accuracy gained through a higher level of process might be outweighed by the excessive cost involved. The need for administrative efficiency is balanced, however, against the importance of the private interests at stake [Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 335, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18] . The more important the interest at stake, the greater the degree of accuracy required [see, e.g., Veilleux v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 235, 242, 220 Cal. Rptr. 568 (disabled worker cannot have vocational rehabilitation benefits terminated without prior hearing)]. For example, a greater tolerance for inaccuracy would be present in the context of a 10-day school suspension than in that of expulsion [Goss v. Lopez (1975) 419 U.S. 565, 576, 95 S. Ct. 729, 42 L. Ed. 2d 725 ; compare Dixon v. Love (1977) 431 U.S. 105, 114-115, 97 S. Ct. 1723, 52 L. Ed. 2d 172 (important public interest in road safety and prompt removal of safety hazard justified immediate license revocation) with Bell v. Burson (1971) 402 U.S. 535, 540, 91 S. Ct. 1586, 29 L. Ed. 2d 90 (when only purpose of statute was to obtain security from which to pay judgments against licensee resulting from accident, insufficient public interest to justify immediate license revocation)]. Moreover, when the underlying issues are complex and require difficult factual determinations, nearly the full panoply of procedural safeguards in civil cases may be required [see Morrissey v. Brewer (1972) 408 U.S. 471, 488-489, 92 S. Ct. 2593, 33 L. Ed. 2d 484] .

41-470A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 470A.33

§ 470A.33 Impact of Availability of Post-Deprivation Due Process and Other Relief

The availability of post-deprivation due process or other post-deprivation relief will affect the kind of predeprivation process that is required. The existence of extensive post-deprivation relief does not justify a taking of a recognized interest without some kind of predeprivation process, but the existence of extensive post-deprivation relief is a relevant consideration in determining the required level of predeprivation process [Cleveland Bd. of Educ. v. Loudermill (1985) 470 U.S. 532, 545, 105 S. Ct. 1487, 84 L. Ed. 2d 494 ; Gilbert v. City of Sunnyvale (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1264, 1280-1281, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 297 (discharged police officer was given sufficient notice and documents to defend himself in pre-termination hearing; officer was not entitled to full discovery of all documents; pre-termination procedures were adequate given officer's right to more elaborate post-termination hearing procedures)]. If the state affords extensive and formal post-deprivation relief, the predeprivation hearing may be more informal. Similarly, although the matter is not well settled, it appears that the presence of other forms of post-deprivation relief may affect the level of process. With regard to reputation interests, the availability of a post-deprivation defamation suit was significant to the court's holding in Paul v. Davis, (1976) 424 U.S. 693, 698, 96 S. Ct. 1155, 47 L. Ed. 2d 405 , that reputation could be taken without prior procedural due process. While in most instances the availability of some collateral attack on government actions, such as injunction or mandamus proceedings, is no substitute for procedural due process in advance of the deprivation [Fuentes v. Shevin (1972) 407 U.S. 67, 81-82, 92 S. Ct. 1983, 32 L. Ed. 2d 556] , in some situations the availability of extensive and formal post-deprivation relief will be considered by the court in the balancing process [see Hudson v. Palmer (1984) 468 U.S. 517, 534-535, 104 S. Ct. 3194, 82 L. Ed. 2d 393 (intentional destruction of prison inmate's property held not to violate procedural due process if adequate post-deprivation common law remedies exist)].

In Memphis Light, Gas & Water Div. v. Craft (1978) 436 U.S. 1, 98 S. Ct. 1554, 56 L. Ed. 2d 30 , later injunctive relief restoring terminated utility services was inadequate procedural due process because even a temporary termination of utility service worked considerable harm. The risk of error in utility cutoff decisions was not so insubstantial as to warrant dispensing with all pretermination process prior to termination, and the availability of an injunction or other post-deprivation relief was too bounded by procedural restraints and too susceptible to delay to provide an effective safeguard against erroneous deprivation [Memphis Light, Gas & Water Div. v. Craft (1978) 436 U.S. 1, 20-21, 98 S. Ct. 1554, 56 L. Ed. 2d 30] . However, parking enforcement statute did not violate due process of law when it required parties seeking to challenge parking tickets to deposit the amount of the parking penalty as a condition of being granted an administrative hearing with a refund of the deposited penalty if the claimant won their claim [Tyler v. County of Alameda (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 777, 787-788, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 643 ; Love v. City of Monterey (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 562, 564, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 911] .

The U.S. Supreme Court rejected a challenge on due process grounds to the California prevailing wage law statutes which authorized the state Labor commissioner to withhold contract moneys when a contractor on a public works project violated prevailing wage laws. Under the statute, there was no right to a pre-withholding hearing. The contractor claimed a deprivation of property without due process of law. Due process of law was satisfied because existing judicial remedies for breach of contract provided adequate remedies for the party seeking to challenge withholding of those moneys [Lujan v. G. & G. Fire Sprinklers, Inc. (2001) 532 U.S. 189, 121 S. Ct. 1446, 1452, 149 L. Ed. 2d 391] . The California Court of Appeal determined that the Division of Labor Standards Enforcement did not provide the hearing required by law to a contractor who had funds withhold for violations of the prevailing wage laws. The court also held that a reasonable cause hearing, authorized under 8 Cal. Code Regs. § 16414, was not an adequate hearing because it was not a trial type, administrative hearing that was required to satisfy the governing statute and due process requirements under Lujan [Mobley v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1221, 1241-1243] .

§ 470A.40 Variable Nature of Due Process Procedures

Procedural due process does not require that the same procedures be followed in every case. For example, in Fuentes v. Shevin [Fuentes v. Shevin (1972) 407 U.S. 67, 92 S. Ct. 1983] , the U.S. Supreme Court recognized that although the household goods attached by a creditor are not necessarily of the same importance as wages [Sniadach v. Family Finance Corp. (1969) 395 U.S. 337, 89 S. Ct. 1820, 23 L. Ed. 2d 349] , and welfare benefits [Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287] , they are nonetheless entitled to some level of procedural due process [Fuentes v. Shevin (1972) 407 U.S. 67, 89, 92 S. Ct. 1983, 32 L. Ed. 2d 556] . Each aspect of procedure required will vary depending on the competing state and private interests [Coleman v. Department of Personnel Administration (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1102, 1119, 278 Cal. Rptr. 346, 805 P.2d 300 (procedural due process protections apply to automatic resignation statute (Gov. Code § 19996.2(a)) under which a state employee who is absent without leave is deemed to have resigned from state employment; employees are entitled under due process to notice and opportunity to respond before neutral fact-finder, but not to post-resignation hearing)]. For example, notice is an elementary requirement when a liberty or property interest is taken, but the type of notice required will vary depending on the interest at stake [compare Goss v. Lopez (1975) 419 U.S. 565, 581-582, 95 S. Ct. 729, 42 L. Ed. 2d 725 (only notice required for 10-day public school suspension was principal's informing student of suspension just before imposition of suspension) with Morrissey v. Brewer (1972) 408 U.S. 471, 488-489, 92 S. Ct. 2593, 33 L. Ed. 2d 484 (formal notice of charges with adequate time to prepare defense required for parole revocation)]. Since the requirements of fair procedure vary to such a great degree, it is not possible to prescribe what procedures might be required in all cases or even in any particular case, but the range of possible procedures are discussed in §§ 470A.41 -470A.47.

§ 470A.41 Range of Hearing Alternatives

[1] Informal Hearings

For relatively minor takings of property or liberty interests, even very informal procedures are sufficient for procedural due process. Thus, in Goss v. Lopez (1975) 419 U.S. 565, 95 S. Ct. 729, 42 L. Ed. 2d 725 , a 10-day suspension from school, although a taking of both a property interest and a liberty interest that required some level of process prior to the taking, was held a minor intrusion on the right to a public school education and a minimal blight on reputation warranting an extremely informal hearing consisting of the principal's informing the student of the suspension and the reasons for it and giving the student an opportunity to reply [Goss v. Lopez (1975) 419 U.S. 565, 581-582, 95 S. Ct. 729, 42 L. Ed. 2d 725] . In Memphis Light, Gas & Water Div. v. Craft (1978) 436 U.S. 1, 98 S. Ct. 1554, 56 L. Ed. 2d 30 , involving the cut-off of public utility services, procedural due process entitled the customer only to an informal hearing consisting of talking to some utility employee who had the discretion to consider the customer's side of the story and, if acceptable, to decide not to discontinue utility services. The employee was not required to be a neutral party or to undertake a full consideration of all the customer's claims [Memphis Light, Gas & Water Div. v. Craft (1978) 436 U.S. 1, 13-15, 98 S. Ct. 1554, 56 L. Ed. 2d 30] . In a California case involving the right to participate in a work furlough, the court held that, despite the work furlough administrator's absolute statutory discretion to determine participation in the program, due process protection of dignitary interests required the administrator at least to consider, on a case-by-case basis, each applicant's claimed interest in participating [In re Thomas (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 721, 728, 206 Cal. Rptr. 719] .

When the administrative determination is made on the basis of expert opinion, an informal hearing, typically nonadversarial and conducted before the expert rather than a professional fact finder, is often all that is required [see, e.g., Youngberg v. Romeo (1982) 457 U.S. 307, 323, 102 S. Ct. 2452, 73 L. Ed. 2d 28 (involuntarily committed mentally ill person had due process right to treatment, but only as determined by institution's "appropriate professional"); Vitek v. Jones (1980) 445 U.S. 480, 491, 100 S. Ct. 1254, 63 L. Ed. 2d 552 (due process for transfer of prisoner to mental hospital required only that psychologist or psychiatrist at hospital make determination that transfer was necessary); Parham v. J.R. (1979) 442 U.S. 584, 613-616, 99 S. Ct. 2493, 61 L. Ed. 2d 101 (due process for commitment of juvenile by his parents or by state as ward of court to mental hospital required only finding by hospital doctor that child needed kind of services that hospital could provide)].

An informal hearing is often all that is required before a prospective interest is taken [Greenholtz v. Nebraska Penal Inmates (1979) 442 U.S. 1, 14-15, 99 S. Ct. 2100, 60 L. Ed. 2d 668 (application for parole or probation)]. When the interest is presently held, however, such as a previously granted parole or probation, a higher level of process is required before the interest may be revoked [Morrissey v. Brewer (1972) 408 U.S. 471, 92 S. Ct. 2593, 33 L. Ed. 2d 484, 488-489 (parole or probation revocation)]. An informal hearing may be the only kind of procedural due process consistent with competing public interests. In Smith v. Organization of Foster Families [Smith v. Organization of Foster Families (1977) 431 U.S. 816, 97 S. Ct. 2094, 53 L. Ed. 2d 14] , for example, the U.S. Supreme Court expressed reluctance to recognize any procedural due process liberty interest in foster parents regarding the custody of a foster child, emphasizing the state's concern to protect the natural parents' substantive liberty interest in regaining custody without going through unnecessarily burdensome procedures [Smith v. Organization of Foster Families (1977) 431 U.S. 816, 846, 97 S. Ct. 2094, 53 L. Ed. 2d 14 ; see also Hewitt v. Helms (1983) 459 U.S. 460, 472, 103 S. Ct. 864, 74 L. Ed. 2d 675 (special demands of prison security required only "informal, nonadversary review" of record in proceedings to impose administrative segregation, despite prisoner's liberty interest in freedom from segregation)]. A California Court of Appeal has noted, however, that the case law is more equivocal on whether foster parents who have reason to expect a lasting relationship with the foster child have a protected liberty interest meriting a higher level of procedural due process [In re Jamie G. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 675, 682, 241 Cal. Rptr. 869] .

[2] Formal Administrative Hearings

A petitioner's request for procedural due process often means the level of process found in a formal administrative hearing. The formal administrative hearing suggests several features, including the following [see Andersen v. Regents of University of California (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 763, 770-773, 99 Cal. Rptr. 531 , cert. denied, 409 U.S. 1006, 93 S. Ct. 447, 34 L. Ed. 2d 298 (1972)] :

- An impartial fact finder.
- An opportunity to present evidence, including the calling of witnesses.
- The opportunity to test the truthfulness of opposing testimony through the use of various techniques of the adversarial system, such as cross-examination.
- Representation by counsel of one's choice.

This kind of formal administrative hearing is required before the taking of such important interests as freedom from confinement. Thus, the Court has required a very high level of process in parole [see Morrissey v. Brewer (1972) 408 U.S. 471, 486-487, 92 S. Ct. 2593, 33 L. Ed. 2d 484 (notice of hearing, its purposes, and alleged violations must be given parolee; parolee may appear, speak, present evidence, and, in certain circumstances, confront adverse witnesses)], and probation revocation proceedings [see Gagnon v. Scarpelli (1973) 411 U.S. 778, 786, 93 S. Ct. 1756, 36 L. Ed. 2d 656] . Because of the importance of professional and other licenses, a formal administrative hearing may also be required before such a license may be suspended or revoked. In most instances, state law provides a high level of procedural due process before suspension or revocation. Failure to accord this high level of process would seem to deny procedural due process rights [see, e.g., In re Ruffalo (1968) 390 U.S. 544, 88 S. Ct. 1222, 20 L. Ed. 2d 117 ; In re Strick (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 891, 898, 196 Cal. Rptr. 509, 671 P.2d 1251 (due process requires that attorney be given notice and opportunity to be heard before making of final disciplinary order); Franz v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 124, 140, 181 Cal. Rptr. 732, 642 P.2d 792 (due process requires, when agency intends to rely on members' expert knowledge to resolve legislative-fact issues, that it notify parties and provide opportunity for rebuttal)].

A sheriff's deputy who was given a written reprimand removing the deputy from a special assignment (SWAT team duty) coupled with a related pay reduction was entitled under due process of law and under Gov. Code § 3304 to a full evidentiary hearing to challenge the reprimand and pay reduction. The agency procedures did not provide a full evidentiary hearing, and thus the deputy was entitled to a full administrative appeal to the county civil service commission to obtain the evidentiary hearing [Giuffre v. Sparks (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 1322, 1332-1333, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 171] .

A police officer who was reassigned to a lower pay grade by his employer has a significant private interest in continued receipt of his paycheck [Gilbert v. Homar (1997) 520 U. S. 924, 932, 117 S. Ct. 1807, 138 L. Ed. 2d 120] , and therefore was entitled under due process of law to hearing procedures in which the police department had the burden of proof of showing that the criteria in the department manual for reassignment to a lower pay grade have been established. The agency procedures placed the burden of proof on the police officer, and that violated due process of law [Brown v. City of Los Angeles (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 155, 175-177, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474 ; Los Angeles Police Protective League v. City of Los Angeles (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 85, 92-94, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 911] . The due process right to a neutral decision maker was also violated because the police chief both authorized the reassignment to a lower pay grade, and was also the final decision maker at the end of the administrative hearing. This lack of neutrality, coupled with other factors, results in a significant risk of unfairness to the police officer, whose property interests under due process of law are adversely affected [Brown v. City of Los Angeles (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 155, 177-179, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474] . However, limiting the pool of hearing officers to high ranking employees within the police department does not violate due process of law because the officers are employees of the police department, and the affected police officer picks three possible hearing officers from the list of eligible officers [Brown v. City of Los Angeles (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 155, 178-179, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474] .

[3] More Than Informal But Less Than Formal Hearings

The cases on government employment have required a level of process somewhat above the informal hearings of Goss v. Lopez [Goss v. Lopez (1975) 419 U.S. 565, 95 S. Ct. 729, 42 L. Ed. 2d 725] , but not of the formal adversarial variety of Morrissey v. Brewer [Morrissey v. Brewer (1972) 408 U.S. 471, 92 S. Ct. 2593, 33 L. Ed. 2d 484] . If state law recognizes a property interest in the job, someone other than the supervisor who made the initial decision to dismiss the employee must have the authority to review the dismissal, taking into consideration the employee's claim as well as the supervisor's assertions [see, e.g., Perry v. Sindermann (1972) 408 U.S. 593, 92 S. Ct. 2694, 33 L. Ed. 2d 570] . The fact finder is not required to have the kind of independence expected of an administrative officer overseeing a formal administrative hearing, and the petitioner does not necessarily have the same right to representation by outside counsel. A more summary pretermination hearing is permissible if a more formal hearing occurs after termination [Cleveland Bd. of Educ. v. Loudermill (1985) 470 U.S. 532, 547-548, 105 S. Ct. 1487, 84 L. Ed. 2d 494] . State employees who are absent without leave and are subject to the automatic resignation provisions of California law [Gov. Code § 19996.2(a)] have due process rights that are triggered by the state involvement in the decision to treat an absent employee as someone who has automatically resigned. Due process procedures required in this situation are notice to the employee and the opportunity to respond before a neutral fact-finder. However, the employee is not entitled to a post-resignation administrative hearing [Coleman v. Department of Personnel Administration (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1102, 1119, 278 Cal. Rptr. 346, 805 P.2d 300] . In one case, an asymmetrical hearing procedures did not violate due process of law [California Consumer Health Care Council, Inc. v. California Department of Managed Health Care (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 684, 691-693, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 215 (hearing procedures did not violate due process of law when enrollees in health plans did not have the opportunity to see or rebut the filings of a health care plan, even thought the plan had the opportunity to see and rebut the filings of enrollees)].

In a public employment setting with unionized employees, the California Court of Appeal held that a collective bargaining agreement mandated grievance procedure provided adequate procedural due process protection to a union employee of a local public transit district facing discharge for cause. The employee's due process rights included notice, an opportunity to be heard, and the opportunity for arbitration of the employee's dismissal. However, the employee's union had the sole authority to request an arbitration hearing under the collective bargaining agreement, and the union decided not to request arbitration of the former employee's discharge. The Court of Appeal held that this was sufficient due process procedures when the union is subject to a duty of fair representation toward its members [Jones v. Omnitrans (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 273, 282-283, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 706 (employee of local public transit district was discharged for cause, and discharge was not arbitrated because union decided not to proceed to arbitration on employee's behalf)].

When a city holds a public hearing to determine whether to abate a public nuisance, the property owner whose property is affected has a due process right to adequate notice, and the opportunity to respond to the city's claims, but the owner is not entitled under due process of law procedural requirements to a formal hearing with discovery, testimony under oath, cross examination, and use of the subpoena power to compel witnesses' testimony [Mohilef v. Janovici (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 267, 276, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 721] . A dairy that discharged manure and waste water into a ditch that eventually led to pollution of waters in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta was ordered to cleanup and abate these discharges by a regional water quality control board without being given the opportunity for a pre-abatement order hearing. The dairy challenged the lack of a pre order hearing on due process grounds. The Court of Appeal rejected the challenge based on a balancing of competing interests under the Matthews test. The court concluded that the private interest of the dairy that was affected by the order was limited, that the existing procedures which included an informal opportunity to contest the order with the issuing regional board, the right to petition the State Board to review the order, and the right to seek judicial review to challenge the order minimized the risk of error, and the governmental interest was substantial, preventing damage to public health and safety from waste water discharges [Machado v. State Water Resources Control Board (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 720, 726-728, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116] .

[4] Judicial Hearings

In some instances, procedural due process requires that a court in a civil proceeding make the necessary determination. The very fact that a judge and the judicial process are involved implies a high level of procedural due process. For example, in Freedman v. Maryland [Freedman v. Maryland (1965) 380 U.S. 51, 85 S. Ct. 734, 13 L. Ed. 2d 649] , while the U.S. Supreme Court recognized the legitimacy of an administrative procedure for licensing sexually explicit movies, it required the agency either to grant a requested license or to obtain a judicial finding that the movie was not entitled to first amendment protection in order to deny a license. Any limitations imposed before the judicial proceeding had to be as short as possible consistent with the necessities of the judicial process [Freedman v. Maryland (1965) 380 U.S. 51, 58-59, 85 S. Ct. 734, 13 L. Ed. 2d 649 ; see also Bergeron v. Department of Health Services (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 17, 27, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 481 (judicial hearing satisfies due process requirements for Medi-Cal fraud investigation)].

Judicial protections for first amendment protected conduct (expressive conduct) have been codified in California legislation [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.8 (expedited judicial review of public agency decisions related to permits when those permits regulate first amendment protected conduct)].

For reputation interests, the availability of a post-deprivation defamation suit was significant to the Court's holding in Paul v. Davis, (1976) 424 U.S. 693, 698, 96 S. Ct. 1155, 47 L. Ed. 2d 405 , that reputation could be taken without prior procedural due process. In other situations, the availability of extensive and formal post-deprivation relief will be considered by the court in the balancing process [Hudson v. Palmer (1984) 468 U.S. 517, 534-535, 104 S. Ct. 3194, 82 L. Ed. 2d 393 (intentional destruction of prison inmate's property held not to violate procedural due process if adequate post-deprivation common law remedies exist)]. Common law tort remedies (civil lawsuit) were held to be sufficient to satisfy due process of law requirements in Ingraham v. Wright (1977) 430 U.S. 651, 682-683, 97 S. Ct. 1401, 51 L. Ed. 2d 711 a case challenging the use of corporal punishment in a school system. The availability of judicial remedies to seek damages for excessive punishment led the court to hold that pre-action notice and an opportunity to be heard were not required before school administrators paddled students to maintain school discipline [Ingraham v. Wright (1977) 430 U.S. 651,682-683, 430 U.S. 651, 683, 97 S. Ct. 1401, 51 L. Ed. 2d 711] . Finally, the U.S. Supreme Court rejected a challenge on due process grounds to the California prevailing wage law statutes which authorized the state Labor Commissioner to withhold contract moneys when a contractor on a public works project violated prevailing wage laws. Under the statute, there was no right to a pre-withholding hearing. The contractor claimed a deprivation of property without due process of law. Due process of law was satisfied because existing judicial remedies for breach of contract provided adequate remedies for the party seeking to challenge withholding of those moneys [Lujan v. G. & G. Fire Sprinklers, Inc. (2001) 532 U.S. 189, 121 S. Ct. 1446, 1452, 149 L. Ed. 2d 391] .

[5] Ministerial Decisions and Hearing Rights

Ministerial decisions ordinarily do not require additional procedures to ensure accuracy, and the U.S. Supreme Court has held that when the "substantial public interest in administrative efficiency would be impeded by the availability of a pretermination hearing in every case," procedural due process will not require such a hearing [Dixon v. Love (1977) 431 U.S. 105, 114, 97 S. Ct. 1723, 52 L. Ed. 2d 172] . In one ministerial case [Escondido Imports, Inc. v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 834, 839-840, 193 Cal. Rptr. 772] , a California court upheld a Department of Motor Vehicles assessment of $5 to $15 fines on automobile dismantlers and dealers for failure to submit on time certain required documents. The court said that although procedural due process normally required a pretermination hearing, the small property interest and the minimal risk of error involved justified limiting relief to post-deprivation procedures [see also Civil Service Asso. v. San Francisco (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 552, 562, 150 Cal. Rptr. 129, 586 P.2d 162 (involving five-day suspension of civil service employees without prior hearing); Willson v. State Personnel Bd. (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 312, 317, 169 Cal. Rptr. 823 (allowing termination without prior hearing of person voluntarily absent for five consecutive working days under constructive resignation statute)].

§ 470A.42 Timing of Hearing

[1] General Requirement of Hearing Before Taking Property or Interest

In general, the state must afford "some kind of hearing" [Wolff v. McDonnell (1974) 418 U.S. 539, 557-558, 94 S. Ct. 2963, 41 L. Ed. 2d 935] before taking any liberty or property interest [see Vaessen v. Woods (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 749, 757, 200 Cal. Rptr. 893, 677 P.2d 1183 (termination of AFDC benefits must be preceded by adequate notice and opportunity for recipient to challenge proposed action); Bostean v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 95, 117, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 523 (due process requires notice and predeprivation opportunity to respond before public employee is placed on involuntary illness leave of absence); State of California v. Superior Court (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 848, 863, 197 Cal. Rptr. 914 (hearing must be held before imposing discipline on real estate licensee)]. An "extraordinary situation" must exist before this requirement of a pretaking hearing is excused [United States v. $8,850 (1983) 461 U.S. 555, 562 n.12, 103 S. Ct. 2005, 76 L. Ed. 2d 143 ; Boddie v. Connecticut (1971) 401 U.S. 371, 378-379, 91 S. Ct. 780, 28 L. Ed. 2d 113] .

The nature and scope of the required pretaking hearing depend on the relative weights of the competing government and private interests [Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 335, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18] . In Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 , which involved the termination of welfare benefits, the United States Supreme Court held that the governmental interest in the "speedy resolution of questions of eligibility" justified limiting the pretermination hearing to minimum procedural safeguards. However, the extensive procedure the Court required, giving the welfare recipient the right to a hearing with the chance to introduce oral evidence and cross-examine adverse witnesses, as well as the right to retained counsel, "closely approximated a judicial trial" [Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 267, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 ; Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 333, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18] . Nonetheless, the Court in Matthews v. Eldridge [Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18] , emphasized that no general requirement exists that a full evidentiary hearing be afforded before a taking of a liberty or property interest; rather, what is required is a prior hearing consistent with the competing interest [Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 335, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18] .

The leading California case is Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 124 Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P.2d 774 , which held that the California statutes regulating state civil service employment violated procedural due process. Although California law allowed permanent employees to be removed only "for cause," the authorized state representative was allowed to dismiss or otherwise discipline an employee simply by notifying him or her. The employee was entitled on request to a full evidentiary hearing within a reasonable time after any serious disciplinary action, with the right to reinstatement and back pay if successful. Although a full evidentiary hearing was not required, at a minimum, preremoval safeguards must include notice of the proposed action, the reasons for the action, a copy of the charges and material on which the action is based, and the right to respond, either orally or in writing, to the authority initially imposing discipline [Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 215, 124 Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P.2d 774] . These procedural protections apply to a permanent public employee who is demoted [Ng v. State Personnel Bd. (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 600, 606, 137 Cal. Rptr. 387] , suspended without pay [Civil Service Asso. v. San Francisco (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 552, 558-560, 150 Cal. Rptr. 129, 586 P.2d 162] , or dismissed [Chang v. City of Palos Verdes Estates (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 557, 564, 159 Cal. Rptr. 630] , but do not apply to an employee who has received a written reprimand because that employee does not suffer any loss of pay or benefits [Stanton v. City of West Sacramento (1991) 226 Cal. App. 3d 1438, 1442, 277 Cal. Rptr. 478] . A public employee who is demoted in lieu of being laid off is not entitled under due process of law to a pre-demotion hearing but rather a post-demotion hearing is enough [Duncan v. Department of Personnel Administration (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1166, 1170-1171, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257] .

Notice and hearing must come at a time "when the deprivation can be prevented" [Fuentes v. Shevin (1972) 407 U.S. 67, 81, 92 S. Ct. 1983, 32 L. Ed. 2d 556] . Temporary, nonfinal deprivations of property are likewise required to be preceded by notice and hearing [Fuentes v. Shevin (1972) 407 U.S. 67, 85, 92 S. Ct. 1983, 32 L. Ed. 2d 556] .

A community college instructor's due process rights were not violated by a pre-hearing termination notice because the court construed the notice to be invalid, and the instructor was given a fair hearing before an ALJ prior to the effective date of termination [California Teachers Association v. Butte Community College District Board of Trustees (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1306-1307, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 269] .

The governing board of the Los Angeles Unified School District properly met in closed session consistent with Gov. Code § 54957 to begin the process to dismiss a permanent certificated teacher without giving the teacher the 24-hour notice otherwise required by Gov. Code § 54957. This was because the 24-hour notice requirement did not apply when the public employee had the right to an evidentiary hearing under Educ. Code § 44934 subsequent to the closed session. Furthermore, the teacher did not have a due process right to notice and opportunity to be heard before the governing board began the dismissal proceedings [Kolter v. Commission of Professional Competence of the Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1349, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 620] .

A school bus driver who submitted an allegedly adulterated urine specimen in a random drug test was entitled by due process of law to a hearing before the DMV prior to the revocation of her school bus driver's certificate [Menge v. Reed (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 1134, 1137-1138, 101 Cal Rptr. 2d 443] .

Termination of doctor's hospital staff privileges for cause was challenged by doctor because of lack of a pre-termination hearing. The Court of Appeal concluded that physician had a due process and statutory [Bus. & Prof. Code § 809] right to a pre-termination hearing before staff privileges could be terminated [Sahlolbei v. Providence Healthcare, Inc. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1147-1150, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 598] . The Court of Appeal held that physician was entitled to a preliminary injunction reinstating staff privileges until the required hearing procedures were completed [Sahlolbei v. Providence Healthcare, Inc. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1160, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 598] . The court also held that physician did not have to exhaust internal hospital grievance procedures, including a post-termination procedure to assert a claim that the hospital failed to follow hearing procedures required by law (statutory procedures codified under Bus & Prof. Code § 809) [Sahlolbei v. Providence Healthcare, Inc. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1154-1155, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 598] .

The California Court of Appeal applied the four-part balancing test from People v. Ramirez (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 260, 269, 158 Cal. Rptr. 316, 599 P.2d 622 to hold that a physician's due process rights were violated when the superior Court issued an order prohibiting the doctor from practicing medicine as a condition of bail for criminal charges brought against the doctor. The doctor was not given notice nor a full hearing before his license was effectively suspended [Gray v. Superior Court (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 629, 637-638, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 50] . The bail condition was requested by the Attorney General, who appeared for the Medical Board of California at the doctor's arraignment on criminal charges without giving advance notice to the doctor that the Board was going to request suspension of the doctor's license [Gray v. Superior Court (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 629, 635-636, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 50] . The court held that the doctor was deprived of the right to practice medicine without notice, without an opportunity to confront the charges and witnesses against him, and without a full hearing in violation of due process of law [Gray v. Superior Court (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 629, 637-638, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 50] .

However, the California Court of Appeal rejected both a facial and an as applied challenge to statutory procedures in the California Education Code [Educ. Code § 56366.6(a), (b); 5 Cal. Code Regs.§ 3068] that provided for a post-suspension and post-revocation hearing to private special education schools that had their certifications to operate suspended or revoked by the Superintendent of Public Instruction. The schools argued that they were entitled to a pre-suspension or pre-revocation hearing. The Court of Appeal rejected that argument based upon the application of the three Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 335, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed 2d 18 factors, the private interest, the risk of error with existing procedures, and the governmental interest, as well as California due process of law principles [Cal. Const., Art. 1, Sect. 7(a)]. The court held that a post-suspension or post-revocation hearing satisfied due process of law requirements because it provides a reasonably prompt method for determining the validity of a suspension or revocation in circumstances in which there is a strong governmental interest--protecting disabled children [Cal. Ass'n of PSES v. Cal. Dept. of Educ. (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 360, 374-376, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 888] . Another California Court of Appeal upheld the constitutionality of statutory provisions [Ins. Code § 1748.5] that authorize the Insurance Commissioner to immediately suspend the license of an insurer when the licensee's have been charged with felony criminal offenses and the failure to issue a suspension order would threaten the solvency of the insurer, or cause financial or other injury to any person. In this case, bail bond licensees challenged the immediate suspension, and argued that they had a due process right to a pre-suspension hearing. The court rejected that challenge and held that an immediate post suspension hearing satisfied due process requirements in this case because there was a substantial governmental interest in prompt suspensions to preserve the insurance industry, and the public's confidence in that industry [American Liberty Bail Bonds v. Garamendi (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1044, 1058-1060, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 541] .

[2] Limitations on General Rule

[a] When Termination of Liberty or Property Interest Is Temporary

In Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18 , the Court applied a balancing test [see §§ 470A.30- 470A.33, above , for discussion of balancing test] to uphold the termination of Social Security disability benefits prior to any oral hearing, let alone an evidentiary hearing. In general, no right exists to an evidentiary hearing before the temporary termination of a liberty or property interest [Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 333, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18] . In Matthews, the recipient of medical benefits was entitled to written notice of termination and an opportunity to respond in writing. A formal evidentiary post-termination hearing with judicial review was available after a delay of a year or more. The Court noted that receipt of Social Security disability payments was not based on need, and that disabled persons might have other sources of support and would not necessarily be in the same desperate need as the recipient of welfare benefits, so an erroneous termination would not have universally the same adverse impact pending correction in posttermination administrative proceedings [Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 342, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18] . Crucial to the Court's holding was its confidence in the existing pretermination procedures [Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 347, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18] . Although procedural due process ordinarily requires a hearing, when the potential length or severity of the deprivation does not indicate a likelihood of serious loss and the procedures underlying the predeprivation decision are reliable enough to minimize the risk of error, the government may act without providing additional advance procedural safeguards [Memphis Light, Gas & Water Div. v. Craft (1978) 436 U.S. 1, 14-15, 98 S. Ct. 1554, 56 L. Ed. 2d 30] .

[b] When Deprivation Is Necessary to Assure Public Health and Safety

Summary administrative action resulting in deprivation of significant property or liberty interests is justified when necessary to assure public health and safety [Pollack v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 367, 380, 211 Cal. Rptr. 748, 696 P.2d 141] . In one case, for example, the U.S Supreme Court held that the authority of the secretary of the interior to order an immediate cessation of a surface mining operation did not violate the Fifth Amendment due process clause [Hodel v. Virginia Surface Min. & Recl. Assn. (1981) 452 U.S. 264, 298-303, 101 S. Ct. 2352, 69 L. Ed. 2d 1] .

[c] When Exigent Circumstances Exist

Exigent circumstances may justify the termination of a property or liberty interest without a prior hearing. Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 recognized this exception to the general requirement of a pretermination hearing, but limited it to situations involving some immediate threat to the public coupled with some private interest of lesser importance [Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 263 n. 10, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287] . For example, although an official of a federally regulated bank had a property interest in continued employment, the governmental interest in the integrity of the banking system permitted a post-deprivation hearing rather than a prior hearing [see Federal Deposit Ins. Corp. v. Mallen (1988) 486 U.S. 230, 241-242, 108 S. Ct. 1780, 100 L. Ed. 2d 265] . Similarly, the integrity of the Medi-Cal system and the interest in preventing fraud justifies a temporary withholding of payments to those persons who are subject to criminal investigations for fraud [see Bergeron v. Department of Health Services (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 17, 27, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 481] .

Few modern U.S. Supreme Court cases have directly involved the exigent circumstances exception. In the debtor-creditor cases, the Court has recognized in dicta that summary seizure of a debtor's property would be appropriate in extraordinary situations, such as if the debtor were about to dispose of the disputed asset [Sniadach v. Family Finance Corp. (1969) 395 U.S. 337, 339, 89 S. Ct. 1820, 23 L. Ed. 2d 349 ; see also Blair v. Pitchess (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 258, 280, 96 Cal. Rptr. 42, 486 P.2d 1242 (striking down California claim and delivery statute)]. In Barry v. Barchi [Barry v. Barchi (1979) 443 U.S. 55, 99 S. Ct. 2642, 61 L. Ed. 2d 365] , the Court upheld the summary suspension of a licensed horse trainer. Although the trainer had a substantial property interest in the license, the state's important interest in assuring the integrity of the racing carried on under its auspices justified the summary action [Barry v. Barchi (1979) 443 U.S. 55, 64, 99 S. Ct. 2642, 61 L. Ed. 2d 365] .

The California Supreme Court, in a debtor-creditor case that rejected the emergency doctrine as justification for California's prehearing attachment procedures, analyzed the extraordinary circumstances that might justify summary procedures [Randone v. Appellate Dep't of Superior Court (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 536, 554, 96 Cal. Rptr. 709, 488 P.2d 13] :

> First, the seizures were undertaken to benefit the general public rather than to serve the interests of a private individual. ... Second, the procedures could only be initiated by an authorized governmental official charged with a public responsibility. ... Third, in each case the nature of the risks required immediate action, and any delay ... could potentially have caused serious harm to the public. Fourth, the property appropriated did not vitally touch an individual's life or livelihood. Finally, the "takings" were conducted under narrowly drawn statutes that sanctioned the summary procedure only when great necessity actually arose.

Many of the commonly cited summary seizure cases predate the modern concern for procedural due process, and their application of the exigent circumstances test raises an unresolved issue: whether exigent circumstances must be present in the particular case as long as cases of that type typically present such circumstances. The older cases held that post-termination proceedings could correct for any error in the application of the particular facts [see, e.g., Ewing v. Mytinger & Casselberry, Inc. (1950) 339 U.S. 594, 600, 70 S. Ct. 870, 94 L. Ed. 1088 (approving seizure of vitamins for which false curative powers were claimed); North American Cold Storage Co. v. Chicago (1908) 211 U.S. 306, 320, 29 S. Ct. 101, 53 L. Ed. 195 (seizure of poultry alleged to be unfit for human consumption)]. A recent California case emphasized that some emergency must exist in the actual case and that the governing statute must narrowly specify the extraordinary circumstances to which it applies; this approach seems closer to the spirit of modern procedural due process law [Menefee & Son v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 774, 782, 245 Cal. Rptr. 166] .

Even when a prior hearing is unnecessary because a condition is so dangerous that it requires action be taken without delay, a hearing must be held after the emergency taking to review the action and to obtain relief if the initial taking was wrongful [People v. Lockheed Shipbuilding & Constr. Co. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 776, 781, 111 Cal. Rptr. 106 (safety order of California State Division of Industrial Safety); see Barry v. Barchi (1979) 443 U.S. 55, 66, 99 S. Ct. 2642, 61 L. Ed. 2d 365] .

In a case involving the impounding of farm animals, a California Court of Appeal held that neither the fact that the owner could initiate later procedures to review the propriety of the initial taking nor the fact that the owner probably was guilty of the violation justified the seizure without at least some form of notice and hearing. Summary seizure is justified, the court held, only when directly necessary to secure an important governmental or general public interest, or when there is a special need for very prompt action, and some government official exercises narrowly drawn statutory power in determining the emergency. Even when summary seizure is held consistent with procedural due process, the government has the responsibility to initiate a post-seizure hearing. The particular statute did not have such a requirement [Carrera v. Bertaini (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 721, 727-730, 134 Cal. Rptr. 14] . The availability of a collateral judicial remedy cannot sustain a seizure procedure that provides no hearing whatsoever, either before or after the taking [Kash Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 294, 308-309, 138 Cal. Rptr. 53, 562 P.2d 1302 ; Menefee & Son v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 774, 781, 245 Cal. Rptr. 166] .

[d] When Taking Is Incompatible With Any Form of Pretermination Hearing

Certain kinds of takings are incompatible with any form of pretermination hearing, so that aggrieved persons are necessarily limited to post-deprivation challenges to the governmental action. These kinds of takings include the arrest of an individual [Baker v. McCollan (1979) 443 U.S. 137, 145, 99 S. Ct. 2689, 61 L. Ed. 2d 433] , seizures of goods by customs officials [United States v. $8,850 (1983) 461 U.S. 555, 562-563, 103 S. Ct. 2005, 76 L. Ed. 2d 143] , and seizures of vehicles used for drug trafficking [Calero-Toledo v. Pearson Yacht Leasing Co. (1974) 416 U.S. 663, 678-680, 94 S. Ct. 2080, 40 L. Ed. 2d 452] .

[3] Administrative Delay as a Due Process Violation and Procedural Fairness

The court applies a balancing test to determine whether administrative delay violates procedural due process [United States v. $8,850 (1983) 461 U.S. 555, 556, 103 S. Ct. 2005, 76 L. Ed. 2d 143 , citing Barker v. Wingo (1972) 407 U.S. 514, 92 S. Ct. 2182, 33 L. Ed. 2d 101] . In United States v. $8,850 (1983) 461 U.S. 555, 103 S. Ct. 2005, 76 L. Ed. 2d 143 , the U.S. Supreme Court equated a customs seizure to the limitation on liberty of an indicted criminal defendant and applied the same balancing test, weighing the length of the delay, the reason for the delay, the defendant's assertion of his or her right, and prejudice to the defendant [United States v. $8,850 (1983) 461 U.S. 555, 564, 103 S. Ct. 2005, 76 L. Ed. 2d 143 , citing Barker v. Wingo (1972) 407 U.S. 514, 530, 92 S. Ct. 2182, 33 L. Ed. 2d 101] . No one factor is determinative, but the longer the delay, the greater the need for government justification [United States v. $8,850 (1983) 461 U.S. 555, 565, 103 S. Ct. 2005, 76 L. Ed. 2d 143 ; see also United States v. Von Neumann (1986) 474 U.S. 242, 250-251, 106 S. Ct. 610, 88 L. Ed. 2d 587 (36-day delay before decision in forfeiture remission case did not deny due process); Cleveland Bd. of Educ. v. Loudermill (1985) 470 U.S. 532, 547, 105 S. Ct. 1487, 84 L. Ed. 2d 494 (nine-month delay in post-termination hearing for government employee who had received informal pretermination hearing did not violate due process); United States v. Thirty-seven Photographs (1971) 402 U.S. 363, 373-374, 91 S. Ct. 1400, 28 L. Ed. 2d 822 (seizure of free speech materials required hearing within 14 days)].

The California cases tend to require a more timely post-termination hearing when there has been a summary seizure, especially if the delay has resulted in some identifiable harm [see, e.g., Menefee & Son v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 774, 782, 245 Cal. Rptr 166 (delay in holding hearing following summary seizure of crop on which unauthorized poisons had been used prevented crop owner from plowing under tainted crop and planting new crop); Carrera v. Bertaini (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 721, 726-727, 134 Cal. Rptr. 14 (lengthy delay in holding hearing after summary seizure of animals resulted in increased impound fees)].

Circumstances may justify administrative delays, especially when they are occasioned by conduct of the property holder rather than by the agency, and the delays are otherwise authorized and limited in scope [see State Bd. of Equalization v. Ceniceros (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 122, 133-134, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 539 (no violation of due process in proceeding by tax assessor for continuances that were authorized by agency rule and were granted for limited purpose of evaluating evidence that had not been assessed beforehand due to nondisclosure by the taxpayer)].

§ 470A.43 Timely and Adequate Notice

[1] Informal Notice

The most "elementary and fundamental requirement" for procedural due process is timely and adequate notice [Mennonite Board of Missions v. Adams (1983) 462 U.S. 791, 801, 103 S. Ct. 2706, 77 L. Ed. 2d 180 (quoting Mullane v. Central Hanover B. & T. Co. (1950) 339 U.S. 306, 314, 70 S. Ct. 652, 94 L. Ed. 865)]. What is timely and adequate notice will vary depending on the outcome of the Matthews v. Eldridge balancing test [Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18] . In Goss v. Lopez (1975) 419 U.S. 565, 95 S. Ct. 729, 42 L. Ed. 2d 725 , a public school student was entitled to informal notice from the principal before a 10-day suspension. The informal notice consisted of the principal informing the student of the charges against him with the virtually simultaneous opportunity to offer a defense. The limited nature of the intrusion on liberty and property interests along with the need for the principal to take immediate, decisive action in order to protect the educational environment justified the informal notice [Goss v. Lopez (1975) 419 U.S. 565, 580-583, 95 S. Ct. 729, 42 L. Ed. 2d 725] .

A high school student who was given a five-day suspension for sexually related misbehavior was given adequate notice of the charges against him when the school administrator described the charged behavior to the student specifically enough so that the student could deny the behavior. The administrator was not required under due process of law to identify the student's accusers, and the charged student was not entitled to know the names of the student accusers due to the sexual misconduct nature of the charges [Granowitz v. Redlands Unified School District (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 349, 356-357, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 410] .

The California Department of Corrections did not violate a correction officer's due process rights by informally notifying the officer of the proposed discipline of demotion from corrections sergeant to corrections officer that the CDC might impose for the officer's misconduct. Further, the CDC later served the officer formal notice that satisfied the officer's Skelly rights [Sulier v. State Personnel Board (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 21, 31-32, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 615] .

The operator of a nude entertainment establishment was not denied any due process of law rights by the decision of the City of San Diego to suspend the operator's required police permit because the operator violated provisions of city regulations that applied to his business. The California Court of Appeal rejected the operator's due process challenge based on untimely notice of the charged violations. Notice regarding most of the violations was given within two weeks of the date of the violation. Delay in the giving notice of the violations did not cause any actual prejudice to the operator, and there was no showing of lost witnesses or other evidence. The operator had the burden of proof of showing actual prejudice from delay, and there was no such proof. Finally, the suspension was based on numerous violations over an extended period of time, and the operator had more than sufficient notice of those violations [Krontz v. City of San Diego (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1140-1141, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 535] .

[2] Formal Notice

When procedural due process requires a pretermination hearing of some level of formality, notice must include information about the right to the hearing in order to permit adequate preparation. In Memphis Light, Gas & Water Div. v. Craft (1978) 436 U.S. 1, 98 S. Ct. 1554, 56 L. Ed. 2d 30 , involving termination of service by a public utility, the U.S. Supreme Court found the notification procedure inadequate because it was not reasonably calculated to inform the homeowner of the opportunity for some kind of hearing before a utility company employee for the purpose of disputing the utility bills [Memphis Light, Gas & Water Div. v. Craft (1978) 436 U.S. 1, 13-15, 98 S. Ct. 1554, 56 L. Ed. 2d 30] .

A school district's notice procedures may deny a terminated employee due process of law because those procedures are not reasonably calculated under the circumstances to inform the terminated employee of his right to request a hearing to challenge the termination [California School Employees Association v. Livingston Unified School District (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 391, 400, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 923] . The school district required that an employee request a hearing within five days of the date of mailing the notice to the employee. The former employee requested a hearing within five days of receiving actual notice of the termination. The notice was mailed during the summer time, when the school employee was not working and was on vacation. The districts notice procedures violated the reasonable calculated to inform standard for procedural due process of law termination [California School Employees Association v. Livingston Unified School District (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 391, 400, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 923] .

When the magnitude and processes of the taking approach those that occur in criminal cases or typical civil cases, the kind of notice required is likely to be more formal. For example, because of the consequences of parole or probation revocation and the nature of the fact-finding process, the parolee or probationer must be given a specific statement of the grounds for revocation [Morrissey v. Brewer (1972) 408 U.S. 471, 488-489, 92 S. Ct. 2593, 33 L. Ed. 2d 484] . In Mennonite Board of Missions v. Adams (1983) 462 U.S. 791, 103 S. Ct. 2706, 77 L. Ed. 2d 180 , the U.S. Supreme Court found that the sale of real property for nonpayment of property taxes did not comport with procedural due process because the mortgagee of the property was not given formal notice of sale. The Court held that a state must provide "notice reasonably calculated, under all the circumstances, to apprise interested parties of the pendency of the action and afford them an opportunity to present their objections" [Mennonite Board of Missions v. Adams (1983) 462 U.S. 791, 795, 103 S. Ct. 2706, 77 L. Ed. 2d 180 , citing Mullane v. Central Hanover B. & T. Co. (1950) 339 U.S. 306, 314, 70 S. Ct. 652, 94 L. Ed. 865] . Publication of notice was inadequate as to someone known to have an interest in the property; constructive notice was sufficient only if the mortgagee was not "reasonably identifiable" [Mennonite Board of Missions v. Adams (1983) 462 U.S. 791, 798, 103 S. Ct. 2706, 77 L. Ed. 2d 180] . This rule was especially true when personal service or mailed notice were both inexpensive and more efficient ways of giving accurate notice.

For example, the posting of a summons for an unlawful detainer action on a tenant's door in a public housing project is inadequate notice because the posting could easily be removed without the tenant's knowledge; notice must be at least mailed [Greene v. Lindsey (1982) 456 U.S. 444, 453-454, 102 S. Ct. 1874, 72 L. Ed. 2d 249] . In addition, in a suspension of a student from college for cheating, adequate notice must include the specific charges, the names of any witnesses and "the gist of their proposed testimony" [Andersen v. Regents of University of California (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 763, 771, 99 Cal. Rptr. 531 , cert. denied, 409 U.S. 1006 (1972)].

In a physician licensing revocation action, due process of law required that the physician be given fair notice that the failure to complete a diversion program will be treated as unprofessional conduct that provided its own basis for discipline. While physician disciplinary proceeding are not penal (criminal), and the notice standards are not as specific or strict as in criminal law actions, the statute authorizing discipline must provide a reasonably clear basis for that discipline, and the physician has to be given notice of that consequence. The lack of such clear basis in the statue lead the court to interpret the statute to not provide authority to discipline a physician for failure to complete a diversion program [Medical Board of California v. Superior Court (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 163, 173-175, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 403] .

The California Fourth District, Division 1, Court of Appeal held that a correction officer dismissed from his job by the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation for failing a drug test did not receive adequate notice that a foreign prescription, a Mexican diet medication, legally obtained in Mexico, that he took could result in a positive drug test for amphetamines. Without that adequate notice, dismissal as a penalty for failing a drug test was an abuse of discretion, and the court of appeal affirmed the judgment of the superior court vacating the decision of the State Personnel Board, upholding the termination [Valenzuela v. California State Personnel Board (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1179, 1180-1181, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 529] .

The California Court of Appeal held that the Worker's Compensation Appeals Board (WCAB) violated due process of law by failing to give the Uninsured Employer's Fund notice and the opportunity to present evidence before the WCAB enforced new procedures against the Fund [Rea v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 625, 643-644, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828] .

The California Court of Appeal held that the California Public Utilities Commission did not violate the due process rights of Cingular Wireless to notice that its conduct would subject it to substantial civil penalties for violating provisions of the public utility statutes [Pub. Util. Code § 451] that required regulated carriers to provide "adequate, efficient, just, and reasonable service" to customers. Fair notice was provided to the carrier because the carrier could reasonably discerned from the PUC's interpretations of this statute that its conduct was unjust and unreasonable [Pacific Bell Wireless, LLC v. P.U.C. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 718, 740-742, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 733] . The California Court of Appeal denied a petition for a writ of review brought by wireless carriers to challenge a decision of the California Public Utilities Commission that imposed substantial fines ($12 million) against wireless service providers in California for unjust and unreasonable practices including charging customers early termination fees to cancel contracts without permitting a grace period, for failing to disclose to customers known network problems and misleading customers regarding network coverage and service. The court rejected the carriers preemption argument and held that the provisions of the Federal Communications Act of 1934, as amended by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993, that preempt state and local regulation of market entry and rates charged by wireless mobile telephone providers [47 U.S.C. § 332 (c)(3)(A)] did not preempt decisions by the California Public Utilities. The court also upheld the imposition of substantial fines against the wireless carriers, and rejected due process arguments against the imposition of fines [Pacific Bell Wireless, LLC v. P.U.C. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 718, 729-747, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 733] .

The California Court of Appeal affirmed the judgment of the superior court denying a construction company's petition for a writ of administrative mandate that requested reversal of the decision of the California Occupational Safety and Health Appeals Board, which upheld the decision of the California Department of Industrial Relations, Division of Occupational Safety and Health that cited the company for violation of a safety order, and assessed a $5,000 civil penalty against the company. The company was cited for a violation of General Industry Safety Order 1592 [Cal. Code Regs., tit. 8, § 1592(e)] as a result of an accident on the job that led to serious injuries suffered by an employee of the company [Teichert Const. v. Cal. Occupational Safety and Health Appeals Board (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 883, 886-887, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 833] . The Court of Appeal held that the regulation was not unconstitutionally vague under due process of law principles applicable to administrative regulations. The constitutional vagueness standard for administrative regulations are less strict than for criminal laws, and the vagueness challenge is assessed based on the complaining party's conduct in the specific facts of the case to which the regulation is being applied. The regulation was upheld because the agency interpretation of the regulations meaning was reasonable under the circumstances [Teichert Const. v. Cal. Occupational Safety and Health Appeals Board (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 883, 890-892, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 833] .

The California Court of Appeal held that the Department of Social Services violated due process of law in not giving adequate notice to applicants for employment at licensed community care facilities who were disqualified from that type of employment based on prior convictions of criminal offenses that were not exemptible under governing law (crimes against individuals). The Court held that the Department was required to give applicants notice of the basis for a determination of ineligibility, including the standards used to make that determination, the documents of materials relied upon to make that determination, and the conviction charge. This would allow the applicant to correct an incorrect disqualification [Doe v. Saenz (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 960, 996-998, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 126] . Another California Court of Appeal held similarly that the Department violated due process notice requirements related to providing adequate notice to applicants seeking a criminal records exemption, so that they could work in a licensed community care facility [Gresher v. Anderson (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 88, 108-109, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 408] .

The California Court of Appeal held that the California Coastal Commission did not deprive a developer of the due process right to notice of a hearing in which the commission considered a citizen's group appeal of the granting of a coastal development permit sought by the developer. The court concluded that the notice given to the developer was adequate to inform him of the issues to be considered at the commission hearing. The written notice of the commission hearing considering the appeal of the coastal development permit merely stated the date, time, and place of the hearing, but the commission sent the developer a copy of the appeal document filed a by a group of local citizens, and that document contained a statement of the issues on appeal. Also, the developer was familiar with the issues to be appealed since he had participated in the development permit proceedings at the local government (county) level [Benson v. Cal. Coastal Comm'n (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 348, 353-354, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 580] .

[3] Lack of Notice in Exigent Circumstances

Liberty and property may be taken without notice if exigent circumstances affecting the public welfare exist [see Goldin v. Public Utilities Commission (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 638, 663, 153 Cal. Rptr. 802, 592 P.2d 289 (phone use by prostitution business violated criminal statutes affecting public welfare, justifying termination without notice)]. In Kash Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 294, 138 Cal. Rptr. 53, 562 P.2d 1302 , the California Supreme Court held an ordinance providing for the summary seizure of newsracks placed in unapproved locations in violation of both the First Amendment and procedural due process. While the city could immediately seize, without notice or hearing, any newsrack that posed a danger to pedestrians or vehicles, it otherwise could not routinely seize newsracks. Although the city informally tagged offending newsracks seven days prior to seizing them, the Court held this inadequate notice because (1) the statute did not require such tagging and (2) it did not clearly give actual notice to the owner. It was not enough that a person might happen to get notice; the law must require such notice [Kash Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 294, 307 n.7, 138 Cal. Rptr. 53, 562 P.2d 1302] . Notice after the seizure was inadequate, partly because no procedure existed for testing the legitimacy of the initial taking [Kash Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 294, 307 n.7, 138 Cal. Rptr. 53, 562 P.2d 1302] , but also because the initial seizure was contrary to the First Amendment rights of the public [Kash Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 294, 309, 138 Cal. Rptr. 53, 562 P.2d 1302 ; see also Skinner v. Superior Court (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 183, 137 Cal. Rptr. 851 (ex parte temporary restraining order authorizing seizure of personal property on premises of adult theater violated both First Amendment and procedural due process right to advance notice)].

When the general public interest is affected, notice requirements may be less strict than when an individual's right is affected. For example, when the relocation of a public facility is undertaken pursuant to a general plan for "public improvement," abutting property owners are not entitled to individual notice; adequate notice consists of publication of the intended change in land use, as provided by statute [Oceanside Marina Towers Assn. v. Oceanside Community Development Com. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 735, 744, 231 Cal. Rptr. 910] . Full due process procedures are required under other circumstances, however--for instance, when a person has spent large sums of money in reliance on a public land use plan, and the investment would be severely damaged by a change in land use [Horn v. County of Ventura (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 605, 615, 156 Cal. Rptr. 718, 596 P.2d 1134 ; Stanson v. San Diego Coast Regional Com. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 38, 49, 161 Cal. Rptr. 392] .

However, if the administrative action is legislative in nature, then due process of law does not apply to the affected property owners. Merger of separate land parcels, which automatically occurred on the effective date of a local ordinance that was adopted for that purpose, was a legislative action, and therefore the affected property owners did not have a due process right to notice and an opportunity to be heard before merger took place [Moores v. Board of Supervisors (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 883, 889-890, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 206] . Furthermore, even if agency action is adjudicative in nature, there is no right to an evidentiary hearing if there are no disputed fact issues to resolve [Central Cal. Power Agency No. 1 v. County of Sonoma (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1614, 1623-1624, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 713 (tax valuation issue could be established as a matter of law based on application of Constitutional provision's [Cal. Const., art. XIII, § 11] valuation formula to valuation data provided by taxpayer)].

§ 470A.44 Burden of Proof

Few decisions involving a governmental taking of liberty or property interests discuss the required burden of proof. As in most civil cases, it would seem that the government official ordinarily should find by a preponderance of the evidence that the standard for a taking of the interest has been met. In cases involving very significant private interests, however, a higher standard of proof may be required. In criminal cases, the state must prove the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, and the same standard has been applied to criminal charges brought against minors in juvenile proceedings, even though such proceedings may technically be civil in nature [In re Winship (1970) 397 U.S. 358, 365-366, 90 S. Ct. 1068, 25 L. Ed. 2d 368] . It is unlikely that the court would require proof beyond a reasonable doubt in situations dissimilar to criminal prosecutions, but determinations of important substantive rights may trigger the application of an intermediate standard of proof. For example, in a proceeding to terminate parental rights in preparation for placing a child for adoption, the court required a standard of clear and convincing proof, rather than the preponderance standard ordinarily applied in civil matters [Santosky v. Kramer (1982) 455 U.S. 745, 769, 102 S. Ct. 1388, 71 L. Ed. 2d 599 ; see also Freedman v. Maryland (1965) 380 U.S. 51, 58, 85 S. Ct. 734, 13 L. Ed. 2d 649 (state has heavy burden of showing that speech is not protected before restricting First Amendment rights)].

Besides considering the importance of the substantive rights involved, the courts will look to the subjective or objective factual nature of the issues in determining the standard of proof. For example, in Addington v. Texas [Addington v. Texas (1979) 441 U.S. 418, 99 S. Ct. 1804, 60 L. Ed. 2d 323] , involving proceedings for indefinite involuntary commitment to a state mental hospital, the U.S. Supreme Court rejected the "beyond a reasonable doubt" standard because of the inherent difficulty of satisfying that standard, given the subjective issues presented, and applied the Matthews v. Eldridge balancing test [Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18] , in concluding that clear and convincing proof was required [Addington v. Texas (1979) 441 U.S. 418, 425, 433, 99 S. Ct. 1804, 60 L. Ed. 2d 323] . The Court also rejected the "clear, unequivocal and convincing" formulation it had required in a deportation case [Woodby v. INS (1966) 385 U.S. 276, 285, 87 S. Ct. 483, 17 L. Ed. 2d 362] , and a denaturalization case [Schneiderman v. United States (1943) 320 U.S. 118, 125, 159, 63 S. Ct. 1333, 87 L. Ed. 1796] , noting that the factual nature of the issues in the latter cases made them more susceptible of objective proof [Addington v. Texas (1979) 441 U.S. 418, 424, 99 S. Ct. 1804, 60 L. Ed. 2d 323] .

§ 470A.45 Right to Counsel

The Sixth Amendment [U.S. Const., amend. VI] guarantees the right to counsel in all criminal proceedings, including the right to appointed counsel paid for by the state for indigent criminal defendants [Argersinger v. Hamlin (1972) 407 U.S. 25, 26-27, 92 S. Ct. 2006, 32 L. Ed. 2d 530 ; Gideon v. Wainwright (1963) 372 U.S. 335, 344-345, 83 S. Ct. 792, 9 L. Ed. 2d 799] . In other than criminal and juvenile delinquency cases [In re Gault (1967) 387 U.S. 1, 41-42, 87 S. Ct. 1428, 18 L. Ed. 2d 527] , the Court has not required the appointment of counsel. In parole and probation revocation cases, however, the decision whether appointment of counsel is required must be made on a case-by-case basis, considering the nature of the defense, the complexity of the issues presented, and the ability of the probationer to represent his or her own interests [Gagnon v. Scarpelli (1973) 411 U.S. 778, 790-791, 93 S. Ct. 1756, 36 L. Ed. 2d 656] . In a parental rights termination proceeding, special circumstances, such as the complexity of the issues and the parent's inability to represent himself or herself, might require appointment of counsel [Lassiter v. Department of Social Services (1981) 452 U.S. 18, 31-32, 101 S. Ct. 2153, 68 L. Ed. 2d 640] . The right to appointment of counsel on due process grounds means the right to effective assistance of counsel [In re Christina P. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 115, 128-129, 220 Cal. Rptr. 525] . In most licensing and entitlement hearings, appointed counsel paid by the state is not available for indigents. There is also no due process right to appointed counsel at public expense for indigents parents who are sued for child support to provide reimbursement for welfare payments [Clark v. Superior Court (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 576, 586-587, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 53] .

Parties have the right to retain counsel in administrative settings. In a case involving the claimed right to a hearing prior to the termination of welfare benefits, the U.S. Supreme Court emphasized that counsel can help delineate the issues, present the factual contentions in an orderly manner, conduct cross-examination, and generally safeguard the recipient's interest, while downplaying the additional burden and formalization of hearing procedure when attorneys are involved [Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 270-271, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287] . Later cases have given more weight to the adverse impact of attorneys on procedures intended to be informal in nature. The harmful formalization of process was key to the decision in Walters v. Nat'l Ass'n of Radiation Survivors (1985) 473 U.S. 305, 105 S. Ct. 3180, 87 L. Ed. 2d 220 , in which the Court upheld a $10 attorney fee limit for representation of veterans applying for disability benefits. The Court recognized that this fee limitation effectively barred all but veteran service volunteers from representing veterans, but held that such a limitation did not violate a veteran's right to procedural due process [

Walters v. Nat'l Ass'n of Radiation Survivors (1985) 473 U.S. 305, 323-324, 105 S. Ct. 3180, 87 L. Ed. 2d 220] . The Court in Walters cited a juvenile commitment case [Parham v. J.R. (1979) 442 U.S. 584, 608-609, 99 S. Ct. 2493, 61 L. Ed. 2d 101] , a school suspension case [Goss v. Lopez (1975) 419 U.S. 565, 583, 95 S. Ct. 729, 42 L. Ed. 2d 725] , and a prison discipline case [Wolff v. McDonnell (1974) 418 U.S. 539, 570, 94 S. Ct. 2963, 41 L. Ed. 2d 935] , as additional support for its sense that counsel is "not required in various proceedings that do not approximate trials, but instead are more informal and nonadversary" [Walters v. Nat'l Ass'n of Radiation Survivors (1985) 473 U.S. 305, 334, 105 S. Ct. 3180, 87 L. Ed. 2d 220] .

It is common practice for a lay person, such as a law student or paralegal, to represent an individual in some administrative hearings. The authority for lay representation is statutory, and generally provides that a party at an administrative hearing may appear in person, by attorney, or by any other agent or authorized representative [see, e.g., Lab. Code § 5700 (workers' compensation hearings); Unemp. Ins. Code § 1957 (unemployment insurance hearings); Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 (hearings for aid to families with dependent children)]. It is also common for legal aid attorneys, who do not charge indigents legal fees for their services, to represent individuals in entitlement hearings. Litigants in an administrative hearing do not have a due process right to a nonadversarial hearing in which the agency is not represented by counsel. The agency has the right to vigorous representation by counsel of its choice, even in an informal entitlements hearing [Rauber v. Herman (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 942, 953, 280 Cal. Rptr. 785] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Impact of Due Process Requirements on Agency Procedures

§ 470A.46 Additional Procedures Required for Fair Process

[1] Opportunity to Be Heard

In general, even informal hearings require that a party be given the opportunity to respond orally [see, e.g., Memphis Light, Gas, & Water Div. v. Craft (1978) 436 U.S. 1, 98 S. Ct. 1554, 56 L. Ed. 2d 30 ; Goss v. Lopez (1975) 419 U.S. 565, 95 S. Ct. 729, 42 L. Ed. 2d 725 ; see also Melissa J. v. Superior Court (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 476, 478, 237 Cal. Rptr. 5 (crime victim entitled to notice, right to appear and express his or her views, and have those views considered by court in connection with termination of restitution order in probation proceedings)]. In Goldberg v. Kelly [Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287, 299] , the Court required that welfare recipients be given the opportunity to respond orally to the issues presented in a welfare termination hearing. Relying on the written record did not provide welfare recipients a fair opportunity to respond. In other instances involving fairly simple claims and claimants capable of adequately using the written format, a "hearing" might consist of reliance on the written submission of competing claims [see, e.g., Escondido Imports, Inc. v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 834, 838-839, 193 Cal. Rptr. 772 (administrative fines for improper filing of DMV documents by automotive dealer)]. To be meaningful, the opportunity to respond requires provision of adequate preparation time and demands that the agency do more than "go through the motions" [Kempland v. Regents of University of California (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 644, 648-650, 202 Cal. Rptr. 275] .

When ruling on what a "reasonable opportunity to be heard" entails, the California Supreme Court did not require an oral hearing in a case involving a request for reimbursement from the client security fund of the State Bar. Rather, the Court decided that an opportunity for written response would "give petitioner and other applicants an opportunity to respond to the Bar's proposed disposition of the request for reimbursement". The Court described the goal of hearing requirements as affording "applicants a reasonable opportunity to raise objections to the particular action the bar desires to take" [Saleeby v. State Bar (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 547, 565, 216 Cal. Rptr. 367, 702 P.2d 525 , citing Horn v. County of Ventura (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 605, 619, 156 Cal. Rptr. 718, 596 P.2d 1134] . The Court also required that the hearing result in findings necessary to make judicial review of the administrative adjudication meaningful [Saleeby v. State Bar (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 547].

Aside from these flexible considerations, California courts have imposed relatively few specific due process hearing requirements on administrative adjudication. For example, unless a statute or regulation provides otherwise, there is no right to counsel in administrative adjudicatory proceedings [White v. Division of Medical Quality (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 699, 707, 180 Cal. Rptr. 516 ; Chevalier v. Dubin (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 975, 978-979, 164 Cal. Rptr. 118 ; Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 539, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525] . Moreover, although the rules against pecuniary conflicts of interest and biased decision-makers do apply to administrative adjudication [American Motors Sales Corp. v. New Motor Vehicle Bd. (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 983, 990-991, 138 Cal. Rptr. 594] , the California Supreme Court has upheld administrative hearings against due process challenges based on allegations of bias. The presumption of administrative regularity normally will prevent due process challenges based on allegations of bias from succeeding [Andrews v. Agricultural Labor Rel. Bd. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 781, 171 Cal. Rptr. 590, 623 P.2d 151] . For example, in an airport permit amendment hearing held under the state APA, the Court of Appeal rejected a charge that "the hearing officer expressed an undisguised bias against certain participants. The court noted: "Those not present at the hearing cannot judge such matters as facial expressions and oral nuances, but the record indicates that this allegation is simply not true. It instead reveals that the hearing officer demonstrated remarkable patience and good humor in the face of attempts by counsel" to press matters outside the scope of the hearings [Bakman v. Department of Transportation (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 665, 686, 160 Cal. Rptr. 583] . Another Court of Appeal admonished: "Where due process requires an administrative hearing, an individual has the right to a tribunal which meets at least currently prevailing standards of impartiality. Biased decision makers are constitutionally impermissible and even the probability of unfairness is to be avoided" [Blinder, Robinson & Co. v. Tom (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 283, 295, 226 Cal. Rptr. 339 (upholding an administrative hearing against conflict of interest charges)].

[2] Right to Present Witnesses and Documentary Evidence

In most informal proceedings, there may be no opportunity to present witnesses [Goss v. Lopez (1975) 419 U.S. 565, 583, 95 S. Ct. 729, 42 L. Ed. 2d 725] , but in most other settings some opportunity to do so is required. The U.S. Supreme Court in Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 , found such a right in welfare termination proceedings. It held in Morrissey v. Brewer (1972) 408 U.S. 471, 92 S. Ct. 2593, 33 L. Ed. 2d 484 , that a right to present witnesses exists in a parole revocation proceeding; but in Gagnon v. Scarpelli (1973) 411 U.S. 778, 93 S. Ct. 1756, 36 L. Ed. 2d 656 , the Court held that in some circumstances "affidavits, depositions, and documentary evidence" might be appropriate substitutes for live testimony [Gagnon v. Scarpelli (1973) 411 U.S. 778, 93 S. Ct. 1756, 36 L. Ed. 2d 656 , 783 n.5, 411 U.S. 778, 93 S. Ct. 1756, 36 L. Ed. 2d 656] . In prison disciplinary cases, the Court has recognized that unique security needs in a prison setting might justify limiting the usual right to call witnesses [Wolff v. McDonnell (1974) 418 U.S. 539, 94 S. Ct. 2963, 41 L. Ed. 2d 935 ; see also Ponte v. Real (1985) 471 U.S. 491, 105 S. Ct. 2192, 85 L. Ed. 2d 553 (prison officials may limit right to call witnesses without contemporaneous explanation)]. Other than in informal proceedings or unusual settings such as prisons, however, procedural due process includes the right to present witnesses and other evidence. However, there is no due process right to pretrial discovery in administrative hearings [Gilbert v. City of Sunnyvale (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1264, 1280-1281, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 297 (discharged police officer was given sufficient notice and documents to defend himself in pre-termination hearing; officer was not entitled to full discovery of all documents; pre-termination procedures were adequate given officer's right to more elaborate post-termination hearing procedures)].

The Court of Appeal held that the Medical Board of California deprived a physician of due process of law by conducting a fundamentally unfair physician license revocation hearing when the Board disqualified all of the doctor's experts as to standard of care, thereby precluding the doctor from putting on any evidence in his defense to charges that the doctor's treatment of several patients was grossly negligent or was an extreme departure from the standard of practice [Sinaiko v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1133, 1137, 1141, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371] . The Court of Appeal also applied the independent judgment test to review the fairness of the administrative hearing as a matter of law [Sinaiko v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1133, 1140-1141, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371] . Finally, the Court of Appeal held that this case must be remanded to the Medical Board to consider the evidence presented by the doctor's experts. It was not proper for the reviewing (superior) court to admit the evidence under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e), and then to reweigh the evidence to support the Medical Board's fact findings because this was an unfair proceeding. It is the agency's responsibility to consider the evidence erroneously excluded, and to make an informed decision based on that evidence and agency expertise. Thus, a remand to the agency is required [Sinaiko v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1133, 1146-1147, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371] .

The decision of a WCJ to exclude medical reports of a treating physician that had been offered in evidence by the injured worker to rebut a statutory presumption on the issue of permanent disability in worker's compensation proceedings violated due process of law. The report was admissible into evidence, and the injured worker had a due process right to present evidence, to have the evidence be considered by the WCJ, and to have the evidence be part of the record for decision on remand in the case [Gaytan v. Worker's Compensation Appeals Board, Los Angeles Unified School District (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 200, 218-219, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 516] .

Parent, who was a party to a guardianship proceeding, had the statutory right [Cal. Probate Code § 1513(d)] to have copies of a confidential investigative report provided to them and their attorney far enough in advance of the guardianship hearing to allow adequate time to review the report and to prepare for the guardianship hearing. The court did not hold that the failure to provide such reports violated due process of law, but the court concluded that the due process right to a hearing requires adequate time to review reports that may be relied on at the hearing so as to prepare for the hearing properly [Tracy A. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1309, 1318-1319, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 684] .

A hearing before a city council in a contractor debarment proceeding that permitted only written submissions, and excluded the right to cross examine adverse witnesses and the right to examine live rebuttal witnesses at the hearing, did not violate due process of law. This was because the contractor took depositions of many of those witnesses, and presented that deposition testimony at the hearing before the City Council. The contractor was able to submit 400 pages of written materials, was able to make two 40-minute oral presentations to the city council, and was given the right to additional deposition transcripts and a supplemental brief after the hearing [Southern California Underground Contractors v. City of San Diego (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 533, 541, 546-547, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 527] .

Similarly, a pharmacist whose application for continued enrollment as a MediCal provider was denied because the pharmacist made false disclosures related to his disciplinary history did not have a due process right to present live testimony in the administrative appeal hearing. While the pharmacist had a liberty interest that was implicated by the Department's action in debarring him as a government contractor, the nature of the issues with false disclosure are such that live testimony is not necessary or even beneficial to the pharmacist. The only successful defense would be factual mistake, and that defense can be brought through written evidence and argument. Thus, the pharmacists due process rights to present evidence on his behalf are not denied because all material evidence in support of his challenge can be presented in writing [Marvin Lieblein, Inc. v. Shewry (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 700, 721-723, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 547] .

[3] Right to Cross-Examine Witnesses

A number of cases have said that the right to confront and cross-examine adverse witnesses is essential to procedural due process [see, e.g., Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 268, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 ; Jennings v. Jones (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 1083, 1088-1091, 212 Cal. Rptr. 134 (county's failure to have knowledgeable caseworker attend welfare benefit termination hearing denied rights of confrontation and cross-examination); Mackler v. Alexis (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 44, 62-63, 181 Cal. Rptr. 613 (in driver's license suspension case, licensee was entitled to opportunity to confront and cross-examine arresting officer, subpoena of whom had been mailed to police department, which returned it with notation that officer was no longer employed by department; case remanded to give licensee chance to obtain officer's testimony)]. The right may be limited if there are overriding security needs, such as in prison cases [Wolff v. McDonnell (1974) 418 U.S. 539, 94 S. Ct. 2963, 41 L. Ed. 2d 935] , and some parole or probation revocation cases [Gagnon v. Scarpelli (1973) 411 U.S. 778, 786, 93 S. Ct. 1756, 36 L. Ed. 2d 656 , citing Morrissey v. Brewer (1972) 408 U.S. 471, 489, 92 S. Ct. 2593, 33 L. Ed. 2d 484] . The right to cross examine is not violated when an agency witness is permitted to give direct testimony over a telephone at a civil penalty administrative hearing, so long as opposing counsel has the opportunity to cross examine the witness telephonically [C & C Partners, Ltd. v. Department of Industrial Relations (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 603, 611-612, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 783] .

The due process right to cross examine witnesses was not violated when a contractor in debarment proceedings was not allowed to cross examine witnesses (nor to present live rebuttal testimony) at the administrative hearing. The contractor was given the opportunity to cross examine employees of the city who conducted the investigation that lead to the debarment proceedings. The contractor took depositions of many of those witnesses, and presented that deposition testimony at the hearing before the City Council [Southern California Underground Contractors v. City of San Diego (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 533, 546-548, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 527] .

Two police officers who were disciplined by having memoranda placed in their personnel file, but who suffered no other job-related adverse consequences, were not entitled under due process of law to confront and cross examine witnesses against them in the administrative hearing at which they challenged the discipline. The officer's hearing rights were limited to the right to introduce evidence, a neutral fact finder, and the burden of proof placed on the police department to justify the discipline imposed [James v. City of Coronado (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 905, 911-913, 131 Cal. Rptr 2d 85] .

The California Court of Appeal held that mobile home park owners' due process of law rights were violated when a county rent review board denied the owners the right to cross examine opposing witnesses, tenants in the mobile home park, at a hearing before the Board to determine whether or not rent increases proposed by the owners violated the county rent control ordinance. The court also held that it violated due process of law to make fact findings against the owner based upon tenant testimony without cross examination of those tenant witnesses [Manufactured Home Communities, Inc. v. County of San Luis Obispo (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 705, 708, 710-711, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 367].

The due process of law right to cross examine witnesses was not violated in a rent review board hearing proceeding when the issues in the proceeding and the hearing record was based primarily on documentary evidence and reports from experts on both sides in the litigation for which there was no need to test credibility since the issues in the case did not turn on live witness testimony [Stardust Mobile Estates v. City of San Buenaventura (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1170, 1189-1190, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 218] . The Court of Appeal also rejected procedural due process challenges based on the lack of discovery and based on conflicting advocacy and advisory roles by outside counsel for the rent board. The court concluded that discovery in mandate proceedings was limited because judicial review under Code of Civil Procedure Section 1094.5 (administrative mandamus) was based on the hearing record before the agency. The Court of Appeal rejected the conflicting roles defense of unconstitutional bias even though the lawyer in question had advised the rent board. The Court distinguished the Nightlife case [Nightlife Partners. v. City of Beverly Hills (2003)108 Cal. App. 4th 81, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 234] factually because the reviewing body in the Nightlife was the city (which the lawyer did advise) and here the reviewing body was the superior court (whom the lawyer did not advise). The defense was rejected because the agency outside counsel did not advise the superior court at the same time as his law firm was acting as an advocate defending the city in the mandamus proceeding before the court [Stardust Mobile Estates v. City of San Buenaventura (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1170, 1189-1190, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 218] .

[4] Right to Neutral Fact Finder

[a] Formal Hearings

The requirement of a neutral fact finder has been closely protected in order to prevent unjustified or mistaken deprivations and to promote participation and dialogue by affected individuals in the decisionmaking process [Marshall v. Jerrico, Inc. (1980) 446 U.S. 238, 242, 100 S. Ct. 1610, 64 L. Ed. 2d 182] . Criminal or civil cases in which the judge has an interest in the proceedings obviously violate due process [Tumey v. Ohio (1927) 273 U.S. 510, 47 S. Ct. 437, 71 L. Ed. 749 ; Ward v. Monroeville (1972) 409 U.S. 57, 59-62, 93 S. Ct. 80, 34 L. Ed. 2d 267] . A state administrative disciplinary board made up of the accused's competitors is inherently unfair [Gibson v. Berryhill (1973) 411 U.S. 564, 578-579, 93 S. Ct. 1689, 36 L. Ed. 2d 488] . A professional licensee, however, has no due process right to choose the class of adjudicator that will hear the evidence in a disciplinary proceeding [Fort v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 12, 22-24, 185 Cal. Rptr. 836] .

When the ALJ has a strong direct financial interest in the resolution of the case, then the ALJ can be disqualified under the due process of law right to an impartial decision maker without a showing of actual bias [Haas v. County of San Bernardino (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 1017, 1032-1034, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341, 45 P.3d 280] . However, when the financial interest is remote, indirect, and uncertain, then proof of actual bias is required to establish a violation of the due process right to an impartial decision maker. Proof of the appearance of bias is not sufficient [Gai v. City of Selma (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 213, 219-220, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910] . Thus, when an administrative decision maker's financial interest was too remote, indirect, and uncertain, it did not operate to trigger the probability of actual bias standard for due process scrutiny of decision makers with financial interests [Gai v. City of Selma (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 213, 228-229, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910] . The financial interest bias rule codified in the Haas case that is applicable to adjudicators does not apply to the legal advisor to an adjudicative agency, the city personnel board, because the legal advisor advised the board of applicable laws and did not act in an adjudicative role in the proceeding [Gilbert v. City of Sunnyvale (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1264, 1281-1282, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 297 (court rejected due process of law challenge to pre-termination hearing procedures brought by discharged police officer)]. The financial interest bias rule codified in the Haas case also was not violated by an award of $1.8 million in prehearing costs related to disciplinary proceedings against an accounting firm. The award was paid to the Board of Accountancy to reimburse the Board for extensive costs incurred in investigating and preparing for hearing a discipline case against the accounting firm. The Board did not have an improper pecuniary interest because the cost award was authorized and regulated by statute, Bus. & Prof. Code § 5107, and this statute protected the Board from improper influences related to the cost award. This is because the cost award was made by the administrative law judge (ALJ) who heard the case, and that ALJ did not have a financial interest in the cost award that he or she assessed. The Board has the authority to decrease or eliminate the award, or to affirm the award, but not to increase the cost award [McBride v. California Board of Accountancy (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 518, 525-527, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 287] . The appearance of bias standard applicable to trial court judges, set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(c), does not apply to administrative hearing officers [Gai v. City of Selma (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 213, 233, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910] .

An individual's right to a fair hearing is violated when different people hear the evidence and make the decision or order [Rowen v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 633, 641-643, 174 Cal. Rptr. 185] . When the decision is made on the basis of a transcript of evidence adduced at a hearing at which the decisionmaker was not present, however, due process does not necessarily require that the decisionmaker read the entire transcript; the extent to which an independent study of the evidence in the record is necessary is left to the wisdom and practical good sense of the decisionmaking agency [Samaan v. Trustees of Cal. State University & Colleges (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 646, 661, 197 Cal. Rptr. 856] . An individual's procedural due process rights were not denied when the original hearing officer who heard his case died before preparing a recommended decision, and a second hearing officer was appointed who reviewed all of the evidence presented at the hearing and prepared a recommended decision which was adopted by the administrative agency [Keith v. San Bernardino County Retirement Bd. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 411, 414-415, 271 Cal. Rptr. 649] .

The California Court of Appeal held that due process of law required that the decision-maker hear the case, and that this required that the decision-maker hear the evidence and argument made by the parties. A property owner's due process of law right to a reasoned decision making process was denied by the city council members at a zoning appeals hearing in which most of the members were not paying attention to the arguments of the parties, several were talking on cell phones, engaging in side conversations, eating, reviewing paperwork, and standing and moving around the city council chambers. The property owner sought a variance from zoning requirements, and this request was opposed by neighbors of the owner. The city council members equally ignored both sides of this dispute. The Court of Appeal reversed the judgment of the trial court, and remanded for a new hearing before the city council [Lacy Street Hospitality Service,

Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 526, 529-531, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 805] .

A California court has held, in a case arising under the California APA, that due process is not violated when the individual responsible for the prosecution of an accusation also has the authority to make determinations concerning the materiality of the defendant's evidence [Blinder, Robinson & Co. v. Tom (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 283, 290-296, 226 Cal. Rptr. 339] . The court expressed reservations about the result in the case, however, noting that principles of stare decisis constrained its decision [Blinder, Robinson & Co. v. Tom (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 283, 290, 226 Cal. Rptr. 339] . A child care contractor that was debarred for three years by the state agency that administered child care contracts was entitled under a due process liberty interest claim to a hearing before an impartial arbiter or tribunal on justification for the debarment. Due process of law was violated when one member of the hearing panel had participated in agency staff decisions that were challenged in the hearing process since that member could not both investigate and adjudicate in the same case [Golden Day Schools, Inc. v. State Department of Education (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 695, 709-711, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 917] . For a detailed discussion of the role of the administrative law judge and the requirement for a neutral fact finder, see Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges .

The contractor in a contract debarment proceeding challenged the neutrality of the city council that brought that proceeding. The first argument was based on separation of functions, that the city was biased because it performed both prosecution and adjudication functions. The court rejected that challenge concluding that proof of actual bias was required, and that the right to an impartial decision maker is not violated by combination of functions. The second argument was that the city was biased because the contractor had filed a lawsuit against the city for money damages based on an improper debarment claim. The court rejected this argument concluding that there was no pecuniary interest on the part of the city or members of the city council that would disqualify them from deciding the debarment proceeding. City council members were not named as defendants. There is no financial benefit to the city from the debarment proceeding, and any financial loss resulting from a successful lawsuit against the city was too remote and uncertain to be disqualifying [Southern California Underground Contractors v. City of San Diego (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 533, 548-550, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 527] .

A planning commission member who wrote a newsletter article attacking a proposed real estate development project while that project was pending before the planning commission violated the "unacceptable probability of actual bias standard" by voting on the project as a planning commission member while at the same time having publicly opposed the project. The developer's due process of law right to an impartial decision maker was violated by the participation of the planning commission member in voting on the project while having prejudged the facts of the matter [Nasha L.L.C. v. City of Los Angeles (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 470, 483-484, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 772] .

[b] Informal Proceedings

Less formal settings require a lesser standard of neutrality on the part of the fact finder. In Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 271, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 , the Court disallowed the regular welfare caseworker from conducting the required hearing, but allowed a welfare official who had not participated in the initial determination to do so [Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 272, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287] . Similarly, in Morrissey v. Brewer (1972) 408 U.S. 471, 92 S. Ct. 2593, 33 L. Ed. 2d 484 , the Court held that the accused parolee's parole officer couldnot conduct the preliminary probable cause hearing, but that some other parole officer could do so [Morrissey v. Brewer (1972) 408 U.S. 471, 487, 92 S. Ct. 2593, 33 L. Ed. 2d 484] . For the later full hearing on the violation, all that was required was a neutral and detached hearing body such as a traditional parole board, members of which need not be judicial officers or lawyers [Morrissey v. Brewer (1972) 408 U.S. 471, 489, 92 S. Ct. 2593, 33 L. Ed. 2d 484] .

A state prison supervisory staff member who has reviewed a report of a rule violation to classify a charge as either administrative or serious and to correct the report if necessary cannot, consistent with procedural due process requirements of a neutral fact-finder, conduct the disciplinary hearing on that report. The staff member has acted in a prosecutorial role and thus has been substantially involved in the circumstances underlying the charge [People v.

Superior Court (Hamilton) (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1592, 1597-1598, 281 Cal. Rptr 900] .

In even more informal settings, the neutral fact finder must merely be independent enough to be able to make a decision either favorably or unfavorably; the fact finder is not required to be an outsider or to have no other involvement with the case. Thus, the principal could give the informal hearing in a school suspension case [Goss v. Lopez (1975) 419 U.S. 565, 584, 95 S. Ct. 729, 42 L. Ed. 2d 725] . the institution's doctor could make the determination in the case of parents voluntarily committing their child to a mental institution [Parham v. J.R. (1979) 442 U.S. 584, 620-621, 99 S. Ct. 2493, 61 L. Ed. 2d 101] , and an employee of a public utility could provide the necessary hearing before the termination of utility services [Memphis Light, Gas & Water Div. v. Craft (1978) 436 U.S. 1, 16, 98 S. Ct. 1554, 56 L. Ed. 2d 30] .

Both Goldberg v. Kelly [Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 271, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287] and Morrissey v. Brewer [Morrissey v. Brewer (1972) 408 U.S. 471, 92 S. Ct. 2593, 33 L. Ed. 2d 484] held that a fact finder's written statement of evidence and reasons for a decision are required before the taking. In Goldberg v. Kelly, a fact finder's written statement of evidence relied on in making the decision was required before terminating welfare; in Morrissey v. Brewer, it was a written statement of the reasons for a decision to revoke parole. A complete record or comprehensive opinion is not required in either instance, but some summary statement is required in order to facilitate judicial review and to assure that the decision was based on evidence obtained at the hearing [Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 271, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 ; see also Bollinger v. San Diego Civil Service Com. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 568, 577-578, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27 (hearing officer's proposed decision adopted by agency sufficient; no due process right to opportunity to respond to such proposed decision so long as there was notice and opportunity to be heard at hearing held prior to decision)].

[6] Right to Judicial Review

The U.S. Supreme Court has never specified the contours of the right to judicial review of adjudicative agency decisions, in part because judicial review is generally present in some fashion. For example, in Superintendent v. Hill (1985) 472 U.S. 445, 105 S. Ct. 2768, 86 L. Ed. 2d 356 , no direct review of a state prison's revocation of good time credits was provided, but collateral review was readily available. Even when the law states that no judicial review is available [see, e.g., Walters v. Nat'l Ass'n of Radiation Survivors (1985) 473 U.S. 305, 307, 323, 105 S. Ct. 3180, 87 L. Ed. 2d 220] , the Court has recognized its right to decide underlying constitutional issues [Johnson v. Robison (1974) 415 U.S. 361, 94 S. Ct. 1160, 39 L. Ed. 2d 389] .

The Court in Hill described the issue of the right to judicial review of administrative decisions as "a difficult question of constitutional law" [Superintendent v. Hill (1985) 472 U.S. 445, 450, 105 S. Ct. 2768, 86 L. Ed. 2d 356] , but did not attempt to resolve the problem. The Court noted that in Ortwein v. Schwab (1973) 410 U.S. 656, 93 S. Ct. 1172, 35 L. Ed. 2d 572 , it had held that the due process clause was not violated by a mandatory filing fee for appeal of a welfare termination decision. Although Ortwein's allowance of the fee limited the right of judicial review of indigent claimants, the Hill Court stated that Ortwein did not purport to resolve the issue of the right to judicial review definitively. Although the issue is therefore unresolved, the Court's concern in Hill for finding some right to collateral review suggests that a total bar to judicial review of administrative decisions would be of doubtful constitutionality.

The California Supreme Court held that due process of law did not require full judicial review, including oral argument and a written judicial opinion, in every lawyer discipline proceeding in which an attorney filed a petition for supreme court review of a state bar court decision. The supreme court could summarily deny such a petition for review without violating due process of law [In re Rose (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 430, 458, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 298, 993 P. 2d 956] . The California Court of Appeal rejected a disbarred attorney's due process challenge to state bar procedures leading to his disbarment that provided the basis for denial of a real estate salesperson's license to the challenger. The court held that due process of law did not require full judicial review by the California Supreme Court of the disbarment proceeding, and that due process of law was not violated because state bar court judges did not have judicial tenure [Berg v. Davi (2005) 130 Cal App. 4th 223, 231-232, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803] .

However, due process of law does not provide litigants a second opportunity for judicial review in the superior court when the California Supreme court has summarily denied a petition for writ of mandate to challenge a decision of the State Energy Resources Conservation and Development Commission [Santa Teresa Citizen Action Group v. State Energy Resources Conservation and Development Commission (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1441, 1449-1450, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 392] .

Little v. Streater (1981) 452 U.S. 1, 101 S. Ct. 2202, 68 L. Ed. 2d 627 , held that in a paternity action against an indigent father, procedural due process required the state to fund crucial blood grouping tests, as the lack of blood test evidence denied the father a meaningful opportunity to be heard [Little v. Streater (1981) 452 U.S. 1, 16, 101 S. Ct. 2202, 68 L. Ed. 2d 627] . The Little v. Streater Court labeled the child support element of the case quasi-criminal in nature [Little v. Streater (1981) 452 U.S. 1, 10, 101 S. Ct. 2202, 68 L. Ed. 2d 627] . In Boddie v. Connecticut (1971) 401 U.S. 371, 380-383, 91 S. Ct. 780, 28 L. Ed. 2d 113 , the Court held that procedural due process prohibited a state from denying indigents access to divorce courts for inability to pay filing fees. In United States v. Kras (1973) 409 U.S. 434, 93 S. Ct. 631, 34 L. Ed. 2d 626 , however, the U.S. Supreme Court held that due process did not require waiver of filing fees for indigents seeking bankruptcy. Nor did the Court require waiver of mandatory fees for appellate review of an agency's decision reducing welfare benefits [Ortwein v. Schwab (1973) 410 U.S. 656, 93 S. Ct. 1172, 35 L. Ed. 2d 572] . In Little v. Streater, the Court distinguished these cases on the basis that in Kras and Ortwein other forms of relief were available, while only the divorce court was available in Boddie. In addition, Boddie involved fundamental rights of privacy related to marriage, while Kras and Ortwein involved no fundamental rights. Little v. Streater was more like Boddie on both measures, the Court held [Little v. Streater (1981) 452 U.S. 1, 16, 101 S. Ct. 2202, 68 L. Ed. 2d 627] .

In Lassiter v. Department of Social Services (1981) 452 U.S. 18, 101 S. Ct. 2153, 68 L. Ed. 2d 640 , however, the Court held that procedural due process did not require appointment of counsel for indigent parents in a case brought by the state to terminate their parental status. A presumption exists that an indigent litigant has a right to appointed counsel only when threatened with deprivation of physical liberty [Lassiter v. Department of Social Services (1981) 452 U.S. 18, 26-27, 101 S. Ct. 2153, 68 L. Ed. 2d 640] . The Matthews v. Eldridge [Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18] balancing factors might, in a given case, outweigh the presumption against appointment of counsel, but the Lassiter Court did not discuss in any detail the factors that might require appointment except to note that the inability of parents to represent themselves and the complexity of the issues would be relevant [Lassiter v. Department of Social Services (1981) 452 U.S. 18, 31-32, 101 S. Ct. 2153, 68 L. Ed. 2d 640] . A California court held that no constitutional right existed to an award of travel expenses incurred in connection with a parental rights termination proceeding [In re Cleopatra D. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 694, 698, 238 Cal. Rptr. 426] .

§ 470A.48 Procedural Due Process and Hearing Costs

The California Supreme Court held that a statutory cost sharing provision [Educ. Code § 44944] that required a teacher who lost a suspension or dismissal hearing to pay one half of the costs of the administrative law judge who heard the case violated due process of law [California Teachers Assn. v. State of California (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 327, 337, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425, 975 P.2d 622] . The California Court of Appeal held that a provision in a memorandum of understanding agreement (between a city and the public employees association) that required that an employee who sought to challenge their termination from public employment had to share equally in the cost of paying a hearing officer to hear the employee's appeal from a job termination violated the employee's due process of law right to a hearing, and this right could not be waived [Florio v. City of Ontario (2005) 130 Cal. App 4th 1462, 1465-1467, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 841] . The Fourth District Division 2 California Court of Appeal held that a provision in a memorandum of understanding (between a city and a public employee association) that required a disciplined city employee to pay one half of the hearing costs for an administrative appeal (binding arbitration) if the employee brought the appeal through a privately retained attorney rather than through the union violated due process of law [Soto v. County of Riverside (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 492, 494, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 21]. However, the California Court of Appeal rejected an argument that the financial interest bias rule codified in the Haas case was violated by an award of $1.8 million in pre-hearing costs related to disciplinary proceedings against an accounting firm. The Court held that the Board did not have an improper pecuniary interest in the outcome of the discipline proceedings. The award was paid to the Board of Accountancy to reimburse the Board for extensive costs incurred in investigating and preparing for hearing a discipline case against the accounting firm. The Board did not have an improper pecuniary interest because the cost award was authorized and regulated by statute, Bus. & Prof. Code § 5107, and this statute protected the Board from improper influences related to the cost award. This is because the cost award was made by the administrative law judge (ALJ) who heard the case, and that ALJ did not have a financial interest in the cost award that he or she assessed. The Board has the authority to decrease or eliminate the award, or to affirm the award, but not to increase the cost award [McBride v. California Board of Accountancy (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 518, 525-527, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 287] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Open Meetings of Local Agencies: The Ralph M. Brown Act

41-470B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 470B.10

§ 470B.10 History and Purpose of the Brown Act

[1] History of the Act

Before enactment of the Ralph M. Brown Act [Gov. Code § 54950 et seq.] in 1953, other statutes required local public agencies, such as county boards of supervisors, to hold their meetings in public [Gov. Code § 25080]. The statute governing school board meetings [Educ. Code § 35145] now requires the meetings to be conducted in accordance with the Brown Act [Educ. Code § 35145.5; see also further discussion of Educ. Code § 35145 in § 470B.31]. The existing open meeting statutes were subject to widespread evasion, however, through unannounced "sneak" meetings and through the use of euphemisms such as "executive session," "conference," "caucus," or "study or work session." Concern regarding the suppression of public information at the local government level resulted in an investigation by an Assembly Interim Committee on Judiciary, which submitted its report at the 1953 Legislative Session [see Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 49-50, 69 Cal. Rptr. 480] . The Committee Report stated that the public's right to open meetings was "a source of strength to our Country and must be protected at all costs" [Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 49-50, 69 Cal. Rptr. 480] . The recommendations of the Committee led to the adoption of the Ralph M. Brown Act (Brown Act) in 1953 [see Gov. Code § 54950 et seq.].

[2] Legislative Definition of Purpose

In enacting the Brown Act, the California Legislature declared that the public commissions, boards, councils, and other public agencies in California exist to aid in the conduct of the people's business, stating that the intent of the law was that public agencies take open actions and conduct public deliberations. The Legislature declared as follows [Gov. Code § 54950]:

> The people of this State do not yield their sovereignty to the agencies which serve them. The people, in delegating authority, do not give their public servants the right to decide what is good for the people to know and what is not good for them to know. The people insist on remaining informed so that they may retain control over the instruments they have created.

[3] Basic Open Meetings Requirement

The basic requirement of the Brown Act is that all meetings of the legislative body of a local agency must be open and public, and all persons mustbe allowed to attend any meeting of the legislative body of a local agency, except as otherwise provided in the Act [Gov. Code § 54953(a); see § 470B.13 for exemptions allowing closed meetings]. Open and public meetings of legislative bodies of local agencies must comply with the requirements of Section 202 of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 [42 U.S.C. § 12132], and with implementing federal regulations [Gov. Code § 54953.2]. No limit exists, however, on the amount of "openness" allowed by a local agency. Legislative bodies of local agencies may impose requirements that allow greater access to their meetings than that prescribed by the minimum standards set forth in the Brown Act [Gov. Code § 54953.7]. In addition, an elected legislative body of a local agency may impose these broader requirements on an appointed legislative body (of that agency), of which all or a majority of the members are appointed by or under the authority of the elected legislative body [Gov. Code § 54953.7].

The Act allows the use of teleconferencing, defined as a meeting of a legislative body, the members of which are in different locations but are connected by electronic means, through either audio or video, or both [Gov. Code § 54953(b); see also §§ 470B.11[6], and 470B.12[1], for further requirements for teleconferencing].

Chapter 470B PUBLIC AGENCY MEETINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Open Meetings of Local Agencies: The Ralph M. Brown Act

§ 470B.11 Definitions Applicable to the Brown Act

[1] Local Agency

The Brown Act defines local agencies very broadly. A "local agency" means a county; city, whether general law [see Gov. Code § 34102 (organized under the general law)] or chartered [see Gov. Code § 34101 (organized under a charter); city and county; town; school district; municipal corporation; district; political subdivision; or any board, commission, or agency thereof; or other local public agency [Gov. Code § 54951]. In determining whether a specific public agency was covered by the Brown Act, a court concluded that in view of the legislative policy expressed in both the Brown Act and other statutes, the Legislature intended all agencies to be included in some open meeting act unless expressly excluded [Torres v. Board of Commissioners (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 545, 549, 152 Cal. Rptr. 506] . The court held that a housing authority created by Health & Safety Code § 34200 et seq. is included within the statutory definition of a local agency under the Brown Act, as either a "municipal corporation" or "other local public agency" or both, as those terms are used in Gov. Code § 54951 [Torres v. Board of Commissioners (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 545, 549, 152 Cal. Rptr. 506] .

The California Court of Appeal held that a joint powers authority agency ("L.A. Impact") created by agreement (memorandum of understanding) of a number of cities within the County of Los Angeles was a local public agency within the meaning of Gov. Code § 54951, and thus was subject to the open meeting requirements of the Brown Act [McKee v. Los Angeles Interagency Metropolitan Police Apprehension Crime Task Force (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 354, 358-360, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 47] .

In addition, the California attorney general has opined that a California community college comes within the term "local agency" because it is a school district [see Gov. Code § 54951]. Meetings of its academic senate or faculty council are thus subject to the open meeting requirements of the Brown Act [see 66 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 252 (1983)] .

[2] Meeting

The Brown Act defines the term "meeting" to mean any congregation of a majority of a legislative body at the same time and location, including the teleconference location as permitted by Gov. Code § 54953, to hear, discuss, deliberate, or take action on any item that within the subject matter jurisdiction of the legislative body [Gov. Code § 54952.2(a)]. The writing of a letter by a city attorney to a local governing body in which the attorney expresses a legal opinion on an issue pending before the body is not a meeting under the Act [Roberts v. City of Palmdale (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 363, 380-381, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 853 P.2d 496] . However, there is a meeting within the terms of the Brown Act when members of a legislative body gather to collectively acquire and exchange facts relating to a pending issue before the body [Frazer v. Dixon Unified School Dist. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 781, 796-797, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641] .

A majority of the members of a legislative body shall not, outside a meeting authorized under the Brown act, use a series of communications of any kind, directly or through intermediaries, to discuss, deliberate, or take action on any item of business that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of the legislative body [Gov. Code § 54952.2(b)(1)]. This provision shall not be construed as preventing an employee or official of a local agency, from engaging in separate conversations or communications outside of a meeting authorized by the Brown act with members of a legislative body in order to answer questions or provide information regarding a matte that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of the local agency, if that person does not communicate to members of the legislative body the comments or position of any other member or members of the legislative body [Gov. Code § 54952.2(b)(2);. see Wolfe v. City of Fremont (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 533, 548-550, 50 Cal. Rptr.3d 524 (citizen properly alleged in complaint that city council violated provisions of Brown Act when city council members had discussions among themselves on policy issue that led to collective concurrence that members would not challenge policy at public meeting of city council; however, city manager and police chief did not violate Brown act provisions in having one on one discussions of policy issues with individual city council members)]. Legislative bodies are permitted to use teleconferencing for all purposes in connection with any meeting within the subject matter jurisdiction of the legislative body [Gov. Code § 54953 (b)(2); see §§ 470B.11[6], and 470B.12[1], for discussion of teleconferencing requirements].

The Brown Act specifically excludes the following activities from the definition of "meeting" for purposes of the Act's requirements:

- Individual contacts or conversations between a member of a legislative body and any other person that do not violate subdivision (b) [Gov. Code § 54952.2(c)(1)].

- The attendance of a majority of the members of a legislative body at a conference or similar gathering open to the public that involves a discussion of issues of general interest to the public or to public agencies of the type represented by the legislative body, provided that a majority of the members do not discuss among themselves, other than as a part of the scheduled program, business of a specified nature that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of the local agency. Nothing in Gov. Code § 54952.2(c)(2) is intended to allow members of the public free admission to a conference or similar gathering at which the organizers have required other participants or registrants to pay fees or charges as a condition of attendance [Gov. Code § 54952.2(c)(2)].

- The attendance of a majority of the members of a legislative body at an open and publicized meeting organized to address a topic of local community concern by a person or organization other than the local agency, provided that a majority of the members do not discuss among themselves, other than as a part of the scheduled program, businessof a specific nature that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of the legislative body of the local agency [Gov. Code § 54952.2(c)(3)].

- The attendance of a majority of the members of a legislative body at an open and noticed meeting of another body of the local agency, or at an open and noticed meeting of a legislative body of another local agency, provided that a majority of the members do not discuss among themselves, other than as part of the scheduled meeting, business of a specific nature that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of the legislative body of the local agency [Gov. Code § 54952.2(c)(4)].

- The attendance of a majority of the members of a legislative body at a purely social or ceremonial occasion, provided that a majority of the members do not discuss among themselves business of a specific nature that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of the legislative body of the local agency [Gov. Code § 54952.2(c)(5)].

- The attendance of a majority of the members of a legislative body at an open and noticed meeting of a standing committee of that body, provided that the members of the legislative body who are not members of the standing committee attend only as observers [Gov. Code § 54952.2(c)(6)].

[3] Legislative Body

The Brown Act defines legislative body to include the following:

- The governing body of a local agency or any other local body created by state or federal statute [Gov. Code § 54952(a)].

The California Court of Appeal held that the board of directors and the executive council of a joint powers authority agency ("L.A. Impact") created by agreement (memorandum of understanding) of a number of cities within the County of Los Angeles was a governing body of a local agency within the meaning of Gov. Code § 54952(a), and thus was subject to the open meeting requirements of the Brown Act [McKee v. Los Angeles Interagency Metropolitan Police Apprehension Crime Task Force (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 354, 362-363, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 47] .

- A commission, committee, board, or other body of a local agency, whether permanent or temporary, decision-making or advisory, created by charter, ordinance, resolution, or formal action of a legislative body. However, advisory committees, composed solely of the members of the legislative body which are less than a quorum of the legislative body are not legislative bodies, except that standing committees of a legislative body, irrespective of their composition, which have a continuing subject matter jurisdiction, or a meeting schedule fixed by charter, ordinance, resolution, or formal action of a legislative body are legislative bodies [Gov. Code § 54952(b)].

- A board, commission, committee, or other multimember body that governs a private corporation, limited liability company, or entity in either of the following situations [Gov. Code § 54952(c)(2)]:

  - Is created by the elected legislative body in order to exercise authority that may lawfully be delegated by the elected governing body to a private corporation, limited liability company, or entity [Gov. Code § 54952(c)(1)(A); McKee v. Los Angeles Interagency Metropolitan Police Apprehension Crime Task Force (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 354, 362-363, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 47 (board of directors and the executive council of a joint powers authority agency ("L.A. Impact") created by agreement (memorandum of understanding) of a number of cities within the County of Los Angeles was a board or multi-member body of an entity within the meaning of Gov. Code § 54952(c)(1)(A); see International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union v. Los Angeles Export Terminal, Inc. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 287, 299-300, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 456 ; Epstein v. Hollywood Entertainment Dist. II Business Improvement Dist.(2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 862, 876-877, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 857 (property owners association created to take over administrative functions of city is a legislative body within meaning of Brown Act)].

  - Receives funds from a local agency and the membership of whose governing body includes a member of the legislative body of the local agency appointed to that governing body as a full voting member by the legislative body of the local agency [Gov. Code § 54952(c)(1)(A), (B)]. However, if a full voting member changes status to a nonvoting member, on or after February 9, 1996, the body is still subject to the open meeting act requirements notwithstanding the change in status of the member.

- The lessee of any hospital the whole or part of which is first leased pursuant to subdivision (p) of Section 32121 of the Health and Safety Code after January 1, 1994, where the lessee exercises any material authority of a legislative body of a local agency delegated to it by that legislative body whether the lessee is organized and operated by the local agency or by a delegated authority [Gov. Code § 54952(d)].

For purposes of open meeting requirements, an advisory committee that is composed exclusively of members of a local agency numbering less than a quorum of that agency is not a legislative body within the meaning of the law [former Gov. Code § 54952.3], and is not required to comply with the open meeting requirements of the Act [former Gov. Code § 54952.3; Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Orange County Employees Retirement System (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 821, 824-825, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148, 863 P.2d 218] .

The California court of appeal held that two members of a city council did not violate the Brown Act's open meetings requirements when they met privately with various persons to discuss the response of the city to a state-mandated land use plan for the city. The two members constituted the entire membership of the city standing committee for land use planning, but this committee was not a standing committee within the meaning of Gov. Code § 54952(b) because the two members did not meet privately as members of that standing committee and that committee did not have jurisdiction over the city's response to the state mandated land use plan. The city council retained jurisdiction over that issue [Taxpayers for Livable Communities v. City of Malibu (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1123, 1127-1128, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 493] . Further, the two members were not within the definition of "an other body of a local agency" [Gov. Code § 54952(b)] that is subject to the act. Rather, they were an exempt advisory body who did not constitute a quorum of the five member council and whose responsibility was to report back to the city council which retained the authority to make decision about the land use plan [Taxpayers for Livable Communities v. City of Malibu (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1123, 1128-1129, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 493] .

The Brown Act also defines the term "member of a legislative body of a local agency" to be any person elected to serve as a member of a legislative body who has not yet assumed the duties of office. That person shall conform his or her conduct to the requirements of the Brown Act and shall be treated for purposes of enforcement of the Act as if he or she has already assumed office [Gov. Code § 54952.1; see 216 Sutter Bay Associates v. County of Sutter (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 860, 878, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 492 (this requirement operative January 1, 1994, and is not retroactive)].

[4] Action Taken

The Brown Act's stated intent is that public agencies take action openly [Gov. Code § 54950; see § 470B.10[2]].The Act defines an "action taken" as a collective decision made by a majority of the members of a legislative body, a collective commitment or promise by a majority of the members of a legislative body to make a positive or a negative decision, or an actual vote by a majority of the members of a legislative body when sitting as a body or entity, upon a motion, proposal, resolution, order, or ordinance [Gov. Code § 54952.6]. For instance, when an attorney for a city redevelopment agency called each of its members, obtaining commitments to a course of action, "action" was taken within the meaning of the Brown Act. If a quorum of a legislative body's members intend to unite in an agreement to agree, a violation of the Brown Act has occurred [Stockton Newspapers, Inc. v. Redevelopment Agency (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 95, 103, 214 Cal. Rptr. 561 (members concurred in purpose of arriving at collective commitment in serially conducted telephone poll)]. On the other hand, no action is taken for purposes of the Act when an agency confers with and gives direction to staff, but does not take an actual vote, and does not make any collective decision about a matter not listed on the agenda [Boyle v. City of Redondo Beach (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1118, 83 Cal.

Rptr 2d 164 ; Centinela Hospital Assn. v. City of Inglewood (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1599, 275 Cal. Rptr. 901] .

[5] Deliberation

The court of appeal has held that the Brown Act [see Gov. Code § 54950 (declaration of intent); see also § 470B.10[2]] intended that deliberation, as well as action [see [4], above], occur openly and publicly [Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 47, 69 Cal. Rptr. 480] . Both deliberation and action are deemed essential elements of the collective decision making process. "Deliberation" is the process of examining, weighing, and reflecting on the reasons for or against a choice, and includes a public agency's ascertainment of facts, and connotes not only collective discussion, but the collective acquisition and exchange of facts preliminary to an ultimate decision [Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 47-48, 69 Cal. Rptr. 480] . While action-taking and deliberation can function separately, both must be taken in public view [Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1968) 263 Cal.App. 2d 41, 48, 69 Cal. Rptr. 480] . Note, however, that the criminal penalties in the Brown Act [see Gov. Code § 54959; see also § 470B.15 [1]] apply only when action is taken.

[6] Teleconferencing

The Act allows the use of teleconferencing for the benefit of the public and the legislative body of a local agency, in connection with any meeting or proceeding authorized by law. A teleconferenced meeting or proceeding must comply with all requirements of the law otherwise applicable to a specific type of meeting or proceeding [Gov. Code § 54053(b)(1)]. Teleconferencing may be used for all purposes in connection with any meeting within the subject matter jurisdiction of the legislative body of the local agency. All votes taken during a teleconferenced meeting must be by rollcall [Gov. Code § 54953(b)(1)].

Teleconferencing is defined as a meeting of a legislative body, the members of which are in different locations but are connected by electronic means, through either audio or video, or both [Gov. Code § 54953(b)(4)].

For additional requirements, including notice of and public access to teleconference locations, see § 470B.12[1].

Chapter 470B PUBLIC AGENCY MEETINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Open Meetings of Local Agencies: The Ralph M. Brown Act

41-470B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 470B.12

§ 470B.12 Open Meeting Procedures

[1] Public Participation in General

Under the Brown Act, the following procedures and requirements apply to meetings of the legislative body of a local agency:

- As a condition of attendance at any meeting, a member of the public may not be required to register his or her name, provide any other information, complete a questionnaire, or otherwise fulfill any condition precedent to attendance. If an attendance list, register, questionnaire, or other similar document is posted at or near the entrance to the room where the meeting is being held, or is circulated to the people present at the meeting, the document must state clearly that (a) the signing, registering, or completing of the document is voluntary, and (b) any person may attend the meeting regardless of whether he or she signs, registers, or completes the document [Gov. Code § 54953.3].

- Any person who attends an open and public meeting of a legislative body of a local agency has the right to record the proceedings of the meeting with an audio or video recording or a still or motion picture camera in the absence of a reasonable finding by the legislative body of the local agency that the recording cannot continue without noise, illumination, or obstruction of view that constitutes, or would constitute a persistent disruption of the proceedings [Gov. Code § 54953.5(a)]. Other provisions [Gov. Code § 54953.6] limit local agencies' legislative bodies' prohibition or restriction of broadcasts of its open and public meetings without a reasonable finding. Any tape or film record of an open and public meeting is subject to inspection under the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.], but these records may be destroyed or erased 30 days after the taping or recording. The local agency must provide a video or tape player without charge for the inspection of a video or tape recording of the proceedings of a meeting [Gov. Code § 54953.5(b)].

- "No legislative body of a local agency shall conduct any meeting in any facility that prohibits admitting any person on the basis of race, religious creed, color, national origin, ancestry, or sex or which is inaccessible to disabled persons, or where members of the public may not be present without making a payment or purchase" [Gov. Code § 54961(a)]. Every local agency defined in the Brown Act [see Gov. Code § 54951] must comply with this requirement. Open and public meetings of legislative bodies of local agencies must comply with the requirements of Section 202 of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 [42 U.S.C. § 12132], and with implementing federal regulations [Gov. Code § 54953.2].

- When the legislative body elects to use teleconferencing, it must post agendas at all teleconference locations and conduct teleconference meetings in a manner that protects the statutory and constitutional rights of the parties or the public appearing before the legislative body of a local agency. Each teleconference location must be identified in the notice and agenda of the meeting or proceeding and must be accessible to the public. During the teleconference, at least a quorum of the members of the legislative body must participate from locations within the boundaries of the territory over which the local agency exercises jurisdiction. The agenda must provide an opportunity for members of the public to address the legislative body directly pursuant to Gov. Code § 54954.3 at each teleconference location [Gov. Code § 54953(b)(3)].

- Notwithstanding the provisions of Gov. Code § 54953 (b)(3), when a health authority conducts a teleconference meeting, members who are outside the jurisdiction of the authority may be counted toward the establishment of a quorum when participating in the teleconference if at least 50 percent of the number of members that would establish a quorum are present within the boundaries of the territory over which the authority exercises jurisdiction, and the health authority provides a teleconference number, and associated access codes, if any, that allows any person to call in to participate in the meeting and that number and access codes are identified in the notice and agenda of the meeting [Gov. Code § 54953(d)(1)]. Furthermore, nothing in this subdivision shall be construed as discouraging health authority members from regularly meeting at a common physical site within the jurisdiction of the authority or from using teleconference locations within or near the jurisdiction of the authority. A teleconference meeting for which a quorum is established pursuant to this subdivision shall be subject to all other requirements of this section [Gov. Code § 54953(d)(2)]. For purposes of this section, health authorities are defined to include any entity created pursuant to Sections 14018.7, 14087.31, 14087.35, 14087.36, 14087.38, and 14087.9605 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, any joint powers authority created pursuant to Article 1 (commencing with Section 6500) of Chapter 5 of Division 7 for the purpose of contracting pursuant to Section 14087.3 of the Welfare and Institutions Code, and any advisory committee to a county sponsored health plan licensed pursuant to Chapter 2.2 (commencing with Section 1340) of Division 2 of the Health and Safety Code if the advisory committee has 12 or more members [Gov. Code § 54953(d)(3)].

[2] Regular Meetings

[a] Time and Place of Meetings

[i] General Rule

Each legislative body of a local agency, except for advisory committees and standing committees, must designate the time and place for holding regular meetings by ordinance, resolution, by-laws, or by whatever other rule is required for the conduct of business by that body [Gov. Code § 54954(a)]. Meetings of advisory committees or standing committees, for which an agenda is posted at least 72 hours in advance of the meeting, are considered to be regular meetings of the legislative body [Gov. Code § 54954(a)].

The regular and special meetings of the legislative body must be held within the boundaries of the territory over which the local agency exercises jurisdiction [Gov. Code § 54954(b)]. There are a number of statutory exceptions to the requirement that legislative bodies meet within the boundaries of their territory [Gov. Code § 54954(b)]. These include the following:

- Comply with the state or federal law or court order, or attend a judicial or administrative proceeding to which the local agency is a party [Gov. Code § 54954(b)(1)].

- Inspect real or personal property which cannot be conveniently brought within the boundaries of the territory over which the local agency exercises jurisdiction provided that the meeting's topic is limited to items directly related to the real or personal property [Gov. Code § 54954(b)(2)].

- Participate in meetings or discussions of multi agency significance that are outside the boundaries of a local agency's jurisdiction. However, any meeting or discussion held pursuant to this subdivision must take place within the jurisdiction of one of the participating local agencies and be noticed by all participating agencies as provided for in this chapter [Gov. Code § 54954(b)(3)].

- Meet in the closest meeting facility if the local agency has no meeting facility within the boundaries of the territory over which the local agency exercises jurisdiction, or at the principal office of the local agency if that office is located outside the territory over which the agency exercises jurisdiction [Gov. Code § 54954(b)(4)].

- Meet outside their immediate jurisdiction with elected or appointed officials of the United States or the State of California when a local meeting would be impractical, solely to discuss a legislative or regulatory issue affecting the local agency and over which the federal or state officials have jurisdiction [Gov. Code § 54954(b)(5)].

- Meet outside their immediate jurisdiction if the meeting takes place in or nearby a facility owned by the agency, provided that the topic of the meeting is limited to items directly related to the facility [Gov. Code § 54954(b)(6)].

- Visit the office of the local agency's legal counsel for a closed session on pending litigation held pursuant to Section 54956.9, when to do so would reduce legal fees or costs [Gov. Code § 54954(b)(7)].

Legislative bodies of all local agencies as defined in Government Code § 54951 are prohibited from conducting meetings in any facility that prohibits the admittance of any person, or persons, on the basis of ancestry or based on any characteristic listed or defined in Gov, Code § 11135, or which is inaccessible to disabled persons, or where members of the public may not be present without making a payment or purchase [Gov. Code § 54961].

[ii] Governing Board of School District

Meetings of the governing board of a school district normally must be held within the district [Gov. Code § 54954(c)]. There are a number of statutory exceptions to the requirement that school board meetings be held within the district. These exceptions include all of the exceptions that apply to local agencies generally [Gov. Code § 54954(c); see [i], above]. In addition, there are three specific exceptions for school districts. These include the following:

- Attend a conference on nonadversarial collective bargaining techniques [Gov. Code § 54954(c)(1)].

- Interview members of the public residing in another district with reference to the trustees' potential employment of an applicant for the position of the superintendent of the district [Gov. Code § 54954(c)(2)].

- Interview a potential employee from another district [Gov. Code § 54954(c)(3)].

[iii] Joint Powers Authorities

Meetings of joint powers authorities must be held within the territory of a member agency unless the authority has members throughout the state in which case it may meet at any facility in the state which complies with discrimination and access [Gov. Code § 54961] requirements [Gov. Code § 54954(d); see [i], above]. Joint powers authority may also meet in places authorized as exceptions for local agencies [Gov. Code § 54954(b), (d)]. In an emergency [Gov. Code § 54954(e) ("by reason of fire, flood, earthquake, or other emergency")], if the designated meeting place is unsafe to meet, the meetings can be held for the duration of the emergency at a place designated by the presiding officer of the legislative body or his or her designee. The presiding officer or designee must notify local media that have requested notice [Gov. Code § 54956] of the changed place of meetings by the most rapid means of communication available at the time [Gov. Code § 54954(e)].

[iv] County Board of Supervisors

County boards of supervisors are required to adopt an ordinance establishing the times of their regular meetings, which must be held at the county seat [Gov. Code § 25081].

[v] City Councils

City councils of general law cities [see Gov. Code § 34102 (organized under the general law, rather than under a charter)] are required to establish the time of their regular meetings at least once a month, by either ordinance or resolution [Gov. Code § 36805], and must hold their meetings within the corporate limits of the city and at a place designated by ordinance [Gov. Code § 54954(b)].

[b] Agenda and Public Notice Requirements

[i] Necessity of an Agenda

Before 1986, when Gov. Code § 54954.2 was added [1986 Stats., ch. 641, § 5], no requirements existed in the Brown Act for an agenda or publicposting or other notice of that agenda, although many local agencies had statutes that required creation and public notice of an agenda, as well as conformance to that agenda. As long ago as 1858, however, the California Supreme Court declared that county boards of supervisors were required to have and conform to an agenda for special meetings in order to give interested persons the opportunity to appear and contest the allowance of perceived improper demands against the public treasury. In one instance, when a county board of supervisors failed to do so, the Supreme Court declared void an agreed-upon settlement of the treasurer's accounts [County of Eldorado v. Reed (1858) 11 Cal. 130, 132] . In addition, governing boards of school districts have been subject for several years to the requirement that an agenda be posted 72 hours before meetings [see Educ. Code § 35145; Gov. Code § 54954.2]. An agenda of a public meeting, when distributed to all or a majority of the members of a legislative body of a local agency for discussion or consideration at a public meeting, is a discoverable public record under the Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 54957.5(a); see Gov. Code §§ 6250-6267; see also Ch. 470C, Public Records Act].

[ii] Agenda Requirements

Gov. Code § 54954.2 requires the legislative body of a local agency to post a regular meeting agenda in a location that is freely accessible to members of the public at least 72 hours before the meeting [Gov. Code § 54954.2(a)]. The agenda must (1) contain a brief, general description which generally will not exceed 20 words of each item of business to be discussed or transacted at the meeting, including items to be discussed in closed session, and (2) state the time and location of the regular meeting [Gov. Code § 54954.2(a)].

When requested, the agenda shall be made available in appropriate alternative formats to persons with a disability as required by Section 202 of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 [42 U.S.C. § 12132] and with implementing federal regulations [Gov. Code § 54953.2]. The agenda shall include information regarding how, to whom, and when a request for disability-related modification or accommodation, including auxiliary aids or services, may be made by a person with a disability who requires a modification or accommodation in order to participate in a public meeting [Gov. Code § 54954.2(a)].

The agenda must describe the legislative body's business in enough detail to enable the general public to ascertain the nature of the business to be transacted. A misleading or inadequate description would violate this provision [Carlson v. Paradise Unified Sch. Dist. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 196, 200, 95 Cal. Rptr. 650] . For example, an agenda description that stated only "Continuation school site change" was inadequate to provide notice that the board would consider discontinuing elementary education at the named school [Carlson v. Paradise Unified Sch. Dist. (1971) 18 Cal.App. 3d 196, 200, 95 Cal. Rptr. 650] . Closed session agenda items must be described in the agenda in a specific way that satisfies, or substantially complies with, statutory requirements [Gov. Code § 54954.5]. An agenda item for a closed session that stated "Public Employee Performance Evaluation (non-Tenured) Librarian," describing a session in which a community college district voted not to renew the contract of a librarian, satisfied the agenda description requirements of Gov. Code § 54954.5 [Furtado v. Sierra Community College (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 876, 883-884, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 589] .

An agenda item for a closed session of a special meeting that stated: "Per Government Code Section 54957: Public Employee (employment contract)" did not satisfy the provisions of the Brown Act that require the agenda to "specify the business to be transacted or discussed" [Gov. Code § 54956], nor did it satisfy the provisions requiring that the agenda provide a "brief general description of each item of business to be transacted or discussed ..." [Gov. Code § 54954.2]. This agenda item was not sufficient to describe a closed session of a special meeting at which a city finance director was terminated from employment based on charges of misconduct [Moreno v. City of King (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 17, 26-27, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 29] . Further, the city failed to cure the agenda violation at a later meeting when it reported a denial of the former employee's tort claim in the minutes for that meeting but failed to correct the agenda for the prior meeting by disclosing that the employee's termination has been considered at the prior meeting [Moreno v. City of King (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 17, 27-28, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 29] .

[iii] Action on Agenda Items

The legislative body cannot take action or discussion on any item not appearing on the posted agenda [Gov. Code § 54954.2(a); Cohan v. City of Thousand Oaks (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 547, 556-557, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 782 (city council violated Brown Act provisions by amending agenda at meeting to add an appeal; "Emergency Situation" exception did not apply)]. There are a number of exceptions to the agenda requirement both for action and discussion. These include:

- A member of a legislative body or its staff may briefly respond to statements made or questions posed by persons exercising their public testimony rights [Gov. Code § 54954.3] under the law [Gov. Code § 54954.2(a)].

- On his or her own initiative, or in response to questions posed by the public, a member of a legislative body or its staff may ask a question for clarification, make a brief announcement, or make a brief report on his or her own activities [Gov. Code § 54954.2(a)].

- A member of a legislative body, or the body itself, subject to the rules and regulations of the legislative body, may provide a reference to staff or other resources for factual information, request staff to report back to the body at a subsequent meeting concerning any matter, or take action to direct staff to place a matter of business on a future agenda [Gov. Code § 54954.2(a)].

- A legislative body may take action on items of business not on the posted agenda after determining by a majority vote that an emergency situation exists [Gov. Code § 54954.2(b)(1); Cohan v. City of Thousand Oaks (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 547, 556-557, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 782 (city council violated Brown act provisions by amending agenda at meeting to add an appeal; "Emergency Situation" exception did not apply)]. An "emergency situation" means either a work stoppage or other activity severely impairing public health, safety, or both, as determined by a majority of the members [see Gov. Code § 54956.5(a)]; or a crippling disaster severely impairing public health, safety, or both, as determined by a majority [see Gov. Code § 54956.5(b)]. In addition, the situation must threaten to disrupt, or have resulted in actual disruption of, public facilities [Gov. Code § 54956.5; for a discussion of emergency meetings, see [5], below]. Before discussing emergency items, the legislative body must publicly identify the item [Gov. Code § 54954.2(b)].

- In a nonemergency situation, the governing body may determine by a two-thirds vote of the members of the legislative body present at the meeting that there is a need to take immediate action and that the need for action came to the attention of the local agency subsequent to the agenda posting, and then act on the item. If less than two thirds of the members are present, the determination must be unanimous [Gov. Code § 54954.2(b)(2)].

- A legislative body may take action on an item of business not appearing on the posted agenda if the item was posted for a previous meeting occurring no more than five calendar days before the date action is taken on the item, and at the previous meeting the item was continued to the meeting at which action is being taken [Gov. Code § 54954.2(b)(3)].

[c] Public's Opportunity to Address Legislative Body

Every agenda for a regular meeting [see Gov. Code § 54954.2; see also [b], above] must provide an opportunity for members of the public to directly address the legislative body on any item of interest to the public, before or during the legislative body's consideration of the item, that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of that body [Gov. Code § 54954.3(a)]. No action can be taken on any item not appearing on the agenda, however, unless the action constitutes one of the exceptions to the agenda requirement [Gov. Code § 54954.3(a); see Gov. Code § 54954.2(b); see also [b], above]. However, the agenda need not provide an opportunity for the members of the public to address the legislative body on any item that has already been considered by a committee composed exclusively of members of the council or board at a public meeting in which all interested members of the public had the opportunity to address the committee on that item, before or during the committee's consideration of the item, unless the legislative body determines that the item has been substantially changed since the committee heard it [Gov. Code § 54954.3(a); Coalition of Labor, Ag. & Bus. v. County of Santa Barbara Board of Supervisors (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 205, 209-210, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 198 (Gov. Code § 54954.3(a) does not require Board of Supervisors to allow members of the public to address the Board on whether to place an item on the agenda of a board meeting)].

The legislative body of a local agency may adopt reasonable regulations to ensure that the public's opportunity to address that body is provided. Those regulations may limit the total amount of time allocated for public testimony on particular issues and for each individual speaker [Gov. Code § 54954.3(b)]. A local library commission did not violate the open meeting provisions of the Brown Act by not allowing a public comment period of three minutes for each speaker for each agenda item [Chaffee v. San Francisco Public Library Comm'n (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 109, 115-116, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1] . The legislative body of a local agency may not prohibit criticism of the policies, procedures, programs, or services of the agency, or of the acts or omissions of the legislative body. Nothing in Gov. Code § 54954.3 shall confer any privilege or protection for expression beyond that otherwise provided by law [Gov. Code § 54954.3(c)].

[d] Notice to Persons

Persons who wish to receive copies of agendas, or agenda document packets, for any meeting of a legislative body of a local agency that is subject to the Brown Act may request in writing that copies be mailed to them. When requested, the agenda and the documents in the agenda packet shall be made available in appropriate alternative formats to persons with a disability as required by Section 202 of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 [42 U.S.C. § 12132], and with implementing federal regulations [Gov. Code § 54954.1]. When the written request is received, the legislative body, or its designee, must mail the requested materials at the time the agenda is posted under the law or upon distribution to all, or a majority of all, of the members of the legislative body, whichever occurs first [Gov. Code § 54954.1]. Requests for mailed copies of agendas or agenda packets are effective for the calendar year in which the request is filed, and must be renewed after January 1 of the next year. Mailing fees, not to exceed the cost of providing the service, can be established by the legislative body. If the requesting person does not receive the agenda or agenda packet, that does not invalidate the legislative body actions taken at the meeting for which the agenda or agenda packet was not received [Gov. Code § 54954.1].

Notwithstanding Gov. Code § 6255 or other law, agendas of public meetings and any other writings, when distributed to all, or a majority of all, of the members of a legislative body of a local agency by any person in connection with a matter subject to discussion or consideration at an open meeting of the body, are disclosable public records under the California Public Records Act [Chapter 3.5 (commencing with Section 6250) of Division 7 of Title 1], and shall be made available upon request without delay. However, this section shall not include any writing exempt from public disclosure under Gov. Code sections 6253.5, 6254, 6254.3, 6254.7, 6254.15, 6254.16 or 6254.22 [Gov. Code § 54957.5(a)].

If a writing that is a public record under subdivision (a), and that relates to an agenda item for an open session of a regular meeting of the legislative body of a local agency, is distributed less than 72 hours prior to that meeting, the writing must be made available for public inspection pursuant to paragraph (2) at the time the writing is distributed to all, or a majority of all, of the members of the body [Gov. Code § 54957.5(b)(1)]. A local agency must make any writing described in paragraph (1) available for public inspection at a public office or location that the agency must designate for this purpose. Each local agency must list the address of this office or location on the agendas for all meetings of the legislative body of that agency. The local agency also may post the writing on the local agency's Internet website in a position and manner that makes it clear that the writing relates to an agenda item for an upcoming meeting [Gov. Code § 54957.5(b)(2)]. This subdivision is operative on July 1, 2008 [Gov. Code § 54957.5(b)(3)].

Writings that are public records and are distributed during a public meeting shall be made available for public inspection at the meeting if prepared by the local agency or a member of its legislative body, or after the meeting if prepared by some other person [Gov. Code § 54957.5]. These writings shall be made available in appropriate alternative formats upon request by a person with a disability, as required by Section 202 of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 [42 U.S.C. Sec. 12132], and the federal rules and regulations adopted in implementation thereof [Gov. Code § 54957.5(b)]. The legislative body of a local agency is not prohibited from charging a fee or deposit for a copy of a public record pursuant to Section 6253, except that no surcharge shall be imposed on persons with disabilities in violation of Section 202 of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 [42 U.S.C. Sec. 12132], and the federal rules and regulations adopted in implementation thereof [Gov. Code § 54957.5(c)]. This statute shall not be interpreted to limit or delay the public's right to inspect or obtain a copy of any record required to be disclosed under the requirements of the California Public Records Act [Chapter 3.5 (commencing with Section 6250) of Division 7 of Title 1]. This law shall not be interpreted to require a legislative body of a local agency to place any paid advertisement or any other paid notice in any publication [Gov. Code § 54957.5(d)].

[3] Special Meetings

[a] Notice to Members

If a public agency needs to hold a meeting at a time or place other than that specified for regular meetings [see Gov. Code § 54954; see also [2], above], either (1) the presiding officer of the legislative body, or (2) a majority of the members, may call a special meeting at any time [Gov. Code § 54956; 216 Sutter Bay Associates v. County of Sutter (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 860, 881, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 492] . Written notice of the special meeting must be delivered either personally or by any other means to each member of the legislative body and must be received at least 24 hours before the time of the meeting specified in the notice. The call and notice must specify the time and place of the special meeting and the business to be transacted or discussed. The Brown Act specifically prohibits the legislative body from conducting any business not contained in this notice [Gov. Code § 54956]. No written notice need be given, however, to any member who (1) has filed a written waiver of notice (including a telegram) with the clerk or secretary at or prior to the meeting, or (2) actually attends the meeting when it convenes [Gov. Code § 54956].

[b] Notice to Public

In addition to notifying its individual members, a legislative body must provide notice to various other persons or entities as follows:

- The call and notice must be posted 24 hours before the special meeting in a location that is freely accessible to members of the general public [Gov. Code § 54956].

- Notice of the special meeting delivered personally or by any other means 24 hours in advance to news media that have requested written notice, including each local newspaper of general circulation, and radio or television stations. The requirements for notice to legislative body members, discussed in [a], above, apply equally to notice to the news media [Gov. Code § 54956]. The attorney general has indicated that it is not necessary to give this notice to a local newspaper of general circulation that has not submitted a written request for notice [see 62 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 658 (1979)] .

- If the notice concerns the meeting of the legislative body [see Gov. Code § 54954.1 (notice requirements for legislative body of local district)] of a local district, the legislative body must give notice, at least one week before the date set for the meeting, to any owner of property located within the district who has filed a written request [Gov. Code § 54954.1].

- If the special meeting is called less than seven days in advance, the legislative body may give whatever notice it deems to be practical [Gov. Code § 54954.1].

For a discussion of the requirements for notice and requests for notice applicable to district meetings, see [2][d], above.

[4] Adjourned or Continued Meetings

[a] Adjournment

When an insufficient number of members are present to conduct a meeting, a legislative body of a local agency may adjourn any regular or adjourned regular meeting or special or adjourned special meeting to a different time or place specified in the order of adjournment [Gov. Code § 54955]. For example, the attorney general has ruled that while a board of supervisors is required to hold its regular meetings at the county seat, an adjourned regular meeting may be held at any other location appropriate for the conduct of the county board's business [see 58 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 554 (1975)] . If an insufficient number of members are present at the new meeting specified in the order of adjournment, the meeting may again be adjourned [Gov. Code § 54955]. If a quorum is not present at such a meeting, the members present may adjourn from one meeting to another [see [6], below, for a discussion of what constitutes a quorum with respect to various public agencies]. If all members are absent from a regular or adjourned regular meeting, the clerk or secretary of the legislative body may declare the meeting adjourned to a stated time and place, and must cause a written notice of the adjournment to be given in the same manner as that required for a special meeting [Gov. Code § 54955; see Gov. Code § 54956 (notice requirements for special meetings); see also [3], above]. Within 24 hours after the adjournment, a copy of the order or notice of adjournment must be conspicuously posted on or near the door of the place where the adjourned meeting was held [Gov. Code § 54955]. If the order of adjournment of a meeting fails to state the time at which the adjourned meeting will be held, by default, the meeting will be held at the usual hour specified for regular meetings [Gov. Cod § 54955]. A regular or adjourned regular meeting that is adjourned according to these rules is deemed to be a regular meeting for all purposes [Gov. Code § 54955].

[b] Continuation

A hearing that is being held, or is noticed or ordered to be held, by the legislative body (other than an advisory committee) of a local agency at any meeting may be continued, or recontinued, to any subsequent meeting. The procedures for continuation are the same as those for adjournment, discussed in [a], above. If the hearing is continued to a time less than 24 hours after the time specified in the order or notice of hearing, however, a copy of the order or notice of continuance must be posted immediately following the meeting at which the order or declaration of continuance was adopted or made [Gov. Code § 54955.1].

When a local agency legislative body schedules a continued public meeting at a later date to consider a single agenda, the body is not required to provide a general public comment period at each session. Rather, the legislative body is required to provide one general public comment period for that agenda that can be held at the continued meeting [Chaffee v. San Francisco Library Commission (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 461, 468-469, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 336] .

[5] Emergency Meetings

The Brown Act also provides for meetings in emergency situations in which prompt action is necessary due to the disruption or threatened disruption of public facilities. Emergency situation is defined to mean both of the following [Gov. Code § 54956.5(a)]:

- An emergency, which shall be defined as a work stoppage, crippling activity, or other activity that severely impairs public health, safety, or both, as determined by a majority of the members of the legislative body [Gov. Code § 54956.5(a)(1)].

- A dire emergency, which shall be defined as a crippling disaster, mass destruction, terrorist act, or threatened terrorist activity that poses peril so immediate and significant that requiring a legislative body to provide one- hour notice before holding an emergency meeting under this section may endanger the public health, safety, or both, as determined by a majority of the members of the legislative body [Gov. Code § 54956.5(a)(2)].

Subject to requested notice requirements, in the case of an emergency situation involving matters upon which prompt action is necessary due to the disruption or threatened disruption of public facilities, a legislative body may hold an emergency meeting without complying with either the 24-hour notice requirement or the 24-hour posting requirement of Gov. Code § 54956 or both of the notice and posting requirements [Gov. Code § 54956.5(b)(1)].

Each local newspaper of general circulation and radio or television station that has requested notice of special meetings pursuant to Gov. Code § 54956 shall be notified by the presiding officer of the legislative body, or designee thereof, one hour prior to the emergency meeting, or, in the case of a dire emergency, at or near the time that the presiding officer or designee notifies the members of the legislative body of the emergency meeting. This notice shall be given by telephone and all telephone numbers provided in the most recent request of a newspaper or station for notification of special meetings shall be exhausted. In the event that telephone services are not functioning, the notice requirements of this section shall be deemed waived, and the legislative body, or designee of the legislative body, shall notify those newspapers, radio stations, or television stations of the fact of the holding of the emergency meeting, the purpose of the meeting, and any action taken at the meeting as soon after the meeting as possible [Gov. Code § 54956.5(b)(2)].

During a meeting held pursuant to this section, the legislative body may meet in closed session pursuant to Gov. Code § 54957 if agreed to by a two-thirds vote of the members of the legislative body present, or, if less than two- thirds of the members are present, by a unanimous vote of the members present [Gov. Code § 54956.5(c)]. All special meeting requirements, as prescribed in Gov. Code § 54956 shall be applicable to a meeting called pursuant to this section, with the exception of the 24-hour notice requirement [Gov. Code § 54956.5(d)].

The minutes of a meeting called pursuant to this section, a list of persons whom the presiding officer of the legislative body, or designee of the legislative body, notified or attempted to notify, a copy of the rollcall vote, and any actions taken at the meeting shall be posted for a minimum of 10 days in a public place as soon after the meeting as possible [Gov. Code § 54956.5(e)].

[6] Quorum

[a] Definition

A quorum of the members of a multi member body is the least number of them who together are legally competent to transact the business of the body [see People v. Dale (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 370, 375, 179 P.2d 870 ; Black's Law Dictionary; Webster's Third New International Dictionary; see also Nesbitt v. Bolz (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 677, 679-680, 91 P.2d 879] . The common law rule is that a quorum is a simple majority, that is, the next whole number greater than half of the number of members, such as three of five members, four of six members, and so forth [see FTC v. Flotill Products (1967) 389 U.S. 179, 183, 88 S. Ct. 401, 19 L. Ed. 2d 398] .

Some statutes specify that a quorum of the members of a particular agency consists of a majority [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 5016]. It is apparent that in such statutes the reference is to a simple majority [see People v. Hecht (1895) 105 Cal. 621, 627, 38 P. 941 ; Ursino v. Superior Court (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 611, 620, 114 Cal. Rptr. 404] . In other cases the number of members constituting a quorum is in fact a simple majority specified in terms of numbers [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 4007, 18605 (six of ten-member Board of Pharmacy; five of eight-member Athletic Commission)].

When the statutes dealing with a particular agency do not specify the number of members constituting a quorum, but do require a number greater than a simple majority to concur in a decision, that number, and not a simple majority, constitutes a quorum [see Ursino v. Superior Court (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 611, 620, 114 Cal. Rptr. 404 (local charter requiring four of five-member board of permit appeals to concur in rescinding building permit; four members as constituting quorum); People v. Dale (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 370, 375, 179 P.2d 870 (concurrence of 12 of 19 grand jurors as necessary for indictment; 12 grand jurors as constituting quorum)].

When the statutes dealing with a particular agency specify neither the number of agency members constituting a quorum, nor the number of members whose concurrence is necessary for action to be taken by the agency, it is usually reasonable to assume that a simple majority of the agency members constitutes a quorum [see Civ. Code § 12 (authority given jointly to three or more public officers as exercisable by majority unless law provides otherwise); Code Civ. Proc. § 15 (same); Ursino v. Superior Court (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 611, 620, 114 Cal. Rptr. 404 (applying Civ. Code § 12 and Code Civ. Proc. § 15 to local board of permit appeals but finding other provision in law governing board); see also People v. Hecht (1895) 105 Cal. 621, 627, 38 P. 941 ; Jacobs v. Board of Supervisors (1893) 100 Cal. 121, 132, 34 P. 630 ; Ford v. Civil Service Commission (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 692, 697, 327 P.2d 148 (two of three county civil service commissioners at hearing as full commission)].

[b] Effect of Lack of Quorum

When the members of an agency must act collectively and in person, the effect of fewer than a quorum assembling is to render the agency incapable of proceeding [see, e.g., Ursino v. Superior Court (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 611, 621, 114 Cal. Rptr. 404] . Although it has been held that the requirements of due process are satisfied if a member who participates in an agency decision has read and considered the evidence presented at a hearing, or a transcript of it, even though he was not physically present when the evidence was produced [see Cooper v. State Bd. of Medical Examiners (1950) 35 Cal. 2d, 242, 246 , 35 Cal. 2d 242, 217 P.2d 630 ; Le Strange v. City of Berkeley (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 313, 327, 26 Cal. Rptr. 550] , this rule apparently does not relieve the agency of the requirement of having at least a quorum of its members present to engage in collective action, although the identity of those members may change.

[c] Number Required for Action

[i] Relation to Quorum

Once it has been determined how many agency members constitute a quorum [see People v. Dale (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 370, 375, 179 P.2d 870] , it is necessary to determine how many members of the agency must concur in a decision. The number of agency members whose concurring votes are necessary for agency action might be the same as that constituting a quorum, but often it is smaller.

[ii] Common Law Rule

The common law rule is that a simple majority of a collective body constitutes a quorum and that a majority of that quorum is authorized to act for the body [FTC v. Flotill Products (1967) 389 U.S. 179, 183, 88 S. Ct. 401, 19 L. Ed. 2d 398] . The United States Supreme Court has ruled that where the enabling statute is silent on the question, a federal administrative body is justified in adhering to the common law rule [FTC v. Flotill Products (1967) 389 U.S. 179, 183-184, 88 S. Ct. 401, 19 L. Ed. 2d 398] . It appears that in California, in the absence of a statute to the contrary, the concurrence of a majority of the whole number of members of a body is not necessary to a decision; rather only a majority of the number of members constituting a quorum need concur [Nesbitt v. Bolz (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 677, 679, 91 P.2d 879 (appointments to fill two vacancies on five-member city council as validly made by two of three remaining members); People ex rel. Hoffman v. Hecht (1895) 105 Cal. 621, 628, 38 P. 941 ; People v. Harrington (1883) 63 Cal. 257, 260 ; Ursino v. Superior Court (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 611, 620, 114 Cal. Rptr. 404 ; Saks & Co. v. Beverly Hills (1951) 107 Cal. App. 2d 260, 265, 237 P.2d 32 ; Martin v. Ballinger (1938) 25 Cal. App. 2d 435, 437, 77 P.2d 888] .

[iii] Statutory Number of Quorum

A statute might specify the number of members of a multi-member agency who must concur in a decision [see, e.g., former Bus. & Prof. Code § 2108.5; see also Ursino v. Superior Court (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 611, 620, 114 Cal. Rptr. 404 (local charter provision)]. The number of concurring votes required by statute might be the same as a quorum [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 18605] or might be smaller than a quorum [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 5524]. Even if the unanimous concurrence of the members of an agency is required for a particular decision, a vacancy in the membership might not prevent obtaining the concurrence of all of the members; that is, the concurrence of all persons who are members at the time might be sufficient [see People v. Bank of San Luis Obispo (1908) 154 Cal. 194, 202, 97 P. 306 (one vacancy in four-member agency as not invalidating decision concurred in by three persons remaining in office, when statute required that members "shall unanimously decide" matter in question); see also Educ. Code § 35165]. If statutory requirements as to the assembling of a quorum and the concurrence of a certain number of members have been met, it is irrelevant that a person not qualified to participate has purportedly participated in a meeting [see People ex rel. State Lands Comm'n v. Superior Court (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 727, 744, 111 Cal. Rptr. 733 (purported unlawful participation by deputy sent by Lieutenant Governor to meeting of State Lands Commission as irrelevant where sufficient number of actual members concurred in decision)].

Chapter 470B PUBLIC AGENCY MEETINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Open Meetings of Local Agencies: The Ralph M. Brown Act

§ 470B.13 Exemptions Allowing Closed Sessions

[1] Definitions

Closed meetings, generally referred to in the Brown Act as "closed sessions" or "executive sessions," are allowed for the purposes discussed in [2] through [19], below. A closed session is a portion of a meeting from which the public and news media are excluded. Closed sessions are allowed during regular meetings, adjourned regular meetings, special meetings, and adjourned special meetings, but not during emergency meetings [see Gov. Code § 54956.5].

[2] Personnel Exemption

[a] Public Employees

The governing body of a local agency may hold a closed session at any regular or special meeting to consider the appointment, employment, compensation, performance evaluation, discipline, or dismissal of a public employee, or to hear complaints or charges brought against that employee by another person or employee, unless the employee requests a public session [Gov. Code § 54957; Hofman Ranch v. Yuba County Local Agency Formation Commission (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 805, 807-808, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 458 (agency properly conducted a closed session personnel evaluation of the executive officer of the agency under Gov. Code § 54957 because that officer was considered to be an employee of the agency for purposes of Gov. Code § 54957 even though he was a contractor hired to provide executive officer services)]. As a condition to holding a closed session on specific complaints or charges brought against an employee by another person or employee, the employee shall be given written notice of his or her right to have the complaints or charges heard in an open session rather than a closed session, which notice shall be delivered to the employee personally or by mail at least 24 hours before the time for holding the session. If notice is not given, any disciplinary or other action taken by the legislative body against the employee based on the specific complaints or charges in the closed session shall be null and void [Gov. Code § 54957; Morrison v. Housing Authority of the City of Los Angeles Board of Commissioners (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 860, 875-877, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453 (agency violated Gov't Code § 54957 when it rejected hearing officer's findings, credibility determinations, and recommended discipline, and decided to hear case itself by making fact findings, credibility determinations, and deciding to terminate employee without giving affected employee notice of the right to request an open session for the hearing. Agency decision to terminate employee without giving employee notice is "null and void")]. During the examination of a witness, the legislative body may also exclude from any public or closed meeting any or all other witnesses in the matter being investigated [Gov. Code § 54957].

The California court of appeal held that a city violated the Brown Act when it terminated the finance director of the city without giving the director advance notice that it would be considering complaints and charges against that employee at a closed session of a meeting of the city council. Advance notice was required by the provisions of Gov. Code § 54957. The city had received charges of misconduct against the director from the city manager, and the city council considered those charges and terminated the director at that meeting [Moreno v. City of King (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 17, 29-30, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 29 ; Bell v. Vista Uni. Sch. Dist. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 672, 683-684, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263 (advance notice required under Gov. Code § 54957 before city can consider misconduct allegations against employee and decide to discipline employee)]. In doing so, the city violated the Brown Act. The court also upheld the superior court ruling that overturned the city's decision to terminate the employee declaring that decision null and void. The Court of appeal held that the city could not cure the violation of Gov. Code Section 54957 through complying with the provisions of Gov Code § 54960.1 because the cure provisions of that statute do not apply to violations of Gov. Code § 54957 [Moreno v. City of King (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 17, 29, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 29] .

The governing board of the Los Angeles Unified School District properly met in closed session consistent with Gov. Code § 54957 to begin the process to dismiss a permanent certificated teacher without giving the teacher the 24-hour notice otherwise required by Gov. Code § 54957. This was because the 24-hour notice requirement did not apply when the public employee had the right to an evidentiary hearing under Educ. Code § 44934 subsequent to the closed session. Furthermore, the teacher did not have a due process right to notice and opportunity to be heard before the governing board began the dismissal proceedings [Kolter v. Commission of Professional Competence of the Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1349, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 620] .

For example, in a case involving a meeting of the board of directors of a public hospital district, the board left its regular meeting to go into closed session to discuss the qualifications of two radiologists on the hospital staff. Subsequently, the board reconvened in open, public session, terminating its agreement with one radiologist, and later executing a written agreement with the other. The court approved this procedure on evidence that the closed session concerned the qualifications of the two radiologists and their ability to continue on the hospital staff. Subsequent discussions and actions during an open meeting were held to be appropriate and the entire process was held not violative of the Brown Act [Letsch v. Northern San Diego County Hosp. Dist. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 673, 678, 55 Cal. Rptr. 118] .

Similarly, another court held that a community college district board of trustees properly met in closed session to consider the performance and to vote on the rehiring of a librarian. The board was not required to hold an open and public session as requested by the librarian because that requirement of Gov. Code § 54957 only applies to consideration of specific complaints or charges brought against the employee, and not to personnel evaluations [Furtado v. Sierra Community College (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 876, 881-882, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 589] . Negative comments in a personnel evaluation do not constitute specific complaints or charges brought against an employee under Gov. Code § 54957 [Furtado v. Sierra Community College (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 876, 882-883, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 589] . Another school district board also properly met in closed session to consider performance and retention of four probationary teachers [Fischer v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 87, 96-97, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 452 (board was not required to hold an open and public session to conduct personnel evaluation but only to consider specific complaints and charges)]. Even when a body meets in closed session to consider specific charges or complaints against an individual, the closed session in not improper when the only action is to deliberate on whether to initiate a disciplinary action, and there is no evidentiary hearing that would trigger the statutory notice requirement [Bollinger v. San Diego Civil Service Com. (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 568, 574-575, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27 (city civil service commission considering charges against police officer)].

Public employees include officers and independent contractors who function as officers and employees but do not include elected officials, members of legislative bodies, or other independent contractors. Closed sessions held pursuant to the personnel exemption can not include discussion or action on proposed compensation except for a reduction of compensation that results from the imposition of discipline. However, local agency officials can hold closed sessions pursuant to other law [see Gov. Code §§ 37606, 37624.3; Health & Safety Code §§ 1461, 32106, 32155] without violating the act [Gov. Code § 54957].

In one instance, a sheriff's lieutenant, who was also a lawyer, was dismissed from his position on the basis that his private practice of law conflicted with his duties as a peace officer. The dismissed employee argued that the civil service commission's decision to terminate him made during a closed session was unlawful, violating due process of law. The court held that a public agency may consider the dismissal of a public employee in a closed meeting, however, and upheld the dismissal [Titus v. Civil Service Com. (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 357, 363, 181 Cal. Rptr. 699] . In contrast, when a school board met in closed session to review the qualifications of individuals who were potential contractors to help the board in disposing of surplus real property, the court held that the personnel exemption does not extend to independent contractors, notwithstanding the board's discussion of sensitive personal qualifications [Rowen v. Santa Clara Unified School Dist. (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 231, 235, 175 Cal. Rptr. 292] .

The opinion of the California attorney general is that a closed session may not be held to discuss complaints against presiding officers of the governing body of a city, county, or special district. Thus, a chairman of a board, president of a board of a special district, or the mayor of a general law city [see Gov. Code § 34102 (definition)] may not be deposed in closed session, nor may discussions concerning complaints against the performance of a specific officer be discussed in closed session [see 61 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 10 (1978)] . On the other hand, a closed session may be proper under Gov. Code § 54957 to interview candidates for school superintendent [80 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 308 (1997) (committee formed by board of trustees of a school district to interview candidates for district superintendent and to make recommendation to board may hold closed session in order to question candidates candidly as to their qualifications and to discuss such qualifications freely without subjecting candidates to public embarrassment); see also Gillespie v. San Francisco Pub. Library Com. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1165, 1168-1169, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 649 (city public library commission permitted under Gov. Code § 54957 to meet in closed session to interview candidates and to make recommendation to mayor regarding appointment of acting city librarian)].

School board of trustees properly met in closed session consistent with Gov. Code § 54957 to evaluate performance of school superintendent. Closed session performance evaluation is not limited to formal performance review, but can also include review of particular instances of job performance, as well as discussion of evaluation criteria, evaluation processes, and other preparatory matters [Duval v. Board of Trustees (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 902, 909-910, 113 Cal. Rptr. 2d 517] . However, when a school board intends to discuss a charge or complaint against a public employee in a closed session, it must give the employee 24-hour written notice of its intention, and it must advise the employee of the right to have the charges considered in public, as opposed to a closed session [Bell v. Vista Unified Sch. Dist. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 672, 681-682, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263] .

[b] Report on Action Taken

Any action taken to appoint, employ, dismiss, accept the resignation of, or otherwise affect the employment status of a public employee in closed session [Gov. Code § 54957] shall be reported at the public meeting during which the closed session is held. Any report required by this paragraph shall identify the title of the position. The general requirement of this paragraph notwithstanding, the report of a dismissal or the nonrenewal of an employment contract shall be deferred until the first public meeting following the exhaustion of administrative remedies, if any. Also, the vote or abstention of every member present at the closed session shall also be reported [Gov. Code § 54957.1(a)(5)]. When a city agency nominates candidates in a closed session, it is not required to comply with the reporting requirements of Gov. Code § 54957.1(a)(5) until the actual appointment of the successful candidate for the position [Gillespie v. San Francisco Pub. Library Com. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1165, 1173-1174, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 649] .

[3] Litigation Exemption

[a] Definitions

Before a specific statutory exemption [Gov. Code § 54956.9] was added to the Brown Act for attorney-client communications, the courts had already recognized the need for an exemption to the open meetings requirement based on the attorney-client relationship [Evid. Code §§ 952-954]. In one case, the California Court of Appeal stated: "The question, then, is whether the public meeting requirement of section 54953 abrogates by implication the statutory policy assuring opportunity for private legal consultation by public agency clients; or, in equivalent terms, whether the Brown Act supplies unmistakable evidence of a legislative intent to abolish that statutory policy ... " [Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 55, 69 Cal. Rptr. 480 ; see Sutter Sensible Planning, Inc. v. Board of Supervisors (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 813, 824, 176 Cal. Rptr. 342 (citing with approval Sacramento Newspaper Guild for proposition that Brown Act does not abrogate the attorney-client privilege)]. The court held that in enacting the Brown Act, the Legislature did not intend to supersede the attorney-client privilege [Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 57, 69 Cal. Rptr. 480] .

Effective January 1, 1985, Gov. Code § 54956.9 was added to the Brown Act. For the first time, that Act specifically referred to the attorney-client relationship and the need for confidential communication between a local legislative body and its attorney. The section specifically allows the legislative body of a local agency, based on advice of its legal counsel, to hold a closed session to confer with, or to receive advice from, its legal counsel on pending litigation, when discussion in open session concerning these matters would prejudice the agency's position in the litigation [Gov. Code § 54956.9]. "Litigation" includes any adjudicatory proceeding, including eminent domain, before a court, an administrative body exercising its adjudicatory authority, a hearing officer, or an arbitrator. Litigation is considered to be "pending" in four situations:

1. When an adjudicatory proceeding has been initiated formally before a court, an administrative body exercising adjudicatory authority, or a hearing officer or an arbitrator, and the local agency is a party [Gov. Code § 54956.9(a)].

2. If a point has been reached when, in the opinion of the legislative body of the local agency on the advice of its legal counsel, and based on existing facts and circumstances, there is a significant exposure to litigation against the local agency [Gov. Code § 54956.9(b)(1); County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1099, 1105-1106, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 708 (federal agency proposed decision to cut Medicare funding to King/Drew medical center was a proper subject for a closed session of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors)].

3. When, based on existing facts and circumstances, the legislative body of the local agency is meeting only to decide whether a closed session is authorized [Gov. Code § 54956.9(b)(2)].

4. When, based on existing facts and circumstances, the legislative body of the local agency has decided to initiate or is deciding whether to initiate litigation [Gov. Code § 54956.9(c)].

For purposes of the second and third situations, above, "existing facts and circumstances" is defined to mean one of the following [Gov. Code § 54956.9(b)(3)]:

- Facts and circumstances that might result in litigation against the agency but which the agency believes are not yet known to a potential plaintiff or plaintiffs, which facts and circumstances need not be disclosed.

- Facts and circumstances, including, but not limited to, an accident, disaster, incident, or transactional occurrence that might result in litigation against the agency and that are known to a potential plaintiff or plaintiffs, which facts or circumstances shall be publicly stated on the agenda or announced.

- The receipt of a claim under the California Governmental Tort Claims Act or some other written communication from a potential plaintiff threatening litigation, which claim or communication shall be available for public inspection [see Gov. Code § 54957.5].

- A statement made by a person in an open and public meeting threatening litigation made on a specific matter within the responsibility of the legislative body.

- A statement threatening litigation made by a person outside an open and public meeting made on a specific matter within the responsibility of the local agency so long as the official or employee of the legislative body receiving knowledge of the threat makes a contemporaneous or other record of the statement prior to the meeting which record shall be available for public inspection under the law [see Gov. Code § 54957.5].

The California Court of Appeal held that the city council for the City of Malibu violated the Ralph M. Brown Act [Gov. Code § 54956.9] in approving in a closed session a settlement of an existing lawsuit between a developer and the city. The city relied on the pending litigation exception that allowed closed sessions for purposes of discussing settlement of existing lawsuits but the court held that this exception did not apply because the settlement contained provisions exempting the developer's development for zoning restrictions. The exemptions could only be made following public hearings in city council meetings [Trancas Property Owners Association v. City of Malibu (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 172, 186-187, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 200] .

[b] Procedures Required Prior to Closed Session

A local legislative body must follow specific procedures before it may go into closed session under this statutory exemption. It must state on the agenda or publicly announce the subdivision of the Government Code on which the closed session is based. If the session is closed because litigation has been formally initiated [see Gov. Code § 54956.9(a)], the body must also make a statement that specifically identifies the litigation to be discussed. It need not do so, however, if making this specific reference would jeopardize the agency's ability to either effectuate service of process or to conclude existing settlement negotiations [Gov. Code § 54956.9].

Legal counsel to the legislative body must prepare and submit to the agency a memorandum citing the specific reasons and legal authority for the closed session. It must also include either the title of existing litigation, if litigation has been formally initiated [see Gov. Code § 54956.9(a)], or a brief statement as to the existing facts and circumstances on which the closed session is based, if litigation is pending under other circumstances [see Gov. Code § 54956.9(b), (c)]. Counsel must submit the memorandum before the closed session if possible, and in any case no later than one week after the closed session. This memorandum is exempt from disclosure under the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 54956.9; see Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.; for a discussion of the Public Records Act, see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act].

[c] Exclusivity of Exemption

Before 1987, the question was unresolved as to whether the 1984 amendment to the Brown Act constituted the sole basis for using the attorney-client relationship as an exemption to the open meeting requirement, or whether it was an amplification of one particular aspect of this relationship. The question appears to have been answered in 1987, however, by the adoption of an amendment to Gov. Code § 54956.9 that provides: "For purposes of this chapter, all expressions of the lawyer-client privilege other than those provided in this section are hereby abrogated. This section is the exclusive expression of the lawyer-client privilege for purposes of conducting closed-session meetings pursuant to this chapter" [1987 Stats., ch. 1320, § 5]. This statute applies to limit the attorney-client privilege only as it relates to local governing body meetings, and does not eliminate the attorney-client privilege as it relates to written legal advice given by counsel to a local governing body [Roberts v. City of Palmdale (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 363, 381, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 853 P.2d 496] .

The statutory exception in Gov. Code § 54956.9 does not apply to a non profit corporation created by a city and thus the corporation may not meet in closed session with the attorney for the redevelopment agency of that city to discuss matters related to eminent domain litigation brought by the agency but in which the non profit corporation is not a party [Shapiro v. Bd. of Dir. of the Centre City Dev. Corp. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 170, 173-174, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 826] .

[4] Employee Relations Exemption

Under the Meyers-Milias-Brown Act [Gov. Code § 3500 et seq.], public employees in California are permitted to organize themselves into employee organizations (i.e., unions) for purposes of meeting and conferring (i.e., bargaining) with their public employers regarding employment conditions, wages, hours, and other terms and conditions of employment [see Gov. Code § 3500 et seq.]. A specific exemption to the requirement of open public meetings in the Brown Act provides that the legislative body of the local agency may hold a closed session with its designated representatives regarding the salaries, salary schedules, or compensation paid in the form of fringe benefits of its represented and unrepresented employees [Gov. Code § 54957.6(a)]. Before the closed session, the legislative body of the local agency must hold an open, public session in which it identifies its designated representatives [Gov. Code § 54957.6(a)]. The purpose of the closed session is to review the public agency's position and instruct its representative regarding negotiations. The closed sessions may take place before and during consultations and discussions with representatives of employee organizations and unrepresented employees. The legislative body may also meet with a state conciliator who has intervened in the proceedings [Gov. Code § 54957.6(a)].

Closed sessions with the local agency's designated representative regarding the salaries, salary schedules, or compensation paid in the form of fringe benefits may include discussion of an agency's available funds and funding priorities, but only insofar as these discussions relate to providing instructions to the local agency's designated representative. These closed sessions must not include final action on the proposed compensation of one or more unrepresented employees [Gov. Code § 54957.6(a)].

The Meyers-Milias-Brown Act [Gov. Code § 3500 et seq.] also provides that the scope of representation will include all matters relating to employment conditions and employer-employee relations, including but not limited to wages, hours, and other terms and conditions of employment [Gov. Code § 3504]. A subsequent amendment to the Brown Act provides that a legislative body [see Gov. Code § 54952 (definition); see also § 470B.11[3]] of a public agency defined in Gov. Code § 3501(c) may hold closed sessions with its designated representatives on the mandatory subjects covered by the Meyers-Milias-Brown Act [Gov. Code § 54957.6(b); see Gov. Code § 3504]. Gov. Code § 3501(c) provides that "public agency" means every governmental subdivision, every district, every public and quasi-public corporation, every public agency and public service corporation, and every town, city, county, city and county, and municipal corporation, whether incorporated or not and whether chartered or not. While this listing is very broad, Gov. Code § 3501(c) provides that "public agency" does not mean a school district, a county board of education, a county superintendent of schools, or a personnel commission in a school district having a merit system [Gov. Code § 3501(c); see Educ. Code §§ 45100 et seq., 88000 et seq.].

The legislative body of a local agency is permitted to hold closed sessions during a regular or special meeting to consider the appointment, employment, evaluation of performance, discipline, or dismissal of a public employee or to hear complaints or charges brought against the employee by another person or employee unless the employee requests a public session provided there is compliance with the notice requirements set forth below [Gov. Code § 54957(b)(1)]. As a condition to holding a closed session on specific complaints or charges brought against an employee by another person or employee, the employee shall be given written notice of his or her right to have the complaints or charges heard in an open session rather than a closed session, which notice shall be delivered to the employee personally or by mail at least 24 hours before the time for holding the session. If notice is not given, any disciplinary or other action taken by the legislative body against the employee based on the specific complaints or charges in the closed session shall be null and void [Gov. Code § 54957(b)(2)]. The legislative body also may exclude from the public or closed meeting, during the examination of a witness, any or all other witnesses in the matter being investigated by the legislative body [Gov. Code § 54957(b)(3)]. The term "employee" is defined to include an officer or an independent contractor who functions as an officer or an employee but shall not include any elected official, member of a legislative body or other independent contractors. Nothing in this subdivision shall limit local officials' ability to hold closed session meetings pursuant to specific statutes [Health & Safety Code §§ 1461, 32106, and 32155, and Gov. Code §§ 37606, and 37624.3]. Closed sessions held pursuant to this subdivision shall not include discussion or action on proposed compensation except for a reduction of compensation that results from the imposition of discipline [Gov. Code § 54957(b)(4)].

[5] Exemption for Real Property Transactions

Legislative bodies of local agencies may hold closed sessions with their negotiator prior to the purchase, sale, exchange, or lease of real property owned or controlled by the local body to grant authority to their negotiator regarding the price and terms of payment for the purchase, sale, exchange, or lease (including renewal or renegotiation of a lease) [Gov. Code § 54956.8]. Certain procedural rules, however, must be followed. Before the closed session, the legislative body must hold an open, public meeting in order to identify the real property and the person or persons with whom its negotiator may negotiate. This exception also permits the holding of a closed session to discuss eminent domain proceedings [Gov. Code §§ 54956.8, 54956.9]. However, the legislative body may not meet in closed session to interview or review the qualifications of proposed independent contractors who will assist in real property transactions [Rowen v. Santa Clara Unified School Dist. (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 231, 235, 175 Cal. Rptr. 292] . Furthermore, agenda items related to real property transactions that went beyond, or were in addition to the "safe harbor" closed session agenda provisions [Gov. Code § 54954.5] had to be disclosed, so that even though a city council complied with the safe harbor provisions, it could be ordered to disclose additional agenda items for a closed session related to real property transactions under Gov. Code § 54956.8 [Shapiro v. San Diego City Council (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 904, 918-919, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 631] . Finally, the scope of permissible discussion in a closed session related to real property transactions is defined by the agenda notice, public announcements, and the requirement that subjects or items that are not identified in the agenda cannot be discussed in the closed session under Gov. Code § 54957.7(a)) [Shapiro v. San Diego City Council (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 904, 923-924, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 631] .

[6] Exemption for License Applications by Persons With Prior Criminal Records

If an applicant for a license or license renewal has a prior criminal record, the local legislative body may meet in closed session to determine if the applicant is sufficiently rehabilitated to obtain the license. The applicant and the applicant's attorney may also attend this closed session. In the event that the legislative body determines that the license should be denied, it must offer the applicant the opportunity to withdraw the application. If he or she does so, no record will be kept of the discussions or the decision, and all matters relating to the closed session will be held confidential [Gov. Code § 54956.7].

If the applicant does not withdraw the application, the legislative body must take action at the public meeting during which the closed session is held or at its next public meeting, and must deny the application for the license. All matters relating to the closed session are confidential, however, and will not be disclosed without the consent of the applicant, except in an action by an applicant who has been denied a license challenging the denial of the license [Gov. Code § 54956.7].

[7] Exemption for Threats to Public Security

The legislative body of a local agency may hold closed sessions with the Attorney General, district attorney, agency counsel, sheriff, or chief of police, or their respective deputies, or a security consultant or a security operations manager, on matters posing a threat to the security of public buildings, a threat to the security of essential public services, including water, drinking water, wastewater treatment, natural gas service, and electric service, or a threat to the public's right of access to public services or public facilities [Gov. Code § 54957(a)].

[8] Exemption for Multijurisdictional Law Enforcement Agencies

To prevent the impairment of ongoing law enforcement investigations, protect witnesses and informants, and permit discussion of effective course of action in particular cases, the Legislature has empowered certain multijurisdictional law enforcement agencies to hold closed sessions [Gov. Code § 54957.8(b)]. The legislative or advisory body of any multijurisdictional law enforcement agency may hold closed sessions for the following purposes [Gov. Code § 54957.8(b)]:

- To discuss the case records of any of its ongoing criminal investigations;
- To discuss the case records of any party to the joint powers agreement;
- To hear testimony from persons involved in its investigations; and
- To discuss courses of action in particular cases.

For the purposes of this exemption, a "multijurisdictional law enforcement agency" is a joint powers entity formed by two or more public agencies that provides law enforcement services for the parties to the joint powers agreement for the purpose of investigating criminal activity involving drugs; gangs; sex crimes; firearms trafficking or felony possession of a firearm; high technology, computer, or identity theft; human trafficking; or vehicle theft [Gov. Code §§ 6502, 54957.8(a); see Gov. Code § 6500 et seq. (joint powers agreements generally)]. One or more of the contracting agencies may be located outside California [Gov. Code § 6502].

[9] Exemption for Pension Fund Investment Transaction Decisions

A legislative body of a local agency with responsibility for investing pension funds is permitted to hold a closed session to consider the purchase or sale of particular, specific pension fund investments. Agency decisions about investment transactions made during the closed session must be made by roll call vote entered into the minutes of the closed session as provided in Gov. Code § 54957.2 by law [Gov. Code § 54956.81]. Pension fund investment transaction decisions must be disclosed at the first open meeting of the legislative body of the local agency after the earlier of the close of the investment transaction or the transfer of the pension fund assets for the investment transaction [Gov. Code § 54957.1(a)(7)].

[10] Special Rules Regarding Local School Boards

Governing bodies of school districts must hold closed sessions when considering suspension of or disciplinary action (other than expulsion) against a student, unless the student or his or her parent requests a public session [Educ. Code § 35146]. This mandatory provision is designed to protect the privacy of certain information concerning school pupils that is required to be kept confidential pursuant to other provisions of the Education Code [see Educ. Code § 49073 et seq.; see also Gov. Code § 54962 (providing that Brown Act is the sole source of authorization for closed sessions except as expressly provided by any provision of the Education Code pertaining to school and community college districts)].

[11] Confidentiality and Official Information Exemptions

Three California attorney general opinions conclude that specific confidentiality provisions of statutes other than the Brown Act may allow local agencies to hold closed sessions in order to carry out the intent and purpose of confidentiality requirements. These provisions are as follows:

1. Gov. Code §§ 6254 and 6255 in the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.; see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act], based on confidentiality requirements, require nondisclosure of certain public records [see 61 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 220 (1978)] ;

2. The official information privilege found in Evid. Code § 1040 may provide an appropriate basis for a closed session [see 62 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 150 (1979)] ; and

3. As to the confidentiality requirements of the 1937 Retirement Act covering county retirement systems, Gov. Code § 31532, requiring medical records (among other things) to be kept confidential, may form the basis for a closed session in order for a county retirement board to consider these records in connection with an application for medical disability retirement [see 65 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 412 (1982)] .

The legal effect of these three opinions is uncertain, however, since the 1987 California Legislature adopted Gov. Code § 54962, which provides: "Except as expressly authorized by this chapter, or by Sections 1461, 32106 and 32155 of the Health and Safety Code or Sections 37606 and 37624.3 of the Government Code as they apply to hospitals, or by any provision of the Education Code pertaining to school districts and community college districts, no closed session may be held by any legislative body of any local agency" (as amended in 1994 by Senate Bill 752). The effect of this legislation on the subject of privileges based on confidentiality requirements of other statutes must await judicial interpretation.

Records of a licensed health plan that is governed by a county board of supervisors are exempt from disclosure. That exemption is maintained, and not waived, when records or information subject to the exemption is transmitted to the Board of Supervisors. The health care records that are subject to this exemption include provider rate or payment determinations, allocation or distribution methodologies for provider payments, formulae or calculations for these payments, and contract negotiations with providers of health care for alternative rates for a period of three years after the contract is fully executed [Gov. Code § 6254.22]. This same requirements of the law apply to local governments under the open meetings law [Gov. Code § 54956.87(a)]. A licensed health plan that is governed by a county board of supervisors has the authority to meet in closed session to discuss or take action on health plan trade secrets [Health & Safety Code § 32106(c)], with a brief general description of action taken or voting in the public report of the closed sessions [Gov. Code § 54956.87(b)]. Licensed health plan records are exempt from public disclosure under the public records act when they are part of an agenda of a public meeting, or other writings distributed to members of a legislative body of a local agency, as part of a public meeting [Gov. Code § 54957.5].

[12] Exclusion of Public Under Certain Conditions

In addition to the exemptions created by law for closed sessions discussed in [2]-[10], above, in certain circumstances a local public agency may continue a meeting after excluding some or all of those in attendance. When a public meeting is willfully interrupted by a group or groups of persons who render the orderly conduct of that meeting unfeasible, and order cannot be restored by the removal of the persons who are interrupting, the members of the legislative body conducting the meeting may order the meeting room cleared and continue in session (i.e., closed session). In such a session, only matters appearing on the agenda may be considered. Representatives of the news media, other than those who participated in the disturbance, must be allowed to attend the session. The legislative body may also establish a procedure for readmitting any persons who were not responsible for willfully disturbing the orderly conduct of the meeting [Gov. Code § 54957.9].

[13] Exemption for Charge or Complaint Involving Information Protected by Federal Law

Gov. Code § 54956.86 provides that a legislative body of a local agency which provides services pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 14087.3 may hold a closed session to hear a charge or complaint from a member enrolled in its health plan if the member does not wish to have his or her name, medical status, or other information that is protected by federal law publicly disclosed. Prior to holding a closed session, the legislative body is required to give written information to the member about the member's right to have the charge or complaint heard in an open session rather than a closed session [Gov. Code § 54956.86].

[14] Grand Jury Testimony

In addition to the exemptions permitting closed sessions discussed in [2]-[12], above, the Brown Act does not require open proceedings in one other situation. The Brown Act must not be construed to prohibit members of the legislative body of a local agency from giving testimony in private before a grand jury, either as individuals or as a body [Gov. Code § 54953.1].

[15] Early Withdrawal of Deferred Compensation Plan Funds

Gov. Code § 54957.10 authorizes legislative bodies of local agencies to hold closed sessions to discuss the application for early withdrawal of funds in a deferred compensation plan by an employees of a local agency when the application is based on financial hardship arising from an unforeseeable emergency due to illness, accident, casualty, or other extraordinary event, as defined in the deferred compensation plan.

[16] County Health Plan Trade Secrets and Contracts

The governing boards of licensed county health plans may meet in closed session to discuss or take action on health plan trade secrets [Gov. Code § 54956.87(b)], and on matters related to contracts and contract negotiations with providers of health care services concerning all matters related to rates of payment [Gov. Code § 54956.87(c)].

[17] Exemption for Confidential Final Draft Audit Report

A legislative body of a local agency that has received a confidential final draft audit report from the Bureau of State Audits may hold a closed session to discuss its response to the report [Gov. Code § 54956.75(a)]. However, once the audit report is publicly released by the Bureau of State Audits, meetings to discuss the audit report must be conducted in an open session unless some other exemption applies [Gov. Code § 54956.75(b)].

[18] Exemption for Joint Powers Agency

A legislative body of a joint powers agency formed under Gov. Code § 6500 et seq. has the authority to adopt a policy or bylaw making confidential information received in closed sessions of the agency [Gov. Code § 54956.96(a)] with stated exceptions. When such a policy or bylaw has been adopted, the legislative body of a local agency member, with advice of counsel, may conduct a closed session discuss and take action upon information obtained in a closed session of the joint powers agency [Gov. Code § 54956.96(b)].

[19] Municipal Hospital Trade Secrets

When a municipal hospital established under law [Gov. Code §§ 37600-37625] is managed by a board of trustees that is appointed by the mayor, the city council may meet in a closed session held solely for the purpose of discussion, deliberation, or both, of reports involving trade secrets of the municipal hospital [Gov. Code § 37606.1(a)]. Except as provided in this statute, the closed session must comply with requirements of the Brown Act [Gov. Code §§ 54950-54976; Gov. Code § 37606.1(a)]. Hospital trade secrets, as defined in this statute, means a "trade secret," as defined by law [Civil Code § 3426.1(d)], and which meets the following requirements [Gov. Code § 37606.1(b)]:

(1) Is necessary to initiate a new hospital service or program or add a hospital facility;

(2) Would, if prematurely disclosed, create a substantial probability of depriving the hospital of a substantial economic benefit.

The closed session exception provided in this statute to the general open meeting requirements for a meeting of the city council shall not apply to a meeting where there is action taken under law [Gov. Code § 54952.6; Gov. Code § 37606.1(c)]. Action taken is defined to mean a collective decision made by a majority of the members of a legislative body, a collective commitment or promise by a majority of the members of a legislative body to make a positive or a negative decision, or an actual vote by a majority of the members of a legislative body when sitting as a body or entity, upon a motion, proposal, resolution, order or ordinance [Gov. Code § 54952.6]. Closed session meetings by city councils are not permitted for the purposes of discussing or deliberating, or to permit the discussion or deliberation in any closed meeting of, any proposals regarding any of the following [Gov. Code § 37606.1(d)]:

(1) The sale, conversion, contract for management, or leasing of any municipal hospital or the assets thereof, to any for profit or nonprofit entity, agency, association, organization, governmental agency, person, partnership, corporation, or hospital district;

(2) The conversion of any municipal hospital to any other form of ownership by the city; and

(3) The dissolution of the municipal hospital.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Open Meetings of Local Agencies: The Ralph M. Brown Act

41-470B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 470B.14

§ 470B.14 Closed Session Procedures

[1] Disclosure of Issues Addressed

Before holding any closed session, the legislative body of the local agency must disclose, in an open meeting, the item or items to be discussed in the closed session [Gov. Code § 54957.7(a)]. The disclosure may take the form of a reference to the item or items as they are listed on the agenda. In a closed session, the legislative body may consider only those matters covered in its statement. [Shapiro v. San Diego City Council (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 904, 923-924, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 631 (scope of permissible discussion in closed session defined by agenda notice, public announcements, and requirement that subjects or items that are not identified in the agenda can not be discussed in the closed session under Gov. Code § 54957.7(a))]. However, the legislative body is not required or authorized to disclose information prohibited by state or federal law [Gov. Code § 54957.7(a)]. Closed session agenda items must be described in the agenda in a specific way that satisfies, or substantially complies with, statutory requirements [Gov. Code § 54954.5 (also setting out the information for the various types of closed-session agenda items, which, if provided, constitutes substantial compliance); see, e.g., Furtado v. Sierra Community College (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 876, 883-884, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 589 (agenda item for closed session stating "Public Employee Performance Evaluation (non-Tenured) Librarian" satisfied agenda-description requirements in reference to community college district board's consideration and vote on renewal of librarian's employment contract)].

[2] Closed Session Agenda Items Description

Gov. Code § 54954.5 provides a statutory list of closed session agenda item descriptions that are sufficient to comply with the law. These include:

- LICENSE/PERMIT DETERMINATION [closed session authorized by Gov. Code § 54956.7]

Applicant(s): _____ (Specify number of applicants) [Gov. Code § 54954.5(a)].

- CONFERENCE WITH REAL PROPERTY NEGOTIATORS [closed session authorized by Gov. Code § 54956.8]

Property: _____ (Specify street address, or if no street address, the parcel number or other unique reference, of the real property under negotiation)

Agency negotiator: _____ (Specify names of negotiators attending the closed session) (If circumstances necessitate the absence of a specified negotiator, an agent or designee may participate in place of the absent negotiator so long as the name of the agent or designee is announced at an open session held prior to the closed session.)

Negotiating parties: _____ (Specify name of party, not agent)

Under negotiation: _____ (Specify whether instruction to negotiator will concern price, terms of payment, or both) [Gov. Code § 54954.5(b)].

- CONFERENCE WITH LEGAL COUNSEL EXISTING LITIGATION [closed session authorized by Gov. Code § 54956.9(a)]

[3] Disclosure Requirements and Limitations

Prior to adjournment after any closed session, the legislative body must reconvene into open session and make any disclosures required by Gov. Code § 54957.1 of action taken in the closed session [Gov. Code § 54957.7(b); see [2], below].

The required disclosures may be made at the location announced in the agenda for the closed session, provided that the public is allowed to be present at that location for the purpose of hearing the disclosures [Gov. Code § 54957.7(c)].

Confidential information acquired during a closed session may not be disclosed by a person present at that closed session unless disclosure is authorized by the legislative body that called the closed session [Gov. Code § 54963(a)]. Confidential information is defined to mean a communication made in a closed session that is specifically related to the basis for the legislative body of a local agency to meet lawfully in closed session under the Ralph M. Brown Act [Gov. Code § 54963(b)]. Violations of the duty not to disclose confidential information include remedies currently available by law [Gov. Code § 54963(c)] including:

- Injunctive relief to prevent the disclosure of confidential information [Gov. Code § 54963(c)(1)];

- Disciplinary action against an employee who has willfully disclosed confidential information [Gov. Code § 54963(c)(2)], provided the employee has received training or been given notice of the requirements of this statute [Gov. Code § 54963(d)];

- Referral of a member of a legislative body who has willfully disclosed confidential information to the grand jury [Gov. Code § 54963(c)(3)].

Exceptions for conduct that does not violate the non disclosure duties [Gov. Code § 54963(e)] includes the following:

- Making a confidential inquiry or complaint to a district attorney or grand jury concerning a perceived violation of law, including disclosing facts to a district attorney or grand jury that are necessary to establish the illegality of an action taken by a legislative body of a local agency or the potential illegality of an action that has been the subject of deliberation at a closed session if that action were to be taken by a legislative body of a local agency [Gov. Code § 54963(e)(1)];

- Expressing an opinion concerning the propriety or legality of actions taken by a legislative body of a local agency in closed session, including disclosure of the nature and extent of the illegal or potentially illegal action [Gov. Code § 54963(e)(2)];

- Disclosing information acquired by being present in a closed session that is not confidential information [Gov. Code § 54963(e)(3)];

- Disclosures under whistle blower [Lab. Code § 1102.5; Gov. Code § 53296] statutes [Gov. Code § 54963(e)(4)].

[4] Public Reports

The local agency legislative body must publicly report any action taken in closed session and the vote or abstention of every member present thereon [Gov. Code § 54957.1(a)]. While the nature of the action taken determines the specific content requirements [see Gov. Code § 54957.1(a)(1)-(6)], the reports may be in an oral or written form [Gov. Code § 54957.1(b)].

The legislative body must provide copies of any documents that were finally approved or adopted in the closed session to any person making a proper request as specified in Gov. Code § 54957.1(b). This documentation must be made available by the next business day following the meeting, unless the action taken results in substantive amendments to the related documents requiring retyping [see Gov. Code § 54957.1(b), (c)].

No action for injury to a reputational, liberty, or other personal interest may be commenced by or on behalf of any employee or former employee with respect to whom a disclosure is made in a public report by a legislative body [Gov. Code. § 54957.1(e)].

[5] Minute Book

The legislative body of a local agency may, by ordinance or resolution, designate a clerk, officer, or other employee of the local agency to attend each closed session and keep in a minute book a record of topics discussed and decisions made at the meeting. A minute book kept in this manner is not a public record subject to inspection under the Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.; see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act], and must be kept confidential. This minute book will be available only to members of the legislative body, or if a violation of the Brown Act is alleged to have occurred at a closed session, to a court of general jurisdiction [Gov. Code § 54957.2(a); County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1099, 1106-1107, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 708 (minutes of closed session that did not violate Brown Act provisions are confidential, and cannot be disclosed pursuant to subpoena in discovery in a civil lawsuit, even if minutes are redacted)]. An elected legislative body of a local agency may require that each legislative body that has all or a majority of its members appointed by or under the authority of the elected legislative body keep a minute book [Gov. Code § 54957.2(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Open Meetings of Local Agencies: The Ralph M. Brown Act

41-470B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 470B.15

§ 470B.15 Judicial Enforcement

[1] Criminal Enforcement

Each member of a local legislative body who (1) attends a meeting of that body at which action is taken in violation of any provision of the BrownAct and (2) intends to deprive the public of information to which the member knows or has reason to know the public is entitled under the Brown Act is subject to prosecution for a misdemeanor [Gov. Code § 54959]. Apparently, the member need not even participate in the activities; it seems to be sufficient if he or she merely attends with knowledge that the meeting violates the Brown Act. Not every violation of the Brown Act is a misdemeanor, however. The misdemeanor penalty is focused on the meeting in which action is taken, not on the meeting confined to deliberation. In this manner, the Legislature has made the criminal sanction narrower than the law's declaration of intended coverage. The penalty only applies when a crime is involved, that is, when action is taken [Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 48, 69 Cal. Rptr. 480] .

[2] Civil Enforcement

[a] Prevention of Violations or Determination of Act's Applicability

The Brown Act provides that any interested person may commence an action by mandamus, injunction [see, e.g., Shapiro v. San Diego City Council (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 904, 916-917, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 631 (injunctive relief proper under Gov. Code § 54960(a) when there was a likelihood of future violations of the Brown Act by a city council)], or declaratory relief for the following purposes [Gov. Code § 54960(a); see, e.g., California Alliance for Utilities etc. Education v. City of San Diego (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 1024, 1031, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 833 (declaratory relief proper under Gov. Code § 54960(a) when group challenged city's compliance with Brown Act and alleged ripe actual controversy for declaratory relief based on claim of one past violation of Act by city)]:

- Stopping or preventing violations or threatened violations of the Act's provisions by members of the legislative body of a local agency;

- Determining the applicability of the Act to action or threatened future action of the legislative body;

- Determining whether any rule or action by the legislative body to penalize or otherwise discourage the expression of one or more of its members is valid or invalid under state or federal law;

- Compelling the legislative body to audio record its closed sessions pursuant to Gov. Code § 54960(b)-(c).

The Brown Act has broad standing requirements, limited only to the "district attorney or any interested person" [Gov. Code § 54960(a)]. This broad standing requirement, coupled with the public's right to disclosure under the Act [see Gov. Code § 54950], has extended standing to any citizen or elector of the agency governed by the local body [Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 46, 69 Cal. Rptr. 480] . Whether a newspaper guild, which isa labor organization composed of professional working newspaper persons, has standing is questionable, however [Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 46, 69 Cal. Rptr. 480] .

The California Court of Appeal interpreted the "interested person" language of Gov. Code § 54960(a) and Gov. Code § 54960.1(a) very broadly to include citizens of the state of California, and not to be limited to residents or taxpayers of the city, county, or district legislative body whose action was being challenged on grounds of Brown Act violations. This broad interpretation meant that plaintiff, who was a taxpayer and resident of Los Angeles County, had standing to bring a Brown Act action against the Orange Unified School District even though he did not reside within the boundaries of the school district nor did he pay property taxes in that district. The court's rationale was that any citizen of California has the right to enforce the public's right to know what their elected governmental officials are doing, and whether they are following the law. Plaintiff is not required to have a personal stake in the lawsuit because he is enforcing public rights [McKee v. Orange Unified Sch. Dist. (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1310, 1316-1318, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 774] . Members of a city council are not "interested persons" under Gov. Code §§ 54960(a) and 54960.1(a) and therefore can not challenge actions of the city council in which they are members based on alleged Brown Act violations [Holbrook v. City of Santa Monica (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 1242, 1251, 1253, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 181 (citizen or taxpayer standing rules cannot be used by public officials to challenge the validity of actions taken by the governmental body in which they work)].

While declaratory and injunctive relief is thus available under Gov. Code § 54960 to challenge Brown Act violations by a legislative body subject to its provisions, a legislative body or a member of such a body may utilize this provision to stifle criticism of actions taken by that body. For example, when a district attorney issued a press release stating that school board members had committed minor violations of the Brown Act, a member of that board does not have a cause of action for declaratory or injunctive relief under Gov. Code § 54960 to prevent the district attorney from further interference with the rights of that board member [Ingram v. Dean Flippo (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1280, 1282-1283, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60] .

In an action under Gov. Code § 54960, there is no right to conduct discovery of the personal recollections of members of a legislative body concerning unrecorded proceedings held in a closed session. A trial court may not properly compel answers to interrogatories seeking such recollections without violating the confidentiality of closed sessions for which the Brown Act provides. The Brown Act limits disclosure to in camera review of minute books of closed sessions, and to disclosure of tape recordings of closed sessions [Kleitman v. Superior Court (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 324, 326-327, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 813] .

For examples of a complaint for declaratory relief to determine the applicability of the Brown Act to an agency's actions and a complaint for an injunction enjoining an agency's violations of the Brown Act [Gov. Code § 54960], see §§ 470B.60 and 470B.61.

[b] Determination That Actions Violating Act Are Void

Before 1986, California courts repeatedly ruled that an action taken in violation of the Brown Act was not void [see, e.g., Rowen v. Santa Clara Unified School Dist. (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 231, 236, 175 Cal. Rptr. 292 ; Greer v. Board of Education (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 98, 122, 121 Cal. Rptr. 542] . In 1986, however, Gov. Code § 54960.1 was added to the Brown Act. It provides that the district attorney or any interested person may commence an action by mandamus or injunction for the purpose of obtaining a judicial determination that an action taken in violation of the Brown Act is void [Gov. Code § 54960.1(a); see Gov. Code §§ 54953, 54954.2, 54954.4, 54954.6, 54956, 54956.5].

Before the district attorney or an interested person may commence an action to declare the act of the legislative body void, he or she must make a demand to the legislative body to cure or correct the action alleged to have been taken in violation of the Act. The demand must be written, and must clearly describe the challenged action and the nature of the alleged violation [Gov. Code § 54960.1(b)]. It must be made within 90 days from the date the challenged action was taken unless the action was taken in an open session but in violation of Gov. Code § 54954.2 (agenda posting requirements), in which case the demand must be made within 30 days after the action was taken [Gov. Code § 54960.1(c)(1)].

Within 30 days following receipt of the demand, the legislative body must either (1) cure or correct the challenged action and inform the demanding party in writing of its cure or correction, or (2) inform the demanding party in writing of its decision not to cure or correct the challenged action [Gov. Code § 54960.1(c)(2)]. The fact that a legislative body takes action to cure or correct a previously taken action is not construed or admissible as evidence of a violation of the Brown Act [Gov. Code § 54960.1(f)].

If the legislative body takes no action within the 30-day period, the inaction is deemed to be a decision not to cure or correct the challenged action, and the 15-day period to commence an action for mandamus or injunction begins to run [Gov. Code § 54960.1(c)(3)]. The attorney general or interested party must file such an action within the earliest of the following: (1) 15 days after receiving the legislative body's written notice of its decision to cure or not to cure or correct the alleged violation; or (2) 15 days of expiration of the 30-day period to cure or correct [Gov. Code § 54960.1(c)(4)].

This procedure must be followed with respect to each discrete alleged violation of the Brown Act. For example, a Brown Act violation described in an amended complaint did not relate back to the original complaint when the original complaint alleged a separate violation at a different, earlier meeting of the same body [Boyle v. City of Redondo Beach (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1119, 83 Cal. Rptr 2d 164 (trial court properly dismissed amended complaint as time-barred under Gov. Code § 54960.1(c)(3))].

A lack of action or failure to cure or correct the action allegedly taken in violation of the provisions of the Act is a condition precedent to a lawsuit seeking to invalidate that action [Gov. Code § 54960.1(e); cf. Boyle v. City of Redondo Beach (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1118, 83 Cal. Rptr 2d 164 (when court finds that legislative body cured or corrected violation by subsequent action, it must dismiss with prejudice the action commenced on basis of that violation of that body, the court is required to dismiss the court action with prejudice)]. An action may not be deemed void if any of the following four conditions exist:

1. The action substantially complied with Gov. Code §§ 54953 (requiring open meetings), 54954.2 (requiring agenda to be posted), 54956 (requiring written notice for special meetings), 54954.5 (closed session agenda requirements), 54954.6 (requiring public meetings and hearings to before adopting new or increased taxes or assessments), and 54956 (special meeting requirements) [Gov. Code § 54960.1(d)(1)];

2. The action was in connection with the sale or issuance of notes, bonds, or other evidences of indebtedness, or any contract, instrument, or agreement relating to notes, bonds, or other evidences of indebtedness [Gov. Code § 54960.1(d)(2)];

3. The action gave rise to a contractual obligation, including a contract let by competitive bid, other than compensation for services in the form of salary of fees for professional services, on which a party has detrimentally relied in good faith and without notice of a challenge to the validity of the action [Gov. Code § 54960.1(d)(3)]; or

4. The action was in connection with the collection of any tax [Gov. Code § 54960.1(d)(4)].

For an example of a complaint for declaratory relief and injunction pursuant to Gov. Code § 54960.1, see § 470B.62.

[3] Attorney's Fees and Costs

A court may award court costs and reasonable attorney's fees to the plaintiff in an action brought pursuant to Gov. Code §§ 54960, 54960.1, discussed in [2], above, if it finds that a legislative body of the local agency has violated the Brown Act [Gov. Code § 54960.5; Galbisc v. Orosi Public Utility Dist. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1063, 1077-1079, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 788 (denial of attorney's fees under Brown Act was an abuse of discretion because district violated Brown Act in not allowing landowner to make public comment related to action to foreclose her land, and in improperly going into closed session without making required public disclosures); see Los Angeles Times Communications LLC v. Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1313, 1330-1331, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 776 (absence of special circumstances to deny fee award means that fee award is required); International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union v. Los Angeles Export Terminal, Inc. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 287, 301, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 456] . The local agency must pay the costs and fees; they do not become a personal liability of any public officer or employee of the agency [Gov. Code § 54960.5].

A defendant local public agency may recover court costs and reasonable attorney's fees when it has prevailed in a final determination of the action and the court finds that the action was clearly frivolous and totally lacking in merit [Gov. Code § 54960.5]. In determining the propriety of attorney's fees, trial courts are empowered and expected to determine societal importance of the rights litigated, the significance of the benefit, and the degree of public versus private benefit obtained through the lawsuit [Common Cause v. Stirling (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 518, 522, 195 Cal. Rptr. 163] .

For example, in Common Cause v. Stirling (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 518, 195 Cal. Rptr. 163 , an eminent domain action by the San Diego City Council to acquire two parcels for park purposes, a city council member (Stirling) asked the city manager to postpone for one week the service of summons on the affected parties to allow the city council to reconsider the condemnation proceeding. The city manager then received a letter containing six of the nine council members' signatures that requested the city manager not to serve the summons. At the next regular meeting, the city council voted to abandon the eminent domain action. Common Cause wrote to the city attorney, contending that the council members' letter violated the Brown Act; the city attorney responded that no violation had occurred. Common Cause then sought declaratory relief. The trial court held that circulation of the letter constituted a violation of the Brown Act, but found that no attorney's fees should be awarded. The court of appeal reversed and remanded the case to the trial court to consider the award of attorney's fees [Common Cause v. Stirling (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 658, 665, 174 Cal. Rptr. 200] . The trial court denied the request for attorney's fees, but made a finding as to the reasonable amount of attorney's fees if an award were authorized.

On appeal, the court upheld the lower court's conclusion that the use of circulated letters constituted a Brown Act violation and supported a grant of attorney's fees [Common Cause v. Stirling (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 518, 524-525, 195 Cal. Rptr. 163] ; however, it stated that a trial court need not award attorney's fees to a prevailing plaintiff in every Brown Act violation [Common Cause v. Stirling (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 518, 521, 195 Cal. Rptr. 163 ; see Common Cause v. Stirling (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 658, 665, 174 Cal. Rptr. 200 (prior appeal on issue of propriety of attorney's fees award)]. The Court of Appeal held that lack of proof of special circumstances making a fee award unjust means that a fee award is required [Los Angeles Times Communications LLC v. Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1313, 1330-1331, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 776] . Neither defendant's good faith nor the need to award fees to attract competent counsel are relevant factors to be considered by the court in deciding whether to award fees [Los Angeles Times Communications LLC v. Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1313, 1333-1335, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 776] .

Rather, a court must thoughtfully exercise its power under the appropriate provisions of the Brown Act and consider the following factors in exercising its discretion:

- In light of all the circumstances of a given case, whether awarding fees under the statute would be unjust (the burden of showing this inequity rests with the defendant).

- The necessity for the lawsuit [Common Cause v. Stirling (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 518, 521, 195 Cal. Rptr. 163 ; see Common Cause v. Stirling (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 658, 665, 174 Cal. Rptr. 200] .

- The lack of injury to the public.

- The likelihood the problem would have been solved by other means.

- The likelihood of recurrence of the unlawful act in the absence of a lawsuit.

An award of attorneys fees by a trial court under the Brown Act is within the trial court's discretion [Frazer v. Dixon Unified School Dist. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 781, 800, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641] , and is reviewable on appeal for abuse of discretion [Boyle v. City of Redondo Beach (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1120, 83 Cal. Rptr 2d 164] . An award of attorneys fees to a prevailing party plaintiff is justified by a public benefit when a litigant who successfully enforced the Brown Act deterred recurring violations of the Act which would have been harmful to the public generally [International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union v. Los Angeles Export Terminal, Inc. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 287, 301-302, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 456] . However, an award of attorneys fees to a governmental defendant requires a showing that the plaintiff's action was clearly frivolous and totally lacking in merit under Gov. Code § 54960.5. Furthermore, the trial court is required to state with particularity the factual basis for the award when it awards attorneys fees on this basis as a matter of fairness and due process of law [Boyle v. City of Redondo Beach (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1120-1121, 83 Cal. Rptr 2d 164] .

The trial court properly based its fee award on a reasonable market value standard based on a prevailing hourly rate in the community even though that rate exceeded the actual hourly rate charged by the plaintiff's lawyers in the case [International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union v. Los Angeles Export Terminal, Inc. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 287, 302-303, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 456] .

A prevailing party plaintiff can recover reasonable attorneys fees that are necessary to successfully defend the judgment on appeal [International Longshoremen's & Warehousemen's Union v. Los Angeles Export Terminal, Inc. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 287, 303-304, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 456] . Similarly, outside counsel defendants were properly awarded attorneys fees and costs on appeal when the plaintiff's appeal was found to be totally lacking in merit [Boyle v. City of Redondo Beach (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1109, 1121-1122, 83 Cal. Rptr 2d 164] . A statutory attorneys fee award under Gov. Code § 54960.5 given to a prevailing plaintiff when a local agency has violated the Brown Act had to be apportioned between Brown Act claims and other damage claims for which there was no statutory fee award available [Bell v. Vista Unified Sch. Dist. (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 672, 686-688, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 263] .

[4] Appellate Review

The Court of Appeal applied the independent judgment standard of review to the trial court's decision that plaintiffs lacked standing under the "interested person" language of Gov. Code § 54960(a) and Gov. Code § 54960.1(a). The court decided that this was a question of statutory interpretation, which was a question of law subject to independent determination by the appellate court. The court also concluded that there was an application of law to fact issue in this action which was also subject to the same broad standard of review because the court would apply "the interpreted statute to undisputed facts" [McKee v. Orange Unified Sch. Dist. (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1310, 1316, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 774] .

The court also rejected an argument that Plaintiff's appeal was moot because the school district defendant had sold the property that was the subject of the challenged agenda description under the Brown Act. The appeal was not moot because plaintiff sought declaratory and injunctive relief to require the school district to follow new procedures to prevent future Brown Act violations of the same type. Therefore, sale of the property does not make the appeal moot because the remedies requested by plaintiff to prevent future harm are still available [McKee v. Orange Unified Sch. Dist. (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1310, 1315, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 774] .

The California Court of Appeal applied the independent judgment standard of review to determine appellate issues related to the applicability of the Brown Act to a local joint powers agency. The Court interpreted the meaning of two provisions of the act, the definition of a local agency, and the definition of legislative body, to determine whether a locally created joint powers agency was subject to the open meeting requirements of the Brown Act. The court held that the agency was a local agency and that the board of directors and the executive council of a joint powers authority agency ("L.A. Impact") was a governing body of a local agency within the meaning of Gov. Code § 54952(a), and thus was subject to the open meeting requirements of the Brown Act [McKee v. Los Angeles Interagency Metropolitan Police Apprehension Crime Task Force (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 354, 357-358, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 47] .

§ 470B.20 Nature and Purpose of the Bagley-Keene Act

[1] History of the Act and Relationship to Brown Act

Before enactment of the Bagley-Keene Open Meeting Act [Gov. Code § 11120 et seq.], most state agencies were required by their governing laws to hold open and public meetings [see, e.g., Pub. Util. Code § 306(b) (California Public Utilities Commission); Health & Safety Code § 50916 (Housing Finance Agency)]. In 1967, the Bagley-Keene Open Meeting Act (Act) was adopted, requiring that all meetings of "state bodies" be open and public [1967 Stats., Ch. 1656, § 122]. The Act was patterned after the Ralph M. Brown Act (Brown Act) [Gov. Code § 54950 et seq.; see § 470B.10 et seq.], relating to local agency meetings, which was enacted in 1953 [see 67 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 84, 89 (1984)] . The Brown Act contains a number of exemptions and amplifications on the meeting requirements for local public agencies [see Gov. Code § 54950 et seq.]. Because of the similarity of the two acts, Part B contains numerous cross references to applicable discussion in Part A and is organized to facilitate comparison of the two acts.

[2] Legislative Findings and Declaration

When the California Legislature adopted the Bagley-Keene Act, it expressly declared the public policy of California to be that public agencies exist to aid in the conduct of the people's business and that the proceedings of public agencies are to be conducted openly so that the public may remain informed [Gov. Code § 11120]. The Act requires state agencies to take action and conduct deliberations openly [Gov. Code § 11120]. In a subsequent amendment to this legislative finding and declaration, the state lawmakers echoed their declaration to the Brown Act [Gov. Code § 11120; for the Brown Act declaration, see Gov. Code § 54950 et seq.; § 470B.10[2]]:

> The people of this State do not yield their sovereignty to the agencies which serve them. The people, in delegating authority, do not give their public servants the right to decide what is good for the people to know and what is not good for them to know. The people insist on remaining informed so that they may retain control over the instruments they have created.

A California court of appeal has ruled that all agencies are to be included in some open meeting law unless they are expressly excluded [Torres v. Board of Commissioners (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 545, 549, 152 Cal. Rptr. 506] .

[3] Basic Open Meetings Requirement

The Act requires that all meetings of a state body be open and public and that all persons be allowed to attend any state body meeting, except as set forth in the Act [Gov. Code § 11123(a); see § 470B.23]. In general, members of the public must have an opportunity to directly address the state body on each agenda item before or during the state body's consideration of the item [Gov. Code § 11125.7(a); see § 470.22[1]]. Open and public meetings of state bodies must comply with the requirements of Section 202 of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 [42 U.S.C. § 12132], and with implementing federal regulations [Gov. Code § 11123.1]. Every provision of the Act applies to every state body, unless a particular state body is specifically exempted by law or is covered by any other conflicting provision of law [Gov. Code § 11127]. For example, meetings of the Regents of the University of California are governed by Const. art. IX, § 9, and Educ. Code § 92030. The Board of Regents is subject to the requirements of the Bagley-Keene Act, but only because Educ. Code § 92030 so provides [Tafoya v. Hastings College (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 437, 443-445, 236 Cal. Rptr. 395 ; 66 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 458, 461 (1983)] . This requirement is subject to the exceptions provided in Educ. Code § 92032 rather than the exceptions recognized by the Bailey-Keene Act [see § 470B.23]. Meetings of other university bodies, such as faculty meetings, are not subject to the Act [Tafoya v. Hastings College (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 437, 443-445, 236 Cal. Rptr. 395 ; 66 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 458, 461 (1983)] . Every state body must provide a copy of the Act to each member of that state body when the member is appointed or assumes office [Gov. Code § 11121.9].

State agencies are permitted to have open or closed meetings by teleconference if the convening at one location of a quorum of the state body is difficult or impossible, subject to certain conditions [see Gov. Code § 11123(b)(1)(A)-(F)]. "Teleconference" is defined to mean a meeting of a state body, the members of which are at different locations, connected by electronic means, through either audio, or both audio and video. This law does not prohibit a state body from providing members of the public with additional locations in which the public may observe or address the state body by electronic means, through either audio or both audio and video [Gov. Code § 11123(b)(2)].

B. Open Meetings of State Bodies: The Bagley-Keene Open Meetings Act

§ 470B.21 Definitions Applicable to Bagley-Keene Act

[1] State Body

[a] Entities Included Within Definition

The Bagley-Keene Act defines "state body" quite broadly. "State body" means every state board, commission, or similar multi member body of the state that is created by statute or required by law to conduct official meetings, and every commission created by executive order [Gov. Code § 11121(a)]. The Act also specifically includes the following in its definition of "state body":

- Any board, commission, committee, or similar multimember body of a state body that exercises any authority delegated to it by the state body [Gov. Code § 11121(b)].

- Any board, commission, committee, or similar multimember body on which a member of another state body serves in his or her official capacity as a representative of his or her primary state body, which is supported in whole or part by funds provided by the state body, whether the multimember body is organized and operated by the state body or by a private corporation [Gov. Code § 11121(d)].

- Any advisory board, commission, committee, subcommittee, or similar multimember advisory body of a state body, if created by formal action of a state body or by any member of the state body, and if the advisory body consists of three or more persons [Gov. Code § 11121(c)].

The Act also applies to any person appointed or elected to serve as a member of a state body who has not yet assumed the duties of office. That person is required to conform his or her conduct to the requirements of the Act and is treated as if he or she has already assumed office [Gov. Code § 11121.95].

The board of directors of the Pacific Grove-Asilomar Operating Corporation is considered to be a state body under Gov. Code § 11121(b), and the meetings of the board of directors must be conducted consistent with the requirements of the Bagley-Keene Open Meetings Act [Pub. Res. Code § 5080.24(d)]. Similarly, the Electricity Oversight Board that has oversight responsibility for the Independent System Operator and the Power Exchange [Pub. Util. Code § 335] must conduct its meeting consistent with the requirements of the Bagley-Keene Open Meetings Act [Pub. Util. Code § 341.2].

[b] Entities Excluded From Definition

The Act specifically exempts the following agencies from its definition of "state body":

- State agencies covered by Cal. Const. art. VI (the judicial department) [Gov. Code § 11121.1(a)].

- Districts or other local agencies covered by the Brown Act [Gov. Code § 11121.1(b); see Gov. Code § 54950 et seq.; see also § 470B.10 et seq.].

- State agencies provided for in Cal. Const. art. IV (the Legislature), whose meetings are required to be open to the public pursuant to the Grunsky-Burton Open Meeting Act [Gov. Code § 11121.1(c); former Gov. Code §§ 9027-9032 (Grunsky-Burton Open Meeting Act); see § 470B.30 et seq.]. Note that the Grunsky-Burton Open Meeting Act was repealed and replaced by ballot initiative in 1984 [see former Gov. Code §§ 9926-9929.5]. Further action in 1989 replaced those codified initiative provisions with new legislation [see Gov. Code §§ 9027-9031]. Thus, the referenced exclusion of state legislative meetings covered by the Grunsky-Burton Open Meeting Act no longer has a valid law as its basis.

- State agencies, when involved in higher education labor relations [Gov. Code § 11121.1(d); see Gov. Code § 3596].

- The Cancer Advisory Council in the State Department of Health Services [Gov. Code § 11121.1(e); see Health & Safety Code §§ 109260, 109390].

- The Credit Union Advisory Committee established pursuant to Fin. Code § 14380 [Gov. Code § 11121.1(f)].

Although the definition of "state body" in Gov. Code § 11121 [see [a], above] would seem to be broad enough to include the University of California and multimember official bodies such as the Regents of the University of California, it has been held that the Legislature intended the Regents to be treated in a particular manner under the provisions of the Education Code and not as a state body under the Government Code [Tafoya v. Hastings College (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 437, 445, 236 Cal. Rptr. 395 ; 66 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 458, 461 (1983) . For further discussion on the requirements applicable to the university and the Regents, see § 470B.20[3]].

[c] Application to Particular Agency

In a case determining which open meetings act, if any, applied to a housing authority created pursuant to state law [see Health & Safety Code § 34200 et seq.], the court of appeal concluded that the legislative policy expressed in both the Brown Act [Gov. Code § 54950 et seq.] and the Bagley-Keene Act [Gov. Code § 11120 et seq.], required that all agencies be included in some open meeting act unless expressly excluded [Torres v. Board of Commissioners (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 545, 549, 152 Cal. Rptr. 506] . The court ruled that while a housing authority may be a state agency for some purposes, it is more properly deemed a local agency under the Brown Act, and concluded that the Brown Act was applicable to that agency's meetings [Torres v. Board of Commissioners (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 545, 549, 152 Cal. Rptr. 506 ; see § 470B.11[1]].

[2] Meeting

The term "meeting" is defined to include any congregation of a majority of the members of a state body at the same time and place to hear, discuss, or deliberate upon any item that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of the state body to which it pertains [Gov. Code § 11122.5(a)]. Furthermore, a majority of the members of a state body shall not, outside of a meeting authorized by this chapter, use a series of communications of any kind, directly or through intermediaries, to discuss, deliberate, or take action on any item of business that is within the subject matter of the state body [Gov. Code 11122.5(b)(1)]. Additionally, subsection (1) shall not be construed to prevent an employee or official of a state agency from engaging in separate conversations or communications outside of a meeting authorized by this chapter with members of a legislative body in order to answer questions or provide information regarding a matter that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of the state agency, if that person does not communicate to members of the legislative body the comments or position of any other member or members of the legislative body [Gov. Code 11122.5(b)(2)]. Gov. Code § 11123 requires that all meetings of a state body shall be open and public and all persons shall be permitted to attend any meeting of a state body except when prohibited by the Brown Act [Gov. Code § 11123(a)]. The Open Meetings Act requirements do not prohibit the following:

- Individual contacts or conversations between a member of a state body and any other person that do not violate subsection (b) [Gov. Code § 11122.5(c)(1)];

- The attendance of a majority of the members of a state body at a conference or similar gathering open to the public that involves a discussion of issues of general interest to the public or to public agencies of the type represented by the state body, provided that a majority of the members do not discuss among themselves, other than as part of the scheduled program, business of a specified nature that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of the state body. This is not intended to allow members of the public free admission to a conference or similar gathering at which the organizers have required other participants or registrants to pay fees or charges as a condition of attendance [Gov. Code § 11122.5(c)(2)(A), (B)];

- The attendance of a majority of the members of a state body at an open and publicized meeting organized to address a topic of state concern by a person or organization other than the state body, provided that a majority of the members do not discuss among themselves, other than as part of the scheduled program, business of a specific nature that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of the state body [Gov. Code § 11122.5(c)(3)];

- The attendance of a majority of the members of a state body at an open and noticed meeting of another state body or of a legislative body of a local agency as defined by Section 54951, provided that a majority of the members do not discuss among themselves, other than as part of the scheduled meeting, business of a specific nature that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of the other state body [Gov. Code § 11122.5(c)(4)];

- The attendance of a majority of the members of a state body at a purely social or ceremonial occasion, provided that a majority of the members do not discuss among themselves business of a specific nature that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of the state body [Gov. Code § 11122.5(c)(5)]; and

- The attendance of a majority of the members of a state body at an open and noticed meeting of a standing committee of that body, provided that the members of the state body who are not members of the standing committee attend only as observers [Gov. Code § 11122.5(c)(6)].

State agencies are prohibited from conducting meetings in any facility that prohibits the admittance of any person, or persons, on the basis of ancestry or based on any characteristic listed or defined in Gov. Code § 11135, or which is inaccessible to disabled persons, or where members of the public may not be present without making a payment or purchase. This prohibition includes all state agencies defined to mean and include every state body, office, officer, department, division, bureau board, council, commission, or other state agency [Gov. Code § 11131].

[3] Teleconference Meetings

State bodies are not prohibited by the Act from holding an open or closed meeting by teleconference for the benefit of the public and state body [Gov. Code § 11123(b)(1)]. "Teleconference" is defined by the Act to mean a meeting of a state body, the members of which are at different locations, connected by electronic means, through either audio or both audio and video. Furthermore, the Act does not prohibit a state body from providing members of the public with additional locations in which the public may observe or address the state body by electronic means, through either audio or both audio and video [Gov. Code § 11123(b)(2)]. Teleconference meetings are required to comply with all applicable laws relating to a specific type of meeting or proceeding under the Act including the following specific listed requirements [Gov. Code § 11123(b)(1)]:

- The teleconferencing meeting shall comply with all requirements of the Act applicable to other meetings [Gov. Code § 11123(b)(1)(A)];

- The portion of the teleconferenced meeting that is required to be open to the public shall be audible to the public at the location specified in the notice of the meeting [Gov. Code § 11123(b)(1)(B)];

- If the state body elects to conduct a meeting or proceeding by teleconference, it shall post agendas at all teleconference locations and conduct teleconference meetings in a manner that protects the rights of any party or member of the public appearing before the state body. Each teleconference location shall be identified in the notice and agenda of the meeting or proceeding, and each teleconference location shall be accessible to the public. The agenda shall provide an opportunity for members of the public to address the state body directly pursuant to Gov Code § 11125.7 at each teleconference location [Gov. Code § 11123(b)(1)(C)];

- All votes taken during a teleconferenced meeting shall be by rollcall [Gov. Code § 11123(b)(1)(D)];

- The portion of the teleconferenced meeting that is closed to the public may not include the consideration of any agenda item being heard pursuant to Gov. Code § 11125.5 [Gov. Code § 11123(b)(1)(E)]; and

- At least one member of the state body shall be physically present at the location specified in the notice of the meeting [Gov. Code § 11123(b)(1)(F)].

[4] Action Taken

The Act states as its intent that state agencies take action openly [Gov. Code § 11120; see § 470B.20]. Under the Act, "action taken" is defined as a collective decision made by the members of a state body, a collective commitment or promise by the members of the state body to make a positive or negative decision, or an actual vote by members of a state body when sitting as a body or entity on a motion, proposal, resolution, order, or similar action [Gov. Code § 11122]. The attorney general has concluded that the election of officers constitutes "action taken" and must thus occur in an open meeting [see 68 Ops. Cal. Atty Gen. 65 (1985) ; see Gov. Code § 11120]. In a situation involving the California Commission on the Status of Women, a state body, the attorney general stated that the Commission could not elect its officers through the use of a secret ballot, a ballot by mail, or through the use of proxies. The open meeting requirement was intended to preclude secrecy at any stage of the proceedings, and thus prohibits the use of secret ballots even during a public meeting [see 68 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 65 (1985)] . For a discussion of cases interpreting similar language in the Brown Act [Gov. Code § 54950 et seq.], see § 470B.11[5].

[5] Deliberation

The Act contains a deliberation element to the definition of meeting and to the prohibition on collective concurrence. Specifically, the term "meeting" is defined to include any congregation of a majority of the members of a state body at the same time and place to hear, discuss, or deliberate upon any item that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of the state body to which it pertains [Gov. Code § 11122.5(a)]. Furthermore, the Act prohibits any use of direct communication, personal intermediaries, or technological devices that is employed by a majority of the members of the state body to develop a collective concurrence as to action to be taken on an item by the members of the state body except when authorized by Gov. Code § 11123 [Gov. Code § 11122.5(b)].

In construing the Brown Act's declaration of intent [Gov. Code § 54950], the court of appeal held that the Legislature intended deliberation, as well as action, to occur openly and publicly. The court defined "to deliberate" as the process of examining, weighing, and reflecting on the reasons for or against a choice [Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 47, 69 Cal. Rptr. 480] . For further discussion, see § 470B.11[6].

[1] General Requirements

No person may be required to register his or her name, to provide other information, to complete a questionnaire, or otherwise to fulfill any condition precedent to his or her attendance at any meeting of a state body. If an attendance list, register, questionnaire, or similar document is posted at or near the entrance of the meeting room, or is circulated to persons present during the meeting, it must clearly state that the signing, registering, or completion of the document is voluntary, and that all persons may nevertheless attend the meeting if they decline to sign or register [Gov. Code § 11124]. Any person attending any meeting of a state body also has the right to make an audio or video recording of the proceedings, unless the state body reasonably finds that the recording constitutes a disruption of the proceedings [Gov. Code § 11124.1]. Public bodies are prohibited from conducting any meeting, conference, or other function in any facility that prohibits the admittance of any person or persons on the basis of race, religious creed, color, national origin, ancestry, or sex, or that is inaccessible to disabled persons, or where members of the public may not be present without making a payment or purchase [Gov. Code § 11131]. Open and public meetings of state bodies must comply with the requirements of Section 202 of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 [42 U.S.C. § 12132], and with implementing federal regulations [Gov. Code § 11123.1]. Notices, agendas, announcements, or reports required under this law need not identify any victim or alleged victim of crime, tortious sexual conduct, or child abuse, unless the identity of the person has been publicly disclosed [Gov. Code § 11131.5].

Subject to specific exceptions [see Gov. Code § 11125.7(c)-(f)], the state body conducting the meeting must provide an opportunity for members of the public to directly address the state body on each agenda item before or during the state body's consideration of the item [Gov. Code § 11125.7(a)]. However, this rule does not apply if the agenda item has already been considered by a committee composed exclusively of members of the state body at a public meeting where members of the public were afforded the opportunity to address the committee on the item, unless the item has substantially changed since the committee heard the item [Gov. Code § 11125.7(a)].

The state body may adopt reasonable regulations to provide members of the public the opportunity to address that body [Gov. Code § 11125.7(b)]. For example, the state body may impose time restrictions on individual speakers or establish time limits for public comment on particular issues.

Any person attending an open and public meeting of a state body has the right to record the proceedings by means of audio or video recorder, or still or motion picture camera, unless the state body reasonably finds that the recording can not continue without noise, illumination, or obstruction of view that constitutes, or would constitute, a persistent disruption of the proceedings [Gov. Code § 11124.1(a)]. No state body may prohibit or otherwise restrict the broadcast of its open and public meeting in the absence of a reasonable finding that the broadcast cannot be accomplished without noise, illumination, or obstruction of view that would constitute a persistent disruption of the proceedings [Gov. Code § 11124.1(c)]. Any tape or file record of an open and public meeting made for whatever purpose by or at the direction of the state body is subject to inspection under the California Public Records Act (Gov. Code §§ 6250 et. seq.), but may be erased or destroyed 30 days after the taping or recording. Any inspection of an audio tape or videotape recording must be provided without charge on an audio tape or videotape player made available by the state agency [Gov. Code § 11124.1(b)].

[2] Regular and Special Meetings

[a] Persons Entitled to Notice

State bodies are required to give notice of their meetings to any person who makes a written request for notice [Gov. Code § 11125(a)]. A person may request notice for all meetings or for a specific meeting or meetings. Additionally, at the state body's discretion, a person may request notice of only those meetings at which a particular subject or subjects, as specified in the request, will be discussed [Gov. Code § 11125(d)]. In litigation under the Act, a plaintiff's failure to allege that he or she requested notice deprives the plaintiff of standing to object to an agency's lack of compliance with the notice requirement [American Petroleum Institute v. Knecht (1978) 456 F. Supp. 889, 913] .

Notices of meetings of state bodies must comply with the requirements of Section 202 of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 [42 U.S.C. § 12132], and with implementing federal regulations [Gov. Code § 11125(f)]. Specifically, these notices must be made available in appropriate alternative formats. The notice must include information regarding how, to whom, and by when a request for any disability-related modification or accommodation, including auxiliary aids or services, may be made by a person with a disability who requires these aids or services in order to participate in the public meeting [Gov. Code § 11125(f)].

If a person requests notice for more than one meeting, the state body must verify the accuracy of that person's mailing address at least once a year [Gov. Code § 11125(e); see Gov. Code § 14911 (requirements for state agency mailing lists)]. The state body is prohibited from charging a fee for providing the notice of meeting [Gov. Code § 11126.7].

[b] Time and Contents of Notice

The state body must give notice at least 10 days before a meeting [Gov. Code § 11125(a)]. It must include the name, address, and telephone number of any person who can provide further information prior to the meeting, but need not include a list of witnesses expected to appear at the meeting [Gov. Code § 11125(a)]. Notice must also be made available on the Internet. Notices of all public meetings and agendas must be posted on the agency web site home page at least ten days prior to the meeting at which the regulatory action is on the agenda [Gov. Code § 11364(a)(2)] with instructions as to how the public may participate in the meeting also posted [Gov. Code § 11364(a)(3)]. The written notice must also include the address of the internet site where these notices are made available. [Gov. Code § 11125(a)].

[c] Agenda Requirement

The notice of a meeting of a body that is a state body shall include a specific agenda for the meeting, containing a brief description of the items of business to be transacted or discussed in either open or closed session. A brief general description of an item generally need not exceed 20 words. A description of an item to be transacted or discussed in closed session shall include a citation of the specific statutory authority under which a closed session is being held. No item shall be added to the agenda subsequent to the provision of this notice, unless otherwise permitted by statute [Gov. Code § 11125(b)]. Notice of a meeting of a state body that complies with this section shall also constitute notice of a meeting of an advisory body of that state body, provided that the business to be discussed by theadvisory body is covered by the notice of the meeting of the state body, the specific time and place of the advisory body's meeting is announced during the open and public state body's meeting, and the advisory body's meeting is conducted within a reasonable time of, and nearby, the meeting of the state body [Gov. Code § 11125(c)].

A state body may take action on items of business not appearing on the posted agenda under the following conditions [Gov. Code § 11125.3(a)]:

- Upon a determination by a majority vote of the state body that an emergency situation exists, as defined in Gov. Code § 11125.5 [Gov. Code § 11125.3(a)(1)].

- Upon a determination by a two-thirds vote of the state body, or, if less than two-thirds of the members are present, a unanimous vote of those members present, that there exists a need to take immediate action and that the need for action came to the attention of the state body subsequent to the agenda being posted as specified in Gov. Code § 11125 [Gov. Code § 11125.3(a)(2)].

Notice of the additional item to be considered shall be provided to each member of the state body and to all parties that have requested notice of its meetings as soon as is practicable after a determination of the need to consider the item is made, but shall be delivered in a manner that allows it to be received by the members and by newspapers of general circulation and radio or television stations at least 48 hours before the time of the meeting specified in the notice. Notice shall be made available to newspapers of general circulation and radio or television stations by providing that notice to all national press wire services. Notice shall also be made available on the Internet as soon as is practicable after the decision to consider additional items at a meeting has been made [Gov. Code § 11125.3(b)].

The attorney general has interpreted the specificity requirement of Gov. Code § 11125(b) [see 67 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 84 (1984)] . In this specific instance, the State Board of Food and Agriculture had placed the following item on its agenda for a regular meeting:
Tuolumne River
San Joaquin River Flood Control Problem

When this item came before the Board at the meeting, the Board adopted a resolution that opposed any congressional action to designate the Tuolumne River as a wild and scenic river, and instructed the president of the Board to testify to that effect at a Senate hearing. In a requested opinion, the attorney general stated that the purpose of the specificity requirement is to provide advance information to interested members of the public concerning the state body's anticipated business [see 67 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 84, 87 (1984)] . Citing the unabridged Webster's Third New International Dictionary (1961), the attorney general defined "specific" as characterized by precise formulation or accurate restriction, or free from any ambiguity resulting from careless lack of precision or omission of pertinent matter [see 67 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 84, 87 (1984)] . The attorney general concluded that, under this definition, the meeting notice was inadequate [see 67 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 84, 87-88 (1984)] . The attorney general further concluded, however, that the Bagley-Keene Act is directory, rather than mandatory, and thus failure to comply with its agenda provision did not invalidate the resolution adopted at that meeting [see 67 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 84, 92 (1984)] .

The agenda of public meetings and other writings [Gov. Code § 11125.1(f); see Gov. Code § 6252] distributed to all or a majority of the members of the state body by staff or others for discussion or consideration at a public meeting become public records under the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.; see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act] on their distribution [Gov. Code § 11125.1(a)]. The agenda must be made available to persons requesting it [Gov. Code § 11125.1(a)-(d); see Gov. Code § 6253.4], subject to exemptions in the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 11125.1(a); see Gov. Code §§ 6253.5, 6254, 6254.7]. These writings must be made available in appropriate alternative formats as required by Section 202 of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 [42 U.S.C. § 12132], and implementing federal regulations, upon request by a person with a disability [Gov. Code § 11125.1(b)].

Writings that are public records under subdivision (a) and that are distributed to members of the state body prior to or during a meeting, pertaining to any item to be considered during the meeting, shall be made available for public inspection at the meeting if prepared by the state body or a member of the state body, or after the meeting if prepared by some other person [Gov. Code § 11125.1(b)].

When the state body is the Franchise Tax Board, prior to that state body taking final action on any item, writings pertaining to that item that are public records [Gov. Code § 11125.1(a)] which are prepaid and distributed to members of the state body by board staff or individual members prior to or during a meeting shall be [Gov. Code § 11125.1(c)]:

- Made available for public inspection at that meeting [Gov. Code § 11125.1(c)(1)];
- Distributed to all persons who request notice [Gov. Code § 11125(a)] in writing [Gov. Code § 11125.1(c)(2)];
- Made available on the Internet [Gov. Code § 11125.1(c)(3)].

When the state body is the State Board of Equalization taking final action on any item that does not involve a named tax or fee payer, writings pertaining to that item that are public records [Gov. Code § 11125.1(a)] which are prepared and distributed by board staff or individual members to members of the state body prior to or during a meeting shall be [Gov. Code § 11125.1(d)]:

- Made available for public inspection at that meeting [Gov. Code § 11125.1(d)(1)].
- Distributed to all persons who request or have requested copies of these writings [Gov. Code § 11125.1(d)(2)].
- Made available on the Internet [Gov. Code § 11125.1(d)(3)].

State bodies are not prohibited from charging a fee or deposit for a copy of a public record under Gov. Code § 6253, except that no surcharge shall be imposed on persons with disabilities in violation of Section 202 of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 [42 U.S.C. Sec. 12132], and the federal rules and regulations adopted in implementation thereof [Gov. Code § 11125.1(e)].

State bodies are permitted to charge a fee or deposit for a copy of a public record under Gov. Code § 6257 [Gov. Code § 11125.1(e)]. These writings are subject to the requirements of the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code §§ 6250 et seq.], and shall not be construed to limit or delay the public's right to inspect any record required to be disclosed by that Act, or to limit the public's right to inspect any record covered by that Act. This law does not apply to any writings solely because they are properly discussed in a closed session of a state body. A state body is not required to place any paid advertisement or any other paid notice in any publication [Gov. Code § 11125.1(d)].

[d] Notice of Advisory Board Meetings

A meeting notice that complies with the requirements discussed in [a]-[c], above, will also constitute notice of a meeting of an advisory body of that state body, if the following requirements are met [Gov. Code § 11125(c)]:

- The business to be discussed by the advisory body is covered by the notice of the meeting of the state body;

- The specific time and place of the advisory body's meeting is announced during the open and public state body's meeting; and

- The advisory body's meeting is conducted within a reasonable time of, and physically near to, the meeting of the state body.

[3] Emergency Meetings

[a] Definition of Emergency

If an "emergency situation" arises involving matters that require prompt action due to the disruption or threatened disruption of public facilities, the state body may hold an emergency meeting without complying with the 10-day-notice requirement [Gov. Code § 11125.5(a); see Gov. Code § 11125; see also [2], above]. "Emergency situation" means one of the following situations, as determined by a majority of the members of the state body during a prior meeting or at the beginning of the emergency meeting:

- Work stoppage or other activity severely impairing public health, safety, or both health and safety [Gov. Code § 11125.5(b)(1)].

- Crippling disaster that severely impairs public health, safety, or both health and safety [Gov. Code § 11125.5(b)(2)].

[b] Special Procedures

One hour before the emergency meeting, the presiding officer of the state body, or a designee, must notify by telephone any newspaper of general circulation and radio or television station that has requested notice of meetings pursuant to Gov. Code § 11125 [Gov. Code § 11125.5(c); see [2], above]. Notice shall also be made available on the Internet as soon as is practicable after the decision to call the emergency meeting has been made. If telephone services are not working, this notice requirement is deemed waived; as soon as possible after the meeting, however, the presiding officer must notify the media of the fact of the emergency meeting, the purpose of the meeting, and any action taken at the meeting [Gov. Code § 11125.5(c)]. As soon after the meeting as possible, the state body must post in a public place for at least 10 days (1) the minutes of an emergency meeting (the minutes must also be made available on the Internet for a minimum of 10 days), (2) a list of persons whom the presiding officer of the state body notified or attempted to notify, (3) a copy of the roll-call vote, and (4) any actions taken at the meeting [Gov. Code § 11125.5(d)].

[4] Special Meetings

A special meeting may be called at any time by the presiding officer of the state body or by a majority of the members of the state body. A special meeting may only be called for specified purposes when compliance with the 10 day notice provisions would impose a substantial hardship on the state body or when immediate action is required to protect the public interest [Gov. Code § 11125.4(a)]. The specified purposes for which a special meeting is proper include:

- To consider pending litigation as defined by law [Gov. Code § 11125.4(a)(1); see Gov. Code § 11126(q)].

- To consider proposed legislation [Gov. Code § 11125.4(a)(2)].

- To consider issuance of a legal opinion [Gov. Code § 11125.4(a)(3)].

- To consider disciplinary action involving a state officer or employee [Gov. Code § 11125.4(a)(4)].

- To consider the purchase, sale, exchange, or lease of state property [Gov. Code § 11125.4(a)(5)].

- To consider license examinations or applications [Gov. Code § 11125.4(a)(6)].

- To consider action on loans or grants under provisions of Health and Safety Code § 50000 et seq. [Gov. Code § 11125.4(a)(7)].

- To consider a response to a confidential final draft audit report received from the Bureau of State Audits [Gov. Code § 11125.4(a)(8)].

- To provide for an interim executive officer of a state body upon the death, incapacity, or vacancy in the office of the executive officer [Gov. Code § 11125.4(a)(9)].

When a special meeting is called for one of the stated purposes, the state body must provide notice of the special meeting to each member of the state body and to all parties that have requested notice of its meetings as soon as is practicable after the decision to call a special meeting has been made, but must deliver the notice in a manner that allows it to be received by the members and by newspapers of general circulation and radio or television stations at least 48 hours before the time of the special meeting specified in the notice. Notice must be made available to newspapers of general circulation and radio or television stations by providing notice to all national press wire services. Notice must also be made available on the Internet within the required time periods. The written notice must also include the address of the internet site where these notices are made available. The notice must specify the time and place of the special meeting and the business to be transacted. No other business may be considered at a special meeting by the state body. The written notice may be dispensed with as to any member who at or prior to the time the meeting convenes files with the clerk or secretary of the state body a written waiver of notice. The waiver may be given by telegram, facsimile transmission, or similar means. The written notice may also be dispensed with as to any member who is actually present at the meeting at the time it convenes. Notice is required under the Act regardless of whether any action is taken at the special meeting [Gov. Code § 11125.4(b)].

At the beginning of any special meeting, the state body must make a finding in open session that the delay necessitated by providing notice 10 days prior to a meeting as required by law [see Gov. Code § 11125] would cause a substantial hardship on the body or that immediate action is required to protect the public interest. The finding must set forth the specific facts that constitute the hardship to the body or the impending harm to the public interest. The finding must be adopted by a two-thirds vote of the body, or, if less than two-thirds of the members are present, a unanimous vote of those members present. The finding must be made available on the internet. Failure to adopt the finding terminates the meeting [Gov. Code § 11125.4(c)].

[5] Continuances

Any hearing being held or noticed or ordered to be held by a state body at any meeting may by order or notice of continuance be continued to any subsequent, noticed meeting of the state body [Gov. Code § 11129; see Gov. Code § 11125 (notice provisions); see also [2], above]. A copy of the order or notice of continuance must be conspicuously posted on or near the door of the place where the hearing was held within 24 hours after the time of the continuance. If the hearing is continued to a time less than 24 hours after the time specified in the order of notice of hearing, however, posting must occur immediately following the meeting at which the order or declaration of continuance was adopted or made [Gov. Code § 11129].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Open Meetings of State Bodies: The Bagley-Keene Open Meetings Act

41-470B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 470B.23

§ 470B.23 Exemptions Allowing Closed Sessions

[1] General Requirements

Closed meetings, generally referred to in the Bagley-Keene Act as "closed sessions" or "executive sessions," are permitted for the purposes discussed in [2]-[30], below. Despite the similarity between the Bagley-Keene Act and the Brown Act [see § 470B.20], the exceptions to the open meeting requirements are not identical, since the functions of state and local governments vary considerably [see 68 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 65, 67 (1985)] . Because the basic purpose of each act is the same, however, the two acts should be construed in light of one another [see 68 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 65, 67 (1985)] . A state body may not hold a closed session except as expressly authorized in the Bagley-Keene Act [Gov. Code § 11132]. State agencies are permitted to have open or closed meetings by teleconference if the convening at one location of a quorum of the state body is difficult or impossible, subject to certain conditions [see Gov. Code § 11123(b)(1)(A)-(F)]. "Teleconference" is defined to mean meeting of a state body, the members of which are at different locations, connected by electronic means, through either audio or video, or both [Gov. Code § 11123(b)(2)].

[2] Personnel

A state body may hold a closed session during a regular or special meeting to consider the appointment, employment, or dismissal of a public employee, or to hear complaints or charges brought against that employee by another person or employee unless the employee requests a public hearing [Gov. Code § 11126(a)(1)]. As a condition to holding a closed session for these matters, the state body must give the employee written notice of his or her right to have a public hearing rather than a closed session. The notice must be delivered to the employee personally or by mail at least 24 hours before the time for holding the regular or special meeting. Failure to provide this notice renders any disciplinary or other action taken against the employee void [Gov. Code § 11126(a)(2)]. The state body may exclude from either a public or closed session during the examination of a witness any other witness in the matter being investigated [Gov. Code § 11126(a)(3)]. After a public hearing or closed session, the state body may hold a closed session to deliberate on the decision [Gov. Code § 11126(a)(4)].

For the purposes of the personnel exemption, the term "employee" does not include any person who is elected or appointed to a public office by any state body [Gov. Code § 11126(b)]. Officers of the California State University who receive compensation for their services (other than per diem and ordinary and necessary expenses) are considered "employees," however, when engaged in that capacity [Gov. Code § 11126(b)]. The term "employee" also includes persons exempt from civil service under the California Constitution [Gov. Code § 11126(b); Cal. Const., art VII, § 4(e)]. The personnel exception was properly invoked by a board of trustees to discuss the return of a former chancellor to employment with the university [Travis v. Board of Trustees of The California State University (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 335, 338, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854 (personnel exception included closed session meeting of trustees to discuss a decision by a former chancellor to return from an extended leave of absence and assume a teaching job; trustees did not violate Bagley Keene Act in holding closed session for this purpose)].

[3] Examinations for Licensees

State bodies that administer licensing programs for persons engaging in businesses or professions may hold closed sessions to prepare, approve, grade, or administer examinations [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(1)].

[4] Privacy

An advisory body of a state agency that administers the licensing of persons engaged in businesses or professions may conduct closed sessions to discuss matters that the advisory body has found would constitute an unwarranted invasion of the privacy of the individual licensee or applicant if discussed in an open meeting [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(2)]. The advisory body, however, may not include a quorum of the members of the state body it advises [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(2)]. The matters that may be discussed include review of an applicant's qualifications for licensure, and an inquiry specifically related to the state body's enforcement program concerning an individual licensee or applicant, when the inquiry has occurred prior to the filing of a civil, criminal, or administrative disciplinary action against the licensee or applicant by the state body [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(2)].

[5] Administrative Adjudication Deliberation

A state body may hold a closed session to deliberate on a decision to be reached in a proceeding required to be conducted pursuant to Chapter 5, Administrative Adjudication: Formal Hearing, of the California APA, Gov. Code § 11500 et seq. [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(3); see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication et seq., for discussion of adjudicatory hearings].

[6] National Security

A state body may hold a closed session to consider matters affecting the national security [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(4)].

[7] Parole or Release

A state body may hold a closed session when considering and acting on the determination of a term, parole, or release of any individual or other disposition of an individual criminal case, or if public disclosure of the subjects under discussion or consideration is expressly prohibited by statute [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(5)]. Nothing in the Bagley-Keene Act, however, may be construed to grant a right to enter any correctional institution or the grounds of a correctional institution when that right is not otherwise granted by law [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(5)].

[8] Honorary Degrees and Donations

A state body may hold a closed session to consider the conferring of an honorary degree, or to consider the acceptance of a gift, donation, or bequest that the donor has requested in writing to be kept confidential [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(6)].

[9] Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board may hold a closed session for the purpose of a deliberative conference [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(7)]. This section permits the holding of "a deliberative conference as provided in Section 11125." However, the cross reference is apparently a mistake, because Gov. Code § 11125 relates neither to the Appeals Board nor to any deliberative conference. The provisions of the Business & Professions Code relating to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 23075-23077] do not define that term. For a discussion of the functioning of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board, see Ch. 18, Alcoholic Beverage Licenses .

[10] Real Property

A state body may hold closed sessions with its negotiator prior to the purchase, sale, exchange, or lease of real property by or for the state body in order to give instructions to the negotiator regarding the price and terms of payment [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(8)(A)]. Prior to the closed session, however, the state body must hold an open and public session in which it identifies the real property that is the subject of the negotiations and the person or persons with whom its negotiator may negotiate [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(8)(B)]. For purposes of this exemption, the term "negotiator" includes a member of the state body. The term "lease" includes renewal or renegotiation of a lease [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(8)(C), (D)]. Nothing in this exemption precludes a state body from holding a closed session for discussions regarding eminent domain proceedings pursuant to Gov. Code § 11126(q) [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(8)(E) (although the statute cites subdivision (q), 1996 Stats., ch. 1041, § 2 redesignated the subdivisions in Gov. Code § 11126, and the content formerly stated in subdivision (q) is now found in subdivision (e)); see [20] below].

[11] Postsecondary Education Commission, and Council for Private Postsecondary and Vocational Education

The California Postsecondary Education Commission may hold closed sessions to consider matters pertaining to the appointment or termination of the Director of the California Postsecondary Education Commission [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(9)]. The Council for Private Postsecondary and Vocational Education may hold closed sessions to consider matters pertaining to the appointment or termination of the Executive Director of the Council [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(10)].

[12] Franchise Tax Board

The Franchise Tax Board may hold a closed session for the purpose of discussing confidential tax returns or data when public disclosure of that information is prohibited by law [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(11)]. The Board may also consider matters regarding the appointment or removal of the Board's executive officer in closed session [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(11)]. The Board is not required to notice or disclose any confidential tax information considered in closed sessions, or documents executed in connection with the confidential information, the public disclosure of which is prohibited by law [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(11); see Rev. & Tax. Code § 19542 et seq.].

[13] Corrections Standards Authority

The Correction Standards Authority may hold closed sessions when considering reports of crime conditions under Penal Code § 6027, which requires the Board to study crime in California and to report its findings to the governor and Legislature [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(12)].

[14] Air Resources Board

The State Air Resources Board may hold closed sessions when considering the proprietary specifications and performance data of manufacturers [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(13)].

[15] State Board of Education

The State Board of Education, or the Superintendent of Public Instruction, or any committee advising the Board or the Superintendent, may hold closed sessions to review and discuss the actual test content of assessment instruments that it is reviewing under Educ. Code § 60600 et seq., or under Educ. Code § 60850 et seq., to maintain the confidentiality of the assessments under review [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(14)].

[16] California Integrated Waste Management Board

The California Integrated Waste Management Board, and its auxiliary committees, may hold closed sessions to discuss confidential tax returns, trade secrets, confidential or proprietary information in its possession, and other data, the public disclosure of which is prohibited by law [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(15)].

[17] Pension Investment

A state body that invests retirement, pension, or endowment funds may hold closed sessions when considering investment decisions [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(16)]. For purposes of considering shareholder voting on corporate stocks held by the state body, closed sessions for the purpose of voting may be held only with respect to the election of corporate directors, the election of independent auditors, and financial issues that could have a material effect on the net income of the corporation. For the purpose of real property investment decisions that may be considered in a closed session, a state body need not identify the real property prior to the closed session, as otherwise required by Gov. Code § 11126(c)(8) [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(16); see [10] regarding property identification requirements].

[18] Employee Salary

A state body, or any board, commission, administrative officer, or other representative properly designated by law or a state body, may hold closed sessions with its representatives (or a state conciliator who has intervened in the proceedings) in discharging its responsibilities with respect to public employee organizations [see Gov. Code §§ 3500, 3512, 3525, 3540], if the sessions relate to salaries, salary schedules, or compensation paid in the form of fringe benefits [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(17)].

[19] Criminal or Terrorist Activity Threats

A state body may hold closed sessions to consider matters posing a threat or potential threat of criminal or terrorist activity against the personnel, property, buildings, facilities, or equipment, including electronic data, owned, leased, or controlled by the state body, where disclosure of these considerations could compromise or impede the safety or security of the personnel, property, buildings, facilities, or equipment, including electronic data, owned, leased, or controlled by the state body [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(18)(A)]. A state body, at any regular or special meeting, may meet in a closed session for purposes of considering threats or potential threats upon a two-thirds vote of the members present at the meeting [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(18)(B)]. After meeting in closed session to consider threats or potential threats, the state body shall reconvene in open session prior to adjournment and report that a closed session was held to consider threats or potential threats, the general nature of the matters considered, and whether any action was taken in closed session [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(18)(C)]. After meeting in closed session to consider threats or potential threats, the state body shall submit to the Legislative Analyst written notification stating that it held this closed session, the general reason or reasons for the closed session, the general nature of the matters considered, and whether any action was taken in closed session. The Legislative Analyst shall retain for no less than four years any written notification received from a state body under this law [Gov. Code § 11126(c)(18)(D)].

[20] Public Utilities Commission

The Public Utilities Commission (PUC) may hold closed sessions to deliberate on the institution of proceedings or disciplinary actions against regulated utilities [Gov. Code § 11126(d)(2)]. The Act expressly provides, however, that meetings of the PUC in which the rates of entities under the Commission's jurisdiction are changed must be open and public [Gov. Code § 11126(d)(1)].

The five Commissioners of the California Public Utilities Commission (PUC) met in closed session to discuss settlement of a lawsuit against the Commissioners brought by an electric utility. In the closed session, the commissioners voted unanimously to approve the settlement, and then reconvened in a public session to disclose the settlement of the lawsuit [Southern California Edison Co. v. Peevey (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 781, 797-798, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 703, 74 P. 3d 795] . The California Supreme Court held that the PUC was not required under the provisions of the Bagley-Keene Open Meetings Act [Gov. Code § 11126(d)(1) to hold the session discussing and approving this settlement in an open public session. This is because the settlement that the PUC accepted maintained the existing rates to be charged by the regulated utility and did not change those rates. Because the settlement did not change the rates charged by the utility, the requirements of Gov. Code § 11126(d)(1) did not require the PUC to hold an open and public session [Southern California Edison Co. v. Peevey (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 781, 802-804, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 703, 74 P. 3d 795] .

[21] Litigation

Based on the advice of its legal counsel, a state body may hold a closed session to confer with or receive advice from its legal counsel regarding pending litigation when discussion in open session would prejudice the position of the state body in the litigation [Gov. Code § 11126(e)(1)]. For purposes of the Bagley-Keene Act, all other expressions of the lawyer-client privilege are abrogated; Gov. Code § 11126(e)(2) is the exclusive expression of the lawyer-client privilege for purposes of conducting closed sessions [Gov. Code § 11126(e)(2)].

Litigation is considered pending only when one of the following circumstances exist [Gov. Code § 11126(e)(2)]:

- An adjudicatory proceeding in which the state body is a party has been formally initiated and is before a court, administrative body exercising adjudicatory authority, hearing officer, or an arbitrator [Gov. Code § 11126(e)(3)].

- A point has been reached when, in the opinion of the state body on the advice of its legal counsel based on existing facts and circumstances, a significant exposure to litigation against the state body exists [Gov. Code § 11126(e)(4)(A)].

- Based on existing facts and circumstances, the state body is meeting only to decide whether a closed session is authorized pursuant to subparagraph (A) [Gov. Code § 11126(e)(4)(B)].

- Based on existing facts and circumstances, the state body has decided to initiate or is deciding whether to initiate litigation [Gov. Code § 11126(e)(5)(A)].

"Litigation" includes any adjudicatory proceeding--including eminent domain--before a court, administrative body exercising its adjudicatory authority, hearing officer, or arbitrator [Gov. Code § 11126(e)(5)(C)]. The state body must follow specific procedures before it may go into closed session pursuant to the litigation exemption [see Gov. Code § 11126(e)(5)(B); see also § 470B.24[2]].

The five Commissioners of the California Public Utilities Commission (PUC) met in closed session to discuss settlement of a lawsuit against the Commissioners brought by an electric utility. In the closed session, the commissioners voted unanimously to approve the settlement, and then reconvened in a public session to disclose the settlement of the lawsuit.

The agenda for the closed session did not identify the lawsuit about which settlement negotiations were discussed. The California Supreme court held that provisions of the Bagley-Keene Open Meetings Act [Gov. Code § 11126(e)(1)] and

Gov. Code § 11126.3(a)] were not violated by the PUC Commissioners by not only conducting settlement negotiations with counsel but also deciding to settle a lawsuit in a closed session when holding a closed session "is deemed necessary to avoid prejudice to a favorable settlement" [Southern California Edison Co. v. Peevey (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 781, 797-798, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 703, 74 P. 3d 795] . The Court further held that the PUC was not required under the provisions of the Bagley-Keene Open Meetings Act [Gov. Code § 11126(e)(1) and Gov. Code § 11126.3(a)] to announce in a public session the proposed settlement with the name of the lawsuit, and then seek public comment on the proposed settlement before voting in a public session whether to accept the settlement [Southern California Edison Co. v. Peevey (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 781, 799-801, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 703, 74 P. 3d 795] .

[22] Payment of Claims for Tort Liability

A state body operating under a joint powers agreement for insurance pooling may conduct a closed session to discuss a claim for the payment of tort or public liability losses incurred by the state body or any member agency under the joint powers agreement [Gov. Code § 11126(f)(1); see also Gov. Code § 54956.95].

[23] State Board of Forestry

The examining committee established by the State Board of Forestry [see Pub. Res. Code § 763] may conduct a closed session to consider disciplinary action against an individual professional forester before filing an accusation against the forester [Gov. Code § 11126(f)(2); see Gov. Code § 11503 (filing of accusation); see also Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication].

[24] Board of Accountancy

An administrative committee established by the State Board of Accountancy to investigate complaints [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5020] may conduct a closed session to consider disciplinary action against an individual accountant before filing an accusation against the accountant [Gov. Code § 11126(f)(3); see Gov. Code § 11503 (filing of accusation)]. In addition, an examining committee established by the Board of Accountancy to determine certification [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 5023] may conduct a closed hearing to interview an individual applicant or accountant regarding the applicant's qualifications [Gov. Code § 11126(f)(3)].

[25] Delegated or Advisory Authority

A board, commission, committee, or other multimember body exercising authority delegated to it by a state body may conduct a closed session to consider any matter that could properly be considered in closed session by the state body whose authority it exercises [Gov. Code § 11126(f)(4)]. Similarly, a board, commission, committee, or other multimember body on which a member of a state body officially serves as a representative that is supported by the state body may conduct a closed session to consider any matter that could properly be considered by the state body [Gov. Code § 11126(f)(5); see Gov. Code § 11121 (definitions of state body)]. Finally, an advisory board, commission, committee, subcommittee, or other multimember advisory body consisting of three or more persons that was created by formal action of the state body may conduct a closed session to consider any matter that could properly be considered in a closed session by the state body it advises [Gov. Code § 11126(f)(6)].

[26] State Board of Equalization Exemption

The State Board of Equalization may hold closed sessions in order to hear confidential taxpayer appeals or data when public disclosure of that information is prohibited by law [Gov. Code § 11126(f)(7)(B)]. The Board may also hold a closed session to consider the appointment or removal of its executive secretary [Gov. Code § 11126(f)(7)(A)].

The Board is not required to disclose any action taken in closed sessions, or documents executed in connection with that action, the public disclosure of which is prohibited by law [Gov. Code § 11126(f)(8); see Gov. Code §§ 15619, 15641;

Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 833, 7056, 8255, 9255, 11655, 30455, 32455, 38705, 38706, 43651, 45982, 46751, 50159, 55381, 60609].

[27] Earthquake Prediction Evaluation Council

The California Earthquake Prediction Evaluation Council or other body appointed to advise the Governor or the Director of the Office of Emergency Services regarding matters concerning volcanic or earthquake predictions [see Gov. Code § 8590] may hold closed sessions when considering the evaluation of possible predictions [Gov. Code § 11126(f)(8)].

[28] Teacher's Retirement Board; Board of Administration of the Public Employees Retirement System

The Teachers' Retirement Board and the Board of Administration of the Public Employees' Retirement System may hold a closed session to consider matters regarding the recruitment, appointment, employment, or removal of the chief executive officer of the State Teachers' Retirement System or the Public Employees' Retirement System. Further, either board may hold a closed session when considering matters regarding the recruitment or removal of the chief investment officer of the system under its jurisdiction [Gov. Code § 11126(g)(1)]. The Board of Administration of the Public Employees' Retirement System may also hold closed sessions when considering matters relating to the development of rates and competitive strategy for long term care insurance plans offered pursuant to Chapter 15 (commencing with Section 21660) of Part 3 of Division 5 of Title 2 [Gov. Code § 11126(h)].

[29] Commission on Teacher Credentialing

The Commission on Teacher Credentialing may hold closed sessions when considering matters relating to the recruitment, appointment, or removal of its executive director [Gov. Code § 11126(g)(2)].

[30] California Victim Compensation and Government Claims Board

When the California Victim Compensation and Government Claims Board conducts hearings on crime victim indemnification claims, the board is not required to identify the applicant in any notice, agenda, announcement, or report required by law when the applicant or applicant's representative does not request that the hearing be open to the public [Gov. Code § 11125.8(a)].

[31] Electricity Oversight Board

The Electricity Oversight Board [Pub. Util. § 335] may hold a closed session to consider the appointment of one or more candidates to the governing board of the Power Exchange, deliberate on matters involving the removal of a member of the governing board of the Power Exchange, or to consider a matter based on information that has received a grant of confidential status pursuant to regulations of the Oversight Board, provided that any action taken on such a matter shall be taken by vote in an open session [Pub. Util. Code § 341.2].

[32] Exemption for Confidential Final Draft Audit Report

A state body that has received a confidential final draft audit report from the Bureau of State Audits may hold a closed session to discuss its response to the report [Gov. Code § 11126.2(a)]. However, once the audit report is publicly released by the Bureau of State Audits, meetings to discuss the audit report must be conducted in an open session unless some other exemption applies [Gov. Code § 11126.2(a)].

[33] Indian Tribe Records or Information Related to Sale of Compact Assets or Bond Issuance by Tribe

A state body may conduct a closed session to consider any records or information of an Indian tribe or summaries or analyses of those records received by the state in connection with the sale of compact assets or issuance of bonds [Gov. Code § 63048.63(e)].

[34] California Gambling Control Commission

The California Gambling Control Commission may hold closed sessions when discussing matters involving trade secrets, nonpublic financial data, confidential or proprietary information, and other data and information, the public disclosure of which is prohibited by law or a tribal-state gaming compact [Gov. Code § 11126.4(a)]. Discussion in closed session authorized by this section shall be limited to the confidential data and information related to the agenda item and shall not include discussion of any other information or matter [Gov. Code § 11126.4(b)]. Before going into closed session the commission shall publicly announce the type of data or information to be discussed in closed session, which shall be recorded upon the commission minutes [Gov. Code § 11126.4(c)]. Action taken on agenda items discussed pursuant to this section shall be taken in open session [Gov. Code § 11126.4(d)].

[35] Managed Risk Medical Insurance Board

[36] State Compensation Insurance Fund

The board of the State Compensation Insurance Fund may hold closed sessions under the following circumstances [Gov. Code § 11126(j)]: (1) when considering matters related to claims pursuant to Chapter 1 (commencing with Section 3200) of Division 4 of the Labor Code, to the extent that confidential medical information or other individually identifiable information would be disclosed [Gov. Code § 11126(j)(1)]; (2) to the extent that matters related to audits and investigations that have not been completed would be disclosed [Gov. Code § 11126(j)(2)]; (3) to the extent that an internal audit containing proprietary information would be disclosed [Gov. Code § 11126(j)(3)]; and (4) to the extent that the session would address the development of rates, contracting strategy, underwriting, or competitive strategy, pursuant to the powers granted to the board in Chapter 4 (commencing with Section 11770) of Part 3 of Division 2 of the Insurance Code, when discussion in open session concerning those matters would prejudice the position of the State Compensation Insurance Fund [Gov. Code § 11126(j)(4)]. The State Compensation Insurance Fund shall comply with the procedures specified in Section 11125.4 of the Government Code with respect to any closed session or meeting authorized by subdivision (j), and in addition shall provide an opportunity for a member of the public to be heard on the issue of the appropriateness of closing the meeting or session [Gov. Code § 11126(k)].

[37] Exclusion of Public Under Certain Conditions

In addition to the exemptions discussed in [2] to [35], above in certain circumstances a state body may continue a meeting after excluding some or all of those in attendance. When a meeting is willfully interrupted by a group or groups of persons who render the orderly conduct of that meeting unfeasible and order cannot be restored by the removal of the individuals who are interrupting, the state body may order the meeting room cleared and continue in session (i.e., closed session) [Gov. Code § 11126.5]. In such a session, only matters appearing on the agenda may be considered. Representatives of the press or other news media, except those participating in the disturbance, must be allowed to attend any such closed session [Gov. Code § 11126.5]. The state body may also establish a procedure for readmitting any person who was not responsible for willfully disturbing the orderly conduct of the meeting [Gov. Code § 11126.5].

§ 470B.24 Closed Session Procedures

[1] Statement of Reasons

Before holding any closed session, the state body is required to disclose, in an open meeting, the general nature of the item or items to be discussed in the closed session. The disclosure may take the form of a reference to the item or items as they are listed by number or letter in the agenda for the closed session [Gov. Code § 11126.3(a)]. The statement must cite the specific statutory authority, including the particular section, subdivision, and paragraph, under which the session is being held [Gov. Code§ 11126.3(a)]. If the session is closed under the authority of Gov. Code § 11126(d)(2), the state body must state the title of or otherwise specifically identify the proceeding or disciplinary action contemplated. Should that body determine, however, that to do so would jeopardize the body's ability to effectuate service of process upon one or more unserved parties if the proceeding or disciplinary action is commenced or that to do so would fail to protect the private economic and business reputation of the person or entity if the proceeding or disciplinary action is not commenced, then the state body shall notice that there will be a closed session and describe in general terms the purpose of that session [Gov. Code § 11126.3(a)]. If the closed session is held pursuant to the litigation exemption [former Gov. Code § 11126(q); now see Gov. Code § 11126(e); see also § 470B.23[20]], the state body must include the title of the litigation to be discussed or otherwise specifically identify the litigation, unless the state body determines that to do so would jeopardize either (1) its ability to effectuate service of process on one or more unserved parties, or (2) its ability to conclude existing settlement negotiations to its advantage [Gov. Code § 11126.3(a); see [3], below].

A closed session may be held only during a regular or special meeting of the state body [Gov. Code § 11128]. In the closed session, the state body may only consider those matters covered in its public statement [Gov. Code § 11126.3(b)]. The statement must be made as part of the notice of the meeting [see Gov. Code § 11125 and § 470B.22[2]; see also Educ. Code § 92032 (notice of closed meeting of Regents of the University of California)] and must be made part of any order or notice of continuance [Gov. Code § 11126.3(c); see Gov. Code § 11129 (notice of continuance)]. Gov. Code § 11126.3, requiring a statement of reasons, will not be construed to require or authorize a state body to give out names or other information, however, when that act would constitute an invasion of privacy or would otherwise unnecessarily divulge the particular facts concerning the closed session [Gov. Code § 11126.3(e)].

[2] Procedures Under Litigation Exception

When a closed session is held pursuant to the litigation exception [Gov. Code § 11126(e); see § 470B.23[20]], the state body's legal counsel is required to prepare and submit to the members of the body a memorandum stating the specific reasons and the legal authority for the closed session. If the closed session relates to existing litigation, the memorandum must include the title of the litigation. If the closed session does not relate to existing litigation, the memorandum must include the facts and circumstances on which it is based [Gov. Code § 11126(e)(5)(B)]. The legal counsel must submit the memorandum to the state body prior to the closed session, if feasible, and in any case, no later than one week after the closed session. That memorandum is exempt from disclosure under the Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 11126(e)(5)(B); see Gov. Code § 6254.25]. Disclosure of a memorandum is not deemed a waiver of the lawyer-client privilege under Evid. Code § 950 et seq. [Gov. Code § 11126(e)(5)(D)].

[3] Announcement of Additional Pending Litigation

If any additional pending litigation [see Gov. Code § 11126(e); see also § 470B.23[20]] arises after the closed session agenda has been published, and postponement of that litigation would prevent the state body from complying with any statutory, court-ordered, or other legally imposed deadline, the state body may nonetheless proceed to discuss those matters in closed session [Gov. Code § 11126.3(d)]. It must publicly announce the title of the litigation, however, or otherwise specifically identify it, in the meeting. Such an announcement is deemed to fully comply with the agenda requirement [Gov. Code § 11126.3(d)].

[4] Minute Book

The state body must designate a clerk or other officer or employee to attend each closed session and to keep and enter in a minute book a record of topics discussed and decisions made at the meeting [Gov. Code § 11126.1]. The minute book is not a public record subject to inspection pursuant to the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.; see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act], and must be kept confidential. The minute book must be available to members of the state body, however, and, if a violation of the Act is alleged to have occurred at a closed session, to a court considering the matter [Gov. Code § 11126.1]. The minute book may, but need not, consist of a recording of the closed session [Gov. Code § 11126.1].

[5] Public Report

A state body must publicly report at a subsequent public meeting any action taken and any roll-call vote taken to appoint, employ, or dismiss a public employee arising out of any closed session of the state body [Gov. Code § 11125.2].

41-470B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 470B.25

§ 470B.25 Judicial Enforcement

[1] Criminal Enforcement

Each member of a state body who attends a meeting of the state body in violation of any provisions of the Bagley-Keene Open Meeting Act with knowledge of the fact that the meeting is illegal can be prosecuted and convicted of a misdemeanor [Gov. Code § 11130.7].

[2] Civil Enforcement

[a] Action to Stop or Prevent Violations of Act

Any interested person may commence an action by mandamus [Code Civ. Proc. § 1084 et seq.; see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition], injunction [Civ. Code § 3420 et seq.; Code Civ. Proc. § 525 et seq.; see Ch. 303, Injunctions], or declaratory relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 et seq.; see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief] for the purpose of stopping or preventing violations or threatened violations of the Act, or to determine the applicability of the Act to actions or threatened future action by members of the state body [Gov. Code § 11130]. Gov. Code § 11130(a) provides for remedies to stop or prevent present or future violation of the act, and remedies to determine whether the act applies to a present or future action. It does not, however, provide a remedy for past actions or violations [Regents of Univ. of Cal. v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 509, 526, 536, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257, 976 P.2d 808] .

For examples of complaints for declaratory relief and injunction under Gov. Code § 11130, see §§ 470B.60, 470B.61, respectively. For a discussion of judicial review proceedings, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

[b] Action to Declare State Body's Activities Void

Any interested person may commence an action by mandamus [Code Civ. Proc. § 1084 et seq.; see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition], injunction [Civ. Code § 3420 et seq.; Code Civ. Proc. § 525 et seq.; see Ch. 303, Injunctions], or declaratory relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 et seq.; see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief] for the purpose of obtaining a judicial determination that an action taken in violation of the Act's open meeting requirement [Gov. Code § 11123(a); see § 470B.20] or notice requirement [Gov. Code § 11125] is void [Gov. Code § 11130.3(a); North Pacifica LLC v. California Coastal Commission (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1427-1429, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 636 (developer properly challenged commission by seeking a writ of mandamus under code Civ. Proc. § 1085 (ordinary mandamus), declaratory relief, and an injunction under Gov. Code § 11130.3; developer was not required to file a writ of administrative mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5)]. The lawsuit must be filed within 90 days from the date the action was taken [Gov. Code § 11130(a); see also 1999 Stats., ch. 383, § 6 (1999 amendment changing this limit from 30 to 90 days is intended to supersede Regents of Univ. of Cal. v. Superior Court (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 509, 530-532, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 257, 976 P.2d 808 , holding that action under Gov. Code § 11130.3(a) is limited by the former 30-day limit)]. The Act specifically provides that the state body may cure or correct the challenged action [Gov. Code § 11130.3(a)]. A court will not find the state body's action to be void, however, if any of the following conditions exist [Gov. Code § 11130.3(b)]:

- The action was taken in connection with the sale or issuance of notes, bonds, or other evidences of indebtedness, or any contract, instrument, or agreement related thereto [Gov. Code § 11130.3(b)(1)].

- The action gave rise to a contractual obligation on which a party has, in good faith, detrimentally relied [Gov. Code § 11130.3(b)(2)].

- The action was in substantial compliance with the open meeting [Gov. Code § 11123] or notice [Gov. Code § 11125] requirements [Gov. Code § 11130.3(b)(3); North Pacifica LLC v. California Coastal Commission (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1431-1434, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 636 (Commission's failure to give 10-day notice of public hearing to developer (who received actual notice six days before hearing) substantially complied [Gov. Code § 11130.3(b)(3)] with the obligations of the Bagley Keene Open Meetings Act statute because the Commission staff made a good faith effort to notify interested persons and the public about the date and time of the hearing. Furthermore, the developer failed to show prejudice from the Commission's failure to provide timely notice of the public hearing. Therefore, the Commission's actions taken at the public hearing were not invalid or nullified for failure to comply with the requirements of the Bagley Keene Open Meetings Act)].

- The action was taken in connection with the collection of any tax [Gov. Code § 11130.3(b)(4)].

For an example of a complaint for declaratory relief pursuant to Gov. Code § 11130.3, see § 470B.60. For a discussion of judicial review proceedings, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

[3] Attorneys' Fees and Costs

The court may award court costs and reasonable attorneys' fees to the plaintiff in a lawsuit brought to declare an action to be in violation of the Act [Gov. Code § 11130] or to declare the action taken to be void [Gov. Code § 11130.3] when it can be shown that the state body has in fact violated provisions of law [Gov. Code § 11130.5]. The costs and fees must be paid by the state body, and will not become a personal liability of any public officer or employee of the state body [Gov. Code § 11130.5]. Courts may award court costs and reasonable attorneys' fees to a defendant in either kind of action, however, when (1) the defendant has prevailed in a final determination of the lawsuit, and (2) the court finds that the action was clearly frivolous and totally lacking in merit [Gov. Code § 11130.5].

§ 470B.30 Open Meeting Laws Governing the State Legislature

[1] General Requirements

Under legislation passed in 1989, various provisions and cases concerning open meetings and executive sessions of the Assembly and Senate, and their committees, subcommittees, and conference committees, were consolidated under Gov. Code § 9027 et seq. Before January 1, 1990, the applicable laws concerning open meetings of the State Legislature were found in the Grunsky-Burton Open Meeting Act [see former Gov. Code §§ 9027-9031], and the Legislative Reform Act of 1983 [see former Gov. Code §§ 9926-9929.5; see also People's Advocate, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 316, 226 Cal. Rptr. 640] .

[2] Place and Time of Meeting

The California Legislature is required to convene in regular sessions in Sacramento at 12p.m. on the first Monday in December of each even-numbered year [Gov. Code § 9020]. At that time, each legislative house is required to organize itself [Gov. Code § 9020]. Unless otherwise excepted [see [3], below], all meetings of the Assembly and Senate, and their committees, must be open and public [Gov. Code § 9027]. Any meeting that is required to be conducted openly must be held after full and timely notice to the public [Gov. Code § 9028].

[3] Closed Sessions

The Assembly and Senate, and their committees, may hold a closed session solely to consider or hold hearings on any of the following matters [Gov. Code § 9029(a)]:

- The appointment, employment, evaluation of performance, or dismissal of a public officer or employee [Gov. Code § 9029(a)(1)];

- Complaints or charges brought against a member of the Legislature or other public officer or employee [Gov. Code § 9029(a)(1)];

- Establishment of the classification or compensation of an employee of the Legislature [Gov. Code § 9029(a)(1)];

- Matters affecting the safety and security of members of the Legislature or its employees or the safety and security of any buildings and grounds used by the Legislature [Gov. Code § 9029(a)(2)]; or

- Conferences with, or receipt of advice from, legal counsel regarding pending or reasonably anticipated litigation [see Gov. Code § 9029.5(d) (definition)] when discussion in open session would not protect the interests of the house or committee regarding the litigation [Gov. Code § 9029(a)(3); see Gov. Code § 9029.5 (circumstances allowing closed session concerning litigation)].

Additionally, a caucus of the members of the Assembly or Senate, or both, which is composed of members of the same political party, may meet in closed session [Gov. Code § 9029(b)].

[4] Civil Remedies

Any interested person may seek mandamus [Code Civ. Proc. § 1084; see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition], injunction [Civ. Code § 3420 et seq.; Code Civ. Proc. § 525 et seq.; see Ch. 303, Injunctions], or declaratory relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 et seq.; see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief] in order to stop or prevent violations or threatened violations of the open meeting requirements by members of the Legislature, or to determine the applicability of the open meeting requirements to actions or threatened future action of the Legislature or any of its committees [Gov. Code § 9031]. For a discussion of judicial review, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Open Meeting Laws Governing the State Legislature and School Boards

41-470B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 470B.31

§ 470B.31 Open Meeting Laws Governing School Boards

[1] Governing Law

Both the Ralph M. Brown Act (Brown Act) [Gov. Code § 54950 et seq.] and provisions of the Education Code require the meetings of the governing board of any school district to be open to the public [Educ. Code § 35145; see § 470B.10 et seq. for a discussion of the Brown Act]. Educ. Code § 35145 requires all meetings of the governing board of any school district to be open to the public and conducted in accordance with the Brown Act [Educ. Code § 35145; see Gov. Code § 54950 et seq. (Brown Act); see also § 470B.10 et seq.]. The meetings of school site councils and schoolsite advisory committees [see Educ. Code § 35147(b)] are not generally subject to the provisions of the open meetings laws [Educ. Code § 35147(a)], but these meetings must be open to the public with required notices of the meetings and posted agendas [Educ. Code § 35147(c)].

[2] Exemptions Allowing Closed Sessions

The Education Code requires the governing board of a school district to hold a closed session when (1) it is considering suspension of or disciplinary action (other than expulsion) against a student, and (2) a public hearing would lead to the disclosure of pupil records required to be kept confidential pursuant to Educ. Code § 49073 et seq. [Educ. Code § 35146 (also providing that the requirement applies notwithstanding the provisions of the Brown Act, Gov. Code § 54950 et seq.; see also discussion in § 470B.13[8])]. A session may not be closed if the student's parent has requested an open meeting [Educ. Code § 35146; see [5], below].

[3] Regular Meeting Procedures

[a] Agenda Requirements

School boards must post an agenda at least 72 hours before a regular meeting. The agenda must contain a brief general description of each item of business to be discussed at the meeting and state the time and location of the regular meeting. It must be posted in a location that is freely accessible to members of the public [Educ. Code § 35145(b); Gov. Code § 54954.2; see § 470B.12[2]].

[b] Public Participation

It is the intent of the Legislature that members of the public be able to place matters directly related to school district business on school board agendas [Educ. Code § 35145.5]. Every agenda for regular meetings of school boards must provide opportunities for members of the public to directly address the school board on any item of interest to the public, before or during the school board's consideration of the item, that is within the subject matter jurisdiction of the board [Educ. Code § 35145.5]. Governing boards must adopt reasonable regulations to ensure that this intent is carried out. These regulations may specify reasonable procedures to ensure the proper functioning of governing board meetings [Educ. Code § 35145.5]. The Legislature's intent, however, does not preclude the taking of testimony at regularly scheduled meetings on matters not on the agenda that any member of the public may wish to bring before the board, if no action is taken by the board on those matters at the same meeting at which the testimony is taken [Educ. Code § 35145.5].

[c] Minutes

Minutes must be taken at all meetings to record all actions taken by the governing board. The minutes are public records and must be made available to the public [Educ. Code § 35145(a); see Gov. Code § 6250 (Public Records Act); see also Ch. 470C, Public Records Act].

[4] Special Meeting Procedures

The presiding officer of the governing board of a school district or a majority of the board's members may call a special meeting at any time by delivering personally or by mail a written notice to each member of the board, and by delivering a copy to each local newspaper of general circulation, radio, or television station that has requested notice in writing [Educ. Code § 35144]. The notice must specify the time and place of the special meeting and the business to be transacted. No other business may be considered other than that specified in the notice [Educ. Code § 35144]. Written notice may be dispensed with as to any member who, at or prior to the time the meeting convenes, files a written waiver of notice (which may be a telegram) with the clerk or secretary of the board. Written notice may also be dispensed with as to any member who is actually present at the meeting when it convenes [Educ. Code § 35144]. The call and notice must also be posted at least 24 hours before the special meeting in a location that is freely accessible to members of the public and district employees [Educ. Code § 35144].

[5] Closed Session Procedures

As mentioned in [2], above, the authority of Educ. Code § 35146 to permit a closed session is subject to question. This section requires that before calling a closed session the governing board of the district must notify the pupil and his or her parent or guardian if the pupil is a minor by registered or certified mail or personal service of its intent to call and hold a closed session. Unless the pupil or his or her parent or guardian makes a written request within 48 hours after receipt of notice that the hearing be held as a public meeting, the hearing will be conducted by the governing board in closed session [Educ. Code § 35146]. If a written request for an open meeting is served on the clerk or secretary of the governing board, the meeting will be public; however, any discussion that might conflict with any other pupil's right to privacy will take place in closed session. Whether the matter is considered at a closed session or a public meeting, the final action of the governing board must be taken at a public meeting, and the result of that action will be a public record of the school district [Educ. Code § 35146].

[6] Civil Enforcement

Any interested person may commence an action in mandamus [Code Civ. Proc. § 1084 et seq.; see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition], or injunction [Civ. Code § 3420 et seq.; Code Civ. Proc. § 525 et seq.; see Ch. 303, Injunctions] for the purpose of obtaining a judicial determination that any action taken by the governing board in violation of the Education Code provisions is void [Educ. Code § 35145(b); see Gov. Code § 54960.1; see also § 470B.15[2]]. For a discussion of judicial review in general, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

§ 470B.42 Decisions

[1] General

Advisory committee with less than quorum of members of governing board was not "legislative body" under former Gov. Code § 54952.3, repealed effective April 1, 1994, and was therefore excluded from open meeting requirements of Brown Act. Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Orange County Employees Retirement System (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 821, 824, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148, 863 P.2d 218

Adjournment of local agency meeting to another time or place did not change character of meeting. Redondo Beach v. Barkley (1907) 151 Cal. 176, 180, 90 P. 452

Public officer who is ex officio member of board, commission, etc., exercising legislative or quasi-judicial functions is not permitted to act through deputy. Webster v. Board of Education (1903) 140 Cal. 331, 332, 73 P. 1070

Action taken without meeting is voidable if statute specifically requires meeting. People v. Dunn (1891) 89 Cal. 228, 230, 26 P. 761

Deliberative gatherings include meetings not only for collective decisionmaking, but also for the collective acquisition and exchange of facts preliminary to the ultimate decision. Frazer v. Dixon Unified School Dist. (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 781, 794, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641

Fact that members of advisory task force are also members of Board of Supervisors does not make task force subject to open meeting provisions of Brown Act unless Board members participate in task force in "official capacity." Determination of whether public official appointed to serve on advisory task force is acting in "official capacity" includes consideration of whether local law or task force bylaws required official to serve on task force, and whether official was appointed to represent interest of its appointing entity. Farron v. City and County of San Francisco (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1071, 1075-1076, 265 Cal. Rptr. 317

Nonprofit public benefit corporation operating hospital owned by local hospital district is not required to comply with

open meeting requirements of Ralph M. Brown Act. Yoffie v. Marin Hospital Dist. (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 743, 755-756, 238 Cal. Rptr. 502

Meeting is assemblage of several persons rather than single person acting alone. Wilson v. San Francisco Mun. Ry. (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 870, 879-880, 105 Cal. Rptr. 855

Meeting is both informal session for discussion and formal assembly for purpose of taking action. Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 50-51, 69 Cal. Rptr. 480

[2] Agenda

Newspaper article about upcoming meeting is not substitute means of complying with agenda-posting requirement. Santa Barbara Sch. Dist. v. Superior Court (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 315, 337, 118 Cal. Rptr. 637, 530 P.2d 605

Consideration of any matter not shown in substance on posted agenda requires amendment of agenda and postponement of meeting, where law requires publicizing of agenda. Santa Barbara Sch. Dist. v. Superior Court (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 315, 336, 118 Cal. Rptr. 637, 530 P.2d 605

[3] Executive Sessions

Executive session is permitted under Gov. Code § 54957 to evaluate employees performance but not to discuss salary. San Diego Union v. City Council (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 947, 955-956, 196 Cal. Rptr. 45

Executive session with county counsel did not violate Ralph M. Brown Act when purpose was to discuss possible litigation, and thus attorney-client privilege was applicable. Sutter Sensible Planning, Inc. v. Board of Supervisors (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 813, 824, 176 Cal. Rptr. 342

Gov. Code § 54950, requiring all meetings of legislative body of local agency to be open and public, provides basis for injunction restraining board of education and superintendent from meeting in closed sessions with prospective contractors and real estate specialists to discuss their qualifications to perform services. Prospective employees are independent contractors not subject to Gov. Code § 54957, which excepts evaluation of public employees from open meeting requirements. Rowen v. Santa Clara Unified School Dist. (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 231, 234-236, 175 Cal. Rptr. 292

[4] Labor Matters

Provisions of city charter giving civil service commission authority to reclassify and reallocate employment positions in city government does not conflict with meet and confer requirements of Gov. Code § 3500 et seq. Building Material & Construction Teamsters' Union v. Farrell (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 651, 664-666, 224 Cal. Rptr. 688, 715 P.2d 648

Meet-and-confer requirement of Meyers-Milias-Brown Act (Gov. Code §§ 3500-3510) is not inconsistent with county charter provision requiring civil service commission to hold public hearings before amending its rules and does not offend home-rule provisions of Cal. Const., art. XI, § 3(a). Los Angeles County Civil Service Comm'n v. Superior Court (1978) 23 Cal. 3d 55, 59, 151 Cal. Rptr. 547, 588 P.2d 249

Requiring city through chief of police to meet in accordance with Gov. Code § 3500 et seq. prior to change of department rules or policies is valid provision in collective bargaining agreement. Long Beach Police Officer Ass'n v. City of Long Beach (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 996, 1000, 203 Cal. Rptr. 494

County does have duty to meet and confer pursuant to Gov. Code § 3505 prior to changing working hours of county employees despite county's power to make change in hours because of provision of collective bargaining agreement. Union did not waive right to meet and confer under either clear and unmistakable relinquishment standard or totality of circumstances standard. Independent Union of Pub. Service Employees v. County of Sacramento (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 482, 487-488, 195 Cal. Rptr. 206

[5] Minutes

Keeping minutes is not constitutionally required except to extent record is required when action taken that affects individual's fundamental rights. Kwock Jan Fat v. White (1919) 253 U.S. 454, 464, 40 S. Ct. 566, 64 L. Ed. 1010

Failure to take minutes is not ground for invalidating action in absence of statutory requirement for minutes. Gordon v. San Diego (1895) 108 Cal. 264, 269, 41 P. 301

Events at meeting are provable by parol evidence in absence of minutes unless statute makes minutes only evidence of those events. Gordon v. San Diego (1895) 108 Cal. 264, 269, 41 P. 301 ; Carruth v. Madera (1955) 233 Cal. App.2d 688, 692-693, 43 Cal. Rptr. 855 ; McFayden v. Calistoga (1925) 74 Cal. App. 378, 386, 240 P. 523

Requirement to take minutes is generally directory rather than mandatory. Carruth v. Madera (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 688, 693, 43 Cal. Rptr. 855

Minutes are admissible to prove truth of matters set out in them, subject to rebuttal by other evidence. Le Strange v. City of Berkeley (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 313, 327, 26 Cal. Rptr. 550

Agency is entitled to amend minutes for correction. Golden State Milk Products Co. v. Southern Sierras Power Co. (1931) 117 Cal. App. 121, 124, 3 P.2d 352

[6] Notice Requirements

Test for sufficiency of notice is whether or not persons vitally interested in proposed action received fair warning. Santa Barbara Sch. Dist. v. Superior Court (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 315, 334-336, 118 Cal. Rptr. 637, 530 P.2d 605

Consequences of failure to comply with notice requirements are nothing more than liability for criminal sanctions. Greer v. Board of Education (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 98, 122, 121 Cal. Rptr. 542 ; Stribling v. Mailliard (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 470, 474-475, 85 Cal. Rptr. 924 ; *Old Town Development Corp. v. Urban Renewal Agency (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 313, 329, 57 Cal. Agency is not required to give more detailed notice than law requires. Phillips v. Seely (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 104, 120, 117 Cal. Rptr. 863

Action taken at meeting held without adequate notice is subject to injunction preventing agency from giving effect to decision. Carlson v. Unified Sch. Dist. (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 196, 199-200, 95 Cal. Rptr. 650

Failure to comply with notice requirements imposed by law renders meeting void unless each absent member properly waived right to receive notice. Baumgardner v. City of Hawthorne (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 512, 514-515, 231 P.2d 864 ; McFayden v. Calistoga (1925) 74 Cal. App. 378, 383, 240 P. 523 ; Reclamation Dist. No. 70 v. Sherman (1909) 11 Cal. App. 399, 413, 105 P. 277 (dictum suggesting peculiar compelling facts might excuse inadequate notice)

Action taken at meeting not attended by some members because of inadequate notice was not subject to validation by ratification at later meeting. Orange v. Clement (1919) 41 Cal. App. 497, 499, 183 P. 189

[7] Procedures

Agency is empowered to adopt any suitable mode of proceeding at meeting in absence of controlling statute prescribing mode of proceeding. McGregor v. Board of Trustees (1911) 159 Cal. 441, 446, 114 P. 566

Brown Act was not violated by procedure of local housing authority when commissioners met in regular meeting, recessed for conference with counsel, and then reconvened to act on matter not listed on agenda, even though interested members of public audience left at recess, because usual practice had been to adjourn after conference with counsel. Torres v. Board of Commissioners (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 545, 551, 152 Cal. Rptr. 506

Necessity that prescribed formalities for meeting be complied with to take effective action. Santa Monica Unified Sch. Dist. v. Persh (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 945, 952, 85 Cal. Rptr. 463 ; Osborne v. Huntington Beach Union High School Dist. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 510, 514, 85 Cal. Rptr. 793

Substantial, not strict, compliance with prescribed formalities is sufficient. Carruth v. Madera (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 688, 693, 43 Cal. Rptr. 855 ; Cozzolino v. Fontana (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 608, 611-612, 289 P.2d 248 ; Pasadena v. Paine (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 93, 96, 271 P.2d 577

[8] Public Attendance

Personnel Board is entitled to deliberate on state civil service matter in executive session but as required to announce decision publicly. California State Employees Ass'n v. State Personnel Bd. (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1012-1013, 108 Cal. Rptr. 57

Single agency official acting alone does not conduct meeting and open meeting laws are inapplicable. Wilson v. San Francisco Mun. Ry. (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 870, 877-880, 105 Cal. Rptr. 855

Agency member participating in illegal secret meeting is subject to criminal sanction only if action actually taken at meeting, not if meeting devoted solely to deliberation. Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 48, 69 Cal. Rptr. 480

Agency is required to permit public audience to record meeting if recording done in nondisruptive manner. Nevens v. Chino (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 775, 778, 44 Cal. Rptr. 50

[9] Quorum

[a] Number Required for Quorum

Common-law rule requires simple majority for quorum. FTC v. Flotill Products (1967) 389 U.S. 179, 183, 88 S. Ct. 401, 19 L. Ed. 2d 398

Quorum is least number legally competent to transact business together. Nesbitt v. Bolz (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 677, 679-680, 91 P.2d 879 ; People v. Dale (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 370, 375, 179 P.2d 870

The complaint asks for a judgment declaring that the particular meeting is subject to the Brown Act and, therefore, must be held open to the public. Any interested person may sue [Gov. Code §§ 11130 (state agency), 54960 (local agency)]. It has not been determined who is an interested person, but in view of the broad purpose of open-meeting laws [see Gov. Code §§ 11120, 54950], probably any citizen may sue respecting an agency meeting that he has a reasonable good-faith interest in attending. It has been suggested that an organization might not have standing to sue [see Sacramento Newspaper Guild v. Sacramento County Bd. of Supervisors (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 41, 46, 69 Cal. Rptr. 480] .

Injunctive relief or mandamus may also be obtained when appropriate [Gov. Code §§ 11130, 54960; see Civ. Code § 3420 et seq., Code Civ. Proc. § 525 et seq. (injunctive relief); Code Civ. Proc. § 1084 et seq. (mandamus)]. For forms of complaints seeking injunctions to prevent a violation of the open meeting laws or to nullify any action taken in violation those laws, see §§ 470B.61, 470B.62, respectively. For a detailed discussion of injunctions, see Ch. 303, Injunctions . Regarding a proceeding for a writ of mandate, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Defendants

The defendants will be the members of the agency as such. An appropriate way to identify them in the caption is to list their names with a suitable descriptive phrase indicating that they are sued in their official, not their personal, capacities

(e.g., "... as members of the Bonanza County Planning Commission"). This is an atypical case, the usual case being a lawsuit against the agency rather than the members of it; in this case, the illegal action is threatened, or has been taken, not by the agency but by the individual members, albeit in their official capacities as members.

[4] Allegations

Because the action seeks a declaratory judgment, the allegations should be those included in an ordinary complaint for declaratory relief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]. For discussion, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief . The essential allegation is that an actual controversy exists between the parties as to their legal rights and duties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

[5] Verification

A public agency, or any member of that agency acting in his or her official capacity, need not verify the answer even though the complaint is verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 446(a)]. However, verification of a complaint against a public agency does preclude a general denial in superior court and in some municipal court actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For verification form, see § 470B.61.

[6] Costs and Attorneys Fees

If the plaintiff is successful, he or she might recover his or her costs, which must be paid by the agency and may not be awarded against the individual members [see Gov. Code §§ 11130.5, 54960.5]. Attorney's fees probably are not recoverable in an action for declaratory relief only but might be recoverable if injunctive relief is also obtained [see § 470B.61]. If the plaintiff does not prevail, costs and attorney's fees might be awarded against him or her [see Gov. Code §§ 11130.5, 54960.5].

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Plaintiff's standing to sue. See § 470B.60, Paragraph 1].

2. [Capacities of defendants. See § 470B.60, Paragraph 2].

3. _____ [Describe violation or threatened violation of open meeting law to be enjoined, e.g., On August 9, 1997, defendants met as the _____ County Planning Commission to consider a redevelopment plan for a parcel known as Hillandale in the unincorporated territory of _____County adjoining the City of _____. Plaintiff was present when the meeting convened and sought to be admitted to the audience as an interested member of the public. Defendants refused to admit plaintiff or any other of the several (about 30) interested persons who were then and there present seeking admission to the meeting place. Plaintiff protested that defendants' refusal to admit an audience of interested persons was a violation of the provisions of Government Code Sections 54950 et seq., the Ralph M. Brown Act; but defendants persisted in refusing to admit plaintiff or anyone else. Defendants closed and locked the doors of the meeting place and conducted a meeting out of the presence of the public. Following the meeting, defendants posted a notice at the door of the meeting place announcing that the meeting had been ordered continued to September 6, 1997].

4. _____ [Describe threatened violation if not described in Paragraph 3, e.g., Plaintiff has informed defendants that plaintiff wishes to attend the continued meeting on September 6, 1997, as an interested member of the public; and plaintiff has demanded assurance from defendants that the continued meeting will be open in compliance with the provisions of the Ralph M. 5. Unless defendants are enjoined as plaintiff prays hereinafter, they will meet in a closed session on September 6, 1997, or on some other date, in violation of their obligations and the rights of plaintiff and other members of the public under the Ralph M. Brown Act.

6. _____ [Allege facts supporting necessity, if any, for provisional injunctive relief, e.g., Plaintiff has pursued his/her judicial remedy with all deliberate speed and desires a judgment at the earliest possible date. Nevertheless, it appears that unless defendants are temporarily restrained and provisionally enjoined as plaintiff prays hereinafter, they will convene and conclude a closed meeting before the court can render judgment].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. _____ [If seeking provisional preventive relief: For a temporary restraining order and a preliminary injunction restraining and enjoining defendants from holding any meeting, other than one open to the public, for considering or acting on the matter described in Paragraph 3, pending judgment in this action];

2. For a final injunction enjoining defendants from holding any meeting, other than one open to the public, for considering or acting on the matter described in Paragraph 3;

3. For reasonable attorney's fees pursuant to _____ [Government Code Section 11130.5 or Government Code Section 54960.5 depending on whether agency is state or local];

VERIFICATION

I, _____[name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint for use by an interested person seeking an injunction to prevent a violation of an open meeting law [see Gov. Code §§ 11130 (state agency), 54960 (local agency)]. Actions for injunctive relief are governed by Civ. Code § 3420 et seq. and Code Civ. Proc. § 525 et seq. If injunctive relief would be inadequate, an interested person may enforce his or her rights under the open meeting laws by obtaining a writ of mandate [Gov. Code §§ 11130, 54960]. The procedures for obtaining a writ of mandate are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1084 et seq.

[3] Allegations

The allegations should be those included in an ordinary complaint for injunctive relief. For detailed discussion, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[4] Costs and Attorneys Fees

The successful plaintiff may recover his or her costs, which must be paid by the agency and may not be awarded against the individual members [see Gov. Code §§ 11130.5, 54960.5]. When it is found that a state or local agency has violated the provisions of an applicable open meeting law, the plaintiff may be awarded reasonable attorney's fees [Gov. Code §§ 11130.5, 54960.5]. Threatening to hold a closed meeting in violation of an open meeting law is not itself a violation; only the actual holding of a closed meeting when the law requires an open meeting, is a violation. If either a state body or the legislative body of a local agency holds a closed meeting when an open meeting is required, an interested person may seek nullification of any action taken during that meeting [see Gov. Code §§ 11123, 11130.3 (state body), and 54953, 54960.1 (legislative body of local agency); see § 470B.62].

If the plaintiff does not prevail, costs and attorney's fees may be awarded against him or her if the defendant prevails in a final determination of the action and the court finds the action was clearly frivolous and totally lacking in merit [see Gov. Code §§ 11130.5, 54960.5].

The criteria for awarding attorney's fees provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 (enforcement of important right affecting public interest) does not apply to the determination of the propriety of an award of attorney's fees under Gov. Code § 54960.5. Under Gov. Code § 54960.5, attorney's fees for plaintiff are presumptively appropriate unless defendant can show special circumstances rendering such an award unjust. Common Cause v. Stirling (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 658, 662-663, 174 Cal. Rptr. 200

[5] Verification

A complaint seeking preliminary injunctive relief must be either verified or accompanied by affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in support of the allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. Although a public agency, or any member of that agency acting in his or her official capacity, need not verify the answer even though the complaint is verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 446(a)], verification of the complaint does preclude a general denial in superior court and in some municipal court actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

[6] Undertaking for Provisional Relief

A plaintiff who seeks provisional injunctive relief must be prepared to furnish an undertaking to secure the defendant against any potential injury in the event the court finally decides that the plaintiff was not entitled to provisional relief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 529].

Attorney for Plaintiff

[2] Use of Form

[a] State Body

The form in [1], above, is a complaint for use by an interested person seeking to nullify an action taken by a state body in violation of the open and public requirements [see Gov. Code § 11123] or the public notice requirements [see Gov. Code § 11125] of the open meeting law, and to restrain the state body from taking further action to enforce the unlawful action. The same result may be achieved by obtaining a writ of mandate, which is also available [Gov. Code § 11130.3; see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition].

[b] Legislative Body of Local Agency

This form may also be used by an interested person seeking to nullify an action taken by the legislative body of a local agency in violation of the open and public requirements [see Gov. Code § 54953], the regular meeting agenda requirements [see Gov. Code § 54954.2], the requirements for describing closed-session items on the agenda [see Gov. Code § 54954.5], the new or increased tax or assessment public hearing notice requirements [see Gov. Code § 54954.6], the special meeting notice requirements of the Ralph M. Brown Act [see Gov. Code § 54956], and to restrain the legislative body from taking further action to enforce the unlawful action [Gov. Code § 54960.1(a)]. The same result may be achieved by obtaining a writ of mandate, which is also available [Gov. Code § 54960.1(a); see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition].

[3] Allegations

Since the action seeks a declaratory judgment and injunctive relief, the allegations should be those included in an ordinary complaint for declaratory and injunctive relief. Actions for declaratory relief are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 et seq. Actions for injunctive relief are governed by Civ. Code § 3420 et seq. and Code Civ. Proc. § 525 et seq. For detailed discussion, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief , and Ch. 303, Injunctions . When the complaint challenges action taken by the legislative body of a local agency, plaintiff must allege that action was taken within the meaning of Gov. Code § 54960.1, as illustrated in Paragraph 3 [Centinela Hospital Assn. v. City of Inglewood (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1586 (petition for writ of mandate); see Gov. Code § 54952.6 ("action taken" defined for purposes of Gov. Code § 54960.1)]. Additionally, when the complaint challenges action taken by the local legislative body, plaintiff should allege that, within 30 days from the date the challenged action was taken, plaintiff made a written demand on the legislative body of the local agency.

[4] Costs and Attorneys Fees

When the action of a state body is challenged, the court may award costs and attorney's fees to the plaintiff if the court finds that the state body violated the open and public requirements [see Gov. Code § 11123] or the public notice requirements [see Gov. Code § 11125] of the open meeting laws [Gov. Code § 11130.5]. When the action of the legislative body of a local agency is challenged, the court may award costs and attorney's fees to the plaintiff if the court finds that the legislative body violated the open and public requirements [see Gov. Code § 54953], the regular meeting agenda requirements [see Gov. Code § 54954.2], or the special meeting public notice requirements [see Gov. Code § 54956] of the Ralph M. Brown Act [Gov. Code § 54960.5]. However, the costs and fees must be awarded against the state body, or the legislative body of the local agency, and may not be awarded against its individual members [Gov. Code §§ 11130.5, 54960.5]. If the plaintiff does not prevail, costs and attorney's fees may be awarded against him or her if the defendant prevails in a final determination of the action and the court finds the action was clearly frivolous and totally lacking in merit [Gov. Code §§ 11130.5, 54960.5].

[5] Verification

A complaint seeking preliminary injunctive relief must be either verified or accompanied by affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in support of the allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. Although a public agency, or any member of that agency acting in his or her official capacity, need not verify the answer even though the complaint is verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 446(a)], verification of the complaint does preclude a general denial in superior court and in some municipal court actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For a verification form, see § 470B.61. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; San Juan G. Co. v. San Juan R. etc. Assn. (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 159, 174, 93 P.2d 582] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch 303, Injunctions .

[6] Undertaking for Provisional Relief

A plaintiff who seeks provisional injunctive relief must be prepared to furnish an undertaking to secure the defendant against any potential injury in the event the court finally decides that the plaintiff was not entitled to provisional relief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 529].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41-470C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 470C.10

§ 470C.10 Nature and Purpose of the Public Records Act

[1] Purpose of the Act

This chapter discusses the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code §§ 6250-6276.48] (the Act), the statutory scheme that provides for the disclosure of public records. In adopting the Act in 1968, the California Legislature declared that every person in California has a fundamental and necessary right to access to information concerning the conduct of the people's business. At the same time, the Legislature recognized the right of individuals to privacy [Gov. Code § 6250; Black Panther Party v. Kehoe (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 645, 652, 117 Cal. Rptr. 106 ; Rosenthal v. Hansen (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 754, 760, 110 Cal. Rptr. 257] . The Act's objective is to increase freedom of information, and it is designed to give public access to information in possession of public agencies [Los Angeles Police Dept. v. Superior Court (1977) 65 Cal. App. 3d 661, 668, 135 Cal. Rptr. 575] . The disclosure of public records under the Act requires the balancing of two fundamental competing interests: 1) the right of privacy recognized in the California Constitution [Cal. Const. Art. I, § 1]; and 2) public access to governmental information to maintain accountability and to prevent secrecy in government [Versaci v. Superior Ct. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 805, 812-813, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92 , quoting Gilbert v. City of San Jose (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 606, 610, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 692] .

[2] History of Disclosure

Under the common law, every interested person was entitled to inspect public records [Mushet v. Department of Pub. Service (1917) 35 Cal. App. 630, 636, 170 P. 653] . In addition, for many years California statutes have reflected a strong public policy in favor of disclosure of public records [see former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1892-1894, enacted in 1872 and repealed in 1968]. Although constitutional rights to complete disclosure under the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution have been asserted in order to avoid certain exemptions from public disclosure, judicial decisions have not yet assigned a constitutional ground for this right of access [EPA v. Mink (1973) 410 U.S. 73, 94, 93 S. Ct. 827, 35 L. Ed. 2d 119 (construing federal Freedom of Information Act); Black Panther Party v. Kehoe (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 645, 654, 117 Cal. Rptr. 106 (construing Public Records Act)].

[3] Disclosure Policy

The general policy of the Act favors disclosure. An agency must find a specific exemption from the general policy [

Gov. Code §§ 6254, 6255; see also § 470C.13, below] to avoid disclosure [Cook v. Craig (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 773, 781, 127 Cal. Rptr. 712 ; State of California ex rel. Division of Industrial Safety v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 778, 783, 117 Cal. Rptr. 726]. The burden of establishing an exemption is on the public agency [Gov. Code § 6255; Citizens for a Better Environment v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 704, 712, 217 Cal. Rptr. 504 ; Vallejos v. California Highway Patrol (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 781, 787, 152 Cal. Rptr. 846] . For discussion of the exemptions from disclosure, see § 470C.13, below].

[4] Agencies Subject to the Act

Because the general policy of the Act favors disclosure of documents in government possession [Cook v. Craig (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 773, 781, 127 Cal. Rptr. 712] , the list of public agencies covered by the Act is almost completely inclusive at both the state and local levels. "State agencies" is defined as every state office, officer, department, division, bureau, board, and commission or other state body or agency, except those covered by Article IV (the state Legislature). [However, Cal. Const. art. IV, § 20, regarding fish and game districts, is not included within this exception Gov. Code § 6252(a)], and Article VI (the judicial department) of the California Constitution [Gov. Code § 6252(a); Cal. Const. arts. IV, VI]. "Local agencies" is defined as a county; city, whether general law or chartered; city and county; school district; municipal corporation; district; political subdivision; any board, commission, or agency thereof; other local public agency; or nonprofit entities that are legislative bodies of a local agency under Gov. Code § 54952(c), (d) [Gov. Code § 6252(a)]. "Public agency" means any state or local agency [Gov. Code § 6252(d)]. However, state university-affiliated, non profit auxiliary corporations established by law [Educ. Code § 89901] are not "state agencies" for purposes of the California Public Records Act because they are nongovernmental organizations which are not included within the statutory definition [Gov. Code § 6252(a); California State University v. Superior Court (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 810, 829-830, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 870] .

[5] Relationship to Other Disclosure Statutes

The Act was modeled after the Federal Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) [5 U.S.C. § 552] which was adopted in 1966 [Citizens for a Better Environment v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 704, 712, 217 Cal. Rptr. 504 ; Cook v. Craig (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 773, 781, 127 Cal. Rptr. 712] . Although differences exist between the Act and the FOIA [Black Panther Party v. Kehoe (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 645, 652, 117 Cal. Rptr. 106] ; Gov. Code § 6252(e); California State University v. Superior Court (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 810, 829-830, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 870] , references to the FOIA and to federal cases decided under the FOIA can be used to interpret the Public Records Act [Times Mirror Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 1325, 1347, 283 Cal. Rptr. 893, 813 P.2d 240 ; American Civil Liberties Union Foundation v. Deukmejian (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 440, 447, 186 Cal. Rptr. 235, 651 P.2d 822 ; Black Panther Party v. Kehoe (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 645, 653, 117 Cal. Rptr. 106] . This ability of the courts to draw on the Act's federal counterpart for judicial construction and legislative history becomes a useful tool when California cases construing the Act are lacking. Both acts reflect a general policy of disclosure that can be accomplished by narrow construction of the statutory exemptions [South Coast Newspapers, Inc. v. City of Oceanside (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 261, 267-268, 206 Cal. Rptr. 527] . The two statutes should receive a parallel construction [American Civil Liberties Union Foundation v. Deukmejian (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 440, 451, 186 Cal. Rptr. 235, 651 P.2d 822] .

For example, in construing the exemption for preliminary drafts, notes, or interagency or intraagency memoranda [Gov. Code § 6254(a); see § 470C.13[4], below], the California courts have reviewed the federal FOIA and its construction for guidance [Citizens for a Better Environment v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 704, 711, 217 Cal. Rptr. 504] . Similarly, the California Supreme Court has used the federal statute for guidance in construing the criminal investigation records exemption [American Civil Liberties Union Foundation v. Deukmejian (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 440, 447-449, 186 Cal. Rptr. 235, 651 P.2d 822 ; Gov. Code § 6254(f)], and in recognizing a deliberative process interest similar to the executive privilege exemption under the federal FOIA. This deliberative process interest is recognized under the "public interest" residual exemption that includes a balancing of interests test [Times Mirror Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 1325, 1339-1342, 283 Cal. Rptr. 893, 813 P.2d 240 ; § 470C.13[50], below, for discussion of this exemption]. However, when FOIA definitions, and definitions of "state agency" in the California Public Records Act are not the same, the California courts will follow the California Act, and not follow FOIA [Gov. Code § 6252(e); California State University v. Superior Court (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 810, 829-830, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 870] . For a comparison of the exemptions under the Public Records Act and the Freedom of Information Act, see § 470C.16, below. For a general discussion of the FOIA, see Moore's Federal Practice, Chapter 26, General Provisions Governing Discovery, P 26.52[6][d], 26.70[3][a] (Matthew Bender), and Bender's Forms of Discovery, Ch. 14, Freedom of Information Law and Discovery (Matthew Bender).

[b] Information Practices Act

The Information Practices Act of 1977 [Civ. Code §§ 1798-1798.78; Kruger v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 541, 551, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 584 (DMV collection of information in electronic printout about driver's accident record does not violate driver's rights under Information Practices Act and complies with DMV's statutory duty under Veh. Code § 1806)] is a law designed to protect personal and confidential information held by various state agencies. The Court of Appeal held that the Commission on Teacher Credentialing (COTC) was not required, in investigative stage of teacher misconduct action, to disclose address and other personal information about complaining witnesses. Disclosing the name of the complaining witness was sufficient, and redacting of address and other personal information related to witness was authorized by Information Practices Act (Civil Code § 1798) [California Teachers Assn. v. California Com. on Teacher Credentialing (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1009-1010, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 369] . The applicable COTC regulation [5 Cal. Code Regs. § 80307] which authorized disclosure of addresses and other information without consent of witness, and without connection to the charges, was overturned [California Teachers Assn. v. California Com. on Teacher Credentialing (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1011-1012, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 369] . Although a discussion of that act is beyond the scope of this chapter, the act is related to the Public Records Act. Under the Information Practices Act, no agency may disclose any personal information in a manner that would link the information disclosed to the individual to whom it pertains, unless the disclosure of the information meets certain criteria [Civ. Code § 1798.24]. One of the exceptions to this prohibition is a disclosure made pursuant to the Public Records Act [Civ. Code § 1798.24(g)]. Thus, disclosure of personal information, if it can be made to fit within the general requirements of the Act, would not be prohibited by the Information Practices Act [64 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 575, 588 (1981) ; Civ. Code §§ 1798.70, 1798.75]. The California Court of Appeal held that taxpayers had properly alleged claims for damages and injunctive relief under the Information Practices Act [Civil Code §§ 1798.3, 1798.32] based on claims that the Franchise Tax Board had improperly used nonpersonal information of taxpayers to determine tax liability without the Board complying with the requirements of the IPA, but the claims for damages were barred under the Government Claims Act [Gov. Code §§ 815, 905.2] for failure to timely file a notice of claim with the Board [Bates v. Franchise Tax Board (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 367, 378-379, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 285] . For additional discussion and forms relating to the Information Practices Act of 1977, see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act .

The Regents of the University of California did not violate the Information Practices Act (IPA) [Civ. Code §§ 1798-1798.78] when they did not retain and return midterm and final exams taken by a student who filed a lawsuit that challenged the failure to maintain and return those exams [Moghadam v. Regents of University of California (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 466, 468-469, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 739]. The IPA was not violated by the Regents because student exams are not "records" within the meaning of the IPA. The IPA, as defined in Civil Code §§ 1798.3, 1798.14 requires public agencies to maintain records that contain personal information about individuals. The university does not maintain student exams in a central location, and student exams do not contain personal information about the students. Therefore, the IPA does not apply to student exams [Moghadam v. Regents of University of California (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 466, 477-479, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 739].

[c] Legislative Open Records Act

Although records of the California Legislature are specifically exempted from the Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6252(a)] in 1975 the California Legislature adopted a law declaring that access to information concerning the conduct of the people's business by the Legislature is a fundamental and necessary right of every citizen in California [Gov. Code § 9070]. That law, known as the Legislative Open Records Act, outlines procedures for access to these records [Gov. Code §§ 9070-9079]. The "Legislature" is defined to include any member of the Legislature; any Legislative Officer; any standing, joint, or select committee or subcommittee of the Senate and Assembly; and any other agency or employee of the Legislature [Gov. Code § 9072(b)]. Legislative records are any writing prepared on or after December 2, 1974 containing information relating to the conduct of the public's business prepared, owned, used, or retained by the Legislature [Gov. Code § 9072(c)]. The Act provides for judicial relief [Gov. Code §§ 9076, 9077], and provides for costs and reasonable attorneys' fees, either to a successful plaintiff or to the public agency in the event the plaintiff's case is determined to be clearly frivolous [Gov. Code § 9079]. For a discussion of related legislation requiring open meetings of the Legislature [Gov. Code §§ 9027-9031], see Ch. 470B, Public Agency Meetings .

The California Court of Appeal held that the California legislature did not violate the Legislative Open Records Act [Gov. Code §§ 9070-9080] in not disclosing records related to the Capital Park Safety and Security Improvements Project because those records were exempt under Gov. Code § 9075(h): Correspondence of and to individual Members of the Legislature and their staff; and (i) Records the disclosure of which is exempted or prohibited pursuant to provisions of federal or state law, including, but not limited to, provisions of the Evidence Code relating to privilege [Zumbrun Law Firm v. California Legislature (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1603, 1620-1621, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 525]. Furthermore, the legislature was not required to provide a privilege log to justify the applicability of particular exemptions to specific documents and it would be sufficient to describe the documents in general and how specific exemptions applied to those documents in general, relying upon the California Supreme court decision in Haynie v. Superior Court (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 1061, 1074-1075, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80, 31 P.3d 760 [Zumbrun Law Firm v. California Legislature (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1603, 1621-1622, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 525].

Chapter 470C PUBLIC RECORDS ACT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41-470C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 470C.11

§ 470C.11 Disclosure of Records Under the Act

[1] Public Records Defined

Under the Act, a "public record" is any writing that contains information relating to the public's business that is prepared, owned, used, or retained by any state or local agency, regardless of physical form or characteristics. Public records in the custody of, or maintained by, the Governor's office means any writing prepared on or after January 6, 1975 [Gov. Code § 6252(e)]. The term "writing" is defined to mean any handwriting, typewriting, printing, photostating, photographing, photocopying, transmitting by electronic mail or facsimile, and every other means of recording upon any tangible thing any form of communication or representation, including letters, words, pictures, sounds, or symbols, or combinations thereof, and any record thereby created, regardless of the manner in which the record has been stored [Gov. Code § 6252(g)].

The California Supreme Court held that information relating to California peace officers that is maintained in an electronic database by the California Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training was a "public record" within the meaning of the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6252(e), (g)]. Disclosure of this information was requested by the Los Angeles Times. The information requested included the peace officer's name and birth date, employing department, appointment dates, termination dates, and reason for termination. The Commission denied the request. The superior court ordered disclosure of the peace officer's name, employing agency, date of new appointment, and termination date [Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 278, 287-289, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 165 P.3d 462] . The California Supreme Court also held that these records were not exempt from disclosure under Penal Code §§ 832.7, 832.8, peace officer personnel records [Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 278, 298-299, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 165 P.3d 462] , and that no other statutory exemption in the California Public Records Act applied to exempt disclosure of these records. However, the California Supreme Court also held that the Commission could seek to justify exclusion from the disclosed records of information about specific officers because disclosure of that information would jeopardize the safety or efficacy of the peace officers. The exclusion would be based on a showing under the personnel and medical records exemption [Gov. Code § 6254(c); Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 278, 284, 303, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 165 P.3d 462] .

The definition of "public records" is intended to cover every conceivable kind of record that is involved in the governmental process and will pertain to any new form of recordkeeping instrument as it is developed [Gov. Code § 6252(e); Coronado Police Officers Assn. v. Carroll (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1006, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553 ; Versaci v. Superior Ct. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 805, 813, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92] . Only purely personal information unrelated to the conduct of the public's business could be considered exempt from this definition, for example, a shopping list phoned from home or a letter to a public officer from a friend that is totally void of reference to governmental activities [San Gabriel Tribune v. Superior Court (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 762, 774, 192 Cal. Rptr. 415 ; 58 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 629, 633 (1975)] . The mere custody of a writing by a public agency in and of itself, however, does not make it a public record. If the record is kept by an officer because it is necessary or convenient to the discharge of his or her official duty, then it is a public record [Braun v. City of Taft (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 332, 340, 201 Cal. Rptr. 654] . "Public records" also includes the identity of donors and license agreements with those donors who gave money for the construction of a state university multipurpose arena and who received a multiyear license for use of a luxury suite in that arena. This information constitutes public records because these donor records and license agreements are "used" and/or "retained" by a state university, and they relate to the operation of a public facility built and operated on land owned by a public university [Gov. Code § 6252(e); California State University v. Superior Court (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 810, 824-825, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 870] .

Public records also includes all employment contracts between a state or local agency and any public official or public employee. These public records are not exempt from disclosure under the specific exemptions [Gov. Code § 6254] and not under the public interest exemption [Gov. Code § 6255]. Therefore, they are disclosable under the Act [Gov. Code § 6254.8].

However, a county public defender's electronic database that contained existing public defender client files, information from publicly available sources, such as newspaper articles, court files, police reports, and also contained impeachment evidence, was not a public record within the meaning of Gov. Code § 6252(e). This is because the primary purpose of the database, used by the public defender's office to represent indigent criminal defendants, is a private function, not a public function [Coronado Police Officers Association v. Carroll (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1006-1008, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553] .

Furthermore, computer software developed by a state or local agency is not itself a public record under the Act. The agency may sell, lease, or license the software for commercial or noncommercial use [Gov. Code § 6254.9(a)]. Computer software is defined to include computer mapping systems, computer programs, and computer graphics systems [Gov. Code § 6254.9(b)]. No implied warranty on the part of the State of California or any local agency for errors, omissions, or other defects in any computer software is created for software provided under this law [Gov. Code § 6254.9(c)]. The public record status of information is not changed merely because it is stored in a computer. Public records stored in a computer shall be disclosed as required by this law [Gov. Code § 6254.9(d)]. Copyright protections are not limited by this law [Gov. Code § 6254.9(e)].

Public records also include all information, analyses, plans, or specifications that disclose the nature, extent, quantity, or degree of air contaminants or other pollution which any article, machine, equipment, or other contrivance will produce, which any air pollution control district or air quality management district, or any other state or local agency or district, requires any applicant to provide before the applicant builds, erects, alters, replaces, operates, sells, rents, or uses the article, machine, equipment, or other contrivance [Gov. Code § 6254.7(a)]. Public records also include: (1) All air or other pollution monitoring data, including data compiled from stationary sources [Gov. Code § 6254.7(b)]; and (2) All records of notices and orders directed to the owner of any building of violations of housing or building codes, ordinances, statutes, or regulations which constitute violations of standards provided in Civil Code § 1941.1, and records of subsequent action with respect to those notices and orders [Gov. Code § 6254.7(c)].

[2] General Disclosure Policy and Exceptions

The legislative policy behind the Act favors disclosure [Berkeley Police Assn. v. City of Berkeley (1977) 76 Cal. App. 3d 931, 941, 143 Cal. Rptr. 255] . Two exceptions exist, however, to the general disclosure policy. An agency may justify the withholding of a record in one of two ways [CBS, Inc. v. Block (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 646, 652, 230 Cal. Rptr. 362, 725 P.2d 470] : (1) Demonstrating that the requested record is exempt under one of the categories of disclosure-exempt material set forth in the Act [Gov. Code § 6254; § 470C.13, below]; or (2) Showing the applicability of the "residual" exemption in the form of a balancing test. The residual exemption applies when the agency can demonstrate that, on the facts of a particular case, the public interest served by not making the record public clearly outweighs the public interest served by disclosure of the record [Gov. Code § 6255; § 470C.13[50], below]. The burden of establishing an exemption is on the public agency [Vallejos v. California Highway Patrol (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 781, 787, 152 Cal. Rptr. 846] . Disclosure is thus required unless the agency asserts one of these exemptions [Gov. Code § 6255; Berkeley Police Assn. v. City of Berkeley (1977) 76 Cal. App. 3d 931, 941-942, 143 Cal. Rptr. 255] . The Act does not limit access to a public record based upon the purpose for which the record is being requested, if the record is otherwise subject to disclosure [Gov. Code § 6257.5].

[3] Disclosure and Public Officials

The Second District, Division 3, California Court of Appeal held that the City of Long Beach, and its city attorney, were authorized to seek disclosure of public records held by another public agency, the Los Angeles Unified School District (LAUSD), relating to a school construction project undertaken by LAUSD [Los Angeles Unified School District v. Superior Court (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 759, 762, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 445] . The Court of Appeal held that the city was a person within the meaning of the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code §§ 6252(c), 6253; Los Angeles Unified School District v. Superior Court (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 759, 770-772, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 445] . The Court of Appeal also held that the city attorney was a person within the meaning of the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6252(c)] and as an elected official had the right to request these records under the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6252.5; Los Angeles Unified School District v. Superior Court (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 759, 774-775, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 445] .

A city official has no greater power to compel disclosure by another official than does a member of the public [Parrott v. Rogers (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 377, 383, 163 Cal. Rptr. 75] . A "member of the public" means any person, except a member, agent, officer, or employee of a federal, state, or local agency acting within the scope of his or her membership, agency, office, or employment [Gov. Code § 6252(b)]. Person is defined to include any natural person, corporation, partnership, limited liability company, firm, or association [Gov. Code § 6252(c)]. The policy in favor of public disclosure requires disclosure of records that illuminate how public officials carry out the duties entrusted to them [Citizens for a Better Environment v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 704, 715, 217 Cal. Rptr. 504] . Notwithstanding the definition of "member of the public" [Gov. Code § 6252(b)], an elected member or officer of any state or local agency is entitled to access to public records of that agency on the same basis as any other person. The law will not limit the ability of elected members or officers to access public records permitted by law in the administration of their duties [Gov. Code § 6252.5]. This does not constitute a change in, but is declaratory of, existing law [Gov. Code § 6252.5]. Notwithstanding Gov. Code Section 6252.5, or any other provisions of law, when the members of a legislative body of a local agency are authorized to access a writing of the body or of the agency as permitted by law in the administration of their duties, the local agency as defined in Gov. Code Section 54951 shall not discriminate between or among any of those members as to which writing or portion thereof is made available or when it is made available [Gov. Code § 6252.7].

A state or local agency may not allow another party to control the disclosure of information that is otherwise subject to disclosure under this act [Gov. Code § 6253.3]. Furthermore, notwithstanding any contract term to the contrary, a contract entered into by a state or local agency subject to this act, including the University of California, that requires a private entity to review, audit, or report on any aspect of that agency shall be public to the extent the contract is otherwise subject to disclosure under this act [Gov. Code § 6253.31].

[4] Display of Enforcement Order on Internet

Every final enforcement order issued by an environmental enforcement agency that is part of the California Environmental Protection Agency as part of enforcing that agency's laws is required to be displayed on the agency's Internet website, if the final enforcement order is a public record that is not exempt from disclosure under the Act [Gov. Code § 6253.8(a)]. This disclosure requirement applies to the California Environmental Protection Agency and to all of the following entities within the agency:

- The State Air Resources Board.
- The California Integrated Waste Management Board.
- The State Water Resources Control Board, and each California regional water quality control board.
- The Department of Pesticide Regulation.
- The Department of Toxic Substances Control [Gov. Code § 6253.8(b)].

An enforcement order is final either: 1) when the time for judicial review has expired on or after January 1, 2001, or when all means of judicial review have been exhausted on or after January 1, 2001; or 2) in addition to the above requirements, with regard to a final enforcement order issued by the State Water Resources Control Board or a California regional water quality control board, only final enforcement orders adopted by that board or a regional board at a public meeting must be displayed [Gov. Code § 6253.8(c)]. Orders must be displayed for at least one year [Gov. Code § 6253.8(d)]. The California Environmental Protection Agency shall oversee the implementation [Gov. Code § 6253.8(e)], which is effective on April 1, 2001 [Gov. Code § 6253.8(f)].

[5] Information in Electronic Format

Any agency that has information that constitutes an identifiable public record not exempt from disclosure that is in an electronic format shall make that information available in an electronic format when requested by any person [Gov. Code § 6253.9(a)]. The agency is required to make the information available in any electronic format in which it holds the information. Agencies are required to provide a copy of an electronic record in the format requested if the requested format is one that has been used by the agency to create copies for its own use or for provision to other agencies. The cost of duplication shall be limited to the direct cost of producing a copy of a record in an electronic format [Gov. Code § 6253.9(a)(1), (2)]. However, the requester is required to bear the cost of producing a copy of the record, including the cost to construct a record, and the cost of programming and computer services necessary to produce a copy of the record when [Gov. Code § 6253.9(b)]: (1) In order to comply with the law, the public agency would be required to produce a copy of an electronic record and the record is one that is produced only at otherwise regularly scheduled intervals; or (2) The request would require data compilation, extraction, or programming to produce the record [Gov. Code § 6253.9(b)(1), (2)]. Public agencies are not required to reconstruct a record in an electronic format if the agency no longer has the record available in that format [Gov. Code § 6253.9(c)]. Also, if the request is for information in other than electronic format and the information also is in electronic format, the agency may inform the requester that the information is available in electronic format [Gov. Code § 6253.9(d)]. Agencies are not: (1) permitted to make information available only in an electronic format [Gov. Code § 6253.9(e)]; (2) required to release an electronic record in the electronic form in which it is held by the agency if its release would jeopardize or compromise the security or integrity of the original record or of any proprietary software in which it is maintained [Gov. Code § 6253.9(f)]; and (3) permitted to allow public access to records held by any agency to which access is otherwise restricted by statute [Gov. Code § 6253.9(g)].

[6] Provision of Public Record to Private Entity

State and local agencies are not permitted to sell, exchange, furnish, or otherwise provide a public record subject to disclosure to a private entity in a manner that prevents a state or local agency from providing the record directly. State or local agencies are not required to use the State Printer to print public records, and are not prohibited from destroying records pursuant to law [Gov. Code § 6270(a)]. These requirements do not apply to contracts entered into prior to January 1, 1996, between the County of Santa Clara and a private entity for the provision of public records subject to disclosure [Gov. Code § 6270(b)].

[7] Redaction of Social Security Numbers

To protect against identity theft, local agencies are required to redact social security numbers from records before disclosing those records to the public [Gov. Code § 6254.29(a)]. Local agencies are not required to disclose social security numbers [Gov. Code § 6254.29(b)].

[8] Truncation of Social Security Numbers

The social security number truncation program requires county recorders to redact the first five digits of a social security number to protect against identity theft [Gov. Code § 27300]. Under these provisions [Gov. Code § 27300-27302] As used in this article, the following terms have the following meanings: "Official record" means the permanent archival record of all instruments, papers, and notices as accepted for recording by a county recorder [Gov. Code § 27300(a)]; "Public record" means a record that is in an electronic format and is an exact copy of an official record except that any social security number contained in the copied record is truncated. The public record shall have the same legal force and effect as the official record [Gov. Code § 27300(a)]; "Truncate" means to redact the first five digits of a social security number [Gov. Code § 27300(c)]; and "Truncated social security number" means a social security number that displays only the last four digits of the number [Gov. Code § 27300(d)].

Under this law the county recorder of each county must establish a social security number truncation program in order to create a public record version of each official record [Gov. Code § 27301]. The program must include both of the following components, which the recorder must implement concurrently:

> (1) For each official record recorded between January 1, 1980, and December 31, 2008, the recorder must create in an electronic format an exact copy of the record except that any social security number contained in the copied record must be truncated. In order to create a public record copy, the recorder must first truncate the social security numbers in all records that already exist in an electronic format and then create an electronic version of all other records and truncate social security numbers contained in those records. Each group of records must be handled in descending chronological order [Gov. Code § 27301(a)];
> (2) For each official record recorded on or after January 1, 2009, the recorder must create a copy of that record in an electronic format and truncate any social security number contained in that record [Gov. Code § 27301(b)];
> (3) Nothing in this article must be construed to restrict, delay, or modify access to any official record, or modify any existing agreements regarding access to any official record, prior to the creation and availability of a public record version of that official record. A county recorder must not charge any new fee or increase any existing fees in order to fund the social security number truncation program pursuant to this article, except as provided in Gov. Code § 27361(d) [Gov. Code § 27301(c)]; and
> (4) Notwithstanding subdivisions (a) and (b), a county recorder must not be required to create a public record version of an official record if the fee authorized in Section 27304 is determined by the recorder to be insufficient to meet the cost of creating the public record version. In that case, the county recorder must determine whether the fee is sufficient to meet the cost of creating a public record version of only a fraction of the official records described in subdivisions (a) and (b). If the fee is sufficient to meet the cost of creating a public record version of a fraction of the official records, the recorder must be required to create a public record version of that fraction only [Gov. Code § 27301(d)].

A county recorder shall be deemed to be in compliance with the requirements of Section 27301 and must not be liable for failure to truncate a social security number if he or she uses due diligence to locate social security numbers in official records and truncate social security numbers in the public record version of those official records. The use of an automated program with a high rate of accuracy must be deemed to be due diligence [Gov. Code § 27302(a)]. In the event that a county recorder fails to truncate a social security number contained in a public record, any person may request that the county recorder truncate the social security number contained in that record. Notwithstanding that a county recorder may be deemed to be in compliance with Section 27301 pursuant to subdivision (a), a county recorder that receives a request that identifies the exact location of an untruncated social security number within a specifically identified public record, must truncate that number within 10 business days of receiving the request. The public record with the truncated social security number must replace the record with the untruncated number [Gov. Code § 27302(b)].

When a public record version of an official record exists, both of the following must apply:

(a) Upon a request for inspection, copying, or any other public disclosure of an official record that is not exempt from disclosure, a county recorder must make available only the public record version of that record;

(b) A county recorder must publicly disclose an official record only in response to a subpoena or order of a court of competent jurisdiction [Gov. Code § 27303(a),(b)].

Funding for the program can be obtained as follows:

(1) Each county may use funds generated by fees authorized by subdivision (d) of Section 27361 to implement a social security number truncation program required by this article [Gov. Code § 27304(a)];

(2) No later than June 1, 2008, the county recorder of each county must petition the board of supervisors in that county for the authority to levy the fee authorized by subdivision (d) of Section 27361. [Gov. Code § 27304(b)]; and

(3) It is the intent of the Legislature that in the interest of enabling county recorders to act expeditiously to protect the privacy of Californians, counties be permitted to seek revenue anticipation loans or other outside funding sources for the implementation of a social security number truncation program to be secured by the anticipated revenue from the fee authorized by subdivision (d) of Section 27361. [Gov. Code § 27304(c)].

To assist the Legislature in monitoring the progress of each county recorder's social security number truncation program, the County Recorders Association of California, no later than January 1, 2009, and annually thereafter, must submit to the chairpersons of the Assembly Committee on Judiciary and of the Senate Committee on Judiciary, and to the Office of Privacy Protection, or any successor agency, a report on the progress each county recorder has made in complying with this article [Gov. Code § 27305(a)]. Upon the Office of Privacy Protection making a determination that all counties have completed the component of the program described in subdivision (a) of Section 27301, the report described in subdivision (a) of this section must no longer be required. [Gov. Code § 27305(b)]. A county recorder is authorized to take all actions required by this article notwithstanding subdivision (d) of Section 27203 or any other provision of law [Gov. Code § 27307].

Nothing in this chapter must be construed to require the disclosure by a county recorder of any "official record" if a "public record" version of that record is available pursuant to Article 3.5 (commencing with Section 27300) of Chapter 6 of Part 3 of Division 2 of Title 3 law [Gov. Code § 6254.27]. Nothing in this chapter must be construed to require the disclosure by a filing office of any "official record" if a "public record" version of that record is available pursuant to Section 9526.5 of the Commercial Code [Gov. Code § 6254.28].

The Franchise Tax Board is required to truncate social security numbers on lien abstracts and other board records that are public records. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, unless prohibited by federal law, the Franchise Tax Board must truncate social security numbers on lien abstracts and any other records created by the board that are disclosable under Chapter 3.5 (commencing with Section 6250) of Division 7 of Title 1 before disclosing the record to the public. For purposes of this section, "truncate" means to redact the first five digits of a social security number [Gov. Code § 15705].

Chapter 470C PUBLIC RECORDS ACT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41-470C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 470C.12

§ 470C.12 Procedures for Obtaining Records Under the Act

[1] Statutory Procedures

The act provides that public records are open to inspection at all times during the office hours of the state or local agency and every person has a right to inspect any public record unless exempt from disclosure. Furthermore, any reasonably segregable portion of a record shall be available for inspection by any person requesting the record after deletion of the portions that are exempted by law [Gov. Code § 6253(a)]. Unless a record is exempt from disclosure, all state and local agencies, upon a request for a copy of records that reasonably describes an identifiable record or records, are required to make the records promptly available to any person upon payment of fees covering direct costs of duplication, or a statutory fee if applicable. The fee may be either a statutory fee or, if no fee is specified by statute, a fee covering the direct costs of duplication [Gov. Code § 6253(b); North County Parents v. Department of Education (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 144, 147-148, 28 Cal. Rptr.2d 359] . When a statutory fee is greater than actual cost, the statutory fee prevails [Shippen v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 1119, 1124-1127, 208 Cal. Rptr. 13] . Agencies have discretion to waive or reduce copying fees [Gov. Code § 6253(b); North County Parents v. Department of Education (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 144, 148-149, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359] . Upon request, an exact copy shall be provided unless impracticable to do so [Gov. Code § 6253(b)]. The right to inspect and the right to receive copies are coextensive [Rosenthal v. Hansen (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 754, 759, 110 Cal. Rptr. 257] . A request for records does not have to be in writing under the California Public Records Act [Los Angeles Times v. Alameda Corridor Transp. Authority (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1381, 1392-1393, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29] . For form for Request for Records, see § 470C.50.

The right of inspection (including the right to receive copies) is limited, however, by a rule of reasonableness [Bruce v. Gregory (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 666, 676, 56 Cal. Rptr. 265, 423 P.2d 193 ; Rosenthal v. Hansen (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 754, 761, 110 Cal. Rptr. 257] . Thus, for instance, in a case involving a general request for a copy of a seven volume loose-leaf set of documents, the court held that an agency could impose reasonable restrictions on requests for voluminous classes of documents and provide copies only in response to specific requests for specific documents [Rosenthal v. Hansen (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 754, 761, 110 Cal. Rptr. 257] . Citizens of other states may make a request for the disclosure of records to the same extent as citizens of California [Connell v. Superior Court (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 601, 611-612, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 738] . The requesting party may be a commercial entity using the information

The statutory procedures require each agency, upon a request for a copy of records, within 10 days from receipt of the request, to determine whether the request, in whole or in part, seeks copies of disclosable public records in the possession of the agency and to notify promptly the person making the request of the determination and the reasons therefor. In unusual circumstances, the time limit prescribed may be extended by written notice by the head of the agency or his or her designee to the person making the request, setting forth the reasons for the extension and the date on which a determination is expected to be dispatched. No notice shall specify a date that would result in an extension for more than 14 days [Gov. Code § 6253(c)].

The California Supreme Court applied the public interest statutory exemption [Gov. Code § 6255] and held that the City of Los Angeles Department of Airports did not have to disclose proposals for commercial use of airport property that were submitted under a request for proposals (RFP) process until the Department had completed negotiations with bidders. Public disclosure could occur after the department had finished negotiations and made a recommendation for final approval by the awarding authority, but before the awarding authority made a final approval decision. The public interest in non disclosure at the negotiating stage outweighed the public interest in disclosure [Michaelis, Montanari & Johnson v. Superior Court (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 1065, 1067, 1077, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 136 P.3d 194] . The California Supreme Court rejected an argument that agencies should be required to disclose otherwise exempt documents when the agency failed to comply with the timing requirements of the statute [Gov. Code § 6253(c)]. The Court concluded that disclosure was unduly harsh as a penalty for delay, and this remedy was not expressly authorized by the statute [Michaelis, Montanari & Johnson v. Superior Court (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 1065, 1072-1073, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 136 P.3d 194] .

"Unusual circumstances" means the following, but only to the extent reasonably necessary to the proper processing of the particular request [Gov. Code § 6253(c)(1)-(4)]:

- The need to search for and collect the requested records from field facilities or other establishments that are separate from the office processing the request.

- The need to search for, collect, and appropriately examine a voluminous amount of separate and distinct records that are demanded in a single request.

- The need for consultation, which shall be conducted with all practicable speed, with another agency having substantial interest in the determination of the request or among two or more components of the agency having substantial subject matter interest therein.

- The need to compile data, to write programming language or a computer program, or to construct a computer report to extract data.

Agencies are not permitted to delay or obstruct the inspection or copying of public records. The notification of denial of any request for records required by [Gov. Code § 6255] shall set forth the names and titles or positions of each person responsible for the denial [Gov. Code § 6253(d)]. Furthermore, a state or local agency may adopt requirements for itself that allow for faster, more efficient, or greater access to records than prescribed by the minimum standards set forth in the act [Gov. Code § 6253(e)]. However, in responding to a request for public records, agencies are not required to provide a list or inventory of all potentially responsive records [Haynie v. Superior Court (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 1061, 1064, 1075, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80, 31 P.3d 760] .

[2] Agency Procedural Regulations for Access to Public Records

Any agency may adopt regulations stating the procedures to be followed when making its records available in accordance with Gov. Code § 6253.4. Agencies adopting such regulations must post a copy of their guidelines in a conspicuous public place at the agencies' offices. In addition, agencies must make a copy of their guidelines available free of charge to any person requesting their records [Gov. Code § 6253.4(a)].

Gov. Code § 6253.4(a) also sets forth a comprehensive list of state and local bodies that are required to establish written guidelines for accessibility of records. Guidelines and regulations adopted pursuant to Gov. Code § 6253.4 must be consistent with all other sections of the California Public Records Act (Gov. Code §§ 6250-6277), and must reflect the Legislature's intent to make the records accessible to the public [Gov. Code § 6253.4(b)]. Guidelines and regulations adopted by agencies pursuant to Gov. Code § 6253.4 must not operate to limit the hours public records are open for inspection as prescribed in Gov. Code § 6253 [Gov. Code § 6253.4(b)]. Except as prohibited by law, a state or local agency may adopt requirements allowing faster, more efficient, or greater access to records than prescribed by the minimum standards set forth in the Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6253(e)].

The following state and local agencies are required to adopt written guidelines for accessibility of records [Gov. Code § 6253.4(a)]:

- Department of Motor Vehicles
- Department of Consumer Affairs
- Department of Transportation
- Department of Real Estate
- Department of Corrections
- Department of the Youth Authority

[3] Discovery Practice

The provisions of the Act are not deemed to affect the rights of litigants including parties to administrative proceedings under the laws of discovery, nor are they deemed to limit or impair any rights of discovery in a criminal case [Gov.

Code § 6260]. For example, in a case involving a wrongful death action against a city and its police officers, the plaintiff attempted to obtain certain evidence through discovery from the defendant police officers. The city claimed absolute privilege under Evid. Code § 1040(b)(1), on the grounds that disclosure was forbidden by Gov. Code § 6254(f). The court held that the effect of Gov. Code § 6254 is limited to inspections under the Public Records Act and has no application to any procedures not under the Act. Further, it cited Gov. Code § 6250 as authority for the proposition that the Act does not affect the rights of litigants in discovery [Shepherd v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 107, 123-124, 130 Cal. Rptr. 257, 550 P.2d 161 ; Rubin v. City of Los Angeles (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 560, 585, 235 Cal. Rptr. 516 (citing Shepherd)]. A request for public documents under the Public Records Act may not be denied merely because the documents may be subject to discovery should the petitioner decide to file a civil lawsuit [Wilder v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 77, 82-83, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 629] .

Thus, the exemptions from the public disclosure requirement apply only to proceedings under the Public Records Act, and may not be used by a public entity in order to evade discovery in a judicial proceeding [Shepherd v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 107, 123-124, 130 Cal. Rptr. 257, 550 P.2d 161 ; Marylander v. Superior Court (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1119, 1125, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439 (exemption under Gov. Code § 6254(l) for correspondence to Governor is inapplicable to discovery request in ongoing civil litigation)]. Conversely, however, if a party to pending litigation attempts to use the Public Records Act to gain access to documents for use in the lawsuit after access has been denied through use of discovery procedures, the exemptions from disclosure found in the Public Records Act, including any privileges found in the Evidence Code, may be used to justify nondisclosure of the documents [County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 819, 830-835, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 564 ; Gov. Code § 6254(k)].

Chapter 470C PUBLIC RECORDS ACT
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41-470C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 470C.13

§ 470C.13 Exemptions from Disclosure

[1] Nature of Exemptions

The Act provides a number of specific and general exemptions from disclosure, discussed in [2]-[50], below. The exemptions are in the nature of privileges that an agency must assert in order to avoid disclosure [Berkeley Police Assn. v. City of Berkeley (1977) 76 Cal. App. 3d 931, 941, 143 Cal. Rptr. 255] . An agency's failure to raise a particular exemption waives its right to tender policy arguments related to that exemption. In other words, an agency cannot assert general policy reasons for withholding requested records. The only method of avoiding disclosure is to assert one or more particular statutory privileges [Citizens for a Better Environment v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 704, 716, 217 Cal. Rptr. 504] . Because the Act, like the federal Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) [5 U.S.C. § 552], reflects a general policy of disclosure, its policy can only be accomplished by narrow construction of these categories of statutory privileges [San Gabriel Tribune v. Superior Court (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 762, 772-773, 192 Cal. Rptr. 415] .

The exemptions, however, are permissive, not mandatory. Gov. Code § 6254 provides that nothing in that section prevents any agency from opening its records to public inspection, unless disclosure is otherwise prohibited [Gov. Code § 6254.7; Gov. Code § 6254.13] by law [Gov. Code § 6254]. Therefore, an agency has the discretion not to claim a statutory exemption. It may choose to disclose records, despite the existence of an applicable exemption, if a dominating public interest favors disclosure [Black Panther Party v. Kehoe (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 645, 656, 117 Cal. Rptr. 106] . The statutory exemptions permit nondisclosure, but do not prohibit disclosure [Black Panther Party v. Kehoe (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 645, 656, 117 Cal. Rptr. 106] . Nonetheless, when contemplating disclosure, an agency must determine whether disclosure is prohibited by some other law [Gov. Code § 6254]. A statutory list of exempt records laws is contained in § 470C.15, below .

[2] Waiver of Exemptions

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, whenever a state or local agency discloses a public record that is otherwise exempt from the provisions of the Public Records Act [Gov. Code §§ 6250-6277], to any member of the public, this disclosure shall constitute a waiver of the exemptions specified in Gov. Code §§ 6254, 6254.7, or other similar provisions of law [Gov. Code § 6254.5]. For the purposes of Gov. Code § 6254.5, "agency" includes a member, agent, or officer or employee of the agency acting within the scope of his or her membership, agency, office, or employment [Gov. Code § 6254.5]. Gov. Code § 6254.5 shall not apply to the following disclosures [Gov. Code § 6254.5]:

- Disclosure made pursuant to the Information Practices Act [Civ. Code § 1798 et seq.], or discovery proceedings [Gov. Code § 6254.5(a)];

- Disclosures made through other legal proceedings [Gov. Code § 6254.5(b)];

- Disclosures within the scope of a disclosure of a statute that limits disclosure of specified writing to certain purposes [Gov. Code § 6254.5(c)];

- Disclosures not required by law, and prohibited by formal action of an elected legislative body of the local agency that retains the writings [Gov. Code § 6254.5(d)];

- Disclosures made to any governmental agency that agrees to treat the disclosed material as confidential. Only persons authorized in writing by the person in charge of the agency are permitted to obtain the information. Any information obtained by the agency shall only be used for purposes that are consistent with existing law [Gov. Code § 6254.5(e)];

- Disclosures of records relating to a financial institution or its affiliate, if the disclosures are made to the financial institution or affiliate by a state agency responsible for the regulation or supervision of the financial institution or affiliate [Gov. Code § 6254.5(f)];

- Disclosures of records relating to any person that is subject to the jurisdiction of the Department of Corporations, if the disclosures are made to the person that is the subject of the records for the purpose of corrective action by that person, or if a corporation, to an officer, director, or other key personnel of the corporation for the purpose of corrective action, or to any other person to the extent necessary to obtain information from that person for the purpose of an investigation by the Department of Corporations [Gov. Code § 6254.5(g)];

- Disclosures made by the Commissioner of Financial Institutions under the authority of Fin. Code §§ 280, 282, 8009, 18396 [Gov. Code § 6254.5(h)]; and

- Disclosures of records relating to any person that is subject to the jurisdiction of the Department of Managed Health Care, if the disclosures are made to the person that is the subject of the records for the purpose of corrective action by that person, or if a corporation, to an officer, director, or other key personnel of the corporation for the purpose of corrective action, or to any other person to the extent necessary to obtain information from that person for the purpose of an investigation by the Department of Managed Health Care [Gov. Code § 6254.5(i)].

[3] Election Materials

Certain election materials are not public records [Gov. Code § 6253.5]. These materials include city, county, district, and statewide initiative, referendum, or recall petitions; petitions for an election to fill a school district board vacancy [Educ. Code § 5091]; petitions for the reorganization of school and community college districts [Educ. Code §§ 35700, 35711, 74000, 74264]; and all memoranda prepared by county clerks in examination of these petitions. Disclosure of these materials is expressly prohibited, except to the following persons: (1) the public employees who receive, examine, or preserve them; (2) proponents of the petition, when a petition is found to be insufficient; and (3) certain public officers on approval of the superior court [Gov. Code § 6253.5].

Information compiled by public officers that would reveal the identity of persons who have requested bilingual ballots or pamphlets may not be provided to any person other than those public officers and employees who are responsible for receiving and processing the requests [Gov. Code § 6253.6(a)].

[4] Drafts, Notes, and Memoranda

Preliminary drafts, notes, or interagency or intraagency memoranda that are not retained by the agency in the ordinary course of business are exempt if the public interest in withholding these records clearly outweighs the public interest in disclosure [Gov. Code § 6254(a)]. Three conditions must be met for exemption under this provision: (1) the record sought must be a preliminary draft, note, or memorandum; (2) the record sought must not be retained by the public agency in the ordinary course of business, and (3) the public interest in withholding must clearly outweigh the public interest in disclosure [Citizens for a Better Environment v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 704, 711, 217 Cal. Rptr. 504] . The burden of proof and of persuasion of the existence of each condition is on the public agency [Citizens for a Better Environment v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 704, 712, 217 Cal. Rptr. 504] .

The purpose of the exemption is to provide a measure of agency privacy for written discourse concerning matters with pending administrative action [Citizens for a Better Environment v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 704, 712, 217 Cal. Rptr. 504] . If preliminary materials are not customarily discarded or have not in fact been discarded as is customary, they must be disclosed [Citizens for a Better Environment v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 704, 714, 217 Cal. Rptr. 504] . The fact that a document contains an opinion or judgment does not immunize it from disclosure. An opinion that is recommendatory, however, may be isolated from its factual surroundings and be withheld [Citizens for a Better Environment v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 704, 717, 217 Cal. Rptr. 504] .

[5] Litigation Records

Records pertaining to pending litigation to which the public agency is a party or claims made pursuant to the California Tort Claims Act [Gov. Code §§ 810, 996.6] are exempt until the litigation is finally adjudicated or otherwise settled [Gov. Code § 6254(b)]. This exemption essentially provides public agencies with the protections of the attorney-client and the attorney work product privileges for a limited period while litigation is in process [State of California ex rel. Division of Industrial Safety v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 778, 783, 117 Cal. Rptr. 726] . However, the exemption for litigation records [Gov. Code § 6254(b)] protects litigation records generally while the exemption for records protected under other laws [Gov. Code § 6254(k)] protects privileged materials including records that are subject to the attorney-client privilege [Roberts v. City of Palmdale (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 363, 372, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 853 P.2d 496] . Thus, writings that are relevant to pending litigation, including but not limited to those protected by the attorney-client privilege, are protected under the litigation records exemption, while attorney-client privileged writings that are not related to pending litigation are protected under the records protected under other laws exemption [Gov. Code § 6254(k); Roberts v. City of Palmdale (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 363, 372-373, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 853 P.2d 496] .

However, a claim filed with a public entity under the Tort Claims Act does not itself constitute a "record pertaining to pending litigation" and is subject to public disclosure [Poway Unified School Dist. v. Superior Court (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1496, 1502-1505, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 777 (claim filed by student against public school district was subject to request for disclosure made by newspaper)].

The court of appeal has interpreted this exemption to apply only to documents specifically prepared for use in litigation [Fairley v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1414, 1420-1422, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 648] . If the document was prepared for dual purposes, the document is exempted from disclosure if the "dominant purpose" behind preparation of the document was pending litigation [Fairley v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1414, 1420, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 648] . The exemption does not prevent access to documents relevant to later-instituted litigation [Fairley v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1414, 1420-1421, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 648] . However, correspondence between opposing counsel in litigation or correspondence with opposing parties that was intended to be confidential to non-parties outside the litigation is protected from disclosure to non-parties under the litigation records exemption [Gov. Code § 6254(b); Board of Trs. of the Cal. State Univ. v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 889, 899-900, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 82] . The litigation records exemption does not include deposition transcripts, which are normally available to the public under the discovery act provisions [Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 2025.570] unless a protective order has been issued. Deposition transcripts are not confidential within the meaning of the litigation records exemption [Board of Trs. of the Cal. State Univ. v. Superior Court (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 889, 901-902, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 82] .

Moreover, if the documents do not fall under the pending litigation exception or another exception, an application for disclosure of documents brought under the Public Records Act may not be denied merely because discovery of the documents has previously been denied in a civil case, unless the requirements for application of the doctrine of collateral estoppel have been met [County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 819, 826-835, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 564] .

[6] Personnel and Medical Records

Personnel, medical, or similar files are exempt if their disclosure would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy [Gov. Code § 6254(c)]. The California Supreme Court held that information relating to California peace officers that is maintained in an electronic database by the California Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training was a "public record" within the meaning of the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6252(e), (g)]. Disclosure of this information was requested by the Los Angeles Times. The information requested included the peace officer's name and birth date, employing department, appointment dates, termination dates, and reason for termination. The Commission denied the request. The superior court ordered disclosure of the peace officer's name, employing agency, date of new appointment, and termination date [Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 278, 287-289, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 165 P.3d 462] . The California Supreme Court also held that these records were not exempt from disclosure under Penal Code §§ 832.7, 832.8, peace officer personnel records [Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 278, 298-299, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 165 P.3d 462] , and that no other statutory exemption in the California Public Records Act applied to exempt disclosure of these records. The California Supreme Court rejected the argument that the records kept by the Commission were categorically exempt under Gov. Code § 6254(c) because the privacy and safety interest of the peace officers as a group did not outweigh the public interest in disclosure of the information. Thus, disclosure of these records would not constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. However, the California Supreme Court also held that the Commission could seek to justify exclusion from the disclosed records of information about specific officers because disclosure of that information would jeopardize the safety or efficacy of the peace officers. The exclusion would be based on a showing under the personnel and medical records exemption [Gov. Code § 6254(c)], and under the public interest exemption [Gov. Code § 6255]. The California Supreme Court remanded the case back to the superior court to allow the Commission to make such a showing [Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 278, 301-303, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 165 P.3d 462] .

The California Supreme Court held that salary information for specific public employees of the City of Oakland earning $100,000 or more per year was a disclosable "public record" within the meaning of the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code §§ 6252(d), 6253(a)]. Disclosure of this information was requested by reporters for the Contra Costa Times from the City of Oakland for the 2003-2004 fiscal year. The City refused to provide salary information for specific individuals claiming this information was exempt from disclosure. After allowing intervention by two public employee unions, the superior court ordered disclosure of the salary information and rejected claims for exemption based on the privacy interests of the individuals, and for police officers, the peace officer personnel records exemption. The court of appeal denied the petition of the two unions challenging disclosure. [International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, Local 21, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 319, 327-329, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693, 165 P.3d 488]. The California Supreme Court held that the salary information was not exempt form disclosure under the personnel and medical records exemption [Gov. Code § 6254(c)] because disclosure of this information did not constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy. The California Supreme Court relied upon the public policy supporting the adoption of the public records act, that public access to information about government is essential to government accountability, and that the right of public access to governmental information is protected not only by the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6250], but also by provisions of the California Constitution [Cal. Const., art. 1, § 3(b)(1); International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, Local 21, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 319, 329-331, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693, 165 P.3d 488]. The California Supreme Court noted that claims for exemption of salary information for particular public employees based upon concerns specific to that employee, such as undercover police officers, could be made under either the personnel and medical records [Gov. Code § 6254(c)] or the public interest exemption [Gov. Code § 6255], but that neither the city or the unions provided such information to the superior court [International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, Local 21, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 319, 336-338, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693, 165 P.3d 488]. The California Supreme Court also rejected a claim that disclosure of salary information would violate the public employees right to privacy under the California Constitution [Cal. Const., art. 1, § 1] because the public interest in disclosure of this information outweighs the privacy interest of the employees [International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, Local 21, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 319, 338-340, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693, 165 P.3d 488]. Finally, the California Supreme court held that the peace officers personal records exemption [Gov. Code § 6254(k), Penal Code §§ 832.7, 832.8] did not include salary information of peace officers as one of the categories of information exempt from disclosure [Penal Code § 832.8], and thus this exemption did not apply to police officer salary information [International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, Local 21, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 319, 344-346, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693, 165 P.3d 488].

In a case involving the personnel file of a city firefighter, the court held that the first page of the firefighter's salary card containing his address, birth date, phone number, social security and credit union numbers, and his salary did not fall within this exemption because disclosure of that information was not an invasion of personal privacy [Braun v. City of Taft (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 332, 345, 201 Cal. Rptr. 654] . It also stated that the word "files" in the statutory exemption does not imply an all-or-nothing disclosure policy. In light of the Act's policy favoring disclosure, partial disclosure of a file is permitted; only the specific material in a file that would result in an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy is exempt [Braun v. City of Taft (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 332, 341, 201 Cal. Rptr. 654] .

Similarly, contracts of employment of public officials are not exempt [Gov. Code § 6254.8]. For example, although the board of directors of a hospital district is not required to report at a public meeting its determination (in executive session) of the hospital administrator's compensation, that compensation is a matter of public record under Gov. Code § 6254.8 as an integral part of the administrator's employment contract [63 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 215, 221 (1980)] .

The California court of appeal held that the personal performance goals of the former superintendent of a community college district were not part of the superintendent's employment contract within the provisions of Gov. Code § 6254.8 because the employment contract mentioned future goal setting in one paragraph of the contract. That was not sufficient evidence to show that the parties to this contract intended to incorporate the performance goals of the superintendent into the contract. Thus, these goals were not part of the contract, and therefore were not disclosable under the provisions of Gov. Code § 6254.8 [Versaci v. Superior Ct. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 805, 817, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92] . The performance goals were also exempt from disclosure under Gov. Code § 6254(c) because the superintendent's privacy interests outweighed the public interest in disclosure of the goals [Versaci v. Superior Ct. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 805, 818-820, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92] .

Finally, the identity of individuals with criminal convictions who were given exemptions by the Department of Social Services to allow them to work at licensed child day care facilities and a list of facilities that employ these persons is not exempt from disclosure under Gov. Code § 6254(c) [CBS Broadcasting, Inc. v. Superior Court (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 892, 906-907, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 889] .

The Court of Appeal upheld the decision of the trial court in granting a preliminary injunction to order disclosure of salary information for city employees by job title, but without disclosing the names of the city employees who held those jobs under provisions of the California Public Records Act, Gov. Code §§ 6254(c) (personnel and medical records), 6255 (public interest exception), and 6254.8 (public employee employment contracts) [Teamsters Local 856 v. Priceless, LLC (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1500, 1522-1523, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 847] .

The Court of Appeal upheld the decision of the trial court ordering disclosure of personnel records related to a specific incident in which aschool district employee was disciplined. The school district argued that the exemption for personnel records, disclosure of which would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy [Cal. Gov. Code § 6254(c)] and the public interest exemption [Cal. Gov. Code § 6255(a)], were applicable and provided a basis for the district not to disclose the records. The district argued that the standard for disclosure in this setting required a showing of reasonable cause that the complaint or charge was true, or a showing that the charge led to discipline being imposed on the employee. The Court of Appeal rejected this standard and concluded that the court must review the records to determine the reliability of the documents so that the court can decide whether the complaint was well founded. Neither the truth of the charges nor the fact of employee discipline are necessary elements for showing a well founded complaint that should be disclosed. In this case, based on a review of the records, the court concluded thatthe complaint was well founded, and the records should be disclosed [Bakersfield City School District v. Superior Court (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1041, 1046-1047, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517] .

The California Court of Appeal granted a writ of mandate and ordered disclosure of an investigator's report which assessed misconduct charges brought against a school district superintendent who was also the principal of the high school in the school district. In ordering disclosure of the report, the court of appeal conditioned disclosure on the redaction of all identifying information in the report, such as names, home addresses, telephone numbers, and job titles of any persons interviewed or mentioned in the investigator's report, including students, parents, staff members, and faculty members [BRV, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 742, 759-760, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 519] . The Court of Appeal considered the applicability of three exemptions to disclosure of the investigator's report:

(1) Personnel records, disclosure of which would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy [Gov. Code § 6254(c)];

(2) The public interest exemption [Gov. Code § 6255]; and

(3) Pupil records that are exempt from disclosure unless there is written parental consent or a court order [Educ. Code § 49076].

The court of appeal held that the investigator's report (related to misconduct charges against the superintendent) were not pupil records within the meaning of the education code provision, because the report did not directly relate to a student, and was not maintained by the school district in the ordinary course of business, unlike student information such as grade transcripts and class schedules [BRV, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 742, 754-755, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 519] . The court of appeal analyzed the personnel records and public interest exemptions from disclosure using the same test for both exemptions, whether the privacy interests of the superintendent were outweighed by the public interest in disclosure of the report. The court of appeal held that the public interest in disclosure outweighed the superintendent's privacy interests in the report because the superintendent was a public official who had a reduced expectation of privacy related to his public employment, and the public had a strong interest in learning why the superintendent was exonerated in the report, and how the school district treated the accusations against the superintendent, which had been addressed in a closed session of the school board. Thus, the court held that the public interest in disclosure outweighed the superintendent's privacy interests [BRV, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 742, 758-759, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 519] .

[7] Financial Institution Records

Records are exempt when they are contained in and related to applications filed with state agencies responsible for regulating or supervising the issuance of securities of financial institutions (including banks, savings and loan associations, industrial loan companies, credit unions, and insurance companies). Associated notes and other information are also exempt [Gov. Code § 6254(d)]. Specifically, what is included within this exemption is the following records: (1) Applications filed with any state agency responsible for the regulation or supervision of the issuance of securities of financial institutions, including, but not limited to, banks, savings and loan associations, industrial loan companies, credit unions, and insurance companies [Gov. Code § 6254(d)(1)]; (2) Examination, operating, or condition reports prepared by, or on behalf of, or for the use of any state agency referred to in item (1) [Gov. Code § 6254(d)(2)]; (3) Preliminary drafts, notes, or interagency or intra-agency communications prepared by, or on behalf of, or for the use of any state agency referred to in item (1) [Gov. Code § 6254(d)(3)]; and (4) Information received in confidence by any state agency referred to in item (1) [Gov. Code § 6254(d)(4)].

[8] Geological and Plant Production Data

Geological or geophysical data, plant production data, and similar information relating to utility systems development or market or crop reports that have been obtained in confidence from any person are also exempt under the Act [Gov. Code § 6254(e)]. For example, in a case involving the disclosure of pesticide spray reports, a court held that the exemption for crop reports applies only to reports specifying the nature, extent, type, or magnitude of crops being grown [Uribe v. Howie (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 194, 212, 96 Cal. Rptr. 493] . The court holding was based on the exemption's purpose to protect the financial confidentiality of growers' enterprises. The existence of standardized pricing in the commodity markets would allow an outsider to estimate fairly accurately a growers' income based on knowledge of the quantity of the commodity to be harvested; thus, making the reports public might interfere with futures trading on commodity markets [Uribe v. Howie (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 194, 212, 96 Cal. Rptr. 493] .

[9] Law Enforcement Records

[a] Generally

Records of complaints, investigations, intelligence information and security procedures of various state and local criminal justice agencies, including the office of the Attorney General, the Department of Justice, and the California Emergency Management Agency, are exempt [Gov. Code § 6254(f); Dixon v. Superior Court (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1271, 1273-1274, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 847 (coroner and autopsy reports that constitute investigations of a suspected homicide death are exempt from disclosure under the law enforcement records exemption (Gov. Code § 6254(f)) when the prospect of criminal law enforcement proceedings is concrete and definite); County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1099, 1106-1107, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 708 (letters prepared by district attorney's office that are part of an investigative file related to whether county violated Brown Act are exempt from disclosure under law enforcement records exemption (Gov. Code § 6254(f))]. The exemption also includes customer lists provided to a state or local police agency by an alarm or security company when the agency requests such list from the company [Gov. Code § 6254(f)]. This exemption is not absolute [South Coast Newspapers, Inc. v. City of Oceanside (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 261, 267-269, 206 Cal. Rptr. 527] . First, the exemption does not apply when a request for inspection is made by a district attorney [Gov. Code § 6262]. Moreover, an agency must disclose basic information regarding the incident to the victims, any insurance carrier that may have claims filed with it as a result of the incident, and any person who suffered damage as a result of the incident, unless disclosure would endanger the safety of an involved person or the successful completion of the investigation [Gov. Code § 6254(f)]. In addition, the agency must make public certain information relating to the person arrested and the complaints or requests received by the agency (along with the responses), as long as disclosure would not endanger any person's safety or the successful completion of the investigation [Gov. Code § 6254(f)(1), (2)].

Police officers, indicted for committing felonies, sought a protective order to prohibit district attorney from disclosing

urinalysis test results that were part of confidential peace officer personnel records. The court of appeal held that the testresults were exempt from disclosure under the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6254(f) (law enforcement records exemption)]. This is because the results were obtained as part of a administrative investigation under Gov. Code § 3303, and the results of the tests were contained in both police investigative files, and files kept by the district attorney's office. District attorney and police investigative files are within the exemption for law enforcement records [Fagan v. Superior Court (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 607, 615, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 239] .

[i] Address of Persons Arrested, Victims, and Witnesses

The agency must disclose the current address of every person arrested by the agency and the current address of the victim of a crime, when the requester declares under penalty of perjury that the request is made for a scholarly, journalistic, political, or governmental purpose, or that the request is made for investigation purposes by a licensed private investigator [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6254(f)(3)]. This disclosure duty is limited to current information related to contemporaneous police activity [County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1993) 18 Cal. App. 4th 588, 602, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 409] . Law enforcement officers and employees are prohibited from disclosing the address or telephone number of crime victims or witnesses to arrested persons or persons charged with criminal offenses involving those victims or witnesses. However, the defendant's lawyer can obtain this information [Gov. Code § 6254(f)(2); Pen. Code § 841.5].

The language of the California statutory exemption for law enforcement investigative records [Gov. Code § 6254(f)] should not be interpreted toincorporate criteria from the Freedom of Information Act [5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(7)(A)-(F)] (FOIA) [Williams v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 337, 354, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882, 852 P.2d 377] . Unlike FOIA, which exempts law enforcement records or information only to the extent that one of seven criteria are satisfied and otherwise compels disclosure, the California act exempts law enforcement investigatory records from disclosure but does authorize disclosure of information taken from the records [Williams v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 337, 354, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882, 852 P.2d 377] . The exemption for investigatory files does not terminate with the conclusion of the investigation. Once an investigation has commenced because there is a concrete and definite prospect of enforcement proceedings at that time, materials that relate to the investigation, and thus properly belong in the file, remain exempt subject to the terms of the statute [Williams v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 337, 354-362, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882, 852 P.2d 377 (citing Uribe v. Howie (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 194, 212-213, 96 Cal. Rptr. 493 , for definition of investigation)]. So, for example, the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code §§ 6250-6277] does not compel disclosure of a district attorney's criminal investigation files concerning a local official, even if the investigation has been closed [Rivero v. Superior Court (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1050, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 213] . Investigative records related to charges of police misconduct were exempt from disclosure under Gov. Code § 6254(f). This exemption included a non public letter written by an investigative officer after the date that the investigation was closed. The content of the letter was related to the investigation and contained the opinions of the letter writer as to the investigation. The letter was part of the investigative file, and the exemption continues even though the investigation has been completed [Rackauckas v. Superior Court (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 169, 176-178, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 234] . However, records of a police investigation related to a traffic stop and detention were exempt from disclosure under the law enforcement records exemption even though no criminal prosecution was bought based on the traffic stop. Investigative records are exempt whether or not there is a concrete and definite prospect of enforcement proceedings. Also, tape recordings of citizen complaints are also within the law enforcement records exemption [Haynie v. Superior Court (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 1061, 1064, 1072, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80, 31 P.3d 760] .

[ii] Names of Peace Officers

The California Public Records Act also requires a sheriff to disclose to a newspaper the names of peace officers who fired shots at a citizen. The names are not exempt under Gov. Code § 6254(c) (personnel files) or Gov. Code § 6254(k) (privileged records). Similarly, Penal Code §§ 832.7-832.8 do not apply [New York Times Co. v. Superior Court (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 97, 103, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 410] .

[b] Standards

[i] Generally

In a case involving the California Division of Industrial Safety, the Division sought to avoid discovery of certain documents by asserting that its role in enforcing the California Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1973 [Lab. Code §§ 6300-6331] permitted it to resist disclosure under Gov. Code § 6254(f). The court found that the exemption referred only to the enforcement of penal statutes, stating that a "concrete and definite" prospect of criminal law enforcement must exist to make this subdivision apply [State of California ex rel. Division of Industrial Safety v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 778, 784, 117 Cal. Rptr. 726].

[ii] Regulatory Agencies

Even though regulatory agencies accumulate numerous records which may, under certain circumstances, be used in disciplinary proceedings, these records are not necessarily exempt as investigatory files. It is not enough that the record is labeled "investigatory" and that a possibility exists of an enforcement proceeding. Every administrative agency enforces statutes, conducts investigations, and incidentally compiles investigatory files. The Legislature did not intend to include all such files within the exemption. Otherwise, the exemption would swallow the Act's general policy of disclosure. The "concrete and definite" standard also applies to regulatory agencies that enforce disciplinary proceedings [Uribe v. Howie (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 194, 212-213, 96 Cal. Rptr. 493] . However, the exemption from disclosure for investigatory files does not end when the specific investigation has been completed. Those files remain exempt under the terms of the statute [Williams v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 337, 361-362, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882, 852 P.2d 377] . Criminal offender records information is ordinarily not a public record [Younger v. Berkeley City Council (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 825, 832, 119 Cal. Rptr. 830] .

[10] Examination Materials

Test questions, scoring keys, and other examination data used in a state licensing examination, examination for employment, or academic examination are exempt, except as provided in the statutes governing standardized tests used for admission to postsecondary institutions [Gov. Code § 6254(g); Educ. Code §§ 99150-99164].

[11] Real Property Matters

The contents of real estate appraisals and engineering and feasibility estimates made by state and local agencies relating to the acquisition of real property or to prospective public supply and construction contracts are exempt, until all of the property has been acquired or all of the contract has been performed. Records of eminent domain proceedings, however, are not affected by this exemption [Gov. Code § 6254(h)]. The purchase price and other consideration paid by the public entity becomes public information that is available after acquisition of the property by eminent domain [Gov. Code § 7275].

[12] Tax Information

Information required from any taxpayer (1) in connection with the collection of local taxes, (2) that is received in confidence, and (3) and the disclosure of which would result in unfair competitive disadvantage to the person supplying the information, is exempt [Gov. Code § 6254(i)]. Homeowners' exemption claims and information and records in the property assessor's office that are not required by law to be kept or prepared by the assessor are not public documents and are not open to public inspection [Rev. & Tax. Code § 408(a)]. An assessee's own information, however, must be disclosed to him or her [Rev. & Tax. Code § 408(d), (e) (right to inspect or copy relevant market data and other relevant information related to assessment and appraisal of assessee's property)] and disclosure may also be made to law enforcement and other official agencies [Rev. & Tax. Code § 408(b)]. The assessor must also disclose information, including social security numbers, to the tax collector when requested by the tax collector to prepare the delinquent portion of the unsecured tax roll [Rev. & Tax. Code § 408(c)].

[13] Library Circulation Records

Library circulation records kept for the purpose of identifying the borrower of items in the library, and library and museum materials made or acquired and presented solely for reference or exhibition purposes, are exempt. This exemption, however, does not apply to records of fines imposed on library borrowers [Gov. Code § 6254(j)]. Furthermore, Gov. Code § 6267 provides that all registration and circulation records of any library that is in whole or in part supported by public funds must remain confidential and will not be disclosed to any person or agency, except (1) by a person acting within the scope of his or her duties within the administration of the library, (2) by a person with written authorization from the individual to whom the records pertain, or (3) by court order. The term "registration records" includes any information that a library requires a patron to provide in order to become eligible to borrow books and other materials; the term "circulation records" includes any information that identifies a patron borrowing particular books and other material. The exemption in Gov. Code § 6267 does not apply to statistical reports of registration and circulation, nor to records of fines collected by the library [Gov. Code § 6267].

[14] Records Exempt Under Other Laws

Any record whose disclosure is exempted or prohibited by federal or other state law is exempt [Gov. Code § 6254(k)]. This exemption includes, but is not limited to, provisions of the Evidence Code relating to privilege [Gov. Code § 6254(k); Evid. Code §§ 900-1070 (privileges)], including the attorney-client privilege [Roberts v. City of Palmdale (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 363, 372-373, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 853 P.2d 496; Evid. Code § 1157 (records of organized medical peer review committees are exempt from discovery in civil lawsuits); Evid. Code § 1157.6 (records of quality assurance committees of county operated mental health facilities are exempt from discovery in civil lawsuits); County of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 8, 10, 42 Cal. Rptr.3d 390] . This exemption also includes provisions of the Penal Code [Gov. Code § 6254(k); Penal Code §§ 832.7, 832.8] including peace officer personnel records [Copley Press, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1272, 1283-1284, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183, 141 P.3d 288] . Documents prepared by counsel related to license agreements being negotiated between a governmental agency and a private company were within the attorney-client privilege [Evid. Code §§ 952, 954], and the privilege was not waived [Evid. Code § 912 (privilege not waived by reasonably necessary disclosures)] by exchange of these documents in the negotiation process. Thus, the documents were privileged and exempt from disclosure under Gov. Code § 6254(k) [STI Outdoor v. Superior Court (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 334, 339-341, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 865] . This exemption is not independent; it merely incorporates other prohibitions established by law [CBS, Inc. v. Block (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 646, 656, 230 Cal. Rptr. 362, 725 P.2d 470] . Thus, a court's rejection of the claim of exemption under Gov. Code § 6255 (the "residual" exemption) and Evid. Code § 1040 (the privilege for official information) similarly require rejection of a claim of exemption under Gov. Code § 6254(k) [CBS, Inc. v. Block (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 646, 656, 230 Cal. Rptr. 362, 725 P.2d 470 ; California State University v. Superior Court (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 810, 832-833, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 870] .

The California Supreme Court applied the records exempt under other laws exemption [Gov. Code § 6254(k)] and held that the statutory provisions governing confidentiality of peace officer personnel records [Penal Code §§ 832.7, 832.8] did not apply to exempt disclosure of peace officer employees' salary information [International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, Local 21, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 319, 344-346, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693, 165 P.3d 488] , and did not apply to exempt disclosure of the peace officer's name, employing agency, date of new appointment, and termination date, information maintained electronically by the Commission [Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 278, 287-289, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 165 P.3d 462] . For further discussion of these cases, see § 470C.14[9]. The California Supreme Court also held that when a criminal defendant makes a Pitchess motion, the defendant can file a sealed declaration or affidavit to protect attorney client privileged information and work product information, and the sealed declaration must be redacted (excluding privileged information) before the declaration is disclosed to the city attorney representing the police officer whose personnel information is sought to be disclosed [Evid. Code § 1043(b)(2),(3); Garcia v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 63, 76-78, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 948, 163 P.3d 939] .

The California Supreme Court applied the records exempt under other laws' statutory exemption [Gov. Code § 6254(k)] and held that the statutory provisions governing confidentiality of peace officer personnel records [Penal Code §§ 832.7, 832.8] applied to prevent disclosure of appeal records including the name of the police officer related to a police officer's administrative appeal to the San Diego County Civil Service Commission of discipline imposed on that officer by the San Diego County Sheriff's Department [Copley Press, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1272, 1279, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183, 141 P.3d 288] . The California Supreme Court held that the confidentiality provisions of Penal Code § 832.7 (making confidential personnel records of police officers maintained by the employing agency) applied to administrative appeals to county service commissions [Copley Press, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1272, 1284-1285, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183, 141 P.3d 288] . The California Supreme Court also held that the county civil service commission was included within the definition of the employing agency for purposes of Penal Code § 832.7 [Copley Press, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1272, 1287-1288, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183, 141 P.3d 288] . The California Supreme Court also held that the identity of the police officer was protected from disclosure, along with records related to the officer's appeal [Copley Press, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1272, 1297-1298, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183, 141 P.3d 288] , and that Penal Code § 832.7 was not unconstitutional under the provisions of Cal. Const. Art. 1, § 3(b)(1) (public right to access to governmental meetings and records) [Copley Press, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1272, 1300-1301, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183, 141 P.3d 288] .

The California Court of Appeal affirmed a writ of mandate petition granted by the superior court that concluded the City of Berkeley's Police Review Commission (PRC) had violated the confidentiality of peace officer personnel records under Penal Code § 832.7, as interpreted in the Copley Press decision, because the PRC hearings into complaints of police misconduct were public hearings and members of the public had access to PRC reports, investigations, and findings. The Court of Appeal affirmed the mandate order requiring the City of Berkeley and the PRC to maintain the confidentiality of police officer records, prohibit members of the public from attending PRC complaint hearings, and prohibit public access to PRC reports, investigations, or findings [Berkeley Police Association v. City of Berkeley (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 385, 388, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 130].

The California Supreme Court held that derivative information developed as a result of disclosures under the Pitchess (Pitchess v. Superior Court 11 Cal. 3d 531, 540, 113 Cal. Rptr. 897, 522 P. 2d 305] motion procedure can be disclosed and used only in the proceeding in which the disclosure is ordered. Otherwise, the protective order authorized under Evid. Code § 1045(e) prohibits disclosure of that information in any other judicial proceeding. Thus, if counsel obtains complainant information in one case through the granting of a Pitchess motion, that leads to the discovery of derivative information (information other than the name address, and telephone number of a complaining party, and other witnesses identity), that derivative information may only be used in that judicial proceeding and it subject to a protective order. However, if the same lawyer files a Pitchess motion in another case representing another party, and that lawyer obtains the same complainant information as in the prior motion, they are permitted to use the same derivative information in the new proceeding and that does not violate the protective order rules [Chambers v. Appellate Division of the Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 673, 680-682, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 43, 170 P.3d 617]. The California Supreme Court held that when a trial court improperly failed to review a peace officer's personnel records in camera under the provisions of Penal Code § 832.7 and Evid. Code § 1043(b), the proper remedy was to remand the matter to the trial court with an order to review the records. The Supreme Court also held that if relevant information in confidential personnel records was not disclosed, then the judgment is reversible only if there is a reasonable probability that a different result would have occurred if the information had been disclosed [People v. Gaines (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 172, 176-177, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627, 205 P.3d 1074)].

The identity of individuals with criminal convictions who were given exemptions by the Department of Social Services to allow them to work at licensed child day care facilities and a list of facilities that employ these persons is not exempt from disclosure under Gov. Code § 6254(k) [CBS Broadcasting, Inc. v. Superior Court (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 892, 907-908, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 889] . Disclosure of this information would not violate Penal Code §§ 11105, 11142 (which restrict disclosure of criminal history information) because a criminal conviction is a matter of public record, and therefore there is no grounds for an exemption under Gov. Code § 6254(k) [CBS Broadcasting, Inc. v. Superior Court (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 892, 907-908, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 889] .

In addition, Evid. Code § 1041(a) provides that, except as provided in Evid. Code § 1041, a public entity has a privilege to refuse to disclose the identity of a person who has furnished information as provided in Evid. Code § 1041(b) purporting to disclose a violation of a law of the United States or of California or of a public entity in California, and to prevent another from disclosing such identity, if the privilege is claimed by a person authorized by the public entity to do so and the following conditions are met [Evid. Code § 1041(a)]:

(1) Disclosure is forbidden by an act of Congress or by California statute;

(2) Disclosure of the informer's identity is against the public interest because there is a necessity for preserving the confidentiality of the informer's identity that outweighs the necessity for disclosure in the interest of justice; but no privilege may be claimed under this paragraph if any person authorized to do so has consented that the identity of the informer be disclosed in the proceeding.

In determining whether disclosure of the identity of the informer is against the public interest, the interest of the public entity as a party in the outcome of the proceeding may not be considered. Evid. Code § 1041 applies only if the information is furnished in confidence to a law enforcement officer, a representative of an administrative agency charged with the administration or enforcement of the law alleged to be violated, or any person for the purpose of transmittal to a person listed in paragraph (1) or (2) [Evid. Code § 1041(b)]. Although Evid. Code § 1041 does not specifically address the disclosure requirement of the Public Records Act, Gov. Code § 6254(k) provides that records whose disclosure is exempt pursuant to provisions of the Evidence Code relating to privilege are exempt from the Public Records Act [Gov. Code §§ 6250-6277].

Disclosure of public school student records relating to student expulsions, required under Educ. Code § 48918, is prohibited under the requirements of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) [20 U.S.C. § 1232g]. Federal law preempts the provisions of Educ. Code § 48918. Student records information is exempt from disclosure under federal law even if the student name and other identifying information is redacted from an expulsion record because the record would still contain student information that is protected from disclosure. Nondisclosure is also consistent with the requirements of Gov. Code § 6254(k) [Rim of the World Unified School Dist. v. Superior Court (2003) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1393, 1398-1400, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 11] .

The Regents of the University of California did not violate The Information Practices Act (IPA) [Civil Code §§ 1798-1798.78] when they did not retain and return midterm and final exams taken by a student who filed a lawsuit that challenged the failure to maintain and return those exams [Moghadam v. Regents of University of California (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 466, 468-469, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 739]. The IPA was not violated by the Regents because student exams are not "records" within the meaning of the IPA. The IPA, as defined in Civil Code §§ 1798.3, 1798.14 requires public agencies to maintain records that contain personal information about individuals. The university does not maintain student exams in a central location, and student exams do not contain personal information about the students. Therefore, the IPA does not apply to student exams [Moghadam v. Regents of University of California (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 466, 477-479, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 739].

Investigative reports prepared under Prob. Code § 1513 that are part of a probate court guardianship proceeding are confidential but parties to the guardianship proceeding and their attorneys are entitled to copies of the report in a timely manner before the guardianship hearing to allow adequate time to prepare for the hearing [Prob. Code § 1513(d); Tracy A. v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1309, 1318-1319, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 684] .

Complaints of discrimination filed against two community college police officers, one by a faculty member, and one by a student, had to be disclosed to the officers under provisions of the Public Safety Officers Procedural Bills of Rights Act [Gov. Code § 3305] that require public safety officers to read and sign comments adverse to their employment interests before the comments are entered into a personnel file or used in a personnel matter against the employee. The complaints were made to the college administration, Office of Affirmative Action. The court held that disclosure was required under Gov. Code § 3305. Because the court ordered disclosure only to the two police officers, and not to the general public, the Court did not decide whether disclosure was required under the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code §§ 6254, 6255]. However, the court rejected an argument that the two complaints were protected from disclosure under the Family Educational and Privacy Act (FERPA) [20 U.S.C. § 1232g(a)(4)(A) & (b)(2)]. The court reasoned that one complaint was brought by a faculty member (to whom the FERPA statute did not apply because it dealt with student records), and disclosure of the other complaint by a student to the police officer did not violate federal law [Seligsohn v. Day (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 518, 531-532, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 909] . A police officer did not have the right under the Public Safety Officers Procedural Bill of Rights Act (POBRA) provisions [Gov. Code §§ 3305, 3306.5] to review all investigative materials maintained by the police department related to complaints against the officer, but only those materials that contained complaints or adverse comments against the officer so that the officer had the opportunity to respond to the complaints or adverse comments [McMahon v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 1324, 1327-1328, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 68] .

The Second District, Division 1, California Court of Appeal held that confidential records maintained by the Commission on Judicial Performance related to complaints against judges are official records that are protected by the official records privilege under Evid. Code § 1040. These records can not be disclosed using the Pitchess motion procedure [Pitchess v. Superior Court 11 Cal. 3d 531, 540, 113 Cal. Rptr. 897, 522 P.2d 305], and an in camera review of these judicial records is improper [Commission on Judicial Performance v. Superior Court (2007) 156 Cal. App.4th 617, 623-625, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 434].

The California Court of Appeal applied the records exempt under other laws statutory exemption [Gov. Code § 6254(k)] and held that the common law principle that the mental processes of legislators could not be probed through the judicially ordered discovery process means that public records related to legislative processes that may reveal legislators' motives for passing specific laws are protected from disclosure under this statutory exemption [Gov. Code § 6254(k); Sutter's Place v. Superior Court (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1370, 1378-1379, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 9 (public records related to legislative history of ordinance are protected from disclosure under statutory exemption because they would reveal the mental processes and motives of the legislators in denying a hardship exemption to the business)].

[15] Correspondence With Governor's Office

Correspondence sent to or written by the governor or employees of the governor's office, as well as correspondence in the custody of or maintained by the governor's legal affairs secretary, is exempt [Gov. Code § 6254(l)]. The California Supreme Court construed this exemption to be limited to communications by letter and not to include the governor's appointment calendars and schedules [Times Mirror Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 1325, 1336-1337, 283 Cal. Rptr. 893, 813 P.2d 240] . However, letters and application forms received by the Governor's office from applicants for appointment to a vacant county supervisor's office do constitute correspondence under the statute and the Supreme Court's standard [California First Amendment Coalition v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 159, 169, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 847] . However, public records may not be transferred to the custody of the governor's legal affairs secretary to evade the disclosure provisions of the Act [Gov. Code § 6254(l)].

[16] Public Records and Writings of Governor

Public records, as defined in Gov. Code § 6252, in the custody or control of the Governor when he or she leaves office, either voluntarily or involuntarily, shall, as soon as is practical, be transferred to the State Archives. The Governor, by written instrument, the terms of which must be made public, may restrict public access to any of the transferred public records, or any other writings transferred, that have not already been made accessible to the public, notwithstanding any other provision of law. With respect to public records, public access, as otherwise provided for by Gov. Code §§ 6250-6277, shall not be restricted for a period greater than 50 years or until the death of the Governor, whichever is later. Nor shall there be any restriction whatsoever with respect to enrolled-bill files, press releases, speech files, or writings relating to applications for clemency or extradition in cases that have been closed for a period of at least 25 years. The Secretary of State, as custodian of the State Archives, must make all those public records and other writings available to the public, subject to any restrictions permitted by law [Gov. Code § 6268].

Except with regard to enrolled-bill files, press releases, speech files, or writings relating to applications for clemency or extradition, the statute does not apply to public records or other writings in the direct custody or control of any Governor who held office between 1974 and 1988 (Ronald Reagan, Edmund G. Brown, Jr., and George Deukmejian) at the time of leaving office, except to the extent that that Governor may voluntarily transfer those records or other writings to the State Archives [Gov. Code § 6268].

The public records and other writings of any Governor who held office between 1974 and 1988 may be transferred to any educational or research institution in California, notwithstanding any other provision of law. With respect to public records, however, public access, as otherwise provided for by law, shall not be restricted for a period greater than 50 years or until the death of the Governor, whichever is later. No records or writings may be transferred pursuant to Gov. Code § 6268 unless the institution receiving them agrees to maintain, and does maintain, the materials according to commonly accepted archival standards. No public records transferred shall be destroyed by that institution without prior written approval of the Secretary of State, as custodian of the State Archives, who may require that the records be placed in the State Archives rather than be destroyed. An institution receiving those records or writings shall allow the Secretary of State, as custodian of the State Archives, to copy, at state expense, and to make available to the public any and all public records, and inventories, indices, or finding aids relating to those records, that the institution makes available to the public generally. Copies of those records in the custody of the State Archives shall be given the same legal effect as is given to the originals [Gov. Code § 6268].

[17] Legislative Counsel Records

Records in the custody of or maintained by the legislative counsel are also exempt [Gov. Code § 6254(m)]. However, records maintained by the legislative counsel that are part of the public data base [Gov. Code § 10248] are not exempt from disclosure [Gov. Code § 6254(m)]. These records include certain information about bills introduced into the legislature, proceedings of the houses and committees of the legislature, statutes that have been enacted by the legislature, and the California Constitution [Gov. Code § 10248; Gov. Code § 9075(f)].

[18] Financial Data

Statements of personal worth or personal financial data required by a licensing agency and filed with the agency by a license applicant to establish personal qualification for the license, certificate, or permit are exempt [Gov. Code § 6254(n)]. This exemption applies only to financial data given to obtain a license, and is thus narrower than the comparable exemption in the federal Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) [5 U.S.C. § 552]. The term "license" in Gov. Code § 6254(n) must be construed narrowly in order to give effect to the legislative intent that favors disclosure over secrecy in government [San Gabriel Tribune v. Superior Court (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 762, 779, 192 Cal. Rptr. 415] . Thus, for instance, financial data given by a waste disposal company pursuant to a contract with the city is not subject to this exemption. If the Legislature had intended a broad exemption to apply to financial statements, it would not have limited the exemption only to applicants with licensing agencies [San Gabriel Tribune v. Superior Court (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 762, 779, 192 Cal. Rptr. 415] .

Financial data submitted to the California Pollution Control Financing Authority [Health & Safety Code §§ 44500-44557 (California Pollution Control Financing Authority Act)] is also exempt when an authorized officer of that Authority determines that disclosure would be competitively injurious to the applicant and the data is required in order to obtain guarantees from the United States Small Business Administration [Gov. Code § 6254(o)].

[19] Employee Relations Data

Employee relations data are exempt. Employee relations data include data relating to state employer-employee relations [Gov. Code §§ 3512-3524 (Ralph C. Dills Act)], state employee organizations [Gov. Code §§ 3525-3536], and higher education employer-employee relations [Gov. Code §§ 3560-3599], that reveal a state agency's work product (including deliberative processes, impressions, evaluations, opinions, recommendations, meeting minutes, research, theories, or strategy), or that provide instruction, advice, or training to employees who do not have full collective bargaining and representation rights [Gov. Code § 6254(p)].

[20] Health Care Service Provider Records

Additional exempt records include records relating to health care services providers' negotiations [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 14081-14087.29 (selective provider contracts), 14087.5-14087.95 (county health system), 14089-14089.5 (expanded choice of health care systems)] that reveal the special negotiator's work product (including deliberative processes, discussions, communications, or any other portion of the negotiations with providers of health care services; impressions; opinions; recommendations; meeting minutes; research; theories; or strategy), or that provide instruction, advice, or training to employees [Gov. Code § 6254(q)]. Contracts for inpatient services, however, are generally open to inspection one year after they are fully executed, except portions containing rates of payment, which are generally open to inspection three years thereafter [Gov. Code § 6254(q) (contracts may also be inspected at any time by Joint Legislative Audit Committee and the Legislative Analyst's Office)].

[21] Health Care Plan Records

No law shall require the disclosure of records of a health plan that is licensed pursuant to the Knox-Keene Health Care Service Plan Act of 1975 and that is governed by a county board of supervisors. Records that may not be disclosed include paper records, records maintained in the management information system, or records in any other form, that relate to provider rate or payment determinations, allocation or distribution methodologies for provider payments, formulae or calculations for these payments, and contract negotiations with providers of health care for alternative rates. They cannot be disclosed for a period of three years after the contract is fully executed. Administrative transmission of these records does not constitute a waiver of this exemption from disclosure [Gov. Code § 6254.22].

[22] In-Home Supportive Service Records

Information regarding persons paid by the state to provide in-home supportive services under the In-Home Supportive Services Program governed by the Welfare & Institutions Code is not subject to public disclosure. Certain administrative exceptions exist solely for transmitting copies of names, addresses, and telephone numbers of the persons to authorized agents or organizations for the purposes of employee organizing, representation, and assistance activities of a labor organization [Gov. Code § 6253.2].

[23] Native American Grave Records

Records of Native American graves, cemeteries, and sacred places and records of Native American places, features, and objects described in Sections 5097.9 and 5097.993 of the Public Resources Code maintained by, or in the possession of, the Native American Heritage Commission, another state agency, or a local agency [Gov. Code § 6254(r)].

[24] Hospital Records

A final accreditation report of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, which has been transmitted to the State Department of Health Services [Health & Safety Code § 1282(b)] is exempt [Gov. Code § 6254(s)]. Records of a local hospital district [Health & Safety Code §§ 32000-32492] or the records of a municipal hospital formed by law [Gov. Code §§ 37600, 37650], relating to any contract with an insurer or a nonprofit hospital plan for patient services at alternative rates [Ins. Code §§ 10133, 11512] are also exempt. However, the record will become open to inspection within one year after the contract is fully executed [Gov. Code § 6254(t)].

[25] Address and Telephone Number Information for Government Employees

The home addresses and home telephone numbers of state employees, school district employees, or county office of education employees are not public records and are specifically prohibited from public inspection. However, disclosure may be made to (1) an agent or family member of the individual to whom the information pertains; (2) an officer or employee of another state agency, school district, or county office of education when necessary for the performance of its official duties; (3) an employee organization, pursuant to regulations and decisions of the Public Employment Relations Board, unless the employee performs law enforcement functions or has requested in writing that the information not be disclosed; and (4) an agent or employee of a health benefit plan [Gov. Code § 6254.3(a)(1)-(4)]. However, upon written request of any employee, a state agency, school district, or county office of education shall not disclose the employee's home address or home telephone number to an employee organization, and an agency shall remove the employee's home address and home telephone number from any mailing list maintained by the agency, except if the list is used exclusively by the agency to contact the employee [Gov. Code § 6254.3(b)].

[26] Air Pollution Control District Information

Trade secret information submitted to air pollution control districts does not constitute a public record [Gov. Code § 6254.7(d); Mansonite Corp. v. Superior Court (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1045 ; see [29], below. The term "trade secret" includes any formula, plan, pattern, process, tool, mechanism, compound, procedure, production data, or compilation of information that (1) is not patented, (2) is known only to certain individuals within a commercial concern who use it to produce a product or service with commercial value, and (3) gives its user the opportunity to obtain a business advantage over competitors who do not know or use it. All air pollution emission data, including data that constitute trade secret information, are public records [Gov. Code § 6254.7(d), (e); Masonite Corp. v. Superior Court (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1045, 1056-1058, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 173] . Data used to calculate the costs of obtaining emissions offsets are not public records. However, certain information for a permit to construct, obtained from an applicant who is required to obtain offsets, is a public record if the permit is issued, but is not a public record if the permit is not issued and the application is denied. This information includes data obtained from the applicant consisting of the year the offset transaction occurred; the amount of offsets purchased by pollutant; and the total cost, by pollutant, of the offsets purchased [Gov. Code § 6254.7(f)].

[27] Archeological Site Records

Records that relate to archaeological site information and reports maintained by, or in the possession of, the Department of Parks and Recreation, the State Historical Resources Commission, the State Lands Commission, the Native American Heritage Commission, another state agency, or a local agency, including the records that the agency obtains through a consultation process between a California Native American tribe and a state or local agency are not public records [Gov. Code § 6254.10].

[28] Legal Counsel Memoranda

Memoranda that (1) are submitted to a state body or the legislative body of a local agency by its legal counsel and (2) relate to closed sessions for the purpose of discussing pending litigation [Gov. Code §§ 11126(q), 54956.9] are not public records and are not available for disclosure until the litigation has been finally adjudicated or otherwise settled [Gov. Code § 6254.25]. The memoranda are also protected by the attorney work-product privilege until the pending litigation has been finally adjudicated or otherwise settled [Roberts v. City of Palmdale (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 363, 378, 20

Cal. Rptr. 2d 330, 853 P.2d 496] . Written legal opinions by the attorney for a local governing body that are not related to pending litigation but are protected by the attorney-client privilege are protected from disclosure under the Public Record Act exemption [Gov. Code § 6254(k)] or for records exempt under other laws [Gov. Code § 6254.25].

[29] Trade Secrets

[a] Exemption Not Absolute

Before 1970, the Act expressly exempted trade secrets [under former Gov. Code § 6254(d)]. Exemptions for trade secrets must now be found under exemptions or prohibitions in provisions of federal or state law, including the Evidence Code [Gov. Code § 6254(k); CBS, Inc. v. Block (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 646, 656, 230 Cal. Rptr. 362, 725 P.2d 470] . Evid. Code § 1060 creates a privilege for trade secrets. The owner of a trade secret has a privilege to refuse to disclose it, and to prevent another from disclosing it, if the allowance of the privilege will not tend to conceal fraud or otherwise work injustice. The trade secret privilege is not absolute, however. For example, in a case in which a county agricultural commissioner sought to withhold pesticide records, he asserted the trade secret privilege. The court held that the qualification in Evid. Code § 1060, which states that "allowance of the privilege will not tend to conceal fraud or otherwise work injustice," requires a balancing of interests to determine if the exemption will be allowed [Uribe v. Howie (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 194, 96 Cal. Rptr. 493] . The court reasoned that an absolute privilege for all trade secrets could amount to a legally sanctioned license for unfair competition or fraud and could enable the continued use of dangerous materials by a party asserting the privilege [Uribe v. Howie (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 194, 206, 96 Cal. Rptr. 493] .

Ins. Code § 1861.07 requires public disclosure of information provided to the Insurance Commissioner by regulated insurance companies, including insurer developed community service statements that contain statistical information by zip code that allow the commissioner to determine which communities in California are underserved by insurance companies. Ins. Code § 1861.07 does not authorize a trade secret exemption under Gov. Code § 6254(k) that would prevent disclosure of community service statements under the Public Records Act. Thus, the insurers' claim that these statements are trade secrets that are exempt from disclosure was rejected by the California Supreme Court. Public disclosure of the statements by the Insurance Commissioner was proper [State Farm Mutual Automobile Ins. Co. v. Garamendi (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 1029, 1046-1047, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343, 88 P.3d 71] .

Trade secrets and other confidential information that are contained in records of county health authorities and commissions are exempt from disclosure under the provisions of Gov. Code § 6276.24, and are exempt from disclosure under local laws [Gov. Code § 6276.24].

[b] Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act

The Director of Pesticide Regulation, upon his or her initiative, or upon receipt of a request for the release of data submitted and designated as a trade secret by a registrant or applicant, shall determine whether any or all of the data so submitted is a properly designated trade secret. In order to assure that the interested public has an opportunity to obtain and to review pesticide safety and efficacy data and to comment prior to the expiration of the public comment period on a proposed pesticide registration, the director shall provide notice to interested persons when an application for registration enters the registration evaluation process [Gov. Code § 6254.2(b)]. If the director determines that the data is not a trade secret, the director shall notify the registrant or applicant by certified mail [Gov. Code § 6254.2(c)]. The registrant or applicant shall have 30 days after receipt of this notification to provide the director with a complete justification and statement of the grounds on which the trade secret privilege is claimed. This justification and statement shall be submitted by certified mail [Gov. Code § 6254.2(d)]. The director shall determine whether the data is protected as a trade secret within 15 days after receipt of the justification and statement or, if no justification and statement is filed, within 45 days of the original notice. The director shall notify the registrant or applicant and any party who has requested the data of thedetermination by certified mail. If the director determines that the data is not protected as a trade secret, the final notice shall also specify a date,not sooner than 15 days after the date of mailing of the final notice, when the data shall be available to any person requesting information [Gov. Code § 6254.2(e)].

"Trade secret" means data that is nondisclosable under 7 U.S.C. § 136h(d)(1) of the federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act [Gov. Code § 6254.2(f)]. This law shall be operative only so long as, and to the extent that, enforcement of 7 U.S.C. § 136h(d)(1) of the federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act has not been enjoined by federal court order, and shall become inoperative if an unappealable federal court judgment or decision becomes final that holds that paragraph invalid, to the extent of the invalidity [Gov. Code § 6254.2(g)].

The California Court of Appeal held that the Department of Pesticide Regulation did not have authority under the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6254.2] to either disclose or use data submitted by a pesticide manufacturer for evaluating applications for pesticide registrations submitted by other manufacturers without the consent of the manufacturer who submitted the data [Syngenta Crop Protection, Inc. v. Helliker (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1170-1172, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 191] .

For further discussion regarding the federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act see § 470C.13[49] and for form for affirmation of status for information to Department of Pesticide Regulation, see § 470C.51.

[30] Firearm License Applications

Information in applications for licenses for firearms is exempt if it meets both of the following criteria [Gov. Code § 6254(u)(1)]: (A) The license applied for is issued by the sheriff of a county or by the chief or other head of a municipal police department; and (B) The information indicates where or when the applicant is vulnerable to attack or it concerns the medical or psychological history of the applicant or of members of the applicant's family. In addition, the following information is exempt: (1) The home address and telephone number of peace officers, judges, court commissioners, and magistrates that are set forth in applications for licenses to carry firearms issued under Penal Code § 12050 by the sheriff of a county or the chief or other head of a municipal police department [Gov. Code § 6254(u)(2)]; and (2) The home address and telephone number of peace officers, judges, court commissioners, and magistrates that are set forth in licenses to carry firearms issued under Penal Code § 12050 by the sheriff of a county or the chief or other head of a municipal police department [Gov. Code § 6254(u)(3)].

[31] Managed Risk Medical Insurance Board Records (Health Care)

Records of the Managed Risk Medical Insurance Board Records (Health Care) [Ins. Code §§ 12695-12699.50, 12700-12739.4] are exempt if they: (1) reveal deliberative processes, discussions, communications, or any other portion of the negotiations with health plans; (2) disclose impressions, opinions, recommendations, meeting minutes, research, work product, theories, or strategy of the board or its staff; or (3) include records that provide instruction, advice, or training to employees [Gov. Code § 6254(v)(1)]. Health coverage contracts under this program may be inspected under the public records act one year after execution [Gov. Code § 6254(v)(2)(A) (health coverage contracts entered into on or after July 1, 1991)], oramendment [Gov. Code § 6254(v)(2)(B) (health coverage contracts entered into prior to July 1, 1991, but amended on or after July 1, 1991)], except for contractual provisions containing rates of payment, which may be inspected three years after the rest of the contract or amendment is open to inspection [Gov. Code § 6254(v)(3)]. However, the entire contract or amendments to a contract shall be open to inspection by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee. The Joint Legislative Audit Committee shall maintain the confidentiality of the contracts and amendments thereto, until the contract or amendments to a contract is open to inspection [Gov. Code § 6254(v)(4)].

Records of the Major Risk Medical Insurance Program related to activities governed by Ins. Code §§ 10700 et seq. are exempt to the extent that they reveal the deliberative processes, discussions, communications, or any other portion of the negotiations with health plans, or the impressions, opinions, recommendations, meeting minutes, research, work product, theories, or strategy of the Board or its staff, or records that provide instructions, advice, or training to employees [Gov. Code § 6254(w)(1)]. Health coverage contracts [Ins. Code §§ 10700 et seq.], except for the portion containing payment rates, shall be open to inspection one year after they have been fully executed [Gov. Code § 6254(w)(2)]. Health plan contracts shall be open to inspection by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee on a confidential basis until the contract is open to inspection [Gov. Code § 6254(w)(3)].

[32] Managed Risk Medical Insurance Board Records

Except as provided in Gov. Code § 6254.7 (air pollution data as public records), nothing in the California Public Records Act (Gov. Code §§ 6250-6277) may be construed to require disclosure of records of the Managed Risk Medical Insurance Board related to activities governed by Ins. Code §§ 12693 et seq. (health insurance coverage for low income families ineligible for Medi-Cal) that reveal the deliberative processes, discussions, communications, or any other portion of the negotiations with health plans, or the impressions, opinions, recommendations, meeting minutes, research, work product, theories or strategy of the board or its staff, or records that provide instructions, advice, or training to employees [Gov. Code § 6254(y)(1)]. Except for portions of contracts that contain rates of payment, contracts entered into on or after January 1, 1998, and amendments to those contracts, must be open to inspection one year after they have been fully executed [Gov. Code § 6254(y)(2)]. Three years after a contract or amendment is open to inspection, the portion of the contract or amendment containing the rates of payment must be open to inspection [Gov. Code § 6254(y)(3)]. Health plan contracts shall be open to inspection by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee on a confidential basis until the contract is open to inspection [Gov. Code § 6254(y)(4)].

The disclosure exemption authorized by Gov. Code § 6254(y)(1) also includes contracts, deliberative process, discussions, communications, negotiations with health plans, impressions, opinions, recommendations meeting minutes, research, work product, theories or strategy of applicants under Ins. Code § 12699.50 et seq. [Gov. Code § 6254(y)(5)]. Also exempt from disclosure are MRMI Board records related to employee activities covered by Labor Code § 2120 et seq. including records that reveal deliberative processes, discussions, communications, or contract negotiations, or impressions, opinions, recommendations, meeting minutes, research, work product, theories, or strategy of the Board or its staff, or records with employee instructions, advice or training [Gov. Code § 6254(y)(1)].

[33] Service Contractor Financial Data

Except as provided in Gov. Code § 6254.7 (air pollution data as public records), nothing in the California Public Records Act (Gov. Code §§ 6250-6277) may be construed to require disclosure of the following [Gov. Code § 6254(x)]: financial data contained in applications for registration, or registration renewal, as a service contractor filed with the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs under Bus. & Prof. Code § 9800 et seq. for the purpose of establishing the service contractor's net worth; or financial data regarding funded accounts held in escrow for service contracts held in force in California by a service contractor.

[34] Housing Records

Except as provided in Gov. Code § 6254.7 (air pollution data as public records), nothing in the California Public Records Act (Gov. Code §§ 6250-6277) requires disclosure of records of the residence address of any person contained in the records of the Department of Housing and Community Development, if the person has requested confidentiality of that information under Health & Safety Code § 18081 [Gov. Code § 6254.1(a)]. Pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 18081, a person who has furnished necessary information regarding registration and title status of a manufactured home, mobilehome, commercial coach, truck camper, or floating home to the Department of Housing and Community Development may request that his or her home address remain confidential [Health & Safety Code § 18081].

[35] Address Information in DMV Records

Nothing in the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code §§ 6250-6277] requires the disclosure of the residence or mailing address of any person in any record of the Department of Motor Vehicles except in accordance with Veh. Code

§ 1808.21 [Gov. Code § 6254.1(b)]. Pursuant to Veh. Code § 1808.21, any residence address in any record of the Department of MotorVehicle is confidential, and disclosure to any person, except to a court, law enforcement agency, or other government agency or as authorized in Veh. Code § 1808.22, is prohibited [Veh. Code § 1808.21(a); Veh. Code § 1808.21(c) (provider of mailing address must declare truth of information and consent to service of process at that address)]. Release of any complete or partial mailing address in any record of the Department of Motor Vehicles may be restricted for purposes related to the reasons for which the information was collected, including, but not limited to, the assessment of driver risk or ownership of vehicles or vessels [Veh. Code § 1808.21(b)].

[a] Procedures to Protect Confidentiality

Any person who has access to confidential or restricted information from the Department of Motor Vehicles must establish procedures to protect the confidentiality of those records. If confidential or restricted addresses are released to any agent of a person authorized to obtain restricted addresses [Veh. Code §§ 1808.21, 1808.22, 1810.2 (commercial requestor accounts), or § 1810.7 Veh. Code § 1810.7 access to DMV electronic data base for commercial use)], the person must require the agent to take all steps necessary to ensure confidentiality of these addresses and to prevent any release of the information to a third party. No agent may obtain or use any confidential or restricted records from requestor-code holders for any purpose other than the reason the information was requested by the requestor-code holder who originally obtained the information [Veh. Code § 1808.47]. The home addresses of certain people, including legislators, judges and court commissioners, district attorneys, public defenders, peace officers, and other specified people with responsibilities related to law enforcement or corrections, are confidential [Veh. Code §§ 1808.4, 1808.6].

[b] Suppression

[i] Procedure

Any registration or driver's license record of a person may be suppressed from any other person, except for those persons specified [Veh. Code § 1808.21(a) (that is, a court, law enforcement agency, or other government agency)], or as authorized by law [Veh. Code § 1808.22], if the person requesting the suppression submits verification acceptable to the department that he or she has reasonable cause to believe that he or she is the subject of a stalking [Civ. Code § 1708.7, or Penal Code § 646.9], or that there exists a threat of death or great bodily injury to his or her person [as defined in Penal Code § 12022.7(d);[Veh. Code § 1808.21(d)(1)].

[ii] Duration

Once a record has been suppressed under this provision, each request for information about that record must be authorized by the subject of therecord or verified as legitimate by other investigative means by the department before the information is released [Veh. Code § 1808.21(d)(2)]. Suppression of a record lasts for one year after approval by the department. Not less than 60 days before the date the suppression of the record would otherwise expire, the department must notify the subject of the record of its impending expiration [Veh. Code § 1808.21(e)]. The suppression may be continued for two additional periods of one year each if a letter is submitted to the department stating that the person continues to have a reasonable cause to believe that he or she is the subject of stalking or that there exists a threat of death or great bodily injury. The suppression may be additionally continued at the end of the second one-year period by submitting verification acceptable to the department. The notification must instruct the person of the method to reapply for record suppression [Veh. Code § 1808.21(e)].

[iii] Documentation

"Verification acceptable to the department" means recent police reports, court documentation, or other documentation from a law enforcement agency [Veh. Code § 1808.21(f)].

[iv] Penalties for Disclosure

Wrongful disclosure of Motor Vehicle Records may result in civil penalties payable to the Department of Motor Vehicles, revocation of requestor-code privileges, and criminal prosecution [Veh. Code § 1808.45 (criminal penalties), Veh. Code § 1808.46 (civil penalties and sanctions)].

Specifically, the Act does not exempt from public disclosure the same categories of pesticide safety and efficacy information that are disclosable under federal law [7 U.S.C. § 136h(d)(1)], if the individual requesting the information is not an officer, employee, or agent specified in Gov. Code § 6254.2(h) and signs the affirmation specified in Gov. Code § 6254.2(h) [Gov. Code § 6254.2(a)].

Without regard to the limits on disclosure herein, the director may disclose information submitted by an applicant or registrant to any person in connection with a public proceeding conducted under law or regulation, if the director determines that the information is needed to determine whether a pesticide, or any ingredient of any pesticide, causes unreasonable adverse effects on health or the environment [*Gov. [50] Terrorist Attack Risk Assessments

This subdivision shall not affect the status of information in the possession of any other state or local governmental agency [Gov. Code § 6254(ab)].

The Sixth District California Court of Appeal upheld the decision of the superior court ordering disclosure by the County of Santa Clara of geographic information system (GIS) base maps prepared by the county. The county unsuccessfully argued that the Critical Infrastructure Information (CII) federal statute [6 U.S.C. §§ 131-134] preempted state law and prohibited disclosure of the base maps. The court held that the federal act did not apply to submitters of information and the county was a submitter of information, not a recipient of information to which the federal act [6 U.S.C. §§ 131-134] and regulations [6 C.F.R. § 29.8(g)] did apply. Thus, federal law did not forbid disclosure of the base maps [County of Santa Clara v. Superior court (6th Dist., 2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1301, 1314-1316, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 374] . Also, the county argued that the public interest exemption [Gov. Code § 6255] was applicable, and provided a basis for the county to not disclose the records. The court of appeal rejected that argument and held that the public interest in disclosure outweighed the public interest in non disclosure. The court of appeal weighed disclosure interests (public scrutiny of public records) against non disclosure interests (financial and security interests), and found that the balance between those two interests justified disclose of the information [County of Santa Clara v. Superior court (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1301, 1323-1324, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 374] .

Additionally, risk assessment or railroad infrastructure protection program information that has been filed with the Public Utilities Commission, the Director of Homeland Security, and the Office of Emergency Services under the provisions of Public Utilities Code §§ 7665-7667 is exempt from disclosure [Gov. Code § 6254.23].

Also, a health facility may disclose to a certified bargaining agent relevant financing information pursuant to Section 8 of the National Labor Relations Act [Gov. Code § 6254(ac)].

[52] Reproductive Health Services Facility Information

There is an exemption from disclosure for any personal information received, collected, or compiled by a public agency regarding the employees, volunteers, board members, owners, partners, officers, or contractors of a reproductive health services facility who have notified the public agency pursuant to *Gov. "Public agency" includes the following [Gov. Code § 6254.18(b)(3)]:

- State Department of Health Care Services [Gov. Code § 6254.18(b)(3)(A)],
- Department of Consumer Affairs [Gov. Code § 6254.18(b)(3)(B)],
- Department of Managed Health Care [Gov. Code § 6254.18(b)(3)(C)]; and
- State Department of Public Health [Gov. Code § 6254.18(b)(3)(D)].

"Reproductive health services facility" means the office of a licensed physician and surgeon whose specialty is family practice, obstetrics, or gynecology, or a licensed clinic, where at least 50 percent of the patients of the physician or the clinic are provided with family planning or abortion services [Gov. Code § 6254.18(b)(4)].

The exemption from disclosure provided by this section to an individual who is an employee, volunteer, board member, officer, or contractor of a reproductive health services facility is applicable when the individual has notified the public agency to which his or her personal information is being submitted or has been submitted that he or she falls within the protections of this statute. The reproductive health services facility shall retain a copy of all notifications submitted pursuant to this section [Gov. Code § 6254.18(d)]. This notification shall be valid if it complies with all of the following requirements:

- Is on the official letterhead of the facility [Gov. Code § 6254.18(d)(1)];
- Is clearly separate from any other language present on the same page and is executed by a signature that serves no other purpose than to execute the notification [Gov. Code § 6254.18(d)(2)];

- Is signed and dated by both of the following [Gov. Code § 6254.18(d)(3)(A), (B)]:
  - The individual whose information is being submitted; and
  - The executive officer or his or her designee of the reproductive health services facility.

The exemption for disclosure for personal information authorized by this statute shall be effective from the time of notification pursuant to Gov. Code § 6254.18(d) until either one of the following occurs:

- Six months after the date of separation from a reproductive health services facility for an individual who has served for not more than one year as an employee, contractor, volunteer, board member, or officer of the reproductive health services facility [Gov. Code § 6254.18(e)(1)]; or

- One year after the date of separation from a reproductive health services facility for an individual who has served for more than one year as an employee, contractor, volunteer, board member, or officer of the reproductive health services facility [Gov. Code § 6254.18(e)(2)].

Within 90 days of separation of an employee, contractor, volunteer, board member, or officer of the reproductive health services facility who has provided notice to a public agency pursuant to subdivision (c), the facility shall provide notice of the separation to the relevant agency or agencies [Gov. Code § 6254.18(f)].

The exemption from disclosure does not prevent the disclosure by a government agency of data regarding age, race, ethnicity, national origin, or gender of individuals whose personal information is protected pursuant to this section, so long as the data contains no individually identifiable information [Gov. Code § 6254.18(g)]. Any person may institute proceedings for injunctive or declarative relief or writ of mandate in any court of competent jurisdiction to obtain access to employment history information pursuant to Gov. Code § 6258 and Gov. Code § 6259. If the court finds, based on the facts of a particular case, that the public interest served by disclosure of employment history information clearly outweighs the public interest served by not disclosing the information, the court shall order the officer or person charged with withholding the information to disclose employment history information or show cause why he or she should not do so pursuant to Gov. Code § 6259 [Gov. Code § 6254.18(c)].

[53] Public Investment Funds Alternative Investment Records

- Quarterly and annual financial statements of alternative investment vehicles.

- The name, address, and vintage year of each alternative investment vehicle.

- The dollar amount of the commitment made to each alternative investment vehicle by the public investment fund since inception.

- The dollar amount of the total management fees and costs paid on an annual fiscal year end basis, by the public investment fund to each alternative investment vehicle.

- The dollar amount of cash profit received by public investment funds from each alternative investment vehicle on a fiscal year end basis.

For purposes of this section, the following definitions shall apply [Gov. Code § 6254.26 (c)(1)-(4)]:

- "Alternative investment" means an investment in a private equity fund, venture fund, hedge fund, or absolute return fund.

- "Alternative investment vehicle" means the limited partnership, limited liability company, or similar legal structure through which the public investment fund invests in portfolio companies.

- "Portfolio positions" means individual portfolio investments made by the alternative investment vehicles.

- "Public investment fund" means any public pension or retirement system, and any public endowment or foundation.

[54] State Compensation Insurance Fund Records

The following records of the State Compensation Insurance Fund are not subject to disclosure [Gov. Code § 6254(ad)]:

- Records related to claims pursuant to Chapter 1 (commencing with Section 3200) of Division 4 of the Labor Code, to the extent that confidential medical information or other individually identifiable information would be disclosed [Gov. Code § 6254(ad)(1)];

- Records related to the discussions, communications, or any other portion of the negotiations with entities contracting or seeking to contract with the fund, and any related deliberations [Gov. Code § 6254(ad)(2)];

- Records obtained to provide workers' compensation insurance under Chapter 4 (commencing with Section 11770) of Part 3 of Division 2 of the Insurance Code, including, but not limited to, any medical claims information, policyholder information provided that nothing in this paragraph shall be interpreted to prevent an insurance agent or broker from obtaining proprietary information or other information authorized by law to be obtained by the agent or broker, and information on rates, pricing, and claims handling received from brokers [Gov. Code § 6254(ad)(4)];

- Records that are trade secrets pursuant to Section 6276.44, or Article 11 (commencing with Section 1060) of Chapter 4 of Division 8 of the Evidence Code, including without limitation, instructions, advice, or training provided by the State Compensation Insurance Fund to its board members, officers, and employees regarding the fund's special investigation unit, internal audit unit, and informational security, marketing, rating, pricing, underwriting, claims handling, audits, and collections [Gov. Code § 6254(ad)(5)(A)]; Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), the portions of records containing trade secrets shall be available for review by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, the Bureau of State Audits, Division of Workers' Compensation, and the Department of Insurance to ensure compliance with applicable law [Gov. Code § 6254(ad)(5)(A)];

- Internal audits containing proprietary information and the following records that are related to an internal audit [Gov. Code § 6254(ad)(6)(A)]: Personal papers and correspondence of any person providing assistance to the fund when that person has requested in writing that his or her papers and correspondence be kept private and confidential. Those papers and correspondence shall become public records if the written request is withdrawn, or upon order of the fund [Gov. Code § 6254(ad)(5)(A)(i)]; Papers, correspondence, memoranda, or any substantive information pertaining to any audit not completed or an internal audit that contains proprietary information [Gov. Code § 6254(ad)(5)(A)(ii)]; Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), the portions of records containing proprietary information, or any information specified in subparagraph (A) shall be available for review by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, the Bureau of State Audits, Division of Workers' Compensation, and the Department of Insurance to ensure compliance with applicable law [Gov. Code § 6254(ad)(5)(B)];

- Except as provided in subparagraph (C), contracts entered into pursuant to Chapter 4 (commencing with Section 11770) of Part 3 of Division 2 of the Insurance Code shall be open to inspection one year after the contract has been fully executed [Gov. Code § 6254(ad)(7)(A)]. If a contract entered into pursuant to Chapter 4 (commencing with Section 11770) of Part 3 of Division 2 of the Insurance Code is amended, the amendment shall be open to inspection one year after the amendment has been fully executed [Gov. Code § 6254(ad)(7)(B)]. Three years after a contract or amendment is open to inspection pursuant to this subdivision, the portion of the contract or amendment containing the rates of payment shall be open to inspection [Gov. Code § 6254(ad)(7)(C)]. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the entire contract or amendments to a contract shall be open to inspection by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee. The committee shall maintain the confidentiality of the contracts and amendments thereto until the contract or amendments to a contract are open to inspection pursuant to this paragraph [Gov. Code § 6254(ad)(7)(D)]. Nothing in this paragraph is intended to apply to documents related to contracts with public entities that are not otherwise expressly confidential as to that public entity [Gov. Code § 6254(ad)(7)(E)]. For purposes of this paragraph, "fully executed" means the point in time when all of the necessary parties to the contract have signed the contract [Gov. Code § 6254(ad)(7)(F)].

[55] Public Interest Exemption

In addition to the various specific exemption categories discussed in [1] through [54] above, the Public Records Act provides for a generalized or "residual" exemption when it can be shown that on the facts of a particular case the public interest served by not making the record public clearly outweighs the public interest served by disclosure of the record [Gov. Code § 6255; California State University v. Superior Court (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 810, 824-825, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 870 ; Black Panther Party v. Kehoe (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 645, 657, 117 Cal. Rptr. 106] . The Act also refers to the right of individuals to privacy in its legislative findings and declarations [Gov. Code § 6250]. One exemption, for preliminary drafts, notes, or interagency or intraagency memoranda, is expressly made subject to this balancing test [Gov. Code § 6254(a)]. The balancing of interests must be made by the public agency, and then by the reviewing court if the person requesting records challenges the agency's nondisclosure. A clear overbalance on the side of confidentiality must be shown [Black Panther Party v. Kehoe (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 645, 657, 117 Cal. Rptr. 106] .

The California Supreme Court interpreted the "public interest" statutory exemption [Gov. Code § 6255], and held that the Governor of Californiaproperly refused a request to disclose his daily, weekly, and monthly appointment calendars and schedules for a five-year period of time. The court concluded that the public interest in nondisclosure of these records outweighed the public interest in disclosure [Times Mirror Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 1325, 1332, 283 Cal. Rptr. 893, 813 P.2d 240] . In so holding, the court relied on two interests: the governor's deliberative process privilege and the governor's interest in physical security. The court balanced the competing interest between disclosure and nondisclosure as to both interests, and concluded that both interests would be better served by nondisclosure [Times Mirror Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 1325, 1345-1347, 283 Cal. Rptr. 893, 813 P.2d 240] . As to the deliberative process privilege, the court analogized this privilege to the "executive privilege" exemption recognized under the federal Freedom of Information Act [5 U.S.C. § 552]. It concluded that a deliberative process privilege was recognized in California under the "public interest" statutory exemption [Times Mirror Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 1325, 1342-1344, 283 Cal. Rptr. 893, 813 P.2d 240] . As to physical security, the court concluded that disclosure of the governor's detailed daily and weekly schedules could pose a security risk to the governor because the governor's regular patterns of activity could be disclosed and used by someone intending to harm the governor [Times Mirror Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 1325, 1346-1347, 283 Cal. Rptr. 893, 813 P.2d 240] .

The California Supreme Court applied the public interest statutory exemption [Gov. Code § 6255] and held that the City of Los Angeles Department of Airports did not have to disclose proposals for commercial use of airport property that were submitted under a request for proposals (RFP) process until the Department had completed negotiations with bidders. Public disclosure could occur after the department had finished negotiations and made a recommendation for final approval by the awarding authority, but before the awarding authority had made a final approval decision. The public interest in non disclosure at the negotiating stage outweighed the public interest in disclosure [Michaelis, Montanari & Johnson v. Superior Court (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 1065, 1067, 1077, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663, 136 P.3d 194] .

In a case decided since Times Mirror, the public interest exemption was also applied to prevent disclosure to the Los Angeles Times of copies of applications submitted to the Governor by persons seeking appointment to the county Board of Supervisors. A California court of appeal first determined that like the Governor's appointment calendars and schedules sought in Times Mirror, the Board of Supervisor applications were subject to the deliberative process privilege of Gov. Code § 6255. The court then subjected the documents to the Times Mirror balancing test before determining that the public interest in nondisclosure outweighed the public interest in disclosure [California First Amendment Coalition v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 159, 169-174, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 847 ; Wilson v. Superior Court (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1136, 1144, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537] .

In one case, pesticide reports were sought from a county agricultural commissioner by an agricultural worker. The court weighed (1) the commissioner's argument that full disclosure to him would be inhibited if users thought their information would be made public against (2) the interest of the public in studying the effects of pesticides on humans. The court ruled that disclosure outweighed confidentiality because of the importance of the information on public health and medical treatment [Uribe v. Howie (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 194, 210, 96 Cal. Rptr 493] .

In another case, the Division of Industrial Safety was ordered by the trial court to disclose certain information relating to a bridge collapse. On appeal, the agency argued that to require disclosure would "dry up" their sources of information; if it were known that their records would be public, employers and employees would be reluctant to provide them with the information needed to keep every employee in the state safe. The appellate court ruled that the opposite effect may occur. Later discovery of adverse information in the agency's files might possibly cause employers to exercise greater care in industrial safety. This rationale, coupled with the legal requirement that employers must already provide this information, caused the court to rule that on balance the public interest would be better served by disclosure [State of California ex rel. Division of Industrial Safety v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 778, 786, 117 Cal. Rptr. 726].

In a third case, the State Board of Equalization was ordered to disclose documents which revealed the Board's practices in interpreting and applying administrative regulations governing sales and use taxes. Confidential taxpayer information had been stricken from the documents before disclosure. The party who requested disclosure of these documents was willing to pay reasonable processing costs. Under these circumstances, the public interest in disclosure outweighed the burden on the Board [State Bd. of Equalization v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1185, 1190-1191, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342] .

In a fourth case, the court held that a city was not required to disclose telephone numbers that were contained in telephone bills of city council members and city employees made while on trips conducting official business for the city. This information was protected under the deliberative process privilege [Rogers v. Superior Court (City of Burbank) (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 469, 475, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 412)].

In a fifth case, a state university was ordered to disclose documents containing the identity of anonymous donors and license agreements with those donors who gave money for the construction of a state university multipurpose arena and who received a multiyear license for use of a luxury suite in that arena. The court held that the public interest in disclosure of the records was not outweighed by the interest in non-disclosure [California State University v. Superior Court (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 810, 833-834, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 870] .

In a sixth case, a county public defender was not required to disclose information contained in an electronic database that included client files, publicly available information such as newspaper articles, and impeachment evidence, because the public interest in nondisclosure of the records, based on the public defender's responsibility to provide representation to indigent criminal defendants, and the adverse consequences that public access to that database would have for the responsibility, outweighs the public interest in disclosure of the records. Thus, the public interest exemption recognized in Gov. Code § 6255 is applicable to the public defender database, and prohibits disclosure of the database informationto the public [Coronado Police Officers Association v. Carroll (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1015-1016, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553] .

The identity of individuals with criminal convictions who were given exemptions by the Department of Social Services to allow them to work at licensed child day care facilities and a list of facilities that employ these persons is not exempt from disclosure under Gov. Code § 6255(c). This is because the public interest in disclosure is not outweighed by the public interest in non-disclosure. The state agency has the burden of showing that non disclosure is justified. In this case, the criminal conviction and the license held by the individual are public records and the licensed child care facilities do not have privacy interests in this context. Substantial costs that would be incurred by the agency to compile an accurate list are not a valid reason for non-disclosure [CBS Broadcasting, Inc. v. Superior Court (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 892, 908-909, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 889] .

The Court of Appeal upheld the decision of the trial court ordering disclosure of personnel records related to a specific incident in which a school district employee was disciplined. The school district argued that the exemption for personnel records, disclosure of which would constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy [Cal. Gov. Code § 6254(c)] and the public interest exemption [Cal. Gov. Code § 6255(c)], were applicable and provided a basis for the district to not disclose the records. The district argued that the standard for disclosure in this setting required a showing of reasonable cause that the complaint or charge was true, or a showing that the charge led to discipline being imposed on the employee. The Court of Appeal rejected this standard, and concluded that the court must review the records to determine the reliability of the documents so that the court can decide whether the complaint was well founded. Neither the truth of the charges nor the fact of employee discipline are necessary elements for showing a well founded complaint that should be disclosed. When a complaint is well founded, the public interest in disclosure outweighs the privacy interest of the employee. In this case, based on a review of the records, the court concluded that the complaint was well founded, and the records should be disclosed [Bakersfield City School District v. Superior Court (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1041, 1046-1047, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 517] .

The Sixth District California Court of Appeal upheld the decision of the superior court ordering disclosure by the County of Santa Clara of geographic information system (GIS) base maps prepared by the county. The county argued that the public interest exemption [Gov. Code § 6255] was applicable, and provided a basis for the county to not disclose the records. The court of appeal rejected that argument and held that the public interest in disclosure outweighed the public interest in non disclosure. The court of appeal weighed disclosure interests (public scrutiny of public records) against nondisclosure interests (financial and security interests), and found that the balance between those two interests justified disclose of the information [County of Santa Clara v. Superior Court (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1301, 1323-1324, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 374] . Furthermore, the court held that the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6254.9] did not provide for copyright protection of public records maintained by the county, and that the county could not insist on an end-user agreement as a condition of disclosure to protect any copyright interest [County of Santa Clara v. Superior Court (2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1301, 1335-1336, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 374] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 470C.14 Records Exempt Under Other Laws

[1] Court Records

Although court records are public records [Estate of Hearst (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 777, 785, 136 Cal. Rptr. 821] , specific statutory exemptions exist [Gov. Code § 6252(a)]. For example, Gov. Code § 6252(a) excludes records of agencies provided for in Article VI of the California Constitution which governs the state court system [Copley Press v. Superior Court (Adams) (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 106, 112, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841] . The following records are confidential and may not be disclosed to members of the public: (1) juvenile court documents [Welf. & Inst. Code § 827; In re Gina S. (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1074, 1078, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 277 (mother was entitled to inspect juvenile court files related to dependency proceeding of her daughter, but not to copy files unless authorized by court order); People v. Superior Court of Tulare County (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 488, 490-491, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144 (grand jury properly denied request to inspect juvenile court records under provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 827 when grand jury asserted right to inspect records under authority of Penal Code § 925 without making specific showing of good cause for inspection of records); In re Keisha T. (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 220, 231-232, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 822 (Juvenile court exercises discretion on whether to grant media access to confidential court records in juvenile dependency cases)]; (2) court records relating to commitment proceedings of a mentally abnormal sex offender [Welf. & Inst. Code § 4135]; and (3) records relating to actions to declare a minor child free from parental custody and control [Fam. Code § 7805]. However, the court clerk's initial or rough minutes are court records which should be available for public inspection [Copley Press v. Superior Court (Adams) (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 106, 115-116, 7 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841] .

The First District, Division 1, California Court of Appeal held that a criminal defendant who was indicted by a grand jury can prevent public disclosure of the grand jury transcript until the trial is completed by showing prejudice under the reasonable likelihood of prejudice standard of Penal Code § 938.1. That standard is controlling when a newspaper seeks to contest the sealing of a grand jury transcript not the First Amendment substantial probability standard that applies to ensure the press and the public a right of access to judicial proceedings [Alvarez v. Superior Court (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 642, 645-646, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854] .

Probation reports prepared as part of the criminal court sentencing process can be disclosed to the public for 60 days after sentencing occurs. However, after 60 days access is restricted under Penal Code § 1203.05 and requires the filing of a petition for members of the general public, including newspapers, to gain access to the reports. The Court of Appeal reversed the granting of a petition by the trial court that allowed a newspaper access to a defendant's probation report after the 60-day time period had expired. The Court of Appeal ruled that the defendant, who was the subject of the report, has a privacy interest in the personal information contained in the report after the 60-day time period has expired. The Court of Appeal held that the defendant has the right to notice and an opportunity to be heard at an in camera hearing related to personal information in the report that the subject wants to keep confidential. If no hearing is requested, the whole probation report can be disclosed. If a hearing is held, the court is required to balance the defendant's privacy interest in confidentiality of personal information against the benefit provided by the release of that information. Once the court has balanced those competing interests, the court has discretion to decide whether to redact personal information from the report. Once that decision is made, the court should release the part of the report that has not been redacted [People v. Connor (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 669, 676-677, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 521] . The California Court of Appeal held that a probationer facing probation revocation proceedings had the right to inspect non-confidential portions of his probation file kept by the county probation department, and the superior court had statutory authority under Penal Code § 1203.10 to allow that inspection [County of Placer v. Superior Court (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 807, 809, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617] .

County records related to reimbursement of travel expenses for judges, and court management employees, are exempt from disclosure under the courts records exemption [Gov. Code § 6252(a)]. However, the Judicial Council adopted Rule 6.702, which required the trial courts to maintain records related to court budgets, and management information, and to disclose these records upon a valid written request [Cal. Ct. Rule 6.702]. Furthermore, petitions to enforce disclosure of records under the Rule must be filed with the superior court, not the court of appeal [Orange County Employees Assn., Inc. v. Superior Court (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 287, 290-292, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 201] .

Confidential personal information of a witness to or victim of a crime that is contained in a police report, arrest report, or investigative report submitted to a court by a prosecutor to support bringing of criminal charges or to support the issuance of a search warrant or an arrest warrant is protected from disclosure based on mutually agreed procedures between the courts, prosecutors, and law enforcement agencies in each county [Penal Code § 964(a)]. "Confidential personal information" includes, but is not limited to, an address, telephone number, driver's license or California Identification Card number, social security number, date of birth, place of employment, employee identification number, mother's maiden name, demand deposit account number, savings or checking account number, or credit card number [Penal Code § 964(b)].

Other court records protected from disclosure include confidential information related to minors in guardianship proceedings, in which disclosure is limited to the courts, and to court-appointed investigators, child protective services workers, and juvenile probation officers. Family law court and a court hearing a probate guardianship matter shall, upon request from the juvenile court in any county, provide to the court all available information the court deems necessary to make a determination regarding the best interest of a child, who is the subject of a proceeding before the juvenile court. The information shall also be released to a child protective services worker or juvenile probation officer acting within the scope of his or her duties in that proceeding. Any information released pursuant to this section that is confidential pursuant to any other provision of law shall remain confidential and may not be released, except to the extent necessary to comply with this law. No records shared pursuant to this section may be disclosed to any party in a case unless the party requests the agency or court that originates the record to release these records and the request is granted. In counties that provide confidential family law mediation, or confidential dependency mediation, those mediations are not covered by this law [Welf. & Inst. Code § 204]. Similarly, the family law court is required to, upon request from the court in any county hearing a probate guardianship matter proceeding before the court, provide to the court all available information the court deems necessary to make a determination regarding the best interest of a child, as described in Fam. Code § 3011, who is the subject of the proceeding. The information shall also be released to a guardianship investigator, as provided in Prob. Code § 1513(a), acting within the scope of his or her duties in that proceeding. Any information released under this law that is confidential under other laws shall remain confidential and may not be released, except to the extent necessary to comply with this law. No records shared under this law may be disclosed to any party in a case unless the party requests the agency or court that originates the record to release these records and the requestis granted. In counties that provide confidential family law mediation, or confidential dependency mediation, those mediations are not covered by this law [Prob. Code § 1514.5].

Court records related to evaluations of children for custody or visitation purposes are also confidential, and protected from disclosure. In any proceeding involving child custody or visitation rights, if a report containing psychological evaluations of a child or recommendations regarding custody of, or visitation with, a child is submitted to the court, including, but not limited to, a report created under Fam. Code § 3110 et seq., a recommendation made to the court under Fam. Code § 3183, and a written statement of issues and contentions under Fam. Code § 3151(b), that information shall be contained in a document that shall be placed in the confidential portion of the court file of the proceeding, and may not be disclosed [Fam. Code § 3025.5], except to the following persons:

- A party to the proceeding and his or her attorney [Fam. Code § 3025.5(a)];

- A federal or state law enforcement officer, judicial officer, court employee, or family court facilitator for the county in which the action was filed, or an employee or agent of that facilitator, acting within the scope of his or her duties [Fam. Code § 3025.5(b)];

- A counsel appointed for the child under Fam. Code § 3150 [Fam. Code § 3025.5(c)]; and

- Any other person upon order of the court for good cause [Fam. Code § 3025.5(d)].

[2] Mentally Disabled Persons Records

Records and information relating to services provided to mentally disabled persons [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 4000-7700] are confidential. These records may be disclosed only in limited circumstances, such as in communications between professionals regarding treatment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328(a)], when the patient has authorized disclosure [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328(b), (d)], or for research purposes [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328]. Information and records may also be disclosed to the California Protection and Advocacy Agency [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 4900-4905] for the protection and advocacy of the rights of mentally disabled persons [Welf. & Inst. Code § 5328.06].

[3] Child Abuse Reports

Disclosure of information that would identify persons reporting child abuse is prohibited. These records are confidential [Penal Code § 11167(d)]. Disclosure may be made only between child protection agencies, to counsel representing child protective agencies, or appointed counsel [Welf. & Inst. Code § 317(c) (statute under which counsel are appointed)], to district attorneys in criminal prosecutions, child abuse proceedings [Welf. & Inst.Code § 602], or dependent children proceedings [Fam. Code § 7800 et seq.; Welf. & Inst. Code § 300], or county counsel in dependent children proceedings [Fam. Code § 7800 et seq.; Welf. & Inst. Code § 300], to a licensing agency when abuse in a care facility is reasonably suspected, when the identified persons waive confidentiality, or by court order [Penal Code § 11167(d)]. Furthermore, agencies or persons who receive information about the identity of persons reporting child abuse are prohibited from disclosing the identity of reporting persons to the employer of that person, unless the employee consents, or disclosure is required by court order [Penal Code § 11167(d)].

[4] Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome Records

Public health records relating to acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS) that are developed or acquired by state or local public health agencies and that would identify the patient are not public records. Those records are confidential and must not be disclosed, except as provided by law for public health purposes or pursuant to written authorization by the patient [Health & Safety Code § 120980(a), (b)]. The unauthorized disclosure of these records may result in civil penalties of no less than $1,000 and no more than $5,000 [Health & Safety Code § 120980(a)-(c)].

[5] Venereal Disease Records

Reports of examinations, cases, investigations, and all records relating to them, made under the regulations for the control of venereal disease have been declared to be confidential by the State Department of Health Services. Those records are not open to public inspection and may not be divulged, except as necessary for the preservation of the public health [17 Cal. Code Reg. § 2636(b)]. Based on the balancing test of the Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6255], the California attorney general has advised that this restriction is legal [53 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 10, 11 (1970)] . The test used is that on the facts of the particular case, the public interest served by not making the record public clearly outweighs the public interest served by disclosure of the record [Gov. Code § 6255]. The attorney general reasoned that persons in possession of venereal disease information would not disclose it to the appropriate medical authorities unless assured of confidentiality [53 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 10, 11 (1970) ; Gov. Code § 6255].

[6] Welfare Records

All applications and records concerning individuals who are recipients of public social services are confidential. These records are not open to examination for any purpose not directly connected with administration of a social services program, or an investigation or proceeding connected with the administration of a program [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10850(a), (f)].No person may publish, disclose, or permit disclosure for other purposes [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10850(b)]. A knowing disclosure is a misdemeanor [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10850(e)]. However, welfare employees are permitted to disclose confidential information about welfare recipients or applicants relating to criminal acts committed against welfare workers. The permitted disclosure is to law enforcement agencies investigating criminal acts [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10850(f)].

Because this privilege is conditional, some disclosure is allowed when it can be shown that the welfare of a minor child requires it [In re Lynna B. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 682, 705, 155 Cal. Rptr. 256] . The legislative purpose in providing for confidentiality of public social service records is to protect the right of privacy of the recipient of those benefits [In re Lynna B. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 682, 705, 155 Cal. Rptr. 256] .

Applications and records concerning persons who are applicants for Medi-Cal benefits are confidential and are not open to examination for any purpose not directly connected with administration of the Medi-Cal program [Welf. & Inst. Code § 14100.2]. Statutory confidentiality can be enforced in court by the agency [Dept. of Health Serv. v. Superior Court (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 776, 782-783, 283 Cal. Rptr. 546] .

The exemption from disclosure of minor foster child information provided by Welf. & Inst. Code § 827 does not apply after the death of a minor foster child, and the county welfare agency is required to disclose the name, date of birth, and the date of death of the child to the public entity against whom a personal injury claim is brought [Gov. Code § 6252.6].

[7] Official Information

A public entity has a privilege to refuse to disclose information in the following instances: (1) the information was acquired in confidence by a public employee in the course of his or her duty; (2) the information was not open or officially disclosed to the public before the claim of privilege is made; and (3) disclosure is forbidden by an act of Congress or a state statute; or (4) disclosure is against the public interest because a necessity exists for preserving the confidentiality of the information that outweighs the need for disclosure in the interest of justice [Evid. Code § 1040(a), (b)]. The privilege must be claimed by a person authorized by the public entity to do so [Evid. Code § 1040(b)]. A public employee may not claim the privilege, however, if any person authorized to claim it has consented to disclosure [Evid. Code § 1040(b)(2)].

In determining whether disclosure of the information is against the public interest, the interest of the public entity as a party in the outcome of the proceeding may not be considered [Evid. Code § 1040(b)(2); County of San Diego v. Superior Court (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1025-1026, 222 Cal. Rptr. 484 (example of analysis of public interest based on balancing of need for preserving confidentiality and disclosure in interests of justice)].

However, the interest of the public agency in investigating wrongdoing would support the public interest in confidentiality of the records because disclosure of audit manuals would make it easier for licensees to avoid detection of violations of the law [Suarez v. Office of Administrative Hearings (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1191, 1195-1196, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 618 (ALJ ordered disclosure of Department of Real Estate Audit Manual and Enforcement Deputy Manual to real estate broker charged with fraud. Disclosure was ordered after broker brought motion to compel production of manuals as part of discovery process related to administrative hearing. Broker argued that manuals were relevant to issues in hearing. The Court of Appeal upheld the Superior Court's grant of a petition for a writ of administrative mandate prohibiting disclosure of the manuals. The Court of Appeal held that the audit method used by DRE auditors would not provide the licensee a relevant defense to the charges brought against him, and therefore the need for disclosure of the records (to provide information relevant to the licensee's defense) was outweighed by the public interest in confidentiality)].

Furthermore, the Employment Development Department may disclose to law enforcement agencies information relating to a person for whom an arrest warrant for commission of a felony has been issued [Evid. Code § 1040(c); Unemp. Ins. Code §§ 1095(k), 2714(b)].

[8] Building Plans

The building department of every city or county must maintain an official copy of the plans of every building for which the department issued a building permit [Health & Safety Code § 19850]. The official copies of those plans are public records and are available for inspection only on the premises of the building department. Copying is specifically prohibited; plans may be copied only with the written permission of both the certified, licensed, or registered professional (or successor) who signed the original documents, and the owner of the building, or by court order [Health & Safety Code § 19851]. The certified, licensed, or registered professional (or successor) must not withhold his or her permission unreasonably [Health & Safety Code § 19851(a)]. Any city or county building department requested to copy building plans will request permission to do so from the professional and the owner [Health & Safety Code § 19851(b)]. The request to the certified, licensed, or registered professional may be by registered mail [Health & Safety Code § 19851(d)]. The building department will also furnish an affidavit to be completed by the requesting party [Health & Safety Code § 19851(c)]. The certified, licensed, or registered professional's refusal to comply with a request sent by the building department is unreasonable if the professional either fails to respond within 30 to 60 days or refuses to permit the copying after receiving the signed affidavit specified in Health & Safety Code § 19851(c) and the registered letter specified in Health & Safety Code § 19851(d) [Health & Safety Code § 19851(f)].

A building designer has a common law copyright in house plans that he or she creates. The filing of the plans in a local building department does not make them a public record in the sense that the public has the right to use the plans [Smith v. Paul (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 744, 751, 345 P.2d 546] .

[9] Peace Officer Personnel Records

The California Supreme Court held that information relating to California peace officers that is maintained in an electronic database by the California Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training was a "public record" within the meaning of the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6252(e), (g)]. Disclosure of this information was requested by the Los Angeles Times. The information requested included the peace officer's name and birth date, employing department, appointment dates, termination dates, and reason for termination. The Commission denied the request. The superior court ordered disclosure of the peace officer's name, employing agency, date of new appointment, and termination date. The court of appeal granted a writ of mandate prohibiting disclosure. The California Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the court of appeal [Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 278, 287-289, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 165 P.3d 462] . The California Supreme Court held that these peace officer records were not exempt from disclosure under Penal Code §§ 832.7, 832.8, peace officer personnel records exemption, because the information sought including the name of the peace officer, the employing department, the appointment date, and any termination date were not types of information specifically listed in Penal Code § 832.8, and therefore this information was not protected from disclosure under both statutes [Penal Code §§ 832.7, 832.8] merely because this information was maintained in a file that also included protected categories of information [Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 278, 291-293, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 165 P.3d 462] . The California Supreme Court also held that the "employment history" category of protected information listed in Penal Code § 832.8 exempted from disclosure information about prior employment, not current employment information, and thus the information maintained by the Commission was not covered by this exemption [Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 278, 294-296, 299, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 165 P.3d 462] . However, the California Supreme Court also held that the Commission could seek to justify exclusion from the disclosed records of information about specific officers because disclosure of that information would jeopardize the safety or efficacy of the peace officers. The exclusion would be based on a showing under the personnel and medical records exemption [Gov. Code § 6254(c)] and under the public interest exemption [Gov. Code § 6255; Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 278, 301-303, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 661, 165 P.3d 462] .

The California Supreme Court held that salary information for specific public employees of the City of Oakland earning $100,000 or more per year was a disclosable "public record" within the meaning of the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code §§ 6252(d), 6253(a)]. Disclosure of this information was requested by reporters for the Contra Costa Times from the City of Oakland for the 2003-2004 fiscal year. The City refused to provide salary information for specific individuals claiming this information was exempt from disclosure. After allowing intervention by two public employee unions, the superior court ordered disclosure of the salary information and rejected claims for exemption based on the privacy interests of the individuals, and for police officers, the peace officer personnel records exemption. The court of appeal denied the petition of the two unions challenging disclosure [International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, Local 21, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 319, 327-329, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693, 165 P.3d 488] . The California Supreme Court rejected exemptions claims based upon the personnel and medical records exemption [Gov. Code § 6354(c) [International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, Local 21, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 319, 336-338, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693, 165 P.3d 488] and based upon the privacy provisions of the California Constitution [Cal. Const., art.1, § 1; International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, Local 21, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 319, 338-340, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693, 165 P.3d 488] . Finally, the California Supreme Court held that the peace officers' personal records exemption [Gov. Code § 6254(k); Penal Code §§ 832.7, 832.8] did not include salary information of peace officers as one of the categories of information exempt from disclosure [Penal Code § 832.8], and thus this exemption did not apply to police officer salary information. Thus, police officer salary information was disclosable [International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, Local 21, AFL-CIO v. Superior Court (2007) 42 Cal. 4th 319, 344-346, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693, 165 P.3d 488] .

The California Supreme Court applied the records exempt under other laws statutory exemption [Gov. Code § 6254(k)] and held that the statutory provisions governing confidentiality of peace officer personnel records [Penal Code §§ 832.7, 832.8] applied to prevent disclosure of appeal records including the name of the police officer related to a police officer's administrative appeal to the San Diego County Civil Service Commission of discipline imposed on that officer by the San Diego County Sheriff's Department [Copley Press, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1272, 1279, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183, 141 P.3d 288] . The California Supreme Court held that the confidentiality provisions of Penal Code § 832.7 (making confidential personnel records of police officers maintained by the employing agency) applied to administrative appeals to county service commissions [Copley Press, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1272, 1284-1285, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183, 141 P.3d 288] . The California Supreme Court also held that the county civil service commission was included within the definition of the employing agency for purposes of Penal Code § 832.7 [Copley Press, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1272, 1287-1288, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183, 141 P.3d 288] . The California Supreme Court also held that the identity of the police officer was protected from disclosure, along with records related to the officer's appeal [Copley Press, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1272, 1297-1298, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183, 141 P.3d 288] , and that Penal Code § 832.7 was not unconstitutional under the provisions of Cal. Const. Art. 1, § 3(b)(1) (public right to access to governmental meetings and records) [Copley Press, Inc. v. Superior Court (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1272, 1300-1301, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183, 141 P.3d 288] .

Peace officer personnel records and the information contained in those records are confidential and cannot be disclosed in criminal or civil litigation except according to discovery procedures mandated by law [Penal Code § 832.7; Becerrada v. Superior Court (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 409, 412-413, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735 (police officers, parts of whose personnel files were disclosed to defense in criminal prosecution, had right to disclosure of same information from their own personnel files. The court held that releasing that information would not violate the right to a fair trial and would protect the officer's privacy interests)]. Non-litigants seeking to disclose information protected by this privilege must proceed under the provision of the California Public Records Act when the records are not sought in connection with a pending lawsuit [City of Richmond v. Superior Court (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1430, 1433, 38 Cal. Rptr.2d 632] . Peace officer personnel records include records and information relating to "marital status, family members, educational and employment history, home addresses," and other information [Penal Code § 832.8; City of Hemet v. Superior Court (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 1411, 1422-1423, 44 Cal. Rptr.2d 532 (records related to investigation of complaints against a police officer are included within peace officers records)]. A citizen's review board narrative report discussing the death of a civilian in an officer involved shooting was protected from disclosure under Penal Code § 832.7 and Penal Code § 832.8 because the report was considered to be confidential personnel records of peace officers [Davis v. City of San Diego (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 893, 899-901, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 266] and because the statutory protection against disclosure applies not only to discovery motions in civil and criminal cases under Evid. Code § 1043 but also to voluntary public disclosure by the city [Davis v. City of San Diego (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 893, 901-903, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 266] .

Police officers, indicted for committing felonies, sought a protective order to prohibit district attorney from disclosing urinalysis test results that were part of confidential peace officer personnel records. These test results were obtained as part of an administrative investigation, and were contained in police investigative files, as well as district attorney files. The court held that the test results, protected by the confidential peace officer personnel records exception, could be properly obtained by the district attorney, under the provisions of Gov. Code § 832.7(a), but could not be publicly disclosed by the district attorney except under the provisions of Evid. Code § 1043, and with the court making determinations as to admissibility (Evid. Code § 350), relevance (Evid. Code § 1043(b)(3)), and the need for a protective order (Evid. Code § 1045(d)) [Fagan v. Superior Court (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 607, 610, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 239] .

Spouse of police officer filed divorce action, and, as part of divorce proceedings, sought discovery of police officer's payroll records from employer of officer. Employer failed to produce records. The Court of Appeal held that police officer payroll records are protected under Gov. Code § 832.8 (confidential peace officer personnel records) and normally are not disclosable except consistent with the requirements of Evid. Code § 843 and Evid. Code § 845. However, the Court of Appeal also held that an exception to the statutory discovery requirements under Evid. Code §§ 843 and 845 would be recognized when discovery of payroll records is sought in a divorce action between a peace officer and spouse [City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 883, 885-886, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 915] .

The financial records exception does not apply when a former spouse of a police officer seeks discovery of non-financial information from the police officer's personnel records in a dissolution proceeding. In this case, the former spouse sought discovery of information related to misconduct complaints made against the police officer. The former spouse made claims of stalking and domestic violence against the police officer. The Court of Appeal held that this type of information was relevant to child custody and visitation issues in the dissolution proceeding, thus requiring the superior court to examine the records in camera to determine whether the information should be disclosed [Slayton v. Superior Court (2006) 146 Cal. App. 4th 55, 60-62, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 731] .

Discovery of peace officer personnel record information requires compliance with discovery procedures including filing a written motion with the court that is supported by an affidavit showing good cause for disclosure, and giving written notice to the governmental entity that has possession of that personnel record [Evid. Code § 1043; Brant v. Superior Court (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 100, 108-110, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 783 (defendant's motion to discover complaints in arresting officers' personnel files under the provisions of Evid. Code § 1043 was improperly denied by trial court, because defendant satisfied good cause standard for discovery of personnel records); Michael v. Gates (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 737, 740 (Evid. Code § 1043 does not apply to a city attorney's review of personnel records of a police officer who is testifying as an expert witness in a lawsuit against the city)]. The conditional privilege for peace officer personnel records applies not only to the records and information in the records but also to information that is both in the records and available elsewhere [Hackett v. Superior Court (Glin) (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 96, 100-102, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 405 (home address of peace officer)]. The good cause standard [Evid. Code § 1043(b)] for discovery of peace officer personnel records of officers who arrested the defendant seeking discovery of the records in a criminal proceeding requires a showing that the records sought are material to the pending litigation [Hurd v. Superior Court (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 1100, 1106-1108, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 893 (materiality requirement applied to post conviction habeas corpus statute [Penal Code § 1054.9]; habeas corpus challenger allowed to seek discovery of material peace officer personnel records even though records were not requested during criminal prosecution)]. To obtain in chambers review of the records by the judge, it is enough for the defendant to show that the "scenario of alleged officer misconduct could or might have occurred" [Warrick v. Superior Court (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 1011, 1016, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 2, 112 P.3d 2] . The good cause requirement for discovery of peace officer personnel records [Evid. Code § 1043(b); City of Santa Cruz v. Municipal Court (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 74, 84, 260 Cal. Rptr. 520, 776 P.2d 222] applies to juvenile proceedings and permits discovery of discipline imposed on arresting police officers [Evid. Code § 1045(a); City of San Jose v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 47, 53-55, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73, 850 P.2d 621] . The good cause standard for disclosure of records was satisfied as to records of complaints of workplace violence when the complaining witness, a fellow deputy sheriff, refused to speak with the defense investigator about the complaint [Alvarez v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1107, 1113, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 252] .

Criminal defendant sought discovery of civilian complaint documents and psychological records in former police officer's personnel records as part of a search for exculpatory information (under Brady v. Maryland (1963) 373 U.S. 83, 83 S. Ct. 1194, 10 L. Ed. 2d 215) and for impeachment information (under Pitchess v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1974) 113 Cal. Rptr. 897, 522 P.2d 305) that could be used when former officer testified as a witness for the prosecution in the action against the defendant. Defendant moved for an in camera review of the former officer's personnel records by the court. The trial court denied the motion. The Court of Appeal held that it was an abuse of discretion for the trial court to have denied the motion for in camera review because defendant made sufficient showing of materiality under the Brady standard, and sufficient showing of good cause under the Pitchess standard to justify an in camera review [Abatti v. Superior Court (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 39, 58-60, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 767 ; Uybungco v. Superior Court (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1043, 1050-1052, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 30 (good cause shown for in camera review of four police officers personnel records to search for complaints of false police reports)].

DMV was required to disclose to prosecutors under compulsion of a subpena duces tecum unredacted confidential medical records maintained by DMV under the authority of Veh. Code § 1808.5 relating to a driver charged with the crime of vehicular homicide. DMV claimed that the records were privileged under both Veh. Code § 1808.5 (confidential medical records), and under Evid. Code § 1040 (privilege for official information). The court rejected those claims, holding that Veh. Code § 1808.5 does not independently establish a privilege of non disclosure, and that under Evid. Code § 1040, the records had to be disclosed because the need for disclosure outweighed DMV's interest in maintaining the confidentiality of these records [Department of Motor Vehicles v. Superior Court (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 363, 366-368, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504] .

The five-year time limit on disclosure of citizen complaints under Evid. Code § 1045(b)(1) is not unconstitutional on its face, and did not deny due process of law to a criminal defendant who was unable to compel disclosure of a ten year old complaint against the police officer that arrested defendant [City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 1, 10-12, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 202, 52 P.3d 129] . However, a police department was required to disclose records containing the arresting officers personnel files from employment with other law enforcement agencies going back for the five year time period under Evid. Code § 1045 [Fletcher v. Superior Court (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 386, 406-407, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 99] .

Law enforcement departments or agencies are required to release copies of complaining parties' own statements to the complaining party at the time the complaint is filed [Penal Code § 832.7(b)].

Routine disclosure by public entity employers of confidential peace officer personnel records at public disciplinary hearings violates the provisions of Penal Code § 832.7 and provides the basis for declaratory relief when the officer objects to disclosure of confidential records [San Diego Police Officers Association v. City of San Diego Civil Service Commission (2003) 104 Cal. App. 4th 275, 287-288, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 248] .

Once good cause and materiality are established for a hybrid Brady/Pitchess motion, the trial court can be required to review the peace officer's personnel files in camera to determine whether or not the files contain information that should be disclosed [Abatti v. Superior Court (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 39, 42-43, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 767] . Defendant's criminal conviction was reversed and remanded because the trial court improperly denied defendant's motion for an in camera inspection of arresting officer's personnel records related to dishonesty and filing false reports, notwithstanding that defendant satisfied statutory requirements for such inspection of officer records. On remand, trial court ordered to conduct in camera inspection of these records [People v. Johnson (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 292, 296-297, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885] . However, the Court of Appeal reversed an order of the trial court granting full disclosure of a police internal affairs report related to a claim of excessive force brought by a jail inmate against a sheriff's deputy in a civil lawsuit. The court of appeal held that the part of the report containing the investigating officer's analysis and conclusions had to be redacted from the report before disclosure would be allowed [Haggerty v. Superior Court (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1079, 1082, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 467] . Disclosure of individual earnings information of peace officers by name pursuant to the Public Records Act requires compliance with the provisions of Penal Code § 832.7 before disclosure is made, and including notice and hearing rights for the peace officer under Evid. Code §§ 1043, 1046 [Teamsters Local 856 v. Priceless LLC (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1500, 1525-1526, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 847] .

[10] Indian Tribe Records or Information

Indian tribe records and information are protected from disclosure under the provisions of Gov. Code § 63048.63. Legislative declarations provide:

- The financial and legal records of California Indian tribes and tribal business enterprises are records of a sovereign nation and are not subject to disclosure by private citizens or the state. This is explicitly recognized in amendments to tribal-state gaming compacts ratified by the Legislature, which provide for the securitization of annual payments to be received from the tribes by the state or by an agency, trust, fund, or entity specified by the state [Gov. Code § 63048.63(a)(1)];

- In order to review the records of any Indian tribe relative to this securitization, the compacts require the execution of nondisclosure agreements [Gov. Code § 63048.63(a)(2)];

- State entities statutorily charged with participating in the bond sale cannot perform those duties in the absence of that agreement, and the Legislature hereby acknowledges and agrees that documents containing tribal information are not public records, shall not be discussed in an open meeting, and that state officials privy to that information may execute nondisclosure agreements [Gov. Code § 63048.63(a)(3)].

Neither the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.] nor other provisions of law shall permit the disclosure of any records of an Indian tribe received by the state, or by an agency, trust fund, or entity specified by the state, in connection with the sale of any portions of the designated tribal-state gaming compact assets or the issuance of bonds, or any summaries or analyses. The transmission of the records, or the information contained in those records in an alternative form, to the state or the special purpose trust shall not constitute a waiver of exemption from disclosure, and the records and information once transmitted to the state or special purpose trust shall be subject to this same exemption from disclosure [Gov. Code § 63048.63(b)]. The state and the special purpose trust are authorized to enter into nondisclosure agreements with Indian tribes [Gov. Code § 63048.63(c)]. The nondisclosure agreements may include provisions limiting the representatives of the state and the special purpose trust authorized to review or receive records of the Indian tribe to those individuals directly working on the sale of portions of the designated compact assets or the issuance of the bonds [Gov. Code § 63048.63(d)].

[11] Factor Replacement Therapy Contracts

The health services department may enter into contracts with one or more manufacturers on a negotiated or bid basis as the purchaser, but not the dispenser or distributor, of factor replacement therapies under the California Children's Services Program for the purpose of enabling the department to obtain the full range of available therapies and services required for clients with hematological disorders at the most favorable price and to enable the department, notwithstanding any other provision of state law, to obtain discounts, rebates, or refunds from the manufacturers based upon the large quantities purchased under the program. Contracts entered under this law are confidential and exempt from disclosure under the California Public Records Act (Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.) [Health & Safety Code § 123853(a)].

§ 470C.15 List of Exempt Records Statutes

[1] Nature of Exemptions

The Public Records Act [Gov. Code §§ 6250-6277] was amended in 1998 to provide a list of statutes that identify exemptions [Gov. Code §§ 6276.02-6276.48]. The legislative intent in enacting these lists is the following [Gov. Code § 6275]:

- To assist members of the public and state and local agencies in identifying exemptions to the California Public Records Act;

- To ensure that, after January 1, 1999, each addition or amendment to a statute that exempts any information contained in a public record from disclosure pursuant to subdivision (k) of Section 6254 [Gov. Code § 6254(k)] shall be listed and described in the statutory list of exemptions pursuant to a bill authorized by a standing committee of the Legislature to be introduced during the first year of each session of the Legislature

- To enable the statutes to operate to exempt certain records, or portions thereof, from disclosure;

- To be advised that the statutes listed and described [Gov. Code §§ 6276.02-6276.48] may not be inclusive of all exemptions;

- To note that the listing of a statute does not itself create an exemption;

- To caution requesters of public records and public agencies to review the applicable statute to determine the extent to which the statute, in light of the circumstances surrounding the request, exempts public records from disclosure;

- To advise that records or information that are exempt from disclosure under Gov. Code § 6254(k) may include, but shall not be limited to, records or information identified in these statutes [Gov. Code §

6276].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41-470C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 470C.17

§ 470C.17 Judicial Enforcement of Rights Under the Public Records Act

[1] Enforcement by Use of Injunctive or Declaratory Relief or Writ of Mandate

A member of the public may institute proceedings for injunctive or declaratory relief or a writ of mandate in order to enforce the right to inspect or receive a copy of any public record or any class of public records [Gov. Code § 6258]. The court is required to set times for responsive pleadings and to hold hearings in a manner that will secure a decision at the earliest possible time [Gov. Code § 6258]. For an example of a complaint for declaratory relief to enforce request for public records, see § 470C.52 Form, below. For an example of a complaint for an injunction to compel access to public records, see § 470C.53 Form, below. For an example of a petition for Writ of Mandate to enforce request for public records, see § 470C.54 Form, below.

When a public agency that has possession of public records subject to the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code §§ 6250-6277] has denied a public member's request for disclosure of records, the public agency may not file a court action for declaratory relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 to determine whether the public agency is required to disclose the requested records. The exclusive statutory procedure to resolve a disclosure of records issue in court is provided in the Act, in Gov. Code §§ 6258, and 6259. These provisions authorize a member of the public to litigate whether particular public records must be disclosed, but they do not authorize a public agency with public records to seek a judicial determination as to whether requested records must be disclosed [Filarsky v. Superior Court (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 419, 426-427, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844, 49 P.3d 194] . However, taxpayers could properly bring a declaratory and injunctive relief action against local and state government bodies (including cities, counties, and the state of California, among others) under Code Civ. Proc. § 526a to challenge the illegal expenditure of public funds by those bodies related to public records. Litigation related to public records is not limited to challenges under the California Public Records Act [County of Santa Clara v. Superior Court (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 119, 123-124, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 520] .

[2] Orders to Show Cause for Disclosure

With a verified complaint that public records are being improperly withheld from a member of the public, the court orders the officer or person charged with withholding the record to disclose it or to show cause why he or she should not do so. The court may examine the record in camera, if necessary [Gov. Code § 6259(a); Evid. Code § 915(b)]. If the court finds that the public official's refusal to disclose is not justified [Gov. Code §§ 6254-6255], it will order the official to make the record public. If the court finds that the refusal was justified, it will return the item to the public official without disclosing its content with an order supporting the decision refusing disclosure [Gov. Code § 6259(b)].

[3] Judicial Review

A decision of the court is not a final judgment or order subject to appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1], but is immediately reviewable by the appellate court by way of an extraordinary writ [Gov. Code § 6259(c); Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1067-1077; CBS Broadcasting, Inc. v. Superior Court (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 892, 905-906, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 889 ; Versaci v. Superior Ct. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 805, 812, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92] . The exclusive nature of review by extraordinary writ does not violate the appellate jurisdiction section of the California Constitution [Powers v. City of Richmond (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 85, 90-91, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 839, 893 P.2d 1160] . The standard of review for writ review of trial court orders requiring disclosure or upholding a refusal to disclose records varies with the nature of the question presented. For questions of law, including questions as to the interpretation of the Public Records Act, and application of the act to undisputed facts, the standard is de novo [Becerrada v. Superior Court (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 409, 412-413, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 735 (standard of review of questions of law is de novo when reviewing court is deciding discovery issues related to peace officer personnel records and Pitchess motions)]. For questions of fact, the standard is substantial evidence [CBS Broadcasting, Inc. v. Superior Court (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 892, 905-906, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 889 ; Versaci v. Superior Ct. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 805, 812, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92 ; San Lorenzo Valley Cmty. Advocates for Responsible Education v. San Lorenzo Valley Unified School Dist. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1356, 1412-1413, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 128 (plaintiffs' challenge to school districts document production under Public Records Act was not supported by substantial evidence that defendants had withheld document and records required to be disclosed under the California Public Records Act)].

The petition for an extraordinary writ must be filed within 20 days after service of notice of entry of the order, or 25 days if notice is served by mail. The trial court may for good cause extend the time for up to 20 days. The trial court order or judgment will not be stayed pending appeal unless the petitioning party shows irreparable harm and probable success on the merits [Gov. Code § 6259(c); County of Santa Clara v. Superior court (6th Dist., 2009) 170 Cal. App. 4th 1301, 1311-1312, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 374 (writ review by county that was ordered to disclose information under Public Records act. Court granted temporary stay pending completion of writ review; scope of review in writ proceeding is the same as with first appeals under public records act; information sought was geographic information system (GIS) base map)]. The California Supreme Court interpreted the amended judicial review provisions of the statute [Gov. Code § 6259(c)], and concluded that trial court orders under the California Public Records Act are reviewable on the merits [Times Mirror Co. v. Superior Court (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 1325 ; see also State Bd. of Equalization v. Superior Court (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 1177, 1185-1186, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342] . For discussion and examples of this writ, see Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of. The court's orders are enforced through contempt proceedings [Gov. Code 6259(c); Code Civ. Proc. 1209-1222]. For a discussion of those proceedings and applicable forms, see Ch. 135, Contempt .

Another court interpreted Gov. Code § 6259 (c) to permit the court to decide the merits of an attempted appeal from a non-appealable judgment or order by treating the appeal as a writ proceeding. The order in question denied plaintiff access to records in the defendant's public defender database. Plaintiff filed a notice of appeal, and the appellate court treated the appeal as a writ proceeding, holding that this appeal satisfied the two elements necessary to treat an ineffective appeal as a proper writ of mandate proceeding: 1) briefs and record of the parties include all the required elements of an original mandate proceeding under California Rules of Court, Rule 8.490; and 2) extraordinary circumstances justifying treating the appeal as a proper writ proceeding [Coronado Police Officers Association v. Carroll (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1005-1006, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 553] .

The California Court of Appeal dismissed a petition for a writ of mandate under Gov. Code § 6259(c) to challenge the denial of a petition for a writ of mandate sought by a newspaper in the superior court to obtain e-mails exchanged between a member of a city council and the Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory. The newspaper sought the e-mails claiming that they were public records that had to be disclosed under the California Public Records Act. The dismissal by the court of appeal was based on the newspaper's failure to name the city council member as a real party in interest in the appellate original proceeding after having named the city council member as a party in the superior court proceeding. The city council member was held to be an indispensable party under Code Civ. Proc. § 389, thereby justifying dismissal of the proceeding in the court of appeal. The city council member had unique interests related to whether her e-mails sent from home on a private e-mail account that discussed city business were public records [Tracy Press, Inc. v. Superior Court (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 1294-1296, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 464].

[4] Costs and Attorney Fees

The court awards court costs and reasonable attorney's fees to a plaintiff who prevails in litigation. Those costs and fees must be paid by the public agency of which the public official is a member or employee; they do not become a personal liability of the official. If the court finds that the plaintiff's case is clearly frivolous, it will award court costs and reasonable attorney's fees to the public agency [Gov. Code § 6259(d)]. A litigant is a prevailing party pursuant to Gov. Code 6259(d) when he or she files a lawsuit that results in the defending agency releasing a copy of a previously withheld document. Furthermore, the award of costs andattorneys' fees [Belth v. Garamendi (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 896, 901-902, 283 Cal. Rptr. 829] . For this purpose, an appellate court has held that "prevail in litigation" includes resolution in the plaintiff's favor when the plaintiff files an action that results in the defendant releasing a previously withheld document [Belth v. Garamendi (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 896, 898, 283 Cal. Rptr. 829 ; Los Angeles Times v. Alameda Corridor Transp. Authority (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1381, 1390-1391, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29 (media company was prevailing plaintiff even though it obtained disclosure order as to only one of two documents); San Lorenzo Valley Cmty. Advocates for Responsible Educ. v. San Lorenzo Valley Unified Sch. Dist. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1356, 1421-1422, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 128 (plaintiffs were not entitled to attorneys fees under the public records act (Gov. Code § 6259(d)) because they did not prevail, as their lawsuit did not cause the defendant public entity to release previously withheld public records)]. This situation includes the voluntary relinquishment of a document by a private party following a plaintiff's suit against a public agency seeking disclosure of that document after the agency's refusal to do so [Belth v. Garamendi (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 896, 899-903, 283 Cal. Rptr. 829 (involving insurance company's consent to waiver of statutory confidentiality following plaintiff's suit against Insurance Commissioner)]. A party who compels disclosure has a right to attorney's fees under Gov. Code 6259(d) even if the prevailing party is not technically the "plaintiff" in the action, for example, if the action was before the court because the public agency first filed a petition for a protective order to prevent disclosure [Fontana Police Dep't v. Villegas-Banuelos (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1252-1253, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641] .

The court of appeal upheld the reasonableness of a $10,620 attorney's fee award against a city that was authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 based on proof that counsel had spent 47.2 hours of attorney time on the representation, and based on a $225 hourly rate that the plaintiff's proof established was a reasonable rate based on the attorney's experience, specialized skill, and awards at that hourly rate in other cases. The award was based on the lodestar test, which measures the fee award based on reasonable hours times a reasonable hourly rate [Davis v. City of San Diego (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 893, 903-904, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 266] . The California Court of Appeal affirmed an award of attorney's fees in the amount of $244,287.50 under Gov. Code § 6259 to litigants who were successful in receiving a court order requiring production of documents (related to a pending subdivision proposal) under the Public Records Act. The Court of Appeal held that the hours charged were reasonable, that no reduction of hours based upon degree of success was required, and that the application of a 1.25 multiplier to the lodestar amount was valid [Bernardi v. County of Monterey (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1379, 1389-1391, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 754].

The California Court of Appeal held that a party was successful in obtaining access to records under the Public Records Act, and thus was a prevailing party entitled to recover attorney's fees under Gov. Code § 6259 even though the landowner was denied access to all records because she was denied access to the premises of the district to inspect documents. The landowner prevailed on that claim and that was sufficient to satisfy the prevailing party requirement for recovery of attorneys fees [Galbiso v. Orosi Public Utility Dist. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1063, 1086-1088, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 788].

A trial court order denying attorneys fees under the California Public Records Act is reviewable on appeal, not by the extraordinary writ process under Gov. Code § 6259(c) [Los Angeles Times v. Alameda Corridor Transp. Authority (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1381, 1385-1386, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29 ; Butt v. City of Richmond (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 925, 929, 931, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 232] . Also, an order denying attorneys fees is an appealable final judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1 even though the underlying order providing disclosure of records is not an appealable final judgment [Los Angeles Times v. Alameda Corridor Transp. Authority (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1381, 1388-1389, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29] . A motion for attorney's fees is timely if it is brought within the time for filing a notice of appeal which is 180 days when a records disclosure order is issued by the court but not mailed by the clerk of the court nor served by the parties under the provisions of California Rule of Court Rule 3.1702(b) [Los Angeles Times v. Alameda Corridor Transp. Authority (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1381, 1389-1390, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29] .

An order denying a petition for writ of mandamus to compel disclosure of public records is a final judgment, and filing a timely notice of appeal (within 180 days) from that order is mandatory and jurisdictional. The filing of a later judgment containing the same order of the trial court does not alter the time limits for filing the notice of appeal. Failure to file a timely notice of appeal means that the appeal is untimely and must be dismissed [Laraway v. Pasadena Unified School District (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 579, 582-584, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 213] .

§ 470C.33 Decisions

Grand Jury's nature as judicial entity and important public interests requiring its institutional secrecy as exempting it and its evidentiary materials from Public Records Act. McClatchy Newspapers v. Superior Court (1988) 44 Cal. 3d 1162, 1183, 245 Cal. Rptr. 774, 751 P.2d 1329

Necessity of preserving confidentiality of records pertaining to permits for concealed weapons as not outweighed by public's right to disclosure of records. CBS, Inc. v. Block (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 646, 656, 230 Cal. Rptr. 362, 725 P.2d 470

State Medical Board did not violate California Public Records Act by posting address of record for licensed physician on public internet site, even if the address of record is the physician's home address because the Board gave physicians options of using business address or providing a post office box number accompanied by a street address that would remain confidential. Lorig v. Medical Board (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 462, 467-468, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 862

Under balancing test of Gov. Code § 6255, public interest in nondisclosure of names, addresses, and telephone numbers of airport noise complainants clearly outweighed public interest in disclosure; city already provided detailed information about public complaints of airport noise and disclosure of detailed personal information would have chilling effect on future complaints. City of San Jose v. Superior Court (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1008, 1023-1024, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 552

Requirements for the request form, detail required, and amount of records requested. [California First Amendment Coalition v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 159, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 847] .

State courts are expressly exempt from provisions of Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.; law-enforcement personnel possess videotape of execution of search warrant (made inside home of criminal defendant's psychotherapist) on behalf of court only, with no other right to it; media not entitled to pretrial disclosure of videotape. Oziel v. Superior Court (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1284, 1292-1293, 273 Cal. Rptr. 196

Local Water District's records, showing names of individual residential customers who exceeded water allotment for first billing period of water rationing as well as amount of excess use and penalties imposed, as public records subject to disclosure to newspaper under Public Records Act. New York Times v. Superior Court (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1579, 1586, 268 Cal. Rptr. 21

Former Gov. Code § 6257 (now Gov. Code § 6253) requiring state agencies to provide records to public on payment of direct costs of duplication or statutory fee, as not precluding Department of Motor Vehicles from charging fee in excess of its duplication costs as allowed by Veh. Code § 1811. Shippen v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 1119, 1124-1125, 208 Cal. Rptr. 13

_____[List the records sought with as much specificity as possible]

By law you have 10 calendar days in which to comply with this request. Authorized fees will be paid to you on delivery, pursuant to an itemized invoice.

This request is made pursuant to Government Code § 6256.

_____[Name, address, and telephone number of person making request]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use to request public records pursuant to Government Code § 6253. Any request for information must be focused and specific. A request for records does not have to be in writing under the California Public Records Act [Los Angeles Times v. Alameda Corridor Transp. Authority (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1381, 1392-1393, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 29] .

Each agency, upon a request for a copy of records, shall, within 10 days from receipt of the request, determine whether the request, in whole or in part, seeks copies of disclosable public records in the possession of the agency and shall promptly notify the person making the request of the determination and the reasons therefor. In unusual circumstances, the time limit prescribed in this section may be extended by written notice by the head of the agency or his or her designee to the person making the request, setting forth the reasons for the extension and the date on which a determination is expected to be dispatched. No notice shall specify a date that would result in an extension for more than 14 days [Gov. Code § 6253(c)].

§ 470C.52 Complaint for Declaratory Relief to Enforce Request for Records Under Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6258]

[1] FORM Complaint for Declaratory Relief to Enforce Request for Records Under Public Records Act

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name], Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff is _____[describe plaintiff's status as interested person] residing in [or the agency records are located in] _____ County, California.

2. Defendant _____[name of agency] is, and at all times mentioned herein was, an agency of the _____[state] government, which _____ [state functions and duties of agency, e.g., is an agency charged with enforcement of air quality laws].

3. [Describe controversy giving rise to action, e.g., On June 7, 1997, Plaintiff completed and filed with defendant agency a written request to inspect or receive copies of the following public records: [describe records as stated in request]: which records defendant agency had maintained at the agency office in Sacramento, California. On July 7, 1997, Defendant agency refused to permit Plaintiff to inspect or receive copies of these records. Defendant agency claimed that the records were exempt from disclosure under the public interest exemption [Gov. Code § 6255]. Plaintiff claims that the public interest exemption does not prohibit disclosure of these records, and that Plaintiff is entitled to disclosure of these records under the Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6253].

4. Plaintiff desires a judicial determination of his/her rights, as an interested citizen, and defendants' duties, under the Public Records Act, respecting the records referred to in Paragraph 3.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

l. For a declaration that the records referred to in Paragraph 3 are subject to disclosure under the Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6253] and that disclosure is not prohibited under the public interest exemption [Gov. Code § 6255];

2. [Other relief, if desired and supported by appropriate allegations, e.g., injunctive relief (see § 470C.53 for form)];

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint for use by an interested person seeking declaratory relief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 et seq.] from an alleged violation or threatened violation of the Public Records Act. The complaint asks for a judgment declaring that the particular records are subject to disclosure under the Public Records Act, and that disclosure is not prohibited under the public interest exemption of the Public Records Act. The Plaintiff must be someone who has requested records, and the agency has denied the request to inspect a copy of those records.

Injunctive relief or mandamus may also be obtained when appropriate [Gov. Code § 6258; see Civ. Code § 3420 et seq., Code Civ. Proc. § 525 et seq. (injunctive relief); Code Civ. Proc. § 1084 et seq. (mandamus)]. For forms of complaints seeking injunctions or a writ of mandate to prevent a violation of the public records act, see Chs. 470C.53, 470C.54, respectively. For a detailed discussion of injunctions, see Ch. 303, Injunctions . Regarding a proceeding for a writ of mandate, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[3] Defendants

The defendant will almost always be the state agency from whom the records have been requested. An appropriate way to identify the defendant is to name the agency as the defendant.

[4] Allegations

Because the action seeks a declaratory judgment, the allegations should be those included in an ordinary complaint for declaratory relief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]. For discussion, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief . The essential allegation is that an actual controversy exists between the parties as to their legal rights and duties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

[5] Verification

A public agency, or any member of that agency acting in his or her official capacity, need not verify the answer even though the complaint is verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 446(a)]. However, verification of a complaint against a public agency does preclude a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For verification form, see Ch. 470B.61.

[6] Costs and Attorneys Fees

If the plaintiff is successful and is the prevailing party, he or she will recover costs and attorneys fees, which must be paid by the agency and may not be awarded against the individual public official employee or member [Gov. Code § 6259(d)]. If the plaintiff does not prevail, Defendant can recover costs and attorney's fees from the plaintiff when the court finds that plaintiff's claim is clearly frivolous [see Gov. Code § 6259(d)].

[7] Remedies to Compel Disclosure Under State Law

Gov. Code § 6258 provides for "proceedings" to obtain injunctive or declaratory relief or a writ of mandate to enforce the right to inspection or receipt of a copy of a public record. In addition, Gov. Code § 6259 provides for a procedure to compel disclosure by means of a "verified petition." However, it is unclear whether Gov. Code § 6259 refers to the same proceedings as those under Gov. Code § 6258, inasmuch as Gov. Code § 6259(c) also refers to an "action filed" and provides a procedure for review for orders resulting from such an action.

For discussion and forms regarding declaratory relief, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief . For discussion of mandate proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , which also contains forms that may be adapted to seek relief under Gov. Code § 6258. For a detailed discussion of injunctions, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[8] Time for Responsive Pleadings and Hearings Under State Law

Under Gov. Code § 6258, the times for responsive pleadings and for hearings are set by the judge of the court (for the purpose of expediency) rather than by the Code of Civil Procedures provisions that would otherwise govern.

For discussion and forms relating to an action for declaratory relief, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a petition for a writ of mandate for use by the person aggrieved to obtain judicial review of a state agency decision to withhold disclosure of a public record under the Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6259(a)].

For discussion and forms regarding declaratory relief, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief . For discussion of mandate proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition , which also contains forms that may be adapted to seek relief under Gov. Code § 6258. For a detailed discussion of injunctions, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[3] Verification

A verification is required [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. The requirements for a verification are set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 446 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1109; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (form of declaration under penalty of perjury)]. If the petition was inadvertently not verified, the court may allow an amendment for the purpose of supplying a verification [Franchise Tax Bd. v. Municipal Court (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 377, 384, 119 Cal. Rptr. 552] .

[4] Caption and Introduction

The petition will be filed in the superior court. The caption will, therefore, reflect that fact and identify the county where the petition is filed [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 422.30 (caption of pleading), 1109]. In setting out the title of the proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 422.30 (caption of pleading), 1109], counsel should describe the respondent as an administrative agency without using any individual's name. Generally, the petition should name as respondent the decision-making authority of the agency [Elliott v. Contractors' State License Board (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1048, 1056, 274 Cal. Rptr. 286] , particularly since the petitioner may otherwise run the risk of denial of the writ for failure to state a cause of action because the appropriate agency decision-making authority is not named as a party [see Elliott v. Contractors' State License Bd. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1048, 1050, 1056, 274 Cal. Rptr. 286 (declining to consider whether petitioner's failure to name appropriate decision-making authority would have been sufficient reason, standing alone, to deny writ)].

The parties are customarily called "petitioner" and "respondent" because the initial pleading is customarily called a "petition" [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. The parties may be called "plaintiff" and "defendant" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1063], but this is seldom done. If there are two or more petitioners or respondents, all must be identified in the caption of the petition [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 422.40, 1109].

The character of the proceeding, which must be briefly stated in the caption [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(6)], is sufficiently described by the phrase "PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]." Generally, there is no requirement that the petition expressly refer to Code Civ. Proc. § 1086. Whether or not a local rule requires it, inclusion of a citation to Code Civ. Proc. § 1086 in the caption is advisable because it will avoid confusion [see Grimes v. Hoschler (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 305, 308 n.3, 115 Cal. Rptr. 625, 525 P.2d 65] . It is customary to begin the petition with an introductory phrase such as "Petitioner respectfully represents" or, more simply, "Petitioner alleges."

[5] Essential Allegations

The petition must state facts tending to show the following:

- The Respondent agency is obligated to disclose the records under the Public Records Act [Gov. Code §§ 6253, 6259(b)].

- The Respondent agencies refusal to disclose the records is not justified under the exemption provisions of the Public Records Act [Gov. Code §§ 6254, 6255].

- The petitioner is beneficially interested in issuance of the writ--that is, he or she has standing to sue [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

- The petitioner has exhausted administrative remedies [see Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 291-296, 109 P.2d 942] .

- The petitioner has no plain and speedy remedy in the ordinary course of law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

[6] Identity of Petitioner

If the petitioner is not a natural person, the petition should allege the petitioner's identity as an existing legal entity entitled to sue (i.e., to come into court) [see Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351, 254 P.2d 6] . This is sometimes referred to as the capacity to sue.

[7] Petitioner's Standing to Sue

A petition for writ of mandate will be granted only where it is necessary to protect a substantial right and only when it is shown that some substantial damage will be suffered by the petitioner if the petition is denied. The writ will not be issued except on the verified petition of a person beneficially interested [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]; it will not be issued where the petitioner fails to show that it will subserve or protect some right or interest of his or hers; it will not be issued where it is apparent that the petitioner has no direct interest in the act sought to be coerced and that no benefit can accrue to him or her from its performance. Therefore, it is necessary for the petitioner to allege facts showing that he or she has some right or interest in the act sought to be coerced. In other words, the petitioner must show in his or her petition that he or she has standing to sue. This is the nature of the requirement concerning beneficial interest [see Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351, 254 P.2d 6 (distinguishing capacity and standing to sue)].

[8] Attorneys' Fees

Attorneys fees and costs are recoverable by a prevailing plaintiff, and by a defendant when plaintiff's claim is clearly frivolous [Gov. Code § 6259(d)].

[9] Prayer for Relief

The prayer must necessarily be framed in terms of the relief which the court may give in light of what the petitioner will prove. An alternative writ will be requested unless the notice procedure is used. The petitioner should specify what terms he or she desires in the alternative writ.

A peremptory writ should be requested, of course. If the notice procedure is used instead of the alternative writ procedure, the desired terms of the peremptory writ should be recited. If an alternative writ is sought, however, it is sufficient to refer to the terms of the alternative writ (except for the language respecting the order to show cause).

Attorney's fees and reasonable litigation expenses should be requested if they can properly be sought, and a request for costs should be included.

[10] Service

When a petition for a writ of mandate is filed, it must be accompanied by proof of service of a copy of the petition on the respondent and the real party in interest named in the petition. The petition is served according to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020 governing the service of papers generally. However, if a petition is sought pursuant to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5 (filed in a trial court and no alternative writ sought), proof of service need not be filed with the petition, and the action may be filed and served in the same manner as an ordinary action. When the real party in respondent's interest is a board or commission, the service must be made on the presiding officer, or on the secretary, or on a majority of the members, of the board or commission [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Agency Information Gathering

41-471 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471.10

§ 471.10 Agency Authority to Gather Information Through Record Keeping Requirements

[1] Overview of Information Gathering or Investigative Power

While legislative bodies regulate certain activities by enacting laws, responsibility for the day-to-day regulation and enforcement of these laws is frequently delegated to an administrative agency [see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law , for a discussion of the power to delegate]. To carry out this delegation of power and to regulate fairly and efficiently, an agency must be able to acquire information. The agency uses this information for a number of purposes, including the following:

- Developing agency rules and regulations [see Chs. 472, Public Agency Rules , et seq. (discussion and forms relating to agency rule making)].

- Adjudicating a specific matter [see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , et seq. (discussion and forms relating to agency adjudications)].

- Confirming a suspicion that a law or regulation was violated, or determining that it was not [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462 , quoting United States v. Morton Salt Co. (1950) 338 U.S. 632, 642-643, 70 S. Ct. 357, 94 L. Ed. 401, 46 F.T.C. 1436] , for example, in pursuing a claim that a licensee has violated applicable licensing laws [see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies (discussion and forms relating to licensing)].

- Guiding the agency in the administration of any other matter relating to activities and subjects under its statutory jurisdiction.

Administrative agencies may compel the surrender of needed information in at least three ways:

- Through application of laws that require agency regulatees to keep records and file reports [see [2], [3], and [4], below].

- By issuing subpoenas compelling testimony or documents [see §§ 471.30, 471.31].

- By inspecting records or premises.

This chapter focuses on the first two methods: required records and the issuance of subpoenas. It also focuses on the ways in which a respondent may prevent the agency from gathering unauthorized information, or using unauthorized methods to obtain information, by either of these methods. For discussion and forms relating to the third method, agency inspections, see Ch. 471A, Inspections by Public Agencies .

Note that many of the principles that support or limit the power of agencies to compel information apply to all three data collection methods.For example, all three methods are subject to constitutional protections against unreasonable searches and seizures [see U.S. Const., amend. IV; Cal. Const., art. I, § 13].

[2] Record Keeping Requirements

A principal way that administrative agencies obtain needed information is by enforcing laws or regulations that require records or reports from regulated entities or individuals. In general, these laws or regulations make information available in one of two ways:

- Requiring the regulated entity to keep records and make them available to the agency.

- Requiring the regulated entity to file reports with the agency containing or summarizing specified information.

A requirement for recordkeeping or report filing may be specified directly in a statute, or indirectly through authorized agency regulations. While the number and variety of these requirements is enormous, the truth seems to be that an organized society often imposes such burdens on its members [see California v. Byers (1971) 402 U.S. 424, 427-428, 91 S. Ct. 1535, 29 L. Ed. 2d 9 (noting that "[an organized society] commands the filing of tax returns for income; it requires producers and distributors of consumer goods to file informational reports on the manufacturing process and the content of products, on the wages, hours, and working conditions of employees ... [t]hose who borrow money on the public market or issue securities for sale to the public must file various information reports ... industries must report periodically the volume and content of pollutants discharged into our waters and atmosphere ... [c]omparable examples are legion.")].

In California, many statutes either directly compel or authorize various administrative agencies to compel regulated entities to keep records or to file reports. Examples of such provisions include the following:

- Annual reports to be filed by real property securities dealers [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10238.1; see also California Legal Forms, Ch. 30, Subdivision Regulation, Forms 30.12, 30.12E (Matthew Bender); California Real Estate Law & Practice, §§ 60.74[1], 60.75[2] (Matthew Bender)].

- Records to be kept open by weighmasters for inspection by the director of the Department of Food and Agriculture [Bus. & Prof. Code § 12716].

- Annual reports to be filed by licensed wine growers [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23327].

- Prescription forms and other records to be maintained by practitioners and pharmacists prescribing or distributing narcotics [Health & Safety Code §§ 11179,, 11190].

- Business records and annual reports required of surplus line brokers [Ins. Code § 1768; see California Insurance Law & Practice, § 62.08[2] (Matthew Bender)].

- Recordkeeping requirements for life or disability insurers [Ins. Code § 10508; see California Insurance Law & Practice, § 61.07[2] (Matthew Bender).].

- Apprenticeship reports by apprentice embalmers [Bus. & Prof. Code § 7665].

Environmental agencies frequently require reports as part of their general powers of inquiry under Gov. Code § 11181. Moreover, many California statutes require or authorize state and local agencies have specific statutory authorization to require reports from persons and entities subject to regulation. The following are examples of required reports with regard to environmental matters:

- Hazardous waste generators are required to make reports to the Department of Health under Health & Safety Code § 25155.8. Health & Safety Code § 25244.4 requires an additional report every two years from every hazardous waste generator regarding changes in the volume and toxicity of wastes generated.

- Hazardous waste storage facilities must submit a detailed hydrogeological assessment report regarding surface impoundments to the Regional Water Board under Health & Safety Code § 25208.8.

- Water Code § 13383 authorizes the regional water quality board to establish reporting requirements for discharge permit holders, such as dredge or fill dischargers, and sewage treatment works.

- Under the federal Emergency Planning and Community Right-to-Know-Act, [42 U.S.C. §§ 11001-11050; for regulations, see 40 C.F.R. §§ 370-370.41] owners and operators of facilities where hazardous substances or chemicals or toxic chemicals are present must report annually on such substances to the State Emergency Response Commission, the relevant Local Emergency Planning Committee, and the fire department with jurisdiction over the facility.

It is therefore apparent that recordkeeping and reporting requirements run the gamut of regulated entities and individuals, and offer administrative agencies ready access to a wide range of information.

[3] Scope of Agency Authority

The scope of authority vested in administrative agencies to regulate, and thus to require recordkeeping and report filing, is often expansive. For example, automotive repair dealers must keep legible copies of the following records available for inspection during normal business hours for noless than three years: (1) all invoices relating to automotive repair; (2) all written estimates pertaining to work performed; and (3) all work orders or contracts for repairs, parts, and labor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9884.11; 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 3358].

The courts frequently give an expansive reading to the kinds of information that agencies may obtain under recordkeeping or report filing statutes. In one case, for example, a county assessor asked to see taxpayer business records under statutes entitling the assessor to examine "data relevant to ... an estimate of value" [Rev. & Tax. Code § 441(d)], and "business records relevant to the ... value of all property" [Rev. & Tax. Code § 470(a)]. The taxpayer refused to furnish the requested records, claiming that the word "data" should be construed to mean only facts, whereas much of what was sought was interpretive material. The court disagreed and held that the assessor was entitled to enforcement of a subpoena duces tecum to compel the taxpayer to produce the records. The court stated that the statutes in question were "broad grants of power to the Assessor to demand information," and that there was nothing in them to justify a distinction between facts and interpretive data [Roberts v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 770, 780-783, 195 Cal. Rptr. 393] .

This ruling furnishes two lessons. First, the courts look to an agency's statutory authority in determining what records an agency may compel a regulated party to keep or to report. Second, in looking at the statutory authority, the court will read that authority broadly in light of the agency's purpose.

In another setting, the California Supreme Court recognized the authority of an agency to require disclosure of information by a regulated industry even though disclosure was not expressly authorized by the governing statute nor by the agency regulations when the information was necessary to the agency's responsibility to regulate and approve timber harvesting plans [Sierra Club v. State Board of Forestry (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 1215, 1228-1229, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 19, 876 P.2d 505] .

For discussion of the scope of the agency investigative power in general, see § 471.20[1]. For discussion of the necessity of statutory authority for agency subpoena power, see § 471.30[1].

[4] Required Findings

State agencies that impose reporting requirements on businesses by regulations adopted under the Administrative Procedure Act must make specific findings that "it is necessary for the health, safety, or welfare of the people of the state that the regulation apply to businesses." [Gov. Code § 11346.3(c)]. Otherwise, "no administrative regulation which requires a report shall apply to businesses ..." [Gov. Code § 11346.3(c)].

[5] Penalties

Some recordkeeping and reporting statutes provide penalties for noncompliance, including criminal sanctions. Imposing criminal sanctions may trigger constitutional requirements [see, e.g., People v. Hutchings (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 33, 36, 69 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 33 , 138 Cal. Rptr. 584 (holding former Lab. Code §§ 1174 and 1175 unconstitutional as requiring all employers to permit unreasonable search and seizure or be found guilty of misdemeanor)]. However, federal and state constitutions place only limited restraints on the power of administrative agencies to compel recordkeeping and reporting [see § 471.11]. Some state statutes requiring reports provide penalties for noncompliance. For example, the failure of anyone storing hazardous wastes to submit the required hydrogeological assessment report regarding surface impoundments to the Regional Water Board [Health & Safety Code § 25208.8] results in civil liability, as does the filing of a false report. This civil liability may be as much as $10,000 per day for failure to file and up to $25,000 per day for false reports [Health & Safety Code § 25208.9].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Agency Information Gathering

41-471 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471.11

§ 471.11 Constitutional Privileges Limiting Duty to Record or Report Information

[1] General Requirements

Statutory and regulatory recordkeeping and reporting requirements must comply with both the federal [People v. Hutchings (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 33, 36, 69 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 33 , 138 Cal. Rptr. 584 (dismissing misdemeanor complaint charging refusal to comply with subpoena for records on the ground that former Lab. Code §§ 1174 and 1175 are unconstitutional because they authorize unreasonable searches and seizures in violation of U.S. Const., amend. IV); see Shapiro v. United States (1948) 335 U.S. 1, 32-35, 68 S. Ct. 1375, 92 L. Ed. 1787 (price control reporting requirements questioned under privilege against self-incrimination of U.S. Const., amend. V, but upheld)], and state constitutions [see Wilson v. California Health Facilities Com. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 317, 324-326, 167 Cal. Rptr. 801 (disclosure requirement for licensed health facilities subject to Cal. Const., art. I, § 1, but requirement upheld under rational relation test)]. This means that "there are limits which the government cannot constitutionally exceed in requiring the keeping of records" [Shapiro v. United States (1948) 335 U.S. 1, 32, 68 S. Ct. 1375, 92 L. Ed. 1787] .

The principal constitutional challenges to recordkeeping and reporting requirements involve violations of the prohibition against unreasonable searches and seizures [see [3], below], the privilege against self-incrimination [see [4], below], and the right of privacy [see [5], below]. Due process challenges to these requirements, though still raised, are seldom successful for the reasons discussed in [2], below.

[2] Due Process of Law

[a] Police Power and Rational Relation Test

While due processes challenges to recordkeeping and reporting statutes continue, these challenges have very little chance of success because statutes and rules that involve social and economic regulation, public health and safety, are exercises of the state's police power [see 4 Blackstone, Commentaries 162 ("[t]he police power is the power that concerns the due regulation and domestic order of the state")]. The police power is an attribute of sovereignty and is founded on the duty of the state to protect its citizens and provide for the safety, good order and well-being of society [

McKay Jewelers, Inc. v. Bowron (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 595, 600, 122 P.2d 543] .

The power cannot be precisely defined, because any definition is merely "the product of legislative determinations addressed to the purposes of government," and those purposes are "neither abstractly nor historically capable of complete definition" [Rodda, "The Accomplishment of Aesthetic Purposes Under the Police Power," 27 S. Cal. L. Rev. 149, 152 (1954)].

A few of "the more conspicuous examples of the traditional application of the police power" are "[p]ublic safety, public health, morality, peace and quiet, [and] law and order." These examples "merely illustrate the scope of the power and do not delimit it" [Berman v. Parker (1954) 348 U.S. 26, 32, 75 S. Ct. 98, 99 L. Ed. 27] . Exercises of the state's police power are assessed under the rational relationship test [see Duke Power Co. v Carolina Env. Study Gp. (1978) 438 U.S. 59, 83-87, 98 S. Ct. 2620, 57 L. Ed. 2d 595 (economic regulation presumed constitutional and weighed under rational relation test); Whalen v. Roe (1977) 429 U.S. 589, 596-598, 97 S. Ct. 869, 51 L. Ed. 2d 64 (statute regulating dangerous drugs upheld as valid exercise of police power and the product of orderly and rational legislative decision); New Orleans v. Dukes (1976) 427 U.S. 297, 303-306,96 S. Ct. 2513, 49 L. Ed. 2d 511 (city ordinance limiting pushcart food vendors in French Quarter upheld under rational relation test as valid regulation of local economy under police power); Kelley v. Johnson (1976) 425 U.S. 238, 245-248, 96 S. Ct. 1440, 47 L. Ed. 2d 708 (hair-length rule for law enforcement officers upheld as having rational relation to state's protection of safety of persons and property under police power); Wilson v. California Health Facilities Com. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 317, 322-325, 167 Cal. Rptr. 801 (health care facility reporting requirement upheld under rational relation test as proper exercise of state's police power based on legitimate state interest in public health and safety)].

In consequence, a law requiring reports on or records of regulated activities will pass constitutional muster if it meets all of the following criteria [California Bankers Ass'n v. Shultz (1974) 416 U.S. 21, 45-50, 94 S. Ct. 1494, 39 L. Ed. 2d 812 ; see Wilson v. California Health Facilities Com. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 317, 322-325, 167 Cal. Rptr. 801 (health care facility reporting requirement upheld as proper exercise of police power based on legitimate state interest in health and economic regulation and reasonable relation of requirement to this state interest); Blinder v. Division of Narcotic Enforcement (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 174, 179-184, 101 Cal. Rptr. 635 (statutes regulating methadone treatment of addicts upheld against due process challenge by addicts and doctors on grounds that statutes were exercise of police power in public interest; the means are reasonably necessary for the purpose; and they are not unduly oppressive)]:

- The government has the power to regulate or forbid the activity concerned.

- There is a rational relationship between the recordkeeping or reporting requirement and the government's objective.

- The burdens of compliance are reasonable.

[b] Power to Regulate

The first requirement for the validity of a statute challenged as a violation of due process is that the government must have the power to regulate or forbid the activity concerned [see [a], above]. The police power is very broad, and the role of the courts in determining the validity of a legislative exercise of that power is very narrow [Kelley v. Johnson (1976) 425 U.S. 238, 247-248, 96 S. Ct. 1440, 47 L. Ed. 2d 708 ; Berman v. Parker (1954) 348 U.S. 26, 32, 75 S. Ct. 98, 99 L. Ed. 27] .

When the exercise of the police power is involved, "the legislature, not the judiciary, is the main guardian of the public needs to be served by social legislation" [Berman v. Parker (1954) 348 U.S. 26, 32, 75 S. Ct. 98, 99 L. Ed. 27] . Police power is the power inherent in a government to enact laws, within constitutional limits, to protect the order, safety, health, morals, and general welfare of society [Blinder v. Division of Narcotic Enforcement (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 174, 179, 101 Cal. Rptr. 635 , quoting In re Rameriz (1924) 193 Cal. 633, 649-650, 226 P. 914] . A state has a legitimate interest in regulating areas subject to the police power [Wilson v. California Health Facilities Com. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 317, 323, 167 Cal. Rptr. 801] . Legislative choices within the scope of this power are presumed to be valid, and the party challenging the law must show that the Legislature acted arbitrarily or irrationally before the law may be struck down [New Orleans v. Dukes (1976) 427 U.S. 297, 303-306, 96 S. Ct. 2513, 49 L. Ed. 2d 511 ; Kelley v. Johnson (1976) 425 U.S. 238, 247-248, 96 S. Ct. 1440, 47 L. Ed. 2d 708 ; Wilson v. California Health Facilities Com. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 317, 323, 167 Cal. Rptr. 801] .

[c] Rational Relation to State Interest

The Legislature has acted arbitrarily or irrationally, and its exercise of the police power is invalid despite the presumption of validity, if the statute adopted bears no rational relation to the legitimate state interest that it was adopted to further [New Orleans v. Dukes (1976) 427 U.S. 297, 303-306, 96 S. Ct. 2513, 49 L. Ed. 2d 511 (city ordinance limiting pushcart food vendors in French Quarter upheld as rational way to aid local economy by preserving appeal of area); Kelley v. Johnson (1976) 425 U.S. 238, 247-248, 96 S. Ct. 1440, 47 L. Ed. 2d 708 (regulation limiting hair length of law enforcement officers has rational connection to promotion of public safety); California Bankers Ass'n v. Shultz (1974) 416 U.S. 21, 49, 94 S. Ct. 1494, 39 L. Ed. 2d 812 (requiring drawee banks to keep copies of negotiable instruments is reasonable way to preserve evidence for possible criminal proceedings even though the principal congressional concern is with the banks' customers); Wilson v. California Health Facilities Com. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 317, 322-325, 167 Cal. Rptr. 801 (requiring financial disclosure by health care facilities is reasonable way to assure availability of health services for all)].

In one case, for example, plaintiffs challenged a federal law that set a $560 million limit on liability for nuclear power accidents, arguing that the law violated due process because it allowed injury to occur without adequate compensation to the victims and because the amount fixed bore no rational relation to the potential losses. The United States Supreme Court disagreed. The Court said that the figure chosen was arbitrary only in the sense that any preset limit on recovery is necessarily an arbitrarily chosen figure, and that the provision did not violate due process because the limit set was rationally related to the congressional goal of encouraging private industry participation in nuclear power by setting a statutory limit on liability [Duke Power Co. v Carolina Env. Study Gp. (1978) 438 U.S. 59, 83-87, 98 S. Ct. 2620, 57 L. Ed. 2d 595] .

[d] Burdens of Compliance

Even an otherwise proper exercise of the police power may be found to violate due process, if the burdens of complying with its requirements would be unduly oppressive [California Bankers Ass'n v. Shultz (1974) 416 U.S. 21, 50, 94 S. Ct. 1494, 39 L. Ed. 2d 812 ; Serve Yourself Gas etc. Assn. v. Brock (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 813, 817-819, 249 P.2d 545 ; Blinder v. Division of Narcotic Enforcement (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 174, 179, 184, 101 Cal. Rptr. 635] . For statutes that require records or reports, the alleged burden is usually a matter of the cost of keeping the records or filing the reports. For example, when the federal government adopted a statue requiring banks to keep copies of certain negotiable instruments for possible future use as evidence in criminal proceedings, the banks claimed a violation of due process, urging that the cost of keeping these records would be unduly burdensome. The United States Supreme Court disagreed, pointing out that the banks were federally insured. This meant that the recordkeeping requirement was merely in the nature of a condition on the receipt of public funds [California Bankers Ass'n v. Shultz (1974) 416 U.S. 21, 50, 94 S. Ct. 1494, 39 L. Ed. 2d 812] .

[3] Search and Seizure

Whether a particular recordkeeping or reporting requirement violates the proscription against unreasonable searches and seizures in the federal [U.S. Const., amends. IV, XIV], or state [Cal. Const., art. I, §§ 1, 13] constitutions is a question that usually arises when either (1) the agency performs a regulatory inspection of records, or (2) the agency issues a subpoena for the production of documents or records [see § 471.31 [1], for discussion of the effect of the ban on unreasonable searches and seizures upon agency subpoena power; see also Ch. 471A, Inspections by Public Agencies , for discussion of inspections and the ban on unreasonable searches and seizures].

Even when a statute gives an agency access to required records, the Fourth Amendment still applies [see, e.g., People v. Hutchings (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 33, 36, 69 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 33 , 138 Cal. Rptr. 584 (holding former Lab. Code §§ 1174 and 1175 unconstitutional for authorizing unreasonable searches and seizures)].

Warrantless search or inspection provisions in regulatory statutes are not per se unconstitutional; the reasonableness of a warrantless search will depend upon the specific enforcement needs and privacy guarantees of each statute [Roberts v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 770, 789, 195 Cal. Rptr. 393 , quoting Marshall v. Barlow's Inc. (1978) 436 U.S. 307, 321-322, 98 S. Ct. 1816, 56 L. Ed. 2d 305] . The United States Supreme Court explained this statement by noting two situations in which warrantless inspection statutes might be upheld. First, if the statute applies to a specific industry, then regulations might already be so pervasive that a Colonnade-Biswell exception to the warrant requirement could apply [Marshall v. Barlow's Inc. (1978) 436 U.S. 307, 321, 98 S. Ct. 1816, 56 L. Ed. 2d 305 ; see Ch. 471A, Inspections by Public Agencies , for discussion of this exception to the warrant requirement for pervasively regulated businesses]. Second, the statute might be one that provides for resort to judicial enforcement when entry is refused [Marshall v. Barlow's Inc. (1978) 436 U.S. 307]. This means that, as a rule, statutes that allow a warrantless inspection of required records must provide for judicial review of the reasonableness of the agency's demand for inspection before imposing penalties for refusal to comply [People v. Hutchings (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 33 ; see See v. Seattle (1967) 387 U.S. 541, 87 S. Ct. 1737, 18 L. Ed. 2d 943 (warrantless search unconstitutional because actual search should be at least as limited by Fourth Amendment requirements as an agency subpoena, which may not be enforced by an agency inspector in the field, but must be subjected to judicial review before compliance may be compelled); Roberts v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 770, 789, 195 Cal. Rptr. 393 (statute requiring taxpayer to give records to assessor upheld because taxpayer may seek judicial review of reasonableness of request before complying)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Analyzing Constitutional Issues. Fourth amendment issues arise only when a search is involved. If no search is involved, the agency can only compel disclosure of the records through the agency subpoena power, which does not involve a search because the subpoenaed party usually must bring the records to the agency office to comply with the subpoena.

[4] Self-Incrimination

[a] Nature of Privilege Against Self-Incrimination

The Fifth Amendment to the Federal Constitution provides that "no person ... shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself" [U.S. Const., amend. V]. The Fifth Amendment has been held applicable to state proceedings under the Fourteenth Amendment [Malloy v. Hogan (1964) 378 U.S. 1, 3, 84 S. Ct. 1489, 12 L. Ed. 2d 653 ; Prudhomme v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 320, 323, 85 Cal. Rptr. 129, 466 P.2d 673 ; see U.S. Const., amend. XIV; see also Evid. Code §§ 930 (defendant in criminal case privileged to extent provided in state and federal constitutions), 940 (witness privileged to extent provided in state and federal constitutions)]. The California Constitution similarly guarantees the privilege against self-incrimination [Cal. Const., art. I, § 15; see also Evid. Code §§ 930 (defendant in criminal case privileged to extent provided in state and federal constitutions), 940 (witness privileged to extent provided in state and federal constitutions)].

Although the language of the Fifth Amendment limits the privilege to criminal defendants, judicial decisions have extended the availability of the privilege to witnesses in any kind of proceeding [Gonzales v. Superior Court (1980) 117 Cal. App. 3d 57, 62, 178 Cal. Rptr. 358 ; see Kastigar v. United States (1972) 406 U.S. 441, 444, 92 S. Ct. 1653,

32 L. Ed. 2d 212 (privilege against self-incrimination may be asserted in any proceeding, civil or criminal, administrative or judicial, investigatory or adjudicatory, and protects against any disclosures that the witness reasonably believes could be used in criminal prosecution or could lead to other evidence that might be so used)].

[b] Application of Privilege to Recording and Reporting Requirements

[i] Required Records and Natural Persons

Despite the apparent breadth of its coverage [see [a], above], the privilege against self-incrimination affords little protection against administrative agency recordkeeping or reporting requirements [see generally 1 Davis, Administrative Law Treatise, Ch. 4, Investigation, §§ 4.16-4.23 (2d ed. 1978)].

Initially, and most significantly, the privilege does not apply to those records that a regulated person or entity is required by law to keep [Shapiro v. United States (1948) 335 U.S. 1, 32-33, 68 S. Ct. 1375, 92 L. Ed. 1787 ; Craib v. Bulmash (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 475, 487-490, 261 Cal. Rptr. 686, 777 P.2d 1120 ; People v. Thayer (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 635, 643, 47 Cal. Rptr. 780, 408 P.2d 108 , cert. denied, 384 U.S. 908, 86 S. Ct. 1342, 16 L. Ed. 2d 361 (1966)] . Note that the privilege may nonetheless apply to records required by law, if the compulsory disclosure of those records confronts the party claiming the privilege with a substantial hazard of self-incrimination [see discussion in [ii], below].

Another factor that limits the use of the privilege to defeat administrative record keeping and reporting requirements is the rule that the privilege protects only natural persons from compulsory self-incrimination through their own testimony or through the compelled production of personal records or effects. The privilege does not apply to organizations [Bellis v. United States (1974) 417 U.S. 85, 87-90, 94 S. Ct. 2179, 40 L. Ed. 2d 678 ; United States of America v. White (1944) 322 U.S. 694, 698-701, 64 S. Ct. 1248, 88 L. Ed. 1542 ; Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 44-46, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791] . Thus, the privilege does not protect corporations, large unincorporated associations, or even most partnerships from compulsory disclosure of their records tending to incriminate the organizations [see Bellis v. United States (1974) 417 U.S. 85, 88, 94-98, 94 S. Ct. 2179, 40 L. Ed. 2d 678 (small partnership); United States of America v. White (1944) 322 U.S. 694, 698-701, 64 S. Ct. 1248, 88 L. Ed. 1542 (labor union); United States v. Bausch & Lomb Optical Co. (1944) 321 U.S. 707, 726, 64 S. Ct. 805, 88 L. Ed. 1024 (corporation); Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462 (corporation); but see United States v. Slutsky (S.D. N.Y. 1972) 352 F. Supp. 1105, 1107-1109 (small family partnership's records deemed personal records of partners)]. Because most administrative record keeping and reporting requirements apply primarily to business entities and their activities, the privilege against self-incrimination is rarely asserted to oppose agency enforcement of these requirements.

[ii] Factors Considered by Courts in Determining Application of Privilege

Because of the two limitations on the privilege discussed in [i], above, statutory and regulatory reporting requirements generally have been held not to violate the privilege against self-incrimination. When a particular reporting provision is challenged, the courts balance the public need for disclosure against the individual's claim to constitutional protection [California v. Byers (1971) 402 U.S. 424, 427, 91 S. Ct. 1535, 29 L. Ed. 2d 9 ; Blinder v. Division of Narcotic Enforcement (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 174, 188, 101 Cal. Rptr. 635] . To invoke the privilege against self-incrimination, the claimant must demonstrate that the compelled disclosures will confront him or her with "substantial hazards of self-incrimination" [California v. Byers (1971) 402 U.S. 424, 429, 91 S. Ct. 1535 ; Blinder v. Division of Narcotic Enforcement (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 174, 186, 101 Cal. Rptr. 635] .

If the statute is regulatory in nature, rather than criminal, and is based on a strong public policy in favor of disclosure, the mere possibility of incrimination will not defeat it. Thus, in United States v. Sullivan it was held that the privilege could not be invoked by a bootlegger to justify his failure to file an income tax return on the ground that the return would tend to incriminate him by revealing an unlawful source of income [United States v. Sullivan (1927) 274 U.S.

259, 263-264, 47 S. Ct. 607, 71 L. Ed. 1037 ; see also California v. Byers (1971) 402 U.S. 424, 428-430, 91 S. Ct. 1535, 29 L. Ed. 2d 9 (California statute upheld that required driver in "hit and run" accident to stop and give name and address) ; Fahlgren v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 930, 936, 231 Cal. Rptr. 229 (financial responsibility law requirement to report traffic accidents did not violate privilege when report used as evidence in suspension of license proceeding); Blinder v. Division of Narcotic Enforcement (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 174, 186-189, 101 Cal. Rptr. 635 (compulsory disclosure provisions related to methadone treatment of narcotic addicts does not violate either reporting physicians' or addicts' privilege against self-incrimination); Machado v. State Water Resources Control Board (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 720, 728-729, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116 (record keeping and reporting requirements of wastewater discharges imposed on dairy as part of clean up and abatement order issued by water quality board did not violate dairy owners' fifth amendment privilege against self-incrimination)].

A reporting requirement confronts the party required to report with a substantial hazard of self-incrimination, and thereby violates the privilege against self-incrimination, when the requirement involves any of the following [California v. Byers (1971) 402 U.S. 424, 429-431, 91 S. Ct. 1535, 29 L. Ed. 2d 9 ; Grosso v. United States (1968) 390 U.S. 62, 67-69, 88 S. Ct. 709, 19 L. Ed. 2d 906 ; Blinder v. Division of Narcotic Enforcement (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 174, 186-189, 101 Cal. Rptr. 635] :

- An obligation to keep and preserve records different from those customarily kept.

- Disclosures extracted from a highly selective group inherently suspect of criminal activities.

- An area permeated with criminal statutes, as distinguished from an essentially noncriminal and regulatory area of inquiry [see, e.g., Leary v. United States (1969) 395 U.S. 6, 13, 16-18, 89 S. Ct. 1532, 23 L. Ed. 2d 57 (registration and compliance with provisions of marijuana transfer tax violated Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination); Haynes v. United States (1968) 390 U.S. 85, 96-100, 88 S. Ct. 722, 19 L. Ed. 2d 923 (law requiring registration of proscribed firearms invalid under Fifth Amendment); Marchetti v. United States (1968) 390 U.S. 39, 57, 88 S. Ct. 697, 19 L. Ed. 2d 889 (requirement that gamblers register for and pay federal occupational tax violated privilege against self-incrimination); Albertson v. Subversive Activities Control Bd. (1965) 382 U.S. 70, 79, 86 S. Ct. 194, 15 L. Ed. 2d 165 (orders of Subversive Activities Control Board requiring Communist Party members to register with Board held to violate privilege against self-incrimination)].

Cal. Const., art. I, § 1 expressly provides a right to privacy. The provision is directed against government or business "snooping" into personal information, the retention of unnecessary information by these entities, and their misuse of such information when reasonable checks on its accuracy did not exist [White v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 757, 775, 120 Cal. Rptr. 94, 533 P.2d 222 ; Roberts v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 770, 790, 195 Cal. Rptr. 393] .

The California Constitution appears to protect a larger zone of privacy than the federal right [Wilson v. California Health Facilities Com. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 317, 324, 167 Cal. Rptr. 801] , which is applicable to the states under the Fourteenth Amendment [Roe v. Wade (1973) 410 U.S. 113, 153, 93 S. Ct. 705, 35 L. Ed. 2d 147] . The California Constitution provides few independent restraints on agency record keeping and reporting requirements, however, as shown by the following examples:

- Article I, Section 1 does not preclude an agency from collecting information it needs. The right of privacy is, for example, no bar to the inspection of taxpayer records by a county assessor or the Franchise Tax Board [Roberts v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 770, 790, 195 Cal. Rptr. 393] .

- The state constitutional provision does not protect corporations, but rather individuals [Roberts v.

Gulf Oil Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 770, 791-793, 195 Cal. Rptr. 393 ; see Ion Equipment Corp. v. Nelson (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 868, 878, 168 Cal. Rptr. 361 (corporation has no common law right of privacy); but see H & M Associates v. City of El Centro (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 399, 409-412, 167 Cal. Rptr. 392 (holding a partnership could state a cause of action for invasion of privacy, citing Cal. Const., art. I, § 1)].

Reporting requirements that compel the public disclosure of reported information may run afoul of Article I, section 1, however, at least where the information disclosed is deemed personal [cf. City of Carmel-by-the-Sea v. Young (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 259, 85 Cal. Rptr. 1, 466 P.2d 225 (public officer financial disclosure law held invalid as overbroad intrusion into right of privacy because it required public disclosure of personal financial information and failed to limit disclosure requirement to those matters that might give rise to conflict of interest); Wilson v. California Health Facilities Com. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 317, 167 Cal. Rptr. 801 (accounting and reporting requirements of California Health Facilities Disclosure Act held valid against right of privacy challenge by limited partnership because health and health care laws are presumptively valid, and because scope of required disclosure was properly limited and consistent with legitimate state interest in health care)].

B. Agency Investigations

§ 471.20 Agency Investigations

[1] Definitions

[a] Investigation

Investigation is a broad term and connotes all forms of administrative fact-finding. Often it denotes either:

- The process of uncovering wrongdoing as the first step in a disciplinary or law enforcement proceeding or as a prelude to a judicial proceeding [see, e.g., California School Employees Assn. v. Personnel Com. of Pajaro Valley Unified School Dist. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 139, 144, 89 Cal. Rptr. 620, 474 P.2d 436] , or

- A studious inquiry in the nature of research for the purpose of supporting an agency policy decision or providing useful information to government officials or the general public [see, e.g., 18 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 45, 47 (1951)] .

[b] Examination

An administrative examination is often the same sort of inquiry as an inspection, but it usually connotes a more thorough and searching inquiry. The most common example is the driver's license examination, consisting of a written test of knowledge, a test of vision, and a test of driving skill. Financial audits are sometimes called examinations (hence, for example, bank examiners). Similarly, professional licensing examinations are long and challenging.

[2] Nature of Investigative Power

Administrative investigations may be undertaken for many different purposes, although the object in every case is only to collect information. The various purposes include:

- To provide a factual basis for adopting regulations [see, e.g., Rivera v. Division of Industrial Welfare (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 576, 586-588, 71 Cal. Rptr. 739] .

- To determine whether a license should be issued [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 23958 (investigation of applicantfor liquor license)].

- To determine whether a disciplinary proceeding, for suspension or revocation of a license, should be begun [see, e.g., Humane Soc'y of the United States of America, Cal. Branch, Inc. v. Merrill (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 115, 119-120, 18 Cal. Rptr. 701] .

- To deter socially undesirable conduct and protect the public [see, e.g., People v. Hyde (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 158, 166, 115 Cal. Rptr. 358, 524 P.2d 830 (antihijacking search at airport)].

- To collect information for the use of government officials or the general public [see, e.g., 18 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 45, 47 (1951)] .

Administrative power to investigate is very broad. The Supreme Court has said that the power to make administrative inquiry is not derived from a judicial function but is more analogous to the power of a grand jury, which does not depend on a case or controversy to get evidence (i.e., to inform itself) but can investigate merely on suspicion that the law is being violated, or even just because it wants assurance that the law is not being violated [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462] .

[3] Investigative Hearings and Administrative Trials

[a] Role of Administrative Personnel

Administrative investigations may, but need not, be conducted in the form of a hearing. Where an investigation is being conducted in hearing form, it is important to understand the differences between such an investigative hearing and an administrative trial (i.e., an adjudicative hearing). See Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , et seq., for discussion of adjudicative hearings that are administrative trials.

In an investigative hearing, agency personnel usually assume a relatively passive and neutral role. Their purpose is to gather information by hearing testimony, which they may sometimes have to elicit and which they have the power to compel by means of subpoena, and by receiving arguments from interested persons. In an administrative trial, on the other hand, agency personnel take an active role and assume an adversary position. Their purpose is not to gather information, since that task would already have been done in an investigation. The objective is to present evidence in the presence of an accused, to receive any evidence the accused wishes to present on his or her behalf, and to make a record of the evidence relating to the question of whether a license application should be granted or a license should be suspended or revoked.

[b] Procedural Rights of Subject

Since an administrative investigation that focuses on a licensee or a license applicant is analogous to a grand jury investigation [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462] . The investigation does not result directly in a deprivation of the subject's liberty or property [Hannah v. Larche (1960) 363 U.S. 420, 441, 80 S. Ct. 1502, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1307] . The subject has virtually none of the procedural rights that are associated with the concept of procedural due process such as notice, an opportunity to appear (in person or by counsel) and refute evidence against him or her, and the right to judicial review of the agency's decision; a statute may, however, give the subject procedural rights, in which case due process requires that the statute be followed [see McCartney v. Commission on Judicial Qualifications (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 512, 519, 116 Cal. Rptr. 260, 526 P.2d 268 ; Rivera v. Division of Industrial Welfare (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 576, 586-588, 71 Cal. Rptr. 739] . See further discussion in § 471.22.

[4] Mandatory vs. Discretionary Exercise of Investigative Power

A statute may expressly direct an agency to conduct an investigation in certain circumstances [see, e.g., Lab. Code §§ 1173, 1181, 1187; Rivera v. Division of Industrial Welfare (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 576, 588, 71 Cal. Rptr. 739] . The duty to investigate may also be inferred where the statutes are not explicit [see, e.g., Goytino v. McAleer (1906) 4 Cal. App. 655, 657-659, 88 P. 991] . The general rule is that where an agency is authorized to act in particular factual situations, it has a duty to make an investigation sufficient to ascertain whether the facts exist which may trigger administrative action [see Laurelle v. Bush (1911) 17 Cal. App. 409, 415-416, 119 P. 953 ; Goytino v. McAleer (1906) 4 Cal. App. 655, 658-659, 88 P. 991] .

The head of each department in the state government has discretionary investigative power concerning virtually any subject in which he or she may have a legitimate official interest [Gov. Code § 11180]. Although there are only about 30 denominated departments in the state government, most of the agencies which in fact head the other 30-odd departments have the same power by reason of special statutory cross references to it [see, e.g., Educ. Code § 89043 (trustees of the California state university system), Water Code § 183 (State Water Resources Control Board)].

In addition, statutes governing a particular agency may give discretionary power to investigate [see, e.g., Fish & Game Code § 1006; Gov. Code § 18670]. In the absence of an applicable statute, courts will generally infer a grant of as much investvestigative power as an agency reasonably needs to accomplish the tasks assigned it by the Legislature [see Laurelle v. Bush (1911) 17 Cal. App. 409, 119 P. 953] .

An agency's discretionary power to investigate is very broad, but there are limits. The statutes which the agency purports to administer and pursuant to which it conducts an investigation are the source of its power, whether that power is expressly given or must be inferred. Hence, if an agency extends its investigation into an area not sanctioned by its governing law, the investigation may, to that extent, be stopped by injunction [see Berkeley Chiropractic College v. Compton (1929) 97 Cal. App. 790, 791-793, 276 P. 361] .

[5] Persons Subject to Investigation

[a] Licensees

Licensees and applicants for licenses obviously may be subject to administrative investigations. Licensing laws routinely require or allow it [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 23958; Health & Safety Code § 1421(a); Veh. Code § 11714].

[b] Nonregulated Persons

Administrative investigations often probe the affairs of persons not subject to regulation by the investigating agency [see, e.g., People v. Hyde (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 158, 166, 115 Cal. Rptr. 358, 524 P.2d 830 (antihijacking search at airport); Vidaurri v. Superior Court (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 550, 552, 91 Cal. Rptr. 704 (inspection of citrus trees in back yard, to detectpest infestation); Tellis v. Municipal Court (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 455, 457, 85 Cal. Rptr. 459 (sanitation inspection of dwelling)]. In some cases, the subject of the investigation is even required by statute to cooperate [see, e.g., Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 18401-18417, 18408 (tax returns)] or may be compelled by subpoena to give evidence [see Redding Pine Mills v. State Bd. of Equalization (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 40, 43-45, 320 P.2d 25] . Generally, if the agency has a legitimate official interest in getting the information it seeks, there can be no objection to the fact of the investigation. The methods used, however, might be subject to challenge, and the scope of the investigation or the extent to which the subject is compelled to cooperate may be questioned.

[c] Recipients of Social Services

Conditioning the continued receipt of welfare benefits on the recipient's acquiescence to periodic warrantless home visits for the purpose of uncovering fraud may be constitutional in some circumstances [see Wyman v. James (1971) 400 U.S. 309, 317, 91 S. Ct. 381, 27 L. Ed. 2d 408] , but there are limits to the practice [see Parrish v. Civil Serv. Comm'n (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 260, 268-270, 57 Cal. Rptr. 623, 425 P.2d 223 (predawn raids on recipients' homes as unconstitutional invasion of privacy)]. Investigative methods such as cross checking information stored in separate agencies' electronic data banks are generally held constitutional [see Carleson v. Superior Court (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 1, 10, 103 Cal. Rptr. 824] .

County requirement of a home visit to an applicant's residence as a condition of receipt of CalWORKS benefits was held to be valid under state law. County requirement was not preempted by state law, did not violate fraud investigation requirements of Welf. & Inst. Code § 11055.5, and did not violate constitutional privacy rights of recipients [Smith v. Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1104, 1109, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 700] .

[6] Statutory Scope of Authority

[a] General Requirements

Both federal and state law recognize that administrative agencies need information. Consequently, the law allows these agencies a broad investigative authority, a power of inquisition, that is analogous to a grand jury, which does not depend on a case or controversy for power to get evidence but can investigate merely on suspicion that the law is being violated, or even just because it wants assurance that it is not [United States v. Morton Salt Co. (1950) 338 U.S. 632, 642-643, 70 S. Ct. 357, 94 L. Ed. 401, 46 F.T.C. 1436 ; Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462 ; see LaFave, Search and Seizure (2d ed. 1987), § 4.13(b)].

Agency investigative power is at bottom statutory. Either the agency is expressly authorized to investigate by a statute [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 4380 (Pharmacy Board authorized to investigate suspected violations of Pharmacy Act)], or the courts will infer a grant of as much investigative power as the agency needs to accomplish the tasks assigned it by the Legislature [see Laurelle v. Bush (1911) 17 Cal. App. 409, 415-416, 119 P. 953 (power to license motion picture exhibitors implies power to inquire into propriety of granting license as being reasonably necessary to licensing power)].

Although agency investigative power is very broad, it is not limitless. If the power to investigate is not granted in and may not be implied from the statute that the agency is seeking to enforce, then the investigation is unlawful and may be enjoined [Berkeley Chiropractic College v. Compton (1929) 97 Cal. App. 790, 793-794, 276 P. 361] . It is, however, not sufficient grounds for a court challenge to an agency's investigative authority to claim that the subject of the investigation is outside the agency's jurisdiction. Determining whether a subject is within the scope of its jurisdiction is a proper matter for an agency to investigate [Hill v. Brisbane (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 15, 18-21, 151 P.2d 578 (under doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies, hospital's claim of exemption from Unemployment Insurance Act was matter to be determined by Employment Commission)].

[b] Mandatory or Discretionary Authority

Sometimes the exercise of the investigative power is mandatory. For example, Bus. & Prof. Code § 9882.5 commands the director of the Department of Consumer Affairs to investigate on a continuing basis to gather evidence of violations of the Automotive Repair Act. At other times, the exercise of the power is discretionary, as when Bus. & Prof. Code § 5525 authorizes the State Board of Architectural Examiners to employ inspectors and investigators as it may deem necessary to carry out its duties. In addition to matters that an agency may have the sole or primary statutory authority to investigate, every department head has the discretionary authority to investigate anything that falls within the department's jurisdiction [Gov. Code § 11180; see § 471.30[1]]. Departments are categories of governmental functions.

The executive and administrative work of state government is divided into departments "as provided by law" [Gov. Code § 11150]. These departments are discussed, but not defined, in Gov. Code §§ 11150-11201. There are about 30 officially designated departments, such as the Department of Consumer Affairs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 100], and about 30 more de facto departments. See Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law , for further discussion and detail concerning specific agencies and their organization.

[7] Public Sources and Data Sharing, and the Right of Privacy

Much of the information acquired by an agency is obtained from public sources, such as the telephone book, or from other agencies. With the rapid development of computerized information systems, the exchange of data between agencies has been simplified. It was largely in recognition of this phenomenon and its attendant potential for abuse that the people of California amended Cal. Const., art. I, § 1 to include a right of privacy [see § 471.11[5]. For discussion of right of privacy as a limit on agency subpoena power, see § 471.32[2][e]. Notwithstanding California's express right of privacy, to date there have been few judicially imposed restraints on inter-agency information sharing for two principal reasons:

- Corporations enjoy neither the protections of Cal. Const., art. I, § 1, nor a fundamental right of privacy under the federal constitution [Roberts v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 770, 790-795, 195 Cal. Rptr. 393] . As a result, many regulated businesses are not in a position to challenge inter-agency data exchange on privacy grounds.

- The courts are generally unwilling to find a violation of an individual's right of privacy when an agency uses internal or agency-shared information, so long as the agency uses the information for a purpose that is within the scope of the rule or statute that authorizes the agency to gather or use the information [see Belmont v. State Personnel Bd. (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 518, 524-526, 111 Cal. Rptr. 607 (suspension of psychiatric social workers for failure to provide information on welfare recipients for entry into data base upheld on ground that storage of the information in computer for use by Department of Social Welfare did not violate privacy of recipients)].

Thus, for example, the disclosure of information about a welfare client to a Department of Public Welfare employee, whose duty it was to investigate allegations of welfare fraud, did not violate the client's right of privacy [Haskins v. San Diego County Dept. of Public Welfare (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 961, 971, 161 Cal. Rptr. 385] . If personal information gathered for agency use is communicated to the public, however, this is an invasion of privacy [Central Valley Chap. 7th Step Foundation v. Younger (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 212, 236, 157 Cal. Rptr. 117 ; see White v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 757, 775, 120 Cal. Rptr. 94, 533 P.2d 222 (purposes of Cal. Const., art. I, § 1, include preventing the improper use of information properly obtained for a specific purpose)].

[8] Police Techniques Including Entrapment or Fraudulent Inducement

In addition to the informal information-gathering techniques cited in [7], above, investigating agencies also use more sophisticated techniques akinto those used by police, such as the use of undercover agents or decoys. An agency may not, however, use evidence in administrative proceedings when it was obtained by entrapment [Patty v. Board of Medical Examiners (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 356, 362-367, 107 Cal. Rptr. 473, 508 P.2d 1121] , or by fraudulent inducement [Redner v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 83, 93-95, 95 Cal. Rptr. 447, 485 P.2d 799] .

For example, in one case the Supreme Court reversed the board's suspension of a doctor's license to practice, ruling that the doctor had been entrapped; lured and induced into unprofessional conduct by young women employed to ensnare him. The Court stressed the doctor's previously unblemished record and his illness at the time of the offense. The Court also noted that the employment of young women to obtain illegally prescribed drugs from elderly male doctors is not a new tactic to agents of the Board [Patty v. Board of Medical Examiners (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 356, 361, 369, 107 Cal.

In another case, the California Supreme Court reversed the Workmen's Compensation Appeals Board, and ordered a referee's determination of permanent partial disability reinstated. One reason for the Court's decision was the use by the Board of motion picture evidence obtained by fraudulent inducement. The workers' compensation insurer hired an investigator. The investigator befriended plaintiff, invited plaintiff to his ranch, got plaintiff drunk, then took everyone horseback riding. The Court held that the pictures of plaintiff horseback riding could not be used to support the Board's decision that plaintiff was not disabled because this evidence had been obtained by fraud [Redner v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 83, 87, 93-95, 95 Cal. Rptr. 447, 485 P.2d 799] .

[9] Records and Reports

Records that must be kept for or reports that must be made to an agency [see § 471.10] are another source of information for the investigating agency. While a regulating agency does have some power to coerce a regulated entity to surrender its documents or records by an implied threat to deny a license or impose a sanction, it is nonetheless true that almost all the information the agencies get from private parties comes in voluntarily [1 Davis, Administrative Law Treatise (2d ed. 1978), Ch. 4, "Investigation," § 4.4].

[10] Inspections and Discovery

An investigating agency may also obtain information through on-site inspections of specified areas of closely regulated activities. For example, Bus. & Prof. Code § 25755 authorizes law enforcement officers to visit and inspect the premises of alcoholic beverage sales licensee. For detaileddiscussions and forms relating to inspections, see Ch. 471A, Inspections by Public Agencies .

Once formal proceedings have been initiated, an agency may continue to obtain information under pertinent administrative discovery provisions, principally the discovery provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA) [see Gov. Code §§ 11505, 11507.5 et seq.; see also detailed discussion in Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications].

If other methods of information gathering prove unsatisfactory, an investigating agency may compel the production of information by the use of a subpoena [City of Vacaville v. Pitamber (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 739, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 396 (city of Vacaville requested audit of hotel operator's records to determine compliance with city imposed transient occupancy tax. Hotel operator refused, city council issued subpoena, superior court ordered compliance, and Court of Appeal affirmed superior court order requiring hotel operator to comply with subpoena)]. For a discussion of the subpoena power exercised by administrative agencies, see § 471.30 et seq.

[12] Judicial Deferral to Pending Agency Investigations

When an action raises questions within the scope of a regulatory agency's purview, the court should defer to the agency's expertise [Industrial Commun. Sys., Inc. v. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (9th Cir. 1974) 505 F.2d 152, 156-157 ; Pacific Bell v. Superior Court (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 137, 140, 231 Cal. Rptr. 574] . This principle is known as the doctrine of primary jurisdiction. If an agency investigation is pending that encompasses issues involved in the court action, and if the agency has primary jurisdiction (for discussion regarding primary jurisdiction, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions), the court will defer to the agency by granting a stay of the action pending resolution of the investigation [Pacific Bell v. Superior Court (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 137, 140-141, 231 Cal. Rptr. 574] .

[13] Challenging Investigative Authority

The scope of an administrative investigation may be challenged in a lawsuit [see, e.g., Berkeley Chiropractic College v. Compton (1929) 97 Cal. App. 790, 791-793, 276 P. 361 (injunction issued to stop overly broad investigation)]. It is not a ground for challenge, however, that the subject is not regulated by the investigating agency. The very purpose of the investigation might be to determine whether the subject belongs to the class of persons regulated by the agency [see Hill v. Brisbane (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 15, 19, 151 P.2d 578] . Nor would a challenge on the ground of violating the separation of powers doctrine be tenable [see Globe Cotton Oil Mills v. Zellerbach (1927) 200 Cal. 276, 277, 252 P. 1038] . For adiscussion of civil remedies for abuses of investigative power, see § 471.23, below.

[14] Public Attendance at Investigative Hearings

Whatever right the public has to attend an investigative hearing comes from statute, since there is no such right under the state or federal constitution [see Hannah v. Larche (1960) 363 U.S. 420, 442-452, 80 S. Ct. 1502, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1307 (public investigative hearing as not required by due process)]. California law generally requires public meetings for both state agencies [Gov. Code § 11120 et seq.], and local agencies [Gov. Code § 54950 et seq. (Ralph M. Brown Act)], subject to some exceptions. This topic is discussed in Ch. 470B, Public Agency Meetings .

[15] Public Access to Investigative Data

Accessibility of information in agency files in California is governed by the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.] The act generally requires disclosure of agency records to the public but specifies numerous categories of records that are exempt from the general disclosure requirement.

Of particular interest in administrative proceedings to obtain information is the following category of items exempt from general disclosure: "Records of complaints to, or investigations conducted by, or records of intelligence information or security procedures of, ... any state or local police agency, ... or any investigatory or security files compiled by any other state or local agency for correctional, law enforcement, or licensing purposes" [Gov. Code § 6254(f); see American Civil Liberties Union Foundation v. Deukmejian (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 440, 450, 452, 186 Cal. Rptr. 235, 651 P.2d 822 (definition of "intelligence information")].

This exemption is qualified by a listing of information that must be disclosed, even though the records containing the information may be withheld [Gov. Code § 6254(f); Williams v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 337, 348-350, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882, 852 P.2d 377] . However, the requirement to disclose specified information does not apply if the disclosure would have certain specified undesirable consequences (such as endangering a person involved in an investigation).

Also, on the request of a victim or the parent or guardian of a minor victim, when information is disclosed concerning any of numerous specified sex crimes and crimes involving interference with civil rights, the victim's identity or the nature of the crime may be withheld [Gov. Code § 6254(f); Williams v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 337, 350, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882, 852 P.2d 377] .

An "investigatory file" exempt from disclosure under this statute is one containing information relating to a proceeding for correctional, law enforcement, or licensing purposes, when there is a concrete and definite prospect that the proceeding will be held [Williams v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 337, 355-356, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882, 852 P.2d 377 ; Uribe v. Howie (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 194, 212-213, 96 Cal. Rptr. 493] . A law enforcement purpose is one in aid of enforcing the penal laws [State of California ex rel. Division of Industrial Safety v. Superior Court (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 778, 783-784, 117 Cal. Rptr. 726] . A record that is not itself exempt from disclosure can become exempt from disclosure by being "compiled" into an exempt "investigatory file" [Williams v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 337, 354, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882, 852 P.2d 377] . Consumer complaints to an agency are exempt from disclosure whether or not they are in any investigatory file [Black Panther Party v. Kehoe (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 645, 650-654,

117 Cal. Rptr. 106] .

The exemption from disclosure that covers investigatory files does not end when the investigation ends. While there may be reasons of policy that would support a time limitation on the exemption for investigatory files, such a limitation is virtually impossible to reconcile with the language and history of Gov. Code § 6254(f) [Williams v. Superior Court (1993) 5 Cal. 4th 337, 355, 360-362, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882, 852 P.2d 377] . In addition to the general exemptions from disclosure set out in the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.], there are many specific exemptions in statutes governing particular agencies [see, e.g., Fish & Game Code § 8022; Gov. Code § 18934; Welf. & Inst. Code § 10850].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to disclosure under the California Public Records Act, see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act.

[16] Divulging Evidence of Unlawful Activity

In connection with investigations and actions, a state agency department head may divulge evidence of unlawful activity discovered from records or testimony not otherwise privileged or confidential to the Attorney General or to any prosecuting attorney who has a responsibility for investigating the unlawful activity discovered, or to any government agency responsible for enforcing laws related to the unlawful activity discovered [Gov. Code § 11181(g)]. Except in reporting to the department head or when called on to testify in any court or proceeding at law or as provided in Gov. Code § 11181(g), any officer who divulges information acquired from private books, documents, or papers of any person, while acting or claiming to act under an authorization pursuant to an investigation or hearing, is guilty of a misdemeanor and disqualified from acting in any official capacity in the department [Gov. Code § 11183].

[17] Discovery of Agency Investigative Documents

The Court of Appeal held that for purposes of civil discovery, in litigation between the People of the State of California and vision companies forviolations of optometry practice statutes, that state agencies, who were not parties to the lawsuit, were separate entities from the state attorney general's office, who represented the People in the civil lawsuit, and the attorney general's office could not be compelled under Code Civ. Proc. § 2031 [repealed 2004] to produce documents in the possession of those non-party state agencies, such as the Department of Consumer Affairs, unless the agency had a role in investigating the matter that was subject to litigation [People ex rel. Lockyer v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1060, 1076-1078, 1080, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 324] . The court cited and relied upon the Court of Appeal decision in People v. Superior Court (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1305, 1309, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264 (people not required to produce in criminal discovery records in possession of California Department of Corrections (CDC) because CDC was not investigating agency in prison murder prosecution). For other non-party state agencies, the documents could only be compelled by issuing a subpoena for production of documents to the agency itself. Production of these documents could not be compelled by serving a deposition notice on the attorney general's office. For this purpose, those other agencies were treated as non-party witnesses, and not as officers or agents of the Attorney General's office [People ex rel. Lockyer v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1060, 1076-1078, 1080, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 324] . For purposes of civil discovery, different state agencies are separate entities, and this is consistent with the structure of those agencies under various statutory provisions that create and empower these agencies [Gov. Code § 11180 (investigatory authority of department heads)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Agency Investigations

41-471 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471.21

§ 471.21 Investigative Hearing

[1] Not Required

There is no constitutional requirement that an investigation be conducted in the form of a hearing [see Hannah v. Larche (1960) 363 U.S. 420, 442, 80 S. Ct. 1502, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1307 ; McCartney v. Commission on Judicial Qualifications (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 512, 519, 116 Cal. Rptr. 260, 526 P.2d 268 ; In re Bye (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 96, 100-101, 115 Cal. Rptr. 382, 524 P.2d 854] , nor is there any general statutory requirement for an investigative hearing. However, particular statutes may require a hearing, and there is general statutory authorization to conduct an investigation in the form of a hearing if the agency so chooses [see Gov. Code § 11181].

[2] Notice

Notice to the person who is the subject of a hearing is required only when the hearing is adjudicative [San Diego Bldg. Contractors Assn. v. City Council (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 205, 217, 118 Cal. Rptr. 146, 529 P.2d 570] . If the hearing is merely investigative, notice to the subject is not required unless a statute mandates notice [McCartney v. Commission on JudicialQualifications (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 512, 519-520, 116 Cal. Rptr. 260, 526 P.2d 268] . There is no general statutory notice requirement.

[3] Apprisal, Confrontation, and Cross Examination

Unless a statute gives the right, the subject of an investigative hearing has no right to be informed of the nature and substance of complaints against him, no right to confront witnesses against him, and no right to cross examine witnesses [Hannah v. Larche (1960) 363 U.S. 420, 441-443, 448, 80 S. Ct. 1502, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1307] . There is no general statute giving any of these rights.

[4] Right to Testify

Although the point has not been litigated in California, it appears that the subject of an investigative hearing has no right to appear and testify on his or her own behalf, since he or she has no right to notice, apprisal, confrontation, or cross examination.

[5] Right to Counsel

[a] Sixth Amendment

The constitutional right to the assistance of counsel [see U.S. Const., amend. VI; Cal. Const., art. I, § 15] exists only in criminal prosecutions. There is no constitutional right to counsel in civil proceedings, even those in which an important right or a property interest of a party is at stake [Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 539-540, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525] . Administrative proceedings are civil in nature. Even proceedings to revoke or suspend a license or to carry out other administrative action of like nature are not criminal or quasi criminal. The purpose of such a proceeding is not to punish the subject; rather, the purpose is to protect the public. Public respect for and confidence in persons regulated by the state depends on disciplining and removing dishonest, immoral, disreputable, and incompetent practitioners [Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 540, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525] .

[b] Due Process

The assistance of counsel for witnesses and subjects of administrative investigations is not an essential element of due process [see In re Groban (1957) 352 U.S. 330, 332-333, 335, 77 S. Ct. 510, 1 L. Ed. 2d 376] .

[c] Statutory Provisions

Under federal law, a person subpoenaed to appear at an investigative proceeding may be accompanied and represented by counsel [5 U.S.C. § 555(a); United States v. Smith (D. Conn. 1949) 87 F. Supp. 293, 294 (construing predecessor statute)]. Under California law, however, a person subpoenaed to appear at an investigative proceeding has no such right. The Administrative Procedure Act, or APA (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.) guaranties the assistance of counsel only for persons who are subjects of state adjudicative proceedings [see Gov. Code §§ 11505(b), 11509].

No statute forbids a witness's being accompanied or represented by counsel when appearing at an investigative proceeding. However, the agency conducting the investigation has power to exclude a witness's counsel or to limit counsel's participation to merely advising the witness, since a witness has no right to be accompanied or represented by counsel.

[6] Nonattorney Representation

An agency has power to permit a witness's being accompanied or represented at an investigative proceeding by someone other than an attorney. This power is specifically acknowledged by federal law [see 5 U.S.C. § 555(b); Local Union No. 742, United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners of America v. National Labor Relations Bd. (D.C. Cir. 1967) 377 F.2d 929, 930, 126 U.S. App. D.C. 290] . Persons appearing at an Internal Revenue Service proceeding have a right to be represented by a certified public accountant [5 U.S.C. § 500(c)]. State and local agencies have this power, even though state law does not acknowledge it. No statute withholds the power.

An artifical person, such as a corporation, must necessarily be represented by someone, since an artificial person has no corporeal existence. A subpoena directed to a corporation, for instance, implicitly commands the appearance of those persons who are responsible for conducting its affairs [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 528 n.1, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462] .

[7] Place of Attendance

Gov. Code § 11185 provides that a person is not obliged to attend as a witness in any matter under Gov. Code § 11180 et seq. (governing investigations by state agencies) at a place out of the county in which he resides, unless the distance is less than 50 miles from his place of residence. The policy embodied in this provision is to spare a person undue hardship by limiting the distance that he can be required to travel for the purpose of giving evidence [In re Morelli (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 819, 831, 91 Cal. Rptr. 72 (construing Code Civ. Proc. § 1989)].

Application of this provision depends on determining a witness's place of residence. Residence is an elusive and indefinite term [Briggs v. Superior Court (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 240, 245, 183 P.2d 758] . Probably the best definition for use in the present context is any place with which the witness has a sojourning connection. Presumably, if a witness goes to or remains at a given place periodically in the course of conducting his or her affairs, he or she would suffer no undue hardship in being compelled to attenda legal proceeding at that place. Thus, a witness's residence for the purpose of applying Gov. Code § 11185 and Code Civ. Proc. § 1989 could be the place where he or she receives mail and maintains a telephone, even though he or she does not live there [see In re Morelli (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 819, 831, 832, 91 Cal. Rptr. 72] .

Gov. Code § 11185 governs only those investigations conducted pursuant to Gov. Code § 11180 et seq. When an agency exercises a subpoena power given by other statutes, Gov. Code § 11185 has no effect. For example, the Corporations Commissioner has power under the Corporate Securities Act of 1968 (Corp. Code § 25000 et seq.), and under the California Commodity Law of 1990 (Corp. Code § 29500 et seq.), and under the Franchise Investment Law (Corp. Code § 31000 et seq.), to issue subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses at investigative proceedings [Corp. Code §§ 25531(c), 29541, 31401]. None of these laws contains an exemption provision similar to Gov. Code § 11185 that would be applicable in an investigation under any of these laws. Therefore, a witness subpoenaed pursuant to the commissioner's special power under any of these laws is obliged to attend at any place within the state.

[8] Costs and Expenses

[a] Witnesses

An officer or employee of the state or of a political subdivision of the state who appears at an investigative proceeding pursuant to a subpoena is not entitled to any fee, but he or she is entitled to a mileage allowance. Any other witness appearing pursuant to a subpoena is entitled to both a fee and a mileage allowance. The amounts of fees and mileage allowances are the same as those for witnesses in civil cases: $35 for each day of actual attendance; $.20 for each mile actually traveled, one way. They are payable by the agency which issued the subpoena [Gov. Code § 11191; see Gov. Code § 68093 (amounts)].

The general rule is that witnesses in civil cases may demand the payment of their mileage and fees for one day, in advance, and, when so demanded, shall not be compelled to attend until the allowances are paid [Gov. Code § 68097]. Witnesses served with an administrative subpoena may have the same right [see McLeod v. Board of Pension Commissioners (1970) 14 Cal. App. 3d 23, 31, 94 Cal. Rptr. 58] . Exceptions to the rule apply to employees of the Department of Justice who are peace officers or analysts in technical fields, members of the California Highway Patrol (including vehicle inspection specialists), members of the California State Police, peace officer in the State Fire Marshal's office, other state employees, sheriffs, deputy sheriffs, marshals, deputy marshals, district attorney inspectors, probation officers, building inspectors, firefighters, and city police officers [Gov. Code § 68097]. These exceptions are set out in Gov. Code § 68097.1 et seq. For discussion, see Ch. 535, Subpoena, § 535.19.

[b] Litigants in Enforcement Proceeding

The prevailing party in a proceeding for enforcement of an administrative subpoena is probably entitled to recover costs. The enforcement proceeding is a special proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 22, 23]. The prevailing party in a special proceeding is entitled to recover costs unless the law governing the proceeding prohibits recovering costs or leaves the award of costs to the discretion of the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1032; Schmidt v. Klotz (1900) 130 Cal. 223, 224, 62 P. 470 (construing predecessor statute); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1028, 1029 (costs as recoverable against state or local agency)]. The law governing an enforcement proceeding neither prohibits recovering costs nor leaves the award of costs to the discretion of the court. Therefore, it appears that costs may be recovered.

Code Civ. Proc. § 1032 provides that except as otherwise provided by statute, a prevailing party is entitled as a matter of right to recover costs in any action or proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(b)]. The term "prevailing party" includes (a) the party with a net monetary recovery; (b) a defendant in whose favor a dismissal is entered; (c) a defendant where neither plaintiff nor defendant obtains any relief; and (d) a defendant as against those plaintiffs who do not recover any relief against that defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(a)(4)]. In any other situation, the prevailing party must be as determined by the court and, under those circumstances, the court in its discretion may allow costs or not and, if allowed, may apportion costs between the parties on the same or adverse sides pursuant to rules adopted under Code Civ. Proc. § 1034 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(a)(4)]. For detailed discussion and forms relating to the recovery of costs under these and related provisions, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Agency Investigations

41-471 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471.22

§ 471.22 Investigative Remedies

[1] Injunctive Relief

[a] Suit by Subject of Investigation

The subject of an administrative investigation may obtain injunctive relief when the investigation is outside the scope of the agency's authority [see Berkeley Chiropractic College v. Compton (1929) 97 Cal. App. 790, 793, 276 P. 361] , when the statute pursuant to which the agency acts is unconstitutional [see Bueneman v. City of Santa Barbara (1937) 8 Cal. 2d 405, 407, 65 P.2d 884] , or when the agency is acting unconstitutionally [see Downing v. Cal. State Board of Pharmacy (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 30, 36, 192 P.2d 39] .

For a form of complaint, see § 471.70.

Injunctive relief is not available to prevent the execution of a public statute, by officers of the law, for the public benefit [Civ. Code § 3423(f); see Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(6)]. Neither is injunctive relief available wherepecuniary compensation would afford adequate relief [see Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526].

Under the California Tort Claims Act (Gov. Code § 810 et seq.), administrative agencies and their employees are immune from liability for injury caused by an employee's beginning any administrative proceeding within the scope of his or her employment, even if he or she acts maliciously and without probable cause [Gov. Code § 821.6]. Therefore, a person who is wrongfully subjected to an investigation will often be unable to obtain compensatory relief. For discussion and forms relating to actions against agencies or agency officers under the Tort Claims Act, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

School district employees, who investigated violation of prevailing wage law which led to withholding of public works contract payments to contractor by school district and who also testified at reasonable cause hearing related to payment withholding, had immunity from civil rights liability for damages under Section 1983 for testifying at an administrative hearing. The parties' disagreement about the application of relevant law to known facts did not give rise to civil rights violations [Mobley v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1221, 1238-1240] .

[b] Suit by Taxpayer

A taxpayer who has standing under Code Civ. Proc. § 526a may obtain injunctive relief to prevent the illegal expenditure or waste of, or injury to, the estate, funds, or property of a county, town, city, or city and county. This is an indirect means of stopping or preventing an unlawful administrative investigation [see, e.g., Wirin v. Horrall (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 497, 504-505, 193 P.2d 470] . For a form of complaint, see § 471.71.

Code Civ. Proc. § 526a refers to resident taxpayers, but a nonresident taxpayer who otherwise has standing under that statute may sue [Irwin v. Manhattan Beach (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 13, 19-20, 51 Cal. Rptr. 881, 415 P.2d 769] .

Although no statute authorizes a similar taxpayer action against state officials concerning state funds or property, a state taxpayer may sue for similar relief [see, e.g., California State Employees' Assn. v. Williams (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 390, 392, 86 Cal. Rptr. 305 ; Ahlgren v. Carr (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 248, 254, 25 Cal. Rptr. 887 ; see also Duskin v. San Francisco Redevelopment Agency (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 769, 773, 107 Cal. Rptr. 667] . See also discussion and forms in Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[2] Civil Rights Act of 1871

If an investigation entails deprivation of federal constitutional rights, an action for appropriate relief may be brought in a state court [Brown v. Pitchess (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 518, 521-523, 119 Cal. Rptr. 204, 531 P.2d 772] pursuant to the Civil Rights Act of 1871 [42 U.S.C. § 1983]. A state or county may not be sued under the Civil Rights Act of 1871 for damages, as it is not a "person" within the meaning of the act [see Diamond v. Pitchess (9th Cir. 1969) 411 F.2d 565, 567 ; Taylor v. Mitzel (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 665, 670, 147 Cal. Rptr. 323] . Similarly, a civil rights action for damages under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 cannot be brought against an administrative agency of a state [Sykes v. California (Dep't of Motor Vehicles) (9th Cir. 1974) 497 F.2d 197, 201-202 (Department of Motor Vehicles not a "person" within meaning of act; overruled on other grounds in Life Ins. Co.of N. America v. Reichardt (9th Cir. 1979)591 F.2d 499, 503 n.7); see Heath v. Redbud Hosp. Dist. (ND Cal. 1977) 436 F. Supp. 766, 767-768] . The court in Sykes partially relied on Monroe v. Pape (1961) 365 U.S. 167, 189-192, 81 S. Ct. 473, 5 L. Ed. 2d 492 , which held municipalities to be immune from suit under the act. However, Monroe was overruled in Monell v. Dep't of Soc. Servs. (1978) 436 U.S. 658, 663, 694-695, 701, 98 S. Ct. 2018, 56 L. Ed. 2d 611 , in which the United States Supreme Court determined that local governments are not absolutely immune from civil liability under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. The Court stated that when execution of a government's policy or custom, whether made by its lawmakers or by those whose edicts or acts may fairly be said to represent official policy, inflicts an injury, the government as an entity is responsible under 42 U.S.C. § 1983.

The Court extended the holding of Monell in Owen v. City of Independence (1980) 100 S. Ct. 1398 , in which it held that municipalities do not have any qualified immunity for good-faith constitutional violations under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Nevertheless, since the Monell and Owen decisions involved only suits against local governments and municipalities, it is not clear if these decisions change the rule that state agencies and states are immune from liability for damages under the Civil Rights Act.

It should be noted that governmental agencies may be sued for injunctive relief alone under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 to prevent continuing violations of federal statutes [Ybarra v. Los Altos Hills (N.D. Cal. 1973) 370 F. Supp. 742, 746] . Employees of public agencies are subject to suit under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 [see, e.g., Ybarra v. Los Altos Hills (9th Cir. [Cal] 1974) 503 F.2d 250, 252-253] .

For additional discussion of the liability of agencies under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, and of qualified immunity based on good faith, Ch. 112, Civil Rights: Government-Funded Programs and Activities.

[3] Damages for Failure to Investigate and Negligent Investigation

Neither a public agency nor a public employee is liable for injuries caused by failure to make an inspection of property to determine if it complies with health and safety standards, except where the property belongs to theagency itself [Gov. Code §§ 818.6, 821.4]. This immunity does not extend to such investigative acts as testing substances for toxicity [Sava v. Fuller (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 281, 292-293, 57 Cal. Rptr. 312] , or checking the qualifications of foster parents [Elton v. County of Orange (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1053, 1059, 84 Cal. Rptr. 27] .

Public employees and agencies are generally immune from liability for injuries caused by discretionary acts, even when discretion was abused [Gov. Code §§ 815.2(a), 820.2; see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act]. This immunity extends to making basic policy decisions only, however, and not to discretionary acts in the course of implementing those decisions [Johnson v. State of California (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 782, 793, 73 Cal. Rptr. 240, 447 P.2d 352] . Therefore, it probably protects agencies and employees from liability arising from deciding whether or not to make an investigation, when that decision is not governed by a mandatory statute; but it would not protect against liability arising from the negligent conduct of an investigation.

[4] Writ of Mandate to Compel Investigation

When an agency is directed by law to conduct an investigation, or when it is an abuse of discretion not to conduct an investigation, the agency may be compelled by a writ of mandate to conduct whatever investigation is reasonably called for [see Faulkner v. California Toll Bridge Auth. (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 317, 326-334, 253 P.2d 659] . For example, when the county charter required the board of supervisors to investigate prevailing wages in private industry before fixing compensation for civil service employees, that investigation was subject to the compulsion of a writ of mandate [Walker v. County of Los Angeles (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 626, 639, 12 Cal. Rptr. 671, 361 P.2d 247] . For a discussion of mandate proceedings and suitable forms, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

C. Agency Subpoena Power

41-471 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471.30

§ 471.30 Power of Agencies to Issue Subpoenas

[1] Nature and Purpose of the Power

[a] Statutory Authority

A grant of subpoena power to an agency allows it to carry out its rulemaking, adjudicatory, and investigative functions. The power to subpoena is not an inherent power of an agency, but must be authorized by statute [see 18 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 236 (1951)]. If the agency is a local agency, the subpoena power may be conferred by local ordinance as well as by statute [see 18 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 236 (1951)]. If there is nostatutory grant of express or implied power to issue subpoenas, then the agency does not have this power, because the authority to issue subpoenas exists inherently only in courts of law [Wigmore, Evidence (McNaughton rev. 1961), § 2195].

While a state agency subpoena may be issued under the APA (see Gov. Code § 11450.10 et seq.), if the discovery process in an adjudicatory proceeding [see Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications , and Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings , for a discussion of this process], the primary issuance of an "administrative" subpoena by a state agency occurs pursuant to Gov. Code § 11180 et seq.

Although nothing in Gov. Code § 11180 et seq. precludes the agency from using administrative subpoenas for information gathering purposes after the initiation of California APA or non-APA proceedings, the administrative subpoena is most commonly used to compel testimony or production of documents during a state agency investigation [DuFauchard v. U.S. Financial Management, Inc. (4th Dist., 2009) 169 Cal. App. 4th 1502, 1514-1516, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 615 (investigative subpoena that sought records related to non-California residents business activities with California company was proper and valid because agency had proper investigative authority under Gov. Code § 11180, and Fin. Code § 12106; State ex rel. Dept. of Pesticide Regulation v. Pet Food Exp. Ltd. (3rd Dist. 2008)165 Cal. App. 4th 841, 853-855, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 486 (order compelling compliance with investigative subpoena was valid because records sought were reasonably relevant and production of documents under subpoena did not violate Fourth Amendment protections against unreasonable searches and seizures)].

The subpoena power of state agencies is governed mainly by Gov. Code §§ 11181, 11184, and 11186-11188, but may also be governed by statutes relating to particular agencies [see, e.g., Gov. Code § 18671 (Personnel Board); Ins. Code § 12924(a) (Insurance Commissioner); Water Code § 1080 (Water Resources Control Board)].

A state agency may issue subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers, accounts, documents, and testimony, in any proceeding pertinent or material to an investigation, in any part of the state [Gov. Code § 11181]. The only condition precedent is that an investigation be underway. It may be any kind of authorized investigation [see Paladini v. Superior Court (1918) 178 Cal. 369, 373, 173 P. 588] , and it is not necessary that any adjudicative proceeding be pending [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 528-529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462 ; see United States v. Morton Salt Co. (1950) 338 U.S. 632, 651-654, 70 S. Ct. 357, 94 L. Ed. 401, 46 F.T.C. 1436 (regulatory agency's prerogative to subpoena corporate records merely to ascertain whether corporation is complying with law)].

There is no general statutory authorization for local agencies to issue subpoenas, but particular agencies are specially authorized [see, e.g., Gov. Code §§ 25170, (boards of supervisors), 31110.2 (county civil service commission), 37104 (city councils); Health & Safety Code § 34318(b) (local housing authority); Pub. Util. Code § 28773 (Bay Area Rapid Transit Board of Directors); Rev. & Tax Code §§ 454 (county tax assessor), 1609.4 (local board of equalization)].

The Sixth District California Court of Appeal upheld the enforcement of a subpoena duces tecum authorized by the City of Santa Cruz under the statutory authority of Gov. Code § 37104 for the purposes of conducting a tax compliance audit of a hotel operators records to determine compliance with a city imposed transient occupancy tax that must be collected from guests by the hotel, and then remitted to the city [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 239-240, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] . The court of appeal held that the superior court orders compelling compliance with the subpoena duces tecum issued under the statutory authority of Gov. Code § 37104 are final judgments that are appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1 [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 241-243, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] . The California Court of Appeal also rejected constitutional challenges to the hotel transient occupancy text based upon due process of law (void for vagueness) and based on equal protection of the laws [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 247-249, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] . Finally, the California Court of Appeal upheld the validity of the subpoena, and rejected a challenge based upon the Fourth Amendment. The court held that subpoena issuance did not require a showing by the city of probable cause that the hotel was not complying with the requirements of the tax ordinance [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 249-251, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] . Subpoena enforcement does not require a search warrant, but does require a showing that: 1) the subpoena was authorized by an ordinance or similar enactment; 2) the subpoena serves a valid legislative purpose; and 3) the records sought are reasonable relevant to the subject matter of the investigation [Connecticut Indemnity Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 807 , 810, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 221, 3 P.3d 868] . The Court of Appeal upheld the validity of this subpoena concluding that the tax compliance audit of an uncooperative taxpayer was authorized by the ordinance and served a valid legislative purpose, and the subpoena sought relevant records. There was a right to judicial review. Thus, the subpoena was valid and enforceable [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 250-252, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] .

The California Court of Appeal upheld the enforcement of a subpoena duces tecum authorized by the City Council of Vacaville, and issued by the Mayor of Vacaville under the statutory authority of Gov. Code § 37104. The subpoena was issued for the purpose of auditing a hotel operator's records to determine whether the operator had complied with the cityimposed transient occupancy tax. The Court of Appeal held that using the subpoena power to conduct tax audits was part of a valid legislative investigation authorized by Gov. Code § 37104 [City of Vacaville v. Pitamber (2004) 124 Cal. App.4th 739, 747-748, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 396] . In so holding, the Court of Appeal cited and relied upon the California Supreme Court decision in Connecticut Indemnity Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 23 Cal 4th 807, 810, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 221, 3 P. 3d 868 , which upheld the use of an investigative subpoena by a city when there was no formal proceeding before the city at the time of the investigation.

The provisions of Gov. Code § 11180 et seq. authorize each department (see § 471.20[1][b] for discussion of departments) of state government to investigate any matter under its jurisdiction [People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 537, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695] . Gov. Code § 11180 provides that the head of each state department may investigate the following:

- All matters relating to the business activities and subjects under the department's jurisdiction.
- The violation of any law or any rule or order of the department.
- Any other matter that some rule of law authorizes the department to investigate.

[b] Issuance of Subpoena

Administrative subpoenas are to be issued by the "heads of state departments" [Gov. Code § 11181(e); see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law (discussing heads of departments)]. In practice, subordinates routinely issue subpoenas pursuant to a delegation or power [see Gov. Code § 11182]. Subpoenas duces tecum may be issued without any supporting affidavit, in contrast to the practice respecting civil subpoenas duces tecum [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985, 2020(d)(1), (e)]. The reason is that there is no applicant. The agency issuing the subpoena is in the position of a judge issuing a subpoena on his or her own behalf. The person to whom an administrative subpoena duces tecum is directed has the equivalent of the protection given by civil procedure, however, because the agency is powerless to enforce its own subpoena. The agency must turn to a court for enforcement. Thus, whereas judicial review of the propriety of issuing the subpoena precedes issuance of a civil subpoena duces tecum, it follows issuance of an administrative subpoena duces tecum. The person to whom the subpoena is directed has the same amount of protection in either case.

Except for prescribing who may serve an administrative subpoena [see Gov. Code § 11184], the Government Code is silent on the manner of service. Therefore, the Supreme Court has held that administrative subpoenas should be served in the same manner as service of summons in a civil action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10 et seq.; for discussion, see Ch.518, Service of Summons and Papers], to the extent the governing statutes can be adapted; substantial noncompliance with those statutes may render the subpoena unenforceable [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 530-531, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462] .

As part of an investigation, Gov. Code § 11181 authorizes the department to inspect books and records [Gov. Code § 11181(a); see Ch. 471A, Investigations by Public Agencies], and to issue subpoenas to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of papers, books, accounts, and documents [Gov. Code § 11181(e)]. The power to issue subpoenas may be delegated by the agency head to "any officer of the department" [Gov. Code § 11182]. In practice, subordinates routinely issue subpoenas pursuant to a delegation or power. Department heads also have the authority to promulgate interrogatories pertinent or material to any inquiry, investigation, hearing, proceeding, or action [Gov. Code § 11181(f)].

[2] Geographic Scope

State agency subpoenas may be issued in any part of the state, and state agency heads may designate any person to serve process for the department [Gov. Code § 11184]. The geographic scope of local agency subpoenas must be found in the applicable statute or ordinance. If the law is silent on the subject of jurisdiction, it is not clear whether a local agency subpoena is enforceable outside its local boundaries.

[3] Confidentiality

Gov. Code § 11183 makes the information acquired by an investigating agency confidential [see Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 673 n.2, 678, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55] . An officer who divulges information that he or she has acquired from private documents while acting or claiming to act under the authority of Gov. Code §§ 11180-11191 is guilty of a misdemeanor and is disqualified from acting in any official capacity in the agency. There are three exceptions to this rule. An officer may divulge information acquired during an investigation when the officer engages in any of the following activities [Gov. Code § 11183]:

- Making a report to the department head.
- Testifying in court or in a legal proceeding, at which he or she has been called.
- Divulging evidence of unlawful activity to the attorney general, to a prosecuting attorney, or to any agency responsible for enforcing a law that has been broken [see Gov. Code § 11181(g) (authorizing disclosure of evidence of unlawful activity discovered in connection with investigation)].

The Attorney General or prosecuting attorney is also permitted to disclose documents or information acquired pursuant to the investigation toanother agency provided that the receiving agency maintains the confidentiality of the documents or information received [Gov. Code § 11180.5].

[4] Formal Proceedings or Charges Not Required

Through its investigative and subpoena powers, a state agency may compel the production of information without initiating a formal proceeding or filing charges against one from whom the evidence is sought [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 528-529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462 ; People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 538, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695 ; Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 38, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791] . Consequently, an agency may subpoena a witness and take his or her statement before beginning an adjudicatory proceeding. The practical result is that the agency may conduct discovery before ever initiating formal proceedings. However, the agency must use the subpoena. It cannot demand production of records without giving the business owner the opportunity for judicial review by issuing a subpoena and seeking court enforcement [Pinney v. Phillips (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1570, 1589, 281 Cal. Rptr. 904] .

Similarly, local city councils can use the investigative subpoena power to conduct audits of tax records, without beginning a tax enforcement proceeding, against the party from whom the records are sought. The California Court of Appeal upheld the enforcement of a subpoena duces tecum authorized by the City Council of Vacaville, and issued by the Mayor of Vacaville under the statutory authority of Gov. Code § 37104. The subpoena was issued for the purpose of auditing a hotel operator's records to determine whether the operator had complied with the city imposed transient occupancy tax. The Court of Appeal held that using the subpoena power to conduct tax audits was part of a valid legislative investigation authorized by Gov. Code § 37104 [City of Vacaville v. Pitamber (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 739, 747-748 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 396] . In so holding, the Court of Appeal cited and relied upon the California Supreme Court decision in Connecticut Indemnity Company v. Superior Court (2000) 23 Cal 4th 807, 810, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 221, 3 P. 3d 868 , which upheld the use of an investigative subpoena by a city when there was no formal proceeding before the city at the time of the investigation.

The Sixth District California Court of Appeal upheld the enforcement of a subpoena duces tecum authorized by the City of Santa Cruz under the statutory authority of Gov. Code § 37104 for the purposes of conducting a tax compliance audit of a hotel operator's records to determine compliance with a city imposed transient occupancy tax that must be collected from guests by the hotel, and then remitted to the city [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 239-240, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] . The court of appeal held that the superior court orders compelling compliance with the subpoena duces tecum issued under the statutory authority of Gov. Code § 37104 are final judgments that are appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1 [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 241-243, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] . The California Court of Appeal also rejected constitutional challenges to the hotel transient occupancy text based upon due process of law (void for vagueness) and based on equal protection of the laws [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel

(2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 247-249, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] . Finally, the California Court of Appeal upheld the validity of the subpoena, and rejected a challenge based upon the Fourth Amendment. The court held that subpoena issuance did not require a showing by the city of probable cause that the hotel was not complying with the requirements of the tax ordinance [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 249-251, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] . Subpoena enforcement does not require a search warrant, but does require a showing that: 1) the subpoena was authorized by an ordinance or similar enactment; 2) the subpoena serves a valid legislative purpose; and 3) the records sought are reasonable relevant to the subject matter of the investigation [Connecticut Indemnity Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 807 , 810, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 221, 3 P.3d 868] . The Court of Appeal upheld the validity of this subpoena concluding that the tax compliance audit of an uncooperative taxpayer was authorized by the ordinance and served a valid legislative purpose, and the subpoena sought relevant records. There was a right to judicial review. Thus, the subpoena was valid and enforceable [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 250-252, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] .

[5] Subpoena Duces Tecum to Corporation or Partnership

An agency's subpoena duces tecum may be directed to a corporation or partnership without naming a specific officer or partner. The order to the business entity is considered an order to those who are officially responsible for the conduct of its affairs [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 528 n.1, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462 ; Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 42, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791] .

[6] Compliance With Agency Subpoena Is Voluntary Because Agency Cannot Enforce It

The recipient of an agency subpoena may choose not to comply with the subpoena, because the agency lacks the power to enforce it. Because the agency can and probably will apply to the courts for enforcement of its subpoena, it is not usually wise for the recipient to refuse to comply unless the recipient believes that the subpoena is legally or constitutionally defective [see People v. West Coast Shows, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 462, 470, 89 Cal. Rptr. 290 (party who believes subpoena is defective need not respond because agency lacks power to compel compliance); for discussion of court enforcement of agency subpoenas, see § 471.31]. An agency cannot enforce its subpoena because of the requirements of the Fourth Amendment and because it lacks the contempt power [see 471.31[1]]. The recipient is required to comply only when a court orders the recipient to comply [People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 540, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695 ; People v. West Coast Shows, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 462, 470, 89 Cal. Rptr. 290 ; see § 471.31[4]].

C. Agency Subpoena Power

41-471 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471.31

§ 471.31 Court Enforcement of Subpoenas

[1] Subpoena as Search

[a] Contempt Power

Because of its intrusive nature, an administrative subpoena is considered a constructive search within the meaning of the Fourth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution [United States v. Morton Salt Co. (1950) 338 U.S. 632, 651-653, 70 S. Ct. 357, 94 L. Ed. 401, 46 F.T.C. 1436 ; Oklahoma Press Pub. Co. v. Walling (1945) 327 U.S. 186, 202-207, 66 S. Ct. 494, 90 L. Ed. 614 ; Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462 ; see also California Restaurant Assn. v. Henning (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1075, 219 Cal. Rptr. 630 (administrative subpoena considered constructive search within meaning of Fourth Amendment)].

The Fourth Amendment (U.S. Const., amend. IV) requires that there exist a mechanism by which validation, modification, or nullification of the subpoena can be judicially resolved, without penalty, before compliance with the subpoena can be exacted [California Restaurant Assn. v. Henning (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1075, 219 Cal. Rptr. 630 , citing See v. Seattle (1967) 387 U.S. 541, 544-545, 87 S. Ct. 1737, 18 L. Ed. 2d 943 ; see People v. Hutchings (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 33, 36, 69 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 33 , 138 Cal. Rptr. 584 (dictum)].

Unless the power to punish a witness for contempt is explicitly conferred by law, it does not exist [see Marcus v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 598, 603, 111 Cal. Rptr. 101] . With a few exceptions, no contempt power is conferred on state and local agencies. Exceptionsinclude the Public Utilities Commission [see Cal. Const., art. XII, § 6] and the Workmen's Compensation Appeals Board [see Cal. Const., art. XIV, § 4; Lab. Code §§ 133, 134]. Therefore, most state and local agencies lack the power to enforce their own subpoenas. They must apply to the superior court for an order of enforcement.

Because of this constitutional requirement that a subpoena must be judicially approved before compliance with the subpoena may be compelled, and because an administrative agency has no direct power to punish for contempt unless it is specifically authorized by law to do so [Dibb v. County of San Diego (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 1200, 1218-1219, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 55, 884 P.2d 1003 (courts are the only bodies that can adjudicate and punish contempts, not agencies, unless the constitution provides otherwise); People v. Schwarz (1926) 78 Cal. App. 561, 570, 248 P. 990] , an administrative agency must turn to the courts to enforce its subpoenas. The mechanism for enforcement is a petition for an order to compel compliance, discussed in [2], below.

[b] Refusal to Attend

If the person to whom an administative subpoena is directed believes that it is defective for any reason, he or she may simply refuse to attend. The person will not risk being punished or penalized in so doing because an agency has no means of enforcing its own subpoena. To secure enforcement, the agency must arrange a noticed hearing in the superior court [see Gov. Code §§ 11187, 11188]. At that hearing, the person to whom the subpoena is directed may present his or her reasons for refusing to attend as the subpoena commands [see People v. West Coast Shows, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 462, 470, 89 Cal. Rptr. 290 , 89 Cap Rptr 290]. The court will order compliance with the subpoena if it finds that the subpoena conforms to statutory and constitutional standards [see [2], below]. The enforcement hearing is begun by issuance of an order to show cause directed to the person who received the subpoena. Whereas the subpoena might safely be ignored, the order to show cause obliges the respondent to appear and make his or her case or suffer a default order of compliance [see Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 530, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462] . Failure to obey an order of compliance is contempt [Gov. Code § 11188].

[c] Refusal to Be Sworn as Witness

If the person to whom the subpoena is directed appears as it commands, he or she has no privilege to refuse to be sworn as a witness. That privilege belongs only to a criminal defendant during the prosecution [see Evid. Code § 930; Black v. State Bar (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 676, 688, 103 Cal. Rptr. 288, 499 P.2d 968 ; People v. Whelchel (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 455, 460, 63 Cal. Rptr. 258] .

[d] Refusal to Give Testimony

The privilege against compelled self-incrimination [see U.S. Const., amend. V; Malloy v. Hogan (1964) 378 U.S. 1, 6, 84 S. Ct. 1489, 12 L. Ed. 2d 653 ; see also Cal. Const., art. I, § 15] may be invoked by a witness in an administrative investigation [In re Gault (1967) 387 U.S. 1, 47-48, 87 S. Ct. 1428, 18 L. Ed. 2d 527 ; Black v. State Bar (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 676, 685, 103 Cal. Rptr. 288, 499 P.2d 968] . The privilege may not be invoked by a nonwitness to prevent a witness from giving testimony that might incriminate the nonwitness [California Bankers Ass'n v. Shultz (1974) 416 U.S. 21, 55, 94 S. Ct. 1494, 39 L. Ed. 2d 812] , nor may it be invoked by a witness to avoid incriminating someone else [Rogers v. United States (1951) 340 U.S. 367, 371, 71 S. Ct. 438, 95 L. Ed. 344 ; Hale v. Henkel (1906) 201 U.S. 43, 69-70, 26 S. Ct. 370, 50 L. Ed. 652] .

The privilege may not be invoked on behalf of a corporation [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462] , or an unincorporated association [United States v. White (1944) 322 U.S. 694, 701, 64 S. Ct. 1248, 88 L. Ed. 1542] , or a partnership [Bellis v. United States (1974) 417 U.S. 85, 93-94, 94 S. Ct. 2179, 40 L. Ed. 2d 678] . However, an officer or agent of a corporation or some other artifical person may invoke the privilege on his/her own behalf [McLain v. Superior Court of Sacramento County (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 109, 117, 221 P.2d 300 ; see United States v. Lawn (S.D.N.Y. 1953) 115 F. Supp. 674, 677] .

The privilege may not be invoked except to avoid being punished for a crime [People v. Whelchel (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 455, 460, 63 Cal. Rptr. 258] . An answer may not be withheld in reliance on the privilege simply because the answer would reveal reprehensible, but not criminal, acts by the witness [Johnson v. State Bar (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 744, 752, 52 P.2d 928] . An answer may not be withheld simply because it would establish a ground on which the witness's license might be denied, suspended, or revoked [Black v. State Bar (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 676, 687, 103 Cal. Rptr. 288, 499 P.2d 968 ; Paladini v. Superior Court (1918) 178 Cal. 369, 372-373, 173 P. 588] . Even when an answer might tend to prove the witness guilty of a crime, it may not be withheld in reliance on the privilege if the witness is immune from punishment for the crime [see People v. King (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 633, 642, 58 Cal. Rptr. 571, 427 P.2d 171 ; McLain v. Superior Court (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 109, 115-118, 221 P.2d 300] .

[2] Petition for Order to Comply

The superior court of the county in which an administrative hearing is held has jurisdiction to compel (1) the attendance of witnesses, (2) the giving of testimony, and (3) the production of documents required by agency investigative subpoenas issued pursuant to Gov. Code § 11181 [Gov. Code § 11186; Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 37, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791] . If a witness refuses to attend or to testifyor to produce papers required by an investigational subpoena, the department head may petition the superior court in the county in which the hearing is pending for an order compelling the witness to attend and testify or produce the required papers [Gov. Code § 11187; Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 528, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462] . The use of the term "hearing" in Gov. Code § 11187 does not restrict judicial enforcement only to those subpoenas issued after formal proceedings have commenced. The word "hearing" is meant to include all circumstances in which a subpoena may be issued under Gov. Code § 11181 [see § 470.30[1]]. Effective administration by the departments often depends on investigations that do not lead to a formal hearing, and those investigations would often be ineffective without the aid of compulsory process [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 528, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462] . Investigative subpoenas that are issued by city councils under the authority of Gov. Code § 37104 also do not have to be preceded by the city commencing a formal proceeding [Connecticut Indemnity Company v. Superior Court (2000) 23 Cal 4th 807, 810, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 221, 3 P. 3d 868 (California Supreme Court upheld the use of an investigative subpoena by a city when there was no formal proceeding before the city at the time of the investigation); City of Vacaville v. Pitamber (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 739, 747-748 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 396 (Court of Appeal affirmed enforcement of investigative subpoena issued by city council to audit tax records of hotel operator)].

The process for enforcing a subpoena or an interrogatory starts with a witnesses' refusal to answer any interrogatory, to attend or testify, or to produce any papers required by subpoena. Under those circumstances, a department head may petition the superior court in the county in which the hearing is pending for an order compelling the person to answer the interrogatories, to attend and testify or to produce the papers required by the subpoena before the officer named in the subpoena [Gov. Code § 11187]. The petition must state the following:

- That due notice of the time and place for answering the interrogatories, testifying or producing of the papers was given [Gov. Code § 11187(a)].

- That the person was subpoenaed in the manner prescribed by law [Gov. Code § 11187(b)].

- That the person failed and refused to answer the interrogatories, to attend or testify or to produce the papers required by subpoena before the officer in the cause or proceeding named in the subpoena, or has refused to answer questions propounded to him or her in the course of the investigation or hearing [Gov. Code § 11187(c)].

[3] Hearing on Order to Show Cause (OSC)

[a] Issuance of Order to Show Cause (OSC)

When the agency files a petition for an order to compel compliance with a subpoena, the court enters an order to show cause (OSC) [Gov. Code § 11188]. The subpoena, petition, and order to show cause must be served on the affected parties [Gov. Code §§ 11184, 11188], in the same manner as provided for service of a summons [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 530, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 412.10 et seq. (summons), 413.10 et seq. (service of summons)].

[b] Hearing on OSC Is Special Proceeding

A hearing on the order to show cause under Gov. Code § 11188 is a special proceeding [People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 538, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695] , in which the superior court's jurisdiction is limited to determining whether the subpoena conforms to "legal" and "constitutional" standards [People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 539, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695 ; Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 39, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791] .

The court may not address substantive issues because such review would effectively undermine the agency's performance of its statutory duties, usurping the agency's authority [Hill v. Brisbane (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 15, 20, 151 P.2d 578] .

As a special proceeding defined by the statute that authorizes it [People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 539, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695] , a hearing on an order to show cause is not a hearing in the nature of that on a motion to quash [People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 539, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695 ; Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 40, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791 ; see § 471.32[1], for discussion of a motion to quash]. A hearing in which the subpoenaed person may dispute and contradict the facts alleged in support of the agency's subpoena is not within the contemplation of Gov. Code § 11188 [Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 40, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791 ; see People v. West Coast Shows, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 462, 468-470, 89 Cal. Rptr. 290 (Gov. Code § 11180 et seq. are not unconstitutional for failure to follow Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985, 2036); but see Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1148-1150, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811 (compliance of subpoena with constitutional right of privacy may require broader inquiry), discussed in § 471.32[2][e]].

[c] Compliance With Legal and Constitutional Standards

"Legal" standards have been complied with if the subpoena has been "regularly issued by the head of the department" [Gov. Code § 11188; Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 39, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791 ; People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 539, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695] . The term "regularly issued" means in accordance with Gov. Code §§ 11180, 11181, 11182, 11184, and 11185, regarding matters that may be investigated, acts authorized in connection with investigations, and service of process [Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 39, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791 ; People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 539, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695] .

An administrative subpoena will satisfy constitutional standards and be enforced if it is issued for a lawfully authorized purpose within the power of the agency to command and the documents demanded must be relevant to the purpose of the investigation and adequate but not excessive [Oklahoma Press Pub. Co. v. Walling (1946) 327 U.S. 186, 209, 66 S. Ct. 494, 90 L.Ed. 614 ; Craib v. Bulmash (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 475, 482, 261 Cal. Rptr. 686, 777 P.2d 1120 ; Millan v. Restaurant Enterprises Group, Inc. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 477, 480-481, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198] .

Issuance of the subpoena must also comply with "constitutional" standards [see People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 539, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695 ("department heads cannot compel the production of evidence in disregard of constitutional rights and safeguards")]. Constitutional issues to be considered include (1) the privilege against self-incrimination, (2) the ban on unreasonable searches and seizures, and (3) the right of privacy [see, e.g., Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462 (unreasonable searches and seizures; privilege against self-incrimination); Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1145-1150, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811 (right of privacy); Barnes v. Molino (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 46, 54-56, 162 Cal. Rptr. 786 (unreasonable searches and seizures; privilege against self-incrimination); Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 676-682, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55 (unreasonable searches and seizures; right of privacy)]. Constitutional issues involving agency subpoenas are discussed in § 471.32[2].

The Sixth District California Court of Appeal upheld the enforcement of a subpoena duces tecum authorized by the City of Santa Cruz under the statutory authority of Gov. Code § 37104 for the purposes of conducting n tax compliance audit of a hotel operators records to determine compliance with a city imposed transient occupancy tax that must be collected from guests by the hotel, and then remitted to the city [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 239-240, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] . The court of appeal held that the superior court orders compelling compliance with the subpoena duces tecum issued under the statutory authority of Gov. Code § 37104 are final judgments that are appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1 [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 241-243, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] . The California Court of Appeal also rejected constitutional challenges to the hotel transient occupancy text based upon due process of law (void for vagueness) and based on equal protection of the laws [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 247-249, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] . Finally, the California Court of Appeal upheld the validity of the subpoena, and rejected a challenge based upon the Fourth Amendment. The court held that subpoena issuance did not require a showing by the city of probable cause that the hotel was not complying with the requirements of the tax ordinance [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 249-251, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] . Subpoena enforcement does not require a search warrant, but does require a showing that: 1) the subpoena was authorized by an ordinance or similar enactment; 2) the subpoena serves a valid legislative purpose; and 3) the records sought are reasonable relevant to the subject matter of the investigation [Connecticut Indemnity Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 807 .810, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 221, 3 P. 3d 868] . The Court of Appeal upheld the validity of this subpoena concluding that the tax compliance audit of an uncooperative taxpayer was authorized by the ordinance and served a valid legislative purpose, and the subpoena sought relevant records. There was a right to judicial review. Thus, the subpoena was valid and enforceable [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 250-252, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] .

[4] Order to Comply

When, after hearing arguments, the court is satisfied that the subpoena meets the requisite legal and constitutional standards, it must order the subpoenaed person to comply [Gov. Code § 11188]. Failure to obey the order to comply will be treated as a contempt of court [Gov. Code § 11188; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1209-1222 (contempt of court); see also Ch. 135, Contempt], and the offender may be subject to penalties that include fines and imprisonment [see Code of Civ. Proc. §§ 1218(a) (fine and/or imprisonment), 1219 (compelling performance by imprisonment)].

Also, parties to actions or their agents who are subject to a court order as parties and who are adjudged guilty of contempt for violating that courtorder can be held responsible to pay the opposing parties reasonable attorneys fees and costs in bringing the contempt enforcement proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1218(a)].

[5] Appellate Review

The Sixth District California Court of Appeal upheld the enforcement of a subpoena duces tecum authorized by the City of Santa Cruz under the statutory authority of Gov. Code § 37104 for the purposes of conducting a tax compliance audit of a hotel operator's records to determine compliance with a city imposed transient occupancy tax that must be collected from guests by the hotel, and then remitted to the city [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 239-240, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] . The court of appeal held that the superior court orders compelling compliance with the subpoena duces tecum issued under the statutory authority of Gov. Code § 37104 are final judgments that are appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1 [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 241-243, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] . An order compelling compliance with an administrative subpoena is appealable as a final judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a) (1) [State ex rel. Dept. of Pesticide Regulation v. Pet Food Exp. Ltd. (3rd Dist. 2008)165 Cal. App. 4th 841, 851-853, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 486 ; People ex rel. DuFauchard v. U.S. Financial Management, Inc. (4th Dist., 2009) 169 Cal. App. 4th 1502, 1509-1511, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 615].

The California courts of appeal are apparently in conflict on the issue of whether orders issued by a court pursuant to Gov. Code § 11188 compelling compliance with investigational subpoenas are appealable, or whether appellate review must be sought via a writ of ordinary mandamus [cf. Barnes v. Molino (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 46, 50-51, 162 Cal. Rptr. 786 (not appealable); Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1140, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811 (dictum citing Franchise Tax Board v. Barnhart (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 274, 277, 164 Cal. Rptr. 331 (appealable as final judgments in special proceedings))].

The better view appears to be that such orders are appealable [Tom v. Schoolhouse Coins, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 827, 828-829 n.1, 236 Cal. Rptr. 541 ; Millan v. Restaurant Enterprises Group, Inc. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 477, 484-485, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198 (subpoena enforcement orders are appealable); see Arnett v. Dal Cielo (1996), 14 Cal. 4th 4, 18, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706, 923 P. 2d 1, 18 (citing Millan, but noting that "the parties do not question that holding, and it is therefore not before us for review"); but see P.E.R.B. v. Superior Court (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1816, 1819, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 323 (superior court decision to deny enforcement of administrative subpeona is reviewable by writ of mandate)].

On appeal, the court will review the issue of whether a subpoena meets constitutional standards for enforcement as a question of law and will apply the de novo (independent judgment) standard [Millan v. Restaurant Enterprises Group, Inc. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 477, 484-485, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198 (subpoena enforcement orders are appealable)].

For further discussion of mandamus, see Ch 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq., and Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition . For discussion of appeals, see Ch. 40, Appeal .

§ 471.32 Remedies and Defenses to Agency Subpoenas

[1] Motions to Quash

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985-1997 apply to the issuance of subpoenas as a way to compel the production of evidence in judicial proceedings [People v. West Coast Shows, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 462, 469, 89 Cal. Rptr. 290] . Gov. Code §§ 11180-11191, on the other hand, apply not to judicial proceedings but to statutorily authorized investigations [People v. West Coast Shows, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 462, 470, 89 Cal. Rptr. 290] .

A person served with an investigative subpoena under Gov. Code §§ 11180-11191 need not respond if he or she believes the subpoena tobe legally or constitutionally defective [see §§ 471.30[6], 471.31[1]]. The agency cannot impose contempt or any other penalty [People v. West Coast Shows, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 462, 470, 89 Cal. Rptr. 290 ; see §§ 471.30[6], 471.31[1]]. The burden and obligation is then on the agency to seek court enforcement of its subpoena [Gov. Code §§ 11187, 11188; People v. West Coast Shows, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 462, 470, 89 Cal. Rptr. 290 ; see §§ 471.30[6], 471.31, above]. Because the hearing on an order to show cause offers the opportunity to raise these issues, a motion to quash is neither contemplated by statute nor is it required by the constitution [People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 539, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695] .

The superior court has jurisdiction to entertain an affirmative challenge to a subpoena issued by a city under Gov. Code § 37104, and is not limited to a contempt proceeding under Gov. Code § 37106 et seq. The proper way for such an affirmative challenge to be made is through a complaint for declaratory or injunctive relief or a petition for a writ of mandate [Connecticut Indemnity Co. v. Superior Court (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 540, 550-553, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 515 (citing Dibb v. County of San Diego (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 1200, 1218, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 55, 884 P.2d 1003 ; holding insurer had standing to assert privacy interest of an insured and resist disclosure of information in insurer's possession)].

For a discussion of motions to quash administrative subpoenas, see Chapter 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings . For discussion of the difference between administrative subpoenas under the California APA and departmental investigative subpoenas, see § 471.30[1].

[2] Defenses and Privileges

[a] General Requirements

Because a court hearing held pursuant to an agency petition for enforcement of a subpoena is a "special proceeding" [People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 538, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695] , the court may consider only limited issues. The court may not inquire into any of the specific matters the Legislature has entrusted to the agency's determination, because such a judicial proceeding might circumvent the agency's authority, and thus destroy the value of the agency [Hill v. Brisbane (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 15, 20, 151 P.2d 578] . A hearing held pursuant to Gov. Code § 11188 is confined to a determination of whether the administrative subpoena conforms to the appropriate legal and constitutional standards [People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 539, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695 ; Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 39, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791 ; see [b]-[e], below and discussion in § 471.31[3]]. Thus, any challenge to an order for enforcement of a subpoena must be based on at least one of these grounds.

Although two appellate court cases [People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 539, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695 ; Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 39, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791] and Gov. Code § 11188 indicate that a regularly issued subpoena must be enforced (if it is constitutional), one Court of Appeals has indicated that enforcement of an administrative subpoena may be denied when the material sought is attorney work product or is privileged [see [6], below].

In this case, the superior court denied an agency's petition to compel production of a subpoenaed health study in part because the study was protected under the work product doctrine and by the physician-patient privilege. The Court of Appeal reversed, not because work product and the evidentiary privileges do not apply to administrative subpoenas, but because the grounds for application did not exist in this particular case [Kizer v. Sulnick (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 431, 435, 439-442, 248 Cal. Rptr. 712 ; for discussion of evidentiary privileges and the work product doctrine, see California Trial Guide, Unit 51 (Matthew Bender); see also Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications , and Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings].

[b] Legal Standards

Legal standards are met if the subpoena was "regularly issued" by the department head [Gov. Code § 11188]. The term "regularly issued" means issued according to Gov. Code §§ 11180, 11181, 11182, 11184, and 11185 [People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 539, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695 ; Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 39, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791] . These sections specify the subject areas that an agency may investigate, delineate the power of the agency head including the power to subpoena and the ability to delegate that power, and describe the procedure for service of process [Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 39, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791 ; see Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 530-531, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462 (service held improper, order of contempt annulled)].

Unless the subpoena fails to meet constitutional standards, if the court decides the subpoena was regularly issued, it must enter an order requiring that the person comply with the subpoena [Gov. Code § 11188; but see Kizer v. Sulnick (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 431, 435, 439-442, 248 Cal. Rptr. 712 (enforcement of administrative subpoena may be denied because matter sought is privileged, but grounds for application of privilege do not exist in this case); P.E.R.B. v. Superior Court (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1816, 1830-1832, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 323 (superior court required to enforce administrative subpoena and defer to agency on question of jurisdiction)]. Even if a subpoena is regularly issued, the subpoena may not be enforced if it would violate the constitutional rights of the person being forced to comply [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 529, 15 Cal. Rptr.630, 364 P.2d 462 ; People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 539, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695] . Those rights are discussed in [c] through [e], below.

[c] Unreasonable Searches and Seizures

The Sixth District California Court of Appeal upheld the enforcement of a subpoena duces tecum authorized by the City of Santa Cruz under the statutory authority of Gov. Code § 37104 for the purposes of conducting a tax compliance audit of a hotel operator's records to determine compliance with a city imposed transient occupancy tax that must be collected from guests by the hotel, and then remitted to the city [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 239-240, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] . The California Court of Appeal also rejected constitutional challenges to the hotel transient occupancy text based upon due process of law (void for vagueness) and based on equal protection of the laws [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 247-249, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] . Finally, the California Court of Appeal upheld the validity of the subpoena, and rejected a challenge based upon the Fourth Amendment. The court held that subpoena issuance did not require a showing by the city of probable cause that the hotel was not complying with the requirements of the tax ordinance [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 249-251, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] . Subpoena enforcement does not require a search warrant, but does require a showing that: 1) the subpoena was authorized by an ordinance or similar enactment; 2) the subpoena serves a valid legislative purpose; and 3) the records sought are reasonable relevant to the subject matter of the investigation [Connecticut Indemnity Co. v. Superior Court (2000) 23 Cal. 4th 807 .810, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 221, 3 P.3d 868] . The court of appeal upheld the validity of this subpoena concluding that the tax compliance audit of an uncooperative taxpayer was authorized by the ordinance and served a valid legislative purpose, and the subpoena sought relevant records. There was a right to judicial review. Thus, the subpoena was valid and enforceable [City of Santa Cruz v. Patel (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 234, 250-252, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 824] .

The subpoenas of investigating agencies are considered constructive searches subject to the requirements of the Fourth and Fourteenth Amendments [California Restaurant Assn. v. Henning (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1075, 219 Cal. Rptr. 630 ; See v. Seattle (1967) 387 U.S. 541, 545, 87 S. Ct. 1737, 18 L. Ed. 2d 943 ; Hale v Henkel (1906) 201 U.S. 43, 76-77, 26 S. Ct. 370, 50 L. Ed. 652 ; Boyd v. United States (1886) 116 U.S. 616, 622-635, 6 S. Ct. 524, 29 L. Ed. 746 ; see U.S. Const., amends. IV, XIV]. It is well established in California that department heads cannot compel the production of evidence in disregard of the constitutional provisions prohibiting unreasonable searches and seizures [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462] .

The requirements of the prohibition against unreasonable searches and seizures are easily met, however, if the subject of a subpoena is a business entity. In that case, the intrusion is reasonable and the subpoena is constitutionally valid when the following three requirements are met [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462 ; see Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1146, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811 (higher requirements for intrusions on personal privacy); see also discussion in [e], below]:

- The agency demanding production is authorized to make the inquiry.

- The demand is not too indefinite. A request is sufficiently definite when the subpoena is "reasonably specific" in identifying the books and documents to be produced [Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 42, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791] .

- The information sought is reasonably relevant. The information sought is reasonably relevant to the intended investigation if it is not plainly incompetent or irrelevant to the purposes of the agency's investigation [Younger v. Jensen (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 397, 406, 161 Cal. Rptr. 905, 605 P.2d 813] .

In a leading case the Supreme Court articulated a test that applied Fourth Amendment requirements only by analogy. The view that a subpoena could be enforced only when a specific charge or complaint was pending was explicitly rejected. Instead, the investigation need only be for a lawfully authorized purpose, within the power of the legislative body to command. In addition, the requirement of probable cause supported by oath or affirmation, which is literally applicable in the case of a warrant, is satisfied as long as the subpoenaed documents are relevant to the inquiry. Beyond this the Fourth Amendment requirement of reasonableness, including particularity in describing the place to be searched andthe persons or things to be seized, comes down to a specification of the documents to be produced that is adequate, but not excessive, for the purposes of the relevant inquiry [Oklahoma Press Pub. Co. v. Walling (1946) 327 U.S. 186, 209, 66 S. Ct. 494, 90 L. Ed. 614 ; Craib v. Bulmash (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 475, 482, 261 Cal. Rptr. 686, 777 P.2d 1120] . However, the subpoenaed person must have the opportunity for judicial review before suffering any penalties for refusing to comply with the subpoena [Craib v. Bulmash (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 475, 482, 261 Cal. Rptr. 686, 777 P.2d 1120 ; cf. See v. Seattle (1967) 387 U.S. 541, 544-545, 87 S. Ct. 1737, 18 L. Ed. 2d 943 (dictum)].

Therefore, when an agency's action is limited to issuance and service of a subpoena, and the subpoena does not authorize actual entry into nonpublic areas or immediate inspection but merely requests future production of specified records at a specified place, the subpoenaed person may not insist upon a showing of probable cause. Instead, the test is reasonableness in terms of the breadth and relevance of the subpoena [Craib v. Bulmash (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 475, 483, 261 Cal. Rptr. 686, 777 P.2d 1120 ; see, e.g., Donovan v. Lone Steer, Inc. (1984) 464 U.S. 408, 410-411, 413, 415, 104 S. Ct. 769, 78 L. Ed. 2d 567 ; California Bankers Ass'n v. Shultz (1974) 416 U.S. 21, 66-67, 94 S. Ct. 1494, 39 L. Ed. 2d 812 (Treasury Regulation requirement for banks to report certain customer transactions as not unreasonable); United States v. Powell (1964) 379 U.S. 48, 57, 85 S. Ct. 248, 13 L. Ed. 2d 112 (IRS summons for records relating to company tax returns as not required to be supported by probable cause to suspect fraud); McPhaul v. United States (1960) 364 U.S. 372, 382-383, 81 S. Ct. 138, 5 L. Ed. 2d 136 (congressional committee subpoena as not overbroad despite assertion that existence of records was never established); United States v. Morton Salt Co. (1950) 338 U.S. 632, 651-653, 70 S. Ct. 357, 94 L. Ed. 401, 46 F.T.C. 1436 (FTC order for corporate reports, needed to prove compliance with prior decree, as not unreasonable); Younger v. Jensen (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 397, 404-405, 161 Cal.Rptr. 905, 605 P.2d 813 ; Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462] .

A subpoena duces tecum may be resisted on Fourth Amendment grounds if it directs the production of an unreasonable number of documents unrelated to the purpose of the investigation. This defect usually occurs when the description of the documents sought is very general [see Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462] , but the problem can be avoided by making the investigation itself very general [see McPhaul v. United States (1960) 364 U.S. 372, 381, 81 S. Ct. 138, 5 L. Ed. 2d 136] . The California Court of Appeal rejected a constitutional overbreadth challenge to an investigative subpoena issued by a city council under the authority of Gov. Code § 37104 to compel a hotel operator to produce tax records for a city audit of compliance with the city's transient occupancy tax. The hotel operator argued that thesubpoena sought production of records that were not required to be kept by the city ordinance which imposed the occupancy tax. The Court of Appeal rejected that challenge and concluded that the ordinance gave adequate notice of the records required to be kept [City of Vacaville v. Pitamber (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 739, 746-747, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 396 (Court of Appeal affirmed enforcement of investigative subpoena issued by city council to audit tax records of hotel operator)].

In practice the subpoena is unlikely to have this defect [see, e.g., Brown v. United States (1927) 276 U.S. 134, 143, 48 S. Ct. 288, 72 L. Ed. 500 ; Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 41-42, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791] , but in some cases the subpoena has been too broad [see, e.g., Paladini v. Superior Court (1918) 178 Cal. 369, 374-375, 173 P. 588] .

A subpoena duces tecum may be resisted on Fourth Amendment grounds if it does not sufficiently identify the person who is to respond; but this defect, too, seldom occurs. A subpoena directed to an artifical person such as a corporation, or one directed to a partnership, is not defective in this regard since it must be deemed directed to the person or persons responsible for conducting the affairs of the corporation, partnership, or other artificial person [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 528 n.1, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462 ; Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 42, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791] .

These rules are equally applicable to individuals and corporations, notwithstanding the fact that virtually all of the cases have dealt with subpoenas for corporate records. Moreover, no Fourth Amendment privacy claim can be asserted against an administrative subpoena limited to the production of records that the subpoenaed individual is required to maintain or file with a government agency, for the express purpose of agency inspection, under lawful statutes or regulations [Craib v. Bulmash (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 475, 485, 261 Cal. Rptr. 686, 777 P.2d 1120 ; Millan v. Restaurant Enterprises Group, Inc. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 477, 493, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198 (enforcement rules as applicable equally to records that must be filed as well as records that must be maintained, at least when filed records are open to public inspection)].

Finally, this analysis of Fourth Amendment issues also disposes of any probable-cause argument that might be made under the analogous search-and-seizure provision in the California constitution [Craib v. Bulmash (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 475, 485 n.12, 261 Cal. Rptr. 686, 777 P.2d 1120 ; see Cal. Const., art. I, § 13].

When a subpoena impinges on interests in personal privacy, the statute must meet higher standards of need, specificity, and relevancy [see Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1146-1147, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811 (subpoena for patient medical records); Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55 (subpoena for patient medical records)]. For discussion of the requirements imposed on agency subpoenas by the right of privacy, see [e], below.

[d] Privilege Against Self-Incrimination

The subpoena of an investigating agency may not be enforced in violation of an individual's privilege against self-incrimination [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462] . The privilege, however, is a personal privilege. Neither a corporation nor a person having custody of corporate records is entitled to refuse to produce the records by claiming the privilege against self-incrimination [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462] . While as a personal privilege the privilege against self-incrimination is to be limited to natural persons [United States of America v. White (1944) 322 U.S. 694, 698, 701, 64 S. Ct. 1248, 88 L. Ed. 1542] , records held in certain partnerships or loose, informal associations of individuals may be covered by the privilege [Barnes v. Molino (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 46, 56, 162 Cal. Rptr. 786 ; Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 45, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791] . The test is whether under all the circumstances the organization has a character so impersonal that it cannot be said to embody or represent the purely private or personal interests of its constituents, but rather to embody their common or group interests only [United States of America v. White (1944) 322 U.S. 694, 701, 64 S. Ct. 1248, 88 L. Ed. 1542 ; Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 46, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791] .

In addition, the privilege against self-incrimination cannot be raised in objection to a subpoena at an OSC hearing held pursuant to Gov. Code § 11188 [Barnes v. Molino (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 46, 56, 162 Cal. Rptr. 786 ; Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 39, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791] . For discussion of hearings on orders to show cause, see § 471.31[3]. The privilege cannot be asserted until a question has been put to the witness under oath, and then only if the answer to the question would tend to incriminate the witness [Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 39, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791] . If a subpoenaed witness refuses to answer a specific question or refuses to testify altogether before the officer named in the subpoena, and asserts the privilege against self-incrimination, the superior court, under Gov. Code § 11186, makes the final determination on whether the answer may truly tend to incriminate the witness [Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 40, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791] .

A person may be compelled to produce documents in the form of records that are required to be kept by a government regulatory scheme if (1) the government's purpose in requiring that the records be kept is essentially regulatory and (2) the records required to be kept are of a kind customarily kept by persons engaged in the regulated activity [Grosso v. United States (1968) 390 U.S. 62, 67-69, 88 S. Ct. 709, 19 L. Ed. 2d 906 ; Marchetti v. United States (1968) 390 U.S. 39, 57, 88 S. Ct. 697, 19 L. Ed. 2d 889 ; Shapiro v. United States (1948) 335 U.S. 1, 5, 17, 19-22, 68 S. Ct. 1375, 92 L. Ed. 1787] .

Consistent with the traditional exemption of required records from the Fifth Amendment privilege against compulsory self-incrimination, a person must unconditionally respond to a court order enforcing an agency's subpoena for records that the person is statutorily required to maintain. The privilege does not apply when the reporting requirement is intended to promote a legitimate regulatory aim, is not directed at activities or persons that are inherently criminal, and only requires minimal disclosure of information of a kind customarily kept in the ordinary course of business [Craib v. Bulmash (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 475, 478, 486-490, 261 Cal. Rptr. 686, 777 P.2d 1120] .

[i] General Requirements

The right of privacy guaranteed by the California Constitution [Cal. Const., art. I, § 1] has been held to limit the subpoena power of investigating agencies [see, e.g., Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 679-682, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55 (right of privacy requires Board to show compelling state interest in medical records of patients of doctor who is being investigated)]. This limitation does not apply, however, unless a reasonable expectation of privacy exists in theinformation subpoenaed [Tom v. Schoolhouse Coins, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 827, 830, 236 Cal. Rptr. 541 ; People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 541, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695] .

Because a person or business involved in an area subject to federal or state regulation [see Tom v. Schoolhouse Coins, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 827, 830, 236 Cal. Rptr. 541 (investors in regulated securities had no reasonable expectation that identity would be withheld from state and federal agencies)], or agency reporting requirements [see People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 541, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695 (taxpayer had no reasonable expectation of privacy as to information required to be included in return)] can seldom have a reasonable expectation of privacy in that area, successful challenges to the subpoenas of investigating agencies have to date involved subpoenas seeking information about third parties who are not the object of the investigation [see Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1147-1149, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811 (overbroad subpoenas of Board investigating prescription practices of doctors violated privacy rights of patients whose medical records were sought); Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 679-682, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55 (right of privacy requires Board to show compelling state interest in medical records of patients of doctor who is being investigated)].

Further, the right to privacy is no bar to a subpoena when the statute or rules governing the investigation have confidentiality requirements that are sufficient to see that the privacy of those involved is not invaded [Doyle v. State Bar (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 12, 20-21, 184 Cal. Rptr. 720, 648 P.2d 942 ; Tom v. Schoolhouse Coins, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 827, 830, 236 Cal. Rptr. 541] . It has been suggested that the confidentiality requirements of Gov. Code § 11183 [see discussion in § 471.30[3]] may be a sufficient protection [see Tom v. Schoolhouse Coins, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 827, 830, 236 Cal. Rptr. 541] .

When a city sought disclosure pursuant to an investigative subpoena under Gov. Code § 37104, of information in which it had an interest as a prospective litigant, one Court of Appeal held that the city in such circumstances could obtain information only to the extent it was discoverable by an actual litigant under Code Civ. Proc. § 2017(b) [repealed 2004]. In this particular case, the city's interests in disclosure as a prospective litigant against potentially responsible parties in a groundwater contamination clean up action did not justify overcoming the privacy interests of prospective defendants [Connecticut Indemnity Co. v. Superior Court (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 540, 556-557, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 515] .

[ii] Standards for Application of the Challenge

Even when a reasonable expectation of privacy exists, the right to privacy does not bar every intrusion, but merely requires that any intrusion mustbe justified by a compelling state interest [White v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 757, 775, 120 Cal. Rptr. 94, 533 P.2d 222 ; Tom v. Schoolhouse Coins, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 827, 830, 236 Cal. Rptr.

541 ; Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1147, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811] that outweighs an individual's right to privacy [Department of Fair Employment and Housing v. Superior Court (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 896, 905, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615 ; Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 680, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55] . It is not enough, however, to show a compelling state interest and point out a statute authorizing an investigation [Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 681, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55] . A good cause showing for the subpoena must also exist, and the agency must use the least intrusive means [Tom v. Schoolhouse Coins, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 827, 830-831, 236 Cal. Rptr. 541 ; Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1148-1149, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811 ; Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 681, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55] to accomplish the state's compelling interest by a subpoena that is narrowly and specifically drawn [Doyle v. State Bar (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 12, 20-21, 184 Cal. Rptr. 720, 648 P.2d 942 ; Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1148-1149, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811 ; Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 681, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55] .

The requirement of good cause merely calls for a factual exposition of a reasonable ground for the order sought, a showing of the relevance and materiality of the records sought to the subject of the investigation [Doyle v. State Bar (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 12, 20, 184 Cal. Rptr. 720, 648 P.2d 942 (client trust fund records necessary to determine whether attorney misappropriated funds); Kizer v. Sulnick (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 431, 438, 248 Cal. Rptr. 712 (health study sought by subpoena clearly material and relevant to investigation by Department of Health); Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1149, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811 (demand for complete medical records of patients excessive for Board audit of physician's Schedule II prescriptions); Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 681, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55 (no showing of relevance or materiality offered in declaration)].

The requirement that the intrusion be limited to the least intrusive means means that even when enforcement is granted, there should be no undue or unnecessary invasion of privacy. That is, the intrusion should be no greater than is necessary to achieve the compelling state interest that justifies it [Doyle v. State Bar (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 12, 20, 184 Cal. Rptr. 720, 648 P.2d 942 (client trust fund records necessary to determine whether attorney misappropriated funds); Department of Fair Employment and Housing v. Superior Court (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 896, 905, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615 (disclosure of third party tenant and applicant rental records necessary to determine whether unlawful housing discrimination occurred; compelling state interest in prohibiting housing discriminationoutweighs third party tenant privacy interests); Tom v. Schoolhouse Coins, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 827, 830-831, 236 Cal. Rptr. 541 (demand for customer names and addresses a de minimus intrusion justified by compelling state interest in enforcing securities laws; there was no less intrusive way to accomplish the investigation); Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1149, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811 (demand for complete medical records of patients excessive for board audit of physician's Schedule II prescriptions); Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 681, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55] .

The subpoena and the enforcing order must be so narrowly and specifically drawn as to accomplish the state's compelling interest by the least intrusive means [Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1148-1149, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811 ; Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 681, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55] .

[iii] Successful Challenges in Medical Records Cases

The only two cases that have sustained a right of privacy challenge to the enforcement of an investigating agency's subpoena involved subpoenas seeking the production of medical records [see Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1147-1149, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811 ; Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 679-682, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55] .

In these medical records cases, the courts have ruled that the protection of the patient's privacy interest requires an investigating agency to do two things: (1) the agency must take reasonable steps to notify the patient of its proposed examination, and (2) if the patient does not waive the privacy interest, the agency must provide competent evidence that permits a court to make an independent finding that the agency has good cause for seeking the records [Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1149, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811 ; Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 680, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55] .

The custodian of the patient's records has standing to assert the absent patient's privacy interest [Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1145, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811] .

Even in a medical records case, the right of privacy is no bar to the enforcement of an agency subpoena if sufficient steps are taken to protect the patient's privacy. Thus, an order compelling compliance with a subpoena for patient medical records was upheld when the subpoena sought neither disclosure of the patients' identities nor identifying medical information [Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Hazel Hawkins Memorial Hospital (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 561, 565, 185 Cal. Rptr. 405 ; see Kizer v. Sulnick (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 431, 438-439, 248 Cal. Rptr. 712 (subpoena for health study upheld when record did not disclose whether study referred to individually identifiable medical records; if such recordsare part of the study, right to privacy requires only that any named medical records be deleted or, if feasible, that information that identifies participants be deleted); Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1149, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811 (scope of administrative warrant must be carefully tailored to avoid securing improper records, if possible, or steps must be taken to conceal identity of patient)].

The term, "discovery," in Evid. Code § 1157, has its well established legal meaning of a formal exchange of evidentiary information between parties to a pending action, and that meaning does not include an investigative subpoena issued by an administrative agency under Gov. Code § 11181(e) [Arnett v. Dal Cielo (1996), 14 Cal. 4th 4, 24, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 706, 923 P. 2d 1, 18] .

[iv] Non-Medical Records Cases

In cases that do not involve medical records, right of privacy challenges to investigational subpoenas generally fail, not only when asserted by the subpoenaed party on his or her own behalf, but also when asserted on behalf of absent third parties [see, e.g., Department of Fair Employment and Housing v. Superior Court (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 896, 905, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 615 (disclosure of third party tenant and applicant rental records necessary to determine whether unlawful housing discrimination occurred; compelling state interest in prohibiting housing discrimination outweighs third party tenant privacy interests); Tom v. Schoolhouse Coins, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 827, 830-831, 236 Cal. Rptr. 541 (demand for customer names and addresses upheld against coin seller's assertion of customers' privacy rights as a de minimus intrusion justified by compelling state interest in enforcing securities laws); People ex rel. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 526, 541, 210 Cal. Rptr. 695 (Tax Board administrative subpoena duces tecum requiring insurance company to identify policyholders under annuity plan held not to violate policyholders' right of privacy because the information was required by law to be reported and they had no reasonable expectation of privacy); Barnes v. Molino (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 46, 52, 162 Cal. Rptr. 786 (right of privacy may limit subpoenas of medical records of patients not otherwise involved in the administrative inquiry, but does not affect administrative power to subpoena corporate records); see also Doyle v. State Bar (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 12, 20, 184 Cal. Rptr. 720, 648 P.2d 942 (client trust fund records necessary to determine whether attorney misappropriated funds)].

[v] Private Club Membership Lists

A Court of Appeal vacated a trial court order enforcing an administrative subpoena, issued by the Franchise Tax Board, that sought disclosure ofthe membership list of a private club. The appellate court based its decision on the First Amendment associational privacy rights possessed by members of the private club. It concluded that the Board had not shown a compelling state interest sufficient to overcome privacy rights. The Board claimed that it needed to enforce the subpoena because it was looking for information relating to illegal tax deductions by club members. However, the Board had no specific evidence that there were such violations. Furthermore, the Board claimed that enforcement of the subpoena was a necessary means to implement its tax enforcement program. The court rejected this argument and concluded that less restrictive means, such as individualized tax audits or changing tax forms, were available [Pacific Union Club v. Superior Court (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 60, 81, 283 Cal. Rptr. 287] .

[f] Statutory Privileges

When a subpoena duces tecum is directed to an attorney, for production of a client's papers, it may be resisted by the client, and must be resisted by the attorney, on the basis of the attorney-client privilege, if the papers were delivered by the client to the attorney in connection with the client's seeking legal services [see Fisher v. United States (1976) 425 U.S. 391, 404, 96 S. Ct. 1569, 48 L. Ed. 2d 39 ; see also Evid. Code §§ 954, 955]. Statutory privileges against disclosure of confidential information [see Evid. Code §§ 900-1070] are available to witnesses in administrative investigations and to nonwitnesses who have the statutory right to prevent a witness from giving certain testimony [see Evid. Code § 910].

State Attorney General's power under Gov. Code § 11180 to investigate possible antitrust violations by means of administrative subpoenas is not dependent on any predetermination that violations actually or even probably had taken place. Younger v. Jensen (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 397, 404-406, 161 Cal. Rptr. 905, 605 P.2d 813

Franchise Tax Board (FTB) has power to issue administrative subpoenas under Political Reform Act for production of records of registered lobbyists; administrative subpoena by FTB is required to be narrowly drawn under authority of Fair Political Practices Com. v. Superior Court (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 33, 157 Cal. Rptr. 855, 599 P.2d 46 . Franchise Tax Board v. Barnhart (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 274, 278-281, 164 Cal. Rptr. 331

[b] Appealability of Order to Comply

Order by trial court to comply with subpoena duces tecum issued by Commissioner of Corporations in connection with investigation pursuant to *Gov. Procedure for resisting command to attend is to simply fail to attend and then to argue invalidity of subpoena at subsequent judicial proceeding for enforcement. *Brovelli v. Administrative subpoena duces tecum issued by Commissioner of Corporations in investigating possible offer and sale of unqualified securities, which required seller of numismatic coins to disclose names and addresses of its customers, does not violate of customers' right to privacy guaranteed by Cal. Const., art. I, § 1, because public interest in disclosure outweighs privacy interest. Tom v. Schoolhouse Coins, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 827, 829-831, 236 Cal. Rptr. 541

Subject's privilege against self-incrimination does not protect papers sought in investigation to determine whether corporate securities laws have been violated where one Commissioner of Corporations was authorized to make inquiry under Corp. App. 3d 46, 51-55, 162 Cal. Rptr. 786

State agency is not able to avoid due process restraints merely by making reference to broad investigation enabling statute but is required to show that person's constitutional rights are not infringed; if disclosure is compelled after requisite balancing of rights and finding of compelling state interest, order is required to be drawn with narrow specificity. *Division of Medical Quality v. [2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint for injunctive relief for use by a person subject to an administrative investigation to stop the investigation because it is unlawful or it is being conducted in an unlawful manner as respects the plaintiff's interests [see, e.g., Berkeley Chiropractic College v. Compton (1929) 97 Cal. App. 790, 791-793, 276 P. 361 ; for discussion, see § 471.22[1][a]]. The form includes an optional claim for damages, for use in an appropriate case. The form may also be used, by including other optional parts, to obtain provisional relief. If plaintiff seeks provisional relief, he or she should be prepared to furnish a bond [see Code Civ. Proc. § 529].

[3] Verification

A complaint for a preliminary injunction must be verified or accompanied by affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) showing the grounds for granting the injunction. Furthermore, if a temporary restraining order is also sought, the verified complaint or the affidavits (declarations) must show that great or irreparable injury would result to the applicant before the matter can be heard on notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)].

Verification [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction on a complaint, instead of on affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. Otherwise, verification of this complaint is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] and precludes a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

[4] Contents of Complaint

In the caption as well as the body of the complaint (see Paragraph 3) the defendant agency will be designated as a multimember body or an administrative officer. The designation in the foregoing form is appropriate for a multimember body such as the Medical Board of California. The form set out in Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies, § 471B.100[1], illustrates the proper designation of an administrative officer, such as the Director of Food and Agriculture. In no case should the agency be called a department or a division or the like, since those terms do not describe an agency [see the discussion in Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law].

[5] Allegations

The allegations reflect the standard allegations in a complaint for injunctive relief [see Ch. 303, Injunctions]. It is particularly important to state that an administrative investigation is in progress (Paragraph 4), that it has adversely affected and will adversely affect plaintiff's interests (Paragraph 5), and that, for specified reasons, it is unlawful or is being conducted in an unlawful manner (Paragraph 6). Allegations respecting injuries compensable by the payment of damages (Paragraph 7) may be included if there is any culpable defendant who is not immune from liability under the Tort Claims Act (Gov. Code § 810 et seq.; see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act].

[Verification, if desired. See § 471.70.]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a complaint for injunctive relief for use by a taxpayer to stop the expenditure of public funds in support of an administrative investigation, on the ground that the investigation is unlawful or is being conducted in an unlawful manner [see Code Civ. Proc. § 526a; Wirin v. Horrall (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 497, 504-505, 193 P.2d 470 ; for discussion, see § 471.22[1][b]].

[3] Verification

For discussion of verification, see § 471.70[3].

[4] Standing to Sue

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 526a, authorizing the action with respect to protecting the funds of local governments, refers to a resident taxpayer, a nonresident taxpayer has standing if he meets the other criteria [Irwin v. Manhattan Beach (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 13, 19-20, 51 Cal. Rptr. 881, 415 P.2d 769] .

[5] Suit to Preserve State Funds

No statute authorizes a taxpayer action to preserve state funds, but the cases recognize a state taxpayer's standing to sue [see, e.g., California State Employees' Assn. v. Williams (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 390, 392, 86 Cal. Rptr. 305] .

[6] Defendants

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 526a, the defendants should include the officer, agent, or other person acting on behalf of, and responsible for spending or disbursing the funds of, the governmental entity. The governmental entity itself should be made a defendant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 382] since the action is for its benefit [see Osburn v. Stone (1915) 170 Cal. 480, 483, 150 P. 367] . The agency conducting the investigation should also be made a defendant.

41-471A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471A.10

§ 471A.10 Agency Inspection Powers

[1] Nature and Purpose of Power

This chapter focuses on the important agency investigative tool of inspections. Agencies use inspections principally to assess compliance with laws that the agency is charged with enforcing, especially laws that affect the public health, safety, or welfare. For example, health inspectors may go to restaurants to check sanitary conditions, and pharmacy inspectors may inspect pharmacies and check stocks of dangerous drugs and dangerous drug records [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 4010, 4231, 4232]. While administrative agencies are granted the statutory power of inspection to fulfill their legislative mandates, this power is limited in scope and conduct. Thus, when a government administrative agent inspects the property of a private individual or business, questions of constitutional rights arise [see § 471A.13], and an administrative inspection warrant may be required [see § 471A.12].

[2] Statutory Source of Power

The power of an administrative agency to make an inspection is not an inherent agency power, but must arise from statute. Virtually all highly regulated or licensed businesses or activities are subject to statutorily authorized inspection by a responsible regulating agency. Statutory authorization for these inspections is usually couched in fairly broad terms [see, e.g., Fish & Game Code §§ 1006 (Department of Fish and Game personnel may inspect any premises or receptacle where animals may be held for sale or transport), 7702 (Department of Fish and Game personnel may "enter and examine" any place of business handling or manufacturing fish products and examine any books and records "containing any account of fish caught, bought, canned, packed, stored or sold"); Health & Safety Code §§ 1278, 1282, 1417-1439.8 (authorizing Department of Health Services personnel to enter and inspect the premises and records of health care facilities); Pub. Res. Code § 2208 (director or qualified assistant authorized to enter and inspect any mine, quarry, well, etc.)]. For example, the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control is authorized to inspect the records and premises of liquor licensees as it "may deem necessary to perform its duties" [Bus. & Prof. Code § 25753], and the commissioner of agriculture or his or her designee may enter and inspect any "premises, plant, conveyance, or thing in his jurisdiction" "whenever necessary" [Food & Agric. Code § 5023].

[3] Definition of Inspection

Administrative inspections usually involve observation or testing of places and things [see, e.g., Air Pollution Variance Bd. v. Western Alfalfa (1974) 416 U.S. 861, 862-863, 94 S. Ct. 2114, 40 L. Ed. 2d 607 (test of smoke emissions from chimney on company's premises); United States v. Biswell (1972) 406 U.S. 311, 312, 92 S. Ct. 1593, 32 L. Ed. 2d 87 (search of commercial storeroom and seizure of unlicensed firearms); Kim v. Dolch (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 736, 741, 219 Cal. Rptr. 248 (inspection of massage parlors)], but may also involve inspection of records [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 25753 (Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control authorized to inspect records of liquor licensees)], or even search of people [see, e.g., 8 U.S.C. §§ 1228(a), 1227 (inspection of aliens entering U.S.)].

The term inspection commonly denotes an administrative inquiry undertaken by observation or testing or both. In common usage, an inspection is a close and critical viewing for the purpose of ascertaining the quality or condition of some place, thing, or person, particularly when the inspector is looking for defects or errors. Administrative inspections are generally directed at places [see, e.g., Wood v. Kalbaugh (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 926, 929, 114 Cal. Rptr. 673 (inspection of premises to detect broken gas pipes)] or things [see, e.g., O'Hare v. Peacock Dairies, Inc. (1938) 26 Cal. App. 2d 345, 349, 353, 79 P.2d 433 (inspection of dairy cattle and testing of milk for disease)], but may also be directed at people [see, e.g., Reid v. INS (1975) 420 U.S. 619, 622, 95 S. Ct. 1164, 43 L. Ed. 2d 501 (inspection of alien seeking to enter country)].

[1] Intrusion

A search, whether administrative or not, is an intrusive activity, that is, "an invasion and quest, a looking for and seeking out" [Bielicki v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 602, 605, 21 Cal. Rptr. 552, 371 P.2d 288] . It is not necessarily physically intrusive, however; for example, a search may be conducted by electronic eavesdropping or merely looking at or into something as well as by conventional methods [see, e.g., Lorenzana v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 626, 639, 108 Cal. Rptr. 585, 511 P.2d 33] .

[2] Private Area

Regardless of how intrusive a government agent might be in looking for something, there is no search in the constitutional sense unless there is an invasion into some area reasonably regarded by the victim as private[Katz v. United States (1967) 389 U.S. 347, 351, 88 S. Ct. 507, 19 L. Ed. 2d 576 ; Lorenzana v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 626, 637, 108 Cal. Rptr. 585, 511 P.2d 33] .

A private area for this purpose certainly includes an apartment [Camara v. Municipal Court (1967) 387 U.S. 523, 528-529, 87 S. Ct. 1727, 18 L. Ed. 2d 930] , but may also be the nonpublic parts of commercial premises [See v. Seattle (1967) 387 U.S. 541, 543, 87 S. Ct. 1737, 18 L. Ed. 2d 943] , an enclosed back yard [Vidaurri v. Superior Court (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 550, 553, 91 Cal. Rptr. 704] , or a boat [Tellis v. Municipal Court (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 455, 458, 85 Cal. Rptr. 459] . On the other hand, the remains of a fire-gutted building might not be private [City & County of San Francisco v. City Inv. Corp. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 1031, 1039, 93 Cal. Rptr. 690] .

[3] Administrative Agent

One of the characteristics of an administrative search, distinguishing it from a criminal law enforcement search, is the fact that it is conducted by someone other than a law enforcement officer, that is, an agency employee such as an agricultural or building inspector [see Vidaurri v. Superior Court (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 550, 552, 91 Cal. Rptr. 704 ; Tellis v. Municipal Court (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 455, 458, 85 Cal. Rptr. 459] .

[4] Regulatory Purpose

The other distinguishing feature of an administrative search is that the purpose is not criminal law enforcement but, rather, enforcement of whatever regulatory laws the agency in question is charged with administering [see, e.g., Currier v. Pasadena (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 810, 815, 121 Cal. Rptr. 913 ; see also People v. Hyde (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 158, 165, 115 Cal. Rptr. 358, 524 P.2d 830] .

§ 471A.12 Inspection Procedures and Search Warrants

[1] Warrant Generally Required

In general, the constitutionality of a search is determined by whether a person has exhibited a reasonable expectation of privacy and, if so, whether that expectation has been violated by unreasonable governmental intrusion [People v. Chapman (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 98, 106, 201 Cal. Rptr. 628, 679 P.2d 62 ; Betchart v. Department of Fish & Game (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 1104, 1107, 205 Cal. Rptr. 135] . Thus, when an administrative inspection intrudes on a reasonable expectation of privacy, the protections against unreasonable searches and seizures, expressed in both the Fourth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution and corresponding provisions of the California Constitution, apply [see Currier v. City of Pasadena (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 810, 815-817, 121 Cal. Rptr. 913 (city ordinance authorizing warrantless search was, on its face, violation of both state and federal constitutions, but was upheld when read together with inspection warrant requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1822.50-1822.57 (now Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1822.50-1822.59))].

The Fourth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution states: "[t]he right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized." It applies to state action under the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment [Mapp v. Ohio (1961) 367 U.S. 643, 655, 6 L. Ed. 2d 1081, 81 S. Ct. 1684, 86 Ohio Law Abs. 513 ; see U.S. Const., amend. XIV]. Cal. Const., art. I, § 13, and the Fourth Amendment prohibit unreasonable searches and seizures in almost the same words [see Cal. Const., art. I, § 13 ("[t]he right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects against unreasonable seizures and searches may not be violated; and a warrant may not issue except on probable cause, supported by oath or affirmation, particularly describing the place to be searched and the persons and things to be seized")]. Thus, similar standards apply under both provisions, and the California courts have cited and followed major United States Supreme Court cases such as Camara v. Municipal Court (1967) 387 U.S. 523, 534, 540, 87 S. Ct. 1727, 18 L. Ed. 2d 930 , in concluding that administrative inspections generally require a search warrant [see, e.g., Salwasser Manufacturing Co. v. Municipal Court (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 223, 228-229, 156 Cal. Rptr. 292 (Fourth Amendment requires search warrant for routine administrative searches)].

Counsel should be sure to check the latest search and seizure cases; this law has been changing based on the shift to increasingly conservative majorities in both the California Supreme Court and the United States Supreme Court.

An agency usually must obtain a search warrant before conducting an "inspection" of a person, house, papers, or effects [Camara v. Municipal Court (1967) 387 U.S. 523, 528-534, 540, 87 S. Ct. 1727, 18 L. Ed. 2d 930 ; Salwasser Manufacturing Co.v. Municipal Court (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 223, 228-229, 156 Cal. Rptr. 292 ; Currier v. City of Pasadena (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 810, 815-817, 121 Cal. Rptr. 913 ; Vidaurri v. Superior Court (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 550, 553-554, 91 Cal. Rptr. 704] . Because "administrative searches ... are significant intrusions upon the interests protected by the Fourth Amendment, [administrative inspections] conducted without a warrant procedure lack the traditional safeguards which the Fourth Amendment guarantees to the individual. ... " [Camara v. Municipal Court (1967) 387 U.S. 523, 534, 87 S. Ct. 1727, 18 L. Ed. 2d 930] .Warrantless searches are, however, permitted in some situations, as discussed in [3], below.

[2] Administrative Search Warrants

[a] Definition of Inspection Warrant and Purposes for Which Warrant May Be Issued

Most agency inspections are conducted with the consent of the person affected. If consent is denied, however, the inspecting agency must usually ask a court for an administrative inspection warrant [see Camara v. Municipal Court (1967) 387 U.S. 523, 539-540, 87 S. Ct. 1727, 18 L. Ed. 2d 930 (warrant should normally be sought only after entry is refused); Salwasser Manufacturing Co. v. Municipal Court (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 223, 234, 156 Cal. Rptr. 292 (probable cause requirement will arise only in "those relatively few situations" in which consent to an inspection is refused)].

In California, inspection warrants are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1822.50-1822.59. This statutory scheme applies only when a warrant is required, and thus is usually not applied to licensed or highly regulated businesses or activities, which usually are subject to an exception to the warrant requirement [People v. Firstenberg (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 570, 583, 155 Cal. Rptr. 80 ; see discussion in [3][a], below].

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1822.50, an inspection warrant is a written order signed by a judge directing a state or local official to "conduct any inspection required or authorized by state or local law or regulation relating to building, fire, safety, plumbing, electrical, health, labor, or zoning" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1822.50; see also Penal Code § 1523 (search warrant defined)].

In addition, a warrant may be issued under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1822.50-1822.59 authorizing either:

- The Fish and Game Department to inspect places where fish, amphibia, or aquatic life are held or stored [Code Civ. Proc. § 1822.58].

- The Food and Agriculture Department to inspect a specified urban area for animal or plant pest or disease eradication, provided the warrant covers only the exterior of places, dwellings, structures, premises, or vehicles [Code Civ. Proc. § 1822.59].

Administrative agencies that have civil litigation pending against a company regulated by that agency may conduct compliance inspections under the administrative inspection warrant statute, Code Civ. Proc. § 1822.50, of that company's premises while litigation is pending and are not required to conduct inspections under the civil discovery statutes that apply to civil litigation [Department of Toxic Substances Control v. Superior Court (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1418, 1425-1427, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 412] .

[b] Definition of Cause and Requirements to Issue Warrants

Unless a specific provision of state or federal law makes another standard applicable, administrative inspection warrants may be issued only on a showing of "cause" by the agency. The warrant must be supported by an affidavit that particularly describes the purpose for the inspection and the place, dwelling, structure, premises, or vehicle to be inspected. The affidavit must contain either a statement that consent to inspect has been sought and refused, or a listing of facts or circumstances that reasonably justify the failure to seek consent [Code Civ. Proc. § 1822.51]. The showing of "cause" required for the issuance of an administrative inspection warrant is not the same as the traditional "probable cause"--that is, probable cause to believe a violation of law or regulation has occurred applicable in criminal cases [see, e.g., Salwasser Manufacturing Co. v. Municipal Court (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 223, 231-234, 156 Cal. Rptr. 292 (administrative inspection with penal consequences requires showing of probable cause to believe a violation currently exists on the premises to be inspected)].

The "cause" necessary to support an administrative inspection warrant is present if either:

- Reasonable legislative or administrative standards for conducting a routine or area inspection are satisfied [Department of Toxic Substances Control v. Superior Court (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1418, 1424-1425, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 412 (legislative and administrative standards for conducting unannounced routine inspections of Hazardous Waste Control Facilities under authority of Health & Safety Code § 25185 are reasonable)].

- There is reason to believe that a condition of non-conformity exists with respect to the particular place to be inspected [Code Civ. Proc. § 1822.52; see City and County of San Francisco v. Municipal Court (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 712, 719-721, 213 Cal. Rptr. 477 (reasonable legislative and administrative standards for area inspection satisfied by city's inspection to determine conformity with housing and other building codes as part of residential assistance program)].

Thus, it has been held under the California Occupational Safety and Health Act (Cal/OSHA) [Lab. Code § 6300 et seq.] that, because of the possible far-reaching penal consequences of a Cal/OSHA inspection, the federal and state constitutional protections against unreasonable search and seizure apply, and mandate a probable cause requirement for inspection warrants [Salwasser Manufacturing Co. v. Municipal Court (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 223, 231, 156 Cal. Rptr. 292] . The court in Salwasser contrasted Cal/OSHA and the comparable federal statute by noting that the only criminal penalty under federal law is for a willful violation that causes the death of an employee [29 U.S.C. § 666(e)], but the criminalsanctions under Cal/OSHA permeate the entire inspection process [Salwasser Manufacturing Co. v. Municipal Court (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 223, 230, 156 Cal. Rptr. 292] .

[c] Grounds for, Contents of, and Duration of Warrant

Before issuing an inspection warrant, the judge may examine the applicant or other witnesses under oath to satisfy himself or herself of the existence of grounds for granting the application [Code Civ. Proc. § 1822.53]. If satisfied that the proper standard for the issuance of the warrant has been met [see [b], above], the judge must issue a warrant that (1) specifically describes the "place, dwelling, structure, premises, or vehicle" to be inspected, (2) states the purpose of the search, and (3) sets forth any limitation on the inspection [Code Civ. Proc. § 1822.54].

An inspection warrant is valid for the time stated in the warrant, but not for more than 14 days, unless it is extended or renewed by the judge who signed and issued the original warrant. The judge may extend or renew the warrant if satisfied that the extension or renewal is in the public interest. The warrant must be executed and returned within the time specified or within the extended or renewed time, or it is void [Code Civ. Proc. § 1822.55].

[d] Conduct of Inspection, Forcible Entry, and Notice

Inspections under an inspection warrant must take place between 8:00 a.m. and 6:00 p.m. in the presence of the owner or occupant of the described place or vehicle [Code Civ. Proc. § 1822.56]. The issuing court may order otherwise, however, if the inspecting agency makes a showing that an exception "is reasonably necessary to effectuate the purpose of the regulation being enforced" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1822.56].

Inspection by forcible entry is not allowed under an inspection warrant unless forcible entry has been expressly authorized by the issuing judge. This authority may be granted only if the agency can show either of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1822.56]:

- Facts creating a reasonable suspicion of a violation of a state or local law or regulation that would pose an immediate threat to health or safety.

- Facts establishing that reasonable attempts to serve a previous warrant have failed.

If the agency asked for a consent to the inspection, but was refused, notice must be given that a warrant has been issued. The notice must be given at least 24 hours before the warrant is executed. Notice is not required if the judge finds that immediate execution is "reasonably necessary in the circumstances shown" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1822.56].

[e] Criminal Penalties for Refusal to Permit Authorized Inspection

Any person who willfully refuses to allow an inspection lawfully authorized by a warrant issued under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1822.50-1822.59 is guilty of a misdemeanor [Code Civ. Proc. § 1822.57]. Thus, failure to comply is not a violation unless the warrant was properly issued under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1822.50-1822.59 and the inspection is a lawful search. The inspection is not a lawful search if it violates any of the constitutional limits on inspection explained in § 471A.13.

[3] Warrantless Inspections

[a] Pervasively Regulated Industries

[i] Rationale for Warrantless Inspection of Pervasively Regulated Industries

Although warrants are generally required for administrative inspections [see [1], above], there is an exception for pervasively regulated industries. In Camara v. Municipal Court [Camara v. Municipal Court (1967) 387 U.S. 523, 534, 539, 87 S. Ct. 1727, 18 L. Ed. 2d 930] , and the companion case of See v. Seattle [See v. Seattle (1967) 387 U.S. 541, 545, 87 S. Ct. 1737, 18 L. Ed. 2d 943] , the United States Supreme Court concluded that, except in emergency situations, administrative agencies could not conduct routine inspections of dwellings or commercial premises not open to the public without first obtaining an inspection warrant. The See court acknowledged, however, that business premises may reasonably be inspected without a warrant in many situations when the same inspection of a private residence would constitute an unreasonable search; it also recognized the validity of accepted regulatory techniques such as licensing programs that require inspections prior to operating a business or marketing a product [See v. Seattle (1967) 387 U.S. 541, 546, 87 S. Ct. 1737, 18 L. Ed. 2d 943] .

Hence, warrantless inspections of closely regulated activities are permissible. As the Supreme Court subsequently explained in Donovan v. Dewey [Donovan v. Dewey (1981) 452 U.S. 594, 598-599, 101 S. Ct. 2534, 69 L. Ed. 2d 262 (footnote and citation omitted)]:

> The greater latitude to conduct warrantless inspections of commercial property reflects the fact that the expectation of privacy that the owner of commercial property enjoys in such property differs significantly from the sanctity accorded an individual's home, and that this privacy interest may, in certain circumstances, be adequately protected by regulatory schemes authorizing warrantless inspections.

[ii] Determining Reasonableness of Warrantless Inspection

The validity of specific warrantless inspections of closely regulated activities has been left to be resolved on a case-by-case basis under thegeneral Fourth Amendment standard of reasonableness [See v. Seattle (1967) 387 U.S. 541, 546, 87 S. Ct. 1737, 18 L. Ed. 2d 943 ; People v. Firstenberg (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 570, 577, 155 Cal. Rptr. 80 ; see U.S. Const., amend. IV]. In determining the "reasonableness" of legislation authorizing warrantless searches, the court considers the following three factors:

- Whether the affected business or industry is one that is pervasively regulated [Kim v. Dolch (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 736, 742, 219 Cal. Rptr. 248] . The assurance of regularity provided by an administrative warrant may be unnecessary when the industry or activity is, or has historically been, subject to close supervision and inspection in the public interest so that "the owner of commercial property cannot help but be aware that his property will be subject to periodic inspections undertaken for specific purposes" [United States v. Biswell (1972) 406 U.S. 311, 316, 92 S. Ct. 1593, 32 L. Ed. 2d 87 (warrantless inspections of firearms dealers under federal Gun Control Act upheld)].

- Whether a strong governmental interest exists in warrantless inspections of the affected industry. A strong governmental interest exists when the legislation embodies important goals and frequent unannounced inspections are necessary to attain those goals [Kim v. Dolch (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 736, 744-745, 219 Cal. Rptr. 248 (massage parlor inspections); see, e.g., United States v. Biswell (1972) 406 U.S. 311, 315-317, 92 S. Ct. 1593, 32 L. Ed. 2d 87 (firearm inspection); Donovan v. Dewey (1981) 452 U.S. 594, 600-604, 101 S. Ct. 2534, 69 L. Ed. 2d 262 (mine inspections); Betchart v. Department of Fish & Game (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 1104, 1109-1110, 205 Cal. Rptr. 135 (wild game hunting inspections); People v. Harbor Hut Restaurant (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1156, 196 Cal. Rptr. 7 (wholesale fish dealers inspections); People v. Di Bernardo (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 5, 7, 79 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 5 , 79 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 5, 144 Cal. Rptr. 902 (commercial fishing vessel inspections)].

- Whether the law is so narrowly drawn as to accomplish the government's important objectives without unduly infringing on Fourth Amendment rights, thus providing an adequate substitute for a warrant [Donovan v. Dewey (1981) 452 U.S. 594, 603-605, 101 S. Ct. 2534, 69 L. Ed. 2d 262 ; Kim v. Dolch (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 736, 745-746, 219 Cal. Rptr. 248 ; People v. Harbor Hut Restaurant (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1156, 196 Cal. Rptr. 7] . Only a limited right to warrantless inspection adequately replaces the warrant's function of establishing the lawful limits of the inspector's power to search [Kim v. Dolch (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 736, 746, 219 Cal. Rptr. 248 , quoting Camara v. Municipal Court (1967) 387 U.S. 523, 532, 87 S. Ct. 1727, 18 L. Ed. 2d 930] .

In Marshall v. Barlow's Inc. (1978) 436 U.S. 307, 325, 98 S. Ct. 1816, 56 L. Ed. 2d 305 , the Supreme Court struck down the warrantless inspection provision of the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970, which applied to all businesses engaged in interstate commerce, rather than to persons engaged in a particular licensed industry. This holding did not limit the exception to the warrant requirement allowed for inspections of pervasively regulated industries in the leading cases of Colonnade Catering Corp. v. United States (1970) 397 U.S. 72, 77, 90 S. Ct. 774, 25 L. Ed. 2d 60 , and United States v. Biswell (1972) 406 U.S. 311, 316, 92 S. Ct. 1593, 32 L. Ed. 2d 87 , but rather expressly approved the holdings in those cases [Marshall v. Barlow's Inc. (1978) 436 U.S. 307, 313, 98 S. Ct. 1816, 56 L. Ed. 2d 305] .

Warrantless inspections of pervasively regulated businesses must satisfy three criteria [New York v. Burger (1987) 482 U.S. 691, 702-703, 107 S. Ct. 2636, 96 L. Ed. 2d 601 ; see also Michigan v. Clifford (1984) 464 U.S. 287, 291-292, 104 S. Ct. 641, 78 L. Ed. 2d 477] :

- A substantial governmental interest must support the regulatory scheme that uses warrantless inspections;

- The warrantless inspection must be necessary to further the regulatory scheme; and

- The inspection program must provide a constitutionally adequate substitute for a warrant in terms of the certainty and regularity of its application.

The warrantless inspection exception for pervasively regulated industries specifically does not apply merely because a business is subject to state licensing requirements. The three criteria must also be satisfied [Pinney v. Phillips (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1570, 1585-1586, 281 Cal. Rptr. 904] .

A warrantless inspection of insurance records required to be kept by law that was authorized by Ins. Code § 1727 violated an insurance broker's Fourth Amendment right to be protected against unreasonable searches and seizures. While the insurance industry is closely regulated, the statutory warrantless search did not satisfy any of the three criteria, and thus the Insurance commissioner exceeded its authority and could not revoke the license of the insurance broker for refusing to allow a warrantless search [De La Cruz v. Quackenbush (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 775, 785-787, 96 Cal. Rptr 2d 92] .

California courts, like the federal courts, have allowed warrantless inspections of the property and records of closely regulated industries and businesses in a number of contexts [see, e.g., Kim v. Dolch (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 736, 742-747, 219 Cal. Rptr. 248 (massage parlors); People v. Harbor Hut Restaurant (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1154-1156, 196 Cal. Rptr. 7 (wholesale fish dealers); People v. Firstenberg (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 570, 581, 155 Cal. Rptr. 80 (skilled nursing facilities); People v. Easley (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 440, 443-445, 153 Cal. Rptr. 396 (auto dismantling); People v. White (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 936, 939-942, 259 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 936 , 259 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 936, 65 Cal. Rptr. 923 (convalescent hospitals); People v. Lisner (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 637, 641, 57 Cal. Rptr. 674 (public bars); alcoholic beverage saleslicensees, Bus. & Prof. Code § 25755(b), (c)]. Most of these businesses engaged in activities that have a high risk of illegal conduct or of serious danger to the public, such that frequent unannounced inspections are essential for the protection of the public or for the enforcement of the statutory purpose [Pinney v. Phillips (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1570, 1584, 281 Cal. Rptr. 904] . The administrative warrant requirements set out in Code*Civ. Proc. §§ 1822.50-1822.59* [see [2], above] do not apply to inspections of licensed businesses that are governed by the rules enunciated in Colonnade Catering Corp. v. United States (1970) 397 U.S. 72, 90 S. Ct. 774, 25 L. Ed. 2d 60 , and United States v. Biswell (1972) 406 U.S. 311, 92 S. Ct. 1593, 32 L. Ed. 2d 87 . The requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1822.50-1822.59 are intended to comply with the rule stated in Camara v. Municipal Court (1967) 387 U.S. 523, 539, 87 S. Ct. 1727, 18 L. Ed. 2d 930 [see [1], above] regarding when a warrant is constitutionally required [People v. Firstenberg (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 570, 583, 155 Cal. Rptr. 80] .

The California courts have frequently found partial or sole justification for warrantless inspections by using the legal fiction of implied consent. Under this approach, consent to inspections is implied whenever a business accepts a license to engage in the regulated activity [People v. Firstenberg (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 570, 581, 155 Cal. Rptr. 80 ; see Betchart v. Department of Fish & Game (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 1104, 1110, 205 Cal. Rptr. 135 (hunter); People v. Harbor Hut Restaurant (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1154-1156, 196 Cal. Rptr. 7 (wholesale fish dealer); People v. White (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 936, 940-942, 259 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 936 , 259 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 936, 65 Cal. Rptr. 923 (hospital); Cooley v. State Bd. of Funeral Directors (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 293, 298, 296 P.2d 588 (funeral director)].

[b] Other Exceptions to Warrant Requirement

[i] Introduction

The same exceptions to the Fourth Amendment warrant requirement that are recognized in criminal cases appear to apply to administrative inspections as well. These exceptions include open fields, plain view, consent, and exigent circumstances, which are detailed in [ii] to [v], below.

[ii] Open Fields

An exception for "open fields" exists because society is not prepared to recognize an individual's expectation of privacy in an open field as a reasonable expectation [Oliver v. United States (1984) 466 U.S. 170, 179, 104 S. Ct. 1735, 80 L. Ed. 2d 214] . Thus, administrative agency personnel may inspect open fields without the necessity of obtaining an inspection warrant [Air Pollution Variance Bd. v. Western Alfalfa Corp. (1974) 416 U.S. 861, 865, 94 S. Ct. 2114, 40 L. Ed. 2d 607 ; Betchart v. Department of Fish & Game (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 1104, 1107, 205 Cal. Rptr. 135] . The open field rationale was used to justify aerial photography of a chemical plant after the owner of the plant refused to allow an on-site inspection by agency inspectors [Dow Chemical Co. v. United States (1986) 476 U.S. 227, 106 S. Ct. 1819, 90 L. Ed. 2d 226].

[iii] Plain View

No administrative warrant is necessary to inspect or seize items in "plain view," that is, objects "in the plain view of an officer who has a right to be in the position to have that view" [People v. Marshall (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 51, 57-58, 69 Cal. Rptr. 585, 442 P.2d 665 ; see City etc. San Francisco v. City Investment Corp. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 1031, 1039, 93 Cal. Rptr. 690 ("to observe what is perfectly apparent to any member of the public who happens to be near the premises is not a search")].

[iv] Consent

No warrant is required if consent to search has been given. When an agency has received a voluntary consent to its inspection of an otherwise private area, it need not obtain a warrant [see Blair v. Pitchess (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 258, 274-275, 96 Cal. Rptr. 42, 486 P.2d 1242 ; Currier v. City of Pasadena (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 810, 815, 121 Cal. Rptr. 913 ; City etc. San Francisco v. City Investment Corp. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 1031, 1039 n.1, 93 Cal. Rptr. 690] . In criminal law, whether an apparent consent was in fact voluntarily given or was in submission to an express or implied assertion of authority is a question of fact to be determined in the light of all the circumstances [People v. Michael (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 751, 753, 290 P.2d 852] . The same rationale appears to apply to administrative inspections [see Currier v. City of Pasadena (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 810, 815, 121 Cal. Rptr. 913 (ordinance conditioning issuance of a certificate of occupancy on consent to inspection held unconstitutional unless coupled with warrant requirement)].

[v] Exigent Circumstances

Exigent circumstances also justify an exception to the warrant requirement. Exigent circumstances include the possible imminent destruction or loss of evidence [see, e.g., People v. Di Bernardo (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 5, 7, 79 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 5 , 79 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 5, 144 Cal. Rptr. 902 (warrantless search of commercial fishing vessel justified due to mobile and temporal nature of the evidence)], and other emergency situations, such as immediate peril to the public health or safety [see, e.g., People v. Roberts (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 374, 377-380, 303 P.2d 721 (emergency entry to give aid not unreasonable); Romero v. Superior Court (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 714, 717-722, 72 Cal. Rptr. 430 (search by firemen for explosives justified as emergency)].

§ 471A.13 Constitutional Protections Under the Fourth, Fifth, and Fourteenth Amendments

[1] Prohibition Against Unreasonable Searches and Seizures

[a] Application of Exclusionary Rule to Criminal and Administrative Proceedings

The exclusionary rule is the remedy that allows the individual to enforce his or her rights when the government transgresses the constitutional limits on administrative inspections. The quality of the protection provided by the exclusionary rule varies depending on the nature of the proceeding in which the evidence is offered. It is clear that the evidence may not be used against an individual in a criminal prosecution [see See v. Seattle (1967) 387 U.S. 541, 542, 545-546, 87 S. Ct. 1737, 18 L. Ed. 2d 943 (Fourth Amendment bars prosecution of person who has refused to allow warrantless code-enforcement inspection of commercial structure); Vidaurri v. Superior Court (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 550, 552-554, 91 Cal. Rptr. 704 (marijuana plant seen by Department of Agriculture pest inspector during warrantless inspection of defendant's fenced back yard was not admissible in evidence because search was illegal)].

The extent to which the exclusionary rule bars the use of evidence in a non-criminal administrative hearing, however, is determined on a case-by-case basis [Emslie v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 210, 229-230, 113 Cal. Rptr. 175, 520 P.2d 991 ; United States v. Janis (1976) 428 U.S. 433, 446-447, 49 L. Ed. 2d 1046, 96 S. Ct. 3021 ; I.N.S. v. Lopez-Mendoza (1984) 468 U.S. 1032, 1051-1052, 104 S. Ct. 3479, 82 L. Ed. 2d 778] . Factors bearing on admissibility include the following [Emslie v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 210, 226-228, 113 Cal. Rptr. 175, 520 P.2d 991] :

- Whether the state would profit by its own wrong in using evidence obtained by an unconstitutional method, and whether exclusion of the evidence would have a deterrent effect on future abuses by government officials.

- Whether a close identity exists between the civil administrative proceeding and the aims and objectives of criminal law enforcement.

- Whether a strong relationship exists between the policy underlying the exclusionary rule and the administrative proceedings.

- Whether the magnitude of societal costs that might result from extending the exclusionary rule to the proceeding would be significant.

- Whether the evidence was obtained under circumstances that "shock the conscience" to the point that due process considerations could not countenance any governmental use of the evidence.

The exclusionary rule has not yet been applied in license revocation proceedings [see Emslie v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 210, 229, 113 Cal. Rptr. 175, 520 P.2d 991 (procedural due process does not require application of exclusionary rule to state bar disciplinary proceedings because there would be no deterrent effect on law enforcement officers if the rule were applied); Pating v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 608, 623-626, 182 Cal. Rptr. 20 (balancing public protection against possible deterrent effect on law enforcement officers, exclusionary rule not applicable in disciplinary proceeding against doctor)].

Under federal law, the exclusionary rule has not been applied to several types of administrative proceedings [United States v. Janis (1976) 428 U.S. 433, 447, 49 L. Ed. 2d 1046, 96 S. Ct. 3021 (federal civil tax assessment proceeding); I.N.S. v. Lopez-Mendoza (1984) 468 U.S. 1032, 1052, 104 S. Ct. 3479, 82 L. Ed. 2d 778 (INS civil deportation proceeding)].

[b] Subpoenas

As discussed in Ch. 471, Public Agency Investigations , an agency may issue a subpoena duces tecum to inspect business books or records as part of its investigative powers. Such a subpoena will not violate *Fourth Amendment constitution*al protections against unreasonable searches and seizures as long as the following conditions are met [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462] :

- The demanding agency is authorized to make the inquiry.

- The inquiry is not too indefinite.

- The information sought is reasonably relevant to the subject of the inquiry.

If the personal privacy interest of third parties is involved, however, as for example when an agency requests the personal medical records of patients treated by a physician who is under investigation, the agency will be required to show that a compelling government interest at stake and that the request is the least intrusive means of satisfying this compelling interest [Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1148, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811 ; see Ch. 471, Public Agency Investigations, §§ 471.30[5], 471.32[2][e]].

[2] Privilege Against Self-Incrimination

An administrative agency inspection of business books and records may give rise to a constitutional claim for violation of the protection against self-incrimination [see Ch. 471, Public Agency Investigations, § 471.11[4]]. Since the "required records" doctrine was handed down in the case of Shapiro v. United States (1947) 335 U.S. 1, 32-35, 68 S. Ct. 1375, 92 L. Ed. 1787 , however, warrantless inspections generally are valid against a claimof self-incrimination when a statute requires certain records to be maintained, and an agency is authorized to inspect those records. Moreover, corporations and most other business entities are not entitled to assert the privilege as to their business records [see Ch. 471, Public Agency Investigations, § 471.11[4]].

[3] Requirement of Due Process

Even an otherwise permissible search may be conducted in a manner so unreasonable as to violate an individual's due process rights. The U.S. Supreme Court has indicated, for example, that the otherwise constitutional home visitation requirements of a state welfare system would not pass constitutional muster if the visit in question was an "early morning mass raid" on the home of a welfare recipient [Wyman v. James (1971) 400 U.S. 309, 326, 91 S. Ct. 381, 27 L. Ed. 2d 408] .

41-471A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471A.14

§ 471A.14 Obtaining Judicial Relief From Unlawful Inspections

[1] Injunctions

Although no express provision exists for it in either the injunction [see Civ. Code §§ 3420-3423; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 525-534], or administrative inspection warrant [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1822.50-1822.59] statutes, it is clear that an injured party may obtain injunctive relief from an agency inspection when the inspection exceeds the agency's authority. An injunction may be granted to prevent an agency from breaching an obligation [see Civ. Code § 1427 (an obligation is a legal duty, etc.)] that it owes to the party applying for the injunction if pecuniary compensation would not afford that party adequate relief [Civ. Code § 3422(1); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(4)]. This principle clearly applies to the acts of state agencies. Unavailable money damages are obviously not adequate relief, and the California Tort Claims Act (Gov. Code § 810 et seq.) provides that public entities are not liable in tort for injuries they cause (except as otherwise provided by statute) [Gov. Code § 815(a); see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act , for discussion of the California Tort Claim Act]. The Tort Claims Act does not, however, limit the right to obtain relief ot her than money or damages against a public entity or public employee [Gov. Code § 814]. Relief other than money includes injunctions [see Senate Legislative Committee Comment on Gov. Code § 814 (right to relief other than money means that, for example, there is a right to enjoin the enforcement of unconstitutional statutes even though public entities are immune from liability for enforcing such statutes)].

Although a court may not ordinarily interfere with legislative or discretionary acts of a public entity, public entities may be enjoined from "acting, or proposing to act, in excess of their jurisdiction and without authority" [San Ysidro Irr. Dist. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 708, 719-720, 16 Cal. Rptr. 609, 365 P.2d 753 (injunction of irrigation district upheld)]. Similarly, although it is unlawful to enjoin the execution of a public statute by officers of the law for the public benefit [Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(4); Civ. Code § 3423(d)], this limitation does not apply in the following circumstances [see Ch. 303, Injunctions]:

- The statute being enforced is invalid or unconstitutional [Conover v. Hall (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 842, 850, 114 Cal. Rptr. 642, 523 P.2d 682] .

- The statute is being applied to a matter outside its terms [MacLeod v. City of Los Altos (1960) 182

Cal. App. 2d 364, 369-370, 6 Cal. Rptr. 326] .

- The officer has exceeded his or her authority [Financial Indem. Co. v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 395, 402, 289 P.2d 233] .

- A facially valid statute is being unconstitutionally applied [Brock v. Superior Court (1939) 12 Cal. 2d 605, 610, 86 P.2d 805] .

Thus, for example, law enforcement officers may be enjoined from interfering with another's business by acts that are beyond their authority or beyond the proper scope of their duties [Crittenden v. Superior Court (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 565, 568, 39 Cal. Rptr. 380, 393 P.2d 692 ; Uptown Enterprises v. Strand (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 53, 15 Cal. Rptr. 486] .

An injunction is the proper remedy for threatened repeated acts of trespass [Slater v. Pacific American Oil Co. (1931) 212 Cal. 648, 655, 300 P. 31 ; Uptown Enterprises v. Strand (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 52, 15 Cal. Rptr. 486] , as well as for completed acts that will probably recur [Rosicrucian Fellow. v. Rosicrucian Etc. Ch. (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 121, 144, 245 P.2d 481 ; Fretz v. Burke (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 741, 744, 55 Cal. Rptr. 879] . This is because the recurrence of the wrong means that money damages would not be an adequate relief without a multiplicity of suits [Slater v. Pacific American Oil Co. (1931) 212 Cal. 648, 655, 300 P. 31] . Preventing a multiplicity of suits, like the inadequacy of money damages, is grounds for an injuction [Civ. Code § 3422(1), (3); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(4), (6)].

A regulated business faced with an agency that claims the right to make inspections that exceed its authority is in a very strong position to claim that these wrongs will recur and that any trespass involved in the inspections will be repeated. The right to enjoin threatened acts of trespass by law enforcement officers acting beyond the scope of their proper duties is measured by the same standard as the right to enjoin similar acts by other persons [Uptown Enterprises v. Strand (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 45, 53, 15 Cal. Rptr. 486] .

If law enforcement officers can be enjoined when acting beyond their authority, it seems clear that agency investigators engaged in unlawfulinspections can also be enjoined. Once an agency begins an administrative proceeding to penalize alleged violations discovered during an unlawful inspection, however, the accused is probably required to challenge the legality of the inspection in the administrative proceeding itself, because judicial relief from administrative action is not available until administrative remedies have been exhausted. This requirement applies even when the accused wishes to challenge the jurisdiction of the agency or the constitutionality of the laws under which it acts [Tushner v. Griesinger (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 599, 605-606, 341 P.2d 416] .

For a complaint form that may be used by the subject of an unlawful administrative investigation to seek injunctive relief, see Ch. 471, Public Agency Investigations, § 471.70. For a complaint form that may be used by a taxpayer to sue to enjoin an unlawful administrative investigation to prevent the waste of public funds, see Ch. 471, Public Agency Investigations, § 471.71 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 526a (taxpayer action to prevent illegal expenditure or waste of public funds or property)].

[2] Writ of Mandate

After the completion of the administrative proceeding, the accused may apply for a writ of mandate to challenge both the administrative decision and the legality of the inspection. When a writ is issued for the purpose of inquiring into the validity of a final administrative order or decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a)], the issues include whether the agency proceeded without, or in excess of, jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)]. For a discussion of administrative mandate proceedings, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

[3] Damages

An unlawful administrative search may give rise to an action for damages [see Silva v. MacAuley (1933) 135 Cal. App. 249, 253, 26 P.2d 887 ; Ryan v. Crist (1914) 23 Cal. App. 744, 745, 139 P. 436] , including exemplary damages in an appropriate case [see Civ. Code § 3294]. However, public employees are immune from liability for injuries caused by their nonnegligent acts in executing or enforcing any law [Gov. Code § 820.4] and for injuries caused by entering property pursuant to express or implicit legal authorization [Gov. Code § 821.8]. In other cases, unless similarly immunized by statute, public employees are liable for injuries caused by their acts and omissions, to the same extent as are private persons [Gov. Code § 820(a)]. An administrative agency is liable for injuries caused by the acts or omissions of an employee if (1) the act or omission occurred within the scope of employment and (2) the employee, or his or her personal representative, is liable [Gov. Code § 815.2(a)].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to actions for damages against public employees and agencies, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

If an unlawful administrative search entails deprivation of federal constitutional rights, an action for appropriate relief may be brought in a state court pursuant to the Civil Rights Act of 1871 (42 U.S.C. § 1983) [Brown v. Pitchess (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 518, 521-523, 119 Cal. Rptr. 204, 531 P.2d 772] . A state or county may not be sued under the Civil Rights Act of 1871 for damages, as it is not a "person" within the meaning of the act [see Diamond v. Pitchess (9th Cir. 1969) 411 F.2d 565, 567 ; Taylor v. Mitzel (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 665, 670, 147 Cal. Rptr. 323] . Similarly, a civil rights action for damages under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 cannot be brought against an administrative agency of a state [Sykes v. California (Dep't of Motor Vehicles) (9th Cir. 1974) 497 F.2d 197, 201-202 (Department of Motor Vehicles not a "person" within meaning of act; overruled on other grounds in Life Ins. Co. of N. America v. Reichardt (9th Cir. 1979) 591 F.2d 499, 503 n. 7); see Heath v. Redbud Hosp. Dist. (ND Cal. 1977) 436 F. Supp. 766, 767-768] . The court in Sykes partially relied on Monroe v. Pape (1961) 365 U.S. 167, 189-192, 81 S. Ct. 473, 5 L. Ed. 2d 492 , which held municipalities to be immune from suit under the act. However, the Monroe was overruled in Monell v. Dep't of Soc. Servs. (1978) 436 U.S. 658, 663, 694-695, 701, 98 S. Ct. 2018, 56 L. Ed. 2d 611 , in which the United States Supreme Court determined that local governments are not absolutely immune from civil liability under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. The Court stated that when execution of a government's policy or custom, whether made by its lawmakers or by those whose edicts or acts may fairly be said to represent official policy, inflicts an injury, the government as an entity is responsible under 42 U.S.C. § 1983.

The Court extended the holding of Monell in Owen v. City of Independence (1980) 445 U.S. 622, 638, 657, 100 S. Ct. 1398, 63 L. Ed. 2d 673 , in which it held that municipalities do not have any qualified immunity for good-faith constitutional violations under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Nevertheless, since the Monell and Owen decisions involved only suits against local governments and municipalities, it is not clear if these decisions change the rule that state agencies and states are immune from liability for damages under the Civil Rights Act. It should be noted that governmental agencies may be sued for injunctive relief alone under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 to prevent continuing violations of federal statutes [Ybarra v. Los Altos Hills (N.D. Cal. 1973) 370 F. Supp. 742, 746] . Employees of public agencies are subject to suit under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 [see, e.g., Ybarra v. Los Altos Hills (9th Cir. 1974) 503 F.2d 250, 252-253] .

[4] Suppression of Evidence

Evidence obtained by administrative personnel during an unconstitutional search may not be used in a criminal trial [Dyas v. Superior Court (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 628, 635-636, 114 Cal. Rptr. 114, 522 P.2d 674 ; see People v. Scott (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 723, 727, 117 Cal. Rptr. 925] , regardless of whether it was the defendant or some other person whose rights were violated by the search [see Kaplan v. Superior Court (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 150, 155-161, 98 Cal. Rptr. 649, 491 P.2d 1 ("vicarious exclusionary rule"); People v. Martin (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 755, 761, 290 P.2d 855] . On the other hand, if an administrative search is valid, then whatever evidence of crime is discovered may be used in a subsequent criminal trial [see, e.g., People v. Hyde (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 158, 166, 115 Cal. Rptr. 358, 524 P.2d 830] . Evidence obtained during an unconstitutional administrative search might also be held inadmissible in a civil trial [see City & County of San Francisco v. City Inv. Corp. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 1031, 1039, 93 Cal. Rptr. 690 (objection to admission of evidence properly overruled when evidence in plain view)].

Illegally obtained evidence might be admissible in administrative adjudicative proceedings [see In re Martinez (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 641, 649-650, 83 Cal. Rptr. 382, 463 P.2d 734 ; Governing Board v. Metcalf (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 546, 549, 111 Cal. Rptr. 724] , but an agency is barred from using evidence obtained by entrapment and other evidence "inconsistent with the dignity of its proceedings and the fair administration of justice" [Patty v. Board of Medical Examiners (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 356, 364-365, 107 Cal. Rptr. 473, 508 P.2d 1121 ; Redner v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 83, 94-97, 95 Cal. Rptr. 447, 485 P.2d 799] .

[1] Administrative Searches

Fourth Amendment is applicable to states through Fourteenth Amendment. Mapp v. Ohio (1961) 367 U.S. 643, 655, 81 S. Ct. 1684, 6 L. Ed. 2d 1081, 86 Ohio Law Abs. 513

Fourth Amendment requirements are applicable to all government agents, not just criminal law enforcement officers. Camara v. Municipal Court (1967) 387 U.S. 523, 528, 87 S. Ct. 1727, 18 L. Ed. 2d 930

Components of administrative search are intrusion into area reasonably regarded as private by government agent for regulatory purpose. Camara v. Municipal Court (1967) 387 U.S. 523, 528-529, 87 S. Ct. 1727, 18 L. Ed. 2d 930 ; People v. Hyde (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 158, 165, 115 Cal. Rptr. 358, 524 P.2d 830 ; Lorenzana v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 626, 639, 108 Cal. Rptr. 585, 511 P.2d 33 ; Vidaurri v. Superior Court (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 550, 552, 91 Cal. Rptr. 704

[2] Warrant Required

Warrantless search is justifiable on theory of implied consent by regulated person. Paladini v. Superior Court (1918) 178 Cal. 369, 373, 173 P. 588 ; Cooley v. State Bd. of Funeral Directors (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 293, 298, 296 P.2d 588 ; People v. White (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 936, 942, 259 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 936 , 259 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 936, 65 Cal. Rptr. 923

Warrantless search is justifiable on theory of diminished or absent expectations of privacy. United States v. Biswell (1972) 406 U.S. 311, 316, 92 S. Ct. 1593, 32 L. Ed. 2d 87 ; City & County of San Francisco v. City Investment Corp. (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 1031, 1039, 93 Cal. Rptr. 690

Burden of justifying search is on government if victim shows lack of warrant. People v. Lanthier (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 751, 755, 97 Cal. Rptr. 297, 488 P.2d 625 ; Horack v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 720, 725, 91 Cal. Rptr. 569, 478 P.2d 1

[3] Warrantless Inspections

Health & Safety Code § 1597.556, which authorizes unannounced and warrantless inspections of family day care homes, does not violate U.S. Const., amend. IV, because 22 Cal. Code Reg. § 88030 restricts areas to be searched to those where children have access and limits hours at which searches may be conducted to those during which family day care takes place. Rush v. Obledo (9th Cir. 1985) 756 F.2d 713, 721-722

Health & Safety Code § 1596.852, which permits general warrantless searches at any time of any place providing care and supervision to children, violates U.S. Const., amend. IV, because statute is unlimited by current regulations. Rush v. Obledo (9th Cir. 1985) 756 F.2d 713, 721-722

Veh. Code § 2805, permitting warrantless searches of auto dismantling yards by Highway Patrol for purpose of locating stolen vehicles, does not authorize general searches of dismantling yard premises. Lewis v. McMasters (9th Cir. 1981) 663 F.2d 954, 955

Search is exploratory investigation, invasion and quest, looking for and seeking out. Bielicki v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 602, 605, 21 Cal. Rptr. 552, 371 P.2d 288

Search includes electronic eavesdropping and visual observation. Lorenzana v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 626, 639, 108 Cal. Rptr. 585, 511 P.2d 33

Fourth Amendment protection extends to any place where victim had reasonable expectation of privacy. Katz v. United States (1967) 389 U.S. 347, 351, 88 S. Ct. 507, 19 L. Ed. 2d 576 ; People v. Dumas (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 871, 881-883, 109 Cal. Rptr. 304, 512 P.2d 1208 ; Lorenzana v. Superior Court (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 626, 637, 108 Cal. Rptr. 585, 511 P.2d 33

[4] Exceptions to Warrant Requirement

Warrantless search is not invalid if conducted pursuant to consent. Camara v. Municipal Court (1967) 387 U.S. 523, 528-529, 87 S. Ct. 1727, 18 L. Ed. 2d 930 ; See v. Seattle (1967) 387 U.S. 541, 545, 87 S. Ct. 1737, 18 L. Ed. 2d 943 ; United States v. Thriftimart, Inc. (9th Cir. 1970) 429 F.2d 1006, 1010 ; *Parrish v. Civil Service Com. Right to Fourth Amendment protection against search of dwelling is not dependent on property interest but is dependent instead on reasonable expectations of privacy. Mancusi v. DeForte (1968) 392 U.S. 364, 368, 88 S. Ct. 2120, 20 L. Ed. 2d 1154 ; Jones v. United States (1960) 362 U.S. 257, 266, 80 S. Ct. 725, 4 L. Ed. 2d 697

[c] Exigent Circumstances

Warrantless administrative search is validated by emergency requiring search immediately. Camara v. Municipal Court (1967) 387 U.S. 523, 539, 87 S. Ct. 1727, 18 L. Ed. 2d 930 ; People v. Lanthier (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 751, 755-756, 97 Cal. Rptr. 297, 488 P.2d 625 ; People v. Roberts (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 374, 377, 303 P.2d 721

[d] Pervasively Regulated Industries

Reasonableness of search is determined by balancing governmental need against individual's right of privacy. United States v. Biswell (1972) 406 U.S. 311, 316-317, 92 S. Ct. 1593, 32 L. Ed. 2d 87 ; Camara v. Municipal Court (1967) 387 U.S. 523, 536-537, 87 S. Ct. 1727, 18 L. Ed. 2d 930 ; People v. Hyde (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 158, 166, 115 Cal. Rptr. 358, 524 P.2d 830

Requirement of reasonableness is applicable whether or not search is authorized by statute. Youghiogheny & Ohio Coal Co. v. Morton (S.D. Ohio 1973) 364 F. Supp. 45, 50, 41 Ohio Misc. 6

Warrantless inspection of closely regulated business premises is unreasonable unless (1) there is substantial governmental interest that informs regulatory scheme pursuant to which inspection is made; (2) warrantless inspections are necessary to further regulatory scheme; and (3) statutory inspection program, in terms of certainty and regularity of its application, provides constitutionally adequate substitute for warrant. People v. Paulson (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1480, 1485, 265 Cal. Rptr. 579

Warrantless administrative search of regulated person's business premises is permissible if authorized by statute. United States v. Biswell (1972) 406 U.S. 311, 317, 92 S. Ct. 1593, 32 L. Ed. 2d 87

30 U.S.C. § 813(a), authorizing warrantless inspections of undergroundand surface mines pursuant to Federal Mine

Safety and Health Act of 1977, does not violate Fourth Amendment prohibition against unreasonable searches and seizures. Donovan v. Dewey (1981) 452 U.S. 594, 601-605, 101 S. Ct. 2534, 69 L. Ed. 2d 262

Mere fact that administrative search was conducted pursuant to administrative statute that proscribed criminal conduct does not make search unconstitutional. People v. Paulson (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1480, 1485-1486, 265 Cal. Rptr. 579

Acceptance of license required to operate skilled nursing facility does carry with it burden of submission to inspections which reasonably further enforcement of regulatory scheme of health care industry; consequently, warrantless health department inspection of nursing home's business records was constitutional. People v. Firstenberg (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 570, 574, 581, 155 Cal. Rptr. 80

Authorization in statute is not required to be specific. People v. Maxwell (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 1026, 1028-1029, 275 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 1026 , 275 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 1026, 80 Cal. Rptr. 86

Authorization is required to be reasonably limited in scope. United States v. Biswell (1972) 406 U.S. 311, 315, 92 S. Ct. 1593, 32 L. Ed. 2d 87 ; United States ex rel. Terraciano v. Montanye (2nd Cir. 1974) 493 F.2d 682, 684-685

Exceeding statutory authority invalidates search. Colonnade Catering Corp. v. United States (1970) 397 U.S. 72, 76-77, 90 S. Ct. 774, 25 L. Ed. 2d 60 ; People v. Lisner (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 637, 642, 57 Cal. Rptr. 674

[e] Public Facilities

Indiscriminate screening of potential users of public facilities, without warrants, is permissible. United States v. Davis (9th Cir. 1973) 482 F.2d 893, 895-896 ; United States v. Schafer (9th Cir. 1972] 461 F.2d 856, 858-859 ; Downing v. Kunzig (6th Cir. 1972) 454 F.2d 1230, 1232-1233 ; People v. Hyde (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 158, 115 Cal. Rptr. 358, 524 P.2d 830 ; Morad v. Superior Court (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 436, 439-442, 118 Cal. Rptr. 519

[f] Welfare Cases

Constitutionality of conditioning receipt of welfare benefits on acquiescence to warrantless administrative searches in form of home visits. Wyman v. James (1971) 400 U.S. 309, 317, 91 S. Ct. 381, 27 L. Ed. 2d 408 ; Parrish v. Civil Serv. Comm'n (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 260, 268-271, 57 Cal. Rptr. 623, 425 P.2d 223

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Nature and Powers of Governmental Licensing

41-471B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471B.10

§ 471B.10 Nature of Governmental Licensing

A licensing law is an exercise of the police power of government [see Binford v. Boyd (1918) 178 Cal. 458, 462, 174 P. 56 ; Western Indem. Co. v. Pillsbury (1915) 170 Cal. 686, 694, 151 P. 398 ; Pennington v. Bonelli (1936) 15 Cal. App. 2d 316, 319-320, 59 P.2d 448] . Some business license laws are enacted under the taxing power, however [see discussion in § 471B.12[2]].

The most notable subjects of licensing laws are those relating to various professions and vocations [see discussion in § 471B.12[6]]. Licensing laws cover many other diverse activities, however, including marriage, driving motor vehicles, diverting streams, and transporting explosives.

A licensing law is not necessarily a unified enactment. The whole of a particular licensing law might be contained in a number of separate code sections and supplemental administrative regulations [see, e.g., West Covina Enterprises, Inc. v. Chalmers (1958) 49 Cal. 2d 754, 758-761, 322 P.2d 13] , or set out partially in the Constitution [see, e.g., Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22 (alcoholic beverage licensing)] or initiative measures [see, e.g., Stats. 1923, p. xx (Chiropractic Act)]. In some cases, provisions of two different licensing laws might have to be read together [see, e.g., Barondon Corp. v. Nakawatase (1961) 196 Cal. App. 2d 392, 393, 398, 16 Cal. Rptr. 472] . A licensing law does not necessarily refer to licenses; it may take the form of a revenue law [see discussion in § 471B.12[1], [2]] or use some other such as permit or franchise [see Copt-Air v. City of San Diego (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 984, 987-988, 93 Cal. Rptr. 649] .

The application for and the denial, suspension, and revocation of licenses are generally governed by Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 460 and 475 et seq.. For a list of statutes requiring licenses for particular businesses and professions, see the Appendix at the end of this chapter (§ 471B.140 et seq.).

However it may be drafted, whatever form it might take, and whether or not it consists of many separate parts, every licensing law has three essential elements:

- A licensing law describes a class of persons to whom it applies by defining an activity in which these persons might engage. The law applies to all who engage in that activity [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code §

4050 (specifying activities that may only be performed by registered pharmacist)].

- A licensing law provides that anyone who engages in the subject activity without a license is guilty of an offense [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 4380 et seq. (penalties for violation of registration requirements for pharmacists)].

- A licensing law, therefore, necessarily provides for obtaining a license [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 4110 et seq. (procedure for becoming registered pharmacist and obtaining permit to operate pharmacy)].

Provisions respecting the obtaining of a license cover three related subjects. First, there is the necessary matter of setting up a means of administering the law: either establishing a new agency or assigning administration to an existing agency. Second, licensing standards must be selected and defined. Third, a licensing procedure must be prescribed. Licensing standards and procedure are often left in large part to the discretion of the responsible agency [see Ex Parte McManus (1907) 151 Cal. 331, 337, 90 P. 702] .

Licensing laws regulating an activity of a continuing nature usually also cover a fourth and fifth element. In these instances, the fourth element usually provides for periodic renewal of licenses; the purpose is sometimes regulatory but generally is only to raise revenue to fund administration of the law [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 4401 (renewal of pharmacist's registration)]. The fifth element covers suspension or revocation of a license when the licensee violates a prescribed code of conduct, providing the standards comprising the code of conduct, the agency responsible for enforcing the standards, and the procedures to be followed by the agency [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 4300 et seq. (disciplinary procedure for suspending or revoking license of registered pharmacist)]. In a few instances the disciplinary aspect of a licensing law will include provisions for the imposition of financial penalties in addition to suspension or revocation of the license [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 4331 (monetary fine imposed when pharmacist fails to keep prescription file as required by law)].

Disciplinary procedure, when included in a licensing law, is often that provided by the Administrative Procedure Act or APA (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), the a general administrative procedural law [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 4300(e) (disciplinary proceeding against pharmacist is governed by APA)].

Licensing laws that usually do not have the fourth and fifth elements discussed above are those relating to activities that are not of a continuing nature, for example, the marriage license law [Fam. Code §§ 306, 350 et seq.]. Most permit laws fall into this category.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Nature and Powers of Governmental Licensing

41-471B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471B.11

§ 471B.11 Status of License

[1] General Requirements

A government regulatory license is a privilege. The word "privilege" means a private law. In ancient Rome, a privilegium was an imperial grant, to some individual, of an extraordinary right [see Black's Law Dictionary (5th ed. 1979) at 1079]. The effect of a privilegium was to clothe the person, for whose benefit the law was decreed, with immunity from punishment to which others, not beneficiaries of the special law, were liable if they undertook to do what the favored person was privileged to do. A licensing law creates the modern equivalent of the privilegium.

If there were no licensing laws, anyone would have a right to do whatever is not prohibited. By enacting a licensing law, the government obliterates everyone's right to engage in the subject activity and empowers an administrative agency to restore that right to individual members of an objectively defined class. The definitive criteria are the licensing standards. Thus, a license, like the ancient privilegium, is the government's grant of an extraordinary right to an individual. A license is the functional equivalent of a private law enabling some individual to do with impunity what anyone else would do only at the risk of being punished. In short, a license is a privilege [see Galvan v. Superior Court (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 851, 856, 76 Cal. Rptr. 642, 452 P.2d 930 ; Garcia v. Halsett (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 319, 324, 82 Cal. Rptr. 420] .

[2] Due Process Protections

Unlike the imperial privilegium, as discussed in [1], above, a regulatory license is not subject to being given and taken away at the whim of the sovereign. The federal and state Constitutions interpose between the government and the individual a guaranty that no person shall be deprived of liberty or property without due process [U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1; Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a)].

With respect to governmental licensing for regulatory purposes, this guaranty has several meanings. First, it means that when the government imposes a regulatory licensing program, the qualifications for a license must be specified so that everyone may know what they are, and those qualifications must not be unreasonable [see Perrine v. Municipal Court (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 656, 661-663, 97 Cal. Rptr. 320, 488 P.2d 648] .

Second, the guaranty means that anyone having those qualifications is entitled to a fair and reasonable chance to show that he or she has them, and that on showing his or her qualifications and paying any prescribed, but not unreasonable, license fee, an applicant is entitled (that is, has a right) to receive a license [see Andrews v. State Board of Registration (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 685, 692-694, 267 P.2d 352] .

Third, the guaranty of due process means that no individual license may be taken away, either temporarily or permanently, except for some reasonable cause rationally established by a procedure that reasonably permits the licensee to present evidence and argue against taking away the license [see Endler v. Schutzbank (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 162, 170-173, 65 Cal. Rptr. 297, 436 P.2d 297 ; Fascination, Inc. v. Hoover (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 260, 271, 246 P.2d 656] .

Thus, although a license is essentially the grant of privilege, constitutional due process protections confer a right to obtain or retain that privilege by meeting rational and reasonable prescribed requirements.

For more detailed discussion of procedural due process protections, as they apply to public agencies, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Nature and Powers of Governmental Licensing

41-471B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471B.12

§ 471B.12 Types of Licensing Laws

[1] Revenue Laws

A law might purport to be a revenue law yet actually may be a licensing law, and vice versa; for example, local business license laws are in fact revenue laws [see discussion in [2], below]. It is common knowledge that the taxing power can be used effectively for regulation in lieu of the police power [see, e.g., United States v. Kahriger (1953) 345 U.S. 22, 27-28, 73 S. Ct. 510, 97 L. Ed. 754 (occupational tax on gamblers; overruled on other grounds in Marchetti v. United States (1968) 390 U.S. 39, 54, 88 S. Ct. 697, 19 L. Ed. 2d 889); City of Glendale v. Trondsen (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 93, 103, 308 P.2d 1] . Moreover, nearly every true licensing law includes a revenue provision requiring the payment of a license fee [see discussion in § 471B.27].

A revenue law will be upheld regardless of its regulatory effect, even if a regulatory purpose is evident, provided it taxes an activity that is subject to the government's taxing power and does not contravene the guaranties of equal protection and due process or any specific constitutional provision respecting the taxing power [see, e.g., United States v. Sanchez (1950) 340 U.S. 42, 44-45, 71 S. Ct. 108, 95 L. Ed. 47] .

[2] Local Business License Laws

Municipalities are empowered to raise revenue by imposing a license requirement on local businesses [see Gov. Code § 37101]. To call such a taxing scheme a licensing scheme is misleading, since the only purpose is to raise revenue, and regulation is not involved [see Cooper v. Michael (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 176, 179, 64 Cal. Rptr. 842 ; Citrus Belt S. & L. Assn. v. California Franchise Tax Bd. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 584, 590, 32 Cal. Rptr. 579] . The distinction is most evident in the rule that an activity subject to state licensing requirements may also be subject to local business license requirements, that is, it may also be taxed locally [San Francisco v. Insurance Co. (1887) 74 Cal. 113, 122, 15 P. 380] . Moreover, the license fee collected locally, being in fact a tax, need have no relation to the cost of regulating the business or activity taxed, whereas the fee payable to a regulatory agency for a license must be reasonably related to the costs of regulation [McAdams Oil Co. v. Los Angeles (1939) 32 Cal. App. 2d 359, 363, 89 P.2d 729] .

When a local government intends to regulate an activity instead of taxing it, a permit is generally required, so-called to distinguish the government's intent to regulate rather than to license (i.e., tax) the activity [see, e.g., In re Groves (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 154, 156, 4 Cal. Rptr. 844, 351 P.2d 1028 , cert. denied sub nom., Groves v. Kettmann (1960) 364 U.S. 900, 81 S. Ct. 238, 5 L. Ed. 2d 196] .

A local ordinance requiring payment of a license fee is operative only within the territorial limits of the municipality, and affects only those engaged in the business or profession with those limits [Franklin v. Peterson (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 727, 730, 197 P.2d 788] . For forms of complaint and allegation for use in alleging the invalidity of a license tax on the ground that the plaintiff was not doing business in the municipality, see §§ 471B.182, 471B.185.

[3] Land Use Planning Laws

Land-use laws such as zoning laws and local building permit laws are licensing laws. Similar state laws such as the California Coastal Act of 1976 (Pub. Res. Code § 30000 et seq.) are also licensing laws. Variances and conditional-use permits are special kinds of licenses, for example.

Land-use planning is, however, a distinct area of law treated separately in Ch. 579, Zoning and Planning. See also the more detailed discussion and forms in California Real Estate Law And Practice, Ch. 250, Development of Land Use Control in California et seq. (Matthew Bender).

[4] Securities Regulation Laws

The Corporate Securities Law of 1968 (Corp. Code § 25000 et seq.) and similar state and federal laws regulating transactions in securities or other investment devices can be, and often are to some extent, licensing laws. For instance, a permit is required for certain securities transactions [see, e.g., Corp. Code § 25121].

Securities regulation is, however, a distinct area of the law treated, together with franchise regulation, in Ch. 515, Securities and Franchise Regulation. See also the transaction-oriented coverage in California Legal Forms, Vol. 2, Ch. 6, Corporate Securities (Matthew Bender), and Ballantine & Sterling, California Corporation Laws (Matthew Bender).

[5] Proprietary Licenses

A government, particularly a local government, may be engaged in proprietary activities, such as operating an opera house. Individuals and corporations engaged in proprietary activities may give licenses to others; for example, the owner of land may give a license to another to enter and use it, and the owner of a patent may give licenses to manufacturers to make the product or use the formula or design in question. Governments may do the same, to the extent of being engaged in proprietary activities. A proprietary license is merely permission from the proprietor to use his or her property. In giving such a license, a government does not assume regulatory power over the license holder but must, as must any other proprietor, look to the law governing property and contracts, and private rights generally, in the event the license holder abuses his or her privilege [see Copt-Air v. City of San Diego (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 984, 988-989, 93 Cal. Rptr. 649 (permission to land helicopters on city property is proprietary license)].

While a proprietary licensee is protected by the law of contracts against the proprietor's (government's) unilateral modification of his or her rights under the license, a regulatory licensee has no such protection. A regulatory license is not a contract. The government is free to charge or increase the requirements it imposes on regulatory licensees, and to make the new requirement applicable to present licensees as well as future licensees [see Serenko v. Bright (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 682, 686-687, 70 Cal. Rptr. 1 (implied consent law requiring blood alcohol tests of drivers suspected of drunk driving is constitutional when applied to drivers licensed before law took effect); Castleman v. Scudder (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 737, 740, 185 P.2d 35 ; In re Carlson (1927) 87 Cal. App. 584, 588-589, 262 P. 792] .

For further discussion of patent rights, including patent licensing agreements, see Ch. 411, Patents and Inventions . For discussion of trademarks and trade names, including the licensing of trademarks, see Ch. 549, Trademarks and Trade Names .

[6] Professional and Vocational Licenses

When a profession or occupation (that is, a means of earning a living) is one of which it can be fairly said that those pursuing it should have particular qualifications, it is within the power, and ordinarily is the duty, of the Legislature or other law-enacting body to exact reasonable assurances of those pursuing the profession or occupation that they do possess such qualifications [In re Porterfield (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 91, 99-100, 168 P.2d 706] .

A licensing law may also prohibit particular combinations of license holders for business purposes. For example, combinations between licensed physicians and dispensing opticians or pharmacists are forbidden [Bus. & Prof. Code § 654; Magan Medical Clinic v. Cal. State Bd. of Medical Examiners (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 124, 128-143, 57 Cal. Rptr. 256 ; see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 654.1, 655].

On judicial review of a licensing statute, the test is whether the challenged law reasonably relates to a legitimate governmental interest. The strict scrutiny test, which might sometimes be given to statutes that impact on employment, is generally not applicable in challenges to licensure qualification when the profession at issue is one whose technical complexity and intimate relationship to the public interest and welfare require greater deference to the legislative judgment. The rational relationship test applies to both equal protection and due process challenges [Horeczko v. State Bd. of Registration (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1352, 1358-1359, 284 Cal. Rptr. 149 (challenge to statutory requirement that registration as a civil engineer is required for licensure as geotechnical engineer, regardless of individual's practical professional experience)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Nature and Powers of Governmental Licensing

41-471B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471B.13

§ 471B.13 Governmental Licensing Power

[1] Subjects of Licensing Power

[a] General Rules

Except to the extent it is constitutionally forbidden to interfere with personal liberties or to legislate on particular subjects, the Legislature has plenary power to make any activity the subject of a licensing law [see Fitts v. Superior Court (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 230, 234, 57 P.2d 510 (Legislature's power is not granted, only restricted, by Constitution)]. As used in Bus. & Prof. Code § 475 et seq. relating to the denial, suspension, and revocation of licenses, the term "license" includes a certificate, registration, or other means to engage in a business or profession regulated by the Business and Professions Code [Bus. & Prof. Code § 477(b)].

The power of a county board of supervisors or city council to enact a licensing law [see Cal. Const., art. XI, §§ 5(a) (charter city), 7 (other city, county)] extends to the same subjects that the Legislature's power embraces [Carlin v. City of Palm Springs (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 706, 711,92 Cal. Rptr. 535] , but can operate only within the county or city limits [see Harriman v. City of Beverly Hills (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 918, 926, 80 Cal. Rptr. 426] . The Legislature, however, has more freedom of choice in the exercise of its power [see discussion under [2], below].

[b] Use of Public Property

[i] Streets and Parks

Except to the extent it is specifically restrained by the Constitution [see, e.g., Cal. Const., art. I, § 25 (right to fish public lands and waters)], the government's police power extends to regulating (that is, licensing) the use of public property by private persons. With respect to the use of streets and places such as parks where persons can congregate, the government's legitimate regulatory interest is confined to protecting public health and safety, maintaining traffic with minimal interruption, and preserving the right of every person to go about in public places with maximum freedom of movement [see Shuttlesworth v. City of Birmingham (1969) 394 U.S. 147, 152, 89 S. Ct. 935, 22 L. Ed. 2d 162 ; San Francisco Street Artists Guild v. Scott (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 667, 674, 112 Cal. Rptr. 502] . In regulating the use of streets and other public places, the government must necessarily balance the competing interests of those who would simply travel on the streets or walk about in parks and those who would do more, such as parade or hold meetings and demonstrations [see Dillon v. Municipal Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 860, 868, 94 Cal. Rptr. 777, 484 P.2d 945] . Streets and parks have traditionally been places where citizens can and do exercise the rights of free speech and assembly, and the liberty of citizens to congregate in public places is constitutionally protected [see Hague v. C.I.O. (1939) 307 U.S. 496, 515-516, 59 S. Ct. 954, 83 L. Ed. 1423 ; People v. Duffy (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 875, 882-886, 79 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 875 , 179 P.2d 876] .

A parade or demonstration may be, and often is, recognized as a means of exercising the freedom of speech, as well as the freedom of assembly; hence, governmental regulation of parades and demonstrations often may be, and in the typical case is, subject to limitations embodied in the principles of U.S. Const., amend. I [see Shuttlesworth v. City of Birmingham (1969) 394 U.S. 147, 152, 89 S. Ct. 935, 22 L. Ed. 2d 162 ; People v. Duffy (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 875, 885, 79 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 875 , 179 P.2d 876] .

The government may not regulate the message or the communicative aspect of a parade or demonstration, but it may regulate where and when citizens congregate and move en masse, notwithstanding that the freedoms of speech and assembly might incidentally be curtailed to some extent, provided objective criteria for regulation are set up and licenses (parade permits, for example) cannot be withheld on administrative whim [see United States v. O'Brien (1968) 391 U.S. 367, 376-377, 88 S. Ct. 1673, 20 L. Ed. 2d 672 ; Dillon v. Municipal Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 860, 869-870, 94 Cal. Rptr. 777, 484 P.2d 945 ; Burton v. Municipal Court (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 684, 690-691, 68 Cal. Rptr. 721, 441 P.2d 281 ; see also Cantwell v. Connecticut (1940) 310 U.S. 296, 306-307, 60 S. Ct. 900, 84 L. Ed. 1213 ; Perrine v. Municipal Court (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 656, 662, 97 Cal. Rptr. 320, 488 P.2d 648 , cert. denied, 404 U.S. 1038, 92 S. Ct. 710, 30 L. Ed. 2d 729 (1972)] .

For further discussion of permissible limitations on First Amendment freedoms at gatherings, see Ch. 59, Assemblies and Meetings .

[ii] School Buildings

The Civic Center Act (Educ. Code §§ 38130 et seq., 82537 et seq.) empowers the governing boards of local school and community college districts to grant the use of school facilities or grounds as a civic center for public, literary, scientific, recreational, educational, or public agency meetings, for the discussion of matters of general or public interest, for the conduct of religious services on a temporary basis, for child care or day care programs, for the administration of employment examinations or instruction by public agencies, for supervised recreational activities, for mass care and welfare shelters during disasters, and for any other purposes deemed appropriate by the governing board [Educ. Code § 30831; see also Gov. Code § 30834]. Gov. Code §§ 82537 and 82542, relating to community college districts, grant governing boards of community college districts similar powers.

The government is not obliged to make school property available for public use, but if the government does open schools to groups of citizens, it may not arbitrarily exclude certain groups or make access to the school property dependent on unconstitutional conditions [Danskin v. San Diego Unified Sch. Dist. (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 536, 545, 171 P.2d 885 ; see also Wirta v. Alameda-Contra Costa Transit Dist. (1967) 68 Cal. 2d 51, 55-56, 64 Cal. Rptr. 430, 434 P.2d 982] . In particular, a group may not be denied access, if school property has been opened to public gatherings, on the basis of a governing board's antipathy for certain views espoused by the group's members, since that would be an unconstitutional infringement on the freedom of speech [see Dunbar v. Governing Board (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 14, 18, 79 Cal. Rptr. 662 ; but see American Civil Liberties Union v. Board of Education (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 203, 213, 28 Cal. Rptr. 700, 379 P.2d 4 , cert. denied, 375 U.S. 823, 84 S. Ct. 64, 11 L. Ed. 2d 56 (finding constitutional a restriction conditioning access to school property on applicant's statement that he or she does not intend to put property to illegal use)].

[2] State Preemption

If the Legislature has exercised its power to such a degree that the state law occupies the entire field, local powers are to that extent preempted [see Robillwayne Corp. v. City of Los Angeles (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 57, 60-63, 50 Cal. Rptr. 1 ; People v. Levering (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 19, 21, 122 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 19 , 176 Cal. Rptr. 297] . Regarding the validity of a local business license law covering the same subject as a state licensing law, see the discussion in § 471B.12[2]. The Legislature's power to regulate is preemptive of local power if the Legislature so intends in a given case, whether or not the state law completely covers the subject [see Lancaster v. Municipal Court (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 805, 807-808, 100 Cal. Rptr. 609, 494 P.2d 681 ; Maloy v. Municipal Court (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 414, 418, 72 Cal. Rptr. 207 ; Lasley v. Baldwin (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 468, 470, 324 P.2d 108] .

The Legislature's intention is sometimes clearly expressed [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 460 (prohibition against local licensing of state licensees)], and in such a case, it will be given effect as expressed [see Watson v. County of Merced (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 263, 265, 78 Cal. Rptr. 807] . If a statute does not contain a clear expression of the Legislature's intention, judicial interpretation must cure the omission [see, e.g., Stewart v. County of San Mateo (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 273, 282, 54 Cal. Rptr. 599] . An intention to preempt will generally be found if (1) the statute is so pervasive that the interference (preemption intended) is inescapable, or (2) it is broad enough or so designed that supplemental local regulation was evidently not contemplated by the Legislature [see Galvan v. Superior Court (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 851, 857-858, 76 Cal. Rptr. 642, 452 P.2d 930] .

Courts generally deny the power of local government to supplement a state regulatory scheme by adding requirements or restrictions [see, e.g., Verner, Hibly & Dunn v. Monte Sereno (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 29, 33, 53 Cal. Rptr. 592 ; Agnew v. City of Culver City (1956) 147 Cal. App. 2d 144, 149-150, 304 P.2d 788] . Nevertheless, a local government is not necessarily prohibited from all administrative oversight of persons licensed or otherwise regulated by the state. For example, a local requirement for gun registration has been found not to be incompatible with the state's licensing scheme, since mere registration involves no regulation [see Galvan v. Superior Court (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 851, 860-864, 76 Cal. Rptr. 642, 452 P.2d 930] .

The preemption doctrine does not prevent local regulation of matters related to the subjects of state regulatory schemes. For instance, there is no conflict between state licensing of certain professionals and local regulation of the location of professional offices and the condition of buildings [see City & County of San Francisco v. Boss (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 445, 449-450, 189 P.2d 32] . Such local regulation is independently within the power of local government, and the impact on licensees of the state is only coincidental. There is no local regulation of licensees such as would be invalid under the doctrine of preemption.

Local regulation that more directly restricts a licensee of the state might, nevertheless, be within the power of local government. For example, by requiring that electrical work on buildings within a city conform to a specific safety standards, a city substantially restricts a state-licensed contractor in the pursuit of his or her trade. Such regulation is within the proper scope of the city's police power and the incidental restriction on a state-licensed contractor is lawful [see Agnew v. City of Culver City (1956) 147 Cal. App. 2d 144, 157-159, 304 P.2d 788] . For forms of complaint and allegation for use in alleging the preemption of a field by state regulation, see § 471B.113 et seq.

[3] Supremacy of National Government

The United States Constitution, the laws of the United States made in pursuance thereof, and all treaties made under the authority of the United States are the supreme law of the United States, and the judges in every state are to be bound thereby, anything in the constitution or laws of any state to the contrary notwithstanding [U.S. Const., art. VI]. Thus, a state or local licensing law that conflicts with the federal Constitution, a federal law, or a treaty to which the United States is a party is unenforceable to the extent of the conflict. For example, a law providing for suspension or revocation of a contractor's license in the event the contractor avoids his or her obligations by being adjudged a bankrupt frustrates the purposes of the Bankruptcy Act (11 U.S.C. § 101 et seq.) and is, therefore, invalid under the supremacy clause [Grimes v. Hoschler (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 305, 308-314, 115 Cal. Rptr. 625, 525 P.2d 65 , cert. denied, 420 U.S. 973, 95 S. Ct. 1394, 43 L. Ed. 2d 653 (1975)] .

[4] Grandfather Clauses

A grandfather clause in a licensing law exempts persons who are engaged in the regulated activity at a specified date (usually when the law takes effect) or who meet other conditions from certain requirements, such as attaining a specified educational level or passing an examination, and permits the licensing of such persons if they meet the remaining requirements prescribed in the law. Occasionally a grandfather clause exempts certain persons from all requirements in the licensing law, thus allowing them to continue being engaged in the regulated activity without obtaining a license [see, e.g., Benor v. Board of Medical Examiners (1970) 8 Cal. App.3d 542, 546, 87 Cal. Rptr. 415] . As long as it does not produce or perpetuate an invidious discrimination or unreasonableness, a grandfather clause is constitutional [see In re Weisberg (1932) 215 Cal. 624, 631, 12 P.2d 446 ; Ex parte Whitley (1904) 144 Cal. 167, 172-177, 77 P. 879] .

There appears to be no constitutional necessity for including a grandfather clause in a licensing law. The prohibition against depriving a person of liberty or property without due process of law [U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1; Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a)], for instance, is no obstacle to applying a newly enacted licensing law to persons engaged in the regulated activity when the law takes effect as well as to persons who thereafter undertake that activity. The possibility that an established business will be ruined because the proprietor cannot qualify for a license does not undermine the law, and withholding a license from an established proprietor who is not qualified does not deprive him or her of liberty or property without due process of law, if eligibility requirements are reasonable [see McDonough v. Goodcell (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 741, 751-752, 91 P.2d 1035] .

[5] Reciprocity Provisions

Respecting the subject of governmental licensing, reciprocity is a policy of accommodation for persons licensed elsewhere and wishing to obtain California licenses, or wishing to engage in the regulated activity temporarily in California. A reciprocity provision applicable to a person licensed elsewhere and wishing to obtain a California license usually allows such a person to qualify for a California license without meeting all of the requirements imposed on a person who is not licensed anywhere [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 2135]. In the case of a person licensed elsewhere who wishes to engage in the regulated activity temporarily in California, a reciprocity provision usually allows limited engagements for specific purposes, such as practicing medicine in connection with teaching in a medical college [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 2113]. The fact that other persons licensed in a particular state or foreign country have received licenses in California under a reciprocity provision does not mean that the standards for licensing in the other state or foreign country have been accepted by the responsible agency. Reciprocity licensing is merely an approval of a particular applicant's qualifications [Akopiantz v. Board of Medical Examiners (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 81, 91, 11 Cal. Rptr. 810 , cert. denied, 368 U.S. 929, 82 S. Ct. 368, 7 L. Ed. 2d 193] . For further discussion of certification of out-of-state physicians and reciprocity, see Ch. 414, Physicians: Licensing and Discipline .

[6] Students, Trainees, and Apprentices

A licensing law may constitutionally permit unlicensed, restricted practice of a profession, or otherwise engaging in the regulated activity, by students, trainees, or apprentices [see Magit v. Board of Medical Examiners (1961) 57 Cal. 2d 74, 82, 17 Cal. Rptr. 488, 366 P.2d 816] .

B. Qualifications for Licensing

41-471B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471B.20

§ 471B.20 Personal Characteristics

[1] Age

A licensing law may constitutionally preclude minors from engaging in the regulated activity, even though some minors would undoubtedly be able to meet all of the qualifications (except for age) set for adults [see, e.g., Buelke v. Levenstadt (1923) 190 Cal. 684, 688-689, 214 P. 42 (driver's license)].

[2] Character

Bus. & Prof. Code § 475 provides that a license may not be denied on the "grounds of a lack of good moral character or any similar ground relating to an applicant's character, reputation, personality, or habits" [Bus. & Prof. Code § 475(c); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 477 ("license" defined)]. No person applying for licensure under the Business and Professions Code is required to submit to any licensing board any attestation by other persons to his or her good moral character [Bus. & Prof. Code § 484]. Counsel should note that Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 475 and 484 do not apply to licensure or registration of persons pursuant to the State Bar Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 6000 et seq.), the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 23000 et seq.), or the Gaming Registration Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 19800 et seq.) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 476]. Applicants to the State Bar, for example, are required to demonstrate that they are of good moral character [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6062(a)(2), (b)(2)]. For detailed coverage of the provisions governing licensing in regard to the practice of law and the alcoholic beverage business, see respectively Ch. 71, Attorney Discipline , and Ch. 18, Alcoholic Beverage Licenses .

[3] Criminal Record

[a] General Rules

Many licensing laws allow the responsible agency to deny a license application if the applicant has a criminal record [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 22253 (tax preparers); for discussion of a criminal record as evidence of an applicant's reputation, see [6], below]. Such a licensing law is not an ex post facto law [see Ellis v. Dept. of Motor Vehicles (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 753, 758-759, 125 P.2d 521] .

A license application denial may not be based on a crime that has no relation to the applicant's fitness for the license in question [see Perrine v. Municipal Court (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 656, 664, 97 Cal. Rptr. 320, 488 P.2d 648 , cert. denied, 404 U.S. 1038, 92 S. Ct. 710, 30 L. Ed. 2d 729 (1972)] . By contrast, a pending indictment for activities related to the licensed activity is a valid reason for denial of a license in the public interest, as long as no special rights, such as the right to freedom of expression, are involved [Goldberg v. Barger (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 987, 997, 112 Cal. Rptr. 827] . A license application may be denied on the basis of the criminal record of one other than the license applicant, when the other person's criminal record relates to the applicant's suitability for a license [see Lopez v. McMahon (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1510, 1516-1520, 253 Cal. Rptr. 321 (denial of day care center license based on prior felony record of applicant's spouse)]. For further discussion of denial of licenses based on a criminal conviction, see § 471B.71.

[b] Criminal Proceedings Not Resulting in Conviction

No state or local public agency may, on an initial application for any license, certificate, or registration, ask for or require the applicant to reveal a record of arrest that did not result in a conviction or plea of nolo contendere [Bus. & Prof. Code § 461].

[c] Licensing Ex-Convicts

Notwithstanding any other provision of the Business and Professions Code, any individual who, while imprisoned in a state correctional institution, is trained, in the course of a rehabilitation program approved by the particular licensing agency concerned and provided by the correctional institution, in a particular skill, occupation, or profession for which a license is required by the Business and Professions Code must not, when released from the institution, be denied the right to take any examination required to obtain the license, and shall not be denied such license, because of his or her imprisonment or the conviction from which the imprisonment resulted or because he or she obtained his or her training in a correctional institution, if the licensing agency, on the recommendation of the Community Release Board or the Youth Authority Board, as the case may be, finds that he or she is a fit person to be licensed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23.9; see In re Bogart (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 743, 749-750, 108 Cal. Rptr. 815, 511 P.2d 1167 , appeal dismissed, 415 U.S. 903, 94 S. Ct. 1395, 39 L. Ed. 2d 460 (statute construed and applied in disbarment proceeding)].

[4] Habits

Habits are a manifestation of a person's character [see discussion of character in [2], above]. Bus. & Prof. Code § 475 provides that "[a] license shall not be denied ... on the grounds of lack of good moral character or any similar ground relating to an applicant's character, reputation, personality, or habits" [Bus. & Prof. Code § 475(c)].

For example, a licensing law may not constitutionally preclude a person from engaging in the regulated activity on the basis of the person's sexual habits. Nevertheless, a licensing law may effect such a preclusion to the extent that those habits show the person is unfit to engage in the regulated activity [see Morrison v. State Board of Education (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 214, 230-233, 82 Cal. Rptr. 175, 461 P.2d 375] .

[5] Political and Religious Beliefs

The protection of association as provided in U.S. Const., amend. I prohibits a state from excluding a person from a profession or punishing him or her solely because he or she is a member of a particular political organization or because he or she holds certain beliefs [Baird v. State Bar of Arizona (1971) 401 U.S. 1, 6, 91 S. Ct. 702, 27 L. Ed. 2d 639 ; Raffaelli v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 288, 296, 101 Cal. Rptr. 896, 496 P.2d 1264] . The California Constitution provides that a person may not be disqualified from entering or pursuing a business, profession, vocation, or employment because of creed [Cal. Const., art. I, § 8].

[6] Reputation

Bus. & Prof. Code § 475 generally provides that "[a] license shall not be denied ... on the grounds of lack of good moral character or any similar ground relating to an applicant's character, reputation, personality, or habits" [Bus. & Prof. Code § 475(c)]. Some licensing laws [see, e.g., Ins. Code § 1668], however, empower the responsible agency to deny an application for a license on account of the applicant's reputation. Such laws are not unconstitutional, provided that the applicant's reputation is relevant to the license sought [see Goldberg v. Barger (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 987, 992-994, 112 Cal. Rptr. 827] .

[7] Residence

Unless the government can show a compelling necessity, a law may not constitutionally preclude a person from obtaining a license solely on the ground that the person is not a resident of the state (or city or county) or has not been a resident for a specified period [see Raffaelli v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 288 , and cases cited therein; see also Johnson v. Hamilton (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 461, 469-472, 125 Cal. Rptr. 129, 541 P.2d 881 , and cases cited therein (durational residence requirements for voters and candidates are unconstitutional)].

B. Qualifications for Licensing

§ 471B.21 Educational and Vocational Qualifications

[1] Bona Fide Status as Practitioner or Tradesperson

At least one licensing law imposes the requirement that an applicant must show his or her "status as a bona fide" member of the class affected by the law--in this case, a bona fide manufacturer, transporter, or dealer of motor vehicles [Veh. Code § 11701]. The constitutional provision for licensing the operators of bona fide public eating places to deal in liquor [Cal. Const., art. XX, § 22] is a similar provision.

Such a licensing standard is not invalid if it can be given a reasonable interpretation rationally connected with the purpose of the licensing law [see Merrill v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 907, 920-921, 80 Cal. Rptr. 89, 458 P.2d 33 (applicant under Veh. Code § 11701 is required to show reputation for honesty, fair dealing, and freedom from deceit)].

[2] Education

[a] General Requirements

A licensing law may constitutionally preclude a person who has not attained a prescribed educational level from engaging in the regulated activity [see Ex Parte Whitley (1904) 144 Cal. 167, 177-178, 77 P. 879] . The law may also require that an applicant's education be received at a school accredited by a particular accrediting organization [see Arwine v. Board of Med. Examiners (1907) 151 Cal. 499, 503, 91 P. 319 ; Packer v. Board of Behavioral Science Examiners (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 190, 196-197, 125 Cal. Rptr. 96] or at a school approved by the licensing agency. Moreover, a licensing law may constitutionally set up different educational levels as equal alternative standards, if no invidious discrimination results [see Ex Parte Whitley (1904) 144 Cal. 167, 177-178, 77 P. 879] . A licensing law may not arbitrarily preclude a person from engaging in a regulated activity on the basis of failure to meet prescribed educational requirements. For example, if the law permits graduates of allopathic medical schools to become licensed to practice medicine but withholds the same privilege from graduates of osteopathic medical schools, when it may be conceded that the quality of medical education in the one kind of school is equal to that in the other, the distinction between allopaths and osteopaths is arbitrary and cannot stand as a basis for granting or denying license applications [ see D'Amico v. Board of Medical Examiners (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 1, 24, 112 Cal. Rptr. 786, 520 P.2d 10] .

[b] Graduation From Approved School

If a licensing law precludes issuing a license to a person who is not a graduate of a school approved by the responsible agency, an applicant will be obliged to prove that he or she was graduated from an approved school. Acceptable proof of graduation may be limited to a diploma or similar document [see Arwine v. Board of Med. Examiners (1907) 151 Cal. 499, 503-504, 91 P. 319] . In empowering an agency to approve schools, the Legislature need not set out the standards that the agency must use. It is sufficient to prescribe the minimum education (what courses, how many hours, teaching methods, etc.) and to direct the agency to determine whether this minimum education is, in fact, available at particular schools [see Ex parte Whitley (1904) 144 Cal. 167, 178-181, 77 P. 879 ; Savelli v. Board of Medical Examiners (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 124, 141-142, 40 Cal. Rptr. 171 , cert. denied, 380 U.S. 934, 85 S. Ct. 940, 13 L. Ed. 2d 821 (1965)] . A licensing agency's approval of a school is not necessarily related to accreditation by one of the many private organizations that accredit schools. Unless the governing law provides otherwise, an agency with approval power is not required to approve all accredited schools, or any of them, and may approve nonaccredited schools. However, a trend toward linking approval with accreditation seems to be developing [see Packer v. Board of Behavioral Science Examiners (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 190, 197, 125 Cal. Rptr. 96 (noting that "[p]rivate accrediting agencies encourage sound educational development and provide an ongoing review of the qualifications of educational institutions in a manner which could not be duplicated with reasonable expense by the state")]. Agency approval is valuable to a school. A school has standing to challenge an agency's decision to disapprove it [see Cleveland Chiropractic Colle v. State Bd. of Chiropractic Examiners (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 25, 33-48, 89 Cal. Rptr. 572] .

[3] Job Training

To require that an applicant for a license must have served a certain period of apprenticeship or on-the-job training is similar to requiring experience in the regulated activity [see discussion in [4], below]. Whereas experience may properly be required, and experience may certainly be gained during apprenticeship or on-the-job training, a requirement that experience be gained in this way would in most cases be invalid because it empowers those who are already licensed to exclude others from their trade, occupation, business, or profession. For example, former Bus. & Prof. Code § 2552 imposed an apprenticeship requirement on applicants for a dispensing optician's license, but the Supreme Court struck it down. The Court stated that "[i]f [former] section 2552, subdivision (a) is sustained, persons excluded from the occupation of optical dispensing because of the refusal of licensed opticians to employ them for the [prescribed] five-year period, no matter what the reason for such refusal might be, will have no remedy, for licensed opticians are under no duty to employ anyone, for five years or for any other period. Moreover, presently licensed dispensing opticians will be given virtually absolute economic control over those employees who are required to serve under them in order to attain future professional objectives" [Blumenthal v. Board of Medical Examiners (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 228, 236, 18 Cal. Rptr. 501, 368 P.2d 101] .

[4] Previous Experience

[a] General Rules

A licensing law may constitutionally preclude a person who does not have specified experience in the regulated activity from engaging in the regulated activity, provided the definition of acceptable experience is not arbitrary. For example, former Bus. & Prof. Code § 2552 (discussed in [3], above) required an applicant for a dispensing optician's license to have at least (1) five full years of actual experience in taking facial measurements and fitting and adjusting lenses or frames in an establishment or establishments of a registered dispensing optician, or (2) five years experience as a dispensing optician licensed in another state. The Supreme Court found this requirement to be arbitrary. It stated that the experience necessary to qualify a person to dispense optical goods, whatever level of expertise is demanded, is obtainable in a variety of ways. The Court commented that former Bus. & Prof. Code § 2552 prescribed only two ways to qualify, neither of which could reasonably be thought to be superior to others. The Court concluded that former Bus.

& Prof. Code § 2552 contravened the constitutional requirement that regulatory legislation avoid arbitrary and unreasonable classifications [see Blumenthal v. Board of Medical Examiners (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 228, 234-235, 18 Cal. Rptr. 501, 368 P.2d 101] .

[b] Recommendations

If a licensing law requires an applicant to have certain experience, it may also require an applicant to establish this condition by producing affidavits from others [see Blumenthal v. Board of Medical Examiners (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 228, 237, 18 Cal. Rptr. 501, 368 P.2d 101] . In other words, the applicant may be required to establish a reputation for being experienced [see discussion in § 471B.20[6]].

§ 471B.23 Furnishing Social Security or Federal Employer Identification Number to Licensing Body

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any board as defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 22, the State Bar, and the Department of Real Estate must, at the time of issuance or renewal of a license, require a licensee that is a partnership to provide its federal employer identification number and require all other types of licensees to provide their social security numbers [Bus. & Prof. Code § 30(a); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 22 ("board" defined)]. If a licensee is an entity, a licensing board so defined must require, when issuing or renewing that license, that the licensee provide the provide the social security number of each individual listed on the license and any person who qualifies the license [Bus. & Prof. Code § 30(l)].

The purpose of this requirement is to enable either number to be used to identify persons affected by state tax laws and persons who are more than 30 days in arrears in making family support payments pursuant to an order or judgment for support. To this end, these numbers, when furnished pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 30, can only be used for these identification purposes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 30(j)]. Furthermore, notwithstanding the inspection requirements of the California Public Records Act [see Gov.Code § 6250 et seq.], these numbers, when so furnished, are not deemed to be public records and are therefore not available to the public for inspection [Bus. & Prof. Code § 30(h); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 30(i), (k) (disclosure of numbers as prohibited except in statutorily authorized instances)].

For purposes of the requirement, "licensee" means any entity, other than a corporation, authorized by a license, certificate, registration, or other means to engage in a business or profession regulated by the Business and Professions Code or referred to in Bus. & Prof. Code § 1000 (chiropractic) or 3600 (osteopathic). For purposes of the requirement, "license" includes a certificate, registration, or any other authorization needed to engage in such businesses or professions [Bus. & Prof. Code § 30(e)].

Any licensee who fails to provide the requisite federal employer identification number or social security number will be reported by the licensing board to the Franchise Tax Board. Any licensee who is so reported and who still fails to provide the number after notice to do so by the Franchise Tax Board [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 19528(b)(1)] is subject to a penalty [Bus. & Prof. Code § 30(b); Rev. & Tax. Code § 19528(b)(2) (penalty); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 30(d) (information about licensees that licensing board may transmit to Franchise Tax Board)]. In addition, a licensing board may not process any application for an original license or for renewal of a license unless the applicant or licensee provides its federal employer identification number or social security number where requested on the application [Bus. & Prof. Code § 30(c)].

§ 471B.24 Compliance With Support Order or Judgment

[1] Qualification for License Issuance or Renewal

Each person who applies for the issuance or renewal of a license to operate a motor vehicle, or a license, certificate, registration, or other means to engage in a business or profession that is regulated by a state board, and who has not complied with a judgment or order for child or family support, is subject to the nonissuance or nonrenewal of the license under Welf. & Inst. Code § 11350.6 (repealed; see now Fam. Code § 17520) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 31(b)]. Compliance with these procedures is also an expressly required qualification for licensure or license renewal in both the Department of Consumer Affairs [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 29.5; see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 23 ("department" defined), Bus. & Prof. Code § 101 (list of agencies comprising department)] and the State Bar of California [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6143.5].

[2] Duration of Qualification Requirement

The state boards described in Fam. Code § 17520(a)(2) (set out in [3], below) may only issue a temporary, not a permanent, license to any person who is on a certified list stating that he or she is not in compliance with a support order or judgment [see Fam. Code § 17520(e)(2)(A)]. Under certain circumstances, a board may suspend the license of an individual who has been out of compliance with a judgment or support order for over four months [Fam. Code § 17520(e)(3)].

[3] Definitions

"Compliance with a judgment or order for support" means that, as set forth in a judgment or order for child or family support rendered by or registered in a court of this state, the obligor is no more than 30 calendar days in arrears in (1) making payments in full for current support, (2) making periodic payments on a support arrearage, or (3) making periodic payments on a reimbursement for public assistance [Fam. Code § 17520(a)(4); see Fam. Code § 17520(b)]. "Compliance with a judgment or order for support" also means that, concerning a judgment or order for child or family support, the obligor has obtained a judicial finding that equitable estoppel, as provided in statute or case law, precludes enforcement of the order [Fam. Code § 17520(a)(4)]. "Support" is not specifically defined, but appears to mean child or family, rather than solely spousal, support [see Fam. Code § 17520(a)(4)]. For further discussion of the type of support covered by the statute, see the Ch. 259, Family Law Enforcement: Special Remedies for Support Enforcement.

A "board" is defined as the State Board of Chiropractic Examiners, the Board of Osteopathic Examiners, the State Bar, the Department of Real Estate, any entity specified in Bus. & Prof. Code § 101 (agencies included in the State Department of Consumer Affairs--for a list of the more significant subagencies in this department, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law, § 470.20[2]), and any other state agency that issues a license, certificate, or registration authorizing a person to engage in a business or profession [Fam. Code § 17520(a)(2)].

A "license" includes active or inactive membership in the State Bar [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6143.5], as well as a certificate, permit, registration, or any other authorization issued by a board that allows a person to engage in a business, occupation, or profession, or to operate a commercial motor vehicle [Fam. Code § 17520(a)(2)]. A "licensee" is any person who holds a license, certificate, permit, registration, or other authorization issued by a board to engage in a business, occupation, or profession [Fam. Code § 17520(a)(6)]. A "licensee" is also any person who holds a commercial driver's license as defined in Veh. Code § 15210 [Fam. Code § 17520(a)(6)].

[4] Overview of License Withholding Procedures

Initially, each county district attorney supplies the State Department of Social Services, on a monthly basis, with the names of and statutorily specified information about individuals who are not in compliance with a judgment or order for child support [Fam. Code § 17520(b)]. Next, the State Department of Social Services, acting as a clearinghouse for the monthly lists received from the district attorneys, consolidates the lists and, also on a monthly basis, provides a copy of a consolidated list to each state board responsible for the regulation of licenses [Fam. Code § 17520(c)].

On receipt of the consolidated list, each licensing board then notifies any applicant on the list of the board's intent to withhold issuance or renewal of the applicant's license [Fam. Code § 17520(d), (e), (f)]. The board must, however, issue a temporary license to any applicant on the list who is otherwise eligible for licensure [Fam. Code § 17520(e)(1), (2)]. When economically feasible for boards and the State Department of Social Services, the Department may request suspension of the license of an individual out of compliance with a judgment or order for over four months.

The license is subject to suspension by the board, provided the license is not otherwise eligible for renewal within six months of the date of the request [Fam. Code § 17520(e)(3)(A)]. Automatic suspension of the license will result 150 days after notice to the individual, unless a notice of compliance is received [Fam. Code § 17520(e)(3)(B)].

On receipt of board notification of intent to suspend or withhold issuance or renewal of license, the applicant can obtain review from a district attorney of placement of his or her name on the list [Fam. Code § 17520(g)-(j)]. If desired, the applicant can also seek superior court judicial review of the district attorney's adverse decision [Fam. Code § 17520(k)].

When the applicant comes into compliance with the support judgment or order, or otherwise prevails on district attorney or judicial review, he or she is issued a release by the district attorney [Fam. Code § 17520(j), (k)]. The release serves to notify the applicant and the board that, for the purposes of the statute, the applicant is in compliance with the support order or judgment and is therefore entitled to issuance or renewal of the license, absent ineligibility on any other grounds [Fam. Code § 17520(l)].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to these license withholding procedures, see Ch. 259, Family Law Enforcement: Special Remedies for Support Enforcement .

[5] Issuance of Temporary License

If a person is otherwise eligible for issuance or renewal of a license, but has been certified to a board as not in compliance with a support order or judgment, the board must issue the person a temporary license, valid for 150 days [Fam. Code § 17520(e)(2)(A)]. The temporary license cannot be extended. Moreover, only one temporary license can be issued during a regular license term, and it must coincide with the first 150 days of that term. As this provision applies to a commercial driver's license, "license term" is deemed to be 12 months from the date the application fee is received by the Department of Motor Vehicles. A license for the full or remainder of the license term will be issued or renewed only when the applicant comes into compliance with the support judgment or order, or otherwise prevails on district attorney or judicial review of certification, and he or she is issued a release by the district attorney [Fam. Code § 17520(e)(2)(B); see Fam. Code § 17520(j), (l)].

[6] Contesting Issuance of Temporary License or Denial of Permanent License

The review process set forth in Fam. Code § 17520(h) is the applicant's sole administrative remedy for contesting the issuance of a temporary license or the denial of a license under Fam. Code § 17520 [Fam. Code § 17520(o)]. For discussion of this process, and the possible availability of judicial remedies in addition to or in lieu of this administrative remedy, see Ch. 258, Family Law Enforcement: Special Remedies for Support Enforcement .

Thus, an agency decision to issue only a temporary license or renewal or to deny issuance of a permanent license or renewal under this statute is not reviewable by administrative mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5. Moreover, the procedures specified in the Administrative Procedure Act (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) do not apply to an agency's denial of, or failure to issue or renew, a license under Fam. Code § 17520 [Fam. Code § 17520(o)].

[7] Adoption of Implementing Regulations

The State Department of Social Services and state boards, as appropriate, are required to adopt regulations necessary to implement Fam. Code § 17520 [Fam. Code § 17520(s)]. Any rules and regulations issued pursuant to the statute may be adopted as emergency regulations in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act. The adoption of these regulations is deemed an emergency, and necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health, and safety or general welfare. The regulations become effective immediately on filing with the Secretary of State [Fam. Code § 17520(r)].

[8] Agency Assessment of Fee Surcharge

Regardless of any other provision of law, the boards and departments subject to Fam. Code § 17520 may levy a surcharge on any fee or fees collected pursuant to law, with the approval of the appropriate department director, to cover the costs of implementing and administering the statute. The surcharge may be adopted without the necessity of adopting or amending regulations pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act [Fam. Code § 17520(n)].

[9] Use or Release of Information

Any board receiving an inquiry as to the licensed status of an applicant who has had a license denied or who has been granted a temporary license under Fam. Code § 17520 can respond only that the license was denied or the temporary license was issued pursuant to that statute. Information collected pursuant to the statute is subject to the Information Practices Act of 1977 [Fam. Code § 17520(q); see Civ. Code §§ 1798 et seq., 1798.76]. For discussion of the act, see Ch. 429, Privacy . The release or other use of information received by a board under Fam. Code § 17520, except as authorized by that statute, is a misdemeanor [Fam. Code § 17520(u)].

§ 471B.25 Licensing Examinations

[1] Oral and Written Examinations

Unless otherwise expressly provided by law, any agency governed by the Business and Professions Code may appoint, with the approval of the Director of Consumer Affairs, commissioners on examination to give the whole or any part of any examination. Such a commissioner need not be a member of the agency but must have the same qualifications as a member and will be subject to the same rules [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 23.6, 111; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 451 (prohibition against appointing public or lay member of agency to conduct examination)]. An agency may not delegate solely to a public or lay member the actual preparation, administration, or grading of examinations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 451].

[2] Second or Subsequent Attempt to Pass

No agency in the Department of Consumer Affairs may on the basis of an applicant's failure to complete prior examinations successfully, impose any additional limitations, restrictions, prerequisites, or requirements on any applicant who wishes to participate in subsequent examinations, except that any examining agency that allows an applicant conditional credit for successfully completing a divisible part of an examination may require that the applicant be reexamined in those parts successfully completed if the applicant has not successfully completed all parts of the examination within a required period of time established by the examining agency [Bus. & Prof. Code § 135; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 101 (list of included agencies); see also a listing of the more significant subagencies in this departement in Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law, § 470.20[2]]. This provision does not require the exemption of an applicant, making a second or subsequent attempt to pass an examination or part of an examination, from the regular fees and requirements normally associated with examinations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 135].

[3] Subversion of Licensing Examination

[a] General Rules

It is a misdemeanor for any person to engage in any conduct that subverts or attempts to subvert any licensing examination or the administration of an examination. Punishable conduct includes the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 123]:

- Conduct violating the security of the examination materials.
- Removing from the examination room any examination materials without authorization.
- Unauthorized reproduction by any means of any portion of the licensing examination.
- Aiding by any means the unauthorized reproduction of any portion of the actual licensing examination.
- Paying or using professional or paid examination-takers for the purposes of reconstructing any portion of the licensing examination.
- Obtaining examination questions, or other examination material, except by specific authorization, either before, during or after an examination.
- Using or purporting to use any examination questions or materials that were improperly removed or taken from any examination for the purpose of instructing or preparing any applicant for examination.
- Selling, distributing, buying, receiving, or having unauthorized possession of any portion of a future, current, or previously administered licensing examination.
- Communicating with any other examinee during the administration of a licensing examination.
- Copying answers from another examinee or permitting one's answers to be copied by another examinee.
- Having in one's possession during the administration of the licensing examination any books, equipment, notes, written or printed materials, or data of any kind, other than the examination materials distributed, or otherwise authorized to be in one's possession during the examination.
- Impersonating any examinee or having an impersonator take the licensing examination on one's behalf.

Nothing in Bus. & Prof. Code § 123 precludes prosecution under the authority provided for in any other provision of law. In addition to any other penalties, a person found guilty of violating Bus. & Prof. Code § 123 will be liable for the actual damages sustained by the agency administering the examination not to exceed $10,000 and the costs of litigation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 123].

[b] Injunction or Restraining Order

Whenever any person has engaged, or is about to engage, in any acts or practices that constitute or will constitute, a violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 123 (see [a], above), the superior court in and for the county wherein the acts or practices take place, or are about to take place, may issue an injunction, or other appropriate order, restraining such conduct on application of an agency, the Attorney General, or the district attorney of the county [Bus. & Prof. Code § 123.5]. Proceedings under Bus. & Prof. Code § 123.5 are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 525 et seq. The remedy provided for in Bus. & Prof. Code § 123.5 is in addition and is not a limitation on, the authority provided for in any other provision of law.

B. Qualifications for Licensing

41-471B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471B.26

§ 471B.26 Conditions on Issuance of License

[1] General Requirements

A licensing law, especially one of the permit type such as a local government might enact, may impose conditions on the issuance of a license, in addition to or instead of licensing standards in the nature of personal qualifications. As a general rule, a condition may not be one that an applicant would reasonably lack the power to fulfill [see, e.g., Tarbox v. Board of Supervisors (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 373, 377-378, 329 P.2d 553] , but there are exceptions [see, e.g., In re Petersen (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 177, 182-184, 331 P.2d 24 , appeal dismissed, 360 U.S. 314, 79 S. Ct. 1294, 3 L. Ed. 2d 1259 (1959) (permit for certain uses of public street issuable on condition that abutting property owners approve)].

Moreover, a condition might be reasonable in some circumstances but unreasonable in others [see Sunset Amusement Co. v. Board of Police Commissioners (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 64, 84, 101 Cal. Rptr. 768, 496 P.2d 840 , appeal dismissed, 409 U.S. 1121, 93 S. Ct. 940, 35 L. Ed. 2d 254 (1973) ; Flores v. Los Angeles Turf Club (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 736, 743, 13 Cal. Rptr. 201, 361 P.2d 921 (condition, in both cases, was control of behavior of others)].

Conditions on the issuance of subdivision building permits are common and may include, for example, dedicating part of the property in question to public use [see Selby Realty Co. v. City of San Buenaventura (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 110, 119 , 10 Cal. 3d 110, 109 Cal. Rptr. 799, 514 P.2d 111] , or starting the construction project within a specified time [see Morgan v. County of San Diego (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 636, 641, 97 Cal. Rptr. 180] . A condition may not be unreasonable, that is, it must have a rational connection with a legitimate government purpose [see Perrine v. Municipal Court (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 656, 663, 97 Cal. Rptr. 320, 488 P.2d 648 , cert. denied, 404 U.S. 1038, 92 S. Ct. 710, 30 L. Ed. 2d 729 (1972)] . However, comparatively stringent conditions may be imposed if the activity in question is harmful enough that it might be prohibited instead of licensed [see, e.g., San Francisco Street Artists Guild v. Scott (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 667, 674, 112 Cal. Rptr. 502] .

[2] Bonds, Insurance, and Proof of Financial Responsibility

[a] General Requirements

Furnishing a bond, contracting for insurance, or giving other proof of financial responsibility may be required of a license applicant in an appropriate case [see, e.g., Bell v. Burson (1971) 402 U.S. 535, 539, 91 S. Ct. 1586, 29 L. Ed. 2d 90 (dictum; statutory requirement that all motorists carry liability insurance or post security as not violating U.S. Const., amend. XIV)]. However, the requirement must be reasonably related to protecting the public in dealing with the licensee. A bond requirement for the protection of any person having dealings with the licensee is too broad, for example [see In re Weisberg (1932) 215 Cal. 624, 632, 12 P.2d 446] .

[b] Bond as Condition of Reinstatement

Some licensing laws require the furnishing of a bond as a condition of reinstatement of a license that has been suspended or revoked, instead of a condition precedent to issuing a license in the first instance. Such a requirement is apparently constitutional, since a bond might be required in the first instance [see Koop v. Structural Pest Control Bd. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 249, 256, 81 Cal. Rptr. 154 (clearly accepting, although not discussing, such a bond requirement)].

[3] Oath of Allegiance and Loyalty

A statutory requirement that a licensee take an oath to support the constitutions of the United States and California is not in and of itself unconstitutional [see Raffaelli v. Committee of Bar Examiners (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 288, 297, 101 Cal. Rptr. 896, 496 P.2d 1264] . Other types of oaths, however, may be unenforceable due to unconstitutionality; such oaths include the following [Cole v. Richardson (1972) 405 U.S. 676, 680-681, 92 S. Ct. 1332, 31 L. Ed. 2d 593 (summarizing prior Supreme Court cases involving licensing oaths)]:

- Oaths that impinge on rights guaranteed by U.S. Const., amends. I and XIV, such as oaths relating to the licensee's political beliefs.

- Oaths to the effect that one has not engaged, or will not engage, in protected speech activities, such as criticizing institutions of government, discussing political doctrine that approves the overthrow of certain forms of government, and supporting candidates for political office.

- Oaths taking the form of denying past, or abjuring future, associational activities within constitutional protection; such protected activities include membership in organizations having illegal purposes unless one knows of the purpose and shares a specific intent to promote the illegal purpose.

- Oaths that are so vague that people of common intelligence must necessarily guess at their meaning and differ as to their application.

In cases finding particular licensing oaths unconstitutional, an underlying, seldom articulated concern running throughout the cases is that the oaths under consideration often required individuals to reach back into their past to recall minor, sometimes innocent, activities. The oaths put the government into the censorial business of investigating, scrutinizing, interpreting, and then penalizing or approving the political viewpoints' and past activities of individuals [Cole v. Richardson (1972) 405 U.S. 676, 681, 92 S. Ct. 1332, 31 L. Ed. 2d 593] .

[4] Agreement Not to Interfere With Other Licensee's Rights

The requirement that a licensee not interfere with equal rights of other licensees is a reasonable requirement and condition on which to base the issuance and continuance of a license [Sheehan v. Division of Motor Vehicles (1934) 140 Cal. App. 200, 203, 35 P.2d 359] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Qualifications for Licensing

41-471B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471B.27

§ 471B.27 License Fees

[1] Reasonableness Required

A regulatory license fee may not be more than is reasonably necessary for the purpose of regulation. It may cover the costs of issuing licenses and maintaining supervision of the regulated activity, whether those costs are direct or indirect [County of Plumas v. Wheeler (1906) 149 Cal. 758, 763-764, 87 P. 909] . A fee is presumptively reasonable but may be shown to be unreasonable [Watson v. County of Merced (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 263, 268, 78 Cal. Rptr. 807] . For a form of allegation for use in a complaint to declare a license tax invalid on the ground that the tax is excessive, see § 471B.116.

[2] Payment by Legally Unlicensed Persons

By operation of a grandfather clause, certain persons may be entitled to engage in a regulated activity without a license [see discussion in § 471B.13[4]]. These persons may be required, nevertheless, to pay an annual license fee [see Matter of Application of Victor (1915) 27 Cal. App. 73, 76-78, 148 P. 975] .

[3] Proration for Short Term

When the term of any license issued by any agency in the Department of Consumer Affairs [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 101 (list of included agencies); see also a listing of the more significant subagencies in this departement in Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law, § 470.20[2]] exceeds one year, initial license fees for licenses that are issued during a current license term must be prorated on a yearly basis [Bus. & Prof. Code § 134].

[4] Limitation on Delinquency Penalty

Except as otherwise provided by law, the delinquency, penalty, or late fee for any licensee within the Department of Consumer Affairs is 50 percent of the renewal fee for a license in effect on the date of the renewal of the license, but not less than $25 or more than $150 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 163.5; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 101 (list of included agencies); see also a listing of the more significant subagencies in this departement in Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law, § 470.20[2]].

[5] Limitation on Reinstatement Surcharge

If a reinstatement or similar fee is charged for reinstatement of a license, the reinstatement fee is 150 percent of the renewal fee for a license in effect on the date of the reinstatement of the license, but not more than $25 in excess of the renewal fee, except that, in the event that the fee is fixed by statute at less than 150 percent of the renewal fee and less than the renewal fee plus $25, the fee fixed by statute will be charged [Bus. & Prof. Code § 163.5].

[6] Approval of Fee Change by Director of Consumer Affairs

Notwithstanding any other provision of law to the contrary, no fee change promulgated by any agency in the Department of Consumer Affairs [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 101 (list of included agencies); see also a listing of the more significant subagencies in this departement in Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law, § 470.20[2]] can take effect pending compliance with the requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 313.1 (governing director's review of agency rulemaking and fee changes) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 313.1(a)].

Prior law permitted the director to disapprove any fee change within 30 days after submission to him or her for review. Under prior law, if the director disapproved the fee change, the change had no force or effect unless the disapproval was reversed by a unanimous vote of the members of the agency that proposed the change [see former Bus. & Prof. Code § 313.1(b), as amended by Stats. 1984, ch. 144, § 4].

Current law contains no such explicit permission and reversal mechanism [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 313.1, as amended by Stats. 1991, ch. 654, § 4, and Stats. 1992, ch. 1289, § 2]. However, current law permits the director to affirmatively approve a proposed fee change at any time within 30 days after it has been submitted to him or her for review. In the event of such approval, the change becomes effective on compliance with the requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 313.1 (governing director's review of agency rulemaking and fee changes) and with the rulemaking and rulemaking review requirements, as set forth in Gov. Code § 11340 et seq. of the Administrative Procedure Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 313(e) (as amended by Stats. 1991, ch. 654, § 4, and Stats. 1992, ch. 1289, § 2)].

[7] Refund of Fees

With the approval of the Director of Consumer Affairs, the agencies in the Department of Consumer Affairs [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 101 (list of included agencies); see also a listing of the more significant subagencies in this departement in Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law, § 470.20[2]] may make refunds to applicants who are found ineligible to take the examinations or whose credentials are insufficient to entitle them to certificates or licenses [Bus. & Prof. Code § 158]. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any application fees collected illegally, by mistake or inadvertence, or in error, must be refunded [Bus. & Prof. Code § 158].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Denial of License

41-471B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471B.40

§ 471B.40 Statutory Grounds for Denial

[1] General Requirements

Bus. & Prof. Code § 475 et seq. set forth grounds on which a license may be denied, suspended, or revoked. In addition to Bus. & Prof. Code § 475 et seq., which, as noted below, apply to a wide variety of business and professional licenses, numerous statutes and regulations pertaining to particular professions and businesses specify qualifications that must be met by a licensee in order to obtain a license. These qualifications, if not met, can constitute grounds for denial of a license. Consequently, counsel must refer to both Bus. & Prof. Code § 475 et seq. and to the particular statutes and regulations governing the particular business and profession for which a license is sought, in order to determine whether adequate legal grounds exist for the denial of a license. The discussion in this part focuses on the statutes having general application to most types of licenses, that is, Bus. & Prof. Code § 475 et seq.

For discussion of the statutes applicable to specific licenses, see the particular substantive chapter [see, e.g., Ch. 414, Physicians: Licensing and Discipline]. For cross references listing these chapters, see § 471B.02[2]; see also the Appendix at the end of this chapter, listing statutory provisions governing particular professional and commercial licenses (§ 471B.140 et seq.). For general coverage of governmental licensing authority, see Subpart B, § 471B.20 et seq.

Bus. & Prof. Code § 475 et seq. govern the denial of licenses based on the following grounds [Bus. & Prof. Code § 475(a)]:

- Knowingly making a false statement of material fact, or knowingly omitting to state a material fact, in an application for a license.

- Conviction of a crime.

- Commission of any act involving dishonesty, fraud, or deceit with the intent to substantially benefit himself, herself, or another, or substantially injure another.

- Commission of any act which, if done by a licentiate of the business or profession in question, would be grounds for suspension or revocation of license.

Bus. & Prof. Code § 475 et seq. govern notwithstanding any other provisions of the Business and Professions Code [Bus. & Prof. Code § 475(a)]. That is, the provisions control over inconsistent statutes in other parts of the Code [see Pieri v. Fox (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 802, 809, 158 Cal. Rptr. 256] .

The provisions, however, do not apply to applicants for licenses under the State Bar Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 6000 et seq.), the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 23000 et seq.), or the Gaming Registration Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 19800 et seq.) [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 476]. For coverage of the provisions governing licensing in regard to the practice of law and the alcoholic beverage business, see respectively Ch. 71, Attorneys Discipline , and Ch.18, Alcoholic Beverage Licenses .

[2] Definitions

As used in Bus. & Prof. Code § 475 et seq., the term "board" includes bureau, commission, committee, department, division, examining committee, program, and agency [Bus. & Prof. Code § 477(a)]. (Hereinafter, the term "agency" will be used in place of "board.") The term "license" includes certificate, registration, or other means to engage in a business or profession regulated by the Business and Professions Code [Bus. & Prof. Code § 477(b)].

[3] False Statement of Fact in Application

An agency may deny a license regulated by the Business and Professions Code on the ground that the applicant knowingly made a false statement of fact required to be revealed in the application for the license [Bus. & Prof. Code § 480(c)].

[4] Dishonest Acts

An agency may deny a license regulated by the Business and Professions Code on the ground that the applicant does any act involving dishonesty, fraud, or deceit with the intent to substantially benefit himself, herself, or another, or substantially injure another [Bus. & Prof. Code § 480(a)(2)]. Denial on this ground, however, is only proper when the act is substantially related to the qualifications, functions, or duties of the business or profession for which application is made [Bus. & Prof. Code § 480(a)].

[5] Acts That Would Be Ground for Suspension If Performed by Licentiate

An agency may deny a license regulated by the Business and Professions Code on the ground that the applicant has done any act that if done by a licentiate of the business or profession in question, would be grounds for suspension or revocation of a license [Bus. & Prof. Code § 480(a)(3)]. Denial on this ground, however, is only proper when the act is substantially related to the qualifications, functions, or duties of the business or profession for which application is made [Bus. & Prof. Code § 480(a)].

[6] Conviction of Crime

[a] General Requirements

An agency may deny a license regulated by the Business and Professions Code on the ground that the applicant has been convicted of a crime, provided that the crime is substantially related to the qualifications, functions, or duties of the business or profession for which application is made [Bus. & Prof. Code § 480(a)(1), (3); Harrington v. Department of Real Estate (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 394, 402, 263 Cal. Rptr. 528 ; 214 Cal. App. 3d 394, 263 Cal.

Rptr. 528] .

[b] Nature of Conviction

For purposes of Bus. & Prof. Code § 480(a), a "conviction" includes the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 480(a)(1)]:

- A plea of guilty.
- A verdict of guilty.
- A conviction following a plea of nolo contendere.

[c] Finality of Conviction

Any action that an agency is permitted to take following the establishment of a conviction may be taken when the time for appeal has elapsed, or the judgment of conviction has been affirmed on appeal, or when an order granting probation is made suspending the imposition of sentence, irrespective of a subsequent order under Penal Code § 1203.4 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 480(a)(1)].

[d] Rehabilitation

Notwithstanding any other provision of the Business and Professions Code, no person may be denied a license solely on the basis that he or she has been convicted of a felony, if he or she has obtained a certificate of rehabilitation under Penal Code § 4852.01 et seq. Furthermore, no person may be denied a license solely on the basis that he or she has been convicted of a misdemeanor if he or she has met all applicable requirements of the criteria of rehabilitation developed by the agency to evaluate the rehabilitation of a person when considering the denial of a license [Bus. & Prof. Code § 480(b)].

Each agency under the provisions of the Business and Professions Code must develop criteria to evaluate the rehabilitation of a person when considering the denial of a license by the agency under Bus. & Prof. Code § 480 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 482(a)]. Each agency must take into account all competent evidence of rehabilitation furnished by the applicant [Bus. & Prof. Code § 482]. As a general rule, agencies publish their rehabilitation criteria in the California Code of Regulations [see, e.g., 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 99.1 (criteria used by State Board of Accountancy)].

[e] Record of Conviction as Conclusive

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, in a proceeding conducted by an agency within the Department of Consumer Affairs pursuant to law to deny an application for a license or to suspend or revoke a license or otherwise take disciplinary action against a person who holds a license, on the ground that the applicant has been convicted of a crime substantially related to the qualifications, functions, and duties of the licensee in question, the record of conviction of the crime will be conclusive evidence of the fact that the conviction occurred, but only of that fact. The agency may inquire into the circumstances surrounding the commission of the crime in order to fix the degree of discipline or to determine if the conviction is substantially related to the qualifications, functions, and duties of the licensee in question [Bus. & Prof. Code § 493]. As used in Bus. & Prof. Code § 493, "license" includes certificate, permit, authority, and registration [Bus. & Prof. Code § 493].

[7] Substantial Relationship of Crime or Act to Qualifications

Each agency under the provisions of the Business and Professions Code is required to develop criteria to aid it when considering the denial of a license, to determine whether a crime or act is substantially related to the qualifications, functions, or duties of the business or profession it regulates [Bus. & Prof. Code § 481]. As a general rule, agencies publish their "substantial relationship" criteria in the California Code of Regulations [see, e.g, 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 1770 (Board of Pharmacy)].

[8] Good Moral Character

A license may not be denied on the grounds of a lack of good moral character or any similar ground relating to an applicant's character, reputation, personality, or habits [Bus. & Prof. Code § 475(c)]. In addition, no person applying for licensure under the Business and Profession Code will be required to submit to any licensing agency any attestation by other persons to his or her good moral character [Bus. & Prof. Code § 484; but see Bus. & Prof. Code § 476 (exceptions) and discussion in [1], above].

[9] Subversion of Licensing Examination

A board may deny a license on the ground that an applicant or licensee has violated Bus. & Prof. Code § 123 pertaining to the subversion of licensing examinations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 496; see discussion in § 471B.25[3]].

(pertaining to the healing arts), or an initiative act referred to in such statutes, from taking disciplinary action against a licensee or from denying a license for professional misconduct, notwithstanding that evidence of that misconduct may be recorded in a record pertaining to an arrest [Bus. & Prof. Code § 492 (exception for program operated by agency)].

C. Denial of License

41-471B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471B.43

§ 471B.43 Denial of Application

[1] General Procedure

On denial of an application for a license under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 480-489, the agency must either file and serve a statement of issues in accordance with Gov. Code §§ 11500-11528 or notify the applicant that the application is denied. If the agency notifies the applicant that the application is denied, it must state the reason for the denial and that the applicant has the right to a hearing under Gov. Code § 11500 et seq. if a written request for hearing is made within 60 days after service of the notice of denial. Unless a written request for a hearing is made within this 60-day period, the applicant's right to a hearing is deemed waived [Bus. & Prof. Code § 485; but see Bus. & Prof. Code § 489 (no right to hearing on denial if agency also denied applicant's application on identical ground during the preceding year)].

Service of the notice of denial may be made in the manner authorized for service of summons in civil actions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10 et seq.; see also Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers], or by registered mail addressed to the applicant at the latest address furnished by him or her to the agency. Service by mail is complete on the date of mailing [Bus. & Prof. Code § 485].

For discussion and forms relating to administrative trial procedures under Gov. Code § 11500 et seq., see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication et seq.

[2] Hearing on Denial

If a hearing is requested by the applicant, the agency must conduct the hearing within 90 days from the date the hearing is requested unless the applicant requests or agrees in writing to a postponement or continuance of the hearing. Notwithstanding this rule, the Office of Administrative Hearings may order, or on a showing of good cause, grant a request for, up to 45 additional days within which to conduct a hearing, except in cases involving alleged examination or licensing fraud, in which cases the period may be up to 180 days. In no case may more than two such orders be made or requests be granted [Bus. & Prof. Code § 487].

[3] Denial Based on Identical Grounds in Consecutive Years

Any agency in the Department of Consumer Affairs that is authorized by law to deny an application for a license on the grounds specified in Bus. & Prof. Code § 480 may deny an application on such ground without a hearing, if within one year previously, and after proceedings conducted in accordance with Gov. Code § 11500 et seq., the agency has denied an application from the same applicant on the same ground [Bus. & Prof. Code § 489].

In addition, the agency must inform the applicant that all competent evidence of rehabilitation presented will be considered on a reapplication [Bus. & Prof. Code § 486(b)]. Along with the decision, or notice of denial, the agency must serve a copy of its criteria relating to rehabilitation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 486].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Disciplinary Proceedings

41-471B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471B.50

§ 471B.50 Nature of Suspension and Revocation Proceedings

A proceeding to revoke or suspend a license is not a criminal or quasi-criminal prosecution. The purpose of such a proceeding is not to punish but to afford protection to the public on the rationale that respect and confidence of the public is merited by eliminating from the ranks of practitioners those who are dishonest, immoral, disreputable, or incompetent [Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 540, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525] . Even the possibility that criminal charges might result from an administrative proceeding does not transform the nature of the proceeding from a civil to a criminal one [see In re Groban (1957) 352 U.S. 330, 332-333, 77 S. Ct. 510, 1 L. Ed. 2d 376] .

The judicial characterization of suspension and revocation proceedings as "non-criminal" is significant for several reasons. An administrative agency is not required to conduct its proceedings for the revocation of a license in accordance with the theories or rules developed in the field of criminal law [Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 540, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525 ; Lax v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 669, 676, 172 Cal. Rptr. 258 ; see, e.g., Foster v. McConnell (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 701, 707, 329 P.2d 32 (accusations and representations in license revocation proceeding are not required to be proved beyond a reasonable doubt)]. In addition, because a proceeding to revoke or suspend a license is not equivalent to a criminal proceeding, the constitutional protection against "double punishment" [Cal. Const., art. I, § 15] is not violated when an agency suspends or revokes a license based on a licensee's criminal conviction [see Hough v. McCarthy (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 273, 282, 5 Cal. Rptr. 668, 353 P.2d 276 ; Beamon v. Dept. of Motor Vehicles (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 200, 210, 4 Cal. Rptr. 396] .

§ 471B.51 Due Process Standards

[1] General Requirements

The government may not lawfully suspend or revoke a person's license without due process of law [U.S. Const., amend. XIV; Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a); see, e.g., Endler v. Schutzbank (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 162, 169-170, 65 Cal. Rptr. 297, 436 P.2d 297] . This rule applies not only to an initial suspension or revocation, but also to the revocation of probation, when probation may be imposed, and the subsequent suspension or revocation of a license [see Ralph Williams Ford v. New Car Dealers Policy & Appeals Bd. (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 494, 500-501, 106 Cal. Rptr. 340 , cert. denied, 414 U.S. 974, 94 S. Ct. 283, 38 L. Ed. 2d 217] .

However, when the license is one that confers no property or liberty interest on the licensee, there is no right to a hearing either before or after suspension or revocation of the license [see, e.g., Nichols v. County of Santa Clara (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1236, 1241-1245, 273 Cal. Rptr. 84 (license to carry concealed firearm issued under Penal Code § 12050)]. Additionally, if the license is not one that constitutes a statutorily conferred benefit sufficient to trigger procedural protections under the due process clause of the California Constitution prior to revocation, there is no right to a hearing either before or after suspension or revocation of the license [see, e.g., Nichols v. County of Santa Clara (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1236, 1245-1246, 273 Cal. Rptr. 84] . Finally, even if the license constitutes a statutorily conferred benefit under the due process clause of the state Constitution, a balancing of the governmental and the private interests at stake may lead to the conclusion that no procedural protection is required either before or after suspension or revocation of the license [see, e.g., Nichols v. County of Santa Clara (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1236, 1246-1247, 273 Cal. Rptr. 84] .

For detailed discussion of due process requirements as they apply to public agencies, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies .

In a licensee disciplinary action (such as an action to revoke or suspend a license), the licensee is entitled to have counsel of his or her own choosing, for whom he or she must pay the attorney's fees. There is no constitutional right to appointed counsel; thus, a licensee is not denied due process of law when counsel is not furnished him or her, even though he or she is unable to afford counsel [Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 543, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525 ; see U.S. Const., amend. VI; Cal. Const., art. I, § 15; see also White v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 699, 707, 180 Cal. Rptr. 516 (rejecting argument that licensee has right to "effective" counsel in disciplinary action)].

[3] Right to Hearing

When an independent judicial or quasi-judicial determination of facts must be made as a basis for suspension or revocation, a license may not be suspended without granting a hearing to the licensee [Slaughter v. Edwards (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 285, 294, 90 Cal. Rptr. 144] . A hearing on the merits is necessary when an administrative agency is charged by law with the duty of issuing licenses on specified terms and conditions. Such an agency becomes a quasi-judicial body for determining the facts and exercising sound and legal discretion in the performance of its duty. While its procedure may be somewhat informal, the informality does not justify the denial of a hearing [Andrews v. State Board of Registration (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 685, 692, 267 P.2d 352] .

No hearing is necessary when the suspension or revocation of the license results from ministerial action rather than judicial or quasi-judicial action, that is, when the ascertainment of the specified event making it mandatory to suspend or revoke is a question of law. This rule is applied and a mandatory duty to revoke is imposed when the licensee has been convicted of a specified crime. In that case, there is no real necessity to examine the facts, resolve any conflicts in the evidence, and exercise any judgment with respect thereto. The only question is a legal one: whether the licensee was convicted of a crime specified in the statute. In this case, due process is satisfied because the licensee had his or her day in court when he or she was put on trial and convicted of the crime [Slaughter v. Edwards (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 285, 293-294, 90 Cal. Rptr. 144 ; see Yeoman v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 71, 76-77, 78 Cal. Rptr. 251] .

[4] Impact of Changes in Law

If the Legislature simultaneously (1) repeals a licensing law, (2) enacts a new law to replace it, (3) includes in the new law a specific prohibition that is substantially the same as one in the repealed law, and (4) makes violation of the newly enacted prohibition a ground for suspending or revoking a license, and if under the repealed law a violation of the similar superseded prohibition was a ground for suspending or revoking a license, then there is no denial of due process in suspending or revoking, under the new law, the license of a person who obtained his or her license under the repealed law and who, before the simultaneous repeal and enactment, violated the prohibition as set out in the repealed law [see Sobey v. Molony (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 381, 383-391, 104 P.2d 868] .

If the Legislature simultaneously (1) repeals a penal statute and (2) amends another statute so as to carry forward the substance of the repealed statute, there is no denial of due process in treating a conviction under the repealed statute as a conviction for the purpose of suspending or revoking a license pursuant to a licensing law that makes conviction of the crime described in the repealed statute a ground for suspension or revocation [see Plomteaux v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 177, 180-181, 123 Cal. Rptr. 889] .

There is no denial of due process in suspending or revoking the license of a person who obtained it before the effective date of an amendment adding the particular ground, on which the license was suspended or revoked, to the list of grounds set out in the licensing law [see Serenko v. Bright (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 682, 687, 70 Cal. Rptr. 1 (suspension of driver's license for failure to submit to blood alcohol test pursuant to recently enacted implied consent law)].

[5] Proceeding After Suspension of License

The suspension, expiration, or forfeiture by operation of law of a license issued by an agency in the Department of Consumer Affairs, or its suspension, forfeiture, or cancellation by order of the agency or by order of a court of law, or its surrender without the written consent of the agency, will not, during any period in which it may be renewed, restored, or reinstated, deprive a board of its authority to institute or continue a disciplinary proceeding against the licensee on any ground provided by law or to enter an order suspending or revoking a license or otherwise taking disciplinary action against a licensee on any such ground [Bus. & Prof. Code § 118(b)]. There is no denial of due process in giving this authority to a licensing agency [see Cal. Pacific Collections, Inc. v. Powers (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 135, 139-141, 74 Cal. Rptr. 289, 449 P.2d 225 ; 70 Cal. 2d 135, 74 Cal. Rptr. 289, 449 P.2d 225] .

[6] Proceeding After Criminal Acquittal

If a licensee committed an act that is both a criminal offense and a ground for suspending or revoking his or her license, the responsible agency may proceed against him or her with a view to suspending or revoking the license even if he or she has been acquitted in a trial for the criminal offense [see Traxler v. Board of Medical Examiners (1933) 135 Cal. App. 37, 39-40, 26 P.2d 710 ; Bold v. Board of Medical Examiners (1933) 135 Cal. App 29, 33-35, 26 P.2d 707 ; Tapley v. Abbott (1931) 111 Cal. App. 397, 399-400, 295 P. 911] . The purpose of the administrative proceeding is not to punish the licensee; the purpose is to protect the public [see, e.g., Yakov v. Board of Medical Examiners (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 67, 73 n.6, 64 Cal. Rptr. 785, 435 P.2d 553] . Therefore, there is no double jeopardy problem, and the guaranty of due process is not violated, when a licensee is both prosecuted for a criminal offense and proceeded against administratively with the possibility that his or her license will be suspended or revoked [see Petrucci v. Board of Medical Examiners (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 83, 87-88, 117 Cal. Rptr. 735] . In addition, the administrative proceeding is not barred by the doctrine of res judicata, because the acquittal in the criminal prosecution is based on the reasonable doubt standard, while a decision in an administrative proceeding against a licensee is based on the lesser preponderance of the evidence standard [see Holt v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 427, 433, 218 Cal. Rptr. 1] .

[7] Multiple Proceedings Against One Licensee

If a person holding two different licenses does an act that is a ground for suspension or revocation of each license, there is no denial of due process when he or she is subjected first to a disciplinary proceeding respecting one of the licenses and then to a second proceeding, before a different agency, respecting the other license [see Cooper v. State Board of Public Health (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 926, 930, 229 P.2d 27] .

[8] Specifying Grounds in Licensing Law

Due process requires that the specification in a licensing law of grounds for suspension or revocation of a license be given a relatively strict construction. Acts that are not fairly within the specific descriptions of grounds for disciplinary actions may not be the basis for suspending or revoking a license [see Barron v. Board of Dental Examiners (1930) 109 Cal. App. 382, 384-385, 293 P. 144] . For discussion of statutory construction principles, see § 471B.52[1].

[9] Suspension or Revocation Without Fault

The Supreme Court has held, by comparison with the tort theory of strict liability, that a license may be suspended or revoked in specified circumstances whether or not there is any evidence that the licensee was in fact culpable [see Sandstrom v. Cal. Horse Racing Board (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 401, 406, 189 P.2d 17 , cert. denied, 335 U.S. 814, 69 S. Ct. 31, 93 L. Ed. 369] .

Similarly, a licensee can be disciplined for conduct that was not knowingly or willfully done by the licensee because the licensee was responsible for the acts of its agents or employees [Stokes v. California Horse Racing Board (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 477, 479-480, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 792 (licensed horse trainer disciplined for entering horse in race when horse was not eligible based upon actions of licensee's brother as agent of licensee)].

§ 471B.52 Construction of Specific Licensing Statutes

[1] Basic Rules

Licensing statutes are subject to judicial construction and interpretation [Medical Board of California v. Superior Court (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1004-1005, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381 (court of appeal construed Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 141, 2350, which provided a basis for discipline of a physician in California based on out of state discipline)]. The following discussion in [2]-[9], below, covers basic rules that courts have formulated to deal with specific types of language in particular licensing statutes; these rules, by way of analogy, may be used as an aid in construing licensing statutes.

[2] Aiding and Abetting Unlicensed Person

If a licensing law specifies aiding and abetting an unlicensed person as a ground for suspending or revoking a license [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 1680(c)], or specifies aiding and abetting a licensed person to practice, or otherwise engage in the regulated activity, unlawfully [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 1680(d)], it must be construed to specify aiding and abetting with knowledge that the other person is unlicensed or is practicing, or otherwise engaging in the regulated activity, unlawfully [see Osborne v. Baughman (1927) 85 Cal. App. 224, 227-228, 259 P. 70 ; see also Lassen v. Board of Dental Examiners (1914) 24 Cal. App. 767, 771-772, 142 P. 505 (evidence of knowledge)]. One court has stated that the word "aid" imputes no knowledge or notice of the unlawful act or purpose, while the word "abet" presupposes a guilty knowledge on the part of the accused individual. Under this construction, statutes setting up aiding and abetting as grounds for license suspension or revocation should be interpreted to apply to the abetting, rather than to the merely aiding, party [Barrett v. Board of Osteopathic Exmrs. (1935) 4 Cal. App. 2d 135, 139, 40 P.2d 923] .

The California Medical Board's decision to fine a physician $500 for aiding the unlicensed practice of medicine in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 2264 was upheld by the court of appeal. The court concluded that there was substantial evidence in the administrative record before the board that the physician had knowledge that the clinic where he practiced was partially owned by two individuals who were not licensed to practice medicine in California [Steinsmith v. Medical Board of California (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 458, 465-466, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 115] .

[3] Breaches of Confidence

If a licensing law specifies "willful betraying of a professional secret" [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 2379 [repealed 1980]], or a substantially similar act, as a ground for suspending or revoking a license, it may not be construed as describing any and all disclosures that a licensee might intentionally make. Rather, it must be construed as describing a disclosure that is harmful to the client, patient, or the like, and which the licensee knows or should know would be harmful, in effect a disclosure that the licensee ought not to make and knows he or she ought not to make, but makes anyway, for an improper purpose [see McPheeters v. Board of Medical Examiners (1930) 103 Cal. App. 297, 299-301, 284 P. 938] .

[4] Conviction of Crime

[a] Felony

If a licensing law specifies conviction of a felony as a ground for suspending or revoking a license, the law of the forum where the offender (licensee) is convicted determines whether the offense is a felony [see Furnish v. Board of Medical Examiners (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 326, 330, 308 P.2d 924, 309 P.2d 493] .

[b] Conviction on Nolo Contendere Plea

Unless the governing law specifies otherwise, a conviction on a plea of nolo contendere is not the equivalent of a conviction on a plea or verdict of guilty. When a licensing law specifies merely a conviction, without expressly including conviction on a plea of nolo contendere as a ground for suspending or revoking a license, it refers only to a conviction on a plea or verdict of guilty [see Cartwright v. Board of Chiropractic Examiners (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 762, 768-774, 129 Cal. Rptr. 462, 548 P.2d 1134] .

[c] Multiple Convictions

The rule respecting conviction on a plea of nolo contendere also applies when a licensing law specifies multiple convictions as a ground for suspending or revoking a license. For instance, a law that specifies conviction of more than one misdemeanor without also specifying that conviction includes a conviction on a plea of nolo contendere refers only to convictions on pleas or verdicts of guilty. For the purpose of applying the law, a person who has been convicted on two different occasions, once on a plea of nolo contendere and another time on a plea or verdict of guilty, has not been convicted of more than one misdemeanor [see Grannis v. Board of Medical Examiners (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 551, 559-560, 96 Cal. Rptr. 863] .

[d] Crime Involving Moral Turpitude

When a licensing law specifies conviction of a crime involving moral turpitude as a ground for suspending or revoking a license, it refers to conviction of an offense that necessarily, and in every case, indicates moral turpitude. Only if the minimum elements for a conviction necessarily involve moral turpitude and a conviction cannot be had without proof of facts showing moral turpitude can the conviction be held to be of an offense involving moral turpitude [Lorenz v. Board of Medical Examiners (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 684, 687, 298 P.2d 537 ; see Cartwright v. Board of Chiropractic Examiners (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 762, 766-768, 129 Cal. Rptr. 462, 548 P.2d 1134] .

As a general rule, crimes that involve moral turpitude are those that reveal the convicted person's dishonesty, general readiness to do evil, bad character, moral depravity, or intent to corrupt others [see Clerici v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1016, 1027-1028, 274 Cal. Rptr. 230 (proceedings relating to denial of application for, rather than suspension or revocation of, license)]. While the definition of moral turpitude is generally amorphous, moral turpitude is inherent in crimes involving fraudulent intent and intentional dishonesty for purposes of personal gain or other corrupt purposes [see Clerici v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1016, 1028, 274 Cal.

Rptr. 230] . For further discussion of licensing laws specifying moral turpitude, immoral conduct, and related grounds for suspending or revoking a license, see [7], below.

[5] Deceptive Advertising

When a licensing law specifies deceptive or misleading advertising as a ground for suspending or revoking a license [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 1680(h)], falsity is not a necessary element unless the law specifies false and misleading advertising [see Webster v. Board of Dental Examiners (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 534, 541-542, 110 P.2d 992] . Intent to deceive or mislead is not necessarily an implied element [see Smulson v. Board of Dental Examiners (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 584, 588, 118 P.2d 483] . A specification of the ground in these words, "the making use of any advertising statements of a character tending to deceive or mislead the public," as they appear in Bus. & Prof. Code § 1680(h), is not so vague or uncertain as to invalidate the provision [see Smulson v. Board of Dental Examiners (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 584, 588, 118 P.2d 483 (interpreting former Bus. & Prof. Code § 1680)].

[6] Fraudulent Acts

A licensing law may specify fraudulent or dishonest acts as a ground for suspending or revoking a license. The word "dishonest" is not unconstitutionally vague and the word "fraudulent" does not mean criminally fraudulent or deceitful, but includes both criminal and noncriminal fraud [see Wayne v. Bureau of Private Investigators & Adjusters (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 427, 436-440, 20 Cal. Rptr. 194] .

[7] Immoral Conduct and Moral Turpitude

As used in the context of professional licensing, "moral turpitude" is a term of art that has more precise meaning in its application to a particular profession. Because the right to practice a profession is sufficiently precious to surround it with a panoply of legal protection, terms such as "immoral," "unprofessional," and "moral turpitude" constitute only lingual abstractions until they are applied to a specific occupation and given content by reference to fitness for the performance of that vocation [In re Johnson (1992) 1 Cal. 4th 689, 698, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 170, 822 P.2d 1317 ; Morrison v. State Board of Education (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 214, 239, 220, 82 Cal. Rptr. 175, 461 P.2d 375] . Thus, if a licensing law specifies immoral or unprofessional conduct, an act or a crime involving moral turpitude, or gross immorality, as a ground for suspending or revoking a license, the only constitutional interpretation of that language is an act showing the licensee's unfitness to continue being engaged in the regulated activity [see Morrison v. State Board of Education (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 214, 229-233, 82 Cal. Rptr. 175, 461 P.2d 375] .

However, what constitutes unfitness to continue being engaged in a regulated activity is a matter of opinion. In Morrison, the Supreme Court held that a teacher's license could not be revoked merely because he had had a brief homosexually oriented relationship [Morrison v. State Board of Education (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 214, 235-238, 82 Cal. Rptr. 175, 461 P.2d 375] . In a later case, Pettit v. State Board of Education (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 29, 109 Cal. Rptr. 665, 513 P.2d 889 , the Court upheld the revocation of a teacher's license, that action having been taken because the teacher had participated in various sexual acts at a private club, had been arrested on that ground by an undercover police officer who observed those acts, and had been convicted (by plea bargain) of violating former *Penal Code § 650*1/2 (outraging public decency). In Pettit, the teacher and her husband had also appeared on two local television shows, in disguise to hide their identities, and had discussed in that forum their philosophy in favor of nonconventional sexual lifestyles. In upholding the revocation of the teacher's license in Pettit, the Supreme Court discussed at length why the Morrison case was not applicable [Pettit v. State Board of Education (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 29, 34-35, 109 Cal. Rptr. 665, 513 P.2d 889] .

[8] Misrepresentation of Professional Status

When a licensing law specifies misrepresentation of a licensee's professional status, such as a physician representing himself or herself to be a doctor of osteopathy (D.O.) without being entitled to use that designation [see Bus. & Prof.

Code § 2276], as a ground for suspending or revoking a license, it must be construed as referring to a representation that the licensee either knows or ought reasonably to know is mistaken. Innocent misrepresentation may not be a ground for discipline [see Allegretti v. Bd. of Osteopathic Examiners (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 435, 440, 302 P.2d 694] . Furthermore, the law must be construed as referring to a material misrepresentation. If a licensee's professional status is not related to his or her qualifications for the license, his or her misrepresentation of that status is irrelevant. For instance, at one time a doctorate degree was not required in order to obtain a psychologist's license [but see Bus. & Prof. Code § 2914 (amended in 1967 to require doctorate degree)]. Therefore, a psychologist licensed under the former law could not be disciplined for misrepresenting himself or herself as the holder of a doctorate degree [Packer v. Board of Medical Examiners (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 63, 70-71, 112 Cal. Rptr. 76] .

[9] Unprofessional Conduct

If a licensing law specifies unprofessional conduct as a ground for suspending or revoking a license, and whether or not the law defines unprofessional conduct as including certain specified acts, it must be construed as referring to an act that shows the licensee's unfitness to continue being engaged in the licensed activity [see Morrison v. State Board of Education (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 214, 229-233, 82 Cal. Rptr. 175, 461 P.2d 375 ; see also [7], above]. The Medical Board of California properly imposed discipline (two year probation period) on a physician for unprofessional conduct by the physician based of a finding of two repeated acts of professional negligence by the physician [Zabetian v. Medical Board of California (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 462, 468-469, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 917] .

A licensed court reporter who was charged with repeated failure to pay subcontractor shorthand reporters for services performed on behalf of the reporter could not be disciplined by the Court Reporters Board for unprofessional conduct under Bus. & Prof. Code § 8025(d) because the scope of shorthand reporting practice does not include business or accounting practice related to shorthand duties. Thus, the reporters nonpayment of subcontractors was not unprofessional conduct in the practice of shorthand reporting, which is defined under Bus. & Prof. Code § 8017 to include preparation and execution of the transcript but not business or accounting practices [Hall v. Court Reporters Board of California (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 633, 639-640, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 847] . However, a physician could be disciplined for unprofessional conduct under Bus. & Prof. Code § 2239(a) when the physician had two or more convictions for misdemeanor alcohol related driving violations [Griffiths v. Superior Court (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 757, 762, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445] . The physician's constitutional rights to due process of law and equal protection of the law are not violated by discipline based on alcohol consumption related convictions because there is a rational connection between those convictions and a physician's license to practice medicine [Griffiths v. Superior Court (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 757, 770-771, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Disciplinary Proceedings

41-471B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471B.53

§ 471B.53 Suspension or Revocation of License

[1] General Grounds

As discussed in § 471B.52[1], numerous statutes set forth standards for revocation and suspension of particular types of business and professional licenses. In addition to these specific statutes, however, are general statutes, which govern suspension and revocation without regard to the particular type of license involved. These provisions, Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 475 et. seq, govern the suspension and revocation of licenses based on the following grounds [Bus. & Prof. Code § 475(b)]:

- Knowingly making a false statement of material fact, or knowingly omitting to state a material fact, in an application for a license.
- Conviction of a crime.

For general discussion of Bus. & Prof. Code § 475 et seq., see § 471B.40.

[2] Criminal Conviction

Under Bus. & Prof. Code § 490, an agency may suspend or revoke a license on the ground that the licensee has been convicted of a crime, if the crime is substantially related to the qualifications, functions, or duties of the business or profession for which the license was issued [Bus. & Prof. Code § 490]. For purposes of Bus. & Prof. Code § 490, a "conviction" includes the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 490]:

- A plea of guilty.
- A verdict of guilty.
- A conviction following a plea of nolo contendere.

Any action that an agency is permitted to take following the establishment of a conviction may be taken when the time for appeal has elapsed, or the judgment of conviction has been affirmed on appeal, or when an order granting probation is made suspending the imposition of sentence, irrespective of a subsequent order under Penal Code § 1203.4 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 490]. Bus. & Prof. Code § 493, relating to the conclusive effect of a record of conviction, applies in license revocation and suspension proceedings. For discussion of this provision, see § 471B.40[6][e].

Discipline imposed on a dentist by the Board of Dental Examiners under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 1670, and 1670.1, based on misdemeanor convictions of the dentist and entered into pursuant to a stipulation between the dentist and the Board could not be set aside even though the criminal convictions were later vacated by the granting of a habeas corpus writ because the dentist is bound by the stipulation [Stermer v. Board of Dental Examiners (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 128, 130-131, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 294] .

[3] False Statement of Fact

[a] License Application

A board may revoke, suspend, or otherwise restrict a license on the ground that the licensee, in support of another person's application for license, knowingly made a false statement of a material fact to the board regarding the application [Bus. & Prof. Code § 499; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 478 ("material" defined)].

[b] Misrepresentation or Omission of Material Fact

[i] In License Application

A board may revoke, suspend, or otherwise restrict a license on the ground that the licensee secured the license by knowing misrepresentation of a material fact or by knowingly omitting to state a material fact [Bus. & Prof. Code § 498; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 478 ("material" defined)]. Revocation of a license can also be based on improper conduct that occurred before the license was issued [Hughes v. Board of Architectural Examiners (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 763, 768, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 624, 952 P. 2d 641] .

[ii] To Licensing Board

A board may revoke, suspend, or otherwise restrict a license on the ground that the licensee secured the license by knowing misrepresentation of a material fact or by knowingly omitting to state a material fact [Bus. & Prof. Code § 498; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 478 ("material" defined)]. A board may revoke, suspend, or otherwise restrict a license on the ground that the licensee, in support of another person's application for license, knowingly omitted to state a material fact to the board regarding the application [Bus. & Prof. Code § 499; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 478 ("application" and "material" defined)].

[4] Subversion of Examination

A board may deny, suspend, or otherwise restrict a license on the ground that an applicant or licensee has violated Bus. & Prof. Code § 123, pertaining to the subversion of licensing examinations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 496; see discussion in § 471B.40[9]].

[5] Unlawful Discrimination

In addition to the general grounds for discipline established by Bus. & Prof. Code § 475 et seq., every person who holds a license under the Business and Professions Code is subject to disciplinary action under the provisions of the code applicable to that person if, because of the applicant's race, color, sex, religion, ancestry, physical disability, marital status, or national origin, he or she refuses to perform the licensed activity or aids or incites the refusal to perform the licensed activity by another licensee, or if he or she makes any discrimination or restriction in the performance of the licensed activity [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.6].

Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.6, however, does not require a person licensed under Bus. & Prof. Code § 500 et seq. (healing arts) to permit an individual to participate in, or benefit from, the licensed activity of the licensee when that individual poses a direct threat to the health or safety of others. For this purpose, "direct threat" means a significant risk to the health or safety of others that cannot be eliminated by a modification of policies, practices, or procedures, or by the provision of auxiliary aids and services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.6].

These provisions also are not applicable to discrimination by employers with regard to employees or prospective employees, against specified clubs because of discriminatory membership policies, or with regard to architectural barriers to an individual with physical disabilities if the barriers conform to applicable building codes [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.6].

[6] Improper Grounds

[a] Bankruptcy

A licensing law that specifies bankruptcy as a ground for suspending or revoking a license is unconstitutional as a violation of the supremacy clause [U.S. Const., art. VI; Grimes v. Hoschler (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 305, 308-314, 115 Cal. Rptr. 625, 525 P.2d 65 , cert. denied, 420 U.S. 973, 95 S. Ct. 1394, 43 L. Ed. 2d 653 (1975) ; see 11 U.S.C. § 525(a) (precluding denial, revocation, suspension, or refusal to renew license of debtor solely because of status as debtor under Bankruptcy Act or because of debtor's failure to pay discharged debt); but see Brookman v. State Bar (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1004, 1009, 251 Cal. Rptr. 495, 760 P.2d 1023 (restitution of discharged debt is permissible condition of probation in State Bar disciplinary proceeding)].

[b] Client Security Fund Claim

A licensing law that specifies payment of a client security fund claim as a ground for automatic suspension of a license is unconstitutional to the extent that it does not give the licensee an opportunity to appear at a hearing and contest the propriety of paying the claim from the fund [Slaughter v. Edwards (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 285, 295, 90 Cal. Rptr. 144] .

[c] Moral Character

A license may not be suspended or revoked on the grounds of lack of good moral character or any similar ground relating to an applicant's character, reputation, personality, or habits [Bus. & Prof. Code § 475(c)].

[d] Sexual Conduct or Orientation

A licensing law may not constitutionally make a licensee's sexual conduct or inclination a ground for suspending or revoking his or her license except to the extent that such conduct or inclination shows the licensee as unfit to continue being engaged in the regulated activity [see Morrison v. State Board of Education (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 214, 229-233, 82 Cal. Rptr. 175, 461 P.2d 375] .

[7] Fraud or Deceit

A board may revoke, suspend, or otherwise restrict a license on the ground that the licensee secured the license by fraud or deceit [Bus. & Prof. Code § 498]. Revocation by DMV of a vehicle salesperson's license was upheld on judicial review when the salesperson committed fraud in violation of Veh. Code § 11705(a)(14) by selling a motor vehicle to a buyer when the salesperson's company did not have title to the vehicle [Provenzano v. Department of Motor Vehicles

[8] Effect of Drug Diversion Program

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, successful completion of any diversion program under the Penal Code, or successful completion of an alcohol and drug problem assessment program under Veh. Code § 23249.50, will not prohibit an agency established under Bus. & Prof. Code § 500 et seq. (pertaining to the healing arts), or an initiative act referred to in such statutes, from taking disciplinary action against a licensee for professional misconduct, notwithstanding that evidence of that misconduct may be recorded in a record pertaining to an arrest [Bus. & Prof. Code § 492 (exception for program operated by agency)].

[9] Evidence

When an administrative agency initiates an action to suspend or revoke a license, the burden of proving the facts necessary to support the action rests with the agency making the allegation. Until the agency has met its burden of going forward with the evidence necessary to sustain a finding, the licensee has no duty to rebut the allegations or otherwise respond [Daniels v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 532, 536, 189 Cal. Rptr. 512, 658 P.2d 1313] . The burden of proof in administrative proceedings involving the revocation or suspension of a professional license is clear and convincing proof to a reasonable certainty [James v. Board of Dental Examiners (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 1096, 1105, 218 Cal. Rptr. 710] . Hearsay evidence alone is insufficient to support revocation of a license [Nardoni v. McConnell (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 500, 504, 310 P.2d 644 ; Carl S. v. Commission for Teacher Preparation & Licensing (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 365, 369, 178 Cal. Rptr. 753 ; see also Dyer v. Watson (1953) 121 Cal.App. 2d 84, 92, 262 P.2d 873 (mere uncorroborated hearsay does not constitute substantial evidence)]. If review of a recommendation of a disciplinary board is sought, the burden is on the one seeking review to show that the board's findings are not supported by the evidence or that its recommendation is erroneous or unlawful [Simmons v. State Bar (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 361, 364, 74 Cal. Rptr. 915, 450 P.2d 291] .

For further discussion of procedures under Gov. Code § 11500 et seq. in a proceeding to revoke or suspend a license, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , et seq.

[10] Information to Ex-Licensee

On suspension or revocation of a license by an agency on one or more of the grounds specified in Bus. & Prof. Code § 490 (that is, a criminal conviction), the agency must send the following items to the ex-licensee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 491]:

- A copy of the provisions of Gov. Code § 11522, regarding the requirements for restoration of rights [for discussion of restoration of rights, see § 473.35].

- A copy of the criteria relating to rehabilitation formulated by the agency under Bus. & Prof. Code § 482 [for discussion of Bus. & Prof. Code § 482, see § 471B.40[6][d]].

[11] Interim Suspension or Restrictions

[a] General Requirements

A board or an administrative law judge sitting alone may, on receiving a petition, issue an interim order suspending any licensee or imposing license restrictions, including, but not limited to, mandatory biological fluid testing, supervision, or remedial training [Bus. & Prof. Code § 494(a)]. "Board" includes an allied health agency within the jurisdiction of the Medical Board of California and also the Osteopathic Medical Board of California and the State Board of Chiropractic Examiners. The procedures described here are not applicable to the Medical Board of California, the Board of Podiatric

Medicine, or the State Athletic Commission [Bus. & Prof. Code § 494(m)].

For discussion of similar procedures that are applicable to the Medical Board of California and the Board of Podiatric Medicine [see Gov. Code § 11529; see also Ch. 414, Physicians: Licensing and Discipline].

[b] Petition for Interim Order of Suspension or Restrictions

In the case of a board, a petition for an interim order may be filed by the executive officer. In the case of a bureau or program, a petition may be filed by the chief or program administrator, as the case may be [Bus. & Prof. Code § 494(l)]. The petition must include affidavits that demonstrate to the satisfaction of the board both of the following:

- The licensee has engaged in acts or omissions constituting a violation of a provision of the Business and Professions Code or has been convicted of a crime substantially related to licensed activity [Bus. & Prof. Code § 494(a)(1)]. A plea or verdict of guilty or a conviction after a plea of nolo contendere is deemed to be a conviction. A certified record of the conviction is conclusive evidence of the fact that the conviction occurred. A board may take action on a petition for an interim order for suspension or restrictions notwithstanding the fact that an appeal of the conviction may be taken [Bus. & Prof. Code § 494(j)].

- That permitting the licensee to continue to engage in the licensed activity, or permitting the licensee to continue in the licensed activity without restrictions, would endanger the public health, safety, or welfare [Bus. & Prof. Code § 494(a)(2)].

[c] Notice of Hearing on Petition

No interim order may be issued without notice to the licensee unless it appears from the petition and supporting documents that serious injury would result to the public before the matter could be heard on notice [Bus. & Prof. Code § 494(b)].

Normally the licensee must be given at least 15 days' notice of the hearing on the petition for an interim order. The notice must include documents submitted to the board in support of the petition. If the order was initially issued without notice, the licensee is entitled to a hearing on the petition within 20 days after the issuance of the interim order. The licensee must be given notice of the hearing within two days after issuance of the initial interim order and must receive all documents in support of the petition. The failure of the board to provide a hearing within 20 days following the issuance of the interim order without notice, unless the licensee waives his or her right to the hearing, results in the dissolution of the interim order by operation of law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 494(c)].

[d] Hearing on Petition

At the hearing on the petition for an interim order, the licensee may [Bus. & Prof. Code § 494(d)]:

- Be represented by counsel.

- Have a record made of the proceedings, copies of which must be available to the licensee upon payment of costs computed in accordance with the provisions for transcript costs for judicial review contained in the Administrative Procedure Act [see Gov. Code § 11523].

- Present affidavits and other documentary evidence.

- Present oral argument.

[e] Decision on Petition

The board or an administrative law judge sitting alone must issue a decision on the petition for an interim order within five business days following submission of the matter. The standard of proof required to obtain an interim order is a preponderance of the evidence. If the interim order was previously issued without notice, the board must determine whether the order will remain in effect, be dissolved, or be modified [Bus. & Prof. Code § 494(e)].

[f] Accusation Following Issuance of Interim Order

The board must file an accusation within 15 days after the issuance of an interim order. In the case of an interim order issued without notice, the time runs from the date of the order issued after the noticed hearing. If the licensee files a notice of defense, the hearing must be held within 30 days after the agency's receipt of the notice of defense. A decision must be rendered on the accusation no later than 30 days after submission of the matter. Failure to comply with any of these requirements results in the dissolution of the interim order by operation of law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 494(f)].

[g] Judicial Review of Interim Orders

Interim orders are subject to judicial review pursuant to the administrative mandamus statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5]. The petition for review must be heard only in the superior court in either Sacramento County, San Francisco, Los Angeles County, or San Diego County. The review of an interim order must be limited to a determination of whether the board abused its discretion in the issuance of the interim order. Abuse of discretion is established if the respondent board has not proceeded in the manner required by law or if the court determines that the interim order is not supported by substantial evidence in light of the whole record [Bus. & Prof. Code § 494(g)].

[h] Role of Administrative Law Judge

The board may, in its sole discretion, delegate the hearing on any petition for an interim order to an administrative law judge in the Office of Administrative Hearings. If the board hears the noticed petition itself, an administrative law judge must preside at the hearing, rule on the admission and exclusion of evidence, and advise the board on matters of law. The board must exercise all other powers relating to the conduct of the hearing but may delegate any or all of them to the administrative law judge.

When the petition has been delegated to an administrative law judge, he or she must sit alone and exercise all of the powers of the board relating to the conduct of the hearing. A decision issued by an administrative law judge sitting alone is final when it is filed with the board. If the administrative law judge issues an interim order without notice, he or she must preside at the noticed hearing if available, otherwise another administrative law judge may hear the matter. The decision of the administrative law judge sitting alone, on the petition for an interim order, is final, subject only to judicial review [Bus. & Prof. Code § 494(h)].

[i] Noncompliance With Interim Order

Failure to comply with an interim order constitutes a separate cause for disciplinary action against any licensee, which may be heard at, and as a part of, the noticed hearing on the accusation. Allegations of noncompliance with the interim order may be filed at any time before the rendering of a decision on the accusation. Violation of the interim order is established on proof that the licensee was on notice of the interim order and its terms and that the order was in effect at the time of the violation. The finding of a violation of an interim order made at the hearing on the accusation must be reviewed as a part of any review of a final decision of the agency [Bus. & Prof. Code § 494(i)].

If the interim order issued by the agency provides for anything less than a complete suspension of the licensee from his or her business or profession, and the licensee violates the interim order before the hearing on the accusation, the agency may, upon notice to the licensee and proof of the violation, modify or expand the interim order [Bus. & Prof. Code §

494(i)]. Interim orders for suspension or restrictions are in addition to, and not a limitation on, the authority to seek injunctive relief provided in any other provision of law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 494(k)].

[12] Summary Suspension

The Court of Appeal upheld the authority of a hospital peer review committee to summarily suspend a doctor's hospital clinical privileges to protect the well-being of prospective patients at that hospital. The doctor suffered from depression, mental distress, and severe family and personal stresses, that made it very difficult for her to act professionally toward her patients. The hospital acted under the statutory authority of Bus. & Prof. Code § 809.5, which authorized medical peer review bodies to suspend clinical privileges of a doctor immediately when there was imminent danger to the health of any person. The hospital based its suspension decision on the risks to prospective patients at the hospital. The court of appeal held that harm to prospective patients was within the scope of the hospital peer review body's authority to summarily suspend a physician, given that the needs of public safety outweigh the doctor's due process rights [MedicalStaff of Sharp Mem'l Hosp. v. Superior Court (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 173, 181-183, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 769] .

[13] Public Reprovals

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any entity authorized to issue a license or certificate pursuant to the Business and Professions Code may publicly reprove a licentiate or certificate holder under that code, for any act that would constitute grounds to suspend or revoke a license or certificate. Any proceedings for public reproval, public reproval and suspension, or public reproval and revocation must be conducted in accordance with Gov. Code § 11500 et seq. [Bus. & Prof. Code § 495; for discussion of Gov. Code § 11500 et seq., see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , et seq.].

[14] Reinstatement of License

If a person's license is revoked, and he or she later seeks reinstatement of the license, the person has no greater rights than a person seeking an original license [Crandell v. Fox (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 760, 763, 150 Cal. Rptr. 426 ; Housman v. Board of Medical Examiners (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 308, 312, 190 P.2d 653] .

For forms of petition for reconsideration or restoration of rights, see Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions, §§ 473G.70, 473G.71.

§ 471B.60 Judicial Review by Writ of Mandate

[1] Administrative Mandate

A writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 (commonly termed the "writ of administrative mandate") provides the basic framework by which an aggrieved party to an administrative proceeding may seek judicial review of any final order or decision rendered by a state or local agency [Bixby v. Pierno (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 130, 137, 93 Cal. Rptr. 234, 481 P.2d 242 ; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1084-1097, 1107-1109]. It is the proper method to seek review of a decision denying an application for a license [Savelli v. Board of Medical Examiners (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 124, 142, 40 Cal. Rptr. 171] , or an order revoking or suspending a license [Dare v. Bd. of Medical Examiners (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 790, 795-796, 136 P.2d 304] .

For forms of a petition for a writ of administrative mandate and of an alternative writ of mandate for use after the denial of a license application, see §§ 471B.104, 471B.105. For forms of petition for a writ of administrative mandate and of alternative writs of mandate for use after the revocation or suspension of a license, see §§ 471B.106, 471B.111.

For detailed discussion and forms relating to judicial review of administrative adjudications, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

[2] Ordinary Mandate

If an agency's action is quasi-legislative (e.g., the adoption of regulations) or merely ministerial (i.e., action involving no exercise of discretion in its performance), and does not make a determination within its quasi-judicial function, an action for traditional mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 is appropriate [Rich v. State Bd. of Optometry (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 591, 600-602, 45 Cal. Rptr. 512 ; see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition]. For forms of a petition for mandate and of an alternative writ of mandate for use to compel an agency to act on a license application, see §§ 471B.100, 471B.101. For forms for use to compel an agency to set aside a summary denial of an application, see §§ 471B.102, 471B.103.

§ 471B.61 Review Governed by Special Statutes

In some instances, review may be governed by a special statute. For example, in a mandate proceeding to review a decision by the Medical Board of California to deny an application for a license, a statutory provision requires the use the substantial evidence test and may not use the independent judgment test [Bus. & Prof. Code § 2087; see further discussion of standards of review in partidcular situations in Ch. 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions].

Venue is also limited by statute to the superior courts located in the cities of Los Angeles, Sacramento, San Diego, and San Francisco [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2019, 2087].

Any person refused certification to the Supreme Court for admission to practice law may have the action of the Board of Governors of the State Bar, or of the Committee of Bar Examiners, reviewed by the Supreme Court, in accordance with the procedure prescribed by the court. These actions are now directed to the State Bar Court prior to discretionary review by the Supreme Court [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6066; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 9.13 (procedure); see generally Ch. 71, Attorney Discipline].

§ 471B.62 Agency Decisions Not Subject to Review by Director of Consumer Affairs

[1] General Rule

Except as provided in Bus. & Prof. Code § 109(b), (c) (discussed under [2], below), the decisions of any of the agencies in the Department of Consumer Affairs [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 101 (list of included agencies)] with respect to setting standards, conducting examinations, passing candidates, and revoking licenses are not subject to review by the Director of Consumer Affairs but are final within the limits provided by the Business and Professions Code that are applicable to the particular agency [Bus. & Prof. Code § 109(a)].

[2] Exceptions for Director's Investigation or Intervention

The director may initiate an investigation of any allegations of misconduct in the preparation, administration, or scoring of an examination that is administered by a board, or in the review of qualifications that are a part of the licensing process of any board. The director initiates an investigation by requesting one, and makes the request either of the Division of Investigation through the chief of the division or of any law enforcement agency in the jurisdiction in which the alleged misconduct occurred [Bus. & Prof. Code § 109(b)].

Additionally, the director may intervene in any matter of any board when an investigation by the Division of Investigation discloses probable cause to believe that the conduct or activity of a board, or its members or employees, constitutes a violation of criminal law. In this context, "intervene" may include, but is not limited to, an application for a restraining order or injunctive relief as specified in Bus. & Prof. Code § 123.5 (availability of injunctive relief to restrain or enjoin conduct that subverts or attempts to subvert any licensing examination or the administration of an examination) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 109(c); see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 123 (conduct constituting subversion of licensing examinations or administration of examinations), 123.5 (injunctive relief to restrain or enjoin that conduct), both discussed in § 471B.40[9], above]. For the purposes of Bus. & Prof. Code § 109, the director is deemed to have standing under Bus. & Prof. Code § 123.5. In the event of a conflict in pursuing an action thereunder, the director is required to seek representation of the Attorney General or other appropriate counsel [Bus. & Prof. Code § 109(c)]. Intervention may also include, but is not limited to, a referral or request for criminal prosecution [Bus. & Prof. Code § 109(c)].

F. Violation of License Requirement

§ 471B.70 Basic Remedies Against Violator

[1] Injunctive Relief

[a] Violation of Provisions Enforced by Department of Consumer Affairs

The superior court in the county in which any person has engaged or is about to engage in any act that constitutes a violation of a chapter of the Business and Professions Code administered or enforced by an agency in the Department of Consumer Affairs [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 101 (list of included agencies); see also a list of the more significant subagencies in this department in Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law, § 470.20[2]] may, on a petition filed by the agency with the approval of the Director of Consumer Affairs, issue an injunction or other appropriate order restraining that conduct.

The injunction proceedings are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 525 et seq. [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5(a)]. For discussion of procedures for obtaining injunctions generally, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

In certain cases, an agency may have specific statutory authority to pursue injunction proceedings in a manner other than that specifically provided by Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5. For instance, the Medical Board of California is authorized to sue without first obtaining permission from the Director of Consumer Affairs [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 2311; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1859 (when general and specific statutory provisions are inconsistent, specific provision controls over general provision)].

In some cases licensees are empowered to sue. For example, ten or more licensed physicians and surgeons may sue to enjoin a violation by a fellow licensee of the licensing requirements of the Medical Practice Act [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 2311]. Injunctive relief is also available when a person engages, or is about to engage in conduct that subverts a licensing examination [see discussion in § 471B.40[9]].

[b] Violation of Provisions Enforced by Boards Overseeing Healing Arts or Professions and Vocations Generally

Temporary restraining orders or other injunctive relief similar to that available under Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5 [see [1][a], above] is also available for violations of provisions administered or enforced by a board referred to in Bus. & Prof. Code § 500 et seq. (boards governing the healing arts) or Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 et seq. (boards governing the professions and vocations generally) [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 125.7 (restraining order procedure for healing arts boards), 125.8 (restraining order procedure for professions and vocations boards)].

[2] Restitution

The superior court in the county in which any person has engaged in any act that constitutes a violation of a chapter of the Business and Professions Code administered or enforced by an agency in the Department of Consumer Affairs [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 101 (list of included agencies); see also a list of the more significant subagencies within this department in Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law, § 470.20[2]] may, on a petition filed by the agency with the approval of the Director of Consumer Affairs, order that person to make restitution to persons injured as a result of the violation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5(b)].

[3] Reimbursement of Agency's Expenses

The court may order a person subject to an injunction or restraining order under Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5(a) [see [1], above] or subject to an order requiring restitution under Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5(b) [see [2], above], to reimburse the petitioning agency for expenses incurred by the agency in its investigation related to its petition [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5(c)].

Additionally, except when a specific statutory provision in a specific board's licensing act provides for recovery of costs in an administrative disciplinary proceeding [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3(j)] and except as otherwise provided by law, in any order issued in resolution of a disciplinary proceeding before any board within the Department of Consumer Affairs or before the Osteopathic Medical Board or the board created by the Chiropractic Initiative Act the board may request the administrative law judge to direct a licentiate found to have committed one or more violations of the licensing act to pay a sum not exceeding the reasonable costs of the investigation and enforcement of the case [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3(a)]. If the disciplined licentiate is a corporation or a partnership, the order may be made against the licensed corporate entity or licensed partnership [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3(b)].

A certified copy of the actual costs, or a good faith estimate of costs when actual costs are not available, signed by the entity bringing the proceeding or its designated representative is prima facie evidence of the reasonable costs of investigation and prosecution of the case. Costs include the amount of investigative and enforcement costs up to the date of the hearing, including, but not limited to, charges imposed by the Attorney General [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3(c)].

The administrative law judge must make a proposed finding of the amount of reasonable costs of investigation and prosecution of the case when requested by the board [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3(d); for discussion of the proposed finding requirement in general under the Administrative Procedure Act, see Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions]. This finding is not reviewable by the board to increase the cost award. The board may, however, reduce or eliminate the award or remand to the administrative law judge if the proposed decision fails to make the requested finding on costs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3(d)].

When an order for recovery of costs is made and timely payment is not made as directed in the board's decision, the board may enforce the order for repayment in any appropriate court. This enforcement right is in addition to any other rights the board may have as to any licentiate to pay costs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3(e); see discussion in [4], below]. In any action for recovery of costs, proof of the board's decision is conclusive proof of the validity of the order and terms for payment [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3(f)].

As a general rule, the board cannot renew or reinstate the license of any licentiate who has failed to pay all Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3 costs as ordered [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3(g)(1)]. In its discretion, however, the board may conditionally renew or reinstate, for a maximum of one year, the license of a licentiate who demonstrates financial hardship and who enters into a formal agreement with the board to reimburse the board within that one-year period for the unpaid costs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3(g)(2)]. All costs recovered under Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3 are considered a reimbursement for costs incurred and must be deposited in the fund of the board recovering the costs to be available on appropriation by the Legislature [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3(h)]. Nothing in Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3 prevents a board from including the recovery of the costs of investigation and enforcement of a case in any stipulated settlement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3(i)].

Chiropractic Board order requiring a disciplined chiropractor to pay $17,500 costs to reimburse the Board for pre hearing investigative and prosecution costs in his case was challenged on grounds that the regulation which authorized payment of pre hearing costs, 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 317.5, was facially unconstitutional because it violated the due process of law rights of the chiropractor ordered to pay those costs. The due process of law violation alleged was that the prospect of having to pay such costs would discourage chiropractors from requesting hearings when facing discipline charges brought by the Board. The California Supreme court rejected this claim, and held that the regulation is not unconstitutional on its face, and did not violate due process of law [Zuckerman v. State Board of Chiropractic Examiners (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 32, 46-48, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701, 53 P. 3d 119] . The Court analyzed the due process claim based on the three factors set forth in the US Supreme Court decision in Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18 , and concluded that the discretionary nature of the authority to award costs and the availability of judicial review to challenge specific costs orders reduced the risk of error for such orders and satisfied due process of law requirements [Zuckerman v. State Board of Chiropractic Examiners (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 32, 44-46, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701, 53 P.3d 119] .

[4] Cumulation of Remedies

The remedies provided for in Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5, injunctive relief and restitution, are cumulative and may be pursued in addition to any other remedy authorized by the Business and Professions Code [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5(d)].

Chapter 471B LICENSING BY PUBLIC AGENCIES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Violation of License Requirement

41-471B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 471B.71

§ 471B.71 Issuance of Citation by Agency

[1] Licensee

Any board, bureau, or commission within the Department of Consumer Affairs, the Osteopathic Medical Board, or the board created by the Chiropractic Initiative Act, that does not have an existing system for issuance of citations to order abatement or to impose an administrative fine may establish a regulatory system for the issuance of citations to licensees, other than collection agencies, repossessors, private detectives, alarm companies, and employment agencies licensed under former Bus. & Prof. Code § 9941(b)(1) (general), (6) (employer retained), or (7) (nurses' registry [repealed 1989]). The citation may contain an order of abatement or an order to pay an administrative fine assessed by the issuing entity if the licensee is in violation of the applicable licensing act or any related regulation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.9(a); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 12.5 (power to issue citation for violation of statute includes power to issue citation for violation of regulation adopted pursuant to statute)].

A citation must describe in writing the violation with specificity and, if appropriate, fix a reasonable time for abatement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.9(b)(1), (2)]. The maximum fine that may be imposed is $2,500 for each inspection or investigation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.9(b)(3) (fine of $2,500 authorized, however, for each violation or count of fraudulent billing)]. The citation must also inform the licensee of his or her right to a hearing to contest the finding of violation and that a hearing must be requested within 30 days of the date of issuance of the citation or assessment. Hearings are subject to the provisions of Gov. Code § 11500 et seq. If no hearing is requested, payment of the fine shall not constitute an admission of the violation charged. Failure to pay the fine may result in disciplinary action [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.9(b)(4), (5)].

[2] Unlicensed Person

[a] Acting in Capacity of Licensee

Any board, bureau, or commission with the Department of Consumer Affairs may establish, by regulation, a system for the issuance of a citation to an unlicensed person similar to that discussed in [1], above, other than those exempted from the provisions of the applicable licensing act, acting in the capacity of a licensee or registrant under the jurisdiction of that board, bureau, or commission. Any administrative citation system so adopted must meet the requirements of Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.9. The adoption of the administrative citation system does not preclude the use of other enforcement statutes for unlicensed activities, at the discretion of the adopting board, bureau, or commission [Bus. & Prof. Code § 148].

[b] Advertising in Telephone Directory

In addition to the administrative citation systems of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 125.9 and 148, an agency in the Department of Consumer Affairs listed in Bus. & Prof. Code § 149(e) may issue a citation to a person who the agency believes is advertising in a telephone directory concerning the offer or performance of services that the person is not properly licensed to offer or perform [Bus. & Prof. Code § 149(a)]. The following agencies are authorized to issue these citations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 149(e)]:

- The Bureau of Barbering and Cosmetology.
- The Cemetery and Funeral Bureau.
- The Veterinary Medical Board.
- The Hearing Aid Dispensers Advisory Committee.
- The Landscape Architects Technical Committee.
- The California Board of Podiatric Medicine.
- The Respiratory Care Board of California.
- The Bureau of Electronic and Appliance Repair, Home Furnishings, and Thermal Insulation.
- The Bureau of Security and Investigative Services.
- The Bureau of Automotive Repair.
- The California Architects Board.
- The Speech-Language Pathology and Audiology Board.
- The Board for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors.
- The Board of Behavioral Sciences.
- The Structural Pest Control Board within the Department of Pesticide Regulation.
- The Acupuncture Board.
- The Board of Psychology.
- The California Board of Accountancy.
- The Naturopathic Medicine Committee.

The citation can only by issued after investigation and with probable cause that the person is so advertising. Furthermore, the citation can both order the person to cease the advertising and request that the telephone company furnishing services to the person disconnect telephone service to any number contained in the advertising [Bus. & Prof. Code § 149(a)].

The person cited can contest the citation. To do so, he or she must notifiy the agency in writing that he or she intends to contest. Thereafter, the agency must afford the person an opportunity for a hearing, as specified in Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.9 (discussed under [1], above). The action required by the citation is stayed pending the hearing [Bus. & Prof. Code § 149(b)].

If the person to whom a citation and order of correction is issued fails to comply with order of correction after that order becomes final, the agency must inform the Public Utilities Commission of the violation. The Public Utilities Commission, in turn, must require the telephone company furnishing service to the cited person to disconnect telephone service to any number contained in the advertising. The good faith compliance by a telephone corporation with an order of the Public Utilities Commission to terminate service is a complete defense to any civil or criminal action brought against the telephone corporation arising from the termination of service [Bus. & Prof. Code § 149(c), (d)].

[3] Business Dealings With Violator of Licensing Law

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, it is a misdemeanor to sell equipment, supplies, or services to any person with knowledge that the equipment, supplies, or services are to be used in the performance of a service or contract in violation of the licensing requirements of the Business and Professions Code; however, it is not unlawful to make cash sales of less than $100 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 128]. On the other hand, since the purpose of a licensing law is to protect the public, a person who patronizes an unlicensed professional or business person cannot be deemed implicated in any offense against the licensing law involved and cannot be prosecuted for conspiring to violate that law [In re Marriage of Russo (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 72, 92, 98 Cal. Rptr. 501] .

[4] Availability of Treble Damages When Injury or Damage Caused by Unlicensed Person

Any unlicensed person who causes injury or damage to another person as a result of providing goods or performing services for which a license is required under Bus. & Prof. Code § 500 et seq. (healing arts) or any initiative act referred to therein, Bus. & Prof. Code § 5000 et seq. (professions and vocations generally), Bus. & Prof. Code § 18600 et seq. (boxing and wrestling), or Bus. & Prof. Code § 19000 et seq. (home furnishings) is liable to the injured person for treble the amount of damages assessed in a civil action in any court having proper jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.8(a)].

The court may, in its discretion, award all costs and attorney's fees to the injured person if that person prevails in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.8(a)]. The additional damages provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.8(a) cannot exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.8(c)]. Also, Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.8(a) does not confer an additional cause of action or affect or limit any other remedy including, but not limited to, a claim for exemplary damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.8(b)].

For the purposes of imposing treble damages under Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.8, the term "unlicensed person" does not apply to any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.8(d)]:

- Any person, partnership, corporation, or other entity providing goods or services under the good faith belief that it is properly licensed and acting within the proper scope of that licensure.

- Any person, partnership, corporation, or other entity whose license has expired for nonpayment of license renewal fees, but who is eligible to renew that license without the necessity of applying and qualifying for the original license.

- Any person, partnership, or corporation licensed under Bus. & Prof. Code § 2700 et seq. (nursing) or 2840 et seq. (vocational nursing) who provides professional nursing services under an existing license, if the action arises from a claim that the licensee exceeded the scope of practice authorized by his or her license.

Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.8 does not apply to any action for unfair trade practices brought against an unlicensed person under the Unfair Practices Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 17000 et seq.) by a person who holds a license that is required, or closely related to the license that is required, to engage in those activities performed by the unlicensed person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.8(e)]. For a form of allegation that treble damages under Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.8 are appropriate in a given case, see Ch. 177, Damages , Pt I.

[5] Recovery of Compensation by Unlicensed Person

[a] Required Allegation and Proof

Bus. & Prof. Code § 143 requires a party seeking to collect compensation for the performance of an act or contract for which a license is required to allege and prove that he or she was duly licensed at all times during the performance of the act or contract for which a license is required, regardless of the merits of the cause of action brought by the person [Bus. & Prof. Code § 143(a)]. This requirement applies in any action for compensation brought in a California court, whether in law or in equity, to persons engaged in any business or profession for which a license is required by the Department of Consumer Affairs or by an entity within the Department [Bus. & Prof. Code § 143(a)].

The judicial doctrine of substantial compliance does not apply to the requirements of allegation and proof under Bus. & Prof. Code § 143 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 143(b)]. Bus. & Prof. Code § 143 does not apply to an act or contract that is considered to qualify as a lawful practice of a licensed occupation or profession pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 121, that is, practice of an occupation or profession during the period between renewal of a license and receipt of evidence of renewal [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 121, 143(c)].

For a form of demurrer based on the ground that the plaintiff has failed to comply with Bus. & Prof. Code § 143, see § 471B.119.

[b] Contractual Disability

Some licensing laws penalize a failure to obtain a license by disabling the person, who should have obtained a license, from suing on any contract for services requiring a license [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 7031 (contractors)]. The operation of these types of laws has been extended to a surety company that undertook to complete its principal's performance of a (construction) contract. Since the surety was unlicensed, it was not permitted to recover [General Ins. Co. of America v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 760, 765, 113 Cal. Rptr. 613] .

The statement that contracts made by unlicensed persons are void when the governing law includes such a disability provision, which is sometimes found in cases [see, e.g., Wood v. Krepps (1914) 168 Cal. 382, 386, 143 P. 691] , is not literally true. Whereas the unlicensed party is disabled from suing on such a contract, he or she is nevertheless subject to being sued by the other party. The contract is not void; it is merely unenforceable by one of the parties [see Holland v. Morgan & Peacock Properties (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 206, 211, 335 P.2d 769] .

For a form of affirmative defense to allege that a contract action is brought by an unlicensed person, see § 471B.188.

[6] Crimes Involving License Certificates

Any person who does any of the following is guilty of a misdemeanor:

- Displays or causes or permits to be displayed or has in his or her possession either (a) a canceled, revoked, supspended, or fraudulently altered license or (b) a fictitious license or any document simulating a license certificate or purporting to be or to have been issued as a license certificate, provided that the surviving spouse of a deceased accountant may possess or display a certificate officially canceled by the Board of Accountancy [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 119(a), 120].

- Lends his or her license certificate to any other person or knowingly permits the use of it by another [Bus. & Prof. Code § 119(b)].

- Displays or represents any license certificate not issued to him or her as being his or her own [Bus. & Prof. Code § 119(c)].

- Fails or refuses to surrender to the issuing agency on its lawful demand any license certificate that has been suspended, revoked, or canceled [Bus. & Prof. Code § 119(d)].

- Knowingly permits any unlawful use of a license certificate issued to him or her [Bus. & Prof. Code § 119(e)].

- Photographs, photostats, duplicates, or in any way reproduces any license certificate or facsimile of a license certificate in such a manner that it could be mistaken for a valid license certificate or displays or has in his or her possession any such photograph, photostat, duplicate, reproduction, or facsimile unless authorized by the Business and Professions Code [Bus. & Prof. Code § 119(f)].

- Buys or receives a fraudulent, forged, or counterfeited license knowing that it is fraudulent, forged, or counterfeited. Fraudulent means to contain any misrepresentation of fact [Bus. & Prof. Code § 119(g)].

[7] Criminal Prosecution of Unlicensed Persons

[a] General Requirements

Every person who practices, offers to practice, or advertises any business, trade, profession, occupation, or calling, or who uses any title, sign, initials, card, or device to indicate that he or she is qualified to practice any business, trade, profession, occupation, or calling for which a license, registration, or certificate is required by any California law, without holding a current and valid license, registration, or certificate as prescribed by law, is guilty of a misdemeanor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 16240; see In re Groves (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 154, 158, 4 Cal. Rptr. 844, 351 P.2d 1028 , cert. denied sub nom., Groves v. Kettmann (1960) 364 U.S. 900, 81 S. Ct. 238, 5 L. Ed. 2d 196 (Bus. & Prof. Code § 16240 as encompassing violations of county or municipal licensing ordinances, as well as statewide laws)].

[b] Infraction Procedure for Specified Violations

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, unlicensed activity in specified businesses and professions regulated by the Department of Consumer Affairs and in violation of the licensing statutes set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 146(c) is an infraction subject to the procedures of Penal Code §§ 19.6 (infractions not punishable by imprisonment) and 19.7 (application of misdemeanor laws to infractions) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 146(a)].

The infraction procedure applies to the following persons practicing in violation of registration, licensing, certification, or other authorization requirements:

- Acupuncturists [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(7), 4935].
- Architects [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(10), 5536].
- Barbering, cosmetology, and electrolysis practitioners [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(13), 7317].
- Cemetery brokers and cemetery salespersons [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(21), 9681].
- Civil, electrical, and mechanical engineers [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(11), 6704].
- Clinical social workers [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(9), 4996].
- Funeral directors and embalmers [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(16), 7617, 7641].
- Geologists and geophysicists [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(17), 7872(a)].
- Home furnishings workers [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(24), 19049].
- Land surveyors [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(20), 8725].
- Locksmiths [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(12), 6980.10].
- Marriage, family, and child counselors [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(18), 4980].
- Medical practitioners (physicians and surgeons) [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(1), 2052, 2054].
- Pharmacists [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(5), 4080].
- Physical therapists [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(2), 2630].
- Private detectives [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(15), 7520].
- Psychologists [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(3), 2903].
- Repossessors and alarm company operators [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(14), 7502, 7592].
- Respiratory care practitioners [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(4), 3760, 3761].
- Service dealers [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(22), 9840] and, until 1998, service contractors [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146.5(c)(19), (d), 9855.1, 9855.9].
- Shorthand reporters [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(18), 8016].
- Structural pest control, pest control, and household pest control workers [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(19), 8505].
- Tax preparers and tax interviewers associated with tax preparers [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(23), 22256].

- Veterinarians [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(c)(6), 4825].

The infraction procedure applies in both of the following situations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 146(a)]:

- A complaint or a written notice to appear in court, pursuant to Penal Code § 853.5 et seq. (misdemeanor citation procedure), is filed in court charging the offense as an infraction, unless the defendant at the time of arraignment, after being advised of his or her rights, elects to have the case proceed as a misdemeanor.

- The court, with the consent of the defendant and the prosecution, determines that the offense is an infraction, in which case the case proceeds as if the defendant has been arraigned on an infraction complaint. The infraction procedure, however, does not apply to a violation of the licensing statutes contained in the foregoing list if the defendant's license, registration, or certificate has previously been revoked or suspended [Bus. & Prof. Code § 146(b)].

When the procedure applies, a violation of any of the statutes in the foregoing list is an infraction, even if the statute classifies violation as a misdemeanor [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 4996 (violation of statute requiring licensing of clinical social workers as misdemeanor), 5536 (violation of statute requiring licensing of architects as misdemeanor)], punishable by a fine of not less than $250 and not more than $1,000. No portion of the minimum fine can be suspended by the court unless, as a condition of suspension, the defendant is required to submit proof of a current valid license, registration, or certificate for the profession or business that was the basis for the conviction [Bus. & Prof. Code § 146(d)].

Any employee so designated by the director of the Department of Consumer Affairs has the authority to issue the written notice to appear in court pursuant to Penal Code § 853.5. However, the employee can only exercise this authority when the violation is committed in his or her presence. Furthermore, exercise of the employee's authority is limited to issuance of written notices to appear for infraction violations of specified provisions of the Busness and Professions Code. Finally, the grant of this authority to the employee does not render the employee a peace officer and does not entitle the employee to safety member retirement benefits [Bus. & Prof. Code § 147(a)].

[c] Evidence of Licensed Status

The certificate of the officer in charge of the records of any agency in the Department of Consumer Affairs [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 101 (list of included agencies)] stating that any person was or was not on a specified date, or during a specified period of time, licensed under the provisions of law administered by the agency will be admitted in any court as prima facie evidence of the facts therein recited [Bus. & Prof. Code § 162].

[d] Arrest or Charge on Failure to Present License Certificate When Requested

A law enforcement officer who observes a person engaged in any activity for which a license is required may demand to see the license certificate, with no other probable cause than that observation. The officer is not required to give a Miranda-type warning or otherwise to advise the suspect of his or her procedural rights. The suspect's admission that he or she has no license, if he or she admits it in response to the officer's request, may be used against him or her even though it is a self-incriminating statement [see Kennett v. Municipal Court, Los Angeles Judicial Dist. (C.D. Cal. 1968) 290 F. Supp. 746, 747 ; People v. Nunn (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 919, 922, 70 Cal. Rptr. 869 (driver's license)].

[e] Receiving or Expecting Compensation

Practicing a profession, or otherwise engaging in a regulated activity, without a license is an offense, if a statute so provides, whether or not the offender received or expected compensation, unless the statute specifies the receipt or expectation of compensation as an element of the offense, in which case there is no offense if that condition is not fulfilled [see People v. Vermillion (1916) 30 Cal. App. 417, 418, 158 P. 504] .

[f] Conspiracy to Commit Offense

Any person licensed under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 1 et seq. (Department of Consumer Affairs), 500 et seq. (healing arts), or 5000 et seq. (professions and vocations generally), respectively, is guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to disciplinary action under the Business and Professions Code if he or she conspires with a person not so licensed to violate any provision of the Business and Professions Code, or if he or she, with intent to aid or assist that person in violating those provisions, allows his or her license to be used by that person or acts as his or her agent or partner [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125].

Additionally, practicing a profession or otherwise engaging in a regulated activity for which a license is required without obtaining the appropriate license generally constitutes a misdemeanor [see [7][a], above]. Persons who conspire to commit the offense, however, are guilty of a felony [Penal Code § 182; People v. Nunn (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 188, 191-192, 150 P.2d 476] . Persons acting in concert and violating the prohibition against unlicensed practice are not necessarily guilty of conspiracy. If they act from an honest mistaken belief that they are not violating the law, they are not conspirators [see People v. Bernhardt (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 567, 585-586, 35 Cal. Rptr. 401] .

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

§ 471B.84 Decisions

[1] Classification

Classification for licensing purposes is within Legislature's discretion. Legislature's determination is not to be overthrown unless it is palpably arbitrary. In re Schmolke (1926) 199 Cal. 42, 48, 248 P. 244 , appeal denied, 273 U.S. 646, 47 S. Ct. 244, 71 L. Ed. 820

[2] Contract by Unlicensed Person

When statute enacted for protection of public requires license for the doing of certain acts and imposes penalty for violation, contract to perform such acts entered into by unlicensed person is illegal and unenforceable. Owen v. Off (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 751, 753, 227 P.2d 457

When contract calls for hybrid services, some requiring license and some not, and contract can be interpreted in particular case to require work for which no license necessary, licensing act is inapplicable. Broffman v. Newman (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 252, 262, 261 Cal. Rptr. 532

When contract is illegal due to party's failure to secure license and transaction has been wholly consummated concerning parties designed to be protected by licensing statute, culpable party is not permitted to rely on licensing requirement to retain proceeds of transaction and avoid payment to innocent party. Holland v. Morgan & Peacock Properties (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 206, 211, 335 P.2d 769

[3] Control of Customers

Licensing agency is generally not permitted to impose on its licensees responsibility of governing conditions beyond their control. However, business catering to general public was, under certain circumstances, properly held accountable for disruptive conduct of patrons, whether on or off premises. Sunset Amusement Co. v. Board of Police

Commissioners (1972) 7 Cal. 3d64, 84, 7 Cal. 3d 64, 101 Cal. Rptr. 768, 496 P.2d 840 , appeal dismissed, 409 U.S. 1121, 93 S. Ct. 940, 35 L. Ed. 2d 254 (1973)

[4] Criminal Conviction

Discipline is proper based on licensee's plea of nolo contendere. Licensee is not entitled to relitigate issue of guilt. Arneson v. Fox (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 440, 446-450, 170 Cal. Rptr. 778, 621 P.2d 817

Agency does have authority to deny license regulated by Business and Professions Code on basis that licensee has been convicted of crime, but only if crime is substantially related to qualifications, functions, or duties of business or profession for which application is made. Pieri v. Fox (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 802, 805-806, 158 Cal. Rptr. 256

Bus. & Prof. Code § 475(c), providing that license may not be denied, suspended, or revoked on grounds of lack of good moral character, applys only to evidence of bad moral character other than criminal convictions. Brandt v. Fox (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 737, 743, 153 Cal. Rptr. 683

Criminal conviction provides possible basis of license revocation or suspension proceedings even if licensee has fulfilled all conditions of his or her probation in relation to conviction. Copeland v. Dept. of Alcoholic Bev. Control (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 186, 188, 50 Cal. Rptr. 452

Conviction of felony is reasonable classification for denying business or professional license. Hirsch v. City & County of San Francisco (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 313, 325, 300 P.2d 177

[5] Death of Licensee

Death of licensee terminates disciplinary proceedings against him or her. Warren v. Real Estate Commissioner (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 579, 579, 14 Cal. Rptr. 632 ; Orchard v. Pancoast (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 52, 55, 283 P.2d 309

[6] Due Process

Power to determine eligibility to qualify for licensed activity is required to be accompanied by safeguards affording applicant protection against arbitrary or self-motivated action. Packer v. Board of Behavioral Science Examiners (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 190, 197, 125 Cal. Rptr. 96

[7] Employees of Licensee

Duties of licensee are nondelegable to independent contractor or to employee. Licensee is not permitted to insulate himself or herself from regulation by electing to function through employees or independent contractors. Rob-Mac, Inc. v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 793, 797, 196 Cal. Rptr. 398 ; Camacho v. Youde (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 161, 165, 157 Cal. Rptr. 26

Licensee who elects to operate his or her business through employees is responsible to licensing authority for employees' conduct in exercise of license. Licensee is also responsible for acts of his or her agents or employees done in course of his or her business in operation of the license. Rob-Mac, Inc. v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 793, 797, 196 Cal. Rptr. 398 ; Arenstein v. California State Bd. of Pharmacy (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 179, 192, 71 Cal. Rptr. 357

[8] Entrapment Defense

Defense of entrapment is available in administrative proceedings at which revocation or suspension of a license to practice a profession or business is at issue. Patty v. Board of Medical Examiners (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 356, 367, 107 Cal. Rptr. 473, 508 P.2d 1121 ; White v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 699, 708, 180 Cal. Rptr. 516

[9] Judicial Review

On judicial review of administrative proceeding revoking or suspending license, independent review of facts by court is generally proper, because revocation or suspension affects vested right. Berlinghieri v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 392, 396, 188 Cal. Rptr. 891, 657 P.2d 383

Independent judgment test is proper to review revocation or suspension of license. Bixby v. Pierno (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 130, 146, 93 Cal. Rptr. 234, 481 P.2d 242

Substantial evidence test is proper to review denial of application for license. Merrill v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 907, 916, 80 Cal. Rptr. 89, 458 P.2d 33 ; Harrington v. Department of Real Estate (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 394, 404, 263 Cal. Rptr. 528

Propriety of penalty imposed on licensee by administrative agency is matter within its discretion and, absent manifest abuse, is not disturbed on review by trial or appellate court. Dresser v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 506, 518, 181 Cal. Rptr. 797

In case involving agency's initial determination whether individual qualifies to enter a profession or trade, court will uphold agency decision unless it lacks substantial evidentiary support. Crandell v. Fox (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 760, 763-764, 150 Cal. Rptr. 426 ; Housing Development Co. v. Hoschler (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 379, 386, 149 Cal. Rptr. 400

[10] Laches

Failure to raise laches defense at administrative hearing constitutes waiver of laches defense when seeking judicial review of agency decision. Jenron Corp. v. Department of Social Services (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 1437, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 508 .

Trial court has inherent power to dismiss administrative proceedings brought to revoke state-issued license when there has been unreasonable delay between discovery of facts constituting reason for revocation and commencement of revocation proceedings, and when licensee has been prejudiced by delay. Gates v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 921, 925, 156 Cal. Rptr. 791

When trial court dismisses administrative proceeding based on administrative delay, determination may be reversed only on showing of manifest abuse of discretion resulting in miscarriage of justice. Gates v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 921, 925, 156 Cal. Rptr. 791

Existence of laches in license revocation proceeding is a question of fact. Laches is not present when delay has not resulted in prejudice to licensee. Rudolph v. Athletic Commission (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 1, 22, 1 Cal. Rptr. 898

[11] Licensing Ordinances and Statutes

[a] General Rules

Licensing ordinance seems to vest unlimited discretion in a licensing agency and this does not necessarily invalidate ordinance. Sunset Amusement Co. v. Board of Police Commissioners (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 64, 73, 101 Cal. Rptr. 768, 496 P.2d 840 , appeal dismissed, 409 U.S. 1121, 93 S. Ct. 940, 35 L. Ed. 2d 254 (1973)

Statute that discriminates against individuals or corporations solely because they are new to profession or occupation violates constitutional protection against arbitrary discrimination, unless statute has relationship to public interest. Accounting Corp. v. St. Bd. of Accountancy (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 186, 190, 208 P.2d 984

Any financial disclosure required by licensing ordinance is required to be reasonably related to purpose of ordinance. Perlman v. Municipal Court (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 568, 577, 160 Cal. Rptr. 567

If discretion in the licensing official or agency is authorized by licensing ordinance, ordinance is required to include sufficient due process safeguards to insure swift and adequate remedy by appeal. Perlman v. Municipal Court (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 568, 577, 160 Cal. Rptr. 567

[b] Construction

Licensing statutes that impose penalties for failure to comply with statutory requirements are construed strictly against state or licensing authority and construed liberally in favor of those against whom state or licensing authority seeks to impose penalty. People v. Vis (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 549, 554, 52 Cal. Rptr. 527

[c] Provisions Implicating First Amendment Rights

Licensing statutes and ordinances implicating rights under U.S. Const., Amend. I, are required to set forth precise, objective standards to circumscribe discretion of officials in granting or denying licenses. Burton v. Municipal Court (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 684, 691, 68 Cal. Rptr. 721, 441 P.2d 281 ; Ebel v. City of Garden Grove (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 399, 406, 176 Cal. Rptr. 312 ; Barry v. City of Oceanside (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 257, 261-262, 165 Cal. Rptr. 697 ; 107 Cal. App. 3d 257, 165 Cal. Rptr. 697

Ordinance mandating denial of license to conduct First Amendment related business on basis of prior misconduct is sustainable only if clear and present danger exists that serious substantive evil would result from granting license. EWAP, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 179, 185, 158 Cal. Rptr. 579

[12] Licensing Power

[a] City

City, in exercise of police power, has authority to determine that certain businesses require constant police supervision and that licenses to conduct such businesses will not be issued as matter of course to every applicant. Saunders v. City of Los Angeles (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 407, 412, 78 Cal. Rptr. 236

[b] County

Noncharter county has authority to require legitimate business to obtain license if county's purpose is to regulate or to raise funds to be used in regulating business. In re Gritton (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 856, 859, 300 P.2d 7 ; Cooper v. Michael (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 176, 177-178, 64 Cal. Rptr. 842

County has constitutional power to regulate and license for purposes of health and safety. People v. Perrine (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 252, 260, 120 Cal. Rptr. 640

[c] State Government

State's power to grant privilege on its own conditions is limited. State is prohibited from requiring relinquishment of constitutional rights. Frost Trucking Co. v. R.R. Commission (1926) 271 U.S. 583, 594, 46 S. Ct. 605, 70 L. Ed. 1101

When profession or occupation is one of which it can be fairly said that those pursuing it should have particular qualifications, Legislature has authority to exact reasonable assurances of those pursuing profession or occupation that they do possess such qualifications. In re Porterfield (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 91, 99-100, 168 P.2d 706

Even though license to practice trade is generally considered vested property right, license to sell liquor as privilege that can be granted or withheld by state and revoked independently of any showing of fault of licensee. Yu v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 286, 297, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 280

Legislature, in demanding some standard of efficiency of those applying for licenses to practice a profession, has authority to require applicants to be graduates of a school, the standards of which may be in no particular less than those prescribed by an association or board of national significance. Packer v. Board of Behavioral Science Examiners (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 190, 196, 125 Cal. Rptr. 96 ; Beard v. State Bd. of E. & F. Directors (1931) 111 Cal. App. 559, 561, 295 P. 1052

When state enacts statutes regulating business and requiring license to be obtained by anyone engaged therein, exercise of state's regulatory power is necessarily limited to activities carried on within territorial limits of state. Conderback, Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 664, 676-677, 48 Cal. Rptr. 901

[13] License Taxes

General policy of California opposed to raising of revenue by collection of direct taxes is condition precedent to conduct of business. In re Gritton (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 856, 858, 300 P.2d 7 ; Cooper v. Michael (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 176, 177, 64 Cal. Rptr. 842

Absence of regulatory provisions, amount of tax imposed, and nature of subjects of taxation are factors that court may consider in determining whether ordinance was imposed solely for purpose of raising revenue. Ex parte Braun (1903) 141 Cal. 204, 206, 74 P. 780 (habeas corpus proceeding to test validity of municipal ordinance)

When taxing business within city, city is prohibited from taxing portion of business's gross receipts that is derived from or fairly attributable to its business activities carried on outside city limits. Apportionment is constitutionally required when failure to apportion would operate to unfairly discriminate against intercity businesses by subjecting such business to measure of taxation that is not fairly apportioned to quantum of business actually done in taxing jurisdiction. Programming-Enterprises, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 281, 289, 263 Cal. Rptr. 558

Regulatory fee is properly imposed under local police power when fee constitutes amount necessary to carry out purposes and provisions of regulation. San Diego Gas & Electric Co. v. San Diego County Air Pollution Control Dist. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1132, 1146 n.18, 250 Cal. Rptr. 420

Power to impose valid regulatory fees is not dependent on legislatively authorized taxing power, but as existing pursuant to direct grant of police power under Cal. Const., art. XI, § 7. Mills v. County of Trinity (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 656, 662, 166 Cal. Rptr. 674

Municipality, under its police power, has authority to impose license fee for purpose of regulation, not revenue, when fee constitutes amount necessary to legitimately aid in regulation and when fee does not exceed necessary or probable administrative expense of issuance, inspection, and regulation of its subject matter. United Business Com. v. City of San Diego (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 156, 165, 154 Cal. Rptr. 263

Licensing tax statute containing no regulatory provisions and only providing for subjects and amounts of taxation clearly imposes tax solely for purpose of raising revenue. Oakland Raiders v. City of Berkeley (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 623, 627, 137 Cal. Rptr. 648

License tax ordinance drafted by noncharter county solely as a revenue measure is invalid. Validity of such ordinance is determined by evaluation of drafter's actual intent in drafting ordinance. Cooper v. Michael (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 176, 178, 180, 64 Cal. Rptr. 842

Statutory prohibition against revenue-raising ordinances by noncharter counties in Bus. & Prof. Code § 16100 does not extend to cities. Cooper v. Michael (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 176, 178, 64 Cal. Rptr. 842

Levy of license taxes by city for revenue purposes is municipal affair. City has authority to impose and collect such taxes for revenue purposes. Arnke v. City of Berkeley (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 842, 848, 8 Cal. Rptr. 645

[b] Classification

Classification and subdivision of occupations, businesses, and activities for purposes of assessment of license fees is proper provided that classification is reasonable. United Business Com. v. City of San Diego (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 156, 177-178, 154 Cal. Rptr. 263

Classification providing different charges for those engaged in same business is required to be founded on natural and reasonable distinction. Clark v. City of San Pablo (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 121, 127, 75 Cal. Rptr. 726

[14] Moral Turpitude

In professional licensing context, "moral turpitude" is term of art having more precise meaning when applied to particular profession. Terms like "immoral," "unprofessional," and "moral turpitude" are mere lingual abstractions until applied to specific occupation and fitness therefor. In re Johnson (1992) 1 Cal. 4th 689, 698, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 170, 822 P.2d 1317

Substantial or rational nexus is required to exist between criminal or otherwise immoral conduct and qualifications, functions, or duties of individual in or applying for license in licensed occupation. Clerici v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1016, 1029-1030, 274 Cal. Rptr. 230

Purpose of moral turpitude standard in license regulatory statutes is not to punish but to protect members of public when they deal with licensed individual. Clerici v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1016, 1027, 274 Cal. Rptr. 230

Determination of whether conduct involves "moral turpitude" is question of law to be reviewed by appellate court. Moral turpitude is inherent in crimes involving fraudulent intent or intentional dishonesty for personal gain. Harrington v. Department of Real Estate (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 394, 400-401, 263 Cal. Rptr. 528

[15] Nature and Purpose of License

License regulates activities based on determination of licensee's qualifications. People ex rel. Deukmejian v. County of Mendocino (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 476, 485, 204 Cal. Rptr. 897, 683 P.2d 1150

License provides permission or authority to do particular thing, to exercise particular privilege, or to carry on particular business or pursue certain profession. Galvan v. Superior Court (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 851, 856, 76 Cal. Rptr. 642, 452 P.2d 930 ; Blatz Brewing Co. v. Colllins (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 639, 643, 160 P.2d 37

License has no elements of contract and confers personal privilege rather than absolute right. San Gabriel Tribune v. Superior Court (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 762, 779, 192 Cal. Rptr. 415

Licensing statutes are intended to protect public. Nationwide Investment Corp. v. California Funeral Service, Inc. (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 494, 503, 114 Cal. Rptr. 77

License confers personal privilege that must be exercised pursuant to any restrictions existing at time license is granted, and also under any restrictions reasonably imposed after license is granted. Rosenblatt v. Cal. St. Bd. of Pharmacy (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 69, 74, 158 P.2d 199

[16] Reinstatement

Applicant for reinstatement of license has no greater rights than person seeking original license. Crandell v. Fox (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 760, 763, 150 Cal. Rptr. 426

[17] Reports to Officials

Failure to make required reports to responsible agency provides permissible ground for suspending or revoking license. Evilsizor v. Dept. of Motor Vehicles (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 216, 218-220, 59 Cal. Rptr. 375

[18] Res Judicata

Exoneration in prior civil action or acquittal in criminal proceeding is not res judicata in subsequent administrative license proceedings. Lundborg v. Director Dept. Professional etc. Standards (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 141, 146, 64 Cal. Rptr. 650

Doctrine of res judicata estops licensee from impeaching prior adverse judgment in license suspension or revocation proceeding instituted on the basis of the prior judgment. Richards v. Gordon (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 735, 738, 62 Cal. Rptr. 466 ; Contractors' State License Board v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 557, 562, 10 Cal. Rptr. 95

[19] Right to Enter Profession

Right to be admitted to profession is not explicitly or implicitly guaranteed by United States Constitution. D'Amico v. Board of Medical Examiners (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 1, 18, 112 Cal. Rptr. 786, 520 P.2d 10

[20] Statute of Limitations

License suspension or revocation proceedings are not governed by criminal statutes of limitation. Wayne v. Bureau of Private Investigators & Adjusters (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 427, 439, 20 Cal. Rptr. 194

[21] Unclean Hands

In administrative mandate proceeding in which contractor sought writ of mandate to set aside license revocation, writ was properly denied and license was properly revoked on grounds of unclean hands based on agency's unchallenged allegation in answer to writ that contractor fraudulently obtained license in first instance. Elliott v. Contractors' State License Bd. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1048, 1054-1056, 274 Cal. Rptr. 286

[22] Use of License

Owner of license is obligated to see that license is not used in violation of law. Ford Dealers Ass'n v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 347, 360, 185 Cal. Rptr. 453, 650 P.2d 328

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)

_____ [name],	)	PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
Respondent.	)

Petitioner alleges:

1. Petitioner is _____ [identify petitioner and describe capacity, if other than as an individual, in which the proceeding is being brought].

[EITHER, if respondent is multimember agency]

2. Respondent _____ [identify agency, e.g., Medical Board of California] was, and now is, a statewide administrative agency created and existing under laws of California, and possessing sole jurisdiction to issue licenses to _____ [specify, e.g., practice medicine] in California.

[OR, if respondent is individual administrative officer]

2. Respondent _____[name] is _____ [identify title and agency. e.g., Director of Motor Vehicles] in the government of the State of California and is sued herein in that official capacity and not personally.

[CONTINUE]

3. Respondent has a clear, present, and ministerial duty to accept and process applications for a license to _____ [specify, e.g., practice medicine in this state] by reason of _____[describe and cite to statute, ordinance, administrative regulation, or other authority that makes respondent's duty mandatory and not subject to exercise of discretion].

4. Petitioner has a clear, present, and substantial right to the performance of respondent's duty in that petitioner has duly applied for such license and has _____ [paid or tendered] the application fee of $_____ required by _____[specify statute, ordinance, administrative regulation, or other authority], but respondent has failed and refused to perform that duty in petitioner's case.

5. Petitioner is a person beneficially interested in the issuance of the writ in that petitioner has duly applied for the license.

6. Petitioner has exhausted administrative remedies by _____[describe acts taken to exhaust remedies].

7. Petitioner has no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law, other than the relief sought in this petition, in that petitioner can only obtain a license to _____[specify] by respondent's acting on petitioner's application, and damages would be inadequate, as well as unobtainable, relief.

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. That the court issue an alternative writ of mandate commanding respondent to accept and process petitioner's application for a license to _____[specify], according to law, or to show cause before this court at a time specified by court order why respondent has not done so and why a peremptory writ should not issue.

2. That, on the return of the alternative writ and the hearing of this petition, this court issue its peremptory writ of mandate commanding respondent to accept and process petitioner's application for a license to _____[specify], according to law;

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition set out in [1], above, is for use in seeking a licensing to compel an agency to act on an application submitted to that agency [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086]. The petitioner's objective is not to obtain a license directly, but merely to force the agency to grant or deny his or her application. When a writ must be obtained to compel agency action, a denial should be anticipated; hence, the petitioner should be prepared to file a second petition, after denial, seeking review of the agency's decision to deny the application. The form set out in § 471B.102 may be used in the event of a summary denial.

If the agency holds a hearing, review may be had in the superior court pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 (so-called "administrative mandate") [see § 471B.174]. Administrative mandate is discussed in detail in Ch. 474, Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

Proof of service on each respondent and real party in interest of a copy of a petition that seeks an alternative writ must accompany the petition when it is offered for filing except when, in its discretion and for good cause, the court has granted the application for the writ ex parte [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; for a discussion of serving the petition, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition].

Points and authorities also customarily accompany a petition filed in a superior court, although they do not appear to be expressly required by statute [but see Code Civ. Proc. § 1090 (mandate proceeding referred to as "motion"); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103 (application for writ of mandate as "law and motion proceeding"), 3.1113 (points and authorities required to be served with any "notice of motion"); for discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities].

When no alternative writ is sought, proof of service of a copy of the petition need not accompany the application, but proof of service of a copy of the filed petition must be lodged with the court prior to a hearing or any action by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5].

[3] Verification

A writ of mandate may be issued only on the verified petition of the person beneficially interested [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. The verification may be by declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] or by affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2009].

[4] Allegations

[a] Generally

The petition alleges:

- The identity and capacity of petitioner and respondent (Paragraphs 1, 2).

- The existence of respondent's duty (Paragraph 3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085; People ex rel. Younger v. County of El Dorado (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 480, 491, 96 Cal. Rptr. 553, 487 P.2d 1193] .

- The petitioner's right (Paragraph 4) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085; People ex rel. Younger v. El Dorado County (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 480, 491, 96 Cal. Rptr. 553, 487 P.2d 1193] .

- The beneficial interest of petitioner (Paragraph 5) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; Carsten v. Psychology Examining Com. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 793, 796, 166 Cal. Rptr. 844, 614 P.2d 276] .

- The exhaustion of administrative remedies (Paragraph 6) [Metcalf v. County of Los Angeles (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 267, 269, 148 P.2d 645 ; Igna v. City of Baldwin Park (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 909, 914, 88 Cal. Rptr. 581] .

- The lack of an adequate remedy (Paragraph 7) [see Betancourt v. Workmen's Comp. App. Bd. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 408, 412, 94 Cal. Rptr. 9] .

[b] Identity of Petitioner (Paragraph 1)

If the petitioner is not a natural person, the petition should allege the petitioner's identity as an existing legal entity entitled to sue [see Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351, 254 P.2d 6] . This is sometimes referred to as the capacity to sue.

[c] Description of Respondent (Paragraph 2)

A writ of mandate may be issued to "any inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or person" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085], and the petition must state facts tending to show that the respondent is such an entity. In the caption and the body of the petition the respondent may be described either as a multimember agency or as an individual administrative officer. The respondent should not be described as a department, division, or the like, because those terms do not refer to an agency [see discussion in Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law].

[d] Facts Subject to Judicial Notice (Paragraph 3)

Ultimate facts that are provable by judicial notice [see Evid. Code § 451], such as that the agency is required to process applications for a certain type of license, should be alleged. There is some authority in decisions of the Supreme Court that such facts will be "noticed" whether or not they have been alleged [see Loranger v. Nadeau (1932) 215 Cal. 362, 365, 10 P.2d 63 (overruled on different ground in Reich v. Purcell (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 551, 555, 63 Cal. Rptr. 31, 432 P.2d 727); see also Stanton v. Dumke (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 199, 201-202, 49 Cal. Rptr. 380, 411 P.2d 108 (court is required to consider facts subject to judicial notice as though they are alleged in petition when ruling on sufficiency of demurrer)]. The better practice, however, is to allege such facts.

[e] Petitioner's Beneficial Interest (Paragraphs 4, 5)

The requirement that the petitioner be "beneficially interested" in the issuance of the writ [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086] reflects the general rule established by case law that a writ of mandate will not be issued when it would be of no benefit to the applicant, or when the right sought to be enforced is merely abstract and is not attended by any substantial benefit to the applicant [see Spotton v. Superior Court (1918) 177 Cal. 719, 720, 171 P. 801 ; Gay v. Torrance (1904) 145 Cal. 144, 147, 78 P. 540] . It must appear from the petition that a right or interest of the petitioner will be protected or subserved by issuance of the writ [see Ellis v. Workman (1904) 144 Cal. 113, 115, 77 P. 822] .

[f] Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies (Paragraph 6)

Exhaustion of administrative remedies by the petitioner is generally required before administrative proceedings can be reviewed by a court [see Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 292-293, 109 P.2d 942] . However, Gov. Code § 11523 grants judicial review by way of writ of mandate concerning those agencies governed by the administrative adjudication procedures of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA) [Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.], even though there has been no petition for reconsideration before the agency, and hence no exhaustion of administrative remedies in the traditional sense. If the agency is not governed by the APA, the petition must show that the petitioner has made motions for rehearing, and done such other things as to constitute exhaustion of administrative remedies.

[g] Lack of Plain, Speedy, and Adequate Remedy (Paragraph 7)

The writ must be issued in all cases in which there is no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy, in the ordinary course of the law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

[5] Availability of Damages for Licensing Activities

Code Civ. Proc. § 1095 provides that if a petitioner for mandamus recovers judgment, he or she may also recover damages that have been sustained and that the damages must be recovered against the public entity represented by an officer but not against the officer. A public entity, however, is not liable for an injury caused by the issuance, denial, suspension, or revocation of, or by the failure or refusal to issue, deny, suspend, or revoke any license when the public entity or an employee of the public entity is authorized by enactment to determine whether or not a license should be issued, denied, suspended, or revoked [Gov. Code § 818.4].

Thus, when the denial of a license is challenged by an application for a writ of mandate, the licensing immunity precludes the award of damages in the mandate proceeding even if the writ is granted [State of California v. Superior Court of Orange County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 237, 245-247, 115 Cal. Rptr. 497, 524 P.2d 1281]. The licensing immunity does not prevail, however, over the liability of a public entity for failure to perform a mandatory duty (such as acting on a license application pursuant to statutory directive) because the immunity only applies when the public entity is authorized to exercise discretion [see Morris v. County of Marin (1977) 18 Cal. 3d 901, 911-916, 136 Cal. Rptr. 251, 559 P.2d 606] .

For further discussion of the licensing immunity, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

[6] Costs

The prayer should contain an explicit request for costs, which are recoverable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1095 in an original proceeding for a writ of mandate [Gould v. Moss (1910) 158 Cal. 548, 549, 111 P. 925] . Costs are not recoverable unless specifically awarded in the judgment, costs being a matter of the court's discretion rather than a matter of right [see Gould v. Moss (1910) 158 Cal. 548, 549, 111 P. 925] . Respondent, if successful, may also recover his or her costs if the court specifically awards costs, despite the reference in Code Civ. Proc. § 1095 to "the applicant" without a corresponding reference to the respondent [Union Trust Co. v. Superior Court (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 541, 543-544, 90 P.2d 582] .

[7] Jurisdiction

A writ of mandate may be issued by any court, except a municipal court, to any inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or person, to compel the performance of an act that the law specially enjoins, as a duty resulting from an office, trust, or station: or to compel the admission of a party to the use and enjoyment of a right or office to which he or she is entitled, and from which he or she is unlawfully precluded by such inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085].

The Supreme Court, the court of appeal, and the superior court have concurrent jurisdiction to hear an original proceeding for a writ of mandate [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. As a matter of policy, however, the higher courts normally refuse to exercise their original jurisdiction when the proceeding could be heard by a lower court [see Cohen v. Superior Court (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 268, 270-271, 72 Cal. Rptr. 814 (reporting and examining the policy)]. Therefore, this petition should usually be filed in the superior court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490 (petition filed in reviewing court but that may be filed in lower court is required to state circumstances making issuance of writ by reviewing court proper); Roma Macaroni Factory v. Giambastiani (1933) 219 Cal. 435, 436-437, 27 P.2d 371 (courts of appeal and Supreme Court will exercise jurisdiction when some emergency exists or when public welfare is involved)].

[8] Venue

Code Civ. Proc. § 393(1)(b), providing that the proper county for trial of an action against a public officer, for an act done by him or her in virtue or his or her office, is the county in which the cause, or some part thereof arose, applies to mandate proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1109; see also Duval v. Contractors State License Board (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 532, 533-535, 271 P.2d 194 (Code Civ. Proc. § 393(1)(b) as applicable to "administrative mandate" proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5)]. The application of Code Civ. Proc. § 393(1)(b) may involve a problem concerning "where the cause or some part thereof arose." The underlying purpose of statutory provisions concerning venue for actions against state agencies is to afford to the citizen a forum that is not so distant and remote that access to it is difficult and expensive. It is the Legislature's policy to afford to a person adversely affected by the rulings of public agencies a forum for the resolution of disputes that is as convenient and inexpensive as possible. To that end, statutory provisions concerning venue are to be liberally construed in favor of the private litigant [Regents of University of California v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 529, 536, 541, 91 Cal. Rptr. 57, 476 P.2d 457] .

[9] Service of Petition

Code Civ. Proc. § 1107 requires service of the petition before it is filed, with a proviso that the court may allow the petition to be filed and then served. Local practices vary among the counties, and counsel should check with the clerk to learn how to proceed in the county where the petition is to be filed. For discussion of service of papers, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[10] Limitation Period

The statutory periods within which petitions for writ of mandate may be filed are not jurisdictional (in contrast to periods within which appeals may be taken) but are merely periods of limitation. Rules of law relating to the limitation of actions are applicable to mandate proceedings [see Ginns v. Savage (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 520, 524, 39 Cal. Rptr. 377, 393 P.2d 689 (dictum reporting rules)].

[11] Appeal

The superior court's denial of a petition for a writ of mandate is a final judgment from which an appeal may be taken [People v. Thompson (1885) 66 Cal. 398, 5 P. 686] . For forms relating to appeals from judgments of the superior court, see Ch. 40, Appeal .

[2] Use of Form

The petition in [1], above, is a general form for use in seeking a writ of mandate to compel an administrative agency to set aside a summary decision to deny a license application and to reconsider it, particularly performing some duty that was not performed on the original consideration [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086].

If the duty not performed is to hold an evidentiary hearing, however, the appropriate proceeding is one for a writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 [see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.]. That proceeding is also appropriate whenever the decision to deny an application was made following a hearing. The petitioner's objective is not to obtain a license directly, but merely to force the agency to proceed as the law requires. In the event of a subsequent denial on the merits, when there is no procedural defect, the remedy is a mandate proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 in which the writ is sought against an abuse of discretion [see § 471B.104].

[3] Verification

A writ of mandate may be issued only on the verified petition of the person beneficially interested [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. The verification may be by declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] or by affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2009].

[Verification. See § 471B.100.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition for writ of mandate in [1], above, may be used to obtain review by the superior court of an order or decision of a state agency refusing to issue a license to the petitioner [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5].

[3] Verification

A writ of mandate may be issued only on the verified petition of the person beneficially interested [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. The verification may be by declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] or by affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2009].

[4] Mandate to Compel Issuance of License

A writ of mandate may be issued for the purpose of inquiring into the validity of any final administrative order or decision made as the result of a proceeding in which, by law, a hearing is required to be given, evidence is required to be taken, and discretion in the determination of the facts is vested in the inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a)]. This applies to the decision of an agency denying a license to engage in a profession or business [see, e.g., Savelli v. Board of Medical Examiners (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 124, 130-131, 40 Cal. Rptr. 171] .

[5] Allegations

[a] Generally

The allegations in the petition must state facts showing the following:

- Discretion to determine certain relevant facts is vested in the agency (Paragraph 3) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a)].

- By law, a hearing is required to be held for the purpose of determining those facts (Paragraph 3) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a)].

- Evidence is required to be taken at the hearing (Paragraph 3) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a)].

- A final administrative order was made as a result of the hearing and the determination of those facts (Paragraphs 4-6) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a)].

- The order is invalid because of one or more of the following defects (Paragraphs 8-12):

  - The agency proceeded without, or in excess or, jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)].

  - The petitioner was denied a fair trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)].

  - The agency abused its discretion, which is established if the agency did not proceed in the manner required by law (which in most cases will result either in the denial of a fair trial or in a finding that the agency proceeded without, or in excess of, jurisdiction), if the order is not supported by the findings resulting from the administrative hearing, or if the findings are not supported by the evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)]. If this defect is alleged as the cause of the order's invalidity, the petition must also allege the substance of the evidence or, alternatively, and if there is a record of the evidence, that the record is incorporated by reference and attached as an exhibit.

Irrespective of the foregoing, if there is relevant evidence that, in the exercise of reasonable diligence, the petitioner could not have produced at the hearing, and which was not produced, the petition should allege the substance of the evidence together with facts showing that it could not have been produced at the hearing in the exercise of reasonable diligence [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e)].

In addition to all of the foregoing, the petition must state facts showing the following:

- The petitioner is beneficially interested in the issuance of the writ of mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

- The petitioner has no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of the law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

[b] Petitioner's Beneficial Interest

When an agency has refused to issue a license, it is necessary to allege facts showing that the petitioner is actually qualified to receive a license as applied for, and that all application requirements were complied with (Paragraph 4) [see Hippen v. Ford (1900) 129 Cal. 315, 316, 61 P. 929] . An allegation that the petitioner is qualified to receive the license applied for, and that he or she duly applied for it, should be sufficient [see Hippen v. Ford (1900) 129 Cal. 315, 316, 61 P. 929 (conceding sufficiency of allegation that petitioner duly complied with all laws, rules, ordinances, and regulations of municipality, and performed all and every requirement necessary thereunder for issuance of liquor license)].

[c] Final Administrative Order

The purpose of administrative mandate is to inquire into the validity of a "final administrative order or decision made as the result of" an administrative proceeding in which a hearing is required to be provided [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a)]. Therefore, the petition should contain a narrative of events demonstrating that the order denying petitioner's license is a final order (Paragraph 6).

[d] Invalidity of Order

The reasons why the order is alleged to be invalid may be stated in statutory terms, for the court's convenience in understanding the basis for the petitioner's complaint (Paragraph 8). However, statutory language alone is insufficient; facts must be alleged [see, e.g., Ward v. County of Riverside (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 353, 358, 78 Cal. Rptr. 46] . Counsel should take care to make the grounds for objection clear. The bases for objection given in Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 are somewhat confusing because of apparent overlap, but counsel should try to be as clear as possible in stating what defects form the basis of the petitioner's complaint. If counsel is unsure whether a particular defect is, for example, a denial of a fair hearing, or a failure to proceed in the manner required by law, the statutory language should be omitted and only the facts should be alleged.

When the agency's action is based on its questionable interpretation of a statute (rather than on a disputable finding of fact), that interpretation may be challenged in a mandate proceeding; and while the agency's interpretation will be given great weight by the courts, it is the duty of the courts, not of the administrative agencies, to state the true meaning of a statute finally and conclusively [see Bodinson Mfg. Co. v. California E. Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 321, 325-326, 109 P.2d 935] . In the hearing on the petition for writ of mandate, the petitioner may attack the credibility of witnesses who testified at the agency hearing, and if credibility of a witness is to be an issue in the mandate proceeding, the petition should allege the facts on which petitioner will base the attack [see Dare v. Bd. of Medical Examiners (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 790, 799-800, 136 P.2d 304] .

[e] Evidence Presented at Administrative Hearing

The petition need not refer to the evidence unless the petitioner's objection relates to an evidentiary matter. In most cases, the petitioner will allege that the findings are not supported by the evidence, usually because this will be the only claim reasonably open to argument. In such a case, the petitioner must either have attached to it, as an exhibit, a complete transcript of all of the evidence on which the agency acted or, at the minimum, allege the substance of all of the evidence received at the hearing [see Faulkner v. Cal. Toll Bridge Authority (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 317, 330-331, 253 P.2d 659] . There is some difference of opinion concerning whether a transcript should be attached, some practitioners preferring to allege the substance of the evidence instead. In some cases, a transcript might be unavailable due to time limitations. In any event, all of the evidence, not just the evidence favorable to the petitioner, would have to be alleged (Paragraph 9) [see Bennett v. Brady (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 114, 116, 61 P.2d 530 (petition alleging only favorable evidence is demurrable)].

[f] Objection to Incompetent Evidence

If the petitioner complains that incompetent evidence was received at the hearing, it must appear that he or she made a timely and appropriate objection to receiving it; otherwise, he or she may not raise the issue in the mandate proceeding (Paragraph 11) [see Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 545, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525] . Since the denial of a license involves the application of the substantial evidence test, an order or a decision denying a license will not be set aside merely because of erroneous rulings on the admissibility of evidence, if there is properly admitted substantial evidence supporting the findings [see English v. City of Long Beach (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 155, 159, 217 P. 2d 22] .

[g] Consideration of "Outside Evidence"

Action by an agency, exercising an adjudicatory function. amounts to denial of a hearing when the action is based on evidence of which the person who is affected by the action was not informed, and which he or she had no opportunity to controvert. An administrative agency that is required to make determinations of fact after a hearing cannot act on its own information, and it can consider nothing as evidence that was not introduced at a hearing of which the parties had notice or at which they were present. The fact that there may be substantial and properly introduced evidence that supports the board's ruling is immaterial. The requirement of a hearing necessarily contemplates a decision in light of the evidence there introduced [English v. City of Long Beach (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 155, 159, 217 P. 2d 22] .

[h] Evidence Not Produced at Administrative Hearing

If there is relevant evidence that the petitioner did not produce at the administrative hearing, for the reason that it could not have been produced with the exercise of reasonable diligence, then, in a case in which an agency has refused to issue a license, the court may remand the case for a rehearing (Paragraph 12) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e)].

[6] Disposition of Case

[a] Remand for Rehearing

When it appears that a rehearing would be appropriate, the court may remand the case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(f)]. This may be done (1) when findings are inadequate; (2) when a hearing was not held but should have been held; (3) when evidence was improperly excluded; (4) when outside evidence was considered; or (5) when evidence was discovered after the hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a), (b), (e)]. The court's authority is not limited to specified cases, however, and the court may remand whenever, in the court's discretion, that would be appropriate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e)].

[b] Setting Aside Administrative Decision

In any case in which the court finds in favor of the petitioner, the court should order the decision resulting from the administrative hearing to be set aside [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(f)]. When the court's judgment rests on a conclusion that the evidence does not support the findings, the court may or may not also remand for a rehearing. Because the "substantial evidence" test applies to denial of a license, the court necessarily lacks authority to substitute its own decision for that of the agency [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(c)], and remand must follow as a matter of course. The prayer should specifically request remand for reconsideration or the court might overlook it as the appropriate remedy.

[7] Request for Costs

If the petitioner has incurred the expense of preparing all or any part of the record, the prayer should contain a request for costs including a specified amount for preparation of the record. Such an expense is specifically recoverable as a cost by the prevailing party [Moran v. Board of Medical Examiners (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 301, 315, 196 P.2d 20] . The expense of preparing all or any part of the record is a taxable cost under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a), whether the record has been prepared for a mandate proceeding or for an administrative proceeding, by which the petitioner seeks to exhaust his or her administrative remedies [Ralph's Chrysler-Plymouth v. New Car Dealers Policy & Appeals Bd. (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 792, 796, 106 Cal. Rptr. 169, 505 P.2d 1009] .

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition in [1], above, is for use to compel a state agency to set aside an order revoking or suspending a license. It requests a court to issue a writ of mandate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5.

[3] Verification

A writ of mandate may be issued only on the verified petition of the person beneficially interested [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. The verification may be by declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] or by affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2009].

[4] Proof of Service

An application for a stay of an administrative order or decision must be accompanied by proof of service of a copy of the application on the respondent [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(g)].

[5] Stay of Administrative Order

[a] Generally

Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(h), the court in which proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 are instituted may stay the operation of the administrative order or decision pending the judgment of the court, or until the filing of a notice of appeal from the judgment, or until the expiration of time for filing such notice, whichever occurs first. No stay will be imposed or continued if the court is satisfied that it is against the public interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(g)].

[b] Pursuant to Statute

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(h) establishes the standard for obtaining a stay of an administrative order or decision of an agency that issues licenses pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 500 et seq. (healing arts), the Osteopathic Initiative Act, or the Chiropractic Initiative Act. The standard established by Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(h) also applies with respect to the orders or decisions of other state agencies, but only when the agency has adopted the proposed decision of the administrative law judge in its entirety or has adopted the proposed decision but reduced the proposed penalty pursuant to Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2); otherwise, the standard in Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(g) applies [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(h)(2)].

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(h), the court in which proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 are instituted may stay the operation of the administrative order or decision of any licensed hospital or any state agency made after a hearing required by statute to be conducted under the provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), conducted by the agency itself or a hearing officer on the staff of the Office of Administrative Hearings pending the judgment of the court, or until the filing of a notice of appeal from the judgment or until the expiration of the time for filing such notice, whichever occurs first. However, the stay must not be imposed or continued unless the court is satisfied that the public interest will not suffer and that the licensed hospital or agency is unlikely to prevail ultimately on the merits [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(h)(1)].

[c] Service of Application of Stay

The application for a stay of an administrative decision under either Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(g) or (h) must be accompanied by proof of service of a copy of the application on the respondent. Service must be made in the manner provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10 et seq. or Code Civ. Proc. § 1010 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(g), (h)(1)].

[6] Allegation of Petitioner's Beneficial Interest

If an existing license has been taken away or suspended, the beneficial interest of the licensee (petitioner) is clear [see Carsten v. Psychology Examining Com. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 793, 796-797, 166 Cal. Rptr. 844, 614 P.2d 276] . No additional facts need to be alleged to establish a beneficial interest.

§ 471B.108 Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] in Proceedings to Compel City or County and Local Peace Officer to Allow Petitioner to Resume Operation of Business and Return License Improperly Seized

[1] FORM Petition for Writ of Mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086] in Proceedings to Compel City or County and Local Peace Officer to Allow Petitioner to Resume Operation of Business and Return License Improperly Seized

[Caption. See § 471B.100.]

Petitioner alleges:

1. [Capacity of petitioner. See § 471B.100, Paragraph 1].

2. Respondent _____[name of city or county] at all times herein mentioned was, and now is, a _____ [municipal corporation or county] organized and existing under the laws of California.

3. Respondent _____[name] at all times herein mentioned was, and now is, the duly appointed, qualified and acting _____ [chief of police of such city or sheriff of such county].

4. At all times herein mentioned, petitioner was engaged in the operation of a _____[specify type] business in _____[city], California, and the holder of a license to operate such business, duly issued by the _____ [city or county], and complied in all respects with the conditions of the license.

5. On or about _____[date], the _____ [city council of the city or board of supervisors of the county] enacted Ordinance No. _____ entitled "_____." This ordinance became effective on _____[date], and at all times since that date has been, and now is, in full force and effect. The ordinance provides that no one may operate a _____[specify type] business in the _____ [city or county] without at all times displaying in a conspicuous place in the business a duly issued license to operate such business.

6. On or about _____[date], respondent _____ [name], purportedly acting in his/her official capacity as _____ [chief of police or sheriff], ordered petitioner to close his/her place of business under threat of arrest; in compliance with such instruction, petitioner closed his/her place of business and the business has been closed since that date.

7. On or about _____[date], respondent _____[name], purportedly acting in his/her official capacity, entered petitioner's place of business and seized petitioner's license to operate the place of business and has, at all times since that date, had possession, and now has possession, of the license.

8. No criminal or civil proceedings of any nature in connection with petitioner's operation of his/her business, and no proceedings of any nature respecting the suspension or revocation of petitioner's license to operate his/her business had, at any time prior to _____[date], been initiated, nor have any proceedings of any such nature been initiated at any time since. Respondent _____[name], in ordering petitioner to close his/her place of business and in seizing petitioner's license, acted arbitrarily, capriciously, without jurisdiction, and without any authority or warrant of law.

9. Petitioner has demanded of respondents, and each of them, that they allow him/her to resume operation of his/her business without threat of arrest or prosecution, and has demanded that physical possession of the license be restored to him/her, but respondents have failed and refused, and continue to fail and refuse to comply with the request.

10. Petitioner is unable to resume operation of the business without threat of arrest or prosecution and, even if he/she did so, would be violating the ordinance requiring that a license to operate such a business be conspicuously displayed, inasmuch as the respondent _____[name] has possession of the license and petitioner is unable to obtain possession of it from him/her.

11. Petitioner has no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary case of law in that _____[state facts showing absence of another adequate remedy].

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays:

1. That this court issue its alternative writ of mandate commanding respondents to revoke and set aside the order directing petitioner to close his/her business, and further commanding them to restore to petitioner physical possession of the license to operate his/her business, or to show cause before this court at a specified time and place why they have not done so;

2. That, on the hearing of this application and the return thereto, if any, this court issue its peremptory writ of mandate commanding respondents to revoke and set aside the order directing petitioner to close his/her business and to restore to petitioner physical possession of the license to operate his/her business;

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition for writ of mandate in [1], above, is for use to compel a city or county and a local peace officer to allow the petitioner to resume the operation of his or her business and return his or her license that was improperly seized.

[3] Verification

A writ of mandate may be issued only on the verified petition of the person beneficially interested [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. The verification may be by declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] or by affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2009].

[4] Writ of Mandate

A writ of mandate may be issued by any court, except a municipal court, to an inferior board (such as a board of supervisors or city council) or person (such as a peace officer) to compel the admission of a party (such as a licensee) to the use and enjoyment of a right to which he or she is entitled, and from which he or she is unlawfully precluded by such inferior board or person [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085].

The writ must be issued in all cases in which there is not a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086]. However, the writ only may be issued on the verified petition of the party beneficially interested [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

Counsel should note that this petition involves "traditional mandate," rather than "administrative mandate" under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5. Relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 is only available when the underlying action is an administrative order or decision conforming to certain statutory requirements [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a); see also § 471B.104[2] et seq.].

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Defendant _____[name of city or county] at all times herein mentioned was, and now is, a _____ [municipal corporation or county], organized and existing under the laws of the State of California.

2. Defendants _____[names] at all times herein mentioned composed, and now compose, the duly elected and qualified _____ [City Council of defendant city or Board of Supervisors of defendant county].

3. Defendant _____[name] at all times herein mentioned was, and now is, the duly appointed, qualified, and acting _____ [state official title, e.g., City Clerk of defendant city or Tax Collector of defendant county], charged by law with the power and duty to _____ [issue or renew] licenses for _____ [the operation of _____ (specify type) businesses or engagement in the occupation of _____ (specify)] in defendant _____ [city or county] and to collect fees for such licenses.

4. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, engaged in the _____ [operation of a _____ (specify type) business or occupation of a _____ (specify)] in _____[city], California. [If plaintiff has state license for such business or occupation, so allege.]

5. On or about _____[date], the _____ [City Council or Board of Supervisors] enacted Ordinance No. _____, entitled "_____," [which ordinance amended and is now a part of Section _____ of the Municipal Code of defendant city]. The ordinance was approved by the _____ [specify official, e.g., Mayor or County Supervisor] on or about _____[date], and, at all times since that date, has been, and now is, in full force and effect. _____ [The ordinance provides that _____ (set forth relevant provisions) or A copy of the ordinance is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof].

6. Defendant _____[name], on or about _____[date], made demand on plaintiff to obtain a license and pay the fee provided for the license, pursuant to the provisions of the ordinance. Plaintiff has at all times refused, and still refuses, to obtain the license or pay any fee therefor and has continued, and still continues, to _____ [operate his/her business or engage in his/her occupation]; defendant has informed plaintiff that if he/she continues to _____ [operate his/her business or engage in his/her occupation] without obtaining a license and paying the fee prescribed by the ordinance, he/she will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law and will be enjoined from so _____ [operating his/her business or engaging in his/her occupation].

7. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between plaintiff and defendants in that plaintiff contends that such ordinance is invalid and that plaintiff may lawfully _____ [operate his/her business or engage in his/her occupation] without obtaining a license or paying any fee therefor, whereas defendants dispute such contention and contend that the ordinance is in all respects valid and must be complied with by plaintiff.

8. [Allege invalidity of ordinance and reasons for invalidity. See forms of allegations in §§ 471B.113-471B.118].

9. Plaintiff desires a declaration of his/her rights with respect to the validity of the ordinance. Such a declaration is necessary and appropriate at this time in order that plaintiff may ascertain his/her rights and duties without subjecting himself/herself to criminal liability for violation of the ordinance.

10. Plaintiff has no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law in that further discussion with defendants would be futile, ineffective, and useless in the light of defendants' contentions and the threat of criminal prosecution.

11. Unless and until defendants' enforcement of the ordinance in question is forthwith enjoined and restrained by order of this court, it will cause great and irreparable injury to plaintiff in that plaintiff will be deprived of his/her right to earn a living, will be deprived of his/her property without due process of law, and will be subjected to a criminal prosecution.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

1. That the court declare the respective rights and duties of plaintiff and defendants, and each of them, under the ordinance in question, and that by such declaration and judgment it be declared that the ordinance is invalid and has no application to plaintiff;

2. That an order issue requiring defendant to show cause, if any they have, why they should not be enjoined as hereinafter set forth during the pendency of this action;

3. That a permanent injunction issue, enjoining defendants, and each of them, and their agents, servants, and employees, and all persons acting under or in concert with or for them from enforcing, applying, or requiring adherence to the provisions of the ordinance;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification. See § 471B.100.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use to secure declaratory and injunctive relief if the plaintiff is threatened with a criminal prosecution for violation of an invalid licensing ordinance.

[3] Verification

A complaint for a preliminary injunction must be verified or accompanied by affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) showing the grounds for granting the injunction. Furthermore, if a temporary restraining order is also sought, the verified complaint or the affidavits (declarations) must show that great or irreparable injury would result to the applicant before the matter can be heard on notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)].

Verification [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction on a complaint, instead of on affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. Otherwise, verification of this complaint is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer and precludes a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 431.30(d), 446].

[4] Allegations

The form contains the following allegations:

- The defendants' capacities (Paragraphs 1-3).

- The facts giving rise to the adverse contentions of the parties to the action (Paragraphs 4-6).

- The existence of an actual controversy between the parties and the contentions of each party (Paragraphs 7, 8) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

- That the plaintiff desires a declaration of his or her rights and duties, and that the declaration is necessary and appropriate in order that plaintiff may ascertain his or her legal position (Paragraph 9) [see

Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

- The absence of an adequate remedy at law (Paragraph 10).

- That plaintiff will suffer great and irreparable injury if enforcement is not enjoined (Paragraph 11) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 526(a)(2)].

[5] Determination of Validity of Ordinance

Both declaratory and injunctive relief are available for the purpose of determining the validity of a challenged ordinance [Abbott v. City of Los Angeles (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 674, 678 n.2, 3 Cal. Rptr. 158, 349 P.2d 974 ; Andrews v. City of Piedmont (1929) 100 Cal. App. 700, 700-701, 281 P. 78] .

[6] Jurisdiction

[a] Declaratory Relief

This action for declaratory relief is in the jurisdiction of the superior court as an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86, 580(b)(5), 1060; *see Code Civ. § 471B.113 Allegation That Field Is Preempted by Laws of the State of California [General Form]

[1] FORM Allegation That Field Is Preempted by Laws of the State of California [General Form]

At all times herein mentioned, Section(s) _____ of the _____[title] Code of the State of California set forth, and it/they do[es] now set forth, a comprehensive scheme and system for the licensing of all persons engaged in the _____ [operation of _____ (specify type) business or occupation of _____ (specify)] in California; this/these statute(s) was/were, and is/are, intended by the Legislature to, and it/they do[es], provide the sole licensing requirements imposed in such field in California; by reason thereof the ordinance is[, and at all times herein mentioned was,] invalid.

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint challenging a local licensing requirement on the ground that the field has been preempted by state legislation. It may be used as Paragraph 8 of § 471B.112[1], to state plaintiff's contentions. A local ordinance that is in conflict with a general law adopted by the Legislature is invalid if it attempts to impose additional requirements in a field that is preempted by the general law [Agnew v. Los Angeles (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 1, 5, 330 P.2d 385] .

§ 471B.114 Allegation That Field Is Preempted by Laws of the State of California and That Ordinance Imposes License Fee for Regulatory Purposes

[1] FORM Allegation That Field Is Preempted by Laws of the State of California and That Ordinance Imposes License Fee for Regulatory Purposes

The ordinance providing for payment of an annual license fee of _____ [$_____ or _____ percent of (gross) annual receipts] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, intended and designed solely as a regulatory measure to impose on persons desiring to engage in the _____ [operation of _____ (specify type) business or occupation of _____ (specify)] in defendant city. Such ordinance imposes a requirement in addition to those provided for by the Legislature of this state in enactment of the statute. Such ordinance is not, and at no time mentioned herein was, intended or designed, wholly or partially, as a revenue measure.

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint challenging a local licensing requirement on the ground that a license fee was intended to regulate a field covered by state legislation rather than to raise revenue. It may be used as Paragraph 8 of § 471B.112[1], to state plaintiff's contentions.

[3] Invalidity of License Fee in Preempted Field

A municipality may tax a state-licensed occupation as it does other trades, professions, and businesses, but it may not exact fees as the price of a license that the city cannot require because the field has been preempted by state legislation [Agnew v. Los Angeles (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 1, 7, 330 P.2d 385] .

§ 471B.115 Allegation That Business License Tax Is Invalid Because Plaintiff Is Not Doing Business in the City

[1] FORM Allegation That Business License Tax Is Invalid Because Plaintiff Is Not Doing Business in the City

The ordinance requiring the payment of a license tax or fee in order to make deliveries of products in the city is unconstitutional and void in regard to plaintiff because plaintiff has no place of business, no agents, and no terminals in the city; plaintiff's sole activity in the city consists of the occasional delivery of goods to various places of business; by reason of these activities plaintiff is not engaged in business in the city, and there is no taxable event occurring there that can be taxed by means of extracting a license fee, or by other means.

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint challenging a local licensing requirement on the ground that the license tax required cannot apply to a plaintiff who does not engage in business in that city. It may be used as Paragraph 8 of § 471B.112[1] to state plaintiff's contentions.

The tax imposed by such ordinance is so large that it suppresses and prohibits plaintiff's exercise of his/her occupation, and is therefore invalid.

[2] Use of Form

§ 471B.118 Affirmative Defense When Contract Action Brought by Unlicensed Person

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense When Contract Action Brought by Unlicensed Person

AS A SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE, defendant alleges:

1. Plaintiff entered into the contract with defendant and acted as a _____[specify profession or business] within the meaning of Section _____ of the _____[title] Code but without the necessary license therefor, as required by Section _____ of the _____[title] Code.

[EITHER]

2. Therefore, plaintiff is barred by Section _____ of the _____[title] Code from bringing or maintaining any action for collection of compensation for performance of the contract or of any act thereunder.

[OR]

2. The license is required _____ [to prevent improper persons from engaging in such work or for the protection of the public] and therefore plaintiff is prohibited from recovering on the contract.

[2] Use of Form

The form of affirmative defense in [1], above, is for use in an answer by defendant to a complaint on a contract if the plaintiff engaged in a profession or business in which a license is required, and he or she did not possess such a license. It contains alternative allegations to meet situations in which such contracts are expressly declared void by a statute [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 7031 (contractors)], or in which the invalidity stems from the regulatory nature of the license requirement [see Wood v. Krepps (1914) 168 Cal. 382, 386-387, 143 P. 691] .

Defendant demurs to the complaint herein on the following ground:

The complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that plaintiff has failed to allege that he/she/it was licensed at all times during the performance of the _____ [act or contract] for which plaintiff seeks compensation from defendant. Plaintiff is required under Section _____ of the Business and Professions Code to have been duly licensed at the time he/she/it performed the _____ [act or contract] for which he/she/it seeks compensation. Because Section 143 of the Business and Professions Code requires plaintiff to allege and prove licensure at all times during the performance of the _____ [act or contract] for which compensation is sought, plaintiff's complaint seeking compensation fails to state a cause of action.

[WHEREFORE, defendant prays that this demurrer be sustained (without leave to amend), that plaintiff take nothing by his/her/its complaint, that defendant have judgment for his/her/its costs, and for all other proper relief.]

Respectfully submitted,

Attorney for Defendant

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in objecting, by demurrer, to a complaint seeking compensation for professional services on the ground that the pleading does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action because the plaintiff has failed to allege that he or she was duly licensed at all times during the performance of the professional services [Bus. & Prof. Code § 143(a)]. This defect must appear on the face of the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]. The form should not be used if the plaintiff seeking compensation is not required to be licensed by the Department of Consumer Affairs or by an entity within the Department [Bus. & Prof. Code § 143(a)]. Furthermore, this form should not be used if, at the time the services were performed, the plaintiff had renewed his or her license and was waiting for receipt of proof of renewal [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 121, 143(c)].

[3] Accompanying Papers

A party filing a demurrer is required to serve and file with it a notice of hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320] and a memorandum in support of each ground asserted in the demurrer [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113; for discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities].

NOTE:

This table lists specific licensing statutes, arranged alphabetically by the type of business or profession. It is extensive but not intended to be an exhaustive list of all licensing statutes. Some statutes that regulate businesses or professions may not use specific terms such as "licensing" or "certification," so counsel should still review appropriate California codes when researching businesses or professions not listed here. Many regulations also apply to particular businesses or professions; for example, see the regulations listed in the Research Guide under California Code of Regulations, above.

§ 472.10 Governing Law

The procedures used by most public agencies for rulemaking are set out in that part of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA) entitled "Administrative Regulations and Rulemaking," that is, Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.

The provisions of Gov. Code § 11340 et seq. collectively comprise Chapter 3.5 of Part I (State Departments and Agencies) of Division 3 (Executive Department) of Title 2 (State Government) of the Government Code. This law is referred to hereafter for convenience as "Chapter 3.5." This chapter, together with Chapter 4 (Gov. Code § 11370 ("Office of Administrative Hearings"), Chapter 4.5 ("Administrative Adjudication: General Provisions," Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.), and Chapter 5 ("Administrative Adjudication: Formal Hearings," Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.)), comprise the Administrative Procedure Act; hereafter the APA.

As discussed in Subpart B. (§ 472.20 et seq.), various other statutes or constitutional provisions apply to authorize and otherwise govern the rulemaking of specific agencies.

Chapter 472 PUBLIC AGENCY RULES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Agency Formal Rulemaking

41-472 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472.11

§ 472.11 Nature and Purpose of Formal Rulemaking

Legislative bodies at both the state and national levels often delegate their power to make laws to administrative agencies [see § 472.13 for a discussion of delegation; see also Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law]. Those agency-created laws are known as "rules" or "regulations," as distinguished from "statutes" enacted by the legislative branch of state government.

A dramatic increase in the number of administrative rules and regulations beginning in the 1930's led to concerns about agency accountability and responsiveness, leading in turn to the enactment of Chapter 3.5, the rulemaking procedures of the APA (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.) [see Gov. Code § 11340 (legislative finding and declaration); see also discussion in [1], above]. The APA established the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to oversee the adoption of regulations [Gov. Code §§ 11340.1, 11340.2; see § 472.14[4]].

Two objectives of the APA rulemaking provisions are as follows [California Optometric Assn. v. Lackner (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 500, 506, 131 Cal. Rptr. 744] :

- To encourage meaningful public participation in the administrative rulemaking process through a system of formal rulemaking, which requires that regulations (a) are promulgated subject to public notice and comment before being enforced, and (b) are centrally compiled, and thus accessible to affected parties [see Gov. Code §§ 11346-11347.3; see also Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures , for a discussion of specific rulemaking requirements]. This system is intended to guarantee a minimum level of accountability and responsiveness by administrative agencies to the public [Gov. Code § 11346; [Gov. Code § 11342.520 (agency defined); Gov. Code § 11340.9(a) (judicial and legislative agencies excluded)].

- To allow effective judicial review of rulemaking by ensuring that a reviewing court, when determining whether a challenged enactment is reasonably necessary or within the agency's authority, will have ready access to the key documents considered by the agency in formulating the rule. Thus, the APA requires the rulemaking agency to prepare as part of the official rulemaking record a Final Statement of Reasons explaining why the proposed rule is needed [Gov. Code 11346.9; see Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking , for a discussion of judicial review of administrative rulemaking].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Agency Formal Rulemaking

41-472 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472.12

§ 472.12 Benefits and Limitations of Formal Rulemaking

[1] Benefits

In Chamber of Commerce v. Occupational Safety & Health Administration (D.C. Cir. 1980) 636 F.2d 464, 470-471 , the federal court of appeals for the District of Columbia, a tribunal noted for its expertise in federal administrative law, summarized the numerous benefits of formal rulemaking to both the public and the agency. The court stated that parties affected by the proposed legislation are the obvious beneficiaries of formal procedures. Prior notice and an opportunity to comment permits them to voice their objections before the agency takes final action. Expressing concerns in the rulemaking process may be the only defense mechanism available to an affected party [Chamber of Commerce v. Occupational Safety & Health Administration (D.C. Cir. 1980) 636 F.2d 464, 470-471] . The court noted that public comments may also benefit the public agency. Public participation increases the agency's knowledge of (1) specific information relating to the proposed regulation, (2) additional policy considerations, (3) weaknesses in the proposed regulation (such as unforeseen detrimental consequences), and (4) alternative means of achieving the same objective. Furthermore, charting changes in policy direction with the aid of those who will be affected helps dispel suspicions of agency predisposition, unfairness, arrogance, improper influences, and ulterior motivation, thus decreasing the likelihood that opponents will attempt to sabotage the rule's implementation and enforcement [Chamber of Commerce v. Occupational Safety & Health Administration (D.C. Cir. 1980) 636 F.2d 464, 470-471] .

[2] Limitations

There are several limitations on formal rulemaking in California. First, the process takes at least several months, including 45 days for initial public notice and 30 days for review by the OAL [Gov. Code §§ 11346.4(a), 11349.3(a); see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures , for further discussion regarding specific rulemaking procedures]. Through careful advance planning, however, an agency can often ensure that the necessary regulations are on the books when needed.

Furthermore, the APA provides for emergency adoption (within 10 days or less) of regulations that are found to be necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety, or general welfare [Gov. Code § 11346.1(b); see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures].

In addition, substantial rulemaking agency staff time is needed to prepare the numerous documents that the APA requires to be placed in the rulemaking record, and to summarize and respond to public comments. Finally, agencies may suffer some loss of flexibility when they need to respond immediately to unforeseeable problems that do not rise to the level of a statutory "emergency"; regulations promulgated in that situation must comply with the lengthy APA formal rulemaking process.

Chapter 472 PUBLIC AGENCY RULES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Agency Formal Rulemaking

41-472 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472.13

§ 472.13 Delegation of Rulemaking Authority

[1] General Requirements

[a] Source of Rulemaking Authority

The California Constitution, in its "separation of powers" doctrine, divides the powers of the state into legislative, executive, and judicial powers, and provides that no person who exercises one power may exercise another [Cal. Const., art. III, § 3]. The legislative power of the state is vested in the Legislature and in the people [Cal. Const., art. IV, § 1]. Consequently, most state agencies, as extensions of the executive branch of state government, have no inherent legislative powers with which to enact regulations [Ferdig v. State Personnel Bd. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 96, 103-104, 77 Cal. Rptr. 224, 453 P.2d 728] .

The Constitution does, however, authorize certain governmental agencies to exercise legislative power:

- The Judicial Council [Cal. Const., art. IV, §§ 6, 18(f)].

- The Personnel Board [Cal. Const., art. VII, §§ 2(c), 3, 6(b), (c); see Ch. 118, Civil Service].

- The Board of Education [Cal. Const., art. IX, § 7; State Bd. of Education v. Honig (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 720, 751-752, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 727 (State Board of Education has been delegated legislative power to adopt regulations that are not in conflict with governing statute); see Ch. 512, Schools: Certification, Dismissal, and Related Employment Issues].

- The Regents of the University of California [Cal. Const., art. IX, § 9(a)].

- The Public Utilities Commission [Cal. Const., art. XII, §§ 2, 4-6; see Ch. 480, Public Utilities].

[b] Permissible Delegation

Delegation of limited rulemaking power by the Legislature to administrative agencies that have not already received a constitutional grant of legislative power has long been accepted as a necessity in a complex governmental system [see Davis, Administrative Law Treatise, ch. 3 (2d ed. 1978)]. Courts have recognized that legislative bodies have neither the resources nor the expertise to deal adequately with every question potentially within their jurisdictions [see Kugler v. Yocum (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 371, 383-384, 71 Cal. Rptr. 687, 445 P.2d 303] , and have held that the Legislature may therefore delegate "quasi-legislative" powers to state agencies [First Industrial Loan Co. v. Daugherty (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 545, 549, 159 P.2d 921] . Even if an agency derives some of its powers directly from the California Constitution, the Legislature is not precluded from delegating some of its own powers to the agency [Sandstrom v. Cal. Horse Racing Bd. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 401, 413, 189 P.2d 17 , cert. denied, 335 U.S. 814, 69 S. Ct. 31, 93 L. Ed. 369 (1948)] .

The Legislature's function is the determination and formulation of the basic policy; attainment of that policy may be left to administrative agencies. After declaring a policy and fixing a primary standard for the exercise of delegated legislative power, the Legislature may confer upon administrative agencies the power to "fill up the details" by prescribing administrative rules and regulations to promote the purposes of the legislation and to carry it into effect [First Industrial Loan Co. v. Daugherty (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 545, 549, 159 P.2d 921 ; State Comp. Ins. Fund v. State Bd. of Equalization (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1295, 1299, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 526 (delegation of legislative power to agency must contain an intelligible standard that is capable of administrative application by the agency)].

Delegation is restricted only by the judicially developed principle that delegation of uncontrolled authority to make fundamental policy determinations is invalid [People v. Wright (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 705, 712-713, 180 Cal. Rptr. 196, 639 P.2d 267 ; Clean Air Constituency v. California State Air Resources Bd. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 801, 816-817, 114 Cal. Rptr. 577, 523 P.2d 617 ; People v. Martin (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 699, 710, 259 Cal. Rptr. 770] .

The California Supreme Court has not defined the term "fundamental policy determination." Nevertheless, in California Medical Assn. v. Lackner (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 28, 177 Cal. Rptr. 188 , the court of appeal held that the critical question in determining if a decision is "fundamental" is whether or not the Legislature has previously made a basic policy decision that provides a standard or guide for the exercise of administrative discretion [California Medical Assn. v. Lackner (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 28, 41, 177 Cal. Rptr. 188 ; see, e.g., People v. Martin (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 699, 710, 259 Cal. Rptr. 770 (legislature expressed intent to protect health and environment by regulating hazardous waste, provided general definition of hazardous waste, and directed Department of Health Services to make list of hazardous wastes; held to be reasonable grant of power to agency, providing adequate standards to guide agency)].

In Lackner, the court found that the decision of the Department of Health Services to promulgate informed consent regulations was not a decision on a truly fundamental issue that could only be made by the Legislature; statutory standards governed the department's exercise of discretion [California Medical Assn. v. Lackner (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 28, 41, 177 Cal. Rptr. 188] . In Kugler v. Yocum (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 371, 71 Cal. Rptr. 687, 445 P.2d 303 , the court found the determination that firemen's wages in one city should be comparable to those in another city, was a "fundamental policy issue," the setting of the particular salaries by an administrative body or officer merely constituted implementation of that policy [Kugler v. Yocum (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 371, 377-378, 71 Cal. Rptr. 687, 445 P.2d 303] .

In Clean Air Constituency v. California State Air Resources Bd. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 801, 114 Cal. Rptr. 577, 523 P.2d 617 , the California Supreme Court stated that the enactment of a statute requiring installation of pollution control devices in motor vehicles was a fundamental policy determination that urgent action needed to be taken against auto pollution. The state air resources board, by delaying implementation of that program due to its own concerns regarding energy consumption, essentially made an impermissible, contrary fundamental policy decision that energy consumption was more important than pollution control [Clean Air Constituency v. California State Air Resources Bd. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 801, 816-818, 114 Cal. Rptr. 577, 523 P.2d 617] . For other examples of decisions that constitute "fundamental policy decisions," see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law .

[c] Sources of Delegation of Rulemaking Power

Quasi-legislative powers are delegated to most state agencies either in their enabling statutes, the statutes they are to administer, or in laws of general application to some or all agencies. Gov. Code § 6253.4(a) authorizes certain state agencies to establish procedural rules for making records available to the public [see Gov. Code § 6253.4(a); see also Ch. 470C, Public Records Act]. No quasi-legislative authority is delegated to a California state agency by a court decision, or by the regulations, statutes, or constitution of the United States government; however, a California statute may empower a state agency to adopt rules to implement or interpret a court decision or specified United States laws or regulations. For example, in California Welfare Rights Organization v. Carleson [California Welfare Rights Organization v. Carleson (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 445, 93 Cal. Rptr. 758, 482 P.2d 670] , the California Supreme Court held valid a regulation promulgated by the Department of Social Welfare that raised the AFDC amount specified by Welf. & Inst. Code § 11450(a) to conform to increases set by federal law. The statute required the AFDC amount to be increased or decreased in accordance with federal law [California Welfare Rights Organization v. Carleson (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 445, 452-454, 93 Cal. Rptr. 758, 482 P.2d 670] . In this type of situation, the court decision or the laws and regulations of the United States merely help to define the scope of the statutory delegation.

[d] Subdelegation

Although an administrative agency may also delegate its assigned functions and duties to another body or officer, quasi-legislative duties generally may not be delegated [see Davis, Administrative Law Treatise (2nd ed, 1978), vol. 2, ch. 3, § 3.17]. For discussion of this further level of delegation, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law .

[2] Express and Implied Delegation

A delegation of rulemaking authority can be express, implied, or both [Gov. Code § 11342.2]. An express delegation specifies that a certain state agency or category of agency may or must adopt rules or regulations, and often specifies the purpose of those rules or regulations. For example, Gov. Code § 11342.4 provides that the OAL shall adopt, amend, or repeal regulations for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this chapter [Gov. Code § 11342.4; see Gov. Code § 11342.550 (Office of Administrative Law defined)]. "This chapter" refers to Chapter 3.5, the APA administrative regulation and rulemaking provisions (Gov. Code §§ 11340 et seq.). An implied delegation arises from a power or a duty given to a state agency, when the adoption of a regulation is needed for the due and efficient exercise of the powers expressly granted [see Bank of Italy v. Johnson (1926) 200 Cal. 1, 20, 251 P. 784] . The powers of an agency include those that may fairly be implied from the statute granting the powers [Dickey v. Raisin Proration Zone (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 796, 810, 151 P.2d 505 ; see also Rich Vision Centers, Inc. v. Bd. of Medical Examiners (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 110, 114, 192 Cal. Rptr. 455] . An implied power must be indispensable; any reasonable doubt as to its existence is resolved against the agency [see Addison v. Dept. of Motor Vehicles (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 486, 498, 138 Cal. Rptr. 185] . Implied rulemaking authority may occur in conjunction with, or in the absence of, express rulemaking authority.

Similarly, agencies may only exercise those powers that are delegated by the governing legislation that creates the agency and gives the agency authority to act. For example, the California Court of Appeal held that the California Coastal Commission did not have statutory authority under California Coastal Act [Pub. Res. §§ 30000 et. seq.] to condition issuance of a coastal zone development permit based on considering impacts on coastal zone of the part of a proposed project outside the coastal zone [Sierra Club v. California Coastal Com. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 839, 843-844, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 316, 111 P.3d 294] .

[3] Assessing the Scope of Authority Delegated

[a] When Agency May Interpret Delegating Statute

The extent to which a state agency may interpret the statute or statutes from which it draws its quasi-legislative authority is an important delegation issue. Unless authorized to do so by the Legislature, a state agency may not interpret any statute, including a delegation of authority, that is certain and unambiguous [Bank of Alameda County v. McColgan (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 464, 470, 159 P.2d 31] . When interpretation of a statute delegating rulemaking authority is necessary, however, the agency given the delegation may reasonably interpret it [Ralphs Grocery Co. v. Reimel (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 172, 176, 70 Cal. Rptr. 407, 444 P.2d 79] . For example, a state agency may interpret a statute through the adoption of a regulation when the statute is ambiguous [Dillman v. McColgan (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 405, 409-410, 146 P.2d 978] . A regulation interprets a statute if it construes the statute, rather than merely implementing it [Blumenfeld v. San Francisco Bay Conservation & Dev. Com. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 50, 57, 117 Cal. Rptr. 327] . For example, an interpretive regulation might define statutory terms, clarify the meaning of a statute, or explain the policy embodied in the statute [see Wotton v. Bush (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 460, 464, 261 P.2d 256 (regulation defined statutory terms); Blumenfeld v. San Francisco Bay Conservation & Dev. Com. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 50, 57, 117 Cal. Rptr. 327 (regulation defined statutory terms)].

[b] Interpretation May Not Exceed Delegated Authority

Any regulation adopted by a state agency, including one that interprets a delegation of authority, must be within the scope of the authority conferred upon the agency [Gov. Code § 11342.1]. A regulation that is beyond the scope of that authority is void [Gov. Code § 11342.1; State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Company v. Garamendi (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 1029, 1040-1042, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343, 88 P.3d 71 (regulation promulgated by Insurance Commissioner that authorized public inspection of insurer community service statement data was valid and within the scope of statutory authority of Ins. Code § 1861.07); State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Company v. Garamendi (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 1029, 1040-1042, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343, 88 P.3d 71 (regulation promulgated by Insurance Commissioner that authorized public inspection of insurer community service statement data was valid and within the scope of statutory authority of Ins. Code § 1861.07); Bearden v. U.S. Borax, Inc. (2006) 179 L.R.R.M. (BNA) 2993, 138 Cal. App. 4th 429, 432, 435-437, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 482 (Industrial Welfare Commission Order that authorized exemption from second meal break for employees covered by a collective bargaining agreement was invalid because it was inconsistent with the language of the governing statutes, Labor Code §§ 226.7, 512(a), 516, and therefore exceeded the scope of agency authority to adopt regulations under Gov. Code §§ 11342.1, 11342.2); Mineral Ass'ns Coal. v. State Mining & Geology Bd. (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 574, 579, 589, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 544 (agency regulation (14 Cal. Code Regs. § 3805.5(d)) requiring concurrence of Director of Department of Conservation in lead agency determinations was within Board's statutory authority and was not in conflict with the governing statute (Pub. Res. Code §§ 2710 et seq., 2775)); Pulaski v. California Occupational Safety and Health Standards Bd. (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1315, 1341-1342, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 54 ; Morris v. Williams (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 733, 748, 63 Cal. Rptr. 689, 433 P.2d 697] . A regulation that enlarges or exceeds the authority delegated to the agency by the statute is invalid [People ex rel. Dept. of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Miller Brewing Company (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1198-1199, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861] . To be within the scope of authority, a regulation must be compatible with the purposes of the program it implements [Vaessen v. Woods (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 749, 764, 200 Cal. Rptr. 893, 677 P.2d 1183 (court enjoined enforcement of California AFDC regulation that conflicted with policy of federal AFDC statutes because it defined "income" to include income tax refunds for purposes of reducing AFDC benefits)]. It must conform to the "legislative will" [Morris v. Williams (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 733, 737, 63 Cal. Rptr. 689, 433 P.2d 697 (court invalidated Medi-Cal regulations that eliminated some health services entirely, although statute that the regulations interpreted required "proportionate reductions" in services)].

A regulation cannot reject explicit legislative determinations. For example, in Cooper v. Swoap [Cooper v. Swoap (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 856, 115 Cal. Rptr. 1, 524 P.2d 97] , the California Supreme Court held invalid an AFDC regulation that reduced an AFDC grant to a recipient who shared housing with a recipient of an adult aid program. The court found that the regulation conflicted with a statute that explicitly prohibited the imputation of an adult aid recipient's benefit as income to anyone else [Cooper v. Swoap (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 856, 864-865, 115 Cal. Rptr. 1, 524 P.2d 97] . Agency standards can not create exemptions that are not provided for by statute [Communications Relay Corp. v. County of Los Angeles (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 162, 169-170, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 (agency standard providing for an exemption from statutory licensing requirement could not create valid exemption when statute did not authorize an exemption)].

An interpretation of a statute, whether it establishes a legislative mandate or delegates discretionary rulemaking authority, must be based on the language used in the statute [see Select Base Materials, Inc. v. Bd. of Equalization (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 640, 645, 335 P.2d 672] ; however, an administrative agency is not limited to the exact provisions of a statute in adopting regulations to implement its mandate. For example, in Ford Dealers Assn. v. Dept. of Motor Vehicles [Ford Dealers Assn. v. Dept. of Motor Vehicles (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 347, 185 Cal. Rptr. 453, 650 P.2d 328] , the California Supreme Court held that a regulation that defined "advertising" to include both oral and written statements did not conflict with the statute it interpreted, even though that statute used "advertise" only with reference to written statements [Ford Dealers Assn. v. Dept. of Motor Vehicles (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 347, 362, 185 Cal. Rptr. 453, 650 P.2d 328] . Initiative measures should also be interpreted consistent with the usual and ordinary meaning of its terms [Tain v. State Bd. of Chiropractic Exam's (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 609, 614, 616-617, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 330 (Chiropractic Act, adopted by initiative in 1992, establishes a scope of chiropractic practice that excludes use of drugs, surgery, or obstetrics by chiropractors; initiative measures interpreted by courts usingtechniques similar to statutory interpretation; Court upheld those scope of practice limits, including an agency regulation, and rejected a constitutional challenge to them based on equal protection of law)].

When appellate courts interpret statutes, the court will look to the language of the statute, as well as the statutory purpose. The legislative intent of the statute may be determined from the language of the statute if it is clear and unambiguous, but if not, the literal meaning will give way to interpretation based on legislative intent, and harmonizing all related provisions of the statute [State v. Unumprovident Corp. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 442, 445-446, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 491] .

The California Supreme Court deferred to the agency interpretation by the California Department of Social Services (CDSS) of its governing statute [Fam. Code' 8617] because of agency expertise, and because the interpretation was adopted at "authoritative legal and policymaking levels of the agency." The agency had interpreted the statute to permit second parent adoptions. The CDSS had adopted forms and procedures to "facilitate second parent adoptions." The challenge was based on the argument that CDSS, an executive branch agency, exercised legislative powers, by recognizing a type of adoption that was not authorized by the legislature. The Court rejected this challenge and held that CDSS had reasonably interpreted a statute authorizing independent adoptions to allow the type of adoption for which they had provided forms and procedures [Sharon S. v. Superior Court (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 417, 436-437, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 699, 73 P. 3d 554] .

When the legislature delegates regulatory authority to an administrative agency, the legislature must make the fundamental policy determinations. If the legislature delegates unrestricted authority to an agency to make fundamental policy decisions, then the delegation of powers to the agency is unconstitutional as a violation of separation of powers. If the legislation contains standards, or if there are procedural safeguards, such as a requirement that the agency adopt regulations that are not inconsistent with the statute and that are reasonably necessary to implement the purpose of the legislation, then the delegation of powers to the agency is proper [Clean Air Constituency v. California State Air Resources Bd. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 801, 816-817, 114 Cal. Rptr. 577, 523 P. 2d 617 ; see also People v. Wright (1982) 30 Cal. 3d 705, 712-713, 180 Cal. Rptr. 196, 639 P. 2d 267] .

[c] Agency's Interpretations Are Generally Followed

In general, an agency's interpretation of its own authority is followed by the courts and by the OAL, unless the interpretation is clearly erroneous [see Cal. Drive-In Restaurant Assn. v. Clark (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 287 ; 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 14; Ch. 472B, Agency Rulemaking Procedures]. When the Legislature has delegated to an administrative agency the responsibility to implement a statutory scheme through rules and regulations, the courts will interfere only where the agency has clearly overstepped its statutory authority or violated a constitutional mandate [Ford Dealers Assn. v. Dept. of Motor Vehicles (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 347, 356, 185 Cal. Rptr. 453, 650 P.2d 328] . Agency quasi-legislative interpretations will be deferred to by the courts when the agency interpretation was within the scope of statutory authority, and the agency interpretation was reasonably necessary to carry out the purpose of the statutory provision [Ramirez v. Yosemite Water Co. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 785, 800, 85 Cal Rptr., 2d 844, 978 P 2d 2 (Industrial Wage Commission (IWC) wage order (agency regulation) interpreting term "outside salesperson" entitled to deference under two-part test); Megrabian v. Saenz (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 468, 480-482, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 262 (DSS regulatory interpretation of California public assistance statute provision providing that date of entry meant date of acquiring current immigration status, rather than date of physical entry into U.S., was entitled to deference by courts)]. A general grant of powers implies the right and duty to adopt regulations reasonably necessary to exercise those powers [Laurelle v. Bush (1911) 17 Cal. App. 409, 415-416, 119 P. 953] . Deference to the agency in such a case is a recognition that discretion in the use of quasi-legislative powers has been delegated, and a recognition that continuous, flexible, and expert regulation is necessary [see Ralphs Grocery Co. v. Reimel (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 172, 176, 70 Cal. Rptr. 407, 444 P.2d 79] . Courts will defer to reasonable agency interpretations of the agency's governing statute [Western States Petroleum Association v. State Dept. of Health Services (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 999, 1006-1007, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117 ; Park Medical Pharmacy v. San Diego Orthopedic Associates Medical Group, Inc. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 247, 259-260, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 858 (agencies interpretations of statute consistent with appellate court's interpretation of statute); Californians for Safe Prescriptions v. California State Bd. of Pharmacy (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1136, 1149-1150, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755] . However, an agency interpretation of a statute that is not persuasive will not be deferred to by the courts and will not govern the interpretive issue [Katz v. Los Gatos-Saratoga Joint Union High School District (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 47, 67-69, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 546] . Furthermore, a California Court of Appeal held that a federal DOL opinion letter would be evaluated under the federal weak deference standard of Christensen v. Harris County (2000) 529 U.S. 576, 120 S. Ct. 1655, 146 L. Ed. 2d 621 and Skidmore v. Swift & Co. (1944) 323 U.S. 134, 65 S. Ct. 161, 89 L. Ed. 124 . The court concluded that the opinion in that letter would not be deferred to, as it lacked the power to persuade on the interpretive issue [Bell v. Farmers Ins. Exch. (2004) 115 Cal. App. 4th 715, 733-735, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 544 ; Conley v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 260, 270-271, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 719 (DLSE advice letters interpretation rejected by court of appeal on merits)].

Agency interpretive regulations will be deferred to by the courts when the interpretation is persuasive, based on the application of a number of factors including the following: the interpretation has been followed consistently by the agency, it concerns policy and discretion, the agency has an interpretative advantage over the courts, and it was not adopted in response to litigation [Ramirez v. Yosemite Water Co. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 785, 801, 85 Cal Rptr. 2d 844, 978 P. 2d 2 ; Megrabian v. Saenz (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 468, 484-486, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 262 (DSS regulatory interpretation of California public assistance statute provision providing that date of entry meant date of acquiring current immigration status, rather than date of physical entry into U.S., was entitled to deference by courts)]. The California Supreme Court held that Judicial Council Rule 1460, which interpreted the provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 366.21(e), was entitled to great weight, and could only be overturned if it was clearly erroneous [Sara M. v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 998, 1013-1015, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 89, 116 P. 3d 550] . The Supreme Court went on to uphold that interpretation (permitting the juvenile court to terminate reunification services when the parent has failed to contact or visit their child for six months after reunification services have begun) [Sara M. v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 998, 1016-1017, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 89, 116 P. 3d 550] .

The California Court of Appeal gave deference to the interpretation of the State Board of Equalization (SBE) as to what was "business income" for purposes of California tax law, and held that the SBE correctly interpreted that statute [Jim Beam Brands Co., v. Franchise Tax Bd. (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 514, 521-523, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 874] . The California Court of Appeal gave deference to the Department of Managed Health Care's interpretation of Health & Safety Code § 1371.4 (that health care providers have the right to privately enforce provisions of the statute through filing lawsuits under the unfair competition law, as well as for breach of contract, and quantum meruit, when a health care plan did not provide adequate reimbursement for the value of service rendered by emergency room physicians) and concluded that physicians had standing to file a lawsuit against a health care service plan [Bell v. Blue Cross of Cal. (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 211, 217-219, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 688] . The California Court of Appeal gave limited deference to the agency interpretation of statutory term ("subterranean stream") related to agency water law jurisdiction that was determined by agency in adjudicatory capacity in permitting proceeding [North Gualala Water Co. v. State Water Resources Control

A court that is reviewing an agency interpretation of its governing statute will give substantial weight to that agency interpretation. This is true even when the interpretation is found in Board annotations containing staff-attorney legal opinions, and is not contained in either substantive or interpretive rules, so long as that interpretation is consistent with the court's own independent analysis of the same statute, when the interpretation is based on agency expertise acquired in enforcing the statute interpreted, and when the interpretation has been consistent over a long period of time [Yamaha Corp. of Am. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 338, 351-353, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362 ; Reilly v. City and County of San Francisco (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 480, 491-492, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 291 (state board of equalization annotations are entitled to some weight because of agency expertise and due to consistent and long standing nature of agency interpretation but annotation interpretations are not binding on court of appeal which independently determined meaning of statutory term); Spanish Speaking Citizens' Foundation, Inc. v. Low (2001) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1179 , as modified on denial of rehearing, 2001 Cal. App. LEXIS 39, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 75 (agency interpretation of weight ordering mandate in statute entitled to strong claim of deference based on technical expertise and time and effort spent addressing issue); Sully-Miller Contracting Co. v. Cal. Occupational Safety & Health Appeals Bd. (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 684, 693, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 742 (board interpretation of term "dual employer" based on workers compensation law, and applied to worker safety law, was deferred to by appellate court under great weight standard in applying dual employer concept to substantial evidence review of board finding that plaintiff appellant was employer of deceased worker); Sneed v. Saenz (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 1220, 1234, 1246, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 563 (Department of Social Services agency interpretation of meaning of term "child support" in maximum family grant statute upheld by Court of appeal as being consistent with language of statute and legislative intent); PG & E Corp. v. Public Utilities Com. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1174, 1194-1196, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 630 (PUC's interpretation of the scope of agency jurisdiction is not controlling, is scrutinized more carefully, and is given the weight justified by the carefulness, thoroughness, and consistency of the agencies reasoning in support of the interpretation); California Career Schools v. DMV (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 10, 14-16, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 813 (DMV interpretation of term commercial vehicle in governing statute [Cal. Veh. Code § 260] was given deference by Court of Appeal based on agency expertise); Southern California Edison Co. v. Public Utilities Comm'n of the State of California (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1049, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 441 (court of appeal deferred to PUC interpretation of Pub. Util. Code § 1802. Courts will give considerable deference to PUC's interpretations of the Public Utilities code when those interpretations are reasonably related to statutory purposes and language)].

However, agency regulations that contain interpretations of the agencies governing statute that are inconsistent with the statute as interpreted bythe courts are invalid and unenforceable [Esberg v. Union Oil Company of California (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 262, 269-270, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 203, 47 P.3d 1069 (FEHA regulation that interpreted FEHA statute to prohibit age discrimination in employment benefits was inconsistent with statutory interpretation of FEHA as decided by California Supreme Court, which limited FEHA Act protection to exclude employee benefits, and therefore regulation was invalid and unenforceable); Kaiser Foundation Health Plan, Inc. v. Zingale (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1018, 1028-1029, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 741 (agency regulation mandating that health care plans provide coverage of all medically necessary outpatient prescription drugs exceeded scope of agency authority under governing statute; regulation was invalid and unenforcable); Blue v. Bonta (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 980, 990-992, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483 (medical regulation that excluded coverage for stairway chair lifts is invalid because inconsistent with the statute that requires coverage of durable medical equipment; agency interpretation rejected by court that treated issue as question of law with independent judgment review; no specialized administrative expertise or agency factual inquiry required); Gebremicael v. Cal. Comm'n on Teacher Credentialing (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1477, 1485-1486, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 777 (Commission argued that nature of crime was controlling under governing statute for determining whether applicant for teaching credential was convicted of felony, and therefore ineligible for teaching credential. The court of appeal rejected commission interpretation of governing statute, and concluded that the nature of punishment imposed is controlling, particularly in cases in which the offense can be either a felony or a misdemeanor)]. The California Supreme Court interpreted the provisions of the Public Employees' Retirement Law (PERL) [Gov. Code § 21156] which authorize disability retirements for state employees who are unable to perform their duties in state service due to physical or mental incapacity. The issue in the case was whether a state employee could qualify for disability retirement benefits by showing inability to perform the usual duties of his existing job as a police officer, or whether the employee also had toshow the inability to perform the usual duties of police officers workingfor other California law enforcement agencies that were subject to the PERL statute. The court majority adopted the latter interpretation, and rejected the opinion of CALPERS, the agency charged with administering the PERL statute, offered in an amicus curie brief, that the showing required by the court's opinion would be unworkable [Nolan v. City of Anaheim (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 335, 343-345, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 857, 92 P. 3d 350] .

The 10-day stay time period authorized by Gov. Code § 11521(a) for review by a state agency of a filed petition for reconsideration is the maximum time period that an agency may stay the effective date of the decision while it considers the petition for reconsideration. The Medical Board of California granted a 28-day stay of the decision, and then ordered reconsideration of the Board's previous decision to dismiss accusations of misconduct against a physician. The California Supreme Court held that the Board's order granting reconsideration was void for lack of jurisdiction because the Board only had authority to stay the decision for 10 days, not 28 days [Bonnell v. Medical Board (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1255, 1258, 82 P.3d 740] . The court based the decision on the clear language of the statute that the 10-day limit applied to filed petitions. The Supreme Court relied on the plain language of the statute, did not use legislative history, and did not defer to and rejected the contrary agency interpretation that the 30-day stay period could be applied to filed petitions [Bonnell v. Medical Board (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1255, 1264-1266, 82 P.3d 740] .

Agency interpretations that are articulated in litigating positions are not entitled to much weight, but the fact that the agency changes its interpretation of a statute does not preclude the court from accepting the changed interpretation since both interpretations may be legally permissible [Citicorp North American Inc. v. Franchise Tax Bd. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1403, 1419-1420, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 509] . Agency interpretations of statutes and regulations in the area of the agency's expertise are given great weight by the courts but they are not binding [Brown v. Fair Political Practices Com. (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 137, 150-151, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 606] . Agency interpretations of regulations issued by the agency are entitled to some weight (persuasive but not controlling) [Diablo Valley College Faculty Senate v. Contra Costa Community College district (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1023, 1034-1035, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 294 (Chancellor's interpretation of governing regulations for statewide community college system)]. Courts will not defer to agency interpretations when the interpretation was not consistently maintained over a long period of time [Van Wagner Communications, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 499, 509-510, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 922] . When a court decides an issue related to interpreting an agency regulation, it does not defer to agency expertise in interpreting the regulation when the plain language of the regulation compels an interpretation different from the agency, or when the language of the rule does not require administrative expertise to interpret [Southern California Edison Co. v. Public Utilities Com'n (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1086, 1105-1106, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 684] . No deference will be given by a reviewing court to an agency interpretation of a statute if the agency is not responsible for enforcing the statute [Cequel III Communications I, LLC v. Local Agency Formation Commission of Nevada County (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 310, 317, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 32 (LAFCO determination that public utility district had statutory authority to provide cable television services was not entitled to deference because commission did not have responsibility for enforcing the relevant statute)].

However, the California Court of Appeal reversed the decision of the ABC (Board) that had itself reversed the decision of the DABC (Department's) suspending the license of an alcoholic beverage wholesale distributor for violating provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 25500(a)(2) and 25503(h) prohibiting sponsor payments by wholesale distributors. The Board reversed the Department decision, concluding that the plain language of Rule 106(i)(2) [4 Cal. Code Reg § 106(i)(2)] authorized the wholesaler's sponsorship. The Board rejected the Department's interpretation of this rule. The California Court of Appeal overturned the Board decision and deferred to the Department's interpretation of this rule, Rule 106(i)(2) [4 Cal. Code Reg § 106 (i)(2)], which limits scholarships given by suppliers at sponsored contests or races to bona fide amateur or professional organizations, to exclude ACOP, an organization that promoted itself and the products and services of its sponsors in the alcoholic beverage industry. The Court accepted that interpretation of the Department, and based deference on the rationale of the administrative expertise of the Department which was familiar with its own regulations. The Court also noted that it would defer to the Department's contemporaneous interpretation of a rule enforced by the department unless that interpretation was clearly erroneous or unauthorized [Dept. of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1195, 1204-1205, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 766] .

The Court of Appeal reversed the decision of the ABC (Board) which had reversed the order of the DABC (Department) suspending a liquor licensee's license for 10 days. The suspension was ordered because the licensee sold alcohol to an underage decoy, in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 25658(a). The Board reversed the suspension because the police officer had the decoy (an underage person purchasing alcohol) make the required face to face identification of the alcohol seller outside the store premises, not inside. The Board interpreted Cal. Code Reg., tit 4. § 141(b)(5) to require an inside the premises face to face identification. The Board based its reversal on lack of compliance with the regulation. The Court of Appeal rejected the Board's interpretation, and held that the plain language of the regulation, as well as its history, did not support an inside the store premises identification requirement. The Court of Appeal annulled the Board decision, and remanded the action back to the Board to reinstate the license suspension. The Court of Appeal used similar principles, plain language, and history of the regulation, to decide the regulation interpretation question as would be used to decide a question of statutory interpretation. The court did not defer to the agency interpretation nor did it rely on agency expertise [Dept. of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1687, 1696-1698, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 339] .

The Court of Appeal reversed the trial court decision granting a writ of mandate, and held that the Insurance Commissioner's interpretation of its own regulations was entitled to deference by the trial court and should be followed. The interpretive issue related to when a worker's compensation claim is officially closed because of the claimant's failure to prosecute the claim. The Insurance Commissioner interpreted that requirement to mean that the WCAB or a Court had to take official action to dismiss the claim for failure to prosecute. The employer argued that the insurer's closing of a claim file was sufficient. The employer's experience rating was based in part on the number of past meritorious claims. The Court of Appeal held that the Insurance Commissioner's interpretation was entitled to deference because of agency expertise citing Yamaha Corp. of Am. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 1, 12, 78 Cal. Rptr 2d 1, 960 P. 2d 1031 (deference based on agency expertise, when agency has comparative interpretive advantage over courts, agency interpretation formally adopted and followed consistently), and this expertise driven interpretation is controlling notwithstanding that the language of the regulation could be read another way [Simi Corp. v. Garamendi (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1496, 1511-1512, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 207] .

The Third District California Court of Appeal gave deference to the interpretation by the state water resources control board of requirements in its own regulations governing water quality objectives for bacteria in groundwater [County of Sacramento v. State Water Resources Control Board (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1579, 1586-1588, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 302] . The Third District, Division 1, California Court of Appeal applied the weak deference standard to the State Water Resources Control Board interpretation of the provisions of Health and Safety Code § 25299.57(d)(3)(A, B) based upon the validity, thoroughness, and consistency and reasoning of the agency interpretation with the ultimate question of statutory interpretation subject to the de novo independent review standard [Kelsoe v. State Water Resources Control Bd. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 569, 573 (Board required to consider permit waiver so that gas station operator may be able to obtain reimbursement for cleanup costs associated with underground petroleum storage tanks.)].

The Court of Appeal reversed the trial court decision granting a writ of mandate setting aside the granting of a water quality discharge permit to a refinery. The trial court decision was based on the lack of a numeric water quality based effluent limit for dioxin discharges. The trial court granted the writ of mandate on the grounds that controlling federal regulations required a numeric limit. The court of Appeal reversed the trial court decision, and concluded that the federal regulation did not require a numeric limit in all cases. The Court based this conclusion on a California water quality state agency decision which interpreted federal water quality law to not require numeric limits in permits in all cases. The water quality agencies determined that the challenged permit would be issued without a numeric limit because such a limit was not feasible. Therefore the permit was not invalid for failure to contain a numeric limit on discharges [Communities for a Better Environment v. State Water Resources Control Bd. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 1089, 1103-1105, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 76] .

The California Court of Appeal gave substantial deference to the State Water Resources Control Board's interpretation of Term 9 which set limitations on a water permit holder's right to divert water from a river to maintain in stream flows to protect fish life. The court found that this interpretation was reasonable. Although the agency developed this interpretation in an adjudicatory capacity in a permitting proceeding, the court of appeal relied on policies used to support court deference to agency interpretations of their own regulations, noting that agency interpretation of regulations are entitled to great weight unless unauthorized, unreasonable, or clearly erroneous. This interpretation was found to be reasonable [North Gualala Water Co. v. State Water Resources Control Board (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1577, 1607-1608, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 821] .

When a court is engaged in judicial review of agency regulations, it differentiates between substantive and interpretive rules in the review process. The court treats substantive rules as similar to statutes, whereas it gives interpretive rules different levels of deference based on a number of factors [Yamaha Corp. of Am. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1998) 19 Cal. 4th 1, 7-10, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 960 P.2d 1031 ; Slocum v. State Bd. of Equalization (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 969, 974-976, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627 (SBE interpretation contained in reassessment rule [SBE Rule 139] entitled to some but not substantial deference, and rule was held to be invalid because it was inconsistent with the authorizing statute [Rev & T. Code § 170(a)(2)], and the California Constitution [Cal. Const. Art. 13, § 15])].

When an appellate court interprets an agency regulation, the court is guided by the need to carry out regulatory intent, to look at the words used in the regulation, to define those words consistent with the regulatory context and not in conflict with the agency's enabling statute, and to harmonize all provisions of the regulation, if possible [Environmental Charter High School v. Centinela Valley Union High School Dist. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 139, 148-149, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 417 (school district decision to deny charter school use of district facilities for 2003-2004 school year was reviewed under ordinary mandate)].

When a court reviews a state statute that has a federal counterpart, but the two are substantially different, it is erroneous for the court to rely on federal regulations or or other interpretations of the federal statute in its interpretation of the state statute [Ramirez v. Yosemite Water Company, Inc. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 785, 797-799, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 844, 978 P.2d 2] . However, when state regulations, like IWC wage orders, are modeled on federal statutes and regulations, federal law becomes relevant to interpretation, especially when the enforcing agency, DLSE, follows federal law in interpreting state regulations [Bell v. Farmers Insurance Exchange (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 805, 815-816, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 59] . The California courts look to federal judicial decisions in interpreting provisions of California statutes governing employment discrimination and disability discrimination because federal and state discrimination laws are similar [Guz v. Bechtel Nat., Inc. (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 317, 354, 8 P.3d 1089 ; Knight v. Hayward Unified Sch. Dist. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 121, 128-130, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 287 , 33 Cal. Rpr. 3d 287]. Similarly, California courts look to interpretations of the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) when deciding interpretive questions under the California statutes (FEHA) related to disability discrimination [Knight v. Hayward Unified Sch. Dist. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 121, 130-131, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 287 , 33 Cal. Rpr. 3d 287]. Similarly, California courts will use federal judicial decisions and EEOC interpretations of Title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act when interpreting provisions of the California FEHA statute related to claims of sexual harassment in employment [Miller v. Dep't of Corr. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 446, 463-464, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 797, 115 P.3d 77] .

The California Court of Appeal gave no deference to the Department of Insurance's interpretation of Ins. Code § 1861.10(a). The court ruled that Ins. Code § 1861.10(a) did not provide a private right of action. Deference was rejected because the interpretive issue was not a technical issue related to insurance rates within the expertise of the agency, but rather was a legal issue of statutory interpretation within the expertise of the courts. Also, deference was rejected because the Department of Insurance did not carefully consider the interpretive issue, did not maintain the interpretation consistently over time, did not formally adopt the interpretation as a regulation, and did not adopt the interpretation contemporaneously with the passage of Proposition 103 [Farmers Ins. Exch. v. Superior Court (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 842, 858-859, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 653] .

Another California Court of Appeal upheld the Insurance Commissioner's decision to impose Fair Plan Assessments [Ins. Code § 10095(c)] against insurer's who had withdrawn from the California insurance market but who were required to participate for two years after the insurers had premiums written in that market. The court upheld the Insurance Commissioner's interpretation of the scope of the Fair Plan Assessment Liability for withdrawn insurers, and concluded that the Commissioner's interpretation would be deferred to because it was thoroughly considered, was consistent with the applicable Fair Plan statutes, was a long standing agency interpretation, and was consistent with public policy [Ohio Casualty Ins. Co. v. Garamendi (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 64, 78-79, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 758] .

Another California court of Appeal rejected a challenge to the Board of Registered Nursing's interpretation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 2376 (a)(2) by a New York college that administered a distance learning nursing degree program. The Board rejected a previously long held interpretation of the statute under which the Board had prospectively evaluated the programs of nursing schools. The Board's new interpretation of the statute concluded that the Board could only evaluate the adequacy of nursing degree programs by assessing the curriculum of an individual applicant for California nursing licenses. The Court of appeal noted that the Board was not bound by a prior erroneous interpretation. The court also held that the board's new interpretation was too narrow, and that the Board had discretion to complete prospective program based evaluations but was not required to use that method of evaluation [Excelsior College v. Cal. Bd. of Registered Nursing (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1231-1232, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 618] .

The California Court of Appeal applied a respectful but not deferential standard of review of interpretations by the State Personnel Board of its governing statute. The court noted that statutory interpretation is ultimately the responsibility of reviewing courts, but that appropriate respect would be given to agency interpretations [California Dept. of Corrections v. State Personnel Bd. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1601, 1611-1612, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 390] . The Court of Appeal upheld as reasonable an SPB interpretation that employers must solicit views of employees before demoting those employees [California Dept. of Corrections v. State Personnel Bd. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1601, 1612-1613, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 390] . However, the Court of Appeal did not defer to SPB's decision as to which version of a statute to apply to an employee's challenge of a demotion. The Court of Appeal decided that issue itself because this was not an interpretation question, on which the agency would have expertise, but rather a general legal question as to prospective versus retroactive application of a statute [California Dep't of Corr. v. State Pers. Bd. (2004) 121 Cal App. 4th 1601, 1615-1616, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 390] .

The California Court of Appeal applied a limited deference standard of reviewto the State Board of Equalizations's (SBE) interpretations of California business taxation statutes that were at issue in a dispute between Amdahl Corporation and the California Franchise Tax Board (FTB). The court acknowledged SBE's expertise in interpreting those laws which results from SBE's experience in hearing and deciding appeals from tax determinations by the FTB. The Court also noted that an agency interpretation that has been maintained consistently and uniformly over a long period of time is entitled to much stronger deference, while an agency interpretation that is the result of an agency change in position, or reinterpretation, of the statute in entitled to less deference. While agencies are legally entitled to change their interpretation of a governing statute, such a change in position can weaken the persuasive value of their interpretation. In this action, SBE changed its position on several statutory interpretation issues that were related to taxation of dividends from subsidiaries in unitary groups, and related to taxation of foreign tax refunds paid to subsidiaries. Because of these changes, the Court of Appeal applied a limited deference standard of review to the SBE interpretation [Fujitsu IT Holdings, Inc. v. Franchise Tax Bd. (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 459, 470-471, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 473] .

The California Supreme Court gave respectful but not deferential weight to the interpretations of the prevailing wage law contained in regulations of the Department of Industrial Relations. When looking at regulatory interpretations, the court noted that these are one of several interpretive tools that help the appellate courts determine the meaning of the statutory term. However, the regulatory interpretation is not controlling, and the courts will independently determine the meaning of the statutory language [City of Long Beach v. Department of Industrial Relations (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 942, 951-952, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 518, 102 P.3d 904] .

The California Supreme Court gave no deference to agency interpretations of the governing statute, the Knox Keene Act provisions contained in Bus. & Prof. Code § 2556 (prohibiting business and financial relationship between opticians and licensed optometrists), that were contained in two documents: 1) a petition filed by the California attorney general, representing the California Board of Optometry with the Federal Trade Commission; and 2) internal memoranda from the Medical Board of California's division of licensing and from the Department of Corporations. The agencies had the responsibility for administering the Knox Keene Act. The interpretations were entitled to no deference because these documents were not produced at the time of statutory enactment, but rather much later. Also, the documents did not discuss the relevant statutory language, and their content did not contain a careful discussion of the issue before the Supreme Court. The memoranda are advice letters written by agency staff, and those memos are entitled to less deference than a formally adopted agency regulation. Finally, appellate courts are less deferential to agency interpretations of governing statutes because the agency does not have a comparative advantage over the appellate courts in interpreting statutes [People v. Cole (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 964, 987-988, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 261, 135 P.3d 669] .

The California Supreme Court gave significant weight to interpretations of the State Board of Equalization (SBE) that when changes in federal tax liability are made by the IRS, the four-year general tax statute of limitations [Rev. & Tax. Code § 19057] for giving notice of deficiency assessments is replaced by the limitations provisions of Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 19059 (FTB has two years from date taxpayers notify board of IRS deficiency assessment) and 19060 (notice of state tax deficiency assessment can be given at any time when taxpayer fails to give notice to board of federal tax deficiency assessment). While the Supreme Court retained the ultimate responsibility for interpreting those statutory provisions, the court gave substantial weight to the SBE's longstanding statutory construction of the four year statute's applicability because the SBE is the state agency charged with the enforcement of the statute [Ordlock v. Franchise Tax Bd. (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 897, 910-911, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 212, 135 P.3d 628] .

The California Supreme Court held that a 2003 legislative amendment to the California Fair Employment and Housing Act provisions [Gov. Code § 12940(j)(1)] which provided for employer liability for sexual harassment of employees by third party non-employees (including customers and clients) clarified existing law, and therefore the amended statute could be applied to a lawsuit that was pending before the California courts at the time of the enactment of the legislative amendment. The Supreme Court rejected an argument that the legislative amendment had retroactive effect, and thus could not be applied to pending cases [Carter v. California Dept. of Veterans Affairs (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 914, 918, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 223, 135 P.3d 637] . An agency regulation that conflicts with the provisions of the governing statute is invalid because it exceeds the authority of the agency to adopt regulations under that statute [Citizens to Save Cal. v. Fair Political Practices Comm'n (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 736, 739-741, 52 Cal Rptr. 3d 17] . The legislature can not declare existing law in a later amendment that is contrary to a definitive interpretation of a California statute by the California Supreme Court, but if the California Supreme Court has not definitively interpreted a statue, the legislature can clarify the meaning by a later amendment. That amendment will be considered to be declaratory of existing law and applicable to pending cases [Carter v. California Dept. of Veterans Affairs (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 914, 922-923, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 223, 135 P.3d 637] . The California Supreme Court rejected the statutory interpretation advocated by the California VA because that interpretation was contrary to language in the uncodified portion (section one) of Gov. Code § 12940, which portion could be used to determine legislative intent even though the uncodified portion was not enacted as binding law [Carter v. California Dept. of Veterans Affairs (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 914, 924-925, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 223, 135 P.3d 637] . An agency regulation that conflicts with the provisions of the governing statute is invalid because it exceeds the authority of the agency to adopt regulations under that statute [Citizens to Save Cal. v. Fair Political Practices Comm'n (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 736, 739-741, 52 Cal Rptr. 3d 17] .

[4] Chapter 3.5 of the APA

Chapter 3.5 (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.), the rulemaking provisions of the APA, delegate quasi-legislative authority (that is, authority to adopt, amend, and repeal regulations effectuating the APA) to the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) but to no other state agencies [Gov. Code §§ 11342.1, 11342.4; see § 472.11 (purpose of OAL)]. Instead, the provisions established conditions that state agencies must satisfy for the valid exercise of any quasi-legislative authority conferred by a statute, such as the agency's enabling act [see Gov. Code § 11346].

Chapter 3.5 does the following:

- Sets legal standards that each regulation must satisfy [see Gov. Code §§ 11342.1, 11342.2, 11349.1].

- Sets filing and publication requirements for regulations [Gov. Code §§ 11343-11343.8].

- Sets basic minimum procedural requirements for the adoption, amendment, or repeal of administrative regulations [Gov. Code § 11346].

- Provides for a comprehensive judicial-like review of regulations by the OAL, an independent state agency [Gov. Code §§ 11349-11349.6, 11349.7; see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures , for a discussion of specific rulemaking requirements].

A regulation that must be adopted pursuant to Chapter 3.5 [see § 472.15], must be submitted to the OAL for review and filing with the secretary of state [Gov. Code §§ 11343, 11349.1].

The OAL must review each regulation adopted pursuant to Chapter 3.5 for compliance with minimum rulemaking procedures set by the chapter and for compliance with six standards established by the chapter: necessity, authority, clarity, consistency, reference, and nonduplication [Gov. Code § 11349.1; see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures , for discussion of these standards].

Chapter 3.5 establishes presumptions that apply to a regulation once it has been filed with the secretary of state [Gov. Code § 11343.6], and published in the California Code of Regulations [Gov. Code § 11344.6]. It requires the courts to take judicial notice of a regulation, or the repeal of a regulation, published in the California Code of Regulations [Gov. Code § 11344.6]. It also provides for the judicial review of rules and regulations [Gov. Code § 11350-11351; see Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking , for a discussion of the judicial review of rules and regulations].

The OAL has authority and responsibility to do the following [Gov. Code § 11340.4(a)]:

- Study administrative rulemaking [Gov. Code § 11340.4(a)(1)].

- Submit suggestions relating to rulemaking to the various agencies in the interest of fairness, uniformity, and the expedition of business [Gov. Code § 11340.4(a)(2)].

- Report its recommendations to the Governor and Legislature at the commencement of each general session [Gov. Code § 11340.4(a)(3)].

Other state agencies are required to give the OAL ready access to their records and full information and reasonable assistance in any matter of research requiring recourse to the agencies or to data within the agencies knowledge or control. However, agencies are not required to provide access to records required by statute to be confidential [Gov. Code § 11340.4(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Agency Formal Rulemaking

41-472 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472.14

§ 472.14 Review of Rulemaking Authority by the OAL

[1] Power of Review

The Office of Administrative Law (OAL) is empowered to disapprove a regulation submitted for review [see Gov. Code §§ 11349.3, 11349.6; see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures (discussion of formal rulemaking procedures)], or to repeal a regulation that is the subject of a request from the Legislature for a priority review if the regulation is not authorized by law, i.e., does not meet the "authority" and "reference" standards [Gov. Code §§ 11349.1(a)(2), 11349.7; see Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking (for discussion of priority review)].

Other grounds for the disapproval of a regulation by the OAL are set out in Gov. Code §§ 11346.1, 11349.1; see § 472.13[4]. If a regulation is disapproved by the OAL, the regulation cannot become effective unless the disapproval is overruled by the governor [see Gov. Code § 11349.5], or unless the OAL approves the regulation on resubmission [see Gov. Code § 11349.4]. The reasons for the disapproval of a regulation must be explained by the OAL in a written opinion [Gov. Code § 11349.3], which must be published in the California Regulatory Code Supplement [Gov. Code § 11344(b); see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures , for a discussion of the California Regulatory Code Supplement].

In its review of a regulation for compliance with the "authority" and "reference" standards [see Gov. Code § 11349.1(a)(2), (5); see also § 472.13[4]], the Office of Administrative Law has the power to determine whether a regulation is within the scope of the rulemaking power delegated to the agency that adopted the regulation [see 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 14]. As defined in the APA, the term "authority" means the provision of law that permits or obligates the agency to adopt, amend, or repeal a regulation [Gov. Code § 11349(b)], and the term "reference" means the statute, court decision, or other provision of law that the agency implements, interprets, or makes specific by adopting, amending, or repealing a regulation [Gov. Code § 11349(e)]. Together, these standards refer to the power of an agency to adopt a particular regulation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 14].

[2] Applicable Presumptions

The decision by the OAL as to whether a regulation is authorized by law is governed by 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 14. That section requires the OAL to presume in its review that any statute cited by the agency as "authority" or "reference" for the delegation of rulemaking authority to it is constitutional, in the absence of an appellate court decision to the contrary [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 14(c)(2)]. The OAL must also presume that a regulation satisfies the "authority" standard if the "authority note" for the regulation includes a citation to a provision in the California Constitution or a California statute that expressly or impliedly permits or obligates the agency to adopt, amend, or repeal the regulation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 14(a)]. All regulations transmitted to the OAL must include an "authority note" containing a citation to the provision(s) of law that authorize the adoption of the regulation. When a regulation is printed in the California Code of Regulations, the authority note is printed with it [Gov. Code § 11343.1].

Similarly, the OAL must presume that a regulation satisfies the "reference" standard if the "reference note" for the regulation cites to a provision of the California Constitution, a provision of a California statute, a provision of a federal statute or regulation, or a court decision or order that the agency is empowered to implement, interpret, or make specific [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 14(b)]. A reference note containing a citation to the provision(s) of law that the regulation implements, interprets, or makes specific must accompany each regulation transmitted to the OAL for review. When a regulation is printed in the California Code of Regulations, a reference note is printed with it [Gov. Code § 11343.1].

These presumptions regarding the authority and reference standards will be conclusive unless (1) the agency's interpretation alters, amends, or enlarges the scope of the power conferred on it; (2) a public comment (during the rulemaking) challenges the agency's authority; or (3) a judicial interpretation of a provision of law cited as "authority" or "reference" contradicts the agency's interpretation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 14(c)(1)]. When the presumptions do not apply, the OAL must determine whether or not the regulation is within the scope of the agency's rulemaking authority, using the same analytical approach employed by the California Supreme Court and the California courts of appeal, as evidenced in published opinions of those courts [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 14(c); see § 472.13[3], for a discussion of an agency's interpretation of its own authority].

Chapter 472 PUBLIC AGENCY RULES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Agency Formal Rulemaking

41-472 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472.15

§ 472.15 Use of Adjudication to Make General Rules

[1] General Requirements

Agency actions may be divided into three basic categories: administrative, quasi-judicial, and quasi-legislative. An agency may use a combination of these powers to carry out its responsibilities; however, the APA requires quasi-legislative power to be exercised in accordance with its formal rulemaking procedures [see Gov. Code § 11347.5; see § 472.20[1]]. Therefore, an agency's actions must always be examined to determine whether they constitute the exercise of quasi-legislative power, that is, the formulation of rules for future general applicability. A particular problem concerns the use of administrative adjudication or decisionmaking with respect to a particular case that may in effect constitute administrative rulemaking if the ruling from that case is general in application [see Davis, Administrative Law Treatise (2nd ed. 1978), vol. 2, ch. 7].

[2] Categories of Agency Actions

[a] Quasi-Legislative Actions

A quasi-legislative action involves the formulation or adoption of a broad, generally applicable policy or rule of conduct that is based on general public policy and is intended to govern future decisions [Horn v. County of Ventura (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 605, 612-614, 156 Cal. Rptr. 718, 596 P.2d 1134 ; see § 472.13, regarding delegation of quasi-legislative powers to agencies]. For example, a policy that a 25-foot public access strip will be required as a condition to granting permits for beach-front property development is a quasi-legislative action [see Pacific Legal Foundation v. California Coastal Com. (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 158, 168, 188 Cal. Rptr. 104, 655 P.2d 306] .

[b] Quasi-Judicial Actions

Quasi-judicial power is the power to declare the law as necessary in order to adjudicate specific rights in an administrative proceeding. A quasi-judicial action involves the application of a rule to the peculiar facts of an individual case in a quasi-adjudicatory context, such as in a license revocation proceeding [see Pacific Legal Foundation v. California Coastal Com. (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 158, 168, 188 Cal. Rptr. 104, 655 P.2d 306] . Although an agency may make a final determination regarding the facts of a case, the courts are empowered to make the final determination regarding the application of the law to those facts [Bodinson Mfg. Co. v. California E. Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 321, 326, 109 P.2d 935] .

[c] Administrative Actions

There are two types of "administrative" actions: (1) carrying out an express and unambiguous legal requirement (set forth in the California Constitution, statutes, regulations, or court orders), such as informing a permit applicant that his or her application cannot be processed absent the statutorily mandated fee; and (2) pure case-by-case determinations. As stated in California Coastal Farms v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 734, 740, 168 Cal. Rptr. 838 , pure case-by-case determinations do not involve the implementation of a general policy by ad hoc means [California Coastal Farms v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 734, 739, 168 Cal. Rptr. 838 (criteria applied to one case only)]. In that case, the agency developed a set of guidelines to limit picketing in response to a complaint in a particular case; the court upheld the agency's decision to address the immediate problem without articulating rules of general applicability. The practice of pure case-by-case determination must be distinguished from the much different situation in which the agency announces a rule of general applicability without first publishing that rule in the California Code of Regulations, and then proceeds to enforce the rule.

For example, in San Diego Nursery Co. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1979) 100 Cal. App. 3d 128, 134, 160 Cal. Rptr. 822 , the court ruled against an agency that had announced an uncodified general policy and then proceeded to apply it in specific situations. In short, an agency need not develop a general rule to cover a problem left unresolved in pertinent codified law, but if it does have such a general rule (possibly developed through administrative adjudication), this rule must be formally adopted pursuant to the APA absent an express statutory exception from APA requirements [see Gov. Code §§ 11346, 11340.5; discussion in §§ 472.20, 472.21].

[3] Comparison of Federal and California Law

Federal agencies often have considerable discretion under federal law to use either formal rulemaking or ad hoc adjudication to formulate rules oriented toward future decisions [see, e.g., NLRB v. Bell Aerospace Co. (1974) 416 U.S. 267, 94 S. Ct. 1757, 40 L. Ed. 2d 134 ; 1 Koch, Administrative Law and Practice (1985), p. 73; see also Securities and Exchange Commission v. Chenery Corp. (1947) 332 U.S. 194, 67 S. Ct. 1575, 91 L. Ed. 1995] . The U.S. Supreme Court has not abandoned this principle despite sharp criticism [see, e.g., 1 Koch, Administrative Law and Practice (1985), pp. 73-75; Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. v. Superior Court (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 392, 414 n. 11, 128 Cal. Rptr. 183, 546 P.2d 687] .

Though this principle of federal administrative law has been quoted in some recent California judicial dicta [Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. v. California Coastal Farms, Etc. (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 469, 478, 183 Cal. Rptr. 231, 645 P.2d 739 ; California Coastal Farms v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 734, 168 Cal. Rptr. 838 ; but see Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. v. Superior Court (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 392, 414 n.11, 128 Cal. Rptr. 183, 546 P.2d 687 (taking note of intense criticism of NLRB's refusal to adopt any regulations at all)], research has failed, with one predictable exception, to disclose any published California appellate opinion in which the principle has been specifically relied on to uphold an uncodified agency rule. That exception allows an agency to establish a particular interpretation of a statute or regulation by obtaining judicial approval, normally in a published appellate opinion [see, e.g., California Coastal Com. v. Quanta Investment Corp. (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 579, 170 Cal. Rptr. 263] . Similarly, an agency with statutory authorization to obtain court orders under certain circumstances is free to do so to address problems arising in one particular situation; the agency will not be prohibited from seeking a court order simply because it could conceivably have attacked the underlying general policy question through a formal rulemaking effort [California Coastal Farms v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 734, 740, 168 Cal. Rptr. 838 (ALRB sought order setting standards of picketing conduct in response to unfair labor practice allegation)].

Notwithstanding the argument that agency discretion to use administrative adjudication to formulate future-oriented rules has been established in California case law, it is likely that any such principle has not survived the 1983 enactment of Gov. Code § 11340.5. That section prohibits state agencies from relying in any way on uncodified rules that modify or supplement duly adopted provisions of law, unless the rule has been adopted as a regulation pursuant to the APA [Gov. Code § 11340.5; see discussion in § 472.20[1]]. Further, Gov. Code § 11346 provides that APA rulemaking requirements apply to all exercises of quasi-legislative power, and that any modifications to APA requirements must be expressly stated in other legislation [Gov. Code § 11346].

No statutes expressly authorize agencies to elect to forego formal rulemaking in favor of case-by-case administrative adjudication as a means of creating rules to implement statutes administered by the agency. In fact, case law supports the proposition that:

- Procedural rules governing quasi-judicial administrative proceedings must be adopted pursuant to the APA [see, e.g., City of Santa Barbara v. California Coastal Zone Conservation Com. (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 572, 580, 142 Cal. Rptr. 356 (invalidating uncodified rule stating where permit appeals must be filed)].

- Substantive rules governing quasi-judicial administrative hearings must be adopted pursuant to the APA [Johnston v. Dept. of Personnel Administration (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1218, 236 Cal. Rptr. 853 (invalidating uncodified rule that statutory hearing to protest transfer of state employee was available only for geographical transfers)].

[4] Precedent Decisions

In light of the APA's requirement that agency regulations must be formally adopted [see Gov. Code §§ 11340.5, 11342.600 (regulation defined)] discussed in [2], above, precedent decisions (i.e., decisions expressly adopted as having precedential authority) that satisfy the requirements of Gov. Code § 11425.60 are not rulemaking, and do not have to be adopted pursuant to rulemaking procedure [Gov. Code § 11425.60(b); see further discussion of precedent decisions in Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication].

Certain agencies, such as the Employment Development Department and the Fair Political Practices Commission, are authorized by statute [Unemp. Ins. Code § 409 (EDD); Gov. Code § 83114 (FPPC); 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 18320-18326 (FPPC)] to issue precedent decisions or opinions on questions of how the laws administered by these agencies should be interpreted [see Gov. Code § 12935 (Fair Employment and Housing Commission may certify any of its opinion as precedent opinions); 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 7403 (selection criteria for certification; selected cases not intended to be regulations as defined in Gov. Code § 11342.545)]. The difficulty with these authorizing statutes is that they do not create express exemptions from APA rulemaking requirements of Chapter 3.5 (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.).

By contrast, the commissioner of corporations also has the discretionary authority to issue interpretive opinions on request from interested persons [Corp. Code § 25618; 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 250.12(a)], but these opinions apply only to the transaction identified in the request. They may not be relied on in connection with any other transaction [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 250.12(a); but see Bus. & Prof. Code § 20009, which permits the corporations commissioner's interpretive opinions under the Franchise Investment Law to be used as prima facie evidence of the existence of a "franchise" under the Franchise Relations Act].

Thus, these agencies will want to follow the requirements of Gov. Code § 11425.60 to set up precedent decision policies that do not require use of rulemaking procedures

As an alternative to developing a precedent decision system that does not need to comply with rulemaking requirements, agencies could adopt rules, pursuant to the APA, that were developed in particular cases but are intended to be applied in the future in similar cases. Formal adoption serves the basic APA goals of fostering meaningful public participation in rulemaking and permitting effective judicial review [see California Optometric Assn. v. Lackner (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 500, 506, 131 Cal. Rptr. 744 ; see also discussion in § 472.11].

For example, it would seem preferable to adopt formally a rule addressing a certain problem after full discussion in the rulemaking process with all segments of the affected public, than to crystallize the policy in a precedent opinion following a proceeding involving only one private party. In some administrative proceedings, the private party may even lack legal representation, raising concerns that both sides of the legal question at issue have not been fully briefed. Any attempt to create a precedent decision system solely by regulation would probably be invalid, based on the proposition that an agency cannot delegate to itself, by regulation, the power to avoid statutory APA requirements [Hillery v. Rushen (9th Cir. 1983) 720 F.2d 1132, 1135-1136 (applying California law), followed in Faunce v. Denton (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 191, 213 Cal. Rptr. 122 ; 1987 OAL Determination No. 5 (State Personnel Board), p. 12; 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 121(a) (regulatory agency rule will be deemed invalid and unenforceable unless formally adopted pursuant to APA or exempted by statute from APA requirements); but see 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 7403.5 (Fair Employment and Housing Commission may issue interpretive guidelines on issues raised by precedential decisions, regulations, and statutes)].

§ 472.20 Requirement That Agencies Formally Adopt Rules as Regulations

[1] Statutory Ban on Underground Regulations

An agency may decide that the process of holding hearings on a proposed regulation is too burdensome, and therefore attempt to implement a proposal by calling it a "policy" or "rule," rather than a "regulation." In response to a persistent problem of uncodified rules (also known as "underground regulations"), the Legislature enacted Gov. Code § 11340.5, which prohibits state agencies from relying in any way on uncodified rules that modify or supplement duly adopted provisions of law. It forbids state agencies from issuing, utilizing, enforcing, or attempting to enforce any guideline, criterion, bulletin, manual, instruction, order, standard of general application, or other rule that is a regulation as defined in Gov. Code § 11342.600 (regulation defined), unless the guideline or other rule has been adopted as a regulation and filed with the secretary of state [Gov. Code § 11340.5(a); see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures , for a discussion of formal rulemaking procedures].

As discussed in § 472.22, the OAL may issue determinations regarding whether particular uncodified agency rules are "regulations" as defined in the APA [Gov. Code § 11340.5(b); State Water Resources Control Bd. v. OAL (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 697, 701-702, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25] . Appellate courts will review challenges to OAL determinations as questions of law by independent-judgment review [Grier v. Kizer (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 422, 424, 268 Cal. Rptr. 244 ; State Water Resources Control Bd. v. OAL (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 697, 701-702, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25] .

The Department of Labor Standards Enforcement could not utilize an uncodified policy to enforce the prevailing wage laws against a contractor, because the policy was a rule of general application that implemented, interpreted, and made specific the governing statute. Therefore, it was necessary to promulgate the policy under Chapter 3.5 (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.), the rulemaking procedures of the APA, before it could be so enforced [Division of Lab. Stds. Enforcement v. Ericsson Information Systems, Inc., (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 114, 128-129, 270 Cal. Rptr. 75 ; see Gov. Code § 11340.5]. Since it cannot be adopted, the enforcing court will not give deference to the policy as an agency's interpretation of its governing statute [Armistead v. State Personnel Bd. (1978) 22 Cal.3d 198, 204, 149 Cal. Rptr. 1, 583 P. 2d 744] , and implementation of the policy will be prohibited by the granting of a writ of mandate [Grier v. Kizer, 219 Cal. App. 3d 422, 428, 268 Cal. Rptr. 244 (1990) ; Union of American Physicians & Dentists v. Kizer, 223

In Tidewater Marine Western, Inc., v. Bradshaw (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 557, 927 P.2d 296 , the California Supreme Court held that the Department of Labor Standards Enforcement policy for determining whether to apply Industrial Welfare Commission wage orders to maritime employees was a regulation within the meaning of the California APA and was void, and not entitled to deference, because the policy was not properly adopted as a regulation under the APA. In so holding, the California Supreme Court discussed extensively the issue of when interpretations by agencies are and are not regulations that have to be adopted using APA procedure [Tidewater Marine Western, Inc. v. Bradshaw (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 557, 576-577, 927 P.2d 296 ; see [3], below].

The California Supreme Court held that the Department of Toxic Substances Control interpretation of a statute that virtually all California corporations with 50 or more employees "use, generate, store, or conduct activities in this state related to hazardous activities" [Health & Safety Code § 25205.6(b)] was a regulation subject to APA requirements, and was therefore invalid because the interpretation was not properly adopted as a regulation under the provisions of the California APA [Gov. Code § 11340.5(a)]. The Supreme Court also held that the interpretation was not exempt from regulation under the only legally tenable interpretation of a provision of the law, Gov. Code § 11340.9. The court held that the challenger of the regulation, Morning Star Company, was entitled to declaratory relief determining that the interpretation regulation was invalid. The Supreme Court reversed the judgment of the Court of Appeal, and remanded the lawsuit to the department for further proceedings. Morning star had challenged the validity of a hazardous materials fee collected from corporations by the State Board of Equalization. Under the Department's interpretation, virtually all California corporations had to pay the annual hazardous materials fee. Morning Star paid the fee, and then sued for a refund, arguing that as a company that offered labor services to tomato processing companies, it did not use hazardous materials in its business, and the Department's interpretation was overly broad [Morning Star Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 324, 327-328, 334, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 47, 132 P.3d 249] .

The prohibition on underground regulations applies even though the agency is delegated constitutional authority to act. The agency's governing procedures and criteria for action must be adopted as a regulation [Engelmann v. State Bd. of Education (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 47, 49, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264] . The California Court of Appeal held that the Worker's Compensation Appeals Board (WCAB) adopted new regulations in a WCAB decision without complying with the rule-making requirements of the APA. These procedures were adopted in a WCAB decision, but they were not valid precedential decisions within the meaning of Gov. Code § 11425.60. Rather, these procedures were designed to implement the Board's interpretation of Labor Code § 3716 and thus, they were within the statutory definition of regulation under Gov. Code § 11342.600 as they "implemented, interpreted, or made specific the law enforced by the agency" [Rea v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 625, 646-648, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 828] .

The California Court of Appeal rejected a challenge to the Board of Registered Nursing's interpretation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 2376 (a)(2) by a New York college that administered a distance learning nursing degree program. The Board rejected a previously long held interpretation of the statute under which the Board had prospectively evaluated the programs of nursing schools. The Board's new interpretation of the statute concluded that the Board could only evaluate the adequacy of nursing degree programs by assessing the curriculum of individual applicant for California nursing licenses. The Court of Appeal held that the Board's decision to enforce the specific language of the statute did not constitute an underground regulation and therefore did not violate provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act [Gov. Code § 11340.5], which prohibits agencies from relying on underground regulations that have not been properly adopted using APA rulemaking procedure [Excelsior College v. California Board of Registered Nursing (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1239-1240, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 618] .

Courts are not required to defer to agency interpretations or determinations as to whether they have complied with APA rulemaking requirements because agencies do not have expertise greater than the courts in making these determinations [California Advocates for Nursing Home Reform v. Bonta (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 498, 505-506, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 823] .

[2] Regulation Defined

The definition of "regulation" in the APA is very broad. "Regulation" means every rule, regulation, order, or standard of general application, or the amendment, supplement, or revision of any such rule, regulation, order, or standard adopted by any state agency to implement, interpret, or make specific the law enforced or administered by it, or to govern its procedure, with specified exceptions [Gov. Code § 11342.600 (regulation defined); see discussion of exceptions in § 472.21[1][b]-[j]].

This definition has been broadly interpreted by the courts, notably by the California Supreme Court in Armistead v. State Personnel Bd. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 198, 203, 149 Cal. Rptr. 1, 583 P.2d 744 . Medi-Cal program audits that used a challenged methodology which was applied in every medical case audit was determined to be a regulation [Gov. Code § 11342(g); Grier v. Kizer (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 422, 431, 268 Cal. Rptr. 244] , but auditing methods that were designed to be used at a particular audit location were determined not to be regulations [Taye v. Coye (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1339, 1346, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27] .

For an agency rule or standard to be "of general application" within the meaning of the APA, it need not apply to all citizens of the state. It is sufficient if the rule applies to all members of a class, kind, or order [Roth v. Dept. of Veterans Affairs (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 622, 167 Cal. Rptr. 552] .

California's definition of "regulation," that is, those agency enactments that are invalid absent adoption through the formal rulemaking process, is much more inclusive than the definition contained in the federal Administrative Procedure Act [5 U.S.C. §§ 500-576], which provides two noteworthy exceptions: "interpretive guidelines" and "policy statements" [Armistead v. State Personnel Bd. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 198, 202 n.2, 149 Cal. Rptr. 1, 583 P.2d 744 ; see 5 U.S.C. §§ 552(a)(1)(D), (a)(2)(B), 553(b)(3)(A), (d)(2)]. These interpretive guidelines and policy statements are effective 30 days after publication in the Federal Register. They are therefore subject to a publication requirement, but not to public notice and comment requirements [5 U.S.C. § 553(b), (d)].

Many California agency enactments that are substantially equivalent to federal interpretive guidelines or policy statements are subject to neither public notice and comment nor prior publication requirements [see 1986 OAL Determination No. 2 (Coastal Commission guidelines and statements)]. For example, the Commissioner of Corporations publishes "Releases" that contain information concerning the regulatory activities of the commissioner, and indicate policies, interpretive opinions, and other matters of interest to the persons subject to the commissioner's jurisdiction [see former 10 Cal. Admin. Code § 250.8 (repealed)]. In those Releases, the commissioner may classify persons, prescribe different requirements for different classes, and waive requirements when, in his or her opinion, the requirement is not necessary in the public interest or for the protection of investors [Corp. Code § 25610; see e.g., Release 14-G (April 26, 1988) (waiving requirement of 10 Cal. Code Reg. § 260.607(d)(3) that department employees file semiannual report of securities holdings)].

The Air Resources Board was not required to complete a separate rule-making proceeding under the APA to readopt local rules as state regulations when the local rules were already validly adopted by the SCAQMD. The Board could adopt the rules provisions and include those provisions in the state implementation plan without completing new rule-making proceedings [Sherwin-Williams Co. v. South Coast Air Quality Management District (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1258 , as modified, 86 Cal. App. 4th 1258].

[3] Interpretations

Gov. Code § 11342.600 (regulation defined) requires that agency "interpretations" of statutes and regulations be formally adopted if these interpretations are articulated in the form of general rules; however, an agency remains free to "apply" existing law to particular factual situations [Bendix Forest Products Corp. v. Division of Occupational Saf. & Health (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 465, 158 Cal. Rptr. 882, 600 P.2d 1339 (order that company provide hand protection to employees was specific application of existing laws rather than exercise of quasi-legislative power); 1986 OAL Determination No. 7 (Sept. 24, 1986; Docket No. 86-003), California Regulatory Notice Register 86, No. 4I-Z, October 10, 1986, p. B-14 (State Personnel Board bulletin simply informed interested parties of court decision construing controlling statutes)].

Careful attention must be paid to the word "interpret"; Gov. Code § 11342.600 (regulation defined) must be read together with other applicable statutes, notably Gov. Code §§ 11346, 11340.5, and in light of pertinent judicial holdings. These authorities indicate that agency "interpretations" of statutes and regulations need not be adopted pursuant to the APA unless those interpretations involve the quasi-legislative creation of a "new regulation or standard" [Bendix Forest Products Corp. v. Division of Occupational Saf. & Health (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 465, 472, 158 Cal. Rptr. 882, 886, 600 P.2d 1339 (emphasis added)]. The "new" rule or standard may be something as simple as a rule setting a deadline for receipt of applications for highway construction funds [City of San Marcos v. California Highway Com. (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 383, 408, 131 Cal. Rptr. 804] , or as complex as a wholly new inmate classification system for the state prison system [Stoneham v. Rushen (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 729, 188 Cal. Rptr. 130] . The basic principle seems to be that an agency may "apply" a self-executing statute without resort to the regulatory process, but may not fill in statutory gaps or resolve statutory ambiguities without undertaking a formal rulemaking [see, e.g., Goleta Valley Community Hospital v. Dept. of Health Services (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 1124, 197 Cal. Rptr. 294 (declaring invalid an agency interpretation that adopted one of two possible readings of an ambiguous regulation)]. As the decisions in Goleta Valley indicates, agencies may run afoul of the APA in resolving ambiguities in not only statutes, but also regulations [see also 1986 OAL Determination No. 4 (declaring invalid a Board of Equalization bulletin adopting one of three possible interpretations of the constitutional term "pipeline")]. An agency interpretation that is "inconsistent with... [the] plain language" of the regulation is invalid [Motion Picture Studio Teachers & Welfare Workers v. Millan (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1190, 1196-1197, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 608 (agency interpretation of regulation allowing studio teachers to qualify with single credential was inconsistent with plain language of regulation that required two distinct credentials)].

In Tidewater Marine Western, Inc., v. Bradshaw (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 557, 927 P.2d 296 , the California Supreme Court held that the Department of Labor Standards Enforcement policy for determining whether to apply Industrial Welfare Commission wage orders to maritime employees was a regulation within the meaning of the California APA and was void, and not entitled to deference, because the policy was not properly adopted as a regulation under the APA [Tidewater Marine Western, Inc. v. Bradshaw (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 557, 576-577, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 186, 927 P.2d 296] . The agency interpretation of "hours worked" in the DLSE's 1989 Operations and Procedural Manual was entitled to no deference by a reviewing court under the principles of the Tidewater case because it was not a properly adopted regulation, even though the interpretation was one of long standing [Morillion v. Royal Packing Company (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 575, 581-582, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 3, 995 P.2d 139] . The Court discussed extensively the issue of when interpretations by agencies are and are not regulations that have to be adopted using APA procedure [Tidewater Marine Western, Inc. v. Bradshaw (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 557, 576-577, 927 P.2d 296] . The Court noted that adjudicatory interpretations that are case-specific are not regulations even though they may have precedential value in future similar adjudication cases [Tidewater Marine Western, Inc. v. Bradshaw (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 557, 571, 927 P.2d 296 ; citing Bendix Forest Products Corp. v. Division of Occupational Saf. & Health (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 465, 471, 158 Cal. Rptr. 882, 600 P. 2d 1339 ; Carmona v. Division of Industrial Safety (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 303, 309-310, 118 Cal. Rptr. 473, 530 P.2d 161 ; Taye v. Coye (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1339, 1345, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27 ; and Aguilar v. Association for Retarded Citizens (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 21, 28, 285 Cal. Rptr. 515] .

Similarly, the Court noted that advice letters to private parties, and policy manuals that provide a restatement or summary, without commentary, of the agency's prior decision in specific cases, and its prior advice letters, are not regulations and are not subject to the APA rulemaking process [Tidewater Marine Western, Inc. v. Bradshaw (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 557, 571, 927 P.2d 296] .

The Court also listed a number of agency policies that the courts have held to be, and not to be, regulations subject to the APA rulemaking process [Tidewater Marine Western, Inc. v. Bradshaw (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 557, 572, 927 P.2d 296] . These include the following examples of policies that were determined to be regulations subject to the APA rulemaking requirements:

- An informational "bulletin" defining terms of art and establishing a rebuttable presumption [Union of American Physicians & Dentists v. Kizer (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 490, 501, 272 Cal. Rptr. 886] .

- A "policy of choosing the most closely related classification" for determining prevailing wages for unclassified workers [Division of Lab.Stds. Enforcement v. Ericsson Information Systems, Inc. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 114, 128, 270 Cal. Rptr. 75] .

- A policy memorandum declaring that work performed outside one's job classification does not count toward qualifying for a promotion [Ligon v. State Personnel Bd. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 583, 588, 176 Cal. Rptr. 717] .

Examples of policies that courts determined not to be regulations included the following:

- A Franchise Tax Board decision to exclude investment proceeds in determining the unitary tax obligation of a large multinational corporation in a particular tax case is not a rule because it is not applicable to a range of cases [General Motors Corp. v. Franchise Tax Board (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 773, 789, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 233, 139 P.3d 1183] .

- A Department of Justice checklist that officers use when administering an intoxilyzer test [People v. French (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 511, 519, 143 Cal. Rptr. 782] .

- The determination whether in a particular case an employer must pay employees when it requires to be on its premises and on call, but whom it permits to sleep [Aguilar v. Association for Retarded citizens (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 21, 25-28, 285 Cal. Rptr. 515] .

- A contractual pooling procedure whereby construction tax revenues are allocated among a county and its cities in the same ratio as sales tax revenues [City of San Joaquin v. State Bd. of Equalization (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 365, 375, 88 Cal. Rptr. 12] .

- Resolutions approving construction of the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge and authorizing issuance of bonds [Faulkner v. Cal. Toll Bridge Authority (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 317, 323-324, 253 P.2d 659] .

The Court of Appeal held that an audit guide, used to identify suggested audit procedures under Educ. Code § 14503(a), was not an invalid underground regulation because it was not intended to apply generally to codify audit procedures. Rather, the audit guide provided suggested procedures, which the auditor had discretion to follow. The audit guide was a tool that the auditor had the option to utilize, but it was not a rule of general application [Modesto City Sch. v. Education Audits Appeal Panel (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1365, 1381-1382, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 831] .

The Third District California Court of Appeal held that the drug formulary maintained by the Department of Health Services for the AIDS Drug Assistance Program's (ADAP) under the statutory authority of Health & Safety Code § 120955(a)(2) is a rule of general application that is within the APA definition of a regulation. Thus, the decision to partially delist the drug Oxandin from the drug formulary must comply with APA rulemaking procedure requirements [Savient Pharmaceuticals, Inc. v. Department of Health Services (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1457, 1469-1471, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 689] . In another case, the Third District California Court of Appeal held that the Department of Health Services interpretation of Health and Safety Code § 1204 (b)(1) language defining what surgical clinics must be licensed by the Department is a regulation that must be adopted in compliance with APA rulemaking procedures [Capen v. Shewry (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 378, 388-390, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 890] .

§ 472.21 Exceptions to Formal Adoption Requirement

[1] General Exceptions

[a] Construction of General Exceptions

The APA contains several exceptions to its formal rulemaking requirements. The basic requirement forbids a state agency from using any rule that meets the APA definition of a "regulation" unless it has been formally adopted and filed with the secretary of state [see Gov. Code §§ 11340.5, 11342.600 (regulation defined), and discussion in § 472.20[2]; see also Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures , for a discussion of formal rulemaking procedures].

The main exceptions to the formal procedures consist of rules that either do not meet the definition of "regulation" [Gov. Code § 11342.600 (regulation defined); see § 472.20[2]], discussed in [b]-[d], below], or rules that are not required to be filed with the secretary of state [Gov. Code § 11343, discussed in [e]-[h], below]. The most frequently used exemptions in each of these two categories are discussed first. In addition, as discussed in [i], below, emergency regulations are excepted from some formal rulemaking requirements. Finally, as discussed in [j], below, some authority supports the proposition that previously agreed-upon contract provisions may not later be attacked as violative of the APA by a party to the contract. These general exceptions contrast with specific exceptions, discussed in [2], below, that exempt a particular agency, program, or rule.

These general exceptions to the APA rulemaking requirement have been construed according to the following rules:

- When a statute contains an exception to a general rule articulated in the statute, that exception should be strictly construed [Goins v. Bd. of Pension Commissioners (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 1005, 158 Cal. Rptr. 470] .

- A specific provision should be construed with reference to the entire statutory scheme of which it is a part [Bowland v. Municipal Court (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 479, 489, 134 Cal. Rptr. 630, 556 P.2d 1081] .

- A statute should be construed with a view toward promoting rather than defeating its general purpose and the policy behind it [Fig Garden Park No. 2 Assn. v. Local Agency Formation Comm. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 336].

- The exceptions should be narrowly construed to further the APA's basis goals of meaningful public participation and effective judicial review [see California Optometric Assn. v. Lackner (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 500, 510, 131 Cal. Rptr. 744, 751 ; 1986 OAL Determination No. 5, p. 10].

For discussion of the rulemaking procedures applicable when an agency action is exempt from the APA requirements, see Chapter 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures .

[b] Rules Relating Only to Internal Management of the Rulemaking Agency

Regulations that relate only to the internal management of a state agency are exempt from rulemaking requirements [Gov. Code § 11340.9(d)]. The internal management exception is narrow in scope and does not apply to agency policies that affect a class of persons other than employees of the originating agency [Armistead v. State Personnel Bd. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 198, 149 Cal. Rptr.1, 583 P.2d 744 ; Stoneham v. Rushen (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 729, 188 Cal. Rptr. 130 ; 1987 OAL Determination No. 9, pp. 12-14]. Agency rules that affect the protest rights of third party bidders are not within the "internal management" exception [United Systems of Arkansas, Inc. v. Stamison (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1010-1011, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407] .

[c] Forms Prescribed by State Agency

Forms prescribed by a state agency or any instructions relating to the use of the form are exempt from rulemaking requirements [Gov. Code § 11340.9(c)]. However, this exception does not limit any requirement that a regulation be adopted using required rulemaking procedures when a regulation is needed to implement the law under which the form is issued [Gov. Code § 11340.9(c)].

Although forms themselves need not be adopted pursuant to the California APA, it is clear from the second clause of the forms exception language in Gov. Code § 11340.9(c) that the exception does not apply to agency rules implementing the law under which the form is issued. Consequently, case law interpreting the forms exception indicates that (1) embedding rules or interpretations within a form does not insulate the rules from APA requirements, and (2) the use of a form resulting in a regulatory effect does not insulate the regulation from APA requirements [see City of Santa Barbara v. California Coastal Zone Conservation Com. (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 572, 580, 142 Cal. Rptr. 356 ; Stoneham v. Rushen (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 729, 737-738, 188 Cal. Rptr. 130 ; see also 1987 OAL Determination No. 16, pp. 21-27 (discussing the extensive use of forms in state government)].

[d] Legal Rulings of Counsel Issued by Board of Equalization or Franchise Tax Board

Legal rulings of counsel issued by the Franchise Tax Board or the State Board of Equalization are exempt from rulemaking requirements [Gov. Code § 11340.9(b)]. The OAL concluded in a "determination" [see § 472.22] that this exception covered certain correspondence originated by Board of Equalization legal staff, but would not be read so broadly as to give a blanket APA exemption to virtually any tax-related Board policy [1986 OAL Determination No. 3, pp.15-17].

[e] Rules That Are Not Generally Applicable

A regulation that is directed to a specifically named person or to a group of persons and does not apply generally throughout the state is exempt from rulemaking requirements [Gov. Code § 11340.9(i)].

[f] Rules That Establish or Fix Rates, Prices, or Tariffs

A regulation that establishes or fixes rates, prices, or tariffs is exempt from rulemaking requirements [Gov. Code § 11340.9(g)]. The scope of this exception is unclear, but courts have on several occasions drawn attention to the fact that rules found to be exempt from APA requirements under the rate, price, and tariff exception tend to be part and parcel of an alternative statutory scheme requiring noticed public hearings [State Comp. Ins. Fund v. McConnell (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 330, 343, 294 P.2d 440 (citing former Ins. Code § 11734); California Assoc. of Nursing Homes, etc. v. Williams (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 800, 821, 85 Cal. Rptr. 735 (citing Pub. Util. Code §§ 1701-1710); see also Alta Bates Hospital v. Lackner (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 614, 623, 624 n.5, 175 Cal. Rptr. 196 (former Welf. & Inst. Code § 14120(f) required consultation with interest group prior to decreasing rates)]. There is some persuasive authority that the exception should be read to encompass not only "rates," "prices," and "tariffs," but also "fees" [66 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 505 (1983) (Department of Developmental Services parental fee schedule)].

Rules are regulations subject to the provisions of the California Administrative Procedure Act (APA) when the agency intends that the rule apply generally to a class of cases, rather than to a specific case, and the rule implements, interprets, or makes specific the law enforced or administered by the agency [Morning Star Co. v. State Board of Equalization (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 324, 333-334, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 47, 132 P.3d 249 , quoting the California Supreme Court decision in Tidewater Marine Western, Inc. v. Bradshaw (1996) 14 Cal. 4th 557, 571, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 186, 927 P.2d 296]. The lethal injection protocol adopted by the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR) was a regulation subject to the APA requirements because it implemented a statutory directive and it satisfied the rule of general application requirement even though only a small number of persons were subject to the protocol [Morales v. California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 729, 736-738, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 724].

By contrast, 1986 OAL Determination No. 5 found that the exception did not cover the Board of Osteopathic Examiners' "annual tax and registration fee," reasoning that, inter alia, when exceptions to a general rule are specified by statute, other exceptions are not to be applied or presumed [1986 OAL Determination No. 5, pp. 9-12, quoting Wildlife Alive v. Chickering (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 190, 195-196, 132 Cal. Rptr. 377, 553 P.2d 537] .

The insurance commissioner's rate regulations adopted pursuant to Proposition 103 are within the rate setting exception. Therefore they do not require review by OAL, and they are not deemed to be invalid because OAL has disapproved of the rate regulations [20th Century Ins. Co. v. Garamendi (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 216, 271, 878 P.2d 566] .

A rate-setting manual, developed by an agency to provide formulas for reimbursing providers of programs administered by the agency, was held not be an invalid underground regulation, even though it had not been adopted as a published regulation, when it had been incorporated by reference into a properly adopted published regulation. The incorporation-by-reference process does not violate the policy against underground regulations [Kings Rehabilitation Center, Inc. v. Premo (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 215, 217-218, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 406] .

The Department of Water Resources (DWR) is not required to hold a public hearing and is not required to follow APA required rule making procedures before DWR determined recoverable costs and submitted a "revenue requirement" to the PUC to be incorporated into utility rates paid by PG & E. The revenue requirement is neither a quasi-legislative act, nor a regulation under the APA [Pacific Gas & Electric v. State Department of Water Resources (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 477, 502-505, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 283] .

[g] Building Standards

An agency is not required to transmit a copy of a regulation to the secretary of state if the regulation adopted or amended is a building standard [Gov. Code § 11343(a)]. "Building standard" is defined as any rule, regulation, order, or other requirement that specifically regulates, requires, or forbids the method of use, properties, performance, or types of materials used in the construction or renovation of a building or structure [Health & Safety Code § 18909(a); see Gov. Code § 11343(a)]. For a discussion of the rulemaking procedures applicable to building standards, see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures .

[h] Rules Relating to Use of Public Works

A regulation that relates to the use of public works, including streets and highways, is exempt from rulemaking requirements when the effect of the regulation is indicated to the public by means of signs or signals or when the regulation determines uniform standards and specifications for official traffic control devices under Veh. Code § 21400 [Gov. Code § 11340.9(h)].

[i] Emergency and Financial Regulations

Emergency regulations [Gov. Code § 11346.1(b); see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures] and regulations adopted pursuant to Fin. Code §§ 8054 and 3373 (conforming rights or obligations of state banks or savings and loans to those provided by federal law or regulation) are not true general exceptions to formal rulemaking requirements, but they are subject only to limited requirements [Gov. Code § 11346.1(a); see Gov. Code §§ 11346.1, 11343.4, 11349.6]. Emergency for purposes of defining when emergency regulations can be adopted means "a situation that calls for immediate action to avoid serious harm to the public peace, health, safety, or general welfare" [Gov. Code § 11342.545]. For a discussion of the rulemaking requirements applicable to emergency and financial regulations, see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures .

[j] Agreed-Upon Contract Provisions

Some authority supports the proposition that contract provisions previously agreed to by a party may not later be attacked as violative of the APA by that party. For example, in City of San Joaquin v. State Bd. of Equalization (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 365, 88 Cal. Rptr. 12 , the court held that a sales tax allocation method was part of a contract that plaintiff had signed without protest, and refused to find any violation of the APA [City of San Joaquin v. State Bd. of Equalization (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 365, 376, 88 Cal. Rptr. 12 ; see also Roth v. Dept. of Veterans Affairs (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 622, 629-630, 167 Cal. Rptr. 552 ; Nadler v. California Veterans Bd. (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 707, 719, 199 Cal. Rptr. 546] . Nevertheless, Gov. Code § 11346 contains no provision for nonstatutory exceptions to the APA requirements. It provides that any modifications to APA requirements must be "expressly" stated in other legislation [Gov. Code § 11346].

Furthermore, it is generally established that a party to an illegal contract cannot be estopped from relying on the illegality [see International Assn. of Fire Fighters v. City of San Leandro (1986) 181 Cal. App 3d 179, 182, 226 Cal. Rptr. 238 (contracting party not estopped from challenging legality of "void and unenforceable" contract provision to which party had previously agreed)], and that a party to a "contract of adhesion" may attack it on that basis [Perdue v. Crocker National Bank (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 913, 926, 216 Cal. Rptr. 345, 702 P.2d 503 ("contract of adhesion" will be denied enforcement if deemed unduly oppressive or unconscionable); see Civ. Code § 1670.5].

[k] Department of Finance Budget Instructions

Actions by the Department of Finance to adopt and update instructions to state or local agencies for preparing, developing, or administering the state budget, including instructions in the State Administrative Manual, are exempt from OAL review [Gov. Code § 11357(b)].

[l] Safe Neighborhood Parks, Clean Water, Clean Air, and Coastal Protection Bond Act of 2000 Regulations

Adoption or revision of regulations, guidelines or criteria to implement the Safe Neighborhood Parks, Clean Water, Clean Air, and Coastal Protection Bond Act of 2000 [Pub. Res. Code § 5096.300 et seq.], California Clean Water, Clean Air, Safe Neighborhood Parks, and Coastal Protection Act of 2002 [Pub. Res. Code § 5096.600 et. seq.], and the Water Security, Clean Drinking Water, Coastal and Beach Protection Act of 2002 [Water Code § 79500] are exempt from rulemaking requirements including being exempt from OAL review. This exemption includes the following specific actions by the State Water Resources Control Board [Gov. Code § 11352]: (1) the issuance, denial, or waiver of any water quality certification as authorized under Water Code § 13160 [Gov. Code § 11352(a)]; (2) the issuance, denial, or revocation of waste discharge requirements and permits pursuant to Water Code §§ 13263, 13377 and waivers issued pursuant to Water Code § 13269 [Gov. Code § 11352(b)]; and (3) the development, issuance, and use of the guidance document pursuant to Water Code § 13383.7 [Gov. Code § 11352(c)]. Rather, adoption or revision must be accomplished by means of a public process reasonably calculated to give those persons interested in their adoption or revision an opportunity to be heard [Gov. Code § 11361].

[m] Regulations Containing the Only Legally Tenable Interpretation of a Provision of Law

A regulation that embodies the only legally tenable interpretation of a provision of law is exempt from rulemaking requirements [Gov. Code § 11340.9(f)].

The California Court of Appeal held that the Department of Pesticide Regulation violated APA rule making requirements when it issued Notice 2002-3 containing data requirements for registering new pesticide products and when it amended regulations related to submission of data by pesticide manufacturers without following the notice and comment procedures of the APA. The Department erroneously relied on the changes without regulatory effect exemptions provided by the Office of Administrative Law Regulations [Cal. Code Regs., tit. 1, § 100], and failed to prepare a public report as required by Department regulations [Cal. Code Regs., tit. 3, § 6170]. The Department also could not rely on the only legally tenable interpretation of a provision of law exemption [Syngenta Crop Protection, Inc v. Helliker (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1179-1181, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 191] .

The California Supreme Court held that the Department of Toxic Substances Control interpretation of a statute that virtually all California corporations with 50 or more employees "use, generate, store, or conduct activities in this state related to hazardous activities" [Health & Safety Code § 25205.6] was a regulation subject to APA requirements, and was therefore invalid because the interpretation was not properly adopted as a regulation under the provisions of the California APA [Gov. Code § 11340.5(a)]. The Supreme Court also held that the interpretation was not exempt from regulation under the only legally tenable interpretation of a provision of the law exception, Gov. Code § 11340.9. This exception did not apply because the Department interpretation did not follow directly and inescapably from the statute in question [Morning Star Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 324, 327-328, 340, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 47, 132 P.3d 249] .

[n] Regulations Containing Agency Enforcement Criteria

A regulation that establishes criteria or guidelines to be used by the staff of an agency in performing an audit, investigation, examination, or inspection, settling a commercial dispute, negotiating a commercial arrangement, or in the defense, prosecution, or settlement of a case if disclosure of the criteria or guidelines would do any of the following [Gov. Code § 11340.9(e)]:

- Enable a law violator to avoid detection [Gov. Code § 11340.9(e)(1)];
- Facilitate a disregard of requirements imposed by law [Gov. Code § 11340.9(e)(2)]; or
- Give clearly improper advantage to a person who is in an adverse position to the state [Gov. Code § 11340.9(e)(3)].

[2] Specific Exceptions to Formal Adoption Requirements

Exceptions to the general APA rulemaking requirement must be expressly created by statute [Gov. Code. § 11346]. A number of exceptions appear outside of the APA, covering specific agencies or programs. For example, Gov. Code § 8880.26(a) exempts the California Lottery Commission from review by the OAL. It provides that the APA does not apply to any rule or regulation promulgated by the California Lottery Commission [Gov. Code § 8880.26(a)]. Another example is contained in Welf. & Inst. Code § 14105.395, which exempts drug criteria published by the State Department of Health Services from the rulemaking provisions of the APA [Welf. & Inst. Code § 14105.395; Paleski v. State Dept of Health Services (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 713, 728-730, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 28 (department not required to comply with APA rulemaking provisions but has to follow Medical Act notice and comment procedures)].

Another example is contained in Food & Agric. Code § 14 which exempts marketing orders issued under the California Marketing Act of 1937 from the rulemaking provisions of the APA [Food & Agric. Code § 58601 et seq.]. This is because Food & Agric. Code § 14 satisfies a two part test in that: (1) the specific non-APA statute was enacted after 1947; and (2) the specific non-APA statute shows an express intention to supplant or limit the APA [Voss v. Superior Court (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 900, 909-911, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 225 ; see Engelmann v. State Bd. of Education (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 47, 59 , 2 Cal. App. 4th 47, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264 (two part test articulated in another context)].

Other exceptions are provided in: (1) Education Code §§ 89030(b), 89500(b), which exempts rulemaking by the Trustees of the California State University from the rulemaking requirements of the APA [Educ. Code § 89030(b)]; (2) Gov. Code § 14615.1(a), which exempts the Department of General Services from complying with APA requirements when adopting provisions of the State Contracting Manual [Gov. Code § 14615.1(a); San Joaquin Helicopters v. Dept. of Forestry (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1549, 1553, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 246 (Court of Appeal upheld constitutionality of Gov. Code § 14615.1 rejecting challenge based on the single subject rule of Cal Const. Art IV, § 9, and holding that DGS could properly rely on a provision of the State Contracting Manual, Section 6.05, to award an interim contract while a bid protest was pending notwithstanding that Section 6.05 had not been adopted following the rule making procedures of the California APA)]; and (3) Gov. Code § 18211, which exempts rulemaking by the State Personnel Board from the rulemaking requirements of the APA, except for specified subjects to which the APA rulemaking provisions apply [Gov. Code §§ 18211, 18215, 18216].

The lethal injection protocol adopted by the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR) was a regulation subject to the APA requirements because it implemented a statutory directive and it satisfied the rule of general application requirement even though only a small number of persons were subject to the protocol [Morales v. California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 729, 736-738, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 724]. The lethal injection protocol was not subject to the single prison exception codified in Penal Code § 5058(c)(1) because the protocol impacts the performance of many functions outside the specific prison (San Quentin) in which inmates may be executed [Morales v. California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 729, 739-741, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 724].

§ 472.22 Office of Administrative Law Determinations

[1] Nature of Determination Process

Before 1983, the only way to attack an uncodified "underground regulation" was in a judicial proceeding. With the enactment of Gov. Code § 11340.5, the Office of Administrative Law became authorized to issue "determinations" as to whether an uncodified guideline, criterion, bulletin, manual, instruction, order, standard of general application, or other rule is a regulation under the APA [see Gov. Code § 11342.600 (regulation defined); see discussion in § 472.20[2]] and therefore subject to its requirements [Gov. Code § 11340.5(a); see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures , for a discussion of required procedures] regarding formal adoption [see Gov. Code § 11340.5(b); see generally Bolz and Garcia, The Other Side of Administrative Law, California Lawyer, Nov. 1987, pp. 47-52]. The process of obtaining a determination from the OAL regarding the legality of an uncodified agency rule was intended by the Legislature to be an inexpensive alternative to litigation [1986 OAL Determination No. 3, n.6]. This process may be initiated by a member of the public, pursuant to a request for determination [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 122; see [2], below], or on the OAL's own motion [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 128].

If the OAL concludes that a particular uncodified agency rule is a "regulation" as defined in the APA [Gov. Code § 11342.600 (regulation defined); see discussion in § 472.20[2]], it issues a determination that the rule is invalid and unenforceable unless formally adopted pursuant to the APA [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 121(a); see, e.g., 1987 OAL Determination No. 4 (finding State Labor Commissioner Interpretive Bulletin 85-4 invalid and unenforceable unless adopted per APA)]. The determination may conclude that the challenged agency rule is not a "regulation" [see, e.g., 1986 OAL Determination 6 (upholding all but one paragraph of a San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission document); see § 472.21[1], regarding rules that do not fall within the statutory definition of "regulation"], or that the challenged rule, although a "regulation," has been exempted by statute from the APA [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 121(a); see Gov. Code § 11346; see also discussion in § 472.21 (exceptions from adoption requirements)].

[2] Attempted Informal Resolution

Persons concerned about agency use of an apparent "underground regulation" should bring the matter to the attention of the head of the rulemaking agency before filing a request for determination with the OAL. Though not a legal requirement, this action should be undertaken as a matter of courtesy to the agency staff and as a way of ensuring that the person with legal responsibility for conduct of agency affairs is personally apprised of the problem. This process may also result in a timesaving, informal resolution of any disagreement.

[3] Request for Determination

[a] Standing

Any person may file a request for determination with the OAL. There is no "standing" requirement for filing a request [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 121(b); Gov. Code § 11340.5; 1986 OAL Determination No. 3, pp. 4-6] and no filing fee. If a copy of the challenged rule is unavailable, however, the person submitting the request (the requester) is required to supply the OAL with a factual description of the rule and its application to the requester or other affected persons [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 122(a)(3); see discussion in [b], below].

[b] Contents

A request for determination must be written, and must contain all of the following information [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 122]:

- The name and address of the person making the request [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 122(a)(1)].

- The name of the agency that has issued, or is utilizing, enforcing, or attempting to enforce the uncodified rule [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 122(a)(2). The OAL regulations prescribing procedures for processing requests use the term "state agency rule" to refer to what this publication describes as the "uncodified rule." see 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 121(c) (definition of "state agency rule")].

- A copy of the uncodified rule or a factual description of the rule and its application to the person making the request or other affected persons [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 122(a)(3)(A), (B); 1986 OAL Determination No. 4, p. 4]. If a copy of the uncodified rule is not available, a description of the method of issuance, utilization, enforcement, or attempted enforcement must appear in the request [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 122(a)(3)(B); 1987 OAL Determination No. 10, n.8].

- A dated and signed statement that the requester declares under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] that he or she believes that the information contained in the request and any other written information or evidence submitted with the request is true and [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 122(b)].

- A copy of a signed and dated statement under penalty of perjury telling how and when the person making the request transmitted the documents to the head of the state agency [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 122(c); see [c], below].

If the request is submitted by a state agency, it must contain the following two additional matters [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 122(d)]:

- The signature and certification of the head of the agency or his or her authorized representative, in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 122(d)].

- The legal analysis and conclusions of the agency's legal counsel [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 122(d)].

Legal argument in the request may be included, but it is not required [1987 OAL Determination No. 3, pp. 5-6]. The fact that the challenged rule may be the subject of pending judicial or administrative proceedings does not prevent the OAL from accepting the request or issuing a determination [1986 OAL Determination No. 3, pp. 4-9], although the determination may ultimately be found to be inadmissible in these other proceedings [see [7], below]. A proposal to screen out such requests prior to acceptance was abandoned during the rulemaking, leading to adoption of the regulations governing processing of requests for determination [Rulemaking File 85-0930-1, item 3 (proposed regulatory text); on file at the OAL].

[c] Submission of Copy to Affected Agency

Any person who submits a request for determination to the OAL must first transmit a copy of the request and any written information or evidence contained in or submitted with the request to the head of the state agency whose rule is the subject of the request [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 122(c)]. "Transmit" means to deliver physically the document to the addressee, or to deposit it into the United States mail or other mail delivery service [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 121(d)]. A copy of a signed and dated statement made under penalty of perjury relating how and when the requester transmitted a copy of the request to the agency head must accompany the filing of the request for determination at the OAL [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 122(c); see [b], above].

[4] Review of Submitted Requests

The OAL must review each submitted request and acknowledge receipt in writing within five working days [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 123]. If the request does not comply with the requirements of 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 122, discussed in [1][b], above, the receipt letter must notify the requester of the requirements that must be complied with before the request can be accepted [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 122(e)]. There is no time limit in which the requester must reply. If the submitted (or resubmitted) request meets the requirements of 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 122, the OAL must accept it [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 122(e), 123, 126; 1986 OAL Determination No. 3, pp. 4-9; 1987 OAL Determination No. 3, pp. 3-9].

The OAL will consider all requests that meet the requirements in the order in which they were received [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 123, 126]. Each request is assigned a docket number (e.g., 88-020), which indicates the order within the calendar year in which the request was received. This provision concerning resolution of requests "in the order received" was incorporated into the regulations in response to comments submitted during the rulemaking process. Focusing on a draft regulation permitting the OAL to decide which requests warranted issuance of a determination, these comments contended that "the public interest in agencies enforcing only duly adopted regulations" would be better served by the OAL issuing a determination on each procedurally sufficient request, rather than initially screening each complete request in terms of various criteria (e.g., number of people affected by the uncodified rule) in order to decide whether or not the OAL would issue a determination [Rulemaking File 85-0930-01, item 13 (Final Statement of Reasons, Part 2, p. 2); item 5 (Air Resources Board letter of June 17, 1985, p. 2)]. As soon as possible after receipt and within available program resources, the OAL begins active consideration of each request. It must then give written notification of that fact to both the requester and the affected rulemaking agency [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 123].

[5] Public Comment

[a] Notice Inviting Comment

When the OAL begins active consideration of a request, it must publish the request for determination or a summary of the request in the California Regulatory Notice Register (Notice Register), together with a notice inviting comment from any interested person [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 124(a)]. The notice must state that any information or evidence submitted must be in writing, and must be submitted within 30 days after publication of the notice. It must also specify that any written information or evidence received by the OAL from the public within that 30-day period will be considered in making a determination [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 124(a)].

If the OAL has undertaken to issue a determination on its own motion, the notice must state that fact. The notice must also include a description of the state agency rule that is the subject of the determination [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 128].

[b] Submission of Information or Evidence

Any person submitting written information or evidence to the office in response to the notice must accompany that material with two statements. First, he or she must include a signed and dated declaration, made under penalty of perjury, that he or she believes that the material is true and correct [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 124(b)]. Second, he or she must include a signed and dated statement made under penalty of perjury stating how and when he or she transmitted a copy of the material to the head of the state agency whose rule is the subject of the request. Any person who submits information or evidence in response to a notice of a request for determination must first transmit a copy of that material to the head of the applicable state agency [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 124(c)]. In making its determination, the OAL must consider all written information and evidence that it has received from the public that complies with the above criteria [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 125(a); see 1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 122, 124]. Only information or evidence meeting all of the above criteria will be considered by the OAL in making its determination [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 125(f)].

[6] Response of Rulemaking Agency

In making its determination, the OAL must also consider written material submitted by the state agency. The agency may submit information or evidence regarding whether the rule under consideration is a regulation, or a response to information or evidence submitted by the public. However, the OAL will only consider written information or evidence that is prepared as follows [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 125(b)]:

- Received prior to or within 45 days after publication of the request in the Notice Register [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 125(b); 1987 OAL Determination No. 3, pp. 3, 9].

- Signed and verified in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 by the head of the agency or by his or her authorized representative [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 125(c)].

- Accompanied by a signed and dated statement under penalty of perjury proving that the response was transmitted by the agency to the requester at the same time it was sent to the OAL [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 125(d)].

[7] Issuance and Effect of Determinations

[a] Issuance

The OAL must issue its written determination (including reasons supporting the determination) within 75 days from the date of publication of the notice regarding the commencement of active consideration of the request for determination--that is, 75 days after publication in the Notice Register [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 126]. If the OAL has issued the determination on its own motion, the determination must include the fact that issuance was on the OAL's own motion, and must include a description of the state agency rule that is the subject of the determination [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 128].

[b] Availability to Public

Each determination must be filed on issuance with the secretary of state, and becomes effective on the thirtieth day after filing [Gov. Code § 11340.5(c)(1); 1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 126, 127]. A copy of the determination and supporting reasons must be transmitted to (1) the requester, (2) the agency, (3) the governor, and (4) both houses of the Legislature [Gov. Code § 11340.5(c)(2); 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 127]. The OAL must also make its determinations available to the public and the courts [Gov. Code § 11340.5(c)(4)], and must publish a summary of the determination in the Notice Register within 15 days of issuance [Gov. Code § 11340.5(c)(3)]. The complete determination and supporting reasons must thereafter be published in the Notice Register [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 127].

The Notice Register is available from the Regulatory Determinations Unit, Office of Administrative Law, 555 Capitol Mall, Suite 1290, Sacramento, California 95814, (916) 323-6225, on an annual subscription basis. A detailed determinations index listing parties requesting determinations, affected agencies, challenged rules, and so forth is also available from the OAL. Back issues of determinations are available at a small charge. OAL regulations outlining how to request a regulatory determination are also available from the OAL [see [2], above].

[c] Agency Response

Although a determination is not binding on a state agency, the agency will generally reexamine the challenged rule after a favorable determination. It may initiate a rulemaking proceeding [see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures], or resolve the problem to the requester's satisfaction [see Bolz and Garcia, The Other Side of Administrative Law, California Lawyer, Nov. 1987, pp. 47-52].

[8] Admissibility in Court

In order to insure that the administrative review of a rule is exhausted before it is litigated [1986 OAL Determination No. 3, n. 6; see [1], above], Gov. Code § 11340.5(e) provides that determinations are admissible in court or in administrative hearings, unless the following specified circumstances are all present [Gov. Code § 11340.5(e)]:

- The court or other proceeding involves the same party that sought the determination.
- The proceeding began prior to the filing of the request.
- In the proceeding, the issue is whether the rule that is the legal basis for the adjudicatory action is a "regulation" as defined in the APA [Gov. Code §§ 11342.600 (regulation defined); see § 472.20[2]].

The legislative history of Gov. Code § 11340.5(e) indicates that the provision was intended to limit somewhat the ability of the defendant in an ongoing legal proceeding to obtain a determination in the midst of the proceeding. No published appellate decisions have yet addressed the admissibility of determinations in other proceedings; however, at least one trial court has admitted a determination [see 1987 OAL Determination No. 3] in a subsequent lawsuit attacking an uncodified agency manual and ruled the manual invalid [Herships & Oldfield v. McCarthy, Super. Ct. Sacramento County, 1987, No. 350531 (order issuing injunction re Classification Manual filed June 1, 1987)]. In a second court action [see 1986 OAL Determination No. 2], a trial court granted the request of the rulemaking agency for an order declaring the determination invalid on the grounds that the challenged documents (though apparently regulatory) were nonetheless within the scope of an express statutory exemption to the APA [California Coastal Commission v. OAL (Super. Ct. San Francisco County, 1987, No. 859416)].

In comparison, when a rule has become a "regulation" approved by the OAL [Gov. Code § 11349.3] and is subsequently challenged in a declaratory relief action [Gov. Code § 11350], the court may not consider the OAL's approval (or the governor's overruling of the OAL's disapproval) in that action [Gov. Code § 11350(c); see Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking].

[9] Judicial Review of Determinations

Any interested person may obtain judicial review of a given determination by filing a written petition requesting that the determination be modified or set aside. The petition must be filed within 30 days of the date the determination is published [Gov. Code § 11340.5(d)]. For further discussion of judicial review of determinations, see Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking .

§ 472A.10 Governing Law

The procedures used by most public agencies for rulemaking are set out in that part of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA) entitled "Administrative Regulations and Rulemaking," that is, Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.

The provisions of Gov. Code § 11340 et seq. collectively comprise Chapter 3.5 of Part I (State Departments and Agencies) of Division 3 (Executive Department) of Title 2 (State Government) of the Government Code. This law is referred to hereafter for convenience as "Chapter 3.5."

Together with Chapter 4 ("Office of Administrative Hearings," Gov. Code § 11370 et seq.), Chapter 4.5 ("Administrative Adjudication: General Provisions," Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.), and Chapter 5 ("Administrative Adjudication: Formal Hearings," Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), these provisions comprise and may be cited as the Administrative Procedure Act (hereafter the APA) [see Gov. Code § 11370].

As discussed in Subpart B [see § 472A.30 et seq.], various other statutes or constitutional provisions apply to authorize and otherwise govern the rulemaking of specific agencies.

Chapter 472A AGENCY RULEMAKING PROCEDURES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Rulemaking Under the APA

41-472A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472A.11

§ 472A.11 Rulemaking Procedures Under the APA

[1] Agencies Subject to Rulemaking Requirements

Chapter 3.5 (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.) of the California Administrative Procedure Act (APA) [for discussion, see § 472A.10] sets out the procedures for agency promulgation of regulations as well as review of proposed regulations of most agencies by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) [see Gov. Code § 11342.550 (definition)].

The term "agency" or "state agency" includes all departments within the executive branch of government that are not otherwise specifically excepted from these APA provisions [Gov. Code § 11342.520 (definition); see, e.g., Gov. Code §§ 11343, 11351].

Agencies in the judicial or legislative departments of the state government are by definition specifically exempted [Gov. Code § 11340.9 (definition); see also Lauderbach v. Zolin (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 578, 585, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 434 (APA rulemaking requirements do not apply to statutory enactments)]. This exemption would include, for example, agencies within the judicial branch other than the courts themselves, such as the Judicial Council and the Commission on Judicial Performance.

Other agencies within the executive branch that are exempt from all or part of the APA rulemaking procedures of Chapters 3.5 are discussed in Subpart B [see § 472A.30 et seq.].

The California APA's procedural requirements include:

- Notice to the public [Gov. Code §§ 11346.4, 11346.5; see § 472A.12].

- An opportunity for public response to the merits of the state agency's proposed action [Gov. Code § 11346.8; see § 472A.13].

- Explanation by the adopting agency of its reasons for the proposed regulation [Gov. Code §§

11346.2, 11346.3; see § 472A.14].

- Review by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL) to determine whether the adopted regulation actually becomes law or is returned to the state agency without approval [Gov. Code §§ 11349.1, 11349.3(a); see § 472A.16].

- Publication of approved regulations [Gov. Code § 11344; see § 472A.17].

The OAL compiles and publishes the official regulations and notices thereof in the California Regulatory Notice Register [Gov. Code § 11344.1; see § 472A.12[5]], the California Code of Regulations [Gov. Code § 11344(a); see § 472A.17[1]], and the California Code of Regulations Supplement [Gov. Code § 11344(b); see § 472A.17[2]].

Note that the statutes specifically governing a particular agency often impose additional procedural rulemaking requirements that are not supplanted by the general California APA requirements [Gov. Code § 11346].

[2] Agency Use of Internet and Electronic Communication in Rulemaking

"Electronic communication" is defined to mean electronic transmission of written or graphical material by electronic mail, facsimile, or other means, but does not include voice communication [Gov. Code § 11340.85(a)]. Agencies may permit and encourage, but may not require, use of electronic communication, in rulemaking [Gov. Code § 11340.85(b)(1)]. Agencies may publish or distribute by electronic communication rulemaking documents required by statute or regulation but agencies are prohibited from exclusively using elecronic communication to publish or distribute rulemaking documents [Gov. Code § 11340.85(b)(2)]. Rulemaking notices required by statute or regulation may be delivered by electronic communication to any person who has expressly indicated a willingness to receive the notice by electronic communication [Gov. Code § 11340.85(b)(3)]. A comment regarding a regulation may be delivered to an agency by means of electronic communication [Gov. Code § 11340.85(b)(4)]. A petition related to a regulation may be delivered by electronic communication to an agency that has expressly indicated a willingness to receive a petition by electronic communication [Gov. Code § 11340.85(b)(5)]. A petition regarding a regulation may be delivered to an agency by means of electronic communication if the agency has expressly indicated a willingness to receive a petition by means of electronic communication [Gov. Code § 11340.85(b)(5)].

Agencies that maintain internet web sites or other similar forums for the electronic publication or distribution of written material are required to publish information regarding a proposed regulation or regulatory repeal or amendment including the following materials on the agency web site or other forum [Gov. Code § 11340.85(c)]:

- Public notices required by statute or regulation. [Gov. Code § 11340.85(c)(1)];

- The initial statement of reasons prepared under Gov. Code § 11346.2(b) [Gov. Code § 11340.85(c)(2)];

- The final statement of reasons prepared under Gov. Code § 11346.9(a) [Gov. Code § 11340.85(c)(3)];

- Notice of a decision not to proceed under Gov. Code § 11347 [Gov. Code § 11340.85c)(4)];

- The text of a proposed action or instructions on how to obtain a copy of the text [Gov. Code § 11340.85(c)(5)];

- A statement of any decision made by the office regarding a proposed action [Gov. Code § 11340.85(c)(6)];

- The date a rulemaking action is filed with the Secretary of State [Gov. Code § 11340.85(c)(7)];

- The effective date of a rulemaking action [Gov. Code § 11340.85(c)(8)]; and

- A statement to the effect that a business or person submitting a comment regarding a proposed action has the right to request a copy of the final statement of reasons [Gov. Code § 11340.85(c)(9)].

- The text of a proposed emergency adoption, amendment, or repeal of a regulation pursuant to Section 11346.1 and the date it was submitted to the office for review and filing [Gov. Code § 11340.85(c)(10)].

A document that is required to be posted pursuant to subdivision (c) shall be posted within a reasonable time after issuance of the document, and shall remain posted until at least 15 days after the rulemaking action is filed with the Secretary of State or notice of a decision not to proceed is published pursuant to Gov Code § 11347 [Gov. Code § 11340.85(d)].

Publication under these requirements supplements any other required form of publication or distribution. Failure to comply with these requirements is not grounds for disapproval of a proposed regulation. Agencies are not required to establish or maintain websites or other forums for electronic publication or distribution of written material [Gov. Code § 11340.85(d)]. OAL is not precluded by this statute from requiring agencies to submit to OAL in electronic form rulemaking materials to be published in the California Code of Regulations or the California Regulatory Notice Register [Gov. Code § 11340.85(e)]. This statute is intended tomake the regulatory process more user-friendly and to improve communication between interested parties and the regulatory agencies [Gov. Code § 11340.85(f)].

A new requirement for state agencies conducting rule making proceedings and other activities is that every state agency, as defined in Gov. Code § 11000, shall post on its homepage of its website, no later than January 1, 2007, a link entitled "Decisions Pending and Opportunities for Public Participation" where the link contains all of the following information [Gov. Code § 11364(a)(1)-(5)] :

(1) All applicable bulletins and notices required pursuant to this chapter.

(2) Notices of all public meetings and agendas. This information shall be posted in compliance with the Administrative Procedure Act (Chapter 3.5 (commencing with Section 11340) of Division 3 of Title 2), the Bagley-Keene Open Meeting Act (Article 9 (commencing with Section 11120) of Division 3 of Title 2) or other applicable provisions of law, but no later than 10 days before the meeting where the regulatory action is on the agenda.

(3) Instructions on how the public may submit written comments or otherwise participate in administrative procedures, meetings, and hearings with a link entitled "How to Participate."

(4) A link to the text of all regulations and statutes related to current bulletins and notices entitled "Laws and Regulations Relevant to Current Public Proceedings." This requirement can be met by a link to another Web site containing the proposed regulation or statute.

(5) A link that provides an opportunity for the public to comment on draft regulations pursuant to this chapter through electronic mail or by facsimile entitled "Submit Your Comments on Draft Regulations Here."

Furthermore, every state agency shall, to the extent practicable and can be done utilizing existing resources, have hearings on proposed regulations televised over the Internet via a webcast or other technology [Gov. Code § 11364(b)]. These requirements only apply to state agencies that otherwise have an Internet website and are in addition to any other information that is otherwise required by law [Gov. Code § 11364(c)(1)]. This statute does not affect the discretion of a state governmental entity to do either of the following [Gov. Code § 11364(c)(2)(A), (B)]:

(A) Post on its website or the internet information in addition to what is required to be disclosed by this article.

(B) Post accurate, useful, and explanatory plain language information.

[3] Unique Identification Number for each Regulatory Rulemaking Action

OAL is required to establish a system to assign a unique identification number to each regulatory action of a state agency [Gov. Code § 11341(a)]. Both OAL and the state agency undertaking the regulatory action are required to use the identification number assigned by OAL to refer to the regulatory action for which a notice has already been published in the California Regulatory Notice Register [Gov. Code § 11341(b)]. The identification number is required to provide sufficient information for a member of the public to identify and track a regulatory action both with OAL and with the state agency taking the regulatory action. No other information relating to the regulatory action shall be required of a member of the public if the identification number of the regulatory action has been provided [Gov. Code § 11341(c)]. However, the requirements of this law are not effective until January 1, 2002 [Gov. Code § 11345].

[4] Public Participation Prior to Notice of Proposed Rulemaking

State agencies that propose to adopt regulations are required, prior to publication of the notice required by Gov. Code § 11346.5, to involve parties who would be subject to the proposed regulations in public discussions regarding these proposed regulations, when the proposed regulations involve complex proposals or a large number of proposals that cannot easily be reviewed during the comment period. This requirements is designed to increase public participation and improve the quality of regulations [Gov. Code § 11346.45(a)]. Public discussion requirements do not apply to state agencies that are required to implement federal law and regulations for which there is little or no discretion on the part of the state to vary [Gov. Code § 11346.45(b)]. If the agency does not or cannot comply with public discussion requirements, the agency is required to state the reasons for noncompliance with reasonable specificity in the rulemaking record [Gov. Code § 11346.45(c)]. Public discussion requirements are not subject to judicial review nor to OAL review under Gov. Code § 11349.1 [Gov. Code § 11346.45(d)].

§ 472A.12 Public Notice

[1] General Requirements

Once an agency has developed the specific language of a proposed regulation, the APA requires that those persons who are interested, affected, or both, by the proposed state action, receive proper notice of its pendency or initiation in advance of any formal action on the matter [Gov. Code § 11346.4(a)].

This notice of the proposed regulatory action must follow a prescribed format [see [2], below], and meet both publication requirements [see [3], below], and mailing requirements [see [4], below]. These requirements are temporarily waived when an agency adopts "emergency" regulations [Gov. Code §§ 11346.1(a), 11349.6; see § 472A.13].

The publication and mailing requirements must be satisfied at least 45 days prior to either the close of the public comment period or the public hearing [Gov. Code § 11346.4(a)]. That is, once publication of the notice has been accomplished, the agency can take no further action on the proposal until a minimum of 45 days has passed. During this period the agency is required to accept written comments from the public. These comments become part of the record of the rulemaking proceeding and must be addressed in that record by the agency [Gov. Code §§ 11346.9(a)(3), 11347.3(a)(6); see § 472A.13].

Unless the APA requirements are met, the agency does not formally establish jurisdiction to commence rulemaking activity. Only a valid publication of notice will support the final adoption and approval of a regulation adopted pursuant to that notice [Gov. Code § 11349.3(b); see Gov. Code § 11346.2 (notice requirement)]. Regulations adopted pursuant to a defective notice may be invalidated by a court [Gov. Code § 11350(a)].

Thus, a practitioner's initial inquiry in challenging a regulatory action should be whether the agency satisfied the notice publication and mailing requirements, in order to preserve this issue for the court's consideration in an action challenging the procedural validity of the adoption of a regulation [Gov. Code § 11350; see Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking , for a discussion of judicial review of agency rulemaking].

[2] Content Requirements

[a] General Information

The notice must contain information adequate to define the scope of the changes the state agency is proposing. This notice is reviewed by the OAL to ensure that the specific minimum information required by the APA is included [Gov. Code §§ 11347.3(a)(2), 11349.1(a); see § 472A.16]. Any other requirements prescribed by other statutes are in addition to, and not in lieu of, the APA form and manner of notice requirements [Gov. Code § 11346.4(f)].

The APA requires at a minimum that the published notice contain all of the following [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)]:

- A statement of the time, place, and nature of proceedings for the adoption, repeal, or amendment of regulations [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(1)].

- Reference to the authority under which the regulation is proposed, and a reference to the specific statutory code sections or other legal authority that is being implemented, interpreted, or made specific [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(2)].

- An informative digest containing a clear and concise summary of any existing laws and regulations directly related to the proposed action and the effect the proposed action would have [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(3)]. If the proposed action differs substantially from an existing comparable federal regulation or statute, this digest must also include a brief description of the significant differences and the full citation of the federal regulations or statutes and a summary of agency efforts to minimize duplication and conflicts pursuant to law [Gov. Code § 11349(f)]. The digest must be drafted in a format similar to the legislative counsel's digest on legislative bills [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(3)].

- Any other matters prescribed by a statute applicable to the specific state agency or to any specific regulation or class of regulations [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(4)].

- A determination as to whether the regulation imposes a mandate on local agencies or school districts, and if so, whether the mandate requires state reimbursement [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(5); see Gov. Code §§ 17500-17630].

- An estimate prepared in accordance with instructions adopted by the Department of Finance pursuant to Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(6) of the cost or savings to any state agency, the cost to any local agency or school district that is required to be reimbursed by the state [see Gov. Code §§ 17500-17630], other nondiscretionary cost or savings imposed on local agencies, and the cost or savings in federal funding to the state. "Cost or savings" means additional costs or savings, both direct and indirect, that a public agency necessarily incurs in reasonable compliance with regulations [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(6)].

- A statement that the adopting agency must determine that no reasonable alternative considered by the agency or that has otherwise been identified and brought to the attention of the agency would be more effective in carrying out the purpose for which the action is proposed or would be as effective and less burdensome to affected private persons than the proposed action [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(12)].

- The name and telephone number of the following persons [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(13)]: the agency representative and designated backup contact person to whom inquiries concering the proposed administrative action may be directed [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(13)(A)] and an agency person or persons designated to respond to questions on the substance of the proposed regulations, where appropriate [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(13)(B)].

- The date by which written comments on the proposed action must be received in order to be considered by the agency before it adopts the final proposal [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(14)].

- Reference to the fact that the agency proposing the action has prepared a statement of reasons for the proposed action, has available all the information on which its proposal is based, and has available the express terms of the proposed action [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(15); see § 472A.14]. The agency contact person named in the notice is required to make available to the public on request the express terms of the proposed action using underline or italics to indicate additions to, and strikeout to indicate deletions from, the California Code of Regulations. The agency contact person is also required to make available to the public on request the location of public records, including reports, documentation, and other materials, related to the proposed action [Gov. Code § 11346.5(b)].

- A statement that if a public hearing has not been scheduled, any interested person or his or her duly authorized representative may request that one be held; however, this request must be made no later than 15 days prior to the close of the written comment period [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(16); see Gov. Code § 11346.8 (procedures to request a public hearing)].

- A statement indicating that the full text of any regulation changed after the public hearing (or end of the comment period if no hearing is held) [Gov. Code § 11346.8] will be available to the public for at least 15 days before the agency adopts its final action on the regulation [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(17)].

[b] Economic Impact on Business

State agencies proposing to adopt or amend or repeal administrative regulations are required to assess the potential for adverse economic impact on California business enterprises and individuals, avoiding the imposition of unnecessary or unreasonable regulations or reporting, record keeping, or compliance requirements. To assess this potential when proposing to adopt, amend, or repeal a regulation, agencies are required to [Gov. Code § 11346.3(a)]:

- Obtain adequate information concerning the need for, and consequences of, proposed governmental regulation.

- Consider the impact of regulations on businesses with consideration of industries affected. Agencies are required to make this assessment early in the regulatory process.

If a state agency proposing to adopt or amend any administrative regulation determines that the action may have a significant adverse economic impact on business, it must include the following information in the notice of proposed action [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(7)]:

- An identification of the types of businesses that would be affected.

- A description of the projected reporting, recordkeeping, and other compliance requirements that would result from the proposed action. No administrative regulation that requires a report will apply to businesses [see Gov. Code § 11342.610(a) (small business defined)] unless the state agency adopting the regulation makes a finding that it is necessary for the health, safety, or welfare of the people of California [Gov. Code § 11346.3(c)].

- The following statement: "The (name of agency) finds that the (adoption/amendment) of this regulation may have a significant adverse economic impact on businesses. The (name of agency) (has/has not) considered proposed alternatives that would lessen any adverse economic impact on business, and invites you to submit such proposals."

Submissions may include the following considerations:

- The establishment of differing compliance or reporting requirements or timetables that take into account the resources available to businesses.

- Consolidation or simplification of compliance and reporting requirements for businesses.

- The use of performance standards rather than prescriptive standards [see Gov. Code § 11342.570 (performance standard defined); Gov. Code § 11342.590 (prescriptive standard defined)].

- Exemption or partial exemption from the regulatory requirements for businesses.

The state agency proposing to adopt or amend any regulation must refer in the notice to any studies or relevant data that were relied on in making the determination that the regulation has no adverse impact [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(8)].

If the state agency determines that the action will not have a significant adverse economic impact on business including the ability of California businesses to compete with businesses in other states, it must make a declaration to that effect in the notice of proposed action [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(8)]. The stated effect (or noneffect) of the action on business including the ability of California businesses to compete with businesses in other states, is purely a notice requirement; the OAL has no jurisdiction to pass on the merits of the proposal because of its effect on business [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(8)].

[c] Cost Impact

The notice of proposed action must also include a description of all cost impacts, known to the agency at the time the notice of proposed action is submitted to the office, that a representative private person or business would necessarily incur in reasonable compliance with the proposed action. If no cost impacts are known to the agency, it shall state the following: "The agency is not aware of any cost impacts that a representative private person or business would necessarily incur in reasonable compliance with the proposed action" [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(9)].

[d] Plain English Policy

Agencies that propose to adopt or amend administrative regulations that affect small businesses must adopt a plain English policy [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(3)(B)]. The reason for this requirement is that small businesses are at a distinct disadvantage in complying with administrative regulations because they do not have the resources to hire experts to assist them in understanding and complying with those regulations [Gov. Code § 11340(g)].

Plain English is defined to mean language that satisfies the standard of clarity provided in Gov. Code § 11349 [Gov. Code § 11342.580]. The plain English policy means that agencies are required to meet the following requirement in the process of adopting or amending regulations, adopt a plain English policy statement overview for each proposed regulation that would explain all of the following: (a) the broad objectives of the proposed regulation; and (b) the specific objectives of the proposed regulation, if appropriate [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(3)(B)].

[3] Publication Requirements

The state agency must deliver to the OAL a copy of the notice of proposed action [Gov. Code § 11343(d)]. If the OAL finds that all requirements have been met, it will approve the notice and publish it in the California Regulatory Notice Register [see [5], below] as prepared by the OAL for each state agency's notice of regulatory action [Gov. Code §

11346.4(a)(5), (d)].

Publication of a legally sufficient notice in the California Regulatory Notice Register establishes, for a period of one year, the agency's jurisdiction to adopt a final action regarding regulations proposed by the published notice [Gov. Code § 11346.4(b)]. If the regulatory action proposed in the notice is not completed and transmitted to OAL within the one-year period, the agency must initiate the entire process again beginning with the publication and mailing of a new notice [Gov. Code § 11346.4(b)]. When appropriate in the judgment of the state agency, the notice will also be published in the form and manner that the state agency prescribes [Gov. Code § 11346.4(a)(4)]. The notice of proposed action shall also be posted on the agency's website if the agency has a website [Gov. Code § 11346.4(a)(6)].

[4] Mailing Requirements

Once the OAL has approved the notice for publication, the agency must then mail a copy to the following [Gov. Code § 11346.4(a)]:

- Every person who has filed a request for notice of regulatory actions with the state agency. Each state agency is required to give a person filing a request for notice of regulatory action the option of being notified of all proposed regulatory actions or being notified of regulatory actions concerning one or more particular programs of the state agency [Gov. Code § 11346.4(a)(1)].

- The director of the department, when the state agency is within a state department [Gov. Code § 11346.4(a)(2)].

- A representative number of small business enterprises or their representatives that have been identified as being affected by the proposed action. Representative for the purposes of this paragraph includes, but is not limited to, a trade association, industry association, professional association, or any other business group or association of any kind that represents a business enterprise or employees of a business enterprise [Gov. Code § 11346.4(a)(3)].

- Any person or group of persons whom the agency believes to be interested in the proposed action.

Notwithstanding this mailing requirement, failure to mail notice to any person listed above will not invalidate any action taken by a state agency [Gov. Code § 11346.4(f)]. It is doubtful that the statute intends to completely excuse the agency from complying with mailing requirements. It is more likely that the rule simply means that an agency's good faith attempt to comply with the mailing requirement will preclude any challenge to the agency's action, based on its inadvertent failure to fully comply. The rulemaking record must contain a statement confirming that the agency complied with the notice requirement [Gov. Code § 11347.3(a); see § 472A.16]. The agency, however, is not required to provide a copy of its mailing list to support that statement [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 86].

[5] The California Regulatory Notice Register

The official notices of regulatory changes proposed by state agencies are published in a weekly publication, called the California Regulatory Notice Register (Notice Register), each Friday [Gov. Code § 11344.1(a)(1); 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 5]. In addition, the Notice Register contains formal notices approved by OAL for the week, a summary of regulations filed with the secretary of state that week, and other information relating to the regulatory process. The publication date of the notice is the first day of the 45-day minimum public comment period [see Gov. Code § 11346.4]. OAL is also required to publish summaries of all regulation decisions issued in the previous week detailing the reasons for disapproval of a regulation, the reasons for not filing an emergency regulation, and the reasons for repealing a regulation. OAL must also publish a quarterly index of regulation decisions in the California Regulatory Notice Register [Gov. Code § 11344.1(a)(3)]. OAL is also required to post on its website, on a weekly basis Gov. Code §

11344.1(c)]: The California Regulatory Notice Register, and each issue shall stay posted for at least 18 months [Gov. Code § 11344.1(c)(1)]; and one or more Internet links to assist the public to gain access to to the text of regulations proposed by state agencies Gov. Code § 11344.1(c)(2)]. OAL does not have to make available on its website the California Regulatory Notice Register until January 1, 2002 [Gov. Code § 11345].

The Notice Register also includes the OAL's detailed letters of disapproval of regulations, a list by title and section of regulations approved and filed with the secretary of state that week, and information regarding regulatory determinations [Gov. Code § 11340.5(c)(3); 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 127]. A subscription to the Notice Register may be obtained from the General Services Department, Publications Section, P.O. Box 1015, North Highland, California 95660 [Gov. Code § 11344.4].

§ 472A.13 Public Response to Proposed Regulation

[1] Opportunities for Public Response

[a] Publication of Notice of Proposed Action

The APA provides a series of opportunities for the regulated public to comment throughout the various stages of the process. The first opportunity occurs at the time the notice of proposed action is published in the Notice Register. During the 45 days immediately following the publication of the notice [Gov. Code § 11346.4(a)], the agency is required to accept written comments [Gov. Code § 11346.8(a); see [2], below]. Each state agency subject to rule making requirements is required to keep its rulemaking records on all of that agency's pending rule making actions, in which the notice has been published in the California Regulatory Notice Register, current and in one central location [Gov. Code § 11348].

The notice procedure does not require an agency to schedule a hearing. Furthermore, due process does not require a hearing. A quasi-legislative rulemaking action is not subject to procedural requirements imposed by due process of law; those requirements apply only to "adjudicative" actions [Franchise Tax Board v. Superior Court (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 538, 549, 225 P.2d 905 ; Rivera v. Division of Industrial Welfare (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d576, 587, 265 Cal. App. 2d 576, 71 Cal. Rptr. 739 ; see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies , for discussion of due process requirements applicable to administrative agencies].

If the agency's notice indicates a time and place for a public hearing, that hearing is the next opportunity for public response [see Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(1)]. At the hearing, statements, arguments, or contentions may be presented either orally, in writing, or both [Gov. Code § 11346.8(a); see [3], below].

Even if the published notice does not include a time and place for such a hearing, any interested person or his or her duly authorized representative person may request that a hearing be held, and the agency is then required to hold a hearing [Gov. Code § 11346.8(a)]. The request must be made in writing no later than 15 days prior to the close of the written comment period [Gov. Code § 11346.8(a)]. Once the date for the requested public hearing has been set, the agency is required, "to the extent practicable," to mail notice of the date, time, and place of the hearing to each person who has filed a request with the agency to be notified of all regulatory actions it proposes [Gov. Code § 11346.8(a)]. Apparently, an agency's attempt to comply with the mailing requirement will preclude any challenge to the agency's action based on its inadvertent failure to fully comply [see Gov. Code § 11346.4(f) (similar provision applicable to notice of proposed action); see also § 472.11[4]].

When an agency decides not to proceed with a proposed action after having published a notice of proposed action under Gov. Code § 11346.4, the agency is required to deliver notice of the decision not to proceed to OAL for publication in the California Regulatory Notice Register [Gov. Code § 11347(a)]. Publication of a notice not to proceed terminates the effect of the notice of proposed action referred to in the notice. However, an agency is not prohibited by this statute from proposing a new regulatory action that is similar or identical to a regulatory action that was previously the subject of a notice not to proceed [Gov. Code § 11347(b)].

[b] Change in Text of Proposed Regulation

The next opportunity for public comment occurs if the agency makes a change to the text of the regulation that was originally provided in the notice [see Gov. Code § 11346.5], other than a change that is (1) nonsubstantial or solely grammatical in nature, or (2) sufficiently related to the original text that the public was adequately placed on notice that the change could result from the originally proposed regulatory action [Gov. Code § 11346.8(c)]. Changes are "nonsubstantial" if they clarify without materially altering the requirements, rights, responsibilities, conditions, or prescriptions contained in the original text [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 40]. Changes to the original text will be deemed to be "sufficiently related" if a reasonable member of the directly affected public could have determined from the notice that these changes to the regulation could have resulted [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 42].

Changes that are substantial or not sufficiently related under these standards trigger a formal notice and mailing procedure similar to the initial notice and mailing process [see § 472A.11]. The rulemaking record [see § 472A.16[2]] must contain a statement that confirms that the agency complied with this procedure and specifies the date of compliance [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 44(b)]. Within 15 calendar days prior to the adoption of a change, the agency must mail a notice stating the period within which comments will be accepted and a copy of the full text of the regulation as it was originally proposed (with the proposed change clearly indicated) [16 Cal. Code Reg. § 46] to all persons who meet one or more of the following requirements [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 44(a)]:

- Testified at the public hearing.
- Submitted written comments at the public hearing.
- Sent comments that were received by the agency during the public comment period.
- Requested notification from the agency of the availability of the change.

In addition to complying with these mailing requirements, the agency must make available for public review and comment any new supporting documents and/or information on which its rationale for the action is based. The documents and information must be specifically described in the notice, along with information regarding where and when they are available for public inspection. The agency is required to make the documents and information available for public inspection at the specified location for at least 15 calendar days before the resulting regulations can be adopted [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 45(a), (b)].

When an agency adds any technical, theoretical, or empirical study, report, or similar document to the rule making file after publication of the notice of proposed action and relies on the document in proposing the action, the agency is required to make the document available to rulemaking participants and the public [Gov. Code § 11347.1(a)]. At least 15 calendar days before the proposed action is adopted by the agency, the agency is required to mail a notice identifying the added document and stating the place and business hours that the document is available for public inspection [Gov. Code § 11347.1(b)] to the following persons:

- Persons who testified at the public hearing [Gov. Code § 11347.1(b)(1)];

- Persons who submitted written comments at the public hearing [Gov. Code § 11347.1(b)(2)];

- Persons whose comments were received by the agency during the public comment period [Gov. Code § 11347.1(b)(3)]; and

- Persons who requested notification from the agency of the availability of changes to the text of the proposed regulation [Gov. Code § 11347.1(b)(4)].

Also, the document must be made available for public inspection at the location described in the notice for at least 15 calendar days before the proposed action is adopted by the agency [Gov. Code § 11347.1(c)]. Written comments on the document or information received by the agency during the availability period must be summarized and responded to in the final statement of reasons [Gov. Code § 11347.1(d)]. The rulemaking file shall contain a statement confirming that the agency complied with the requirements of this statute and stating the date on which the notice was mailed [Gov. Code § 11347.1(e)]. If there are no persons listed above, then the rulemaking file is required to contain a confirming statement to that effect [Gov. Code § 11347.1(f)].

[2] Public Comment

[a] Standards Subject to Comment

Because of the extensive procedural and substantive requirements imposed by the APA, comments may be made regarding various aspects of a proposed regulation. Any of the procedural requirements under the APA are proper subject matter for challenge by public comment [see Gov. Code § 11346.8(a)]. In addition, comments may be directed to the six substantive standards [see § 472A.16[3]] that the OAL will use in reviewing each regulation [Gov. Code §§ 11349, 11349.1]. These standards include the following:

- Whether the agency has met its burden of proving that it is necessary to adopt the particular regulation in order to effectuate the purposes of the underlying enabling statute [Gov. Code § 11349(a), (f); 1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 10, 11].

- Whether this particular agency has the authority to adopt the regulation [Gov. Code § 11349(b); 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 14].

- Whether the regulation, as proposed, is clearly written [Gov. Code § 11349(c); 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 16].

- Whether the regulation is consistent with other laws of the state [Gov. Code § 11349(d)].

- Whether the agency has cited the appropriate statute that it is implementing, interpreting, or making specific [Gov. Code § 11349(e); 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 14].

- Whether the regulation does not duplicate other statutes or regulations [Gov. Code § 11349(f); 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 12].

Also, comments may challenge or refute any of the studies, data, or reports relied on by the agency in proposing the regulation [see Gov. Code §§ 11346.2, 11346.9; see also § 472A.14]. For that reason, the agency is prohibited from adding any material to the rulemaking record after the close of the public hearing or comment period, unless provisions have been made for public comment on the matter [Gov. Code § 11346.8(d)].

[b] Review of Public Comments

Review of the public comments on regulatory proposals is a key element in OAL's process of determining whether a regulation has fully satisfied the six substantive standards [see Gov. Code § 11349.1; § 472A.16[3]]. The policy of the state, as enunciated in the APA, places great emphasis on the consideration by both OAL and the state agencies of comments from the public. Therefore, in its final statement of reasons for proposing the adoption, amendment, or repeal of a regulation [see § 472A.14[2]], each agency is required either (1) to prepare written responses for review by the OAL to each of the public comments made regarding the proposed regulation, or (2) to revise the regulation to accommodate each comment [Gov. Code § 11346.9(a)(3)]. If the agency fails to take either action, the OAL must disapprove the regulation [Gov. Code § 11349.3(b)]. For further discussion of the consideration of public comment in the rulemaking process, see § 472A.14.

[3] Public Hearing

If a public hearing is held, it is not an adversary hearing; it is simply an occasion for interested persons to present their views to the agency. The agency must allow any interested person or his or her duly authorized representative to present statements, arguments, or contentions [see Gov. Code § 11346.8(a)]. The express statutory requirements of notice and hearing [see Gov. Code §§ 11346.4-11346.8] include the implicit requirements that (1) the agency must act reasonably on the basis of evidence received, and (2) the evidence must be disclosed at the hearing and made part of the record [California Asso. of Nursing Homes, etc. v. Williams (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 800, 810-811, 85 Cal. Rptr. 735] .

The agency or its representative has the authority to administer oaths or affirmations [see Gov. Code § 11346.8(b)]. However, persons placed under oath are simply interested persons stating opinions and arguments. The law does not require that an opportunity for cross examination exist under those circumstances [Rivera v. Division of Industrial Welfare (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 576, 590, 71 Cal. Rptr. 739] , although an agency may permit reasonable cross examination [E.M. Consumer Corp. v. Christensen (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 642, 652, 121 Cal. Rptr. 177] .

The agency may continue or postpone a hearing from time to time, and to a place it determines [see Gov. Code § 11346.8(b)]. The transcript, recording, or minutes of the completed public hearing must be included in the agency's rulemaking file, which must be submitted to the OAL [Gov. Code § 11347.3(a)(8); see § 472A.14]. If a comment made at a public hearing raises a new issue concerning a proposed regulation and a member of the public requests additional time to respond to the new issue before the state agency takes final action, it is the intent of the legislature that rulemaking agencies consider granting the request for additional time if, under the circumstances, granting the request is practical and does not unduly delay action on the regulation [Gov. Code § 11346.8(e)].

§ 472A.14 Agency Rationale for Adoption of Regulations

[1] Initial Statement of Reasons

The APA imposes stringent requirements on a state agency to fully explain its rationale for each regulation it proposes to adopt. This rationale is set forth in the "Initial Statement of Reasons," which must be submitted to the OAL and made available to the public on request, along with the notice of proposed action [Gov. Code § 11346.2; see § 472A.16 (rulemaking file)]. The statement shall include, but not be limited to, the following [Gov. Code § 11346.2(b)]:

- A statement of the specific purpose of each adoption, amendment, or repeal and the rationale for the agency's determination that each adoption, amendment, or repeal is reasonably necessary to carry out the purpose for which it is proposed. When the adoption or amendment of a regulation would mandate the use of specific technologies or equipment, a statement of the reasons why the agency believes these mandates or prescriptive requirements are required [Gov. Code § 11346.2(b)(1)].

- An identification of each technical, theoretical, and empirical study, report, or similar document on which the agency is relying in proposing the adoption, amendment, or repeal of a regulation [Gov. Code § 11346.2(b)(2)].

- A description of the reasonable alternatives to the regulation and the agency's reasons for rejecting those alternatives. In the case of a regulation that would mandate the use of specific technologies or equipment or prescribe specific actions or procedures, the imposition of performance standards shall be considered as an alternative [Gov. Code § 11346.2(b)(3)(A)].

- A description of any reasonable alternatives the agency has identified or that have otherwise been identified and brought to the attention of the agency that would lessen any adverse impact on small business. The agency is not required to artificially construct alternatives or to justify why it has not identified alternatives [Gov. Code § 11346.2(b)(3)(B)].

- Agencies are not required to construct alternatives artificially, describe unreasonable alternatives, or justify why the agency has not described alternatives, notwithstanding the requirements of Gov. Code § 11346.2(b)(3)(A), and (B) [Gov. Code § 11346.2(b)(3)(C)].

- Facts, evidence, documents, testimony, or other evidence upon which the agency relies to support a finding that the action will nor have a significant adverse economic impact on business [Gov. Code § 11346.2(b)(4)].

- Departments, Boards, and Commissions within the Environmental Protection Agency, the Resources agency, or the State Fire Marshal must describe efforts, connected to a proposed rulemaking action, to avoid unnecessary duplication or conflicts with federal regulations contained in the Code of Federal Regulations addressing the same issues. These agencies may adopt regulations different from federal regulations contained in the Code of Federal Regulations addressing the same issues upon a finding of one or more of the following justifications [Gov. Code § 11346.2(b)(6)]: (a) the differing state regulations are authorized by law [Gov. Code § 11346.2(b)(6)(A)]; (b) the cost of differing state regulations is justified by the benefit to human health, public safety, public welfare, or the environment [Gov. Code § 11346.2(b)(5)]; or (c) both of these factors.

Furthermore, a state agency that adopts or amends a regulation mandated by federal law or regulations, the provisions of which are identical to a previously adopted or amended federal regulation, shall be deemed to have complied with the requirements of Gov. Code § 11346.2(b) if a statement to the effect that a federally mandated regulation or amendment to a regulation is being proposed, together with a citation to where an explanation of the provisions of the regulation can be found, is included in the notice of proposed adoption or amendment prepared consistent with Gov. Code § 11346.5.

However, the agency shall comply fully with rulemaking requirements of Gov. Code § 11340 et seq. as to regulation provisions that differ from similar provisions of federal regulations [Gov. Code § 11346.2(c)].

[2] Final Statement of Reasons

The agency must also prepare a "Final Statement of Reasons." This statement must be submitted to the OAL (along with an updated informative digest, discussed in [3], below) when the proposed regulation has been adopted and submitted to the OAL for review [see § 472A.15]. At a minimum, this final statement must include the following [Gov. Code § 11346.9(a)]:

- An update of the information contained in the Initial Statement of Reasons. If the update identifies any data or technical, theoretical, or empirical study, report, or other similar document on which it has relied to justify the adoption or amendment of the regulation, but which was not identified in the initial statement of reasons or otherwise made available for public review or comment, it must provide for such review and comment before submitting the regulation to the OAL [Gov. Code § 11346.9(a)(1); see Gov. Code § 11346.8].

- The agency's determination of whether the regulation imposes a mandate on local agencies or school districts. If it determines that the regulation would impose a local mandate, the agency must indicate whether the mandate is reimbursable [see Gov. Code §§ 17500-17630]. If the agency finds that the mandate is not reimbursable, it must explain how it reached that conclusion [Gov. Code § 11346.9(a)(2)].

- A summary of each objection or recommendation made regarding the specific adoption, amendment, or repeal proposed, together with an explanation of how the proposed action has been changed to accommodate each objection or recommendation, or the reasons for making no change. This requirement applies only to objections or recommendations specifically directed at the agency's proposed action or the procedures followed by the agency in proposing or adopting the action [Gov. Code § 11346.9(a)(3)], the only kind of objection or recommendation the agency must respond to, and the only kind that the OAL may rely on in disapproving a regulation. Whether a public comment is actually a comment capable of consideration by OAL is determined on a case-by-case basis. An excellent source for guidance, however, are the disapproval decisions by OAL, which are published weekly in the Code Supplement and the Regulatory Notice Register.

- A determination with supporting information that no alternative considered by the agency would be more effective in carrying out the purpose for which the regulation is proposed than the final version. This inquiry must also examine whether any of the alternatives considered would be less burdensome to affected private persons than the regulation adopted and still be as effective [Gov. Code § 11346.9(a)(4)].

- An explanation setting forth the reasons for rejecting any proposed alternatives that would lessen the adverse impact on small businesses [Gov. Code § 11346.9(a)(5)].

[3] Updated Informative Digest

The agency must also prepare an update of the informative digest prepared at the commencement of the rulemaking proceeding, which must be submitted to the OAL along with the adopted regulation [Gov. Code § 11346.9(b); see § 472A.16]. The agency is required to provide a clear and concise summary of the immediately preceding laws and regulations, if any, relating directly to the final version of the regulation and the effect the regulations, as adopted, would have on this body of law. The informative digest must be drafted in a format similar to the legislative counsel's digest on legislative bills [Gov. Code § 11346.9(b)].

The purpose of this provision is to ensure that the agency action takes into account any intervening changes in statutes or other relevant law that would have a direct bearing on the outcome of the proposed regulation. For example, it is possible that the statute authorizing the regulation, although in existence at the commencement of the rulemaking process, is repealed or substantially amended before the final version of the regulation is submitted to OAL. In that case, there is a significant probability that the regulation would fail the authority standard [see Gov. Code § 11349.1(a)(2); § 472A.16[3]], since the OAL reviews the statutory authority for the regulation as it exists at the time the regulation is submitted to OAL, rather than at the time the action was begun [see 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 14].

[4] Waiver of the Rationale Requirement

A state agency that adopts or amends a regulation that is (1) mandated by a federal statute or regulation, and (2) identical to a previously adopted or amended federal regulation, will be deemed to have complied with the statement requirements [see [1]-[3], above] under certain circumstances. The agency must include in the initial notice [Gov. Code § 11346.5; see § 472A.12]:

- A statement that a federally mandated regulation or amendment to a regulation is being proposed.

- A citation to an explanation of the provisions of the regulation [Gov. Code § 11346.9(c)].

Even if the agency invokes the waiver, however, it will be lost with regard to any provisions in the proposed agency regulation that are different from the corresponding provisions of the federal regulation. Full compliance with all APA requirements is necessary with respect to those provisions that vary from the corresponding provisions of the federal regulation [Gov. Code § 11346.9(c)].

§ 472A.15 Special Procedures for Emergency Regulations

State agencies have the authority to adopt, amend, or repeal regulations under emergency circumstances, defined to mean a situation that calls for immediate action to avoid serious harm to the public peace, health, safety, or welfare [Gov. Code § 11342.545], without having to follow the usual rule making procedure requirements for non emergency regulations [Gov. Code §§ 11346.1, 11346.9]. For example, the Department of Health services properly issued interim emergency regulations governing alien eligibility for pregnancy related care, which were designed to comply with provisions of controlling federal law that made the existing state welfare laws (which allowed publicly funded routine prenatal care for illegal aliens) invalid [Doe v. Wilson (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 296, 300, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 187] .

The notice and hearing requirements [see Gov. Code §§ 11346-11347.3 (APA Chapter 3.5, Article 5, discussed in §§ 472A.12 -472A.14)] do not apply [Gov. Code § 11346.1(a)]. Instead at least five working days before submitting an emergency regulation to the office, the adopting agency must send a notice of the proposed emergency action to every person who has filed a request for notice of regulatory action with the agency. The notice shall include both of the following [Gov. Code § 11346.1(a)(2)(A),(B)]: the specific language proposed to be adopted; and the finding of emergency required by law [Gov. Code § 11346.1(b)]. However, an agency is not required to provide this notice if the emergency situation clearly poses such an immediate, serious harm that delaying action to allow public comment would be inconsistent with the public interest [Gov. Code § 11346.1(a)(3)].

Agencies that adopt, amend, or repeal emergency regulations are required to make a finding that the adoption of a regulation or order of repeal is necessary to address an emergency [Gov. Code § 11346.1(b)(1)]. Agency findings of an emergency are required to include a written statement that contains the information required by law [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(2)-(6)] and must also include a description of the specific facts demonstrating the existence of an emergency and the need for immediate action, and demonstrating, by substantial evidence, the need for the proposed regulation to effectuate the statute being implemented, interpreted, or made specific and to address only the demonstrated emergency. The finding of emergency shall also identify each technical, theoretical, and empirical study, report, or similar document, if any, upon which the agency relies. The enactment of an urgency statute shall not, in and of itself, constitute a need for immediate action [Gov. Code § 11346.1(b)(2)]. A finding of emergency based only upon expediency, convenience, best interest, general public need, or speculation, shall not be adequate to demonstrate the existence of an emergency. If the situation identified in the finding of emergency existed and was known by the agency adopting the emergency regulation in sufficient time to have been addressed through non emergency regulations adopted by law [Gov. Code §§ 11346-11348] the finding of emergency shall include facts explaining the failure to address the situation through non emergency regulations [Gov. Code § 11346.1(b)(2)]. The statement and the regulation and order of repeal shall be filed immediately with the Office of Administrative Law [Gov. Code § 11346.1(b)(3)]. Additional procedural requirements apply to regulations relating to building standards [Gov. Code § 11346.1(c)]. The OAL is required to review the regulation within 10 days after submission [Gov. Code § 11349.6(b); see § 472A.16[4]].

The emergency regulation or order of repeal shall become effective on filing or on any later date specified by the state agency in a written instrument filed with, or as a part of, the regulation or order of repeal [Gov. Code § 11346.1(d)]. No regulation, amendment, or order of repeal initially adopted as an emergency regulatory action shall remain in effect more than 180 days unless the adopting agency has complied with the requirements of Gov Code §§ 11346.2-11347.3, either before adopting an emergency regulation or within the 180-day period. The adopting agency, prior to the expiration of the 180-day period, shall transmit to the Office of Administrative Law for filing with the Secretary of State the adopted regulation, amendment, or order of repeal, the rule making file, and a certification that requirements of the law [Gov Code §§ 11346.2-11347.3], were complied with either before the emergency regulation was adopted or within the 180-day period [Gov. Code § 11346.1(e)]. If an emergency amendment or order of repeal is filed and the adopting agency fails to comply with these requirements, the regulation as it existed prior to the emergency amendment or order of repeal shall thereupon become effective and after notice to the adopting agency by the office shall be reprinted in the California Code of Regulations [Gov. Code § 11346.1(f)]. If a regulation is originally adopted and filed as an emergency and the adopting agency fails to comply with these requirements, this failure shall constitute a repeal of the regulation and after notice to the adopting agency by the office, shall be deleted [Gov. Code § 11346.1(g)]. The office may approve not more than two readoptions, each for a period not to exceed 90 days, of an emergency regulation that is the same as or substantially equivalent to an emergency regulation previously adopted by that agency. Readoption shall be permitted only if the agency has made substantial progress and proceeded with diligence to comply with these requirements [Gov. Code § 11346.1(h)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41-472A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472A.16

§ 472A.16 OAL Review of Regulations

[1] Transmittal of Adopted Regulation to OAL

After an agency has complied with the APA requirements for public notice and hearing, it may adopt the proposed regulation. The only statutory requirement for the actual adoption, amendment, or repeal of a regulation is that the agency must first "consider all relevant matter presented to it" [Gov. Code § 11346.8(a)].

After adopting a regulation, an agency must transmit a certified copy of the regulation to the OAL for filing with the Secretary of State [Gov. Code § 11343(a)]. Certification must be made by the head of the state agency or his or her designee. The certification and delegation must be in writing [Gov. Code § 11343(f)]. As discussed below, the agency must also transmit its complete rulemaking file to the OAL.

[2] Review of Rulemaking File for Completeness

[a] General Requirements

The OAL is required to review all regulations adopted pursuant to Gov. Code §§ 11346-11347.3 and submitted to it for publication in the California Regulatory Code Supplement and transmittal to the Secretary of State [Gov. Code § 11349.1(a)].

This review is restricted to the regulation itself and the record of the rulemaking proceeding [Gov. Code § 11349.1(a)]. A complete rulemaking file, therefore, must be submitted to the OAL together with the adopted regulation. Unless the record is complete, it is not "ripe" for consideration by the OAL.

A rulemaking record and the adopted regulation it supports will be returned to an agency without OAL review if (1) the file is incomplete [Gov. Code §§ 11347.3, 11349.1(f); see [b], below], or (2) the cost impact statement is missing or deficient [Gov. Code § 11349.1(d); see [c], below].

Furthermore, the agency may request, on its own initiative, the return of the regulation and file [Gov. Code § 11349.3(c)

; see [5], below].

[b] Required Contents

In order for the OAL to establish jurisdiction to review a regulation, the rulemaking record must contain all of the following [Gov. Code § 11347.3]:

- Copies of any petitions received from interested persons proposing the adoption, amendment, or repeal of the regulation, and a copy of any decision required by law [see Gov. Code § 11340.7(d)] that grants a petition in whole or in part [Gov. Code § 11347.3(b); see § 472A.18].

- All published notices of proposed adoption, amendment, or repeal of the regulation [see § 472A.12], and an updated informative digest, the initial statement of reasons, and the final statement of reasons [see § 472A.14].

- The agency's determination, together with the supporting data, of whether the regulation imposes a mandate on local agencies or school districts [see Gov. Code §§ 11346.5(a)(5)].

- The agency's determination, together with the supporting data, of whether the adopted regulation would have a significant adverse economic impact on business including the ability of California businesses to compete with businesses in other states [see Gov. Code § 11346.5].

- The agency's estimate, together with the supporting data and calculations, of the cost or savings to any state agency, and the cost to local agencies and/or school districts that require reimbursements for those costs [see Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(6)].

- All data and other factual information, any studies or reports, and written comments submitted to the agency in connection with the adoption, amendment, or repeal of the regulation [see § 472A.13].

- All data and other factual information, technical, theoretical, and empirical studies or reports, if any, on which the agency is relying in the adoption, amendment, or repeal of a regulation, including any cost impact estimates [see Gov. Code §§ 11346.3, 11346.5].

- A transcript, recording, or minutes of any public hearing connected with the adoption, amendment, or repeal of the regulation [see § 472A.13].

- The date on which the agency made available to the public, for 15 days prior to the adoption, amendment, or repeal of the regulation, the full text of the regulation [see Gov. Code § 11346.8(c)] if the agency made changes to the version of the regulation noticed to the public.

- The text of regulations as originally proposed and the modified text of regulations, if any, that were made available to the public prior to adoption.

- Any other information, statement, report, or data that the agency is required by law to consider or prepare in connection with the adoption, amendment, or repeal of a regulation.

- An index or table of contents that identifies each item contained in the rulemaking record. This document must include an affidavit or a declaration made under penalty of perjury in the form specified by Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 by the agency official who has compiled the rulemaking record, specifying the date on which the record was closed, and that the record or the copy, if submitted, is complete.

When an agency has filed its rulemaking record, the OAL has three working days to determine whether the record is complete and may therefore be reviewed. If any of the required documents [see Gov. Code § 11347.3(a), (b) (list of required documents)] are absent from the rulemaking record, the OAL is required to return the record to the submitting agency with a notice identifying the deficiency [Gov. Code § 11349.1(f)]. If no notice of deficiency is mailed to the adopting agency within that time, a rulemaking file will be deemed submitted as of the date it was originally received by the OAL [Gov. Code § 11349.1(f)]. A rulemaking file will not be deemed submitted until each identified deficiency has been corrected [Gov. Code § 11349.1(f)]. If the record is determined to be complete, it is submitted to the OAL legal staff for review [see [3], below]. This review must be completed within 30 days of this date of submission or the regulation is deemed approved by operation of law [Gov. Code § 11349.3(a)].

[c] Estimate of Costs and Savings

The OAL is required to return any rulemaking record if the adopting agency has not prepared the cost or savings estimate required by the APA [Gov. Code § 11349.1(d)(1); see Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(6)]. This estimate requires the agency to identify (1) the cost or savings to any state agency, (2) the cost to any local agency or school district that requires reimbursement [see Gov. Code §§ 11500-11630], (3) any other nondiscretionary cost or savings imposed on local agencies, and (4) the cost or savings in federal funding to the state [Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(6)].

In addition, the OAL will return any regulation if the adopting agency has prepared the estimate [see Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(6)], but failed to include the data used, calculations made, and the summary report of the estimate in the rulemaking file [Gov. Code § 11349.1(d)(1)].

Finally, the OAL will return any regulation if the agency has prepared an estimate that indicates that the regulation will result in a reimbursable [Gov. Code §§ 17500-17630] cost to local agencies or school districts, but has failed to include any of the following [Gov. Code § 11349.1(d)(2)]:

- An assessment of the potential for adverse economic impact of regulations on California business and individuals [Gov. Code § 11346.3(a)].

- A citation to an item in the Budget Act for the fiscal year in which the regulation will go into effect as the source from which the controller may pay the claims of local agencies or school districts [Gov. Code § 11349.1(d)(3)(A)].

- A citation to an accompanying appropriations bill as the source of funds from which the controller may pay the claims of local agencies or school districts [Gov. Code § 11349.1(d)(3)(B)].

- A letter or other documentation from the Department of Finance stating that the Department has approved a request by the agency that funds be included in the Budget Bill for the next following fiscal year to reimburse local agencies or school districts for the costs mandated by the regulation [Gov. Code § 11349.1(d)(3)(C)].

- A letter or other documentation from the Department of Finance stating that the Department has authorized the augmentation of the amount available for expenditure under the agency's appropriation in the Budget Act that is for reimbursement to local agencies or school districts from the unencumbered balances of other appropriations in the Budget Act, and that this augmentation is sufficient to reimburse local agencies or school districts for their cost mandated by the regulation [Gov. Code § 11349.1(d)(3)(D)].

The OAL must notify the Department of Finance of all regulations that are returned for any of the above five reasons [

Gov. Code § 11349.1(e)].

[3] Review for Compliance With Standards

[a] General Requirements

The Office of Administrative Law reviews regulations by using six standards: necessity, authority, clarity, consistency, reference, and nonduplication [Gov. Code § 11349.1(a)]. The OAL must approve a regulation that complies with these standards, unless the agency has failed to comply with the rulemaking procedures set forth in the APA [Gov. Code §§ 11349.1(a), 11349.3(b)].

Therefore, a person who wishes to challenge a proposed regulation must direct his or her written comment [Gov. Code § 11346.8(a); see § 472A.13[2]], or statement at a hearing [Gov. Code § 11346.8(a); see § 472A.13[3]], to one of these standards, to the data relied on by the agency in support of the regulation [Gov. Code § 11346.2], or to a procedural irregularity [Gov. Code §§ 11349.1(a), 11349.3(b); see § 472A.13].

The OAL has adopted regulations, set forth in 1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 10-120, governing the procedures it uses to review regulations submitted to it [see Gov. Code § 11349.1(c)]. A discussion of those regulations is included in the following coverage of the six individual standards in [b]-[g], below.

[b] Necessity

"Necessity" means that the record of the rulemaking proceeding demonstrates by substantial evidence the need for a regulation. For purposes of this standard, "evidence" includes facts, studies, and expert opinion [Gov. Code § 11349(a); California Forestry Association v. California Fish & Game Commission (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 1535, 1553-1554, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 391 (regulation that listed endangered species of Coho Salmon satisfied the necessity standard because the underlying statute (CESA) was not self implementing)].

In order to meet the necessity standard, the record must specifically include [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 10(b)]:

- A description of the public problem, administrative requirement, or other condition or circumstance that each provision of the regulation is intended to address.

- Information explaining why each provision of the adopted regulation is required to carry out the described purpose of the provision. That information includes facts, studies, or expert opinion. When the explanation is based on policies, conclusions, speculation, or conjecture, the rulemaking record must also include supporting facts, studies, expert opinion, or other information. An "expert" for these purposes is a person who possesses special skill or knowledge by reason of study or experience that is relevant to the regulation in question [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 10(b)].

In reviewing the rulemaking record for compliance with these two requirements, the OAL may not dispute the decision of a rulemaking agency to adopt a particular regulatory provision when the information provided for it is also adequate to support one or more alternative conclusions [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 10(a)]. If an agency adopts a regulation that is identical to another statute, regulation, or standard, however, the "necessity" standard will be met if the record demonstrates that the specific provisions adopted in the regulation are mandated by a California statute or other applicable law [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 11].

[c] Authority

"Authority" means the provision of law that permits or obligates an agency to adopt, amend, or repeal a regulation [Gov. Code § 11349(b)]. In addition, Gov. Code § 11145 provides that no state agency may adopt or enforce any rule or regulation that if violated could result in the imposition of a fine, imprisonment, or both, unless a statute specifically authorizes that imposition for a violation of the rule or regulation. All regulations transmitted to the OAL must include an "authority note" containing a citation to the provision(s) of law that authorize the adoption of the regulation [see Gov. Code § 11344(d); see 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 14(d)]. When a regulation is printed in the California Code of Regulations, the authority note is printed with it [see Gov. Code § 11344(d)].

In reviewing a regulation for compliance with the authority requirement, the OAL will presume that authority exists only if the agency cites either of the following [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 14(a)]:

- A California constitutional or statutory provision that expressly permits or obligates the agency to adopt, amend, or repeal the regulation.

- A California constitutional or statutory provision that grants a power to the agency that impliedly permits or obligates the agency to adopt, amend, or repeal the regulation in order to achieve the purpose for which the power was granted.

For additional discussion of authority, see Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules .

[d] Clarity

"Clarity" means that the regulation is written or displayed in such a manner that its meaning will be easily understood by the persons "directly affected" by it [Gov. Code § 11349(c)]. In reviewing the regulation for compliance with this standard, the OAL may consider the clarity of the proposed regulation in the context of related regulations [Gov. Code § 11349.1(b)]. A regulation will be presumed not to comply with the clarity standard when one or more of the following is true [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 16(a)]:

- The regulation can, on its face, be reasonably and logically interpreted to have more than one meaning, and the varying interpretations cannot be harmonized by settled rules of construction.

- The language conflicts with the agency's description of the effect of the regulation.

- The regulation uses terms that do not have meanings generally familiar to those directly affected by the regulation, and those terms are not defined in the regulation or in the governing statute.

- The regulation uses language incorrectly, for example, it contains incorrect spelling, grammar, or punctuation.

- The regulation presents information in a format that is not readily understandable by persons directly affected by it.

- The regulation does not use citation styles that clearly identify published material cited in the regulation.

Persons are presumed to be "directly affected" by the regulation if they are legally required to comply with the regulation or to enforce it, or if they receive a benefit or detriment from the enforcement of the regulation that is not common to the public in general [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 16(b)].

[e] Consistency

"Consistency" means being in harmony with, and not in conflict with or contradictory to, any existing statutes, court decisions, or other provisions of law [Gov. Code § 11349(d)].

[f] Reference

"Reference" means the statute, court decision, or other provision of law that the agency implements, interprets, or makes specific by adopting, amending, or repealing a regulation [Gov. Code § 11349(e)]. All regulations transmitted to the OAL must include a notation indicating a reference to that statute or other authority [see Gov. Code § 11344(d)].

When a regulation is printed in the California Code of Regulations, a reference note must be printed with it [see Gov. Code § 11344(d); see 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 14(d)]. Reference will be presumed to exist if an agency is empowered to implement, interpret, or make specific one of the following cited in the reference note proposed for printing in the California Code of Regulations [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 14(b)]:

- A California constitutional provision.
- A California statute.
- A federal statute or regulation.
- A court decision or order.

For additional discussion of the reference standard, see Chapter 472, Public Agency Rules .

[g] Nonduplication

"Nonduplication" means that a regulation does not serve the same purpose as a state or federal statute or other regulation [Gov. Code § 11349(f)]. A regulation "serves the same purpose" if it either repeats or rephrases in whole or in part a state or federal statute or regulation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 12(a)]. This standard requires that an agency proposing to amend or adopt a regulation must identify any state or federal statute or regulation that is overlapped or duplicated by the proposed regulation, and justify any overlap or duplication [Gov. Code § 11349(f); California Forestry Association v. California Fish & Game Commission (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 1535, 1554-1555, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 391 (regulation that listed endangered species of Coho Salmon satisfied non-duplication standard because focus of regulation was narrower in protecting species from extinction in California, and thus regulation did not duplicate parallel regulations issued under federal statutes (FESA)].

The nonduplication standard is intended to prevent the indiscriminate incorporation of statutory language in a regulation [Gov. Code § 11349(f)]. It is not intended to prohibit state agencies from printing relevant portions of enabling legislation in regulations when the duplication is necessary to satisfy the clarity standard [Gov. Code § 11349(f); see Gov. Code § 11349.1(a)(3) (clarity standard)].

Therefore, a regulation that duplicates or overlaps another statute or regulation meets the nonduplication standard if the other statute or regulation is cited as authority or reference, and duplication or overlap is necessary to satisfy the clarity standard [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 12(b)(1)]. Justification for duplication must be provided by inclusion of facts, explanations, expert opinions, or other information in the rulemaking record that establish that the overlap is necessary for the regulation to satisfy the clarity standard [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 12(b)(1)].

Further, if the agency is adopting or amending federally mandated regulations that duplicate previously adopted or amended federal regulations, the nonduplication standard is met if a statement to that effect and the applicable federal citation is included in the notice of proposed adoption or amendment [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 12(b)(2); see Gov. Code § 11346.2(c); see also § 472A.14[4]].

Finally, a regulation that duplicates another statute or regulation meets the nonduplication standard if the duplication is mandated or authorized by a specified statute or other provision of law [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 12(b)(3)]. The rulemaking record must contain a statement identifying the statute or regulation that it overlaps or duplicates and must identify the provision of law that mandates or permits that overlap or duplication. The statement must provide the information necessary to locate the full text of the statute or regulation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 12(b)(3)].

[4] Review of Emergency Regulations

[a] Procedure

Emergency regulations adopted without notice and public comment or hearing [Gov. Code § 11346.1(b); see § 472A.15] must be reviewed by the OAL within 10 calendar days after submission [Gov. Code § 11349.6(b)]. After posting a notice of the filing of a proposed emergency regulation on its Internet web site, the office shall allow interested persons five calendar days to submit comments on the proposed emergency regulations unless the emergency situation clearly poses such an immediate serious harm that delaying action to allow public comment would be inconsistent with the public interest. The office shall disapprove the emergency regulations if it determines that the situation addressed by the regulations is not an emergency, or if it determines that the regulation fails to meet the standards [Gov Code §§ 11346.1, 11349.1] required by law [Gov. Code § 11349.6(b)]. During the review of an emergency regulation, the OAL in most cases has only the agency's written finding of emergency and the accompanying regulation before it [see Gov. Code § 11346.1(b); see § 472A.15]. The statement of emergency describes specific facts showing the need for immediate action [Gov. Code § 11346.1(b); see § 472A.15]. Compared to the information available to OAL during the review of a rulemaking record [see [2], above], little data is available for review of most emergency actions. Therefore, the OAL accepts public comments during the 10-day period. If as a result of public comments the OAL considers any information not submitted to it by the rulemaking agency when determining whether to file emergency regulations, the OAL must provide the rulemaking agency with an opportunity to rebut or comment on that information [Gov. Code § 11349.6(c)].

If the OAL finds that the regulation and its accompanying statement of emergency meets APA requirements, it must file the regulation or the order of repeal with the secretary of state. The office of administrative law may approve not more than two readoptions, each for a period not to exceed 90 days, of an emergency regulation that is the same as or substantially equivalent to an emergency regulation previously adopted by that agency. Readoption shall be permitted only if the agency has made substantial progress and proceeded with diligence to comply with the requirements of law [Gov. Code § 11346.1(h)].

An emergency regulation becomes effective on filing, or on any later date specified by the agency in a written instrument filed with or as part of the regulation or repeal [Gov. Code § 11346.1(d)]. If the OAL determines either that the emergency regulation fails to satisfy the requirement that it is "necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety, or general welfare," that the regulation fails to meet the six APA standards [see Gov. Code § 11349(a); see [3], above], or that the agency failed to comply with the emergency adoption procedures set forth in Gov. Code § 11346.1(b), (c), however, it will not file the regulation with the secretary of state [Gov. Code § 11349.6(b)].

[b] Effective Period of Regulation

An emergency regulation will remain in effect only 180 days, unless the adopting agency does one of the following:

- Complies with the general notice and hearing requirements prior to adopting the emergency [Gov. Code §§ 11346.4-11346.8; see §§ 472A.12, 472A.13] regulation.

- Formally adopts the emergency regulation pursuant to the APA rulemaking provisions (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.) during the 180-day period [Gov. Code § 11346.1(e)].

When the agency completes the formal adoption process within the 180-day period, it must transmit to the OAL for filing with the secretary of state the adopted regulation and rulemaking file, and a certification ("certificate of compliance") that one of these two requirements was satisfied [Gov. Code § 11346.1(e)]. Within 30 days after a certificate of compliance has been filed, the OAL must review the regulation and hearing record. It must either approve the regulation, or repeal the regulation if it fails to comply with either of the two requirements [Gov. Code § 11349.6(d)]. If the agency fails to submit the certificate of compliance, that failure will constitute a repeal of a regulation originally adopted as an emergency regulation.

After notice to the adopting agency, the OAL will delete the emergency regulation [Gov. Code § 11346.1(g)]. If the emergency regulation was filed as an amendment to an existing regulation, failure to submit the certificate of compliance results in the unamended version becoming effective. After notice to the adopting agency, the OAL will reprint it in the Code of Regulations [Gov. Code § 11346.1(f)].

[5] Return of Regulation During Review

An agency may request the OAL to return a regulation prior to completion of the OAL's review [Gov. Code § 11349.3(c)]. All requests for the return of a regulation must be submitted in writing no later than one week following the request [Gov. Code § 11349.3(c)]. When a regulation is returned at the request of the adopting agency, the regulation must be resubmitted to the OAL for review within one year following the publication of the original notice [Gov. Code § 11349.3(c); see Gov. Code § 11346.4(b)]. If not resubmitted within one year, the agency must initiate and complete the entire APA procedure as though no prior action had been taken on the regulation [Gov. Code § 11349.3(c)]. The OAL cannot initiate the return of a regulation pursuant to agency request as an alternative to the APA disapproval procedure [Gov. Code § 11349.3(d); see [6][d], below].

[6] Approval or Disapproval of Regulations

[a] General Requirements

Within 30 calendar days after a regulation has been submitted to the OAL for review, the OAL must either approve it and submit it to the secretary of state for filing [see [b]-[c], below], or disapprove it [Gov. Code § 11349.3(a); see [d], below]. If the OAL fails to act within 30 days, the regulation will be deemed to have been approved, and the OAL must transmit it to the secretary of state for filing [Gov. Code § 11349.3(a)].

[b] Effective Date of Approved Regulations

In general, a regulation or an order of repeal becomes effective 30 days after the OAL files it with the secretary of state [Gov. Code § 11343.4]. However, four exceptions to this rule apply. These exceptions are:

- If the statute that authorizes the regulation specifically prescribes a different effective date, that date prevails [Gov. Code § 11343.4(a)]. On the other hand, if the agency fails to adopt the regulation by the date specified in the statute, the regulation becomes effective on filing by the OAL in order to avoid retroactive applications of the regulations.

- If the regulation was adopted under Fin. Code § 3373 or 8054 (relating to changes in state regulations to correspond to changes in federal regulations), it will become effective on filing, or on any later date specified by the state agency in a written instrument filed with, or as part of, the regulation or order of repeal [Gov. Code § 11343.4(b); Fin. Code § 3373(b)(3)].

- The agency may prescribe a later date in a written instrument filed with, or as part of, the regulation or order of repeal [Gov. Code § 11343.4(b)].

- The OAL may prescribe a date earlier than 30 days after filing, if the agency makes a written request showing good cause why that date should prevail [Gov. Code § 11343.4(c); Fin. Code § 3373(b)(3)].

[c] Effect of Filing and Publishing Approved Regulations

Once the OAL has filed a certified copy of a regulation or an order of repeal with the secretary of state, that filing raises the following rebuttable presumptions [Gov. Code § 11343.6]:

- That the regulation was duly adopted [Gov. Code § 11343.6(a)].

- That the regulation was duly filed and made available for public inspection at the day and hour endorsed on it [Gov. Code § 11343.6(b)].

- That all requirements of the APA and the regulations of the OAL relative to that regulation have been met [Gov. Code § 11343.6(c)].

- That the text of the certified copy of the regulation or order of repeal is the text of the regulation or order of repeal as adopted [Gov. Code § 11343.6(d)].

The APA directs the courts to take judicial notice of the contents of the certified copy of each regulation and of each order of repeal duly filed [Gov. Code § 11343.6]. Once the regulation or order of repeal is filed with the secretary of state, the OAL publishes it in the California Code of Regulations [Gov. Code § 11344(a); see § 472A.17].

The courts are directed to take judicial notice of the contents of each regulation or order of repeal that is printed or that is incorporated by appropriate reference into the Code or Supplement as compiled by the OAL [Gov. Code § 11344.6]. Further, the publication of a regulation in the Code, or its Supplement, raises a rebuttable presumption that the text of the regulation as published is the text of the regulation adopted [Gov. Code § 11344.6].

[d] Disapproved Regulations

The OAL may only disapprove a regulation for failure to comply with the six substantive standards [see Gov. Code § 11349.1, and discussion in [3], above], or for failure to comply with the procedural requirements of the APA [Gov. Code § 11349.3(b)]. The OAL must return a disapproved regulation to the agency within 30 working days after the regulation was submitted for review [Gov. Code § 11349.3(a)], and must accompany the regulation with a notice specifying the reasons for disapproval [Gov. Code § 11349.3(b)]. Within seven calendar days after issuing this notice, the OAL will send the agency a written decision detailing the reasons for disapproval [Gov. Code § 11349.3(b)].

An agency may rewrite and resubmit a disapproved regulation within 180 days of receipt of the written decision, without being subject to the notice and public hearing requirements [Gov. Code §§ 11346.4, 11346.5, 11346.8; see §§ 472A.12, 472A.13], as long as the substantive provisions of the regulation are not significantly changed [Gov. Code § 11349.4(a); Californians v. State Bd. of Pharmacy (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1136, 1145, 23 Cal. Rptr. 2d 755] .

If the regulation is significantly changed, or is not resubmitted within the 120 days, however, the agency must effectively begin the process again commencing with the publication and notice requirements [Gov. Code § 11349.4(a)]. The director of the OAL may, on a showing of good cause made by the agency, grant an extension of the 120-day time period [Gov. Code § 11346.1(a)]. When an agency resubmits a withdrawn or disapproved regulation to the OAL, it must (1) identify the prior withdrawn or disapproved regulation by date of submission to the OAL, (2) specify the portion of the prior rulemaking record that should be included in the resubmission, and (3) submit to the office a copy of the prior rulemaking record, if that record has been returned to the agency by the OAL [Gov. Code § 11349.4(c)].

Once a previously disapproved regulation is rewritten and resubmitted to OAL within the 120-day time period, the OAL's review is limited to (1) those reasons expressly identified in the written decision of disapproval, or (2) those issues arising as a result of a substantial change to a provision of the resubmitted regulation, or as a result of intervening statutory changes or intervening court orders or decisions [Gov. Code § 11349.4(b)].

An agency may also ask the governor to overrule the OAL's disapproval of a proposed regulation [Gov. Code § 11349.5(a), (e)] by filing a written request for review with the governor's legal affairs secretary within 10 days after receiving the OAL's written disapproval opinion [Gov. Code § 11349.5(a)]. A copy of the request will be delivered to the OAL on the day that it is delivered to the governor's office, and the OAL must respond within 10 days [Gov. Code § 11349.5(b)].

The governor's office will send a written decision to the requesting agency and the OAL within 15 days after receiving the OAL's response [Gov. Code § 11349.5(c)].

§ 472A.17 Publication of Regulations

[1] The California Code of Regulations

[a] General Requirements

The Office of Administrative Law is required to provide for the official compilation, printing, and publication of the periodic adoption, amendment, and repeal of regulations. That publication is called the California Code of Regulations (sometimes, for convenience, referred to in this publication as "the Code" or as the C.C.R.) [Gov. Code § 11344(a)].

On and after July 1, 1998, the Office of Administrative Law is required to make available on the Internet, free of charge, the full text, including complete authority, reference citations, and history notes [Gov. Code § 11340.1(b)], of the California Code of Regulations, and may contract with another state agency or a private entity to provide this service [Gov. Code § 11344(a)].

Before 1988, this publication was called the California Administrative Code [Stats. 1987, Ch. 1375, § 3.5]; any references to the California Administrative Code found in statutes, cases, or other publications cited in this publication should be contrued as references to the C.C.R.

The OAL is also required to provide for the compilation, printing, and publication of weekly updates to the California Code of Regulations [Gov. Code § 11344(b)]. That publication is called the California Regulatory Code Supplement (formerly called the California Administrative Code Supplement or the California Administrative Register) [see [2], below].

There has been much confusion over which of these publications should be consulted to locate the most recent change to a regulation. Therefore, this discussion and the discussion in [2], below, include a brief historical coverage of each publication, as well as a discussion of the changes to the contents of these publications effective January 1, 1988.

The OAL sells subscriptions to the Code [Gov. Code § 11344.4]. A subscription may be obtained from the General Services Department, Publications Section, P.O. Box 1015, North Highland, California 95660.

[b] History

The original version of the California Code of Regulations was published in 1945 and has been continuously updated by amendments published in the California Regulatory Code Supplement. The C.C.R. was first authorized by the Legislature in 1941, and the original version was published in three bound volumes on March 22, 1945, and contained 23 titles. Among the first regulations published in the new Code were those of the State Codification Board. These regulations prescribed the form for filing regulations, and the form and time of printing regulations. It is significant to note that there is no mention of a procedure for external review of the regulations before filing or publication.

[c] Contents

The C.C.R. historically and currently includes all regulations promulgated by state agencies except those that have been incorporated by reference to extrinsic documents or publications [see 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 20 (incorporation by reference defined)].

Currently, there are 26 titles in the California Code of Regulations:

- Title 1, General Provisions.
- Title 2, Administration.
- Title 3, Food and Agriculture.
- Title 4, Business Regulations.
- Title 5, Education.
- Title 6, Reserved.
- Title 7, Harbors and Navigation.
- Title 8, Industrial Regulations.
- Title 9, Institutions.
- Title 10, Investments.
- Title 11, Law.
- Title 12, Military and Veterans Affairs.
- Title 13, Motor Vehicles.
- Title 14, Natural Resources.
- Title 15, Crime Prevention and Corrections.
- Title 16, Consumer Affairs.
- Title 17, Public Health.

- Title 18, Public Revenue.
- Title 19, Public Safety.
- Title 20, Public Utilities and Energy.
- Title 21, Public Works.
- Title 22, Social Security.
- Title 23, Waters.
- Title 24, Building Standards.
- Title 25, Housing and Community Development.
- Title 26, Toxics.

Regulations within each title are published in uninterrupted numerical sequence throughout the titles. Therefore, in a title with multiple articles, the first regulation in Article 1 would be Section 1. If Article 1 contained 97 sections, the first regulation in Article 2 would be section 98. Regulations published in the C.C.R. are cited first by title number and then by section. For example, "2 Cal. Code Reg. § 1" is the proper citation for Title 2 of the California Code of Regulations, Section 1.

The titles generally describe the contents of the regulations contained in them. To locate regulations within a general title governing a specific subject matter, it is best to select the general title that would be most likely to include the specific subject matter and attempt to narrow the scope of the subject matter down to the section level. Each title contains a descriptive table of contents at the beginning of each of its divisions. This table lists the individual divisions within the title. Regulations of individual agencies usually appear within these divisions. A precise regulation may usually be located by studying the table of contents for each division.

Because the Code is organized according to agency responsibility and not by subject matter, it is difficult to determine whether all regulations governing a particular matter have been located. Therefore, each agency's regulations throughout the 58 volumes must be manually examined in order to compile a complete listing of governing regulations by subject matter.

As a public service, OAL provides assistance in locating specific citations to regulations. However, a fee is charged for the tracing service.

Regulations governing the general subject matter of "Toxics," as defined by the state agencies in Title 26, however, do have a comprehensive index. Regulations of all agencies governing this subject matter--some 22 agencies--appear in this precursor to an comprehensive index to the entire C.C.R.

[2] The California Regulatory Code Supplement

[a] General Requirements

The California Regulatory Code Supplement (Supplement) is designed to provide updates of the California Code of Regulations (C.C.R.) [Gov. Code § 11344(b)]. It was formerly called the California Administrative Code Supplement or the California Administrative Register [see former Gov. Code § 11344(a)].

However, the updates have historically been, and continue to be, referred to as "Registers" when bound in volumes. Complete sets of Registers are located at the OAL and the State Library in Sacramento.

The Supplement formerly was provided on a periodic basis. The bound volumes were numbered sequentially as they were issued; therefore, the issue dates do not necessarily correspond to the year the supplements contained therein were first published. In 1953, the Supplement began to be published on a weekly basis [see Gov. Code § 11344(b) (requiring "weekly" updates)]. It is now cited by the week of publication.

The OAL sells subscriptions to the C.C.R. and the Supplement [Gov. Code § 11344.4]. A subscription may be obtained from the General Services Department, Publications Section, P.O. Box 1015, North Highland, California 95660.

[b] Contents

The Supplement is required to contain the following five types of information [Gov. Code § 11344(b)]:

- All amendments to the Code as filed with the secretary of state [Gov. Code § 11344(b)(1)]. The first amendments to the original Code were published on May 15, 1945, and have been published continuously since then.

- A summary of all regulations filed with the secretary of state in the previous week [Gov. Code § 11344(b)(2)].

- All regulation decisions issued in the previous week, detailing the reasons for disapproval of a regulation, the reasons for not filing an emergency regulation, and the reasons for repealing an emergency regulation [Gov. Code § 11344(b)(3)].

- A quarterly index of regulation decisions [Gov. Code § 11344(b)(3)].

- The governor's action in reviewing the OAL's disapprovals, decisions to repeal, the agency's request for review, the OAL's response thereto, and the decisions of the governor's office [Gov. Code § 11344(b)(4); see Gov. Code § 11349.7].

[3] Historical Research of Regulations

[a] History Notes

From the publication of the first Code to the present, as changes to the original version of a regulation were published, a historical place mark for each version was published as a "History Note." This note appears at the end of each regulation (section), and provides information regarding amendments, repeals, renumberings, the effective date of the various preceding versions of the regulation, and the effective date of the most current version.

For example, Register 2, dated November 16, 1945, includes the revisions to regulations published in Register 1 dated May 15, 1945, which contains the revisions to the original California Code of Regulations published on March 22, 1945, etc.

If a history note does not appear at the end of a regulation, it is probably because that particular regulation was adopted simultaneously with a number of other regulations. When the changes to a regulation have been adopted as part of a group of regulations in one regulatory action, the history note is not published for each regulation, but instead appears once at either the beginning or the end of the group. An integral part of the history note of each regulation adopted after 1980 is a citation to the statute or other source of law that empowers the agency to adopt it [Gov. Code § 11344(a), (d)]. This authority citation is the same one required to satisfy the "authority standard" for OAL approval of a regulation [Gov. Code § 11349.1; see § 472A.16[3]].

Also included in each history note for regulations adopted after 1980 is a "reference" citation. This is the same citation required to satisfy the "reference standard" for OAL approval of a regulation [Gov. Code § 11349.1(a)(5); see § 472A.16[3]].

[b] Method of Tracing a Regulation's History

"History notes" are the primary source for compiling a complete record of a regulation; the note is the only mechanism for tracing all actions taken regarding a regulation. By tracing through a regulation's history note, the text of any of its earlier versions can be located, since the history note traces the regulation all the way back to the text as originally adopted. For example, locating the text of a regulation first published in the original version of the Code in 1945 requires a search back to the first amendment to the Code as published on May 15, 1945.

This approach to tracing a regulation back to its origin is similar to searching for title to real property: the person searching must begin with the latest "recorded" version of the subject regulation as "recorded" by the OAL in the Code or its Supplement, and trace its publication history back through the history note or notes in prior Registers. If the history note in the current version of the Code does not trace the regulation back to its original date of adoption, it will cite to an earlier Register for a "prior history." That Register will continue the history from the last referenced date in the prior register to a given date, with the last entry (reading from the bottom up) in that Register indicating either the date of original adoption or citing a reference to an earlier Register to continue the search. It may also include the text of the regulation as it was published on the last date described by the note.

41-472A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472A.18

§ 472A.18 Requests for Review of Regulations

[1] Legislative Requests for Review of Codified Regulations

The OAL may initiate a priority review of any existing regulation on the request of any standing, select, or joint committee of the Legislature that believes the regulation does not meet APA standards [Gov. Code § 11349.7; see Gov. Code § 11349.1]. However, this type of review is infrequently used. For further discussion of priority review, see Chapter 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking .

[2] Public Requests for Review of Regulations

[a] Petition for Adoption, Amendment, or Repeal of a Regulation

Any interested person may petition a state agency to request the adoption, amendment, or repeal of a regulation, unless the right to petition for adoption of a regulation is restricted by statute to a designated group, or the form of procedure for such a petition is otherwise prescribed by statute [Gov. Code § 11340.6; see also Pub. Util. Code § 1708.5 (petition specific to Public Utitlities Commission to adopt, amend, or repeal regulation with agency-specific procedures)].

The petition must state, in clear and concise language [Gov. Code § 11340.6]:

- The substance or nature of the regulation, amendment, or repeal requested.
- The reason for the request.
- Reference to the authority of the state agency to take the action requested.

Counsel preparing a petition for adoption of a regulation, for example, should become familiar with the formal adoption requirements that the agency must satisfy [see §§ 472A.12 -472A.16]. Presumably, the inclusion of documentation that would help satisfy those requirements will increase the likelihood that the agency will grant the petition.

On receipt of a petition, the state agency must notify the petitioner in writing of receipt. Within 30 days, the agency must either send the petitioner a written denial of the petition, indicating why the agency has reached that decision on the merits of the petition, or schedule the matter for public hearing in accordance with APA notice and hearing requirements [Gov. Code § 11340.7(a); see Gov. Code §§ 11346.4-11346.8; see also §§ 472A.12, 472A.13]. The agency may grant or deny the petition in part, and may grant any other relief or take any other action that it determines is warranted. It must notify the petitioner in writing of that action [Gov. Code § 11340.7(b)].

State agency decisions on petitions, whether granting or denying the petitions, must be written and transmitted to the Office of Administrative Law for publication in the California Regulatory Notice Register at the earliest practicable date. The decision must identify the agency, the party submitting the petition, the provisions of the California Code of Regulations affected, the authority to take the requested action, the reasons supporting the agency determination, an agency contact person, and the right of interested persons to obtain copies of the petition from the agency [Gov. Code § 11340.7(d)]. For a form of petition for consideration, see § 472A.70.

Any interested person may request reconsideration of any part or all of an agency's decision on a petition, no later than 60 days after the date of the decision. The request for reconsideration must conform to the requirements applicable to an original petition [see Gov. Code § 11347], and must include the reason or reasons that the agency should reconsider its previous decision [Gov. Code § 11340.7(c)]. The agency must respond to the petition for reconsideration in the same manner as to an original petition [Gov. Code § 11340.7(c); see Gov. Code § 11340.7(a)].

[b] Request for OAL Determination Regarding Uncodified Regulation

Any person may notify the OAL of an agency's issuance, enforcement, or use of a guideline, criterion, bulletin, manual, instruction, order, standard of general application, or other rule that the agency has not formally adopted and filed with the secretary of state pursuant to California APA requirements [Gov. Code § 11349(b)]. The OAL may issue a determination as to whether that "underground regulation" is actually a regulation as defined in the APA [see Gov. Code § 11342.600 (regulation defined)], and thus subject to the APA's formal rulemaking requirements [Gov. Code § 11349(b)-(e)].

For further discussion of OAL determinations, see Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules, § 472.20 et seq.

§ 472A.19 Removal of Regulation on Repeal of Statutory Authority

If the statutory authority for a regulation is repealed or becomes ineffective or inoperative, the OAL will order the adopting agency to show cause why the regulation should not be repealed for lack of statutory authority [Gov. Code § 11349.8(a)]. On notification of the OAL's order to show cause, the agency has 30 days to respond. The agency's response to the OAL's order to show cause may contain reasons for why the regulation should not be repealed [see Gov. Code § 11349.8(b)].

If the authorizing statute is simultaneously repealed and substantially reenacted through a single piece of legislation, or subsequent legislation clearly shows a specific legislative intent to reenact the statute's substance, the regulation will not be repealed [Gov. Code § 11349.8(b)(1)]. If the statute is temporarily repealed, or rendered ineffective or inoperative by a provision of law that is effective only for a limited period, the regulation is similarly affected [Gov. Code § 11349.8(b)(2)]. If the statute being repealed, or becoming ineffective or inoperative by its own terms, is to remain in full force and effect regarding events occurring before the date of repeal or ineffectiveness, the regulation will have the same force and effect [Gov. Code § 11349.8(b)(3)].

After the 30-day response period terminates, the OAL will either inform the agency that the order to show cause has been withdrawn or notify the agency of its reasons for the repeal and of its intent to file a notice of repeal with the Secretary of State [Gov. Code § 11349.8(d)]. The agency has the right to appeal the OAL's decision to issue a notice of repeal [Gov. Code § 11349.8(e); see Gov. Code § 11349.9 (appeal procedure)].

§ 472A.30 Exemptions From the APA Rulemaking Provisions

[1] General Exemptions

The APA provisions regarding adoption of regulations do not apply to any rule that does not meet the APA definition of "regulation" [see Gov. Code § 11342.600 (regulation defined)], or to any regulation that is not required to be filed with the secretary of state [Gov. Code § 11346.1(a)].

For a discussion of these exemptions from the rulemaking provisions of the APA, see Chapter 472, Public Agency Rules, § 472.20 et seq. Further, as discussed in [2]-[3], below, some state agency rulemaking is fully or partially exempt from the provisions of Chapter 3.5 (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.), the rulemaking provisions of the APA [see Gov. Code § 11346 (requirements of APA may be expressly superseded or modified by statute); Voss v. Superior Court (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 900, 909-911, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 225 (marketing orders under the California Marketing Act of 1937 are exempt from the rulemaking requirements of APA under Food & Agric. Code § 14)].

[2] Agencies Specifically Exempted by Statute

The APA provides that the following agencies are exempt from most of its rulemaking provisions [Gov. Code § 11351(a)]:

- The Public Utilities Commission [see Cal. Const., art. XII; see Ch. 480, Public Utilities].

- The Division of Industrial Accidents and the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board regulations [see Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation].

Only the procedural regulations must be filed for public record and published [Gov. Code § 11351(a); see Gov. Code §§ 11343-11344.9].

However, these agencies must publish in the Notice Register those regulations that they adopt that must be filed with the secretary of state under Gov. Code § 11343 [Gov. Code § 11351(b); see Gov. Code § 11346.4(a)(5), and discussion in § 472A.12[5]].

[3] Actions Specifically Exempted by Statute

Actions that issue, deny, or waive water quality certifications as authorized [Water Code § 13160] are exempt from APA rule-making procedures [Gov. Code § 11352(a)]. Similarly, actions that issue, deny, or revoke waste discharge requirements, permits [Water Code §§ 13263, 13377], and waivers [Water Code § 13269] are exempt from APA rulemaking procedures [Gov. Code § 11352(b)].

[4] Emergency Regulations

Emergency regulations [Gov. Code § 11346.1(b); see § 472A.15] and regulations adopted pursuant to Fin. Code §§ 8054 and 3373 (conforming rights or obligations of state banks or savings and loans to those provided by federal law or regulation) are not true general exceptions to formal rulemaking requirements, but are subject only to limited requirements [Gov. Code § 11346.1(a); see Gov. Code §§ 11346.1, 11343.4, 11349.6].

But this exception for emergency regulations is only temporary, since the procedural requirements of the APA must be satisfied within 180 days from the date an emergency regulation becomes effective unless that time is extended [see Gov. Code § 11346.1(e); see § 472A.16[4]].

Chapter 472A AGENCY RULEMAKING PROCEDURES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Non-APA Rulemaking

41-472A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472A.31

§ 472A.31 Procedures for Rulemaking Actions Not Subject to Complete APA Coverage

[1] Under Agency Enabling Statutes

[a] Insurance Commissioner's Regulations

Procedures for rulemaking actions not subject to the APA may be found in the provisions of the particular statutory scheme that authorizes non-APA rulemaking--that is, in the statutes that establish the agency or that the agency is authorized to administer. For example, regulations of the commissioner of insurance that change the method of rating premiums for workers' compensation insurance are exempt from the APA [State Comp. Ins. Fund v. McConnell (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 330, 343, 294 P.2d 440] . The commissioner has statutory authority to approve or disapprove premium rates charged by California insurers for workers compensation insurance [Ins. Code § 11735, 11737]. Before disapproving rates, the commissioner is required to hold a hearing. The commissioner is also required to issue an order specifying why the rate was disapproved, and how it does not satisfy the requirements of the law [Ins. Code § 11737]. Reasonable notice is required [State Comp. Ins. Fund v. Maloney (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 33, 42, 262 P.2d 662] .

The commissioner of insurance is also authorized to adopt a plan for the apportionment of assigned risk drivers among insurers [Ins. Code § 11620(a)]. The plan may include premium rates for assigned risk automobile liability coverage [Ins. Code § 11624]. The Insurance Code requires only that changes to the plan must be made after a public hearing [Ins. Code § 11620(b)], and 60 days notice of those hearings must be published in newspapers of general circulation in San Francisco and in Los Angeles [Ins. Code § 11620(b)].

[b] Department of Transportation Regulations

The Department of Transportation is authorized to prescribe uniform standards and specifications for all official traffic control devices placed pursuant to the Vehicle Code. Prior consultation with local agencies and public hearings are required [Veh. Code § 21400]. The Department is also authorized to determine and publicize specifications for uniform types of devices to be placed upon a highway to warn traffic of work that is being performed on the highway. Prior notice and a public hearing is required [Veh. Code § 21400].

[c] Building Standards and Applicable Administrative Regulations

Rulemaking procedures for building standards (defined in Health & Safety Code § 18909), and for administrative regulations that apply directly to the implementation or enforcement of a building standard, are set out in the California Building Standards Law [see Health & Safety Code §§ 18900-18901] as well as the APA. Building standards and administrative regulations that apply directly to the implementation or enforcement of a building standard are not subject to the requirements of Gov. Code §§ 11349-11349.6, concerning OAL review of regulations [Gov. Code § 11356(a)], but those building standards must be adopted according to the APA procedures set out in Gov. Code §§ 11346-11347.3.

The OAL may not, however, disapprove those building standards nor refuse to publish any notice of proposed building standards if either has been approved by the California Building Standards Commission and submitted to the OAL [Gov. Code § 11356(b); see Health & Safety Code § 18935 (notice of proposed building standards or proposed administrative regulations that apply directly to the implementation or enforcement of a building standard)].

Building standards and administrative regulations that apply directly to the implementation or enforcement of a building standard must satisfy requirements set out in Health & Safety Code § 18930. The California Building Standards Commission reviews building standards and administrative regulations that apply directly to the implementation or enforcement of a building standard for compliance with procedural requirements and standards [Health & Safety Code §§ 18930, 18931, 18935, 18937; Plastic Pipe and Fittings Ass'n v. Cal. Bldg Stds Comm'n (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1390, 1404-1405, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 393 (Commission adopted Uniform Plumbing Code provisions but excluded provisions of Code allowing use of PEX pipes because of concerns about public health. Trade association challenged exclusion by writ of mandate in superior court. The Court of Appeal reversed the superior court grant of petition allowing challenge)]. With specified exceptions, building standards and administrative regulations that apply directly to the implementation or enforcement of a building standard do not become effective until 180 days after they are published in the triennial edition of the California Building Standards Code or one of its annual supplements [Health & Safety Code §§ 18938, 18942].

[d] Public Utilities Commission Regulations

Rulemaking procedures applicable to the Public Utilities Commission are set out in the APA and in regulations adopted by the Commission. The California Constitution authorizes the Public Utilities Commission to set rates and adopt rules "for the transportation of property by transportation companies" [Cal. Const., art. XII, § 4], and to fix rates and adopt rules for public utilities [Cal. Const., art. XII, § 6].

By regulation, the Commission has established its own rulemaking procedures [see 20 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 14.1-14.6]. The Commission's regulations define rulemaking, list the types of proceedings in which the Commission may elect to use rulemaking, provide for notice of rulemaking, provide for proposals, comments, and exceptions, and set form requirements for proposals, comments, and exceptions [see 20 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 14.1-14.6]. In addition, the procedural rules of the Commission are subject to certain APA requirements. Notices of proposed procedural rules of the Commission must be published in the California Regulatory Notice Register, and after adoption, must be filed with the secretary of state and published in the California Code of Regulations [Gov. Code § 11351].

For further discussion and form relating to the PUC, see Ch. 480, Public Utilities .

[e] Regulations of Division of Worker's Compensation

Rulemaking procedures applicable to the Division of Worker's Compensation are set out in the Labor Code and in the APA. The administrative director of the Division of Worker's Compensation has express authorization to adopt rules and regulations to enforce Division 4 of the Labor Code [Lab. Code § 5307.3; see Lab. Code §§ 3200-6002], which concerns workers' compensation and insurance, and is empowered to "do all things necessary or convenient in the exercise of any power or jurisdiction conferred upon them" by the Labor Code, including the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board and the administrative director [Lab. Code § 133].

Lab. Code § 5307.4 establishes the timing and required contents of notices of proposed rulemaking by the director, specifies to whom notice must be given, and provides an opportunity for interested persons to participate in the rulemaking process. Public hearings are required [Lab. Code § 5307.3]. Lab. Code § 5307.4 also provides for the dissemination of adopted rules and a statement of reasons after the adoption of the rules.

Regulations adopted by the Division are subject to all parts of the APA rulemaking provisions of Chapter 3.5 (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.), except for the judicial review provisions of Article 8 of that chapter (Gov. Code §§ 11350-11350.3) [Gov. Code § 11351(c)].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the workers' compensation proceedings, see Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation .

[f] Workers' Compensation Appeals Board Regulations

Rulemaking procedures applicable to the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board are set out in both the Labor Code and in the APA. The Board, a part of the Division of Worker's Compensation, is a tribunal of limited jurisdiction for the adjudication of workers' compensation matters [Cal. Const., art. XIV, § 4; Lab. Code §§ 5300-5301]. The Board has express authorization to adopt rules of practice and procedure [Lab. Code § 5307] and is empowered to "do all things necessary or convenient in the exercise of any power or jurisdiction conferred upon" the Board under the Labor Code [Lab. Code § 133]. Limited procedures apply to the Board's rulemaking.

A notice of proposed rulemaking regarding such rules must be published in the California Regulatory Notice Register [Gov. Code § 11351]. Public hearings are required [Lab. Code § 5307]. Procedural rules of the Board must be noticed in the California Regulatory Notice Register, filed with the secretary of state, and published in the California Code of Regulations [Gov. Code § 11351(a)].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the workers' compensation proceedings, see Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation .

[g] Financial Regulations

The Financial Code provides no opportunity for public involvement in the adoption of parity regulations adopted by the savings and loan commissioner or to certain Regulation O regulations adopted by the superintendent of banks. The savings and loan commissioner is authorized to adopt regulations to give state chartered savings and loan associations the same rights, powers, privileges, or duties as are extended by statute or regulation to federally chartered savings and loan associations doing business in this state [Fin. Code § 8054]. The superintendent of banks is authorized to adopt by regulation specified changes made to federal Regulation O [see 12 C.F.R. §§ 215.2, 215.3, 215.4, 215.5, 215.7, or 215.8] by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System [Fin. Code § 3373].

Those regulations are subject to APA provisions applicable to emergency regulations [see Gov. Code §§ 11346.1, 11343.4, 11349.6], but are not otherwise subject to the procedural requirements of the APA [Fin. Code § 8054]. The regulations become effective on filing with the secretary of state, unless a later date is specified by the commissioner [Gov. Code § 11343.4(b); Fin. Code § 3373(b)(3)]. No other rulemaking procedures are prescribed in the Financial Code for these regulations.

[h] Regulations of the Trustees of the California State University

Educ. Code § 89030.1 adopts a set of rulemaking procedures that are to be used by the Trustees of the California State University instead of the rulemaking procedures of Chapter 3.5 (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.), the rulemaking provisions of the APA [Educ. Code § 89030.1].

The specific statutory rulemaking procedures to be used include the following:

- Proposed regulations are reviewed for necessity and other criteria by the office of general counsel of the trustees (instead of the Office of Administrative law) [Educ. Code § 89030.1(a)].

- Notice of proposed regulation requirements are established (45 days notice prior to public hearing) [Educ. Code § 89030.1(b)].

- Opportunity for the public to comment at a public hearing on the proposed regulation is provided [Educ. Code § 89030.1(c)].

- Rulemaking file requirements are established (the Trustees must maintain the rulemaking file with specified items) [Educ. Code § 89030.1(d)].

- Transmittal upon adoption and publication requirements are established (the Trustees must transmit adopted regulations to the Secretary of States office for filing) [Educ. Code § 89030.1(e)].

[i] Regulations of the State Personnel Board

Gov. Code § 18211 exempts the State Personnel Board generally from the rulemaking procedure requirements of Chapter 3.5 (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.), the rulemaking provisions of the APA [Gov. Code § 18211], except for the following:

- Regulations relating to contracting out, which must follow APA rulemaking procedures [Gov. Code § 18216].

- Regulations concerning seven subjects listed in Gov. Code § 18215, which must follow some requirements of APA procedure [Gov. Code§ 18215(a)], but are exempt from other requirements [Gov. Code § 18215(b)].

The procedural requirements that the State Personnel Board are required to follow are designed to provide basic minimum procedural requirements [Gov. Code § 18210]. The term "regulations" is defined for purposes of State Personnel Board rulemaking, with four exemptions in Gov. Code § 18212.

Selection and examination regulations can be adopted without public notice and comment [Gov. Code § 18213]. Specific rulemaking procedures are set forth in Gov. Code § 18214.

For further discussion and forms relating to the State Personnel Board, see Ch. 118, Civil Service .

[j] Regulations of the Fish and Game Commission

The California Fish and Game Commission has the authority to adopt regulations under the Fish & Game Code, and is exempt under Fish & Game Code § 202 from the rulemaking requirements of the California Administrative Procedures Act that require specific time periods for adoption, amendment, or repeal of regulations, including Gov. Code §§ 11343.4, 11346.4, 11346.8, 11347.1 [Fish & Game Code § 202].

[k] California Industrial Welfare Commission

The California Industrial Welfare Commission (IWC) was delegated the authority under Labor Code § 517(a) to adopt wage orders relating to elections to adopt and repeal alternative workweek schedules. The IWC adopted Wage Order No. 16-2001 (Wage Order 16 [8 Cal. Code Reg. § 11160]) applicable to the construction industry that required new alternative workweek schedules elections when the number of employees working for 30 days increased above 50% since the prior election. The California court of Appeal overturned the decision of the superior court which had invalidated the wage order. The superior court gave three reasons for setting aside the wage order: 1) lack of required adequate statement of the basis for the rule; 2) lack of proper publication of the wage order; and 3) the wage order is unreasonable, arbitrary, capricious, and unfair because it contained an unworkable definition of a specific craft in the construction industry [Small v. Superior Court (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 222, 226-228, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 410] . The California court of Appeal held that the regulation was not invalid, and that the IWC adopted an adequate statement of the basis of the wage order [Small v. Superior Court (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 222, 233-234, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 410] . It also held that the party challenging lack of publication failed to satisfy the burden of proof required to prove that defense, and thus the presumption of official duty (publication was presumed) was sufficient to reject the lack of publication reason [Small v. Superior Court (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 222, 236-237, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 410] . Finally, the court of appeal rejected the third reason that the work unit definition was unreasonable and arbitrary. The court noted that the definition in question was adopted by a two thirds vote of the IWC, which contained both employer and employee board memebrs, that the definition was supported by substantial evidence, and that the IWC was delegated the authority to make policy decisions of this type [Small v. Superior Court (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 222, 237-238, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 410] .

[2] Nonstatutory Procedures

When a quasi-legislative rulemaking action is exempt from all or a part of the procedural requirements of the APA [see discussion in § 472A.11 et seq.], and rulemaking procedures for the action have not been established by statute [see [1], above], an agency may choose its rulemaking procedures.

A quasi-legislative rulemaking action is not subject to procedural requirements imposed by due process of law; those requirements apply only to "adjudicative" actions [Franchise Tax Board v. Superior Court (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 538, 549, 225 P.2d 905 ; Rivera v. Division of Industrial Welfare (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 576, 587, 71 Cal. Rptr. 739 ; see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies , for detailed discussion of due process requirements applicable to administrative agencies].

Nonetheless, in conducting non-APA rulemaking, an agency must follow certain principles that have arisen from court decisions on rulemaking. For example, the procedures used must be fair [see Rivera v. Division of Industrial Welfare (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 576, 587, 71 Cal. Rptr. 739] , and reasonable [see State Comp. Ins. Fund v. Maloney (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 33, 42, 262 P.2d 662] .

An agency may not use a rulemaking proceeding as a facade for a private decision [see California Optometric Assn. v. Lackner (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 500, 510-511, 131 Cal. Rptr. 744] .

Furthermore, an identified body of evidence on which the agency based its quasi-legislative act may be required to permit effective judicial review [see California Optometric Assn. v. Lackner (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 500, 510-511, 131 Cal. Rptr. 744] .

Finally, principles of fairness may require a public hearing before a state agency adopts a quasi-legislative act [see Stauffer Chemical Co. v. Air Resources Board (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 789, 794, 180 Cal. Rptr. 550] .

§ 472A.32 Elective Use of APA Procedures for Non-APA Rulemaking

Administrative agencies have wide latitude in fashioning procedures and pursuing their methods of inquiry [see California Asso. of Nursing Homes, etc. v. Williams (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 800, 813, 85 Cal. Rptr. 735] . An agency may choose to use APA procedures in its non-APA rulemaking, unless otherwise provided by law [Gov. Code § 11343.8]. Those procedures provide an opportunity for substantial public participation [see § 472A.13].

On the request of a state agency, the OAL may file with the secretary of state and may publish in any manner it believes proper, any regulation or order of repeal of a regulation not required to be filed [Gov. Code § 11343.8].

Thus, all quasi-legislative regulations adopted by state agencies may be filed with the secretary of state and published in the California Code of Regulations.

§ 472A.33 Public Records and Open Meetings

[1] Public Records Act

The APA specifically provides that public records, including reports, documentation, and other materials, related to a proposed action taken under the APA are available to the public upon request [Gov. Code § 11346.5(b)]. Furthermore, the California Public Records Act (Gov. Code §§ 6250-6267) requires any public record on which a non-APA rulemaking is based to be made available for public inspection [Gov. Code § 6253.4] and copying [Gov. Code § 6253], unless it is exempt from disclosure under express provisions of that Act or the public interest in withholding the particular record clearly outweighs the public interest served by its disclosure [Gov. Code § 6255].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the California Public Records Act, see Chapter 470C, Public Records Act .

[2] Open Meetings Legislation

The Bagley-Keene Open Meeting Act (Gov. Code § 11120 et seq.) requires that meetings regarding non-APA rulemaking conducted by a multi-member state body must be "open and public," except when a closed session isspecifically authorized [Gov. Code § 11123]. Notice of those meetings must be given in advance of the meeting to any person who requests notice in writing [Gov. Code § 11125(a)].

Writings regarding non-APA rulemaking that are distributed to a majority of the members of a state body for discussion at a public meeting of that body are public records and must be made available for public inspection [Gov. Code § 11125.1].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the agley-Keene Open Meeting Act and open meetings legislation generally, see Ch. 470B, Public Agency Meetings .

41-472A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472A.43

§ 472A.43 Decisions

[1] Generally

Necessity that local agency comply with any procedural requirements made applicable by local charter. Conroy v. Wolff (1950) 34 Cal. 2d 745, 748, 214 P.2d 529

Local legislative body is not empowered to impose procedural requirements on local agency in contravention of local charter. McDonald's Systems of California, Inc. v. Board of Permit Appeals (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 525, 537, 119 Cal. Rptr. 26

Inconsistency between two regulations of same agency does not raise presumption of implicit repeal of earlier regulation unless inconsistency is not otherwise reconcilable. California Drive-In California Drive-In Restaurant Asso. v. Clark (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 287, 292, 140 P.2d 657

Exemption from general procedural requirements [Gov. Code § 11343 et. seq.] for regulation relating to internal management [Gov. Code § 11342 [repealed 2000]] means regulation relating to accounting techniques and similar matters, not matters involving important public interest. Poschman v. Dumke (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 932, 943, 107 Cal. Rptr. 596

Power to adopt regulations necessarily includes power to amend them. Hatch v. Ward (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 883, 887, 168 P.2d 22

Party challenging validity of administrative rule bears burden of stating and establishing grounds of its challenge; agency is not required to anticipate and refute objections to rule. Western Oil & Gas Assn. v. Monterey Bay Unified Air Pollution Control Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 408, 427 n.20, 261 Cal. Rptr. 384, 777 P.2d 157

Agency does not declare statute unconstitutional and does not refuse to enforce it by complying with legislative directive to implement statute to extent it does not conflict with federal law. Reese v. Kizer (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 996, 998, 1002, 251 Cal. Rptr. 299, 760 P.2d 495

[2] Emergency Regulations

Question whether emergency exists to justify adoption of emergency regulation is primarily addressed to agency's discretion. Schenley Affiliated Brands Corp. v. Kirby (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 177, 194-195, 98 Cal. Rptr. 609

Court is empowered to review finding of emergency and to invalidate emergency regulation if so-called emergency was not crisis situation. Poschman v. Dumke (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 932, 941, 942, 107 Cal. Rptr. 596

Agency's repeated or habitual use of emergency adoption procedure is abuse of power and ground for invalidating so-called emergency regulation. Poschman v. Dumke (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 932, 941, 107 Cal. Rptr. 596 ; California Asso. of Nursing Homes, etc. v. Williams (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 800, 812, 812 n. 16, 84 Cal. Rptr. 590

[3] Hearings

Constitutional due process issue is not raised by interested parties' claim of lack of fair or reasonable opportunity to respond to agency staff report prior to hearing when agency acting in quasi-legislative capacity. Western Oil & Gas Assn. v. Air Resources Board (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 502, 525, 208 Cal. Rptr. 850, 691 P.2d 606

Hearing is not generally constitutionally required before agency may take legislative action. Ford Dealers Ass'n v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 347, 364 n.10, 185 Cal. Rptr. 453, 650 P.2d 328 ; San Diego Bldg. Contractors Assn. v. City Council (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 205, 211, 118 Cal. Rptr. 146, 529 P.2d 570 (hearing as generally required only in adjudicative proceeding); Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 538, 549, 225 P.2d 905 ; California Citizens Band Assn. v. United States (9th Cir. [Cal] 1967) 375 F.2d 43, 50 , cert. denied, 389 U.S. 844, 88 S. Ct. 96, 19 L. Ed. 2d 112

Procedural requirements for legislative action are found in governing statutes rather than constitutional guaranties of due process. Rivera v. Division of Industrial Welfare (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 576, 587, 71 Cal. Rptr. 739

Due process requires compliance with any statutory requirement for hearing. People v. Johnson (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 827, 833 , 109 P.2d 770

Statutory limitations on production of evidence and opportunity to be heard at legislative hearing do not offend due process. Franchise Tax Bd. v. Superior Court (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 538, 550, 225 P.2d 905 ; Ray v. Parker (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 275, 304, 101 P.2d 665

Agency is entitled to act on basis of evidence gathered and summarized by employees rather than evidence agency members personally received in hearing. Schecter v. County of Los Angeles (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 391, 397, 65 Cal. Rptr. 739 ; Vita-Pharmacals, Inc. v. Bd. of Pharmacy (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 826, 831, 243 P.2d 890

Interested persons are not entitled to cross examine witnesses in legislative hearing. Rivera v. Division of Industrial Welfare (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 576, 590, 71 Cal. Rptr. 739

Opportunity to cross examine witnesses is procedural feature agencies should be encouraged to adopt although not legally required to adopt. Emby Foods, Inc. v. Paul (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 687, 703, 41 Cal. Rptr. 365

[4] Notice Requirements

Agency is not confined to adopting regulation described in notice of hearing but is empowered to adopt different regulation dealing with subject of proposed regulation. Schenley Affiliated Brands Corp. v. Kirby (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 177, 193, 98 Cal. Rptr. 609

[5] Record of Hearing

Agency is required to make record of evidence received at legislative hearing and forming basis for legislative action. California Asso. of Nursing Homes, etc. v. Williams (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 800, 810-812, 84 Cal. Rptr. 590

Agency is not required to include in record evidence of type any interested person could find by resorting to standard research sources such as libraries but as required to include evidence produced by agency investigators or other governmental agents and not generally available. Rivera v. Division of Industrial Welfare (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 576, 588-590, 71 Cal. Rptr. 739

Record is not required to include information which law forbids agency to disclose. City & County of San Francisco v. Superior Court (1951) 38 Cal. 2d 156, 162, 238 P.2d 581

41-472A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472A.44

§ 472A.44 Attorney General Opinions

[1] Interpretation of Government Code Procedural Requirements

Substantial compliance with Government Code procedural requirements. 48 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 117 (1966)

Form adopted for regular use as regulation. 25 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 241 (1955)

Regulation is valid if not arbitrary or in excess of scope of authority. 20 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 120 (1952)

Regulation is required to conform to legislative intent. 11 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 105 (1948)

[2] Applicability of Government Code Procedural Requirements

Before allowing claim filed by local agency for reimbursement of state-mandated costs, Commission on State Mandates is required to determine if claim meets either constitutional definition of "costs mandated by the state" under Gov. Code § 17514 or Rev. & Tax. Code § 2207 or 2207.5 [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 2207, 2207.5 were repealed by Stats. 1989, ch. 589, effective January 1, 1990]. 68 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 244 (1985)

Department of Health Services. 67 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 50, 53-54 (1984)

State agency conducting rule-making proceeding is prohibited from establishing and enforcing deadline that is prior to rule-making hearing by which written comments must be submitted for consideration by agency [former Gov. Code §§ 11346.5(a)(7) (now see Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(9)), 11346.8]. 64 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 312 (1981)

When agency has adopted administrative regulation in accordance with procedural steps specified in old statute governing such procedures but, before agency submits regulation for filing with Secretary of State, new statutory procedures replace old ones, procedural steps completed by agency prior to new statute's operative date are controlled by old statute and not required to be repeated; however, when new statute imposes new procedural step, regulation-adopting agency ts required to comply with new step when requiring such compliance would not render previously completed steps invalid. 63 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 326 (1980)

Administrative regulations are permitted to be substantially changed during adoption process after public hearings have been held and prior to issuance, as long as they relate directly to same subject or issue. 63 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 143 (1980)

☐ Provide notice to the public of the proposed regulation [see § 472A.11].

☐ Accept public comment on the proposed regulation [see § 472A.12].

☐ Hold a public hearing, if requested by any interested person [see § 472A.12[1]].

☐ Review public comments submitted in writing or at hearing [see § 472A.12[2]].

☐ Submit regulation, final statement of reasons, digest and rulemaking record to OAL for review [see § 472A.15].

[2] Identify the Procedures That an Agency Must Follow Under the APA for "Emergency" Regulations

☐ Prepare written statement containing specific facts showing need for immediate action [see § 472A.14].

☐ Submit proposed regulation and statement to OAL for review [see § 472A.14].

[3] Consider the Standards Used by the OAL When Reviewing Regulations

☐ For nonemergency regulations, the completeness of the rulemaking file [see § 472A.15[2]].

☐ For emergency regulations, whether the regulation is necessary for the immediate preservation of public peace, health and safety, or general welfare [see § 472A.15[4]].

☐ Determine compliance with six substantive standards [see § 472A.15[3]].

- ☐ Necessity [see § 472A.15[3][b]].

- ☐ Reference [see § 472A.15[3][f]].
- ☐ Nonduplication [see § 472A.15[3][g]].

[4] Ascertain the Consequences of OAL Approval of a Regulation

☐ OAL submits approved regulation to Secretary of State for filing [see § 472A.15[6]].

☐ Regulation becomes effective 30 days after filing [see § 472A.15[6]].

☐ Emergency regulation remains valid for 120 days unless agency formally adopts it [see § 472A.14].

☐ OAL publishes the regulation in the California Code of Regulations [see § 472A.15[6]].

[5] Ascertain the Consequences of OAL Disapproval

☐ OAL returns regulation to the agency within 30 days after submission [see § 472A.15[6]].

☐ OAL sends the agency a written decision stating reasons for disapproval [see § 472A.15[6]].

☐ Agency may resubmit disapproved regulation within 120 days without notice and hearing [see § 472A.15[6]].

[6] Ascertain What Procedures Apply to Rulemaking Actions Not Subject to the APA

☐ Any procedures required by the statute governing the agency [see § 472A.31[1]].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.10

§ 472B.10 Governing Law

The procedures used by most public agencies for rulemaking are set out in that part of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA) entitled "Administrative Regulations and Rulemaking," that is, Gov. Code § 11340 et seq..

The provisions of Gov. Code § 11340 et seq. collectively comprise Chapter 3.5 of Part I (State Departments and Agencies) of Division 3 (Executive Department) of Title 2 (State Government) of the Government Code. This law is referred to hereafter for convenience as "Chapter 3.5."

Together with Chapter 4 ("Office of Administrative Hearings," Gov. Code § 11370 et seq.), Chapter 4.5 ("Administrative Adjudication: General Provisions," Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.), and Chapter 5 ("Administrative Adjudication: Formal Hearings," Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), these provisions comprise and may be cited as the Administrative Procedure Act; hereafter the APA) [see Gov. Code § 11370].

As discussed below, various other statutes or constitutional provisions may apply to authorize and otherwise govern the rulemaking of specific agencies.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.11

§ 472B.11 Decision to Seek Judicial Review of Regulations

[1] General Requirements

Because an administrative regulation is a product of legislation by an administrative agency, acting either pursuant to authorization from the Legislature or on the basis of direct authorization in the California Constitution to exercise limited legislative power, a regulation has the force and effect of law [see Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules , for a discussion of an agency's quasi-legislative authority]. Thus, the validity of a regulation may be tested in a judicial proceeding by the same method used to test the enforceability of a statute. The discussion in this chapter relates exclusively to challenges to regulations in the California courts, with primary coverage of judicial review of regulations promulgated by state agencies under the California Administrative Procedure Act (APA) [see Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.].

In order to obtain judicial review pursuant to an action for declaratory relief [see § 472B.13[2]], that action must be brought before formal proceedings are instituted to enforce the regulation. After enforcement proceedings have begun, that remedy is no longer available, because the doctrine of exhaustion of administrative remedies then applies [see Tushner v. Griesinger (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 599, 605, 341 P.2d 416 ; see § 472B.14[4]]. An attorney who represents businesses or individuals may save his or her clients time and trouble by attacking a regulation's validity before it is enforced against the clients [see Bolz & Garcia, The Other Side of Administrative Law, Cal. Lawyer 47, 52 (Nov. 1987)]. This chapter briefly addresses challenges to a regulation's validity during enforcement proceedings.

For a general discussion of administrative enforcement proceedings, however, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , et seq., and Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.
