, 255 Cal. Rptr. 412, 767 P.2d 679 (in effect disapproving Estate of Messner (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 818, 235 Cal. Rptr. 495 , to the extent it held the department could not, under Welf. & Inst. Code § 14009.5, recover Medi-Cal payments made prior to the effective date of the statute to a recipient who died after that date but could, subject to the limitations imposed by the statute, recover only those amounts paid after the statute's effective date).

[g] Creditors' Claims [Paragraphs 9-11]

These paragraphs are required by Prob. Code § 10900(b). For a discussion of the requirements of Prob. Code § 10900(b), see § 458D.50[2], For discussion of what constitutes a claim, see Prob. Code § 9000 and Kizer v. Hanna (1989) 48 Cal. 3d 1, 12, 255 Cal. Rptr. 412, 767 P.2d 679 . Paragraph 9 sets forth the date on which the time for filing claims against the estate expired. Alternative Paragraphs10 state either that no claims have been filed, or detail any claims that have been filed.

In a final report or a petition for final distribution under the Independent Administration of Estates Act, the personal representative is required to list each claim presented, as well as the claimant's name, the date of filing of the claim, the nature of the claim, the amount claimed, the disposition of the claim, and if the claim was rejected, the date of service of the rejection and whether or not a lawsuit was filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.403].

In the hearing on a petition for final distribution the court must determine whether all debts have been paid. With respect to debts that are contingent, disputed, or not due, the court may, in its discretion, make an order or combination of orders pursuant to Prob. Code § 11460 et seq. [see Prob. Code § 11461; for discussion see Ch. 454, Probate: Claims Against the Estate ; see also Prob. Code § 11460 (definitions of "contingent," "disputed," and "not due")]. The court may approve an agreement of interested persons as to the manner of providing for the debt [see Prob. Code § 11462], may order an amount deposited in a blocked account [see Prob. Code § 11463], may order property distributed subject to assumption of liability [see Prob. Code § 11464], may appoint a trustee to receive payment [see Prob. Code § 11465], may order distribution subject to a bond [see Prob. Code § 11466], or may continue administration of the estate

[see Prob. Code § 11467]. Alternative Paragraphs 11 are for use when provision is being made for any remaining debts against the estate that are contingent, disputed, or not yet due.

If an estate is in all other respects ready to be closed, and it appears to the satisfaction of the court, on affidavit [or declaration under penalty of perjury (Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5)] or from evidence taken in open court, that a debt has not been and cannot be paid because the creditor cannot be found, the court or judge is required to make an order fixing the amount of the payment and directing the personal representative to deposit the payment with the county treasurer of the county in which the proceeding is pending [Prob. Code § 11428].

[h] Actions Taken by Petitioner [Paragraphs 12-17]

Paragraphs 12-17 set forth actions taken by the petitioner or decedent's personal representative such as the purchase of securities and the sale of securities and other estate assets, and set forth the authority for those actions.

In the petition for final distribution, the petitioner is also required to list and describe all actions taken without prior court approval if notice of the proposed action was required [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.250(a)]. The description of the action is required to include the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.250(a)]:

- The nature of the action.
- When the action was taken.
- A statement of when and to whom notice was given.
- Whether notice was waived, and if so, by whom.
- Whether any objections were received.

An action taken under the Independent Administration of Estates Act that was properly listed and described in a prior accounting, report, or petition for distribution, and that was approved by the court, need not be listed and described in a subsequent account, report, or petition for distribution [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.250(b)].

[i] Investment of Cash [Paragraph 18]

Unless the will has provided otherwise, the personal representative is required to keep all cash invested in interest-bearing accounts or other authorized investments, except for amounts reasonably necessary for the orderly administration of the estate [see Prob. Code § 9652; see also Prob. Code §§ 9730 et. seq., 10533]. Paragraph 19 alleges compliance with this requirement. Any interest received on such accounts must, of course, be listed in the account in the schedule of income receipts, that is, in Schedule A. For further discussion of the personal representative's duties and responsibilities regarding estate property, see Ch. 456, Probate: Management of Estate Assets . For the power of the personal representative to deposit or invest money belonging to an estate administered under the Independent Administration of Estates Act (Prob. Code § 10400 et seq.), see Prob. Code § 10533.

[j] Inventory and Appraisal; Account [Paragraph 20]

This paragraph alleges that an inventory and appraisal of estate property was filed and that it includes all property that has come into the personal administrator's possession or control. Paragraph 19 also includes reference to the account that, unless it has been waived [see Prob. Code § 10954], is filed with the petition.

[k] Taxes [Paragraphs 21-26]

A petition for final distribution may be filed only when all "debts" have been paid or adequately provided for (or when the estate is insolvent), and the estate is in a condition to be closed [Prob. Code § 11640(a)]. The word "debt" is defined as including, inter alia, a charge against the estate, including taxes [Prob. Code § 11401(c)]. Hence, the petition should allege that tax liabilities have been paid or adequately provided for [see Prob. Code § 11640(a)].

Some courts by local rule expressly require that a petition for final distribution of a decedent's estate must contain an allegation that all personal property and income taxes that are due and payable have been paid, and, in addition, mustdisclose whether a federal or California estate (and generation-skipping transfer) tax return is required, and whether there is a need for an order or orders prorating the tax or taxes under Prob. Code § 20100 et seq. [see, e.g., Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. VI, Rule 608.10].

If the assets of an estate are distributable to one or more nonresident beneficiaries, final distribution will not be allowed unless the personal representative obtains from the Franchise Tax Board and files with the court a certificate to the effect that all income taxes on the decedent or the estate that have become payable have been paid, and that all taxes that may become due are secured by bond, deposit, or otherwise [Rev. & Tax. Code § 19513(a)]. This provision applies, however, only if the value of the assets exceeds amounts prescribed by Franchise Tax Board regulations [Rev. & Tax. Code § 19513(b); see 18 Cal. Code Reg. § 19513(b)(b) (certificate required if fair market value of estate exceeds $1,000,000 and more than $250,000 is distributable to one or more nonresidents)]. For additional discussion, see § 458D.43.

[l] Condition of Estate [Paragraph 27]

This paragraph alleges that the petitioner has performed all the duties required of him or her, that the estate is insolvent or all debts have been paid or adequately provided for, and that the estate is in a condition to be closed, which triggers the requirement for the filing of a final account and of a petition for final distribution [see Prob. Code §§ 10951, 11640, 12200].

[m] Character of Decedent's Property [Paragraph 28]

The nature of the decedent's property, whether community, quasi-community, separate, or a mixture of these should be alleged if the character of the property will affect distribution [see, e.g., Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. VI, Rule 608.12]. If community, the petition must state whether decedent's half-interest or both spouses' interests are described.

[n] Devisees and Heirs [Paragraph 29]

The name, relationship to the decedent, age, and address of each devisee and heir are matters of record appearing in the petition for letters. Nevertheless, the order for distribution must name the distributees [Prob. Code § 11603(b)(1)], and hence they should be named in the petition.

The relationship to the decedent should be specified when the decedent died intestate, because the relationship governs the order of distribution [see Prob. Code §§ 6401-6402.5]. It should be included even when the decedent died testate if, for example, there is any question as to abatement [see Prob. Code § 21402].

The age of the distributee (or at least the statement that the devisee or heir is over 18 years of age) should be set forth; some local court rules specifically cover distributions to minors [see, e.g., Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.11], and hence any minor distributee should be so identified in the petition, at least in those counties in which such rules exist. In addition to identifying the distributee as a minor, the minor's birthdate should be added.

The addresses of the distributees should be included, as the value of the assets of the estate at the death of the decedent and the value of the assets distributable to one or more nonresidents may exceed amounts prescribed by regulations promulgated by the Franchise Tax Board [see 18 Cal. Code Reg. § 19513(b)]. Such a distribution is subject to the requirement of Rev. & Tax. Code § 19513 that a certificate from the Franchise Tax Board showing that the income tax liability of the estate and the decedent has been satisfied or secured be filed.

[o] Proration of Federal Estate Tax [Paragraph 30]

Any estate tax must be equitably prorated among the persons interested in the estate, in the manner prescribed in Prob. Code §§ 20110-20117 [Prob. Code § 20110(a)], and Paragraph 15 alleges the distributees among whom the tax must be prorated and the amount of the proration.

However, federal law may provide for a different proration, and when it does, Prob. Code § 20110(a) does not apply. In fact, if federal law directs the manner of proration of the federal estate tax, the California estate tax must be prorated in the same manner [see Prob. Code § 20110(b)(2); for further discussion, see Ch.452, Probate: Proration of Estate and Generation-Skipping Transfer Taxes].

[p] Condition Precedent [Paragraph 31]

Until January 1, 1985, the effect of a condition precedent in a will was governed by former Prob. Code § 142 (repealed by Stats. 1983, ch. 842, operative January 1, 1985). That statute provided that a condition precedent in a will is one that is required to be fulfilled before a particular disposition takes effect. It is to be deemed performed when the testator's intention has been substantially, though not literally, complied with. Nothing vests until such condition is fulfilled, except where fulfillment is impossible, in which case the disposition vests, unless the condition was the sole motive thereof and the impossibility was unknown to the testator or arose from an unavoidable event subsequent to the execution of the will.

After the repeal of former Prob. Code § 142, the interpretation of conditions precedent will presumably be left to judicial interpretation.

[q] Condition Subsequent [Paragraph 32]

Until January 1, 1985, the effect of a condition subsequent in a will was governed by former Prob. Code § 143 (repealed by Stats. 1983, ch. 842, operative January 1, 1985). That statute provided that a condition subsequent is if an estateor interest is so given as to vest immediately, subject only to being divested by some subsequent act or event. A testamentary disposition, when vested, cannot be divested unless upon the occurrence of the precise contingency prescribed by the testator for that purpose.

After the repeal of former Prob. Code § 143, the interpretation of conditions subsequent will presumably be left to judicial interpretation.

[r] Income Received During Administration [Paragraph 33]

Unless otherwise indicated by decedent's will [Prob. Code § 12000], a specific devise [see Prob. Code § 21117(a)] carries with it income on the devised property from the date of death, less expenses attributable to the devised property during administration of the estate [Prob. Code § 12002(b); see Prob. Code § 12002(c) (result when the income is insufficient to pay the expenses attributable to the property)]. If specifically devised property is sold during administration of the estate, the devisee is entitled to the net income from the property until the date of sale, and to interest on the net sale proceeds thereafter [Prob. Code § 12002(d)]. Net income received during administration, not paid under other provisions of Prob. Code §§ 12000-12007, and not otherwise devised must be distributed pro rata as income among all distributees who receive either residuary or intestate property. If a distributee takes for life or for a term of years, the pro rata share of income belongs to the tenant for life or for the term of years [Prob. Code § 12006].

[s] Devise to Minor Subject to California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act [Paragraph 34]

A testator may devise securities, money, real property, and other forms of property to a minor pursuant to the California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act (Prob. Code § 3900 et seq.). By so doing, the testator incorporates all the provisions of the Act into the disposition [Prob. Code § 6341(a); see also Prob. Code § 3911(b)]. Under the Act, devises to minors are given to the care of a "custodian," who, like a trustee, manages the property [see Prob. Code § 3912], makes certain distributions to or for the benefit of the minor [see Prob. Code § 3914], and ultimately distributes the remainder of the custodial property to the minor, usually when the minor becomes 18 years of age [Prob. Code § 3920]. The Act contains a comprehensive set of rules that govern such matters as the rights, duties, and powers of the custodian [see Prob. Code §§ 3912-3915] and termination of the custodianship [see Prob. Code §§ 3918].

The testator may nominate a custodian in his or her will by naming the custodian followed in substance by words such as "as custodian for (Name of Minor) under the California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act" [Prob. Code § 3903]. In addition, the will may name substitute custodians [Prob. Code §§ 3903, 6345]. The custodian must be a person to whom a transfer of property of that kind is permissible under Prob. Code § 3909(a) [Prob. Code § 3903(b)]. For example, if the property is a security, the custodian must be either an adult or a trust company [Prob. Code § 3909(a)(1)]. In the alternative, the testator may provide that property is to be delivered, paid, or transferred to a custodian for the benefit of a minor without naming the custodian [see Prob. Code §§ 6341, 3905]. If the testator does not nominate a custodian, or if those nominated are dead or otherwise unable to serve, the personal representative chooses the custodian [Prob. Code § 3905(c); see Prob. Code § 6341(d)].

Unless the will clearly requires otherwise, if the person named as the beneficiary for whose benefit the custodial property is to be held attains the age at which the custodianship was to terminate prior to the order of distribution, the devise shall be deemed to be a direct devise to the beneficiary [Prob. Code § 6341(b)].

Other forms of devises to minors or for the benefit of minors are valid alternatives to a devise under the Act [Prob. Code § 6349].

[t] Disclaimer of Interest [Paragraph 35]

If a beneficiary has disclaimed his or her interest in the estate in whole or in part, that fact should be alleged. For discussion, see § 458D.79. Some courts by local rule require that any disclaimer must be on file prior to the hearing of any petition for distribution of any affected asset [see, e.g., Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. VI, Rule 608.14].

[u] Preliminary Distribution [Paragraph 36]

If any property has already been distributed under the court's order for a preliminary distribution [see Prob. Code §§ 11600, 11621], that fact should be alleged, and the persons who received property, and the property received, should be identified. Inasmuch as the foregoing form combines the account and petition for final distribution and the account contains a schedule setting forth this information, the allegation may simply refer to it, as is done in Paragraph 35.

If the personal representative has distributed any property to a beneficiary without a court order for preliminary distribution, the distribution, the property distributed, and the recipient should be alleged. The court has authority, in hearing the petition for final distribution, to credit the personal representative for such distribution [Estate of Bennett (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 354, 358, 362, 90 P.2d 84] .

[v] Names of Distributees and Shares to Which Each Is Entitled [Paragraph 37]

Distribution of the property in an estate is discussed in § 458D.70 et seq. Inasmuch as the court's order for final distribution must name the distributees and the share to which each is entitled [Prob. Code § 11603(b)(1)], the petition shouldset forth exactly how the property should be distributed, in detail, and this is frequently expressly required by local court rule. Any general allegation such as "distribution according to the terms of decedent's will" is not sufficient [see, e.g., Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.2; Marin Co. Rule, Probate 5.48].

[w] Statutory Compensation [Paragraphs 38, 39]

The total statutory compensation, which is the same for both the personal representative and the attorney [see discussion in § 458D.120 et seq.], should be set forth in the petition. The calculation is governed by Prob. Code §§ 10800, 10810 (see former Prob. Code § 901 if proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991). A separate statement of compensation should be attached to the petition as an exhibit, demonstrating to the court the computation used to arrive at the amount of compensation requested [see Exhibit A]. When compensation is requested in the petition for settlement of the account, the notice of hearing must so state [Prob. Code § 11000(b)]. In many cases, the personal representative will waive the statutory compensation to which he or she is entitled. In such a case, the fact of waiver should be alleged.

[x] Allowances or Previous Payments of Compensation [Paragraphs 38, 39]

If any allowances or payments of compensation have been made to the personal representative or the attorney for the personal representative, they must be disclosed. Any payments will usually have been made pursuant to prior court orders. However, if there have been payments from the assets subject to the account without prior court order, the petition must disclose the fact and the amount of the payments [Prob. Code § 1064(a)(3)]. In either case, the payments must be deducted from the total compensation to which the personal representative or the attorney is entitled, and the balance due should be alleged.

[y] Compensation for Extraordinary Services [Paragraphs 40, 41]

If extraordinary services were performed for which compensation is sought, the services must be alleged in detail [see, e.g., Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. VI, Rules 608.03-608.05]. For the contents of such an exhibit or allegation, see the discussion in § 458D.155[2][e]. When compensation for extraordinary services is sought, courts may require by local rule that the caption, prayer, and notice of hearing contain a reference to the application [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.137].

[z] Reserve [Paragraph 42]

Ordinarily, there are closing expenses; often a reserve for payment of taxes must be created. Paragraph 41 addresses the issue of future expenses of the estate, and either requests authorization to withhold a reserve, or states that a reserve will not be needed.

[11] Prayer

The prayer should in every case request both a settlement of the final account [see Prob. Code § 11000-11005], unless the account has been waived [see Prob. Code § 10954], and distribution of the estate [see Prob. Code § 11640]. Other matters that usually will be included in the prayer are requests for statutory compensation and compensation for extraordinary services [see former Prob. Code §§ 901, 910 (if proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991)], or for an order fixing and allowing compensation to the personal representative and to his or her attorney for all services rendered in the estate proceeding [see Prob. Code § 10831(a) (if proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991)]. The foregoing petition contains a prayer requesting other items of relief appropriate to the allegations of the petition. Each case will present different facts. The prayer should specify all relief that petitioner is entitled to request according to the facts alleged in the petition.

[12] Los Angeles County Allegations and Statements

In Los Angeles County, certain allegations and statements must be included in any petition for distribution when the estate has been administered under the Independent Administration of Estates Act [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.69]:

- In any petition for distribution, a schedule of claims must be included as a part of the petition showing the name of the claimant, amount claimed, date presented, date allowed, amount allowed, and, if paid, the date of payment. As to any claims rejected, the date of rejection must be set forth, and the original of the Notice of Rejection with affidavit of mailing to the creditor must be filed [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.69(a)].

- In any petition for distribution, all independent acts taken without prior court approval must be set forth and described and an allegation made that the 15-day notice of proposed action was duly served and that no objections were received. The original of the action notice with attached affidavit of mailing must be filed with the court. If certain acts have been properly reported in a prior distribution, they need not be repeated [Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.69(c)].

[13] San Francisco Allegations and Statements

In the San Francisco Superior Court, a petition for final distribution (whether or not an account is waived and whether or not the personal representative is acting under the Independent Administration of Estates Act) must list all creditors' claims presented and indicate the disposition of each claim. If any claim has been rejected, the date of service of notice of rejection must be stated, as well as its disposition, whether by suit or otherwise. This information must be set forth in thepetition for final distribution even though it may have been presented to the court in whole or in part in prior accounts or petitions for distribution [San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.95(A)]. The petition for final distribution must list and describe all independent acts taken without prior court approval and must contain an allegation that the 15-day notice of proposed action was waived or duly served when required and that no objections were received. The originals of the advice of proposed action with attached declarations of mailing must be available but need not be filed with the court. If certain acts have been properly reported in a prior petition for distribution, they need not be repeated [San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.95(B)].

The petition for final distribution must address the question of the source of the payment of the federal estate tax and California estate tax, if any. If the will has a clause directing the payment of the taxes out of the residue of the estate, this should be so alleged. If, on the other hand, there is no tax clause or there is a tax clause that does not direct the source of payment, the amounts required to be prorated or charged must be stated [San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.95(C)].

Whether the decedent died testate or intestate, the petition for distribution must contain an allegation as to the separate or community character of the property in all cases in which the character of the property may affect distribution [San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.86]. The relationship of heirs who take by intestacy should be sufficiently described to permit the court to determine whether the laws of intestate succession have been properly applied. If an heir takes by right of representation, the petition must indicate parentage and the approximate date of the parent's death [San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.93].

[14] Statement of Compensation [Exhibit A]

Exhibit A is a statement of compensation to be attached to the petition, setting forth the computation used to arrive at the amount of compensation requested. Calculation of compensation is governed by Prob. Code §§ 10800, 10810 (see former Prob. Code §§ 900, 910 if proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991) [see Prob. Code § 10850 (applicability of law)]. In some counties, the form in which the calculation should be set out is prescribed or suggested by local rule [see e.g., Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rules 12.10.2.3, 12.18.1; Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. VI, Rule 608.03].

[15] Extraordinary Services [Exhibit B]

Normally, an application for extraordinary compensation by the personal representative [see Prob. Code § 10801; former Prob. Code § 902 (if proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991)] or by the attorney [see Prob. Code § 10811; formerProb. Code § 910 (if proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991)] need not contain a statement of supporting facts as precise and detailed as the allegations of a complaint. Rather, the applicant should state his or her claim with enough particularity that the court and the persons interested in the estate who have standing to object may be fully informed about the nature of the extraordinary services rendered, the necessity for those services, and their reasonable value, to the end that properly chargeable items may be distinguished from those that are not properly and justly chargeable [Estate of Herbst (1938) 26 Cal. App. 2d 249, 251, 79 P.2d 139] . Nevertheless, many courts, by local rule, specify matters that must be set forth when compensation for extraordinary services is sought, and those rules must be complied with [see, e.g., Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. VI, Rules 608.03-608.05].

If the attorney for the personal representative provided services under a contingent fee agreement [Prob. Code § 10811(c)], the court order approving it should be referenced in the exhibit for the court's information [see Prob. Code § 10811(c)(3); for discussion of contingent fee contracts, see § 458D.132[2]].

Only those extraordinary services that were for the benefit of the estate rather than for the benefit of some of the beneficiaries, including the administrator or executor of an estate who is a beneficiary, are allowed as compensation under Prob. Code §§ 10801, 10811, 10850(a) (applicable in administration of estate proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991; see former Prob. Code §§ 902, 910 if proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991) [see Estate of Bloom (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 195, 200-201, 165 Cal. Rptr. 591 ; Hutchinson v. Gertsch (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 605, 616, 159 Cal. Rptr. 40 ; Estate of Pryor (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 735, 738-739, 125 P.2d 511] .

Phrases such as "court appearances," "initial investigation, study, and preparation," "determination of complex issues," "sales of property," "services in connection with the collection of notes and accounts," "services in negotiating and completing the settlement of the issues presented by ... and subsequent services in effectuating," "extensive preparation in advance of the hearing," "extensive office consultation, research, interviewing of witnesses, collection of evidence," "preparation and filing of ... tax returns ... including numerous conferences" lend little toward informing the court and interested parties of the extent of the extraordinary services performed, without the taking of evidence to substantiate with particularity the actual services, item by item, for which compensation is sought [Estate of Fulcher (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 710, 717, 44 Cal. Rptr. 861] . The request for extraordinary compensation should be based on a factual statement of the time consumed in performing each individual item of extraordinary service. If the attorney requests compensation for extraordinary services performed by a paralegal under the direction and supervision of the attorney, the petition must set forth the hours spent and services performed by the paralegal [Prob. Code §§ 10811(b), 10850(a) (applicable in administration of estateproceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 910 (applicable in proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991; see Prob. Code § 10850)].

[16] Contents of Account

[a] Probate Code Rules

The account must include both a financial statement and a report of administration as provided in Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064. Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064, which became operative on July 1, 1997 [Prob. Code § 1060.5], prescribe rules that must be met whenever an account is filed in any proceeding subject to the Probate Code.

[b] Summary

Every account must state the period that it covers and contain a summary showing all of the following, to the extent applicable [Prob. Code § 1061(a)]:

- The property on hand at the beginning of the account period. If the account is the first account, this will be the value of the property initially received by the personal representative. If it is a subsequent account, it will be the property on hand at the end of the prior account [Prob. Code § 1061(a)(1)].

- The value of any assets received during the account period that are not assets on hand as of the commencement of the administration of the estate.

- The amount of any receipts of income or principal, excluding items listed under the first two categories, above (Schedules A and B), or receipts from a trade or business.

- Net income from a trade or business (Schedule D).

- Gains on sales (Schedule F).

- The amount of disbursements, excluding disbursements for a trade or business or distributions (Schedules C and D).

- Loss on sales (Schedule G).

- Net loss from trade or business (Schedule E).

- Distributions to beneficiaries (Schedule H).

- Property on hand at the end of the account period, stated at its carry value (Schedule I).

[c] Statutory Format

Prob. Code § 1061(b) specifies a statutory format for the account summary. Certain categories of items must be included in the summary unless they are inapplicable [Prob. Code § 1061(b)]. The categories are as follows [Prob. Code § 1061(b)]:

```
CHARGES:
Property on hand at beginning of account (or Inventories)
Additional property received (or supplemental inventories)
Receipts
Gains on Sale or Other Disposition
Net income from trade or business
Total Charges
CREDITS:
Disbursements
Losses on Sale or Other Disposition
Net loss from trade or business
Distributions
Property on hand at close of account
Total Credits
```

Amounts must be shown for each of the categories in dollars. Total charges must equal total credits [Prob. Code §

1061(b)].

[d] Standard Schedules

The summary of account [see Prob. Code § 1061 and discussion in §§ 458D.190[9][b] and [c]] must be supported by detailed schedules showing the following [Prob. Code § 1062]:

- Receipts, showing the nature or purpose of each item, the source of the receipt, and the date thereof (Schedules A and B).

- Disbursements, including the nature or purpose of each item, the name of the payee, and the date thereof (Schedules C and D).

- Net income or loss from a trade or business, which will be sufficient if it provides the information disclosed on Schedule C or Schedule F of the federal income tax return (Schedule E).

- Calculation of gains or losses on sales or other dispositions (Schedules F and G).

- Distributions of cash or property to beneficiaries, showing the date and amount of each distribution, with the distribution of property shown at its carry value (Schedule H).

- An itemized list of property on hand, describing each item at its carry value (Schedule I).

[e] Additional Schedules

In all accounts, there must be an additional schedule showing the estimated market value of the assets on hand as of the end of the account period (Schedule J) [Prob. Code § 1063(a)]. If the account is not the first account, there must also be a schedule of the estimated market value of the assets on hand as of the beginning of the accounting period (Schedule K) [Prob. Code § 1063(a)]. The requirement of an estimated value of real estate, a closely held business, or other assets without a ready market may be satisfied by a good faith estimate by the personal representative [Prob. Code § 1063(a)].

There must also be a schedule of purchases or other changes in the form of assets occurring during the account period (Schedule L). However, no reporting is required for transfers between cash or accounts in a financial institution or money market mutual funds as defined in Prob. Code § 8901(d) [Prob. Code § 1063(b)].

If an estate of a decedent or a trust is to be distributed to an income beneficiary, there must also be an allocation of receipts and disbursements between principal and income (Schedule N) [Prob. Code § 1063(c)].

If there is specifically devised property, there must be a separate schedule accounting for income, disbursements, and proceeds of sale attributable to that property pursuant to Prob. Code § 12002 (Schedule O) [Prob. Code § 1063(d)]. Prob. Code § 12002 prescribes rules for allocating income and expense to specific devises and is discussed in § 458D.94[3].

If any interest is to be paid to general pecuniary devises, annuities, or devises for maintenance, there must be a separate schedule showing the calculation of the interest (Schedule P) [Prob. Code § 1063(e); see Prob. Code §§ 12003 (interest on general pecuniary devise), 12004 (interest on annuity), 12005 (interest on devise for maintenance)].

If the account contemplates a proposed distribution, there must be a schedule to set forth the proposed distribution, including the distribution of net income under Prob. Code § 12006 (Schedule M) [Prob. Code § 1063(f)]. Prob. Code § 12006 prescribes rules for distribution of net income received during administration and not otherwise devised and is discussed in § 458D.94[7]. If the distribution requires an allocation between trusts, the allocation must be set forth on the schedule, unless the allocation is to be made by a trustee after receipt of the assets. If the distribution requires valuation of assets as of the date of distribution, the schedule must set forth the fair market value of those assets [Prob. Code § 1063(f)].

If the estate has any liabilities, there must be a schedule showing the following (Schedule Q) [Prob. Code § 1063(g)]:

- All liabilities which are a lien on estate assets.
- Taxes due but unpaid as shown on filed returns or assessments received after the filing of returns.
- All notes payable.
- Any judgments for which the estate is liable.
- Any other material liability.

Monthly payments, including rent, utilities, salaries, or other recurring expenses need not be separately scheduled [Prob. Code § 1063(g)].

If the guardian or conservator has knowledge of any real property of the conservatee or ward located in a foreign jurisdiction, the guardian or conservator must include an additional schedule that identifies the real property, provides a good faith estimate of the fair market value of the real property, and states what action, if any, will or has been taken to preserve and protect the real property, including a recommendation whether an ancillary proceeding is necessary to preserve and protect the real property [Prob. Code § 1063(h)].

[f] Personal Representative Entitled to Rely on Account of Conservator or Guardian

When a personal representative receives assets from the conservator of a deceased conservatee or the guardian of a deceased ward, the personal representative may incorporate by reference any accounting provided by the conservator or guardian for the decedent for the period subsequent to the date of death [Prob. Code § 10902]. The personal representative is entitled to rely on such an accounting and has no duty to independently investigate or verify the transactions report in it [Prob. Code § 10902].

[g] No Requirement for Other Information

Before the operative date of Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064, local court rules required that some information in addition to that required by statute be included in accounts filed in decedents' estates. For example, some local court rules required that a separate cash recapitulation be included with the summary of account [see, e.g., Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.9.2.1]. However, Prob. Code § 1060 explicitly states that Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064 govern all accounts to be filed with the court under the Probate Code and that, except as specifically provided elsewhere in the Code, or unless good cause is shown therefore, no information in addition to that required in Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064 need be in an account.

The law does not require that matters contained in an account be stated with "as much nicety or precision or as great detail as is required in pleadings in civil actions." The settlement of an account should be considered as an adjudication of the validity of each claim exhibited therein with sufficient certainty to identify it accurately [see Estate of McKenzie (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 393, 398, 18 Cal. Rptr. 680] .

[17] State Statutes

[a] Accounts

Accounts filed under Probate Code. Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064

Statutes govern all accounts under Probate Code. Prob. Code § 1060

July 1, 1997, operative date. Prob. Code § 1060.5

Summary of account. Prob. Code § 1061

Detailed schedules supporting summary. Prob. Code §§ 1062

Additional schedules. Prob. Code § 1063

Petition for approval or accompanying report. Prob. Code § 1064

Accounts to include financial statement and report of administration as provided in Prob. Code §§ 1060-1064 and Prob. Code § 10900. Prob. Code § 10900

Supporting documents subject to inspection and audit. Prob. Code § 10901

Personal representative is entitled to rely on accounting by conservator or guardian of deceased person. Prob. Code § 10902

Settlement of account, including contest of account. Prob. Code § 11000 et seq.

Compelling account. Prob. Code §§ 11050-11052

[b] Compensation of Personal Representative and Attorney

Compensation of public administrators and their attorneys. Prob. Code § 7622

Compensation of special administrators and their attorneys. Prob. Code § 8547

Compensation of personal representative and his or her attorney. Prob. Code § 10800 et seq. (applicable in proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); see Prob. Code § 10850(a)

Commissions and fees of executors or administrators and their attorneys. Former Prob. Code §§ 900-911 (applicable in administration of estate proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991); see Prob. Code § 10850(a)

[c] Declaration Under Penalty of Perjury

Use of, in lieu of affidavit. Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5

[d] Definitions

"Beneficiary." Prob. Code § 24

"Community property." Prob. Code § 28

"Devise." Prob. Code § 32

"Devisee." Prob. Code § 34

"Fiduciary." Prob. Code § 39

"Heir." Prob. Code § 44

"Interested person." Prob. Code § 48

"Issue." Prob. Code § 50

"Letters" as it relates to a personal representative. Prob. Code § 52(a)

"Personal representative." Prob. Code § 58

"Predeceased spouse." Prob. Code § 59

"Property." Prob. Code § 62

"Quasi-community property." Prob. Code § 66

"Real property." Prob. Code § 68

"Will." Prob. Code § 88

[e] Devises

Classification of at death transfers. Prob. Code § 21117

[f] Disclaimer of Interest

Disclaimer of interest in estate. Prob. Code §§ 260-295

[g] Final Distribution

Petition and order for final distribution. Prob. Code §§ 10951, 11600-11605, 11640, 11641

Distribution of property acquired or discovered after order of final distribution. Prob. Code § 11642

[h] Income and Interest

Payment of income accruing during administration and payment of interest. Prob. Code §§ 12000-12007

[i] Independent Administration

Independent administration of estates. Prob. Code § 10400 et seq.

[j] Taxes

Certificate of Franchise Tax Board is required when value of assets of estate at decedent's death and value of assets distributable to one or more nonresidents exceeds amounts prescribed by regulations promulgated by Franchise Tax Board (see 18 Cal. Code Reg. § 19513). Rev. & Tax. Code § 19513

[18] California Code of Regulations

Estates exceeding $1,000,000 and more than $250,000 is distributable to nonresident beneficiaries. 18 Cal. Code Reg. § 19513

[19] California Rules of Court

Listings required for petition for final distribution when acting under Independent Administration of Estates Act. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 7.250, 7.403

[20] Local Rules of Court

[a] Allegation in Petition Regarding Claims

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.107

[b] Amount Requested as Extraordinary Fees Must Be Specified

Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.10.6

San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. IV, Rule 1.115

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.108

[c] Caption and Prayer of Petition Must Contain Reference to Application for Extraordinary Fees

Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.10.6.1

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.137

[d] Character of Property Must Be Alleged in Petition

Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.1.2

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.114

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.12

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.86

[e] Distribution to Minors

Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.11

[f] Form of Account

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.106

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rules 608.01, 608.20

[g] Form of Calculation of Statutory Compensation

Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.10.4

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.03

[h] Petition Must List and Describe in Detail All Property to Be Distributed

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.111

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.20

[i] Proposed Distribution Must Be Alleged in Petition

Alameda Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 12.11.2

[j] Title of Petition Must Reflect All Relief Asked for in Prayer

Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.9

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 601.05

[21] Decisions

Court has authority in hearing on petition for final distribution to credit personal representative for preliminary distribution without court order. Estate of Bennett (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 354, 358, 362, 90 P.2d 84

Descriptions that are not acceptable in application for compensation for extraordinary services. Estate of Fulcher (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 710, 717, 44 Cal. Rptr. 861

Application for compensation for extraordinary services must specify nature of extraordinary services rendered, necessity for those services, and reasonable value of them. Estate of Herbst (1938) 26 Cal. App. 2d 249, 251, 79 P.2d 139

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.191

§ 458D.191 Allegation--Death of Beneficiary Before Distribution [Prob. Code §§ 11801, 11802]--General Form

[1] FORM Allegation--Death of Beneficiary Before Distribution [Prob. Code §§ 11801, 11802]--General Form

_____ [Name], was a beneficiary of the decedent, namely, _____ [an heir of the decedent who died intestate or a devisee under the decedent's will], and survived the decedent, but died on _____ [date], before distribution to him/her of his/her share of the decedent's estate. He/She was _____ [unrelated to the decedent or specify relationship, e.g., the decedent's son]. [If issue of decedent add: On the date of death, he/she was _____ (over the age of majority or an emancipated minor or a minor who died testate)]. _____ [No personal representative of his/her estate has yet been appointed or The name and address of his/her personal representative are as follows: _____ (specify)].

[2] Use of Form

This allegation should be included in the petition for final distribution when a beneficiary, other than an unemancipated, intestate minor issue of the decedent, died before distribution of the decedent's estate and, if decedent left a will, there was no condition in the will that the beneficiary survive the date of distribution or some other period that the beneficiary failed to survive [see Prob. Code §§ 11801, 11802(a)]. If the beneficiary was an unemancipated minor issue of the decedent and died intestate, § 458D.192, should be used.

[3] Death of Beneficiary Before Distribution

The share of a beneficiary who survives the decedent and dies before distribution is distributed with the same effect as though distribution were made to the beneficiary while living, but, subject to Prob. Code § 21525 (relating to marital deduction gifts), this does not apply in the case of a testate decedent if the decedent's will provides that the beneficiary is entitled to take only if he or she survives the date of distribution or other period stated in the will and the beneficiary fails to do so [Prob. Code § 11801].

If the beneficiary meets the foregoing requirements for distribution, the beneficiary's share is distributed to his or her personal representative for administration in the beneficiary's estate [Prob. Code § 11802(a)]. For further discussion, see § 458D.95.

[4] Effect of Advancement

If the decedent died intestate as to all or part of his or her estate, property the decedent gave during his or her lifetime to an heir is treated as an advancement against that heir's share of the intestate estate if either the decedent declared in a contemporaneous writing that the gift was an advancement against, or its value is to be deducted from the value of, the heir's share of the estate, or the heir acknowledged in writing that the gift was to be so deducted or was an advancement or that its value is to be deducted from the value of the heir's share of the estate [Prob. Code § 6409(a); see § 458D.193].

[5] State Statutes

"Minor" defined. Fam. Code § 6500

"Age of majority" and similar references construed. Fam. Code § 6502

When minor is emancipated. Fam. Code § 7002

"Beneficiary" defined. Prob. Code § 24

"Devisee" defined. Prob. Code § 34

"Heirs" defined. Prob. Code § 44

"Issue" defined. Prob. Code § 50

"Personal representative" defined. Prob. Code § 58

Distribution when beneficiary dies before distribution of his or her share of estate. Prob. Code §§ 11801, 11802

[6] Decisions

Provision in will requiring survival to date of distribution as satisfied by survival to date distribution could and should have occurred. Estate of Taylor (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 855, 857-858, 59 Cal. Rptr. 437, 428 P.2d 301

[7] Cross References

For a related form, see § 458D.190.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.192

§ 458D.192 Allegation--Death of Beneficiary Before Distribution [Prob. Code §§ 11801, 11802]--Beneficiary Was Unemancipated Minor Issue of Decedent and Died Intestate

[1] FORM Allegation--Death of Beneficiary Before Distribution [Prob. Code §§ 11801, 11802]--Beneficiary Was Unemancipated Minor Issue of Decedent and Died Intestate

_____ [Name], was _____ [the or a(n)] _____ [specify relationship showing that person was decedent's issue, e.g., son] and [a] beneficiary of the decedent, namely, _____ [one of his/her heirs under the laws of intestate succession or his/her heir under the laws of intestate succession or _____ (a or the) devisee under the decedent's will]. He/she survived the decedent, but died on _____ [date], before distribution to him/her of his/her share of the decedent's estate. At the time of death, he/she was an unemancipated minor of the age of _____ years and died intestate. As far as they are known to petitioner, the heirs of _____ [name of deceased minor] are as follows:

Name & Relationship	Age	Address

[List name and relationship of each known heir of deceased minor and, if known, his or her address and age (whether 18 or over or under 18). Give birthdates of minors, if known.]

[2] Use of Form

This allegation should be included in the petition for final distribution (1) when the beneficiary survived the decedent, was an unemancipated minor issue of the decedent, and died intestate before distribution of the decedent's estate; and (2) if decedent left a will, there was no condition in the will that the beneficiary survive the date of distribution or some other period which the beneficiary did not do [see Prob. Code § 11801, 11802(b)]. If the deceased beneficiary was any other person, § 458D.191 should be used.

If the deceased minor met the foregoing conditions, distribution is made directly to the minor's heirs without administration in the minor's estate [Prob. Code § 11802(b)].

[3] State Statutes

Distribution when beneficiary is unemancipated, minor issue of decedent and died before distribution. Prob. Code § 11802(b)

[4] Cross References

For a related form, see § 458D.191.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.193

§ 458D.193 Allegation--Receipt by Heir of Advancement [Prob. Code § 6409]

[1] FORM Allegation--Receipt by Heir of Advancement [Prob. Code § 6409]

1. _____ [Name], who is an heir of the decedent [and a devisee under the decedent's will], received from the decedent during the decedent's lifetime, on or about _____ [date], as an advancement toward his/her share of the decedent's estate, _____ [specify, e.g., 50 shares of Widget common stock].

2. The character of the gift as an advancement is established by the following: _____ [specify, e.g., the decedent declared in a contemporaneous writing, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit "C" and made a part hereof, that the gift is _____ (to be deducted from _____'s (name of heir) share of the estate or an advancement against _____'s (name of heir) share of the estate) or _____ (name of heir) acknowledged in writing, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit "C" and made a part hereof, that the gift is _____ (to be deducted from his/her share of the estate or an advancement)].

[EITHER]

3. The value of the property constituting the advancement is expressed in the _____ [writing of the decedent made contemporaneously with the gift or acknowledgment of _____ (name of heir made contemporaneously with the advancement)] (Exhibit "C") to be $_____.

[OR]

3. The value of the property constituting the advancement is not expressed in either _____ [the writing of the decedent or an acknowledgement by _____ (name of heir) or the acknowledgment by _____ (name of heir) or a writing of the decedent] made contemporaneously with the advancement. Petitioner estimates that the value of the property on the date _____, [_____ (name of heir) came into possession or enjoyment of it or of decedent's death whichever occurred first] was $_____. This estimate is based on _____ [specify, e.g., the closing price per share of the stock as traded on the New York Stock Exchange on _____ (date listed in previous sentence), multiplied by the number of shares advanced by decedent].

[2] Use of Form

This allegation should be included in the petition for final distribution if an heir received an advancement from a person who died intestate as to all or part of his or her estate after January 1, 1985 [see Prob. Code § 6409(a)]. Property the decedent gave during his or her lifetime to an heir is treated as an advancementagainst the heir's share of the intestate estate only if (1) the decedent declares in a contemporaneous writing that the gift is an advancement against the heir's share or its value is to be deducted from the value of the heir's share, or (2) the heir acknowledges in writing that the gift is to be so deducted or is an advancement or its value is to be deducted from the value of the heir's share [Prob. Code § 6409(a)]. Therefore, a writing that establishes the gift as an advancement should be alleged and a copy of it attached to the petition as an exhibit.

The property advanced must be valued as of the time the heir came into possession or enjoyment of it or as of the time of death of the decedent, whichever occurs first [Prob. Code § 6409(b)]. However, if the value is expressed in the decedent's contemporaneous writing or in an acknowledgment of the heir made contemporaneously with the advancement, that value is conclusive in the division and distribution of the intestate estate [Prob. Code § 6409(c)]. If an estimate of the value of the property must be made, petitioner should state the estimated amount in the petition and the basis for the estimate.

For further discussion, see § 458D.78[8].

[3] State Statutes

When lifetime gift to heir is treated as advancement. Prob. Code § 6409(a)

Valuation of property given as advancement. Prob. Code § 6409(b), (c)

Effect on distribution of advance made by decedent to recipient who failed to survive decedent. Prob. Code § 6409(d)

Requirement that court on petition for final distribution hear and determine and resolve in its order all questions arising under Prob. Code § 6409, relating to advancements. Prob. Code § 11640(b)

[4] Cross References

For a related form, see § 458D.190 and Comments to § 458D.191

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.194

§ 458D.194 Allegation--Ademption by Satisfaction of Devise by Gift Before Death [Prob. Code § 21135]

[1] FORM Allegation--Ademption by Satisfaction of Devise by Gift Before Death [Prob. Code § 21135]

1. _____ [Name], who is a devisee under decedent's will of _____ [specify, e.g., the sum of $25,000], received from decedent during decedent's lifetime, on or about _____ [date], _____ [specify, e.g., $1,000 in cash and a 1986 BMW motorcycle].

2. The receipt of this property should be treated as a _____ [complete or partial] satisfaction of the devise for the following reason(s): _____ [specify, e.g., the will provides for the deduction of the lifetime gift or the decedent declared in a contemporaneous writing, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit "C," that the gift is _____ (to be deducted from _____ the devise or is in satisfaction of the devise) or _____ [name of devisee] has acknowledged in writing, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit "C," that the gift is in satisfaction].

[If a partial satisfaction, CONTINUE]

[EITHER]

3. The value of the gift is _____ [expressed in the contemporaneous writing of the decedent or expressed in an acknowledgment of _____ (name of devisee) that was made contemporaneously with the gift] to be $_____.

[OR]

3. The value of the gift is neither expressed in a contemporaneous writing of the decedent, nor in an acknowledgement by _____ [name of devisee]. Petitioner estimates that the value of the property on the date

_____ [_____ (name of devisee) came into possession or enjoyment of it or of decedent's death] was $_____. The basis of this estimate is the following: _____ [specify, e.g., the fair market value of the vehicle as reflected in Kelley's "Blue Book" on _____ [date listed in previous sentence], plus the $1,000 in cash received by the devisee].

[2] Use of Form

These allegations should be included in the petition for final distribution if a devise was satisfied in whole or in part by a gift to the devisee during the lifetime of a decedent [see Prob. Code § 21135(a)]. Property given by a testator during his or her lifetime to a person is treated as a satisfaction of a devise to that person in whole or in part only if (1) the will provides for deduction of the lifetime gift, (2) the decedent declared in a contemporaneous writing that the gift is to be deductedfrom the devise or is in satisfaction of the devise, (3) the heir acknowledges in writing that the gift is in satisfaction, or (4) the property given is the same property that is the subject of the specific gift [Prob. Code § 21135(a)]. Therefore, a writing that satisfies one of these requirements should be alleged and a copy attached to the petition as an exhibit.

For the purpose of partial satisfaction, the property given during lifetime is valued as of the time the devisee came into possession or enjoyment of it or as of the time of death of the decedent, whichever occurs first [Prob. Code § 21135(b)]. However, if the value of the gift is expressed in the contemporaneous writing of the testator or in an acknowledgement of the devisee made contemporaneously with the gift, that value is conclusive in the division and distribution of the estate [Prob. Code § 21135(c)]. If an estimate of the value of the property must be made, petitioner should allege the estimate in the petition and the basis for the estimate.

For further discussion, see § 458D.82.

[3] State Statutes

Ademption by satisfaction in whole or in part of devise by gift during testator's lifetime. Prob. Code § 21135(a)

Valuation of lifetime gift for purpose of partial satisfaction. Prob. Code § 21135(b), (c)

Requirement that on petition for final distribution court hear and determine and resolve in its order all questions arising under Prob. Code § 21135 relating to ademption by satisfaction. Prob. Code § 11640(b)

[4] Cross References

For related forms, see §§ 458D.190, 458D.193.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.195

§ 458D.195 Allegation--Whereabouts of Distributee Is Unknown [Prob. Code § 11603(c)]

[1] FORM Allegation--Whereabouts of Distributee Is Unknown [Prob. Code § 11603(c)]

_____ [Name] was a beneficiary of the decedent, namely, a devisee under the decedent's will, but his/her/its whereabouts is unknown. The following are the alternate distributees, namely, the persons who would be entitled to the property _____ [under the decedent's will or under the doctrine of cy pres], and the share to which each is entitled:

Name and Relationship	Age	Address	Share to Which Entitled
_____	_____	_____	_____
_____	_____	_____	_____
_____	_____	_____	_____

[OR, if decedent died intestate]

_____ [Name] was a beneficiary of the decedent, namely, an heir of the decedent who died intestate, but his/her/its whereabouts is unknown. The following are the alternate distributees, namely, the persons who would be entitled to the property under the laws of intestate succession if the above-named distributee had predeceased the decedent, and the share to which each is entitled:

Name and Relationship	Age	Address	Share to Which Entitled

_____

_____ _____ _____ _____
_____ _____

_____ _____ _____ _____
_____ _____

_____ _____ _____ _____
_____ _____

CAUTION:

If this allegation is included in the petition, local rules should be checked as they may require that notice be mailed to persons other than those specified in Prob. Code § 11601.

[2] Use of Form

This allegation should be included in the petition for final distribution [see § 458D.190] if the whereabouts of a distributee is unknown. In that case, the order must provide for alternate distributees and the share to which each is entitled [Prob. Code § 11603(c)]. Thus, the petition for final distribution should alsoinclude that information. The alternate distributees are the persons, to the extent known or reasonably ascertainable, who would be entitled under the decedent's will or under the laws of intestate succession if the distributee named in the order had predeceased the decedent, or in the case of a devise for a charitable purpose, under the cy pres doctrine. A distributee named in the order who does not claim the share to which he or she is entitled within five years after the date of the order is deemed to have predeceased the decedent for the purpose of the order, and the alternate distributees are entitled to the share as provided in the order [Prob. Code § 11603(c)].

[3] State Statutes

Procedure if whereabouts of beneficiary named in order is unknown. Prob. Code § 11603(c)

Deposit with county treasurer of property to be distributed when property remains unclaimed in personal representative's possession or whereabouts of distributee is unknown. Prob. Code § 11850(a)

[4] Cross References

For an allegation under Prob. Code § 11850 stating that unclaimed property exists and cannot be distributed because the whereabouts of a distributee is unknown or a distributee refuses the property, see § 458D.201.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.196

§ 458D.196 Allegation--Amount of Contribution for Abatement Required of Each Distributee Because of Payment of Expenses, Debts, etc. [Prob. Code § 21401]

[1] FORM Allegation--Amount of Contribution for Abatement Required of Each Distributee Because of Payment of Expenses, Debts, etc. [Prob. Code § 21401]

[EITHER]

1. On _____ [date], petitioner sold _____ [specify property, e.g., 100 of decedent's shares in the XYZ Corporation], which property is given by decedent's will to _____ [name], for the sum of $_____ in order to pay _____ [specify, e.g., expenses and debts].

[OR]

1. Petitioner has had to withdraw various sums from funds on hand in order to pay _____ [specify, e.g., expenses and debts], leaving the total value of the estate at a figure less than that of the total of the devises made.

[CONTINUE]

2. The respective interests of the [other] devisees and the amounts that each should contribute [to _____ (name)] on account of the _____ [sale of the property or shortfall] are as follows:

_____ [List each devisee, the value of his or her share under the will, and the proportionate amount that he or she should contribute to the devisee whose interest was sold or the shortfall, so that all devisees within a class will share proportionately in the payment of the debts, expenses, etc., funded by the sale or withdrawal of funds.]

[2] Use of Form

This allegation should be included in the petition for final distribution when property given by the will to a designated beneficiary was sold to pay expenses, debts, etc., or when funds on hand were withdrawn for such purposes, leaving a shortfall in the total amount devised. Although the court must fix the amount each distributee of the estate property must contribute for abatement [see Prob. Code § 21405(a)], it is helpful to allege those amounts in the petition as an aid to the court.

[3] Governing Law

Abatement is governed by Prob. Code §§ 21400-21406, which, however, apply only to gifts made on or after July 1, 1989; in the case of a gift made before July 1, 1989, the law that would have applied had Prob. Code §§ 21401-21406 not been enacted will apply [Prob. Code § 21406(a)]. A gift by will is made on the date of the decedent's death [Prob. Code § 21406(b)]. For discussion of these provisions, see § 458D.83.

[4] State Statutes

Abatement of shares of beneficiaries for all purposes including payment of debts, expenses, etc. Prob. Code § 21401

Order in which shares of beneficiaries abate. Prob. Code § 21402

Abatement within classes of beneficiaries. Prob. Code § 21403

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.197

§ 458D.197 Allegation--When Devisee Is Subscribing Witness to Will [Prob. Code § 6112]

[1] FORM Allegation--When Devisee Is Subscribing Witness to Will [Prob. Code § 6112]

_____ [Name], to whom decedent's will gives _____ [specify property given], of a value of $_____, as a _____ [general or specific] devise, is one of the subscribing witnesses to decedent's will. There _____ [is only one other or are two other] disinterested subscribing _____ [witness or witnesses]. [If only one other disinterested subscribing witness, add: _____ (Name) _____ (is or is not) an heir of decedent _____ (add, if an heir : to wit, _____ [specify relationship creating status as heir, e.g., decedent's son], and his/her share of the estate, if the will had not been established, would have been _____ [specify, e.g., an undivided one third (1/3)] of a value of $_____).]

CAUTION:

If this allegation is included in the petition, local rules may require that notice be mailed to persons other than those specified in Prob. Code § 11601 and should be checked.

[2] Use of Form

This subscribing allegation may be included in the petition for final distribution when a devisee was one of two witnesses to the will [see Prob. Code § 6112]. If the decedent died before January 1, 1985, an interested witness can take only his or her intestate share in the testator's estate [see former Prob. Code § 51]. If the decedent died on or after that date, the fact that the witness was interested in the will merely creates a presumption affecting the burden of proof that the witness procured the devise by duress, menace, fraud, or undue influence. The presumption does not apply when the witness is a person to whom the devise is made solely in a fiduciary capacity [Prob. Code § 6112(c)]. If a devise fails because the presumption established by Prob. Code § 6112(c) applies and is not rebutted, the interested witness shall take that proportion of the devise that does not exceed the share of the estate that would have been distributed to the witness had the will not been established [Prob. Code § 6112(d)]. If the limitation on the amount the witness may take applies, the court must decide what share of the estate would have gone to the person had the will not been established, but it is helpful to allege this, as an aid to the court. For further discussion, see § 458D.84[1].

[3] State Statutes

Effective date of new provisions; continued effect of former law. Prob. Code § 6103

Devisee who is witness to will as presumed to have procured devise through duress, menace, fraud, or undue influence unless there are two other subscribing witnesseswho are disinterested witnesses; effect of failure to rebut presumption. Prob. Code § 6112

[4] Decisions

Disclaimer by witness who is also beneficiary as not making that witness disinterested for purpose of proving will. Estate of Parsons (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 384, 386, 163 Cal. Rptr. 70 (interpreting former Prob. Code § 51, the predecessor to Prob. Code § 6112)

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.198

§ 458D.198 Allegation--Omission to Provide in Testamentary Instrument for Surviving Spouse or Registered Domestic Partner by Later Marriage [Prob. Code §§ 26110-21612]

[1] FORM Allegation--Omission to Provide in Testamentary Instrument for Surviving Spouse or Registered Domestic Partner by Later Marriage [Prob. Code §§ 26110-21612]

Decedent's will was executed before decedent _____ [married or formed a registered domestic partnership with] _____ [name of spouse or registered domestic partner], who is decedent's surviving _____ [spouse or registered domestic partner]. _____ [Name of surviving spouse or registered domestic partner] is not provided for in the will or in any other testamentary instrument executed by decedent. It does not appear from any testamentary instrument executed by decedent that decedent's failure to provide for _____ [name of surviving spouse or registered domestic partner] was intentional. Decedent did not provide for _____ [name of surviving spouse or registered domestic partner] by any transfer or transfers outside of the estate passing by the decedent's _____ [will or if decedent also executed a trust that became irrevocable on decedent's death testamentary instruments], and _____ [name of surviving spouse or registered domestic partner] has not agreed in writing to waive his/her right to share in the decedent's estate. _____ [Name of surviving spouse or registered domestic partner] is therefore entitled to the following property in the estate: _____ [specify, e.g., the one half of the community property that belongs to the decedent under Probate Code Section 100 and/or the one half of the quasi-community property that belongs to the decedent under Probate Code Section 101 and/or a share in the separate property of the decedent equal in value to that which he/she would have received if the decedent had died without having executed a testamentary instrument, up to one half of the value of the separate property in the estate].

CAUTION:

If this allegation is included in the petition, local rules may require that notice be mailed to persons other than those specified in Prob. Code § 11601 and should be checked.

[2] Use of Form

This allegation may be included in the petition when the estate is being administered under a will made before the decedent married or entered into a registered domestic partnership and the decedent failed to provide for the surviving spouse or registered domestic partner either in the will or in a trust instrument that became irrevocable on the decedent's death. Under these circumstances, the spouse or registered domestic partner will qualify as an "omitted spouse" and be entitled to receive a share of the estate as specified by statute [see Prob. Code § 21610]. As used in this form, "testamentary instrument"means the decedent's will or a trust instrument executed by the decedent creating a revocable trust that became irrevocable only on the decedent's death [Prob. Code §§ 21600, 21601(a)].

As of January 1, 2005, a surviving registered domestic partner has the same rights, responsibilities, protections, and benefits as a surviving spouse [Fam. Code § 297.5(c)].

For a more detailed discussion of the statutory rules governing omitted spouses, see § 458D.85[1].

[3] When Omitted Spouse or Registered Domestic Partner Is Not Entitled to Share

An omitted spouse is not entitled to receive a share of the estate in the following situations:

- The decedent's failure to provide for the spouse or registered domestic partner in the decedent's testamentary instruments was intentional and that intention appears from the testamentary instruments [Prob. Code § 21611(a)];

- The decedent provided for the spouse or registered domestic partner by transfer outside of the estate passing by the decedent's testamentary instruments and the intention that the transfer be in lieu of a provision in those instruments is shown by statements of the decedent or from the amount of the transfer or by other evidence [Prob. Code § 21611(b)]; or

- The spouse or registered domestic partner made a valid agreement waiving the right to share in the decedent's estate [Prob. Code § 21611(c); see Estate of Butler (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 311, 315-317, 252 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

[4] State Statutes

Except as provided in Prob. Code § 21611, surviving spouse who married decedent after execution of all testamentary instruments entitled to share in estate. Prob. Code § 21610

Conditions preventing spouse from receiving share of estate under Prob. Code § 21610. Prob. Code § 21611

Manner of satisfying surviving spouse's interest in estate. Prob. Code § 21612

[5] Decisions

Putative spouse is omitted spouse within meaning of former Prob. Code § 6560 [now see Prob. Code § 21610]. Estate of Sax (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1300, 1303, 263 Cal. Rptr. 190

Surviving spouse's share was determined by former Prob. Code § 221 rather than by former Prob. Code § 224 because entire estate consisted of decedent's separate property and will that left everything to single charity and intentionally disinherited only child was revoked under former Prob. Code § 70; thus, surviving spouse and charity were each entitled to one half of estate. Estate of Smith (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 208, 212, 212 Cal. Rptr. 923

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.199

§ 458D.199 Allegation--Failure to Provide for Child Who Was Subsequently Born or Adopted, or Who Was Believed Dead, or of Whose Birth Testator Was Unaware [former Prob. Code §§ 90, 91; Prob. Code §§ 6570-6573, 6580]

[1] FORM Allegation--Failure to Provide for Child Who Was Subsequently Born or Adopted, or Who Was Believed Dead, or of Whose Birth Testator Was Unaware [former Prob. Code §§ 90, 91; Prob. Code §§ 6570-6573, 6580]

[EITHER, if decedent died on or after January 1, 1985, but before January 1, 1998]

_____ [Name of omitted child] is _____ [a or an or the] [adopted] child of decedent, who died on _____ [date]. _____ [Name of omitted child] was _____ [born or adopted] after the execution of the decedent's will and is not provided for in decedent's will; it does not appear from the will that the omission was intentional; [the will was executed at a time when decedent had _____ (one child or _____ [number] children) and decedent did not devise substantially all of the estate to the other parent of _____ (name of omitted child)]; and the decedent did not provide for _____ [name of omitted child] by any transfer outside the will [with the intention that the transfer be in lieu of a testamentary provision]. The share of the estate to which _____ [name of omitted child] would have succeeded had decedent died intestate is _____ [state percentage or dollar amount], on the basis that _____ [specify, e.g., _____ (name of omitted child) was one of three children of decedent, and decedent was not survived by a spouse].

[OR, if decedent died on or after January 1, 1985, but before January 1, 1998, and failed to provide for a living child because of the belief that child was dead or of whose birth he or she was unaware]

_____ [Name], who was living at the time the will was executed, is _____ [a or the] surviving child of the decedent. Decedent failed to provide in his/her will for _____ [name of child] solely because at the time the will was executed, decedent _____ [either believed that

_____ (name of surviving child) was dead or was unaware of the birth of _____ (name of surviving child)]. _____'s [name of child] share of the estate, had the decedent died intestate, would have been _____ [specify, e.g., an undivided one third] of a value of $_____).]

[OR, if decedent died on or after January 1, 1998, and failed to provide in any testamentary instrument for child born or adopted after all of decedent's testamentary instruments]

_____ [Name of child] is a child of decedent and was _____ [born or adopted by decedent] on _____ [date], after the execution of all of decedent's testamentary instruments. _____ [Name of child] is not provided for in the will or in any other testamentary instrument executed by decedent. Decedent did not devise or otherwise direct the disposition of substantially all the estate to the other parent of _____ [name of child]. Decedent _____ [did not provide or provided] for _____ [name of child] by transfer outside of the estate passing by decedent's testamentary instruments [if decedent provided for child, add:, but it does not appear from any statements of decedent, from the amount of the transfer, or by other evidence that that provision was intended to be in lieu of a provision in the will]. _____ [Name of child] is therefore entitled to receive a share in the estate equal in value to that which _____ [he or she] would have received if the decedent had died without having executed any testamentary instrument.

CAUTION:

If this allegation is included in the petition, local rules may require that notice be mailed to persons other than those specified in Prob. Code § 11601 and should be checked.

[2] Use of Form

This allegation may be included in the petition if the decedent failed to make provision in his or her will for a child.

The first alternative is for use when the decedent died on or after January 1, 1985, but before January 1, 1998, and failed to provide in the will for a child born or adopted after the will was executed, and when none of the conditions set forth in former Prob. Code § 7671 is established [former Prob. Code § 6570].

The second alternative is for use when the decedent died on or after January 1, 1985, but before January 1, 1998, and when the child was living at the time the will was executed but was not provided for solely because the testator believed the child was dead or was unaware of the child's birth [former Prob. Code § 6572].

The third alternative is for use when the decedent died on or after January 1, 1998, when the child was born or adopted after the execution of all of the decedent's testamentary instruments, and when the decedent failed to provide in any of those instruments for the child [Prob. Code § 21620]. As used in this alternative, "testamentary instrument" means the decedent's will or a trust instrument executed by the decedent creating a revocable trust that became irrevocable only on the decedent's death [Prob. Code §§ 21600, 21601(a)].

For discussion of the inheritance rights of omitted children, see § 458D.89[1], et seq.

[3] State Statutes

Inheritance rights of omitted children when decedent died on or after January 1, 1998. Prob. Code §§ 21620-21623

Prob. Code §§ 21620-21623 inapplicable if decedent died before January 1, 1998. Prob. Code § 21630

Inheritance rights of omitted children when decedent died before January 1, 1985. Former Prob. Code §§ 90, 91

Inheritance rights of omitted children when decedent died on or after January 1, 1985, but before January 1, 1998. Former Prob. Code §§ 6570-6573

[4] Decisions

Niece of testator adopted after execution of will is omitted heir. Estate of Turkington (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 590, 592-594, 195 Cal. Rptr. 178 (involving former Prob. Code § 90; now see Prob. Code § 21620)

No-contest clause specifically disinheriting contesting heirs as class from participating in estate was sufficient disinheritance provision to prevent operation of pretermission statute (former Prob. Code § 90; now see Prob. Code § 21620). Estate of Leonetti (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 378, 383, 171 Cal. Rptr. 303 (holding, however, that testators did not intend to disinherit grandchildren)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.200

§ 458D.200 Allegation--Predeceased Devisee [former Prob. Code § 92; Prob. Code §§ 21109(a), 21110, 21111(a)]

[1] FORM Allegation--Predeceased Devisee [former Prob. Code § 92; Prob. Code §§ 21109(a), 21110, 21111(a)]

_____ [Name], whom the will names as _____ [devisee or legatee] of _____ [specify devise or legacy], died before decedent, on _____ [date]. The will _____ [expresses or does not express] an intention to substitute another person _____ [if appropriate, add:, to wit, _____ (name of other person),] in place of _____ [name of predeceased devisee or legatee]. [If no substitution, add: _____ (Name of predeceased devisee or legatee) _____ (was or was not) kindred of decedent _____ (if related, add:, to wit, _____ (relationship), and left _____ (no or the following) lineal descendants surviving decedent _____ (if any such survivors, add:, to wit: _____ (names, relationships to decedent, ages, and addresses)).]

CAUTION:

If this allegation is included in the petition, local rules may require that notice be mailed to persons other than those specified in Prob. Code § 11601 and should be checked.

[2] Use of Form

This allegation may be included in the petition if a devisee named in the will failed to survive the decedent [see Prob. Code §§ 21109(a), 21110, 21111(a)].

[3] State Statutes

Transferee who fails to survive transferor does not take under instrument. Prob. Code § 21109

Issue of transferee who fails to survive transferor takes in place of transferee. Prob. Code § 21110

Transfer of property subject to failed transfer. Prob. Code § 21111

[4] Decisions

California's antilapse statute provides that when a bequest is to a protected transferee would otherwise lapse due to the transferee's death, the bequest passes by right of representation to the transferee's descendants. Estate of Mooney (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 654, 663, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 115

Former Prob. Code § 92 (lapsed devises and legacies; now see Prob. Code §§ 21109-21111) is not avoided by presence of residual clause unless proof exists of testator's clearly expressed intent to avoid its operation. Estate of Casey (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 867, 874, 180 Cal. Rptr. 582

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.201

§ 458D.201 Allegation--Property Is Unclaimed, Whereabouts of Distributee Is Unknown, or Distributee Refuses Property [Prob. Code § 11850(a), (b)]

[1] FORM Allegation--Property Is Unclaimed, Whereabouts of Distributee Is Unknown, or Distributee Refuses Property [Prob. Code § 11850(a), (b)]

[EITHER]

The following described property remains in petitioner's possession unclaimed: _____ [describe]. [If the property is other than money, add: Petitioner requests an order that the property be deposited with the treasurer of this county].

[OR]

The whereabouts of _____ [name of distributee] is unknown, and petitioner is, therefore, unable to distribute the property devised to him/her. [If the property is other than money, add: Petitioner requests an order that the property to be distributed to _____ (name of distributee) be deposited with the treasurer of this county.]

[OR]

_____ [Name of distributee] has refused to give a receipt for the following property that was devised to him/her: _____ [describe]. [If the property is other than money, add: Petitioner requests an order that the property to be distributed to _____ (name of distributee) be deposited with the treasurer of this county.]

[2] Use of Form

This allegation may be included in the petition when the personal representative has already deposited money to be distributed with the county treasurer (see Prob. Code §§ 11851(a), 11853); or, if a court order is required before the property may be deposited with the county treasurer [see Prob. Code § 11851(b) (property other than money)], the allegation may be included in a petition for the order to deposit, which may be requested in the petition for final distribution; otherwise, the allegation should be included in the petition for discharge [see Ch. 458E, Probate: Discharge].

Prob. Code § 11850, unlike its predecessor (former Prob. Code §§ 1060 and 1062), omits reference to a distributee who resides out of California. Distribution should be made to the named distributee or any known assignee of the named distributee, regardless of the place of residence of the distributee [see Law Revision Comm'n Comment to Prob. Code § 11850].

Distribution to the county treasurer under Prob. Code § 11850 is permissive, and the personal representative may make distribution in any other manner that is appropriate [see Law Revision Comm'n Comment to Prob. Code § 11850].

For further discussion, see § 458D.97

[3] State Statutes

Deposit with county treasurer of property to be distributed when property remains unclaimed in personal representative's possession or whereabouts of distributee is unknown. Prob. Code § 11850(a)

Deposit with county treasurer of property to be distributed when distributee refuses to give receipt for property. Prob. Code § 11850(b)

When court order for deposit with county treasurer is required. Prob. Code § 11851(b)

Requirement that county treasurer give receipt for deposit. Prob. Code § 11852

Requirement that personal representative deliver to county treasurer certified copy of order for distribution when money is deposited or is already on deposit with county treasurer. Prob. Code § 11853

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.202

§ 458D.202 Allegation--No Fiduciary Appointed for Minor or Incompetent Distributee and No Person Authorized to Give Receipt for Property [Prob. Code § 11850(c)]

[1] FORM Allegation--No Fiduciary Appointed for Minor or Incompetent Distributee and No Person Authorized to Give Receipt for Property [Prob. Code § 11850(c)]

_____ [Name], who is entitled to receive out of the estate _____ [specify personal property], as _____ [an heir or a devisee], is _____ [a minor or an incompetent person] who has no legally qualified guardian or conservator or other fiduciary to receive the property or person authorized to give a receipt for the property. [If the property is other than money, add: Petitioner requests an order that _____ (the property to be distributed to _____ (name of distributee) be deposited with the treasurer of this county or the property be sold and the proceeds of the sale, less expenses of sale allowed by the court, be deposited with the county treasurer, which sale would be for the benefit of _____ (name of minor or incompetent person) for the reason(s) that _____ (specify)).]

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing allegation is for use when a distributee of personal property is a minor or an incompetent person having no legally qualified guardian or conservator or other fiduciary to receive the property or person authorized to give a receipt for it [see Prob. Code § 11850(c)]. The allegation may be included in the petition for final distribution when the personal representative has already deposited money to be distributed with the county treasurer (see Prob. Code §§ 11851(a), 11853). If a court order is required before the property may be deposited with the county treasurer [see Prob. Code § 11851(b) (property other than money)], the allegation may be included in a petition for the order to deposit, which may be requested in the petition for final distribution. Otherwise, the allegation should be included in the petition for discharge [see Ch. 458E, Probate: Discharge].

Distribution to the county treasurer under Prob. Code § 11850 is permissive, and the personal representative may make distribution in any other manner that is appropriate. For example, distribution to a minor for whom no guardian has been appointed might be made under the California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act (see Prob. Code §§ 3905, 3906) or under another appropriate statute. If the distributee is a nonresident minor or incompetent person who has a guardian or other fiduciary of the estate legally appointed under the law of another jurisdiction, the distribution of the person's share should be made to the fiduciary [see Law Revision Comm'n Comment to Prob. Code § 11850].

For further discussion, see § 458D.97.

[3] State Statutes

Deposit with county treasurer of property to be distributed to minor or incompetent person having no guardian, conservator, or other fiduciary to receive property or person authorized to give receipt for it. Prob. Code § 11850(c)

[4] Cross References

For related forms, see §§ 458D.190 and 458D.201.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.203

§ 458D.203 Allegation--Minor Distributee of Personal Property Not Exceeding $5,000 in Value [Prob. Code §§ 3400, 3401]

[1] FORM Allegation--Minor Distributee of Personal Property Not Exceeding $5,000 in Value [Prob. Code §§ 3400, 3401]

_____ [Name] is a minor whose distributive share of this estate consists of personal property not exceeding $5,000 in value. _____ [Petitioner has received the written assurance, under oath, of _____ [name](, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit C,) or _____ [name] will, before the hearing on this petition, file with the court a written assurance] that he/she is the parent having custody of the minor, that there is no guardianship of the estate of the minor, that the total estate of the minor does not exceed $5,000, [excluding custodial property held pursuant to the California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act and/or any money or property held subject to court order pursuant to Probate Code Section 3602(c), but] including the _____ [money and/or property] to be _____ [paid and/or delivered] from this estate to the parent to be held in trust for the minor until he/she reaches the age of majority.

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing allegation is for use in a petition for final distribution when property having a value that does not exceed $5,000 is to be distributed to a minor who has no guardian of his or her estate. The property may be paid or delivered to a parent of the minor entitled to custody to be held in trust for the minor until he or she reaches the age of majority, provided that the parent gives the person making the payment or delivery written assurance, verified by the oath of the parent [see § 458D.204], that the "total estate of the minor" (defined in Prob. Code § 3400(a)), including the money or other property to be paid or delivered to the parent, does not exceed $5,000 [Prob. Code § 3401(a)-(c)].

Some courts may require that the affidavit or declaration be filed before the date of hearing of a petition for distribution [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.120] or before an order for distribution will be made [see, e.g., Orange County Sup. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.21].

In computing the total estate of a minor, custodial property held pursuant to the California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act (Prob. Code §§ 3900-3925) and any money or property subject to court order pursuant to Prob. Code § 3602(c) or Prob. Code §§ 3610-3612 are excluded [Prob. Code § 3400(b)].

If the assets to be distributed to the minor exceed $5,000 in value, a guardianship may be necessary unless the property is all cash [see Prob. Code §§ 3410(a)(2), 3413], in which event the court may make any of the orders authorized by Prob. Code § 3413 [see §§ 458D.205, 458D.206, 458D.213].

[3] Cross References

For a related form, see § 458D.191.

For forms of petition for appointment of guardian of minor, see generally Ch. 280, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Appointment of Guardians

[4] State Statutes

Distribution of property not exceeding $5,000 in value to parent of minor distributee. Prob. Code §§ 3400-3402

Right of parent or guardian to compromise claim in favor of minor. Prob. Code §§ 3500, 3600-3612

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.204

§ 458D.204 Written Assurance Under Oath of Parent Entitled to Custody re Value of Minor's Estate [Prob. Code § 3401]

[1] FORM Written Assurance Under Oath of Parent Entitled to Custody re Value of Minor's Estate [Prob. Code § 3401]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
_____ Estate of	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	WRITTEN ASSURANCE OF PARENT ENTITLED
Deceased.	)	TO CUSTODY
	)	[Prob. Code § 3401(c)(2)]

_____

I, _____ [name], hereby assure that:

I am the _____ [father or mother] and _____ [a or the] parent entitled to custody of _____ [name], a minor, who is a distributee of _____ [this estate or the estate of _____ (name), deceased]. _____ [Name of minor] has no guardianship of the estate, and his/her total estate, including his/her distributive share of the estate, does not exceed $5,000 in value. [In computing this value, I have deducted _____ (custodial property held pursuant to the California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act and/or _____ (money and/or property) subject to court order pursuant to Section 3602(c) of the Probate Code).]

I request that the _____ [money and/or property] to be distributed to _____ [name of minor] be _____ [paid and/or delivered] to me at _____ [street address, city, and state], to be held in trust for _____ [name of minor] until he/she reaches the age of majority.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.
_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

Parent

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing declaration under penalty of perjury is for use by a parent entitled to custody of a minor distributee of an estate when the property distributable to the minor does not exceed $5,000 in value, the minor has no guardian of the estate, and the total value of the minor's estate, including the property to be distributed, does not exceed $5,000 [see Prob. Code § 3401]. By giving a written assurance, under oath, that the minor's total estate, including the distributive interests, does not exceed $5,000, a parent of the minor entitled to custody may have the property paid or delivered to him or her in trust for the minor until the minor reaches majority [Prob. Code § 3401(a), (c)]. In computing the total estate of the minor, custodial property held pursuant to the California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act (Prob. Code §§ 3900-3925) and any money or property subject to court order pursuant to Prob. Code § 3602(c) or Prob. Code §§ 3610-3612 is to be deducted [Prob. Code § 3400(b)].

[3] Cross References

For related forms, see §§ 458D.190, 458D.203.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.205

§ 458D.205 Petition for Order Relating to Money to Be Distributed to Minor [Prob. Code §§ 3411, 3413]

[1] FORM Petition for Order Relating to Money to Be Distributed to Minor [Prob. Code §§ 3411, 3413]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
In the Matter of	)	PETITION FOR ORDER RELATING TO MONEY
_____ [name],	)	TO BE DISTRIBUTED TO a minor.	)	MINOR
	)	[Prob. Code §§ 3411, 3413]

_____

Petitioner, _____ [name], respectfully represents:

1. Petitioner is the _____ [_____ (father or mother) and (a) parent entitled to custody of _____ (name), a minor or the duly appointed and acting _____ (specify, e.g., executor of the will of _____ (name), deceased), in a proceeding now pending administration in _____ (this court, No. _____, or the Superior Court of California, County of _____), entitled Estate of _____ (name), deceased, No. _____ (hereinafter, "the probate proceeding"), of which this court is requested to take judicial notice].

2. Under the _____ [will of _____ (name of decedent) or laws of intestate succession], _____ [name of minor] (hereinafter "the minor") is entitled to receive the sum of $_____ as his/her share of the decedent's estate in _____ [the probate proceeding or a proceeding now pending in the Superior Court of California, County of _____, entitled Estate of _____ (name), deceased, No. _____ (hereinafter, "the probate proceeding"), of which this court is requested to take judicial notice].

3. The minor is a resident of this county.

4. The minor has no guardian of the estate.

5. [Because _____ (specify, e.g., the total estate of the minor, including the sum to be distributed in the probate proceeding, exceeds $5,000 in value, the sum to be distributed or the sum to be distributed exceeds $5,000, it) cannot be paid to _____ (petitioner or a custodial parent of the minor) as provided in Probate Code Section 3401.]

6. To avoid the expenses of a guardianship, it would be in the best interests of the minor if the court would order the sum to be distributed to be deposited in _____ [specify, e.g., an insured account in a financial institution in California or specify type of account and name, branch, and address of financial institution in California], subject to withdrawal only on the authorization of this court.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays that this court order that the sum of $_____ to be distributed to the minor in the probate proceeding be _____ [specify, e.g., deposited in an interest bearing account in the (_____ branch of the) _____ Bank, located at _____ (street address and city), California], to be withdrawn only on the order of this court, and for such further or other orders as the court deems proper.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Petitioner

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Petitioner

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the petitioner in the above-entitled proceeding. I have read the foregoing petition and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters that are therein stated on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

CAUTION:
The foregoing petition must be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1); see also Prob. Code §§ 1020, 1021(b)(1), 1023].

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form is for use by either a parent having custody of a minor who is to receive a sum of money as her or her share of an estate being probated or by the personal representative of the decedent's estate to petition the court for an order that the money be deposited, invested, held on conditions, or paid as provided in Prob. Code § 3413(a)-(d) (discussed briefly in § 458D.96[1]. For further discussion of Prob. Code § 3413, see Ch. 364, Minors: Claims and Property of Minors . For a corresponding provision in the order for final distribution, see § 458D.213. Note that some courts provide forms for mandatoryuse in petitioning the court for an order under Prob. Code § 3413(a) [see, e.g., Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 613.01(6)].

The petition must be filed in the superior court of the county in which the minor resides [see Prob. Code § 3411(b)(1)], and may be filed by a parent entitled to the minor's custody or by the person holding the money belonging to the minor [Prob. Code § 3411(a)], that is, by the personal representative.

If the minor is a resident of the same county in which the estate proceeding is pending, it would appear that the petition by the personal representative could be made in conjunction with the petition for distribution. Nevertheless, some courts require that an order made under Prob. Code § 3413 be filed before the date of the hearing on the petition for distribution [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.120(a)]. Other courts, by local rule, require a separate petition and order under the minor's name with a different case number when distribution is to be made for the benefit of a minor under Prob. Code §§ 3410-3412, and that a copy of the order must be filed in the decedent's estate proceeding [see, e.g., Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.21(3)]. Local court or department rules and practice should be consulted.

[3] Terminology

Accounts from which funds may be withdrawn only on court order (Prob. Code § 3413(a)) are referred to as "blocked accounts" [see, e.g., Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 613.01 et seq.], and local court rule may specify the particular blocked accounts into which funds will be ordered deposited [see, e.g., Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 613.02(D)].

[4] Notice of Hearing

There is no notice of hearing required by Prob. Code §§ 3410-3413, and the order may, therefore, be obtained ex parte. However, some courts require a hearing and notice if the petition does more than seek the deposit of funds or the deposit of funds subject to reimbursement for the costs of filing the petition [see, e.g., Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 613.02(A)]. Local rules and practice should be consulted.

[5] Signature and Verification

The petition must be signed by all of the petitioners, although, unless expressly provided to the contrary, verification of a document constitutes signature of that document [Prob. Code § 1020]. It must also be verified [Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1)] by the petitioner or by any one of them if there are two or more [Prob. Code § 1021(b)(1)]. However, if the petitioner is absent from the county or for some other cause is unable to sign or verify it, and the petitioner is not the personal representative or other fiduciary (see Prob. Code § 39), it may be signed and verified by the petitioner's attorney [Prob. Code § 1023].

[6] Cross References

For a related form, see § 458D.204.

For forms of petition for guardianship of estate of minor, see Ch. 280, Guardianship and Conservatorship:

Appointment of Guardians

For discussion and forms relating to disposition of of property and money to a minor, see Ch. 364, Minors: Claims and Property of Minors

[7] State Statutes

Minors as being all persons under 18 years of age. Fam. Code § 6500

"Age of majority" defined. Fam. Code § 6502

Verification of petition required. Prob. Code §§ 1021(a)(1), (b)(1), 1023

Court in which petition is to be filed. Prob. Code § 3411

Disposition by court order of money held for minor by deposit in specified accounts subject to withdrawal only on court order, transfer to custodian for benefit of minor under California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act (Prob. Code §§ 3900-3925), held subject to conditions if sum does not exceed $20,000, or paid to parent of minor if sum does not exceed $5,000. Prob. Code § 3413

[8] Local Rules of Court--Petition Requirements

Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 613.02

San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.90

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.206

§ 458D.206 Order on Ex Parte Application That Money to Be Distributed to Minor Be Deposited in Blocked Account [Prob. Code § 3413(a)]

[1] FORM Order on Ex Parte Application That Money to Be Distributed to Minor Be Deposited in Blocked Account [Prob. Code § 3413(a)]
SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
In the Matter of	)	ORDER ON EX PARTE APPLICATION TO DE-
_____ [name],	)	POSIT MONEY OF MINOR TO BE a minor.	)	WITHDRAWN ON COURT ORDER ONLY
	)	[Prob. Code § 3413(a)]

_____

[EITHER]

On the verified petition of _____ [name], the _____ [father or mother], and a/the parent entitled to custody of _____ [name], a minor,

[OR]

On the verified petition of _____ [name], the duly appointed and acting _____ [title of personal representative, e.g., Executor of the will] of _____ [name], in _____ [the above-entitled proceeding or that certain proceeding now pending in the Superior Court of California, County of _____, entitled Estate of _____ (name), deceased, No. _____

(hereinafter, "the probate proceeding")], who holds the sum of $_____ to be distributed in those proceedings to _____ [name], a minor, as his/her share of the decedent's estate, for an order that the minor's share in the estate of _____ [name], deceased, be _____ [deposited in an account in or invested in a single-premium deferred annuity given by or deposited with] _____ [name], _____ [a financial institution in this state or the treasurer of _____ County], subject to withdrawal only on the court's authorization, and it appearing to the satisfaction of the court that the minor has no guardian of the estate,

[CONTINUE]

IT IS ORDERED that:

1. The sum of $_____, representing the share of _____ [name], a minor, in the decedent's estate in _____ [the probate proceeding or that certain proceeding now pending in the Superior Court of California, County of _____, entitled "Estate of _____ [name], deceased," No. _____,] be deposited in the name of the minor _____ [in an insured account in a financial institution in California or specify type of account and name, branch, and address of financial institution in California or in a single-premium deferred annuity (issued by _____ (name and address of insurance company or other company selling single-premium deferred annuities)) or with _____ (name), the treasurer of _____ County].

2. Neither all nor any part of the money so deposited shall be withdrawn except on order of this court until the minor reaches the age of majority on _____ [date]. On or after that date all money in the _____ [account or shares or annuity] shall be paid _____ [to or on the order of the minor or, in the case of an annuity, according to its terms] without further order of this court.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of order is for use with the petition for the order set out in see § 458D.205. The wording of the form is intended to permit the funds to be released to the minor when he or she reaches the age of 18 without any further order of the court. If for any reason the money is not to be released to the minor on his or her 18th birthday (for example, the mental or physical incapacity of the minor that may persist beyond the time he or she reaches the age of majority), the provision for automatic release may be deleted from the foregoing order.

Some courts provide their own form of order, and where they do, the form must be used [see, e.g., Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 613.01].

[3] Cross References

For a related form, see § 458D.205.

124 of 150 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.207

§ 458D.207 Notice of Hearing of Final Account and Petition for Final Distribution [and for Allowance of Compensation for Extraordinary Services] [Prob. Code §§ 1220, 10831(a), 11000, 11601]

[1] FORM Notice of Hearing of Final Account and Petition for Final Distribution [and for Allowance of Compensation for Extraordinary Services] [Prob. Code §§ 1220, 10831(a), 11000, 11601]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

Estate of_____ [name], Deceased.	))))))	NO. _____ NOTICE OF HEARING OF FINAL ACCOUNT AND PETITION FOR FINAL DISTRIBUTION [AND FOR ALLOWANCE OF COMPENSATION FOR EXTRAORDINARY SERVICES] [Prob. Code §§ 1220, 10831(a), 11000, 11601]

_____

To all interested persons in the above estate:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that _____ [name], as _____ [personal representative, e.g., Executor of the will of _____ (name) in the above-entitled proceeding], has filed herein a final account and petition for final distribution [add, if appropriate, if estate proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991, _____ (with a request or and a petition) for an order fixing and allowing the personal representative's and attorney's compensation for all services rendered in the estate proceeding or add, if appropriate, if estate proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991: for the petitioner's statutory commission and attorney's fee, and for an allowance of additional compensation to the petitioner and attorney for extraordinary services], reference to which is made for further particulars. The time and place for settling the account and hearing of the petition have been set for _____ [date], at _____ [time], in the courtroom [of Department No. _____] of the above-entitled court at _____ [the _____ courthouse or specify other building], located at _____ [street address], _____ [city], California. Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Attorney of Petitioner

[2] Use of Form

This form of notice may be used to give notice in the manner prescribed by Prob. Code § 1220 of a hearing on a final account and petition for final distribution, as required by Prob. Code §§ 11000 and 11601. This form complies with the requirements of Prob. Code § 1211 (statutory form of notice). For a further discussion of the statutory form of notice, as well as the Judicial Council form of notice for optional use, see Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements .

[3] 1990 Legislation

In 1990, the Probate Code was repealed and a new Probate Code was enacted operative July 1, 1991 [Stats. 1990, ch. 79]. Although some of the former statutes were not continued in the new code, most were. Some of the statutes were carried over without change or with minor changes, whereas others were substantially changed or replaced. In this latter case, some of the repealed statutes continue to apply in specified proceedings.

Former Prob. Code §§ 900-910 (personal representative's commission and attorney's fees), as they existed on June 30, 1991, continue to apply in administration of estate proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991 [Prob. Code § 10850(b)]. In proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991, the compensation of the personal representative and his or her attorney are governed by Prob. Code §§ 10800-10850 [see Prob. Code § 10850(a)]. Under the new code, the personal representative, at the time of the filing of the final account and petition for final distribution, may petition the court for an order fixing and allowing his or her compensation for all services rendered in the estate proceeding, and, at that time, either the personal representative or the personal representative's attorney may petition the court for an order fixing and allowing the attorney's compensation for all services rendered in the estate proceeding [Prob. Code § 10831(a)]. The request may be included in the final account or the petition for final distribution or may be made in a separate petition [Prob. Code § 10831(b)].

In addition, Prob. Code § 11000 (notice of hearing on the account, as enacted by Stats. 1990, ch. 79) does not apply in any administration of estate proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991 [Prob. Code § 900(b)]; rather, in any proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991, former Prob. Code § 11000, as it existed on June 30, 1991, continues to apply [Prob. Code § 900(c)].

[4] Persons Who Must Be Given Notice

In administration of estate proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991, a copy of the notice must be mailed at least 15 days before the time set for the hearing to (1) all persons who have given notice of appearance in the estate proceeding or who have requested special notice pursuant to Prob. Code § 1250, (2) each known heir or devisee whose interest in the estate is affected by the account or petition, and (3) the State of California if any portion of the estate is to escheat to it and its interest is affected by the account or petition [see Prob. Code §§ 1220, 11601(a)-(d); former Prob. Code § 11000(b)(1)-(3)].

In administration of estate proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991, notice of the time and place of the hearing must be given at least 15 days before the hearing to the following persons [Prob. Code §§ 10831(c), 11000(a), 11601; see Prob. Code § 1220(a)(2)]:

- All persons who have requested special notice in the estate proceeding pursuant to Prob. Code §

1250.

- All known heirs and devisees whose interests in the estate would be affected by the account.

- The Attorney General, at the office of the Attorney General in Sacramento, if any portion of the estate is to escheat to the state and its interest in the estate would be affected by the account.

- Each creditor who has filed a claim that is allowed or approved but is unpaid in whole or in part, if the estate is insolvent.

- The California Controller, if property is to be distributed to the state because there is no known beneficiary, or if property is to be distributed to a beneficiary whose whereabouts are unknown.

The court may for good cause dispense with notice to persons entitled to notice under Section 1220 or special notice under Section 1252 [see Prob. Code § 1220(c), 1252(a)].

[5] Contents of Notice

In addition to the matters required by the statutory form of notice [Prob. Code § 1211], when the petition for approval of the account requests compensation or when a final account is filed with a petition for an order for final distribution of the estate, the notice of hearing must so state [Prob. Code § 11000(b), (c)].

For further discussion, see §§ 458D.36, 458D.72.For additional discussion, see Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements .

[6] State Statutes

General notice provisions. Prob. Code §§ 1200-1210

Statutory form of notice. Prob. Code § 1211

Mailing notice in general. Prob. Code §§ 1215-1217

Mode of mailing notice of hearing. Prob. Code § 1220

Requests for special notice. Prob. Code §§ 1250-1252

Proof of giving notice. Prob. Code §§ 1260-1265

Notice when account is rendered for settlement as required to be given in accordance with Prob. Code § 1220. Prob. Code § 11000(a)

Additional persons required to be given notice when account is rendered for settlement. Prob. Code § 11000(a)

Notice of hearing on petition for final distribution required to be given in accordance with Prob. Code § 1220. Prob. Code § 11601(a)

Additional persons required to be given notice of petition for final distribution. Prob. Code § 11601(a)

[7] Local Rules of Court

Department number and date of hearing as required to be placed immediately below case number on first page of document filed. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.10

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.208

§ 458D.208 Supplemental Account of Subsequently Acquired or Discovered Property [Prob. Code § 11642(a)]

[1] FORM Supplemental Account of Subsequently Acquired or Discovered Property [Prob. Code § 11642(a)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

Estate of_____ [name],	)
Deceased.	)	NO. _____
	)	SUPPLEMENTAL ACCOUNT
	)

_____

Since the filing of his/her final account, _____ [name], as _____ [personal representative, e.g., Executor of the will of _____ (name), deceased] of the estate of _____ [name of decedent], deceased, has _____ [received or disbursed or received and disbursed] property belonging in the estate, and pursuant to the order of this court herewith renders his/her supplemental account. The following is a true and correct account of all such _____ [receipts or disbursements or receipts and disbursements], covering the period from _____ [date], to _____ [date], inclusive.

RECEIPTS

Date ..... Item ..... Amount

[List receipts, in order by date from earliest to latest, briefly describing each item received. If there were no receipts, then state "None" in the column headed "Item."]

DISBURSEMENTS

Date ..... Item ..... Amount

[Account for disbursements as for receipts. If there were no disbursements, then state "None" in the column headed "Item."]

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the person making the supplemental account in the above-entitled proceeding. I have read the foregoing account and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters that are therein stated on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.
_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

Personal Representative

[2] Use of Form

The form is a supplemental account that may be used when any property is acquired or discovered after the court has ordered final distribution, the court orders the filing of a supplemental account [see Prob. Code § 11642(a)], and the court in which the proceeding is pending does not provide its own form. Even if the local superior court does not provide its own standard form, its local rules should be checked if counsel is unfamiliar with them to ascertain any requirements that may be imposed on the form or content of the supplemental account.

[3] Distribution of After Acquired or Discovered Property

Any property acquired or discovered after the court order for final distribution is made must be distributed in the following manner [Prob. Code § 11642]:

- If the order disposes of the property, distribution is made in the manner provided in the order. In an appropriate case, the court may require a supplemental account and make further instructions relating to the property.

- If the order does not dispose of the property, distribution is made either (1) in the manner ordered by the court on a petition for instructions; or (2) under Prob. Code § 12252 (administration after discharge), if the personal representative has been discharged.

Under Prob. Code § 12252, if, after the personal representative has been discharged, subsequent administration of an estate is necessary because other property is discovered, or because it becomes necessary or proper for any cause, the court must appoint as personal representative the person entitled to appointment in the same order as is directed in relation to an original appointment, except that the person who served as personal representative at the time of the order of discharge has priority [Prob. Code § 12252(a)]. Notice of hearing of the appointment must be given as provided in Prob. Code § 1220 to the person who served as personal representative at the time of the order of discharge and to other interested persons. If property has been distributed to the State of California, a copy of any petition for subsequent appointment of a personal representative and the notice of hearing must be given as provided in Prob. Code § 1220 to the Controller [Prob. Code § 12252(b)].

[4] Verification

The supplemental account must be verified by the person with the duty to make it [see Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1), (b)(2)].

[5] State Statutes

Authority of court to order account at any time. Prob. Code § 10950(a)

Supplemental account. Prob. Code § 11642

Subsequent administration after discharge of personal representative. Prob. Code § 12252

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.209

§ 458D.209 Contest of Account [Prob. Code § 11001]

[1] FORM Contest of Account [Prob. Code § 11001]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

Estate of_____ [name],	)
Deceased.	)	NO. _____
	)	CONTEST OF ACCOUNT
	)

_____

_____ [Name] is _____ [specify interest in estate, e.g., a devisee under decedent's will] and contests the _____'s [personal representative, e.g., Executor] [final] account covering the period of _____ [date], to _____ [date], and herein filed on _____ [date], as follows:

1. [In separate numbered paragraphs, set out objections to account.]

2. [If the facts warrant the appointment of one or more referees to examine and report on the account, allege those facts, e.g.: As appears from the foregoing, it is not clear from the account what property the personal representative has taken into his/her possession or disposed of, what sums of money he/she has received and disbursed, for what purposes he/she has made disbursements, and in what condition the estate now stands. The account is long and complicated and on its face appears to be incomplete.]

WHEREFORE, contestant prays for an order as follows:

1. That the objections herein alleged be sustained.

2. That the account not be settled and allowed as filed.

3. That the _____ [personal representative, e.g., Executor] be ordered forthwith to render a true, correct and legally sufficient verified account.

4. [That one or more referees, be appointed to examine the account (and all former accounts) and to report thereon, subject to confirmation by the court.]

5. For all other orders that the court deems proper.

_____ [signature]

Contestant

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Contestant

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the contestant in the above-entitled proceeding. Ihave read the foregoing contest and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.
_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

Contestant

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form is included as a guide for the contestant of an account, as a recommended format for the presentation of the contest. Examples of matters contested have not been given because they will depend on the facts of the case and the astuteness of counsel in discovering legal defects or factual discrepancies. For matters that may be contested, see § 458D.209[6]. For the penalty imposed for filing a contest without reasonable cause and in bad faith, see Prob. Code § 11003(a) (discussed in § 458D.45[6]).

[3] Title of Pleading

The former statute governing contests of accounts (former Prob. Code § 927 [repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199, operative July 1, 1989]) in part provided that any person interested in the estate may appear and file written exceptions to the account, and contest the account, including objecting to the value of assets. Under the former statute, it had been held that the contestant's pleading might be entitled either "objections" or "exceptions" to the account [Estate of McMillin (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 121, 128, 292 P.2d 881 (upholding filing of "Objections to Final Account and Petition That Allowance Be Made to Objector")], because the words "objections" and "exceptions" are equivalent terms [Estate of Pardue (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 918, 920, 135 P.2d 394] .

Although it would appear that either word would still be proper under current law to identify the pleading, it should be noted that (Prob. Code §§ 11001-11003) use neither the word "objection" nor "exception" or any variant of those words. On the other hand, the general procedural provisions in the Probate Code (Prob. Code §§ 1000-1050) governing, among other things, papers and pleadings filed with the court (Prob. Code §§ 1020, 1021, 1043) all use the word "objectors" or "objection," and do not use the word "contest," although, for the purposes of those provisions, it would appear that the contest would be treated as objections and the person filing it as an objector [see Prob. Code §§ 1021(a)(2), 1041, 1043(a) (objection to account); cf. Prob. Code § 8906(a) (objection to appraisal)]. Nevertheless, in deference to Prob. Code §§ 11001-11003, the foregoing form is entitled "Contest of Account" [see Prob. Code §§ 11001, 11003] and the person contesting it referred to as the "contestant" [see Prob. Code § 11003; see also Prob. Code § 9254(a) (contest of validity of allowed or approved claim)].

[4] Capacity of Contestant

Under former law, an account could be contested only by a "person interested in the estate" [former Prob. Code § 927 (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199, operative July 1, 1989)]. Prob. Code §§ 11001-11003 impose no such express limitation, although it would appear the limitation would be implied [cf. Prob. Code §§ 1041, 1043(a) (objection by interested person to petition, report, account, or other matter requiring a hearing), 8906(a) (written objection by any interested person to appraisal), 9254(a) (contest by any interested person of validity of allowed or approved claim); see Prob. Code § 48 (defining "interested person") and discussion in § 458D.12]. For further discussion, see § 458D.45[3]

[5] Account

The account contested should be identified, by stating the accounting period it covers and the date it was filed.

[6] Matters Subject to Contest

All matters relating to an account may be contested for cause shown, including, but not limited to [Prob. Code § 11001]:

(1) The validity of an allowed or approved claim not reported in a previous account and not established by judgment [see also Prob. Code § 9254].

(2) The value of property for purposes of distribution.

(3) Actions taken by personal representatives not previously authorized or approved by the court, subject to Prob. Code § 10590 (Independent Administration of Estates Act).

[7] Specification of Matters

Although the form and content of the contest are not specified in Prob. Code § 11001 or 11003, it has been held under the former law authorizing a contest by the filing of "written exceptions" [former Prob. Code § 927 (repealed by Stats. 1988, ch. 1199, operative July 1, 1989)] that the term "written exceptions" was to be given a broad scope, that written exceptions might include exceptions not only to what was affirmatively stated in an account but also to what was omitted, and that they might properly contain a request that the account be surcharged with what was omitted [Estate of McMillin (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 121, 128, 292 P.2d 881] .

It was also held that, as a general rule, in the absence of an independent inquiry undertaken by the court, the issues in a hearing on settlement were limited by the account on the one hand and the written exceptions on the other [see Estate of Fraysher (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 131, 139, 301 P.2d 848] , and that the evidence that might be produced in opposition to settlement and approval was accordingly limited [see Estate of Roberts (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 71, 81, 120 P.2d 933] .

It would appear that these rules would continue to apply.

[8] Appointment of Referees

The court may appoint one or more referees to examine the account and make a report on it, subject to confirmation by the court, and it may allow a reasonable compensation to the referee(s) to be paid out of the estate [Prob. Code § 11002(b)]. The court also has authority under Code Civ. Proc. § 639 to appoint a referee without the consent of the parties when it is necessary for the information of the court in a special proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 639(a)(4)]. A probate proceeding is, of course, a special proceeding and not a civil action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 20-25].

For further discussion, forms, and procedural guides for use in matters referred to a referee, see Ch. 38, Reference .

[9] Prayer

Although the Probate Code does not expressly require that the contest contain a prayer, the normal practice is to include a request for the relief the contestant seeks in lieu of the order settling and allowing the account. The court has the authority to order the filing of an account at any time on the motion or petition of an interested person [Prob. Code § 10950(a)], and the contestant may wish to request that the court make such an order. Serious consequences could follow should the personal representative fail to comply with the order [see Prob. Code §§ 11050-11052 (compelling account)].

If the facts alleged would support the ordering of a reference, the prayer should include a request for the appointment of one or more referees to examine and report on the account [see Prob. Code § 11002(b)].

[10] Verification

An objection to an account must be verified by the objector [see Prob. Code § 1021(a)(2), (b)(3)].

[11] State Statutes

Objection is required to be in writing, signed by all objectors, and filed. Prob. Code § 1020

Objection to account is required to be verified. Prob. Code § 1021(a)(2), (b)(3)

Interested person is authorized to make objection in writing at or before hearing on account. Prob. Code §§ 1041, 1043(a)

Interested person is permitted to appear and make objection orally at hearing. Prob. Code § 1043(b)

Objection to appraisal on petition of personal representative or interested person at any time before hearing on petition for final distribution of estate; procedure. Prob. Code § 8906

Contest by any interested person of validity of allowed or approved claim at any time before settlement of account in which it is first reported as allowed or approved claim; burden of proof. Prob. Code § 9254

Power of court on its own motion or on petition of interested person to order account. Prob. Code § 10950(a)

Contest of account. Prob. Code § 11001

Penalty for contest without reasonable cause and in bad faith or for opposing contest without reasonable cause and in bad faith. Former Prob. Code § 11003 (administration of estate proceeding commenced before July 1, 1991); Prob. Code § 11003 (administration of estate proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1991) (see Prob. Code § 900(b), (c))

Compelling account. Prob. Code §§ 11050-11052

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.210

§ 458D.210 Petition to Inquire Into Circumstances Surrounding Execution of, and Consideration for, Transfer of All or Portion of Distributive Share [Prob. Code § 11604]--By Transferor

[1] FORM Petition to Inquire Into Circumstances Surrounding Execution of, and Consideration for, Transfer of All or Portion of Distributive Share [Prob. Code § 11604]--By Transferor

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

Estate of_____ [name], Deceased.	)))))	NO. _____ PETITION TO INQUIRE INTO CIRCUMSTANCES SURROUNDING AND CONSIDERATION FOR TRANSFER OF INTEREST [Prob. Code § 11604]

_____

_____ [name] respectfully represents:

1. Petitioner _____ [name] is _____ [the or a(n)] _____ [heir or devisee] entitled, in the absence of _____ [specify manner in which interest was transferred, e.g., an assignment], to receive in the distribution of the estate of _____ [name of decedent], deceased, _____ [describe property or share to be received, e.g., the sum of $50,000 as a demonstrative devise or, e.g., an undivided one-third 1/3) interest, as tenant in common, in the real property known as 123 Main Street, Citytown, California or, e.g., one half of the residue].

[EITHER]

2. By an instrument dated _____ [date], and signed by petitioner as _____ [e.g.,

assignor], a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof, petitioner _____ [e.g., assigned] _____ [all or a fraction, e.g., one half (1/2)] of petitioner's _____ [inheritance or devise] to _____ [name]. As consideration for the _____ [e.g., assignment], petitioner received _____ [specify amount of money received or other consideration received], which is grossly unreasonable because _____ [specify why consideration is unreasonable]. At the time of executing the _____ [e.g., assignment], petitioner did not know and had no reason to know that the consideration was grossly unreasonable.

[OR]

2. By an instrument dated _____ [date], and signed by petitioner as _____ [e.g., assignor], a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof, petitioner purportedly _____ [e.g., assigned] _____ [all or a fraction, e.g., one half (1/2)] of petitioner's _____ [inheritance or devise] to _____ [name]. Execution of the purported _____ [e.g., assignment] by petitioner was obtained by _____ [fraud or duress or undue influence] as follows: _____ [specifically describe how petitioner was subjected to fraud, duress, or undue influence].

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays that the court inquire into the circumstances surrounding the execution of, and the consideration for, the [purported] _____ [e.g., assignment] and make an order as follows:

[EITHER, if consideration was grossly unreasonable]

1. That the consideration received by petitioner was grossly unreasonable.

2. That a reasonable consideration is _____ [specify dollar amount or other consideration].

3. That no property should be distributed from the estate pursuant to the _____ [e.g., assignment] except on the following terms, to wit: _____ [specify desired terms].

4. For all other orders the court deems proper.

[OR, if transfer of interest was obtained by duress, fraud, or undue influence]

1. That the purported _____ [e.g., assignment] is not a valid _____ [e.g., assignment].

2. That no property should be distributed from the estate pursuant to the purported _____ [e.g., assignment].

3. For all other orders the court deems proper.

_____ [signature]

Petitioner

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Petitioner

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the petitioner in the above-entitled proceeding. I have read the foregoing petition and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.
_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

Petitioner

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing petition may be used to obtain a hearing by the court to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the execution of, and the consideration for, a transfer, agreement, request, or instructions of a beneficiary or a beneficiary's attorney in fact, by the terms of which distribution of all or a part of the property to be distributed to the beneficiary is to be distributed to any other person [see Prob. Code § 11604].

[3] Petition vs. Motion

Prob. Code § 11604(b) authorizes the inquiry by "the court on its own motion, or on motion of the personal representative or other interested person or of the public administrator." By definition, applications for orders are motions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1003], which, depending on the nature of the order sought, may be made orally or in writing. A petition, other than one used to initiate a special proceeding (such as a petition for probate), is merely a written motion as opposed to an oral motion, is made ex parte, and, depending on the order sought, may be decided without a hearing or after a hearing, notice of which is served after the petition is filed. Procedurally, there is no difference between a written motion and a petition; both are filed and, if a hearing is required, a hearing date is secured at or after the time of filing and a notice of hearing is then served on the other party together with a copy of the petition, and a proof of service of the notice is filed. Noticed motions, on the other hand, are oral motions that historically had to be made at the hearing (this requirement was dispensed with by the 1953 enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 1005.5), and they do differ procedurally from written motions and petitions in that a notice of motion specifies the time and place of the hearing and is served and then filed, normally with a proof of service. For further discussion of written versus oral motions, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

Since the notice of hearing (discussed below) is apparently served after the "motion" is filed and a hearing date obtained, it would appear that the motion referred to in Prob. Code § 11604 is a written motion and not procedurally different from all the other written motions authorized in the Probate Code that are referred to as petitions. Thus, it appears that the Legislature used the word "motion" in Prob. Code § 11604, as opposed to petition, only to make clear that the court could inquire into the matter without any formal application for an order that it do so, rather than to require use by parties of the motion terminology. Because of that and the fact that the Probate Code almost uniformly uses the term "petition" to describe the numerous written motions for orders in probate proceedings, that term is used in the foregoing form. Nevertheless, before using this terminology, local rules and practice should be checked and complied with.

[4] Petitioner

In the foregoing form, the petitioner is an heir or devisee of the decedent; however, the petition may be filed by the personal representative or other "interested person" (defined in Prob. Code § 48) or by the public administrator [Prob. Code § 11604(b)]. With appropriate modifications, the form may be used when the petition is filed by an authorized person other than an heir or devisee.

[5] Notice of Hearing

Notice of the hearing must be served on the beneficiary (if not the petitioner) and on the persons described in Prob. Code § 11604(a) (discussed in [2], above) at least 15 days before the hearing in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10 (personal service) or 415.30 (service by mail) [Prob. Code § 11604(d)]. For a form of notice of hearing that may be modified for use in this situation, see § 458D.207 and Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements . If a form of notice is provided by the court in which the proceeding is pending, that form must be used if so required by the court.

[6] Scope of Inquiry

The court may inquire into the circumstances surrounding the execution of, and the consideration for, the transfer, agreement, request, or instructions, and the amount of any fees, charges, or consideration paid or agreed to be paid by the beneficiary [Prob. Code § 11604(b)].

An assignment is the most commonly used means of transferring the interest in question. It has been pointed out that the assignee is in many cases an "heir hunter," and that former Prob. Code § 1020.1, the predecessor to Prob. Code § 11604, was enacted to curb abuses by such persons [see Estate of Lund (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 151, 153, 150 P.2d 211 (analyzing former Prob. Code § 1020.1, finding it "anomalous")].

[7] Court Order

If the court finds that either (1) the fees, charges, or consideration paid or agreed to be paid by a beneficiary are grossly unreasonable; or (2) the transfer, agreement, request, or instructions were obtained by duress, fraud, or undue influence, it may refuse to order distribution, or may order distribution on any terms it deems just and equitable [Prob. Code § 11604(c)]. For example, the appellate court let stand a $122,000 assignment to an heir hunter. The distribution was not grossly unreasonable even though the probate court had authorized a $5,000 fee to an heir hunter employed by the estate, because heir hunter who actually located heir spent approximately 150 hours searching data bases and interviewing leads and had spent two days searching for the heir. Further, theheir's assignment of her interest in estate was not obtained by duress, fraud or undue influence where the heir hunter gave heir time to consider the matter and gave her his cell phone number [Estate of Wright (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 228, 239, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 572] .

If the execution of the assignment was obtained by fraud, duress, or undue influence, there is no assignment at all, as there is no consent [see Civ. Code § 1567]; in such case, it would appear that the appropriate relief is distribution to the beneficiary without reference to the purported assignment. However, if the consideration is grossly unreasonable, the relief would be distribution according to reasonable terms that the court reads into the assignment [see Prob. Code § 11604(c); Burchell v. Strube (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 828, 836, 279 P.2d 1] .

[8] Verification

The petition must be verified by the petitioner or by any of them if there are two or more [see Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1), (b)(1)] or by the petitioner's attorney if the petitioner is absent from the county or for some other cause is unable to verify it [Prob. Code § 1023].

Like the petition, a written motion would also have to set forth the evidentiary facts within the signatory's personal knowledge that would support the order sought and would therefore have to be supported by oath, that is, by affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003, 2009; Evid. Code §§ 702, 710] or by declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5].

[9] State Statutes

"Beneficiary" defined. Prob. Code § 24

"Fiduciary" defined. Prob. Code § 39

Petition as required to be signed by all petitioners or, if petitioner is absent from county or for some other cause is unable to sign it, by petitioner's attorney, provided petitioner is not a fiduciary appointed in the proceeding. Prob. Code §§ 1020, 1023

Petition as required to be verified by petitioner or any one of two or more petitioners or, if petitioner is absent from county or for some other cause is unable to verify it, by petitioner's attorney, provided petitioner is not a fiduciary appointed in the proceeding. Prob. Code § 1021(a)(1), (b)(1), 1023

Inquiry by court into consideration for or validity of assignment of interest by beneficiary. Prob. Code § 11604

[10] Local Rules of Court

Petitions required to be set for hearing as required to have self-addressed, stamped envelope attached. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.31(a) (or attach fax cover sheet; see Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.31(b))

[11] Decisions

Valuation date in assessing consideration paid for assignment of real property under former Prob. Code § 1020.1 (repealed; now see Prob. Code § 11604) as date of assignment. Estate of Boyd (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 125, 136, 159 Cal. Rptr. 298

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.211

§ 458D.211 Order Settling Final Account [Prob. Code § 7250(a)], Directing Final Distribution [Prob. Code §§ 11605, 11640], and Allowing Compensation for Extraordinary Services [Former Prob. Code §§ 902, 910 (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced Before July 1, 1991)] or Fixing and Allowing Compensation [Prob. Code §§ 10800, 10810 (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced on or After July 1, 1991)]

[1] FORM Order Settling Final Account [Prob. Code § 7250(a)], Directing Final Distribution [Prob. Code §§ 11605, 11640], and Allowing Compensation for Extraordinary Services [Former Prob. Code §§ 902, 910 (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced Before July 1, 1991)] or Fixing and Allowing Compensation [Prob. Code §§ 10800, 10810 (Administration of Estate Proceeding Commenced on or After July 1, 1991)]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
Estate of_____ [name],	)	ORDER SETTLING FINAL ACCOUNT, DIRECT-Deceased.	)	ING FINAL DISTRIBUTION,
	)	AND _____
	)	[ALLOWING COMPENSATION FOR EX-)	TRAORDINARY SERVICES or FIXING
		AND ALLOWING COMPENSATION]

_____

The final account and petition for final distribution [and (petition) for allowance of compensation for extraordinary services] of _____ [name of personal representative] came on regularly for settlement of the account and hearing of the petition(s) by the court on this date. Petitioner appeared by _____ [name], counsel. [_____ (Name) appeared _____ (without counsel or by _____ (name), counsel,) _____ (to contest the account and/or, if the administration of estate proceeding was commenced before July 1, 1991, to object to the application for compensation for extraordinary services and/or, if the administration proceeding was commenced on or after July 1, 1991, to object to the fixing and allowing of compensation as requested).]

On evidence given to the satisfaction of the court, the court makes the following findings:

1. Notice of the time and place of the hearing was given as required by _____ [if the administration of estate proceeding was commenced before July 1, 1991, Probate Code Sections 1220, 11000 (as it existed on June 30, 1991), and 11601 or, if the administration proceeding was commenced on or after July 1, 1991, Probate Code Sections 1200, 10831(c), 11000(a), 11601]. [Special notice was _____ (given to _____ (name(s)), as requested and required by Probate Code Section 1252(a) or requested and waived by _____ (names(s)).]

2. The account and report cover the period from _____ [date] to _____ [date], inclusive. [Former accounts have covered the period from _____, to _____ (dates). The account and report are full, verified, true, and correct.]

[3. Other findings regarding account that may be required by local court rule.]

4. Notice to creditors has been given as required by Probate Code Sections 8120 and 9050-9054.

5. More than four months have elapsed since the date letters were first issued to the personal representative, and more than 30 days have elapsed since the date notice of administration was given to creditors pursuant to Probate Code Section 9051 _____ [(b) and/or (c)].

6. All claims filed against the estate have been allowed, approved, and paid [except the claims of the following creditors, which have been rejected: _____ (names of creditors whose claims were rejected)][, and except for the claims set forth in Paragraph 8, which are either contingent or not yet due].

[7. If any claim was rejected: With respect to the claims that were rejected, notice of rejection has been duly given as required by Probate Code Section 9250. As to each rejected claim that was due at the time the notice of rejection was given, at least three months have elapsed since notice of rejection was given.]

[8. If any claim was contingent or premature: The claim of _____ (name of creditor) is in the amount of $_____ and is _____ (contingent on _____ [describe contingency] or the subject of litigation or not currently due in full). Payment of this debt on becoming _____ (absolute or established or due) after final distribution has been provided for by _____ (describe manner in which claim is being provided for under Prob. Code § 11460 et seq., e.g., each of the distributees signing acknowledged agreements assuming liability pursuant to Probate Code Section 11464). (Repeat for each creditor whose claim has been provided for in the same fashion).]

9. _____ [The federal estate tax payable by the estate has been paid or The federal estate tax payable by the estate has not been entirely paid, but evidence of a written agreement between the Internal Revenue Service and _____ (name) for the payment of the tax remaining due has been filed as permitted by law or No federal estate tax is due.]

[10. If the federal estate tax has been paid: The amount of federal estate tax paid is $_____, and that sum should be prorated as follows among the following persons, as required by law:]

Beneficiary	Proration

[List persons interested in the estate or benefited by the payment of the estate tax, who should bear prorated shares of the tax pursuant to former Prob. Code § 970 (if decedent died before January 1, 1987), or Prob. Code § 20110 (if decedent died on or after January 1, 1987), and calculate the proration that each should bear .]

11. _____ [All personal property taxes due and payable in the estate have been paid or No personal property taxes are due in the estate].

[12. Include, if appropriate: The fair market value of the assets in the estate at the time of decedent's death exceeded $1,000,000, and assets having a value of $250,000 or more are distributable to one or more nonresident beneficiaries. The certificate of the Franchise Tax Board prescribed by Revenue and Taxation Code Section 19513 has been filed.]

13. The estate is in a condition to be closed. All debts and all expenses of administration except closing expenses and statutory compensation to the personal representative and his/her attorney have been paid. The sum reasonably necessary to pay closing expenses is $_____, being the sum of the following: _____ [specify closing expenses, giving the amount of each].

[14. Other specific findings according to allegations in petition or as required by local court rule.]

15. The personal representative is entitled to a total statutory _____ [commission or compensation] for ordinary services of $_____. [The personal representative has already received a partial allowance of the statutory _____ (commission or compensation), in the amount of $_____.] _____ [The personal representative should be allowed $_____ in payment of the (unpaid balance due on the) statutory _____ (commission or compensation) to which he/she is entitled or The personal representative has waived his/her right to receive an allowance for the statutory _____ (commission or compensation) to which he/she is entitled (other than such allowance as he/she has already received).]

16. _____ [Name], as attorney for the personal representative, is entitled to a total statutory _____ [fee or compensation] for ordinary services of $_____. [He/She has already received a partial allowance of the statutory _____ (fee or compensation), in the amount of $_____.] He/She should be allowed $_____ in payment of the [unpaid balance due on the] statutory _____ [fee or compensation] to which he/she is entitled.

[17. If personal representative entitled to compensation for extraordinary services: The personal representative has performed extraordinary services for the benefit of the estate and should be allowed an additional compensation of $_____for such extraordinary services.]

[18. If attorney for personal representative entitled to compensation for extraordinary services: _____ (Name), as attorney for the personal representative, has performed extraordinary services for the benefit of the estate and should be allowed an additional compensation of $_____ for such extraordinary services.]

19. The property in the estate should be distributed as hereinafter ordered.

20. All allegations of the petition not specifically included in the foregoing findings are true.

IT IS ORDERED that:

1. The report of _____ [name], as personal representative of the estate of _____ [name of decedent], deceased, is approved and all acts and transactions of the personal representative relating to the matters in the report are ratified and confirmed, and the final account covering the period from _____ [date], to _____ [date], inclusive, is settled and allowed as filed.

[If personal representative has not waived statutory commission:]

2. _____ [Name], as personal representative of the estate, is allowed $_____ as the statutory _____ [commission or compensation] for ordinary services, and he/she is authorized to withdraw that sum from the funds of the estate and to pay it to himself/herself.

3. _____ [Name], as attorney for the personal representative of the estate, is allowed $_____ as the statutory _____ [fee or compensation] for ordinary services, and _____ [name], as the personal representative, is ordered to withdraw that sum from the funds of the estate and to pay it to _____ [name of attorney].

[If compensation for extraordinary services is allowed to personal representative:]

4. _____ [Name], as personal representative of the estate, is allowed additionally $_____ as compensation for extraordinary services, and he/she is authorized to withdraw that sum from the funds of the estate and to pay it to himself/herself.

[If compensation for extraordinary services allowed to attorney for personal representative:]

5. _____ [Name], as attorney for the personal representative of theestate, is allowed additionally $_____ as compensation for extraordinary services, and _____ [name], as the personal representative, is ordered to withdraw that sum from the funds of the estate and to pay it to _____ [name of attorney].

6. The personal representative is authorized to withhold $_____ for the purpose of paying closing expenses. Any portion of that sum not so used shall be distributed to _____ [name].

[If personal representative remains obligated by agreement with Internal Revenue Service to pay estate tax:]

7. Before distributing any property to the following distributees, the personal representative shall deduct from each share the following amounts, or shall require and receive from each distributee an equivalent sum of money, which the personal representative shall hold for the payment of the estate tax according to the agreement therefor between the personal representative and Internal Revenue Service:

Distributee	Amount

[Names of distributees and proportionate amounts to be withheld for estate tax.]

[If order is to be made to provide for contingent, disputed, and/or not yet due claim:]

8. _____ [Set out order regarding provision for debt, e.g., The agreement of all interested persons to provide for the _____ (contingent or disputed or not due) debt of _____ (name of creditor) is approved (and _____ (specify actions that parties must take to perform agreement)]. [Add, if order is for deposit of property under Probate Code § 11463 or for payment to trustee under Probate Code § 11465: Any balance of funds remaining after the claim becomes _____ (absolute or established or due) shall be distributed to _____ (name or specify names and distributive shares).]

[OR, if order to provide for contingent or disputed debt, or debt not yet due by deposit in financial institution under Probate Code § 11463 or payment to trustee under Probate Code § 11465 was made on a separate petition:]

8. With respect to all funds that _____ [have been or are to be] _____ [deposited in _____ (name of financial institution) and/or paid to _____ (name) as trustee] to provide for payment of the contingent or disputed debts of the estate or debts of the estate not presently due, the balance thereof remaining after all such claims have been paid, defeated, or rendered unenforceable, shall be distributed to _____ [name or specify names and distributive shares].

[If whereabouts of a distributee is unknown:]

9. _____ [Name], was a beneficiary of the decedent, namely, _____ [a devisee under the decedent's will or, if decedent died intestate, an heir of the decedent who died intestate], but his/her/its whereabouts is unknown. The property to be distributed to the above-named primary beneficiary is as follows: _____.

The following are the alternate distributees, namely, the persons who would be entitled to the property _____ [under the decedent's will or, if decedent died intestate, under the laws of intestate succession, or, in the case of a devise for a charitable purpose, under the doctrine of cy pres], and the share to which each is entitled:

Name and Relationship	Age	Address	Share to Which Entitled
_____	_____	_____	_____
_____	_____	_____	_____
_____	_____	_____	_____

If the above-named primary beneficiary whose whereabouts is unknown does not claim the share to which he/she/it is entitled within five years after the date of this order is deemed to have predeceased the decedent for the purpose of this order, and the above-named alternate distributees are entitled to the share as provided above.

[10. Other specific provisions according to requests in prayer in petition or as required by local court rule.]

11. [Subject to the provisions set out above respecting withholdings by the personal representative on account of tax liabilities not yet satisfied, and subject also to the provision set out above regarding the unknown whereabouts of a beneficiary,] [T]he personal representative shall distribute the following described property in the estate to the following named persons:

[Set out plan of distribution as alleged in petition. See § 458D.190, Paragraph 37.]

Property	Name, Age [, Relationship]
_____	_____
_____	_____

All other property of decedent not distributed hereinabove, whether described herein or not, is distributed to _____ [name or names] _____ [ifmore than one person, indicate apportionment and how title will be held, e.g., in equal shares, as tenants in common].
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

This order is for use to settle the final account and to order final distribution and payment of compensation, in counties in which the order is not prepared by the court clerk. Local court rules should be checked to determine whether counsel must prepare the order and, if so, any requirements as to its contents. If any property is to be distributed to a trustee, the order should include the provision set out in see § 458D.214.

[3] Findings

[a] In General

Except as otherwise provided by law, the court need not adopt formal findings on settling the accounts of personal representatives [see Estate of Bell (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 333, 339, 136 P.2d 804] .

[b] Notice Duly Given

If it appears to the court's satisfaction that notice has been regularly given or that the party entitled to notice has waived it, the court must so find in its order [Prob. Code § 1260(b)], and, when the order becomes final, the finding is conclusive on all persons [Prob. Code § 1260(c)]. If the order finds that notice was given as required by law, the appellate court will assume, in the absence of contrary evidence in the record, that notice was duly proved and that the finding is correct [Estate of Bell (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 333, 338, 136 P.2d 804] .

[c] Creditor's Claims

A finding that the time has expired for bringing an action on a rejected claim, or for referring the matter to a referee or to arbitration, should be made [see Prob. Code § 9253; see also Prob. Code § 11429 (except to extent provided in Prob. Code § 9392, unpaid creditor has no right to contribution from other creditors or distributees after accounts settled)].

[4] Allowance of Compensation for Extraordinary Services

The allowance of compensation for extraordinary services should be in the form of a stated dollar amount allowed. A description of the amount allowed as a percentage of the estate makes the allowance void [see Estate of Rowe (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 594, 603-606, 152 P.2d 765 , disapproved on another point in Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. McConnell (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 715, 726, 285 P.2d 636] .

[5] Ademptions and Advancements

On a petition for final distribution, the court must resolve in its order all questions arising under Prob. Code § 21135 (ademption by satisfaction) or 6409 (advancements) [Prob. Code § 11640(b)].

[6] Names of Distributees and Shares; Conditions

The order for distribution must (1) name the distributees and the share to which each is entitled; and (2) provide that property distributed subject to a limitation or condition, including, but not limited to, an option granted under Prob. Code §§ 9960-9966 (option to purchase, discussed in Ch. 456, Probate: Management of Estate Assets), is distributed to the distributees subject to the terms of the limitation or condition [Prob. Code § 11603(b)].

[7] Whereabouts of Distributee Unknown

If the whereabouts of a distributee named in the order is unknown, the order must provide for alternate distributees and the share to which each is entitled [Prob. Code § 11603(c)]. The alternate distributees are the persons, to the extent known or reasonably ascertainable, who would be entitled under the decedent's will or under the laws of intestate succession if the distributee named in the order had predeceased the decedent, or in the case of a devise for a charitable purpose, under the cy pres doctrine. A distributee named in the order who does not claim the share to which he or she is entitled within five years after the date of the order is deemed to have predeceased the decedent for the purpose of the order, and the alternate distributees are entitled to the share as provided in the order [Prob. Code § 11603(c)].

[8] Distribution of Unknown Property

The order may properly distribute all other property of the decedent, whether described in the order or not, as a means of distributing unknown property [see Howe v. Brock (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 271, 275, 194 P.2d 762 (distribution of "all other property belonging to said estate whether described herein or not" held to vest decedent's title in distributees)]. In the case of a will, the distributees would be the residuary devisees, since unknown property would form part of the residue of the estate. In some cases, the provision might need to be expanded to delineate the rights of different distributees to real or personal, community, or separate property. Inclusion of such a general provision is a safeguard against incomplete distribution of the estate [see Estate of Heigho (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 360, 368, 9 Cal. Rptr. 196 (explaining purpose and effect of omnibus clause in judgment)].

[9] State Statutes

[a] Allowances

Personal representative is to be allowed all necessary expenses in administration of estate, including, but not limited to, necessary expenses in care, management, preservation, and settlement of estate. Prob. Code § 11004

[b] Appeal

Order or refusal of order settling account. Prob. Code § 7240(j)

Order or refusal of order directing or allowing payment of devise or attorney's fee or personal representative's compensation. Prob. Code § 7240(l)

Order or refusal of order determining heirship or persons to whom distribution should be made. Prob. Code § 7240(m)

Order or refusal of order distributing property. Prob. Code § 7240(n)

[c] Compensation

Compensation for extraordinary services. Prob. Code §§ 10801, 10811 (administration of estate proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991); former Prob. Code § 902 (administration of estate proceedings commenced before July 1, 1991); see Prob. Code § 10850

[d] Distribution of Estate

When order settling final account and for final distribution is entered, personal representative is permitted to immediately distribute property in estate to persons entitled to distribution without further notice or proceedings. Prob. Code § 11641

[e] Effect of Finality of Order

Extent to which order settling account releases personal representative and sureties from liability. Prob. Code § 7250

Order for distribution, on becoming final, is binding and conclusive as to rights of all interested persons. Prob. Code § 11605

[f] Findings

Finding of giving or waiver of notice is required, and conclusive when order becomes final. Prob. Code § 1260(b), (c).

[g] Judgment

Mailing and filing of notice of entry of judgment. Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5

[h] Judgment Roll

Papers constituting judgment roll. Prob. Code § 1050

[10] Orders

[a] In General

Except as otherwise provided in Probate Code, order made in proceeding under Probate Code is not required to recite existence of facts, or performance of acts, on which jurisdiction depends, but is required to contain only matters ordered. Prob. Code § 1047

Entry of orders. Prob. Code § 1048

Enforcement of orders. Prob. Code § 1049

[b] For Distribution

Distribution of property subject to limitation or condition, including, but not limited, to option. Prob. Code §§ 9960-9966, 11603(b)(2)

Contents of order for distribution. Prob. Code § 11603

If whereabouts of distributee named in order is unknown, order must provide for alternate distributees and share to which each is entitled. Prob. Code § 11603(c)

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.212

§ 458D.212 Provision in Order--Distribution of Minor's Property Less Than $5,000 in Value to Custodial Parent [Prob. Code §§ 3400-3402]

[1] FORM Provision in Order--Distribution of Minor's Property Less Than $5,000 in Value to Custodial Parent [Prob. Code §§ 3400-3402]

[Add to findings]

_____ [Number of finding]. _____ [Name] is a minor who has no guardianship of his/her estate and who is entitled to distribution from this estate of _____ [the sum of $_____ (not exceeding $5,000) and/or property, the (total) value of which does not exceed $5,000]. _____ [Name] is the _____ [father or mother] and the/a parent entitled to the custody of the minor and has filed with this court a written assurance verified under oath that the total value of this minor's estate, including the distributive share from this estate, does not exceed $5,000 in value [deducting the custodial property held pursuant to the California Uniform Transfers to Minors Act and any money or property subject to court order pursuant to Section 3602(c) of the Probate Code].

[Add to order]

_____ [Paragraph number]. The _____ [money and/or property] of _____ [name], a minor, is to be _____ [paid and/or delivered] to _____ [name], minor's parent, to be held in trust for the minor until his/her majority; written receipt from minor's parent shall be an acquittance of the personal representative for the _____ [money paid and/or property delivered].

[2] Use of Form

These provisions are for inclusion in the order of final distribution [see § 458D.211] when money or property of a minor distributee is to be paid or delivered to the minor's custodial parent to hold in trust for the minor until his or her majority [see Prob. Code §§ 3400-3402]. This provision includes the finding that the minor has no guardianship of his or her estate, that a written assurance verified under oath has been filed by a parent of the minor entitled to custody that the total estate of the minor, including the value of the distributive interest, does not exceed $5,000 in value, and that the value of the money or property to be distributed does not exceed $5,000. Each of these facts is a prerequisite for distribution pursuant to Prob. Code §§ 3400-3402 [see Prob. Code § 3401; for a form of written assurance, see § 458D.204].

[3] Cross References

For a related form, see § 458D.204.

For forms of petition for guardianship of the estate of a minor, see Ch. 280, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Appointment of Guardians

[4] State Statutes

Distribution to parent of money or property of minor that does not exceed $5,000. Prob. Code §§ 3400-3402

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.213

§ 458D.213 Provision in Order--Money Distributable to Minor to Be Deposited in Blocked Account Until Majority [Prob. Code § 3413(a)]

[1] FORM Provision in Order--Money Distributable to Minor to Be Deposited in Blocked Account Until Majority [Prob. Code § 3413(a)]

[Add to findings]

_____ [Number of finding]. _____ [Name] is a minor and is entitled to distribution from this estate of the sum of $_____. _____ [Name], who is the _____ [_____ (father or mother) and the/a parent entitled to custody of the minor or personal representative of this estate] filed in _____ [this court or the Superior Court of California, County of _____,] a verified petition entitled In the Matter of _____ [name], a minor, No. _____, requesting the court to order that the sum to be distributed to the minor be _____ [specify, e.g., deposited in an insured account in a financial institution in California or specify type of account and name, branch, and address of financial institution in California], subject to withdrawal only on the authorization of the court. The petition was granted, and by order dated _____ [, a certified copy of which is on file herein], the court so ordered.

[Add to order]

_____ [Paragraph number]. Pursuant to the order of _____ [this court or the Superior Court of California, County of _____, a certified copy of which is on file herein], in In the Matter of _____ [name], a minor, No. _____, the personal representative _____ [specify, e.g., deposit in an insured account in a financial institution in California or specify type of account and name, branch, and address of financial institution in California] the sum of $_____, which shall be subject to withdrawal only on the authorization of _____ [this court or the Superior Court of California, County of _____]. A receipt from an authorized officer of that institution for the specified sum shall be an acquittance of the personal representative of the money so _____ [specify, e.g., deposited].

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing provisions are for use in the order of final distribution [see § 458D.211] when money only is distributable to a minor and the superior court of the county in which the minor resides has ordered that the money be deposited or invested as provided in Prob. Code § 3413(a). The provision to be included in the findings has alternatives. If the minor resides in a county other than that county in which the estate is being administered, disposition of the minor's money is under the jurisdiction of the superior court of that county. If the minor resides in the same county of administration, then the superior court having jurisdiction over the estate also has jurisdiction over the disposition of the minor's money [see Prob. Code §§ 3410-3413; for a form of petition, see § 458D.205].

[3] Cross References

For related forms, see §§ 458D.205, 458D.206.

For forms of petition for guardianship of the estate of a minor, see Ch. 280, Guardianship and Conservatorship: Appointment of Guardians

[4] State Statutes

Deposit of money belonging to minor in blocked account by order of superior court of county in which minor resides on verified petition of parent or personal representative. Prob. Code §§ 3410, 3411, 3413(a)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.214

§ 458D.214 Provision in Order--Distribution to Trustee

[1] FORM Provision in Order--Distribution to Trustee

_____ [Paragraph number]. The court has determined that there has been a valid trust created by the will, under which the certain property is to be distributed to _____ [name], as trustee, to be held, administered, and distributed by the trustee, and by any successor trustee or trustees, on the following terms and conditions of trust:

[Trust provisions are to be set forth in the present tense and the third person, and not quoted verbatim. The decree should also give effect to the condition that existed at the time of death. The following provisions are set forth to illustrate how such changes in wording are made. It is illustrative only.]

A. PAYMENT AND DISTRIBUTION OF INCOME AND PRINCIPAL

1. The entire trust estate shall be administered as one trust until ("my" deleted) decedent's youngest child then living reaches the age of (24) years. Until that time the Trustee shall apply the net income and principal of the trust estate as follows:

(a) The Trustee shall pay to or apply for the benefit of each of ("my" deleted) decedent's then living children who are under the age of (24) years, in monthly or in other convenient installments but in no event less often than annually, so much of the net income and so much of the principal of the trust estate, up to the whole thereof, as the Trustee in his/her discretion deems necessary for the proper care, support, and education of each of them. No child who has attained the age of (24) years shall receive any of these payments from the trust estate.

(b) The Trustee may pay more to or apply more for some beneficiaries than others and may omit some beneficiaries entirely.

(c) The Trustee, in exercising his/her discretionary authority with respect to the payment of income or principal of the trust estate to any beneficiary, shall take into consideration any income or other resources available to such beneficiary from sources outside of this trust that may be known to the Trustee. The Trustee may accept as final and conclusive the written statement of the beneficiary receiving payment as to other available income or resources. The determination of the Trustee with respect to the necessity of making payments out of income or principal to any beneficiary shall be conclusive on all persons howsoever interested in the trust.

(d) The Trustee shall accumulate and add to principal any net income of the trust not paid out in accordance with the discretion hereinabove conferred on the Trustee.

2. When ("my" deleted) decedent's youngest child then living reaches the age of (24) years, the trust shall terminate and the Trustee shall immediately distribute the balance of the trust estate in equal shares to ("my" deleted) decedent's children then living. However, if any child of ("my" deleted) decedent not then living leaves issue then surviving, an equal share of the trust estate shall be distributed to the then surviving issue of each such child on the principle of representation.

3. Definitions:

(a) The term "children," as used ("in this Will" deleted) herein, includes adopted children and any who may hereafter be born.

(b) The term "issue," as used ("in this Will" deleted) herein, means lawful issue and includes legally adopted children.

(c) The term "education," as used ("in this Will" deleted) herein, includes both college and postgraduate study at any accredited institution of the beneficiary's choice for any period of time that, in the judgment of the Trustee, is advantageous to the beneficiary concerned; the Trustee shall provide adequate amounts for all related living and travel expenses of the beneficiary within reasonable limits.

4. No beneficiary or remainderman of this trust shall have any right to alienate, encumber, or hypothecate his or her interest in the principal or income of the trust in any manner, nor shall any interest of any beneficiary or remainderman be subject to claims of his or her creditors or liable to attachment, execution, or other process of law.

B. GENERAL ADMINISTRATIVE POWERS OF TRUSTEE

In order to carry out the purposes of ("any" deleted) the trust, ("established by this Will," deleted) the Trustee, in addition to all other powers granted ("by this Will" deleted) herein or by law, shall have the following powers over the trust estate, subject to any limitations specified elsewhere ("in this Will" deleted) herein.

Retention of Assets

1. To retain any property received by the trust estate for as long as the Trustee considers advisable.

Investments

2. To invest and reinvest in every kind of property and investment that men and women of prudence, discretion, and intelligence acquire for their own accounts.

Management

3. To manage, control, repair, and improve all trust property.

Sales

4. To sell, for cash or on terms, and to exchange any trust property.

Adjustment of Claims

5. To adjust or compromise any claims for or against the trust.

Leasing and Mineral Rights

6. To lease any property for terms within or beyond the duration of the trust for any purpose, including the exploration and removal of oil, gas, and other minerals, and to enter into community leases and pooling and unitization agreements.

Borrowing

7. To borrow money and to encumber or hypothecate any trust property.

Division and Distribution

8. On any division or distribution of the trust estate, in the discretion of the Trustee to divide and distribute property of the trust estate in cash or in kind, including undivided interests, or partly in cash and partly in kind, including undivided interests.

C. OPERATIONAL PROVISIONS

1. The Trustee shall determine what is income and what is principal of each trust ("established under this Will," deleted) and what expenses, costs, taxes, and charges of all kinds shall be charged against income and what shall be charged against principal in accordance with the applicable statutes of the State of California from time to time existing.

2. If _____ [name of original trustee] is unable or unwilling to act or to continue to act as the Trustee, then ("I appoint" deleted) _____ [name], _____ [address], shall be eligible for appointment as the Trustee with the same powers, rights, discretions, obligations, and immunities. If the aforesaid _____ [name of original trustee] and _____ [name of alternate] are each unable or unwilling to act as the Trustee, then ("I appoint" deleted) _____ [name], _____ [address], shall be eligible for appointment as the Trustee with the same powers, rights, discretions, obligations, and immunities.

3. The Trustee shall receive a reasonable compensation for his/her services as determined by ("the" deleted) this court.

4. No Trustee ("appointed in this Will" deleted) named herein shall at any time be held liable for any action or default of _____ [himself or herself or him or herself] or of any other person in connection with the administration of the trust estate, unless caused by _____ [his or her or his or her] own gross negligence or by a willful commission by _____ [him or her or him or her] of an act in breach of the trust.

On distribution of a testamentary trust, the court is required to do all of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.650(a)]:

- Determine whether or not a valid trust has been created by the will.
- Determine the terms of the trust.
- Order distribution of the trust property to the trustee.

The order for distribution is required to incorporate the terms of the trust, to give effect to the conditions existing at the time distribution is ordered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.650(b)]. The pertinent provisions are to be stated in the present tense and in the third person, instead of quoting the will verbatim [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 7.650(b)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of order, above, is used for distribution to a trustee. For discussion, see § 458D.81.

[3] Distribution to Trustee as Validation of Trust

When a decedent's estate is distributed to trustees under a will, the judgment of distribution is an adjudication of the validity of the trust [Estate of White (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 749, 755, 160 P.2d 204] .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458D PROBATE: ACCOUNTS, FINAL DISTRIBUTION, AND COMPENSATION
PART V. FORMS

39-458D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458D.215

§ 458D.215 Waiver of Account [Prob. Code § 10954]

[1] FORM Waiver of Account [Prob. Code § 10954]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
Estate of_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Deceased.	)	WAIVER OF ACCOUNT
	)	[Prob. Code § 10954]
	)

_____

Contemplating and expecting that the estate of _____ [name of decedent], deceased, will be distributed as requested in the petition for final distribution filed _____ [herewith or on _____ (date),] by _____ [name], as personal representative of the estate, and solely in the event that it will be so distributed, _____ [I or we], _____ [name or names], being _____ [the sole distributee of or all of the persons entitled to distribution of] the estate, do hereby waive an account by the personal representative. All the beneficiaries of the estate are ascertained. _____ [I or We] reserve the right to rescind this waiver and require an account instead, if the estate is not distributed to the persons and in the manner requested in the petition for final distribution referred to hereinabove.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

[_____ (signature)]

[_____ (signature)]

[etc.]

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form is for use by a competent adult distributee of an estate to waive an account by the personal representative [see Prob. Code § 10954(a)(1), (b)(1)]. With appropriate modifications, it may be used when the person entitled to distribution is a minor, conservatee, trustee, or an estate, or when the person entitled to distribution is incapacitated, unborn, unascertained, or a person whose identity or address is unknown, or is a designated class of persons who are not ascertained or are not in being, and a guardian ad litem has been appointed [see discussion in § 458D.215[4]].

[3] When Account Is Not Required

The personal representative is not required to file an account if (1) each person entitled to distribution from the estate has executed and filed a written waiver of account or a written acknowledgment that the person's interest has been satisfied, or (2) adequate provision has been made for satisfaction in full of the interest of each person entitled to distribution from the estate, but this does not apply to a residuary devisee or a devisee whose interest in the estate is subject to abatement, payment of expenses, or accrual of interest or income [Prob. Code § 10954(a)].

For the Report of Administration that must be filed, even if an account is waived, and for when an account may be required on petition of a creditor, see Prob. Code § 10954(c) (discussed in § 458D.50[2], [3]).

[4] Execution of Waiver or Acknowledgment

A waiver or acknowledgment under Prob. Code § 10954(a), above, must be executed as follows [Prob. Code § 10954(b)]:

(1) If the person entitled to distribution is an adult and competent, by that person.

(2) If the person entitled to distribution is a minor, by a person authorized to receive money or property belonging to the minor. If the waiver or acknowledgment is executed by a guardian of the minor's estate, it may be executed without the need to obtain approval of the court in which the guardianship proceeding is pending.

(3) If the person entitled to distribution is a conservatee, by the conservator of the estate of the conservatee, and it may be executed without the need to obtain approval of the court in which the conservatorship proceeding is pending.

(4) If the person entitled to distribution is a trust, by the trustee, but only if the named trustee's written acceptance of the trust is filed with the court. In the case of a trust that is subject to the continuing jurisdiction of the court pursuant to Prob. Code §§ 17300-17354, the waiver or acknowledgment may be executed without the need to obtain approval of the court.

(5) If the person entitled to distribution is an estate, by the personal representative of the estate, and it may be executed without the need to obtain approval of the court in which the estate is being administered.

(6) If the person entitled to distribution is incapacitated, unborn, unascertained, or is a person whose identity or address is unknown, or is a designated class of persons who are not ascertained or are not in being, and there is a guardian ad litem appointed to represent the person entitled to distribution, by the guardian ad litem.

(7) If the person entitled to distribution has designated an attorney in fact who has the power under the power of attorney to execute the waiver oracknowledgment, by either the person entitled to distribution if an adult and competent or the attorney in fact [Prob. Code § 10954(b)(7)]. This provision applies, however, only in administration of estate proceedings commenced on or after July 1, 1991 [Prob. Code § 900(b), (c)].

[5] Conditional Waiver

It is proper to condition the waiver of an account on the court's ordering distribution as requested in a petition for final distribution, reserving the right to have an account in the event that the court does not distribute the estate in the manner contemplated [Estate of Simmons (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 217, 223, 49 Cal. Rptr. 369, 411 P.2d 97 (decided prior to the enactment of Prob. Code § 933)].

[6] State Statutes

Waiver of account and exceptions. Prob. Code § 10954

[7] Decisions

Waiver of account by sole distributee or all interested persons. Estate of Moore (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 945, 951, 61 Cal. Rptr. 722 ; Middlecoff v. Superior Court (1906) 149 Cal. 94, 97, 84 P. 764 (decided prior to enactment of Prob. Code § 933, the predecessor to Prob. Code § 10954)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 458E.syn

§ 458E.syn Synopsis to Chapter 458E: PROBATE: DISCHARGE

§ 458E.01 Scope of Chapter

§§ 458E.02-458E.09 [Reserved]

§ 458E.10 Governing Law

§ 458E.11 Order of Discharge

§ 458E.12 Discharge Without Administration When No Property Appears to Be in Estate

§ 458E.13 Administration After Discharge

§§ 458E.14-458E.29 [Reserved]

§ 458E.30 State Statutes

§ 458E.31 Local Rules of Court

§ 458E.32 Decisions

[1] Discharge of Personal Representative for Lack of Estate Property

[2] Final Discharge of Personal Representative

[3] Issuance of Letters Subsequent to Final Settlement of Estate

§ 458E.33 Text References

§§ 458E.34-458E.49 [Reserved]

§ 458E.50 Receipt From Distributee for Property Received Pursuant to Decree of Distribution [Prob. Code § 12250]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] State Statutes

[4] Local Rules of Court

§ 458E.51 Ex Parte Petition for Final Discharge and Order [Prob. Code § 12250]--Judicial Council Form DE-295

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] State Statutes

[4] Local Rules of Court

§ 458E.52 [Reserved]

§ 458E.53 Proceedings for Termination of Proceedings and Discharge for Want of Assets Subject to Administration [Prob. Code § 12251]--Petition

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] State Statutes

[4] Local Rules of Court

[5] Cross References

§ 458E.54 Proceedings for Termination of Proceedings and Discharge for Want of Assets Subject to Administration [Prob. Code § 12251]--Order

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] State Statutes

[4] Local Rules of Court

[5] Cross References

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE
PART I. SCOPE

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458E.01

§ 458E.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and contains forms for use in obtaining a final discharge of the personal representative. It contains a form for a receipt [see § 458E.50], a form for an ex parte petition and order for discharge of the personal representative [see § 458E.51], a form for a petition for termination of proceedings and discharge in the absence of assets subject to probate [see § 458E.53], and an order terminating probate proceedings [see § 458E.54].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE
PART I. SCOPE

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 458E.02-458E.09

[Reserved]

§§ 458E.02[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458E.10

§ 458E.10 Governing Law

Discharge of personal representatives is generally governed by Prob. Code §§ 12250-12252. In addition, there are a wide variety of local court rules governing probate practice. To ensure complete compliance, the attorney should consult the applicable rules.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsRule Application & Interpretation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458E.11

§ 458E.11 Order of Discharge

When the personal representative has complied with the terms of the order for final distribution and has filed the appropriate receipts (or the court has excused the filing of a receipt as provided in Prob. Code § 11753) the court must, on ex parte petition, make an order discharging the personal representative from all liability incurred thereafter [Prob. Code § 12250(a); see § 458E.51]. Nothing in Prob. Code § 12250, however, precludes discharge of the personal representative for distribution made without prior court order, so long as the terms of the order for final distribution are satisfied [Prob. Code § 12250(b)].

A representative who has been discharged after distribution of the estate is no longer subject to suit in his or her representative capacity, even if the suit was filed before discharge [Katleman v. First Nat. Bank of Nevada (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 520, 524, 28 Cal. Rptr. 135 ; Independent Bankers Trust Co. v. Superior Court (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 238, 241, 188 Cal. Rptr. 14] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458E.12

§ 458E.12 Discharge Without Administration When No Property Appears to Be in Estate

At any time after appointment of a personal representative and whether or not letters have been issued, if it appears that there is no property of any kind belonging to the estate and subject to administration, the personal representative may petition for the termination of further proceedings and discharge of the personal representative [Prob. Code § 12251(a), see §§ 458E.53 (petition), 458E.54 (order granting petition)].

Notice of hearing on the petition must be given as provided in Prob. Code § 1220 to persons then interested in the estate [Prob. Code § 12251(b)]. If it appears to the satisfaction of the court on the hearing that the facts stated in the petition are true, the court must make an order terminating the proceeding and discharging the personal representative [Prob. Code § 12251(c)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458E.13

§ 458E.13 Administration After Discharge

If subsequent administration of an estate is necessary after the personal representative has been discharged because other property is discovered, or because it becomes necessary or proper for any cause, the court must appoint as personal representative the person entitled to appointment in the same order as is directed in relation to an original appointment [Prob. Code § 12252(a); see also Prob. Code §§ 8400-8577 (appointment of personal representatives)]. However, the person who served as personal representative at the time of the order of discharge has priority [Prob. Code § 12252(a)].

Notice of hearing of the appointment must be given as provided in Prob. Code § 1220 to the person who served as personal representative at the time of the order of discharge and to other interested persons [Prob. Code § 12252(b); see Prob. Code § 48 (defining "interested person")]. If property has been distributed to the State of California, a copy of any petition for subsequent appointment of a personal representative and the notice of hearing must be given as provided in Prob. Code § 1220 to the Controller [Prob. Code § 12252(b)].

For discussion of distribution of property acquired or discovered after the court order for final distribution is made, see Ch. 458D, Probate: Accounts, Final Distribution, and Compensation, § 458D.70 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 458E.14-458E.29

[Reserved]

§§ 458E.14[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458E.30

§ 458E.30 State Statutes

Order of discharge. Prob. Code § 12250

Discharge without administration. Prob. Code § 12251

Administration after discharge. Prob. Code § 12252

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458E.31

§ 458E.31 Local Rules of Court

Petition to terminate proceedings must allege that all costs of administration including charges for legal advertising have been paid. Los Angeles Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.108

Discharge. Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.22; San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.102

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458E.32

§ 458E.32 Decisions

[1] Discharge of Personal Representative for Lack of Estate Property

What constitutes application for termination of further proceedings and discharge under former Prob. Code § 1068 (now see Prob. Code § 12251). Estate of Robinson (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 534, 540, 121 P.2d 734

[2] Final Discharge of Personal Representative

Effect of decree of final discharge. Johnston v. Long (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 54, 64-65, 181 P.2d 645

Probate court, on making decree of distribution, loses jurisdiction of property distributed even though time for appeal has not passed. Estate of Baird (1919) 181 Cal. 742, 744-745, 186 P. 351

Personal representative is entitled to discharge on showing that he or she has paid or delivered property to parties entitled thereto. McAdoo v. Sayre (1904) 145 Cal. 344, 349, 78 P. 874

Administration of estate is still pending until entry of a decree discharging personal representative. Dohs v. Dohs (1882) 60 Cal. 255, 260

Probate court is vested with power to determine who are entitled to estate, and personal representative is discharged after having delivered up all property of estate to parties entitled. In re Estate of Dobbins (1940) 36 Cal. App. 2d 536, 538-539, 97 P.2d 1051

Order discharging personal representative is not appealable. Estate of Mitchell (1931) 115 Cal. App. 348, 352, 1 P.2d 536

[3] Issuance of Letters Subsequent to Final Settlement of Estate

Order for further administration is conclusive on issue of necessity if issued on grounds of necessity and permitted to become final. Estate of Den (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 638, 640-641, 45 P.2d 963

After final settlement of estate and distribution, further letters of administration may not be issued unless there remains property not disposed of, or some act to be done that only a personal representative can do. Estate of Yorba (1917) 176 Cal. 166, 168, 167 P. 854

Newly discovered property is requirement for applicability of former Prob. Code § 1067 (now see Prob. Code § 12252). Estate of St. John (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 1008, 1011, 97 Cal. Rptr. 291 ; Estate of Heigho (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 360, 368, 9 Cal. Rptr. 196

Property transferred by decedent in lifetime is not property within meaning of former Prob. Code § 1067 (now see Prob. Code § 12252); property transferable by will as within meaning of former Prob. Code § 1067. Estate of Heigho (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 360, 364-365, 9 Cal. Rptr. 196

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458E.33

§ 458E.33 Text References

Witkin, Summary of California Law, vol. 14, Wills and Probate, §§ 742, 744 (10th ed. 2005)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Estate, Gift & Trust LawEstate AdministrationGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesGeneral OverviewEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbatePersonal RepresentativesDuties & PowersDistributionEstate, Gift & Trust LawProbateProcedures in ProbateGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 458E.34-458E.49

[Reserved]

§§ 458E.34[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE
PART IV. FORMS

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458E.50

§ 458E.50 Receipt From Distributee for Property Received Pursuant to Decree of Distribution [Prob. Code § 12250]

[1] FORM Receipt From Distributee for Property Received Pursuant to Decree of Distribution [Prob. Code § 12250]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
Estate of _____ [name],	)	RECEIPT
Deceased.	)

_____

I, _____ [name], say:

I acknowledge receipt from _____ [name], the personal representative of the estate of _____ [name], deceased, of all of the property distributed to me in accordance with the decree of distribution in the above-entitled proceeding on _____ [date].

The property so distributed to and received by me is described as follows: _____ [set out description, e.g., money in the sum of $_____].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

Distributee

[2] Use of Form

The personal representative should require a receipt substantially in this form from each distributee under the order for final distribution prior to his or her application for final discharge [see Prob. Code § 12250]. When the property cannot actually be delivered to the distributee, procedures outlined under Prob. Code §§ 11850-11854 (deposit with county treasurer) should be followed. For discussion and forms relating to that procedure, see Ch. 458D, Probate: Accounts, Final Distribution, and Compensation .

[3] State Statutes

Necessity that personal representative file appropriate receipts prior to obtaining order of discharge. Prob. Code § 12250

[4] Local Rules of Court

Receipt for property received by distributee to be signed by distributee personally. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.124

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE
PART IV. FORMS

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458E.51

§ 458E.51 Ex Parte Petition for Final Discharge and Order [Prob. Code § 12250]--Judicial Council Form DE-295

[1] FORM Ex Parte Petition for Final Discharge and Order [Prob. Code § 12250]--Judicial Council Form DE-295

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustration of the Judicial Council Form DE-295, Ex Parte Petition for final discharge and order. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

The form is for use by a personal representative of a decedent to apply for a discharge. It may be filed ex parte after the personal representative has complied with the terms of the order for final discharge and has filed the appropriate receipts from the distributees of the decedent's estate [Prob. Code § 12250(a)]. Receipts need not be filed if the court excuses the filing of receipts [Prob. Code § 12250(a)]. Nothing in Prob. Code § 12250 precludes discharge of the personal representative for distribution made without prior court order, so long as the terms of the order for final distribution are satisfied [Prob. Code § 12250(b)].

The petition must be verified by the personal representative [Prob. Code §§ 1021(a)(1), 1023].

Use of the Judicial Council form is mandatory [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 1.31, 7.101].

[3] State Statutes

Verification of petition. Prob. Code §§ 1021, 1023

Petition for discharge of personal representative. Prob. Code § 12250(a)

[4] Local Rules of Court

Final discharge. Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 608.22; San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.102

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE
PART IV. FORMS

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458E.52

[Reserved]

§ 458E.52[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE
PART IV. FORMS

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458E.53

§ 458E.53 Proceedings for Termination of Proceedings and Discharge for Want of Assets Subject to Administration [Prob. Code § 12251]--Petition

[1] FORM Proceedings for Termination of Proceedings and Discharge for Want of Assets Subject to Administration [Prob. Code § 12251]--Petition

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
	)	PETITION FOR TERMINATION OF
	)	FURTHER PROCEEDINGS AND DISCHARGE
Estate of _____ [name],	)	OF
Deceased.	)	PERSONAL
	)	REPRESENTATIVE
	)	_____

_____

Petitioner _____ [name] respectfully represents:

1. Petitioner is the duly appointed, qualified, and acting personal representative of the above entitled estate.

2. In the petition for probate filed on _____ [date], petitioner alleged that the value of the assets of decedent subject to probate administration was $_____. This allegation was based on the fact that _____ [specify, e.g., prior to the issuance of letters and the subsequent opening of decedent's safe deposit box, petitioner concluded from the best evidence available that decedent died possessed of property consisting of _____ (describe), which was the separate property of decedent and subject to administration].

3. It appears now that the property described in Paragraph 2, above, is not property that is subject to administration because _____ [specify, e.g., on _____ (date), after letters were issued, petitioner opened decedent's safe deposit box in the presence of _____ (names and titles). As shown in the Inventory of Safe Deposit Box, which is attached to this petition as Exhibit "A" and incorporated by reference, each _____ (specify, e.g., stock certificate and deed) found in the box was held by decedent in joint tenancy with the person indicated in Exhibit "A"].

4. Petitioner has diligently searched for all assets of decedent but has failed to discover any property of any kind belonging to the estate that is subject to administration.

5. All costs, expenses, and premiums on surety bonds, incurred in the administration of the estate, have been paid.

6. A request for special notice has _____ [not been filed herein or been filed herein by _____ (name) and notice of the time and place of hearing on this petition has been given as required by law or been filed herein and waived].

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. For an order terminating further proceedings for the administration of the estate.

2. For an order discharging petitioner as the personal representative of the estate.

3. For such other orders as the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Petitioner

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Petitioner

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the petitioner in the above-entitled proceeding. I have read the foregoing petition and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by a personal representative to apply for a termination of proceedings and for a discharge when it appears that there is no property of any kind belonging to the estate and subject to administration [see Prob. Code § 12251]. The form may be filed any time after the personal representative's appointment, whether or not letters have been issued [Prob. Code § 12251(a)].

A petition for termination and discharge under Prob. Code § 12251 is required to contain a statement attesting to the apparent lack of "property of any kind belonging to the estate and subject to administration" (Paragraph 4) [see Prob. Code § 12251(a)].

The petition must be in writing and verified by the personal representative [Prob. Code §§ 1020, 1021(a)(1), 1023(b)].

Fifteen days notice of the hearing on the petition must be given as provided in Prob. Code § 1220 to all interested persons [Prob. Code §§ 1220, 12251(b); see also Prob. Code § 48 ("interested person" defined)]. If special notice has been requested, it must be given or waived [see Prob. Code §§ 1204, 1252]. For general discussion of notice requirements, see Ch. 447, Probate: Statutory Notice Requirements .

[3] State Statutes

Mailing notice of hearing. Prob. Code § 1220

Discharge without administration. Prob. Code § 12251

[4] Local Rules of Court

Petitions required to be set for hearing must have self-addressed, stamped envelope attached. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rules 10.31(a) (or attach fax cover sheet; see Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.31(b))

[5] Cross References

For a related form, see § 458E.51

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 39: Probate: Claims Against the Estate thru Probate: Discharge-Chs. 454-459
Chapter 458E PROBATE: DISCHARGE
PART IV. FORMS

39-458E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 458E.54

§ 458E.54 Proceedings for Termination of Proceedings and Discharge for Want of Assets Subject to Administration [Prob. Code § 12251]--Order

[1] FORM Proceedings for Termination of Proceedings and Discharge for Want of Assets Subject to Administration [Prob. Code § 12251]--Order

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

	)
	)	NO. _____
	)	ORDER TERMINATING PROCEEDINGS AND
Estate of _____ [name],	)	DISCHARGING
Deceased.	)	PERSONAL
	)	REPRESENTATIVE IN ABSENCE OF ASSETS
		SUBJECT TO PROBATE

_____

The petition of _____ [name], personal representative of the estate of _____ [name], deceased, to terminate further proceedings in the administration of the estate and to discharge _____ [name] as personal representative of the estate came on regularly for hearing on _____ [date], in [Department _____ (number) of] the above-entitled court, the Honorable _____ [name], Judge, presiding. Petitioner appeared by counsel _____ [name].

The court, after examining the petition and hearing the evidence, and finding no property belonging to the estate and subject to administration [, that notice of the time and place of the hearing was given as required by _____ (specify, e.g., order of this court) (and that special notice was _____ (given to _____ (name(s)), as requested or requested and waived by _____ (names(s))),] and that the facts alleged in the petition are true, grants this petition as follows:

IT IS ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that proceedings in the estate are terminated and that _____ [name] is discharged from further duties and responsibilities as personal representative [and his/her bond is exonerated].
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

This order is for use to grant a petition for termination of proceedings and discharge of the personal representative when it appears that there is no property of any kind belonging to the estate and subject to administration [see Prob. Code § 12251].

[3] State Statutes

Probate orders generally. Prob. Code §§ 1046-1049

Finding of giving or waiver of notice. Prob. Code § 1260(b)

[4] Local Rules of Court

Orders to be complete in themselves and set forth all matters actually passed on by court, date of hearing, relief granted, and names of persons and descriptions of property or amounts of money affected. Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 10.42; San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.27

Orders to be submitted to Probate Courtroom at least two weeks in advance of scheduled hearing date, and required to note hearing date on face sheet. San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 14.6

[5] Cross References

For a related form, see § 458E.53

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 460.syn

§ 460.syn Synopsis to Chapter 460: PRODUCTS LIABILITY

§ 460.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 460.02 Cross References

§§ 460.03-460.09 [Reserved]

§ 460.10 Origins of Governing Law

[1] Historical Origin

[2] Fraud Exception

[3] Negligence Exceptions in Case of Inherent or Imminent Danger

[4] Negligence Exception in Case of Safety Order Violation

[5] Implied Warranty Exceptions

§ 460.11 Doctrine of Strict Liability in Tort

[1] General Rule

[a] Rule Announced in Greenman

[b] Rationale for Rule

[2] "Products"

[a] "Products" Defined

[b] Stream of Commerce Requirement

[c] Requirement That Product Be in Use

[3] Property and Persons Protected

[4] Economic Loss Not Protected

[5] Persons Liable

[6] Persons Not Liable

[a] Occasional Seller

[b] Manufacturer or Supplier of Nondefective Component

[c] Magazine Publisher of Advertisement

[d] Seller of Services

[e] Furnishing of Blood and Human Tissue

[f] Pharmacy and Pharmacist

[g] Exceptions Regarding Real Property

[h] Landlord and Hotel Proprietor

[i] Party With No Connection to Design, Manufacture, or Marketing of Defective Product

[j] Finance Lessor

[k] Seller of Used Goods

[7] Market-Share Theory of Liability

[a] Required Joinder of Manufacturers Sharing Market

[b] Shifting of Burden of Proof

[c] Apportionment of Damages

[d] Statute of Limitations

[e] Limitations on Theory

[7a] Concert of Action

[8] Inherently and Unavoidably Unsafe Products

[a] Civ. Code § 1714.45 Provides Immunity for Certain Common Consumer Products

[b] Tobacco Products

[c] Drugs and Vaccines Are "Unavoidably Unsafe Products" Under Comment k

[d] Implanted Medical Devices

[e] Applicability of Comment k to Other Products

[9] Defect

[a] Defect in Manufacture

[b] Defect in Design

[i] Alternative Test

[ii] Consumer Expectation Test

[iii] Risk-Benefit Test

[iv] Causation

[A] Substantial Factor Test

[B] Proving Exposure to Defendant's Product

[C] Proving Causation in Food Cases

[v] Firearms and Ammunition

[10] Failure to Warn or Instruct

[a] Duty to Warn

[i] General Rule

[ii] Actual or Constructive Knowledge

[iii] Manufacturers

[iv] Allergies

[b] Limitations on Duty to Warn

[i] Compliance With Regulations

[ii] Warning Seller or Supplier Rather Than Ultimate Consumer

[iii] Effect of Government Warning During Emergency

[iv] Sufficiency of Warning

[v] Rare, Idiosyncratic, or Unusual Reactions

[vi] Commonly Known or Obvious Dangers

[vii] Sophisticated User Defense

[viii] Dangers of Other Manufacturers' Products

[11] Elimination of "Unreasonably Dangerous" Limitation

[a] Rejection of Restatement Component

[b] Effect on Instructions Regarding Definition of Defect

[12] Disclaimer of Liability Does Not Preclude Liability

[13] Express Assumption of Risk Does Not Preclude Liability

[14] Causation in Warning Cases

§ 460.12 Relation of Strict Liability Doctrine to Negligence Concepts

[1] Relief of Evidentiary Burdens

[2] Aspects of Negligence Adopted in Strict Liability

§ 460.13 Strict Liability and Warranties Distinguished

§ 460.14 Liability of Successor Manufacturer

[1] Traditional Exceptions to General Rule of Successor Nonliability

[2] Product Line Theory

§ 460.15 Development of AIDS Vaccine

[1] Establishment of Victims' Compensation Fund

[2] Compensation From Fund for Damages to Injured Person

[3] Procedures and Review

[4] Fund's Right to Subrogation or Lien

[5] Notice of Action to Board or Attorney General

§ 460.16 Insurance Coverage

[1] Availability of Coverage

[2] Coverage Precluded

§§ 460.17-460.29 [Reserved]

§ 460.30 Elements of Action

§ 460.31 Statute of Limitations

[1] Applicable Limitations Periods

[2] Accrual of Cause of Action

[a] When Act Committed

[b] Exceptions

[i] Injury Causing Subsidence of Land

[ii] Discovery Rule

[A] Postponing Accrual of a Cause of Action

[B] Statutory Discovery Rule for Hazardous Substances

[C] Applying Discovery Rule to Separate and Distinct Acts

[D] Applying the Discovery Rule in Tobacco Litigation

[iii] Fraudulent Concealment

[iv] Filing of Class Action

[v] Equitable Tolling

[c] Pleading

[3] Limitation Derived From Other Jurisdiction's Statute of Repose

§ 460.32 Alternative Theories of Recovery

[1] Pleading Alternative Theories

[2] Alternative Theories Against Retailer, Wholesaler, Distributor, Manufacturer, and Supplier

[3] Pleading Theories of Strict Liability and Negligence

[4] Res Ipsa Loquitur

§ 460.33 Damages

[1] Effect of Alternative Theories of Recovery

[2] Punitive Damages

[a] Civ. Code § 3294 Provides Statutory Authority

[b] Grimshaw Court Adopted Broad View of Punitive Damages

[c] U.S. Supreme Court Cases Addressing Constitutionality of Punitive Damages

[d] California Appellate Review of Punitive Damages Awards

§ 460.34 Burden of Proof

[1] Plaintiff

[2] Market-Share Theory Actions

[3] Jury Instructions

§§ 460.35-460.49 [Reserved]

§ 460.50 Answer

§ 460.51 Pleading and Proof Responses to Strict Liability Action

§ 460.52 Affirmative Defenses

[1] General Rule

[2] Federal Preemption

[a] Overview

[b] Medical Devices

[i] Class III Devices Present Preemption Issue

[ii] Medtronic, Inc. v. Lohr: No Preemption of "Substantially Equivalent" Devices

[iii] Riegel v. Metronic, Inc.: Preemption of Claims Alleging Defective PMA-Approved Devices

[iv] Preemption and PMA-Approved Devices in Ninth Circuit Pre-Riegel

[v] California Judiciary's Approach to Preemption of MDA-Approved Devices

[vi] Preemption of Claims Involving Class II Devices

[vii] Buckman v. Plaintiffs' Legal Comm.: Fraud-on-the-FDA Claims Are Preempted

[c] Drugs

[i] Prescription Drugs

[ii] Over-the-Counter Drugs

[d] Air Bags and Other Automotive Components

[e] General Aviation Aircraft

[f] Locomotives and Other Railroad Appliances

[g] Pesticides

[h] Boats

[i] Tobacco

§ 460.53 Comparative Fault and Assumption of Risk

§ 460.54 Burden of Proof

§§ 460.55-460.69 [Reserved]

§ 460.70 Right to Indemnity

[1] Express and Implied Indemnity

[2] Good Faith Settlement Bar

[3] Proposition 51: Fair Responsibility Act of 1986

[a] Statute Eliminated Joint Liability for Non-Economic Damages

[b] Joint Liability When Injuries Are Caused Solely by Defective Product

[c] Special Issues Relating to Allocation of Damages in Settlements

[d] Proposition 51 and the Fault of Immune Nonparties

§ 460.71 Cross Complaint

[1] Setting Forth Cause of Action

[2] Declaratory Relief

[3] Separate Document Requirement

[4] Time to File

[5] Service

§ 460.72 Special Answer

§§ 460.73-460.79 [Reserved]

§ 460.80 Right of Contribution

§ 460.81 Apportionment of Loss

§ 460.82 Determination of Pro Rata Share

§ 460.83 Indemnity Distinguished

§ 460.84 Procedure

§§ 460.85-460.99 [Reserved]

§ 460.100 Related Matthew Bender Publications

§ 460.101 State Constitution

§ 460.102 State Statutes

[1] Adulterated Candy

[2] Affirmative Defenses

[3] Answers

[4] Borrowing Statute

[5] Bunk Bed Safety

[6] Cigarette Fire Safety

[7] Construction Defects

[8] Contribution

[a] General Rule

[b] Judgment

[9] Cosmetics Safety

[10] Cross Complaints

[11] Damages

[12] Declarations

[13] Demurrers

[14] Design Defect--Firearms and Ammunition

[15] Duty Not to Injure

[16] Employment Safety Laws

[17] Evidence and Proof

[18] Failure to Warn

[19] Fraud

[20] Indemnity

[21] Joinder

[22] Liability

[23] Motions

[24] Statute of Limitations

[25] Summary Judgment

[26] Transplants

[27] Unsafe Products

[28] Vaccines

[29] Warranty

§ 460.103 California Rules of Court

§ 460.104 Decisions

[1] Accrual of Cause of Action

[2] Agency

[3] Alteration in Product After Sale

[4] Alternative Theories of Recovery

[5] Appeal

[6] Applicability of Strict Liability Doctrine

[a] Against Bailors and Lessor of Personal Property

[b] Against Employer

[b.1] Against Hotel Proprietors

[c] Against Lessors of Real Property

[d] Against Licensors of Chattels

[e] Against Manufacturers

[i] Manufacturers of Lots

[ii] Manufacturers of Products and Component Parts

[iii] Manufacturers of Components Installed in Mass-Produced Home

[f] Against Manufacturer-Repairer of Product

[g] Against Occasional Seller

[h] Against Publishers

[i] Against Real Estate Developers and Builders

[j] Against Retailers, Wholesalers, and Distributors of Products

[k] Against Successor to Product Manufacturer

[l] Against Used Products Dealer

[m] In Favor of Nonpurchasers

[n] Maritime Law

[o] Nature of Injury--Economic Losses

[p] Against Tobacco Industry

[q] Against Suppliers of Raw Materials

[r] Against Trademark Licensors

[7] Assumption of the Risk

[8] Automobiles

[8a] Borrowing Statute

[9] Burden of Proof

[10] Causation

[11] Class Action Allegations

[12] Comparative Fault

[12a] Concert of Action

[13] Conflict of Laws

[14] Contribution

[15] Damages

[a] Compensatory

[b] Punitive

[16] Defective Product

[a] Defect Generally

[b] Design Defect

[c] Failure to Warn

[d] Manufacturing Defect

[17] Defendants

[18] Definitions

[19] Delegation of Duty by Manufacturer

[20] Elements of Cause of Action

[21] Evidence

[a] Circumstantial

[a.1] Compliance With Industry Standards

[b] Expert Witnesses

[c] Other Accidents

[d] Res Ipsa Loquitur

[e] Safety Orders

[f] Subsequent Remedial Measures

[22] Forum Non Conveniens

[22a] Fraud

[a] Fraudulent Concealment

[b] Intent

[c] Reliance

[22b] General Aviation Aircraft; GARA

[23] Government Contract Immunity

[24] Inapplicability of Doctrine

[a] Bargained-for Transactions

[b] Blood, Blood Products, and Human Tissue

[c] Endorser of Product

[c.1] Finance Lessor

[d] Hospitals

[e] Occasional Builder

[f] Occasional Seller

[g] Partial Successor of Product Manufacturer

[h] Physicians

[i] Private Subdivider of Work Accepted as Public Improvement

[i.1] Product Not in Use

[j] Public Utility Facilities

[k] Purchaser or User

[l] Secondhand Goods Dealer

[m] Sellers of Services

[n] Supplier of Nondefective Component

[o] Supplier Outside Chain of Commerce

[p] Transactions Between "Merchants"

[25] Indemnity

[a] Comparative Equitable Indemnity

[b] Decline to Determine Indemnity

[c] Express Indemnity

[d] Implied Indemnity

[e] Participation in Tort

[f] Reversible Judgment

[g] Warranty

[26] Insurance

[27] Issues

[28] Judgment on the Pleadings

[29] Jury Instructions

[a] Aggravation of Injuries

[b] Burden of Proof

[c] Causation

[d] Contributory Negligence

[e] Drugs and Medical Devices

[f] Material Fact Issues

[g] Proffered Instructions

[h] Res Ipsa Loquitur

[i] Strict Liability and Negligence

[j] Strict Liability in Tort

[k] Vehicles

[30] Landlord-Tenant

[31] Limitations on Liability Imposed by Contract

[32] Market-Share Theory of Strict Liability in Tort

[33] Misuse of Product

[a] Defense of Misuse

[b] Foreseeable Misuse as No Defense

[c] Jury Instructions

[d] Misuse Contrary to Warning

[e] Questions of Fact

[f] Test for Determining Intended Use

[34] Nonpurchaser-Nonuser of Defective Product

[35] Nonpurchaser-User of Defective Product

[36] Nonsuit

[37] Notice

[38] Pleading

[39] Preemption by Federal Law

[40] Prescription Drugs and Medical Devices

[41] Privity of Contract

[42] "Product" Defined

[42a] Proposition 51

[43] Public Policy

[44] Statute of Limitations

[45] Summary Judgment

[46] Superseding Cause

[47] Warranties

[a] Advertising

[b] Basis of Bargain

[c] Class Actions

[d] Construction

[e] Disclaimers

[ee] Express Warranty

[f] Economic Losses

[g] Implied Warranty

[h] Limitations in Warranties

[i] Notice of Breach

[j] Privity

[k] Purpose of Strict Liability

[l] Statute of Limitations

[48] Witnesses

[49] Workers' Compensation

§ 460.105 Law Reviews

§ 460.106 Text References

§§ 460.107-460.119 [Reserved]

Scope

§ 460.120 Product Defect

§ 460.121 Theories of Liability, Parties, Damages

[1] No Injury to Person or to Property

[2] Injury to Person or Property or Both

§ 460.122 Analysis of Actions

[1] By Purchaser

[2] By Nonpurchaser User

[3] By Nonpurchaser, Nonuser Bystander

[4] By Spouse of Injured Person

[5] By Persons Entitled to Bring Wrongful Death Action, or by Personal Representative on Their Behalf

§ 460.123 Defenses

[1] Strict Liability in Tort

[2] Negligence

[3] Breach of Warranty

§ 460.124 Indemnity

§§ 460.125-460.139 [Reserved]

§ 460.140 Judicial Council Trial Court Pleading Form [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a)]--Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injury, Property Damage, Wrongful Death With Products Liability and Exemplary Damages Attachments [Cal. Judicial Council PLD-PI-100, PLD-PI-001(5), PLD-PI-001(6)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[a] Complaint Form

[i] General Information

[ii] Heading

[iii] Number of Pages

[iv] Damages

[v] Prayer

[b] Products Liability Attachment to Complaint Form

[i] Plaintiff's Name

[ii] Date of Injury and Product Causing Injury (Paragraph Prod.L.-1.)

[iii] Defect and Use of Product (Paragraph Prod.L.-2.)

[iv] Status of Plaintiff (Paragraph Prod.L.-3.)

[v] Strict Liability (Paragraph Prod.L.-4.)

[vi] Negligence (Paragraph Prod.L.-5.)

[vii] Breach of Warranty (Paragraph Prod.L.-6.)

[viii] Other Liability (Paragraph Prod.L.-7.)

[c] Exemplary Damages (Attachment)

[i] Malice, Fraud, or Oppression (Paragraph EX-1.)

[ii] Facts Supporting Claim (Paragraph EX-2.)

[iii] Amount of Damages (Paragraph EX-3.)

[4] Cross References

§ 460.141 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person and Property--By Purchaser--User Against Manufacturer

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[a] General Allegations

[b] Alleging Amount of Damages

[4] Verification

[5] Copies to Prepare

[6] Cross References

§ 460.142 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person and Property--By Purchaser-User Against Multiple Defendants (Manufacturer, Supplier of Component Parts, Retailer, and Fictitious Named Defendants)

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross Action by Defendants

[4] Cross References

§ 460.143 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person--By Lessee Against Lessor of Product

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross Action by Defendant

[4] Cross References

§ 460.144 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person--By Licensee Against Licensor of Personal Property (Launderette Owner)

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross Action by Defendant

[4] Cross References

§ 460.145 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person and Property--By Purchaser Against Manufacturer of Residential Lot

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross Action by Defendant

[4] Cross References

§ 460.146 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Property--By Purchaser of House Against Mass Producer of Houses

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross Action by Defendant

[4] Cross References

§ 460.147 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person--By Purchaser-User Against Manufacturer's Successor in Interest

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Liability of Successor Business on Predecessor's Obligations

[4] Successors' Liability for Punitive Damages

[5] Cross References

§§ 460.148-460.159 [Reserved]

§ 460.160 Allegation--Plaintiff Was Nonpurchaser-User of Defective Product

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 460.161 Allegation--Plaintiff Was Nonpurchaser Nonuser of Defective Product

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Negligence Liability

[4] Cross References

§ 460.162 Allegation--Defect in Design, Manufacture, and Assembly

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 460.163 Allegation--Defect in Metal Hasp Holding Trays in Truck

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Source of Form

[4] Cross References

§ 460.164 Allegation--Product Defective as Result of Failure to Warn of Danger in Use

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Failure to Warn

§ 460.165 Allegation--Product Defective Because of Failure to Warn of Ingredient to Which Substantial Number of Population Is Allergic

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Duty to Warn of Allergic Properties

[4] Cross References

§ 460.166 Allegation--Drug Manufacturer Strictly Liable for Injuries Caused by Unavoidably Unsafe Prescription Drug Because of Failure to Prepare Drug Properly or Failure to Warn of Its Known or Knowable Dangers

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Liability of Manufacturer of Prescription Drugs

[4] Cross References

§ 460.167 Allegation--Product Defective in That Instructions on Assembly or Use Were Inadequate to Avoid Danger of Injury

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Inadequate Instructions

[4] Cross References

§ 460.168 Allegation--Exemplary Damages [Civ. Code § 3294]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Exemplary Damages

[a] General Rule

[b] Award

[c] Pleading

§ 460.169 Allegation--Manufacturers of Substantial Share of Market--Particular Manufacturer Unidentifiable

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Doe Defendants

[4] Theory of Substantial Share of Market

[5] Burden of Proof and Apportionment of Damages

[6] Cross References

§§ 460.170-460.179 [Reserved]

§ 460.180 Judicial Council Trial Court Pleading Form [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a)]--Answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] in Action for Personal Injury, Property Damage, Wrongful Death [Cal. Judicial Council PLD-PI-003]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] General Denial

[4] Allegations

[a] Number of Pages (Paragraph 1.)

[b] General Denial (Paragraph 2.)

[c] Other Denials and Admissions (Paragraph 3.)

[d] Affirmative Defenses

[i] Comparative Fault (Paragraph 4.)

[ii] Statute of Limitations (Paragraph 5.)

[iii] Other Defenses (Paragraph 6.)

[e] Prayer (Paragraph 7.)

[f] Signature

[g] Verification

§ 460.181 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Action for Personal Injuries Barred by Statute of Limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Alternative Procedures

[4] Pleading Statute of Limitations

[a] In Answer

[b] By Demurrer

§ 460.182 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Comparative Fault

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Alternative Procedures

[4] Comparative Fault

§ 460.183 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Misuse of Product Causing Injuries

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Alternative Procedures

[4] Use of Product

§ 460.184 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Alteration in Product After Sale

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Alternative Procedures

§ 460.185 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Manufacturer Not Liable to Consumer Because of Failure to Warn When Adequate Warnings Given to Distributor With Control Over Packaging, Labeling, and Marketing

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Duty to Warn Regarding Safe Use of Product

[4] Alternative Procedures

§ 460.186 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Manufacturer Not Liable to Consumer Because of Failure to Warn in Language Other Than English of Danger Posed by Nonprescription Drug When Warning in English Met Legal Requirements

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Statutes Governing Warnings to Accompany Nonprescription Drugs Establish Duty of Care

§ 460.187 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Government Contractor Immunity

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Government Contractor Immunity

[4] Alternative Procedures

§ 460.188 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Cause of Action Preempted by Federal Law

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§§ 460.189-460.199 [Reserved]

§ 460.200 Judicial Council Trial Court Pleading Form [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a)]--Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10] in Action for Personal Injury, Property Damage, Wrongful Death [Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-PI-002]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Allegations

[a] General Allegations

[b] Causes of Action (Paragraphs 7.-10.)

§ 460.201 Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10] for Declaratory Relief as to Right to Indemnity [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(7)(A), 1060]--By Defendant Retailer Against Manufacturer of Defective Product

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Copies to Prepare

[4] Cross References

§ 460.202 Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10] for Declaratory Relief as to Right to Indemnity [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(7), 1060]--By Defendant Manufacturer Against Independent Contractor--Breach of Warrant

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§§ 460.203-460.209 [Reserved]

§ 460.210 Notice of Motion to Compel Codefendant to Contribute Pro Rata Share of Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 878]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Caption

[4] Contents of Notice

[5] Accompanying Papers

[6] Service of Notice

[7] Judgment Required

§ 460.211 Declaration in Support of Motion to Compel Codefendant to Contribute Pro Rata Share of Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 878]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Contents of Form

[4] Cross References

§ 460.212 Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 578] for Contribution Against Codefendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 878]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART I. SCOPE

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.01

§ 460.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses that aspect of products liability known as strict liability in tort. The legal background discussion is subdivided into five parts, for a general discussion and discussion of complaints, answers, cross complaints, and contribution.

The chapter contains the following forms:

- Forms of complaints illustrating the various relationships between the parties and the contents of the pleading with respect to specific kinds of defective products [see §§ 460.141 -460.147].

- Forms of alternative and additional allegations for use in these complaints [see §§ 460.160 -460.169].

- Judicial Council forms of complaint, answer, and cross complaint [see §§ 460.140, 460.141, 460.180, 460.200].

- Forms of affirmative defenses [see §§ 460.181 -460.188].

- Other forms of cross complaint [see §§ 460.201 -460.202].

- Forms for obtaining contribution [see §§ 460.210 -460.212].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsCross-ComplaintsTortsProcedureMultiple DefendantsContributionGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict Liability

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART I. SCOPE

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.02

§ 460.02 Cross References

For discussion and forms of affidavits, certificates, and declarations, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations

For discussion and forms relating to answers, see Ch. 26, Answers

For discussion and forms relating to the strict liability of automobile manufacturers, see Ch. 91, Automobiles: Actions Involving Defects and Repairs

For discussion and forms relating to actions against manufacturers, wholesalers, and retailers of cosmetic products, see Ch. 97, Barbering and Cosmetology

For discussion and forms relating to complaints and cross complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints

For discussion and forms relating to declaratory relief, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief

For discussion and forms relating to motions attacking the sufficiency of pleadings or proof, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings , Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions , and Ch. 537, Summary Judgment , and Ch. 389, Nonsuit and Motions for Judgment

For discussion relating to the strict liability of drug manufacturers, see Ch. 214, Drugs and Pharmacists

For discussion relating to the strict liability of elevator and escalator manufacturers, see Ch. 244, Elevators and Escalators

For discussion and forms relating to strict liability for defective food products, see Ch. 268, Food

For discussion and forms relating to fraud and deceit, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit

For discussion and forms relating to the strict liability of a commercial supplier of electricity, see Ch. 277, Gas and Electricity

For discussion relating to the inapplicability of the strict liability doctrine to hospitals furnishing defective equipment and supplies, see Ch. 295, Hospitals

For discussion and forms relating to indemnity and contribution, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution

For discussion and forms relating to negligence, see Ch. 380, Negligence

For discussion and forms relating to sales and secured transactions, and relating to actions arising out of breach of warranties in sales contracts, see Ch. 500, Sales and Secured Transactions

For discussion and forms relating to warranties, see Ch. 502, Sales and Warranties

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawBreachCauses of ActionBreach of WarrantyContracts LawSales of GoodsDamages & RemediesGeneral OverviewTortsPremises Liability & PropertyGeneral Premises LiabilityPremisesElevators & EscalatorsTortsProcedureMultiple DefendantsContributionParticular ActionsTortsTransportation TortsGeneral OverviewTortsTransportation TortsMotor VehiclesPersonal Vehicles

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART I. SCOPE

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 460.03-460.09

[Reserved]

§§ 460.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.10

§ 460.10 Origins of Governing Law

[1] Historical Origin

The doctrine of strict liability in tort can be best understood in its historical context. In 1842, Winterbottom v. Wright (Ex. Ch. 1842) 10 M. & W. 109, 152 Eng. Rep. 402, an English case, was decided. That case was generally interpreted as standing for the proposition that the seller of a product is not liable to the consumer, even when the seller was negligent, unless privity of contract existed between them. The doctrine of strict liability in tort evolved from the development of exceptions to this rule.

[2] Fraud Exception

In 1896, the California Supreme Court recognized an exception to the rule of no liability without privity of contract where the manufacturer of a product knew that the product was dangerous, concealed this fact, and represented to the purchaser that the product was safe [Lewis v. Terry (1896) 111 Cal. 39, 44-45, 43 P. 398 (defective folding bed which injured plaintiff who was purchaser's tenant)]. Liability was based on fraud and hence privity of contract was held not to be required.

[3] Negligence Exceptions in Case of Inherent or Imminent Danger

In 1916, a California court of appeal recognized another exception to the privity-of-contract requirement in the case of mislabeling of dangerous substances [Catlin v. Union Oil Co. (1916) 31 Cal. App. 597, 605, 161 P. 29] . There, the court said: "The mislabeling of poisons, inflammable oils, explosives, and like dangerous substances is so fraught with possibilities of danger to purchasers as to charge the first vender with a responsibility for damages, even though the mismarked substance has passed through the hands of a number of intermediate venders." Catlin was a wrongful death action against both the retailer and the manufacturer of gas and oil. There, the oil company had misdelivered to the retailer a mixture of coal oil and gasoline for coal oil, a portion of which the retailer then sold to plaintiff's decedent who was killed in a subsequent explosion while filling a coal-oil lamp with it. The jury found the retailer not liable and returned a verdict against the oil company. The court of appeal, while recognizing the above rule nevertheless reversed the judgment on the ground that the act of the retailer in selling the mixture after he knew of the oil company's mistake and had notified it of the error and the oil company had agreed to take back the mixture was an independent negligent act not reasonablyforseeable by the oil company and, hence, a superseding cause to the oil company's liability.

In Kalash v. Los Angeles Ladder Co. (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 229, 231-233, 34 P.2d 481 , an action based on negligence for personal injuries sustained by plaintiff in a fall from a ladder when a defective rung broke where the court reversed judgment for plaintiff on the ground of faulty jury instructions, the California Supreme Court advanced development of the inherent-danger exception by making it applicable to things that were not inherently dangerous but which, from their nature, were such that they were reasonably certain to place life and limb in danger if negligently made.

[4] Negligence Exception in Case of Safety Order Violation

Another exception to the privity-of-contract requirement evolved where a safety order was violated. Violation of a safety order imposing requirements for a piece of equipment and adopted for the protection of the class of which plaintiff is a member was held to give rise to liability notwithstanding the absence of privity of contract [see, e.g., Di Muro v. Masterson Trusafe Steel Scaffold Co. (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 784, 790-791, 14 Cal. Rptr. 551 (injured employee fell from scaffold which failed to have guardrails as required by safety order)].

[5] Implied Warranty Exceptions

California courts first developed liability without fraud or negligence and without privity in food products cases. In Klein v. Duchess Sandwich Co., Ltd. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 272, 276-284, 93 P.2d 799 (maggots in a ham and cheese sandwich), the Supreme Court of California adopted the doctrine of implied warranty of fitness of foodstuffs intended for human consumption and held that the warranty was intended not only for the benefit of the immediate buyer but also for the benefit of the ultimate consumer and, hence, privity of contract was not required.

But in Burr v. Sherwin Williams Co. (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 682, 695-696, 268 P.2d 1041 , the California Supreme Court refused to extend the implied-warranty exception in the absence of privity to other than foodstuffs.

However, in Gottsdanker v. Cutter Labs. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 602, 606-607, 6 Cal. Rptr. 320 , an action for damages against the manufacturer of a poliomyelitis vaccine which caused plaintiffs to become infected with the disease it was supposed to prevent, the court of appeal affirmed judgment for plaintiffs and extended the nonprivity-of-contract exception in foodstuffs to drugs [see also Grinnell v. Charles Pfizer & Co. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 424, 433-434, 79 Cal. Rptr. 369 ; 460.164-460.165].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Contracts LawContract Conditions & ProvisionsImplied WarrantiesGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.11

§ 460.11 Doctrine of Strict Liability in Tort

[1] General Rule

[a] Rule Announced in Greenman

In Greenman v. Yuba Power Products, the California Supreme Court brushed aside the need for a person injured by a defective product to resort to theories of fraud, negligence, or implied warranty to recover damages and promulgated the following rule: "A manufacturer is strictly liable in tort when an article he places on the market, knowing that it is to be used without inspection for defects, proves to have a defect that causes injury to a human being." At page 63 the court said: "The purpose of such liability is to insure that the costs of injuries resulting from defective products are borne by the manufacturers that put such products on the market rather than by the injured persons who are powerless to protect themselves" [Greenman v. Yuba Power Prods., Inc. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 57, 62, 63, 27 Cal. Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897 ; see also § 460.11[1][b]].

[b] Rationale for Rule

The purpose of imposing strict liability in tort is to ensure that the costs of injuries resulting from defective products are borne by the manufacturers that put the products on the market rather than by the injured persons who are powerless to protect themselves [Greenman v. Yuba Power Prods., Inc. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 57, 63, 27 Cal. Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897 ; Ontiveros v. 24 Hour Fitness USA, Inc. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 424, 430, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 767 ; Arriaga v. Citicapital Commercial Corp. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1534, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 143 ; Bostick v. Flex Equip. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 80, 88, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 28, 35 ; Cadlo v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 513, 524, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 , modified, 2004 Cal. App. LEXIS 2260] . Public policy demands that responsibility be fixed wherever it will most effectively reduce the hazards to life and health inherent in defective products that reach the market, and it is evident that the manufacturer can anticipate some hazards and guard against the recurrence of others, as the public cannot [Escola v. Coca Cola Bottling Co. (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 453, 462, 150 P.2d 436 (concurring opinion); see Cronin v. J.B.E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 129, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153 ; Young v. Aro Corp. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 240, 246, 111 Cal. Rptr. 535] . Other purposes behind the creation of strict liability were to provide a "short cut" to liability in cases in which proving negligence may be difficult, to provide manufacturers with an economic incentive to improve product safety, to induce the allocation of resources toward safer products, and to spread the risk of loss [Nelson v. Superior Court (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 689, 696, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 684 ; Bostick v. Flex Equip. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 80, 88, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 28, 35 ; Barrett v. Superior Court (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1176, 1186, 272 Cal. Rptr. 304] . Moreover, by extending strict liability to entities further down the stream of commerce than the manufacturer, the policy of compensating injured plaintiffs is preserved, and retailers and distributors remain free to seek indemnity from the manufacturer [Edwards v. A.L. Lease & Co. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 1033, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259] .

Thus, the paramount policy to be promoted by the rule of strict liability in tort essentially is the protection of otherwise defenseless victims of manufacturing defects and the spreading throughout society of the cost of compensating them [Price v. Shell Oil Co. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 245, 251, 85 Cal. Rptr. 178, 466 P.2d 722 ; Young v. Aro Corp. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 240, 246-247, 111 Cal. Rptr. 535 ; see Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 30-31, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3 ; *see Altman v. Ho Sports Co. (E.D. Cal. Aug. 20, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 80662, at 9 (policies did not support application of strict liability to manufacturer's sales representative)].

The accepted rationale of strict liability in California is that the responsibility for the consequences of defective products should rest on those who, as a class, are in the best position to make sure that the products never reach the consumer in the first place, but who can distribute the loss among the public as a cost of doing business if they do [Young v. Aro Corp. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 240, 247, 111 Cal. Rptr. 535] .

The doctrine does not, however, place on the producer absolute liability for all injuries that result from the use of its product [Baker v. Chrysler Corp. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 710, 716, 127 Cal. Rptr. 745] . That is, the producer is not an insurer of the safety of the product [see, e.g., Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 994, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549] .

[2] "Products"

[a] "Products" Defined

Generally speaking, "products" subject to the application of the doctrine of strict products liability are manufactured goods as opposed to services [see Haynes v. AMTRAK (C.D. Cal. 2006) 423 F. Supp. 2d 1073, 1085 (Amtrak provided transportation services, not a product); Cryolife, Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1153-1155, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 396 (provision of human tissue is service); Shepard v. Alexian Bros. Hosp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 613-614, 109 Cal. Rptr. 132 (blood transfusion as service)]. There are, however, some gray areas. Books and magazines are normally outside the application of the doctrine of strict products liability [see Herceg v. Hustler Magazine, Inc. (S.D. Tex. 1983) 565 F. Supp. 802, 803] . On the other hand, some published material is considered a product for which the manufacturer may be held strictly liable. For example, a mass-produced navigational chart is a product for the purposes of applying the doctrine of strict liability in tort [Fluor Corp. v. Jeppesen & Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 468, 475, 216 Cal. Rptr. 68] .

In determining whether or not a specific item is a "product," counsel should consider the policy reasons underlying strict liability, rather than merely focusing on the dictionary definition of the word [Fluor Corp. v. Jeppesen & Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 468, 475, 216 Cal. Rptr. 68] .

Whether or not a specific item is a "product" is a question of law for the trial court, unlike whether a product is defective, which is a factual issue to be determined by the trier of fact [Brooks v. Eugene Burger Mgmt. Corp. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1611, 1626, 264 Cal. Rptr. 756] .

[b] Stream of Commerce Requirement

A cause of action for strict product liability will not lie unless the defective product has been placed in the stream of commerce by the defendant [Taylor v. Elliott Turbomachinery Co. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 564, 576-577, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 414 ; Thibos v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 337, 339-341, 232 Cal. Rptr. 11 (streetlight installed and maintained by electric utility not placed in stream of commerce, and strict liability not applicable to action for damages allegedly caused by failure)].

Under the "stream of commerce" approach to strict liability in tort, liability extends to all those who are in the "overall producing and marketing enterprise" [Edwards v. A.L. Lease & Co. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 1033-1034, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259 ; Fortman v. Hemco, Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 241, 251, 259 Cal. Rptr. 311 ; but see In re Deep Vein Thrombosis (N.D. Cal. 2005) 356 F. Supp. 2d 1055, 1066 (rejecting contention that aircraft manufacturer was liable for configuration of seats it did not manufacture because it was "integral part" of "overall producing and marketing enterprise" of commercial airline economic market)]. Liability falls in some proportion "on all parties who have mutually participated, in a dependent, interrelated way, in designing, assembling, and marketing the offending product" [Gehl Bros. Mfg. Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 178, 186, 228 Cal. Rptr. 19] .

Entities outside the chain of distribution of the defective product will not be held strictly liable [see § 460.11[6][i], below].

A sale of the product is not a prerequisite to the imposition of strict products liability [Nelson v. Superior Court (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 689, 695, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 684 (MTBE) ; Stein v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 565, 570-571, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 907 (electricity)]. This significant deviation from § 402A of the Restatement (Second) of Torts distinguishes California products liability law from that of other jurisdictions [Nelson v. Superior Court (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 689, 695, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 684 ; Stein v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 565, 570, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 907] .

[c] Requirement That Product Be in Use

There is some debate over whether a product must be in use at the time of the incident to be subject to strict products liability [*see, e.g., Torres v. City of Madera (In re Torres) (E.D. Cal. July 11, 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 34672, at *27-30 , aff'd sub nom. Torres v. Taser Int'l, Inc., 277 Fed. Appx. 684, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 10169 (9th Cir.) (not appropriate for publication) (under risk/benefit test, plaintiff must show that product was actually used)]. In Souza v. Squaw Valley Ski Corp. [(2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 262, 271, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 389] , an appellate court rejected the strict products liability claim of a skier who collided with a snow making hydrant on the ground that the equipment was not being used as a product at time of the accident. The court relied on language from the seminal case Greenman v. Yuba Power Products., Inc. [(1963) 59 Cal. 2d 57, 62, 27 Cal. Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897] stating that a "manufacturer is strictly liable in tort when an article he or she places on the market, knowing that it is to be used without inspection..." Fatal to the Souza plaintiff's cause of action was the fact that she neither used the hydrant or nozzle nor was a bystander to its use. That same court later clarified this ruling in Nelson v. Superior Court [(2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 689, 695-696] , stating that strict liability does not require use of a product by an ultimate consumer, and may include foreseeable uses of a product while it is still on the market.

[3] Property and Persons Protected

The rule of strict liability in tort, at first applicable to cover injury to person, has been extended to cover injury to property as well [see Seely v. White Motor Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 9, 19, 45 Cal. Rptr. 17, 403 P.2d 145 ; Collins Dev. Co. v. D. J. Plastering, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 771, 778-779, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 83 ; Stearman v. Centex Homes (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 611, 623, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 761 ; Gherna v. Ford Motor Co. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 639, 649, 55 Cal. Rptr. 94 ; see also Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Harnischfeger Corp. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 842, 846, 852, 175 Cal. Rptr. 67] and applies in favor of bystanders as well as in favor of the purchaser or user of the product [Elmore v. American Motors Corp. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 578, 587, 75 Cal. Rptr. 652, 451 P.2d 84] . That is, privity of contract is not required as a condition to liability [see Williams v. Volkswagenwerk Aktiengesellschaft (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1244, 1266-1267, 226 Cal. Rptr. 306] .

A cause of action based on the strict products liability doctrine may also be stated by persons entitled under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60 to bring a wrongful death action for the death of a decedent killed by a defective product [Barrett v. Superior Court (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1176, 1183-1196, 272 Cal. Rptr. 304] . For discussion and forms regarding death actions generally, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions .

Strict products liability is available in an action for personal injuries by a bystander against the manufacturer or seller [Elmore v. American Motors Corp. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 578, 587, 75 Cal. Rptr. 652, 451 P.2d 84] . The public policy that enforces strict liability for manufacturing and design defects in favor of consumers and users also applies to bystanders [Baker v. Chrysler Corp. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 710, 715, 127 Cal. Rptr. 745] . Because bystanders have no opportunity to inspect products for defects and limit their purchases to articles manufactured and sold by reputable manufacturers and retailers, they should be entitled to at least as much protection that is accorded consumers or users when the injury from a defect is reasonably foreseeable [Elmore v. American Motors Corp. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 578, 586, 75 Cal. Rptr. 652, 451 P.2d 84] . One court took the broad protection afforded to bystanders one step further, and held that strict liability may apply to products that have left the control of the manufacturer and are still on the market. The court based its conclusion in part on the fact that bystanders to uses of a product while it is still on the market are in the same position vis-a-vis the manufacturer as bystanders to uses of the product by the ultimate consumer: both are powerless to protect themselves [Nelson v. Superior Court (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 689, 693-696, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 684 (MTBE contamination)].

The firefighters' rule, which originated at common law, precludes firefighters from suing those whose negligence caused or contributed to a fire that, in turn, caused the firefighter's injury or death [Neighbarger v. Irwin Indus., Inc. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 532, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 630, 632, 882 P.2d 347] . The rule extends to police officers as well. The rationale of the firefighter's rule is assumption of risk [Calatayud v. State (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 1057, 1061, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 202, 959 P.2d 360] . However, the firefighters' rule contains a number of exceptions and does not necessarily preclude firefighters or police officers injured by defective products in the course of performing their duties from recovery. For example, under the "independent cause" exception, the firefighters' rule does not shield a defendant from liability for actions of misconduct which are independent from those which necessitated the summoning of the officer [Seibert Sec. Servs., Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 394, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 514, 519 ; Donohue v. San Francisco Hous. Auth. (1993) 16 Cal. App.4th 658, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148 ; Vasquez v. North County Transit Dist. (9th Cir. 2002) 292 F.3d 1049, 1060 , applying California law (where railroad crossing gate broke and struck police officer who had been dispatched to crossing because crossing gate arms were stuck in "down" position, and officer alleged that problem that necessitated his presence at scene was not same as allegedly negligent act that caused gate arm to fall sideways and strike him, issue of fact existed as to whether independent cause exception applied); Stapper v. GMI Holdings, Inc. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 787, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 688, 690 (firefighters' rule did not bar claims alleging that garage door opener was defective, because plaintiff alleged that door's malfunction was independent of fire and not caused by fire)].

[4] Economic Loss Not Protected

California follows the economic loss doctrine under which strict liability may not be asserted if the only damages are economic in nature [see Zamora v. Shell Oil Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 204, 208-211, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762 (homeowners could not recover in negligence or strict liability for cost of replacing water pipes known to be defective, but which had not yet leaked); Fieldstone v. Briggs Plumbing Prods., Inc. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 357, 363-367, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701 (in strict liability case, general contractor could not recover cost of replacing installed sinks which rusted and chipped prematurely because no other property had been damaged); Anthony v. Kelsey-Hayes Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 442, 447, 102 Cal. Rptr. 113 (no recovery in strict liability for general depreciation of trucks in absence of allegations of physical damage to persons or property)]. Nonrecoverable economic damages include damages for inadequate value, costs of repair and replacement of the defective product or consequent loss of profits [Jimenez v. Superior Court (2002), 29 Cal. 4th 473, 482, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 614, 58 P.3d 450 ; *see Stearns v. Select Comfort Retail Corp. (N.D. Cal. June 5, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 48367, at *10-12 (mold-tainted beds)], and damages to the product itself [Fieldstone Co. v. Briggs Plumbing Prods., Inc. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 357, 371, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701 (plaintiff could not recover damages for sinks that rusted and chipped a few years after installation when only sinks themselves were damaged)].

Thus, the economic loss rule bars recovery in tort for economic damages caused by a defective product, unless those losses are accompanied by some form of personal injury or damage to property other than the product itself [KB Home v. Superior Court (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 1085, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 587] . In County of Santa Clara v. Atlantic Richfield Co. [(2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 292, 320, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 313 ; see also Cal. Dep't of Toxic Substances Control v. Payless Cleaners (E.D. Cal. Aug. 16, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 60703, at *20-*22], municipalities seeking to recoup the costs of abatement of lead-based paint in their buildings alleged only that lead paint is harmful to human beings, and did not allege any physical injury to their buildings. The deterioration of lead paint did not constitute a physical injury to their buildings sufficient to support a negligence or strict liability cause of action.

The economic rule is not a defense to a cause of action. Rather, the existence of damages other than purely economic loss is an element of a common law cause of action [Greystone Homes, Inc. v. Midtec, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1194, 1215, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 196].

A plaintiff could not recover under a strict products liability theory the costs of repairing or replacing defective windows he had purchased and incorporated into his residence. The only evidence of actual property damage to property other than the windows was several hundred dollars worth of damage to sheet rock and wallpaper, and the persons who purchased his house had paid the costs of repairing this damage [Carrau v. Marvin Lumber & Cedar Co. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 281, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869, 877-878] . However, the economic loss rule does not bar recovery in tort in construction cases if the plaintiff produces evidence of damage to other property, which may include other portions of the structure [Jimenez v. Superior Court (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 473, 481-484, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 614, 58 P.3d 450] . The manufacturer of a defective window installed in a mass-produced home may thus be held strictly liable in tort for damage that the window's defect causes to other parts of the home in which it is installed. In so holding, the California Supreme Court explicitly rejected the defense contention that the "product" was the entire house, and that damage caused to other parts of the house was damage to the product itself [Jimenez v. Superior Court (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 473, 481-484, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 614, 58 P.3d 450 ; see Crawford v. Weather Shield Mfg., Inc. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 304, 324, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787, 800 , review granted and depublished, (2006) 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 632, 136 P.3d 168 , review dismissed in part (2007) 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 753, 170 P.3d 129 (Jimenez applies retroactively); *see also Mitchell v. Skyline Homes (E.D. Cal. Nov. 25, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 116066, at 5] .

The Jimenez court did not provide any direct guidance as to how to make the crucial evaluation as to exactly what is the product at issue. One appellate court concluded that distinguishing between "other property" and the defective product itself in a case involving component-to-component damage requires a determination whether the defective part is a sufficiently discrete element of the larger product that it is not reasonable to expect its failure invariably to damage other portions of the finished product. Factors that may be properly considered in determining what the product at issue is under that test include 1) whether the defective component performs an integral function in the operation of the larger product; 2) whether the component has any independent use to the consumer; 3) how related the property damage is to the inherent nature of the defect in the component; and 4) whether the component itself or the larger product was placed into the stream of commerce. The court further held that determining the nature of the product at issue and whether the injury is to the product itself or to other property is generally the province of the trier of fact [KB Home v. Superior Court (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 1086-1087, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 587 (court's ruling that furnace was single, integrated product deprived plaintiff of right to have material issues of fact submitted to jury); *see also Waste Mgmt., Inc. v. Ishikawajima-Harima Heavy Indus., Co. (E.D. Cal. Aug. 29, 2006) 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 64038, at *11-14 (KB Homes factors suggested that blade retainers were intrinsic, not discrete, elements of the turbine); Croman Corp. v. GE (E.D. Cal. Sept. 12, 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 39408, at *4-*5 (plaintiff alleged that component parts were defective and contributed to loss of its helicopter); McDowell Valley Vineyards, Inc. v. Sabate USA Inc. (N.D. Cal. Aug. 6, 2004) 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15797, at *9-*12 (whether "product" was entire bottle for which closures were used, or whether closure was separate product which caused physical damage to other property, i.e., wine, could not be determined on motion to dismiss)].

In a previous construction defect case in which it held that damages in tort are not available if the defective product has not caused personal injury or property damage, the California Supreme Court rejected a life-safety exception to the economic loss rule. The court reasoned that whether the economic loss rule applies depends on whether property damage has occurred rather than on the possible gravity of damages that have not yet occurred [Aas v. Superior Court (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 627, 650, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 718, 12 P.3d 1125 ; KB Home v. Superior Court (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 1087-1088, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 587] .

However, effective January 1, 2003, there is a limited cause of action for certain specified housing defects [Civ. Code § 895 et seq.]. The Right to Repair Act (the Act) established building standards pertaining to new residential construction and provides homeowners with a cause of action against builders and individual product manufacturers for violation of those standards [Civ. Code §§ 896, 936; Greystone Homes, Inc. v. Midtec, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1194, 1202, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 196]. The Act abrogated the economic loss rule, thereby legislatively superseding Aas v. Superior Court, above [*Kingsbury v. U.S. Greenfiber, LLC (C.D. Cal. Sept. 14, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 92014, at 19 ; Greystone Homes, Inc. v. Midtec, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1194, 1202, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 196]. In Greystone Homes, Inc. v. Midtec, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1194, 1203, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 196 , the court held that a builder may recover from a product manufacturer for economic losses caused by the manufacturer's violations of the standards set forth in the Act through an equitable indemnity action. However, a builder may not recover for economic losses through a direct negligence claim based on the manufacturer's violations of the standards.

Diminution in value also constitutes economic loss not recoverable in strict liability [San Francisco Unified Sch. Dist. v. W.R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1327-1328, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 (reduction of fair market value of buildings found to contain asbestos building materials may constitute economic loss that cannot be recovered in strict liability or negligence); Anthony v. Kelsey-Hayes Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 442, 446, 102 Cal. Rptr. 113 (denying plaintiff, suing on products liability theory, any depreciation in value to its truck caused by defective wheels supplied by manufacturer)].

The California Supreme Court has held that the economic loss rule did not bar a fraud and intentional misrepresentation claim with respect to an aircraft part manufacturer's provision of false FAA certificates. The defendant's issuance of the false certificates of conformance unquestionably constituted affirmative misrepresentations that plaintiff justifiably relied on to its detriment--that is, the elements of fraud. Accordingly, the defendant's tortious conduct was separate from the breach itself (the provision of the nonconforming clutches). The defendant's provision of faulty clutches also exposed plaintiff to liability for personal damages and to disciplinary action by the FAA. The economic loss rule did not bar the plaintiff's fraud and intentional misrepresentation claims because they were independent of the defendant's breach of contract [Robinson Helicopter Co. v. Dana Corp. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 979, 990-991, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 352, 102 P.3d 268] . An appellate court interpreted Robinson as precluding application of the economic loss rule to any intentional affirmative fraud action where the plaintiff can establish that the fraud exposed the plaintiff to liability, as opposed to only fraud actions that also accompany, but are independent of, breach of contract causes of action. In County of Santa Clara v. Atlantic Richfield Co. [(2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 292, 328-329, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 313] , municipalities alleged that lead paint and pigment manufacturers made affirmative representations about the dangers of exposure to low levels of lead, causing them to delay making timely efforts to prevent and treat low-level lead exposure. The economic loss doctrine did not apply to plaintiffs' fraud cause of action.

[5] Persons Liable

Originally, the rule of strict liability in tort was stated in terms of holding the manufacturer strictly liable in tort for any defect in a product manufactured by it which caused injury to any person [Greenman v. Yuba Power Prods., Inc. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 57, 62, 27 Cal. Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897] . Since Greenman, the rule has been made applicable to any person who is in the business of placing the defective product in, or moving it along, the stream of commerce.

Therefore, the doctrine has been applied in the following situations:

- Component part manufacturers when the component part was defective at the time it left the component part manufacturer's factory [*Yu-Santos v. Ford Motor Co. (E.D. Cal. May 13, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 41001, at 49 ; Gonzalez v. Autoliv ASP, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 780, 788, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908].

- Retailers [see Elmore v. American Motors Corp. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 578, 587, 75 Cal. Rptr. 652, 451 P.2d 84 ; Vandermark v. Ford Motor Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 256, 263, 37 Cal. Rptr. 896, 391 P.2d 168 ; Ontiveros v. 24 Hour Fitness USA, Inc. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 424, 431, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 767 ; Arriaga v. Citicapital Commercial Corp. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1534, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 143 ; see also Livingston v. Marie Callenders, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal.App. 4th 830, 839, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 528 (restaurant failed to warn about food additive); §§ 460.141-460.142].

- Wholesalers and distributors [see *Lyles v. Zimmer, Inc. (E.D. Cal. May 29, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 50483, at *11-13 (implanted medical device); *Hinds v. Zimmer, Inc. (E.D. Cal. May 29, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 48565, at *11-13 (same); *Moorhouse v. Bayer Healthcare Pharms. (N.D. Cal. June 17, 2008) 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 48833, at *11-14 ; *Maher v. Novartis Pharms. Corp. (S.D. Cal. Aug. 10, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 58984, at *8-9 ; Johnson v. Standard Brands Paint Co. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 331, 337, 79 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 228, 252-253, 71 Cal. Rptr. 306] .

- Bailors [McClaflin v. Bayshore Equip. Rental Co. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 446, 452, 79 Cal. Rptr. 337 (defective stepladder); see § 460.143].

- Manufacturer-repairers of products when the defect results from the repair [see Young v. Aro Corp. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 240, 246, 111 Cal. Rptr. 535] .

- Licensors of personal property [Garcia v. Halsett (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 319, 324-326, 82 Cal. Rptr. 420 (defective washing machine in launderette); see also Thomas v. General Motors Corp. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 81, 89, 91 Cal. Rptr. 301 (same); see generally § 460.144].

- Lessors of personal property [Westlye v. Look Sports, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1715, 1741-1742, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 781 ; Price v. Shell Oil Co. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 245, 253, 85 Cal. Rptr. 178, 466 P.2d 722 ; see § 460.143].

- Manufacturers of building lots (manufactured by cutting, filling, grading, compacting, and the like) [GEM Developers v. Hallcraft Homes of San Diego, Inc. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 419, 431, 261 Cal. Rptr. 626 (regarding cross-complaint by contractor for comparative indemnity); Avner v. Longridge Estates (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 607, 609-615, 77 Cal. Rptr. 633 (improper drainage, improper compaction of fill, and organic matter left beneath fill); see § 460.145].

- Sellers of mass-produced homes [Kriegler v. Eichler Homes, Inc. (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 224, 227-229, 74 Cal. Rptr. 749 (defective heating system); Mills v. Forestex Co. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 625, 636, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 273 (plaintiffs' house, siding of which warped, was not mass-produced house); see § 460.146].

- Real estate developers [Stuart v. Crestview Mut. Water Co. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 802, 810-811, 110 Cal. Rptr. 543 (installation of defective water distribution system); see also Casey v. Overhead Door Corp. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 112, 120, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 603 (defective construction, leaking windows)].

- Developers of multiple-unit, residential, planned development complex [Del Mar Beach Club Owners Assn. v. Imperial Contracting Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 898, 911, 913, 176 Cal. Rptr. 886 (defective design and construction of project on unstable bluff)].

- Employers, when an employee's injury or death is proximately caused by a defective product manufactured by the employer and sold, leased, or otherwise transferred for valuable consideration to an independent third person, and that product is thereafter provided for the employee's use by a third person [Lab. Code § 3602(b)(3); see Ch. 360, Master and Servant , regarding anemployer's liability under the dual capacity doctrine].

- Commercial suppliers of electricity, when personal injuries are caused by delivery of electricity at dangerously high voltage because of defective equipment and when the electricity is actually in the stream of commerce and expected to be at a marketable voltage [Stein v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 565, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 907 ; Pierce v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 68, 83-84, 212 Cal. Rptr. 283] . However, strict liability does not apply when the electricity is not in the stream of commerce and in marketable form; for example, the supplier is not strictly liable when the electricity is being transmitted in power lines owned by the supplier of electricity [see United Pac. Ins. Co. v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 700, 707-708, 209 Cal. Rptr. 819 ; see also Pierce v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 68, 84, 212 Cal. Rptr. 283 (dictum); see generally Ch. 277, Gas and Electricity]. For example, if evidence shows that the voltage of the lines was normal, there is no defective product, and strict liability in tort will not lie for defective electric transmission lines or defects anywhere along the distribution lines [Fong v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 30, 36, 245 Cal. Rptr. 436 (judgment in favor of electric utility customer on strict liability in tort theory reversed)].

- A business entity that is the successor in interest to a manufacturer or distributor. In addition to the four traditional exceptions to the general rule of successor nonliability [see § 460.14], a successor may be liable under the product line theory. A successor may be liable in product liability actions to the same extent that the predecessor entity would have been liable had it remained a going concern [Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 30-34, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3 (successor to manufacturer); Kaminski v. Western MacArthur Co. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 445, 454-459, 220 Cal. Rptr. 895 (successor to distributor)]. Successor liability is imposed under the product line theory when:

  - The destruction of plaintiff's remedies against the predecessor was caused by the successor's acquisition of the business.

  - The successor has the ability to assume the predecessor's risk-spreading role.

  - It is fair to require the successor to assume liability in light of the successor's continued operation of the business and use of the predecessor's good will [Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 31, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3 ; Monarch Bay II v. Professional Serv. Indus., Inc. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1216-1217, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 778 ; Kaminski v. Western MacArthur Co. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 445, 454, 220 Cal.

Rptr. 895] . The mere fact that the successor utilizes the name of the original manufacturer is not sufficient to impose liability [Lundell v. Sidney Mach. Tool Co. (1986) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1546, 1557, 236 Cal. Rptr. 70] . Liability may be imposed on a successor only if all three prongs of the test set forth in Ray v. Alad are satisfied [Lundell v. Sidney Mach. Tool Co. (1986) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1546, 1550-1557, 236 Cal. Rptr. 70 ; see Stewart v. Telex Communications, Inc. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 190, 200, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669 (successor liability inappropriate when defendant did not cause bankruptcy of predecessor)]. For a form of complaint alleging that a successor in interest to a manufacturer should be held strictly liable, see § 460.147.

- A restaurant may be strictly liable for failing to warn customers in the context of allergies [Livingston v. Marie Callenders, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 830, 839, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 528 (a customer ate soup that contained an allergy producing food additive)].

- A supplier of raw asbestos is subject to strict products liability [Garza v. Asbestos Corp. (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 651, 658-659, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 359 ; Arena v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1178, 1181, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580] .

- A manufacturer of windows installed in a mass-produced home can be strictly liable for harm resulting from defects in those windows [Jimenez v. Superior Court (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 473, 481, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 614, 58 P.3d 450] .

- Trade mark licensors that are a link in the marketing enterprise which placed the defective product in the stream of commerce [Kasel v. Remington Arms Co. (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 711, 725, 101 Cal. Rptr. 314] .

- Companies involved in the "overall producing and marketing enterprise," [Arriaga v. Citicapital Commercial Corp. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1534, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 143 ; Bay Summit Community Assn v. Shell Oil Co. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 762, 773, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 322 ; see Vu v. Ortho-McNeil Pharm., Inc. (N.D. Cal. 2009) 602 F. Supp. 2d 1151, 1155] such as a company that manufactured a fiberglass mold used to cast an after-market jeep-top [Fortman v. Hemco, Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 241, 251, 259 Cal. Rptr. 311] .

[6] Persons Not Liable

[a] Occasional Seller

The doctrine of strict liability in tort applies only to persons engaged in the business of placing products on the market [Price v. Shell Oil Co. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 245, 253-254, 85 Cal. Rptr. 178, 466 P.2d 722] . The doctrine does not apply to the occasional seller (or lessor or licensor) of a product who is not engaged in the business of selling (or otherwise placing the product into, or moving it along, the stream of commerce) [see Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 228, 251, 71 Cal. Rptr. 306 ; see also Ortiz v. HPM Corp. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 178, 285 Cal. Rptr. 728 (owner sold machine in one-time transaction on liquidation of his own business); Balido v. Improved Mach., Inc. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 633, 640, 105 Cal. Rptr. 890 , criticized on another point, Foglio v. Western Auto Supply (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 470, 476, 128 Cal. Rptr. 545 (manufacturer that sells second-hand piece of equipment it had used in its business but that it was not in business of selling as in position of occasional seller with respect to that piece of equipment))]. Nor does the doctrine apply to a landowner who leases a dwelling as an isolated act, for example, to the owner of a house who leases his own residence temporarily [Vaerst v. Tanzman (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1535, 1539-1541, 272 Cal. Rptr. 503] .

[b] Manufacturer or Supplier of Nondefective Component

A component part manufacturer who had no role in designing the finished product and who supplied a nondefective component cannot be held liable for the defective product [Merrill v. Leslie Controls, Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 262, 271, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614 ; Taylor v. Elliott Turbomachinery Co. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 564, 584, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 414 ; Tellez-Cordova v. Campbell-Hausfeld/Scott Fetzger Co. (2004) 129 Cal. App. 4th 577, 581, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 744 ; Lee v. Electric Motor Div. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 375, 385-387, 215 Cal. Rptr. 195]. A component seller who simply designs a component to the buyer's specifications, and does not substantially participate in the integration of the component into the design of the product, is not liable [Taylor v. Elliott Turbomachinery Co. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 564, 584-585, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 414 ; Artiglio v. General Elec. Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 830, 841, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817 ; Wiler v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 621, 629, 157 Cal. Rptr. 248 ; Walker v. Stauffer Chem. Corp. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 669, 673, 96 Cal. Rptr. 803]. The alleged foreseeability of the risk of the finished product is irrelevant to the issue of the component part manufacturers' liability [Merrill v. Leslie Controls, Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 262, 278, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614 ; Taylor v. Elliott Turbomachinery Co. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 564, 585-586, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 414] .

Only defendants who supply "generic" or "off-the-shelf" components, as to those which are really a separate product with a specific purpose and use, are protected from liability under the component part doctrine [Tellez-Cordova v. Campbell-Hausfeld/Scott Fetzger Co. (2004) 129 Cal. App. 4th 577, 581, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 744 ; Gonzalez v. Autoliv ASP, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 780, 788, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908, 915 ; Springmeyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1541, 1554, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 190, 196]. The fact that a defendant manufactured its equipment pursuant to government or military specifications will not deprive it of the component parts defense [Taylor v. Elliott Turbomachinery Co. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 564, 584-585, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 414] .

[c] Magazine Publisher of Advertisement

Strict products liability (or any other products-liability theory) is inapplicable to a magazine publisher that advertised a product, but in no way sponsored or endorsed the product for its own economic gain [see Walters v. Seventeen Magazine (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1119, 1121-1122, 241 Cal. Rptr. 101 (advertisement of tampons, use of which caused toxic-shock syndrome in plaintiff)]. The advertisement of a product does not constitute a warranty of the product, or create a duty to investigate them, unless the publisher endorses a product for economic gain and for the purpose of inducing the public to buy it. Mere advertisement is also a protected activity under the First Amendment [Walters v. Seventeen Magazine (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1119, 1121-1122, 241 Cal. Rptr. 101 ; cf. Hanberry v. Hearst Corp. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 680, 81 Cal. Rptr. 519 (product endorsed by Good Housekeeping magazine)].

[d] Seller of Services

The sellers of services, as opposed to products, are not subject to strict liability in tort [Haynes v. AMTRAK (C.D. Cal. 2006) 423 F. Supp. 2d 1073, 1085 (Amtrak provided services, not a product); Torres v. City of Madera (In re Torres) (E.D. Cal. July 11, 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 34672, at *46 (training in taser use); Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 487, 275 P.2d 15 (test-hole digger); Ontiveros v. 24 Hour Fitness USA, Inc. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 424, 434-435, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 767 ; Hector v. Cedars-Sinai Med. Ctr. (1985) 180 Cal. App. 3d 493, 501-508, 225 Cal. Rptr. 595 (hospital); Del Mar Beach Club Owners Assn. v. Imperial Contracting Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 898, 914, 176 Cal. Rptr. 886 (soil engineers, structural engineers, and architects of defective development complex); Stuart v. Crestview Mut. Water Co. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 802, 811, 110 Cal. Rptr. 543 (engineers who designed defective water distribution system); Shepard v. Alexian Bros. Hosp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 609-610, 109 Cal. Rptr. 132 (hospital); Allied Properties v. John A. Blume & Associates (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 848, 855-856, 102 Cal. Rptr. 259 (engineering firm which designed allegedly defective pier); Silverhart v. Mount Zion Hosp. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 1028, 98 Cal. Rptr. 187 (hospital); Carmichael v. Reitz (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 958, 978, 95 Cal. Rptr. 381 (doctor)]. In transactions involving both products and services, liability often depends on the defendant's role [Ferrari

v. Grand Canyon Dories (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 248, 258, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65 (defendant provided recreational raft transportation service, not a raft); Pierce v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 68, 83-84, 212 Cal. Rptr. 283]. The determinative issue in mixed purpose transactions is whether the dominant role in supplying the product should be characterized as the performance of a service or the provision of a product [Ontiveros v. 24 Hour Fitness USA, Inc. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 424, 434-435 (dominant purpose of membership agreement was to provide fitness services); Murphy v. E.R. Squibb & Sons, Inc. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 672, 677, 221 Cal. Rptr. 447, 710 P.2d 247 (pharmacist not strictly liable for providing prescription drug)]. This reasoning has been used to deny application of the strict-liability doctrine to a hospital for injuries arising from latent defects in hospital premises. In doing so, the court refused to expand the rule under which a landlord is strictly liable for injuries resulting from a latent defect in leased premises, if the defect existed at the time the premises were leased. Although a landlord is an integral part of the business of producing and marketing rental housing, a hospital primarily provides professional medical services rather than products [Pierson v. Sharp Mem'l Hosp., Inc. (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 340, 343-347, 264 Cal. Rptr. 673] . Persons selling services are liable in tort only for negligence or intentional misconduct [Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 487, 275 P.2d 15 ; Del Mar Beach Club Owners Assn. v. Imperial Contracting Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 898, 914, 176 Cal. Rptr. 886 ; Allied Properties v. John A. Blume & Associates (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 848, 855-856, 102 Cal. Rptr. 259].

[e] Furnishing of Blood and Human Tissue

The doctrine of strict liability in tort is also inapplicable to the furnishing of blood that by statute [Health & Safety Code §§ 1600.4, 1606] is regarded as a service and not a sale [Osborn v. Irwin Mem. Blood Bank (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 234, 272, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101 ; Shepard v. Alexian Bros. Hosp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 609-610, 109 Cal. Rptr. 132 ; accord McDonald v. Sacramento Med. Found. Blood Bank (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 866, 869-874, 133 Cal. Rptr. 444 ; Klaus v. Alameda-Contra Costa Medical Assn. Blood Bank, Inc. (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 417, 418, 133 Cal. Rptr. 92 ; see also Hyland Therapeutics v. Superior Court (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 509, 514-516, 220 Cal. Rptr. 590 (Health & Safety Code § 1606 as constitutional); Fogo v. Cutter Labs., Inc. (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 744, 752, 137 Cal. Rptr. 417 (extending nonliability rule to manufacturer of "Factor IX Konyne," a blood plasma product obtainable only on prescription)].

In a case of first impression, one court of appeal concluded that Health & Safety Code § 1635.2 provides statutory immunity from strict liability to human tissue banks subject to regulation under the Health & Safety Code. The court specifically rejected the plaintiff's argument that the omission in § 1635.2 of language indicating that a tissue bank shall be deemed to provide a service "for all purposes," combined with the reference to the Commercial Code, indicated that the legislature did not intend to immunize tissue banks from strict products liability [Cryolife, Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1153-1155, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 396 (defendant provided infected patellar tendon from human cadaver)].

[f] Pharmacy and Pharmacist

The strict liability doctrine does not impose strict liability on a pharmacy and its pharmacists for injury caused by defective prescription drugs [see Murphy v. E.R. Squibb & Sons, Inc. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 672, 679-688, 221 Cal. Rptr. 447, 710 P.2d 247 (plurality opinion)].

[g] Exceptions Regarding Real Property

The application of the strict liability doctrine to real property developers does not extend to subcontractors who are in the typical general contractor-subcontractor relationship, although developers are subject to strict liability for defects caused by the negligence of their subcontractors [La Jolla Village Homeowners' Assn. v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 1131, 1144-1149, 261 Cal. Rptr. 146] .

The La Jolla court thus held that a subcontractor hired by a developer cannot be strictly liable for defects in mass-produced homes, unless it also owns or controls the housing development. La Jolla also suggested a broader subcontractor exception, under which strict products liability did not apply to subcontractors in the typical real estate construction project regardless of whether they provided services or a product. In Jimenez v. Superior Court (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 473, 481, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 614, 621, 58 P.3d 450 , the California Supreme Court disapproved La Jolla to the extent it is inconsistent with the views expressed in that case.

Engineers and architects working on housing are not held strictly liable for the rendering of professional services [see, e.g., Del Mar Beach Club Owners Assn. v. Imperial Contracting Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 898, 176 Cal. Rptr. 886, 894 ; Swett v. Gribaldo, Jones & Assocs. (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 573, 115 Cal. Rptr. 99, 100-101 (purchaser of home which was rendered uninhabitable could not assert strict liability claim against soils engineer); Stuart v. Crestview Mut. Water Co. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 802, 110 Cal. Rptr. 543, 549] .

[h] Landlord and Hotel Proprietor

Neither landlords nor hotel proprietors are subject to strict products liability for injuries to tenants or guests caused by a defect in the premises [Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1200, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905 , overruling Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116] . The rationales for imposing strict products liability on manufacturers or retailers do not apply to a hotel owner because the owner was not part of the "chain of distribution" of the injury-causing product [Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1199, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905 (bathtub)]. Unlike retailers, landlords and hotel owners often are unable to exert pressure on manufacturers to make their products safer and cannot share the costs of insuring the tenants' or guests' safety with the manufacturer. Also, unlike manufacturers and retailers, landlords and hotel owners cannot necessarily be expected to possess expert knowledge concerning the components that comprise leased dwellings. The Court did not decide whether it would apply different considerations in its analysis in the event that the landlord or hotel owner had participated in the construction of the building [Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1189-1209, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905 , overruling Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116] .

[i] Party With No Connection to Design, Manufacture, or Marketing of Defective Product

A defendant that played no role in the design, manufacture, distribution, or marketing of an injury-causing product is not subject to strict products liability [Cadlo v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 513, 516, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 , modified, 2004 Cal. App. LEXIS 2260 (distinguishing Fortman v. Hemco, Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 241, 259 Cal. Rptr. 311); *see Altman v. Ho Sports Co. (E.D. Cal. Aug. 20, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 80662, at 9 (salesperson)]. For example, the court of appeal refused to impose liability on the developer of the asbestos-containing product Kaylo. The defendant had sold its Kaylo-producing division in 1958 and did not manufacture any of the Kaylo to which the plaintiff was exposed beginning in 1965. The court concluded that the defendant's "historic role in the design, manufacture and marketing of Kaylo" did not support the plaintiff's claims against it, absent any evidence that the defendant had actual connection with the design, manufacture, or distribution of the asbestos to which the plaintiff was exposed. Imposition of strict liability requires a continuous course of business, and the defendant had no business association with, direct or indirect financial interest in, or control over Kaylo for the seven years preceding the plaintiff's exposure [Cadlo v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 513, 523-525, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 , modified, 2004 Cal. App. LEXIS 2260 (distinguishing Fortman v. Hemco, Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 241, 259 Cal. Rptr. 311)].

Entities outside the chain of distribution of the defective product will not be held strictly liable [Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1201-1202, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905 (bathtub); Merrill v. Leslie Controls, Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 262, 270-271, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614 ; Taylor v. Elliott Turbomachinery Co. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 564, 577, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 414] . The plaintiff bears the burden of linking the injury-causing product with a particular entity by evidence establishing that:

- The defendant received a direct financial benefit from the sale of the product;

- The defendant's role was integral to the business enterprise to the degree that its conduct was required to bring the product to the initial consumer market; and

- The defendant had control over, or a substantial ability to influence, the manufacturing or distribution process [Merrill v. Leslie Controls, Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 262, 271-272, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614 ; Taylor v. Elliott Turbomachinery Co. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 564, 576, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 414] . Manufacturers of engine components were not part of the chain of distribution of asbestos-containing material used with their products [Merrill v. Leslie Controls, Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 262, 270-271, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614 ; Taylor v. Elliott Turbomachinery Co. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 564, 579, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 414] .

Applying the "universal" principles of product liability law, a federal district court ruled that an aircraft manufacturer was not liable in multidistrict litigation alleging that seating on its aircraft was defective because it created the risk of deep vein thrombosis in passengers. In each case, the aircraft manufacturer had either delivered the aircraft with no installed seating or installed seating manufactured by another party. The aircraft manufacturer did not deliver the aircraft to the airlines for them to complete its manufacturing process. Instead, the aircraft manufacturer sold the aircraft to the airlines, which were free to do whatever they desired with their purchased aircraft. Moreover, neither the airlines nor the seat manufacturers selected by the airlines were authorized dealers or agents of the aircraft manufacturer [In re Deep Vein Thrombosis (N.D. Cal. 2005) 356 F. Supp. 2d 1055, 1063 , applying California law].

[j] Finance Lessor

Finance lessors are not subject to strict products liability. Because it did not select the specific product involved in the litigation, a finance lessor does not maintain an ongoing relationship with a particular manufacturer. Unlike a retailer or a commercial lessor, it is not in a position to exert pressure on the manufacturer to improve the product's safety. Moreover, a finance lessor does not play an integral role in the "producing and marketing enterprise" of a product [see § 460.11[5], above], and is not strictly liable under a marketing or distribution theory [Arriaga v. Citicapital Commercial Corp. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1537-1538, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 143 (glue spreading machine)]. Imposing strict products liability on a finance lessor would not further the policy considerations underlying the strict products liability doctrine [Arriaga v. Citicapital Commercial Corp. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1539, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 143].

[k] Seller of Used Goods

A seller of used or secondhand products cannot be held in strict liability in tort, unless the seller rebuilds or reconditions the product [Arriaga v. Citicapital Commercial Corp. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1540, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 143 (glue spreading machine)]. The rationale is that a commercial dealer in used goods has no continuing business relationship with the manufacturer through which the dealer can adjust the cost of protection from strict liability [Tauber-Arons Auctioneers Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 268, 283, 161 Cal. Rptr. 789]. Unlike retailers, sellers of used products are not in a position to exert pressure on manufacturers to ensure that the products are safe. The used product dealer is normally outside the original chain of distribution of the product [La Rosa v. Superior Court (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 741, 752-753, 176 Cal. Rptr. 224 (punch press)]. Imposing strict products liability on secondhand products dealers would in effect require them to routinely take apart, inspect, and repair the goods, thereby changing the essence of the used product market [Arriaga v. Citicapital Commercial Corp. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1540, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 143 ; Wilkinson v. Hicks (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 515, 521, 179 Cal. Rptr. 5].

The used products seller's exemption from strict applies to subsequent defects as well [Arriaga v. Citicapital

Commercial Corp. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1540, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 143 ; La Rosa v. Superior Court (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 741, 752-753, 176 Cal. Rptr. 224].

[7] Market-Share Theory of Liability

[a] Required Joinder of Manufacturers Sharing Market

In Sindell v. Abbott Labs. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132, 607 P.2d 924 , the plaintiff was allegedly injured as a result of administration of a drug (diethylstibestrol, or DES) to her mother during pregnancy. Plaintiff, however, could not identify the manufacturer of the precise product prescribed to her mother. The court held that it was reasonable, in the context of the facts before it, to measure the likelihood that any of the defendants supplied the product that allegedly injured plaintiff by the percentage that the DES sold by each of them for the purpose of preventing miscarriage bears to the entire production of the drug sold by all manufacturers for that purpose. The court held that the plaintiff was required to join in the action the manufacturers of a substantial share of the appropriate market of the DES that plaintiff's mother might have taken [Sindell v. Abbott Laboratories (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 611, 612, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132 P.2d 924; see Miles Laboratories, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 587, 595-596, 184 Cal. Rptr. 98 (defendant's motion for summary judgment as properly denied when plaintiff alleged under Sindell that defendant gained a market share by acquiescing in generic drug's use for an unintended purpose); see also Wheeler v. Raybestos-Manhattan (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1152, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109 (offer of proof that used asbestos brake pads were fungible goods, and thus untraceable, was sufficient to avoid nonsuit)].

[b] Shifting of Burden of Proof

The market-share theory affects the burden of proof, in that each defendant will be held liable for the proportion of the judgment represented by its share of that market unless it demonstrates that it could not have made the product that caused plaintiff's injuries [Sindell v. Abbott Labs. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 612, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132, 607 P.2d 924] . Once plaintiff has met the burden of joining the required defendants, the defendants in turn may cross complain against other manufacturers, not joined in the action, that they can allege might have supplied the injury-causing product [Sindell v. Abbott Labs. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 612, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132, 607 P.2d 924] . Thus, Sindell is more than a mere burden-shifting case. It went beyond the burden-shifting precedent of Summers v. Tice (1943) 33 Cal. 2d 80, 199 P.2d 1 , and held that between an innocent plaintiff and a group of allegedly negligent defendants, one of whom probably caused the injury, the latter should bear the costs of the harm. Therefore, the Court in Sindell imposed liability on defendants even though there was a significant possibility that the manufacturer of the particular pills ingested by a plaintiff's mother was not a party to the suit [Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1114-1115, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923] . For discussion of SummersTice, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

[c] Apportionment of Damages

Under Sindell, each manufacturer's liability would approximate its responsibility for the injuries caused by its own products. Some discrepancy in the correlation between market share and liability is inevitable yet justified [Sindell v. Abbott Labs. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 612, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132, 607 P.2d 924] . In interpreting this language of Sindell, the California Supreme Court, in Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470 , rejected the contention that defendants joined under a market-share theory should be jointly liable for the judgment rendered against them, or that Sindell held or implied that finding [Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1074-1075, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470] .

The Court in Brown held that imposition of joint liability would be inconsistent with the rationale of Sindell because a jointly liable defendant could be held responsible for the entire judgment even though its market sharemay have been comparatively insignificant. Liability would therefore be determined by the financial ability of a defendant to undertake payment, rather than by its proportional share of the market. For example, defendants who were solvent would bear the loss if other culpable manufacturers were either not amenable to suit, or judgment proof. The imposition of joint liability would therefore frustrate Sindell's goal of achieving a balance between the interests of DES plaintiffs and manufacturers of the drug. Accordingly, each defendant is liable only for the proportion of the judgment represented by its market share [Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1074-1075, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470] .

[d] Statute of Limitations

The California Supreme Court, in Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1115, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923 , emphasized that Sindell did not create an entirely new tort or identify a new "product" with an independent starting date for the purposes of the statute of limitations. The Court in Jolly rejected a DES plaintiff's contention that the statute of limitations on her claim did not run until the filing of the opinion in Sindell because, although she had knowledge of facts regarding her injury and causation prior to Sindell, that case created a new tort with an independent starting date for purposes of the statute of limitations. The plaintiff had contended that Sindell identified DES as a generic drug, as opposed to the various manufactured brand name products, from which she had previously been unable to isolate the one that caused her injuries.

The Court in Jolly stated that the applicable limitations period for plaintiff's cause of action was one year, pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3), and that it had started to run when she suspected that the defendants' conduct was wrongful, which was prior to the Sindell and well over a year before she filed suit [Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1112-1113, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923 (finding plaintiff's claim barred by statute of limitations)]. The effect of Sindell on the claim of the plaintiff in Jolly was merely to demonstrate the legal significance of facts already known to her [Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1115, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923] . Under the general rule, it is the discovery of facts, not their legal significance, that starts the limitations period [Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1113, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923] . The fact that the plaintiff in Jolly could not identify the manufacturer, and therefore, prior to Sindell, could not have stated a cause of action without naming a particular manufacturer, was not significant, because a change in the law, either by statute or by case law, does not revive claims otherwise barred by the statute of limitations [Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1115-1116, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923] .

Moreover, plaintiff could not claim that, as a putative class member of Sindell, the statute of limitations was tolled on the filing of that action until the class was denied certification, pursuant to the holding of American Pipe & Construction Co. v. Utah (1974) 414 U.S. 538, 94 S. Ct. 756, 38 L. Ed. 2d 713 [Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1118-1125, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923] . The tolling of the limitations period under American Pipe is applicable only under limited circumstances, and does not apply to the members of Sindell's purported class because, among other reasons, the Sindell class suit, which did not regard personal injury claims, could not have apprised defendants of plaintiff's substantive claims [Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1123, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923] .

[e] Limitations on Theory

The theory of market-share liability set forth in Sindell only applies when the product in general is inherently defective for the purpose for which it is marketed, and not when one of the product units was defectively manufactured [see Sheffield v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 583, 593, 192 Cal. Rptr. 870 (polio vaccine)]. The market-share liability theory also cannot be used to impose punitive damages when the plaintiff cannot identify the defendant who supplied the product [see Magallanes v. Superior Court (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 878, 890, 213 Cal. Rptr. 547] . For an allegation based on Sindell, see § 460.169.

Market share liability is inapplicable when the plaintiff is able to identify the manufacturer of the defective product, but not its wholesaler, because the plaintiff is not otherwise without a remedy [Edwards v. A.L. Lease & Co. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259 (defective drain pipe)].

Courts also do not impose market share liability for nonfungible products, such as asbestos [Mullen v. Armstrong World Indus., Inc. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 250, 246 Cal. Rptr. 32] .

In Wheeler v. Raybestos-Manhattan (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1152, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109 , an appellate court held that a plaintiff could proceed on a market share theory against manufacturers of asbestos-containing brake pads, which, although not identical, were fungible because they contained a percentage of asbestos within the restricted range of between 40 percent and 60 percent and posed nearly equivalent risks of harm. It is unclear whether Wheeler's "fungibility" exception remains viable in the 21st century, in light of Rutherford v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 953, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16, 941 P.2d 1203 [see § 460.11[9][b][iv]], in which the Supreme Court rejected an alternative-liability burden shifting instruction in asbestos cases. When presented with the issue, one appellate court did not decide the validity of Wheeler because it determined that Wheeler had no application to the facts of the case [Ferris v. Gatke Corp. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1211, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 819, 827-829 (decedent had been exposed to asbestosnot only from friction brake products but also while working in shipyards and as upholsterer, and plaintiff was able to identify two manufacturers to whose friction products the decedent had been exposed)].

[7a] Concert of Action

Concert of action is another theory of group liability. The theory traces its origins to Summers v. Tice, in which the California Supreme Court held that a plaintiff, struck by birdshot when two hunters each fired their guns in his direction, could recover from both hunters [Summers v. Tice (1948) 33 Cal. 2d 80, 86,199 P.2d 1] . Concert of action requires a common design by two or more tortfeasors to commit a tortious act. This theory may be used to impose liability on a person who did not personally cause harm to the plaintiff, but whose advice or encouragement to act operated as moral support to a tortfeasor. If the act encouraged is known to be tortious, it has the same effect on the liability of the adviser as participation or physical assistance. If the encouragement or assistance is a substantial factor in causing the resulting tort, the one provided it is also a tortfeasor and is responsible for the consequences of the other tortfeasor's act. The classic example of concert of action involves the liability imposed on drag race participants who injure a bystander [see, e,g., Agovino v. Kunze (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 591, 598, 5 Cal. Rptr. 534] . The elements of the theory are set forth in Restatement (Second) of Torts § 876.

Although courts have applied the concert of action theory in drag racing cases [see, e.g., Agovino v. Kunze (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 591, 598, 5 Cal. Rptr. 534] , they have so far declined to apply it in products liability cases. The California Supreme Court specifically rejected application of concert of action liability in a DES case, holding that allegations that the defendants failed to adequately test the drug or to give sufficient warning of its dangers and that they relied on the tests performed by one another and took advantage of each others' promotional techniques were insufficient to satisfy the requirements of the theory. According to the court, this sort of conduct is common practice in industry, and application of the concert of action concept to this situation would render virtually any manufacturer liable for the defective products of an entire industry. The court noted that cases supporting application of concert of action usually involved conduct by a small number of individuals whose actions resulted in a tort against a single plaintiff, usually over a short span of time [Sindell v. Abbott Labs. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 605-606, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132, 607 P.2d 924] .

A few court of appeal opinions have discussed concert of action in asbestos cases, but none have applied the theory. In one case, for example, a mechanic who contracted mesothelioma was unable to prove that he had ever worked with brake shoes manufactured by the defendant. Nevertheless, he contended that the defendant was liable under the concert of action theory, because in the 1930s it had contributed to financing a private research laboratory to study the health effects of asbestos. The laboratory eventually reported the hazards of asbestos to the manufacturers, but the information was not made public for many years. The court held that, as a matter of law, the trial court did not err in refusing to instruct on the concert of action theory. The court expressed constitutional concerns over application of the theory, pointing out that requiring a manufacturer to stand trial predicated solely on its exercise of its First Amendment rights could have a chilling effect on participation in trade group activity [Chavers v. Gatke Corp. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th

606, 615-619, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198] . In another case, the plaintiff alleged concert of action liability based on allegations that the successor to the defendant's asbestos product line, with defendant's approval and assistance, marketed the product by falsely representing its safe use and concealing its hazards. The court held that the allegations did not support a concert of action cause of action, because the plaintiff's injuries were not caused by any asbestos-containing material manufactured by the defendant, and the plaintiff did not allege that the defendant continued to encourage its successor to make false representations about the product [Cadlo v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 513, 522 , 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 , modified, 2004 Cal. App. LEXIS 2260] .

[8] Inherently and Unavoidably Unsafe Products

[a] Civ. Code § 1714.45 Provides Immunity for Certain Common Consumer Products

Civ. Code § 1714.45 provides that in a products liability action, a manufacturer or seller is not liable if the product is inherently unsafe, if the product is known to be unsafe by the ordinary consumer who consumes the product with the ordinary knowledge common to the community, and if the product is a common consumer product intended for personal consumption, such as sugar, castor oil, alcohol, and butter, as identified in Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A, comment i [Civ. Code § 1714.45(a)]. Civ. Code § 1714.45 does not exempt the manufacture or sale of tobacco products by tobacco manufacturers and their successors from liability [Civ. Code § 1714.45(b); see § 460.11[8][b]].

One court of appeal has held that manufacturers of the products enumerated in Civ. Code § 1714.45 are immune from suit without a showing that the product is inherently unsafe and is known to be unsafe by the ordinary consumers [American Tobacco Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 480, 485-490, 255 Cal. Rptr. 280 (noting ambiguity in Civ. Code § 1714.45 regarding effect of enumeration of products, but concluding that scant legislative history available, as well as the intent behind comment i, compelled finding of complete immunity)]. Comment i serves only to illuminate when a manufacturer or seller is not liable for products liability under Civ. Code § 1714.5; it is not part of California law. The California Supreme Court has concluded that to the extent Civ. Code § 1714.45 affords manufacturers or sellers immunity from liability in direct actions against them, it also precludes indirect assignment of comparative fault for purposes of Proposition 51 (Civ. Code § 1431 et seq.) [Richards v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 985, 1003 n.8, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 103, 928 P.2d 1181 (interpreting former Civ. Code § 1714.45 in suit against tobacco manufacturer)].

Civ. Code § 1714.45 does not apply to actions based on manufacturing defects or breach of express warranty [Civ. Code § 1714.45(c)]. Civ. Code § 1714.45 states that it is intended to be declarative of existing law [Civ. Code § 1714.45(d) (citing Cronin v. J.B.E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153 , as existing law not intended to be overruled)].

[b] Tobacco Products

Civ. Code § 1714.45 does not exempt tobacco manufacturers and their successors from liability for the manufacture and sale of tobacco products [Civ. Code § 1714.45(b)]. Tobacco research organizations also are not entitled to statutory immunity [Civ. Code § 1714.45(g)]. Thus, there exists no statutory bar to tobacco-related personal injury, wrongful death, or other tort claims against tobacco research organizations, or tobacco manufacturers and their successors-in-interest by California smokers or others (such as individuals exposed to second-hand smoke) who have suffered or incurred injuries, damages, or costs arising from the promotion, marketing, sale, or consumption of tobacco products [see Civ. Code § 1714.45(f)]. Civ. Code § 1714.45, however, continues to exempt other persons and entities, such as retailers and distributors, from tobacco products liability [see Jacobs v. Philip Morris, Inc. (C.D. Cal. Sept. 4, 2003) 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25016, at *12 (plaintiff could not plead around safe harbor provided by Civ. Code § 1714.45 by recasting cause of action against retailer for tobacco-related injuries as claims for violation of unfair competition law); Harshbarger v. Philip Morris, Inc. (N.D. Cal. April 1, 2003) 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 25023, at *9-*13 (immunity statute barred unfair competition and false advertising claims against retailers brought under Cal. Bus. &

Prof. Code §§ 17200, 17500, despite fact that claims were not labeled as "product liability")].

Civ. Code § 1714.45 also does not apply to actions brought against tobacco companies by public entities to recover the value of benefits provided to individuals suffering tobacco-related illnesses. The fact that an injured individual's claim may have been barred by a prior version of Civ. Code § 1714.45 is not a valid defense [Civ. Code § 1714.45(e)].

Prior to its amendment in 1997, § 1714.45 provided tobacco manufacturers immunity from almost all product liability suits alleging injuries from cigarettes. Effective January 1, 1998, the California legislature amended § 1714.45 to read, "(b) This section does not exempt the manufacture or sale of tobacco products by tobacco manufacturers and their successors in interest from product liability actions ... ." Courts were almost immediately faced with questions as to the applicability of the amended statute, known as the "repeal statute," particularly in cases involving conduct occurring before the statute's effective date. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals certified to the California Supreme Court a question of law concerning the proper interpretation of the amendments to Cal. Civ. Code § 1714.45 [Myers v. Phillip Morris Cos. (9th Cir. 2001) 239 F.3d 1029 (the court stayed the proceedings since the answer to the question is determinative to the appeal)]. The question was whether the amendments to § 1714.45 that became effective on January 1, 1998, apply to a claim that accrued after January 1, 1998 based on conduct that occurred prior to January 1, 1998.

Applying the presumption against retroactive application of a statute, the California Supreme Court, in Myers v. Philip Morris Co. (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 828, 759-763 , concluded that the repeal statute is perspective only, and that the immunity statute continuesto shield tobacco companies in product liability actions for conduct they engaged in during the ten-year period ending Jan. 1, 1998 [Myers v. Philip Morris Co. (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 828, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 40, 50 P.3d 751, 759-763 (neither language of § 1714.45(f) nor legislative history constituted "clear indication" that repeal statute was to apply retroactively, and constitutional considerations also reinforced court's construction of statute as prospective only)]. As for the tobacco companies' conduct before the immunity period, however, liability is determined by applying general tort principles. Although the repeal statute has no retroactive effect, it nonetheless removed the protection that the immunity statute conferred on tobacco companies for their conduct occurring before the immunity statute's effective date [Myers v. Philip Morris Co. (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 828, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 40 (retroactive effect is one that impairs rights party possessed when he or she acted, and repeal statute did not impair any rights that tobacco companies possessed before immunity period; on contrary, by abrogating immunity statute, repeal statute restored law governing product liability for tobacco products to what it had been before Jan. 1, 1988)].

In Myers' companion case, Naegele v. R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 856, 862-867, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 61, 50 P.3d 769 , the court addressed what forms of conduct during the 10-year immunity period fall within the protection conferred by the immunity statute. The court concluded that the statute's protection does not extend to allegations that the tobacco companies used additives that exposed smokers to dangers beyond those commonly known to be associated with cigarette smoking. Looking to the history and purpose of the immunity statute, the court found that it was intended to protect tobacco companies from liability for products containing pure and unadulterated tobacco, when the claim seeks damages for injuries or deaths resulting from risks that are commonly known to be inherent in tobacco products. Thus, the immunity statute did not bar claims that the defendants manipulated the addictive properties of cigarettes via additives and controlled nicotine delivery through adding ammonia. However, allegations that the defendants increased the nicotine content of their cigarettes through blended or high-nicotine tobacco, and lied about the addictive nature of smoking, fell squarely within the reach of the immunity statute.

California courts have subsequently applied the principles set forth in Myers/Naegele without difficulty [Boeken v. Philip Morris, Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1670-1674, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638 (except for 10-year period, defendant was not entitled to jury instruction (BAJI No. 9.00.6) derived from former Civ. Code § 1714.45); Whiteley v. Philip Morris, Inc. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 635, 651-665, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 807 (court committed prejudicial error in refusing to instruct jury regarding 10-year statutory immunity); Souders v. Philip Morris Inc. (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 15, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 748, 755-756] .

[c] Drugs and Vaccines Are "Unavoidably Unsafe Products" Under Comment k

The California Supreme Court, in Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1061, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470 , has adopted the approach of Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A, comment k, with regard to certain drugs classified as "unavoidably unsafe products," holding that a drug manufacturer's liability for a defectively designed drug of that nature should not be measured by the standards of strict liability if the drug is properly prepared and contains proper warnings [Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1061, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470 ; see Johnson v. Honeywell Int'l Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 549, 562, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726] . However, strict liability may apply to a drug manufacturer who fails to warn of a drug's dangerous propensities [Carlin v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 1104, 1110, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162, 920 P.2d 1347 ; *Gilbert v. Watson Labs., Inc. (S.D. Cal. Oct. 9, 2008) 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 79539, at 7 (Prednisone) ; see § 460.11[10][a]].

Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A, comment k states that there are some products that, in the present state of human knowledge, are incapable of being made safe for their intended and ordinary use, which commonly include drugs. For example, with respect to a vaccine for a serious disease, both the marketing and use of the product are fully justified, notwithstanding the unavoidable high degree of risk involved. That product, properly prepared, and accompanied by proper directions and warning, is neither defective nor unreasonably dangerous. Moreover, many new or experimental drugs, which lack assurances of safety due to urgency of need, are justifiably marketed and used, notwithstanding a medically recognizable risk. If a drug of this type is properly prepared and marketed, and includes a proper warning, the seller is not held to strict liability for unfortunate consequences attending its use merely because the seller has undertaken to supply the public with an apparently useful and desirable product, attended with a known but apparently reasonable risk [Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A, cmt. k; Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1058-1059, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470] .

In adopting comment k, the Court in Brown rejected the contrary view that a drug manufacturer should be strictly liable for a defective product due to defective design as defined in Barker v. Lull, that is, a product that is either "perfectly" manufactured but lacking a safety device, or lacking adequate warnings or instructions [see § 460.11[9]]. The Court also rejected the contention that liability could be based on failure to warn of the drug's dangerous propensities even when the dangers were neither known nor scientifically knowable at the time of distribution [Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1057, 1060, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470] . The Court also expressly disapproved the holding of Kearl v. Lederle Laboratories (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 812, 829-830, 218 Cal. Rptr. 453 , which stated that strict liability for design defects should apply to prescription drugs unless the particular drug that caused the injury is found to be "unavoidably dangerous," pursuant to a preliminary "mini trial" by the trial judge, weighing the benefit and risk of that particular product [Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1061, 1066-1067, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470] . The Court rejected the holding in Kearl on the grounds that it does not allow the manufacturer to predictthe test by which its product will be ultimately evaluated, that it fosters different conclusions at the trial level for the same drug, and that the judge and jury in the same case may render inconsistent findings [Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1067-1068, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470] .

The Court in Brown concluded that a manufacturer is not strictly liable for injuries caused by a prescription drug so long as the drug was properly prepared and accompanied by warnings of its dangerous propensities that were either known or reasonably scientifically knowable at the time of distribution, because of the public interest in the development, availability, and reasonable price of drugs [Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1058-1061, 1069, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470 ; see § 460.166].

[d] Implanted Medical Devices

Implanted medical devices may also be classified as unavoidably unsafe products. The manufacturer is not strictly liable for injuries caused by an implanted prescription medical product that has been properly made, and distributed with information regarding risks and dangers of which the manufacturer knew or should have known at the time [see Notmeyer v. Stryker Corp. (N.D. Cal. 2007) 502 F. Supp. 2d 1051, 1058-1059 (hip replacement system); Artiglio v. Superior Court (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1394-1396, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 589 (breast implants); Plenger v. Alza Corp. (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 349, 359-361, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 811 (intrauterine devices); Hufft v. Horowitz (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 8, 11, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 377 (penile prostheses)].

[e] Applicability of Comment k to Other Products

Courts have thus far declined to expand the scope of comment k's "unavoidably unsafe" defense beyond products such as prescription drugs, vaccines, and medical devices [Wilkinson v. Bay Shore Lumber Co. (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 594, 602, 227 Cal. Rptr. 327 (lumber)]. In Johnson v. Honeywell Int'l Inc. [Johnson v. Honeywell Int'l Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 549, 562, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726] , defendants urged the court to apply the defense to air conditioning refrigerants. The court declined to decide the issue in light of the scant evidentiary record and the fact that it was raised for the first time on appeal.

[9] Defect

[a] Defect in Manufacture

A manufacturing defect exists when a product unit deviates from the manufacturer's intended result or from other ostensibly identical units of the same product line [Barker v. Lull Eng'g Co. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 413, 429, 143 Cal. Rptr. 225, 573 P.2d 443] . For example, a product that comes off an assembly line in substandard condition has a manufacturing defect [Notmeyer v. Stryker Corp. (N.D. Cal. 2007) 502 F. Supp. 2d 1051, 1059 ; Gonzalez v. Autoliv ASP, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 780, 791, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908, 918 ; McCabe v. American Honda Motor. Co. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1111, 1120, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303 ; Montez v. Ford Motor Co. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 315, 321, 161 Cal. Rptr. 578] . As another example, a manufacturer's failure to comply with its own design specifications regarding the assembly of a crane that injured plaintiff was held to be the basis of a manufacturing defect [Lewis v. American Hoist & Derrick Co. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 570, 580, 97 Cal. Rptr. 798] .

In one case, a plaintiff claimed that defective natural rubber latex (NRL) gloves caused her to develop a life-threatening allergy to all forms of NRL by allowing excessive levels of latex proteins to remain present on the surface of the gloves during manufacture. It was undisputed that the allergic agents could be reduced or eliminated through washing and chlorinating procedures in the design and manufacture of the gloves. Plaintiff contendedthat the defendant "took too long" to make that its standard practice, in light of its knowledge and research. The appellate court concluded that the plaintiff failed to show that the latex gloves--which were manufactured precisely as intended, complied with government standards, and fulfilled their primary barrier function--nevertheless had manufacturing defects due to the existence of evidence of the manufacturer's improvement efforts, targets, and goals, at different times and locations, reflective of the available state of scientific knowledge regarding latex protein levels of exposure [In re Coordinated Latex Glove Litig. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 594, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 301, 315-316] .

If a plaintiff alleges that a product is defective, proof that the product has malfunctioned is essential to establish the element of causation. For example, in the case of a heart valve that is recalled because of a defect that has caused malfunctioning in some cases, the manufacturer of the valve is not subject to a cause of action in product liability brought by a person in whom the valve was implanted if that particular valve has not yet malfunctioned [Khan v. Shiley Inc. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 848, 855, 266 Cal. Rptr. 106] . In such a case, a plaintiff also cannot state causes of action in negligence for failure to warn or for breach of warranty, based on the risk that the product may malfunction in the future [Khan v. Shiley Inc. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 848, 857, 266 Cal. Rptr. 106] .

[b] Defect in Design

[i] Alternative Test

Strict liability in tort can be based on a product's defective design if the defect causes injury while the product is being used in a reasonably foreseeable way [Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 548, 560, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607, 882 P.2d 298 ; Cronin v. J.B.E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 126-130, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153] . A product is defective in design if either [Barker v. Lull Engineering Co. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 413, 417, 418, 435, 143 Cal. Rptr. 225, 573 P.2d 443] :

- The plaintiff demonstrates that the product failed to perform as safely as an ordinary consumer would expect when used in an intended or reasonably foreseeable manner [Johnson v. Honeywell Int'l Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 549, 558, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726 ; Bullock v. Philip Morris USA, Inc. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 655, 674, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 775 ; Gonzalez v. Autoliv ASP, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 780, 786, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908 ; Karlsson v. Ford Motor Co. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1208, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 265 ; Boeken v. Philip Morris Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1668, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638 ("light" cigarettes)].

- The plaintiff proves that the product's design proximately caused his or her injury, and the defendant fails to prove that on balance the benefits of the design outweigh its inherent risk of danger. [Johnson v. Honeywell Int'l Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 549, 558, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726 ; Bullock v. Philip Morris USA, Inc. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 655, 674, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 775 ; Gonzalez v. Autoliv ASP, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 780, 786, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908 ; Karlsson v. Ford Motor Co. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1208, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 265 ; Ford v. Polaris Indus., Inc. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 755, 775-776, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215] .

[ii] Consumer Expectation Test

Although the test is alternative, the "consumer expectation" test is reserved for cases in which the everyday experience of the product's users permits a conclusion that the product's design violated minimum safety assumptions, and is thus defective regardless of expert opinion about themerits of the design [Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 548, 567, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607, 882 P.2d 298 ; Stephen v. Ford Motor Co. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1363, 1370, n.6, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 9 (tire and vehicle); Jones v. John Crane, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 990, 1001-1004, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144 (asbestos); Morson v. Superior Court of San Diego Co. (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 775, 791-794, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 343 (in latex glove case, court properly restricted plaintiffs from seeking jury instructions pursuant to consumer expectations test)]. A complex product, even when used as intended, may cause injury in a way that does not engage its ordinary consumers' reasonable minimum assumptions about safe performance. The Supreme Court set forth this rule in holding that the consumer expectation test was improperly submitted to the jury in a case involving the crashworthiness of an automobile, on the ground that the ordinary consumer of an automobile has no idea how it should perform in all foreseeable situations, or how safe it should be made against all foreseeable hazards [Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 548, 566-567, 570, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607, 882 P.2d 298] .

However, whether a product is susceptible to the consumer expectation analysis cannot be determined by looking at the product in isolation, but must be considered in the context of the facts surrounding the its failure [McCabe v. American Honda Motor Co. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1111, 1122, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303] . As the Supreme Court made clear, the critical question is whether the circumstances of the product's failure permit an inference that the product's design performed below the legitimate, commonly accepted minimum safety assumptions of its ordinary consumers [Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 548, 568-569, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607, 882 P.2d 298] . In one case, the plaintiff was injured when the air bag deployed in a frontal collision with an on-coming car. The Second Appellate District, Division Six, affirmed the refusal to instruct the jury on the consumer expectations test, holding that the deployment of an air bag is not part of the consuming public's everyday experience [Pruitt v. General Motors Corp. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1480, 1483, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 4] . In another case, the plaintiff was injured when the air bag deployed in a low-speed, rear-end collision. The Second Appellate District, Division Two, reversed the refusal to instruct the jury on the consumer expectations test, holding that an ordinary consumer is equipped to form expectations of the safety of a car with an air bag in a minor collision [Bresnahan v. Chrysler Corp. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1559, 1568, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 446] . This apparent inconsistency was explained by the Second Appellate District, Division Seven in a case arising when a driver's side air bag failed to deploy in a frontal collision. In holding that triable issues of fact precluded a finding that the consumer expectations test was inapplicable as a matter of law, the court explained that the three cases involved three factually distinct scenarios. Deciding whether the functioning of an air bag lends itself, in every circumstances, to the consumer expectation test would improperly focus on the nature of the product without regard to the circumstances of its purported failure. Issues of material fact existed as to the circumstances of the accident, i.e., the speed and collision range, and the plaintiff provided sufficient evidence for the jury to infer that nondeployment of the air bag, in the context of a high-speed, head-on collision, violated the minimum safety expectations of the ordinary consumer [McCabe v. American Honda Motor Co. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1111, 1122, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303] .

Courts have consistently approved the use of the consumer expectations test in asbestos litigation [see, e.g., Jones v. John Crane, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 990, 1001-1004, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144 ; Sparks v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 461, 474, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 739] . The consumer expectations test does not require inquiry into how exposure to a particular level of asbestos may lead to the development of cancer. Instead, it merely asks whether the circumstances permit an inference that the product's design performed below the commonly accepted minimum safety assumptions of its ordinary consumer [Jones v. John Crane, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 990, 1003, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144] . At least one court has found that the consumer expectations test applies to raw asbestos as well [Garza v. Asbestos Corp. (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 651, 659-660, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 359 (2008)]. The consumer expectations test has been applied to torts involving many other products, including home pesticides [Arnold v. Dow Chem. Co. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 698, 726, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722] , cigarettes [Bullock v. Philip Morris USA, Inc. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 655, 674, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 775], and lawnmowers [*Jordan v. Deere & Co. (E.D. Cal. July 5, 2006) 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 47904, at 10] .

The fact that the plaintiff must present expert testimony to establish causation between a product defect and his or her injury does not preclude use of the consumer expectations test [Jones v. John Crane, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 990, 1001-1002, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144] .

Instructions based on the consumer expectations test are not appropriate if, as a matter of law, the evidence would not support a jury verdict on that theory. In such a case, the jury must be instructed solely on the alternative, risk-benefit theory of design defect [Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 548, 568, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607, 882 P.2d 298] .

[iii] Risk-Benefit Test

Under the risk-benefit test, once the injured party has shown that the design feature proximately caused his or her injury, the burden shifts to the manufacturer to prove that the product is not defective [Barker v. Lull Eng'g Co. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 413, 431, 143 Cal. Rptr. 225, 237, 573 P.2d 443 ; Johnson v. Honeywell Int'l Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 549, 560, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726 ; Gonzalez v. Autoliv ASP, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 780, 786, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908 ; McCabe v. American Honda Motor Co. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1111, 1121, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303]. The manufacturer must go forward with evidence of the benefits of the design feature that caused the injury. In so doing, the manufacturer may introduce evidence of aesthetic, economic, or engineering reasons for the design [Pietrone v. American Honda Motor Co. (1986) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1057, 1062, 235 Cal. Rptr. 137] . Factors the jury may consider in determining the adequacy of a product's design under the risk-benefit test include the gravity of the danger posed by the design, the likelihood that such danger would occur, the mechanical feasibility of a safer alternative design, the financial cost of an improved design, and the adverse consequences to the product and the consumer that would result from an alternative design [Barker v. Lull Eng'g Co. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 413, 418, 143 Cal. Rptr. 225, 573 P.2d 443 ; Gonzalez v. Autoliv ASP, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 780, 786, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908].

A few early cases indicated that, under the risk-benefit test, the plaintiff has the burden of proving the existence of a feasible alternative design [see Garcia v. Joseph Vince Co. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 868, 879 n.3, 148 Cal. Rptr. 843 ; see also Baker v. Chrysler Corp. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 710, 716, 127 Cal. Rptr. 745 (decided prior to Barker v. Lull)]. Then, in Bernal v. Richard Wolf Medical Instruments Corp. [(1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1326, 1332-1333, 272 Cal. Rptr. 41 , overruled in part on other grounds in Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 548, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607, 882 P.2d 298], the court of appeal explained that the burden of proving a feasible alternative design did not survive Barker v. Lull Engineering Co. [(1978) 20 Cal. 3d 413, 143 Cal. Rptr. 225, 573 P.2d 443]. Courts apparently no longer require the plaintiff to prove the existence of a feasible alternative design in strict liability design defect cases [*see Yu-Santos v. Ford Motor Co. (E.D. Cal. May 13, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 41001, at 49 ; Gonzalez v. Autoliv ASP, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 780, 791, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908]. One appellate court refused to address a manufacturer's argument that the plaintiff did not provide adequate evidence of a safer alternative design, where the jury had not been instructed that proof of a safer alternative design was required [Bullock v. Philip Morris USA, Inc. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 655, 674, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 775].

In proving that a product was defectively designed, evidence showing that subsequent safety improvements have been instituted regarding the defective product or other similar products may be of relevance in showing that safer alternatives were feasible [see Aguayo v. Crompton & Knowles Corp. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1032, 1038-1040, 228 Cal. Rptr. 768] .

The dual tests for design defect are not inconsistent, and it is often the case that a plaintiff is able to allege that a product was defective on bothgrounds [see Williams v. Beechnut Nutrition Corp. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 135, 141, 229 Cal. Rptr. 605 (glass food container designed to be given to young children)].

[iv] Causation

[A] Substantial Factor Test

A manufacturer is liable only if a defect in its product was a legal cause of injury [Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 548, 572, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607, 882 P.2d 298 ; Cronin v. J.B.E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 133-134, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153] . A tort is a legal cause of injury only if it is a substantial factor in producing the injury [*Sanders v. City of Fresno (E.D. Cal. July 3, 2006) 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 48582, at *47-56 (taser); Mitchell v. Gonzales (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 1041, 1048-1054, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 913, 819 P.2d 872 ; Sarti v. Salt Creek Ltd. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1187, 1210, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 506 ; Whiteley v. Philip Morris, Inc. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 635, 696, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 807] , and not interrupted by a superseding cause [Torres v. Xomox Corp. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1, 18 ; Cal. Rptr. 2d 455 (third-party negligence as possible superseding cause)].

The substantial factor standard is a relatively broad one, requiring only that the defendant's contribution be more than negligible or theoretical [Bockrath v. Aldrich Chem. Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 71, 79, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 846, 980 P.2d 398 ; Bunch v. Hoffinger Indus., Inc. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1278, 1303-1304, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 780 ; *see McIntyre v. Warren Pumps LLC (N.D. Cal. April 30, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 35954, at 12] . A plaintiff need not establish that the defendant's product was the sole proximate cause of his or her injury, but only that the defendant's conduct substantially contributed to the injury and the circumstances make it just to hold the defendant responsible for the consequences of the injury [Bates v. John Deere Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 40, 50, 195 Cal. Rptr. 637] .

Under this definition, an abstract defect in a vehicle's collision safety cannot be considered a substantial factor in causing injuries if the external force of the vehicle accident was so severe that it would have caused identical injuries notwithstanding the alleged defect [Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 548, 572, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607, 882 P.2d 298] .

Reasonable medical probability is enough to establish proximate cause. Scientific certainty is not required. For example, although it has not been ascertained how the inhalation of asbestos fibers leads to lung cancer, a plaintiff may prove causation by showing that exposure to an asbestos-containing product, in reasonable medical probability, was a substantial factor in contributing to the risk of developing asbestos-related cancer [Rutherford v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 953, 974-976, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16, 941 P.2d 1203] . Factors relevant to assessing whether such a medical probability exists include the frequency of exposure, regularity of exposure, and proximity of the asbestos product to the plaintiff [Weber v. John Crane, Inc. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1433, 1438, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 71 ; Lineaweaver v. Plant Insulation Co. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1409, 1416, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 902] . A plaintiff thus cannot prevail without evidence that he or she was exposed to asbestos-containing materials manufactured or furnished by the defendant with enough frequency and regularity as to show a reasonable medical probability that this exposure was a factor in causing plaintiff's injuries [Weber v. John Crane, Inc. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1433, 1438, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 71 ; McGonnell v. Kaiser Gypsum Co. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1098, 1103, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 23] .

[B] Proving Exposure to Defendant's Product

The plaintiff must prove exposure to defendant's product to prove causation. This is a threshold issue in asbestos and other toxic tort litigation [see Kennedy v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (9th Cir. 2001) 268 F.3d 763, 769-771 (no reasonable juror could have found that radiation played more than "infinitesimal" or "theoretical" part in bringing about plaintiff's disease); Rutherford v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 953, 975-976, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16, 941 P.2d 1203 ; Jones v. John Crane, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 990, 999, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144 ; McGonnell v. Kaiser Gypsum Co. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1098, 1103, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 23 (plaintiff showed only, at best, that decedent might have cut into wall that might have contained defendant's joint compound that might have contained asbestos)].

In Weber v. John Crane, Inc. [(2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1433, 1439, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 71] , the court clarified that a defendant does not shift the burden of production to the plaintiff by showing that the plaintiff has no personal recall of the defendant's product. Rather, the defendant must make an affirmative showing that the plaintiff will be unable to prove his or her case by any means [citing Aguilar v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 826, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841, 850-851, 24 P.3d 493] . The fact that the plaintiff was unable to recall whether he had worked around defendant's product over 40 years earlier did not mean that he would be unable to recognize defendant's product if shown its packaging or logo. Defendant's evidence did not support an inference that the plaintiff did not possess and could not reasonably obtain the requisite evidence. Thus, the burden did not shift to plaintiff to make a prima facie showing of a triable issue of material fact regarding his exposure to defendant's product [Weber v. John Crane, Inc. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1433, 1439-1443, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 71 ; see also Scheiding v. Dinwiddie Constr. Co. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 64, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360] .

A different result was reached in Andrews v. Foster Wheeler LLC [(2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 96, 109, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229] . The plaintiff in Andrews was a sailor who admitted in deposition that he did not know if he had ever been present when anyone was working with defendant's asbestos products. Unlike the defendant in Weber, above, the defendant in Andrews submitted plaintiffs' nonresponsive answers to special interrogatories designed to elicit information about the plaintiff's exposure to defendant's product. Specifically, the plaintiff submitted the names of coworkers and supervisors and provided a list of depositions, but did not disclose any facts known by those persons or contained in the documents. In light of the interrogatory questions, plaintiff's failure to provide any information admitted that he had no further information. The defendant thus met its initial burden of making a prima facie showing that a triable issue of fact did not exist regarding causation. Expert declarations submitted in response to defendant's summary judgment motion, suggesting that plaintiff could have been exposed to asbestos fibers released into the air from condensers many years before he became aboard, amounted to little more than speculation [Andrews v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 96, 108, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229 ; *see McIntyre v. Warren Pumps LLC (N.D. Cal. April 30, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 35954, at 14 (distinguishing Andrews)]. The court affirmed the summary judgment granted in favor of the defendant.

[C] Proving Causation in Food Cases

Food poisoning cases are governed by the same rules as those that control other personal injury actions. A plaintiff must prove that the food product was unwholesome and caused his or her illness. A prima facie case is not made merely by showing that the plaintiff became sick after eating food produced, supplied, or served by the defendant [Minder v. Cielito Lindo Restaurant (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 1003, 1008, 136 Cal. Rptr. 915]. Reasonable inferences are available to show causation [Sarti v. Salt Creek Ltd. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1187, 1191, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 506 (expert testimony linked particular type of food poisoning involved to particular unsanitary conditions at restaurant)]. In Sarti v. Salt Creek Ltd. [(2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1187, 1201-1202, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 506] , the Fourth Appellate District, Division Three, declined to follow Minder v. Cielito Lindo Restaurant [(1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 1003, 136 Cal. Rptr. 915] , to the extent that it requires a plaintiff in food poisoning cases to exclude other possible causes of his or her illness. California applies the substantial factor test for causation [see [A], above], and there is no heightened standard of causation in food cases [Sarti v. Salt Creek Ltd. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1187, 1210-1211, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 506].

[v] Firearms and Ammunition

In 1983, the California legislature enacted former Cal. Civ. Code § 1714.4. The statute provided that in a product liability action, no firearm or ammunition could be deemed defective in design on the basis that the benefits of the product do not outweigh the risk of injury posed by its potential to cause serious injury, damage, or death when discharged [former Cal. Civ. Code § 1714.4(a)]. The statute thus foreclosed use of any type of risk-benefit analysis when evaluating the design of firearms or ammunition [Moore v. R.G. Indus., Inc. (9th Cir. 1986) 789 F.2d 1326, 1327-1328] . Former § 1714.4(c) provided an exception to the general exemption of product liability for a "products liability cause of action based upon the improper selection of design alternatives."

Former Cal. Civ. Code § 1714.4 was repealed in 2002 [Stats. 2002, ch. 906, § 2 (AB 496), ch. 913, § 2 (SB 682)]. While the statute was in effect, however, it effectively immunized the firearm industry from claims by victims of violence. For example, plaintiffs brought negligence claims in an effort to circumvent the statute and hold manufacturers of properly functioning weapons accountable. In 2001, in Merrill v. Navegar, Inc. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 465, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370 , 28 P.3d 116 , the California Supreme Court put an end to these efforts, holding that former § 1714.4(a) precluded recovery in common law negligence against the manufacturer for the deaths of persons killed by TEC-9/DC9s.

Merrill arose when an assailant entered a law firm and killed eight persons, wounded six others, and then killed himself with the TEC-9/DC9's and another pistol. Plaintiffs' ordinary negligence claim was based on the manufacturer's decision to make available for sale to the general public guns which have no legitimate sporting or self-defense purpose and which are particularly well adopted to a military-style assault on large numbers of people. Plaintiffs thus alleged that the manufacturer "acted negligently by manufacturing, marketing, and making available for sale to the general public" the TEC-9/DC9. Plaintiffs' argument that former § 1714.4 was inapplicable to their action because it was not a products liability action, i.e., they sought to hold Navegar liable for its negligent conduct, not for making a defective product, was without merit. Moreover, their allegations that Navegar was liable because it designed and widely distributed a weaponuniquely suited for mass killing and lacking legitimate civilian uses squarely fit within risk/utility test. Plaintiffs could not avoid the legislative policy § 1714.4 reflects simply by declining to use the word "defect" or "defective," or by reformulating their claim as one for negligent distribution to the general public [Merrill v. Navegar, Inc. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 465, 480-485, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370, 28 P.3d 116, 125-129] .

The Merrill decision most likely prompted the legislature to repeal former Cal. Civ. Code § 1714.4 in 2002 [see Emily Kromke, Note, California's Legislative Response to Merrill v. Navegar: An Analysis, 24 Whittier L. Rev. 833, 834 (2003)]. That same year, the California legislature amended Cal. Civ. Code § 1714(a) to add that "[t]he design, distribution, or marketing of firearms and ammunition is not exempt from the duty to use ordinary care and skill that is required by this section." The repeal of § 1714.4 was not intended to create new causes of action against firearm manufacturers, but to preserve all actions against them including products liability, nuisance, and statutorily-based actions [In re Firearm Cases (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 959, 973, n.12, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659 (2005)] .

Plaintiffs subsequently restructured their negligent marketing claims to avoid falling within the scope of Merrill. One case appeared to be initially successful. A federal court had dismissed a complaint arising out of the shooting of several persons in a Jewish Community Center. On appeal, the court found that Merrill was distinguishable. In Merrill, the references to distribution were to distribution of a defective product. Here, plaintiffs did not allege that Glock was negligent in distributing its defective firearms to the general public. Rather, they contended that Glock's distribution scheme specifically targets criminal users. The Merrill plaintiffs alleged that the gun manufacturers' actions in distributing the guns to the general public were negligent due to the guns' alleged defective design features. The plaintiffs here focused on the negligent distribution of a non-defective product. The focus was on the defendants' affirmative actions in distributing their products to create an illegal secondary market for guns that targeted illegal purchasers. As a result, this action alleged negligence and public nuisance claims; it did not allege that the guns in question were defectively designed or manufactured or that there were inadequate warnings [Ileto v. Glock, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 349 F.3d 1191, 1201 , applying California law]. The wording of former § 1714.4 is carefully limited to products liability actions and has never acted to bar a negligence case or nuisance case. Thus, even though § 1714.4 was in force at the time of the shootings and when the complaint was filed, it did not affect the action [Ileto v. Glock, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 349 F.3d 1191, 1202 , applying California law]. The plaintiffs alleged sufficient facts for a reasonable jury to conclude that through their distribution practices, defendants created an illegal secondary market targeting prohibited purchasers that placed plaintiffs in a situation in which they were exposed to an unreasonable risk of harm through the reasonably foreseeable conduct of a prohibited purchaser [Ileto v. Glock, Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 349 F.3d 1191, 1203 , applying California law]. The court reversed the dismissal of the negligence, nuisance, survival, and wrongful death claims, and remanded the case for further action [Ileto v. Glock Inc. (9th Cir. 2003) 349 F.3d 1191, 1217 , applying California law].

The Ileto plaintiffs' apparent victory was short-lived. On October 26, 2005, President Bush approved the Protection of Lawful Commerce in Arms Act (PLCAA) [Pub. L. No. 109-92, 119 Stat. 2095, 15 U.S.C.S. § 7901 et seq.]. The PLCAA, effective immediately, requires that a "qualified civil liability" action pending on the date of enactment be immediately dismissed. The Act defines a "qualified civil liability action" as an action against a manufacturer or seller of a qualified product, or a trade association for any type of damages or equitable relief resulting from the criminal misuse of a firearm [15 U.S.C.S. § 7903(5)(A)]. It provides for six exceptions to this definition [15 U.S.C.S. § 7903(5)(A)(i)-(iv)]. Under the "predicate exception," firearms manufacturers and dealers are still liable if they "knowingly violated a State or Federal statute applicable to the sale or marketing" of a firearm, and the violation proximately caused the harm for which relief is sought [15 U.S.C.S. § 7903(5)(A)(iii)]. The federal court determined that the Ileto plaintiffs' cause of action did not fall within the predicate exception [Ileto v. Glock, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2006) 421 F. Supp. 2d 1274, 1297-1298] . The court also held that the PLCAA--including its retroactive provision--is constitutional [Ileto v. Glock, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2006) 421 F. Supp. 2d 1274, 1299-1304] . The Act resulted in the dismissal with prejudice of Ileto v. Glock.

[10] Failure to Warn or Instruct

[a] Duty to Warn

[i] General Rule

A product that is not defective in either manufacture or design, that is, a product that is faultlessly made, may nevertheless be rendered defective within the meaning of the strict-liability doctrine because of a failure to give adequate directions or warning of a potential danger in its use [see, e.g., Haynes v. AMTRAK (C.D. Cal. 2006) 423 F. Supp. 2d 1073, 1079-1084 ; Johnson v. American Standard, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 56, 64, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108, 179 P.3d 905 ; Merrill v. Leslie Controls, Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 262, 271, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614 ; Oxford v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 700, 717, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418 ; Gonzalez v. Autoliv ASP, Inc. (2007)

154 Cal. App. 4th 780, 793, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908 ; Valentine v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (1999) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1467, 1483, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 252 (manufacturer's strict liability duty to warn is greater than its duty under negligence); Wright v. Stang Mfg. Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1229, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422 (deck gun); Schwoerer v. Union Oil Co. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 103, 111-112, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227 (solvent); Cavers v. Cushman Motor Sales, Inc. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 338, 343-350, 157 Cal. Rptr. 142] . The failure to issue an adequate warning may subject manufacturers and distributors to strict liability if they knew or should have known of the danger and the necessity of warnings to ensure safe use [Johnson v. American Standard, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 56, 64, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108, 179 P.3d 905 ; Carlin v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 1104, 1110, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162, 920 P.2d 1347 ; Gonzalez v. Autoliv ASP, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 780, 793, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908 ; Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 996, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549 ; Rosburg v. Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 726, 734, 226 Cal. Rptr. 299 ; Blackwell v. Phelps Dodge Corp. (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 372, 377, 203 Cal. Rptr. 706 ; see §§ 460.164 -460.167].

Whether the absence of a warning makes a product defective involves consideration of several factors, including a consumer's normal expectations of how the product will perform, the degree of simplicity or complexity in the product's operation or use, the nature and magnitude of the danger to which its user is exposed, the likelihood of injury, and the feasibility and beneficial effect of including a warning [Oxford v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 700, 717, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418 ; Jackson v. Deft, Inc. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1305, 1320, 273 Cal. Rptr. 214] .

A manufacturer is not required to warn against every conceivable health problem associated with use of a product. However, the more severe the consequences from unprotected exposure to the product, the greater is the need to warn of significant health risks. The court must weigh the degree of danger involved in determining whether a warning defect exists [Wright v. Stang Mfg. Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1229, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422 ; Schwoerer v. Union Oil Co. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 103, 111, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227 (solvent)].

[ii] Actual or Constructive Knowledge

Actual or constructive knowledge of the danger is a requisite for strict liability for failure to warn [Carlin v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 1104, 1113 n.3, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162, 920 P.2d 1347 (adopting standard of Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A, cmt. j); Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 1000, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528]. The California Supreme Court has stated that to hold otherwise would make the manufacturer or distributor of the product the insurer of the product's safe use, imposing absolute liability in contravention of the purpose of the doctrine of strict products liability [Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 1003-1004, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549] . Therefore, a defendant in a failure-to-warn action may present evidence of state of the art, that is, evidence that the particular risk was neither known nor knowable by the application of scientific knowledge available at the time of manufacture or distribution, or both [Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 1004, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549 (adopting requirement of Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A, cmt. j); Vermeulen v. Superior Court (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1192, 1202, 1205-1206, 251 Cal. Rptr. 805] . A plaintiff can rebut a defendant's claim that it had no knowledge to suspect any danger associated with its product by offering into evidence scientific, medical, and historical articles, as well as published standards referring to the connection between the defendant's product and injury [Jones v. John Crane, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 990, 1004-1005, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144 (encyclopedia and medical articles, together with published standards for airborne asbestos dust, supported finding that risks associated with defendant's products could reasonably have been ascertained)].

The California Supreme Court has acknowledged that the "warning defect" theory is rooted in negligence to a greater extent than are the manufacturing--or design--defect theories, in that the "warning defect" relates to a failure extraneous to the product itself. Therefore, although a manufacturing or design defect can be evaluated without reference to the conduct of the manufacturer, the giving of a warning cannot; hence the requirement that the risk be known or knowable [see Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 1002, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549] .

Despite its roots in negligence, the Supreme Court stated, failure to warn in strict liability differs markedly from failure to warn in the negligence context. Negligence law requires a plaintiff to prove that a manufacturer or distributor did not warn of a particular risk for reasons that fell below the acceptable standard of care, that is, what a reasonably prudent manufacturer would have known and warned about. Strict liability is not concerned with the standard of due care or the reasonableness of a manufacturer's conduct. The rules of strict liability require a plaintiff to prove only that the defendant did not adequately warn of a particular risk that was known or knowable in light of the generally recognized and prevailing best scientific and medical knowledge available at the time of manufacture or distribution. Therefore, in strict liability, as opposed to negligence, the reasonableness of the defendant's failure to warn is immaterial [Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 1002-1003, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549] .

Although negligence and strict products liability are not identical, and a plaintiff is entitled to instructions on both theories if both are supported by the evidence, a finding of liability on a failure-to-warn claim under one theory but not the other raises questions of irreconcilability [see, e.g., Valentine v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (1999) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1467, 1482, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 252] . Whether such verdicts can be reconciled depends on the evidence presented and the precise instructions given [Oxford v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 700, 718, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418] . At least one court has specifically concluded that a finding of negligent failure to warn is "logically and legally inconsistent" with a jury's finding that the product is not defective with respect to its warnings [Oxford v. Foster Wheeler LLC [(2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 700, 720, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418 (boilers)].

[iii] Manufacturers

Strict liability for failure to warn imposes more expansive liability on manufacturers than does a negligence theory of liability. A reasonably prudent manufacturer that reasonably decides that the risk of harm is such as not to require a warning (for example, based on the manufacturer's own testing showing results contrary to that of others in the scientific community), although possibly escaping liability under negligence principles, would be subject to strict products liability if it failed to give warning of dangers that were known or reasonably knowable to the scientific community at the time it manufactured or distributed the product [Carlin v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 1104, 1110, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162, 920 P.2d 1347] .

Under strict liability, whatever may be reasonable from the point of view of the manufacturer, the user of the product must be given the option either to refrain from using the product at all or to use it in such a way as to minimize the degree of danger [see Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 1003, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549] .

Strict liability for failure to warn applies to prescription drug manufacturers to the same extent as other manufacturers. Manufacturers of prescription drugs are strictly liable for injuries caused by their failure to give warning of risks that were known, or reasonably scientifically knowable, at the time they manufactured and distributed the drug [Carlin v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 1104, 1110, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162, 920 P.2d 1347] .

The duty to warn does not always run to the ultimate consumer. For example, in the case of prescription drugs, the manufacturer must warn the medical community of dangers so that physicians can warn patients for whom a drug is prescribed [Carlin v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 1104, 1116, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162, 920 P.2d 1347 ; see § 460.11[10][b][ii]].

Also, a name-brand drug manufacturer's duty to use due care when providing product warnings extends not only to consumers of its own product, but also to consumers whose physicians foreseeably rely on its product information when prescribing a medication, even if the prescription is filled with a generic equivalent [Conte v. Wyeth, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 89, 94, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 299]. Importantly, plaintiff in this case did not allege a strict products liability failure-to-warn cause of action, but rather, asserted a negligent misrepresentation claim, alleging that the manufacturer failed to use due care when disseminating its product information [Conte v. Wyeth, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 89, 101, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 299].

[iv] Allergies

Strict liability for failure to warn also applies in the context of allergies. A restaurant may be strictly liable for failing to warn customers about additives in the food served. A defendant may be liable if its product contained an ingredient to which a substantial number of the population is allergic, the ingredient is one whose danger is not generally known, or if known is not one which the customer would reasonably expect to find in the product, and the defendant knew or should have known that the ingredient was present and was dangerous [Livingston v. Marie Callenders, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 830, 839, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 528] .

[b] Limitations on Duty to Warn

[i] Compliance With Regulations

The nature and scope of the duty to warn of known or knowable dangers may be limited under some circumstances. For example, a manufacturer of nonprescription drugs (aspirin) had no duty to provide warnings in Spanish, given the existence of extensive regulation under state and federal law governing the contents of warnings that did not require warnings in languages other than English [Ramirez v. Plough, Inc. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 539, 553-555, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 97, 863 P.2d 167] . In this specific situation, the Court held that the duty to warn is no broader than that currently required by the applicable statutes and regulations [Ramirez v. Plough, Inc. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 539, 545 n.3, 555, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 97, 863 P.2d 167 (noting that opinion did not consider issue of foreign-language warnings for products other than nonprescription drugs); see also O'Neill v. Novartis Consumer Health, Inc. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1395-1396 (court did not err in giving instruction that FDA action or inaction, though not dispositive, may be considered to show whether a product is safe or not safe)].

Federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) regulations do not expressly preempt common law tort remedies for failure to warn. Evidence of FDA action or inaction is admissible in a failure-to-warn action to show whether a risk was known or reasonably knowable. A prescription drug manufacturer is not strictly liable for failing to give warnings expressly precluded by the federal Food and Drug Administration [Carlin v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 1104, 1113-1115, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162, 920 P.2d 1347] .

[ii] Warning Seller or Supplier Rather Than Ultimate Consumer

A manufacturer may have a duty to warn only the seller or supplier of the product, rather than the ultimate consumer, depending on the nature of the product and the sophistication required to understand and heed the warning. If a direct warning to the consumer would be ineffective, and the manufacturer fulfills its duty to warn by informing the seller or supplier (who then has an independent duty to warn the consumer), the manufacturer is not liable to the consumer for failing to warn the consumer directly [see Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1062 n.9, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470 (manufacturer of prescription drug has no duty to warn consumer; adequate warning to physician is sufficient); Persons v. Salomon North America, Inc. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 168, 178, 265 Cal. Rptr. 773 (manufacturer of ski bindings had no duty to warn users directly, because of technical and qualified nature of warning); Groll v. Shell Oil Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 444, 448-450, 196 Cal. Rptr. 52 (manufacturer of bulk product, who has no control over subsequent packaging, has no duty to warn consumer; warning to distributor is sufficient); Stevens v. Cessna Aircraft Co. (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 431, 433-434, 170 Cal. Rptr. 925 (manufacturer of airplane has no duty to warn passengers of plane's load capacity, given technical nature of the determination)].

In the context of prescription drugs and medical devices [Notmeyer v. Stryker Corp. (N.D. Cal. 2007) 502 F. Supp. 2d 1051, 1060 ; Hufft v. Horowitz (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 8, 21, 5 Cal.Rptr. 2d 377], manufacturers have a duty to warn the physician, not the patient, of a drug's dangerous propensities [Wendell v. Johnson & Johnson (N.D. Cal. Jan. 20, *2010) 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 4188, at 9 ; Carlin v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 1104, 1116, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162, 920 P.2d 1347 ; Brown v. Superior Court, (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1061-1062, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470 ; Conte v. Wyeth, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 89, 98 n.4, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 299 ; Valentine v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (1999) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1467, 1483, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 252] . The rationale is that physicians have a duty to warn patients of the potential dangers of drugs and medical devices prescribed by them [Stevens v. Parke, Davis & Co. (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 51, 65, 107 Cal. Rptr. 45, 507 P.2d 653] . Thus, the duty to warn does not require the manufacturer to warn physicians of dangers already known to the medical community because physicians presumably are already aware of these dangers [Plenger v. Alza Corp. (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 349, 362, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 811] . On the other hand, in the case of a drug administered through a mass immunization program, the manufacturer's duty runs to the patient because the physician is not acting as an intermediary under these circumstances [Davis v. Wyeth Laboratories, Inc. (9th Cir. 1968) 399 F.2d 121, 129-130] .

[iii] Effect of Government Warning During Emergency

A manufacturer does not have a duty to warn once the government has issued public health warnings relating to the use of the manufacturer's product during a public emergency. Moreover, no duty arises even if the manufacturer is aware that the governmental warning may be inadequate. The imposition of a private tort duty to warn could severely compromise the state's centralized and well coordinated response to a public emergency [Macias v. State of California (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 844, 853-860, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 592, 897 P.2d 530 (manufacturers of Malathion used by state under Emergency Services Act have no duty to warn even though they became aware of inadequacy of state's warnings)].

[iv] Sufficiency of Warning

A warning is not sufficient to preclude an action in strict products liability if it fails to perform its intended purpose of attracting the attention of the user [see generally Frumer and Friedman, Products Liability, Ch. 12 (Matthew Bender) (adequacy depends on conspicuousness of warning)]. Nor is liability precluded because an unclear warning is understood by some users; because it is foreseeable that those who do understand the warning may negligently fail to explain the danger to others, it is a triable issue of fact whether the warning actually given was adequate to preclude liability [Huynh v. Ingersoll-Rand (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 825, 833-835, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296] . Whether a warning is adequate depends on several factors, including the normal expectations of the consumer, the degrees of simplicity or complication in the product's operation or use, the nature and magnitude of the danger to which the user is exposed, the likelihood of injury, and the feasibility and beneficial effect of including a warning [Oxford v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 700, 717, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418 ; Jackson v. Deft, Inc. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1305, 1320, 273 Cal. Rptr. 214] . In addition, if the defendant has warned of less than all known or knowable dangers, and plaintiff suffers an injury that was not the subject of a warning, plaintiff may be able to recover even if heeding the warning given could have prevented the injury. Thus, a warning that use of a solvent without protective gloves could cause dermatitis, but that did not warn of the danger of liver damage that plaintiff suffered, could not preclude liability on the ground that the warning was adequate as a matter of law [Schwoerer v. Union Oil Co. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 103, 111-112, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227 (reversing summary judgment for defendant)].

[v] Rare, Idiosyncratic, or Unusual Reactions

There is no duty to warn of the possibility of rare, idiosyncratic, or unusual reactions to an otherwise useful product [Friedman v. Merck & Co. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 454, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 885 (distributor's failure to warn that TB test contained animal products was not sufficiently likely to result in serious harm to significant segment of population so as to impose a duty to so advise as matter of law); Briggs v. National Indus., Inc. (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 542, 545-546, 207 P.2d 110] . Comment j to § 402A of the Restatement (Second) of Torts, in discussing strict liability failure to warn, makes it clear that a duty to warn arises only where a substantial number of the population are affected.

[vi] Commonly Known or Obvious Dangers

A seller need not give a warning to consumers when the dangers or potential of danger is generally known and recognized [Johnson v. American Standard, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 56, 67, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108, 179 P.3d 905 ; Holmes v. J.C. Penney Co. (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 216, 220, 183 Cal. Rptr. 777 (potentiality of harm incident to firing pellet gun was obvious); Bojorquez v. House of Toys, Inc. (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 930 (no need to include warning of potential dangers of slingshot because they were generally known and recognized)].Moreover, strict liability for failure to warn does not attach if the danger is obvious or known to the injured person at the time of the product's use [Salyards v. Metso Minerals Tampere Oy (E.D. Cal. Nov. 10, 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 29360, at *18 (rock-crushing machine); Torres v. City of Madera (In re Torres) (E.D. Cal. July 11, 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 34672, at *40 (potential for "weapon confusion"); Gonzales v. Carmenita Ford Truck Sales, Inc. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1151-1152, 238 Cal. Rptr. 18] . The obvious danger rule is an objective test, and courts do not inquire into the user's subjective knowledge of the product's danger [Johnson v. American Standard, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 56, 71, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108, 179 P.3d 905].

In one case, the defendant failed to establish that the potential dangers of operating a deck gun were generally known or actually known by the plaintiff [Wright v. Stang Mfg. Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1231, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422] . In another case, the danger of diving into a shallow above-ground pool was not open and obvious to an 11-year-old as a matter of law [Bunch v. Hoffinger Indus., Inc. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1278, 1299-1300, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 780] .

[vii] Sophisticated User Defense

The Supreme Court of California expressly adopted the sophisticated user defense [Johnson v. American Standard, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 56, 70, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108, 179 P.3d 905]. The defense relieves manufacturers of the duty to provide warnings about their products' potential hazards of which users are or should be already aware [In re Asbestos Cases (N.D. Cal. 1982) 543 F. Supp. 1142, 1151 ; Fierro v. International Harvester Co. (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 862, 866, 179 Cal. Rptr. 923 (dictum)]. The sophisticated user defense evolved out of both § 388 of the Restatement (Second) of Torts and the obvious danger rule [see § 460.11[10][b][vi], above]. The defense applies to both strict liability and negligent failure to warn cases [Johnson v. American Standard, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 56, 65, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108, 179 P.3d 905 ; Johnson v. Honeywell Int'l Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 549, 554, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726].

The duty to warn is measured by the actual or constructive knowledge of the class of sophisticated users, rather than by the individual plaintiff's subjective knowledge [Johnson v. American Standard, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 56, 65-66, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108, 179 P.3d 905]. The "should have known" standard is employed because of the impossibility of a manufacturer's determining whether a given member of the sophisticated group actually has knowledge of the danger [Johnson v. American Standard, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 56, 71, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108, 179 P.3d 905]. The time for determining user sophistication for purposes of the defense is the time of injury [Johnson v. American Standard, Inc.(2008) 43 Cal. 4th 56, 73, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108, 179 P.3d 905 ; *see Herrera v. Louisville Ladder Group, LLC (C.D. Cal. Nov. 16, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 107384, at 7 ; *Castellanos v. Louisville Ladder, Inc. (N.D. Cal. May 11, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 40547, at 3].

The sophisticated user defense applies to a negligent failure-to-warn cause of action on a negligence per se theory [Johnson v. Honeywell Int'l Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 549, 556, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726] , but not to a strict liability design defect cause of action [Johnson v. Honeywell Int'l Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 549, 558-559, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726] .

[viii] Dangers of Other Manufacturers' Products

A manufacturer's duty to warn is limited to its own products [Merrill v. Leslie Controls, Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 262, 273, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614] . There is no duty to warn about a defect in another manufacturer's product that is used in conjunction with one's own product. Although a manufacturer may owe a duty to warn when the use of its product in combination with another party's product creates a hazard, that duty arises only when the manufacturer's own product creates the risk of harm [Merrill v. Leslie Controls, Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 262, 273, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614 ; Taylor v. Elliott Turbomachinery Co. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 564, 580-583, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 414 ; Powell v. Standard Brands Paint Co. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 357, 364, 212 Cal. Rptr. 395 ; Blackwell v. Phelps Dodge Corp. (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 372, 375-376, 203 Cal. Rptr. 706] . Accordingly, suppliers of engine components had no duty to warn of the dangers of asbestos-containing components supplied by other parties [Merrill v. Leslie Controls, Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 262, 273, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614 ; Taylor v. Elliott Turbomachinery Co. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 564, 580-583, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 414] , a stove manufacturer had no duty to warn that a properly operating stove might ignite propane gas leaking from a tank [Garman v. Magic Chef, Inc. (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 634, 638-639 ; 173 Cal. Rptr. 20] , and the seller of sulfuric acid had no duty to warn of the possible accumulation of pressure in the tank car in which it was shipped [Blackwell v. Phelps Dodge Corp. (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 372, 375-376, 203 Cal. Rptr. 706] .

[11] Elimination of "Unreasonably Dangerous" Limitation

[a] Rejection of Restatement Component

The California Supreme Court has rejected the concept, embodied in Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A, that the application of the strict products liability doctrine requires not only proof that the product was defective, but also that the defect made the product "unreasonably dangerous" [Cronin v. J. B. E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 134-135, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153 ; see Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A (liability based on sale of product in "defective condition unreasonably dangerous")]. The Court rejected the "unreasonably dangerous" component on the ground that it would require an injured plaintiff to prove not only that the product contained a defect, but also that the defect made the product unreasonably dangerous to the user or consumer, which would place a considerably greater burden on the plaintiff than that articulated in Greenman v. Yuba Power Prods., Inc. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 57, 62, 27 Cal. Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897 , under which a plaintiff alleging a defect in manufacture or design satisfies his or her burden of proof by proving the existence of a "defect," and that the defect was the proximate cause of the injuries [see Cronin v. J. B. E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 133-135, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153 (also noting difficulties inherent in "giving content to the defectiveness standard"); see also Barker v. Lull Eng'g Co. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 413, 427, 143 Cal. Rptr. 225, 573 P.2d 443 (reiterating holding in Cronin)]. The Supreme Court observed that the requirement that the defect made the product unreasonably dangerous "crept into our jurisprudence without fanfare" after its inclusion in the Restatement (Second) of Torts in 1965 (after the decision in Greenman), and that subsequent decisions often referred to the Restatement and Greenman in tandem, without specifically determining whether the jury must decide that the injuries were caused by a "defective" product or by a product in a "defective condition unreasonably dangerous" [Cronin v. J. B. E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 129-131, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153] . The Court also noted disapprovingly that the "unreasonably dangerous" limitation burdened the injured plaintiff with proof of an element that "rings of negligence" [Cronin v. J. B. E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 132, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153] . However, the argument that a concept "rings of negligence" does not necessarily preclude its incorporation into the strict products liability doctrine [see Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 1000, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549 ; see also § 460.12].

[b] Effect on Instructions Regarding Definition of Defect

Although the California Supreme Court has rejected the position of Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A that a defective product must also be "unreasonably dangerous" for recovery in strict liability [Cronin v. J. B. E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 134-135, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153 ; see § 460.11[11][a]], that decision did not dictate that the term "defect" be left undefined in jury instructions given in all product liability cases [Barker v. Lull Eng'g Co. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 413, 417, 143 Cal. Rptr. 225, 573 P.2d 443] . The Court acknowledged that although in many instances involving a defect in manufacturing, "defect" requires little or no elaboration, in other instances, such as cases involving defective design or inadequate warning, the contours of the defect concept may not be self-evident. In such a case, a trial judge may find it necessary to explain more fully to the jury the legal meaning of "defect" [Barker v. Lull Eng'g Co. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 413, 417, 143 Cal. Rptr. 225, 573 P.2d 443] . For discussion of the consequent formulation in Barker v. Lull Engineering of the definition of design defect, see § 460.11[9][b].

In Cavers v. Cushman Motor Sales, Inc. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 338, 157 Cal. Rptr. 142 , the court addressed the application of Cronin to warning-defect cases, and the jury instructions concerning the definition of "defect" that are proper in those cases. The court in Cavers stated that Cronin, although abolishing the "unreasonably dangerous" requirement in manufacturing- and design-defect situations, did not overrule or disapprove of any prior cases that defined "defect," and therefore did not alter, forexample, the prior holding that a product otherwise free of defects in manufacture and design may become defective if it is "unreasonably dangerous to place it in the hands of the user without a suitable warning" [Cavers v. Cushman Motor Sales, Inc. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 338, 344, 157 Cal. Rptr. 142 ; see Canifax v. Hercules Powder Co. (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 44, 53, 46 Cal. Rptr. 552] . Cavers applied the principles of Barker v. Lull Eng'g Co. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 413, 143 Cal. Rptr. 225, 573 P.2d 443 , and concluded that the classification drawn between manufacturing defects on the one hand, and defects caused by poor design or failure to warn on the other, is significant, because the concept of defect raises considerably more difficulties in the design context than in manufacturing or production context, and becomes all the more elusive when applied to failure-to-warn cases [Cavers v. Cushman Motor Sales, Inc. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 338, 346-347, 157 Cal. Rptr. 142] .

Consequently, in a warning-defect case, a jury instruction that predicates liability on a finding of "danger" must include consideration of the degree of danger, among other relevant factors. The court in Cavers therefore approved a jury instruction stating that an otherwise faultlessly made article may be deemed defective if the manufacturer/lessor fails to warn of dangerous propensities that in the absence of an adequate warning render the article substantially dangerous to the user [Cavers v. Cushman Motor Sales, Inc. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 338, 349-350, 157 Cal. Rptr. 142] . It also noted that the trial court "wisely chose to omit the word 'unreasonably' from the formulation," in light of Cronin, to avoid diverting the jury's attention from the condition of the product to the conduct of the seller; and further defined "substantial danger" in order properly to focus the jury's attention on the relevant factors regarding the sufficiency of the magnitude of danger [Cavers v. Cushman Motor Sales, Inc. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 338, 349-350, 157 Cal. Rptr. 142] . Subsequently, the California Supreme Court cited Cavers with approval, noting that the court of appeal rejected the argument that requiring plaintiff to prove that the manufacturer's failure to warn rendered the product "substantially dangerous" to the user impermissibly increased the plaintiff's burden to prove the product defective in the manner that the phrase "unreasonably dangerous" was held in Cronin to do [Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 1001, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549] .

The issue of the permissible scope of dangerousness inherent in the definition of "defect" in a warning-defect case has not been decided squarely, nor determined definitively [see, e.g., Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 995-996, 1001, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549 (discussing issue obliquely in context of evolution of warning-defect theory and application of negligence concepts, but deciding case on knowability requirement); compare, e.g., Groll v. Shell Oil Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 444, 448, 196 Cal. Rptr. 52 ("unreasonably dangerous"); Fierro v. International Harvester Co. (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 862 (absence of warning did not "substantially or unreasonably" increase any danger); Foster v. Gillette Co. (1979) 100 Cal. App. 3d 569 (trial court's addition of "unreasonably" was necessary to correctly state law); Canifax v. Hercules Powder Co. (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 44, 53, 46 Cal. Rptr. 552 (not specifically disapproved on "unreasonably dangerous" point in Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 995-996, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549) with, e.g., Rodriguez v. Superior Court (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1374, 1375, 271 Cal. Rptr. 114 ("substantial, foreseeable danger"; product possesses "such risks" that it becomes defective; citing Cavers); West v. Johnson & Johnson Prods., Inc. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 831, 853 , 220 Cal. Rptr. 437 (instruction, withdrawn because plaintiff proceeded on design-defect theory, stated "substantial danger"); see also BAJI 9.00.7 (7th ed.) (product is defective if reasonably foreseeable use involves "substantial danger" not readily recognized in absence of adequate warning)]. In light of the relevant case law taken as a whole, it appears that the holding of Cronin does not prohibit the trial court, in a case involving alleged warning defect, from defining "defect" in jury instructions, and stating the threshold degree of dangerousness that would render the product defective in the absence of an adequate warning. That threshold may be described as "substantially dangerous," but describing it as "unreasonably dangerous" would impermissibly increase the plaintiff's burden to prove the product defective within the scope of Greenman [see Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 1001, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549] .

[12] Disclaimer of Liability Does Not Preclude Liability

Liability under the doctrine of strict liability in tort may not be disclaimed by the person otherwise liable, because one of the purposes of strict liability in tort is to prevent a manufacturer from defining the scope of its responsibility for harm caused by the manufacturer's products [Seely v. White Motor Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 9, 17, 45 Cal. Rptr. 17, 403 P.2d 145 ; Westlye v. Look Sports, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1715, 1743-1746, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 781 ; cf. Dorman v. International Harvester Co. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 11, 14-20, 120 Cal. Rptr. 516 (on requirements of disclaimers of implied warranties of merchantability and fitness for particular use under Commercial Code)].

[13] Express Assumption of Risk Does Not Preclude Liability

As a matter of public policy, product suppliers cannot insulate themselves from strict liability in tort for injuries caused by defects in products they place on the market by obtaining a consumer's signature on an express assumption of risk [Westlye v. Look Sports, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1715, 1747, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 781 (noting public policy protecting consumers, as well as policy against allowing suppliers to disclaim liability)].

[14] Causation in Warning Cases

A plaintiff bringing a failure to warn cause of action must prove not only that no warning was provided or that the given warning was inadequate, but also that the inadequacy or absence of warning caused the plaintiff's injury [Motus v. Pfizer Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2001) 196 F. Supp. 2d 984, 991]--that is, was a substantial factor in bringing about the injury [Rutherford v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 953, 968, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16, 941 P.2d 1203 ; Conte v. Wyeth, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 89, 112, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 299 ; Whiteley v. Philip Morris, Inc. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 635, 696, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 807 ; see Salyards v. Metso Minerals Tampere Oy (E.D. Cal. Nov. 10, 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 29360, at *22-*23].

The substantial factor standard is a relatively broad one, requiring only that the defendant's contribution be more than negligible or theoretical [Bockrath v. Aldrich Chem. Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 71, 79, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 846, 980 P.2d 398 ; Bunch v. Hoffinger Indus., Inc. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1278, 1303-1304, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 780 (lack of label adequately warning of dangers of diving into aboveground pool was substantial factor in causing plaintiff's injuries)].

The California Supreme Court has not adopted the rebuttable presumption adopted by many other states that had an adequate warning been given, the plaintiff would have heeded it [Motus v. Pfizer Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2001) 196 F. Supp. 2d 984, 994-995 , applying California law)]. It has, however, cited comment j to § 402A of the Restatement (Second) of Torts to support the conclusion that a defendant may assume that an adequate warning provided to the plaintiff may assume it will be read and heeded [Johnson v. American Standard, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 56, 65, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108, 179 P.3d 905 ; see also Motus v. Pfizer, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2001) 196 F. Supp. 2d 984, 992].

In the context of drugs and medical devices, a defendant may prevail in a summary judgment on a warning claim if the plaintiff produces no evidence that the prescribing physician would have acted differently had an adequate warning been given [Motus v. Pfizer Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2001) 196 F. Supp. 2d 984, 995-997)]. Evidence which may help establish that the physician would have acted differently had he or she received an adequate warning may include evidence the plaintiff was not a good candidate for the drug, that the plaintiff's symptoms worsened over a period of time, that the non-disclosed risk was sufficiently high, and that the physician actually relied on the manufacturer's statements [Motus

v. Pfizer Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2001) 196 F. Supp. 2d 984, 995-997]. There is no proximate causation when the prescribing physician did not read or rely upon the warning in the drug's package insert or in the Physician's Desk Reference when determining the proper treatment for the plaintiff [Conte v. Wyeth, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 89, 111-112, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 299].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityDesign DefectsTortsProducts LiabilityDuty to WarnTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.12

§ 460.12 Relation of Strict Liability Doctrine to Negligence Concepts

[1] Relief of Evidentiary Burdens

One of the guiding principles of the strict liability doctrine is to relieve plaintiffs of the evidentiary burdens inherent in negligence causes of action [see Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 1000, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549] .

To that end, for example, the California Supreme Court has refused to incorporate the "unreasonably dangerous" element of Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A into the plaintiff's burden of proof [see Cronin v. J.B.E.Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 132-133, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153 ; see also § 460.11[11]]. The Supreme Court has also refused to reject the incorporation of a component into the doctrine simply because the component "rings of" or "sounds in" negligence [see Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 1000, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549] .

[2] Aspects of Negligence Adopted in Strict Liability

There is a functional similarity between strict products liability and negligence [Merrill v. Navegar, Inc. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 465, 480, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370 P.3d 116 (incorporation of several negligence principles into strict liability doctrine); Milwaukee Elec. Tool Corp. v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 547, 559, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 24 (functional similarity insofar as duty and breach are concerned)]. Aspects of negligence law that have been adopted in the strict products liability context include:

- The doctrine of plaintiff's negligence as a defense when it consists of assumption of the risk [see Luque v. McLean (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 136, 145, 104 Cal. Rptr. 443, 501 P.2d 1163 ; see also Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A, comment b].

- Plaintiff's burden to prove that the manufacturer's failure to warn rendered a product "substantially dangerous" to the user [see Cavers v. Cushman Motor Sales, Inc. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 338, 348-349, 157 Cal. Rptr. 142 ; see also § 460.11[11]].

- Principles of comparative negligence [see Daly v. General Motors Corp. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 725, 734, 144 Cal. Rptr. 380, 575 P.2d 1162 (blending twin principles of strict products liability and traditional negligence while recognizing their theoretical and semantic distinctions)].

- The risk-benefit test under Barker v. Lull Eng'g Co. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 413, 434, 143 Cal. Rptr. 225, 573 P.2d 443 , requiring the balancing of a number of factors for the jury to evaluate [see Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 1001, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549] .

Nevertheless, despite the functional overlap between strict products liability and negligence, there remain significant differences between the two doctrines in elements, focus, and proof [Crawford v. Weather Shield Mfg., Inc. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 304, 320, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787 , review granted and depublished, (2006) 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 632, 136 P.3d 168 , review dismissed in part (2007) 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 753 (in light of differences between two doctrines, court did not abuse its discretion in determining that absence of a strict products liability instruction was prejudicial)]. The focus of negligence is on the conduct of the tortfeasor, while strict liability focuses on the product itself [Edwards v. A.L. Lease & Co. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 1034, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259] .

For a comparison between strict liability and negligence actions based on failure-to-warn, see § 460.11[10]. For discussion of negligence principles generally, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsNegligenceGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityDuty to WarnTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.13

§ 460.13 Strict Liability and Warranties Distinguished

The law of strict liability in tort was developed to govern the problem of physical injuries to person and property and not to undermine the warranty provisions of the Commercial Code [Com. Code §§ 2312-2317], which continue to control commercial aspects of commercial transactions [Seely v. White Motor Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 9, 15, 45 Cal. Rptr. 17, 403 P.2d 145] .

Justice Peters in a vigorous concurring and dissenting opinion in Seely was of the view that the doctrine of strict liability in tort should apply to economic losses as well as to injury to person or property provided that such losses resulted from a defect in the product. However, this view hasnot been accepted as the law in California. No recovery for purely economic loss is allowed in a strict liability action [see § 460.11[4]]. Instead, a warranty claim should be made for recovery of economic losses [see Anthony v. General Motors Corp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 699 (express warranty class action for replacement of defective wheels); Dorman v. International Harvester Co. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 11 (implied warranties under Commercial Code)].

In addition, strict liability in tort does not apply between parties who [Kaiser Steel Corp. v. Westinghouse Elec. Corp. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 737, 748, 127 Cal. Rptr. 838] :

- Deal in a commercial setting.
- Deal from positions of relatively equal economic strength.
- Bargain the specifications of the product.
- Negotiate concerning the risk of loss from defects in it.

In summary, insofar as injury to person or property is concerned, the doctrine of strict liability in tort has substantially replaced the doctrine of implied warranty [see Shepard v. Alexian Bros. Hosp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 614, 109 Cal. Rptr. 132] . Insofar as the commercial aspects of commercial transactions are concerned, the warranty provisions of the Commercial Code [Com. Code §§ 2312-2317] and of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act [Civ. Code §§ 1790-1795.7] and the statutory provisions governing mobilehome warranties [Civ. Code § 1797 et seq.] control. and while privity appears to remain a requirement for actions based on implied warranties, it is not required for an action based on express warranty [Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 114 n.8, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377 ; see also Seely v. White Motor Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 9, 14, 45 Cal. Rptr. 17, 403 P.2d 145] . With respect to express warranty, the seller's statements, whether of fact or opinion, must, however, under Com. Code § 2313, become part of the "basis of the bargain" if their breach is to give rise to a cause of action. The basis-of-the-bargain requirement represents a significant change in the former law of warranties. Prior to the adoption of the Commercial Code, plaintiff had to prove reliance on specific promises by the seller [former Civ. Code § 1732], but the Commercial Code requires no such proof [Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 115, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377] .

For further discussion, see Ch. 500, Sales and Secured Transactions ; Cotchett & Cartwright, California Products Liability Actions, Chs. 1, 2 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.14

§ 460.14 Liability of Successor Manufacturer

[1] Traditional Exceptions to General Rule of Successor Nonliability

Under the general rule of successor liability, a corporation purchasing the principal assets of another corporation does not assume the predecessor corporation's liabilities, except when any of the following exists [Fisher v. Allis-Chalmers Corp. Prod. Liab. Trust (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 1188, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 310 ; Franklin v. USX Corp. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 615, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 11 ; Maloney v. American Pharm. Co. (1988) 207 Cal. App. 3d 282, 287, 255 Cal. Rptr. 1 ; see Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 28, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3] :

- There is an express or implied agreement of assumption.
- The transaction amounts to a consolidation or merger of the two corporations.
- The purchasing corporation is a mere continuation of the seller.
- The transfer of assets to the purchaser is for the fraudulent purpose of escaping liability for the seller's debts.

Before one corporation can be said to be a mere continuation or reincarnation of another, there must be insufficient consideration running from the new company to the old [Franklin v. USX Corp. (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 615, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 11 ; Maloney v. American Pharm. Co. (1988) 207 Cal. App. 3d 282, 287, 255 Cal. Rptr. 1] . Mere continuation exists when one corporation takes all of another's assets without providing any consideration that could be made available to meet claims of the other's creditors, or when the consideration consists wholly of shares of the purchaser's stock that are promptly distributed to the seller's shareholders in conjunction with the seller's liquidation [Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 28, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3] .

Other characteristics typical of mere continuation are the continuity of personnel and the direct sale from the seller to the buyer (rather than, for example, sale by a creditor of the predecessor to the buyer) [Maloney v. American Pharm.

Co. (1988) 207 Cal. App. 3d 282, 288, 255 Cal. Rptr. 1] .

[2] Product Line Theory

In addition to the four traditional exceptions to the general rule of successor nonliability [see § 460.14[1]], the state's highest court created a fifth exception, which is now known as the product line exception [Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3] . The court presented a three-part rationale for imposing strict liability on a successor corporation [Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 31, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3 ; Rosales v. Thermex-Thermatron, Inc. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 187, 194, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861 ; see also Monarch Bay II v. Professional Serv. Indus., Inc. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1216-1217, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 778] :

- The virtual destruction of the plaintiff's remedies against the original manufacturer caused by the successor's acquisition of the business.

- The successor's ability to assume the original manufacturer's risk-spreading role.

- The fairness of requiring the successor to assume a responsibility for defective products that was a burden necessarily attached to the original manufacturer's good will being enjoyed by the successor in the continued operation of the business.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Mergers & Acquisitions LawLiabilities & Rights of SuccessorsGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsVicarious LiabilityCorporationsPredecessor & Successor Corporations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.15

§ 460.15 Development of AIDS Vaccine

[1] Establishment of Victims' Compensation Fund

To promote the development of an AIDS (acquired immune deficiency syndrome) vaccine, the legislature enacted Health & Safety Code §§ 121250-121275, which provide financial incentives to manufacturers to develop and market that vaccine. In the event the vaccine is manufactured, the AIDS Vaccine Victims Compensation Fund, financed by a surcharge on the sale of an approved vaccine will be used to compensate a person injured by the vaccine [see Health & Safety Code § 121270(c), (o)]. Nevertheless, no immunity from liability or limitation on damages in actions against the manufacturers is provided by this legislation [see Health & Safety Code § 121270(c)(2) (fund will not compensate for damages against manufacturer in lawsuit), (m) (concurrent actions against manufacturer and fund allowed)]. For discussion of confidentiality and disclosure of records relating to AIDS testing and research, see Ch. 429, Privacy .

[2] Compensation From Fund for Damages to Injured Person

The State Board of Control is authorized to pay from the fund damages for personal injuries caused by an AIDS vaccine that is sold in or delivered in California and administered or dispersed in California to the injured person. Payment is contingent on the availability of money in the fund [Health & Safety Code § 199.50(c), (p)].

The fund, however, will not compensate for the following [Health & Safety Code § 121270(c)]:

- Damages for personal injuries caused by the vaccine to the extent that they are attributable to the comparative negligence of the person making the claim.

- Damages for personal injuries in any instance in which the manufacturer has been found to be liable for those injuries in a court of law.

- Damages for personal injuries due to a vaccination administered during a clinical trial.

The term "damages for personal injuries" means the direct medical costs for the care and treatment of injuries to any person, including a person entitled to recover damages under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60 (regarding wrongful death actions), proximately caused by an AIDS vaccine, the loss of earnings caused by the injuries, and the amount necessary, but not to exceed $550,000, to compensate for noneconomic losses, including pain and suffering caused by the injuries [Health & Safety Code § 121270(b)(3)]. For discussion and forms relating to death actions, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions . For discussion and forms relating to personal injury damages, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[3] Procedures and Review

Procedures for applying for compensation and for conduct of the hearing on the application are governed by Health & Safety Code § 121270(d)-(h). Application shall be made on a form prescribed by the board [Health & Safety Code § 121270(d)]. The board may adopt rules and regulations to implement these procedures [Health & Safety Code § 121270(j)]. Review of the board's decision by a writ of administrative mandate is governed by Health & Safety Code § 121270(i).

[4] Fund's Right to Subrogation or Lien

The fund is subrogated to any right or claim that any injured person who receives compensation from the fund may have, or any right or claim that such person's personal representative, legal guardian, estate, or survivor may have against any third party who is liable for the personal injuries caused by the AIDS vaccine, and the fund is entitled to indemnity from that third party. The fund is also entitled to a lien on the judgment, award, or settlement in the amount of any payments made to the injured person [Health & Safety Code § 121270(k)].

Nothing in Health & Safety Code § 199.50 affects the right of any individual to pursue claims against the fund and lawsuits against manufacturers concurrently. The fund is entitled, however, to a lien on the judgment award, or settlement, in the amount of any payments made to the injured party by the fund [Health & Safety Code § 121270(m)].

[5] Notice of Action to Board or Attorney General

In the event that the injured person, or his or her guardian, personal representative, estate, or survivors, or any of them, brings an action for damages against the person or persons liable for the injury or death giving rise to an award by the board, notice of institution of legal proceedings and notice of any settlement must be given to the board in Sacramento, except in cases when the board specifies that notice must be given to the Attorney General. All notices must be given by the attorney employed to bring the action for damages or by the injured person or his or her guardian,personal representative, estate, or survivors if no attorney is employed [Health & Safety Code § 121270(l)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsProcedureGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsPublic Entity LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.16

§ 460.16 Insurance Coverage

[1] Availability of Coverage

Liability insurance [see Ins. Code §§ 100(8), 108] is available to those who produce and market goods to cover liability arising from injuries proximately caused by defects in the goods [see Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 32, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3 ("products liability insurance is usually limited to accidents or occurrences taking place while the policy is in effect"); see also Flintkote Co. v. Gen. Accident Assur. Co. of Can. (N.D. Cal. Jan. 3, 2006) 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 11, at *2-*3 (asbestos); Oliver Mach. Co. v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1510, 232 Cal. Rptr. 691 (products sold by predecessor not covered under policy obtained by successor manufacturer); see generally Long, Law of Liability Insurance, Ch. 11 (Matthew Bender)]. Coverage may be provided by a comprehensive liability policy or by a policy with more limited coverage, such as a products liability policy. A comprehensive liability policy might, however, expressly exclude products liability or hazards [see, e.g., Cravens, Dargan & Co. v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 594, 596, 600, 105 Cal. Rptr. 607] , and even a policy providing coverage might limit coverage to products the possession of that has been relinquished by the insured and which are away from the insured's premises.

Other kinds of policies may, however, provide coverage if possession of the product has not been relinquished or if the product is not away from the insured's premises. Examples are a premises liability policy, a manufacturers and contractors liability policy, an owners, landlords, or tenants policy, and so forth [see Long, Law of Liability Insurance, Ch. 11 (Matthew Bender)]. In preparing to prosecute or defend a strict-liability-in-tort action, counsel for each party should examine any relevant policies of his or her client and make sure that the provisions of any policy providing coverage are complied with by the client. Plaintiff's counsel may, by written interrogatories or other discovery procedures, ascertain whether defendant is insured and, if so, the limits of liability [see generally Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2016-2036; and Ch. 190-200: Discovery].

[2] Coverage Precluded

A party may not, however, insure against liability for punitive damages in a strict products liability action because that insurance would violate public policy [Ford Motor Co. v. Home Ins. Co. (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 374]. For further discussion of liability insurance, see Ch. 308, Insurance .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Insurance LawGeneral Liability InsuranceCoverageGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 460.17-460.29

[Reserved]

§§ 460.17[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.30

§ 460.30 Elements of Action

To state a cause of action based on strict liability in tort against the manufacturer or supplier of a defective product, the complaint must allege facts showing that:

- Defendant placed the product on the market in the ordinary course of business (as opposed to an occasional sale or an isolated transaction).
- Defendant knew the product was to be used without inspection for defects.
- The particular product or article involved was defective.
- An accident occurred as a proximate result of the defect.
- As a proximate result of the defect and accident plaintiff sustained personal injuries or injury to property.
- The injuries sustained are compensable in money.

That is, the complaint must allege duty, breach of duty, proximate cause, injury or detriment, and damages [see Nelson v. Superior Court (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 689, 695, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 684 ; County of Santa Clara v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 292, 335, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 313 ; Civ. Code § 3281]. Injury and damages are frequently combined in the same allegation.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.31

§ 460.31 Statute of Limitations

[1] Applicable Limitations Periods

An action for damages for personal injury based on products liability is governed by the two-year period of limitation prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1. Former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) provided for a one-year period [Rose v. Fife (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 760, 770-771, 255 Cal. Rptr. 440 ; Becker v. Volkswagen of Am., Inc. (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 794, 802, 125 Cal. Rptr. 326 ; G.D. Searle & Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 22, 25, 122 Cal. Rptr. 218] . An action for injury to real or personal property must be commenced within three years [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(b),(c); see also Cal. Dep't of Toxic Substances Control v. Payless Cleaners (E.D. Cal. Aug. 16, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 60703, at *16, n.3); Universal Paragon Corp. v. Ingersoll-Rand Co. (N.D. Cal. Feb. 13, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS14530, at *25; County of Santa Clara v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 292, 318, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 313 (lead paint); Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Sparks Constr., Inc. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1150-1151, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 446 (allegation that defective toilet ballcock caused damage to home and contents); Mills v. Forestex Co. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 625, 647, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 273 (action against siding manufacturer); Avner v. Longridge Estates (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 607, 615, 77 Cal. Rptr. 633 (injury to real property)]. Personal injury and death actions based on exposure to asbestos are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2, which requires the actions to be brought the later of 1) one year after the plaintiff first suffered disability; or 2) one year after the plaintiff knew or should have known that the disability was caused or contributed to by asbestos exposure [Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp., Ltd. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 1127, 1138, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701, 998 P.2d 403, 409] .

The four-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 337.1, which applies to patent defects in real property development and construction, applies to an action based on strict product liability [Mills v. Forestex Co. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 625, 643, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 273 (neither Code Civ. Proc. § 337.1 nor § 337.15 applied to siding manufacturer); Stoneson Dev. Corp. v. Superior Court (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 178, 181, 242 Cal. Rptr. 721 , citing Mattingly v. Anthony Indus., Inc. (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 506, 167 Cal. Rptr. 292] . However, the limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 337.1 does not apply to manufacturers and sellers of products used to improve real property, unless the seller or manufacturer has also installed the product [see Mills v. Forestex Co. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 625, 643, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 273 (neither Code Civ. Proc. § 337.1 nor § 337.15 applied to siding manufacturer); Nichols v. Swimquip (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 216, 220-222, 217 Cal. Rptr. 272] .

The 10-year limitation period of Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15, which applies to latent defects in real property development and construction, also applies to a cause of action based on strict products liability concerning real property [Stoneson Dev. Corp. v. Superior Court (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 178, 179-181, 242 Cal. Rptr. 721] . Nothing in the language of the statute suggests that product liability actions are exempt from its scope [Stoneson Devel. Corp. v. Superior Court (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 178, 180, 242 Cal. Rptr. 721] . Therefore, Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15 applies to a cause of action against a contractor whose improper repair of real property caused the property to be damaged again in a subsequent mudslide [Stoneson Dev. Corp. v. Superior Court (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 178, 179-181, 242 Cal. Rptr. 721 (judgment on pleadings for defendant improperly denied on cause of action for strict products liability)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15 continues to apply to many construction projects, including all nonresidential projects, but certain categories of nonresidential construction, including common interest developments and residential units first sold after Jan. 1, 2003, are subject to more recent legislation affecting the limitations periods for actions involving latent defects [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 855 et seq., 941, and 1375].

The four-year maximum period of limitation found in Code Civ. Proc. § 337.1, which applies to improvers of real property, does not apply to manufacturers and sellers of products used to improve real property unless the seller or manufacturer has also installed the product [see Nichols v. Swimquip (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 216, 220-222, 217 Cal. Rptr. 272] .

[2] Accrual of Cause of Action

[a] When Act Committed

In tort actions, the statute of limitations generally commences when the last element essential to a cause of action occurs [Cal. Dep't of Toxic Substances Control v. Payless Cleaners (E.D. Cal. Aug. 16, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 60703, at *16 ; Universal Paragon Corp. v. Ingersoll-Rand Co. (N.D. Cal. Feb. 13, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS14530, at *27; Grisham v. Philip Morris U.S.A., Inc. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 623, 634, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735, 151 P.3d 1151, 1156 ; San Francisco Unified Sch. Dist. v. W.R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1326, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 ; City of San Diego v. U.S. Gypsum Co. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 575, 582, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 876] . If the last element of the cause of action to occur is damage, the statute of limitations begins to run on the occurrence of "appreciable and actual harm, however uncertain in amount," that consists of more than nominal damages [Davies v. Krasna (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 502, 513-514, 121 Cal. Rptr. 705, 535 P.2d 1161 ; City of San Diego v. U.S. Gypsum Co. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 575, 582-583, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 876] . Once a plaintiff has suffered actual and appreciable harm, neither the speculative nor uncertain character of damages nor the difficulty of proof will toll the period of limitation [Davies v. Krasna (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 502, 514, 121 Cal. Rptr. 705, 535 P.2d 1161 ; City of San Diego v. U.S. Gypsum Co. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 575, 583, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 876] . The common law rule that a cause of action accrued on the date of injury has been modified by the discovery rule [see § 460.31[2][b]].

One court held that physical injury resulting from asbestos contamination, not the mere presence of asbestos, must have occurred before a cause of action for strict liability or negligence can accrue in asbestos-in-building cases and the limitations period commence [San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. W.R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1330, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 (disagreeing with City of San Diego v. U.S. Gypsum Co. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 575, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 876); see also Cal. Dep't of Toxic Substances Control v. Payless Cleaners (E.D. Cal. Aug. 16, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 60703, at *15 (dry cleaning solvents); County of Santa Clara v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 292, 318, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 313 (lead paint)].

The fact that an injured plaintiff could not have stated a cause of action when first apprised of the injury and the causation does not alter the general rule, because a subsequent change in the law, either by statute or by case law, does not revive claims otherwise barred by the statute of limitations [Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1115-1116, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923 (DES case)] .

[b] Exceptions

[i] Injury Causing Subsidence of Land

There are exceptions to the rule discussed in § 460.31[2][a]. For example, in case of injury to real property where the wrong proximately results in the subsidence of land, a new and separate cause of action, and hence a new and separate period of limitation, arises with each new subsidence [Avner v. Longridge Estates (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 607, 616-617, 77 Cal. Rptr. 633] .

[ii] Discovery Rule

[A] Postponing Accrual of a Cause of Action

The most important exception to the general rule for defining the accrual of a cause of action is the discovery rule, which postpones accrual of a cause of action until the plaintiff discovers, or has reason to discover, the cause of action, i.e., until he or she at least suspects or has reason to suspect a factual basis for its elements [Grisham v. Philip Morris U.S.A., Inc. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 623, 634, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735, 151 P.3d 1151 ; Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1109, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923 ; Clark v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1048 ; Rivas v. Safety-Kleen Corp. (2001) 98 Cal. App. 4th 218, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 503, 510-511] . Under the discovery rule, the statute of limitations begins to run when the plaintiff suspects or should suspect that his or her injury was caused by wrongdoing, i.e., that someone has done something wrong to him or her [Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1110-1111, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923 ; see Universal Paragon Corp. v. Ingersoll-Rand Co., 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14530 , at *27].

A plaintiff's duty to investigate does not begin until the plaintiff actually has a reason to investigate [Nelson v. Indevus Pharms., Inc. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1206, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 668 (Redux)] . In other words, the suspicion necessary to trigger the statute of limitations may not be imputed to a plaintiff. Information given to the general public through media coverage about the dangers of a product does not trigger the statute of limitations. A plaintiff had no duty to read newspapers and watch television news and otherwise seek out news of a product's dangers [Nelson v. Indevus Pharms., Inc. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1206-1208, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 668] .

[B] Statutory Discovery Rule for Hazardous Substances

In 2003, the California legislature enacted a statutory discovery rule for actions based on injury, illness, or death resulting from exposure to hazardous material or toxic substances. Under the statute, personal injury actions must be commenced no later than either (1) two years after the date of injury or (2) two years after the date that the plaintiff became or reasonably should have become aware of the injury, the physical cause of the injury, and sufficient facts to put a reasonable person on inquiry notice that the injury was caused by the wrongful act of another, whichever occurs later [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.8(a); *see Bonds v. Nicoletti Oil, Inc. (E.D. Cal. May 28, 2008), 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 47054, at 33] . Wrongful death actions must be commenced no later than either (1) two years after the date of death, or (2) two years after the date that the plaintiff was or reasonably should have become aware of the physical cause of death and sufficient facts to put a reasonable person on inquiry notice that the death was caused by the wrongful act of another, whichever occurs later [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.8(b)]. The statute specifically provides that media reports regarding the hazardous material or toxic substance contamination do not, in and of themselves, constitute sufficient facts to put a reasonable person on inquiry notice that the injury or death was caused by the wrongful act of another [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.8(c)(2)]. By enacting the statute, the legislature intended to codify the rulings in Norgart v. Upjohn Co. [Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P.2d 79] , Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. [Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923] , and Clark v. Baxter

Healthcare Corp. [Clark v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1048] . Code Civ. Proc. § 340.8 is not limited to environmental hazards, but also applies to cases alleging personal injury caused by harmful chemicals [Nelson v. Indevus Pharms., Inc. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1209, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 668] .

[C] Applying Discovery Rule to Separate and Distinct Acts

Application of the discovery rule is particularly thorny when the case involves two or more defendants alleged of committing separate and distinct wrongful acts. This scenario may arise following an unsuccessful surgery, when the plaintiff may at first suspect only the surgeon of malpractice, and only after the statute of limitations has run, learned that the medical device may have been defective.

The California Supreme Court has explored the contours of its discovery rule in a series of products liability cases in which the plaintiffs also suspected the negligence or other wrongful acts of parties other than the products liability defendants. A reading of the cases makes it clear that the court distinguishes between a plaintiff's ignorance of the identity of a particular defendant and the plaintiff's ignorance that a product was the cause of the injury.

In Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co., the Court held that the discovery rule postpones the accrual of a cause of action until the plaintiff discovers, or has reason to discover, the cause of action. A plaintiff discovers a cause of action when the plaintiff at least suspects a factual basis, as opposed to a legal theory, for the elements of that cause of action--that is, the plaintiff at least suspects that someone has done something wrong to him or her [Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923] .

In Norgart v. Upjohn Co., the Court elaborated on the principles it set forth in Jolly to conclude that a drug products liability claim was time-barred. Key to the court's holding was the principle that the discovery rule allows accrual of a cause of action even if the plaintiff does not have reason to suspect the defendant's identity. This is because the identity of the defendant is not an element of a cause of action [Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 981 P.2d 79] .

In Norgart, the plaintiffs sued the Upjohn Company after their daughter died from an overdose of prescription drugs, including Halcion. Plaintiffs admitted that they suspected something was wrong after her death and investigated causes of he death, including the fact that she had taken Halcion. Within a year after her death, her father suspected that an "individual or individuals" had done something wrong to his daughter that had caused her to take her own life. These individuals included herhusband, who he suspected of physical abuse, and her psychiatrist, whom he suspected of professional negligence. The plaintiffs brought the action exactly six years after their daughter's death. The trial court granted summary judgment in favor of the manufacturer on the ground of the one-year statute of limitations for wrongful death. The First District reversed, holding that when separate and distinct acts or omissions concur in causing an injury, a cause of action does not accrue, and the statute of limitations does not commence with respect to a potential defendant, until the plaintiff suspects or should suspect that the injury was caused by the specific wrongdoing for which that party was liable. California's highest court reversed, holding that the manufacturer was entitled to judgment as a matter of law based on the statute of limitations. The court noted that under the discovery rule, the plaintiffs' wrongful death cause of action accrued when they came to suspect, or had reason to suspect, a factual basis for the cause of action. A plaintiff has reason to suspect when he or she had notice or information of circumstances to put a reasonable person on inquiry. This would have occurred as early as their daughter's death, or shortly after, based on their investigation. The plaintiffs were four or five years late under this exception [Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 405, 981 P.2d 79] .

In Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc., the California Supreme Court was presented with the issue of whether a plaintiff could avail herself of the discovery rule in her medical products liability action even though she had already filed a medical malpractice claim against her surgeon. Distinguishing both Jolly and Norgart, the court concluded that her claim was not necessarily time-barred. It held that under the delayed discovery rule, a cause of action accrues and the statute of limitations begins to run when the plaintiff has reason to suspect an injury and some wrongful cause, unless the plaintiff pleads and proves that a reasonable investigation at that time would not have revealed a factual basis for that particular cause of action. In that situation, the statute of limitations for that cause of action would be tolled until such time as a reasonable investigation would have revealed its factual basis [Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 797, 802-803, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 110 P.3d 914] .

In Fox, the plaintiff filed a medical malpractice complaint after her intestine was perforated during surgery. During his deposition the following year, the surgeon first raised the possibility that the perforation was caused by a malfunctioning stapler. The plaintiff then filed a first amended complaint adding the manufacturer of the stapler as a named defendant. The superior court sustained the manufacturer's demurrer to the products liability complaint, concluding that the statute of limitations barred the claim. The court of appeal reversed and remanded with directions to grant the plaintiff leave to amend to allege facts explaining why she did not have reason to discover earlier the factual basis of her products liability claim [Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 797, 802-803, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 110 P.3d 914] .

The Supreme Court affirmed, explaining that to rely on the discovery rule, a potential plaintiff must specifically plead facts to show both (1) the time and manner of discovery and (2) the inability to have made earlier discovery despite reasonable diligence. To adequately allege facts supporting a theory of delayed discovery, the plaintiff must plead that despite diligent investigation of the circumstances of the injury, he or she could not have reasonably discovered facts supporting the cause of action within the applicable statute of limitation period [Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 797, 807-809, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 110 P.3d 914] . The plaintiff in Fox only partially met this requirement by alleging that there was no way "through which her reasonable diligence would have revealed, or through which she would have suspected" the stapler as a cause of her injury until August 13, 2001, the date of the surgeon's deposition. She needed to allege specific facts supporting her allegations. She could have cured this defect by adding to her complaint the allegation that she did not suspect or have reason to discover facts supporting a products liability action against the manufacturer until after deposing her physician [Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 797, 807-809, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 110 P.3d 914] .

In Fox, the Court specifically rejected the bright-line test of Bristol-Myers Squibb v. Superior Court, which provides that when a plaintiff has cause to sue based on knowledge or suspicion of negligence, the statute of limitations starts to run as to all potential defendants [Bristol-Myers Squibb Co. v. Superior Court (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 959, 966, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 298] . The Court noted that in Bristol-Myers Squibb, the court of appeal had failed to make the distinction between a plaintiff's ignorance of the identity of a particular defendant and ignorance that a product was the cause of the plaintiff's injury. The Court reiterated that although ignorance of the identity of the manufacturer is not an essential element of a products liability cause of action and therefore will not delay the running of the statute of limitations, a plaintiff's ignorance of wrongdoing involving a product's defect will usually delay accrual because that wrongdoing is essential to the cause of action [Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 797, 812-814, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 110 P.3d 914] . A diligent plaintiff's investigation may only disclose an action for one type of tort (for example, medical malpractice), and facts supporting an entirely different type of tort action (for example, products liability) may, through no fault of the plaintiff, only come to light at a later date. Therefore, the Bristol-Myers Squibb rule that all claims arising from any injury accrue simultaneously, even if based on distinct types of wrongdoing, is inconsistent with the generic elements approach set forth in Norgart [Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 797, 814-815, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 110 P.3d 914] .

A few years later, in Grisham v. Philip Morris U.S.A., Inc. [(2007) 40 Cal. 4th 623, 646, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735, 151 P.3d 1151], the California Supreme Court held that the basic rationale of Fox--that the discovery of one cause of action does not necessary mean that plaintiff should have discovered the factual basis for a qualitatively different type of action--was fully applicable in a case where a smoker first claimed economic injury from addiction and later claimed physical injuries. The court clarified that the fact that Fox--unlike Grisham--involved misconduct by two different defendants was not a basis for its ruling. Grisham is discussed in § 460.31[2][b][D], below.

[D] Applying the Discovery Rule in Tobacco Litigation

Tobacco litigation poses particularly complex statute of limitations problems because of the issues of addiction and the substantial public information available regarding the harmful effects of smoking. In Soliman v. Philip Morris Inc. [(9th Cir. 2002) 311 F.3d 966, 972], the Ninth Circuit held that a plaintiff who alleged addiction as a distinct injury had constructive knowledge that smoking was addictive and could not invoke the discovery rule. Federal courts in the Ninth Circuit routinely relied on Soliman to dismiss tobacco lawsuits, proceeding under the rule that a plaintiff is presumed to be aware that smoking causes addiction and other health problems [see Grisham v. Philip Morris U.S.A. (9th Cir. 2005) 403 F.3d 631, 637]. Subsequent California case law addressing fraud in the context of tobacco litigation did not support the reasoning of Soliman, and the Ninth Circuit decided to revisit the issue. It certified two questions. The first asked whether for statute of limitations purposes, persons are presumed to have been aware by 1988 that smoking causes addiction and other health problems, and if so, under what circumstances is it rebuttable. The second question asked whether, if a plaintiff seeks damages for addiction, the personal injury action accrues when the plaintiff recognizes that he or she is addicted to tobacco, if the plaintiff has not yet been diagnosed with a tobacco-related injury [Grisham v. Philip Morris U.S.A. (9th Cir. 2005) 403 F.3d 631, 633].

The Supreme Court of California answered the question in Grisham v. Philip Morris U.S.A., Inc. [(2007) 40 Cal. 4th 623, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735, 151 P.3d 1151]. The court found no basis for a conclusive presumption that a particular smoker was or should have been aware in 1988 that cigarettes were addictive or dangerous [Grisham v. Philip Morris U.S.A., Inc. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 623, 636-637, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735, 151 P.3d 1151]. Because of the tobacco companies' widespread misrepresentations, the court also rejected a special presumption based on common knowledge that plaintiffs are aware that smoking is addictive or harmful. The court did acknowledge a general, rebuttable presumption that plaintiffs have knowledge of the wrongful cause of their injuries. The court specifically rejected Soliman to the extent that it held that there is a special presumption based on common knowledge that a plaintiff is aware that smoking is addictive or harmful [(2007) 40 Cal. 4th 623, 638, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735, 151 P.3d 1151]. In so doing, the court almost certainly revived tobacco litigation in California.

The court also made it clear that the fact that an unfair competition claim based on economic injury from addiction might be time-barred did not mean that plaintiff's other claims based on physical injury were also barred In so holding, the court distinguished the statute of limitations from rule against splitting a cause of action, which "is in part a rule of abatement and in part a rule of res judicata" [Grisham v. Philip Morris U.S.A., Inc. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 623, 640-646, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735, 151 P.3d 1151]. The court did not address whether two different physical injuries arising out of the same wrongdoing can give rise to two separate lawsuits.

Litigants and courts alike continue to wrestle with application of California's discovery rule. In Pooshs v. Phillip Morris USA, Inc. [Pooshs v. Phillip Morris USA, Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 561 F.3d 964, 967-968] , the Ninth Circuit certified two questions asking whether (1) two separate physical injuries arising out of the same wrongdoing may be conceived of as invading two different primary rights, and (2) whether two separate physical injuries--both caused by a plaintiff's use of tobacco--may be considered "qualitatively different" for purpose of determining when the statute of limitations begins to run.

[iii] Fraudulent Concealment

The statute of limitations is also tolled by the defendant's fraud in concealing the cause of action so long as the plaintiff has not discovered the claim or, with the exercise of reasonable diligence, should have discovered it [Braxton-Secret v. A.H. Robins Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 769 F.2d 528, 531-532 ; Grisham v. Philip Morris U.S.A., Inc. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 623, 638, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735, 151 P.3d 1151 ; Bernson v. Browning-Ferris Indus. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 926, 931, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440, 873 P.2d 613] . A defendant's fraudulent concealment tolls the statute of limitations only when, as a result of that concealment, the plaintiff fails to discovery some critical fact [Goldrich v. Natural Y Surgical Specialties (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 772, 784, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162 (breast implant)].

[iv] Filing of Class Action

The United States Supreme Court has held that the filing of a class action tolls the applicable statute of limitations [American Pipe & Constr. Co. v. Utah (1974) 414 U.S. 538, 552-556, 94 S. Ct. 756, 38 L. Ed. 2d 713, 725-728] . The California Supreme Court declined to "extend" those cases to a mass-tort class action situation presented by a prescription drug litigation case [Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1122-1124, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923] . The court pointed out the two policy considerations underlying the tolling rule: protection of the efficiency and economy of the litigation and protection of defendants from unfair claims. Neither consideration was present in the prescription drug class action complaint [Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1122-1124, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923] . However, the court did not establish a blanket rule against tolling. In a mass construction defect case, the appellate court held that tolling was proper [Becker v. McMillin Constr. Co. (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1493, 1502, 277 Cal. Rptr. 491] . The court of appeal subsequently held in a property damage asbestos case that the statute of limitations was tolled until from the commencement of an class action filed in federal court until decertification [San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. W.R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1337, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 (because U.S. Supreme Court is ultimate authority on FRCP, Supreme Court's decisions on class action tolling have force of law if class action was filed in federal court)]. The court also held that a plaintiff who opts out of federal class action is entitled to have the limitations period tolled during the time it was a member of the class [San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. W.R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1340, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305] .

[v] Equitable Tolling

The doctrine of equitable tolling is a rule of procedure adopted by the courts. It operates independently of the Code of Civil Procedure [Addison v. State (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 313, 318-319, 146 Cal. Rptr. 224, 578 P.2d 941] . The doctrine of equitable tolling may relieve a plaintiff from the bar of the statute of limitations when, possessing several legal remedies, he or she reasonably and in good faith pursues one designed to lessen the extent of the injuries or damage. Application of the doctrine requires timely notice and lack of prejudice to the defendant, and reasonable and good faith conduct on the part of the plaintiff [Addison v. State (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 313, 317-319, 146 Cal. Rptr. 224, 578 P.2d 941] . In Addison v. State [(1978) 21 Cal. 3d 313, 317-319, 146 Cal. Rptr. 224, 578 P.2d 941] , the court held that the period for filing a state court suit was tolled while the plaintiff pursued a federal court suit on the same claims against the same defendants. Because the federal action was timely filed, defendants were notified of the action and had the opportunity to begin gathering their evidence and preparing their defense [Addison v. State (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 313, 319, 146 Cal. Rptr. 224, 578 P.2d 941] .

Equitable tolling is not available to a plaintiff whose conduct evidences an intent to delay disposition of the case without good cause, or who engages in the procedural tactic of moving the case from one forum to another in the hopes of obtaining more favorable rulings [Mitchell v. Frank R. Howard Mem'l Hosp. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 1396, 1407-1408, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 521)].

In one case, plaintiffs contended that the doctrine of equitable tolling applied to their action against a manufacturer of hardboard siding because they had previously made a warranty claim to the company and subsequently engaged in continuous negotiations. However, no evidence supported their contention [Mills v. Forestex Co. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 625, 650-651, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 273] .

In Lantzy v. Centex Homes (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 363, 383, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 655, 73 P.3d 517 , the California Supreme Court concluded that the 10-year period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 337.15 [see § 460.31[1]] is not subject to equitable tolling while a potential defendant's promises or attempts to repair the defects are pending. The court held that a broad tolling-for-repairs rule would have contravened the legislature's clear intent to ensure a generous but firm cutoff date for latent-defects suits. The court also held that the homeowners failed to plead facts that would equitably estop the defendant from asserting the limitations period.

[c] Pleading

A plaintiff who commences an action after the period specified by the applicable statute of limitations and who relies on the delayed accrual of the cause of action as noted above must plead facts justifying the delayed accrual. For example, in the case of personal injury discussed above, the complaint must allege both [G. D. Searle & Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 22, 26, 122 Cal. Rptr. 218] :

- The time and manner of discovery.
- The circumstances excusing delayed discovery.

[3] Limitation Derived From Other Jurisdiction's Statute of Repose

Another jurisdiction's statute of repose can stop a plaintiff from bringing a products liability action against a manufacturer. For example, a federal statute of repose, the General Aviation Revitalization Act of 1994 (GARA) [49 U.S.C.S. § 40101], precludes any civil action against a manufacturer of general aviation aircraft if the part that allegedly caused the accident is more than 18 years old [see § 460.52[2][e]].

Statutes of repose of other states may apply to a case because of choice of law rules [see § 460.104[13]] or because of California's borrowing statute [see § 460.104[8a]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsProcedureStatutes of LimitationsAccrual of ActionsGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureStatutes of LimitationsAccrual of ActionsDiscovery RuleTortsProcedureStatutes of ReposeProducts LiabilityTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.32

§ 460.32 Alternative Theories of Recovery

[1] Pleading Alternative Theories

It is good practice for a plaintiff to plead any and all causes of action against any and all potential defendants who may be liable to plaintiff for plaintiff's injuries. This will avoid the running of the statute of limitations on any such action (as opposed to a count, or alternative theory of recovery) and provide plaintiff with a wider selection of defendants with whom a satisfactory settlement may be negotiated. Such actions or parties may, of course, be dismissed prior to trial.

[2] Alternative Theories Against Retailer, Wholesaler, Distributor, Manufacturer, and Supplier

Potential parties against whom strict liability may be asserted include the retailer, the wholesaler or distributor, and the manufacturer of the defective product, as well as any supplier of the specific defective component part of the product. Alternative theories of liability against these parties which may be pleaded in the complaint as additional causes of action or alternative counts include actions based on negligence, breach of express or implied warranty [but see Balido v. Improved Mach., Inc. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 633, 640-641, 105 Cal. Rptr. 890 , criticized on another point, Foglio v. Western Auto Supply (1976) 56 App. 3d 470, 476, 128 Cal. Rptr. 545 (in personal injury actions not involving commerical relationship between manufacturer and injured person, warranty count in action against manufacturer adds nothing to strict liability and negligence counts)], or based on intentional tort, such as fraud [Henley v. Philip Morris Inc. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 1467, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 29] . Fraud must be pleaded with specificity, and to withstand a demurrer, the facts constituting every element of fraud must be alleged with particularity [Cadlo v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 513, 519, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 , modified, 2004 Cal. App. LEXIS 2260 ; Goldrich v. Natural Y Surgical Specialties (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 772, 782, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162 (breast implant)].

[3] Pleading Theories of Strict Liability and Negligence

It is not uncommon for a plaintiff in a products liability case to seek recovery from the same person on the theories of both strict liability in tort and negligence and a plaintiff who does so is not required to elect whether to proceed on one theory or the other but may proceed on both [Jiminez v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 379, 387, 93 Cal. Rptr. 769, 482 P.2d 681 ; see Valentine v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (1999) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1467, 1479, 81 Cal. Rptr.

2d 252 (negligence was separate and severable from independent causes of action for strict liability and fraud)]. The disadvantage of going to trial on both theories would be to open the door to defendant to introduce extensive evidence relevant to the due care issue of the negligence count showing the great pains taken to design, test, produce, and inspect the product. This evidence might have a negative effect on the trier of fact so far as the plaintiff is concerned. On the other hand, in such case plaintiff would be entitled to a res ipsa loquitur instruction on the negligence count [see § 460.32[4]].

Although under Jiminez v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 379, 387, 93 Cal. Rptr. 769, 482 P.2d 681 , a plaintiff in a products liability action is not required to elect whether to proceed on a theory of strictliability in tort or on a theory of negligence when the instructions on the two theories will not be confusing to the jury, in a non res ipsa loquitur case when recovery under either theory is dependent on the existence of a manufacturing defect, the court may properly refuse to instruct on negligence and instruct solely on the strict liability theory [Montez v. Ford Motor Co. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 315, 318-320, 161 Cal. Rptr. 578] .

In addition to those persons involved in placing the product in or moving it along the stream of commerce, whose liability is based on strict liability in tort, other persons may be liable to plaintiff based on a theory other than strict liability in tort, for example, based solely on negligence theory [see §§ 460.143, 460.161].

[4] Res Ipsa Loquitur

If an action is based solely on strict liability in tort, the plaintiff is not entitled to have the jury given a res ipsa loquitur instruction [see, e.g., Lewis v. American Hoist & Derrick Co. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 570, 579, 97 Cal. Rptr. 798 ; Tresham v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 403, 407-408, 79 Cal. Rptr. 883 ; McCurter v. Norton Co. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 402, 408, 69 Cal. Rptr. 493] . But, if the case is based on both strict liability and negligence, the plaintiff may be entitled to the instruction on the negligence count [see Jiminez v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 379, 383-386, 93 Cal. Rptr. 769, 482 P.2d 681 ; cf. Romig v. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 420, 422, 76 Cal. Rptr. 479 (refusal of instruction not reversible error)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityBreach of WarrantyTortsProducts LiabilityManufacturing DefectsTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.33

§ 460.33 Damages

[1] Effect of Alternative Theories of Recovery

Strict products liability permits recovery of compensatory damages for many forms of personal injury and property damage [see, e.g., McKinney v. California Portland Cement Co. (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1214, 1227-1229, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 849, 858-860 (loss of household services)]. These include damages for physical harm to the plaintiff's property [Seely v. White Motor Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 9, 19, 45 Cal. Rptr. 17, 403 P.2d 145 ; Gherna v. Ford Motor Co. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 639, 649, 55 Cal. Rptr. 94] . In construction defect cases for physical injury to property, cost of repair is the proper measure of damages. Relevant expert fees incurred to formulate a repair plan are recoverable as cost of repair damages [Stearman v. Centex Homes (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 611, 624-625, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 761] . They also include damages for the emotional shock of viewing the injuries caused by the defendant's defective product while being used by plaintiff [Kately v. Wilkinson (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 576, 587, 195 Cal. Rptr. 902 ; Shepard v. Superior Ct. (1977) 76 Cal. App. 3d 16, 20-21, 142 Cal. Rptr. 612] . Plaintiffs may also recover damages for medical monitoring expenses [*In re Mattel, Inc. Toy Lead Paint Prods. Liab. Litig. (C.D. Cal. Nov. 24, 2008) 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 104241, at 20 ; Miranda v. Shell Oil Co. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1651, 1655-1660, 12 Cal. App. 4th 28, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 569, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 655] . The U.S. Supreme Court ruled that a jury hearing a FELA case must be instructed on the standard for fear-of cancer damages [CSX Transp., Inc. v. Hensley (2009) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 2139, 2141-2142, 173 L. Ed. 2d 1184] .

Generally, no recovery is allowed under strict liability for purely economic losses such as lost property, loss of use, or loss of bargain [see § 460.11[4]]. Those losses are usually compensable only under a warranty theory [Rodrigues v. Campbell Indus. (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 494, 151 Cal. Rptr. 90 ; Anthony v. Kelsey-Hayes Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 442, 102 Cal. Rptr. 113] . Economic losses not recoverable in strict liability can include repair cost, replacement cost, loss of profits or diminution of value, if the loss is solely economic, and not due to physical harm to the property [Collins Dev. Co. v. D. J. Plastering, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 771, 779, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 83] . For discussion of damages available for breach of warranty, see Ch. 500, Sales and Secured Transactions . Recovery of economic losses may also be possible in an action based on negligence if certain requirements regarding the foreseeability of the damages are met [see Pisano v. Am. Leasing (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 194, 197, 194 Cal. Rptr. 77] . For discussion of the damages recoverable in a negligence action, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

The collateral source rule operates to prevent a defendant from reducing a plaintiff's damages with evidence that the plaintiff received compensation from a source independent of the defendant [Pacific Gas & Elec. v. Superior Court (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 174, 176, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 522 ; McKinney v. California Portland Cement Co. (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1214, 1224-1227, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 849, 855-858 (declining defendant's invitation to reconstruct collateral source rule "in reverse" to reduce plaintiff's damages in asbestos case)]. Examples of collateral sources that may not be used to decrease a plaintiff's recovery include medical insurance, pension and disability benefits, and continued wages paid by an employer [Helfend v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 1, 13-14, 84 Cal. Rptr. 173, 465 P.2d 61] . The rule is subject to certain exceptions [see, e.g., Stathos v. Lemich (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 52, 56-57, 28 Cal. Rptr. 462] .

[2] Punitive Damages

[a] Civ. Code § 3294 Provides Statutory Authority

Punitive damages may be awarded in a strict products liability action if the plaintiff can establish the "oppression, fraud, or malice" required under Civ. Code § 3294, and that personal injury (or some equivalent egregious injury) occurred [Gawara v. United States Brass Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1341, 1360-1363, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 663 (award of punitive damages reversed because plaintiffs did not suffer personal injury or any other egregious injury)]. Punitive damages may be awarded in a products liability action if the plaintiff shows that the defendant placed the product on the market in conscious disregard of the safety of consumers and others [*Bethel v. Home Depot U.S.A., Inc. (S.D. Cal. Dec. 4, 2008) 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 98161, at 7 ; Ehrhardt v. Brunswick, Inc. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 734, 741, 231 Cal. Rptr. 60]. To establish conscious disregard, the plaintiff must show that the defendant was aware of the probable dangerous consequences of its conduct, and that it willfully and deliberately failed to avoid those consequences [*Bethel v. Home Depot U.S.A., Inc. (S.D. Cal. Dec. 4, 2008) 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 98161, at 7 ; Hoch v. Allied-Signal (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 48, 61, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615]. Courts generally impose a heightened pleading standard for the recovery of punitive damages under Code Civ. Proc. § 3294 [see *Lear v. Louisville Ladder, Inc. (S.D. Cal. Oct. 9, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 75007, at 3 ; Smith v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1033, 1041-1042, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 133]. Appellate courts conduct de novo review of the amount of a punitive damages award [Boeken v. Philip Morris Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1690, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638] . For discussion of punitive damages generally, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[b] Grimshaw Court Adopted Broad View of Punitive Damages

California's view of punitive damages in products liability was set forth in Grimshaw v. Ford Motor Co. [(1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 757, 174 Cal. Rptr. 348], a case arising when a Ford Pinto burst into flames when rear-ended by another vehicle. The Grimshaw court reasoned that government safety standards and criminal law failed to provide adequate protection against the manufacture and distribution of defective products, leaving punitive damages as the most effective remedy against mass produced articles. The Grimshaw court adopted a broad view not only of the goal of punitive damages, but also of the measure of punitive damages. It noted that an award that is so small that it can be simply written off as a part of the cost of doing business would have no deterrent effect. In subsequent products liability cases, the essential question for the jury, the trial court, and the appellate courts was whether the amount of the award substantially served the public interest in punishment and deterrence. The courts used three criteria for making that determination: (1) the reprehensibility of the defendant's misdeeds; (2) the amount of compensatory damages; and (3) the defendant's financial condition [Stevens v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1645, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 525 ; Vossler v. Richards Mfg. Co. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 952, 968-969, 192 Cal. Rptr. 219 , overruled in part, Adams v. Murakami (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 105, 115-116, 284 Cal. Rptr. 318].

[c] U.S. Supreme Court Cases Addressing Constitutionality of Punitive Damages

The U.S. Supreme Court had issued a series of decisions discussing the constitutionality of punitive damages [Philip Morris USA Inc. v. Williams (2007) 549 U.S. 346, 127 S. Ct. 1057, 166 L. Ed.2d 940 , cert. dismissed, 2009 U.S. LEXIS 2493 (vacating and remanding Oregon Supreme Court's affirmance of a $79.5 million punitive damages award, which was approximately 100 times the compensatory damages award, on grounds that the court erred in permitting the jury to consider harm defendant's product caused to non-parties as a factor in their punitive damages calculations; doing so violated 14th Amendment Due Process Clause); State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585 (applying Gore factors to reverse $145 million punitive damages award in insurance bad faith case arising out of fatal motor vehicle accident); Cooper v. Leatherman (2001) 532 U.S. 424, 434-436, 121 S. Ct. 1678, 149 L. Ed.2d 674 (courts of appeals should apply de novo standard of review, when passing on courts' determination of whether punitive damages awards are grossly excessive); BMW of N. Am., Inc. v. Gore (1996) 517 U.S. 559, 116 S. Ct. 1589, 134 L. Ed. 2d 809 (setting forth "guideposts" for lower courts to consider when weighing constitutionality of punitive damages award); Honda Motor Co. v. Oberg (1994) 512 U.S. 415, 114 S. Ct. 2331, 129 L. Ed. 2d 336 (denial of review of punitive damages award violates Due Process Clause); TXO Prod. Corp. v. Alliance Res. Corp. (1993) 509 U.S. 443, 113 S. Ct. 2711, 125 L. Ed. 2d 366] ($10 million punitive damages award was not so grossly excessive as to violate Due Process); Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Haslip (1991) 499 U.S. 1, 111 S. Ct. 1032, 113 L. Ed. 2d 1 (declining to draw mathematical bright line between constitutionally acceptable and unacceptable).

Also, a divided U.S. Supreme Court dealt a blow to punitive damages in its 2008 decision, Exxon Shipping Co. v. Baker [Exxon Shipping Co. v. Baker (2008) -- U.S. --, 128 S. Ct. 2605, 171 L. Ed. 2d 570]. Unlike the series of cases mentioned in the paragraph above, the Court did not decide Baker on constitutional grounds. Instead, it exercised its "federal maritime common law authority" to devise a one-to-one maximum ratio between compensatory and punitive damages. The Baker ruling is binding only in maritime cases, but will no doubt be cited in federal and state courts alike by those seeking to impose quantitative limits on punitive damages.

[d] California Appellate Review of Punitive Damages Awards

Soon after the U.S. Supreme Court's series of punitive damages decisions, California appellate courts began grappling with the constitutionality of punitive damages awards. In 2005, the California Supreme Court shed some light on the issue in two cases, neither of which involved products liability. In the first of these cases, Johnson v. Ford Motor Co., the Supreme Court of California addressed the due process considerations of punitive damages awards. The plaintiffs in that case alleged that the defendant concealed an automobile's history of transmission work when reselling the automobile. The jury awarded the plaintiffs $17,811 in compensatory damages and $10 million in punitive damages. The court of appeal held that the defendant could constitutionally be punished only for its fraud on the plaintiffs and not for its overall course of conduct. It reduced the punitive damages award to $53,435, approximately three times the compensatory damages. The Supreme Court reversed, holding that the court of appeal failed to adequately consider that the defendant's conduct was more reprehensible because it was part of a repeated corporate practice, rather than an solated incident. After reviewing the U.S. Supreme Court's analyses in Gore and State Farm, the Court found that due process does not prohibit state courts, in awarding or reviewing punitive damages, from considering the defendant's wrongful conduct towards others that was similar to the tortious conduct that injured the plaintiff. It accordingly found that a civil defendant's recidivism remains pertinent to an assessment of culpability [Johnson v. Ford Motor Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 1191, 1196-1204, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 401, 113 P.3d 82] . The Court criticized the approach to punitive damages taken by the court of appeal in Romo v. Ford Motor Co., discussed below, as incorrectly suggesting that appellate review must be "blind to the state's interest in punishing and deterring a wrongful corporate practice." The Court found that California's policy of using punitive damages to deter continuation or imitation of a corporation's course of wrongful conduct in fact survived the U.S. Supreme Court cases already discussed. However, the Court disapproved of the plaintiffs' "aggregate disgorgement" theory of punitive damages [Johnson v. Ford Motor Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 1191, 1206, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 401, 113 P.3d 82] .

In Johnson's companion case, Simon v. San Paolo U.S. Holding Co., another non-products liability case, the California Supreme Court pointed out that a court reviewing a punitive damages award for constitutionality must make an independent assessment of the relationship between the award and the factual circumstances of the case [Simon v. San Paolo U.S. Holding Co. Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 1159, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 379, 113 P.3d 63] .

The Fifth Appellate District responded dramatically to the State Farm decision, reducing the largest punitive damages judgment ever upheld by California appellate court from $290 million to $23.7 million. In Romo v. Ford Motor Co. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 738, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793 , plaintiffswere injured and their parents and brother died when the steel and fiberglass portions of their 1978 Ford Bronco's roof collapsed in a rollover. The appellate court initially found that plaintiffs met their burden of establishing that Ford consciously decided not to provide adequate crush protection to properly belted passengers, and that the $290 million punitive damages award was not excessive. Following State Farm, the U.S. Supreme Court granted certiorari, vacated the judgment, and remanded the case for reconsideration. The California court interpreted State Farm as impliedly disapproving of its broad view of the goal and measure of punitive damages. It explained that the result of State Farm's constitutional due process limitation is a punitive damages analysis that focuses primarily on what the defendant did to the present plaintiff, rather than the defendant's wealth or general incorrigibility [Romo v. Ford Motor Co. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 738, 749, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793] . As the court read State Farm, the legitimate state goal that punitive damages may seek is to condemn conduct that resulted in "outrage and humiliation" to the plaintiffs before the court, not to punish the defendant for everything else it may have done wrong. However, as already discussed, the California Supreme Court has criticized this analysis [Johnson v. Ford Motor Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 1191, 1206, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 401, 113 P.3d 82] .

The court then explained that under its previous broad view of punitive damages, the $290 million punitive damage award against Ford was justified, but only as a means to actually punish and deter an entire course of conduct that harmed not only the plaintiffs, but potentially thousands of others. But State Farm made it clear that the permissible punishment is for the harm inflicted on the present plaintiffs.

After discussing State Farm's amplification of the three Gore factors, the court applied the opinion as part of its review of the punitive damages award. It concluded that the jury was incorrectly instructed that it could consider the amount of punitive damages which would have a deterrent effect on the defendant in light of defendant's financial condition. The court emphasized that the instructions must not invite the jury to impose damages sufficient to punish and deter all conduct of the type directed towards these plaintiffs. Although evidence concerning a defendant's financial condition is not inappropriate under State Farm, it must be used only to determine the appropriate punishment for the present malicious conduct.

The court next turned to the issue of constitutional excessiveness in light of State Farm. The reprehensibility factor weighed heavily in favor of substantial punitive damages. As for the "reasonable relationship" factor, the court noted that there was no award whatsoever reflecting the "outrage" to the deceased family members themselves. The court concluded that the third Gore factor--comparable civil and criminal punishments--required neither a higher nor lower ratio between the compensatory and punitive damages.

In conclusion, the court concluded that the extreme reprehensibility of defendant's actions and the under-compensation of plaintiff's individual losses outweighed the punitive element already contained to some extent in the individual compensatory damages award. As a result, the court determined that a punitive damages award of triple the compensatory award to the individual plaintiffs of $4,574,429--or $13,723,287--would be constitutionally reasonable. A punitive damages award to the estate of each deceased parent of $5,000,000 was constitutionally reasonable. The overall punitive damages award--$23,723,287--was about five times the total compensatory damages award.

Several months before the California Supreme Court issued its opinion in Johnson v. Ford Motor Co., the Second Appellate District also issued an opinion on punitive damages. In that case, the jury awarded a smoker $5,539,127 in compensatory damages and $3 billion in punitive damages. The trial court reduced the punitive damages award to $100 million. The court of appeal initially reduced that award to $50 million. On rehearing, after extensive evaluation of the federal and state standards for review of punitive damages, the court affirmed the $50 million award. In making its determination, the court pointed out that the plaintiff's injuries were physical, as opposed to merely economic, that he was physically and psychologically vulnerable, that the defendant knew it was manufacturing a dangerous product, and in fact added chemicals to it to make it more addictive. Moreover, the defendant continued its conduct for nearly half a century with indifference to the safety of others [Boeken v. Philip Morris Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1692, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638] .

As for the ratio of compensatory to punitive damages, the court interpreted State Farm as being instructive, not binding [Boeken v. Philip Morris Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1695-1696, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638] . The court next examined the defendant's wealth and accepted the trial court's finding of the defendant's value as between $30 and $35 million [Boeken v. Philip Morris Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1697, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638] . The court then found no analogous civil or criminal penalties against which to measure the award of punitive damages. Applying the law to the facts, the court found that the defendant's 40 years' of fraud and continuing conscious disregard for the safety of consumers to be "exceptionally extreme." At the same time, it acknowledged that the compensatory damages award of over $5 million was significant. The court took into consideration previous punitive damages awards imposed against the defendant, as well as the possibility of future awards in cases with identical issues. The court concluded that more than a single digit multiplier was not justified, but that the extreme reprehensibility of defendant's conduct justified a ratio of at least 9 to 1 [Boeken v. Philip Morris Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640]. The Supreme Court of California denied the parties' petition for review [Boeken v. Philip Morris (Cal. Aug. 10, 2005) 2005 Cal. LEXIS 8780] . The U.S. Supreme Court also denied the petition for writ of certiorari [Boeken v. Philip Morris (2006) 547 U.S. 1018, 126 S. Ct. 1567, 164 L. Ed. 2d 297] . Philip Morris then paid $82 million including interest to the plaintiff [TobaccoDocuments.org, Tobacco Documents Online, http://tobaccodocuments.org/profiles/litigation/boeken.html]. The smoker's widow and son subsequently filed a wrongful death suit against Philip Morris.

The constitutional concerns addressed in the U.S. Supreme Court cases continue to shape California punitive damages law. In Ford Motor Co. v. Buell-Wilson [Ford Motor Co. v. Buell-Wilson (2007) 127 S. Ct. 2250, 167 L. Ed. 2d 1087], a Ford Explorer rollover case, the U.S. Supreme Court vacated a judgment of the Fourth Appellate District, Division One, which had reduced a remitted $75 million punitive damages award to $55 million, a two-to-one ratio to the compensatory damages award. The court remanded the case for further consideration in light of Philip Morris USA v. Williams [Philip Morris USA v. Williams (2007) 549 U.S. 346, 127 S. Ct. 1057, 166 L. Ed. 2d 940 , cert. denied, 2009 U.S. LEXIS 2493]. On remand, the California appellate court concluded that Williams did not require it to reverse or further reduce the punitive damages award. The court concluded that the manufacturer forfeited its right to argue that there was a significant risk the punitive damages verdict was based on improper evidence and arguments concerning third-party harm. The court also concluded that its original decision reduced the punitive damages award to a constitutionally permissible amount [Buell-Wilson v. Ford Motor Co. (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1107, 1119-1120, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 277 , review granted and depublished, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 27, 187 P.3d 887]. The Supreme Court initially granted review and depublished the case, but ultimately dismissed review and remanded the case back to the court of appeal after the U.S. Supreme Court dismissed the writ of certiorari in the Williams case [Buell-Wilson (Benetta) v. Ford Motor Co. (2009) 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 536, 207 P.3d 1] . The U.S. Supreme Court then denied the auto manufacturer's petition for review [Ford Motor Co. v. Buell-Wilson (2009) -- U.S. --, 175 L. Ed. 2d 515] . However, the court of appeal decision upholding the constitutionality of the $55 million punitive damages award remains unpublished. In Bullock v. Philip Morris USA, Inc., [(2006) 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 365, 141 P.3d 718] , another cigarette case, the supreme court depublished and granted review of decision affirming a $28 million punitive damages award, an amount 33 times greater than the compensatory damages award. The court agreed to defer further action pending the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in Philip Morris USA v. Williams (2006) - U.S. -, 126 S. Ct. 2329, 164 L. Ed. 2d 838] . The court ultimately transferred the case back to the court of appeal with directions to vacate its decision and reconsider the matter in light of Williams [Bullock v. Philip Morris USA, Inc. (2007) 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 441, 159 P.3d 33]. On remand, the appellate court concluded that the refusal to give the cigarette manufacturer's proposed instruction not to impose punishment for harm caused to nonparties to the litigation constituted prejudicial error. The court ordered a new trial to determine the amount of punitive damages [Bullock v. Philip Morris USA, Inc. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 655, 693-694, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 775].

Under Civ. Code § 3294.5, effective August 16, 2004 [Stats 2004, ch. 227 § 8.5], 75 percent of any punitive damages awarded by final judgment must be deposited in a state fund, to be appropriated for public purposes. However, the statute was repealed on July 1, 2006, due to a sunset provision that the statute contained. The California Supreme Court has noted that the enactment appears to confirm that punitive damages are imposed to address a public, not merely a private, wrong [Johnson v. Ford Motor Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 1191, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 401, 113 P.3d 82] . However, the legislature declared in the text of the statute itself that Civ. Code § 3294.5 "shall not be construed or interpreted in any way to establish any policy ... regarding the award of punitive damages" [Civ. Code § 3294.5(a)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsDamagesGeneral OverviewTortsDamagesPunitive DamagesGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.34

§ 460.34 Burden of Proof

[1] Plaintiff

Under Evid. Code § 500, "[e]xcept as otherwise provided by law, a party has the burden of proof as to each fact the existence or nonexistence of which is essential to the claim for relief ... that he is asserting." Hence, plaintiff, in an action based on strict liability in tort, has the burden of presenting evidence that will establish the essential elements of the cause of action. That is, plaintiff has the burden of proving that defendant sold or was somehow responsible for the product's being in the commercial stream by which it reached public use, that defendant knew or intended that the product would be used without inspection for defects, that, at the time it left defendant's hands, it contained a defect in manufacture or design that rendered it unsafe for its intended purpose (or required special instructions or warning as to its use because of a known or knowable danger [see §§ 460.164 -469.168] and that the instructions or warning were not given or if given were inadequate), and that plaintiff or plaintiff's property was injured as a proximate result of the defect while the product was being used in a way it was intended to be used [see Miller v. Los Angeles County Flood Control Dist. (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 689, 704, 106 Cal. Rptr. 1, 505 P.2d 193 ; Foglio v. Western Auto Supply (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 470, 474, 128 Cal. Rptr. 545] . Plaintiff also has the burden of establishing damages, that is, the amount of money necessary to compensate plaintiff for his, her, or its injuries [see Civ. Code §§ 3281-3283].

Proof beyond a reasonable doubt is not required. Rather, plaintiff need only introduce evidence that affords a reasonable basis for the conclusion that it is more likely that plaintiff's injury was caused by defendant than that it was not [Grinnell v. Charles Pfizer & Co. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 424, 435, 79 Cal. Rptr. 369] .

For further discussion of the elements of a cause of action and proof requirements, see § 460.11.

[2] Market-Share Theory Actions

In an action brought under the market-share theory of liability (in which all the manufacturers of a substantial portion of the appropriate markethave been joined as defendants), each defendant will be held liable for the proportion of the judgment represented by its share of that market unless it demonstrates that it could not have made the product that caused plaintiff's injuries [Sindell v. Abbott Labs. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 612, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132, 607 P.2d 924] .

Once plaintiff has met the burden of joining the required defendants, the defendants in turn may cross complain against other manufacturers not joined in the action that they can allege might have supplied the injury-causing product [Sindell v. Abbott Labs. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 612, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132, 607 P.2d 924] . The market-share theory is discussed in more detail in the General Introduction under § 460.11[7].

[3] Jury Instructions

The court must instruct the jury as to which party bears the burden of proof on each issue and as to whether that burden requires that a party raise a reasonable doubt concerning the existence or nonexistence of a fact or that the party establish the existence or nonexistence of a fact by a preponderance of the evidence, by clear and convincing proof, or by proof beyond a reasonable doubt [Evid. Code § 502].

Effective September 1, 2003, the official instructions for use in California are contained in the Judicial Council of California Civil Jury Instructions (LexisNexis/Matthew Bender, Official Publisher), commonly referred to as CACI. The California Rules of Court strongly encourage use of the Judicial Council instructions and recommend that a judge use an applicable Judicial Council instruction unless he or she finds that a different instruction would more accurately state the law and be understood by jurors [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.1050].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
EvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofGeneral OverviewEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofAllocationTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

18 of 126 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 460.35-460.49

[Reserved]

§§ 460.35[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Answers

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.50

§ 460.50 Answer

When the complaint is not verified, and in limited civil cases whether or not the complaint is verified, the defendant may file an answer denying generally all the allegations of the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d) (subject to exception for limited civil cases when action is claim assigned to a third party for collection and complaint is verified, in which case answer must be verified)]. When, however, the complaint is verified, the denial of allegations must be made positively or according to the information and belief of the defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 431.20(a), 590(1)].

For example, a defendant foreign corporation will usually admit, by failure to deny [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.20(a)], its corporate status, that it is qualified to do business in California, and that its principal place of business in this state is in a particular county [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5; Corp. Code § 2105]. It will usually admit, again by failure to deny, that it manufactured the product in question and that the product was intended to be used by members of the general public. A defendant manufacturer, whether or not a corporation, that did not directly sell or lease the product to the purchaser or lessee might deny on lack of information and belief[see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(e)] that a particular party bought or leased the product or was using the product in contemplation of purchasing it or otherwise. When the product has not been actually sold or leased to someone, the defendant manufacturer might deny that it has placed that particular product on the market for sale or lease to members of the general public. The defendant manufacturer will usually deny [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(1), (f)] that the particular product contained a defect and that the defect was the proximate cause of plaintiff's injuries. It will probably deny on lack of information and belief allegations of general or special damages suffered by the plaintiff.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsAffirmative DefensesGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Answers

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.51

§ 460.51 Pleading and Proof Responses to Strict Liability Action

If the complaint states a cause of action and is not barred by the statute of limitations, counsel for the defendant will usually defend a strict liability action on one or more of the following grounds:

- The product was not being used in the way it was intended to be used at the time of the accident.
- The product was altered after it left defendant's hands and the defect was a result of the alteration.
- Plaintiff was aware of the defect and the danger of using the product in its defective condition and hence assumed the risk of injury.
- The cause of action is federally preempted.
- Plaintiff has not met his, her, or its burden of proof on the essential ultimate facts necessary to prove a strict liability action.
- Plaintiff has not proved the injuries or damages allegedly suffered.

The first four grounds would be put in issue by affirmative defenses in the answer [see § 460.52].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProceduresPleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsAffirmative DefensesGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Answers

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.52

§ 460.52 Affirmative Defenses

[1] General Rule

The answer, in addition to admissions and denials [see the discussion in § 460.50], may set forth one or more affirmative defenses to the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 431.20(b), 431.30(b)(2)] which, if established, will bar recovery by the plaintiff notwithstanding the fact that the allegations of the complaint may be true. Common affirmative defenses include the following:

- The action is barred by the statute of limitations [see §§ 460.31, 460.181] or another jurisdiction's statute of repose [see § 460.31[3]].

- The cause of action is federally preempted [see § 460.52[2]].

- Plaintiff's comparative fault [see § 460.182].

- The proximate cause of plaintiff's injuries was the misuse of the product [see § 460.183].

- The defect resulted from an alteration in the product by the purchaser or other person after it left defendant's hands [see § 460.184].

- That a manufacturer of a product distributed in bulk is not liable to a consumer based on inadequate warning regarding the safe use of the product if the manufacturer adequately warned the distributor [see § 460.185].

A defendant may also raise as an affirmative defense the claim that it is immune from liability as a government contractor supplying military equipment [see § 460.187].

The uniqueness of a purchaser's order of a product is not a defense to a products liability action [Wright v. Stang Mfg.

Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1229, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422 (issues of fact existed on whether or not deck gun was defectively designed)].

Each affirmative defense alleged in an answer must refer to the specific cause of action or count it is intended to answer if the complaint alleges more than one cause of action or count, and if the answer contains more than one such affirmative defense, each must be separately stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)] and numbered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.112 (unlimited civil case)].

[2] Federal Preemption

[a] Overview

Federal preemption is a defense to a state products liability action grounded in the Supremacy Clause of the United States Constitution, which requires dismissal of a state claim when it has been "preempted" by federal law [O'Neal v. Smithkline Beecham Corp. (E.D. Cal. 2008) 551 F. Supp. 2d 993, 1002 ; Williamson v. Mazda Motor of Am., Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 905, 910, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 545 , modified and reh'g denied, 2008 Cal. App. LEXIS 2269 ; McKenney v. Purepac Pharm. Co. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 72, 79, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 810 , review denied, 2009 Cal. LEXIS 679 (Jan. 14, 2009) ; *Blanco v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 2008 Cal. App. LEXIS 34, at 12 ; Steele v. Collagen Corp (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1474, 1478, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 879 ; citing Cipollone v. Liggett Group, Inc. (1992) 505 U.S. 504, 516, 112 S. Ct. 2608, 120 L. Ed. 2d 407] .

Federal preemption can arise in three different contexts: (1) express preemption, i.e., where Congress explicitly defined the extent to which its enactments preempt state law; (2) field preemption, i.e., where state law attempts to regulate conduct in a field that Congress intended the federal law to occupy exclusively; and (3) conflict preemption, i.e., where it is impossible to comply with both federal and state requirements, or where state law poses an obstacle to the execution of the full objectives of Congress [Industrial Truck Ass'n v. Henry (9th Cir. 1997) 125 F.3d 1305, 1309 (OSHA) ; Gaeta v. Perrigo Pharms. Co. (N.D. Cal. 2008) 562 F. Supp. 2d 1091, 1095 ; *In re Mattel, Inc. Toy Lead Paint Prods. Liab. Litig. (C.D. Cal. Nov. 24, 2008) 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 104241, at 16 ; O'Neal v. Smithkline Beecham Corp. (E.D. Cal. 2008) 551 F. Supp. 2d 993, 1002 (Paxil) ; *Jasso v. Citizens Telcoms. Co. of Cal., Inc. (E.D. Cal. July 30, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 54866, at *13-14 (FCC's RF radiation regulatory scheme); Williamson v. Mazda Motor of Am., Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 905, 910, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 545 , modified and reh'g denied, 2008 Cal. App. LEXIS 2269 ; McKenney v. Purepac Pharm. Co. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 72, 79-80, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 810 , review denied, 2009 Cal. LEXIS 679 (Jan. 14, 2009) ; In re Tobacco Cases II (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 1257, 1265, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418, 163 P.3d 106 ; *Frastaci v. Vapor Corp. (Dec. 21, 2007) 2007 Cal. App. LEXIS 2147, at *4-5 (locomotives); *Jessen v. Mentor Corp. (Jan. 16, 2008) 2008 Cal. App. LEXIS 61, at 10, n.5 (testicular prosthesis)]. Regulations promulgated pursuant to federal statutory authority have the same preemptive effect as federal statutes [Fidelity Fed. Savings & Loan Ass'n v. de la Cuesta (1982) 458 U.S. 141, 153, 102 S. Ct. 3014, 73 L. Ed. 2d 664 ; O'Neal v. Smithkline Beecham Corp. (E.D. Cal. 2008) 551 F. Supp. 2d 993 (Paxil) ; Williamson v. Mazda Motor of Am., Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 905, 910, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 545 , modified and reh'g denied, 2008 Cal. App. LEXIS 2269 ; McKenney v. Purepac Pharm. Co. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 72, 80, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 810 , review denied, 2009 Cal. LEXIS 679 (Jan. 14, 2009)].

To prevail on the federal preemption defense, the defendant must overcome the presumption that federal statutes do not supersede the historic police powers of the states unless Congress has the "clear and manifest" intent to do so [Medtronic, Inc. v. Lohr (1996) 518 U.S. 470, 485, 116 S. Ct. 2240, 135 L. Ed. 2d 700 ; Williamson v. Mazda Motor of Am., Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 905, 910, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 545 , modified and reh'g denied, 2008 Cal. App. LEXIS 2269] . This presumption supports a narrow interpretation of the preemption defense [McKenney v. Purepac Pharm. Co. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 72, 80, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 810 , review denied, 2009 Cal. LEXIS 679 (Jan. 14, 2009) ; Ketchum v. Hyundai Motor Co. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1672, 1678, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 595] . Congressional intent is discerned from the the language, structure and purpose of the federal statute at issue, revealed not only in its text, but also through the reviewing court's reasoned understanding of the way in which Congress intended the statute and its surrounding regulatory scheme to operate [Medtronic, Inc. v. Lohr (1996) 518 U.S. 470, 485-486, 116 S. Ct. 2240, 135 L. Ed. 2d 700 ; see also Ketchum v. Hyundai Motor Co. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1672, 1676, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 595 (design defect based on seat belt design in compliance with federal standards was not preempted by the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act); see also Carrillo v. ACF Industries, Inc. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 1158, 980 P.2d 386 (Federal Safety Appliance Act reflected congressional intentto regulate railroad safety appliances, thus precluding state law tort claims based on design defects)]. If Congress intends to occupy an entire field of regulation, such as locomotive equipment, then the federal standards must displace all state requirements, notwithstanding a lack of conflict between that standard and state law [Scheiding v. General Motors Corp. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 471, 475, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342, 993 P.2d 996] .

Moreover, when Congress includes an express preemption provision in a statute, a court may not look beyond it to consider implied preemption [Blanco v. Baxter Healthcare Corp . *(2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 2008 Cal. App. LEXIS 34, at *12-13].

The affirmative defense of federal preemption, or "ordinary preemption," is distinct from the issue of "complete preemption." Complete preemption involves the issue of determining whether a case should be removed from state court. Complete preemption permits removal of state claims when "a federal statute wholly displaces the state-law cause of action." The defense of federal preemption, in contrast, results in dismissal of state claims on the merits [*Jasso v. Citizens Telcoms. Co. of Cal., Inc. (E.D. Cal. Jan. 9, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 4771, at *30-31)].

[b] Medical Devices

[i] Class III Devices Present Preemption Issue

A brief overview of the Medical Device Amendments (MDA) to the Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act is required to understand federal preemption of medical devices.

The MDA categorizes devices into three separate classes. Class I devices are those which present no unreasonable risk of illness or injury and are subject only to regulation by "general controls" [21 U.S.C.S. § 360c(a)(1)(A)]. Class II devices are potentially more harmful than class I devices, but may be marked without advance approval by the FDA if they comply with federal performance regulations called "special controls" [21 U.S.C.S. 360c(a)(1)(B)]. Class III devices are those which "present a potential unreasonable risk of illness or injury," or which are "purported or represented to be for use in supporting or sustaining human life or for a use which is of substantial importance in preventing impairment of human health" [21 U.S.C.S. § 360c(a)(1)(C)].

Class III devices pose a special problem. To market a device, the manufacturer must give the FDA "reasonable assurance" that the device is both safe and effective [21 U.S.C.S. § 360e(d)(2)]. This procedure is called "premarket approval" (PMA) and is a "rigorous" process. Many Class III devices on the market, however, have not received PMA approval because of three exceptions to the PMA process. The first exception is a "grandfathering" provision for pre-1976 devices which remain on the market until the FDA completes the premarket approval process [21 U.S.C.S. § 360e(b)(1)(A)]. The second exception is a provision allowing Class III devices which are "substantially equivalent" to preexisting devices, grandfathered or otherwise, to avoid MPA until such time as the FDA completes the premarket approval process [21 U.S.C.S. § 360e(b)(1)(B)]. The final exception is the investigational device exemption (IDE), under which a device may be tested on humans without premarket approval [21 U.S.C.S. § 360e(a)].

[ii] Medtronic, Inc. v. Lohr: No Preemption of "Substantially Equivalent" Devices

In Medtronics, Inc. v. Lohr, the United States Supreme Court held that claims alleging the negligent design of a pacemaker (a regulated medical device) were not preempted under the MDA because the pacemaker fell under the "substantially equivalent" exception described in the paragraph above [Medtronic, Inc. v. Lohr (1996) 518 U.S. 470, 492-494, 116 S. Ct. 2240, 135 L. Ed. 2d 700] . Negligent-manufacture and failure-to-warn claims also were not preempted [Medtronic, Inc. v. Lohr (1996) 518 U.S.470, 494-502, 116 S. Ct. 2240, 135 L. Ed. 2d 700] . Medtronics does not resolve all preemption questions because the pacemaker had only proceeded through FDCA's § 510(k) "substantially equivalency" process. Medtronics left open the question of whether the more specific requirements imposed by more demanding procedures--such as the PMA process--will insulate medical devices from common law claims.

[iii] Riegel v. Metronic, Inc.: Preemption of Claims Alleging Defective PMA-Approved Devices

As a result of the Supreme Court's fractured decision in Medtronics, there developed a substantial split in authority regarding whether the MDA preempts state products liability lawsuits over medical devices which have received PMA approval. The majority of federal circuits to have addressed the issue held that the PMA process results in preemption [see L. Frumer & M. Friedman, Products Liability, Ch. 24 (Matthew Bender)]. In 2008, in *Riegel v. Medtronic, Inc.[(Feb. 20, 2008) 2008 U.S. LEXIS 2013, at *17-29] , the U.S. Supreme Court resolved the issue, holding that the MDA's preemption clause bars common law claims challenging the safety or effectiveness of a medical device given FDA premarket approval. The case involved a balloon catheter that burst after being inserted in the decedent. The plaintiffs brought a products liability action, raising several common law claims under New York law. In ruling that the claims were preempted, the Court first set out to determine whether the federal government established requirements applicable to the catheter, because the MDA expressly preempts only state requirements "different from, or in addition to, any requirement applicable ... to the device" under federal law [21 U.S.C.S. § 360k(a)]. The Court found that unlike the § 510(k) process analyzed in Lohr, premarket approval does impose "requirements" under the MDA. The Court then addressed whether the plaintiffs' common law claims relied upon "any requirement" of New York law applicable to the catheter that was "different from, or in addition to" federal requirements and that related "to the safety or effectiveness of the device included in a requirement applicable to the device" [21 U.S.C.S. § 360k(a)]. Again, the Court answered in the affirmative. It adhered to its view set forth in previous preemption cases that common-law causes of action for negligence and strict liability do impose "requirements."

The Riegel Court left open the possibility that certain state-law claims will not be preempted, pointing out that "§ 360k does not prevent a State from providing a damages remedy for claims premised on a violation of FDA regulations; the state duties in such a case 'parallel,' rather than add to, federal requirements" [Riegel v. Medtronic, Inc. (2008) 552 U.S. 312, 128 S. Ct. 999, 169 L. Ed. 2d 892] . The Riegel Court did not further discuss the term "parallel," and courts across the country, predictably, have not been consistent in interpreting the term. As of 2010, one court within the federal Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit has taken on the issue [Prudhel v. Endologix, Inc. (E.D. Cal. July 9, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 64402] . The district court first addressed the scope of the MDA's preemption provision. It determined that an express warranty claim was preempted to the extent that the manufacturer represented that the device was safe within the meaning of the MDA but that the plaintiffs sought to impose liability on the ground that it was unsafe under California law [*Prudhel v. Endologix, Inc. (E.D. Cal. July 9, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 64402, at *11-17] . The court next addressed what constitutes a parallel claim under Riegel. Declining to follow the restrictive approach followed by other courts, it held that a state-law claim that requires more than mere compliance with federal requirements (e.g., that the violation of federal requirements was reckless or unreasonable) may constitute a permissible parallel claim [*Prudhel v. Endologix, Inc. (E.D. Cal. July 9, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 64402, at *17-24] . Only the plaintiff's strict liability manufacturing defect claim survived the court's preemption analysis.

[iv] Preemption and PMA-Approved Devices in Ninth Circuit Pre-Riegel

Pre-Riegel, federal courts within the Ninth Circuit adopted the majority approach to preemption [*Carson v. Depuy Spine, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 48378, at *18-19 (MDA preempted claims based on negligent design and warning, warranty, and strict liability, but not claim that disc replacement had manufacturing defect); Morton v. Centerpulse Orthopedics, Inc. (E.D. Cal. 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 45329 ; Gilleon v. Medtronic USA,

*Inc. (N.D. Cal. 2002) 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20154, at *4-5].

One federal court concluded that the Product Development Protocol P) approval process is as rigorous as the PMA process, and preempted common law tort claims that imposed a different standard from those imposed by the FDA requirements [*Clement v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan, Inc. (Dec. 17, 2004) 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26414, at *13-17 (MDA preempted claims relating to design, manufacture, labeling, and warnings regarding pacemakers and leads, but not intentional tort claims or claims alleging negligence for failing to following FDA regulations)]. Note that one pre-Riegel court had concluded that the PMA process does not constitute or create specific FDA requirements applicable to a particular device and thus cannot be used to preempt state law causes of action [Notmeyer v. Stryker Corp. (N.D. Cal. 2007) 502 F. Supp. 2d 1051, 1057]. This holding does not survive Riegel, above.

[v] California Judiciary's Approach to Preemption of MDA-Approved Devices

California courts of appeal have also addressed whether the MDA preempts state law causes of action involving Class III medical devices. A few months after the U.S. Supreme Court issued Medtronic, Division One of the Second Appellate District ruled against preemption. In Armstrong v. Optical Radiation Corp. [Armstrong v. Optical Radiation Corp. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 580, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763], a case involving intraocular fluid, the court determined that the state law requirements imposed by the negligence claim were "requirements of general applicability ... that escapepreemption." This holding does not survive Riegel, above.

The Third Appellate District then expounded on the concept of federal preemption in Steel v. Collagen Corp. [Steele v. Collagen Corp. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1474, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 879]. The court took issue with the Armstrong court's holding that a state common law tort cause of action does not seek to impose state requirements specific to the product. The Steel court specifically stated that common law standards of care and behavior impose state requirements that may be preempted if they are different to or in addition to the specific federal requirements arising from the PMA process. The court was unable to determine on the facts before it whether the medical produce Zyderm was designed, manufactured, and labeled according to the FDA-approved specifications.

Division Three of the Fourth Appellate Department then followed suit and determined in *Blanco v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. [(2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 2008 Cal. App. LEXIS 34, at *25-27] that PMA approval for a heart valve was a device-specific federal requirement that could preempt any conflicting state requirement. The court then set out to determine whether there were any state requirements that conflicted with the device-specific federal requirements. Examining the allegations made under each of plaintiff's causes of action as well as his statement of facts and supporting evidence, the court determined that his negligence and strict liability claims were preempted.

Division Seven of the Second Appellate District was the next to take on the issue. In *Jessen v. Mentor Corp. [(Jan. 16, 2008) 2008 Cal. App. LEXIS 61, at *17-23)], the court agreed with the Steel court that state common law tort actions relating to the safety or effectiveness of PMA-approved devices are preempted. It determined that the manufacturer met its burden of proving that its testicular implant was designed, manufactured, and labeled according to FDA specifications. The plaintiff' claims alleging that the prosthesis was defective because it lacked a warning on the outer packaging that the device had to be filled with saline prior to implantation were thus preempted.

[vi] Preemption of Claims Involving Class II Devices

Tampons are Class II devices. The Ninth Circuit has held that device- and disease-specific FDA regulations preempted failure-to-warn claims when the defendant's warning labels tracked the language of the federal regulation almost verbatim [Papike v. Tambrands Inc. (9th Cir. 1997) 107 F.3d 737, 743 (case involved tampons and toxic shock syndrome)].

[vii] Buckman v. Plaintiffs' Legal Comm.: Fraud-on-the-FDA Claims Are Preempted

In the late 1990's, thousands of plaintiffs across the country brought fraud-on-the-FDA cases against bone screw device manufacturers, claiming that the FDA would not have approved the screws had defendants not made fraudulent representations regarding their intended use. Appellate courts issued conflicting opinions as to the preemptive effect of the FDCA on these claims. In 2001, in Buckman v. Plaintiffs' Legal Comm. (2001) 531 U.S. 341, 121 S. Ct. 1012, 148 L. Ed. 2d 854, 862-864 , the U.S. Supreme Court held that plaintiffs' state law fraud-on-the-FDA claims conflicted with, and were therefore impliedly preempted by, the FDCA as amended by the MDA.

[c] Drugs

[i] Prescription Drugs

Federal preemption--in particular preemption of claims involving prescription drugs--has been a hot topic in the new millennium. On March 4, 2009, the U.S. Supreme Court issued Wyeth v. Levine [Wyeth v. Levine (2009) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 1187, 173 L. Ed. 2d 51] , its highly awaited opinion addressing federal preemption in the context of prescription drugs. The majority held in its 6-3 opinion that FDA approval of a drug's label does not provide a complete defense to failure-to-warn claims. There are three key elements to the ruling:

- It was not impossible for the drug manufacturer to comply with both its state and federal law obligations regarding drug labeling.

- Plaintiff's state-law failure-to warn claims did not stand as an obstacle to the accomplishment of Congress' purpose in the FDCA.

- The FDA's Preemption Preamble to its 2006 Final Rule was not entitled to deference [Wyeth v. Levine (2009) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 1187, 173 L. Ed. 2d 51] .

Levine began when the plaintiff received an injection of the anti-nausea drug Phenergan as part of her migraine treatment. The drug was injected directly into her vein through the "IV-push" method. It entered her artery, causing gangrene and resulting in the amputation her entire forearm. She brought a claim against the manufacturer, alleging that the label was defective because it did not instruct practitioners to use the IV-drip method of intravenous administration rather than the higher risk IV-push method. The Phenergan label did warn of the danger of gangrene and amputation following inadvertent intra-arterial injection.

The jury found in favor of the plaintiff and awarded her more than $7 million in damages. The trial court denied Wyeth's motion for judgment n.o.v., rejecting the manufacturer's preemption arguments. The Vermont Supreme Court affirmed. The state court ruled that federal labeling requirements created a floor, not a ceiling, for state regulation, and that conflict preemption did not bar the plaintiff's claims. The U.S. Supreme Court granted Wyeth's petition for certiorari [Wyeth v. Levine (2008) 552 U.S. 1161, 128 S. Ct. 1118, 169 L. Ed. 2d 845] .

Justice Stevens delivered the opinion of the Court, which Justices Kennedy, Souter, Ginsburg, and Breyer joined. Before beginning its analysis, the Court identified two legal principles that guided its analysis: the "purpose of Congress" as the ultimate touchstone in every preemption case, and its recognition of the presumption against preemption.

The Court then turned to Wyeth's first argument: that it would have been impossible to comply with the state-law duty to modify labeling without violating federal law. This argument failed, because FDA's "change being effected" (CBE) regulation does permit a manufacturer to make certain changes to its label before receiving FDA approval of its supplemental application [21 C.F.R. § 314.70(c)(6)(iii)(A), (C)]. The manufacturer's contention that the CBE regulation was not implicated because a 2008 amendment allows the manufacturer only to change its label "to reflect newly acquired information" [73 Fed. Reg. 49603, 49609] was also unsuccessful. Wyeth could have revised the Phenergan label even under the amended regulation, because "newly acquired information" includes "new analyses of previously submitted data" [73 Fed. Reg. 49604] . Wyeth could have analyzed the accumulating data from the 20-plus incidents of amputation resulting from Phenergan over the years, and added a stronger warning about IV-push administration of the drug.

The Court rejected the manufacturer's argument that unilaterally adding a stronger warning about IV-push administration would have subjected it to liability for unauthorized distribution. The Court identified a fundamental misunderstanding at the core of Wyeth's argument: that the FDA bears the primary responsibility for the content of a drug's label at all times. To the contrary, numerous amendments to the FDCA and FDA regulations make it clear that ultimate responsibility for a drug's labeling rests with the manufacturer. When the risk of gangrene from IV-push injection became apparent, Wyeth had a duty to adequately warn of that risk, and the CBE regulation permitted it to provide that warning before receiving FDA's approval. In short, absent clear evidence that FDA would not have approved such a change--and Wyeth did not offer any--it was not impossible for the drug manufacturer to comply with both federal and state requirements [Wyeth v. Levine (2009) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 1187, 1196-1199, 173 L. Ed. 2d 51] .

The Court next rejected Wyeth's "purposes and objectives" preemption argument: that requiring it to comply with a state-law duty to provide a stronger warning would interfere with Congress' purpose to entrust FDA to make drug labeling decision. The Court construed the evidence of "Congress' purposes" as actually supporting the opposite point of view: that FDCA establishes only a floor for drug regulation. Had Congress believed that state-law suits posed an obstacle to its objectives, it would have enacted an express preemption provision at some point in the statute's 70-year history. The majority viewed Congress' "silence on the issue, coupled with its certain awareness of the prevalence of state tort litigation," as strong evidence that the legislature did not intend FDA oversight to be the exclusive means of ensuring drug safety [Wyeth v. Levine (2009) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 1187, 1199-1200, 173 L. Ed. 2d 51] .

The Court put to rest the contention that the Preemption Preamble to a 2006 FDA regulation [71 Fed. Reg. 3922]-- in which the agency declared that its approval of labeling preempts conflicting state law--is entitled to deference. The majority clarified that agencies have no inherent authority to pronounce on preemption. The weight accorded to an agency's view on the issue depends on "its thoroughness, consistency, and persuasiveness." Under this standard, the 2006 Preemption Preamble did not merit deference. The Court criticized the agency's failure to comply with notice-and-comment requirements when it finalized its rule in 2006. Moreover, the FDA's position in 2006 contradicted evidence of Congress' purpose, and reversed the agency's own long-standing position regarding state tort law as a complementary form of drug regulation [Wyeth v. Levine (2009) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 1187, 1200-1203, 173 L. Ed. 2d 51] .

Finally, the Court distinguished the regulatory scheme regarding passive restraint devices in its "no-airbag" case, Geier v. American Honda Motor Co. [Geier v. American Honda Motor Co. (2000) 529 U.S. 861, 120 S. Ct. 1913, 146 L. Ed. 2d 914] . While acknowledging that some state-law claims might frustrate the achievement of Congress's purposes in the FDCA, the one at issue in this case was not one of them. In the end, the Court concluded that the plaintiff's state-law failure-to-warn claim was not preempted.

Justice Breyer wrote a one-paragraph concurring opinion. He pointed out that certain specific FDA regulations could have a preemptive effect, for example, one describing when labeling requirements serve as a ceiling as well as a floor [Wyeth v. Levine (2009) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 1187, 1204, 173 L. Ed. 2d 51] . Justice Thomas penned a lengthy, separate opinion, concurring only in the majority's judgment [Wyeth v. Levine (2009) -- U.S. -- 129 S. Ct. 1187, 1204-1217, 173 L. Ed. 2d 51] . Justice Alito wrote the dissenting opinion, joined by Chief Justice Roberts and Justice Scalia [Wyeth v. Levine, (2009) -- U.S. -- 129 S. Ct. 1187, 1217-1231, 173 L. Ed. 2d 51] .

The Levine decision signals that state court lawsuits against the pharmaceutical industry will continue, despite the Bush administration's efforts to shut them down. Particularly telling was the majority's criticism of the FDA for abandoning its long-held view that state law provides an additional and important complementary form of drug regulation.

Even before the Levine decision, California courts had held that FDA regulations as to design and warning standards are minimum standards which do not preempt state law defective design and failure to warn claims with respect to prescription drugs [Carlin v. Superior Court (1996)13 Cal. 4th 1104, 1113, 920 P.2d 1347 (Halcion)] . Compliance with an FDA regulation may establish that the manufacturer met the appropriate minimum standards of due care, but does not necessarily absolve the manufacturers of all liability [Motus v. Pfizer, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2000) 127 F. Supp. 2d 1085, 1096-1100] .

A handful of courts from other states found support for preemption of common law claims in a document published by the FDA on January 24, 2006 [Requirements on Content and Format of Labeling for Human Prescription Drugs and Biological Products], known as the Preemption Preamble to the Final Rule. California courts were not swayed by this logic. In McKenney v. Purepac Pharm. Co. [McKenney v. Purepac Pharm. Co. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 72, 82-84, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 810 , review denied, 2009 Cal. LEXIS 679 (Jan. 14, 2009)] , the court rejected a generic drug manufacturer's argument that the plaintiff's failure-to-warn claim was barred by conflict preemption. The court concluded that the federal requirement that a generic drug have the same labeling as a listed drug [57 Fed. Reg. 17950, 17961 (Apr. 28, 1992)] does not necessarily result in federal preemption of state failure-to-warn claim against generic manufacturers. The court pointed out that the FDA mechanism for compelling labeling revisions applies to both new and generic drugs, and saw no reason to distinguish between the two types of drugs for preemption purposes. The court found that nothing in the post-Carlin (see paragraph above) environment mandates the conclusion that generic drug manufacturers are exempt from strict products liability because they must obtain FDA approval before making label changes. Nor did the FDA's January 24, 2006, statements convince the court that preemption was warranted (as discussed above, the U.S. Supreme Court itself held that the 2006 Preemption Preamble was not entitled to deference [Wyeth v. Levine (2009) -- U.S. -- 129 S. Ct. 1187, 1200-1203, 173 L. Ed. 2d 51]).

In O'Neal v. Smithkline Beecham Corp. (E.D. Cal. 2008) 551 F. Supp. 2d 993, 1003-1009 , the federal court from the Eastern District of California found that conflict preemption barred claims that Paxil should have included a warning of suicidality in pediatric patients. The court found that a direct conflict of law existed because the manufacturer could not have been in compliance with federal law at the time the decedent attempted suicide and have included the suicidality warning insisted on by the plaintiffs. The court explicitly stated that in reaching its decision, it did not rely on the FDA's Preemption Preamble [(E.D. Cal. 2008) 551 F. Supp. 2d 993, 1004] . This decision should not be cited as authority in light of the Supreme Court's no-preemption case, Wyeth v. Levine, discussed above.

On March 3, 2008, in a 4-4 split, the U.S. Supreme Court affirmed a Second Circuit ruling that federal law did not preempt common law claims brought under the fraud exception to Michigan's drug immunity statute [Mich. Comp. Laws § 600.2946(5)]. The case, Warner-Lambert Co. v. Kent [Warner-Lambert Co. v. Kent (2008) 552 U.S. 440, 128 S. Ct. 1168, 170 L. Ed. 2d 51], consisted of a one-sentence ruling. The Second Circuit had distinguished Buckman Co. v. Plaintiffs' Legal Comm. (2001) 531 U.S. 341, 348, 121 S. Ct. 1012, 148 L. Ed. 2d 854 , in which the U.S. high Court had found that federal law impliedly preempted "fraud on the FDA" claims against a medical device manufacturer. The Second Circuit had identified three critical differences between the claims in Buckman and the claims in Kent that warranted a separate preemption analysis [Desiano v. Warner-Lambert & Co. (2d Cir. 2006) 467 F.3d 85, 93-97].

While clearly a victory for the plaintiffs involved, Kent is of minimal precedential value because it involves Michigan's unique drug immunity statute.

[ii] Over-the-Counter Drugs

Common law claims regarding over-the-counter drugs, in contrast, are generally preempted by the FDCA [see, e.g., Gaeta v. Perrigo Pharms. Co. (N.D. Cal. 2008) 562 F. Supp. 2d 1091, 1097 (generic OTC ibuprofen drug); Kanter v.

Warner-Lambert Co. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 780, 790-795, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 72 (21 U.S.C.S. § 379r(a) preempted claims alleging that labels to over-the-counter drugs for treatment of head lice contained false and misleading statements about effectiveness of drugs)]. In 1997, Congress passed the National Uniformity for Non-prescription Drugs and Preemption for Labeling or Packaging of Cosmetics [21 U.S.C.S. § 379r(a)(2)], which contains an express preemption provision. The statute states that except as otherwise provided, no state or its subdivision may establish or continue in effect any requirement that relates to regulation of a drug that is "different from or in addition to, or that is otherwise not identical with, a requirement under the FDA." The statute contains a savings clause, providing that nothing in the section shall be construed as modifying or otherwise affecting any action or the liability of any person under the product liability law of any state [21 U.S.C.S. § 379r(e)].

This savings clause was designed specifically to preserve California's Proposition 65. The California Supreme Court has ruled that the savings clause does not entirely exclude conflict preemption, and that notwithstanding language in the savings clause for Proposition 65 in the preemption clause for over-the-counter drugs, the federal requirement prevails when the warning mandated by California law directly conflicts with the one required by the FDA. In Dowhal, the plaintiff filed a suit against distributors of a nicotine replacement therapy (NRT) product alleging violation of Proposition 65 [Health & Safety Code § 25249.6], requiring warnings that chemicals cause reproductive toxicity. The FDA refused to allow the defendant to use Proposition 65's warning, and instead mandated less broad language. The FDA had sent plaintiff a letter rejecting his proposed "can harm your baby" warning and proposed that all nicotine replacement products bear uniform warnings advising pregnant women to consult their health care provider and try to stop smoking without using a NRT product. The court explained that the FDA ruling reflected its concern that the Proposition 65 warning might discourage pregnant women from stopping smoking. It concluded that the letter established a federal policy prohibiting defendants from giving consumers any warning other than the one approved by the FDA, and that use of a Proposition 65 warning would conflict with that policy. Even though it is probably true that nicotine in defendant's products can cause reproductive harm, the FDA has authority to prohibit truthful statements on a product label if they are misleading [Dowhal v. SmithKline Beecham Consumer Healthcare (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 910, 920-921, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 262, 88 P.3d 1] .

As discussed in § 460.52[2][c][i], above, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in Wyeth v. Levine [(2009) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 1187, 173 L. Ed. 2d 51] that federal law does not preempt failure-to-warn claims involving preemption drugs. A few months before the Levine decision was issued, the federal district court for the Northern District of California had concluded that failure-to-warn claims involving an over-the-counter generic drug were preempted [Gaeta v. Perrigo Pharms. Co. (N.D. Cal. 2008) 562 F. Supp. 2d 1091, 1097] . The court subsequently denied the plaintiffs' motion for reconsideration in light of Wyeth v. Levine. Levine did not require the court to reverse its earlier ruling because the U.S. Supreme Court's decision did not address whether a generic manufacturer may use the FDA's "changes being effected" (CBE) process to unilaterally change its warning label [Gaeta v. Perrigo Pharms. Co. (N.D. Cal. Nov. 24, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 115752] .

[d] Air Bags and Other Automotive Components

The federal preemption of passive restraint and air bag claims under the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966 [15 U.S.C.S. § 1381 et seq. ("the Safety Act")] has been an unsettled area of the law. In a case involving another aspect of the Safety Act, the United States Supreme Court held that federal regulations do not expressly preempt state tort claims concerning defective tractor trailers and anti-lock brakes [Freightliner Corp. v. Myrick (1995) 514 U.S. 280, 286-287, 115 S. Ct. 1483, 131 L. Ed. 2d 385] . An air bag case held, however, that federal vehicle standards did preempt state common law tort actions against an automobile manufacturer alleging design defects based on a failure to install air bags [see Nissan Motor Corp. v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 980, 982-983, 261 Cal. Rptr. 80] . On the other hand, a subsequent case, relying on Medtronic, held that federal law did not preempt a cause of action against an automobile manufacturer alleging a design defect based on seat belt design that complied with federal standards [Ketchum v. Hyundai Motor Co. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1672, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 595] . The federal statute at issue provided that "compliance with any federal motor vehicle safety standard issued under this subchapter does not exempt any person from any liability under common law" [Ketchum v. Hyundai Motor Co. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1672, 1679, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 595 , abrogated in part as stated in Williamson v. Mazda Motor of Am., Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 905, 913-914, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 545 citing 15 U.S.C.S. § 1397(k) (holding that federal statute only specified minimum standards)].

However, in 2000, the issue of federal preemption in relation to air bags appears to have been settled. Affirming the decision of the D.C. Court of Appeals, the United States Supreme Court held that a personal injury action alleging that a manufacturer was negligent in failing to equip a 1987 automobile with driver's side air bag was preempted [Geier v. American Honda Motor Co. (2000) 529 U.S. 861, 120 S. Ct. 1913, 146 L. Ed. 2d 914] .

Courts have subsequently interpreted Geier in considering the preemptive effect of the Safety Act on common law claims involving other automotive components [see, e.g., Kent v. Daimlerchrysler Corp. (N.D. Cal. 2002) 200 F. Supp. 2d 1208, 1214-1216 (allegation that 1995-1999 Jeep Grand Cherokees sometimes self-shift from park to reverse was not preempted by Safety Act); Williamson v. Mazda Motor of Am., Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 905, 912-919, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 545 , modified and reh'g denied, 2008 Cal. App. LEXIS 2269 (claim that 1993 Mazda MPV minivan was defective because middle row inboard seat only had a lap belt was preempted)].

[e] General Aviation Aircraft

The General Aviation Revitalization Act of 1994 (GARA) [49 U.S.C.S. § 40101] contains a statute of repose precluding any civil action against a manufacturer of general aviation aircraft if the part that allegedly caused the accident is more than 18 years old [GARA §§ 2(a), 3(3)]. The federal statute defines "general aviation aircraft" as any aircraft for which an airworthiness certificate has been issued, which has a maximum capacity of fewer than 20 passengers, and which is not, at the time of the accident,engaged in scheduled passenger-carrying operations [GARA § 2(c)]. GARA expressly preempts state law [GARA § 2(d)].

In Burroughs v. Precision Airmotive Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 681, 699 , the plaintiff claimed that an aircraft's carburetor, which was manufactured 27 years before the crash, was defective. GARA's statute of repose barred his products liability claims against the successor to the carburetor manufacturer.

GARA contains a "rolling" feature, which extends the limitation period with respect to any new component, system, subassembly, or other part which replaced another component, system, subassembly, or other part originally in, or which was added to, the aircraft, and which is alleged to have caused death, injury, or damage [GARA § 2(a)(2); see Lyon v. Agusta S.P.A. (9th Cir. 2001) 252 F.3d 1078, 1088 (plaintiff's argument that failure to warn about newly perceived problem amounted to "replacement of component part" within meaning of GARA § 2(a)(2) was without merit); Caldwell v. Enstrom Helicopter Corp. (9th Cir. 2000) 230 F.3d 1155, 1156-1157 (revised flight manual is new "system ... . or other part" of helicopter within meaning of GARA)]. One appellate court held that the new 18-year limitation period begins to run only with respect to a new specific part shown to be a cause of the accident, and that plaintiff thus had to prove that a cause of the crash was a defect in one of the pieces in the retrofit kit to the helicopter's fuel transfer system. Because the item causing the damage must be a replacement item, replacement of a few parts of a larger system does not start the rolling limitation period anew for all parts in the larger system [Hiser v. Bell Helicopter Textron Inc. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 640, 648-650, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 249] .

The Ninth Circuit concluded that GARA applies to all actions that had not already been commenced on its effective date of August 17, 1994 [Lyon v. Agusta S.P.A. (9th Cir. 2001) 252 F.3d 1078, 1085].

GARA contains an exception if the claimant proves that the manufacturer knowingly misrepresented to the FAA or concealed or withheld from the FAA "required information" material to the maintenance or operation of the aircraft or part that is causally related to the harm [GARA § 2(b)(1)]. One appellate court concluded that the exception applied in a case where there was evidence that the helicopter manufacturer, within the period of repose, withheld information from the FAA about five military aircraft accidents caused by failure of tail rotor yokes. The court explicitly found that the manufacturer had an affirmative duty to report the failures pursuant to FAA regulations [Butler v. Bell Helicopter Textron, Inc. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1073, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762, 770] .

[f] Locomotives and Other Railroad Appliances

Federal railroad regulations, on the other hand, have been held to preempt state products liability actions. The Locomotive Boiler Inspection Act [49 U.S.C.S. § 20701] (BIA) imposes an absolute duty on railroad carriers to ensure that their locomotives are properly maintained and safe to operate [*Frastaci v. Vapor Corp. (Dec. 21, 2007) 2007 Cal. App. LEXIS 2147, at 7]. The U.S. Supreme Court concluded early on that BIA occupies the field of locomotive equipment, precluding all state claims within that field [Napier v. Atlantic Coast Line R.R. Co. (1926) 272 U.S. 605, 606-607, 47 S. Ct. 207, 71 L. Ed. 432]. BIA does not contain a preemption clause. Nevertheless, in Law v. General Motors Corp. [(9th Cir. 1997) 114 F.3d 908, 910-912], the Ninth Circuit concluded that BIA preempted state law claims against railroad manufacturers alleging that locomotive brakes and engines were defectively designed in that they subjected workers to excessive noise. The court rejected the plaintiffs' contention that the claims were not preempted because BIA refers only to "railroad carriers" and not "manufacturers." Nor did preemption leave the plaintiffs without a remedy, because they could recover for their occupational injuries from their employer under the Federal Employers' Liability Act [45 U.S.C.S. § 51 et seq.]

The California Supreme Court endorsed the 9th Circuit's approach to federal preemption in railroad litigation. In Scheiding v. General Motors Corp. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 471, 483, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 343, 993 P.2d 996 , it held that a products liability claim brought by former railroad employees against General Motors, the manufacturer, for asbestos related injuries was preempted under the Locomotive Boiler Inspection Act (BIA) 49 U.S.C.S. § 20701 et seq. [Scheiding v. General Motors Corp. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 471, 475, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342, 993 P.2d 996] . The Court held that because the BIA extends to the design, the construction and the material of every part of the locomotive and all its appurtenances, Congress intended the BIA to occupy this field. It would be contrary to Congress' purpose of uniform national regulation to allow the states to reoccupy fields from which they had previously been displaced. The Court affirmed the appellate court's dismissal of the plaintiffs' claims [Scheiding v. General Motors Corp. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 471, 473, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342, 993 P.2d 996] . The court reasoned that BIA cannot remove the design, construction, and material of every part of the locomotive from the purview of state regulation without also precluding tort actions premised on a defect in the design, construction, or material. Moreover, to leave regulation in the hands of juries would undermine the uniformity that Congress sought to establish through BIA. The Supreme Court also rejected the contention that BIA does not apply to locomotive manufacturers [Scheiding v. General Motors Corp. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 471, 483, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342, 993 P.2d 996].

In *Frastaci v. Vapor Corp. [(Dec. 21, 2007) 2007 Cal. App. LEXIS 2147, at 16] the court held that Scheiding forecloses design defect claims against locomotive manufacturers, regardless of whether the locomotive was "in use" or off line in roundhouses and repair shops when the injury occurred. The case involved a locomotive repairman who died of mesothelioma from asbestos exposure. The fact that the Federal Employers' Liability Act [45 U.S.C.S. § 51 et seq.] requires a locomotive to be "in use" at the time of injury before BIA applies did not change the court's analysis. Nor was it persuaded that the presumption against preemption should apply. Citing the principles set forth in Napier, above, the court was unwilling to "second-guess Congress's decision to require national uniformity in the field of railroad safety" [*Frastaci v. Vapor Corp. [(Dec. 21, 2007) 2007 Cal. App. LEXIS 2147, at 26].

The Federal Safety Appliance Act (SAA) [49 U.S.C.S. § 20301 et seq.] does not have an explicit preemption provision, but courts have found that the statute occupies the field of legislation related to rail cars with safety appliances to such a degree that field preemption applies [Southern Ry. Co. v. R.R. Comm., Ind. (1915) 236 U.S. 439, 447, 35 S. Ct. 304, 59 L. Ed. 661 ; *Miller v. S. Pac. R.R. (E.D. Cal. Sept. 7, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 66314, at 14]. In Carrillo v. ACF Industries, Inc. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 1158, 1168-1169, 980 P.2d 386 , the California Supreme Court held that the SAA preempted a strict liability design claim against a railcar manufacturer alleging that walkways on a hopper car's roof hatches were unsafe. The court found that the SAA and its regulations specifying safety equipment on railroad freight cars reflect the congressional intent to occupy the field regulating safety appliances.

The Federal Railroad Safety Act (FRSA) contains an express preemption provision relating to railroad safety and security [49 U.S.C.S. § 20106]. This provision contains a savings clause recognizing that state regulation is permitted 1) in areas not already covered by federal regulations, and 2) when state laws are required to address local safety hazards, are compatible with federal law, and do not burden state commerce [49 U.S.C.S. § 20106].

In Miller v. S. Pac. R.R. *[(E.D. Cal. Sept. 7, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 66314, at *14-17], the FRSA and SAA preempted a negligence claim alleging design defects of a railroad car's operating platform. The high level of federal regulation of the platforms' walking surface leaves no room for state common law theories to regulate the subject.

In Haynes v. AMTRAK (C.D. Cal. 2006) 423 F. Supp. 2d 1073, 1079-1081 , a federal court concluded that there are no federal safety regulations subsuming California tort actions regarding the potential of deep vein thrombosis (DVT) from poorly designed seats or seating configurations. Nor are there any regulations regarding the duty to warn passengers about DVT. Despite the absence of preemption under the FRSA, the court nevertheless found that state laws regarding seats and seating configurations were unduly burdensome on interstate commerce and the passenger train industry and were preempted by the Commerce Clause. The duty to warn passengers of the dangers of DVT, in contrast, was not unduly burdensome on commerce and not preempted [Haynes v. AMTRAK [Haynes v. AMTRAK (C.D. Cal. 2006) 423 F. Supp. 2d 1073, 1083-1084]. The court also concluded that the federal Amtrak Act [49 U.S.C.S. § 24301 et seq.] did not preempt the California common law claims alleging dangerous seating configurations and failure to warn passengers about DVT. The Amtrak Act's express preemption clause relates to state laws "related to rates, routes, or services" [49 U.S.C.S. § 24301(g)]. Federal case law has made it clear that a state law does not relate to prices unless it "acts immediately and exclusively upon price," or unless the existence of a price is essential to the law's operation. Although plaintiffs' claims, if successful, could result in higher costs leading to higher rates, they did not work to regulate Amtrak's rates directly. A provision of the Act requiring Amtrak to maintain a minimum amount of liability insurance to handle passengers' claims [49 U.S.C.S. § 28103(c)] was further evidence that Congress did not intend to preempt all state tort law claims against Amtrak [Haynes v. AMTRAK (C.D. Cal. 2006) 423 F. Supp. 2d 1073, 1079-1081].

[g] Pesticides

Provisions of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA), 7 U.S.C.S. § 136v(b), expressly prohibit states from imposing "any requirements for labeling or packaging in addition to or different from those required under" the Act. In 2005, the U.S. Supreme Court at long last addressing the scope of FIFRA preemption of state law claims regarding pesticides in Bates v. Dow Agrosciences LLC [Bates v. Dow Agrosciences L.L.C. (2005) 544 U.S. 431, 125 S. Ct. 1788, 161 L. Ed. 2d 687] . Bates was the latest in the Court's string of decisions addressing federal preemption of common law claims, beginning with its 1992 decision in Cipollone v. Liggett Group, Inc. [Cipollone v. Liggett Group, Inc.(1992) 505 U.S. 504, 112 S. Ct. 2608, 120 L. Ed. 2d 407 ; see § 460.52[2][i]]. State and federal courts have been wrestling with the issue of preemption of pesticide-related claims since Cipollone, and whether the Bates decision clarifies the issue or raises more questions remains to be seen.

In a nutshell, Bates held that for a particular state rule to be preempted by FIFRA's preemption clause, it must first satisfy two conditions. First, it must be a requirement for labeling or packaging. Second, it must impose a labeling or packaging requirement that is in addition to or different from those required under FIFRA. A state-law labeling requirement is not preempted by § 136v(b) if it is equivalent to, and fully consistent with, FIFRA's misbranding provisions [Bates v. Dow Agrosciences L.L.C. (2005) 544 U.S. 431, 125 S. Ct. 1788, 161 L. Ed. 2d 687, 703] . As discussed below, the Bates decision definitely limits the preemptive reach of FIFRA.

Bates was initiated by 29 Texas peanut farmers who alleged that the defendant's pesticide "Strongarm" severely damaged their crops. Strongarm's label stated, "Use of Strongarm is recommended in all areas where peanuts are grown." When the farmers applied Strongarm on soils with pH levels of 7.2 or higher, as is typical in western Texas, the pesticide severely damaged their peanut crops. The farmers gave the defendant notice of their intent to bring suit, alleging that the defendant knew or should have known that Strongarm would stunt the growth of peanuts in soils with pH levels of 7.0 or greater. The defendant filed a declaratory judgment action contending that FIFRA expressly or impliedly preempted the claims. The plaintiffs counterclaimed, asserting several state law claims. The federal district court granted the defendant's motion for summary judgment, rejecting one claim on state law grounds and dismissing the remainder as expressly preempted by 7 U.S.C.S. § 136v(b), and the Fifth Circuit affirmed. It read § 136v(b) as preempting any state law claim in which "a judgment against [the defendant] would induce it to alter its product label." This decision was consistent with a majority of the federal courts of appeals, but conflicted with the decisions of other courts and with the views of the EPA. The U.S. Supreme Court granted certiorari to resolve the conflict [Bates v. Dow Agrosciences L.L.C. (2005) 544 U.S. 431, 125 S. Ct. 1788, 161 L. Ed. 2d 687, 698-699] .

In a 7-2 majority opinion written by Justice Stevens, the U.S. Supreme Court vacated the decision and remanded. The opinion began by providing the history of regulatory control over the distribution of poisonous substances, noting that prior to 1910, the states provided the primary and possibly exclusive source of regulatory control. In 1970, the EPA assumed responsibility for the pesticide registration process. In 1972, Congress adopted the extensive amendments transforming FIFRA from a labeling law into a comprehensive regulatory statute. The 1972 amendments also imposed a new criterion for registration--environmental safety [Bates v. Dow Agrosciences, L.L.C. (2005) 544 U.S. 431, 125 S. Ct. 1788, 1794-1795, 161 L. Ed. 2d 687, 699] . The Court then reviewed the obligations of manufacturers relating to registration and labeling under FIFRA as it currently stands. It pointed out that a pesticide is misbranded if its label does not contain adequate instruction for use or omits necessary warnings or cautionary statements [7 U.S.C.S. §§ 136(q)(1)(A), 136(q)(1)(F),(G)]. Because it is unlawful under the statute to sell a pesticide that is registered but nevertheless misbranded, manufacturers have a continuing obligation to adhere to FIFRA's labeling requirements [Bates v. Dow Agrosciences, L.L.C. (2005) 544 U.S. 431, 125 S. Ct. 1788, 1795-1796, 161 L. Ed. 2d 687, 699-701] .

The Court pointed out that tort litigation against pesticide manufacturers had begun well before the passage of FIFRA in 1947 and continued to be a common feature at the time of the 1972 amendments. The Court noted that it was only after it issued its decision in Cipollone v. Liggett Group, Inc. [Cipollone v. Liggett Group, Inc. (1992) 505 U.S. 504, 112 S. Ct. 2608, 120 L. Ed. 2d 407] that the groundswell of federal and state decisions emerged holding that § 136v(b) preempted claims like those advanced in Bates.

The Court rejected the plaintiffs' argument that FIFRA's express preemption does not apply to tort actions--that is, that the term "requirements" as used in § 136v(b) does not encompass tort actions. Although pointing out that the Fifth Circuit was "quite wrong" when it assumed that any event, such as a jury verdict, that might "induce" a pesticide manufacturer to change its label should be viewed as a requirement, the Court agreed that the term "requirements" in § 136v(b) reaches beyond positive enactments, such as statutes and regulations, to embrace common law duties [Bates v. Dow Agrosciences, L.L.C. (2005) 544 U.S. 431, 125 S. Ct. 1788, 1798, 161 L. Ed. 2d 687, 703] .

The Court then set forth its two-part test for determining whether a particular state rule is preempted by FIFRA. First, the rule must be a requirement "for labeling or packaging." For example, rules governing the design of a product are not preempted. Second, the rule must impose a labeling or packaging requirement that is "in addition to or different from those required under [FIFRA]." For example, a state regulation requiring the word "poison" to appear in red letters would not be preempted if an EPA regulation imposed the same requirement [Bates v. Dow Agrosciences, L.L.C. (2005) 544 U.S. 431, 125 S. Ct. 1788, 1798, 161 L. Ed. 2d 687, 703] .

The Court then pointed out that common law rules requiring manufacturers to design reasonably safe products, to use due care in testing their products, to market products free from defects, and to honor their express warranties, clearly did not satisfy the first condition of the test (they were not requirements "for labeling or packaging"). Therefore, FIFRA did not preempt the plaintiffs' claims for defective design, defective manufacture, negligent testing, and breach of express warranty. The Court also noted that the plaintiffs' off-label claims--their warranty and fraud claims based on oral representations made by the defendant's agents--fell outside the text of § 136v(b) for another reason: FIFRA defines labeling by reference to "written, printed, or graphic matter" and not to oral representations. The Court expressly disapproved of the "effects-based" test used by many federal and state courts to determine whether a non-warning claim was preempted: whether a judgment against a manufacturer would cause it to alter the pesticide label. This test was unsupported in the text of § 136v(b), which refers only to "requirements," and was overbroad because it would allow preemption of many "genuine" design defect claims [Bates v. Dow Agrosciences, L.L.C. (2005) 544 U.S. 431, 125 S. Ct. 1788, 1799, 161 L. Ed. 2d 687, 704] .

The Court next turned to the plaintiffs' claims of fraud and negligent failure to warn--claims that virtually all prior federal and state courts had found preempted. Although agreeing that these claims were premised on common law rules that qualify as "requirements for labeling or packaging," thereby meeting the first part of its test, the Court noted that some courts had "too quickly" concluded that failure-to-warn claims were preempted under FIFRA without weighing the obvious textual differences between the preemption clauses in FIFRA and the Smoking Act provisions at issue in Cipollone. Specifically, unlike the Smoking Act, § 136v(b) prohibits only statelaw labeling and packaging requirements that are "in addition to or different from" the labeling and packaging requirements under FIFRA. Consequently, a state law labeling requirement is not preempted by § 136v(b) if it is equivalent to, and fully consistent with, FIFRA's misbranding provisions. The Court held that state law need not explicitly incorporate FIFRA's standards as an element of a cause of action to survive preemption, but left it to the Fifth Circuit to decide whether the particular common law duties were equivalent to FIFRA's misbranding standards [Bates v. Dow Agrosciences, L.L.C. (2005) 544 U.S. 431, 125 S. Ct. 1788, 1800, 161 L. Ed. 2d 687, 705] .

The Court went on to explain that the "parallel requirements" reading of § 136v(b) that it adopted found strong support in an earlier decision, Medtronic, Inc. v. Lohr [Medtronic, Inc. v. Lohr (1996) 518 U.S. 470, 116 S. Ct. 2240, 135 L. Ed. 2d 700] , in which the Court held that nothing in the preemption provision of the statute regulating medical devices denied the state of Florida the right to provide a traditional damages remedy for violations of common law duties that parallel federal requirements. The Court then rejected the defendant's argument that such a reading of parallel state requirements would establish a "crazy-quilt" of anti-misbranding requirements different from the requirement defined by FIFRA. Moreover, even if the defendant had offered a plausible reading of § 136v(b), the Court would still have had a duty to accept the reading that disfavored preemption. The Court also found the policy objections raised by the defendant against its reading of § 136v(b) to be unpersuasive [Bates v. Dow Agrosciences, L.L.C. (2005) 544 U.S. 431, 125 S. Ct. 1788, 1801-1803, 161 L. Ed. 2d 687, 706-708] .

The Court concluded that § 136v(b) retains a narrow, but still important role. It preempts competing state labeling standards that would create significant inefficiencies for manufacturers as well as any statutory or common law rule that would impose a labeling requirement that diverges from those set out in FIFRA. It does not, however, preempt any state rules that are fully consistent with federal requirements [Bates v. Dow Agrosciences, L.L.C. (2005) 544 U.S. 431, 125 S. Ct. 1788, 1801-1803, 161 L. Ed. 2d 687, 706-708] .

Although the Court enunciated its interpretation of § 136v(b), whether that provision preempted the plaintiffs' fraud and failure-to-warn claims remained undecided. Because the Court had not received sufficient briefing on this issue, it remanded it to the Fifth Circuit. The Court specifically emphasized that a state law labeling requirement must in fact be equivalent to a requirement under FIFRA to survive preemption. It cautioned that a state law requirement need not be phrased in language identical to FIFRA; general equivalence is sufficient [Bates v. Dow Agrosciences, L.L.C. (2005) 544 U.S. 431, 125 S. Ct. 1788, 1804, 161 L. Ed. 2d 687, 709] .

In a pre-Bates case, the California Supreme Court found preemption of a common law claim involving a pesticide [Etcheverry v. Tri-Ag Serv., Inc. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 316, 320, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36, 993 P.2d 366] , overruled in part, Bates v. Dow Agrosciences L.L.C., 544 U.S. 431, (2005) . The plaintiffs here operated a walnut orchard and arranged for an application of chemicals, Guthion and Morestan, to kill moths and other insects. The spraying resulted in approximately $150,000 in damages to the crop. The court held that when a claim boils downs to an assertion that a pesticide's label failed to warn of the damage that the plaintiff allegedly suffered, the claim is preempted by FIFRA [Etcheverry v. Tri-Ag Service, Inc. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 316, 335-336, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36, 993 P.2d 366] , overruled in part, Bates v. Dow Agrosciences L.L.C., 544 U.S. 431, 447-452 (2005) . To maintain uniformity, FIFRA expressly prohibits states from imposing "any requirements for labeling or packaging in addition to or different from those required under" the statute [7 U.S.C.S. § 136v(b)]. Under the supremacy clause of the U.S. Constitution, any state law or claim that requires a pesticide manufacturer to conform to a state law standard of care in its labeling and packaging practices is preempted [Taylor Ag Indus. v. Pure-Gro (9th Cir. 1995) 54 F.3d 555, 561] .

In addition to warning claims, FIFRA also preempts claims based on breach of an express warranty required and approved by the EPA [Etcheverry v. Tri-Ag Serv., Inc. (2002) 22 Cal. 4th 316, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36, 993 P.2d 366] , overruled in part, Bates v. Dow Agrosciences L.L.C., 544 U.S. 431, 447-452 (2005) . One court of appeal held, before the U.S. Supreme Court's decsion in Bates, that FIFRA also preempts claims based on off-label statements which merely repeat information in the label itself [Sun Valley Packing v. Consep, Inc. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 315, 322, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 237 (certified for partial publication)]. These decisions will certainly be reevaluated in the case law that emerges after Bates.

In Arnold v. Dow Chem. Co. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 698, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722 , the plaintiffs claimed that their daughter suffered an intrauterine stroke, which resulted in hemiparesis (paralysis affecting one side of the body), hemianopsia (blindness affecting half of the field of vision) and disability as a result of pesticides sprayed in and scattered around her home when she was in utero. Plaintiffs also claimed that their other daughter suffered pancreatitis and hepatitis as a result of exposure to the same pesticides. The Ninth Circuit held that FIFRA preempts the family's state law claim challenging the labeling of pesticide sprays used around their home, but did not preempt its state common law design defect claim [Arnold v. Dow Chem. Co. (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 698, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722] .

Also, FIFRA does not preempt claims arising when a manufacturer or retailer voluntarily warrants a pesticide's fitness for a particular purpose [Etcheverry v. Tri-Ag Serv., Inc. (2002) 22 Cal. 4th 316, 337, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36, 993 P.2d 366 , overruled in part, Bates v. Dow Agrosciences L.L.C., 544 U.S. 431, 447-452 (2005) ; Sun Valley Packing v. Consep, Inc. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 315, 322-323, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 237 (certified for partial publication) (FIFRA did not preempt claims based not on general warranty of fitness, but on manufacturer's express oral guarantee that mating disruption product would control twig borers when applied for first time mid season)].

FIFRA preemption rules do not require a court to enforce a damage limitation provision clause which it finds unconscionable in an EPA-approved pesticide label [Etcheverry v. Tri-Ag Serv., Inc. (2002) 22 Cal. 4th 316, 335, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36, 993 P.2d 366 , overruled in part, Bates v. Dow Agrosciences L.L.C., 544 U.S. 431, 447-452 (2005) ; Sun Valley Packing v. Consep, Inc. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 315, 324, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 237 (certified for partial publication)].

[h] Boats

Federal law preempts claims for certain injuries sustained in connection with boats. In Sprietsma v. Mercury Marine (2002) 537 U.S. 51, 54-70, 123 S. Ct. 518, 154 L. Ed. 2d 466 , the U.S. Supreme Court resolved a split of both federal and state authority and held that the FBSA does not preempt common law "no propeller guard" claims.

Before the Sprietsma decision, the majority of courts considering the issue, including the Eastern District of California [Moss v. Outboard Marine Corp. (E.D. Cal. 1996) 915 F. Supp. 183, 185-186] , had found express preemption of the claims. A few courts had found implied preemption of "no propeller guard" claims. Only a few courts had found no preemption of the claims [see L. Frumer & M. Friedman, Products Liability, Ch. 24, Federal Preemption (Matthew Bender)].

A bit of background is required to explain the Sprietsma decision. The Federal Boating Safety Act of 1971 (FBSA), which deals with recreational boats and their use, contains both a preemption provision and a savingsclause. The preemption provision prohibits States from establishing, continuing in effect, or enforcing a regulation establishing a performance or safety standard that is not identical to a regulation prescribed under the Act [46 U.S.C.S. § 4306]. The savings clause provides that compliance with standards or regulations prescribed under the FBSA does not relieve a person from common law liability [46 U.S.C.S. § 4311(g)].

The FBSA authorizes the Secretary of Transportation to issue regulations establishing minimal safety standards for recreational vessels and associated equipment [46 U.S.C.S. § 4302]. The Secretary delegated this authority to the Coast Guard [49 C.F.R. § 1.46(n)(1)]. In 1990, the Coast Guard adopted the recommendation of its subcommittee and decided to take no regulatory action to require propeller guards on recreational boats. In 2001, the Advisory Counsel recommended that the Coast Guard develop four specific regulations with respect to propeller guards [66 Fed. Reg. 63645, 63647] . However, the Coast Guard has not yet issued any regulation requiring or prohibiting the propeller guards.

In Sprietsma v. Mercury Marine (2002) 537 U.S. 51, 63-70, 123 S. Ct. 518, 154 L. Ed. 2d 466 , the Court concluded that a state common law tort action seeking damages from the manufacturer of an outboard motor is not pre-empted either by the enactment of the FBSA or by the Coast Guard decisions not to promulgate a regulation requiring propeller guards.

Sprietsma arose when the decedent fell overboard and was struck by the propeller of a ski boat. The Court first disposed of the manufacturer's express preemption argument. Focusing on the plain wording of the express preemption clause, the Court concluded that it applies to state or local law or regulation, and not to common law claims. The Court relied on two reasons. First, the article "a" before the phrase "law or regulation" implies a discreteness--which is embodied in statutes and regulations--that is not present in common law. Secondly, if the terms "law" were read broadly so as to include the common law, it might also be interpreted to regulations, which would render the express reference to "regulation" in the preemption clause superfluous. The Court also found that the savings clause indicates that the preemption provision was drafted to preempt performance standards and equipment requirements imposed by statute or regulation [Sprietsma v. Mercury Marine (2002) 537 U.S. 51, 63-64, 123 S. Ct. 518, 526-528, 154 L. Ed. 2d 466] .

Next, the Court rejected the manufacturer's implied preemption arguments. The Court found it "quite wrong" to view the Coast Guard's decision not to adopt a regulation requiring propeller guards on motorboats as the functional equivalent of a regulation prohibiting all States from adopting such a regulation. The 1990 decision to accept the recommendation to take no regulatory action left the law exactly the same as it had been before the subcommittee began its investigation. Nothing in the Coast Guard's official explanation would be inconsistent with a tort verdict premised ona jury's finding that some type of propeller guard should have been installed on a particular kind of boat. The decision not to require propeller guards did not convey an "authoritative" message of a federal policy against propeller guards. Morever, nothing in the Coast Guard's 2001 regulatory activities altered the Court's conclusion [Sprietsma v. Mercury Marine (2002) 537 U.S. 51, 64-70, 123 S. Ct. 518, 528-529, 154 L. Ed. 2d 466] .

Finally, the Court disposed of the manufacturer's alternative implied preemption argument, i.e., that the potential conflict with the federal scheme impliedly preempted plaintiff's "no propeller guard" claims. The Court concluded that the FBSA did not so completely occupy the field of safety regulation of recreational boats as to foreclose state common law remedies. The FBSA, unlike other federal statutes such as Title II of the Ports and Waterways Safety Act of 1972, does not require the Coast Guard to promulgate comprehensive regulations covering every aspect of recreational boat safety and design. Nor must the Coast Guard certify the acceptability of every recreational boat subject to its jurisdiction. In short, the FBSA's structure and framework does not convey a "clear and manifest intent" to pre-empt all state common law relating to boat manufacture. The Court concluded that concern with uniformity in manufacturing regulations does not justify the displacement of state common law remedies that compensate accident victims and serve the FBSA's more prominent objective of promoting boating safety [Sprietsma v. Mercury Marine (2002) 537 U.S. 51, 64-70, 123 S. Ct. 518, 529-530, 154 L. Ed. 2d 466] .

The Sprietsma holding is limited to "no propeller guard" claims. There is authority holding that claims relating to aspects of boats that have not even by considered by the Coast Guard as a subject of regulation are not preempted by FBSA. One California appellate court held that the FBSA neither expressly nor impliedly preempted claims alleging inadequate handhold areas in a boat's tow area. The plaintiff had been thrown from a boat and then struck by it. In finding no express preemption, the court stated that the FBSA's preemption provision [46 U.S.C.S. § 4306] only expressly precludes a state from enforcing a law or regulation that is not identical to a regulation prescribed by the Coast Guard. It does not prohibit the establishment or enforcement by state laws or regulations for which no Coast Guard regulations have been promulgated. Moreover, the preemption provision must be read in conjunction with the savings clause [LaPlante v. Wellcraft Marine Corp. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 282, 291, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 196, 202] .

The court also found that United States v. Locke (2000) 529 U.S. 89, 120 S. Ct. 1135, 146 L. Ed. 2d 69 , did not establish field preemption through the FBSA, as that case involved commercial oil tankers, not recreational vessels [Laplante v. Wellcraft Marine Corp. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 282, 291-294, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 196, 203-204] . Finally, the court found that plaintiff's common law claims were not subject to conflict preemption because the Coast Guard has not adopted any regulations dealing withhandrails or handgrips [Laplante v. Wellcraft Marine Corp. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 282, 294-295, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 196, 205-206] .

[i] Tobacco

Tobacco was the first product subject to the U.S. Supreme Court's preemption analysis. Federal preemption of cigarettes stems from the Federal Cigarette Labeling and Advertising Act of 1969 [15 U.S.C.S. §§ 1331-1340]. The preemption section of the 1969 Act provides that "[n]o requirement of prohibition based on smoking and health shall be imposed under State law with respect to advertising or promotion or any cigarettes the packages of which are labeled in conformity with the provisions of this chapter" [Pub. L. No. 91-222, § 2 (Apr. 1, 1970) 84 Stat. 87].

In Cipollone v. Liggett Group, Inc. (1992) 505 U.S. 504, 518, 112 S. Ct. 2608, 120 L. Ed. 2d 407 , the U.S. Supreme Court construed the language of both the 1969 Act, and its predecessor the 1965 Act. The Court determined that the plain language of the 1965 Act did not have the effect of preempting any state law products liability claims. The broader language of the 1969 Act, however, expressly preempted those claims that relied on a state law requirement or prohibition with respect to promotion or advertising. The preempted claims in Cipollone were based upon the alleged failure to adequately warn of the dangers of cigarette smoking in post-1969 advertisements, and alleged fraudulent misrepresentation that was predicated on a state law prohibition against advertising and promotional statements that tended to minimize the health hazards associated with smoking.

The other claims, however, which did not relate to advertising were not preempted by the 1969 Act. These included plaintiff's additional failure to warn claim insofar as it relied solely upon the defendant's testing or research practices or other actions unrelated to advertising [Cipollone v. Liggett Group, Inc. (1992) 505 U.S. 504, 524, 112 S. Ct. 2608, 120 L. Ed. 2d 407] . The claim alleging intentional fraud in misrepresenting and concealing a material fact, to the extent that it related to the duty to disclose material facts, was also not preempted [Cipollone v. Liggett Group (1992) 505 U.S. 504, 528-529, 112 S. Ct. 2608, 120 L. Ed. 2d 407] . The claim alleging a conspiracy to misrepresent or conceal material facts concerning the hazards of smoking was not the subject of preemption [Cipollone v. Liggett Group, Inc. (1992) 505 U.S. 504, 527, 112 S. Ct. 2608, 120 L. Ed. 2d 407] .

Finally, the claim alleging breach of express warranty was not preempted because liability for such a breach derived from the terms of the warranty and did not relate to requirements imposed by state law [Cipollone v. Liggett Group, Inc. (1992) 505 U.S. 504, 525-526, 112 S. Ct. 2608, 120 L. Ed. 2d 407] .

The Ninth Circuit has narrowly interpreted the phrase "advertising and promotion" as used in the 1969 Act. The court held that by alleging that Philip Morris breached its duty to warn about the addictive nature of nicotine, the manipulation of nicotine levels, and the carcinogenic effect of smoking, a plaintiff was not challenging the warnings the defendant actually gave pursuant to the Act. Rather, his claim addressed smoking harms outside the Act's reach--about which the defendant gave no warnings at all, but could have, through means other than advertising and promotion. The plaintiff's warning claim was based on the defendant's failure to employ non-promotional communications, such as public service announcements. The claim was not preempted as long as it did not challenge a substantive warning issued pursuant to the Act, and was not based on the defendant's packaging, advertising, or promotional materials. The plaintiff's fraudulent concealment claim survived preemption for similar reasons [Rivera v. Philip Morris, Inc. (9th Cir. 2005) 395 F.3d 1142, 1147-1150] .

In Whiteley v. Philip Morris, Inc. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 635, 666-677, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 807 the appellate court applied the principles of Cipollone to conclude that certain fraudulent misrepresentation claims brought by a smoker and her husband were not preempted. As stated above, the U.S. Supreme Court in Cipollone distinguished between two fraudulent misrepresentation theories. It found that the claim that defendants "neutralized" the effect of federally mandated warning labels through their advertising was inextricably related to the failure-to-warn theory and was preempted. However, it also found that the fraudulent misrepresentation claims predicated on the duty not to deceive were not preempted [Cipollone v. Liggett Group, Inc. (1992) 505 U.S. 504, 527-529, 112 S Ct. 2608, 120 L. Ed. 2d 407] . In Whitely, the California appellate court likewise found that the defendants' false assurances that they would keep the public informed of their findings regarding smoking and health, and the manufacturing of a false controversy regarding the health effects of smoking, were affirmative misrepresentations outside the preemptive reach of the cigarette labeling statute. The court also found that misrepresentation by "half-truths" is a species of affirmative misrepresentation and fraud falling on the non-preempted prong of Cipollone [Whiteley v. Philip Morris, Inc. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 635, 666-677, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 807] .

In Boeken v. Philip Morris Inc., the court of appeal squarely rejected the suggestion that the consumer expectations test is essentially a failure-to-warn claim and hence preempted by the 1969 Smoking Act. The court also held that the trial court did not erroneously refuse the defendant's proffered instructions relating to federally preempted advertising [Boeken v. Philip Morris Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1676-1679, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638] .

In 2001, the U.S. Supreme Court once again addressed the preemptive effect of the Cigarette Labeling Act, this time in the context of outdoor advertising. At issue in the case were regulations banning outdoor cigarette advertising within 1,000 feet of any school, park, or playground. The regulations had been issued by the Massachusetts Attorney General pursuant to the state deceptive trade practices act. In Lorillard Tobacco Co. v. Reilly, [(2001) 533 U.S. 525, 547-552, 121 S. Ct. 2404, 150 L. Ed. 2d 532], the high Court held that the Labeling Act preempted the state regulations. The majority opinion, written by Justice O'Connor, rejected the Massachusetts Attorney General's contention that the statute regulations were not based on smoking and health because they did not involve health-related conduct, but instead targeted youth exposed to cigarette advertising. The Court observed that one of the purposes of the Labeling Act was to "protect the public, including youth, from being inundated with images of cigarette smoking in advertising." It found that the Attorney General's attempt "to address the incidence of underage cigarette smoking by regulating advertising" was similar to the Labeling Act's "ban on cigarette smoking in electronic media." Finding that the concern about youth exposure to cigarette advertising was intertwined with the concern about cigarette smoking and health, the Court accordingly rejected the state's attempt to distinguish one concern from the other. It also rejected the contention that federal preemption was limited to cigarette advertising's content, not its location.

In In re Tobacco Cases II [(2007) 41 Cal. 4th 1257, 1272, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418, 163 P.3d 106], the Supreme Court of California was presented with the issue of federal preemption of minors' unfair competition claims against the tobacco companies. The court ruled that the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in Lorillard Tobacco Co. v. Reilly was inconsistent with and impliedly disapproved the California court's previous decision [Mangini v. R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1057, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358, 875 P.2d 73] holding that the Labeling Act did not preempt a similar claim. The court acknowledged that California's unfair competition law--a law of general application--was not preempted on its face by the Labeling Act. However, the plaintiffs' claim was also based on the penal law section prohibiting sales of tobacco products to minors, i.e., a statute based largely on health concerns. Their unfair competition claim sought to impose on the tobacco companies a duty not to advertise in a way that could encourage minors to smoke--a duty which the Lorillard Court determined was subjection to preemption. Moreover, plaintiffs' cause of action did not fall within the exception allowing states to prohibit activity that constitutes an inchoate crime.

Although courts have implemented the Cipollone decision with relatively little difficulty over the years, there was one exception. Courts had reached mixed results regarding whether the Federal Cigarette Labeling & Advertising Act (Labeling Act) preempted claims alleging that tobacco manufacturers violated state unfair trade practices acts or consumer protection acts by advertising that "light" cigarettes delivered less tar and nicotine than regular brands. The controversy stemmed from statements issued by the FTC in 1966 that it would not challenge factual statements about cigarettes' tar and nicotine content based on the "Cambridge Filter Method" test. The Cambridge test was supposed to produce uniform data regarding tar and nicotine content. The industry then began promoting cigarettes with lower tar and nicotine as "light" cigarettes. On December 15, 2008, the U.S. Supreme Court ended the controversy by holding in a 5-4 ruling that neither the Labeling Act's preemption provision nor the FTC's actions in the field preempted state-law claims predicated on the duty not to deceive [Altria Group, Inc. v. Good (2008) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 538, 172 L. Ed. 2d 398].

The case, Altria Group, Inc. v. Good [(2008) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 538, 172 L. Ed. 2d 398], was brought by a group of Maine smokers of "light" cigarettes. They alleged that the manufacturers deliberately deceived them about the true nature of those cigarettes in violation of the Maine Unfair Trade Practices Act (MUTPA) [Me. Rev. Stat. Ann. Tit. 5, § 207]. They claimed that the manufacturers knew that smokers of "light" cigarettes actually inhale as much tar and nicotine as do smokers of regular cigarettes because of their tendency to engage in "compensatory" smoking. The district court ruled that the MUTPA claim was preempted. The First Circuit Court of Appeals reversed, holding that the smokers' claim was not a warning neutralization claim, but rather, a fraud claim. The U.S. Supreme Court granted the manufacturers' petition for certiorari [Altria Group, Inc. v. Good (2008) 128 S. Ct. 1119, 169 L. Ed. 2d 846, 2008 U.S. LEXIS 1099].

At issue in the case was one of the Labeling Act's two express preemption provisions, § 5(b). That section provides that "[n]o requirement or prohibition based on smoking and health shall be imposed under State law with respect to the advertising or promotion of any cigarettes the packages of which are labeled in conformity with the provisions of this chapter" [15 U.S.C. § 1334(b)].

Justice Stevens delivered the opinion of the Court, in which Justices Kennedy, Souter, Ginsburg, and Breyer joined.

The Court began its express preemption analysis by announcing its adherence to the presumption against preemption [Altria Group, Inc. v. Good (2008) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 538, 543, 172 L. Ed. 2d 398]. Next, it briefly reviewed the plurality's opinion in Cipollone. To determine whether a particular common law claim was preempted, the Cipollone plurality had inquired "whether the legal duty that is the predicate of the common-law damages action constitutes a 'requirement or prohibition based on smoking and health ... with respect to ... advertising or promotion,' giving that clause a fair but narrow reading." Applying that standard, the Cipollone plurality had concluded that fraudulent misrepresentation and concealment claims were not preempted [Cipollone v. Liggett Group (1992) 505 U.S. 504, 528-529, 112 S. Ct. 2608, 120 L. Ed. 2d 407]. The Good Court stated that the duty not to deceive, as codified in the MUTPA, is likewise unrelated to smoking and health [Altria Group, Inc. v. Good (2008) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 538, 545-546, 172 L. Ed. 2d 398, 408].

The Court then rejected the tobacco companies' argument that the smokers' claim was analogous to the "warning neutralization" claim found to be preempted in Cipollone because it was based on statements that "might create a false impression" rather than statements that are "inherently false." After eliminating that argument, it was clear to the majority that Cipollone's holding that the common-law fraud claim survived preemption directly applied to the Good smokers' MUTPA claim [Altria Group, Inc. v. Good (2008) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 538, 546, 172 L. Ed. 2d 398]. Moreover, the Court found no inconsistency between its analysis in Cipollone and its subsequent decision, Lorillard Tobacco Co. v. Reilly [(2001) 533 U.S. 525, 121 S. Ct. 2404, 150 L. Ed. 2d 532] (discussed above). The Court declined to reject the express preemption framework established by the Cipollone plurality, despite its possible lack of "theoretical elegance" [Altria Group, Inc. v. Good (2008) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 538, 547, 172 L. Ed. 2d 398]. The Court also distinguished Riegel v. Medtronic, Inc. [(2008) 552 U.S. 312, 128 S. Ct. 999, 169 L. Ed. 2d 892] (discussed in § 460.52[2][b][f], above) in which it had found that the Medical Device Amendments of 1976 expressly preempted state law claims [Altria Group, Inc. v. Good (2008) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 538, 548-549, 172 L. Ed. 2d 398]. In sum, the Court concluded that the phrase "based on smoking and health," narrowly construed, does not encompass the general duty not to make fraudulent statements.

Next, the Court rejected the petitioners' alternative argument that the smokers' claim was impliedly preempted because it presented an obstacle to longstanding FTC policy. A review of FTC regulatory actions revealed that there never was in fact any government policy authorizing the use of the "light" and "low tar" descriptors based on Cambridge Filter Method test results [Altria Group, Inc. v. Good (2008) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 538, 550, 172 L. Ed. 2d 398]. Significantly, the Agency rescinded its 1966 guidance concerning the Cambridge Filter Method in 2008, referring to it as "sufficiently flawed" [73 Fed. Reg. 74500] .

Justice Thomas wrote a dissenting opinion, joined by Chief Justice Roberts and Justices Scalia and Alito. Justice Thomas criticized the majority for adopting the Cipollone plurality as governing law while ignoring the other Cipollone opinions as well as recent Supreme Court opinions finding federal preemption of state law claims. The dissent took issue with the majority's emphasis on the presumption against preemption.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsAffirmative DefensesGeneral OverviewTortsProcedurePreemptionGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureStatutes of LimitationsGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureStatutes of ReposeGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureStatutes of ReposeProducts LiabilityTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsTransportation TortsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Answers

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.53

§ 460.53 Comparative Fault and Assumption of Risk

In Li v. Yellow Cab Co. [(1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 828-829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226], the California Supreme Court abolished the "all-or-nothing" rule of contributory negligence in cases based on negligence and replaced it with the doctrine of comparative negligence. The system of comparative fault announced in Li also applies to actions based on strict products liability and to actions based on negligence [Daly v. General Motors Corp. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 725, 730, 742, 144 Cal. Rptr. 380, 575 P.2d 1162] . Under the principles of comparative fault, a plaintiff's recovery will be reduced in proportion to the amount of fault attributable to him or her [Daly v. General Motors Corp. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 725, 738, 144 Cal. Rptr. 380, 575 P.2d 1162 ; Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 824-825, 829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226] .

The doctrine of assumption of risk is divided into two categories: (1) primary assumption of risk (those instances in which the assumption of risk doctrine embodies a legal conclusion that there is "no duty" on the part of the defendant to protect the plaintiff from a particular risk; and (2) secondary assumption of risk (those instances in which the defendant does owe a duty of care to the plaintiff, but the plaintiff knowingly encounters a risk of injury caused by the defendant's breach of that duty). A plaintiff's recovery is completely barred in primary assumption of risk cases, but comparative fault principles apply in secondary assumption of risk cases [Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 308, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696 ; Wright v. Stang Mfg. Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1232-1233, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422 (defendants failed to establish primary assumption of risk as bar to strict products liability cause of action)].

The existence and scope of a defendant's duty of care in the context of primary assumption of risk is a legal question for the court [Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 313, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696 ; Ford v. Polaris Indus., Inc. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 755, 766, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215] .

Since the Knight v. Jewett decision, appellate courts have wrestled with the issue of whether primary assumption of risk applies in products liability cases. The first to address the issue was the Fourth Appellate District, Division One. In Milwaukee Elec. Tool Corp. v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 547, 550, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 24 , a drill manufacturer contended that the plaintiff's claim against it was barred by primary assumption of risk. The court disagreed. It pointed out that pursuant to Knight v. Jewett, primary assumption of risk embodies a legal conclusion that there is no duty on the part of a defendant to protect the plaintiff from a particular risk. Under products liability, in contrast, a manufacturer does owe a duty to produce detect-free products. Moreover, in using a defective product, the user does not intend to confront a risk that is inherent in its use. To the extent that the user does elect to use the product with knowledge of the danger posed by the defect, the user's actions are subsumed by comparative negligence. The manufacturer is not relieved of its duty to make a defect-free product. This makes the primary assumption of risk doctrine inapplicable [Milwaukee Elec. Tool Corp. v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 547, 551, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 24] .

The Third Appellate District adopted the reasoning of Milwaukee Elec. Tool Corp. and concluded that assumption of risk does not insulate equipment suppliers from liability for providing defective equipment. The court held that primary assumption of risk did not bar a products liability claim by an 11-year-old child who dived into an aboveground swimming pool [Bunch v. Hoffinger Indus., Inc. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1278, 1300-1301, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 780 ; see also Souza v. Squaw Valley Ski Corp. (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 262, 271, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 389] .

In Ford v. Polaris Indus., Inc. [(2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 755, 766, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215] , the First Appellate District analyzed the doctrine of primary assumption of risk in the context of a recreational equipment design defect case. The plaintiff in Ford sustained severe orifice injuries after falling off the rear of a personal watercraft. Finding the reasoning of Milwaukee Tool "instructive," the court found that primary assumption of risk did not foreclose plaintiff's strict products liability claim. The court acknowledged that the general risk of falling and coming into contact with water is inherent in jet skiing. However, it declined to find that the specific risks of sustaining orifice injuries are inherent in the sport. Orifice injuries and the conduct that causes them do not belong to the "fundamental nature or habit" of the sport. The court was unconvinced by defendant's argument that the nature of the sport and its inherent risks is defined by the industry standard. Cases cited by defendant did not support its proposition that primary assumption of risk will preclude a strict products liability design defect claim against a recreational equipment manufacturer simply because its equipment is "essentially the same" in design as that of other manufacturers [Ford v. Polaris Indus., Inc. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 755, 772-773, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215] . The defendant neglected to take into consideration a key principle of Knight: that the examination of duty under a primary assumption of risk inquiry takes into account a defendant's role in, or relationship to, the sport in question. Comparing the duty of sports venue proprietors and operators, where the asserted design defect is the failure to incorporate protection against a serious injury into recreational equipment, the court rephrased the manufacturer's duty to design nondefective products as a duty to take reasonable steps to minimize without altering the nature of the sport, at least under circumstances where the risk poses the gravest danger [Ford v. Polaris Indus., Inc. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 755, 772-773, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215] .

However, in Sanchez v. Hillerich & Bradsby Co. (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 703, 715, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 529 , the Second Appellate District, Division Four, found that a triable issue of fact existed as to whether primary assumption of risk applied to the case against an aluminum baseball batmanufacturer. The court found that the plaintiff presented sufficient evidence to establish that use of the aluminum bat significantly increased the inherent risk that a pitcher would be hit by a line drive. The court also held that if it is ultimately determined that primary assumption of risk does not apply, the issue then becomes one of secondary assumption of risk. The court did not discuss the interplay between products liability and assumption of risk.

For complete discussion of assumption of the risk generally, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsNegligenceDefensesAssumption of RiskGeneral OverviewTortsNegligenceDefensesComparative NegligenceCommon Law ConceptsGeneral OverviewTortsNegligenceDefensesComparative NegligenceCommon Law ConceptsAssumption of RiskTortsNegligenceDefensesContributory NegligenceGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict Liability

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Answers

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.54

§ 460.54 Burden of Proof

Evid. Code § 500 states that, except as otherwise provided by law, a party has the burden of proof as to each fact the existence or nonexistence of which is essential to the defense that he or she is asserting.

Evid. Code § 502 provides that the court on all proper occasions must instruct the jury as to which party bears the burden of proof on each issue and as to whether that burden requires that a party raise a reasonable doubt concerning the existence or nonexistence of a fact by a preponderance of the evidence, by clear and convincing proof, or by proof beyond a reasonable doubt.

Under these sections, defendant has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence any affirmative defense alleged in the answer.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
EvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofGeneral OverviewEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofAllocationTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Answers

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 460.55-460.69

[Reserved]

§§ 460.55[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Cross Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.70

§ 460.70 Right to Indemnity

[1] Express and Implied Indemnity

Indemnity is an obligation resting on one party (the indemnitor) to make good a loss or damage that another party (the indemnitee) has incurred [Rossmoor Sanitation, Inc. v. Pylon, Inc. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 622, 628, 119 Cal. Rptr. 449, 532 P.2d 97 ; see Civ. Code § 2772]. A right to indemnity may be expressly provided for by contract [see, e.g., Crawford v. Weather Shield Mfg., Inc. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 304, 330 (express contractual indemnity is defined in Civil Code § 2772); Jimenez v. Pacific W. Constr. Co. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 102, 229 Cal. Rptr. 575] ; it may be implied from a contract not specifically mentioning indemnity [see, e.g., Cahill Bros. Inc. v. Clementina Co. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 367, 375-379, 25 Cal. Rptr. 301] ; or, it may arise from the equities of particular circumstances [see, e.g., Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399] .

Express contractual indemnity operates to effect a complete shift of the loss from the indemnitee to the indemnitor [see Rodriguez v. McDonnellDouglas Corp. (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 626, 676, 151 Cal. Rptr. 399] . By contrast, implied equitable indemnity is based on principles of comparative fault. A concurrent tortfeasor is entitled to obtain partial indemnity from other concurrent tortfeasors for that part of a settlement or judgment paid to a tort plaintiff that exceeds the indemnitee's comparative share of liability to the plaintiff [American Motorcycle Assn. v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 598, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899] .

A defendant-indemnitee in an action for indemnity may seek apportionment of the loss on any theory that was available to the plaintiff on which the plaintiff would have been successful [Greystone Homes, Inc. v. Midtec, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1194, 1208-1209, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 196 ; GEM Developers v. Hallcraft Homes of San Diego, Inc. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 419, 430, 261 Cal. Rptr. 626] . Consequently, under principles of comparative equitable indemnity, the trier of fact may apportion liability not only among negligent parties, but also among tortfeasors, some of whose liability rests on California's strict liability products doctrine, and others whose liability rests in negligence [Safeway Stores, Inc. v. Nest-Kart (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 322, 325, 146 Cal. Rptr. 550, 579 P.2d 441] . Moreover, multiple tortfeasors who are subject to strict liability with respect to a consumer may seek comparative indemnity among themselves, according to the principles set forth in American Motorcycle Assn. v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1978) 20

Cal. 3d 578, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 . It is irrelevant that a tortfeasor from whom indemnity is sought is not actually joined in the underlying complaint as a co-defendant of the party seeking indemnity. The term "joint tortfeasor" as used in the comparative equitable indemnity context does not mean the defendants were "joined" as tortfeasors by the plaintiff; it is a broad term that includes joint, concurrent, and successive tortfeasors [GEM Developers v. Hallcraft Homes of San Diego, Inc. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 419, 431, 261 Cal. Rptr. 626] .

[2] Good Faith Settlement Bar

A claimant for indemnification may not avoid the bar to a claim pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(c) (good faith settlement bars joint tortfeasor from further claims against settling tortfeasor for comparative indemnity), by asserting that the claim is for "total indemnity," rather than partial indemnity on a comparative fault basis; there is no separate doctrine of "total indemnification" [Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 808-815, 815]. Rather, under California law there is a single "comparative indemnity" doctrine that permits partial indemnification on a comparative fault basis in appropriate cases, including the situation in which one party is 100 percent responsible and another 0 percent responsible [Far W. Fin. Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 808, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399] .

[3] Proposition 51: Fair Responsibility Act of 1986

[a] Statute Eliminated Joint Liability for Non-Economic Damages

The Fair Responsibility Act of 1986, often referred to as Proposition 51 [Civ. Code § 1431.2 et seq.], places restrictions on the joint and severalliability of tort defendants that are applicable in products liability actions for personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death based on comparative fault [Garcia v. Duro Dyne Corp. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 92, 103, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 100 ; Bostick v. Flex Equip. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 80, 89, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 28 ; Wilson v. John Crane, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 847, 851-852, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 240 ; see also Hackett v. John Crane, Inc. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1233, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662, 670 (when jury awards economic damages to injured plaintiff as well as loss of consortium damages to his or her spouse, and there are pre-verdict settlements embracing such damages, court must apply ratios established by verdict to apportion settlement amounts between economic and noneconomic damages)]. Proposition 51 applies prospectively to causes of actions that accrue after its effective date of June 4, 1986 [Evangelatos v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1188]. For this purpose, latent asbsestos-related diseases, such as mesothelioma, accrue when the plaintiff was diagnosed with the disease for which damages are being sought, or has otherwise discovered the asbestos-related illness [Buttram v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 520, 540] . Under Proposition 51, tort defendants are jointly liable only for a plaintiff's "economic" damages, and are only severally liable for "noneconomic" damages [Civ. Code § 1431.2(a), see Civ. Code § 1431.2(b) (definitions of "economic" and "noneconomic" damages); Wilson v. John Crane, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 847, 851-852, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 240] .

[b] Joint Liability When Injuries Are Caused Solely by Defective Product

Some courts have applied Proposition 51 to strict liability asbestos exposure cases where multiple products cause the plaintiff's injuries and the evidence provides a basis to allocate liability for noneconomic damages between defective products [Arena v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1178, 1198, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580 ; Wilson v. John Crane, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 847, 852, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 240 ; see Garcia v. Duro Dyne Corp. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 92, 103, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 100 (Arena did not apply because evidence did not show the percentage of harm caused by any specific product manufactured by defendant)].

At least two courts of appeal, however, have held that this does not mean that Proposition 51 applies to all strict liability causes of action. In the first case, Wimberly v. Derby Cycle Corp. [Wimberly v. Derby Cycle Corp. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 618, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 532], the plaintiff was injured when the fork assembly of his bicycle broke. He brought a strict products liability action against several entities, including the designer, manufacturer, and seller of the fork assembly. He settled with several of the defendants and proceeded to trial against the distributor only. The jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff. On appeal, the defendant contended that the court erred in refusing to apply Proposition 51 to require the jury the apportion fault among it and the other defendants in the chain of distribution.

The appellate court rejected this contention, ruling that Proposition 51 did not modify the common law rule that defendants in an action for strict products liability who are in the chain of distribution of the same defective product are jointly and severally liable for all of plaintiff's economic and noneconomic damages. In reaching its conclusion the court relied on prior case law holding that Proposition 51 does not relieve defendants whose liability was solely vicarious for all liability for noneconomic damages. Strict products liability is similar to vicarious liability, and to limit a defendant's responsibility in strict products liability cases for noneconomic damages to a proportionate share based on fault would defeat the policy reasons for adoption of the doctrine.

Ten years later, another court explicitly agreed with Wimberly. In Bostick v. Flex Equipment Co. [Bostick v. Flex Equipment Co. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 80, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 28], the plaintiff was injured while working out on weight-lifting equipment at a gym. He entered into a settlement with the gym for $7.3 million. In his product liability action against the equipment manufacturer, the jury awarded him $3.3 million in economic damages and $13 million in noneconomic damages. It apportioned 90 percent of the fault to the manufacturer, 10 percent to plaintiff, and zero percent to "other entities." The trial court concluded that the claimed liability common to the gym and the manufacturer was fully joint and several, and thus reduced plaintiff's award against the manufacturer by the full amount of his settlement with the gym. It entered judgment in favor of the gym on its cross-complaint against the manufacturer for equitable indemnity in the full amount of the settlement.

On appeal, the plaintiff contended that Proposition 51 applied, and the manufacturer was only severally liable for his noneconomic damages. He also contended that the court erred in setting off the full amount of his $7.3 million settlement with the gym, because the setoff should have been limited to that portion of the settlement attributable to economic damages only.

The appellate court held that the court did not err in reducing plaintiff's award by the full amount of his settlement with the gym. The plaintiff's injuries were caused by a single defective product, and the manufacturer was found liable under strict products liability. Thus, under Wimberly, Proposition 51 was not triggered by the facts of the case. To apportion noneconomic damages under Proposition 51 would be to reduce or potentially eliminate a plaintiff's recovery for noneconomic damages, thereby reallocating the risks and losses associated with the use of defective products and defeating the social justifications for strict products liability. Proposition 51 is not triggered in a strict products liability case where there is one defective product and all of the defendants are in the same chain of distribution. This is because Proposition 51 was intended to apply only when defendants' fault is comparable, and in a strict products liability case, there is no fault to compare [Bostick v. Flex Equip. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 80, 93, 95, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 28].

[c] Special Issues Relating to Allocation of Damages in Settlements

The enactment of Proposition 51 resulted in considerable litigation with respect to settlement credits. If a plaintiff has entered into pre-trial settlements with other parties, the defendant is entitled under Code Civ. Proc. 877 to a credit for amounts previously recovered from other parties for economic damages--for which it remains jointly liable--but not for noneconomic damages. To determine the setoff, the court must determine the amount of the settlement attributable to economic damages [Espinoza v. Machonga (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 268, 276-277, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 498 ; *see Pierson v. Ford Motor Co. (N.D. Cal. Aug. 18, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 79758, at *6-7] . Courts have found that allocation of settlement proceeds according to the proportions set forth in a pretrial settlement is inherently suspect, reflecting a bias against economic damages that is prejudicial to the nonsettling defendant. In other words, the plaintiff has an interest in allocating as little as possible of the settlement to economic damages, because the smaller the allocation to economic damages, the less the nonsettling defendant will be able to claim as a credit. The settling defendants have no incentive to oppose the plaintiff's allocation because they are entirely unaffected by it [Greathouse

v. Amcord, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 831, 840-841, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 561] . Therefore, if the court finds an absence of good faith, it may adjust the allocation set forth in a prior settlement to mirror the jury's apportionment of economic and noneconomic damages [Jones v. John Crane, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 990, 1008-1011, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144] .

In one case, the court of appeal made it clear that a trial court is not bound by allocations made in settlement agreements that have not received prior judicial approval. Instead, it is the court's task to determine whether there was a reasonable basis on which to justify those allocations, and the plaintiff bears the burden of presenting evidence that will enable the court to perform that task. Moreover, any allocation of settlement proceeds that will affect the ultimate credit that a nonsettling defendant will receive against any future judgment will not be given any presumptive effect unless it was the product of adverse negotiation [Jones v. John Crane, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 990, 1008-1011, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144] . In this particular case, the trial court did not allocate any portion of a prior settlement to potential wrongful death claims, despite a provision in the settlement agreement allocating 20 percent of the settlement proceeds to the release of such claims. It also allocated a lesser percentage of the proceeds to loss of consortium than that specified in the agreement. The court of appeal affirmed, holding that the court properly used the jury's verdict to allocate damage components as to which the jury made findings--that is, the loss of consortium claim. Nor did the trial court abuse its discretion in refusing to allocate any portion of the prior settlement proceeds to the potential wrongful death claims, because the record contained no basis for making such an allocation [Jones v. John Crane, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 990, 1008-1011, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144] .

[d] Proposition 51 and the Fault of Immune Nonparties

Proposition 51 applies to limit a defendant's liability for noneconomic damages by the comparative fault of all those responsible for the plaintiff's injuries, not merely the fault of the defendants who are parties to the action. Thus, an award of noneconomic damages against a manufacturer was properly reduced by the amount attributable to the fault of plaintiff's employer, which was immune from liability under the workers' compensation system [DaFonte v. Up-Right, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 593, 600, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238, 828 P.2d 140] . A court properly allowed the fault of the Navy to be taken into account in allocating responsibility for plaintiff's injuries in an action against an asbestos manufacturer, even if the Navy was immune under the Feres/Stencel rule [Taylor v. John Crane Inc. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1063, 1068, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 695] . However, the statute that previously immunized cigarette manufacturers from liability [Civ. Code § 1714.45, since amended] did not permit apportioning liability under Proposition 51 to cigarette manufacturers. This is because the tobacco immunity statute did not merely confer immunity from liability for tortious conduct; it constituted a legislative determination that a company supplying tobacco did not engage in tortious conduct [Richards v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 985, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 103, 928 P.2d 1181] . When the operator of the jet ski on which plaintiff was injured prevailed on summary judgment based on primary assumption of risk, the manufacturer was not entitled to a verdict form that would have permitted the jury to allocate some fault to her under Civ. Code § 1431.2(a). The case was controlled by Richards v. Owens-Illinois, Inc., not DaFonte. Because the operator breached no duty and committed no tort, there was no legal fault to apportion to her [Ford v. Polaris Indus., Inc. [(2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 755, 777-778, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215] .

For further discussion of indemnity, including Proposition 51, see Chapter 300, Indemnity and Contribution , and Levy, Golden & Sacks, California Torts, Ch. 74 (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsCross-ComplaintsTortsNegligenceDefensesComparative NegligenceMultiple PartiesIndemnityTortsProcedureMultiple DefendantsIndemnityGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureSettlementsMultipartiesIndemnityTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Cross Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.71

§ 460.71 Cross Complaint

[1] Setting Forth Cause of Action

A party against whom a cause of action has been asserted in a complaint or cross complaint may file a cross complaint setting forth any cause of action he, she, or it has against a person alleged to be liable thereon, whether or not such person is already a party to the action, if the cause of action asserted in the cross complaint arises out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences as the cause brought against the cross complainant [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10(b)]. In such a case, the cross complainant may join any person as a cross complainant or cross defendant, whether or not such person is already a party to the action, if, had the cross complaint been filed as an independent action, the joinder of that party would have been permitted by the statutes governing joinder of parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.20; on joinder of parties, see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 378, 379, 389], and the cross complainant may unite with the cause of action asserted in the cross complaint any other causes of action he, she, or it has against any of the cross defendants, whether or not such cross defendant is already a party to the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.30].

For forms and discussion of cross complaints, see Ch. 395, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

[2] Declaratory Relief

A cross complaint for declaratory relief in a pending action is expressly authorized by statute [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(7)(A), 1060]. A cross complaint alleging a direct right to indemnity rather than for a declaration of that right would be improper since the defendant-cross complainant has sustained no damages, an essential element of the cause of action for indemnity [see Civ. Code § 2778], until a judgment in favor of plaintiff has been entered against him, her, or it.

[3] Separate Document Requirement

The cross complaint must be a separate document [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.40]. That is, it may not be set forth as part of the answer or in the same document as another pleading.

[4] Time to File

A party "shall" file a cross complaint against any of the parties who filed the complaint or cross complaint against him or her before or at the same time as the answer to the complaint or cross complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(a)]. Any other cross complaint may be filed at any time before the court has set a date for trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(b)]. A party must obtain leave of court to file any cross complaint except one filed within the time specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(a) or (b), and leave may be granted in the interest of justice at any time during the course of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.50(c)]. Leave of court is obtained by noticed motion.For the requirements concerning and a discussion of noticed motion proceedings, see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1003-1011, 1013-1016 and Ch. 372, Motions and Orders.

[5] Service

If the cross complaint is against a party who has not appeared in the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1014 and Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal, regarding what constitutes an appearance], a summons on the cross complaint must be issued and served on the cross defendant in the same manner as on commencement of an original action [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60(1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10 et seq.; and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers, regarding issuance and service of summons]. In addition to a summons [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60(1)], a cross complainant must serve a copy of the most recently amended complaint and any answers on cross defendants who have not previously appeared [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.222].

If the cross complaint is against a party who has appeared in the action, the cross complaint must be served on that party's attorney, or on the party, if a natural person, who has appeared in the action without an attorney, either in the manner provided for service of summons or in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq., relating to service of notices [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60(2); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 465].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsCross-ComplaintsTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Cross Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.72

§ 460.72 Special Answer

The cross defendant, at the time he, she, or it files an answer to the cross complaint, may file as a separate document a special answer alleging against the person asserting the claim against the cross complainant (i.e., the plaintiff or another cross complainant) any defenses the cross complainant may have on the cause of action for which indemnity is sought. The special answer must be served on both the cross complainant and such other person [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.70; for the requirements concerning the manner of serving the answer, see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 465, 1011, 1013-1015].

For forms and discussion of answers, see Ch. 26, Answers .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsAnswersCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsCross-ComplaintsTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Cross Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 460.73-460.79

[Reserved]

§§ 460.73[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Contribution

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.80

§ 460.80 Right of Contribution

A right of contribution exists among two or more defendants in a tort action where a money judgment is rendered jointly against them [Code Civ. Proc. § 875(a)]. The right is administered in accordance with equitableprinciples [Code Civ. Proc. § 875(b)] but can be enforced only after one tortfeasor has, by payment, discharged the joint judgment or paid more than his, her, or its pro rata share. Contribution is limited to the excess paid over the pro rata share of the person paying, and in no event may a tortfeasor be compelled to make contribution beyond his, her, or its pro rata share of the entire judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 875(c)]. A tortfeasor who intentionally injured the injured person, however, has no right to contribution [Code Civ. Proc. § 875(d)].

A liability insurer which by payment has discharged the liability of a tortfeasor judgment debtor is subrogated to that judgment debtor's right of contribution [Code Civ. Proc. § 875(e)].

Nothing in the law governing contribution [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 875-880] impairs any right of indemnity under existing law [for a discussion of indemnity, see § 460.70], and where one tortfeasor judgment debtor is entitled to indemnity from another there is no right of contribution between them [Code Civ. Proc. § 875(f); see also § 460.210]. Nor does the law of contribution impair the plaintiff's right to satisfy a judgment in full as against any of the tortfeasor judgment debtors [Code Civ. Proc. § 875(g)].

For a discussion of the effect on the liability of joint tortfeasors of a release, dismissal, or covenant not to sue given to one or more of them before verdict or judgment, see Code Civ. Proc. § 877. For a discussion of the effect of a covenant not to sue given after judgment, see Thomas v. General Motors Corp. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 81, 85-86, 91 Cal. Rptr. 301 .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureSettlementsGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureMultiple DefendantsContributionGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral

Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Contribution

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.81

§ 460.81 Apportionment of Loss

Where two or more persons are held strictly liable in tort to a plaintiff, the question arises as to how the loss is to be apportioned. If a right to indemnity exists and the party entitled to be indemnified has filed a cross complaint for a declaration of that right, the court may proceed to adjudicate that issue [see § 460.70]. If the right to indemnity does not exist, however, the rule of contribution obtains among parties held jointly and severally liable and the loss is distributed equally between or among them [Pearson Ford Co. v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 269, 271, 78 Cal. Rptr. 279] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsCross-ComplaintsTortsProcedureSettlementsMultipartiesContributionTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Contribution

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.82

§ 460.82 Determination of Pro Rata Share

The pro rata share of each tortfeasor judgment debtor is determined by dividing the entire judgment equally among all of the judgment debtors [Code Civ. Proc. § 876(a)]. But where a person is held liable solely for the tort of another of the judgment debtors, as in the case of the liability of an employer for the tort of an employee, the two are required to contribute only a single pro rata share, as to which there may be indemnity between them [see Code Civ. Proc. § 876(b)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Contribution

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.83

§ 460.83 Indemnity Distinguished

By indemnity one seeks to transfer the entire loss imposed on him, her, or it to another who in justice and equity should bear it, whereas by contribution the loss is distributed equally among all those held liable, each bearing his, her, or its pro rata share [see Herrero v. Atkinson (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 69, 73, 38 Cal. Rptr. 490 ; see also Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Contribution

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.84

§ 460.84 Procedure

A judgment for contribution [see § 460.212] is obtained by noticed motion. The notice of motion [see § 460.210] must be given to all parties to the action, including the plaintiff(s), at least 10 days before the hearing on the motion and must be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [see § 460.211], setting forth any information the moving party may have as to the assets of defendants available for satisfaction of the judgment or claim for contribution [Code Civ. Proc. § 878].

For further discussion and alternative forms, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Contribution

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 460.85-460.99

[Reserved]

§§ 460.85[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.100

§ 460.100 Related Matthew Bender Publications

For discussion and forms relating to demurrers and motions for judgment on the pleadings, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings

For discussion and forms relating to indemnity and contribution, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 115, Indemnity and Contribution

For discussion and forms relating to the statute of limitations, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 143, Limitation of Actions

For discussion and forms relating to products liability, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 190, Products Liability

For discussion and forms relating to sureties, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 222, Suretyship

Cotchett and Cartwright, California Products Liability Actions

Frumer and Friedman, Products Liability

Vargo, Products Liability Practice Guide

Long, Law of Liability Insurance, Ch. 11

Personal Injury: Actions, Defenses, Damages, Vol. 23, Products Liability

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Civil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsJudgment on the PleadingsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureMultiple DefendantsContributionGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureSettlementsMultipartiesContributionTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.101

§ 460.101 State Constitution

Legal rate of interest as seven percent. Cal. Const. art. XX, § 22

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsJudgment on the PleadingsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureMultiple DefendantsContributionGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureSettlementsMultipartiesContributionTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.102

§ 460.102 State Statutes

[1] Adulterated Candy

Regulation of candy to ensure that it is not adulterated (does not contain lead in excess of the naturally occurring levels). Health & Safety Code § 110552

[2] Affirmative Defenses

Affirmative defenses as deemed denied by plaintiff without replication. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.20(b)

Affirmative defenses generally. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)

Affirmative defenses as required to be separately stated and to refer to cause of action they are intended to answer. Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)

[3] Answers

Answers. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 422.10, 422.30, 422.40, 431.20, 431.30

[4] Borrowing Statute

Limitation laws of other states, effect of. Code Civ. Proc. § 361

[5] Bunk Bed Safety

Commercial users prohibited from manufacturing, retrofitting, selling, contracting to sell or resell, leasing, subletting, or otherwise placing in stream of commerce any bunk bed that is unsafe for any child user.

[6] Cigarette Fire Safety

Prohibition of sale of cigarettes unless manufacturer certifies that they have been tested in accordance with standards, and imposition of liability on manufacturers, distributors, wholesalers, retailers, and others who knowingly sell cigarettes in violation of statutory provisions. Health & Safety Code 14950 (effective January 1, 2007)

[7] Construction Defects

Requirements for actions for construction defects in real or immovable property. Civ. Code § 895 et seq.

[8] Contribution

[a] General Rule

Contribution among joint tortfeasors. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 875-880

Contribution, right of and enforceability of only after one tortfeasor has, by payment, discharged joint judgment or has paid more than his, her, or its pro rata share of it and as limited to excess so paid over pro rata share of person so paying. Code Civ. Proc. § 875

Determination of pro rata share. Code Civ. Proc. § 876

Effect of release, dismissal, or covenant not to sue. Code Civ. Proc. § 877

Notice of motion for judgment for contribution; affidavit setting forth any information moving party may have as to assets of defendant available for satisfaction of judgment or claim for contribution as required to accompany notice of motion for entry of judgment for contribution. Code Civ. Proc. § 878

[b] Judgment

Costs after judgment. Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010 et seq.

Entry of judgment for contribution on motion. Code Civ. Proc. § 878

Interest. Civ. Code § 3287

Judgment as ineffectual until entered. Code Civ. Proc. § 664

Judgment defined. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 577, 578

[9] Cosmetics Safety

Manufacturers must provide list of its FDA-regulated cosmetics that contain any chemical identified as causing cancer or reproductive toxicity. Health & Safety Code § 111791 (effective January 1, 2007)

[10] Cross Complaints

Cross complaint for declaratory relief. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(7)(A), 1060

Cross complaint as a pleading. Code Civ. Proc. § 422.10

Format for cross complaints. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 422.20, 422.30

Compulsory cross complaints. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 426.10-426.70

Permissive cross complaints. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 428.10-428.80

[11] Damages

Damages are measure of detriment or injury in terms of money. Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282

Exemplary or punitive damages. Civ. Code § 3294

75 percent of any punitive damages awarded by final judgment must be deposited in state fund, to be appropriated for public purposes. Civ. Code § 3294.5 (effective August 16, 2004, and only in effect until July 1, 2006, unless extended by subsequent legislation)

Damages for breach of obligation not arising from contract. Civ. Code § 3333

Party who has, by own statement or conduct, intentionally and deliberately led another to believe particular thing to be true and to act on such belief is not allowed in any litigation arising out of such statement or conduct to contradict it. Evid. Code § 623

[12] Declarations

Declaration under penalty of perjury. Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5

[13] Demurrers

Demurrer to complaint. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10, 430.30-430.80

Demurrer to answer. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20-430.70

[14] Design Defect--Firearms and Ammunition

Design, distribution, or marketing of firearms and ammunition is not exempt from duty to use ordinary care and skill. Cal. Civ. Code § 1714(a)

[15] Duty Not to Injure

Duty of every person to abstain from injuring person or property of another or infringing on any of his or her rights.

Civ. Code § 1708

[16] Employment Safety Laws

California employment safety laws pursuant to Lab. Code § 6300 et seq., or orders promulgated under those laws, as inapplicable in any fashion to, as not to be considered in, and as not admissible into evidence in, any personal injury or death action except between employee and his or her employer. Lab. Code §§ 6304, 6304.5

[17] Evidence and Proof

Burden of proof. Evid. Code §§ 500, 502

Party claiming that person did not exercise requisite degree of care as having burden of proof on that issue. Evid. Code § 521

Evidence by party contradicting his or her own statement or conduct that intentionally and deliberately misled another as not permitted. Evid. Code § 623

Presumptions and inferences. Evid. Code §§ 600-669

[18] Failure to Warn

Criminal liability of corporations, limited liability companies, and certain corporate managers for failure to report and failure to warn of serious concealed dangers of products or business practices. Penal Code § 387

[19] Fraud

Elements of actionable fraud. Civ. Code § 1710

Fraud on public or class as fraud on individual. Civ. Code § 1711

[20] Indemnity

Indemnity contracts generally. Civ. Code §§ 2772-2784.5

Indemnity contracts for design defects. Civ. Code §§ 2782-2784

Jurisdiction of actions for declaratory relief as to right to indemnity asserted by cross complaint. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(7)(A), 1060

[21] Joinder

Joinder of parties. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 378, 379, 382, 389

Joinder of actions. Code Civ. Proc. § 427.10

[22] Liability

Proposition 51: Joint and several liability. Civ. Code § 1431.2

Liability for negligence or tort. Civ. Code § 1714

[23] Motions

Motions and orders. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1003-1008

Motion as deemed made on serving and filing notice. Code Civ. Proc. § 1005.5

Notices of motion. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1011, 1013-1020

[24] Statute of Limitations

Action to recover damages for injury to real property as required to be commenced within three years. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 337.1, 337.15, 338(b)

Action to recover damages for injury to personal property as required to be commenced within three years. Code Civ. Proc. § 338(c)

Action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death as required to be commenced within two years. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 335.1; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (one-year period)

Actions for injury or illness caused by exposure to asbestos as required to be commenced within one year from date of disability or date plaintiff knew or should have known that disability was caused by exposure to asbestos, whichever is later. Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2

Statute of limitations for action by minor for injury suffered prior to birth or at birth. Code Civ. Proc. § 340.4; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5 (time limits for medical malpractice actions brought on behalf of minors)

Statute of limitations for professional negligence of health care provider. Code Civ. Proc. § 340.5

Discovery rule for wrongful death actions based on exposure to hazardous materials or toxic substances. Code Civ. Proc. § 340.8

Pleading statute of limitations in bar. Code Civ. Proc. § 458

Separate trial of defense of statute of limitations. Code Civ. Proc. § 597

[25] Summary Judgment

Summary judgment. Code Civ. Proc. § 437c

In personal injury or property damage case, defendants as precluded from referring at trial to fault, absence from action, or involvement of defendant whose motion for summary judgment has been granted on ground that defendant was without fault. Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(k)

[26] Transplants

Collection, processing, storage, or distribution of tissue for purpose of transplantation as service, and therefore as not subject to Com. Code § 2101 (regarding sales). Health & Safety Code § 1635.2

[27] Unsafe Products

Inherently unsafe products. Civ. Code § 1714.45

[28] Vaccines

Development of AIDS vaccine. Health & Safety Code §§ 121250-121275

Compensation by victims' fund to person injured by AIDS vaccine; procedures for application and review. Health & Safety Code § 121270

[29] Warranty

Construction of warranties. Com. Code § 2317

Express warranties. Com. Code § 2313

Implied warranties. Com. Code §§ 2314, 2315

Modification or exclusion of warranties. Com. Code § 2316

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsProcedureMultiple DefendantsContributionGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureMultiple DefendantsIndemnityContractual IndemnityTortsProcedureSettlementsMultipartiesContributionTortsProcedureStatutes of LimitationsAccrual of ActionsDiscovery RuleTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.103

§ 460.103 California Rules of Court

Form and format of papers presented for filing in the trial courts. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.100-2.119 (reorganized and effective Jan. 1, 2007).

Standards for judicial management of complex litigation. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.400 et. seq. (reorganized and effective Jan. 1, 2007)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsJudgment on the PleadingsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureMultiple DefendantsContributionGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureSettlementsMultipartiesContributionTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.104

§ 460.104 Decisions

[1] Accrual of Cause of Action

Court certified questions asking whether (1) two separate physical injuries arising out of the same wrongdoing may be conceived of as invading two different primary rights, and (2) whether two separate physical injuries--both caused by a plaintiff's use of tobacco--may be considered "qualitatively different" for purpose of determining when the statute of limitations begins to run. Pooshs v. Phillip Morris USA, Inc. (9th Cir. 2009) 561 F.3d 964, 967-968

Claims were not time-barred under the discovery rule in absence of any suggestion when plaintiff should have suspected that his use of Prednisone caused his hip injury. *Gilbert v. Watson Labs., Inc. (S.D. Cal. Oct. 9, 2008) 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 79539, at 5

Claims of injury or damage caused by addiction were time-barred under Grisham v. Philip Morris, Inc. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 623, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735, 151 P.3d 1151 , even though plaintiff, who was diagnosed with COPD in 1989, did not specifically claim addiction as injury. "First-injury" rule barred her physical injury claims. *Pooshs v. Phillip Morris USA, Inc. (N.D. Cal. May 27, 2008), 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 43620, at 42

Discovery rule only delayed accrual of cause of action until prisoner suspected that someone had done something wrong to him, not until he suspected that Paxil was a "direct cause" of his violent behavior. *Howard v. Glaxosmithkline (E.D. Cal. Dec. 16, 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 33317, at 6

The court found no basis for a conclusive presumption that a particular smoker was or should have been aware in 1988 that cigarettes were addictive. The court also rejected a special presumption based on common knowledge that plaintiffs are aware that smoking is addictive or harmful. The court did acknowledge a general, rebuttable presumption that plaintiffs have knowledge of the wrongful cause of their injuries. The court specifically rejected Soliman v. Philip Morris Inc. (9th Cir. 2002) 311 F.3d 966 to the extent that it held that such a special presumption exists. Grisham v. Philip Morris U.S.A., Inc. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 623, 640-646, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735, 151 P.3d 1151

Under delayed discovery rule, cause of action accrues and statute of limitations begins to run when plaintiff has reason to suspect injury and some wrongful cause, unless plaintiff pleads and proves that reasonable investigation at that time would not have revealed factual basis for that particular cause of action, in which case, statute of limitations is tolled until reasonable investigation would have revealed its factual basis; to rely on rule, plaintiff must specifically plead facts to show time and manner of discovery and inability to have made earlier discovery despite reasonable diligence. Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 797, 814-815, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 110 P.3d 914

Limitations period commences when plaintiff has "reason to suspect" a factual basis for a cause of action. A plaintiff has reason to suspect when he or she has notice or information of circumstances to put a reasonable person on inquiry; plaintiffs suspected, for more than a year before they filed complaint, wrongdoing by someone and that someone was to blame for their daughter's death, putting them on notice of a potential claim; because plaintiffs delayed in filing their claim, drug manufacturer was entitled to summary judgment. Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 398, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P.2d 79

One-year statute of limitations for market-share theory action (Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3)) as starting to run when injured party suspected that defendants' conduct was wrongful, and not after filing of decision of California Supreme Court case allowing previously impermissible cause of action; change in law, either by statute or by case law, as not reviving claims otherwise barred by statute of limitations. Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1112-1116, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923

Plaintiff's duty to investigate does not begin until plaintiff actually has reason to investigate. Suspicion necessary to trigger statute of limitations may not be imputed to a plaintiff. Information given to general public through media coverage about dangers of Redux did not trigger statute of limitations. Plaintiff had no duty to read newspapers and watch television news and otherwise seek out news of drug's dangerous side effects. Nelson v. Indevus Pharms., Inc. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1211, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 668

Economic loss alone, without physical injury, does not constitute the type of "damage" that will cause a negligence or strict liability cause of action to accrue. Municipalities' allegations that deteriorating lead paint contaminated their property did not include any allegations of physical injury. Their causes of action thus never accrued. County of Santa Clara v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 292, 318, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 313 , review denied, 2006 Cal. LEXIS 7622

Defendant was properly granted summary judgment on statute of limitations grounds. Plaintiff's being informed by physicians that he was suffering from serious condition and being asked to provide list of all chemicals he came into contact with and to stay away from solvent was sufficient to arouse suspicion and lead to further investigation. Moreover, fact that plaintiff filed workers' compensation claim based on exposure to toxic chemicals was definitive proof that he had suspicion that "someone had some something wrong to [him]." Rivas v. Safety-Kleen Corp. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 218, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 503, 511

If there exists some triable issue of fact about when plaintiff was placed on notice, then, as a matter of law, it cannot be determined when statute of limitations begins to run and summary judgment for defendant is improper. Clark v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1060, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223

In tort actions, statute of limitations generally commences when last element essential to cause of action occurs. Physical injury resulting from asbestos contamination, not mere presence of asbestos, must have occurred before cause of action for strict liability or negligence can accrue in asbestos-in-building cases and limitations period commence. San Francisco Unified Sch. Dist. v. W.R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1330, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305 (disagreeing with City of San Diego v. U.S. Gypsum Co. (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 575, 590, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 876)

Cause of action accrues for statute of limitations purposes when plaintiff had notice or information of circumstances that would put reasonable person on inquiry. Goldrich v. Natural Y Surgical Specialties, Inc. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th

772, 779, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162

Court applied the discovery rule to medical malpractice cause of action and products liability cause of action using what later courts called "Basic Approach." As a matter of law, plaintiff should have suspected that manufacturer of her IUD wronged her by supplying defective product, and her doctor wronged her by prescribing it. Rose v. Fife (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 760, 771, 255 Cal. Rptr. 440

In drug product liability action, when manifestation of injury, cause of injury, and person's knowledge of wrongdoing by manufacturer occur at differenttimes, statute of limitations as beginning to run when person discovers, or with reasonable diligence should have discovered, wrongful conduct of manufacturer; whether plaintiff was reasonably diligent in discovering wrongful conduct of drug manufacturer as question of fact. Kensinger v. Abbott Labs. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 376, 385-386, 217 Cal. Rptr. 313

Statute of limitations for action based on injury from asbestos exposure (Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2) as not beginning to run until disability under Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2(b) exists, even when plaintiff knows of injury caused by asbestos exposure. Blakey v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 101, 106-107, 200 Cal. Rptr. 52

First prerequisite for running of statute of limitations as existence of cause of action, and trial court as improperly granting summary judgment when record did not show without substantial conflict that plaintiff would have had case had he sued two decades previously on minor possible side effects of drug; miscarriage of justice as existing if trial court did not allow plaintiff to proceed on theory that his cataracts were caused by drug even if action was filed years after he knew or should known that he had suffered some injuries from drug. Martinez-Ferrer v. Richardson-Merrell, Inc. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 316, 321-322, 327, 164 Cal. Rptr. 591

In negligence or strict liability action, in case of latent or progressive disorder, discovery as appropriate test for determining accrual of cause of action; diagnosis that is meant to be essence of discovery as required to be "informed diagnosis," requiring brief explanation of findings and prognosis by examining physician; when physical manifestations have not occurred, discovery as required to mean reasonable knowledge that they are likely to occur. Velasquez v. Fibreboard Prod. Corp. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 881, 887, 888-889, 159 Cal. Rptr. 113 (plaintiff learned of asbestosis disease before knowingly suffering its severe effects; see Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2)

To prove tolling of statute of limitations due to defendant's fraudulent misrepresentations and concealment of material facts of defect in design, plaintiff as required to plead and prove (1) when fraud was discovered; (2) circumstances under which fraud was discovered; and (3) that plaintiffs were not at fault for failure to discover fraudulent concealment, and did not have actual or presumptive knowledge of facts sufficient to put them on inquiry. Baker v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 321, 327, 157 Cal. Rptr. 779

Generally, personal-injury claim as accruing and period of limitation as commencing when wrongful act takes place; exception as presented when pathological effect occurs without perceptible trauma and victim is "blamelessly ignorant" of cause of injury; in that case, statute of limitations as not beginning to run until person knows or, by exercise of reasonable diligence, should have discovered cause of injury. G. D. Searle & Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 22, 25, 122 Cal. Rptr. 218 ; see Pereira v. Dow Chem. Co. (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 865, 873-875, 181 Cal. Rptr. 364 (record did not justify, as a matter of law, conclusion that plaintiffs acted unreasonably or without due diligence in pursuit of their claims)

Cause of action as generally arising when wrongful act is committed and not at time of discovery; statute of limitations as commencing to run eventhough plaintiff is ignorant of having cause of action; exceptions. Avner v. Longridge Estates (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 607, 616, 77 Cal. Rptr. 633

[2] Agency

Question of agency as inconsequential under rule of strict liability in tort but as still crucial as to cause of action for breach of express warranty. Grinnell v. Charles Pfizer & Co. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 424, 439 n. 12, 79 Cal. Rptr. 369

[3] Alteration in Product After Sale

Jury's finding for manufacturer of product as proper where evidence showed that product was altered by plaintiff's employer, that alteration was not sanctioned by manufacturer, and that alteration could have caused breakdown in product resulting in plaintiff's injury. Martinez v. Nichols Conveyor & Eng'g Co., Inc. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 795, 799, 52 Cal. Rptr. 842 (paper baler altered to utilize upstroke of piston to unload completed bale from machine and bale ejector could have caused fracturing of bolt which allowed 800 pound platen on baler to fall on pla plaintiff's arm resulting in serious injuries; case criticized on another point in Warner Constr. Corp. v. Los Angeles (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 285, 298-299 n.15, 85 Cal. Rptr. 444, 466 P.2d 996)

For doctrine of strict liability to apply, Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A as requiring that product be one which "is expected to and does reach user or consumer without substantial change in the condition in which it is sold," which requirement is explanatory of requirement of Greenman rule that product be one which seller knows "is to be used without inspection for defects." Putensen v. Clay Adams, Inc. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1062, 1073, 91 Cal. Rptr. 319 (applicability of doctrine against manufacturer of allegedly defective surgical tubing as not established where tubing after purchase had been stretched, soaked, and drawn over another tubing by doctor or under his direction in preparing it for heart catheterization procedure and evidence adduced by plaintiff did not afford reasonable basis for conclusion that it is more probable that "kinking" in tubing was caused by manufacturer than that it was not)

Liability of manufacturer where purchaser's change in design of product, which change cause injury, was foreseeable. Thomas v. General Motors Corp. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 81, 89, 91 Cal. Rptr. 301 (washing machine from which bead holding glass in place in lid had been removed after sale to laundromat owner)

[4] Alternative Theories of Recovery

Finding of negligent failure to warn was "logically and legally inconsistent" with jury's finding that boilers were not defective with respect to their warnings. Oxford v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 700, 720, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418

Finding by one jury that defendant's product was not defective because of failure to warn precluded second jury from finding that defendant was negligent for failure to warn of risks of its product. Valentine v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (1999) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1467, 1482, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 252

In personal injury action alleging in one cause of action, negligent design and construction of swimming pool as proximate causes of injuries sustained by plaintiff when he dove into pool and struck his head on bottom, and, in second cause of action mixed theory of breach of warranty and liability predicated on strict liability in tort, plaintiff as having burden of proving defendant's negligence on first cause of action and existence of defect on second cause of action. Barnes v. Blue Haven Pools (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 123, 127, 81 Cal. Rptr. 444 , superseded by statute on other grounds as stated in Union Bank v. Superior Court (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 573

[5] Appeal

Execution (by guardian ad litem on behalf of minor plaintiff with court approval) after judgment of covenant not to sue one defendant (laundromat owner) against whom judgment in strict-liability action (for defectively designed washing machine) was entered and another defendant (washing-machine dealer) in favor of whom judgment was entered against plaintiff as not estopping plaintiff from prosecuting appeal from judgment in favor of other two defendants (washing-machine manufacturer and company formed for purpose of selling manufacturer's washers); covenant not to sue one of several joint tortfeasors (as distinguished from release) as not operating as release of others; covenant not to sue after judgment as governed by law apart from Code Civ. Proc. § 877, which applies only to releases, covenants not to sue, and dismissals executed or entered before verdict or judgment. Thomas v. General Motors Corp. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 81, 85-86, 91 Cal. Rptr. 301

Claim that doctrine of strict liability should have been applied against defendant furniture retailer in personal injury action, resulting from collapse of chair on sales floor of defendant's store when plaintiff sat on it, pleaded and tried on negligence theory as not subject to being considered on appeal if doctrine was not raised in trial court. Andrews v. Barker Bros. Corp. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 530, 539, 73 Cal. Rptr. 284

[6] Applicability of Strict Liability Doctrine

[a] Against Bailors and Lessor of Personal Property

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applicable to bailors and lessors of personal property in business of letting such property as well as to manufacturers. Price v. Shell Oil Co. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 245, 253, 85 Cal. Rptr. 178, 466 P.2d 722 ; McClaflin v. Bayshore Equip. Rental Co. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 446, 452, 79 Cal. Rptr. 337

[b] Against Employer

Although workers' compensation law bars employee's action at law for injury arising out of and in course of employment when conditions of workers' compensation exist, and even though Lab. Code § 4553 was designed to penalize intentional misconduct of employer, cause of action as permitted for aggravation of disease because of employer's fraudulent concealment of condition and its cause. Johns-Manville Prods. Corp. v. Superior Court (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 465 (plaintiff developed asbestos-related diseases as result of exposure while working for defendant)

Dual capacity doctrine, by which employer may be liable for worker's compensation benefits and strict products liability damages, as not applying to employer who merely makes design changes in standard product used inemployer's business and not sold to public by employer. Bonus-Bilt v. United Grocers, Ltd. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 429, 440, 186 Cal. Rptr. 357

[b.1] Against Hotel Proprietors

Neither landlords nor hotel proprietors are subject to strict products liability for injuries to tenants and guests caused by defect in premises; unlike retailers, landlords and hotel owners often are unable to exert pressure on manufacturers to make products safer and cannot share costs of insuring tenants' or guests' safety with manufacturer; landlords and hotel owners cannot be expected to possess expert knowledge concerning components that comprise leased dwellings. Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1189-1209, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905 , overruling Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116

[c] Against Lessors of Real Property

Peterson, holding that landlord is not strictly liable for injuries to tenant caused by latent defects, is retroactively applicable. McCarthy v. Martinson (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 632, 639-640, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 149 ; see Peterson v.

Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836

Doctrine of strict liability in tort does not apply to lessor of real property. Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1204, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905 overruling Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116

[d] Against Licensors of Chattels

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applicable to licensors of chattels; hence, licensor (owner of launderette) as strictly liable in tort to licensee (minor) using chattel (washing machine) on premises in manner in which it was intended to be used (to wash clothes), who was injured as proximate result of defect in chattel (lack of safety device). Garcia v. Halsett (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 319, 324-326, 82 Cal. Rptr. 420 ; see also Thomas v. General Motors Corp. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 81, 89, 91 Cal. Rptr. 301

[e] Against Manufacturers

[i] Manufacturers of Lots

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applicable to manufacturer of a lot (by cutting, filling, grading, compacting, and the like of the lot) for damages suffered by owner as proximate result of defects in manufacturing process. Avner v. Longridge Estates (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 607, 615, 77 Cal. Rptr. 633

[ii] Manufacturers of Products and Component Parts

See also § 460.104[24][n], below, "Supplier of Nondefective Component."

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applicable to manufacturer of defective product. Greenman v. Yuba Power Prods., Inc. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 57, 62, 27 Cal. Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897

Plaintiff could not establish that a defect in component parts caused injury in absence of evidence that defendant supplied the asbestos-containing gaskets used in its valves. Fact that use of asbestos-containing material with the valves was foreseeable was irrelevant. Merrill v. Leslie Controls, Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 262, 277-278, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614

Fact that defendants manufactured their equipment pursuant to Navy specifications did not deprive them of the component parts defense. Moreover, the alleged foreseeability of risk of finished product was irrelevant to issue of component part manufacturers' liability. Taylor v. Elliott Turbomachinery Co. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 564, 584-586, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 414

Because the defendant did not show that its component part (airbag module) did not contain a defect, it was subject to strict liability under the risk-benefit test. Gonzalez v. Autoliv ASP, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 780, 790, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908, 914-917

Component parts doctrine did not apply to grinders, sanders, and saws specifically designed to be used with abrasive wheels. Tellez-Cordova v. Campbell-Hausfeld/Scott Fetzger Co. (2004) 129 Cal. App. 4th 577, 581, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 744

Manufacturers and successor manufacturers of general aviation aircraft parts in relation to duty to warn and federal preemption. Burroughs v. Precision Airmotive Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 681, 702

Component part manufacturer who participates in and is responsible for testing durability of component part after installation in finished product as liable for design defect. Springmeyer v. Ford Motor Co. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1541, 1552-1553, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 190

Doctrine of strict liability as not applying to defendant manufacturer sued only for economic losses, defined as damages for loss based on inadequate value, costs of repair, and replacement of defective product or consequent loss of profits without any claim of personal injury or damage to other property. Fieldstone Co. v. Briggs Plumbing Prods., Inc. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 357, 364-366, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701

Manufacturer of fiberglass mold, used to produce jeep top that was sold as after-market product, as subject to strict liability for injuries caused by defect in top, by virtue of defendant's participation in overall production enterprise. Fortman v. Hemco, Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 241, 251-255, 259 Cal. Rptr. 311

Statutory scheme requiring immunization for all school-age children against communicable childhood diseases (Health & Safety Code §§ 3380-3390) as not extending grant of immunity from liability for negligence or strict liability in tort to manufacturers of vaccine. Flood v. Wyeth Labs., Inc. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1272, 1275-1277, 228 Cal. Rptr. 700

Health & Safety Code § 429.36, providing that no person shall be liable for injury caused by act or omission in administration of vaccine or other immunizing agent to a minor, including residual effects of vaccine or immunizing agent, if such immunization is required by state law and act or omission does not constitute willful misconduct or gross negligence, as not including manufacturers of vaccines within its grant of immunity or granting them exemption from products liability. Flood v. Wyeth Labs., Inc. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1272, 1277-1280, 228 Cal. Rptr. 700

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applying to manufacturer of blasting material which caused actual manufacturer of fuses to place allegedly defective dynamite fuse into stream of commerce. Canifax v. Hercules Powder Co. (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 44, 47-52, 46 Cal. Rptr. 552 (action arose out of dynamite explosion caused by short-burning fuse allegedly defective in that no warning was given; defendant was manufacturer of dynamite and took order for dynamite and fuses from jobber who actually supplied products to customer; defendant ordered fuses from another company which sent them directly to jobber)

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applicable to manufacturer of vaccine administered to plaintiff and causing very disease it was designed to prevent. Grinnell v. Charles Pfizer & Co. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 424, 432-434, 79 Cal. Rptr. 369 (involving Sabin polio vaccine); see also Gottsdanker v. Cutter Labs. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 602, 607, 6 Cal. Rptr. 320 (action based on implied warranty against manufacturer of Salk polio vaccine by plaintiff who became infected with that disease after vaccination)

One who puts out as his own product chattel manufactured by another as subject to same liability as though he were its manufacturer. Cravens, Dargan & Co. v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 594, 599, 105 Cal. Rptr. 607

Applicability of doctrine of strict liability in tort to corporation organized under laws of sister state for defective product manufactured and sold by its foreign affiliate in foreign country where plaintiff, a California resident, sustained personal injuries as result of defect. Kasel v. Remington Arms Co. (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 711, 717-727, 739-740, 101 Cal. Rptr. 314 (defendant was Delaware corporation with home office in Connecticut doing multinational business and advertising its products (firearms and shells) in national magazines; it organized and financed affiliate in Mexico to manufacture shells and market them under defendant's trademark which was registered in manycountries; the two companies had interlocking or common directors and officers and defendant owned 40 percent of stock of its affiliate; plaintiff, a California resident, while hunting in Mexico, was injured by allegedly defective shotgun shell which he purchased in Mexico and which had been manufactured by defendant's Mexican affiliate; California law on strict liability was applied since Mexico had no comparable law and did not allow recovery for pain and suffering)

[iii] Manufacturers of Components Installed in Mass-Produced Home

Manufacturer of windows installed in mass-produced home during its construction can be strictly liable in tort for harm resulting from defects in those windows. Policies underlying doctrine of strict liability are equally applicable to component manufacturers and suppliers. Component manufacturers are integral part of overall producing and marketing enterprise, may be only member of that enterprise reasonably available to injured plaintiff, and may be in best position to ensure product safety. Moreover, component part manufacturers can adjust costs of liability in course of their continuing business relationship with other participants in overall manufacture and marketing enterprise. Court rejected manufacturers' argument that subjecting them to strict liability would be improper because they had no physical control over windows at time of alleged harm. Also, fact that windows were assembled and installed by other parties did not change court's analysis, because mere assembly of a product that is sold in parts is not "substantial change" in product within meaning of § 402(1)(b) of Restatement (Second) of Torts. Finally, holding window manufacturers subject to strict liability would not "open the litigation floodgates." Jimenez v. Superior Court (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 473, 480-481, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 614, 58 P.3d 450

[f] Against Manufacturer-Repairer of Product

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as extending in some situations to repairer of product who was also its manufacturer. Young v. Aro Corp. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 240, 246, 111 Cal. Rptr. 535 (grinder returned to manufacturer with instructions to reduce speed; manufacturer was given carte blanche as to how to accomplish this; manufacturer exchanged springs, necessary to reduce speed, but failed to replace governor which was so worn that it failed to control speed and after repair grinder wheel disintegrated killing plaintiff's decedent)

[g] Against Occasional Seller

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applicable to manufacturer, wholesaler, retail dealer, or distributor; only group of persons exempt from liability as occasional seller not engaged in that activity as part of his business. Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 228, 251-253, 71 Cal. Rptr. 306

[h] Against Publishers

Erroneous approach chart for airport as defective product under California's strict liability law; publisher as strictly liable for accident resulting from reliance on chart. Brocklesby v. United States (9th Cir. 1985) 753 F.2d 794, 800

Absent endorsement or sponsorship for economic gain, publisher of advertisement as having no duty to investigate safety of advertised product and no liability for injuries sustained from use of product. Walters v. Seventeen Magazine (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1119, 1121-1122, 241 Cal. Rptr. 101

[i] Against Real Estate Developers and Builders

California Supreme Court disapproved Casey,, to extent it is inconsistent with views expressed in case holding that manufacturer of defective windows installed in mass produced home can be strictly liable for harm resulting from defects. Jimenez v. Superior Court (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 473, 481, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 614, 621, 58 P.3d 450

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as inapplicable in action against developer's subcontractor, whose predecessor installed faulty windows; subcontractor could not be held strictly liable because subcontractor's agreement with developer showed that subcontractor was only providing materials, labor and equipment, and had no financial stake or control of project. Casey v. Overhead Door Corp. (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 112, 119, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 603

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as inappcliable in action against manufacturer sued by developer who installed manufacturer's sinks in housing developments when action was solely for repair and replacement costs of sinks, which are economic losses; strict liability not applicable unless there is personal injury or damage to property other than allegedly defective product. Fieldstone Co. v. Briggs Plumbing Prods., Inc. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 357, 364-366, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applying to builders engaged in mass production and sales of homes. Collins Dev. Co. v. D. J. Plastering, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 771, 778-779, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 83 ; Stearman v. Centex Homes (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 611, 623, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 761 ; Orndorff v. Christiana Cmty. Builders (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 683, 689, 266 Cal. Rptr. 193 ; Kriegler v. Eichler Homes, Inc. (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 224, 227-229, 74 Cal. Rptr. 749 (defective heating system)

Doctrine of strict products liability as not applicable to action alleging that seller of house participated in construction of defective improvement to house before sale. Siders v. Schloo (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 1217, 1223, 233 Cal. Rptr. 906

Lending institution as unable to state cause of action for strict liability against builder of defective condominiums when property was purchased by lending institution at foreclosure sale after builder defaulted. Sumitomo Bank v. Taurus Developers, Inc. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 211, 226-227, 229 Cal. Rptr. 719

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applicable to developers of multiple-unit, residential, planned development complex. Del Mar Beach Club Owners Assn. v. Imperial Contracting Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 898, 911, 913, 176 Cal. Rptr. 886

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applicable to producer-seller of tract houses, whether termed developer, subdivider, or builder. Swett v. Gribaldo, Jones & Assocs. (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 573, 575, 115 Cal. Rptr. 99

Although mass producer-seller of homes or residential lots who has no reasonable expectation that purchasers will make thorough inspection for defects is strictly liable in tort to purchaser for physical damage resulting from defect in design or construction of such homes or lots, lender of money for development as not permitted to recover on strict liability theory because lender is link in marketing chain; however, lender not precluded from recovering damages from developer, engineer, and contractor that manufactured lots based on negligence in impairing security of loan. U. S. Fin. v. Sullivan (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 5, 17, 112 Cal. Rptr. 18

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applicable to defectively designed home where, as proximate result of defect, injury results to a human being. Hyman v. Gordon (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 769, 772-773, 111 Cal. Rptr. 262 (water heater installed on floor of garage instead of being elevated and fire erupted when spilled gasoline spread across floor and reached flame of heater, seriously injuring plaintiff, a minor)

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applicable to developer of real property for installation of defective water distribution system. Stuart v. Crestview Mut. Water Co. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 802, 810-811

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applicable to manufacturer of building lot (by cutting, filling, grading, compacting, etc.) for damages suffered by owner as proximate result of defects in manufacturing process. Avner v. Longridge Estates (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 607, 615, 77 Cal. Rptr. 633

[j] Against Retailers, Wholesalers, and Distributors of Products

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applicable to retailer as well as to manufacturer of defective product. Vandermark v. Ford Motor Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 256, 260-261, 37 Cal. Rptr. 896, 391 P.2d 168 ; see also Elmore v. American Motors Corp. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 578, 587, 75 Cal. Rptr. 652, 451 P.2d 84 ; Westlye v. Look Sports, Inc. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1715, 1741-1742, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 781 ; Midgley v. S.S. Kresge Co. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 67, 71, 127 Cal. Rptr. 217 ; McClaflin v. Bayshore Equip. Rental Co. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 446, 452, 79 Cal. Rptr. 337 ; Johnson v. Standard Brands Paint Co. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 331, 337, 79 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; Slayton v. Wright (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 219, 237, 76 Cal. Rptr. 494 ; Read v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 404, 407, 70 Cal. Rptr. 454 ; Canifax v. Hercules Powder Co. (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 44, 51, 46 Cal. Rptr. 552

Service provider that facilitated delivery of the Durom Hip Resurfacing System to physician was subject to liability as a distributor. There is no exception to strict liability for distributors of implanted medical devices. *Lyles v. Zimmer, Inc. (E.D. Cal. May 29, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 50483, at *11-13

Distributors who allegedly failed to warn of risks of gadolinium contrast dye were not fraudulently joined. *Moorhouse v. Bayer Healthcare Pharms. (N.D. Cal. June 17, 2008) 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 48833, at *11-14

For purposes of determining fraudulent joinder, the general rule that distributors are strictly liable for defective products applied to the distributor of the prescription drug *Tegretol. Maher v. Novartis Pharms. Corp. (S.D. Cal. Aug. 10, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 58984, at *8-9

Restaurant as strictly liable for failing to warn customers in the context of allergies, such as when a customer eats soup that contains an allergy producing food additive. Livingston v. Marie Callenders, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 830, 839, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 528

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as not applicable to person who sells new or used vehicle to dealer under Veh. Code § 24007. Fruehauf Corp. v. Lakeside Chevrolet Co. (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 783, 789, 173 Cal. Rptr. 55

Defendant wholesale distributor as properly contending that bases of liability of wholesale distributor and retail seller of defectively manufactured product are identical and based on same facts--manufacturing defect in product that was proximate cause of plaintiff's injury; therefore, jury verdict exonerating retailer while finding against wholesaler as fatally inconsistent. Cavallaro v. Michelin Tire Corp. (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 95, 100, 157 Cal. Rptr. 602

Neither transfer of title to goods nor sale as required for application of doctrine of strict liability in tort. Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 228, 251-252, 71 Cal. Rptr. 306

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applicable to wholesale-retail distributor of product as well as to manufacturer. Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 228, 252-253, 71 Cal. Rptr. 306 (wholesale-retail distributor of tires from stock on order of manufacturer)

[k] Against Successor to Product Manufacturer

Phrases "any and all" and "of any kind or nature" in transfer agreement did not exclude plaintiff's theory of product liability and under literal reading, defendant agreed to assume liability represented by lawsuit. Fisher v. Allis-Chalmers Corp. Prod. Liab. Trust (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1182, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 310, 315-316 (certified for partial publication)

Successor liability as appropriate when successor purchased stock of asbestos product supplier and took over its business. Petrini v. Mohasco Corp. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 1091, 1096, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910

Successor liability as inappropriate when successor purchased assets of predecessor at bankruptcy sale, but did not cause predecessor to go bankrupt. Stewart v. Telex Communications, Inc. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 190, 200, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669

One of three elements necessary to establish strict liability of successor to manufacturer of defective product, that destruction of plaintiff's remedies was caused by successor's acquisition of business, as not satisfied in DES action when predecessor company continued successfully in another business for 10 years following acquisition of drug production by successor company, and there was no causal connection between that acquisition and predecessor's ultimate dissolution. Phillips v. Cooper Labs. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1648, 1659, 264 Cal. Rptr. 311

Under traditional theories of corporate successor liability, successor corporation as not liable for injuries incurred by use of predecessor's product, when plaintiff established neither merger of corporations nor successor's express assumption of predecessor's liabilities. Phillips v. Cooper Labs. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1648, 1660-1661, 264 Cal. Rptr. 311

General rule imposing liability for injuries, caused by products manufactured by predecessor, on successor corporation that purchased assets in arms-length transaction if predecessor has liquidated itself after sale of assets, as requiring that sale contribute to liquidation; rule as not applicable, andsuccessor as not liable, when predecessor operated for 20 years after sale and then filed for reorganization in bankruptcy. Kline v. Johns-Manville (9th Cir. 1984) 745 F.2d 1217, 1219-1221

Acquisition of all outstanding stock of corporation, without acquisition of assets or facilities, as insufficient to impose liability on acquiring corporation even though acquired corporation was later dissolved; continuation of business as necessary to impose successor liability. Potlatch Corp. v. Superior Court (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 1144, 1150-1151, 201 Cal. Rptr. 750

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applying to successor corporation for injuries sustained after purchase of predecessor manufacturing corporation as proximate result of defect in product manufactured and sold by predecessor if successor acquired by purchase for adequate consideration all assets of predecessor and on acquisition of predecessor's plant, equipment, inventory, trade name, goodwill, and customer lists continued to manufacture same line of products under predecessor's name, using same equipment, designs, and personnel, and soliciting predecessor's customers through same sales representatives with no outward indication of any change in ownership of business or notice to customers of that change. Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 24-25, 30-34, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3

One of three elements necessary to establish strict liability of successor to manufacturer of defective product, that destruction of plaintiff's remedies was caused by successor's acquisition of business, as not satisfied in DES action when predecessor company continued successfully in another business for 10 years following acquisition of drug production by successor company, and no causal connection existed between that acquisition and predecessor's ultimate dissolution. Phillips v. Cooper Labs. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1648

Under traditional theories of corporate successor liability, successor corporation as not liable for injuries incurred by use of predecessor's product, when plaintiff established neither merger of corporations nor successor's express assumption of predecessor's liabilities. Phillips v. Cooper Labs. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1648, 1660-1661, 264 Cal. Rptr. 311

Decision in Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 24-25, 30-34, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3 , as not requiring insurer to defend distributor of product in action regarding predecessor manufacturer's product when policy covered only named insured's products and distributor could have negotiated for coverage of predecessor's products. Oliver Machinery Co. v. United States Fid. & Guar. Co. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1510, 1517-1518, 232 Cal. Rptr. 691

Exception set out in Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 24-25, 34-35, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3 , as not to be construed so narrowly as to create exception to general rule for successor nonliability only in case of "Alad clone." Rawlings v. D. M. Oliver, Inc. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 890, 900-902, 159 Cal. Rptr. 119

Defendant that had merged with manufacturer of product causing death of plaintiff's decedent held liable under successor theory; evidence supported California jurisdiction, and evidence that three of four conditions listed as typically supporting liability by Court in Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal.3d 22, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3 , were present in instant case as sufficient. Sanders v. CEG Corp. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 779, 157 Cal. Rptr. 252

Corporation which acquires by purchase substantial portion of assets of manufacturing corporation, together with right to use latter's name, and leases latter's plant facilities for period of years, but where latter corporation continues to exist for some two years afterwards as not strictly liable in tort for injuries sustained almost three years before purchasing corporation purchased assets as proximate result of defect in product manufactured and sold by manufacturing corporation some 11 years prior to purchase of assets where purchasing corporation did not expressly or impliedly assume strict liability of manufacturer for defective products. Schwartz v. McGraw-Edison Co. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 767, 778-781, 92 Cal. Rptr. 776 (disapproved on another point in Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 34, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3)

[l] Against Used Products Dealer

Seller of used crane that made extensive modifications before sale as strictly liable as manufacturer for injuries caused by defects in crane. Green v. Los Angeles (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 819, 838, 115 Cal. Rptr. 685

[m] In Favor of Nonpurchasers

Manufacturer putting defective product on market as strictly liable to any person injured. Hasson v. Ford Motor Co. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 388, 407, 185 Cal. Rptr. 654, 650 P.2d 1171

Strict liability may apply to products that have left the control of manufacturer and are still on market. Property owner was not precluded from recovering for MTBE contamination under strict products liability, even though injury had occurred while product was still possessed and stored by participants in stream of commerce, i.e., gas stations. Nelson v. Superior Court (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 689, 693-696, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 684

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as available to "bystander" injured by defective product. Elmore v. American Motors Corp. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 578, 587, 75 Cal. Rptr. 652, 451 P.2d 84 ; Baker v. Chrysler Corp. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 710, 715, 127 Cal. Rptr. 745 ; Preissman v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 841, 850, 82 Cal. Rptr. 108 ; Johnson v. Standard Brands Paint Co. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 331, 337, 79 Cal. Rptr. 194

Strict liability in tort as extending not only to actual consumers or users of defective product but to any human being to whom an injury from defect is reasonably foreseeable. Putensen v. Clay Adams, Inc. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1062, 1072, 91 Cal. Rptr. 319

Liability under doctrine of strict liability in tort as extending to protect employees of ultimate consumer of defective product. Canifax v. Hercules Powder Co. (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 44, 54, 46 Cal. Rptr. 552

[n] Maritime Law

Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A as applicable law of strict products liability in admiralty cases in Ninth Circuit. Matthews v. Hyster Co., Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 854 F.2d 1166, 1168

[o] Nature of Injury--Economic Losses

Economic loss rule did not bar action because plaintiff alleged damage to portions of home other than exterior wall. *Mitchell v. Skyline Homes (E.D. Cal. Nov. 25, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 116066, at 5

Court granted leave to amend tort claims to more specifically allege harm caused by purchase of mold-tainted beds. *Stearns v. Select Comfort Retail Corp. (N.D. Cal. June 5, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 48367, at *10-12

Lost profits, diminution in property value, and costs of removing contaminants were not compensable under a negligence or strict liability theory. *California Dep't of Toxic Substances Control v. Payless Cleaners (E.D. Cal. Aug. 16, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 60703, at *20-22

Factors set forth in KB Homes, below, suggested that blade retainers were intrinsic, not discrete, elements of the turbine. *Waste Mgmt., Inc. v. Ishikawajima-Harima Heavy Indus., Co. (E.D. Cal. Aug. 29, 2006) 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 64038, at *11-14

Strict products liability and negligence claims survived motion to dismiss because plaintiff alleged that component parts were defective and contributed to loss of its helicopter. Croman Corp. v. Gen. Elec. Co. (E.D. Cal. Sept. 13, 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 39408, at *4-*5

Whether "product" was entire bottle for which closures were used, or whether closure was separate product that caused physical damage to otherproperty, i.e., plaintiff's wine, could not be determined on motion to dismiss. *McDowell Valley Vineyards, Inc. v. Sabate USA Inc. (N.D. Cal. Aug. 6, 2004) 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 15797, at *9-12

Economic loss rule did not bar fraud and intentional misrepresentation claims with respect to aircraft part manufacturer's provision of false FAA certificates, because claims were independent of defendant's breach of contract. Robinson Helicopter Co. v. Dana Corp. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 979, 990-991, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 352, 102 P.3d 268

Economic loss rule does not bar recovery in tort in construction cases if plaintiff produces evidence of damage to other property, which may include other portions of structure; Manufacturer of defective window installed in mass-produced home may be held strictly liable in tort for damage that window's defect causes to other parts of home in which it is installed. Jimenez v. Superior Court (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 473, 481-484, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 614, 58 P.3d 450

Right to Repair Act, Civ. Code §§ 896, 936, established building standards pertaining to new residential construction and provides homeowners with a cause of action against builders and individual product manufacturers for violation of those standards. The Act abrogated economic loss rule, thereby legislatively superseding Aas v. Superior Court (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 627, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 718, 12 P.3d 1125 . Greystone Homes, Inc. v. Midtec, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1194, 1202, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 196

Court rejected municipalities' contention that deterioration of lead paint constituted physical injury to their buildings sufficient to support negligence or strict liability cause of action. County of Santa Clara v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 292, 320, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 313 , review denied, 2006 Cal. LEXIS 7622

Municipalities alleged that lead paint and pigment manufacturers made affirmative representations about the dangers of exposure to low levels of lead, causing them to delay making timely efforts to prevent and treat low-level lead exposure.

Economic loss doctrine did not apply to plaintiffs' fraud cause of action. County of Santa Clara v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 292, 328-329, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 313 , review denied, 2006 Cal. LEXIS 7622

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applying to physical injury to property as well as to personal injury. Seely v. White Motor Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 9, 19, 45 Cal. Rptr. 17, 403 P.2d 145 ; Collins Dev. Co. v. D. J. Plastering, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 771, 778-779, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 83 ; Stearman v. Centex Homes (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 611, 623, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 761 ; Gherna v. Ford Motor Co. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 639, 649 , 55 Cal. Rptr. 94

Economic loss rule bars recovery in tort for economic damages caused by defective product, unless those losses are accompanied by some form of personal injury or damage to property other than product itself. KB Home v. Superior Court (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 1085, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 587

Plaintiff could not recover under strict products liability theory costs of repairing or replacing defective windows he had purchased and incorporated into his residence; only evidence of actual property damage to property other than windows was damage to sheet rock and wallpaper, and persons who purchased his house had paid costs of repairing this damage. Carrau v. Marvin Lumber & Cedar Co. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 281, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869, 877-878

Homeowners could not recover in negligence or strict liability for cost of replacing water pipes known to be defective, but which had not yet leaked. Zamora v. Shell Oil Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 204, 208-211, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762

In strict liability case, general contractor could not recover cost of replacing installed sinks which rusted and chipped prematurely because no other property had been damaged. Fieldstone v. Briggs Plumbing Prods., Inc. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 357, 363-367, 62 Ca. Rptr. 2d 701

Reduction of fair market value of buildings found to contain asbestos building materials may constitute economic loss that cannot be recovered in strict liability or negligence. San Francisco Unified Sch. Dist. v. W.R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1327-1328

Plaintiff, suing on products liability theory, could not recover depreciation in value to truck caused by defective wheels supplied by manufacturer. Anthony v. Kelsey-Hayes Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 442, 446, 102 Cal. Rptr. 113

[p] Against Tobacco Industry

Code Civ. Proc. § 1714.45, which repealed statute granting tobacco companies complete immunity in certain products liability lawsuits, is perspective only. Immunity statute continues to shield tobacco companies in product liability actions for conduct they engaged in during ten-year period ending Jan. 1, 1998. As for tobacco companies' conduct before immunity period, however, liability is determined by applying general tort principles. Myers v. Philip Morris Co. (2002), 28 Cal. 4th 828, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 40, 50 P.3d 751, 759-763

As for conduct occurring during 10-year immunity (Jan. 1, 1988-Dec. 31, 1997), former Code Civ. Proc. § 1714.45's protection does not extend to allegations that tobacco companies used additives that exposed smokers to dangers beyond those commonly known to be associated with cigarette smoking. Immunity statute thus did not bar claims that defendants manipulated addictive properties of cigarettes via additives and controlled nicotine delivery through adding ammonia. However, allegations that defendants increased nicotine content of their cigarettes through blended or high-nicotine tobacco and lied about addictive nature of smoking fell squarely within reach of immunity statute. Naegele v. R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 856, 861-867, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 61, 50 P.3d 769

Except for 10-year period, defendant was not entitled to have jury instructed with BAJI No. 9.00.6, which was derived from former Civ. Code § 1714.45. Boeken v. Philip Morris Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1670-1674, 26 Cal.

Rptr. 3d 638

Under Myers and Naegele, trial court committed prejudicial error in refusing to instruct jury regarding 10-year statutory immunity created by former Code Civ. Proc. § 1714.45. Whiteley v. Philip Morris, Inc. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 635, 651-665, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 807

Immunity statute barred allegations that defendant misrepresented addictive nature of nicotine and developed high-nicotine tobacco, but not allegations that defendant added ammonia, altered PH of tobacco, or enhanced delivery of nicotine. Souders v. Philip Morris Inc. (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 15, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 748, 755-756

[q] Against Suppliers of Raw Materials

Court declined to find that Arena, below, which held that strict liability can apply to suppliers of defective raw materials, was wrongly decided. Garza v. Asbestos Corp. (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 651, 658-659, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 359

Supplier of raw asbestos is subject to strict products liability. Restatement (Third) of Torts: Products Liability § 5, cmt. c, stating that raw material sellers are not subject to liability for harm caused by defective design of end-product, was inapplicable because it was possible that injury was caused by defect in raw asbestos and because asbestos is not component material that is usually innocuous. Arena v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1178, 1191, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580, 589

[r] Against Trademark Licensors

As long as licensor is link in marketing enterprise which placed defective product, here, shotgun ammunition, in stream of commerce, there is no reason to refuse to apply strict liability in tort to such entity. Kasel v. Remington Arms Co. (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 711, 725, 101 Cal. Rptr. 314

[7] Assumption of the Risk

Assumption of risk as embodying two separate defenses: primary assumption of risk, completely barring action when defendant owed no duty to prevent plaintiff's injury, and secondary assumption of risk, making comparative fault apportionment proper if defendant owed duty to plaintiff, but plaintiff knowingly encountered risk of injury caused by defendant's breach of duty. Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 308, 314-315, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696

Primary assumption of risk did not foreclose strict products liability claim of plaintiff who fell off personal watercraft and sustained severe orifice injuries. Court acknowledged that general risk of falling and coming into contact with water is inherent in jet skiing, but declined to find that specific risks of sustaining orifice injuries are inherent in the sport. Ford v. Polaris Indus., Inc. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 755, 772-773, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215 .

Assumption of risk does not insulate equipment suppliers from liability for providing defective equipment; primary assumption of risk did not bar products liability claim by 11-year-old child who dived into aboveground swimming pool and was paralyzed. Bunch v. Hoffinger Indus., Inc. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1278, 1300-1301, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 780

Defendant owes no duty of care to protect plaintiff against risks inherent in particular sport voluntarily played by plaintiff, but defendant owes duty to participants not to increase risk of harm over and above that inherent in sport; risk is inherent in sport if its elimination would: (1) chill vigorous participation in sport, and (2) alter fundamental nature of activity; pitcher created triable issue of material fact regarding whether design and use of hollow aluminum alloy bat significantly increased inherent risk of being hit by line drive, where bat had pressurized air bladder which increased speed at which ball left its surface. Sanchez v. Hillerich & Bradsby Co. (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 703, 713-715, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 529

Manufacturer of defective product as having duty to users of product for purposes of analyzing assumption of risk; products liability actions as generally subject to apportionment of damages under secondary assumption of risk principles, but not barred by primary assumption of risk doctrine. Milwaukee Elec. Tool Corp. v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 547, 560-565, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 24

[8] Automobiles

Application of doctrine of strict liability in tort in favor of passenger in defective automobile driven by purchaser. Vandermark v. Ford Motor Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 256, 258, 261, 37 Cal. Rptr. 896, 391 P.2d 168

Plaintiff, injured in a rollover, chose not to pursue his roof defect claim and proceeded only with his vehicle stability claim. After a mistrial, he designated expert witnesses to testify in support of his roof defect claim. The court committed reversible error in striking portions of his expert witness disclosure statement related to roof defects. Gordon v. Nissan Motor Co. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1103, 1111, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 778

Punitive damages award as upheld in favor of automobile passenger. Grimshaw v. Ford Motor Co. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 757, 810, 819-820, 174 Cal. Rptr. 348

[8a] Borrowing Statute

The court rejected plaintiff's contention that borrowing statute, Code Civ. Proc. § 361, is not applicable to indivisible injuries caused by multiple exposures to asbestos. The single injury--mesothelioma--had been caused by multiple exposures to asbestos products in Indiana and California, and plaintiffs argued that trial court erroneously split cause of action into California and Indiana components, contrary to statements made in Rutherford v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 953, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16, 941 P.2d 1203 . The court rejected this contention, explaining that Rutherford concerned a different subject, which was the inapplicability of a burden-shifting instruction in asbestos cases. The court also rejected the plaintiff's contention that he was excepted from reach of borrowing statute if he was citizen of California at any time in past. A plaintiff must have been citizen of California at the time his or her claim accrued to fall within statute's exception. Cossman v. Daimlerchrysler Corp. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 370, 376-377, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376

Court rejected contention that borrowing statute, Code Civ. Proc. § 361, applies only in cases in which plaintiffs have sued in California for sole purpose of avoiding limitations period which lapsed in another state. Although overriding purpose of borrowing statutes is to curtail forum shopping, statute does not inquire into plaintiff's subjective intentions in suing in California. Geist v. Sequoia Ventures, Inc. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 300

[9] Burden of Proof

Quantum of proof necessary to establish prima facie case of design defect, on basis that product failed to perform as safely as ordinary consumer would expect when used in reasonably foreseeable manner, as including evidence of (1) plaintiff's use of product; (2) circumstances surrounding injury; and (3) objective features of product relevant to evaluation of its safety. Campbell v. General Motors Corp. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 112, 127, 184 Cal. Rptr. 891, 649 P.2d 224

Burden as on plaintiff to establish defective condition of product and that defect proximately caused plaintiff's injuries.

Miller v. Los Angeles County Flood Control Dist. (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 689, 704, 106 Cal. Rptr. 1, 505 P.2d 193

Distinction between manufacture and design defects requiring different burden of proof from plaintiff as not tenable; although condemnation of entire line of product as defectively designed may damage manufacturer more than finding that single product was defectively manufactured, potential economic loss to manufacturer as not to be reflected in different standard of proof for injured consumer. Cronin v. J.B.E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 134, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153 ; Foglio v. Western Auto Supply (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 470, 475, 128 Cal. Rptr. 545

[10] Causation

There was no evidence that the porosity of a pneumatic air impact wrench caused it to burst. *Doetsch v. American Household Inc. (S.D. Cal. Aug. 3, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 56773, at 10

Plaintiff established a prima facie case of exposure to defendant's asbestos-containing product. *McIntyre v. Warren Pumps LLC (N.D. Cal. April 30, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 35954, at *12-15

Taser was substantial factor in causing death. *Sanders v. City of Fresno (E.D. Cal. July 3, 2006) 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 48582, at *47-56

Plaintiff did not prove that warning defect was substantial factor in causing accident, because machine's pinch-point was open and obvious hazard, andadditional warnings or instructions would not have changed operators' behavior; manufacturing defect not substantial factor in causing plaintiff's harm. *Andrade v. Pangborn Corp. (N.D. Cal. Oct. 22, 2004) 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 22704, at *55-60

Plaintiff offered no evidence that prescribing physician would have acted differently had manufacturer provided adequate warning about alleged risk that drug Zoloft causes persons who ingest it to commit suicide; because she was unable to create genuine issue of fact as to whether manufacturer's alleged failure to provide adequate warning caused her husband's death, manufacturer was entitled to summary judgment. Motus v. Pfizer Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2001) 196 F. Supp. 2d 984, 991 , applying California law

In complaint alleging long-term exposure to multiple toxins, plaintiff must plead specific facts explaining how conduct caused or contributed to injury; substantial factor standard of causation is relatively broad, requiring only that defendant's contribution be more than negligible or theoretical. Bockrath v. Aldrich Chem. Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 71, 79, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 846, 980 P.2d 398

Plaintiff could not establish proximate cause in failure-to-warn case when prescribing physician did not read package insert in making his decision to prescribe generic form of Reglan. Conte v. Wyeth, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 89, 111-112, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 299

Reasonable inferences are available to show causation, and expert testimony linked particular type of food poisoning involved to particular unsanitary conditions at defendant's restaurant. Court declined to follow Minder v. Cielito Lindo Rest. (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 1003, 136 Cal. Rptr. 915 , to extent that it requires plaintiff in food poisoning cases to exclude other possible causes of his or her illness. Sarti v. Salt Creek Ltd. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1187, 1210-1211, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 506

A defendant does not shift the burden of production by showing that plaintiff has no personal recall of defendant's product. Rather, defendant must make an affirmative showing that plaintiff will be unable to prove his or her case by any means. The fact that plaintiff was unable to recall whether he had worked around defendant's product over 40 years earlier did not mean that he would be unable to recognize defendant's product if shown its packaging or logo. Weber

v. John Crane, Inc. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1433, 1439-1443, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 71

Plaintiff admitted that he did not know if he had ever been present when anyone was working with defendant's asbestos products. Defendant submitted plaintiffs' nonresponsive answers to special interrogatories designed to elicit information about the plaintiff's exposure to defendant's product. Defendant thus met its initial burden of making a prima facie showing that a triable issue of fact did not exist regarding causation. Andrews v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 96, 108, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 229

In cases of asbestos-related cancer, jury instruction shifting burden of proof to asbestos defendants on element of causation is generally unnecessary and incorrect. Plaintiffs must prove only that exposure to defendant's asbestos product was, in reasonable medical probability, a substantial factor in causing or contributing to their risk of developing cancer. In particular, they need not prove with medical exactitude that fibers from particular defendant's asbestos-containing product were those, or among those, that actually began cellular process of malignancy. Rutherford v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 953, 975-976, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16, 941 P.2d 1203

Expert testimony supported jury's finding that plaintiff's exposure to defendant's asbestos-containing products was substantial factor contributing to risk of developing lung cancer--that is, lung cancer was caused by cumulative exposure, with each of many separate exposures having constituted substantial factors; despite defendant's assertion that plaintiff's total exposure to asbestos from its products was significantly less than lifetime of exposure to ambient asbestos, Rutherford does not require that each exposure be sufficient to independently cause lung cancer. Jones v. John Crane, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 990, 999, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144

Plaintiff successfully established that lack of label adequately warning of dangers of diving into aboveground pool was substantial factor in causing her injuries; plaintiff offered own testimony that she thought that homeowner was "just being a mom" when she told her not to dive, and that sticker on pool meant only "not to do a pike dive"; plaintiff testified that label warning of crippling dangers would have prevented her from diving on day of incident; plaintiff also presented expert testimony that young divers cannot necessarily appreciate depth of aboveground pools. Bunch v. Hoffinger Indus., Inc. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1278, 1303-1304, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 780

Defendant was properly granted summary judgment, where plaintiff showed only, at best, that decedent might have cut into wall that might have contained defendant's joint compound that might have contained asbestos. McGonnell v. Kaiser Gypsum Co. (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1098, 1103, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 23

In asbestos products liability action, no triable issue of fact as to causation as existing when plaintiff's deposition testimony only demonstrated that defendant was potentially present at job site. Hunter v. Pacific Mech. Corp. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1282, 1289

In asbestos products liability action, absence of causation as matter of law when evidence of exposure is inadequate; evidence as not showing that asbestos products of type supplied by defendants was on ship while plaintiff was aboard. Dumin v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 650, 658, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 702 ; Lineaweaver v. Plant Insulation Co. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1409, 1421

Absence of causation as properly found as matter of law when evidence showed that alleged inaccessibility of parking brake had no causal relationship to victim's death because truck owner had failed to maintain brake in operable condition and truck driver admitted that he never used it. Visueta v. General Motors Corp. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1609, 1616-1617, 286 Cal. Rptr. 402

In products liability action alleging that use of drug caused cancer, causation as required to be proved within reasonable medical probability based on competent expert testimony; evidence that probability of causation was "less than 50-50" as insufficient to establish prima facie case. Jones v. Ortho Pharm. Corp. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 396, 402-405, 209

Cal. Rptr. 456

Evidence that plaintiff could have avoided injury had product been equipped with cutoff switch as sufficient to support finding that lack of switch proximately caused injury to plaintiff; to establish proximate cause, plaintiff as required to show only that defendant's conduct in some way substantially contributed to injury, and that circumstances justify holding defendant responsible for consequences of accident. Bates v. John Deere Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 40, 50, 195 Cal. Rptr. 637

Doctrine of concurrent causation as applicable in strict liability in tort as well as in negligence cases. Thompson v. Package Machinery Co. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 188, 193-195, 99 Cal. Rptr. 281 ; Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Harnischfeger Corp. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 842, 854, 175 Cal. Rptr. 67

Plaintiff in products liability case involving long passage of time between manufacture and injury as required to produce evidence that product was not changed by purposeful alteration or abuse; showing that product was in poor condition at time of accident after having been subjected to prolonged and rough use as strong evidence that defect was not cause of injury; if product has been altered or otherwise misused, alleged defect as not cause of injury. Knudsen v. Peoples Lumber Co. (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 167, 179, 137 Cal. Rptr. 110

In order to sustain their burden of proof in a products liability action, plaintiffs need to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that the contamination attributed to defendants was a "substantial factor" in causing the decedent's demise. This standard minimally requires that the contribution of the individual cause be more than negligible or theoretical. Kennedy v. S. Cal. Edison Co. (9th Cir. 2001) 268 F.3d 763, 770 ; see Rutherford v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 953, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16, 941 P.2d 1203

[11] Class Action Allegations

Plaintiff did not establish that CAFA's "Home-State" Controversy exception, 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)(B), applied in an action seeking medical monitoring in connection with lead-tainted toys. *Harrington v. Mattel, Inc. (N.D. Cal. Dec. 20, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 95401, at *14-17

Court reversed decertification order and remanded action brought under unfair competition law to determine whether named representatives could establish standing. In re Tobacco II Cases (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 298, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 559, 207 P.3d 20

Court affirmed denial of certification of proposed class of homeowners in which allegedly defective shower pans were installed. Sole common issue (i.e., whether pan was defectively or negligently designed) did not predominate over individualized questions of damages. Evans v. Lasco Bathware, Inc. (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1417, 1427, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 354

There is no per se or categorical bar to finding that medical monitoring claims are appropriate for class treatment, but plaintiffs failed to establish that common issues predominated in class of 50,000-100,000 residents exposed to at least 12 different toxic substances discharged into their drinking water. The proposed class consisted of all persons exposed to specified dose of one of at least 12 different toxic substances on various locations on 400-acre-plus property for period of over 40 years. Determining each defendant's liability to the class and whether each class member required additional monitoring due to exposure would require staggering number of complex individual issues. Lockheed Martin Corp. v. Superior Court (2003) 29 Cal. 4th 1096, 1103-1114, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 63 P.3d 913

In action for damages for personal injuries allegedly caused by defective manufacture of cardiac pacemaker, factual questions and legal issues raised in pleadings on behalf of 4,000 potential claimants as preponderantly diverse rather than common; trial court's dismissal of class action allegations as proper. Rose v. Medtronics, Inc. (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 150, 166 Cal. Rptr. 16

[12] Comparative Fault

Assumption of risk as embodying two separate defenses: primary assumption of risk, completely barring action when defendant owed no duty to prevent plaintiff's injury, and secondary assumption of risk, making comparative fault apportionment proper if defendant owed duty to plaintiff, but plaintiff knowingly encountered risk of injury caused by defendant's breach of duty. Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 308, 314-315, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696

Comparative fault as applicable to strict products liability actions. Daly v. General Motors (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 725, 742, 144 Cal. Rptr. 380, 575 P.2d 1162 ; see also Safeway Stores, Inc. v. Nest-Kart (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 322, 328-332, 146 Cal. Rptr. 550, 579 P.2d 441

[12a] Concert of Action

Concert of action did not apply in a DES case. Allegations that defendants failed to adequately test the drug or to give sufficient warning of its dangers and that they relied upon the tests performed by one another and took advantage of each others' promotional techniques were insufficient to satisfy the requirements of the theory. This sort of conduct is common practice in industry, and application of the concert of action concept to this situation would render virtually any manufacturer liable for the defective products of an entire industry. Sindell v. Abbott Labs. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 605, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132, 607 P.2d 924

Court did not err in refusing to instruct on concert of action theory in asbestos action by mechanic who contended that defendant was liable because it had contributed in 1930s to financing private research laboratory to study health effects of asbestos; court expressed constitutional concerns over application of theory, pointing out that requiring manufacturer to stand trial predicated solely on its exercise of its First Amendment rights could have chilling effect on participation in trade group activity. Chavers v. Gatke Corp. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 606, 615-616, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198

Plaintiff's allegations did not support concert of action cause of action, because his injuries were not caused by any asbestos-containing material manufactured by defendant, and he did not allege that defendant continued to encourage its successor to make false representations about product; plaintiff had alleged that successor to defendant's asbestos product line, with defendant's approval and assistance, marketed product by falsely representing its safe use and concealing its hazards. Cadlo v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 513, 522, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 , modified, 2004 Cal. App. LEXIS 2260

[13] Conflict of Laws

Court as applying California strict-liability-in-tort law in action in California by California resident against Delaware corporation, home office of which was in Connecticut, doing multinational business, and amenable to jurisdiction of California courts, for damages for personal injuries sustained in Mexico by explosion of defective shotgun shell purchased in Mexico and manufactured in Mexico by defendant's affiliate when law of Mexico did not recognize strict liability in tort and allowed no recovery for pain and suffering. Kasel v. Remington Arms Co. (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 711, 727-739, 101 Cal. Rptr. 314

In tort case involving choice of law problem, law of place of wrong as not necessarily applicable law for all tort actions brought in courts of this state; forum court as required to search to find proper law to apply based on interests of litigants and of involved state and thus determine law that most appropriately applies to issue involved. Ryan v. Clark

Equip. Co. (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 679, 682, 74 Cal. Rptr. 329 , disapproved on other grounds, Hurtado v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 574, 585-586, 114 Cal. Rptr. 106, 522 P.2d 666 (wrongful-death action, court applying law of state where injury and death occurred and where plaintiff and decedent resided and plaintiff still resides, rather than law of state where defective product was manufactured)

[14] Contribution

Judgment against two or more defendants as first required in order to entitle one defendant to contribution from the other. Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 137, 141, 92 Cal. Rptr. 809

Manufacturer of defective product as having right of contribution [Code Civ. Proc. § 875] against codefendant distributor where distributor also violates duty to warn public and has no right of indemnity against manufacturer. Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 137, 144, 92 Cal. Rptr. 809

[15] Damages

[a] Compensatory

Jury hearing FELA case must be instructed on the standard for fear-of cancer damages. The case was brought by an electrician who alleged that railroad negligently caused him to contract asbestosis. Proper instructions are particularly important in FELA context because nature of such claims enhances danger that jury, if not properly instructed, will award damages for emotional distress based on slight evidence. CSX Transp., Inc. v. Hensley (2009) -- U.S.--, 129 S. Ct. 2139, 2141-2142, 173 L. Ed. 2d 1184

Mental anguish damages resulting from fear of developing cancer may be recovered under FELA by railroad workers suffering asbestosis caused by work-related exposure to asbestos. Also, plaintiff who has asbestosis can recover damages for fear of cancer without proof of physical manifestations of claimed emotional distress, but claimant must prove that his or her alleged fear is "genuine and serious." Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. v. Ayers (2003) 538 U.S. 135, 145-159, 123 S. Ct. 1210, 155 L. Ed. 2d 261

Disease-and-symptom free plaintiff could not recover for negligent inflection of emotional distress under FELA. Mere exposure to substance, in this case asbestos, is insufficient, even if it involves extensive, physical contact. The holding is limited to FELA actions. Metro-N. Commuter R.R. Co. v. Buckley (1997) 521 U.S. 424, 117 S. Ct. 2113, 138 L. Ed. 2d 560

In this construction defect case, court held that damages in tort are not available if the defective product has not caused personal injury or property damage. Aas v. Superior Court (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 627, 650, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 718, 12 P.3d 1125

Recovery of fear of cancer damages in actions for intentional infliction of emotional distress does not depend on showing of medically corroborated belief that it is more likely than not that plaintiff will develop feared cancer as result of toxic exposure. Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 965, 1003, 863 P.2d 795, 820-821

Economic damages alone as not available in products liability action based in negligence unless parties have special relationship. J'Aire Corp. v. Gregory (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 799, 804, 157 Cal. Rptr. 407, 598 P.2d 60 ; Ott v. Alfa-Laval Agri, Inc. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1439, 1449-1456

Remitted noneconomic damage award of $70 million to woman rendered a paraplegic was excessive, and further reduction to $18 million was appropriate. However, the remitted award of $5 million for loss of consortium was appropriate. Buell-Wilson v. Ford Motor Co. (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 525, 554, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 147

Distinguishing between "other property" and defective product itself in case involving component-to-component damage requires determination whether defective part is sufficiently discrete element of larger product that it is not reasonable to expect its failure invariably to damage other portions of finished product. Determining nature of product at issue and whether injury is to product itself or to other property is generally province of trier of fact. The court's ruling that furnace was single, integrated product deprived plaintiff of right to have material issues of fact submitted to jury. KB Home v. Superior Court (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 1086-1087, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 587

Economic damages as not available in products liability action based on strict liability for presence of asbestos in school buildings; physical injury (i.e., contamination) as required to be alleged. San Francisco Unified Sch. Dist. v. W.R. Grace & Co. (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1318, 1327-1328, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 305

In action based on strict liability in tort to recover damages for aggravation of injuries caused by defect in design or manufacture, jury, after finding plaintiff suffered aggravated injuries, as under duty to fix amount of damages from evidence available; one whose wrongful conduct has rendered determination of damages uncertain as not relieved of liability. Horn v. General Motors Corp. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 359, 369 , 131 Cal. Rptr. 78, 551 P.2d 398

Award of damages based on strict liability in tort as permitted to include compensation for past loss of time and earnings due to injury, for loss of future earning capacity, and for increased living expenses caused by injury. Seely v. White Motor Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 9, 22, 45 Cal. Rptr. 17, 403 P.2d 145 (concurring and dissenting opinion of Peters, J.)

Manufacturer owed no duty to plaintiff that would allow her to recover for emotional distress on theory that she, as owner of vehicle that caused fatal injury to her close family member, was direct victim of the manufacturer's alleged negligence. Gu v. BMW of N. Am., LLC (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 195, 206, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617

Loss of household services are not akin to generalized, noneconomic damages such as loss of companionship, and where there was evidence that decedent performed household services that had particular economic value, jury could consider costs of obtaining substitute domestic services as economic damages. McKinney v. California Portland Cement Co. (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1214, 1227-1229, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 849, 858-860

Recovery on theory of strict products liability as precluded when damage consists solely of economic losses; expenses of repair of defect as purely economic damages. Sacramento Reg'l Transit Dist. v. Grumman Flxible (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 289, 294-295, 204 Cal. Rptr. 736

In actions for negligence, a manufacturer's liability is limited to damages for physical injuries; no recovery is allowed for economic loss alone. A plaintiff is not able to recover under products liability or negligence for the costs of repairing and replacing a defective product; recovery for those costs is available only through contract or breach of warranty law. Carrau v. Marvin Lumber & Cedar Co. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 281, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869 ; see Aas v. Superior Court (2001) 24 Cal. 4th 627, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 718, 12 P.3d 1125

User of defective product that injures another, causing user to suffer emotional distress, as entitled to recover damages for emotional distress; no showing of familial relationship as required. Kately v. Wilkinson (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 576, 587-588, 195 Cal. Rptr. 902

Plaintiff as not entitled to recover for lost profits and loss of business opportunities under product liability cause of action; damages limited to physical damage to property and personal injury. Pisano v. American Leasing (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 194, 197, 194 Cal. Rptr. 77

Loss of use of vehicle resulting from defect as item of incidental damage and as characterized according to nature of damage; unless incidental to physical property damage, loss as properly classified as type of economic loss. Anthony v. Kelsey-Hayes Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 442, 446, 102 Cal. Rptr. 113

Damages resulting from depreciation in value of vehicle caused by defect in manufacture as falling within category of "loss of bargain." Anthony v. Kelsey- Hayes Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 442, 446, 102 Cal. Rptr. 113

Remarriage of surviving spouse as not admissible on issue of damages in wrongful death case. Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 228, 241, 71 Cal. Rptr. 306

[b] Punitive

NOTE:

Civ. Code § 3294, the statute regulating punitive damages, was amended in 1987 regarding the applicable standard of proof and the definitions of malice and oppression. Counsel should use cases before that date with care, and only to the extent that the principles expressed in those earlier cases are consistent with the statute as amended.

In action seeking recovery for economic losses resulting from 1989 Exxon Valdez oil spill, Court exercised its "federal maritime common law authority" to devise a one-to-one maximum ratio between compensatory and punitive damages. Unlike the cases mentioned below, Court did not decide Baker on constitutional grounds. Exxon Shipping Co. v. Baker (2008) -- U.S. --, 128 S. Ct. 2605, 171 L. Ed. 2d 570

Court granted Philip Morris' petition for certiorari after Oregon Supreme Court reinstated a $79.5 million punitive damages award. Limiting its review to a procedural question, Court declined to consider second question of whether punitive damages award that is 97 times the compensatory damages may be upheld. Philip Morris USA Inc. v. Williams (2008) -- U.S. --, 128 S. Ct. 2904, 171 L. Ed. 2d 840

In a Ford Explorer rollover case, the Court vacated a judgment that had reduced a punitive damages award to $18 million, a two-to-one ratio to the compensatory damages award. The court remanded the case to the Court of Appeal for further consideration in light of Philip Morris USA v. Williams. Ford Motor Co. v. Buell-Wilson [(2007) 550 U.S. 931, 127 S. Ct. 2250, 167 L. Ed. 2d 1087

The Court struck down a $79.5 million punitive damage against a cigarette manufacturer, holding that an award based in part upon the jury's desire to punish the defendant for harming persons not before the court would amount to a taking of (property) without due process. Philip Morris USA v. Williams (2007) 549 U.S. 346, 127 S. Ct. 1057, 166 L. Ed. 2d 940 , cert. dismissed, 2009 U.S. LEXIS 2493

Court applied Gore factors to reverse $145 million punitive damages award in insurance bad faith case arising out of fatal motor vehicle accident. While again declining to impose bright-line ratio which punitive damages award cannot exceed, Court pointed out that in practice, few awards exceeding a single-digit ratio between punitive and compensatory damages will satisfy due process. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Campbell (2003) 538 U.S. 408, 123 S. Ct. 1513, 155 L. Ed. 2d 585

Courts of appeals should apply de novo standard of review, when passing on lower courts' determination of whether punitive damages awards are grossly excessive. Cooper v. Leatherman (2001) 532 U.S. 424, 434-436, 121 S. Ct. 1678, 149 L. Ed. 2d 674

Court set forth "guideposts" for lower courts to consider when weighing constitutionality of punitive damages award.

BMW of N. Am., Inc. v. Gore (1996) 517 U.S. 559, 116 S. Ct. 1589, 134 L. Ed. 2d 809

Denial of review of punitive damages award violates Due Process Clause. Honda Motor Co. v. Oberg (1994) 512 U.S. 415, 114 S. Ct. 2331, 129 L. Ed. 2d 336

$10 million punitive damages award was not so grossly excessive as to violate Due Process. TXO Prod. Corp. v. Alliance Res. Corp. (1993) 509 U.S. 443, 113 S. Ct. 2711, 125 L. Ed. 2d 366

The court of appeal had affirmed a $28 million punitive damages award, an amount 33 times greater than the compensatory damages award. The court transferred the case back to the court of appeal with directions to vacate its decision and reconsider the matter in light of Philip Morris USA v. Williams, above. Bullock v. Philip Morris USA, Inc. (2007) 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 441, 159 P.3d 33

Court declined to draw mathematical bright line between constitutionally acceptable and unacceptable. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Haslip (1991) 499 U.S. 1, 111 S. Ct. 1032, 113 L. Ed. 2d 1

Question of fact as to whether manufacturer's conduct regarding ladder's false latching condition warranted punitive damages award. However, retailer was entitled to summary judgment on punitive damages claim. *Bethel v. Home Depot U.S.A., Inc. (S.D. Cal. Dec. 4, 2008) 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 98161, at *12-15

Due process does not prohibit state courts, in awarding or reviewing punitive damages, from considering defendant's wrongful conduct towards others that was similar to tortious conduct that injured plaintiff; civil defendant's recidivism remains pertinent to assessment of culpability, and California's policy of using punitive damages to deter continuation or imitation of corporation's course of wrongful conduct survived U.S. Supreme Court cases limiting punitive damages. Johnson v. Ford Motor Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 1191, 1196-1204, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 401

Court reviewing punitive damages award for constitutionality must make independent assessment of relationship between award and factual circumstances of case. Simon v. San Paolo U.S. Holding Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 1159, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 379

Evidence as sufficient to support award of punitive damages when former high-level employee of automobile manufacturer testified that defendant (1) deliberately failed to warn dealers or owners of remedial steps to avoid brake failure, (2) deliberately failed to run adequate tests to define nature of brake loss problem, and (3) deliberately failed to install part that would have alleviated problem. Hasson v. Ford Motor Co. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 388, 402-403, 185 Cal. Rptr. 654, 650 P.2d 1171

Trial court's refusal to give cigarette manufacturer's proposed punitive damages instruction not to impose punishment for harm caused to nonparties to the litigation was error. Court ordered new trial to determine amount of punitive damages. Bullock v. Philip Morris USA, Inc. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 655, 693-694, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 775

Smoker awarded $5,539,127 in compensatory damages was entitled to punitive damages award of $50 million because State Farm's language was instructive, not binding; defendant's 40 years' of fraud and continuing conscious disregard for safety of consumers was "exceptionally extreme"; taking into consideration previous punitive damages awards imposed against defendant, as well as possibility of future awards in cases with identical issues. more than single digit multiplier was not justified, but extreme reprehensibility of defendant's conduct justified ratio of at least 9 to 1. Boeken v. Philip Morris Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1700-1703, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638

Court reduced largest punitive damages judgment ever upheld by California appellate court from $290 million to $23.7 million in action arising when portions of 1978 Ford Bronco's roof collapsed in rollover. Court interpreted State Farm as impliedly disapproving of its broad view of the goal andmeasure of punitive damages. Result of State Farm's constitutional due process limitation is punitive damages analysis that focuses primarily on what defendant did to the present plaintiff, rather than the defendant's wealth or general incorrigibility. Romo v. Ford Motor Co. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 738, 749, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793 ; but see Johnson v. Ford Motor Co. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 1191, 1196-1204, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 401 (criticizing reasoning in Romo)

Punitive damages as available in products liability actions if defendant placed product on market in conscious disregard of safety of consumers and others; plaintiff must establish that defendant was aware of probable dangerous consequences of its conduct and that it willfully and deliberately failed to avoid those consequences. Ehrhardt v. Brunswick, Inc. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 734, 741-742, 231 Cal. Rptr. 60

Evidence as sufficient to support award of punitive damages when (1) defendant had reports from its employees of infections resulting from design of intrauterine device, but continued to market device without change; (2) defendant knew that intrauterine device had been implicated in serious injuries and other severe complications, but did not warn patients or doctors of the risk; and (3) defendant knew that its devices often did not show up on x-rays, but did nothing to increase the devices' opaqueness or to train x-ray technicians in techniques for finding the devices. Hilliard v. A.H. Robins Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 374, 397-398, 196 Cal. Rptr. 117

Public policy in favor of product development as not violated by award of punitive damages in case in which well-designed product was defectively manufactured and defect was concealed by manufacturer for sake of profits and at expense of health and safety of ultimate users. Vossler v. Richards Mfg. Co. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 952, 968, 192 Cal. Rptr. 219 , overruled in part, Adams v. Murakami (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 105, 284 Cal. Rptr. 318, 813 P.2d 1348

Ratio of 20:1 punitive to compensatory damages as not excessive in products liability action in which actual damages were limited and defendant's conduct egregious, so that lesser ratio would have insufficient punitive and deterrent effect. Vossler v. Richards MFg. Co. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 952, 969, 192 Cal. Rptr. 219 , overruled in part, Adams v. Murakami (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 105, 284 Cal. Rptr. 318, 813 P.2d 1348

Punitive damages as most effective remedy for consumer protection against defectively designed, mass-produced articles because governmental safety standards and criminal law provide inadequate protection. Grimshaw v. Ford Motor Co. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 757, 810, 174 Cal. Rptr. 348

Punitive damages as properly awarded in case of automobile's design defects when substantial evidence existed to show manufacturer knew of defects, knew that they would expose consumers to serious injury or death in 20 to 30 mile-per-hour collisions, and could have corrected defects at minimal cost, but by cost-benefit analysis, made conscious decision to defer corrections. Grimshaw v. Ford Motor Co. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 757, 813, 174 Cal. Rptr. 348

Products liability action generated by adverse physical effects of pharmaceuticals as furnishing occasion for award of exemplary damages, provided supplier's conduct satisfies exemplary damage criterion of Civ. Code § 3294. G.D. Searle & Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 22, 26, 122 Cal. Rptr. 218

Corporation as subject to liability for punitive damages for acts of its agents and employees when act is done in ill will, or is motivated by actual malice, or done under circumstances amounting to fraud or oppression, providingact is done with knowledge or under direction of corporate officials having power to bind corporation. Toole v. Richardson-Merrell, Inc. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 689, 711, 60 Cal. Rptr. 398 (action for damages for personal injuries sustained in use of drug manufactured by defendant and prescribed for plaintiff's use by his physician based on negligence, fraud, breach of express and implied warranties, and strict liability in tort)

To justify award of exemplary damages in personal injury action, defendant as required to have acted with intent to vex, injure, or annoy, or with conscious disregard of safety of others. G.D. Searle & Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 122 Cal. Rptr. 218

When malice is ground relied on to support award of punitive damages, malice in fact as required to be established by evidence; malice in fact, sufficient to support award of punitive damages on basis of malice as that term is used in Civ. Code § 3294, as established by showing that defendant's wrongful conduct was willful, intentional, and done in reckless disregard of its possible results. Toole v. Richardson-Merrell, Inc. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 689, 713, 60 Cal. Rptr. 398

Amendment of complaint to allege punitive damages after defense testimony revealed that manufacturer knew of defect at time of sale and deliberately neglected for business reasons to caution customers and unknowing public as proper; conduct as clearly justifying punitive damage charge based on grounds of fraud, malice, and oppression; amendment as required to be limited to nonwrongful death causes of action. Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 228, 240-241, 71 Cal. Rptr. 306 (defective tire blew out causing car to crash, killing driver and injuring other passengers)

[16] Defective Product

[a] Defect Generally

Claims as dismissed for lack of plaintiff proof or expert testimony that design defect caused plaintiff to be blinded after having eye surgery. Chandler v. Chiron Corp. (9th Cir. 1999) 1999 U.S. App. LEXIS 5860 (unpublished; citation restricted)

Evidence of functioning of substantially similar related products as sufficient to prove heating unit in coffee maker was defective. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co. v. Farmers Bros. Co. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 574, 579-580, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 587

Proposition 51 (Civ. Code § 1431 et seq.) as inapplicable in strict products liability case in which plaintiff's injuries were caused solely by defective product. Wimberly v. Derby Cycle Corp. (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 618, 633, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 532

No authority for defendant's implied proposition that deck gun that caused injuries was not defective merely because product itself remained intact or was not damaged in accident. Wright v. Stang Mfg. Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1229, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422

Term "defect" as variously defined, with no definition yet formulated that would resolve all cases and that is universally agreed on. Barker v. Lull Eng'g Co. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 413, 427-428, 143 Cal. Rptr. 225, 573 P.2d 443 ; Jiminez v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 379, 383, 93 Cal. Rptr. 769, 482 P.2d 681

California law of strict products liability as not imposing requirement, embodied in Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A, that product be in "defective condition unreasonably dangerous." Cronin v. J.B.E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 131-135, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153

Plaintiff as not establishing defect by merely proving some subsequent accident or shattering of product. McCurter v. Norton Co. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 402, 407, 69 Cal. Rptr. 493

[b] Design Defect

Plaintiffs failed to establish essential element of their product liability claim--that patient-controlled anesthesia pump was defective or failed to perform as expected because it administered extra, unrecorded morphine. Miller v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (9th Cir. Jan. 12, 2006) 2006 U.S. App. LEXIS 2356, at *4-*9 (not appropriate for publication)

Plaintiff merely tracked elements of a design defect claim without pleading facts identifying what aspect of ski bindings made their design defective. He should have described how bindings failed to meet minimum safety expectations of ordinary consumers. Regarding risk-benefit test, plaintiff needed to allege how bindings' design was a substantial factor in causing his injuries. *Altman v. Ho Sports Co. (E.D. Cal. Nov. 19, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 108971, at *23-24

Plaintiff need not prove existence of feasible alternative design to prevail in design defect claim. *Yu-Santos v. Ford Motor Co. (E.D. Cal. May 13, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 41001, at 49

Under the consumer expectations test, the relevant inquiry is whether the ordinary consumer of the defendant's product would have minimum safety assumptions about the products that were not met. *Vanier v. Battery Handling Sys. (E.D. Cal. Sept. 12, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 71091, at *17-23

Whether plaintiff's crush injury resulting when hand he used to guide control cable out of way became caught between upper and lower portion of handle was within ordinary consumer expectations was for jury. *Jordan v. Deere & Co. (E.D. Cal. July 5, 2006) 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 47904, at 10

It was not necessary to show that taser was inherently dangerous to bring strict liability design defect claim against its manufacturer. *Rosa v. City of Seaside (N.D. Cal. March 7, 2006) 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12530, at *9-10 (not for publication)

It was a question of fact whether toaster was defectively designed either because it lacked sufficient insulation or because thermoplastic knob was not adequately secured. Charter Oak Fire Ins. Co. v. Sodexho Marriot (N.D. Cal. Feb. 27, 2006) 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9567, at *14-*15 (not designated for publication)

Aircraft manufacturer has no legal duty to require airlines to configure seats to maximize passenger safety because duty would lead to untenable result of manufacturer becoming liable for any purchaser's use or misuse of product. In re Deep Vein Thrombosis (N.D. Cal. 2005) 356 F. Supp. 2d 1055, 1066

Under risk/benefit design defect theory, plaintiff must show that product was actually "used." Torres v. City of Madera (In re Torres) (E.D. Cal. July 11, 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 34672, at *27 , applying California law

Consumer expectations test applies to raw asbestos as well as to finished asbestos products. Court distinguished Walker v. Stauffer Chem. Corp. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 669, 96 Cal. Rptr. 803 (1971) . Garza v. Asbestos Corp. (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 651, 659-660, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 359

Manufacturer's argument that plaintiff failed to establish existence of safer alternative designed failed, where court did not instruct jury that such proof was essential. Bullock v. Philip Morris USA, Inc. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 655, 674-675, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 775

Liability under consumer expectations test could stand in light of evidence of manufacturer's efforts to mislead smokers about dangers of cigarettes and about smokers' vulnerability to such manipulation. Bullock v. Philip Morris USA, Inc. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 655, 675, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 775

Plaintiff was not entitled to prove her design defect claims relating to tire failure under consumer expectations test. Stephen v. Ford Motor Co. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1363, 1370, n.6, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 9

Although the defendant's expert testified that the airbag performed in accordance with its intended design, it offered no evidence that the benefits of the design outweighed its inherent risks. Gonzalez v. Autoliv ASP, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal.

App. 4th 780, 788, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908

Consumer expectations test applied to plaintiff's asbestos claim; test does not require inquiry into how exposure to particular level of asbestos may lead to development of cancer but merely asks whether circumstances permit inference that product's design performed below commonly accepted minimum safety assumptions of its ordinary consumer. Jones v. John Crane, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 990, 1001-1002, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144

Evidence supported jury's finding that "light" cigarettes were defective product under consumer expectations test. Boeken v. Philip Morris Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1668, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638

Issues of fact precluded finding that consumer expectations test was inapplicable as matter of law. Issues of material fact existed as to circumstances of accident, i.e., speed and collision range, and plaintiff provided sufficient evidence for jury to infer that nondeployment of air bag, in context of high-speed, head-on collision, violated minimum safety expectations of ordinary consumer. McCabe v. American Honda Motor Co. (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1111, 1122, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303

Court properly restricted plaintiffs from seeking jury instructions pursuant to consumer expectations test. Particular circumstances of latex gloves' failure could not be fairly evaluated according to common reason, experience, and understanding of ordinary consumer, regarding whether design performed below legitimate, commonly accepted minimum safety assumptions of such consumers. Morson v. Superior Court (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 775, 791-794, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 343

In case in which car air bag deployed and injured plaintiff, consumer expectations test as not applying because deployment of air bag was not within everyday experience of consuming public. Pruitt v. General Motors Corp. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1480, 1483, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 4

Evidence of package warnings as admissible in design defect case to prove that product's design embodies excessive preventable danger. Hansen v. Sunnyside Products, Inc. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1497, 1512, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 266

Uniqueness of purchaser's order did not alter manufacturer's responsibilities and was no defense; triable issues of fact existed on issue of whether or not deck gun was defectively designed in that it was not manufactured with flange mounting system or capability to have such system attached. Wright v. Stang Mfg. Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1229, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422

Consumer expectation test as applying in asbestos products liability action. Arena v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1178, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580 ; Morton v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 1529, 1534-1536, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 22 ; Sparks v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 461, 475-476, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 739

Consumer expectation test applied in case against manufacturers of allegedly defective automobile air bags in which "crashworthiness" was at issue. Bresnahan v. Chrysler Corp. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 1155, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 804 ; Bresnahan v. Chrysler Corp. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1559, 1567-1569, 38 Cal Rptr. 2d 446

Evidence of product's safety history as admissible to prove design defect. Benson v. Honda Motor Co. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1337, 1344, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 322

Absence of pole or bar in front of seat on bus, that passenger could hold on sharp turns or sudden shifts, as establishing prima facie case of design defect. Campbell v. General Motors Corp. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 112, 119-122, 127, 184 Cal. Rptr. 891, 649 P.2d 224

Product as defective in design if either (1) product failed to perform safely as ordinary consumer would expect when used in intended or reasonably foreseeable manner, or (2) benefits of challenged design are outweighed by its inherent risk of danger. Barker v. Lull Eng'g Co. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 413, 432, 143 Cal. Rptr. 225, 573 P.2d 443

Product as not required to be found defective simply because accident has occurred. Henderson v. Harnischfeger Corp. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 663, 676, 117 Cal. Rptr. 1, 527 P.2d 353 (crane); Baker v. Chrysler Corp. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 710, 716, 127 Cal. Rptr. 745 (automobile)

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as applicable to defect in design as well as to defect in manufacture. Pike v. Frank G. Hough Co. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 465, 475-477, 85 Cal. Rptr. 629, 467 P.2d 229 (earth-moving equipment); Smith v. Dhy-Dynamic Co. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 852, 858-859, 107 Cal. Rptr. 907 (earth-moving equipment)

Failure to include instruction regarding manufacturing defect as proper when testimony of witnesses and argument of counsel related exclusively to asserted defect in design. Dierks v. Mitsubishi Motors Corp. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 352, 355-357, 256 Cal. Rptr. 230

Evidence that product was designed in accordance with current state of art as admissible to determine whether product defective under risk-benefit analysis. Rosburg v. Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 726, 735, 226 Cal. Rptr. 299

Consumer expectation instruction under Barker v. Lull Engineering as not appropriate when no expert testimony was introduced regarding reasonable expectations of users of specialized machinery claimed to be defective because of lack of warning. Lunghi v. Clark Equip. Co. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 485, 496, 200 Cal. Rptr. 387

Piece of machinery otherwise not defective as potentially defective if installed near other equipment and combined with other equipment to create danger to foreseeable users; whether or not manufacturer of machinery had duty to anticipate dangers posed by other equipment near machinery and to protect forseeable users from those dangers as question of fact. De Leon v. Commercial Mfg. & Supply Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 336, 344-347, 195 Cal. Rptr. 867

Jury's special verdict finding product defective based only on second alternative under Barker v. Lull Engineering (risk-benefit test) as not erroneous merely because jury also finds that benefits of design outweigh risks, because instruction on consumer exception prong of Barker affords basis for finding defendant strictly liable. Curtis v. State of California (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 668, 690-691, 180 Cal. Rptr. 843

Two-pronged definition of design defect under Barker v. Lull Engineering, consisting of "consumer expectation" standard, and "risk-benefit" test, asalternative tests, and jury instruction referring to only one as sufficient. Grimshaw v. Ford Motor Co. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 757, 802, 174 Cal. Rptr. 348

Jury instruction on risk-benefit test for design defect as required to include element of manufacturer's burden of proof. Grimshaw v. Ford Motor Co. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 757, 803, 174 Cal. Rptr. 348

Comparison of product's design to others in industry as inappropriate consideration in jury instruction regarding determination of existence of design defect. Grimshaw v. Ford Motor Co. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 757, 803, 174 Cal. Rptr. 348

Requiring injured plaintiff who seeks damages against manufacturer on basis of strict liability in tort for defective design to show that alternative designs for product could reasonably have been developed as not enlarging plaintiff's burden of proof; injured plaintiff as always having had burden to prove existence of defect; reasonableness of alternative designs where design defect is claimed as part of that burden. Garcia v. Joseph Vince Co. (1978) 84 Cal.

App. 3d 868, 879, 148 Cal. Rptr. 843 ; contra Bernal v. Richard Wolf Med. Instruments Corp. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1326, 1333, 272 Cal. Rptr. 41 ; overruled in part on other grounds in Soule v. General Motors Corp. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 548, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 607, 882 P.2d 298

Doctrine of strict liability as applicable to defectively placed water heater in home, because design of residential building resulted in injury. Hyman v. Gordon (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 769, 772, 111 Cal. Rptr. 262

Product as defective if it lacks safety devices necessary to its reasonable safety. Garcia v. Halsett (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 319, 323, 82 Cal. Rptr. 420 (commercial washing machine)

Plaintiffs may not hold a gun manufacturer liable on a common law negligence theory because the legislature has declared as a matter of public policy that a gun manufacturer may not be held liable in a products liability action on the basis that the benefits of its product do not outweigh the risk of injury posed by the product's potential to cause serious injury, damage, or death when discharged. Cal. Civ. Code § 1714.4(a); Merrill v. Navegar, Inc. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 465, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370, 28 P.3d 116

[c] Failure to Warn

Plaintiff was not sophisticated user of ladder. The manufacturer could not avoid liability by merely including a warning in lettering that was only 1/16" high, because a question of fact existed as to whether it could reasonably anticipate that user would not heed warning. *Herrera v. Louisville Ladder Group, LLC (C.D. Cal. Nov. 16, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 107384, at 7-9

Plaintiff failed to state defective warning claim because he did not identify how warning was inadequate, i.e., complaint did not identify the specific danger that required a warning. *Altman v. Ho Sports Co. (E.D. Cal. Nov. 19, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 108971, at 25

Plaintiff failed to establish that risk of metabolic acidosis from Tasers was known or knowable. *Rosa v. City of Seaside (N.D. Cal. Nov. 20, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 108602, at *16-23 (not designated for publication)

Genuine issue of material fact existed as to whether plaintiff was sophisticated user of ladder at time of his injury. *Castellanos v. Louisville Ladder, Inc. (N.D. Cal. May 11, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 40547, at 3

Manufacturer provided no evidence that labelling to its hip replacement system included FDA-approved warnings, and was not entitled to summary judgment on plaintiff's failure to warn claim. Notmeyer v. Stryker Corp. (N.D. Cal. 2007) 502 F. Supp. 2d 1051, 1060

It was a question of fact as to whether user's guide adequately warned against danger of electric shock from prescribed use of toaster. Charter Oak Fire Ins. Co. v. Sodexho Marriot (N.D. Cal. Feb. 27, 2006) 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9567, at *16 (not designated for publication)

Despite defendants' argument that any potential hazards associated with jaw die change-out were obvious or known to plaintiff, genuine issue of fact existed as to whether defendants should have warned users of rock-crushing machine's dangers. Salyards v. Metso Minerals Tampere Oy (E.D. Cal. Nov. 10, 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 29360, at *18-*22

There is no duty to warn about dangers that plaintiff knew about at time plaintiff used product; plaintiff knew about potential for "weapon confusion." Torres v. City of Madera (E.D. Cal. July 11, 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 34672, at *40 , applying California law

Court expressly adopted sophisticated user defense, which relieves manufacturers of duty to provide warnings about product's potential hazards of which users are or should be already aware. Defense applies to both strict liability and negligent failure to warn cases. Moreover, duty to warn is measured by actual or constructive knowledge of class of sophisticated users, rather than by individual plaintiff's subjective knowledge. Time for determining user sophistication for purposes of defense is time of injury. Johnson v. American Standard, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 56, 65-73, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108, 179 P.3d 905

Prescription drug manufacturer is strictly liable for failure to warn of dangers that were known, or reasonably scientifically knowable at the time drug was manufactured and distributed. Carlin v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 1104, 1110, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162, 920 P.2d 1347

Manufacturers of Malathion used by the State under Emergency Services Act as not responsible for disseminating public health warnings to supplement governmental health warnings which differed markedly from manufacturers' Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) approved label. Macias v. State of California (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 844, 853-860, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 592, 897 P.2d 530

Prescription drug manufacturer's compliance with statutes and regulations governing warnings required to accompany product as constituting defense to action alleging that failure to warn in Spanish was basis for defendant's liability. Ramirez v. Plough, Inc. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 539, 549-553, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 97, 863 P.2d 167

Sophisticated user defense applies to negligent failure-to-warn cause of action on negligence per se theory, but not to strict liability design defect cause of action. Johnson v. Honeywell Int'l Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 549, 554, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726

Defendant was not liable for failure to warn because it did not supply the asbestos-containing gaskets used in its valves. Merrill v. Leslie Controls, Inc. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 262, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614

Suppliers of components to a propulsion system had no duty to warn of dangers of asbestos-containing components supplied by other parties. Taylor v. Elliott Turbomachinery Co. (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 564, 580-583, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 414

Plaintiff did not identify any particular risk known to the airbag module manufacturer for which it should have provided a warning. Gonzalez v. Autoliv ASP, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 780, 793, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908

Encyclopedia and medical articles, together with published standards for airborne asbestos dust, supported jury's finding that risks associated with defendant's products could reasonably have been ascertained. Jones v. John Crane, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 990, 1004-1005, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144

Danger of diving into shallow aboveground pool was not open and obvious to 11-year-old as matter of law. Bunch v. Hoffinger Indus., Inc. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1278, 1299-1300, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 780

Defendant failed to establish that potential dangers of operating deck gun were generally known or actually known by plaintiff. Wright v. Stang Mfg. Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1231, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422

Defendant's actual or constructive knowledge of danger as requisite for strict liability for failure to warn. Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 1000, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549

Prescription drug manufacturer as not strictly liable for injuries caused by unavoidably unsafe drug so long as drug was properly prepared and accompanied by warnings of dangerous propensities that were either known or reasonably scientifically knowable at the time of distribution. Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1069, 245 Cal.

Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470 (adopting Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A, comment k)

There is no duty to warn of possibility of rare, idiosyncratic, or unusual reactions to otherwise useful product, and distributor's failure to warn that TB test contained animal products was not sufficiently likely to result in serious harm to significant segment of population so as to impose duty to so advise as matter of law. Friedman v. Merck & Co. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 454, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 885

Manufacturers and successor manufacturers of general aviation aircraft parts in relation to duty to warn and federal preemption. Burroughs v. Precision Airmotive Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 681, 702

Restaurant as strictly liable for failing to warn customers in context of food allergies, even though product itself was not defective. Livingston v. Marie Callenders, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 830, 839, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 528

Strict liability for failure to warn as applicable in context of allergies; restaurant may be strictly liable for failing to warn customers about additives in food served; defendant may be liable if its product contained ingredient to which substantial number of the population is allergic, ingredient is one whose danger is not generally known, or if known is not one which customer would reasonably expect to find in product, and defendant knew or should have known that ingredient was present and was dangerous. Livingston v. Marie Callenders, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 830, 839, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 528

Finding by one jury that defendant's product was not defective because of failure to warn precluded second jury from finding that defendant was negligent for failing to warn of risks of product. Valentine v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (1999) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1467, 1481-1482, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 252

Negligence liability based on failure to warn as not precluded by jury determination that product was not defective. Hernandez v. Badger Constr. (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1791, 1827-1828, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732

Fact that some intended recipients of warning understood content of warning as not precluding liability if warning was not adequate to warn injured user; negligence in explaining (or failing to explain) unclear warning to those who did not understand it as foreseeable. Huynh v. Ingersoll-Rand (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 825, 833-835, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296

Whether warning is adequate is usually question of fact; although MSDS pointed out certain hazards associated with unprotected use of solvent, including dermatitis, liver damage is far more likely to have devastating effect than dermatitis, and therefore defendants failed to show that warnings provided were adequate as matter of law. Schwoerer v. Union Oil Co. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 103, 111-112, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227

Proof of defendant's actual or constructive knowledge as not required for imposing strict liability when defendant admitted knowledge of danger, and failed to place warning on product. McKinney v. Revlon, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 602, 606-608, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 72

Whether warning is adequate depends on several factors, including normal expectations of consumer, degrees of simplicity or complication in product's operation or use, nature and magnitude of danger to which user is exposed, likelihood of injury, and feasibility and beneficial effect of including warning; defendants failed to establish that labels on their paint products were adequate as matter of law. Jackson v. Deft, Inc. (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1305, 1320, 273 Cal. Rptr. 214

In cause of action brought by commercial user of chemicals against chemical companies, alleging strict products liability based on failure to warn of dangers of improper disposal of inherently dangerous and ultrahazardous chemicals, plaintiffs as required to allege that: (1) plaintiffs were foreseeable users, using chemicals in foreseeable manner; (2) chemicals were dangerous to environment if deposited directly in ground; (3) plaintiffs did not know of dangers of improper disposal; (4) defendants failed to warn plaintiffs of dangers; and (5) ignorant of dangers, plaintiffs failed to guard against ground contamination. Selma Pressure Treating Co. v. Osmose Wood Preserving, Inc. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1601, 1621, 271 Cal. Rptr. 596 , distinguished, Johnson v. American Standard, Inc. (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 56, 70, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 108, 179 P.2d 905

Cause of action for strict products liability under Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470 , as sufficiently stated against manufacturer of baby aspirin for purposes of withstanding motion for judgment on pleadings, based on allegations that: (1) use of aspirin was reasonably foreseeable by defendant, (2) use involved substantial, foreseeable danger, and (3) adequate warnings were not given; distinction between prescription and nonprescription drugs as irrelevant at pleading stage. Rodriguez v. Superior Court (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1374, 271 Cal. Rptr. 114

Requirement of giving warnings as not limited to unavoidably dangerous or unsafe products. Gonzales v. Carmenita Ford Truck Sales, Inc. (1987) 192 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 238 Cal. Rptr. 18

One manufacturer's failure to warn as not proximate cause of injury resulting from explosion of another manufacturer's product absent allegations that (1) product of manufacturer allegedly liable for failure to warn, which had been previously used by injured person, and product causing injury were subject to same generic description; (2) products were generally used for same purposes by consumers; (3) product warnings regarding both products were inadequate; and (4) both products had identical risks of use. Powell v. Standard Brands Paint Co. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 357, 365, 212 Cal. Rptr. 395

Seller of acid was not liable for failure to warn of danger from formation of pressure caused by defective design of a tank car. Blackwell v. Phelps Dodge Corp. (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 372, 375, 203 Cal. Rptr. 706

Failure to give adequate warnings as potential basis for strict liability of manufacturer or distributor that knew or should have known of the danger and necessity of warnings to ensure safe use; trial court's refusal to instruct jury that failure to warn may constitute defect as reversible error despite special verdict of no defect. Lunghi v. Clark Equipment Co. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 485, 493-494, 200 Cal. Rptr. 387 (front-end loader); DeLeon v. Commercial Manufacturing & Supply Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 336, 343, 195 Cal. Rptr. 867 (cannery bin)

In action alleging strict liability (inter alia), arising from death of hot-air balloon owner, resulting from failure of Velcro fastener used in construction of balloon without Velcro manufacturer's knowledge and despite its attempts to have Federal Aviation Administration issue warnings regarding danger inherent in product's use in that manner, Velcro manufacturer's warning to that effect, mailed to all registered balloon owners, as adequate as matter of law. Temple v. Velcro USA, Inc. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 1090, 1094-1095, 196 Cal. Rptr. 531

Manufacturer as not liable for inadequate warnings regarding safe use of product when product sold in bulk, with adequate warnings, to distributor who packages, labels, and markets product. Groll v. Shell Oil Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 444, 449-450, 196 Cal. Rptr. 52

CO[2] cartridges as not defective for failure to bear warning that others could be harmed if cartridges are used to power pellet guns; seller need not add warning when the danger or potentiality of danger is generally known and recognized. Holmes v. J. C. Penney Co. (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 216, 220, 183 Cal. Rptr. 777

Instructions for use of stove as not inadequate by virtue of manufacturer's failure to warn of danger of lighting stove without first checking for gas leak, in action based on explosion caused by defect in copper tubing and joints between propane gas tank and hot water heater. Garman v. Magic Chef, Inc. (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 634, 637-638, 173 Cal. Rptr. 20

Distributor not required to include warning of potential dangers of slingshot because they were generally known and recognized. Bojorquez v. House of Toys, Inc. (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 930, 933, 133 Cal. Rptr. 483

Product requiring assembly and use in conformity with supplier's directions as defective if supplier fails to warn adequately of circumstances created by assembly or use that would render product dangerous to user. Midgley v. S.S. Kresge Co. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 67, 74, 127 Cal. Rptr. 217 (telescope)

No warning as required regarding use that is not reasonably foreseeable. Dosier v. Wilcox-Crittendon Co. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 74, 81, 119 Cal. Rptr. 135

In action based on strict products liability, to recover damages from manufacturers and distributor of weed-killing chemical products that allegedly caused severe systemic skin condition for failure to warn of danger, plaintiff as having burden of proving that seller knew, or by application of reasonable, developed human skill and foresight should have known, of presence of ingredient in product to which substantial number of population is allergic and danger created by ingredient. Oakes v. E.I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co., Inc. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 645, 649-651, 77 Cal. Rptr. 709

In a survival action against a drug manufacturer for damages sustained while using their drug, partial summary judgment was denied to the defendant for their failure to establish that the FDA's approval of manufacturer's proposed warnings preempted plaintiff from asserting state law tort claims based on failure to warn of a suicide risk. Motus v. Pfizer, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2000) 127 F. Supp. 2d 1085, 1100-1101

[d] Manufacturing Defect

Circumstantial evidence created a triable issue of fact as to whether femoral head to hip replacement contained a manufacturing defect. Notmeyer v. Stryker Corp. (N.D. Cal. 2007) 502 F. Supp. 2d 1051, 1059-1060

Plaintiff presented no evidence that the airbag module performed differently from other identical units and failed to establish a manufacturing defect. Gonzalez v. Autoliv ASP, Inc. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 780, 791, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908

Plaintiff failed to show that latex gloves--which were manufactured precisely as intended, complied with government standards, and fulfilled their primary barrier function--nevertheless had manufacturing defects due to existence of evidence of manufacturer's improvement efforts, targets, and goals, at different times and locations, reflective of available state of scientific knowledge regarding latex protein levels of exposure. In re Coordinated Latex Glove Litig. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 594, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 301, 315-316

Speculative harm as insufficient basis for negligence cause of action in manufacturing defect case. Zamora v. Shell Oil Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 204, 210-211, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762

Manufacturing defect as existing when product unit deviates from manufacturer's intended result or from other ostensibly identical units of same product line. Barker v. Lull Engineering Co. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 413, 143 Cal. Rptr. 225, 573 P.2d 443

Plaintiff whose case was limited to manufacturing defect, and who did not rely on defect in design or failure to warn, as entitled to have court give BAJI No. 9.00.3 (definition of manufacturing defect) instead of BAJI No. 9.00 (general instruction re liability for defect) as jury would not have been misled or confused as result of instruction; however, error as not prejudicial, since factual record showed that jury was capable of determining existence of defect due to instruction given and obvious nature of alleged defect. Montez v. Ford Motor Co. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 315, 321-322, 161 Cal. Rptr. 578 (automobile steering assembly)

In strict products liability action arising out of car collision in which tie rod broke when brakes were applied, mere proof that tie rod broke as not establishing that it was defective at time of delivery of car to plaintiff some 33 months before accident. Moerer v. Ford Motor Co. (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 114, 116, 129 Cal. Rptr. 112

Although product may be nondefective in design, failure of manufacturer to comply with its own design requirements as resulting in defect of assembly or manufacture. Lewis v. American Hoist & Derrick Co. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 570, 580, 97 Cal. Rptr. 798 (crane)

[17] Defendants

In diversity action alleging design and manufacturing defects against manufacturer of allegedly defective surgical implant device, failure to join doctor and hospital (against whom plaintiff filed administrative proceeding and state-court action) as not requiring dismissal of complaint under Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 19(b) (regarding indispensable parties) because tortfeasor with usual joint-and-several liability is merely permissive party to action against another with like liability. Temple v. Synthes Corporation, Ltd. (1990) 498 U.S. 5, 111 S. Ct. 315, 112 L. Ed. 2d 263, 267-268

Sales representative for company that manufactured wakeboard boots was not subject to products liability. *Altman v. Ho Sports Co. (E.D. Cal. Aug. 20, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 80662, at 9

Aircraft manufacturer was not liable in multidistrict litigation alleging that seating on its aircraft was defective because it created risk of deep vein thrombosis in passengers; manufacturer did not deliver aircraft to airlines for them to complete manufacturing process, but sold aircraft to airlines, which were free to do whatever they desired with purchased aircraft; manufacturer was not liable as integral part of overall producing and marketing enterprise of commercial airline economic market. In re Deep Vein Thrombosis (N.D. Cal. 2005) 356 F. Supp. 2d 1055, 1063

Neither landlords nor hotel proprietors are subject to strict products liability for injuries to tenants and guests caused by defect in premises; unlike retailers, landlords and hotel owners often are unable to exert pressure on manufacturers to make products safer and cannot share with manufacturer costs of insuring tenants' or guests' safety; landlords and hotel owners cannot necessarily be expected to possess expert knowledge concerning components that comprise leased dwellings. Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1189-1209, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905 , overruling Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116

Defendant who played no role indesign, manufacture, distribution, or marketing of injury-causing product is not subject to strict products liability; court refused to impose liability on developer of asbestos-containing product, because its historic role in the design, manufacture, and marketing of product did not support plaintiff's claims. Cadlo v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 513, 516, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 , modified, 2004 Cal. App. LEXIS 2260

Under "stream of commerce" approach to strict liability in tort, liability extends to all those who are in "overall producing and marketing enterprise." Fortman v. Hemco, Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 241, 259 Cal. Rptr. 311

Liability falls in some proportion on all parties that have mutually participated in, in dependent, interrelated way, in designing, assembling, and marketing defective product. Gehl Bros. Mfg. Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 178, 186, 228 Cal. Rptr. 19

[18] Definitions

In literature of law, "fault" as synonymous with "negligence." Cahill Bros., Inc. v. Clementina Co. (1970) 208 Cal. App. 2d 367, 380, 25 Cal. Rptr. 301

[19] Delegation of Duty by Manufacturer

Rules relating to strict liability in tort as focusing responsibility for defects, whether negligently or nonnegligently caused, on manufacturer of completed product and as applying regardless of what part of manufacturing process manufacturer chooses to delegate to third parties. Vandermark v. Ford Motor Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 256, 261, 37 Cal. Rptr. 896, 391 P.2d 168

Automobile manufacturer that delivers to its dealers cars that are not ready to be driven away by ultimate purchasers but relies on its dealers to make final inspections, corrections, and adjustments necessary to make cars ready for use as not able to delegate its duty to have cars delivered to ultimate purchaser free from dangerous defects and, hence, as not able to escape liability on ground defect in particular car may have been caused by something one of its authorized dealers did or failed to do. Vandermark v. Ford Motor Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 256, 261, 37 Cal. Rptr. 896, 391 P.2d 168

[20] Elements of Cause of Action

Plaintiff failed to establish a triable question of fact with respect to the elements of a strict liability, negligence, or warranty cause of action. *McGrath v. Cirrus Design Corp. (N.D. Cal. Dec. 12, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 91318, at 7

Allegation that defendant-manufacturer actually manufactured defective product as ordinarily prerequisite to imposition of liability; exceptions and limitations to requirement. Sindell v. Abbott Labs. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 597-598, 610-613, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132, 607 P.2d 924

Manufacturers and designers of products as strictly liable in tort for injuries caused by their products when following four elements are present: (1) product is placed on market; (2) there is knowledge it will be used without inspection for defects; (3) product proves to have a defect; and (4) defect causes injury to human being. Baker v. Chrysler Corp. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 710, 715, 127 Cal. Rptr. 745

[21] Evidence

[a] Circumstantial

Plaintiff as permitted to prove strict liability case by circumstantial evidence. Elmore v. American Motors Corp. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 578, 583-584, 75 Cal. Rptr. 652, 451 P.2d 84 ; Vandermark v. Ford Motor Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 256, 260, 37 Cal. Rptr. 896, 391 P.2d 168 ; Hughes Tool Co. v. Max Hinrichs Seed Co. (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 194, 169 Cal. Rptr. 160 ; Johnson v. Standard Brands Paint Co. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 331, 338 , 79 Rptr. 194; Van Zee v. Bayview Hardware Store (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 351, 361, 74 Cal. Rptr. 21

Circumstantial evidence created a triable issue of fact as to whether the femoral head to hip replacement contained a manufacturing defect. Notmeyer v. Stryker Corp. (N.D. Cal. 2007) 502 F. Supp. 2d 1051, 1059-1060

Design defect as capable of proof by circumstantial evidence even if product itself has been destroyed. Hughes Tool Co. v. Max Hinrichs Seed Co. (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 194, 201, 169 Cal. Rptr. 160

[a.1] Compliance With Industry Standards

Trial court refused to give an instruction that compliance with government standards cannot be considered as a basis for assessing the safety of a product in a design defect claim. Instead, it instructed the jury that evidence of FDA action or inaction, although not dispositive, may be considered to show whether a drug is safe or not safe. The appellate court found no error. O'Neill v. Novartis Consumer Health, Inc. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1395-1396

Manufacturer cannot defend product liability action with evidence that it met its industry's customs or standards on safety. Grimshaw v. Ford Motor Co. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 757, 803, 174 Cal. Rptr. 348

[b] Expert Witnesses

In case involving collagen implants, court improperly applied Daubert test because it failed to consider relevant scientific evidence relied on by plaintiff's expert to support his conclusion Kennedy v. Collagen Corp. (9th Cir. 1998) 161 F.3d 1226, 1227

Court properly concluded that testimony based on "whole person aggravation" theory of causation did not meet Daubert's standard. Schudel v. General Electric Co. (9th Cir. 1997) 120 F.3d 991, 995-996

Occupant restraint systems expert with master's degree in mechanical engineering was qualified to testify regarding seat belt defects. His testimony that front seat belt broke either because the webbing separated or because the retractor allowed excessive spooling satisfied *Daubert. Yu-Santos v. Ford Motor Co. (E.D. Cal. May 13, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 41001, at *19-21

Whether expert failed to comply with NFPA 921 by not considering other possible ignition sources went to weight, not admissibility, of his testimony. *Wawanesa Gen. Ins. Co. v. Applica Consumer Prods., Inc. (S.D. Cal. Oct. 23, 2008) 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 86938, at 11

Cardiologist's opinion that 200 mg dose of Celebrex can increase risk of heart attacks was not "good science" because witness first identified his conclusion and then "cherry-picked" observational studies that supported it. However, plaintiffs' general causation testimony regarding Celebrex 400 mg/d was supported by clinical study and was admissible. In re Bextra & Celebrex Mktg. Sales Practices & Prod. Liab. Litig. (N.D. Cal. 2007) 524 F. Supp. 2d 1166, 1176-1181

Court granted in part and denied in part defendant's motion to exclude expert testimony that polyurethane foam-coated breast implants causeddecedent's breast cancer. In re Silicone Gel Breasts Implants Prods. Liab. Litig. (Cagle v. Cooper Cos.) (C.D. Cal. 2004) 318 F. Supp. 2d 879, 887

California Supreme Court granted review of question of whether the Kelly/Frye standard for admitting results of new scientific techniques should be modified. Court answered in negative, concluding that the Kelly/Frye formulation should remain prerequisite to admission of expert testimony regarding new scientific methodology. People v. Leahy (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 587, 882 P.2d 321, 325

Nonsuit as properly granted in action based on strict liability for damages for personal injuries and wrongful death resulting from flood that swept away house with its occupants, when jury was incapable of determining without expert testimony that house was defective and plaintiffs presented no expert testimony regarding existence of defect in house. Miller v. Los Angeles County Flood Control Dist. (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 689, 704, 106 Cal. Rptr. 1, 505 P.2d 193

Kelly standard for admission of novel scientific methodology did not apply to testimony that some cases in a study regarding the association between PPA and stroke were misclassified. O'Neill v. Novartis Consumer Health, Inc. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1397

Experts generally conduct visual and tactile examinations of failed tires to rule out other possible causes, but this expert relied exclusively on supposedly similar tire failures and amateur photographs to support conclusion that tire was defective; expert's opinions were thus mere speculation. Stephen v. Ford Motor Co. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1363, 1372-1373

Plaintiffs' expert based general causation opinion on study that analyzed prior epidemiological studies of painters' exposure to dozens of chemicals; study concluded that painters experienced 40 percent greater incidence of lung cancer and 20 percent greater incidence of various other types of cancer than did general population; trial court properly excluded testimony; matter that provides reasonable basis for one opinion does not necessarily provide reasonable basis for another opinion; court construed Evid. Code § 801(b) to mean that matter relied on must provide reasonable basis for particular opinion offered, and that expert opinion based on speculation or conjecture is inadmissible. Lockheed Litigation Cases (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 558, 563-565, 10 Cal. Rptr. 3d 34

When product fails to extent that examination can furnish no clue regarding specific part that failed, (1) facts indicating that accident occurred shortly after sale of product, (2) facts indicating that plaintiff did nothing to bring about accident, and (3) expert testimony suggesting defect was responsible for the accident as sufficient to allow jury to decide whether or not defendants are strictly liable for plaintiff's injuries. Hinckley v. La Mesa R.V. Center, Inc. (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 630, 642-643, 205 Cal. Rptr. 22

In case of defectively designed car, court as properly permitting plaintiffs to directly examine defendant's former engineering executive regarding his forced early retirement due to his views on safety when such testimony established witness's professional experience, and was relevant to issue of malice on claim for punitive damages. Grimshaw v. Ford Motor Co. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 757, 786, 174 Cal. Rptr. 348

Circumstantial evidence as proper basis for expert witness opinion. Cravens, Dargan & Co. v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 594, 598-599, 105 Cal. Rptr. 607

Court as not abusing its discretion under Evid. Code § 352 (excluding probative evidence outweighed by prejudicial effect) in refusing to exclude expert testimony of medical doctor on effects of toluene poisoning, in action based on strict liabiltiy and negligence for personal injuries caused by use of adhesive containing toluene in course of employment, when doctor qualified as expert on effects on children of glue-sniffing. Ruiz v. Minnesota Ming & Mfg. Co. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 462, 468, 93 Cal. Rptr. 270

[c] Other Accidents

Knowledge of prior similar accidents is particularly important in actions alleging failure to warn of an alleged defect. Benson v. Honda Motor Co. (1994) 26 Cal. App. 4th 1337, 1345, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 322

Evidence of prior accidents is admissible to prove defective condition, knowledge, or cause of accident, provided that circumstances of other accidents are similar and not too remote. Elsworth v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 540, 555, 208 Cal. Rptr. 874, 691 P.2d 630

Evidence of previous automobile accidents offered to show that defendant manufacturer had notice of dangerous condition of automobile as admissible if they occurred under circumstances substantially similar to those of case at hand, and jury as justifiably inferring that earlier incidents were result of same defect as complained of in instant case. Hasson v. Ford Motor Co. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 388, 404, 185 Cal. Rptr. 654, 650 P.2d 1171

In products liability actions, evidence of subsequent accident may be as relevant as prior accident to show existence of defect or causation. Simmons v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 341, 365, 133 Cal. Rptr. 42

Evidence of other accidents as admissible to prove defective condition, knowledge, or cause of accident, provided circumstances of other accidents are similar and not overly remote. Ault v. International Harvester Co. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 113, 121-122, 117 Cal. Rptr. 812, 528 P.2d 1148

[d] Res Ipsa Loquitur

Res ipsa loquitur as having no application to strict products liability. Lewis v. American Hoist & Derrick Co. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 570, 579, 97 Cal. Rptr. 798

Doctrine of res ipsa loquitur as relating to cases involving negligence, and as not applicable in cases based on strict products liability or breach of warranty. Tresham v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 403, 407, 79 Cal. Rptr. 883

[e] Safety Orders

Cal-OSHA regulations inadmissible under Lab. Code § 6304.5 in action by employee against manufacturer of equipment that caused injury. Widson v. International Harvester Co. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 45, 51-52, 200 Cal. Rptr. 136

[f] Subsequent Remedial Measures

Evidence of subsequent remedial measures taken by a third party is admissible. *Scherer v. Home Depot U.S.A., Inc. (E.D. Cal. Oct. 23, 2006) 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 79126, at 6 (ladder)

Evid. Code § 1151 (evidence of subsequent remedial or precautionary measure inadmissible to prove negligence or culpable misconduct) as inapplicable to action based on strict products liability. Schelbauer v. Butler Manufacturing Co. (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 442, 450-452, 198 Cal. Rptr. 155, 673 P.2d 743 ; Ault v. International Harvester Co. (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 113, 117-121, 117 Cal. Rptr. 812, 528 P.2d 1148

In action against elevator manufacturer alleging design defect, Evid. Code § 1151 (limiting use at trial of evidence of remedial measures) as precluding evidence of subsequent remedial measures taken by nonparty employer of plaintiff, when liability of employer, if any, would be based on negligence; inclusion of strict-liability theory in complaint against defendant manufacturer as not controlling. Santilli v. Otis Elevator Co. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 210, 213, 263 Cal. Rptr. 496

Plaintiff in strict products liability action as permitted to introduce evidence of subsequent repairs made to product to cure defect; Evid. Code § 1151 (limiting use of proof of subsequent repairs) as not applicable to strict products liability actions. Magnante v. Pettibone-Wood Manufacturing Co. (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 764, 766-767, 228 Cal. Rptr. 420

[22] Forum Non Conveniens

District court did not abuse discretion in dismissing strict liability action arising out of air crash in Scotland on forum non conveniens grounds; possibility of unfavorable change in law does not bar dismissal on ground of forum non conveniens; district court properly decided that presumption in favor of plaintiffs' forum choice applied with less force because real parties in interest were foreign. Piper Aircraft Co. v. Reyno (1981) 454 U.S. 235, 256, 102 S. Ct. 252, 70

L. Ed. 2d 419

Singapore was available forum for claims by citizens of Netherlands arising out of crash in Taiwan, and public and private interest factors favored dismissal on forum non conveniens grounds. Schijndel v. Boeing Co. 434 F. Supp. 2d 766, 779 (C.D. Cal. 2006)

Court granted motion to dismiss on forum non conveniens grounds, subject to defendant submitting to jurisdiction of Mexican court and making all of its witnesses and evidence available for Mexican proceedings. Mexico provided adequate forum even though strict liability theory was unavailable. *De Lourdes Ruelas Aldaba v. Michelin N. Am., Inc. (N.D. Cal. Dec. 22, 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 37934, at *14-18

Court granted motion to dismiss action arising out of air crash in Taiwan on forum non conveniens grounds, if defendants complied with seven conditions, including not contesting liability for compensatory damages, submitting to service of process, waiving any statute of limitations defense, and providing plaintiffs with access to evidence and witnesses under their control. In re Air Crash over Taiwan Strait on May 25, 2002 (C.D. Cal. 2004) 331 F. Supp. 2d 1176, 1184-1185

Court granted motion to dismiss product liability case arising out of air crash in Taiwan on forum non conveniens grounds. In re Air Crash at Taipei, Taiwan, (C.D. Cal. Feb. 6, 2004) 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 10539, at *13-*14

Court did not abuse its discretion by finding that California was a seriously inconvenient forum, where decedent's former employers, as well as majority of witnesses concerning his work history and medical care, resided in Texas. Morris v. AGFA Corp. (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 1452, 1466, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 301

Where Swiss resident was injured in Switzerland on bicycle he had purchased on visit to California, trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying motions for dismissal on foreign non conveniens grounds. Although Switzerland was suitable alternative forum, balance of private and public interest factors favored trial in California. Roulier v. Cannondale (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1180, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 877, 879

Decedents and most of potential witnesses were from Montana, and none of decedents' asbestos exposure took place in California. Montana was the appropriate forum. Hansen v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 753, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 229

Products liability action arising from out-of-state accident that was filed by two Nevada residents against two Japanese corporations and twowholly-owned California subsidiaries as properly dismissed on forum non conveniens grounds. Rinauro v. Honda Motor Co. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 506, 509-510, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 181

[22a] Fraud

[a] Fraudulent Concealment

Alleged misrepresentations refuting and concealing evidence that low levels of lead exposure could be hazardous were sufficient to support fraud cause of action. County of Santa Clara v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 292, 330-331, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 313

In drug and medical device product liability cases, defendant's duty to disclose may run to plaintiff's physician, rather than to plaintiff; plaintiff alleged that manufacturer's failure to give adequate warnings regarding flammability of its cautery resulted in ignition during cosmetic eye surgery; plaintiff stated claim for fraudulent concealment. Butler v. Aaron Med. Indus., Inc. (N.D. Cal. Oct. 6, 2004) 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20581, at *7-*14 (not for citation)

[b] Intent

Fraudulent intent ordinarily proved by inference rather than direct evidence; plaintiff created genuine issue of material fact as to whether manufacturer acted with fraudulent intent by failing to disclose revised warning regarding risk of fire associated with use of cautery device. Butler v. Aaron Med. Indus., Inc. (N.D. Cal. Oct. 6, 2004) 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 20581, at *13-*14 (not for citation)

[c] Reliance

Defendant could be liable for representations made to plaintiffs' mother regarding safety of its product. Even though plaintiffs did not actually rely on representations, their mother relied on them in exposing her family to defendant's products in her home. *Dillard v. Victoria M. Morton Enters. (E.D. Cal. Oct. 7, 2008) 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 79588, at *21-23

Factual dispute existed regarding whether physician relied on warnings to Reglan when he planned plaintiff's treatment. Conte v. Wyeth, Inc. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 89, 98-100, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 299

Intentional misrepresentation and false promise verdicts could stand because plaintiff did not need to show that she directly heard and relied on specific representation made by manufacturer. Bullock v. Philip Morris USA, Inc. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 655, 675-676, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 775

Municipalities could not have justifiably relied on any representations made after 1978 that lead paint was safe because it was generally recognized by that time that lead paint was hazardous. County of Santa Clara v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 292, 331, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 313 , review denied, 2006 Cal. LEXIS 7622

Direct evidence is not required to show reliance on false representations; pursuant to Restatement (Second) of Torts § 533, maker of fraudulent misrepresentation made to third person may be liable to person who acts in justifiable reliance on it; plaintiff established that he actually relied on cigarette manufacturer's "campaign of doubt," despite fact that he could not recall particular advertisement that made him decide to smoke. Boeken v. Philip Morris Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1659-1667, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638

Actual reliance occurs when if defendant's misrepresentation is immediate cause of plaintiff's conduct, altering his or her relations, and if, absent that representation, plaintiff would not, in all reasonable probability, have entered into transactions in question; plaintiff did not allege that he was actually aware of or was reassured by and relied on defendant's misrepresentation that its asbestos product was safe. Cadlo v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 513, 519-520, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 , modified, 2004 Cal. App. LEXIS 2260

Plaintiff's reliance on defendants' misrepresentations was reasonable, in light of her lack of sophistication, her addiction to cigarettes, the fact that no one had ever told her that smoking could lead to cancer, and her understanding that defendants had said that smoking was "safe"; fraud verdicts supported by substantial evidence and not preempted by federal law. Whiteley v. Philip Morris, Inc. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 635, 679-692, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 807

[22b] General Aviation Aircraft; GARA

GARA contains "rolling" feature, which extends limitation period with respect to any new component, system, subassembly, or other part which replaced another component, system, subassembly, or other part originally in, or which was added to, aircraft, and which is alleged to have caused death, injury, or damage. Plaintiff's argument that failure to warn about newly perceived problem amounted to "replacement of component part" within meaning of GARA

§ 2(a)(2) was without merit. Lyon v. Agusta S.P.A. (9th Cir. 2001) 252 F.3d 1078, 1088

GARA applies to all actions that had not already been commenced on its effective date of August 17, 1994. Lyon v. Agusta S.P.A. (9th Cir. 2001) 252 F.3d 1078, 1085

Revised flight manual is new "system ... . or other part" of helicopter within meaning of GARA. Caldwell v. Enstrom Helicopter Corp. (9th Cir. 2000) 230 F.3d 1155, 1156-1157

Helicopter qualified as "general aviation aircraft" within meaning of GARA 2(c). Croman Corp. v. GE (E.D. Cal. Nov. 2, 2006) 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 82391, at *7-*16

Presumption against extraterritoriality did not apply where eight Macedonian residents were killed inplane crash in Bosnia because conduct GARA regulates is inherently domestic. *Blazevska v. Raytheon Aircraft Co. (N.D. Cal. May 12, 2006) 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 32170, at 18

Plaintiff claimed that aircraft's carburetor, which was manufactured 27 years before crash, was defective. GARA's statute of repose, 49 U.S.C.S. § 40101 barred his products liability claims against successor to carburetor manufacturer. Burroughs v. Precision Airmotive Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 681, 699

New 18-year limitation period of GARA § 2(a)(2) begins to run only with respect to new specific part shown to be cause of accident. Plaintiff thus had to prove that cause of crash was defect in one of pieces in retrofit kit to helicopter's fuel transfer system. Because item causing damage must be replacement item, replacement of few parts of larger system does not start rolling limitation period anew for all parts in the larger system. Hiser v. Bell Helicopter Textron Inc. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 640, 648-650, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 249

GARA contains exception to repose period if claimant proves that manufacturer knowingly misrepresented to FAA or concealed from FAA "required information" material to maintenance or operation of aircraft or part that is causally related to the harm (GARA § 2(b)(1)). Exception applied in case where there was evidence that helicopter manufacturer, within period ofrepose, withheld information from FAA about five military aircraft accidents caused by failure of tail rotor yokes. Butler v. Bell Helicopter Textron, Inc. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1073, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 762, 770

[23] Government Contract Immunity

Supplier of military equipment as immune from strict liability for defective design when United States immune from liability; supplier shows that United States established or approved reasonably precise design specifications for allegedly defective equipment; equipment conformed to those specifications; and supplier warned United States about patent errors in government's specifications or about dangers involved in use of equipment known to supplier but not to United States. Boyle v. United Technologies Corp. (1988) 487 U.S. 500, 512-513, 108 S. Ct. 2510, 101 L. Ed. 2d 442 ; McLaughlin v. Sikorsky Aircraft (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 203, 210-211, 195 Cal. Rptr. 764 ; see also McKay v. Rockwell Intern. Corp. (9th Cir. 1983) 704 F.2d 444, 448-451

State law that holds Government contractors liable for design defects in military equipment as presenting "significant conflict" with federal policy in some circumstances, requiring displacement by federal law. Boyle v. United Technologies Corp. (1988) 487 U.S. 500, 512-513, 108 S. Ct. 2510, 101 L. Ed. 2d 442 (regarding Virginia tort law) 28 U.S.C.S. § 2680(a) (Federal Tort Claims Act), excepting from liability any claim regarding discretionary function, as precluding claim based on government's selection of appropriate design for military equipment used by armed forces, and as providing guidelines for establishing "significant conflict" that supports preemption of state law. Boyle v. United Technologies Corp. (1988) 487 U.S. 500, 511-512, 108 S. Ct. 2510, 101 L. Ed. 2d 442

Military contractor defense applies to manufacturing defect claims in which there are reasonably precise, government-approved manufacturing specifications. Defense might also be supported by evidence that contractor, in selecting particular component or employing particular process, was following specific directions of government officer reflecting latter's exercise of judgment. Snell v. Bell Helicopter Textron, Inc. (9th Cir. 1997) 107 F.3d 744, 749

Government contractor defense is inapplicable to failure to warn claim in absence of evidence that in making its decision whether to provide warning defendant was "acting in compliance with 'reasonably precise specifications' imposed on [i]t by the United States." Butler v. Ingalls Shipbuilding, Inc. (9th Cir. 1996) 89 F.3d 582, 586 ; see also In re Fed. Asbestos Cases (9th Cir. 1992) 960 F.2d 806, 813

Asbestos insulation supplied to Navy did not constitute military equipment entitling its manufacturers to government contractor defense. In re Hawaii Federal Asbestos Cases (9th Cir. 1991) 960 F.2d 806, 811-812

Issues of fact existed regarding government contractor defense, because defendant did not show that the Navy made a judgment in creating reasonably precise specifications that mandated use of asbestos, or that Navy's knowledge of risk was superior to its own. *McIntyre v. Warren Pumps LLC (N.D. Cal. April 30, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 35954, at *6-12

Court dismissed complaints of families of marines killed in combat when vehicle was struck by missile erroneously fired from Air Force plane. Bentzlin v. Hughes Aircraft Co. (C.D. Cal. 1993) 833 F. Supp. 1486, 1489

Government contractor defense applied to boilers that required the use of asbestos. However, jury's positive finding on the defense did not entitle defendant to judgment because court did not give an instruction on defense tailored to failure-to-warn context. Oxford v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 700, 709-711, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418

In action by civilian painter employed by United States Navy against paint suppliers (that manufactured product specifically for military, but also sold product commercially) seeking damages arising from exposure to particular substance in paint (toluene diisocyanate), and alleging inadequate warning labels among other theories of liability, defendant as failing to show asmatter of law necessary significant conflict between federal contracting requirement and state law; evidence showing that certain warnings were required by military specifications as not establishing that specifications placed any limitation on additional information from manufacturers to users of products. Jackson v. Deft (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1305, 1317, 273 Cal. Rptr. 214

[24] Inapplicability of Doctrine

[a] Bargained-for Transactions

Strict-liability cause of action as unavailable in lawsuit over defective product that arose in commercial setting and involved only business loss; liability for defects as subject to disclaimer in commercial setting, pursuant to Com. Code § 2316 and contractual disclaimer provisions. Appalachian Ins. Co. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1, 33, 262 Cal. Rptr. 716

In cross complaint by housing contractor against developer that graded land, regarding homeowner association's action in strict liability, cause of action based on strict liability as inapplicable; however, cause of action for comparative indemnity applicable to apportion loss between two tortfeasors strictly liable to consumer. Gentry Construction Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 177, 180-184, 260 Cal. Rptr. 421

If factual question exists regarding whether or not commercial plaintiff bargained for product specifications, Kaiser Steel Corp. v. Westinghouse Elec. Corp. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 737, 127 Cal. Rptr. 838 , as not precluding plaintiff's cause of action for strict products liability. Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Harnischfeger Corp. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 842, 855, 175 Cal. Rptr. 67

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as not applying in action between parties who (1) deal in a commercial setting; (2) deal from positions of relatively equal economic strength; (3) bargain the specifications of the product; and (4) negotiate concerning risk of loss from defects in it. International Knights of Wine, Inc.Nave Pierson Winery, Inc. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1005, 168 Cal. Rptr. 301 ; Kaiser Steel Corp. v. Westinghouse Elec. Corp. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 737, 748, 127 Cal. Rptr. 838 ; see Aris Helicopters, Ltd. v. Allison Gas Turbine (9th Cir. 1991) 932 F.2d 825, 827 (citing Scandinavian Airline System v. United Aircraft Corp. (9th Cir. 1979) 601 F.2d 425, 429)

[b] Blood, Blood Products, and Human Tissue

Health & Safety Code § 1635.2 provides statutory immunity from strict liability to human tissue banks. Court rejected plaintiff's argument that omission in § 1635.2 of language indicating that tissue bank shall be deemed to provide service "for all purposes," combined with reference to Commercial Code, indicated that legislature did not intend to immunize tissue banks from strict products liability. Cryolife, Inc. v. Superior Court (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1153-1155, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 396)

Because blood transfusion must, by statute [Health & Safety Code §§ 1600.4, 1606], be regarded as a service and not as a sale, doctrine of strict liability in tort as inapplicable as matter of law in action by patient who became infected with serum hepatitis as result of blood transfusion. Shepard v. Alexian Bros. Hosp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 609-610, 109 Cal. Rptr. 132 ; accord, McDonald v. Sacramento Medical Foundation Blood Bank (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 866, 869-874, 133 Cal. Rptr. 444 (upholding constitutionality of Health & Safety Code § 1606 against argument that it denies equal protection of law); Klaus v. Alameda-Contra Costa Medical Assn. Blood Bank, Inc. (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 417, 418, 133 Cal. Rptr. 92 (extending immunity against strict liability for blood infected with serum hepatitis to nonprofit blood bank)

[c] Endorser of Product

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as not applying to "Good Housekeeping" seal (shoes endorsed by Good Housekeeping Magazine), where endorser makes no representation it has examined or tested each item marketed, because endorser is not directly involved in manufacturing and supplying process. Hanberry v. Hearst Corp. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 680, 687-688, 81 Cal. Rptr. 519 (nevertheless, holding complaint stated cause of action for negligent misrepresentation and that defendant's liability for damages was not limited to mere purchase price of defective product as stated in its endorsement); see also Walters v. Seventeen Magazine (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1119, 1121, 241 Cal. Rptr. 101 (magazine that did not endorse product in any way as not liable under any of several product-liability theories); but see Kasel v. Remington Arms Co. (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 711, 726-727, 101 Cal. Rptr. 314 (if defendant by its avowed testing was responsible inducement for plaintiff's purchase, no reason to hold that defendant was not necessary instrument in stream of commerce)

[c.1] Finance Lessor

Finance lessor was not subject to strict products liability. It was not in position to exert pressure on manufacturer to improve product's safety. Imposing strict products liability on finance lessor would not further policy considerations underlying doctrine. Arriaga v. Citicapital Commercial Corp. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1537-1539, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 143

[d] Hospitals

Hospitals as providers of medical services as not subject to strict tort liability. San Diego Hospital Assn. v. Superior Court (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 8, 15-16, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 489 (physician was injured by laser while performing surgery)

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as not applying to hospital as user of defective product in course of its primary function of providing medical services; liability, if any, as depending on whether hospital was negligent or guilty of intentional misconduct. Silverhart v. Mount Zion Hosp. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 1022, 1028, 98 Cal. Rptr. 187 (surgical needle broke during course of routine surgery and became imbedded in patient's lower pelvic area where it remained)

[e] Occasional Builder

Strict liability as inapplicable regarding deficiencies in residence that was not mass-produced, but that was constructed and sold by contractor engagedonly in occasional or isolated construction and sale of residence. Oliver v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 86, 89, 259 Cal. Rptr. 160

[f] Occasional Seller

Company that purchased plastic injection molding machine from manufacturer, used it for several years in its own operation, and sold it after closing down facility, as intermediate seller, or occasional seller, as not subject to strict products liability for injuries arising from its subsequent use; modifications to safety devices made during period of ownership as not extensive enough to constitute remanufacture for purposes of applying strict products liability doctrine. Ortiz v. HPM Corp. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 178, 188-189, 285 Cal. Rptr. 728

Occasional seller not engaged in that activity as part of his business as exempt from rule of strict liability in tort. Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 228, 251, 71 Cal. Rptr. 306 ; see also Hyman v. Gordon (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 769, 773-774, 111 Cal. Rptr. 262 ; Balido v. Improved Mach., Inc. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 633, 639-640, 105 Cal. Rptr. 890 (criticized on another point in Foglio v. Western Auto Supply (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 470, 476, 128 Cal. Rptr. 545)

[g] Partial Successor of Product Manufacturer

Corporation which acquires by purchase substantial portion of assets of manufacturing corporation, together with right to use latter's name, and leases latter's plant facilities for term of years, but where latter corporation continues to exist for some two years afterwards as not strictly liable in tort for injuries sustained almost three years before purchase of assets as proximate result of defect in product manufactured and sold by manufacturing corporation some 11 years prior to the purchase of the assets where purchasing corporation did not contractually assume strict liability of manufacturer for defective products. Schwartz v. McGraw-Edison Co. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 767, 778-781, 92 Cal. Rptr. 776 (disapproved on another ground in Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 34, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3)

[h] Physicians

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as not applying to doctor who prescribed drug which produced untoward results in patient; physician who prescribes ethical (prescription) drug to achieve cure as selling or furnishing his services as healer of illnesses rather than as seller of product or insurance. Carmichael v. Reitz (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 958, 979, 95 Cal. Rptr. 381

[i] Private Subdivider of Work Accepted as Public Improvement

Rule that where public entity approves and accepts as public improvement private construction by subdivider public entity and not subdivider is liable in an inverse condemnation suit for damages to property as applying to insulate developer from liability for injuries caused by construction of project, and interposition of public entity between developer and user of realproperty as providing basis for continuation of rule. Blau v. Los Angeles (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 77, 90, 107 Cal. Rptr. 727

[i.1] Product Not in Use

A skier who collided with snow-making hydrant could not recover under strict products liability where equipment was not being used as a product at time of accident. Souza v. Squaw Valley Ski Corp. (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 262, 271, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 389

[j] Public Utility Facilities

Doctrine of strict liability in tort for defective products as inapplicable to facilities used by public utility for transmission of electric energy. United Pacific Ins. Co. v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 700, 708-709, 209 Cal. Rptr. 819

[k] Purchaser or User

Strict liability in tort as applying only to participants in the marketing of the defective product and not to user or consumer, such as purchasing employer whose employee is injured by defective product. Ruiz v. Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 462, 470, 93 Cal. Rptr. 270

[l] Secondhand Goods Dealer

Seller of used or secondhand products cannot be held strict liability in tort, unless seller rebuilds or reconditions the product. Arriaga v. Citicapital Commercial Corp. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1540, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 143

Used-products dealers as not subject to strict products liability doctrine unless they are responsible for modification, dilapidation, or misuse that renders product unreasonably unsafe for its intended use. Barrett v. Superior Court (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1176, 1196-1197, 272 Cal. Rptr. 304 ; but see Cronin v. J. B. E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 134-135, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153 (rejecting "unreasonably dangerous" component in strict products liability law)

Auctioneer of used machinery that did not take title to machinery and that sold machinery "as is, where is" without modification or inspection, as not liable for injury caused by machine when no evidence indicated that auctioneer had responsibility for condition of machine. Brejcha v. Wilson Mach., Inc. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 630, 639-641, 206 Cal. Rptr. 688

Fact that seller of used goods had facilities to perform repairs as argument supporting negligence, but as not sufficient reason to hold used machinery dealer strictly liable for defects in punch press. Wilkinson v. Hicks (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 515, 521, 179 Cal. Rptr. 5

Commercial dealer in used goods as not strictly liable, independently of initial marketing and distribution enterprise, for injury caused by defect in used punch press that he or she sold in regular course of business, absent showing that he or she caused or created defect. La Rosa v. Superior Court (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 741, 753, 761, 176 Cal. Rptr. 224 ; see Wilkinson v. Hicks (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 515, 521, 522, 179 Cal. Rptr. 5

Dealer in used machinery as not strictly liable for injuries resulting from defects in punch press that are attributable to design or fabrication of press by original manufacturer. La Rosa v. Superior Court (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 741, 749, 176 Cal. Rptr. 224 ; see Wilkinson v. Hicks (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 515, 521, 522, 179 Cal. Rptr. 5

Defendant who conducted auction sales of used machinery as not strictly liable for defects in original manufacture or design of used planer, when defendant made no recommendation or representation of merit of products it sold, held no special relationship to manufacturer, and had not modified or rebuiltmachine. Tauber-Arons Auctioneers Co. v. Superior Court (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 268, 274-284, 161 Cal. Rptr. 789

[m] Sellers of Services

Amtrak was not subject to strict products liability because it provided transportation services, not a product, and use of seats was merely incidental to those services. Haynes v. AMTRAK (C.D. Cal. 2006) 423 F. Supp. 2d 1073, 1085

Training in taser use was service and not subject to strict products liability. Torres v. City of Madera (In re Torres) (E.D. Cal. July 11, 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 34672, at *46 , applying California law

Dominant purpose of membership agreement was to provide fitness services, and health club was not strictly liable for injuries sustained on stairstep machine. Ontiveros v. 24 Hour Fitness USA, Inc. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 424, 434-435, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 767

Doctrine of strict liability as not applying to raft transportation company primarily providing recreational service. Ferrari v. Grand Canyon Dories (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 248, 258-259, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as not applying to soil engineers, structural engineers, and architects of multiple-unit, residential, planned development complex because those who sell their services for guidance of others in their economic, financial, and personal affairs are not liable in the absence of negligence or intentional misconduct. Del Mar Beach Club Owners Assn. v. Imperial Contracting Co. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 898, 914, 176 Cal. Rptr. 886

Acts of travel agencies in selecting and coordinating transportation, accommodation, and meals for prospective travelers, as clearly performance of service, whether or not these arrangements were presented in form of "package tour"; travel agencies as therefore not strictly liable for traveler's injury suffered on tour when bus traveler was riding overturned. Pena v. Sita World Travel, Inc. (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 642, 644-645, 152 Cal. Rptr. 17

Former strict implied-warranty liability as not applying to sellers of services for guidance of others in their economic, financial, and personal affairs; such persons as liable only for negligence or intentional misconduct. Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 487 , 275 P.2d 15 (involving test-hole digger)

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as not applying to sellers of services for guidance of others in their economic, financial, and personal affairs; such persons as liable only for negligence or intentional misconduct. McDonald v. Sacramento Medical Foundation Blood Bank (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 866, 871, 133 Cal. Rptr. 444 ; Swett v. Gribaldo, Jones & Associates (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 573, 575-576, 115 Cal. Rptr. 99 ; Carmichael v. Reitz (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 958, 978, 95 Cal. Rptr. 381

Doctrines of implied warranty and strict liability as not applying to professionals where primary objective of transaction is to obtain services. Stuart v. Crestview Mut. Water Co. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 802, 811, 110 Cal. Rptr.

543 ; Allied Properties v. John A. Blume & Associates (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 848, 855-856, 102 Cal. Rptr. 259 (liability, if any, is for negligence)

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as not applicable to engineers who designed defective water distribution system since engineers render professional services and are not analogous to manufacturers who place products on market and are in best position to spread cost of injuries resulting from defective products. Stuart v. Crestview Mut. Water Co. (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 802, 811, 110 Cal. Rptr. 543 ; see also Allied Properties v. John A. Blume & Associates (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 848, 855-856, 102 Cal. Rptr. 259 (doctrine of implied warranty as not applying to engineering firm which designed pier)

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as not applicable to soils engineer for defectively constructed subdivision lots. Swett v. Gribaldo, Jones & Associates (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 573, 575-576, 115 Cal. Rptr. 99 ; see also Monarch Bay II v. Professional Service Industries, Inc. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1215-1217, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 778

Parties (developer, engineer, and contractor) which did grading, engineering, soil testing, construction, and other work in development of residential subdivision as not strictly liable in tort to beneficiary, which loaned money for development of subdivision, of trust deeds secured by the lots in the subdivision, in action by beneficiary for damages resulting from differential settlement in filled earth in subdivision, since lender-beneficiary is itself link in marketing chain of such mass-produced homes and residential lots, although such parties may be liable to lender-beneficiary for negligence in impairing beneficiary's security. U. S. Financial v. Sullivan (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 5, 12-19, 112 Cal. Rptr. 18 (issuing writ of mandate commanding superior court to vacate its judgment of dismissal of certain causes of action after sustaining demurrer without leave to amend and directing it to enter order overruling demurrers to causes of action based on negligence for impairment of security and sustaining demurrers to causes of action based on strict liability in tort)

[n] Supplier of Nondefective Component

Supplier of raw materials (silicone) as not liable for injuries caused by breast implants because silicone is not inherently dangerous and implant manufacturer was sophisticated buyer with duty to investigate hazards of its own product. Artiglio v. General Electric Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 830, 841, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817

Manufacturer of component part (electric motor for meat grinder) as not liable for injury caused by finished product absent defect in component or participation in design process. Lee v. Electric Motor Division (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 375, 385, 215 Cal. Rptr. 195

Testimony by employee of finished product's manufacturer who purchased component part, to effect that he decided which part to order without advice from manufacturer of component, as precluding liability of nondefective component's manufacturer as matter of law. Lee v. Electric Motor Division (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 375, 385, 215 Cal. Rptr. 195

When evidence showed no defect in component part (an automobile tire) manufacturer of tire as not to be held responsible for death of driver of automobile; since tire manufacturer could reasonably have believed automobile manufacturer would take appropriate measures to insure proper design and installation of tire valve stem, responsibility for valve rested with automobile manufacturer. Wiler v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 621, 629-630, 157 Cal. Rptr. 248

Doctrine of strict liability in tort of manufacturer (seller) as not extending to supplier of nondefective substance to be used by manufacturer in compounding or formulating product which eventually causes injury to ultimate consumer. Walker v. Stauffer Chem. Corp. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 669, 673, 96 Cal. Rptr. 803

[o] Supplier Outside Chain of Commerce

Housing-developer tile subcontractor as outside chain of commerce for purpose of imposing strict products liability in action arising from injuriesincurred by homeowner caused by defective soap dish purchased by tile subcontractor from building-material supplier as "generic" soap dish and identified among other materials sold at same time but not itemized separately. Monte Vista Development Corp. v. Superior Court (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1681, 1684-1687, 277 Cal. Rptr. 608

[p] Transactions Between "Merchants"

Plaintiff within statutory definition of "merchant" [Com. Code § 2104(1)] as not stating tort cause of action based on strict liability or negligence against manufacturer of product purchased by plaintiff when cost of repairing product's defect is only damage alleged. Sacramento Regional Transit Dist. v. Grumman Flxible (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 289, 291, 204 Cal. Rptr. 736

[25] Indemnity

[a] Comparative Equitable Indemnity

Comparative equitable indemnity includes entire range of apportionments, from no right to indemnity to right to total indemnity; good faith settlement (under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(c)) as absolving settling party from all equitable indemnity claims, including claims seeking "total equitable indemnity." Far West Financial Corp. v. D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 808, 817, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399

[b] Decline to Determine Indemnity

Fact that jury in action by lessee for damages based on strict liability in tort and negligence returns verdict in favor of lessee against lessor-purchaser but against lessee and in favor of maker-seller of defective product as not exonerating trial court from declining to determine lessor's right to indemnity by seller on merits on lessor's cross complaint where reasons exist for jury's verdict other that that maker-seller was not negligent or that some supervening act of lessor had insulated maker-seller from strict liability in tort. Fakhoury v. Magner (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 58, 66-67, 101 Cal. Rptr. 473 (criticized on another point in Brennan v. Cockrell Inv., Inc. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 796, 801, 111 Cal. Rptr. 122)

[c] Express Indemnity

Extent of any duty of lessee of personal property to indemnify lessor held strictly liable in tort to lessee's employee as to be determined from contract between parties and not from independent doctrine of equitable indemnity where parties expressly contracted with respect to that duty. Price v. Shell Oil Co. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 245, 256, 85 Cal. Rptr. 178, 466 P.2d 722 (holding at page 258 that lease contained no language indicating that lessee is to be held responsible for negligent acts of the lessor, much less for the strict liability in tort imposed upon the lessor for placing on the market a defective article)

[d] Implied Indemnity

Comparative equitable indemnity as including entire range of apportionments, from no right to indemnity to right to total indemnity; good faith settlement (under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6(c)) as absolving settling party from all equitable indemnity claims, including claims seeking total equitable indemnity. Far West Financial Corp.D & S Co. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 796, 808, 817, 251 Cal. Rptr. 202, 760 P.2d 399

Neither the tort doctrine of comparative negligence nor the last clear chance doctrine as applying to right of implied indemnity. Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 137, 145, 92 Cal. Rptr. 809

Whether implied indemnity should be allowed or denied as generally a question of fact for jury determination; but where claimant's active participation in wrong appears clearly and indisputably in evidence, claimant as precluded from indemnification as matter of law. Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 137, 145, 92 Cal. Rptr. 809

Determination of whether or not implied indemnity should be allowed as, of necessity, depending on facts of each case. Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 137, 145, 92 Cal. Rptr. 809 ; Pearson Ford Co.Ford Motor Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 269, 272, 78 Cal. Rptr. 279

Fact that retailer failed to discover defect in manufacture, in absence of independent duty to inspect or facts to put him on notice, as not precluding retailer's right against manufacturer to implied indemnity. Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 137, 144, 92 Cal. Rptr. 809 ; Pearson Ford Co.Ford Motor Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 269, 273-274, 78 Cal. Rptr. 279

When right to implied indemnity arises. Pearson Ford Co.Ford Motor Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 269, 271-273, 78 Cal. Rptr. 279

Contractual and noncontractual implied indemnity distinguished. Cahill Bros., Inc.Clementina Co. (1962) 208 Cal. App. 2d 367, 376-380, 25 Cal. Rptr. 301 (stating at pages 379-380 that the right of implied indemnity in contractual cases is based upon a breach of contract by the person against whom indemnity is sought, while in the area of noncontractual indemnity the right rests upon the fault of another which has been imputed to or constructively fastened upon him who seeks indemnity)

[e] Participation in Tort

If person seeking indemnity personally participates in an affirmative act of negligence, or is physically connected with an act or omission by knowledge or acquiescence in it on his part, or fails to perform some duty in connection with omission which he or she may have undertaken by virtue of his or her agreement, right of implied indemnity as denied. Pearson Ford Co.Ford Motor Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 269, 276, 78 Cal. Rptr. 279

Once party seeking implied indemnity steps outside his or her nonactor capacity, or acquires sufficient knowledge of circumstances prior to resulting injury, relief by indemnity as generally not granted. Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 137, 145, 92 Cal. Rptr. 809

Acting solely as retailer of automobile, dealer's negligence, if any, in failing to discover brake defect in car which caused it to crash as "passive negligence" and, as such, as not defeating dealer's right to indemnity against car manufacturer for judgment entered against both in action based on strict liability in tort for personal injuries sustained in crash; but when dealer goes beyond duty imposed by law, as retailer of car, and undertakes to repair part of car closely associated with and inextricably related to brake defect, its failure to discover defect as "active negligence" if, under all the circumstances and in exercise of ordinary care it should have made that discovery; active negligence on part of person seeking indemnity contributing to injury or wrong as barring recovery. Pearson Ford Co.Ford Motor Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 269, 276, 78 Cal. Rptr. 279

[f] Reversible Judgment

Judgment on cross complaint for indemnity in favor of defendant-cross defendant maker-seller of couch having latent defect and against defendant-cross complainant lessor of furnished apartment, against whom judgment was entered in favor of injured plaintiff-tenant, as reversed when trial court's denial of indemnity was without any independent weighing of evidence and was based on jury's verdict in favor of maker-seller against tenant when there were possible reasons for jury's verdict other than decision that maker-seller was without fault. Fakhoury v. Magner (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 58, 66-67, 101 Cal. Rptr. 473

[g] Warranty

Where homeowners recovered damages from builder-seller of mass produced homes based on strict liability in tort for injuries resulting from defective radiant heating systems installed in homes, builder-seller as entitled to indemnification from contractor which installed systems, and contractor as entitled to indemnification from manufacturers of tubing used in system, based on breach of express and implied warranties under former Civ. Code §§ 1732, 1735 [now see Com. Code §§ 2313-2315, 2317]. Eichler Homes, Inc.Anderson (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 224, 229-233, 87 Cal. Rptr. 893

[26] Insurance

Comprehensive liability insurance policy excluding coverage of "products hazard," which is defined in policy in part as meaning goods or products manufactured, sold, handled, or distributed by named insured if accident or occurrence occurs after possession of such goods or products has been relinquished to others if such action or occurrence occurs away from premises owned, rented, or controlled by named insured, as not covering insured's liability arising from loss of tomato crop destroyed by insecticide sold by insured where insured selected product to be used, took on itself role of manufacturer, and then sold insecticide, such acts as being all part of excluded process of manufacture, handling, and sale. Cravens, Dargan & Co. v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 594, 600-601, 105 Cal. Rptr. 607

In an action for damages suffered as a result of the driver's seat collapsing, the Supreme Court held that a products liability claim against an automobile manufacturer falls outside the scope of Cal. Civ. Code § 3333.4, which bars the recovery of punitive and compensatory damages to uninsured drivers. Hodges v. Superior Court (2001) 21 Cal. 4th 109, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 884, 980 P.2d 433

[27] Issues

In products liability cases, issues of superseding or intervening cause, doctrine of concurrent causation, and extent to which defendant is required to anticipate safety neglect by plaintiff or others as questions of fact in both negligence and strict liability causes of action. Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Harnischfeger Corp. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 842, 852-854, 175 Cal. Rptr. 67

Factors considered in risk-benefit analysis for determining either design defect or liability for failure to warn as questions of fact for jury. Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Harnischfeger Corp. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 842, 854-855, 175 Cal. Rptr. 67

Issue of intervening causation as jury question, and manufacturer's foreseeability of user's intervening act in altering design of product as key element. Thomas v. General Motors Corp. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 81, 89, 91 Cal. Rptr. 301

[28] Judgment on the Pleadings

Judgment on the pleadings in favor of defendant in strict liability cause of action as denied when pleadings show only that parties transacted in commercial setting, and do not show parties' relative economic strength or ability to negotiate risk of loss of defective product. International Knights of Wine, Inc.Nave Pierson Winery, Inc. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1007, 168 Cal. Rptr. 301

[29] Jury Instructions

[a] Aggravation of Injuries

Jury instruction in action based on strict liability in tort, arising out of single-car collision to recover damages for aggravation of injuries caused when horn cap in center of steering wheel flew off exposing three sharp prongs sticking up and against which plaintiff hit her face, to the effect that if vehicle was defectively designed or manufactured in such a manner that horn assembly caused plaintiff to sustain greater injuries in collision than she would have otherwise sustained absent the defect, then manufacturer and distributor of vehicle would be liable to extent of such aggravation of her injuries as proper. Horn v. General Motors Corp. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 359, 366, 131 Cal. Rptr. 78, 551 P.2d 398

[b] Burden of Proof

Correct instruction of jury on burden of proof for design defect as sufficient guide for logical evaluation of issues; special verdict form as not required to repeat instruction. Neal v. Montgomery Elevator Co. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 1194, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497

Failure to instruct jury to shift burden of proof to manufacturer based on manufacturer's violation of federal air regulations as reversible error. McGee v. Cessna Aircraft Co. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 179, 185-187, 188 Cal. Rptr. 542

[c] Causation

Manufacturer is liable only if defect in its product was legal cause of injury, and defect is legal cause of injury if it is substantial factor in producing injury; substantial factor in causing harm is factor that a reasonable person would consider to have contributed to harm and need not be only cause of harm. Torres v. City of Madera (In re Torres) (E.D. Cal. July 11, 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 34672, at *22 , applying California law

In cases of asbestos-related cancer, jury instruction shifting burden of proof to asbestos defendants on element of causation is generally unnecessary and incorrect. Instructions on limits of plaintiff's burden of proof of causation, together with standardized instructions defining cause-in-fact causation under substantial factor test (BAJI No. 3.76) and doctrine of concurrent proximate legal causation (BAJI No 3.77), will adequately apprise jury of elements required to establish causation. No burden-shifting instructions is necessary on matter of proof of causation, and in absence of such necessity, there is no justification or basis for shifting part of plaintiff's burden of proof to defendant to prove that it was not a legal cause of plaintiff's asbestos-related disease or injuries. Rutherford v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 953, 975-976, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 16, 941 P.2d 1203

"But-for" causation jury instruction (BAJI No. 3.75) as disapproved; "substantial factor" instruction (BAJI No. 3.76) as properly instructing jury on cause-in-fact issues. Mitchell v. Gonzales (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 1041, 1052-1054, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 913, 819 P.2d 872

In action for strict products liability arising from plaintiff's injuries caused by both plaintiff's negligence and failure of car roof to withstand crash, instruction as properly stating that, if jury found that car was defectively manufactured, but that same or similar deformation of roof would have occurred even if vehicle was not defective, then defective vehicle was not legal cause of plaintiff's injuries; concurrent cause instruction as not impugning substantial factor test of legal cause, in that it instructs jury that there may be more than one legal cause, which is important for apportionment of fault. DoupnikGeneral Motors Corp. (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 849, 860-867, 275 Cal. Rptr. 715

Offered instructions that attempted to impose duty to foresee the very accident that occurred, ignored the weighing concept of Barker v. Lull Engineering Co. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 413, 143 Cal. Rptr. 225, 573 P.2d 443 , failed totally to deal with the role of a commercial user that installed additional components in the chain of production, and in effect attempted to fix liability totally on manufacturer-supplier of truck engine, cab, and chassis as properly rejected. Fierro v. International Harvester Co. (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 862, 869-870, 179 Cal. Rptr. 923

Court as properly submitting its own instruction on superseding cause when defendant car manufacturer's proposed instruction was erroneous in stating that only one defect in car should be considered to determine whether accident would have occurred anyway when other defects had also been at issue. Grimshaw v. Ford Motor Co. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 757, 804-805, 174 Cal. Rptr. 348

In action based on strict liability in tort against third-party tortfeasor (manufacturer of defectively designed machine) by employee of machine'spurchaser, jury instruction that there may be more than one legal cause of an injury, that when conduct of two or more persons contribute concurrently as legal cause of injury conduct of each of said persons or corporations is a legal cause of injury regardless of extent to which each contributes to injury, that a cause is concurrent if it was operative at moment of injury and acted with another cause to produce injury, and that it is no defense that conduct of a person not joined as party was also legal cause of injury as proper. Thompson v. Package Machinery Co. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 188, 193-194, 99 Cal. Rptr. 281 (prejudicial error for trial court to have refused to give foregoing instruction and to have given other erroneous instructions)

[d] Contributory Negligence

Trial judge as improperly granting judgment notwithstanding the verdict when conflicting evidence on comparative fault raised jury question. Hansen v. Sunnyside Products, Inc. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1497, 1519-1521, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 266

Principles of comparative fault as applicable to actions involving strict products liability; trier of fact as permitted to apportion fault between party found strictly liable and party found negligent. See Safeway Stores, Inc.Nest-Kart (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 322, 328-332, 146 Cal. Rptr. 550, 579 P.2d 441 (apportionment in indemnity action between co-tortfeasors); Daly v. General Motors Corp. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 725, 742, 144 Cal. Rptr. 380, 575 P.2d 1162 (apportionment between plaintiff and defendant)

Trial court's refusal to instruct jury that contributory negligence is no defense to strict products liability action as correct because neither side had mentioned negligence at trial; instruction on contributory negligence, when it has not been issue at trial, as confusing to jury. Foster v. Gillette (1979) 100 Cal. App. 3d 569, 575, 161 Cal. Rptr. 134

[e] Drugs and Medical Devices

Instructions of law on how to determine whether prescription drug is defective or unusually dangerous so as to render it defective product within meaning of Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A and comments, relating to strict liability in tort. Carmichael v. Reitz (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 958, 986-987, 95 Cal. Rptr. 381

Trial court did not err in issuing a general order restricting plaintiffs from seeking jury instructions pursuant to the consumer expectation test of design defect. The alleged creation or exacerbation of allergies by the gloves were not subjects of commonly accepted minimum safety assumptions of an ordinary consumer. Morson v. Superior Court (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 775, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 343

[f] Material Fact Issues

Party as entitled to proper jury instructions on every material issue of fact on which he relies when there is substantial evidence to support its theory of case. Slayton v. Wright (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 219, 237, 76 Cal. Rptr. 494

[g] Proffered Instructions

Trial court did not err in refusing to give cigarette manufacturer's proffered instruction on federal preemption, because it was unnecessary, unduly repeated and emphasized a defense, and was verbose and confusing. Bullock v. Philip Morris USA, Inc. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 655, 683-686, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 775

Trial court as under no obligation in civil cases to modify or recast proffered instructions to make them applicable, and as permitted to reject them if portions thereof that correctly state applicable law are covered by other instructions given. FogoCutter Laboratories, Inc. (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 744, 761-762, 137 Cal. Rptr. 417

[h] Res Ipsa Loquitur

Res ipsa loquitur instruction in action based on negligence and strict liability in tort for damages for personal injuries. Preissman v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 841, 852-855, 82 Cal. Rptr. 108 ; see also Jiminez v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 379, 383-387, 93 Cal. Rptr. 769, 482 P.2d 681

[i] Strict Liability and Negligence

CACI No. 1204 incorporates risk-benefit test and confirms that "use" of product is required element under risk/utility theory; police officer who mistakenly used her service revolver instead of Taser supplied by defendant did not "use" *Taser. Torres v. City of Madera (In re Torres) (E.D. Cal. July 11, 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 34672, at 27 , applying California law

In light of differences between strict products liability and negligence, court did not abuse its discretion in determining that absence of a strict products liability instruction was prejudicial. Crawford v. Weather Shield Mfg., Inc. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 304, 320-323, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 787 , review granted and depublished, (2006) 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 632, 136 P.3d 168 , review dismissed in part (2007) 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 753, 170 P.3d 129

Court did not err in refusing to instruct jury that in addition to proving a defective design that harmed her, plaintiff also had to prove that defect increased risk of harm beyond those risks that are a normal part of sport of jet skiing. Requested instructions would have been redundant and confusing. Ford v. Polaris Indus., Inc. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 755, 776, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215

Although under Jiminez v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 379, 387, 93 Cal. Rptr. 769, 482 P.2d 681 , plaintiff in action for personal injuries is not required to elect whether to proceed on theory of strict liability in tort or on theory of negligence when instructions on two theories will not be confusing to jury, in non res ipsa loquitur case involving manufacturing defect only, instruction on both theories, although not confusing, as unnecessary. Montez v. Ford Motor Co. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 315, 316-317, 320, 161 Cal. Rptr. 578

[j] Strict Liability in Tort

In strict liability action premised on marketing enterprise theory, defendant as entitled to jury instruction that plaintiff must establish (1) the defendant received direct financial benefit from sale of product; (2) the defendant's role was a necessary factor in bringing the product to market; and (3) the defendant had control over, or a substantial ability to influence, the manufacturing or distribution process. Bay Summit Community Association v. Shell Oil Company (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 762, 778, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 322

Plaintiff as entitled to strict-liability instruction in wrongful-death action caused by defective grinder when employer returned grinder to manufacturer with directions to reduce speed and gave manufacturer carte blanche on how to accomplish that objective, manufacturer substituted one spring for another (necessary to reduce speed) but failed to replace governor on grinder that was so worn that speed was not controlled after repair, and grinder wheel overspeeded and disintegrated, killing plaintiff's decedent who was operating grinder. Young v. Aro Corp. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 240, 246, 111 Cal. Rptr. 535

Trial court's instructions on strict liability in tort stating that manufacturer and retailer of product that place it on market for use under circumstances under which they know that product will be used without inspection for defects are liable for injuries proximately caused by defects in manufacture or design of product of which user was not aware, and that if evidence is equally balanced on issue of whether there was a defect in manufacture ordesign, jury must find against party (plaintiff) making charge on that issue, as proper. Preissman v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 841, 851-852, 82 Cal. Rptr. 108

[k] Vehicles

Former 8 Cal. Code Reg. § 1591(c)(1), requiring that all haulage vehicles (defined in 8 Cal. Code Reg. § 1504) be equipped with brakes adequate to stop and hold vehicle stationary on any grade that vehicle can climb under its own power within limit of traction of braked wheels and that braking devices must be in compliance with Vehicle Code as not making Veh. Code § 26311 (providing generally that all motor vehicles be equipped with service brakes on all wheels) applicable to haulage vehicles; reference to Vehicle Code as meaning that compliance with industrial safety order does not excuse compliance with any Vehicle Code requirement that may be applicable when haulage vehicle is driven on public highway; hence, in personal-injury action against manufacturer of earth-moving machine allegedly defective in failing to have brakes on its front wheels, trial court as not erring in failing to instruct jury on requirements of Veh. Code § 26311. Smith v. Dhy-Dynamic Co. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 852, 861-863, 107 Cal. Rptr. 907

[30] Landlord-Tenant

Neither landlords nor hotel proprietors are subject to strict products liability for injuries to respective tenants and guests caused by defect in the premises; unlike retailers, landlords and hotel owners often are unable to exert pressure on manufacturers to make products safer and cannot share with manufacturer costs of insuring tenants' or guests' safety; landlords and hotel owners cannot necessarily be expected to possess expert knowledge concerning components that comprise leased dwellings; court did not decide different considerations applied if landlord or hotel owner had participated in construction of building. Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1189-1209, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905 , overruling Becker v. IRM Corp. (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 454, 213 Cal. Rptr. 213, 698 P.2d 116

[31] Limitations on Liability Imposed by Contract

Commercial entities as entitled to contract to limit liability between themselves or otherwise allocate risk of doing business; requirements of agreement exculpating one party from liability to another for negligence or indemnity. Philippine Airlines, Inc. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 234, 236-243, 234 Cal. Rptr. 423

[32] Market-Share Theory of Strict Liability in Tort

Court did not decide validity of Wheeler's fungibility exception, because Wheeler had no application to facts of case. Decedent had been exposed to asbestos not only from friction brake products but also while working in shipyards and as upholsterer, and plaintiff was able to identify two manufacturers to whose friction products decedent had been exposed. Ferris v. Gatke Corp. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1211, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 819, 827-829

Market share liability was inapplicable when plaintiff was able to identify manufacturer of defective product--a drain pipe--but not its wholesaler, because plaintiff was not otherwise without remedy. Edwards v. A.L. Lease & Co. (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 259

Market-share theory as not applicable against manufacturers of paints, solvents, strippers, and glue products because plaintiff failed to identify common toxic chemical ingredient or other "fungible" agent common to all the products. Setliff v. E.I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1525, 1537, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763

Asbestos brake-lining pads as fungible for purposes of market-share theory given evidence that asbestos exposure came from used pads that were not identifiable; nonsuit in favor of manufacturer reversed. Wheeler v. Raybestos-Manhattan (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1152, 1157-1158, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109 ; see also Richie v. Bridgestone/Firestone, Inc. (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 335, 338-339, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 418 (rule applicable retroactively)

Limitations period for action brought against DES manufacturers on market-share theory as one year, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); Sindell as not creating new tort or new product (i.e., generic drug DES as opposed to unidentifiable brand names), and as not reviving claim otherwise barred by statute of limitations, or as creating new limitations period. Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1109-1118, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923 (plaintiff aware of injury and causation more than one year prior to filing of action, although she could not identify manufacturer of particular product and therefore could not have stated cause of action prior to Sindell)

Under market-share theory, each defendant against which judgment is rendered as liable for damages according to its proportionate share of market; joint liability as inapplicable to market-share actions. Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1074-1075, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470

Courts did not impose market share liability for asbestos products used in residential housing construction, because asbestos is generic name for family of minerals with myriad of uses, and prerequisite of fungibility was not demonstrated. Mullen v. Armstrong World Indus., Inc. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 250, 246 Cal. Rptr. 32

When product is inherently defective for purpose for which it is marketed, and plaintiff cannot identify manufacturer of precise product that caused injury, plaintiff as required to join manufacturers of substantial share of appropriate market as defendants; once plaintiff has satisfied burden of joining defendants, each defendant as liable according its share of market unless it can prove that it could not have made product that caused plaintiff'sinjuries. Sindell v. Abbott Labs. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 612, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132, 607 P.2d 924

In market-share theory action against manufacturers, once plaintiff has met burden of joining required defendants, defendants in turn as able to cross complain against other manufacturers, not joined in action, that they can allege might have supplied injury-causing product. Sindell v. Abbott Labs. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 612, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132, 607

P.2d 924

[33] Misuse of Product

[a] Defense of Misuse

Misuse of product as defense to action based on strict liability in tort. McCurter v. Norton Co. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 402, 407, 69 Cal. Rptr. 493 ; see also Oakes v. E.I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co., Inc. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 645, 649, 77 Cal. Rptr. 709

[b] Foreseeable Misuse as No Defense

Manufacturer or supplier of product as strictly liable for injuries resulting from misuse of product by customer which misuse was reasonably foreseeable. Thomas v. General Motors Corp. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 81, 91, 91 Cal. Rptr. 301 (removal of bead holding glass window in place in washing machine in laundromat; glass gave way when plaintiff leaned on it, plunging her arm into machine)

Driving automobile without using seat belt as entirely foreseeable use of vehicle. Horn v. General Motors Corp. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 359, 371, 131 Cal. Rptr. 78, 551 P.2d 398

Vehicle manufacturers, in designing and manufacturing cars, as required to take accidents into consideration as reasonably foreseeable occurrences involving their products. Cronin v. J.B.E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 126-127, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153

In deciding whether or not product is being used in way manufacturer intended it to be used, market for which it is produced as a most important consideration; such fact as bearing directly on issue of foreseeability. Dosier v. Wilcox-Crittendon Co. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 74, 78, 119 Cal. Rptr. 135

[c] Jury Instructions

Jury instruction that in determining purposes for which article was designed and intended to be used, jury may consider those uses of article which would be foreseeable by manufacturer at time article was placed on market. Preston v. Up-Right, Inc. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 636, 643, 52 Cal. Rptr. 679

Jury instruction in strict tort liability case that jury cannot find defendant liable if it finds cause of accident and injury were due to alteration in machine as it was manufactured or designed or any of its components as error; whether alteration in or misuse of product is a defense to strict liability case as depending on whether alteration or misuse was reasonably foreseeable to manufacturer. Thompson v. Package Machinery Co. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 188, 195-196, 99 Cal. Rptr. 281 ; see also Thomas v. General Motors Corp. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 81, 88, 91 Cal. Rptr. 301

[d] Misuse Contrary to Warning

Adequate warning as sufficient defense to strict liability action; adequacy of warning as question of law when written warning not dependent on extrinsic evidence. Templev. Velcro USA, Inc. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 1090, 1094-1095, 196 Cal. Rptr. 531

Manufacturer of fuel as not liable for injury caused by use of fuel on open flame despite warning against such use. Groll v. Shell Oil Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 444, 448, 196 Cal. Rptr. 52

[e] Questions of Fact

It was question of fact as to whether commercial use of toaster labeled "household use only" was foreseeable. Charter Oak Fire Ins. Co. v. Sodexho Marriot (N.D. Cal. Feb. 27, 2006) 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9567, at *11-*12 (not designated for publication)

Defendant's failure to produce evidence that plaintiff's alleged misuse of product was cause of injury as precluding summary judgment in defendant's favor; whether different ratings for grinder and attached disc was misuse that caused injury as triable issue of fact. Huynh v. Ingersoll-Rand (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 825, 831-832, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 296

Whether product was designed with reasonable care to protect persons using product in way it was intended to be used against foreseeable danger and whether misuse of product by user was foreseeable to manufacturer as questions for the trier of facts. Thompson v. Package Mach. Co. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 188, 196, 99 Cal. Rptr. 281 ; see also Dosier v. Wilcox-Crittendon Co. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 74, 78, 119 Cal. Rptr. 135 (stating that it has been repeatedly held that the foreseeability of the misuse of a product is a question for the trier of fact)

[f] Test for Determining Intended Use

Ultimate test in determining whether product was being used in way it was intended to be used as being whether article was being used in way which seller should have reasonably anticipated. Johnson v. Standard Brands Paint Co. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 331, 340, 79 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; see also Dosier v. Wilcox-Crittendon Co. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 74, 78, 119 Cal. Rptr. 135

In action against seller of defective product based on strict liability in tort, intended use of product which should be foreseen by seller, as well as that foreseeable by manufacturer, as material; ultimate test as being whether article was being used in way which seller should have reasonably anticipated. Lewis v. American Hoist & Derrick Co. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 570, 586, 97 Cal. Rptr. 798

[34] Nonpurchaser-Nonuser of Defective Product

Where railroad crossing gate broke and struck police officer who had been dispatched to crossing because crossing gate arms were stuck in "down" position, and officer alleged that problem that necessitated his presence at scene was not same as allegedly negligent act that caused gate arm to fallsideways and strike him, issue of fact existed as to whether independent cause exception to firefighters' rule applied. Vasquez v. North County Transit Dist. (9th Cir. 2002) 292 F.3d 1049, 1060 , applying California law

Doctrine of strict liability in tort as available to bystander injured by defective product. Elmore v. American Motors Corp. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 578, 587, 75 Cal. Rptr. 652, 451 P.2d 84 ; Baker v. Chrysler Corp. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 710, 715, 127 Cal. Rptr. 745 ; Preissman v. Ford Motor Co. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 841, 850, 82 Cal. Rptr. 108 ; Johnson v. Standard Brands Paint Co. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 331, 337, 79 Cal. Rptr. 194

Firefighters' rule did not bar claims alleging that garage door opener was defective because plaintiff alleged that door's malfunction was independent of fire and not caused by fire. Stapper v. GMI Holdings, Inc. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 787, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 688, 690

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2 as applicable when disability caused or contributed to exposure to asbestos; statute as not requiring either expressly or impliedly that diagnosis and disability be contemporaneous. Uram v. Abex Corp. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1425, 1432, 266 Cal. Rptr. 695

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2 as codifying discovery rule regarding asbestos exposure cases with exception that statute never commences to run until plaintiff suffers disability. Duty v. Abex Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 742, 748, 263 Cal. Rptr. 13

Strict liability in tort as extending not only to actual consumers or users of defective product but to any human being to whom an injury from defect is reasonably foreseeable. Putensen v. Clay Adams, Inc. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1062, 1072, 91 Cal. Rptr. 319

[35] Nonpurchaser-User of Defective Product

Application of doctrine of strict liability in tort in favor of passenger in defective automobile driven by purchaser. Vandermark v. Ford Motor Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 256, 258, 261, 37 Cal. Rptr. 896, 391 P.2d 168

Punitive damages award as upheld in favor of automobile passenger. Grimshaw v. Ford Motor Co. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 757, 810, 819-820, 174 Cal. Rptr. 348

Neither transfer of title to goods nor sale as required for application of doctrine of strict liability in tort. Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 228, 251-252, 71 Cal. Rptr. 306

Liability under doctrine of strict liability in tort as extending to protect employees of ultimate consumer of defective product. Canifax v. Hercules Powder Co. (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 44, 54, 46 Cal. Rptr. 552

[36] Nonsuit

Granting motion for nonsuit in strict products liability case as improper when plaintiff establishes prima facie showing that injury was proximately caused by product's design; whether or not design actually defective as question of fact for jury to decide. Campbell v. General Motors Corp. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 112, 120-122, 184 Cal. Rptr. 891, 649 P.2d 224

Nonsuit in favor of manufacturer of defectively designed plastic-injection molding press in action by worker for personal injuries as not justified by lengthy interval between design and injury (15 years), by manufacturer's offer to plaintiff's employer to conform equipment to state safety standards conditioned on payment of cost of necessary parts, by manufacturer's warning plaintiff's employer about safety deficiency. Balido v. Improved Mach., Inc. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 633, 641-654, 105 Cal. Rptr. 890 (criticized on another point in Foglio v. Western Auto Supply (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 470, 476, 128 Cal. Rptr. 545)

[37] Notice

Requirement of timely notice of breach of warranty as not applicable to strict-tort liability of automobile retailer which sold defective car. Vandermark v. Ford Motor Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 256, 263, 37 Cal. Rptr. 896, 391 P.2d 168

[38] Pleading

In complaint alleging long-term exposure to multiple toxins (that is, if pleaded facts do not naturally give rise to inference of causation), plaintiff must plead specific facts explaining how conduct caused or contributed to injury by: (1) alleging exposure to each toxic material claimed to have caused specific illness; (2) identifying each product that allegedly caused injury; (3) alleging that toxins entered body; (4) alleging that plaintiff suffers from specific illness; and

(except in market share liability case) (5) alleging that each toxin was manufactured or supplied by specific defendant. Bockrath v. Aldrich Chem. Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 71, 79, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 846, 980 P.2d 398

If complaint states cause of action in strict liability, trial court as abusing its discretion by precluding plaintiff from amending complaint to include issues raised by facts stated in pleadings in order to ensure trial on merits; whether or not accident resulted from improper handling or use of product as matter of proof rather than pleading. Read v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 404, 408-409, 70 Cal. Rptr. 454

Complaint to recover damages sustained when bottle of collins mix exploded as sufficient where it alleges that defendant store is in business of selling collins mix; that bottle of collins mix reached plaintiff without change in condition in which it was received by store from manufacturer; and that it exploded almost immediately after plaintiff removed it from refrigeration compartment; plaintiff as required at trial within reasonable limits to eliminate evidence that explosion was caused by improper handling, but such requirement as matter of proof rather than pleading. Read v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 404, 408, 70 Cal. Rptr. 454

Merger of negligence and strict liability claims; in personal injury actions not involving commercial relationship between manufacturer and injured person, warranty count as adding nothing to strict liability and negligence counts. Balido v. Improved Mach., Inc. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 633, 640-641, 105 Cal. Rptr. 890 (criticized on another point in Foglio v. Western Auto Supply (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 470, 476, 128 Cal. Rptr. 545)

[39] Preemption by Federal Law

FDA approval of drug's label does not provide a complete defense to failure-to-warn claims. It was not impossible for the manufacturer of Phenergan to comply with both its state and federal law obligations regarding drug labeling. Plaintiff's state-law failure-to warn claims did not stand as an obstacle to accomplishment of Congress' purpose in FDCA. FDA's Preemption Preamble to its 2006 Final Rule was not entitled to deference. Wyeth v. Levine (2009) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 1187, 173 L. Ed. 2d 51

Court resolved controversy of whether federal cigarette Labeling Act preempted claims alleging that tobacco manufacturers violated state unfair trade practices acts by advertising that "light" cigarettes delivered less tar and nicotine than regular brands. It held that neither Labeling Act's preemption provision nor Federal Trade Commission's actions in field preempted state-law claims predicated on duty not to deceive. Altria Group, Inc. v. Good (2008) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 538, 172 L. Ed. 2d 398

21 U.S.C.S. § 360k(a), MDA's express preemption clause, bars common law claims challenging safety or effectiveness of medical device given FDA premarket approval. Riegel v. Medtronic, Inc. (2008) 552 U.S. 312 128 S. Ct. 999, 169 L. Ed. 2d 892

State rule not preempted by 7 U.S.C.S. § 136v(b) (FIFRA) unless it (1) is requirement for labeling or packaging and (2) imposes labeling or packaging requirement that is in addition to or different from those required under FIFRA; state law labeling requirement is not preempted by § 136v(b) if it is equivalent to, and fully consistent with, FIFRA's misbranding provisions. Bates v. Dow Agrosciences L.L.C. (2005) 544 U.S. 431, 125 S. Ct. 1788, 161 L. Ed. 2d 687, 703

"No propeller guard" state common law tort action against manufacturer of outboard motor is not pre-empted either by enactment of FBSA or by Coast Guard decisions not to promulgate regulation requiring propeller guards. Sprietsma v. Mercury Marine (2002) 537 U.S. 51, 63-70, 123 S. Ct. 518, 154 L. Ed. 2d 466

Plaintiffs' state law fraud-on-the-FDA claims conflicted with, and were therefore impliedly preempted by, FDCA as amended by MDA. Buckman v. Plaintiffs' Legal Comm. (2001) 531 U.S. 341, 121 S. Ct. 1012, 148 L. Ed. 2d 854,

862-864

A personal injury action alleging that a manufacturer was negligent in failing to equip a 1987 automobile with driver's side air bag was preempted by the federal regulations under the National Highway and Motor Safety Act. Geier v. American Honda Motor Co. (2000) 529 U.S. 861, 120 S. Ct. 1913, 146 L. Ed. 2d 914

State common law negligence claim involving allegedly defective pacemaker as not preempted by Medical Device Amendments of 1976 (MDA) to federal Food Drug and Cosmetic Act. Medtronics, Inc. v. Lohr, (1996) 518 U.S. 470

Federal regulations under National Highway and Motor Safety Act as not preempting state tort claims concerning defective tractor trailers and anti-lock brakes. Freightliner Corp. v. Myrick (1995) 514 U.S. 280, 286-287, 115 S. Ct. 1483, 131 L. Ed. 2d 385

1969 cigarette labeling act preempted claims based on failure to warn of dangers of smoking in post-1969 advertisements and alleged fraudulent misrepresentation predicated on state law prohibition against promotional statements that tended to minimize health hazards associated with smoking; non-preempted claims included failure to warn claim insofar as it relied solely upon defendant's testing or research practices, claim alleging intentional fraud in misrepresenting and concealing material fact to extent that it related to duty to disclose material facts, claim alleging conspiracy to misrepresent or conceal material facts concerning the hazards of smoking, and claim alleging breach of express warranty. Cipollone v. Liggett Group, Inc. (1992) 505 U.S. 504, 525-527, 112 S. Ct. 2608, 2622-2624, 120 L. Ed. 2d 407

State-law claims were preempted because in case of non-commercial helicopter accident, DOHSA becomes applicable three nautical miles from shore. *Helman v. Alcoa Global Fasteners Inc. (C.D. Cal. June 16, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 64720, at 3

Wyeth v. Levine did not require court to reverse its earlier ruling because U.S. Supreme Court's decision did not address whether a generic manufacturer may use FDA's "changes being effected" (CBE) process to unilaterally change its warning label. Gaeta v. Perrigo Pharms. Co. (N.D. Cal. Nov. 24, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 115752

Express warranty claim was preempted to extent that manufacturer represented that stent was safe within meaning of MDA but that plaintiffs sought to impose liability on ground that it was unsafe under California law. Moreover, state law claim that requires more than mere compliance with federal requirements may constitute a permissible parallel claim. Only the strict liability manufacturing defect claim survived court's preemption analysis. *Prudhel v. Endologix, Inc. (E.D. Cal. July 9, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 64402, at *11-24

State-law claims against manufacturer of generic OTC ibuprofen drug were preempted, where FDA had once rejected a warning regarding the risks of liver injury associated with the drug. 1997 Modernization Act's savings clause, 21 U.S.C. § 379r(e), did not preclude court's conflict preemption analysis. Gaeta v. Perrigo Pharms. Co. (N.D. Cal. 2008) 562 F. Supp. 2d 1091, 1097

Claims that Paxil should have included warning of risk of suicidal impulses in pediatric patients were preempted. O'Neal v. Smithkline Beecham Corp. (E.D. Cal. 2008) 551 F. Supp. 2d 993, 1003-1009

Premarket approval (PMA) does not constitute specific FDA requirements applicable to a particular device and cannot be used to preempt state law causes of action. State law claims regarding hip replacement were thus not subject to 360k preemption. Notmeyer v. Stryker Corp. (N.D. Cal. 2007) 502 F. Supp. 2d 1051, 1057

FRSA and SAA preempted a negligence claim alleging design defects of a railroad car's operating platform. *Miller v. S. Pac. R.R. (E.D. Cal. Sept. 7, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 66314, at *14-17

Federal Communications Act did not completely preempt state law claims alleging injury from radiation emitted from cellular equipment. *Jasso v. Citizens Telcoms. Co. of Cal., Inc. (E.D. Cal. Jan. 9, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 4771, at *26-32

State laws regarding seats and seating configurations were unduly burdensome on interstate commerce and passenger train industry and were preempted by the Commerce Clause. Duty to warn passengers of dangers of deep vein thrombosis, in contrast, was not unduly burdensome on commerce and not preempted. Federal Amtrak Act, 49 U.S.C.S. § 24301 et seq. , did not preempt the common law claims. Haynes v. AMTRAK (C.D. Cal. 2006) 423 F. Supp. 2d 1073, 1079-1081

Product Development Protocol P) approval process is as rigorous as PMA process and preempted common law tort claims that imposed different standard from those imposed by FDA. Thus, MDA preempted claims relating to design, manufacture, labeling, and warnings regarding pacemakers and leads. Clement v. Kaiser Found. Health Plan, Inc. (Dec. 17, 2004) 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 26414, at *13-*17

Claims that Pfizer negligently failed to adequately warn of dangers of suicide in connection with drug Zoloft were not preempted by federal law. Motus v. Pfizer, Inc. (C.D. Cal. 2000) 127 F. Supp. 2d 1085, 1096-1100

FBSA expressly preempted common law design defect and failure to warn action based on manufacturer's failure to install propeller guard or to provide adequate warning regarding unprotected propellers. Moss v. Outboard Marine Corp. (E.D. Cal. 1996) 915 F. Supp. 183

Labeling Act preempted minors' unfair competition claims against tobacco companies. The U.S. Supreme Court's decision in Lorillard Tobacco Co. v. Reilly (2001) 533 U.S. 525, 121 S. Ct. 2404, 150 L. Ed. 2d 532 was inconsistent with and impliedly disapproved Mangini v. R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1057, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358, 875 P.2d 73 , which had held that the Labeling Act did not preempt a similar claim. In re Tobacco Cases II (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 1257, 1272, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418, 163 P.3d 106

Savings clause in Food & Drug Modernization Act of 1997, 21 U.S.C.S. § 379r(d)(2), which was designed specifically to preserve Proposition 65, does not entirely exclude conflict preemption; federal requirement prevails if warning mandated by California law directly conflicts with one required by FDA; FDA's refusal to allow defendant to use Proposition 65's warning on nicotine replacement therapy product established federal policy prohibiting defendant from giving consumers any warning other than warning approved by FDA; use of Proposition 65 warning would conflict with that policy. Dowhal v. SmithKline Beecham Consumer Healthcare (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 910, 920-921, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 262

Products liability claim, alleging defective design, brought by former railroad employees for asbestos related injuries was preempted under the Locomotive Boiler Inspection Act (BIA) 49 U.S.C.S. § 20701 et seq. Scheiding v. General Motors Corp. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 471, 473, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342, 993 P.2d 996

State law claims for failure to warn of pesticide risks are preempted by federal regulations under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA) 7 U.S.C.S. § 136 et seq. Etcheverry v. Tri-Ag Serv., Inc. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 316, 335-336, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 36, 993 P.2d 366 , overruled in part, Bates v. Dow Agrosciences L.L.C., 544 U.S. 431, 447-452 (2005)

Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard 208 preempted claim that 1993 Mazda MPV minivan was defective because middle row inboard seat had lap-only belt. Williamson v. Mazda Motor of Am., Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 905, 912-919, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 545 , modified and reh'g denied, 2008 Cal. App. LEXIS 2269

Locomotive Boiler Inspection Act, 49 U.S.C.S. § 20701 et seq., preempts design defect claims against locomotive manufacturers, regardless of whether the locomotive was "in use" or off line in a repair shop when the injury occurred. The case involved a locomotive repairman who died of mesothelioma from asbestos exposure. *Frastaci v. Vapor Corp. (Dec. 21, 2007) 2007 Cal. App. LEXIS 2147, at 26

Manufacturer met its burden of proving that its testicular implant was designed, manufactured, and labeled according to FDA specifications. Claims alleging that prosthesis was defective because it lacked an adequate warning were preempted. *Jessen v. Mentor Corp. (Jan. 16, 2008) 2008 Cal. App. LEXIS 61, at *17-23

PMA approval for a heart valve was a device-specific federal requirement that could preempt any conflicting state requirement. Negligence and strict liability claims were preempted. *Blanco v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 2008 Cal. App. LEXIS 34, at *25-27

1969 Smoking Act did not preempt claim under consumer expectations test, because products liability under failure-to-warn theory is distinct cause of action from one under consumer expectations test. Boeken v. Philip Morris Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1676-1679, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638

Defendants' false assurances that they would keep public informed of their findings regarding smoking and health, manufacturing of false controversy regarding health effects of smoking, and misrepresentation by "half-truths," were affirmative misrepresentations outside preemptive reach of 1969 cigarette labeling statute. Whiteley v. Philip Morris, Inc. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 635, 666-677, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 807

21 U.S.C.S. § 379r(a) preempted claims alleging that labels to over-the-counter drugs for treatment of head lice contained false and misleading statements about the effectiveness of the drugs. Savings clause did not apply, because plaintiffs had suffered no injury to person or property, and their claims were thus not "products liability claims" under California law. Kanter v. Warner-Lambert Co. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 780, 790-795, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 72

FIFRA did not preempt claims arising when manufacturer or retailer voluntarily warranted pesticide's fitness for a particular purpose. Nor do FIFRA preemption rules require court to enforce damage limitation provision clause which it finds unconscionable in EPA-approved pesticide label. Sun Valley Packing v. Consep, Inc. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 315, 324, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 237 (certified for partial publication)

FBSA neither expressly nor impliedly preempted claims alleging inadequate handhold areas in boat's tow area. LaPlante v. Wellcraft Marine Corp. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 282, 291, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 196, 202

Manufacturers and successor manufacturers of general aviation aircraft parts in relation to duty to warn and federal preemption. Burroughs v. Precision Airmotive Corp. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 681, 702

Negligence, strict liability, and breach of warranty claims involving optical surgical aid as not preempted by MDA. Armstrong v. Optical Radiation Corp. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 580, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763

Defendant's burden of proof on preemption as including evidence that its product was designed, manufactured, and labeled according to thespecifications approved by the FDA. Steele v. Collagen Corp. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1474, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 879

Common law claim of negligence involving allegedly defective seat beat was not preempted by the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act. Ketchum v. Hyundai Motor Co. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1672, 1678-1679, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 595

Intraocular lens as medical device under Food Drug and Cosmetic Act (FDCA); express preemption clause (21 U.S.C § 360k) as preempting state-law products liability action. Evraets v. Intermedics Intraocular (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 779, 785-787, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 852

Automobile manufacturer's compliance with federal statute and regulations regarding restraint system in automobile as preempting state-law products liability action alleging that failure to supply air bags made automobile defective. Nissan Motor Corp. v. Superior Court (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 980, 982, 261 Cal. Rptr. 80

[40] Prescription Drugs and Medical Devices

FDA approval of drug's label does not provide a complete defense to failure-to-warn claims. It was not impossible for the manufacturer of Phenergan to comply with both its state and federal law obligations regarding drug labeling. Plaintiff's state-law failure-to warn claims did not stand as an obstacle to the accomplishment of Congress' purpose in the FDCA. The FDA's Preemption Preamble to its 2006 Final Rule was not entitled to deference. Wyeth v. Levine (2009) -- U.S. --, 129 S. Ct. 1187, 173 L. Ed. 2d 51

Plaintiffs alleged that defendants failed to adequately warn of risks of lymphoma associated with off-label use of Humira. Court granted motion to dismiss claims but allowed plaintiffs 21 days to file amended complaint. *Wendell v. Johnson & Johnson (N.D. Cal. Jan. 20, 2010) 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 4188, at *8-15

Court dismissed complaint because plaintiff could not establish that defendant manufactured anesthetic delivered to plaintiff via pain pump. *Combs v. Stryker Corp. (E.D. Cal. Dec. 14, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 115920, at *6-7

Service provider that facilitated delivery of Durom Hip Resurfacing System to physician was subject to liability as a distributor. There is no exception to strict liability for distributors of implanted medical devices. *Lyles v. Zimmer, Inc. (E.D. Cal. May 29, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 50483, at *11-13

Complaint alleging that Prednisone was not properly prepared and not accompanied by warnings regarding avascular necrosis stated strict products liability claim. *Gilbert v. Watson Labs., Inc. (S.D. Cal. Oct. 9, 2008) 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 79539, at 7

Manufacturer as not strictly liable for injuries caused by prescription drug so long as drug was properly prepared and accompanied by warnings of its dangerous propensities that were either known or reasonably scientifically knowable at time of distribution. Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1069, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470 (consolidating numerous DES cases; adopting Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A, cmt. k)

Manufacturer of hip replacement system could not be held strictly liable for design defect under Hufft v. Horowitz, below. Notmeyer v. Stryker Corp. (N.D. Cal. 2007) 502 F. Supp. 2d 1051, 1058-1059

Manufacturer of implanted prescription medical product cannot be held strictly liable for a design defect. Hufft v. Horowitz (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 8, 17, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 377

Whether vendor of prescription drug is to be exempt from strict liability as depending on facts surrounding manufacture and sale of product; vendor who has properly prepared product and accompanied its sale with proper directions and warnings as not held to strict products liability for unforeseen results, but as subject to strict liability for resulting injuries when facts disclose that drug has not been properly prepared or has been placed on market and sold without adequate and proper warnings. Carmichael v. Reitz (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 958, 988-989, 95 Cal. Rptr. 381 (prescription drug for pregnancy problems that caused heart disease); Toole v. Richardson-Merrell, Inc. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 689, 710-711, 60 Cal. Rptr. 398 (prescription drug MER/29 (triparanol) for arteriosclerosis condition that caused eye cataracts and skin and hair damage)

Drug manufacturer as having no duty to warn users of possible harmful side effects of drug unless it has knowledge, or by application or reasonable, developed human skill and foresight, should have knowledge, of danger. Christofferson v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 75, 79, 92 Cal. Rptr. 825 (prescription drug for skin ailment that caused permanent vision impairment)

[41] Privity of Contract

Strict-tort liability as not restricted on theory of privity of contract or on theory that no representation of safety is made to bystander injured by defective product. Elmore v. American Motors Corp. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 578, 586, 75 Cal. Rptr. 652, 451 P.2d 84

[42] "Product" Defined

Apartment complex as not "product" within meaning of strict-liability doctrine; cause of action in strict liability, alleging that design defect in apartment complex (i.e., lack of fence enclosure) caused injury to child who walked into street and was hit by vehicle, as subject to summary judgment in favor of defendant. Brooks v. Eugene Burger Mgmt. Corp. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1611, 1626-1627, 264 Cal. Rptr. 756

[42a] Proposition 51

Ford was entitled to setoff of $3,595,500 million in economic damages under Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 977 and Proposition 51. *Pierson v. Ford Motor Co. (N.D. Cal. Aug. 18, 2009) 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 79758, at *6-7

Statute that previously immunized cigarette manufacturers from liability, former Civ. Code § 1714.45, did not permit apportioning liability under Proposition 51 to cigarette manufacturers, because former tobacco immunity statute did not merely confer immunity from liability for tortious conduct; it constituted legislative determination that company supplying tobacco did not engage in tortious conduct. Richards v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (1997) 14 Cal. 4th 985, 997, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 103, 928 P.2d 1181

Arena v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., below, did not apply because evidence did not show percentage of harm caused by any specific product manufactured by defendant. Garcia v. Duro Dyne Corp. (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 92, 103, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 100

Court did not err in reducing award against weight-lifting equipment manufacturer by full amount of plaintiff's settlement with gym. His injuries were caused by a single defective product. Under Wimberly, below, Proposition 51 was not triggered. Bostick v. Flex Equip. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 80, 93, 95, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 28

When operator of jet ski on which plaintiff was injured prevailed on summary judgment based on primary assumption of risk, manufacturer was not entitled to verdict form that would have permitted jury to allocate some fault to her under Civ. Code § 1431.2(a). Because operator breached no duty and committed no tort, there was no legal fault to apportion to her. Ford v. Polaris Indus., Inc. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 755, 777-778, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215

Proposition 51 applies to limit defendant's liability for noneconomic damages by comparative fault of all those responsible for plaintiff's injuries, not merely fault of defendants who are parties to action; award of noneconomic damages against manufacturer was properly reduced by amount attributable to fault of plaintiff's employer, which was immune from liability under workers' compensation system.

DaFonte v. Up-Right, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 593, 600, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238, 828 P.2d 140

Trial court is not bound by allocations made in settlement agreements that have not received prior judicial approval; court must determine whether there was reasonable basis on which to justify those allocations, and plaintiff bears burden of presenting evidence that will enable court to perform its responsibility; any allocation of settlement proceeds that will affect ultimate credit that nonsettling defendant will receive against any future judgment will not be given any presumptive effect unless it was product of adverse negotiation; trial court did not err in refusing to allocate any portion of prior settlement to potential wrongful death claims, despite provision in settlement agreement allocating 20 percent of settlement proceeds to release of those claims, or in allocating lesser percentage of proceeds to loss of consortium than that specified in agreement. Jones v. John Crane, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 990, 1008-1011, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144

Under Proposition 51, Court properly allowed fault of Navy to be taken into account in allocating responsibility for plaintiff's injuries in action against asbestos manufacturer, even if Navy was immune under Feres/Stencel rule. Taylor v. John Crane Inc. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 1063, 1068, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 695

Proposition 51 applies to all strict liability cases. Wilson v. John Crane, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 847, 852, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 240

Proposition 51 applies to strict liability asbestos exposure cases where multiple products cause plaintiff's injuries and evidence provides a basis to allocate liability for noneconomic damages between defective products. Arena v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1178, 1198, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580

Proposition 51 did not modify the common law rule that defendants in an action for strict products liability who are in the chain of distribution of the same defective product are jointly and severally liable for all of plaintiff's economic and noneconomic damages. Wimberly v. Derby Cycle Corp . (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 618, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 532

Allocation of settlement proceeds according to proportions set forth in pretrial settlement is inherently suspect, reflecting bias against economic damages that is prejudicial to nonsettling defendant; if court finds absence of good faith, it may adjust allocation set forth in prior settlement to mirror jury's apportionment of economic and noneconomic damages. Greathouse v. Amcord, Inc. (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 831, 840-841, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 561

[43] Public Policy

Purpose of imposing strict liability in tort as to insure that costs of injuries resulting from defective products are borne by manufacturers that put such products on market rather than by injured persons who are powerless to protect themselves. Greenman v. Yuba Power Prods., Inc. (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 57, 63, 27 Cal. Rptr. 697, 377 P.2d 897 ; Canifax v. Hercules Powder Co. (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 44, 51, 46 Cal. Rptr. 552 ; see also Elmore v. American Motors Corp. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 578, 585-586, 75 Cal. Rptr. 652, 451 P.2d 84 ; Baker v. Chrysler Corp. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 710, 716, 127 Cal. Rptr. 745

Purpose of rule of strict-tort liability as being to insure that costs of injuries resulting from defective products are borne by manufacturers that put suchproducts on market rather than by injured persons who are powerless to protect themselves; rule as not resting on analysis of financial strength or bargaining power of parties to particular action but on proposition that cost of an injury and loss of time or health may be an overwhelming misfortune to person injured and a needless one, for risk of injury can be insured by manufacturer and distributed among public as cost of doing business; thus, paramount policy to be promoted by rule as being protection of otherwise defenseless victims of manufacturing defects and spreading throughout society cost of compensating them. Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 30-31, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3

Public policy as demanding that responsibility be fixed wherever it will most effectively reduce hazards to life and health inherent in defective products that reach market. Escola v. Coca Cola Bottling Co. (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 453, 462, 150 P.2d 436 (concurring opinion); see also Cronin v. J.B.E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 129, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153 ; Young v. Aro Corp. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 240, 246, 111 Cal. Rptr. 535

Paramount policy to be promoted by rule of strict liability as being protection of otherwise defenseless victims of manufacturing defects and spreading throughout society cost of compensating them. Price v. Shell Oil Co. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 245, 251, 85 Cal. Rptr. 178, 466 P.2d 722 ; Young v. Aro Corp. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 240, 247, 111 Cal. Rptr. 535

Accepted rationale of strict liability as being that responsibility for consequences of defective products should rest on those who, as a class, are in best position to make sure such products never reach consumer but who can distribute loss among public as cost of doing business if these products do. Young v. Aro Corp. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 240, 247, 111 Cal. Rptr. 535

Strict liability as generally justified on four main policy grounds: (1) as a shortcut to liability where negligence is present but difficult to prove; (2) as an economic incentive to improved product safety; (3) to induce reallocation of resources toward safer products; and (4) to spread risk of loss among all who use product. McDonald v. Sacramento Medical Foundation Blood Bank (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 866, 874, 133 Cal. Rptr. 444

Rule of products liability as rationalized as inducement to manufacturers to design and produce safe products and as means to avoid artificial conditions to recovery in warranty created by rules of privity. Kaiser Steel Corp. v. Westinghouse Elec. Corp. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 737, 747 , 127 Cal. Rtpr 838

[44] Statute of Limitations

Allegations that defendants represented that their products posed no health risks were sufficient to indicate that statute of limitations was tolled for products liability and negligence claims. *Dillard v. Victoria M. Morton Enters. (E.D. Cal. Oct. 7, 2008) 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 79588, at 12

Claims of injury or damage caused by addiction were time-barred under Grisham v. Philip Morris, Inc. (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 623, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735, 151 P.3d 1151 , even though plaintiff, who was diagnosed with COPD in 1989, did not specifically claim addiction as injury. "First-injury" rule barred her physical injury claims. *Pooshs v. Phillip Morris USA, Inc. (N.D. Cal. May 27, 2008), 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 43620, at 42

Because plaintiff cannot discover that disability was caused by asbestos exposure before he or she suffers that disability, disability must in all cases either precede or accompany its discovery. Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2 may be read as providing in effect that action for injury or illness arising from asbestos exposure must be filed within one year after date plaintiff first suffered disability and either knew or should have known disability was caused or contributed to by that exposure. Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp., Ltd. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 1127, 1138, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701, 998 P.2d 403, 409

Plaintiffs suspected, for more than a year before they filed complaint, wrongdoing by someone and that someone was to blame for their daughter's death,putting them on notice of a potential claim; because plaintiffs delayed in filing claim, drug manufacturer was entitled to summary judgment. Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 398, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P.2d 79

Period of Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) (one year for personal injury or wrongful death), subject to discovery rule, as applying to loss-of-consortium claim based on injury to spouse caused by exposure to asbestos; Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2 (exposure to asbestos) as not applying because spouse does not suffer "disability" within meaning of that statute. Uram v. Abex Corp. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1425, 1436, 266 Cal. Rptr. 695

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2 (limitation period for claims arising from exposure to asbestos) as not requiring that asbestos be sole cause of disability; statute as speaking in terms of disability "caused or contributed to by such exposure" or "as a result of such exposure." Uram v. Abex Corp. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1425, 1432-1433, 266 Cal. Rptr. 695

Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2 (limitation period for asbestos-related injuries) as applicable if timeliness of claim was not adjudicated prior to effective date of Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2 (January 1, 1980); action as not barred if brought within period allowed by Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2, even though limitation period under prior law had expired on plaintiff's claim prior to January 1, 1980. Nelson v. Flintkote Co. (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 727, 730, 218 Cal. Rptr. 562

Retroactive application of special statute of limitations for asbestosis claims (Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2) as justified by legislative intent and remedial nature of statute. Puckett v. Johns-Manville Corp. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1015-1017, 215 Cal. Rptr. 726

Manufacturers and suppliers of heating-cooling systems used in constructing a building as not permitted to raise defense of statute of limitations under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 337.1 and 337.15 because these provisions provide limitations on actions for design or construction defects in improvements to real property only; manufacturing of a unit to heat or cool as considered to be the provision of a product. Baker v. Walker & Walker (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 746, 756-758, 184 Cal. Rptr. 245

Action for damages for personal injuries couched in terms of breach of warranty but which is, in fact, consumer's action in strict liability in tort as governed by one-year limitation period provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) for personal injury actions and not by four-year limitation period of Com. Code § 2725 for actions for breach of contract of sale. Becker v. Volkswagen of Am., Inc. (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 794, 802, 125 Cal. Rptr. 326

Personal injury actions based on products liability as governed by one-year period of limitation prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3). G.D. Searle & Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 22, 25, 122 Cal. Rptr. 218

Action based on strict liability in tort against manufacturer of residential lot for subsurface defect causing soil subsidence as governed by former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(2) (now Code Civ. Proc. § 338(b)), limiting commencement of action for injury to real property to three years; when cause of action accrues. Avner v. Longridge Estates (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 607, 615-617, 77 Cal. Rptr. 633

Statute of limitations as applicable to actions for injury to real property; when cause of action accrues; exceptions. Avner v. Longridge Estates (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 607, 615-618, 77 Cal. Rptr. 633

Manner of pleading statute of limitations in answer. Brown v. World Church (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 684, 691, 77 Cal. Rptr. 669

Manner of pleading statute of limitations in demurrer. Bainbridge v. Stoner (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 423, 431, 106 P.2d 423 ; Spreckels v. Spreckels (1916) 172 Cal. 775, 783, 158 P. 537 ; Lewis v. Security-First Nat'l Bank (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 827, 828 fn, 137 P.2d 864

[45] Summary Judgment

If there exists some triable issue of fact about when plaintiff was placed on notice, then, as a matter of law, it cannot be determined when statute of limitations begins to run and summary judgment for defendant is improper. Clark v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1060, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223

Summary judgment as properly granted to defendant in action based on negligence when plaintiff sued gas company for injuries caused by fire ignited by pilot light of unelevated water heater because defendant owed plaintiff no duty. Salazar v. Southern Cal. Gas Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1370, 1385, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 522

Summary judgment as improperly granted to defendants in action based on strict liability when questions of fact remained as to whether deck gun had design or warning defect. Wright v. Stang Mfg. Co. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1229, 1236, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 422

Summary judgment as improperly granted to defendant in action based on strict liability when plaintiff sued collagen manufacturer for personal injury and collagen manufacturer failed to prove preemption defense. Steele v. Collagen Corp. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1474, 1480, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 879

Summary judgment as improperly granted to defendants in action based on strict liability in tort, negligence, and implied warranty when plaintiff alleged kidney damage from a chemical spill and the cumulative effect of exposure to vapors of chemical products manufactured or distributed by several defendants and used during plaintiff's employment; defendants as required to prove that vapors from their chemicals did not cause or contribute to plaintiff's chronic renal failure. Pereira v. Dow Chem. Co. (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 865, 872, 873, 181 Cal. Rptr. 364

Summary judgment as improperly granted to defendant on causes of action for strict liability and negligence when commercial plaintiff sued manufacturer and seller of crane for property damage and economic loss and questions of fact remained as to proximate cause and existence of defect. Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Harnischfeger Corp. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 842, 852, 855, 175 Cal. Rptr. 67

Summary judgment as properly granted to defendant on action for breach of implied warranty when defendant and commercial plaintiff had relatively equal bargaining positions and their contract for sale of product contained disclaimer by defendant. Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Harnischfeger Corp. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 842, 855-856, 175 Cal. Rptr. 67

Summary judgment as improperly granted to defendant in action based on negligence and strict liability in tort resulting from one-car collision after tire came off wheel where supporting declarations negated defect in manufacture but not defect in design of tire and contained only opinions and conclusions of declarants, as opposed to evidentiary facts. Fuller v. Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 690, 692-694, 86 Cal. Rptr. 705

Summary judgment as properly granted in favor of manufacturer of product (nondefective bulk sulphuric acid) sold to another manufacturer for use in producing a drain-cleaning product ("Clear-All"), which caused plaintiff's injuries, where second manufacturer substantially altered first manufacturer's product before it reached ultimate user or consumer. Walker v. Stauffer Chem. Corp. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 669, 672-675, 96 Cal. Rptr. 803

[46] Superseding Cause

Summary judgment on superseding cause was inappropriate because a triable issue of fact existed as to whether damage caused by toaster was foreseeable. Charter Oak Fire Ins. Co. v. Sodexho Marriot (N.D. Cal. Feb. 27, 2006) 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9567, at *17 (not designated for publication)

When neglect of third party constitutes superseding cause to strict liability in tort. Balido v. Improved Mach., Inc. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 633, 644-649, 105 Cal. Rptr. 890

Effect on proximate cause of lapse of time between sale of product and subsequent injury from defect as question of fact. Balido v. Improved Mach., Inc. (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 633, 642-644 , 105 Cal. Rptr. 890 ; see also Knudsen v. Peoples Lumber Co. (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 167, 179, 137 Cal. Rptr. 110

[47] Warranties

[a] Advertising

Affirmations in newspaper advertising as capable of giving rise to express-warranty liability. Grinnell v. Charles Pfizer & Co. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 424, 439 n. 13, 79 Cal. Rptr. 369

[b] Basis of Bargain

To recover for breach of express warranty under Com. Code § 2313, seller's statements, whether of fact or opinion, as required to be part of basis of bargain; basis-of-bargain requirement as representing significant change in law of warranties. Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 115, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377

[c] Class Actions

Class action based on breach of express warranty against truck manufacturer to compel manufacturer to recall and replace at its expense defective wheelsinstalled on certain of its trucks. Anthony v. General Motors Corp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 699, 704-709, 109 Cal. Rptr. 254

[d] Construction

Statement of fact on shipping-carton label and cover of instruction booklet to "Golfing Gizmo," to wit, "Completely Safe Ball Will Not Hit Player," as subject to construction as an express warranty; but even statements of opinion as becoming warranties under Com. Code § 2313 if they become part of basis of bargain; thus, California's Commercial Code as expanding sellers' liability beyond former Uniform Sales Act (former Civ. Code §§ 1732-1736) and as providing greater coverage than Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402. Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 115 n. 10, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377

[e] Disclaimers

Purpose underlying Com. Code § 2316 suggests that disclaimers must be included in contract with end user. Salyards v. Metso Minerals Tampere Oy (E.D. Cal. Nov. 10, 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 29360, at *27-*29

Disclaimer of implied warranties as precluding cause of action for breach of warranty when parties had reasonably equal bargaining power. Southern Cal. Edison Co. v. Harnischfeger Corp. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 842, 855-856, 175 Cal. Rptr. 67

Contractual disclaimers to implied warranties as question of fact for jury, not properly raised for first time on appeal. Hughes Tool Co. v. Max Hinrichs Seed Co. (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 194, 201-202, 169 Cal. Rptr. 160

Manner of disclaiming or modifying, and construction of, express and implied warranties. Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 114-120, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377

Insufficiently conspicuous disclaimer provisions of contract as not negating implied warranties. Dorman v. International Harvester Co. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 11, 18, 120 Cal. Rptr. 516

[ee] Express Warranty

No evidence that breach of express warranty was substantial factor in causing accident involving industrial machine. Andrade v. Pangborn Corp. (N.D. Cal. Oct. 22, 2004) 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 22704, at *61-*62

[f] Economic Losses

Economic losses not recoverable in strict liability can include repair cost, replacement cost, loss of profits or diminution of value, if loss is solely economic, and not due to physical harm to the property. Collins Dev. Co. v. D. J. Plastering, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 771, 779, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 83

Strict liability as inapplicable to defendant manufacturer sued solely for economic losses, defined as damages for loss based on inadequate value, costs of repair, and replacement of defective product or consequent loss of profits without any claim of personal injury or damage to other property. Fieldstone Co. v. Briggs Plumbing Prods., Inc. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 357, 365-366, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701

In breach of warranty action, order for new trial on issue of damages as proper when plaintiff offered expert testimony based on national averages of profitsfor similar businesses, which was entirely speculative as to lost profits for plaintiff's particular business. Berge v. International Harvester Co. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 152, 190 Cal. Rptr. 815

Defects in quality of goods (loss of bargain) and economic loss (loss of use of truck resulting in business loss) as not recoverable from manufacturer under theory of strict liability, but as relegated to law of contracts (sales) governing commercial transactions, that is, to express and implied warranties. Anthony v. Kelsey-Hayes Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 442, 447, 102 Cal. Rptr. 113

[g] Implied Warranty

No evidence that breach of implied warranty of merchantability or implied warranty of fitness for particular purpose was substantial factor in causing accident involving industrial machine. Andrade v. Pangborn Corp. (N.D. Cal. Oct. 22, 2004) 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 22704, at *63-*65

Theory of strict liability in tort as having virtually superseded concept of implied warranties in cases involving personal injuries resulting from defective products. Grinnell v. Charles Pfizer & Co. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 424, 433, 79 Cal. Rptr. 369 ; see also Christofferson v. Kaiser Found. Hosps. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 75, 80, 92 Cal. Rptr. 825

[h] Limitations in Warranties

In action against automobile retailer for injuries sustained in accident allegedly caused by sudden failure of car's braking system, fact that defendant restricted its contractual liability to purchaser of car as immaterial, since it was strictly liable in tort. Vandermark v. Ford Motor Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 256, 263, 37 Cal. Rptr. 896, 391 P.2d 168

[i] Notice of Breach

Builders and sellers of new construction (apartment buildings) as held to implied representation that completed structure was designed and constructed in reasonably workmanlike manner; buyer as required to give timely notice of breach of warranty. Pollard v. Saxe & Yolles Dev. Co. (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 374, 380, 115 Cal. Rptr. 648, 525 P.2d 88 (judgment for defendants affirmed on ground plaintiffs failed to give timely notice of breach)

[j] Privity

Plaintiff stated claim for breach of warranties because nothing in his complaint affirmatively showed that he did not receive Prednisone directly from defendants. *Gilbert v. Watson Labs., Inc. (S.D. Cal. Oct. 9, 2008) 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 79539, at 6

Courts have not extended privity exception to products beyond medicine, pesticides, and foodstuffs, and there was no privity between decedent and manufacturer of *Taser. Sanders v. City of Fresno (E.D. Cal. July 3, 2006) 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 48582, at *66-69

Because plaintiffs failed to establish privity between themselves and defendant, defendant entitled to summary judgmenton express and implied warranty claims. Torres v. City of Madera (In re Torres) (E.D. Cal. July 11, 2005) 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 34672, at *56-*68 , applying California law

Lack of privity precluded breach of implied warranty claim because there was no evidence that decedent relied on manufacturer's judgment that its heart valve was appropriate for her. *Blanco v. Baxter Healthcare Corp.(2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 2008 Cal. App. LEXIS 34, at *40-41

To prevail on breach of implied warranty of merchantability claim, plaintiff must stand in "vertical privity" with defendants (they must occupy adjoining links in distribution chain; plaintiffs did not allege that they purchased latex gloves directly from defendants. Kennedy v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 799, 810-811 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 736

Under Commercial Code [Com. Code §§ 2313, 2314, 2316], privity as not required for action based on express warranty although it "appears" to remain a requirement for actions based on implied warranty of merchantability. Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 114 n. 8, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377

[k] Purpose of Strict Liability

Law of strict liability in tort as developed to govern problem of physical injuries and not to undermine warranty provisions of former sales act or of Commercial Code. Seely v. White Motor Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 9, 15, 45 Cal. Rptr. 17, 403 P.2d 145

[l] Statute of Limitations

Under Comm. Code § 2725, cause of action for breach of warranty for future performance, such as manufacturer's 25-year warranty on siding, accrues upon discovery of breach. Thus, subject to tolling or estoppel, plaintiffs were required to bring warranty claims within four years from date they discovered or should have discovered that siding was not performing properly. Mills v. Forestex Co. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 625, 642, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 273

Statute of limitations in action for breach of warranty by purchaser of industrial electric motor as beginning to run from date of motor failure where purchaser did not and could not reasonably discover defect until such failure (principles of prospective warranties applied). Kaiser Cement & Gypsum Corp. v. Allis-Chalmers Mfg. Co. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d

948, 960-961, 111 Cal. Rptr. 210

[48] Witnesses

In action based on strict liability in tort to recover damages for personal injury sustained as result of defectively placed water heater in garage of residential home (can containing gasoline knocked over causing gasoline to spread across floor to heater where it ignited on reaching flame of heater seriously injuring plaintiff, a minor, in resulting fire), trial court as committing reversible error in disallowing testimony of plaintiff's qualified expert as to fire hazard created by placement of heater. Hyman v. Gordon (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 769, 774, 111 Cal. Rptr. 262 (expert was well qualified to offer what information expert possessed concerning fire hazards and properties of gasoline in relation to allegedly defective house design, subjects beyond common knowledge of most jurors)

[49] Workers' Compensation

Court rejected contention that decedent's cause of action accrued at time of his original exposure to asbestos between 1964-1966, and that the dual capacity exception in effect prior to 1982 amendment was applicable. Only if decedent had first learned he was suffering from asbestos-related illness prior to 1982 could plaintiffs have based their claim on former dual capacity doctrine. Ashdown v. Ameron Int'l Corp. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 868, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 20, 27

In action by employer injured on job while operating press brake, cause of action for strict products liability as preempted by workers' compensation law and as not excepted from exclusive remedy rule by virtue of Lab. Code § 4558(b), establishing higher burden of proof by plaintiff for that type of injury. Award Metals, Inc. v. Superior Court (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1128, 1133-1135, 279 Cal. Rptr. 459

Employer liable under comparative negligence theory to employee injured by defective product as not entitled to credit for paying workers' compensation benefits. Anderson-Cottonwood Disposal Serv. v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 326, 333, 185 Cal. Rptr. 336

Where claimed negligence of purchaser of defective product, unreasonably dangerous to user, is not of such nature as would bar recovery in strict liability by purchaser from manufacturer of product, strict liability of manufacturer as not shared with workers' compensation insurer of purchaser whose employees were injured by defective product and which paid workers' compensation benefits. Ruiz v. Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 462, 465, 93 Cal. Rptr. 270 (affirming judgment for plaintiff employees and for plaintiff in intervention, the State Compensation Insurance Fund); see also Shamblin v. Polich (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 756, 763, 108 Cal. Rptr. 410 ; Lewis v. American Hoist & Derrick Co. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 570, 585, 97 Cal. Rptr. 798 ; cf. Levels v. Growers Ammonia Supply Co. (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 443, 453, 121 Cal. Rptr. 779 (employer assumed risk of conditions that gave rise to supplier's strict liability and was therefore joint tortfeasor, barring its insurance carrier's recovery of workers' compensation benefits paid)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsProcedureSettlementsMultipartiesContributionTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsStrict LiabilityAbnormally Dangerous ActivitiesActivities & Conditions

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.105

§ 460.105 Law Reviews

Fradella, O'Neill and Fogarty, The Impact of Daubert on Forensic Science, 31 Pepp. L. Rev. 323 (2004)

Baker, A Farewell to Arms: Risk/Benefit Litigation Against Gun Manufacturers in California After the Repeal of Statutory Immunity, 6 Chap. L. Rev. 279 (2003)

Ellis, A Product Liability Claim by Any Other Name Remains a Product Liability Claim: California Courts Should Not Permit Plaintiffs to Recast Product Liability Claims in the Terms of Fraud, 25 Whittier L. Rev. 441 (2003)

Conk, The True Test: Alternative Safer Designs for Drugs and Medical Devices in a Patent-Constrained Market, 49 UCLA L. Rev. 737 (2002)

Graf, Regulating Pesticide Pollution In California Under The 1986 Safe Drinking Water and Toxic Exposure Act (Proposition 65), 28 Ecology L.Q. 663 (2001)

Kahn, Product Liability and the Politics of Corporate Presence: Identity and Accountability in Macpherson v. Buick, 35 Loy. L.A. L. Rev. 3 (2001)

Sayles and Lambden, Stop Shooting Down Tort Liability: It Is Time to Resuscitate the Abnormally Dangerous Activity Doctrine Against Handgun Manufacturers, 12 Stan. L. & Pol'y Rev 143 (2001)

Sugarman, Tobacco Tort Litigation in California: A Better Understanding of Civil Code Section 1714.45 , 38 San Diego L. Rev. 1051 (2001)

Wallenstein, Comment: Gun Manufacturers and Unfair Business Practices, 30 Sw. U. L. Rev. 435 (2001)

Viscusi, Corporate Risk Analysis: A Reckless Act?, 52 Stan. L. Rev. 547 (2000)

Harris, Problems with Prozac: A Defective Product Responsible for Criminal Behavior?, 10 J. Contemp. Legal Issues 359 (1999)

Ogburn, Comment: Subsequent Remedial Measures and the Application of California Law in a Diversity Action, 39 Santa Clara L. Rev. 615 (1999)

Prosser, Strict Liability to the Consumer in California, 50 Hastings L.J. 813 (1999)

Gelsinger, Medtronic, Inc. v. Lohr: Is Federal Pre-emption a Heartbeat away from Death under the Medical Device Amendments?, 25 Pepp. L. Rev. 647 (1998)

Kanazawa and Gallipeau, Conceiving The Lawyer As Creative Problem Solver: Article: Specific Applications: Minimizing Product Liability Exposure: Practical Solutions for Manufacturers, 34 Cal. W. L. Rev. 509 (1998)

Miller, Risk Homeostasis and California Design Defect Products Liability: Rethinking the Consumer Expectations and Risk-Benefit Tests, 32 U.S.F.L. Rev. 587 (1998)

Moy, Tobacco Companies, Immune No More-California's Removal of the Legal Barriers Preventing Plaintiffs from Recovering for Tobacco-Related Illness, 29 McGeorge L. Rev. 761 (1998)

Render, Can Tort Law Be Used to Save Blue Collar Jobs in the United States?, 29 Cal. W. Int'l L.J. 175 (1998)

Canter, The Missing or Altered Product: Nightmare or Dream?, 26 Sw. U. L. Rev. 1051 (1997)

McNicholas and McNicholas, Ultrahazardous Products Liability: Providing Victims of Well-Made Firearms Ammunition to Fire Back at Gun Manufacturers, 30 Loy. L.A. L. Rev. 1599 (1997)

Twerski, Inside the Restatement, 24 Pepp. L. Rev. 839 (1997)

Triff, Should a Non-Designing Manufacturer Be Held Strictly Liable for a Design Defect? An Approach for California, 33 San Diego L. Rev. 385 (1996)

Geistfeld, Placing a Price on Pain and Suffering: A Method for Helping Juries Determine Tort Damages for Nonmonetary Injuries, 83 Calif. L. Rev. 773 (1995)

Hand, Should Juries Decide Aircraft Design? Cleveland v. Piper Aircraft Corp. and Federal Preemption of State Tort Law, 29 U.S.F.L. Rev. 741 (1995)

Yin, Nailing Jello to a Wall: A Uniform Approach for Adjudicating Insurance Coverage Disputes in Products Liability Cases with Delayed Manifestation Injuries and Damages, 83 Calif. L. Rev. 1243 (1995)

Latin, "Good" Warnings, Bad Products, and Cognitive Limitations, 41 UCLA L. Rev. 1193 (1994)

Rose, Related Contacts and Personal Jurisdiction: The "But For" Test, 82 Calif. L. Rev. 1545 (1994)

Wilson, The Resolution of Legal Impediments to the Manufacture and Administration of an Aids Vaccine, 34 Santa Clara L. Rev. 495 (1994)

Cox, The Duty to Warn: Should California Extend the Duty to Include Foreign Language Warnings?, 1 San Diego Justice J. 517 (1993)

Moch and Borja, Deadly Child Restraints: An Analysis of the Legislation and Defects Associated with Child Restraint Devices, 20 W. St. U.L. Rev. 527 (1993)

Oter, A Bone to Pick With Mexicali Rose v. Superior Court: Liability of California Restaurants for Injuries Caused by Substances in Food, 27 Loy. L.A. L. Rev. 397 (1993)

Blumenberg, Medical Monitoring Funds: The Periodic Payment of Future Medical Surveillance Expenses in Toxic Exposure Litigation, 43 Hastings L.J. 661 (1992)

Sanders, The Bendectin Litigation: A Case Study in the Life Cycle of Mass Torts, 43 Hastings L.J. 301 (1992)

Comment, Custom's Proper Role in Strict Products Liability Actions Based on Design Defect, 38 UCLA L. Rev. 439 (1990)

Boyle and Hastings, California Code of Civil Procedure Sections 337.1 and 337.15: Defective Construction Defect Statutes, 21 Pac. L.J. 235 (1990)

Green and Matasar, The Supreme Court and the Products Liability Crisis: Lessons from Boyle's Government Contractor Defense, 63 S. Cal. L. Rev. 637 (1990)

Henderson and Eisenberg, The Quiet Revolution in Products Liability: An Empirical Study of Legal Change, 37 UCLA L. Rev. 479 (1990)

Note, Efficient Accident Prevention as a Continuing Obligation: The Duty to Recall Defective Products, 42 Stan. L. Rev. 103 (1989)

Note, The Product Liability Provision of the Civil Liability Reform Act of 1987: An Evaluation of Its Impact and Scope, 62 S. Cal. L. Rev. 1449 (1989)

Hawes, Trademark Licensing Can Lead to Product Liability, 34(3) Prac. Law. 23 (1988).

Kelso, Brown v. Abbott Laboratories and Strict Products Liability, 20 Pac. L.J. 1 (1988)

Comment, Criminal Product Tampering: A Manufacturer Is Only as Judgment-Proof as His Product Is Tamper-Proof, 17 Sw. U.L. Rev. 541 (1988)

Note, Admissibility of Remedial Measures Evidence in Products Liability Actions: Towards a Balancing Test, 39 Hastings L.J. 1171 (1988)

Note, The Consumer Expectations Test: A Critical Review of its Application in California, 17 Sw. U.L. Rev. 823 (1988)

Note, Drug Product Liability and Health Care Delivery Systems, 40 Stan. L. Rev. 989 (1988)

Note, Kelley v. R.G. Industries: California Caught in the Crossfire, 17 Sw. U.L. Rev. 497 (1988)

Comment, Apportionment of Insurance Coverage in Asbestosis Cases: Coverage, Coverage, Who's Got Coverage? 27 Santa Clara L. Rev. 135 (1987)

Comment, Common Law Strict Liability Against the Manufacturers and Sellers of Saturday Night Specials: Circumventing California Civil Code Section 1714.4 , 27 Santa Clara L. Rev. 607 (1987)

Comment, Products Liability in the Small Capital Goods Manufacturing Firm: Problems, Proposals and Pitfalls, 23 Cal. W.L. Rev. 304 (1987)

Westfall, Hepatitis, AIDS and the Blood Product Exemption From Strict Products Liability in California: A Reassessment, 37 Hastings L.J. 1101 (1986)

Survey, Women and California Law: V. A. Products Liability, 16 Golden Gate U.L. Rev. 555 (1986)

Comment, Becker v. IRM Corporation: Strict Liability for Landlords, 16 Golden Gate U.L. Rev. 349 (1986)

Note, Becker v. IRM Corporation: The Final Chapter in The Destruction of Landlord Tort Immunity, 17 Pac. L.J. 995 (1986)

Note, Plaintiffs' Conduct as a Defense to Claims Against Cigarette Manufacturers, 99 Harv. L. Rev. 809 (1986)

Tarantino, A Human Approach to the Initial Interview in a Products Liability Case, 31(8) Prac. Law 61 (1985)

Smith, Uniform Product Liability Law--But on Whose Terms? 5(1) Cal. Law. 34 (1985)

Wildman and Farrell, Strict Products Liability in California: An Ideological Overview, 19 U.S.F. L. Rev. 139 (1985)

Note, The Landlord as a Retailer? Strict Products Liability and the Landlord-Tenant Relationship in California: Becker v. IRM Corporation, 21 Cal. W.L. Rev. 524 (1985)

Comment, Hitting the Mark: Strict Liability for Defective Handgun Design, 24 Santa Clara Law. 743 (1984)

Note, Becker v. IRM Corporation: Strict Liability for Landlords, 15 Sw. U.L. Rev. 101 (1984)

Diamond, Eliminating the "Defect" in Design Strict Products Liability Theory, 34 Hastings L.J. 529 (1983)

McKeown, Patent Records as a Source of Evidence in Products Liability Suits, 29 Prac. Law. 13 (1983)

Shea, Better Insurance and Contractual Protection From Product Liability (With Forms), 29(2) Prac. Law. 45 (1983)

Comment, Anatomy of a Defect: Exploring the Outer Limits of a Manufacturer's Liability for Criminally Tampered Products, 14 Pac. L.J. 1173 (1983)

Comment, Beyond the Dalkon Shield: Proving Causation Against IUD Manufacturers For PID Related Injury, 13 Golden Gate U.L. Rev. 639 (1983)

Comment, Infant Formula: An Exploration of Administrative, Judicial, and Legislative Avenues to Recovery for Formula Associated Injuries in the United States, 16 U.C. Davis L. Rev. 677 (1983)

Comment, Issues in Asbestos Litigation, 34 Hastings L.J. 871 (1983)

Comment, Punitive Damages in DES Market Share Litigation, 23 Santa Clara L. Rev. 185 (1983)

Comment, Used Products and Strict Liability: Where Public Safety and Caveat Emptor Intersect, 19 Cal. W.L. Rev. 330 (1983)

Delgado, Beyond Sindell: Relaxation of Cause-in-Fact Rules for Indeterminate Plaintiffs, 70 Cal. L. Rev. 881 (1982)

Shea, The Product Liability Risk Retention Act of 1981, 28(2) Prac. Law. 9 (1982)

Smolker, Guilty Until Proven Innocent, 16 Bev. Hills B.J. 259 (1982)

Whitman, Advertising and Personal Injury Suits--Should Puffing Be a Defense? 15 U.C. Davis L. Rev. 617 (1982)

Comment, Containing Corporate Existence for Post-Dissolution Claims: The Defective Product Dilemma, 13 Pac. L.J. 1227 (1982)

Comment, Strict Product Liability for Injuries Caused by Recombinant DNA Bacteria, 22 Santa Clara L. Rev. 117 (1982)

Henderson, Coping With the Time Dimension in Products Liability, 69 Cal. L. Rev. 919 (1981)

Westra, Restructuring the Defenses to Strict Products Liability--An Alternative to Comparative Negligence, 19 Santa Clara L. Rev. 355 (1979)

Note, Equitable Indemnity--Liability Apportioned Between a Strictly Liable Defendant and a Negligent Defendant on a Comparative Fault Basis--Safeway Stores, Inc. v. Nest-Kart, 19 Santa Clara L. Rev. 497 (1979)

Comment, A California Perspective on Strict Products Liability, 9 Pacific L.J. 775 (1978)

Levine, Strict Products Liability and Comparative Negligence: The Collision of Fault and No-Fault, 14 San Diego L. Rev. 337 (1977)

Hoenig, Product Designs and Strict Tort Liability: Is There a Better Approach? 8 Southwestern U. (LA) L. Rev. 109 (1976)

Van Wormer, Transfusion Associated Hepatitis, 12 Cal. West. L. Rev. 389 (1976)

Comment, Ault v. International Harvester Co.--Death Knell to the Exclusionary Rule Against Subsequent Remedial Conduct in Strict Products Liability, 13 San Diego L. Rev. 208 (1975)

Comment, Physicians' Liability: The Sale and Insertion of a Dalkon Shield, 11 Cal. West. L. Rev. 347 (1975)

Hauser, California Strict Products Liability and Commercial Air Crashes, 19(1) Bev. Hills B.J. 30 (1974)

Hoenig and Goetz, A Rational Approach to 'Crashworthy' Automobiles: The Need for Judicial Responsibility, 6 Southwestern U. (LA) L. Rev. 1 (1974)

Houser, The Consumer's Sleeping Giant--The Federal Hazardous Substances Labeling Act, 14 Santa Clara Lawyer 520 (1974)

Kubey, Strict Liability in Tort: Its Applicability to Manufacturers of Prescription Drugs, 7 U.C.D. L. Rev. 487 (1974)

Comment, Continuing the Common Law Response to the New Industrial State: The Extension of Enterprise Liability to Consumer Services, 22 UCLA L. Rev. 401 (1974)

Comment, Strict Liability: A 'Lady in Waiting' for Wrongful Birth Cases, 11 Cal. West. L. Rev. 136 (1974)

Comment, Strict Liability--The Medical Service Immunity and Blood Transfusions in California, 7 U.C.D. L. Rev. 196 (1974)

Note, Abnormal Use in the Strict Products Liability Case--The Plaintiff's Burden of Proof? 6 Southwestern U. (LA) L. Rev. 661 (1974)

Scalia and Goodman, Procedural Aspects of the Consumer Product Safety Act, 20 UCLA L. Rev. 899 (1973)

Note, Torts: Products Liability, 61 Cal. L. Rev. 656 (1973)

Franklin, Tort Liability for Hepatitis: An Analysis and a Proposal, 24 Stan. L. Rev. 439 (1972)

Kuhne, Choice of Law In Products Liability, 60 Cal. L. Rev. 1 (1972)

Note, Liability of Birth Control Pill Manufacturers, 23 Hastings L.J. 1526 (1972)

Note, Products and the Professional: Strict Liability in the Sale-Service Hybrid Transaction, 24 Hastings L.J. 111 (1972)

Booth, Strict Liability for Obvious Defects, 46 L.A. Bar. B. 140 (1971)

Keeton, Roger Traynor and the Law of Torts, 44 So Cal. L. Rev. 1045 (1971)

Kennedy, The Products Hazard Exclusion in California, 21 Hastings L.J. 1383 (1970)

Titus, Restatement (Second) of Torts Section 402A and the Uniform Commercial Code, 22 Stan. L. Rev. 713 (1970)

Turner, Corporate Responsibility and Product Safety, 8 San Diego L. Rev. 15 (1970)

Comment, A Franchisor's Liability for the Torts of His Franchisee, 5 U.S.F. L. Rev. 118 (1970)

Comment, Contractual Freedom and Consumer Protection: A Renewed Inquiry After Price v. Shell Oil Company, 18 UCLA L. Rev. 188 (1970)

Comment, Hanberry v. Hearst Corp.: Liability of Product Certifiers, 5 U.S.F. L. Rev. 137 (1970)

Note, Products Liability at the Threshold of the Landlord-Lessor, 21 Hastings L.J. 458 (1970)

Adelizzi, Eichler and Avner-- Strict Liability in Real Property, 44 L.A. Bar B. 431 (1969)

Cotchett, Experimental Evidence in Products Liability, 44 State B.J. 866 (1969)

Peters, Causation in Product Liability-- An Engineering View, 15 The Practical Lawyer 95 (1969)

Note, Products Liability and the Problem of Proof, 21 Stan. L. Rev. 1777 (1969)

McCune, Maritime Products Liability, 18 Hastings L.J. 831 (1967)

Ehrenzweig, Negligence Without Fault, 54 Cal. L. Rev. 1422 (1966)

Franklin, When Worlds Collide: Liability Theories and Disclaimers in Defective Product Cases, 18 Stan. L. Rev. 974 (1966)

James, The Untoward Effects of Cigarettes and Drugs: Some Reflections on Enterprise Liability, 54 Cal. L. Rev. 1550 (1966)

Prosser, Strict Liability to the Consumer in California, 18 Hastings LJ 9 (1966)

Comment, Manufacturer's Responsibility for Defective Products: Continuing Controversy Over the Law to Be Applied, 54 Cal. L. Rev. 1681 (1966)

Note, Products Liability: What Type of Loss Will the Doctrine of Strict Liability in Tort Cover? 17 Hastings L.J. 385 (1966)

Lascher, Strict Liability in Tort for Defective Products: The Road to and Past Vandermark, 38 So Cal. L. Rev. 30 (1965)

Steffen, Enterprise Liability: Some Exploratory Comments, 17 Hastings L.J. 165 (1965)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsProcedureSettlementsMultipartiesContributionTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsStrict LiabilityAbnormally Dangerous ActivitiesGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.106

§ 460.106 Text References

Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 3, Actions, § 147; vol. 4, Pleading, §§ 587-589; vol. 5, Pleading, §§ 892-893; vol. 8, Enforcement of Judgment, §§ 481-482 (4th ed.)

Witkin, Summary of California Law, vol. 3, Sales, §§ 50-107; vol. 6, Torts, §§ 1241-1308, 1310-1314, 1319-1326, 1351, 1404-1430, 1449-1454, 1460-1464 (10th ed. 2005)

Duty of manufacturer to warn of product's dangerous condition or fact which make it likely to be dangerous. Restatement (Second) of Torts §§ 388, 394

Standard of care required of manufacturers. Restatement (Second) of Torts § 395

Care required of manufacturer in design of product. Restatement (Second) of Torts § 398

Standard for strict liability applicable to sellers of products. Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A

When placing of dangerous product in hands of user without warning gives rise to strict tort liability. Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsJudgment on the PleadingsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureMultiple DefendantsContributionGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureSettlementsMultipartiesContributionTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 460.107-460.119

[Reserved]

§§ 460.107[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

40-IV California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated Scope

Scope

NOTE: This checklist is designed as a reminder to counsel only of the usual classes of defects, parties, and theories of liability in a products liability case. In any given fact situation nonlisted defects and additional potential parties and theories of liability may emerge. Hence, this checklist should be treated as an illustrative guide rather than as a definitive listing of all possible defects, parties, and theories of liability.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.120

§ 460.120 Product Defect

☐ Product defective because it was incapable of doing job for which it was intended and warranted.

☐ Defect in manufacture (e.g., something was not done that should have been done, or vice versa, in course of manufacture).

☐ Product defective because of improper assembly or service by one other than manufacturer (e.g., an automobile dealer who or which, pursuant to contract with manufacturer, makes certain adjustments or assembly before selling car).

☐ Product defective because it incorporates component part manufactured by another which contains defect in manufacture or design.

☐ Product defective because it incorporates component part manufactured by another which was not defective in manufacture or design but which was incapable of doing the job for which it was intended (e.g., component part was of improper size or made of materials inadequate for the specific purpose for which it was to be used).

☐ Defect in design (which would have been reasonably inexpensive to correct).

☐ Product defective because it lacked safety device required by law or otherwise necessary for safe use of product.

☐ Product, although nondefective in manufacture, assembly, or design, was rendered defective because of failure to give warning or instructions as to danger inherent in its use.

☐ Product, although nondefective in manufacture, assembly, or design, but requiring warning or instructions as to use was rendered defective because warning or instructions given were inadequate to avoid injury to person or to property from danger inherent in use of product.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsProcedureSettlementsMultipartiesContributionTortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityDuty to WarnTortsProducts LiabilityManufacturing DefectsTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.121

§ 460.121 Theories of Liability, Parties, Damages

[1] No Injury to Person or to Property

- ☐ Theories of liability.
  - ☐ Breach of express warranty [see Com. Code §§ 2313, 2317].
  - ☐ Breach of implied warranty [see Com. Code §§ 2314, 2315, 2317].
- ☐ Potential plaintiff.
  - ☐ Purchaser of product.
  - ☐ Lessee of product.
  - ☐ Bailee of product.
- ☐ Potential defendant.
  - ☐ Retailer (lessor, bailor) of product.
  - ☐ Manufacturer of product.
- ☐ Damages recoverable: economic loss.

[2] Injury to Person or Property or Both

☐ Theories of liability.

☐ Strict liability in tort.

☐ Negligence.

☐ Breach of express warranty.

☐ Potential plaintiff.

☐ Purchaser of product.

☐ Lessee of product.

☐ Bailee of product.

☐ Licensee of product.

☐ Employee of purchaser, lessee, bailee, or licensee (against third party in which case employer's compensation carrier may be lien claimant or intervene to recover out of judgment any worker's compensation benefits paid).

NOTE:
Covered employee would also be entitled to proceed against employer under Worker's Compensation Law [see generally Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation].

☐ User of product other than the above.

☐ Nonuser of product other than the above.

☐ Spouse of person injured by defective product (loss of consortium).

☐ Personal representative or persons entitled to bring wrongful death action for death of person killed by defective product (wrongful death action [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60]).

☐ Personal representative of person injured by defective product who dies before judgment (survival action [Prob. Code § 573]).

☐ Potential defendants.

☐ Retailer (lessor, bailor, licensor) of defective product.

☐ Wholesaler or distributor of defective product.

☐ Manufacturer of defective product.

☐ Manufacturer of defective component part in product.

☐ Installer, the negligence of whom or which created defect.

☐ Repairer, the negligence of whom or which created defect or failed to discover defect.

☐ Servicer, other than installer or repairer, the negligence of whom or which caused or contributed to existence of defect.

☐ In case of action by nonuser, user of product who or which knew of defect and was negligent in using defective product.

☐ In case of action by nonuser, nonpurchaser, purchaser of product who or which knew of defect and was negligent in allowing defective product to be used.

☐ Third person, other than the above, the negligence of whom or which contributed to plaintiff's injuries (e.g., a public entity for maintenance of a dangerous road condition, in which case a claim must be timely filed and rejected by the public entity before an action may be filed against it and these facts must be alleged in the complaint).

☐ Damages recoverable.

☐ Actual damages [Civ. Code §§ 3300, 3333].

☐ Exemplary or punitive damages [Civ. Code § 3294].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsProducts LiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsProducts LiabilityBreach of WarrantyTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsPublic Entity LiabilityLiabilityGeneral OverviewTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.122

§ 460.122 Analysis of Actions

[1] By Purchaser

☐ Strict liability in tort.

☐ Potential defendants.

☐ Retailer or other seller (including lessor, bailor, licensor) of defective product.

☐ Wholesaler or distributor of defective product.

☐ Manufacturer of defective product.

☐ Manufacturer of defective component part in product.

☐ Damages recoverable.

☐ Damages for injury to person from any of above-listed potential defendants.

☐ Damages for injury to property from any of above-listed potential defendants.

☐ Exemplary or punitive damages from potential defendant responsible for, and having knowledge of, defect who or which with conscious disregard of safety of public placed defective product into stream of commerce.

☐ Exemplary or punitive damages from any of above-listed potential defendants other than one responsible for defect who or which with knowledge of defect moved product along stream of commerce with conscious disregard of safety of public.

☐ Damages for emotional distress suffered by user of product when defective product severely injures another.

☐ Negligence.

☐ Potential defendants.

☐ Retailer or other seller (including lessor, bailor, licensor) of defective product who or which having a duty to do so was negligent in failing to discover and correct defect or negligence of whom or which caused or contributed to existence of defect.

☐ Wholesaler or distributor of defective product who or which having a duty to do so was negligent in failing to discover and correct defect or negligence of whom or which caused or contributed to existence of defect.

☐ Manufacturer of defective product who or which created or contributed to creation of defect or having a duty to do so was negligent in failing to discover and correct defect in defective component part manufactured by another.

☐ Manufacturer of defective component part.

☐ Designer of defective product (design defect).

☐ Installer of product where defect wholly or partially resulted from negligent installation.

☐ Repairer of product where defect wholly or partially resulted from negligent repair of product or who or which having a duty to do so was negligent in failing to discover defect and repair it.

☐ Other servicer of product where defect wholly or partially resulted from negligent servicing.

☐ User of defective product who had knowledge of defect and was negligent in using it.

☐ Third person, the negligence of whom or which apart from the defect in the product contributed to plaintiff's injuries.

☐ Damages recoverable.

☐ Damages for injury to person from any of the above potential defendants.

☐ Damages for injury to property from any of the above potential defendants.

☐ Breach of express warranty.

☐ Potential defendant.

☐ Person or entity who or which warranted product.

☐ Damages.

☐ Recovery of damages for injury to person.

☐ Recovery of damages for injury to property.

☐ Recovery of other economic loss proximately caused by breach of warranty.

[2] By Nonpurchaser User

☐ Strict liability in tort.

☐ Potential defendants and damages. See § 460.122[1].

☐ Negligence.

☐ Potential defendants and damages. See § 460.122[1].

☐ Breach of express warranty.

☐ Potential defendants and damages. See § 460.122[1].

[3] By Nonpurchaser, Nonuser Bystander

☐ Strict liability in tort.

☐ Potential defendants and damages. See § 460.122[1].

☐ Negligence.

☐ Potential defendants and damages. See § 460.122[1].

[4] By Spouse of Injured Person

☐ Plaintiff as spouse of injured party.

☐ Cause of action against the wrongdoer to recover damages for loss of consortium.

[5] By Persons Entitled to Bring Wrongful Death Action, or by Personal Representative on Their Behalf

☐ Plaintiff as personal representative or heir on behalf of injured party who was killed as result of injuries.

☐ Action for damages for wrongful death [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60].

☐ Survival action, if injured party survived long enough that cause of action accrued [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.20 et seq.]. For discussion and forms regarding these actions, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsProducts LiabilityBreach of WarrantyTortsProducts LiabilityDesign DefectsTortsProducts LiabilityManufacturing DefectsTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.123

§ 460.123 Defenses

[1] Strict Liability in Tort

☐ Product was not defective (put in issue by defendant's denial in answer of plaintiff's allegation of defect).

☐ Defect was caused by alteration in product after its purchase by consumer (put in issue by affirmative defense in answer).

☐ Defect resulted from misuse of product (put in issue by affirmative defense in answer).

☐ Defect did not proximately cause accident (put in issue by defendant's denial in answer of plaintiff's allegation of proximate cause).

☐ Plaintiff sustained no injury to person or property and hence no damages as proximate result of alleged defect (put in issue by defendant's denial for lack of sufficient information and belief of plaintiff's allegations of injuries and damages).

☐ Action is barred by statute of limitations (put in issue by affirmative defense in answer).

☐ Plaintiff was aware of defect and voluntarily assumed risk of very accident which occurred (put in issue by affirmative defense in answer).

☐ Plaintiff's negligence was a factor that will diminish amount of plaintiff's recovery under comparative fault principles (put in issue by affirmative defense in answer).

☐ Defendant is immune from liability under doctrine of government contract liability (put in issue by affirmative defense in answer).

☐ Federal statute preempted state law cause of action.

[2] Negligence

☐ Defendant was not negligent (put in issue by defendant's denial in answer of plaintiff's allegation of negligence).

☐ Plaintiff sustained no injury to person or property and hence no damages as proximate result of defendant's alleged negligence (put in issue by defendant's denial for lack of sufficient information and belief of plaintiff's allegations of injuries and damages).

☐ Action is barred by statute of limitations (put in issue by affirmative defense in answer).

☐ Plaintiff was aware of defendant's alleged negligence and voluntarily assumed risk of very accident which occurred (put in issue by affirmative defense in answer).

☐ Plaintiff was also negligent (put in issue by affirmative defense in answer thereby invoking doctrine of comparative negligence).

☐ Federal statute preempted state law cause of action.

[3] Breach of Warranty

☐ See 460.123[1].

☐ Defendant did not warrant the product (put in issue by defendant's denial in answer of plaintiff's allegation of warranty).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsNegligenceDefensesComparative NegligenceGeneral OverviewTortsProceduresPreemptionGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureStatutes of LimitationsAccrual of ActionsDiscovery RuleTortsProducts LiabilityBreach of WarrantyTortsProducts LiabilityNegligenceTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.124

§ 460.124 Indemnity

☐ Express indemnity.

☐ Implied indemnity.

☐ Contractual.

☐ Noncontractual.

☐ Right to file cross complaint against the person claimed to have the duty of indemnifying the cross complainant for a declaration of that duty.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsComplaintsCross-ComplaintsTortsProcedureSettlementsMultipartiesIndemnityTortsProducts LiabilityStrict LiabilityTortsStrict LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 460.125-460.139

[Reserved]

§§ 460.125[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.140

§ 460.140 Judicial Council Trial Court Pleading Form [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a)]--Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injury, Property Damage, Wrongful Death With Products Liability and Exemplary Damages Attachments [Cal. Judicial Council PLD-PI-100, PLD-PI-001(5), PLD-PI-001(6)]

[1] FORM Judicial Council Trial Court Pleading Form [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a)]--Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] for Personal Injury, Property Damage, Wrongful Death With Products Liability and Exemplary Damages Attachments [Cal. Judicial Council PLD-PI-100, PLD-PI-001(5), PLD-PI-001(6)]

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint, consisting of the Judicial Council approved general complaint form, for use in any action based on personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death including the products liability and exemplary damages attachments [Cal. Judicial Council Forms PLD-PI-100, PLD-PI-001(5), PLD-PI-001(6)]. Use of these forms is optional [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge. For general information relating to the use of Judicial Council complaint forms, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

[3] Allegations

[a] Complaint Form

[i] General Information

General information relating to filling out the Judicial Council form of complaint for personal injury, property damage, and wrongful death is set out in the comments to that form in Ch. 380, Negligence . Information particularly applicable to filling out the complaint form in products liability actions is set out below.

For general information for filling out this complaint in a wrongful death action, see the comments to the complaint form in Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions . For further discussion of filling in the exemplary damages attachment, see the comments to that attachment in Ch. 177, Damages.

[ii] Heading

The heading is located in the box titled "COMPLAINT," just above Paragraph 1. on page 1 of the general complaint form. Because the complaint is not one for a motor vehicle action, the box labeled "OTHER" must be checked and "Products Liability" specified. Although a products liability action may involve an automobile as the allegedly defective product, as in the sample form presented here, it is not a motor vehicle action as provided for in the Judicial Council motor vehicle attachment. A motor vehicle action is brought against the party or parties to an automobile accident, whereas a products liability action is brought against the party or parties involved in producing or marketing an allegedly defective automobile or other defective product. Each box corresponding to a type of damages that is being sought must also be checked.

If the complaint is an amendment, the "AMENDED" box should be checked, and the original case number should be entered.

In the "Jurisdiction" section of the heading, the appropriate box must be checked to show that the case is either a limited or unlimited civil case. If it is a limited civil case, the appropriate box must be checked to show whether or not the amount in controversy exceeds $10,000 [see Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111.(9)]. Also, if a case is reclassified by the filing of an amended complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 403.020], the "ACTION IS RECLASSIFIED" box must be checked and the reclassification described by checking one of the boxes below that line.

[iii] Number of Pages

The total number of pages in the complaint should be indicated in Paragraph 2. Each products liability complaint will have a minimum of four pages: three pages constituting the general complaint form and one or more pages as attachments, since at least one attachment alleging a cause of action must be included, and additional pages would be included as exhibits, if appropriate. In a products liability action, the Products Liability Attachment should be used, and, depending on the facts to be alleged, other attachments, such as the Exemplary Damages Attachment may be needed. In addition, counsel might prepare other attachments as continuations of allegations on the complaint form. On the Products Liability Attachment, for example, alleging a theory of recovery that is not otherwise provided on the form may be accomplished by a separate attachment prepared by counsel.

[iv] Damages

It is recommended that the words "and/or will suffer" be added after the material following 11., to include all of plaintiff's damages. If there is more than one plaintiff, it is recommended that the name(s) of the plaintiff(s) who suffered a particular type of damage be typed to the right of that checked damage item. For instance, if only plaintiff Jones suffered property damage, counsel should check the box for this type of damage and add "(Plaintiff Jones)" following the words "property damage." However, counsel may wish to avoid unnecessarily narrowing the damages sought at the pleading stage of the action. If all damages checked apply to all plaintiffs, the wording following 11. may be modified. For instance, in an action with two plaintiffs, counsel might insert "Plaintiffs Smith and Jones have suffered and/or will suffer."

Damages that may be recoverable in a products liability action include each type of damages represented by the boxes in Paragraph 11. [see Civ. Code § 3333]. To allege a type of damage not provided for in the form, the box labeled "other damage" should be checked. If the "other damage" box is checked the appropriate specification must be made in the corresponding space, particularly in the case of special damages, which must bespecifically set forth in a complaint [see Shook v. Pearson (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 348, 351, 221 P.2d 757] .

For a discussion relating to pleading general and special damages, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[v] Prayer

If plaintiff is seeking compensatory damages for personal injury or wrongful death in superior court, the first boxes in Paragraph 14(a). and Paragraph 14(b). should be checked [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b); Comments to Judicial Council form of complaint in Ch. 380, Negligence]. If the plaintiff is seeking punitive damages, the second box in Paragraph 14(a). should also be checked. The words "Exemplary Damages (see Exemplary Damages attachment, p. _____)" should be added to Paragraph 15. For a discussion of filling in the prayer if property damages are sought, see the Comments following the Judicial Council form of complaint in Ch. 380, Negligence.

[b] Products Liability Attachment to Complaint Form

[i] Plaintiff's Name

The attachment states "Use a separate cause of action form for each cause of action." If there is more than one plaintiff in the action, each one has a separate cause of action. If this direction is strictly adhered to, a separate products liability attachment for each plaintiff would have to be attached to the complaint. It is not clear if this is what is intended by the direction at the top of the attachment, since the complaint form while referring to "plaintiff" (singular) in the caption, seems intended for use by more than one plaintiff due to the wording of Paragraph 2. of the General Complaint Form.

[ii] Date of Injury and Product Causing Injury (Paragraph Prod.L.-1.)

In filling in the date on which the injury occurred, counsel should review the applicable statute of limitations. The statute of limitations for personal injury or death in a products liability action is two years [Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1 [Added Stats. 2002, ch. 48, § 2 (SB 688)]; Becker v. Volkswagen of Am., Inc. (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 794, 802, 125 Cal. Rptr. 326 ; G.D. Searle & Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 22, 25, 122 Cal. Rptr. 218] . Former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) provided for a one-year period. Personal injury and death actions based on exposure to asbestos are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2, which requires the actions to be brought the later of 1) one year after the plaintiff first suffered disability; or 2) one year after the plaintiff knew or should have known that the disability was caused or contributed to by asbestos exposure [Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 1127, 1138, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701, 998 P.2d 403, 409] . The statute of limitations for injury to real or personal property is three years [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(b), (c)].

When the victim of a products liability action has been blamelessly ignorant of an injury, the discovery rule postpones the accrual of a cause of action until the plaintiff discovers, or has reason to discover, the cause of action [Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 397, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P.2d 79] . A reason to discover the cause of action exists when the plaintiff has reason to at least suspect a factual basis for its elements [Norgart v. Upjohn Co. (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 383, 397, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453, 981 P.2d 79] . A reason to suspect a factual basis for the elements of a cause of action exists when the plaintiff has notice or information of circumstances to put a reasonable person on inquiry [Jolly v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1103, 1110, 245 Cal. Rptr. 658, 751 P.2d 923] .

Under the delayed discovery rule, a cause of action accrues and the statute of limitations begins to run when the plaintiff has reason to suspect an injury and some wrongful cause, unless the plaintiff pleads and proves that a reasonable investigation at that time would not have revealed a factual basis for that particular cause of action. In that case, the statute of limitations for that cause of action will be tolled until such time as a reasonable investigation would have revealed its factual basis [Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 797, 803, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 110 P.3d 914 ; Nelson v. Indevus Pharms., Inc. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1211, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 668.] . To rely on the discovery rule, a plaintiff must specifically plead facts to show both (1) the time and manner of discovery, and (2) the inability to have made earlier discovery despite reasonable diligence. [Fox v. Ethicon Endo-Surgery, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 797, 808, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 110 P.3d 914] .

In the form, this information could be filled in the space following Prod.L.-1., just under the date of injury. In the alternative, counsel could prepare an attachment alleging the information, and cross refer to the attachment after filling in the date of injury. For discussion relating to statute of limitations as an affirmative defense, see § 460.181. For detailed discussion of the discovery rule, see § 460.31[2][b][ii].

In 2003, the California legislature enacted a statutory discovery rule for actions based on injury, illness, or death resulting from exposure to hazardous material or toxic substances. Under the statute, personal injury actions must be commenced no later than two years after the date of injury, or two years after the plaintiff became or reasonably should have been aware of the injury, the physical cause of the injury, and sufficient facts to put a reasonable person on inquiry notice that the injury was caused by the wrongful act of another, whichever occurs later [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.8(a)]. Wrongful death actions must be commenced no later than either two years after the date of death, or two years after the date that the plaintiff was or reasonably should have become aware of the physical cause of death and sufficient facts to put a reasonable person on inquiry notice that the death was caused by the wrongful act of another, whichever occurs later [Code Civ. Proc. § 340.8(b)]. Code Civ. Proc. 340.8 is not limited to environmental hazards, but also applies to cases alleging personal injury caused by harmful chemicals [Nelson v. Indevus Pharms., Inc. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1202, 1209, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 668] .

Specify the defective product in the space provided. It appears that counsel is not required to describe the product's defect.

[iii] Defect and Use of Product (Paragraph Prod.L.-2.)

Even in a strict products liability case, a plaintiff must establish that the product was used in an intended or reasonably foreseeable manner [Garcia v. Joseph Vince Co. (1978) 84 Cal. App. 3d 868, 877-879, 148 Cal. Rptr. 843 ; see also Daly v. General Motors Corp. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 725, 733, 144 Cal. Rptr. 380, 575 P.2d 1162] . Therefore, either or both of the boxes in Paragraph Prod.L.-2. should be checked, depending on the facts of the case.

[iv] Status of Plaintiff (Paragraph Prod.L.-3.)

One or more of the boxes in Paragraph Prod.L.-3. will be checked, according to the facts of the case. A plaintiff may be the purchaser and user of a product, for example. If a plaintiff is neither a purchaser, user, nor bystander, the "other" box should be checked, and the appropriate information specified in the space provided. For example, a plaintiff mightbe the creditor of the purchaser, in a case in which the plaintiff's security interest in the product was impaired by the defendant's negligence [U.S. Financial v. Sullivan (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 5, 12-14, 112 Cal. Rptr. 18] .

[v] Strict Liability (Paragraph Prod.L.-4.)

Paragraph Prod.L.-4. provides boxes for alleging strict products liability and spaces for identifying each defendant alleged to be so liable. Prod.L.-4.a. refers to the manufacturer or assembler of the product. It does not refer to the designer of the whole product, however, so that checking the box for Prod.L.-4.a. will only allege a manufacturing defect. If counsel wishes to allege strict liability against the product manufacturer for a design defect, he or she would check box Prod.L.-7., as has been done on the sample form and add the appropriate allegations [see § 460.140[3][b][viii]; see also § 460.11[9]].

Paragraph Prod.L.-4.b. refers to both the designer and manufacturer of component parts of the product. Therefore, with regard to those defendants, counsel may allege both a design defect and a manufacturing defect, by checking the box following Prod.L.-4.b.

In the case of a manufacturing defect, in addition to the manufacturer of the product and the supplier of component parts, the retailer of the product may be strictly liable [Vandermark v. Ford Motor Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 256, 263, 37 Cal. Rptr. 896, 391 P.2d 168] . In such a case the box following Prod.L.-4.c. should be checked, and the name of the retailer should be indicated in the space provided.

[vi] Negligence (Paragraph Prod.L.-5.)

Prod.L.-5. provides for allegations of negligence by defendant(s). Negligence and strict products liability may both be pleaded, and the plaintiff is not required to elect one theory or another [Jiminez v. Sears, Roebuck & Co. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 379, 387, 93 Cal. Rptr. 769, 482 P.2d 681] . Note that in the sample form provided here, negligence and strict liability for design and manufacturing defects are both pleaded.

[vii] Breach of Warranty (Paragraph Prod.L.-6.)

Breach of warranty by defendant(s) may be pleaded in addition to other theories of recovery [see, e.g., Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 108, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377] . Liability under a breach of express or implied warranty theory permits the recovery of economic or commercial losses which would not be recoverable otherwise [Com. Code §§ 2714, 2715; see Seely v. White Motor Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 9, 18, 45 Cal. Rptr. 17, 403 P.2d 145] .

[viii] Other Liability (Paragraph Prod.L.-7.)

If other theories of liability are to be alleged, for example agency and employment, the box following Prod.L.-7. and one of the two boxes under it should be checked. The sample form presented here contains an allegation of strict liability for a defectively designed product as an example of a theory of liability that would be alleged in Paragraph Prod.L.-7. Such an allegation would not be made under Prod.L.-4. because a manufacturing defect, as provided by Prod.L.-4.a., is separate and distinct from a design defect [see Barker v. Lull Engineering Co. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 413, 429-430, 143 Cal. Rptr. 225, 573 P.2d 443] . Depending on the amount of space required, the information alleged in Prod.L.-7. may be filled in at the bottom of the page, after checking the right-hand box, or may be presented in an attachment prepared by counsel, after checking the left-hand box.

[c] Exemplary Damages (Attachment)

[i] Malice, Fraud, or Oppression (Paragraph EX-1.)

Civ. Code § 3294(a) requires that the defendant be proven guilty by clear and convincing evidence of either oppression, fraud, or malice, in order for the plaintiff to obtain an award of punitive or exemplary damages [Romo v. Ford Motor Co. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 738, 749, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793] . Therefore, only one of the three boxes in Paragraph EX-1. is required to be checked, although more than one may be checked if appropriate. For general information relating to filling out this form, see the Comments to this form of attachment in Ch. 177, Damages.

[ii] Facts Supporting Claim (Paragraph EX-2.)

The facts alleged in the sample form presented here are based on the facts of Grimshaw v. Ford Motor Co. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 757, 174 Cal. Rptr. 348 . To allege malice, the complaint must allege either conduct by the defendant that was intended to injure the plaintiff, or despicable conduct carried on by the defendant with willful and conscious disregard of the rights and safety of others [Civ. Code § 3294(c)(1); Romo v. Ford Motor Co. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 738, 749, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793 ; Grimshaw v. Ford Motor Co. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 757, 808, 174 Cal. Rptr. 348 (decided before 1987 amendment to Civ. Code § 3294)]. The allegations required to show fraud or oppression are set forth in Civ. Code § 3294(c)(2), (3). If more space is necessary to fill out Paragraph EX-2., counsel should remember to cross refer to the attachment in the space provided, to label the attachment EX-2. Attachment, and to follow the form requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.100 et seq.

For a discussion relating to punitive damages generally, and for further comments on the Judicial Council Exemplary Damages attachment, see Ch. 177, Damages . For developments in appellate review of punitive damages awards, see § 460.33[2].

[iii] Amount of Damages (Paragraph EX-3.)

Box a. in Paragraph EX-3. should be checked if punitive damages are claimed. If the action is brought in superior court, the phrase "and Civil Code § 3295(e)" should be added at the end of the line, as illustrated, unless the action is a limited civil case. If the action is a limited civil case brought in superior or municipal court, the reference to Code of Civil Procedure section 425.10 should be lined out and "Civil Code § 3295(e)" should be added at the end of the line.

Box b. should never be checked. The Judicial Council has not revised this form since the 1987 enactment of Civ. Code § 3295(e) prohibited all claims for exemplary or punitive damages from stating an amount or amounts.

[4] Cross References

For alternative allegations as to agency, capacity, and residence of parties, and fictitious name allegations, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used

For alternative forms of captions and introductions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions

For discussion and forms relating to the format of complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints

For discussion and forms relating to damages and pleading damages, see Ch. 177, Damages

For discussion and forms relating to Fax service and filing of papers, see Ch. 264, Fax Service and Filing of Papers

For discussion of jurisdiction in California courts in general, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter

For alternative forms of prayers, see Ch. 420, Prayers

For discussion and forms relating to service of summons generally, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers

For forms of allegations showing proper venue, see Ch. 571, Venue

For alternative forms of verification, see Ch. 572, Verification

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.141

§ 460.141 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person and Property--By Purchaser--User Against Manufacturer

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person and Property--By Purchaser--User Against Manufacturer

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____
[or other as appropriate]

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES
	)	(Strict Liability in Tort)
_____ [name],	)	[Amount demanded _____ (exceeds
Defendant.	)	or does not exceed) $10,000]
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
	)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____[specify county and state; or allege capacity of plaintiff if a legal entity or suing in a representative capacity].

2. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____ [California or other] [and qualified to do business in California] with its principal place of business in this state situated in the [City and] County of _____.

3. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, engaged in the business of _____ [specify, e.g., designing, manufacturing, and assembling] _____[name or description of products] for sale to and use by members of the general public, and as a part of his/her/its business defendant _____ [specify, e.g., designed, manufactured, and assembled] the specific _____[defective product] hereinafter referred to.

[4. _____ (Name of retailer) is, and at all times herein mentioned was, engaged in the business of selling at retail to members of the general public in _____ (specify city or county and state) the hereinabove described _____ (name or description of products) _____ (specify, e.g., manufactured, designed, and assembled) by defendant.]

[5. Defendant intended that the _____ (name or description of products) _____ (specify, e.g., manufactured, designed, and assembled) by him/her/it be used _____ (specify intended use).]

6. At all times herein mentioned, defendant knew [and intended] that his/her/its _____[name or description of products] would bepurchased by members of the public and used by the purchasers [and others] without inspection for defects.

7. On or about _____[date], plaintiff purchased the _____[defective product] referred to in Paragraph 3 above and hereinafter referred to as "the _____" [generic term, e.g., car or trademark, e.g., Go-Go Bat] from _____ [defendant or name of retailer] at his/her/its place of business hereinabove alleged.

8. The _____[defective product] was, at the time plaintiff purchased it as herein alleged, defective and unsafe for its intended purpose[s] in that _____[specify defect in manufacture or design].

9. On or about _____[date], plaintiff was using the _____[defective product] at _____[location] for the purpose of _____[specify]. During the course of this use and as a proximate result of the defect hereinabove described, _____ [specify accident, e.g., the right front wheel of the car fell off causing the car to go out of control and crash].

10. As a proximate result of the defect and _____ [specify accident, e.g., crash] as herein alleged, plaintiff sustained _____ [describe personal injuries, e.g., serious and permanent injuries to his/her health, strength, and activity, severe shock to his/her nervous system, broken bones, and multiple contusions and abrasions on and about his/her head and body and was caused to suffer extreme physical and mental pain], all to his/her general damage [if action is filed in municipal court, add in the sum of $_____].

11. As a further proximate result of the defect, _____ [specify accident, e.g., crash], and injuries sustained by plaintiff as herein alleged, plaintiff was required to and did employ physicians, surgeons, and other medical personnel and incurred expenses therefor, and incurred additional medical expense for hospital bills and other incidental medical expenses, all to his/her further damage [if action is filed in municipal court, add in the sum of $_____ or in an amount that has not yet been fully ascertained, and plaintiff will seek leave to amend this complaint to insert the true amount thereof when ascertained)]. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that as a proximate result of the defect, _____ (specify accident, e.g., crash), and injuries sustained by plaintiff, as herein alleged, plaintiff will be required to incur additional medical expense all to his/her further damage (if action is filed in municipal court, add in an amount not yet ascertained. Plaintiff will seek leave of court to amend this complaint to insert the true amount thereof when ascertained).]

12. As a further proximate result of the defect, _____ [specify accident, e.g., crash], and injuries sustained by plaintiff as herein alleged, plaintiff was prevented from attending to his/her usual _____

[occupation or profession] as a _____[specify] from _____[date] to _____ [the present or insert date], and thereby lost earnings all to his/her further damage [if action is filed in municipal court, add in the sum of $_____]. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that he/she will thereby be further prevented from attending to his/her usual _____ [occupation or profession] in the future and will thereby sustain future loss of earnings all to his/her further damage [if action is filed in municipal court, add in the sum of $_____ or in an amount not yet ascertained. Plaintiff will seek leave of court to amend this complaint to insert the true amount thereof when ascertained].

13. As a further proximate result of the defect and _____ [specify accident, e.g., crash] herein alleged, the _____[defective product] was _____ [damaged or destroyed] to plaintiff's further damage in the sum of $_____.

14. _____[Set forth in separately numbered paragraphs injury, if any, to other of plaintiff's personal property, such as clothing, jewelry, or other personal effects, and the amount of plaintiff's resulting damage; if plaintiff sustained injury to real property, so allege in a separately numbered paragraph and specify the amount of that damage].

[15. As a further proximate result of the defect and the _____ (specify accident, e.g., crash), _____ (name of third person) was injured while the plaintiff was _____ (using or operating) the defective _____ (product).]

[16. As a further proximate of the defect and the _____ (specify accident, e.g., crash), plaintiff suffered severe emotional distress (and physical injury resulting therefrom) when he/she saw _____ (name of third person injured in accident) severely injured by the defective _____ (product) while the plaintiff was _____ (using or operating) the defective _____ (product).]

[17. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that defendant knew that the _____ (name or description of products) _____ (specify, e.g., manufactured, designed, and assembled) by him/her/it were defective and dangerous in the manner alleged in Paragraph 8 above; that defendant knew that because of the defect(s), the _____ (name or description of products) could not safely be used for the purpose(s) for which they were intended; that defendant, knowing that the _____ (name or description of products) were defective and dangerous, despicable and in willful and conscious disregard of the safety of the public placed them on the market (without warning customers or the unknowing public of the defect), and knew when he/she/it did so that they would be sold to and used by the general public without inspection for defects; that defendant, by placing the defective _____ (name or description of products) on the market, impliedly represented that they were safe for the purpose for which they were intended; _____ (specify any additional representations express or implied); and that defendant, by placing them on the market and otherwise representing them as able to perform safely, intended that customers and the unknowing public should rely on his/her/its representations. Plaintiff, in purchasing and using the defective _____ (nameor description of product) as herein alleged, did rely on defendant's above representations, all to his/her damage as hereinabove alleged. In doing the things aforementioned, defendant was guilty of malice, oppression, and fraud, and plaintiff is, therefore, entitled to recover exemplary or punitive damages.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For general damages [in the sum of $_____];

2. For special damages for medical and incidental expenses [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof];

3. For loss of earnings [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof];

4. For damages to personal property in the sum of $_____;

[5. For damages to real property in the sum of $_____;]

[6. For punitive damages;]

7. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

8. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff

VERIFICATION

I, _____[name], declare:

I am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and as to those matters I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____[date].

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by a purchaser-user of a product against the product's manufacturer to recover damages based on strict liability in tort for injuries sustained as a result of a defect in the product. With appropriate modifications, it may also be used by a nonpurchaser-user or by a nonuser of the product injured as a proximate result of the defect.

The retailer also is strictly liable in tort for injuries caused by the defect [see, e.g., Vandermark v. Ford Motor Co. (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 256, 263, 37 Cal. Rptr. 896 ; Ontiveros v. 24 Hour Fitness USA, Inc. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 424, 431, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 767 ; Arriaga v. Citicapital Commercial Corp. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1527, 1534, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 143 ; Midgley v. S.S. Kresge Co. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 67, 71, 127 Cal. Rptr. 217 ; Read v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 404, 407, 70 Cal. Rptr. 454 ; see also Livingston v. Marie Callenders, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 830, 839, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 528 (restaurant)] and would normally be joined as a defendant with the manufacturer or sued in lieu of the manufacturer [see § 460.142]. This complaint with appropriate modifications may, of course, be used in such a case. The retailer would not be sued where plaintiff has executed a release or covenant not to sue in exchange for the retailer's settlement of plaintiff's claim against him, her, or it [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877; see also Thomas v. General Motors Corp. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 81, 85-86, 91 Cal. Rptr. 301 (involving settlement after judgment)]. Another situation might be where the defective product was sold and delivered to plaintiff outside California by a retailer who has insufficient minimal contacts with this state to allow the court's assumption of jurisdiction over him, her, or it [see Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10; see generally Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal , and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

For a discussion of alternative theories of recovery, see §§ 460.32 and 460.33.

[3] Allegations

[a] General Allegations

Paragraph 1 of the complaint alleges plaintiff's capacity (an individual) and residence. This allegation is not, however, required and is normally omitted unless plaintiff is a legal entity, is doing business under a fictitious business name, or is suing in a representative capacity, in which case an appropriate allegation of capacity will be substituted for it. For forms of allegations where the party is a legal entity, see Paragraph 2 of the complaint and the form in § 460.142; for a form of allegation where the plaintiff is doing business under a fictitious business name alleging compliance with the fictitious business name statutes, see Paragraph 1 of the form in § 460.201. For forms of allegations where the plaintiff is suing in a representative capacity, see generally Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used , and specific chapters in this publication dealing with such representatives.

Paragraph 2 of the complaint alleges defendant's capacity and principal place of business. The allegation as to the county of defendant's principal place of business lays venue, although venue may be laid based on other factors [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 and Ch. 571, Venue]. For example, the action may be brought in the county where the accident occurred as alleged in Paragraph 9. If defendant is other than a corporation, the allegation will be revised accordingly [see § 460.142 and Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 395 and Ch. 571, Venue].

Paragraph 3 alleges that defendant is the manufacturer of products which it places into the stream of commerce and that it manufactured the specific product or article which is the subject of the action. It is the first of three paragraphs alleging defendant's duty. In most cases, plaintiff must establish that defendant actually manufactured the defective product [see Cadlo v. Owens-Ill., Inc. (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 513, 516, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 , modified, 2004 Cal. App. LEXIS 2260 ; McCreery v. Eli Lilly & Co. (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 77, 83, 150 Cal. Rptr. 730] . However, there are situations in which the burden of proof will be shifted to the defendant, requiring the defendant to prove that it did not manufacture the defective product [Sindell v. Abbott Labs. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 610-613, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132, 607 P.2d 924] . For an alternative allegation for use when the manufacturer is not known, see § 460.169.

Paragraph 4 will be included without the outside brackets only where the product was purchased from a retailer other than the manufacturer.

Paragraph 5 will be included without the outside brackets only where the intended use of the product is not obvious or where the pleader wishes to focus attention on the particular use to which the product was being put when the accident occurred.

Paragraph 6 is the second of the three duty allegations, and Paragraph 7 is the third. These three paragraphs (3, 6, 7) establish a duty on the part of defendant not to sell a defective product, or cause it to be sold, to plaintiff. Paragraph 6 might be omitted where, from the very nature of the product, it was obvious that the product was not one which would normally be inspected for defects by a purchaser [on judicial notice, see Evid. Code §§ 451(f), 452(g), (h)].

Paragraph 8 alleges breach of duty, that is, that the product or article was defective at the time plaintiff purchased it. No case has been found that holds the defect may be pleaded generally, that is, merely by alleging that the product was defective and unsafe for its intended purposes, as is allowed in pleading negligence, but an examination of complaints filed in northern California courts shows that this, nevertheless, is done [see also the discussion in § 460.32]. To avoid a special demurrer for uncertainty [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f)], it would seem that the safer practice would be to allege the manner in which the product was defective, although the specificity of such allegation must depend on the evidence available. At the same time, counsel does not want to be so specific in this allegation as to prevent proof of another defect if evidence is later discovered which might establish it. If the complaint is specific as to the defect, however, and evidence of another defect is admitted at the trial with Code Civ. Proc. § 469]. But it is more likely, when such evidence is sought to be introduced, that defendant will object to its introduction on the ground that it is not in issue, that is, that such evidence is irrelevant to the issues [see Evid. Code §§ 210, 350].

Paragraph 9 alleges proximate cause which may be alleged generally as is done [see, e.g., Rannard v. Lockheed Aircraft Corp. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 149, 156, 157 P.2d 1 , involving negligence].

Paragraphs 10-14 allege injury or detriment and damages.

Paragraphs 15 and 16 will be used without the outside brackets when plaintiff suffered emotional distress because the product that he or she was using or operating injured a third person [see Kately v. Wilkinson (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 576, 587-588, 195 Cal. Rptr. 902] .

Paragraph 17 will be used without the outside brackets where defendant in placing the defective products on the market was guilty of fraud, oppression, or malice, and exemplary or punitive damages are sought. For an alternative form of allegation and discussion, see § 460.168.

[b] Alleging Amount of Damages

In any civil action brought to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)(2)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment. The defendant may at any time request a statement setting forth the nature and amount of damages being sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(b)].

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115], see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

The complaint in this form sets forth two causes of action, although they are not (and need not be) separately stated. One is for injuries to person in which action the amount sought will be included only if the complaint is to be filed in a municipal court. The second cause of action seeks recovery of damages for injury to personal property. The amount sought on this cause must be stated in the complaint regardless of the court in which the action is commenced. This is also true if the complaint should seek to recover damages for injury to real property in lieu of or in addition to the other recoveries sought. An action to recover damages for injury to real property would be a separate cause of action but it need not be separately stated.

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case in the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Copies to Prepare

- Original for filing in court clerk's office.
- One conformed endorsed-filed copy for the defendant if defendant is to be served in person pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10 or by mail pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30 or 415.40, or two copies if defendant is to be served in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20.
- One conformed endorsed-filed copy for client, if desired.
- One copy to be retained in office file until endorsed-filed copies are returned from court clerk.
- One endorsed-filed copy for office file.
- Additional copies as desired.

[6] Cross References

For discussion relating to the general requirements for a complaint, see §§ 460.30 -460.34

For alternative forms of captions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions

For alternative allegations as to capacities of parties, and fictitiously named defendant allegations, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used

For alternative allegations as to damages, see Ch. 177, Damages

For alternative forms of verifications, see Ch. 572, Verification

For forms of complaints for use in negligence actions and actions for breach of warranty, see Ch. 380, Negligence , and Ch. 500, Sales and Secured Transactions

For forms of complaints alleging fraud and deceit, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit

For memoranda of points and authorities in support of and in opposition to a general demurrer to a complaint for damages based on strict liability in tort, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 190, Products Liability

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.142

§ 460.142 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person and Property--By Purchaser-User Against Multiple Defendants (Manufacturer, Supplier of Component Parts, Retailer, and Fictitious Named Defendants)

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person and Property--By Purchaser-User Against Multiple Defendants (Manufacturer, Supplier of Component Parts, Retailer, and Fictitious Named Defendants)

[Caption, introduction. See § 460.141[1].]

1. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____[specify county and state; or allege capacity of plaintiff if a legal entity or suing in a representative capacity].

2. Defendant _____[name of manufacturer], hereinafter referred to as "defendant manufacturer," is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____ [California or other] [and qualified to do business in California] with its principal place of business in this state situated in the [City and] County of _____.

3. Defendant manufacturer is, and at all times herein mentioned was, engaged in the business of _____ [specify, e.g., designing, manufacturing, and assembling] _____ [name or description of products, e.g., _____ (make) automobiles] for sale to and use by members of the general public, and as a part of his/her/its business, defendant manufacturer [in _____ (year)] _____ [specify, e.g., designed, manufactured, and assembled] a line of _____ [specify, e.g., cars described as _____ (make) _____ (model), _____ (size, e.g., four door sedans)] including the specific _____ [defective product, e.g., _____ (year and make) _____ (model), _____ (size, e.g., four door sedan) automobile] referred to in this complaint.

4. Defendant _____[name of supplier of defective component part], hereinafter referred to as "defendant supplier," is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify capacity, e.g., an individual doing business as a sole proprietor under the fictitious firm name and style of _____ (specify) in the (City and) County of _____, California].

5. Defendant supplier is, and at all times herein mentioned was, engaged in the business of _____ [specify, e.g., designing, fabricating, manufacturing, and assembling] certain component parts, to wit, _____ [describe, e.g., tires], and supplying them to defendant manufacturer, and as a part of his/her/its business defendant supplier _____ [specify, e.g., designed, fabricated, manufactured, assembled,] and supplied to defendant manufacturer the specific _____ [defective product, e.g., _____ (size) tires] referred to in this complaint.

6. Defendant _____[name of retailer], hereinafter referred to as "defendant retailer," is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [specify capacity, e.g., partnership formed and existing under the laws of the State of California with its principal place of business in this state situated in the (City and) County of _____ and is sued herein in the name it has assumed and by which it is known)].

7. Defendant retailer is, and at all times herein mentioned was, engaged in the business of [_____ (assembling or inspecting or other) and] selling at retail to members of the general public at his/her/its principal place of business in the [City and] County of _____, California, the _____ [specify products, e.g., _____ (make) _____ (model), _____ (size, e.g., four door sedan) automobiles] described above, including the specific _____ [defective product, e.g., _____ (year and make), _____ (model), _____ (size, e.g., four door sedan) automobile [hereinafter referred to which was _____ [specify, e.g., designed

[8. Defendants _____ (names) are, and at all times herein mentioned were, partners and members of defendant retailer and are sued herein individually and are joined as parties defendant in this action against defendant retailer.]

[9. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names of defendants sued herein as DOES 1-_____ inclusive, and, therefore, sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to insert their true names when ascertained. Each of these defendants is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a partner and member of defendant retailer and is sued herein individually and is joined as a party defendant in this action against defendant retailer.]

10. Plaintiff is ignorant of the true names and capacities of defendants sued herein as DOES 1-_____, inclusive, and, therefore, sues these defendants by such fictitious names. Plaintiff will amend this complaint to insert their true names and capacities when ascertained. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of these fictitiously named defendants is, and at all times herein mentioned was, in the business of manufacturing, fabricating, assembling, inspecting, and selling the _____ (name or description of products, e.g., _____ (make), _____ (model) automobiles), or parts of them, manufactured by defendant manufacturer, that each such defendant is responsible in some manner for placing the particular _____ (defective product, e.g., _____ (year and make), _____ (model), _____ (size, e.g., four door sedan) automobile) hereinafter referred to, or causing it to be placed, into the stream of commerce, and that plaintiff's injuries as hereinafter alleged were proximately caused by the acts of such defendants, and each of them.]

11. Defendant manufacturer intended that the _____ [name or description of products, e.g., _____ (year and make), _____ (model), _____ (size, e.g., four door sedan) automobiles], including the specific _____ [defective product, e.g., _____ ( year and make), _____ (model), _____ (size, e.g., four door sedan) automobile] hereinafter referred to, _____ [specify, e.g., designed, manufactured, and assembled] by him/her/it as hereinabove alleged were to be used for the purpose(s) of _____ [specify, e.g., carrying a maximum load of eight persons and a total of 2000 pounds] and that defendant supplier knew and intended that the _____ [component parts, e.g., _____ (size) tires] _____ [specify, e.g., designed, fabricated, manufactured, assembled,] and supplied by him/her/it to defendant manufacturer were to be installed and incorporated by the latter into his/her/its _____ [specify, e.g., _____ (year and make), _____ (model), _____ (size, e.g., four door sedan) automobiles].

12. Defendants and each of them at all times herein mentioned knew [and intended] that the _____ [name or description of products, e.g., _____ (name) automobiles] _____ (specify, e.g., designed, manufactured, and assembled] by defendant manufacturer would be purchased from defendant retailer and used by the purchaser or user without inspection for defects therein or in any of its component parts.

13. On or about _____[date], plaintiff purchased the _____ [specify, e.g., _____ (year and make), _____ (model), _____ (size, e.g., four-door sedan) automobile] referred to in Paragraphs 3 and 7, above, and hereinafter referred to as "the _____" [specify, e.g., car] from defendant retailer at his/her/its principal place of business in the [City and] County of _____, California. At that time and at all other subsequent times herein mentioned, the _____ [specify, e.g., car] was _____ [specify, e.g., equipped with] the _____ [component part(s), e.g., _____ (size) tires], hereinafter referred to as "the _____" [specify, e.g., tires], which had been _____ [specify, e.g., designed, fabricated, manufactured, and assembled] by defendant supplier and supplied by him/her/it to defendant manufacturer as alleged in Paragraphs 5 and 11, above.

14. The _____ [specify, e.g., car] was, at the time plaintiff purchased it as herein alleged, defective and unsafe for its intended purpose(s) in that _____ [specify, e.g., the tires were too small for their intended use on automobiles of the year, make, model, and size purchased by plaintiff, as hereinabove alleged, which resulted in their continually being overloaded by the normal and intended use of the car].

15. On or about _____[date], plaintiff was _____ [specify, e.g., driving] the _____ [specify, e.g., car] at _____[location] for the purpose of _____ [specify, e.g., transporting himself and three coworkers to their place of employment at _____ (address)]. During the course of this use and as a proximate result of the defect hereinabove described, the _____ [describe accident, e.g., left front tire blew out causing the car to go out of control and crash].

[16-19. Injuries and damages allegations. See Paragraphs 10-14 in § 460.141[1].]

[20. Punitive damages allegation, if appropriate. See Paragraph 15 in § 460.141[1].]

[Prayer. See § 460.141[1].]

Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 460.141[1].]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by a purchaser-user of a product against the product's manufacturer, the supplier of the defective part, the retailer, and DOES to recover damages based on strict liability in tort for injuries sustained as a result of a defect in the product. With appropriate modifications, the complaint may also be used by a nonpurchaser-user or nonuser of the product injured as a proximate result of the defect.

For an analysis of the complaint, the number of copies to prepare, and a discussion of the applicable statute of limitations, see § 460.141. For a discussion of alternative theories of recovery, see §§ 460.32, 460.33.

[3] Cross Action by Defendants

In the fact situation illustrated in this form, one or more of the defendants may serve and file a cross complaint on one or more of his, her, or its codefendants for a declaration as to the defendant-cross complainant's right, if any, to be indemnified by the cross defendant(s) for any judgment that may be recovered in the action by the plaintiff against that defendant-cross complainant or against him, her, or it by another defendant-cross complainant in the action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(7), 428.70, 1060; see also § 460.201].

For example, the defendant retailer might file a cross complaint against the defendant manufacturer of the product and the defendant supplier of the defective component part, or either of them, as well as against any wholesaler or distributor who sold the product to the retailer, for a declaration of his, her, or its right to be indemnified by the cross defendants for any judgment recovered in the action by the plaintiff against the defendant-cross complainant retailer. If named as a cross defendant in the retailer's cross complaint, the wholesaler or distributor might file a cross complaint against the defendant manufacturer and the defendant supplier of the defective component part, or either of them, for a declaration as to the right of the wholesaler or retailer to be indemnified by either the manufacturer or supplier or both of them for any judgment that might be recovered in the action by the plaintiff against the cross complaining wholesaler or distributor. The defendant manufacturer in turn might file a cross complaint against the defendant supplier of the defective component part for a declaration as to his, her, or its right to be indemnified by the defendant-cross defendant supplier for any judgment recovered in the action by the plaintiff against the defendant manufacturer and for any liability to the defendant-cross complainant retailer or the wholesaler or distributor, if any, which may be imposed on the defendant manufacturer by a judgment in favor of the retailer or the wholesaler or distributor on their cross complaints naming defendant manufacturer as a cross defendant. A cross complaint by the defendant supplier against any of the above-listed defendants would, of course, not be proper under the facts assumed, although the defendant supplier may be entitled to indemnity from some other person who caused the defect to exist and may file a cross complaint against such other person for a declaration as to the supplier's right to be indemnified. The court may order severance and separate trial of any of the actions alleged in these separate pleadings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1046(b)].

[4] Cross References

For discussion relating to the general requirements for a complaint, see §§ 460.30 -460.34 and § 460.141

For forms of amendments to complaints substituting the correct name of a defendant for an incorrect name and defendant's true name for a fictitious name, see Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings

For forms of papers for use in securing joinder of an omitted party, see Ch. 395, Parties

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.143

§ 460.143 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person--By Lessee Against Lessor of Product

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person--By Lessee Against Lessor of Product

[Caption, introduction. See § 460.141[1].]

[1. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ (specify relationship of plaintiff user of defective product to lessee, e.g., employed in _____[city], _____ County, California as a _____[classification] by _____[business name of lessee], hereinafter referred to as "plaintiff's employer").]

2. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [specify capacity, e.g., sole proprietor doing business under the fictitious firm name and style of _____ (specify)] [with his/her/its principal place of business situated] in the [City and] County of _____, California, and engaged in the business of [manufacturing and] leasing _____ [specify products, e.g., construction equipment or motor vehicles] to _____ [specify e.g., building contractors or the public at large].

3. At all times herein mentioned defendant knew that his/her/its _____ [specify, e.g., equipment or motor vehicles] would be leased by _____ [specify, e.g., building contractors or members of the public] and used _____ [specify, e.g., by them, their employees, and others] without inspection for defects.

4. On or about _____[date], _____ [plaintiff or plaintiff's employer or other] leased from defendant at his/her/its place of business hereinabove referred to a certain _____ [specify product, e.g., ladder or _____ (make, model, year, and size) car, California license number _____], hereinafter referred to as "the _____" [specify product, e.g., ladder or car], which defendant knew and intended was to be used by _____ [plaintiff or the lessee's employees or other] to _____[specify intended use].

5. The _____ [specify, e.g., ladder or car], at the time it was leased by defendant to _____ [plaintiff or plaintiff's employer or other] as herein alleged, was defective and unsafe for its intended purpose in that _____[specify defect].

6. On or about _____[date], plaintiff was using the _____ [specify, e.g., ladder or car] for the purpose of _____[specify] and in the course of that use as a proximate result of the defect hereinabove described, _____[specify accident].

7-10. [Injuries and damages allegations. See Paragraphs 10-13 in § 460.141[1].]

[11. Punitive damages allegation, if appropriate. See Paragraph 15 in § 460.141[1].]

[Prayer. See § 460.141[1].]

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 460.141[1].]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by a lessee-user, or user if other than the lessee, injured as a proximate result of a defect in the leased or bailed product to recover damages based on strict liability in tort from the lessor who may or may not also be the manufacturer of the product. With appropriate modifications, the complaint may also be used by a nonlessee nonuser injured as a proximate result of the defect. By the inclusion of appropriate allegations [see § 460.141], the complaint may also be used to recover damages for injury to property as well as injury to person. For an analysis of the complaint, the number of copies to prepare, and a discussion of the applicable statute of limitations, see § 460.141. For a discussion of alternative theories of recovery, see §§ 460.32, 460.33.

The manufacturer if other than the lessor, the wholesaler, distributor, or retailer of the defective leased product, or the supplier of any defective component part of the product, or any combination of these persons may be joined as a defendant [see § 460.142], if the defect existed at the time the supplier delivered the defective component part to the manufacturer or if it existed at the time the manufacturer or other person joined as a defendant placed the product in or moved it along the stream of commerce.

If the defect was one that should have been discovered and repaired by some third person who negligently failed to do so or the defect resulted from or was contributed to by the faulty installation, repair, or other service of or to the leased product by a third person, plaintiff might join that third person as a defendant in addition to the lessor and other parties in the marketing chain and set forth in the complaint a separate cause of action against that person based on negligence rather than on strict liability in tort. For forms of negligence complaints which may be adapted for use in drafting the second cause of action for insertion in the foregoing complaint, see generally Ch. 380, Negligence .

[3] Cross Action by Defendant

Whether or not the plaintiff joins the manufacturer, wholesaler, distributor, or retailer of the defective product, or the supplier of the defective component part, as a defendant in the action, the defendant lessor may file and serve or serve and file (depending on whether such other person has been joined as a defendant and served with summons in the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60]) a cross complaint against any one or more of these persons for a declaration as to the lessor's right to be indemnified by such cross defendant(s) for any judgment that may be recovered in the action by the plaintiff against the defendant lessor [see §§ 460.201 -460.202].

If the defect resulted from the negligence of a third person in installing, repairing, or otherwise servicing the leased product, the defendant lessor may file a cross complaint against that person for a declaration as to the lessor's right to be indemnified by that person for any judgment that may be rendered in the action in favor of plaintiff against the defendant lessor.

[4] Cross References

For discussion relating to the general requirements for a complaint, see §§ 460.30 -460.34 and §§ 460.141 -460.142

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.144

§ 460.144 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person--By Licensee Against Licensor of Personal Property (Launderette Owner)

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person--By Licensee Against Licensor of Personal Property (Launderette Owner)

[Caption, introduction. See § 460.141[1].]

1. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [specify capacity, e.g., sole proprietor doing business under the fictitious firm name and style of _____ (specify)] in the [City and] County of _____, California, and engaged in the business of owning and operating a coin launderette for public use.

2. In the course of his/her/its business as the owner and operator of a launderette, defendant maintained at its above-stated business location a number of _____ [specify, e.g., coin operated front loading commercial washing machines, including the one hereinafter referred to, and driers for use by the general public. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that these machines have a washing cycle, three rinse cycles, two spin cycles, and a final long extraction cycle lasting four and one half to five minutes during which the tub of the machine obtains a velocity of 370 revolutions per minute, and that the entire washing procedure lasts 30 minutes. The machines were designed automatically to start when the door was closed and the proper coin inserted and automatically to stop on completion of the extraction cycle referred to above].

3. At all times herein mentioned defendant knew that his/her/its washing machines and driers would be used by members of the general public without inspection for defects.

4. On or about _____[date], plaintiff was using one of the _____ [specify, e.g., washers,] hereinafter referred to as "the _____" [specify, e.g., washer], in defendant's business establishment hereinabove referred to for the purpose of _____ [specify, e.g., washing a load of clothes].

5. The _____ [specify, e.g., washer] was at the time of plaintiff's use of it as hereinabove alleged defective and unsafe for its intended purpose in that _____ [specify, e.g., it would prematurely stop during its fast spin or extraction cycle giving the appearance of having completed the final cycle and would, some seconds after the door was opened, suddenly, without warning, start up again in the fast spin cycle].

6. During the course of plaintiff's use of the _____ [specify, e.g., washer] as hereinabove alleged, the _____ [specify, e.g., machine stopped after what appeared to be completion of the extraction or fast spin cycle and plaintiff opened the door and commenced removing the clothes from the tub]. As plaintiff was _____ [specify, e.g., removing the clothes from the tub] and as a proximate result of the defect hereinabove described, the _____ [specify, e.g., washer] _____ [specify, e.g., without warning abruptly started spinning in the fast cycle, entangling plaintiff's hand and arm in the spinning clothes].

7. As a proximate result of the defect and the _____ [specify, e.g., sudden starting of the washer with plaintiff's hand and arm inserted in the tub] as hereinabove alleged, plaintiff sustained _____ [describe personal injuries, e.g., serious and permanent injuries to his/her health, strength, and activity, severe shock to his/her nervous system, dislocated bones, strained and sprained muscles and ligaments, and abrasions, and was caused to suffer extreme physical and mental pain], all to his/her general damage [if the action is filed as a limited civil case in superior or municipal court add in the amount of $_____].

8-9. [Special damages allegations. See Paragraphs 11, 12 in § 460.141[1].]

[10. Punitive damages allegation, if appropriate. See Paragraph 15 in § 460.141[1].]

[Prayer. See § 460.141[1].]

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 460.141[1].]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by a licensee of a defective product to recover damages based on strict liability in tort from the licensor, who may also be the manufacturer, for injuries proximately caused by the defect. The product illustrated is a coin operated washing machine in a launderette. With appropriate modifications, the complaint may also be used by a nonlicensee nonuser injured as a proximate result of the defect. By the inclusion of appropriate allegations [see § 460.141], the complaint may also be used to recover damages for injury to property as well as injury to person. For an analysis of the complaint, the number of copies to prepare, and a discussion of the applicable statute of limitations, see § 460.141. For a discussion of alternative theories of recovery, see §§ 460.32, 460.33.

The manufacturer if other than the licensor, the wholesaler, distributor, or retailer of the defective licensed product, or the supplier of any defective component part of the product, or any combination of these persons may be joined as a defendant [see § 460.142], if the defect existed at the time the supplier delivered the defective component part to the manufacturer or if it existed at the time the manufacturer or other person joined as a defendant placed the product in or moved it along the stream of commerce.

If the defect was one that should have been discovered and repaired by some third person who negligently failed to do so or resulted from or was contributed to by the faulty installation, repair, or other service of or to the product by a third person, plaintiff might join that third person as a defendant in the action in addition to the licensor and other parties in the marketing chain and set forth in the complaint a separate cause of action against that person based on negligence rather than on strict liability in tort. For forms of negligence complaints which may be adapted for use in drafting the second cause of action for insertion in the foregoing complaint, see generally Ch. 380, Negligence .

[3] Cross Action by Defendant

Whether or not the plaintiff in the foregoing complaint joins the manufacturer, wholesaler, distributor, or retailer of the defective product, or the supplier of the defective component part, as a defendant in the action, the defendant licensor may file and serve or serve and file (depending on whether such other person has been joined as a defendant and served with summons in the action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60]) a cross complaint against any one or more of these persons for a declaration as to the licensor's right to be indemnified by such cross defendant(s) for any judgment that may be recovered in the action by the plaintiff against the defendant licensor [see §§ 460.201 -460.202].

If the defect resulted from the negligence of a third person in installing, repairing, or otherwise servicing the product, the defendant licensor may file a cross complaint against that person for a declaration as to the licensor's right to be indemnified by that person for any judgment that may be rendered in the action in favor of plaintiff against the defendant licensor.

In addition to a summons [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.60(1)], a cross complainant must serve a copy of the most recently amended complaint and any answers on cross defendants who have not previously appeared [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.222].

[4] Cross References

For discussion relating to the general requirements for a complaint, see §§ 460.30 -460.34 and §§ 460.141 -460.142

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.145

§ 460.145 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person and Property--By Purchaser Against Manufacturer of Residential Lot

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person and Property--By Purchaser Against Manufacturer of Residential Lot

[Caption, introduction, See § 460.141[1].]

1. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify capacity, e.g., a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of California with its principal place of business in this state situated in the (City and) County of _____].

2. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, engaged in the business of manufacturing residential lots and selling the lots to the public.

3. In or about _____[date], defendant _____ [purchased or became the owner of] a parcel of real property situated in _____ [location, e.g., the Santa Monica Mountains] in _____ County, California, and manufactured it into a tract, hereinafter referred to as "the tract," of residential lots, including lot number _____, hereinafter referred to as "the lot," by cutting, grading, filling, and compacting the soil for the purpose of selling the lots to the public for the purpose of having houses constructed on them.

4. At all times herein mentioned defendant knew and intended that the lots in the tract would be purchased by members of the public who would have houses constructed on them without inspection for defects and knew that if the work done by defendant was defective it would cause damage to any improvements, including houses, placed on the property.

5. On or about _____[date], plaintiff purchased the lot from defendant and immediately had a house, hereinafter referred to as "the house," constructed on it. Construction of the house was completed on or about

_____[date].

6. At the time of plaintiff's purchase as hereinabove alleged, the lot was defective and unsafe for its intended purpose in that _____ [specify, e.g., inadequate provision had been made in the manufacturing process for drainage, there was organic matter beneath the fill, and the fill had been insufficiently compacted at the time of the lot preparation].

7. As a proximate result of the defect(s) in the lot as herein alleged, _____ [specify, e.g., water accumulated between the fill and the bedrock of the lot and the organic matter beneath the fill decomposed].

8. As a further proximate result of the defect(s) in the lot and the _____ [specify, e.g., accumulation of water between the fill and the bedrock of the lot] as herein alleged, the _____ [specify, e.g., rear portion of the lot failed and on or about _____[date] fell away onto the roadway below].

9. As a further proximate result of the defect(s) in the lot, the _____ [specify, e.g., decomposition of the organic matter beneath the fill, and the improper compaction of the soil], as herein alleged, the _____ [specify, e.g., lot pad settled, commencing on or about _____ (date) and continuing to on or about _____ (date)].

10. As a further proximate result of the defect(s) in the lot, the _____ [specify, e.g., decomposition of the organic matter beneath the fill, and the settling of the lot pad], as herein alleged, the house, commencing on or about _____[date] and continuing until on or about _____[date], _____ [collapsed or was caused to sag, its floors, walls, and ceilings cracked and in some places split open, various of its beams were dislocated and broken, many of its window frames were twisted and their windows broken] and the house was thereby rendered uninhabitable from on or about _____[date] to on or about _____[date].

[11. Personal injury allegations, if appropriate. See Paragraphs 10-12 in § 460.141[1].]

[EITHER]

[If house and lot have been rendered valueless or repairs have not and will not be undertaken or costs of repairs exceed value of property in nondefective condition immediately before loss, add following Paragraphs 12 and 13 and, if appropriate, Paragraphs 14 and 15]

12. The value of the house and lot in a nondefective condition immediately before the _____ [e.g., failure of a portion of the rear slope of the lot, the settling of the lot pad, and the _____ (destruction of or injury to) the house] as herein alleged was $_____.

13. As a further proximate result of the defects in the lot, the _____ [e.g., failure of a portion of the rear slope of the lot, the settling of the lot pad, and the _____ (destruction of or injury to) the house], as herein alleged, the _____ [value of the property has been diminished from $_____ (sum specified in Paragraph 12) to $_____, and plaintiff has thereby been damaged in the sum of $_____ (difference between foregoing two sums) or the property has been rendered valueless, to plaintiff's damage in the sum of $_____ (sum specified in Paragraph 12)].

14. As a further proximate result of the defects in the lot and the destruction of the house as herein alleged, plaintiff was required to and did employ contractors to demolish the house and remove it from the lot and in so doing incurred an expense therefor in the sum of $_____, all to plaintiff's further damage in that sum.

15. As a further proximate result of the defects in the lot and the destruction of the house as herein alleged, plaintiff was required to and did find new living quarters for himself/herself [and his/her family] and in so doing and in moving to them incurred additional expenses in the sum of $_____, to plaintiff's further damage in that sum.

[OR]

[If repairs have been or will be undertaken and their costs will not exceed the value of the property in a nondefective condition immediately before the loss, add:]

12. As a further proximate result of the defects in the lot, the _____ [specify, e.g., failure of a portion of the rear slope of the lot, and the settling of the lot pad], all as herein alleged, plaintiff was required to and did employ professional soil engineers to determine the causes of the _____ [specify, e.g., soil failure and settling of the lot pad] and to make recommendations in respect thereto, and incurred expenses therefor in the sum of $_____, all to plaintiff's damage in that sum.

13. As a further proximate result of the defects in the lot, the _____ [specify, e.g., failure of a portion of the rear slope of the lot, and the settling of the lot pad], all as herein alleged, plaintiff was required to and did employ contractors to _____ [e.g., stabilize the lot, including the construction of a retaining wall and the refilling and recompacting of the soil], and incurred expenses therefor in the sum of $_____, all to plaintiff's further damage in that sum.

14. As a further proximate result of the defects in the lot and the injury to the house as herein alleged, plaintiff was required to and did employ contractors to restore the house to the condition it was in immediately prior to the _____ [specify, e.g., settling of the lot pad] and in so doing incurred expenses therefor in the sum of $_____, all to plaintiff's further damage in that sum.

15. As a further proximate result of the defects in the lot and the injury to the house as herein alleged, the house was rendered uninhabitable from _____[date] to _____[date]; _____ [specify loss, e.g., plaintiff thereby lost rentals for that period in the sum of $_____, to plaintiff's further damage in that sum or if house was inhabited by plaintiff at time of loss allege additional living expenses incurred as proximate result of house's being rendered uninhabitable during period required for repair].

[In either case continue:]

16. _____[In separately numbered paragraphs allege any damages for injury to or loss of personal property or injury to person and damages proximately resulting from the defective condition of the lot and the subsequent failure].

[17. Punitive damages allegation, if appropriate. See Paragraph 15 in § 460.141[1].]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. _____ [General and special damages for personal injuries if any (see Prayer in § 460.141[1])].

[If property has been rendered valueless or will not be restored:]

2. For diminution in the value of the house and lot in the sum of $_____.

3. For costs incurred by plaintiff in having the house demolished and removed from the lot in the sum of $_____.

4. For costs incurred by plaintiff in finding new residential quarters and moving himself/herself [and his/her family] to them in the sum of $_____.

[If property has been or will be restored:]

2. For professional expenses and costs incurred by plaintiff in having the soil restored to the condition it was in immediately prior to the soil failure and settling of lot pad but without the defect in the sum of $_____.

3. For costs incurred by plaintiff in having the house restored to the condition it was in immediately prior to the collapse of the soil pad in the sum of $_____.

4. For _____ [lost rental or additional living expenses incurred] during the period required for restoration of the house and lot, to wit, from _____[date], to _____[date], in the sum of $_____.

[In either case continue:]

[5. For injury to personal property in the sum of $_____]

[6. For costs incurred in repairing personal property in the sum of $_____.]

[7. For exemplary and punitive damages in the sum of $_____.]

8. For costs of suit herein incurred.

9. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 460.141[1].]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by a purchaser of a building lot against the manufacturer-seller of the lot to recover damages based on strict liability in tort for injuries to the lot and to the house plaintiff had constructed on it proximately caused by a defect in the manufacturing process of the lot which rendered the lot unsafe for its intended purpose as a residential lot [see Avner v. Longridge Estates (1969) 272 Cal. App.2d 607, 615, 77 Cal. Rptr. 633] . For an analysis of the complaint, the number of copies to prepare, and a discussion of the applicable statute of limitations, see § 460.141.

For a discussion of the alternative theories of recovery, see §§ 460.32, 460.33.

If the defect in the lot resulted from the negligence of a third person, such as a contractor or engineering firm, employed by the defendant manufacturer to test or prepare the soil, plaintiff might join that person as a defendant in addition to the manufacturer and set forth a separate cause of action in the complaint against the third person based on negligence rather than on strict liability in tort. For forms of negligence complaints which may be adapted for use in drafting the second cause of action for insertion in the foregoing form of complaint, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

[3] Cross Action by Defendant

If the defect in the lot resulted from the negligence of a third person, such as a contractor or engineering firm, employed by the defendant manufacturer to test or prepare the soil, the defendant manufacturer may file a cross complaint against that person for a declaration as to the manufacturer's right to be indemnified by that person for any judgment that may be rendered in the action in favor of plaintiff against the defendant manufacturer [see § 460.202].

[4] Cross References

For discussion relating to the general requirements for a complaint, see §§ 460.30 -460.34 and §§ 460.141 -460.142

See generally Ch. 177, Damages

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.146

§ 460.146 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Property--By Purchaser of House Against Mass Producer of Houses

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Property--By Purchaser of House Against Mass Producer of Houses

[Caption, introduction. See § 460.141[1].]

1. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____ [specify capacity, e.g., a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of California with its principal place of business in this state situated in the (City and) County of _____].

2. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, in the business of mass producing homes in the Counties of _____, California and selling them to members of the public.

3. In or about _____[date], defendant _____ [purchased or became the owner of] a tract of residential lots in _____[city], _____ County, California, on each lot of which he/she/it constructed a residence, including the residence located at _____[street address], hereinafter referred to as "the residence."

4. At all times herein mentioned defendant knew and intended that the residences constructed by him/her/it as alleged in Paragraph 3 would be purchased by members of the public and used by them without inspection for defects.

5. On or about _____[date], plaintiff purchased the residence and on or about _____[date] moved into it [with his/her family].

6. At the time of plaintiff's purchase, the residence was defective and unsafe for its intended purpose in that _____ [specify, e.g., the radiant heating system was improperly installed in the residence, and was subject to premature corrosion and hence to failure].

7. On or about _____[date], as a proximate result of the defect in the residence as herein alleged, the _____ [specify, e.g., radiant heating system became corroded throughout and failed].

8. The value of the residence without the defect immediately before the _____ [specify e.g., failure of the radiant heating system] as herein alleged was $_____.

9. As a further proximate result of the defect in the residence and the _____ [specify, e.g., failure of the radiant heating system] as herein alleged, the value of the residence has been diminished from $_____[sum alleged in Paragraph 9] to $_____, and plaintiff has thereby been damaged in the sum of $_____[difference between foregoing two sums].

[10. As a further proximate result of the defect in the residence and the _____ (specify, e.g., failure of the radiant heating system) as herein alleged, plaintiff was required to and did acquire other temporary shelter for himself/herself [and his/her family] during the period of time it took to repair _____ (specify, e.g., the radiant heating system), to wit, from _____ (date) to _____ (date), and incurred expenses therefor in the sum of $_____, all to plaintiff's further damage in that sum.]

[11. As a further proximate result of the defect in the residence and the _____ (specify, e.g., failure of the radiant heating system) as herein alleged, plaintiff was required to and did remove and store his/her furniture during the period of time it took to repair _____ (specify, e.g., the radiant heating system), to wit, from _____ (date) to _____ (date), and incurred expenses therefor in the sum of $_____, all to plaintiff's further damage in that sum.]

[12. Punitive damages allegation, if appropriate. See Paragraph 15 in § 460.141[1].]

[Prayer. See § 460.141[1].]

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 460.141[1].]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by the purchaser of a home from the mass producer builder-seller of homes to recover damages based on strict liability in tort for injury to the residence proximately caused by a defect in the manufacture of the residence which existed at the time defendant sold the home and which rendered the home unsafe for its intended purpose as a residence [see Kriegler v. Eichler Homes, Inc. (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 224, 228-229, 74 Cal. Rptr. 749 ; see Mills v. Forestex Co. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 625, 636, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 273 (plaintiffs' house, siding of which warped, was not mass-produced house)]. With appropriate modifications it may also be used where the defect was in design rather than in manufacture [see Hyman v. Gordon (1973) 111 Cal. Rptr. 262 (home defectively designed in placement of water heater on floor of garage; fire erupted when spilled gasoline spread across garage floor and reached flame of heater)] and to recover damages for personal injuries or wrongful death [see § 460.141] as well as damages for injury to property. For an analysis of the complaint, the number of copies to prepare, and a discussion of the applicable statute of limitations, see § 460.141. For a discussion of the alternative theories of recovery, see §§ 460.32, 460.33.

[3] Cross Action by Defendant

If the defect in the house resulted from the negligence of a third person, such as a contractor or subcontractor employed to build the house or parts of it or to install various fixtures or appliances, the defendant manufacturer may file a cross complaint against that person for a declaration as to the manufacturer's right to be indemnified by that person for any judgment that may be rendered in the action in favor of plaintiff against the defendant manufacturer [see § 460.202].

[4] Cross References

For discussion relating to the general requirements for a complaint, see §§ 460.30 -460.34 and §§ 460.141 -460.142

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.147

§ 460.147 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person--By Purchaser-User Against Manufacturer's Successor in Interest

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Based on Strict Liability in Tort--For Injury to Person--By Purchaser-User Against Manufacturer's Successor in Interest

[Caption, introduction. See § 460.141[1].]

1. Defendant is, and _____ [at all times herein mentioned was or since _____ (date) has been], a _____ [specify capacity, e.g., corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of California with its principal place of business in this state situated in the (City and) County of _____].

2. _____[Name of manufacturer], hereinafter referred to as "the manufacturer," at all times herein mentioned prior to _____[date manufacturer sold his/her/its manufacturing business], was a _____ [specify capacity, e.g., corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of California with its principal place of business in this state situated in the (City and) County of _____], and was engaged in the business of manufacturing [, among other products,] _____ [specify products, e.g., specialty ladders], including the particular _____ [specify defective product, e.g., 22 foot heavy duty ladder] hereinafter referred to [for sale to _____ (specify, e.g., building, painting, and other contractors, as well as to the general public)].

[3. The manufacturer intended that the _____ (specify products, e.g., specialty ladders) manufactured by him/her/it be used by _____ (specify, e.g., building, painting, and other contractors) and put to _____ (specify, e.g., heavy industrial use).]

4. At all times herein mentioned prior to _____[date manufacturer sold its/his/her manufacturing business], the manufacturer knew [and intended] that his/her/its _____ [specify products, e.g., specialty ladders] would be purchased by _____ [specify, e.g., building contractors and other] members of the general public and used by them, their employees, and others without inspection for defects.

5. On or about _____[date], _____ [plaintiff or plaintiff's employer, a _____ (specify, e.g., general building contractor)], purchased from the manufacturer at his/her/its place of business hereinabove described the _____ [specify defective product, e.g., 22 foot heavy duty ladder] referred to in paragraph 2 above and herein

6. On or about _____[date], defendant purchased all the manufacturer's assets and thereby acquired the manufacturer's plant, equipment, fixtures, inventory, trade name, goodwill, and customer lists and since that date has continued to manufacture and sell to _____ [specify class if any, e.g., building, painting, and other contractors and to] the general public the same line of _____ [specify, e.g., specialty ladders] under the manufacturer's name, using the same equipment, designs, and personnel, and soliciting the manufacturer's customers through the same sales representatives with no outward indication of any change in the ownership of the business and without any notification to customers of the change of ownership.

[7. On or about _____ (date), the manufacturer filed with the California Secretary of State a certificate of winding up and dissolution of _____ (name of manufacturer) in which it declared that the corporation "has been completely wound up," that its "known debts and liabilities have been actually paid," and that its "known assets have been distributed to the shareholders."]

[8. On or about _____ (date), defendant _____, (filed and published the statement required by Sections 17915 and 17917 of the Business and Professions Code showing that he/she/it was transacting business under the fictitious name of _____ (name of manufacturer) or filed with the California Secretary of State an amendment to its articles of incorporation changing its name from _____ (specify) to _____ (specify), the name of the now defunct manufacturer).]

9. The _____ [specify, e.g., ladder], at the time _____ [plaintiff purchased it or it was purchased by plaintiff's employer] as hereinabove alleged, was defective and unsafe for its intended purpose in that _____[specify defect in manufacture or design of product].

10. On or about _____[date], plaintiff was using the _____ [specify, e.g., ladder] at _____[address or location] for the purpose of _____[specify]. During the course of this use and as a proximate result of the defect hereinabove described, _____ [specify accident, e.g., the third rung from the top of the ladder on which plaintiff was standing broke causing plaintiff to fall some 20 feet to the concrete floor below].

11-13. [Personal injuries and damages allegations. See Paragraphs 10-12 in § 460.141[1].]

[Prayer. See § 460.141[1].]

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 460.141[1].]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a complaint for use by the user of a defective product to recover damages based on strict liability in tort from the manufacturer's business successor for injuries proximately caused by the defect. For an analysis of the complaint, the number of copies to prepare, and a discussion of the applicable statute of limitations, see § 460.141. For a discussion of alternative theories of recovery, see §§ 460.32, 460.33.

[3] Liability of Successor Business on Predecessor's Obligations

Ordinarily when one corporation purchases the principal assets of another corporation the former does not assume the latter's liabilities unless either [Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 28, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3] :

- There is an express or implied agreement of assumption.
- The transaction amounts to a consolidation or merger of the two corporations.
- The purchasing corporation is a mere continuation of the seller.
- The transfer of assets to the purchaser is for the fraudulent purpose of escaping liability for the seller's debts.

There is, however, an exception to the foregoing rule where the liability is based on strict liability in tort for damages for injuries sustained after the transfer of the business as a proximate result of a defect in a product manufactured by the predecessor business. In that case, the policies underlying strict liability in tort for defective products require that the successor business be liable for injuries resulting from a defective product manufactured by its predecessor where the successor, through the purchase of the manufacturer's assets, acquires the manufacturer's plant, equipment, inventory, trade name, goodwill, and customer lists and continues to manufacture the same line of products under the same name as the manufacturer, using the same equipment, designs, and personnel, and soliciting the manufacturer's customers through the same sales representatives with no outward indication of any change in the ownership of the business or notice to customers of that change. Justification for imposing strict liability in such case on the successor to the manufacturer rests on [Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 30-34, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3] :

- The virtual destruction of the injured person's remedies against the original manufacturer caused by the successor's acquisition of the business.
- The successor's ability to assume the original manufacturer's risk-spreading role.
- The fairness of requiring the successor to assume a responsibility for defective products that was a burden necessarily attached to the original manufacturer's goodwill being enjoyed by the successor in the continued operation of the business.

In Ray the Supreme Court held: "[A] party which acquires a manufacturing business and continues the output of its line of products under the circumstances here presented assumes strict tort liability for defects in units of the same product line previously manufactured and distributed by the entity from which the business was acquired" [Ray v. Alad Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 22, 34, 136 Cal. Rptr. 574, 560 P.2d 3 (disapproving anything to the contrary in Ortiz v. South Bend Lathe (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 842, 120 Cal. Rptr. 556 and in Schwartz v. McGraw-Edison Co. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 767, 92 Cal. Rptr. 776)].

For further discussion, see § 460.14.

[4] Successors' Liability for Punitive Damages

If the original manufacturer of a defective product committed acts sufficient to support an award of punitive damages, a successor to the manufacturer may be required to pay such damages if the successor acquired the manufacturer's interest either by statutory merger or by a de facto merger [Marks v. Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1429, 1434-1437, 232 Cal. Rptr. 594 ; see Corp. Code § 1107].

[5] Cross References

For discussion relating to the general requirements for a complaint, see §§ 460.30 -460.34 and §§ 460.141 -460.146

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 460.148-460.159

[Reserved]

§§ 460.148[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.160

§ 460.160 Allegation--Plaintiff Was Nonpurchaser-User of Defective Product

[1] FORM Allegation--Plaintiff Was Nonpurchaser-User of Defective Product

Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that on or about _____[date], _____[name] purchased the _____[defective product], referred to in Paragraph _____ hereof and hereinafter referred to as "the _____" [descriptive word or phrase] from _____[name of retailer or other] at his/her/its place of business hereinabove described.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an allegation for use in the form in § 460.141[1] in place of Paragraph 7 (in which case Paragraph 8 in that form will require appropriate changes and Paragraph 13 will be deleted) and in the form in § 460.142[1] in place of the first sentence of Paragraph 13 (in which case Paragraph 14 in that form will also require appropriate changes). The allegation, with appropriate modifications, may also be used in the forms in §§ 460.143 and 460.147.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.161

§ 460.161 Allegation--Plaintiff Was Nonpurchaser Nonuser of Defective Product

[1] FORM Allegation--Plaintiff Was Nonpurchaser Nonuser of Defective Product

On or about _____[date], [through _____ (date),] plaintiff _____ [specify way in which plaintiff came into contact with the product, e.g., was exposed to] the _____ [describe product, e.g., asbestos insulation] at _____[describe location] when _____ [specify, e.g., he was performing his employment duties as an electrician while construction workers in the immediate area removed and repaired the insulation]. As a proximate result of the product's defective condition described above, plaintiff sustained injuries consisting of _____ [describe, e.g., respiratory illnesses caused by prolonged inhalation of asbestos particles]. Although plaintiff neither purchased nor used the product, the injury subsequently incurred by him/her was reasonably foreseeable by virtue of the product's defective condition in that _____ [specify, e.g., the removal and repair of the installed asbestos products on the premises of plaintiff's employer was foreseeable, and in light of defective nature of the product, that is, the manufacturer's failure to warn of the dangers of overexposure, injury to persons employed on the premises who took no precautions against inhalation of asbestos particles was also reasonably foreseeable].

[2] Use of Form

This form is an allegation for use to allege that plaintiff incurred reasonably foreseeable injuries caused by a defective product although plaintiff was neither a purchaser nor a user of the product [see Elmore v. American Motors Corp. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 578, 75 Cal. Rptr. 652, 451 P.2d 84 (doctrine of strict liability in tort available to bystander injured by defective product)]. It may be used to allege that plaintiff was a bystander, and incurred injuries in an accident caused by the defect in the product while the product was being used in a reasonably foreseeable manner by another [see Elmore v. American Motors Corp. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 578, 75 Cal. Rptr. 652, 451 P.2d 84 (driver of nearby car injured when defective automobile car caused accident); Nelson v. Superior Court (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 689, 693-696, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 684 (bystanders to uses of product while it is still on market are in same position vis-a-vis manufacturer as bystanders to uses of product by ultimate consumer)]. It may also be used to allege that plaintiff was injured by repeated exposure to a defective product over a period of time, which has often arisen in the context of an employee's exposure to some substance or chemical at his or her work premises [see, e.g., Anderson v.

Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549 (exposure to asbestos products used in building); Ruiz v. Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 462, 93 Cal. Rptr. 270 (inhalation of glue used in furniture manufacturing)].

This allegation may be inserted in the form in § 460.141[1] in lieu of Paragraph 9, in which case Paragraphs 7 and 13 of that form should be omitted. If the purchaser of the product is known, for example, when plaintiff is a bystander in an accident in which the purchaser is using the product, the allegation in § 460.160[1] should also be substituted for Paragraph 7 of the form in § 460.141[1]. In addition, Paragraph 8 should be modified to delete the reference to plaintiff as purchaser.

This allegation may also be inserted in the form in § 460.142[1], in lieu of Paragraph 15, in which case Paragraphs 13 and 14 should be modified to delete the reference to plaintiff as purchaser. If the purchaser of the product is known, § 460.160[1] should also be incorporated into Paragraph 13 of § 460.142.

[3] Negligence Liability

A plaintiff who is a third-party bystander injured by the use of a defective product may also have a cause of action against the user or owner of the product if the use was with knowledge of the defect and was negligent. In this case, the complaint will set forth a second cause of action against the user, owner, or both, based on negligence rather than on strict liability in tort. For forms of negligence complaints that may be adapted for use in drafting the second cause of action for insertion in the complaint, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

[4] Cross References

For further discussion in general, see § 460.143.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.162

§ 460.162 Allegation--Defect in Design, Manufacture, and Assembly

[1] FORM Allegation--Defect in Design, Manufacture, and Assembly

The _____[product] was unsafe for its intended use by reason of a defect in its design, manufacture, and assembly which allowed it to malfunction and _____ [allege accident, e.g., catch on fire].

[2] Use of Form

This form is an allegation for use in lieu of Paragraph 8 of the form in § 460.141[1] and Paragraph 14 of § 460.142[1] [see Golden v. Conway (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 948, 952, 128 Cal. Rptr. 69 (involving defective heater in rented premises)].

[3] Cross References

For further discussion in general, see § 460.141.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.163

§ 460.163 Allegation--Defect in Metal Hasp Holding Trays in Truck

[1] FORM Allegation--Defect in Metal Hasp Holding Trays in Truck

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendants _____[names] and DOES 1-_____, inclusive, were and are _____ [specify capacities, e.g., corporations doing business under the laws of the State of California and engaged in the business of sales agent for assembled vehicles, the chassis, body, and racks of which are manufactured by subcontractors].

2. At all times herein mentioned, defendants _____[names] and DOES 1-_____, inclusive, were and are _____ [specify capacities, e.g., corporations organized and existing under the laws of the State of California, and engaged in the business of distributing, buying, and selling vehicles to the general public].

3. Defendants _____[names] and DOES 1-_____, inclusive, manufactured, designed, and assembled a certain _____[model year] _____ [describe vehicle, e.g., one ton step van] hereinafter referred to as "the vehicle," especially equipped with racks and safety locking devices for _____ [product, e.g., bread] delivery, which was intended by said defendants to be used as follows: to be operated on the public highways in delivering _____ [product, e.g., loaves of bread] to retail outlets, said safety locking devices to prevent the loaded racks from passing beyond the safety locks into the driver's compartment on sudden stops or impacts.

4. Prior to _____[date of collision], defendants _____[names] and DOES 1-_____, inclusive, sold, supplied, and delivered the vehicle equipped with the racks and locking device, which was intended by the defendants to be used as follows: _____ [specify, e.g., to be driven on the public highways and used to deliver _____ (describe product, e.g., bread) to retail outlets, the safety locking devices to be used to prevent racks from passing into the driver's compartment on a sudden stop of the vehicle or a sudden impact between the vehicle and another object].

5. Defendants, and each of them, knew that the vehicle would be purchased and used by the purchaser and its employees without inspection for defects.

6. The vehicle was unsafe for its intended use by reason of the following defects in manufacture: _____ [specify, e.g., the metal hasp on the locking device through which the locking pin was inserted, after the hinge locking the edge of the trays was folded over the metal hasp, was exceedingly porous and contained innumerable spherical holes, contained a large and irregularly shaped cavity, distinct pits in the surface of the metal hasp corresponding to voids within the metal underneath, was of a soft aluminum metal, and was of an insufficient tensile strength to withstand the impact of the racks striking the locking device and hasp].

7. On or about _____[date], plaintiff was operating the vehicle on the public highways to deliver _____ [describe, e.g., bread] to various retail outlets and at that time the safety locking devices were in a locked position. During the course of this use and while plaintiff was operating the vehicle, the vehicle was forced off the highway and collided with an embankment. As a proximate result of this collision and of the defect hereinabove described, the hasp on the locking device fractured and broke thereby releasing the trays from the loading portion of the vehicle and causing them to enter the driver's compartment and strike plaintiff with great force and violence.

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations illustrating a specific fact situation, which may be used in a complaint for damages based on strict liability in tort [see the forms in §§ 460.141 -460.142]. They identify the defendants, describe the product, its use, and its defect, and the manner in which the accident occurred.

[3] Source of Form

The allegations in [1], above, are adapted from the complaint filed in Cronin v. J.B.E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153 . In Cronin, plaintiff voluntarily dismissed the action against the manufacturer of the chassis prior to trial. The jury returned a verdict in favor of plaintiff against the sales agent for the assembled vehicle but in favor of the seller against plaintiff. The sales agent appealed and the judgment was affirmed.

[4] Cross References

For a related form, see § 460.164

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.164

§ 460.164 Allegation--Product Defective as Result of Failure to Warn of Danger in Use

[1] FORM Allegation--Product Defective as Result of Failure to Warn of Danger in Use

1. At all relevant times, the _____ [describe product, e.g., asbestos insulation] manufactured by defendant was defective as a result of the defendant's failure to give _____[adequate] warning that the particular risk of _____ [describe risk, e.g., respiratory injuries incurred because of continual exposure to removal and installation of the product] rendered the product unsafe for its intended or reasonably foreseeable use.

2. [Plaintiff is informed and believes, and thereon alleges, that] [A]t all relevant times, _____ [defendant had specific knowledge of the risk or defendant could have known of the risk by the application of scientific knowledge available at the time of manufacture].

[2] Use of Form

This form is an allegation for insertion in lieu of Paragraph 8 of the form in § 460.141[1] if the product was defective because of a failure to warn rather than because of a defect in manufacture or design. For alternative allegations, see the forms in §§ 460.165 -460.167.

[3] Failure to Warn

The failure to issue an adequate warning may subject manufacturers and distributors to strict liability if they knew or should have known of the danger and the necessity to warn [Carlin v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 1104, 1110, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162, 920 P.2d 1347 ; Valentine v. Baxter Healthcare Corp. (1999) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1467, 1483, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 252 ; Schwoerer v. Union Oil Co. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 103, 111-112, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 227 ; Rosburg v. Minnesota Mining & Mfg. Co. (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 726, 734, 226 Cal. Rptr. 299 ; Blackwell v. Phelps Dodge Corp. (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 372, 377, 203 Cal. Rptr. 706] . Actual or constructive knowledge of the danger is a requisite for strict liability based on the failure to provide adequate warning [Anderson v. Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 987, 1000, 281 Cal. Rptr. 528, 810 P.2d 549 ; Jones v. John Crane, Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 990, 1004-1005, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 144] .

For further discussion, see § 460.11[10].

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.165

§ 460.165 Allegation--Product Defective Because of Failure to Warn of Ingredient to Which Substantial Number of Population Is Allergic

[1] FORM Allegation--Product Defective Because of Failure to Warn of Ingredient to Which Substantial Number of Population Is Allergic

1. At all times herein mentioned defendant _____ [knew or by the application of reasonably developed human skill and foresight should have known] that the _____[product] contained the ingredient _____[specify], that a substantial number of the population is allergic to this ingredient, the _____ [breathing or exposure to the skin or other] of which causes _____[specify affliction from which plaintiff suffers], and that the ingredient is one _____ [the danger of which is not generally known or which a purchaser or user would reasonably not expect to find in the _____ (product)].

2. The _____[product] purchased by plaintiff from defendant as herein alleged was at the time of purchase defective and unsafe for its intended use in that it contained the ingredient _____[specify] and defendant failed to give plaintiff any notice thereof or to warn plaintiff of the danger of _____ [breathing or exposure to or other] that ingredient.

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations for insertion and renumbering in lieu of Paragraph 8 in the form in § 460.141[1] if the product was defective not in manufacture or design, but because of a failure to warn of an ingredient in the product to which a substantial number of the population is allergic, and the ingredient is one the danger of which is not generally known or, if known, is one that the purchaser or user would reasonably not expect to find in the product. If the allegations in this form are used, Paragraph 6 of the form in § 460.141[1] will allege defendant's intended use of the product and Paragraph 9 (renumbered 10) will allege plaintiff's use showing that the use was within the ambit of Paragraph 6. For alternative allegations, see the forms in §§ 460.164 and 460.167. For an allegation regarding a manufacturer of an unavoidably unsafe prescription drug, see § 460.166.

[3] Duty to Warn of Allergic Properties

When a product contains an ingredient to which a substantial number of the population are allergic, and the ingredient is one whose danger is not generally known or, if known, is one that the consumer would reasonably not expect to find in the product, the seller is required to give warning against it if the seller has knowledge, or by the application of reasonable, developed human skill and foresight should have knowledge, of the presence of the ingredient and the danger [Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A, cmt. j]. This has been termed a neg ligence standard [Kearl v. Lederle Laboratories (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 812, 831-832, 218 Cal. Rptr. 453 (disapproved for its holding regarding strict liability standards for drug manufacturers in Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1061-1069, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470); see § 460.166].

[4] Cross References

For a related form, see § 460.164

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.166

§ 460.166 Allegation--Drug Manufacturer Strictly Liable for Injuries Caused by Unavoidably Unsafe Prescription Drug Because of Failure to Prepare Drug Properly or Failure to Warn of Its Known or Knowable Dangers

[1] FORM Allegation--Drug Manufacturer Strictly Liable for Injuries Caused by Unavoidably Unsafe Prescription Drug Because of Failure to Prepare Drug Properly or Failure to Warn of Its Known or Knowable Dangers

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendant knew and intended that its drug _____ [name of drug or vaccine, e.g., diethylstilbestrol (hereinafter DES)] would be purchased by health-care patients by prescription from their physicians, and that those patients would rely on their physicians to transmit any relevant warnings about the drug.

2. The prescription drug _____ [name of drug, e.g., DES], intended for the purpose of _____ [specify, e.g., preventing miscarriage], is unavoidably unsafe in that its use can cause _____ [specify danger, e.g., cancerous vaginal and cervical growths, or adenocarcinoma, in daughters exposed to it before birth], and that dangerous propensity was _____ [known to defendant or reasonably knowable scientifically] at the time that the drug was distributed.

3. At all times herein mentioned, defendant failed properly to _____ [prepare and/or warn physicians of the dangerous propensities of] the drug.

4. On or about _____[specify date or range of dates], _____ [specify person who used drug, e.g., plaintiff or plaintiff's mother] obtained a prescription for _____ [specify drug, e.g., DES] from his/her physician _____[name], and ingested that drug on or about _____[specify date or period of time, if drug taken regularly].

5. On or about _____[date], as a proximate result of the use of _____ [specify drug, e.g., DES] described in Paragraph 4, plaintiff suffered physical injuries in that _____ [describe injuries, e.g., she contracted adenocarcinoma].

[2] Use of Form

This form contains allegations for insertion and renumbering in the form in § 460.141[1], in lieu of Paragraphs 6 through 9, if the defendant is the manufacturer of an unavoidably unsafe prescription drug, if the drug was distributed without proper preparation and warning of its dangerous propensities, and if the plaintiff ingested the drug after purchasing it by prescription and suffered injuries caused by the drug's known or knowable dangerous qualities [see Carlin v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal.4th 1104, 1110, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162, 920 P.2d 1347 ; Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1061-1069, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470] . If these allegations are used, defendant should be identified in Paragraph 3 of the form in § 460.141[1] as a prescription-drug manufacturer. If the plaintiff cannot identify the manufacturer of the precise product that caused the injury because several manufacturers shared the market for that drug, the foregoing allegations should be combined with § 460.169 to join the manufacturers of a substantial share of the market in the action [see § 460.11[7]].

[3] Liability of Manufacturer of Prescription Drugs

Prescription drug manufacturers are strictly liable for injuries caused by failure to warn of dangers that were known, or reasonably scientifically knowable at the time a drug was manufactured and distributed [Carlin v. Superior Court (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 1104, 1110, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 162, 920 P.2d 1347] .

A manufacturer is not strictly liable for injuries caused by a prescription drug so long as the drug was properly prepared and accompanied by warnings of its dangerous propensities that were either known or reasonably scientifically knowable at the time of distribution [Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1069, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470 (adopting Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A, cmt. k].

[4] Cross References

For related forms, see §§ 460.141, 460.169

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.167

§ 460.167 Allegation--Product Defective in That Instructions on Assembly or Use Were Inadequate to Avoid Danger of Injury

[1] FORM Allegation--Product Defective in That Instructions on Assembly or Use Were Inadequate to Avoid Danger of Injury

The _____[products] [manufactured and] sold by defendant are technically complex products that were marketed by defendant and intended for use by technically unsophisticated consumers to be assembled and used by them in accordance with written instructions composed and furnished by defendant. The _____[product] herein involved was defective at the time plaintiff purchased it in that defendant failed to warn plaintiff of conditions and circumstances created by the assembly or use which would render the _____[product] dangerous to him/her and the instructions for assembly and use composed and furnished with the _____[product] by defendant were inadequate to avoid the danger of injury to plaintiff in that they failed to _____[specify].

[2] Use of Form

This form is an allegation for use in lieu of Paragraph 8 of the form in § 460.141[1], if the defect consists of a failure to provide adequate instructions regarding assembly or use of a product necessary to avoid the danger of injury that would result from improper assembly or use.

[3] Inadequate Instructions

A product requiring assembly and use in conformity with the supplier's directions is defective if the supplier fails to warn adequately of conditions and circumstances created by such assembly or use that would render the product dangerous to the user. Therefore, the supplier is strictly liable for injury proximately resulting from composing and furnishing a set of instructions for assembly and use that does not adequately avoid the danger of injury [Midgley v. S.S. Kresge Co. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 67, 74, 127 Cal. Rptr. 217 (inadequate instructions on assembly of telescope; plaintiff, a minor, followed instructions in assembling telescope and sustained severe eye injury when viewing sun through improperly installed filter)].

[4] Cross References

For a related form, see § 460.164

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.168

§ 460.168 Allegation--Exemplary Damages [Civ. Code § 3294]

[1] FORM Allegation--Exemplary Damages

At all times herein mentioned defendant knew that _____ [specify, e.g., the tires] herein described manufactured and sold by it were defective in the manner herein alleged, that _____ [specify, e.g., in all likelihood the tires would fail while in normal use, and that if they failed the failure would in all likelihood cause an accident] which in turn would cause _____[serious] personal injury and property damage to users[, passengers,] and bystanders, and yet, notwithstanding this knowledge, defendant despicably, and in willful and conscious disregard of the safety of such persons and of the plaintiff herein, without giving any notice of the defect to the purchasers, placed and persisted in placing its herein described defective _____ [product, e.g., tires] into the stream of commerce, causing them to be _____ [specify, e.g., installed on cars, including the car sold to plaintiff as herein alleged]. Plaintiff is therefore entitled to an award of exemplary or punitive damages.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an allegation, appropriately numbered, for insertion in a complaint seeking recovery of damages for personal injuries or property damage or both in an action based on strict liability in tort where defendant was guilty of malice. For an alternative form of allegation, see Paragraph 15 of the form in § 460.141[1]. When the punitive damage allegation is used, the prayer of the complaint will include a request for an award of punitive, or exemplary, damages [see § 460.141[1]]. However, no claim for exemplary or punitive damages may state an amount or amounts [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

[3] Exemplary Damages

[a] General Rule

In an action for the breach of an obligation not arising from contract, when it is proven by clear and convincing evidence that the defendant has been guilty of oppression, fraud, or malice, the plaintiff, in addition to the actual damages, may recover damages for the sake of example and by way of punishing the defendant [Civ. Code § 3294(a)].

Exemplary or punitive damages under Civ. Code § 3294 may, in a proper case, be recovered in an action based on strict liability in tort [see Boeken v. Philip Morris Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1640, 1700-1703, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 638 ; Romo v. Ford Motor Co. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 738, 749, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793 ; G.D. Searle & Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 22, 26, 122 Cal. Rptr. 218 ; Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 228, 240-241, 71 Cal. Rptr. 306 ; Toole v. Richardson-Merrell, Inc. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 689, 711, 713, 60 Cal. Rptr. 398 ; see also Hasson v. Ford Motor Co. (1981) 32 Cal. 3d 388 ; Grimshaw v. Ford Motor Co. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 757, 810, 174 Cal. Rptr. 348 (decided before 1987 amendment to Civ. Code § 3294)]. However, to recover punitive damages, the plaintiff must show that personal injury (or some equivalent egregious injury) occurred in addition to establishing the "oppression, fraud, or malice" required under Civ. Code § 3294 [Romo v. Ford Motor Co. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1115, 1138-1150, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139 , overruled on other grounds, Romo v. Ford Motor Co. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 738, 749, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 793 ; Gawara v. United States Brass Corp. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1341, 1360-1363, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 663] .

For developments in appellate review of punitive damages awards, see § 460.33[2].

[b] Award

To justify an award of exemplary or punitive damages, the defendant must have been proved guilty, by clear and convincing evidence, of oppression, fraud, or malice [Civ. Code § 3294(a)]. "Malice," for the purpose of Civ. Code § 3294(a), is defined as conduct that is intended to cause injury to plaintiff, or despicable conduct that is carried on by the defendant with conscious disregard of the rights or safety of others [Civ. Code § 3294(c)(1)]. "Oppression," as used in Civ. Code § 3294(a), is despicable conduct that subjects a person to cruel and unjust hardship in conscious disregard of that person's rights [Civ. Code § 3294(c)(2)]; and fraud, as used in Civ. Code § 3294(a), is an intentional misrepresentation, deceit, or a concealment of a material fact known to the defendant with the intention on the part of the defendant to thereby deprive a person of legal rights or property, or to otherwise cause injury [Civ. Code § 3294(c)(3)].

[c] Pleading

A complaint seeking exemplary or punitive damages must contain appropriate allegations showing that an award of such damages is justified. For example, where malice is relied on in a complaint alleging an intentional wrong, a prayer for exemplary damages may be supported by pleading that the wrong was committed willfully and with a design to injure; but when nondeliberate injury is charged, allegations that the defendant's conduct was wrongful, willful, wanton, reckless, or unlawful will not support a claim for exemplary damages because they do not charge malice. But an allegation that defendant in doing the things alleged acted despicably and in willful and conscious disregard of the safety of others properly describes the animus malus that may justify an exemplary damage award when nondeliberate injury is alleged [see Civ. Code § 3294(c)(1); see also G.D. Searle & Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 22, 29-32 , 122 Cal. Rptr. 218 (decided before 1987 amendment to Civ. Code § 3294)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.169

§ 460.169 Allegation--Manufacturers of Substantial Share of Market--Particular Manufacturer Unidentifiable

[1] FORM Allegation--Manufacturers of Substantial Share of Market--Particular Manufacturer Unidentifiable

Defendants _____[name of manufacturer], and _____[name of manufacturer, repeating for as many as necessary][, and DOES _____ (numbers)] produced a substantial share of the market for _____ [describe product and use if there was more than one use, e.g., diethylstibestrol, hereinafter DES, used to prevent miscarriages], which product was defective as alleged herein, during the time in question. Defendants, and each of them _____ [state reason defendants share the liabiity, e.g., produced DES from identical formulas], and the producers of the _____ [specify, e.g., DES] that caused plaintiff's injuries cannot be identified through no fault of plaintiff.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an allegation for use in a complaint for personal injuries by a plaintiff who knows the type of product that caused the injury, but who, through no fault of plaintiff, cannot identify the manufacturer of the precise product that caused the injury. It is for use if plaintiff can name the manufacturers who supplied an amount of the product that comprises a substantial share of the market for the particular defective product that caused the injury. The allegation is based on Sindell v. Abbott Labs. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132, 607 P.2d 924 [see § 460.11[7]].

[3] Doe Defendants

Sindell requires the plaintiff to join in the action a significant share of the market for the product that might have caused the injuries. It is not clear whether DOE defendants may be included in this allegation. However, the court in Sindell stated that the problems of defining the market and determining market share are largely matters of proof that cannot properly be determined at the pleading stage of these proceedings [Sindell v. Abbott Labs. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 613, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132, 607 P.2d 924] . Therefore, plaintiff could argue that whether or not the named defendants supplied a significant share of the market without the DOE defendants may not be determined on demurrer. Plaintiff could then name any DOE defendants that he or she later discovers are needed to comprise a significant share of the market.

[4] Theory of Substantial Share of Market

The court in Sindell, above, declined to require the particular share of the market suggested by a law review article (75 to 80 percent), and stated that it was holding only that a substantial percentage is required. It is clear, however, that a small percentage of the market (10 percent) does not constitute a substantial share of the market for purposes of imposing liability under the Sindell market-share theory [Murphy v. E.R. Squibb & Sons, Inc. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 672, 682-687, 221 Cal. Rptr. 447, 710 P.2d 247] . The court stated that each defendant would be held liable for the proportion of the judgment represented by its share of that market unless it demonstrated that it could not have made the product that caused the plaintiff's injuries. Once plaintiff met her burden of joining the required defendants, the defendants could cross complain against other DES manufacturers, not joined in the action, that might have supplied the injury-causing product. As mentioned above, the problems of defining the market and determining the market share are matters of proof that cannot properly be determined at the pleading stage of the proceedings [Sindell v. Abbott Labs. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 611-613, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132, 607 P.2d 924 ; see Miles Labs., Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 587, 595-596, 184 Cal. Rptr. 98 (defendant's motion for summary judgment as properly denied when plaintiff alleged under Sindell that defendant gained a substantial market share by acquiescing in generic drug's use for an unintended purpose)]. Counsel should note, however, that the market-share liability theory cannot be used to impose punitive damages when the plaintiff cannot identify the defendant who supplied the product [see Magallanes v. Superior Court (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 878, 890, 213 Cal. Rptr. 547] .

[5] Burden of Proof and Apportionment of Damages

Under the market-share theory, each defendant will be held liable for the proportion of the judgment represented by its share of that market unless it demonstrates that it could not have made the product that caused plaintiff's injuries [Sindell v. Abbott Labs. (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 588, 612, 163 Cal. Rptr. 132, 607 P.2d 924] . Therefore, each defendant is liable for the proportion of the judgment represented by its market share, and joint liability is inapplicable [Brown v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1049, 1074-1075, 245 Cal. Rptr. 412, 751 P.2d 470] . For further discussion, see § 460.11[7].

[6] Cross References

For further discussion in general, see § 460.166.

69 of 126 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
A. Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 460.170-460.179

[Reserved]

§§ 460.170[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
B. Answers

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.180

§ 460.180 Judicial Council Trial Court Pleading Form [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a)]--Answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] in Action for Personal Injury, Property Damage, Wrongful Death [Cal. Judicial Council PLD-PI-003]

[1] FORM Judicial Council Trial Court Pleading Form [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a)]--Answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30] in Action for Personal Injury, Property Damage, Wrongful Death [Cal. Judicial Council PLD-PI-003]

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

This form is the Judicial Council approved general answer form for use in any action based on personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12; Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-PI-003]. The complaint which it answers is set out in § 460.140. Use of the forms is optional [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge. For general information relating to the use of Judicial Council answer forms, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[3] General Denial

If the complaint is not verified, if the complaint is subject to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 90-100 (relating to pleadings in municipal courts, but excepting claims assigned to a third party for collection when the complaint is verified), or if the demand or the value of the property in controversy does not exceed $1,000, the defendant may make a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 431.30(d), 431.40(a)]. A form of general denial has been adopted by the Judicial Council for this purpose [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.40(c); Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-050]. Use of this general denial form is mandatory, pursuant to Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 201.1(b). Therefore, in a products liability action brought on a Judicial Council complaint form that is unverified, it is unclear whether the answering attorney would use the mandatory general denial form, or the form presented here, which is a more specifically applicable answer form for a personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death complaint, and which the Judicial Council has approved for optional use for this purpose [see Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-PI-003]. Counsel should review local court practice to determine whether or not the court will require the general denial form. A copy of the general denial form suitable for reproduction is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[4] Allegations

[a] Number of Pages (Paragraph 1.)

The total number of pages submitted is to be indicated in Paragraph 1. For a discussion of attachments to this form, see the Comments to the Judicial Council answer form in Ch. 380, Negligence .

[b] General Denial (Paragraph 2.)

Counsel for the defendant should check either the box in Paragraph 2. or one or more of the boxes in Paragraph 3. Box 2. may be checked if the complaint is unverified. As a general denial, checking box 2. will put in issue the material allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. Therefore, if the complaint is verified, or the defendant wishes to put in issue allegations other than the material allegations of the complaint, one or more of the boxes in Paragraph 3. should be checked instead. For a discussion of using this form for a general denial, rather than the general Judicial Council general denial form, see [3], above.

[c] Other Denials and Admissions (Paragraph 3.)

For a discussion of filling in Paragraph 3. see the Comments to the Judicial Council Form of answer in Ch. 380, Negligence.

[d] Affirmative Defenses

[i] Comparative Fault (Paragraph 4.)

The defense of comparative fault may be asserted in an action for negligence or strict products liability to reduce the plaintiff's recovery to the extent that his or her own lack of reasonable care contributed to the injury [Daly v. General Motors Corp. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 725, 737, 738, 144 Cal. Rptr. 380, 575 P.2d 1162] . If the box following 4. is to be checked, counsel should fill in the name or names of the plaintiff or plaintiffs against whom comparative fault is alleged. Counsel should also allege plaintiff's negligence as proximately contributing to plaintiff's alleged injuries. For specific allegations of comparative fault as an affirmative defense, see Forms 21 and 22. If comparative fault is asserted against more than one plaintiff, counsel should, within Paragraph 4., number and state separately each allegation of comparative fault against each particular plaintiff [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.112].

[ii] Statute of Limitations (Paragraph 5.)

If a statute of limitations is to be asserted as a defense, the box following 5. should be checked. The Code of Civil Procedure provides that it is not necessary to state the facts showing the defense, but that it may be stated generally that the cause of action is barred by a particular code section, which is pleaded by number, and subsection number if applicable [Code Civ. Proc. § 458]. For a form of allegations of the statute of limitations as an affirmative defense, see § 460.181

[iii] Other Defenses (Paragraph 6.)

An answer may set forth as many defenses as a defendant has [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]. Thus Paragraph 6. may be used to allege affirmative defenses not provided for in Paragraphs 4. and 5. One example of an affirmative defense that may apply to a products liability action is alteration in the product after sale [see § 460.184]. In addition, special defenses, such as plaintiff's lack of capacity to sue, or the court's lack of subject matter jurisdiction may be asserted as affirmative defenses in an action, if the grounds for the defense do not appear on the face of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10, 430.30(b)].

If more than one defense is alleged in Paragraph 6., each defense must be separately stated, and must refer to the causes of action in the complaint to which they apply [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)]. Each defense must also be separately numbered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.112].

[e] Prayer (Paragraph 7.)

Affirmative relief may not be claimed in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(c)]. Therefore, the prayer will probably be limited to requesting the costs of suit, requesting that the plaintiff take nothing, and requesting such other and further relief as the court may deem proper. If the defendant is seeking affirmative relief, a cross complaint must be filed [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 426.30, 428.10; see § 460.200 for Judicial Council cross complaint form].

[f] Signature

The answer must be signed by the defendant or the defendant's attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 446].

[g] Verification

If the complaint is verified the answer must also be verified, unless the defendant is the state, a county, city, school district, public agency, public corporation, or the officer of any of such entities in his or her official capacity [Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. When a corporation is the defendant, the verification may be made by any officer of the corporation [Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. If the answer is to be verified, counsel should prepare a verification attachment to the form. If a verification attachment is prepared, counsel must follow the form required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.100 et seq.

For further discussion and forms of verification, see Ch. 26, Answers , and Ch. 573, Verification .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
B. Answers

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.181

§ 460.181 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Action for Personal Injuries Barred by Statute of Limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3)]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Action for Personal Injuries Barred by Statute of Limitations [Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3)]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that: the action sued on is barred by the provisions of Section 335.1 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense for insertion in an answer to a complaint seeking damages based on strict liability in tort for personal injury or death where the complaint was not filed within two years from the date the cause of action accrued [see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1; for a discussion of when an action accrues, see § 460.31[2]; for the requirements concerning computation of time, see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 12, 12a]. Former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) provided for a one-year period. Personal injury and death actions based on exposure to asbestos are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 340.2, which requires the actions to be brought the later of 1) one year after the plaintiff first suffered disability; or 2) one year after the plaintiff knew or should have known that the disability was caused or contributed to by asbestos exposure [Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp., Ltd. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 1127, 1138, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701, 998 P.2d 403, 409] . With substitution of appropriate code sections, the form may also be used when the complaint seeks recovery of damages for injury to property and was not filed within the period prescribed by the appropriate statute of limitations [see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(b), (c)].

If more than one affirmative defense is set forth in the answer, each defense must be separately stated [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)] and numbered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.112]. If the complaint sets forth more than one cause of action, the affirmative defense must refer to the cause of action it is intended to answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(g)].

[3] Alternative Procedures

If the fact that the action is barred by the statute of limitations appears on the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice [see Evid. Code §§ 451, 452], the objection may be raised by demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a); see § 460.181[4][b]]. Whether or not the fact so appears, if the defense can be indisputably established by affidavits, declarations, admissions, answers to interrogatories, or depositions, defendant may move for summary judgment on that ground [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c; and Ch. 537, Summary Judgment]. Where the fact does not so appear and cannot be indisputably established on a motion for summary judgment, that is, the defense can be established but fact issues must be determined, defendant may allege the bar of the statute as an affirmative defense in his, her, or its answer to the complaint and then move for a separate trial of that issue [see Code Civ. Proc. § 597].

[4] Pleading Statute of Limitations

[a] In Answer

A defendant asserting that the action is barred by the statute of limitations may, in his, her, or its answer to the complaint, plead the bar of the statute in one of two ways:

- By alleging all of the facts showing that the action is barred and indicating that the lateness of the commencement of the action is being urged as a defense [Brown v. World Church (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 684, 691, 77 Cal. Rptr. 669] .

- By stating generally that the cause of action is barred by a specified section of the Code of Civil Procedure or, if the section is subdivided, by a specified section and the subdivision [Code Civ. Proc. § 458].

If the second method is used and defendant fails to specify the code section relied on or if the section is subdivided, the code section and the subdivision relied on, the plea is insufficient [Brown v. World Church (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 684, 691, 77 Cal. Rptr. 669] and would be subject to a demurrer on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute a defense [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.20(a), 430.50(b)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 458 further provides that if the allegation that the action is barred is controverted, the party pleading the defense must establish, on the trial, the facts showing the cause of action is barred. The plaintiff does not, however, file a replication to the answer. Rather, statute provides that the statement of any new matter in the answer, in avoidance or constituting a defense, must, on the trial, be deemed controverted by the opposite party [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.20(b)]. Since the affirmative defense is deemed controverted by operation of law, defendant has the burden on trial of establishing it.

[b] By Demurrer

A complaint that shows on its face, or from any matter properly brought to the court's attention of which the court must or may take judicial notice [see Evid. Code §§ 451-456], that the cause of action sued on is barred by the statute of limitations is subject to a demurrer on the ground that it fails to state a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.50(a); California Safe Deposit & Trust Co. v. Sierra Valleys Ry. Co. (1910) 158 Cal. 690, 698, 112 P. 274 (construing predecessor statute)]. In such case, however, it is necessary that the demurrer specify the reason the complaint fails to state a cause of action, to wit, that the action is barred by the statute of limitations. Thus, the complete body of the demurrer would read: "Defendant demurs to the complaint herein on the ground that it fails to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it shows on its face that the action is barred by the statute of limitations" [see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings , and Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions].

Instead of the whole complaint, the demurrer may be directed to a single cause of action or count in a complaint setting forth two or more causes of action or counts in which case a proper identifying phrase, e.g., "to the first cause of action alleged in the complaint herein," would be substituted for "complaint herein" in the above demurrer; too, if the defect appears from judicially noticed matter, a proper identifying phrase or clause would be used in lieu of the clause "it shows on its face ... "

It is not necessary in pleading the bar of the statute of limitations in a demurrer to specify the code section or code section and subdivision relied on as is required by Code Civ. Proc. § 458 when pleading the bar of the statute in an answer [see § 460.181[4][a]]. Code Civ. Proc. § 458 specifies a substitute for pleading the facts showing the defense, and facts have no place in a demurrer. Hence, the requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 458 that the code section or, where the section is subdivided, the code section and subdivision be specified does not apply to demurrers [Bainbridge v. Stoner (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 423, 431, 106 P.2d 423 ; Spreckels v. Spreckels (1916) 172 Cal. 775, 783, 158 P. 537 ; Lewis v. Security-First Nat'l Bank (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 827, 828, 137 P.2d 864] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
B. Answers

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.182

§ 460.182 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Comparative Fault

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Comparative Fault

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

[1. The defect in the _____ (product) _____ (manufactured or sold) by defendant as alleged in the complaint herein, if it existed at all, was patent and the danger of _____ (using the _____(product) or being in the area of its use) in the allegedly defective condition was obvious.]

2. Plaintiff at all times _____ [from and after _____ (date plaintiff became aware of defect), or mentioned in the complaint herein] knew that the _____[product] was defective in that _____[specify particulars in which product was defective] and that _____ [to use the _____ (product) in that condition or to be in the area of its use] would expose him/her to the risk of the very injuries of which he/she complains, to wit, _____[specify].

3. Notwithstanding that plaintiff knew of the defect in the _____[product] and of the danger involved in _____ [using it or being in the area of its use] in the defective condition alleged, plaintiff _____ [used the _____ (product) or _____ (entered or remained) in the area of its use] and, by so doing, plaintiff _____ [was negligent, and that negligence was a cause of any injuries he/she suffered and/or assumed the risk of injury by knowingly encountering the risk of injury caused by the use of the defective product].

[2] Use of Form

This form contains affirmative defenses for insertion in an answer to a complaint seeking damages for injuries based on strict liability in tort where plaintiff was aware of the defect in the product prior to the accident sued on and of the danger of using the defective product in its defective condition or being in the zone of danger created by the use of the product by another but nevertheless proceeded to make use of the product or to enter or remain in the zone of danger and thereby sustained the injuries complained of.

[3] Alternative Procedures

Should the fact that plaintiff voluntarily encountered the risk, or otherwise acted in the manner indicating comparative fault, appear on the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice [see Evid. Code §§ 451, 452], the objection may be raised by demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)] on the ground that the complaint fails to state a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e); for forms of demurrers, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings]. Whether or not the fact so appears, if the defense can be indisputably established by affidavits, declarations, admissions, answers to interrogatories, or depositions, defendant may move for summary judgment on that ground [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c; and Ch. 537, Summary Judgment].

[4] Comparative Fault

The principles of comparative fault announced in Li v. Yellow Cab (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226 , apply to actions founded on strict products liability as well as those based on negligence [Daly v. General Motors Corp. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 725, 730, 742, 144 Cal. Rptr. 380, 575 P.2d 1162] . Under the principles of comparative fault, a plaintiff's recovery will be reduced in proportion to the amount of fault attributable to him or her [Daly v. General Motors Corp. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 725, 738, 144 Cal. Rptr. 380, 575 P.2d 1162 ; Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 824-825, 829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226] .

Comparative fault principles also apply to cases in which "secondary assumption of risk" is established: that is, cases in which the defendant owes a duty of care to the plaintiff, but the plaintiff knowingly encounters a risk of injury caused by the defendant's breach of that duty [Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 308, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696] . In the products liability context, it has been held that a manufacturer does have a duty to users of the product; therefore, the manufacturer of a defective product had not established the complete bar to liability that results from "primary assumption of risk," under which the assumption of the risk doctrine embodies a legal conclusion that the defendant owed no duty to protect the plaintiff from a particular risk [Milwaukee Electric Tool Corp. v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 547, 560-565, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 24 ; see Knight v. Jewett (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 296, 314-315, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 2, 834 P.2d 696] . The court broadly stated that the purposes of the strict products liability doctrine are served by the finding that, absent some extraordinary circumstance, the primary assumption of risk doctrine does not apply because of the duty a manufacturer owes to the users of its product [Milwaukee Electric Tool Corp. v. Superior Court (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 547, 565, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 24] .

Although a defendant owes no duty of care to protect a plaintiff against risks inherent in a particular sport voluntarily played by the plaintiff, the defendant owes a duty to participants not to increase the risk of harm over and above that inherent in the sport [American Golf Corp. v. Superior Court (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 30, 35, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 683 ; Sanchez v. Hillerich & Bradsby Co. (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 703, 713-715, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 529 (triable issue of material fact whether design and use of hollow aluminum alloy bat significantly increased inherent risk that pitcher would be hit by line drive)].

For further discussion, see § 460.53.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
B. Answers

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.183

§ 460.183 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Misuse of Product Causing Injuries

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Misuse of Product Causing Injuries

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. The _____[product] described in the complaint herein was designed and intended to be used _____[specify normal use of product].

2. As shown by Paragraph _____, Page _____ of the complaint herein, at the time of the alleged accident sued on, the _____[product] was being used by _____[name] to _____[specify misuse]. This use was without defendant's knowledge, approval, or consent [and was contrary to the printed instructions that were delivered to plaintiff with the _____ (product)]. The use of the _____[product] as alleged in the complaint was not reasonably foreseeable to defendant either at or before the time of sale, or at any time prior to the time defendant received notice of the accident described in the complaint.

3. Defendant is informed and believes and thereon alleges that the accident for which plaintiff herein seeks recovery of damages was solely and proximately caused by such misuse of the _____[product].

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense for insertion in an answer to a complaint for damages based on strict liability in tort where the accident sued on resulted from a misuse of the product which was not reasonably foreseeable by the defendant.

[3] Alternative Procedures

Should the fact that the accident sued on resulted from a misuse of the product not reasonably foreseeable by the defendant appear on the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice [see Evid. Code §§ 451, 452], the objection may be raised by demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)] on the ground that the complaint fails to state a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e); for forms of demurrers, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings]. Whether or not the fact so appears, if the defense can be indisputably established by affidavits, declarations, admissions, answers to interrogatories, or depositions, defendant may move for summary judgment on that ground [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c; and Ch. 537, Summary Judgment].

[4] Use of Product

To invoke the doctrine of strict liability in tort, plaintiff must prove that at the time of the injury, the product was being used in a way the manufacturer intended it to be used [Dosier v. Wilcox-Crittendon Co. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 74, 78, 119 Cal. Rptr. 135] . The ultimate test in determining whether the product was being used in the way it was intended to be used, however, is whether the article was being used in a way which the seller should have reasonably anticipated [Johnson v. Standard Brands Paint Co. (1968) 274 Cal. App. 2d 331, 340, 79 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; see also Horn v. General Motors Corp. (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 359, 371, 131 Cal. Rptr. 78, 551 P.2d 398 ; Cronin v. J.B.E. Olson Corp. (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 121, 126, 104 Cal. Rptr. 433, 501 P.2d 1153 ; Thomas v. General Motors Corp. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 81, 91, 91 Cal. Rptr. 301] . Even an unusual use which the manufacturer is required to anticipate will not relieve the manufacturer of liability in the absence of warnings against such use. Just what a manufacturer is required to anticipate in connection with the use of a product is a question of reasonable foreseeability [Dosier v. Wilcox-Crittendon Co. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 74, 78, 119 Cal. Rptr. 135] .

The foreseeability of the misuse of a product is ordinarily a question for the trier of fact [Dosier v. Wilcox-Crittendon Co. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 74, 78, 119 Cal. Rptr. 135 ; Thompson v. Package Mach. Co. (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 188, 196, 99 Cal. Rptr. 281] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
B. Answers

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.184

§ 460.184 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Alteration in Product After Sale

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Alteration in Product After Sale

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. The _____[product] described in the complaint herein was a _____[fully describe], manufactured and sold by defendant to _____ [specify, e.g., plaintiff] on _____[date].

2. Thereafter, to wit, on or about _____[date], without defendant's knowledge or approval, _____ [specify, e.g., plaintiff] _____ [redesigned or modified or altered the _____ (product) by or subjected the _____ (product) to] the following treatment which substantially changed its character: _____[specify; or allege other change].

3. The defect in the _____[product], as alleged in the complaint, consisted of _____[describe]. This defect resulted solely from the _____ [redesign or modification or alteration or treatment or other change] of the _____[product] as above-described and not from any act or omission of defendant or its suppliers.

4. Defendant is informed and believes and thereon alleges that the above-described defect, created by _____ [specify, e.g., plaintiff himself], was the sole and proximate cause of plaintiff's injuries, if any, as alleged in the complaint herein.

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form is for insertion in an answer to a complaint seeking damages based on strict liability in tort where the alleged defect resulted from some change in the product effected after the consumer's purchase of it.

[3] Alternative Procedures

Should the fact that the alleged defect resulted solely from an alteration or modification of the product by the purchaser and not by any act or omission of the manufacturer or other person in the marketing chain appear on the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice [see Evid. Code §§ 451, 452], the objection may be raised by demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)] on the ground that the complaint fails to state a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e); for forms of demurrers, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings]. Whether or not the fact so appears, if the defense can be indisputably established by affidavits, declarations, admissions, answers to interrogatories, or depositions, defendant may move for summary judgment on that ground [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c; and Ch. 537, Summary Judgment].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
B. Answers

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.185

§ 460.185 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Manufacturer Not Liable to Consumer Because of Failure to Warn When Adequate Warnings Given to Distributor With Control Over Packaging, Labeling, and Marketing

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Manufacturer Not Liable to Consumer Because of Failure to Warn When Adequate Warnings Given to Distributor With Control Over Packaging, Labeling, and Marketing

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. The defect in the _____ [specify product, e.g., lantern fuel], as alleged in the complaint, consisted solely of an inadequate warning regarding the safe use of the _____[product].

2. Defendant manufactured the _____[product] and distributed it in bulk to _____[name of distributor].

3. Defendant provided adequate warning regarding the proper use of the _____[product] to _____[name of distributor].

4. _____[Name of distributor] packaged, labeled, and marketed the _____[product].

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense for insertion into an answer to a complaint seeking damages based on strict liability in tort when the alleged defect resulted from inadequate warnings regarding the safe use of the product, the defendant manufacturer produced the product in bulk, and the manufacturer provided adequate warnings to the distributor who packaged, labeled, and marketed the product.

[3] Duty to Warn Regarding Safe Use of Product

A product, though faultlessly made, may nevertheless be found defective within the general strict liability rule if it is unreasonably dangerous to place the product in the hands of the user without adequate warnings [Artiglio v. General Elec. Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 830, 837, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 817 (applying test based on combined factors from "raw material supplier defense" and "bulk sales/sophisticated purchaser rule" to determine the liability of component part manufacturers); Groll v. Shell Oil Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 444, 448, 196 Cal. Rptr. 52 ; Cavers v. Cushman Motor Sales, Inc. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 338, 349, 157 Cal. Rptr. 142] . However, when a manufacturer distributes a product in bulk to a distributor who subsequently packages, labels, and markets the product, the manufacturer's responsibility to warn is satisfied when it provides adequate warnings to the distributor [Groll v. Shell Oil Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 444, 449-450, 196 Cal. Rptr. 52] . In this circumstance, the manufacturer need not warn the consumer or ensure that the distributor provides adequate warnings to the consumer [Groll v. Shell Oil Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 444, 449, 196 Cal. Rptr. 52] .

[4] Alternative Procedures

If the facts that defendant produced the product in bulk and provided adequate warnings to the distributor who packaged, labelled, and marketed the product appear on the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice [see Evid. Code §§ 451, 452], the objection may be raised by demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)] on the ground that the complaint fails to state a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e); for forms of demurrers, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings]. Whether or not the fact so appears, if the defense can be indisputably established by affidavits, declarations, admissions, answers to interrogatories, or depositions, defendant may move for summary judgment on that ground [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c; see also Ch. 537, Summary Judgment].

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
B. Answers

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.186

§ 460.186 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Manufacturer Not Liable to Consumer Because of Failure to Warn in Language Other Than English of Danger Posed by Nonprescription Drug When Warning in English Met Legal Requirements

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Manufacturer Not Liable to Consumer Because of Failure to Warn in Language Other Than English of Danger Posed by Nonprescription Drug When Warning in English Met Legal Requirements

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. The product described in the complaint herein, _____[specify product, including brand and type of nonprescription drug], is a nonprescription drug subject to the labeling requirements of Section 502 of the Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (Title 21, United States Code Section 352) and regulations implementing the statute.

2. The warnings that accompanied the _____[specify product], which are alleged in the complaint to have been inadequate because they were in English and not in _____ [specify language other than English that complaint alleges warning should have been included in, e.g., Spanish], met all legal requirements, and therefore fulfilled defendant's duty to care to warn.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense for insertion into an answer to a complaint seeking damages based on strict liability in tort, if the alleged defect resulted from inadequate warnings regarding the safe use of the product, the alleged inadequacy is the defendant's failure to include warnings in a language other than English, the product is a nonprescription drug, and the warning or warnings accompanying the product met the standards established by federal law [see 21 U.S.C.S. § 352; 21 C.F.R. § 201.1 et seq.].

[3] Statutes Governing Warnings to Accompany Nonprescription Drugs Establish Duty of Care

Although the use of statutes to establish a standard of care typically establish the minimum standard required, there are situations in which compliance with statutes can establish a defense to a tort cause of action [Ramirez v. Plough, Inc. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 539, 548, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 97, 863 P.2d 167 ; see also O'Neill v. Novartis Consumer Health, Inc. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1395-1396] . One such situation involves the warnings that must accompany nonprescription drugs, which are comprehensively regulated under federal law. The extensiveness of these regulations, and the fact that the regulations do not require warnings in languages other than English, persuaded the California Supreme Court to adopt for tort purposes the existing legislative and administrative standard of care, which does not require warnings in other languages [Ramirez v. Plough, Inc. (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 539, 553, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 97, 863 P.2d 167 (failure to warn in Spanish of danger of Reye's syndrome that could result from administering aspirin to children could not be basis for tort liability)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
B. Answers

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.187

§ 460.187 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Government Contractor Immunity

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Government Contractor Immunity

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. The _____[product] described in the complaint herein was a _____[fully describe], military equipment manufactured and sold by defendant to _____ [specify branch of service that purchased equipment, e.g., the United States Army] on _____[date].

2. The United States is immune from liability for any damages caused by the allegedly defective military equipment.

3. The United States _____ [established or approved] reasonably precise specifications for the allegedly defective military equipment.

4. The equipment conformed to the specifications mentioned in Paragraph 3, above.

5. Defendant warned the United States about _____ [patent errors in the government's specifications and/or dangers involved in the use of the equipment that were known to defendant but not known to the United States.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense for insertion in an answer to a complaint seeking damages based on strict liability in tort when the alleged defect was in a piece of military equipment supplied in compliance with specifications provided by or approved by the United States.

[3] Government Contractor Immunity

As set forth by the U.S. Supreme Court, liability for design defects in military equipment cannot be imposed pursuant to state law when 1) the United States approved reasonably precise specifications; 2) the equipment conformed to those specifications; and 3) the supplier warned the United States about the dangers in the use of the equipment that were known to the supplier but not to the United States [Boyle v. United Techs. Corp. (1988) 487 U.S. 500, 512, 108 S. Ct. 2510, 2518, 101 L. Ed. 2d 442, 458] .

In its formulation of the government contractor defense, the Ninth Circuit had included a requirement that the United States be immune from liability under the Feres/Stencel doctrine [McKay v. Rockwell Int'l Corp. (9th Cir. 1983) 704 F.2d 444, 449-450] . The Supreme Court eliminated this element. Also, the Ninth Circuit had invited application of the defense in cases in which the contractor exercised some influence of over the product's design by stating that the United States must have established or approved reasonably precise specifications [McKay v. Rockwell Int'l Corp. (9th Cir. 1983) 704 F.2d 444, 449-450] . The Supreme Court eliminated this possibility in Boyle by eliminating the word "established" in the second required element [see Frumer & Friedman, Products Liability, Ch. 31, The Government Contract Defense (Matthew Bender)].

Showing government approval of reasonably precise specifications requires more than a "rubber stamp" or mere signature of a government employee [Snell v. Bell Helicopter Textron (9th Cir. 1997) 107 F.3d 744, 748 ; *McIntyre v. Warren Pumps LLC (N.D. Cal. April 30, 2007) 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 35954, at 6 (asbestos insulation)].

"Military equipment" within the meaning of the government contractor defense is not necessarily limited to products typically associated with the military [McKay v. Rockwell Int'l Corp. (9th Cir. 1983) 704 F.2d 444, 451] . It can also include products sold commercially, such as a paint product designed to weatherproof military aircraft, if the product is produced according to military specifications and used by the military because of particular qualities that serve a military purpose. In that case, the product could be considered military equipment even though it is incidentally sold commercially as well law [Jackson v. Deft (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1305, 1318-1319, 273 Cal. Rptr. 214 (dictum)]. The government contractor defense may also apply to boilers that had been designed pursuant to detailed military specifications [Oxford v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 700, 709-710, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418] . The focus is not whether a product is made exclusively for the military, but rather, whether the area involves "uniquely federal interests," and if so, whether application of state law conflicts with federal policy [Oxford v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 700, 709-710, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418] .

Although courts around the country are split on the issue [see Frumer & Friedman, Products Liability, Ch. 31, The Government Contract Defense (Matthew Bender)], the Ninth Circuit held that the military contractor defense as set forth in Boyle applies to manufacturing defect claims in which there are reasonably precise, government-approved manufacturing specifications [Snell v. Bell Helicopter Textron, Inc. (9th Cir. 1997) 107 F.3d 744, 749 (noting that defense might also be supported by evidence that contractor, in selecting particular component or employing particular process, was following specific directions of government officer reflecting latter's exercise of judgment); Bentzlin v. Hughes Aircraft Co. (C.D. Cal. 1993) 833 F. Supp. 1486, 1489 (dismissing complaints of families of marines killed in combat when vehicle was struck by missile erroneously fired from Air Force plane)]. The court has also held that the government contractor defense is inapplicable to a failure to warn claim in the absence of evidence that in making its decision whether to provide a warning the defendant was "acting in compliance with 'reasonably precise specifications' imposed on [i]t by the United States" [Butler v. Ingalls Shipbuilding, Inc. (9th Cir. 1996) 89 F.3d 582, 586 (accommodation ladder on ship broke); In re Fed. Asbestos Cases (9th Cir. 1992) 960 F.2d 806, 813] .

In state court, the government contractor defense does not bar warning claims if the government's specifications regarding warning labels does not preclude the supplier's additional warnings required to comply with state law, i.e., if there is no significant conflict between federal contracting requirements and state tort law [Oxford v. Foster Wheeler LLC (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 700, 711-712, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 418 ; Jackson v. Deft (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1305, 1313-1318, 273 Cal. Rptr. 214 (reversing summary judgment for defendants in action based on inadequate warnings on paint product supplied to military)].

[4] Alternative Procedures

If the fact that defendant is immune from liability under the doctrine of government contractor immunity appears on the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice [see Evid. Code §§ 451, 452], the objection may be raised by demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)] on the ground that the complaint fails to state a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e); for forms of demurrers, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings]. Whether or not the fact so appears, if the defense can be indisputably established by affidavits, declarations, admissions, answers to interrogatories, or depositions, defendant may move for summary judgment on that ground [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c; see also Ch. 537, Summary Judgment].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
B. Answers

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.188

§ 460.188 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Cause of Action Preempted by Federal Law

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Cause of Action Preempted by Federal Law

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. The complaint's allegation that the _____ [specify product, e.g., automobile] _____ [specify defendant's role in the manufacture and/or distribution of the product, e.g., manufactured] by defendant was defective, set forth in Paragraph _____ of the [_____ (specify number, e.g., first) amended] complaint, is preempted by _____ [specify provision of federal law relied on to preempt cause of action, e.g., 15 United States Code Section 1392(b)]. The cause of action is preempted because the allegedly defective condition relied on by plaintiff was in fact in full compliance with the standards imposed by federal law.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense for insertion into an answer to a complaint seeking damages on a products liability theory, when the alleged basis for liability is a defective condition that is in fact in compliance with a federal law governing the specific condition. With modifications, the form can also be used in an answer to a complaint alleging that defendant's failure to warn constituted the defect on which liability can be imposed, if defendant provided warnings expressly sanctioned by federal law [see, e.g., Cipollone v. Liggett Group, Inc. (1992) 505 U.S. 504, 524-525, 550, 112 S. Ct. 2608, 120 L. Ed. 2d 407 (actions based on allegedly inadequate warnings regarding cigarettes preempted by federal laws that sanctioned warnings given by manufacturer)].

For further discussion of the use of the federal preemption defense in product liability actions, see § 460.52[2].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
B. Answers

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 460.189-460.199

[Reserved]

§§ 460.189[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
C. Cross Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.200

§ 460.200 Judicial Council Trial Court Pleading Form [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a)]--Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10] in Action for Personal Injury, Property Damage, Wrongful Death [Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-PI-002]

[1] FORM Judicial Council Trial Court Pleading Form [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.45(a)]--Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10] in Action for Personal Injury, Property Damage, Wrongful Death [Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-PI-002]

Click here to view image.

[2] Use of Form

This form is the Judicial Council approved cross complaint form for use in any action based on personal injury, property damage, or wrongful death [Cal. Judicial Council Form PLD-PI-002]. Use of the forms is optional [see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.12].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge. For general information relating to the use of Judicial Council complaint and cross complaint forms, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

[3] Allegations

[a] General Allegations

For discussion and general instructions relating to filling out the cross complaint form, see the Comments to the Judicial Council form of cross complaint in Ch. 380, Negligence.

[b] Causes of Action (Paragraphs 7.-10.)

The causes of action must be numbered in the blank immediately to the right of the box corresponding to the paragraph number. Each paragraph should also refer to the names of each of the cross defendants against whom that particular cause of action is alleged, if it is not alleged against all cross defendants.

Paragraph 7. in the cross complaint form alleges that the cross complainant is entitled to complete implied equitable indemnity from the cross defendant. Paragraph 8. alleges that the cross complainant is entitled to partial equitable indemnity from the cross defendant based on an apportionment of fault [see American Motorcycle Assn. v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 598, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899] . For further discussion, see the comments to the Judicial Council form of cross complaint in Ch. 380, Negligence, and Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution. Paragraphs 7. and 8. may be checked and incorporated by reference into Paragraph 9.

Counsel should note, however, that a cause of action for implied indemnity (Paragraph 6.) or partial equitable indemnity (Paragraph 7.), does not accrue until the cross complainant has incurred an actual loss through payment [E.L. White, Inc. v. Huntington Beach (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 497, 506, 146 Cal. Rptr. 614, 579 P.2d 505 ; People ex rel. Dep't of Transp. v. Superior Court (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 744, 757, 759, 163 Cal. Rptr. 585, 608 P.2d 673 (discussing accrual of cause of action for purposes of statute of limitations)]. Cases indicate that the proper form of action for indemnity before the cross complainant has incurred a loss is a declaratory relief action seeking a declaration that the cross complainant is entitled to be indemnified for any judgment rendered against the cross complainant in favor of the plaintiff [see Roylance v. Doelger (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 255, 258-262, 19 Cal. Rptr. 7, 368 P.2d 535 ; Dreybus v. Bayless Rents (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 506, 508, 28 Cal. Rptr. 825] . Therefore, when the cross complainant is seeking indemnity, counsel should use Paragraph 9., alleging a cause of action for declaratory relief. However, since Paragraphs 7. and 8. are provided in this form, counsel may wish to check them and incorporate them into Paragraph 9.

In addition to alleging a cause of action for declaratory relief regarding the cross complainant's right to implied equitable indemnity or partial equitable indemnity, Paragraph 9. might be used if the cross complainant seeks a determination of the cross defendant's duty to indemnify the cross complainant on a theory of implied contractual indemnity, or on a theory of contractual indemnity, pursuant to a written agreement between the cross complainant and cross defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

Any additional, miscellaneous, causes of action may be entered at Paragraph 10.

For discussions relating to grounds for indemnity, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution . For a discussion relating to the requirements for bringing an action for declaratory relief, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
C. Cross Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.201

§ 460.201 Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10] for Declaratory Relief as to Right to Indemnity [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(7)(A), 1060]--By Defendant Retailer Against Manufacturer of Defective Product

[1] FORM Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10] for Declaratory Relief as to Right to Indemnity [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(7)(A), 1060]--By Defendant Retailer Against Manufacturer of Defective Product

[EITHER]

[If cross defendant is not a defendant]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[or other as appropriate]

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	CROSS COMPLAINT FOR Defendant and Cross Complainant,	)	DECLARATORY RELIEF
vs.	)	[Amount demanded _____ (exceeds
_____ [name],	)	or does not exceed) $10,000]
Cross Defendant.	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
	)
	)

_____

[OR]

[If cross defendant is also a defendant]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

[or other as appropriate]

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Defendants.	)	CROSS COMPLAINT FOR
_____	)	DECLARATORY RELIEF
_____ [name],	)	[Amount demanded _____ (exceeds
Defendant and Cross Complainant,	)	or does not exceed) $10,000]
vs.	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
_____ [name],	)
Defendant and Cross Defendant.	)
	)
	)

[In either case continue]

Cross complainant alleges:

1. Cross complainant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify capacity, e.g., an individual doing business under the firm name and style of _____ (specify) in the (City and) County of _____, California and has filed and published the statement required by Sections 17915 and 17917 of the Business and Professions Code].

2. Cross complainant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, engaged in the business of selling at retail to members of the general public at its place of business hereinabove mentioned _____ [e.g., various products], including certain _____[name or description of products] [_____ (designed or assembled or designed, assembled, or other) and] manufactured by cross defendant.

3. Cross defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify capacity, e.g., a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____ (California or other) (and qualified to do business in California) with its principal place of business in this state situated in the (City and) County of _____].

4. Cross defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, engaged in the business of [_____ (designing or assembling or designing, assembling or other) and] manufacturing _____[name or description of products], including the specific _____[product] hereinafter referred to, for sale to and use by members of the general public [, both directly and] through retailers.

[EITHER]

5. On or about _____[date], cross complainant and cross defendant entered into _____ [a written or an oral] agreement, hereinafter referred to as "the agreement," by the terms of which cross defendant agreed to sell at wholesale to cross complainant and cross complainant agreed to purchase from cross defendant at wholesale for retail sale to and use by members of the general public _____[specify products]. [A copy of the agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.]

[OR]

5. On or about _____[date], cross complainant _____ [purchased or ordered] at wholesale _____[units] of _____[specify product] from cross defendant for resale by cross complainant to members of the general public.

6. Pursuant to the terms of the _____ [agreement or purchase or order], _____[commencing] on or about _____[date], [and continuing to _____ (the present or insert date)] cross defendant [sold and] delivered to cross complainant _____ [units ordered or various quantities of] _____[name or description of products], including the specific _____[product] hereinafter referred to, which were [_____ (designed or assembled or de signed, assembled, or other) and] manufactured by cross defendant.

7. On or about _____[date], cross complainant sold the specific _____[product] referred to in paragraphs 4 and 6 hereof to _____ [plaintiff in the above-entitled action or name of purchaser].

8. On or about _____[date], plaintiff in the within action filed in the above-entitled court his/her/its complaint against cross complainant for damages for _____ [injury to property or personal injuries or wrongful death or combination of these] in which it is alleged that at the time _____ [plaintiff or name of purchaser] purchased the _____[product] from cross complainant (as alleged in Paragraph _____ above), the _____[product] was defective in that _____[specify defect]; that on or about _____[date], the _____[product] was being _____ [used or operated] by _____ [specify, e.g., plaintiff] to _____[specify use]; and during the course of that _____ [use or operation] and as a proximate result of the defect in the _____[product] as therein and herein described, the _____[specify accident], as a proximate result of which _____[specify injuries]. [The complaint seeks recovery from cross complainant of damages in the sum of $_____.]

9. On or about _____[date], cross complainant was served with a copy of the summons and of the complaint in the above-entitled action by plaintiff.

10. As a result of the filing of the action by plaintiff, cross complainant has been required to retain and has retained legal counsel to defend him/her/it against plaintiff's claim and has incurred, and will continue to incur, expenses for investigation, legal costs, and legal fees in connection with the defense of the action, the full amount of which has not yet been ascertained. Cross complainant will seek leave to amend this cross complaint to insert the amount thereof when ascertained.

11. A dispute has arisen and an actual controversy exists between cross complainant and cross defendant in that cross complainant contends and cross defendant denies as follows:

(a) Cross defendant at all times herein mentioned knew and intended that the _____ [name or description of products], including the specific _____ [product] hereinabove referred to, [(designed or assembled or designed, assembled, or other) and] manufactured by him/her/it were to be purchased by cross complainant and sold by cross complainant to members of the general public without inspection for defects.

(b) The specific _____ [product] which was sold by cross complainant to _____ [plaintiff or name of purchaser] as alleged in Paragraph _____ hereof and which was [_____ (designed or assembled or designed, assembled, or other) and] manufactured by cross defendant was in the same condition at the time it was sold to _____ [plaintiff or name of purchaser] as it was in at the time cross defendant sold and delivered it to cross complainant and, therefore, if there was any defect in the _____ [product] at the time cross complainant sold it, that defect existed in the _____ [product] at the time cross defendant sold and delivered it to cross complainant.

(c) If the _____ [product] referred to in subparagraph (b), above, was defective as herein alleged and as alleged by plaintiff, and the defect proximately caused plaintiff's damages as alleged in the complaint herein, cross defendant is obligated to indemnify cross complainant for any judgment that may be awarded plaintiff against cross complainant in the above-entitled action and further that cross defendant is obligated to reimburse cross complainant for all costs, attorneys' fees, and other expenses incurred and to be incurred by cross complainant in investigating plaintiff's claim and in preparing to defend and defending against that action.

12. A declaration as to the rights and duties of the parties in the premises is necessary and proper at this time to avoid a multiplicity of lawsuits.

WHEREFORE, cross complainant prays judgment against cross defendant as follows:

1. For a declaration:

(a) That cross defendant is obligated to pay any judgment awarded plaintiff against cross complainant herein or to reim burse cross complainant in the amount of such judgment if cross complainant pays it;

(b) That cross defendant is obligated to reimburse cross complainant for attorneys' fees, costs, and all other expenses incurred and to be incurred by cross complainant in investigating plaintiff's claim and in preparing to defend and defending against plaintiff's above-entitled action against cross complainant; and

(c) Otherwise in accordance with the contentions of cross complainant as alleged in Paragraph 11 hereof.

2. For costs of suit incurred in the prosecution of this cross complaint.

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.
Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant and Cross Complainant _____ [name]

[Verification, if desired. See § 460.141[1].]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a cross complaint for use by a defendant retailer sued for damages based on strict liability in tort resulting from a defect in a product to shift any liability in the action to the manufacturer where the defendant was merely a conduit through whom or which the defective product passed on its way to the ultimate consumer and was in no way responsible for the existence of the defect. The pleading may be filed by any person in the marketing chain sought to be held liable by plaintiff against any one or more persons higher up in that chain through whom or which the defective product passed or against the party actually responsible for the defect.

For a form of cross complaint by the manufacturer of a finished product against the installer of a component part for indemnity based on breach of warranty, see § 460.202.

For a discussion of the essential allegations of a complaint or cross complaint for declaratory relief, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief . For alternative forms of cross complaints for declaratory relief as to the right to indemnity, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution .

[3] Copies to Prepare

- Original for filing in court clerk's office (together with original of proof of service [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a] if cross defendant is already a party to action and has appeared).

- If cross defendant has appeared in action, one conformed copy to be served on his, her, or its attorney, if any, and, if none, on cross defendant.

- If cross defendant is not yet a party to action or has not yet appeared, one conformed endorsed-filed copy to be served (with copy of summons) on cross defendant if service is to be made in person, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10 or by mail pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30 or 415.40, or two copies if cross defendant will be served in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20.

- One conformed endorsed-filed copy for client, if desired.

- One copy to be retained in office file until endorsed-filed copies are returned from court clerk.

- One endorsed-filed copy for office file.

- Additional copies as desired.

[4] Cross References

For related forms, see §§ 460.142 and 460.145

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
C. Cross Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.202

§ 460.202 Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10] for Declaratory Relief as to Right to Indemnity [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(7), 1060]--By Defendant Manufacturer Against Independent Contractor--Breach of Warrant

[1] FORM Cross Complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10] for Declaratory Relief as to Right to Indemnity [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(7), 1060]--By Defendant Manufacturer Against Independent Contractor--Breach of Warrant

[Caption, introduction. See § 460.201[1].]

1. Cross complainant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify capacity, e.g., a partnership formed and existing under the laws of the State of _____ (California or other) (with its principal place of business in this state situated in the (City and) County of _____. Plaintiff has filed and published the statement required by Sections 17915 and 17917 of the Business and Professions Code and brings this action in the name _____ (which it has assumed or by which it is known)].

2. Cross complainant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, engaged in the business of _____ [specify, e.g., building houses], including the specific _____ [specify, e.g., house] hereinafter referred to, and _____ [specify, e.g., selling] them to members of the general public, and in the course of that business from time to time entered into contracts with contractors for _____ [specify, e.g., performance of various parts of the work].

3. Cross defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [specify capacity, e.g., a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of _____ (California or other) (and qualified to do business in California) with its principal place of business in this state situated in the (City and) County of _____.

4. Cross defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a _____[licensed] contractor engaged in the business of _____[specify].

5. On or about _____[date], cross complainant and cross defendant entered into a written contract, hereinafter referred to as "the contract," a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof, by the terms of which cross defendant promised and agreed to _____ [specify, e.g., install all plumbing in the houses, including the specific house referred to in paragraph 2, being constructed by cross complainant at _____ (location)].

6. By the terms of the contract, cross defendant _____ [expressly or impliedly] warranted that the _____ [specify, e.g., products and materials used by him/her/it in the plumbing systems would be of merchantable quality and reasonably fit for their intended purpose and that the work in installing the plumbing systems would be done in a careful and workmanlike manner].

7. On or about _____[date], cross defendant _____ [specify, e.g., completed installation of the plumbing system in the house referred to in Paragraphs 2 and 5, above, located at _____ (address)], and hereinafter referred to as "the _____" [specify, e.g., house].

8. On or about _____[date], cross complainant, in its ordinary course of business, sold the _____ [specify, e.g., house] to _____ [plaintiff in the above-entitled action or name of purchaser].

9. On or about _____[date], plaintiff in the within action filed in the above-entitled court his/her/its complaint against cross complainant for damages for _____ [injury to property or personal injuries or wrongful death or combination of these] in which it is alleged that at the time _____ [plaintiff or name of purchaser] purchased the _____ [specify, e.g., house] from cross complainant (as alleged in Paragraph 8 above), the _____ [specify, e.g., house] was defective in that _____[specify defect, e.g., the plumbing system was unfit for its intended use]; that on or about _____[date], as a proximate result of that defect, _____[specify accident], as a proximate result of which _____[specify injuries to property, person, or both]. The complaint seeks recovery from cross complainant of damages for injury to property in the sum of $_____ [as well as damages for _____ (personal injury or wrongful death or both) (for the sum of $_____)].

10. On or about _____[date], cross complainant was served with a copy of the summons and of the complaint in the above-entitled action by plaintiff and immediately in writing notified cross defendant of the filing of the action, the defect alleged, and the amount of damages sought.

11. As a result of the filing of the action by plaintiff, cross complainant has been required to retain and has retained legal counsel to defend him/her/it against plaintiff's claim and has incurred and will continue to incur expenses for investigation, legal costs, and legal fees in connection with the defense of the action, the full amount of which has not yet been ascertained. Cross complainant will seek leave to amend this cross complaint to insert the amount thereof when ascertained.

12. A dispute has arisen and an actual controversy exists between cross complainant and cross defendant in that cross complainant contends and cross defendant denies as follows:

(a) If the _____ [specify, e.g., plumbing system installed by cross defendant in the house as herein alleged] was defective as alleged by plaintiff, the defect _____ [specify e.g., _____ (was caused by or resulted from) cross defendant's use of _____ (faulty or inferior or faulty and inferior or other) _____ (products or materials or products and materials or other)], and existed at the time cross defendant _____ [specify, e.g., com pleted installation of the system] as alleged in Paragraph 7 above].

(b) Cross defendant _____ [specify warranty, e.g., impliedly warranted that the _____ (materials or products or other) were of merchantable quality and reasonably fit for their intended use and expressly warranted that they were suitable for use in plaintiff's house].

(c) If the _____ [specify, e.g., plumbing system installed by cross defendant in the house as herein alleged] was defective as alleged by plaintiff, cross defendant breached his/her/its _____ [implied and express warranties or _____ (implied or express) warranty] to cross complainant as alleged in subparagraph (b), above.

(d) If the _____ [specify, e.g., plumbing system installed by cross defendant in the house as herein alleged] was defective as alleged by plaintiff, and the defect proximately caused plaintiff's damages as alleged in the complaint herein, cross defendant is obligated by the _____ [express or implied] terms of the contract to indemnify cross complainant for any judgment that may be awarded plaintiff against cross complainant in the above-entitled action and further that cross defendant is obligated to reimburse cross complainant for all costs, attorneys' fees, and other expenses incurred and to be incurred by cross complainant in investigating plaintiff's claim and in preparing to defend and defending against that action.

[13. Cross defendant further contends and cross complainant denies that any liability of the cross defendant to cross complainant, if it exists at all, is limited to the costs of repairing the defective _____ (specify, e.g., plumbing system in plaintiff's house).]

14. A declaration as to the rights and duties of the parties in the premises is necessary and proper at this time to avoid a multiplicity of lawsuits.

[Prayer, see § 460.201[1].]

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 460.141[1].]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a cross complaint for use by a manufacturer against a contractor, subcontractor, or supplier of a product or material incorporated in the finished product sold by cross complainant, which product or material was itself defective or was unsuitable for incorporation in the completed product and rendered the completed product defective. The theory of liability giving rise to indemnity is breach of warranty [see Eichler Homes, Inc. v. Anderson (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 224, 229, 87 Cal. Rptr. 893] .

[3] Cross References

For a related form, see § 460.201.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
C. Cross Complaints

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 460.203-460.209

[Reserved]

§§ 460.203[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
D. Contribution

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.210

§ 460.210 Notice of Motion to Compel Codefendant to Contribute Pro Rata Share of Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 878]

[1] FORM Notice of Motion to Compel Codefendant to Contribute Pro Rata Share of Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 878]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____
[or other as appropriate]

_____ [name],	)	NO. _____
Plaintiff,	)	NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION FOR JUDGMENT FOR CONTRIBUTION [, SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF _____ _____ (name), AND MEMORANDUM]
vs.	)
_____ [name],	)
Defendant.	)
	)	[Telephone Appearance]
	)	Date: _____
	)	Time: _____
	)	Location: _____
	)	Judge: _____
		Date Action Filed: _____
		Trial Date: _____

_____

To each _____ _____ plaintiff and defendant named above, and to the attorney of record for each such party:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court, located at _____ _____ [street address], _____ _____ [city], defendant] _____ _____ [name] will, and hereby does, move pursuant to Code of Civil Procedure section 878 for a judgment for contribution in his/her/its favor and against defendant(s) _____ _____[name(s)] in the amount of $_____, with interest thereon at the legal rate from and after _____[date], until paid. The motion will be made on the grounds that a money judgment has been rendered in the above-captioned action jointly against the moving party and defendant(s) _____ _____[name(s)] and that the moving party has paid _____ _____ [the entire or more than his/her/its pro rata share of the] judgment and defendant(s) _____ _____[name(s)] has/have paid _____ _____ [neither all nor part or less than his/her/its/their pro rata share] of the judgment.

The motion will be based on this notice of motion, on the _____ [affidavit(s) or declaration(s)] of _____ _____ [name(s)] and the memorandum of points and authorities served and filed herewith, on the records and file herein, and on such evidence as may be presented at the hearing of the motion. Dated: _____.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Defendant _____ [name]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a notice of motion for use by one tortfeasor judgment debtor against his, her, or its joint tortfeasor judgment debtor to secure a judgment for contribution where the former has paid more than his, her, or its pro rata share of the money judgment entered against them. With appropriate modifications, it may also be used where the judgment entered was against three or more defendants and contribution is sought by one against one or more of them [see Code Civ. Proc. § 878].

The motion is deemed made and pending on the due service and filing of the notice of motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005.5] and, consequently, it is not necessary to make the motion orally at the hearing as was the case prior to the 1953 adoption of Code Civ. Proc. § 1005.5.

[3] Caption

The caption on the notice of motion identifies the court and parties, sets forth the number of the case, specifies the nature of the paper, and itemizes information about the timing and location of the hearing [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111].

[4] Contents of Notice

The notice of motion must be in writing, identify the motion, state when and the grounds on which the motion will be made, and identify the papers on which the motion will be based [Code Civ. Proc. § 1010]. Although not expressly required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1010, the notice also states where the motion will be made, that is, the department or division number of the court and the court's address. This information, must at any rate be included in the caption below the case number [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1110].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 requires that if any paper on which the motion will be based has not previously been served on the party to be notified and was not filed by him, her, or it, a copy of the paper must accompany the notice. The form complies with this requirement. The two papers specified, neither of which was previously served on the party to be notified nor filed by that party, are the declaration and the memorandum of points and authorities. A copy of each must, therefore, be served and filed with the notice of motion. The "records and files" referred to are, of course, the court's records, such as the register of actions, the minute book, and the judgment book, and the court's file of the action, that is, the manilla folder in which the various pleadings and papers in the case are filed.

[5] Accompanying Papers

The notice of motion must be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) setting forth any information the moving party may have as to the assets of defendants available for satisfaction of the judgment or claim for contribution [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 878, 1010; see § 460.211].

An affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) setting forth the particulars of payment by the moving defendant of more than his, her, or its pro rata share will also be necessary if the fact of that payment does not already appear in the court's file in the action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 875(c), 1010, 2009]. A single affidavit (declaration) may, of course, be used where all the facts are within the knowledge of the declarant.

A memorandum must be served and filed with the notice of motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103, 3.1113, 3.1114]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[6] Service of Notice

The notice of motion must be served on all parties in the action, including the plaintiff or plaintiffs, at least 10 days before the hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 878]. For the requirements concerning and discussion of the service and proving service of notices of motion, see Code Civ. Proc. § 1011, 1013-1013a, 1015 and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers.

[7] Judgment Required

In order to be entitled to contribution, it is, of course, necessary that a judgment exist which has been rendered against two or more defendants [Code Civ. Proc. § 875(a); Barth v. B.F. Goodrich Tire Co. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 137, 141, 92 Cal. Rptr. 809] .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
D. Contribution

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.211

§ 460.211 Declaration in Support of Motion to Compel Codefendant to Contribute Pro Rata Share of Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 878]

[1] FORM Declaration in Support of Motion to Compel Codefendant to Contribute Pro Rata Share of Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 878]

[Caption. See § 460.210[1].]

I, _____[name], declare:

I am _____ [one of the defendants in the above-entitled action or _____ (a general partner or _____ (title)) of defendant _____ (name of defendant partnership or corporation) or state other relationship to moving party if declarant is a nonparty].

On _____[date], judgment in the sum of $_____ was entered in this action against defendants jointly. On _____[date], _____ [I or name of moving party] paid plaintiff _____ [the entire or the sum of $_____ (amount greater than pro rata share) on the] judgment by _____ [specify manner of payment, e.g., certified check] as evidenced by the _____ [satisfaction of judgment filed herein or my canceled check, a copy of which is attached hereto and made a part hereof or other].

_____ [Neither all nor any part of the judgment herein was paid by defendant _____ (name) or I am informed and believe and thereon state that defendant _____ (name) paid plaintiff the sum of $_____ (amount less than pro rata share), and no more, on the judgment in this action].

I have the following information as to the assets of defendant _____[name] and the availability of those assets for the satisfaction of [the judgment and] this claim for contribution:_____[specify].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____[date]

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a declaration is for use in support of a motion by a defendant who or which has paid more than its pro rata share of a money judgment to compel contribution from his, her, or its codefendant who or which has paid less than its pro rata share, or nothing at all, on the judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 878].

[3] Contents of Form

The first two paragraphs identify the declarant and show that he or she would be competent if called as a witness to testify to the remaining facts set forth in the declaration.

The third paragraph avers the entry of judgment against defendants jointly and the moving party's payment of more than his, her, or its pro rata share of the judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 875].

The fourth paragraph alleges the codefendant's nonpayment of his, her, or its pro rata share [see Code Civ. Proc. § 875].

The fifth paragraph identifies the assets of the codefendant available to satisfy the judgment or the claim for contribution according to the declarant's information [see Code Civ. Proc. § 878].

The form of the declaration itself is based on Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5].

[4] Cross References

For a related form, see § 460.210

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 460 PRODUCTS LIABILITY
PART V. FORMS
D. Contribution

40-460 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 460.212

§ 460.212 Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 578] for Contribution Against Codefendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 878]

[1] FORM Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 578] for Contribution Against Codefendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 878]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____
[or other as appropriate]

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	JUDGMENT
Defendant.	)
	)
	)

_____

The motion of defendant _____[name] for judgment for contribution against defendant _____[name] came on regularly for hearing before _____ [the above-entitled court, the Honorable _____ (name) presiding or the undersigned] on _____[date]. _____[Name] appeared as attorney for defendant _____[name of moving party] and _____[name] appeared as attorney for defendant _____[name]. The court considered the papers submitted in support of and in opposition to the motion, the oral and documentary evidence produced, the records and files herein, and the arguments of counsel, [and it appearing to the satisfaction of the court that a joint judgment in the sum of $_____ was entered in the above-entitled action against the above-named defendants on _____ (date), that on _____ (date), defendant _____ (name of moving party) paid plaintiff _____ (the entire or the sum of $_____ (amount greater than pro rata share on the) judgment, and that defendant _____ (name) has paid _____ (neither all nor any part of or the sum of $_____ (amount less than pro rata share) only on) the judgment] and good cause appearing therefor;

IT IS ORDERED AND ADJUDGED that the motion for contribution be and it hereby is granted and that defendant _____[name of moving party] have and recover from defendant _____[name] the sum of $_____, together with interest thereon at the rate of seven percent per annum from and after _____[date of payment of more than pro rata share] until paid.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Court

[2] Use of Form

This form is a judgment for use when the court grants the motion of one tortfeasor judgment debtor for contribution against his, her, or its codefendant judgment debtor [see Code Civ. Proc. § 878].

[3] Cross References

For a related form, see § 460.210

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 461 [RESERVED]

40-461 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated Chapter 461

[RESERVED]

Chapter 461[RESERVED]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 462.syn

§ 462.syn Synopsis to Chapter 462: PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S

§ 462.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 462.02 Cross References

§ 462.03 Governing Law

§ 462.04 Definitions

§§ 462.05through 462.09 [Reserved]

§ 462.10 Rules of Professional Conduct

§ 462.11 Appointment of Administrative Committees

§ 462.12 Permit to Practice Public Accountancy

[1] California Certified Public Accountants

[2] Certified Public Accountants of Other States or Countries

§ 462.13 Enjoining Certain Acts or Practices

§ 462.14 Discipline by State Board of Accountancy

§§ 462.15-462.19 [Reserved]

§ 462.20 Ownership of Papers

§ 462.21 Appeal Available if Applicant Aggrieved in Registration as Certified Public Accountant

§ 462.22 Right to Practice Accountancy

§ 462.23 Duties to Clients

§ 462.24 Liability to Person Not in Privity

§ 462.25 Statute of Limitations in Actions Against Accountants

§ 462.26 Confidential Relationship Between Client and Accountant

[1] General Rule

[2] Injunction to Prevent Disclosure of Confidential Information

§ 462.27 Conflict of Interest

§ 462.28 Unauthorized Practice of Law

§ 462.29 Audit Documentation

§ 462.30 Accountancy Corporation

§ 462.31 Limited Liability Partnership for Public Accountants

§§ 462.32through 462.39 [Reserved]

§ 462.40 Related Matthew Bender Publications

§ 462.41 State Statutes

[1] Accountancy Corporations

[2] Definitions

[3] Regulation of Public Accountants

[a] Certified Public Accountants

[b] Discipline

[c] Licensure Requirement

[d] State Board of Accountancy

[i] Appeal to Board

[ii] Powers

[iii] Judicial Review

[4] Rights and Duties of Public Accountants

§ 462.42 Administrative Regulations

§ 462.43 Decisions

[1] Duties and Liability of Professionals

[a] In General

[b] Public Accountants

[2] Regulation of Practice of Public Accountancy

[3] Rights of Public Accountants

[4] Statute of Limitations

§ 462.44 Attorney General Opinions

§ 462.45 Law Reviews

§ 462.46 Text References

§§ 462.47through 462.49 [Reserved]

§ 462.50 Complaint by Public Accountant for Compensation for Services Rendered [Civ. Code § 3302]--With Common Counts on Account Stated and for Work and Labor

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Contents

[4] Venue

[5] Jurisdiction

[6] Verification

[7] Cross References

§ 462.51 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333]--By Client Against Public Accountant for Negligence

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Contents

[4] Venue

[5] Negligence Per Se

[6] When Action Accrues

[7] Cross References

§ 462.52 Complaint for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333]--By Third Party Against Public Accountant for Intentional or Negligent Misrepresentation

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Contents

[4] Cross References

§ 462.53 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Accountant and Plaintiff Not in Privity of Contract

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 462.54 Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086]--To Compel State Board of Accountancy to Admit Petitioner Either to Accountant's Examination or to Practice as Accountant

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Contents

[4] Verification

[5] Proof of Service

[6] Attaching Points and Authorities

[7] Attaching Complete Record

[8] Time for Filing

[9] Jurisdiction

[10] Cross References

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART I. SCOPE

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.01

§ 462.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses, among other things, the regulation of public accountants, public accountants' duties to their clients, and the confidential relationship between public accountants and their clients. It includes forms of complaints for use in actions by accountants for compensation for services rendered [§ 462.50], as well as for use in actions by clients against public. accountants for negligence [§ 462.51], and by third parties against public accountants for intentional or negligent misrepresentation [§ 462.52]. A form of affirmative defense is included for use by an accountant not in privity with the plaintiff [§ 462.53]. The chapter also includes a form of petition for writ of mandate to compel the State Board of Accountancy to admit the petitioner to the accountant's examination or to the practice of public accountancy [462.54].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Civil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamusGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicensesTortsBusiness TortsFraud & MisrepresentationNegligent MisrepresentationGeneral OverviewTortsBusiness TortsFraud & MisrepresentationNegligent MisrepresentationDefenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART I. SCOPE

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.02

§ 462.02 Cross References

For forms for use in actions for compensation for services, see Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.350 et seq.

For forms alleging entitlement to treble damages when defendant is not licensed see Ch. 174, Damages, § 177.40 et seq.

For forms relating to writs of mandate to review administrative decisions, see Ch. 209, Dentists , and Ch. 415, Physicians: Medical Malpractice , respectively

For discussion of injunctions, see Ch. 303, Injunctions

For forms relating to mandate, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition

For discussion of licensing and for writs of mandate directing issuance of licenses, see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies

For discussion of administrative adjudication and judicial review, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , et seq., and Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

For discussion of trade secrets and confidential information, see Ch. 565, Unfair Competition

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesInjunctive ReliefCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamusHealthcare LawActions Against Healthcare WorkersDoctors & PhysiciansHealthcare LawBusiness Administration & OrganizationLicensesRequirements

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART I. SCOPE

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.03

§ 462.03 Governing Law

The practice of public accountancy is regulated by Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5000-5173 and by 16 Cal. Code Reg §§ 1-99.2. The regulatory authority is the State Board of Accountancy ("Board") [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 (operative until July 1, 2011, and repealed January 1, 2012, unless the Legislature changes those dates)]. The Board may receive and investigate complaints and conduct investigations or hearings with or without filing a complaint, and obtain evidence relating to and involving the conduct of licensees or any violation or alleged violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 et seq. [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5103]. The Board may issue subpoenas in connection with an investigation or action authorized by Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 et seq. [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5108].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART I. SCOPE

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.04

§ 462.04 Definitions

A public accountant is any person who has registered with the Board as a public accountant and who holds a valid permit for the practice of public accountancy [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5034]. A certified public accountant is any person who has received from the Board a certificate of certified public accountant and who holds a valid permit to practice [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5033]. A certified public accountant may use the abbreviation "C.P.A." [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5055].

An unlicensed person offering certain permitted accounting services may use the terms "accountant," "accounting," or "accounting services," if the use of those terms is further qualified by an explanation, disclaimer, or warning stating that the advertiser is not licensed by the state or that the services being offered do not require a state license, thereby eliminating any potential or likelihood of confusion regarding those terms [Moore v. California State Bd. of Accountancy (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 999, 1023, 9 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358, 831 P.2d 798] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART I. SCOPE

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 462.05through 462.09

[Reserved]

§§ 462.05[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Regulation of Accountants

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.10

§ 462.10 Rules of Professional Conduct

The Board may, by regulation, prescribe, amend or repeal rules of professional conduct appropriate to the establishment and maintenance of a high standard of integrity and dignity in the profession [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5018]. The rules of professional conduct applicable to public accountants are found in 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 53 et seq. [see 35 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 120, 122 (1960) (all Board licensees, whether privately employed or engaged in public accountancy, are subject to Board's rules of professional conduct)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Regulation of Accountants

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.11

§ 462.11 Appointment of Administrative Committees

For the purpose of obtaining technical expertise, the Board may appoint an administrative committee to provide assistance related to the functions specified in Bus. & Prof. Code § 5103, i.e., to inquire into alleged violations of Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 et seq. or any other state or federal law, regulation, or rule relevant to the practice of accountancy [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5020].

The committee acts only in an advisory capacity, has no authority to initiate a disciplinary action against a licensee, and is only authorized to report its findings from an investigation or hearing to the Board, or at the Board's direction, to the executive officer [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5020].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Regulation of Accountants

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.12

§ 462.12 Permit to Practice Public Accountancy

[1] California Certified Public Accountants

Except as otherwise provided, no person may engage in the practice of public accountancy in California unless the person is the holder of a valid permit to practice public accountancy issued by the Board, or a holder of a practice privilege [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5050(a); see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5050(b) (certified public accountants of other states), 5050(c) (public accountant of foreign country); 5054(a) (preparation of tax returns by individuals and firms licensed outside state); 5096 et seq. (practice privilege)].

[2] Certified Public Accountants of Other States or Countries

The Board may, when specified conditions are met, waive the examination requirements in Bus. & Prof. Code § 5082 and issue a license as a certified public accountant to any applicant who is the holder of a valid and unrevoked license as a certified public accountant issued under the laws of another state [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5087(a); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 5087(b)]. Nothing in the laws governing public accountants [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 et seq.] prohibits a certified public accountant, a public accountant, or a public accounting firm lawfully practicing in another state from temporarily practicing in California incident to practice in another state. However, neither an individual nor a firm providing these temporary services may do any of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5050(b), operative until January 1, 2011]:

- Solicit California clients.
- Assert or imply that the individual or firm is licensed to practice public accountancy in California.
- Engage in the development, implementation, or marketing to California consumers of any abusive tax avoidance transaction, as defined in Rev. & Tax. Code § 19753(c).

Nothing in the laws governing public accountants [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 et seq.] prohibits a person who holds a valid and current license, registration, certificate, permit, or other authority to practice public accountancy from a foreign country, and lawfully practicing there, from temporarily engaging in the practice of public accountancy California incident to an engagement in that country, provided that both of the following are true [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5050(c)]:

- The temporary practice is regulated by the foreign country and is performed under accounting or auditing standards of that country.

- The person does not hold himself or herself out as being the holder of a valid California permit to practice public accountancy or the holder of a practice privilege [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096 et seq.].

Any person engaging in any act that is the practice of public accountancy in California consents to the personal, subject matter, and disciplinary jurisdiction of the Board [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5050.1(a)], and is deemed to have appointed the regulatory authority of the state or foreign jurisdiction that issued the person's permit, certificate, license, or other authorization to practice as the person's agent on whom notice, subpoenas, or other process may be served in any action or proceeding by or before the Board against or involving that person [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5050.1(b)].

An individual who holds a current and valid license as a certified public accountant issued under the laws of any state and who applies to the board for a license as a certified public accountant under the provisions of Bus. & Prof. § 5087 may, until the time the application for a license is granted or denied, practice public accountancy in California only under a practice privilege pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096 et seq., except that, for these purposes, the individual is not disqualified from a practice privilege during the period the application is pending by virtue of maintaining an office or principal place of business, or both, in this state. The Board may by regulation provide for exemption, credit, or proration of fees to avoid duplication of fees [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5088].

Operative until January 1, 2011 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.11], an individual whose principal place of business is not in California and who has a valid and current license, certificate or permit to practice public accountancy from another state may, subject to the conditions and limitations in Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096 et seq., engage in the practice of public accountancy in California under a practice privilege without obtaining a certificate or license under Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 et seq. if the individual satisfies specified statutory requirements or substantial equivalents [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096(a), (b), operative until January 1, 2011; but see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.10 (provisions relating to practice privileges will only be operative if commencing July 1, 2005, and continuing until January 1, 2011, there is appropriation from Accountancy Fund in the annual Budget Act to fund activities in Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096 et seq. and sufficient hiring authority is granted pursuant to budget change proposal to Board to provide staffing to implement Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096 et seq.)]. To obtain a practice privilege, an individual who meets the requirements follow a specified procedure, which includes notifying the Board of the individual's intent to practice and paying a fee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096(c), operative until January 1, 2011; for required contents of notification, see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.13], Except as otherwise provided, the practice privilege commences when the individual notifies the board, provided the fee is received by the Board within a specified period, and the Board must permit the notification to be provided electronically [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096(d), operative until January 1, 2011].

A certified public accounting firm authorized to practice in another state, which does not have an office in California, may engage in the practice of public accountancy in California through the holder of a practice privilege provided that both of the following are true [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.12(a), operative until January 1, 2011]:

- The practice of public accountancy by the firm is limited to authorized practice by the holder of the practice privilege.

- A firm that engages in practice is deemed to consent to the personal, subject matter, and disciplinary jurisdiction of the Board with respect.

The board may revoke, suspend, issue a fine, or otherwise restrict or discipline the firm for any act that would be grounds for discipline against a holder of a practice privilege through which the firm practices [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.12(b), operative until January 1, 2011; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5116 (fines)].

An individual who holds a practice privilege has the following rights and duties [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096(e), operative January 1, 2006, until January 1, 2011]:

> (1) Is subject to the personal and subject matter jurisdiction and disciplinary authority of the Board and the courts of California.
>
> (2) Must comply with the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 et seq., board regulations, and other laws, regulations, and professional standards applicable to the practice of public accountancy by the licensees of California and any other laws and regulations applicable to individuals practicing under practice privileges in California, except the individual is deemed, solely for the purpose of this article, to have met California's continuing education requirements and ethics examination requirements when the individual has met the examination and continuing education requirements of the state in which the individual holds the valid license, certificate, or permit on which the substantial equivalency is based.
>
> (3) May not provide public accountancy services in California from any office located in California except as an employee of a firm registered in this state. This does not apply to public accountancy services provided to a client at the client's place of business or residence.
>
> (4) Is deemed to have appointed the regulatory agency of the state that issued the individual's certificate, license, or permit on which substantial equivalency is based as the individual's agent on whom notices, subpoenas or other process may be served in any action or proceeding by the Board against the individual.
>
> (5) Must cooperate with any board investigation or inquiry and timely respond to a Board investigation, inquiry, request, notice, demand or subpoena for information or documents and timely provide to the Board the identified information and documents.

An individual may not sign any attest report pursuant to a practice privilege unless the individual meets the experience requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 5095 and completes any continuing education or other conditions required by Board regulations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.5, operative January 1, 2006, until January 1, 2011].

A practice privilege expires one year from the date of the notice, unless a shorter period is set by board regulation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096(f), operative January 1, 2006, until January 1, 2011].

No individual may practice under a practice privilege without prior approval of the Board if the individual has, or acquires at any time during the term of the practice privilege, any disqualifying condition, which include the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096(g)(1), (2), operative January 1, 2006, until January 1, 2011; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096(g)(3), operative January 1, 2006, until January 1, 2011 (Board may adopt regulations exempting specified minor occurrences of listed conditions involving action against license, permit, registration, certificate, or other authority to practice any profession from being disqualifying conditions)]:

> (1) Conviction of any crime other than a minor traffic violation.
>
> (2) Revocation, suspension, denial, surrender or other discipline or sanctions involving any license, permit, registration, certificate or other authority to practice any profession in California or any other state or foreign country or to practice before any state, federal, or local court or agency, or the Public

Company Accounting Oversight Board.

(3) Pendency of any investigation, inquiry, or proceeding by or before any state, federal, or local court or agency, including, but not limited to, the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board, involving the individual's professional conduct.

(4) Any judgment or arbitration award against the individual involving the individual's professional conduct in a specified amount.

(5) Any other conditions as specified by the board in regulation.

Engaging in the practice of public accountancy in California without giving notice of intent to practice under practice privileges and paying the required fee by a person who has a license, certificate, or other authority to engage in the practice of public accountancy in any other state, regardless of whether active, inactive, suspended, or subject to renewal on payment of a fee or completion of an educational or ethics requirement, is [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.1(a) operative January 1, 2006, until January 1, 2011]:

(1) Deemed to be practicing public accountancy unlawfully in California.

(2) Subject to the personal and subject matter jurisdiction and disciplinary authority of the Board and the courts of California to the same extent as a holder of a valid practice privilege.

(3) Deemed to have appointed the regulatory agency of the state that issued the individual's certificate or license as the individual' s agent on whom notice, subpoenas, or other process may be served in any action or proceeding by the Board against the individual.

The Board may prospectively deny a practice privilege for any of the following reasons:

- An individual violated Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.1 or implementing regulations or committed any act which would be grounds for discipline against the holder of a practice privilege [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.1(b), operative January 1, 2006, until January 1, 2011].

- Failure to qualify under or comply with the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096 et seq. governing practice privileges or implementing regulations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.2(a), operative January 1, 2006, until January 1, 2011].

- Any act that if committed by an applicant for licensure would be grounds for denial of a license under Bus. & Prof. Code § 480 or if committed by a licensee would be grounds for discipline under Bus. & Prof. Code § 5100 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.2(a), operative January 1, 2006, until January 1, 2011].

- For any act committed outside of California that would be a violation if committed within California [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.2(a), operative January 1, 2006, until January 1, 2011].

The procedures for denying practice privileges are specified by statute [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.2(b), operative January 1, 2006, until January 1, 2011]. The provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act apply [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.3(e), operative January 1, 2006, until January 1, 2011].

Practice privileges are subject to revocation, suspension, fines or other disciplinary sanctions for any conduct that would be grounds for discipline against a licensee of the Board or for any conduct in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096 et seq. or implementing regulations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.3(a), operative January 1, 2006, until January 1, 2011].

Practice privileges are subject to discipline during any time period in which they are valid, under administrative suspension, or expired [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.3(b), operative January 1, 2006, until January 1, 2011]. An individual whose practice privilege has been revoked may apply for a new practice privilege not less than one year after the effective date of the Board's decision revoking the individual's practice privilege unless a longer time period, not to exceed three years, is specified in the board's decision revoking the practice privilege [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.3(d), operative January 1, 2006, until January 1, 2011]. The right of an individual to practice under a practice privilege may be administratively suspended [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.4(a), operative January 1, 2006, until January 1, 2011].

The Board may revoke, suspend, issue a fine, otherwise restrict or discipline, or administratively suspend for any act that would be grounds for administrative suspension under Bus. & Prof. Code § 5096.4, the authorization to practice in California of the holder of an authorization to practice as licensed in another state or country, as preparing tax returns when licensed outside California, or as an out-of-state practicing under a practice privilege for any act that would be a violation of the and Professions Code or grounds for discipline against a licensee or holder of a practice privilege, or ground for denial of a license or practice privilege under the and Professions Code. The provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act, including, but not limited to, the commencement of a disciplinary proceeding by the filing of an accusation by the Board apply. Any person so authorized to practice whose authorization to practice has been revoked may apply for reinstatement of the authorization to practice not less than one year after the effective date of the Board's decision revoking the authorization to practice, unless a longer time, not to exceed three years, is specified in the Board's decision revoking the authorization to practice [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5050.2; see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5054 (preparation of tax returns by individuals and firms licensed outside state); 5096.12 (practice privilege for firm licensed outside state); 5116 (fines)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsAdministrative BoardsGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Regulation of Accountants

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.13

§ 462.13 Enjoining Certain Acts or Practices

Whenever in the judgment of the Board, or with its approval the administrative committee, any person who has engaged, or is about to engage, in any acts or practices that constitute, or will constitute, an offense against Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 et seq. (provisions regulating practice of public accountancy), the Board may apply to the appropriate court for an order enjoining those acts or practices. On a showing by the Board that a person has engaged, or is about to engage, in any act or practice that constitutes an offense under Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 et seq., the court must grant an injunction, restraining order, or other order that may be appropriate [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5122].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Regulation of Accountants

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.14

§ 462.14 Discipline by State Board of Accountancy

After notice and hearing, the Board may revoke, suspend, or refuse to renew any permit or certificate, or censure the permit or certificate holder, for unprofessional conduct that includes, but is not limited to, the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5100]:

- Conviction of any crime substantially related to the qualifications, functions, and duties of a certified public accountant or a public accountant;

- A violation of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 478, 498, 499 dealing with false statements or omissions in the application for a license or in obtaining a certificate as a certified public accountant, registration under Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 et seq., or a permit to practice public accountancy under Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 et seq.;

- Dishonesty, fraud, gross negligence or repeated negligent acts committed in the same or different engagements, for the same or different clients, or any combination of engagements or clients, each resulting in a violation of applicable professional standards indicating a lack of competency in the practice of public accountancy or in the performance of the bookkeeping operations described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 5052;

- Cancellation, revocation, or suspension of a certificate, other authority to practice or refusal to renew the certificate or other authority to practice as a certified public accountant or a public accountant, or any other discipline by any other state or foreign country;

- Violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 5097, relating to auditing documentation;

- Violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 5120, relating to unauthorized practice of public accountancy;

- Willful violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 et seq. or any rule or regulation promulgated by the Board under the authority granted under Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 et seq.;

- Suspension or revocation of the right to practice before any governmental body or agency [see Clare v. State Bd. of Accountancy (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 294, 302, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 481 (requiring substantial relationship between suspension or revocation and accountant's qualifications, functions, or duties)];

- Fiscal dishonesty or breach of fiduciary responsibility of any kind;

- Knowing preparation, publication, or dissemination of false, fraudulent, or materially misleading financial statements, reports, or information;

- Embezzlement, theft, misappropriation of funds or property, or obtaining money, property, or other valuable consideration by fraudulent means or false pretenses;

- The imposition of any discipline, penalty, or sanction on a registered public accounting firm or associated person of the firm, or both, or on any other holder of a permit, certificate, license, or other authority to practice in California, by the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board or the United States Securities and Exchange Commission, or their designees under the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002 or other federal legislation; and

- Unlawfully engaging in the practice of public accountancy in another state.

Accepted accounting principles require that public accountants conducting an audit evaluate compliance with investment-related laws, and accountants can be disciplined for a failure to do so [McBride v. California Bd. of Accountancy (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 518, 528-529, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 287] .

Revocation of an accountancy license is not penal. The only purpose of such an action is to protect the public from incompetence and lack of integrity [Murrill v. Board (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 709, 712, 218 P.2d 569] . However, the Board, after appropriate notice and an opportunity for hearing, may order any licensee or applicant for licensure or examination to pay an administrative penalty as part of any disciplinary proceeding or other proceeding provided for in Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 et seq. [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5116 et seq.].

Cause for discipline by the Board does not void or render nonexistent agreements made in contravention of the rules. For example, when an accounting firm was engaged in the practice of accountancy, and had as a partner a woman who was not a licensee in good standing in California, thereby contravening the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 5072, the Board could discipline her and her partners in the firm or revoke the firm's registration and permit to practice. However, the fact that the firm was in violation of the rules of professional conduct did not void or render nonexistent any agreement the firm had with her or with its insurance carrier [Montgomery v. Cal. Accountants Mutual Ins. Co. (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 854, 859-860, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 39] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsFiduciary ResponsibilitiesGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicensesTortsIntentional TortsBreach of Fiduciary DutyGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Regulation of Accountants

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 462.15-462.19

[Reserved]

§§ 462.15[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accountant's Rights and Duties

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.20

§ 462.20 Ownership of Papers

All statements, records, schedules, working papers, and memoranda made by a licensee or a partner, shareholder, officer, director, or employee of a licensed public accountant, incident to, or in the course of, rendering services to a client in the practice of public accountancy are and remain the property of the licensee in the absence of an express agreement between the licensee and the client to the contrary, except [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5037(a)]:

- The reports submitted by that licensee to the client; and
- Records which are part of the client's records.

None of these statements, records, schedules, working papers, or memoranda may be sold, transferred, or bequeathed, without the consent of the client or his or her personal representative or assignee, to anyone other than one or more surviving partners or stockholders or new partners or stockholders of the licensee, or any combined or merged firm successor in interest to the licensee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5037(a)].

The licensed public accountant is required to furnish to his or her client or former client, on request and reasonable notice [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5037(b)]:

- A copy of the licensee's working papers, to the extent that those working papers include records that would ordinarily constitute part of the client's records and are not otherwise available to the client; and
- Any accounting or other records belonging to, or obtained from or on behalf of, the client which the licensee removed from the client's premises or received for the client's account.

The licensee may make and retain copies of documents of the client when they form the basis for work done by him or her [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5037(b)(2)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accountant's Rights and Duties

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.21

§ 462.21 Appeal Available if Applicant Aggrieved in Registration as Certified Public Accountant

Any applicant for registration as a certified public accountant who is aggrieved by any action taken by the committee with respect to his or her qualifications may appeal to the Board in accordance with rules or regulations prescribed by the Board. The Board on appeal may give an oral or written examination as an aid in determining whether the applicant is qualified [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5022]. An appeal must be filed within 24 months after (1) the action appealed or (2) the mailing of written notice from the Board officially advising the applicant of the action being taken by an administrative committee, whichever is later [16 Cal. Code Reg. § 49(a)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityStandingGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicensesTortsMalpractice & Professional LiabilityProfessional Services

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accountant's Rights and Duties

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.22

§ 462.22 Right to Practice Accountancy

An accountant does not acquire a vested right to practice accountancy by reason of his or her registration certificate. The general right to engage in a trade, profession, or business is subject to the power inherent in the state to make necessary rules and regulations respecting the use and enjoyment of property necessary for the preservation of the public health,morals, comfort, order, and safety; such regulations do not deprive owners of property without due process of law. No person can acquire a vested right to continue, when once licensed, in a business, trade, or occupation which is subject to legislative control under the police powers [Murrill v. Board (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 709, 711-712, 218 P.2d 569] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accountant's Rights and Duties

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.23

§ 462.23 Duties to Clients

Accountants have been recognized as a skilled professional class subject generally to the same rules of liability for negligence in the practice of their profession as are members of other skilled professions [see, e.g., Mattco Forge, Inc. v. Arthur Young & Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 820, 831-833, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 780 (action for accounting malpractice based on allegedly negligent trial assistance)]. As members of a skilled profession they are experts [Lindner v. Barlow, Davis & Wood (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 660, 665, 27 Cal. Rptr. 101] . The services of experts are sought because of their special skill. They have a duty to exercise the ordinary skill and competence of members of their profession, and a failure to discharge that duty will subject them to liability for negligence. Those who hire them, however, are not justified in expecting infallibility; they can expect only reasonable care and competence [Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 489, 275 P.2d 15 (involving action by purchaser of land against defendant hired to make fill test); Lindner v. Barlow, Davis & Wood (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 660, 665, 27 Cal. Rptr. 101] .

The elements of a cause of action in tort for accounting malpractice based on negligence are [Mattco Forge, Inc. v. Arthur Young & Co. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 820, 833, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 780 (applying trial--within--trial standard to accounting malpractice action based on allegedly negligent litigation support)]:

- The duty of the accountant to use such skill, prudence, and diligence as other members of the profession commonly possess and exercise;
- Breach of the duty;
- Proximate causal connection between the negligent conduct and the resulting injury; and
- Actual loss or damage resulting from the accountant's negligence.

An action against an accountant for failure to perform his or her obligation to the person employing him or her may be based on breach of a contract. If an accountant contracts to do a specific thing, his or her obligation is not limited to the exercise of ordinary care but is a positive, specific duty [L. B. Laboratories, Inc. v. Mitchell (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 56, 63,

244 P.2d 385] .

However, when the accountant is retained to conduct an independent audit report, the accountant's responsibility to the intended beneficiaries of that report [see § 462.24] may influence the accountant's relationship to his or her client. Indeed, the importance of the independent audit report and the credence with which it is viewed by third parties are reflected in the standard to which the profession is held. The public reliance on the objectivity and integrity of certified public accountants to maintain the orderly function of commerce imposes a public interest responsibility on them [National Medical Transportation Network v. Deloitte & Touche(1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 412, 428, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 720] . By certifying the public reports that collectively depict a corporation's financial status, the independent auditor assumes a public responsibility transcending any employment relationship with the client. Thus, an accounting firm may resign as independent auditor of a company without issuing an opinion. In a suit by the company for professional negligence, breach of contract, and negligent interference with economic advantage after a resignation, the firm is entitled to a jury instruction that professional standards permit or compel an auditor to resign if good cause exists, regardless of the adverse effects on the client's interest [National Medical Transportation Network v. Deloitte & Touche (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 412, 428-432, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 720 (firm presented evidence that resignation was justified by lack of cooperation from client's management, firm's loss of faith in client's integrity, and threats from client's chief executive officer compromising firm's independence as support for good cause)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsMalpractice & Professional LiabilityProfessional ServicesTortsNegligenceGeneral OverviewTortsNegligenceProofCustomProfessional Customs

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accountant's Rights and Duties

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.24

§ 462.24 Liability to Person Not in Privity

In general, an accountant has no liability to third parties not in privity. The California Supreme Court has rejected the prior rule that accountants owe a duty of care to all persons who reasonably and foreseeably rely on the accountant's professional opinions [Bily v. Arthur Young & Co. (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 370, 405-406 n.15, 416, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51, 834 P.2d 745 (overruling International Mortgage Co. v. John P. Butler Accountancy Corp. (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 806, 223 Cal. Rptr. 218)]. There is now a strict privity rule, under which an auditor's liability for general negligence in the conduct of an audit of its client's financial statements is confined to the client, that is, the person who contracts for or engages the audit services. Other persons may not recover on a pure negligence theory [Bily v. Arthur Young & Co. (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 370, 406, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51, 834 P.2d 745] . Bily has been held to be retroactive in application [Industrial Indemnity Co. v. Touche Ross & Co. (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1086, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29] .

Although parties who are not in a contractual relationship with an accountant may not sue for general negligence, intended beneficiaries of audit reports who are known to the auditor and for whose benefit the auditor renders the report may recover on a theory of negligent misrepresentation [Bily v. Arthur Young & Co. (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 370, 406-407, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51, 834 P.2d 745 ; see Civ. Code § 1710(2)]. This is because nonclients of the auditor are connected with the audit through receipt of and express reliance on the audit report. Therefore, the report, not the audit itself, is the foundation of the third person's claim [Bily v. Arthur Young & Co. (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 370, 412-413, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51, 834 P.2d 745] .

In addition to negligent misrepresentation, an auditor may be liable to third parties for intentional fraud in the preparation of an audit report. In such a suit, it must be shown that the auditor had no belief in the truth of the statements made and that the auditor made them recklessly, even though the auditor may not have had actual knowledge of the false or baseless character of its opinion [Bily v. Arthur Young & Co. (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 370, 414-415, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 51, 834 P.2d 745] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewTortsBusiness TortsFraud & MisrepresentationNegligent MisrepresentationGeneral OverviewTortsMalpractice & Professional LiabilityProfessional Services

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accountant's Rights and Duties

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.25

§ 462.25 Statute of Limitations in Actions Against Accountants

The Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1) two-year limitation period governs actions against accountants for professional negligence [see International Engine Parts, Inc. v. Feddersen & Co. (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 606, 608, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 150, 888 P.2d 1279 ; Slavin v. Trout (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 1536, 1539, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219] .

In a malpractice action against an accountant, the statute of limitations does not run until the negligent act is discovered or, with reasonable diligence, could have been discovered [Electronic Equipment Express, Inc. v. Donald H. Seiler & Co. (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 834, 848, 176 Cal. Rptr. 239 ; Moonie v. Lynch (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 361, 365-366, 64 Cal. Rptr. 55] . Fraudulent concealment of the facts on which a cause of action and right of recovery are based tolls the statute of limitations until the plaintiff discovers or, in the exercise of reasonable diligence, should have discovered the facts on which the cause of action is based; at that time, the applicable statute starts to run [L. B. Laboratories, Inc. v. Mitchell (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 56, 64-65, 244 P.2d 385 ; Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Blade (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 580, 587, 294 P.2d 140] .

In addition to the discovery of the negligent act, an actual injury must be incurred by the plaintiff before the statute of limitations will begin to run. For example, in International Engine Parts, Inc. v. Feddersen & Co. (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 606, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 150, 888 P.2d 1279 , in which an accountant's alleged negligence caused the Internal Revenue Service to assess a tax deficiency, the California Supreme Court held that the statute did not begin to run until the IRS actually assessed the deficiency, rather than at the time the IRS auditor issued a preliminary audit report finding that an assessment may be imposed [International Engine Parts, Inc. v. Feddersen & Co. (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 606, 608-609, 620, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 150, 888 P.2d 1279] . The Court held that the preliminary report did not impose anything more than a tentative assessment of potential liability, insufficient to amount to actual harm for statute of limitations purposes [International Engine Parts, Inc. v. Feddersen & Co. (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 606, 620, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 150, 888 P.2d 1279] .

Subsequent to its decision in International Engine Parts, the Supreme Court, in dealing with an attorney malpractice case, warned that several of its recent decisions, including International Engine Parts, should not be taken as establishing rules for when actionable harm occurs under all circumstances. Rather, as with other causes of action, the determination of when actionable harm occurs is generally a question of fact [Adams v. Paul (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 583, 588, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 594, 904 P.2d 1205 (construing Code Civ. Proc. § 340.6 regarding attorney malpractice)]. However, when only one legitimate inference can be drawn from uncontradicted evidence, summary judgment is proper [Van Dyke v. Dunker & Aced (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 446, 451, 455, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 862 (plaintiffs suffered actual injury upon unconditional conveyance of property to charitable donee rather than years later when full extent of harm was known)]. Actionable harm does not consist of nominal damages. Once actionable harm is sustained, neither difficulty in proving damages nor uncertainty as to their amount tolls the limitations period [Jordache Enterprises, Inc. v. Brobeck, Phleger & Harrison (1998) 18 Cal. 4th 739, 752, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 749, 958 P.2d 1062 (construing Code Civ. Proc. § 340.6 regarding attorney malpractice)].

A plaintiff who has suffered actual or appreciable harm due to an accountant's professional negligence cannot claim that the statute of limitations is tolled during the period in which he or she may remedy the injury by the administrative or appellate process [see Schrader v. Scott (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1679, 1684-1687, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 433 ; see also Laird v. Blacker (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 606, 615-617, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 550, 828 P.2d 691 (attorney malpractice case rejecting prior appellate authority that had held that commencement of statute of limitations is tolled until attorney's error could no longer be remedied)]. For example, if an accountant gives a client negligent tax advice that results in adverse tax assessments by the Internal Revenue Service and Franchise Tax Board, the statute of limitations on the client's accountant malpractice action is not tolled while the client pursues administrative remedies challenging the assessments [see Schrader v. Scott (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1679, 1684-1687, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 433 ; cf. International Engine Parts, Inc. v. Feddersen & Co. (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 606, 616-617, 620, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 150, 888 P.2d 1279 (noting that Schrader dealt with rejection of "irremediable damage" rule, not with actual injury determination)]. The statute of limitations is not tolled if plaintiff discovers the accountant's negligent act before there is a final determination of the extent of the harm caused by the negligence [Van Dyke v. Dunker & Aced (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 446, 451-452, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 862 (plaintiffs who unconditionally conveyed real property to charity upon negligent accountant's advice learned of harm when they paid taxes that same year, not later when full damage was known)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
TortsMalpractice & Professional LiabilityProfessional ServicesTortsProcedureStatutes of LimitationsGeneral OverviewTortsProcedureStatutes of LimitationsAccrual of ActionsDiscovery Rule

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accountant's Rights and Duties

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.26

§ 462.26 Confidential Relationship Between Client and Accountant

[1] General Rule

No confidential information obtained by a certified public accountant in his or her professional capacity concerning a client or a prospective client may be disclosed by the accountant without the written permission of the client or prospective client, except the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5063.3(a)]:

(1) Disclosures in compliance with a subpoena or a summons enforceable by order of a court.

(2) Disclosures regarding a client or prospective client to the extent the accountant reasonably believes it is necessary to maintain or defend himself or herself in a legal proceeding initiated by the client or prospective client.

(3) Disclosures in response to an official inquiry from a federal or state government regulatory agency.

(4) Disclosures by an accountant or the accountant's duly authorized representative to another accountant in connection with a proposed sale or merger of the accountant's professional practice.

(5) Disclosures to either of the following:

(A) Another accountant to the extent necessary for purposes of professional consultation.

(B) Organizations providing professional standards review and ethics or quality control peer review.

(6) Disclosures specifically required by law.

(7) Disclosures specified by the Board in regulation.

In the event the accountant may disclose confidential client information to persons or entities outside the United States of America in connection with the services provided, the accountant must inform the client in writing and obtain the client's written permission for the disclosure [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5063.3(b)].

[2] Injunction to Prevent Disclosure of Confidential Information

Any unwarranted disclosure of confidential information constitutes a breach of trust, and equity will restrain any threatened disclosure or use of the information by an employee or former employee to the detriment of the employer. The character of the information, if peculiar and important to the business, is not material. Logic and a consideration of general principles of equity dictate that even though an accountant's client list would not necessarily be secret, an accountant's method or the details of practice in handling a client's business would or could reasonably be so considered. If a client relies on and has confidence in the manner in which his or her or its accounts are handled by an accounting firm, it certainly lies beyond the fair and ethical scope of an employee of the firm, after discharge or severance of employment with the firm, to attempt to discredit his or her employer and destroy the client's confidence in the proper handling of its accounts [Ernst & Ernst v. Carlson (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 125, 128-129, 55 Cal. Rptr. 626] . For discussion of, procedural checklist, and forms involving injunctions, see Ch. 303, Injunctions . For discussion of and forms related to trade secrets and confidential information, see Ch. 565, Unfair Competition .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
EvidencePrivilegesAccountant-Client PrivilegeGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesAccountant-Client PrivilegeElementsEvidencePrivilegesAccountant-Client PrivilegeExceptionsEvidencePrivilegesAccountant-Client PrivilegeScope

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accountant's Rights and Duties

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.27

§ 462.27 Conflict of Interest

A licensee who is engaged in the practice of public accounting may not concurrently engage in any business or occupation which impairs his or her objectivity or creates a conflict of interest in rendering professional services [16 Cal. Code Reg. § 57]. In addition, a licensee or a firm of which the licensee is a partner or shareholder may not express an opinion on financial statements of an enterprise unless the licensee and his or her firm are independent with respect to that enterprise. Independence must be determined by assessing the accountant's financial, promotional, managerial, and other relationships with the enterprise to determine whether, in the circumstances, his or her opinion would be considered independent, objective, and unbiased by one who had knowledge of all the facts [16 Cal. Code Reg. § 65].

A licensee may not accept employment with a publicly traded corporation or its affiliate within 12 months of the issuance of a financial statement report if both of the following are true [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5062.2]:

- The licensee has participated in an audit engagement for the corporation and held responsibility, with respect to the audit engagement, requiring the licensee to exercise significant judgment in the audit process. Responsibilities meeting these requirements include, but are not limited to, positions, however titled, in which the licensee was the person in charge of the fieldwork, up through positions in which the licensee was a partner on the engagement.

- The employment would permit the licensee to exercise significant authority over accounting or financial reporting, including authority over the controls related to those functions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesAccountant-Client PrivilegeGeneral OverviewTortsMalpractice & Professional LiabilityProfessional Services

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accountant's Rights and Duties

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.28

§ 462.28 Unauthorized Practice of Law

No person may practice law in California unless he or she is an active member of the State Bar [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6125]. Anyone advertising himself or herself as practicing or entitled to practice law or otherwise practicing law who is not an active member of the State Bar, or otherwise authorized pursuant to statute or court rule to practice law in California at the time of doing so, is guilty of a misdemeanor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6126(a)]. In addition, an accountant who has engaged in the illegal practice of law has no cause of action for fees for services rendered in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 6126 [see Agran v. Shapiro (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 807, 826, 273 P.2d 619 , 127 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 807, 273 P.2d 619] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
EvidencePrivilegesAccountant-Client PrivilegeGeneral OverviewLegal EthicsUnauthorized Practice of LawTortsMalpractice & Professional LiabilityProfessional Services

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Accountant's Rights and Duties

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.29

§ 462.29 Audit Documentation

Audit documentation is an accountant's records of the procedures applied, tests performed, information obtained and pertinent conclusions reached in an audit engagement. Audit document must include, but is not limited to, the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5097(a)]:

- Programs
- Analyses
- Memoranda
- Letters of confirmation and representation
- Copies or abstracts of company documents
- Schedules or commentaries prepared or obtained by the accountant.

Audit documentation must contain sufficient documentation to enable a reviewer with relevant knowledge and experience, but no previous connection to the audit engagement, to understand the nature, timing extent, and results of the auditing or other procedures performed, evidence obtained, and conclusions reached, and to determine the identity of the persons who performed and reviewed the work [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5097(b)]. Failure of the documentation to document procedures applied, tests performed, evidence obtained, and relevant conclusions reached raises a rebuttable presumption that the procedures were not applied, tests were not performed, information was not obtained, and relevant conclusions were not reached, which affects the burden of proof relative to the portions of the audit not documented, which can be met by a preponderance of the evidence [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5097(c)].

Audit documentation must be maintained for the longer of a minimum period of seven years, which will be extended during any investigation, disciplinary action or legal action involving the accountant or the accountant's firm, or a period sufficient to satisfy professional standards and to comply with applicable laws and regulations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5097(d), (e)]. Accountants must maintain a written documentation retention and destruction policy setting for the accountant's practices and procedures complying with the documentation requirements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5097(f)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Entities for Accountants' Practice

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.30

§ 462.30 Accountancy Corporation

An accountancy corporation is a corporation that is registered with the Board and has a currently effective certificate of registration from the Board. Subject to all applicable statutes, rules, and regulations, an accountancy corporation is entitled to practice accountancy [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5150; 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 75.5]. An accountancy corporation may not do or fail to do any act the doing or not doing of which would constitute unprofessional conduct under any statute, rule, or regulation. In the conduct of its practice, the corporation must observe and be bound by those statutes, rules, and regulations to the same extent as a person [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5156]. Each office of an accountancy corporation engaged in the practice of public accountancy in California must be managed by a certified public accountant or public accountant [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5158].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Entities for Accountants' Practice

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.31

§ 462.31 Limited Liability Partnership for Public Accountants

Legislation enacted and effective October 1995 enables public accountants and attorneys to form limited liability partnerships. For discussion of this legislation and its impact on public accountancy, see Ch. 400, Partnerships: Governing Statutes .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewBusiness & Corporate LawLimited Liability PartnershipsBusiness & Corporate LawLimited PartnershipsManagement Duties & LiabilitiesTortsMalpractice & Professional LiabilityProfessional Services

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Entities for Accountants' Practice

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 462.32through 462.39

[Reserved]

§§ 462.32[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.40

§ 462.40 Related Matthew Bender Publications

For discussion and forms relating to accountancy services, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 86, Agreements for Professional Services, Pt. C (Matthew Bender)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.41

§ 462.41 State Statutes

[1] Accountancy Corporations

Registration of partnerships of public accountants. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5072-5073

Accountancy corporation is capable of practicing accountancy and is required to comply with rules of professional conduct. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5150, 5156

Management requirement for accountancy corporation offices practicing public accountancy in California. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5158

[2] Definitions

Definition of certified public accountant. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5033

Definition of public accountant. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5034

Definition of client. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5035.2

Meaning of certified public accountant when contained in statute governing preparation of state documents. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5036

Public accountancy defined. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5051

[3] Regulation of Public Accountants

[a] Certified Public Accountants

Requirements for becoming certified public accountant. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5080-5090

Accountant certified in another state who applies for certificate is deemed to be practicing temporarily in California as provided pending determination of application. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5088

[b] Discipline

Disciplinary proceedings by Board involving revocation, suspension, or refusal to renew license. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5100 et seq.

Payment of costs of investigation and prosecution, including attorney's fees, by public accountant following professional disciplinary proceeding. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5107

Imposition of administrative penalty as part of disciplinary proceeding or other proceeding provided for in Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 et seq. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5116 et seq.

Violations of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5050-5058.1 (regulations concerning practice of accountancy) are misdemeanors. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5120

Board is capable of applying for injunction against acts or practices constituting offenses. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5122

[c] Licensure Requirement

Noncompliance with child or family support order is ground for nonissuance or nonrenewal of professional license. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 31, 6143.5

Continuing education requirements are prerequisite to renewal of public accountancy license. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5026-5029

Person is required to have permit to practice public accountancy; public accountant from another state or foreign country is capable of temporarily practicing public accountancy in California. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5050

Application for permit and expiration of permit to practice public accountancy. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5070-5070.8

Recovery of treble damages, and costs and attorney's fees, from unlicensed person. Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.8

[d] State Board of Accountancy

[i] Appeal to Board

Appeal to Board by applicant aggrieved by action of administrative committee with respect to qualifications. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5022

[ii] Powers

Board is part of Department of Consumer Affairs. Bus. & Prof. Code § 101

Rules governing Board. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5000-5025

Board is capable of prescribing, amending, or repealing rules of professional conduct. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5018

Board is capable of appointing administrative committee. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5020

Any person engaging in any act that is practice of public accountancy in California consents to personal, subject matter, and disciplinary jurisdiction of Board. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5050.1

[iii] Judicial Review

Judicial review of administrative decisions. Gov. Code § 11523

[4] Rights and Duties of Public Accountants

Proof of Department of Consumer Affairs licensure in actions to recover compensation for professional services. Bus. & Prof. Code § 143

Public accountant's ownership and furnishing of papers prepared incidental to or in course of professional service to clients. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5037

Use of abbreviation "C.P.A." Bus. & Prof. Code § 5055

Audit documentation. Bus. & Prof. Code § 5097 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityStandingEvidencePrivilegesAccountant-Client PrivilegeGeneral OverviewGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicensesTortsMalpractice & Professional LiabilityProfessional Services

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.42

§ 462.42 Administrative Regulations

Rules governing State Board of Accountancy. 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 1 et seq.

Requirements for becoming certified public accountant. 16 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 6-36

Appeal to Board by applicant aggrieved by action of administrative committee with respect to qualifications. 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 49

Accounting licensee or registrant as prohibited from engaging in discriminatory acts or practices. 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 53

Confidential relationship between accountant and client. 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 54

Conflict of interest. 16 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 57, 65

Continuing education requirements as prerequisite to renewal of public accountancy license. 16 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 85-94

Denial, suspension, and revocation of public accountant's certificate, permit, or license. 16 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 99, 99.1, 99.2

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityStandingEvidencePrivilegesAccountant-Client PrivilegeGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesAccountant-Client PrivilegeElementsEvidencePrivilegesAccountant-Client PrivilegeScope

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 40: Products Liability thru Public Entities and Officers-Chs. 460-469
Chapter 462 PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT S
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

40-462 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 462.43

§ 462.43 Decisions

[1] Duties and Liability of Professionals

[a] In General

No civil RICO cause of action under 18 U.S.C. § 1982(c) was stated against accounting firm that conducted audits and prepared financial statements for now-bankrupt farming cooperative because these activities did not constitute participation in operation or management of cooperative for purpose of statutory requirement of conduct or participation, directly or indirectly, in conduct of the enterprise's affairs. Reves et al. v. Ernst & Young (1993) 507 U.S. 170, 113 S. Ct. 1163, 122 L. Ed. 2d 525, 541

Accountant was liable in third-party contribution action filed by insurer seeking subrogation, even though accountant not named in original complaint, because accountant would have been liable for damages if named in original action. Employers Ins. v. Musick, Peeler & Garrett (9th Cir. 1992) 954 F.2d 575, 579-580

