If the regulation that a person wishes to have reviewed is not being enforced, that is, it is not being applied by the agency to the objecting party as part of formal adjudicatory proceedings, the party may seek the preenforcement remedy of declaratory relief, often coupled with a petition for injunction or writ of mandate [see § 472B.13].

In contrast, if the regulation is already being enforced, the party challenging the regulation may only do so as a defense during the administrative hearing; judicial review of that hearing is limited to a petition for administrative mandamus [

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; see § 472B.15].

As discussed in [2], below, several alternatives to judicial review may be used to accomplish the same result. These alternatives include a petition to the agency for amendment or repeal of the regulation [Gov. Code §§ 11340.6, 11340.7; see [2][a], below], priority review of the regulation by the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), [Gov. Code § 11349.7; see [2][b], below], and challenge to the regulation during an action initiated by the agency to enforce the regulation [Gov. Code §§ 11500-11528; see [2][c], below]. If the regulation has not been formally adopted pursuant to the California APA, it may be challenged in a request for OAL determination, and subsequently be reviewed by a court [Gov. Code § 11340.5(b); see [2][d], below].

[2] Alternatives to Judicial Review

[a] Petition for Amendment or Repeal

Any interested person may petition a state agency, requesting it to amend or repeal a regulation [Gov. Code § 11340.6]. For discussion and an example of a petition requesting amendment or repeal of a regulation, see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures, § 472A.70.

The petition for amendment or repeal of a regulation may be made in the nature of a settlement offer, that is, it may be used to persuade the agency to take the desired action voluntarily. Informal consultations with the agency, when possible, are useful to determine in advance what theagency's response will be. That determination will be a factor in assessing the utility of this type of petition in the particular case.

[b] Priority Review

The "priority review" procedure authorized by Gov. Code § 11349.7 is used infrequently. That section requires the OAL, on the request of a standing, select, or joint committee of the California Legislature, to review a regulation that the committee believes does not meet California APA standards [Gov. Code § 11349.7; see Gov. Code § 11340.7 (regulatory standards)]. The OAL must notify interested persons, publish in the California Regulatory Notice Register [see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures] the fact that a priority review has been requested, and consider all written comments submitted by interested persons as well as the information contained in the rulemaking record [Gov. Code § 11349.7]. The OAL will then determine if the regulation should be repealed. It must reach a decision within 90 calendar days of the receipt of the written request [Gov. Code § 11349.7].

If the OAL decides that the regulation should be repealed, it must issue an order to show cause to the agency. The agency is given 60 days to respond, and the public is also given the opportunity for further comment. The 60-day time limit may be extended by the OAL for a maximum additional period of 30 days [Gov. Code § 11349.7(a), (b)]. The OAL must review and consider all information submitted by the agency and the public, and must reach a final determination within 60 days of receiving the agency's response. If a determination is not reached within 60 days, the regulation will be deemed to meet the standards set forth in Gov. Code § 11349.1 [Gov. Code § 11349.7(c)]. If the OAL determines that a regulation fails to meet the standards, it must prepare and make public a statement of reasons, transmit an order of repeal to the secretary of state for filing [Gov. Code § 11349.7(c)], and publish the order of repeal in the California Regulatory Code Supplement [Gov. Code § 11349.7(e)]. However, the governor may overrule the decision to repeal. Notice of that action must be published in the California Regulatory Notice Register [Gov. Code § 11349.7(d); see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures]. The entire process, beginning with the lodging of the request with the OAL, will take from five to seven months.

[c] Defense of Regulation's Invalidity

A person wishing to challenge a regulation may wait until the agency brings an action to enforce the regulation and then raise invalidity of the regulation as a defense [see § 472B.16]. It is less risky, however, for a person, such as a licensee, to challenge a regulation before it is specifically applied to that person in an enforcement proceeding. Using an enforcement proceeding to challenge a regulation subjects the person to possible disciplinary action, such as denial or suspension of a license or even criminal prosecution [Chas. L. Harney, Inc. v. Contractors' Bd. (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 561, 564, 247 P.2d 913 ; see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , et seq., for coverage of adjudicatory hearings].

[d] Review of Informal Rules

In California (unlike the federal system) [see, e.g., 5 U.S.C. §§ 552(a)(1)(D), 552(a)(2)(B), 553(b)(3)(A), (d)(2) (exemption from the Federal APA's procedural requirements for "interpretive rules" and "policy statements")], when an agency adopts a rule, guideline, or policy that meets the APA definition of a regulation [Gov. Code § 11342.600 (regulation defined)] without following the APA procedures and is not statutorily exempt from the APA requirements, the regulation is not lawfully adopted and may be challenged on that basis.

Prior to 1983, the only way to challenge such a regulation was by judicial review. Since 1983, however, a specific, inexpensive alternative to judicial review is available in the form of a "request for determination" directed to the OAL under Gov. Code § 11340.5 [see Bolz & Garcia, The Other Side of Administrative Law, Cal. Lawyer 47, 50-52 (Nov. 1987)]. For coverage of the procedure and requirements for filing a request for determination, see Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules, § 472B.20 et seq.

An OAL determination that the regulation is invalid is not binding on state agencies, but it gives significant support to a court challenge. Moreover, such a determination from the OAL usually obviates going to court at all; agencies generally reexamine the challenged rule and either initiate a rulemaking proceeding or resolve the problem to the regulated party's satisfaction [see Bolz & Garcia, The Other Side of Administrative Law, Cal. Lawyer 47, 52 (Nov. 1987)]. If the OAL determines that the regulation is valid, any interested person may obtain judicial review of the determination by filing a written petition requesting that the OAL determination be modified or set aside. The petition must be filed with the court within 30 days after the date the determination is published [Gov. Code § 11340.5(d)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency RulemakingRule Application & InterpretationBinding EffectAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingRule Application & InterpretationValidityAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingState ProceedingsAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesDeclaratory JudgmentsAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesInjunctive ReliefAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityExhaustion of RemediesAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityStanding

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.12

§ 472B.12 Preliminary Activities

[1] Review of Regulatory Code Supplement

When judicial review of a formally adopted administrative regulation [see § 472B.1[1], below], or defense of such an action [see § 472B.10[2][c]] is contemplated, a preliminary review of the actions preceding its adoption is usually necessary. If the regulation has been duly adopted by an agency of the State of California ("State agency" does not include judicial or legislative bodies for purposes of the APA) [Gov. Code § 11340.9(a)], the Office of Administrative Law (OAL), which is the control agency, will have a record of the action [see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures , for a discussion of the OAL and its procedures].

Actions taken by the OAL in connection with the regulation may be traced through the California Regulatory Code Supplement [see Gov. Code § 11344(b)]. This publication was formerly called the "California Administrative Register" [see former Gov. Code. Code § 11344(a)], and the bound volumes are still referred to as "registers" [see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures , for a discussion of the procedure for tracing the history of action on a regulation].

At first glance, this published record appears to contain nothing more than a brief reference to the regulations filed with the secretary of state and the text of decisions of disapproval [see Gov. Code § 11349.3(a)] of regulations by the OAL. A search of the Supplement prior to the notice of the proceeding objected to, however, may produce a decision of disapproval of an earlier attempt by the agency to adopt the same regulation in a somewhat different form. The existing regulation may have been adopted through a "resubmittal" or through an entirely different rulemaking proceeding. The prior disapproval may have raised issues much like those being considered as the basis for judicial review. If so, the discussion in the notice of disapproval could provide helpful information and legal analysis.

[2] Review of the Rulemaking Record

[a] Availability of Agency Files

As with the appeal from the judgment of a court or the judicial review of an administrative trial-type hearing, the record of the rulemaking proceeding must be analyzed as part of the challenging or defending party's decisionmaking process. State agencies are required to maintain a file of each rulemaking proceeding that will be deemed to be the record for that rulemaking proceeding [Gov. Code § 11347.3(a)].

Public agencies not subject to the APA will also maintain records of their rulemaking proceedings, although the contents of those records may not be prescribed by state statute, local ordinance, or internal rule. Those records must reflect the "body of evidence upon which the agency acted," which is deemed to be indispensable to judicial review [California Optometric Assn. v. Lackner (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 500, 510-511, 131 Cal. Rptr. 744] .

[b] Method of Requesting Files

Prior to litigation, the rulemaking record may be obtained through a request pursuant to the California Public Records Act [Gov. Code §§ 6250-6267; for discussion, see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act]. After the commencement of litigation, the record may be obtained through discovery procedures. Gov. Code § 11347.3(d) provides that the agency file of the rulemaking proceeding must be made available by the agency to the public and to the courts in connection with the review of the regulation. Agencies are required to maintain rulemaking files, or to transmit the rulemaking files to the state archives, after the agencies have received the rulemaking files form the Office of Administrative Law [Gov. Code § 11347.3(e), (f)].

This unqualified availability appears to support requests for the record under the California Public Records Act, notwithstanding the litigation exception of Gov. Code § 6254(b). That section provides that records pertaining to pending litigation to which the public agency is a party or claims made pursuant to the California Tort Claims Act [see Gov. Code § 810 et seq. (California Tort Claims Act)] are exempt until the litigation is finally adjudicated or otherwise settled [Gov. Code § 6254(b)].

The file of the rulemaking proceeding that resulted in the adoption of the regulation objected to should be requested, together with the record of any previous, unsuccessful rulemaking proceeding concerning the same specific subject matter.

[c] Purpose of Review

The record of a state agency rulemaking subject to the APA should be carefully scrutinized in light of the substantive standards set forth in Gov. Code § 11349.1 and the procedural requirements of the APA [see 1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 10-120, discussed in Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures , for interpretations and applications of these rulemaking provisions of the APA by the OAL]. In addition, that scrutiny in all cases should extend to the other nonstatutory standards of review, discussed in § 472B.15. Although in a declaratory relief action [Gov. Code § 11350; see § 472B.13[2]], courts look for substantial compliance with the APA [Gov. Code § 11350(a)], each and every failure to comply with the provisions of the APA should be noted. If a sufficient number of minor failures to comply with the APA are identified, the agency (or the court) may deem that the record reflects a "substantial failure to comply with the provisions" of the APA within the meaning of Gov. Code § 11350(a).

The statements in the record pertaining to reasons for adopting the regulation should be measured against the factual information in the record. In non-APA proceedings, the equivalent information (reasons versus facts in the record) should be evaluated.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingFormal RulemakingAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingState ProceedingsAdministrative LawGovernmental InformationFreedom of InformationDefenses & ExemptionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawGovernmental InformationFreedom of InformationDisclosure RequirementsRecord RequestsAdministrative LawJudicial

ReviewGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewAdministrative RecordDisclosure & Discovery

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.13

§ 472B.13 Preenforcement Judicial Review of Rulemaking

[1] Remedies, Forum, and Venue

The choice of remedies for the party seeking preenforcement judicial review of a section of the California Code of Regulations seldom varies. The primary remedy is a declaratory judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1060-1062.5] that the regulation is invalid [Gov. Code § 11350; see [2], below]. An action for declaratory relief is cumulative with other remedies [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1060, 1062].

Therefore, the initiating document should be a complaint for declaratory relief, which may be combined with a petition for a writ of mandamus, and for injunction [see [2]-[4], below]. In order to bring any judicial action, the prerequisites for judicial review must be met, as discussed in § 472B.14.

The superior court is the proper forum for the judicial challenge of a regulation [Gov. Code § 11350(a)]. The venue of the action is determined in accordance with the rules ordinarily applied in civil actions [Gov. Code § 11350(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 392-402]. Under those rules, venue is dependent on the location of the agency's principal office or the location of an office of the attorney general [Gov. Code § 11350(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 401].

[2] Declaratory Relief

[a] General Requirements

The specific remedy provided for challenge to a regulation prior to enforcement is the action for declaratory relief under Gov. Code § 11350. That section provides that any interested person may obtain a judicial declaration regarding the validity of any regulation, with certain exceptions [see [b], below], by bringing an action for declaratory relief in the superior court in accordance with the Code of Civil Procedure [Gov. Code § 11350(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1060-1062.5]. Gov. Code § 11350 is, in effect, an amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 1060, adding to the cases described in the latter section in which a person may sue for declaratory relief [County of Los Angeles v. State Dep't of Public Health (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 425, 443-444, 322 P.2d 968] .

It allows a person who is potentially subject to an administrative regulation to determine before committing himself or herself to a course of action that might be in conflict with the regulation whether the regulation is valid and must be followed [K. & W. Pharmacy, Inc. v. State Dep't of Social Welfare (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 139, 141, 79 Cal. Rptr. 598] . The right to a judicial determination is not affected by the challenging party's failure either to file a petition for adoption, amendment, or repeal of the regulation [see Gov. Code §§ 11340.6, 11340.7(a); see also Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures], or to seek reconsideration of the agency's decision on a filed petition [Gov. Code § 11350(a); see Gov. Code § 11347.1(c)].

An example of proper use of an action for declaratory relief is to challenge the validity of an agency policy or regulation [see, e.g., Agnew v. State Board of Equalization (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 310, 319-320, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 423, 981 P. 2d 52 (holding that policy of the State Board of Equalization, not adopted as regulation, relating to payment of accrued interest on tax deficiency before considering refund claim, may be reviewed through declaratory relief action under Gov. Code § 11350(a) without exhausting administrative remedies before Board); Slocum v. State Bd. of Equalization (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 969, 974-976, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627 (SBE interpretation contained in reassessment rule [SBE Rule 139] entitled to some but not substantial deference, and rule was held to be invalid because it was inconsistent with the authorizing statute [Rev & T. Code § 170(a)(2)], and the California constitution [Cal. Const. Art. 13, § 15])].

An action for declaratory relief may not be used to review an adjudicative order or decision [State of California v. Superior Court of Orange County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 237, 251, 115 Cal. Rptr. 497, 524 P.2d 1281]. For discussion of the appropriate remedy for an adjudicative action, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq. For an example of a complaint for declaratory relief under Gov. Code § 11350, see § 472B.50, below.

For general discussion and forms relating to civil actions for declaratory relief generally, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

[b] Exceptions

An action for declaratory relief under Gov. Code § 11350 may not be used to challenge any regulation adopted by the Public Utilities Commission, the Division of Industrial Accidents, or the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board [Gov. Code § 11351(a)]. Furthermore, since the term "state agency" as used in the California Administrative Procedure Act does not include an agency in the judicial or legislative departments of the state government [Gov. Code § 11340.9(a)], the validity of a regulation adopted by an agency in the judicial or legislative branches of the state government may not be tested by an action for declaratory relief.

Finally, an action for declaratory relief may not be used to test the validity of a rule that is not deemed to be a "regulation" according to the California Administrative Procedure Act definition. That definition expressly excludes rules that relate only to the internal management of a state agency, legal rulings of counsel issued by the franchise tax board or state board of equalization, or any form prescribed by a state agency or any instructions relating to the use of the form [Gov. Code § 11342.600 (regulation defined); Gov. Code § 11340.9(b), (c), (d); see Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules].

[c] Grounds for Declaration of Invalidity

The APA provides that a regulation challenged pursuant to an action for declaratory relief may be declared to be invalid for any one or more of the following reasons [Gov. Code § 11350(a), (b); see § 472B.15, for discussion of judicially established standards that predate the APA standards]:

- It substantially fails to comply with the provisions of the APA.

- In the case of an emergency regulation or order to repeal [Gov. Code §§ 11346.1, 11349.6], the facts recited in the statement do not constitute an emergency within the provisions of Gov. Code § 11346.1 [ see Ch. 472A].

- The agency's determination that the regulation is reasonably necessary to effectuate the purpose of the statute, court decision, or other provision of law that is being implemented, interpreted, or made specific by the regulation is not supported by substantial evidence [see Gov. Code §§ 11349(a), 11349.1(a)(1)].

- The agency declaration that a regulation will not have significant adverse economic impact upon small businesses is not supported by substantial evidence in the record [Gov. Code § 11350(b)(2)].

In any action for declaratory relief brought with respect to a regulation, the court will not consider the approval of the regulation by the OAL [see Gov. Code § 11349.3(a)], or the governor's overruling of a decision of the OAL disapproving the regulation [Gov. Code § 11350(c); see Gov. Code § 11349.3(b)].

An agency policy that is not adopted in a formal regulation and does not constitute a long standing-agency interpretation is reviewable by the court independently as a question of law without deference to the agency interpretation and without following the more limited standard of review applicable to formally adopted regulations [Agnew v. State Board of Equalization (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 310, 321-322, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 423, 981 P. 2d 52] .

See generally Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures .

[d] Determination of Validity of Disapproved or Repealed Regulation

Any interested person may bring a declaratory relief action in the superior court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060], to determine the validity of a regulation that the OAL has disapproved or ordered repealed [Gov. Code § 11350.3; see Gov. Code §§ 11349.7 (priority review of regulations), 11349.3 (approval or disapproval of regulations), 11349.6 (approval or disapproval of emergency regulations)]. Presumably, an "interested person" could be a person who would have benefited or suffered a detriment by reason of repeal or OAL disapproval, but it could also include the agency that submitted the regulation for approval. The court may declare the regulation valid if it determines that the regulation meets the six substantive standards used by the OAL [see Gov. Code § 11349.1(a); see also Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures] and that the agency has complied with the provisions of the APA. If the court makes such a determination, it may order the OAL to file the regulation with the Secretary of State immediately [Gov. Code § 11350.3]. For an example of a complaint for declaratory relief under Gov. Code § 11350.3, see § 472B.61, and Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

[3] Writ of Mandate

A petition for writ of mandamus (also called writ of mandate) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1084] under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1084-1097 is often coupled with the complaint for declaratory relief in an action seeking judicial review of a regulation [see Gong v. City of Fremont (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 568, 574, 58 Cal. Rptr. 664 (declaratory relief claim asserting constitutional challenge that could not be raised in mandamus proceeding joined with mandamus action)]. A writ of mandate may be issued to any inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or person to compel the performance of an act that the law specially enjoins as a duty resulting from an office, trust, or station [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085]. The writ is sought to invoke the court's power to order the agency to perform ministerial acts (often a necessary adjunct to declaratory relief), as well as an independent form of relief. This writ, which is used when a regulation is challenged prior to enforcement, must not be confused with the "writ of administrative mandamus," which is prescribed for the review of administrative trial-type (quasi-judicial) hearings under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5.

A petition for writ of mandate would not seem to invite a court to interfere with the exercise of legislative power by directing repeal of a regulation. Moreover, the availability of injunctive relief [see [4], below] would normally preclude a mandate proceeding; Code Civ. Proc. § 1086 requires a lack of an adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law. In a mandate proceeding brought to nullify an administrative regulation, however, the California Supreme Court ordered issuance of a writ of mandate directing the agency to rescind the regulation in its entirety [California Welfare Rights Organization v. Brian (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 237, 243-244, 113 Cal. Rptr. 154, 520 P.2d 970] .

In Clean Air Constituency v. California State Air Resources Bd. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 801, 114 Cal. Rptr. 577, 523 P.2d 617 , the California Supreme Court stated that the writ of mandate may be used to review the validity of a quasi-legislative action [Clean Air Constituency v. California State Air Resources Bd. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 801, 809, 114 Cal. Rptr. 577, 523 P.2d 617] .

The extent of the relief afforded by mandamus is confined to ministerial acts, that is, the writ will not order the agency to exercise its discretion in a specific manner. For example, an agency may be ordered to promulgate its regulations according to law; however, the court may not order the agency to adopt specific language in its regulations. The agency has the function of making the applicable rules in the area; the judiciary should avoid attempting to invade what is essentially a legislative function [Pillsbury v. South Coast Regional Com. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 740, 756, 139 Cal. Rptr. 760] .

A medical device manufacturer (Baxter) that manufactured prescription medical devices which contained a chemical plasticizer (DEHP) that came into contact with the human body filed an administrative petition with the Office of Environmental Health Hazard Assessment (OEHHA) asking OEHHA to promulgate a regulation determining that DEHP exposure did not pose a significant risk of cancer in humans, and therefore Baxter would be exempt from having to post a warning under the requirements of Proposition 65 [Health & Safety Code § 25249.10(c)]. OEHHA denied the petition, and Baxter filed a petition for a writ of mandate, which the trial court denied on grounds that neither Proposition 65 nor OEHHA regulations required the agency to promulgate regulations or make findings that DEHP did not provide a significant risk of cancer in humans. The trial court allowed Baxter to amend its complaint to request declaratory relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 to seek the same type of relief, essentially a declaration that exposure to DEHP in Baxter's medical device products did not create a significant risk of cancer in humans, and therefore no warning of such exposure was required under exemptions recognized by the law [Health & Safety Code § 25249.10(c)]. The trial court granted that declaratory judgment, and the Court of Appeal affirmed the judgment for declaratory relief [Baxter Healthcare Corp. v. Denton (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 333, 344-345, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 430] .

For discussion and forms relating to judicial review generally by way of petition for extraordinary writ of mandate, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition ; see also Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

[4] Injunction

The complaint or petition for judicial review often states an action for injunction [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 525-534], as well as declaratory relief and mandamus. If a party wants affirmative relief against enforcement, as well as a declaration of a regulation's invalidity, an action for injunctive relief is appropriate. Since mandamus is used to "compel the performance of an act," injunctive relief is often necessary to prohibit acts by the agency, both preliminarily and, following judgment, permanently. A court may not enjoin enforcement of a valid regulation, but if the regulation is declared to be invalid, the court may enjoin enforcement [see, e.g., Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. v. Superior Court (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 392, 401, 128 Cal. Rptr. 183, 546 P.2d 687] . An injunction prohibiting enforcement of a public statute because the agency responsible for statutory enforcement failed to enact implementing regulations that were arguably required by the statute was reversed on appeal. The appellate court held that the granting of the injunction was improper because: 1) the statute provided that the agency could adopt regulations when necessary, which gives the agency discretion whether to adopt regulations; and 2) the statutory terms were detailed and precise, and thus were specific enough for enforcement by the agency without the adoption of implementing regulations. The scope of court authority to reverse an agency decision not to begin rule making proceedings is very narrow [Alfaro v. Terhune (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 492, 503-505, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 197] .

For an example of a complaint for injunction, combined with a complaint for declaratory relief, see § 472B.60. For injunctions in general, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency RulemakingRule Application & InterpretationValidityAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesDeclaratory JudgmentsAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesInjunctive ReliefAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureVenuePublic Officials

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.14

§ 472B.14 Prerequisites to Judicial Review

[1] General Requirements

The terms "standing," "ripeness," and "exhaustion of administrative remedies" commonly arise in the context of challenges to regulations, and the first two are frequently raised as affirmative defenses in these actions--for example, "plaintiff/petitioner lacks standing" or "this action is not ripe for judicial review."

[2] Standing

Gov. Code § 11350(a) expressly allows "any interested person" to seek declaratory relief. "Any interested person" has been interpreted to include even persons who are potentially subject to the regulation [Stoneham v. Rushen (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 302, 310, 203 Cal. Rptr. 20] . Moreover, Gov. Code § 11350 expressly states that standing to seek a judicial determination is not affected by a person's failure to file a petition for amendment or repeal [see Gov. Code § 11340.7], or a request for reconsideration of such a petition, with the agency [Gov. Code § 11350(a)].

The courts have been somewhat more restrictive with respect to standing to bring actions for injunction and mandamus. With respect to an injunction, a plaintiff must plead facts showing a wrongful act that directly resulted in a violation of his or her legal rights in order to have standing to maintain an action for injunction in an individual capacity [United States v. Superior Court (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 189, 198, 120 P.2d 26] . With respect to mandamus, the courts will require the petitioner to demonstrate that the writ is necessary to enforce or protect a specific legal right that is clear, present, certain, and substantial [American Friends Service Committee v. Procunier (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 252, 256, 109 Cal. Rptr. 22 ; see also Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 354, 254 P.2d 6 (unions that sought writ to compel city officials to set salaries for city employees at rate equal to private industry lacked standing because no benefit would accrue to them if writ were issued)]. There is an exception to this rule when the question is one of public, as opposed to private, interest and petitioner seeks performance of a public duty. In those cases, the usual requirements are relaxed [American Friends Service Committee v. Procunier (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 252, 256, 109 Cal. Rptr. 22] . The rationale is that the petitioner need not show that he or she has any legal or special interest in the result; it is sufficient that he or she is interested as a citizen in having the laws executed and the duty in question enforced [American Friends Service Committee v. Procunier (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 252, 256, 109 Cal. Rptr. 22 , citing Bd. of Soc. Welfare v. County of L.A. (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 98, 100-101, 162 P.2d 627 (purpose of nonprofit corporation plaintiffs in seeking writ of mandate for prison reform constituted "enforcement of a public duty")].

[3] Ripeness

Because courts will not issue purely advisory opinions, the action of the agency must be ripe for review [see, e.g., Gov. Code § 11350(a); Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 (requiring "actual controversy" for declaratory relief action)]. Ripeness requires that the courts evaluate the rulemaking action as to the fitness of the issues for judicial review and the hardship to the parties if the courts refuse to review the action at the time they are requested to do so [Pacific Legal Foundation v. California Coastal Com. (1982) 33 Cal. 3d 158, 171-174, 188 Cal. Rptr. 104, 655 P.2d 306 ; Farm Sanctuary, Inc. v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 495, 501-502, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 75] . For further discussion of ripeness for judicial review and the timing of review generally, see Ch. 474A, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions. That chapter also includes discussion of when an issue is moot.

[4] Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies

Exhaustion of administrative remedies is not a valid defense in an action for judicial review of administrative rulemaking. As noted [see § 472B.13[2][a]], a petition to the agency for repeal or amendment of a regulation pursuant to Gov. Code §§ 11340.6 and 11340.7 is available but not mandatory [Motion Picture Studio Teachers & Welfare Workers v. Millan (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1190, 1197-1199, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 608 (party challenging agency interpretation of regulation who is seeking to "enforce ... [a] regulation as written" is not required to petition agency to amend regulation prior to seeking judicial review by writ of mandate)]. Gov. Code § 11350(a), in stating that the right to judicial determination is not affected by a person's failure to file a petition with the agency, makes it plain that persons wishing to challenge the validity of a regulation in court are not required to petition the agency first for repeal or amendment. The court in Hillery v. Rushen (9th Cir. 1983) 720 F.2d 1132, 1139 , interpreted Gov. Code § 11350(a) to dispense with the requirement of exhaustion of the administrative remedy in declaratory relief cases in which injunctive relief is also sought. The same rationale would probably apply in cases that also seek mandamus [Hillery v. Rushen (9th Cir. 1983) 720 F.2d 1132, 1139] . Although the Hillery court involved only a petition for injunctive relief, the court stated that its construction of Gov. Code § 11350(a) was in accord with the decision in Stoneham v. Rushen (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 729, 188 Cal. Rptr. 130 , which involved a writ of mandate [Hillery v. Rushen (9th Cir. 1983) 720 F.2d 1132, 1139] . The Stoneham court granted both declaratory relief and a writ of mandamus, and set forth the procedural history of the case, without mentioning whether the petitioners had sought administrative relief first [Stoneham v. Rushen (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 729, 737, 188 Cal. Rptr. 130] .

Similarly, no authority supports the proposition that a plaintiff/petitioner must have participated in the rulemaking process in order to avoid the defense of failure to exhaust administrative remedies. For further discussion of the requirement of exhaustion of administrative remedies in the context of the timing of judicial review, see Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency RulemakingRule Application & InterpretationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesDeclaratory JudgmentsAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesInjunctive ReliefAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityExhaustion of RemediesAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityRipenessAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityStanding

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.15

§ 472B.15 Standards of Judicial Review

[1] Scope of Review

In an action for declaratory relief regarding the validity of a regulation, Gov. Code § 11350 sets forth four standards under which the reviewing court may declare a regulation to be invalid. First, a regulation is invalid for a substantial failure to comply with the provisions of the APA [Gov. Code § 11350(a)]. This language appears to include both:

- The substantive standards of necessity, clarity, authority, reference, consistency, and nonduplication used by the OAL to review regulations submitted to it [Gov. Code § 11349.1(a)].

- The procedural requirements stated elsewhere in the APA.

For a discussion of those substantive standards and procedural requirements, see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures [see also Bolz & Garcia, The Other Side of Administrative Law, Cal. Lawyer 47-52 (Nov. 1987)].

Second, an emergency regulation may be declared to be invalid on the ground that the facts recited in the finding of emergency prepared under law [Gov. Code § 11346.1(b)] do not constitute an emergency within the provisions of Gov. Code § 11346.1 [Gov. Code § 11350(a); see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures , for a discussion of emergency regulations].

Third, a regulation may be declared invalid if the agency's determination that the regulation is reasonably necessary to effectuate the purpose of the statute or other provision of law that is being implemented, interpreted, or made specific by the regulation is not supported by substantial evidence [Gov. Code § 11350(b)(1)]. Finally, a regulation may be declared invalid if the agency declaration that a regulation will not have significant adverse economic impact upon businesses [see Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)(8)] is not supported by substantial evidence in the record [Gov. Code § 11350(b)(2)].

The effective date of Gov. Code § 11349.1 (July 1, 1980), which sets forth the APA's substantive standards, should be noted in examining the appellate decisions concerning the scope of judicial review. Many of those decisions were rendered in actions predating the substantive standards of that section. The earlier cases do not discuss Gov. Code § 11349.1, and speak only in terms of the judicially established standards discussed in [4], below. These latter standards are still used by the courts; Gov. Code § 11350 does not appear to require the courts to rely exclusively on failures to comply with the APA for grounds to declare regulations invalid. Nevertheless, it is almost invariably true that a non-APA ground for declaring a regulation invalid may be restated as a failure to comply with the APA.

[2] Presumption of Validity

The plaintiff has the burden of proving that the regulation in question is invalid. The agency's action comes before the court with a presumption of correctness and regularity [see Credit Ins. General Agents Asso. v. Payne (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 651, 657, 128 Cal. Rptr. 881, 547 P.2d 993] . Once a regulation has been filed with the secretary of state for publication in the California Code of Regulations, it is presumed to have been duly adopted in compliance with the APA [Gov. Code§ 11343.6(a); see Stoneham v. Rushen (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 302, 308, 203 Cal. Rptr. 20] .

The action of the OAL in approving a regulation or the governor's overruling of a disapproval of a regulation by the OAL will not be considered by a court in any action for declaratory relief brought with respect to a regulation [Gov. Code § 11350(c)]. In contrast, an OAL "determination" of whether an uncodified rule is a regulation subject to the approval process may be considered by a court, unless the court proceeding concerns the same issue and parties and was initiated before the request for determination [Gov. Code § 11340.5(e); see Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules].

[3] Deference to Agency's Authority

The California Supreme Court has stated in Western Oil & Gas Assn. v. Air Resources Board (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 502, 208 Cal. Rptr. 850, 691 P.2d 606 , that the courts exercise limited review of administrative rulemaking actions out of deference to the separation of powers between the legislative and the judicial branches, and to the presumed expertise of the agency within the scope of its authority. A reviewing court will not substitute its policy judgment for the agency's in the absence of an arbitrary decision [Western Oil & Gas Assn. v. Air Resources Board (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 502, 509, 208 Cal. Rptr. 850, 691 P.2d 606] . In Western Oil, the plaintiff oil companies challenged a series of air pollution regulations on the grounds that, among other things, the Board (1) had failed to consider the economic effects of the regulations, and (2) did not base the regulations on the Health Department's recommendations, despite the Board's lack of medical expertise in its membership [Western Oil & Gas Assn. v. Air Resources Board (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 502, 507, 208 Cal. Rptr. 850, 691 P.2d 606] .

Although the Court ultimately found that the Legislature did not require the Board to consider the economic effects and that the Board was required to consider, but not adopt, the Health Department's recommendations [Western Oil & Gas Assn. v. Air Resources Board (1984) 37 Cal. 3d 502, 507, 208 Cal. Rptr. 850, 691 P.2d 606] , the facts of this case illustrate that a person challenging regulations by judicial review should consider attacking the agency's "presumed expertise" by addressing both evidence that the agency considered in adopting the regulation as well as evidence it did not consider [see §§ 472B.13, 472B.14, for a discussion of grounds for declaring a regulation invalid].

The California Supreme Court has articulated the following rules regarding the deference a court must exercise with respect to the administrative agency that promulgated the regulation [Ontario Community Foundation v. State Bd. of Equalization (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 811, 816, 201 Cal. Rptr. 165, 678 P.2d 378 ; see Western Oil & Gas Assn. v. Monterey Bay Unified Air Pollution Control Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 408, 425, 261 Cal. Rptr. 384, 777 P.2d 157 (construction of statute by agency charged with its enforcement is entitled to great weight especially when interpretation is congruent with its language and apparent purpose)]:

> • In determining the proper interpretation of a statute and the validity of an administrative regulation, the administrative agency's construction is entitled to great weight, and if there appears to be a reasonable basis for it, a court will not substitute its judgment for that of the administrative body.

- An agency's regulations must be consistent, not in conflict with the statute, and reasonably necessary to effectuate its purpose.

- The function of the court is to inquire into the legality of regulations, not their wisdom.

- Whatever the force of administrative construction, final responsibility for the interpretation of the law rests with the courts.

The California Supreme Court applied a deferential standard of review to a city charter provision. That provision exempted public safety officer promotional rules changes related to compliance with anti discrimination laws from requirements of binding arbitration when there was a collective bargaining impasse between the city and the unions representing fire fighters, and other public safety officers. The provisions in question, S.F. Charter § A8.590-5(g)(3) of the Charter of the City and County of San Francisco, gave the city substantial discretion to determine necessary anti discrimination law compliance measures, and the deferential standard of review followed from that grant of discretionary authority. The Supreme Court also upheld the validity of the promotion rule change and concluded that the change in promotion rules was reasonably related to compliance with anti discrimination laws. Since the rules change was valid, the exemption from binding arbitration was enforceable [San Francisco Fire Fighters Local 798 v. City & County of San Francisco (2006) 38 Cal. 4th 653, 661-662, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 868, 133 P.3d 1028] .

[4] Specific Grounds for Declaration of Invalidity

[a] Action Exceeds Agency's Authority

An administrative regulation is not valid unless it is within the scope of authority [Gov. Code § 11349.1(a)(2) ("authority" standard)] conferred on the adopting agency by the enabling statute [Gov. Code §§ 11342.1, 11342.2; see Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules , for a discussion of the quasi-legislative authority of administrative agencies].

As discussed in Chapter 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures , the agency must cite authority and reference for each regulation that it submits to the OALfor review and ultimate publication in the California Code of Regulations [Gov. Code § 11349.1]. An authority note is printed following each regulation in the California Code of Regulations [see Gov. Code § 11349.8(b)(1); 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 14(d)].

In reviewing an action for declaratory relief and injunction against an agency, the California Supreme Court reiterated the well-settled rule that a regulation that exceeds the agency's authority will be declared invalid [Association for Retarded Citizens v. Department of Developmental Services (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 384, 391, 211 Cal. Rptr. 758, 696 P.2d 150 (agency spending directives requiring regional centers to cut back in particular manner exceeded agency's authority when statute did not permit agency to control regional centers)]. Although the construction of a statute by the agency is entitled to great weight, final responsibility for the interpretation of the law rests with the courts. In interpreting the statute, if the court concludes that the administrative action under attack has in effect altered or amended the statute or enlarged or impaired its scope, the court must declare it void [Association for Retarded Citizens v. Department of Developmental Services (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 384, 391, 211 Cal. Rptr. 758, 696 P.2d 150 ; Morris v. Williams (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 733, 748, 63 Cal. Rptr. 689, 433 P.2d 697 (Court invalidated Medi-Cal regulations that eliminated some health services entirely, even though statute that the regulations interpreted required "proportionate reductions" in services)].

On the other hand, unless an agency's rules are ambiguous, the court will uphold the agency rules if the rules do not exceed the agency's statutory authority [Public Resources Protection Assn. v. Dept. of Forestry & Fire Protection (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 111, 121-122, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 11, 865 P. 2d 728 (court upheld validity of forest practice rules adopted by Department of Forestry); Robin J. v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 414, 422-423, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 417 (Court of Appeal rejected challenge to validity of regulation and held that regulation governing visitation between sex offenders and children did not exceed scope of authority of governing statute [Penal Code § 5058], and was not inconsistent with the other applicable statutes [Penal Code § 1202.05 and Welf & Inst. Code § 362.6 that governed the parties claims in the lawsuit]); Coors Brewing Co. v. Stroh (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 768, 771-772, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 570 (court upheld validity of alcoholic beverage control regulation that prohibited cash prize sweepstakes because the regulation did not operate more broadly than the statutory prohibition that the regulation implemented)]. When an agency that is acting pursuant to statutory authority adopts regulations to implement or interpret a statute those regulations are presumed to be valid and binding and will be enforced by the courts unless the regulations are inconsistent with the statute or are arbitrary and capricious [Tomlinson v. Qualcomm, Inc. (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 934, 940-941, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 822 (FEHC regulation held to be valid, and not inconsistent with provisions of California Family Rights Act [Gov. Code §§ 12945.1-12945.2])].

[b] Action Violates Controlling Constitutional or Statutory Provision

A regulation that is inconsistent [Gov. Code § 11349.1(a)(4) ("consistency" standard)] and in conflict with the statute that authorizes the state agency to adopt regulations implementing, interpreting, making specific, or otherwise carrying out its provisions is invalid [Gov. Code § 11342.2; Slocum v. State Bd. of Equalization (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 969, 974-976, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627 (SBE interpretation contained in reassessment rule [SBE Rule 139] entitled to some but not substantial deference, and rule was held to be invalid because inconsistent with the authorizing statute [Rev & T. Code § 170(a)(2)], and the California constitution [Cal. Const. Art. 13, § 15]); T.H. v. San Diego Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1267, 1280, 1285, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532 (school district regulation that mandated referral to an expulsion hearing process for all expulsion offenses was not inconsistent with state statute that gave school principals discretion not to refer students for expulsion hearings in some circumstances; regulation satisfied consistency requirement); Home Depot, U.S.A., INC. v. Contractors' State License Bd. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1592, 1606-1608 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 302 ; Professional Engineers in California Government v. State Personnel Board (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 678, 705-706, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 375 (administrative regulations that violate implementing statutes exceed the statutory authority of the agency and are therefore invalid); see Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures , for a discussion of the consistency standard].

In reviewing an action for declaratory relief and injunction under the predecessor statute to Gov. Code § 11350 [see former Gov. Code. Code § 11440], the California Supreme Court stated that when the Legislature has delegated to an administrative agency the responsibility to implement a statutory scheme through rules and regulations, a court will interfere only when the agency has clearly overstepped its statutory authority or violated its constitutional mandate [Ford Dealers Ass'n v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 347, 356, 185 Cal. Rptr. 453, 650 P.2d 328 (court held that DMV regulations did not exceed scope of authorizing statute)].

In addition, the "consistency" standard requires the regulation to be in harmony with, and not in conflict with or contradictory to, other existing statutes, court decisions, or other provisions of law such as the federal or state constitutions [Gov. Code § 11349(d) (definition of "consistency"); T.H. v. San Diego Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1267, 1280, 1285, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 532 (school district regulation that mandated referral to an expulsion hearing process for all expulsion offenses was not inconsistent with state statute that gave school principals discretion not to refer students for expulsion hearings in somecircumstances; nor did the regulations violate students' due process of law rights to notice in an expulsion hearing requirement); Marshall v. McMahon (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1841, 1848-1850, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220 (DSS regulations upheld as being consistent with governing statute)]. Special attention must be given to this standard in light of the constitutional prohibition against California agencies refusing to enforce statutory provisions because of constitutional infirmities. In California, an agency must enforce a statute even in the face of its clear inconsistency with a constitutional provision absent a holding of unconstitutionality by an appellate court [Cal. Const., art. III, § 3.5(a); Lockyer v. City & County of San Francisco (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 1055, 1085-1086, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225, 95 P. 3d 459 (a local executive official, who had a ministerial duty to enforce a state statute limiting marriage to couples of the opposite sex, exceeded his authority when he decided unilaterally that the marriage statute was unconstitutional and ordered the clerk office's to start issuing marriage licenses to same-sex couples. A local executive official does not possess the authority to refuse to enforce a state statute without a court first determining that the statute is unconstitutional)]. The consistency standard does not, however, preclude the agency from interpreting existing law in the course of discharging its statutory duties [Regents of University of California v. Public Employment Relations Bd. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 1037, 1042, 189 Cal. Rptr. 298] .

[c] Regulation Is Unclear

Two separate standards require a regulation to be clearly drafted. First, under the APA and its accompanying regulations a statute must meet the substantive standard of clarity to be effective [Gov. Code § 11349.1(a)(3); see 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 16]. "Clarity" means written or displayed so that the meaning of the regulation will be easily understood by those persons directly affected by it [Gov. Code § 11349(c)]. If the language of a rule is susceptible to two interpretations in the minds of persons directly affected by the rule, it should be considered unclear [see Bolz & Garcia, The Other Side of Administrative Law, Cal. Lawyer 47, 48 (Nov. 1987)]. The clarity standard is discussed in Chapter 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures .

Second, it is a well-settled principle of constitutional law that a law that either forbids or requires the doing of an act in terms so vague that people of common intelligence must necessarily guess at its meaning and differ as to its application violates due process of law [Connally v. General Constr. Co. (1926) 269 U.S. 385, 391, 46 S. Ct. 126, 70 L. Ed. 322 (statute requiring contractors to pay employees no less than current rate of wages in location where work is performed is so uncertain that it deprives contractors of property without due process); Cranston v. City of Richmond (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 755, 763, 221 Cal. Rptr. 779, 710 P.2d 845 (regulation allowing discharge of city employee for "conduct unbecoming an employee of the city service" was not unconstitutionally vague as applied to police officer engaged in illegal and dangerous conduct)]. Although challenges for vagueness arise most often in the criminal context, the prohibition against vagueness extends to civil statutes and administrative regulations as well [see Cranston v. City of Richmond (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 755, 764, 221 Cal. Rptr. 779, 710 P.2d 845] .

On the other hand, although noncriminal enactments have been subjected to scrutiny on grounds of vagueness, especially in cases involving the right to practice a recognized profession or the exercise of other fundamental rights, that scrutiny has normally been limited to situations in which First Amendment rights have been at stake [Goldin v. Public Utilities Commission (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 638, 658-659, 153 Cal. Rptr. 802, 592 P.2d 289 (vagueness challenge to PUC rule, which allowed telephone disconnection on probable cause that telephone was being used in violation of law, was unsuccessful because no fundamental right was involved)].

When an administrative regulation is challenged, the standard of constitutional vagueness is less strict than when a criminal law is attacked [Ford Dealers Ass'n v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 347, 366, 185 Cal. Rptr. 453, 650 P.2d 328 (court found DMV regulation that advertised offers be "based on facts" and "clearly set forth" to overcome vagueness attack); Papachristou v. City of Jacksonville (1972) 405 U.S. 156, 162, 92 S. Ct. 839, 31 L. Ed. 2d 110 (municipal vagrancy ordinance with criminal penalties was held void for vagueness because it failed to give fair notice that particular conduct was forbidden)].

If the challenge does not involve First Amendment freedoms, the regulation must be examined in light of the facts of the case at hand [Cranston v. City of Richmond (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 755, 764-765, 221 Cal. Rptr. 779, 710 P.2d 845 (holding that, under the facts, city regulation permitting discharge for "conduct unbecoming an employee of the city" was not unconstitutionally vague)]. For further discussion of the constitutional vagueness standard, see Ch. 531, Statutes and Ordinances .

[d] Action Lacks Sufficient Evidentiary Support for Necessity

[i] "Reasonably Necessary" Standard

Under the APA, whenever by the express or implied term of a statute a state agency has the authority to adopt regulations to implement, interpret, make specific, or otherwise carry out the provision of the statute, no regulation adopted will be valid or effective unless it is "reasonably necessary" to effectuate the purpose of the statute [Gov. Code § 11342.2; see Gov. Code § 11349.1(a)(1) ("necessity" standard for OAL review); Coalition for Reasonable Regulation of Naturally Occurring Substances v. California Air Res. Bd. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1258-1259, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 635 (regulation upheld under "reasonablynecessary" standard); County of Santa Cruz v. State Bd. of Forestry (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 826, 834-835, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 393] .

"Necessity" means that the agency's record of the rulemaking proceeding demonstrates by substantial evidence the need for a regulation. "Evidence" includes facts, studies, and expert opinion [Gov. Code § 11349(a)]. Gov. Code § 11350(b) specifically states that a regulation may be declared invalid pursuant to a declaratory relief action if the agency's determination that the regulation is reasonably necessary to effectuate the purpose of the statute, court decision, or law that is being implemented, interpreted, or made specific by the regulation is not supported by substantial evidence [Gov. Code § 11350(b); Coalition for Reasonable Regulation of Naturally Occurring Substances v. California Air Res. Bd. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1265, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 635 (regulation supported by substantial evidence that agency complied with regulatory requirements); Pulaski v. California Occupational Safety and Health Standards Board (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1315, 1329-1330, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 54] . The evidence considered by the court consists of all material maintained in the rulemaking record [Gov. Code § 11350(b); see Gov. Code § 11340.5; see also Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures].

Before the 1979 revisions to the APA, courts searched for "any evidence" in the rulemaking record to support the action of the agency [see former Gov. Code.Code §§ 11349(a), 11350(b) (before requirement that necessity be supported by substantial evidence)]. In the absence of "any evidence" supporting the action, a rulemaking action could be deemed arbitrary and capricious and the regulation invalid [see former Gov. Code. Code §§ 11349(a), 11350(b)]. This rule remains valid for non-APA rulemaking proceedings. The substantial evidence test is used by the superior court hearing the original proceeding [Gov. Code § 11350(a)]. On appeal from the judgment of a trial court in an action to review a regulation, the standard of review is identical to the rule in other cases on appeal [see Ch. 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions , and Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions].

[ii] Standard for Emergency Regulations

An additional standard applies to the review of emergency regulations. A court may declare an emergency regulation or order invalid on the ground that the facts recited in the finding of emergency prepared under law [Gov. Code § 11346.1(b)] do not constitute an emergency within the provisions of Gov. Code § 11346.1 [Gov. Code § 11350(a)]. Under that section, a state agency may adopt an "emergency" regulation or order of repeal if it makes a finding of emergency. "Emergency" is defined by law to mean a situation that calls for immediate action to avoid serious harm to the public peace, health, safety, or general welfare [Gov. Code § 11342.545]. The finding must be set forth in a written statement [Gov. Code § 11346.1(b)(1), (2)].

[e] Action Is Procedurally Defective

A regulation may be declared invalid for a substantial failure to comply with the provisions of the APA [see Gov. Code § 11350(a); Gov. Code §§ 11346-11347.5 (procedure for adoption of regulations); Pulaski v. California Occupational Safety and Health Standards Board (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 1315, 1327-1328, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 54] . The procedural requirements imposed by the APA are discussed in Chapter 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures .

In general, the APA emphasizes proper notice to the public, particularly those persons directly affected by the proposed regulation [Gov. Code §§ 11346.4(a)(1), 11346.5(a)(7), 11346.9(a)(1), 11346.8(c)]. Further applications and interpretations of the notice requirements of the California APA by the OAL are found in the OAL's regulations [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 44, 45]. These regulations are entitled to great weight, due to the fact that the OAL is the agency charged with the administration of the APA [Gov. Code §§ 11340.1, 11342.4; Pacific Legal Foundation v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 101, 111, 172 Cal. Rptr. 194, 624 P.2d 244] .

For example, in a declaratory relief and mandamus action, an association of nursing homes challenged the validity of a regulation on the grounds that the agency administrator failed to hold hearings required by the APA prior to adopting the regulation [California Asso. of Nursing Homes, etc. v. Williams (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 800, 85 Cal. Rptr. 735] . In that case, the court found that the agency's failure to hold hearings establishing an evidentiary record thwarted judicial review of the regulation and constituted a substantial failure to comply with the procedural requirements of the APA. Therefore, the court held that the challenged regulation was invalid [California Asso. of Nursing Homes, etc. v. Williams (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 800, 816, 84 Cal. Rptr. 590] .

Although procedural defects in rulemaking proceedings may be fatal to the regulation, they will not be deemed to offend due process. Constitutional due process guarantees do not attach to administrative agency rulemaking, or "quasi-legislative," proceedings [Ford Dealers Ass'n v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 347, 364, 185 Cal. Rptr. 453, 650 P.2d 328 ; California Optometric Assn. v. Lackner (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 500, 505-509, 131 Cal. Rptr. 744] . Due process requirements apply only to administrative proceedings that are adjudicative in nature[Hannah v. Larche (1960) 363 U.S. 420, 442, 80 S. Ct. 1502, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1307] . For further discussion of due process as it relates to administrative agencies, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency RulemakingRule Application & InterpretationValidityAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesDeclaratory JudgmentsAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesInjunctive ReliefAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewRule InterpretationAdministrative LawSeparation of PowersLegislative ControlsScope of Delegated AuthorityConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental FreedomsJudicial & Legislative RestraintsOverbreadth & Vagueness

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.16

§ 472B.16 Judicial Review of Rulemaking in Enforcement Actions

If the regulation objected to is already being enforced--that is, applied by the agency to the objecting party as part of formal adjudicatory proceedings--the time for the preenforcement remedy of declaratory relief has passed [see Tushner v. Griesinger (1959) 171 Cal. App. 2d 599, 606, 341 P.2d 416 ; see also § 472B.11]. The party seeking to challenge the regulation may raise the issue of the regulation's validity as a defense during the administrative hearing, however, and should challenge the validity of the regulation at all stages of the agency proceedings in order to lay a foundation for later attack of the regulation in court if the agency upholds the regulation. After a hearing in which the agency upholds the regulation, the party objecting to the regulation may seek judicial review pursuant to a petition for administrative mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5]. A petition may set forth various grounds for the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5]. A party objecting to the regulation's validity should allege that the agency has abused its discretion, and/or proceeded in excess of its jurisdiction, depending on the nature of the alleged defect in the regulation [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)]. Abuse of discretion is established if the agency has not proceeded in the manner required by law, the order or decision is not supported by the findings, or the findings are not supported by the evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)].

Similarly, a party objecting to a regulation in an enforcement action may assert the agency's non-compliance with specific language of the regulation as a defense to an administrative enforcement action. An agency can not avoid its duty to comply with specific language of a regulation by asserting its authority to interpret the regulation [Acapulco Restaurants, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 575, 580, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126] . However, the defense of non-compliance with the language of a regulation does not constitute a defense to a criminal prosecution unless the legislature has already defined the crime and the penalty, and has authorized the agency to enact rules related to that defined crime [People v. Figueroa (1999) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1409, 1414-1415, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 216] .

For a complete discussion of the writ of administrative mandate, the procedures for filing the petition, and the applicable standards for review, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency RulemakingRule Application & InterpretationValidityAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewAbuse of DiscretionAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewExceeding Statutory AuthorityAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewRule Interpretation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.17

§ 472B.17 Estoppel and Rulemaking

The estoppel doctrine may also be used to challenge an agency's regulation. The doctrine of equitable estoppel results from a representation of fact that the party making the representation is not legally permitted to deny [Baillargeon v. Department of Water & Power (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 670, 678, 138 Cal. Rptr. 338 ; see Witkin, Summary of California Law, vol. 11, Equity, § 176 et seq. (9th ed. 1990)]. It may be applied against the government when justice requires it [City of Long Beach v. Mansell (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 462, 489, 91 Cal. Rptr. 23, 476 P.2d 423] . The Supreme Court has established the following four elements that are necessary to make a successful claim of equitable estoppel against a public agency [Driscoll v. City of Los Angeles (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 297, 305, 61 Cal. Rptr. 661, 431 P.2d 245] :

(1) The agency has knowledge of the facts,

(2) The adverse party has no knowledge of the facts,

(3) The agency intends that the adverse party will rely on its representations, and

(4) The adverse party relies on misrepresentations of the agency to his or her injury.

In general, the argument of estoppel is most likely to succeed in the defense of enforcement actions [see § 472B.16] because of its focus on equitable relief to specific parties relying on the representation of the agency. Nevertheless, estoppel has also been raised as the basis of an affirmative claim for relief. For example, in Shoban v. Board of Trustees (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 534, 81 Cal. Rptr. 112 , teachers were classified for salary purposes according to a school district regulation, and induced to work for the district on the basis of that classification. The district later determined that the teachers had been erroneously classified, reclassified them, and withheld the salary overpayments from their current paychecks. The teachers sought a writ of mandate compelling the agency to restore them to their original classification, and the district cross-complained for declaratory relief regarding the classification. The appellate court affirmed issuance of the writ, and held that the district was estopped from applying the regulation to those teachers and from recovering the alleged overpayments [Shoban v. Board of Trustees (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 534, 81 Cal. Rptr. 112] . The Supreme Court of California applied the estoppel doctrine to allow welfare recipients to raise estoppel as a defense in an administrative hearing when a state welfare agency sought to recoup from welfare recipients those overpayments [Lentz v. McMahon (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 393, 397, 261 Cal. Rptr. 310, 777 P.2d 83] .

The Public Utilities Commission could not use the defense of estoppel against a regulated utility because the Commission could not show evidence of reliance by the agency necessary to establish estoppel [Southern California Edison Co. v. Public Utilities Com'n (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1086, 1110-1111, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 684] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency RulemakingRule Application & InterpretationValidityAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesDeclaratory JudgmentsAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusCivil ProcedureEquityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 472B.18-472B.29

[Reserved]

§§ 472B.18[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.30

§ 472B.30 State Constitution

Administrative agencies that have constitutional authority to exercise (limited) legislative power:

Board of Education. Cal. Const., art. IX, § 7.5

Judicial Council. Cal. Const., art. VI, §§ 6, 18

Personnel Board. Cal. Const., art. VII, §§ 2(c), 3, 6(b), (c)

Public Utilities Commission. Cal. Const., art. XII, §§ 2, 4, 6

Regents of the University of California. Cal. Const., art. IX, § 9(a)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawSeparation of PowersConstitutional ControlsGeneral OverviewEducation LawAdministration & OperationBoards of Postsecondary SchoolsAuthorityEducation LawDepartments of EducationState Departments of EducationState Boards of EducationEnergy & Utilities LawAdministrative ProceedingsPublic Utility CommissionsAuthorityGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsEmployees & Officials

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.31

§ 472B.31 State Statutes

General provisions for adoption of regulations. Gov. Code §§ 11346.2-11346.9

Filing and publication of regulations. Gov. Code § 11343 et seq.

California Code of Regulations and Register. Gov. Code § 11344 et seq.

Procedure for adoption of regulations. Gov. Code § 11346 et seq.

Exemptions from procedural requirements. Gov. Code § 11346.1

Judicial review of regulation by declaratory relief action. Gov. Code § 11350

Review of Public Utilities Commission regulation. Pub. Util. Code § 1759

Review of Workmen's Compensation Appeals Board regulation. Lab. Code § 5955

Review of regulation of Board of Governors of State Bar respecting law corporations. Bus. & Prof. Code § 6170

Regulation requiring report does not apply to small business unless state agency finds its applicability necessary for health, safety, or welfare of people of state. Gov. Code § 11346.3

Cost impact statements are required. Gov. Code § 11346.5(a)

Administrative agencies are required to write regulations in plain, straightforward language. Gov. Code § 6215

Publication of rulemaking calendar. Gov. Code § 11017.6

Judicial review of validity of regulation ordered repealed or disapproved by Office of Administrative Law is available by declaratory relief action. Gov. Code § 11350.3

Reasonable litigation expenses are recoverable by prevailing small business or licensee in civil action against state regulatory agency involving regulatory functions of state agency. Code Civ. Proc. § 1028.5

Statutory procedure for adoption of regulations generally [Gov. Code §§ 11346-11347.3] are not applicable to adoptions of regulations under Fin. Code §§ 8054 although Gov. Code §§ 11346.1, 11343.4, and 11349.6 apply. Gov. Code § 11346.1(a)

Administrative review of regulations. Gov. Code § 11349 et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingRule Application & InterpretationValidityAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesDeclaratory Judgments

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.32

§ 472B.32 Administrative Regulations

Criteria applied in review of proposed regulations. 1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 5-120

Procedures for regulatory determinations. 1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 121-128

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.33

§ 472B.33 Decisions

[1] Generally

Special authorization is not required for adoption of operational or procedural regulations. Bank of Italy v. Johnson (1926) 200 Cal. 1, 20, 251 P. 784

Necessity for authorization to adopt legislative regulation. City & County of San Francisco v. Padilla (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 388, 400, 100 Cal. Rptr. 223

Administrative regulation has force and effect of statute. Associated Beverage Co. v. Board of Equalization (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 192, 201, 273 Cal. Rptr. 639 ; Dabis v. San Francisco Redevelopment Agency (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 704, 706, 122 Cal. Rptr. 800 ; Rigley v. Board of Retirement (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 445, 450, 67 Cal. Rptr. 185

Legislature (Congress) is empowered to delegate administrative "power to fill up the details" in general legislation. Wayman v. Southard (1825) 23 U.S. 1, 42-43, 6 L. Ed. 253

Regulation is presumptively valid on all grounds in proceeding challenging validity. Credit Ins. Gen. Agents Ass'n v. Payne (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 651, 657, 128 Cal. Rptr. 881, 547 P.2d 993 ; Ray v. Parker (1940) 15 Cal. 2d 275, 309, 101 P.2d 665 ; California Asso. of Nursing Homes, etc. v. Williams (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 800, 810, 84 Cal. Rptr. 590

Necessity that local agency comply with any procedural requirements made applicable by local charter. Conroy v. Wolff (1950) 34 Cal. 2d 745, 748, 214 P.2d 529

Local legislative body is not empowered to impose procedural requirements on local agency in contravention of local charter. McDonald's Systems of California, Inc. v. Board of Permit Appeals (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 525, 537, 119 Cal. Rptr. 26

Inconsistency between two regulations of same agency does not raise presumption of implicit repeal of earlier regulation unless inconsistency is not otherwise reconcilable. California Drive-In Restaurant Assn. v. Clark (1943) 22

Cal. 2d 287

Power to adopt regulations necessarily includes power to amend them. Hatch v. Ward (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 883, 887, 168 P.2d 22

Party challenging validity of administrative rule bears burden of stating and establishing grounds of its challenge; agency is not required to anticipateand refute objections to rule. Western Oil & Gas Assn. v. Monterey Bay Unified Air Pollution Control Dist. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 408, 427 n.20, 261 Cal. Rptr. 384, 777 P.2d 157

Agency does not declare statute unconstitutional and does not refuse to enforce it by complying with legislative directive to implement statute to extent it does not conflict with federal law. Reese v. Kizer (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 996, 998, 1002, 251 Cal. Rptr. 299, 760 P.2d 495

Administrative agency is not limited to exact provisions of statute in adopting regulations to enforce its mandate; agency is authorized to "fill up details" of statutory scheme. Ford Dealers Ass'n v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 347, 362, 185 Cal. Rptr. 453, 650 P.2d 328

Internal management exception [Gov. Code § 11342(b)], excusing noncompliance with statutory rulemaking procedures, has narrow scope; exception is inapplicable when rule is to have general application and is to affect persons subject to regulation by agency. Union of American Physicians & Dentists v. Kizer (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 490, 497, 272 Cal. Rptr. 886 ; Grier v. Kizer (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 422, 435-438, 440, 268 Cal. Rptr. 244

Policy creating standard for application of already-established wage rates, to cover situation not addressed in statute or regulations, is required to be promulgated under APA rulemaking procedures. Division of Lab. Stds. Enforcement v. Ericsson Information Systems, Inc. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 114, 128, 270 Cal. Rptr. 75

Internal administrative order does not supersede legislation adopted by board of supervisors. Hock Investment Co. v. City and County of San Francisco (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 438, 448, 263 Cal. Rptr. 665

[2] Judicial Proceedings

Interested persons not entitled to statutory "fair hearings" because not applicants for, nor recipients of, social service benefits, and otherwise having standing to complain, are permitted to challenge invalid regulations by mandamus pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 or by action for declaratory relief pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 [Gov. Code § 11350]. Woods v. Superior Court (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 668, 682, 170 Cal. Rptr. 484, 620 P.2d 1032

Validity of regulation mandating denial of application for welfare benefits are properly contested at both state (or "fair") hearing provided by Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 and in subsequent judicial review under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5. Woods v. Superior Court (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 668, 677, 170 Cal. Rptr. 484, 620 P.2d 1032

Mandate is appropriate remedy to compel administrative agency to issue regulations when agency has mandatory duty to adopt such regulations pursuant to statute. Newland v. Kizer (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 647, 654-656, 257 Cal. Rptr. 450

Writ of mandate is proper to compel Director of Corrections to comply with Administrative Procedure Act and promulgate regulations; trial court retains inherent power to make any orders necessary and proper for complete enforcement of peremptory writ it had issued, including determination of adequacy of regulations promulgated in compliance with writ. Stoneham v. Rushen (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 302, 306-307, 310-311, 203 Cal. Rptr. 20

Gov. Code § 11350 authorizing action for declaratory judgment to test validity of regulation is, in effect, amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 1060, adding to cases there described in which person may sue for declaratory judgment. County of Los Angeles v. State Dep't of Public Health (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 425, 443-444, 322 P.2d 968

Court is empowered to enjoin enforcement of invalid regulation. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. v. Superior Court (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 392, 401, 128 Cal. Rptr. 183, 546 P.2d 687 ; Brock v. Superior Court (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 682, 686-688, 81 P.2d 931

Court is empowered, in appropriate case, to issue writ of mandate compelling agency to repeal invalid regulation. Clean Air Constituency v. California State Air Resources Bd. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 801, 809, 819-820, 114 Cal. Rptr. 577, 523 P.2d 617 ; California Welfare Rights Organization v. Brian (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 237, 243-244, 113 Cal. Rptr. 154, 520 P.2d 970

Writ of prohibition or habeas corpus is available in appropriate case for relief against invalid regulation. In re Petersen (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 177, 181, 331 P.2d 24 (habeas corpus); Moore v. Municipal Court (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 548, 552-554, 339 P.2d 196

Regulation adopted by local agency is not subject to judicial notice. Fickeisen v. Civil Service Com. (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 419, 423, 220 P.2d 605

Publication of state agency's regulation is not condition precedent to court's taking judicial notice of it. People v. Haugh (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 603, 607, 31 Cal. Rptr. 74

[3] Review

Analysis of validity of regulation is essentially same as in case of review of constitutionality of statute. Knudsen Creamery Co. v. Brock (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 485, 494, 234 P.2d 26

Regulation held within scope of agency's authority. Credit Ins. General Agents Asso. v. Payne (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 651, 653, 656, 128 Cal. Rptr. 881, 547 P.2d 993 ; Kerr's Catering Service v. Department of Industrial Relations (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 319, 330, 19 Cal. Rptr. 492, 369 P.2d 20 , cert. denied, 371 U.S. 818, 83 S. Ct. 31, 9 L. Ed. 2d 58 ; California Drive-in Restaurant Ass'n v. Clark (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 287, 302, 140 P.2d 657

Regulation held to exceed scope of agency's authority. First Industrial Loan Co. v. Daugherty (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 545, 551, 556, 159 P.2d 921 ; Whitcomb Hotel, Inc. v. Cal. Emp. Com. (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 753, 756-759, 151 P.2d 233 ; Stanislaus County Dairymen's Protection Ass'n v. Stanislaus County (1937) 8 Cal. 2d 378, 391-392, 65 P.2d 1305 ; Boone v. Kingsbury (1928) 206 Cal. 148, 160-163, 273 P. 797

Requirement that regulation be reasonably necessary does not refer to strict necessity but requires reasonable relation to statutory objective. Credit Ins. General Agents Asso. v. Payne (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 651, 657, 128 Cal. Rptr. 881 P.2d 993; Schenley Affiliated Brands Corp. v. Kirby (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 177, 187, 98 Cal. Rptr. 609

Reasonableness is implicitly required where agency empowered to adopt regulations. Ex parte McManus (1907) 151 Cal. 331, 336-337, 90 P. 702

Issue of reasonable necessity is not related to question whether regulation is wise or sensible; court is not entitled to substitute its legislative judgment for agency's. Morris v. Williams (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 733, 737, 63 Cal. Rptr. 689, 433 P.2d 697 ; Pitts v. Perluss (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 824, 834, 27 Cal. Rptr. 19, 377 P.2d 83

Regulation is invalid if varying, enlarging, or restricting terms of statute it purports to implement. First Industrial Loan Co. v. Daugherty (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 545, 550, 159 P.2d 921 ; Hodge v. McCall (1921) 185 Cal. 330, 334, 197 P. 86 ; In re Potter (1913) 164 Cal. 735, 737-740, 130 P. 721 ; California Teachers Assn. v. Commission on Teacher Credentialing (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 1469, 1475, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 126

Agency is without power to amend regulation so as to change definition of term where Legislature has implicitly adopted administrative definition. Cooper v. Swoap (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 856, 868, 115 Cal. Rptr. 1, 524 P.2d 97 , cert. denied, 419 U.S. 1022, 95 S. Ct. 498, 42 L. Ed. 2d 296

Regulation conflicting with statute is not invalid if conflict authorized by Legislature. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. v. Superior Court (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 392, 420, 128 Cal. Rptr. 183, 546 P.2d 687

Regulation infringing on area where another agency has exclusive control is invalid. Western Oil & Gas Ass'n v. Orange County Air Pollution Control Dist. (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 411, 418-421, 121 Cal. Rptr. 249, 534 P.2d 1329

Administrative regulations that alter or amend statute or enlarge or impair its scope are void and are required to be struck down by courts. Dunn-Edwards Corp. v. Bay Area Air Quality Management Dist. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 644, 655, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 850

In determining whether regulations are reasonably necessary to effectuate statutory purpose, court does not intervene in absence of arbitrary or capricious decision and court does not need to make such determination if regulations transgress statutory power. Dunn-Edwards Corp. v. Bay Area Air Quality Management Dist. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 644, 655, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 850

Regulation challenged as inconsistent with terms or intent of authorizing statute is subject to greater judicial scrutiny than regulation merely challenged as abuse of discretion. California Ass'n of Psychology Providers v. Rank (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1, 11-12, 270 Cal. Rptr. 796, 793 P.2d 2

Administrative action is required to be within scope of authority conferred by enabling statute; administrative directive that in effect alters or amends enabling statute, or enlarges or impairs its scope, is void. Association for Retarded Citizens v. Department of Developmental Services (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 384, 391, 211 Cal. Rptr. 758, 696 P.2d 150 ; Norman v. McMahon (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1450, 1453-1454, 275 Cal. Rptr. 698

In action challenging validity of administrative regulation, trial court did not commit error in refusing to allow plaintiffs to present additional evidence as to reasonableness of regulation because trial court is limited to examination of administrative record. Ford Dealers Ass'n v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 347, 365 n.11, 185 Cal. Rptr. 453, 650 P.2d 328

Administrative regulations are not unconstitutionally vague, even if portions of them must be refined and developed on case-by-case basis. Wallace Berrie & Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 60, 65, 219 Cal. Rptr. 142, 707 P.2d 204 ; Ford Dealers Ass'n v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 347, 365-369, 185 Cal. Rptr. 453, 650 P.2d 328

Court's role in reviewing administrative regulations is limited to inquiring into legality of challenged regulation by determining whether or not regulation (1) is within scope of authority conferred on agency and (2) is reasonably necessary to effectuate purpose of authorizing statute. Ford Dealers Ass'n v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 347, 355, 185 Cal. Rptr. 453, 650 P.2d 328

When regulation is consistent with statute and reasonably necessary to effectuate statute's purpose, task of reviewing court is to decide whether agency reasonably interpreted legislative mandate. Associated Beverage Co. v. Board of

Equalization (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 192, 201, 273 Cal. Rptr. 639

Limited scope of review when regulation is consistent with statute and reasonably necessary to effectuate statute's purpose does not constitute judicial interference with administrative discretion in that aspect of rule making that requires high degree of technical skill and expertise. Associated Beverage Co. v. Board of Equalization (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 192, 201, 273 Cal. Rptr. 639

On appellate court review of trial court's order in Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 mandate proceeding, determination of Office of Administrative Law (OAL) that challenged "underground" regulation was invalid is entitled to due consideration, because OAL is charged with interpreting whether agency rule is regulation as defined in Gov. Code § 11342(b). Union of American Physicians & Dentists v. Kizer (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 490, 497, 272 Cal Rptr. 886

Permanent interpretive guidelines adopted by California Coastal Commission are not subject to review by Office of Administrative Law. California Coastal Com. v. Office of Admin. Law (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 758, 761-764, 258 Cal. Rptr. 560 (construing Pub. Res. Code § 30333)

Scope of review of administrative agency's regulations is limited to considering whether challenged provisions are consistent and not in conflict with enabling statute, and reasonably necessary to effectuate its purpose. 301 Ocean Avenue Corp. v. Santa Monica Rent Control Board (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 149, 154, 221 Cal. Rptr. 610

Administrative order which is legislative in character is subject to same tests of validity as act of Legislature. Horwarth v. Local Agency Formation Com. (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 177, 182, 191 Cal. Rptr. 593

Task of court reviewing administrative agency's regulation is that of deciding whether or not agency reasonably interpreted legislative mandate. Woods v. Superior Court (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 668, 679, 170 Cal. Rptr. 484, 620 P.2d 1032

On judicial review of validity of administrative regulation, party challenging regulation has burden of proof because action of administrative agency comes before court with presumption of correctness and regularity. Geftakys v. State Personnel Board (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 844, 867, 188 Cal. Rptr. 305

Judicial review of quasi-legislative acts of administrative agency is limited to examination of proceedings before agency to determine whether agency's action arbitrary, capricious, or entirely lacking in evidentiary support, or whether it has failed to follow procedure and give notices required by law; reasoning or wisdom underlying agency action is beyond scope of inquiry. Geftakys v. State Personnel Board (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 844, 867, 188 Cal. Rptr. 305

Scope of judicial inquiry into quasi-legislative actions of state agency is restricted to examination of record for procedural compliance and to determine whether or not action taken is arbitrary, capricious, or entirely lacking in evidentiary support; reasoning or wisdom underlying agency action is beyond scope of inquiry. Stauffer Chemical Co. v. Air Resources Board (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 789, 796, 180 Cal. Rptr. 550

Industrial Welfare Commission's statements of basis, as required by Lab. Code § 1177, sufficiently support administrative orders regulating wages, hours, and conditions of employment when statements detailed factual, legal, and policy considerations that reasonably related to issuance of order. California Manufacturers Assn. v. Industrial Welfare Com. (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 95, 106-115, 167 Cal. Rptr. 203

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency RulemakingRule Application & InterpretationValidityAdministrative LawAgency

RulemakingState ProceedingsAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesDeclaratory JudgmentsAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesInjunctive ReliefAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesProhibitionAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewRule InterpretationAdministrative LawSeparation of PowersLegislative ControlsExplicit Delegation of AuthorityAdministrative LawSeparation of PowersLegislative ControlsImplicit Delegation of Authority

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.34

§ 472B.34 Law Reviews

Gordon, Compensable Regulatory Taking: A Tollbooth Rises on Regulation Road, 12 Real Est. L.J. 211 (1984)

Livingston, Organizations and Administrative Practice--A Balance to the Corporate State? 26 Hastings L.J. 89 (1974)

Hannon, The Philosophy of Administrative Law Making, 42 State BJ 661 (1967)

Hutchinson, Rule Making Function of California Administrative Agencies, 15 Hastings L.J. 272 (1964)

Harris, State Regulation of Hazards Growing Out of Use of Atomic Energy, 46 Calif. L. Rev. 84 (1958)

Comment, Administrative Law and Procedure: Emergency Regulations, 27 So Cal. L Rev (1953)

Comment, The Void for Vagueness Rule in California, 41 Calif. L. Rev. 523, 529-532 (1953)

Note, Administrative Law: Agency Authority to Develop Policy by Adjudication Rather Than Rule, 36 Calif. L. Rev. 619 (1948)

Newman, How Courts Interpret Regulations, 35 Calif. L. Rev. 509 (1947)

Comment, Administrative Law: Retroactive Revision of Invalid Regulations, 35 Calif. L. Rev. 92 (1947)

Note, Constitutional Law: Delegation of Legislative Power to Administrative Officers: Discretion to Grant or Refuse Permits, 19 Calif. L. Rev. 448 (1931)

Thelen, Practice and Procedure Before Administrative Tribunals, 16 Calif. L. Rev. 208 (1928)

Comment, Constitutional Law: Delegation of Legislative Power to Administrative Officers: Discretion to Grant or

Refuse Licenses and Permits, and Power to Make Rules, 15 Calif. L. Rev. 408 (1927)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingRule Application & InterpretationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawSeparation of PowersConstitutional ControlsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawSeparation of PowersLegislative ControlsGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental FreedomsJudicial & Legislative RestraintsOverbreadth & Vagueness

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.35

§ 472B.35 Text References

Witkin, Summary of California Law, vol. 7, Constitutional Law, § 533-535 (9th ed 1988)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.36

§ 472B.36 Internet References

NOTE: On and after July 1, 1998, The OAL is required by Gov. Code § 11340.1(b) to make the full text of the California Code of Regulations, with reference citations and history notes, available on the Internet free of charge.

Office of Administrative Law. This site includes: OAL publications; links to OAL statutes and regulations relating to rulemaking; regulations submitted to the OAL for review, and information for contacting or provding input to the OAL regarding rulemaking. http://www.oal.ca.gov

California Home Page. This site includes links to other sites maintained by numerous state agencies. http://www.ca.gov

Department of Consumer Affairs. This site includes links to sites maintained by many state agencies that are under this department, as well as links to agency sites. http://www.dca.ca.gov

California Courts. This site includes: general information about state court organization and specific court; text of recently filed slip opinions; court minutes and calendars; text of California Rules of Court; Judicial Council forms and other information promulgated by the Judicial Council; links to sites of most Court of Appeal districts, with text of local appellate rules, forms, and internal operating procedures; links to other sites maintained by local trial courts, state government agencies and organizations, federal courts and federal organizations, and other sources of legal information. http://www.courtinfo.ca.gov

California Legislative Information. This site includes: text of constitution, codes, and statutes (including complete text of APA); and information concerning pending legislation. http://www.leginfo.ca.gov

Matthew Bender. This site includes: links to Matthew Bender publications and Shepard's citation service. http://www.bender.com

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 472B.37-472B.49

[Reserved]

§§ 472B.37[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.50

§ 472B.50 Determine the Appropriate Method of Judicial Review of Agency Rulemaking

[1] Ascertain If an Action for Declaratory Relief Is Appropriate

☐ The challenged action is quasi-legislative (rulemaking) rather than judicial (adjudicatory) [see § 472B.10[1]].

☐ Agency has not yet started enforcement proceedings against the party challenging the regulation [see § 472B.10[1]].

☐ None of the following alternatives to declaratory relief is appropriate or desirable:

- ☐ Petition for amendment or repeal of the regulation [see § 472B.10[2][a]].
- ☐ Priority review by OAL [see § 472B.10[2][b]].
- ☐ Defense in an enforcement action [see § 472B.10[2][c]].
- ☐ Review of the informal rule pursuant to a request for OAL determination [see § 472B.10[2][d]].

[2] Ascertain the Preliminary Activities the Plaintiff Should Perform Before Filing Action

☐ Review of the regulatory code supplement [see § 472B.11[1]].

☐ Review of the rulemaking record [see § 472B.11[2]].

[3] Ascertain the Following Issues Before Filing Action

☐ Plaintiff's standing to bring action [see § 472B.13[2]].

☐ Ripeness of the controversy [see § 472B.13[3]].

☐ Whether administrative remedies have been exhausted (non-APA cases) [see § 472B.13[4]].

☐ The appropriate court [see § 472B.12[1]].

☐ The appropriate venue [see § 472B.12[1]].

[4] Ascertain Whether the Plaintiff Should Seek Other Remedies in Declaratory Relief Action

☐ Writ of mandamus [see § 472B.12[3]].

☐ Injunction [see § 472B.12[4]].

[5] Ascertain the Specific Grounds That May Support a Declaration of Invalidity

☐ The regulation substantially fails to comply with the APA [see § 472B.14[1]].

☐ The facts in the statement of emergency (for emergency regulations) do not constitute an emergency [see § 472B.14[1]].

☐ The agency's determination of necessity is not supported by substantial evidence [see § 472B.14[4][d]].

☐ The action exceeds the agency's authority [see § 472B.14[4][a]].

☐ The action violates a controlling constitutional or statutory provision [see § 472B.14[4][b]].

☐ The regulation is unclear [see § 472B.14[4][c]].

☐ The action is procedurally defective [see § 472B.14[4][e]].

[6] Ascertain Methods That May Be Used to Challenge the Validity of a Regulation If the Agency Has Already Initiated Enforcement Proceedings

☐ Assert the invalidity of the regulation as a defense in the administrative hearing [see § 472B.15].

☐ Raise the issue of estoppel in the administrative hearing [see § 472B.16].

☐ Seek a writ of administrative mandamus if the agency upholds the validity of the regulation [see § 472B.15].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency RulemakingRule Application & InterpretationValidityAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesDeclaratory JudgmentsAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityExhaustion of RemediesAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityRipenessAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityStandingAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewExceeding Statutory AuthorityAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewSubstantial Evidence

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.51

§ 472B.51 Seeking Declaratory Relief Prior to Enforcement of Regulation

[1] Prior to Litigation

☐ Review actions preceding adoption of regulation [see discussion in § 472B.12[1]].

☐ Request rulemaking record for review [see discussion in § 472B.12[2]].

☐ Note each and every failure to comply with the APA [see discussion in § 472B.12[c]].

☐ Prepare complaint for declaratory relief [for a form, see, § 472B.60].

☐ If desired, combine with petition for writ of mandamus, petition for injunction, or both [see discussion in § 472B.13[3], [4]].

☐ Prepare verification or accompanying affidavits supporting allegations in complaint.

☐ Be prepared to furnish a bond if seeking temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction.

☐ File action for declaratory relief in superior court [Gov. Code § 11350(a); see discussion in § 472B.13[2][a]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency RulemakingState ProceedingsAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesDeclaratory JudgmentsAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesInjunctive Relief

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.52

§ 472B.52 Declaratory Relief to Determine Validity of Regulation

[1] Declaratory Relief

☐ Prepare complaint for declaratory relief [Gov. Code § 11350.3; see discussion in § 472B.13[2][d]; for a form, see, § 472B.61].

☐ File action for declaratory relief in superior court [Gov. Code § 11350(a); see discussion in § 472B.13[2][d]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency RulemakingRule Application & InterpretationValidityAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesDeclaratory JudgmentsAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewRule Interpretation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 472B.53-472B.59

[Reserved]

§§ 472B.53[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART V. FORMS

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.60

§ 472B.60 Complaint for Declaratory and Injunctive Relief Regarding Validity of Administrative Regulation [Gov. Code § 11350]

[1] FORM Complaint for Declaratory and Injunctive Relief Regarding Validity of Administrative Regulation [Gov. Code § 11350]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name], individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated,	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF AND [TEMPORARY RESTRAINING PRELIMINARY AND] FINAL INJUNCTION(S)
_____ [names],	)
Defendants.	)
	)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff is _____ [status as interested person, e.g., if attacking regulation of Medical Board of California, a duly licensed and practicing physician].

2. Defendant is the _____ [official status, e.g., Medical Board of California, an administrative agency in the state government].

3. _____ [Identify regulation in question, e.g., On January 18, 1998, defendant adopted a regulation _____ (particular identification, if any, e.g. thereafter published as Section _____ of Title _____ of the California Code of Regulations), a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A and incorporated herein or set out text of regulation if copy is not attached, e.g., the provisions of which are as follows: _____ (verbatim text)].

4. _____ [State nature of present controversy, e.g., Pursuant to that regulation, defendant has demanded that plaintiff report all of the information required by the regulation to be reported to defendant; and defendant has threatened to begin disciplinary proceedings against plaintiff if plaintiff does not comply with the regulation. Plaintiff has refused to comply for the reason, which plaintiff has communicated to defendant, that enforcement of the regulation against plaintiff would violate plaintiff's constitutional rights].

5. The regulation in question is not valid for the reason that _____[specify].

6. _____[State facts showing exhaustion of administrative remedies, or lack of administrative remedy, or excuse for failure to exhaust administrative remedies].

7. _____ [State facts showing need for preventive relief, if needed, including facts showing need for provisional relief, e.g., Because of plaintiff's refusal to comply with the regulation, defendant has begun a disciplinary proceeding against plaintiff which will result in the suspension, or possibly the revocation, of plaintiff's license unless this court enjoins the administrative proceeding pending judgment in this action and thereafter permanently enjoins defendant from prosecuting any disciplinary proceeding against plaintiff because of plaintiff's noncompliance with the regulation. In addition, unless this court gives appropriate provisional and final preventive relief, plaintiff will be obliged to defend himself/herself in administrative proceedings, against charges having no legal merit].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For a declaration that the regulation referred to in Paragraph 3 is not valid and that plaintiff has no legal duty to comply with it;

2. _____ [For preventive relief, e.g., For a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction enjoining defendant from enforcing or attempting to enforce the regulation against plaintiff, and from beginning, threatening to begin, or carrying on any disciplinary proceeding against plaintiff because of failure to comply with the regulation, pending judgment in this action; and for a final injunction permanently enjoining defendant from doing any of those acts after judgment];

3. For costs of suit herein incurred [and for reasonable litigation expenses]; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff

VERIFICATION

I, _____[name], am the plaintiff in this action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to matters therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]
_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by any interested person wishing a judicial declaration as to the validity of an administrative regulation. The prescribed remedy is an action for declaratory relief [Gov. Code § 11350].

[3] Verification

A complaint seeking preliminary injunctive relief must be either verified or accompanied by affidavits (or declarations under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) in support of the allegations of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. The public entity defendant need not verify its answer even though the complaint is verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446(a)]. However, the verification of the complaint against the public entity does preclude a general denial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; San Juan G. Co. v. San Juan R. etc. Assn. (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 159, 174, 93 P.2d 582] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[4] Jurisdiction and Venue

The complaint must be filed in the superior court. Venue is to be determined by the rules ordinarily applied in civil actions [Gov. Code § 11350]. For a discussion of venue, see Ch. 571, Venue .

[5] Allegations

The complaint must show how the plaintiff is interested in a judicial declaration of the validity of the regulation in question; and it must show an actual controversy relating to the legal rights and duties of the respective parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060; Gov. Code § 11350].

[6] Interested Persons

A person is sufficiently interested to sue under Gov. Code § 11350 if there is an actual controversy relating to his or her and the agency's (defendant's) legal rights and duties under the regulation in question [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060; Gov. Code § 11350]. Thus, a trade association whose members are subject to the regulation, but which is not itself subject to it, has been held not to have sufficient interest to sue [Associated Boat Industries v. Marshall (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 21, 22-23, 230 P.2d 379] . On the other hand, a corporation has been held to have a sufficient interest to sue where, although not subject itself to the regulation in question, it would suffer impairment of existing contractual rights if the regulation were enforced [Sperry & Hutchinson Co. v. Cal. State Bd. of Pharmacy (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 229, 232-233, 50 Cal. Rptr. 489] . The requirement that the plaintiff be interested simply reflects the basic principle that actions must be prosecuted by the real party in interest except as otherwise provided by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 367].

[7] Scope of Review

When an administrative regulation is challenged in a declaratory relief action, the court's task is to inquire into the legality of the challenged regulation, not its wisdom [Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. v. Superior Court (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 392, 411, 128 Cal. Rptr. 183, 546 P.2d 687] . The regulation will be presumed valid [see, e.g., Ralphs Grocery Co. v. Reimel (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 172, 175, 70 Cal. Rptr. 407, 444 P.2d 79] .

The presumption may be overcome by showing any of three following particular defects, among others that might be imagined [see Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. v. Superior Court (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 392, 411, 128 Cal. Rptr. 183, 546 P.2d 687] :

- There was a substantial failure to comply with the provisions of Gov. Code § 11340 et seq. (adoption, filing, publication, and review of regulations) [Gov. Code § 11350].

- The regulation is not within the scope of authority conferred on the agency by the Legislature [see Gov. Code § 11342.1].

- The regulation is not consistent and not in conflict with the enabling statute and is not reasonably necessary to effectuate the purpose of the statute [Gov. Code § 11342.2].

If the regulation purports to be an emergency regulation, it might also be invalidated because of the absence of a genuine emergency [see Gov. Code § 11350(a)].

In addition to any other ground which may exist, a regulation may be declared invalid if the court cannot find that the record of the rulemaking proceeding [see Gov. Code § 11347.3] supports the agency's determination that the regulation is reasonably necessary to effectuate the purpose of the statute, decision, or other legal provision being implemented, interpreted, or made specific by the regulation. Alternatively a regulation may be declared invalid if the agency declaration, pursuant to Gov. Code§ 11346.5(a)(8), that adoption or amendment of the regulation will not have a significant adverse economic impact on business, is in conflict with substantial evidence in the record [Gov. Code § 11350(b)].

The approval of a regulation by the Office of Administrative Law or the governor's overruling of a decision to disapprove a regulation [see Gov. Code § 11349 et seq.] may not be considered by a court in any action for declaratory relief brought with respect to the regulation [Gov. Code § 11350(c)].

[8] Administrative Remedies

As in many other situations, the plaintiff is required to exhaust administrative remedies, if he or she has any; and it must affirmatively appear in the complaint that he or she has complied with the requirement, or that he or she should be excused for failing to comply, or that the requirement does not apply because there is no administrative remedy. Allegations respecting administrative remedies should be simple statements of fact as to what the plaintiff did or as to the absence of an administrative remedy. It is not sufficient simply to state that he or she has exhausted his or her administrative remedies. The right to judicial determination of the validity of a regulation is not affected by the failure either to petition or to seek reconsideration of a petition filed pursuant to Gov. Code § 11340.7 (petitions to adopt, amend, or repeal administrative regulations) before the agency promulgating the regulation [Gov. Code § 11350(a)].

[9] Injunction

In an appropriate case the plaintiff may seek preventive relief (by provisional or final injunction) as well as a mere declaratory judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1062 (cumulation of remedies)]. It will be necessary to show grounds for such relief by proper allegations [see Civ. Code § 3422 (final injunction); Code Civ. Proc. § 526 (provisional injunction)].

If the plaintiff seeks provisional preventive relief (temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction), he or she must be prepared to furnish a bond [see Code Civ. Proc. § 529]; and if the complaint is used (instead of an affidavit) to support a prayer for such relief, it must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527]. Provisional preventive relief may be sought whether or not the plaintiff also seeks permanent preventive relief. For discussion and forms for use in an action for preventive relief, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[10] Costs and Attorney's Fees

Costs are recoverable by the plaintiff if he or she prevails [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1028, 1029]. Reasonable litigation expenses not in excess of $7,500, including attorney's fees, are recoverable by a prevailing small business or licensee (defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 1028.5(c), (d), respectively) in an action between the business or licensee and a state regulatory agency involving to the agency's regulatory functions as applied to the small business or licensee, if the court determines that the action of the agency was undertaken without substantial justification [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1028.5].

[11] Exceptional Cases

The validity of a regulation adopted by the Public Utilities Commission or Workmen's Compensation Appeals Board may not be tested in an action for declaratory relief [see Gov. Code § 11351]. The remedy is a certiorari proceeding in an appellate court [see Lab. Code § 5950; Pub. Util. Code § 1756]. This is also apparently true with respect to regulations adopted by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 23090] and the Director of Alcoholic Beverage Control [see Schenley Affiliated Brands Corp. v. Kirby (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 177, 195-196, 98 Cal. Rptr. 609] .

[12] Cross References

For discussion and forms relating to a proceeding for review of regulations of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board and the Director of Alcoholic Beverage Control, see Ch. 18, Alcoholic Beverage Licenses and Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of.

For discussion and forms relating to actions for declaratory judgment and preventive relief, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief , and Ch. 303, Injunctions .

For discussion and forms relating to a proceeding for review of regulations of the Public Utilities Commission or the Workmen's Compensation Appeals Board, see Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41: Overview of Public Administrative Law thru Review of Agency Rulemaking-Chs. 470-472B
Chapter 472B REVIEW OF AGENCY RULEMAKING
PART V. FORMS

41-472B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 472B.61

§ 472B.61 Complaint for Declaratory Relief Regarding Validity of Administrative Regulation Disapproved or Ordered Repealed by the OAL

[1] FORM Complaint for Declaratory Relief Regarding Validity of Administrative Regulation Disapproved or Ordered Repealed by the OAL

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____
[or other as appropriate]

_____ [name], individually and	) on behalf of all others similarly situated,	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF
_____ [names],	)
Defendants.	)
	)

_____

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Status of plaintiff as interested person; see § 472B.60, Paragraph 1.]

2. Defendant Office of Administrative Law is an office of the government of the State of California. Defendant _____[name] is the Director of defendant Office of Administrative Law and is responsible for its direction and control.

3. On _____[date], _____ [specify agency that adopted regulation in question, e.g., the Medical Board of California] duly adopted Regulation No. _____, hereinafter referred to as "the regulation," _____ [which provided as follows: "_____" (quote regulation) or a true copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A, and incorporated by reference herein].

4. On _____[date], the Office of Administrative Law _____ [specify action taken by office, e.g., disapproved the regulation submitted for review pursuant to _____ (Government Code section 11349.3 or Government Code section 11349.6 or Government Code section 11349.7)] _____ [specify reasons given for action by office, e.g., for failure to meet the standards set forth in Government Code section 11346.1 or for failure of the Medical Board of California to comply with the provisions of Government Code section 11340 et seq.].

5. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between plaintiff and defendants, in that plaintiff contends that the regulation is valid and enforceable because _____ [specify reasons why regulation valid e.g., the Medical Board of California complied with the provisions of Government Code section 11340 et seq. or the regulation meets the standards set forth in Government Code section 11346.1], whereas defendants dispute this contention.

6. Plaintiff desires a declaration as to the validity of the regulation. Such a declaration is necessary and appropriate at this time under the circumstances in order that plaintiff may ascertain his or her rights and duties with respect to the regulation. _____ [Specify present controversy, e.g., Pursuant to the regulation, plaintiff has been exempt from reporting to the Medical Board of California information otherwise required. With the appeal of the regulation plaintiff is now no longer exempt and is required to report the information].

7. _____[Specify facts showing exhaustion or lack of administrative remedies or excuse for failure to exhaust administrative remedies].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For a declaration that the regulation is valid;

2. For an order directing the Office of Administrative Law to file the regulation with the Secretary of State;

3. For costs of suit incurred herein; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court deems proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired; see § 472B.60.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by any interested person wishing a judicial declaration of the validity of an administrative regulation disapproved or ordered repealed by the Office of Administrative Law pursuant to Gov. Code § 11349.3, 11349.6 or 11349.7 [Gov. Code § 11350.3].

[3] Verification

The public entity defendant need not verify its answer even though the complaint is verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446(a)]. However, the verification of the complaint against the public entity does preclude a general denial in superior court and in some municipal court actions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

[4] Relief Available

The court may declare the regulation valid if it determines that the regulation meets the standards set forth in Gov. Code § 11349.1 and that the agency has complied with the provisions of Gov. Code §§ 11340-11356. If the court determines that the regulation is valid it may order the Office of Administrative Law to immediately file the regulation with the Secretary of State [Gov. Code § 11350.3].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 473.syn

§ 473.syn Synopsis to Chapter 473: PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION

§ 473.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 473.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

[2] Judicial Review

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

[4] Specific Public Agencies

[5] Other Chapters Relating to Public Agencies

§§ 473.03-473.09 [Reserved]

§ 473.10 Administrative Adjudications and Administrative Rule Making Distinguished

§ 473.11 Administrative Ajudication and Civil Trial Compared

§ 473.12 Due Process Considerations in Administrative Adjudications

§ 473.13 The Administrative Adjudication Provisions of the APA

[1] Chapters 4.5 and 5 of the APA

[2] Supplementary Regulations Governing Agency Adjudications

[3] Office of Administrative Hearings Regulations Governing Hearing Procedures

§ 473.14 Definitions in the APA Administrative Adjudication Provisions

[1] Applicability of Definitions in Chapters 4.5 and 5

[2] Definitions

[a] "Adjudicative Proceeding"

[b] "Agency"

[c] "Agency Head"

[d] "Decision"

[e] "Party"

[f] "Person"

[g] "Presiding Officer"

§ 473.15 Applicability of the APA Administrative Adjudication Provisions

[1] Applicability of Chapter 4.5

[a] Proceedings Subject to Chapter 4.5 in General

[b] Agency Adjudication Required by Statute or Constitutional Provision

[i] General Rule

[ii] Proceedings in Which Chapter 4.5 Does Not Apply

[iii] Type of Hearing When Chapter 4.5 Applies

[c] State Agencies Subject to Chapter 4.5

[d] Local Agencies

[e] Adoption by Exempt Agencies

[f] Application of Chapter 4.5 to Agency Proceedings Under Chapter 5

[g] Quasi-Public Entities

[2] Applicability of Chapter 5

[a] Applicability Determined by Statutes Relating to Specific Agency

[b] Most Licensing Agencies Are Subject to Chapter 5

§ 473.16 The General Adjudication Procedures of Chapter 4.5

[1] General Provisions for Application of Adjudication Procedures

[a] Adjudication Provisions Supplement Other Controlling Law

[b] Governor's Limited Power to Suspend Adjudication Procedure

[c] Voluntary Waiver of Rights Conferred by Adjudication Provisions

[d] Procedure Used When Adjudicative Proceeding not Required

[e] Agency Decision by Mutual Settlement

[2] General Procedural Provisions of Chapter 4.5

[a] Authority of Agency Head Following Decision

[b] General Provision for Service and Notice

[c] Conduct of Hearing by Electronic Means

[d] Sexual Conduct Evidence in Sexual Harassment, Sexual Assault, or Sexual Battery Proceedings

[e] Intervention Procedures

[i] Intervention Allowed When Permitted by Regulation

[ii] Motion for Intervention

[iii] Conditional Intervention

[iv] Order Granting or Denying Motion

[v] Order Not Reviewable

[vi] Adoption of Alternatives to Intervention

[f] Written Communications

[3] Other Provisions in Chapter 4.5

§§ 473.17-473.19 [Reserved]

§ 473.20 Summary of Administrative Adjudication "Bill of Rights"

§ 473.21 Notice and Opportunity to Be Heard

§ 473.22 Right to a Copy of Governing Procedure

§ 473.23 Public Hearing

§ 473.24 Separation of Function Between Prosecutors and Adjudicators

§ 473.25 Disqualification of Presiding Officer for Bias, Interest, or Prejudice

§ 473.26 Written Decision Stating Factual and Legal Basis

§ 473.27 Agency Decision Must Be Designated to Be Precedent Authority

§ 473.28 Prohibition on Ex Parte Communications

[1] General Prohibition

[2] Definitions

[3] Permissible Ex Parte Communications

[4] Consequences of Ex Parte Communication Violations

[5] Application to Agency Head

§ 473.29 Language Assistance

[1] General Rule Requiring Language Assistance

[2] When the Rule Applies

[a] Generally When Party or Witness Needs Assistance

[b] Agencies Required to Provide Language Assistance

[3] Language Assistance Requirements

[4] Interpreter Requirements

[5] Costs of Interpreters

§§ 473.30-473.39 [Reserved]

§ 473.40 Federal Constitution

§ 473.41 State Constitution

§ 473.42 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

[2] Related Statutes

§ 473.43 Decisions

§ 473.44 Attorney General Opinions

§ 473.45 Law Reviews

§ 473.46 Text References

§ 473.47 Internet References

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.01

§ 473.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter provides an overview discussion of agency adjudication in California public administrative law. The background discussion in Part II includes:

- Subpart A discusses general hearing procedures for public agency adjudications under the California Administrative Procedure Act (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.) [see § 473.10 et seq.].

- Subpart B discusses the fair procedure requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act's "Adjudication Bill of Rights" (Gov. Code. Code § 11425.10) [see § 473.20].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.02

§ 473.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

For related discussion and forms providing more detailed coverage of the other stages of an agency adjudication under the formal hearing provisions of the APA, see:

- Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication.
- Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473D, Prehearing Preparations in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges.
- Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings.
- Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions.

For related discussion and forms providing more detailed coverage of adjudication methods under the APA other than that of formal hearing, see Ch. 473H, Alternative Adminstrative Adjudication Procedures .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to licensing agencies, including licensing adjudications, see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies .

[2] Judicial Review

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to review by California courts of agency adjudications, see:

- Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions.
- Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions.
- Ch. 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions.
- Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions.

For other related discussion and forms relating to judicial review generally, see:

- Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, through Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review (discussion and forms relating to civil appeals).
- Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of orders by extraordinary writ of mandate or prohibition).
- Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of civil proceedings by extraordinary writ of review).

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

For related discussion of California public administrative law generally, including discussion of public agency functions and powers (including adjudicative or quasi-judicial powers), and organization generally, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law (general discussion of judicial power is in § 470.12[5]). For detailed discussion of the general procedures imposed in agency proceedings by constitutional due process and related statutory requirements, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies .

For discussion and forms relating to the law governing access to and conduct of meetings by California public agencies, see Ch. 470B, Public Agency Meetings .

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the law governing disclosure of public records under the California Public Records Act [Cal. Gov. Code §§ 6250 et seq.], see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to agency investigations and inspections, see:

- Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies.
- Ch. 471A, Inspections by Public Agencies.

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to the legislative or rulemaking functions of California public agencies, including judicial review of these functions, see:

- Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules.
- Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures.
- Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking.

[4] Specific Public Agencies

For related coverage of adjudicative proceedings before particular public agencies, see:

- Ch. 18, Alcoholic Beverage Licenses (discussion and forms relating to licensing proceedings before the department of Alcoholic Beverage Control).

- Ch. 70, Attorney Admission and Ch. 71, Attorney Discipline (discussion and forms relating to licensing and discipline of attorneys and proceedings before the State Bar and the State Bar Court).

- Ch. 92, Automobiles: Drivers' Licenses (discussion and forms relating to drivers' licensing and proceedings before the Department of Motor Vehicles).

- Ch. 104, Building Contracts, § 104.70 et seq. (discussion relating to licensing and discipline of building contractors by the Contractors' State License Board).

- Ch. 118, Civil Service (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the Personnel Board).

- Ch. 209, Dentists (discussion and forms relating to licensing and discipline of dentists and proceedings before the Board of Dental Examiners).

- Ch. 214, Drugs and Pharmacists (discussion and forms relating to licensing and discipline of pharmacists and proceedings before the State Board of Pharmacy).

- Ch. 414, Physicians: Licensing and Discipline (discussion and forms relating to licensing and discipline of physicians and proceedings before the Medical Board of California).

- Ch. 480, Public Utilities (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the Public Utilities Commission).

- Ch. 512, Schools: Certification, Dismissal, and Related Employment Issues, (discussion and forms relating to teacher certification and dismissal proceedings before the State Board of Education and local boards).

- Ch. 527, Social Services (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the State Department of Social Service or the State Department of Health Services).

- Ch. 564, Unemployment and Disability Insurance, §§ 564.30 et seq., 564.100 et seq. (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board).

- Ch. 575, Waters, §§ 575.10 et seq., 575.210 et seq. (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the State Water Resources Control Board and local water districts).

- Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the Division of Workers' Compensation and the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board).

For additional cross references to coverage of other particular public agencies, see § 470.02[2].

[5] Other Chapters Relating to Public Agencies

For discussion and forms relating to claims and actions under the California Tort Claims Act (Gov. Code. Code § 810 et seq.), for damages for injuries arising from the tortious conduct of public agencies or their officers and employees, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawGovernmental InformationPublic MeetingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesProhibitionAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsLicensesGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473.03-473.09

[Reserved]

§§ 473.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Administrative Adjudication in General

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.10

§ 473.10 Administrative Adjudications and Administrative Rule Making Distinguished

Many administrative agencies have both rulemaking and adjudicative powers, which are similar to the legislative and judicial powers of legislatures and courts. Rulemaking actions, often referred to as "quasi-legislative" actions, entail formulation of general rules that are applicable to future situations [Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Ass'n (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 28, 34 n. 2, 112 Cal. Rptr. 805, 520 P.2d 29] . Examples of quasi-legislative actions are enacting a zoning ordinance for a specific area [see Ensign Bickford Realty Corp. v. City Council (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 467, 473, 137 Cal. Rptr. 304] , or setting government employee salaries or benefits [Campbell Municipal Employees Assn. v. City of Campbell (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 416, 425 n. 5, 182 Cal. Rptr. 461] . The rulemaking power of administrative agencies is discussed in detail in Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules , et seq.

In contrast, "adjudicative" actions, often referred to as "quasi-judicial" actions, are those in which the agency has discretion to apply a rule to a specific set of facts [Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Ass'n (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 28, 34 n. 2, 112 Cal. Rptr. 805, 520 P.2d 29] . The agency "adjudicates" when it makes a binding determination that directly affect the legal rights of a particular individual [Hannah v. Larche (1960) 363 U.S. 420, 442, 80 S. Ct. 1502, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1307] . Thus, adjudicative actions include those that might otherwise be categorized as executive actions, whenever these are discretionary rather than ministerial actions and involve a binding determination affecting legal rights.

Examples of an adjudicative action are the determination of an application for a variance from an ordinance [see, e.g., Topanga Asso. for Scenic Community v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 506, 514, 113 Cal. Rptr. 836, 522 P.2d 12], and the determination of salary or benefits to which a particular employee is entitled under a legislative scheme [see Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Ass'n (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 28, 44, 112 Cal. Rptr. 805, 520 P.2d 29] .

Formal agency adjudications, in the form of adjudicatory agency hearings under the Administrative Procedure Act, or APA (Gov. Code. Code § 11340 et seq.), or under non-APA adjudicatory proceedings, are the focus of this chapter and Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication, et seq. Adjudicatory agency hearings under the APA are governed by Chapters 4.5 and 5 (Administrative Adjudication) of Division 3 (Executive Department) of Title 2 (California State Government) of the Government Code [Gov. Code § 11400 et seq. and Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.]. The major category of adjudications requiring these type hearings are themselves the primary example of a binding determination affecting a legal right, that is, proceedings to determine whether to revoke, suspend, deny, or refuse to renew a license [see Gov. Code §§ 11503, 11504]. See further discussion in § 473.13. See also further discussion and forms regarding adjudicatory licensing proceedings generally in Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies.

Whether an action is quasi-judicial or quasi-legislative is important to determine. When an agency conducts a quasi-judicial or adjudicatory proceeding, the affected private party has a right to a hearing [Anton v. San Antonio Community Hosp., 19 Cal. 3d 802, 829, 140 Cal. Rptr. 442, 567 P.2d 1162 (1977) (decision to take away doctor's hospital staff privileges for misconduct is adjudicatory, and doctor is entitled to adjudicatory hearing)]. When an agency engages in quasi-legislative or rulemaking action, however, there is no right to any hearing [City of Santa Cruz v. Local Agency Formation Com., 76 Cal. App. 3d 381, 388, 76 Cal. App. 3d 381, 142 Cal. Rptr. 873 (1978) (agency decision to approve annexation decision is legislative in nature, and no judicial hearing is required before decision is made); Mateo-Woodburn v. Fresno Community Hospital & Medical Center, 221 Cal. App.3d 1169, 1182-84, 270 Cal. Rptr. 894 (1990) (when a hospital changes its policy governing anesthetist staffing, no individual doctor has a right to an adjudicatory hearing before the policy can go into effect)]. In other words, the due process right to a hearing arises when an action is adjudicatory rather than legislative [Atkins v. Parker (1985) 472 U.S. 115, 129, 105 S. Ct. 2520, 86 L. Ed. 2d 81 ; Londoner v. Denver (1908) 210 U.S. 373, 28 S. Ct. 708, 52 L. Ed. 1103 ; Bi-Metallic Inv. Co. v. State Board of Equalization (1915) 239 U.S. 441, 445, 36 S. Ct. 141, 60 L. Ed. 372] . See further discussion in § 473.12.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsAdministrative Boards

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Administrative Adjudication in General

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.11

§ 473.11 Administrative Ajudication and Civil Trial Compared

Formal administrative hearing practice is similar to trial practice, although it generally involves informal, simplified procedures. An attorney representing a party in an administrative proceeding should recognize that despite these procedural differences, adjudicatory proceedings may also involve important substantive and constitutional issues. The client's interests, therefore, should be protected as diligently as in a proceeding before a judicial tribunal.

Differences between a trial and an administrative hearing include the following:

- The parties in an administrative hearing are referred to as complainant and respondent, rather than plaintiff and defendant [see Gov. Code § 11500(b), (c) (defining "party" and "respondent" for purposes of Gov. Code § 11500 et seq., governing administrative adjudication hearings)].

- Decisions are rendered by an administrative law judge (ALJ) or by the agency itself, rather than by a trial judge [see Gov. Code § 11517(a), (b) (under the APA, an ALJ and/or agency decides a case); see Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges].

- The time frame for an administrative hearing is generally much shorter than for a civil trial.

- The provisions of the APA (or statutes and regulations governing a particular agency) govern the conduct of the hearing, discovery, and prehearing motions and conferences, rather than the Evidence Code and the Code of Civil Procedure [see Evid. Code § 300 (Evidence Code applies to court actions except as otherwise provided by statute); Gov. Code § 11513(c) (hearings not conducted according to technical rules of evidence, except as provided in APA); Aluisi v. County of Fresno (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 443, 451, 2 Cal. Rptr. 779 (administrative hearings are not governed by Code of Civil Procedure provisions); see also Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications , Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications , and Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings].

- Although decisions in both forums are subject to judicial review, administrative decisions are > reviewed primarily by seeking administrative mandamus relief from the superior court, while trial court decisions are usually reviewed in the court of appeal [see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions].

For further comparison of formal administrative hearings and civil trials, see Chapter 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamus

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Administrative Adjudication in General

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.12

§ 473.12 Due Process Considerations in Administrative Adjudications

The United States and California Constitutions state that no person may be deprived of liberty or property without due process of law [U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1; Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a)]. These constitutional guarantees apply to administrative adjudicatory action [Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 263, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 ; Kruger v. Wells Fargo Bank (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 352, 366-367, 113 Cal. Rptr. 449, 521 P.2d 441 (California due process provision held to be identical in scope and purpose to the due process provision of the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution)]. Courts balance several factors to determine what procedural due process requires in a particular case [Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 335, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18 ; Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 263, 90 S. Ct. 1011] .

Two basic due process issues may arise: (1) whether due process requires a hearing, and (2) what procedures are required at the hearing to satisfy due process requirements. These issues generally arise with respect to agencies or procedures that are not governed by the APA or other statutes governing adjudication [see discussion in § 473.13]. Often, statutory adjudication requirements are very specific and more stringent then constitutional due process requirements.

For a detailed discussion of federal and state constitutional due process requirements as delineated by judicial doctrine, as well as related statutory law, see Chapter 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingDue ProcessConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of Protection

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Administrative Adjudication in General

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.13

§ 473.13 The Administrative Adjudication Provisions of the APA

[1] Chapters 4.5 and 5 of the APA

Two chapters of the Government Code comprise the Administrative Adjudication provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA) and govern administrative adjudication generally. These chapters were enacted or revised extensively by 1995 legislation that became operative July 1, 1997 [1995 Stats, ch. 938; see also Gov. Code §§ 11400.10(a), 11501], and are as follows [Gov. Code § 11400(a)]:

- Chapter 4.5, Administrative Adjudication: General Provisions (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.); and
- Chapter 5, Administrative Adjudication: Formal Hearings (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.).

For convenience, they are termed hereafter simply as Chapter 4.5 and Chapter 5.

The APA consists of Chapters 4.5 and 5, together with the rule making and other provisions of Chapters 3.5 (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.) and 4 (Gov. Code § 11370 et seq.) [see Gov. Code § 11370]. Technically, these four chapters are not chapters of the APA itself, but are chapters within Part 1 (State Departments and Agencies) of Division 3 (Executive Department) of Title 2 (California State Government) of the Government Code.

The provisions of Chapter 4.5 are new as of July 1, 1997 [see Gov. Code § 11400.10(a)]. Chapter 5, which formerly contained all the administrative adjudication provisions of the APA, was significantly amended as of July 1, 1997: now it is only a part of the administrative adjudication provisions. Thus, any references in another statute or other law (rule of court, executive order, or regulation) to former provisions of Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) are to be construed to applicable provisions of Chapter 4.5 [see Gov. Code § 11400(b)]. Gov. Code § 11400(b) makes clear that references to the administrative adjudication provisions of the APA (which were previously in Chapter 5 only) are references to both Chapters 4.5 and 5 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

Some of the new administrative adjudication provisions are based on provisions of the "1981 Model State APA" [Model

State Administrative Procedure Act (1981), promulgated by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws; see 15 U.L.A. 1 (1990)], and the "Federal APA" [Federal Administrative Procedure Act (5 U.S.C. §§ 551-583, 701-706, 1305, 3105, 3344, 5372, 7521 and related sections)]. Section comments from the California Law Revision Commission to these new provisions of the APA often refer to these sources [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

[2] Supplementary Regulations Governing Agency Adjudications

Under the new APA administrative adjudication provisions, agencies have authority to adopt, before, on, or after July 1, 1997, interim or permanent regulations to adjudicative proceedings under Chapter 4.5 or Chapter 5. However, agencies are not authorized by this section to adopt regulations to govern adjudicative proceedings required to be conducted by an administrative law judge employed by the Office of Administrative Hearings, except to the extent the regulations are otherwise authorized by statute [Gov. Code § 11400.20(a)].

Revisions of regulations that merely conform to the new law may be adopted by simplified procedures under the rulemaking provisions of the California APA pursuant to 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 100 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

Except as provided in Gov. Code § 11351 (which governs application of APA rulemaking procedures to the Public Utilities Commission, the Division of Worker's Compensation, and the Worker's Compensation Appeals Board), interim regulations need not comply with the provisions of Article 5 (Gov. Code § 11346 et seq.), entitled Public Participation: Procedure for Adoption of Regulations, and governing APA rulemaking procedures, or with the provisions of Article 6 (Gov. Code § 11349 et seq.), entitled Review of Proposed Regulations and governing Office of Administrative Law review of agency regulations), both part of Chapter 3.5 (Gov. Code. Code § 11340 et seq.), entitled Administrative Regulations and Rulemaking. The interim regulations must, however, comply with Chapter 3.5 in all other respects [Gov. Code § 11400.20(b)(1)].

The effect of these provisions is to allow agencies may adopt interim procedural regulations without the normal notice and hearing and Office of Administrative Law review processes of the rulemaking provisions of the APA. However, this does not excuse compliance with the other rulemaking provisions, including, but not limited to, requirements that:

- Regulations be consistent and not in conflict with statute and reasonably necessary to effectuate the purpose of the statute under Gov. Code § 11342.2.

- Regulations be filed and published under Gov. Code §§ 11343-11344.9.

- Regulations are subject to judicial review under Gov. Code § 11350.

Compliance with these requirements is not required for agencies exempted under Gov. Code § 11351 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

Interim regulations are only valid through December 31, 1998. They may be replaced by or readopted as permanent regulations before then, through the standard administrative rulemaking process. In case permanent regulations are pending on December 31, 1998, interim regulations may be extended up to three months. Permanent regulations governing administrative adjudication are subject to normal rulemaking procedures other than review for necessity under Gov. Code § 11349.1 (Office of Administrative Law) or 11350 (declaratory relief) in the case of permanent regulations promulgated during the transitional period [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11400.20(b)(2) and (3)].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the rulemaking provisions of the APA, see Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules .

[3] Office of Administrative Hearings Regulations Governing Hearing Procedures

The Office of Administrative Hearings adopted regulations [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1440 (1997)] to govern hearing procedures in hearings conducted before OAH administrative law judges [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1000 (1998)]. The regulations cover the subjects of general APA hearing procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1046 (1998)], special hearing procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1100-1148 (1997)], alternative dispute resolution procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1200-1292 (1999)], arbitration procedures for state contract act contract claims [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1300-1393 (1997)], and protest arbitration procedures 1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1440 (1998)]. The basic purpose [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1000 (1998)], definitions [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1002 (1998)], and principles of interpretation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1004 (1998)], are set forth in specific regulations. Other specific regulations will be cited and discussed in subsections of Ch. 473, and in Ch 473A through Ch 473H.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingFormal Rulemaking

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Administrative Adjudication in General

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.14

§ 473.14 Definitions in the APA Administrative Adjudication Provisions

[1] Applicability of Definitions in Chapters 4.5 and 5

There are two sets of definitions that govern different aspects of administrative adjudication. The first set, part of the general adjudication provisions of Chapter 4.5 (Gov. Code § 11405.10 et seq.) govern the construction of terms in that chapter [Gov. Code § 11405.10]. The second set, set out in Gov. Code § 11500, govern construction of terms for the formal hearing procedure under Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

The following list of definitions details the terms that are defined in the two sets, including when the same or similar term is defined in both sets:

- Adjudicative Proceeding [Gov. Code § 11405.20].
- Agency [Gov. Code §§ 11405.30, 11500(a)].
- Agency Head [Gov. Code § 11405.40], and the related term Agency Member [Gov. Code § 11500(e)].
- Decision [Gov. Code § 11405.50].
- Party [Gov. Code §§ 11405.60, 11500(b)], and the related term Respondent [Gov. Code § 11500(c)].
- Person [Gov. Code § 11405.70].
- Presiding Officer [Gov. Code § 11405.80] and the related term Administrative Law Judge [Gov. Code § 11500(d)].

Because Chapter 4.5 applies to adjudicative proceedings required to be conducted under Chapter 5 unless the statutes related to the proceeding provide otherwise [Gov. Code § 11501(c)], the definitions in Chapter 4.5 appear to apply to proceedings under Chapter 5 to the extent that they are not inconsistent with definitions set out in Chapter 5 under Gov. Code § 11500.

[2] Definitions

[a] "Adjudicative Proceeding"

"Adjudicative proceeding" is defined to mean an evidentiary hearing for determination of facts pursuant to which an agency formulates and issues a decision [Gov. Code § 11405.20]. There is no comparable definition in Chapter 5, Gov. Code § 11500.

[b] "Agency"

"Agency" is defined in Chapter 4.5 to mean a board, bureau, commission, department, division, office, officer or other administrative unit, including the agency head, and one or more members of the agency head or agency employees or other persons directly or indirectly purporting to act on behalf of or under the authority of the agency head. To the extent it purports to exercise authority under Chapter 4.5, an administrative unit otherwise qualifying as an agency shall be treated as a separate agency even if the unit is located within or subordinate to another agency [Gov. Code § 11405.30].

This definition in Gov. Code § 11405.30 is drawn from 1981 Model State APA § 1-102(1) and supplements Gov. Code § 11000 (defining "state agency" generally). The intent of the definition is to subject as many governmental units as possible to this chapter. The definition explicitly includes the agency head and those others who act for an agency, so as to effect the broadest possible coverage. The definition also would include a committee or council. The last sentence of this definition is in part derived from Federal APA § 551(1) (1988), treating as an agency "each authority of the Government of the United States, whether or not it is within or subject to review by another agency." A similar provision in Gov. Code § 11405.30 is used to avoid difficulty in ascertaining which is the agency in a situation where an administrative unit is within or subject to the jurisdiction of another administrative unit. An administrative unit of an agency that has no authority to issue decisions or take other action on behalf of an agency is not an "agency" within the meaning of this section [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

"Agency" is defined, for purposes of Chapter 5, to include the state boards, commissions, and officers to which this chapter is made applicable by law, except that wherever the word "agency" alone is used the power to act may be delegated by the agency, and wherever the words "agency itself" are used the power to act shall not be delegated unless the statutes relating to the particular agency authorize the delegation of the agency's power to hear and decide [Gov. Code § 11500(a)]. This definition was amended to reference to an enumeration of specific agencies in former Gov. Code. Code § 11501. Gov. Code § 11501(a) now provides that the application of Chapter 5 to the hearings of any given agency is to be determined by the statutes relating to that agency [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

[c] "Agency Head"

"Agency head" is defined in Chapter 4.5 to mean a person or body in which the ultimate legal authority of an agency is vested, and includes a person or body to which the power to act is delegated pursuant to authority to delegate the agency's power to hear and decide [Gov. Code § 11405.40]. The first part of this definition is taken from Model State APA § 1-102(3). The definition of agency head is included to differentiate for some purposes between the agency as an organic entity that includes all of its employees, and those particular persons in which the final legal authority over its operations is vested. The last part of the definition is drawn from Gov. Code § 11500(a) (defining "agency" for purposes of Chapter 5), relating to use of the term, "agency itself," to refer to a nondelegable power to act. An agency may delegate review authority [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)]. There is no comparable definition of agency head in Chapter 5, Gov. Code § 11500.

"Agency member," a related term, is defined, for purposes of Chapter 5, to mean any person who is a member of any agency to which Chapter 5 applies and includes any person who himself or herself constitutes an agency [Gov. Code § 11500(e)]. For example, the Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) [Veh. Code § 1500] is headed by a Director [Veh. Code § 1504]. DMV must conduct license revocation and suspension hearings pursuant to the formal hearing procedures of Chapter 5 of the California APA [Veh. Code § 11509(c)]. In contrast, the New Motor Vehicle Board is a multimember agency, with nine members [Veh. Code §§ 3000, 3001], that regulates the new motor vehicle industry [Veh. Code § 3000 et seq.], and is part of the DMV [Veh. Code § 3000].

[d] "Decision"

"Decision" is defined in Chapter 4.5 to mean an agency action of specific application that determines a legal right, duty, privilege, immunity or other legal interest of a particular person [Gov. Code § 11405.50(a)]. The definition of decision in this statute does not limit the precedential effect of a decision under Gov. Code § 11425.60 [Gov. Code § 11405.50(b)(1)], nor does it limit the authority of an agency to make a declaratory decision under Gov. Code § 11465.10 et seq. [Gov. Code § 11405.50(b)(2)]. There is no comparable definition in Chapter 5, Gov. Code § 11500.

The definition of decision in Gov. Code § 11405.50(a) is taken from the 1981 Model State APA § 1-102(5). The definition makes clear that it includes only legal determinations made by an agency that are of specific applicability because they are addressed to particular or named persons. More than one identified person may be the subject of a decision. Person includes legal entity and governmental subdivision under Gov. Code § 11405.70 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

A decision includes every agency action that determines any of the legal rights, duties, privileges, or immunities of a specific, identified individual or individuals. In contrast, a regulation, as defined under Gov. Code § 11342, is an agency action of general application, applicable to all members of a described class. The decision definition statute should not be interpreted to expand the types of cases in which an adjudicative proceeding is required. Under Gov. Code § 11410.10, an adjudicative proceeding is required under Chapter 4.5 only when another statute or the constitution requires such a proceeding [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

Consistent with the definition of "decision" in this statute, rate making and licensing determinations of specific application, addressed to named or particular parties such as a certain power company or a specific licensee, are decisions subject to Chapter 4.5. However, ratemaking and licensing actions of general application, addressed to all members of a described class of providers or licensees, are regulations as defined in Gov. Code § 11342 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

Furthermore, some decisions may have precedential effect under Gov. Code § 11425.60 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

[e] "Party"

"Party" is defined in Chapter 4.5 to include the agency that is taking action, the person to which the agency action is directed, and any other person named as a party or allowed to appear or intervene in the proceeding. If the agency that is taking action and the agency that is conducting the adjudicative proceeding are separate proceedings, the agency that is taking action is a party and the agency that is conducting the adjudicative proceeding is not a party [Gov. Code § 11405.60].

The first sentence of the definition of party in Gov. Code § 11405.60 is taken from Gov. Code § 11500(b) (see below) and 1981 Model State APA § 1-102(6). The second sentence is new [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)]. Person is defined in Gov. Code § 11405.70 [see [g], below] and includes legal entity and governmental subdivisions. Under this definition, if an officer or employee of an agency appears in an official capacity, the agency and not the person is the party. A staff division authorized to act on behalf of the agency may be a party under Chapter 4.5 because of the definition of agency [see [c], above] under Gov Code § 11405.30 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)]. The definition of party in this statute does not address the question of whether a person is entitled to judicial review. Standing to seek judicial review is dealt with in other law [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

"Party" is defined for purposes of Chapter 5 to include the agency, the respondent, and any other person, other than an officer or employee of the agency in his or her official capacity, who has been allowed to appear or participate in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11500(b)]. The related term,"respondent" is defined for purposes of Chapter 5 to mean any person against whom an accusation is filed under Gov. Code § 11503, or against whom a statement of issues is filed under Gov. Code § 11504 [Gov. Code § 11500(c); see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication , for discussion of accusations and statements of issue].

[f] "Person"

"Person" is defined for purposes of Chapter 4.5 to include an individual, partnership, corporation, governmental subdivision or unit of a governmental subdivision, or public or private organization or entity of any character [Gov. Code § 11405.70].

This definition supplements the definition of person in Gov. Code § 17. This definition is drawn from 1981 Model State APA, § 1-102(8), and includes the trustee of a trust or other fiduciary. This definition is broader than the Gov. Code § 17 definition of person in that it also applies to a governmental subdivision or unit. This aspect of the definition would include an agency other than the agency against which rights under this chapter are asserted by the person. Including these agencies and units of government insures, therefore, that other agencies or other governmental bodies can, for example, apply to an agency for a decision, and will be accorded all the other rights that a person has under Chapter 4.5 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

There is no comparable definition of person in Chapter 5, Gov. Code § 11500.

[g] "Presiding Officer"

"Presiding officer" is defined for purposes of Chapter 4.5 to mean the agency head, member of the agency head, administrative law judge, hearing officer, or other person who presides in an adjudicative proceeding [Gov. Code § 11405.80]. This section is intended for drafting convenience [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)]. The related term, "administrative law judge," is defined for purposes of Chapter 5, to mean in individual qualified under Gov. Code § 11502 [Gov. Code § 11500(d)]. See Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges , for discussion of the role of ALJ's.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsAdministrative Boards

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Administrative Adjudication in General

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.15

§ 473.15 Applicability of the APA Administrative Adjudication Provisions

[1] Applicability of Chapter 4.5

[a] Proceedings Subject to Chapter 4.5 in General

The general administrative adjudication provisions of Chapter 4.5 apply to all state agency adjudicatory proceedings that are required by statute or constitutional provision, including proceedings under Chapter 5 [see Gov. Code § 11410.10 et seq.; Gov. Code § 11501(c) (Chapter 4.5 applies to an adjudicative proceeding required to be conducted under Chapter 5, unless the statutes relating to the proceeding provide otherwise); 25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see further discussion in [b] et seq., below].

The provisions only apply, however, to adjudicative proceeding commenced on or after July 1, 1997, or to proceedings commenced before that date but remanded from a court or other agency on or after July 1, 1997 [Gov. Code § 11400.10(b), (c)].

As discussed further in [b][iii] and [2], below, the Chapter 4.5 requirements apply to formal hearings conducted under Chapter 5, but also to other types of adjudication proceedings. For discussion of the specific provisions of Chapter 4.5 that apply generally to administrative adjudications, whether or not a formal hearing is required under Chapter 5, see §§ 473.16 and 473.20 et seq. For detailed discussion and forms relating to Chapter 4.5 requirements in the context of a formal hearing under Chapter 5, see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication , through Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions . For detailed discussion and forms relating to the various alternative adjudication procedures under Chapter 4.5, (e.g., alternative dispute resolution, declaratory decision, emergency decision, and informal hearing), see Ch. 473H, Alternative Adminstrative Adjudication Procedures .

[b] Agency Adjudication Required by Statute or Constitutional Provision

[i] General Rule

Chapter 4.5, Administrative Adjudication: General Provisions (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.) applies to a decision by an agency if, under the federal or state Constitution or a federal or state statute, an evidentiary hearing for determination of facts is required for formulation or issuance of a decision [Gov. Code § 11410.10; see also general discussion in [a], above].

Gov. Code § 11410.10 states the general principle that an agency must conduct an appropriate adjudicative proceeding before issuing a decision when a statute or the due process clause of the federal or state constitutions necessitates an evidentiary hearing for determination of facts. That hearing is a process in which a neutral decision maker makes a decision based exclusively on the evidence contained in a record made at the hearing or on matters officially noticed. The hearing must at least permit a party to introduce evidence, make an argument to the presiding officer, and rebut opposing evidence [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

The applicability of Chapter 4.5 is the same as coverage by the existing provision for administrative mandamus under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a), which states that Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 applies only when an agency has issued a final decision "as the result of a proceeding in which by law a hearing is required to be given, evidence is required to be taken, and discretion in the determination of facts is vested in the [agency]." Numerous cases have applied Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 broadly to administrative proceedings in which a statute requires an "administrative appeal" or some other functional equivalent of an evidentiary hearing for determination of facts--an on-the-record or trial-type hearing [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see, e.g., Eureka Teachers Assn. v. Board of Educ. of Eureka City Schools (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 353, 244 Cal. Rptr. 240 (teacher's right to appeal grade change was right to hearing, and Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a) applies); Chavez v. Civil Service Comm'n of Sacramento County (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 324, 150 Cal. Rptr. 197 (right of "appeal" means hearing required, and Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 is available)].

[ii] Proceedings in Which Chapter 4.5 Does Not Apply

In many cases, statutes or the constitution call for administrative proceedings that do not rise to the level of an evidentiary hearing as defined in Gov. Code § 11410.10. For example, the constitution or a statute might require only a consultation or a decision that is not based on an exclusive record or a purely written procedure or an opportunity for the general public to make statements. In some cases, the agency has discretion to provide or not provide the procedure. Chapter 4.5 does not apply in those cases. Examples of cases in which the required procedure does not meet the standard of an evidentiary hearing for determination of facts are [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Report 55 (1995)]:

- Informal consultation between student and disciplinarian before brief suspension from school [Goss v. Lopez (1975) 419 U.S. 565, 95 S. Ct. 729, 42 L. Ed. 2d 725] .

- Informal nonadversary review of decision to place prisoner in administrative segregation, prisoner has right to file written statement [Hewitt v. Helms (1983) 459 U.S. 460, 103 S. Ct. 864, 74 L. Ed. 2d 675] .

- Informal opportunity for employee to respond orally or in writing to charges of misconduct prior to removal from government job [Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 124 Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P. 2d 774] .

- Hearing is discretionary not mandatory, and Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a) is not applicable [Marina County Water Dist. v. State Water Resources Control Bd. (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 132, 209 Cal. Rptr. 212] .

- Prisoner's right to appeal decision does not require a hearing, and Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 is not applicable [Wasko v. Department of Corrections (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 996, 1001-1002, 259 Cal. Rptr. 764] .

Chapter 4.5 does not apply to agency action that is pursuant to statutes that do not require evidentiary hearings. Such statutes include the California Environmental Quality Act (Pub. Res. Code § 21000 et seq.), the Bagley-Keene Open Meeting Act (Gov. Code § 11120 et seq.), and the California Public Records Act (Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. 55 (1995)].

Chapter 4.5 applies only to proceedings for issuing a "decision," and a decision is an agency action of specific application that determines a legal right, duty, privilege, immunity or other legal interest of a particular person under Gov. Code § 11405.50. Therefore, Chapter 4.5 does not apply to agency actions that do not determine a person's legal interests. Similarly, Chapter 4.5 does not apply to rulemaking, which is agency action of general applicability [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Report 55 (1995)].

Chapter 4.5 does not apply when a hearing is required by agency regulations, not a statute or the constitution. Agencies are encouraged to provide procedural protections by regulation even though not required to do so by statute or the constitution. An agency may provide an appropriate procedure for a decision for which an adjudicative proceeding is not required under Gov. Code § 11415.50 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

The Third District California Court of Appeal held that Section 98 [Labor Code § 98] hearings conducted by the Labor commissioner are not subject to the provisions of Chapter 4.5 of the California Administrative Procedures Act because those hearings are discretionary and not required by Section 98. Chapter 4.5 applies to agency decisions in which a hearing is required by statute or constitutional provision, and it does not apply when a hearing is not required by statute [Gov. Code § 11410.10; Corrales v. Bradstreet (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 33, 54-56, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 440] . The court of appeal also held that an evidentiary hearing is not required by the constitution (due process of law) because an employer has the right to obtain a trial de novo in the superior court following an adverse decision from a Section 98 hearing. The trial de novo satisfies the requirements of due process of law, so that a Section 98 hearing is not required to protect the employer's due process right to protect their property interest in money [Corrales v. Bradstreet (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 33, 59-61, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 440] . The court of appeal also rejected arguments for the application of Chapter 4.5 based on Gov. Code § 11410.20 (listing agencies subject to Chapter 4.5) and Gov. Code § 11410.40 (agencies may adopt provisions of Chapter 4.5 by regulation or ordinance). The listing of agencies subject to Chapter 4.5 did not resolve the issue of what agency decisions were subject to Chapter 4.5, and that issue is controlled by the hearings required by law provision of the APA [Gov. Code § 11410.10]. The DLSE did not properly adopt the APA when it issued a memorandum to that effect [Corrales v. Bradstreet (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 33, 56-58, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 440] . Therefore, the Labor commissioner could not utilize the provisions of Gov. Code § 11425.60 (precedent decision) to designate the Hartwig decision as a precedent decision. This is because the Hartwig proceeding was a Section 98 proceeding to which Chapter 4.5 did not apply, including Gov. Code § 11425.60. Thus, it was invalid to designate Hartwig as a precedent decision [Corrales v. Bradstreet (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 33, 65, 68, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 440] .

[iii] Type of Hearing When Chapter 4.5 Applies

Gov. Code § 11410.10 does not specify what type of adjudicative proceeding should be conducted. If an adjudicative proceeding is required within the meaning of this section, the proceeding may be a formal hearing procedure under Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.). Thus, Chapter 4.5 provisions apply to any proceeding under Chapter 5 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see also discussion in [f], below].

A proceeding subject to Chapter 4.5 may also governed by some other hearing procedure provided by a statute applicable to the particular proceeding [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

Chapter 4.5 itself makes available several alternatives to the formal hearing procedure under Chapter 5. For example, an informal hearing [Gov. Code §§ 11445.10-11445.60], an emergency decision [Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80], or a declaratory decision [Gov. Code §§ 11465.10-11465.70]. Gov. Code § 11410.10 does not prohibit the waiver of any procedure [Gov. Code § 11415.40], or the settlement of any case [Gov. Code § 11415.60], without use of all available proceedings [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

See also discussion in [a], above, and [2], below.

[c] State Agencies Subject to Chapter 4.5

Except as otherwise expressly provided by statute, Chapter 4.5 applies to all agencies of the State of California [Gov. Code § 11410.20(a)]. However, Chapter 4.5 does not apply to the California Legislature, the California courts or judicial branch, or the California Governor or the office of the Governor [Gov. Code § 11410.20(b)].

Gov. Code § 11410.20 applies Chapter 4.5 to all state agencies unless specifically excepted. The intent of this statute is to apply the provisions to as many state governmental units as possible. Subdivision (a) is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 1-103(a), while subdivision (b) is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 1-102(1). Exemptions from Chapter 4.5 are to be construed narrowly. Gov. Code § 11410.20(b) exempts the entire judicial branch, and is not limited to the courts, thus exempted agencies within the judicial branch include the Judicial Council, the Commission on Judicial Appointments, the Commission on Judicial Performance, and the Judicial Criminal Justice Planning Committee. The provision also exempts the Governor's office, and is not limited to the Governor. For an express statutory exception to this latter exemption, see Bus. & Prof. Code § 106.5, providing that "proceedings for removal [by the Governor of a board member in the Department of Consumer Affairs] shall be conducted in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 5 of Part 1 of Division 3 of Title 2 of the Government Code, and the Governor shall have all the powers granted therein" [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports. 55 (1995)].

Chapter 4.5 does not apply to specified proceedings of the following agencies [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)]:

- Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23083; see Ch. 18, Alcoholic Beverage Licenses].

- University of California [Educ. Code § 92001].

- Public Employment Relations Board [Gov. Code §§ 3541.3, 3563; see Ch. 118, Civil Service].

- Commission on State Mandates [Gov. Code § 17533].

- Agricultural Labor Relations Board [Lab. Code § 1144.5].

- Military Department [Mil. & Vet. Code § 105].

- Department of Corrections [Penal Code § 2600; Department of Corrections v. Office of Administrative Hearings (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 780, 786, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 903 (APA procedures are not required to be used, except for appointment of an ALJ, in Department of Correction hearings related to "involuntary administration of psychotropic medication" to prisoners)], Board of Prison Terms, Youth Authority, Youthful Offender Parole Board, and Narcotic Evaluation Authority [Penal Code § 3006; Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 1788, 3158].

- Public Utilities Commission [Pub. Util. Code § 1701; see Ch. 480, Public Utilities].

- State Bar of California [Bus. & Prof. Code § 1701; see Ch. 70, Attorney Admission , and Ch. 71, Attorney Discipline].

However, see discussion in [e], below, of exempt agencies discretion to adopt provisions of Chapter 4.5 to govern their proceedings.

[d] Local Agencies

Local agencies are defined to mean a county, city, district, public authority, public agency, or other political subdivision or public corporation in the state other than the state [Gov. Code § 11410.30(a)]. Chapter 4.5 does not apply to local agencies except to the extent the provisions are made applicable by statute [Gov. Code § 11410.30(b); Southern California Underground Contractors, Inc. v. City of San Diego (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 533, 547, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 527 (APA provisions apply to state agencies not local entities)]. Chapter 4.5 applies to an agency created or appointed by joint or concerted action of the state and one or more local agencies [Gov. Code § 11410.30(c); Patterson Flying Service v. California Department of Pesticide Regulation (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 411, 421-422, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 290 (provisions of chapter 4.5 apply to hearings conducted under the authority of the county agricultural commissioner, because the office of county agricultural commissioner is a local agency created or appointed by concerted action of the state and one or more local agencies. The hearing provided the opportunity for the flying service to contest a fine imposed on them for not properly following the label directions for the application of pesticides)].

Gov. Code § 11410.30 is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 1-102(1). Local agencies are excluded because of the very different circumstances of local government units when compared to state bodies. This statute explicitly applies Chapter 4.5 provisions to joint state and local bodies, so as to effect the broadest possible coverage [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)]. The administrative adjudication provisions of the California APA are also made applicable by statute to local agencies in a number of circumstances including the following [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)]:

- Suspension or dismissal of permanent employee by school district [Educ. Code § 44944; see Ch. 512, Schools: Certification, Dismissal, and Related Employment Issues].

- Nonreemployment of probationary employee by school district [Educ. Code § 44948.5].

- Evaluation, dismissal, and imposition of penalties on certificated personnel by community college district [Educ. Code § 87679].

See also discussion in [2], below (adjudicative proceeding under Chapter 5), and [f], below (state agency proceedings subject to Chapter 5 requirements).

[e] Adoption by Exempt Agencies

Notwithstanding any other provisions of Gov. Code §§ 11410.10-11410.50 (relating to the application of Chapter 4.5 provisions), an agency may adopt, by regulation, ordinance, or other appropriate action, either all or part of the Chapter 4.5 provisions for the formulation of a decision, even though the agency or decision is exempt from application of Chapter 4.5 [Gov. Code § 11410.40].

Gov. Code § 11410.40 is new. An agency may elect to apply Chapter 4.5 even though the agency would otherwise be exempt or the particular action would otherwise be exempt [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)]. Exempt agencies would include specified state agencies, see [b], above, most local agencies, see [c], above, and agency adjudicative action when a hearing is not mandated by statute or constitutional requirements, see [a], above.

[f] Application of Chapter 4.5 to Agency Proceedings Under Chapter 5

Chapter 4.5 applies to an adjudicative proceeding required to be conducted under Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), unless the statutes relating to the proceeding provide otherwise [Gov. Code §§ 11410.50, 11501(c)].

Gov. Code § 11410.50 makes clear that the provisions of Chapter 4.5 supplement the formal hearing provisions of Chapter 5. Thus, if an agency is required by statute to conduct a hearing under Chapter 5, the agency may, unless a statute provides otherwise, elect to use alternative dispute resolution or the informal hearing procedure or other appropriate provisions of Chapter 4.5. Also, the general provisions of Chapter 4.5 restricting ex parte communications, regulating precedent decisions, and other provisions, apply to a hearing under Chapter 5 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see discussion in [2], below].

[g] Quasi-Public Entities

Quasi-public entities are defined as an entity, other than a governmental agency, whether characterized by statute as a public corporation, public instrumentality, or otherwise, that is expressly created by statute for the purpose of administration of a state function [Gov. Code § 11410.60(a)]. The provisions of Chapter 4.5 apply to adjudicative proceedings conducted by quasi-public entities when the following three conditions are met [Gov. Code § 11410.60(b)]:

- A statute vests the power of decision in the quasi-public entity [Gov. Code § 11410.60(b)(1)].

- A statute, the United States Constitution, or the California Constitution, requires an evidentiary hearing for determination of facts for formulation and issuance of the decision. Nothing in this section is intended to create an evidentiary hearing requirement that is not otherwise statutorily or constitutionally imposed [Gov. Code § 11410.60(b)(2)].

- The decision is not otherwise subject to administrative review in an adjudicative proceeding to which this chapter applies [Gov. Code § 11410.60(b)(3)].

Three statutory definitions are set forth for application of Chapter 4.5 to decisions by quasi-public entities [Gov. Code § 11410.60(c)]:

- "Agency" as defined by law [Gov. Code § 11405.30; see § 473.14[2][b]] includes quasi-public entities [Gov. Code § 11410.60(c)(1)].

- "Regulation" includes a rule promulgated by a public entity [Gov. Code § 11410.60(c)(2)].

- Language assistance requirements [Gov. Code § 11435.05 et seq.; see § 473.29] in adjudicative proceedings apply to quasi-public entities as to state agencies under Gov. Code § 11018 [Gov. Code § 11410.60(c)(3)].

The requirements of Gov. Code § 11410.60(c) are to be strictly interpreted to carry out legislative intent to apply Chapter 4.5 only to decisions by quasi-public entities that are expressly created by statute to administer a state function [Gov. Code § 11410.60(d)]. The requirements of this statute do not apply to a decision made on authority of an approved plan of operation of quasi-public entities regulated or supervised by the Insurance Commissioner [Gov. Code § 11410.60(e)].

The Law Revision Commission comments explain the scope of this Gov. Code § 11410.60 further: it applies Chapter 4.5 to adjudicative decisions of quasi-public entities for which an evidentiary hearing by the quasi-public entity is statutorily or constitutionally required. A typical decision of this type might involve resolution of a membership assessment protest or a hearing on a claim that has been denied (provided the statute or constitution requires a hearing for a decision of that type [see Gov. Code Section 11405.50 ("decision" is action of specific application that determines legal right or other legal interest of particular person)]. Chapter 4.5 does not apply to legislative actions such as an election or negotiation and adoption of a health and welfare benefits plan, pension trust, or collective bargaining agreement by an industry or labor organization [27 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 593-594 (1997)].

Gov. Code § 11410.60 does not apply to an entity unless that entity was expressly created by statute for the purpose of administering a state function. Thus Chapter 4.5 governs hearings required to be held by a statutory entity such as the Winegrowers of California Commission [Food & Agric. Code § 74061] or the Escrow Agents Fidelity Corporation [Fin. Code § 17311]. But the statute does not govern hearings of a private entity such as a licensed health care provider [Health and Safety Code § 1200 et. seq.], a labor organization, or a board of trustees established pursuant to statute under an interindemnity, reciprocal, or interinsurance contract between members of a cooperative corporation [Ins. Code § 1280.7]. Gov. Code § 11410.60 does not apply to the State Bar, including proceedings of the State Bar court [27 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 593-594 (1997); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6001].

The intent of Gov. Code § 11410.60 is to provide fair hearing rules where a statute or the constitution requires a hearing. It is not intended to create any new hearing requirements. Thus, for example, this section does not apply to a decision of the Travel Consumer Restitution Corporation where the statute requires that the claim be decided on the written record, "with no hearing to be held" [27 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 593-594 (1997); see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17550.47].

Although Gov. Code § 11410.60(b) makes Chapter 4.5 inapplicable to a quasi-public entity decision if the decision is otherwise reviewable in a proceeding governed by this chapter, the quasi-public entity may voluntarily adopt the procedural protections provided in this chapter [27 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports, pp. 593-594 (1997); see Gov. Code § 11410.40 (election to apply administrative adjudication provisions)].

[2] Applicability of Chapter 5

[a] Applicability Determined by Statutes Relating to Specific Agency

The provisions of Chapter 5, Administrative Adjudication: Formal Hearings (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), apply to any agency as determined by the statutes relating to that agency [Gov. Code § 11501(a); Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 880, 883-885, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 729 (Bus. & Prof. Code § 24210 authorized director to appoint ALJ, who was employee of Department, to hear and decide case, and that statute was controlling under Gov Code §§ 11501(a), 11415.10, and 11415.20 not APA requirement contained in Gov. Code § 11502 that ALJ's from Office of Administrative Hearings be used)]. The provisions of Chapter 5 also apply to adjudicative proceedings of an agency created on or after July 1, 1997, unless the statutes relating to the proceeding provide otherwise [Gov. Code § 11501(b)].

The provisions of Chapter 4.5, Administrative Adjudication: General Provisions (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.), apply to an adjudicative proceeding required to be conducted under Chapter 5, unless the statutes relating to the proceeding provide otherwise [Gov. Code § 11501(c); see also Gov. Code § 11410.50, and discussion in [1][f], above].

Gov. Code § 11501 was amended to make Chapter 5 the default procedure, absent a contrary statute, for agencies created after July 1, 1997, the operative date of the 1995 amendments to the APA adjudication provisions. Chapter 5 is supplemented by the general provisions on administrative adjudication found in Chapter 4.5, which apply to proceedings under Chapter 5. Thus, if an agency is required by statute to conduct a hearing under Chapter 5, the agency may, unless a statute provides otherwise, elect to use alternative dispute resolution or the informal hearing procedure or other appropriate provisions of Chapter 4.5. Also, the general provisions of Chapter 4.5 restricting ex parte communications, regulating precedent decisions, and other provisions, apply to a hearing under Chapter 5 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see also Gov. Code § 11502 (use of administrative law judges under Chapter 4.5)].

A listing of specific agencies to which Chapter 5 applies, found in former Gov. Code § 11501(b), was deleted by the 1995 amendments as obsolete. The application of Chapter 5 to the hearings of an agency is determined by the statutes relating to that agency [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication, through Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions, discuss the applicable law governing administrative adjudication for state agencies subject to Chapter 5 requirements, including discussion of the Chapter 4.5 requirements that also apply in formal hearings that are the focus of Chapter 5.

[b] Most Licensing Agencies Are Subject to Chapter 5

Most state licensing agencies were subject to Chapter 5 requirements under the former adjudication provisions of the APA. These continue to be subject to the amended requirements of the new Chapter 5, and are now, in addition, subject to the newly added procedural requirements of Chapter 4.5.

The enabling act for each of these licensing agencies, which delineates the powers and duties for that agency, will state, in one form or another, that agency is required to follow the provisions of Chapter 5 of the California APA (Gov. Code § 11500) when it is conducting licensing hearings. For example, see the following list of licensing agencies (extensive but not exhaustive); the citation following each listed agency provides the statute which makes the agency subject to the provisions of Chapter 5 (and therefore also subject to Chapter 4.5 pursuant to Gov. Code §§ 11400(b), 11410.50, and 11501(c)):

- Medical Board of California [Bus. & Prof. Code § 2230].

- Board of Psychology (part of the Division of Allied Health Professions of the Medical Board of California) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 2965].

- Physical Therapy Examining Committee of California (part of the Division of Allied Health Professions of the Medical Board of California) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 2660].

- Speech-Language Pathology and Audiology Examining Committee (part of the Division of Allied Health Professions of the Medical Board of California) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 2533.2].

- Physician Assistant Examining Committee (part of the Division of Allied Health Professions of the Medical Board of California) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 3528].

- California Board of Podiatric Medicine (part of the Division of Allied Health Professions of the Medical Board of California) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 2230].

- Board of Registered Nursing (within the Department of Consumer Affairs) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 2750].

- Board of Dental Examiners (within the Department of Consumer Affairs) [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 1670, 1747].

- California State Board of Pharmacy (within the Department of Consumer Affairs) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 4350(c)].

- Board of Vocational Nurse and Psychiatric Technician Examiners (within the Department of Consumer Affairs) [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2875 (LVN's), 4520 (LPT's)].

- Veterinary Medical Board (within the Department of Consumer Affairs) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 4875].

- Osteopathic Medical Board of California (within the Department of Consumer Affairs) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 2230].

- Board of Chiropractic Examiners (within the Department of Consumer Affairs) [16 Cal.Code Reg. § 305].

- State Board of Accountancy (within the Department of Consumer Affairs) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 485].

- Board of Architectural Examiners (within the Department of Consumer Affairs) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5561.5].

- State Board of Registration for Geologists and Geophysicists (within the Department of Consumer Affairs) [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 485, 7861].

- State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors (within the Department of Consumer Affairs) [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 495, 6776 (engineers), 8781 (land surveyors)].

- Contractors State License Board (within the Department of Consumer Affairs) [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 495, 7091].

- Structural Pest Control Board (within the Department of Consumer Affairs) [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 8568, 8620].

- Commission on Teacher Credentialing (part of State Board of Education) [Educ. Code §§ 44244, 44246].

- Bureau of Security and Investigative Services (within the Department of Consumer Affairs) [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6980.30, 7510, 7591.19].

- Bureau of Electronic and Appliance Repair (within the Department of Consumer Affairs) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9848].

- Bureau of Automotive Repair (within the Department of Consumer Affairs) [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 9884.14, 9889.1; Health & Safety Code §§ 44053(a), 44057].

- Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (within Business, Transportation, and Housing Agency) [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 24016, 24300(a)].

- Department of Real Estate (within Business, Transportation, and Housing Agency) [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 10100, 10152].

- Office of Real Estate Appraisers (within Business, Transportation, and Housing Agency) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 485].

- Department of Motor Vehicles (within Business, Transportation, and Housing Agency) [Veh. Code §§ 11509(c), 11512(b), 11605(b), 11613(c), 11705(c), 11705.4(b), 11708(b), 11808, 11903(a), 14112].

- New Motor Vehicle Board (within Department of Motor Vehicles) [Veh. Code §§ 3066(a), 3067].

- California Horse Racing Board [Bus. & Prof. Code § 19461].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute ResolutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawInformal Agency ActionsConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsAdministrative BoardsGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Administrative Adjudication in General

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.16

§ 473.16 The General Adjudication Procedures of Chapter 4.5

[1] General Provisions for Application of Adjudication Procedures

[a] Adjudication Provisions Supplement Other Controlling Law

The governing procedure by which an agency conducts an adjudicative proceeding is determined by the statutes and regulations applicable to that proceeding [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 880, 883-885, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 729 (Bus. & Prof. Code § 24210 authorized director to appoint ALJ, who was employee of Department, to hear and decide case, and that statute was controlling under Gov Code §§ 11501(a), 11415.10, and 11415.20 not APA requirement contained in Gov. Code § 11502 that ALJ's from Office of Administrative Hearings be used)]. If no other governing procedure is provided by statute or regulation, an agency may conduct an adjudicative proceeding under the administrative adjudication provisions of the APA [Gov. Code § 11415.10(a)]. The first sentence of Gov. Code § 11415.10(a) is taken from Gov. Code § 11501(a) (formal hearing procedure applies to agency as determined by statutes relating to agency), while the second sentence enables an agency to use the procedures provided in both Chapter 4.5 and Chapter 5, without further action, in any case where there is no other applicable governing procedure [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11400(a) (adjudication provisions of the APA consists of Chapters 4.5, Gov. Code § 11400 et seq., and 5, Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.)].

Chapter 4.5 (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.) supplements the governing procedure by which an agency conducts an adjudicative proceeding [Gov. Code § 11415.10(b)]. This provision makes clear that the provisions of Chapter 4.5 supplement whatever procedure may otherwise govern a specific agency adjudication, whether they may be the formal hearing procedures of Chapter 5 or some other governing procedural law [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

Some of the provisions of Chapter 4.5 are optional, for example, the informal hearing procedures of Gov. Code § 11445.10 et seq., the emergency decision procedures of Gov. Code § 11460.10 et seq., and the declaratory decision procedures of Gov. Code § 11465.10 et seq. (see Ch. 473H, Alternative Administrative Adjudication Procedures , for detailed discussion of these procedures). The agency determines whether to use any of the optional provisions. The optional provisions do not replace any other agency procedures that serve the same purpose. For example, the informal hearing procedure provided in this chapter does not replace an agency's own informal hearing procedure, but offers a supplemental alternative. Likewise, the emergency decision procedure does not replace an agency's own procedures for interim suspension or other immediate action, but provides an alternative means of proceeding that an agency may use [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

Other provisions of Chapter 4.5 are mandatory (see, e.g., Gov. Code § 11425.10, the administrative adjudication "bill of rights," discussed in § 473.20). The mandatory provisions govern any adjudicative proceeding to which Chapter 4.5 is applicable. Moreover, pursuant to Gov. Code § 11415.10(b), they also apply to supplement any other applicable governing procedure by which an agency conducts an adjudicative proceeding, except to the extent the mandatory provisions are inconsistent with the statutes setting out that governing procedure. In other words, Chapter 4.5 provisions are not intended to override a conflicting or inconsistent statute or inconsistent federal law that governs a particular matter [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11415.20 (state or a federal statute or regulation applicable to a particular agency or proceeding prevails over a conflicting or inconsistent provision of Chapter 4.5); see also discussion in [b], below (Governor may suspend operation of a provision of Chapter 4.5 if loss or delay of federal funds would result from its application)].

[b] Governor's Limited Power to Suspend Adjudication Procedure

To the extent necessary to avoid a loss or delay of funds or services from the federal government that would otherwise be available to the state, The Governor may do any of the following by executive order [Gov. Code § 11415.30(a)]:

- Suspend, in whole or in part, any administrative adjudication provision of the Administrative Procedure Act [Gov. Code § 11415.30(a)(1)].

- Adopt a rule of procedure that will avoid the loss or delay [Gov. Code § 11415.30(a)(2)].

The governor must rescind an executive order issued under this statute as soon as it is no longer necessary to prevent the loss or delay of funds or services from the federal government [Gov. Code § 11415.30(b)]. If an administrative adjudication provision is suspended or rule of procedure is adopted under this statute, the Governor is required promptly to report the suspension or adoption to the legislature. The report shall include recommendations concerning any legislation that may be necessary to conform the provision to federal law [Gov. Code § 11415.30(c)].

Gov. Code § 11415.30 is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 1-104 [see also Gov. Code § 8571 (power of Governor to suspend statute in emergency)], but is extended to include a delay in receipt, as well as a loss, of federal funds, and actions that may be taken include provision of an alternate procedure as well as suspension of an existing procedure. The administrative adjudication provisions referred to in Gov. Code § 11415.30 are the provisions of Chapter 4.5 (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.) and Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11400(a) (providing that Chapters 4.5 and 5 are the administrative adjudication provisions of APA)].

Gov. Code § 11415.30 permits specific functions of agencies to be exempted from applicable administrative adjudication provisions of the APA only to the extent necessary to prevent the loss or delay of federal funds or services. The test to be met is simply whether, as a matter of fact, there will actually be a loss or delay of federal funds or services if there is no suspension or adoption of an alternate procedure. The suspension or adoption is effective only so long as and to the extent necessary to avoid the contemplated loss or delay [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)]. The governor cannot issue an executive order merely on the receipt of a federal agency certification that a suspension or adoption of an alternate procedure is necessary. The suspension or adoption must be actually necessary. That is, the Governor must first decide that the federal agency is correct in its assertion that federal funds may lawfully be delayed or withheld from the state agency if that agency complies with certain administrative adjudication provisions of the APA, and that the federal agency intends to exercise its authority to withhold or delay those funds if certain administrative adjudication provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act are followed. However, if these two requirements are met, the Governor may suspend the provision or adopt an alternate procedure [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

[c] Voluntary Waiver of Rights Conferred by Adjudication Provisions

Except to the extent provided by another statute or regulation, a person may waive a right conferred on that person by the administrative adjudication provisions of the APA [Gov. Code § 11415.40; see Gov. Code § 11400(a) (referring to Chapters 4.5, Gov. Code § 11400 et seq., and 5, Gov. Code § 11500, as the administrative adjudication provisions of APA)].

Gov. Code § 11415.40 is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 1-105. It embodies the standard notion of waiver, which requires an intentional relinquishment of a known right. This statute applies to all affected persons, whether or not parties. A right under the administrative adjudication provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act is subject to waiver in the same way that a right under any other civil statute is normally subject to waiver. Although a right may be waived by inaction, a written waiver is ordinarily preferable. A waiver by inaction may be the procedural result of a failure to act [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see, e.g., Gov. Code § 11506 (failure to file notice of defense is waiver of right to hearing)].

The administrative adjudication provisions referred to by Gov. Code § 11415.40 are those in Chapter 4.5 (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.) and Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11400(a) (Chapters 4.5 and 5 are the administrative adjudication provisions of APA)].

[d] Procedure Used When Adjudicative Proceeding not Required

An agency may provide any appropriate procedure for a decision for which an adjudicative proceeding is not required [Gov. Code § 11415.50(a)]. This provision is subject, of course, to other statutory law that may provide a procedure for decision in a specific agency action [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11415.20 (conflicting or inconsistent statute controls over general provisions of Chapter 4.5)].

An adjudicative proceeding is not required for informal fact finding or an informal investigatory hearing, or a decision to initiate or not initiate an investigation, prosecution or other proceeding before the agency, another agency, or a court, whether in response to an application for an agency decision or otherwise [Gov. Code § 11415.50(b)]. This provision is taken in part from 1981 Model State APA § 4-101(a), and lists situations in which an agency may issue a decision without first conducting an adjudicative proceeding. For example, a law enforcement officer may, without first conducting an adjudicative proceeding, issue a "ticket" that will lead to a proceeding before an agency or court. Likewise, an agency may commence an adjudicative proceeding without first conducting a proceeding to decide whether to issue the pleading. Nothing in Gov. Code § 11415.50(b) implies that Chapter 4.5 applies in a proceeding in which a hearing is not statutorily or constitutionally required [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see Gov. Code. Code § 11410.10 (Chapter 4.5 applies to constitutionally and statutorily required hearings)].

[e] Agency Decision by Mutual Settlement

An agency may formulate and issue a decision by settlement, pursuant to an agreement of the parties, without conducting an adjudicative proceeding [Gov. Code § 11415.60(a)].

Subject to Gov. Code § 11415.60(c) (discussed below), the settlement may be on any terms the parties determine to be appropriate [Gov. Code § 11415.60(a)]. Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, no evidence of an offer of compromise or settlement made in settlement negotiations is admissible in an adjudicative proceeding or civil action, whether as affirmative evidence, by way of impeachment, or for any other purpose, and no evidence of conduct or statements made in settlement negotiations is admissible to prove liability for any loss or damage, except to the extent provided in Evid. Code § 1152. Nothing in this subdivision makes inadmissible any public document created by a public agency [Gov. Code § 11415.60(a)].

Gov. Code § 11415.60(a) codifies the ruling in Rich Vision Centers, Inc. v. Board of Medical Examiners (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 110, 192 Cal. Rptr. 455 . It is analogous to Gov. Code § 11420.30 (confidentiality of communications in alternative dispute resolution). The parties are, of course, free to make a stipulation concerning confidentiality of offers of compromise or settlement that goes beyond or otherwise varies the protection of this statute [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); but see Gov. Code § 11415.20 (any conflicting or inconsistent statute controls)].

A settlement may be made before or after issuance of an agency pleading, except that in an adjudicative proceeding to determine whether an occupational license should be revoked, suspended, limited, or conditioned, a settlement may not be made before issuance of the agency pleading. A settlement may be made before, during, or after the hearing [Gov. Code § 11415.60(b)].

A settlement is subject to any necessary agency approval. An agency head may delegate the power to approve a settlement. The terms of a settlement may not be contrary to statute or regulation, except that the settlement may include sanctions the agency would otherwise lack power to impose [Gov. Code § 11415.60(c)]. Gov. Code § 11415.60(c) recognizes that some other statutes provide for agency approval of a settlement. For example, see the following [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)]:

- Authority of State Personnel Board to approve settlements [Gov. Code § 18681].
- Approval in labor standards enforcement [Lab. Code § 98.2(d)].
- Approval of worker's compensation settlement [Lab. Code § 5001].
- Approval by Governor of settlement by State Lands Commission [Pub. Res. Code § 6107].
- Approval of tax settlements [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 7093.5, 9271, 19442, 30459.1, 32471, 40211, 41171, 43522, 45867, 50156.11, 55332].

[2] General Procedural Provisions of Chapter 4.5

[a] Authority of Agency Head Following Decision

The agency head may do any of the following with respect to the decision of the presiding officer or the agency [Gov. Code § 11440.10(a)]:

- Determine to review some but not all issues, or not to exercise any review [Gov. Code § 11440.10(a)(1)].
- Delegate its review authority to one or more persons [Gov. Code § 11440.10(a)(2)].
- Authorize review by one or more persons, subject to further review by the agency head [Gov. Code § 11440.10(a)(3)].

By regulation an agency may mandate review, or may preclude or limit review of a decision of the presiding officer or the agency [Gov. Code § 11440.10(b)].

Gov. Code § 11440.10 is taken from Gov. Code § 11500(a) (power to act may be delegated by agency) and 1981

Model State APA § 4-216(a)(1)-(2). It is subject to a contrary statute that may, for example, require the agency head itself to hear and decide a specific issue [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see, e.g., Greer v. Board of Education (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 98, 111, 121 Cal. Rptr. 542 (school board, rather than hearing officer, formerly required to determine issues under Educ. Code § 13443); see Gov. Code §§ 11415.20 (conflicting or inconsistent statute controls), 11500(a) (power to act may not be delegated where action required by "agency itself" under formal hearing procedure)].

[b] General Provision for Service and Notice

Service of a writing on, or giving of a notice to, a person in a procedure provided in Chapter 4.5 (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.) is subject to the following provisions [Gov. Code § 11440.20]:

- The writing or notice shall be delivered personally or sent by mail or other means to the person at the person's last known address or, if the person is a party with an attorney or other authorized representative of record in the proceeding, to the party's attorney or other authorized representative. If a party is required by statute or regulation to maintain an address with the agency, the party's last known address is the address maintained with the agency [Gov. Code § 11440.20(a)].

- Unless a provision specifies the form of mail, service or notice by mail may be by first class mail, registered mail, or certified mail, by mail delivery service, by facsimile transmission if complete and without error, or by other electronic means as provided by regulation, in the discretion of the sender [Gov. Code § 11440.20(b)].

The application of Gov. Code § 11440.20 is limited to the procedures in Chapter 4.5. It does not, for example, apply to formal hearing procedures under Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), which include their own notice and service provisions [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11505].

Gov. Code § 11440.20(b) authorizes delivery by a commercial delivery service as well as by the United States Postal Service. Proof of service may be made by any appropriate method, including proof in the manner provided for civil actions or proceedings [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(h) (proof of service by facsimile transmission); for general discussion and forms relating to proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

[c] Conduct of Hearing by Electronic Means

The presiding officer is permitted to conduct all or part of a hearing by telephone, television, or other electronic means if each participant in the hearing has an opportunity to participate in and to hear the entire proceeding while it is taking place and to observe exhibits [Gov. Code § 11440.30(a)]. The presiding officer may not conduct all or part of a hearing by telephone, television, or other electronic means if a party objects [Gov. Code § 11440.30(b)].

Gov. Code § 11440.30(a) is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 4-211(4), allowing the presiding officer to conduct all or part of the hearing by telephone, televisions, or other electronic means, such as a telephone conference call. The opportunity to observe exhibits includes a reasonable opportunity to examine and object to exhibits before or at the hearing. While Gov. Code § 11440.30(a) permits the conduct of proceedings by telephone, television, or other electronic means, the presiding officer may of course conduct the proceeding in the physical presence of all participants [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

[d] Sexual Conduct Evidence in Sexual Harassment, Sexual Assault, or Sexual Battery Proceedings

In employment discrimination and harassment cases [see Gov. Code § 12940(h), (i)], civil service discipline cases [see

Gov. Code § 19572], and civil service discrimination cases [see Gov. Code § 19702], alleging conduct that constitutes sexual harassment, sexual assault, or sexual battery, evidence of specific instances of a complainant's sexual conduct with individuals other than the alleged perpetrator is subject to the following limitations:

- Evidence is not discoverable, unless it is to be offered at a hearing to attack the credibility of the complainant [Gov. Code § 11440.40(a)(1) (only the scope of discovery is limited, not the methods of discovery)].

- Evidence is not admissible at the hearing, unless offered to attack the credibility of the complainant [Gov. Code § 11440.40(a)(2)].

- Reputation or opinion evidence regarding the sexual behavior of the complainant is not admissible for any purpose. At the hearing, this evidence is presumed inadmissible absent an offer of proof that establishes both of the following [Gov. Code § 11440.40(b)]:

  - The relevance and reliability of the offered evidence; and

  - The probative value of the evidence offered is not substantially outweighed by the probability that its admission will create substantial danger of undue prejudice or confuse the issue.

"Complainant" is defined to mean a person claiming to have been subjected to conduct that constitutes sexual harassment, sexual assault, or sexual battery [Gov. Code § 11440.40(c)].

Gov. Code § 11440.40 applies not only to agency hearings under Chapter 5 (formal hearing provisions; Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), but also to agency hearings subject to Chapter 4.5 (general and alternative hearing provisions; Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)]. These include state agency (Gov. Code § 11410.20) hearings when under the federal or state constitution, or a federal or state statute, an evidentiary hearing for determination of facts is required to formulate and issue a decision [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); Gov. Code § 11410.10; see Evid. Code §§ 783, 1106 (similar privileges that apply to court proceedings)].

[e] Intervention Procedures

[i] Intervention Allowed When Permitted by Regulation

Gov. Code § 11440.50 provides for intervention in adjudicative proceedings. This intervention provision applies to the adjudicative proceedings of a state agency only if that agency provides by regulation that Gov. Code § 11440.50 applies to that agency's proceedings [Gov. Code § 11440.50(a)].

Gov. Code § 11440.50(a) makes clear that it does not apply to a proceeding unless an agency has acted to make it applicable. This statute provides an optional means by which an agency can provide for intervention. This statute does not provide an exclusive intervention procedure, and an agency may adopt other intervention rules or may preclude intervention entirely, subject to due process limitations [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

[ii] Motion for Intervention

When the intervention procedures have been made applicable, intervention decisions are made by the presiding officer (see Gov. Code § 11405.80, defining presiding officer) in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11440.50(b)-(e)].

The prospective intervenor must make a motion for intervention to the presiding officer. The motion must be granted by the presiding officer if four conditions are satisfied [Gov. Code § 11440.50(b)(1)-(4)]:

- The motion must be submitted in writing, and copies must be served on all parties identified in the agency's pleading [Gov. Code § 11440.50(b)(1)].

- The motion should be made as early as practicable in advance of the hearing, and, if there is a prehearing conference [see Gov. Code § 11511.5], then the motion should be made in advance of the prehearing conference and should be resolved at the prehearing conference [Gov. Code § 11440.50(b)(2)].

- The motion must establish that the proposed intervenor qualifies as an intervenor either under a statute or regulation, or by stating facts that demonstrate that the proposed intervenor's legal rights, duties, privileges, or immunities will be substantially affected by the proceedings [Gov. Code § 11440.50(b)(3)].

- The presiding officer must determine that allowing the intervention will not impair the interests of justice as well as the orderly and prompt conduct of the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11440.50(b)(4)].

Gov. Code § 11440.50(b)(1) is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 4-209(a). It provides that the presiding officer must grant the motion to intervene if a party satisfies the standards of the section. Gov. Code § 11440.50(b)(3) confers standing on an applicant to intervene on demonstrating that the applicant's "legal rights, duties, privileges, or immunities will be substantially affected by the proceeding" [see Horn v. County of Ventura (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 605, 156 Cal. Rptr. 718, 596 P.2d 1134 (right to notice and hearing if agency action will constitute substantial deprivation of property rights)]. However, Gov. Code § 11440.50(b)(4) imposes the further limitation that the presiding officer may grant the motion for intervention only on determining that "the interests of justice and the orderly and prompt conduct of the proceeding will not be impaired by allowing the intervention." The presiding officer is thus required to weigh the impact that the proceeding will have on the legal rights of the applicant for intervention, as opposed to against the interests of justice and the need for orderly and prompt proceedings [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

[iii] Conditional Intervention

When a proposed intervenor qualifies for intervention, conditions on the intervenor's participation in the proceedings can be imposed by the presiding officer, either when the intervention motion is granted, or at a later time [Gov. Code § 11440.50(c)]. Gov. Code § 11440.50(c) is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 4-209(c); it authorizes the presiding officer to impose conditions on the intervenor's participation in the proceeding and is intended to permit the presiding officer to facilitate reasonable intervenor involvement without subjecting the proceeding to unreasonably burdensome or repetitious presentations [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comments, 25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. 55 (1995)]. Conditions may include the following [Gov. Code § 11440.50(c)(1)-(4)]:

- Limiting the intervenor's participation to designated issues in which the intervenor has a particular interest demonstrated by the motion [Gov. Code § 11440.50(c)(1)].

- Limiting or excluding the use of discovery, cross-examination, and other procedures involving the intervenor so as to promote the orderly and prompt conduct of the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11440.50(c)(2)].

- Requiring two or more intervenors to combine their presentations of evidence and argument, cross-examination, discovery, and other participation in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11440.50(c)(3)].

- Limiting or excluding the intervenor's participation in settlement negotiations [Gov. Code §

11440.50(c)(4)].

[iv] Order Granting or Denying Motion

The procedures for intervention orders require the presiding officer to issue an order either granting or denying the intervention motion, specifying any conditions in the order, and briefly stating the reasons for the order as early as practicable in advance of the hearing. The intervention order can be modified at any time by the presiding officer, who must state reasons for the modification. The presiding officer must give prompt notice of all intervention orders, whether granting, denying, or modifying intervention, to all parties to the proceeding, and to the proposed intervenor [Gov. Code § 11440.50(d)]. Gov. Code § 11440.50(d) is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 4-209(d). By requiring advance notice of the presiding officer's order granting, denying, or modifying intervention, this provision is intended to give the parties and the applicant's for intervention an opportunity to prepare for the adjudicative proceeding [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

[v] Order Not Reviewable

The presiding officer's determination as to intervention motions is not subject to administrative or judicial review. It is to be made in light of the two standards for determining intervention motions: whether the interests of justice and the prompt and orderly conduct of the proceedings will be impaired by allowing intervention. The determination is made in the sole discretion, and based on the knowledge and judgment at that time, of the presiding officer [Gov. Code § 11440.50(e)].

[vi] Adoption of Alternatives to Intervention

Agencies are not prohibited by Gov. Code § 11440.50 from adopting regulations that permit participation by a person short of intervention as a party, subject to the requirements of Gov. Code § 11430.10 et seq. (governing ex parte communications) [Gov. Code § 11440.50(f)]. Gov. Code § 11440.50(f) recognizes that there are ways whereby an interested person can have an impact on an ongoing adjudication without assuming the substantial litigation costs of becoming a party and without unnecessarily complicating the proceeding through the addition of more parties. Agency regulations may provide, for example, for filing amicus briefs, testifying as a witness, or contributing to the fees of a party [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

[f] Written Communications

Any person submitting a written communication, which is specifically generated for the purpose of being presented at the agency hearing to which it is being communicated, to a state agency in a quasi-judicial proceeding that is directly paid for by anyone other then the person who submitted the written communication shall clearly indicate any person who paid to produce the written communication [Gov. Code § 11440.60(b)]. A state agency may refuse or ignore a written communication submitted by an attorney or any other authorized representative on behalf of a client in a quasi-judicial proceeding, unless the written communication clearly indicates the client on whose behalf the communication is submitted to the state agency [Gov. Code § 11440.60(c)].

Controlling definitions for this disclosure requirement are as follows:

- "Written communication" is defined to mean any report, study, survey, analysis, letter, or any other document [Gov. Code § 11440.60(a)(2)].

- "Quasi-judicial" proceeding is defined to include a proceeding to determine the rights or duties of a person under existing laws, regulations, or policies; a proceeding involving the issuance, amendment, or revocation of a permit or license; a proceeding to enforce compliance with existing law or to impose sanctions for violations of existing law; a proceeding at which action is taken involving the purchase or sale or property, goods, or services by an agency; or a proceeding at which an action is taken awarding a grant or a contract [Gov. Code § 11440.60(a)(1)].

[3] Other Provisions in Chapter 4.5

For discussion of other general agency adjudication procedures provided for in Chapter 4.5 (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.), see the following:

- The administrative adjudication "bill of rights" [see § 473.20 et seq.].

- Procedures that may be used instead of the formal hearing procedures of Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), i.e., alternative dispute resolution (Gov. Code § 11420.10 et seq.), informal hearing and decision (Gov. Code § 1145.10 et seq.), emergency decision (Gov. Code § 11460.10 et seq.), declaratory decision (Gov. Code § 11465.10 et seq.), and conversion of proceeding from one type to another (Gov. Code § 11470.10 et seq.) [see Ch. 473H, Alternative Adminstrative Adjudication Procedures].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingWaiverAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationReview of Initial DecisionsAdministrative LawInformal Agency Actions

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Administrative Adjudication in General

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473.17-473.19

[Reserved]

§§ 473.17[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. The Administrative Adjudication "Bill of Rights"

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.20

§ 473.20 Summary of Administrative Adjudication "Bill of Rights"

The administrative adjudication "bill of rights," Gov. Code §§ 11425.10-11425.60, and specifically Gov. Code § 11425.10, specifies the minimum due process and public interest requirements that must be satisfied in a hearing that is subject to Chapter 4.5 (see discussion in § 473.15[1]) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

These requirements are [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(1)-(9)]:

- The agency shall give the person to which the agency action is directed notice and an opportunity to be heard [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(1); see § 473.21].

- The agency shall make available to the person to which the agency action is directed a copy of the governing procedure, including a statement whether Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) is applicable to the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(2); see § 473.22].

- The hearing shall be open to public observation as provided in Gov. Code § 11425.20 [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(3); see § 473.23].

- The adjudicative function shall be separated from the investigative, prosecutorial, and advocacy functions within the agency as provided in Gov. Code § 11425.30 [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(4); see § 473.24].

- The presiding officer is subject to disqualification for bias, prejudice, or interest as provided in Gov. Code § 11425.40 [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(5); see § 473.25].

- The decision shall be in writing, be based on the record, and include a statement of the factual and legal basis of the decision as provided in Gov. Code § 11425.50 [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(6); see § 473.26].

- A decision may not be relied on as precedent unless the agency designates and indexes the decision as precedent as provided in Gov. Code § 11425.60 [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(7); see § 473.27].

- Ex parte communications shall be restricted as provided in Gov. Code § 11430.10 [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(8); see § 473.28].

- Language Assistance shall be made available as provided in Gov. Code § 11435.05 by an agency described in Gov. Code § 11018 or 11435.15 [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(9); see § 473.29].

The requirements of Gov. Code § 11425.10(a) apply to the governing procedure by which an agency conducts an adjudicative proceeding without further action by the agency, and they prevail over a conflicting or inconsistent provision of the governing procedure, subject to Gov. Code § 11415.20 [Gov. Code § 11425.10(b)]. The governing procedure by which an agency conducts an adjudicative proceeding may, however, include provisions equivalent to, or more protective of the rights of the person to which the agency action is directed than, the requirements of this section [Gov. Code § 11425.10(b)].

Under Gov. Code § 11425.10 (b), the requirements of Gov. Code § 11425.10(a) are self executing, they are part of the governing procedure by which an agency conducts an adjudicative proceeding whether or not regulations address the matter. The section does not, however, override conflicting or inconsistent state statutes, or federal statutes or regulations [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1996); see Gov. Code § 11415.20 (conflicting or inconsistent statute controls)].

If the governing procedure includes regulations that are at variance with the requirements of this section, it is desirable, but not necessary, that the agency revise the regulations. The requirements of this section apply regardless of the regulations. Conforming regulations may be adopted by a simplified procedure under the rulemaking provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act pursuant to 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 100. Nothing in this section precludes the agency from adopting additional or more extensive requirements than those prescribed by this section [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1996)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsStare DecisisAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingDue ProcessAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of Protection

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. The Administrative Adjudication "Bill of Rights"

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.21

§ 473.21 Notice and Opportunity to Be Heard

The agency is required to give the person to which the agency action is directed notice and an opportunity to be heard [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(1); Southern California Underground Contractors, Inc v. City of San Diego (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 533, 547, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 527 (provisions of Section 11425.10 apply to state agencies not local entities)]. This is a fundamental requirement of procedural due process of law [Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287] . Since this right is fundamental to fair procedure, it is applicable to all state agency hearings that are subject to Chapter 4.5 (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.) and Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.).

The operator of a nude entertainment establishment was not denied any due process of law rights by the decision of the City of San Diego to suspend the operator's required police permit because the operator violated provisions of city regulations that applied to his business. The California Court of Appeal rejected the operator's due process challenge based on untimely notice of the charged violations. Notice regarding most of the violations was given within two weeks of the date of the violation. Delay in the giving notice of the violations did not cause any actual prejudice to the operator, and there was no showing of lost witnesses or other evidence. The operator had the burden of proof of showing actual prejudice from delay, and there was no such proof. Finally, the suspension was based on numerous violations over an extended period of time, and the operator had more than sufficient notice of those violations [Krontz v. City of San Diego (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1140-1141, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 535] .

The specific details of notice requirements vary. Gov. Code § 11440.20 governs notice requirements in adjudicative proceedings that are subject to Chapter 4.5, but not Chapter 5 proceedings [see § 473.16[2][b], for discussion of specific procedural requirements for service and notice under Gov. Code § 11440.20]. Gov. Code §§ 11505, 11506, 11509 govern notice requirements in adjudicative proceedings that are subject to Chapter 5 [see § 473A.11[6], [10], for discussion of specific procedural requirements in adjudicative proceedings that are subject to Chapter 5].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingDue ProcessConstitutional LawBill of

RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of Protection

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. The Administrative Adjudication "Bill of Rights"

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.22

§ 473.22 Right to a Copy of Governing Procedure

The agency is required to make available to the person to which the agency action is directed a copy of the governing procedure, including a statement whether Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) is applicable to the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(2)].

Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(2) requires only that the agency "make available" a copy of the applicable hearing procedure. This requirement is subject to a rule of reasonableness in the circumstances and does not necessarily require the agency routinely to provide a copy to a person each time agency action is directed to the person. The requirements may be satisfied, for example, by the agency's offer to provide a copy on request [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. The Administrative Adjudication "Bill of Rights"

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.23

§ 473.23 Public Hearing

An additional procedural right is that the hearing shall be open to public observation as provided in Gov. Code § 11425.20 [Gov. Code §§ 11425.10(a)(3); 11425.20(a)]. However, the presiding officer has express authority to order closure of a hearing or make other protective orders to the extent necessary or proper [Gov. Code § 11425.20(a)] for any of the following purposes:

- To satisfy the United States Constitution, the California Constitution, federal or state statute, or other law, including but not limited to laws protecting privileged, confidential, or other protected information [Gov. Code § 11425.20(a)(1)]. This exception includes statutory protection of trade secrets and other confidential information or privileged information under such statutes as, for example, Evid. Code §§ 1060-1063, Fin. Code §§ 1939, 16120, and 18496 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

- To ensure a fair hearing in the circumstances of the particular case [Gov. Code § 11425.20(a)(2)].

- To conduct the hearing, including the manner of examining witnesses, in a way that is appropriate to protect a minor witness or a witness with a developmental disability, as defined in Welf. & Inst. Code § 4512, from intimidation or other harm, taking into account the rights of all persons [Gov. Code § 11425.20(a)(3)]. This exception codifies part of the decision of Seering v. Department of Social Services (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 298, 239 Cal. Rptr. 422 . The rights of persons taken into account includes the rights of the parties to observe the proceedings in an appropriate manner [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

Under the new act, when a hearing is conducted by telephone, television, or other electronic means [see Gov. Code § 11512(d) (with consent of all parties, hearing proceedings may be reported electronically), discussed in § 473.16[2][c]], the public hearing procedural requirements are satisfied if members of the public have an opportunity to do both of the following [Gov. Code § 11425.20(b)]:

- At reasonable times, hear or inspect the agency's record, and inspect any transcript obtained by the agency [Gov. Code § 11425.20(b)(1)].

- To be physically present at the place where the presiding officer is conducting the hearing [Gov. Code § 11425.20(b)(2)].

The right of the public to be present where a hearing is being conducted telephonically does not include the right to participate, and the right of the public to inspect the record does not impose a duty on the agency to provide a copy independent of the California Public Records Act (Gov. Code § 6250 et seq., discussed in Ch. 470C, Public Records Act) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

Presiding officers have authority to conduct all or part of a hearing by telephone, television, or other electronic means (such as a conference telephone call) if each participant in the hearing has an opportunity to participate in and to hear the entire proceeding while it is taking place and to observe exhibits [Gov. Code § 11440.30(a)]. The presiding officer also has the authority to conduct the hearing in the physical presence of all participants [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)]. If any party objects, the presiding officer may not conduct all or part of a hearing by telephone, television, or other electronic means [Gov. Code § 11440.30(b)].

Gov. Code § 11440.30 supplements the Bagley-Keene Open Meeting Act, Gov. Code § 11120 et seq. (discussed in Ch. 470B, Open Meeting Law). Closure of a hearing should be done only to the extent necessary under this section, taking into account the substantial public interest in open proceedings. It should be noted that under the open meeting law deliberations on a decision to be reached based on evidence introduced in an adjudicative proceeding may be made in closed session [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11126(d)]. Under the open meeting law, a settlement proposal may be considered by the agency in closed session if it sustains its substantial burden of showing the prejudice to be suffered from conducting an open meeting [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11126(d), (q)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingDue ProcessAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & PowersAdministrative LawGovernmental InformationPublic MeetingsSunshine LegislationConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of ProtectionEvidencePrivilegesTrade SecretsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. The Administrative Adjudication "Bill of Rights"

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.24

§ 473.24 Separation of Function Between Prosecutors and Adjudicators

The adjudicative function shall be separated from the investigative, prosecutorial, and advocacy functions within the agency as provided in Gov. Code § 11425.30 [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(4)].

Gov. Code § 11425.30, in turn, requires internal separation of functions within an agency, which means that the same individual within an agency can not perform inconsistent functions in the same case before the agency [Gov. Code § 11425.30]. This section provides that a presiding officer [see Gov. Code § 11405.80 (defining presiding officer)] is disqualified from presiding in an adjudicative proceeding [see Gov. Code § 11405.20 (defining adjudicative proceeding)] in the following two situations:

- The person has served as investigator, prosecutor, or advocate in the proceeding or its preadjudicative stage [Gov. Code § 11425.30(a)(1)].

- The person is subject to the authority, direction, or discretion of a person who has served as investigator, prosecutor, or advocate in the proceeding or its preadjudicative stage [Gov. Code § 11425.30(a)(2)].

Serving means that the person has personally carried out the function and not merely supervised or been organizationally connected with a person who has personally carried out the function. Substantial involvement in a case is required, not merely marginal or trivial participation. What is disqualifying is meaningful participation that is likely to affect an individual with a commitment to a particular result in a case [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

However, a presiding officer is not disqualified in the following two circumstances:

- A person may serve as presiding officer in successive stages of an adjudicative proceeding [Gov. Code § 11425.30(b)(1)].

- A person who has participated only as a decisionmaker or as an advisor to a decisionmaker in a > determination of probable cause or other equivalent preliminary determination in an adjudicative proceeding or its preadjudicative stage may serve as presiding officer in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11425.30(b)(2)].

The first exception allows a decisionmaker to act in a similar capacity at both the probable cause and final hearing stages. However, the person can not be the decisionmaker at the hearing stage if the person acted in a prosecutorial, investigative, or advocacy role at the probable cause stage [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)]. Finally, these separation of functions requirements apply also to the agency head or other person or body to which the power to hear or decide in the proceeding is delegated [Gov. Code § 11425.30(c)].

Separation of functions is also required as a matter of due process of law when local agency adjudicators decide whether to renew business licenses. A city attorney who acted as an advocate for the city urging nonrenewal of a business license at the application stage could not, consistent with due process of law, act as an advisor to the city manager who decided the business's administrative appeal from the denial of the application and acted as an adjudicative decision maker. This violated the due process of law right to an impartial decision maker [Nightlife Partners LTD. v. City of Beverly Hills (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 81, 97-98, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 234] . Similarly, a city attorney who acted as an advocate for the city in a lawsuit brought by a terminated city employee could not also, consistent with due process of law court, act as a decision maker, in the employee's administrative appeal of their termination, which was officially decided by the city manager but in which the city attorney prepared the recommended decision which the city attorney followed [Walker v. City of Berkeley (9th Cir. 1991) 951 F. 2d 182, 185] . A terminated police officer challenged the fairness of the administrative hearing before the personnel board of the city on due process of law grounds because the same lawyer who represented the city (Santa Ana) as an advocate in the administrative hearing also had acted as an advisor to the personnel board (the adjudicative decision maker) in other cases, although the lawyer did not act in such a dual capacity in this particular case. The court of appeal held that this was sufficient to show the probability of actual bias, based on the influence that the attorney would have with the board because of the advisory role the attorney played, such that the board would be more likely to believe the attorney for the police department than to believe the plaintiff. The board should not have allowed its legal advisor to act as an advocate before that same board because this creates a substantial risk that the board's judgment will be influenced in favor of the litigant represented by their legal advisor. The employee's right to an impartial decision maker is violated. The court of appeal reversed the judgment terminating the police officer, and remanded the proceeding back to the local agency for a new hearing [Quintero v. City of Santa Ana (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 810, 816-818, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 896] . None of the local agencies in these cases was subject to the California APA, which is limited to state agencies.

The due process of law right to cross examine witnesses is not violated in a rent review board hearing proceeding where the issues in the proceeding and the hearing record was based primarily on documentary evidence and reports from experts on both sides in the litigation for which there was no need to test credibility since the issues in the case did not turn on live witness testimony [Stardust Mobile Estates v. City of San Buenaventura (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1170, 1189-1190, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 218] . The Court of Appeal also rejected procedural due process challenges based on the lack of discovery and based on conflicting advocacy and advisory roles by outside counsel for the rent board. The court concluded that discovery in mandate proceedings was limited because judicial review under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 (administrative mandamus) was based on the hearing record before the agency. The Court of Appeal rejected the conflicting roles defense of unconstitutional bias even though the lawyer in question had advised the rent board. The court distinguished the Nightlife case [Nightlife Partners. v. City of Beverly Hills (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 81, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 234] factually because the reviewing body in the Nightlife case was the city (which the lawyer did advise) and here the reviewing body was the superior court (whom the lawyer did not advise). The defense was rejected because the agency outside counsel did not advise the superior court at the same time as his law firm was acting as an advocate defending the city in the mandamus proceeding before the court [Stardust Mobile Estates v. City of San Buenaventura (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1170, 1189-1190, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 218] .

Another California Court of Appeal rejected a due process of law challenge in a Skelly [Skelly v. State Personnel Board (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 539 P.2d 774] hearing context based upon the practice that the same public employee that investigated and then initiated the employee discipline proceeding also acted as the Skelly [Skelly v. State Personnel Board (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 539 P.2d 774] hearing officer. That same employee also made the recommendation that the employee be discharged. There was no due process of law violation because the agency hearing procedure after the Skelly [Skelly v. State Personnel Board (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 539 P.2d 774] hearing included the following elements: another supervisor imposed the penalty, there was a full evidentiary hearing before a neutral hearing examiner, and there was review of the hearing examiners decision by the civil service commission board [Flippin v. Los Angeles City Board of Civil Service Commissioners (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 272, 282-283, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 458] .

This provision, dealing with the extent to which a person may serve as presiding officer at different stages of the same proceeding, should be distinguished from Gov. Code § 11430.10, which prohibits certain ex parte communications. The policy issues regarding ex parte communications between two persons differ from the policy issues in this provision regarding the participation by one individual in two stages of the same proceeding. There may be other grounds for disqualification, however, in the event of improper ex parte communications [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11430.60 (disqualification of presiding officer), 11425.40 (disqualification of presiding officer for bias, prejudice, or interest); see discussion in § 473.25].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityParticipation in ProsecutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsAdministrative Boards

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. The Administrative Adjudication "Bill of Rights"

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.25

§ 473.25 Disqualification of Presiding Officer for Bias, Interest, or Prejudice

The presiding officer is subject to disqualification for bias, prejudice, or interest as provided in Gov. Code § 11425.40 [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(5)].

The APA "impartial decision maker" standard of Gov. Code § 11425.40 states that the presiding officer (see Gov. Code § 11405.80, defining presiding officer) is subject to disqualification for bias, prejudice, or interest in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11425.40(a)]. Other than that general language, no specific disqualification standards are stated.

However, the following grounds are specified as not sufficient for disqualification [Gov. Code § 11425.40(b)]:

- The presiding officer is or is not a member of a racial, ethnic, religious, sexual, or similar group and the proceeding involves the rights of that group [Gov. Code § 11425.40(b)(1)].

- The presiding officer has experience, technical competence, or specialized knowledge of, or has in any capacity expressed a view on, a legal, factual, or policy issue presented in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11425.40(b)(2)].

- The presiding officer has, as a lawyer or public official, participated in the drafting of laws or regulations or in the effort to pass or defeat laws or regulations, the meaning, effect, or application of which is in issue in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11425.40(b)(3)].

These three non-disqualification grounds are taken from similar language in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.2. The law revision comments note, as to the second ground, that expressions on views may lead to disqualification under Gov. Code § 11425.30 (neutrality of presiding officer) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)]. These provisions governing disqualification also apply to the agency head or other person or body to which the power to hear or decide in the proceeding is delegated [Gov. Code § 11425.40(c)].

Gov. Code § 11425.40 applies in all administrative adjudications subject to Chapter 4.5, including a hearing under Chapter 5 (formal hearing). It supersedes a provision formerly found in Gov. Code § 11512(c). It applies whether the presiding officer serves alone or with others [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. The Administrative Adjudication "Bill of Rights"

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.26

§ 473.26 Written Decision Stating Factual and Legal Basis

An administrative adjudication decision must be in writing, be based on the record, and include a statement of the factual and legal basis of the decision as provided in Gov. Code § 11425.50 [Gov. Code §§ 11425.10(a)(6), 11425.50(a)].

The statement of the factual basis for the decision may be in the language of, or by reference to, the pleadings. If the statement is no more than mere repetition or paraphrase of the relevant statute or regulation, the statement shall be accompanied by a concise and explicit statement of the underlying facts of record that support the decision. If the factual basis for the decision includes a determination based substantially on the credibility of a witness, the statement shall identify any specific evidence of the observed demeanor, manner, or attitude of the witness that supports the determination, and on judicial review the court shall give great weight to the determination to the extent the determination identifies the observed demeanor, manner, or attitude of the witness that supports it [Gov. Code § 11425.50(b)]. A trial court is required to give great weight to credibility determinations of state agency hearing officers under Gov. Code § 11425.50(b), even when it conducts an independent review under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 [Fukuda v. City of Angels Camp (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 805, 819, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696, 977 P.2d 693 ; Mason v. Office of Administrative Hearings (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 1119, 1138-1139, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102 (court of appeal reversed trial court decision which had reversed decision of ALJ which had detailed fact findings. The court of appeal's reversal, relying heavily on Fukuda, was based on the failure of petitioner to meet the burden of proof of showing that the administrative findings were contrary to the weight of the evidence in a developmental disabilities case in which there was detailed expert testimony of physicians and psychologists)]. ALJ credibility determinations that are unrelated to witness demeanor, manner or attitude are not entitled to special weight in reviewing the administrative record for substantial evidence, and Gov. Code § 11425.50 is not applicable in these circumstances. ALJ credibility determinations are unrelated when the ALJ does not identify observed demeanor, manner, or attitude of the witness [California Youth Authority v. State Personnel Board (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 575, 579-580, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 514] .

The California Court of Appeal reversed the Board's (ABC Board) decision which had reversed a license suspension decision of the department (Dept. ABC) based on fact finding by the ALJ that the licensee did not reasonably rely on a fake ID to sell alcoholic beverages to an underage buyer, a violation of the alcohol control laws. The Court of Appeals reversal was based on deference to the ALJ's findings of fact which were based on the ALJ's observations of physical evidence (the fake ID) at the hearing. Both the Court of Appeals, and the Board were required to give deference to the ALJ's fact finding [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1429, 1445-1446, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 826] .

The statement of the factual basis for the decision shall be based exclusively on the evidence of record in the proceeding and on matters officially noticed in the proceeding. The presiding officer's experience, technical competence, and specialized knowledge may be used in evaluating evidence [Gov. Code § 11425.50(c); Vinson v. Snyder (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 182, 186-188, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44 (presiding officer may use his or her experience, technical competence, and specialized knowledge to evaluate evidence without establishing the officer's basis for expertise in the record)].

The information that may be contained in the decision, including a summary of the evidence relied on, is not limited by the requirements of Gov. Code § 11425.50 [Gov. Code § 11425.50(d)].

Finally, a penalty may not be based on a guideline, criterion, bulletin, manual, instruction, order, standard of general application or other rule subject to the rulemaking provisions of Chapter 3.5, Administrative Regulations and Rulemaking (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.), unless it has been adopted as a regulation pursuant to those provisions [Gov. Code § 11425.50(e); see Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions , for discussion of the agency decision process in formal hearings under Chapter 5].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsContentsAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewAdministrative RecordGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. The Administrative Adjudication "Bill of Rights"

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.27

§ 473.27 Agency Decision Must Be Designated to Be Precedent Authority

An agency adjudicative decision may not be relied on as precedent unless the agency designates and indexes that decision as precedent as provided in Gov. Code § 11425.60 [Gov. Code §§ 11425.10(a)(7), 11425.60(a)]. In other words, an agency decision may not be expressly relied on as precedent unless it is designated as a precedent decision by the agency [Gov. Code § 11425.60(a)]. The effect of Gov. Code § 11425.60(a) is to limit the authority of an agency to rely on any previous decision unless that decisions has been publicly announced as one having precedential authority [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1997)].

An agency may designate as a precedent decision a decision or part of a decision that contains a significant legal or policy determination of general application that is likely to recur. Designation of a decision or part of a decision as a precedent decision is not rulemaking and need not be done under Chapter 3.5 (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.), the rulemaking procedures of the APA [Gov. Code § 11425.60(b); see Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules , et seq., for discussion and forms relating to APA rule making procedures].

Gov. Code § 11425.60(b) provision provides recognition for the need that agencies have to be able to make law and policy through adjudication as well as through rulemaking. It codifies the practice of a number of agencies to designate important decisions as precedential. These agencies include the Fair Employment and Housing Commission [Gov. Code § 12935(h)], the State Personnel Board [Gov. Code § 19582.5], and the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board [Unemp. Ins. Code § 409]. Gov. Code § 11425.60 is intended to encourage agencies to articulate what they are doing when they make new law or policy in an adjudicative decision. An agency may not by precedent decision revise or amend an existing regulation or adopt a rule that has no adequate legislative basis [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

The precedent designation system authorized by this statute is an exception from the requirements of Gov. Code § 11340.5 (prohibiting "underground regulations" [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995) (see 1993 OAL Det. No. 1 (ruling by Office of Administrative Law that agency designation of decision as precedential violated former Gov. Code. Code § 11347.5 (now see Gov. Code § 11340.5) unless made pursuant to rulemaking procedures))]. Nonetheless, agencies are encouraged to express precedent decisions in the form of regulations, to the extent practicable [25 Cal. L.

Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

An agency's designation of a decision, or part of a decision, or failure to designate a decision or part of a decision, as a precedent decision is not subject to judicial review [Gov. Code § 11425.60(b)].

An agency is required to maintain an index of significant legal and policy determinations made in precedent decisions. The index must be updated at least annually, unless no precedent decision has been designated since the last preceding update. The index shall be made available to the public by subscription, and its availability shall be publicized annually in the California Regulatory Notice Register [Gov. Code § 11425.60(c)]. The index is a public record, available for public inspection and copying [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

The statutory requirements for designating and indexing precedent decisions applies to decisions issued on or after July 1, 1997. Agencies are not precluded by this law from designating and indexing as a precedent decision a decision issued before July 1, 1997 [Gov. Code § 11425.60(d)]. Making the precedent decision requirements prospective only is designed to minimize the potential burden on agencies [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Report 55 (1995)].

Gov. Code § 11425.60 limits the authority of an agency to rely on previous decisions unless the decisions have been publicly announced as precedential [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

The Third District California Court of Appeal held that Section 98 [Labor Code § 98] hearings conducted by the Labor commissioner are not subject to the provisions of Chapter 4.5 of the California Administrative Procedures Act because those hearings are discretionary and not required by Section 98. Chapter 4.5 applies to agency decisions in which a hearing is required by statute or constitutional provision, and it does not apply when a hearing is not required by statute [Gov. Code § 11410.10; Corrales v. Bradstreet (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 33, 54-56, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 440] . The court of appeal also held that an evidentiary hearing is not required by the constitution (due process of law) because an employer ha the right to obtain a trial de novo in the superior court following an adverse decision from a Section 98 hearing. The trial de novo satisfies the requirements of due process of law, so that a Section 98 hearing is not required to protect the employer's due process right to protect their property interest in money [Corrales v. Bradstreet (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 33, 59-61, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 440] . The court of appeal also rejected arguments for the application of Chapter 4.5 based on Gov. Code § 11410.20 (listing agencies subject to Chapter 4.5), and Gov. Code § 11410.40 (agencies may adopt provisions of Chapter 4.5 by regulation or ordinance). The listing of agencies subject to Chapter 4.5 did not resolve the issue of what agency decisions were subject to Chapter 4.5, and that issue is controlled by the hearings required by law provision of the APA [Gov. Code § 11410.10]. The DLSE did not properly adopt the APA when it issued a memorandum to that effect [Corrales v. Bradstreet (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 33, 56-58, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 440] . Therefore, the Labor commissioner could not utilize the provisions of Gov. Code § 11425.60 (precedent decision) to designate the Hartwig decision as a precedent decision. This is because the Hartwig proceeding was a Section 98 proceeding to which Chapter 4.5 did not apply, including Gov. Code § 11425.60. Thus, it was invalid to designate Hartwig as a precedent decision [Corrales v. Bradstreet (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 33, 65, 68, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 440] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsStare DecisisAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. The Administrative Adjudication "Bill of Rights"

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.28

§ 473.28 Prohibition on Ex Parte Communications

[1] General Prohibition

Ex parte communications must be restricted as provided Gov. Code § 11430.10 [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(8)]. The general prohibition of Gov. Code § 11430.10 is that, while a proceeding is pending, there shall be no communication, direct or indirect, regarding any issue in the proceeding, to the presiding officer from an employee or representative of an agency that is a party or from an interested person outside the agency, without notice and opportunity for all parties to participate in the communication [Gov. Code § 11430.10(a)].

The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control violated the ex parte contact provisions of the California Administrative Procedures Act [Gov. Code § 11430.10] by following the practice of having the department prosecutor prepare a hearing report after the hearing and issuance of a proposed decision by the Administrative Law Judge and then submitting that report to the chief counsel of the Department before a final decision was reached by the director of the Department in that case [Dept. of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 1, 4-6, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585, 145 P.3d 462] . The prosecutor's hearing report contained summaries of the issues and evidence presented at the hearing by the prosecutor as well as a recommended resolution of the case with supporting reasons. The report was submitted by the department prosecutor (who had represented the department at an evidentiary hearing before an ALJ) on an ex parte basis to the Chief Counsel of the Department, the prosecutor's supervisor, and the decision making advisor to the Director of the department. The report was not made part of the record in the case, and the report was not served on counsel for the affected licensee. In each of the adjudicatory hearing matters in which this practice was challenged, the ALJ issued a proposed decision dismissing the accusation against an alcoholic beverage licensee (e.g., for selling alcoholic beverages to underage customers), and the Director of the Department rejected that proposed decision, and substituted a department decision suspending the licenses of the licensees for a period of time (15 to 25 days) [Dept. of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 1, 6-8, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585, 145 P.3d 462] . The ban on ex parte contacts is designed to ensure a limited internal separation of functions between prosecutorial and decision-making employees who work for a single agency that combines both prosecution and adjudication in the same agency [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 1, 9-11, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585, 145

P.3d 462] . The California Supreme Court held that the ban on ex parte contacts applies to communications with both presiding officers and agency heads, and includes both the hearing stage and the decision stage of the adjudication [Gov. Code § 11430.10(a)]. The California Supreme Court ordered the reversal of the Department decisions ordering the suspension of alcoholic beverage licenses in these cases [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 1, 16-18, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585, 145 P.3d 462] .

The California Court of Appeal held that the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control violated provisions of the California Administrative Procedures Act [Gov. Code § 11430.10] because the Department prosecutor sent an ex parte communication (prosecutor's hearing report) to the department decision maker prior to the time the decision maker decided whether or not to adopt the proposed decision of the administrative law judge [Chevron Stations Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 116, 127, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 6] . The Court of Appeal in Chevron Stations relied upon the decision of the California Supreme Court in the Quintenar case [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 1, 4-6, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585, 145 P. 3d 462 (Department rejected ALJ proposed decision)]. The Court of Appeal held that the ex parte communication violated the California Administrative Procedures Act [Gov. Code § 11430.10] even though the Department adopted the proposed decision of the administrative law judge [Chevron Stations Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 116, 127, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 6] . The Court of Appeal also held that the licensee established a prima facie case of a violation of the ex parte communications prohibition in Gov. Code §§ 11430.10 to 11430.70. Once that showing was made, the Department had the burden of proof to justify the department's practices under the APA, and the department failed to meet that burden of proof before the Board. The court of appeal rejected the department's efforts to make this showing for the first time on appeal [Chevron Stations Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 116, 131-133, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 6] .

The California Sixth District Court of Appeal held that the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control violated provisions of the California Administrative Procedures Act [Gov. Code § 11430.10] because the Department allowed its decision makers to have access to prosecuting attorneys reports of hearings prior to the time the decision maker decided whether or not to adopt the proposed decision of the administrative law judge. These hearing reports were not part of the administrative record in the case, and allowing the decision maker access to the reports resulted in extra-record information being considered by the decision maker, in violation of the administrative law principle that the agency record provides the exclusive basis for the decision [Rondon v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 1288-1290, 60 Cal. Rptr.3d 295] . The Sixth District Court of Appeal in Rondon relied upon the decision of the California Supreme Court in the Quintenar case [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 1, 4-6, 50 Cal. Rptr. 3d 585, 145 P.3d 462]

In Rondon, the Sixth District Court of Appeal held that the prosecutor's hearing report was an ex parte communication and that providing access to that report by the Department decision maker violated the California Administrative Procedures Act [Gov. Code § 11430.10] even though the Department adopted the proposed decision of the administrative law judge revoking Rondon's retail on sale beer and wine license [Rondon v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 1288-1290, 60 Cal. Rptr.3d 295] . The Sixth District Court of Appeal also held that the prosecutor's hearing report was extra-record information that violated the administrative law principal that the decision of the administrative agency has to be based on the evidence in the record for decision, not on information outside the record [Rondon v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 1289-1290, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 295] . The court of appeal relied upon on the California Supreme Court decisions in LaPrade v. Department of Water & Power (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 47, 51-52, 162 P.2d 13 , and English v. City of Long Beach (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 155, 158, 217 P.2d 22] . The Sixth District Court of Appeal also decided that no showing of prejudice was required to justify reversal of the Department decision revoking Rondon's license to sell beer and wine [Rondon v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 1290-1291, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 295] . Finally the Sixth District Court of Appeal allowed the introduction of extra-record evidence at the appeal stage on the issue whether the prosecutor's hearing report was distributed or made available to the decision maker [Rondon v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 1286-1287, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 295] . Finally, the Sixth District Court of Appeal required that Department show a lack of access, or screening of the decision maker, from access to the prosecutor's hearing report [Rondon v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1274, 1287-1288, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 295] . The Sixth District Court of Appeal relied upon the decision in Howitt v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 1575, 1587, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 196 .

In a decision made prior to the adoption of Gov Code § 11430.10, the California Court of Appeal held that an improper ex parte communication was made to the ALJ by a lawyer for one party who stated that he feared for his and his co-counsel's safety, as the other party to the adjudication was acting irrationally in the proceeding [Matthew Zaheri Corp. v. New Motor Vehicle Board (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1305, 1312-1313, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705] . The court held that this was an improper ex parte communication, that it was improper not to disclose the communication, but the court upheld the decision reached following the hearing concluding that the merits of the decision were not adversely affected by the communication. The agency placed a state police officer in the hearing room to provide better security in the hearing [Matthew Zaheri Corp. v. New Motor Vehicle Board (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1305, 1312-1313, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705] .

[2] Definitions

Ex parte communications are improper in some circumstances, but not others [see Gov. Code § 11430.10 et seq.].

For purposes of the general prohibition (discussed in [1], above), a proceeding is pending from the issuance of an agency's pleading, or from an application for an agency decision, whichever is earlier [Gov. Code § 11430.10(c)].

The term "interested person outside the agency" is based on federal administrative law [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see 5 U.S.C. § 557(d)(1)(A); PATCO v, Federal Labor Relations Authority (1982) 685 F.2d 547, 562, 222 U.S. App. D.C. 97 (interpreting the federal standard to include persons with interest beyond that of members of the general public)]. The pendency of a proceeding includes any period of time between the time an application for a hearing is made and the time the agency's pleading is issued [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

If, while the proceeding is pending, but before serving as presiding officer, a person receives a communication of a type that would violate the provisions of this law if received while the person was serving as a presiding officer, the person, promptly after starting to serve, shall disclose the content of the communication on the record and give all parties an opportunity to address it in the manner provided in Gov. Code § 11430.50 [Gov. Code § 11430.40(c); see [4], below].

[3] Permissible Ex Parte Communications

Ex parte communications that are proper under the act include several categories. The first category, generally permissible communications specifically authorized, include the following:

- Communications, including a communication from an employee or representative of an agency that is a party, made on the record at the hearing [Gov. Code § 11430.10(b)].

- Communications that are required for the disposition of an ex parte matter specifically authorized by statute [Gov. Code § 11430.20(a)].

- Communications that concern a matter of procedure or practice, including a request for a continuance, that is not in controversy [Gov. Code § 11430.20(b)]. This exception does not preclude communications made to a presiding officer or staff assistant regarding noncontroversial matters of procedure and practice, such as the format of pleadings, number of copies required, manner of service, and calendaring and status discussions. Such topics are not considered to be part of the merits of the proceeding provided they are noncontroversial in the context of the specific case [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm.

Reports 55 (1995)].

The second category of permissible ex parte communications are those communications otherwise prohibited from an employee or representative of an agency that is a party to a presiding officer, in the following circumstances:

- The communication is for the purpose of assistance and advice to the presiding officer from a person who has not served as investigator, prosecutor or advocate in the proceeding or its preadjudicative stage. An assistant or advisor may evaluate the evidence in the record but shall not furnish, augment, diminish, or modify the evidence in the record [Gov. Code § 11430.30(a)].

- The communication is for the purpose of advising the presiding officer concerning a settlement proposal advocated by the advisor [Gov. Code § 11430.30(b)].

- The communication is for the purpose of advising the presiding officer concerning any of the following matters in an adjudicative proceeding that is non-prosecutorial in character [Gov. Code § 11430.30(c)], including:

  - The advice involves a technical issue in the proceeding and the advice is necessary for, and is not otherwise reasonably available to, the presiding officer, provided the content of the advice is disclosed on the record and all parties are given an opportunity to address it in the manner provided in Gov. Code § 11430.50 [Gov. Code § 11430.30(c)(1); see [c], below].

  - The advice involves an issue in a proceeding of the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission, California Tahoe Regional Planning Agency, Delta Protection Commission, Water Resources Control Board, or a regional water quality control board [Gov. Code § 11430.30(c)(2)].

The third and final category of permissible ex parte communications include the following:

- The presiding officer's authority to conduct in camera examination of evidence in a proceeding (see Gov. Code § 11507.7(d), (e)) is not limited by the prohibition on ex parte communications [Gov. Code § 11430.10; 25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

- Presiding officers are not prohibited from communicating with adversaries. Only communications from adversaries to presiding officers are precluded. However, presiding officers should give assistance or advice with caution, since there may be an appearance of unfairness if assistance or advice is given to some parties but not others [Gov. Code § 11430.10; 25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

- Presiding officers are not prohibited from consulting with other agency personnel when the agency conducting the hearing is not a party to the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11430.10; 25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

[4] Consequences of Ex Parte Communication Violations

When an improper ex parte communication is made, there are three consequences, disclosure, notice and opportunity to respond, and if necessary, disqualification of the presiding officer. If a presiding officer receives an improper communication, the officer must place in the record of the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11430.50(a)] the following:

- If the communication is written, the writing and any written response of the presiding officer to the communication [Gov. Code § 11430.50(a)(1)].

- If the communication is oral, a memorandum stating the substance of the communication, any response made by the presiding officer, and the identity of each person from whom the presiding officer received the communication [Gov. Code § 11430.50(a)(2)].

The presiding officer must also notify all parties that an ex parte communication has been made a part of the record [Gov. Code § 11430.50(b)]. If a party requests an opportunity to address the communication within 10 days after receipt of notice of the communication [Gov. Code § 11430.50(c)]:

- That party must be permitted to comment on the communication [Gov. Code § 11430.50(c)(1)]; and

- The presiding officer has discretion to allow the party to present evidence concerning the subject of the communication, including discretion to reopen a hearing that has been concluded [Gov. Code § 11430.50(c)(2)].

If a presiding officer receives an improper ex parte communication, the presiding officer may be disqualified [Gov. Code § 11430.60]. Disqualification is permitted if it is necessary to eliminate the effect of the ex parte communication [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)]. If the presiding officer is disqualified, the portion of the record pertaining to the ex parte communication may be sealed by protective order of the disqualified presiding officer [Gov. Code § 11430.60].

The purpose of sealing is to remove the improper communication from the view of the successor presiding officer, while preserving it as a sealed part of the record, for purposes of subsequent administrative or judicial review. Granting a protective order is permissive, not mandatory, and is within the discretion of the presiding officer who has knowledge of the improper ex parte communication [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

[5] Application to Agency Head

Agency heads [see Gov. Code § 11405.40 (defining agency head)] who are decision makers are subject to the same requirements as to ex parte communications with several qualifications. The same requirements that govern ex parte communications to presiding officers also govern ex parte communications in an adjudicative proceeding to the agency head or other person or body to which the power to hear or decide in the proceeding is delegated [Gov. Code § 11430.70(a)].

There is an exception, however, that applies to individualized ratemaking proceedings. An ex parte communication to the agency head or other person or body to which the power to hear or decide in the proceeding is delegated is permissible in an individualized ratemaking proceeding if the content of the communication is disclosed on the record and all parties are given an opportunity to address it in the manner provided in Gov. Code § 11430.50 [Gov. Code § 11430.70(b); see discussion in [4], above].

Furthermore, there is a prohibition on direct or indirect communication, while a proceeding is pending regarding the merits of any issue in the proceeding, between the presiding officer and the agency head or other person or body to which the power to hear or decide in the proceeding is delegated [Gov. Code § 11430.80(a)]. This rule does not apply when the agency head or other person to which the power to hear or decide in the proceeding is delegated serves as both presiding officer and agency head, or when the presiding officer does not issue a decision in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11430.80(b)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityEx Parte ContactsAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityParticipation in ProsecutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. The Administrative Adjudication "Bill of Rights"

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.29

§ 473.29 Language Assistance

[1] General Rule Requiring Language Assistance

Language assistance must be made available as provided in Gov. Code § 11435.05 by an agency described in Gov. Code § 11018 or 11435.15 [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(9)].

[2] When the Rule Applies

[a] Generally When Party or Witness Needs Assistance

Under the APA, administrative hearings and medical examinations conducted for the purpose of determining compensation or monetary awards, are conducted in the English language [Gov. Code § 11435.20(a)].

If a party or the party's witness does not proficiently speak or understand English and requests language assistance before the commencement of the hearing or medical examination, the agency must comply with language assistance requirements (see Gov. Code § 11435.05 et seq. (legal requirements)), and the party or witness will be provided with an interpreter by the agency [Gov. Code § 11435.20(b)].

[b] Agencies Required to Provide Language Assistance

Language assistance must be made available as required by Gov. Code § 11435.05 et seq. by state agencies described in Gov. Code § 11018 (state agencies that conduct administrative hearings but are not subject to Chapter 5, Administrative Adjudication: Formal Hearings, Gov. Code §§ 11500 et seq.) and Gov. Code § 11435.15 (listed state agencies) [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(9)].

The listed state agencies in Gov. Code § 11435.15 include the following agencies [Gov. Code § 11435.15(a)]:

- Agricultural Labor Relations Board.

- Department of Alcohol and Drug Abuse.
- State Athletic Commission.
- California Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board.
- Board of Prison Terms.
- State Board of Barbering and Cosmetology.
- State Department of Developmental Services.
- Public Employment Relations Board.
- Franchise Tax Board.
- State Department of Health Services.
- Department of Housing and Community Development.
- Department of Industrial Relations.
- State Department of Mental Health.
- Department of Motor Vehicles.
- Notary Public Section, Office of Secretary of State.
- Public Utilities Commission.
- Office of Statewide Health Planning and Development.
- State Department of Social Services.
- Worker's Compensation Appeals Board.
- Department of the Youth Authority.
- Youthful Offender Parole Board.
- Department of Insurance.
- State Personnel Board.
- California Board of Podiatric Medicine.
- Board of Psychology.

The listed agencies must comply with language assistance requirements notwithstanding general provisions that Chapter 4.5, Administrative Adjudication: General Provisions (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.), does not apply to some or all of an agency's adjudicative proceeding [Gov. Code § 11435.15(d)]. The language assistance article's requirements are limited to adjudicative proceedings in which, under the federal or state constitution or a federal or state statute, an evidentiary hearing for determination of facts is required for formulation and issuance of a decision under the requirements of Gov. Code § 11410.10 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

Agencies that are not listed may chose to adopt language assistance procedures, provided that interpreter selection is consistent with the requirements of Gov. Code § 11435.30 [Gov. Code § 11435.15(b)]. Agencies may also provide interpreters for non-adjudicative proceedings, such as informal fact finding and informal investigatory hearings [Gov. Code § 11435.15(c)].

[3] Language Assistance Requirements

Language assistance is defined to mean oral interpretation or written translation into English of a language other than English or of English into another language for a party or witness who cannot speak or understand English or who can do so only with difficulty [Gov. Code § 11435.05]. However, interpretation for deaf or hard of hearing parties or witnesses in adjudicative proceedings is governed by Evidence Code § 754 [Gov. Code § 11435.10]. The primary language assistance requirement is that the agency will provide a party or witness with an interpreter when the party or witness is not proficient in the English language [Gov. Code § 11435.20(b)]. Agencies must advise parties of interpreter rights when the agency advises that same party of the hearing date or medical examination. Agencies should also encourage parties that are in need of an interpreter to give timely notice to the agency conducting the hearing or medical examination so that appropriate arrangements can be made [Gov. Code § 11435.60]. A Spanish speaking motorist whose driver's license was suspended for refusing to take a blood alcohol test challenged the suspension because DMV failed to notify him of the right to have an interpreter at the hearing at the same time that DMV notified the driver when the hearing was scheduled to occur. Failure to provide simultaneous notice of hearing date and interpreter rights violates Gov. Code § 11435.60, but this was harmless error because the driver was notified of interpreter rights when he was provided the notice of suspension of his license by the arresting officer, and driver failed to show any prejudice to him from the lack of an interpreter at the DMV hearing [Leal v. Gourley (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 963, 968-970, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220] . DMV is only required by statute [Gov. Code § 11435.60] to provide the notice of the right to an interpreter in English, not other languages [Leal v. Gourley (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 963, 970-971, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220] . Interpreters must normally be certified [Gov. Code § 11435.55], must not have had any involvement in the issues of the case prior to the hearing [Gov. Code § 11435.65(b)], and are subject to confidentiality rules of the agency, if any, that apply to the adjudicative proceeding [Gov. Code § 11435.65(a)].

[4] Interpreter Requirements

Hearing interpreters must be certified under Gov. Code § 11435.30 [Gov. Code § 11435.55(a)]. However, if a certified interpreter can not be present at the hearing, the hearing agency has discretionary authority to provisionally qualify and use another interpreter [Gov. Code § 11435.55(a)]. Medical examination interpreters must be certified under Gov. Code § 11435.35 [Gov. Code § 11435.55(b)]. However, if a certified interpreter can not be present at the medical examination, the physician provisionally may use another interpreter if that fact is noted in the record of the medical evaluation [Gov. Code § 11435.55(b)]. The State Personnel Board is required to designate the languages for which certification of administrative hearing interpreters [Gov. Code § 11435.30] and medical examination interpreters [Gov. Code § 11435.35] shall be established [Gov. Code § 11435.40(a)].

The languages designated shall include, but not be limited to, Spanish, Tagalog, Arabic, Cantonese, Japanese, Korean, Portuguese, and Vietnamese until the State Personnel Board finds that there is an insufficient need for interpreting assistance in these languages [Gov. Code § 11435.40(a)].

Language designations are to be based on four criteria [Gov. Code § 11435.40(b)]:

- The language needs of non-English speaking persons appearing before the administrative agencies, as determined by consultation with the agencies [Gov. Code § 11435.40(b)(1)].

- The cost of developing a language examination [Gov. Code § 11435.40(b)(2)].

- The availability of experts needed to develop a language examination [Gov. Code § 11435.40(b)(3)].

- Other information the State Personnel Board deems relevant [Gov. Code § 11435.40(b)(4)].

The State Personnel Board can charge fees for application to take interpreter examinations, and for annual renewal of certification [Gov. Code § 11435.45]. The State Personnel Board has the responsibility to establish, maintain, and annually update lists of certified administrative hearing [Gov. Code § 11435.30(a)] and medical examination [Gov. Code § 11435.35(a)] interpreters that the Board determines meets minimum standards in interpreting skills and linguistic abilities in languages [Gov. Code § 11435.40] designated by the Board [Gov. Code § 11435.30(a); Gov. Code § 11435.35(a)].

Listed certified administrative hearing interpreters may be examined by each employing agency to determine the interpreter's knowledge of the employing agency's technical program terminology and procedures [Gov. Code § 11435.30(a)]. Court interpreters certified under Gov. Code § 68562, and interpreters listed on the Board's recommended list of court and administrative hearing interpreters prior to July 1, 1993, are deemed certified as administrative hearing interpreters [Gov. Code § 11435.30(b)]. Court interpreters certified under Gov. Code § 68562, and certified administrative hearing interpreters, are deemed certified as medical examination interpreters [Gov. Code § 11435.35(b)].

Under three circumstances, the Board can remove persons from the certified interpreters lists [Gov. Code § 11435.50]:

- The person is deceased [Gov. Code § 11435.50(a)].

- The person notifies the Board that the person is unavailable for work [Gov. Code § 11435.50(b)].

- The person does not pay a required annual renewal fee [Gov. Code § 11435.50(c)].

[5] Costs of Interpreters

Interpreter costs are paid as determined by the presiding officer at the hearing. The agency that has jurisdiction over the matter will pay interpreter costs if the presiding officer orders the agency to pay the costs. Otherwise, the party requesting the interpreter will pay interpreter costs [Gov. Code § 11435.25(a)]. The presiding officer's decision to direct payment shall be based upon an equitable consideration of all the circumstances in each case, such as the ability of the party in need of the interpreter to pay [Gov. Code § 11435.25(b)]. However, in hearings before the Worker's Compensation Appeals Board or the Division of Worker's Compensation relating to worker's compensation claims, the payment of the costs of providing an interpreter shall be governed by the rules and regulations of the WCAB, or the Administrative Director of the DWC, as appropriate [Gov. Code § 11435.25(c)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewEvidenceCompetencyInterpreters

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. The Administrative Adjudication "Bill of Rights"

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473.30-473.39

[Reserved]

§§ 473.30[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.40

§ 473.40 Federal Constitution

Due process clause. U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Constitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.41

§ 473.41 State Constitution

Due process clause. Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Constitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.42

§ 473.42 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

Accusation. Gov. Code § 11503

Administrative adjudication bill of rights. Gov. Code § 11425.10 et seq.

Administrative Law Judges. Gov. Code § 11502

Affidavits. Gov. Code § 11514

Agency decisional authority. Gov. Code § 11440.10

Agencies to which act applies. Gov. Code §§ 11410.10, 11501

Amendment of pleadings. Gov. Code §§ 11507, 11516

Applicability of provisions to statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504.5

Conduct of hearing. Gov. Code § 11512

Consolidation of Proceedings Gov. Code § 11507.3

Contempt. Gov. Code § 11455.10 et seq.

Continuances. Gov. Code § 11524

Conversion of Proceedings Gov. Code § 11470.10 et seq.

Decision. Gov. Code §§ 11516-11520, 11526

Declaratory Decision Gov. Code § 11465.10 et seq.

Definitions of terms. Gov. Code §§ 11405.10 et seq., 11500

Depositions. Gov. Code § 11511

Discovery. Gov. Code §§ 11507.5-11507.7

Disqualification. Gov. Code §§ 11425.30, 11425.40, 11512

Emergency Decision. Gov. Code § 11460.10 et seq.

Evidence. Gov. Code §§ 11435.10, 11440.40, 11513

Ex parte communications Gov. Code. Code § 11430.10 et seq.

Hearings by Electronic Means Gov. Code § 11440.30

Informal Hearings Gov. Code § 11445.10 et seq.

Intervention Gov. Code § 11440.50

Language Assistance Gov. Code § 11435.05 et seq.

Judicial review. Gov. Code § 11523

Notice of defense. Gov. Code § 11506

Notice of hearing. Gov. Code § 11509

Oaths. Gov. Code § 11528

Official notice. Gov. Code § 11515

Reconsideration. Gov. Code § 11521

Reporting proceedings. Gov. Code § 11512

Restoration of rights. Gov. Code § 11522

Separate Hearings Gov. Code § 11507.3

Service and Notice Gov. Code § 11440.20

Service of initial pleading. Gov. Code § 11505

Settlement Conferences. Gov. Code § 11511.7

Sexual Harassment Gov. Code § 11440.40

Statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504

Subpoenas. Gov. Code § 11450.05 et seq.

Time and place of hearing. Gov. Code § 11508

Waiver of Rights Gov. Code § 11415.40

[2] Related Statutes

Affidavit of good cause as required for subpoena duces tecum. Code Civ. Proc. § 1985

Witness served with subpoena as entitled to demand one day's fees and mileage allowance. Code Civ. Proc. § 1987

Witness fees and mileage allowances. Gov. Code §§ 11191, 68093, 68097.2

Right to have subpoena issued. Gov. Code § 11190

Office of Administrative Hearings. Gov. Code § 11370.1 et seq.

Board of supervisors of county as empowered to establish county hearing officer. Gov. Code §§ 27720, 27721

Oaths used in civil proceedings. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2094-2097

Evidentiary effect of plea of nolo contendere. Penal Code § 1016

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsAdministrative Boards

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.43

§ 473.43 Decisions

Disciplinary action against licensee, finding licensee guilty of gross incompetence, is invalid when administrative record is completely devoid of any statute, rule, regulation, or evidence of an implied standard by which to measure competence of licensee's conduct. Wheeler v. State Bd. of Forestry (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 522, 527-528, 192 Cal. Rptr. 693

Administrative regulations that violate acts of Legislature are void. Selby v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 470, 474, 168 Cal. Rptr. 36

Act in excess of agency's authority under enabling law are void. Frates v. Burnett (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 63, 71, 87 Cal. Rptr. 731

Subject of administrative proceeding is entitled to have statutory procedures strictly followed and fairly construed. California Sch. Employees Assn. v. Personnel Commission (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 139, 145, 89 Cal. Rptr. 620, 474 P.2d 436

Administrative regulation contrary to enabling law is void. California Sch. Employees Assn. v. Personnel Commission (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 139, 144, 89 Cal. Rptr. 620, 474 P.2d 436

Agency is not free to ignore its own validly established procedures. Frates v. Burnett (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 63, 71, 87 Cal. Rptr. 731

Reference to Administrative Procedure Act for guidance is proper in case not governed by act or other law. Rudolph v. Athletic Commission (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 1, 12, 1 Cal. Rptr. 898

Requirements of due process. Connolly Development, Inc. v. Superior Court of Merced County (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 803, 818, 823, 132 Cal. Rptr. 477, 553 P.2d 637 ; Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 208-209, 124 Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P.2d 774 ; Beaudreau v. Superior Court (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 448, 458, 121 Cal. Rptr. 585, 535 P.2d 713

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingDue ProcessAdministrative LawSeparation of PowersLegislative ControlsScope of Delegated AuthorityConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of Protection

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.44

§ 473.44 Attorney General Opinions

Office of administrative hearings precluded from using electronic recording devices instead of using certified shorthand reporters in hearings even if parties waive requirement of "phonographic reporter" under Gov. Code § 11512(d). 65 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 682, 687 (1982)

Record of conviction is evidence in proceeding under Administrative Procedure Act (against certificated teacher). 34 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 34 (1959)

Calling respondent as witness in proceeding under Administrative Procedure Act. 11 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 116 (1948)

Administrative Procedure Act supersedes former Cleaning and Dyeing Act respecting disciplinary proceeding against licensee. 8 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 24 (1946)

Selection of place of hearing under Gov. Code § 11508. 7 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 257 (1946)

Reinstatement of revoked license by Real Estate Commissioner under Gov. Code § 11522. 7 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 264 (1946)

Determination by mail vote whether administrative proceeding shall be presided over by hearing officer acting alone. 7 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 274 (1946)

Evidence in proceeding under Administrative Procedure Act. 6 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 219 (1945)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.45

§ 473.45 Law Reviews

Asimow, The Influence of the Federal Administrative Procedure Act on California's New Administrative Procedure Act, 32 Tulsa L.J. 297 (1996)

Asimow, The Scope of Judicial Review of Decisions of California Administrative Agencies, 42 U.C.L.A. L. Rev. 1157 (1995)

Asimow, Toward a New California Administrative Procedure Act: Adjudication Fundamentals, 39 UCLA L. Rev. 1067 (1992)

Yore, No Strings Attached, 5(1) Cal. Law. 42 (1985)

Moskowitz, Vermont Yankee in California's Courts, 13 Pac. L.J. 315 (1981)

Note, Discovery and Administrative Due Process: A Balance Between an Accused's Right to Discovery and Administrative Efficiency, 8 Hastings Const. L.Q. 645 (1981)

Note, Administrative Law--Defense of Entrapment--Defense Is Available in Administrative Proceedings, 7 Loy. L.A. L. Rev. 187 (1974)

Cooper, Resolving Real Estate Disciplinary Matters Prior to Hearing, 47 Cal. St. B.J. 330 (1972)

Grunschlag, Lawyer/Non-Lawyer Decisions in Adjudication of Public Contract Claims: A Study of Administrative Process, 12 Santa Clara Law. 36 (1972)

Ogden, California Welfare Fair Hearings: An Adequate Remedy? 5 U.C. Davis L. Rev. 542 (1972)

Comment, Legal Problems of Administrative Practice, 5 U.C. Davis L. Rev. (1972)

Comment, Trumpets in the Corridors of Bureaucracy: A Coming Right to Appointed Counsel in Administrative Adjudicative Proceedings, 18 UCLA L. Rev. 758 (1971)

Molinari, California Administrative Process: A Synthesis Updated, 10 Santa Clara Law. 274 (1970)

Traub, California's Ombudsmen for Licensees--The Office of Administrative Procedure, 40 L.A. Bar Bull. 190 (1970)

Comment, Discovery in State Administrative Adjudication, 56 Cal. L. Rev. 756 (1968)

Bobby, An Introduction to Practice and Procedure Under the California Administrative Procedure Act, 15 Hastings L.J. 258 (1964)

Dietz, Local Adaptation of the California Administrative Procedure Act--A Plea for Research and Study, 15 Hastings L.J. 310 (1964)

Rogge, A Technique for Change [in Administrative Investigations and Determinations], 11 UCLA L. Rev. 481, 533-541 (1964)

Comment, Administrative Sanctions: Regulation and Adjudication, 16 Stan. L. Rev. 630 (1964)

Comment, Discovery Prior to Administrative Adjudications--Statutory Proposal, 52 Cal. L. Rev. 823 (1964)

Note, Economic Due Process and Occupational Licensing in California, 15 Hastings L.J. 364 (1964)

Note, The Effect of a Pardon on License Revocation and Reinstatement, 15 Hastings L.J. 355 (1964)

Note, Hearsay Under the Administrative Procedure Act, 15 Hastings L.J. 369 (1964)

Note, License Revocation: Uncertainty and Due Process, 15 Hastings L.J. 339 (1964)

Fick, The Reform of Administrative Procedure and the Controversy Over Jurisdiction, 2 Santa Clara Law. 103 (1962)

Woll, Informal Administrative Adjudication: Summary of Findings, 7 UCLA L. Rev. 436 (1960)

Comment, Removal of State Administrative Proceedings to the Federal Courts, 12 Stan. L. Rev. 492 (1960)

Note, Administrative Law: Third-Party Participation in Adjudicative Administrative Hearings in California, 47 Cal. L. Rev. 747 (1959)

Clarkson, Practice Before California Licensing Agencies, 44 Cal. L. Rev. 197 (1956)

Kuchman, The Role of the Hearing Officer--A Private Practitioner's Point of View, 44 Cal. L. Rev. 212 (1956)

Lakustra, The Role of the Hearing Officer--Operations in an Agency Not Subject to the APA: Public Utilities Commission, 44 Cal. L. Rev. 218 (1956)

Newman, Two Decades of Administrative Law in California: A Critique, 44 Cal. L. Rev. 190 (1956)

tenBroek, Operations Partially Subject to the APA: Public Welfare Administration, 44 Cal. L. Rev. 242 (1956)

Note, Administrative Law: Agency Calling Party as Witness at Hearing: Government Code Section 11513(b) , 44 Cal. L. Rev. 400 (1956)

Note, Administrative Law: Professional and Occupational Licensing: Standard of Conduct for Administrative License Revocation, 44 Cal. L. Rev. 403 (1956)

Davis, Administrative Findings, Reasons, and Stare Decisis, 38 Cal. L. Rev. 218 (1950)

Note, Administrative Law: Licensing: Change of Board Membership During Proceedings, 38 Cal. L. Rev. 896 (1950)

Note, Section 11517 of California Government Code , 21 S. Cal. L. Rev. 182 (1948)

Kleps, The California Administrative Procedure Act, 22 Cal. St. B.J. 391 (1947)

Pfiffner, The Role of the Lawyer in Public Administration, 20 S. Cal. L. Rev. 37 (1946)

Comment, Administrative Law--Administrative Subpoenas--Use and Enforcement of, 20 S. Cal. L. Rev. 66 (1946)

Note, Administrative Law: Enforcement of Subpoena of Administrative Agency, 34 Cal. L. Rev. 428 (1946)

Kleps, California's Approach to the Improvement of Administrative Procedure, 32 Cal. L. Rev. 416 (1944)

Note, Practice Before Administrative Agencies, 29 Cal. L. Rev. 603, 605 (1941)

McGowen, The Battle of the Processes, 28 Cal. L. Rev. 277, 288 (1940)

Dimock, The Prospect for Administrative Tribunals, 20 Cal. L. Rev. 162 (1932)

Thelan, Practice and Procedure Before Administrative Tribunals, 16 Cal. L. Rev. 208 (1928)

Comment, Hearsay Testimony: Consideration by Administrative Tribunal, 13 Cal. L. Rev. 384, 394 (1925)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityHearsayAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & PowersAdministrative LawInformal Agency ActionsAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral OverviewGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.46

§ 473.46 Text References

California Administrative Hearing Practice (Cal. C.E.B. 1984)

Witkin, California Evidence, Ch. III, Judicial Notice, §§ 150-191; Ch. X, Witnesses, §§ 787-791; Ch. XII, Introduction of Evidence at Trial, §§ 1223-1275 (2d ed.)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473 PUBLIC AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473.47

§ 473.47 Internet References

Office of Administrative Hearings. This site includes: information and location concerning specific OAH offices; an OAH hearing guide; information concerming Administrative Procedure Act statutes, regulations, and proposed regulations; OAH forms; information concerning alternative dispute resolution procedures; and declaratory decisions. http://www.dgs.ca.gov/oah NOTE: On and after July 1, 1998, The OAL is required by Gov. Code § 11340.1(b) to make the full text of the California Code of Regulations, with reference citations and history notes, available on the Internet free of charge.

Office of Administrative Law. This site includes: OAL publications; links to OAL statutes and regulations relating to rulemaking; regulations submitted to the OAL for review, and information for contacting or provding input to the OAL regarding rulemaking. http://www.oal.ca.gov

California Home Page. This site includes links to other sites maintained by numerous state agencies. http://www.ca.gov

Department of Consumer Affairs. This site includes links to sites maintained by many state agencies that are under this department, as well as links to agency sites. http://www.dca.ca.gov

California Courts. This site includes: general information about state court organization and specific court; text of recently filed slip opinions; court minutes and calendars; text of California Rules of Court; Judicial Council forms and other information promulgated by the Judicial Council; links to sites of most Court of Appeal districts, with text of local appellate rules, forms, and internal operating procedures; links to other sites maintained by local trial courts, state government agencies and organizations, federal courts and federal organizations, and other sources of legal information. http://www.courtinfo.ca.gov

California Legislative Information. This site includes: text of constitution, codes, and statutes (including complete text of APA); and information concerning pending legislation. http://www.leginfo.ca.gov

Matthew Bender. This site includes: links to Matthew Bender publications and Shepard's citation service.
http://www.bender.com

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute ResolutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingState ProceedingsGovernmentsCourtsCreation & OrganizationGovernmentsLegislationEnactment

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 473A.syn

§ 473A.syn Synopsis to Chapter 473A: COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION

§ 473A.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 473A.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

[2] Judicial Review

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

[4] Specific Public Agencies

[5] Other Chapters Relating to Public Agencies

§§ 473A.03-473A.09 [Reserved]

§ 473A.10 Agency Discretion to Commence Adjudicatory Proceedings

[1] Ways to Initiate Proceedings

[2] Agency Discretion

[3] Definitions

[4] Office of Administrative Hearings Regulations Governing Hearing Procedures

§ 473A.11 Pleadings

[1] Nature of Administrative Pleadings

[2] Who May Initiate Adjudication Proceedings

[a] Agency Employees and Public Officers

[b] Investigative Personnel

[c] Participation in Adjudication by Agency Member Who Files Charges

[d] Third Parties

[3] Accusation

[a] Nature of Accusation

[b] Fair Notice

[c] Allegations

[4] Statement of Issues

[a] Definition

[b] Applicability of California APA Accusation Provisions

[c] Form of Statement of Issues and Verification

[d] Service of Statement of Issues

[5] Amending, Supplementing, or Correcting Accusations or Statements of Issues

[6] Notice of Defense

[a] Nature of Notice of Defense

[b] Effect of Notice of Defense or Failure to File Notice

[c] Contents of Notice

[d] Objection as to Form or Sufficiency of Accusation

[e] Number of Notices and Time of Filing

[f] Admissions and Statements in Mitigation

[g] Affirmative Defenses

[h] Notice of Defense Not Required When Respondent Has Already Requested Hearing

[i] Non-APA Proceedings

[7] Verification

[8] Filing

[9] Service

[a] Accusations and Statements of Issues

[b] Statements of Issues Served and Filed in Response to a Respondent's Request for a Hearing

[c] Notice of Hearing Under the APA

[d] Notice of Hearing in Non-California APA Proceedings

[10] Notice of Hearing

[a] Due Process Requirements

[b] APA Notice Requirements

[c] Computing Time Period for Notice

[d] Postage and Correct Address Not Required for Service by Mail

[e] Notice of Continued Hearings

[11] Time and Place of Hearing

[12] Affirmative Defenses

[13] Demurrers

§ 473A.12 Limitations of Action and Laches

[1] Applicability

[2] Elements of Laches

[a] Unreasonable Delay and Resulting Prejudice

[b] Determining When Delay Is Unreasonable

[c] Determining Prejudice Resulting From Delay

[3] Application of Laches by Agency Itself

§ 473A.13 Unconstitutional Statutes

§ 473A.14 Parties and Interested Third Persons

[1] Definition of Party and Participation of Third Persons

[2] Due Process Right to Participate

[3] Intervention

§ 473A.15 Consolidation and Severance

§§ 473A.16-473A.19 [Reserved]

§ 473A.20 Federal Constitution

§ 473A.21 State Constitution

§ 473A.22 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

[2] Related Statutes

§ 473A.23 Decisions

[1] Consolidation and Severance

[2] Initial Pleading

[a] Generally

[b] Amendment

[c] Complainant

[d] Contents

[3] Intervention

[4] Limitations and Laches

[5] Notice

[6] Responsive Pleading

[a] Generally

[b] Demurrer

[7] Setting for Hearing

[8] Statement of Issues

§ 473A.24 Text References

§ 473A.25 Internet References

§§ 473A.26-473A.39 [Reserved]

§ 473A.40 Determine the Methods by Which the Agency Initiates Adjudicatory Hearings

§ 473A.41 Responding to Accusation Under APA Guidelines

[1] Request Hearing by Notice of Defense

[2] Motion for Consolidation

[3] Motion for Severance

[4] Request Hearing Without Notice of Defense

[5] Inadequate Notice of Hearing

[6] Change Location of Hearing

[7] Prior to Hearing

[8] Reopening Case After Submitted for Decision

§ 473A.42 Responding to Statement of Issues When Agency Sends Letter of Denial of Privilege

[1] Requesting a Hearing

[2] Notice of Defense

[3] Inadequate Notice of Hearing

[4] Change Location of Hearing

[5] Motion for Consolidation

[6] Motion for Severance

[7] Prior to Hearing

[8] Reopening Case After Submitted for Decision

§ 473A.43 Statement of Issues Sent by Agency in Lieu of Letter of Denial

[1] Notice of Defense

[2] Inadequate Notice of Hearing

[3] Change Location of Hearing

[4] Motion for Consolidation

[5] Motion for Severance

[6] Prior to Hearing

[7] Reopening Case After Submitted for Decision

§ 473A.44 Non-APA Agencies

[1] Responsive Pleadings

[2] Affirmative Defenses

[3] Demurrer or Demurrer-Type Objection

[4] Consolidation or Severance

§ 473A.45 Third Party Participation

[1] Third Party Filing Accusation Under APA

[2] Intervention Permitted by Agency Law

[3] Intervention Is Discretionary

§§ 473A.46-473A.49 [Reserved]

§ 473A.50 Accusation [Gov. Code § 11503]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 473A.51 Statement to Respondent [Gov. Code § 11505]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 473A.52 Statement of Issues [Gov. Code § 11504]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 473A.53 Request for Hearing [Gov. Code § 11504]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 473A.54 Notice of Defense [Gov. Code § 11506]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Contents

[4] Request for Hearing

[5] Copies

[6] Objections

[a] Failure to State Sufficient Facts

[b] Form of Initial Pleading

[7] Admissions and Denials

[8] New Matter

[9] Entrapment Defense

[10] Cross References

§ 473A.55 Letter to Accompany Notice of Defense

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 473A.56 Letter Request for Extension of Time [Gov. Code § 11506]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 473A.57 Request to Set Aside Default [Gov. Code § 11506]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.01

§ 473A.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses California public administrative law relating to the commencement of an agency adjudication. It focuses primarily on the commencement procedures applicable to formal hearing conducted under the Administrative Procedure Act (APA). Discussion in Part II includes the following:

- Requirements for pleadings and issues in administrative hearings [see §§ 473A.10, 473A.11).

- Other provisions and law affecting the commencement of a formal hearing, such as limitation periods, the defense of laches, procedures relating to parties and other interested persons and to the consolidation or severance of hearings [see §§ 473A.12 -473A.15).

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.02

§ 473A.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

For general discussion and overview of agency adjudication under the Administrative Procedure Act (APA), see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication .

For related discussion and forms providing coverage of the other stages of an agency adjudication under the formal hearing provisions of the APA, see:

- Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication.
- Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473D, Prehearing Preparations in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges.
- Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings.
- Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions.

For related discussion and forms providing more detailed coverage of adjudication methods under the APA other than that of formal hearing, see Ch. 473H, Alternative Adminstrative Adjudication Procedures .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to licensing agencies, including licensing adjudications, see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies .

[2] Judicial Review

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to review by California courts of agency adjudications, see:

- Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions.
- Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions.
- Ch. 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions.
- Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions.

For other related discussion and forms relating to judicial review generally, see:

- Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, through Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review (discussion and forms relating to civil appeals).
- Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of orders by extraordinary writ of mandate or prohibition).
- Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of civil proceedings by extraordinary writ of review).

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

For related discussion of California public administrative law generally, including discussion of public agency functions and powers (including adjudicative or quasi-judicial powers), and organization generally, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law (general discussion of judicial power is in § 470.12[5]). For detailed discussion of the general procedures imposed in agency proceedings by constitutional due process and related statutory requirements, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies .

For discussion and forms relating to the law governing access to and conduct of meetings by California public agencies, see Ch. 470B, Public Agency Meetings .

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the law governing disclosure of public records under the California Public Records Act [Cal. Gov. Code §§ 6250 et seq.], see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to agency investigations and inspections, see:

- Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies.
- Ch. 471A, Inspections by Public Agencies.

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to the legislative or rulemaking functions of California public agencies, including judicial review of these functions, see:

- Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules.
- Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures.
- Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking.

[4] Specific Public Agencies

For related coverage of adjudicative proceedings before particular public agencies, see:

- Ch. 18, Alcoholic Beverage Licenses (discussion and forms relating to licensing proceedings before the department of Alcoholic Beverage Control).

- Ch. 70, Attorney Admission, and Ch. 71, Attorney Discipline (discussion and forms relating to licensing and discipline of attorneys and proceedings before the State Bar and the State Bar Court).

- Ch. 92, Automobiles: Drivers' Licenses (discussion and forms relating to drivers' licensing and proceedings before the Department of Motor Vehicles).

- Ch. 104, Building Contracts, § 104.70 et seq. (discussion relating to licensing and discipline of building contractors by the Contractors' State License Board).

- Ch. 118, Civil Service (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the Personnel Board).

- Ch. 209, Dentists (discussion and forms relating to licensing and discipline of dentists and proceedings before the Board of Dental Examiners).

- Ch. 214, Drugs and Pharmacists (discussion and forms relating to licensing and discipline of pharmacists and proceedings before the State Board of Pharmacy).

- Ch. 414, Physicians: Licensing and Discipline (discussion and forms relating to licensing and discipline of physicians and proceedings before the Medical Board of California).

- Ch. 480, Public Utilities (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the Public Utilities Commission).

- Ch. 512, Schools: Certification, Dismissal, and Related Employment Issues (discussion and forms relating to teacher certification and dismissal proceedings before the State Board of Education and local boards).

- Ch. 527, Social Services (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the State Department of Social Service or the State Department of Health Services).

- Ch. 564, Unemployment and Disability Insurance, § 564.10 et seq. and § 564.100 et seq. (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board).

- Ch. 575, Waters, § 575.10 et seq. and § 575.210 et seq. (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the State Water Resources Control Board and local water districts).

- Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the Division of Workers' Compensation and the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board).

For additional cross references to coverage of other particular public agencies, see § 470.02[2].

[5] Other Chapters Relating to Public Agencies

For discussion and forms relating to claims and actions under the California Tort Claims Act (Gov. Code § 810 et seq.) for damages for injuries arising from the tortious conduct of public agencies or their officers and employees, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesProhibitionAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of Protection

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473A.03-473A.09

[Reserved]

§§ 473A.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.10

§ 473A.10 Agency Discretion to Commence Adjudicatory Proceedings

[1] Ways to Initiate Proceedings

A variety of ways exist to initiate administrative adjudicative proceedings. For administrative adjudications not governed by the adjudication provisions of the California APA (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq. and Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), the method of initiating the proceedings depends on the agency's governing law.

This chapter and Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications, through Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions, focus on formal hearings under the administrative adjudication provisions of the APA (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.). These are governed primarily by Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), which sets out the formal hearing procedures that comprise one part of the APA administrative adjudication provisions. The Chapter 5 procedures are supplemented by relevant provisions of Chapter 4.5 (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.), which sets out general provisions that make up the remainder of the APA administrative adjudication provisions [see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication, § 473.13[1], for further explanation of the APA and the administrative adjudication provisions of Chapters 4.5 and 5 that comprise a part of the APA]. The formal hearing procedures under Chapter 5 are those which most licensing agencies must use in disciplinary or license denial proceedings [see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication, § 473.15, for detailed discussion of what proceedings are governed by Chapter 5].

Thus, for example, under Chapter 5 of the APA adjudication provisions, disciplinary hearings against licensees begin with the filing of an accusation [Gov. Code § 11503], and license denial hearings begin with the filing of a statement of issues [Gov. Code § 11504]. For further discussion of these initial pleadings, see § 473A.11.

Regardless of whether the proceedings of an agency must be initiated with an accusation, statement of issues, or other formal pleading, the first step toward a hearing is often taken when a third party, such as a consumer or another licensee, makes a complaint or report to the agency or requests the agency to hold a hearing [see § 473A.14, for discussion of third party participation]. Most agencies are expressly authorized to receive complaints. For example, Bus. & Prof. Code § 129(b) requires every Department of Consumer Affairs agency to receive complaints about its licensees.

[2] Agency Discretion

Although a third party may complain to an agency about a licensee or even request a hearing, the agency is not required to hold a hearing. Whether to file an accusation or other pleading and hold a hearing on such a complaint or request is within the agency's discretion [see Hogen v. Valley Hospital (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 119, 123-125, 195 Cal. Rptr. 5 (report about licensee to Board of Medical Quality Assurance); Humane Society etc., California Branch Inc. v. Merrill (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 115, 118, 18 Cal. Rptr. 701 (complaint against certificate holder filed with Board of Public Health); Spear v. Board of Medical Examiners (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 207, 212, 303 P.2d 886 (Board of Medical Examiners requested to file accusation against licensee)].

If an agency has a legal duty to exercise its discretion, the courts can compel the agency to do so [Whitten v. California State Board, etc. (1937) 8 Cal. 2d 444, 446-447, 65 P.2d 1296 ; Anderson v. City of Los Angeles (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 219, 227, 106 Cal. Rptr. 299 ; Stevens v. Fox Realty Corp. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 199, 206, 100 Cal. Rptr. 63] , but they cannot compel it to exercise that discretion in any particular manner. Once an agency has exercised its discretion, the courts will not interfere, unless it is shown that the agency has abused its discretion [Paule v. State Personnel Board (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 32, 36, 113 Cal. Rptr. 38 ; Spear v. Board of Medical Examiners (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 207, 212-214, 303 P.2d 886] . The court may not substitute its discretion for that of the agency [Spear v. Board of Medical Examiners (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 207, 212, 303 P.2d 886] .

Even when a third party files an accusation [see Humane Society etc., California Branch Inc. v. Merrill (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 115, 118-120, 18 Cal. Rptr. 701 (complainant cannot compel Board of Public Health to file accusation, but complainant may file one)], the agency may treat the accusation, and whether to hold a hearing on that accusation, as a matter for its discretion as it would any other public complaint, unless the party has a statutory right to a hearing or a constitutional right to be heard [see Horn v. County of Ventura (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 605, 156 Cal. Rptr. 718, 596 P.2d 1134 (due process requires that landowner not be deprived of property rights by administrative action without notice and opportunity to be heard); see also discussion in § 473A.14[2]].

The procedure of filing an accusation or statement of issues to initiate a hearing is intended primarily for the benefit of the licensee or applicant, who does have a right to be heard by the agency, but may waive that right [Gov. Code § 11506(c) (failure to file notice of defense as waiver of right to hearing); see Gov. Code §§ 11503 (hearing to revoke or suspend license or other privilege initiated by filing accusation), 11504 (hearing to determine whether license or other privilege should be granted or denied initiated by filing statement of issues), and discussion in § 473A.11[6][b]].

[3] Definitions

Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), governing formal hearings under the APA (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.), begins with a list of definitions that include the following [Gov. Code § 11500; see discussion in [1], above, and Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication, § 473.13[1], for discussion regarding Chapter 5 and other components of the APA]:

- "Agency" includes the state boards, commissions, and officers to which Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) is made applicable by law. When the word "agency" alone is used, the power to act may be delegated by the agency, but when the words "agency itself" are used, the power to act shall not be delegated unless the statutes relating to the particular agency authorize delegation of the agency's power to hear and decide [Gov. Code § 11500(a)].

- "Party" includes the agency, the respondent, and any person, other than an officer or employee of the agency acting in an official capacity, who has been allowed to appear or participate in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11500(b)].

- "Respondent" means any person against whom an accusation or statement of issues is filed [see Gov. Code §§ 11503, 11504 (accusation and statement of issues, respectively); see also Gov. Code § 11500(c) and discussion in § 473A.11[3], [4]].

These definitions apply to all other provisions in Chapter 5, unless the context or subject matter indicates otherwise [Gov. Code § 11500]. In addition, certain definitions set out in Chapter 4.5 also apply to proceedings under Chapter 5, to the extent that the provisions of Chapter 4.5 apply to formal hearings under Chapter 5 unless inconsistent with statutes specifically applicable to that proceeding [Gov. Code § 11501(c)]. For example, the following definition of "adjudicatory hearing" applies in that there is no definition of this term in Chapter 5 [Gov. Code § 11405.20]:

- "Adjudicative proceeding" is an evidentiary hearing for determination of facts pursuant to which an agency formulates and issues a decision.

Applicable provisions of Chapter 4.5 are discussed when relevant in this chapter. For detailed discussion of the additional definitions under Chapter 4.5 that may apply, see Chapter 473, Public Agency Adjudication, § 473.14.

[4] Office of Administrative Hearings Regulations Governing Hearing Procedures

The Office of Administrative Hearings adopted regulations [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1440 (1997)] to govern hearing procedures in hearings conducted before OAH administrative law judges [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1000 (1998)]. The regulations cover the subjects of general APA hearing procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1046 (1998)], special hearing procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1100-1148 (1997)], alternative dispute resolution procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1200-1292 (1999)], arbitration procedures for state contract act contract claims [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1300-1393 (1997)], and protest arbitration procedures 1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1440 (1998)]. The basic purpose [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1000 (1998)], definitions [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1002 (1998)], and principles of interpretation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1004 (1998)], are set forth in specific regulations. Specific regulations applicable to Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication, include the following: format and filing of papers [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1006 (1998)]; service and proof of service [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1008 (1998)]; pleadings, notice of defense and withdrawal of defense [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1014 (1998)]; and agency request for hearing and notice of hearing [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1018 (1998)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingStatutory RightAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewAbuse of DiscretionConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of ProtectionGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.11

§ 473A.11 Pleadings

[1] Nature of Administrative Pleadings

Two kinds of pleadings are used to begin formal hearings under the APA. A hearing to determine whether a license or other privilege will be revoked or suspended begins with an accusation [see further discussion in [3], below]. A license denial hearing begins with a statement of issues [see further discussion in [4], below].

If the APA formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) do not apply, there is no requirement as to the form of an initial pleading unless the agency's governing statutes impose such a requirement [see Rudolph v. Athletic Commission (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 1, 12-13, 1 Cal. Rptr. 898 (when due process protections apply, they require an initial pleading to give notice and state the right to an opportunity to be heard, but no particular form required); see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies , for detailed discussion of procedural due protections as they apply to agency actions or proceedings].

Thus, when no specific statutory requirements apply, the only requirement is that the initial pleading must be informative enough to allow the responding party to prepare a defense [Yanke v. State Dep't of Public Health (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 600, 603, 328 P.2d 556] . Non-APA pleadings often are typically not as formal as those under required under the formal hearing requirements of the APA. For example, a non-California APA disciplinary action may be initiated by a specially prepared document, such as a "notice of disciplinary action," or by a mere letter.

Non-APA hearings on an agency's denial of a requested action, such as the denial of a license application, are sometimes initiated by pleadings similar to a statement of issues.

Whether the APA's formal hearing provisions of Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) apply to a particular adjudication by a particular agency depends on the statutes relating to that agency [Gov. Code § 11501(a)]. In general, the provisions of Chapter 5 apply when they are made applicable by the statutes relating to that agency [Gov. Code §§ 11500(a), 11501(a)]. These are hereafter referred to as the "enabling statues" for a particular agency.

In addition, any agencies created on or after July 1, 1997, are subject to the formal hearing requirements of Chapter 5 unless the enabling statutes of that agency provide otherwise [Gov. Code § 11501(b)].

Finally, as mentioned above, the provisions of Chapter 4.5, the general procedures of the administrative adjudication provisions (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.), apply to an adjudicative proceeding required to be conducted under Chapter 5, unless the statutes relating to the proceeding provide otherwise [Gov. Code § 11501(c)]. This means also that the provisions of Chapter 4.5 apply to decisions of agencies when federal or state constitutional or statutory law require an evidentiary hearing to determine facts so as to formulate and issue a decision [Gov. Code § 11410.10].

Thus any agency, for example the Department of Motor Vehicles (listed as an agency subject to Chapter 5 pursuant to former Government Code Section 11501(b)(41)), must follow the APA adjudication procedures unless its enabling statutes provide otherwise [Gov. Code §§ 11400(b), 11501(a),(c); see Serenko v. Bright (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 682, 689-690, 70 Cal. Rptr. 1] .

See Chapter 473, Public Agency Adjudication, §§ 473.13, 473.15, for further discussion.

[2] Who May Initiate Adjudication Proceedings

[a] Agency Employees and Public Officers

Unless the agency's governing statute expressly states who can or cannot initiate a proceeding, an administrative adjudication usually is initiated by a pleading signed and filed by an agency employee or a public officer [see discussion in [3], and [4], below, for explanation of the two principal kinds of initial pleadings].

Thus, Gov. Code §§ 11503 and 11504 require that the initial pleading be verified, "unless made by a public officer acting in his official capacity or by an employee of the agency before which the proceeding is to be held."

In practice, the public officer is usually a deputy attorney general, although some statutes authorize particular public officials outside the agency to initiate administrative actions [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 24203 (authorizing hearings on accusations by local legislative bodies and police officials against liquor licensees)].

[b] Investigative Personnel

Agency personnel who conduct investigations may also sign and file charges [Jacobs v. Board of Dental Examiners (1922) 189 Cal. 709, 713, 209 P. 1006] . This dual function is not a violation of due process [Greer v. Board of Education (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 98, 119-120, 121 Cal. Rptr. 542] .

[c] Participation in Adjudication by Agency Member Who Files Charges

If an agency board member files the charges, however, that member may not participate in the adjudication of the charges unless his or her participation is necessary for the matter to be determined [Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. McConnell (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 715, 723-724, 285 P.2d 636 , appeal dismissed, 350 U.S. 984, 76 S. Ct. 473, 100 L. Ed. 852 (1956) ; Nider v. Homan (1939) 32 Cal. App. 2d 11, 17, 89 P.2d 136] . To avoid this problem, most boards have their executive officer file the charges.

[d] Third Parties

A private third party may also file an accusation in a proceeding under the California APA [Gov. Code § 11503; Humane Society etc., California Branch Inc. v. Merrill (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 115, 120, 18 Cal. Rptr. 701] . Unless the governing laws require the agency to hold a hearing when an accusation is filed, the accusation (or statement of issues) will be treated like any other public complaint [see discussion in § 473A.10 regarding an agency's discretion to act]. The agency is free to ignore an accusation (or statement of issues) filed by a third party complainant unless the third party has a due process right to a hearing [Spear v. Board of Medical Examiners (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 207, 212, 303 P.2d 886 ; see discussion in [3] and [4] below; for detailed discussion of the application of due process protections to administrative adjudications, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies].

[3] Accusation

[a] Nature of Accusation

The APA requires an agency seeking to revoke, suspend, limit, or condition a right, authority, license, or privilege to initiate the action by filing a written accusation. The accusation is a statement of charges that must comply with the following requirements [Gov. Code § 11503]:

- States the acts and omissions with which the respondent is charged so the respondent is able to prepare a defense.
- Specifies the statutes and rules that the respondent is alleged to have violated.
- Is drafted in ordinary and concise language.

Compliance with these requirements is a statutory predicate to disciplinary action [Linda Jones General Builder v. Contractors' State License Board (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1320, 1324, 1326, 240 Cal. Rptr. 180 ; Bohemian Club v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1, 24, 231 Cal. Rptr. 769 , appeal dismissed, 484 U.S. 805, 108 S. Ct. 51, 98 L. Ed. 2d 16 (1987) ; Wheeler v. State Bd. of Forestry (1982) 144 Cal. App. 3d 522, 526-527, 192 Cal. Rptr. 693] . An accusation satisfied the requirements of Gov. Code § 11503 when it stated that the applicant for a real estate license had been denied a license on the grounds that he had been disbarred from the practice of law, and the accusation set forth the statutory sections and Rules of Professional Conduct sections that the applicant had violated which provided the basis for disbarment. The accusation was not required to set forth specific acts of dishonesty committed by the applicant [Berg v. Davi (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 223, 228-229, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803] .

See § 473A.50 for a form of accusation, and § 473A.51 for a form of notice of accusation.

[b] Fair Notice

In administrative proceedings, courts are more concerned with fair notice to the respondent than adherence to the technical rules of pleading [see, e.g., Stearns v. Fair Employment Practice Com. (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 205, 213, 98 Cal. Rptr. 467, 490 P.2d 1155 (because administrative pleadings not bound by strict rules of pleading, variance between accusation and proof presents no ground for reversal as long as respondent is informed of substance of charge); Cooper v. Board of Medical Examiners (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 931, 941-942, 123 Cal. Rptr. 563 (vagueness in accusation not material under liberal rules of administrative pleading as long as respondent is informed of substance of charge); Wright v. Munro (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 843, 848, 301 P.2d 997 (in administrative proceedings, courts are more concerned with fair notice to respondent than with technical rules of pleading)].

The accusation must specify enough facts to notify the respondent of the agency's allegations and permit the respondent to gather witnesses and evidence to refute the allegations [Hostetter v. Alderson (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 499, 502, 241 P.2d 230 ; Stoumen v. Munro (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 302, 306-307, 33 Cal. Rptr. 305] . The agency is not required to identify all the circumstances of the acts alleged or to specify the evidence that it will present to support the charges [Nelson v. Dept. Alcoholic Bev. Control (1959) 166 Cal. App. 2d 783, 787-788, 333 P.2d 771 ; Mast v. State Board of Optometry (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 78, 90-91, 293 P.2d 148] .

However, procedural due process requires that the board give the accused party fair notice of charges that the agency is going to rely upon to support discipline [Sanchez v. City of Los Angeles (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1069, 1080-1082, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 188 (notice of proposed 20-day disciplinary suspension was not sufficient to give officer timely notice of proposed pay grade reduction within one-year time period; officer was entitled to reinstatement in pay grade to officer status held before discipline was imposed); Stokes v. California Horse Racing Board (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 477, 482-483, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 792 (licensed horse trainer received fair notice of charges against him that Board relied upon as basis for discipline)]. Failure to give fair notice violates procedural due process [Smith v. State Bd. of Pharmacy (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 229, 241-242, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 532 (Board's failure to inform pharmacist that it was going to rely on a theory that he was negligent as pharmacist in charge violated procedural due process of law requirements)].

In a physician licensing revocation action, due process of law required that the physician be given fair notice that the failure to complete a diversion program would be treated as unprofessional conduct that provided its own basis for discipline. While physician disciplinary proceeding are not penal (criminal), and the notice standards are not as specific or strict as in criminal law actions, the statute authorizing discipline must provide a reasonably clear basis for that discipline, and the physician has to be given notice of that consequence. The lack of such clear basis in thestatute lead the court to interpret the statute as not providing authority to discipline a physician for failure to complete a diversion program [Medical Board of California v. Superior Court (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 163, 173-175, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 403] .

However, a governing statute (e.g., Educ. Code § 89539) may restrict an agency's authority to consider additional facts and circumstances in reviewing an employee termination decision. In that circumstance, the agency must rely on the original charges stated in the notice of dismissal, and may not amend the notice of dismissal to add new charges either before, or after the hearing [Brooks v. State Personnel Bd. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1068, 1074-1075, 272 Cal. Rptr. 292 ; Brown v. State Personnel Bd. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1164-65, 213 Cal. Rptr. 53] . Furthermore, the agency may not rely on the amended charges in reaching its decision [Brooks v. State Personnel Bd. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1068, 1074-1075, 272 Cal. Rptr. 292] .

[c] Allegations

Accusations and similar non-APA initial pleadings should contain all of the allegations necessary under the APA and other statutes governing the agency action. These pleadings generally contain allegations concerning:

- Jurisdiction [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 118(b)].
- Statutory grounds for the action.
- Specific conduct.
- Prior discipline.
- A prayer for relief.

The pleadings often must be verified [see [7], below] and must be properly served [see [9], below].

An accusation must state the acts and omissions with which the respondent is charged so that the respondent is able to prepare a defense [see [a], above, for general requirements].

For non-California APA proceedings, courts have held that statutory allegations are accepted only if the statute itself is explicit enough to advise the respondent of the particular offense forming the basis of the charge [Smulson v. Board of Dental Examiners (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 584, 589, 118 P.2d 483] .

Legal conclusions couched as pleading allegations are considered mere surplusage and may be disregarded, so long as the statement of charges is otherwise sufficient [Shewbridge v. Police Commission (1944) 64 Cal. App. 2d 787, 791, 149 P.2d 429] .

[4] Statement of Issues

[a] Definition

A statement of issues is necessary to initiate a formal hearing under the APA to determine whether a right, authority, privilege, or license should be granted, issued, or renewed [Gov. Code § 11504].

A statement of issues is a written specification of the statutes and rules with which the respondent must show that he or she has complied; the respondent demonstrates this compliance by producing proof at the hearing. The statement of issues also includes any matters that have come to the attention of the initiating party, the party who files the statement of issues, that would authorize a denial of the agency action that is sought [Gov. Code § 11504].

[b] Applicability of California APA Accusation Provisions

The APA's provisions for proceedings on an accusation (see generally Gov. Code § 11400 et seq. and Gov. Code § 11505 et seq.), also apply to proceedings on a statement of issues [Gov. Code § 11504.5]. When, however, the hearing is held at the request of the respondent, the following exceptions apply [Gov. Code § 11504; see [9], below]:

- The provisions of Gov. Code § 11505 (service of the accusation, discussed in [9], below) and Gov. Code § 11506 (notice of defense, discussed in [6], below) do not apply.

- The statement of issues together with the notice of hearing must be delivered or mailed to the parties as provided in Gov. Code § 11509.

[c] Form of Statement of Issues and Verification

The form of a statement of issues is similar to that of an accusation [see [3], above]. It should inform the parties of the specific factual issues raised regarding the agency action sought or the denial of that action. It usually contains a statement that the complainant is acting in an official capacity and sets out the statutory and regulatory provisions applicable to the agency's action. A public employee is immune from liability for his or her disposition of a license application if he or she is authorized to make the determination in question [see Gov. Code § 821.2]. Further, a statement of issues need not be verified if issued by a public officer in his or her official capacity, or by an employee of the agency before which the hearing is to be held [see Gov. Code § 11504; see also [7], below]. See § 473A.52, for a statement of issues form.

[d] Service of Statement of Issues

A statement of issues is generally sent in one of two ways:

- Usually an agency denying a license or other privilege sends a denial letter to the applicant; if the applicant responds with a request for a hearing, the agency sends a statement of issues [cf. Akopiantz v. Board of Medical Examiners (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 331, 332, 304 P.2d 52 (hearing on denial of certificate held without any statement of issues by agency when physician requested hearing and waived statement of issues)]. In this situation, when the hearing is held at the request of the respondent, the provisions of Gov. Code § 11505 (service of accusation) and Gov. Code § 11506 (notice of defense) do not apply, and the statement of issues together with the notice of hearing is delivered or mailed to the parties as provided in Gov. Code § 11509 [Gov. Code § 11504; see discussion in [9][b], [c], below]. See § 473A.53, for a form of request for hearing.

- Sometimes an agency sends a statement of issues in lieu of a letter of denial. On these occasions, the statement of issues is served in the same way as an accusation [Gov. Code § 11504]. In other words, a statement of issues is served in the same way as an accusation whenever the agency serves it before the respondent requests a hearing [see discussion in [9][a], below].

Even though Gov. Code § 11506 (notice of defense, discussed in [6], below) does not apply when a hearing on a statement of issues is initiated by the respondent's request for a hearing, it has been suggested that the respondent in such a proceeding should nonetheless plead, file, and serve on all parties before the hearing, any of the defenses described in Gov. Code § 11506 that he or she wishes to raise [see Bobby, An Introduction to Practice and Procedure Under the California Administrative Procedure Act, 15 Hast. L. J. 258, 261 (1964)].

[5] Amending, Supplementing, or Correcting Accusations or Statements of Issues

Technical defects in accusations or statements of issues can be rectified in a variety of ways. The APA allows the agency to file or accept the filing of an amended or supplemental accusation or statement of issues before the matter is submitted for decision [Gov. Code § 11507; Button v. Board of Administration (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 730, 738, 176 Cal. Rptr. 218 (statement of issues); Stuck v. Board of Medical Examiners (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 751, 756, 211 P.2d 389 (accusation)].

More than one amendment may be permitted [see 20 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 192, 193 (1952)] . The APA also allows an agency to order amendment of an accusation or statement of issues after the case is submitted for decision [Gov. Code § 11516; Taylor v. City of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 611, 617, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 521] . An amendment after the case is submitted for decision is generally intended to conform the initial pleading to the proof made at the hearing.

For non-APA proceedings, the liberal rules governing administrative pleadings should allow an agency to amend the initial pleading before the hearing [see Cook v. Civil Service Commission (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 118, 126-127, 2 Cal. Rptr. 836 (dismissal of police officer by municipal commission after hearing on amended pleadings upheld)]. After the hearing commences, agencies not governed by the APA probably have the same right as APA agencies to amend the initial pleading [see Tapley v. Abbott (1931) 111 Cal. App. 397, 400, 295 P. 911 (finding of unprofessional conduct upheld despite amendment of pleadings during hearing to conform to proof); see also Gov. Code § 11516 (APA agencies)].

The California Court of Appeal reversed the Superior Court's dismissal of an enforcement action brought by the Labor Commissioner to enforce an order requiring an employer to rehire an employee with back pay. The Labor Commissioner claimed that the employer had fired the employee in retaliation for the making of a Cal-OSHA complaint against the employer's place of business, and that this was a wrongful retaliatory termination that is prohibited by the provisions of Labor Code § 6310. At trial before the superior court, the employer testified that she fired the employee out of fear that the employee would be the next one to file a Cal-OSHA complaint. The Court of Appeal held that the Labor commissioner had jurisdiction in these circumstances over a preemptive termination claim under Labor Code Section 6310, which specifically requires that employees actually make workplace safety complaints for the wrongful termination law to apply. The Court of Appeal held that the statute included preemptive termination claims within the scope of the Labor Commissioner's jurisdiction, and that proof of a preemptive termination did not constitute improper variance with the pleadings and the administrative decision, which had plead that a workplace safety violation had been made prior to termination of the employee [Lujan v. Minagar (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1040, 1047-1048, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 861] .

A pleading that contains some allegations in entirely general terms is not fatally defective when the agency proceeds against the respondent only on other more specific allegations. Thus, an accusation that charged improper and unethical acts "including but not limited to the following" did not deny due process when the agency proceeded against the respondent only on the specifically enumerated charges [Cooper v. Board of Medical Examiners (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 931, 941-942, 123 Cal. Rptr. 563] . The liberal rules of administrative pleading require mainly that the pleadings give sufficient notice to enable the accused to prepare a defense [Hostetter v. Alderson (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 499, 502, 241 P.2d 230 ; see discussion in [3][b], above].

Technical defects in the pleadings may also be cured if the respondent indicates personal knowledge of the alleged incident. In one case, the respondents in a liquor license suspension proceeding objected to the form of the accusation, claiming that it did not enable them to identify the transactions in which they were alleged to have sold liquor to obviously intoxicated persons. The court held that the vague description of the buyer in the second count of the accusation did not hamper respondents in the preparation of their defense because one of the respondents, when testifying in his own defense, readily identified the incident and the customer, and named several people who were present at the time [Burako v. Munro (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 688, 690-691, 345 P.2d 124] .

All parties must be notified of an amended or supplemental accusation or statement of issues. When new charges are presented, the agency must give the respondent a reasonable opportunity to prepare a defense. The agency has discretion to allow the respondent to file a further pleading. New charges, however, are deemed controverted, and objections to the amended or supplemental accusation or statement of issues may be made orally and will be noted on the record [Gov. Code § 11507]. If the agency orders amendment of the accusation or statement of issues after the case is submitted for decision, each party will be given the opportunity to argue for reopening the case to introduce additional evidence. If it is shown that the party will be prejudiced unless the case is reopened, the agency must reopen the case to permit introduction of additional evidence [Gov. Code § 11516].

[6] Notice of Defense

[a] Nature of Notice of Defense

When an accusation is served on a respondent in a formal hearing under the APA proceeding, the respondent may request a hearing by filing a notice of defense with the agency [Gov. Code § 11506(a)].

A form notice of defense accompanies the accusation when it is served [Gov. Code. § 11505(a)]. The notice usually consists of:

- A brief statement that the respondent acknowledges service of the accusation and the attending forms required by Gov. Code § 11505.
- A request for hearing.

See also discussion in [c], below, for a detailed list of what the notice of defense may contain.

A notice must be in writing, must be signed by or on behalf of the respondent, and must state the respondent's mailing address. The form notice need not be used [Gov. Code § 11506(d)]. For forms that may be used in filing a notice of defense, see § 473A.54.

[b] Effect of Notice of Defense or Failure to File Notice

The notice of defense is deemed a specific denial of all parts of the accusation not expressly admitted [Gov. Code § 11506(c); but see [d], below (discussing requirement to object specifically as to the form of an accusation)].

Failure to file a notice constitutes a waiver of the right to a hearing. However, even when the right to a hearing has been waived by the failure to file a notice of defense, agencies have, and sometimes exercise, the discretion to grant hearings despite the waiver [Gov. Code § 11506(c)]. A respondent may request a grant of hearing by way of relief from default for his or her failure to file the notice of defense [see Gov. Code § 11520(b), (c); for a form that may be used to request that the failure to file a notice of defense not be deemed a waiver of the right to a hearing, see § 473A.57].

[c] Contents of Notice

In addition to requesting a hearing, a notice of defense may include the following [Gov. Code § 11506(a)]:

- An objection to the accusation on the ground that it does not state acts or omissions on which the agency may proceed [see [d], below].

- An objection to the form of the accusation on the ground that it is so indefinite or uncertain that the respondent cannot identify the transaction or prepare a defense [see [d], below].

- An admission of the accusation in whole or in part [see [f], below].

- New matter by way of defense [see [f], below].

- An objection to the accusation on the ground that compliance with the requirements of a regulation would result in a material violation of another regulation enacted by another department affecting substantive rights [see [g], below].

[d] Objection as to Form or Sufficiency of Accusation

Failure to object to form of the accusation, on the ground that it is so indefinite or uncertain that the respondent cannot identify the transaction or prepare a defense, waives that objection [Gov. Code § 11506(a)(3), (c); Shea v. Board of Medical Examiners (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 564, 576, 146 Cal. Rptr. 653 ; Collins v. Board of Medical Examiners (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 439, 444, 105 Cal. Rptr. 634 ; Goldsmith v. Cal. State Bd. of Pharmacy (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 866, 872-873, 13 Cal. Rptr. 139] .

On the other hand, an objection that the accusation does not state acts or omissions on which the agency may proceed raises a question of the agency's jurisdiction over the subject matter. This objection is not waived and may be raised at any stage of the proceeding, including an appeal [Manning v. Watson (1952) 108 Cal. App. 2d 705, 710, 239 P.2d 688 ; Stuck v. Board of Medical Examiners (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 751, 755, 211 P.2d 389] . This rule applies to non-APA proceedings as well [Mumaw v. City of Glendale (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 454, 459-460, 76 Cal. Rptr. 245] .

[e] Number of Notices and Time of Filing

The notice of defense must be filed within 15 days after service of the accusation. The respondent may file one or more notices of defense on any or all of the grounds listed in [c], above, but all of them must be filed within the time specified, unless the agency in its discretion authorizes the filing of a later notice [Gov. Code § 11506(a)]. For a form that may be used to request an extension of time to file a notice of defense, see § 473A.56.

[f] Admissions and Statements in Mitigation

Admissions can be made at any time before or during the hearing. Although one function of the notice of defense is to allow the respondent to admit the accusation in whole or in part (Gov. Code § 11506(a)(4); see discussion in [c], above), admissions are rarely included in a notice of defense as a matter of practice. Practical considerations dictate that admissions should be few and should be limited to admissions of fact, rather than admissions of violations [see also discussion in § 473A.54[3] -[8]].

When admissions are made, they do not preclude evidence of aggravation or mitigation, because such evidence concerns the penalty to be imposed, not the guilt or innocence of the respondent. When making an admission, a respondent should nevertheless expressly reserve the right to offer evidence in mitigation.

Prior to 1997, a respondent was entitled to file a statement by way of mitigation even if he or she did not file a notice of defense [see former Gov. Code § 11506(d)]. That provision has been eliminated in conformity with the requirement that a respondent now file a notice of defense or else waive his or her right to a hearing [Gov. Code § 11506(c); see discussion in [b], above]. A respondent wishing to present evidence by way of mitigation must therefore file a notice of defense and simply present the evidence at the hearing as part or all of his or her defense [see 25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Report 55 (1995), comments to Gov. Code §§ 11506, 11520].

[g] Affirmative Defenses

Although affirmative defenses may be raised in the notice of defense [Gov. Code § 11506(a)(5); see discussion in [c], above], it appears that the failure to raise an affirmative defense in the notice of defense does not waive that defense [see discussion in § 473A.54[3], [4]]. Two items in Gov. Code § 11506(c) support this statement:

- Gov. Code § 11506(c) provides that any objection to the form of an accusation must be raised in the notice of defense or that objection is waived [see [d], above]. Under the rule of statutory interpretation expressio unius est exclusio alterius ("the expression of one excludes the other"), the explicit provision for a waiver of objection as to form implies that any other objection not explicitly mentioned is not similarly waived if it not raised [see Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Public Utilities Com. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 653, 659, 156 Cal. Rptr. 733, 596 P.2d 1149 ; Garson v. Juarique (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 769, 774-775, 160 Cal. Rptr. 461 ; see also California Points and Authorities, Ch. 217, Statutory Interpretation].

- Gov. Code § 11506(c) also says that a notice of defense is deemed a specific denial of all parts of the accusation not expressly admitted [see discussion in [b], above].

At least one court, however, did seem to find the failure to raise an affirmative defense in the notice of defense a significant point. In that case the court twice stressed the respondent's failure to raise a claim of laches in the notice of defense, noting that it was of interest that no new matter by way of defense was alleged; but the court's holding that the claim failed was based only its conclusion that the claim was first raised on appeal and no evidence in support of it had been offered in the administrative proceeding or in superior court [Windham v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 461, 465, 474, 163 Cal. Rptr. 566 (citation omitted)].

Unless some strategic reason exists for withholding a particular affirmative defense, the whole question may be avoided by presenting new matter by way of defense in the notice, as allowed by Gov. Code § 11506(a)(5).

The affirmative defense that compliance with the requirements of a regulation would result in the material violation of another agency's regulation [see Gov. Code § 11506(a)(6)] is a recent response to the classic dilemma illustrated by the case of Barnard v. Carey [Barnard v. Carey (D.C. Ohio 1945) 60 F. Supp. 539] . In Barnard, the Internal Revenue Service was threatening to tax soya butter and require it to be labeled as oleomargarine, while the Federal Security Agency threatened to impose penalties if it was labeled as oleomargarine. In the absence of express statutory authority, the federal court used its general equitable jurisdiction and inherent power to resolve the dilemma. A similar dilemma involving regulations can now be raised at the administrative level pursuant to Gov. Code § 11506(a)(6).

[h] Notice of Defense Not Required When Respondent Has Already Requested Hearing

When an agency serves a statement of issues on a respondent before the respondent has made any request for a hearing, the APA requires the respondent to file a notice of defense [Gov. Code §§ 11504, 11504.5]. If, however, the agency files a statement of issues in response to a respondent's request for a hearing, the requirements for filing a notice of defense do not apply [Gov. Code § 11504]. Although the respondent is not required to file a notice of defense in the latter event, he or she does not appear to be precluded from doing so, to raise any of the matters listed in Gov. Code § 11506(a) (discussed in [c], above).

[i] Non-APA Proceedings

In non-APA proceedings, no notice of defense requirement exists. Parties must check the appropriate statutes, ordinances, or regulations to see whether a responsive pleading is required, the form it must take, and the applicable filing procedure. Although failure to raise a jurisdictional issue in a responsive pleading would not waive the issue [Mumaw v. City of Glendale (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 454, 459-460, 76 Cal. Rptr. 245] , the failure to object that the complaint does not give adequate notice of the charges may waive any such defects in the complaint [Vaughn v. Board of Police Commrs. (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 771, 778, 140 P.2d 130 , appeal dismissed, 321 U.S. 751, 64 S. Ct. 639, 88 L. Ed. 1052 (1943)] .

[7] Verification

Under the APA, both accusations and statements of issues must be verified unless made by a public officer acting in his or her official capacity or by an employee of the agency before which the proceeding is to be held. The verification may be on information and belief [Gov. Code §§ 11503, 11504]. A notice of defense does not have to be verified; it need only be signed by or on behalf of the respondent and include the respondent's mailing address [Gov. Code § 11506(d)].

In the absence of a statutory requirement for verification, pleadings in non-APA proceedings do not have to be verified [Sullivan v. State Bar (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 488, 493-494, 170 P.2d 888 , overruled on other grounds; Stratmore v. State Bar (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 887, 890, 123 Cal. Rptr. 101, 538 P.2d 229 ; Board of Education v. Jewett (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 64, 69, 68 P.2d 404] . Guidance for verification procedures can be found in the statutes governing verification in civil pleadings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446 (verification of pleadings in civil actions)]. For a discussion of verification of pleadings in civil actions, with related forms, see Ch. 572, Verification .

[8] Filing

Administrative pleadings, including APA accusations and statements of issues, are usually "filed" with the administrative agency involved. Accusations and statements of issues are not filed with the Office of Administrative Hearings (OAH). The OAH becomes involved only if the agency sends it the case for hearing. Under the APA, every hearing in a contested case must be presided over by an administrative law judge (ALJ). The agency itself decides whether (1) the ALJ hears the case alone or (2) the agency hears the case with the ALJ [Gov. Code § 11512(a)].

The ALJ is assigned by the OAH [see Gov. Code § 11370.3 (director of OAH assigns an ALJ to every APA hearing and may on agency's request assign an ALJ or other hearing officer to other administrative proceedings)]. After a case has been assigned to an ALJ, copies of all pleadings, motions, and other appropriate documents filed with an agency should also be sent to the ALJ. For further discussion and forms relating to assignment and other procedures involving the ALJ, see Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges .

What constitutes "filing" depends on the agency's practice. When a particular pleading is deemed filed by an agency, the date of filing should be indicated on the document. This date is essential for determining time-limit issues. A notice of defense [see discussion in [6], above] under the APA must be filed within 15 days of service of an accusation [Gov. Code § 11505(a), (b)]. A notice of defense is "filed" when it is delivered or mailed to the agency within 15 days after the accusation was personally served on or mailed to the respondent [Gov. Code §§ 11506(e) (definition of "filed" with reference to notice of defense), 11505(b) (delivery or mailing within 15 days required)].

[9] Service

[a] Accusations and Statements of Issues

Accusations may be served by sending a copy of the accusation and the required accompanying information to the respondent by regular mail addressed to the last known address of the respondent, or by personal service, at the option of the agency [Bus. & Prof. Code § 124]. Statements of issues may be served in the same way unless the respondent has already requested a hearing [Gov. Code § 11504; see discussion in [b], below].

The agency may not make an order that adversely affects the respondent's rights, however, unless the respondent has been served personally or by registered mail, or has filed a notice of defense or otherwise appeared. Service by registered mail to the latest address on file with the agency is effective if the agency requires the respondent to keep his or her current address on file with the agency [Gov. Code § 11505(c)]. Registered mail service to an established business address that the regulated business is required to file with the agency satisfies due process requirements of notice prior to license revocation proceedings because this method of notice is reasonably likely to inform the regulated party [Evans v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 958, 970-971, 26 Cal. Rptr.2d 460 ; Baughman v. Medical Board (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 398, 403, 46 Cal. Rptr. 498 ; Miller Family Home, Inc. v. Department of Social Services (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 488, 492-493, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 171] . Because of this limit on their power to make orders adverse to the respondent, agencies usually effect service by personal service or registered mail. Proof of service can be made as in civil actions [Gov. Code § 11505(c)]. Proof of service in civil actions is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 417.10 et seq. [see generally Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

While the agency may include any information it deems appropriate, when the accusation or statement of issues is served it must be accompanied by the following documents [Gov. Code § 11505(a)]:

- A form notice of defense.
- Copies of Gov. Code §§ 11507.5-11507.7 governing discovery in APA proceedings.
- A statement that the respondent may request a hearing by filing a notice of defense within 15 days after service of the accusation or statement of issues, and that failure to do so will constitute a waiver of the right to a hearing. The statement to the respondent must also include (a) notice that the respondent may be represented by counsel; (b) the name and address of the agency person to contact for discovery; and (c) information on postponing the hearing [Gov. Code § 11505(b)].

[b] Statements of Issues Served and Filed in Response to a Respondent's Request for a Hearing

As noted in [a], above, a statement of issues in response to a respondent's request for a hearing [Gov. Code § 11504] is served and filed differently from a statement of issues served before the respondent has made any request for a hearing. The latter type of statement is similar in nature to an accusation and is subject to the same service and filing requirements [see discussion in [a], above]. A statement of issues served after a respondent's request for hearing is, by contrast, delivered or mailed to the parties along with a notice of hearing at least 10 days before the hearing [Gov. Code § 11509]. The service must include copies of Gov. Code §§ 11507.5-11507.7, relating to discovery in APA proceedings, and the name and address of the agency person to contact for discovery [Gov. Code § 11504].

For further discussion of the requirements for a notice of hearing, see [c], and [10][b], below.

[c] Notice of Hearing Under the APA

In APA proceedings, the agency must either mail or deliver a notice of hearing to all parties [Gov. Code § 11509]. The notice must be delivered or mailed at least 10 days before the hearing [Gov. Code § 11509]. For discussion of this requirement, see [10][b], below.

[d] Notice of Hearing in Non-California APA Proceedings

In non-APA proceedings, service of pleadings and other documents is sometimes provided for by statute or ordinance. In the absence of statutory requirements for service, some form of actual notice is required [Simpson v. City of Los Angeles (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 271, 280, 253 P.2d 464 , appeal dismissed, 346 U.S. 802, 74 S. Ct. 37, 98 L. Ed. 333 (1953) ; see Milliken v. Meyer (1940) 311 U.S. 457, 463, 61 S. Ct. 339, 85 L. Ed. 278 (due process requires a form of service of process that gives actual notice of the proceedings and an opportunity to be heard)].

[10] Notice of Hearing

[a] Due Process Requirements

Adequate notice of hearing is essential to procedural due process [Carstens v. Pillsbury (1916) 172 Cal. 572, 577, 158 P. 218 ; People v. Lockheed Shipbuilding & Constr. Co. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 776, 780-781, 111 Cal. Rptr. 106 ; Rudolph v. Athletic Commission (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 1, 12-13, 1 Cal. Rptr. 898] . An agency cannot require that adequate notice be waived [Carroll v. California Horse Racing Bd. (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 164, 168-169, 105 P.2d 110] . For a discussion of the right to notice of administrative action, see Chapter 473, Public Agency Adjudication [see also Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies].

When a party wants to object to notice, the party should not wait for the hearing to do so. Rather, the party should make a showing of prejudice and request a continuance; if the party has been notified to attend a proceeding, and does so, the party does not have the basis to complain of the insufficiency of the notice [DeLuca v. Board of Supervisors (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 606, 609, 286 P.2d 395] .

The operator of a nude entertainment establishment was not denied any due process of law rights by the decision of the City of San Diego to suspend the operators required police permit because the operator violated provisions of city regulations that applied to his business. The California Court of Appeal rejected the operators due process challenge based on untimely notice of the charged violations. Notice regarding most of the violations was given within two weeks of the date of the violation. Delay in the giving notice of the violations did not cause any actual prejudice to the operator, and there was no showing of lost witnesses or other evidence. The operator had the burden of proof of showing actual prejudice from delay, and there was no such proof. Finally, the suspension was based on numerous violations over an extended period of time, and the operator had more than sufficient notice of those violations [Krontz v. City of San Diego (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1140-1141, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 535] .

The California Court of Appeal held that the California Coastal Commission did not deprive a developer of the due process right to notice of a hearing in which the commission considered a citizen's group appeal of the granting of a coastal development permit sought by the developer. The court concluded that the notice given to the developer was adequate to inform him of the issues to be considered at the hearing. The written notice of the commission hearing considering the appeal of the coastal development permit merely stated the date, time, and place of the hearing, but the commission sent the developer a copy of the appeal document filed by a group of local citizens, and that document contained a statement of the issues on appeal. Also, the developer was familiar with the issues to be appealed since he had participated in the development permit proceedings at the local government (county) level [Benson v. Cal. Coastal Comm'n (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 348, 353-354, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 580] .

[b] APA Notice Requirements

The California APA requires an agency to deliver or mail a notice of hearing to all parties at least 10 days before the hearing. The hearing itself cannot be held until the time for respondent to file a notice of defense has expired (15 days after service of the accusation or statement of issues) [Gov. Code § 11509; see Gov. Code §§ 11505, 11506 (notice of defense); see also discussion in [6], above]. Although it may include other information, the notice must be substantially in the form required by statute [Gov. Code § 11509].

[c] Computing Time Period for Notice

In computing the 10-day-notice period under the California APA, the day of mailing or delivery is excluded and the last day is included [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 12, 1013]. This method of computation was apparently applied incorrectly in one case [Cooper v. Board of Medical Examiners (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 931, 123 Cal. Rptr. 563] in which the Board of Medical Examiners failed to give notice "at least 10 days prior to the hearing" [Gov. Code § 11509] because it convened a hearing on the tenth day. The hearing should have begun on the eleventh day [Cooper v. Board of Medical Examiners (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 931, 942, 123 Cal. Rptr. 563] .

One court of appeal panel held that the extension of time provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) for service by mail does not apply to notice of hearing under Gov. Code § 11509 [Governing Board v. Felt (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 156, 163, 127 Cal. Rptr. 381] , because Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) applies only when some act must be done or a right exercised within a specified number of days after service, and does not apply to the right to be present at a proceeding for which a prescribed notice must be given [Brown v. Rouse (1897) 115 Cal. 619, 621-622, 47 P. 601] .

Subsequently, however, Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) was amended [1980 Stats., ch. 196, § 2], to provide that the extension of notice time for mailing now applies to notice of a hearing or other proceeding, and includes "any prescribed period of notice." Whether Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) applies to administrative proceedings is not clear. It has been held that it does apply to the time allowed to appeal a decision of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board [Pesce v. Dept. Alcoholic Bev. Control (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 310, 313, 333 P.2d 15] . Assuming that Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 applies to administrative proceedings, it is arguable that the minimum period of time for a notice of hearing should be 15 days from the date of mailing if the place of address is within California [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) (service of notice by mail extends prescribed period of notice by five days when place of address is within California); Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(c), (e) (time extended by two court days when notice is served by facsimile transmission, express mail, or other overnight delivery service)].

In practice, APA notices of hearing usually provide more than either 10 or 15 days' notice. Notices are sent out soon after the Office of Administrative Hearings (OAH) gives the agency a hearing date. For calendar reasons, OAH regularly sets hearings three or four months in advance.

[d] Postage and Correct Address Not Required for Service by Mail

A mailed notice of hearing under the APA does not require a correct address or prepaid postage, as long as these defects do not impede the respondent's receipt of the notice [Governing Board v. Felt (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 156, 163-164, 127 Cal. Rptr. 381] . The mailing requirement of Gov. Code § 11509 is substantially complied with if the improperly mailed notice is deposited in the mail and reaches the respondent as effectively and speedily as one correctly addressed with adequate postage [Governing Board v. Felt (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 156, 163-164, 127 Cal. Rptr. 381 ; Vo v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 820, 825, 826 n.2, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127] .

[e] Notice of Continued Hearings

The APA does not provide for notice of a continued hearing. Although notice of a continued hearing may not be required when the respondent knows or should know the time and date of the continued hearing [see McPheeters v. Board of Medical Examiners (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 709, 715, 187 P.2d 116] , agencies routinely serve notices of continued hearings.

[11] Time and Place of Hearing

The date, time, and place of a APA hearing is set forth in the notice of hearing [see Gov. Code § 11509]. The date and time of the hearing is usually determined by the Office of Administrative Hearings (OAH) calendar. The place of hearing may be determined by the APA, by the agency, or by agreement of the parties. In the absence of an agreement by the parties, the place of hearing is normally determined either by where the transaction in issue occurred or where the respondent resides.

The time and place of hearing is determined by the agency. The agency shall consult the office, and subject to the availability of its staff, shall determine the time and place of the hearing. The hearing shall be held at a hearing facility maintained by the office in Sacramento, Oakland, Los Angeles, or San Diego and shall be held at the facility that is closest to the location where the transaction occurred or the respondent resides [Gov. Code § 11508(a)]. Alternatively, the hearing may be held at either of the following places [Gov. Code § 11508(b)(1), (2) Gov. Code § 11508(b)(1), (2)]:

> (1) A place selected by the agency that is closer to the location where the transaction occurred or the respondent resides.
>
> (2) A place within the state selected by agreement of the parties. The respondent may move for, and the administrative law judge has discretion to grant or deny, a change in the place of the hearing. A motion for a change in the place of the hearing shall be made within 10 days after service of the notice of hearing on the respondent [Gov. Code § 11508(c)]. Unless good cause is identified in writing by the administrative law judge, hearings shall be held in a facility maintained by the office. [Gov. Code § 11508].

If the places where the transaction occurred and where the respondent resides are in different appellate districts, and two different hearinglocations are possible, the agency can pick either county [Gov. Code § 11508(b)(1); Cal-Am Corp. v. Department of Real Estate (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 453, 459, 163 Cal. Rptr. 729] .

For the convenience of parties and witnesses, and for other reasons such as the incarceration of the respondent, the agency may select a hearing place nearer to the place where the transaction occurred or where the respondent resides than the counties designated for hearings [Gov. Code § 11508(b)(1); see Campbell v. Board of Dental Examiners (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 872, 876-877, 95 Cal. Rptr. 351 (hearing for dentist jailed in San Diego properly held in San Diego although he lived elsewhere); McPheeters v. Board of Medical Examiners (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 709, 713-715, 187 P.2d 116 (when respondent resides and transaction occurred in Fresno, agency may hold hearing in Sacramento rather than Los Angeles because Sacramento is closer to Fresno)].

The parties may mutually agree to have the hearing held any place within California [Gov. Code § 11508(b)(2)].

The OAH or the agency normally determines the exact location of the hearing within the appropriate county. Hearings in Los Angeles, Oakland, San Diego, and Sacramento are usually held at the local OAH hearing rooms, but are sometimes held in other parts of the counties. Regardless of where the hearing is held, the actual hearing room should be a place in keeping with a formal, quasi-judicial proceeding.

Respondent may move for, and the administrative law judge has discretion to grant or deny, a change in the place of hearing. If respondent wants to change the place of hearing, respondent must make a motion for a change in the place of the hearing within 10 days after service of the notice of hearing on respondent [Gov. Code § 11508(c)].

[12] Affirmative Defenses

In any adjudicatory proceeding, new matter constituting a defense should be raised early and in the pleadings whenever possible. In civil court proceedings, affirmative defenses are raised in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]. In

APA proceedings, "new matter by way of defense" may, but need not, be raised in the notice of defense [Gov. Code § 11506(a)(5); see discussion in [6][g], above].

In other administrative proceedings, affirmative defenses should be raised in accordance with the agency's practice. For example, affirmative defenses are raised in the answer in compensation hearings [Lab. Code § 5505]. As with civil proceedings, an affirmative defense not raised in the pleadings may be deemed waived in a compensation hearing [Lab. Code § 5505]. Although most ALJs and agencies are liberal in allowing presentation of evidence of defenses regardless of whether the defense could havebeen pleaded, it is a good practice to plead them [see also discussion in [6][g], above].

The APA procedural requirements refer to "any new matter by way of defense" [Gov. Code § 11506(a)(5); see discussion in [6][g], above]. What constitutes an affirmative defense in non-APA proceedings is less clear. Issues of estoppel, laches, lapse of the applicable statute of limitation, illegality, res judicata, waiver, bankruptcy, and similar matters that go beyond just showing that the administrative charges are not true should be raised as affirmative defenses. Anything the respondent intends to rely on that has not been put at issue by the agency should be affirmatively pleaded to prevent either waiver or unfair surprise.

For further discussion of laches and statutes of limitation, see § 473A.12.

[13] Demurrers

Under the APA, a challenge to the sufficiency of the accusation or statement of issues should be included as part of the respondent's notice of defense, although the respondent is not precluded from raising the objection later [Gov. Code § 11506(a)(2); see discussion in [6], above].

Similarly, special demurrers based on the form of an allegation, such as a claim that the allegation is indefinite or uncertain [see Gov. Code § 11506(a)(3) (respondent may object in notice of defense that form of accusation or statement of issues is so indefinite or uncertain that respondent cannot identify the transaction or prepare a defense)], must also be included in the notice of defense, in order to allow the administrative law judge to consider the objection, and, if it is sustained, to allow time to amend the pleading [see Gov. Code § 11507 (amended or supplemental pleadings, discussed in [5], above)]. Gov. Code § 11506(b) provides that the respondent's failure to object to the indefiniteness or uncertainty of the accusation or statement of issues in his or her notice of defense waives all objections as to the form of the accusation or statement [see discussion in [6][d], above].

Objections to the form of the accusation or statement of issues in the notice of defense usually are not communicated to the assigned ALJ until the notice of defense is marked with the other pleadings at the start of the hearing. By this time, any vagueness or uncertainty in the pleadings may have been cured by discovery [see Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications , for discussion of discovery in administrative hearings], or by the respondent's own knowledge of the event that the pleadings imperfectly describe [see Burako v. Munro (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 688, 690-691, 345 P.2d 124 (vagueness of allegations in accusation held not to have hampered respondents in preparing defense, because one respondent, testifying in own defense, readily identified the incident and customer, and named several people who were present)]. In practice, an ALJ confronted with impermissibly vague pleadings may provide a limited continuance to a respondent who can establish an inability to prepare a defense or actual surprise at the hearing. However, an ALJ sitting alone cannot grant a motion to dismiss [Kramer v. State Board of Accountancy (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 163, 175, 19 Cal. Rptr. 226] .

As for non-APA proceedings, the specific procedures of a number of agencies provide some method by which a respondent may test the sufficiency of written allegations by a demurrer or demurrer-type objection. If no express provision exists for a demurrer, it will be implied [see Dyment v. Board of Medical Examiners (1922) 57 Cal. App. 260, 262-264, 207 P. 409 (considerations of justice and natural rights require that no one be brought to trial on insufficient charges; this rule applies to medical board license hearings)]. As with APA procedures, any special demurrer or objection as to form, uncertainty, or indefiniteness, should be raised as early as possible to allow for consideration and amendment, or it may be deemed waived.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingDue ProcessAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingStatutory RightAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityParticipation in ProsecutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of Protection

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.12

§ 473A.12 Limitations of Action and Laches

[1] Applicability

Statutes limiting the time in which an administrative proceeding may be begun are sometimes included in an agency's governing act. These specific statutes of limitation should be raised as affirmative defenses [see discussion in § 473A.11[12]]. For example, an accusation against a licensee regulated by the Board of Behavioral Sciences must be brought within three years from the date the Board discovers the alleged act or omission that is the basis for disciplinary action, or within seven years from the date the alleged act or omission that is the basis for disciplinary action occurred, whichever occurs first [Bus. & Prof. Code § 2960.05(a)].

An accusation brought against a real estate licensee for disciplinary action must be filed within three years of the occurrence of the grounds for disciplinary action [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10101]. An accusation brought under Bus. & Prof. Code § 10177(f) (suspension of a license issued by a different government agency) against a real estate licensee whose law license was suspended by the State Bar was timely filed when it was brought within three years of the date of the suspension of the licensee's law license. The date of the suspension was the date of occurrence of the grounds of the suspension, not the date of the underlying misconduct that led to suspension of the law license [Herrera v. Department of Real Estate (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 776, 779-780, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 232] .

Accusations that are brought by the Department of Fair Employment and Housing against employers for violations of the Fair Employment and Housing Act, must be brought within two years after the filing of the complaint for group or class complaints under Gov. Code § 12961, two years after the filing of complaints under Civil Code § 51.7, and one year after the filing of the complaint for all other complaints [Gov. Code § 12965(a)].

Statutes of limitation barring civil actions do not apply to administrative actions. In the absence of a specific limitations statute pertaining to an administrative action, that action is not barred by the mere lapse of time [Bernd v. Eu (1979) 100 Cal. App. 3d 511, 515-516, 161 Cal. Rptr. 58] . However, if the delay in commencing an administrative proceeding is an unreasonable delay and the respondent has been prejudiced by this delay, courts have the inherent power to dismiss the proceeding [Fahmy v. Medical Bd. of California (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 810, 815-816, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 486 (laches defense not established because doctor could not prove prejudice in Board's delay in bringing disciplinary charges against doctor); Gates v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 921, 925, 156 Cal. Rptr. 791 (on petition for a writ of mandamus)].

The time to be considered in determining whether an unreasonable delay has occurred is the period from the time the agency learned or should have learned the facts on which the action is based to the time the action was formally commenced [Gore v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 184, 193, 167 Cal. Rptr. 881] .

The courts also have inherent power to dismiss an administrative proceeding that has been commenced but has not been diligently prosecuted [Steen v. City of Los Angeles (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 542, 546-547, 190 P.2d 937] . In measuring "diligence," the courts apply notions of laches borrowed from the civil law [Hope Rehabilitation Services v. Department of Rehabilitation (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 938, 948, 261 Cal. Rptr. 123 ; Brown v. State Personnel Bd. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1159, 213 Cal. Rptr. 53] .

[2] Elements of Laches

[a] Unreasonable Delay and Resulting Prejudice

The defense of laches requires unreasonable delay and either the respondent's acquiescence to the act complained of, or prejudice to the respondent resulting from the delay. There is no fixed rule on the circumstances that must exist or on the period of time that must elapse before the doctrine of laches applies. What makes delay unreasonable is that it results in prejudice [Hope Rehabilitation Services v. Department of Rehabilitation (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 938, 948, 261 Cal. Rptr. 123 ; Brown v. State Personnel Bd. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1159, 213 Cal. Rptr. 53] .

[b] Determining When Delay Is Unreasonable

In administrative cases when no specific statute of limitations applies, but a statute governs an analogous action at law, that period may be borrowed as a measure of the outer limit of reasonable delay. Whether the court will borrow the statutory period depends on the strength of the analogy between the action at law and the administrative proceeding [Brown v. State Personnel Bd. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1158-1160, 213 Cal. Rptr. 53] .

[c] Determining Prejudice Resulting From Delay

Prejudice from delay is often difficult to prove. The inability of a witness to recall exact words is not sufficient [Vaughn v. State Bar (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 698, 702-703, 108 Cal. Rptr. 806, 511 P.2d 1158] . A general claim of prejudice is not sufficient, and prejudice cannot be presumed [Caldwell v. State Bar (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 488, 496, 119 Cal. Rptr. 217, 531 P.2d 785 ; Lewis v. State Bar (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 704, 714, 108 Cal. Rptr. 821, 511 P.2d 1173 ; Fahmy v. Medical Bd. of California (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 810, 815-816, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 486 (laches defense not established because doctor could not prove prejudice in Board's delay in bringing disciplinary charges against doctor)]. Added difficulty in locating a witness and the loss of a record to determine a conflict in testimony are not necessarily prejudicial [see Taylor v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 424, 434-435, 113 Cal. Rptr. 478, 521 P.2d 470 (loss of contact with witness not prejudicial when party had six months after trial hearing and before hearing of disciplinary board to locate witness and to apply for leave to present additional evidence; claimed certificate of good standing from time when State Bar did not keep such records could have been substantiated by offer in evidence of copy allegedly given to party)]. When the memories of witnesses have diminished to the point that the respondent cannot engage in effective cross-examination, then respondent has been prejudiced by the delay [Gates v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 921, 925-926, 156 Cal. Rptr. 791] .

The burden of proving prejudice is on the party asserting it [Conti v. Board of Civil Service Commissioners (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 351, 361, 82 Cal. Rptr. 337, 461 P.2d 617] . When the delay exceeds the period of an analogous statute of limitations that has been "borrowed" by the court [see discussion in [b], above], however, the violation of the analogous statute shifts the burden to the agency to prove that the delay was excusable and that the respondent was not prejudiced by it [Brown v. State Personnel Bd. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1161, 213 Cal. Rptr. 53] .

This burden may be very difficult to meet. To excuse delay, the responsible party must show that exceptional circumstances prevented earlier action. Under these circumstances, mere detrimental reliance on the status quo by the affected party is enough to establish prejudice [Brown v. State Personnel Bd. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1161-1162, 213 Cal. Rptr. 53] .

[3] Application of Laches by Agency Itself

Agencies as well as courts can apply the laches doctrine to dismiss administrative actions; this issue should be raised at the administrative level [see, e.g., Brown v. State Personnel Bd. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1155, 213 Cal. Rptr. 53 (at outset of board hearing, respondent argued that two of the three instances charged were so remote that delay in prosecution should bar their use in the proceeding against him)].

To avoid concerns about waiving laches as an affirmative defense, and to avoid claims that respondent has not exhausted his or her administrative remedies, respondent's counsel should raise laches early as an affirmative defense and make an adequate showing on the record of both unreasonable delay and prejudice. How the ALJ determines the issue may depend on whether the judge has authority to make a final decision [see Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges].

If the final decision rests with the agency itself, a decision on laches will be reserved and made part of the judge's proposed decision. If the agency decides not to adopt a proposed decision to dismiss for laches, there will be an administrative hearing on the merits. Counsel must be prepared at the hearing to defend on the merits.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsPleading & ProofGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.13

§ 473A.13 Unconstitutional Statutes

Cal. Const., art. III, § 3.5, casts some doubt on whether the constitutionality of a statute on which an agency is proceeding can be raised in an administrative proceeding as an affirmative defense or in a demurrer to the agency's allegations. Section 3.5 declares that an administrative agency has no power to do the following [Cal. Const., art. III, § 3.5]:

- Declare a statute unenforceable or refuse to enforce it on the basis that it is unconstitutional unless an appellate court has found the statute unconstitutional.

- Declare a statute unenforceable or refuse to enforce it on the basis of federal preemption unless an appellate court has so held.

- Declare a statute unconstitutional.

Although Cal. Const., art. III, § 3.5, seems to preclude or severely restrict constitutional challenges at an administrative hearing, these issues should be raised in the pleadings at the administrative level and a record should be made of the challenge. There are several reasons for doing this.

First, the section by its terms does not prevent the mere hearing of a constitutional challenge, only the declaration that a statute is unconstitutional or the refusal to enforce it on this basis [Cal. Const., art. III, § 3.5]. These terms have led one federal court, applying California law, to hold that the failure to raise a constitutional challenge at the administrative level may limit a later court challenge [see Southern Pacific Transp. Co. v. Public Utilities Com. (9th Cir. 1983) 716 F.2d 1285, 1291 (preemption claim not raised in administrative hearing is res judicata after California Supreme Court's denial of petition for review)]. Two divisions of the California court of appeals, however, have disagreed [see Cowan v. Myers (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 968, 975-976, 232 Cal. Rptr. 299 (requirement of exhaustion of remedies no bar when state statute challenged as violation of federal law); Chevrolet Motor Division v. New Motor Vehicle Bd. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 533, 539, 194 Cal. Rptr. 270 (failure to challenge constitutionality of statute before administrative tribunal does not waive the issue)].

It is impossible to predict the extent to which an ALJ will allow evidence on a constitutional challenge that may be irrelevant to the issues the agency can actually decide.

Second, Cal. Const., art. III, § 3.5, applies to challenges to statutes. It does not affect an agency's enforcement of its own rules or its power to examine evidence concerning them in light of constitutional standards [Goldin v. Public Utilities Commission (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 638, 669 n.18, 153 Cal. Rptr. 802, 592 P.2d 289 ; Lewis-Westco & Co. v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 829, 840, n. 12, 186 Cal. Rptr. 552 ; see Dash, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appea ls Bd. (9th Cir. 1982) 683 F.2d 1229, 1233-1235 (applying California Law)]. Thus, if the challenge affects regulations, the agency has the power to decide it.

Third, an agency can still interpret the law in discharging its duties. The agency may consult federal law (or constitutional law) to determine if the state law can be enforced without offending the federal law (or the constitution). The preemption issue or the constitutional challenge can thus be resolved by interpreting the state law in a way that avoids the issue [see Regents of University of California v. Public Employment Relations Bd. (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 1037, 1042, 189 Cal. Rptr. 298] . In addition, an agency decision on nonconstitutional issues may obviate the consideration of constitutional challenges [see Leek v. Washington Unified School Dist. (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 43, 53, 177 Cal. Rptr. 196] .

Fourth, the constitutional challenge may go to legislation already held unconstitutional in the past and that is thus now "patently unconstitutional." If a law is patently unconstitutional, Cal. Const., art. III, § 3.5, does not bar an agency from recognizing that fact by refusing to enforce the law [see Schmid v. Lovette (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 466, 473-474, 201 Cal. Rptr. 424] .

Fifth, if Cal. Const., art. III, § 3.5, does prevent the agency from acting on the challenge, a proper record can obviate the need for taking evidence in a later court challenge. The record will expedite the court proceedings and eliminate the issue of whether the respondent exhausted its administrative remedies. A proper record is important because it allows the respondents to show that they exhausted their administrative remedies even when alleging constitutional violations [Leek v. Washington Unified School Dist. (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 43, 53, 177 Cal. Rptr. 196] .

The Court of Appeal held that the Public Utilities Commission was not prohibited by Cal. Const. Art. III, § 3.5 (administrative agency prohibited from declaring unenforceability or refusing to enforce state statute on grounds that statute is unconstitutional, or inconsistent with federal law, unless appellate court has made such a determination of unconstitutionality, or prohibited by federal law) from enforcing a state statute on grounds that the statute was inconsistent with another state statute that the PUC was required to enforce. PUC did not violate separation of powers by refusing to enforce the inconsistent statute [Burlington Northern and Santa Fe Railway Co. v. Public Utilities Commission (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 881, 887-888, 891, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 503] .

A local executive official, the Mayor of the City and County of San Francisco, who had a ministerial duty to enforce a state statute limiting marriage to couples of the opposite sex, exceeded his authority when he decided unilaterally that the marriage statute was unconstitutional and ordered the clerk office's to start issuing marriage licenses to same sex couples. A local executive official does not possess the authority to refuse to enforce a state statute without a court first determining that the statute is unconstitutional. The California Supreme Court issued a writ of mandate ordering the Mayor and other San Francisco officials to enforce the state marriage statute and to correct the consequences of past unauthorized actions [Lockyer v. City and County of San Francisco (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 1055, 1068-1069, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225, 95 P.3d 459] . The California Supreme Court did not decide whether the provisions of Cal. Const. art. III, § 3.5 apply to local officials or merely to state administrative agencies, but the court extensively discussed the history and background that led to the adoption of that provision of the constitution. The court did decide that California law prior to the adoption of that constitutional provision did not allow local officials the authority to determine the constitutionality of state statutes [Lockyer v. City and County of San Francisco (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 1055, 1092-1093, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225, 95 P.3d 459] , and did decide that the provisions of Cal. Const. art. III, § 3.5 "did not grant or expand" local executive officials authority to determine whether a particular state statute was unconstitutional [Lockyer v. City and County of San Francisco (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 1055, 1085-1086, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 225, 95 P.3d 459] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityExhaustion of RemediesAdministrative LawSeparation of PowersConstitutional ControlsAuthority to AdjudicateValidity of LegislationConstitutional LawSupremacy ClauseFederal Preemption

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.14

§ 473A.14 Parties and Interested Third Persons

[1] Definition of Party and Participation of Third Persons

The APA defines a "party" to include the agency, the respondent, and "any person, other than an officer or an employee of the agency in his or her official capacity, who has been allowed to appear or participate in the proceeding" [Gov. Code § 11500(b); see also Gov. Code § 11405.60, definition of party for purposes of Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.]. This definition, along with other provisions of the APA [see, e.g., Gov. Code § 11507 (filing of amended or supplemental accusations or statements of issues); see also discussion in § 473A.11[5]], make it clear that agencies may allow interested third persons to become parties and participate in APA adjudicatory proceedings. Further, third persons may be allowed to file verified accusations and statements of issues [Gov. Code §§ 11503, 11504; Humane Society etc., California Branch Inc. v. Merrill (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 115, 120, 18 Cal. Rptr. 701 ; see § 473A.11[2][c]]. In addition to this general authority for third party participation, specific authority can be found in some agency statutes [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 24013, 24201 (protests and accusations to Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control); Pub. Util. Code § 1702 (Public Utilities Commission); see also [3], below, for a discussion of the new intervention statute].

When no statutory authority exists for third-party participation, an agency may either allow or refuse the participation [see 32 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 297, 301 (1959)] . Third-party participation can satisfy the public's desire to be heard, provide additional facts for sound decision making, and balance competing interests. Of course, unlimited participation can also unnecessarily prolong proceedings, increase costs to all participants, and otherwise unfairly interfere with the rights of the original parties. The existence and scope of third-party participation may depend on the balance between these benefits and drawbacks [see Note, "Administrative Law: Third-Party Participation in Adjudicative Administrative Hearings in California," 47 Calif. L. Rev. 747, 749 (1959)].

Determination of who may or must be a party to an administrative proceeding depends on the purpose and effect of the proceeding and the statute under which it is brought. For example, when the parents of a handicapped child sought an administrative hearing to compel the county education office to provide therapy for the child, the county's motion to join the California Children's Services (CCS) as a necessary party was denied. The court of appeals affirmed, noting that the county's claim that CCS was obliged to pay for the therapy was extraneous to the statutory purpose of the hearing, which was to insure that the services were provided [Nevada County Office of Education v. Riles (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 767, 775-777, 197 Cal. Rptr. 152] .

The Court of Appeal held that a tenant who challenged in court a decision of a rent stabilization board denying her request for a rent reduction and rent rollback was required to name the landlord from whom she rented as a necessary party to the judicial proceeding brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6. Because the landlord had an interest in the subject of the action that would be impaired if the tenant prevailed in court, the landlord was required to be named under Code Civ. Proc. § 389(a). The Court of Appeal considered the landlord to be an indispensable party whose absence was fatal to the tenant's claims, and whose absence could not be changed because the tenant's petition was untimely [Liang v. San Francisco Residential Rent Stabilization and Arbitration Bd. (2004) 124 Cal.App. 4th 775, 778, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 715] . The Court of Appeal in Liang cited, and relied upon Save Our Bay, Inc. v. San Diego Unified Port Dist. (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 686, 692, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 847 .

[2] Due Process Right to Participate

Neither agency permission nor statutory authority for third-party participation is necessary if that participation is required by due process. In the leading case on point, the California Supreme Court found that approval of subdivisions by local governments involves the application of general standards to specific parcels of real property and therefore is adjudicatory in nature [Horn v. County of Ventura (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 605, 614, 156 Cal. Rptr. 718, 596 P.2d 1134 ; for discussion of the importance of the distinction between the adjudicatory and rulemaking proceedings of an agency, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies , and Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication]. The Court concluded that whenever approval of a subdivision will constitute a substantial or significant deprivation of the property rights of other landowners, the affected persons are entitled to a reasonable notice and an opportunity to be heard before the approval occurs [Horn v. County of Ventura (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 605, 616, 156 Cal. Rptr. 718, 596 P.2d 1134] .

However, if the administrative action is legislative in nature, then due process of law does not apply to the affected property owners. Merger of separate land parcels, which automatically occurred on the effective date of a local ordinance that was adopted for that purpose, was a legislative action, and therefore the affected property owners did not have a due process right to notice and an opportunity to be heard before merger took place [Moores v. Board of Supervisors of Mendocino Cty. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 883, 889-890, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 206] .

See also discussion in [3], below, regarding intervention.

[3] Intervention

If the agency's governing law grants a party the right to file an accusation or protest, it has been suggested that the party should intervene by filing an accusation or protest with the agency and serving a copy on the other party or parties. If intervention is allowed, but is discretionary, the third party should file a motion to intervene supported by a declaration showing the interest that entitles him or her to intervene [CEB, California Administrative Hearing Practice (1984), §§ 2.45-2.47].

Such intervention is allowed under Gov. Code § 11440.50. These intervention provisons apply to the adjudicative proceedings of a state agency only if that agency provides by regulation that Gov. Code § 11440.50 applies to that agency's proceedings [Gov. Code § 11440.50(a)]. Thus, use of the intervention provisions is optional. When these provisions have been made applicable, intervention decisions are made by the presiding officer in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11440.50(b)-(e); see Gov. Code § 11405.80 (definiting presiding officer)].

The prospective intervenor must make a motion for intervention to the presiding officer. The motion must be granted if four conditions are satisfied [Gov. Code § 11440.50(b)(1)-(4)]:

- The motion must be submitted in writing, and copies must be served on all parties identified in the agency's pleading [Gov. Code § 11440.50(b)(1)].

- The motion should be made as early as practicable in advance of the hearing, and, if there is a prehearing conference [see Gov. Code § 11511.5], then the motion should be made in advance of the prehearing conference and should be resolved at the prehearing conference [Gov. Code § 11440.50(b)(2)].

- The motion must establish that the proposed intervenor qualifies as an intervenor either under a statute or regulation, or by stating facts that demonstrate that the proposed intervenor's legal rights, duties, privileges, or immunities will be substantially affected by the proceedings [Gov. Code § 11440.50(b)(3)].

- The presiding officer must determine that allowing the intervention will not impair the interests of justice as well as the orderly and prompt conduct of the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11440.50(b)(4)].

When a proposed intervenor qualifies for intervention, conditions on the intervenor's participation in the proceedings can be imposed by the presiding officer, either when the intervention motion is granted, or at a later time [Gov. Code § 11440.50(c)]. Conditioning intervenor participation allows the presiding officer to balance the benefits of reasonable intervenor involvement against the risks of unreasonably burdensome or repititous presentations [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comments, 25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. 55 (1995)]. Conditions can include the following [Gov. Code § 11440.50(c)(1)-(4)]:

- Limiting the intervenor's partcipation to designated issues in which the intervenor has a particular interest demonstrated by the motion [Gov. Code § 11440.50(c)(1)].

- Limiting or excluding the use of discovery, cross-examination, and other procedures involving the intervenor so as to promote the orderly and prompt conduct of the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11440.50(c)(2)].

- Requiring two or more intervenors to combine their presentations of evidence and argument, cross-examination, discovery, and other participation in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11440.50(c)(3)].

- Limiting or excluding the intervenor's participation in settlement negotiations [Gov. Code § 11440.50(c)(4)].

The procedures for intervention orders require the presiding officer to issue an order either granting or denying the intervention motion, specifying any conditions in the order, and briefly stating the reasons for the order as early as practicable in advance of the hearing. The intervention order can be modified at any time by the presiding officer, who must state reasons for the modification. The presiding officer must give prompt notice of all intervention orders, whether granting, denying, or modifying intervention, to all parties to the proceeding, and to the proposed intervenor [Gov. Code § 11440.50(d)]. The presiding officers determinations as to intervention motions are not subject to administrative or judicial review. This includes the two standards for determining intervention motions, whether the interests of justice and the prompt and orderly conduct of the proceedings will be impaired by allowing intervention. These determinations are made in the sole discretion, and based on the knowledge and judgment at that time, of the presiding officer [Gov. Code § 11440.50(e)].

Agencies are not prohibited by this statute from adopting regulations that permit participation by a person short of intervention as a party, subject to the requirements of Gov. Code § 11430.10 et seq. (governing ex parte communications) [Gov. Code § 11440.50(f)]. Examples of non-party participation include filing amicus briefs, testifying as a witness, or contributing to the fees of a party [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingDue ProcessAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of Protection

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.15

§ 473A.15 Consolidation and Severance

Gov. Code § 11507.3 provides for consolidation and severance of adjudicative proceedings. When proceedings that involve a common question of law or fact are pending, the administrative law judge may order a joint hearing of any or all the matters at issue in the proceedings. This order can be based on the motion of a party, or on the administrative law judge's own motion. The administrative law judge may order all the proceedings consolidated and may make orders concerning the procedure that may tend to avoid unnecessary costs or delay [Gov. Code § 11507.3(a)].

Similarly, the administrative law judge may order a separate hearing of any issue, including an issue raised in the notice of defense, or of any number of issues. This order can be based on the motion of a party, or on the administrative law judge's own motion. The standards for granting separate hearings include furthering convenience, avoiding prejudice, or expedition or economy will be served by separate hearings [Gov. Code § 11507.3(b)].

Thus, for state agencies subject to the APA's formal hearing provisions of Gov. Code § 11500 et seq., Gov. Code § 11507.3 provides ample authority for consolidation and severance motions. However for agencies that are not subject to these provisions, the standards used in civil court actions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1048], can be applied to administrative hearings and these hearings may be consolidated if they have common issues of law or fact or involve the same respondent. The agency has discretion whether or not to consolidate hearings [Bostick v. Martin (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 179, 183, 55 Cal. Rptr. 322] . Some agencies have express authority to exercise this discretion [see, e.g., Pub. Util. Code § 1703 (PUC)]. For discussion regarding when the formal hearing provisions apply pursuant to Gov. Code § 11501, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication .

Other than Gov. Code § 11507.3, the principal limit on agency discretion is derived from the leading case of Ashbacker Radio Corp. v. Federal Communications Com. [Ashbacker Radio Corp. v. Federal Com. Com. (1945) 326 U.S. 327, 66 S. Ct. 148, 90 L. Ed. 108] . In Ashbacker, the court held "that where two bona fide applications are mutually exclusive the grant of one without a hearing to both deprives the loser of the opportunity which Congress chose to give him" [Ashbacker Radio Corp. v. Federal Com. Com. (1945) 326 U.S. 327, 333, 66 S. Ct. 148, 90 L. Ed. 108] . The "Ashbacker Doctrine" [see Bostick v. Martin (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 179, 183, 55 Cal. Rptr. 322] can be viewed as limiting agency discretion whenever interests are so dependent on one another that fairness requires that the proceedings be consolidated.

For agencies that are not subject to Gov. Code § 11507.3, it is fair to say that many agencies will grant requests for consolidation because it saves time, but requests for severance will be granted on a showing of good cause. Severance is disfavored because it usually results in a greater expenditure of time and money. To avoid wasting the time of all concerned, motions to consolidate or sever should be made as early as possible. For general discussion of prehearing motions, see Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications .

For motions that are not subject to Gov. Code § 11507.3, the law governing consolidation and severance can be based the Code of Civil Procedure. Thus, factors considered in deciding whether to consolidate or sever include the following [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1048 (grounds for consolidation or severance in civil actions)]:

- The identity of the law, facts, or parties between (or among) the cases.
- Possible prejudice to the parties.
- The complexity of the issues.
- Possible delays.
- Convenience and economy.

For discussion and forms relating to consolidation and severance in civil actions, see Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConsolidation of Actions

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473A.16-473A.19

[Reserved]

§§ 473A.16[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.20

§ 473A.20 Federal Constitution

Due process clause. U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Constitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of Protection

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.21

§ 473A.21 State Constitution

Due process clause. Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Constitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of Protection

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.22

§ 473A.22 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

Accusation. Gov. Code § 11503

Administrative adjudication bill of rights. Gov. Code §§ 11425.10-11425.60

Administrative Law Judges. Gov. Code § 11502

Affidavits. Gov. Code § 11514

Agency decisional authority. Gov. Code § 11440.10

Agencies to which act applies. Gov. Code §§ 11410.10, 11501

Amendment of pleadings. Gov. Code §§ 11507, 11516

Applicability of provisions to statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504.5

Conduct of hearing. Gov. Code § 11512

Consolidation of proceedings. Gov. Code § 11507.3

Contempt. Gov. Code §§ 11455.10-11455.30

Continuances. Gov. Code § 11524

Conversion of proceedings. Gov. Code §§ 11470.10-11470.50

Decision. Gov. Code §§ 11516-11520, 11526

Declaratory decision. Gov. Code §§ 11465.10-11465.70

Definitions of terms. Gov. Code §§ 11405.10-11405.80, 11500

Depositions. Gov. Code § 11511

Discovery. Gov. Code §§ 11507.5-11507.7

Disqualification. Gov. Code §§ 11425.30, 11425.40, 11512

Emergency decision. Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80

Evidence. Gov. Code §§ 11435.10, 11440.40, 11513

Ex parte communications. Gov. Code §§ 11430.10-11430.80

Hearings by electronic means. Gov. Code § 11440.30

Informal hearings. Gov. Code § 11445.10-11445.60

Intervention. Gov. Code § 11440.50

Language assistance. Gov. Code § 11435.05-11435.65

Judicial review. Gov. Code § 11523

Notice of defense. Gov. Code § 11506

Notice of hearing. Gov. Code § 11509

Oaths. Gov. Code § 11528

Official notice. Gov. Code § 11515

Reconsideration. Gov. Code § 11521

Reporting proceedings. Gov. Code § 11512

Restoration of rights. Gov. Code § 11522

Separate hearings. Gov. Code § 11507.3

Service and notice. Gov. Code § 11440.20

Service of initial pleading. Gov. Code § 11505

Settlement conferences. Gov. Code § 11511.7

Sexual harrassment. Gov. Code § 11440.40

Statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504

Subpoenas. Gov. Code §§ 11450.05-11450.50

Time and place of hearing. Gov. Code § 11508

Waiver of rights. Gov. Code § 11415.40

[2] Related Statutes

Affidavit of good cause as required for subpoena duces tecum. Code Civ. Proc. § 1985

Witness served with subpoena as entitled to demand one day's fees and mileage allowance. Code Civ. Proc. § 1987

Witness fees and mileage allowances. Gov. Code §§ 11191, 68093, 68097.2

Right to have subpoena issued. Gov. Code § 11190

Office of Administrative Hearings. Gov. Code §§ 11370.3, 11370.5

Board of supervisors of county as empowered to establish county hearing officer. Gov. Code §§ 27720, 27721

Oaths used in civil proceedings. Code Civ. Proc. § 2094

Evidentiary effect of plea of nolo contendere. Penal Code § 1016

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.23

§ 473A.23 Decisions

[1] Consolidation and Severance

Agency is entitled to consolidate cases having common ground. Ashbacker Radio Corp. v. Federal Communications Comm'n (1945) 326 U.S. 327, 330-333, 66 S. Ct. 148, 90 L. Ed. 108 ; Bostick v. Martin (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 179, 183, 55 Cal. Rptr. 322

Time limit for decision imposed by statute is directory or mandatory. Henderling v. Carleson (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 561, 566, 111 Cal. Rptr. 612 (mandatory in circumstances); Koehn v. State Board of Equalization (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 109, 118-119, 333 P.2d 125 (directory); Peak v. Industrial Acc. Comm'n (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 926, 932, 187 P.2d 905 (directory)

Decision is required to include written findings where findings required. In re Sturm (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 258, 266, 272, 113 Cal. Rptr. 361, 521 P.2d 97

Findings are not required to be stated with same formality as in judgment. Savelli v. Board of Medical Examiners (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 124, 134, 40 Cal. Rptr. 171

[2] Initial Pleading

[a] Generally

Minimum requirement for initial pleading: sufficiently informative to enable respondent to prepare defense. Sunset Amusement Co. v. Board of Police Comm'rs (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 64, 81, 101 Cal. Rptr. 768, 496 P.2d 840 ; Stoumen v. Munro (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 302, 306-307, 33 Cal. Rptr. 305

[b] Amendment

Agency's right to amend initial pleading before hearing. Cook v. Civil Service Commission (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 118, 126-127, 2 Cal. Rptr. 836

Amendment of initial pleading without giving respondent opportunity to prepare defense before hearing is error. Raab v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 333, 334, 2 Cal. Rptr. 26

Agency's right to amend initial pleading after hearing. Stearns v. Fair Employment Practice Com. (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 205, 212-215, 98 Cal. Rptr. 467, 490 P.2d 1155 ; Tapley v. Abbott (1931) 111 Cal. App. 397, 400-401, 295 P. 911

[c] Complainant

Private individual is complainant. Humane Society etc., California Branch, Inc. v. Merrill (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 115, 119-120, 119-120 n. 1, 18 Cal. Rptr. 701

[d] Contents

Disciplinary proceeding is required by Gov. Code § 11503 to be initiated by accusation that specifies statutes and rules that licensee is alleged to have violated; fulfillment of this requirement is statutory predicate for disciplinary action; hence, only violations charged in accusation will support disciplinary action, as disciplinary action cannot be founded on charge not made. Linda Jones General Builder v. Contractors' State License Board (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1320, 1324, 1326, 240 Cal. Rptr. 180

Accusation to initiate disciplinary proceedings is required by Gov. Code § 11503 to specify statutes and rules allegedly violated. Wheeler v. State Bd. of Forestry (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 522, 527-528, 192 Cal. Rptr. 693

Contents are required to give adequate notice; technical rules of pleading are secondary. Stearns v. Fair Employment Practice Com. (1971) 6 Cal. 3d205, 213-214, 6 Cal. 3d 205, 98 Cal. Rptr. 467, 490 P.2d 1155 ; Burako v. Munro (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 688, 691, 345 P.2d 124

Allegation of facts supporting alternative theories are permissible. Stearns v. Fair Employment Practice Com. (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 205, 212, 98 Cal. Rptr. 467, 490 P.2d 1155

Contents, in case not governed by APA, are not required to conform to any model except to extent other statute may otherwise provide; general requirement that pleading be sufficiently informative to permit respondent to prepare defense. Rudolph v. Athletic Com. of California (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 1, 1 Cal. Rptr. 898 ; Yanke v. State Dep't of Public Health (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 600, 603, 328 P.2d 556

Mistaken citation of law respondent is alleged to have violated is inconsequential in otherwise sufficient pleading. Homan v. Board of Dental Examiners (1927) 202 Cal. 593, 597-598, 262 P. 324

Contents are permitted to be phrased in statutory terms if no statute prohibits it. Smulson v. Board of Dental Examiners (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 584, 589, 118 P.2d 483 ; Gustason v. Bd. of Osteopathic Exmrs. (1935) 10 Cal. App. 2d 436, 438, 51 P.2d 1106

[3] Intervention

Right of third party to intervene in administrative proceeding. Crumpler v. Board of Administration (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 567, 575, 108 Cal. Rptr. 293

[4] Limitations and Laches

Time for beginning administrative proceeding is unlimited except to extent statute specifically limits it. In re Lowenthal (1889) 78 Cal. 427, 429, 21 P. 7 ; Saxton v. State Bd. of Educ. (1934) 137 Cal. App. 167, 172, 29 P.2d 873 ; Bold v. Board of Medical Examiners (1933) 133 Cal. App. 23, 25, 23 P.2d 826

Lack of diligent prosecution is ground for dismissing administrative proceeding. Steen v. City of Los Angeles (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 542, 546-547, 190 P.2d 937

[5] Notice

Personal delivery of initial pleading is not required unless statute provides otherwise. Colyear v. Tobriner (1936) 7 Cal. 2d 735, 743, 62 P.2d 741 ; McGinn v. Board of Health (1931) 113 Cal. App. 228, 230, 298 P. 118 ; Curtin v. Board of Police Comm'rs (1925) 74 Cal. App. 77, 86, 239 P. 355

Method of service is irrelevant where respondent actually receives notice. Simpson v. Los Angeles (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 271, 280-281, 253 P.2d 464 ; McGinn v. Board of Health (1931) 113 Cal. App. 228, 230-231, 298 P. 118 ; Small v. Smith (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 450, 457, 94 Cal. Rptr. 136

[6] Responsive Pleading

[a] Generally

Reference to APA in cases not governed by act is permissible to determine reasonable time for responsive pleading. Rudolph v. Athletic Commission (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 1, 12, 1 Cal. Rptr. 898

[b] Demurrer

Right to demur by separate pleading in case not governed by APA. Dyment v. Board of Medical Examiners (1922) 57 Cal. App. 260, 263-264, 207 P. 409

Agency is without jurisdiction if initial pleading fails to state acts or omissions on which agency may proceed. Rapaport v. Civil Serv. Comm'n (1933) 134 Cal. App. 319, 325, 25 P.2d 265

Agency is without jurisdiction if no statute authorizes proceeding. O'Neil v. Department of Professional & Vocational Standards (1935) 7 Cal. App. 2d 395, 397-398, 46 P.2d 234

Objection to form of initial pleading is analogous to demurrer for uncertainty. Stuck v. Board of Medical Examiners (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 751, 756, 211 P.2d 389

[7] Setting for Hearing

Change of venue for administrative hearing is matter of agency discretion. Keller Industries, Inc. v. Occupational Safety & Health Appeals Bd. (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 469, 474-476, 177 Cal. Rptr. 136 (discretion is not abused when agency refused to change venue from city which was 64 miles from litigant's place of business absent showing that selection was made arbitrarily or with improper motive)

Reference to APA in cases not governed by act is permissible to determine time for hearing. Rudolph v. Athletic Commission (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 1, 12, 1 Cal. Rptr. 898

Change of venue. Campbell v. Board of Dental Examiners (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 872, 876-877, 95 Cal. Rptr. 351

[8] Statement of Issues

Agency's right to amend statement of issues pursuant to Gov. Code § 11507 is not abused when independent challenge of disability claim is allowed despite its omission in initial statement of issues. Button v. Board of Administration (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 730, 738, 176 Cal. Rptr. 218

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsContentsAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime Limitations

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.24

§ 473A.24 Text References

Judicial Council of California, Tenth Biennial Report (1944)

California Administrative Hearing Practice (Cal CEB 2000)

Witkin, California Evidence (2d ed), Ch. III, Judicial Notice, §§ 150-191; Ch. X, Witnesses, §§ 787-791; Ch. XII, Introduction of Evidence at Trial, §§ 1223-1275

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.25

§ 473A.25 Internet References

Office of Administrative Hearings. This site includes: information and location concerning specific OAH offices; an OAH hearing guide; information concerming Administrative Procedure Act statutes, regulations, and proposed regulations; OAH forms; information concerning alternative dispute resolution procedures; and declaratory decisions. http://www.dgs.ca.gov/oah NOTE: On and after July 1, 1998, The OAL is required by Gov. Code § 11340.1(b) to make the full text of the California Code of Regulations, with reference citations and history notes, available on the Internet free of charge.

Office of Administrative Law. This site includes: OAL publications; links to OAL statutes and regulations relating to rulemaking; regulations submitted to the OAL for review, and information for contacting or providing input to the OAL regarding rulemaking. http://www.oal.ca.gov

California Home Page. This site includes links to other sites maintained by numerous state agencies. http://www.ca.gov

Department of Consumer Affairs. This site includes links to sites maintained by many state agencies that are under this department, as well as links to agency sites. http://www.dca.ca.gov

California Courts. This site includes: general information about state court organization and specific court; text of recently filed slip opinions; court minutes and calendars; text of California Rules of Court; Judicial Council forms and other information promulgated by the Judicial Council; links to sites of most Court of Appeal districts, with text of local appellate rules, forms, and internal operating procedures; links to other sites maintained by local trial courts, state government agencies and organizations, federal courts and federal organizations, and other sources of legal information. http://www.courtinfo.ca.gov

California Legislative Information. This site includes: text of constitution, codes, and statutes (including complete text of APA); and information concerning pending legislation. http://www.leginfo.ca.gov

Matthew Bender. This site includes: links to Matthew Bender publications and Shepard's citation service.
http://www.bender.com

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute ResolutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsCreation & OrganizationGovernmentsLegislationEnactment

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473A.26-473A.39

[Reserved]

§§ 473A.26[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.40

§ 473A.40 Determine the Methods by Which the Agency Initiates Adjudicatory Hearings

☐ Ascertain the extent to which the hearing is subject to the California APA [see § 473A.11[1]].

☐ Ascertain what pleadings are used to initiate a hearing [see § 473A.11[3], [4]]:

☐ An accusation initiates a hearing to determine if a license or other privilege will be revoked or suspended [see § 473A.11[3]].

☐ A statement of issues initiates a license denial hearing [see § 473A.11[4]].

☐ Ascertain if the accusation or statement of issues meets content requirements [see § 473A.11[3], [4]].

☐ Ascertain if the accusation or statement of issues has been properly served and accompanied by the required information [see § 473A.11[3], [4]].

☐ Ascertain if respondent must file a notice of defense in order to receive a hearing [see § 473A.11[6][b], [9][b]]:

☐ If a statement of issues was filed in response to respondent's request for a hearing, no notice of defense is required [see § 473A.11[9][b]].

☐ Otherwise, failure to file a notice of defense waives the right to a hearing [see § 473A.11[6][b]].

- ☐ Ascertain if the parties received sufficient notice of the hearing [see § 473A.11[10]].
- ☐ Ascertain if the hearing is barred by laches [see § 473A.12].
- ☐ Ascertain if client should request consolidation or severance [see § 473A.15].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing Activity

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.41

§ 473A.41 Responding to Accusation Under APA Guidelines

[1] Request Hearing by Notice of Defense

☐ Prepare notice of defense [Gov. Code § 11506; see § 473A.11[6]; for a form, see § 473A.54].

☐ Request hearing.

☐ Sign or have respondent sign notice.

☐ State respondent's (or counsel's) mailing address.

☐ Verification not required [Gov. Code § 11506(d)].

☐ Request extension of time to file notice of defense, if necessary [see § 473A.11[6][e]; for a letter to request extension of time, see § 473A.56]].

☐ File notice of defense with agency making accusation [Gov. Code § 11506(a); see § 473A.11[6][a]; for a form, see § 473A.54].

☐ Must be filed within 15 days after service of accusation.

☐ Include letter stating the following [for a letter, see, § 473A.55]:

☐ Dates counsel is not available.

☐ Preference of hearing location.

☐ If pointing out new matter [see § 473A.54[8]], request that preliminary hearing be set.

☐ Send copy of notice and letter to Hearing Officer in Charge at Sacramento or Los Angeles office of the OAL.

☐ Send to attention of calendar clerk.

[2] Motion for Consolidation

☐ Prepare motion [see Gov. Code § 11507.3; see also § 473A.15]].

☐ File with agency.

[3] Motion for Severance

☐ Prepare motion [see Gov. Code § 11507.3; see also § 473A.15]].

☐ File with agency.

[4] Request Hearing Without Notice of Defense

☐ Prepare request to set aside default [Gov. Code § 11506; see Gov. Code § 11520(b), (c); for a form, see § 473A.57].

☐ File with agency.

[5] Inadequate Notice of Hearing

☐ Object to notice of hearing.

☐ Make a showing of prejudice and request a continuance [see § 473A.11[10][a]].

[6] Change Location of Hearing

☐ Prepare motion to change location of hearing.

☐ File within 10 days after service of notice of hearing [Gov. Code § 11508(c); see § 473A.11[11]].

[7] Prior to Hearing

☐ After appointment of ALJ, send copies of all pleadings, motions, and other appropriate documents filed with the agency to ALJ.

☐ Gather witnesses and evidence to refute allegations in accusation.

☐ Prepare affirmative defenses, if applicable (may be raised in notice of defense) [see § 473A.11[12]].

☐ Prepare evidence of aggravation or mitigation, if applicable [see § 473A.11[6][f]].

☐ Prepare defense to amended or supplemental accusation [see § 473A.11[5]].

☐ File further pleading if permitted by agency, or

☐ Make orally at hearing, for the record.

[8] Reopening Case After Submitted for Decision

☐ Agency orders amendment of accusation after case is submitted for decision.

☐ Argue for reopening of case.

☐ Case is reopened.

☐ Introduce additional evidence.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law Judges

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.42

§ 473A.42 Responding to Statement of Issues When Agency Sends Letter of Denial of Privilege

[1] Requesting a Hearing

☐ Prepare a request for a hearing [Gov. Code § 1504; see § 473A.11[4][d]; for a form, see § 473A.53].

☐ File with agency denying privilege.

[2] Notice of Defense

☐ Prepare notice of defense (optional, but recommended) [Gov. Code § 11506; see § 473A.11[4][d]; for a form, see § 473A.54].

☐ Sign or have respondent sign notice.

☐ State respondent's (or counsel's) mailing address.

☐ Verification not required [Gov. Code § 11506(d)].

☐ Include letter stating the following [for a letter, see § 473A.55]:

☐ Tell agency which dates counsel is not available.

☐ State preference of hearing location.

☐ If pointing out new matter [see § 473A.54[8]], request that preliminary hearing be set.

☐ File notice and letter with agency [see Gov. Code § 11504; see also § 473A.11[4][b]].

☐ Serve notice and letter on all parties before the hearing.

☐ Send copy of notice and letter to Hearing Officer in Charge at Sacramento or Los Angeles office of the OAL.

☐ Send to attention of calendar clerk.

[3] Inadequate Notice of Hearing

☐ Object to inadequate notice of hearing [see Gov. Code § 11509; see also § 473A.11[9][b]].

☐ Make a showing of prejudice and request a continuance [see § 473A.11[10][a]].

[4] Change Location of Hearing

☐ Prepare motion to change location of hearing.

☐ File within 10 days after service of notice of hearing [Gov. Code § 11508(c); see § 473A.11[11]].

[5] Motion for Consolidation

☐ Prepare motion [see Gov. Code § 11507.3; see also § 473A.15]].

☐ File with agency.

[6] Motion for Severance

☐ Prepare motion [see Gov. Code § 11507.3; see also § 473A.15]].

☐ File with agency.

[7] Prior to Hearing

☐ After appointment of ALJ, send copies of all pleadings, motions, and other appropriate documents filed with the agency.

☐ Prepare evidence to produce proof at hearing to demonstrate compliance with statutes and rules cited in statement of issues.

☐ Prepare affirmative defenses, if applicable (may be raised in notice of defense) [see § 473A.11[12]].

☐ Prepare evidence of aggravation or mitigation, if applicable [see § 473A.11[6][f]].

☐ Prepare defense to amended or supplemental accusation [see § 473A.11[5]].

☐ File further pleading if permitted by agency, or

☐ Make orally at hearing, for the record.

[8] Reopening Case After Submitted for Decision

☐ Agency orders amendment of accusation after case is submitted for decision.

☐ Argue for reopening.

☐ Case is reopened.

☐ Introduce additional evidence.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law Judges

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.43

§ 473A.43 Statement of Issues Sent by Agency in Lieu of Letter of Denial

[1] Notice of Defense

☐ Prepare notice of defense (required) [Gov. Code §§ 11504, 11504.5; see § 473A.11[6][h]; for a form, see § 473A.54].

☐ Request hearing.

☐ Sign or have respondent sign notice.

☐ State respondent's (or counsel's) mailing address.

☐ Verification not required [Gov. Code § 11506(d)].

☐ Request extension of time to file notice of defense, if necessary [see § 473A.11[6][e]; for a letter to request extension of time, see § 473A.56]].

☐ File notice of defense with agency [see Gov. Code § 11504; § 473A.11[4][b]].

☐ Serve on all parties before the hearing.

☐ Include letter stating the following [for a letter, see § 473A.55]:

☐ Tell agency which dates counsel is not available.

☐ State preference of hearing location.

☐ If pointing out new matter [see § 473A.54[8]], request that preliminary hearing be set.

☐ Send copy of notice and letter to Hearing Officer in Charge at Sacramento or Los Angeles office of the OAL.

☐ Send to attention of calendar clerk.

[2] Inadequate Notice of Hearing

☐ Objection to notice of hearing.

☐ Make a showing of prejudice and request a continuance [see § 473A.11[10][a]].

[3] Change Location of Hearing

☐ Prepare motion to change place of hearing.

☐ File within 10 days after service of notice of hearing [Gov. Code § 11508(c); see § 473A.11[11]].

[4] Motion for Consolidation

☐ Prepare motion [see Gov. Code § 11507.3; see § 473A.15]].

☐ File with agency.

[5] Motion for Severance

☐ Prepare motion [see Gov. Code § 11507.3; see § 473A.15]].

☐ File with agency.

[6] Prior to Hearing

☐ After appointment of ALJ, send copies of all pleadings, motions, and other appropriate documents filed with the agency.

☐ Prepare defense to amended or supplemental statement of issues [see § 473A.11[5]].

☐ File further pleading if permitted by agency, or

☐ Make orally at hearing, for the record.

[7] Reopening Case After Submitted for Decision

☐ Agency orders amendment of accusation after case is submitted for decision.

☐ Argue for reopening.

☐ Case is reopened

☐ Introduce additional evidence.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law Judges

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.44

§ 473A.44 Non-APA Agencies

[1] Responsive Pleadings

- ☐ Check appropriate statutes, ordinances, or regulations for the following:
  - ☐ Requirement of responsive pleading.
  - ☐ Form of responsive pleading.
  - ☐ Filing procedure.
- ☐ Verification requirement [see § 473A.11[7]].
  - ☐ Check applicable statute.
- ☐ Service [see § 473A.11[9][d]].
  - ☐ Check applicable statute or ordinance; if none, actual notice is required.

[2] Affirmative Defenses

- ☐ Raise in accordance with agency practice [see § 473A.11[12]].

[3] Demurrer or Demurrer-Type Objection

☐ Check applicable statute or ordinance; if none:

☐ Provision for demurrer is implied [see § 473A.11[13]].

☐ Raise as early as possible.

[4] Consolidation or Severance

☐ Check applicable statute or ordinance, or

☐ See Code Civ. Proc. § 1048 in considering whether to consolidate or sever [see § 473A.15].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law Judges

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.45

§ 473A.45 Third Party Participation

[1] Third Party Filing Accusation Under APA

☐ Prepare form of accusation [Gov. Code § 11503; see § 473A.11[3]; for a form, see § 473A.50].

☐ Verify accusation [Gov. Code § 11503].

☐ File accusation with appropriate agency.

[2] Intervention Permitted by Agency Law

☐ File accusation or protest with agency [see § 473A.14[3]].

☐ Serve copies on other parties.

[3] Intervention Is Discretionary

☐ Prepare motion to intervene [see Gov. Code § 11440.50; see also § 473A.14[3]].

☐ Prepare and attach supporting declaration showing interest.

☐ File motion and declaration with presiding officer.

☐ File motion in advance of hearing or prehearing conference [Gov. Code § 11440.50(b)(2)].

☐ Serve on all parties [Gov. Code § 11440.50(b)(1)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing Activity

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473A.46-473A.49

[Reserved]

§§ 473A.46[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART V. FORMS

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.50

§ 473A.50 Accusation [Gov. Code § 11503]

[1] FORM Accusation [Gov. Code § 11503]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

	)
In the Matter of	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ACCUSATION
Respondent.	)
	)

_____

1. I am _____ [name of third party or title of agency official, e.g., Chief Legal Officer of _____ (name of agency)], and file this Accusation _____ [specify standing to file the pleading, e.g., in my official capacity as Chief Legal Officer].

2. During the times mentioned in this accusation, Respondent, _____[name], was and is _____ [specify respondent's legal status, e.g., holder of a professional license in _____(specify)], and _____[specify agency] _____ [issued or renewed] that license on _____[date].

3. _____ [Consistent with or Under the authority of] _____[specify relevant statute or agency regulation], Respondent _____[name] is charged with the following grounds for _____ [revocation or suspension or other disciplinary limitation or condition on license, privilege, right, or authority] of his/her _____[specify license]:

[Set forth specific grounds]

4. These grounds are based upon the following specific _____ [facts or conduct]:

[Set forth specific facts or conduct in ordinary and concise language]

5. Respondent's conduct violates the following specific laws: _____[cite specific statutes or agency regulations that are the basis for the accusation].

6. _____ [Specify agency action requested, e.g., The revocation] of Respondent's _____[specify license, privilege, etc.] is requested under the legal authority of _____[specify relevant statute or regulation].

_____ [date]

_____[signature]

_____ [typed name and official title, if any]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an example of the accusation used by a public agency to initiate an agency adjudication under the APA formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) to suspend, revoke, limit, or make conditional a license, privilege, right, or authority [Gov. Code § 11503]. It may be used with appropriate modification by a third party to complain to a public agency concerning the conduct of a licencee or other privilege holder subject to that agency's regulation. The public agency then has discretion to initiate an accusation based on that complaint [see discussion in § 473A.10[1]].

It must be verified unless, as is usually the case, it is made by a public officer acting in his or her offical capacity or by an employee of the agency before the proceeding is to be held. The verification may be made on information and belief [Gov. Code § 11503].

[3] Cross References

See § 473A.11[3] for detailed discussion of the requirements pertaining to an accusation. See §§ 473.10[1], [2], 473A.11[2][d], and 473A.14 for discussion relating to third party complainants.

See Ch. 572, Verification , for discussion and forms relating to verification of pleadings generally.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Business & Corporate LawAgency RelationshipsTerminationsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART V. FORMS

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.51

§ 473A.51 Statement to Respondent [Gov. Code § 11505]

[1] FORM Statement to Respondent [Gov. Code § 11505]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

	)
In the Matter of	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	STATEMENT TO RESPONDENT
Respondent.	)
	)

_____

To: _____[name], Respondent:

You are notified that a written accusation was filed against you, as repondent, on _____[date], with _____[name of agency or board] charging that there are grounds for _____ [specify potential action, e.g., revoking your _____ (specify license) issued or renewed by that agency on _____ (date)].

The following items are included with this statement:

1. A copy of the accusation.

2. A form of Notice of Defense for your use in responding to the accusation.

3. A copy of Government Code Sections 11507.5, 11507.6, and 11507.7, relating the procedures for obtaining discovery from _____[name of agency or board].

Unless a written request for a hearing, signed by on behalf of the respondent named in the attached accusation, is delivered or mailed to the agency within 15 days after the accusation was personally served on you or mailed to you, _____[specify name of agency] may proceed upon the accusation without a hearing. The request for a hearing may be made by delivering or mailing the enclosed form, entitled Notice of Defense, or by delivering or mailing a notice of defense as provided in Section 11506 of the Government Code to: _____[specify name and address of agency]. You may, but need not, be represented by counsel at any or all stages of these proceedings.

If you desire the names and addresses of witnesses or an opportunity to inspect and copy the items mentioned in Section 11507.6 of the Government Code in the possession, custody or control of the agency, you may contact: _____[specify name and address of appropriate person in the agency].

The hearing may be postponed for good cause. If you have good cause, you are obliged to notify the agency, or, if an administrative law judge has been assigned to the hearing, the Office of Administrative Hearings, within 10 working days after you discover the good cause. Failure to give notice within 10 days will deprive you of a postponement.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name and title of agency official]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an example of the type of statement that is required to be provided by an agency to a respondent named in an accusation, to be delievered with the accusation in order to provide the respondent with the information required under Gov. Code § 11503. This form conforms to Gov. Code § 11503(b), which sets out the required form of the statement to respondent.

[3] Cross References

See § 473A.11[9] for detailed discussion of the requirements pertaining to the statement to respondent; see also § 473A.50 for a form of accusation.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticePleadingsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART V. FORMS

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.52

§ 473A.52 Statement of Issues [Gov. Code § 11504]

[1] FORM Statement of Issues [Gov. Code § 11504]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

	)
In the Matter of	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	STATEMENT OF ISSUES
Respondent.	)
	)

_____

1. I am the _____ [title, e.g., Chief Legal Officer] of _____[name of agency], and file this statement of issues in my official capacity as _____ [specify, e.g., Chief Legal Officer].

2. Under the authority of Government Code Section 11504, you are notified that you have a right to a hearing to determine whether _____[specify nature of action such as granting of right, authority, license, or privilege] should be _____ [granted or issued or renewed].

3. You must prove compliance at the hearing with _____[cite specific statutes or regulations] by producing proof at the hearing.

4. Also, the following particular matters have come to the agency's attention and would authorize denial by the agency of the action requested by you: _____[specify].

5. Unless a written request for a hearing signed by or on behalf of the person named as respondent is delivered or mailed to the agency within 15 days after this statement of issues was personally served on you or mailed to you,

_____[specify name of agency] may proceed upon the matter without a hearing.

6. If you desire the names and addresses of witnesses or an opportunity to inspect and copy the items mentioned in Section 11507.6 of the Government Code in the possession, custody or control of the agency, you may contact: _____[specify name and address of appropriate person in the agency].

7. The hearing may be postponed for good cause. If you have good cause, you are obliged to notify the agency, or, if an administrative law judge has been assigned to the hearing, the Office of Administrative Hearings, within 10 working days after you discover the good cause. Failure to give notice within 10 days will deprive you of a postponement.

8. The following items are enclosed:

A. Copies of Government Code Sections 11507.5, 11507.6, and 11507.7, relating the procedures for obtaining discovery from _____ [name of agency or board].

B. Request for Hearing Form.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name and title of agency official]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an example of a statement of issues, the pleading used by a public agency to initiate an agency adjudication under the APA formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) to determine whether a license, privilege, right, or authority should be granted, issued, or renewed [Gov. Code § 11504].

It must be verified unless, as is usually the case, it is made by a public officer acting in his or her offical capacity or by an employee of the agency before the proceeding is to be held [Gov. Code § 11504].

[3] Cross References

See § 473A.11[4], for detailed discussion of the requirements pertaining to a statement of issues. See Ch. 572, Verification , for discussion and forms relating to verification of pleadings generally.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law Judges

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART V. FORMS

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.53

§ 473A.53 Request for Hearing [Gov. Code § 11504]

[1] FORM Request for Hearing [Gov. Code § 11504]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

	)
In the Matter of	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	REQUEST FOR HEARING
[Applicant or Licensee].	)
	)

_____

To: _____[specify name of agency]:

_____[Name], [an applicant for or the holder of] a _____ (specify license or other privilege)], received a letter dated _____ from _____[specify name of agency], denying his/her [application or request for renewal]. Accordingly, his/she requests a hearing on this matter as authorized in Government Code Section 11504.

_____ [date]

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Respondent

Address: _____

_____

Telephone: _____

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by an applicant or license holder whose application for a license or whose request for renewal has been denied by the licensing agency; it requests a hearing on the denial under Gov. Code § 11504. The form is used when:

- The APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) apply.

- The licensing agency sent a letter of denial as distinguished from a statement of issues. If the agency serves and files and statement of issues, the applicant or license holder is then the respondent to that pleading and must file instead a notice of defense under Gov. Code § 11506.

[3] Cross References

See § 473A.11[4], for detailed discussion of the requirements pertaining to a statement of issues under Gov. Code § 11504.

See § 473A.11[4][d] for discussion of the procedure for request for hearing when an agency sends a letter of denial rather than a statement of issues.

See § 473A.54 for a form of notice of defense.

88 of 184 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART V. FORMS

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.54

§ 473A.54 Notice of Defense [Gov. Code § 11506]

[1] FORM Notice of Defense [Gov. Code § 11506]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

	)
In the Matter of	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	NOTICE OF DEFENSE
Respondent.	)
	)

_____

Respondent _____[name] requests that a hearing be held in this matter and further responds as follows:

[EITHER]

1. Objects to the [accusation or statement of issues] on the ground that it does not state acts or omissions on which this agency may proceed.

[AND/OR]

2. Objects to the form of the [accusation or statement of issues] on the ground that it is so indefinite and uncertain that he/she cannot identify the transaction and prepare a defense.

[AND/OR]

3. Admits that the allegations of Paragraph _____[number] of the _____ [accusation or statement of issues] are true but denies all other allegations of the _____ [accusation or statement of issues].

[AND/OR]

4. Objects to the _____ [accusation or statement of issues] on the ground that, under the circumstances, compliance with the requirements of _____[specify regulation providing basis for agency's accusation] would result in a material violation of _____[specify other regulation] that was enacted by _____[specify other department] and that affects substantive rights.

[AND/OR]

5. Alleges by way of defense that _____[specify].

6. Presents new matter by way of defense as follows: _____[specify].

Respondent's mailing address is the address of counsel shown above.

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Respondent

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of defense in [1], above, is for use by the respondent in an administrative trial. It may be used instead of the short-form notice of defense provided by the agency [see Gov. Code § 11505]. Regular pleading paper such as counsel uses in civil matters is appropriate. Counsel's name, address, State Bar membership number, and telephone number should appear in the upper left-hand corner.

[3] Contents

A notice of defense must be in writing. It must be signed by or on behalf of the respondent. It must state the respondent's mailing address (which may be counsel's address). It need not be verified (whether or not the initial pleading is verified), and it need not follow any particular form [Gov. Code § 11506(c)]. The notice may be filed by either delivering it or mailing it to the agency as provided in Gov. Code § 11505 [Gov. Code § 11506(e)].

In the notice of defense the respondent may do any or all of the following [Gov. Code § 11506(a)]:

- Request a hearing;

- Object to the initial pleading on the ground that it does not state acts or omissions on which the agency may proceed;

- Object to the form of the initial pleading on the ground that it is so indefinite or uncertain that the respondent cannot identify the transaction or prepare his or her defense;

- Admit the truth of the initial pleading or parts of it;

- Object to the initial pleading on the ground that, under the circumstances, compliance with the requirements of a regulation would result in a material violation of another regulation that was enacted by another department and that affects substantive rights; and

- Present new matter by way of defense.

If the initial pleading is subject to a valid objection, the agency, if it is the complainant, has the unqualified right to amend it at any time before the matter is submitted for decision [Gov. Code § 11507].

[4] Request for Hearing

A request for a hearing should be included in every notice of defense unless counsel does not want a hearing for tactical reasons. When the notice of defense is sent to the agency, counsel should also send a letter [see § 473A.55] telling the agency which dates on his or her calendar are not open and when and where he or she would prefer to have the hearing. Such a letter might be helpful in getting the hearing set for a convenient time and place.

[5] Copies

Copies of the notice of defense and the letter should be sent to the Hearing Officer in Charge at the Sacramento or Los Angeles office of the Office of Administrative Hearings, marked to the attention of the calendar clerk. If counsel wishes for tactical reasons to avoid a hearing, the best way is to concede the merits of the case against his or her client. However, some agencies have power to go on with a hearing nevertheless [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 118].

[6] Objections

[a] Failure to State Sufficient Facts

The objection that the initial pleading does not state acts or omissions on which the agency may take action [Gov. Code § 11506(a)(2)] is equivalent to a general demurrer for failure to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)] and essentially asserts a lack of jurisdiction.

Counsel should be careful not to confuse this objection with an objection to the form of the pleading [see Collins v. Board of Medical Examiners (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 439, 444, 105 Cal. Rptr. 634 (even the court was confused)].

[b] Form of Initial Pleading

An objection to the form of the initial pleading that it is so indefinite or uncertain that the respondent cannot identify the transaction in question or prepare his or her defense, is deemed waived if not asserted in the notice of defense [Gov. Code § 11506(b)]. The analogous objection in a civil action is a special demurrer on the ground of uncertainty [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(f); Wade v. Markwell & Co. (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 410, 418, 258 P.2d 497 (waiver)]. This objection deserves the most careful attention from respondent's counsel. There is only one opportunity to make it, and often it will be the only viable objection.

When only part of the pleading is subject to objection, it is appropriate to limit the objection to specified defective parts instead of objecting to the entire pleading.

[7] Admissions and Denials

Counsel will need to study the particular case to determine which admissions, if any, should be made. Facts of record about which there can be no reasonable dispute may safely be admitted; to do so will show an attitude of cooperation, which may be helpful to the respondent's case. Generally, however, admissions should be few, and they should always concern facts, never violations. It is unnecessary to make any denials unless admissions are made, and then a denial is necessary only to distinguish what is admitted. The notice of defense is deemed a specific denial of all parts of the initial pleading not expressly admitted [Gov. Code § 11506; see Gov. Code §§ 11504, 11504.5].

[8] New Matter

A statement of new matter by way of defense is equivalent to an affirmative defense in a civil action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]. It appears from the statute that a failure to state new matter in the notice of defense would not deprive the respondent of the unstated defenses [Gov. Code § 11506(b)], which he or she would be entitled to raise at the hearing. In practice, administrative law judges tend to allow new matter to be presented at the hearing notwithstanding that no mention of such matter was made in the notice of defense. In considering whether to state new matter in the notice of defense, counsel should consider at least two points. First, a tactical decision not to state new matter in the notice of defense may have the undesirable effect of annoying the administrative law judge or agency at the hearing, if a dilatory purpose is apparent and a continuance becomes necessary to enable the complainant to prepare to meet the newly raised defense. Second, if the complainant or the agency appears to be ignorant of some fact and would not have begun or would not continue the proceeding if the fact were known, it is probably prudent to state that fact in the notice of defense, since it could bring a speedy resolution of the proceeding in the respondent's favor. However, if new matter stated in the notice of defense would not clearly be determinative, perhaps it should be withheld until events at the hearing require raising it to save the respondent's case.

The question, whether a statute is unconstitutional, may not be raised in defense, unless unconstitutionality of the statute has been determined by an appellate court. The same is true as to the question, whether or not a statute is unenforceable under federal law or regulation. A constitutional amendment prohibits an administrative agency from declaring a statute unconstitutional in any circumstance and from declaring a statute unenforceable because of a conflict with the state or federal constitution or a federal law or regulation unless an appellate court has so decided [Cal. Const., art. III, § 3.5]. Nevertheless, counsel may consider pointing out unofficially that a relevant statute appears to be unconstitutional or unenforceable under federal law or regulation, in the hope that the agency will desist. Also, a continuance might be sought for the purpose of seeking a judicial determination as to the constitutionality or enforceability of a relevant statute.

If the notice of defense states a matter which counsel believes should be heard before the hearing, this sometimes can be arranged. In the letter accompanying the notice of defense [see § 473A.55] counsel should point out this special matter and ask that a preliminary hearing be set for resolving it. Although the agency might ignore this request, the hearing officer, when one is assigned, will receive the copies of the letter and the notice of defense forwarded to the Office of Administrative Hearings, and he or she might set the special matter for a preliminary hearing.

[9] Entrapment Defense

The defense of entrapment is available in administrative proceedings at which revocation or suspension of a license to practice a profession or conduct a business is at issue [Patty v. Board of Medical Examiners (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 356,

367, 107 Cal. Rptr. 473, 508 P.2d 1121] . An agency may not rely on evidence obtained by deceitful inducement of a licensee to engage in activities which he or she would otherwise not have undertaken [see Patty v. Board of Medical Examiners (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 356, 365, 107 Cal. Rptr. 473, 508 P.2d 1121 ; Redner v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 83, 95, 95 Cal. Rptr. 447, 485 P.2d 799] .

The defense rests on broadly stated grounds of sound public policy and good morals [Patty v. Board of Medical Examiners (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 356, 363, 107 Cal. Rptr. 473, 508 P.2d 1121 ; People v. Benford (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 1, 8-9, 345 P.2d 928] , and is crucial to the fair administration of justice. The function of an enforcement agency is to investigate, not instigate, and to discover, not promote, crime; to apprehend the guilty, not to seduce the innocent [Patty v. Board of Medical Examiners (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 356, 364, 367, 107 Cal. Rptr. 473, 508 P.2d 1121] .

[10] Cross References

For detailed discussion of the requirement relating to the notice of defense, see § 473A.11[6].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART V. FORMS

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.55

§ 473A.55 Letter to Accompany Notice of Defense

[1] FORM Letter to Accompany Notice of Defense

_____ [agency]

_____ [address]

Attention: _____ [name]

Re: In the Matter of _____ [name], Respondent

No. _____

Dear _____:

Enclosed and transmitted herewith for filing are the original and one copy of the respondent's Notice of Defense in the above-entitled matter.

The following dates are not open on my calendar: _____[specify]. The hearing in this matter should not be set for one of those dates, if possible.

If possible, the respondent and I would prefer to have the hearing set for one of the following dates and at one of the following places:

Dates: _____ [specify].
Places: _____ [specify].

Very truly yours,

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Respondent

[2] Use of Form

The form of letter in [1], above, is for use by the respondent's counsel and should accompany the notice of defense when it is filed. For the related form of notice of defense, see § 473A.54.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART V. FORMS

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.56

§ 473A.56 Letter Request for Extension of Time [Gov. Code § 11506]

[1] FORM Letter Request for Extension of Time [Gov. Code § 11506]

_____ [agency]

_____ [address]

Attention: _____ [name]

Re: In the Matter of _____ [name], Respondent

No. _____

Dear _____:

Respondent _____[name] requests an extension of time to and including _____[date], within which to file a notice of defense or other appropriate responsive pleading.

Please countersign and return the enclosed copy of this letter to confirm that an extension is granted as requested. If this request will not be granted, please telephone me _____[collect] at the earliest possible time.

Very truly yours,

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Respondent

The above request for extension is granted.

_____ [agency]

By: _____ [signature]

[title]

[2] Use of Form

The form of letter request in [1], above, is for use by the respondent who wishes an extension of time in which to respond. For the related form of notice of defense, see § 473A.54.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473A COMMENCING AGENCY ADJUDICATION
PART V. FORMS

41A-473A California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473A.57

§ 473A.57 Request to Set Aside Default [Gov. Code § 11506]

[1] FORM Request to Set Aside Default [Gov. Code § 11506]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

	)
In the Matter of	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	REQUEST TO SET ASIDE DEFAULT
Respondent.	)
	)

_____

Respondent requests that his/her failure to file a notice of defense not be deemed a waiver of his/her right to a hearing and that a hearing nevertheless be granted. In support of this request, respondent submits the _____ [specify, e.g., declaration] attached hereto.

_____ [signature]

Attorney for Respondent

DECLARATION

I, declare:

_____[State facts supporting request].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The form of request in [1], above, to set aside a default is for use by the respondent, when the time for filing a notice of defense under Gov. Code § 11506 or other responsive pleading has passed.

[3] Cross References

See § 473A.11[6] for detailed discussion of notice of defense.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 473B.syn

§ 473B.syn Synopsis to Chapter 473B: DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS

§ 473B.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 473B.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

[2] Judicial Review

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

[4] Other Related Chapters

[5] Related Matthew Bender Publications

§§ 473B.03-473B.09 [Reserved]

§ 473B.10 Governing Law

§ 473B.11 Basic Definitions Governing Discovery

§ 473B.12 Methods of Discovery Under the California APA

[1] Exclusive Provision for Discovery

[2] Depositions Not Allowed for Prehearing Discovery

[3] Interrogatories Allowed Only as Form of Written Request

[4] Subpoenas for Production of Documents

[a] Scope of Application

[b] Issuance of Subpoenas for Discovery Purposes

[c] Who May Issue Subpoena

[d] Service of Subpoena

[e] Enforcement of Subpoena

§ 473B.13 Scope of Discovery Under the APA

§ 473B.14 Administrative Discovery Procedures

[1] Request for Discovery

[2] Time Limits

[a] Statutory Time Limits

[b] Availability of Discovery Before Notice of Defense Is Filed

[3] Method for Requesting Discovery

[a] Service by Mail

[b] Keeping Copy of Request and Proof of Service

[4] Complying With Discovery Request

[5] Costs of Copying

§ 473B.15 Limits and Conditions on Discovery

[1] General Limitations

[2] Privileges

[a] Privileged Matter Not Discoverable

[b] The Presumption of Confidentiality and the Burden of Proof

[3] Physician-Patient Privilege

[4] Attorney Work Product

[5] Official Information

[6] Sexual Conduct

§ 473B.16 Enforcement of Discovery Under the California APA

[1] Motion to Compel Discovery

[2] Serving and Filing the Motion

[3] Answer and Hearing on Motion to Compel

[4] In Camera Inspection

[5] Order Granting or Denying Motion

[6] Review of Judge's Order

[7] Sanctions

§ 473B.17 Non-APA Statutory Discovery

[1] Applicability of Non-California APA Discovery Statutes

[2] Investigation and Enforcement

[3] Private Parties

§ 473B.18 Nonstatutory Court Authorized Discovery

[1] Availability

[2] Governing Law

§§ 473B.19-473B.29 [Reserved]

§ 473B.30 Federal Constitution

§ 473B.31 State Constitution

§ 473B.32 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

[2] Related Statutes

§ 473B.33 Decisions

[1] General Requirements

[2] Depositions of Witnesses

[3] Discovery Against Party

[4] Subpoenas

§ 473B.34 Text References

§ 473B.35 Internet References

§§ 473B.36-473B.49 [Reserved]

§ 473B.50 Obtaining and Responding to Administrative Discovery

[1] Ascertain Applicable Law Governing Discovery in the Proceeding

[2] Obtaining Discovery Under the APA

[3] Complying With Request for Administrative Discovery Under the APA

§ 473B.51 Initiation of Discovery Under the APA

[1] Notice of Defense

[2] Request for Discovery

[3] Service of Written Request

[4] Noncompliance with Request for Discovery-Petitioner's Option

[5] Respondent's Options

§ 473B.52 Subpoena and Subpoena Duces Tecum

[1] Requesting Subpoena

[2] Service

§ 473B.53 Deposition of Unavailable Witness Under APA Guidelines

[1] Petition for Deposition of Unavailable Witness

[2] Filing

[3] Service

[4] Order Issued

§§ 473B.54-473B.59 [Reserved]

§ 473B.60 Petition to Take Deposition of Unavailable Witness [Gov. Code § 11511]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Verification

[4] Procedure

[5] Cross References

§ 473B.61 Request for Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.6]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Content of Request

§ 473B.62 Notice of Noncompliance With Request for Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.6]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 473B.63 Motion to Compel Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.7]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Supporting Papers

[4] Service and Filing

[5] Cross References

§ 473B.64 Answer to Motion to Compel Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.7(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Supporting Papers

§ 473B.65 Order Granting Motion to Compel Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.7(f)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 473B.66 Order Denying Motion to Compel Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.7(f)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

§ 473B.67 Order to Show Cause In Re Contempt [Gov. Code § 11455.20]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Cross References

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.01

§ 473B.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses discovery procedures in an agency adjudication, primarily those that apply to formal hearings under the California Administrative Procedure Act (APA). The discussion in Part II includes the following:

- The requirements relating to discovery in formal hearings under the APA administrative adjudication provisions [see §§ 473B.10 -473B.15).

- Limits and conditions on discovery, enforcement of discovery, non-APA statutory discovery, and nonstatutory court authorized discovery [see §§ 473B.16 -473B.19].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing Activity

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.02

§ 473B.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

For general discussion and overview of agency adjudication under the Administrative Procedure Act (APA), see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication .

For related discussion and forms providing coverage of the other stages of an agency adjudication under the formal hearing provisions of the APA, see:

- Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication.
- Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473D, Prehearing Preparations in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges .
- Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings .
- Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions .

For related discussion and forms providing more detailed coverage of adjudication methods under the APA other than that of formal hearing, see Ch. 473H, Alternative Adminstrative Adjudication Procedures .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to licensing agencies, including licensing adjudications, see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies .

[2] Judicial Review

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to review by California courts of agency adjudications, see:

- Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions .
- Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions .
- Ch. 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions .
- Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions .

For other related discussion and forms relating to judicial review generally, see:

- Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, through Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review (discussion and forms relating to civil appeals).
- Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of orders by extraordinary writ of mandate or prohibition).
- Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of civil proceedings by extraordinary writ of review).

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

For related discussion of California public administrative law generally, including discussion of public agency functions and powers (including adjudicative or quasi-judicial powers), and organization generally, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law (general discussion of judicial power is in § 470.12[5]). For detailed discussion of the general procedures imposed in agency proceedings by constitutional due process and related statutory requirements, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies .

For discussion and forms relating to the law governing access to and conduct of meetings by California public agencies, see Ch. 470B, Public Agency Meetings .

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the law governing disclosure of public records under the California Public Records Act [Cal. Gov. Code §§ 6250 et seq.], see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to agency investigations and inspections, see:

- Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies .
- Ch. 471A, Inspections by Public Agencies .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to the legislative or rulemaking functions of California public agencies, including judicial review of these functions, see:

- Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules .
- Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures .
- .

For additional cross references to coverage of particular public agencies, see § 470.02[2].

[4] Other Related Chapters

For discussion and forms of affidavits and declarations under penalty of perjury in civil actions generally, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations .

For discussion and forms relating to contempt proceedings in civil actions generally, see Ch. 135, Contempt .

For discussion and forms relating to discovery in civil actions generally, see Ch. 190- 200, Discovery .

For further discussion and forms relating to subpoenas in civil actions generally, see Ch. 535, Subpoena .

For discussion and forms relating to proof of service in civil actions generally, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[5] Related Matthew Bender Publications

For additional detailed discussion relating to discovery in civil actions, see DeMeo, California Deposition and Discovery Practice, Chs. 21-32 (Matthew Bender); California Trial Guide, Unit 51; Ch. 190-200, Discovery (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesProhibitionAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473B.03-473B.09

[Reserved]

§§ 473B.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.10

§ 473B.10 Governing Law

Some agencies have their own specific discovery statutes as a part of their enabling law. In these cases, their specific discovery statutes apply whether or not they are otherwise subject to the APA [see Serenko v. Bright (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 682, 689, 70 Cal. Rptr. 1 (California APA is a general law that yields to specific statutes)].

Discovery under the administrative adjudication provisions of the APA (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.) are governed generally by Gov. Code § 11507.6 [see also Gov. Code §§ 11507.5, 11507.7, 11511]. These statutory discovery provisions of the APA, first enacted in 1968, supplanted case law that had previously shaped administrative discovery, with respect to any proceeding subject to the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) [Gov. Code § 11507.5; Gilbert v. Superior Court (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 161, 166, 238 Cal. Rptr. 220 ; Board of Medical Quality Assur. v. Superior Court (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 860, 862, 141 Cal. Rptr. 83] . For further discussion of the APA, its administrative adjudication provisions (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq. and Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), and the applicability of those provisions, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law , and Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication .

Discovery in agency adjudications not subject to the APA, and in which no other specific discovery statute applies, are governed by the decisional law that has developed non-statutory administrative discovery along principles of common law [see, e.g., Shively v. Stewart (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 475, 55 Cal. Rptr. 217, 421 P.2d 65 (legislative silence regarding administrative discovery leaves to the courts the task of shaping administrative discovery); Romero v. Hern (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 787, 791, 81 Cal. Rptr. 281] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing Activity

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.11

§ 473B.11 Basic Definitions Governing Discovery

Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), governing formal hearings under the APA (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.), begins with a list of definitions that include the following [Gov. Code § 11500; see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication, § 473.13[1], for discussion regarding Chapter 5 and other components of the APA]:

- "Agency" includes the state boards, commissions, and officers to which Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) applies by law. When the word "agency" alone is used, the power to act may be delegated by the agency, but when the words "agency itself" are used, the power to act shall not be delegated unless the statutes relating to the particular agency authorize delegation of the agency's power to hear and decide [Gov. Code § 11500(a)].

- "Party" includes the agency, the respondent, and any person (other than an officer or employee of the agency acting in an official capacity) who has appeared or participated in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11500(b)].

- "Respondent" means any person against whom an accusation is filed. [Gov. Code § 11500(c); see Gov. Code §§ 11503, 11504, and discussion in Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication , regarding accusation and statement of issues as initial pleadings used by agency to initiate agency adjudication pursuant to formal hearing procedures of Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.].

These definitions apply to all other provisions in Chapter 5, including those relating to discovery, unless the context or subject matter indicates otherwise [Gov. Code § 11500]. In addition, certain definitions set out in Chapter 4.5 also apply to proceedings under Chapter 5, to the extent that the provisions of Chapter 4.5 apply to formal hearings under Chapter 5 unless inconsistent with statutes specifically applicable to that proceeding [Gov. Code § 11501(c)]. For example, the following definition of "adjudicatory hearing," applies in that there is no definition of this term in Chapter 5 [Gov. Code § 11405.20]:

- "Adjudicative proceeding" is an evidentiary hearing for determination of facts pursuant to which an agency formulates and issues a decision.

Applicable provisions of Chapter 4.5 are discussed when relevant in this chapter. For detailed discussion of the additional definitions under Chapter 4.5 that may apply, see Chapter 473, Public Agency Adjudication, § 473.14.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing Activity

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.12

§ 473B.12 Methods of Discovery Under the California APA

[1] Exclusive Provision for Discovery

Gov. Code § 11507.6 provides the exclusive right to and method of discovery for adjudicatory proceedings under the APA's Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq., entitled Administrative Adjudication: Formal Hearings) [Gov. Code § 11507.5; Gilbert v. Superior Court (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 161, 166-167, 238 Cal. Rptr. 220] . For discussion of when the APA applies to an administrative adjudication, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication].

Gov. Code § 11507.6 basically provides that a party may obtain discovery by means of a "written request made to another party," and may thereby obtain the names and addresses of witnesses known to the other party, as well as specified statements, writings, and reports for inspection and copying [Gov. Code § 11507.6].

Thus, although it sets outs an extensive list of information and materials that may be discovered, it does not provide much detail concerning the method of discovery, other than to specify a "written request" for discovery and to provide that written materials may be inspected and copied. It makes no mention, for example, of the primary methods of discovery in civil actions, such as depositions, interrogatories, and the use of subpoenas to compel the production of documents. Case law clarifying the availability, or nonavailability, of these methods is in [2] through [4], below. The items discoverable and the procedures for obtaining discovery by written request under Gov. Code § 11507.6 are discussed in further detail in §§ 473B.13 and 473B.14; limits and conditions affecting prehearing discovery are discussed in § 473B.15.

[2] Depositions Not Allowed for Prehearing Discovery

The APA allows the use of depositions solely to take the testimony of a witness who will be unable to attend the hearing or who cannot be compelled to attend [Gov. Code § 11511; Kenneally v. Medical Board of California (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 489, 502-503, 32 Cal. Rptr.2d 504 (physician was not denied equal protection of the law and Gov. Code § 11511 was not unconstitutional in restricting discovery depositions to witnesses whose testimony is material and who are unable to attend a hearing or cannot be required to attend a hearing)]. California courts have consistently denied all attempts to conduct discovery using the witness-deposition provision of Gov. Code § 11511 [see Shively v. Stewart (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 475, 478-479, 55 Cal. Rptr. 217, 421 P.2d 65 (Gov. Code § 11511 provides for depositions, not for discovery, but only to secure evidence for use at the hearing); Stevenson v. State Bd. of Medical Examiners (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 433, 439, 88 Cal. Rptr. 815 (no agency duty to issue subpoenas under Gov. Code § 11511 for prehearing discovery); Everett v. Gordon (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 667, 669, 671-673, 72 Cal. Rptr. 379 (petition to compel the issuance of subpoenas for prehearing depositions denied); Cooper v. Board of Medical Examiners (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 931, 123 Cal. Rptr. 563 (no statutory or common law right for psychologist to take deposition of witness before hearing)].

On verified petition of a party, an administrative law judge, or, if an administrative law judge has not been appointed, an agency may order that the testimony of any material witness residing within or without the state be taken by deposition in the manner prescribed by law for depositions in civil actions [Gov. Code § 11511]. The petition must set forth the following [Gov. Code § 11511]:

- Nature of the pending proceeding.
- Name and address of the witness whose testimony is desired.
- Showing of the materiality of the testimony.
- Showing that the witness will be unable or can not be compelled to attend.

The petition must also request an order requiring the witness to apear and testify before an officer named in the petition for that purpose. The petitioning party must serve notice of hearing and a copy of the petition on the other parties at least 10 days before the hearing. When the witness resides outside the state and when the administrative law judge or agency has ordered the taking of the testimony by deposition, the agency shall obtain an order of court to that effect by filing a petition in the Superior Court in Sacramento County. The court proceedings shall be consistent with the provisions of Gov. Code § 11189 [Gov. Code § 11511]. See § 473B.60 for a form for a petition for an order to take the deposition of an unavailable witness.

[3] Interrogatories Allowed Only as Form of Written Request

Gov. Code § 11507.6 authorizes discovery through written requests made to another party. Although interrogatories are not specifically mentioned in Gov. Code § 11507.6, at least one court has allowed discovery in the form of written interrogatories rather than written requests when applying Gov. Code § 11507.6. In that case the court of appeal stated that there was no reason why the respondent should be denied that information because he asked for it in interrogatories rather than in requests [Romero v. Hern (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 787, 794, 81 Cal. Rptr. 281] . The court held that the "interrogatories" need not be answered under oath, and it also applied Gov. Code § 11507.6 to determine which interrogatories the agency was required to answer. Overbroad interrogatories ("shotgun" requests) need not be answered [Romero v. Hern (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 787, 793-795, 81 Cal. Rptr. 281] . For discussion of the materials discoverable under Gov. Code § 11507.6, see § 473B.13.

In that the scope of discovery is narrower and replies need not be given under oath, a request for discovery in an APA proceeding given in the form of interrogatories is quite different from a set of interrogatories in a civil action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2017.010 (discovery in civil actions generally includes any relevant matter that is not privileged), 2030.010(a) (interrogatories in civil actions must be answered under oath); see also Ch. 194, Discovery: Interrogatories , for discussion of discovery in civil actions generally]. In fact, the court ruling that permitted "interrogatories" was concerned merely with their form, allowing them only to the extent that they were essentially written requests for discovery that could be answered pursuant to the scope and limits of Gov. Code § 11507.6.

Thus, most APA discovery requests are not styled as interrogatories but simply as written requests for discovery. See § 473B.61, for a written request for discovery form.

[4] Subpoenas for Production of Documents

[a] Scope of Application

Chapter 4.5 (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.) includes the provisions governing subpoenas in administrative adjudications under the APA. The provisions, set out in Gov. Code § 11450.05 et seq., apply to formal APA adjudication hearing under Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) [Gov. Code § 11450.05(a)].

Agencies that are not subject to the Chapter 5 requirements may nevertheless use the APA subpoena procedures. When an agency opts to use the provisions, all provisions of Gov. Code § 11450.05 et seq. apply, including but not limited to the issuance of a subpoena requested by a party or an attorney of record for a party under Gov. Code § 11450.20 [Gov. Code § 11450.05(b)].

See Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication for further discussion concerning the proceedings to which Chapters 4.5 and 5 apply.

[b] Issuance of Subpoenas for Discovery Purposes

For discovery purposes, an administrative subpoena is available chiefly for purpose of inspecting records or documents. Under Gov. Code § 11450.05 et seq., subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum may be issued either [Gov. Code § 11450.10(a)]:

- To compel attendance at a hearing.
- To compel production of documents at any reasonable time and place or at a hearing.

Alternatively, a custodian of documents that is the subject of a subpoena duces tecum may satisfy the subpoena by delivery of the documents or a copy of the documents, or by making the documents available for inspection or copying, together with an affidavit that satisfies Evidence Code § 1561 [Gov. Code § 11450.10(b)]. This latter procedure is similar to the practice in civil actions under Code Civ. Proc. § 2020 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

If a custodian does not comply with the subpoena, the subpoena can be enforced, and the custodian can be compelled to appear and produce the documents under the enforcement provisions of Gov. Code § 11455.10 et seq. [see Gov. Code § 11455.10(e); 25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

Effective July 1, 1997, the use of subpoenas in discovery is broader than formerly, in that a subpoena duces tecum may be issued for production of documents at any reasonable time and place, as well as at a hearing. Witness subpoenas are still limited to attendance at hearings [Gov. Code § 11450.10(a)]. Decisions under the prior law should be distinguished; decided under former Gov. Code § 11510, they did not permit subpoenas for prehearing discovery, but restricted the use of subpoenas only to compel attendance of witnesses or evidence at the hearing [Shively v. Stewart (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 475, 478-479, 55 Cal. Rptr. 217, 421 P. 2d 65 ; Stevenson v. State Bd. of Medical Examiners (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 433, 88 Cal. Rptr. 815 ; Gilbert v. Superior Court (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 161, 165-167, 238 Cal. Rptr. 220] .

For discussion of the subpoena requirements in the context of agency investigations as distinguished from discovery, see Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies .

[c] Who May Issue Subpoena

Subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum can be issued by the agency or the presiding officer at the request of a party, or by the attorney of record for a party, in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1985 et seq. [Gov. Code § 11450.20(a)].

Gov. Code § 11450.20(a) is intended to incorporate the statutory privacy protections applicable in civil actions [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm Reports 55 (1995)]. The primary privacy provisions are contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3, which protects and defines personal records of consumers [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(a)(1)], and which provides for notice to consumers whose personal records are subject to a subpoena [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(e)]. It also incorporates other procedures set out in Gov. Code § 1985 et seq., such as the requirement that a subpoena duces tecum can not be issued unless an affidavit satisfying the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1985 is completed. When the APA subpoena provision do not address a particular procedural issue relating to subpoenas, the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1985 et seq. may be looked at to provide analogous procedures [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see also Sehlmeyer v. Department of General Services (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1072, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 840] . See Ch. 535, Subpoenas , for further discussion and forms relating to subpoenas in civil actions and the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1985 et seq.

Gov. Code § 11450.20(a) also permits attorneys of record for a party to issue subpoenas, as well as the agency and presiding officer. This is an expansion of subpoena issuers permitted under the APA, in comparison with former APA provisions in effect before July 1, 1997 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

[d] Service of Subpoena

Subpoenas may be served throughout California and must be served in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1987 (personal service of subpoena on witness) and 1988 (personal service of subpoena by sheriff on concealed witness) [Gov. Code § 11450.20(b)].

Alternatively, subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum can be delivered by certified mail return receipt requested or by messenger [Gov. Code § 11450.20(b)]. Service by messenger is completed when the witness acknowledges receipt of the subpoena to the sender, by telephone, by mail, or in person, and identifies himself or herself either by reference to date of birth and driver's license number or Department of Motor Vehicles identification number, or the sender may verify receipt of the subpoena by obtaining other identifying information from the recipient. The sender is required to make a written notation of the acknowledgement. A subpoena that is properly issued and acknowledged consistent with these requirements is as enforceable as a subpoena that is personally served [Gov. Code § 11450.20(b)].

Witnesses who are residents of the State of California at the time of service of the subpoena are required to attend the hearing to which they have been subpoenaed, but non-residents are not required to attend [Gov. Code § 11450.20(c)].

[e] Enforcement of Subpoena

A witness who fails to comply with a subpoena that has been properly issued and acknowledged can be punished for failure to comply with the subpoena as a contempt, and the subpoena can state these consequences [Gov. Code § 11450.20(b)]. Enforcement of subpoenas is authorized under Gov. Code § 11455.10 et seq. [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see discussion of these provisions in § 473B.16]. A witness can be held in contempt for failing or refusing, without substantial justification, to comply with a subpoena as well as other types of orders [Gov. Code § 11455.10(e)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenas

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.13

§ 473B.13 Scope of Discovery Under the APA

Under the discovery provision of the APA (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.), a party is entitled to the following [Gov. Code § 11507.6]:

- To obtain from another party the names and addresses of known witnesses, regardless of whether they are intended to testify at the hearing.

- To inspect and make a copy of specified writings or documents in the possession or custody or under the control of the other party.

The writings and documents specified are [Gov. Code § 11507.6]:

- Statements of persons other than the respondent, who are named in the initial administrative pleading or any additional pleading, when it is claimed that the act or omission of the respondent as to this person is the basis for the proceeding.

- A statement pertaining to the subject matter of the proceeding made by any party to another party or person.

- Statements of witnesses then proposed to be called by the party, and of other persons having personal knowledge of the acts, omissions, or events that are the basis for the proceeding, not otherwise included in the two preceding types of statements.

- All writings, including but not limited to reports of mental, physical, and blood examinations and things that the party then proposes to offer in evidence.

- Any other writing or thing that is relevant and would be admissible in evidence.

- Investigative reports made by or on behalf of the agency or other party, pertaining to the subject matter of the proceeding, to the extent that these reports:

- Contain the names and addresses of witnesses or persons having personal knowledge of the acts, omissions, or events that are the basis of the proceeding.

- Reflect matters perceived by the investigator in the course of his or her investigation.

- Contain, or include by attachment, any statement or writing described above, or any summary of such statement or writing.

"Statements" are defined for the purposes of this provision to include [Gov. Code § 11507.6]:

- Statements signed or otherwise authenticated by the person described.

- Stenographic, mechanical, electrical, or other recordings or transcripts of oral statements by the person described, or written reports or summaries of these oral statements.

Gov. Code § 11507.6 does not authorize the inspection or copying of anything that is privileged from disclosure by law or is otherwise made confidential or protected as the attorney's work product [Gov. Code § 11507.6; see discussion in § 473B.15 for discussion of these and certain other statutory limits on discovery].

It is apparent that the scope of administrative prehearing discovery under Gov. Code § 11507.6 is more limited than the scope of discovery in civil actions. In a civil action, a party may generally obtain discovery on any unprivileged matter that is relevant, if the matter is either admissible in evidence or appears reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 2017.010; see Ch. 190- 200, Discovery]. Moreover, oral depositions may be taken in civil actions, whereas only the statements and writing set out above may be obtained in administrative discovery [see also discussion in § 473B.12].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.14

§ 473B.14 Administrative Discovery Procedures

[1] Request for Discovery

To initiate discovery under the APA (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.), the party seeking discovery must make a written request to another party [Gov. Code § 11507.6]. Other than the requirement of a writing, the statute prescribes no particular form [see § 473B.12[3] (discussing the effect of framing the request in the form of interrogatories)].

Making a written request for discovery is the only step required to perfect a right to California APA discovery. Thus, for example, declarations or affidavits showing good cause are not required [but see § 473B.12[4] (discussing requirements for administrative subpoena)].

See § 473B.61 for a form of request for discovery.

[2] Time Limits

[a] Statutory Time Limits

The request for discovery must be made before the hearing and within 30 days after the agency serves the initial pleading. If an additional pleading (such as an amended or supplemental accusation or statement of issues) is served, discovery requests must be made within 15 days of this service [Gov. Code § 11507.6].

Adequate time usually exists for discovery because the Office of Administrative Hearings (OAH) normally sets hearing dates at least 60 to 90 days after service of the initial pleading. If an additional pleading is filed less than 15 days before the hearing, a party might be entitled to a continuance to allow discovery. If the new pleading presents new charges, the respondent is expressly entitled to a reasonable time after service to prepare a defense, which may require a reasonable opportunity for further discovery as well [Gov. Code § 11507; for discussion of amending, supplementing, and correcting pleadings, see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication].

If the time for discovery expires before the respondent hires an attorney, the attorney should explain the situation to the agency and ask for more time to conduct discovery. The agency is very likely to cooperate. For discussion of how failure to comply with these limits may curtail discovery, see § 473B.15[1].

[b] Availability of Discovery Before Notice of Defense Is Filed

It appears that discovery is available only after the respondent files a notice of defense. Gov. Code § 11507.6 provides that a party is entitled to discovery "after the initiation of a proceeding" in which a respondent or other party is entitled to a hearing on the merits. A respondent, in turn, is not entitled to a hearing on the merits until he or she files a notice of defense [see Gov. Code § 11506(c) (failure to file notice of defense waives respondent's right to hearing); see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication]. As a practical matter, many respondents file a request for discovery at the time of filing the notice of defense.

[3] Method for Requesting Discovery

[a] Service by Mail

Discovery is initiated by the parties without the approval or control of the Office of Administrative Hearings or the courts. Requests usually are served by mail. The formal hearing provisions of the APA's Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) does not specify whether timeliness of the request is determined by the date that the request is mailed or the date that the other party receives it. Mailing within the time limits is probably adequate [cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) (service by mail in civil actions is complete at the time of deposit in a post office, mail box, or similar facility); Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(c), (e) (time is extended by two court days when notice is served by facsimile transmission, express mail, or other overnight delivery service); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.306(h) (proof of service by facsimile transmission)].

[b] Keeping Copy of Request and Proof of Service

The requesting party should keep a copy of the original request, together with proof of service, in case it becomes important in the subsequent administrative hearing or in a court proceeding. The original is not made part of the administrative record unless it is used for determining motions, evidentiary objections, credibility of witnesses, or other matters connected with the administrative hearing.

[4] Complying With Discovery Request

Because the APA discovery provision, Gov. Code § 11507.6, does not provide a formal method for complying with a discovery request, the parties and their attorneys usually arrange an exchange of documents or agree on a time for inspecting and copying. The APA also fails to fix a time limit on compliance, although Gov. Code § 11507.7(a) provides that a party may file a motion with the administrative law judge to compel compliance after 30 days [see discussion in § 473B.15].

In any case, requests should be complied with within a reasonable time. Failure to comply may be cause for continuance of the administrative hearing or may serve as the basis for a motion to exclude or strike evidence.

[5] Costs of Copying

Because Gov. Code § 11507.6 entitles a party to inspect and copy documents [see discussion in § 473B.13], but does not require the other party to furnish copies, the party who wants the copies must pay for them unless the agency provides the copies. Many agencies do provide copies of discoverable documents, generally for a small fee.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing Activity

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.15

§ 473B.15 Limits and Conditions on Discovery

[1] General Limitations

As discussed more fully in §§ 473B.13[1] and 473B.14, a party to an administrative adjudication governed by the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) is limited exclusively to the scope of discovery under Gov. Code § 11507.6 [Gov. Code § 11507.5]. Gov. Code § 11507.6, in turn, permits discovery only from another party, and only specified statements, writings in the other party's possession or control. Prehearing depositions and formal interrogatories are not allowed, so that no procedure exists to question another party in order to determine the extent of discoverable material in the other party's possession or control. Because the APA lacks procedures for determining the extent of discoverable matters, voluntary and good faith compliance by the parties is necessary for effective discovery.

The request for discovery must be made within the time periods set forth [Gov. Code § 11507.6; see discussion in § 473B.14[2]]. Although Gov. Code § 11524(a) provides that the agency or the administrative law judge may grant a continuance for good cause shown, discovery may be denied if a party fails to comply with statutory requirements [see Lax v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 669, 675-676, 172 Cal. Rptr. 258 (failure to file petition to compel discovery within time allowed amounts to waiver of right to continuance); Stevenson v. State Bd. of Medical Examiners (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 433, 88 Cal. Rptr. 815 (petition for depositions under Gov. Code § 11511 properly denied because petition failed to establish the materiality of the testimony as required by Gov. Code § 11511)]. Gov. Code § 11507.6 does not require that a response to a request for discovery be made under oath.

[2] Privileges

[a] Privileged Matter Not Discoverable

The APA discovery provision does not authorize the discovery of any writing or thing that is legally privileged from disclosure or is otherwise made confidential or protected as attorney work product [Gov. Code § 11507.6(f)]. This encompasses all privileges that normally could be invoked by a litigant in a civil court case, as well as the attorney work-product protection [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2016(b) (application of privilege restrictions to civil court discovery), 2018 (attorney work-product protection)].

Privileges set out in the Evidence Code are expressly made applicable to both APA and non-APA administrative adjudications [see Evid. Code §§ 901 ("proceeding" is any action, hearing, investigation, inquest, or inquiry in which testimony can be compelled pursuant to law, including a proceeding conducted by an administrative agency or hearing officer), 910 (Evid. Code § 900 et seq., concerning privileges, apply in all proceedings except as otherwise provided by statute)].

Detailed discussion and forms relating to evidentiary privileges and the attorney work-product protection may be found in Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitaitons [see also DeMeo, California Deposition and Discovery Practice, Chs. 21-32 (Matthew Bender); California Trial Guide, Unit 51 (Matthew Bender)]. The evidentiary privileges and statutory protections against disclosure are:

- Attorney work-product protection [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.010-2018.080; see also discussion in [4], below].

- Lawyer-client communications [Evid. Code §§ 950-962].

- Marital communications and privilege not to testify against spouse [Evid. Code §§ 970-987].

- Physician-patient communications [Evid. Code §§ 990-1007; see also discussion in [3], below].

- Psychotherapist-patient communications [Evid. Code §§ 1010-1027].

- Clergy-penitent communications [Evid. Code §§ 1030-1034].

- Victim-counselor communications for sexual assault or domestic violence [Evid. Code §§ 1035-1037.7].

- Official records and information [Evid. Code §§ 1040-1047; see also discussion in [5], below].

- Political vote [Evid. Code § 1050].

- Trade secrets [Evid. Code § 1060].

- Privilege against self-incrimination [Evid. Code § 940; for discussion of the privilege against self-incrimination in agency investigations and inspections, see respectively Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies , and Ch. 471A, Inspections by Public Agencies].

- Protection of newsperson from contempt for refusal to disclose news sources [Evid. Code § 1070].

The evidentiary privileges in Evid. Code §§ 900-1070 apply even though the rules of evidence themselves do not apply to APA hearings [Evid. Code § 910 (privileges apply except as otherwise provided by statute; statute making rules of evidence inapplicable does not make privileges inapplicable); Gov. Code § 11513(c) (with certain exceptions, APA hearings need not be conducted according to technical rules of evidence, but rules of privilege are effective to extent otherwise required by statute to be recognized at hearing); for discussion of the evidentiary rules applicable to administrative hearings, see Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings].

The privilege afforded a defendant in a criminal case (Evid. Code § 930) to refuse to respond as a witness and testify is not available to parties in an administrative proceeding [McComb v. Superior Court (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 89, 96-98, 137 Cal. Rptr. 233] . Thus, a party can be compelled to appear and testify, but he or she may invoke the privilege against self-incrimination and refuse to disclose matters that may tend to incriminate him or her [San Francisco

Unified School Dist. v. Superior Court (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 231, 235, 172 Cal. Rptr. 42] .

[b] The Presumption of Confidentiality and the Burden of Proof

The burden of establishing that a matter is privileged is generally on the party asserting the privilege [San Diego Professional Asso. v. Superior Court of San Diego County (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 194, 199, 23 Cal. Rptr. 384, 373 P.2d 448 ; Chronicle Pub. Co. v. Superior Court (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 548, 565, 7 Cal. Rptr. 109, 354 P.2d 637] . In contrast to this general rule, communications between the following parties are presumed to have been made in confidence [Evid. Code § 917]:

- Attorney-client.
- Physician-patient.
- Psychotherapist-patient.
- Clergy-penitent.
- Husband-wife or marital.

The opponent of the claim of privilege has the burden of overcoming this presumption by proving that the communication was not confidential [Evid. Code § 917]. This presumption and the attendant shift in the burden of proof only arise, however, after the party claiming the privilege shows that the applicable relationship exists. For example, a party who claims the psychotherapist-patient privilege must first show that he or she was a "patient" [see Evid. Code § 1011 (definition of patient for purposes of psychotherapist-patient privilege)], and that the person consulted was a "psychotherapist" [Mahoney v. Superior Court (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 937, 940-941, 191 Cal. Rptr. 425 ; see Evid. Code § 1010 (definition of psychotherapist for purposes of psychotherapist-patient privilege)].

[3] Physician-Patient Privilege

The physician-patient privilege [Evid. Code §§ 990-1007] is one of the privileges that may be asserted in response to an administrative request for discovery [Evid. Code §§ 910, 990-1007; see discussion in [2][a], above]. Evid. Code § 1007 purports to limit the privilege by providing that it does not exist in a proceeding (defined under Evid. Code § 901 to include investigations and inquiries) brought by a public entity to determine whether a right, authority, license, or privilege should be revoked, suspended, terminated, limited, or conditioned.

This limitation on the physician-patient privilege, however, is itself limited by case law holding that the physician-patient privilege creates a "zone of privacy" protected by California's constitutional right to privacy [Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 678-679, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55 ; see Cal. Const., art. I, § 1 (right of privacy)]. Thus, notwithstanding Evid. Code § 1007, the physician-patient privilege can be asserted against a request for discovery by an administrative agency.

The right to privacy is not absolute, but an invasion of this right must be justified by a compelling state interest, unless the patient has waived the right of privacy by consenting to the intrusion [White v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 757, 775, 120 Cal. Rptr. 94, 533 P.2d 222 ; Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 679-681, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55] . If there has been no waiver, the agency must show that there is good cause for production of the material sought [Pating v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 608, 618, 182 Cal. Rptr. 20 ; Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 679-682, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55] . For discussion of agency investigative subpoenas and the right of privacy, including an explanation of "good cause," see Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies .

For detailed, general discussion relating to the physician-patient communication privilege, see Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitaitons [see also DeMeo, California Deposition and Discovery Practice, Chs. 21-32 (Matthew Bender); California Trial Guide, Unit 51 (Matthew Bender)].

[4] Attorney Work Product

Under Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), the formal hearing provisions of the APA (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), a party may refuse to disclose information that is protected by the attorney work product rule [Gov. Code § 11507.6].

The protection of attorney work-product rule provides absolute protection from discovery for any writing that reflects an attorney's impressions, conclusions, opinions, or legal research or theories [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.030(a)]. Other work product of an attorney is not discoverable unless the denial of discovery will unfairly prejudice the party seeking it or will result in an injustice [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.030(b)].

The California State Bar, however, may discover the work product of an attorney against whom disciplinary charges are pending, if the work product is relevant to issues of breach of duty by the lawyer. Discovery of this material is subject to approval of the client for whom the work was done. On request and with a showing of good cause, the discovery will also be subject to a protective order to ensure the confidentiality of the work product except for its use by the State Bar in disciplinary investigations and its consideration under seal in State Bar Court proceedings. When a client initiates a complaint against his or her attorney, that client's approval of discovery of the work product is deemed to have been granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018.070(c); for detailed discussion of the non-APA disciplinary proceedings conducted by the State Bar, see Ch. 71, Attorney Discipline].

The work product privilege does not apply to work product that is relevant to an issue of breach by an attorney of a duty owed to a client arising out of the attorney-client relationship. Thus, clients or former clients who sue lawyers for professional negligence can obtain discovery of attorney work product relevant to their claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 2018(f)].

For detailed, general discussion and forms relating to the attorney work-product protection, see Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitaitons [see also DeMeo, California Deposition and Discovery Practice (Matthew Bender); California Trial Guide, Unit 51 (Matthew Bender)].

[5] Official Information

"Official information" is information acquired in confidence by a public employee in the course of the employee's duties and not open to or disclosed to the public [Evid. Code § 1040(a)]. A public entity, which includes public agencies [Evid. Code § 200], has a privilege to refuse to disclose official information if the privilege is claimed by a person authorized by the agency to do so. Disclosure also must either be forbidden by a federal or California statute or be against the public interest. A disclosure is against the public interest if the necessity of preserving the confidentiality of the information outweighs the necessity for disclosure in the interest of justice [Evid. Code § 1040(b)(2)].

However, the interest of the public agency in investigating wrongdoing would support the public interest in confidentiality of the records because disclosure of audit manuals would make it easier for licensees to avoid detection of violations of the law [Suarez v. Office of Administrative Hearings (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1191, 1195-1196, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 618] . In Suarez, an ALJ ordered disclosure of a Department of Real Estate Audit Manual and Enforcement Deputy Manual to a real estate broker charged with fraud. Disclosure was ordered after the broker brought a motion to compel production of the manuals as part of the discovery process related to administrative hearing. Broker argued that manuals were relevant to issues in hearing. The ALJ conducted an in camera examination of the manuals before ordering disclosure. The Court of Appeal upheld the Superior Court's grant of a petition for a writ of administrative mandate prohibiting disclosure of the manuals under the provisions of Evid. Code § 1040(b)(2). The Court of Appeal held that the audit method used by DRE auditors would not provide the licensee a relevant defense to the charges brought against him, and therefore the need for disclosure of the records (to provide information relevant to the licensee's defense) was outweighed by the public interest in confidentiality [Suarez v. Office of Admin. Hearings (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1191, 1195-1196, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 618] .

This privilege does not apply, however, if any person authorized to do so consents that the information be disclosed in the proceeding [Evid. Code § 1040(b)(2)]. This exception seems to provide a party with access to information the agency plans to introduce at the hearing. Whether it would allow discovery of official information used in the case but not intended to be used in the hearing is not clear.

For detailed, general discussion and forms relating to official information privilege, see Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitaitons [see also DeMeo, California Deposition and Discovery Practice, Chs. 21-32 (Matthew Bender); California Trial Guide, Unit 51 (Matthew Bender)].

[6] Sexual Conduct

In employment discrimination and harassment cases [see Gov. Code § 12940(h), (i)], civil service discipline cases [see Gov. Code § 19572], and civil service discrimination cases [see Gov. Code § 19702], that allege conduct that constitutes sexual harassment, sexual assault, or sexual battery, any evidence of specific instances of a complainant's sexual conduct with individuals other than the alleged perpetrator is not discoverable, unless it is to be offered at a hearing to attack the credibility of the complainant [Gov. Code § 11440.40(a)]. At the hearing, this evidence is presumed inadmissible absent an offer of proof that establishes the following [Gov. Code § 11440.40(b)]:

- The relevance and reliability of the offered evidence.

- The probative value of the evidence offered is not substantially outweighed by the probability that its admission will create substantial danger of undue prejudice or confuse the issue.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsConstitutional RightsSelf-Incrimination PrivilegeConstitutional LawSubstantive Due ProcessPrivacyGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesAttorney-Client PrivilegeGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesClergy CommunicationsGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesDoctor-Patient PrivilegeGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesGovernment PrivilegesOfficial Information PrivilegeGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesMarital PrivilegesGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesPsychotherapist-Patient PrivilegeGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.16

§ 473B.16 Enforcement of Discovery Under the California APA

[1] Motion to Compel Discovery

Gov. Code § 11507.7 provides the remedy for failure to comply with a discovery request under the APA formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.). Any party claiming that the party's request for discovery pursuant to Gov. Code § 11507.6 has not been complied with may serve and file with the administrative law judge a motion to compel discovery. The motion must do the following [Gov. Code § 11507.7(a)]:

- Name as respondent the party refusing or failing to comply with Gov. Code § 11507.6.
- State facts showing that the respondent failed or refused to comply with Gov. Code § 11507.6.
- Describe the matter sought to be discovered.
- Give the reason or reasons why the matter is discoverable under Gov. Code § 11507.6.
- Show that a reasonable and good faith attempt to contact the respondent for an informal resolution has been made.
- Give the ground or grounds of respondent's refusal, as far as known to the moving party.

The motion to compel should contain a clear, complete, and concise statement of each of these items. Because the time for argument and additional evidence may be very limited, the motion, answer, and supporting documents should be complete. For purposes of filing, the motion should be filed with the administrative law judge who has been assigned to hearing the case.

See § 473B.63 for a form of motion to compel discovery.

[2] Serving and Filing the Motion

The motion to compel discovery must be served on the respondent party and filed with the administrative law judge within 15 days after the respondent first evidenced failure or refusal to comply with the request for discovery, within 30 days after the request was made and the respondent party has failed to reply to it, or within another time provided by stipulation, whichever period is longer.

Under case law interpreting the former law in effect prior to July 1, 1997, failure to move to compel compliance within the applicaable time periods could be treated as a waiver of the right to do so [Lax v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 669, 675-676, 172 Cal. Rptr. 258 (failure to file petition to compel discovery within time allowed amounts to waiver of right to get continuance to file petition)].

Although Gov. Code § 11507.7 prescribes no particular method of service, the motion should be served in the same way as a summons in a civil action; the reasoning is that, despite explicit provision, it is reasonable to assume that Legislature intended to refer to normal practice in civil proceedings [see § 473B.63; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10 et seq. (service of summons); Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

[3] Answer and Hearing on Motion to Compel

The hearing on the motion to compel discovery shall be held within 15 days after the motion is made, or a later time that the administrative law judge may on the judge's own motion for good cause determine. The responding party has the right to serve and file a written answer or other response to the motion before or at the time of the hearing [Gov. Code § 11507.7(c)].

Most answers claim that the requested discovery is not discoverable matter under Gov. Code § 11507.6. They may also claim that the requested discovery is privileged, confidential, attorney work product [Gov. Code § 11507.6(f); see § 473B.16[2], [4]], or evidence of a complainant's sexual conduct [Gov. Code § 11440.40; see § 473B.15[6]]. Agencies often claim that the requested information is official information [Evid. Code § 1040; see § 473B.15[5]], or otherwise not discoverable pursuant to a special statute [see Gilbert v. Superior Court (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 161, 167-176, 238 Cal. Rptr. 220 (writ of mandate to compel compliance with subpoenas before administrative hearing denied because records sought were privileged under Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 4514, 5238)].

See § 473B.64 for a form of answer to a motion to compel.

[4] In Camera Inspection

Where the matter sought to be discovered is under the custody or control of the respondent party and the party responding to the motion claims that the matter is not discoverable under Gov. Code § 11507.6 or is privileged, the administrative law judge may order lodged with it matters provided in Evidence Code § 915(b), and may examine the material in camera consistent with Evid. Code § 915(b) [Gov. Code § 11507.7(d)]. For discussion of Evid. Code § 915, see DeMeo, california deposition and discovery practice, Ch. 21, § 21.21[3].

When possible, the responding party should have the material available at the time of the order so that it can be delivered to the judge for examination, if an examination is ordered.

[5] Order Granting or Denying Motion

The administrative law judge will decide the case on the matters examined in camera, the papers filed by the parties, and such oral argument and additional evidence as the administrative law judge may allow [Gov. Code § 11507.7(e)]. Unless otherwise stipulated by the parties, the administrative law judge shall no later than 15 days after the hearing make its order denying or granting the motion. The order shall be in writing setting forth the matters the moving party is entitled to discover under Gov. Code § 11507.6. A copy of the order shall be served forthwith by mail by the administrative law judge on the parties. If the order grants the motion in whole or in part, the order shall not become effective until 10 days after the date the order is served. When the order denies relief to the moving party, the order shall be effective on the date it is served [Gov. Code § 11507.7(f)]. See §§ 473B.65 and 473B.66 for forms of orders granting or denying relief.

[6] Review of Judge's Order

The administrative law judge's order compelling discovery is enforceable by certification to the superior court of facts to justify the contempt sanction [see Gov. Code §§ 11455.10-11455.20]. A court judgment of contempt is not appealable [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a), 1222]. The administrative law judge may also impose monetary sanctions for bad faith tactics, which are reviewable in the same manner as the decision in the proceeding [see Gov. Code § 11455.30; see 25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995), Comments to Gov. Code § 11507.7].

[7] Sanctions

Contempt sanctions can be imposed against a party who fails or refuses, without substantial justification, to comply with a deposition order, discovery request, subpoena, or other order of the presiding officer, or who moves to compel discovery without substantial justification [Gov. Code § 11455.10].

Court enforcement of contempt sanctions uses an order to show cause procedure. The presiding officer or the agency head may certify the facts that justify the contempt sanction against a person to the superior court in and for the county where the proceeding is conducted. The court shall thereupon issue an order directing the person to appear before the court at a specified time and place, and then and there to show cause why the person should not be punished for contempt. The order and a copy of the certified statement shall be served on the person. Upon service of the order and a copy of the certified statement, the court has jurisdiction of the contempt proceeding [Gov. Code § 11455.20(a)]. The contempt procedures, penalties, and purging grounds are the same as those used in the trial of a civil action in the superior court [Gov. Code § 11455.20(b)].

Monetary sanctions are also authorized. The presiding officer may order a party, the party's attorney or other authorized representative, or both to pay reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred by another party as a result of bad faith actions or tactics that are frivolous or solely intended to cause unnecessary delay as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 [Gov. Code § 11455.30(a)]. Bad faith actions or tactics could include failure or refusal to comply with a deposition order, discovery request, subpoena or other order of the presiding officer in discovery, or moving to compel discovery, frivolously or solely intended to cause delay. A person who requests a hearing without legal grounds would not be subject to sanctions under this section unless the request was made in bad faith or solely intended to cause unnecessary delay [see 25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)]. The order, or denial of an order, is subject to judicial review in the same manner as a decision in the proceeding [see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions et seq.]. The order is enforceable in the same manner as a money judgment or by the contempt sanction [Gov. Code § 11455.30(b)].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to contempt, enforcement of money judgments, and sanctions generally, see respectively Ch. 135, Contempt , Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments , and Ch. 510, Sanctions .

In view of potential sanction liability, parties should be careful about refusing or limiting discovery without substantial justification. If counsel or client is determined to resist a discovery request, and if counsel feels that the material sought is not or may not be discoverable, sending a formal notice of noncompliance to the requesting party by certified mail, with plausible reasons for resisting the request, may favorably impress the administrative law judge when he or she is later deciding whether to impose sanctions [see Gov. Code § 11507.6(f) (things not discoverable in APA proceedings); see also § 473B.13].

See § 473B.62 for a form of notice of non-compliance with an administrative discovery request.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & PowersCivil ProcedureSanctionsContemptGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesAttorney-Client PrivilegeGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesGovernment PrivilegesOfficial Information PrivilegeGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.17

§ 473B.17 Non-APA Statutory Discovery

[1] Applicability of Non-California APA Discovery Statutes

Discovery under the APA discovery provisions (Gov. Code § 11507.6) applies only to agency adjudication proceedings under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) [see Gov. Code § 11507.5; Bertch v. Social Welfare Dep't (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 524, 527, 289 P.2d 485 ; for discussion of which agency adjudication proceedings are subject to the formal hearing provision of Chapter 5, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication].

In a few instances, when the APA provisions do not apply, the provisions of the Civil Discovery Act [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2016.010-2016.070] have been made specifically applicable. For example, Educ. Code § 44944(a) makes the act applicable in proceedings for dismissal or suspension of school district employees. Absent such a specific statutory authorization, the act does not apply to administrative proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 2016; Romero v. Hern (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 787, 790, 81 Cal. Rptr. 281] .

The Legislature has also enacted numerous statutes governing administrative discovery in proceedings not covered by the APA. Under these non-APA discovery statutes, the range of discovery provided varies from the right of a civil servant to inspect relevant documents and interview other employees when facing adverse action [Gov. Code § 19574.1; see Gov. Code § 19570 (adverse action defined)], to the right of a school district employee in a suspension or dismissal proceeding to employ the full range of discovery allowed in superior court civil actions [Educ. Code § 44944(a)].

If a specific discovery statute applies to an administrative proceeding, it controls over the APA discovery provisions that might otherwise apply [San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. Superior Court (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 231, 235, 172 Cal. Rptr. 42] .

[2] Investigation and Enforcement

Most of the non-APA discovery provisions are not so much discovery provisions as they are provisions that authorize state officials and administrative boards to use specific discovery techniques to aid in their investigations and in the enforcement of their regulatory programs. The power to employ information-gathering techniques in connection with agency investigations in general is authorized by Gov. Code § 11180 et seq. [see Ch. 471, Investigations by Public

Agencies for detailed discussion of agency investigations]. The following matters are among those subject to special statutes authorizing administrative discovery in connection with administrative investigations and enforcement proceedings:

- Meat and Poultry Inspection Act investigations [Food & Agric. Code § 18906; see Food & Agric. Code § 18650 et seq.].

- Escrow agent hearings and investigations [Fin. Code § 17611].

- Depositions in investigations by the Fish and Game Commission [Fish & Game Code §§ 309, 5934].

- Hearings by the judicial qualification commission [Gov. Code §§ 68752, 68753].

- Hearings by the labor commissioner [Lab. Code § 92].

- Unemployment insurance appeals, proceedings, hearings, or investigations [Unemp. Ins. Code § 1953].

- Investigating powers of commissioner of corporations [Corp. Code § 25531].

- Depositions in investigations or hearings before the Public Utilities Commission [Pub. Util. Code § 1794].

- Teacher suspension or dismissal proceedings [Educ. Code § 44944(a)].

[3] Private Parties

Non-APA statutory discovery is also available to private parties in some administrative proceedings. The following matters are among those subject to statutes that authorize non-California APA administrative discovery for private parties:

- State Personnel Board hearings [Gov. Code § 19574.1; see Nightingale v. State Personnel Board (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 507, 516-518, 102 Cal. Rptr. 758, 498 P.2d 1006 (when civil servant in disciplinary proceeding failed to show good cause for issuance of interrogatories, court declined to decide whether discovery available was limited to right to inspect documents and interview other employees provided by Gov. Code § 19574.1); Ch. 117, Civil Service].

- Depositions in investigations or hearings before the Public Utilities Commission [Pub. Util. Code § 1794; see Ch. 480, Public Utilities].

- Teacher suspension or dismissal proceedings [Educ. Code § 44944(a); see Ch. 512, Schools: Certification, Dismissal, and Related Employment Issues].

- Discovery in workers' compensation proceedings [Lab. Code § 5710; see Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation].

- Depositions in fishway hearings [Fish & Game Code § 5934].

- Discovery in peace officer employment discipline proceedings [Gov. Code § 3303(g); Hinrichs v. County of Orange (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 921, 928-929, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 186 (sheriffs' department employee had right to discovery of non-confidential reports related to officer's misconduct, and sheriff's department had statutory obligation to disclose reports)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsInterrogatoriesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsOral DepositionsCivil ProcedureDiscoveryMethodsRequests for Production & InspectionGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsAdministrative Boards

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.18

§ 473B.18 Nonstatutory Court Authorized Discovery

[1] Availability

If the administrative proceeding is not governed by the California APA, and even if there is no other statutory authority for discovery [see § 473B.18], it nevertheless may be possible to obtain discovery when "modern concepts of administrative adjudication call for common law rules to permit and regulate the use of the agencies' subpoena power to secure prehearing discovery" [Shively v. Stewart (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 475, 479, 55 Cal. Rptr. 217, 421 P.2d 65] . Common law rules have been applied to administrative procedures by court decisions whenever it appears necessary to promote fair hearings and effective judicial review [Shively v. Stewart (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 475, 479, 55 Cal. Rptr. 217, 421 P.2d 65] . For example, discovery is appropriate in state bar disciplinary proceedings [Brotsky v. State Bar (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 287, 298-302, 19 Cal. Rptr. 153, 368 P.2d 697 ; see Ch. 71, Attorney Discipline , for discussion and forms relating to State Bar proceedings].

[2] Governing Law

Shively v. Stewart (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 475, 55 Cal. Rptr. 217, 421 P.2d 65 , is the leading decision regarding common law administrative discovery. This decision arose from an administrative adjudication to revoke the medical licenses of several doctors for performing illegal abortions. The proceeding was brought under the APA before the APA had been amended to provide for discovery. The doctors against whom the proceeding was brought sought subpoenas duces tecum requesting prehearing depositions and production of documents. The Court analogized providing discovery in administrative proceedings to court-developed discovery in criminal cases [Shively v. Stewart (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 475, 478-480, 55 Cal. Rptr. 217, 421 P.2d 65] .

On a showing of good cause and materiality, governed by the standards applicable to civil discovery, and not those for issuing subpoenas duces tecum under Code Civ. Proc. § 1985, the Court allowed subpoenas for the production of any statements made by women named in the accusations and their husbands, and copies of bills, letters, and documents with respect to treatment given the women. Further, the Court allowed depositions of agency employees to enable the doctors to establish good cause for the production of other documents in the agency's files [Shively v. Stewart (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 475, 481-482, 55 Cal. Rptr. 217, 421 P.2d 65] .

The Shively decision did not extend discovery to deposing material witnesses generally [Everett v. Gordon (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 667, 671-673, 72 Cal. Rptr. 379] .

When seeking discovery under Shively, the following considerations are important:

- Shively arose out of a disciplinary proceeding that the Court described as having a punitive character because the agency could prohibit the accused doctors from practicing their profession [Shively v. Stewart (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 475, 480, 55 Cal. Rptr. 217, 421 P.2d 65] .

- Since the enactment of Gov. Code § 11507.6 in 1968, discovery in California APA licensing proceedings (and other California APA proceedings) is exclusively governed by Gov. Code § 11507.6 [Gov. Code § 11507.5; see § 473B.12[1]]. The reasoning in Shively is still valid, but its application is now much more limited to non-APA proceedings.

- Although there is no absolute right to see everything in an agency's files, items need not be admissible in the hearing to be discoverable [Shively v. Stewart (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 475, 481, 55 Cal. Rptr. 217, 421 P.2d 65] .

- A showing of good cause and materiality is required, but this showing is governed by discovery standards [Shively v. Stewart (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 475, 481, 55 Cal. Rptr. 217, 421 P.2d 65 (thus, because a weighing of good cause and materiality according to discovery standards would have entitled a defendant charged with criminal abortion to pretrial discovery of statements by the alleged victims to the police, doctors in a disciplinary hearing were entitled to prehearing discovery of statements by the women treated and their husbands)].

- Shively has been interpreted as allowing depositions only for ascertaining discoverable matter and preserving testimony as in criminal discovery [Everett v. Gordon (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 667, 72 Cal. Rptr. 379 ; Stevenson v. State Bd. of Medical Examiners (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 433, 88 Cal. Rptr. 815 ; Grannis v. Board of Med. Examiners (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 551, 96 Cal. Rptr. 863 ; see Gov. Code § 11190 (any party to departmental hearing has right to attendance of witnesses on his or her behalf at the hearing or on deposition)]. But inspection of documents under Shively, on a showing of good cause and materiality, may extend as far as discovery under Gov. Code § 11507.6 [Romero v. Hern (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 787, 793, 81 Cal. Rptr. 281] .

Finally, governmental agencies do not have to rely on court-created discovery rights. They have extensive investigatory and subpoena power that gives them discovery capabilities for gathering information from both party and nonparty sources [Gov. Code §§ 11180-11191]. The investigative power of agencies is liberally construed [Brovelli v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 524, 527-529, 15 Cal. Rptr. 630, 364 P.2d 462] . Agencies can obtain information even before filing an initial pleading [Gov. Code § 11189. See discussion in § 473B.17; see also Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies , and Ch. 471A, Inspections by Public Agencies].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenas

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473B.19-473B.29

[Reserved]

§§ 473B.19[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.30

§ 473B.30 Federal Constitution

Due process clause. U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.31

§ 473B.31 State Constitution

Due process clause. Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.32

§ 473B.32 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

Accusation. Gov. Code § 11503

Administrative adjudication bill of rights. Gov. Code §§ 11425.10-11425.60

Administrative Law Judges. Gov. Code § 11502

Affidavits. Gov. Code § 11514

Agency decisional authority. Gov. Code § 11440.10

Agencies to which act applies. Gov. Code §§ 11410.10, 11501

Amendment of pleadings. Gov. Code §§ 11507, 11516

Applicability of provisions to statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504.5

Conduct of hearing. Gov. Code § 11512

Consolidation of proceedings. Gov. Code § 11507.3

Contempt. Gov. Code §§ 11455.10-11455.30

Continuances. Gov. Code § 11524

Conversion of proceedings. Gov. Code §§ 11470.10-11470.50

Decision. Gov. Code §§ 11516-11520, 11526

Declaratory decision. Gov. Code §§ 11465.10-11465.70

Definitions of terms. Gov. Code §§ 11405.10-11405.80, 11500

Depositions. Gov. Code § 11511

Discovery. Gov. Code §§ 11507.5-11507.7

Disqualification. Gov. Code §§ 11425.30, 11425.40, 11512

Emergency decision. Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80

Evidence. Gov. Code §§ 11435.10, 11440.40, 11513

Ex parte communications. Gov. Code §§ 11430.10-11430.80

Hearings by electronic means. Gov. Code § 11440.30

Informal hearings. Gov. Code §§ 11445.10-11445.60

Intervention. Gov. Code § 11440.50

Language assistance. Gov. Code §§ 11435.05-11435.65

Judicial review. Gov. Code § 11523

Notice of defense. Gov. Code § 11506

Notice of hearing. Gov. Code § 11509

Oaths. Gov. Code § 11528

Official notice. Gov. Code § 11515

Reconsideration. Gov. Code § 11521

Reporting proceedings. Gov. Code § 11512

Restoration of rights. Gov. Code § 11522

Separate hearings. Gov. Code § 11507.3

Service and notice. Gov. Code § 11440.20

Service of initial pleading. Gov. Code § 11505

Settlement conferences. Gov. Code § 11511.7

Sexual harassment. Gov. Code § 11440.40

Statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504

Subpoenas. Gov. Code §§ 11450.05-11450.50

Time and place of hearing. Gov. Code § 11508

Waiver of rights. Gov. Code § 11415.40

[2] Related Statutes

Affidavit of good cause as required for subpoena duces tecum. Code Civ. Proc. § 1985

Witness served with subpoena as entitled to demand one day's fees and mileage allowance. Code Civ. Proc. § 1987

Witness fees and mileage allowances. Gov. Code §§ 11191, 68093, 68097.2

Right to have subpoena issued. Gov. Code § 11190

Office of Administrative Hearings. Gov. Code §§ 11370.1-11370.5

Board of supervisors of county as empowered to establish county hearing officer. Gov. Code §§ 27720, 27721

Oaths used in civil proceedings. Code Civ. Proc. § 2094

Evidentiary effect of plea of nolo contendere. Penal Code § 1016

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenas

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.33

§ 473B.33 Decisions

[1] General Requirements

Disciplinary action against licensee, finding licensee guilty of gross incompetence, is invalid when administrative record is completely devoid of any statute, rule, regulation, or evidence of an implied standard by which to measure competence of licensee's conduct. Wheeler v. State Bd. of Forestry (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 522, 527-528, 192 Cal. Rptr. 693

Administrative regulations that violate acts of Legislature are void. Selby v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 470, 474, 168 Cal. Rptr. 36

Act in excess of agency's authority under enabling law are void. Frates v. Burnett (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 63, 71, 87 Cal. Rptr. 731

Subject of administrative proceeding is entitled to have statutory procedures strictly followed and fairly construed. California School Employees Assn. v. Personnel Com. of Pajaro Valley Unified School Dist. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 139, 145, 89 Cal. Rptr. 620, 474 P.2d 436

Administrative regulation contrary to enabling law is void. California School Employees Assn. v. Personnel Com. of Pajaro Valley Unified School Dist. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 139, 144, 89 Cal. Rptr. 620, 474 P.2d 436

Agency is not free to ignore its own validly established procedures. Frates v. Burnett (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 63, 71, 87 Cal. Rptr. 731

Reference to Administrative Procedure Act for guidance is proper in case not governed by act or other law. Rudolph v. Athletic Commission (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 1, 12, 1 Cal. Rptr. 898

Requirements of due process. Connolly Development, Inc. v. Superior Court of Merced County (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 803, 818, 823, 132 Cal. Rptr. 477, 553 P.2d 637 ; Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 208-209, 124

Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P.2d 774 ; Beaudreau v. Superior Court (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 448, 458, 121 Cal. Rptr. 585, 535 P.2d 713

[2] Depositions of Witnesses

Issuance of subpoena for taking witness's deposition is discretionary act. Stevenson v. State Bd. of Medical Examiners (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 433, 439, 88 Cal. Rptr. 815

Right to depose witness who will be absent from hearing, in case not governed by the Administrative Procedure Act (hereinafter referred to as "APA"), if agency has subpoena power. Walker Mining Co. v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 257, 262, 95 P.2d 188

[3] Discovery Against Party

Gov. Code §§ 11507.5-11507.7 are exclusive discovery statutes in administrative proceedings; Gov. Code § 11510, governing subpoenas to produce documents and witnesses at administrative hearing, does not provide for discovery prior to administrative hearing. Gilbert v. Superior Court (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 161, 166, 238 Cal. Rptr. 220

Request by attorney to receive service of all papers for client survives dismissal of proceeding to enforce discovery when request withdrawn or nullified, so that subsequent service of second set of interrogatories on attorney is proper. Department of Fair Employment & Housing v. Superior Court (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 149, 152, 171 Cal. Rptr. 863

Right to discovery in case not governed by APA. Shively v. Stewart (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 475, 479-480, 55 Cal. Rptr. 217, 421 P.2d 65

[4] Subpoenas

Administrative subpoenas pursuant to Gov. Code § 11180 et seq. Pating v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 608, 616-618, 182 Cal. Rptr. 20

Court opinion enunciating rule that declaration in support of investigative subpoena duces tecum for production of patient's hospital records must show good cause, including allegations of fact to demonstrate relevance or materiality of patient's medical records to general charges against doctor, and must show that request can be granted without abuse of third party's constitutionally protected right of privacy (Cal. Const., art. I, § 1) is not retroactive. Pating v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 608, 618-620, 182 Cal. Rptr. 20

Issuance of subpoena under APA is ministerial act before hearing and discretionary act after hearing has begun. Shively v. Stewart (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 475, 480-481, 55 Cal. Rptr. 217, 421 P.2d 65

Agency having power to issue subpoena not governed by APA, is required to issue subpoena when requested. McLeod v. Board of Pension Commissioners (1970) 14 Cal. App. 3d 23, 28-29, 94 Cal. Rptr. 58

Witness served with administrative subpoena is entitled to demand one day's fees and mileage allowance. McLeod v. Board of Pension Commissioners (1970) 14 Cal. App. 3d 23, 31, 94 Cal. Rptr. 58

Agency lacks power to enforce its own subpoena. Crocker v. Conrey (1903) 140 Cal. 213, 217, 73 P. 1006

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingDue ProcessAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingRule Application & InterpretationValidityAdministrative LawSeparation of PowersLegislative ControlsScope of Delegated AuthorityConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of Protection

110 of 184 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.34

§ 473B.34 Text References

Judicial Council of California, Tenth Biennial Report (1944)

Witkin, California Evidence, Ch. III, Judicial Notice, §§ 150-191; Ch. X, Witnesses, §§ 787-791; Ch. XII, Introduction of Evidence at Trial, §§ 1223-1275 (2d ed.)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
EvidenceJudicial NoticeGeneral OverviewEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.35

§ 473B.35 Internet References

Office of Administrative Hearings. This site includes: information and location concerning specific OAH offices; an OAH hearing guide; information concerning Administrative Procedure Act statutes, regulations, and proposed regulations; OAH forms; information concerning alternative dispute resolution procedures; and declaratory decisions. http://www.dgs.ca.gov/oah NOTE: On and after July 1, 1998, The OAL is required by Gov. Code § 11340.1(b) to make the full text of the California Code of Regulations, with reference citations and history notes, available on the Internet free of charge.

Office of Administrative Law. This site includes: OAL publications; links to OAL statutes and regulations relating to rulemaking; regulations submitted to the OAL for review, and information for contacting or provding input to the OAL regarding rulemaking. http://www.oal.ca.gov

California Home Page. This site includes links to other sites maintained by numerous state agencies. http://www.ca.gov

Department of Consumer Affairs. This site includes links to sites maintained by many state agencies that are under this department, as well as links to agency sites. http://www.dca.ca.gov

California Courts. This site includes: general information about state court organization and specific court; text of recently filed slip opinions; court minutes and calendars; text of California Rules of Court; Judicial Council forms and other information promulgated by the Judicial Council; links to sites of most Court of Appeal districts, with text of local appellate rules, forms, and internal operating procedures; links to other sites maintained by local trial courts, state government agencies and organizations, federal courts and federal organizations, and other sources of legal information. http://www.courtinfo.ca.gov

California Legislative Information. This site includes: text of constitution, codes, and statutes (including complete text of APA); and information concerning pending legislation. http://www.leginfo.ca.gov

Matthew Bender. This site includes: links to Matthew Bender publications and Shepard's citation service.
http://www.bender.com

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute ResolutionAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsCreation & OrganizationGovernmentsLegislationEnactment

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473B.36-473B.49

[Reserved]

§§ 473B.36[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.50

§ 473B.50 Obtaining and Responding to Administrative Discovery

[1] Ascertain Applicable Law Governing Discovery in the Proceeding

☐ California APA [see § 473B.13].

☐ Other statute [see § 473B.18].

☐ Court [see § 473B.19].

[2] Obtaining Discovery Under the APA

☐ Request for discovery, to another party, to obtain witness names and address and specified statement and writings in possession or control of that party [Gov. Code § 11507.6; see § 473B.14].

☐ Request must be made in writing after filing notice of defense, within 30 days after agency filing of initial pleading, and before hearing [Gov. Code § 11507.6; see § 473B.14].

☐ If other party refuses or fails to comply with request for discovery, and such refusal or failure is not based on valid privilege or protection, serve and file motion with ALJ to compel discovery, within 15 days after first evidence of refusal or failure, within 30 days after service of request, or within time stipulated, whichever is longer [Gov. Code § 11507.7; see § 473B.16].

☐ If order compelling compliance is obtained by other party still does not comply, utilize sanction procedure [see § 473B.17].

[3] Complying With Request for Administrative Discovery Under the APA

☐ Determine extent of discovery to be provided: witness names and address and specified writings or statements in party's possession or control, not otherwise privileged from disclosure or protected by attorney work product doctrine [Gov. Code § 11507.6; see §§ 473B.14, 473B.15].

☐ Comply or make objection to compliance within time required [Gov. Code § 11507.6; see § 473B.15].

☐ If other party makes motion to compel, prepare response to motion, giving basis or bases for refusal, for example, evidentiary privilege or attorney work product protection [Gov. Code § 11507.7; see § 473B.16].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing Activity

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.51

§ 473B.51 Initiation of Discovery Under the APA

[1] Notice of Defense

☐ File notice of defense [Gov. Code § 11507.6; see Gov. Code § 11506(c); see also § 473B.14[2][b]; for further discussion, see § 473A.11[6]; for a form, see § 473A.54].

[2] Request for Discovery

☐ Prepare and deliver written request for discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.6; see §§ 473B.12[3], 473B.14[1]; for a form, see § 473B.61].

☐ Request may be filed with the notice of defense [see § 473B.14[2][b]].

☐ Timing of request.

☐ Make request before hearing and within 30 days after agency serves initial pleading [Gov. Code § 11570.6; see § 473B.14[2][a]].

☐ Additional agency pleadings.

☐ Request discovery within 15 days of service of additional agency pleading (for example, amended or supplemental accusation or statement of issues) [Gov. Code § 11570.6; see § 473B.14[2][a]].

[3] Service of Written Request

☐ Mail copy to party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013; see also § 473B.14[3]].

[4] Noncompliance with Request for Discovery-Petitioner's Option

☐ Prepare motion to compel discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.7(a); § 473B.16; for a form, see § 473B.63].

☐ Attach supporting declaration and memorandum of points and authorities (optional) [see § 473B.63[3]].

☐ Prepare, and file with motion, order granting motion to compel discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.7(f); for a form, see § 473B.65].

☐ Serve and file motion with ALJ within whichever period of the following is longer [see Gov. Code § 11507.7(b); Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10; see also § 473B.16[2]]:

☐ Fifteen days after respondent first evidenced failure or refusal to comply.

☐ Thirty days after request was made.

☐ Another time provided for by stipulation.

☐ Hearing on motion to compel will be held within 15 days after motion is made [Gov. Code § 11507.7(c); see § 473B.16[3]].

[5] Respondent's Options

☐ Noncompliance with request for discovery.

☐ Prepare notice of noncompliance [Gov. Code § 11507.6; for a form, see § 473B.62].

☐ Send to requesting party by certified mail [see § 473B.16[7]].

☐ Answer to motion to compel discovery.

☐ Prepare answer to motion to compel discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.7(c); see § 473B.16[3]; for a form, see § 473B.64].

☐ Prepare, and file with answer, order denying motion to compel discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.7(f); for a form, see § 473B.66].

☐ File before or at time of hearing [Gov. Code § 11507.7(c); see § 473B.16[3]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing Activity

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.52

§ 473B.52 Subpoena and Subpoena Duces Tecum

[1] Requesting Subpoena

☐ Party requests subpoena or subpoena duces tecum from agency or presiding officer [Gov. Code § 11450.20(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985 et seq.; see also § 473B.12[4][c]], or ☐ Respondent's attorney of record may issue [Gov. Code § 11450.20(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985 et seq.; see also § 473B.12[4][c]].

[2] Service

☐ Serve according to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1987, 1988 [Gov. Code § 11450.20(b); see § 473B.12[4][d]], or

☐ Deliver by certified mail return receipt requested, or

☐ By messenger.

☐ Witness must acknowledge receipt of subpoena.

☐ Sender must make written notation of acknowledgment.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing Activity

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.53

§ 473B.53 Deposition of Unavailable Witness Under APA Guidelines

[1] Petition for Deposition of Unavailable Witness

☐ Prepare petition [Gov. Code § 11511; see § 473B.12[2]]; for a form see, § 473B.60].

☐ Verify petition [see Gov. Code § 11511].

[2] Filing

☐ File petition with ALJ, or

☐ File with agency if ALJ has not been appointed.

[3] Service

☐ Serve copy of petition and notice of hearing on other parties [Gov. Code § 15111; see § 473B.12[2]].

☐ Serve at least 10 days before hearing.

[4] Order Issued

☐ Proceed as though in a civil action [see § 473B.60[4]; Ch. 190- 200, Discovery].

☐ Witness resides outside of California.

☐ Agency must obtain court order to take deposition [Gov. Code § 15111; see § 473B.12[2]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law Judges

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473B.54-473B.59

[Reserved]

§§ 473B.54[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART V. FORMS

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.60

§ 473B.60 Petition to Take Deposition of Unavailable Witness [Gov. Code § 11511]

[1] FORM Petition to Take Deposition of Unavailable Witness [Gov. Code § 11511]

Petition for Order to Take Deposition [Gov. Code § 11511]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

In the Matter of _____ [name], Respondent.	)))))	NO. _____ PETITION FOR ORDER TO TAKE DEPOSITION

Respondent represents as follows:

1. _____ [Nature of pending proceeding, e.g., This proceeding was begun by _____ (name of agency or complainant) pursuant to Section _____ (11503 or 11504) of the Government Code for the purpose of _____ (specify, in statutory language)].

2. The testimony of _____[name], whose address is _____[specify], is material to the issues in this proceeding in that _____[specify].

3. _____[Name] _____ [will be unable or cannot be compelled] to attend the hearing in this proceeding because _____[specify].

WHEREFORE, respondent requests that an order be issued requiring _____[name] to appear and testify before _____[name of officer who will take deposition], _____ [title, e.g., a notary public or other statement showing person's qualification to take deposition].

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Respondent

VERIFICATION

I, _____[name], am the petitioner in the above-entitled proceeding. I have read the foregoing or petition and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein stated on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a petition for use by the respondent wishing to take the deposition of a witness who will be unavailable at the hearing [Gov. Code § 11511; see § 473B.12[2] for further discussion].

[3] Verification

The petition must be verified and must contain (1) a statement of the nature of the pending proceeding, (2) the name and address of the witness whose testimony is desired, (3) a showing of the materiality of his or her testimony, (4) a showing that he or she will be unable to attend the hearing or cannot be compelled to attend, and (5) a request for an order requiring the witness to appear and testify before an officer named in the petition for that purpose [Gov. Code § 11511].

The purpose of identifying in the petition the person before whom the deposition will be given is, evidently, to facilitate the obtaining of a commission in the event one is needed. The taking of the deposition by a person qualified to do so but not identified in the petition would appear to be an inconsequential irregularity, at least when the deposition is taken within the state and no actual prejudice is shown [see Reimel v. House (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 780, 782-787, 74 Cal. Rptr. 345] .

[4] Procedure

The petition is filed with the administrative law judge, or, if an administrative law judge has not been appointed, with the agency. The petitioner must serve notice of hearing and a copy of the petition on the other parties at least 10 days before the hearing. If the order is issued, the respondent then proceeds as though in a civil action. If the witness resides outside the state, the agency is required, after the administrative law judge, or the agency, has issued its order, to obtain a court order for the taking of the deposition. A proceeding for this purpose would be maintained in the superior court in Sacramento County [Gov. Code § 11511]. The reason for this requirement is that many states enforce commissions to take depositions only if the commissions issue from the court of a sister state [see Judicial Council of California, 10th Biennial Report (1944), pages 18, 19, quoted in Reimel v. House (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 780, 784, 74 Cal. Rptr. 345]
.

[5] Cross References

For discussion of the provision under Gov. Code § 11511 for taking the deposition of a witness who will be unavailable at the hearing, see § 473B.12[2].

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART V. FORMS

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.61

§ 473B.61 Request for Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.6]

[1] FORM Request for Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.6]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

	)
In the Matter of	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	REQUEST FOR DISCOVERY
Respondent.	)
	)

_____

To _____[agency or person]:

Pursuant to Section 11507.6 of the Government Code, Respondent _____[name] requests that you furnish the following to the undersigned at _____[address], at the earliest possible time after receiving this request, but in no event later than 30 days after receipt of this request absent a stipulation extending that time:

1. The names and addresses of witnesses to the extent known to you, including, but not limited to, those whom you intend to call to testify at the hearing.

2. The following statement or writings, for inspection or copying, or copies thereof:

a. _____ [List here and in following paragraphs the items specified in Gov. Code § 11507.6, using general descriptions, e.g., Any statement pertaining to the subject matter of this proceeding, made by any party to any other party or person, which is in your possession or custody or under your control].

b. etc.

_____ [date]

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Respondent

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a respondent in an agency adjudication under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) to obtain prehearing discovery from the complaining agency under Gov. Code § 11507.6.

[3] Content of Request

The request for discovery must be written, but there is no other explicit requirements as to form or content [see Gov. Code § 11507.6]. For purposes of the record, however, the request should be formulated in the fashion of this form, that is, a paper to be filed in the proceeding. The content will vary according to what information the requesting party wants. For listing of the specific items discoverable under Gov. Code § 11507.6, see § 473B.14[1].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART V. FORMS

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.62

§ 473B.62 Notice of Noncompliance With Request for Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.6]

[1] FORM Notice of Noncompliance With Request for Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.6]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

	)
In the Matter of	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	NOTICE OF NONCOMPLIANCE WITH RE-
Respondent.	)	QUEST FOR DISCOVERY
	)

_____

To _____[party requesting discovery]:

Your request for discovery dated _____, will not be complied with in the following respects, for the reason that the _____[information requested or _____ (writing or thing) sought to be _____ (inspected or copied) [is privileged from disclosure by law [and protected as an attorney's work product in that _____ (specify)]:

1. _____ [In this and sequential paragraphs, as needed, list respects in which compliance is refused, e.g., Medical records pertaining to _____ (name) will not be made available for inspection or copying _____ (because disclosure of such records is prohibited by Section 994 of the Evidence Code)].

2. etc.

_____ [date]

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Respondent

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a respondent in an agency adjudication under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), to provide notice to the complaining agency (or other party requesting discovery), of noncompliance based on an evidentiary privilege or other reason for nondisclosure or noncompliance.

[3] Cross References

For discussion of when sanctions will be imposed for failure to comply with a discovery request, see § 473B.16[7].

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART V. FORMS

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.63

§ 473B.63 Motion to Compel Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.7]

[1] FORM Motion to Compel Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.7]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

In the Matter of _____ [name], Respondent.	)))))	NO. _____ MOTION TO COMPEL DISCOVERY

Moving Party respectfully represents:

1. Moving Party and respondent are parties in an administrative proceeding pending before the _____[agency] entitled _____[name of proceeding], No. _____. Procedural matters in that proceeding are governed by Government Code Sections 11500-11529 of the Administrative Procedure Act.

2. Within the time required by Section 11507.6 of the Government Code, the moving party made a written request to _____[specify opposing party] for discovery pursuant to that section. A copy of that request is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof. The matters sought to be discovered are described in Exhibit A.

3. The matters sought to be discovered are specified in Section 11507.6 of the Government Code as discoverable matters, subject only to such protection against disclosure as the law affords on principles of privilege or confidentiality or under the doctrine of attorney's work product. The matters requested are discoverable in that [specify reasons].

4. Respondent has failed and refused to comply with the request for discovery in that _____[state facts showing how respondent has failed or refused to comply; specify extent of failure to comply].

5. Moving Party has made a reasonable and good faith attempt to contact the respondent for an informal resolution of the issue and [specify facts relating to the attempt and why informal resolution was not successful or did not occur].

6. Respondent has [failed or refused] to comply with the request for discovery _____ [for reasons unknown to petitioner or on the ground(s), as stated by respondent, that _____ (specify)].

WHEREFORE, moving party prays that an order be issued, as follows:

1. That moving party is entitled to prompt and effective discovery of all matters referred to in the request [and not heretofore discovered]; and

2. That respondent be ordered to comply fully with the request forthwith.

Respectfully submitted,_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Moving Party

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by respondent (or other party) in an agency adjudication under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) to move to compel compliance with a previously served request for discovery under Gov. Code § 11507.6.

[3] Supporting Papers

Gov. Code § 11507.7, providing for the motion to compel, does not require verification or other support, but it is recommended that the motion be supported by a declaration or memorandum or points and authorities, or both, stating factual and legal reasons why compliance with the request should be ordered.

[4] Service and Filing

The motion should be served and filed within one of the following: (1) 15 days after the respondent first evidenced failure or refusal to comply with Gov. Code § 11507.6; (2) within 30 days after the request was made and the party has failed to reply to the request; or (3) within another time provided by stipulation, whichever period is longer [see Gov. Code § 11507.7(b)].

Although the method of service is not prescribed in Gov. Code § 11507.7, it is reasonable to assume that service should be made as in any other civil proceeding.

[5] Cross References

For discussion and forms relating to affidavits and declarations under penalty of perjury in civil actions generally, see

Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations .

For discussion and forms relating to memoranda of points and authorities in civil law and motions generally, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

For discussion and forms relating to service of papers, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART V. FORMS

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.64

§ 473B.64 Answer to Motion to Compel Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.7(c)]

[1] FORM Answer to Motion to Compel Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.7(c)]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

In the Matter of _____ [name], Respondent.	)))))	NO. _____ ANSWER TO MOTION TO COMPEL DISCOVERY

Respondent respectfully answers the motion as follows:

1. The allegations of Paragraph _____ [number] are true.

2. The allegations of Paragraph _____ [number] are true, except that it is not true that _____[specify].

3. Except as hereinabove admitted, the allegations of the motion are denied.

4. The following matters referred to in the motion are not discoverable under Section 11507.6 of the Government Code, for the reasons specified [in the following paragraph(s) state the reasons based on statutory or decisional law that the matters are not discoverable despite the provisions of Gov. Code § 11507.6]:

a. _____ [Specify item] is privileged from disclosure by Section _____ [number] of the Evidence [or other code as may be applicable] Code.

b. _____ [Item] is confidential and not subject to discovery under the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of _____ [name and citation of case].

c. _____ [Item] is the work product of respondent's attorney and as such is protected from discovery.

5. On _____[date], respondent notified moving party in writing that respondent would not comply with moving party's request for discovery with respect to the matters mentioned in Paragraph 4 above, for the reasons therein stated. A copy of that notice is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof.

WHEREFORE, respondent prays that the moving party be denied [any relief or any discovery as to the items specified in this answer] and that his/her motion be accordingly denied [as to the items specified in this answer].

Respectfully submitted,_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for _____ [status and name of respondent or other answering party]

[Verification. See § 473B.60.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of answer in [1], above, is for use by the respondent in an administrative proceeding for compliance with a request for discovery. See § 473B.16 for discussion of legal requirements for this proceeding.

[3] Supporting Papers

The same considerations with respect to supporting papers offering factual and legal support apply to the answer as well as to the motion to compel. See § 473B.63[3].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART V. FORMS

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.65

§ 473B.65 Order Granting Motion to Compel Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.7(f)]

[1] FORM Order Granting Motion to Compel Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.7(f)]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

In the Matter of _____ [name], Respondent.	)))))	NO. _____ ORDER

The motion of _____[name], moving party, pursuant to Section 11507.7 of the Government Code, to compel discovery in an administrative proceeding came on regularly for hearing on _____[date], the Honorable _____[name], Administrative Law Judge, presiding. Moving party appeared by his/her attorney, _____[name]; respondent appeared by his/her attorney, _____[name]. The administrative law judge has reviewed the and papers on file herein [and the evidence produced at the hearing] and has considered arguments of counsel.

NOW THEREFORE, IT IS ORDERED that respondent comply fully, completely, in good faith, and forthwith with the request for discovery made to respondent by moving party on _____[date], a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof, by furnishing the following information to moving party and permitting moving party to inspect and copy the following writings and things:

1. _____[Here, and in subsequently numbered paragraphs, list information, writings, and things].

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that respondent's claim of privilege is overruled and disallowed as to each of the foregoing.

[On proof made to the satisfaction of the administrative law judge, the judge finds that respondent failed or refused without substantial justification to comply with the requirements of Section 11507.6 of the Government Code.

THEREFORE IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that moving party have and recover from respondent the sum of $_____ as and for a reasonable attorney's fee and the sum of $_____ as and for costs herein incurred.]

_____[date]

_____ [signature]

Administrative Law Judge

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by the respondent (or other party) in an agency adjudication under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), who has brought a motion to compel administrative discovery under Gov. Code §§ 11507.6, 11507.7. The form is for submission to the ALJ for use as the order granting the motion.

[3] Cross References

For a discussion of enforcing discovery requests under the APA, see § 473B.16.

For a form of a motion to compel discovery, see § 473B.63.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART V. FORMS

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.66

§ 473B.66 Order Denying Motion to Compel Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.7(f)]

[1] FORM Order Denying Motion to Compel Discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.7(f)]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

	)
In the Matter of	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ORDER
Respondent.	)
	)

_____

The motion of _____[name], moving party, pursuant to Section 11507.7 of the Government Code, to compel discovery in an administrative proceeding came on regularly for hearing on _____[date], the Honorable _____[name], Administrative Law Judge, presiding. Moving party appeared by his/her attorney, _____[name]; respondent appeared by his/her attorney, _____[name]. The administrative law judge has reviewed the and papers on file herein [and the evidence produced at the hearing] and has considered arguments of counsel.

NOW, THEREFORE, IT IS ORDERED that moving party be and hereby is denied any relief under the motion and that the motion is dismissed.

[On proof made to the satisfaction of the administrative law judge, the judge finds that moving party filed the motion to compel discovery without substantial justification.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that respondent have and recover from moving party the sum of $_____ as and for a reasonable attorney's fee and the sum of $_____ as and for costs herein incurred.]

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

Administrative law judge

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by the respondent (or other party) in an agency adjudication under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), who has opposed a motion to compel administrative discovery under Gov. Code §§ 11507.6, 11507.7. The form is for submission to the ALJ for use as the order denying the motion.

[3] Cross References

For a discussion of enforcing discovery under the APA, see § 473B.16.

For a form of an answer to a motion to compel discovery, see § 473B.64.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473B DISCOVERY IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART V. FORMS

41A-473B California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473B.67

§ 473B.67 Order to Show Cause In Re Contempt [Gov. Code § 11455.20]

[1] FORM Order to Show Cause In Re Contempt [Gov. Code § 11455.20]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Petitioner,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE IN RE CONTEMPT
Respondent.	)
	)
	)

To _____[name], above-named respondent:

YOU ARE HEREBY ORDERED to appear before the above-entitled court [in _____ (Department or Division)_____ of], located at _____[name of building, street address, and city], on _____, [date and time], then and there to show cause, if any you have, why you should not be punished for contempt based on the facts set forth in the certified statement attached hereto as Exhibit A to the Order To Show Cause.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

The form of order to show cause in [1], above, is used for proceeding to enforce contempt sanctions in the Superior Court against a party to an agency adjudication under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) for failure to comply with an order to provide discovery as required under Gov. Code §§ 11507.6 and 11507.7 [Gov. Code §§ 11455.10(e), 11455.20].

[3] Cross References

For a discussion of the legal requirements that must be established before sanctions will be imposed for failure to comply with a discovery request, see § 473B.16[7].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 473C.syn

§ 473C.syn Synopsis to Chapter 473C: PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS

§ 473C.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 473C.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

[2] Judicial Review

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

§§ 473C.03-473C.09 [Reserved]

§ 473C.10 Governing Law

[1] APA Requirements

[2] Office of Administrative Hearings Regulations Governing Hearing Procedures

§ 473C.11 "Demurrer" or Challenge to Sufficiency of Agency Pleading

§ 473C.12 Motions for Consolidation or Severance

[1] Motions to Consolidate Under the APA

[2] Motion to Consolidate Non-APA Proceedings

[3] Agency Discretion to Grant Consolidation

[a] Consolidation Is Favored But Discretionary

[b] Exceptions: Consolidation Required or Not Available

[4] Motions to Sever

[5] Procedure for Motion to Sever or Consolidate

§ 473C.13 Motions to Dismiss

[1] Dismissal for Failure to State Prima Facie Case

[2] Dismissal by Agency

[3] Voluntary Dismissal by Applicant for License or Permit

§ 473C.14 Other Prehearing Motions

[1] Making and Arguing Prehearing Motions

[2] Motion to Exclude Respondent During Testimony of Minor Who Is Alleged Victim of Sexual Abuse

[3] Motions to Compel Release of Confidential Records

[4] Motions for Change in Place of Hearing

[a] Nature of Motion

[b] Place of Hearing

[c] Grounds for Motion

[d] Procedure for Motion

[e] Discretion to Grant or Deny

[5] Motions in Limine

[6] Motions to Stay, Dismiss, or Continue Action Due to Bankruptcy

§ 473C.15 Continuances

[1] Definition

[2] Authority

[3] Hearing Schedules and Strict Construction of OAH Continuance Policy

[4] Grounds for Continuance

[a] Good Cause Showing Required

[b] OAH Continuance Policy

[i] Grounds Listed in OAH Continuance Policy as Constituting Good Cause

[ii] Establishing Good Cause

[c] Related Judicial Proceedings as Basis for Continuance

[i] Civil Actions

[ii] Criminal Cases

[5] Procrastination or Lack of Preparation as Grounds for Denial of Continuance

[6] Discretion of ALJ

[a] Discretion to Grant or Deny Continuance

[b] Abuse of Discretion

[7] Procedure for Requesting Continuance

[a] Who May Grant a Continuance

[b] When to Request Continuance

[c] Making the Request

[d] Partial Continuance

[e] Poll of Counsel, Ruling, and Rescheduling

[f] Oral Argument

[8] Judicial Review of Denial of Application for Continuance

[9] Notice of Continued Hearing

§§ 473C.16-473C.19 [Reserved]

§ 473C.20 Prehearing Conferences

[1] Background

[2] Provisions of Governing Statute

[a] Motion for Conference and Notice of Conference

[b] Subject Matter of Conference

[c] Conduct of Prehearing Conference

[d] Conversion of Prehearing Conference Into Alternative Dispute Resolution or Informal Hearing Procedure by Consent of Parties

[e] Prehearing Orders

[3] Case Management Program Criteria

[4] Case Management Program Procedures

[a] Scheduling Conference and OAH Notice Form

[b] Preparation for Conference and Attendance of Trial Counsel

[c] Stipulations and Admissions

[d] Exhibits

[e] Witnesses

[i] Witness Lists

[ii] Expert Witnesses

[iii] Estimated Length of Testimony and Summary of Testimony

[iv] Special Arrangements

[v] Rulings on Identity and Number and Motions to Exclude

[f] Prehearing Orders

[i] Requirement of Order and Reporting

[ii] Briefs

[iii] Judicial Review of Prehearing Order as Final Administrative Order

[5] Responsibility of Administrative Law Judge in Case Management Program

§ 473C.21 Negotiation and Settlement

[1] Settlement Conferences

[a] Availability of Formal Conference With ALJ

[b] Assignment to ALJ

[c] Scheduling, Notice, and Preparation

[d] Timing of Settlement Negotiations

[2] Agency Authority to Settle

[3] Disciplinary Guidelines

[4] Model Disciplinary Orders

[5] Costs or Restitution as Condition of Settlement

[6] Diversion Programs

[7] Procedures for Implementing Settlement

[8] Alternative Dispute Resolution Procedures

[9] Informal Hearing Procedures

§§ 473C.22-473C.29 [Reserved]

§ 473C.30 Federal Constitution

§ 473C.31 State Constitution

§ 473C.32 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

[2] Related Statutes

§ 473C.33 Decisions

[1] Consolidation and Severance

[2] Continuances

[3] Demurrer

[4] Nonsuit

[5] Setting for Hearing

§ 473C.34 Internet References

§§ 473C.35-473B.39 [Reserved]

§ 473C.40 Prehearing Conference

[1] Motion for Prehearing Conference

[2] Preparation for Prehearing Conference

§ 473C.41 Settlement Conferences

[1] Preparation

[2] Implementation of Settlement

§ 473C.42 Motion for Change in Place of Hearing

[1] Motion

§ 473C.43 Requesting a Continuance

[1] Timing of Request

[2] Where to Make Request

[3] Oral Argument

[4] Continuance by Stipulation

[5] Partial Continuance

[6] Judicial Review of Denial of Continuance

§ 473C.44 Miscellaneous Prehearing Motions

[1] Formal APA Hearings

[2] Non-APA Proceedings

§§ 473C.45-473C.49 [Reserved]

§ 473C.50 Motion for Order Setting Matter for Prehearing Conference and Supporting Declaration [Gov. Code § 11511.5(a)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

[3] Memorandum

[4] Cross References

§ 473C.51 Order for Prehearing Conference [Gov. Code § 11511.5(e)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.01

§ 473C.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter provides a discussion of prehearing motions and conferences in California public administrative law. The legal discussion in Part II includes the following:

- Subpart A discusses prehearing motions and conferences including motions to consolidate and sever, demurrers, motions to dismiss, and motions for continuance [see §§ 473C.10 -473C.15].

- Subpart B discusses prehearing conferences, negotiation, and settlement [see §§ 473C.20 -473C.22].

Part V includes a forms of motion and declaration for an order setting a matter for a prehearing conference [see § 473C.50] and a form of order setting the conference [see § 473C.51].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing Activity

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.02

§ 473C.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

For general discussion and overview of agency adjudication under the Administrative Procedure Act (APA), see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication .

For related discussion and forms providing coverage of the other stages of an agency adjudication under the formal hearing provisions of the APA, see:

- Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication .
- Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications .
- Ch. 473D, Prehearing Preparations in Agency Adjudications .
- Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges .
- Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings .
- Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions .

For related discussion and forms providing more detailed coverage of adjudication methods under the APA other than that of formal hearing, see Ch. 473H, Alternative Adminstrative Adjudication Procedures .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to licensing agencies, including licensing adjudications, see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies .

[2] Judicial Review

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to review by California courts of agency adjudications, see:

- Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions .
- Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions .
- Ch. 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions .
- Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions .

For other related discussion and forms relating to judicial review generally, see:

- Ch. 40 et seq., Appeal: An Overview, through Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review (discussion and forms relating to civil appeals).
- Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of orders by extraordinary writ of mandate or prohibition).
- Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of civil proceedings by extraordinary writ of review).

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

For related discussion of California public administrative law generally, including discussion of public agency functions and powers (including adjudicative or quasi-judicial powers), and organization generally, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law (for general discussion of judicial power, see § 470.12[5]). For detailed discussion of the general procedures imposed in agency proceedings by constitutional due process and related statutory requirements, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies .

For discussion and forms relating to the law governing access to and conduct of meetings by California public agencies, see Ch. 470B, Public Agency Meetings .

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the law governing disclosure of public records under the California Public Records Act [Cal. Gov. Code §§ 6250 et seq.], see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to agency investigations and inspections, see:

- Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies .
- Ch. 471A, Inspections by Public Agencies .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to the legislative or rulemaking functions of California public agencies, including judicial review of these functions, see:

- Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules .
- Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures .
- Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking .

For additional cross references to coverage of particular public agencies, see § 470.02[2].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeInspectionsAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473C.03-473C.09

[Reserved]

§§ 473C.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Prehearing Motions and Continuances

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.10

§ 473C.10 Governing Law

[1] APA Requirements

Prehearing motions and conferences for agency adjudications are governed by various statutes under the APA formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), by statute relating to specific agency proceedings, and by decisional law [see, e.g., Gov. Code § 11507.3 (consolidation in APA hearings); Pub. Util. Code § 1703 (consolidation in PUC proceedings); Bostick v. Martin (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 179, 183, 55 Cal. Rptr. 322 (consolidation in other agency proceedings)].

[2] Office of Administrative Hearings Regulations Governing Hearing Procedures

The Office of Administrative Hearings adopted regulations [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1440 (1997)] to govern hearing procedures in hearings conducted before OAH administrative law judges [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1000 (1998)]. The regulations cover the subjects of general APA hearing procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1046 (1998)], special hearing procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1100-1148 (1997)], alternative dispute resolution procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1200-1292 (1999)], arbitration procedures for state contract act contract claims [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1300-1393 (1997)], and protest arbitration procedures 1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1440 (1998)]. The basic purpose [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1000 (1998)], definitions [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1002 (1998)], and principles of interpretation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1004 (1998)], are set forth in specific regulations. The regulations that are applicable to Ch. 473C, Agency Pre hearing Procedures, include the following: ex parte applications for temporary or interim orders [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1012 (1998)]; consolidated proceedings and separate hearings [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1016 (1998)]; motion for continuance of hearing [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1042 (1998)]; motions [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1022 (1998)]; subpoenas and motion for a protective order [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1024 (1998)]; pre hearing conferences [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1026 (1998)]; settlement conferences and settlements [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1028 (1998)]; and peremptory challenges [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1034 (1998)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute ResolutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing Activity

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Prehearing Motions and Continuances

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.11

§ 473C.11 "Demurrer" or Challenge to Sufficiency of Agency Pleading

In agency adjudications under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), the responding party may plead a "general demurrer" (i.e., object to the sufficiency of the accusation or statement of issues on the ground that it does not state acts or omissions upon which the agency may proceed) or a "special demurrer" (i.e., object on the ground of uncertainty or indefiniteness) pursuant to Gov. Code § 11506(a)(2),(3)]. These objections must be raised in the respondent's notice of defense [see Gov. Code § 11506]. For further discussion of the notice of defense, and specifically of the "demurrer" objections of Gov. Code § 11506(a)(2),(3), see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication, §§ 473A.11[6], [13], 473A.54. For discussion of these objections in non-APA proceedings, see § 473.11[13].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing Activity

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Prehearing Motions and Continuances

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.12

§ 473C.12 Motions for Consolidation or Severance

[1] Motions to Consolidate Under the APA

Gov. Code § 11507.3 provides for consolidation and severance of administrative adjudicative proceedings conducted under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.). For discussion regarding when an agency adjudication is subject to the APA's formal hearing provisions, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication .

When proceedings that involve a common question of law or fact are pending, the administrative law judge may order a joint hearing of any or all the matters at issue in the proceedings. This order can be based on the motion of a party, or on the administrative law judge's own motion. The administrative law judge may order all the proceedings consolidated and may make orders concerning the procedure that may tend to avoid unnecessary costs or delay [Gov. Code § 11507.3(a)].

Gov. Code § 11507.3 is based upon Code Civ. Proc. § 1048, and is broad enough to enable related cases to be consolidated in a single proceeding even if they were initiated before separate agencies [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions (for discussion and forms relating to consolidation and severance in civil actions generally)]. Thus, an agency may conduct a consolidated hearing when more than one of its licensees have allegedly engaged in common activities that are grounds for discipline, for example, the Department of Real Estate may file a consolidated accusation against licensed mortgage loan brokers, salespersons, and brokers involved in a single fraudulent transaction. Similarly, separate agencies may now file a consolidated accusation against a single respondent who comes within the jurisdiction of more than one agency. For example, the filing of fraudulent Medi-Cal claims by a physician may be grounds for suspension of that provider by the Department of Health Services [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 14123 (grounds for suspension), 14124 (notice of Medi-Cal suspension to appropriate state licensing agency)] as well as grounds for discipline by the Board of Medical Quality Assurance [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2004, 2220-2222, 2227-2228, 2234 (disciplinary provisions for unprofessional conduct)]. The latter type of consolidation was not available under the former APA provisions in effect prior to July 1, 1997.

[2] Motion to Consolidate Non-APA Proceedings

In an agency adjudication not subject to the APA's formal hearing provisions [see [1], above], the standards used in civil court actions may be applied, and adjudications may be consolidated at the discretion of the agency when they have common issues of law or fact or involve the same respondent [Bostick v. Martin (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 179, 183, 55 Cal. Rptr. 322 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1048 and discussion in Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions].

Some agencies have express authority, outside the APA, to exercise discretion in consolidating hearings [see, e.g., Pub. Util. Code § 1703 (PUC); Ch. 480, Public Utilities].

For agencies that are not subject to Gov. Code § 11507.3, it is fair to say that many agencies will grant requests for consolidation because it saves time. To avoid wasting the time of all concerned, motions to consolidate should be made as early as possible. Motions should be based on the following grounds under the general civil procedure set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 1048:

- The identity of the law, facts, or parties between or among the proceedings.
- Possible prejudice to the parties.
- The complexity of the issues.
- Possible delays.
- Convenience and economy.

For discussion and forms relating to consolidation in civil actions generally, see Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions .

[3] Agency Discretion to Grant Consolidation

[a] Consolidation Is Favored But Discretionary

The decision to consolidate or to refuse to consolidate matters for hearing is within the discretion of the administrative law judge under Gov. Code § 11507.3(a). In non-APA hearings it is within the discretion of the agency [Bostick v. Martin (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 179, 183, 55 Cal. Rptr. 322] .

Agencies usually favor consolidation and are generally inclined to grant it when a timely request is made, because consolidation saves time and expense. Other than the provisions of Gov. Code § 11507.3(a), there are two limits on the scope of the agency's discretion to grant or deny consolidation, discussed in [b], below.

[b] Exceptions: Consolidation Required or Not Available

Although the decision to consolidate or to refuse to consolidate matters for hearing is within the discretion of the administrative law judge under Gov.Code § 11507.3(a), and otherwise, within the discretion of the agency [Bostick v. Martin (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 179, 183, 55 Cal. Rptr. 322] , this discretion is subject to limits. One such limit is the principle known as the Ashbacker doctrine from Ashbacker Radio Corp. v. Federal Com. Com. [Ashbacker Radio Corp. v. Federal Com. Com. (1945) 326 U.S. 327, 66 S. Ct. 148, 90 L. Ed. 108] , which held that when a hearing will result in the allocation of a single license that constitutes a business opportunity, competing applicants must be considered in a consolidated proceeding [Ashbacker Radio Corp. v. Federal Com. Com. (1945) 326 U.S. 327, 333, 66 S. Ct. 148, 90 L. Ed. 108] . Ashbacker was cited with approval in Bostick v. Martin (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 179, 55 Cal. Rptr. 322 , which concerned mutually exclusive applications for a single opportunity to establish a savings and loan company in a designated area [Bostick v. Martin (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 179, 183, 55 Cal. Rptr. 322] .

Note also that, as distinguished from a consolidation of several named parties, there can be no class-action type proceeding involving the representation of similarly situated but absent class members. The APA lacks any provision for handling a proceeding involving a class of similarly situated individuals, such as, for example, procedures to give notice to absent class members, and is therefore constitutionally inadequate for class-action type hearings [Rose v. City of Hayward (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 926, 936, 179 Cal. Rptr. 287] . Non-APA proceedings share the same limitation; for example, one court held that a judicial class action was not barred by the applicants' failure to exhaust administrative remedies, because no adequate administrative remedy existed [Ramos v. County of Madera (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 685, 690-691, 94 Cal. Rptr. 421, 484 P.2d 93 (determination of entitlement to welfare benefits of a group of similarly situated applicants under Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 et seq.)].

[4] Motions to Sever

Gov. Code § 11507.3 provides for the severance of adjudicative proceedings, as well as consolidation, in agency adjudications conducted under the APA formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.).

The administrative law judge may order a separate hearing of any issue, including an issue raised in the notice of defense, or of any number of issues. This order can be based on the motion of a party, or on the administrative law judge's own motion. The considerations for determining whether to grant separate hearings include furthering convenience, avoiding prejudice, and serving expedition or economy [Gov. Code § 11507.3(b)]. Gov. Code § 11507.3 provides ample ample authority for severance motions [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

With regard to non-APA proceedings, it is fair to say that requests for severance are disfavored and unlikely to be granted absent good cause, in that holding separate hearings would take longer and cost more than a single hearing. To avoid wasting the time of all concerned, motions to sever should be made as early as possible. For motions that are not subject to Gov. Code § 11507.3, the law governing severance can be based the general civil procedure under Civ. Proc. § 1048 [see [2], above, setting out considerations that apply to severance as well as consolidation motions, and Ch. 125, Consolidation, Severance, and Coordination of Actions , for discussion and forms relating to severance in civil actions generally].

[5] Procedure for Motion to Sever or Consolidate

A motion to consolidate or sever in a proceeding under the APA's formal hearing provisions should be addressed to the administrative law judge who has been assigned to hear the case [Gov. Code § 11507.3].

For Non-APA proceedings, the motion should be made to the agency itself. While neither the OAH, the State Personnel Board, nor the Public Employment Relations Board conducts the equivalent of a law and motion department, it is best to submit the motion in a timely manner, in writing, and with supporting affidavits. A party in opposition should promptly file its response with supporting affidavits. In general, prompt submission and response will get a motion considered sooner and more fully. A vague or unsupported motion is likely to be handled very summarily, whereas a precise and specific motion that is fully supported with arguments and affidavits is more likely to be considered and decided on the merits.

The ruling on a motion to consolidate or sever is customarily made without opportunity for oral argument. Other agencies may, by their own procedural rule or on request, permit argument before ruling on the motion.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & PowersCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConsolidation of Actions

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Prehearing Motions and Continuances

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.13

§ 473C.13 Motions to Dismiss

[1] Dismissal for Failure to State Prima Facie Case

A motion to dismiss for failure to establish a prima facie case (i.e., one that would entitle the agency to prevail if no evidence to the contrary is offered by the respondent) cannot be granted by an ALJ sitting alone [O'Mara v. State Bd. of Pharmacy (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 8, 10-11, 54 Cal. Rptr. 862 ; Kramer v. State Board of Accountancy (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 163, 175, 19 Cal. Rptr. 226 ; Frost v. State Personnel Board (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5-6, 11 Cal. Rptr. 718 ; see Maganini v. Quinn (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 1, 8, 221 P.2d 241 ; Black's Law Dictionary (5th ed. 1979), p. 1071].

The APA contains no authority for such a motion. Moreover, it would be procedurally awkward, in that a dismissal is a final decision, and the APA gives the agency the power of final decision [see Gov. Code § 11517(c)(1), (2) (ALJ sitting alone submits proposed decision to agency, which may accept, modify, or reject it); see further discussion in Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions]. Thus, the agency would have to hear the motion, and the hearing would consequently be delayed whenever the motion was made in order to refer it to the agency for determination [Kramer v. State Board of Accountancy (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 163, 175, 19 Cal. Rptr. 226 ; Frost v. State Personnel Board (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5-6, 11 Cal. Rptr. 718] .

A motion to dismiss for failure to establish a prima facie case is the equivalent of a motion for nonsuit in a civil action; a motion for nonsuit is made at the conclusion of the plaintiff's case-in-chief, and the testimony presented is presumed to be true for purposes of ruling on the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 581c(a),(c); Estate of Callahan (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 609, 612-613, 63 Cal. Rptr. 277, 432 P.2d 965] . This procedure would further be improper in an agency adjudication under the APA formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), because in these proceedings, the complainant has a statutory right to call the respondent as an adverse witness if the respondent does not elect to testify in his or her own behalf [Gov. Code § 11513(b); see further discussion in Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings]. Thus, the complainant's evidentiary presentation is not complete until the respondent has testified or the complainant has waived its right to call and examine the respondent [O'Mara v. State Bd. of Pharmacy (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 8, 11, 54 Cal. Rptr. 862 ; see Gov. Code § 11513(b) (right to call respondent and examine as if under cross-examination)].

In addition, the right of the complainant agency to amend the accusation after the case has been submitted for decision, and reopen the matter for the taking of further evidence [Gov. Code § 11516], would appear also to preclude the ALJ granting a motion to dismiss based on failure to present a prima facie case, even after the respondent's testimony has been presented.

Motions that the ALJ cannot rule on before or during the hearing may, however, be taken under submission with the case. Thus, for example, if such a motion for dismissal were made at the conclusion of the hearing, and the ALJ determination that the complainant had not established a prime facie case, the ALJ may express that determination in his or her proposed decision submitted to the agency. The agency may then adopt, modify, or reject the proposed decision, including the ALJ's determination on that motion [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2); see further discussion in Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions].

[2] Dismissal by Agency

In APA adjudications and other agency hearings, the agency may dismiss its own proceeding [see Kendall v. Bd. of Osteopathic Examiners (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 239, 248-249, 233 P.2d 107 (APA hearing) ; Steen v. City of Los Angeles (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 542, 546-547, 190 P.2d 937 (local agency exercising quasi-judicial functions has inherent power independent of statutory provisions to dismiss proceeding on motion of respondent when proceeding is not diligently prosecuted); Mauer v. The State Bar (1933) 219 Cal. 271, 275, 26 P.2d 14 (three of five charges against attorney dismissed by State Bar after investigation)].

In this event, a subsequent refiling of the matter may raise an objection of laches, or an objection that the matter is barred by the statute of limitations governing the subject agency [see Brown v. State Personnel Bd. (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1151, 1157-1163, 213 Cal. Rptr. 53 (professor dismissed by personnel board ordered reinstated, because five-year delay in bringing charges raised bar of laches); Steen v. City of Los Angeles (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 542, 546-547, 190 P.2d 937 (local administrative agency exercising quasi-judicial functions has inherent power independent of statutory provisions to dismiss proceeding on motion of respondent when proceeding is not diligently prosecuted); for discussion of laches in administrative actions, see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication].

[3] Voluntary Dismissal by Applicant for License or Permit

The applicant for a permit or license may withdraw the application and move for dismissal of the proceedings. In this situation, it appears that the agency must grant the dismissal, unless there is express statutory authority for the agency to retain jurisdiction, or unless the public interest requires a determination of the matter [see McDonald v. State Bar (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 768, 771, 141 P.2d 217 ; Miller v. Board of Police Commissioners (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 562, 563-564, 5 Cal. Rptr. 272 (although applicants for business permit requested withdrawal of permit, after hearing but before decision, local ordinance provided that withdrawal of application did not deprive board of power to deny permit); Johnstone v. Richardson (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 41, 48, 229 P.2d 9 (administrative action revoking seasonal license may be reviewed even though term for license has expired, because otherwise judicial power of review would be defeated)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & PowersCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsNonsuitsInvoluntary NonsuitsCivil ProcedurePretrial JudgmentsNonsuitsVoluntary Nonsuits

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Prehearing Motions and Continuances

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.14

§ 473C.14 Other Prehearing Motions

[1] Making and Arguing Prehearing Motions

Individual APA cases are selected for a prehearing conference pursuant to Gov. Code § 11511.5 [see discussion in § 473C.20]. The prehearing conference is customarily the only opportunity provided to argue prehearing motions. Prehearing motions should be addressed to the presiding ALJ, in writing, with points and authorities and affidavits as necessary. A motion filed only with the agency will not necessarily be forwarded to the assigned ALJ before the hearing begins. Depending on the nature and timeliness of the motion, the ALJ may rule on the motion prior to hearing. Customarily, the matter is taken under submission to be addressed in the proposed decision.

[2] Motion to Exclude Respondent During Testimony of Minor Who Is Alleged Victim of Sexual Abuse

A motion to exclude the respondent during the testimony of a minor who is the alleged victim of sexual abuse should be made before the hearing to allow time to secure closed-circuit television facilities. This exclusion is deemed not to violate constitutional or statutory rights to confront and cross-examine adverse witnesses when the respondent is able to do the following [Seering v. Dept. of Social Services (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 298, 303-306, 239 Cal. Rptr. 422 ; see U.S. Const., amend. VI; Cal. Const., art. I, § 15; Gov. Code § 11513(b)]:

- View the testimony by closed-circuit television.
- Consult with counsel before the minor is cross-examined.

In Seering, the complainant's motion to exclude was supported by a declaration by the minor's psychiatrist that if the minor were required to testify in the presence of the respondents she might suffer exacerbated fear and additional injury, and by the minor's testimony that she was fearful of testifying in front of one of the respondents [Seering v. Dept. of Social Services (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 298, 303, 239 Cal. Rptr. 422] .

No decisions have been reported in which exclusion was granted based only on a lay person's affidavit (e.g., a declaration by a parent); nor have reported decisions extended the exclusions to a competent adult victim fearful of testifying before a respondent [but see Gov. Code § 11440.40(b) (absent an offer of proof, evidence of complainant's sexual conduct with persons other than an alleged perpetrator is presumed inadmissible), and discussion of this provisions in Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Decisions]. Nonetheless, there appears to be no reason why it cannot be persuasively argued that the interest in avoiding the psychological harm, cited by the Seering court, should apply also to developmentally disabled adults or other clients of community care facilities [see Health & Safety Code §§ 1502(a), 1508, 1509, 1550 ("community care facilities" defined; license requirements); Seering v. Dept. of Social Services (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 298, 304-305, 239 Cal. Rptr. 422 (interest to be served by exclusion procedure was ascertainment of truth without undue psychological harm to minor witnesses who were demonstrably afraid)].

[3] Motions to Compel Release of Confidential Records

A party seeking the release of confidential records, such as medical records, in an administrative hearing may be required to establish that the disclosure of the records is justified by a compelling interest. California's constitutional right of privacy (Cal. Const., art I, § 1) requires that any invasion of personal privacy be justified by a compelling state interest [White v. Davis (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 757, 775, 120 Cal. Rptr. 94, 533 P.2d 222] . Before the hearing, the ALJ or the reviewing court may review the records in camera and direct their release only if they meet the compelling interest criteria [see Gov. Code § 11450.30(b) (ALJ has authority to grant protective order against enforcement of subpoena to protect against violations of right to privacy)]. For example, investigative subpoenas of the Medical Board of California for the production of the medical records of a licensee-physician's patients are an invasion of the patients' privacy absent patient consent or a compelling state interest. Yet the interest of the Medical Board in investigating the alleged unprofessional conduct of a physician qualifies as a compelling state interest, although even that interest is not enough to justify an overbroad subpoena. The state's intrusion on personal privacy, even though justified by a compelling state interest, must nonetheless be accomplished by the least intrusive means [see Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1147-1150, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811 ; Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Gherardini (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 669, 679-682, 156 Cal. Rptr. 55 (decisions relating to Board of Medical Quality Assurance, now the Medical Board of California)]. For discussion of the right to privacy and its impact on agency investigations, see Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies .

[4] Motions for Change in Place of Hearing

[a] Nature of Motion

In agency adjudications conducted under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), Gov. Code § 11508(c) allows the respondent to move for, and gives the administrative law judge the discretion to grant or deny, a change in the place of the hearing. A motion for a change in the place of the hearing must be made within 10 days after service of the notice of hearing on the respondent [Gov. Code § 11508(c)].

Gov. Code § 11508(c) codifies a practice authorizing a motion for change of venue recognized by the courts [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 227 (1995); see Keller Industries, Inc. v. Occupational Safety & Health Appeals Bd. (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 469, 471, 473-476, 177 Cal. Rptr. 136 ; Campbell v. Board of Dental Examiners (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 872, 875-877, 95 Cal. Rptr. 351 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 397 (grounds for change of venue in civil actions)].

In making a change of venue determination, the administrative law judge may weigh the detriment to the moving party of the initial location against the cost to the agency and other parties of relocating the site. Failure to move for a change in the place of the hearing within the 10 day period waives the right to object to the place of the hearing [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 227 (1995)]. When seeking a new place for the hearing, the moving party can choose any of the places designated in Gov. Code § 11508(a), (b) [see discussion in [b], below]. For discussion and forms relating to change of venue proceedings in civil actions, see Ch. 571, Venue .

[b] Place of Hearing

The place for the hearing is a matter of agency discretion under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov.Code § 11500 et seq.) [see Gov. Code § 11508(a) and discussion in Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication ; see also Campbell v. Board of Dental Examiners (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 872, 876-877, 95 Cal. Rptr. 351 ; McPheeters v. Board of Medical Examiners (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 709, 713-715, 187 P.2d 116] .

Similarly, the place for hearing is a matter for agency discretion under a number of specific agency statutes, such as the following:

- Public Employees Retirement System [Gov. Code § 20134 (place of hearing by Board of Administration of the Public Employees Retirement System)].

- Teacher's Retirement Board [Educ. Code § 22217].

- Department of Real Estate [Bus. & Prof. Code § 11019; see Cal.-Am. Corp. v. Department of Real Estate (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 453, 163 Cal. Rptr. 729 (interpreting language of place where transactions occurred as place of hearing for Deaprtment of Real Estate agency hearing)].

- Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control [Bus. & Prof. Code § 24300].

- Occupational Safety and Health Appeals Board [8 Cal. Code Reg. § 376(b)].

The time and place of hearing is determined by the agency. The agency shall consult the office, and subject to the availability of its staff, shall determine the time and place of the hearing. The hearing shall be held at a hearing facility maintained by the office in Sacramento, Oakland, Los Angeles, or San Diego and shall be held at the facility that is closest to the location where the transaction occurred or the respondent resides [Gov. Code § 11508(a)]. Alternatively, the hearing may be held at either of the following places [Gov. Code § 11508(b)(1), (2)]:

(1) A place selected by the agency that is closer to the location where the transaction occurred or the respondent resides.

(2) A place within the state selected by agreement of the parties. The respondent may move for, and the administrative law judge has discretion to grant or deny, a change in the place of the hearing. A motion for a change in the place of the hearing shall be made within 10 days after service of the notice of hearing on the respondent [Gov. Code § 11508(c)]. Unless good cause is identified in writing by the administrative law judge, hearings shall be held in a facility maintained by the office [Gov. Code § 11508; see also Ch 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication, § 473A.11[11] for discussion of place of hearing].

In practice, cases are customarily set in the county appropriate for the district where the transaction that gave rise to the hearing occurred, which is often the district where the respondent's business or residence is located and usually the most convenient location for the witnesses and respondent. Reconvening in a second location for taking testimony is usually unnecessary, because Gov. Code § 11450.20(b) provides for the service of subpoenas throughout California [for discussion of the issuance of subpoenas under Gov. Code § 11450.05 et seq., see Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings].

[c] Grounds for Motion

Under Gov. Code § 11508(c), grounds for changing the place of hearing are not specifically set forth in the language of the statute, but the Law Revision Commission Comments to that section provide that grounds for change of venue include selection of an improper county and promotion of the convenience of witnesses and ends of justice [1995 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 227 (1995); cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 397].

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 397(a),(c), the superior court in a civil action may change venue:

- When the court designated in the complaint is not the proper court [Code Civ. Proc. § 397(a) (improper venue); see Hamilton v. Superior Court of San Mateo County (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 418, 112 Cal. Rptr. 450 (proper court motion)].

- When the convenience of witnesses and the ends of justice would be promoted by the change [Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c) (inconvenient venue); see Richfield Hotel Management, Inc. v. Superior Court (Riddell) (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 222, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 161 (inconvenient venue motion)].

When the motion to change the place of hearing is based on improper venue (improper place of hearing), the moving party would need to establish that the place of hearing chosen did not satisfy one of the four options under Gov. Code § 11508 [Gov. Code § 11508(a), (b)(1), (2), (3); see [b], above]. When the motion to change the place of hearing is based on inconvenient venue (inconvenient place of hearing), the moving party would need to establish that, although the place of hearing chosen did satisfy one of the four options under Gov. Code § 11508, the chosen place of hearing is inconvenient to the parties, and there is another proper venue under Gov. Code § 11508 that is more convenient to the parties and witnesses. For example, if the agency has chosen the place of hearing under Gov. Code § 11508(a) designating one of the four main OAH offices, and a hearing location under Gov. Code § 11508(b)(2), at a place nearer to respondent's residence or the place that the transaction occurred, is both proper and more convenient, then the moving party could request a change in the place of hearing to the latter location. Also, case law has established standards for transfers for convenience which required a showing of economic loss to respondent combined with inconvenience to witnesses [see Keller Industries, Inc. v. Occupational Safety & Health Appeals Bd. (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 469, 474-476, 177 Cal. Rptr. 136 (motion for change of venue properly denied because respondent's claim that it would be forced to close its plant during the hearing and witnesses would be inconvenienced was not supported with sufficient facts); Code Civ. Proc. § 397(c) (motion for change of venue may be granted in civil actn when convenience of witnesses and ends of justice would be promoted by the change)].

A motion for change of venue to permit an on-the-spot examination of a site or premises is generally not favored for the following reasons:

- The time and inconvenience involved in convening the parties, counsel, the court reporter, and the ALJ at the site.

- The difficulty of creating a record of the site viewing.

- The availability of other means to convey the same information, such as videotape, pictures, blueprints, and diagrams.

[d] Procedure for Motion

Gov. Code § 11508(c) allows the respondent to move for, and gives the administrative law judge the discretion to grant or deny, a change in the place of the hearing. A motion for a change in the place of the hearing must be made within 10 days after service of the notice of hearing on the respondent [Gov. Code § 11508(c)].

Thus, the motion should be filed with the administrative law judge who has been assigned to the hearing. Notice should be given to the other parties. As in a civil action, the motion should be in writing and should be accompanied by a memorandum of points and authorities. In making a change of venue determination, the administrative law judge may weigh the detriment to the moving party of the initial location against the cost to the agency and other parties of relocating the site. Failure to move for a change in the place of the hearing within the 10 day period waives the right to object to the place of the hearing [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 227 (1995)].

The motion should be accompanied by a supporting affidavit or declaration making a convincing factual showing of the need for a change of hearing [see [e], below].

[e] Discretion to Grant or Deny

The administrative law judge has the discretion to grant or deny a motion for change of venue; a court will not overturn the agency's decision unless the agency abused that discretion [Keller Industries, Inc. v. Occupational Safety & Health Appeals Bd. (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 469, 474-476, 177 Cal. Rptr. 136] . The standard for determining whether the agency has abused its discretion depends on how the denial is brought up for review. The general standard for determining abuse of discretion will be that for either administrative mandate or traditional mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1094.5; for further discussion, see Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions]. One court of appeal upheld a denial noting that the appellant had not presented facts to the agency to make a convincing showing in support of the change so as to make denial an abuse of discretion [Keller Industries, Inc. v. Occupational Safety & Health Appeals Bd. (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 469, 475, 177 Cal. Rptr. 136] .

[5] Motions in Limine

A motion in limine, a motion "on the threshold," is a motion in advance of a proceeding that requests an order that particular evidence be excluded or be admitted only on specified conditions, because the probative value of the evidence is outweighed by the potential for prejudice, or the evidence is protected or privileged [see Ch. 373, Motions in Limine]. For example, in a civil action the exclusion of expert-witness testimony on a motion in limine was upheld, because the offered testimony was speculative, conjectural, and remote, and thus potentially confusing [Hyatt v. Sierra Boat Co. (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 325, 337-339, 145 Cal. Rptr. 47] . Examples of motions in limine granted in administrative proceedings include the following:

- Records of the witness's alcoholism treatment ordered not to be disclosed in the hearing absent prehearing compliance with federal disclosure procedures [see 42 U.S.C. § 290dd-2 (confidentiality of patient records)].

- Names and identifying information contained in patient psychiatric records ordered to be stricken before the documents are marked [see Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Hazel Hawkins Memorial Hospital (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 561, 565, 185 Cal. Rptr. 405 (subpoena for medical records not an invasion of privacy when it does not seek names or identifying information)].

The motion in limine should be addressed to the presiding judge of the OAH office that will hear the case with appropriate points and authorities (although the motion in civil actions is frequently oral, it is nevertheless advisable to present supporting points and authorities). The staffing limitations of the OAH rarely permit oral argument of the motion prior to hearing unless the case is selected for a prehearing conference [see Gov. Code § 11511.5 (prehearing conferences), and discussion in § 473C.20]. For a discussion of motions in limine in civil actions, see Ch. 373, Motions in Limine .

[6] Motions to Stay, Dismiss, or Continue Action Due to Bankruptcy

A motion to stay, dismiss, or continue a disciplinary matter because the respondent (as an individual or licensed business entity) has filed for bankruptcy is rarely granted even when the subject license, such as an alcoholic beverage license, can be sold or otherwise considered an asset. The discipline of errant licensees is an exercise of a licensing board's police powers to protect the health and welfare of California citizens [Binford v. Boyd (1918) 178 Cal. 458, 462, 174 P. 56 ; Pennington v. Bonelli (1936) 15 Cal. App. 2d 316, 319-320, 59 P.2d 448] and is not barred by 11 U.S.C. § 525, which protects bankrupts and debtors against discriminatory treatment.

In particular, 11 U.S.C. § 525(a) provides that a governmental unit may not deny, revoke, suspend, or refuse to renew a license, permit, or other similar grant to a person solely because that person is or has been a bankrupt or a debtor or has not paid a debt that was discharged under the Bankruptcy Act [see 11 U.S.C. §§ 101-1330]. The purpose of this provision is to insure that bankrupts get the fresh start that the Bankruptcy Act is intended to provide [Parker v. Contractors State License Bd. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 205, 208-209, 231 Cal. Rptr. 577] .

Although 11 U.S.C. § 525(a) bars a licensing board from proceeding against a licensee solely because the licensee sought the protection of the Bankruptcy Act, it does not excuse otherwise impermissible conduct by a licensee. For example, a fraudulent diversion by a licensed contractor of contributions intended for a union health plan creates a debt that may be discharged in bankruptcy proceedings, but the underlying fraud may be charged as grounds to revoke the contractor's license [Parker v. Contractors State License Bd. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 205, 208-212, 231 Cal. Rptr. 577] .

Similarly, the Illinois Racing Board's denial of a racing license to a bankrupt was held to be a legitimate exercise of a state occupational licensing board's police power, and not barred by 11 U.S.C. § 525(a), because the board's decision was supported by several nondiscriminatory reasons [In re Alessi (N.D. Ill. 1981) 12 Bankr. 96] .

The exercise of police power by the licensing entity must be both nondiscriminatory and nonpecuniary. The licensing proceeding cannot seek to recover funds for a debt excused in the bankruptcy proceeding [In re Aegean Fare, Inc. (D. Mass. 1983) 35 B.R. 923 ; In re Rath Packing Company (N.D. Iowa 1983) 35 B.R. 615 ; In re Gencarelli (D.R.I. 1981) 14 B.R. 751] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawGovernmental InformationPersonal InformationConditions of DisclosureGeneral OverviewBankruptcy LawDebtor Benefits & DutiesDiscriminatory Treatment ProtectionConstitutional LawSubstantive Due ProcessPrivacyPersonal InformationGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicensesGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsPolice Power

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Prehearing Motions and Continuances

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.15

§ 473C.15 Continuances

[1] Definition

A continuance is an order postponing a hearing or other proceeding until a specified date or for a specified period [see generally Ch. 136, Continuances]. For discussion of motions to stay, dismiss, or continue an action because the respondent has filed for bankruptcy, see § 473C.14[6].

[2] Authority

Agencies possess the inherent power to postpone a hearing for good cause [Powers v. Commission on Professional Competence (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 560, 571, 204 Cal. Rptr. 185 ; Shoults v. Alderson (1921) 55 Cal. App. 527, 531, 203 P. 809] .

For most agencies, that is, those that are subject to the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), this power has been codified in Gov. Code § 11524(a). When an ALJ grants a continuance under Gov. Code § 11524(a), the time limit for commencing a hearing is extended for the period of time equal to the continuance [see Educ. Code § 44944(a); Wilmot v. Commission on Professional Competence (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1130, 1142-1143, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 656] . Once an ALJ has been assigned to the hearing by the Office of Administrative Hearings (OAH), a continuance may be granted only by the assigned ALJ or by the presiding judge of the appropriate regional office of the OAH for good cause shown [Gov. Code § 11524(a)]. For discussion of what constitutes good cause, see [4][a], below].

[3] Hearing Schedules and Strict Construction of OAH Continuance Policy

The OAH maintains regional offices in Los Angeles, Oakland, Sacramento, and San Diego [Gov. Code § 11508(a)]. Cases are scheduled for both Sacramento and Oakland from the Sacramento office. Agencies determine the location, estimate duration of the hearing, and reserve the needed hours or days of hearing time in a particular location with the appropriate OAH regional office.

Calendar staff of the regional offices schedule the requested matter, usually several months in advance of the hearing; the agency provides notice of hearing [see Gov. Code § 11509 (notice of hearing); for discussion of notice of hearing, see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication].

Requests for hearings outside the regional office cities are collected by geographic area, and a circuit trip is scheduled for a week of hearing and travel time. Thus, a late request for a continuance of a case would disrupt the schedule and waste hearing time. A hearing in an outlying city that is not completed in the scheduled time not only results in the usual difficulty and cost increases attendant on reconvening the parties, counsel, and the ALJ, but also these problems are exacerbated by the difficulty of rescheduling the added hearing and travel time with other hearings in that geographic area.

Because of these problems of scheduling and increased costs, and because of statutory mandates for prompt hearings [see, e.g., Educ. Code § 44944 (a hearing to dismiss or suspend a certificated school employee must begin within 60 days after the demand for hearing); Health & Safety Code § 1551 (Department of Social Services licensees whose community care facilities have been closed by a temporary suspension order have a right to a hearing within 30 days)], the OAH strictly construes its continuance policy [California Administrative Procedure Act Procedures for Administrative Adjudication, Appendix I, Continuance Policy (1987) (OAH Continuance Policy)], and the grounds for continuance.

The OAH Continuance Policy provides: "Unreasonably late requests for continuances, or requests without merit, will not be looked upon favorably. Such requests impede the orderly resolution of disputes and timely administration of justice." The details of this policy and grounds for continuance are discussed in [4], below.

[4] Grounds for Continuance

[a] Good Cause Showing Required

The granting of a continuance, whether under the California APA or the inherent power of an agency to postpone the time for a hearing [see [2], above], depends on the showing of good cause [Gov. Code § 11524(a); Powers v. Commission on Professional Competence (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 560, 570-571, 204 Cal. Rptr. 185 ; see Curtis v. Underwood (1894) 101 Cal. 661, 669, 36 P. 110 (inherent power of courts to postpone for good cause)]. A DMV hearing officer had good cause to grant a continuance of a DMV hearing so that a police office could testify that he was on duty when he observed the motorist drive his car. The testimony would provide proper foundation for the admission of police reports related to stop of driver for DUI violation. Motorist objected to admission of police reports because of lack of foundation. Also the motorist was not prejudiced by the delay in hearing [Bussard v. Department of Motor Vehicles (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 858, 864-866, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 414].

Gov. Code § 11524 provides no definition of "good cause," but the OAH Continuance Policy and certain court decisions do provide some grounds for continuance that have been approved as constituting "good cause."

[b] OAH Continuance Policy

[i] Grounds Listed in OAH Continuance Policy as Constituting Good Cause

The OAH Continuance Policy is available as Appendix I of the Administrative Procedure Act Procedures for Adjudication, a bound pamphlet published biannually by the OAH.

Copies may be obtained from the OAH at 501 J Street, Suite 230, Sacramento, CA 95814.

The OAH Continuance Policy lists the following events or conditions as the only grounds constituting good cause to continue a hearing [OAH Continuance Policy, Part III]:

- The death of a party, the representative or attorney of a party, a witness to an essential fact, or the parent, child, or a member of the household of any of these, when it is not feasible to substitute another representative, attorney, or witness because of the proximity of the hearing date.

- An order of the administrative law judge, such as an order to compel discovery under Gov. Code § 11507.7 (motion to compel discovery pursuant to request for discovery under Gov. Code § 11507.6) [see discussion of orders to compel discovery in Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications].

- The incapacitating illness of a party, the representative or attorney of a party, or a witness to an essential fact, when it is not feasible to substitute another representative, attorney, or witness because of the proximity of the hearing date. The ALJ considering a request for continuance on this basis may require a statement by the attending physician reciting the nature and probable duration of the illness and the extent of incapacitation [OAH Continuance Policy, Part IV].

- Lack of notice of the hearing as required in Gov. Code § 11509 [for discussion of the notice of hearing required under Gov. Code § 11509, see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication].

- A material change in the status of the case when a change in the parties or pleadings requires postponement, or an executed settlement or stipulated findings of fact obviate the need for a hearing. A partial amendment of the pleadings is not good cause for continuance to the extent that the unamended portion of the pleadings is ready to be heard. The probable resolution of other litigation that may affect the outcome or duration of the hearing or the extent of the parties' participation in the hearing may constitute a material change warranting continuance.

- A stipulation for a continuance signed by all of the parties or their authorized representatives, including an agency representative, that is communicated with a request for continuance to the OAH no later than 25 working days before the hearing. Even with a stipulation, the duration of the hearing may make a continuance inappropriate.

- The substitution of the representative or attorney of a party on a showing that the substitution is required.

- The unavailability of a party, representative, attorney, or witness to an essential fact because of a necessary, conflicting appearance in a judicial matter when (a) the person did not know of the conflict when the hearing date was set and could neither anticipate nor avoid it, and (b) a request for continuance is immediately communicated to the OAH.

- The unavailability of a party, representative, or material witness due to an unavoidable emergency.

[ii] Establishing Good Cause

Part IV of the OAH Continuance Policy provides that, to establish good cause, the evidence of the event or condition that constitutes good cause must be evidence of the sort and to the degree that responsible persons would rely on it in the conduct of serious affairs [see Gov. Code § 11513(c) (with certain exceptions, any relevant evidence is admissible in an California APA hearing if it is the sort of evidence that responsible persons are accustomed to rely on in the conduct of serious affairs); see also Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings].

The agency or ALJ considering a request for continuance based on a claim of incapacitating illness may require the requesting party to provide a written statement by the attending physician reciting the nature and probable duration of the illness and the extent of incapacitation. A party requesting a continuance because of a conflict due to a judicial matter must provide the identity of the court and the caption and case number when making the request for the continuance [OAH Continuance Policy, Part IV].

[c] Related Judicial Proceedings as Basis for Continuance

[i] Civil Actions

A related judicial proceeding [see [b], above] may be grounds for a continuance, but the existence of a civil suit involving the same parties or the same transaction does not always merit a continuance. Even though the OAH Continuance Policy provides that the probable resolution of other litigation that may affect the outcome or duration of the hearing or the parties' participation in the hearing may constitute a material change that warrants a continuance [OAH Continuance Policy, Part III(E)], the ALJ commonly considers several other factors, including the following:

- The public protection purposes of license discipline proceedings. The court in a civil action can award damages, but cannot revoke a license, discipline the licensee, or otherwise use the remedies available to a licensing agency to protect the public.

- Agency disciplinary proceedings are subject to a different and higher burden of proof than civil actions: in a disciplinary action to revoke or suspend a professional license, the standard of proof is clear and convincing evidence to a reasonable certainty [Ettinger v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 853, 856, 185 Cal. Rptr. 601 ; see Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings].

- The issues to be determined in the two proceedings are seldom identical.

Statements by the appellate court in one reported decision suggest that the agency should permit a continuance for the resolution of a related suit; the statements are dicta, however, and the court did not address the public protection issue. In this case, Contractors' State License Board v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 557, 10 Cal. Rptr. 95 , a customer sued a contractor for breach of a contract to build a swimming pool. The buyer also complained to the Contractors' State License Board, which instituted disciplinary proceedings. The contractor then cross-complained, and joined the Board as a cross-defendant in the suit, asking the superior court to enjoin the Board's proceedings pending trial of the contract action. The superior court granted the injunction, and the Board appealed. The Court of Appeal held that the superior court should vacate the injunction, because it had no power to enjoin the Board from performing its statutory duties. The appellate court added, however, that the contractor could ask the Board for a stay of its proceedings until the contract question was determined, "and it is not to be assumed that the Board will arbitrarily deny such a stay in view of the fact that" a finding that the contractor breached his contract "would be res adjudicata against [the contractor] in the disciplinary proceedings" [Contractors' State License Board v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 557, 562, 10 Cal. Rptr. 95 ; for discussion of res judicata in administrative hearings, see Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings].

Requests for continuance because of a related civil action are commonly made when a party injured by the licensee in the transaction that is the basis for the disciplinary action brought by the agency has also filed a civil suit. For example, a customer may notify the Contractors' State License Board of defective construction work, then file a civil suit for damages against the same contractor [see, e.g., Contractors' State License Board v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 557, 559, 10 Cal. Rptr. 95 (customer sued contractor for breach of contract to build swimming pool and also complained to Board, which instituted disciplinary proceedings)]. Similarly, a buyer of real property who is to testify about fraudulent sales practices in the Department of Real Estate's proceedings to suspend or revoke a real estate salesperson's license may also have sued that licensee and the supervising broker for damages.

[ii] Criminal Cases

The conviction of a crime may result in the denial of an application for an occupational or professional license [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 118, 475, 480, 489], the suspension or revocation of a license [Bus. & Prof. Code § 490], or public reproval [Bus. & Prof. Code § 495]. In general, an administrative agency need not stay its hearing while criminal charges are pending against the respondent [Hankla v. Governing Bd. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 644, 652-653, 120 Cal. Rptr. 827 ; Savoy Club v. Board of Supervisors (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 1038-1040, 91 Cal. Rptr. 198 ; Funke v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 449, 454, 81 Cal. Rptr. 662] . Furthermore, granting an indefinite continuance of an administrative hearing on disciplinary charges to a licensee who is incarcerated in another state but who is represented by counsel solely because the licensee is incarcerated is an abuse of discretion, and does not satisfy good cause standards of Gov. Code § 11524(a) [Arnett v. Office of Admin. Hearings (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 332, 342-343, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 774] .

[5] Procrastination or Lack of Preparation as Grounds for Denial of Continuance

The OAH does not look with favor on tardy requests for continuances [OAH Continuance Policy; see [3], above]. An application for a continuance must be filed within 10 working days after the party discovered or should have discovered the event or condition that establishes good cause for the continuance [Gov. Code § 11524(b); see [7][b], below].

Under the OAH policy and the statute's requirements, a request for a continuance based on the applicant's procrastination or failure to prepare will almost certainly be denied. Examples include the following:

- Counsel is unprepared for the hearing [Rudolph v. Athletic Commission (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 1, 12-14, 1 Cal. Rptr. 898 (counsel requested continuance to enable him to prepare defense, claiming 15 days' notice insufficient; appellate court held hearing officer's denial of motion was not abuse of discretion, and licensee was not denied due process)].

- Discovery was not timely requested [see Gov. Code § 11507.6 (discovery requests); see also Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications].

- Discovery rights were not promptly enforced [see Gov. Code § 11507.7 (motions to compel discovery); see also Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications ; Lax v. Board of Medical Quality Assur., Dep't of Consumer Affairs (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 669, 172 Cal. Rptr. 258 (failure of licensee to timely enforce discovery under Gov. Code § 11507.7].

- Counsel failed to subpoena necessary witnesses or documents [see Gov. Code § 11450.10 et seq. (subpoenas for attendance or production of documents at hearing); see also Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings ; Dresser v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 506, 517-518, 181 Cal. Rptr. 797 (denial of continuance to secure attendance of expert witness no abuse of discretion, because licensee failed to subpoena witness despite ample notice of hearing and three prior continuances on other grounds); Wilke & Holzheiser, Inc. v. Dept. of Alcoholic Bev. Control (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 349, 55 Cal. Rptr. 23, 420 P.2d 735] .

- The party was unreasonably slow to retain counsel [Skipitar v. Munro (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 1, 4-6, 345 P.2d 508 (when licensee requested continuance on the day of hearing to obtain an attorney, no abuse of discretion to deny continuance)].

[6] Discretion of ALJ

[a] Discretion to Grant or Deny Continuance

There is no absolute right to a continuance. Gov. Code § 11524(a) provides that the agency may grant continuances.

Thus, whether agency grants or denies the continuance is a matter for the ALJ's discretion, or that of the agency if it hears the request [Dresser v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 506, 518, 181 Cal. Rptr. 797 ; Cooper v. Board of Medical Examiners (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 931, 123 Cal. Rptr. 563 ; Savoy Club v. Board of Supervisors (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 1038, 91 Cal. Rptr. 198 ; Ring v. Smith (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 197, 201, 85 Cal. Rptr. 227 ; Givens v. Dept. of Alcoholic Bev. Control (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 529, 532, 1 Cal. Rptr. 446 ; for discussion of who may grant a continuance, see [7][a], below].

Some of the factors that an ALJ may consider in exercising that discretion include the following:

- The sufficiency of the showing made in support of the request [see County of San Bernardino v. Doria Mining & Engineering Corp. (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 776, 783-784, 140 Cal. Rptr. 383 (statement about substitution of attorneys insufficient to support motion for continuance in civil action without affirmative showing that substitution was required in interests of justice); Taylor v. Gordon (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 233, 240, 227 P.2d 64 (unsworn statement of attorney that he had been told client had measles insufficient to support motion for continuance in civil action); see also Gov. Code § 11524(a) (showing of good cause required), and discussion in [4][a], above].

- The timing of the request [Skipitar v. Munro (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 1, 4-6, 345 P.2d 508 (no abuse of discretion to deny continuance when licensee requested a continuance on the day of hearing to obtain an attorney); see discussion in [5], above, and [7][b], below].

- The likelihood that permitting the continuance will result in the production of additional relevant evidence [Wisuri v. Newark School Dist. (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 239, 243, 55 Cal. Rptr. 490] .

[b] Abuse of Discretion

The ALJ's denial of a request for continuance will be reversed only for an abuse of discretion [Cooper v. Board of Medical Examiners (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 931, 944, 123 Cal. Rptr. 563 ; Savoy Club v. Board of Supervisors (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 1038, 91 Cal. Rptr. 198] . In determining whether an abuse of discretion has occurred, the reviewing court considers the sufficiency of the showing by the requesting party, and whether the denial operated to deprive that party of a fair hearing [see County of San Bernardino v. Doria Mining & Engineering Corp. (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 776, 783-784, 140 Cal. Rptr. 383 (request for continuance based on substitution of attorneys denied when there was no affirmative showing that the substitution was required in the interests of justice); Wood v. City Civil Service Commission (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 105, 110, 119 Cal. Rptr. 175] .

Courts have upheld, as within the administrative law judge's discretion, continuances of hearings granted on the judge's own motion, to continue hearings due to calendar congestion [Powers v. Bakersfield City School Dist. (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 560, 204 Cal. Rptr. 185 ; Young v. Governing Bd. (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 769, 115 Cal. Rptr. 456] . For discussion of the showing necessary to establish abuse of discretion when a writ of administrative mandamus is sought under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 to review a final administrative order or decision, see Chapter 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions [see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)].

[7] Procedure for Requesting Continuance

[a] Who May Grant a Continuance

Until the case is assigned to an ALJ, the agency that filed the case may grant a continuance [Gov. Code § 11524(a); OAH Continuance Policy, Section I(C)]. Requests at that early stage should be made directly to the agency.

After assignment, only the presiding judge of the appropriate regional office of the Office of Administrative Hearings where the case is to be heard, his or her designee [OAH Continuance Policy, Section I(C)], or the assigned ALJ can grant a continuance [Gov. Code § 11524(a)]. The case is deemed "assigned" to an ALJ when it is scheduled for specific hearing dates [OAH Continuance Policy, Section I(B)].

[b] When to Request Continuance

The OAH Continuance Policy states that a hearing may be continued at any time if good cause exists [but see discussion in [5], above (procrastination as grounds for denial of a request for continuance)]. The issue, however, of when a hearing may be continued, is not the same as that as when a request for continuance must be filed. The party requesting a continuance must apply for the continuance within 10 working days after the party discovered or should have discovered the event or condition that establishes the good cause for the continuance [Gov. Code § 11524(b)]. A continuance may be granted for good cause after the 10 working days have passed, but only if the party seeking the continuance is not responsible for and has made a good faith effort to prevent the condition or event establishing the good cause [Gov. Code § 11524(b)].

Depending on the ground for the request, special time limits may apply. For example, if continuance is by stipulation of the parties, the signed stipulation and a request for continuance must be communicated to the OAH no later than 25 working days before the hearing [OAH Continuance Policy, Part III(F)]. Similarly, if a continuance is requested on the ground of unavailability due to a necessary, conflicting appearance in a judicial matter, the conflict and the request must be immediately communicated to the OAH [OAH Continuance Policy, Part III(H); see [4][b][i], above].

[c] Making the Request

In practice, counsel can request a continuance by telephoning the presiding judge of the OAH regional office that will hear the matter, and stating the basis for the request with appropriate specifics as described in the OAH Continuance Policy, such as the nature and duration of an illness or the particulars of a judicial conflict [for details of the required particulars, see OAH Continuance Policy, Parts III, IV; see also [4][b], above]. As a courtesy, and to mitigate agency opposition to the continuance, counsel should first advise the agency counsel or the deputy attorney general representing the agency of the grounds for the continuance, and explore whether alternative arrangements can be made. Thus, a declaration in lieu of the appearance of an unavailable witness, or a stipulation concerning a factual matter, might resolve the problem without the need for a continuance. The agency attorney (or deputy attorney general) customarily opposes the continuance request. One reason for such opposition is that the client agency is charged for the reserved hearing time if another matter cannot be scheduled for that time.

[d] Partial Continuance

If the petitioner has only one witness who is unavailable or a calendar conflict for only a portion of the dates set for the hearing, the petitioner should consider requesting only a partial continuance. Agency counsel may well accept a proposal that the agency present its case-in-chief and the parties reconvene later for respondent's witnesses, or that the matter be heard with the exception of a single unavailable witness. In practice, a continuance request to which agency counsel assents is more likely to be granted.

[e] Poll of Counsel, Ruling, and Rescheduling

The ALJ to whom the continuance request is made polls the opposing counsel to determine if the request is opposed. When the ALJ rules on the request, both counsel will be orally advised of the ruling. The ALJ may condition granting the request on the prompt rescheduling of the case for specified dates or may leave resetting the matter to the agency counsel. A party who is considering a request for a continuance should include the question of rescheduling in his or her considerations.

The availability of hearing dates for the continued matter is particularly important for cases scheduled in outlying areas.

Requests for hearings outside the regional office cities are collected by geographic area, and a circuit trip is scheduled for a week of hearing and travel time. When such a case is continued, it cannot simply be assigned to the next hearing date if the hearing is still to be held on the circuit, but must be rescheduled by the same process, which will require waiting until there are enough hearings in that area to justify scheduling a circuit trip for an ALJ. A considerable delay may therefore result.

[f] Oral Argument

Due to staffing limitations, the OAH does not customarily hear argument on motions such as a request for a continuance. The parties have no right to oral argument on the matter. If the request for continuance is denied, or if the requesting party believes that the request merits oral argument, a request for a brief hearing of that matter may be made to the ALJ who is considering the request. If oral argument is permitted, the request for continuance should be reduced to writing with appropriate declarations, then served on opposing counsel and filed with the OAH in advance of the time set for argument.

[8] Judicial Review of Denial of Application for Continuance

An application for judicial review of the denial by an ALJ of a continuance request must be filed in superior court within 10 working days following the denial or be barred from judicial review as a matter of jurisdiction [Gov. Code § 11524(c)]. The party applying for review must give notice to the agency and to any other parties. This notice may be given orally at the same time the application is denied or in writing when application is made in court for judicial relief. These provisions do not apply to the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control [Gov. Code § 11524(c)]. For discussion of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, generally, see Ch. 18, Alcoholic Beverage Licenses . If there is no written order of denial by the ALJ, counsel can file a declaration stating that the request was denied.

[9] Notice of Continued Hearing

The California APA contains no requirement of formal notice of a continued hearing. It is enough if the respondent has actual knowledge of the date of the hearing [McPheeters v. Board of Medical Examiners (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 709, 715, 187 P.2d 116] . If a respondent has neither formal notice nor actual knowledge, the respondent has been denied due process [see Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 267, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 (basic requirement of due process is the opportunity to be heard; there must be timely and adequate notice)]. For discussion of the general requirement of notice of hearing under Gov. Code § 11509, see Chapter 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication . For discussion of due process considerations in administrative proceedings generally, see Ch.470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingDue ProcessAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & PowersAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of ProtectionGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Prehearing Motions and Continuances

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473C.16-473C.19

[Reserved]

§§ 473C.16[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Prehearing Conferences, and Negotiation and Settlement

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.20

§ 473C.20 Prehearing Conferences

[1] Background

The matters heard by the Office of Administrative Hearings (OAH) range in complexity from a license denial based on a final criminal conviction that involves relatively simple questions of law and fact, to multi-party matters scheduled for several months of hearing that involve complex legal issues and technical, difficult factual disputes. Before 1987, the difficulty of hearing the more complex cases without some prehearing clarification of factual and legal issues prompted informal prehearing conferences. The increasing number of these complex cases caused the OAH to propose amending the California APA to provide statutory authority for prehearing and settlement conferences. The amendment, Gov. Code § 11511.5, was enacted effective January 1, 1987 [Stats. 1986, Ch. 597, § 2; Ch. 899, § 1].

The prehearing conference, like a pretrial conference in a civil matter is held to identify and define factual and legal issues and to expedite the hearing [see Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(1) to (12); cf. Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule 212, and discussion in Ch. 425, Pretrial Proceedings]. It may also be used:

- To explore settlement possibilities and consider settlement conferences [Gov. Code §§ 11511.5(b)(1), 11511.7].

- The use of alternate dispute resolution procedures [Gov. Code §§ 11511.5(b)(11), 11420.10-11420.30; see discussion in § 473C.21[8], below, and Ch. 473H, Alternative Procedures for Agency Decisions (discussion of alternative dispute resolution)].

- The use of informal hearing procedures [Gov. Code §§ 11511.5(b)(11), 11445.10-11445.60; see discussion in § 473C.21[9], below, and Ch. 473H, Alternative Procedures for Agency Decisions (discussion of informal hearings)].

[2] Provisions of Governing Statute

[a] Motion for Conference and Notice of Conference

A prehearing conference may be held on the motion of a party or by the order of the administrative law judge [Gov. Code § 11511.5(a)]. For a form that may be used in moving for a prehearing conference, see § 473C.50. The ALJ will set the time and place for the conference, and the ALJ is required to give reasonable written notice of the conference to all parties [Gov. Code § 11511.5(a)]. The conference is conducted by the ALJ [Gov. Code § 11511.5(a)].

[b] Subject Matter of Conference

The prehearing conference may deal with one or more of the following [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)]:

- Exploration of settlement possibilities [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(1); see Gov. Code § 11511.7 and § 473C.21].

- Preparation of stipulations [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(2)].

- Clarification of issues [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(3)].

- Rulings on the identity and the number of witnesses [Gov. Code § 1511.5(b)(4)].

- Objections to offers of evidence [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(5)].

- Order of presentation of evidence and cross-examination [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(6)].

- Rulings regarding issuance of subpoenas and protective orders [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(7); see Gov. Code § 11450.05 et seq. (governing subpoenas), and discussion regarding subpoenas in Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications , and Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings].

- Schedules for the submission of written briefs [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(8)].

- Schedules for the commencement and conduct of the hearing [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(8)].

- Exchange of witness lists and of exhibits or documents to be offered in evidence at the hearing [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(9); see 25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 232 (1995) (noting that this provision is not intended to provide a new discovery procedure; if a party has not availed itself of discovery within the time periods provided by Gov. Code Section 11507.6, it should not be permitted to use the prehearing conference as a substitute for statutory discovery; the prehearing conference is limited to an exchange of witness lists and of exhibits or documents to be offered in evidence at the hearing)].

- Motions for intervention [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(10); see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication , and Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings , for further discussion regarding intervention].

- Exploration of the possibility of using alternate dispute resolution or informal hearing procedures [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(11); see Ch. 473H, Alternative Procedures for Agency Decisions for further discussion regarding alternative dispute resolution and informal hearing procedures].

- Any other matters that will promote the orderly and prompt conduct of the hearing [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(12)].

[c] Conduct of Prehearing Conference

The administrative law judge may conduct all or part of the prehearing conference by telephone, television, or other electronic means if each participant in the conference has an opportunity to participate in and to hear the entire proceeding while it is taking place [Gov. Code § 11511.5(c)].

While Gov. Code § 11511.5(c) permits the conduct of proceedings by telephone, television, or other electronic means (including conference telephone calls), the presiding officer may of course conduct the proceedings in the physical presence of all participants [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

[d] Conversion of Prehearing Conference Into Alternative Dispute Resolution or Informal Hearing Procedure by Consent of Parties

With the parties consent, the prehearing conference can be converted into one of the following [Gov. Code § 11511.5(d)]:

- An immediate alternative dispute resolution proceeding.
- An immediate informal hearing.
- An alternative dispute resolution proceeding to be conducted at another time.
- An informal hearing to be conducted at another time, subject to the right of a party to object to the use of the informal hearing procedure under Gov. Code § 11445.30.

See further discussion in § 473C.21[8],[9], and discussion and forms relating to these procedures, see Ch. 473H, Alternative Procedures for Agency Decisions [see also Gov. Code § 11420.10 et seq.].

[e] Prehearing Orders

The ALJ issues a prehearing order incorporating the matters determined at the prehearing conference. The ALJ may direct one or more of the parties to prepare a prehearing order [Gov. Code § 11511.5(e)]. For an example of a prehearing conference order, see § 473C.51.

[3] Case Management Program Criteria

The staffing limitations of the OAH do not permit a prehearing conference in every case; typical short cases do not require a conference. The presiding ALJ of each regional office, or a designee, selects the cases that will be included in what the OAH calls the Case Management Program (CMP). In the first year after the enactment of Gov. Code § 11511.5, the cases designated for case management had one or more of the following characteristics:

- Scheduled for four or more days of hearing.
- Filed as Commission on State Mandate test claims [see Gov. Code §§ 17550-17616 (reimbursement of local agencies and school districts for costs mandated by state)].
- Filed as toxic substances violations [see Health & Safety Code § 25187 (hearings on hazardous waste and hazardous substance violations)].
- Filed as Stull Act teacher dismissal proceedings [see Educ. Code §§ 44932 (grounds for dismissal), 44944 (conduct of hearing); see Ch. 512, Schools: Certification, Dismissal, and Related Employment Issues].

- Involved numerous parties.

Cases in which respondents are not represented by counsel are rarely assigned to case management.

[4] Case Management Program Procedures

[a] Scheduling Conference and OAH Notice Form

Matters assigned to the Case Management Program will be set for a prehearing conference before the ALJ who will eventually hear the case [Gov. Code § 11511.5(a); see [2][a], above]. If settlement negotiations take place, however, OAH policy provides for referral of the negotiations to another ALJ [see § 473C.21[1][b]].

The conference is usually set in the regional office about six to eight weeks before the hearing, but may be conducted by a telephone conference call. The notice form used by the OAH identifies the following matters that may be considered at the prehearing conference; the matters listed in this form are similar to, but not identical with, the subjects for prehearing conferences listed in Gov. Code § 11511.5(b) [see [2][b], above]:

- Clarification of factual and legal issues in dispute.

- Stipulations to factual matters and to the admission of exhibits, including waiving foundation requirements and waiving other objections regarding exhibits and testimony.

- Special defenses, such as collateral estoppel or res judicata, entrapment, discriminatory enforcement, and statute of limitations or laches.

- Jurisdictional and due process matters, including objections to the form and sufficiency of pleadings, motions to consolidate, and motions to sever.

- The identity of and limitations on the number of witnesses, the need for interpreters, and the scheduling and order of witnesses.

- Resolution of remaining discovery problems, claims of privilege, motions to quash, protective orders, and subpoenas.

- Exchange of witness lists and of exhibits or documents to be offered in evidence at the hearing.

- Motions for Intervention.

- Use of alternative dispute resolution or informal hearing procedures.

- Any other matters that will promote the orderly and efficient conduct of the hearing.

[b] Preparation for Conference and Attendance of Trial Counsel

Thorough preparation for the prehearing conference is essential to achieve its purposes and to make the arrangements necessary to an orderly and efficient hearing. Counsel should prepare written motions with points and authorities as necessary and send copies to opposing counsel and the ALJ before the prehearing conference. Trial counsel, rather than junior associates without authority to act for the client, must attend. Counsel should either obtain authority from the client to enter into stipulations and agreements or insure that the client is present.

[c] Stipulations and Admissions

The judge will attempt to narrow the contested issues by seeking stipulations and admissions, and may order amendment or clarification of the pleadings [see Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(2) (matters that may be dealt with at prehearing conference include the preparation of stipulations); see also [2][b], above]. When the facts are essentially undisputed, the parties can avoid the expense of an unnecessary hearing by providing the ALJ with a statement of stipulated facts. The remaining legal issues can be briefed and argued, as necessary.

[d] Exhibits

Parties are customarily ordered to produce a written list of all exhibits at the prehearing conference [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(9)], as well as a copy of each exhibit so that it may be marked. The ALJ may mark the exhibits at the conference, or direct counsel to do so. If opposing counsel has not received a set of exhibits during discovery, an additional set of exhibits must be provided for opposing counsel. To avoid confusion at the hearing, voluminous documents, such as medical records or a title insurance file, require uniform pagination. Counsel may be directed to meet after the conference to eliminate duplicate exhibits, paginate exhibits, "sanitize" exhibits by striking protected or identifying information (such as the last name of a patient), or to copy video and audio tapes [see Board of Medical Quality Assurance v. Hazel Hawkins Memorial Hospital (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 561, 565, 185 Cal. Rptr. 405 (subpoena of medical records upheld against right of privacy challenge because the subpoena sought neither disclosure of the patients' identity nor identifying medical information)].

The ALJ will ask the parties to agree to waive foundation requirements for exhibits and to stipulate that the exhibits are admissible. Frequently, parties agree to the admission of all exhibits at the prehearing conference, perhaps because prehearing conferences tend to be less antagonistic and confrontational than hearings.

[e] Witnesses

[i] Witness Lists

Counsel are required to present a complete witness list at the prehearing conference [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(9)]. The list must identify any expert witnesses, and provide a curriculum vitae or resume for each. Failure to identify a witness before the hearing may provide grounds to exclude the testimony of that witness [Aengst v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 275, 283, 167 Cal. Rptr. 796 (evidence of polygraph test properly excluded because polygraph was of questionable scientific reliability and was administered by friendly polygrapher, and appellant failed to include name of polygrapher in witness list before hearing)].

[ii] Expert Witnesses

The ALJ will seek stipulations that the individuals offered as expert witnesses are experts, and will review the proposed scope of the experts' testimony. Frequently, parties offer written reports by the experts, and stipulations to admit the reports as direct evidence may eliminate the need for calling an expert witness on peripheral issues. Lengthy and complex hypothetical questions are frequently posed to expert witnesses, and the questions may be made even less intelligible by the direction that the expert assume additional facts or elements. The ALJ may order the parties to reduce all proposed hypothetical questions to writing and provide copies to opposing counsel and the ALJ before the hearing.

To save costs and accommodate the schedule of an expert witness, a party may request that the witness be scheduled for a specific time, and that the testimony of other witnesses be interrupted, if necessary, for the examination of the expert. If the expert testimony will contain, or the subject of the hearing involves, scientific, technical, or arcane terms, the ALJ may require the parties to furnish a glossary of any such words or terms.

[iii] Estimated Length of Testimony and Summary of Testimony

An accurate estimate of the expected length of the testimony of proposed witnesses is essential to determining if the time reserved for hearing is sufficient, thus avoiding the delay and expense of reconvening the parties, counsel, and the ALJ for continued hearings. Continuances are disfavored, and the need for such a delay must be promptly communicated to the prehearing judge [Gov. Code § 11524(b) (party must ordinarily apply for continuance within 10 working days of discovering need); see also § 473C.15[7][b]]. Counsel may be required to furnish brief statements of the matters to which each witness will testify.

In practice, discussion of summaries of testimony in the conference has shortened the hearing by eliminating the need to call some witnesses. In one conference, for example, a witness summary revealing that various witnesses would be called to testify as custodians of records could prompt a stipulation that the records be admitted. In another case, the proposed testimony of a property appraiser about methods of valuation and the value of the subject property might become unnecessary if the parties stipulate that the appraiser's report can come in as direct evidence. The summary of proposed testimony also might allow prehearing orders limiting the questions that can be posed. For example, a summary stating that a police officer will be called to testify about a report of child abuse at a child day-care facility may prompt a prehearing direction by the ALJ that the proposed witness will not be asked the identity of the caller, because such information is protected by Health & Safety Code § 1596.853(b).

[iv] Special Arrangements

Any need for special arrangements for witnesses should be raised at the prehearing conference. Such special arrangements might include the following:

- Need for an interpreter [Gov. Code §§ 11435.15(a), 11435.20(b), 11435.60; see Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings].

- Accessibility for handicapped persons.

- Scheduling problems.

- Exclusions to protect alleged minor victims of abuse [see Seering v. Dept. of Social Services (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 298, 303-306, 239 Cal. Rptr. 422 (exclusion of respondent to protect minor upheld); see also § 473C.13[4][b]].

[v] Rulings on Identity and Number and Motions to Exclude

At the prehearing conference, the ALJ may rule on the identity and number of witnesses [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(4)]. At the prehearing conference or the start of the hearing, counsel may make a motion to exclude witnesses until they have testified.

[f] Prehearing Orders

[i] Requirement of Order and Reporting

The preferences of individual ALJs vary with regard to the reporting of the proceeding. Frequently, the conference is off the record during discussion of the items enumerated in the OAH Notice [see [4][a], above], and the reporter is called in near the end of the conference to transcribe the stipulations, agreements, admissions, and rulings made. In addition, the ALJ will issue, or direct a party to prepare for his or her signature, a written prehearing order memorializing these matters [Gov. Code § 11511.5(e); see [2][c], above].

[ii] Briefs

Another matter that may arise at the prehearing conference is the schedule for submission of written briefs [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(8); see also [2][b], above]. Parties may be directed, or may request the opportunity, to file points and authorities on evidentiary or legal issues on which a ruling is not made at the prehearing conference itself. Usually, the ALJ will issue a prehearing order ruling on the disputed matter sufficiently in advance of the hearing date to permit counsel to adjust their presentation or strategy. As for whether the order is subject to judicial review before the hearing, see [iii], below. Points on which briefs have been filed and orders issued include the following:

- The admissibility of polygraph results [see Aengst v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 275, 283, 167 Cal. Rptr. 796 (polygraph evidence ruled inadmissible by ALJ)].

- Testimony by respondent's former attorney about advice given to respondent on the ultimate question of law.

- The disclosure of the names of child-abuse informants [see Health & Safety Code § 1596.853(b) (names of persons complaining about violations of applicable requirements by child day-care facility will not be disclosed to licensee)].

- The exclusion of evidence allegedly found in an illegal search when the search was conducted by a police agency unrelated to the complainant [see Governing Board v. Metcalf (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 546, 111 Cal. Rptr. 724 (exclusionary rule does not apply to proceeding to discipline teacher on moral grounds)].

[iii] Judicial Review of Prehearing Order as Final Administrative Order

Whether the prehearing order is a "final administrative order" subject to judicial review by a petition for administrative mandamus before the hearing begins apparently depends on the scope of the order and its effect on the hearing. No reported cases address this issue.

[5] Responsibility of Administrative Law Judge in Case Management Program

The OAH Case Management Program provides, with few exceptions, that the ALJ who will hear the case on its merits will conduct the prehearing conference, issue all prehearing orders, and otherwise have responsibility for the expeditious and orderly conduct of the case. If there is to be a settlement conference, however, OAH policy dictates that the ALJ who is to hear the case should refer the matter to another ALJ for a settlement conference [see Gov. Code § 11511.7(b), and discussion in § 473C.21[1][b]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute ResolutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & PowersAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityFinal Order RequirementEvidenceDemonstrative EvidenceGeneral OverviewEvidenceTestimonyExpertsQualifications

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Prehearing Conferences, and Negotiation and Settlement

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.21

§ 473C.21 Negotiation and Settlement

[1] Settlement Conferences

[a] Availability of Formal Conference With ALJ

Exploration of settlement possibilities in prehearing conferences under the California APA is expressly provided for in Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(1), but prehearing conferences are available only for selected complex cases.

Gov. Code § 11511.7 authorizes settlement conferences to be held for agency adjudications conducted under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.). The administrative law judge may order the parties to attend and participate in a settlement conference. The administrative law judge shall set the time and place for the settlement conference, and shall give reasonable written notice to all parties [Gov. Code § 11511.7(a)]. Under this section, settlement conferences may, but are not required to, be separate from the prehearing conference at which exploration of settlement issues may occur. Attendance and participation at the settlement conference is mandatory. Communications made in settlement negotiations are protected under Gov. Code § 11415.60 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

Gov. Code § 11415.60 allows agencies to make decisions by settlement [see generally Ch. 473H, Alternative Procedures for Agency Decisions]. Because the settlement practices and procedures of agencies that are not subject to the formal hearing provisions of the APA may vary, counsel should consult the administrative agency to determine the particular practices employed and settlement resources available.

[b] Assignment to ALJ

Although prehearing conferences are normally handled by the ALJ who is to hear the case on its merits, settlement conferences are referred to another ALJ as a matter of OAH policy. Gov. Code § 11511.7 authorizes settlement conferences to be held for agency adjudications conducted under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.). The administrative law judge at the settlement conference shall not preside at the hearing unless otherwise stipulated by the parties. The administrative law judge may conduct all or part of the settlement conference by telephone, television, or other electronic means if each participant in the conference has an opportunity to participate in and to hear the entire proceeding while it is taking place [Gov. Code § 11511.7(b)].

[c] Scheduling, Notice, and Preparation

For the convenience of counsel, a settlement conference may be scheduled after the prehearing conference and on the same day. Notice of a settlement conference is customarily given by the appropriate OAH regional office. Gov. Code § 11511.7 authorizes settlement conferences to be held for agency adjudications conducted under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.). The administrative law judge is required to give reasonable written notice to all parties of the settlement conference. The Counsel should either appear with their clients or have authorization to enter settlement agreements. The staff limitations of the OAH preclude serial settlement conferences. To take advantage of the settlement conference, counsel must arrive with a realistic view of what can be achieved and with various settlement proposals prepared.

[d] Timing of Settlement Negotiations

The timing of settlement negotiations is critical. While respondents are usually more amenable to settlement as the hearing date approaches, agencies that have invested the time and expense to prepare for hearing become less and less inclined to settle as the hearing date draws nearer. Respondents' counsel should initiate settlement efforts promptly after receipt of the accusation [see Gov. Code § 11503 (initiation of California APA disciplinary hearing by filing of accusation)], or other initial pleading. The prayer for relief or the recommendation for discipline in the pleading will suggest a starting point for settlement negotiations.

[2] Agency Authority to Settle

Agencies and agency attorneys have the same options to settle cases on any legitimate terms as are available to private litigants and attorneys [Rich Vision Centers, Inc. v. Board of Medical Examiners (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 110, 117, 192 Cal. Rptr. 455] . In addition to the authority to explore settlement possibilities in prehearing conferences granted by Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(1), agencies have the implied authority to negotiate settlement terms not expressly authorized by statute, including terms that provide for cost recovery, as long as the settlement provisions do not violate public policy [Rich Vision Centers, Inc. v. Board of Medical Examiners (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 110, 114-116, 192 Cal. Rptr. 455] . This implied authority was recognized in the leading case of Rich Vision Centers, Inc. v. Board of Medical Examiners (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 110, 192 Cal. Rptr. 455 , in which the court of appeal noted that this authority would provide the following benefits to both parties [Rich Vision Centers, Inc. v. Board of Medical Examiners (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 110, 115, 192 Cal. Rptr. 455] :

- Greater flexibility in resolving disputes.
- Increased economy and efficiency.
- Time saved.
- Fewer enforcement problems, because any conditions imposed on a licensee are voluntarily accepted.

Gov. Code § 11511.7 authorizes settlement conferences to be held for agency adjudications conducted under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.). Gov. Code § 11415.60(a) codifies the rule in the Rich Vision case [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 150 (1995)]. Gov. Code § 11415.60(a) provides, in relevant part, that an agency may formulate and issue a decision by settlement, pursuant to an agreement of the parties, without conducting an adjudicative proceeding. Subject to Gov. Code § 11415.60(c), the settlement may be on any terms the parties determine are appropriate [Gov. Code § 11415.60(a)]. Gov. Code § 11415.60(c) provides, in turn, that a settlement is subject to any necessary agency approval. Gov. Code § 11415.60 is subject to a specific statute to the contrary governing the matter [see Gov. Code § 11415.20 (conflicting or inconsistent statute controls)]. Gov. Code § 11415.60(c) recognizes that some other statutes provide for agency approval of a settlement; these statutes include the following [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 150 (1995)]:

- State Personnel Board authority to approve settlements [Gov. Code § 18681].
- Labor standards enforcement settlement approval [Lab. Code § 98.2(d)].
- Worker's compensation settlement approval [Lab. Code § 5001].
- Governor's approval of State Lands Commission settlement [Pub. Res. Code § 6107].
- Approval of tax settlements [Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 7093.5, 9271, 19442, 30459.1, 32471, 40211, 41171, 43522, 45867, 50156.11, 55332].

[3] Disciplinary Guidelines

Most licensing agencies have disciplinary guidelines that recommend maximum and minimum penalties for particular violations. For example, the Medical Board of California publishes The Manual of Disciplinary Guidelines and Model Disciplinary Orders. A copy of the manual is available from the Board's Sacramento office. The Bureau of Automotive Repair publishes the Bureau of Automotive Repair Guidelines for Disciplinary Penalties and Terms of Probation (dated July 3, 1987). A copy of these guidelines may be obtained by a written request to either the Bureau or the deputy attorney general who is representing the Bureau in a given action. Both of these agencies have adopted disciplinary guidelines. Familiarity with these guidelines and the recommended maximum and minimum penalties can help counsel to prepare a settlement offer that the agency is more likely to accept.

Comparing the recommended penalties for different offenses may indicate the ranking or significance of the violation in that agency's disciplinary scheme, and may thus suggest how willing the agency is likely to be to negotiate. Counsel should also consult the guidelines to see how the severity of the penalty to be imposed is determined. Knowing the aggravating and mitigating factors that apply to the client's case will allow counsel to make a better bargain for the client. For a list of some of the agencies that have disciplinary guidelines or model disciplinary orders, see [4], below.

[4] Model Disciplinary Orders

Another factor that counsel should be aware of before beginning settlement talks is model disciplinary orders, also called model probationary conditions. These model orders are proposed revocation language and probation terms suggested by the licensing agency. For example, the Board of Pharmacy in its regulations sets disciplinary conditions of probation that apply to a pharmacist [16 Cal. Code Reg. § 1773], or a pharmacy permit [16 Cal. Code Reg. § 1773], unless the Board directs otherwise [16 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1773(a), 1774(a)]. Knowledge of the applicable probation options will help counsel to devise a reasonable settlement offer and to get the best deal for the client.

In addition to the Board of Pharmacy, agencies that have established model disciplinary orders, disciplinary guidelines, or both, include, but are not limited to, the following:

- The Board of Registered Nursing.
- The Board of Chiropractic Examiners.
- The Contractors' State License Board.

- The Board of Dental Examiners.
- The Psychology Examining Committee.
- The Structural Pest Control Board.
- The Board of Vocational Nurse and Psychiatric Technician Examiners.
- The Medical Board of California.
- The Bureau of Automotive Repair.
- The Department of Real Estate.

A copy of the guidelines or the model disciplinary orders is usually available from the agency in question on request.

[5] Costs or Restitution as Condition of Settlement

Some agencies have the authority to require the payment of costs or restitution. These payments may be imposed as a condition of settlement. For example, agencies authorized to recover the costs of the investigation and prosecution of the disciplinary proceeding if the accusation is sustained include, but are not limited to, the following:

- The Podiatry Examining Committee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 2497.5].
- The Board of Pharmacy [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3].
- The Acupuncture Committee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 4959].

Similarly, the Contractors' State License Board has the authority to order a licensee to pay a specified sum to an injured owner of a construction project in lieu of correcting deficient work [Bus. & Prof. Code § 7099; 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 881].

[6] Diversion Programs

Various health-related licensing agencies have established programs to identify and rehabilitate licensees impaired by abuse of alcohol and other drugs, and mental and physical illness [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2770-2770.14; 16 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1446-1449 (nurses); Bus. & Prof. Code § 4360 (pharmacists); Bus. & Prof. Code § 2243; 16 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1357-1357.8 (doctors); Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2340-2356 (doctors); 16 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1357-1357.8 (physicians and surgeons)].

Counsel who represent impaired licensees in disciplinary proceedings should consider using available diversion programs even if the impairment is not the focus of the accusation. For example, although drug abuse may have contributed to a physician's grossly negligent treatment of a patient, an accusation may charge the violation without reference to the impairment, which may be unknown to the licensing agency. On the other hand, alcohol or drug dependency or mental or physical illness of a licensee that could endanger public safety can itself be the basis for license discipline. In either case, the licensee's successful and cooperative participation in the diversion program can stay the prosecution of the license discipline proceeding [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 4360 (pharmacy diversion program is voluntary alternative to traditional discipline); but see Bus. & Prof. Code § 4369(b) (participation no defense to disciplinary action by Pharmacy Board)].

Violation of diversion program requirements, including alcohol or drug testing requirements, may lift the stay [see, e.g., 16 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1357.5 (causes for termination of physician's participation in diversion program), 1358 (alcohol and drug tests may be required of physician on probation)]. The records of diversion programs are confidential and are purged after the licensee's completion of the program [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 2770.12 (nurses); 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 1449 (nurses)].

If the agency does not conduct a diversion program, counsel may wish to propose participation in Alcoholics Anonymous, Narcotics Anonymous, or a similar program as part of a negotiated settlement.

[7] Procedures for Implementing Settlement

A proposed settlement agreement reached by the parties in a licensing proceeding with or without the participation of the ALJ must be adopted or approved by the board or agency itself [Gov. Code § 11415.60(c); Rich Vision Centers, Inc. v. Board of Medical Examiners (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 110, 115, 192 Cal. Rptr. 455] . Once the parties in a licensing proceeding have executed a stipulated settlement, the licensee can not withdraw his or her consent to the terms of the settlement until the agency has had a reasonable opportunity to act upon the settlement [Frankel v. Board of Dental Examiners (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 534, 552-553, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 128] .

However, note that discipline imposed on a dentist by the Board of Dental Examiners under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 1670 and 1670.1 based on misdemeanor convictions of the dentist and entered into pursuant to a stipulation between the dentist and the Board could not be set aside even though the criminal convictions were later vacated by the granting of a habeas corpus writ because the dentist is bound by the stipulation [Stermer v. Board of Dental Examiners (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 128, 130-131, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 294] .

The ALJ or the parties' counsel will customarily write the settlement agreement in the form of a proposed decision [see Gov. Code § 11517(c)(1) (ALJ hearing case alone will submit proposed decision to agency)]. The admitted or stipulated facts, jurisdictional findings, and the statutory basis for discipline should be set forth as well as the settlement terms.

[8] Alternative Dispute Resolution Procedures

Under the new law, agencies have the option, with the consent of all parties, to refer disputes that are the subject of adjudicative proceedings to resolution by alternative dispute resolution procedures including the following [Gov. Code § 11420.10(a)(1), (2), (3)]:

- Mediation by a neutral mediator.
- Binding arbitration by a neutral arbitrator.
- Nonbinding arbitration by a neutral arbitrator.

The specific governing law applicable to a particular agency, that requires use of arbitration or mediation in adjudicative proceedings, is controlling over this law, and this law applies to agencies that are not subject to specific statutory requirements unless the agency adopts regulations making this law inapplicable to adjudicative proceedings before this agency [Gov. Code § 11420.10(b), (c)]. The Office of Administrative Hearings [Gov. Code §§ 11370.3, 11370.5] is required to adopt model regulations for alternative dispute resolution [Gov. Code § 11420.20], and the law provides for confidentiality of communications in alternative dispute resolution proceedings [Gov. Code § 11420.30].

For more detailed dicussion, see Ch. 473H, Alternative Procedures for Agency Decisions .

[9] Informal Hearing Procedures

Agencies may conduct adjudicative proceedings using the informal hearing procedures provided for and subject to the limitations of Gov. Code § 11445.10 et seq. [Gov. Code § 11445.10(a)]. For further discussion of this procedure, see Ch. 473H, Alternative Procedures for Agency Decisions .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute ResolutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & PowersAdministrative LawSeparation of PowersLegislative ControlsImplicit Delegation of AuthorityGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicensesHealthcare LawBusiness Administration & OrganizationLicensesGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Prehearing Conferences, and Negotiation and Settlement

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473C.22-473C.29

[Reserved]

§§ 473C.22[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.30

§ 473C.30 Federal Constitution

Due process clause. U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.31

§ 473C.31 State Constitution

Due process clause. Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.32

§ 473C.32 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

Accusation. Gov. Code § 11503

Administrative adjudication bill of rights. Gov. Code §§ 11425.10-11425.60

Administrative Law Judges. Gov. Code § 11502

Affidavits. Gov. Code § 11514

Agency decisional authority. Gov. Code § 11440.10

Agencies to which act applies. Gov. Code §§ 11410.10, 11501

Amendment of pleadings. Gov. Code §§ 11507, 11516

Applicability of provisions to statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504.5

Conduct of hearing. Gov. Code § 11512

Consolidation of Proceedings. Gov. Code § 11507.3

Contempt. Gov. Code §§ 11455.10-11455.30

Continuances. Gov. Code § 11524

Conversion of Proceedings. Gov. Code §§ 11470.10-11470.50

Decision. Gov. Code §§ 11516-11520, 11526

Declaratory Decision. Gov. Code §§ 11465.10-11465.70

Definitions of terms. Gov. Code §§ 11405.10-11405.80, 11500

Depositions. Gov. Code § 11511

Discovery. Gov. Code §§ 11507.5-11507.7

Disqualification. Gov. Code §§ 11425.30, 11425.40, 11512

Emergency decision. Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80

Evidence. Gov. Code §§ 11435.10, 11440.40, 11513

Ex parte communications. Gov. Code §§ 11430.10-11430.80

Hearings by electronic means. Gov. Code § 11440.30

Informal hearings. Gov. Code §§ 11445.10-11445.60

Intervention. Gov. Code § 11440.50

Language assistance. Gov. Code §§ 11435.05-11435.65

Judicial review. Gov. Code § 11523

Notice of defense. Gov. Code § 11506

Notice of hearing. Gov. Code § 11509

Oaths. Gov. Code § 11528

Official notice. Gov. Code § 11515

Reconsideration. Gov. Code § 11521

Reporting proceedings. Gov. Code § 11512

Restoration of rights. Gov. Code § 11522

Separate hearings. Gov. Code § 11507.3

Service and notice. Gov. Code § 11440.20

Service of initial pleading. Gov. Code § 11505

Settlement conferences. Gov. Code § 11511.7

Sexual harrassment. Gov. Code § 11440.40

Statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504

Subpoenas. Gov. Code §§ 11450.05-11450.50

Time and place of hearing. Gov. Code § 11508

Waiver of rights. Gov. Code § 11415.40

[2] Related Statutes

Affidavit of good cause as required for subpoena duces tecum. Code Civ. Proc. § 1985

Witness served with subpoena as entitled to demand one day's fees and mileage allowance. Code Civ. Proc. § 1987

Witness fees and mileage allowances. Gov. Code §§ 11191, 68093, 68097.2

Right to have subpoena issued. Gov. Code § 11190

Office of Administrative Hearings. Gov. Code §§ 11370.3-11370.5

Board of supervisors of county as empowered to establish county hearing officer. Gov. Code §§ 27720, 27721

Oaths used in civil proceedings. Code Civ. Proc. § 2094

Evidentiary effect of plea of nolo contendere. Penal Code § 1016

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.33

§ 473C.33 Decisions

[1] Consolidation and Severance

Agency is entitled to consolidate cases having common ground. Ashbacker Radio Corp. v. Federal Communications Comm'n (1945) 326 U.S. 327, 330-333, 66 S. Ct. 148, 90 L. Ed. 108 ; Bostick v. Martin (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 179, 183, 55 Cal. Rptr. 322

Time limit for decision imposed by statute is directory or mandatory. Henderling v. Carleson (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 561, 566, 111 Cal. Rptr. 612 (mandatory in circumstances); Koehn v. State Board of Equalization (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 109, 118-119, 333 P.2d 125 (directory); Peak v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 926, 932, 187 P.2d 905 (directory)

Decision is required to include written findings where findings required. In re Sturm (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 258, 266, 272, 113 Cal. Rptr. 361, 521 P.2d 97

Findings are not required to be stated with same formality as in judgment. Savelli v. Board of Medical Examiners (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 124, 134, 40 Cal. Rptr. 171 , cert. denied, 380 U.S. 934, 85 S. Ct. 940, 13 L. Ed. 2d 821 (1965)

[2] Continuances

Appellant is not entitled to continuance for purpose of filing petition to compel discovery pursuant to Gov. Code § 11507.7 when limitation period for filing petition has expired. Lax v. Board of Medical Quality Assur. (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 669, 675-676, 172 Cal. Rptr. 258

Respondent is not entitled to continuance for purpose of obtaining counsel or having counsel present if given adequate opportunity to get counsel and have counsel present. Skipitar v. Munro (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 1, 4-6, 345 P.2d 508

[3] Demurrer

Right to demur by separate pleading in case not governed by APA. Dyment v. Board of Medical Examiners (1922) 57 Cal. App. 260, 263-264, 207 P. 409

Agency is without jurisdiction if initial pleading fails to state acts or omissions on which agency may proceed. Rapaport v. Civil Serv. Comm'n (1933) 134 Cal. App. 319, 325, 25 P.2d 265

Agency is without jurisdiction if no statute authorizes proceeding. O'Neil v. Department of Professional & Vocational Standards (1935) 7 Cal. App. 2d 395, 397-398, 46 P.2d 234

Objection to form of initial pleading is analogous to demurrer for uncertainty. Stuck v. Board of Medical Examiners (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 751, 756, 211 P.2d 389

[4] Nonsuit

Hearing officer is not empowered to grant request in nature of motion for nonsuit. O'Mara v. State Bd. of Pharmacy (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 8, 11, 54 Cal. Rptr. 862

[5] Setting for Hearing

Change of venue for administrative hearing is matter of agency discretion. Keller Industries, Inc. v. Occupational Safety & Health Appeals Bd. (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 469, 474-476, 177 Cal. Rptr. 136 (discretion is not abused when agency refused to change venue from city which was 64 miles from litigant's place of business absent showing that selection was made arbitrarily or with improper motive)

Reference to APA in cases not governed by act is permissible to determine time for hearing. Rudolph v. Athletic Commission (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 1, 12, 1 Cal. Rptr. 898

Change of venue. Campbell v. Board of Dental Examiners (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 872, 876-877, 95 Cal. Rptr. 351

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsContentsAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & Powers

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.34

§ 473C.34 Internet References

Office of Administrative Hearings. This site includes: information and location concerning specific OAH offices; an OAH hearing guide; information concerning Administrative Procedure Act statutes, regulations, and proposed regulations; OAH forms; information concerning alternative dispute resolution procedures; and declaratory decisions. http://www.dgs.ca.gov/oah

Office of Administrative Law. This site includes: link to text of Cal. Code of Regulations (http://ccr.oal.ca.gov); OAL publications; links to OAL statutes and regulations relating to rulemaking; regulations submitted to the OAL for review, and information for contacting or provding input to the OAL regarding rulemaking. http://www.oal.ca.gov

California Home Page. This site includes links to other sites maintained by numerous state agencies. http://www.ca.gov

Department of Consumer Affairs. This site includes links to sites maintained by many state agencies that are under this department, as well as links to agency sites. http://www.dca.ca.gov

California Courts. This site includes: general information about state court organization and specific court; text of recently filed slip opinions; court minutes and calendars; text of California Rules of Court; Judicial Council forms and other information promulgated by the Judicial Council; links to sites of most Court of Appeal districts, with text of local appellate rules, forms, and internal operating procedures; links to other sites maintained by local trial courts, state government agencies and organizations, federal courts and federal organizations, and other sources of legal information. http://www.courtinfo.ca.gov

California Legislative Information. This site includes: text of constitution, codes, and statutes (including complete text of APA); and information concerning pending legislation. http://www.leginfo.ca.gov

Matthew Bender. This site includes: links to Matthew Bender publications and Shepard's citation service. http://www.bender.com

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute ResolutionAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsCreation & OrganizationGovernmentsLegislationEnactment

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473C.35-473B.39

[Reserved]

§§ 473C.35[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.40

§ 473C.40 Prehearing Conference

[1] Motion for Prehearing Conference

☐ Prepare motion [Gov. Code § 11511.5(a); see § 473C.20[2]]; for a form, see § 473C.50].

☐ Prepare declarations, as necessary.

☐ Prepare points and authorities, as necessary [see § 473C.20[4][b]].

☐ File with ALJ.

[2] Preparation for Prehearing Conference

☐ Prepare prehearing conference order [Gov. Code § 11511.5(e); see § 473C.20[2][e]; for a form, see § 473C.51].

☐ Send copies to opposing counsel.

☐ Send copies to ALJ.

☐ Prepare stipulations [see § 473C.20[4][c]].

☐ Prepare written list of all exhibits for marking [see § 473C.20[4][d]].

☐ Prepare witness list [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(9); see § 473C.20[4][e]].

☐ Identify expert witnesses on list [see § 473C.20[4][e][ii]].

☐ Provide curriculum vitae or resume for each expert witness.

☐ Prepare proposed hypothetical questions in writing, if requested by ALJ.

☐ Provide copies to ALJ before hearing.

☐ Provide copies to opposing counsel before hearing.

☐ Make request that expert witnesses be scheduled for a specific time.

☐ Provide glossary of terms if requested by the ALJ.

☐ Prepare request for special arrangements [see § 473C.20[4][e][iv]].

☐ Prepare motion to exclude witnesses until they testify [see § 473C.20[4][e][v]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityEvidenceTestimonyExpertsGeneral OverviewEvidenceTestimonyExpertsQualifications

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.41

§ 473C.41 Settlement Conferences

[1] Preparation

☐ Prepare various settlement proposals [see § 473C.21[1][c]].

[2] Implementation of Settlement

☐ Prepare proposed settlement agreement [see Gov. Code § 11517(c)(1); see § 473C.21[7]].

☐ Execute and have opposing party execute agreement.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing Activity

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.42

§ 473C.42 Motion for Change in Place of Hearing

[1] Motion

- ☐ Prepare motion [see § 473C.14[4]].
  - ☐ Prepare and attach memorandum of points and authorities.
  - ☐ Prepare and attach supporting declaration or affidavit.
- ☐ Filing.
  - ☐ File with ALJ assigned to the hearing.
  - ☐ File within 10 days after service of notice of hearing [Gov. Code § 11508(c)].
- ☐ Notice.
  - ☐ Give notice to other parties.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law Judges

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.43

§ 473C.43 Requesting a Continuance

[1] Timing of Request

☐ Request within 10 working days after the discovery of, or when the event or condition that establishes good cause for the continuance, should have been discovered [Gov. Code § 11524(b); see § 473C.15[7][b]].

[2] Where to Make Request

☐ Prior to assignment to ALJ, request continuance from agency [Gov. Code § 11524(a); see § 473C.15[7][a]].

☐ After assignment to ALJ, make request to appropriate regional OAH [Gov. Code § 11524(a); see § 473C.15[7][a]].

☐ Telephone request to presiding judge of the OAH regional office that will hear the matter [see § 473C.15[7][c]].

[3] Oral Argument

☐ Request brief hearing for oral argument (optional) [see § 473C.15[7][f]]. If granted:

☐ Prepare request in writing to present at hearing.

☐ Attach appropriate declarations.

☐ Serve on opposing counsel.

☐ File with OAH.

[4] Continuance by Stipulation

☐ Inform OAH no later than 25 working days before hearing [see § 473C.15[7][b]].

[5] Partial Continuance

☐ Consider request for partial continuance [see § 473C.15[7][d]].

[6] Judicial Review of Denial of Continuance

☐ Prepare application for judicial review [see § 473C.15[8]].

☐ File in superior court within 10 working days following denial [Gov. Code § 11524(c); see § 473C.15[8]].

☐ Notify agency and other parties.

☐ Give orally at time application is denied, or

☐ In writing when application is made.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.44

§ 473C.44 Miscellaneous Prehearing Motions

[1] Formal APA Hearings

☐ Preparing motions generally [see § 473C.14].

☐ Address to presiding ALJ.

☐ Attach points and authorities and affidavits, as necessary.

☐ Attach supporting declarations or affidavits, as necessary.

☐ Demurrer

☐ Raise in notice of defense [Gov. Code § 11506; see § 473A.11[6]].

☐ General demurrer [Gov. Code § 11506(a)(2), (3); see § 473C.11].

☐ Special demurrer [Gov. Code § 11506(a)(2), (3); see § 473C.11].

☐ Motion to consolidate [Gov. Code § 11507.3; see § 473C.12[1]].

☐ Motion to sever [Gov. Code § 11507.3; see § 473C.12[4]].

☐ Motion to exclude respondent during testimony of minor who is alleged victim of sexual abuse [see

§ 473C.14[2]].

☐ Motion to compel release of confidential records [see § 473C.14[3]].

☐ Motion in limine [see § 473C.14[5]].

[2] Non-APA Proceedings

☐ Motion to consolidate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1048 (grounds under general civil procedure); see also § 473C.12[2]].

☐ Make as early as possible.

☐ Attach supporting affidavits [see § 473C.12[5]].

☐ Address to and file with agency [see § 473C.12[5]].

☐ Motion to sever [Gov. Code § 11507.3; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1048 (grounds under general civil procedure); see also § 473C.12[4]].

☐ Make as early as possible.

☐ Attach supporting affidavits [see § 473C.12[5]].

☐ Address to and file with agency [see § 473C.12[5]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityCivil ProcedurePretrial MattersConsolidation of Actions

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473C.45-473C.49

[Reserved]

§§ 473C.45[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART V. FORMS

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.50

§ 473C.50 Motion for Order Setting Matter for Prehearing Conference and Supporting Declaration [Gov. Code § 11511.5(a)]

[1] FORM Motion for Order Setting Matter for Prehearing Conference and Supporting Declaration [Gov. Code § 11511.5(a)]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

In the Matter of _____ [name], Respondent.	)))))	NO. _____ MOTION FOR ORDER SETTING MATTER FOR PREHEARING CONFERENCE AND SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF _____ [name]

_____

Respondent _____[name] moves the administrative law judge for an order that a prehearing conference be conducted in the above-entitled matter. The motion is made on the grounds that _____[specify grounds], and that a prehearing conference will promote the orderly and prompt conduct of the hearing. The motion is based on the declaration(s) of _____ [name(s)] and the memorandum of points and authorities served and filed herewith, and on the records and file herein.

_____ [date]
Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Respondent

[Include declaration in support of motion for order setting matter for prehearing conference, if necessary]

DECLARATION

I, _____[name], declare:

1. I am _____ [identify declarant, e.g., an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before all the courts of the State of California and the attorney of record herein for respondent or other statement as appropriate].

2. _____[In this and subsequent paragraphs, set forth facts within declarant's personal knowledge showing that a prehearing conference will promote the orderly and prompt conduct of the hearing].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.
_____ [date]

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The form of motion in [1], above, is for use by the respondent in an agency adjudication to secure a prehearing conference. The administrative law judge may conduct the conference on the motion of a party or by the judge's own order. If a conference is ordered, the administrative law judge must set the time and place for the conference and give reasonable written notice to all parties [Gov. Code § 11511.5(a)].

[3] Memorandum

It is not clear whether a memorandum must accompany a motion for a prehearing conference [see Gov. Code § 11511.5(a)], but it is highly recommended. In civil law and motion practice in superior and municipal courts, however, the absence of a memorandum may be construed by the court as an admission that a motion is not meritorious and cause for its denial [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1113].

[4] Cross References

See § 473C.20 for discussion of the legal requirements related to prehearing conferences, and see § 473C.20[2][b], for an enumeration of the matters that may raised in the conference. See also discussion in § 473C.20[4][b] regarding the motion and supporting papers.

For discussion and form relating to declarations in civil actions generally, see Ch.15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations .

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473C PREHEARING PROCEDURES IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART V. FORMS

41A-473C California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473C.51

§ 473C.51 Order for Prehearing Conference [Gov. Code § 11511.5(e)]

[1] FORM Order for Prehearing Conference [Gov. Code § 11511.5(e)]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

	)
In the Matter of	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	PREHEARING CONFERENCE ORDER
Respondent.	)
	)

_____

A prehearing conference in the above-entitled matter was held before the undersigned on _____[date]. _____ [Specify name of each attorney appearing and party represented, and name of each party appearing in person, e.g., _____ (name) appeared as counsel for the _____ (agency) and _____ (name) appeared as counsel for respondent].

[Set forth nature of case and matters resolved at conference, e.g.:]

1. Nature of Case. This is an adjudicatory hearing for _____[set forth concise and descriptive statement of case].

2. Stipulations. The following matters have been stipulated to by the parties: _____[specify, setting forth each matter in a separately lettered subparagraph].

3. Clarification of Issues. The following are the issues remaining in dispute and the factual and legal contentions made by each party with respect to them: _____ [list each disputed issue in a separately lettered subparagraph followed by factual and legal contentions of each party with respect to it].

4. Rulings. The following rulings were made at the prehearing conference: _____ [specify rulings on identity and limitation of number of witnesses, issuance of subpoenas and protective orders, evidentiary rulings, and/or the order of presentation of evidence and cross examination, setting forth concise and descriptive statement of each ruling in a separately lettered subparagraph].
_____ [date]

_____ [signature]
Administrative Law Judge

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, is for use by respondent in an agency adjudication to assist the administrative law judge to prepare a prehearing order. When a prehearing conference is held, the administrative law judge is required to issue a prehearing order incorporating the matters determined at the prehearing conference. The administrative law judge may direct one or more of the parties to prepare the order [Gov. Code § 11511.5(e); see § 473C.20].

For an enumeration of matters that may be raised at the conference, see § 473C.20[2][b].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
EvidenceTestimonyPresentation of Evidence

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 473D.syn

§ 473D.syn Synopsis to Chapter 473D: PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS

§ 473D.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 473D.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

[2] Judicial Review

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

§§ 473D.03-473D.09 [Reserved]

§ 473D.10 Tactics and Preparation Prior to Service of the Accusation or Charging Document

[1] Importance of Early Action

[2] Investigators

[a] Arrival of Investigator

[b] Duty to Talk With Investigator

[c] Duty to Allow Records to Be Viewed or Copied

[i] Agency Subpoena Power

[ii] Medical Records and the Right to Privacy

[d] Duty to Cooperate With Agency Investigations

[3] Request for Interview by Agency at Agency Offices

[4] Demand for Investigative Deposition

[5] Diversion Programs

[6] Malpractice

[7] Going Direct to Agency Counsel

§ 473D.11 Tactics and Preparation After Accusation or Charging Document Is Served

[1] Service of Accusation or Statement of Issues

[2] Response to Accusation or Statement of Issues

[a] Notice of Defense

[b] Special Notice of Defense

[3] APA Discovery

[a] Requests for Discovery

[b] Continuing Discovery

[c] Agency Files

[d] Scope of APA Discovery

[e] Enforcement of Discovery Rights

[f] Prehearing Depositions

[g] Eliminating Surprise

§ 473D.12 Scheduling and Continuances

[1] Setting the Hearing Date

[2] Requesting a Continuance

[a] OAH Does Not Favor Continuances

[b] Possible Solutions

§ 473D.13 Prehearing Conferences

[1] Purpose of Prehearing Conference

[2] Preparation for Prehearing Conference

§ 473D.14 Preparation for Hearing

[1] Reviewing the Charging Document

[2] Investigation

[3] Use of Experts

[4] Organization of Documents

[5] Preparation of Witnesses

[a] Taking Statements

[b] Rehearsal of Witness

[6] Preparation of Client

[a] Education of Client

[b] Rehearsal of Client

[7] Use of Demonstrative Evidence

[8] Trial Briefs

§ 473D.15 Settlements

[1] Desirability of Settlement

[2] Settlement Conferences

[3] Evaluating an Administrative Case

[4] Tactical Considerations in Communicating With Agency Counsel

[5] Authority to Settle

[6] Creative Settlement Options

[7] Stipulating for Settlement

[a] Necessity for Writing

[b] Consent of Client

[8] Post-Settlement Considerations

§§ 473D.16-473D.19 [Reserved]

§ 473D.20 Introduction to Prehearing Tactics and Procedures

§ 473D.21 Prehearing Injunctions and Restraining Orders

[1] Overview

[2] Injunctions Against Violations of Statutes Administered by Boards Within Department of Consumer Affairs

[a] General Requirements

[b] Restitution to Victims and Reimbursement of Agency

[c] Remedy Not Exclusive

[d] Use in Conjunction With Other Statutes Authorizing Injunctive Relief

[3] Orders Restraining Licensees From Practicing Healing Arts

[a] General Requirements

[b] Supporting Affidavits and Memorandum of Points and Authorities

[c] Issuance of Temporary Restraining Order (TRO)

[4] Orders Restraining Licensees From Practicing Professions Other Than Healing Arts

[5] Professional and Vocational Licensing Statutes Authorizing Injunctive Relief

[6] Citation Enforcement System

§ 473D.22 Seeking Prehearing Injunctive Relief

§ 473D.23 Opposing Petitions for Prehearing Injunctive Relief

§ 473D.24 Prehearing Termination of Licensee's Telephone Service

[1] When to Seek Termination

[2] Authority for Termination

[3] Method to Secure Termination

[4] Method to Restore Telephone Service

§ 473D.25 Evidence by Affidavit

[1] General Procedure

[2] Required Notice

§ 473D.26 Prehearing Briefs

§§ 473D.27-473D.39 [Reserved]

§ 473D.40 Federal Constitution

§ 473D.41 State Constitution

§ 473D.42 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

[2] Related Statutes

§ 473D.43 Decisions

§ 473D.44 Text References

§ 473D.45 Internet References

§§ 473D.46-473D.49 [Reserved]

§ 473D.50 Determine the Appropriate Respondent Tactics With Respect to Investigation and Preparation for Hearing

§ 473D.51 Determine the Likelihood That an Agency May Take Unanticipated Prehearing Steps in a Professional or Vocational Licensing Proceeding

§ 473D.52 Response to Accusation or Statement of Issues

§ 473D.53 Preparation for Hearing

[1] Review

[2] Investigation

[3] Witnesses

[4] Documents

[5] Client

[6] Demonstrative Evidence

[7] Briefs

§ 473D.54 Requesting Discovery Under the APA

[1] Request for Discovery

[2] Motion to Compel Discovery

155 of 184 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.01

§ 473D.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the prehearing preparation and tactics in a public agency adjudication, primarily one conducted under the Administrative Procedure Act (APA). The legal background discussion in Part II includes the following:

- Subpart A discusses respondent's tactical considerations in investigation, scheduling and other prehearing matters [see §§ 473D.10 -473D.15].

- Subpart B discusses agency counsel's prehearing tactics in professional and vocational licensing cases including action such as injunctive relief, termination of a licensee's telephone service, evidence by affidavit, and prehearing briefs [see §§ 473D.20 -473D.26].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesInjunctive ReliefGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.02

§ 473D.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

For general discussion and overview of agency adjudication under the Administrative Procedure Act (APA), see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication .

For related discussion and forms providing coverage of the other stages of an agency adjudication under the formal hearing provisions of the APA, see:

- Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication .
- Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications .
- Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications .
- Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges .
- Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings .
- Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions .

For related discussion and forms providing more detailed coverage of adjudication methods under the APA other than that of formal hearing, see Ch. 473H, Alternative Administrative Adjudication Procedures .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to licensing agencies, including licensing adjudications, see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies .

[2] Judicial Review

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to review by California courts of agency adjudications, see:

- Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions .
- Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions .
- Ch. 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions .
- Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions .

For other related discussion and forms relating to judicial review generally, see:

- Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, through Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review (discussion and forms relating to civil appeals).
- Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of orders by extraordinary writ of mandate or prohibition).
- Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of civil proceedings by extraordinary writ of review).

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

For related discussion of California public administrative law generally, including discussion of public agency functions and powers (including adjudicative or quasi-judicial powers), and organization generally, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law (general discussion of judicial power is in §§ 470.12[5]). For detailed discussion of the general procedures imposed in agency proceedings by constitutional due process and related statutory requirements, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies .

For discussion and forms relating to the law governing access to and conduct of meetings by California public agencies, see Ch. 470B, Public Agency Meetings .

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the law governing disclosure of public records under the California Public Records Act [Cal. Gov. Code §§ 6250 et seq.], see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to agency investigations and inspections, see:

- Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies .
- Ch. 471A, Inspections by Public Agencies .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to the legislative or rulemaking functions of California public agencies, including judicial review of these functions, see:

- Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules .
- Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures .
- Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking .

For additional cross references to coverage of particular public agencies, see § 470.02[2].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessGeneral Overview

157 of 184 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473D.03-473D.09

[Reserved]

§§ 473D.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Respondent's Prehearing Preparation

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.10

§ 473D.10 Tactics and Preparation Prior to Service of the Accusation or Charging Document

[1] Importance of Early Action

The time before the accusation or charging document is served is crucial to the investigation and preparation of an administrative law case [see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication , for a discussion of the initial pleadings in agency hearings].

If a licensee or other person learns that charges are about to be filed, it may be possible to intervene with the administrative agency and prevent formal charges. If counsel is consulted at this time, he or she can initiate discussions to try to satisfy the agency without the need for a hearing. Clients should be advised to call as soon as they realize that they may be the subject of an investigation. If counsel believes that the agency is mistaken in its approach or that extenuating or mitigating circumstances would dissuade the agency from noticing a hearing or imposing penalties, it may be appropriate to talk with the agency or its investigator. Just learning why the agency is investigating the client and what the agency knows may justify talks with the agency.

The period before charges are filed is the only opportunity that counsel will have to avoid some of the following negatives:

- The time and expense consumed by an investigation and hearing.

- The bad publicity, with attendant harm to the client's business and the client's reputation, that the mere filing of charges, or even an investigation without charges, may generate [see [6], below].

- The possibility of revealing information that may be used against the client in criminal or administrative proceedings [see [2][b], [d], below].

- The possibility of violating the rights of another in attempting to cooperate with the agency [see [2][c], below].

[2] Investigators

[a] Arrival of Investigator

An individual may first discover that he or she is the subject of concern to an agency when approached by the agency's investigator. Typically, the investigator arrives at the client's place of business or employment unannounced, and seeks to discuss the matter with the client or asks for the production of documents. Because an administrative hearing is not a criminal case, due process does not require the investigator to inform a licensee of his or her rights regarding the investigation [see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies , for a discussion of procedural due process requirements applicable to agency actions].

As discussed in [b], below, the licensee may choose to remain silent unless required by statute to cooperate with the investigator. In any event, an attorney representing a person or business licensed by the state, should advise his or her client to get in touch immediately if they are approached by a state investigator.

[b] Duty to Talk With Investigator

In general, a person has no duty to talk with an investigator. However, particular statutes require licensees to cooperate with agency investigations (see [d], below). If the person under investigation does speak with the investigator, the declarant's statements will be admissible against him or her in any subsequent administrative hearing as statements by a party [see Evid. Code § 1220 (statements offered against the declarant in an action in which he or she is a party are not barred by the hearsay rule)]. Under the special rules applicable to APA hearings, even hearsay is admissible to supplement or explain other evidence, but hearsay is not sufficient in itself to support a finding unless it would be admissible over objection in a civil action [Gov. Code § 11513(c)(d); see Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings]. Statements by employees may also be introduced against the licensee at a subsequent hearing as authorized admissions if the declarant was authorized to speak for the licensee [see Evid. Code § 1222 (authorized admissions not barred by hearsay rule); see also California Trial Guide, Unit 40, § 40.32]. For these reasons, counsel should be consulted immediately on contact by an investigator, so that it can be determined when and if discussions with the agency's representative should occur.

[c] Duty to Allow Records to Be Viewed or Copied

[i] Agency Subpoena Power

Frequently, investigators will serve an investigative subpoena [see Gov. Code §§ 11180-11191 (investigative subpoenas of state agencies)]. State agencies have the power to serve subpoenas requesting the production of documents [Gov. Code § 11181(e)], promulgating interrogatories pertinent or material to any inquiry, investigation, hearing, proceeding, or action [Gov. Code § 11181(f)] or, on occasion, requesting that the person submit to a prehearing deposition under oath [Gov. Code § 11189].

If the person served with the subpoena declines to appear or to provide the requested materials, the agency may proceed to the superior court to seek enforcement of the subpoena [see Gov. Code §§ 11187 (petition to superior court to compel attendance of witness or production of documents), 11188 (court order, contempt power)]. There are no penalties for failing to honor the subpoena prior to a court order directing that the person served comply with the subpoena [People v. West Coast Shows, Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 462, 470, 89 Cal. Rptr. 290] . If an investigative subpoena is issued to depose a licensee, he or she may refuse to answer specific questions by invoking the privilege against self-incrimination [Fielder v. Berkeley Properties Co. (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 30, 39, 99 Cal. Rptr. 791] .

Attorneys called by clients who have been visited by an investigator should caution those clients not to produce any documents and not to discuss anything with the investigator until the attorney has had an opportunity to review the subpoena, if any, and make inquiries concerning the purpose of the investigator's visit. Attorney and client can then decide whether the client will gain or lose by cooperating with the agency.

For detailed discussion regarding administrative subpoenas used for investigative purposes, see Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies .

[ii] Medical Records and the Right to Privacy

If the investigative subpoena demands patient records from a health care provider, the provider may be in a dilemma. Patients have a right to privacy in their medical records. If a physician discloses those records prior to a court order, he or she may well violate the patient's right to privacy [see Cutter v. Brownbridge (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 836, 843, 845-848, 228 Cal. Rptr. 545 (declaration by psychotherapist, describing his diagnosis of patient and disclosing personal details learned in therapy, violated patient's constitutional right to privacy, and was not protected by the Civ. Code § 47(b) privilege for statements in official proceedings unless the therapist first asserted the psychotherapist-patient privilege as provided in Evid. Code § 1015)].

Without the patient's consent, a state agency may not have access to patients' medical records unless it first shows good cause. Good cause may be shown by the presentation of competent evidence sufficient to permit a court to make an independent finding that the particular records sought are relevant, material, and essential to a focused inquiry within the agency's authority [Wood v. Superior Court (1985) 166 Cal. App. 3d 1138, 1149, 212 Cal. Rptr. 811 ; see Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies].

Health care providers, therefore, need to exercise special caution in complying with investigative subpoenas. Contact with counsel is absolutely necessary to make certain that the rights of both the patients and the health care provider are protected.

[d] Duty to Cooperate With Agency Investigations

A few statutes require cooperation with agency investigations. For example, Bus. & Prof. Code § 7111.1 provides that the failure or refusal of a licensee of the Contractors' State License Board to respond to a written request to cooperate in the investigation of a complaint against that licensee is cause for disciplinary action. No appellate decisions, however, define cooperation in this context or discuss the inevitable tension between the individual's constitutional rights (i.e., the privilege against self-incrimination and the right to privacy) [see U.S. Const., amend. V (privilege against self-incrimination); Cal. Const., art. I, § 1 (right to privacy)]. This tension is heightened by the disciplinary sanctions and criminal penalties that many licensing laws impose for violation of their provisions. A licensee who refuses to cooperate may be penalized by the agency. A licensee who cooperates may waive constitutional protections by providing information that will be used to discipline or criminally punish the licensee.

For discussion of constitutional rights as a bar to agency investigations, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law .

[3] Request for Interview by Agency at Agency Offices

Instead of sending an investigator to visit the person under review, the agency may request that the person come to the agency offices for an interview. Both the Contractors' State License Board and the Medical Board of California use this procedure. Because agency investigators are skillful at interviewing, a licensee or person under investigation should never attend such a meeting without counsel present.

[4] Demand for Investigative Deposition

An agency has the power to demand that a person appear at an appointed place, generally the attorney general's office, and submit to questioning under oath by the agency or its representative [see Gov. Code §§ 11180-11191 (agency investigative powers), 11181(e) (power to subpoena attendance of witnesses and production of testimony), 11181(f) (power to promulgate interrogatories pertinent or material to any inquiry, investigation, hearing, proceeding, or action), 11189 (deposition procedures)].

As with the production of documents [see discussion in [2][c][i], above], no penalties exist for refusing to be deposed until a court has ordered the deposition [see Gov. Code §§ 11188 (court may exercise contempt power on failure to comply with order), 11189 (court may punish for contempt after order on petition for deposition); Marcus v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 598, 603, 111 Cal. Rptr. 101 (agencies have no inherent contempt power)].

After a court order, if the person still declines to appear and testify, the court may enforce the subpoena through its contempt powers [Gov. Code § 11188]. For discussion and forms relating to contempt orders generally, see Ch. 135, Contempt .

[5] Diversion Programs

If substance abuse by a licensee is at issue, many agencies provide diversion programs as a possible alternative to disciplinary action.

For example, a physician may apply for the Medical Board of California's diversion program [see 16 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1357-1357.8]. If a licensee voluntarily enters the diversion program, that fact is confidential and will not be shared with the Board's enforcement division [16 Cal. Code Reg. § 1357.8(a)].

Information received before the physician's acceptance into the program or that does not relate to the physician's application to or participation in the program is not confidential, however, and may be used in disciplinary or criminal proceedings against the physician [16 Cal. Code Reg. § 1357.8(b)].

On the successful completion of the diversion program, the program records for that physician will be destroyed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 2355(a)]. Similar programs exist for registered nurses [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2770-2770.14; 16 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1446-1449], pharmacists [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 4360], and dentists [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 1695-1699; 16 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1020.1-1020.8].

For additional discussion of diversion programs, see Chapter 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications .

[6] Malpractice

If malpractice is at issue, it is sometimes appropriate to retain experts, prepare a report on the circumstances surrounding the alleged malpractice, and provide it to the agency. This lets the agency know the licensee's defense, but it also may convince the agency not to file an accusation. The filing of an accusation may do serious harm to the client's professional standing or personal reputation that cannot be overcome by a victory in the hearing.

[7] Going Direct to Agency Counsel

If counsel or the client has had difficult relations with the agency or its investigators, and if counsel feels that there is an absolute defense to any potential charges, calling the agency's counsel may resolve the matter without formal charges. On rare occasions, informal settlements can be made even when the client is not entirely innocent. These infrequent victories depend in large part on counsel's creativity in fashioning a settlement that will satisfy the agency that it has done its duty in protecting the public.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityHearsayAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of ProtectionConstitutional LawSubstantive Due ProcessPrivacyGeneral OverviewHealthcare LawBusiness Administration & OrganizationPatient ConfidentialityGeneral OverviewTortsMalpractice & Professional LiabilityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Respondent's Prehearing Preparation

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.11

§ 473D.11 Tactics and Preparation After Accusation or Charging Document Is Served

[1] Service of Accusation or Statement of Issues

In formal hearings under the APA, there are two kinds of charging documents. Hearings to discipline licensees begin with an accusation [Gov. Code § 11503], and hearings on the denial of an application for the grant or renewal of a license or other privilege begin with a statement of issues [Gov. Code § 11504].

The statement of issues is served in the same way as an accusation unless the hearing is held at the respondent's request [Gov. Code § 11504].

The accusation or statement of issues must be accompanied by the following [Gov. Code § 11505(a)]:

- A statement that respondent may request a hearing by filing a notice of defense [see [2], below], and that failure to do so waives the right to a hearing.
- A form entitled "Notice of Defense," that may be used to request a hearing [see [2][a], below].
- A copy of the discovery provisions of the APA [see Gov. Code §§ 11507.5-11507.7].

Usually, the accusation or statement of issues is also accompanied by the agency's request for discovery under Gov. Code § 11507.6. For discussion of discovery provisions and tactics, see [3], below, and Chapter 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications .

For discussion about the legal requirements related to accusations and statement of issues, see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication .

[2] Response to Accusation or Statement of Issues

[a] Notice of Defense

Counsel's first response to agency charges should be to file the notice of defense, which may be signed by the respondent or by counsel on behalf of respondent [Gov. Code § 11506(d)]. Although the notice of defense must be filed within 15 days after respondent receives the accusation [Gov. Code § 11506(a)], it is not unusual for the person charged to bring the accusation and other materials to counsel more than 15 days after receiving the accusation. When that happens, counsel should immediately call the agency's counsel and request additional time to file the notice of defense. Agency counsel will usually cooperate, and a time may be agreed on between counsel when the notice of defense is due [see Gov. Code § 11506(b) (failure to file notice of defense waives right to hearing, but agency may authorize filing of a later notice); Gov. Code § 11506(c) (agency may in its discretion grant a hearing even though respondent has failed to file a timely notice of defense, and has waived right to a hearing)]. If the notice of defense is not filed within the time required by statute or the time agreed on, the agency may hold a default hearing [Gov. Code §§ 11506(c), 11520(b)].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to notice of defense, see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication . For discussion of default hearings, see Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings .

[b] Special Notice of Defense

The charges in an accusation must be specific enough so that the respondent can prepare his or her defense [Gov. Code § 11503]. Vague and uncertain allegations that do not detail the facts or conduct on which the accusation is based are subject, in effect, to a special demurrer [Gov. Code § 11506(a)(3)]. To make such a "demurrer," counsel must include an objection to the form of the accusation in the notice of defense [see Gov. Code § 11506(a)(3)]. The objections to the form of the accusation should be specific and detailed. If only some of the allegations are vague or uncertain, the objection should specify those allegations. Counsel should request a prehearing conference on the objections raised [see Gov. Code § 11511.5(a) (prehearing conferences authorized); see also § 473D.13], because if the charges are not fleshed out before the hearing, counsel will be unable to prepare an adequate defense for respondent.

If respondent has already filed the notice of defense without including any objection to the form of the accusation, counsel should simply file a special notice of defense making that objection. The accusation is subject to challenge until the time allowed for filing a notice of defense has passed [Gov. Code § 11506(b) (respondent may file one or more notices of defense on any or all the specified grounds within the time stated)]. Even if the time for filing has passed, counsel should nonetheless prepare a special notice of defense detailing why the form of the accusation is deficient, and file it with the Office of Administrative Hearings (OAH) [Gov. Code §§ 11370.3-11370.5] or with the agency itself if the agency uses in-house administrative law judges (ALJ). Even when the time for filing a notice of defense has passed, the OAH tends to hear and consider counsel's objections so as not to waste time when the hearing commences.

[3] APA Discovery

[a] Requests for Discovery

Counsel should request discovery.

Discovery in APA proceedings is governed by Gov. Code §§ 11507.5-11507.7. Discovery in non-APA proceedings may be governed by special statutes or regulations of the charging agency [see, e.g., Educ. Code § 44944(a) (school district employee in suspension or dismissal proceeding may employ the full range of discovery allowed in superior court civil actions)]. In the absence of any statutory or regulatory provision, the courts have held that fairness and "modern concepts of administrative adjudication" usually require some form of discovery [Shively v. Stewart (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 475, 479-482, 55 Cal. Rptr. 217, 421 P.2d 65] .

To request discovery under the APA, a party must serve a written request for discovery on the other party before the hearing and within 30 days after service by the agency of the initial pleading or within 15 days after service of any additional pleading [Gov. Code § 11507.6]. Although these time limits should be strictly complied with if possible, an attorney who is not retained until after the 30-day time period has elapsed should nonetheless file a discovery request with the agency. Agencies usually honor late discovery requests, because adequate discovery before the hearing saves everyone time in the long run. Granting a late discovery request can help save time in the following ways:

- Facts learned in discovery may lead to settlement.
- Discovery can clarify the factual and legal issues.
- If a document is not available because a late discovery request is denied, respondent will simply request a subpoena requiring the production of that document at the hearing. Subpoenas can be issued by the agency or the assigned ALJ, at the request of a party, or by the attorney of record for a party [Gov. Code § 11450.20(a)]. Subpoena requests made before or during the hearing may be granted, provided that legal requirements are satisfied [Gov. Code §§ 11450.10(a), 11450.20(a), (b)].

When a document is produced at the hearing, counsel will probably request a recess or continuance [see Gov. Code § 11524(a) (agency may grant continuances); see § 473D.12[2]] to examine the document. Thus, the subpoena procedure causes delay and inconvenience for all parties, but discovery allows all materials to be reviewed well in advance of the hearing.

For detailed discussion of administrative discovery, see Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications .

[b] Continuing Discovery

The discovery request should ask for continuing discovery, that is, counsel should request that the other party continue to make discoverable material available for inspection or copying when that material is received after the other party has complied with the initial discovery request. In exchange, counsel should promise agency counsel that the agency's discovery request will be considered a request for continuing discovery. Continuing discovery can help prevent the delays that may result when documents are produced at the last minute. For discussion of possible delays produced by lack of discovery, see [a], above. There is no statutory basis for a continuing discovery request, but it makes good practical sense, and agency attorneys are usually willing to cooperate.

For discussion regarding what is discoverable material in an administrative hearing, see [d], below, and Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications.

[c] Agency Files

Respondent's discovery request should demand discovery of three files:

- The agency counsel's file.
- The agency's file on the respondent.
- The investigator's file.

The deputy attorney general or agency counsel will have a file that includes documents or materials provided by the investigator. This is the file agency counsel will copy and forward in response to a discovery request, but there are two other crucial files. The investigator has his or her own file, usually with handwritten notes, working papers, or both. These notes and working papers can be invaluable in determining the sources of the investigator's information. This file should reveal the people to whom the investigator talked and his or her impressions of witnesses. The agency should also have a file on the respondent, especially if the case is a licensing agency case. This file will include the licensee's application and renewal forms and may contain other useful material, such as complaints against the licensee.

Sometimes agency counsel will object to the inspection of the investigator's file by respondent's counsel on the ground that the file is privileged because it is official information [see Evid. Code § 1040 (privilege of public entity to bar disclosure of official information); Gov. Code § 11507.6(f) (privileged or confidential material including attorney work product is not subject to administrative discovery)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications .

[d] Scope of APA Discovery

Under the APA, a party is entitled to discover any names and addresses of witnesses known to the other party and to inspect and copy any writing or other thing that is relevant, admissible, and in the possession, custody, or control of the other party [Gov. Code § 11507.6]. Discovery does not include attorney work product, confidential matters, or anything that is privileged from disclosure by law [Gov. Code § 11507.6(f)]. In certain proceedings alleging sexual misconduct [see Gov. Code §§ 12940 (employment discrimination and harassment cases), 19572 (civil service discipline cases), 19702 (civil service discrimination cases)], evidence of the complainant's sexual conduct with anyone except the alleged perpetrator is generally not discoverable [Gov. Code § 11440.40]. For discussion of non-APA discovery and a more detailed discussion of the scope of APA discovery, see Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications .

[e] Enforcement of Discovery Rights

Any party may seek to enforce a discovery request [see Gov. Code § 11507.6; see also [a], above] by filing a motion to compel discovery with the administrative law judge who has been assigned to hear the case [Gov. Code § 11507.7(a)]. The motion must show that the moving party made a reasonable and good faith attempt to contact the other party for an informal resolution of the discovery issue. For more detailed discussion, see Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications .

[f] Prehearing Depositions

Gov. Code § 11511 allows a party to petition the administrative law judge, or if an administrative law judge has not been appointed, the agency, to take the testimony of any material witness by deposition on a showing that the testimony of the witness will be material and that the witness is unable to attend or cannot be compelled to attend the hearing. On this showing, the administrative law judge, or the agency may order the witness to be deposed in accordance with Gov. Code § 11189, which provides for depositions pursuant to an investigative subpoena. For discussion of investigative subpoenas, see Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies .

Since no witness outside of California can be compelled by subpoena to attend an administrative hearing [Gov. Code § 11450.20(b)], Gov. Code § 11511 appears to allow counsel to depose any out-of-state witness, even one who intends to appear at the hearing. Gov. Code § 11511 was intended to allow depositions for the preservation of testimony, not for discovery, but, as a practical matter, discovery is precisely what takes place [Shively v. Stewart (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 475, 478-479, 55 Cal. Rptr. 217, 421 P.2d 65] . For more detailed discussion, see Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications .

[g] Eliminating Surprise

Between the end of the time for filing a discovery request and the beginning of the hearing, some discoverable evidence is almost always found [see Gov. Code § 11507.6 (scope and request for discovery); see also [a] and [d], above]. If agency counsel and respondent's counsel have agreed to continuing discovery, the risk of being surprised at the hearing by newly uncovered evidence is minimized. If, however, opposing counsel do not cooperate, or if either party suspects that discoverable matter is being concealed, this problem should be raised with the agency or the ALJ as soon as possible, at the prehearing conference, if one is being held [Gov. Code § 11511.5 (prehearing conferences authorized); see also § 473D.13; for extended discussion, see Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications].

To promote the orderly conduct of hearings and to keep gamesmanship at a minimum, ALJs are often willing to order complete discovery prior to hearing even when the time allowed for a discovery request under Gov. Code § 11507.6 has passed [see discussion in [a], above and Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications].

If discoverable material is offered in evidence at the hearing that was not produced prior to hearing, counsel should move for a continuance of the hearing to review this evidence [see Gov. Code § 11524 (continuances); see also § 473D.12].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Respondent's Prehearing Preparation

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.12

§ 473D.12 Scheduling and Continuances

[1] Setting the Hearing Date

After a notice of defense is filed by the respondent under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), the agency counsel will request a hearing date from the calendar clerk at the Office of Administrative Hearings (OAH). Usually, agency counsel informs the calendar clerk of the dates on which he or she is available for hearing.

Unfortunately, respondent's counsel frequently is not asked when he or she is available for hearing, which can cause problems, because continuances are not favored by OAH administrative law judges (ALJ), as explained in [2], below.

See Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications , for detailed discussion of continuance motions.

[2] Requesting a Continuance

[a] OAH Does Not Favor Continuances

A party may apply for a continuance, but neither the OAH nor the agencies subject to the APA favor continuances, and the ALJs are not enthusiastic about granting them [see the OAH Continuance Policy, available from the OAH as Appendix I to the APA, Procedures for Administrative Adjudication (1987)]. The primary reason for this reluctance is that OAH hearing calendars are fully and precisely scheduled, so that any cancellation is likely to leave a gap that cannot be filled. This lost hearing time wastes the time and money of all parties, and it annoys the OAH considerably. If the hearing time cannot be rescheduled, the complainant agency usually has to pay for that time, which displeases the agency. For further discussion of the OAH attitude to continuances, see Chapter 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications .

[b] Possible Solutions

The best solution to the continuance problem is to try to avoid ever needing one. The attempt to avoid needing a continuance is important even if it becomes necessary to ask for a continuance, because whether a continuance will be allowed often depends on how hard the requesting party tried to avoid needing it. For example, a continuance applied for after the 10-day limit set out in Gov. Code § 11524(b) may nonetheless be granted for good cause if the party asking for the continuance is not responsible for the condition or event establishing the good cause, and has in fact made a good faith effort to prevent that condition or event [Gov. Code § 11524(b)]. Before requesting a continuance, counsel should consider approaching the agency or its counsel and trying to negotiate a solution. A continuance that is supported by the agency is much more likely to be accepted by the ALJ. For example, perhaps a partial continuance would be sufficient. Agency counsel may well accept a proposal that the agency present its case-in-chief and the parties reconvene later for respondent's witnesses, or that the matter be heard with the exception of a single unavailable witness. Or perhaps a declaration in lieu of the appearance of an unavailable witness, or a stipulation concerning a factual matter, might resolve the problem without the need for a continuance.

If the need for a continuance is unavoidable, and the agency is not interested in any compromises, it is best to move for a continuance as soon as is feasible, and to support the motion as strongly as possible. Do not merely ask for a continuance. The request for continuance must state in detail the facts that establish good cause, and the existence of these facts should be fully supported with sworn affidavits. Counsel should also file a memorandum of points and authorities citing any authorities that support the request. Counsel should notify opposing counsel of the motion, and furnish him or her with a copy of the motion and supporting papers. If counsel does not have time for the formality of a written motion, the request can be made orally. Many ALJs even accept continuance requests over the telephone. But however the request is made, counsel should be prepared to support that request as fully as if it were a written motion.

For detailed discussion of continuances, see Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing Activity

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Respondent's Prehearing Preparation

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.13

§ 473D.13 Prehearing Conferences

[1] Purpose of Prehearing Conference

On the motion of a party or by order of an ALJ, the ALJ may hold a prehearing conference [Gov. Code § 11511.5(a)]. This conference may deal with any matter that will promote the orderly and prompt conduct of the hearing [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(12)]. In practice, the purposes of the prehearing conference include the following:

- To insure that the ALJ understands all of the issues to be presented at the hearing.
- To insure that all documents are identified and prepared.
- To insure that all witnesses are identified to each party.
- To promote fairness and avoid the gamesmanship aspect of adversary proceedings.
- To explore settlement possibilities.
- To explore the possibilities of using alternative dispute resolution procedure, and informal hearing procedures.

The prehearing conference is an opportunity for both counsels to discuss settlement possibilities, or to resolve evidentiary issues and to clarify legal issues [Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)]. The prehearing conference also affords counsel for both parties a unique opportunity to know what the adversary is going to present at trial [see Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(9) (exchange of witness lists and exhibits and documents to be offered in evidence at the hearing)]. On occasion, this knowledge promotes settlements. For further discussion of settlement tactics, see § 473D.15. For further discussion of prehearing conferences, including a complete list of the matters that may be considered at a prehearing conference, see Chapter 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications .

[2] Preparation for Prehearing Conference

At the prehearing conference, the ALJ typically requires all parties to be prepared to present all of the documentary evidence available, to identify witnesses, and to discuss the issues involved in the hearing. Counsel should come to the prehearing conference prepared as if he or she were going to the hearing [see § 473D.14]. Counsel's preparations for the conference should include at least the following:

- All documents should be indexed in the order of presentation planned for the hearing.

- All legal arguments should be fully briefed with trial briefs on issues of evidence as well as any other matters of law that will come before the judge at the hearing.

- Counsel should be generally prepared to argue his or her position on every significant issue of law or fact.

- If objections are contemplated at hearing, counsel should be ready to make those objections at the prehearing conference.

- A trial brief should be prepared to support counsel's arguments at the prehearing conference.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing Activity

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Respondent's Prehearing Preparation

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.14

§ 473D.14 Preparation for Hearing

[1] Reviewing the Charging Document

Preparation is the key to winning, and preparation begins with a thorough review of the accusation or other charging document. Only by a meticulous review of each and every fact on which the charges are based and a similar review of the elements of the cause of action alleged can counsel begin to prepare for hearing.

For every fact essential to each allegation, counsel should do the following:

- Determine how that fact will be proved.
- Determine whether there is sufficient evidence to prove the fact.
- Determine whether there is any basis for objection to the evidence.
- Determine whether any other facts potentially disprove or mitigate the fact alleged.

Only by a detailed review like that described above will counsel be able to determine whether the conduct alleged falls within the jurisdiction of the complainant agency and whether any legal defenses exist to the facts, if proved.

[2] Investigation

After a careful review of the administrative agency's charging documents [see [1], above], counsel should tenaciously investigate every fact at issue. The key is to take nothing for granted. For purposes of investigation, counsel should assume that every fact alleged in the charging document is or may be false. Simply because a charging document is filed by a state agency or by the attorney general's office does not mean that the facts have been verified independently by counsel for the agency. Every witness, every potential witness, and every document should be scrutinized thoroughly.

The allegations of counsel's own client should be regarded, privately, with the same skepticism and subjected to a scrutiny equally rigorous.

[3] Use of Experts

If the preparation or presentation of the case calls for an expert, get the best expert you can afford. Administrative cases often require experts, especially when a professional is accused of failing to conform to the standards of the profession. Charges of this kind may be leveled at any licensed professional, including a neurosurgeon [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 2234 (physicians and surgeons may be disciplined for unprofessional conduct, including negligence and incompetence); see also Ch. 414, Physicians: Licensing and Discipline], a pest control operator [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 8642, 8643 (negligence as basis for disciplinary action against pest control operator)], or an engineer [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 6775(b) (board may discipline licensed engineer for negligence or incompetence)]. The standards by which the malpractice of these different professionals is determined will vary from agency to agency. The elucidation of these standards frequently requires the testimony or advice of experts.

Use of the best expert available is important, because a capable and persuasive expert can educate the ALJ into understanding and accepting respondent's view of the issue. The quality of expert assistance also offers counsel a possible advantage over the agency, because agencies often do not retain experts of unimpeachable quality. Counsel cannot afford to throw away this potential advantage by simply putting up one expert for every agency expert. Counsel must "out-expert" the agency by using only well qualified experts. If the problem involves a complicated roof construction project, counsel should seek out the most prominent roof expert in the state rather than employing any contractor who happens to have a license to build roofs. This advice may seem self-evident, but failure to get truly expert advice and testimony on technical issues is a frequent and costly mistake.

[4] Organization of Documents

Many administrative cases involve extensive documentation. For example, appeals from Medi-Cal audits [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 14170 (audit of Medi-Cal payments), 14171 (administrative appeal of Medi-Cal audits)] involve large numbers of documents that must be categorized and presented to the ALJ in an organized, readable fashion. Hospital charts and physicians' or dentists' records can also be lengthy and complicated. Counsel must make certain to organize these documents for presentation to the ALJ so that all of the following are true:

- The documents are readable and make sense in themselves.
- The documents are labeled and organized so that each document is clearly related to the applicable charge or defense.
- The documents are understandable in the context of the case.

No matter how thorough the prepared documentation is and no matter how completely it supports respondent's case, all documentation is useless unless the ALJ can read it and understand it. To insure that the documents do make a clear and persuasive presentation, counsel must organize them into a cohesive package, then index and tabulate the documents so that the ALJ can review them with a minimum of effort. This organizational process will also help counsel to determine which documents are relevant and which support counsel's position.

[5] Preparation of Witnesses

[a] Taking Statements

It seems obvious that witnesses need to be prepared before they testify, but it is surprising how many witnesses are put on the stand without any preparation. The first issue in witness preparation is whether to take a formal statement from that witness. Written statements of witnesses are discoverable [Gov. Code § 11507.6(c)], but counsel's notes on an interview are attorney work product and are protected from discovery [Gov. Code § 11507.6(f); see § 473D.11[3][d]]. The question counsel must determine for each witness is whether it is more important to preserve the testimony of that witness against possible failures of recollection by taking a signed statement or to guard that witness's testimony from discovery by recording it only in the form of interview notes. In either event, counsel should interview every witness who may be called to testify.

For further discussion see Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications .

[b] Rehearsal of Witness

To insure that the witness is truly prepared, counsel should rehearse the witness's testimony and the expected cross-examination. This rehearsal will give the witness confidence and prepare the witness for what will happen during the course of the testimony. At the hearing, the witness's character may be attacked, and his or her credibility may be questioned. Failure to prepare the witness for this cross-examination is unfair to the witness, and can be costly for the client. Counsel should test the witness's observations or opinions and challenge his or her assumptions. The bases for opinions of expert witnesses need to be meticulously examined. Alerting a witness to his or her weaknesses is essential to preparation of the witness.

[6] Preparation of Client

[a] Education of Client

Counsel should inform the client how the hearing will be conducted and what may happen during the proceedings. The client should be fully informed on all facts and issues pertinent to the hearing. The client must understand the weaknesses and strengths of his or her case. For example, if the client is a physician facing discipline for negligence or incompetence [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 2234 (unprofessional conduct); see also Ch. 414, Physicians: Licensing and Discipline], the client must become an expert in all of the medical procedures at issue. Do not assume that the client is an expert on any given medical issue merely because the client is a licensed physician. Counsel should retain consultants who are recognized experts to school the client, if necessary. The client should consult and study authoritative medical textbooks. The client should even be tested by the consultants or by counsel on all the relevant medical issues. The goal is to instill confidence in the client as well as to educate the client.

On the importance of retaining the best experts available, see [3], above.

[b] Rehearsal of Client

After the client has been educated, he or she should be rehearsed. The client must know what questions counsel will ask on direct examination and must rehearse answering those questions. Tone of voice, posture, and manner of speaking, as well as the content of the answer, all determine the credibility of the client. Rehearsal of cross-examination is even more important. Here, counsel must anticipate the questions that opposing counsel will ask. Counsel must help the client learn how to answer the tough questions. Of course, the best advice is to tell the truth, but how the truth is told sometimes makes the difference. For example, whether the client should merely answer a question as briefly as possible or should embellish the answer with explanations is a tactical decision counsel should make in advance on every point that can be anticipated.

[7] Use of Demonstrative Evidence

Demonstrative evidence, also known as "real evidence," is evidence other than testimony that is addressed directly to the senses; physical objects, such as models, charts, photographs, clothing, and weapons, are examples [see Black's Law Dictionary (5th ed., 1979), p. 389].

Demonstrative evidence is admissible, and counsel should always consider using it [see Gov. Code § 11513(c) (relevant evidence admissible); Evid. Code § 140 ("evidence" includes material objects and other things presented to the senses offered to prove the existence or nonexistence of a fact)]. Charts and graphs to explain complicated financial issues, diagrams to portray the scene of a significant incident, or anatomical exhibits to clarify medical issues can be crucial to the success of counsel's case. Frequently, when an attractively done chart is used, the ALJ will focus on the chart throughout the testimony. If counsel's point is evident from the chart, counsel is getting that point across visually as well as verbally.

Counsel should also consider using slide shows. For example, in a hearing involving medical malpractice, a slide presentation can be used to demonstrate that the physician/client is an expert on the medical procedure in question. The client can act as a teacher, and if the performance effectively demonstrates the client's knowledge, it can help persuade the ALJ that the client did not commit malpractice. A slide show is also an excellent technique to clarify the medical issues by visualization. The value of demonstrative evidence in any case involving complex issues cannot be underestimated.

For discussion of evidentiary rules in administrative hearings, see Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings .

[8] Trial Briefs

Preparing trial briefs on the legal issues involved in the hearing is important, not only because it allows counsel to prepare for the relevant legal issues in advance of the hearing, but also because the briefs may assist the ALJ in resolving those issues. It is important that trial briefs be ready and be presented at the outset of the hearing. Resolving legal issues at this early stage may eliminate the need for some testimony or dictate the presentation of evidence during the hearing. Also, a well-researched trial brief may favorably impress the ALJ.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewEvidenceDemonstrative EvidenceAdmissibilityEvidenceTestimonyExpertsGeneral OverviewEvidenceTestimonyLay WitnessesGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Respondent's Prehearing Preparation

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.15

§ 473D.15 Settlements

[1] Desirability of Settlement

Settlement is often desirable to reduce the expense of a hearing and to ensure the result. Early settlement can also preclude or minimize the damaging notoriety that the investigation, charges, and hearing may produce. Because settlement talks are almost always appropriate, the prehearing conference may be used for this purpose [see Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(1) (permissible matters in rehearing conference include exploration of settlement possibilities), and discussion in § 473D.13]. For further discussion of settlement procedures under the APA, see Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications .

[2] Settlement Conferences

Gov. Code § 11511.7 authorizes settlement conferences to be held for agencies subject to the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.). The administrative law judge may order the parties to attend and participate in a settlement conference. The administrative law judge shall set the time and place for the settlement conference, and shall give reasonable written notice to all parties [Gov. Code § 11511.7(a)]. Under this section, settlement conferences may, but are not required to, be separate from the prehearing conference at which exploration of settlement issues may occur. Attendance and participation at the settlement conference is mandatory. Communications made in settlement negotiations are protected under Gov. Code § 11415.60[25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 150 (1995)].

Gov. Code § 11415.60 allows agencies to make decisions by settlement. See Ch. 473H, Alternative Procedures for Agency Decisions , for a fuller discussion of this provision. Because the settlement practices and procedures of agencies that are not subject to Chapter 5 of the APA vary, counsel should consult the administrative agency to determine the particular practices employed and settlement resources available.

[3] Evaluating an Administrative Case

As in civil actions, counsel must properly evaluate the case by making an objective assessment of the relevant strengths and weaknesses of the positions of both sides. A skeptical evaluation of all factual allegations and a realistic appraisal of the legal issues should give counsel a reasonable idea of the probabilities of success or failure.

[4] Tactical Considerations in Communicating With Agency Counsel

The tactical issue in discussing settlement with agency counsel is always how much of the case to reveal. Although both sides will reveal a great deal during prehearing discovery, counsel may still hesitate to disclose additional information. For example, because APA does not provide for the use of depositions for discovery purposes, although depositions may be used to obtain testimony of an unavailable witness [see Shively v. Stewart (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 475, 478-479, 55 Cal. Rptr. 217, 421 P.2d 65 (Gov. Code § 11511 provides for depositions not for discovery, but to secure evidence for use at the hearing); see also Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications , and discussion in § 473D.11[3][f]], agency counsel has no way of discovering the testimony of respondent's experts unless they have prepared written statements outlining their expected testimony [see Gov. Code § 11507.6(c) (statements of witnesses are discoverable)]. In order to settle a case, counsel may need to reveal expert testimony and any other evidence he or she intends to produce. If counsel is certain that the agency intends to try the matter, however, he or she should not gratuitously inform the opponent of the evidence and testimony that will be produced at hearing.

[5] Authority to Settle

In many cases, agency counsel will not have the ultimate authority to settle. In particular, settlement stipulations in cases involving license discipline must be approved by a vote of the licensing board [Rich Vision Centers, Inc. v. Board of Medical Examiners (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 110, 115, 192 Cal. Rptr. 455] . Usually, however, agency counsel and agency staff have a good idea of what the board will approve, and agreed-on stipulations are rarely disapproved.

Gov. Code § 11511.7 authorizes settlement conferences to be held for agency adjudications conducted under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.). Gov. Code § 11415.60(a) also provides that an agency may formulate and issue a decision by settlement, pursuant to an agreement of the parties, without conducting an adjudicative proceeding. Subject to Gov. Code § 11415.60(c), the settlement may be on any terms the parties determine are appropriate [Gov. Code § 11415.60(a)]. Gov. Code § 11415.60(c) provides, in relevant part, that a settlement is subject to any necessary agency approval [Gov. Code § 11415.60(c); see Ch. 473H, Alternative Procedures for Agency Decisions , for a fuller discussion of settlement]. Gov. Code § 11415.60 is subject to a specific statute to the contrary governing the matter [see Gov. Code § 11415.20 (conflicting or inconsistent statute controls)]. These provisions codify the rule in the Rich Vision case and recognize that in some instances other statutes provide for agency approval of a settlement [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 150 (1995)].

See Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications , for further discussion of settlement authority.

As a practical matter, most agency counsel are willing to settle cases and will be amenable to reasoned discussions. The following are among the factors that may influence agency willingness to settle:

- The agency's belief in the strength of its case.
- The seriousness of the alleged violation.
- The agency's intent to either obtain compliance or impose penalties.
- The proximity of the hearing.

Sometimes, agency counsel is reluctant to settle due to unrealistic notions regarding the strength of the agency's case. In that situation, counsel must try to educate opposing counsel without antagonizing him or her, and without revealing all of counsel's anticipated hearing tactics.

[6] Creative Settlement Options

A great variety of settlement options exist in administrative cases. For example, in administrative professional disciplinary actions, the options are far broader than simple suspension of the professional license. Appropriate solutions could include the following:

- Expanded continuing education [see, e.g., 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 1773(a)(4), (b)(1) (probation conditions for pharmacist)].

- Community service time [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 2228(d) (community service as probation option for physicians); see also Ch. 414, Physicians: Licensing and Discipline].

- Entry into drug or alcohol diversion programs [see, e.g., Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1357-1357.8 (diversion program for physicians); for discussion of the regulation of physicians, see also Ch.414, Physicians: Licensing and Discipline].

- Monitoring of the client's professional practice [see, e.g., 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 1773(a)(3), (b)(4) (probation conditions for pharmacist)].

- Fiscal or accounting controls.

Many other solutions may be available depending on the charges and the facts of the case. Respondent's counsel may ask the agency counsel about these potential solutions. Agency counsel are often willing to cooperate in developing solutions that fit the problem.

[7] Stipulating for Settlement

[a] Necessity for Writing

All settlements should be reduced to writing. The language of the settlement document is critical because it will define the duties and obligations of both parties during the post-settlement stage [see [7], below]. Frequently, settlements result in the imposition of probation in license discipline cases. The stipulation generally provides that violating the terms of probation is in and of itself a cause for disciplinary action. Therefore, each and every proposed term and condition of probation must be carefully scrutinized to check that respondent can comply with the terms, that the terms are reasonable, and that the language of the stipulation expresses the terms clearly. For example, if continuing education is a requirement of probation, clarify whether a continuing education must be approved in advance by the agency or what courses will be acceptable, and whether the respondent will be required to take a test on the subject matter of the continuing education course [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 2228(a) (additional professional training and passing examination as probation option for physicians); see also Ch. 414, Physicians: Licensing and Discipline].

[b] Consent of Client

Because of the serious consequences to the client that may occur following settlement with the agency, counsel must explain the full ramifications of any settlement in detail to the client before the client can truly be considered to have given an informed consent to the settlement. For example, possible ramifications of settlement might include the following:

- Further disciplinary action by a hospital in a medical malpractice case.

- The cancellation of professional liability insurance.

- Newspaper or television publicity.

- Charges brought by other licensing agencies, if the client has multiple professional licenses.

- Action by state Medi-Cal authorities [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 14000-14196 (the Medi-Cal Act)], or by federal Medicaid [see 42 U.S.C. §§ 1396-1396s (Medicaid provisions)] and Medicare [see 42 U.S.C. §§ 1395-1395ccc (Medicare provisions)] authorities.

- Disciplinary actions by professional societies or trade associations of which the client is a member.

- Permanent loss of clients or business during a suspension period.

Therefore, counsel should review the written stipulation with the client line by line, to ensure that he or she understands and agrees to each and every term of the stipulation.

[8] Post-Settlement Considerations

As discussed in [7][a], above, a violation of a settlement stipulation is often a violation of the respondent's probation, and will probably lead to disciplinary action. Counsel must therefore thoroughly advise the client of what the settlement terms require during the post-settlement period. For example, if approval of continuing education or agreements or arrangements with third parties is part of the settlement, counsel must impress on the client the importance of requesting approval in a timely fashion. If license suspension is a term of the settlement, counsel must ensure that the client understands what suspension really means so that there is not even the appearance of impropriety during the suspension period [see, e.g., 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 1772 (suspended pharmacist must not enter any pharmacy prescription area or engage in any pharmacy-related service)]. If monetary payments are a term of the settlement, counsel must stress the importance of making those payments on time. Counsel should continue to advise the client through the period of the settlement, because counsel probably understands the terms and obligations incurred in the settlement better than anyone else. Proper performance of settlement obligations is absolutely necessary if the client is to avoid further difficulties with the agency.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityContracts LawTypes of ContractsSettlement Agreements

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Respondent's Prehearing Preparation

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473D.16-473D.19

[Reserved]

§§ 473D.16[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Agency Counsel's Prehearing Tactics in Professional and Vocation Licensing Hearings

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.20

§ 473D.20 Introduction to Prehearing Tactics and Procedures

Many practitioners make the mistake of treating the notice of defense [see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication] and prehearing discovery [see Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications] as the beginning and end of the prehearing phase of a professional or vocational license discipline case. There are, however, prehearing tactics and procedures that can be used during this phase to control the scope and direction of a case or to otherwise secure an advantage. Although most of the tactics discussed in this chapter are used by counsel for the administrative agency, it is important for counsel for the responding licensee or registrant to be aware of these tactics.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicensesHealthcare LawBusiness Administration & OrganizationLicensesRevocation & SuspensionLegal EthicsSanctionsDisciplinary ProceedingsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Agency Counsel's Prehearing Tactics in Professional and Vocation Licensing Hearings

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.21

§ 473D.21 Prehearing Injunctions and Restraining Orders

[1] Overview

To understand the role of prehearing injunctions and restraining orders in agency prehearing practice, the following five questions should be considered:

- Who may seek injunctive relief or a restraining order against a licensee? The answer depends on the statute that is the basis for the equitable relief. Some statutes allow the licensing agency itself to file the appropriate petition with the court [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5(a) (authorization for superior court issuance of injunction on petition filed by board)], while other statutes may also allow the petition to be filed by either the attorney general or the local district attorney [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 3430 (authorization for superior court issuance of injunction on petition filed by Hearing Aid Dispensers Examining Committee, attorney general, or county district attorney)].

- What relief can be granted by the court? Again, the answer depends on the statute that authorizes the equitable relief. Some statutes allow for injunctive relief, restraining orders, or both [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 125.5(a) (injunction, other appropriate restraining order), 125.7 (temporary restraining order, other appropriate order)]. Other statutes allow for orders of restitution to persons injured as a result of the licensee's acts and omissions, and even reimbursement to the petitioning agency for expenses incurred in the investigation relating to the petition [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5(b) (restitution), § 125.5(c) (reimbursement to board for expenses)]. Significantly, most of these remedies are nonexclusive, and counsel for the licensee may be faced with multiple grounds for equitable relief in the same petition [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5(d) (remedy provided by § 125.5 "shall be in addition to, and not a limitation on," authority provided in any other Bus. & Prof. Code section)].

- When will a licensing agency seek equitable relief? A licensing agency is most likely to seek injunctive relief against a licensee when: (a) the prohibited acts or omissions are of relatively recent origin; (b) the prohibited acts or omissions will continue unless judicially restrained; (c) the prohibited acts or omissions possibly constitute a threat to the public health, safety, or welfare; and (d) enough evidence has been gathered to sustain the allegations at an administrative hearing.

- Where will an agency file a petition for injunctive relief against a licensee? Again, this answer depends on the statute that constitutes the basis for the relief sought. For example, some statutes require the petition to be filed in the superior court for the county where the acts or omissions occurred [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5(a), (b)], while others require the petition to be filed in the superior court in the county of the licensee's place of business or residence [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 7028.3 (contractor's license law)].

- Why will a licensing agency seek this form of relief? Most administrative agencies do not routinely seek equitable relief against licensees before an administrative disciplinary hearing. This relief is usually sought when the licensee's acts or omissions under the color of the license constitute an ongoing or impending threat to the public health, safety, and welfare, or when the prohibited acts will continue unless enjoined or restrained by a court [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.8(a)].

The statutes authorizing injunctive relief discussed in the sections below are Business and Professions Code statutes that generally tie in with administrative actions. Other statutes exist in the Business and Professions Code that authorize injunctive relief, but that do not necessarily tie in with administrative disciplinary actions against a licensee. Sections not related to administrative discipline are not within the scope of this chapter.

[2] Injunctions Against Violations of Statutes Administered by Boards Within Department of Consumer Affairs

[a] General Requirements

Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5 authorizes the issuance of injunctions or other appropriate restraining orders against persons who have engaged or are about to engage in acts constituting violations of the statutes or regulations administered or enforced by any board within the Department of Consumer Affairs. The term "board" includes a commission, bureau, division, agency, and a medical quality review committee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5(a)]. Jurisdiction to issue the relief is vested in the superior court for the county in which the violation occurs or is about to occur. The petition is filed by the administrative agency charged with enforcing the statute in question, with the approval of the director of the Department of Consumer Affairs. Proceedings under Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5 are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 525-534, which relate to injunctive relief [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5(a)]. See Ch. 303, Injunctions , for detailed discussion and forms relating to injunctive relief in civil actions.

[b] Restitution to Victims and Reimbursement of Agency

In addition to authorizing the issuance of injunctive or other appropriate relief, Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5 further authorizes the appropriate superior court to issue orders as follows:

- For any person who has violated the statutes or regulations administered or enforced by any board within the Department of Consumer Affairs, to make restitution to persons injured as a result of the violation. The court may only order this relief, however, if the board files a petition with approval of the director of the Department of Consumer Affairs seeking this relief [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5(b)].

- For a person subject to an injunction or restraining order [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5(a)], or a person required to make restitution [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5(b)], to reimburse the petitioning board for expenses incurred by the board in the investigation relating to the petition [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5(c)].

Also, licensing boards may request administrative law judges in disciplinary proceedings to order a licensee found to have committed a violation of the licensing act to pay a sum not to exceed the reasonable costs of the investigation and enforcement of the case [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3(a)].

[c] Remedy Not Exclusive

The remedy provided by Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5 is not exclusive. The remedy operates as an addition to, rather than a limitation on, other statutes in the Business and Professions Code that authorize injunctive relief or other appropriate restraining orders [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5(d); see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7].

[d] Use in Conjunction With Other Statutes Authorizing Injunctive Relief

Although Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5 may be used alone, the statute is more commonly used in tandem with the portion of an agency's statutes that specifically authorize injunctive relief or restraining orders for violating that agency's laws or regulations. Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5 is commonly used on its own when an agency seeks to curtail unlicensed activity on the part of an individual who is not licensed with, or registered by, the agency in question; however, Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5 does not authorize the court to restrain the licensee from engaging in a profession for which he or she is licensed. Rather, it authorizes the court to enjoin or restrain the respondent from violating the licensing laws in question [cf. Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 125.5 and 125.7].

[3] Orders Restraining Licensees From Practicing Healing Arts

[a] General Requirements

Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7 authorizes a court, on petition filed by the board, to issue temporary restraining orders (TROs), or other appropriate orders to restrain a licensee from engaging in all or any part of the business or profession for which he or she is licensed. Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7 applies to the boards in the Department of Consumer Affairs that regulate the healing arts professions, including the Chiropractic and Osteopathic Boards [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7; see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 500-4998]. The remedies of Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7 are in addition to those set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7].

Jurisdiction is vested in the superior court for the county in which the licensee has engaged, or is about to engage, in acts or omissions constituting violations of the appropriate licensing statutes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7]. Proceedings under Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7 are governed by the Code of Civil Procedure chapter relating to injunctive relief [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 525-534], unless otherwise specifically stated in the statute [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7(c)]. In contrast to Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5, the petition seeking relief does not require the approval of the director of the Department of Consumer Affairs; however, the petition must be accompanied by supporting affidavit(s) and a memorandum of points and authorities [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7; see [b], below].

Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7 is most commonly used by agencies against healing arts practitioners who have committed acts or omissions constituting gross negligence, incompetence, or repeated negligent acts, and who give the appearance that they will continue to commit such acts or omissions unless prevented from practicing as authorized by their license or certificate. Because of the extreme nature of this remedy, the use of the remedy is reserved for instances in which the public is palpably at risk. Further, Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7 is sometimes used in conjunction with Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5 if the board is seeking reimbursement of investigative expenses and/or restitution to persons injured as a result of the licensee's violations of the statutes governing his or her licensed activities.

[b] Supporting Affidavits and Memorandum of Points and Authorities

A petition for relief under Bus. & Prof. § 125.7 must be accompanied by appropriate supporting affidavit(s) and a memorandum of points and authorities. The supporting affidavits must show that the licensee has engaged in or is about to engage in acts or omissions constituting a violation of the appropriate regulatory statutes. If the court is satisfied that the continued licensed activity of the licensee will endanger the public health, safety, or welfare, the court may issue an order temporarily restraining the licensee's licensed activity [Bus. & Prof. § 125.7(a)]. Although the statute specifies that the affidavits themselves must show the commission or impending commission of the proscribed acts or omissions, the statute does not state whether the affidavit must also show the threat to the public health, safety, or welfare. Because the courts almost invariably decide this type of case on the affidavits alone, the better practice is to include both elements in the affidavit(s). The superior court may not issue a TRO, or any other appropriate order, however, without notice to the licensee unless it appears from the facts shown in the supporting affidavit(s) that serious injury would result to the public before the matter could be heard on notice [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7(b)].

For forms of memoranda for use supporting a petition for a TRO, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 116, Injunctions (Matthew Bender); see also Ch. 303, Injunctions , for discussion and forms relating to TRO's generally.

[c] Issuance of Temporary Restraining Order (TRO)

When a superior court issues a TRO pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7, several time clocks are set in motion. Within a time period to be allowed by the court, but in any event no more than 30 days after the issuance of the TRO, the petitioning board must file an accusation against the respondent licensee pursuant to Gov. Code § 11503 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7(d)]. The accusation must be served on the licensee pursuant to the APA [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7(d); see Gov. Code § 11505; see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication]. Although Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7(d) does not specify whether the accusation must be served within the designated period, this apparent ambiguity is seldom a problem, inasmuch as the evidence supporting the petition is generally the same evidence that supports the accusation. Thus, because the board's case is usually completed or nearing completion when the petition is filed, it is not uncommon for the accusation to be prepared contemporaneously with the petition for temporary restraining order, and to be submitted as an attachment to the petition.

Once the accusation is filed and served, the licensee must be accorded all the rights and privileges of the formal hearing provisions of the APA (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.). If a licensee respondent requests a hearing on the accusation, however, the board must provide the licensee with a hearing within 30 days of the date of request. Further, a decision must be rendered by the board within 15 days of the date the decision is received from the administrative law judge. If the board fails to provide the licensee with a timely hearing or decision, the court may nullify the previously issued restraining order. [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7(d)]. A restraining order issued pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7 is dissolved by operation of law when the board's decision becomes subject to judicial review pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 (administrative mandamus) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7(d); see Gov. Code § 11523; see also Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions et seq., for detailed discussion of judicial review].

[4] Orders Restraining Licensees From Practicing Professions Other Than Healing Arts

Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.8 authorizes a court, on petition filed by the board, to issue TROs, or other appropriate orders to restrain a licensee from engaging in all or any part of the business or profession for which he or she is licensed. Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.8 applies to those boards in the Department of Consumer Affairs that regulate the professions and vocations other than the healing arts; specifically, the boards regulating accountants, attorneys, architects, advertisers, contractors, collection agencies [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 5000-9998.8], boxin wrestling, martial arts [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 18600-18880], and the home furnishings industry [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 19000-19214]. There are numerous professions and vocations in which an unethical or incompetent licensee can so endanger the public health, safety, and welfare that the licensee must be immediately restrained, pending a disciplinary hearing to revoke the license or registration. For example, Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.8 is commonly used by the Bureau of Automotive Repair to temporarily restrain licensees who issue large numbers of certificates of compliance to vehicles that do not actually comply with the applicable pollution control standards.

The remedies of Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.8 are in addition to those set forth in Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.5 [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.8]. Jurisdiction is vested with the superior court for the county in which the licensee has engaged, or is about to engage, in acts or omissions constituting violations of the appropriate licensing statutes [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.8]. The proceedings under Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.8 are governed by the Code of Civil Procedure chapter relating to injunctive relief (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 525-534) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.8(c)]. The procedures under Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.8 are virtually identical to those of Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7, and the above discussion of Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7 is generally applicable to Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.8 [see [3], above].

[5] Professional and Vocational Licensing Statutes Authorizing Injunctive Relief

Many additional statutes in the Business and Professions Code relate directly to injunctions or restraining orders for violations of specific professional or vocational licensing statutes. Although such professional and vocational licensing statutes can generally be used independently, they are nonexclusive remedies and are routinely used in conjunction with Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 125.5, 125.7 or 125.8 [see [2]-[4], above].

Virtually all of the specific professional and vocational licensing statutes that authorize the granting of injunctive relief require that any proceedings under the applicable section be governed by the Code of Civil Procedure chapter relating to injunctive relief [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 525-534]. Some of these sections also specify that a petition for injunctive relief need not allege facts showing or attempting to show a lack of an adequate remedy at law or irreparable injury [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 9851 (relating to the Bureau of Electronic and Appliance Repair)]. Even in the absence of a statutory waiver of this showing, however, there is essentially a de facto presumption of inadequate remedy or irreparable injury to the public if violations of professional or vocational statutes are allowed to continue unabated. For example, if a legislative body has authorized an injunctive remedy in the context of a violation of a professional or vocational statute, the Legislature has determined as a matter of law that irreparable injury attends a violation of the statute [Porter v. Fiske (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 332, 338, 171 P.2d 971] . Similarly, this rationale applies to the less drastic relief afforded by a TRO, which accomplishes the same purpose as an injunction, but for a more limited time [Paul v. Wadler (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 615, 625, 26 Cal. Rptr. 341 ; see § 473D.22].

Most of the professional and vocational licensing statutes that authorize injunctive relief empower the court to enjoin violations of the specific licensing act of which the statute is a part. Some of the licensing statutes authorizing injunctive relief go further, and also empower the court to issue TROs that actually restrain the licensee from engaging in the specified profession or vocation [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 7028.3 (contractors' licenses)]. The various statutes also differ as to who is authorized to petition for injunctive relief. Most statutes authorize either the agency itself or the executive officer of the agency to seek the injunctive relief [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 5122]. Other statutes also authorize the attorney general or the district attorney of the county where the violations took place to seek the specified injunctive relief [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 3430 (hearing aid dispensers)].

Some statutes authorize more than one licensing agency to seek injunctive relief. For example, Bus. & Prof. Code § 2545 authorizes the Board of Optometry, the Division of Allied Health Professions of the Medical Board of California, and the Osteopathic Medical Board of California, as well as the attorney general's office, and the district attorney's office in the county where the violation took place, to seek injunctive relief and restraining orders against licensees who violate the statutory requirements. Further, some licensing acts relating to healing arts allow 10 or more individuals who are licensed under a specific act to petition to enjoin or restrain someone similarly licensed from violating their common licensing act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 3094 (optometry)]. Because only a licensing agency is empowered to bring disciplinary action against a licensee, however, in the event that an injunction is granted based on a petition brought by 10 or more licensees against a fellow licensee, an undertaking is generally required pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 529 [Code Civ. Proc. § 529 (undertaking, justification of sureties); see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertaking]. Public entities or officers are exempt from this undertaking requirement [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.220 (public entities exempt from bond requirements in actions or proceedings)].

[6] Citation Enforcement System

Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.9 authorizes most licensing agencies within the Department of Consumer Affairs to establish by regulation a citation enforcement system which allows the agency to issue to a licensee a citation containing an order of abatement or an order to pay an administrative fine assessed by the agency when the licensee has violated the relevant licensing act or related agency regulations [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.9(a)]. Order of abatement issued under the citation system are an administrative alternative to a court injunction. Licensees who wish to contest a citation can request a hearing that will be held under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.9(b)(4)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining OrdersGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicensesHealthcare LawBusiness Administration & OrganizationLicensesGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Agency Counsel's Prehearing Tactics in Professional and Vocation Licensing Hearings

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.22

§ 473D.22 Seeking Prehearing Injunctive Relief

A petition to a superior court for injunctive relief and/or a restraining order before an administrative hearing regarding professional or vocational licensing matters should be reserved for situations in which it is apparent that the licensee's prohibited conduct will continue unabated unless enjoined or restrained by the court. Once the determination is made to draft and file the petition, several factors must be considered, as follows:

- Whether the petition is being filed in the proper superior court. Some statutes require the petition to be filed in the superior court for the county in which a licensee has committed, or is about to commit, the act or omission that constitutes a violation of the statutes governing his or her licensed activities [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 125.5, 125.7, 125.8]. Other statutes may allow more latitude, and may also authorize the filing of the petition in the superior court for the county in which the licensee maintains a place of business or resides [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 7028.3 (contractor's license law)].

- Whether the investigation of the facts necessary to support the imposition of discipline against the licensee has been completed. The facts that support the imposition of discipline that will be alleged in the accusation are the same facts that are necessary to support the granting of the petition for prehearing injunctive relief or restraining order.

- Whether the contents of the petition are sufficient for the court to grant the relief.

A grant of equitable relief requires more than the mere recitation in the petition of the facts tending to show violations of a licensing law. Such a petition rises or falls on the basis of the supporting affidavits. The most helpful affidavits are those that educate the court by setting forth acts illustrating violation or threatened violation of a licensing law, blending these facts into the specific statute that has been or is about to be violated. If appropriate, the affidavit should illustrate how the violation constitutes a threat to the health, safety, and welfare of the public. For example, in one case in the author's experience, a successful petition for a TRO against an automotive repair dealer who was violating the smog check statutes was supported by affidavits of Bureau of Automotive Repair program representatives who had examined certain noncomplying vehicles that were falsely certified by the respondent. The affiants: (1) stated the facts surrounding their inspections of several vehicles, noting the instances in which the emission control devices were missing from the vehicles, (2) identified the pollutants that each device would control were it in place, and the statutory and regulatory violations committed by the licensee for certifying a vehicle lacking the required emission control devices, and (3) concluded with their opinions that the escape of the various pollutants into the atmosphere as a result of the required devices being missing constituted a danger to the health, safety, and welfare of the public. These affidavits provided the judge with a preview of the complainant's case against the licensee at the administrative hearing and showed a reasonable probability that the licensing agency would prevail on the merits at the administrative hearing.

When a public agency seeks to enjoin a violation of a statute specifically providing for injunctive relief, a rebuttable presumption arises that the potential harm to the public outweighs the potential harm to the defendant when the agency establishes that it is reasonably probable that the agency will prevail on the merits. The court must evaluate the relative actual harm to the parties only if the defendant shows that he or she will suffer grave or irreparable harm from issuance of a preliminary injunction. Once the defendant has made such a showing, an injunction will issue only if, after considering the certainty of the outcome of the merits and the consequences to each party of granting or denying an injunction, the court determines that an injunction is proper. An injunction may legitimately issue, however, if it is fairly clear that the agency will prevail on the merits, even though the agency is unable to prevail in the balancing of probable harm, as long as the defendant's probable harm does not outweigh the harm likely to result from the denial of an injunction [IT Corp. v. County of Imperial (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 63, 73, 196 Cal. Rptr. 715, 672 P.2d 121] .

For a licensing agency to establish a reasonable probability that it will prevail on the merits, it is helpful to the agency to have the accusation prepared at the time the petition is filed, with the accusation appended to the petition as an exhibit. The court is then informed as to the statutory violations alleged in the accusation and is able evaluate whether the evidence, as articulated in the affidavits, supports these allegations. Including the accusation as an exhibit is particularly helpful when the agency is seeking injunctive relief or a restraining order pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 125.7 or 125.8, because it shows the court that the agency is prepared to give the licensee a hearing on the matters alleged in the accusation within the time frames set forth in those statutes [see § 473D.21[3], [4], above].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining OrdersGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Agency Counsel's Prehearing Tactics in Professional and Vocation Licensing Hearings

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.23

§ 473D.23 Opposing Petitions for Prehearing Injunctive Relief

Counsel for the licensee respondent has a difficult task in opposing a proceeding to enjoin or restrain the client's licensed activities before an administrative disciplinary hearing. The licensing agency has almost always completed its investigation leading up to the filing of disciplinary action against the licensee, and the facts gathered during the investigation are set forth in support of the petition. Counsel for the licensee must counter this advantage on short notice, with a limited chance to conduct an independent investigation of the facts. Further, if the petition is granted and the accusation is served immediately thereafter, counsel for the licensee may have only 45 days or less to prepare for the hearing.

Counsel for the licensee, however, may be able to counter the licensing agency's tactical advantage. Ideally, the licensee will have knowledge of the impending proceeding during the course of the investigation, and will immediately inform counsel. Once counsel learns of the investigation, counsel should contact the licensing agency to attempt to establish the exact nature of the investigation and to see if the matter can somehow be resolved. If it appears that the client is in fact violating the agency's regulatory statutes, counsel should advise the client to comply with the regulatory statutes. Once the nature of the investigation is determined, counsel should start to prepare a defense immediately and should try to anticipate whether the alleged violations are of such a nature that the licensing agency may attempt to secure prehearing injunctive relief or a restraining order against his or her client.

In practice, attorneys routinely discover the nature of the violations that their clients have allegedly committed when the client presents counsel with a copy of the petition for injunctive relief. In this situation, because the courts typically decide these cases on the basis of the affidavits and witnesses are seldom permitted to testify [see § 473D.25], counsel should immediately focus on securing information for the preparation of counter-affidavits. The affidavits should be geared toward showing the court that it is not reasonably probable that the licensing agency will prevail on the merits at the administrative hearing. If the licensee respondent is unable to make this showing, the affidavits should attempt to demonstrate to the court that the potential harm to the defendant in granting the equitable relief so outweighs any potential harm to the public that no injunction should issue even though the agency is likely to prevail on the merits [see IT Corp. v. County of Imperial (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 63, 73, 196 Cal. Rptr. 715, 672 P.2d 121] . Counsel should also consider presenting mitigating evidence by affidavit that tends to show that the alleged violations will not continue.

Finally, if the case against the licensee seems particularly compelling, counsel should consider seeking a stipulation from the petitioner under which the licensee would agree to curtail certain licensed activities pending a final decision in the administrative matter. For example, a physician who practices obstetrics and gynecology might stipulate that he or she would practice no obstetrics, the source of the alleged violations, in return for being allowed to practice gynecology until a final decision and order was issued following the administrative hearing. Similarly, an automotive repair dealer might stipulate that no smog inspections, the source of the alleged violations, would be performed until a final decision and order was issued following an administrative hearing, in return for being allowed to conduct business as an automotive repair dealer.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Agency Counsel's Prehearing Tactics in Professional and Vocation Licensing Hearings

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.24

§ 473D.24 Prehearing Termination of Licensee's Telephone Service

[1] When to Seek Termination

When a licensee's telephone is used to violate or assist in violating the law, the licensing agency, under certain circumstances, may petition the superior court for a finding of probable cause to terminate the licensee's telephone service. Although the licensing agency may seek this action against the licensee independent of any license discipline proceeding, procedures for terminating a licensee's telephone service are usually coupled with a disciplinary action against the licensee. An agency's action to terminate a licensee's telephone service almost always occurs prior to an administrative disciplinary hearing. Because some professions and vocations licensed or regulated by the state, such as collection agencies, repossessors, and television and appliance repair services, are particularly telephone intensive, the licensed activities may be severely curtailed by terminating telephone service [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 149 (statutory authority for designated agencies to seek termination of telephone service when unlicensed persons perform services requiring license from designated agency)].

[2] Authority for Termination

The authority for court-ordered termination of telephone service is found in Public Utilities Commission Decision No. 91188, Case No. 4930 [3 Cal. PUC 2d 87; see Goldin v. Public Utilities Commission (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 638, 646, 153 Cal. Rptr. 802, 592 P.2d 289 ; see also PUC Decision No. 71797 (1966) (Rule 31)]. Pursuant to this rule, the California Public Utilities Commission requires every communications utility operating under its jurisdiction to refuse service to a new applicant and to disconnect existing service to a customer on receipt from any authorized official of a law enforcement agency of a writing, signed by a magistrate [see Penal Code §§ 807, 808], finding that probable cause exists to believe either of the following [3 Cal. PUC 2d 87, 91 (App. B)]:

- That the use made or to be made of the service is prohibited by law.

- That the service is or will be used as an instrumentality, directly or indirectly, to violate or to assist in the violation of the law.

The magistrate's writing must also include a finding that probable cause exists to believe not only that the subject telephone facilities have been or are about to be used in the commission or facilitation of illegal acts, but that the character of these acts is such that, absent immediate and summary action in the premises, significant dangers to public health, safety, or welfare will result [3 Cal. PUC 2d 87, 91-92 (App. B)].

The California Supreme Court has determined that these provisions for denying or terminating telephone service satisfy the constitutional requirements of due process [Goldin v. Public Utilities Commission (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 638, 646, 153 Cal. Rptr. 802, 592 P.2d 289 (the constitutional safeguards required by the Court in addition to those set forth in Rule 31 [PUC Decision No. 71797 (1966)]] have been incorporated into PUC Decision No. 91188 [3 Cal. PUC 2d 87, 91 (App. B); see Sokol v. Public Utilities Commission (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 247, 53 Cal. Rptr. 673, 418 P.2d 265] .

Thus, the discontinuance of communication facilities used in the commission or furtherance of illegal acts may be proper without a prior hearing, provided that any person aggrieved by the action receives immediate notice and has the right to immediately file a complaint to request interim relief pending resolution of the complaint [Goldin v. Public Utilities Commission (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 638, 646, 153 Cal. Rptr. 802, 592 P.2d 289 ; see PUC Decision No. 91188, 3 Cal. PUC 2d 87, 91 (App. B)].

[3] Method to Secure Termination

A licensing agency may terminate a licensee's telephone service by filing a complaint in the superior court seeking findings of probable cause to terminate telephone service pursuant to the appropriate rules of the communications utility that provides the telephone service. Although this complaint may be filed alone, it is usually coupled with a petition for a TRO and/or injunctive relief. The complaint for findings of probable cause should clearly set forth the authority of the court to grant this relief and should possibly include a copy of the Public Utilities Commission Order requiring utilities to include the termination provisions in their tariff schedules, as well as the tariff rule itself [see PUC Decision No. 91188 (1980), 3 Cal. PUC 2d 87, 89, 91 (App. B)].

The affidavits used to support a petition for a TRO or other injunctive relief will generally support a finding of probable cause to terminate telephone service. The affidavits should clearly show that the licensee's telephone number has been or is being used in the commission or facilitation of illegal acts. The affiants must also state that the character of these acts is such that, absent immediate and summary action, significant dangers to the public health, safety, or welfare will result [see PUC Decision No. 91188 (1980), 3 Cal. PUC 2d 87, 91-92 (App. B); see also Goldin v. Public Utilities Commission (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 638, 664, 153 Cal. Rptr. 802, 592 P.2d 289] . Once the magistrate makes a finding of probable cause, and the finding is delivered to the communications utility by an authorized official of the law enforcement agency, the utility must immediately disconnect the telephone service, or refuse service to the new applicant [see PUC Decision No. 91188 (1980), 3 Cal. PUC 2d 87, 91-92 (App. B)].

The utility must immediately notify the applicant or subscriber in writing that the disconnection or refusal of service is made pursuant to a request by a law enforcement agency. The notice must identify the agency and include a copy of the rule with an accompanying statement that the applicant or subscriber may request information and assistance from the Commission at its San Francisco or Los Angeles office [PUC Decision No. 91188 (1980), 3 Cal. PUC 2d 87, 92 (App. B); see [4], below].

[4] Method to Restore Telephone Service

An applicant or subscriber whose telephone service has been denied or disconnected pursuant to this rule and who wishes to have the service initiated or restored must file a complaint with the Commission and may include a request for interim relief in the complaint. Once this relief is requested, the Commission must schedule a public hearing on the complaint to be held within 20 calendar days of the filing of the complaint. This remedy is exclusive. The concerned law enforcement agency has the right to notice of the hearing from the Commission, and has the right to participate in the hearing, including the right to present evidence and argument, and to present and cross-examine witnesses [PUC Decision No. 91188 (1980), 3 Cal. PUC 2d 87, 92 (App. B)].

At the expiration of 15 days after the refusal or disconnection of service, the utility must, on written request of the applicant or subscriber, provide or restore service unless the law enforcement agency gives the utility written notice of the agency's objection to the provision or restoration of service. If the law enforcement agency objects, the sole remedy of the applicant or subscriber is to file a complaint with the Commission as described above [PUC Decision No. 91188 (1980), 3 Cal. PUC 2d 87, 93 (App. B)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining OrdersConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of ProtectionEnergy & Utilities LawUtility CompaniesService TerminationsGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Agency Counsel's Prehearing Tactics in Professional and Vocation Licensing Hearings

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.25

§ 473D.25 Evidence by Affidavit

[1] General Procedure

Gov. Code § 11514 (affidavits) sets forth a procedure by which a party may introduce affidavits into evidence as if the affiant had testified orally at the hearing. This procedure may cripple opposing counsel's case if the attorney inadvertently waives the right to cross-examine the affiant by failing to request cross-examination within the proscribed time. A party to a hearing or a continued hearing may introduce an affidavit into evidence, with the same effect as if the affiant had testified orally at the hearing but without having the affiant subject to cross-examination, if the following requirements are met [Gov. Code § 11514(a)]:

- The party mails or delivers a copy of any affidavit that the party proposes to introduce into evidence to the opposing party at least 10 days before the hearing.

- The party mails or delivers proper notice with the affidavit [see Gov. Code § 11514(b); see also [2], below].

- The opposing party does not request cross-examination of the affiant in a timely manner.

An opposing party who fails to request cross-examination of an affiant in a timely manner is not entitled to complain on appeal of a deprivation of rights by the admission of the affidavit into evidence [see Park Motors, Inc. v. Cozens (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 12, 17-18, 122 Cal. Rptr. 337] . If the opposing party properly requests the right to cross-examine the affiant, however, and the proponent does not produce the affiant at the hearing, the affidavit may be introduced into evidence, but is only accorded the same effect as other hearsay evidence and thus does not support a finding in and of itself [Gov. Code §§ 11513(c), (d), 11514(a)]. Because a request to cross-examine the affiant does not require the proponent to produce the affiant at the hearing, the opposing party should subpoena the affiant if cross-examination is desired [see 6 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 219 (1945)] .

There are several circumstances under which counsel should consider using Gov. Code § 11514, including the following:

- When the affiant is potentially unavailable as a witness.
- When the demeanor of a potential witness may be harmful to the case or may cast doubts on the witness's credibility.
- When a potential witness's testimony would be brief and not pivotal.
- When a potential witness would be called solely as a character witness.
- When a proposed witness may be vulnerable to cross-examination.

In addition, in some situations the parties may wish to agree on evidence by affidavit, such as when both parties agree on the contents of the proposed testimony, the witness is not necessarily a key witness, and cross-examination of the witness would not be particularly productive or enlightening. Counsel for the opposing party may also consider waiving the right to cross-examine an affiant whose physical appearance on the witness stand may be quite compelling, such as an elderly person, child, or member of the clergy, and whose cross-examination might not be particularly helpful to the cross-examining party.

[2] Required Notice

Gov. Code § 11514(b) sets forth the requirements for the notice accompanying the copy of the affidavit sent to opposing counsel. The notice must be substantially in the form set forth in the statute and must inform the recipient of the following matters [Gov. Code § 11514(b)]:

- The accompanying affidavit of the named affiant will be introduced as evidence at the hearing.
- The named affiant will not be called to testify orally at the hearing.
- Opposing counsel will not be entitled to question the named affiant at the hearing unless opposing counsel notifies the proponent of the affidavit or the proponent's attorney that counsel wishes to cross-examine the affiant.
- Opposing counsel must mail or deliver the request to cross-examine the affiant to the proponent of the affidavit or the proponent's attorney on or before a specified date that is seven days after the mailing or delivery date of the affidavit to opposing counsel.

Note that Gov. Code § 11514 sets a minimum but not a maximum time for service of the notice of intent to introduce the affidavit and of the affidavit itself. Thus, a tactical advantage may be gained by serving the required notice at the earliest possible time, either with or immediately after the agency's complaint, or with or immediately after the notice of defense for the respondent. Although this step may be tactically effective, it may not stimulate a cordial relationship between opposing counsel.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityHearsayAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityEvidenceTestimonyExaminationCross-ExaminationGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Agency Counsel's Prehearing Tactics in Professional and Vocation Licensing Hearings

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.26

§ 473D.26 Prehearing Briefs

Some attorneys habitually prepare the equivalent of a trial brief to be presented to the administrative law judge (ALJ) at the commencement of the hearing. In general, however, this step does not give the party a particular tactical advantage, because: (1) the ALJ does not normally read these briefs until conclusion of the hearing, or (2) the hearing may focus on issues other than those raised in the brief. Further, the opposing party is invariably given an opportunity to rebut the points raised in the brief, usually after having had the benefit of hearing and seeing the evidence.

If counsel for one of the parties has a significant issue that he or she feels should be brought to the attention of the ALJ at the outset of the hearing, counsel would be better served by submitting a prehearing brief to the ALJ, with a copy to opposing counsel, approximately two weeks before the hearing the commences. This tactic is particularly helpful when: (1) there is a possibility that the statute of limitations may bar the agency from taking disciplinary action against the licensee, or (2) an issue of res judicata or estoppel may have an impact on the forthcoming administrative hearing. The filing of a prehearing brief may be beneficial in that the brief can serve to focus the ALJ's attention on the issues as defined by the attorney filing the brief, and enable the ALJ to anticipate, and prepare for, issues that may be raised by a party as a preliminary matter. The brief might otherwise be irrelevant to the matters alleged in the administrative complaint, but that may nonetheless aid in the presentation of a particular defense. Although a well-written and well-reasoned prehearing brief may be of assistance in securing favorable preliminary rulings, counsel should be mindful of the fact that ALJs do not have the authority to summarily dismiss a case [see Frost v. State Personnel Board (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10, 11 Cal. Rptr. 718 ; see also Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications].

The use of a preliminary brief is not appropriate in all circumstances, and counsel should carefully consider whether there is a preliminary issue of sufficient importance to warrant briefing. Further, even if such issues exist, counsel may nevertheless wish to forego the filing of a preliminary brief to avoid educating the opposition as to the theory of his or her case prematurely.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsRes JudicataAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & PowersGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Agency Counsel's Prehearing Tactics in Professional and Vocation Licensing Hearings

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473D.27-473D.39

[Reserved]

§§ 473D.27[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.40

§ 473D.40 Federal Constitution

Due process clause. U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.41

§ 473D.41 State Constitution

Due process clause. Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.42

§ 473D.42 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

Accusation. Gov. Code § 11503

Administrative adjudication bill of rights. Gov. Code §§ 11425.10-11425.60

Administrative Law Judges. Gov. Code § 11502

Affidavits. Gov. Code § 11514

Agency decisional authority. Gov. Code § 11440.10

Agencies to which act applies. Gov. Code §§ 11410.10, 11501

Amendment of pleadings. Gov. Code §§ 11507, 11516

Applicability of provisions to statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504.5

Conduct of hearing. Gov. Code § 11512

Consolidation of proceedings. Gov. Code § 11507.3

Contempt. Gov. Code §§ 11455.10-11455.30

Continuances. Gov. Code § 11524

Conversion of proceedings. Gov. Code §§ 11470.10-11470.50

Decision. Gov. Code §§ 11516-11520, 11526

Declaratory decision. Gov. Code §§ 11465.10-11465.70

Definitions of terms. Gov. Code §§ 11405.10-11405.80, 11500

Depositions. Gov. Code § 11511

Discovery. Gov. Code §§ 11507.5-11507.7

Disqualification. Gov. Code §§ 11425.30, 11425.40, 11512

Emergency decision. Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80

Evidence. Gov. Code §§ 11435.10, 11440.40, 11513

Ex parte communications. Gov. Code §§ 11430.10-11430.80

Hearings by electronic means Gov. Code § 11440.30

Informal hearings. Gov. Code § 11445.10-11445.60

Intervention. Gov. Code § 11440.50

Language assistance. Gov. Code § 11435.05-11435.65

Judicial review. Gov. Code § 11523

Notice of defense. Gov. Code § 11506

Notice of hearing. Gov. Code § 11509

Oaths. Gov. Code § 11528

Official notice. Gov. Code § 11515

Reconsideration. Gov. Code § 11521

Reporting proceedings. Gov. Code § 11512

Restoration of rights. Gov. Code § 11522

Separate hearings. Gov. Code § 11507.3

Service and notice. Gov. Code § 11440.20

Service of initial pleading. Gov. Code § 11505

Settlement conferences. Gov. Code § 11511.7

Sexual harassment. Gov. Code § 11440.40

Statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504

Subpoenas. Gov. Code §§ 11450.05-11450.50

Time and place of hearing. Gov. Code § 11508

Waiver of rights. Gov. Code § 11415.40

[2] Related Statutes

Affidavit of good cause required for subpoena duces tecum. Code Civ. Proc. § 1985

Witness served with subpoena entitled to demand one day's fees and mileage allowance. Code Civ. Proc. § 1987

Witness fees and mileage allowances. Gov. Code §§ 11191, 68093, 68097.2

Right to have subpoena issued. Gov. Code § 11190

Office of Administrative Hearings. Gov. Code §§ 11370.3-11370.5

Board of supervisors of county empowered to establish county hearing officer. Gov. Code §§ 27720, 27721

Oaths used in civil proceedings. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2094-2097

Evidentiary effect of plea of nolo contendere. Penal Code § 1016

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsAdministrative Boards

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.43

§ 473D.43 Decisions

Appellant is not entitled to continuance for purpose of filing petition to compel discovery pursuant to Gov. Code § 11507.7 when limitation period for filing petition has expired. Lax v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1981) 116 Cal. App. 3d 669, 675-676, 172 Cal. Rptr. 258

Respondent is not entitled to continuance for purpose of obtaining counsel or having counsel present if given adequate opportunity to get counsel and have counsel present. Skipitar v. Munro (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 1, 4-6, 345 P.2d 508

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing Activity

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.44

§ 473D.44 Text References

Judicial Council of California, Tenth Biennial Report (1944)

California Administrative Hearing Practice (Cal. C.E.B. 1984)

Witkin, California Evidence, Ch. III, Judicial Notice, §§ 150-191; Ch. X, Witnesses, §§ 787-791; Ch. XII, Introduction of Evidence at Trial, §§ 1223-1275 (2d ed.)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityGeneral OverviewEvidenceJudicial NoticeGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.45

§ 473D.45 Internet References

Office of Administrative Hearings. This site includes: information and location concerning specific OAH offices; an OAH hearing guide; information concerning Administrative Procedure Act statutes, regulations, and proposed regulations; OAH forms; information concerning alternative dispute resolution procedures; and declaratory decisions. http://www.dgs.ca.gov/oah NOTE: On and after July 1, 1998, The OAL is required by Gov. Code § 11340.1(b) to make the full text of the California Code of Regulations, with reference citations and history notes, available on the Internet free of charge.

Office of Administrative Law. This site includes: OAL publications; links to OAL statutes and regulations relating to rulemaking; regulations submitted to the OAL for review, and information for contacting or providing input to the OAL regarding rulemaking. http://www.oal.ca.gov

California Home Page. This site includes links to other sites maintained by numerous state agencies. http://www.ca.gov

Department of Consumer Affairs. This site includes links to sites maintained by many state agencies that are under this department, as well as links to agency sites. http://www.dca.ca.gov

California Courts. This site includes: general information about state court organization and specific court; text of recently filed slip opinions; court minutes and calendars; text of California Rules of Court; Judicial Council forms and other information promulgated by the Judicial Council; links to sites of most Court of Appeal districts, with text of local appellate rules, forms, and internal operating procedures; links to other sites maintained by local trial courts, state government agencies and organizations, federal courts and federal organizations, and other sources of legal information. http://www.courtinfo.ca.gov

California Legislative Information. This site includes: text of constitution, codes, and statutes (including complete text of APA); and information concerning pending legislation. http://www.leginfo.ca.gov

Matthew Bender. This site includes: links to Matthew Bender publications and Shepard's citation service.

http://www.bender.com

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute ResolutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsCreation & OrganizationGovernmentsLegislationEnactment

179 of 184 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473D.46-473D.49

[Reserved]

§§ 473D.46[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.50

§ 473D.50 Determine the Appropriate Respondent Tactics With Respect to Investigation and Preparation for Hearing

☐ Ascertain the status of the investigation.

- ☐ A charging document has been filed.
- ☐ An investigator has approached the client.
- ☐ The agency has requested documents from the client.

☐ If the client has been approached by an investigator, determine what degree of cooperation with the investigation is advisable or required.

☐ If the agency has requested documents, decide whether to surrender them.

☐ If the client is mentally ill or a substance abuser, determine if the agency has a diversion program that may be available as an alternative to discipline [see § 473D.10[5]].

☐ Ascertain desirability of moving for a continuance of the hearing [see § 473D.12].

☐ Ascertain desirability of moving for a prehearing conference [see § 473D.13].

☐ Ascertain what must be done to prepare for the hearing [see § 473D.14].

☐ If desirable, ascertain how to pursue settlement [see § 473D.15].

☐ Ascertain what actions client must take to avoid any post-settlement problems with the agency [see § 473D.15[8]].

☐ Compliance with the terms of the settlement agreement.

☐ Prompt filing of any reports.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.51

§ 473D.51 Determine the Likelihood That an Agency May Take Unanticipated Prehearing Steps in a Professional or Vocational Licensing Proceeding

☐ Ascertain the likelihood that a prehearing injunction and restraining order may be issued [see §§ 473D.21 -473D.23].

☐ Ascertain the likelihood that on order terminating licensee's telephone service will be issued [see § 473D.24].

☐ Determine whether to use affidavits to present evidence [see § 473D.25].

☐ Determine whether to use prehearing briefs to prepare the administrative law judge for issues to be raised as a preliminary matter [see § 473D.26].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsPreliminary & Temporary InjunctionsCivil ProcedureRemediesInjunctionsTemporary Restraining OrdersEnergy & Utilities LawUtility CompaniesService TerminationsGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.52

§ 473D.52 Response to Accusation or Statement of Issues

☐ Prepare notice of defense [see § 473D.11[2][a]; for a form, see § 473A.54; for further discussion of the notice of defense, see §§ 473A.11[6], 473A.40].

☐ Include objection to form of accusation, if applicable [see Gov. Code § 11506(a)(3); see § 473D.11[2][b]].

☐ Request prehearing conference on objections raised [see Gov. Code § 11511.5(a); see also § 473D.11[3][b]].

☐ File within 15 days after respondent receives accusation [Gov. Code § 11506(a); see § 473D.11[2][a]].

☐ Call agency's counsel and request additional time to file notice of defense, if necessary [see Gov. Code § 11506(b), (c); see also § 473D.11[2][a]].

☐ Objections to form of accusation not included in notice of defense.

☐ File special notice of defense making the objection [see Gov. Code § 11506(b); see also § 473D.11[3][b]].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.53

§ 473D.53 Preparation for Hearing

[1] Review

☐ Review the accusation or charging document [see § 473D.14[1]].

[2] Investigation

☐ Investigate facts at issue [see § 473D.14[2]].

[3] Witnesses

☐ Obtain expert witnesses [see § 473D.14[3]].

☐ Prepare witnesses [see § 473D.14[5]].

☐ Written statement [see § 473D.14[5][a]].

☐ Rehearse witnesses [see § 473D.14[5][b]].

[4] Documents

☐ Organize documents [see § 473D.14[4]].

[5] Client

☐ Prepare client [see § 473D.14[6]].

☐ Educate client [see § 473D.14[6][a]].

☐ Rehearse client [see § 473D.14[6][b]].

[6] Demonstrative Evidence

☐ Prepare demonstrative evidence [see § 473D.14[7]].

[7] Briefs

☐ Prepare trial briefs [see § 473D.14[8]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewEvidenceDemonstrative EvidenceGeneral OverviewEvidenceTestimonyExpertsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473D PREHEARING PREPARATIONS IN AGENCY ADJUDICATIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473D California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473D.54

§ 473D.54 Requesting Discovery Under the APA

[1] Request for Discovery

☐ Prepare written request [for a form, see § 473B.61; for further discussion, see §§ 473A.14[1], 473B.50].

☐ Request applicable files [see § 473D.11[3][c]].

☐ Include request for continuing discovery [see § 473D.11[3][b]].

☐ Service

☐ Serve request before hearing and within 30 days after service by agency of initial pleading [Gov. Code § 11507.6; see § 473D.11[3][a]].

☐ Serve within 15 days after service of any additional pleading [Gov. Code § 11507.6; see § 473D.11[3][a]].

[2] Motion to Compel Discovery

☐ Prepare motion [see Gov. Code § 11507.6; see also § 473D.11[3][e]; for a form, see § 473B.63; for further discussion, see §§ 473B.16, 473B.50[4]].

☐ File with ALJ [Gov. Code § 11507.7(a)].

☐ See Ch. 473B for detailed discussion.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 473E.syn

§ 473E.syn Synopsis to Chapter 473E: PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES

§ 473E.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 473E.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

[2] Judicial Review

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

[4] Other Related Chapters

§§ 473E.03-473E.09 [Reserved]

§ 473E.10 Governing Statutes

§ 473E.11 Status and Appointment of ALJs Under the APA

[1] Office of Administrative Hearings

[a] Purpose of OAH

[b] Staff of Administrative Law Judges

[c] Costs

[2] Qualifications

[3] Duties

§ 473E.12 Role and Function of ALJs in APA Hearings

[1] Hearing by ALJ Alone or ALJ With Agency Members

[2] ALJ Hearing Case Alone

[3] Agency Itself Hearing Case

[4] Power of Decision

§ 473E.13 Agency Hearing Officers in Non-APA Hearings

[1] General Requirements

[2] Role and Function

[3] County Hearing Officers

§§ 473E.14-473E.19 [Reserved]

§ 473E.20 Fair Hearing Standards

[1] Introduction

[2] Constitutional Standard

[3] APA Standard

[4] Non-APA Standards

§ 473E.21 Grounds for Disqualification

[1] Bias and Prejudice

[2] Prejudgment

[a] Questions of Law or Policy

[b] Adjudicative Facts

[3] Personal Prejudice

[4] Financial Interest

[a] Direct Interest

[b] Restriction of Competitors

[c] Composition of Board

[d] Political Reform Act of 1974

[5] Personal Involvement or Relationship

[a] Friends, Acquaintances, and Coworkers

[b] Former Counsel or Co-counsel

[c] Family Relationship to Party

[d] Family Relationship With Lawyer in Proceeding

[e] Personal Knowledge

[6] Other Grounds for Disqualification

[a] Lack of Impartiality

[b] Physical Impairment

[7] Non-Disqualification Grounds

[8] Multiple Roles of Agencies

[a] Prosecution, Investigation, and Adjudication

[i] Constitutional Standards

[ii] APA Standard

[b] Legal Representation

[c] Party Who Imposed Penalty Must Consent to Reduction of Penalty by Reviewing Body

§ 473E.22 Disqualification Procedures

[1] APA Procedures

[a] Request for Disqualification, Waiver, and Timeliness

[b] Contents of Affidavit

[c] Determination of Bias

[d] Peremptory Challenges

[2] Non-APA Procedures

[3] Judicial Review of Decision

§ 473E.23 Rule of Necessity

[1] General Requirements

[2] APA Proceedings

§ 473E.24 Ex Parte Communications

[1] Introduction

[2] APA Requirements

[a] Definitions and Basic Prohibitions

[b] Permissible Communications

[c] Consequences of Violations

[d] Application to Agency Head

[3] Non-APA Requirements

§ 473E.25 ALJ Code of Ethics

[1] Applicability

[2] Incorporation of Code of Judicial Ethics

[a] Code of Judicial Ethics Incorporated Generally

[b] Excluded Provisions of Code of Judicial Ethics

[3] Compliance With and Enforcement of Code

[4] Collective Bargaining Rights Not Affected

§§ 473E.26-473E.29 [Reserved]

§ 473E.30 Federal Constitution

§ 473E.31 State Constitution

§ 473E.32 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

[2] Related Statutes

§ 473E.33 Decisions

[1] Conduct of Hearing

[2] Disqualification of Agency Member

[3] Disqualification of Administrative Law Judge

§ 473E.34 Text References

§ 473E.35 Internet References

§§ 473E.36-473E.39 [Reserved]

§ 473E.40 Request for Disqualification of ALJ or Agency Member

[1] Motion to Disqualify

[2] Peremptory Challenge

§ 473E.41 Disqualification in Non-APA Procedures

§ 473E.42 Waiver of Disqualification

[1] Written Waiver

§§ 473E.43-473E.59 [Reserved]

§ 473E.60 Motion to Disqualify ALJ or Agency Member and Supporting Declaration [Gov. Code § 11512(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 473E.61 Written Waiver of Disqualification [Gov. Code § 11512(c)]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.01

§ 473E.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter provides a discussion of administrative law judges (ALJs) in California public administrative law. The legal background discussion in Part II includes the following:

- Subpart A discusses ALJ issues including appointment, status, role, and function of ALJs, the Office of Administrative Hearings (OAH), the role of ALJs both in adjudications under the Administrative Procedure Act (APA) non-APA agency adjudications [see §§ 473E.11 -473E.13].

- Subpart B discusses impartial decision making and bias, including fair hearing standards, bias and prejudice, disqualification procedures, the rule of necessity, and ex parte communications [see §§ 473E.20 -473E.24].

Part V includes a form of motion to disqualify an administrative law judge or agency member [see § 473E.60] and a form of waiver of disqualification [see § 473E.61].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityEx Parte ContactsAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & Powers

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.02

§ 473E.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

For related discussion and forms providing more detailed coverage of the other stages of an agency adjudication under the formal hearing provisions of the APA, see:

- Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication.
- Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication.
- Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473D, Prehearing Preparations in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings.
- Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions.

For related discussion and forms providing more detailed coverage of adjudication methods under the APA other than that of formal hearing, see Ch. 473H, Alternative Adminstrative Adjudication Procedures .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to licensing agencies, including licensing adjudications, see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies .

For additional cross references to coverage of agency adjudications before specific agencies, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law, § 470.02[2].

[2] Judicial Review

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to review by California courts of agency adjudications, see:

- Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions.
- Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions.
- Ch. 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions.
- Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions.

For other related discussion and forms relating to judicial review generally, see:

- Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, through Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review (discussion and forms relating to civil appeals).
- Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of orders by extraordinary writ of mandate or prohibition).
- Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of civil proceedings by extraordinary writ of review).

For forms for use in drafting memoranda in judicial proceedings to review a public agency decision, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law (Matthew Bender).

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

For related discussion of California public administrative law generally, including discussion of public agency functions and powers (including adjudicative or quasi-judicial powers), and organization generally, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law (for general discussion of judicial power, see § 470.12[5]). For detailed discussion of the general procedures imposed in agency proceedings by constitutional due process and related statutory requirements, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies .

For discussion and forms relating to the law governing access to and conduct of meetings by California public agencies, see Ch. 470B, Public Agency Meetings .

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the law governing disclosure of public records under the California Public Records Act [Cal. Gov. Code §§ 6250 et seq.], see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to agency investigations and inspections, see:

- Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies.
- Ch. 471A, Inspections by Public Agencies.

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to the legislative or rulemaking functions of California public agencies, including judicial review of these functions, see:

- Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules.

- Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures.
- Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking.

[4] Other Related Chapters

For discussion and forms relating to the disqualification of judges in civil actions generally, see Ch. 317, Judges .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute ResolutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473E.03-473E.09

[Reserved]

§§ 473E.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Administrative Law Judges

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.10

§ 473E.10 Governing Statutes

Administrative Law Judges (ALJs) and the Office of Administrative Hearings (OAH) is governed generally by Chapter 4, "Office of Administrative Hearings," Gov. Code. Code §§ 11370-11370.5. Chapter 4 is one of four Government Code chapters that comprise the Administrative Procedure Act (APA); the others are Chapter 3.5 (Rulemaking; Gov. Code. Code § 11340 et seq., Chapters 4.5 and 5 (Administrative Adjudication; Gov. Code. Code § 11400 et seq. and Gov. Code. Code § 11500 et seq., [see Gov. Code. Code § 11370 (citation of APA)]. Technically, these four chapters are not chapters of the APA itself, but are chapters within Part 1 (State Departments and Agencies) of Division 3 (Executive Department) of Title 2 (California State Government) of the Government Code. For convenience, they are often referred to simply as Chapter 4, Chapter 4.5, etc.

The conduct and disqualification of ALJs, when acting as the presiding officer in an administration adjudication, are governed also by Article 6 of Chapter 4.5, "The Administrative Adjudication Bill of Rights," Gov. Code. Code §§ 11425.10-11425.60, and Article 7, "Ex Parte Communication," Gov. Code. Code §§ 11430.10-11430.80.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Administrative Law Judges

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.11

§ 473E.11 Status and Appointment of ALJs Under the APA

[1] Office of Administrative Hearings

[a] Purpose of OAH

The Office of Administrative Hearings (the OAH), previously called the Office of Administrative Procedure, was established by the APA as a centralized office, responsible for the conduct of administrative hearings [Gov. Code § 11370.2]. The OAH combines the hearing functions that, in dissimilar and disparate ways, had been formerly exercised by the staff and boards of various licensing agencies. It was designed, in other words, to establish uniformity in agency proceedings and eliminate "an almost unbelievable diversity" in agency procedures that had arisen in the absence of any centralized organizing agency [see Tenth Biennial Report of the Judicial Council of California, Dec. 31, 1944, pp. 10, 11].

The OAH has promulgated administrative regulations under Gov. Code § 11370.5(b) which set out the procedures by which OAH conducts hearings before ALJ's who work for the OAH [see 1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1000 et seq.]. These regulations should be consulted to determine specific procedural requirements during the prehearing, hearing, and post-hearing stages of proceedings before such ALJ's.

[b] Staff of Administrative Law Judges

The OAH is under the direction and control of an executive officer known as the director [Gov. Code §§ 11370.1, 11370.2(a)], who is appointed by the governor subject to confirmation of the Senate [Gov. Code § 11370.2(b)].

The director must appoint and maintain a staff of full-time ALJs [Gov. Code § 11370.3; see Gov. Code § 11502 (qualifications), and discussion in [3], below]. The director may also appoint a staff of pro tempore, part-time ALJs sufficient to fill the needs of the various state agencies [Gov. Code § 11370.3]. The director assigns an ALJ in the following instances [Gov. Code § 11370.3]:

- For any adjudicatory hearing under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code. Code § 11500 et seq.).

- At the request of any agency, and at the director's discretion, to conduct other administrative proceedings not arising under the APA's formal hearing provisions.

The ALJs of the OAH are deemed to be employees of the OAH, rather than of the agency to which they are assigned. Note that, after the enactment of the APA in 1945 and before 1985, ALJs were known as "hearing officers" [see Stats. 1985, Ch. 324]; decisions under the prior law thus use this term.

When the Judicial Council recommended formation of a centralized agency to maintain a staff of qualified hearing officers that state agencies would be required to use in adjudicatory hearings, it observed that the success of such a plan required hearing officers to be well-qualified in the fields of law and procedure and, thus, accorded the position a relatively independent status [Tenth Biennial Report of the Judicial Council of California, Dec. 31, 1944, p. 13]. As a result, the ALJs have the independence and tenure necessary for them to perform their duties free from outside influences, which the Council believed would result from civil service status and employment subject to the control of the central agency rather than the licensing agencies [Tenth Biennial Report of the Judicial Council of California, Dec. 31, 1944, p. 14].

[c] Costs

The costs of the ALJs' services are borne by the agencies that use them [Gov. Code § 11370.4]. The parent agency of the OAH, the State Department of General Services, annually establishes hourly rates for its ALJs and shorthand reporters that are calculated to cover the OAH's costs of the operation, including personnel, travel, training, and other expenses [see Gov. Code § 11370.4]. ALJs maintain records of the time devoted to such things as preparation for and conduct of the hearing, researching and writing the decision, and travel associated with each case, all of which is billed to the agency.

Licensing agencies authorized to collect costs of investigation and prosecution may request that the ALJ fix appropriate costs in the proposed decision [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 2497.5 (Board of Podiatric Medicine)]. Costs of a teacher dismissal or suspension hearing are shared equally by the governing board of the school district that filed the accusation and the dismissed or suspended teacher; when an accusation is dismissed, the costs are borne by the district alone [Educ. Code § 44944(e)].

[2] Qualifications

To ensure that the positions will be held by persons of experience who are qualified in the procedural field, Gov. Code § 11502(b) requires each ALJ to have been admitted to law practice in California for at least five years immediately preceding the appointment [Gov. Code § 11502(b); see Tenth Biennial Report of the Judicial Council of California, Dec. 31, 1944, p. 14]. The term "immediately" means that the appointee must have been in practice at least five years continuously, counting back from the date of appointment. In addition, each judge must possess any additional qualifications established by the State Personnel Board for the particular class of position involved [Gov. Code § 11502(b)]. That Board conducts civil service examinations as necessary to establish lists of qualified individuals from which the director may appoint ALJs. A presiding ALJ, designated by the director, performs supervisory and administrative functions in each of the regional offices located in Oakland, San Diego, Sacramento, and Los Angeles [see Gov. Code § 11508(a) (location of hearings)].

[3] Duties

The primary duty of an ALJ is to preside over adjudicatory hearings in contested APA cases [Gov. Code §§ 11502, 11512(a); for further discussion of that duty, see § 473E.12]. In addition, ALJs conduct other kinds of hearings for state agencies and boards, and conduct civil service hearings, retirement system entitlement hearings, and other matters for local agencies, cities, and counties. Since 1965, California counties and other local public entities have been authorized to contract with the OAH for the services of an ALJ to conduct their hearing proceedings [Gov. Code § 27727]. The role and function of the ALJ in these other kinds of hearings is usually set out in the relevant civil service rules, retirement provisions, or regulations of the agency that has contracted with the OAH for that service [see, e.g., Gov. Code § 27722 (county hearings)]. The cost of the ALJ is charged at the same hourly rate established for APA matters [see [1][c], above].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & PowersGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsEmployees & Officials

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Administrative Law Judges

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.12

§ 473E.12 Role and Function of ALJs in APA Hearings

[1] Hearing by ALJ Alone or ALJ With Agency Members

Any hearing in a contested case conducted under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code. Code § 11500 et seq.) must be presided over by an ALJ [Gov. Code § 11512(a)].

The particular agency, however, determines whether the assigned ALJ will hear the case alone, or whether the "agency itself" (i.e., agency members) will hear the case together with the ALJ [Gov. Code § 11512(a); Usher v. County of Monterey (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 210, 218-219, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 274] . That agency cannot assign a hearing officer to preside over the hearing, but must assign an ALJ to preside over the hearing, or have the agency hear the case with an ALJ presiding [Gov. Code § 11512(a); Gov. Code § 21156; Langan v. City of El Monte (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 608, 617-618, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 254] . The ALJ's duties vary depending on this determination. An agency may change its initial determination regarding who will hear the case. The court of appeal has held that due process was not denied to a respondent when an agency itself started to hear a case, but midway through the hearing decided to withdraw and let the ALJ continue to hear the case alone [Feist v. Rowe (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 404, 421, 83 Cal. Rptr. 465] . This same procedure is authorized by Gov. Code § 11512(e), for circumstances in which an agency quorum no longer exists while a hearing is in progress [Gov. Code § 11512(e)].

The requirement that an ALJ hear the case, either alone or with agency members, was designed to eliminate the actual or seeming unfairness whenever agency members hearing the case would seek legal advice from the prosecuting agency attorney because of their unfamiliarity with procedural law and complex legal issues [Tenth Biennial Report of the Judicial Council, Dec. 31, 1944, pp. 19, 20].

[2] ALJ Hearing Case Alone

In practice, most cases under the APA are heard by ALJs sitting alone. Agency members generally participate only in important cases, cases requiring the application of specialized knowledge, or cases involving agency policy. The matters most frequently heard by an agency itself are Board of Medical Quality license discipline accusations in which either incompetence or gross negligence is alleged [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2234(b), (d), 2332(d), (e)], and petitions to restore a suspended license or amend probationary terms filed with the Board of Medical Quality or Board of Registered Nursing [Gov. Code § 11522; Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 2332(f), 2760]. The latter are typically brief hearings conducted during the agency's regularly scheduled meetings. A respondent does not have a right to a hearing by the agency itself [Gov. Code § 11512(a)], and the difficulty of convening board or commission members for a lengthy hearing conducted during the business day accounts for the relative infrequency of the agency hearings.

When an ALJ alone hears a case, he or she exercises all the powers necessary to conduct the hearing [Gov. Code § 11512(b)]. In effect, the ALJ is a deputy of the agency [Tenth Biennial Report of the Judicial Council, Dec. 31, 1944, p. 20]. The ALJ must conduct the hearing, weigh the evidence, and research and apply the law. Within 30 days after the case is submitted, the ALJ must prepare a proposed written decision containing a statement of the factual and legal basis of the decision, and the penalty, if any, in a form that may be adopted by the agency as the decision in the case [Gov. Code §§ 11517(c)(1), 11425.50].

In one of the earlier appellate decisions following the initial enactment of APA, the court of appeal concluded that, so long as the agency retains the authority to approve or reject the proposed decision of an ALJ, its delegation of power to the ALJ, to decide the case alone, is specifically authorized by statute and is not a violation of due process [Hohreiter v. Garrison (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 384, 398-399, 184 P.2d 323] . Gov. Code § 11517 provides that when an ALJ acts alone, the agency may adopt his or her decision without reading or otherwise familiarizing itself with the record [Hohreiter v. Garrison (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 384, 398-399, 184 P.2d 323 ; see Griggs v. Board of Trustees (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 93, 98, 37 Cal. Rptr. 194, 389 P.2d 722 (interpreting similar provisions in Education Code governing teacher dismissal hearings); for discussion of the record on decision, see Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions].

This principle was extended one step further in a case in which the hearing officer who conducted the hearing died before preparing a recommended decision. The agency appointed a new hearing officer who reviewed all of the evidence presented at the hearing and prepared a recommended decision that the agency adopted [Keith v. San Bernardino County Retirement Bd. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 411, 414-415, 271 Cal. Rptr. 649] .

[3] Agency Itself Hearing Case

When the agency itself hears the case, the ALJ presides at the hearing, rules on the admission and exclusion of evidence, swears witnesses, advises the agency on matters of law, and otherwise assists the agency as requested [Gov. Code § 11512(b)]. While the agency itself may exercise all other powers relating to the conduct of the hearing, it may also delegate any or all of those powers to the ALJ [Gov. Code § 11512(b)].

[4] Power of Decision

Whether the ALJ alone or the agency itself has heard the case, the agency has the power to decide the case [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)]. If an ALJ has heard the case, the agency may take one of the following actions [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)]:

- Adopt the ALJ's proposed decision in its entirety [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(A)].

- Reduce or otherwise mitigate any proposed penalty and adopt the balance of the proposed decision [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(B)].

- Make technical or other minor changes in the proposed decision and adopt it as the decision. Action by the agency under this option is limited to a clarifying change or a change of a similar nature that does not affect the factual or legal basis of the proposed decision [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(C)].

- Reject the proposed decision and decide the case on the record, including the transcript, or an agreed statement of the parties, with or without taking additional evidence [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E)].

- Reject the proposed decision and refer the case to the same ALJ if reasonably available, otherwise to another ALJ to take additional evidence [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(D)].

The agency's authority to decide the case includes the authority to decide some but not all of the issues in the case [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E)(iii)].

When the ALJ hears the case alone, the agency's power of decision includes the power to review any evidentiary rulings of the ALJ who conducted the hearing [Gov. Code § 11512(b)], but this review power can not be exercised until the ALJ's hearing is completed, and the ALJ has issued a proposed decision. It is not proper for the agency to review evidentiary rulings of the ALJ before the hearing has been completed [Fireman's Fund Insurance Companies v. Quackenbush (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 599, 605-608, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732 (Insurance Commissioner could not review on interlocutory basis evidentiary rulings of ALJ conducting Prop. 103 rollback hearing, while hearing was still pending under requirements of APA, Gov. Code § 11512, and agency-specific provisions of Insurance Code)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & Powers

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Administrative Law Judges

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.13

§ 473E.13 Agency Hearing Officers in Non-APA Hearings

[1] General Requirements

Various state agencies employ in-house hearing officers or ALJs to conduct hearings which are not subject to the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code. Code § 11500) [see Gov. Code § 11501(a) (APA applies only to extent required by agency's governing law); see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication].

Appointment of in house ALJ's who are employees of the agency whose cases they adjudicate is frequently authorized by the agency governing statute, and that specific statute is controlling as to ALJ appointment over the more general provisions of the APA which require use of OAH ALJ's [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 880, 883-885, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 729 Cal. Rptr. 2d729 (Bus. & Prof. Code § 24210 authorized director to appoint ALJ, who was employee of Department, to hear and decide case, and that statute was controlling under Gov Code §§ 11501(a), 11415.10, and 11415.20 not APA requirement contained in Gov. Code § 11502 that ALJ's from Office of Administrative Hearings be used)].

Non-APA hearings include the following:

- Social services entitlement proceedings [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 10950-10967; see Ch. 517, Social Services].

- Hearings to suspend or revoke motor vehicle operator licenses [Veh. Code §§ 12500, 13350-13368, 14100; see Ch. 92, Automobiles: Drivers' Licenses].

- Civil service hearings [Gov. Code §§ 18670-18683; see Ch. 118, Civil Service].

- Medi-Cal audit appeals [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 14123, 14124].

Although in-house hearing officers are frequently employed by and under the direction of the same agency that is the investigator and prosecutor in the matter, this combination of functions within the agency is not, per se, a violation of due process without a showing of actual bias [Griggs v. Board of Trustees (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 93, 98, 37 Cal. Rptr. 194, 389 P.2d 722 ; see § 473E.21[6]]. Employment of the ALJ (and payment of the ALJ) by the agency holding the hearing does not violate the due process of law right to an impartial decision maker, and does not require disqualification of the ALJ because the financial interest of the ALJ is too remote to require disqualification without a showing of actual bias. Furthermore, ALJ's are unlikely to be influenced to rule in favor of their employer by the desire for continued employment, because ALJ's are protected by civil service law [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 880, 885-887, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 729] . However, when the ALJ has a strong direct financial interest in the resolution of the case, then the ALJ can be disqualified without a showing of actual bias [Haas v. County of San Bernardino (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 1017, 1032-1034, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341, 45 P.3d 280] . Similarly, appointment of the ALJ by the department does not violate due process of law because bias will not be presumed based on appointment, no showing of actual bias was made, and there was adequate judicial review of the ALJ's decision by the Board, and the courts [CMPB Friends, Inc. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 1250, 1257-1259, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 914] . However, internal separation of functions is required by Gov. Code § 11425.10(a) [see § 473E.21].

[2] Role and Function

The role and function of hearing officers or ALJs in non-California APA matters is established by statutory or other authority permitting delegation of the agency's adjudicatory function. For example, the State Personnel Board can properly delegate conduct of the evidentiary hearing and preparation of a proposed decision to its hearing officer and may adopt a proposed decision upholding the dismissal of civil service employees without review of the record, evidence, or written arguments of the parties [Gov. Code § 19582(a), (b); see Fichera v. State Personnel Board (1963) 217 Cal. App. 2d 613, 618-619, 32 Cal. Rptr. 159 (dismissal of police officers by state personnel board upheld)].

[3] County Hearing Officers

The board of supervisors of any county may appoint an attorney as county hearing officer to hear contested matters for the various boards, agencies, commissions, or committees of the county [Gov. Code § 27720]. A county hearing officer, or a deputy or assistant hearing officer, must be an attorney admitted to practice for at least five years prior to appointment [Gov. Code § 27724]. The hearing officer may be authorized by ordinance or resolution to do any of the following [Gov. Code § 27721]:

- Conduct the county hearing.
- Issue subpoenas.
- Receive evidence.
- Administer oaths.
- Rule on questions of law and the admissibility of evidence.
- Prepare a record of the proceedings.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding

OfficersDuties & PowersGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsAdministrative BoardsGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsEmployees & Officials

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Administrative Law Judges

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473E.14-473E.19

[Reserved]

§§ 473E.14[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Hearing Standards and Disqualification

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.20

§ 473E.20 Fair Hearing Standards

[1] Introduction

An attorney representing a party in an administrative adjudication should ensure that the presiding ALJ, agency members, or presiding officer will provide his or her client with a fair hearing. Fair hearing standards that must be met are set forth in the due process clauses of the United States and California Constitutions [see [2], below], in the APA, and in other statutes and regulations governing specific agencies [see § 473E.12[3], [4]]. The APA also sets standards of conduct concerning ex parte communications with the ALJ or presiding officer [see § 473E.24]. In addition, certain fact situations may arise that indicate an adjudicator's bias or inability to conduct a fair hearing [see § 473E.21].

The procedures required to challenge the impartiality of an ALJ or agency member are set forth in the APA and other statutes and regulations governing particular agencies [see § 473E.22]. However, the "rule of necessity" may require a person who is otherwise disqualified to participate in an administrative hearing [see discussion in § 473E.23]. The APA sets forth specific rules governing ex parte communications between the adjudicator and persons interested in the outcome of the hearing.

[2] Constitutional Standard

An impartial, unbiased adjudicator is an essential element of procedural due process [U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1; Cal. Const., art. I, § 7 (due process clauses); Marshall v. Jerrico, Inc. (1980) 446 U.S. 238, 242, 100 S. Ct. 1610, 64 L. Ed. 2d 182 ; Morrissey v. Brewer (1972) 408 U.S. 471, 489, 92 S. Ct. 2593, 33 L. Ed. 2d 484 ; Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 271, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287] . Thus, a respondent whose professional future will be determined by a licensing agency or whose livelihood or property interests will be affected by a contested proceeding has an absolute right to the consideration of the case by an objective, competent, and fair ALJ or agency. As the U.S. Supreme Court stated in Marshall v. Jerrico, Inc. (1980) 446 U.S. 238, 242, 100 S. Ct. 1610, 64 L. Ed. 2d 182 :

> The Due Process Clause entitles a person to an impartial and disinterested tribunal in both civil and criminal cases. This requirement of neutrality in adjudicative proceedings safeguards the two central concerns of procedural due process, the prevention of unjustified or mistaken deprivations and the > promotion of participation and dialogue by affected individuals in the decisionmaking process. The neutrality requirement helps to guarantee that life, liberty, or property will not be taken on the basis of an erroneous or distorted conception of the facts or the law.

Fairness requires an absence of actual bias in the trial of cases, and should preclude even the probability of bias [In re Murchison (1954) 349 U.S. 133, 136, 75 S. Ct. 623, 99 L. Ed. 942] . Procedural due process of law standards are violated when an agency decision maker has a personal financial interest in the proceedings [Gibson v. Berryhill (1973) 411 U.S. 564, 579, 93 S. Ct. 1689, 36 L. Ed. 2d 488] . However, the institutional structure of agencies that combines investigation, prosecution, and adjudication in the same agency does not violate due process of law [Withrow v. Larkin (1975) 421 U.S. 35, 56-57, 95 S. Ct. 1456, 43 L. Ed. 2d 712] .

A county retirement board did not violate due process of law by both investigating and adjudicating retirement benefits applications. The Board can select unilaterally and compensate hearing officers consistent with due process of law. Due process of law does not require that the applicant participate in the hearing officer selection process Board selection and compensation of hearing officers does not, by itself, establish bias against applicants for retirement benefits on the part of the hearing officers [McIntyre v. Santa Barbara County Employees' Retirement System (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 730, 735-736, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 565] .

When the ALJ has a strong direct financial interest in the resolution of the case, then the ALJ can be disqualified under the due process of law right to an impartial decision maker without a showing of actual bias [Haas v. County of San Bernardino (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 1017, 1032-1034, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341, 45 P.3d 280] . However, when the financial interest is remote, indirect, and uncertain, then proof of actual bias is required to establish a violation of the due process right to an impartial decision maker. Proof of the appearance of bias is not sufficient [Gai v. City of Selma (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 213, 219-220, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910] . Thus, when an administrative decision maker's financial interest was too remote, indirect, and uncertain, it did not operate to trigger the probability of actual bias standard for due process scrutiny of decision makers with financial interests [Gai v. City of Selma (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 213, 228-229, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910] . The appearance of bias standard applicable to trial court judges, set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(c), does not apply to administrative hearing officers [Gai v. City of Selma (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 213, 233, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910] .

For a complete discussion of procedural due process requirements applicable to administrative adjudication, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies .

[3] APA Standard

The APA requires an ALJ or agency member to voluntarily disqualify himself or herself and withdraw from any case in which there are grounds for disqualification, including disqualification under Gov. Code § 11425.40 (bias, prejudice, or interest) [Gov. Code § 11512(c); see § 473E.21 for grounds for disqualification]. The parties may waive the disqualification by a writing that recites the grounds for disqualification. A waiver is effective only when signed by all parties, accepted by the administrative law judge, or agency member, and included in the record. For a form of waiver, see § 473E.61.

Any party may request the disqualification of any ALJ or agency member by filing an affidavit, prior to the taking of evidence at a hearing, stating specifically the grounds for claiming that the administrative law judge or agency member is disqualified [Gov. Code § 11512(c); see § 473E.22, for a discussion of procedural requirements for disqualification]. Ex parte communications with presiding officers are also prohibited in certain circumstances and are permissible in other circumstances [see Gov. Code §§ 11430.10-11430.80, and discussion in § 473E.24]. A presiding officer who receives an improper ex parte communication may be disqualified [Gov. Code § 11430.60; see § 473E.24].

The APA impartial decision maker standard states general grounds for disqualification including bias, prejudice, or interest in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11425.40(a); State Water Resources Control Board Cases (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 674, 840-842, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 189 (Board members participation in rule making proceedings with water policy council, as well as staff communications about related matters did not provide a valid basis for disqualification of Board members based on bias, prejudice, or interest in the proceeding under Gov. Code § 11425.40(a))], and the act states specific grounds that are not sufficient for disqualification [Gov. Code § 11425.40(b); see §§ 473E.21, 473E.22].

The right to challenge an adjudicator on the grounds of bias, prejudice, or financial interest is a departure from common law principles. For that reason, and because delay and calendaring difficulties necessarily result from such challenges, the Judicial Council drafted the APA to require that a motion for disqualification be timely made and supported by an affidavit [Tenth Biennial Report of the Judicial Council of California, Dec. 31, 1944, pp. 18-20; see Gov. Code § 11512(c), and discussion in § 473E.22].

Agency hearing officers and agencies that conduct proceedings not governed by Chapter 5, the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) are subject to the impartial decision maker requirements of Chapter 4.5, that is, Gov. Code §§ 11425.10(5) and 11425.40, if those agencies are state agencies, and a hearing is constitutionally or statutorily required [Gov. Code §§ 11410.10, 11410.20(a); for further discussion of these provisions, determining the applicability of Chapter 4.5 provisions, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication, § 473.15].

[4] Non-APA Standards

Agencies that are not subject to the requirements of the APA may be subject to fair hearing standards, established by regulation or agency policy, similar to the APA impartial decision maker standard. For example, ALJs who conduct proceedings for the Department of Developmental Services are subject to an agency promulgated "fair and impartial hearing" standard [17 Cal. Code Reg. § 50604(A)]. Similarly, the hearing officer in a Medi-Cal proceeding for the Department of Health Services, and in a Department of Mental Health proceeding, is subject to disqualification if he or she is unable to provide a fair or impartial hearing, or if he or she has an interest in the proceedings [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 51043(a); 9 Cal. Code Reg. § 1565]. A workers' compensation judge is subject to the same standards that govern referees [8 Cal. Code Reg. § 10452; Lab. Code § 5311; see Code Civ. Proc. § 641 (grounds for disqualification of referees)].

If no regulations or informal guidelines provide fair hearing standards, the adjudicator's impartiality may still be reviewed on appeal, pursuant to a writ of administrative mandate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Clark v. City of Hermosa Beach (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 1152, 1168-1169, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223 (writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 is proper vehicle to review claim of property owner that city had denied owner fair hearing)]. The writ is framed as an inquiry into the validity of an administrative decision, specifically, the deprivation of a fair hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1094.5(a), 1094.5(b); see § 473E.22[4]]. For further discussion of judicial review pursuant to a writ of administrative mandate, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityEx Parte ContactsAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of Protection

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Hearing Standards and Disqualification

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.21

§ 473E.21 Grounds for Disqualification

[1] Bias and Prejudice

Certain factual situations involving the adjudicator's lack of impartiality in an administrative hearing are quite common and have been the subject of numerous judicial opinions. Some situations, such as financial interest in the outcome, have been addressed in statutes or rules [see [4], below].

When considering making a request to disqualify an adjudicator [see § 473E.22], it is important to determine the existence of all possible grounds for disqualification; the cumulative impact of several kinds of bias may be just as important for disqualification as that of one overriding basis [Maloney, Disqualification of Administrative Law Judges in California, 16 U.S.F. L. Rev. 229, 243-244 (1982)].

It is useful to refer to the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1, and case law construing that statute, for specific grounds for disqualification that apply to judges in civil actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1]. Many of these grounds can be adapted to disqualification motions brought in administrative hearings [see detailed discussion in Ch. 317, Judges].

In Andrews v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 781, 171 Cal. Rptr. 590, 623 P.2d 151 , the California Supreme Court articulated a two-part process for disqualification based on bias. First, the affidavit for disqualification must set forth "legally sufficient facts demonstrating bias." Second, the bias or prejudice must be "sufficient to impair the judge's impartiality" [Andrews v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 781, 792, 171 Cal. Rptr. 590, 623 P.2d 151] . The first part of the test is crucial, because once the existence of bias has been established, it will not be difficult to demonstrate that a fair and impartial trial or hearing appears improbable. The challenging party must show actual bias, rather than the mere appearance of bias [Andrews v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 781, 793, 171 Cal. Rptr. 590, 623 P.2d 151 ; see also Clark v. City of Hermosa Beach (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 1152, 1172-1173, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223 (city council member had conflict of interest and personal animosity toward property owner, and therefore property owner was deprived of right to impartial decisionmaker which is a fair hearing requirement)].

Thus, the appearance of bias standard set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(c), while applicable to trial court judges, does not apply to administrative hearing officers. Proof of actual bias, rather than its appearance, is necessary to show a violation of the due process right to an impartial decision maker in an administrative hearing [Gai v. City of Selma (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 213, 219-220, 228-233, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910 (administrative decision maker's financial interest was too remote, indirect, and uncertain to trigger the probability of actual bias standard for due process scrutiny of decision makers with financial interests)].

The APA impartial decision maker standard states that the presiding officer is subject to disqualification for bias, prejudice, or interest in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11425.40(a); Gov. Code § 11405.80 (definition of presiding officer)]. Other than that general language, no specific disqualification standards are stated in the act. Also, the act states specific grounds that are not sufficient for disqualification [Gov. Code § 11425.40(b); see [7], below]. Disqualification grounds apply also to agency heads and other persons or bodies to which the power to hear or decide in the proceeding is delegated [Gov. Code § 11425.40(c)], and agencies that conduct adjudicative proceedings have the option of adopting regulations that authorize peremptory challenges of the presiding officer [Gov. Code § 11425.40(d); see Gov. Code § 11405.20 and discussion in § 473E.22].

[2] Prejudgment

[a] Questions of Law or Policy

Historically, the preconceptions or bias that an ALJ or agency member brings to an adjudication regarding issues of law or policy have not been deemed to be grounds for disqualification [Andrews v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 781, 790, 171 Cal. Rptr. 590, 623 P.2d 151 ; see Davis, Administrative Law Treatise, vol. 3, § 19:2 (2d ed. 1980)]. In contrast to the broad variety of matters heard by courts, the subject matter of cases heard by a particular administrative agency and its ALJs and hearing officers is necessarily limited by the jurisdiction of the agency. Thus, an agency adjudicator is predictably familiar with the elements of, and case law concerning, the most common proceedings before the agency. For example, entrapment is frequently asserted in accusations concerning the sale of alcoholic beverages to a minor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 25658] who turns out to be a police decoy. Entrapment is also a common defense in other kinds of disciplinary hearings [see, e.g., Patty v. Board of Medical Examiners (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 356, 107 Cal. Rptr. 473, 508 P.2d 1121 (entrapment defense asserted in Board of Medical Examiners hearing, to charges of unprofessional conduct in prescribing narcotics for nonmedical use); Wong v. State Bar (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 528, 125 Cal. Rptr. 482, 542 P.2d 642 (entrapment defense asserted in hearing by Disciplinary Board of State Bar, to charges of soliciting money to bribe policemen to permit illegal gambling)]. Consequently, an ALJ who has repeatedly encountered the issue would be expected to know the relevant case law. This familiarity with the relevant law is an element of competence, rather than impermissible prejudgment [see Davis, Administrative Law Treatise, vol. 3, § 19:2 (2d ed. 1980)].

Even a publicly expressed view concerning the wisdom or desirability of a law or precedent will not disqualify the proponent of that view from hearing a matter to which the law will pertain [Christal v. Police Commission (1939) 33 Cal. App. 2d 564, 571, 92 P.2d 416 (an advocate of rule requiring police officers to testify before grand jury was not disqualified from deciding whether the rule had been violated); see Fairfield v. Superior Court (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 768, 772, 122 Cal. Rptr. 543, 537 P.2d 375 (campaign promises of an elected official)].

In Laird v. Tatum (1972) 409 U.S. 824, 93 S. Ct. 7, 34 L. Ed. 2d 50 , a memorandum decision on a motion to recuse (i.e., disqualify), the U.S. Supreme Court considered prejudgment of legal issues reflected in announced or established opinions. The Court found that neither the oath, the disqualification statute, nor the practice of the former justices of the Court guarantees a litigant that each judge will start off "from dead center" in his or her willingness or ability to reconcile the opposing arguments of counsel with his or her understanding of the Constitution and the law; quite simply, it is not a ground for disqualification that a judge has previously expressed an understanding of the meaning of some particular provision of the Constitution [Laird v. Tatum (1972) 409 U.S. 824, 839, 93 S. Ct. 7, 34 L. Ed. 2d 50] .

Two of the three grounds that are expressly deemed not sufficient grounds by themselves for disqualification are similar to the prejudgment issues discussed above [Gov. Code § 11425.40(b)]. These are that a presiding officer is not disqualified solely because that officer:

- Has experience, technical competence, or specialized knowledge of, or has in any capacity expressed a view on, a legal, factual, or policy issue presented in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11425.40(b)(2)].

- Has as a lawyer or public official participated in the drafting of laws or regulations or in the effort to pass or defeat laws or regulations, the meaning, effect, or application of which is in issue in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11425.40(b)(3)].

These standards are taken from Code Civ. Proc. § 170.2 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 159 (1995)].

A party to an administrative hearing may argue that an adjudicator's mind is "irrevocably closed" on a legal issue, as illustrated by prior statements or involvement [Trade Com. v. Cement Institute (1948) 333 U.S. 683, 701, 68 S. Ct. 793, 92 L. Ed. 1010, 44 F.T.C. 1460 ; cf. American Cyanamid Company v. F. T. C. (1966) 363 F.2d 757 (agency chairperson had served as counsel to the investigating agency)]. Nevertheless, it is highly unlikely that an agency member could ever be disqualified on that basis, if for no other reason than the impossibility of proof [see Davis, Administrative Law Treatise, vol. 3, § 19:2 (2d ed. 1980)]. A possibly applicable civil litigation standard that is somewhat similar to, or can be used to raise, prejudgment or closed mind issues, is the "substantial doubt about the judge's capacity to be impartial" standard [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(B), (C); see Ch. 317, Judges].

[b] Adjudicative Facts

In contrast to the prejudgment of legal or policy issues, and adjudicator's prejudgment of the controversy itself, that is, the facts at issue in a case, is generally a ground for disqualification [Andrews v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 781, 790, 171 Cal. Rptr. 590, 623 P.2d 151 ; see Davis, Administrative Law Treatise, vol. 3, § 19:2 (2d ed. 1980)]. Prejudgment of the facts constitutes actual bias for purposes of the Andrews test [Andrews v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 781, 792, 171 Cal. Rptr. 590, 623 P.2d 151 ; see [1], above]. The mere exposure to adjudicative facts prior to the hearing, however, is not necessarily grounds for disqualification [Davis, Administrative Law Treatise, vol. 3, § 19:2 (2d ed. 1980)]. A party attempting to disqualify an adjudicator on the basis of prejudgment of facts may encounter difficulties in proof. Direct evidence of prejudgment of the facts at issue can be found if the adjudicator has made the prejudgment on the record [see, e.g., Pacific etc. Conference of United Methodist Church v. Superior Court (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 72, 87-88, 147 Cal. Rptr. 44 (judge indicated in a letter to all counsel that plaintiffs would probably prevail in the case)].

Prejudgment of the controversy itself or the facts of a particular case may also be demonstrated by prior statements made outside of the court records [see, e.g., Perlman v. Shasta Joint Jr. College Dist. Bd. of Trustees (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 873, 883, 88 Cal. Rptr. 563 (board decided case pursuant to telephone conversations prior to hearing); Cinderella Career and Finishing Schools, Inc. v. F. T. C. (1970) 425 F.2d 583, 591, 138 U.S. App. D.C. 152 (agency's chairman made speech announcing his position about facts prior to hearing)]. A possibly applicable civil litigation standard that is somewhat similar to, or can be used to raise, prejudgment of adjudicative facts issues, is the "substantial doubt about the judge's capacity to be impartial" standard [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(B), (C); see Ch. 317, Judges].

[3] Personal Prejudice

A personal bias or prejudice toward a person, as distinguished from an attitude about an issue, may be a ground for disqualification when it is strong enough. Prejudice may take the form of either animosity or favoritism [see Davis, Administrative Law Treatise, vol. 3, § 19:5 (2d ed, 1980)]. The ALJ's conduct during the hearing may be used to show a degree of partiality that denied a party a fair hearing. It is often difficult, however, to prove a sufficient degree of prejudice. For example, prejudice or bias justifying disqualification will not be assumed from any of the following:

- An adjudicator's uniform belief in the evidence offered by one party [Andrews v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 781, 795, 171 Cal. Rptr. 590, 623 P.2d 151] .

- Brusque or hostile behavior [West Coast etc. Co. v. Contractors' etc. Bd. (1945) 72 Cal. App. 2d 287, 299-300, 164 P.2d 811] .

- Interposing cross-examination [Rudolph v. Athletic Commission (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 1, 15, 1 Cal. Rptr. 898] .

Uniform rulings for one party in a case have been used to claim bias against the other party, with mixed success [see Davis, Administrative Law Treatise, vol. 3, § 19:5 (2d ed, 1980)]. In Labor Board v. Pittsburgh S. S. Co. (1949) 337 U.S. 656, 69 S. Ct. 1283, 93 L. Ed. 1602 , a key case on the issue of partiality, the Supreme Court reversed a federal appellate court decision that held that the evaluation of evidence by a hearing officer of the National Labor Relations Board demonstrated prejudice. The lower court had found that the unvarying repudiation of every witness for the petitioner because of falsity, evasion, or faint recollection, along with the consistent exaltation of every union witness as truthful, forthright, and accurate, completely destroyed any confidence that it might otherwise place in the findings of the trial examiner [Labor Board v. Pittsburgh S. S. Co. (1948) 167 F.2d 126, 128-129] . Based on a review of the entire transcript, however, the Supreme Court stated that total rejection of an opposing view does not, by itself, impugn the integrity or competence of a trier of fact. Instead, the Court found that the record displayed a "discriminating evaluation of the facts" [Labor Board v. Pittsburgh S. S. Co. (1949) 337 U.S. 656, 659-660, 69 S. Ct. 1283, 93 L. Ed. 1602] .

An applicable civil litigation standard that is somewhat similar to, or can be used to raise, personal prejudice issues, is the "substantial doubt about the judge's capacity to be impartial" standard [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)(B), (C); see Ch. 317, Judges]. The standard provides that bias or prejudice towards a lawyer in the proceeding may be grounds for disqualification [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)]. Also, personal bias or prejudice concerning a party would satisfy this standard, and is serious enough in civil litigation to be a nonwaivable ground for disqualification [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(b)(2)(A)].

[4] Financial Interest

[a] Direct Interest

A lack of objectivity and fairness that would require disqualification is presumed when the adjudicator has a substantial and direct financial interest in the subject of, or is a party to, a contested hearing. When the adjudicator has a financial interest or economic stake in the contested matter, the likelihood of bias is so great that no additional proof of actual bias is required for disqualification [Haas v. County of San Bernardino (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 1017, 1020, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341, 45 P.3d 280 (disqualification of hearing officer upheld based on financial interest bias grounds which violated due process of law because hearing officer was hired on ad hoc basis by county attorney, and chances for future appointment by county may be based on county preferences for hearing officers whose past decisions ruled in favor of county); Andrews v. AgriculturalLabor Relations Bd. (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 781, 793 n. 5, 171 Cal. Rptr. 590, 623 P.2d 151 ; Nissan Motor Corp. v. New Motor Vehicle Bd. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 109, 116, 202 Cal. Rptr. 1] .

Financial interest bias on the part of a judge violates the due process of law right to an impartial decision maker [Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 267, 271, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 (right to an impartial decisionmaker)]. The due process financial interest disqualification standards apply equally to administrative law judges and temporary administrative hearing officers. Bias is presumed when there is a direct financial interest on the part of a judge [Haas v. County of San Bernardino (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 1017, 1024-1025, 1020, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341, 45 P.3d 280] . Disqualifying financial interests include the following: 1) judges compensation is dependent on the result of the adjudication [Haas v. County of San Bernardino (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 1017, 1030-1031, 1020, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341, 45 P.3d 280 (administrative hearing officer has disqualifying financial interest in outcome of adjudication based on prospect of future employment by county who hired hearing officer on ad hoc basis); Ward v. Village of Monroeville, Ohio (1972) 409 U.S. 57, 60, 93 S. Ct. 80, 34 L. Ed. 2d 267 (judge who was also local mayor added to village budget from fines imposed is judge's court); Tumey v. State of Ohio (1927) 273 U.S. 510, 523, 47 S. Ct. 437, 71 L. Ed. 749 (judge's salary paid out of fines imposed in judge's court)] and 2) a judge adjudicates their own case [Haas v. County of San Bernardino (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 1017, 1027-1028, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341, 45 P.3d 280 ; Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Lavoie, (1986) 475 U.S. 813, 821-825, 106 S. Ct. 1580, 89 L. Ed. 2d 823 (state supreme court justice had disqualifying financial interest in participating in ruling on bad faith refusal to pay insurance claim when judge had a similar claim pending in the same court system); Gibson v. Berryhill (1973) 411 U.S. 564, 578-579, 93 S. Ct. 1689, 36 L. Ed. 2d 488 (professional optometrist board members could not adjudicate discipline cases against corporate optometrists because revocation decisions would increase business opportunities for professional optometrists); Friedman v. Rogers (1979) 440 U.S. 1, 18-19, 99 S. Ct. 887, 59 L. Ed. 2d 100 (due process requirements are more strict in discipline cases, because there is a right to an impartial decision maker, and outside of discipline action state optometry board could consist of majority of independent optometrists without violating due process of law)].

The financial interest bias rule codified in the Haas case that is applicable to adjudicators does not apply to the legal advisor to an adjudicative agency, the city personnel board, because the legal advisor advised the board of applicable laws and did not act in an adjudicative role in the proceeding [Gilbert v. City of Sunnyvale (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 1264, 1281-1282, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 297 (court rejected due process of law challenge to pre-termination hearing procedures brought by discharged police officer)]. The financial interest bias rule codified in the Haas case also was not violated by an award of $1.8 million in prehearing costs related to disciplinary proceedings against an accounting firm. The award was paid to the Board of Accountancy to reimburse the Board for extensive costs incurred in investigating and preparing for hearing a discipline case against the accounting firm. The Board did not have an improper pecuniary interest because the cost award was authorized and regulated by statute, Bus. & Prof. Code § 5107, and this statute protected the Board from improper influences related to the cost award. This is because the cost award was made by the administrative law judge (ALJ) who heard the case, and that ALJ did not have a financial interest in the cost award that he or she assessed. The ALJ was employed by the Office of Administrative Hearings, and did not benefit financially for the cost award. The Board has the authority to decrease or eliminate the award, or to affirm the award, but not to increase the cost award [McBride v. The Bd. of Accountancy of the State of Cal. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 518, 525-527, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 287] .

However, employment of the ALJ (and payment of the ALJ) by the agency holding the hearing does not violate the due process of law right to an impartial decision maker, and does not require disqualification of the ALJ because the financial interest of the ALJ is too remote to require disqualification without a showing of actual bias. ALJ's are unlikely to be influenced to rule in favor of their employer by the desire for continued employment, because ALJ's are protected by civil service law. Furthermore, the ALJ can not be disqualified based upon reasonable doubts about the impartiality of the ALJ because there is nothing in the record as to the selection process of ALJ's for particular hearings that supports a claim of bias, and bias will not be presumed [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 880, 885-887, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 729] . However, when the ALJ has a strong direct financial interest in the resolution of the case, then the ALJ can be disqualified without a showing of actual bias [Haas v. County of San Bernardino (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 1017, 1032-1034, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 341, 45 P.3d 280] . The Haas rule was held not to be applicable to the ALJ employment facts and circumstances presented in the Department case [Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 880, 885-887, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 729 (ALJ's were appointed under the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 24210)].

Payment of attorney's fees under Labor Code § 98.2 to the Labor Commissioner for representing an indigent employee at the de novo hearing before the superior court did not violate the due process of law rights of the employer because there was no showing that the hearing officer was biased, and no showing that the hearing officer had a financial interest in the case. Attorneys fees that are collected by the agency (Labor Commissioner) from employer parties does not violate due process of law rights of employers [Lolley v. Campbell (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 367, 370-371, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 571, 48 P.3d 1128] .

The applicable civil litigation standard disqualifies a judge from deciding a lawsuit when the judge, the judge's spouse, and a minor child of the judge living in the household, have a financial interest, including fiduciary financial interests, in the subject matter or in a party to the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(3); see Ch. 317, Judges].

[b] Restriction of Competitors

Licensing and other actions of agencies or boards may have an economic effect on the subject licensees or industry, including the licensed agency or board members themselves. For example, a board may have the power to determine the number of competitors that licensees will have [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 23958 (Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control may deny an application for a license if issuance would result in or add to an undue concentration of licenses)].

Because the minimum educational and training standards and examinations required of applicants are set by the various professional licensing agencies [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. §§ 2493 (podiatry), 2736 (nursing), 10153 (real estate)], standards established to assure the competency of licensees necessarily limit the number of practitioners in a given field [see Chevrolet Motor Division v. New Motor Vehicle Bd. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 533, 538, 194 Cal. Rptr. 270 (discussion of the distinction between a board's regulation of members of its own occupation and attempted regulation of the economic interests of others with that occupational group)].

Only a direct and personal financial involvement, however, would disqualify a member from deciding a contested case. For example, in one instance, a determination of the Alabama Board of Optometry that employment by a corporation constituted unprofessional conduct would have eliminated nearly half of the optometrists in the state, with the result that the Board members and other private practitioners "would fall heir to this business." The federal district court concluded that the Board members' personal pecuniary interests were so great that the Board could not constitutionally hear the matter. The U.S. Supreme Court affirmed, holding that disqualification for financial interest applies to administrative adjudicators, as well as members of the judiciary [Gibson v. Berryhill (1973) 411 U.S. 564, 579, 93 S. Ct. 1689, 36 L. Ed. 2d 488] .

[c] Composition of Board

The membership of many state boards and commissions is established in statute or regulation to reflect or represent particular views or expertise. For example, the State Building Standards Commission membership must include an architect, a civil engineer, a representative of organized labor in the building trades, and a licensed contractor [Health & Safety Code § 18921].

Three cases involving the New Motor Vehicle Board establish that the economic effect of the composition of such an agency, as well as the financial interests of individual members, may be evaluated for bias. In American Motors Sales Corp. v. New Motor Vehicle Bd. (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 983, 138 Cal. Rptr. 594 , the appellate court held that the composition of the state New Motor Vehicle Board, which required that four members be new car dealers, denied a vehicle franchisor an unbiased hearing in violation of due process of its termination of a franchise [American Motors Sales Corp. v. New Motor Vehicle Bd. (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 983, 987, 138 Cal. Rptr. 594] . The court found that the Board's dealer members have an economic stake in every franchise termination case that comes before them. The ability of franchisors to terminate any dealership, including that of a Board member, depends on the Board's interpretation of "good cause." It is to every dealer's advantage not to permit termination for low sales performance. If the franchise of a direct competitor of a dealer member is being terminated, however, the member may be more financially interested in ruling in favor of the franchisor. The court observed that the objectionable financial interests need not be uniform or identical among the Board members. The objectionable feature of dealer-membership on the Board is the likelihood that such a controversy will be decided on the financial interests of the Board members, rather than on the merits [American Motors Sales Corp. v. New Motor Vehicle Bd. (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 983, 987-988, 138 Cal. Rptr. 594] .

A subsequent statutory amendment that allowed the dealer members to participate in, but not decide, contested matters did not cure the constitutional defect. In Chevrolet Motor Division v. New Motor Vehicle Bd (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 533, 194 Cal. Rptr. 270 , the court found that the presence of biased members on the Board presents a substantial probability that decisions will be made on the basis of inappropriate considerations, and the fact that those members do not technically "decide" the disputes does not alter that probability [Chevrolet Motor Division v. New Motor Vehicle Bd. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 533, 540-541, 194 Cal. Rptr. 270] .

Similarly, in Nissan Motor Corp. v. New Motor Vehicle Bd. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 109, 202 Cal. Rptr. 1 , the appellate court was persuaded by the manufacturer's argument that the statutory scheme ensured lopsided participation of the car dealers in the Board proceeding without any representation by the manufacturers, and thereby denied the manufacturers the right to a fair hearing by an adjudicatory body free from bias and financial interest. Due to the constitutional infirmity of the cited statutory sections, the court held the decision of the Board to be void in its entirety [Nissan Motor Corp. v. New Motor Vehicle Bd. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 109, 113, 202 Cal. Rptr. 1] .

Licensing agency boards benefit from the expertise brought to issues before those agencies by professional licensees' who are board members. The value of the expertise is offset somewhat by professional interests. Having public (non-professional) board members provides neutrality, or lack of professional interests, but these members often lack expertise in the profession that they are regulating.

[d] Political Reform Act of 1974

The Political Reform Act of 1974 [see Gov. Code § 81000 et seq.] requires every agency to promulgate a conflict of interest code [Gov. Code § 87300]. The code must include a provision disqualifying any agency employee from any action in which the employee has a financial interest, when it is reasonably foreseeable that the interest may be materially affected by the decision [Gov. Code § 87302(c); see Gov. Code § 87103].

An ALJ or agency member has a "financial interest" if it is reasonably foreseeable that the decision will have a material financial effect, distinguishable from its effect on the public in general, on the adjudicator or his or her family, business, or property in which he or she has an interest [Gov. Code § 87103]. For example, an adjudicator would be barred from participating in a license discipline proceeding that would affect a nursing home in which the adjudicator held stock or other financial interests [see Gov. Code § 87103 ("financial interests" defined)].

Hearing the application for retirement benefits of a member of the Public Employment Retirement System in which the adjudicator is also a member would not be prohibited, however, because denial or approval of the application would not have a "material" financial effect on the adjudicator's financial interest in the benefit system [see Gov. Code § 87103 ("financial interests" defined)].

State agency policy makers, such as board or commission members, may not accept honoraria for speeches nor gifts over $250, if the member would be required to report the receipt of income or gifts on their statement of economic interest [Gov. Code §§ 89502 (honorarium), 89503 (gifts over $250)].

A party should be able to easily ascertain an adjudicator's financial interests. The majority of state-employed ALJs and hearing officers are required by the Political Reform Act of 1974 and the conflict of interest codes of their respective agencies to complete and file statements disclosing their financial interests, including other employment for compensation, positions with businesses or other entities, property interests, and loans [Gov. Code §§ 87200, 87302(c); see Gov. Code §§ 87300-87313 (requiring each agency to adopt a conflict of interest code)]. These disclosure statements must be filed within 30 days of assuming office, unless the individual resigns the position within 12 months of the initial appointment, or within 30 days of receiving notice of the filing obligation [Gov. Code § 87302(a), (d)]. To establish disqualification due to financial interest, counsel may append the statement, which is a public record, to the affidavit submitted when requesting disqualification [see Gov. Code § 11512(c) (request pursuant to APA); see also § 473E.22, and discussion of access to public records under the Public Records Act, Gov. Code § 6250 et seq. in Ch. 470C, Public Records Act].

The Political Reform Act contains a "rule of necessity" exception, which allows an adjudicator who would otherwise be disqualified by his or her financial interest to nonetheless participate in a decision if the matter could not legally be acted on or decided without his or her participation [Gov. Code § 87302(c)]. The exception apparently applies only to agency heads or administrative officers, rather than ALJs or hearing officers assigned to conduct the hearing. For further discussion of the rule of necessity, see § 473E.23.

[5] Personal Involvement or Relationship

[a] Friends, Acquaintances, and Coworkers

A party to an administrative adjudication may perceive an ALJ or agency member to be partial toward personal friends and acquaintances involved in the proceedings [see Maloney, Disqualification of Administrative Law Judges in California, 16 U.S.F. L. Rev. 229, 243-244 (1982)]. For example, the investigators, peace officers, and staff of the various state licensing agencies frequently testify before ALJs of the OAH. Employees of the same agency may appear before in-house hearing officers in benefit hearings, and appointing authorities may participate in civil service proceedings with equivalent regularity.

Friendship and business associations with participants in a proceeding, however, generally do not constitute grounds for disqualification [Parrish v. Board of Comm'rs, 524 F.2d 98, 102 (judge's business associations and friendship with some of defendants and counsel did not constitute grounds for disqualification). Note: a business association will probably result in disqualification, however, if the adjudicator has a financial interest in the outcome due to this association [see [4], above]. The fact that an adjudicator knows a witness or party, and has a general belief in that individual's honesty, does not demand disqualification or indicate that the evidence will not be fairly weighed [Rohr v. Johnson (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 208, 211, 150 P.2d 5] . Nonetheless, the ALJ or hearing officer should avoid making off-the-record remarks or behavior that would suggest to a respondent or private counsel that the adjudicator is acquainted with agency counsel or witnesses.

[b] Former Counsel or Co-counsel

Frequently, an ALJ or agency hearing officer has either been the attorney for a party involved in a present action or proceeding, or has practiced with the current counsel. The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2) that require disqualification of a judge who has served as counsel for a party to the current case in a proceeding involving the same issues are instructive (but not directly applicable) for ALJs or hearing officers. Nonetheless, a "cooling off" period in which the newly appointed adjudicator refrains from hearing cases involving his prior client agency or cases about which he or she has personal knowledge is advisable.

[c] Family Relationship to Party

ALJs and agency members are not necessarily disqualified on the basis of a family relationship with a party. In contrast, a judge is prohibited from hearing an action in which he or she is a party, or is related to a party or agent of a party by specified consanguinity or affinity [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(4); see Ch. 317, Judges]. The regulations governing specific agencies may, however, require disqualification when the adjudicator is related to a party. For example, the regulations governing the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board incorporate the standards applicable to referees, which include disqualification on the ground of kinship [8 Cal. Code Reg. § 10452; Lab. Code § 5311; see Code Civ. Proc. § 641 (grounds for disqualification of referees)]. Similarly, a hearing panel member in a Board of Prison Terms proceeding may be disqualified on the basis of a close personal relationship with the prisoner [15 Cal. Code Reg. § 2250].

[d] Family Relationship With Lawyer in Proceeding

When a judge, or judge's spouse, has a family relationship, as defined by statute, with a lawyer in the proceeding, or the associate of a lawyer in the proceeding, the applicable civil litigation standard calls for disqualification of the judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(5)]. It is not clear whether this standard will apply to ALJs or agency members, or even whether this type of conflict will occur very frequently. For further discussion of this grounds for disqualification, see Ch. 317, Judges .

[e] Personal Knowledge

When a judge, or judge's spouse, or family member of the judge or spouse, as defined by statute, to the judge's knowledge, is likely to be a material witness in the proceeding, then the judge is deemed to have a disqualifying personal knowledge of disputed evidentiary facts relating to the proceeding under the applicable civil litigation standard [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(1)]. It is not clear whether this standard will apply to ALJs or agency members, or even whether this type of conflict will occur very frequently. For further discussion of this grounds for disqualification see Ch. 317, Judges .

[6] Other Grounds for Disqualification

[a] Lack of Impartiality

Under the applicable civil litigation standard, a judge may be disqualified under three related standards focusing on impartiality. These three standards are [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(6)]:

- The judge believes that his or her recusal would further the interests of justice.
- The judge believes that there is a substantial doubt as to his or her capacity to be impartial.
- A person aware of the facts might reasonably entertain a doubt that the judge would be able to be impartial. It is not clear whether this standard will apply to ALJs or agency members, or even whether this type of conflict will occur very frequently.

A planning commission member who wrote a newsletter article attacking a proposed real estate development project while that project was pending before the planning commission violated the "unacceptable probability of actual bias standard" by voting on the project as a planning commission member while at the same time having publicly opposed the project. The developer's due process of law right to an impartial decision maker was violated by the participation of the planning commission member in voting on the project while having prejudged the facts of the matter [Nasha L.L.C. v. City of Los Angeles (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 470, 483-484, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 772] .

The appearance of bias standard (reasonable doubts about a hearing officer's impartiality) was found to be applicable in an administrative hearing conducted by a hospital to determine whether a physician should have his hospital staff privileges revoked [Yaqub v. Salinas Valley Mem. Healthcare Sys. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 474, 484-485, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 780]. The Court of Appeal relied upon the fair hearing standards for hospital peer review hearings codified in Bus. & Prof. Code § 809.2(a) [Yaqub v. Salinas Valley Mem. Healthcare Sys. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 474, 487-488, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 780] . The standard was met as to the presiding officer, a retired judge, who presided over a three-member hearing panel, because the judge had a lengthy relationship with the hospital that was a party to the administrative hearing. This relationship included the judge's service on the Hospital Foundation's Board of Governors, a fund raising entity, as well as the judge's prior service as a mediator, arbitrator, and hearing officer in cases in which the hospital was a party. The hospital had hired the judge as a hearing officer for several cases related to doctor's hospital privileges, including a previous case with the same physician as had challenged the hearing officer in this case [Yaqub v. Salinas Valley Mem. Healthcare Sys. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 474, 483-484, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 780] . The court of appeal held that these facts met the Haas standard for avoiding "potential financial conflicts of interest in the selection of administrative hearing officers to obviate even the possibility of bias" [Yaqub v. Salinas Valley Mem. Healthcare Sys. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 474, 485-486, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 780] . These facts met the appearance of bias standard, and the retired judge hearing officer had the potential for further appointments by the hospital to be a hearing officer in other cases, and this circumstance created a "possible temptation" to favor the hospital [Yaqub v. Salinas Valley Mem. Healthcare Sys. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 474, 484-485, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 780] . Based on this holding, the Court of Appeal reversed the judgment of the trial court denying a writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b), and ordered that the writ be granted, and the challenged administrative decision be set aside [Yaqub v. Salinas Valley Mem. Healthcare Sys. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 474, 488, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 780] .

For further discussion of this grounds for disqualification, see Ch. 317, Judges .

[b] Physical Impairment

When a judge is temporarily or permanently physically impaired such that the judge is unable to properly perceive the evidence or is unable to properly conduct the proceedings, then the judge is disqualified under the applicable civil litigation standard [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(7)]. It is not clear whether this standard will apply to ALJs or agency members, or even whether this type of conflict will occur very frequently. For further discussion of this grounds for disqualification see Ch. 317, Judges .

[7] Non-Disqualification Grounds

Under the new act, the APA impartial decision maker standard states general grounds for disqualification including bias, prejudice, or interest in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11425.40(a)], and the act states three specific grounds that are not sufficient for disqualification without further evidence of bias, interest, or prejudice on the part of the presiding officer [Gov. Code § 11425.40(b)]. These grounds include the following reasons that the judge:

- Is or is not a member of a racial, ethnic, religious, sexual, or similar group and the proceeding involves the rights of that group [Gov. Code § 11425.40(b)(1)].

- Has experience, technical competence, or specialized knowledge of, or has in any capacity expressed a view on, a legal, factual, or policy issue presented in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11425.40(b)(2)].

- Has as a lawyer or public official participated in the drafting of laws or regulations or in the effort to pass or defeat laws or regulations, the meaning, effect, or application of which is in issue in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11425.40(b)(3)].

These three non-disqualification grounds are taken from similar language in Code Civ. Proc. § 170.2. The law revision comments note, as to the second ground, that expressions on views may lead to disqualification under Gov. Code § 11425.30 (neutrality of presiding officer) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 159 (1995); see [8], below, for discussion of this issue]. These provisions governing disqualification also apply to the agency head or other person or body to which the power to hear or decide in the proceeding is delegated [Gov. Code § 11425.40(c)].

The Court of Appeal held that a hearing officer's previous service on a hearing panel in a case between the same hospital and the same doctor with similar issues in both hearings was not disqualifying because the hearing officer was not reviewing a previous decision made by him in the same case. Rather, the hearing officer was considering a new but related set of issues in a new administrative proceeding. Hearing officers are precluded from reviewing their own decisions, but not from hearing a new case that is factually related to a previous case heard by them. The Court of Appeal relied upon the fair hearing standards for hospital peer review hearings codified in Bus. & Prof. Code § 809.2(a) [Yaqub v. Salinas Valley Mem. Healthcare Sys. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 474, 487-488, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 780] .

[8] Multiple Roles of Agencies

[a] Prosecution, Investigation, and Adjudication

[i] Constitutional Standards

California licensing boards and agencies receive complaints, reports, and notification of criminal convictions of licensees. They review qualifications and conduct investigations that may result in an accusation, denial of a license application, or other action against a licensee; they also initiate actions to deny, limit, and revoke licenses, as part of their licensing responsibilities. The agency also serves as adjudicator in those actions even when the agency members do not participate in the hearing [see Gov. Code § 11512(a); see also § 473E.11[1]]. Under the APA, the agency makes the ultimate decision to adopt, reject, or otherwise act on the proposed decision of the ALJ [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2); see § 473E.11[4]].

Under both federal and California law, this combination of investigatory, prosecutory, and adjudicatory functions within an agency, commission, or board is not, per se, a violation of due process absent a showing of actual bias [Withrow v. Larkin (1975) 421 U.S. 35, 46, 95 S. Ct. 1456, 43 L. Ed. 2d 712 ; Kloepfer v. Commission on Judicial Performance (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 826, 833-834, 264 Cal. Rptr. 100, 782 P.2d 239 ; Griggs v. Board of Trustees (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 93, 98, 37 Cal. Rptr. 194, 389 P.2d 722 ; Hohreiter v. Garrison (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 384, 392, 184 P.2d 323 . see Howitt v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 1575, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 196 (different lawyers in county counsel's office could represent employee and advise board, thus combining advocacy role with role as advisor to decision making body, so long as the two lawyers are screened from contact with each other related to the representation)].

A county retirement board did not violate due process of law by both investigating and adjudicating retirement benefits applications. The Board can select unilaterally and compensate hearing officers consistent with due process of law. Due process of law does not require that the applicant participate in the hearing officer selection process Board selection and compensation of hearing officers does not, by itself, establish bias against applicants for retirement benefits on the part of the hearing officers [McIntyre v. Santa Barbara County Employees' Retirement System (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 730, 735-736, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 565] . In Hohreiter v. Garrison (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 384, 184 P.2d 323 , an insurance agent whose license was revoked characterized the insurance commissioner as "... accuser and judge [who] by his decision won his own case," although the commissioner had adopted without change the decision of the hearing officer. The court in Hohreiter observed that no court has held proceedings to be invalid, the trial abortive, and the accused deprived of due process of law, simply because an administrative board both prefers and tries the charge. It stated that the mere fact that the administrative board is both accuser and judge in no way adversely affects the rights of the accused [Hohreiter v. Garrison (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 384, 392-393, 184 P.2d 323 ; see Kloepfer v. Commission on Judicial Performance (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 826, 833-834, 264 Cal. Rptr. 100, 782 P.2d 239 (Commission on Judicial Performance may combine accusatory, investigatory, and adjudicatory functions in proceedings against judge); Chosick v. Reilly (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 334, 338, 270 P.2d 547 (Board of Equalization could serve as both accuser and judge in revocation of liquor license); Murphy v. Board of Medical Examiners (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 161, 162-163, 170 P.2d 510 (Board of Medical Examiners could make the accusation against a doctor, as well as hear the evidence and render a decision to revoke his license)].

Similarly, in a teacher dismissal proceeding, the court observed that the responsibility to issue pleadings to dismiss a teacher and the authority to act on the proposed decision of the hearing officer who conducted the contested hearing were necessarily vested in a single agency, the school board. It stated that, by the very nature of the administrative process, the agency or one of its agents or representatives is bound to be involved in the initiation and prosecution of charges [Greer v. Board of Education (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 98, 119-120, 121 Cal. Rptr. 542] . An independent inquiry by a school board prior to a formal hearing is not inconsistent with its power to hold the formal hearing [Greer v. Board of Education (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 98, 119-120, 121 Cal. Rptr. 542] .

However, a child care contractor that was debarred for three years by the state agency that administered child care contracts was entitled under a due process liberty interest claim to a hearing before an impartial arbiter or tribunal on justification for the debarment. Due process of law was violated when one member of the hearing panel had participated in agency staff decisions that were challenged in the hearing process as that member could not both investigate and adjudicate in the same case [Golden Day Schools, Inc. v. State Department of Education (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 695, 709-711, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 917] .

A police officer who was reassigned to a lower pay grade by his employer has a significant private interest in continued receipt of his paycheck [Gilbert v. Homar (1997) 520 U.S. 924, 932, 117 S. Ct. 1807, 138 L. Ed. 2d 120] , and therefore was entitled under due process of law to hearing procedures in which the police department had the burden of proof of showing that the criteria in the department manual for reassignment to a lower pay grade have been established. The agency procedures placed the burden of proof on the police officer, and that violated due process of law [Brown v. City of Los Angeles (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 155, 175-177, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474 ; Los Angeles Police Protective League v. City of Los Angeles (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 85, 92-94, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 911] . The due process right to a neutral decision maker was also violated because the police chief both authorized the reassignment to a lower pay grade and was also the final decision maker at the end of the administrative hearing. This lack of neutrality, coupled with other factors, results in a significant risk of unfairness to the police officer, whose property interests under due process of law are adversely affected [Brown v. City of Los Angeles (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 155, 177-179, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474] . However, limiting the pool of hearing officers to high ranking employees within the police department does not violate due process of law because the officers are employees of the police department, and the affected police officer picks three possible hearing officers from the list of eligible officers [Brown v. City of Los Angeles (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 155, 178-179, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474] .

Separation of functions is also required as a matter of due process of law when local agency adjudicators decide whether to renew business licenses. A city attorney who acted as an advocate for the city urging nonrenewal of a business license at the application stage could not, consistent with due process of law, act as an advisor to the city manager who decided the business's administrative appeal from the denial of the application and acted as an adjudicative decision maker. This violated the due process of law right to an impartial decision maker [Nightlife Partners Ltd. v. City of Beverly Hills (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 81, 97-98, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 234] . Similarly, a city attorney who acted as an advocate for the city in a lawsuit brought by a terminated city employee could not also, consistent with due process of law court, act as a decision maker, in the employee's administrative appeal of their termination, which was officially decided by the city manager but in which the city attorney prepared the recommended decision that the city attorney followed. [Walker v. City of Berkeley (9th Cir. 1991) 951 F. 2d 182, 185] . The California Supreme Court held that due process of law was not violated when an attorney for the State Water Resources Control Board was the agency prosecutor in a specific administrative proceeding and that same agency attorney advised the Board in an unrelated administrative proceeding [Morongo Band of Mission Indians v. State Water Resources Control Board (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 731, 734, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 610, 199 P. 3d 1142] . In so holding, the California Supreme Court concluded that neither due process of law nor the California APA are violated by combining advocacy and advising functions within the same agency so long as there is separation of functions internally on a case by case basis. Thus, the same agency employee could not perform conflicting functions (advocacy versus advising) in the same case. To establish that the tribunal is biased in the due process manner requires a showing of actual bias when separation of function issues are the bases for showing bias. The probability of bias standard was rejected by the court in this setting, and that standard only applies when there are disqualifying financial interests [Morongo Band of Mission Indians v. State Water Resources Control Board (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 731, 737-738, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 610, 199 P. 3d 1142 , disapproving Quintero v. City of Santa Ana (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 810, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 896 (an agency attorney who performs conflicting roles of advocacy and advising agency in unrelated cases violate due process of law)]. None of the local agencies in these cases was subject to the California APA, which is limited to state agencies.

The First District Division 1 California Court of appeal held that a property owner was not denied due process of law because of dual incompatible roles of an agency attorney because the attorney acted only in a legal advisory role for the agency at the administrative hearing level and did not act as an advocate at that level [Witt Home Ranch, Inc. v. County of Sonoma (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 543, 568-570, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 123].

[ii] APA Standard

Agency proceeding subject to Chapter 5, the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), must satisfy the internal separation of functions requirements that are part of the APA's Administrative Adjudication Bill of Rights [Gov. Code §§ 11425.10(4), 11425.30]. Specifically, this requires that the adjudicative function must be separated from the investigative, prosecutorial, and advocacy functions within the agency as provided in Gov. Code § 11425.30 [Gov. Code § 11425.10(4)].

Gov. Code § 11425.30 requires internal separation of functions within an agency, which means that the same individual within an agency can not perform inconsistent functions in the same case before the agency [Gov. Code § 11425.30]. This section provides that a presiding officer is disqualified from presiding in an adjudicative proceeding in the following two situations [see Gov. Code §§ 11405.80 (defining presiding officer), 11405.20 (defining adjudicative proceeding)]:

- The person has served as investigator, prosecutor, or advocate in the proceeding or its pre-adjudicative stage [Gov. Code § 11425.30(a)(1)].

- The person is subject to the authority, direction, or discretion of a person who has served as investigator, prosecutor, or advocate in the proceeding or its pre-adjudicative stage [Gov. Code § 11425.30(a)(2)].

Serving means that the person has personally carried out the function and not merely supervised or been organizationally connected with a person who has personally carried out the function. Substantial involvement in a case is required, not merely marginal or trivial participation. What is disqualifying is meaningful participation that is likely to affect an individual with a commitment to a particular result in a case [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 157 (1995)].

However, a presiding officer is not disqualified in the following two circumstances:

- A person may serve as presiding officer in successive stages of an adjudicative proceeding [Gov. Code § 11425.30(b)(1)].

- A person who has participated only as a decision maker or as an advisor to a decision maker in a determination of probable cause or other equivalent preliminary determination in an adjudicative proceeding or its pre-adjudicative stage may serve as presiding officer in the proceeding.

The first exception allows a decision maker to act in a similar capacity at both the probable cause and final hearing stages. However, the person can not be the decisionmaker at the hearing stage if the person acted in a prosecutorial, investigative, or advocacy role at the probable cause stage [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 157 (1995)]. Finally, these separation of functions requirements apply also to the agency head or other person or body to which the power to hear or decide in the proceeding is delegated [Gov. Code § 11425.30(c)].

Agency hearing officers and agencies that conduct proceedings not governed by Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), the APA's formal hearing provisions, are subject to the internal separation of function requirements of Gov. Code §§ 11425.10(4), 11425.30 if those agencies are state agencies and an evidentiary hearing is required to held by statute or constitutional provision [Gov. Code §§ 11410.10, 11410.20(a); see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , for further discussion of these requirements].

[b] Legal Representation

Administrative agencies customarily obtain legal advice from the same counsel that represents their interests in contested administrative hearings. The majority of state licensing agencies, including the Board of Medical Quality Assurance, Contractors' State License Board, Board of Registered Nursing, and the Bureau of Automotive Repair, are represented by the attorney general's office in license disciplinary hearings. The deputy assigned to advise the agency in its executive sessions may have represented the agency in the contested matter at hand.

In contrast, agencies such as the Department of Real Estate, Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, and Department of Motor Vehicles, which are represented by house counsel in licensing hearings, rely on that counsel for legal advice. No reported California case suggests that such a system is impermissible; the situation may be inevitable in public agencies [Ford v. Civil Service Commission (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 692, 697, 327 P.2d 148 (members of county counsel's office represented both recorder's office, which had fired respondent, and civil service commission, which conducted hearing to review termination)].

[c] Party Who Imposed Penalty Must Consent to Reduction of Penalty by Reviewing Body

In some cases, regulations or local charters may require the consent of the official who imposed a penalty before an administrative reviewing body may reduce that penalty. This kind of requirement does not violate due process by denying the penalized party a fair and impartial decision maker. For example, a city charter provision gave city employees the right to have disciplinary measures reviewed by the Board of Civil Service Commissioners, but limited the Board's authority by providing that any penalty reduction recommended by the Board must be consented to by the same official who originally imposed the penalty. The court rejected a due process challenge to this charter provision, analogizing it to those procedures in which an agency investigates, files a charge, and then adjudicates the matter [Burrell v. City of Los Angeles (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 568, 577-581,257 Cal. Rptr. 427] . For decisions stating that it is not a denial of due process for an agency to both prosecute and adjudicate, see [a][i], above.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsFinancial InterestsCivil ProcedureJudicial OfficersJudgesDisqualifications & RecusalsGroundsPersonal BiasConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of ProtectionGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsAdministrative Boards

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Hearing Standards and Disqualification

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.22

§ 473E.22 Disqualification Procedures

[1] APA Procedures

[a] Request for Disqualification, Waiver, and Timeliness

A party may request the disqualification of an ALJ or agency member who has not voluntarily withdrawn under disqualification standards [see Gov. Code § 11425.40] by filing an affidavit prior to the taking of evidence at a hearing [Gov. Code § 11512(c)].

The parties may waive the disqualification by a writing that recites the grounds for disqualification. A waiver is effective only when signed by all parties, accepted by the administrative law judge or agency member, and included in the record [Gov. Code § 11512(c); see § 473E.61, for a waiver form]. Waiver of disqualification here is similar to waiver of disqualification of judges in civil litigation [see Code Civ. Proc.§ 170.3(b)(1); see Ch. 317, Judges].

The issue of disqualification must be timely raised at the administrative level. It cannot be first asserted on judicial review [Franz v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 124, 143, 181 Cal. Rptr. 732, 642 P.2d 792 ; Kendall v. Bd. of Osteopathic Examiners (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 239, 248, 233 P.2d 107 ; Barkin v. Board of Optometry (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 714, 719, 75 Cal. Rptr. 337] . Because of last-minute settlements and other matters that affect the hearing calendar, however, a party's attorney may be unable to identify the particular ALJ assigned to the hearing until shortly before the matter commences. To allow a timely motion to disqualify, diligent counsel with a valid concern about the bias of a particular ALJ should contact the presiding judge of that office to request early identification of the assigned personnel.

The identity of board and commission members is readily available from their staff, but counsel can rarely predict which members will be present at a meeting to consider a particular proposed decision. The Board of Medical Quality Assurance and other agencies that have matters heard by a panel of the agency [see Gov. Code § 11512(a)] customarily notify counsel before the hearing of the name of the members who will sit. Because the motion for disqualification can be made only after the identity is known, the "timeliness" of a motion should date from that notification rather than the notice setting the matter for hearing.

Although the APA requires the affidavit to be filed before the hearing commences [Gov. Code § 11512(c)], it does not set forth the procedure to be used when bias is discovered after the hearing commences. Presumably, a party who for good reason was unaware of a fact establishing bias prior to the hearing may raise the issue of bias and move to disqualify immediately on discovering the grounds for bias [see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.3(c)(1) (party may request disqualification of judge at earliest opportunity after discovery of facts constituting grounds for disqualification)].

[b] Contents of Affidavit

The affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2003 ("affidavit" defined as written declaration under oath, made without notice to adverse party)] must state with particularity the grounds on which the party claims that the administrative law judge or agency member is disqualified [Gov. Code § 11512(c); for a form of motion to disqualify and supporting declaration, which, under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5, may be used in lieu of an affidavit, see § 473E.60]. It must state facts, rather than conclusions and assertions, that establish grounds for disqualification under the relevant standards which include:

- Bias, prejudice, and interest [Gov. Code § 11425.40; see § 473E.21[1] to [7]].
- Combination of functions [Gov. Code § 11425.30; see § 473E.21[8]].
- Ex parte communications [Gov. Code § 11430.60; see § 473E.24].

Because voir dire of the ALJ and panel members is not permitted, if a party believes that an agency member is biased but cannot establish this fact by affidavit, counsel will not have an opportunity at the hearing to attempt to establish the charge [see, e.g., Cooper v. Board of Medical Examiners (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 931, 946, 123 Cal. Rptr. 563 (holding that the respondent, a licensed psychologist, had no right to examine agency members or the ALJ as to possible disqualification on voir dire); see also Feist v. Rowe (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 404, 414, 83 Cal. Rptr. 465 (teacher dismissal hearing pursuant to Educ. Code § 44944)].

[c] Determination of Bias

The APA provides that the unchallenged agency members must review the affidavit when it alleges bias of a member of the agency [Gov. Code § 11512(c)]. In practice, panel or agency members frequently withdraw when any member is challenged, even though the unchallenged members would provide a quorum, and permit the ALJ to hear the matter alone. Nonetheless, the APA prohibits agency members from withdrawing voluntarily or from being disqualified if the disqualification would prevent the existence of a quorum qualified to act in a particular case, except that a substitute qualified to act may be appointed by the appointing authority [Gov. Code § 11512(c)].

This would mean that in cases in which the agency hears the action with the administrative law judge, the agency may appoint qualified substitutes, such as other members of a multi member board, as an alternative to either designating the ALJ to hear the case alone, or retaining disqualified agency members to hear the case to preserve a quorum. When an affidavit is filed against an ALJ who will hear the case alone, the ALJ must decide the matter [Gov. Code § 11512(c)]. When both the ALJ and the agency will hear the case, the agency must make the determination regarding the ALJ's bias [Gov. Code § 11512(c)].

In practice, when other staff are available to hear the matter, many ALJs will elect to remove themselves once challenged, even when not persuaded that the affidavit establishes bias. These challenges are carefully scrutinized, however, to assure that the motion is not a veiled effort at "judge-shopping," or a tactical measure to continue the case. This concern about challenges solely for purposes of delay was identified by the Judicial Council's report proposing the disqualification procedure in the APA [Tenth Biennial Report of the Judicial Council of California, Dec. 31, 1944, p. 21]. Counsel or parties should not anticipate that a challenge to a particular ALJ will delay or continue the proceeding; sufficient staff are usually available to whom cases can be reassigned when the motion is granted.

[d] Peremptory Challenges

Agencies that conduct adjudicative proceedings may provide by regulation for peremptory challenge of the presiding officer [Gov. Code § 11425.40(d)]. Peremptory challenges are used in jury selection in civil litigation, to excuse jurors from sitting on a trial jury, without specific proof of grounds for disqualification [see Code Civ. Proc § 226(b); see Ch. 322, Juries and Verdicts]. Peremptory challenges are also used in civil litigation to disqualify a trial judge without specific proof of grounds for disqualification [Code Civ. Proc. § 170.6; see Ch. 317, Judges]. Under the APA standard, peremptory challenges are not allowed unless a specific agency adopts a regulation authorizing peremptory challenges of the presiding officer.

This peremptory challenge by regulation standard applies in all administrative adjudication subject to Chapter 4.5 (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.), and in those administrative adjudications subject to Chapter 5, the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995) see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , for more detailed discussion of the applicability of various provisions of the APA].

[2] Non-APA Procedures

Agencies not subject to the APA are generally subject to statutes or regulations that govern the procedure for disqualification of the ALJ or hearing officer. Many of these statutes and regulations contain provisions similar to those of the APA. For example, proceedings to disqualify a workers' compensation judge under Lab. Code § 5311 are initiated by filing a petition, which must be supported by an affidavit stating in detail facts establishing grounds for disqualification [8 Cal. Code Reg. § 10452]. A party requesting the disqualification of a hearing officer in a Medi-Cal proceeding must file an affidavit stating in detail the basis for his or her claim that a fair and impartial hearing cannot be given, or stating that the hearing officer has an interest in the proceeding [22 Cal. Code Reg. § 51043(b)].

If the governing statutes and regulations do not require a specific procedure, the party wishing to disqualify an ALJ or hearing officer may make a motion supported by an affidavit based on that required by the APA.

[3] Judicial Review of Decision

The determination of any agency member or ALJ to refuse to disqualify himself or herself, or the administrative decision regarding bias, is subject to review pursuant to a writ of administrative mandate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5]. The writ is framed as an inquiry into the validity of an administrative decision, specifically, the deprivation of a fair hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1094.5(a), 1094.5(b)]. This method of judicial review is discussed in Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq. Even if a member of an agency should have been disqualified, however, reversible error does not occur when a quorum or sufficient number of qualified agency members adopted or made the decision [Thompson v. City of Long Beach (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 235, 243, 259 P.2d 649] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamus

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Hearing Standards and Disqualification

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.23

§ 473E.23 Rule of Necessity

[1] General Requirements

Even when an ALJ, agency member, or other hearing officer is disqualified from hearing a case, he or she may still be required to serve under the "rule of necessity." This rule allows an otherwise disqualified person to hear and decide a contested matter when that person's participation is indispensable to the conduct or resolution of the case, and his or her refusal to act would prevent a determination of the proceeding [Nider v. Homan (1939) 32 Cal. App. 2d 11, 17-18, 89 P.2d 136 ; see Davis, Administrative Law Treatise (2d ed. 1980), Vol. 3, § 19:9].

Although the rule of necessity applies to individual adjudicators or officials [Federal Construction Co. v. Curd (1918) 179 Cal. 489, 493, 177 P. 469 ; Scannell v. Wolff (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 489, 492, 195 P.2d 536] , it usually involves membership on the only board or agency that is authorized to decide an issue [Aluisi v. County of Fresno (1960) 178 Cal. App.2d 443, 452, 2 Cal. Rptr. 779] . For example, in Aluisi v. County of Fresno (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 443, 2 Cal. Rptr. 779 , the court stated that only the appointed civil service commission can dismiss a civil service employee and held that the commission was required to hear and decide a dismissal matter, despite allegations that its members were biased [Aluisi v. County of Fresno (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 443, 452, 2 Cal. Rptr. 779] . Similarly, in court in Gonsalves v. City of Dairy Valley (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 400, 71 Cal. Rptr. 255] , found that, because granting a zoning variance is reserved to the elected city council, council members need not disqualify themselves from that decision, even when each councilman had a financial interest in the applicant business [Gonsalves v. City of Dairy Valley (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 400, 404, 71 Cal. Rptr. 255] . The court in Gonsalves summarized the rule of necessity as follows [Gonsalves v. City of Dairy Valley (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 400, 404, 71 Cal. Rptr. 255] :

> The rule is well settled that where an administrative body has a duty to act upon a matter which is before it and is the only entity capable to act in the matter, the fact that the members may have a personal interest in the result of the action taken does not disqualify them to perform their duty. It is a rule of necessity which has been followed consistently.

The rule applies when an entire board or commission is subject to disqualification, or when a quorum could not be achieved absent the disqualified members [Aluisi v. County of Fresno (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 443, 452, 2 Cal. Rptr.

779] . When a quorum or sufficient number of qualified members would remain after the challenged or disqualified members step down, however, the rule of necessity does not apply or insulate the agency decision from reversal [Nider v. Homan (1939) 32 Cal. App. 2d 11, 18, 20, 89 P.2d 136] . The California Court of Appeal applied the "rule of necessity" to prohibit a doctor's claim that the board of directors of a private hospital medical center which had terminated the doctor's staff privileges was structurally biased against the doctor. The court extended the rule of necessity to a private body, the hospital's board of directors, because the hospital had been delegated by statute the authority to provide peer review of physicians [Weinberg v. Cedars Sinai Med. Ctr. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1098, 1112-1113, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 6] .

The rule does not shelter the decision reached by the board or agency from judicial scrutiny for bias; it permits the board or agency to make a decision that can be reviewed [Dyment v. Board of Medical Examiners (1922) 57 Cal. App. 260, 266, 207 P. 409] . The court reviewing the decision of such a commission must inquire whether there was a fair trial. A fair trial contemplates an impartial trial [Aluisi v. County of Fresno (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 443, 452, 2 Cal. Rptr. 779 ; Barkin v. Board of Optometry (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 714, 718-719, 75 Cal. Rptr. 337] . For a detailed discussion of fair trial issues, see Ch. 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions .

[2] APA Proceedings

The APA has codified the rule of necessity in Gov. Code § 11512(c), which provides that no agency member may withdraw voluntarily or be subject to disqualification, if his or her disqualification would prevent the existence of a quorum qualified to act in the particular case [Gov. Code § 11512(c)]. When the Judicial Council recommended codification of the rule in the APA, it recognized that the rule was well established in California law: "This section preserves the 'rule of necessity' ... which will not permit disqualification where it would render the agency incapable of acting" [Tenth Biennial Report of the Judicial Council of California, Dec. 31, 1944, p. 20]. The statutory rule of necessity does not apply to an ALJ in a APA matter. Thus, a disqualified ALJ must withdraw from any case in which he or she cannot accord a fair and impartial hearing [Gov. Code § 11512(c)], and another ALJ will be assigned to the matter. This makes sense because there are more than one ALJ who can be assigned to hear an administrative hearing.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsAdministrative Boards

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Hearing Standards and Disqualification

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.24

§ 473E.24 Ex Parte Communications

[1] Introduction

An ex parte communication by a party or interested individual to an ALJ or agency member during an administrative adjudication is defined to be a communication made while a proceeding is pending to the presiding officer in that proceeding by an employee or representative of an agency that is a party or from an interested person outside the agency, without notice and opportunity for all parties to participate in the communication [Gov. Code § 11430.10(a)]. Ex parte communications raise the following significant concerns:

- The message will affect the adjudicator's neutrality and objectivity.

- The information or opinion transmitted will not be reflected in the record or be available for consideration by a court reviewing the adjudicator's decision.

- A party unaware of the content of the communication will be unaware of the need to rebut the information.

Ex parte communications also raise fairness concerns, that both sides will not be heard in a contested case, or that one side has greater influence because that side can present their argument without being challenged by their opponent.

It is unethical for a lawyer to make an improper ex parte communication to a judge or judicial officer upon the merits of a contested matter pending before the judge [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 5-300(B)], and it is improper for judges to make or receive similar ex parte communications from a lawyer in a pending or impending proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. II, Code of Judicial Ethics, Canon 3C(7)].

Ex parte communications are a greater problem in administrative agencies than in civil or criminal litigation, because agencies frequently communicate with regulated industries, licensees, or both, on an ex parte basis when deciding policy issues in rulemaking. Thus, the agency and interested outsiders will be talking frequently about issues of common interest. However, improper ex parte communications are prohibited in contested adjudicative hearings [see [2], below].

[2] APA Requirements

[a] Definitions and Basic Prohibitions

Under APA provisions that became operative July 1, 1997, ex parte communications are improper in some circumstances and are proper in others [Gov. Code §§ 11430.10-11430.80]. The prohibition on ex parte communications provides that while the proceeding is pending there shall be no communication, direct or indirect, regarding any issue in the proceeding, to the presiding officer from an employee or representative of an agency that is a party or from an interested person outside the agency, without notice and opportunity for all parties to participate in the communication [Gov. Code § 11430.10(a)]. For purposes of this prohibition, a proceeding is pending from the issuance of an agency's pleading, or from an application for an agency decision, whichever is earlier [Gov. Code § 11430.10(c)].

The term "interested person outside the agency" is based on federal administrative law [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55,164 (1995); see 5 U.S.C. § 557(d)(1)(A); PATCO v, Federal Labor Relations Authority (1982) 685 F.2d 547, 562, 222 U.S. App. D.C. 97 (interpreting the federal standard to include persons with interest beyond that of members of the general public)]. The pendency of a proceeding includes any period of time between the time an application for a hearing is made and the time the agency's pleading is issued [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 164 (1995)].

Furthermore, if, while the proceeding is pending but before serving as presiding officer, a person receives a communication of a type that would violate the provisions of this law if received while the person was serving as a presiding officer, the person, promptly after starting to serve, shall disclose the content of the communication on the record and give all parties an opportunity to address it in the manner provided in Gov. Code § 11430.50 [Gov. Code § 11430.40(c); see [c], below].

[b] Permissible Communications

Ex parte communications that are proper under the act include several categories. The first category, general permissible communication specifically authorized by the language of the act, include the following:

- Communications, including a communication from an employee or representative of an agency that is a party, made on the record at the hearing [Gov. Code § 11430.10(b)].

- Communications that are required for the disposition of an ex parte matter specifically authorized by statute [Gov. Code § 11430.20(a)].

- Communications that concern a matter of procedure or practice, including a request for a continuance, that is not in controversy [Gov. Code § 11430.20(b)]. This exception does not preclude communications made to a presiding officer or staff assistant regarding noncontroversial matters of procedure and practice, such as the format of pleadings, number of copies required, manner of service, and calendaring and status discussions. Such topics are not considered to be part of the merits of the proceeding provided they are noncontroversial in the context of the specific case [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 165 (1995)].

Under a second category, communications otherwise prohibited, from an employee or representative of an agency that is a party to a presiding officer, are permissible in the following circumstances:

- The communication is for the purpose of assistance and advice to the presiding officer from a person who has not served as investigator, prosecutor or advocate in the proceeding or its pre-adjudicative stage. An assistant or advisor may evaluate the evidence in the record but shall not furnish, augment, diminish, or modify the evidence in the record [Gov. Code § 11430.30(a)].

- The communication is for the purpose of advising the presiding officer concerning a settlement proposal advocated by the advisor [Gov. Code § 11430.30(b)].

- The communication is for the purpose of advising the presiding officer concerning any of the following matters in an adjudicative proceeding that is non-prosecutorial in character including [Gov. Code § 11430.30(c)]:

  - The advice involves a technical issue in the proceeding and the advice is necessary for, and is not otherwise reasonably available to, the presiding officer, provided the content of the advice is disclosed on the record and all parties are given an opportunity to address it in the manner provided in Gov. Code § 11430.50 [Gov. Code § 11430.30(c)(1); see [c], below].

  - The advice involves an issue in a proceeding of the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission, California Tahoe Regional Planning Agency, Delta Protection Commission, Water Resources Control Board, or a regional water quality control board [Gov. Code § 11430.30(c)(2)].

A third (and final) category is comprised of permissible communications noted in the Law Revision Commission comments, including the following:

- The presiding officer's authority to conduct in camera examination of evidence in a proceeding [see Gov. Code § 11507.7(d), (e)] is not limited by the prohibition on ex parte communications [Gov. Code § 11430.10; 25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 164 (1995)].

- Presiding officers are not prohibited from communicating with adversaries. Only communications from adversaries to presiding officers are precluded. However, presiding officers should give assistance or advice with caution, since there may be an appearance of unfairness if assistance or advice is given to some parties but not others [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 164 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11430.10].

- Presiding officers are not prohibited from consulting with other agency personnel when the agency conducting the hearing is not a party to the proceeding [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 164 (1995); Gov. Code § 11430.10].

[c] Consequences of Violations

When an improper ex parte communication is made, there are three consequences, disclosure, notice and opportunity to respond, and if necessary, disqualification of the presiding officer. If a presiding officer receives an improper communication, the officer must place the following in the record of the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11430.50(a)]:

- If the communication is written, the writing and any written response of the presiding officer to the communication [Gov. Code § 11430.50(a)(1)].

- If the communication is oral, a memorandum stating the substance of the communication, any response made by the presiding officer, and the identity of each person from whom the presiding officer received the communication [Gov. Code § 11430.50(a)(2)].

The presiding officer must also notify all parties that an ex parte communication has been made a part of the record [Gov. Code § 11430.50(b)]. If a party requests an opportunity to address the communication within 10 days after receipt of notice of the communication [Gov. Code § 11430.50(c)]:

- The party must be permitted to comment on the communication [Gov. Code § 11430.50(c)(1)].

- The presiding officer has discretion to allow the party to present evidence concerning the subject of the communication, including discretion to reopen a hearing that has been concluded [Gov. Code § 11430.50(c)(2)].

If a presiding officer receives an improper ex parte communication, the presiding officer may be disqualified [Gov. Code § 11430.60]. Disqualification is permitted if it is necessary to eliminate the effect of the ex parte communication [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 169 (1995)]. If the presiding officer is disqualified, the portion of the record pertaining to the ex parte communication may be sealed by protective order of the disqualified presiding officer [Gov. Code § 11430.60]. The purpose of sealing is to remove the improper communication from the view of the successor presiding officer, while preserving it as a sealed part of the record, for purposes of subsequent administrative or judicial review. Granting a protective order is permissive, not mandatory, and is within the discretion of the presiding officer who has knowledge of the improper ex parte communication [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 169 (1995)].

[d] Application to Agency Head

Agency heads [see Gov. Code § 11405.40 (defining agency head)] who are decision makers are subject to the same requirements as to ex parte communications with several qualifications. The same requirements that govern ex parte communications to presiding officers also govern ex parte communications in an adjudicative proceeding to the agency head or other person or body to which the power to hear or decide in the proceeding is delegated [Gov. Code § 11430.70(a)].

There is, however, an exception that applies to individualized rate making proceedings. An ex parte communication to the agency head or other person or body to which the power to hear or decide in the proceeding is delegated is permissible in an individualized rate making proceeding if the content of the communication is disclosed on the record and all parties are given an opportunity to address it in the manner provided in Gov. Code § 11430.50 [Gov. Code § 11430.70(b); see [c], above].

Furthermore, there is a prohibition on direct or indirect communication, while a proceeding is pending regarding the merits of any issue in the proceeding, between the presiding officer and the agency head or other person or body to which the power to hear or decide in the proceeding is delegated [Gov. Code § 11430.80(a)]. This rule does not apply when the agency head or other person to which the power to hear or decide in the proceeding is delegated serves as both presiding officer and agency head, or when the presiding officer does not issue a decision in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11430.80(b)].

[3] Non-APA Requirements

Non-APA proceedings are governed by Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 5-300(B), which prohibits a State Bar member from communicating with a judicial officer on the merits of a contested matter before that officer, except in open court or under other exceptions [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 5-300(B) (other exceptions include consent and ex parte matters; see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 5-300(B)(1)-(5)); for further discussion, see Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics].

The California Court of Appeal held that an ex parte communication by the chief of staff of a hospital to the Board of Directors of the hospital that related to the Board's decision to terminate a doctor's staff privileges was not improper (even though the content of the chief of staff's report was not placed in the record of the peer review proceeding) because the doctor failed to raise the issue before the Board, thereby waiving the right to raise the issue on appeal and because the doctor failed to show actual bias from the giving of the report to the board as such reports were authorized by the constitution of the medical staff [Weinberg v. Cedars Sinai Med. Ctr. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1098, 1115-1116, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 6] .

Because of the scope of the APA ex parte requirements, non-APA requirements would apply primarily to hearings before local agencies [see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , for further discussion of the scope of application of APA provisions].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityEx Parte ContactsAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & Powers

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Hearing Standards and Disqualification

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.25

§ 473E.25 ALJ Code of Ethics

[1] Applicability

The ALJ ethics provisions may be referred to as the Administrative Adjudication Code of Ethics [Gov. Code § 11475]. For convenience it is here referred to as the ALJ Code of Ethics.

The ALJ Code of Ethics applies to the following persons:

- An administrative law judge, by which is meant an incumbent of that position, as defined by the State Personnel Board, for each class specification for Administrative Law Judge [Gov. Code § 11475.10(a)(1)].

- A presiding officer to which the ALJ Code of Ethics is made applicable by statute or regulation [Gov. Code § 11475.10(a)(2); see also Gov. Code § 11405.80 (defining "presiding officer")].

Under Gov. Code § 11475.10(a)(1), the ALJ Code of Ethics applies not only to ALJ's who preside at adjudicative hearing but also to any supervisory or management level administrative law judge or chief administrative law judge whose function relates directly or indirectly to the adjudicative process.

Conversely, under Gov. Code § 11475.10(a)(2), the ALJ Code of Ethics does not apply to an to an agency head or hearing officer who presides in an administrative adjudication but who is not an ALJ, absent a special statute or regulation. The language "statute or regulation" means that the ALJ Code of Ethics may be made applicable, in situations when it would otherwise not apply, both by the Legislature and also by a particular agency that, by regulation, elects to make it applicable [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.10; see discussion in [4], below]. When the ALJ Code of Ethics does not apply, other ethical considerations may nevertheless apply to the hearing and nonhearing conduct of state agency presiding officers [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.10 (citing, for example, Gov. Code § 19572, relating to cause for discipline)].

The ALJ Code of Ethics applies notwithstanding any general statute providing that Gov. Code § 11400 et seq. does not apply to some or all of a particular state agency's adjudicative proceedings [Gov. Code § 11475.10(b)]. In other words, it applies to an ALJ even when the proceeding over which he or she is presiding is otherwise exempt from Chapter 4.5 (), the APA's general provisions relating to administrative adjudications [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.10; see, e.g. Gov. Code § 15609.5 (Board of Equalization proceedings exempt); Pub. Util. Code § 1701 (PUC proceedings exempt)].

[2] Incorporation of Code of Judicial Ethics

[a] Code of Judicial Ethics Incorporated Generally

Except as otherwise provided (see Gov. Code § 11475.40, discussed in [b], below), the Code of Judicial Ethics adopted by the Supreme Court under Cal. Const., art. VI, § 18(m) governs the hearing and nonhearing conduct of an ALJ or other presiding officer to which the ALJ Code of Ethics applies [Gov. Code § 11475.20].

The effect of Gov. Code § 11475.20 is to incorporate generally the Code of Judicial Ethics into the ALJ Code of Ethics. The Code of Judicial Ethics thus becomes applicable generally in administrative adjudications [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.20]. This incorporation by reference includes subsequent amendments and additions to the Code of Judicial Ethics, as adopted by the Supreme Court effective January 15, 1996. It is intended that interpretations of the Code of Judicial Ethics in its application to the judicial system, whether made by court rule or decision, should also be applied in administrative adjudication, to the extent relevant to the circumstances of administrative adjudication [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.20]. The text of the Code of Judicial Conduct, set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. II, Code of Judicial Ethics, may be found at the Internet site of the California Judiciary [see http://www.courtinfo.ca.gov]. For discussion of the Code of Judicial Ethics in the context of disqualification of judges for cause, see Ch. 317, Judges , Part III.

Because the Code of Judicial Ethics governs the conduct of judges, the following definitions apply to provide a general guide in converting terms in the Code of Judicial Ethics for application to administrative adjudications [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.30]:

- "Appeal" means administrative review [Gov. Code § 11475.30(a)].

- "Court" means the agency conducting an adjudicative proceeding [Gov. Code § 11475.30(b)].

- "Judge" means administrative law judge or other presiding officer to which the ALJ Code of Ethics applies. Related terms, including "judicial," "judiciary," and "justice," mean comparable concepts administrative adjudication [Gov. Code § 11475.30(c)].

- "Law" includes regulation and precedent decision [Gov. Code § 11475.30(d)].

It is intended that these definitions be applied in a manner to effectuate their general purpose without requiring strict or grammatically precise rigidity in the conversion of terms. Likewise, other terms not included in these definitions should be converted in an appropriate manner to effectuate the general intent to apply the Code of Judicial Ethics to the circumstances of administrative adjudication [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.30].

The provisions of the Code of Judicial Ethics thus incorporated are designed to supplement other standards that also apply to the conduct of an ALJ, including the following [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.20]:

- Disqualification for bias (see Gov. Code § 11425.40 and discussion in § 473E.21[1]).

- Enforcement of the ALJ Code of Ethics (see Gov. Code § 11475.50 and discussion in [3], below).

- Disciplinary action for failure of good behavior (see Gov. Code § 19572).

- The requirements generally applicable to designated employees of state agencies (see Gov. Code § 89500 et seq.).

[b] Excluded Provisions of Code of Judicial Ethics

Notwithstanding the general incorporation of the Code of Judicial Ethics into the ALJ Code of Ethics (see [a], above), the following provisions of the Code of Judicial Ethics are expressly excluded from the ALJ Code of Ethics:

- Canon 3B(7), to the extent it relates to ex parte communications [Gov. Code § 11475.40(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. II, Code of Judicial Ethics, Canon 3B(7)]. This exclusion reflects that fact that special provisions, and not the Code of Judicial Ethics, govern ex parte communications in administrative adjudication [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.40; see discussion in § 473E.24].

- Canon 3B(10) (judge may not express opinion of jury verdict to jurors) [Gov. Code § 11475.40(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. II, Code of Judicial Ethics, Canon 3B(10)]. This exclusion simply reflects the fact that juries are not used in administrative adjudication [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.40].

- Canon 3D(3) (judge required to report indictment or conviction of most crimes to Commission on Judicial Performance) [Gov. Code § 11475.40(c); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. II, Code of Judicial Ethics, Canon 3D(3)]. This exclusion reflects the fact that the provision is not relevant to ALJ's, who are not under the jurisdiction of the Commission on Judicial Performance [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.40].

- Canon 4C (restricting a judge's participation in governmental, civic, or charitable activities) [Gov. Code § 11475.40(d); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. II, Code of Judicial Ethics, Canon 4C]. This exclusion means that an ALJ law judge is not precluded from engaging in activities of this type, except to the extent the activities may conflict with general limitations on the administrative law judge's conduct [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.40 (citing, for example, the general limitations on extrajudicial activities set out in Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. II, Code of Judicial Ethics, Canon 4A].

- Canons 4E(1), 4F, and 4G [Gov. Code § 11475.40(e); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. II, Code of Judicial Ethics, Canons 4E(1), 4F, 4G]. The exclusion of these provisions, relating to fiduciary activities, private employment in alternative dispute resolution, and the practice of law, reflect the fact that these matters are the subject of the employing agency's incompatible activity statement pursuant to Gov. Code § 19990 [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.40].

- Canons 5A through 5D; however, the introductory paragraph of Canon 5 applies to persons subject to the ALJ Code of Ethics notwithstanding Gov. Code § 3201 et seq., relating to political activities of public employees [Gov. Code § 11475.40(f); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. II, Code of Judicial Ethics, Canons 5A-5D]. Under this exclusion, an ALJ or other presiding officer must avoid political activity that may create the appearance of political bias or impropriety, such as participation in political activity related to an issue that may come before the ALJ or other presiding officer. By making the introductory paragraph of Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. II, Code of Judicial Ethics, Canons 5 applicable, this subsection limits the political activities of administrative law judges even though other public employees might be able to participate in those activities under the Hatch Act (Gov. Code § 3201 et seq.). This subsection is not intended to preclude an ALJ or other presiding officer from appearing at a public hearing or officially consulting with an executive or legislative body or public official in matters concerning the judge's private economic or personal interests, or to otherwise engage in political activities relating to salaries, benefits, and working conditions [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.40; see also discussion of Gov. Code § 11475.70 in [4], below].

- Canon 6 (regarding compliance with the Code of Judicial Ethics) [Gov. Code § 11475.40(g); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. II, Code of Judicial Ethics, Canon 6]. The exclusion of Canon 6 reflects the fact that its provisions are superseded by the compliance and enforcement provisions of Gov. Code §§ 11475.50 and 11475.60 (discussed in [3], below) [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.40].

Generally, the exclusions of Gov. Code § 11475.40 are designed to adapt the Code of Judicial Ethics for application to ALJ's. Other provisions of the Code of Judicial Ethics, although not expressly excluded, may be minimally relevant to an ALJ [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.40 (citing, for example, Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. II, Code of Judicial Ethics, Canon 3C(4) (administrative responsibilities of judges)].

[3] Compliance With and Enforcement of Code

Except as provided in Gov. Code § 11475.60(b), a person to whom the ALJ Code of Ethics applies must comply immediately with all applicable provisions of the Code of Judicial Ethics [Gov. Code § 11475.60(a)]. Gov. Code § 11475.60(b) sets out a transition clause with respect to compliance with Canon 4D(2), relating to business and commercial activities. Specifically, a person to whom the ALJ Code of Ethics applies must comply with Canon 4D(2) of the Code of Judicial Ethics as soon as reasonably possible and must do so in any event within a period of one year after the ALJ Code of Ethics operative date (i.e., within one year after January 1, 1999) [Gov. Code § 11475.60(b); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. II, Code of Judicial Ethics, Canon 4D(2)].

A violation of an applicable provision of the Code of Judicial Ethics, or a violation of the restrictions and prohibitions on accepting honoraria, gifts, or travel that otherwise apply to elected state officers pursuant to Gov. Code § 89500, by an ALJ, or other presiding officer to whom the ALJ Code of Ethics applies, is cause for discipline by the employing agency pursuant to Gov. Code § 19572 [Gov. Code § 11475.50]. This provision, which supersedes Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. II, Code of Judicial Ethics, Canon 6A, is not precatory but mandatory. Appropriate discipline is the responsibility of the agency that employs the ALJ. Thus, if an ALJ employed by the OAH violates the code of ethics in a hearing conducted for another agency, the OAH is the disciplining entity, and not the other agency. An agency may apply appropriate disciplinary procedures [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.50]. It should be noted that a person may also institute disciplinary proceedings directly before the State Personnel Board with the consent of the board [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.50 (citing Gov. Code § 19583.5 and 2 Cal. Code Reg. 51.9)].

A violation of the ALJ Code of Ethics by an ALJ is not per se grounds for disqualification, or reversal of a decision, of that ALJ, but the violation may be indicative of the ALJ's violation of other procedural requirements [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.50 (citing, as an example, disqualification for bias, etc., under Gov. Code § 11425.40); for further discussion of disqualification, see § 473E.21 and § 473E.23].

[4] Collective Bargaining Rights Not Affected

Nothing in the ALJ Code of Ethics is to be construed or is intended to limit or affect the rights of an ALJ or other presiding officer under Gov. Code § 3512 et seq. [Gov. Code § 11475.70]. This provision makes it clear that the ALJ Code of Ethics does not interfere with collective bargaining rights guaranteed to state employees under the Ralph C.

Dills Act (Gov. Code § 3512 et seq.). These include the right to form, join, and participate in activities of employee organizations of their own choosing for the purpose of representation on all matters of employer-employee relations, to refuse to join or participate in the activities of employee organizations, or to represent themselves individually in their employment relations with the state [Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Gov. Code § 11475.70].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityEx Parte ContactsAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesLegal EthicsJudicial Conduct

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Hearing Standards and Disqualification

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473E.26-473E.29

[Reserved]

§§ 473E.26[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.30

§ 473E.30 Federal Constitution

Due process clause. U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.31

§ 473E.31 State Constitution

Due process clause. Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.32

§ 473E.32 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

Accusation. Gov. Code § 11503

Administrative adjudication bill of rights. Gov. Code §§ 11425.10-11425.60

Administrative Law Judges. Gov. Code § 11502

Affidavits. Gov. Code § 11514

Agency decisional authority. Gov. Code § 11440.10

Agencies to which act applies. Gov. Code §§ 11410.10, 11501

Amendment of pleadings. Gov. Code §§ 11507, 11516

Applicability of provisions to statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504.5

Conduct of hearing. Gov. Code § 11512

Consolidation of proceedings. Gov. Code § 11507.3

Contempt. Gov. Code §§ 11455.10-11455.30

Continuances. Gov. Code § 11524

Conversion of proceedings. Gov. Code §§ 11470.10-11470.50

Decision. Gov. Code §§ 11516-11520, 11526

Declaratory decision. Gov. Code §§ 11465.10-11465.70

Definitions of terms. Gov. Code §§ 11405.10-11405.80, 11500

Depositions. Gov. Code § 11511

Discovery. Gov. Code §§ 11507.5-11507.7

Disqualification. Gov. Code §§ 11425.30, 11425.40, 11512

Emergency decision. Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80

Evidence. Gov. Code §§ 11435.10, 11440.40, 11513

Ex parte communications. Gov. Code. §§ 11430.10-11430.80

Hearings by electronic means. Gov. Code § 11440.30

Informal hearings. Gov. Code § 11445.10-11445.60

Intervention. Gov. Code § 11440.50

Language assistance. Gov. Code § 11435.05-11435.65

Administrative Adjudication Code of Ethics (also referred to in this chapter as the ALJ Code of Ethics). Gov. Code § 11475 et seq.

Judicial review. Gov. Code § 11523

Notice of defense. Gov. Code § 11506

Notice of hearing. Gov. Code § 11509

Oaths. Gov. Code § 11528

Official notice. Gov. Code § 11515

Reconsideration. Gov. Code § 11521

Reporting proceedings. Gov. Code § 11512

Restoration of rights. Gov. Code § 11522

Separate hearings. Gov. Code § 11507.3

Service and notice. Gov. Code § 11440.20

Service of initial pleading. Gov. Code § 11505

Settlement conferences. Gov. Code § 11511.7

Sexual harassment. Gov. Code § 11440.40

Statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504

Subpoenas. Gov. Code §§ 11450.05-11450.50

Time and place of hearing. Gov. Code § 11508

Waiver of rights. Gov. Code § 11415.40

[2] Related Statutes

Affidavit of good cause as required for subpoena duces tecum. Code Civ. Proc. § 1985

Witness served with subpoena as entitled to demand one day's fees and mileage allowance. Code Civ. Proc. § 1987

Witness fees and mileage allowances. Gov. Code §§ 11191, 68093, 68097.2

Right to have subpoena issued. Gov. Code § 11190

Office of Administrative Hearings. Gov. Code §§ 11370.1-11370.5

Board of supervisors of county as empowered to establish county hearing officer. Gov. Code §§ 27720, 27721

Oaths used in civil proceedings. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2094-2097

Evidentiary effect of plea of nolo contendere. Penal Code § 1016

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral OverviewLegal EthicsJudicial Conduct

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.33

§ 473E.33 Decisions

[1] Conduct of Hearing

Who may or must be party to administrative proceeding depends on purpose and effect of proceeding and particular statute under which proceeding brought; standard set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 389, requiring joinder of necessary and indispensable parties in judicial proceedings, is not appropriate for administrative proceedings when joinder of parties would defeat purpose of administrative proceeding. Nevada County Office of Education v. Riles (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 767, 775, 777, 197 Cal. Rptr. 152

Agency is entitled to allow hearing officer to conduct hearing alone and present proposed decision to agency. Armistead v. City of Los Angeles (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 319, 324, 313 P.2d 127

Agency is entitled to begin hearing along with hearing officer and then withdraw midway through, leaving hearing officer to conclude hearing alone. Feist v. Rowe (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 404, 421, 83 Cal. Rptr. 465

[2] Disqualification of Agency Member

In case not governed by APA, bias and prejudice are not implied and are required to be clearly established; party's unilateral perception of bias is insufficient, standing alone, to serve as basis for disqualification of adjudicator; prejudice is required to be shown against particular party and required to be significant enough to impair adjudicator's impartiality. Gray v. City of Gustine (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 621, 632, 273 Cal. Rptr. 730

In case not governed by APA, challenge to fairness of adjudicator is required to set forth concrete facts demonstrating bias or prejudice. Gray v. City of Gustine (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 621, 632, 273 Cal. Rptr. 730

In case not governed by APA, fact that city council members heard evidence of city manager's investigation of police chief is insufficient, standing alone, to recuse city council from hearing chief's case. Gray v. City of Gustine (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 621, 632, 273 Cal. Rptr. 730

Rule of necessity: member may not be disqualified if presence necessary to enable agency to act. Caminetti v. Pac. Mutual L. Ins. Co. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 344, 366, 139 P.2d 908 , cert. denied sub nom., Neblett v. Caminetti (1944) 320 U.S. 802, 64 S. Ct. 428, 88 L. Ed. 484

Respondent is not entitled to examine agency members as on voir dire to determine ground for disqualification. Feist v. Rowe (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 404, 414, 83 Cal. Rptr. 465

Necessity to present ground for disqualification at hearing if then known; necessity to follow established disqualification procedure, if any. Kendall v. Bd. of Osteopathic Examiners (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 239, 233 P.2d 107

Disqualification in case not governed by APA. Aluisi v. County of Fresno (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 443, 449-450, 452, 2 Cal. Rptr. 779 , cert. denied sub nom., Boyd v. Fresno County 364 U.S. 893, 81 S. Ct. 224, 5 L. Ed. 2d 188

Agency member is not disqualified because of foreknowledge of evidence. Wisuri v. Newark School Dist. (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 239, 243, 55 Cal. Rptr. 490

Agency member is not disqualified because of personal opinion about wisdom of law to be enforced. Western Airlines, Inc. v. Schutzbank (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 218, 231, 66 Cal. Rptr. 293

[3] Disqualification of Administrative Law Judge

Any person with relevant knowledge is entitled to make affidavit to support request for disqualification of hearing officer. Feist v. Rowe (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 404, 413, 83 Cal. Rptr. 465

Necessity to present ground for disqualification at hearing, if ground then known. Kendall v. Bd. of Osteopathic Examiners (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 239, 248, 233 P.2d 107

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law Judges

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.34

§ 473E.34 Text References

Judicial Council of California, Tenth Biennial Report (1944)

California Administrative Hearing Practice (Cal. C.E.B. 1984)

Witkin, California Evidence, Ch. III, Judicial Notice, §§ 150-191; Ch. X, Witnesses, §§ 787-791; Ch. XII, Introduction of Evidence at Trial, §§ 1223-1275 (2d ed.)

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityGeneral OverviewEvidenceJudicial NoticeGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.35

§ 473E.35 Internet References

Office of Administrative Hearings. This site includes information and location concerning specific OAH offices; an OAH hearing guide; information concerning Administrative Procedure Act statutes, regulations, and proposed regulations; OAH forms; information concerning alternative dispute resolution procedures; and declaratory decisions. http://www.dgs.ca.gov/oah NOTE: On and after July 1, 1998, The OAL is required by Gov. Code § 11340.1(b) to make the full text of the California Code of Regulations, with reference citations and history notes, available on the Internet free of charge.

Office of Administrative Law. This site includes OAL publications; links to OAL statutes and regulations relating to rulemaking; regulations submitted to the OAL for review, and information for contacting or providing input to the OAL regarding rulemaking. http://www.oal.ca.gov

California Home Page. This site includes links to other sites maintained by numerous state agencies. http://www.ca.gov

Department of Consumer Affairs. This site includes links to sites maintained by many state agencies that are under this department, as well as links to agency sites. http://www.dca.ca.gov

California Courts. This site includes general information about state court organization and specific court; text of recently filed slip opinions; court minutes and calendars; text of California Rules of Court; Judicial Council forms and other information promulgated by the Judicial Council; links to sites of most Court of Appeal districts, with text of local appellate rules, forms, and internal operating procedures; links to other sites maintained by local trial courts, state government agencies and organizations, federal courts and federal organizations, and other sources of legal information. http://www.courtinfo.ca.gov

California Legislative Information. This site includes text of constitution, codes, and statutes (including complete text of APA); and information concerning pending legislation. http://www.leginfo.ca.gov

Matthew Bender. This site includes links to Matthew Bender publications and Shepard's citation service.
http://www.bender.com

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute ResolutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law Judges

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473E.36-473E.39

[Reserved]

§§ 473E.36[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.40

§ 473E.40 Request for Disqualification of ALJ or Agency Member

[1] Motion to Disqualify

☐ Prepare motion [Gov. Code § 11512(c); see § 473E.22[1][a]; for a form, see § 473E.60].

☐ Prepare affidavit [Gov. Code § 11512(c); see § 473E.22[1][b]; for a form, see § 473E.60, which includes a declaration that may be used in lieu of an affidavit under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5].

☐ File affidavit or declaration prior to hearing [Gov. Code § 11512(c); see § 473E.22[1][a]].

[2] Peremptory Challenge

☐ Do agency regulations allow a peremptory challenge [Gov. Code § 11425.40(d); see § 473E.22[1][d]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.41

§ 473E.41 Disqualification in Non-APA Procedures

☐ Check applicable statutes or regulations [see § 473E.22[2]].

☐ If provisions for disqualification do not exist, make a motion supported by affidavit based on APA procedures [see §§ 473E.22[2], 473E.40; for a form, see § 473E.60].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.42

§ 473E.42 Waiver of Disqualification

[1] Written Waiver

☐ Prepare written waiver [Gov. Code § 11512(c); see § 473E.22[1][a]; for a form of waiver, see § 473E.61].

☐ Obtain all parties' signatures.

☐ Obtain acceptance of ALJ or agency member.

☐ Have included in the record.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473E.43-473E.59

[Reserved]

§§ 473E.43[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART V. FORMS

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.60

§ 473E.60 Motion to Disqualify ALJ or Agency Member and Supporting Declaration [Gov. Code § 11512(c)]

[1] FORM Motion to Disqualify ALJ or Agency Member and Supporting Declaration [Gov. Code § 11512(c)]

BEFORE THE _____ [name of agency]

In the matter of _____ [name], Respondent	)))))	No. _____ REQUEST TO DISQUALIFY [ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGE or AGENCY MEMBER]

_____

Respondent requests that _____[name of agency] issue an order disqualifying _____ [name of person to be disqualified], the _____ [administrative law judge or agency member] from participating in this matter. This motion is made on the ground that _____ [name of person to be disqualified] cannot accord a fair and impartial hearing or consideration in this matter, as set forth in the supporting declaration, which is attached hereto.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Respondent

DECLARATION IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR DISQUALIFICATION

I, _____ [name of respondent], Respondent in this matter, declare that _____ [name of person to be disqualified], the _____ [administrative law judge or agency member], cannot accord a fair and impartial hearing or consideration in this matter, for the following reasons: _____[state specific reasons].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

Respondent

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an example of a request for disqualification and a supporting declaration that conform to the APA requirements [see Gov. Code § 11512(c)]. For agencies not subject to the APA, counsel should check the governing statutes and regulations for any different requirements.

Code Civ. Proc. § 2003 requires an affidavit to be written and made under oath [Code Civ. Proc. § 2003; see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (requirements for declaration under penalty of perjury in lieu of affidavit)].

For a discussion of the disqualification procedures, see § 473E.22.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473E PUBLIC ADMINISTRATIVE LAW JUDGES
PART V. FORMS

41A-473E California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473E.61

§ 473E.61 Written Waiver of Disqualification [Gov. Code § 11512(c)]

[1] FORM Written Waiver of Disqualification [Gov. Code § 11512(c)]

BEFORE THE _____ [name of agency]

In the matter of _____ [name], Respondent	)))))	No. _____ WRITTEN AGREEMENT TO WAIVE DISQUALIFICATION

It is hereby agreed by the parties that the disqualification of Administrative Law Judge _____, the presiding officer of the hearing in the above matter, on the basis that this judge is disqualified because of (specify grounds) to preside in the hearing in the above matter is hereby waived.
Dated: _____.

_____

Signature of Agency Representative

_____

Signature of Respondent

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a waiver for use when all the parties in an administrative hearing agree to waive the disqualification of the judge.

Under Gov. Code § 11512(c), the parties may waive disqualification of the presiding officer by a writing that recites the grounds for disqualification. A waiver is effective only when signed by all parties, accepted by the administrative law judge or agency member, and included in the record. For further discussion of the procedures required to waive the disqualification of an administrative law judge, see § 473E.22[1][a].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 473F.syn

§ 473F.syn Synopsis to Chapter 473F: AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS

§ 473F.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 473F.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

[2] Judicial Review

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

[4] Specific Public Agencies

[5] Other Related Chapters

§§ 473F.03-473F.09 [Reserved]

§ 473F.10 Nature of Agency Hearings

§ 473F.11 Presiding Officer at Hearing

[1] Administrative Law Judge

[2] Agency Members

§ 473F.12 Public Hearings

[1] APA Provisions

[2] Relationship to Open Meetings Acts

[3] Exclusion of Witnesses

[4] Exclusion of Parties

[5] Office of Administrative Hearings Regulations Governing Hearing Procedures

§ 473F.13 English Language and Language Assistance

[1] When APA Requirements Apply

[2] Language Assistance Requirements

[3] Interpreter Requirements

[4] Costs of Interpreters

§ 473F.14 Subpoenas

[1] APA Procedures

[a] Scope of Application

[b] Issuance

[c] Issuer

[d] Service

[e] Enforcement

[f] Objections and Protective Orders

[g] Witnesses, Mileage, and Fees

[h] Written Notice

[2] Non-APA Procedures

§ 473F.15 Conduct of the Hearing

[1] Opening Statements

[a] When Opening Statements Are Used

[b] Guidelines for Use

[2] Hearing Briefs

[3] Oaths and Affirmations

[4] Direct Examination

[a] Nature and Purpose

[b] Guidelines for Direct Examination of Witnesses

[c] Guidelines for Refreshing Witness's Recollection

[5] Expert Witnesses

[a] Nature of Experts

[b] Qualification

[6] Cross-Examination

[a] Nature and Purpose

[b] Guidelines for Cross-Examination of Witnesses

[7] Redirect and Recross-Examination

[8] Examination by ALJ or Agency Member

[9] Rebuttal Evidence

[10] Bifurcation

[a] Nature of Bifurcation

[b] Reasons for Requesting Bifurcation

[c] Procedure and Ruling on Motion

[11] Depositions

[a] Authority to Order

[b] Contents of Petition

[c] Procedure for Petition and Order Taking Deposition

[12] Motion for Nonsuit or Dismissal

[13] Argument

[a] Order of Presentation

[b] Guidelines for Argument

[c] Written Argument

[14] Holding Record Open

[15] Decision

[16] Sanctions and Enforcement

[a] Sanctions

[b] Enforcement

[17] Right to Counsel

§ 473F.16 Record of the Hearing

[1] Reporting

[2] Transcripts

§ 473F.17 Defaults

[1] APA Proceedings

[a] License Issuance and Renewal Cases

[b] License Discipline Cases

[c] Mitigation

[d] Reconsideration of Default

[2] Non-APA Defaults

§ 473F.18 Persuasion

[1] Persuasion in Administrative Hearings

[2] Guidelines for Persuasion

§§ 473F.19-473F.29 [Reserved]

§ 473F.30 Administrative Rules of Evidence

[1] Criminal Rules of Evidence Are Generally Inapplicable

[2] Liberal Nature of Rules

[3] Guidelines for Production of Evidence

§ 473F.31 Basic Hearing Objections

[1] Irrelevant Evidence

[2] Evidence That Necessitates Undue Consumption of Time

[3] Objectionable Form of Question

[a] Leading Questions

[b] Narrative Questions

[c] Other Objectionable Questions

[4] Cumulative Evidence

[5] Guidelines for Objection Procedure

[6] Offers of Proof

[7] Foundation and Authentication

[a] Establishing a Proper Foundation

[b] Authentication of Writings

[8] Secondary Evidence Rule

[9] Failure to Object

§ 473F.32 Administrative Hearsay

[1] General Requirements

[2] Objection Requirement

[3] Other Inadmissible Hearsay

[4] Non-APA Hearings

§ 473F.33 Privileges

[1] Application in Administrative Proceedings

[2] Self-Incrimination

[a] Compared to Application in Civil and Criminal Trials

[b] Application to Public Employees

[c] Application to Drivers' Licenses

[3] Sexual Privacy

[a] Scope of Privilege

[b] APA Proceedings

§ 473F.34 Exclusionary Rule

[1] General Requirements

[2] Application to Administrative Proceedings

[a] Factors Used to Determine Application

[b] Administrative Inspections

[c] Vicarious Exclusionary Rule

[d] Guidelines for Objecting to Illegally Obtained Evidence

§ 473F.35 Illegally Obtained Confessions and Entrapment

§ 473F.36 Presumptions

[1] Nature and Types

[2] Rebuttable Presumptions

§ 473F.37 Affidavits

§ 473F.38 Official Notice

[1] Nature of Official Notice

[2] Matters Subject to Official Notice

[3] Notice and Opportunity to Refute

§ 473F.39 Mitigation, Extenuation, and Rehabilitation Evidence

[1] General Requirements

[2] Mitigation and Extenuation Evidence

[a] Use of Evidence

[b] Examples of Evidence

[c] Presentation of Evidence

[3] Rehabilitation Evidence

[a] Nature of Evidence

[b] Criteria for Rehabilitation

[4] Admissions of Liability

§ 473F.40 Views

[1] Use in Administrative Proceedings

[2] Entering on Record

§ 473F.41 Res Judicata and Collateral Estoppel

[1] Nature of Doctrines

[2] Application to Administrative Hearings

[a] Required Elements

[b] Role of Burden of Proof

[3] Offensive Use of Collateral Estoppel

§§ 473F.42-473F.49 [Reserved]

§ 473F.50 Order of Proof

[1] General Requirements

[2] Customary Order in Civil Cases

[3] Modification of Customary Order in Administrative Hearings

[4] Order in Particular Matters

[5] Consideration on Appeal

§ 473F.51 Determining Burden of Proof

[1] General Rules

[2] APA Provisions

[3] License and Permit Applications

[4] License Renewal

[5] License Discipline

[a] Revocation and Suspension

[b] Citations

[6] License Reinstatement

[7] Employee Discipline

[a] Proceedings to Dismiss or Discipline

[b] Civil Service Employees

[c] Name-Clearing Hearings

[8] Teacher Dismissal or Suspension

[9] Benefit Entitlement

[10] Safety Regulation Enforcement

[11] Review on Appeal

§ 473F.52 Standard of Proof

[1] Preponderance of Evidence Standard

[2] Clear and Convincing Evidence Standard

[a] Applicable to Revocation of Professional Licenses

[b] Inapplicable to Citations

[c] Inapplicable to Teacher Dismissal Hearings

[d] Instructions Regarding Standard

[3] Criminal Standard

§ 473F.53 Meeting the Burden of Proof

[1] Admissions

[a] Types of Admissible Evidence

[b] Criminal Admissions

[2] Hearsay

[a] Need for Objection

[b] Exceptions to Hearsay

[3] Res Judicata and Collateral Estoppel

[4] Official Notice

[a] Used to Satisfy Burden of Proof

[b] Practical Considerations

§ 473F.54 Shifting the Burden of Proof

[1] Equitable Estoppel

[a] Nature of Doctrine

[b] Application to Administrative Agencies

[c] When Estoppel Does Not Apply

[2] Affirmative Defenses

[a] Burden on Respondent

[b] Claim of Discrimination

[c] Discrimination in License Testing Procedures

§§ 473F.55-473F.59 [Reserved]

§ 473F.60 Federal Constitution

§ 473F.61 State Constitution

§ 473F.62 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

[2] Related Statutes

§ 473F.63 Decisions

[1] General Requirements

[2] Conduct of Hearing

[3] Contempt

[4] Disqualification of Counsel

[5] Estoppel

[6] Evidence

[7] Expert Witnesses

[8] Presiding Officers

[9] Hearings

[10] Judicial Notice

[11] Jurisdiction

[12] Nonsuit

[13] Official Notice

[14] Order and Burden of Proof

[15] Record of Proceedings

[16] Right to Counsel

[17] Stay of Execution

[18] Subpoenas

§ 473F.64 Text References

§ 473F.65 Internet References

§§ 473F.66-473F.69 [Reserved]

§ 473F.70 Prehearing Considerations

[1] Exclusion of Witnesses

[2] Interpreters

[3] Witness Fees and Mileage

§ 473F.71 Preparation for Hearing

[1] Opening Statement

[2] Hearing Brief

[3] Witnesses

[4] Expert Witnesses

[5] Bifurcation

[6] Depositions

[7] Closing Argument

§ 473F.72 Subpoena and Subpoena Duces Tecum

[1] Procedure

[2] Party Served With Subpoena

§ 473F.73 Use of Affidavits at Hearing

[1] Affidavits

[2] Party Receiving Affidavit and Notice

§ 473F.74 Official Notice

[1] Request

[2] Refuting Officially Noticed Matter

§ 473F.75 Default

[1] Failure to File Notice of Defense or to Attend Hearing

[2] Respondent Fails to Receive Actual Notice

§§ 473F.76-473F.89 [Reserved]

§ 473F.90 Notice of Intention to Use Affidavit or Declaration [Gov. Code § 11514]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 473F.91 Request for Official Notice [Gov. Code § 11515]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 473F.92 Request for Opportunity to Refute Officially Noticed Matter [Gov. Code § 11515]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.01

§ 473F.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses hearings in administrative adjudications in California public agencies. The legal background discussion in Part II includes the following:

- Subpart A, discussing the nature of agency hearings and hearing procedures governing language assistance, subpoenas, conduct of the hearing, record of the hearing, defaults, and argument [see §§ 473F.10 -473F.19].

- Subpart B, discussing rules of evidence in agency hearings, including administrative rules of evidence, basic hearing objections, administrative hearsay, privileges, the application of the exclusionary rule, illegally obtained confessions and entrapment, presumptions, affidavits, "judicial" or official notice, mitigation, extenuation, and rehabilitation evidence, views, and claim and issue preclusion [see §§ 473F.30 -473F.41].

- Subpart C, discussing burden of proof in agency hearings, the order of proof, determining the applicable burden of proof, standard of proof, meeting the burden of proof, and shifting the burden of proof [see §§ 473F.50 -473F.54].

Part V includes a form of notice of intention to use a declaration or affidavit [see § 473F.90], a form of request for official notice [§ 473F.91], and a form of request for opportunity to refute any officially matter [see § 473F.92].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsCollateral EstoppelAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsRes JudicataAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityHearsay

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.02

§ 473F.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

For related discussion and forms providing more detailed coverage of the other stages of an agency adjudication under the formal hearing provisions of the APA, see:

- Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication.
- Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication.
- Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473D, Prehearing Preparations in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges.
- Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions.

For related discussion and forms providing more detailed coverage of adjudication methods under the APA other than that of formal hearing, see Ch. 473H, Alternative Administrative Adjudication Procedures .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to licensing agencies, including licensing adjudications, see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies .

[2] Judicial Review

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to review by California courts of agency adjudications, see:

- Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions.
- Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions.
- Ch. 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions.
- Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions.

For other related discussion and forms relating to judicial review generally, see:

- Ch. 40 et seq., Appeal (discussion and forms relating to civil appeals).
- Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of orders by extraordinary writ of mandate or prohibition).
- Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of civil proceedings by extraordinary writ of review).

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

For related discussion of California public administrative law generally, including discussion of public agency functions and powers (including adjudicative or quasi-judicial powers), and organization generally, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law (for general discussion of judicial power, see § 470.12[5]). For detailed discussion of the general procedures imposed in agency proceedings by constitutional due process and related statutory requirements, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies .

For discussion and forms relating to the law governing access to and conduct of meetings by California public agencies, see Ch. 470B, Public Agency Meetings .

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the law governing disclosure of public records under the California Public Records Act [Cal. Gov. Code §§ 6250 et seq.], see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to agency investigations and inspections, see:

- Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies.
- Ch. 471A, Inspections by Public Agencies.

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to the legislative or rulemaking functions of California public agencies, including judicial review of these functions, see:

- Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules.
- Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures.
- Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking.

[4] Specific Public Agencies

For related coverage of adjudicative proceedings before particular public agencies, see:

- Ch. 18, Alcoholic Beverage Licenses (discussion and forms relating to licensing proceedings before the department of Alcoholic Beverage Control).

- Ch. 70, Attorney Admission and Ch. 71, Attorney Discipline (discussion and forms relating to licensing and discipline of attorneys and proceedings before the State Bar and the State Bar Court).

- Ch. 92, Automobiles: Drivers' Licenses (discussion and forms relating to drivers' licensing and proceedings before the Department of Motor Vehicles).

- Ch. 104, Building Contracts, § 104.70 et seq. (discussion relating to licensing and discipline of building contractors by the Contractors' State License Board).

- Ch. 118, Civil Service (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the Personnel Board).

- Ch. 209, Dentists (discussion and forms relating to licensing and discipline of dentists and proceedings before the Board of Dental Examiners).

- Ch. 214, Drugs and Pharmacists (discussion and forms relating to licensing and discipline of pharmacists and proceedings before the State Board of Pharmacy).

- Ch. 414, Physicians: Licensing and Discipline (discussion and forms relating to licensing and discipline of physicians and proceedings before the Medical Board of California).

- Ch. 480, Public Utilities (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the Public Utilities Commission).

- Ch. 512, Schools: Certification, Dismissal, and Related Employment Issues (discussion and forms relating to teacher certification and dismissal proceedings before the State Board of Education and local boards).

- Ch. 527, Social Services (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the State Department of Social Service or the State Department of Health Services).

- Ch. 564, Unemployment and Disability Insurance, § 564.30 et seq. and § 564.100 et seq. (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board).

- Ch. 575, Waters (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the State Water Resources Control Board and local water districts).

- Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the Division of Workers' Compensation and the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board).

For additional cross references to coverage of other particular public agencies, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law, § 470.02[2].

[5] Other Related Chapters

For discussion and forms relating to trial proceedings in civil actions generally, see Ch. 551, Trial .

For discussion and forms relating to default proceedings in civil actions generally, see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments , and Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute ResolutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473F.03-473F.09

[Reserved]

§§ 473F.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Hearing Procedures

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.10

§ 473F.10 Nature of Agency Hearings

An administrative hearing is a proceeding similar to a nonjury civil court trial. The degree of formality varies with the kind of hearing, but most administrative hearings are formal and conducted in a quasi-judicial manner [see Nishkian v. City of Long Beach (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 749, 752, 230 P.2d 156 (hearings must be at least quasi-judicial in nature, and must provide a record for court review)]. Thus, good trial skills and preparation are as necessary in administrative hearings as they are in court trials. This subpart compares hearing practice to trial practice, emphasizing the differences. It discusses preliminary matters such as subpoenas and covers hearings from opening statements to submission. Hearings conducted by administrative law judges alone are compared with those conducted by administrative law judges with agency members present. It also points out, as some of the common errors committed by lawyers during agency hearings, and includes a few general trial practice techniques that apply to hearings as well.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Hearing Procedures

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.11

§ 473F.11 Presiding Officer at Hearing

[1] Administrative Law Judge

An administrative law judge (ALJ) or other hearing officer usually presides over an administrative hearing. The case may also, however, be heard by agency members directly [see Gov. Code § 11512(a); see [2], below]. When an ALJ alone hears a case, he or she has all the powers necessary to conduct the hearing [Gov. Code § 11512(b)]. An ALJ's discretion is broad, but limited by the statutes or ordinances applicable to the hearing and due process [see Rose v. City of Hayward (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 926, 936-937, 179 Cal. Rptr. 287 (ALJ presiding over APA hearing must exercise discretion within scope of statutory and constitutional limitations; thus, ALJ could not hear class action in violation of statute); see also Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies (discussion of due process issues)].

For example, the ALJ can determine the order of proof [Feist v. Rowe (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 404, 412, 83 Cal. Rptr. 465] . Other actions, such as determining motions, are also within the judge's discretion [Ehrlich v. McConnell (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 280, 287, 29 Cal. Rptr. 283] . The judge controls the order of testimony and the introduction of evidence [Douglass v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 645, 658-659, 190 Cal. Rptr. 506] . For detailed discussion and forms relating to the duties of an ALJ or presiding officer, see Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges .

[2] Agency Members

Some administrative hearings are heard directly by agency members, with an ALJ presiding [see Gov. Code § 11512(a)]. When that is the case, the administrative law judge presides at the hearing, rules on the admission and exclusion of evidence, and advises the agency on matters of law. The agency exercises all other powers relating to the conduct of the hearing but may delegate any of the powers to the ALJ [Gov. Code § 11512(b)]. Whether agency members hear a case depends on the particular nature of the case and the availability of the professional members. Professional agency members sometimes hear cases involving professional licensing discipline. Long-running cases are usually heard by an ALJ alone, however, because of the unavailability of members. Even if an APA case begins with agency members hearing it, the ALJ will complete the hearing alone if a quorum is lost during the hearing [Gov. Code § 11512(e)].

Because agency members are similar to a jury, counsel should use all of the persuasive trial techniques he or she would use in a jury trial. Agency members differ from a jury, however, in that they usually have expertise in the professional subject matter of the hearing and have a special commitment to their profession. Attorneys must thus consider this factor when presenting the case. For further discussion of the specific powers exercised by the agency itself in an administrative hearing, see Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & PowersEvidenceTestimonyPresentation of Evidence

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Hearing Procedures

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.12

§ 473F.12 Public Hearings

[1] APA Provisions

The APA's Administrative Adjudication Bill of Rights (Gov. Code §§ 11425.10-11425.60) applies to agency hearings conducted under the APA's formal hearings formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) [see Gov. Code §§ 11410.50, 11501]. This bill of rights specifies the minimum due process and public interest requirements that must be satisfied [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 154 (1995)].

One of the procedural requirements is a public hearing, specifically that the hearing shall be open to public observation [Gov. Code §§ 11425.10(3), 11425.20(a)]. However, the presiding officer has express authority to order closure of a hearing or make other protective orders to the extent necessary or proper for any of the following purposes [Gov. Code § 11425.20(a)]:

- To satisfy the United States Constitution, the California Constitution, federal or state statute, or other law, including but not limited to laws protecting privileged, confidential, or other protected information [Gov. Code § 11425.20(a)(1)]. This exception includes statutory protection of trade secrets and other confidential information or privileged information under such statutes as, for example, Evid. Code§§ 1060-1063, Fin. Code §§ 1939, and 18496 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 156 (1995)].

- To ensure a fair hearing in the circumstances of the particular case [Gov. Code § 11425.20(a)(2)].

- To conduct the hearing, including the manner of examining witnesses, in a way that is appropriate to protect a minor witness or a witness with a developmental disability, as defined in Welf. & Inst. Code § 4512, from intimidation or other harm, taking into account the rights of all persons [Gov. Code § 11425.20(a)(3)]. This exception codifies part of the decision of Seering v. Department of Social Services (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 298, 239 Cal. Rptr. 422 . The rights of persons taken into account includes the rights of the parties to observe the proceedings in an appropriate manner [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 156 (1995)].

Public hearing rights are also provided to police officers charged with misconduct under the Police Officers Bill of Rights statute [Gov. Code § 3304] because the police officers have an interest in receiving vindication, and the county has provided no reason to justify a closed hearing [Caloca v. County of San Diego (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 433, 445-447, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 3] .

When a hearing is conducted by telephone, television, or other electronic means [see Gov. Code § 11512(d) (with consent of all parties, hearing proceedings may be reported electronically)], the public hearing procedural requirements are satisfied if members of the public have an opportunity to do both of the following [Gov. Code § 11425.20(b)]:

- At reasonable times, hear or inspect the agency's record, and inspect any transcript obtained by the agency [Gov. Code § 11425.20(b)(1)].

- Be physically present at the place where the presiding officer is conducting the hearing [Gov. Code § 11425.20(b)(2)].

The right of the public to be present where a hearing is being conducted telephonically does not include the right to participate, and the right of the public to inspect the record does not impose a duty on the agency to provide a copy independent of the California Public Records Act (Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 156 (1995); for discussion of the Public Records Act, see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act].

Presiding officers have authority to conduct all or part of a hearing by telephone, television, or other electronic means (such as a conference telephone call) if each participant in the hearing has an opportunity to participate in and to hear the entire proceeding while it is taking place and to observe exhibits [Gov. Code § 11440.30(a); 25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 179 (1995)]. The presiding officer also has the authority to conduct the hearing in the physical presence of all participants [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 179 (1995)]. If any party objects, the presiding officer may not conduct all or part of a hearing by telephone, television, or other electronic means [Gov. Code § 11440.30(b)].

[2] Relationship to Open Meetings Acts

Neither the Bagley-Keene Open Meeting Act (Gov. Code § 11120 et seq.; governing state bodies) nor the Ralph M. Brown Act (Gov. Code § 54950 et seq.; governing local agencies), which provide for open agency meetings, have been applied to administrative hearings. It is unlikely that they could be applied, because administrative hearings are neither meetings of a state or legislative body, nor legislative hearings [see Gov. Code §§ 11123 (state body meetings must be open), 54953 (meetings of local agency legislative body must be open)]. They are judicial-like adjudicatory hearings.

Nevertheless, the practice of holding open administrative hearings is consistent with California's public policy of open meetings as expressed in those acts [see Gov. Code §§ 11120, 54950 (declarations of legislative intent that people of California remain informed regarding acts of public agencies)]. Furthermore, some rules applicable to administrative hearings contain provisions similar to these acts. For example, non-APA hearing rules may provide for closed hearings in employee discipline cases unless the employee requests a public hearing. Similarly, in APA hearings conducted by the agency itself [see Gov. Code § 11512(a)], the ALJ presiding at the hearing generally has the board, panel, or commission hearing the case go into closed session to decide the case. Both open meeting acts provide for closed sessions in employee matters [Gov. Code §§ 11126(a), 54957; see Titus v. Civil Service Com. (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 357, 363, 181 Cal. Rptr. 699 (local agency held closed session to consider dismissal of sheriff's department employee); Cooper v. Board of Medical Examiners (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 931, 948-949, 123 Cal. Rptr. 563 (state agency held closed session to consider revocation of psychologist's license to practice)].

The California Law Revision Commission Comments relating to Gov. Code § 11425.20 notes that the provisions of this section supplement the Bagley-Keene Open Meetings Act. Closure of a hearing should be done only to the extent necessary under this section, taking into account the substantial public interest in open proceedings. Under the open meeting law deliberations on a decision to be reached based on evidence introduced in an adjudicative proceeding may be made in a closed session [Gov. Code § 11126(d)]. Also, under the open meeting law, a settlement proposal may be considered by the agency in closed session if it sustains the substantial burden of showing the prejudice to be suffered from conducting an open meeting, citing Gov. Code § 11126(d), (q) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 156 (1995)].

Finally, the public hearing requirements do not apply to a prehearing conference, settlement conference, or proceedings for alternative dispute resolution other than binding arbitration [Gov. Code § 11425.20(c); for discussion of prehearing and settlement conferences and proceedings for alternative dispute resolution, see respectively Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications , and Ch. 473H, Alternative Procedures for Agency Decisions].

For detailed discussion of the Bagley-Keene Open Meeting Act and Ralph M. Brown Act, relating to open agency meetings, see Ch. 470B, Public Agency Licensing .

[3] Exclusion of Witnesses

The APA does not provide for the exclusion of witnesses. In practice, however, witnesses are often excluded from administrative hearings so that they cannot hear other witnesses' testimony, in civil actions [see Evid. Code § 777 (witnesses may be excluded from courtroom when other witnesses are testifying)].

Any request or motion to exclude witnesses should be made before any testimony is heard. The ALJ has the discretion to refuse the request, but usually grants it. The ALJ may first ask the requesting counsel why the witnesses should be excluded, however, particularly if it appears the request is made out of habit. While opposing counsel can certainly request that the exclusion be mutual, the judge is likely to exclude all witnesses even if a mutual request is not made [see Evid. Code § 777(a) (court may exclude any witness not under examination); People v. Guy (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 714, 719, 13 Cal. Rptr. 17 (exclusion of witnesses in criminal trial)].

[4] Exclusion of Parties

Parties usually cannot be excluded from hearings [see, e.g., Evid. Code § 777(b) (party to an action cannot be excluded from court trial)]. A party in a civil proceeding has a due process right, under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution, to cross-examine and confront witnesses [In re Mary S. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 414, 419, 230 Cal. Rptr. 726 ; see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies (discussing due process as it applies in agency proceedings)].

In administrative proceedings, this right is often afforded by statute; the APA expressly grants parties the right to cross-examine and confront adversary witnesses [Gov. Code § 11513(b); see § 473F.15[4], [6]]. However, a licensee incarcerated in another state but who is represented by counsel does not have an absolute right to be present at an administrative hearing at which disciplinary charges against him will be adjudicated [Arnett v. Office of Admin. Hearings (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 332, 338, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 774] .

Different rules apply to cases involving possible minor victims of a party, in which the minor may feel unable to testify freely in the presence of that party [see Gov. Code § 11425.20(a)(3) (authority of presiding officer to close hearing or make other protective orders when witness is a minor), and discussion in [1], above]. In administrative hearings, like other criminal and civil proceedings, the right to cross-examine and confront a minor witness can be adequately protected through the use of closed-circuit television, without having the party physically present in the room where the minor is testifying [Seering v. Department of Social Services (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 298, 304-305, 239 Cal. Rptr. 422 (in hearing involving revocation of day care license based on alleged child molestation, licensee was excluded from hearing during child's testimony)]. In an appropriate case, the minor witness could probably give the testimony outside the hearing room [see Penal Code § 1347 (in criminal sexual abuse cases, minor's testimony may be taken outside courtroom and transmitted via closed-circuit television)]. However, this arrangement would not allow the judge much control over (or observation of) the minor witness during testimony [see Gov. Code § 11425.20(a)(3) (authority of presiding officer to close hearing or make other protective orders when witness is a minor), and discussion in [1], above].

[5] Office of Administrative Hearings Regulations Governing Hearing Procedures

The Office of Administrative Hearings adopted regulations [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1440 (1997)] to govern hearing procedures in hearings conducted before OAH administrative law judges [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1000 (1998)]. The regulations cover the subjects of general APA hearing procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1046 (1998)], special hearing procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1100-1148 (1997)], alternative dispute resolution procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1200-1292 (1999)], arbitration procedures for state contract act contract claims [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1300-1393 (1997)], and protest arbitration procedures 1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1440 (1998)]. The basic purpose [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1000 (1998)], definitions [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1002 (1998)], and principles of interpretation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1004 (1998)], are set forth in specific regulations. The regulations that are applicable to Ch. 473F Agency Adjudication Hearings, include the following: conduct of hearing by telephone, television or other electronic means [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1030 (1998)]; interpreters and accommodations [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1032 (1998)]; conduct of proceedings and sealing the record [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1036 (1998)]; and request for expenses after default [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1044 (1998)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityPrivilegeAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & PowersAdministrative LawGovernmental InformationPublic MeetingsSunshine LegislationEvidenceTestimonyPresentation of Evidence

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Hearing Procedures

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.13

§ 473F.13 English Language and Language Assistance

[1] When APA Requirements Apply

Under the APA, administrative hearings and medical examinations conducted for the purpose of determining compensation or monetary awards, are conducted in the English language [Gov. Code § 11435.20(a)]. If a party or the party's witness does not proficiently speak or understand English and requests language assistance before the commencement of the hearing or medical examination, and the agency must comply with language assistance requirements of the APA, then the party or witness will be provided with an interpreter by the agency [Gov. Code § 11435.20(b); see Gov. Code §§ 11435.05-11435.65 (language assistance legal requirements)].

Language assistance in administrative hearings is part of the APA's Administrative Adjudication Bill of Rights (Gov. Code §§ 11425.10-11425.60) [see further discussion in Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication]. Language assistance must be made available as required by Gov. Code §§ 11435.05-11435.65 by state agencies described in Gov. Code § 11018 (state agencies that conduct administrative hearings but are not subject to Chapter 5, the APA's formal hearing provisions; Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) and Gov. Code § 11435.15 (listed state agencies) [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(9)]. The listed state agencies in Gov. Code § 11435.15 include the following agencies [Gov. Code § 11435.15(a)]:

- Agricultural Labor Relations Board.
- Department of Alcohol and Drug Abuse.
- State Athletic Commission.
- California Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board.
- Board of Prison Terms.
- State Board of Barbering and Cosmetology.

- State Department of Developmental Services.
- Public Employment Relations Board.
- Franchise Tax Board.
- State Department of Health Services.
- Department of Housing and Community Development.
- Department of Industrial Relations.
- State Department of Mental Health.
- Department of Motor Vehicles.
- Notary Public Section, Office of Secretary of State.
- Public Utilities Commission.
- Office of Statewide Health Planning and Development.
- State Department of Social Services.
- Worker's Compensation Appeals Board.
- Department of the Youth Authority.
- Youthful Offender Parole Board.
- Department of Insurance.
- State Personnel Board.
- California Board of Podiatric Medicine.
- Board of Psychology.

These listed agencies must comply with language assistance requirements notwithstanding other provisions in Chapter 4.5, the general administrative adjudication provisions of the APA (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.), which include the language assistance requirements, that provide that the chapter's provisions do not apply to some or all of an agency's adjudicative proceedings [Gov. Code § 11435.15(d)].

The language assistance article's requirements are limited to adjudicative proceedings in which an evidentiary hearing for determination of facts is required for formulation and issuance of a decision by federal or state constitutional provisions or by federal or state statute [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 172 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11410.10]. However, agencies that are not listed may chose to adopt language assistance procedures, provided that interpreter selection is consistent with the requirements of Gov. Code § 11435.30 [Gov. Code § 11435.15(b)]. Agencies may also provide interpreters for nonadjudicative proceedings, such as informal fact finding and informal investigatory hearings [

Gov. Code § 11435.15(c)].

[2] Language Assistance Requirements

Language assistance is defined to mean oral interpretation or written translation into English of a language other than English or of English into another language for a party or witness who cannot speak or understand English or who can do so only with difficulty [Gov. Code § 11435.05]. However, interpretation for deaf or hard of hearing parties or witnesses in adjudicative proceedings is governed by Evid. Code § 754 [Gov. Code § 11435.10]. The primary language assistance requirement is that the agency will provide a party or witness with an interpreter when the party or witness is not proficient in the English language [Gov. Code § 11435.20(b)]. Agencies must advise parties of interpreter rights when the agency advises that same party of the hearing date or medical examination. Agencies should also encourage parties that are in need of an interpreter to give timely notice to the agency conducting the hearing or medical examination so that appropriate arrangements can be made [Gov. Code § 11435.60]. Interpreters must normally be certified [Gov. Code § 11435.55], must not have had any involvement in the issues of the case prior to the hearing [Gov. Code § 11435.65(b)], and are subject to confidentiality rules of the agency, if any, that apply to the adjudicative proceeding [Gov. Code § 11435.65(a)].

[3] Interpreter Requirements

Hearing interpreters must be certified under Gov. Code § 11435.30 [Gov. Code § 11435.55(a)]. However, if a certified interpreter can not be present at the hearing, the hearing agency has discretionary authority to provisionally qualify and use another interpreter [Gov. Code § 11435.55(a)]. Medical examination interpreters must be certified under Gov. Code § 11435.35 [Gov. Code § 11435.55(b)]. However, if a certified interpreter can not be present at the medical examination, the physician provisionally may use another interpreter if that fact is noted in the record of the medical evaluation [Gov. Code § 11435.55(b)]. The State Personnel Board is required to designate the languages for which certification of administrative hearing interpreters and medical examination interpreters shall be established [Gov. Code § 11435.40(a); see Gov. Code §§ 11435.30, 11435.35]. The languages designated shall include, but not be limited to, Spanish, Tagalog, Arabic, Cantonese, Japanese, Korean, Portuguese, and Vietnamese, until the State Personnel Board finds that there is an insufficient need for interpreting assistance in these languages [Gov. Code § 11435.40(a)]. Language designations are to be based on four criteria [Gov. Code § 11435.40(b)]:

- The language needs of non-English speaking persons appearing before the administrative agencies, as determined by consultation with the agencies [Gov. Code § 11435.40(b)(1)].
- The cost of developing a language examination [Gov. Code § 11435.40(b)(2)].
- The availability of experts needed to develop a language examination [Gov. Code § 11435.40(b)(3)].
- Other information the State Personnel Board deems relevant [Gov. Code § 11435.40(b)(4)].

The State Personnel Board can charge fees for application to take interpreter examinations, and for annual renewal of certification [Gov. Code § 11435.45]. The State personnel Board has the responsibility to establish, maintain, and annually update lists of certified administrative hearing and medical examination interpreters that the Board determines meet minimum standards in interpreting skills and linguistic abilities in languages designated by the Board [Gov. Code § 11435.40; see Gov. Code §§ 11435.30(a), 11435.35(a)].

Listed certified administrative hearing interpreters may be examined by each employing agency to determine the interpreter's knowledge of the employing agency's technical program terminology and procedures [Gov. Code § 11435.30(a)]. Court interpreters certified under Gov. Code § 68562, and interpreters listed on the Board's recommended list of court and administrative hearing interpreters prior to July 1, 1993, are deemed certified as administrative hearing interpreters [Gov. Code § 11435.30(b)]. Court interpreters certified under Gov. Code § 68562, and certified administrative hearing interpreters, are deemed certified as medical examination interpreters [Gov. Code § 11435.35(b)].

Under three circumstances, the Board can remove persons form the certified interpreters lists [Gov. Code § 11435.50]:

- The person is deceased.
- The person notifies the Board that the person is unavailable for work.
- The person does not pay a required annual renewal fee.

Gov. Code § 11435.60 requires an applicable agency, like DMV, to give notice of the right to an interpreter at the same time as giving notice of administrative hearing dates. A Spanish speaking motorist whose driver's license was suspended for refusing to take a blood alcohol test challenged the suspension because DMV failed to notify him of the right to have an interpreter at the hearing at the same time that DMV notified the driver when the hearing was scheduled to occur. Failure to provide simultaneous notice of hearing date and interpreter rights violates Gov. Code § 11435.60, but this was harmless error because the driver was notified of interpreter rights when he was provided the notice of suspension of his license by the arresting officer, and driver failed to show any prejudice from the lack of an interpreter at the DMV hearing [Leal v. Gourley (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 963, 968-970, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220] . DMV is only required by statute [Gov. Code § 11435.60] to provide the notice of the right to an interpreter in English, not other languages [Leal v. Gourley (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 963, 970-971, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220] .

[4] Costs of Interpreters

Interpreter costs are paid as determined by the presiding officer at the hearing. The agency that has jurisdiction over the matter will pay interpreter costs if the presiding officer orders the agency to pay the costs. Otherwise, the party requesting the interpreter will pay interpreter costs [Gov. Code § 11435.25(a)]. The presiding officer's decision to direct payment shall be based upon an equitable consideration of all the circumstances in each case, such as the ability of the party in need of the interpreter to pay [Gov. Code § 11435.25(b)].

However, in hearings before the Worker's Compensation Appeals Board or the Division of Worker's Compensation, relating to worker's compensation claims, the payment of the costs of providing an interpreter shall be governed by the rules and regulations of the WCAB, or the Administrative Director of the DWC, as appropriate [Gov. Code § 11435.25(c)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewEvidenceCompetencyInterpretersWorkers' Compensation & SSDIAdministrative ProceedingsHearings & Review

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Hearing Procedures

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.14

§ 473F.14 Subpoenas

[1] APA Procedures

[a] Scope of Application

Gov. Code §§ 11450.05-11450.50 govern subpoena practice in administrative adjudication. They apply to adjudicative proceedings, as defined by Gov. Code § 11405.20, which are required to be conducted under Chapter 5, the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) [Gov. Code § 11450.05(a); see Gov. Code § 11501 for the scope of application of Chapter 5, and discussion in Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication, § 473.15].

Agencies that are not subject to the formal hearing provisions of the APA are permitted to use the subpoena procedures under Gov. Code § 11450.05 et seq. When they are used, all the provisions of Gov. Code §§ 11450.05-11450.50 apply to the agency adopting them, including but not limited to issuing a subpoena requested by a party or an attorney or record for a party under Gov. Code § 11450.20 [Gov. Code § 11450.05(b)].

[b] Issuance

Under Gov. Code §§ 11450.05-11450.50, subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum can be issued for attendance at a hearing and for production of documents at any reasonable time and place or at a hearing [Gov. Code § 11450.10(a)].

Alternatively, a custodian of documents that is the subject of a subpoena duces tecum may satisfy the subpoena by delivery of the documents or a copy of the documents, or by making the documents available for inspection or copying, together with an affidavit that satisfies Evidence Code § 1561 [Gov. Code § 11450.10(b)]. This latter procedure is similar to the practice in civil actions under Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.010 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 189 (1995); for detailed discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.010, see Ch. 195, Discovery: Inspection of Tangible Evidence].

If a custodian does not comply with the subpoena, the subpoena can be enforced, and the custodian can be compelled to appear and produce the documents under the APA provisions for the enforcement of orders and imposition of sanctions

(Gov. Code § 11455.10 et seq.) [Gov. Code § 11455.10(e); 25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 189 (1995)].

[c] Issuer

Subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum can be issued by the agency or the presiding officer at the request of a party, or by the attorney of record for a party, in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985-1985.4 [Gov. Code § 11450.20(a)]. This provision incorporates privacy protections from civil practice [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm Reports 55, 190 (1995)]. The primary privacy provisions are contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3, which protects and defines personal records of consumers and provides for notice to consumers whose personal records are being subpoenaed. Similar provisions, in Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.6, protect employment records.

Attorneys of record for a party can issue subpoenas, as well as the agency and presiding officer. This is an expansion of subpoena issuers, as compared to APA provision in effect prior to July 1, 1997 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 190 (1995)].

Furthermore, a subpoena duces tecum can not be issued unless an affidavit is completed satisfying the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1985 (affidavit showing good cause for production of materials described and requested in subpoena duces tecum) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 190 (1995)].

When the subpoena provisions do not address a particular procedural issue relating to subpoenas, the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985-1985.4 may be looked to for analogous procedures [see 25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 190 (1995); see also Sehlmeyer v. Department of General Services (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1072, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 840] . For discussion and forms relating to subpoenas in civil actions generally, see Ch. 535, Subpoena .

[d] Service

Subpoenas may be served throughout California, and must be served in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1987 (personal service of subpoena on witness) and 1988 (personal service of subpoena by sheriff on concealed witness) [Gov. Code § 11450.20(b)]. Alternatively, subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum can be delivered by certified mail return receipt requested or by messenger [Gov. Code § 11450.20(b)]. Service by messenger is completed when the witness acknowledges receipt of the subpoena to the sender, by telephone, by mail, or in person, and identifies himself or herself either by reference to date of birth and driver's license number or Department of Motor Vehicles identification number, or the sender may verify receipt of the subpoena by obtaining other identifying information from the recipient. The sender is required to make a written notation of the acknowledgment. A subpoena that is properly issued and acknowledged consistent with these requirements is as enforceable as a subpoena that is personally served [Gov. Code § 11450.20(b)]. Witnesses who are residents of the State of California at the time of service of the subpoena are required to attend the hearing to which they have been subpoenaed, but non-residents are not required to attend [Gov. Code § 11450.20(c)].

[e] Enforcement

A witness who fails to comply with a subpena that has been properly issued and acknowledged can be punished for failure to comply with the subpoena as a contempt, and the subpoena can state these consequences [Gov. Code § 11450.20(b)]. Enforcement of subpoenas is authorized under Gov. Code §§ 11455.10-11455.20 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 190 (1995)]. These provisions supplant the provisions of former Gov. Code. Code § 11525 [see Parris v. Zolin (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 839, 843, 50 Cal. Rptr 2d 109, 911 P. 2d 9 (construing enforcement language of former Gov. Code. Code § 11525 as requiring agency to transmit certification of facts to enforcing court for court to have jurisdiction to begin contempt proceedings)].

Persons who fail or refuse to comply with a subpoena, without substantial justification, are subject to the contempt sanction [Gov. Code § 11455.10(e); see § 473F.15[16] (enforcement of orders and sanctions)].

A party requesting a continuance based upon the failure of a witness to appear at the time and place required for the appearance or testimony pursuant to the subpoena must prove that the party has complied with these requirements. The continuance shall only be granted for a period of time that would allow personal service of the subpoena and in no event longer than that allowed by law [Gov. Code § 11450.20(b)].

[f] Objections and Protective Orders

Persons who are served with subpoenas or subpoenas duces tecum may object to the terms of the subpoena by a motion for a protective order, including a motion to quash [Gov. Code § 11450.30(a)]. The objection shall be resolved by the presiding officer on terms and conditions that the presiding officer declares. The presiding officer may make another order that is appropriate to protect the parties or the witness from unreasonable or oppressive demands, including violations of the right to privacy [Gov. Code § 11450.30(b)].

A subpoena or subpoena duces tecum that is issued by the agency on its own motion may be quashed by the agency [Gov. Code § 11450.30(c)]. This statute addresses matters not previously covered by statute but covered by regulation in some agencies [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 190 (1995); see, e.g., 20 Cal. Code Reg. § 61 (Public Utilities Commission); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985-1987.3 and Ch. 535, Subpoena (subpoenas in civil actions generally)].

[g] Witnesses, Mileage, and Fees

Witnesses appearing pursuant to a subpoena or a subpoena duces tecum, who are not parties to the proceeding, are entitled to receive the same mileage and fees allowed by law to a witness in a civil case [Gov. Code § 11450.40(a), (b)]. Payment of the fees must be made by the party at whose request the witness was compelled by subpoena to attend [Gov. Code § 11450.40]. Officer or employees of the state or political subdivisions of the state are not entitled to receive fees under this statute [Gov. Code § 11450.40(b)]. Mileage and fees for witnesses in civil cases are determined by Gov. Code §§ 68092.5-68093. Witness fees for public officers and employees are governed by Gov. Code §§ 68096.1-68097.10 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 191 (1995)].

[h] Written Notice

As an alternative to service of a subpoena when a party witness or person for whose benefit a proceeding is prosecuted or defended is sought to be produced, a written notice can be served on the attorney for the party or person requiring the witness to attend, with the time and place of the hearing specified. Service of the written notice to attend must be made in the manner and is subject to the conditions provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1987 (service of written notice to attend in a civil action) [Gov. Code § 11450.50(a); see Ch. 535, Subpoena , for further discussion of these requirements in civil actions].

[2] Non-APA Procedures

Many statutes and ordinances governing specific agencies provide for the issuance of subpoenas in non-APA administrative hearings and other proceedings. The procedure for their issuance and use depends on the statutory authority and practice of the agency issuing them. Non-APA "state departments" have express statutory authority to issue subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents [Gov. Code § 11181(e)]. The executive and administrative work of state government is divided into "departments as provided by law" [Gov. Code § 11150]. These departments are discussed, but not defined, in Gov. Code §§ 11150-11201. There are about 30 officially designated departments and about 30 more de facto departments, as discussed in more detail in Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law .

School boards have the authority to issue subpoenas to compel attendance of witnesses at disciplinary hearings conducted by the school board under the provisions of Educ. Code § 48918(i)(1). That authority is discretionary, not mandatory, and a school board's decision to not issue subpoenas is reviewed for abuse of discretion [Woodbury v. Brown-Dempsey (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 421, 438-439, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 124 (no abuse of discretion found in school board's denial of subpoenas for witnesses in disciplinary hearing because there was no showing that witnesses for whom subpoenas were sought had any relevant information to give relating to the factual issues in the hearing)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasEducation LawStudentsDisciplinary ProceedingsWitnessesLabor & Employment LawEmployee PrivacyDisclosure of Employee InformationGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Hearing Procedures

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.15

§ 473F.15 Conduct of the Hearing

[1] Opening Statements

[a] When Opening Statements Are Used

In contrast to civil court trials [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 607(1) (jury trials), 631.7 (nonjury trials)], attorneys for the parties do not generally make opening statements in administrative hearings. Opening statements are primarily made when a board, panel, or commission is hearing the case, rather than an ALJ sitting alone, or when a case is factually complex [see Gov. Code § 11512(a) and discussion in § 473F.11]. Sometimes the respondent's opening statement is reserved until the beginning of the respondent's case-in-chief. For a general discussion of opening statements in civil actions, see Ch. 551, Trial .

[b] Guidelines for Use

When an opening statement is made, the following general guidelines should be followed:

- Use the statement to present the theory of the case and facts that you intend to prove.
- Use the statement to tell a story or preview testimony, but not to present argument.
- Make the statement clear, concise, and positive in tone.
- Do not overstate evidence.
- If appropriate, use the statement to volunteer weaknesses without unduly emphasizing them.

[2] Hearing Briefs

A hearing brief is also appropriate in a complex case. The brief should be served on the judge and other parties as early as possible. There is no particular form for a hearing brief, but it should be short and cover issues that will arise during the hearing, such as evidentiary problems, burden of proof, or order of proof. The brief should also contain a statement of the case and any special law the judge should be aware of before and during the hearing.

[3] Oaths and Affirmations

Testimony taken from witnesses in administrative hearings must have the same threshold guarantee of truthfulness as testimony taken in a court [Marlow v. Orange County Human Services Agency (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 290, 293, 167 Cal. Rptr. 776] . Testimony not given under oath may raise due process issues [see Broussard v. Regents of University of California (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 636, 184 Cal. Rptr. 460 ; see also Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions On Public Agencies (discussing due process requirements as they apply to agency proceedings)].

The APA expressly requires oral evidence to be given under oath or affirmation [Gov. Code § 11513(a)]. If a witness refuses to take an oath or affirmation after being ordered to do so by the ALJ, that fact can be certified to the superior court for an order to show cause why the witness should not be held in contempt [Gov. Code §§ 11455.10(b), 11455.20(a), and discussion in § 473F.15[16] (enforcement of orders and sanctions)].

Oaths or affirmations are usually administered by the ALJ or hearing reporter, but any agency, agency member, secretary of an agency, hearing reporter, or ALJ has the power to administer oaths and affirmations [Gov. Code § 11528]. Because the APA does not prescribe the specific form of oath or affirmation to be used in an administrative hearing, the oath or affirmation used in civil actions and proceedings should be sufficient [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2094, and Ch. 392, Oath and Affirmation].

[4] Direct Examination

[a] Nature and Purpose

Direct examination of witnesses is fundamental to trial and administrative hearing practice; virtually all administrative hearings include direct examination. The APA expressly provides for the right to examine witnesses in hearings conducted under Chapter 5 (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), the APA's formal hearing provisions [Gov. Code § 11513(b)]. Furthermore, the right to present and rebut evidence, which includes the right to direct examination of witnesses, is part of the APA's Administrative Adjudication Bill of Rights, which applies to all state agency hearings, whether or not the agency is required to follow the APA formal hearings provisions, so long as the agency adjudication is one in which an evidentiary hearing is required by federal or state constitutional provisions or by federal or state statutes [Gov. Code §§ 11410.10, 11410.20].

Under the administrative adjudication bill of rights, the agency is required to give the person to which the agency action is directed notice and an opportunity to be heard, including the opportunity to present and rebut evidence [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(1)]. Due process may also require direct examination of witnesses [see Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 (due process requirements applicable when New York welfare authorities terminated federal aid without notice or hearing); but see Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 340, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18 (due process does not require evidentiary hearing prior to initial termination of social security disability benefit payments)].

For a complete discussion of procedural due process requirements applicable to adjudicatory hearings, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies . For further discussion of the applicability of the APA administrative adjudication provisions under Chapter 4.5 (general, including the Administrative Bill of Rights) and Chapter 5 (formal hearing), see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication, § 473.15.

[b] Guidelines for Direct Examination of Witnesses

Direct examination should clearly, logically, and convincingly present the facts. This objective may be ensured by complying with the following procedures:

- Properly prepare the witness before he or she is called, so the witness knows what questions are going to be asked and is prepared to answer them.

- Ensure that the witness is able to testify from memory without frequent reference to investigative reports and other documents [see [c], below (refreshing a witness's recollection)]. It is important to control the use of documents carefully, and encourage witnesses not to bring documents to the witness stand; the witness, rather than the documents, should be the focus of attention.

- Organize the direct examination by chronology or some other logical order. Set up the background and scene before eliciting the action.

- Keep direct examination questions short and simple:

  - Ask only questions regarding "who, what, where, when, how, or why."

  - Ask open-ended questions, such as "What happened next?"

  - Use common words; avoid "police talk" and other "insider jargon" that could confuse the witness or reporter, and antagonize the opposing counsel and judge.

  - Listen to the witness's answer and appear interested in his or her answer.

For a discussion of direct examination (see Evid. Code §§ 760-778) in trial court proceedings in civil actions, see Ch. 551, Trial .

[c] Guidelines for Refreshing Witness's Recollection

With proper preparation, a witness's present recollection will rarely have to be refreshed. When necessary, however, the following procedures may be used:

- To properly establish a foundation for refreshing recollection, ensure that the witness's memory has really been exhausted by asking the witness directly whether he or she remembers anything else.

- If the witness should remember additional facts, ask the witness whether there is anything that would refresh his or her recollection.

- If the witness identifies a report or other document that would refresh his or her recollection, do the following:

  - Mark it for identification.

  - Show document to opposing counsel and indicate that fact on the record.

  - Give the exhibit to the witness, ask whether he or she recognizes it, and have the witness read it.

  - Ask the witness whether the exhibit has refreshed his or her recollection on the subject.

- Take the exhibit back from the witness.

- Have the witness testify on the basis of the refreshed recollection.

If this procedure does not refresh a witness's recollection, a statement previously made by the witness may be admissible as past recollection recorded, an exception to the hearsay rule [see Evid. Code § 1237; see also discussion in § 473F.30 et seq., regarding evidentiary rules]. For further discussion concerning refreshing a witness's recollection in civil actions generally, see Ch. 551, Trial , and California Trial Guide, Unit 20, § 20.16 (Matthew Bender).

[5] Expert Witnesses

[A] Nature of Experts

Administrative hearings frequently involve expert witnesses. An expert witness has special knowledge, skill, experience, training, or education on the subject of the testimony [Evid. Code § 720]. In court proceedings, an expert's opinion is limited to those subjects that, because they are sufficiently beyond common experience, require an expert's opinion to assist the trier of fact [Evid. Code § 801(a)]. The expert's opinion must be based on matters, perceived by or personally known to the expert, of a type that reasonably may be relied on by an expert in forming the opinion [see Evid. Code § 801(b)]. Expert observation of proposed special education placement for autistic child before due process hearing was required, and it was improper for the superior court to deny an order compelling the school district to allow the expert hired by the parents of the child to observe the proposed placement before the due process hearing [Benjamin G. v. California Special Ed. Hearing Office (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 875, 883-884, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 366] . For further discussion of the rules governing experts in court proceedings in civil actions, see Ch. 551, Trial .

[b] Qualification

If the opposing party does not make a lack-of-qualification objection, a witness may testify as an expert witness without being formally qualified as an expert [see Evid. Code § 720(a) (expertise must be shown when other party objects)]. If that party does object, the qualification question becomes a preliminary fact to be determined by the ALJ [see Evid. Code § 405 (determinations of preliminary fact)]. The determination is within the sound discretion of the judge [Cooper v. Board of Medical Examiners (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 931, 947, 123 Cal. Rptr. 563] .

What attorneys frequently overlook when qualifying an expert is that the qualification must relate to the particular subject about which the expert is asked to express an opinion [Miller v. Los Angeles County Flood Control Dist. (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 689, 700-701, 106 Cal. Rptr. 1, 505 P.2d 193 ; Hyman v. Gordon (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 769, 774, 111 Cal. Rptr. 262] . For this reason, it is often impossible to determine whether a qualification is sufficient until the question for the expert opinion is actually asked. Thus, the time to object is immediately after an opinion question.

The Court of Appeal held that the Medical Board of California deprived a physician of due process of law by conducting a fundamentally unfair physician license revocation hearing when the Board disqualified all of the doctor's experts as to standard of care thereby precluding the doctor from putting on any evidence in his defense to charges that the doctors treatment of several patients was grossly negligent or was an extreme departure from the standard of practice [Sinaiko v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1133, 1137, 1141, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371] . The Court of Appeal also applied the independently judgment test to review the fairness of the administrative hearing as a matter of law [Sinaiko v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1133, 1140-1141, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371] . Finally the Court of Appeal held that this case must be remanded to the Medical Board to consider the evidence presented by the doctor's experts. It was not proper for the reviewing (superior) court to admit the evidence under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e), and then to reweigh the evidence to support the Medical Board's fact findings because this was an unfair proceeding. It is the agency's responsibility to consider the evidence erroneously excluded and to make an informed decision based on that evidence and agency expertise. Thus, a remand to the agency is required [Sinaiko v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1133, 1146-1147, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371] .

The qualification of an expert witness in administrative proceedings is similar to the procedure in courts. No formal tender of the expert witness is made. After questions concerning qualifications are asked, the standard kind of questions to elicit opinion follow. If there is some question about the qualification of the witness to answer an opinion question, a lack-of-qualification objection should be raised immediately after the question is asked. The ALJ will then determine whether the expert is qualified to testify. To help in the determination, the objecting attorney may conduct voir dire; sometimes the judge will ask questions. For further discussion of the qualification of experts, see California Trial Guide, Unit 60, § 60.30 (Matthew Bender).

[6] Cross-Examination

[a] Nature and Purpose

Like direct examination (see [4], above), due process may require the right to cross-examine in administrative hearings [see Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 (due process requirements applicable when New York welfare authorities terminated federal aid without notice or hearing); Jennings v. Jones (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 1083, 1091, 212 Cal. Rptr. 134 (county's refusal to provide caseworker at welfare pre-termination hearing denied respondent due process right of cross-examination); but see Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 340, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18 (due process does not require evidentiary hearing prior to initial termination of social security disability benefit payments)].

The APA expressly provides for the right to examine witnesses in hearings that are subject to Chapter 5, the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) [Gov. Code § 11513(b)]. Furthermore, the right to present and rebut evidence, which includes the right to direct and cross-examination of witnesses, is part of the APA's Administrative Adjudication Bill of Rights, which applies to all state agency hearings, whether or not the agency is required to follow Chapter 5, so long as that agency is required to hold an evidentiary hearing by federal or state constitutional provisions or by federal or state statutes [Gov. Code §§ 11410.10, 11410.20].

Under the administrative adjudication bill of rights, the agency is required to give the person to which the agency action is directed notice and an opportunity to be heard, including the opportunity to present and rebut evidence [Gov. Code § 11425.10(a)(1)]. Furthermore, the formal hearing provisions of the APA expressly provide that each party has the right to cross-examine opposing witnesses [Gov. Code § 11513(b)]. The scope of cross-examination under the formal hearing provisions is not limited to the scope of the direct examination; a witness may be cross-examined on any relevant matter [Gov. Code § 11513(b)]. If the respondent does not testify in his or her own behalf, he or she may be called, typically by the agency, and examined as if under cross-examination [Gov. Code § 11513(b)]. Parties also have the right to impeach witnesses regardless of which party first called the witness to testify [Gov. Code § 11513(b)]. For a discussion of cross-examination principles in civil proceedings, see California Trial Guide, Unit 70 (Matthew Bender).

[b] Guidelines for Cross-Examination of Witnesses

The following guidelines are intended to help an attorney avoid the most common mistakes made on cross-examination in an administrative hearing:

- Cross-examine any witness that will help your client's case more than harm it; but never cross-examine a witness whose testimony can further harm your client's case and cannot help it.

- Attempt to obtain favorable testimony by getting the witness to agree to facts that favor your client's case and support your client's theory.

- Attempt to discredit the witness's testimony by asking questions that will show bias, prejudice, contradiction, and other factors that make the witness less believable.

- In order to both obtain favorable testimony and make the witness less believable, get the favorable facts first, while the witness's credibility is still high.

- Never use cross-examination to repeat, and thereby make more clear and compelling, the other side's case. A witness's testimony almost never falls apart during a second telling; instead, it usually makes the other side's case more clear and compelling and helps that side carry its burden of proof. When respondent is not represented, however, counsel for the agency may want to ask some questions of the respondent to assure fairness and to make a more complete record [see Gonzalez v. Freeman (D.C. Cir. 1964) 334 F.2d 570, 578-579, 118 U.S. App. D.C. 180 (governmental agency has an obligation to be fair)].

- Control the witness with precise leading questions:

  - Ask the witness to answer "yes" or "no" whenever possible.

  - Avoid open-ended questions that begin with "how" or "why."

- Never argue with a witness; arguing is unprofessional and is a no-win situation for the attorney, since only the witness is under oath.

[7] Redirect and Recross-Examination

In court trials, a witness who has been examined once cannot be reexamined as to the same matter without discretionary leave of court, but the witness may be reexamined as to any new matter on which he or she has been examined by the other party [Evid. Code § 774]. Redirect and recross-examination of a witness is customarily permitted in administrative hearings.

Unlike direct and cross-examination [see [4], [6], above], there is no express provision in the APA concerning the scope of redirect and recross. ALJ's generally follow the approach used in court trials. They are often very liberal in permitting additional questions, but if questioning becomes extensive, they will warn all counsel and then require that additional questions be within the scope of prior questions [see Ch. 551, Trial , for further discussion of examination of witnesses in civil actions].

[8] Examination by ALJ or Agency Member

ALJs will sometimes ask a witness questions if testimony needs clarification or if information that is important to deciding the case has not been sufficiently covered [see Estate of Dupont (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 276, 289-290, 140 P.2d 866 (judge had power to question various witnesses in probate matter)]. They usually ask questions after the parties are through examining the witness and then allow the parties to ask follow-up questions. If the matter is being heard by the agency directly, agency members will often ask questions. The presiding ALJ or agency practice controls the procedure by which they ask questions [see Gov. Code § 11512(b)]. Neither the ALJ nor agency members should ask questions in such a way as to become an advocate of one of the parties or show partiality or bias [Cooper v. Superior Court (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 291, 301, 10 Cal. Rptr. 842, 359 P.2d 274] . If a party has grounds for objecting to a question asked by the ALJ or agency member, he or she should object. Under the APA, the ALJ will rule on the objection [see Gov. Code § 11512(b)]. Furthermore, ALJ rulings admitting and excluding evidence are reviewed in the same manner and to the same extent as the ALJ's proposed decision in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11512(b)].

[9] Rebuttal Evidence

Rebuttal evidence in administrative proceedings is usually evidence put on by the agency after the respondent and other parties have rested their case-in-chief. The right to present evidence in response to rebuttal evidence is expressly permitted by the APA and is grounded in the due process required in administrative proceedings [Hegglin v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 162, 175, 93 Cal. Rptr. 15, 480 P.2d 967 ; Pence v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 48, 50-51, 45 Cal. Rptr. 12, 403 P.2d 140 ; see Gov. Code §§ 11425.10(a)(1) (APA administrative adjudication bill of rights), and 11513(b) (APA formal hearing provisions)].

It is not always clear, however, what constitutes proper rebuttal. The scope of rebuttal is largely in the discretion of the judge [Diamond Springs Lime Co. v. American River Constructors (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 581, 604, 94 Cal. Rptr. 200 (trial court has discretionary authority over the scope of rebuttal)]. In rebuttal, an ALJ may allow evidence that could have been presented in the case-in-chief [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 607(6) (after parties in court have presented their evidence, they may only offer rebuttal evidence unless court permits them to offer evidence on their original case)].

However, ALJs often will not allow rebuttal evidence that is cumulative or properly part of the case-in-chief [see People v. Carter (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 737, 753, 312 P.2d 665] . For this reason, an attorney should never save evidence from his or her case-in-chief to present in rebuttal, and should only use rebuttal to contradict or clarify new and unexpected evidence presented by the other side.

An ALJ who has a very restricted view of what is proper rebuttal can waste time, since this approach tends to force the parties to put everything into their case-in-chief, even when the evidence may turn out to be unnecessary. If a case is likely to have rebuttal evidence, it is a good idea to discuss with the ALJ his or her approach to that evidence before resting the case-in-chief. For further discussion of rebuttal evidence and the evidentiary rules applicable at an administrative hearing, see § 473F.30 et seq.

[10] Bifurcation

[a] Nature of Bifurcation

Administrative hearings are occasionally bifurcated: the ALJ opens the hearing, receives some evidence, and continues the remainder of the evidence-taking to a time in the future. The ALJ may set that future date at the time of bifurcation or may leave it to be set later. Bifurcation should be contrasted with continuance, which involves continuing an entire hearing at a later date. Bifurcation should also be contrasted with consolidation and severance under Gov. Code § 11507.3, which involves combining or separating matters for hearing. See Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications , for discussion of continuances, consolidation, and severance.

[b] Reasons for Requesting Bifurcation

A party's reasons for moving to bifurcate a hearing include the reasons for granting continuances generally. Counsel should consult the "California Administrative Procedure Act Procedures for Administrative Adjudication, Appendix I, Continuance Policy" (OAH Continuance Policy), a bound pamphlet published biannually by the Office of Administrative Hearings. Copies may be obtained from the OAH, 501 J St., Suite 230, Sacramento, CA 95814. Reasons for bifurcation may be unique to a particular hearing, for example, a party may move to bifurcate a hearing for one of the following reasons:

- To avoid inconveniencing witnesses. In APA hearings and other administrative hearings, the unavailability of a respondent's witness is generally good cause for a continuance [see, e.g., OAH Continuance Policy § III-H]. Thus, when unavailability becomes known only at the time of the hearing, it may support a motion to bifurcate. By bifurcating the hearing rather than continuing it in its entirety, the testimony of witnesses who are present can be taken, and the respondent's case, or just the testimony of the unavailable witness, can be received later.

- To commence the hearing within a statutorily required period by opening the record to receive some documentary evidence or to call a witness to be sworn [see Powers v. Commission on Professional Competence (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 560, 563-564, 204 Cal. Rptr. 185 (to comply with statutory period, ALJ convened hearing within 60 days after request for hearing was filed to swear in witness and then accept request for continuance)].

See Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications , for further discussion relating to the OAH Continuance Policy and continuances generally.

[c] Procedure and Ruling on Motion

By analogy to the procedure for requesting a continuance, a party probably should make a motion to bifurcate a hearing in writing, or orally on the record [see OAH Continuance Policy §§ I-D, III (request for continuance must be written or made orally on the record)]. Bifurcation of a hearing, however, is not favored by most ALJs. First, it often creates future calendar problems. When the case comes up again, the original judge must generally hear it since some evidence has already been received. Second, bifurcation creates a delay in deciding the case. When the case is heard again, the evidence heard at the earlier time has begun to fade from memory, making it more difficult to decide. This is why, in the analogous case of continuances, it is within the sound discretion of the ALJ to grant or deny them [Gov. Code § 11524; OAH Continuance Policy].

For a general discussion of the bifurcation of a court trial in a civil action, see Ch. 425, Pretrial Proceedings .

[11] Depositions

[a] Authority to Order

Under the APA, any party to an administrative proceeding may petition an administrative law judge, or if an administrative law judge has not been appointed, the agency to order the taking of the deposition of an unavailable material witness, residing in or out of the state, for use in the hearing [Gov. Code § 11511; Kenneally v. Medical Board of California (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 489, 502-503, 32 Cal. Rptr.2d 504 (physician was not denied equal protection of the law and Gov. Code § 11511 was not unconstitutional in restricting discovery depositions to witnesses whose testimony is material and who are unable to attend a hearing or cannot be required to attend a hearing)].

Giving the ALJ authority to order depositions eliminates the concern that courts have expressed regarding the constitutionality of an agency combining its accusatory and adjudicatory functions when it orders a deposition [see Blinder, Robinson & Co. v. Tom (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 283, 226 Cal. Rptr. 339 (court of appeal held constitutional the procedure of having the agency order the deposition, when party challenged former Gov. Code § 11511 on grounds that it allows prosecuting attorney to make rulings on relevance of adversary's evidence)].

[b] Contents of Petition

The petition must be verified and must set forth all of the following [Gov. Code § 11511]:

- The nature of the pending proceeding.

- The name and address of the witness.

- A showing of why the witness's testimony is material.
- A showing that the witness is unable or cannot be compelled to attend.
- A request for an order requiring the witness to appear and testify before an officer named in the petition.

Ordering a deposition is not a ministerial act by the agency [Stevenson v. State Bd. of Medical Examiners (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 433, 439, 88 Cal. Rptr. 815] . Thus, the requirements of the Government Code should be strictly observed, in particular the required showings of materiality and inability to attend the hearing. For an example of a petition for an order of deposition, see Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications .

[c] Procedure for Petition and Order Taking Deposition

The petitioner is required to serve notice of hearing and a copy of the petition on the other parties at least 10 days before the hearing [Gov. Code § 11511]. If the witness resides outside California, and the ALJ or the agency has ordered the taking of the testimony by deposition, the agency is required to first obtain a court order for the deposition by filing a petition in the Sacramento Superior Court [Gov. Code § 11511], and the court proceedings will follow Gov. Code § 11189 (petition procedure). A court order is necessary because many states enforce commissions to take depositions only if the commissions issue from a court of another state [see Judicial Council of California, 10th Biennial Report (1944), pp. 18, 19; see also Reimel v. House (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 780, 784, 74 Cal. Rptr. 345 (quoting Judicial Council report)].

[12] Motion for Nonsuit or Dismissal

Motions for nonsuit or dismissal [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 581, 581c], and all other motions in the nature of a demurrer to the evidence made during court trials are generally not appropriate during an administrative hearing. Neither the APA, nor most other statutes and regulations governing non-APA hearings, provide for these motions.

In addition to this lack of authority, the granting of such a motion might be procedurally awkward, because in many administrative proceedings conducted by an ALJ alone, the final decision rests with the agency, following a proposed decision by the ALJ [see Gov. Code §§ 11440.10 (general procedural provisions), and 11517(b) (formal APA hearing)]. Because a dismissal is a final decision, the agency would need to hear the motion, requiring a delay in the ordinary proceedings before the ALJ.

For these reasons, ALJs cannot entertain motions to dismiss an action at the close of an agency's evidence [Kramer v. State Board of Accountancy (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 163, 175, 19 Cal. Rptr. 226 ; Frost v. State Personnel Board (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10, 11 Cal. Rptr. 718] . Under the APA, these motions could also be premature because an agency's case may include evidence from the respondent if he or she does not testify in his or her own behalf [see Gov. Code § 11513(b); O'Mara v. State Bd. of Pharmacy (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 8, 10-11, 54 Cal. Rptr. 862] .

Motions that the ALJ cannot hear during the hearing might, however, be taken under submission with the case. For example, the applicant for a permit or license might move to withdraw the application prior to the submission of the ALJ's proposed decision on it [see, e.g., Miller v. Board of Police Commissioners (1960) 181 Cal. App. 2d 562, 563-564, 5 Cal. Rptr. 272 (although applicants for business permit requested withdrawal of permit after hearing but prior to filing of proposed decision with board, local ordinance provided that withdrawal of application did not deprive board of power to deny permit)]. The ALJ can then determine the motion in the proposed decision submitted to the agency [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(1)]. The agency will then adopt, modify, or reject the proposed decision including the decision on the motion [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2); see Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions , for further discussion].

[13] Argument

[a] Order of Presentation

At the close of evidence and before submission of the case, the parties in administrative hearings often present oral argument. By analogy to cases heard by a trial court, the presiding ALJ may limit the duration of argument [see, e.g., People v. Stout (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 184, 200, 57 Cal. Rptr. 152, 424 P.2d 704 (trial court's imposition of two-hour limit on final argument held to be reasonable exercise of court's discretion)]. Limitations are rarely necessary, however, because the parties usually keep their argument short. Counsel for the agency usually opens and closes the argument. The respondent argues between the opening and closing. However, the parties may waive any argument. If the agency waives opening argument, the respondent argues and the agency makes its closing argument. The agency's closing argument should be limited to rebuttal of the respondent's argument [Kling v. Crown Finance Corp. (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 33, 35, 146 P.2d 54] .

By analogy to cases heard in court, the respondent may then be allowed to reply to the agency's closing argument [see Potapoff v. Mattes (1933) 130 Cal. App. 421, 426, 19 P.2d 1016 (court permitted defendants to reply to plaintiff's closing argument)].

[b] Guidelines for Argument

For an effective argument when arguing the facts and theory of the case, the following guidelines may be helpful:

- Organize the argument by the specific allegations in the pleadings.
- Emphasize the allegations most in dispute.
- Weave the law into the facts and allegations.
- Whenever possible, include a specific recommended disposition of the case. For example, if recommending probation would be appropriate, address the conditions of probation.

[c] Written Argument

Argument may also be written. It is often written in complex factual cases and in cases raising unusual questions of law. ALJs usually grant a request by a party to submit written argument. A time schedule for receiving written argument is then established, and the record will be held open to receive the argument [see [14], below].

[14] Holding Record Open

Occasionally in administrative hearings, a need will arise to hold the record of the hearing open to receive additional evidence at a later time. The evidence may be documentary or testimonial [see Gov. Code § 11513(b) (party has right to introduce exhibits as evidence in hearing)]. Requests to hold the record open should be made during the hearing, and a time for the future submission of the case should be set. If the additional evidence must be rebutted by the other side, the record will also be held open to allow rebuttal.

[15] Decision

Whether the ALJ alone or the agency itself has heard the case, governing statutes generally grant the power of decision to the agency. The ALJ usually prepares the written decision for the agency. Under the APA, if an ALJ has heard the case alone, he or she must prepare a proposed decision in the case within 30 days after the case is submitted [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(1)]. The agency may then adopt, modify, or reject the ALJ's proposed decision [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)].

If the agency itself has heard the case, the agency members decide the case during an executive session, with the ALJ present as an advisor [Gov. Code § 11517(b)(1), (3)]. No member who did not hear the evidence may vote on the decision [Gov. Code § 11517(b)(2); Feist v. Rowe (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 404, 417-419, 83 Cal. Rptr. 465] .

For a complete discussion of agency decisions, see Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions .

[16] Sanctions and Enforcement

[a] Sanctions

The orders of a presiding officer are enforceable through the use of the contempt sanction [Gov. Code § 11455.10] and monetary sanctions [Gov. Code § 11455.30]. The presiding officer can order a party, the party's attorney, or other authorized representative, or both, to pay reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred by another party as a result of bad faith actions or tactics that are frivolous or solely intended to cause unnecessary delay as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 [Gov. Code § 11455.30(a)].

Monetary sanctions can be awarded against a party, including an agency, for bad faith actions or tactics. Bad faith actions or tactics could include failure or refusal to comply with a deposition order, discovery request, subpoena, or other order of the presiding officer in discovery, or moving to compel discovery, frivolously or solely intended to cause delay. A person who requests a hearing without legal grounds would not be subject to sanctions under this statute unless the request was made in bad faith or frivolous or solely intended to cause unnecessary delay [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see Ch. 510, Sanctions , for discussion of sanctions in civil actions]. Orders imposing or denying monetary sanctions are subject to judicial review in the same manner as a decision in the proceeding. Sanctions orders are enforceable in the same manner as a money judgment or by the contempt sanction [Gov. Code § 11455.30(b)].

Contempt sanctions can be imposed against persons in an adjudicative proceeding before an agency, for any of the following [Gov. Code §§ 11455.10, 11405.20, 11405.30, 11405.70]:

- Disobedience of or resistance to a lawful order [Gov. Code § 11455.10(a)].

- Refusal to take the oath or affirmation as a witness or thereafter refusal to be examined [Gov. Code § 11455.10(b)].

- Obstruction or interruption of the due course of the proceeding during a hearing or near the place of the hearing by any of the following [Gov. Code § 11455.10(c); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1209; see Ch. 135, Contempt , for discussion of contempt sanctions in civil actions]:

  - Disorderly, contemptuous, or insolent behavior toward the presiding officer while conducting the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11455.10(c)(1)].

  - Breach of the peace, boisterous conduct, or violent disturbance [Gov. Code § 11455.10(c)(2)].

  - Other unlawful interference with the process or the proceedings of the agency [Gov. Code § 11455.10(c)(3)].

- Violation of the prohibition of ex parte communications under Gov. Code §§ 11430.10-11430.70 [Gov. Code § 11455.10(d); see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , and 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges , for discussion of ex parte communications].

- Failure or refusal, without substantial justification, to comply with a deposition order, discovery request, subpoena, or other order of the presiding officer, or moving, without substantial justification, to compel discovery [Gov. Code § 11455.10(e); see Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications , for discussion of discovery].

[b] Enforcement

Orders imposing or denying monetary sanctions are subject to judicial review in the same manner as a decision in the proceeding. Monetary sanctions orders are enforceable in the same manner as a money judgment or by the contempt sanction [Gov. Code § 11455.30(b); see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments].

The presiding officer or agency head may certify the facts that justify the contempt sanction against a person to the superior court in and for the county where the proceeding is conducted. The court must thereupon issue an order directing the person to appear before the court at a specified time and place, and then and there to show cause why the person should not be punished for contempt. The order and a copy of the certified statement must be served on the person. Upon service of the order and a copy of the certified statement, the court has jurisdiction of the matter [Gov. Code § 11455.20(a)]. The same proceedings can be used, the same penalties imposed, and the person charged may purge the contempt in the same way, as in the case of a person who has committed a contempt in the trial of a civil action in the superior court [Gov. Code § 11455.20(b); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1209-1222 for laws governing contempt proceedings in civil actions; see also Ch. 135, Contempt (contempt proceedings in civil actions)].

[17] Right to Counsel

A party to an administrative proceeding is entitled to be represented by retained counsel when the proceeding is such that the party's interest might be prejudiced if the right to representation by counsel were denied [Steen v. Board of Civil Service Commrs. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 716, 727, 160 P.2d 816 ; Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 540, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525] . Although the right to counsel is not essential to a fair hearing in all types of administrative proceedings [see Perlman v. Shasta Joint Jr. College Dist. Bd. of Trustees (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 873, 879-880, 88 Cal. Rptr. 563 (right to counsel not essential to fair hearing in proceedings for suspension of college student)], in proceedings to revoke or suspend a license or other administrative action of a disciplinary nature the licensee is entitled to have counsel of his or her own choosing [Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 543-544, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525 ; see also Gov. Code § 11509 (form for notice of hearing includes statement of parties' right to be represented by counsel at own expense)]. However, due process does not require that counsel be furnished to a licensee when the licensee personally cannot afford to hire counsel [Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 543, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525 ; see Gov. Code § 11509 (form for notice of hearing includes statement that party is not entitled to appointment of attorney at public expense)]. Further, in administrative proceedings no constitutional requirement exists that the hearing officer or the agency advise a party that he or she is entitled to be represented by counsel, although in proceedings subject to the APA [Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.], there is a statutory requirement that the agency notify all parties before the hearing of their right to be represented by counsel [Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 543-544, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525 ; see Gov. Code § 11509; see also Gov. Code §§ 11500(a) ("agency" defined), 11501(a) (application of Gov. Code § 11500 et seq. to agencies as determined by statutes relating to those agencies); see also Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication]. The availability of the Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination is deemed sufficient protection against the possibility that criminal charges might arise out of the conduct for which disciplinary proceedings are brought [Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 541, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525 ; see In re Groban (1957) 352 U.S. 330, 333, 77 S. Ct. 510, 1 L. Ed. 2d 376 (witnesses compelled to testify before state fire marshal have no constitutional right to counsel); but see Szmaciarz v. State Personnel Bd. (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 904, 917-919, 145 Cal. Rptr. 396 (privilege against self-incrimination unavailable and adverse inferences from refusal to testify may be drawn in administrative hearing on suspension of correctional officer, unless state seeks to subject officer to some criminal liability)].

The general common law rule that corporations must be represented by counsel (licensed attorneys) in litigation before courts of record (other than small claims courts) does not apply to adjudicative proceedings before administrative tribunals, and the Board's decision to affirm the Department's revocation of a corporation's liquor license was not void for lack of jurisdiction because non attorney president of corporation represented corporation in administrative license revocation hearing [Camille v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1094, 1101-1103, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 758] .

The California Court of Appeal upheld the Superior Court's assumption of jurisdiction over the law practice of a former attorney who had resigned from the state bar while disciplinary charges were pending. The State Bar of California had requested the assumption of jurisdiction, authorized by Bus. & Prof. Code § 6180, because the former attorney represented clients in state administrative hearings, including hearings of the Medical Board of California. The court of Appeal concluded that the former attorney was representing clients in state agency hearings, and he was not eligible to practice law. The court of Appeal also held that the Superior Court could not lawfully assume jurisdiction over the former attorney's federal agency practice because state law prohibiting unauthorized practice of law is preempted by federal regulations setting standards for practice by attorneys before federal courts and agencies [Benninghoff v. Superior Court (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 61, 64-65, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 759] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityPrivilegeCivil ProcedureSanctionsContemptCivil ContemptConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessSelf-Incrimination PrivilegeEvidenceCompetencyAffirmations & OathsEvidenceTestimonyExaminationCross-ExaminationScopeEvidenceTestimonyExpertsGeneral OverviewEvidenceTestimonyExpertsQualificationsEvidenceTestimonyRefreshing RecollectionGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Hearing Procedures

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.16

§ 473F.16 Record of the Hearing

[1] Reporting

In virtually all administrative proceedings, a record is kept. Express or implied statutory requirements, or agency practice, determines the requirement and method of recording. Due process may also require the hearing to be recorded [see Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 267, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 (due process requirements applicable when New York welfare authorities terminated federal aid without notice or hearing); Aluisi v. County of Fresno (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 823, 828, 324 P.2d 920 (record of administrative proceeding was inadequate to enable court to determine validity of administrative action)].

The APA requires that agency hearings conducted under Chapter 5, the formal hearing provisions of the APA (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), to be reported by a stenographic reporter [Gov. Code § 11512(d)]. This means recording by any method whereby a literal record is made of what is said, from which an accurate transcription can be made by audio or visual methods [Funke v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 449, 455 , 1 Cal. App. 3d 449, 81 Cal. Rptr. 662 (proceedings reported by stenographer using Stenocord machine comply with statutory requirement)]. With the consent of the parties, however, hearings may be reported electronically [Gov. Code § 11512(d)]. If properly done, electronic reporting can provide a record of about the same quality as that of reporters. Nonetheless, before consenting to electronic reporting, it is important to carefully consider the need for an accurate transcript in the future proceedings [see County of Madera v. Holcomb (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 226, 230-231, 66 Cal. Rptr. 428 (electrical recording device rendered certain portions of record unclear); Aluisi v. County of Fresno (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 823, 824-825, 324 P.2d 920 (because shorthand reporter was unavailable for hearing, electrical device was used that rendered incomplete record of proceedings)].

The Court of Appeal upheld a judgment setting aside the DMV's suspension of a motorist's driver's license after an administrative per se law suspension hearing which was challenged by the motorist in court. The judgment was set aside because the DMV failed to file with the court a complete administrative record of the hearing. The DMV lost a portion of the hearing record because the hearing tape containing the testimony of the motorist and his expert witness was erased. The DMV also refused to pay the cost of reconstructing the missing part of the hearing record, $1,500 for the motorist's attorney and expert witness to appear at a new hearing [Frase v. Gourley (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 762, 764-765, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 432] .

The Frase case decision was distinguished in the decision in Leal v. Gourley (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 963, 970-972, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220 , based on a failure of the driver to request that DMV improve the transcript, or provide assistance in scheduling a new hearing [Leal v. Gourley (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 963, 970-971, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220] .

The Court of Appeal reversed the County of Merced's granting of a conditional use permit, and the county's certifying of a final environmental impact report under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA), for a project approval sought by a mining company. The court held that the county failed to provide an adequate and complete administrative record for judicial review making it difficult for the appellate court to determine whether the county make the necessary findings required by CEQA before issuing the permit [Protect Our Water v. County of Merced (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 362, 372-374, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 726] .

Under the APA Administrative Adjudication Bill of Rights, which applies to all state agency hearings in which an evidentiary hearing is required, by federal or state constitutional provisions, or by federal or state statute (including but not limited to hearing under the APA formal hearing provisions), the agency is required to base its decision on the record of the hearing [Gov. Code §§ 11425.10, 11410.20]. It is difficult to enforce a decision on the record requirement without a transcript of the hearing.

It was reversible error for the superior court to decide an administrative mandamus case and to deny the petition without reviewing the administrative record. In denying the petition before the administrative record had been prepared, the court was unable to weigh the evidence and to decide the sufficiency of the evidence to support the fact findings that provided the basis for the agency decision [Ocheltree v. Gourley (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1013, 1017-1018, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77] .

[2] Transcripts

In hearings governed by Chapter 5, the APA formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), parties may order transcripts from the Office of Administrative Hearings by making a request for a complete or partial record of the proceedings [Gov. Code § 11523]. For administrative hearings that are subject to the administrative adjudication bill of rights, that applies to all state agency hearings, whether or not the agency is required to follow the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), whenever the agency is required to hold an evidentiary hearing by federal or state constitutional provisions, or by federal or state statutes, that agency is required to base its decision on the record of the hearing [Gov. Code §§ 11425.10, 11410.20; see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication , for discussion of the scope of application of these APA provisions].

It is difficult to enforce a decision on the record requirement without a transcript. In those case, as well as in non-APA hearings, parties may obtain transcripts from the agency or from the reporter directly. In some cases, tape recordings may have to be transcribed by the party requesting a transcript [see Darley v. Ward (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 257, 261, 168 Cal. Rptr. 481, 617 P.2d 1113] .

It is important to learn the procedures for reporting and transcribing the hearing being conducted. If the procedures raise concerns about an adequate record, these concerns should be resolved before the hearing begins. In some cases, it may be advisable to hire an additional reporter to come in to record the proceedings to preserve a record and provide a transcript. The cost of such a record might even be recovered if a judicial review is successful [Marlow v. Orange County Human Services Agency (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 290, 294-295, 167 Cal. Rptr. 776 (respondent who hired court reporter for hearing, despite tape recording by agency, was reasonable, and therefore cost of reporting was properly awarded to him)]. If a daily transcript is desired, it is almost always necessary to provide for them personally.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingDue ProcessAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewAdministrative RecordGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of ProtectionGovernmentsCourtsCourt Personnel

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Hearing Procedures

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.17

§ 473F.17 Defaults

[1] APA Proceedings

[a] License Issuance and Renewal Cases

A hearing to determine whether a right, authority, license, or privilege should be granted, issued, or renewed is initiated by filing a statement of issues [Gov. Code § 11504]. The agency may deny issuance in the form of a statement of issues, or it may simply deny issuance and provide the statement if the unsuccessful applicant requests a hearing on the denial [Gov. Code § 11504]. A respondent who has not requested a hearing defaults either by failing to file a notice of defense to the statement within 15 days after service of a statement of issues or by failing to appear at the hearing [Gov. Code §§ 11504, 11504.5, 11520(a); see Gov. Code § 11506(a) (time limit for notice of defense)].

However, notwithstanding the default of the respondent, the agency or the ALJ, before a proposed decision is issued, have discretion to grant a hearing on reasonable notice to the parties. If the agency and the ALJ make conflicting orders under this provision, the agency order takes precedence [Gov. Code § 11520(b)]. Also, the ALJ may order the respondent, or the respondent's attorney or other authorized representative, or both, to pay reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred by another party as a result of the respondent's failure to appear at the hearing [Gov. Code § 11520(b)].

Furthermore, within seven days after service on the respondent of a decision based on the respondent's default, the respondent may serve a written motion requesting that the decision be vacated and stating the grounds relied upon. The agency in its discretion may vacate the decision and grant a hearing on a showing of good cause [Gov. Code § 11520(c)]. Good cause includes, but is not limited to, the following:

- Failure of the person to receive notice served pursuant to Gov. Code § 11505 [Gov. Code § 11520(c)(1)].

- Mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Gov. Code § 11520(c)(2)].

For discussion and forms relating to a statement of issues and other initial agency pleadings, see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication . For discussion and forms relating to default procedures and relief from default in civil actions generally, see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments , and Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders .

Agencies governed by Chapter 5, the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), handle a default in different ways. Some agencies never file a statement of issues unless the applicant requests a hearing [see Gov. Code § 11504 (agency must provide statement upon request for hearing)]. Other agencies will sometimes file a statement of issues without an applicant's request for hearing. When an applicant requests a hearing and the agency files a statement of issues, some agencies will not set the matter for hearing if they do not receive a notice of defense. The agency will write its own default decision [see Gov. Code § 11520(a) (agency may take action when respondent fails to file notice of defense)].

Other agencies will set the matter for hearing, regardless of not receiving a notice of defense, if the proof of the allegations in the case involves testimony in addition to documents. If the agency receives a notice of defense but the respondent does not appear at the hearing, some agencies will take the case off calendar and write their own default decision. Other agencies will withdraw the case only if it is a documentary case and without testimony. In summary, the practices of agencies vary greatly with respect to defaults in statement of issues cases, and often depend on the kind of case. Practices also change within agencies over time. It is thus important to contact the agency to determine its current default practice.

[b] License Discipline Cases

An agency initiates a hearing to determine whether a right, authority, license, or privilege should be revoked, suspended, limited, or conditioned by filing an accusation [Gov. Code § 11503; see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication].

The agency has express authority to treat either the respondent's failure to file a notice of defense within 15 days after service of an accusation or respondent's failure to appear at the hearing, as a default [Gov. Code §§ 11506(c), 11520(a)]. However, notwithstanding the default of the respondent, the agency or the ALJ, before a proposed decision is issued, have discretion to grant a hearing on reasonable notice to the parties. If the agency and the ALJ make conflicting orders under this provision, the agency order takes precedence [Gov. Code § 11520(b)]. Also, the ALJ may order the respondent, or the respondent's attorney or other authorized representative, or both, to pay reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred by another party as a result of the respondent's failure to appear at the hearing [Gov. Code § 11520(b)].

Within seven days after service on the respondent of a decision based on the respondent's default, the respondent may serve a written motion requesting that the decision be vacated and stating the grounds relied upon. The agency in its discretion may vacate the decision and grant a hearing on a showing of good cause [Gov. Code § 11520(c)]. Good cause includes, but is not limited to, the following:

- Failure of the person to receive notice served pursuant to Gov. Code § 11505 [Gov. Code § 11520(c)(1)].

- Mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Gov. Code § 11520(c)(2)].

As in license issuance cases [see [a], above], the proper agency practice for defaults in accusation cases is not completely clear. In accusation cases, the agency has the burden of proof. Thus, hearings are normally held regardless of a respondent's failure to file a notice of defense or appear at the hearing [see Gov. Code § 11520(a)]. Failure to file a timely notice of defense to an accusation is a waiver of the right to a hearing, however, and granting a hearing is then discretionary with the agency [Gov. Code §§ 11506(c), 11520(b)]. When respondent fails to file a notice of defense or fails to appear at the hearing, the agency may act based on the respondent's admissions, affidavits, and "other evidence" [Gov. Code § 11520(a)]. Gov. Code § 11520(a) strongly implies that this "other evidence" is evidence taken in a hearing. It must be relevant evidence [see Carl S. v. Commission for Teacher Preparation & Licensing (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 365, 369, 178 Cal. Rptr. 753 (court held that hearsay evidence was incompetent and therefore insufficient to support commission's finding that respondent was unfit to teach)].

For these reasons, agencies usually have a default hearing in accusation cases regardless of whether a notice of hearing is filed. At the hearing, the agency attorney presents the case very much like a contested case, except that affidavits are more often used [see Gov. Code § 11520(a) (agency may use affidavits as evidence)]. Unsworn multiple hearsay statements are not sufficient [Carl S. v. Commission for Teacher Preparation & Licensing (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 365, 372, 178 Cal. Rptr. 753] .

[c] Mitigation

Under the new act, former Gov. Code. Code § 11520(b), relating to the right of a defaulting respondent to make a showing by way of mitigation, is superseded by the procedures to cure a default under Gov. Code § 11520(b), (c). Under those procedures, as explained in [a], and [b], above, the ALJ or agency have discretion to do the following [Gov. Code § 11520]:

- Grant a hearing notwithstanding respondent's default.
- Vacate a decision and grant a new hearing.

The respondent may make a showing by way of mitigation as a defense in the hearing [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 251 (1995)]. What this means is that if respondent wants to present mitigation defense, he or she has to invoke the procedures to cure a default under Gov. Code § 11520(b), (c).

[d] Reconsideration of Default

When a default decision has been made, by the agency alone or by an ALJ whose decision is adopted by the agency [see Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)], a respondent may still be able to get a hearing on the merits. Under the new act, within seven days after service on the respondent of a decision based on the respondent's default, the respondent may serve a written motion requesting that the decision be vacated and stating the grounds relied upon. The agency in its discretion may vacate the decision and grant a hearing on a showing of good cause [Gov. Code § 11520(c)]. Good cause includes, but is not limited to, the following:

- Failure of the person to receive notice served pursuant to Gov. Code § 11505 [Gov. Code § 11520(c)(1)].
- Mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Gov. Code § 11520(c)(2)].

When a respondent is seeking reconsideration of a default based on failure to receive actual notice of the hearing, respondent must support the claim of lack of actual notice with proof and must show that lack of notice was not due to inexcusable neglect or to respondent avoiding service [Evans v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1994) 21 Cal. App. 4th 958, 974-976, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 460] . The agency may order a reconsideration of all or part of the case, on its own motion or on the petition of any party, within any of the following time limits [Gov. Code § 11521(a)]:

- Thirty days after the delivery or mailing of the decision to respondent.
- The effective date of the decision, if it occurs before that 30-day period elapses.

- The expiration of a stay (which may not be longer than 30 days) granted by the agency to enable the respondent to request a reconsideration.

The APA does not prescribe the form and contents of a petition by the respondent. Because most agencies prefer to have decisions made on the merits, they may grant the petition for reconsideration. Therefore, if a respondent has received a default decision and desires a hearing, it is important to contact the agency immediately and petition for reconsideration, setting forth good reasons for having a further hearing. The agency itself may reconsider the case on all pertinent parts of the record, and any additional evidence and argument permitted, or it may assign the case to an administrative law judge [Gov. Code § 11521(b)].

[2] Non-APA Defaults

In non-APA hearings, when a respondent is given adequate notice and an opportunity to defend, agencies also have the power to proceed in default [Rinaldo v. Board of Medical Exmrs. (1935) 5 Cal. App. 2d 345, 351, 42 P.2d 724 (board revoked doctor's license to practice at hearing which respondent did not attend); McGinn v. Board of Health (1931) 113 Cal. App. 228, 231, 298 P. 118 (board discharged hospital watchman at hearing that respondent did not attend)].

A statute usually provides the authority for default on respondent's failure to file a required response or to appear at a hearing; however, the authority may be implied. Because the procedure for handling default cases varies from agency to agency, uniform practices cannot be assumed; the agency should be contacted in each individual case. Most non-APA agencies can also set aside a default or reconsider a default decision if they still have jurisdiction to do so under their statute or other governing authority [see, e.g., Cal. State B. Rules Proc., Rule 555 (default due to nonappearance of respondent at formal hearing may be set aside for good cause upon timely application)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingWaiverEvidenceRelevanceRelevant EvidenceGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsLicensesGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Hearing Procedures

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.18

§ 473F.18 Persuasion

[1] Persuasion in Administrative Hearings

Because most administrative hearings are conducted by an individual ALJ who may have some background in the administrative subject area of the hearing, persuasion techniques in an administrative hearing are different from those in a jury trial, and sometimes different than those in a court trial. The points discussed in [2], below, should be considered regarding persuasion in an administrative hearing.

For a discussion of persuasion in court trials generally, see Ch. 551, Trial .

[2] Guidelines for Persuasion

The following guidelines are intended to help an attorney determine which persuasion techniques to exercise in an administrative hearing:

- Prove all of your facts in the hearing; don't expect another chance to prove your case. The administrative hearing is the "trial" of the facts and usually creates the only record on which the facts will be determined and reviewed.

- Always make a full understandable record, because the ALJ, or the judge who later reviews the record, may not be knowledgeable about technical subjects.

- Avoid extensive review of an expert's qualifications; less time is expended when resumes are used.

- Avoid theatrics, which are generally inappropriate; it is far more effective to fully and efficiently prove your case.

- Use objections; this use improves the quality of proof and increases your knowledge about avoiding objections and presenting evidence properly.

- Know and understand the law, including regulations, that apply to the procedures in the hearing.
- Be creative:
    - Explore procedures that can help resolve the controversy or portions of it.
    - Consider the use of stipulations of fact, prehearing and settlement conferences, motions in limine, and other resolution procedures.
- Be flexible; not all administrative hearings are alike, and due to the limited use of discovery, unexpected events often occur.
- Properly prepare witnesses and exhibits:
    - Schedule witnesses to avoid long waits.
    - Have exhibits in presentable form with copies for the other side.
- Be professional:
    - Respect the judge, opposing parties, and witnesses.
    - Act and look well prepared and knowledgeable.
    - Demonstrate dedication to your client within the bounds of fairness.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Hearing Procedures

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473F.19-473F.29

[Reserved]

§§ 473F.19[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Rules of Evidence

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.30

§ 473F.30 Administrative Rules of Evidence

[1] Criminal Rules of Evidence Are Generally Inapplicable

The rules of evidence in administrative hearings are administrative rules, neither purely criminal nor purely civil. Without a statute making it applicable, the California Evidence Code does not apply to administrative proceedings [Evid. Code § 300 (applicable to court actions, except as otherwise provided by statute)]. Although administrative proceedings may be punitive in nature, they are not criminal in nature and need not be conducted in accordance with the rules of procedure or evidence employed in criminal courts [Webster v. Board of Dental Examiners (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 534, 537, 110 P.2d 992 ; Suckow v. Alderson (1920) 182 Cal. 247, 251, 187 P. 965 ; Gilbert v. Superior Court (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 161, 173, 238 Cal. Rptr. 220 ; Gore v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 184, 198, 167 Cal. Rptr. 881] . In some instances, however, criminal rules of evidence may apply [see Coburn v. State Personnel Bd. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 801, 809-810, 148 Cal. Rptr. 134 (disciplinary hearing of State Personnel Board applied evidence code provisions regarding misdemeanor conviction); see also §§ 473F.33, 473F.34].

[2] Liberal Nature of Rules

Administrative proceedings are not conducted according to strict or technical rules of evidence [Coburn v. State Personnel Bd. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 801, 809, 148 Cal. Rptr. 134 ; Camp v. Brock (1946) 170 P.2d 702] . The APA (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.) provides that an administrative hearing under Chapter 5, the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), need not be conducted according to technical rules relating to evidence and witnesses, except as provided in the APA [Gov. Code § 11513(c)].

Thus, relevant evidence will be admitted if it is the kind of evidence on which responsible people are accustomed to rely in the conduct of serious affairs, regardless of the existence of any common law or statutory rule that might make the admission of that evidence over objection improper in civil actions [Gov. Code § 11513(c); see § 473F.31[1]].

Hearsay evidence that is not admissible in civil actions can be used to supplement or explain other evidence but over timely objection is not sufficient by itself to support a fact finding [Gov. Code § 11513(d); see § 473F.32]. Rules of privilege are applicable [Gov. Code § 11513(e); see § 473F.33]. The presiding officer has discretion to exclude evidence if its probative value is outweighed by the probability that its admission will necessitate undue consumption of time [Gov. Code § 11513(f); see § 473F.31]. The "irrelevant and unduly repetitious" evidence standard of former Gov. Code § 11513 is replaced by the general standard of Evidence Code § 352 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 240 (1995)]. Evidence Code § 352 provides as follows: "The court in its discretion may exclude evidence if its probative value is substantially outweighed by the probability that its admission will (a) necessitate undue consumption of time or (b) create substantial danger of undue prejudice, of confusing the issues, or of misleading the jury" [Evid. Code § 352; see California Trial Guide (Matthew Bender), for more detailed discussion of evidence issues in civil actions].

Although administrative rules of evidence are not strict, parties to an administrative proceeding have a due process right to a fair hearing, which includes the right to present issues of fact and law in a deliberate, regular, and orderly manner [H. Moffatt Co. v. Hecke (1924) 68 Cal. App. 35, 39, 228 P. 546] . The APA expressly provides for such a hearing that includes the following protections [Gov. Code § 11513(a), (b); see Desert Turf Club v. Board of Supervisors (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 446, 455, 296 P.2d 882 (common sense and fair play dictate certain basic requirements for the conduct of any hearing at which facts will be determined)]:

- Testimony on oath or affirmation.
- The right to call and examine witnesses.
- The right to introduce exhibits.
- The right to cross-examine opposing witnesses on any relevant matter.
- The right to impeach any witness.
- The right to rebut evidence.

[3] Guidelines for Production of Evidence

Administrative rules of evidence are an amalgam of evidentiary principles. Administrative law judges (ALJs) determine them by looking to express statutory provisions such as Gov. Code § 11513, rules that the courts have applied to administrative proceedings, rules of evidence in both criminal and civil cases, and general common law evidentiary principles. Like other judges, however, ALJs vary in their application of evidentiary rules during administrative proceedings. Counsel in an administrative hearing should generally comply with the following guidelines:

- Produce evidence in the same manner as in a civil court trial.
- Raise novel or unusual evidentiary issues before or as early as possible during the hearing.
- Do not rely on the liberal application of rules of evidence when preparing for an administrative hearing.
- Present all admissible evidence at the administrative hearing, rather than saving it for a possible court review [see Greenblatt v. Munro (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 596, 326 P.2d 929 (party in administrative hearing cannot make skeletal presentation with expectation of making a more complete showing before a court)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:

Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityHearsayAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityPrivilegeConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessGeneral OverviewEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsObjections & Offers of ProofObjectionsEvidenceRelevanceConfusion, Prejudice & Waste of TimeEvidenceRelevanceRelevant EvidenceEvidenceTestimonyExaminationCross-ExaminationGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Rules of Evidence

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.31

§ 473F.31 Basic Hearing Objections

[1] Irrelevant Evidence

Irrelevant evidence is objectionable [Evid. Code §§ 350 (no evidence is admissible except relevant evidence), and 351 (except as otherwise provided by statute, all relevant evidence is admissible; Neely v. California State Personnel Bd. (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 487, 493, 47 Cal. Rptr. 64 (irrelevant evidence could not be inquired into at personnel hearing))].

To be relevant, evidence (including credibility evidence) must have "any tendency in reason to prove or disprove any disputed fact that is of consequence to the determination of the action" [Evid. Code § 210]. Under the APA, any relevant evidence will be admitted if it is the sort of evidence "on which responsible persons are accustomed to rely in the conduct of serious affairs," regardless of the existence of any common law or statutory rule that might make the admission of the evidence over objection improper in civil actions [Gov. Code § 11513(c)]. For further discussion of the relevance objection in the context of court trials, see California Trial Guide, Unit 22, Pts. C-F (Matthew Bender).

[2] Evidence That Necessitates Undue Consumption of Time

In court proceedings, an objection can be made whenever a question is asked that reasonably calls for an answer that has already been given [see Evid. Code §§ 765(a), 774; see also California Trial Guide, Unit 20, § 20.15[11] (Matthew Bender)].

In APA administrative proceedings, however, the presiding officer has discretion to exclude evidence if its probative value is outweighed by the probability that its admission will necessitate undue consumption of time [Gov. Code § 11513(f)]. Gov. Code § 11513(f) replaces the "irrelevant and unduly repetitious" evidence standard of former Gov. Code. Code § 11513 with the general standard of Evidence Code § 352 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 240 (1995); see Evid. Code § 352(a) (court has discretion to exclude evidence if its probative value is substantially outweighed by the probability that its admission will necessitate undue consumption of time)]. In practice, an ALJ is usually concerned about the needless consumption of time as are other judges. An objection on the basis of repetitious evidence should be stated as "undue consumption of time," although the objection is sometimes incorrectly expressed as "asked and answered."

[3] Objectionable Form of Question

[a] Leading Questions

Objections to the form of questions can and should be made. For example, leading questions [see Evid. Code § 764] are improper except when used during cross-examination and in a few other circumstances, such as for preliminary questions and when memory has been exhausted. When leading questions are used, they move the focus of the testimony from the witness to the examiner and thereby detract from the impact of the answer. For this reason, the opposing side infrequently objects to leading questions. Nevertheless, they should not be used for persuasive testimony. See also discussion in California Trial Guide, Unit 20, § 20.15[1] (Matthew Bender).

[b] Narrative Questions

Narrative questions, that is, those that are excessively open-ended [see Evid. Code § 765(a)], are objectionable because they allow a witness to inject inadmissible evidence into a hearing without an opportunity for objection. In addition to being objectionable, it is often an ineffective way of presenting testimony. See also California Trial Guide, Unit 20, § 20.15[2] (Matthew Bender).

[c] Other Objectionable Questions

Objections are also appropriate for questions that assume facts not in evidence or misstate evidence, or that are confusing, misleading, ambiguous, vague, unintelligible, speculative, compound, or argumentative [see Evid. Code § 765]. These kinds of questions are inefficient and often elicit ineffective testimony. For a discussion of these and other objections to the form of a question, see California Trial Guide, Unit 20, § 20.15.

[4] Cumulative Evidence

Cumulative evidence results when many witnesses give essentially the same testimony without adding anything new, or when many exhibits demonstrate the same thing. Like unduly repetitious evidence, it is objectionable [see Evid. Code § 352 (admission of evidence necessitates undue consumption of time)]. In administrative proceedings the ALJ is not the final judge of facts, however, because the agency makes the final decision [see Gov. Code § 11517; see also § 473F.10 et seq.].

Therefore, cumulative evidence can be properly included in cases with sharply conflicting testimony [see Evans v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 244, 248-249, 162 P.2d 488 (cumulative evidence was allowed in case in which respondent claimed that dermatitis was contracted in course of employment, and evidence conflicted regarding whether disease was confined to exposed parts of body)]. See also California Trial Guide, Unit 20, § 22.50[3] (Matthew Bender).

[5] Guidelines for Objection Procedure

Objections in an administrative hearing should be made in the same way they are made in court proceedings. The following guidelines cover the main procedural points:

- Make the objection promptly.
- If the question is improper, object before the witness begins to answer.
- Allow the question to be completed before objecting, except when it becomes apparent that the question itself is prejudicial as well as objectionable. In hearings with only an ALJ or hearing officer [see Gov. Code § 11512(a)], however, there is less possibility of prejudice than in hearings with a board or panel.

- Make an initial objection. If the objection is not so obvious that it is ruled on immediately, follow the initial objection with specific grounds for the objection. The grounds should be stated succinctly and should not include extensive argument--for example, "The question is leading," or "The question calls for an irrelevant answer," or simply, "Irrelevant."

- If argument on the objection is appropriate, wait for the ALJ to invite argument or ask to be heard. After an objection to the form of a question is made, opposing counsel will often voluntarily reform the question and no ruling on the objection will be necessary. If a ruling is necessary, however, and the ALJ does not make a clear ruling, ask for a ruling.

- If an objection is made either during the answer or at its end--for example, when the answer is unresponsive--include a motion to strike the improper part of the answer. In administrative proceedings, motions to strike are not granted frequently, but they should be made to protect the record.

[6] Offers of Proof

Offers of proof are especially important in administrative proceedings, because the records of these hearings are frequently reviewed by administrative bodies with final decision authority or appellate review authority, and by the courts. If an objection is sustained and results in the exclusion of important evidence, counsel should make an offer of proof if there is a question about the correctness of the ALJ's ruling. A reviewing authority will then be aware of what evidence was excluded. To make an offer of proof, counsel must simply ask the ALJ for permission to do so. The ALJ will normally grant permission, but he or she may have the attorney make the offer after any board or panel members are dismissed [see Gov. Code § 11517(b)(1) (members of agency may hear case together with ALJ)]. The offer of proof should consist of the substance, purpose, and relevance of the excluded evidence [see Evid. Code § 354(a) (applicable in court proceedings)]. For a discussion of the offer of proof in a trial court context, see Ch. 551, Trial .

[7] Foundation and Authentication

[a] Establishing a Proper Foundation

Foundations for exhibits should be established in administrative hearings in the same manner as in court proceedings [see White v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 699, 705-706, 180 Cal. Rptr. 516 (court refused to admit document of several hundred pages, when lack of foundation required court to speculate on its relevancy and reliability); see also Evid. Code §§ 403, 405 (applicable to court proceedings)]. Although technical rules of evidence are not followed in administrative hearings, establishing a proper foundation for documents and other exhibits goes to their relevance and credibility [see Gov. Code § 11513(c); see also § 473F.30]. A proper foundation can establish whether the evidence is the sort of evidence "on which responsible persons are accustomed to rely in the conduct of serious affairs" [Gov. Code § 11513(c) (requirement for admissibility); see § 473F.30]. A forensic lab that tested motorist's blood for alcohol and which reported blood alcohol reading of.08 or above did not comply with state regulations requiring new blood alcohol testing procedures, and therefore test results were not sufficiently reliable for use under the administrative per se suspension law [Baker v. Gourley (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 1263, 1264-1265, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 348 (reversal of driver's license suspension under administrative per se suspension law because DMV is required to establish that motorist had blood alcohol level at.08 or above at the time of driving to suspend motorists driver's license. Introduction of valid chemical test results is a necessary element of proof, as DMV can not show substantial evidence of that BA level merely by behavior associated with intoxication, and DMV could not rely on chemical test results as lab which tested blood sample did not comply with state regulations requiring new alcohol testing procedures)].

Another California Court of Appeal held that breath alcohol test results were admissible in DMV administrative per se driver's license suspension hearing but the results were not entitled to much weight because the results were unreliable, as the administering officer failed to follow the guidelines contained in administrative regulations [17 Cal. Code Regs. §§ 1215.1(b), 1219.3], which required a 15-minute observation period before the administration of the breath test. Because the test results had so little weight, they did not adequately support a fact finding that the motorist was driving with a blood alcohol level in excess of 0.08. Thus, the DMV order suspending the motorist's license was reversed because the blood alcohol level fact finding was not supported by evidence of sufficient reliability [Roze v. Dept. of Motor Vehicles (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1176, 1188-1190, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829] .

However, in criminal prosecutions for driving under the influence of alcohol, the Highway Patrol's lack of compliance with administrative regulations in administering alcohol screening tests does not preclude admission of those test results for lack of reliability. Rather, substantial compliance with administrative regulations is an alternative means of assuring reliability, and the trial court could also have admitted the test results based on other indicia of reliability [People v. Williams (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 408, 416-418, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 854, 49 P.3d 203] .

Furthermore, a forensic alcohol analysis prepared by a criminalist was inadmissible and did not come within the public employee records exception [Evid. Code § 1280] to the hearsay rule because DMV, which had the burden of proof on this issue provided no foundation evidence to show that the criminalist had an official duty to perform and record the forensic alcohol analysis results. Without the foundation evidence, the hearsay exception did not apply, the evidence was hearsay, and the evidence could not provide sufficient evidence to support a fact finding as to the driver's blood alcohol level [Furman v. Department of Motor Vehicles (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 416, 418-419, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 520] .

The California Court of Appeal held that a one-week delay in the preparation of report of forensic alcohol test results raised substantial concerns about lapse of memory by analysts that had conducted the test, such that the report was not found to be timely, and the official records exception to the hearsay rule [Evid. Code § 1280(b)] did not apply to allow the reports to be admissible in the DMV license suspension administrative hearing. Timeliness of the report is a foundational requirement for admissibility of reports under the official records hearsay exception [Glatman v. Valverde (2006) 146 Cal. App. 4th 700, 703-705, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 319] .

Proponents of an exhibit should always offer it when the witness is still on the stand, usually immediately after the foundation is established, in order to avoid forgetting to move exhibits into evidence before resting the proponents' case, or forgetting entirely. Counsel objecting to a lack of proper foundation should do so when the exhibit is offered into evidence, not when it is marked for identification. From the proponents' point of view, if an objection is sustained, the witness will still be available to supply missing foundation elements. For further discussion of establishing a proper foundation, see California Trial Guide, Unit 21, § 21.11 (Matthew Bender).

[b] Authentication of Writings

Writings and conversations must be authenticated for the same reasons that a foundation should be established [see Evid. Code §§ 1400-1421 (authentication of documents in court proceedings)]. For example, signed writings usually must be shown to have authentic signatures. The identity of parties to a conversation must also be demonstrated. Videotapes are considered to be writings that must be authenticated before being admitted into evidence. Unauthenticated videotapes cannot be properly admitted into evidence, and without an authenticating foundation these videotapes are considered to be irrelevant and unreliable evidence [Ashford v. Culver City Unified Sch. Dist. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 344, 349-351, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728] . For a discussion of authentication, see California Trial Guide, Unit 30 (Matthew Bender).

[8] Secondary Evidence Rule

The content of a writing may be proved by an otherwise admissible original [Evid. Code § 1520]. However, under the "Secondary Evidence Rule," the content may also generally be proved by otherwise admissible secondary evidence [Evid. Code § 1521(a)]. Secondary evidence must be excluded only when the court determines a genuine dispute exists concerning material terms of the writing and justice requires the exclusion, or if admission would be unfair [Evid. Code § 1521(a)]. Secondary evidence must be authenticated in order to be "otherwise admissible" [Evid. Code §§ 1401, 1521(c)]. Oral testimony is generally not admissible to prove the content of a writing, except under limited statutory exceptions [Evid. Code § 1523].

The Secondary Evidence Rule has replaced the former "Best Evidence Rule" in California [see Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Comment to Evid. Code § 1521]. The newer rule conforms more closely to the practice in administrative adjudication proceedings, in which authenticated secondary evidence, such as a photocopy or computer printout, is admitted so long as it is relevant and of a type upon which responsible persons customarily rely in serious affairs [see Gov. Code § 11513(c) and discussion in § 473F.30; see also Evid. Code §§ 1552, 1553 (printed representations of computer information and images stored on a video or digital medium are presumed to be accurate representations of the information and images represented)].

For more detailed discussion of the Secondary Evidence Rule, see California Trial Guide, Unit 31 (Matthew Bender).

[9] Failure to Object

In trial courts, the failure to make a timely objection to the admission of evidence or a motion to strike and to clearly give grounds for the objection or motion can constitute a waiver of the right to complain about the erroneous admission of evidence [Evid. Code § 353 (verdict or judgment will not be reversed based on erroneous admission of evidence when no objection or motion to exclude evidence was made)]. The same rule applies in administrative hearings [see Savelli v. Board of Medical Examiners (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 124, 139, 40 Cal. Rptr. 171 (court found that hearsay evidence was of probative value when it was not objected to when offered); Tennant v. Civil Service Com. (1946) 77 Cal. App. 2d 489, 498, 175 P.2d 568 (respondent could not later object to fact that report was not introduced at hearing, after he failed to object at hearing)]. This rule applies even if the party failing to object is unrepresented [August v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 52, 64, 70 Cal. Rptr. 172] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityGeneral OverviewEvidenceAuthenticationGeneral OverviewEvidenceDemonstrative EvidenceFoundational RequirementsEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsObjections & Offers of ProofObjectionsEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsObjections & Offers of ProofOffers of ProofEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsObjections & Offers of ProofTimelinessEvidenceRelevanceConfusion, Prejudice & Waste of TimeEvidenceRelevanceRelevant EvidenceEvidenceTestimonyExaminationLeading Questions

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Rules of Evidence

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.32

§ 473F.32 Administrative Hearsay

[1] General Requirements

"Hearsay evidence" is evidence of a statement that is made other than by a witness while testifying at the hearing that is offered to prove the truth of the matter asserted [Evid. Code § 1200(a)]. It can consist of oral or written verbal expression, or nonverbal conduct intended as a substitute for oral or written verbal expression [Evid. Code § 225]. Videotapes can also be hearsay evidence. Videotapes are considered to be writings that must be authenticated before being admitted into evidence. Unauthenticated videotapes cannot be properly admitted into evidence, and without an authenticating foundation these videotapes are considered to be irrelevant and unreliable evidence. Admission of these videotapes was objected to and the videotapes (of a school district employee) were hearsay evidence offered to prove the truth of the matter asserted [Ashford v. Culver City Unified Sch. Dist. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 344, 350-351, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728] . In contrast to court proceedings, objectionable hearsay is often admissible in administrative proceedings. For a discussion of application of the hearsay rule and its exceptions in civil trials, see California Trial Guide, Unit 40 (Matthew Bender).

The APA provides that hearsay evidence may be used for the purpose of supplementing or explaining other evidence, but over timely objection is not sufficient in itself to support a finding unless it would be admissible over objection in civil actions [Gov. Code § 11513(d)]. The objection is timely if made before submission of the case or on reconsideration [Gov. Code § 11513(c)].

The Third District California Court of Appeal held that the admission into evidence of a prior administrative law judge decision was permissible under Gov. Code § 11513(c) because the ALJ decision was reliable evidence. That decision, which was hearsay, properly supplemented other evidence under Gov. Code § 11513(d), and did not consume an undue amount of time under Gov. Code § 11513(f). The prior judge's decision assisted in proving that two teachers had special training and experience for teaching community day school, and therefore the school district was justified in laying off more senior teachers and retaining these two teachers consistent with the requirements of Educ. Code § 44955(d). The prior ALJ decision addressed a prior reduction in force by the same school district, and the qualifications of the same two teachers were discussed in that prior decision [Bledsoe v. Biggs Unified School District (2009)170 Cal. App. 4th 127, 140-142, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 13] .

This otherwise objectionable hearsay evidence that is used to supplement or explain other evidence is referred to as "administrative hearsay." The rule that administrative hearsay may not be used by itself and without other evidence to support a finding of fact is called the "residuum rule." A finding cannot be based on administrative hearsay without a residuum of other evidence that supplements or explains the finding [Gov. Code § 11513(d); Berg v. Davi (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 223, 229-230, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803 (hearsay evidence contained in State Bar Court and Review Department opinions, and in unpublished court of appeal decision upholding fraud judgment opinion was hearsay evidence admitted for purpose of supplementing or explaining other admissible evidence and this hearsay evidence was properly admitted for this purpose under Gov. Code § 11513 (d))].

The California Supreme Court decided issues related to the admissibility and sufficiency under Gov. Code § 11513(c) of unsworn police reports used in administrative per se hearings conducted by the DMV. The Court decided that a police officer's unsworn report, containing both an admission by a defendant that he was driving a car at the time of an arrest for driving while intoxicated and witness statements that defendant was driving while intoxicated, was admissible under Gov. Code Section 11513(c) in a driver's license suspension hearing under "administrative per se" procedure for purposes of showing that defendant was driving at the time of arrest [Lake v. Reed (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 448, 460-461, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 860, 940 P. 2d 311] . The police officer's report fit under the public employee hearsay exception, and the driver's admission fit under the party admission exception. The other witness statements are admissible to supplement the statements admitted under hearsay exceptions, and the evidence presented was sufficient to prove that defendant was driving at the time of the arrest [Lake v. Reed (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 448, 461-462, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 860, 940 P. 2d 311] . Further, an unsworn and uncertified blood or urine forensic laboratory report showing the blood alcohol level of a driver arrested for driving while intoxicated is admissible under Gov. Code Section 11513(c), and is within the public employees exception to the hearsay rule [Lake v. Reed (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 448, 466-467, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 860, 940 P. 2d 311] .

There is a substantial amount of case law that similarly addresses administrative hearsay issues [Jackson v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 730, 737, 27 Cal. Rptr.2d 712 (driver's admission that he was driving motor vehicle that was contained in arresting officer's arrest report is competent evidence under hearsay exceptions for admissions by a party and for public employee records); see Lake v. Reed (1997) 16 Cal. 4th 448, 467, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 860, 940 P. 2d 311 (forensic alcohol report is official DMV record admissible at administrative per se hearing when admission requirements are satisfied); Shea v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1057, 1059, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896 (forensic alcohol report prepared by an unsupervised trainee inadmissible as official record); Manning v. Department of motor vehicles (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 273, 276 , 61 Cal. App. 4th 273, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 647 (forensic alcohol report inadmissible when unsupervised trainee performed test and there was discrepancy between signature date and date test sample went to laboratory); Carlton v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 1428, 1432, 250 Cal. Rptr. 809 (police officer's opinion in computerized accident report held to be hearsay and insufficient to support a license revocation because the report would not be admissible under the business records or official records exceptions to the hearsay rule); Szmaciarz v. State Personnel Bd. (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 904, 913-914, 145 Cal. Rptr. 396 (hearsay testimony of witnesses regarding respondent's marijuana use was admissible, because it would be admissible in a civil action over objection as an admission by a party); Hildebrand v. Department of Motor Vehicles (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1562, 1571-1573, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 234 (fire captains' hearsay statement was admissible in administrative hearing both as part of arresting officer's arrest report (admissible as a public employee record) and was admissible (under Gov. Code § 11513(d) to supplement driver's statements at the time of the arrest (admissible as a party admission)); McNary v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 688, 694-695, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 55 (officer's sworn report containing report of another officer's personal observations that arrested person had been driving are admissible public employee records; citing and following Gananian); Robertson v. Zolin (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 147, 152-153, 51 Cal. Rptr 2d 420 (hearsay evidence offered by driver supplemented DMV evidence and was sufficient to support finding that blood test was not reliable); Gananian v. Zolin (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 634, 640, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 384 (officer's sworn report containing report of another officer's personal observations are admissible public employee records); Cantrell v. Zolin (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 128, 133-134, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 238 (officer's statement was not hearsay as to reasonable cause to believe issue)].

A scientific investigation division report, showing the blood alcohol level of a driver, was not properly authenticated because the report was not signed and thus the report did not come within the official records exception to the hearsay rule. The report was hearsay within the meaning of Gov. Code § 11513(d), and did not satisfy the requirements of that section for admissibility over objection in civil actions. Therefore, the report, which provided the only evidence of blood alcohol level, was not substantial evidence to support a finding necessary to support a license suspension for driving with a blood-alcohol level of .08 or more, and a driver's license suspension was properly revoked [Jacobson v. Gourley (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1331, 1333-1334, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 349] .

Forensic lab blood test results were not admissible in evidence in DMV administrative hearing because the Department of Justice (DOJ) lab report containing the test results was not prepared at or near the time of the recorded event, as required for the public employee records exception [Evid. Code § 1280(b)] to the hearsay rule. Thus, it was not an abuse of discretion for the trial court to exclude the lab report of the blood test results from admission into evidence. Preparation of the report one week after the analysis was completed was not sufficient in the absence of any information as to when the test results were entered into the lab database [Molenda v. Department of Motor Vehicles (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 974, 990-991, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 792] . Also, Veh. Code § 23612(g)(2) permits the DMV to receive or retrieve electronically evidence of a licensee's blood alcohol results directly from a government forensic database and provides that the electronic information is the best available evidence of the test results, but Veh. Code § 23612(g)(2) is not an exception to the hearsay rule. Thus, the lab report could be challenged on hearsay grounds notwithstanding compliance with the requirements of Veh. Code § 23612(g)(2) [Molenda v. Department of Motor Vehicles (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 974, 996-997, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 792] . Furthermore, the PAS test results were not admissible because of inadequate foundation since there was insufficient evidence that the test results met the foundations requirements of the DMV regulations [17 Cal. Code Regs. §§ 1215-1222.2]. The evidence related to PAS test results also did not meet the foundational requirements of properly functioning equipment, a properly administered test, and a qualified operator [Molenda v. Department of Motor Vehicles (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 974, 1000-1001, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 792] . Finally the DMV cannot rely upon the presumption of official duty codified in Evid. Code § 664 to establish the foundation for admissibility of the PAS test results [Molenda v. Department of Motor Vehicles (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 974, 1004-1005, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 792] .

The California Court of Appeal held that Medi-Cal patient's claim detail reports (prepared by the state department of health services) that were used for an audit comparison with patient records for purposes of determining compliance by dentists with Denti-Cal program requirements were official records within the meaning of Evid. Code § 1280, and were therefore admissible as an exception to the hearsay rule in an administrative hearing, and did not have to be authenticated to be admissible in the administrative hearing [Bhatt v. Dep't of Health Servs. (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 923, 929-931, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 335] .

The California Supreme Court held that an arresting officer's unsworn statement contained in an unsworn report that supplemented the officer's sworn report of the arrest of a motorist for violating drunk driving laws could be admitted into evidence in a DMV administrative per se license suspension hearing, and the unsworn report could be used by the DMV for purposes of deciding a motorists' challenge to the license suspension. The unsworn report was admissible under the provisions of Veh. Code § 13557 allowing admission of other evidence related to the sworn report notwithstanding that the unsworn report is hearsay evidence [MacDonald v. Gutierrez (2004) 32 Cal. 4th 150, 153, 81 P.3d 975] . Another Court of Appeal reversed a trial court decision that reversed a DMV administrative per se law decision suspending a motorist's drivers license for driving with a blood alcohol level of.08 or more. The court of appeal held that the driver had the burden of proof to show that blood collection procedures were not properly performed. There is a rebuttable presumption under Evid. Code § 664 that the procedures were properly completed [Petricka v. Department of Motor Vehicles (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 1341, 1347-1348, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 909] . The presumption under Evid. Code § 664 of proper completion of a breath test by a police officer was not rebutted by testimony that continuous observation of a motorist for 15 minutes before giving a breath test does not require direct and unbroken eye contact for the time period [Manriquez v. Gourley (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1227, 1238-1240, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 209] .

The Court of Appeal upheld the DMV's suspension of a motorist's drivers license for driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI) notwithstanding that the arresting "officer failed to sign the portion of the sworn arrest report certifying that he [the officer] obtained ... [the driver's] breath test samples in the regular course of duties." The court held that there was substantial evidence based on two alternative grounds: 1) the statutory presumption of Evid. Code § 664 that the police officer properly administered the breath test with properly operating equipment, and 2) the officer provided sworn testimony at the DMV suspension hearing which supported the reliability of the breath test results [Morgenstern v. Department of Motor Vehicles (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 366, 369, 374, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 46] . The Court of Appeal upheld the DMV's suspension of a motorist's drivers license for driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI) notwithstanding a challenge to the adequacy of facts supporting probable cause to arrest the motorist for drunk driving. The Court held that the police officer's report contained specific facts supporting the probable cause requirements, and that report was supplemented by live testimony at the hearing, and other unsworn police reports [Grundy v. Gourley (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 20, 24-25, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 104] .

[2] Objection Requirement

Under the new act, the APA provides that hearsay evidence may be used for the purpose of supplementing or explaining other evidence, but over timely objection is not sufficient in itself to support a finding unless it would be admissible over objection in civil actions. The objection is timely if made before submission of the case or on reconsideration [Gov. Code § 11513(c)]. This provision, operative July 1, 1997, expressly requires a timely objection and therefore resolves a former split in the courts over whether an objection was required for administrative hearsay to be insufficient to support fact findings other than when it is used to supplement or explain other evidence.

This split existed under former Gov. Code. Code § 11513(c), as interpreted by the various districts of the California Court of Appeal regarding whether administrative hearsay that has not been objected to may be used to make a finding of fact. The First District Court of Appeal had repeatedly held that administrative hearsay that has not been objected to is sufficient to support a finding in the absence of contrary evidence, that is, an objection is necessary to preclude use of hearsay alone to make a finding of fact [see Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 546, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525 (court stated that hearsay evidence that has not been objected to serves to shift the burden of producing evidence of the existence or nonexistence of fact disclosed); Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1019-1020, 87 Cal. Rptr. 908 (court stated that hearsay admitted without objection will have probative value unless there is some admissible evidence to the contrary); Savelli v. Board of Medical Examiners (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 124, 139, 40 Cal. Rptr. 171 , cert. denied, 380 U.S. 934, 85 S. Ct. 940, 13 L. Ed. 2d 821 (1964) (court permitted introduction of objectionable hearsay admitted without objection to be considered in support of a finding)].

The Second, Third, and Fourth Districts, however, did not require an objection to preclude use of administrative hearsay alone to support a finding of fact [see San Dieguito Union High School Dist. v. Commission on Professional Competence (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 1176, 1189, 220 Cal. Rptr. 351 (court stated that lack of an objection does not convert incompetent evidence into substantial evidence to support a finding); Martin v. State Personnel Bd. (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 573, 582-583, 103 Cal. Rptr. 306 (court stated that, contrary to Savelli, Kirby, and Borror cases, the absence of objection to hearsay will not support a finding of fact); see also discussion in Frudden Enterprises, Inc. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 262, 270 n.5, 201 Cal. Rptr. 371 (split of authority between districts regarding effect of objection to hearsay is inapplicable to ALRB proceedings, which are not governed by the APA)].

As noted above, the new act resolves this split by expressly requiring an objection for administrative hearsay to be sufficient.

[3] Other Inadmissible Hearsay

Although administrative hearsay is admissible in administrative hearings over objection that it is hearsay [Gov. Code § 11513(c)], it may be inadmissible for other reasons. For example, a proper foundation is required for many documents, writings, and other exhibits that may contain contain administrative hearsay. Even before the hearsay issue arises, counsel must lay a proper foundation for these hearsay exhibits and authenticate them [see § 473F.31[7]]. Administrative hearsay may not be admissible because it is not "the sort of evidence on which responsible persons are accustomed to rely in the conduct of serious affairs" [Gov. Code § 11513(c)]. Double and triple hearsay and hearsay that is little more than gossip can be inadmissible because it is so unreliable. This threshold test of reliability applies to any relevant evidence being offered in an administrative hearing.

For example, videotapes can also be considered to be hearsay evidence. Videotapes are considered to be writings that must be authenticated before being admitted into evidence. Unauthenticated videotapes cannot be properly admitted into evidence, and without an authenticating foundation these videotapes are considered to be irrelevant and unreliable evidence. Admission of these videotapes was objected to and the videotapes (of a school district employee) were considered to be hearsay evidence offered to prove the truth of the matter asserted [Ashford v. Culver City Unified Sch. Dist. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 344, 350-351, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728] .

[4] Non-APA Hearings

Standards of hearsay admissibility can also apply in non-APA administrative hearings [see Minaker v. Adams (1921) 55 Cal. App. 374, 377, 203 P. 806 (order of board of medical examiners revoking a license was not reversed on ground that some of evidence was hearsay, because sufficient proper evidence was also given)].

But the hearsay rules are sometimes different in non-APA proceedings. For example, various courts have held that hearsay admitted without objection is sufficient to sustain a finding in Agricultural Labor Relations Board proceedings [see Frudden Enterprises, Inc. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 262, 270, 201 Cal. Rptr. 371 (split of authority between districts regarding effect of objection to hearsay is inapplicable to ALRB proceedings, which are not governed by the APA); see also Flaherty v. Board of Retirement (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 397, 414, 18 Cal. Rptr. 256 (court stated that hearsay, if not objected to when offered, can be of probative value); Fox v. San Francisco Unified School District (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 885, 891, 245 P.2d 603 (by failing to appear at hearing, respondent waived right to object that testimony was hearsay, when that hearsay was of sufficient probative value to show cause for his dismissal)].

By statute, those proceedings are conducted, so far as practicable, in accordance with the Evidence Code [Lab. Code § 1160.2], which requires a timely and specific objection on the record before a judgment will be reversed due to the erroneous admission of evidence [see Evid. Code § 353(a)].

At least one court has held that, in the absence of a statutory authorization, it is error to admit hearsay over objection in administrative hearings [August v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 52, 64, 70 Cal. Rptr. 172] . For this reason, counsel should check the statutes and evidentiary rules for particular non-APA agency proceedings to determine the standard to be applied to hearsay.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityHearsayEvidenceDemonstrative EvidenceFoundational RequirementsEvidenceDemonstrative EvidenceVisual FormatsEvidenceHearsayRule ComponentsStatementsEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsObjections & Offers of ProofObjectionsEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsObjections & Offers of ProofTimeliness

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Rules of Evidence

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.33

§ 473F.33 Privileges

[1] Application in Administrative Proceedings

The privileges set forth in the Evidence Code division on privileges apply in both APA and non-APA administrative proceedings [Evid. Code § 901; Gov. Code § 11513(e)].

Those privileges include all of those that normally could be invoked in a civil court case, including:

- Lawyer-client [Evid. Code §§ 950-962].
- Husband-wife [Evid. Code §§ 970-987].
- Physician-patient [Evid. Code §§ 990-1007].
- Psychotherapist-patient [Evid. Code §§ 1010-1027].
- Clergyman-penitent [Evid. Code §§ 1030-1034].
- Sexual assault victim-counselor [Evid. Code §§ 1035-1036.2].
- Trade secrets [Evid. Code § 1060].
- Self-incrimination [Evid. Code § 940].
- News sources [Evid. Code § 1070].

A testimonial privilege must be properly claimed by the party who is entitled to invoke the privilege in the administrative hearing, or the privilege will be waived and testimony that is excludable under the privilege will be admissible at the hearing [Calvert v. State Bar (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 765, 781, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 684, 819 P.2d 424] . For further discussion of privileges, see Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitaitons , and California Trial Guide, Unit 51 (Matthew Bender).

Other privileges required by statute to be recognized at the hearing also apply [Gov. Code § 11513(e)]. For example, all information and records obtained while providing services to mentally or developmentally disabled persons are confidential [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 4514, 5328; see Macomber v. State Personnel Bd. (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 986, 995-996, 242 Cal. Rptr. 631 (medical records of psychiatric patients were privileged and not subject to subpoena duces tecum when no exceptions to privilege applied); Gilbert v. Superior Court (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 161, 169, 238 Cal. Rptr. 220 (operators of community care facility for developmentally disabled youths were not entitled to production of patients' confidential records in license revocation proceedings; those records are absolutely privileged except for specific exceptions)].

In the absence of a statute, privileges are not recognized [Evid. Code § 911; Gov. Code § 11513(e); see Chronicle Pub. Co. v. Superior Court (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 548, 565, 7 Cal. Rptr. 109, 354 P.2d 637 (burden of establishing that the evidence is within the terms of the statute creating privilege is on party asserting the privilege)].

With respect to communications between welfare claimants and lay representatives authorized to represent them in hearings under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program, however, a privilege has been found to be implicit in a statute authorizing the representation [Welfare Rights Organization v. Crisan (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 766, 772, 190 Cal. Rptr. 919, 661 P.2d 1073] .

When a privilege is invoked, no adverse inference may be drawn from its invocation [Evid. Code § 913(a)].

The protection that the law affords to an attorney's work product is often described as a privilege [see, e.g., National Steel Products Co. v. Superior Court (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 476, 485, 210 Cal. Rptr. 535] , but it is not one of the privileges set out in Evid. Code §§ 900-1070. It has been suggested that this protection is more accurately described as the work product doctrine [Kizer v. Sulnick (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 431, 435 n.3, 248 Cal. Rptr. 712] . For discussion of the work product doctrine, see Ch. 191, Discovery: Privileges and Other Discovery Limitaitons , and California Trial Guide, Unit 51 (Matthew Bender). The work product doctrine applies to protect attorney work product from administrative discovery and administrative subpoenas [Gov. Code § 11507.6(f); Kizer v. Sulnick (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 431, 435, 440-441, 248 Cal. Rptr. 712 ; see Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications ; see also Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies].

Another privilege recognized by law is the right to make a privileged publication or broadcast in legislative, judicial, or other proceedings authorized by law that are judicially reviewable by writ of mandate [Civ. Code § 47(b); Ellenberger v. Espinosa (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 943, 953, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 360 (statements made by former patients of dentist in administrative proceedings against dentist brought by Board of Dental Examiners give rise to a claim of privilege under Civ. Code §§ 47 and 43.8 from civil liability for damages caused by the statements)].

Unlike other privileges, this privilege does not protect against disclosure of testimonial or documentary evidence. Rather, this privilege provides immunity from civil liability for tort damages against the maker of the statement if the statement is made in an official proceeding, such as in an adjudicatory hearing before an administrative law judge in which the statement would otherwise lead to liability because it is defamatory. The privilege does not apply to communications made in furtherance of an act of intentional destruction or alteration of physical evidence undertaken for the purpose of depriving a party to litigation of the use of that evidence, whether or not the content of that communication is otherwise privileged under this statute [Civ. Code § 47(b)(2)]. For purposes of this exception, "physical evidence" is defined as evidence under the Evidence Code [see Evid. Code § 250] or as property under the Code of Civil Procedure [Civ. Code § 47(b)(2); see Code Civ. Proc. § 2031].

The purpose of this exception is to make it easier to disclose destruction of documents or other physical evidence in litigation so that sanctions, penalties, or civil liability can be enforced against the person destroying the documents. The scope of this privilege and the exception include agency adjudication under the APA, because these proceedings are judicially reviewable by writ of mandate [see Civ. Code § 47(b)].

[2] Self-Incrimination

[a] Compared to Application in Civil and Criminal Trials

The privilege afforded a defendant in a criminal case to refuse to respond as a witness and to testify [Evid. Code §§ 404, 940; see California Trial Guide, Unit 51, § 51.30[2] (Matthew Bender)] is not available to parties in administrative proceedings [In re Vaughan (1922) 189 Cal. 491, 495, 209 P. 353 ; McComb v. Superior Court (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 89, 98, 137 Cal. Rptr. 233] .

A party in an administrative proceeding may invoke the privilege against self-incrimination, however, if called as a witness [Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 542, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525] .

In APA proceedings, if a respondent does not testify in his or her own behalf, he or she may be called and examined as if under cross-examination [Gov. Code § 11513(b)]. One court has interpreted this provision as a requirement that the agency rest its case temporarily, to allow the respondent to exercise his or her right to testify, before the agency can call the respondent as its own witness [O'Mara v. State Bd. of Pharmacy (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 8, 12, 54 Cal. Rptr. 862] .

This interpretation apparently has given rise to the agency practice of resting, subject to calling the respondent as a witness if he or she does not testify. The procedure is a compromise between the criminal rule that a defendant may not be compelled to be a witness [Evid. Code § 930], and the rule in civil cases that a party can be called at any time [Evid. Code § 776(a); see 11 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 116 (1948) (respondent in administrative hearing may not be called as a witness until he or she has had an opportunity to testify in his or her own behalf and has failed to do so)].

[b] Application to Public Employees

In administrative proceedings, public employees may also exercise their privilege against self-incrimination. By doing so, however, they may risk the loss of their employment if its exercise is inconsistent with their public duty [see Steinmetz v. Cal. State Board of Education (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 816, 824-825, 285 P.2d 617 , cert. denied, 351 U.S. 915, 76 S. Ct. 708, 100 L. Ed. 1448 (college professor who refused to disclose whether he was Communist party member was required to choose between disclosing information relevant to his fitness for public employment, and losing that employment)]. Public employees sometimes must yield some of the privileges that are enjoyed by other citizens [Garner v. U.S. (1976) 424 U.S. 648, 655, 424 U.S. 648, 655, 96 S. Ct. 1178, 47 L. Ed. 2d 370 ; Forstner v. City Etc. of San Francisco (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 625, 632, 52 Cal. Rptr. 621 ; see Gardner v. Broderick (1968) 392 U.S. 273, 279, 88 S. Ct. 1913, 20 L. Ed. 2d 1082 (policeman may not, however, be dismissed from office for refusing to waive privilege against self-incrimination)].

The California Supreme Court held that a county could terminate a county employee for insubordination based on the employee's assertion of the privilege against self incrimination as grounds for refusal to answer questions in a county internal investigation of the employee's conduct without the county granting the employee immunity from criminal prosecution based upon answers to those questions [Spielbauer v. County of Santa Clara (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 704, 710, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 590, 199 P.3d 1125] . The Supreme Court explained that a public employee can be compelled by threat of job discipline to answer employer's questions so long as the employee is not required to waive the constitutional protection against criminal use of the answers. The public employer is not required to seek and obtain a formal grant of immunity as a condition of requiring answers to questions [Spielbauer v. County of Santa Clara (2009) 45 Cal. 4th

704, 710, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 590, 199 P.3d 1125] .

[c] Application to Drivers' Licenses

The privilege against self-incrimination does not permit an individual to avoid the suspension of his or her driver's license under the financial responsibility law [Fahlgren v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 930, 937, 231 Cal. Rptr. 229 ; Veh. Code §§ 16000-16075 (financial responsibility law)].

A driver's own accident report can be used to suspend his or her license [Fahlgren v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 930, 936, 231 Cal. Rptr. 229] .

[3] Sexual Privacy

[a] Scope of Privilege

The constitutional right of sexual privacy, both within and without the marital relationship, is a fundamental liberty arising from both the United States and California constitutions. The California right has been described as a protective "zone of privacy" surrounding sexual behavior. The right to sexual privacy may be asserted by refusing to answer questions that unreasonably intrude on the right. The right is not absolute, but disclosure of sexual information cannot be compelled if disclosure would not serve the compelling state interest of facilitating truth in legal proceedings [see Vinson v. Superior Court (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 833, 841, 239 Cal. Rptr. 292, 740 P.2d 404 (mere initiation of sexual harassment suit does not waive plaintiff's sexual privacy interests)].

[b] APA Proceedings

In employment discrimination and harassment cases [see Gov. Code § 12940(h), (i)], civil service discipline cases [see Gov. Code § 19572], and civil service discrimination cases [see Gov. Code § 19702], alleging conduct that constitutes sexual harassment, sexual assault, or sexual battery, evidence of specific instances of a complainant's sexual conduct with individuals other than the alleged perpetrator is subject to the following limitations:

- The evidence is not discoverable, unless it is to be offered at a hearing to attack the credibility of the complainant [Gov. Code § 11440.40(a)(1) (only the scope of discovery is limited, not the methods of discovery)].

- The evidence is not admissible at the hearing, unless offered to attack the credibility of the complainant [Gov. Code § 11440.40(a)(2)].

Also, reputation or opinion evidence regarding the sexual behavior of the complainant is not admissible for any purpose. At the hearing, this evidence is presumed inadmissible absent an offer of proof that establishes the following [Gov. Code § 11440.40(b)]:

- The relevance and reliability of the offered evidence.

- That the probative value of the evidence offered is not substantially outweighed by the probability that its admission will create substantial danger of undue prejudice or confuse the issue.

Complainant is defined to mean a person claiming to have been subjected to conduct that constitutes sexual harassment, sexual assault, or sexual battery [Gov. Code § 11440.40(c)].

The provisions of this statute apply not only to agency hearings under Chapter 5, the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), but also to agency hearings subject to Chapter 4.5, the APA's general provisions for administrative adjudications (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)].

These include state agency evidentiary hearings that are required under federal or state constitutional provisions or under federal or state statute [Gov. Code §§ 11410.10, 11410.20; see Evid. Code §§ 783, 1106 (for similar privileges that apply to court proceedings)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityPrivilegeConstitutional LawSubstantive Due ProcessPrivacyGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesAttorney-Client PrivilegeGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesClergy CommunicationsGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesDoctor-Patient PrivilegeGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesPsychotherapist-Patient PrivilegeGeneral OverviewEvidencePrivilegesSelf-Incrimination PrivilegeGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Rules of Evidence

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.34

§ 473F.34 Exclusionary Rule

[1] General Requirements

The Fourth Amendment to the United States Constitution protects individuals from unreasonable searches and seizures [U.S. Const., amend. IV]. In Mapp v. Ohio (1961) 367 U.S. 643, 81 S. Ct. 1684, 6 L. Ed. 2d 1081 , the U.S. Supreme Court held that the protection of the Fourth Amendment extends to the states through the Fourteenth Amendment.

Thus, evidence obtained in violation of the Constitution is inadmissible in a state court [Mapp v. Ohio (1961) 367 U.S. 643, 655, 81 S. Ct. 1684, 6 L. Ed. 2d 1081] . This exclusionary rule was first applied in criminal cases [see, e.g., People v. Bilderbach (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 757, 763-764, 44 Cal. Rptr. 313, 401 P.2d 921 (discussion of exclusionary rule as applied to admissibility of marijuana found in defendant's car during illegal search)].

However, it has also been applied in selected civil proceedings. For example, it has been used in a proceeding for forfeiture of a car used in unlawful transportation of marijuana when there was a close identity to the aims and objectives of criminal law enforcement [People v. One 1960 Cadillac Coupe (1964) 62 Cal. 2d 92]. It has also been applied in a civil narcotic addict commitment proceeding that was closely identified with the aims and objectives of criminal law enforcement and the deterrent policy for applying the rule [People v. Moore (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 674, 72 Cal. Rptr. 800, 446 P.2d 800 , overruled on other grounds; People v. Thomas (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 630, 139 Cal. Rptr. 594, 566 P.2d 228] . For further discussion of the exclusionary rule, see California Criminal Defense Practice, Divisions III, IV, and IX (Matthew Bender).

[2] Application to Administrative Proceedings

[a] Factors Used to Determine Application

In contrast to criminal and civil proceedings, the exclusionary rule has generally not been applied in administrative proceedings. In Emslie v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 210, 113 Cal. Rptr. 175, 520 P.2d 991 , the California Supreme Court identified the following factors that should be balanced to determine whether the exclusionary rule applies in a particular proceeding [Emslie v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 210, 227-228, 113 Cal. Rptr. 175, 520 P.2d 991] :

- Whether the purposes of the proceeding are similar to the aims and objectives of criminal law enforcement.

- Whether application of the rule would serve any real deterrence to illegal searches and seizures in the type of case.

- The social consequences of its application.

- Whether the evidence was obtained under circumstances that shock the conscience.

Based on these factors, the Court did not apply the rule in state bar disciplinary proceedings [Emslie v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 210, 230, 113 Cal. Rptr. 175, 520 P.2d 991] . It particularly noted the lack of any deterrent effect, the social consequences of applying the rule, and the effect thereof on the integrity of the judicial process. The Court noted, however, that it is possible that the demands of due process could not countenance use of evidence obtained by unlawful means in a proceeding conducted by a governmental agency. It stated that the rules must be worked out ona case-by-case basis in this and other license revocation proceedings [Emslie v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 210, 230, 113 Cal. Rptr. 175, 520 P.2d 991] .

In an administrative parole revocation proceeding, the Court refused to apply the exclusionary rule because while some identity existed between the revocation proceedings and the aims and objectives of criminal law enforcement, practically no deterrent effect would be gained by its application [In re Martinez (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 641, 649-650, 83 Cal. Rptr. 382, 463 P.2d 734] . Similarly, because of a lack of deterrence, the exclusionary rule was not applied to the dismissal of an elementary school teacher for public sexual conduct. The court recognized the importance of teachers setting proper examples for children, and that children are entitled to special protection [Governing Board v. Metcalf (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 546, 111 Cal. Rptr. 724] .

In Gordon J. v. Santa Ana Unified School Dist. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 530, 208 Cal. Rptr. 657 , the court of appeal restated the general inapplicability of the exclusionary rule to administrative proceedings, and refused to apply the rule in high school disciplinary proceedings against a student for possession of marijuana [Gordon J. v. Santa Ana Unified School Dist. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 530, 546, 208 Cal. Rptr. 657] . The court considered the social costs in terms of harm to other students and damage to the morale of parents and teachers [Gordon J. v. Santa Ana Unified School Dist. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 530, 546, 208 Cal. Rptr. 657] . The court pointed out that while administrative penalties may also be punitive, they are primarily designed to protect the public from the practices of the offender; this distinction justifies the general rule that the remedy of exclusion is not available in administrative proceedings [Gordon J. v. Santa Ana Unified School Dist. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 530, 546, 208 Cal. Rptr. 657] .

The Fourth District, Division 3, California Court of Appeal refused to apply the exclusionary rule to exclude evidence that a driver was driving while intoxicated in a DMV administrative hearing. The driver argued that the evidence should be excluded because the arresting officer's stop of the motorist was invalid. The stop was invalid because it was based on outdated information that the driver's vehicle had been stolen. The superior court excluded the same evidence and dismissed criminal charges of driving while intoxicated against the same driver relying upon the California Supreme Court decision in People v. Ramirez (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 541, 194 Cal. Rptr. 454, 668 P.2d 761 [Park v. Valverde (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 877, 879-881, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 895] . In deciding to not apply the exclusionary rule to administrative proceedings, the court concluded that any additional deterrent value (deterring police misconduct) of applying the rule to DMV proceedings was offset by the danger to both the motorist and the public form drunk driving, given the DMV's primary responsibility to protect the public from drunk drivers by getting those drivers off the roads [Park v. Valverde (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 877, 886-888, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 895] .

In a related area, involuntary conservatorship proceedings, the California Supreme Court refused to apply the exclusionary rule to those proceedings and used the test of whether the deterrent effect of the rule outweighed its social costs [Conservatorship of Susan T. (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 1005, 1018-1021, 36 Cal. Rptr.2d 40, 884 P.2d 988] . Similarly, the California Supreme court concluded that evidence that has been ordered suppressed in a criminal proceeding under Penal Code § 1538.5(d) is admissible in a DMV license suspension administrative hearing because neither Penal Code § 1538.5(d) nor the exclusionary rule apply to administrative proceedings [Gikas v. Zolin (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 841, 858-860, 25 Cal. Rptr 2d 500, 863 P.2d 745] . The California Court of Appeal held that a police officer had reasonable cause to stop a motorist's vehicle to investigate erratic driving based on a call from an anonymous cell phone user. Therefore evidence of the motorist driving while intoxicated that was obtained by the police officer as a result of that stop was admissible in an administrative hearing conducted by the Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) to suspend the motorist's license for drunken driving. The court of Appeal did not decide whether the criminal law exclusionary rule applied to DMV administrative hearings [Lowry v. Gutierrez (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 926, 929-930, 28 Cal. Rptr. 3d 912] .

[b] Administrative Inspections

The Fourth Amendment also prohibits unreasonable searches without a warrant in the form of an administrative inspection [Camara v. Municipal Court (1967) 387 U.S. 523, 534, 87 S. Ct. 1727, 18 L. Ed. 2d 930 (inspection of personal residence); See v. Seattle (1967) 387 U.S. 541, 545-546, 87 S. Ct. 1737, 18 L. Ed. 2d 943 (inspection of commercial premises)].

If evidence obtained during an illegal administrative inspection is offered in an administrative proceeding, the factors set out in Emslie v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 210, 113 Cal. Rptr. 175, 520 P.2d 991 [see [a], above] should be used to determine if the evidence should be excluded.

Although that evidence generally will not be excluded, the balance may be different if an administrative agency is doing the inspection. Specifically, the deterrence factor may be more important. Although criminal authorities may not consider the effect that an illegal search and seizure will have on a later administrative proceeding before conducting the illegal search, administrative authorities would be more aware of the administrative implications. It should be noted, however, that the granting of many licenses by the state is subject to the condition and implied consent of the licensee that the premises, books, and records related to the licensed activity are open for inspection in order to effectively supervise and regulate the activity. Reasonable inspection is often required by the statutes regulating the licensed activity. The absence of a warrant would not necessarily mean an administrative inspection is illegal [see Rush v. Obledo (9th Cir. 1985) 756 F.2d 713, 722 (statute permitting warrantless searches of licensed day-care facilities did not violate Fourth Amendment, when regulation limited time and place of searches)].

Further, not all routine administrative investigations are considered unreasonable without an administrative warrant [see, e.g., Wyman v. James (1971) 400 U.S. 309, 91 S. Ct. 381, 27 L. Ed. 2d 408 (routine visit by caseworker to home of AFDC recipient was not unreasonable search in violation of Fourth Amendment); People v. Firstenberg (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 570, 155 Cal. Rptr. 80 , cert. denied, 444 U.S. 1012, 100 S. Ct. 660, 62 L. Ed. 2d 641 (1980) (warrantless inspection of licensed nursing facility was not unreasonable search in violation of Fourth Amendment, when statutory inspection provisions limited time, place, and scope of search)].

For a more extensive discussion of administrative inspections and the constitutional requirements for use of warrants, see Ch. 471A, Inspections by Public Agencies .

[c] Vicarious Exclusionary Rule

In the past, the "vicarious exclusionary rule" was applied in California to give criminal defendants standing to object to the introduction of evidence seized in violation of the rights of a third person, rather than just the rights of the defendant [People v. Martin (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 755, 290 P.2d 855] .

The truth-in-evidence provision of Proposition 8 [Cal. Const., art. I, § 28(d)] abrogated that rule [In re Lance W. (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 873, 210 Cal. Rptr. 631, 694 P.2d 744] . Since the vicarious exclusionary rule no longer applies in criminal proceedings, it is extremely unlikely that it will apply in administrative proceedings [see Pating v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 608, 624-625, 182 Cal. Rptr. 20 (in case decided before Proposition 8, court refused to apply vicarious exclusionary rule, citing lack of authority for extension of criminal rule to civil administrative proceedings)].

[d] Guidelines for Objecting to Illegally Obtained Evidence

Counsel should object to illegally obtained evidence at the administrative level [Savoy Club v. Board of Supervisors (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 1042, 91 Cal. Rptr. 198] , in accordance with the following guidelines:

- Raise a search and seizure issue as early in the administrative proceeding as possible.

- A written motion in limine to exclude evidence made in advance of the hearing or during a prehearing conference is appropriate.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency InvestigationsConstitutional RightsSearch & SeizureAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeInspectionsConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsSearch & SeizureExclusionary RuleConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsSearch & SeizureScope of ProtectionConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsSearch & SeizureWarrants

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Rules of Evidence

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.35

§ 473F.35 Illegally Obtained Confessions and Entrapment

With respect to both the exclusion of an illegally obtained confession or admission in an administrative proceeding and the availability of an entrapment defense in such a proceeding, factors similar to those set out in Emslie v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 210, 113 Cal. Rptr. 175, 520 P.2d 991 [see § 473F.34[2][a]], should be considered.

The California Supreme Court has held that exclusion of an illegally obtained confession is not necessary in an administrative parole revocation proceeding, but exclusion may result if the confession had been coerced or had resulted from egregious police conduct [In re Martinez (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 641, 650, 83 Cal. Rptr. 382, 463 P.2d 734 ; see Emslie v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 210, 227, 113 Cal. Rptr. 175, 520 P.2d 991] .

In an administrative license revocation proceeding, the California Supreme Court held that the defense of entrapment is available because of the social policy that the state has no business fostering crime, and because the state objective of ferreting out physicians who engage in illegal drug traffic is not furthered by entrapment of a doctor who would otherwise not have engaged in such traffic [Patty v. Board of Medical Examiners (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 356, 107 Cal. Rptr. 473, 508 P.2d 1121 ; see Emslie v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 210, 229, 113 Cal. Rptr. 175, 520 P.2d 991] .

In a workers' compensation proceeding, the California Supreme Court excluded a movie obtained by fraudulent inducements of private investigators. The deceitful inducements caused the applicant to engage in the filmed activities [Redner v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 83, 97, 95 Cal. Rptr. 447, 485 P.2d 799 (movie showed applicant riding horseback, despite claims of disability)].

In State Bar proceedings, the entrapment defense has been held not to apply when no employees of the State Bar played a role in the entrapment [Wong v. State Bar (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 528, 531, 125 Cal. Rptr. 482, 542 P.2d 642] .

The entrapment defense in administrative proceedings requires proof that the law enforcement officers conducted themselves in ways, such as pressuring the person by overbearing conduct such as badgering, cajoling, or importuning the person, that were likely to induce a normally law abiding person to commit an illegal act. It is not enough to prove that only an opportunity to act improperly was given to the person [Arellanes v. Civil Service Com. (1996) 41 Cal.

App. 4th 1208, 1216-1217, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73 (deputy sheriff failed to prove that his discharge was due to entrapment) citing People v. Lee (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 829, 835, 268 Cal. Rptr. 595] .

The exclusion of illegally obtained confessions and admissions and the availability of the entrapment defense are issues decided on a case-by-case basis. Like the exclusionary rule, these issues should be raised as early as possible.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityConstitutional ProtectionsHealthcare LawBusiness Administration & OrganizationLicensesRevocation & SuspensionLegal EthicsSanctionsDisciplinary ProceedingsHearingsWorkers' Compensation & SSDIAdministrative ProceedingsFraud

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Rules of Evidence

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.36

§ 473F.36 Presumptions

[1] Nature and Types

Although the APA does not mention presumptions, the presumptions applicable to court proceedings [see Evid. Code §§ 600-669.5] have been applied in administrative proceedings.

A presumption is not evidence; it is an assumption of fact that the law requires to be made from another fact, or group of facts, established in the case [Evid. Code § 600(a)]. In contrast, inferences are rational deductions of fact drawn from other established facts that are not required by law [Evid. Code § 600(b)].

Some presumptions can be conclusive [Evid. Code § 601]. For example, the facts recited in a written instrument (recitals) are conclusively presumed to be true as between the parties to that instrument, or their successors [Evid. Code § 622]. Most presumptions are rebuttable [see Evid. Code §§ 601-602]. Many statutes providing that a fact or group of facts is prima facie evidence of another fact create rebuttable presumptions [Evid. Code § 602].

[2] Rebuttable Presumptions

Some rebuttable presumptions affect the burden of producing evidence. In administrative proceedings, they require the ALJ to apply the presumption unless other evidence contradicts the assumed fact. If the other evidence is substantial so that the contrary of the presumption could properly be found, the presumption drops out of the ALJ's decision making process and the formerly assumed fact is simply determined on all the evidence [Evid. Code § 604].

In that case, if the party relying on the original presumption produced no independent evidence to support it, the formerly assumed fact could not be found. Further, the burden of proof would not change. If the evidence is not sufficient to meet a party's burden of proof regarding the formerly assumed fact, the other party will prevail. Other rebuttable presumptions affect the burden of proof itself. When they apply, the other party has the burden of proof to show the nonexistence of the assumed fact [Evid. Code § 606].

The other party must not only put on substantial evidence to support a finding of nonexistence, but must also carry the burden of proof on the issue [see Evid. Code § 550]. The party with the burden of proof on an issue takes the risk of losing if there is a failure of proof.

It is therefore important to determine the type of rebuttable presumption. Presumptions affecting the burden of producing evidence are used simply to facilitate the determination of a particular issue [Evid. Code § 603]. For example, the presumption that letters properly addressed and mailed were received is such a presumption [Evid. Code § 641]. Presumptions established to implement some public policy, other than the determination of a particular issue, affect the burden of proof [Evid. Code § 605].

For example, an employer who fails to secure the payment of workers' compensation is presumed negligent [Lab. Code § 3708]. This presumption is clearly based on public policy and affects the burden of proof. In a dental license suspension case, the court applied the rebuttable presumption that the law has been obeyed [Messner v. Board of Dental Examiners (1927) 87 Cal. App. 199, 205, 262 P. 58] .

A similar rebuttable presumption, applied in an action to suspend or revoke a securities broker's certificate, is the presumption against fraud [Abrams v. Daugherty (1922) 60 Cal. App. 297, 304, 212 P. 942] . There is also a presumption of fair dealing [Transportation Bldg. Co. v. Daugherty (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 604, 614, 169 P.2d 470] . A rebuttable presumption that the regular course of business was followed affects the burden of producing evidence. That presumption has been applied in a liquor license suspension case [Kirby v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1017, 87 Cal. Rptr. 908] .

Similarly, it is presumed that administrative agencies have properly performed their duties [Martin v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 259, 264, 341 P.2d 291 ; Utah Construction Co. v. Richardson (1921) 187 Cal. 649, 654, 203 P. 401] .

For example, the Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) can rely on the official duty presumption provided by Evid. Code § 664 when police officers comply with the requirements of Title 17 [17 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1219 to 1221.5] to conduct breath tests to determine the blood alcohol level of drivers arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol. When the presumption is applicable, the test results are presumed to be valid, the test results are admissible in evidence, and the DMV does not have to provide any additional evidence to support the test results. At that point, the driver may rebut the presumption by offering evidence that Title 17 was, in fact, not complied with, notwithstanding the presumption. If the driver is successful, then the presumption is rebutted, and the test results are not admissible, absent additional foundational evidence being offered by the DMV. If the driver is not successful, than the presumption is not rebutted, the evidence is admissible, and the DMV's license suspension decision is supported by substantial evidence [Hernandez v. Gutierrez (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 168, 172-173, 176, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 307 (driver failed to rebut presumption of official duty by failing to show lack of compliance with requirements of Title 17)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewEvidenceInferences & PresumptionsPresumptionsEvidenceInferences & PresumptionsRebuttal of PresumptionsEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Rules of Evidence

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.37

§ 473F.37 Affidavits

Agencies often use affidavits to avoid bringing in witnesses to testify to records, files, and computerized information. Agencies may use them in default cases without giving any notice to the defaulting party [Gov. Code § 11520(a)].

In a APA administrative hearing, affidavits, which would otherwise be hearsay, may be treated as oral testimony in two circumstances. First, the parties may stipulate to so treat them. Second, Gov. Code § 11514 requires a party to mail or deliver a copy of any affidavit that the party proposes to introduce into evidence, together with a notice regarding the opposing party's right to cross-examine the affiant [Gov. Code § 11514(b)] to the opposing party at least 10 days before the hearing [Gov. Code § 11514(a); see § 473F.90, for a form that can be used to give notice].

If a party fails to satisfy the mailing or delivering within 10 days requirement, then the affidavit can not be admitted into evidence at the hearing [McNary v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 688, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 55] . If the party meets the 10 day requirement, then the opposing party will waive any right to cross-examine the affiant unless he or she mails or delivers a request to cross-examine to the proponent within seven days following the proponent's mailing or delivery of the affidavit and notice [Gov. Code § 11514(a)].

If such a waiver occurs, the proponent can offer the affidavit at the hearing, and it will be given the same effect as if the affiant had testified orally [Gov. Code § 11514(a)]. If the opposing party properly requests cross-examination but the proponent does not physically produce the affiant as a witness at the hearing, the affidavit can still be introduced into evidence, but as administrative hearsay [Gov. Code § 11514(a); Monaghan v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1995) 35 Cal. App. 4th 1621, 1626-1627, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 167 ; see Windigo Mills v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 586, 598, 155 Cal. Rptr. 63 (court applied rule similar to that contained in APA to Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board, which is not governed by the APA); see also § 473F.32 (administrative hearsay)].

This statutory administrative hearsay exception does not restrict admission in administrative hearings of evidence that is hearsay but that satisfies other exceptions to the hearsay rule [Poland v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1139, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693] . To assure the right to cross-examine, therefore, the opposing party should subpoena the affiant.

If an affidavit is used like oral testimony, it may still be subject to objection for reasons other than hearsay. For example, parts of it may not be the sort of evidence "on which responsible persons are accustomed to rely in the conduct of serious affairs" [Gov. Code § 11513(c); see § 473F.31[1]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityHearsayEvidenceHearsayExceptionsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Rules of Evidence

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.38

§ 473F.38 Official Notice

[1] Nature of Official Notice

In reaching a decision in a APA proceeding, the ALJ and agency may take "official notice" of any fact that may be judicially noticed by a court [see Evid. Code §§ 450-460 (judicial notice)], and of any generally accepted technical or scientific matter within the agency's special field [Gov. Code § 11515].

Like judicial notice in court proceedings, the use of official notice in administrative proceedings establishes a relevant law or fact without the necessity of formal proof. Officially noticed facts can be used to contradict other facts and can be the basis of a finding of fact [Mack v. State Board of Education (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 370, 373, 36 Cal. Rptr. 677] . Official notice can be substituted for expert testimony [Franz v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 124, 140, 181 Cal. Rptr. 732, 642 P.2d 792] . Official notice can also be taken in non-APA hearings [Cantrell v. Board of Supervisors (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 471, 477, 197 P.2d 218] .

[2] Matters Subject to Official Notice

Matters that may be officially noticed include the following:

- Matters of scientific certainty [McAllister v. Workmen's Comp. App. Bd. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 408, 414, 71 Cal. Rptr. 697, 445 P.2d 313 (fact that smoke is visible because it contains incompletely oxidized materials may be officially noticed)].

- An agency's own files and records [Broyles v. Mahon (1925) 72 Cal. App. 484, 491, 237 P. 763] .

- The existence and contents of permits and license ordinances [Greif v. Dullea (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 986, 998, 153 P.2d 581] .

- Matters within the expertise of board members [Franz v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 124, 140, 181 Cal. Rptr. 732, 642 P.2d 792 (lay board members were qualified to determine whether actions of hospital were grossly negligent); Arenstein v. California State Bd. of Pharmacy (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 179, 194, 71 Cal. Rptr. 357 (ingredients of drug and whether it constitutes dangerous drug under statute was scientific matter within special field of State Board of Pharmacy)].

[3] Notice and Opportunity to Refute

The agency or ALJ may take official notice of a matter either before or after submission of a case [Gov. Code § 11515]. The parties present at the hearing must be informed of the matters to be officially noticed, and those matters must be noted or referred to in the record or appended to the record [Gov. Code § 11515]. On request, parties must be given a reasonable opportunity to refute the officially noticed matters by evidence or by written or oral presentation of authority. The agency may determine the manner of refutation [Gov. Code § 11515]. See § 473F.92, for a form requesting opportunity to refute officially noticed matters.

If a party wants the ALJ or agency to take official notice of a matter, he or she must make a request and give notice to the other party. The notice to the parties may be given orally or in writing. It must be complete and specific enough to give an effective opportunity for rebuttal, and help build a record adequate for judicial review.

The administrative record or decision should indicate what matters were officially noticed on the basis of agency expertise [Franz v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 124, 140, 181 Cal. Rptr. 732, 642 P.2d 792] . If the request and notice come after the matter is submitted and the record is closed, the record must be reopened to give the other party a reasonable opportunity to refute the matter with evidence or other authority [Gov. Code § 11515]. For an example of a party's request for official notice, see § 473F.91.

It is common in administrative hearings for agency counsel to request the ALJ to take official notice of matters in the pleadings, such as the name of the complainant, the capacity in which the complainant made the accusation or statement of issues, and statutory and regulatory matter set out in the pleadings. Counsel generally makes an oral request to notice such matters at the beginning of the hearing, and, in the absence of a proper objection, the ALJ normally grants the request.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceOfficial NoticeEvidenceJudicial NoticeGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Rules of Evidence

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.39

§ 473F.39 Mitigation, Extenuation, and Rehabilitation Evidence

[1] General Requirements

In many administrative proceedings, particularly those involving licensing, evidence of mitigation, extenuation, and rehabilitation is more important than evidence disproving a code violation. It is both necessary and entirely appropriate for a respondent's attorney to put on strong mitigation, extenuation, and rehabilitation evidence at the same time allegations of any wrongdoing are being contested. This evidence often achieves a client's ultimate goal of retaining or acquiring a license, even though the license may be conditioned or subject to terms of probation. The respondent has greatest control over this type of evidence.

[2] Mitigation and Extenuation Evidence

[a] Use of Evidence

Mitigation and extenuation evidence are similar. Mitigation evidence reduces moral culpability for a violation of the law. Extenuation evidence renders a violation less aggravated or reprehensible. Both can affect an administrative penalty. Mitigation evidence is not admissible to justify or excuse the violation; it only goes to moral culpability and penalty [Richards v. Gordon (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 735, 742, 62 Cal. Rptr. 466] . For example, mitigation evidence cannot be used to deny a criminal conviction [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 493 (record of conviction is conclusive evidence of the fact that the conviction occurred)].

[b] Examples of Evidence

Mitigation and extenuation evidence in licensing cases can include evidence of the following:

- The facts and circumstances surrounding the commission of a crime [Bus. & Prof. Code § 493 (board may inquire into circumstances surrounding commission of crime to fix the degree of discipline)].

- The economic, employment, professional, and personal consequences to the respondent and to others that certain penalties will have.

- The respondent's professional reputation, license history, and employment record.

- The respondent's attempt to mitigate injuries to others.

- The respondent's good faith [O'Reilly v. Board of Medical Examiners (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 381, 388, 58 Cal. Rptr. 7, 426 P.2d 167 (doctor's unprofessional conduct in allowing unlicensed doctors to practice medicine was mitigated by his good faith in allowing them to "assist" him)].

- The respondent's personal history and reputation.

[c] Presentation of Evidence

Mitigation and extenuation evidence are usually presented during a respondent's defense. Counsel may use affidavits or written statements. If they are not otherwise admissible, the agency counsel may stipulate to their introduction, usually as administrative hearsay [Gov. Code § 11513(c); see § 473F.32], rather than a substitute for oral testimony.

Former Gov. Code. Code § 11520(b), relating to the right of a defaulting respondent to make a showing by way of mitigation, is superseded by the procedures to cure a default under Gov. Code § 11520(b), (c). Under those procedures, as explained § 473F.17[1][a], and [b], the ALJ or agency have discretion to:

- Grant a hearing notwithstanding respondent's default [Gov. Code § 11520(b)].

- Vacate a decision and grant a new hearing [Gov. Code § 11520(c) (agency only)].

The respondent may make a showing by way of mitigation as a defense in the hearing [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 251 (1995)]. What this means is that if respondent wants to present a mitigation defense and mitigation evidence, he or she has to invoke the procedures to cure a default under Gov. Code § 11520(b), (c), to be able to do so.

[3] Rehabilitation Evidence

[a] Nature of Evidence

Rehabilitation evidence concerns the restoration of dignity and capacity. It relates only to what an individual has done since a violation that might provide justification for the agency to completely or partially ignore that violation. Rehabilitation evidence is especially important in license application cases. Conduct that would have prevented an individual from obtaining a license in the past may not affect the present, due to intervening time and efforts on the part of the individual to become entitled to the license. Because of the time that elapses between conduct that subjects a licensee to discipline and the actual discipline, rehabilitation evidence may also be presented to help determine an appropriate discipline when it is imposed. Rehabilitation evidence is the primary evidence presented in reinstatement and reduction of penalty hearings [see Gov. Code § 11522 (reinstatement and reduction procedures)].

[b] Criteria for Rehabilitation

Some agencies have regulations that set out criteria, relating directly to the licensed activity, to evaluate the rehabilitation of a licensee [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 480 (board may deny a license based on conviction of a crime or act of fraud or deceit)]. The key to showing rehabilitation is showing changed behavior by evidence of affirmative action on the part of the respondent [Housman v. Board of Medical Examiners (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 308, 318, 190 P.2d 653] . Some general rehabilitation evidence includes the following:

- The respondent's activities since the offensive conduct including personal stability, employment history, community involvement, educational and rehabilitation programs.

- The respondent's acceptance of responsibility for the past conduct and current attitude toward it.

- The respondent's current reputation, both generally and with respect to the past conduct.

- The time that has elapsed since the past conduct without other problems of a similar nature, and respondent's efforts to avoid those problems.

If an agency has established specific criteria for evaluating rehabilitation, evidence should be directed to these criteria [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 480(b) (license cannot be denied if person has met all of rehabilitation criteria developed by a board regulated by the Business and Professions Code)].

No person can be denied a license solely on the basis of a felony conviction, if a certificate of rehabilitation has been received [Bus. & Prof. Code § 480(b); see Penal Code § 4852.01 (certificate of rehabilitation)].

[4] Admissions of Liability

In adjudicative proceedings subject to Chapter 4 (commencing with Gov. Code § 11400) or Chapter 5 (commencing with Gov. Code § 11500), the portion of statements, writings, or benevolent gestures expressing sympathy or a general sense of benevolence relating to the pain, suffering, or death of a person involved in an accident and made to that person or to the family of that person shall be inadmissible as evidence of an admission of liability. A statement of fault, however, which is part of, or in addition to, any of the above shall not be inadmissible pursuant to this section [Gov. Code § 11440.45(a); Evid. Code § 1160]. "Accident" is defined to mean an occurrence resulting in injury or death to one or more persons which is not the result of willful action by a party [Gov. Code § 11440.45(b)(1)]. "Benevolent gestures" are defined to mean actions which convey a sense of compassion or commiseration emanating from humane impulses [Gov. Code § 11440.45(b)(2)]. "Family" is defined to mean the spouse, parent, grandparent, stepmother, stepfather, child, grandchild, brother, sister, half brother, half sister, adopted children of parent, or spouse's parents of an injured party [Gov. Code § 11440.45(b)(3)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsLicensesGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Rules of Evidence

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.40

§ 473F.40 Views

[1] Use in Administrative Proceedings

Code Civ. Proc. § 651 provides that a court may order a judge or jury to view property, places, objects, experiments, or demonstrations [Code Civ. Proc. § 651].

Although the APA is silent on taking views outside the hearing room, parties to administrative proceedings sometimes request the ALJ to take views. The ALJ may grant the request if there is a real need for the view, and the need is not outweighed by the time it will consume. Often, however, the view is not really needed because it would constitute cumulative evidence [see § 473F.31[4]], and the time it takes would be wasteful. Therefore, counsel should carefully address both of these concerns in the request for the view. ALJs are sometimes skeptical about the value of a view.

In the context of special education law, the California Court of Appeal held that expert observation of a proposed special education placement for autistic child before a due process hearing was required, and it was improper for the superior court to deny an order compelling the school district to allow the expert hired by the parents of the child to observe the proposed placement before the due process hearing [Benjamin G. v. California Special Ed. Hearing Office (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 875, 883-884, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 366] . While expert observation is not the same as a view, and this precedent is limited to the area of special education law, observation of a building or an accident scene may be useful to preparation for a hearing.

[2] Entering on Record

Making views a part of the record is also difficult. Conversations during the view must be reported or otherwise placed into the record [see Code Civ. Proc. § 651(b) (proceedings at a view must be recorded to the same extent as courtroom proceedings)].

A possible alternative to actually reporting during the view is to carefully put on the record, before the view takes place, exactly what the parties want the ALJ to see during the view. The ALJ may then be able to take the view without additional conversation on the record. After the view, the ALJ can put on the record exactly what was seen. Other procedures are possible and may be stipulated to as long as the record is complete. Any finding of fact based on a view must be supported by the record. See Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions , for a discussion of the record for decision.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityGeneral OverviewEvidenceDemonstrative EvidenceGeneral OverviewEvidenceRelevanceConfusion, Prejudice & Waste of Time

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Rules of Evidence

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.41

§ 473F.41 Res Judicata and Collateral Estoppel

[1] Nature of Doctrines

A decision in a prior administrative or judicial proceeding may be admitted to determine a later collateral administrative or judicial proceeding under the doctrine of collateral estoppel. Collateral estoppel precludes a party from relitigating in a second proceeding matters litigated and determined in a prior proceeding [Teitelbaum Furs, Inc. v. Dominion Ins. Co., Ltd. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 601, 604, 25 Cal. Rptr. 559, 375 P.2d 439 ; Lucido v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 335, 347-348, 272 Cal. Rptr. 767, 795 P. 2d 1223 (collateral estoppel was not applicable to preclude subsequent criminal prosecution of individual when same issue arose at probation revocation hearing and probation was not revoked. This was because of public policy including the integrity of judicial determinations); Castillo v. City of Los Angeles (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 477, 481-483, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 870 (issue preclusion (collateral estoppel) based on prior administrative adjudication of same issue, whether discharge was for good cause, applied to preclude subsequent civil lawsuit for wrongful discharge because the issues were the same, the issues were actually and necessarily litigated; the judgment in the administrative proceedings were final and on the merits)].

Collateral estoppel is a secondary aspect of res judicata, the doctrine that bars a second suit on the same cause of action between the same parties or parties in privity with them [Clark v. Lesher (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 874, 880, 299 P.2d 865 ; for discussion of res judicata and the consequences of failing to seek judicial review of an administrative determination, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions]. Collateral estoppel focuses on issues litigated, while res judicata focus on causes of action.

A workers' compensation claimant filed a worker's compensation claim before the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board (WCAB) against an illegally uninsured employer while at the same time filing a civil action in Superior Court for negligence against the same employer as authorized by Labor Code § 3706. The claimant settled the civil action for $20,000 without seeking approval of the WCAB as to the settlement, and the civil action was dismissed with prejudice. The employer then moved to dismiss the worker's compensation claim based on the settlement of the Superior Court action. The Court of Appeal held that res judicata principles did not require the dismissal of the worker's compensation claim. The civil action for negligence and the worker's compensation claim were based on two different primary rights, and were therefore different claims. The court also held that the legislature had intended cumulative remedies to be available for workers in these cases, in which an employer was illegally uninsured [Le Parc Community Association v. Workers' Compensation Appeals Board (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1161, 1171-1174, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 408] .

Res judicata has barred the relitigation in a collateral civil proceeding of a zoning issue previously decided by a city board of permit appeals [City and County of San Francisco v. Ang (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 673, 159 Cal. Rptr. 56] . It has also barred a second appeal to an administrative board on the issue of timeliness of the first appeal to the same administrative board when no statute provided for reconsideration [Hollywood Circle, Inc. v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 728, 13 Cal. Rptr. 104, 361 P.2d 712] .

A party's failure to challenge adverse findings of a quasi-judicial administrative agency proceeding by means of a mandate action in the superior court means that those findings are binding in a later civil action [Westlake Community Hosp. v. Superior Court (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 465, 484, 131 Cal. Rptr. 90, 551 P.2d 410 ; Risam v. County of Los Angeles (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 412, 419-420, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 267 (employee's failure to challenge agency decision finding no FEHA violation bound employee and prohibited later civil action by employee alleging FEHA violation)]. When a public employee files discrimination claims against a public employer based on the California Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) [Gov. Code § 12900], and based on Title VII of the Federal Civil Rights Act of 1964 (Title VII) [42 U.S.C. § 2000e], the employee's failure to have the public employer agency's final adverse findings judicially reviewed and set aside means that those adverse findings are binding on the public employee in a later civil action as to claims under the California FEHA, but the adverse findings are not binding as to claims under Title VII. [Johnson v. City of Loma Linda (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 61, 65-66, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316, 5 P.3d 874 ; Miller v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 169 Cal. App. 4th 1373, 1380-1382, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 510 (citing the Johnson case; discharged employee's FEHA complaint was barred by former employee's failure to timely file a petition for administrative mandamus to challenge decision of Board of Civil Service Commissioners; former employee withdrew from administrative hearing process after hearing officer had submitted report recommending discharge of the former employee); Brand v. Regents of the University of California (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1349, 1368-1370, 72 Cal. Rptr.3d 419 (citing the Johnson case; internal grievance decision denying employee's grievances did not have collateral estoppel impact on later lawsuit by employee against university employer for damages for unlawful retaliation under whistleblower protection statute. This was because the fact-finding procedures used in the grievance process did not have judicial or quasi-judicial character necessary for collateral estoppel to apply)].

The California Court of Appeal relied on the Johnson decision to hold that a city firefighter who was dismissed for cause was precluded from relitigating in later court actions adverse determinations made by the city council because the firefighter failed to seek judicial review and failed to overturn the city council decision. Thus, the principles of issue preclusion prohibit the firefighter from relitigating issues determined against him in the city council dismissal decision [Smith v. City of Napa (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 194, 198-199, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 908] . However, the California Supreme Court held that a state employee pursuing a whistleblower retaliation complaint under Gov. Code § 8547.8 against agency officials where the state employee worked was only required to pursue a complaint with the State Personnel Board under Gov. Code § 19683. The employee was not required to request a hearing before an ALJ working for the State Personnel Board (SPB), nor was the employee required to seek judicial review under administrative mandamus before filing a civil action for damages based on whistleblower retaliation. The employee was only required to receive the findings of the executive officer of the SPB based on review of the complaint. The employee was not required to exhaust administrative or judicial remedies to challenge those findings before filing a civil lawsuit. Furthermore, the executive officer's findings (which were adverse to the employee) were not binding on the employee as a matter of issue preclusion because the executive officer's findings were not a final judgment following an administrative hearing [State Board of Chiropractic Examiners v. Superior Court (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 963, 968, 973, 89 Cal. Rptr. 3d 576, 201 P. 3d 457] .

Similarly, although the doctrine of collateral estoppel developed to give conclusive effect to a prior court adjudication, the California Supreme Court has held that it also applies when the prior adjudication was administrative [People v.

Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 477, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321 ; Bronco Wine Co. v. Frank A. Logoluso Farms (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 699, 708, 262 Cal. Rptr. 899 ; Oquendo v. California Institution for Women (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 520, 523, 260 Cal. Rptr. 688] .

[2] Application to Administrative Hearings

[a] Required Elements

The California Supreme Court reaffirmed the continued validity under stare decisis (precedent decision) of the court's previous decision in People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321 , which applied collateral estoppel provisions to administrative agency decisions and holding that a subsequent criminal prosecution for the same misconduct could be precluded by collateral estoppel when the agency decision exonerated the welfare recipient of welfare fraud charges [People v. Garcia (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1070, 1074, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 75, 141 P.3d 197] . The California Supreme Court concluded that the continued validity of People v. Sims was not affected by 1984 statutory amendments to Welf. & Inst. Code § 11483 because the state of California had the discretion to seek restitution first or prosecution first under those amendments [People v. Garcia (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1070, 1082-1083, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 75, 141 P.3d 197] . The California Supreme Court also concluded that the continued validity of People v. Sims was not affected by the 1990 California Supreme Court decision in Lucido v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 335, 272 Cal. Rptr. 767, 795 P. 2d 1223 in which the court held that collateral estoppel did not prohibit relitigation in a criminal proceeding of an issue previously litigated in a probation revocation hearing in which the defendant prevailed [People v. Garcia (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1070, 1083-1084, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 75, 141 P.3d 197] . However, the doctrine of collateral estoppel precluded relitigation in a criminal prosecution for welfare fraud and perjury of issues that were actually litigated and necessarily determined in a prior administrative proceeding [People v. Garcia (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1070, 1089, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 75, 141 P.3d 197] . The California Supreme Court remanded the case to the Court of Appeal to determine whether the issues actually litigated in the administrative proceeding were identical to the issues in the criminal proceeding. The Court of Appeal on remand is required to determine whether the same issues of welfare fraud and perjury were litigated in the administrative proceeding as were litigated in the criminal proceeding in which the defendant welfare recipient was convicted of welfare fraud and perjury after the agency decision determined that welfare overpayments were the result of administrative error [People v. Garcia (2006) 39 Cal. 4th 1070, 1090-1091, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 75, 141 P.3d 197] .

The California Court of Appeal held that a public transportation authority was not collaterally estopped from litigating the issue of the composition of a public employee bargaining unit that included supervisors and managers because there was a prior proceeding in which the department of industrial relations identified as the existing bargaining unit five years prior to the current proceeding. Collateral estoppel did not apply because the appealing parties failed to satisfy their burden of proof to show that the same issue was actually litigated in the prior proceeding. This was because the record of the prior proceeding was incomplete, and the court could not determine to what extent this same issue was actually litigated in the prior proceeding [Santa Clara Valley Trans. Auth. v. Rea (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1303, 1311-1313, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 511] .

In People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321 , the California Supreme Court held that an administrative Department of Social Services "fair hearing" decision, which exonerated a welfare recipient of fraud charges, collaterally estopped a subsequent criminal prosecution for the same misconduct. The Court adopted the principle that collateral estoppel may be applied to decisions made by administrative agencies when (1) the administrative agency is acting in a judicial capacity, (2) the agency resolves disputed issues of fact properly before it, and (3) all parties have had an adequate opportunity to litigate their claims [People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 479, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321] .

The court stated that application of collateral estoppel to these administrative decisions comports with the public policy underlying the doctrine of limiting litigation by preventing a party who has had one fair trial on an issue from again drawing it into controversy [People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 479, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321] . The Court found (1) that the Department of Social Services hearing was a judicial-like adversary proceeding because of the procedures it followed and the adjudicatory nature of the hearing officer's decision, (2) that the Department had statutory jurisdiction to decide the disputed issues of fact, and (3) that the fair hearing provided the parties an adequate opportunity to fully litigate their claims [People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 479-481, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321] .

The Court also found that the three requirements of traditional collateral estoppel had been met: (1) the issue decided at the previous proceeding was identical to the one sought to be litigated, (2) the administrative decision resulted in a final judgment on the merits, and (3) the party against whom collateral estoppel was asserted was a party or in privity with a party at the prior proceeding, because the county (which litigated in the fair hearing), and district attorney's office (which sought to prosecute the criminal proceeding), were both county agencies representing the interests of the state [People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 484-487, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321 ; see Lerner v. Los Angeles City Board of Education (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 382, 398, 29 Cal. Rptr. 657, 380 P.2d 97 (agents of the same government are in privity with each other, since they represent the right of the government); Pitts v. City of Sacramento (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 853, 858, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 838 (issue preclusion did not apply to police officer's second mandate proceeding, as findings on this issue in a prior lawsuit were not essential to the judgment because the appellate court affirmed the prior judgment on a different basis than this particular issue); Bronco Wine Co. v. Frank A. Logoluso Farms (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 699, 708, 262 Cal. Rptr. 899 (collateral estoppel not applicable because issues were not identical); City of Gilroy v. State Bd. of Equalization (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 589, 605-606, 260 Cal. Rptr. 723 (collateral estoppel not applicable because party to be estopped was neither a party to nor in privity with a party to the prior determination); Carmel Valley Fire Protection Dist. v. State of California (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 521, 536, 234 Cal. Rptr. 795 (the various state agencies are agents of the state in privity with other state agencies)].

A dental patient acted as an assignee of the dentist and asserted a claim against the dentist's professional liability insurer for breach of contract for refusing to defend or indemnify dentist in the dental patient's underlying tort action for sexual misconduct against the dentist. The Court of Appeal held that the patient was collaterally estopped from asserting in the action against the insurer that the dentist's conduct was negligent and therefore within the scope of risks covered by the insurance policy. Collateral estoppel was based on the Dental Board's findings that the dentist had sexually abused the patient, and that the dentist was found to have committed intentional misconduct with the patient. Those findings were contained in a Dental Board decision that was final, and that was preceded by a full adversary adjudicatory hearing before an ALJ who took testimony and made findings that the dentist's conduct was intentional and sexually motivated. The patient litigated these issues in the ALJ hearing. Therefore, she is bound by the agency findings, and she is estopped to deny that the conduct of the dentist was intentional. The patient is the dentists' assignee in this action, and she is held to be in privity with the dentist, and equally estopped as a privy as she would be as a party [Marie Y. v. General Star Indemnity Co. (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 928, 954-956, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 135] .

The Court of Appeal held that a contractor licensee regulated by the Contractor's State License Board (CSLB) was judicially estopped from asserting in a civil lawsuit that he had withdrawn from completing a development project based on advice of counsel when the contractor had taken an inconsistent position before the CSLB and had asserted that he had not abandoned the project. The Board concluded that there was no basis for disciplining the contractor licensee because of lack of proof that the contractor had abandoned the project. The court of appeal concluded that judicial estoppel applied because the two positions taken by the contractor were inconsistent. The court also noted that collateral estoppel may apply and lead to the same result [Furia v. Helm (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 945, 957-959] .

It should also be noted that the issues presented in an administrative proceeding are often different from those in companion criminal prosecutions and civil cases. Courts have refused to apply the Sims rule when the issues in the different proceedings were not identical [see People v. Wilson (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 1149, 1157, 215 Cal. Rptr. 694 (issue in administrative hearing was termination of welfare benefits due to financial disqualification; the issue in the subsequent criminal case was welfare fraud and perjury); People v. Rodriguez (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 650, 653, 206

Cal. Rptr. 79 (issue at administrative hearing was termination of AFDC and food stamp benefits based on husband's residency on particular date; issue in criminal complaint was welfare fraud based on different residency dates)].

As discussed in [b], below, the issues in criminal and administrative proceedings may not be identical due to the different burden of proof. Thus, for example, the California Supreme court held that dismissal of criminal charges for drunk driving by a court, based on its determination that the arrest of defendant for driving while intoxicated was unlawful, did not preclude the administrative agency (DMV), from relitigating the issue of the lawfulness of the arrest in administrative proceedings that the agency held to determine whether to suspend defendant's driver's license for driving while intoxicated [Gikas v. Zolin (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 841, 857, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 500, 863 P. 2d 745] .

Similarly, one court of appeal held that the doctrine of res judicata did not apply to preclude a civil proceeding for unfair business practices in which civil penalties were sought against an owner of an auto repair business when a prior administrative proceeding against the same owner for the same violations of the Automotive Repair Act led to a determination that the owner's business registration was suspended for 14 days, the owner was required to pay $4,600 in investigation costs, and the owner's registration was placed on a three-year probation [People v. Damon (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 958, 964, 972, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504] .

Another court of appeal held that an arbitration decision of a state agency does not be given preclusive effect to a civil rights cause of action under section 1983 (42 U.S.C. § 1983), when to do so would be contrary to the intent of Congress in creating that cause of action [Brosterhous v. State Bar of California (1996) 12 Cal. 4th 315, 326-327, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 87, 906 P.2d 1242] .

The Court of Appeal held that a prior judicial challenge to an interim housing code enforcement program based on whether that program was exempt from environmental review under CEQA did not have collateral estoppel effect on a later judicial challenge to a permanent housing code enforcement program based on whether the permanent program was exempt from environmental review under CEQA. The inapplicability of collateral estoppel to preclude the second challenge to the permanent program was based on the difference in the two programs as to duration and scope which meant that the exemption from environmental review issues were also different [Apartment Assn. of Greater Los Angeles v. City of Los Angeles (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1162, 1168-1170, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504] .

The California Court of Appeal held that the completion of a Public Utilities Commission (PUC) investigation into fraud charges against a regulated utility (Pacific Gas & Electric Company (PG&E) without the PUC reaching any decision about those charges did not have collateral estoppel effect on a related civil lawsuit claim for fraud damages brought against PG&E by consumers [Wise v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 725, 742-743, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 222] . The fraud issues had been referred to the PUC under the doctrine of primary jurisdiction, and the trial court had stayed the civil lawsuit pending PUC resolution of the fraud issues. When the PUC closed its investigation, having taken no action, the trial court lifted the stay, and granted a motion for judgment on the pleadings brought by PG&E. The court of appeal reversed the judgment, and held the PUC decision to close the investigation did not have collateral estoppel effect on the civil lawsuit because there was no PUC ruling or decision on the merits, there were no parties to the proceeding, and the PUC was not acting in an adjudicatory capacity [Wise v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 725, 742-743, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 222] .

Another California Court of Appeal held that collateral estoppel principles precluded a challenger to the denial of a real estate license from offering evidence impeaching prior judgments against the challenger in a civil fraud lawsuit and a state bar disbarment proceeding. These judgments were used as the basis of license denial by the Department of Real Estate. The ALJ ruled at the challenger's hearing that this evidence could not be admitted, as these were final judgments, and collateral estoppel principles prohibited impeachment of those judgments. This ruling was upheld on appeal [Berg v. Davi (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 223, 230-231, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803] .

The California Court of Appeal held that while claim preclusion (res judicata) and issue preclusion (collateral estoppels) principles are applicable to wage claim decisions by the California Labor Commissioner under Lab. Code § 98, because wage claim orders are final, binding judgments under Lab. Code § 98.2, claim preclusion (res judicata) principles did not bar the filing of common law and statutory tort claims by plaintiff employees against defendant employers, because the Labor Commissioner did not have subject matter jurisdiction, the authority to adjudicate, those type of tort claims, only wage claims [Noble v. Draper (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1, 11-13, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 3]. However, collateral estoppels principles do apply to bar one of the plaintiff's tort claims based on the Labor Commissioner's finding in the prior wage claim administrative proceeding that this plaintiff was not an employee of the defendant employer [Noble v. Draper (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1, 5, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 3].

The First District Division 5, California Court of Appeal held that the Cal. Const. art. 13, § 32 language, "No legal or equitable process shall issue in any proceeding in any court against this State or any officer thereof to prevent or enjoin the collection of any tax. After payment of a tax claimed to be illegal, an action may be maintained to recover the tax paid, with interest, in such manner as may be provided by the Legislature," which is also known as the "pay first, litigate later" rule takes precedence over principles of collateral estoppel. Thus, a company's declaratory and injunctive relief action against the State of California was properly dismissed. The company sought a declaratory judgment that the company did not owe $1.2 million in state taxes because its drivers were independent contractors, not employees of the company. The company argued that the State of California was collaterally estopped from relitigating the employee issue because in prior state administrative agency proceedings between the company and the state of California, the company's drivers were determined to be independent contractors, not employees. The court of appeal held that the Section 32 principle takes precedence over collateral estoppel. The State was not precluded from relitigating the employment status issue against the company, and from collecting the tax. The company's challenge to the employment tax liability would have to be litigated after the company paid the tax [California Logistics, Inc. v. State of California (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 242, 245-247, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 825].

[b] Role of Burden of Proof

In People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321 [see [a], above], collateral estoppel was applied in favor of a defendant in a later criminal prosecution.

The higher burden of proof in the later proceeding did not prevent application of the doctrine, because if the agency failed to meet the first, lower burden (preponderance of the evidence), it would necessarily fail to meet the higher burden required in the criminal proceeding [People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 485, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321] .

If a defendant were acquitted in a criminal proceeding with a higher burden of proof, however, the acquittal does not mean that the criminal proceeding bars an administrative proceeding with a lower burden of proof [Holt v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 427, 433, 218 Cal. Rptr. 1 (acquittal of respondent in prior criminal proceedings did not bar subsequent administrative action, because different burden of proof made the issues in each proceeding nonidentical)].

In a criminal motion to suppress evidence, however, when the burden of proof is a preponderance of the evidence, collateral estoppel has been applied to an administrative proceeding [Buttimer v. Alexis (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 754, 194 Cal. Rptr. 603] .

[3] Offensive Use of Collateral Estoppel

The use of collateral estoppel may be either defensive (the plaintiff is estopped from litigating a claim that the plaintiff previously litigated and lost against another defendant) or offensive (the defendant is estopped from relitigating issues that the defendant previously litigated and lost against another plaintiff). Both the United States Supreme Court and a California Court of Appeal have suggested that the offensive use of collateral estoppel is less likely to promote judicial economy and may be unfair to the defendant [Parklane Hosiery Co. v. Shore (1979) 439 U.S. 322, 329-330, 99 S. Ct. 645, 58 L. Ed. 2d 552 ; Imen v. Glassford (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 898, 906, 247 Cal. Rptr. 514] . Both courts nonetheless held that the offensive use of collateral estoppel should be permitted in the broad discretion of the trial court [Parklane Hosiery Co. v. Shore (1979) 439 U.S. 322, 331, 99 S. Ct. 645, 58 L. Ed. 2d 552 ; Imen v. Glassford (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 898, 906, 247 Cal. Rptr. 514] .

The offensive use of collateral estoppel should not be allowed, however, when the plaintiff could have joined in the first proceeding [Parklane Hosiery Co. v. Shore (1979) 439 U.S. 322, 331, 99 S. Ct. 645, 58 L. Ed. 2d 552 ; Restatement (Second) of Judgments, § 29(3) and Comment e] or when its use would be unfair to the defendant, as when the defendant has little incentive to vigorously defend in the first proceeding [Parklane Hosiery Co. v. Shore (1979) 439 U.S. 322, 330-331, 99 S. Ct. 645, 58 L. Ed. 2d 552 ; Imen v. Glassford (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 898, 906-907, 247 Cal. Rptr. 514] .

Although the court of appeals in Imen did allow the offensive use of an administrative determination [Imen v. Glassford (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 898, 906-908, 247 Cal. Rptr. 514] , it has been suggested that the offensive use of collateral estoppel may require a stronger showing that the prior opportunity to litigate was adequate [Parklane Hosiery Co. v. Shore (1979) 439 U.S. 322, 331 n.16, 99 S. Ct. 645, 58 L. Ed. 2d 552] .

The Court of Appeal held that the public interest exception to collateral estoppel applied to permit relitigation of an issue of law, whether a school district complied with the requirements of a statute [Educ. Code § 51747], related to short term independent study requirements, notwithstanding that a prior appeal panel had upheld the school district's compliance with the statute. The public interest exception is based on Section 28 of the Restatement Second of Judgments [Rest. 2d Judgments § 28]. The court held that the exception was applicable in this case because of the impact of applying collateral estoppel to future cases raising issues related to public funding of school districts throughout the State of California [Modesto City Sch. v. Education Audits Appeal Panel (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1365, 1379-1380, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 831] . The court cited and relied upon the California Supreme Court decision in Arcadia Unified School Dist. v. State Dept. of Education (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 251, 259, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545, 825 P.2d 438 .

The California Supreme Court held that the state Water Resources Control Board was not collaterally estopped from requiring a timber company to comply with water quality monitoring requirements notwithstanding that the state Department of Forestry had approved the timber company's timber harvesting plan, and that plan did not contain water quality requirements to protect rivers near the areas to be logged. The state water board and regional water quality boards had participated in the timber harvesting plan approval process but they were not collaterally estopped from imposing their own requirements. The two reasons that collateral estoppel did not apply were that 1) the forest practices act had a savings clause stating that the forest practice act did not operate as a limitation on the authority of other state agencies to regulate under other statutes; and 2) the interagency review and approval process that led to the adoption of the timber harvesting plan was not a judicial process, did not use adversary procedures such as cross examination of witnesses, and thus lacked judicial character, and was essentially a collaborative process in which the water quality boards role was a consultative participation in the approval process [Pacific Lumber Co. v. State Water Resources Control Bd. (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 921, 935-936, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 220, 126 P.3d 1040] .

The First District, Division 3, California Court of Appeal held that collateral estoppel did not apply in a proceeding (application for compensation benefits) before the victim compensation and government claims board under Penal code § 4900 to give preclusive effect to a determination of factual innocence made in a judicial proceeding under Penal Code § 851.8 [Tennison v. California Victim Compensation and Government Claims Board (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1164, 1168, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88] . Even though the issues were the same [Tennison v. California Victim Compensation and Government Claims Board (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1164, 1175-1176, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88] , and even though there was a privity relationship between the district attorney in the Penal Code § 851.8 proceeding, and the attorney general in the claims board proceedings [Tennison v. California Victim Compensation and Government Claims Board (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1164, 1174-1175, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88] , the factual innocence issue was not actually litigated in the Penal Code § 851.8 proceeding because there was a stipulation as to that issue. Thus, collateral estoppel did not apply because the actually litigated requirement was not satisfied [Tennison v. California Victim Compensation and Government Claims Board (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1164, 1176-1178, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88] . Furthermore, collateral estoppel did not apply because of public policy reasons having to do with the integrity of the court system. Other public policy reasons to not apply collateral estoppel included not promoting judicial economy as it would not lessen repetitive litigation. Finally, the offensive use of collateral estoppel in this case would not protect against harassment from vexatious litigation because the party seeking to use this doctrine brought both proceedings [Tennison v. California Victim Compensation and Government Claims Board (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1164, 1178-1180, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 88] .

The First District Division 4 California Court of Appeal held that a health care plan was collaterally estopped from relitigating the coverage issue of whether or not a health care providers diabetes related treatment was experimental (and there not covered by the plan) because the same coverage issue had previously been litigated by the California Public Employees Retirement System (CALPERS) and the health care plan was in privity with CALPERS, and therefore bound by the prior determination under collateral estoppels principles [California Physicians' Service v. Aoki Diabetes Research Institute (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 1506, 1510, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 646].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsCollateral EstoppelAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsRes JudicataAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsStare Decisis

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Rules of Evidence

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473F.42-473F.49

[Reserved]

§§ 473F.42[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Burden of Proof at the Hearing

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.50

§ 473F.50 Order of Proof

[1] General Requirements

This part discusses the burden of proof applicable in administrative adjudicatory hearings, including license discipline proceedings, benefit entitlement hearings, civil service matters, hearings concerning liberty interests, and license application controversies. It contrasts the burden of proof with the order of proof, and discusses an adjudicator's authority to set the procedure for the taking of evidence. It examines the "clear and convincing evidence" and "preponderance of evidence" standards used in administrative hearings. Affirmative defenses and other matters that affect the burden of proof are also covered.

The "burden of proof" is the evidentiary standard that the moving party must meet to prevail in the case [see definition in § 473F.51[1]]. In contrast, the "order of proof" describes the procedure for taking evidence in the hearing. Because the APA does not set forth the order of proof that must be used in a hearing, the administrative law judge (ALJ) or agency hearing the case establishes the order. The general authority of the ALJ or agency to conduct a hearing includes the authority to establish the order of proof [see Gov. Code § 11512(a); see also Part A]. When the ALJ alone hears the case, he or she exercises all powers relating to the conduct of the hearing [Gov. Code § 11512(b); see Gov. Code § 11511.5(b)(6) (order of presentation of evidence and cross-examination may be set at the prehearing conference)]. When the agency itself hears the case, the ALJ rules on the admission and exclusion of evidence, but the agency exercises all other powers relating to the conduct of the hearing that it has not delegated to the ALJ [Gov. Code § 11512(b)].

[2] Customary Order in Civil Cases

The customary order of proof in a civil case, which is generally followed in administrative hearings, is as follows [Code Civ. Proc. § 607]:

- Plaintiff's statement of the issue and his or her case.
- An optional statement of defense by defendant.

- Plaintiff's production of evidence.
- Defendant's opening statement, if deferred previously, and production of defendant's evidence.
- Additional evidence on the original cases if permitted by the court.
- Rebuttal evidence.
- Argument.

When separate multiple plaintiffs or defendants appear by different counsel, the court must determine their relative order in the presentation of evidence and argument [Code Civ. Proc. § 607(8)]. The usual order of proof in civil cases may be modified by the assertion of a special defense, such as the statute of limitations; the matter may be tried separately before the other issues [Code Civ. Proc. § 597; see County of Kern v. Superior Court (1972) 82 Cal. App. 3d 396, 147 Cal. Rptr. 248 (absolute requirement in medical malpractice cases that the statute of limitations issue be tried first)].

Similarly, issues or parts of issues, such as questions of liability and damages, may be bifurcated and separately heard [Code Civ. Proc. § 598]; and for judicial economy, equitable issues may be heard before legal issues [Jaffe v. Albertson Co. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 592, 609, 53 Cal. Rptr. 25 ; Peterson v. Peterson (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 312, 321, 168 P.2d 474] . For additional discussion of the order of proof, see Ch. 551, Trial .

[3] Modification of Customary Order in Administrative Hearings

The agency or ALJ may follow the customary order of proof, modify that order, or order issues tried out of order. Modification may be used to assist witnesses, counsel, or a party appearing in propria persona, or for the efficiency and convenience of the forum [see Ehrlich v. McConnell (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 280, 287, 29 Cal. Rptr. 283 (the order of procedure was properly addressed to the discretion of the hearing officer)]. Such changes to the customary order of proof do not shift or otherwise affect the burden of proof.

Nevertheless, not all of the considerations that prompt modifications of the customary order of proof in judicial proceedings pertain in administrative matters. For example, considerations affecting the order of proof in civil or criminal proceedings to assure that a jury will not hear or be influenced by impermissible matters do not apply in an administrative proceeding heard by a panel [see Gov. Code § 11512(a) (agency itself may hear case together with ALJ)]; panel members reflect particular expertise and are not treated in the same manner as lay jurors.

Special or equitable defenses, such as the statute of limitations or estoppel, customarily involve a controverted issue of fact [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 7119 (last day of work on the job by the contractor alleged to have abandoned a construction project); Knight v. Board of Administration (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 973, 978-979, 196 Cal. Rptr. 423 (communications made by a government official on which a party relied)]. Such issues, and other mixed questions of law and fact, are taken under submission by the ALJ after an evidentiary hearing or the submission of a stipulated statement of facts, and addressed in the proposed decision.

[4] Order in Particular Matters

As the moving party [see § 473F.51[9]], an applicant for disability or retirement benefits customarily proceeds with the production of evidence; that order of proof is frequently modified by the ALJ to permit the agency to present evidence on preliminary issues--such as the membership of the applicant in the retirement system, whether requisite filings for benefits were lodged with the agency, and so forth.

In license denial proceedings, the agency generally presents evidence of the application and the information on which the agency determined to deny the application before the applicant's evidentiary presentation. For example, although the burden of proof in protest proceedings of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 24013-24016 (protest proceedings)] is on the protesting party [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 24300(a) (APA governs procedure); see also § 473F.51[2]], the Department customarily presents evidence of the license application file and its investigation prior to the protesting party's presentation of evidence.

The ALJ or agency must resolve at the outset of proceedings the order of proof to be followed in multiple party matters, such as separate applications for a single available permit, or multiple respondents consolidated in a single license discipline accusation. The adjudicator may consider factors of potential prejudice, convenience, and fairness. The order of proof set between multiple parties will not be disturbed on appeal absent a clear abuse of discretion resulting in a miscarriage of justice [Diamond Springs Lime Co. v. American River Constructors (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 581, 602, 94 Cal. Rptr. 200 (contractor unsuccessfully argued that order of proof requiring it to present its defense before another party proceeded was an abuse of discretion)].

[5] Consideration on Appeal

In general, an adjudicator's broad discretion to determine the order of proof will not be disturbed on appeal [County of San Luis Obispo v. Bailey (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 518, 527, 93 Cal. Rptr. 859, 483 P.2d 27 ; Gherman v. Colburn (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 544, 584, 140 Cal. Rptr. 330 ; Meyer Koulish Co. v. Cannon (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 419, 430, 28 Cal. Rptr. 757] .

For example, denial of a dismissed teacher's request to present evidence of arbitrary enforcement of district rules before the school district's case in chief was held to be within the discretion of the ALJ to set the order of proof. The court found that there was no denial of due process in denying petitioner's strategic move to show that other teachers had violated district policy before there had been any evidence of violations on her part [Feist v. Rowe (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 404, 412, 83 Cal. Rptr. 465] .

Such a ruling on the order of proof applies only to when evidence may be presented and should not be construed as a ruling on admissibility [Feist v. Rowe (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 404, 413, 83 Cal. Rptr. 465 ; Le Cyr v. Dow (1939) 30 Cal. App. 2d 457, 460, 86 P.2d 900] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & PowersAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewGeneral OverviewEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofGeneral OverviewEvidenceTestimonyPresentation of Evidence

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Burden of Proof at the Hearing

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.51

§ 473F.51 Determining Burden of Proof

[1] General Rules

Unlike a criminal proceeding, in which the state has the burden of proof [Penal Code § 1096], or a civil proceeding, in which the burden rests on the party asserting a claim or defense [Evid. Code § 500], the burden of proof in an administrative proceeding is not as easily fixed. It may be determined by statute [see [2], below].

Absent a statute or other authority fixing the burden, the moving party or party seeking to change the status quo bears the burden of proof [Parker v. City of Fountain Valley (1981) 127 Cal. App. 3d 99, 113, 179 Cal. Rptr. 351 (city denied police officer due process in termination hearing by failing to assume the burden of proving charge that he had used excessive force in making arrest); Martin v. State Personnel Bd. (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 573, 582, 103 Cal. Rptr. 306] .

The burden in particular types of proceedings are discussed in [3]-[10], below. The burden is not necessarily on the party who drafts the pleadings or statement of the case [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 24300 (Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control drafts the pleadings in a protest proceeding, but the burden is on the protesting party)], however, or on the party who arranges for the hearing before the ALJ [see, e.g., Gov. Code § 17555; 2 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1187.1, 1187.2 (the Commission on State Mandates provides for a hearing, but is not a real party in interest in disputes concerning state mandated costs)].

For discussion of the burden of proof in trial court proceedings, see Ch. 551, Trial .

[2] APA Provisions

The APA (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.) does not identify the party who bears the burden of proof except by implication. With respect to license issuance, the APA provides that a hearing to determine whether a license should be issued or renewed is initiated by a "statement of issues" [Gov. Code § 11504].

The statement must specify the statutes and rules with which the respondent must show compliance by producing proof at the hearing [Gov. Code § 11504; see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication]. This requirement suggests that the burden of proof is on the respondent [see [3], below].

The California Court of Appeal held that the applicant for a liquor license had the burden of proof under Gov. Code § 11504 to establish eligibility at a hearing held by the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control. The decision to grant a conditional license to the applicant did not shift the burden of proof to protestors who were opposing the granting of a liquor license. The court of appeal applied the express language of Gov. Code § 11504 that the "respondent must show compliance by producing proof at the hearing," and concluded that this language meant that the applicant for the liquor license was the respondent who had the burden of proof at the hearing [Coffin v. Alcoholic Bev. Control Appeals Bd. (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 471, 476-477, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 420] .

With respect to license discipline, the APA provides that a hearing to determine whether a license should be revoked or suspended is initiated by the filing of an "accusation," which must state the charged acts or omissions so that respondent can prepare his or her defense [Gov. Code § 11503].

This requirement suggests that the burden is on the accusatory party [see [6], below]. With respect to default proceedings, used when the respondent fails to file a notice of defense or appear at the hearing, the agency may act without taking evidence in cases in which the burden of proof is on the respondent to establish that he or she is entitled to the agency action sought [Gov. Code § 11520].

With respect to a petition for reinstatement or reduction in penalty, which in practice is the elimination or modification of probationary terms, the APA permits a disciplined licensee to petition the agency for that action after a year has elapsed from the effective date of the suspension or revocation [Gov. Code § 11522]. The burden of proof is on the petitioner to present either oral or written argument, such as character witnesses, before the agency [Gov. Code § 11522; see [6], below].

[3] License and Permit Applications

The burden of proof is customarily placed on the applicant for a license or permit, unless the relevant ordinance or statute provides to the contrary [Martin v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 259, 265, 341 P.2d 291 (burden of proof is on applicant for license in application proceedings); So. Cal. Jockey Club v. Cal. etc. Racing Bd. (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 167, 177, 223 P.2d 1] .

For example, an applicant may be required to prove his or her good moral character [Martin v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 259, 265, 341 P.2d 291 (applicant for liquor license); Hora v. City and County of San Francisco (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 375, 379, 43 Cal. Rptr. 527 (applicant for massage parlor business permit)], or the ability to adequately work with others [Pick v. Santa Ana-Tustin Community Hospital (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 970, 977, 182 Cal. Rptr. 85 (doctor-applicants for county hospital staff membership)].

Placing the burden of proof on all issues in connection with a permit application on the applicant for a development permit within the coastal zone does not violate due process, and allocation of the burden of proof often serves as an effective tool for shaping social policies; the consumer of natural resources should bear the responsibility for justifying his or her actions [CEEED v. California Coastal Zone Conservation Com. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 306, 330, 118 Cal. Rptr. 315] .

Similarly, the burden of proof is properly placed on the applicant proposing an airport expansion to establish that the requirements set forth in the relevant statute have been met [Bakman v. Department of Transportation (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 665, 688-689, 160 Cal. Rptr. 583] .

[4] License Renewal

License renewal is frequently an almost automatic function of the agency on the payment of renewal fees. In those circumstances, the agency generally does not require the licensee to provide additional proof of fitness, or exercise its discretion in renewing the license [see Hall v. Scudder (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 433, 437, 168 P.2d 990 (statutes governing renewal of real estate license imposed no duty on renewal applicant to prove fitness for license, and no power on agency to investigate fitness)].

An agency cannot use the renewal process to effect a license revocation without the procedural protections of an evidentiary hearing. For example, the real estate commissioner was prohibited from refusing to renew the license of a broker convicted of bigamy since the last renewal. The licensee's renewed license could, however, be revoked on the basis of that felony conviction in a subsequent disciplinary proceeding [Payne v. Real Estate Commissioner (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 532, 536, 209 P.2d 419] .

When completion of continuing education is required for license renewal, the burden of proving compliance with the requirement is on the licensee. For example, the Board of Vocational Nurse and Psychiatric Technician Examiners requires renewing licensees to submit proof of having completed during the preceding two years 30 hours of continuing education acceptable to the Board [16 Cal. Code Reg. § 2540.1].

In practice, some agencies provide forms on which the licensee may certify that the education was completed rather than submit the related certificates or transcripts. By various verification programs and "spot-checks," the agencies attempt to assure that the required continuing education has been completed. The submission of a false statement regarding the requirement is itself grounds for license revocation [Bus. & Prof. § 480].

[5] License Discipline

[a] Revocation and Suspension

The burden of proof in administrative hearings to revoke or suspend a license is on the party filing the charges against the licensee [Daniels v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 532, 536, 189 Cal. Rptr. 512, 658 P.2d 1313 (suspension of driver's license); Ettinger v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 853, 856, 185 Cal. Rptr. 601 (suspension of doctor's license); Realty Projects, Inc. v. Smith (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 204, 212-213, 108 Cal. Rptr. 71 (revocation of real estate license); De Rasmo v. Smith (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 601, 610, 93 Cal. Rptr. 289 (revocation of real estate license)].

The standard of proof applicable at hearings to revoke or suspend a license is higher than that used in other types of administrative hearings [see § 473F.52[2]]. The burden of proof, however, shifts to the respondent to provide an affirmative defense [Anderson v. Board of Dental Examiners (1915) 27 Cal. App. 336, 338, 149 P. 1006 ; see Whetstone v. Board of Dental Exmrs. (1927) 87 Cal. App. 156, 164, 261 P. 1077] . For further discussion of the shifting of the burden of proof, see § 473F.54[2].

[b] Citations

Some licensing agencies use "citation" proceedings as an alternative to disciplinary proceedings to revoke or suspend a license. A license citation is comparable to a traffic ticket to the extent that, for a charged statutory or regulatory violation, the cited licensee is ordered to pay a civil penalty, analogous to a fine, and correct any deficient work. For example, the Contractors' State License Board may issue a citation in lieu of initiating a proceeding to revoke or suspend a contractor's license [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 7099-7099.7].

A contractor may contest a citation, including the amount of the penalty, the violation cited, and period allowed for corrective action in a hearing in which the burden of proof is on the charging agency [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 7099.3].

For a discussion of the standard of proof applicable to citation hearings, see § 473F.52.

[6] License Reinstatement

In general, when a statute does not provide otherwise, the applicant for reinstatement of a license has the burden of proof regarding not only qualification for licensure, but also rehabilitation when the license was revoked for cause [Maggart v. State Bar (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 439, 443, 175 P.2d 505 ; Housman v. Board of Medical Examiners (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 308, 315, 190 P.2d 653 (burden rests on the petitioner to prove that he or she has been rehabilitated and is entitled to have his or her license restored, and not on the board to prove to the contrary)].

An agency's statute or regulations may identify the elements that the petitioner must prove to merit reinstatement. For example, the Board of Veterinary Medicine requires the petitioner to furnish two verified recommendations from licensees [Bus. & Prof. Code § 4887].

In the absence of specific reinstatement criteria, counsel should refer to the provisions of the agency regarding rehabilitation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 482]. State licensing agencies and the licensing boards organized within the Department of Consumer Affairs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 101.6] are required to develop criteria for evaluating the rehabilitation of (1) an applicant denied a license for conviction of a crime, fraud or dishonesty, or making a false statement in a license application [Bus. & Prof. Code § 482; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 480 (grounds for license denial)]; and (2) a licensee whose license is revoked or suspended for conviction of a crime [Bus. & Prof. Code § 482; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 490 (grounds for suspension or revocation of license)].

The burden of proof is on the party claiming to have been rehabilitated [Bus. & Prof. Code § 482]. The rehabilitation criteria are generally found in the regulations adopted by licensing agencies. For example, a Department of Real Estate licensee whose license was revoked or suspended pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 480 can present evidence of restitution of monetary losses of injured parties, abstinence from alcohol or controlled substances, stability of family life, or community service for purposes of rehabilitation [10 Cal. Code Reg. § 2912].

[7] Employee Discipline

[a] Proceedings to Dismiss or Discipline

In a proceeding to discipline or dismiss an employee, the burden of proof is on the agency asserting cause for discipline, absent an ordinance, statute, or union agreement to the contrary [Parker v. City of Fountain Valley (1981) 127 Cal. App. 3d 99, 113, 179 Cal. Rptr. 351] .

A statute or other requirement that the employee bear the entire burden of proof to establish that the discharge was improper may violate due process; however, the reviewing court may uphold the dismissal when a review of the entire record establishes that the agency did present evidence to prove the charges [Pipkin v. Board of Supervisors (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 652, 658-659, 147 Cal. Rptr. 502] .

Due process is not offended when the employer presents evidence of the employee's unauthorized absence, and thereafter the burden shifts to the employee to prove that the absence was justified [Baker v. Wadsworth (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 253, 263, 85 Cal. Rptr. 880] .

Parker v. City of Fountain Valley (1981) 127 Cal. App. 3d 99, 179 Cal. Rptr. 351 states that it is axiomatic in disciplinary administrative proceedings that the burden of proving the charges rests on the party making the charges; the obligation of a party to sustain the burden of proof requires the production of evidence for that purpose [Parker v. City of Fountain Valley (1981) 127 Cal. App. 3d 99, 113, 179 Cal. Rptr. 351] . The Parker case is significant for its careful analysis of the preliminary departmental "proceeding" before the police chief. The court rejected the city's argument that its burden of proof was satisfied at that level and thereafter the burden shifted to the employee. It stated that prior to the administrative hearing before the city manager, there had been no production of evidence or testimony of witnesses. Since the administrative hearing was the first evidentiary inquiry into the facts giving rise to appellant's discharge, the city, not the employee, was required to bear the burden of proof [Parker v. City of Fountain Valley (1981) 127 Cal. App. 3d 99, 113, 179 Cal. Rptr. 351] .

A police officer who was reassigned to a lower pay grade by his employer has a significant private interest in continued receipt of his paycheck [Gilbert v. Homar (1997) 520 U. S. 924, 932,117 S. Ct. 1807, 138 L. Ed. 2d 120] , and therefore was entitled under due process of law to hearing procedures in which the police department had the burden of proof of showing that the criteria in the department manual for reassignment to a lower pay grade have been established. The agency procedures placed the burden of proof on the police officer, and that violated due process of law [Brown v. City of Los Angeles (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 155, 175-177, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 474 ; Los Angeles Police Protective League v. City of Los Angeles (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 85, 92-94, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 911] . Similarly, police officers charged with misconduct were entitled under Police Officers Bill of Rights statute [Gov. Code § 3304] to administrative appeal with de novo review, and with the burden of proof on the police department, to establish the facts that provide the basis for the charges against the officers [Caloca v. County of San Diego (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 433, 443-445, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 3] .

[b] Civil Service Employees

In Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 124 Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P.2d 774 , the California Supreme Court stated that a civil servant's interest in his or her permanent state employment is a property interest that is protected by the due process provisions of both the federal and state constitutions [Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 206, 124 Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P.2d 774] .

Thus, the employee is entitled to notice of termination and the right to respond to the charges, before the termination becomes effective [Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 215, 124 Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P.2d 774] . At the evidentiary hearing to challenge the action taken, the burden of proof is on the employer to establish cause for dismissal by a preponderance of the evidence [Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 204 n.19, 124 Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P.2d 774 ; see § 473F.52, for a discussion of standards of proof].

Frequently, counsel or union representatives will decide to waive a pre-termination Shelly hearing to avoid providing the employer representative with a prior hint of the evidence and defense that the respondent will offer at the evidentiary hearing before the Civil Service Commission or its hearing officer. Whether the tactic is purely strategic or represents a view that a Shelly hearing is a meaningless formality is unclear.

[c] Name-Clearing Hearings

The rapidly growing body of case law concerning the pre-termination right to a hearing of an employee dismissed for alleged conduct that would stigmatize the employee's reputation or impair the opportunity for future employment [Board of Regents v. Roth (1972) 408 U.S. 564, 569-570, 92 S. Ct. 2701, 33 L. Ed. 2d 548 ; Murden v. County of Sacramento (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 302, 310, 206 Cal. Rptr. 699 ; Williams v. Department of Water & Power (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 677, 684-685, 181 Cal. Rptr. 868 ; Lubey v. City and County of San Francisco (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 340, 346, 159 Cal. Rptr. 440] , commonly termed "name-clearing" hearings [Codd v. Velger (1977) 429 U.S. 624, 627, 97 S. Ct. 882, 51 L. Ed. 2d 92] , does not clearly identify which party has the burden of establishing that the dismissal would have that effect.

This burden relates to the employee's right to have a pre-termination hearing to refute the charges and clear his or her name, rather than to refute proof of the charges at a formal termination hearing, which may not be required by law. In several cases, the damage to reputation and future employment was assumed or implied by the court [see Murden v.

County of Sacramento (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 302, 308-309, 206 Cal. Rptr. 699 (charge concerning sexual conversations with other employees); Lubey v. City and County of San Francisco (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 340, 347, 159 Cal. Rptr. 440 (court must assume that when police officers apply for new employment, potential employers will inquire into their prior job experience and reasons for their termination as policemen); see also Paul v. Davis (1976) 424 U.S. 693, 711-712, 96 S. Ct. 1155, 47 L. Ed. 2d 405 (one of the charges impugned petitioner's character and morality, and, if circulated, would damage his reputation and seriously impair his ability to find employment in his chosen profession)].

The common characteristic of the cases in which the courts assume such consequences to character and future employment is that the termination or dismissal was based on charges of moral turpitude or sexual misconduct [see Bollow v. Federal Reserve Bank (1981) 650 F.2d 1093, 1101 , cert. denied, 455 U.S. 948, 102 S. Ct. 1449, 71 L. Ed. 2d 662 (an accusation of moral turpitude is sufficiently serious to stigmatize the employee); Murden v. County of Sacramento (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 302, 308, 206 Cal. Rptr. 699 (only the charge concerning sexual conversations with other employees provided grounds for a name-clearing hearing and allegations of incompetence did not)].

A few decisions suggest that the terminated employee has the burden of proving that the termination merits a name-clearing hearing [see Williams v. Department of Water & Power (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 677, 684-685, 181 Cal. Rptr. 868 (appellant must show her dismissal was based on charges of misconduct that stigmatize her reputation or seriously impair her opportunity to earn a living, when termination was merely for excessive absenteeism, and civil service commission advised her that she could be considered for another job)].

When the basis for the termination is not identified, and the dismissal is publicly characterized as a vacation at the request of the employee, the stigmatizing effect of later publicity arising out of litigation will not be imputed to the dismissal [Hill v. California State University, San Diego (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1081, 1091-1093, 238 Cal. Rptr. 799] .

Once the right to a name-clearing hearing has been admitted or assumed, the evidentiary hearing on the merits of the termination resembles a traditional civil service dismissal case with the burden of proof on the agency to establish grounds for dismissal by a preponderance of the evidence [see discussion of standards of proof in § 473F.52]. The terminated individual is apprised of and given the opportunity to refute the charges [Murden v. County of Sacramento (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 302, 312, 206 Cal. Rptr. 699] .

[8] Teacher Dismissal or Suspension

The Education Code sets forth a complex statutory scheme identifying the grounds for dismissal or suspension of permanent certificated school employees, the rights and defenses available to those employees, and the hearing procedure used in those matters [see Educ. Code §§ 44932-44956]. The burden of proof in those proceedings is on the school district, which must establish cause for dismissal or suspension [see Educ. Code §§ 44932-44934]. Like an accusation [see Gov. Code § 11503], the written statement of charges must specify instances of behavior and the acts or omissions constituting the charge so that the teacher will be able to prepare his or her defense [Educ. Code § 44934].

A unique aspect of the statutory scheme is the required remedial period within which the employee may attempt to remedy unprofessional conduct and/or unsatisfactory performance [Educ. Code § 44938]. No reported case law addresses the burden of proof with regard to this provision. In practice, the charging party presents evidence that the opportunity for remediation was provided to the employee, with necessary written notice of the charges, and specific instances of behavior to furnish the employee an opportunity to correct his or her faults and overcome the grounds for the charge [Educ. Code § 44938(a), (b)]. Apparently, the employee who asserts that the required remediation period was not provided, or that such an error operates as a bar to the dismissal or suspension, would have the burden of proof to establish those defenses. For a discussion of the applicable standard of proof in a teacher suspension or dismissal proceeding, see § 473F.52.

[9] Benefit Entitlement

In the absence of a statutory provision to the contrary, the applicant for disability, retirement, or other such benefits has the burden of proof as the moving party to establish a right to the entitlement [Greatorex v. Board of Administration (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 54, 57, 154 Cal. Rptr. 37 (retirement benefits); Lindsay v. San Diego Ret. Bd. (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 156, 161, 41 Cal. Rptr. 737 (disability benefits)].

The legislative purpose of a benefit program may operate to alter the traditional burden on the moving party, or create presumptions affecting the allocation of the burden. For example, the state unemployment insurance program designed to provide benefits to claimants who have paid into the system has a presumption in favor of the applicant for benefits. In consequence, the employer has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence [see § 473F.52, for a discussion of standards of proof] that the benefits should be denied because the claimant was discharged for misconduct or quit without cause [Perales v. Department of Human Resources Dev. (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 332, 340-341, 108 Cal. Rptr. 167] .

The burden of proof in a benefit entitlement matter may shift to the agency when modification or suspension of benefits to current recipients is proposed. For example, the applicant for disability retirement benefits from the Public Employees Retirement System [see Gov. Code § 21150 (mandatory retirement for disability)] has the burden of proving a substantial inability to perform the usual duties of the job, and that burden is unaffected by the general rule that pension statutes are to be liberally construed [Mansperger v. Public Employees' Retirement System (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 873, 876-877, 86 Cal. Rptr. 450] .

Once the claimant has been found to be disabled, however, the burden in a hearing to establish cause to cancel those benefits appears to shift to the agency to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that the retiree is sufficiently recovered from the disability to resume the job duties [Gov. Code §§ 21197, 21198; Cansdale v. Board of Administration (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 656, 665, 130 Cal. Rptr. 880 ; see § 473F.52, for a discussion of standards of proof].

[10] Safety Regulation Enforcement

The enforcement of CAL/OSHA safety regulations and the assessment of civil penalties for violation of those regulations required that the enforcing agency, the Department of Industrial Regulations, Division of Occupational Safety and Health, has the burden of proof to establish a prima facie case but showing a lack of reasonable diligence was not part of the prima facie case. The employer subject to the penalty assessment had the responsibility to show reasonable diligence as an affirmative defense under the controlling statute, Labor Code § 6432. [Overaa Construction v. California Occupational Safety and Health Appeals Board (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 235, 246-247, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 154 (employer failed to assert reasonable diligence as a defense at the administrative hearing)].

[11] Review on Appeal

In an administrative hearing, the better practice is for the ALJ or agency to clearly state in the decision the party on whom the burden was placed and the standard of proof applied [see § 473F.52].

In the absence of such a clear statement, however, the reviewing court will not assume an error. Administrative findings need not be stated with the formality required of judicial findings, and therefore will be liberally construed to support rather than defeat the order under review [Realty Projects, Inc. v. Smith (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 204, 212-213, 108 Cal. Rptr. 71] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingDue ProcessEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofGeneral OverviewEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofBurden ShiftingGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsEmployees & OfficialsGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsLicensesGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsEmployees & OfficialsGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Burden of Proof at the Hearing

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.52

§ 473F.52 Standard of Proof

[1] Preponderance of Evidence Standard

Just as the nature of the proceeding determines who has the burden of proof, it also determines by what standard of proof that burden is satisfied. In general, except in license revocation or suspension proceedings, the "preponderance of evidence" standard applicable in civil proceedings [see Evid. Code § 115] is also used in administrative hearings [Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 204, 124 Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P.2d 774 ; Gardner v. Commission on Professional Competence (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1039, 210 Cal. Rptr. 795] . The preponderance of evidence standard is also used in proceedings to suspend or revoke food processor's licenses because these licenses are not professional licenses that require substantial education and training prior to applying for the license [San Benito Foods v. Veneman (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1889, 1894-1895, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 571 ; see [2][a], below, for discussion of burden of proof standard used in professional license suspension or revocation proceedings].

"Preponderance of evidence" is usually defined in terms of probability of truth--that is, when the evidence has more convincing force than the evidence opposed to it [People v. Superior Court (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 316, 319 n.4, 95 Cal. Rptr. 757 ; see Witkin, California Evidence, § 157 (3d ed. 1986)]. For further discussion of the preponderance of the evidence standard, see Ch. 551, Trial .

[2] Clear and Convincing Evidence Standard

[a] Applicable to Revocation of Professional Licenses

In a disciplinary action to revoke or suspend a professional license, which concerns "the totality of professional employment opportunity involving vested interest rights," the standard of proof is "clear and convincing evidence to a reasonable certainty" [Ettinger v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 853, 856, 185 Cal. Rptr. 601 (suspension of doctor's license); Realty Projects, Inc. v. Smith (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 204, 212-213, 108 Cal. Rptr. 71 (revocation of real estate license); see Gardner v. Commission on Professional Competence (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1040, 210 Cal. Rptr. 795 (because hearing involved only dismissal of teacher, rather than deprivation of his right to pursue his profession, "clear and convincing" standard did not apply)].

[b] Inapplicable to Citations

Courts apparently have not extended the "clear and convincing evidence" standard to any discipline of a professional license, such as public reproval or termination of a particular employment, which is less than revocation or suspension. The Ettinger v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 853, 185 Cal. Rptr. 601 , court's clear identification of license hearings to revoke or suspend a professional license, without listing the lesser forms of discipline against a license, has resulted in the application of the Ettinger standard only in revocation or suspension proceedings.

Thus, the preponderance of the evidence standard is used in less severe disciplinary proceedings against a licensee, such as a license citation authorized by the statutes regulating contractors [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 7099-7124.6], optometrists [Bus. & Prof. Code § 3095], and automotive repair facilities [Health & Safety Code § 44050].

[c] Inapplicable to Teacher Dismissal Hearings

Counsel in teacher dismissal or suspension proceedings [see § 473F.51[8]] frequently assert that the Ettinger v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 853, 185 Cal. Rptr. 601 , standard should apply.

The argument has repeatedly failed because the courts reason that only a particular job with a particular school district is at issue, and not the employee's teaching credential [see Gardner v. Commission on Professional Competence (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1039, 210 Cal. Rptr. 795] .

The Commission for Teacher Preparation and Licensing may, however, revoke a credential in a separate hearing for the same acts or matters charged to dismiss a teacher [see Educ. Code §§ 44420-44437 (grounds for suspension or revocation of credential)], or for criminal convictions that may be grounds for dismissal [see Educ. Code §§ 44424, 44426, 44437 (specified criminal offenses constituting grounds for revocation of certificate); see also Educ. Code §§ 44932(a)(8), (11) (dismissal upon conviction of felony or any crime involving moral turpitude, or for alcoholism or drug abuse), 44940 (compulsory leave of absence and suspension of credential for teachers charged with sex offenses, specified drug offenses, murder, or attempted murder; notice of dismissal and employee's right to request hearing)].

Like other license revocation hearings under the APA [see Educ. Code § 44246 (credential revocation hearings must be held pursuant to the APA)], the clear and convincing standard applies to teacher license revocation hearings as well [see Gardner v. Commission on Professional Competence (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1035, 1039-1040, 210 Cal. Rptr. 795 (court stated that although preponderance of the evidence standard applied to teacher dismissal, higher standard of proof would apply in hearing for revocation of teaching credential); Carl S. v. Commission for Teacher Preparation & Licensing (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 365, 369, 178 Cal. Rptr. 753 (commission had burden of presenting evidence establishing a prima facie case against the teacher for immoral conduct); see also Morrison v. State Board of Education (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 214, 238, 82 Cal. Rptr. 175, 461 P.2d 375 (court held that teacher's life diplomas could not be revoked for homosexual conduct unrelated to teacher's fitness to teach)].

[d] Instructions Regarding Standard

Board or panel members frequently request further description or explanation of the commonly termed " Ettinger standard" [Ettinger v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 853, 185 Cal. Rptr. 601] .

The ALJ may advise them that the burden is greater than preponderance of the evidence, but less than proof beyond a reasonable doubt [see [3], below]. For this reason, an explanation of the standard to be applied in the case may be given to the ALJ for use as instructions during the executive session in which the case will be considered [see Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2) (decision in case)].

Such proposed instructions should be provided in writing to the opposing counsel and the ALJ prior to the commencement of the hearing to permit consideration and review. Counsel may solicit the stipulation of opposing counsel to the suggested language. Opposing counsel and the ALJ will likely disfavor proposed instructions first presented at the conclusion of the respondent's case. Parties and counsel do not have a right to be present during panel instruction; that activity is considered to be part of the executive session.

[3] Criminal Standard

The courts have rejected arguments that the criminal standard of proof beyond a reasonable doubt should apply in administrative hearings, reasoning that the need to protect the public from incompetence warrants a lower standard of proof than is required to punish a criminal offender [Emslie v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 210, 225, 113 Cal. Rptr. 175, 520 P.2d 991 ; Webster v. Board of Dental Examiners (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 534, 537-538, 110 P.2d 992 ; Realty Projects, Inc. v. Smith (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 204, 213, 108 Cal. Rptr. 71] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & PowersEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofClear & Convincing ProofEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofPreponderance of Evidence

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Burden of Proof at the Hearing

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.53

§ 473F.53 Meeting the Burden of Proof

[1] Admissions

[a] Types of Admissible Evidence

An agency may use a party's admissions to meet the burden of proof in an administrative hearing. For example, the out-of-court admissions of the respondent may alone support the necessary findings, even when the respondent at hearing denies making the admission [Hansen v. Civil Service Board (1957) 147 Cal. App. 2d 732, 737-738, 305 P.2d 1012 (firefighter made admissions regarding his presence in the firehouse on and off duty in an intoxicated condition)].

In addition, statements contained in a stipulated settlement of a related civil action for fraud and misrepresentation, or in an affidavit of the licensee, are admissible in a discipline hearing as admissions of the licensee [Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 546, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525 ; Bohn v. Watson (1954) 130 Cal. App. 2d 24, 26, 33, 278 P.2d 454] . Furthermore, a default judgment in a civil action may be used as a judicial admission in a subsequent proceeding [Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 532, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525] .

[b] Criminal Admissions

A guilty plea to a criminal offense constitutes an admission of every element of the charged offense, and that admission may be used in an administrative discipline proceeding as if the defendant had been tried before a jury and found guilty on evidence covering all material facts [Arenstein v. California State Bd. of Pharmacy (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 179, 190, 71 Cal. Rptr. 357 , citing People v. Ward (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 604, 258 P.2d 86] .

For example, Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 480 and 490, governing contractors, permit license discipline or denial on the ground of conviction of a crime substantially related to the duties, functions, or qualifications of a licensee [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 480, 490]. For those purposes, a "conviction" includes a plea of guilty, a verdict of guilty, and a conviction on a plea of nolo contendere [Bus. & Prof. Code § 480(a)(1); Hollingsworth v. Board of Medical Examiners (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 172, 176, 10 Cal. Rptr. 343] . A plea of nolo contendere itself is not an admission absent a conviction on that plea [In re Hallinan (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 243, 247, 272 P.2d 768] .

A nolo contendere plea can not be admitted into evidence and can not be used at an administrative disciplinary hearing conducted by a county civil service commission [County of Los Angeles v. Civil Service Com. (1995) 39 Cal. App. 4th 620, 627-628, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256] .

In practice, to meet the burden of proof to establish conviction of a crime, the agency presents further evidence or argument that the conviction is related to the subject license. Frequently, a convicted licensee or applicant will present evidence that the conviction is unrelated to the scope of a license. However, presentation of evidence of ongoing psychotherapy, indicia of the respondent's remorse, or suggested probationary terms limiting the licensee's activities may be a more effective strategy [see § 473F.30 et seq., regarding the introduction of mitigating and extenuating evidence].

[2] Hearsay

[a] Need for Objection

Gov. Code § 11513(d) provides that hearsay evidence may be used to supplement or explain other evidence, but over timely objection will not be sufficient in itself to support a finding unless it would be admissible over objection in civil actions [Gov. Code § 11513(c); Daniels v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 532, 538, 189 Cal. Rptr. 512, 658 P.2d 1313 ; Imachi v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 809, 817, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 478] .

As discussed in § 473F.30 et seq., under the new act, the APA provides that hearsay evidence may be used for the purpose of supplementing or explaining other evidence, but over timely objection is not sufficient in itself to support a finding unless it would be admissible over objection in civil actions. The objection is timely if made before submission of the case or on reconsideration [Gov. Code § 11513(c) (operative July 1, 1997)].

This statutory amendment expressly requires a timely objection and therefore resolves a split in the courts over whether an objection was required for administrative hearsay to be insufficient to support fact findings other than when it is used to supplement or explain other evidence. This split existed under former Gov. Code. Code § 11513(c), as interpreted by the various districts of the California Court of Appeal regarding whether administrative hearsay that has not been objected to may be used to make a finding of fact [see Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 546, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525 (court stated that hearsay evidence that has not been objected to serves to shift the burden of producing evidence of the existence or nonexistence of fact disclosed); Martin v. State Personnel Bd. (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 573, 582-583, 103 Cal. Rptr. 306 (court stated that, contrary to Borror and other cases, the absence of objection to hearsay will not support a finding of fact)].

The general rule in administrative matters not governed by the APA is that hearsay alone will not sustain a finding [Walker v. City of San Gabriel (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 879, 881, 129 P.2d 349 ; Layton v. Merit System Commission (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 58, 67, 131 Cal. Rptr. 318] . Some courts have held that hearsay admitted without objection is sufficient to sustain a finding [Frudden Enterprises, Inc. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 262, 270, 201 Cal. Rptr. 371] . For further discussion of the use of hearsay in administrative proceedings, see § 473F.30 et seq.

[b] Exceptions to Hearsay

In practice, when a quantity of hearsay comes into the administrative record, no identification of particular evidence as an exception to the hearsay rule is made. In a court proceeding, an objection will trigger counsel's argument on the evidence--for example, whether a document is a business record--and the judge's ruling will be made on the record and may be reviewed on appeal. Many ALJs offer an equivalent procedure to permit counsel to argue that ostensible hearsay is civilly admissible and may sustain a finding and to permit a ruling on the record of the characterization of the evidence. These ALJs advise counsel or the parties that the proponent asserting an exception to the hearsay rule must immediately identify that exception when the evidence comes in; the parties will then argue or agree to the matter and a ruling will be made on the record. In the alternative, an ALJ may take the matter under submission, accept briefs on the issue, and indicate the characterization of the evidence in the proposed decision. Diligent counsel will request that practice or another means of establishing that evidence is admissible over objection when the evidence is essential to the case and should not be considered as mere hearsay.

[3] Res Judicata and Collateral Estoppel

As discussed in § 473F.30 et seq., the doctrines of res judicata and collateral estoppel are applicable to administrative hearings in which the agency exercises a quasi-judicial function and resolves disputed issues of fact properly before it which the parties have had an adequate opportunity to litigate [see People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 478-479, 489-490, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321 (administrative decision collaterally estopped a subsequent criminal prosecution on the same charges); citing United States v. Utah Constr. Co. (1966) 384 U.S. 394, 422, 86 S. Ct. 1545, 16 L. Ed. 2d 642] .

Application of these theories is particularly difficult because the status or ranking of the various administrative tribunals that have jurisdiction over related controversies is unclear, and the outcome may well depend on which forum can provide the earliest hearing. Further difficulty results from the conflicts in the reported cases, acknowledged by the Supreme Court to be "probably impossible to distinguish or reconcile" [People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 477, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321] , and the different burdens of proof applied in civil, criminal, and administrative matters [see § 473F.52].

[4] Official Notice

[a] Used to Satisfy Burden of Proof

As discussed in § 473F.30 et seq., an ALJ or agency may take official notice of any fact that may be judicially noticed by a court [see Evid. Code §§ 450-460 (judicial notice); see California Trial Guide, Unit 20], and of any generally accepted technical or scientific matter within the agency's technical field [Gov. Code § 11515].

The burden of proof may be met in whole or in part by official notice [Arenstein v. California State Bd. of Pharmacy (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 179, 194, 71 Cal. Rptr. 357 (court stated that official notice, used by hearing officer to ascertain that certain drugs were "dangerous," provides a shorthand method of proving facts over which there is no dispute)].

Official notice may be used to contradict other evidence, and support findings of fact and a judgment based on those findings [Mack v. State Board of Education (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 370, 373, 36 Cal. Rptr. 677 ; Del Bosque v. Singh (1937) 19 Cal. App. 2d 487, 489, 65 P.2d 951] . An agency may officially notice evidence presented in a prior related proceeding; that evidence may rebut proof offered at the pending proceeding [Brewer v. Railroad Commission (1922) 190 Cal. 60, 78, 210 P. 511] .

[b] Practical Considerations

Counsel who propose that an ALJ or agency take official notice of a matter should make a timely request, with copies of written materials for opposing counsel and the record as appropriate [Gov. Code § 11515; see § 473F.30 et seq.]. An ALJ will frequently solicit counsel to request official notice of a matter that will aid the trier of fact, such as a technical dictionary to assist in the review of reports in evidence containing technical terms.

Requests for official notice of statutory and decisional law, standard texts such as the Uniform Building Code, or common slang such as street names for drugs, are generally granted; however, sociological or political matters are problematic [see Mack v. State Board of Education (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 370, 374, 36 Cal. Rptr. 677 (fact that the Communist Party advocates the overthrow of U.S. federal and state government by violence or other unlawful means, officially noticed by hearing officer, is not "of common and general knowledge, and certain and indisputable")].

Even "scientific" matters may be inappropriate for official notice, when no clear consensus exists (e.g., the appropriate treatment of allergies), or when technical knowledge is in its infancy (e.g., AIDS research). An ALJ or agency may leave resolution of many contested scientific or technical matters to the merits of the evidence offered by the parties, rather than taking official notice of those matters. Furthermore, an ALJ will be disinclined to take official notice of matters disputed by the parties, even with the opportunity for rebuttal required by Gov. Code § 11515. When a dispute exists, the ALJ may attempt to have the parties stipulate to the controverted matter. Such a stipulation, like official notice, is a substitute for formal proof.

When a request for official notice is denied, counsel must be prepared to prove the matter by other evidence. He or she is unlikely to obtain a continuance merely because the denial was not anticipated.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsCollateral EstoppelAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsRes JudicataAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityHearsayAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceOfficial NoticeCriminal Law & ProcedureGuilty PleasGeneral OverviewEvidenceHearsayExceptionsGeneral OverviewEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofGeneral OverviewEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsObjections & Offers of ProofObjectionsEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsObjections & Offers of ProofTimeliness

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Burden of Proof at the Hearing

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.54

§ 473F.54 Shifting the Burden of Proof

[1] Equitable Estoppel

[a] Nature of Doctrine

The doctrine of equitable estoppel prevents a party who has intentionally led another by statement or conduct to believe a matter is true and to act on that belief from contradicting that statement or conduct in litigation arising from it [Evid. Code § 623]. In order to invoke the doctrine of equitable estoppel to bar the moving party from proceeding with the action, the party seeking to invoke the doctrine must establish the following elements [Driscoll v. City of Los Angeles (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 297, 305, 61 Cal. Rptr. 661, 431 P.2d 245 ; Morrison v. California Horse Racing Bd. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 211, 217, 252 Cal. Rptr. 293 ; Evans v. City of Los Angeles (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 142, 148-149, 193 Cal. Rptr. 282] :

- The party to be estopped must be apprised of the facts.
- The party to be estopped must intend that his or her conduct will be acted on, or must so act that the party asserting the estoppel had a right to believe it was so intended.
- The other party must be ignorant of the true state of the facts.
- The other party must rely on the conduct to his or her injury.

While the existence of estoppel is a question of law, the proponent of the theory has the burden of producing evidence of the elements of estoppel [see Evans v. City of Los Angeles (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 142, 150, 193 Cal. Rptr. 282 (appellant failed to show that (1) respondent intended his conduct to be acted on, and (2) appellant relied on the conduct)]. Estoppel will not be recognized when the party asserting estoppel has knowledge of the true facts, and therefore can not prove the 3rd element (ignorance of the true facts) [In re A.O. (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 1054, 1059, 16 Cal. Rptr 3d 117] .

As a practical matter, the burden then shifts to the party to be estopped (usually the government agency) to establish that despite such elements estoppel should not lie, or that the application of the theory to the subject case should be limited.

[b] Application to Administrative Agencies

Early cases expressed judicial reluctance to apply the doctrine against a governmental entity, based on the traditional concept of sovereign immunity. Ordinarily, estoppel should not be invoked when to do so would be harmful to some specific public policy or public interest, or when it would enlarge the power of a governmental agency or expand the authority of a public official [Shoban v. Board of Trustees (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 534, 544, 81 Cal. Rptr. 112] .

The court in Crumpler v. Board of Administration (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 567, 108 Cal. Rptr. 293 , after an exhaustive analysis of the history and present application of the theory, found that a city police department was estopped from reclassifying its animal control officers from "safety" to "miscellaneous retirement system" members, retroactively to the date of membership in the system. Nevertheless, the court would not extend estoppel to preclude the board from reclassifying petitioners prospectively from the date of the board's decision. It found that public interest and policy would be adversely affected if petitioners, despite the discovery of the mistaken classification, were required to be continued to be carried as local safety members when all other contract members performing similar duties and functions were classified as miscellaneous members [Crumpler v. Board of Administration (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 567, 584, 108 Cal. Rptr. 293] .

The California Supreme Court recently recognized the validity of the defense of equitable estoppel to prohibit welfare agencies from enforcing procedural conditions to eligibility of welfare recipients. In so holding, the Court concluded that application of equitable estoppel to administrative agencies does not violate the judicial powers doctrine [Lentz v. McMahon, 49 Cal. 3d 393, 406-407, 261 Cal. Rptr. 310, 777 P.2d 83 (1989)] . Equitable estoppel was applied to preclude a county from recouping public assistance payments from a father when the county had knowledge of the father's whereabouts, and failed to notify him. [County of Orange v. Carl D. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 429, 431-432, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 440] .

The Court of Appeal held that the Franchise Tax Board was estopped from asserting that the taxpayer had failed to exhaust administrative remedies before filing a lawsuit when the Board had offered to deny the taxpayers' refund claim summarily so that the taxpayer could file a lawsuit. The Board claimed that the taxpayer had underpaid state taxes by $97,000. The taxpayer paid the taxes and filed a claim for a refund. The Board conceded that no tax was due, but argued that the tax paid by the taxpayer should be retained by the board because of the taxpayer's failure to exhaust administrative remedies. The Court of Appeal applied the doctrine of equitable estoppel and concluded that the Board was estopped from asserting procedural limits on the taxpayer's claim for a refund [J.H. McKnight Ranch, Inc. v. Franchise Tax Board (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 978, 991-993, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 339] .

However, the party asserting estoppel must have relied to his or her detriment on the misleading governmental policy or the estoppel doctrine will not be applicable [Robinson v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 226, 244-245, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d. 782, 825 P. 2d 767 ; Walsh v. Board of Administration (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 682, 710, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 118] .

The First District Division 2 California Court of Appeal rejected the application of equitable estoppel against a city and county and its airport commission that had reduced incentives to taxicab drivers operating clean air taxicabs serving San Francisco Airport. The court of appeal rejected the estoppel defense because the taxicab drivers could not have reasonably relied upon the city incentives resolution as binding the city to make no further changes in the incentives contained in the resolution. The drivers sued the city for breach of contract when incentives for CNG cabs were reduced by action of the city and county. The drivers argued that equitable estoppel should be applied to estop the city from denying liability for breach of contract. The court of appeal rejected the defense because of a lack of reasonable reliance by the drivers, and because the court did not want to limit the city's exercise of the police power through the recognition of equitable estoppel [Cotta v. City and County of San Francisco (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1550, 1566-1568, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 612].

The Third District California Court of Appeal applied the principles of equitable estoppel to excuse the filing of an untimely administrative complaint before the Department of Fair Employment and Housing and the failure to exhaust administrative remedies by an employee who brought an employment discrimination action against an employer. Equitable estoppel applied because the employee diligently pursued the administrative remedy and reasonably relied on the conduct of department officials that the limitations period was not something to be concerned about [Holland v. Union Pacific Railroad Company (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 940, 946-948, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 145].

The California Court of Appeal held that the California Coastal Commission did not deprive a developer of the due process right to participate in an appeal hearing based on statements made by the commission staff that the developer probably did not have to attend the appeal hearing. The court rejected an equitable estoppel defense concluding that the developer could not have reasonably relied on staff recommendations not to attend the appeal hearing. The appeal hearing was to consider an appeal of a coastal development permit received by the developer from a local government body. The developer was presumed to know the law, that the commission, not the staff, decides what actions are taken at appeal hearings. Finally, the developer could not show prejudice to his development project from his failure to appear at the appeal hearing, as the developer appeared at a later do novo hearing at which he was given the opportunity to challenge the appeal [Benson v. Cal. Coastal Comm'n (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 348, 355-356, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 580] .

The Court of Appeal held that a city was estopped from arguing that a landowner's failure to bring an administrative mandate action bars thelandowner's right to recover damages for the value of property from the city in a condemnation proceeding. The city was estopped because it had illegally violated a preliminary injunction granted against it prohibiting the very action, building a curb that eliminated a driveway and a parking space, the lawfulness of which could have determined by a writ of administrative mandate. The city was also estopped because it elected to file a condemnation lawsuit against the landowner, and that was a remedy that was inconsistent with the argument that the landowner must file an administrative mandate action to determine whether the city's building action was lawful. Finally, the city was estopped because the landowner, in filing an action for a permanent injunction against the city, was complying with the substance of an administrative mandate action requirement [Hurwitz v. City of Orange (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 835, 843, 845-846, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 213] .

The estoppel doctrine will not be recognized when the party asserting estoppel knew the true facts and, therefore, could not have detrimentally relied on the other party's misleading conduct. Estoppel will also not be recognized when a governmental policy that benefits the public would be invalidated by applying estoppel to the government entity [Santa Barbara County Flower & Nursery Growers Ass'n v. County of Santa Barbara (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 864, 876, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 489] . Estoppel will also not be recognized when applying estoppel will have the effect of rewriting a statutory limitation on a benefit or privilege (time spent by a teacher teaching under an emergency permit is excluded by statute from the time needed to establish permanent status as a teacher) [Smith v. Governing Bd. of Elk Grove Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 563, 569-570, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1] . Estoppel will also not be recognized when the party asserting estoppel has not been misled by the agency. In this case, the school district did not mislead the teacher as to the legal effect of the teacher's employment under an emergency permit [Smith v. Governing Bd. of Elk Grove Unified Sch. Dist. (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 563, 569-570, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1] .

Some courts will apply waiver as a doctrine that precludes a government agency from taking a position on appeal of a challenge to agency action. The California Court of Appeal rejected a waiver argument and concluded that the County of Santa Barbara did not waive a statutory exemption under the Coastal Commission Act [Pub. Resources Code §§ 21080.5, 21080.9] from completing an Environmental Impact Report (EIR) when it unnecessarily prepared an EIR as part of a proposed amendment to its local coastal plan related to greenhouse development [Santa Barbara County Flower & Nursery Growers Ass'n v. County of Santa Barbara (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 864, 868-869, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 489] .

Furthermore, the Court of Appeal held that a taxpayer was estopped from benefitting from a statutory provision [Rev. & Tax. Code § 1604(c)] that continued a taxpayer's declared valuation of real property when the assessment board failed to decide an application for tax assessment reduction within two years of the date that the taxpayer filed the application. The Board required the taxpayer to complete a general waiver of the two-year time period for completing the Board decision. The taxpayer filed a limited waiver, which did not comply with the Board requirement, the Board mistakenly accepted the limited waiver, and the taxpayer demanded the benefit of the valuation rule. The Court of Appeal held that the taxpayer was estopped to claim the benefit of the rule because the taxpayer was guilty of a "wrongful misleading silence" in failing to inform the board that it had mistakenly accepted the taxpayer's limited waiver when its policy required a general waiver [Helene Curtis, Inc. v. Los Angeles County Assessment Appeals Bds. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 29, 41-42, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 658] .

The California Court of Appeal rejected the assertion of equitable estoppel against an employee organization by a school district because the litigation position of the organization was not inconsistent with the terms of a collective bargaining agreement that addressed similar issue. Since there was no inconsistency, there was no change of position by the school district, and no basis for the application of equitable estoppel as a defense [California School Employees Association v. Tustin Unified School District (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 510, 521-522, 55 Cal. Rptr.3d 739 (laches and unclean hands defenses were also rejected)].

Another California Court of Appeal rejected the application of equitable estoppel as a defense to enforcement of a restoration order by the California Coastal Commission against a home owner with a three hole golf course on the homeowner's property [Feduniak v. California Coastal Commission (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1381-1382, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591] . The Court of Appeal rejected this defense against the Coastal Commission because of lack of proof of three elements of estoppel: 1) The Commission lacked knowledge that the golf course violated the easement and permit conditions [Feduniak v. California Coastal Commission (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1361-1362, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591] ; 2) regulatory inaction by the Commission related to the golf course for many years did not satisfy the requirement that the Commission intended that others would take action based upon its failure to enforce the requirements of the law [Feduniak v. California Coastal Commission (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1366-1368, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591 (no basis for detrimental reliance by homeowner merely because commission did not enforce the law for a number of years)]; and 3) application of estoppel against a government agency would nullify a strong land use related policy designed to protect the public [Feduniak v. California Coastal Commission (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1375-1376, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 591] .

The California Supreme Court held that the City of Goleta was not estopped to deny approval of a developer's subdivision's map because no city official expressly represented that it would give approval. Also, the city's adoption of county ordinances at the time the city incorporated did not create a reasonable expectation on the developer's part that its final subdivision map would receive ministerial approval by the city [City of Goleta v. Superior Court (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 270, 279-281, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 114, 147 P. 3d 1037] . The California Court of Appeal held that a county was subject to estoppel based on the language used in a claim rejection letter under the procedures required by the California Tort Claims Act. The language of the letter estopped the county for asserting the defense of statutes of limitation under the Tort Claims Act [Sofranek v. Merced County (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1238, 1250-1252, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 426 (claim rejection letter language was reasonably relied upon by claimant who filed his lawsuit consistent with reasonable understanding of six-month limitations language in second claim rejection letter)].

[c] When Estoppel Does Not Apply

Even when the proponent of the doctrine has established all of the elements of estoppel, the doctrine will not bind a governmental agency when the public protection would be endangered or an expansion of the agency's authority would result [Morrison v. California Horse Racing Bd. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 211, 218-219, 252 Cal. Rptr. 293 ; Pettitt v. City of Fresno (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 813, 823, 110 Cal. Rptr. 262 (city was not estopped from denying the validity of a building permit issued in violation of a zoning ordinance); Merco Constr. Engineers, Inc. v. Los Angeles Unified Sch. Dist. (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 154, 160, 79 Cal. Rptr. 23 (estoppel cannot be used to enlarge an agency's power, set forth by statute)].

Furthermore, estoppel will not bar a licensing agency from revoking a license erroneously issued or retained in contravention of law [Jacques, Inc. v. State Board of Equalization (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 448, 462, 318 P.2d 6 (liquor license was revoked for lewd shows on premises); Joseph George, Distributor v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 702, 712-713, 308 P.2d 773 (liquor license revoked for inactive business)], or compel an agency to employ an individual who does not meet civil service standards [Patten v. Cal. State Personnel Board (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 168, 173, 234 P.2d 987 (temporary employee did not rank on list of eligible persons for permanent position)].

In a case in which a funeral director's license was revoked for violation of statutory trust provisions, even assuming that the licensee established all of the elements of estoppel, the strong public policy and a statute prohibiting the licensee's unauthorized use of funds received in connection with preneed funeral arrangement would prohibit the application of estoppel against the licensing agency [Mount Vernon Memorial Park v. Board of Funeral Directors & Embalmers (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 874, 888, 145 Cal. Rptr. 275] . Before a litigant can assert estoppel against an administrative agency, the agency must engage in some affirmative misleading conduct [Elliott v. Contractors' State License Bd. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1048, 1053, 274 Cal. Rptr. 286] . Equitable estoppel will not apply against a public agency when application of equitable estoppel would nullify strong rule of public policy or would expand agency's powers in contravention of statutes and constitutional considerations [Fleice v. Chualar Union Elementary School Dist. (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 886, 893-895, 254 Cal. Rptr. 54] . For example, it did not apply to prevent an agency from revoking an architect's license, as that would violate the public policy of precluding licensure of those found to be unfit to practice that profession [Hughes v. Board of Architectural Examiners (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 763, 793-794, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 624, 952 P. 2d 641] .

[2] Affirmative Defenses

[a] Burden on Respondent

Although the burden of proof in a disciplinary action is on the party bringing the charges [Parker v. City of Fountain Valley (1981) 127 Cal. App. 3d 99, 113, 179 Cal. Rptr. 351 (city denied police officer due process in termination hearing by failing to assume the burden of proving charge that he had used excessive force in making arrest); see § 473F.51[7]], the burden of proof is on the respondent to establish an affirmative defense [Anderson v. Board of Dental Examiners (1915) 27 Cal. App. 336, 338, 149 P. 1006] .

Decisional law, however, does not address whether the standard of proof is identical to the standard by which the moving party must establish its case [see § 473F.52, for a discussion of standards of proof]. In a license revocation proceeding in which a dentist was charged with permitting an unlicensed employee to use the paraphernalia of his office to perform dental work, the burden of proof at the outset of the hearing was on the licensing agency; the burden of proof to establish the affirmative defense that the employee was in fact licensed was on the respondent [Anderson v. Board of Dental Examiners (1915) 27 Cal. App. 336, 338, 149 P. 1006 ; see Whetstone v. Board of Dental Exmrs. (1927) 87 Cal. App. 156, 164, 261 P. 1077] .

[b] Claim of Discrimination

Respondents who are the subject of discipline in a variety of civil service, licensing, permit issuance, zoning, and other administrative matters may endeavor to assert as an "affirmative defense" that the proceeding or parties to it are motivated by discriminatory intent or bias. In Overturf v. California Horse Racing Bd. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 979, 985-986, 150 Cal. Rptr. 657 , discriminatory enforcement was impliedly recognized as a valid defense in an administrative disciplinary hearing against three pari-mutuel employees, but the evidence did not establish selective enforcement on an invidious basis under the equal protection clause.

In consequence, the application of the defense to proven charges was not addressed by the court [Overturf v. California Horse Racing Bd. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 979, 985-986, 150 Cal. Rptr. 657] . Overturf is significant for the incorporation of an invidious criterion standard. A person alleging that he or she has been discriminatorily picked out must demonstrate that he or she has been deliberately singled out for prosecution on the basis of some invidious criterion. The unlawful administration by state officers of a state statute that is fair on its face, resulting in its unequal application to those who are entitled to be treated alike, is not a denial of equal protection unless it contains an element of intentional or purposeful discrimination [Overturf v. California Horse Racing Bd. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 979, 985, 150 Cal. Rptr. 657 , quoting Murgia v. Municipal Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 286, 297, 124 Cal. Rptr. 204, 540 P.2d 44] .

In practice, ALJs will frequently require the party asserting the defense to make an offer of proof such as that used in a court proceeding to overcome the presumption of good faith prosecution [see Evid. Code § 664; see also Ch. 551, Trial]. The proponent is required to describe the evidence that will be offered to show that the respondent was deliberately singled out for prosecution on the basis of an identified invidious criterion, and that the disciplinary proceeding would not have been pursued except for the discriminatory intent of the moving party [People v. Smith (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 1103, 1133, 203 Cal. Rptr. 196] .

In order to successfully assert the defense that an agency discriminated against a licensee, it is necessary to show that (1) other violators not only had not been, but would not be proceeded against; and (2) that the failure to proceed against the other violators was not due to laxity of enforcement or some other reason, but was arbitrary, purposeful, and intended to discriminate against that licensee [Ehrlich v. McConnell (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 280, 288, 29 Cal. Rptr. 283] .

[c] Discrimination in License Testing Procedures

When bias or discrimination in the testing procedures of the licensing agency is admitted or assumed, those errors alone do not entitle the applicant to a license. The court will not assume the discretion of the agency to order licensure of an applicant who has otherwise not established that he or she has passed the licensing examination. Whatever other orders the court may issue to correct improper action by an agency, it does not have the expertise to make the ultimate determination as to the qualifications of a particular applicant [Bixby v. Pierno (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 130, 146, 93 Cal. Rptr. 234, 481 P.2d 242 ; Jaffee v. Psychology Examining Com. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 160, 169, 154 Cal. Rptr. 687] .

Similarly, an ALJ will not order licensure of an applicant who has not passed an allegedly biased examination.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewContracts LawDefensesEquitable EstoppelElementsEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofGeneral OverviewEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofBurden ShiftingEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsObjections & Offers of ProofOffers of Proof

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Burden of Proof at the Hearing

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473F.55-473F.59

[Reserved]

§§ 473F.55[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.60

§ 473F.60 Federal Constitution

Due process clause. U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.61

§ 473F.61 State Constitution

Due process clause. Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.62

§ 473F.62 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

Accusation. Gov. Code § 11503

Administrative adjudication bill of rights. Gov. Code §§ 11425.10-11425.60

Administrative Law Judges. Gov. Code § 11502

Affidavits. Gov. Code § 11514

Agency decisional authority. Gov. Code § 11440.10

Agencies to which act applies. Gov. Code §§ 11410.10, 11501

Amendment of pleadings. Gov. Code §§ 11507, 11516

Applicability of provisions to statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504.5

Conduct of hearing. Gov. Code § 11512

Consolidation of proceedings. Gov. Code § 11507.3

Contempt. Gov. Code §§ 11455.10-11455.30

Continuances. Gov. Code § 11524

Conversion of proceedings. Gov. Code §§ 11470.10-11470.50

Decision. Gov. Code §§ 11516-11520, 11526

Declaratory decision. Gov. Code §§ 11465.10-11465.70

Definitions of terms. Gov. Code §§ 11405.10-11405.80, 11500

Depositions. Gov. Code § 11511

Discovery. Gov. Code §§ 11507.5-11507.7

Disqualification. Gov. Code §§ 11425.30, 11425.40, 11512

Emergency decision. Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80

Evidence. Gov. Code §§ 11435.10, 11440.40, 11513

Ex parte communications. Gov. Code §§ 11430.10-11430.80

Hearings by electronic means. Gov. Code § 11440.30

Informal hearings. Gov. Code §§ 11445.10-11445.60

Intervention. Gov. Code § 11440.50

Language assistance. Gov. Code §§ 11435.05-11435.65

Judicial review. Gov. Code § 11523

Notice of defense. Gov. Code § 11506

Notice of hearing. Gov. Code § 11509

Oaths. Gov. Code § 11528

Official notice. Gov. Code § 11515

Reconsideration. Gov. Code § 11521

Reporting proceedings. Gov. Code § 11512

Restoration of rights. Gov. Code § 11522

Separate hearings. Gov. Code § 11507.3

Service and notice. Gov. Code § 11440.20

Service of initial pleading. Gov. Code § 11505

Settlement conferences. Gov. Code § 11511.7

Sexual harassment. Gov. Code § 11440.40

Statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504

Subpoenas. Gov. Code §§ 11450.05-11450.50

Time and place of hearing. Gov. Code § 11508

Waiver of rights. Gov. Code § 11415.40

[2] Related Statutes

Affidavit of good cause as required for subpoena duces tecum. Code Civ. Proc. § 1985

Witness served with subpoena as entitled to demand one day's fees and mileage allowance. Code Civ. Proc. § 1987

Witness fees and mileage allowances. Gov. Code §§ 11191, 68093, 68097.2

Right to have subpoena issued. Gov. Code § 11190

Office of Administrative Hearings. Gov. Code §§ 11370.1-11370.5

Board of supervisors of county as empowered to establish county hearing officer. Gov. Code §§ 27720, 27721

Oaths used in civil proceedings. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2094-2097

Evidentiary effect of plea of nolo contendere. Penal Code § 1016

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityEx Parte ContactsAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing Activity

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.63

§ 473F.63 Decisions

[1] General Requirements

Disciplinary action against licensee, finding licensee guilty of gross incompetence, is invalid when administrative record is completely devoid of any statute, rule, regulation, or evidence of an implied standard by which to measure competence of licensee's conduct. Wheeler v. State Bd. of Forestry (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 522, 527-528, 192 Cal. Rptr. 693

Administrative regulations that violate acts of Legislature are void. Selby v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 470, 474, 168 Cal. Rptr. 36

Act in excess of agency's authority under enabling law are void. Frates v. Burnett (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 63, 71, 87 Cal. Rptr. 731

Subject of administrative proceeding is entitled to have statutory procedures strictly followed and fairly construed. California Sch. Employees Assn. v. Personnel Commission (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 139, 145, 89 Cal. Rptr. 620, 474 P.2d 436

Administrative regulation contrary to enabling law is void. California School Employees Assn. v. Personnel Com. of Pajaro Valley Unified School Dist. (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 139, 144, 89 Cal. Rptr. 620, 474 P.2d 436

Agency is not free to ignore its own validly established procedures. Frates v. Burnett (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 63, 71, 87 Cal. Rptr. 731

Reference to Administrative Procedure Act for guidance is proper in case not governed by act or other law. Rudolph v. Athletic Commission (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 1, 12, 1 Cal. Rptr. 898

Requirements of due process. Connolly Development, Inc. v. Superior Court of Merced County (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 803, 818, 823, 132 Cal. Rptr. 477, 553 P.2d 637 ; Skelly v. State Personnel Bd. (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 194, 208-209, 124 Cal. Rptr. 14, 539 P.2d 774 ; Beaudreau v. Superior Court (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 448, 458, 121 Cal. Rptr. 585, 535 P.2d

713

[2] Conduct of Hearing

Who may or must be party to administrative proceeding depends on purpose and effect of proceeding and particular statute under which proceeding brought; standard set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 389, requiring joinder of necessary and indispensible parties in judicial proceedings, is not appropriate for administrative proceedings when joinder of parties would defeat purpose of administrative proceeding. Nevada County Office of Education v. Riles (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 767, 775, 777, 197 Cal. Rptr. 152

Agency is entitled to allow hearing officer to conduct hearing alone and present proposed decision to agency. Armistead v. City of Los Angeles (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 319, 324, 313 P.2d 127

Agency is entitled to begin hearing along with hearing officer and then withdraw midway through, leaving hearing officer to conclude hearing alone. Feist v. Rowe (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 404, 421, 83 Cal. Rptr. 465

[3] Contempt

Persons subject to license revocation proceeding are entitled to petition superior court to seek enforcement of subpoena when administrative agency refuses to seek enforcement of subpoena under Gov. Code § 11525. Gilbert v. Superior Court (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 161, 167, 238 Cal. Rptr. 220

[4] Disqualification of Counsel

In case not governed by APA, county counsel's office that acts as both advocate for county sheriff and adviser to county quasi-independent administrative board in deputy sheriff's hearing before board is not subject to disqualification on due process grounds if deputy county counsel represents sheriff, county counsel advises board, and county counsel's office can assure that adviser for board is screened from inappropriate contact with advocate for sheriff. Howitt v. Superior Court (1992) 3 Cal. App. 4th 1575, 1586-1587, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 196

[5] Estoppel

Existence of estoppel is largely a question of fact; weighing of policy concerns that must be conducted in case of estoppel against government are, in part, a question of law. Lentz v. McMahon (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 393, 403, 261 Cal. Rptr. 310, 777 P.2d 83

Administrative hearing is appropriate forum for determining applicability of equitable estoppel, in absence of statute barring administrative consideration of estoppel. Lentz v. McMahon (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 393, 402-406, 261 Cal. Rptr. 310, 777 P.2d 83

Balancing test is used to determine whether equitable estoppel should apply against governmental entity; estoppel is applicable if policy interests against application of estoppel are outweighed by burden on individual that would result if estoppel not applied. Lentz v. McMahon (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 393, 400-401, 261 Cal. Rptr. 310, 777 P.2d 83

Estoppel is applicable against government when required by justice and right, but inapplicable when it would result in nullification of strong rule of policy adopted for benefit of public. Morrison v. California Horse Racing Bd. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 211, 218, 252 Cal. Rptr. 293 (government not estopped from excluding from racetrack person convicted of crime involving moral turpitude)

[6] Evidence

Administrative board is required to accept intended meaning of uncontradicted and unimpeached evidence as true. Martori Brothers Distributors v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 721, 728, 175 Cal. Rptr. 626, 631 P.2d 60

Ex parte observation of evidence by hearing officer is permissible when hearing officer provides parties sufficient notice of, and opportunity to respond to evidence obtained from observation. Zuniga v. County of San Mateo Dep't of Health Services (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1521, 1531-1532 n.8, 267 Cal. Rptr. 755

Inapplicability of exclusionary and vicarious exclusionary rules developed in criminal cases in disciplinary proceeding against doctor. Pating v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 608, 616-626, 182 Cal. Rptr. 20

Split of authority as to whether or not uncorroborated hearsay evidence can be used to support finding when hearsay was admitted without objection. Carl S. v. Commission for Teacher Preparation & Licensing (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 365, 370-371, 178 Cal. Rptr. 753

Oral evidence is taken only on oath or affirmation, and use of unsworn witnesses is agency violation of procedural due process in hearing on termination of participant in methadone maintenance program. Marlow v. OrangeCounty Human Services Agency (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 290, 292, 167 Cal. Rptr. 776

Evidence of misdemeanor conviction is admissible at disciplinary hearing if relevant on issue of credibility or as tending to prove or disprove a material fact in issue. Coburn v. State Personnel Bd. (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 801, 809, 148 Cal. Rptr. 134

Criminal theories of evidence are generally inapplicable in administrative trial. Schullman v. State Bar (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 526, 536 n.4, 111 Cal. Rptr. 161, 516 P.2d 865 ; Webster v. Board of Dental Examiners (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 534, 537-538, 110 P.2d 992

Necessity to treat as evidence only such information as is presented at hearing. Desert Turf Club v. Board of Supervisors (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 446, 455, 296 P.2d 882

Test for applicability of exclusionary rule. Emslie v. State Bar (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 210, 226-229, 113 Cal. Rptr. 175, 520 P.2d 991

Evidence obtained by entrapment is inadmissible. Patty v. Board of Medical Examiners (1973) 9 Cal. 3d 356, 364, 107 Cal. Rptr. 473, 508 P.2d 1121 ; Governing Board v. Metcalf (1974) 36 Cal. App. 3d 546, 549, 111 Cal. Rptr. 724

Evidence obtained by deceit is inadmissible. Redner v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 83, 95, 95 Cal. Rptr. 447, 485 P.2d 799

Rule against use of outside evidence. Boreta Enterprises, Inc. v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 85, 104, 84 Cal. Rptr. 113, 465 P.2d 1 ; English v. City of Long Beach (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 155, 158-159, 217 P.2d 22 ; La Prade v. Department of Water & Power (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 47, 51, 162 P.2d 13 ; Armistead v. City of Los Angeles (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 319, 324, 313 P.2d 127

Hearsay is sufficient to support finding if admitted over objection pursuant to exception to hearsay rule. Walker v. City of San Gabriel (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 879, 881, 129 P.2d 349 , disapproved on other grounds in Bixby v. Pierno (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 130, 152, 93 Cal. Rptr. 234, 481 P.2d 242 ; Layton v. Merit System Commission (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 58, 68, 131 Cal. Rptr. 318

Admissibility of record of conviction based on plea of nolo contendere. Cartwright v. Board of Chiropractic Examiners (1974) 16 Cal. 3d 762, 768-774, 129 Cal. Rptr. 462, 548 P.2d 1134 ; Grannis v. Board of Medical Examiners (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 551, 557, 96 Cal. Rptr. 863

Agency is decider of credibility of witnesses. Mullen v. Department of Real Estate (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 295, 301, 251 Cal. Rptr. 12 ; Campbell v. Board of Dental Examiners (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 872, 876, 95 Cal. Rptr. 351

Respondent is entitled to invoke privilege against compelled self-incrimination if called to testify. Ex parte Clarke (1894) 103 Cal. 352, 354

Agency is not entitled to call respondent until respondent has had opportunity to present evidence. O'Mara v. State Bd. of Pharmacy (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 8, 12, 54 Cal. Rptr. 862

[7] Expert Witnesses

At administrative hearing to revoke license to operate family day care home for children, based on allegations that one of home operators had sexually abused child attending home, administrative law judge committed error in allowing testimony of child's psychiatrist that child had been molested because he viewed her behavior as consistent with "child sexual abuse accommodation syndrome"; syndrome was not shown to be scientific method of proving molestation that was generally accepted in scientific community in which it was developed. Seering v. Dept. of Social Services (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 298, 308-315, 239 Cal. Rptr. 422 (holding error harmless under facts of case)

[8] Presiding Officers

Request for appointment of hearing officer is not necessary; appointment is required under APA. National Auto. & Cas. Ins. Co. v. Downey (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 586, 593, 220 P.2d 962

Hearing held without hearing officer, where one is required, is in excess of agency's jurisdiction. Moyer v. State Board of Equalization (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 651, 653-654, 295 P.2d 583 ; National Auto. & Cas. Ins. Co. v. Downey (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 586, 592, 220 P.2d 962

Hearing officer is required to be present during hearing. National Auto. & Cas. Ins. Co. v. Downey (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 586, 592, 220 P.2d 962

[9] Hearings

Death of hearing officer before whom evidence was presented and issuance of recommended decision by different hearing officer is not denial of procedural due process when party was afforded opportunity to be heard and decision of county retirement board resulted from board's own independent review of testimony and other evidence presented at hearing, even though board adopted hearing officer's findings and conclusions. Keith v. San Bernardino County Retirement Bd. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 411, 415, 271 Cal. Rptr. 649

Express constitutional right to confrontation is confined to criminal proceedings, although party in civil proceeding has due process right under U.S. Const., amends. V, XIV, to cross examine and confront witnesses and as afforded same right by statute (Gov. Code § 11500(f)(2)) in state agency hearing; but unlike criminal proceeding where express constitutional right to confrontation exists, constitutional right at civil proceeding as involving general notions of procedural due process. Seering v. Dept. of Social Services (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 298, 304, 239 Cal. Rptr. 422

In proceeding to revoke license to operate family day care home for children, exclusion of operators of home from hearing during testimony of child who allegedly had been sexually assaulted by one of operators does not violate their due process right or their right under Gov. Code § 11500(f)(2) to confront and cross examine adversary witnesses when operators viewed child's testimony by live, closed-circuit television and consulted with counsel prior to cross examination. Seering v. Dept. of Social Services (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 298, 304, 239 Cal. Rptr. 422

[10] Judicial Notice

California Administrative Procedure Act requires notice and opportunity to rebut whenever administrative agency intends to take official notice of any generally accepted technical or scientific matter within agency's special field, or of any fact which may be judicially noticed by California courts. Franz v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 124, 140, 181 Cal. Rptr. 732, 642 P.2d 792 (citing Gov. Code § 11515 and Evid. Code § 450 et seq.)

[11] Jurisdiction

Writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 is proper to challenge agency's authority to proceed with hearing on ground that agency lacked subject matter jurisdiction to hear issues raised in accusation. Motors Ins. Corp. v. Division of Fair Employment Practices (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 209, 215-216, 173 Cal. Rptr. 332

[12] Nonsuit

Hearing officer is not empowered to grant request in nature of motion for nonsuit. O'Mara v. State Bd. of Pharmacy (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 8, 11, 54 Cal. Rptr. 862

Presumptions established by Evidence Code are applicable in administrative proceeding. Samson Market Co. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 1215, 1223, 81 Cal. Rptr. 251, 459 P.2d 667

[13] Official Notice

Agency is entitled to take official notice of facts subject to judicial notice in California. McAllister v. Workmen's Compensation Appeals Bd. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 408, 414, 71 Cal. Rptr. 697, 445 P.2d 313 ; Cantrell v. Board of Supervisors (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 471, 477, 197 P.2d 218

[14] Order and Burden of Proof

Respondent is entitled to have case against him presented first. English v. City of Long Beach (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 155, 159, 217 P.2d 22 ; La Prade v. Department of Water & Power (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 47, 51-52, 162 P.2d 13

Burden of proof in disciplinary proceedings is on party asserting affirmative. De Rasmo v. Smith (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 601, 610, 93 Cal. Rptr. 289

Respondent has burden of proof in license application case. Martin v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1959) 52 Cal.

2d 259, 265, 341 P.2d 291 ; CEEED v. California Coastal Zone Conservation Com. (1974) 43 Cal. App.3d 306, 330, 118 Cal. Rptr. 315 ; Hora v. City and County of San Francisco (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 375, 379, 43 Cal. Rptr. 527

Amount of proof required in disciplinary proceeding. Furman v. State Bar (1939) 12 Cal. 2d 212, 229, 83 P.2d 12 ; Realty Projects, Inc. v. Smith (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 204, 212, 108 Cal. Rptr. 71 ; Small v. Smith (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 450, 457, 94 Cal. Rptr. 136

Presumptions established by Evidence Code are applicable in administrative proceeding. Samson Market Co. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 1215, 1223, 81 Cal. Rptr. 251, 459 P.2d 667

[15] Record of Proceedings

Requirement of record by phonographic reporter refers to literal record of what is said, capable of accurate transcription. Funke v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 449, 455, 81 Cal. Rptr. 662

Cost of record obtained by respondent to exhaust administrative remedies is recoverable in proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 if respondent prevails. Ralph's Chrysler-Plymouth v. New Car Dealers Policy & Appeals Bd. (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 792, 796-797, 106 Cal. Rptr. 169, 505 P.2d 1009

[16] Right to Counsel

Respondent is entitled to be represented by counsel. Molina v. Munro (1959) 145 Cal. App. 2d 601

Respondent is not entitled to appointed counsel or to be advised by agency of right to counsel. Borror v. Department of Investment (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 531, 543, 92 Cal. Rptr. 525

Respondent is not entitled to continuance for purpose of obtaining counsel or having counsel present at hearing if adequate opportunity to get counsel and have counsel present was given. Givens v. Dept. of Alcoholic Bev. Control (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 529, 532, 1 Cal. Rptr. 446 ; Skipitar v. Munro (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 1, 345 P.2d 508

Agency is not required to look after respondent's interests as counsel might, in absence of counsel. August v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 52, 64, 70 Cal. Rptr. 172 ; Griswold v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 807, 810, 297 P.2d 762

[17] Stay of Execution

Agency is empowered to stay execution of decision until date when respondent will actually feel effect of it. Medlock Dusters, Inc. v. Christensen (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 565, 569-570, 110 Cal. Rptr. 805

[18] Subpoenas

Administrative subpoenas pursuant to Gov. Code § 11180 et seq. Pating v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 608, 616-618, 182 Cal. Rptr. 20

Court opinion enunciating rule that declaration in support of investigative subpoena duces tecum for production of patient's hospital records must show good cause, including allegations of fact to demonstrate relevance or materiality of patient's medical records to general charges against doctor, and must show that request can be granted without abuse of third party's constitutionally protected right of privacy (Cal. Const., art. I, § 1) is not retroactive. Pating v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 608, 618-620, 182 Cal. Rptr. 20

Issuance of subpoena under APA is ministerial act before hearing and discretionary act after hearing has begun. Shively v. Stewart (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 475, 480-481, 55 Cal. Rptr. 217, 421 P.2d 65

Agency having power to issue subpoena not governed by APA, is required to issue subpoena when requested. McLeod v. Board of Pension Comm'rs (1970) 14 Cal. App. 3d 23, 28-29, 94 Cal. Rptr. 58

Witness served with administrative subpoena is entitled to demand one day's fees and mileage allowance. McLeod v. Board of Pension Comm'rs (1970) 14 Cal. App. 3d 23, 31, 94 Cal. Rptr. 58

Agency lacks power to enforce its own subpoena. Crocker v. Conrey (1903) 140 Cal. 213, 217, 73 P. 1006

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceOfficial NoticeAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenasAdministrative LawSeparation of PowersLegislative ControlsScope of Delegated AuthorityConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of ProtectionEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.64

§ 473F.64 Text References

Judicial Council of California, Tenth Biennial Report (1944)

California Administrative Hearing Practice (Cal CEB 2000)

Witkin, California Evidence, Ch. II, Judicial Notice, §§ 80-126, Ch. IX, Witnesses, §§ 1086-1092; Ch. XI, Introduction of Evidence at Trial, §§ 1906-2000 (3rd ed. 1986)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.65

§ 473F.65 Internet References

Office of Administrative Hearings. This site includes information and location concerning specific OAH offices; an OAH hearing guide; information concerning Administrative Procedure Act statutes, regulations, and proposed regulations; OAH forms; information concerning alternative dispute resolution procedures; and declaratory decisions. http://www.dgs.ca.gov/oah

NOTE:
On and after July 1, 1998, The OAL is required by Gov. Code § 11340.1(b) to make the full text of the California Code of Regulations, with reference citations and history notes, available on the Internet free of charge.

Office of Administrative Law. This site includes OAL publications; links to OAL statutes and regulations relating to rulemaking; regulations submitted to the OAL for review, and information for contacting or providing input to the OAL regarding rulemaking. http://www.oal.ca.gov

California Home Page. This site includes links to other sites maintained by numerous state agencies. http://www.ca.gov

Department of Consumer Affairs. This site includes links to sites maintained by many state agencies that are under this department, as well as links to agency sites. http://www.dca.ca.gov

California Courts. This site includes general information about state court organization and specific court; text of recently filed slip opinions; court minutes and calendars; text of California Rules of Court; Judicial Council forms and other information promulgated by the Judicial Council; links to sites of most Court of Appeal districts, with text of local appellate rules, forms, and internal operating procedures; links to other sites maintained by local trial courts, state government agencies and organizations, federal courts and federal organizations, and other sources of legal information. http://www.courtinfo.ca.gov

California Legislative Information. This site includes text of constitution, codes, and statutes (including complete text of APA); and information concerning pending legislation. http://www.leginfo.ca.gov

Matthew Bender. This site includes links to Matthew Bender publications and Shepard's citation service. http://www.bender.com

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute ResolutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsCreation & OrganizationGovernmentsLegislationEnactment

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473F.66-473F.69

[Reserved]

§§ 473F.66[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.70

§ 473F.70 Prehearing Considerations

[1] Exclusion of Witnesses

☐ Prepare request or motion to exclude [see § 473F.12[3]].

☐ Make request or motion prior to testimony [see § 473F.12[3]].

[2] Interpreters

☐ Request interpreter [see § 473F.13].

☐ Pay interpreter cost, if applicable [Gov. Code § 11435.25(a); see § 473F.13[4]].

[3] Witness Fees and Mileage

☐ Pay fees, if applicable [Gov. Code § 11450.40(a); (b); see § 473F.14[1][g]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityEvidenceCompetencyInterpretersEvidenceTestimonySequestration

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.71

§ 473F.71 Preparation for Hearing

[1] Opening Statement

☐ Prepare opening statement, if appropriate [see § 473F.15[1][a], [b]].

[2] Hearing Brief

☐ Prepare hearing brief, if appropriate [see § 473F.15[2]].

☐ Serve on ALJ and other parties as soon as possible.

[3] Witnesses

☐ Direct examination.

☐ Prepare questions for direct examination [see Gov. Code § 11513(b); see § 473F.15[4][a], [b]].

☐ Prepare witness for direct examination [§ 473F.15[4][b], [c]].

[4] Expert Witnesses

☐ Prepare for cross-examination [Gov. Code § 11513(b); see § 473F.15[5], [6]].

[5] Bifurcation

☐ Prepare motion to bifurcate, if applicable [Gov. Code § 11524; see § 473F.15[10]].

☐ Prepare in writing, or ☐ Make orally on the record.

[6] Depositions

☐ Prepare petition for order to take deposition of unavailable witness [Gov. Code § 11511; see § 473F.15[11][b]].

☐ Prepare order.

☐ Serve notice of hearing and copy of petition at least 10 days prior to hearing [Gov. Code § 11511; see § 473F.15[11][c]].

[7] Closing Argument

☐ Prepare closing argument [see § 473F.15[13]].

☐ Oral, or ☐ Written.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityEvidenceTestimonyExaminationDirect ExaminationEvidenceTestimonyExpertsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.72

§ 473F.72 Subpoena and Subpoena Duces Tecum

[1] Procedure

☐ Prepare subpoena [see § 473F.14; see also § 473B.51].

☐ Subpoena duces tecum requires affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985; § 473F.14[1][c]].

☐ Serve subpoena [Gov. Code § 11450.20(b); see § 473F.14[1][d]].

☐ Subpoena alternative.

☐ Prepare written notice alternative to subpoena [Gov. Code § 11450.50(a); see § 473F.14[1][h]].

☐ Serve on opposing party's attorney or attorney of person requested to attend.

[2] Party Served With Subpoena

☐ Motion for protective order, including motion to quash [Gov. Code § 11450.30(a); see § 473F.14[1][f]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceOfficial NoticeAdministrative LawAgency

AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency InvestigationsScopeSubpoenas

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.73

§ 473F.73 Use of Affidavits at Hearing

[1] Affidavits

☐ Prepare affidavit or declaration [see § 473F.37].

☐ Prepare notice of intent to use affidavit or declaration [Gov. Code § 11514(b); for a form, see § 473F.90].

☐ Mail or deliver affidavit and notice to opposing party at least 10 days before hearing [Gov. Code § 11514(a); see § 473F.37].

[2] Party Receiving Affidavit and Notice

☐ Right to cross-examine affiant.

☐ Mail or deliver request to cross-examine affiant within seven days after proponent of affidavit mailed or delivered affidavit and notice [Gov. Code § 11514(a); see § 473F.37].

☐ Subpoena affiant [see § 473F.37].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.74

§ 473F.74 Official Notice

[1] Request

☐ Prepare request for official notice [Gov. Code § 11515; § 473F.38[3]; for a form, see § 473F.91].

☐ File with agency or ALJ.

☐ Give written or oral notice to other parties.

[2] Refuting Officially Noticed Matter

☐ Prepare request for opportunity to refute [Gov. Code § 11515; § 473F.38[3]; for a form, see § 473F.92].

☐ File with agency or ALJ.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.75

§ 473F.75 Default

[1] Failure to File Notice of Defense or to Attend Hearing

☐ Agency files default.

☐ Make request to vacate default [Gov. Code § 11520(c); see § 473F.17[1][a], [b]].

☐ Prepare written motion.

☐ Serve on agency within seven days of receiving notice of default [Gov. Code § 11520(c); see § 473F.17[1][a], [b]].

☐ Prepare mitigation defense, if appropriate [see Gov. Code § 11520(b); § 473F.17[1][c]].

[2] Respondent Fails to Receive Actual Notice

☐ Agency files default.

☐ Prepare petition to reconsider default [Gov. Code § 11520(c)(1); see § 473F.14[1][d]].

☐ File within applicable time limits [see Gov. Code § 11521(a); § 473F.17[1][d]].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473F.76-473F.89

[Reserved]

§§ 473F.76[Reserved]

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART V. FORMS

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.90

§ 473F.90 Notice of Intention to Use Affidavit or Declaration [Gov. Code § 11514]

[1] FORM Notice of Intention to Use Affidavit or Declaration [Gov. Code § 11514]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

In the Matter of _____ [name], Respondent.	)))))))	NO. _____ NOTICE OF INTENTION TO USE _____ [AFFIDAVIT or DECLARATION]

The accompanying _____ [affidavit or declaration] of _____ [name of affiant or declarant] will be introduced as evidence at the hearing in the above-entitled proceeding. _____ [Name of affiant or declarant] will not be called to testify orally. You will not be entitled to question him/her unless you notify the undersigned at _____[address] that you wish to cross examine him/her. To be effective, your request must be mailed or delivered to the undersigned on or before _____[specify date seven days after mailing or delivering notice and copy of affidavit or declaration].

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Respondent

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is for use by a respondent who wishes to use a witness's affidavit (or declaration) in evidence at the hearing. The contents of the notice are prescribed by statute [see Gov. Code § 11514(b)]. For discussion, see § 473F.37.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART V. FORMS

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.91

§ 473F.91 Request for Official Notice [Gov. Code § 11515]

[1] FORM Request for Official Notice [Gov. Code § 11515]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

In the Matter of _____ [name], Respondent.	)))))))	NO. _____ REQUEST FOR OFFICIAL NOTICE

Respondent requests that the _____[agency] take official notice of, and refer in the record to, _____ [specify matter].

Official notice may be taken as requested because the matter _____ [is generally accepted technical or scientific matter within the special field of the _____ (agency) or may be judicially noticed by the courts of California pursuant to Section _____ of the Evidence Code].

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Respondent

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is for use by the respondent who wishes an agency to take official notice of some matter in the hearing [Gov. Code § 11515]. For discussion of official notice, see § 473F.38.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473F AGENCY ADJUDICATION HEARINGS
PART V. FORMS

41A-473F California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.92

§ 473F.92 Request for Opportunity to Refute Officially Noticed Matter [Gov. Code § 11515]

[1] FORM Request for Opportunity to Refute Officially Noticed Matter [Gov. Code § 11515]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

In the Matter of _____ [name], Respondent.	)))))))	NO. _____ REQUEST FOR OPPORTUNITY TO REFUTE OFFICIALLY NOTICED MATTER

Respondent requests a reasonable opportunity to refute _____[matter in question], which the _____[agency] proposes to notice officially under Section 11515 of the Government Code.

Respondent further requests that the _____[agency] permit refutation to be made by _____ [specify written or oral presentation of authority, or both].

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Respondent

[2] Use of Form

The form set out in [1], above, is for use by a respondent who wishes to request an opportunity to refute matter that the agency has proposed to notice officially in the hearing [Gov. Code § 11515]. For discussion of official notice, see § 473F.38.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 473G.syn

§ 473G.syn Synopsis to Chapter 473G: AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS

§ 473G.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 473G.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

[2] Judicial Review

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

[4] Other Related Chapters

§§ 473G.03-473G.09 [Reserved]

§ 473G.10 Nature of Decision Process

§ 473G.11 Exclusiveness of the Record

[1] Due Process Requirement

[2] Purpose of Rule

[3] Application of Rule

[4] APA Requirements

[5] Office of Administrative Hearings Regulations Governing Hearing Procedures

§ 473G.12 Ex Parte Communications

[1] General Requirements

[2] APA Requirements

[a] Definitions and Basic Prohibitions

[b] Permissible Communications

[c] Consequences of Violations

[d] Application to Agency Head

[3] Non-APA Requirements

§ 473G.13 Administrative Decisions Under the APA

[1] Alternative Hearing Procedures

[2] Decision When Agency Itself Hears Case

[a] Preparation of Decision

[b] Vote of Members

[3] Proposed Decision When ALJ Hears Case

[a] Time Limit for Decision

[b] Agency's Options on Receiving Decision

[c] Deemed Adoption

[4] Adoption of Proposed ALJ Decision

[5] Rejection of Proposed ALJ Decision

[a] Decision on Record

[b] Remand to ALJ

[6] Time Limits for Decision

[7] Service and Effective Date of Decision

§ 473G.14 Factual and Legal Basis of Decision

[1] APA Requirement

[2] Form and Function

[a] Need for Factual Basis Supported by Substantial Evidence

[b] Use of Factual Bases

[3] Types of Factual Bases

[a] Operative Facts

[b] Other Facts

[4] Formality

[5] Implied Findings and Liberal Construction

[6] Legal Bases of Decision

[a] Nature of Determination

[b] EXAMPLE: Serving Alcoholic Beverages to Minor

[c] EXAMPLE: Physician's Unprofessional Conduct

§ 473G.15 Orders

§ 473G.16 Discovering Decision Processes and Reasoning

§ 473G.17 ALJ Decisionmaking

[1] Role of Judges

[2] Determination of Facts

[3] Proof of the Case

[4] Influence of Experts

[5] Role of Pleadings

§ 473G.18 Precedent Decisions Under the APA

§§ 473G.19-473G.29 [Reserved]

§ 473G.30 Effective Date of Decision

[1] Introduction

[2] Effective Date

§ 473G.31 Early Effective Date

[1] General Rules

[2] Effect on Reconsideration Period

[3] Effect on Sanctions

[4] Effect on Appeal

§ 473G.32 Stay of Execution

§ 473G.33 Rehearing or Reconsideration

[1] Right Determined by Statute

[2] Petition for Reconsideration

[3] APA Order for Reconsideration

[a] Power to Order Reconsideration

[b] Denial or Grant of Petition

§ 473G.34 Correction of Mistakes or Clerical Errors in Decisions

§ 473G.35 Consequences of Agency Adjudicatory Decisions

[1] Introduction

[2] License Revocation or Suspension

[3] License Denial

[4] Criminal Penalties

[5] Award of Benefits

[6] Damages

[7] Equitable Remedies

[8] Civil Penalties

[9] Attorneys Fees

[10] Hearing Costs

[11] Restitution Orders

§ 473G.36 Reinstatement of Licenses

[1] Petition

[2] Proceedings After Petition Is Filed

[3] Decision

§§ 473G.37-473G.39 [Reserved]

§ 473G.40 Related Matthew Bender Publications

§ 473G.41 Federal Constitution

§ 473G.42 State Constitution

§ 473G.43 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

[2] Related Statutes

§ 473G.44 Decisions

[1] Clerical Mistakes

[2] Contested Cases

[3] Law of the Case

[4] Reconsideration Under Administrative Procedure Act

[5] Rehearing

[6] Res Judicata and Collateral Estoppel

§ 473G.45 Text References

§ 473F.46 Internet References

§§ 473G.47-473G.49 [Reserved]

§ 473G.50 Mistake or Clerical Error in Decision

§ 473G.51 Reconsideration of Agency Decision

§ 473G.52 Reinstatement or Reduction of Penalty

§ 473G.53 Judicial Review

§§ 473G.54-473G.69 [Reserved]

§ 473G.70 Petition for Reconsideration [Gov. Code § 11521]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

§ 473G.71 Petition for Restoration of Rights [Gov. Code § 11522]

[1] FORM

[2] Use of Form

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.01

§ 473G.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the procedures for issuing a decision following an agency adjudication under California public administrative law. The legal background discussion in Part II includes the following:

- Subpart A, discussing the procedural requirements for decisions after formal hearings under the Administrative Procedure Act (APA), including nature of decision process, exclusiveness of the record, ex parte communications, the APA decision process, factual and legal bases of decisions, orders, discovering decision process and reasoning, ALJ decision making, and precedent decisions under the APA [see §§ 473G.10 -473G.18].

- Subpart B, discussing the effective date and consequences of an agency decision, including stay of execution, rehearing or reconsideration, correcting mistakes or clerical errors in decisions, consequences of decision, and reinstatement of licenses [see §§ 473G.30 -473G.36].

Part V includes a form of petition for reconsideration [see § 473G.70] and a form of petition for restoration of rights [see § 473G.71].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityEx Parte Contacts

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.02

§ 473G.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

For related discussion and forms providing more detailed coverage of the other stages of an agency adjudication under the formal hearing provisions of the APA, see:

- Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication.
- Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication.
- Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473D, Prehearing Preparations in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges.
- Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings.

For related discussion and forms providing more detailed coverage of adjudication methods under the APA other than that of formal hearing, see Ch. 473H, Alternative Adminstrative Adjudication Procedures .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to licensing agencies, including licensing adjudications, see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies .

[2] Judicial Review

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to review by California courts of agency adjudications, see:

- Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions.
- Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions.
- Ch. 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions.
- Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions.

For other related discussion and forms relating to judicial review generally, see:

- Ch. 40 et seq., Appeal (discussion and forms relating to civil appeals).
- Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of orders by extraordinary writ of mandate or prohibition).
- Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of civil proceedings by extraordinary writ of review).

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

For related discussion of California public administrative law generally, including discussion of public agency functions and powers (including adjudicative or quasi-judicial powers), and organization generally, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law (for general discussion of judicial power, see § 470.12[5]). For detailed discussion of the general procedures imposed in agency proceedings by constitutional due process and related statutory requirements, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies .

For discussion and forms relating to the law governing access to and conduct of meetings by California public agencies, see Ch. 470B, Public Agency Meetings .

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the law governing disclosure of public records under the California Public Records Act [Cal. Gov. Code §§ 6250 et seq.], see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to agency investigations and inspections, see:

- Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies.
- Ch. 471A, Inspections by Public Agencies.

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to the legislative or rulemaking functions of California public agencies, including judicial review of these functions, see:

- Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules.
- Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures.
- Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking.

[4] Other Related Chapters

For related coverage of adjudicative proceedings before particular public agencies, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public

Administrative Law, § 470.02[2].

For discussion and forms relating to decisions or judgements in civil actions generally, see Ch. 318, Judgments .

For discussion and forms relating to direct or collateral relief from judgments in civil actions generally, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473G.03-473G.09

[Reserved]

§§ 473G.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Requirements for Decisions After Formal Hearings

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.10

§ 473G.10 Nature of Decision Process

This subpart explains the due process rule that requires a decision in an administrative adjudication hearing to be based solely on the record created at that hearing. It covers the administrative decision making process, including proposed and final decisions under the California Administrative Procedure Act (APA; Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.), findings of fact, determinations of issues, and orders. The rules regarding ex parte communications with the presiding officer are also examined. This subpart also contains a practical discussion of considerations that influence the decisions of an administrative law judge (ALJ).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityEx Parte ContactsConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of Protection

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Requirements for Decisions After Formal Hearings

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.11

§ 473G.11 Exclusiveness of the Record

[1] Due Process Requirement

Due process of law requires that adjudicatory administrative decisions be full and fair and based solely on evidence that is part of the record [Button v. Board of Administration (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 730, 738, 176 Cal. Rptr. 218] . Fairness and justice demand that those decisions not be based on secret evidence that the parties cannot challenge and rebut [Carstens v. Pillsbury (1916) 172 Cal. 572, 576-577, 158 P. 218] . Administrative agencies that exercise quasi-judicial powers and are required to make a determination after a hearing cannot act on their own information [Franz v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 124, 139-141, 181 Cal. Rptr. 732, 642 P.2d 792 ; English v. City of Long Beach (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 155, 158, 217 P.2d 22] . Nothing may be treated as evidence if it has not been introduced as such, because a hearing requires that the party be apprised of the evidence against him or her in order to refute, test, and explain it [La Prade v. Department of Water & Power (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 47, 51-52, 162 P.2d 13] .

[2] Purpose of Rule

The exclusiveness of the record rule serves three purposes [Fairbanks v. Alaska Pub. Utils. Comm'n (Alaska 1980) 611 P.2d 493, 495 ; see Topanga Asso. for Scenic Community v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 506, 516-517, 113 Cal. Rptr. 836, 522 P.2d 12 (agency granting variance from zoning ordinance must make appropriate findings, so that record enables parties to seek review)]:

- It helps to insure that the agency does not make decisions that have no adequate basis in fact.

- It gives opposing parties the opportunity to challenge the agency's reasoning process and the correctness of the decision.

- It affords reviewing courts the opportunity to evaluate the agency's decision.

It was reversible error for the superior court to decide an administrative mandamus case and to deny the petition without reviewing the administrative record. In denying the petition before the administrative record had been prepared, the court was unable to weigh the evidence and to decide the sufficiency of the evidence to support the fact findings that provided the basis for the agency decision [Ocheltree v. Gourley (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1013, 1017-1018, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77] .

Evidence taken outside the record will not be grounds for reversal of the decision if the circumstances show that no likelihood for prejudice existed [see Gore v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 184, 191-192, 167 Cal. Rptr. 881 (fact that panel member had acted improperly in making agency decision was not grounds for reversal, when panel subsequently made same decision without that member, and no evidence was introduced to show that other members were affected by his improper conduct)].

[3] Application of Rule

The exclusiveness of the record rule has been applied in many settings. It prevents an administrative law judge (ALJ) from deciding an issue that was precluded from the hearing; only the record of what is at issue during the hearing becomes part of the record for decision [see Button v. Board of Administration (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 730, 738-739, 176 Cal. Rptr. 218 (in hearing by retiree to change retirement status from "service" to "disability," ALJ's finding that retiree was not disabled on retirement was improper, because existence of disability was not at issue)].

An expert opinion based on the transcripts of a hearing, which was not received into evidence but was communicated to a board without the knowledge of the affected party, cannot be used by the board to decide the case [Rogers v. Retirement Board (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 751, 757-758, 241 P.2d 611 ; see Corcoran v. S.F. etc. Retirement System (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 738, 745, 251 P.2d 59 (retirement board's use of doctors' reports, received in evidence by board after submission of the case, was improper)].

An agency cannot determine that topless waitresses are contrary to public welfare and morals without evidence in the record regarding the evils alleged to be causally associated with topless waitresses [Boreta Enterprises, Inc. v. Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 85, 103-104, 84 Cal. Rptr. 113, 465 P.2d 1] . The rule was not applied, however, in a case in which a penalty was mitigated after a suggestion to do so was received from the deciding authority's superior. The court concluded that the deciding authority did not change its decision based on any extrinsic evidence or information [Guilbert v. Regents of University of California (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 233, 242-243, 155 Cal. Rptr. 583] .

[4] APA Requirements

Agencies that are required to follow Chapter 5, the formal hearing provisions of the APA (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), are required to make a decision on the record of the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11517(c), (d)]. The Administrative Adjudication " Bill of Rights" (Gov. Code § 11425.10-11425.60), requires that an agency decision be based on the record of the proceeding [Gov. Code §§ 11425(a)(6), 11425.50(c)].

This bill of rights sets forth the minimum due process and public interest requirements that must be satisfied in a hearing that is subject to Chapter 4.5, the general adjudication provisions of the APA (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.). This includes hearings by a state agency in which federal or state constitution provisions, or a federal or state statute, require an evidentiary hearing for determination of facts in order to formulate and issue a decision [Gov. Code § 11410.20]. It also includes any hearing subject to Chapter 5, the APA'a formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) [Gov. Code §§ 11410.50, 11501; see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication, § 473.15 (discussion of the scope of application of Chapters 4.5 and 5)].

[5] Office of Administrative Hearings Regulations Governing Hearing Procedures

The Office of Administrative Hearings adopted regulations [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1440 (1997)] to govern hearing procedures in hearings conducted before OAH administrative law judges[1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1000 (1998)]. The regulations cover the subjects of general APA hearing procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1046 (1998)], special hearing procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1100-1148 (1997)], alternative dispute resolution procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1200-1292 (1999)], arbitration procedures for state contract act claims [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1300-1393 (1997)], and protest arbitration procedures 1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1440 (1998)]. The basic purpose [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1000 (1998)], definitions [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1002 (1998)], and principles of interpretation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1004 (1998)], are set forth in specific regulations. The regulations that are applicable to Chapter 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions, include the following: reporting of hearings, administrative records and ordering the transcript [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1038 (1998)]; enforcement of orders and sanctions [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1040 (1998)]; agency request for costs of investigation and prosecution of the case [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1042 (1998)]; request for expenses after default [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1044 (1998)]; and briefs and amicus briefs [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1046 (1998)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsCollateral EstoppelAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewAdministrative RecordGeneral OverviewConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of Protection

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Requirements for Decisions After Formal Hearings

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.12

§ 473G.12 Ex Parte Communications

[1] General Requirements

Violation of the exclusiveness of the record rule frequently takes the form of an ex parte communication to the adjudicator after a matter has been submitted [see § 473G.11]. A good example of how far some courts have gone to prevent the use of ex parte communications in decisionmaking is illustrated by a Texas case, First Savings & Loan, Etc. v. Vandygriff (Tex. Civ. App. 1980) 605 S.W.2d 740 . In this case, the state savings and loan commissioner denied an application for a new savings and loan at a hearing. After the denial was final, organizers of the savings and loan met with the commissioner to give him a different view of the economic conditions in the area where the savings and loan was to be located than that reflected in the order denying the application. The organizers then refiled the application with the commissioner, another hearing was held, and the commissioner approved the application. The court set aside this approval order because of the ex parte contact with the commissioner, even though it occurred when the first order was final and no application was pending, and even though the commissioner stated on the record of the second hearing that the meeting took place but that his new order was based only on the record of the second hearing [First Savings & Loan, Etc. v. Vandygriff (Tex. Civ. App. 1980) 605 S.W.2d 740, 743] . Based on a statute prohibiting ex parte communications, it was presumed that the meeting with the organizers led to the findings that supported the new order. The offended party, another savings and loan, did not have to show that the commissioner was persuaded by secret information [First Savings & Loan, Etc. v. Vandygriff (Tex. Civ. App. 1980) 605 S.W.2d 740, 742] .

An ex parte communication by a party or interested individual to an ALJ or agency member during an administrative adjudication is defined to be a communication made while a proceeding is pending to the presiding officer in that proceeding by an employee or representative of an agency that is a party or from an interested person outside the agency, without notice and opportunity for all parties to participate in the communication [Gov. Code § 11430.10(a)]. Ex parte communications raise the following significant concerns:

- The message will affect the adjudicator's neutrality and objectivity.
- The information or opinion transmitted will not be reflected in the record or be available for consideration by a court reviewing the adjudicator's decision.

- A party unaware of the content of the communication will be unaware of the need to rebut the information.

Ex parte communications also raise fairness concerns, that both sides will not be heard in a contested case, or that one side has greater influence because that side can present their argument without being challenged by their opponent.

It is unethical for a lawyer to make an improper ex parte communication to a judge or judicial officer upon the merits of a contested matter pending before the judge [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 5-300(B); Mathew Zaheri Corp. v. New Motor Vehicle Bd. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1305, 1316-1318, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705 (ex parte communication by counsel to ALJ held to be misconduct but not reversible error)]. It is also improper for judges to make or receive similar ex parte communications from a lawyer in a pending or impending proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div. II, Code of Judicial Ethics, Canon 3C(7)].

Ex parte communications are a greater problem in administrative agencies than in civil or criminal litigation, because agencies frequently communicate with regulated industries, licensees, or both, on an ex parte basis when deciding policy issues in rulemaking. Thus, the agency and interested outsiders will be talking frequently about issues of common interest. However, improper ex parte communications are prohibited in contested adjudicative hearings [see [2], below].

[2] APA Requirements

[a] Definitions and Basic Prohibitions

Under provisions operative July 1, 1997, ex parte communications are improper in some circumstances but not others [see Gov. Code §§ 11430.10-11430.80]. The prohibition on ex parte communications provides that while the proceeding is pending there shall be no communication, direct or indirect, regarding any issue in the proceeding, to the presiding officer from an employee or representative of an agency that is a party or from an interested person outside the agency, without notice and opportunity for all parties to participate in the communication [Gov. Code § 11430.10(a)].

For purposes of this prohibition, a proceeding is pending from the issuance of an agency's initial pleading, or from an application for an agency decision, whichever is earlier [Gov. Code § 11430.10(c)]. The term "interested person outside the agency" is based on federal administrative law [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 164 (1995); see 5 U.S.C. § 557(d)(1)(A); see PATCO v. Federal Labor Relation Authority (1982) 685 F.2d 547, 562, 222 U.S. App. D.C. 97 (interpreting the federal standard to include persons with interest beyond that of members of the general public)]. The pendency of a proceeding includes any period of time between the time an application for a hearing is made and the time the agency's pleading is issued [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 164 (1995)].

Furthermore, if, while the proceeding is pending but before serving as presiding officer, a person receives a communication of a type that would violate the provisions of this law if received while the person was serving as a presiding officer, the person, promptly after starting to serve, shall disclose the content of the communication on the record and give all parties an opportunity to address it in the manner provided in Gov. Code § 11430.50 [Gov. Code § 11430.40(c); see [c], below].

[b] Permissible Communications

Ex parte communications that are proper under the act include several categories. The first category, permissible communications, include the following:

- Communications, including a communication from an employee or representative of an agency that is a party, made on the record at the hearing [Gov. Code § 11430.10(b)].

- Communications that are required for the disposition of an ex parte matter specifically authorized by statute [Gov. Code § 11430.20(a)].

- Communications that concern a matter of procedure or practice, including a request for a continuance, that is not in controversy [Gov. Code § 11430.20(b)]. This exception does not preclude communications made to a presiding officer or staff assistant regarding noncontroversial matters of procedure and practice, such as the format of pleadings, number of copies required, manner of service, and calendaring and status discussions. Such topics are not considered to be part of the merits of the proceeding provided they are noncontroversial in the context of the specific case [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 165 (1995)].

The second category of permissable ex parte communications, otherwise prohibited from an employee or representative of an agency that is a party to a presiding officer, include communications in the following circumstances:

- The communication is for the purpose of assistance and advice to the presiding officer from a person who has not served as investigator, prosecutor or advocate in the proceeding or its preadjudicative stage. An assistant or advisor may evaluate the evidence in the record but shall not furnish, augment, diminish, or modify the evidence in the record [Gov. Code § 11430.30(a)].

- The communication is for the purpose of advising the presiding officer concerning a settlement proposal advocated by the advisor [Gov. Code § 11430.30(b)].

- The communication is for the purpose of advising the presiding officer concerning any of the following matters in an adjudicative proceeding that is nonprosecutorial in character [Gov. Code § 11430.30(c)]:

  - The advice involves a technical issue in the proceeding and the advice is necessary for, and is not otherwise reasonably available to, the presiding officer, provided the content of the advice is disclosed on the record and all parties are given an opportunity to address it in the manner provided in Gov. Code § 11430.50 [Gov. Code § 11430.30(c)(1); see [c], below].

  - The advice involves an issue in a proceeding of the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission, California Tahoe Regional Planning Agency, Delta Protection Commission, Water Resources Control Board, or a regional water quality control board [Gov. Code § 11430.30(c)(2)].

The third and final category of permissible ex parte communications are:

- The presiding officer's authority to conduct in camera examination of evidence in a proceeding (see Gov. Code § 11507.7(d), (e)) is not limited by the prohibition on ex parte communications [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 164 (1995); Gov. Code § 11430.10].

- Presiding officers are not prohibited from communicating with adversaries. Only communications from adversaries to presiding officers are precluded. However, presiding officers should give assistance or advice with caution, since there may be an appearance of unfairness if assistance or advice is given to some parties but not others [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 164 (1995); Gov. Code § 11430.10].

- Presiding officers are not prohibited from consulting with other agency personnel when the agency conducting the hearing is not a party to the proceeding [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 164 (1995); Gov. Code § 11430.10].

[c] Consequences of Violations

When an improper ex parte communication is made, there are three consequences: disclosure, notice and opportunity to respond, and if necessary, disqualification of the presiding officer. If a presiding officer receives an improper communication, the officer must place in the record of the proceeding the following:

- If the communication is written, the writing and any written response of the presiding officer to the communication [Gov. Code § 11430.50(a)(1)].

- If the communication is oral, a memorandum stating the substance of the communication, any response made by the presiding officer, and the identity of each person from whom the presiding officer received the communication [Gov. Code § 11430.50(a)(2)].

The presiding officer must also notify all parties that an ex parte communication has been made a part of the record [Gov. Code § 11430.50(b)]. If a party requests an opportunity to address the communication within 10 days after receipt of notice of the communication [Gov. Code § 11430.50(c)]:

- The party must be permitted to comment on the communication [Gov. Code § 11430.50(c)(1)].

- The presiding officer has discretion to allow the party to present evidence concerning the subject of the communication, including discretion to reopen a hearing that has been concluded [Gov. Code § 11430.50(c)(2)].

If a presiding officer receives an improper ex parte communication, the presiding officer may be disqualified [Gov. Code § 11430.60]. Disqualification is permitted if it is necessary to eliminate the effect of the ex parte communication [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 169 (1995)].

If the presiding officer is disqualified, the portion of the record pertaining to the ex parte communication may be sealed by protective order of the disqualified presiding officer [Gov. Code § 11430.60]. The purpose of sealing is to remove the improper communication from the view of the successor presiding officer, while preserving it as a sealed part of the record, for purposes of subsequent administrative or judicial review. Granting a protective order is permissive, not mandatory, and is within the discretion of the presiding officer who has knowledge of the improper ex parte communication [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 169 (1995)].

[d] Application to Agency Head

Agency heads who are decisionmakers are subject to the same requirements as to ex parte communications with several qualifications [see Gov. Code § 11405.40 (definition of agency head)]. The same requirements that govern ex parte communications to presiding officers also govern ex parte communications in an adjudicative proceeding to the agency head or other person or body to which the power to hear or decide in the proceeding is delegated [Gov. Code § 11430.70(a)].

There is, however, an exception that applies to individualised ratemaking proceedings. An ex parte communication to the agency head or other person or body to which the power to hear or decide in the proceeding is delegated is permissible in an individualized ratemaking proceeding if the content of the communication is disclosed on the record and all parties are given an opportunity to address it in the manner provided in Gov. Code § 11430.50 [Gov. Code § 11430.70(b); see [c], above].

Furthermore, there is a prohibition on direct or indirect communication, while a proceeding is pending regarding the merits of any issue in the proceeding, between the presiding officer and the agency head or other person or body to which the power to hear or decide in the proceeding is delegated [Gov. Code § 11430.80(a)]. This rule does not apply when the agency head or other person to which the power to hear or decide in the proceeding is delegated serves as both presiding officer and agency head, or when the presiding officer does not issue a decision in the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11430.80(b)].

[3] Non-APA Requirements

Non-APA proceedings are governed essentially by the general provision of Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 5-300(B), which prohibits an attorney who is a member of the California State Bar from communicating with a judicial officer on the merits of a contested matter before that officer, except in open court or under other exceptions [Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 5-300(B); other exceptions include consent and ex parte matters, see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 5-300(B)(1)-(5)].

This rule has been interpreted to apply to administrative proceedings. [California State Bar Formal Ethics Opinion No. 1984-82; see Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics]. Because of the scope of the APA ex parte requirements, non-APA requirements would apply primarily to hearings before local agencies [see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication, § 473.15].

The California Court of Appeal held that an ex parte communication by the chief of staff of a hospital to the Board of directors of the hospital that related to the Board's decision to terminate a doctor's staff privileges was not improper (even though the content of the chief of staff's report was not placed in the record of the peer review proceeding) because the doctor failed to raise the issue before the Board, thereby waiving the right to raise the issue on appeal, and because the doctor failed to show actual bias from the giving of the report to the board as such reports were authorized by the constitution of the medical staff [Weinberg v. Cedars Sinai Med. Ctr. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1098, 1115, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 6] .

When an agency attorney advises a non-APA agency during the pendency of an administrative proceeding, issues of procedural due process may also arise [see Midstate Theatres, Inc. v. County of Stanislaus (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 864, 875-876, 128 Cal. Rptr. 54 (member of county counsel's office represented county assessor and also advised the board of supervisors holding tax assessment hearing); Ford v. Civil Service Commission (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 692, 697, 327 P.2d 148 (county counsel's office advised civil service commission, which held discharge hearing, and also represented employer); see also Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies , for further discussion of due process in administrative hearings].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityEx Parte ContactsGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsAdministrative BoardsLegal EthicsProfessional ConductGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Requirements for Decisions After Formal Hearings

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.13

§ 473G.13 Administrative Decisions Under the APA

[1] Alternative Hearing Procedures

Under the APA, the agency itself may hear a case with an ALJ presiding [Gov. Code § 11517(a), (b); see [2], below], or the case may be heard by an ALJ alone [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(1); see [3], below]. The agency determines which hearing option will be used [Gov. Code §§ 11512(a), 11517(a)]. For further discussion of these two hearing options, see Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges . As discussed in [2]-[5], below, the decisionmaking procedure in a particular case depends on the hearing option used.

[2] Decision When Agency Itself Hears Case

[a] Preparation of Decision

When the agency itself hears the case [Gov. Code § 11517(b)], its decision is normally prepared by the ALJ that presides at the hearing and advises the agency [see Gov. Code § 11512(c)(1) (duties of presiding ALJ); see also Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges (role of ALJs)]. The ALJ is expected to be present during the consideration of the case, and, if requested, shall assist and advise the agency in making its decision [Gov. Code § 11517(b)(1)]. No proposed decision is required. The decision is final, and its findings reflect a consensus of the agency members' views of the evidence. It must be issued by the agency within 100 days after the case has been submitted [Gov. Code § 11517(b)(3)].

[b] Vote of Members

When a contested case is heard before an agency itself, no member of the agency who did not hear the evidence may vote on the decision [Gov. Code § 11517(b)(2)]. The California Supreme Court has held that this provision does not require auditory perception of all the evidence by each board member who votes [Cooper v. State Bd. of Medical Examiners (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 242, 246, 217 P.2d 630] . The agency members must be acquainted with the record and exercise their own independent judgment on the case, but need not be physically present when the evidence is produced [Cooper v. State Bd. of Medical Examiners (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 242, 246, 217 P.2d 630 ; see Old Santa Barbara Pier

Co. v. State of California (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 250, 255-257, 139 Cal. Rptr. 332 (interpreting similar provision applicable to coastal zone conservation commission)].

[3] Proposed Decision When ALJ Hears Case

[a] Time Limit for Decision

In most APA adjudicatory proceedings, an ALJ hears the case alone [see Gov. Code § 11517(c)(1)]. He or she must prepare a written proposed decision for the agency within 30 days after the case is submitted, in a form that may be adopted as the decision in the case [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(1); see Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges (role of ALJs)]. No penalty is imposed when an ALJ renders a written proposed decision more than 30 days after the case is submitted thereby violating the 30 day time limit (e.g., decision was rendered 120 days late). The time limits are directory, not mandatory, and Gov. Code § 11517(c)(1) does not specify any penalty for the ALJ's failure to render a timely decision [Anserv Insurance Services Inc. v. Kelso (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 197, 207-208, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 357] .

Failure of the ALJ to deliver a proposed decision within the time required does not prejudice the rights of the agency in the case. Thirty days after the receipt of the proposed decision, a copy of the proposed decision shall be filed by the agency as a public record and shall be served by the agency on each party and his or her attorney. The filing and service is not an adoption of a proposed decision by the agency [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(1)].

[b] Agency's Options on Receiving Decision

On receipt of the proposed decision, the agency will take one of the following actions [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)]:

- Adopt the proposed decision in its entirety [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(A); see [4], below].

- Adopt the decision but reduce or otherwise mitigate the proposed penalty [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(B); see [4], below].

- Make technical or other minor changes in the proposed decision and adopt it as the decision. Action by the agency is limited to a clarifying change or a change of a similar nature that does not affect the factual or legal basis of the proposed decision [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(C); see [4], below].

- Reject the proposed decision, and decide the case itself on the record created before the ALJ, including the transcript, or an agreed statement of the parties [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E); see [5][a], below].

- Reject the proposed decision, and refer (remand) the case to the ALJ who presided, or another ALJ, to take additional evidence [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(D); see [5][b], below].

In APA proceedings, however, almost all proposed ALJ decisions are adopted by the agency. A similar system applies in non-APA proceedings [see, e.g., Lab. Code § 5315 (appeals board may accept, modify, or reject decision of workers' compensation judge); Pub. Util. Code § 311(b) (commissioner may adopt, modify, or reject proposed decision of ALJ) Golde v. Fox (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 167, 188, 159 Cal. Rptr. 864 (real estate commissioner is not required to accept the ALJ's recommendation)]. In contrast, under the federal administrative system, an initial decision by an ALJ becomes the decision of the agency without further proceedings, unless appealed [see 5 U.S.C. § 557(b)].

[c] Deemed Adoption

The ALJ's proposed decision will be deemed adopted by the agency 100 days after delivery to the agency, unless within that time the agency either notifies the parties that the proposed decision is not adopted and commences proceedings to decide the case on the record [see Poliak v. Board of Psychology (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 342, 348-349, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 866 (agency notice of nonadoption following vote not to adopt proposed decision satisfies requirement of commencing proceedings within 100 days); see also [5][a], below], or remands the case to the ALJ to take additional evidence [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2); see Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(D); see also [5][b], below].

The California Court of Appeal held that the proposed decision of an administrative law judge was deemed adopted under the provisions of Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2) when the Department of Health Services rejected the proposed decision of the ALJ within 100 days, but the Department then failed to issue a final decision within 100 days of the rejection of the ALJ's proposed decision [St. Francis Medical Center v. Shewry (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1556, 1559-1561, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 895] .

Within 30 days after receiving a proposed decision, however, the agency must file a copy of the decision as a public record, and serve copies on each party and his or her attorney [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(1); see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act]. The filing and service is not an adoption of a proposed decision by the agency [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(1)]. For this reason, agencies usually decide what action to take on the case within 30 days after receiving the proposed decision, rather than waiting up to the 100-day period for automatic adoption to notify the parties of its action [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)]. However, the 30-day time limit is directory, not jurisdictional, and an agency has 100 days under the statute to decide whether or not to reject the proposed decision, and decide the case itself [Outdoor Resorts etc. Owners' Assn. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Bd. (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 696, 703, 273 Cal. Rptr. 748] .

While the agency is deciding what action to take within this 30-day period, the parties are not entitled to have a copy of the ALJ's proposed decision served on them [Greer v. Board of Education (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 98, 111, 121 Cal. Rptr. 542 ; American Federation of Teachers v. San Lorenzo Unified School Dist. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 132, 136, 80 Cal. Rptr. 758] .

[4] Adoption of Proposed ALJ Decision

When the agency adopts the ALJ's proposed decision, the agency does not have to read or familiarize itself with the record [Hohreiter v. Garrison (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 384, 393-399, 184 P.2d 323 ; see Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(A)]. This rule allows the agency to exercise adjudicatory power, without requiring it to review the record in a case in which an opportunity for a fair hearing has already been afforded before the ALJ [Hohreiter v. Garrison (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 384, 398, 184 P.2d 323] . This same rule also applies in non-APA proceedings [see Nat. Auto. & Cas. Co. v. Ind. Acc. Com. (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 20, 30, 206 P.2d 841 (under Labor Code provision, commission could follow referee's recommendation, without reviewing the record, and could make a decision contrary to referee's recommendation after reviewing the record)]. In contrast, if the agency rejects the proposed decision and decides the case itself, the decision must be based on the record [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(D); see [5][b], below].

However, the ALJ's proposed decision has to be based on the record. Agencies that are required to follow Chapter 5, the formal hearing provisions of the APA (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), are required to make a decision on the record of the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(1), (2)]. The Administrative Adjudication Bill of Rights (Gov. Code §§ 11425.10-11425.60), requires that an agency decision be based on the record of the proceeding [Gov. Code §§ 11425(a)(6), 11425.50(c)]. Further, it sets out minimum due process and public interest requirements that must be satisfied in a hearing that is subject to Chapter 4.5, the general administrative adjudication of APA (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.), which includes state agency hearings in which an evidentiary hearing is required by federal or state constitution provisions (due process) or federal or state statutes in order to formulate a decision [Gov. Code § 11410.20]. These requirements also apply to agency hearings subject to the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) [Gov. Code §§ 11410.50, 11501; see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication, § 473.15].

The agency can make the following changes to a proposed ALJ decision on adoption [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)]:

- Reduce or otherwise mitigate the proposed penalty [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(B)].

- Make technical or other minor changes. Action by the agency is limited to a clarifying change or a change of a similar nature that does not affect the factual or legal basis of the decision [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(C)].

In these situations the agency makes the appropriate change and adopts the balance of the proposed decision [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(B), (C)].

[5] Rejection of Proposed ALJ Decision

[a] Decision on Record

If the agency rejects the ALJ's proposed decision, it may decide the case on the record, including the transcript, or an agreed statement of the parties, with or without taking additional evidence [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E)].

The record includes the transcript, or an agreed statement of the parties [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E)], any additional evidence taken [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E)], the proposed decision, and all other evidence received [see Gov. Code § 11523 (complete record for purposes of judicial review)].

A copy of the record must be made available to the parties. The agency may require payment of fees covering direct costs of making the copy [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E)]. On stipulation of the parties, the agency may decide the case on the record without including the transcript [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E)]. In making any decision on the record, the agency must allow the parties to present either oral or written argument before the agency itself [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E); Ventimiglia v. Board of Behavioral Sciences (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 296, 299-300, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 423 (licensee entitled to present oral or written argument before agency under Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E)(ii) on remand to agency following judicial review by petition for writ of administrative mandate. Board's failure to allow argument before board by licensee was an abuse of discretion for failure to follow procedures required by law under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5)].

The agency elects the form of the argument [see McGraw v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 490, 493-495, 211 Cal. Rptr. 620 (court held, in interpreting parallel Vehicle Code provision, that the agency has the discretion to determine whether the argument will be oral or written)]. If the agency receives additional oral evidence [see Compton College Federation of Teachers v. Compton Community College Dist. (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 437, 441, 166 Cal. Rptr. 595 (board rejected proposed decision and conducted hearing to receive additional evidence regarding student enrollment as it affected teacher's lay-off)], all members who vote on the decision must hear the oral evidence [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E)].

The agency's decision authority includes the authority to decide some but not all issues in the case [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E)]. When deciding the case itself, the agency can adopt all of the ALJ's proposed decision, except for the proposed penalty. The agency can reject the proposed penalty, and can impose a greater penalty under the provisions of former Gov. Code § 11517(c) [Alford v. Dep't of Motor Vehicles (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 560, 562-563, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 222] .

When the agency decides the case itself on the record created before the ALJ, it is necessary that the agency members who vote on the decision be familiar with the record. Although they did not actually hear the evidence and were not physically present when the evidence was produced, deciding agency members must be acquainted with the record and exercise their own independent judgment on the case [Cooper v. State Bd. of Medical Examiners (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 242, 246, 217 P.2d 630 ; see [2][b], above].

It is not completely clear whether or not agency members must actually read the entire transcript that is part of the record, but that action probably is not required [see Allied Compensation Ins. Co. v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1961) 57 Cal. 2d 115, 119-120, 17 Cal. Rptr. 817, 367 P.2d 409 (obligation of panel members is to achieve a substantial understanding of the record by any reasonable means, including the use of the referee's summary); Moyer v. State Board of Equalization (1956) 140 Cal. App. 2d 651, 655, 295 P.2d 583 (in order to "review" the evidence at reconsideration hearing, the agency members need not read the full transcript); but see Morgan v. United States (1936) 298 U.S. 468, 481, 56 S. Ct. 906, 80 L. Ed. 1288 (court found that required hearing was denied when secretary of agriculture, who signed rate order, did not hear or read any evidence presented at the hearing)].

The limits of informed judgment have not yet been set; however, one court has stated that when an agency calls for a transcript of a hearing conducted by an ALJ and also receives additional evidence itself [see Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E)], the agency must examine the record including the transcript of evidence presented before the hearing officer [Feist v. Rowe (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 404, 418, 83 Cal. Rptr. 465] . However, the agency decisionmaker is not required by due process of law requirements to be physically present when the evidence is produced. Due process requires that the decisionmaker read and consider the evidence, or a transcript of the evidence [Bockover v. Perko (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 479, 487-488, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 423] . There is no due process violation in agency procedures that allow the agency to reject the administrative law judge's recommendation as to a decision without providing the affected person an additional opportunity to present oral or written argument to the agency [Boctor v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transit Authority (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 560, 571-572, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 861] .

When the agency commences proceedings to decide the case upon the record and has ordered a transcript of the proceeding, the agency has 100 days from delivery of the transcript to make its decision [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E)]. If the agency finds that special circumstances require more time, it can issue an order that delays its decision for up to 30 more days and specifies the reasons for delay [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E)]. Although the APA does not expressly provide a decision period when the parties stipulate that a transcript is not required [see Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E)], the decision must probably be made 100 days from the date of the stipulation. Since transcripts are usually called for, this issue rarely arises.

When an agency rejects an ALJ's proposed decision and decides a case itself, its decision is prepared by its staff. The APA does not appear to require the agency to have an ALJ preside when it decides a case itself, even though argument is heard and additional evidence may be received [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E); Yanke v. State Dep't of Public Health (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 600, 603, 328 P.2d 556 ; Chosick v. Reilly (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 334, 336, 270 P.2d 547] . An ALJ is required to be present during an agency's consideration of a case when the agency originally hears that case [Gov. Code § 11517(a), (b)(1)], but this provision does not expressly apply to cases in which the agency makes its own decision after rejecting an ALJ's proposed decision [see Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(E)].

A community college district that was required to follow APA procedure prior to terminating an instructor validly terminated the instructor even though it issued a pre-termination notice prior to a required hearing before an ALJ. Although this notice violated the provisions of Gov. Code § 11517, which does not allow the agency to make a final decision before the ALJ has held the hearing and written a proposed decision, the court construed the notice to be valid. Furthermore, the instructor was given a fair hearing before the ALJ, and the agency's final decision to terminate the instructor was reached by the agency after considering the ALJ's proposed decision. Finally, the agency adopted a timely final decision prior to the effective date of termination [California Teachers Association v. Butte Community College District Board of Trustees (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 1293, 1303-1306, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 269] .

[b] Remand to ALJ

During the 100-day period before a proposed decision is deemed adopted [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)], the agency may refer the case back, that is, remand the case, to the same ALJ, if reasonably available, otherwise, to another administrative law judge, to take additional evidence [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(D)]. Remands are usually granted when new evidence has become available or the agency sets aside a default to allow a respondent to present evidence [see Gov. Code § 11520(b), (c)].

The ALJ hears the additional evidence and prepares another proposed decision on the additional evidence, transcript, and other papers that are part of the record of the prior hearing [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2)(D); see [a], above]. Copies of the proposed decision must be provided to each party and his or her attorney, as in an initial proposed decision [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(1); see [3], above]. The agency can adopt this second proposed decision without being familiar with the record, just as it could adopt the first decision [Strode v. Board of Medical Examiners (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 291, 297-298, 15 Cal. Rptr. 879 ; see [4], above].

[6] Time Limits for Decision

Most statutory time limits in administrative proceedings are "directory" rather than "mandatory" or jurisdictional in nature, unless a contrary intent is clearly expressed [see E dwards v. Steele (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 406, 410, 158 Cal. Rptr. 662, 599 P.2d 1365 (board's failure to comply with time limitations for decision on appeal did not have effect of invalidating its actions taken after the deadline; intent of ordinance was to ensure that aggrieved party would have reasonably timely hearing and decision on administrative appeal); Compton College Federation of Teachers v. Compton Community College Dist. (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 437, 443, 166 Cal. Rptr. 595 (statute requiring that order of teachers' seniority be determined within specific time period was directory, rather than mandatory; noncompliance did not invalidate action taken by board)].

Time limits are treated as mandatory, however, when a statute setting the limit makes time of the essence and specifies the consequences of noncompliance [Palmer v. City of Ojai (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 280, 293, 223 Cal. Rptr. 542 (provision of Gov. Code requiring agency to take action within specified time after receiving application for development project was mandatory, because penalty was specified); see City of Coronado v. California Coastal Zone Conservation Com. (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 570, 576-577, 138 Cal. Rptr. 241 (decision of coastal commission denying application for permit became final after 60 days; party appealing denial could not waive that statutory period and later obtain permit)]. It is unlikely, therefore, that the automatic adoption period of 100 days after delivery of the proposed decision to the agency is merely directory [Gov. Code § 11517(c)(2); see [3][c], above].

[7] Service and Effective Date of Decision

A California APA agency's decision in a case, whether it is the agency's own decision or its adoption of an ALJ proposed decision, must be filed immediately on issuance and becomes a public record [Gov. Code § 11517(d)]. Copies of the decision must be delivered to the parties personally or sent to them by registered mail [Gov. Code §§ 11517(d), 11518]. A copy must also be served on each party's attorney [Gov. Code § 11517(d)].

The agency's decision becomes effective 30 days after it is delivered or mailed to the respondent unless one of the following occurs [Gov. Code § 11519(a)]:

- A reconsideration is ordered within that time [Gov. Code § 11521; see § 473G.33].
- The agency orders that the decision become effective sooner.
- A stay of execution is granted [see Gov. Code § 11519(b); see § 473G.32].

For further discussion of the effective date, see §§ 473G.30, 473G.31, below .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingDue ProcessAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & PowersConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Requirements for Decisions After Formal Hearings

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.14

§ 473G.14 Factual and Legal Basis of Decision

[1] APA Requirement

The APA Administrative Adjudication Bill of Rights (Gov. Code §§ 11425.10-11425.60) requires that an agency decision be in writing, be based on the record of the proceeding, and include a statement of the factual and legal basis of the decision [Gov. Code §§ 11425(a)(6), 11425.50(a)]. Gov. Code § 11425.10 sets forth the minimum due process and public interest requirements that must be satisfied in a hearing that is subject to Chapter 4.5, the APA's general administrative adjudication provisions (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.), which includes state agency hearings when, under the federal or state constitution or a federal or state statute, an evidentiary hearing for determination of facts is required to formulate and issue a decision [Gov. Code § 11410.20]. These requirements also apply to agency hearings that are subject to the Chapter 5, the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) [Gov. Code §§ 11410.50, 11501; see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication, § 473.15].

The statement of the factual basis for the decision may be in the language of, or by reference to, the pleadings. If the statement is no more than mere repetition or paraphrase of the relevant statute or regulation, the statement shall be accompanied by a concise and explicit statement of the underlying facts of record that support the decision. If the factual basis for the decision includes a determination based substantially on the credibility of a witness, the statement shall identify any specific evidence of the observed demeanor, manner, or attitude of the witness that supports the determination, and on judicial review the court shall give great weight to the determination to the extent the determination identifies the observed demeanor, manner, or attitude of the witness that supports it [Gov. Code § 11425.50(b)].

The statement of the factual basis for the decision shall be based exclusively on the evidence of record in the proceeding and on matters officially noticed in the proceeding. The presiding officer's experience, technical competence, and specialized knowledge may be used in evaluating evidence [Gov. Code § 11425.50(c); Vinson v. Snyder (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 182, 186-188, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44 (presiding officer may use his or her experience, technical competence, and specialized knowledge to evaluate evidence without establishing the officer's basis for expertise in the record)]. The information that may be contained in the decision, including a summary of the evidence relied on, is not limited by the requirments of this statute [Gov. Code § 11425.50(d)].

Finally, a penalty may not be based on a guideline, criterion, bulletin, manual, instruction, order, standard of general application or other rule subject to the rulemaking provisions of Chapter 3.5, the administrative regulation and rulemaking provisions of the APA (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.), unless it has been adopted as a regulation pursuant to that chapter [Gov. Code § 11425.50(e); for discussion of the APA rulemaking provisions, see Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules , et seq.].

Requiring a statement of the factual and legal basis of the decision is consistent with similar requirements in the trial courts [Gov. Code § 11425.50(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 632 and Ch. 551, Trials]. Under prior law, fact findings were required in administrative adjudicatory proceedings [Swars v. Council of City of Vallejo (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 867, 871, 206 P.2d 355 ; Respers v. University of Cal. Retirement System (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 864, 873, 217 Cal. Rptr. 594 ; Farmer v. City of Inglewood (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 130, 138 n.7, 185 Cal. Rptr. 9] when the agency acted in an adjudicatory capacity. Fact findings are not required when an agency acts in a quasi-legislative capacity, unless required by statute [Stauffer Chemical Co. v. Air Resources Board (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 789, 793-795, 180 Cal. Rptr. 550 ; City of Rancho Palos Verdes v. City Council (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 869, 882-891, 129 Cal. Rptr. 173] .

Under the law operative July 1, 1997, factual and legal basis for the decision are used in place of the terms fact findings and legal conclusions. It is likely that providing a factual basis for a specific agency decision will satisfy fact finding requirements.

[2] Form and Function

[a] Need for Factual Basis Supported by Substantial Evidence

The form of agency factual bases vary, but their common function has been clearly set out in Topanga Assn. for a Scenic Community v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 506, 113 Cal. Rptr. 836, 522 P.2d 12 , which applies to all agency findings, state and local, APA and non-APA, that are subject to administrative mandate proceedings [Topanga Asso. for Scenic Community v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 506, 514 n.12, 113 Cal. Rptr. 836, 522 P.2d 12 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 (administrative mandate provision); see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq. (mandate and other forms of judicial review)].

Under Topanga, the agency that renders the challenged decision must set forth findings to "bridge the analytic gap between the raw evidence and ultimate decision or order" [Topanga Asso. for Scenic Community v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 506, 515, 113 Cal. Rptr. 836, 522 P.2d 12]. The focus is on the findings, not just the ultimate action of an agency. The findings must be supported by substantial evidence, and the ultimate action must be supported by the findings [Topanga Asso. for Scenic Community v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 506, 515, 113 Cal. Rptr. 836, 522 P.2d 12 ; see Parkmerced Residents Organization v. San Francisco Residential Rent Stabilization Etc. Bd. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1235, 1243, 258 Cal. Rptr. 774 (basic findings must be supported by evidence and ultimate findings must flow rationally from basic findings)].

If the agency's ultimate action had to be supported by substantial evidence, court review of agency actions would be almost useless and the purposes for proper findings would not be served. On review, therefore, both the evidence and the agency's ultimate decision are compared to the findings, not to each other [Topanga Asso. for Scenic Community v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 506, 515, 113 Cal. Rptr. 836, 522 P.2d 12]. The factual bases for decision under the APA provisons operative July 1, 1997, are equivalent to the findings in the Topanga decision.

[b] Use of Factual Bases

The Topanga approach to fact finding (discussed in [a], above), forces administrative agencies to draw legally relevant subconclusions supportive of its ultimate decision and action. Findings enable the reviewing court to trace and examine the agency's analysis. Reviewing courts should not have to search through the record to determine whether some creditable evidence supports some line of factual and legal conclusions that support the agency's action [Topanga Asso. for Scenic Community v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 506, 515, 113 Cal. Rptr. 836, 522 P.2d 12]. Findings serve other purposes as well. They serve a public relations function by helping to persuade. They enable the parties to determine whether and on what basis they should seek review. They help prevent "shooting from the hip" and encourage open, reasoned decisions. Governmental action should not be secret; when it is, power is misused and arbitrary action results.

[3] Types of Factual Bases

[a] Operative Facts

In keeping with Topanga Asso. for Scenic Community v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 506, 113 Cal. Rptr. 836, 522 P.2d 12 , discussed in [2][a], above, findings should be made honestly and presented convincingly. The facts that are found should be operative facts that have legal significance; they should not be the raw evidentiary facts contained in the record, nor conclusory facts that just parrot statutory language. "Finding" evidentiary facts makes the fact-finder little more than a scrivener preparing evidence summaries [see Morris v. Board of Medical Examiners (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 704, 714, 41 Cal. Rptr. 351 (APA does not require ALJ to prepare a summary of all the evidence)].

It provides little analysis and is not a bridge. Statutes, however, may require findings of evidentiary facts [see, e.g., Lab. Code § 5313 (appeals board or workers' compensation judge must make findings on all facts involved in controversy and must provide parties with summary of evidence received and relied on)]. Statutory language can be used in the "determination of issues" or the "ultimate finding" [see [6], below]. It should not be part of the findings of fact unless the statutory language itself provides the operative facts that need to be found. Fact findings should be limited to those facts that the administrative agency is required to find under the governing statute to support the agency decision [Bobus v. Department of Motor Vehicles (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 680, 686 (DMV hearing officer was not required to make specific finding that driver had consumed alcoholic beverages prior to driving while intoxicated to support suspension of driver's license under Veh. Code § 23136 because the statute does not require that type of finding with minor drivers, only the requisite blood alcohol level finding)].

[b] Other Facts

Facts other than operative facts should also be included in findings. These additional facts set the stage for the operative facts. They may include jurisdictional facts, background facts, and credibility facts. But they should not be a recitation of testimony or other evidence. Such evidentiary facts should be left in the record and not put into findings. When additional facts are included in findings, they are usually set out in separate paragraphs so that the determination of issues or ultimate finding can clearly refer to operative facts found.

[4] Formality

Courts have often said that findings of fact in administrative proceedings need not be stated with the formality required in judicial proceedings [Saleeby v. State Bar (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 547, 567, 216 Cal. Rptr. 367, 702 P.2d 525 ; Topanga Asso. for Scenic Community v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 506, 517 n.16, 113 Cal. Rptr. 836, 522 P.2d 12 ; McNeil's Inc. v. Contractors' State License Board (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 322, 326, 68 Cal. Rptr. 640] . Trial courts, however, are no longer required to make findings of facts and conclusions of law [Code Civ. Proc. § 632; see [1], above]. Instead, they issue statements of decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 632; see Ch. 551, Trial].

Because ALJs spend much more time writing proposed decisions than civil trial court judges spend writing statements of decision, ALJs' findings are often more formal. Furthermore, the requirements of Topanga Asso. for Scenic Community v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 506, 113 Cal. Rptr. 836, 522 P.2d 12 also contribute to the relative formality of administrative findings [see [2], above].

[5] Implied Findings and Liberal Construction

In the past, courts have sometimes presumed the finding of necessary facts from the action of an administrative agency [Swars v. Council of City of Vallejo (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 867, 872, 206 P.2d 355 ; Savoy Club v. Board of Supervisors (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 1040-1041, 91 Cal. Rptr. 198] . The courts also have implied findings [see, e.g., Consolidated Steel Corp. v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 368, 370, 57 P.2d 919 (court found that evidence of injured finger sustained implied finding of new and further disability)].

When findings existed, they have been liberally construed to support the resulting order [Realty Projects, Inc. v. Smith (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 204, 213, 108 Cal. Rptr. 71 ; McNeil's Inc., v. Contractors' State License Board (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 322, 326, 68 Cal. Rptr. 640] . Irregular findings have sometimes been found to be nonprejudicial [Strode v. Board of Medical Examiners (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 291, 303, 15 Cal. Rptr. 879] .

Since Topanga Asso. for Scenic Community v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 506, 113 Cal. Rptr. 836, 522 P.2d 12 [see [2][a], above], courts have been more reluctant to presume or imply findings [see, e.g., Saleeby v. State Bar (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 547, 567, 216 Cal. Rptr. 367, 702 P.2d 525 (court found that State Bar was required to provide information sufficient to notify parties and the courts of the basis for its administrative action); Respers v. University of Cal. Retirement System (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 864, 872-873, 217 Cal. Rptr. 594 (board was required to make findings supporting its denial of disability benefits to permit meaningful judicial review); Wheeler v. State Bd. of Forestry (1982) 144 Cal. App. 3d 522, 528-529, 192 Cal. Rptr. 693 (in its decision to revoke forester's license for incompetence, board failed to include in its findings any authority for a standard by which to measure licensee's conduct); Farmer v. City of Inglewood (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 130, 138-139, 185 Cal. Rptr. 9 (notice of final action of employee discharge did not constitute a statement of grounds for the termination); City of Carmel-by-the-Sea v. Board of Supervisors (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 84, 95-96, 139 Cal. Rptr. 214 (zoning administrator's decision to issue a use permit was deficient because its findings did not include consideration of environmental problems)].

It is unlikely, however, that the concepts of implied and presumed findings have been totally eliminated. To eliminate them would make virtually every administrative decision subject to successful attack. These concepts still have a role to play [see, e.g., Golde v. Fox (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 167, 179, 188, 159 Cal. Rptr. 864 (a finding that the illegal conduct of a real estate licensee is substantially related to a licensee's qualifications and duties may be implied); see also Kateen v. Department of Real Estate (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 481, 486, 215 Cal. Rptr. 295 (in its decision to revoke a license, department of real estate was not required to include findings that no mitigation appeared or that no aggravating factors existed)].

A licensing agency was not required under former Gov. Code § 11518 to make specific fact findings as to the penalty imposed on a license holder. So long as the agency made specific fact findings that supported some sanction for professional misconduct, the agency's decision to revoke a doctor's license did not have to be supported by specific findings showing why a lesser sanction was inappropriate [Williamson v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance, 217 Cal. App. 3d 1343, 1346-1347, 266 Cal. Rptr. 520 (1990)] .

Under the provisions operative July, 1, 1997, requiring that the factual and legal bases of a decision be stated [Gov. Code § 11425.50(a), (b); see [1], above], it is unclear to what extent the case law regarding implied findings remains a valid interpretation of APA requirements.

[6] Legal Bases of Decision

[a] Nature of Determination

The APA expressly requires the written decision to state the legal basis for the decision [Gov. Code § 11425.50(a); see [1], above].

Non-APA agencies may refer to this procedure as determining the "ultimate fact" or making the "ultimate finding." Like conclusions of law, the determination of issues or ultimate finding is a statement of the legal significance of the operative facts found in the findings of fact. Ultimate findings alone are not sufficient to support an administrative determination; it must be supported by findings of fact [Parkmerced Residents Organization v. San Francisco Residential Rent Stabilization Etc. Bd. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1235, 1243, 258 Cal. Rptr. 774] . It is usually a statement of a mixed question of law and fact that clarifies and determines legal status and uses the language of the applicable law [see Parkmerced Residents Organization v. San Francisco Residential Rent Stabilization Etc. Bd. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1235, 1243, 258 Cal. Rptr. 774 (ultimate finding is usually expressed in language of statutory standard; ultimate finding is conclusion of law or determination of mixed question of law and fact)].

The following examples, set out in [b] and [c], below, provide an illustration of the determination of issues.

[b] EXAMPLE: Serving Alcoholic Beverages to Minor

LAW: Bus. & Prof. Code § 25658(a) makes it illegal to serve a minor alcoholic beverages. Bus. & Prof. Code § 25660 provides that demanding, being shown, and relying on bona fide evidence of majority is a defense.

EVIDENCE: The evidence presented at the hearing shows that a minor was served beer without a request for an "I.D."

FINDING: The finding of fact on the defense issue should follow the language of Bus. & Prof. Code § 25660 because it contains the operative facts that must be found. It should read: "Respondent did not demand, was not shown, and did not act in reliance upon bona fide evidence of majority."

DETERMINATION OF ISSUE: The legal consequences of the above lack of defense and other findings on serving the beer, can be stated: cause for discipline of respondent's license was established for violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 25658(a).

[c] EXAMPLE: Physician's Unprofessional Conduct

LAW: Bus. & Prof. Code § 2234(b) permits discipline of a physician who is guilty of "unprofessional conduct," which is defined to include "gross negligence." Gross negligence is not defined in the Code, but courts have defined it to mean "the want of even scant care or an extreme departure from the ordinary standard of conduct" [Kearl v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1986) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1040, 1052, 236 Cal. Rptr. 526] .

EVIDENCE: The evidence showed that respondent doctor operated on a high-risk patient at a hospital without an intensive care unit. No expert testified regarding the want of even scant care or an extreme departure from the ordinary standard of conduct.

FINDING: The finding of fact should focus on the failure of proof. It should read: "It was not proved that respondent's operation on a high-risk patient at a hospital without an ICU indicated the want of even scant care or was an extreme departure from the ordinary standard of conduct and was gross negligence."

DETERMINATION OF ISSUE: The legal consequences of this failure of proof should be stated as follows: cause for discipline of respondent's license was not established for unprofessional conduct and violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 2234(b) [see, e.g., Franz v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 124, 181 Cal. Rptr. 732, 642 P.2d 792 (facts of case used in example)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsContentsAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingDue ProcessAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityFactual DeterminationsAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewSubstantial EvidenceConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of Protection

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Requirements for Decisions After Formal Hearings

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.15

§ 473G.15 Orders

The agency's ultimate action or order and the conclusions on which it is based must be supported by findings of fact under the Topanga rule [Topanga Asso. for Scenic Community v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 506, 516, 113 Cal. Rptr. 836, 522 P.2d 12 ; see § 473G.14[2][a]]. The kinds of orders an administrative agency can issue depends on its legislative or constitutional authority. In the area of license discipline, this authority usually includes revocation or suspension of a license, with or without stays of execution, and probation with terms and conditions. Some statutes provide for civil penalties and the recoupment of investigation and other costs. Statutes may authorize "cease and desist orders" or "temporary suspension orders." Applications for licenses may be denied or granted with restrictions and conditions. Proceedings may be dismissed, in whole or in part. Under the new act, penalties may not be based on guidelines without the guidelines being properly adopted as regulations [Gov. Code § 11425.50(e); see § 473G.14[1]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawSeparation of PowersLegislative ControlsScope of Delegated AuthorityGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsLicensesGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Requirements for Decisions After Formal Hearings

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.16

§ 473G.16 Discovering Decision Processes and Reasoning

It is improper for counsel to attempt to discover the processes by which an adjudicative administrative decision was reached, other than through examination of the findings. For example, in United States v. Morgan (1941) 313 U.S. 409, 61 S. Ct. 999, 85 L. Ed. 1429 , the district court authorized a deposition of the secretary of agriculture, and at a later time the secretary testified at the trial. He explained how he reached his decision on a marketing order, including his study of the record, his consultations with staff, and his conferences with the examiner who heard the evidence. The testimony showed that he dealt with the enormous record in a manner not unlike the practice of judges in similar situations. But the Supreme Court held that he should not have been examined [United States v. Morgan (1941) 313 U.S. 409, 422, 61 S. Ct. 999, 85 L. Ed. 1429] . Justice Frankfurter said that just as a judge cannot be subjected to such an examination because it would be destructive of judicial responsibility, the administrative process must be equally respected. Courts and administrative adjudications are collaborative instrumentalities of justice, and the appropriate independence of each should be respected by the other [United States v. Morgan (1941) 313 U.S. 409, 422, 61 S. Ct. 999, 85 L. Ed. 1429] .

The Morgan rule is followed in California [State of California v. Superior Court of Orange County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 237, 257-258, 115 Cal. Rptr. 497, 524 P.2d 1281 ; Southern California Underground Contractors v. City of San Diego (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 533, 541, 548, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 527 (appellate court presumed that city council reviewed written briefs as part of making decision); Hornung v. Superior Court (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1095, 1099-1100, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 382 (Morgan rule applied to Commissioners of Board of Prison Terms who decide whether to grant or deny parole to prisoners)]. It precludes inquiry outside the administrative record to determine what evidence was considered and what reasoning was employed by an administrative decision maker [Fairfield v. Superior Court (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 768, 779, 122 Cal. Rptr. 543, 537 P.2d 375 ; Department of Alcoholic Bev.Control v. Alcoholic Bev. etc. Appeals Bd. (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 720, 728, 173 Cal. Rptr. 582] . For this reason, counsel must look to the findings to determine the reasoning process of an adjudicative administrative decision. The mind and methods of the decisionmaker cannot otherwise be explored.

In an interesting exception to the Morgan rule, a city manager who had final decisional authority over personnel decisions, and who ordered demotion of a city supervisor, testified that he did not listen to audiotapes of the personnel hearing nor did he read the transcript of the hearing, and there was no statement of fact findings to support the recommendation of the local civil service commission that held the hearing. Rather, he based his decision on information supplied by the personnel director. This information was not placed in the record of the proceedings, and the demoted employee had no notice of this evidence nor any opportunity to controvert the evidence. The appellate court set aside the decision and required the city manager to give the employee a fair independent review. The court noted that a total absence of an independent review is inadequate [Vollstedt v. City of Stockton, 220 Cal. App. 3d 265, 276-277, 269 Cal. Rptr. 404 (1990)] . In civil law suits, heads of agencies may not be deposed when they do not have personal knowledge of factual information related to material issues in the lawsuit [Nagle v. Superior Court (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 1465, 1468-1469, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 281 ; Westly v. Superior Court (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 907, 910-912, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 154 (state Attorney General and state Controller could not be deposed unless significant factual information can only be obtained from those officials. The Court of Appeal vacated the trial court's denial of a request for a protective order prohibiting the depositions of these two officials in a civil lawsuit because there were no factual issues as to which these officials would have personal factual information. The Court of appeal required the superior court to enter protective orders prohibiting those depositions on remand)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewAdministrative RecordGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Requirements for Decisions After Formal Hearings

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.17

§ 473G.17 ALJ Decisionmaking

[1] Role of Judges

The role of judges, including ALJs, is misunderstood by many attorneys, who do not fully appreciate the limits of the decisionmaking process. It is very difficult for a person in the role of an advocate to know how a judge decides a case, without assuming the role of impartial adjudicator. With a better understanding and appreciation of what takes place in a judge's mind when a case is decided, however, many attorneys would present better cases and be more successful. The following comments are offered to improve this understanding and appreciation.

[2] Determination of Facts

Judges decide cases, not "the truth." They try to end controversies by determining, as best they can, what the facts are that gave rise to the controversy. A judge is more confident of some facts and less confident of others and, it is hoped, is never deluded into believing that the "facts" found are necessarily the "truth." This distinction is important to advocates, because their role should be to present evidence of believable facts, not absolute truth. Believable facts are human in scale; they are consistent with human experience and motivation. They get their believability from a worldly theme.

This worldly theme or "theory of the case" is what persuades a judge to find facts consistent with it. It is this theory of the case that attorneys should give more attention to.

[3] Proof of the Case

Judges are skeptics. The law requires them to be, by imposing various evidentiary burdens of proof [see Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings , for a discussion of the burden of proof]. Judges must always demand that the proponent of a proposition prove it. This demand for proof is often silent, and therefore easily slighted. When it is expressed, counsel should never be frustrated by a judge's skepticism, regardless of how awkwardly it may be expressed.

Judges are particularly skeptical when being asked to believe that which is contrary to experience. Good judges are aware that things may not be as they seem or as they were in the past; but to convince a judge to break with reasonable expectations requires a careful presentation. An advocate must clearly show that the old rules do not apply. He or she must also make a good record. Judges know that their work will be reviewed against the record. They will not be inclined to adopt a novel idea, regardless of sympathies, if the record is not convincing. A reviewing authority may also have to be convinced.

[4] Influence of Experts

Judges are not awed by experts. They know that most controversies have experts for every contention. The influence of an expert, therefore, usually depends on the believability he or she gains by knowing the specific facts under controversy, having first-hand experience with those facts or similar facts in the past, and admitting the limits of expertise regarding the facts.

[5] Role of Pleadings

Pleadings are essential to the administrative decision process [see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication (discussing pleadings used to initiate an agency hearing)]. Attorneys rarely appreciate the importance of administrative pleadings and how they direct and limit a judge's decision. If the pleadings are drafted properly, they set out what has to be proved for the successful prosecution or defense of a case, particularly in APA cases where the pleadings contain more detailed allegations.

With proper pleadings, an ALJ can look at each allegation and apply the appropriate burden of proof to determine whether the allegation was proved and should be found to be true. Counsel, therefore, should check the sufficiency of the allegations in the pleadings and prepare and present their evidence to specifically meet those allegations. Other evidence should be presented, for example, evidence of background, mitigation, aggravation, damages, or penalty; but evidence on each of the specific allegations of the pleadings must be clearly presented. The only findings that are appropriate for an ALJ to make are those necessary to decide the allegations made and, if true, the consequences that should follow. When an attorney gets caught in other issues, it usually detracts from this decision process and can result in unfavorable findings. Case presentations should be simple, clear, and concise.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law JudgesAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & Powers

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Requirements for Decisions After Formal Hearings

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.18

§ 473G.18 Precedent Decisions Under the APA

The APA Administrative Adjudication Bill of Rights (Gov. Code §§ 11425.10-11425.60), requires that an agency decision may not be relied on as precedent unless the agency designates and indexes the decision as precedent [Gov. Code §§ 11425(a)(7), 11425.60(a)]. The bill of rights sets forth the minimum due process and public interest requirements that must be satisfied in a hearing that is subject to Chapter 4.5, the general provisions of APA's administrative adjudication provisions (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.), which includes state agency hearings when, under the federal or state constitution or a federal or state statute, an evidentiary hearing for determination of facts is required to formulate and issue a decision [Gov. Code § 11410.20].

These requirements also apply to agency hearings that are subject to the Chapter 5, the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.), [Gov. Code §§ 11410.50, 11501; see Ch. 473, Pubic Agency Adjudication, § 473.15].

An agency decision may not be expressly relied on as precedent unless it is designated as a precedent decision by the agency [Gov. Code § 11425.60(a)]. This statute limits the authority of an agency to rely on previous decisions unless the decisions have been publicly announced as precedential [25 Cal. L. Rev Comm. Reports 55, 162 (1997)].

An agency may designate as a precedent decision a decision or part of a decision that contains a significant legal or policy determination of general application that is likely to recur. Designation of a decision or part of a decision as a precedent decision is not rulemaking and need not be done under Chapter 3.5, the APA rulemaking provisions (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.) [Gov. Code § 11425.60(b); see Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules , et seq. (discussion of rulemaking)].

This provsion provides recognition for the need that agencies have to be able to make law and policy through adjudication as well as through rulemaking. It codified the practice of a number of agencies to designate important decisions as precedential. These agencies include the Fair Employment and Housing Commission [Gov. Code § 12935(h)], the State Personnal Board [Gov. Code § 19582.5], and the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board [Unemp. Ins. Code § 409].

This statute is intended to encourage agencies to articulate what they are doing when they make new law or policy in an adjudicative decision. An agency may not by precedent decision revise or amend an existing regulation or adopt a rule that has no adequate legislative basis [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 163 (1995)]. The precedent designation system authorised by this statute is an exception from the requirements of Gov. Code § 11340.5 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 163 (1995); see 1993 OAL Det. No. 1 (determination by Office of Administrative Law that agency designation of decision as precedential violates former Gov. Code § 11347.5 (now Gov. Code § 11340.5) unless made pursuant to rulemaking procedures)].

Nonetheless, agencies are encouraged to express precedent decisions in the form of regulations, to the extent practicable [25 Cal. L. Rv. Comm. Reports 55, 163 (1995)]. An agency's designation of a decision, or part of a decision, or failure to designate a decision or part of a decision, as a precedent decision is not subject to judicial review [Gov. Code § 11425.60(b)].

An agency is required to maintain an index of significant legal and policy determinations made in precedent decisions. The index must be updated at least annually, unless no precedent decision has been designated since the last preceding update. The index shall be made available to the public by subscription, and its availability shall be publicised annually in the California Regulatory Notice Register [Gov. Code § 11425.60(c)]. The index is a public record, available for public inspection and copying [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 163 (1995)]. The statutory requirements for designating and indexing precedent decisions applies to decisions issued on or after July 1, 1997. Agencies are not precluded by this law from from designating and indexing as a precedent decision a decision issued before July 1, 1997 [Gov. Code § 11425.60(d)]. Making the precedent decision requirements prospective only is designed to minimize the potential burden on agencies [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 163 (1995)].

Precedential decisions of state agencies are often found on the agency's web site. For example, the California Horse Racing Board provides access to its precedential decisions on the agency web site at www.chrb.ca.gov. Nine state agencies maintain precedential decisions under the APA, including the Horse Racing Board. An additional ten agencies maintain precedential decisions under the authority of their own statutes, including the State Personnel Board, whose decisions are posted found on the agency web site at www.spb.ca.gov/spblaw/precedrd.cfm. A complete current list of state agencies with precedential decisions can be found in Henke's California Law Guide (Matthew Bender, 6th ed., 2002), Chapter 8, California Administrative Law, § 8.04[2].

Litigants who challenge agency action often will request that the appellate court grant judicial notice of precedential decisions of that agency. The courts will often grant those requests, which obviates proof of the authenticity of an agency precedential decision [Auburn Woods I Homeowners Assn. v. Fair Employment & Housing Comm'n (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1578, 1591, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 669 ; California Dept. of Corrections v. State Personnel Bd. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 1601, 1611, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 390] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsStare DecisisAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingDue ProcessConstitutional LawBill of RightsFundamental RightsProcedural Due ProcessScope of Protection

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Procedural Requirements for Decisions After Formal Hearings

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473G.19-473G.29

[Reserved]

§§ 473G.19[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Effective Date and Consequences of Agency Decision

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.30

§ 473G.30 Effective Date of Decision

[1] Introduction

This subpart discusses the effective date of an agency decision and analyzes the impact that a stay of execution or early effective date has on the decision and the parties; it also discusses the procedure for requesting reconsideration of a decision. In addition, the part lists the consequences of an agency decision to a party, including sanctions, benefits, and remedies. Finally, it covers the reinstatement of a license after a decision revoking or suspending the license.

[2] Effective Date

In APA adjudicatory proceedings, the agency's decision in a case is ordinarily effective 30 days after it is delivered or mailed to the parties [Gov. Code § 11519(a); see Gov. Code § 11518 (mailing requirements)]. The decision may have a different effective date, however, if the agency takes one of the following actions [Gov. Code § 11519(a)]:

- Orders that the decision become effective sooner than 30 days after delivery [see § 473G.31, below].
- Grants a stay of execution [Gov. Code § 11519(b); see § 473G.32, below].
- Orders a reconsideration within the 30-day period after delivery [Gov. Code § 11521; see § 473G.33, below].

The agency has the authority to grant an application to correct a mistake or clerical error in the decison [Gov. Code § 11518.5]. If the agency grants the application and sets the matter for further proceedings, then the effective date of the decision will be delayed [Gov. Code § 11518.5(b); see § 473G.34]. This provides a fourth alternative to the normal effective date of a decision.

When an agency decision becomes effective, the agency is free to enforce its decision, including imposing sanctions such as fines or license revocation [see § 473G.35]. Enforcement may be stayed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(g)], however, when a party seeks judicial review of the decision by filing a petition for writ of administrative mandate [Gov.

Code § 11523; Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5]. For a discussion of judicial review, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

The person to which the agency action is directed may not be required to comply with a decision unless the person has been served with the decision [see Gov. Code § 11505] or has actual knowledge of the decision [Gov. Code § 11519(e)]. A nonparty may not be required to comply with a decision unless the agency has made the decision available for public inspection and copying or the nonparty has actual knowledge of the decision [Gov. Code § 11519(f)].

These provisions distinguish between the effective date of the decision and the time when it can be enforced. "Actual knowledge" is intended to include not only knowledge that a decision has been issued, but also knowledge of the general contents of the decision as it relates to the person who is required to comply with it. If a question arises whether a particular person had actual knowledge of a decision, this issue must be determined like other fact questions [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 250 (1995)]. The binding effect of a decision on nonparties who have actual knowledge may be illustrated by a state law that prohibits wholesalers from delivering alcoholic beverages to liquor dealers unless the dealers hold valid licenses from the state beverage agency. If the agency issues a decision revoking the license of a particular dealer, this decision is binding on any wholesaler who has actual knowledge of it, even before the decision is made available for public inspection and copying. The decision binds all wholesalers, including those without actual knowledge, after it has been made available for public inspection and copying [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 250 (1995)]. Finally, agencies are not precluded by these provisions from taking immediate action to protect the public interest under the emergency decision provisions of Gov. Code § 11460.10 et seq. [Gov. Code § 11519(g); see Ch. 473H, Alternative Procedures for Agency].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesStays of Proceedings & SupersedeasGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

95 of 187 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Effective Date and Consequences of Agency Decision

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.31

§ 473G.31 Early Effective Date

[1] General Rules

An agency may order a decision to become effective sooner than 30 days after it is delivered or mailed to respondent [Gov. Code § 11519(a)]. The earliest date on which a decision may become effective is the date on which it is mailed or delivered [Koons v. Placer Hills Union Sch. Dist. (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 484, 490, 132 Cal. Rptr. 243] . The right of a party to apply to the agency to correct a mistake or clerical error in the decision within 15 days after service of a copy of the decision on the party, but not later than the effective date of the decision [Gov. Code § 11518.5(a); see § 473G.34], may impact the ability of an agency to make a decision effective earlier than the 15-day period. Also, as discussed in [2]-[4], below, a number of important procedural consequences flow from an agency's order to make a decision effective sooner than 30 days from mailing or delivery to the parties.

[2] Effect on Reconsideration Period

An agency's power to order reconsideration of the decision [Gov. Code § 11521(a); see § 473G.33] expires on the effective date of the decision [Gov. Code § 11521(a)]. Thus, an early effective date is unfavorable to a respondent to the extent that it shortens the period in which the respondent may petition for reconsideration. If the agency makes the decision effective on delivery, it completely precludes the party from filing a petition for reconsideration. This action, however, does not deprive the responding party of its constitutional or statutory rights [Moran v. Board of Medical Examiners (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 301, 304, 196 P.2d 20 ; Kramer v. State Board of Accountancy (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 163, 176, 19 Cal. Rptr. 226 ; Hohreiter v. Garrison (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 384, 402-403, 184 P.2d 323] .

The party may still seek judicial review, regardless of whether or not he or she sought reconsideration [Gov. Code § 11523]. Nonetheless, counsel for the respondent should request at the hearing that the effective date of the decision, if unfavorable to the respondent, should be set to allow the filing of a petition for reconsideration.

[3] Effect on Sanctions

An agency sanction, such as license revocation [see § 473G.35[2]] generally becomes effective immediately on the effective date of the decision [Gov. Code § 11519(a); Kramer v. State Board of Accountancy (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 163, 176, 19 Cal. Rptr. 226] . For example, a licensee is subject to license revocation sooner then the usual 30 days after delivery of the decision if the agency orders the effective date to be earlier than 30 days or immediate on delivery [Gov. Code § 11519(a)].

[4] Effect on Appeal

Generally, a party has 30 days from the last day in which reconsideration can be ordered to file a petition for judicial review [Gov. Code § 11523; see [2], above]. Since reconsideration can be ordered for 30 days after delivery or mailing of the decision, unless the agency sets an earlier effective date [Gov. Code § 11521], the appealing party could have up to 60 days from the date the decision is rendered to file an appeal. When an agency orders an early effective date, the period for reconsideration is shortened, thereby shortening the period for appeal. Thus, counsel must determine exactly when the decision becomes effective in order to accurately compute the appropriate time period for filing an appeal. See Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq., for discussion of judicial review of agency decisions.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral OverviewGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Effective Date and Consequences of Agency Decision

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.32

§ 473G.32 Stay of Execution

The APA provides that a stay of execution may be included in the decision, or granted by the agency at any time before the decision becomes effective [Gov. Code § 11519(b)]. The granting of a stay suspends the enforcement of the decision or the carrying out of agency sanctions as a result of the decision [Gov. Code § 11519(b); see § 473G.35 (enforcement)]. An agency may stay execution of its decision to defer imposition of a penalty until the penalty will actually serve a disciplinary purpose [Medlock Dusters, Inc. v. Christensen (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 565, 569-570, 110 Cal. Rptr. 805 (suspension of crop dusting license was deferred until after the slack season was over)].

If the statutes governing an agency grant it the authority to make a conditional order, the stay of execution may be accompanied by an express condition that the respondent comply with specified terms of probation [Gov. Code § 11519(b)]. Those terms must be just and reasonable in light of the findings and decision [Gov. Code § 11519(b)]. Specified terms of probation may include an order of restitution. Where restitution is ordered and paid pursuant to this law, the amount paid shall be credited to any later judgment in a civil action [Gov. Code § 11519(d)].

The granting of a stay of execution does not change the time for filing an appeal, which is 30 days from the last day to request reconsideration [Gov. Code § 11523; see § 473G.30; see also Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq. (judicial review of agency decisions)]. If the respondent was required to register with any public officer, a notification of any suspension or revocation must be sent to the officer after the decision has become effective [Gov. Code § 11519(c)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesStays of Proceedings & Supersedeas

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Effective Date and Consequences of Agency Decision

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.33

§ 473G.33 Rehearing or Reconsideration

[1] Right Determined by Statute

The California Supreme Court has ruled that, when the legislature specifies by statute that reconsideration or rehearing of an adverse decision of an agency may be sought by an affected party, such reconsideration is not required before seeking judicial review, at least as to any issues already litigated before and finally decided by the agency. Reconsideration is only necessary to raise new issues that have not previously been presented to the agency [Sierra Club v. San Joaquin LAFCO (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 489, 493-494, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 702, 981 P.2d 543] .

Rehearings in administrative proceedings are not essential to due process; only a hearing before judgment is required [Whitley v. Superior Court (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 75, 81, 113 P.2d 449] . The right to a rehearing or reconsideration of a final administrative order, and any duty to seek either, exists only if a statute provides for later consideration [Olive Proration etc. Com. v. Agri. etc. Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 204, 209, 109 P.2d 918 ; SaveOxnard Shores v. California Coastal Com. (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 140, 149-150, 224 Cal. Rptr. 425] . California administrative agencies do not have authority to reopen or reconsider an adjudicative decision, unless a statute permits such action [Gutierrez v. Board of Ret. (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 745, 749, n.3, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 837] . Nevertheless, an agency may rescind a decision that exceeds its jurisdiction. However, the tax assessment appeals board was authorized to reinstate the taxpayer's application under its governing statute [Rev. & Tax. Code § 1604(c)], and the Board's later revocation of that reinstatement was improper, as that statue did not limit the board's power of reinstatement in a manner that would authorize revocation [Helene Curtis, Inc. v. Los Angeles County Assessment Appeals Bds. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 29, 39-40, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 658] . California agencies have no inherent or implied power to rehear or reconsider a final decision [Heap v. City of Los Angeles (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 405, 407, 57 P.2d 1323] . The APA, however, expressly provides for reconsideration [Gov. Code § 11521; see [2], [3], below]. Other statutes provide for rehearing applications within relatively short periods of time [Pub. Util. Code § 1731(c) (Public Utility Commission decisions in specific case; application for rehearing must be filed within 10 days after date of issuance of order or decision)].

[2] Petition for Reconsideration

When requesting or petitioning for a rehearing or reconsideration, counsel should follow the controlling statute. If the statute sets forth the grounds for the petition, only those grounds should be used. If no grounds are set forth in the statute, as in the APA [see Gov. Code § 11521], all appropriate grounds should be presented. If a ground for the petition is that new evidence has been discovered, counsel should show the nature of the evidence, why it is important, and why it was not introduced at the hearing. An affidavit or declaration can be used for this purpose. Some statutes expressly require a showing of good cause [see, e.g., Lab. Code § 5803 (Workers' Compensation Appeals Board may rescind, alter, or amend any order, award, or decision for good cause); see also Merritt-Chapman & Scott Corp. v. Indus. A.C. (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 314, 316, 57 P.2d 501 (Industrial Accident Commission has jurisdiction to rescind a former decision on good cause, but not a mere change of opinion)]. The APA, however, does not require such a showing [Gov. Code § 11521].

For an example of a petition for reconsideration under the APA, see § 473G.70 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473 (standards used to vacate or set aside judgments in civil actions); see also Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders (discussion and forms relating to setting aside or vacating judgment in civil actions)]. Some of the civil action standards set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 are analogous to grounds for granting reconsideration under Gov. Code § 11521.

Failure to petition for a rehearing may waive the issues for review [see, e.g., Lab. Code § 5904 (in workers' compensation proceedings, a petitioner for reconsideration is deemed to have waived all objections other than those set forth in the petition for reconsideration); Alford v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 198, 206, 169 P.2d 641 (under Lab. Code § 5904 (issue was waived when petition for rehearing did not raise it)].

Because the APA does not require the petitioner to set out the grounds for reconsideration, it is not clear whether an issue is similarly waived in APA proceedings. With respect to new evidence and arguments based on it, however, the failure to use reasonable diligence to present it to the agency, including requesting reconsideration, is a waiver [Nicky Blair's Restaurant v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Board (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 941, 956-957, 167 Cal. Rptr. 516 ; Schoenen v. Board of Medical Exrs. (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 909, 915, 54 Cal. Rptr. 364] .

When a statute permits a party to seek reconsideration or rehearing of an adverse decision of an agency, such reconsideration is not required before seeking judicial review as to issues already litigated before and finally decided by an agency. Reconsideration by the agency must be sought only as to new issues not previously presented to the agency [Sierra Club v. San Joaquin LAFCO (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 489, 493-494, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 702, 981 P.2d 543] .

[3] APA Order for Reconsideration

[a] Power to Order Reconsideration

Under the APA, an agency can order a reconsideration of all or part of the case on the petition of any party, or on its own motion [Gov. Code § 11521(a)]. The agency is required to notify the petitioner of the time limits for petitioning for reconsideration [Gov. Code § 11521(a)]. The power to order a reconsideration expires as follows [Gov. Code § 11521(a)]:

- Thirty days after delivery of a decision to respondent.

- On the effective date of the decision if that date occurs prior to the expiration of the 30-day period [see § 473G.30 (effective date)].

- At the termination of a stay not to exceed 30 days that the agency may grant to permit filing of a petition for reconsideration.

If the agency needs more time to evaluate a petition for reconsideration filed before expiration of any of these applicable periods, it may grant a stay of the expiration for no more than 10 days, solely for the purpose of considering the petition

[Gov. Code § 11521(a)].

The 10-day stay time period authorized by Gov. Code § 11521(a) for review by a state agency of a filed petition for reconsideration is the maximum time period that an agency may stay the effective date of the decision while it considers the petition for reconsideration. The Medical Board of California granted a 28-day stay of the decision, and then ordered reconsideration of the Board's previous decision to dismiss accusations of misconduct against a physician. The California Supreme Court held that the Board's order granting reconsideration was void for lack of jurisdiction because the Board only had authority to stay the decision for 10 days, not 28 days [Bonnell v. Medical Board (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1255, 1258, 82 P.3d 740] . The court based the decision on the language of the statute, which was very clear as to the 10-day limit for filed petitions. The Supreme court based its decision on the plain language of the statute, and did not use legislative history, and did not defer to and rejected the contrary agency interpretation that the 30-day stay period could be applied to filed petitions [Bonnell v. Medical Board (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1255, 1264-1266, 82 P.3d 740] .

[b] Denial or Grant of Petition

A petition is deemed denied if not acted on within the required time periods [Gov. Code § 11521(a)]. If an agency denies a rehearing or reconsideration, absent an abuse of discretion, the denial will not be set aside [Clendaniel v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 659, 662, 111 P.2d 314] . If reconsideration is granted, the agency itself may reconsider the case on all the pertinent parts of the record and any additional evidence and argument that it permits, or the agency may assign the case to an administrative law judge (ALJ) [Gov. Code § 11521(a)]. Ordering reconsideration effectively vacates the agency's original decision. Furthermore, because the first decision is no longer effective, there is no appealable decision and thus the parties must wait for the completion of the reconsideration process for the issuance of a second decision that will be appealable under the APA. If oral evidence is introduced before the agency itself, no agency member may vote unless he or she heard the evidence [Gov. Code § 11521(b)].

In practice, the case is ordinarily assigned to the same ALJ that heard it initially. Since the agency itself can reconsider the case on the record created by an ALJ and additional evidence and argument, however, a new ALJ could probably be assigned to prepare a proposed decision from the same record and additional evidence [see Gov. Code § 11521(b)]. An ALJ must follow the same procedure for a proposed decision that is required in an initial hearing [Gov. Code § 11521(b); see Gov. Code § 11517 (procedures); see also Pt. A (hearing procedures)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsLegislationStatutory Remedies & Rights

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Effective Date and Consequences of Agency Decision

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.34

§ 473G.34 Correction of Mistakes or Clerical Errors in Decisions

Under an APA provision operative July, 1, 1997, mistakes or clerical errors in decision can be corrected without parties to the decision having to file an action for judicial review [Gov. Code § 11518.5]. Within 15 days after service of a copy of the decision on a party, but not later than the effective date of the decision, the party may apply to the agency for correction of a mistake or clerical error in the decision, stating the specific ground on which the application is made. Notice of the application must be given to the other parties to the proceeding. This application is not a prerequisite for seeking judicial review [Gov. Code § 11518.5(a)]. The agency may refer the application to the administrative law judge who formulated the proposed decision or may delegate its authority to one or more persons [Gov. Code § 11518.5(b)]. The agency may deny the application, grant the application and modify the decision, or grant the application and set the matter for further proceedings. The application is considered denied if the agency does not dispose of it within 15 days after it is made or a longer time that the agency provides by regulation [Gov. Code § 11518.5(c)].

Agencies are not prohibited by this statute from modifying a decision to correct a mistake or clerical error, on the motion of the agency or the motion of the ALJ. An agency modification must be made within 15 days after issuance of the decision [Gov. Code § 11518.5(d)]. The agency is required to, within 15 days after correction of a mistake or clerical error in the decision, serve a copy of the correction on each party on which a copy of the decision was previously served [Gov. Code § 11518.5(e)].

Gov. Code § 11518.5 is intended to provide parties, including the agency that is a party to the proceeding, a limited right to remedy mistakes in the decision without the need for judicial review. This procedure is intended to apply to correction of factual or legal errors in the decision. Gov. Code § 11518.5 supplements the authority in Gov. Code § 11517 of the agency head to adopt a proposed decision with technical or other minor changes [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 248 (1995)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral Overview

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Effective Date and Consequences of Agency Decision

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.35

§ 473G.35 Consequences of Agency Adjudicatory Decisions

[1] Introduction

An agency decision may impose sanctions or impart benefits to a party. Agency sanctions include license revocation and suspension [see [2], below], and license denial [see [3], below]. Administrative remedies include award of benefits [see [5], below], damages [see [6], below], injunctions, and other orders [see [7], below].

An agency cannot award administrative remedies or implement administrative sanctions ordered in a decision, however, without statutory authority delegating that power [see, e.g., Dyna-Med, Inc. v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1379, 1393, 241 Cal. Rptr. 67, 743 P.2d 1323 (Fair Employment and Housing Commission did not have statutory authority to order punitive damages) ; American Federation of Labor v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 1017, 1022-1023, 920 P.2d 1314 (neither administrative law judge nor agency can award interest on retroactive benefits when there is no statutory authority to do so)]. Some agency remedies or sanctions are enforced by the agency following an administrative hearing, and others are enforced through the judicial system [Dyna-Med, Inc. v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1379, 241 Cal. Rptr. 67, 743 P.2d 1323 (administrative enforcement); Commodore Home Systems, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 211, 185 Cal. Rptr. 270, 649 P.2d 912 (civil enforcement)].

[2] License Revocation or Suspension

State licensing agencies have the authority to suspend or revoke licenses [Bus. & Prof. Code § 23.7 ("license" is specifically defined to mean license, certificate, registration, or other means to engage in a business or profession regulated by the Business and Professions Code, which includes most licensed professions and businesses, or referred to in Sections 1000 (governing chiropractors) or 3600 (governing osteopathic physicians and surgeons))] they have issued [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 2227 (revocation of physician's license); Bus. & Prof. Code § 1670 (Board of Dental Examiners may revoke license of dentist following hearing conducted pursuant to APA)]. License revocation following an administrative hearing does not violate the constitutional due process or statutory rights of licensees [O'Reilly v. Board of Medical Examiners (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 381, 58 Cal. Rptr. 7, 426 P.2d 167 , cert. denied, 390 U.S. 944, 88 S. Ct. 1019, 19 L. Ed. 2d 1132 ; Cooper v. State Board of Equalization (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 672, 290 P.2d 914 ;

Marlo v. Board of Medical Examiners (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 276, 246 P.2d 69] . License revocation may also be based on improper conduct that occurred before the license was issued [Hughes v. Board of Architectural Examiners (1998) 17 Cal. 4th 763, 768, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 624, 952 P.2d 641] . A physician could be disciplined for unprofessional conduct under Bus. & Prof. Code § 2239(a) when the physician had two or more convictions for misdemeanor alcohol related driving violations [Griffiths v. Superior Court (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 757, 762, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445] . The physician's constitutional rights to due process of law and equal protection of the law are not violated by discipline based on alcohol consumption related convictions because there is a rational connection between those convictions and a physician's license to practice medicine [Griffiths v. Superior Court (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 757, 770-771, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445] .

The grounds for revoking or suspending licenses are set forth by statute [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 2234 (unprofessional conduct by physicians); Bus. & Prof. Code § 2761 (unprofessional conduct by nurses); Finnerty v. Board of Registered Nursing (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 219, 227-229, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 364 (court of appeal affirmed gross negligence by nurse finding which supported Board of Registered Nursing's revocation of nurse's license with revocation stayed and nurse placed on probation for three years)], or are contained in agency regulations. The APA authorizes state agencies that have revoked or suspended a person's license to reinstate that license or to reduce the penalty [Gov. Code § 11522; see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 2307 (reinstatement of physician's licenses); see § 473G.36]. Lesser disciplinary sanctions that can be awarded by agencies include placing a licensee on probation [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 2227(a)(3) (licensed physician can be placed on probation); Zabetian v. Medical Board of California (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 462, 468-469, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 917 (two year probation period imposed on physician based on finding of unprofessional conduct due to two acts of repeated negligence)], publicly reprimanding a licensee [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 2227(a)(4) (public reprimand of licensed physician)], or taking other action against a licensee, such as requiring training or supervision [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 2227(a)(5) (ALJ or agency may order any other appropriate action against disciplined physician)].

The California Court of Appeal upheld the validity of the Medical Board of California posting on the agency web site information related to disciplinary records of licensees regulated by the Board. The court rejected a challenge by a physician to the board's disclosure on its web site of information relating to the doctor's completion of probation in discipline actions, as well as disclosure of the case numbers under which the doctor was required to complete probation. The court held that public disclosure of discipline information was required by the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 803.1 and 2027, and this disclosure mandate included probation completion and case number information [Szold v. Med. Bd. of Cal. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 591, 598-599, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 665] .

The Court of Appeal upheld the authority of a hospital peer review committee to summarily suspend a doctor's hospital clinical privileges to protect the well-being of prospective patients at that hospital. The doctor suffered from depression, mental distress, and severe family and personal stresses, that made it very difficult for her to act professionally toward her patients. The hospital acted under the statutory authority of Bus. & Prof. Code § 809.5, which authorized medical peer review bodies to suspend clinical privileges of a doctor immediately when there was imminent danger to the health of any person. The hospital based its suspension decision on the risks to prospective patients at the hospital. The Court of Appeal held that harm to prospective patients was within the scope of the hospital peer review body's authority to summarily suspend a physician, given that the needs of public safety outweigh the doctor's due process rights [Medical Staff of Sharp Mem'l Hosp. v. Superior Court (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 173, 181-183, 16 Cal. Rptr 3d 769] .

The California Court of Appeal held that the Department of Real Estate did not have authority to revoke the license of a real estate licensee based on a criminal conviction of unlawful intercourse with a minor because the Director relied upon a invalid presumption that minors can not consent to sexual intercourse. The governing law supporting license revocation, section 2910 [Tit. 10 Cal. Code Regs. § 2910 (a)(5)] of the real estate department's regulations, required proof that the person was a non-consenting participant in the conduct punished by the criminal law. This requirement was based on governing statutes, Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 481, 490, and 10177, which required the department to show that when licensees are convicted for crimes of moral turpitude, the department must prove that the conviction was substantially related to the licensee's fitness to engage in the profession in order for the department to suspend or revoke the license of the licensee based on the conviction [Donaldson v. Department of Real Estate (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 948, 950-951, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 577] .

The California Court of Appeal held that the Department of Real Estate (DRE) did not have statutory authority under Bus. & Prof. Code § 490 to revoke the license of a real estate broker who entered a guilty plea to misdemeanor battery related to a domestic violence incident. Bus. & Prof. Code § 490 authorized licensing agencies to suspend or to revoke the licenses of licensee's subject to regulatory jurisdiction of those agencies when the licensees were convicted of criminal offenses when the crime is substantially related to the qualifications, functions, or duties of the business or profession for which the license was issued [Bus. & Prof. Code § 490]. The Court of Appeal held that section 490 did not authorize the revocation of the real estate broker's license, as that statute limited agency authority and did not independently authorize the license revocation [Petropoulos v. Dept. of Real Estate (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 554, 567-568, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 812 (misdemeanor battery conviction did not involve moral turpitude so that DRE could not rely on Bus. & Prof. Code § 10177(b) to revoke license)].

A county civil service commission's decision to reduce the penalty awarded (from demotion in rank to a 30-day suspension without back pay) against a sergeant who allegedly made false statements and was found to have acted with insubordination and willful disobedience during the investigation of a gender harassment claim against him brought by a female deputy was reversed by the Sixth District California Court of Appeal, which found that the reduction in penalty was an abuse of discretion given the seriousness of the employee misconduct by the sergeant [County of Santa Cruz v. Civil Service Commission of Santa Cruz (2009) 171 Cal. App. 4th 1577, 1584-1585] . While this decision is not a licensing case, similar principles apply to judicial review of civil service penalty determinations with public employees.

For further discussion and forms relating to licensing proceedings, see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies .

[3] License Denial

California licensing agencies have the statutory authority to deny licenses to applicants who do not meet minimum standards of qualifications for the license [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 2080 (applicant for doctor's license must meet standards for issuance of license)]. These agencies may also deny an applicant's license for violation of statutory standards that would also justify revocation or suspension of the license if the conduct were committed by a license holder [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 2221 (applicant for doctor's license will be denied license if guilty of unprofessional conduct)]. Because license applicants must apply for their license, and must satisfy the agency that they meet the minimum standards of the agency, most agencies make initial decisions whether to grant or deny a license based on examinations [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 1630 (examination for dentist's license)], and a written application file [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 1628 (applicant for dentist's license must file application and provide sufficient evidence of graduation from approved dental college)]. An applicant whose license has been denied has the statutory right to request a hearing under the APA to show that he or she is entitled to be granted the license [Bus. & Prof. Code § 1628.5 (applicant whose dental license is denied can request hearing under APA); Gov. Code § 11504; see Fascination, Inc. v. Hoover (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 260, 246 P.2d 656] .

For example, a disbarred attorney applied for a license to sell real estate. His license application was denied. He requested a hearing to challenge the denial. The denial was upheld by the ALJ based on the applicant's prior disbarment. The Court of Appeal upheld that decision and ruled on a number of issues relevant to administrative adjudication. The court held that an accusation satisfied the requirements of Gov. Code § 11503 when it stated that the applicant for a real estate license had been denied a license on the grounds that he had been disbarred from the practice of law, and the accusation set forth the statutory sections and Rules of Professional Conduct sections that the applicant had violated which provided the basis for disbarment. The accusation was not required to set forth specific acts of dishonesty committed by the applicant [Berg v. Davi (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 223, 228-229, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803] . The court also held that collateral estoppel principles precluded a challenger to the denial of a real estate license from offering evidence impeaching prior judgments against the challenger in a civil fraud lawsuit and a state bar disbarment proceeding. These judgments were used as the basis of license denial by the Department of Real Estate. The ALJ ruled at the challenger's hearing that this evidence could not be admitted, as these were final judgments, and collateral estoppel principles prohibited impeachment of those judgments. This ruling was upheld on appeal [Berg v. Davi (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 223, 230-231, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 803] .

[4] Criminal Penalties

The statutes governing an administrative agency frequently include provisions that make certain conduct of its licensees illegal and punishable criminally. For example, a statute may make prohibited conduct a felony [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 585 (individuals who commit fraud related to medical degrees are guilty of a felony punishable by a fine or imprisonment)], a misdemeanor [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 556 (failure to report eye disease case to health department is a misdemeanor punishable by fine)], or an infraction [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 146(a), (d), 146.5(a), (d)]. An agency may also be given statutory authority to adopt administrative regulations that are enforceable criminally [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 556 (persons who violate agency rules adopted under this statute are guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by fine)]. Criminal penalties are enforced through the normal judicial process: the district attorney files charges against the licensee and prosecutes the case.

A licensee can also be sanctioned administratively for the same conduct that is punishable criminally, by having his or her license revoked or suspended [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 652 (paying or accepting fees for patient referrals is a misdemeanor and constitutes grounds for suspension or revocation of the license)]. For a discussion of the doctrine of collateral estoppel, which prevents relitigation of an issue determined in a prior judicial or administrative proceeding in a later proceeding, see People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321 (administrative Department of Social Services decision, which exonerated a welfare recipient of fraud charges, collaterally estopped a subsequent criminal prosecution for the same misconduct) [see also Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings].

[5] Award of Benefits

One of the major functions of administrative agencies is to award or grant benefits to individuals who are eligible for those benefits as a matter ofstatutory entitlement. The major benefit granting agencies in California are the Department of Social Services (welfare benefits), the Employment Development Department (unemployment), and the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board (workers' compensation benefits). A party is entitled to the benefits awarded in an agency decision on the effective date of that decision [Gov. Code § 11519(a); see § 473B.30]. Administrative law judges can not award interest on retroactive benefits without statutory authority [AFL v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1996) 13 Cal. 4th 1017, 1022-1023, 56 Cal. Rptr. 109, 920 P.2d 1314].

[6] Damages

It is unusual for an administrative agency to be given the power to award damages, as distinct from restitution, in an administrative hearing. Damage awards are an administrative remedy that must be expressly authorized by statute [Dyna-Med, Inc. v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1379, 241 Cal. Rptr. 67, 743 P.2d 1323 ; Lance Camper Manufacturing Corp. v. Republic Indemnity Co. (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 194, 200-201, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 622] . For example, the ALRB does not have statutory authority to award compensatory damages under Labor Code § 1160.3 to persons injured in their property or business by unlawful secondary boycott activity [United Farm Workers v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 303, 322-323, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 696] .

The California Supreme Court has addressed the issue of whether the Fair Employment and Housing Act (see Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.) authorizes the award of punitive damages. In Commodore Home Systems, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 211, 185 Cal. Rptr 270, 649 P.2d 912 , the litigants received a "right-to-sue" letter when the agency did not initiate a hearing within the statutory deadline [see Gov. Code § 12965(b)]. The Court held that the litigants could receive punitive damages in the civil action, along with other remedies authorized by the Act in Gov. Code § 12970(a). The Court based its holding on a principle of statutory interpretation: when statutes create a new cause of action, all remedies available to other civil claimants are also available to parties filing claims under the statutory cause of action, unless the Legislature expresses a contrary intent [Commodore Home Systems, Inc. v. Superior Court (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 211, 215, 185 Cal. Rptr. 270, 649 P.2d 912] .

in Dyna-Med, Inc. v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1379, 241 Cal. Rptr. 67, 743 P.2d 1323 , however, the Court held that the Fair Employment and Housing Commission itself cannot award punitive damages under Gov. Code § 12970(a) when it decides an employment discrimination claim [Dyna-Med, Inc. v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1379, 1393, 241 Cal. Rptr. 67, 743 P.2d 1323] . The Legislature usually specifies whether punitive damages, and sometimes compensatory damages, are authorized; an agency cannot devise punitive measures when a statute is essentially remedial [Dyna-Med, Inc. v. FairEmployment & Housing Com. (1987) 43 Cal. 3d 1379, 1388, 241 Cal. Rptr. 67, 743 P.2d 1323] . For example, the Fair Employment and Housing Commission is specifically authorized to award actual and punitive damages in housing discrimination cases [Gov. Code § 12987(a)(3) (civil penalties), (a)(4) (actual damages)]. Effective January 1, 1993, Gov. Code § 12970 was amended to authorize the Commission to award administrative fines, civil penalties, and damages for emotional distress [Gov. Code § 12970(a)(3) (emotional distress damages), (c) (administrative fines), (d) (standards), and (e) (civil penalties)]. The legislature intended these amendments to be a response to the Dyna-Med and Peralta decisions of the California Supreme Court [1992 Stats., ch. 911, § 1(c)]. The effect of the legislative amendments is to give clear statutory authority to the Commission to award emotional distress damages [Gov. Code § 12970(a)(3)], and a type of punitive damages [Gov. Code § 12970(c), (d), (e) (with a maximum of $150,000, including the amount of administrative fines, for each aggrieved person and against each respondent)]. The court decisions in Dyna-Med and Peralta had concluded that the commision id not have statutory authority to award either type of damages remedy. Because of the legislative amendments, the Commission has clear authority to award both types of damages.

However, the FEHC does not have statutory authority to award compensatory damages for emotional distress suffered in an employment discrimination case that is adjudicated before the agency [Gov. Code § 12970(a); Peralta Community College Dist v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 40, 57, 276 Cal. Rptr. 114, 801 P.2d 357] . A litigant who seeks to recover emotional distress damages must file a civil lawsuit in court seeking recovery for common law claims related to employment discrimination. Those common law claims are not pre-empted by the Fair Employment & Housing Act [Gov. Code §§ 12900-12996; Rojo v. Kliger (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 65, 83, 276 Cal. Rptr. 130, 801 P.2d 373] . Also, litigants may seek judicial relief for common law nonstatutory claims without exhausting administrative remedies before the FEHC [Rojo v. Kliger (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 65, 89, 276 Cal. Rptr 130, 801 P.2d 373] .

A local rent control board can not properly award treble damages based on tripling the amount of excess rent awarded because treble damage awards are not reasonably necessary to enforce rent control laws, and because treble damages are likely to lead to arbitrary and disproportionate results. Thus, treble damage awards by this board violate the substantive limitations of the judicial powers doctrine which requires that the administrative remedy be authorized by statute, and be reasonably necessary to carry out the administrative agencies primary legitimate regulatory purposes [McHugh v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 348, 378-379, 261 Cal. Rptr. 318, 777 P.2d 91] .

The California Supreme Court held that Section 12987 of the Fair Employment and Housing Act [Gov. Code § 12987] is invalid under the judicial powers clause insofar as it authorizes general compensatory damages for emotional distress suffered as a result of unlawful housing discrimination [Walnut Creek Manor v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 245, 251, 284 Cal. Rptr. 718, 814 P.2d 704] . The court also interpreted the punitive damages provisions of the same statute to limit such awards to the statutory maximum of $1,000 for a single course of discriminatory conduct against one complaining party [Walnut Creek Manor v. Fair Employment & Housing Com. (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 245, 271-273, 284 Cal. Rptr. 718, 814 P.2d 704] .

The California Supreme Court upheld an award of $10,000 in general compensatory damages for emotional distress and lost housing opportunity [Gov. Code § 12987(a)(4)] that was awarded to a successful African American female claimant who sought damages for racial discrimination in housing against a landlord who refused to rent to the claimant. The damages were awarded, along with a $10,000 civil penalty in an administrative proceeding before the Fair Employment and Housing Commission [Konig v. Fair Employment and Housing Commission (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 743, 745-746, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 50 P.3d 718] . The Supreme Court distinguished the Walnut Creek Manor case decision and concluded that the award of damages in this case did not violate the judicial powers clause of the California Constitution [Cal. Const. Art. VI, § 1] because legislative amendments to the FEHA statute solve separation of powers problems in the statute. Gov. Code § 12989 allows claimants the option of bringing their claims in the court system instead of before the administrative agency [Konig v. Fair Employment and Housing Commission (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 743, 757-758, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 50 P.3d 718] . Finally, the FEHA statute [Gov. Code § 12955.6] provides for the same scope of remedies as are available in federal administrative adjudications under the federal Fair Housing law [42 U.S.C. § 3601; Konig v. Fair Employment and Housing Commission (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 743, 750-751, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1, 50 P.3d 718] .

The judicial powers clause of the California Constitution was similarly violated when an agency attempted to take jurisdiction over claims for compensatory and punitive damages based on statutory and common contract and tort law violations brought by a car dealer against a car manufacturer when the agency did not have statutory authority to determine those claims [Hardin Oldsmobile v. New Motor Vehicle Board (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 585, 597-598, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 583] .

Practitioners who are litigating administrative remedies questions must therefore examine the statute applicable to the particular agency to determine what damages are available. Statutes regarding remedies generally specify both the substantive standards for awarding remedies, and the remedies that are authorized.

An affected private entity, whose due process rights were violated by a state agency when the agency refused to provide notice or a hearing before refusing to recertify the entity as an approved product seller, is not entitledto recover damages for the due process violation based solely on the California Constitution's [Cal. Const. Art. I, 7] due process provisions [Carlsbad Aquafarm, Inc. v. State Department of Health Services (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 809, 811-812, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 87] .

[7] Equitable Remedies

Administrative agencies are frequently authorized to award equitable remedies when they are the most appropriate remedy for a specific type of harm. For example, the Fair Employment and Housing Act authorizes the Commission to order reinstatement or upgrading of employees, and to award back pay [Gov. Code § 12970(a)(1); International Union etc. v. Fair Emp. Practice Com. (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 504, 81 Cal. Rptr. 47 , cert. denied, 397 U.S. 1037, 90 S. Ct. 1356, 25 L. Ed. 2d 648] . Injunctive relief must be specifically authorized by statute [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 125.7, 125.8 (Department of Consumer Affairs may seek temporary restraining order)]. Furthermore, an agency itself may not issue an injunction. The agency (or district attorney or attorney general, on agency request) [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 651(j) (attorney general may bring action in appropriate forum to enjoin prohibited advertising by healing arts licensee)] must bring an action in superior court [see, e.g., Gov. Code §§ 12973, 12974 (Fair Employment and Housing Department may obtain injunction in civil action brought in superior court)], and must satisfy the requirements of both the statute authorizing the action for injunction and of the Code of Civil Procedure [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 525-534 (governing injunctions)]. The Superior court may also issue a temporary restraining order to enjoin a licensee from endangering the public health, safety, or welfare while engaging in the business or profession for which he or she is licensed [Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.7].

Note, however, that agencies may order administrative remedies, such as cease and desist orders [Bus. & Prof. Code § 149(a)(1), (c), (d)], that are similar to judicially ordered injunctions [see, e.g., Gov. Code § 12970(a) (Fair Employment and Housing Commission may order licensee to cease and desist from unlawful practices)].

The Santa Monica Rent control board could properly make excess rent determinations and award restitution of excess rents from a landlord to a tenant [McHugh v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 348, 375, 261 Cal. Rptr. 318, 777 P.2d 91] , but the Board could not authorize the tenant to immediately withhold excess rent [Floystrup v. City of Berkeley Rent Stabilization Bd. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1309, 1315-1317, 268 Cal. Rptr. 898] , because this denied the landlord the right to judicial review. The board order that permitted immediate withholding of excess rent violates the procedural limitations on the remedial powers of administrative agencies contained in the judicial powers doctrine, which requires judicial review of agency orders before they are enforced, based on the principle of judicial check on administrative agencies [McHugh v. Santa Monica Rent Control Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 348, 376-377, 261 Cal. Rptr. 318, 777 P.2d 91] .

Back pay is an equitable remedy awarded in employment law settings. It is often coupled with reinstatement to a former position when an employee has been wrongfully terminated [Norton v. San Bernardino Unified School District (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 749, 751-753, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 917 (reinstatement of school district employee upheld by court of appeal); Hulings v. State Department of Health Care Services (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1114, 1118, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 81 (the court of appeal held that a peace officer employee was entitled by statute to mandatory reinstatement without undergoing new background investigation)]. Former deputy attorney general was terminated for cause without being given Skelley hearing to challenge termination, a violation of due process of law, as employee had civil service protection and could only be terminated for cause. Former deputy had resigned from job one month after termination date, and before Skelley hearing could be started. The Court of Appeal held that former deputy was entitled to back pay until date that State Personnel Board completed Skelley hearing process, and issued decision on the merits of employee's termination. Employee had been denied back pay after date of resignation, and Court of Appeal decision extended back pay rights for almost seven years [Roe v. State Personnel Bd. (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 1029, 1032-1033, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 207] .

The California Court of Appeal upheld the denial of a petition for writ of mandate brought by a former employee of the county office of education. The former employee was injured on the job and was unable to perform the duties of her previous job due to disability. She was discharged, and she sought reinstatement and back pay to her previous position as a para-educator with the county. The Court of Appeal affirmed the decision of the superior court which held that the former employee's status was governed by the Public Employees Retirement System statutes and that under those statutes the former employee was not eligible for reinstatement to her previous job nor for back pay, but she was eligible to be placed on the 39 month re-employment list under the provisions of Educ. Code § 45192 [Jones v. Los Angeles County Office of Education (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 983, 991-992, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 617] . The Second District, Division 1, California Court of Appeal similarly held that an employee of the Los Angeles Unified School District who was wrongfully demoted was not entitled to reinstatement and full back pay for periods of time in which he was unable to return to work due to a non-work related disability [Davis v. Los Angeles Unified School District Personnel Commission (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 1122, 1126-1127, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 69] .

[8] Civil Penalties

Legislation often delegates to agencies the authority to impose civil penalties for conduct that violates requirements set by statutes or by agency regulations [see, e.g., Bus. & Prof. Code § 651(k) (administrative fines awardable with a maximum of $10,000 per event when physicians intentionally violate advertising laws); Health & Safety Code § 1424; Water Code § 13350(d)(1), (2) (maximum civil liability of $15,000 per day, or $20 per gallon of waste discharged)]. The primary purpose of civil penalties is to ensure compliance with statutory and regulatory standards. Unlike awards of monetary damages, there is no requirement that actual harm be suffered before statutory civil penalties can be assessed. Furthermore, civil penalties can be assessed for negligent conduct without proof of malice, willfulness, or intentional conduct. In contrast to money damages that compensate persons harmed by wrongful conduct, civil penalties help to finance enforcement costs [Kizer v. County of San Mateo (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 139, 148, 279 Cal. Rptr. 318, 806 P.2d 1353] . Civil penalties can be imposed against both public and private entities, and these penalties are not punitive damages for purposes of the Government Tort Claims Act (Gov. Code § 810 et seq.) [People ex rel. Younger v. Superior Court (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 30, 39, 127 Cal. Rptr. 122, 544 P.2d 1322 (private entities); Kizer v. County of San Mateo (1991) 53 Cal. 3d 139, 145, 279 Cal. Rptr. 318, 806 P.2d 1353 (public entities); see Gov. Code § 818]. The Court of Appeal held that civil penalties of $25,000 can be imposed against a public entity under the provisions of the Unruh Act, Civ. Code § 52(b)(2), without violating the provisions of Gov. Code § 818, which prohibits punitive damages awards against public entities under the California Government Tort Claims Act [Gov. Code §§ 810-818.9]. This is because civil penalties under the Unruh Act, which protects civil rights, are not punitive damages. Furthermore,civil penalties are designed to provide ample compensation to plaintiff's for civil rights violations so as to encourage plaintiffs to file civil rights lawsuits. These civil penalties are also not solely punitive and are not imposed primarily for punishment, and thus do notviolate the provisions of Gov. Code § 818 [Los Angeles County Metro. Transp. Auth. v. Superior Court (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 261, 267-269, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92] . Licensing agencies also have the authority to issue administrative citations to licensees who violate statutory or regulatory requirements applicable to their licensed business or profession. The citation can contain orders of abatement, or orders to pay administrative fines [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 125.9(a), 148]. Civil penalties may be imposed by a city against a public works contractor for violation of the fair practices act [Pub. Con. Code § 4110] but the city cannot obtain those penalties by filing a civil lawsuit [Thompson Pacific Constr., Inc. v. City of Sunnyvale (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 525, 539-540, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 175] .

The California Court of Appeal upheld a $100,000 penalty assessment imposed by the Division of Labor Standards Enforcement against an employer that failed to obtain worker's compensation insurance from an authorized insurer. The court held that the penalty assessment which was authorized under Labor Code § 3722 (a) could not be withdrawn because the DLSE did not have discretion to withdraw the penalty assessment under Labor Code § 3727.1 [Starving Students, Inc. v. Department of Industrial Relations, Division of Labor Standards Enforcement (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1357, 1361, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 583] . The court of appeal also rejected constitutional challenges to the penalty assessment under due process of law holding that the amount of the penalty was reasonable under the circumstances because it was based on the size of the employer and the amount of money saved by paying premiums to an unauthorized insurer [Starving Students, Inc. v. Department of Industrial Relations, Division of Labor Standards Enforcement (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1357, 1368-1369, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 583] .

Licensing agencies have the authority to assess administrative penalties against licensee's or applicants for licenses in disciplinary proceedings as an additional sanction based on established criteria [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5116 (Accounting Board)]. Licensing agencies also have the authority to seek award to the agency and against the disciplined licensee of the reasonable costs for investigating and prosecuting the disciplinary proceeding against the licensee, including attorney's fees. The amount of costs awarded is based upon findings made by the Administrative Law Judge that heard and decided the proceeding [Bus. & Prof. Code § 5107 (Accounting Board)].

Fines authorized by Bus. & Prof. Code § 12023 (fines based on sale of individual packages), and Bus. & Prof. Code § 12024 (fines based on sale of entire lot) were imposed by local agency (county sealer of weights and measures) against grocery company for violating laws requiring accurate weighting of seafood. The Court of Appeal upheld the assessment of multiple fines against the grocery company for inaccurately weighted seafood based on the sale of each improperly labeled seafood package, rather than imposing one fine for all the seafood related weight violations. The Court rejected the company's argument that the provisions of Penal Code § 654 prohibited multiple fines under Bus. & Prof. Code § 12023. However, the Court of Appeal held that Penal Code § 654 prohibited duplicative fines under both Bus. & Prof. Code § 12024 and under Bus. & Prof. Code § 12023 for the same mislabeling violation. Thus, the Court of Appeal stayed the fines under the provisions of Penal Code § 654 [Ralph's Grocery Co. v. California Department of Food & Agriculture (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 694, 700-701, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 869] .

The Court of Appeal upheld the award of $243,000 in mandatory minimum penalties imposed by the Central Valley Reg'l Water Quality Control Board under Water Code § 13385 against the City of Brentwood for violations related to the city's waste water discharge permit. In upholding the denial of the city's petition for a writ of administrative mandamus challenging the amount of the penalties, the Court of Appeal held that the city had the burden of proof of showing that a statutory exception applied to avoid mandatory liability for penalties, and that the statutory term defined the relevant time period for penalty purposes referred to the 180-day time period prior to each violation [City of Brentwood v. Central Valley Regional Water Quality Control Bd. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 714, 717, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 322] .

The California Supreme Court held that provisions of the Federal Cigarette Labeling and Advertising Act which prohibits states from regulating the advertising and promotion of cigarettes [15 U.S.C. § 1334(b)] did not preempt a California statute [Health & Safety Code § 118950] that regulated the free distribution of cigarettes [People ex rel. Lockyer v. R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 707, 719, 726, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 814, 124 P. 3d 408] . The California Supreme court also held that it was improper for the trial court to have granted summary judgment on the issue of whether $14,826,200 in fines imposed against the company were excessive within the meaning of the U.S. Constitution [U.S. Const., Amend. 8] and the California constitution [Cal. Const. Art. 1, § 17]. The fines were imposed under statutory authority [Health & Safety Code § 118950] that authorized $200, $500, and $1000 fines for the first, second, and any additional violations of the statute at each event [People ex rel. Lockyer v. R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 707, 712-713, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 814, 124 P.3d 408] . The court remanded the lawsuit to the trial court for a hearing on defendant company's good faith belief defense (that it in good faith believed that its conduct complied with the statute), and on the issue of whether the attorney general delayed notifying the company that its conduct violated the statute for the purpose of allowing the penalties to accumulate in amount [People ex rel. Lockyer v. R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 707, 730-732, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 814, 124 P.3d 408] .

The California Medical Board's decision to fine a physician $500 for aiding the unlicensed practice of medicine in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 2264 was upheld by the Court of Appeal. The court concluded that there was substantial evidence in the administrative record before the board that the physician had knowledge that the clinic where he practiced was partially owned by two individuals who were not licensed to practice medicine in California [Steinsmith v. Medical Board of California (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 458, 465-466, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 115] . However, the Medical Board of California did not have statutory authority under Bus. & Prof. Code § 805(h) to impose a $5,000 civil penalty against a physician and a facility administrator in an administrative adjudicatory proceeding brought under the Administrative Procedure Act [Gov. Code §§ 11400-11529]. This is because the language of the statute requires that the action be brought by the Attorney General in a civil action in a court of law, not by the agency in an administrative proceeding [Gilliland v. Medical Board of California (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 208, 219-220, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 863] .

The California Court of Appeal held that the Public Utilities Commission has statutory authority (jurisdiction) under Pub. Util. Code § 2107 to impose fines directly on public utilities regulated by the PUC, with litigation in the superior court only necessary to collect unpaid fines [Pacific Bell Wireless, LLC v. P.U.C. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 718, 735-737, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 733] . The California Court of Appeal denied a petition for a writ of review brought by wireless carriers to challenge a decision of the California Public Utilities Commission that imposed substantial fines against wireless service providers in California for unjust and unreasonable practices, including charging customers early termination fees to cancel contracts without permitting a grace period, for failing to disclose to customers known network problems and misleading customers regarding network coverage and service. The court rejected the carriers preemption argument and held that the provisions of the Federal Communications Act of 1934, as amended by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993, that preempt state and local regulation of market entry and rates charged by wireless mobile telephone providers [47 U.S.C. § 332 (c)(3)(A)] did not preempt decisions by the California Public Utilities Commission. The court also upheld the imposition of substantial fines ($12 million) against the wireless carriers, and rejected due process arguments against the imposition of fines [Pacific Bell Wireless, LLC v. P.U.C. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 718, 728, 729, 747, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 733] .

The California Court of Appeal affirmed the judgment of the superior court denying a construction company's petition for a writ of administrative mandate that requested reversal of the decision of the California Occupational Safety and Health Appeals Board, which upheld the decision of the California Department of Industrial Relations, Division of Occupational Safety and Health that cited the company for violation of a safety order, and assessed a $5,000 civil penalty against the company. The company was cited for a violation of General Industry Safety Order 1592 [Cal. Code Regs., tit. 8, § 1592(e)] as a result of an accident on the job that led to serious injuries suffered by an employee of the company [Teichert Const. v. Cal. Occupational Safety and Health Appeals Board (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 883, 886-887, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 833] . The regulation was not unconstitutionally vague under due process of law principles applicable to administrative regulations. The constitutional vagueness standards for administrative regulations are less strict than for criminal laws, and the vagueness challenge is assessed based on the complaining party's conduct in the specific facts of the case to which the regulation is being applied. The regulation was upheld because the agency interpretation of the regulations meaning was reasonable under the circumstances [Teichert Const. v. Cal. Occupational Safety and Health Appeals Board (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 883, 890-892, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 833] .

[9] Attorneys Fees

Private litigants can not recover attorneys fees from the agency under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 (the Private Attorney General statute) when they prevail against an agency at an administrative hearing and thereby resolve the dispute without having to file a lawsuit [Hospital Systems v. Office of Statewide Health etc. Development (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1686, 1692-1693, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 922] . However, attorneys fees are recoverable from an agency by a prevailing private party when legal services for administrative proceedings are closely linked to judicial proceedings [Wallace v. Consumers Cooperative of Berkeley, Inc. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 836, 848-849, 216 Cal. Rptr. 649] . However, when administrative proceedings are unrelated to judicial proceedings, then attorneys fees for legal services in those administrative proceedings are not recoverable from an agency by a prevailing private party [Californians for Responsible Toxics Management v. Kizer (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 961, 971, 259 Cal. Rptr. 599] . Attorneys fees are recoverable from an agency by a prevailing private party when legal services for related federal judicial proceedings are closely linked to state judicial proceedings in which the fee award is made [Children's Hospital & Medical Center v. Bonta' (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 740, 781-782, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 629] . The amount of a fee award will not be overturned on appeal unless the amount is manifestly excessive [Children's Hospital & Medical Center v. Bonta' (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 740, 756, 782-783, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 629 (appellate court affirmed attorneys fee award in amount of $827,145, and held that both rates charged ($380 per hour), and number of hours spent on case were reasonable)]. Attorney's fees are recoverable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 for work done by an attorney in opposing an amicus curiae brief filed by the county in a related case [Ramon v. County of Santa Clara (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 915, 917-918, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 278] . A trial court's decision whether or not to award attorneys fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 is reviewable for abuse of discretion [Draeger v. Reed (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 1511, 1525-1526, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 378 (trial court's denial of fee award for lack of significant benefit to public held to be properly within its discretion); Roybal v. Governing Board of the Salinas City Elementary School District (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1143, 1148-1150, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 146 (attorneys' fee award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 was abuse of discretion because of lack of significant public benefit); Lyons v. Chinese Hospital Assn. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1331, 1336, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 550 (denial of attorneys' fee award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 was abuse of discretion)]. An award of attorneys fees under Code Civ Proc. § 1021.5 in favor of a county as a prevailing party and against the Department of Fish and Game acting through the California Wildlife Conservation Board was affirmed by the California Court of Appeal. The county had successfully challenged under the Williamson Act the Department's proposal to convert agricultural land into wildlife habitat. The award was upheld, and the court of appeal also held that the catalyst theory did not apply to this case, and did not have to be satisfied by the prevailing party to recover attorney's fees [County of Colusa v. Cal. Wildlife Conservation Board (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 637, 657-659, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1] .

The California Court of Appeal held that attorneys had standing to intervene in a client's lawsuit for purposes of seeking attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5. The attorneys had a sufficient interest in the award of attorney's fees to support permissive intervention under Code Civ. Proc. § 387(a) [Lindelli v. Town of San Anselmo (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1499, 1502, 43 Cal. Rptr.3d 707] . The attorneys were entitled to an award of reasonable attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 as both clients and attorneys could be prevailing parties for purposes of fee awards [Lindelli

v. Town of San Anselmo (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1499, 1516-1517, 43 Cal. Rptr.3d 707] . The Fourth District, Division 2, California Court of Appeal held that a public employees' union that prevailed in a lawsuit under the police officers procedural bill of rights act (POBRA) [Gov. Code §§ 3300 et. seq] could recover attorneys fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 [Riverside Sheriffs' Assn. v. County of Riverside (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 414, 417, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 295] .

The California court of Appeal held that the California Attorney general could not recover $173,450 in attorneys fees incurred in litigation with county agency defendants to enforce provisions of the subdivision map act even though the attorney general was the prevailing party in that lawsuit because the attorney general could not satisfy the financial burden requirement for recovery of attorneys fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 [People ex rel Brown v. Tehama County Board of Supervisors (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 422, 456 (attorney general has public duty to enforce state laws acting on behalf of the people of the state of California. Attorney general can not properly be awarded attorney fees for performing public duty, and thus can not meet financial burden criteria of statute)].

Another California Court of Appeal upheld the trial court's denial of an award of attorneys fees to a group of citizens that sought a writ of mandate to compel the City and County of San Francisco to investigate an unreported change of ownership of commercial property in downtown San Francisco. The property was eventually reassessed, and the city received a 64 million dollar increase in property tax revenue as a result. However, the plaintiff's could not recover their attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 because they could not show that they took steps to settle the dispute before filing the lawsuit, an essential element of the catalyst theory necessary to show that the plaintiffs efforts led to the legal change of position in favor of the city notwithstanding that the plaintiffs were not the prevailing parties in the underlying litigation [Abouab v. City and County of San Francisco (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 643, 664-666, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 206]. Further, the plaintiffs could not recover attorneys fees under the common fund and substantial benefit theories because equitable circumstances prohibited their recovery under these theories [Abouab v. City and County of San Francisco (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 643, 672-674, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 206].

The Fourth District Division 1 California Court of Appeal upheld an award of attorney's fees under the private attorney general statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5] against the Community Development Commission of the City of Escondido based upon the application of the catalyst theory adopted by the California Supreme court in Graham v. Daimler Chrysler Corp. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 553, 566, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 331, 101 P.3d 140] to the challenger (Hogar). The court of appeal held that the challenger was a prevailing party under the private attorney general statute because the challengers lawsuit was the catalyst for the commission to change its position and provide 20 percent of gross tax receipts to a low cost housing fund [Hogar v. Community Development Commission of the City of Escondido (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1358, 1365-1368, 69 Cal. Rptr 3d 250]. The court of appeal also held that the challenger was entitled to a fully compensatory lodestar fee even though the challenger did not prevail on all claims. The court rejected a negative lodestar reduction for partial success by the challenger because of substantial success, long-term impact, and related claims [Hogar v. Community Development Commission of the City of Escondido (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1358, 1368-1370, 69 Cal. Rptr 3d 250]. The court of appeal also held that the challenger could recover attorney's fees for work done prior to the filing of the complaint, and for work done in prosecuting the motion for attorney's fees, but the court upheld the trial court's rejection of a multiplier to the lodestar (reasonable hours times a reasonable hourly rate) fee amount [Hogar v. Community Development Commission of the City of Escondido (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1358, 1370-1372, 69 Cal. Rptr 3d 250].

The First District Division 3 California Court of Appeal upheld an award of $55,010 in attorney's fees under the private attorney general statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5] against the Director of the Department of Industrial Relations brought by a union enforcing the prevailing wage law for public works projects. The court held that the department was an opposing party against whom an award of fees could be enforced because the department was responsible for making the policy decision that was the subject of the lawsuit [Plumbers and Steamfitters, Local 290 v. Duncan (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1083, 1094-1096, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 184]. The court also upheld the award on statutory grounds, that the litigation enforced important rights affecting the public interest. This was because the department's policy decision, which limited the scope of prevailing wage laws, was designated as a precedential decision that would have been likely to impact other public works projects and other unions in the future. [Plumbers and Steamfitters, Local 290 v. Duncan (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1083, 1096-1098, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 184]. Finally, the court upheld the recovery of attorney's fees for charges incurred by the union for computerized legal research [Plumbers and Steamfitters, Local 290 v. Duncan (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 1083, 1099, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 184].

The Second District Division 3 California Court of Appeal upheld an award of $50,000 in attorney's fees, split equally between the city of Los Angeles and the project developer under the private attorney general statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5] to a challenger based upon a successful challenge to the environmental review process under the California Environmental Quality Act undertaken by the city in approving a residential development project. The court upheld a $25,000 award against the developer and concluded that the developer was an opposing party under the statute against whom attorney's fees could be awarded, even though the city was responsible for the approval and review decisions [Mejia v. City of Los Angeles (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 151, 159-162, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 228]. The court also held that the challenger satisfied the requirements for a statutory private attorney general award in that the financial burden of the litigation was out of proportion to the personal stake of the plaintiff challenger who was a real property owner and resident next to the proposed development [Mejia v. City of Los Angeles (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 151, 158-159, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 228]. Finally, the court held that the fee award did not improperly infringe on the developer's first amendment right to petition the government for redress of grievances, including the right of access to the courts [Mejia v. City of Los Angeles (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 151, 162-163, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 228].

The California Court of Appeal upheld an attorney's fee award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 of $216,495.34 against the Department of Health Services for legal fees incurred by plaintiffs in defending against DHS efforts to modify an injunction previously granted against DHS notwithstanding that parties waited three years to seek the fee award. The Court of Appeal held that DHS was not prejudiced by the delay in seeking attorney's fees [Crespin v. Shewry (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 259, 271-272, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 696] . Another California Court of Appeal affirmed the superior court's denial of an attorney's fee award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 sought by a harness operator against CAL-EXPO. The operator had challenged bidding contract practices used by CAL-EXPO for harness racing. The denial of attorneys fees was based on the financial burden element of the statutory test. The Court of Appeal upheld the fact findings of the trial court that the harness operator had a significant financial interest in the litigation (as a competitor of the successful contractor with CAL-EXPO), and thus the cost of the lawsuit was not disproportionate to the litigants economic interest in the lawsuit [Arnold v. California Expo. and State Fair (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 498, 509-511, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 790] .

The California Court of Appeal upheld an award of $17,314.35 in attorney's fees, and $979.00 in costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 against the City of Berkeley, sought by neighbors of a proposed housing development, for denial of due process hearing rights. The award was partial and did not include all of the approximately $90,000 in legal fees and approximately $6,000 in costs paid by the neighbors to challenge the approval in court. The court of appeal upheld the trial court award applying the abuse of discretion standard of review, and held that the neighbors' partial success in court on the due process claim, that they were deprived of the right to go before the city council to challenge the project at the meeting in which the city council originally approved the project, was sufficient for them to be considered successful parties within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 [Bowman v. City of Berkeley (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 173, 176-178, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 447] . The court also held that the neighbors satisfied the significant public benefit and substantial private burden tests for fee awards under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 [Bowman v. City of Berkeley (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 173, 180-182, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 447] .

Another California Court of Appeal upheld the trial court's denial of an attorney's fee award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 to a group of challengers of a proposed project and against the city of La Habra. The Court of Appeal held that the significant public benefit element of statutory fees was not met, in that the challengers established that there was a minor inadequacy in the city's mitigated negative declaration that did not comply with CEQA, and this was not a sufficient public benefit justifying a fee award. Therefore it was not an abuse of discretion for the superior court to deny the fee award requested [Concerned Citizens of La Habra v. City of La Habra (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 329, 334-336, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 599] . Another California Court of Appeal reversed the trial court's denial of an attorney's fee award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 to a group of challengers of a proposed project and against the County of Merced. Project approval had been reversed and remanded because the administrative record was not adequate for judicial review. Based on this result, the challengers were successful parties within the meaning of the statute, who accomplished a significant public benefit, requiring the county to provide an adequate administrative record for the reviewing court to determine compliance with CEQA requirements. The court of appeal held that it was an abuse of discretion to deny the fee award, and reversed and remanded to determine the amount of the fee award [Protect Our Water v. County of Merced (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 488, 497-498, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 202] .

The First District Division 1 California Court of Appeal held that a taxpayer could recover attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 as a prevailing party in a tax refund action against the California Franchise Tax Board. The taxpayer was not limited to recovery of attorney's fees under Rev. & Tax. Code § 19717 [Ventas Finance I, LLC v. California Franchise Tax Board (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 1207, 1211-1213, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 823]. The First District Division Five California Court of Appeal held that a taxpayer could recover attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 and was not limited to recovery of fees under Rev. & Tax. Code § 19717. However, the taxpayer was limited to the lodestar amount and was not entitled to a multiplier [Northwest Energetic Services, LLC v. California Franchise Tax Bd. (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 841, 875-877, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 642]. The Third District California Court of Appeal reversed an order of the superior court denying an award of attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 to a nonprofit organization. The superior court had denied the fee award based on the necessity for private enforcement criteria, that the nonprofit organizations efforts were unnecessary because a public entity had achieved the same success in the underlying litigation as a private attorney general. The court of appeal held that the necessity criteria were met, and that the nonprofit organization was entitled to attorney's fees. The court noted that it was irrational to provide a fee award to the public entity under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5, and to deny a fee award to the nonprofit organization when both had contributed to the same successful result [State Water Resources Control Board Cases (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 304, 306-308, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 842].

To determine the amount of the attorney fee award under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5, the court first determines the "lodestar" amount by compiling the reasonable hourly compensation of the attorneys involved in the case. Then, the court can increase or decrease the amount of the award based on a number of factors. In one case, the court properly applied a 1.5 multiplier to the lodestar amount ($86,671) to award a total fee of $130,006 in favor of the union and against Caltrans. The multiplier was justified by the novelty and difficulty of the issues, the attorney's skill, excellent results, and the importance of the rights enforced in the lawsuit [Edgerton v. State Personnel Board (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 1350, 1362-1363, 100 Cal. Rptr. 2d 491] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 1028.5 gives the superior court discretion to award reasonable litigation expenses, including attorneys fees, to a small business or licensee, in civil actions between small businesses or licensees that are engaged in civil litigation against a state regulatory agency involving the regulatory functions of that agency as applied to the small business or licensee when the small business or licensee prevails and the court determines that the agency action was undertaken without substantial justification [Code Civ. Proc. § 1028.5(a); Wang v. Division of Labor Standards Enforcement (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1152, 268 Cal. Rptr. 669] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.8 authorizes awards of attorneys fees to injured persons when unlicensed individuals cause injury or damage to another person as a result of providing goods or performing services for which a license is required under specified provisions of the Business and Professions Code [Code Civ. Proc. § 1029.8(a)].

Under Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3, a licensing agency within the Department of Consumer Affairs may, upon the resolution of a disciplinary proceeding, recover from a licensee found to have violated the licensing requirements the reasonable costs of the agency's investigation and enforcement of the violation. This may include attorneys fees charged by Attorney General's office for representing an agency in a license revocation proceeding [Angelier v. State Board of Pharmacy (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 592, 600-601, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 213] .

A State Board of Chiropractic Examiners order requiring a disciplined chiropractor to pay $17,500 costs to reimburse the Board for pre hearing investigative and prosecution costs in his case was challenged on grounds that the regulation which authorized payment of pre hearing costs, 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 317.5, was facially unconstitutional because it violated the due process of law rights of the chiropractor ordered to pay those costs. The due process of law violation alleged was that the prospect of having to pay such costs would discourage chiropractors from requesting hearings when facing discipline charges brought by the Board. The California Supreme court rejected this claim, held that the regulation is not unconstitutional on its face, and did not violate due process of law [Zuckerman v. State Board of Chiropractic Examiners (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 32, 46-48, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701, 53 P.3d 119] . The Court analyzed the due process claim based on the three factors set forth in the US Supreme Court decision in Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed. 2d 18 , and concluded that the discretionary nature of the authority to award costs, and the availability of judicial review to challenge specific costs orders, reduced the risk of error for such orders, and satisfied due process of law requirements [Zuckerman v. State Board of Chiropractic Examiners (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 32, 44-46, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701, 53 P.3d 119] . The Supreme Court noted that the provisions of the regulations were similar to Bus & Prof. Code § 125.3, and that the Chiropractic Examiners Board had been added to the list of agencies who had the authority to recover similar costs under Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3, but that statutory amendment occurred after the order in the Zuckerman case was entered. Therefore, the decision did not address the constitutionality of Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3 [Zuckerman v. State Board of Chiropractic Examiners (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 32, 37-38, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 701, 53 P.3d 119] .

Gov. Code § 800 authorizes awards of attorneys fees to complaining parties in civil actions to appeal or review awards, findings, or determinations of administrative proceedings when those administrative proceedings determinations were the result of arbitrary or capricious action by public entities or officers acting in their official capacity. The complaining party must prevail in the civil action, and can recover reasonable attorneys fees at the rate of $100 per hour up to $7,500 in total fees [Gov. Code § 800; Halaco Engineering Co. v. South Central Coast Regional Com. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 52, 227 Cal. Rptr. 667, 720 P.2d 15 ; Kistler v. Redwoods Community College Dist. (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1326, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 417] . Attorneys fees may not be awarded under Gov. Code § 800 to a petitioner whose driver's license was suspended, when petitioner challenged a letter from a DMV driver safety officer stating that the petitioner's suspension could not be set aside; such a letter is not a "determination of an administrative proceeding" that is a necessary prerequisite to recovery under that statute [Gustafson v. Zolin (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1361, 1363, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 645] . Attorneys fees may not be awarded under Gov. Code § 800 against the Medical Board of California for asserting a position on appeal that raised a question of first impression. Even though the Board lost as to the argument that it made on appeal, the argument was not wholly without merit, and it was not made arbitrarily or in bad faith [Gilliland v. Medical Board of California (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 208, 220-221, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 863] . Attorney's fees may be awarded against a school district under Gov. Code § 800 when the school district engaged in arbitrary and capricious actions by failing to provide the superior court with any defense or rationale for its actions [Reis v. Biggs Uni. Sch. Dist. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 809, 822-824, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 393 (court upheld $7,500 attorney fees award)].

The California Court of Appeal held that attorneys fees (in the amount of $6,334) were properly awarded under Gov. Code § 800 to a father of a high school student who successfully challenged the school district's decision that prevented the high school student form participating in high school athletics [Zuehlsdorf. v. Simi Valley Unified School District (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 249, 257-258, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 467] . The daughter was reinstated into the athletics program after the superior court granted a temporary restraining order and a preliminary injunction enjoining the school district from prohibiting the students athletic participation. The superior court found that the denial of athletic participation by the school district was arbitrary and capricious within the meaning of Gov. Code § 800 [Zuehlsdorf. v. Simi Valley Unified School District (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 249, 254-255, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 467] . The superior court denied an application by the father for a permanent injunction because of mootness in that the student had completed the athletic season, and there was no need to further enjoin the school district. The Court of Appeal upheld the fee award concluding that there was an adequate factual finding that the school district acted arbitrarily and capriciously in denying athletic participation [Zuehlsdorf. v. Simi Valley Unified School District (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 249, 255-256, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 467] , and that the father was a prevailing party under Gov. Code Section 800 notwithstanding the denial of the permanent injunction on the grounds of mootness, because the father achieved his litigation objectives, getting his daughter reinstated into the athletic program at her high school [Zuehlsdorf. v. Simi Valley Unified School District (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 249, 256-257, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 467] .

Bus. & Prof. Code § 125.3 authorizes the Medical Board of California to recover investigative costs and attorneys fees incurred in a license revocation proceeding from the physician whose medical license was revoked in that proceeding [Schneider v. Medical Board of California (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 351 ; see also Oranen v. State Board of Chiropractic Examiners (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 258, 261-263, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 287 (upholding decision by State Board of Chiropractic Examiners ordering a chiropractor to pay reasonable investigative and enforcement costs of a proceeding which led to revocation of the chiropractor's license)]. The Fair Employment and Housing Commission also has the statutory authority to award to a prevailing party, other than the state, reasonable attorneys fees and costs against any party other than the state, including expert witness fees [Gov. Code § 12987(a)(3)].

Attorney's fees under Labor Code § 98.2 were properly awarded against an employer who appealed an order of the Labor Commissioner to pay wages to an employee and lost the appeal (de novo hearing) in the Superior court. The Supreme Court allowed an award of attorney's fees under the statute notwithstanding that the employee was unable to pay for his own attorney, and the Labor Commissioner represented the employee in the Superior court at the de novo hearing without cost to the employee, because the court interpreted the statutory language "attorneys fees incurred" to include indigents who are not personally obligated to pay fees to their attorneys [Lolley v. Campbell (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 367, 370-371, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 571, 48 P.3d 1128] . Attorneys fees awarded under Labor Code § 98.2 are limited to fees incurred in the trial de novo civil proceeding and do not include fees incurred in the administrative proceeding before the labor commissioner to recover overtime wages [Sampson v. Parking Service 2000 Com, Inc. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 212]. The Third District California Court of Appeal upheld an award $40,000 in attorneys' fees under Labor Code 1194 to an employee who prevailed in a civil lawsuit for unpaid overtime compensation. The civil lawsuit was a Labor Code § 98.2 appeal from an administrative decision. The fees were awarded were for fees incurred in the superior court on the appeal. The court of appeal held that Labor Code § 1194 authorizes fee awards in these circumstances [Eicher v. Advanced Business Integrators, Inc. (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1363, 1378-1380, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 114] .

Attorneys fees awarded by PUC under Pub. Util. Code § 1802, which authorizes awards to utility customers for fees incurred in participating in judicial review proceedings related to PUC decisions, to consumer intervenors properly included $250,000 in fees incurred by a non-profit consumer advocacy organization (TURN) for participation in federal court lawsuit brought by regulated utilities to overturn PUC decisions in which the organization has participated as a consumer advocate [Southern California Edison Co. v. Public Utilities Comm'n of the State of California (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1043-1044, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 441] .

The California Court of Appeal affirmed an order of the California Public Utilities Commission that a nonprofit consumer advocacy organization could not recover attorney's fees under Pub. Util. § 1802 for a court challenge to a settlement of a lawsuit between a regulated electric utility (Southern California Edison) and the California Public Utilities Commission (PUC). The PUC concluded that the challenge was not successful and did not make a substantial contribution to the PUC proceedings. The court also affirmed an order that TURN was not entitled to a multiplier to increase the amounts of the fees awarded for participating in lawsuits related to electrical deregulation. However, the court reversed the order of the PUC requiring payment of outside counsel's compensation at the same rate as inside counsel. The court held that was an abuse of discretion [The Utility Reform Network v. Public Utilities Commission (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 522, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 791].

The California Supreme Court held that attorneys fees awards against public entities under the provisions of the private attorney general fee award statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5] and under the Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) fee award statute [Gov. Code § 12965(b)] can be authorized under the "catalyst" theory without proof of a judicially recognized change in the legal relationship between the parties, such as a judgment on the merits, a consent decree, or a court ordered settlement [Tipton-Whittingham v. City of Los Angeles (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 604, 607-608, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371, 101 P.3d 174] . The question was certified to the California Supreme Court by the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals that was deciding an appeal of a district court opinion that upheld an award of $1.7 million in attorney's fees against the City of Los Angeles based on the two California statutes. The award was made in a class action sex discrimination lawsuit brought by female officers and employees of the Los Angeles Police Department against the department. The plaintiffs sought injunctive relief and damages. The parties conducted settlement negotiations, which lead to a consent decree in federal court that was later revoked. Subsequent settlement discussions led to the LAPD voluntarily making changes in work conditions that responded to the discrimination claims, and that were very similar to the terms of the revoked consent decree. The claims for injunctive relief were dismissed, and later plaintiffs recovered an award of attorneys fees [Tipton-Whittingham v. City of Los Angeles (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 604, 607-608, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371, 101 P.3d 174] . In recognizing the catalyst theory with lawsuits against public entities, the Supreme Court noted the limitation that attorneys fees cannot be awarded when the lawsuit has "merely caused the acceleration of the issuance of government regulations or remedial measures" when that process had started prior to the filing of the lawsuit [Tipton-Whittingham v. City of Los Angeles (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 604]. The California Court of Appeal reversed an award of attorney's fees under the private attorney general statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5] that had been granted based on application of the "catalyst" theory, and remanded for reconsideration based on the limitations placed on that theory in the California Supreme Court decision in Graham v. Daimler Chrysler Corp. (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 553, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 331, 101 P. 3d 140 , decided at the same time as the California Supreme Court decision in Tipton-Whittingham v. City of Los Angeles (2004) 34 Cal. 4th 604, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371, 101 P. 3d 174 , both of which accepted the catalyst theory, but set limits on its application [Godinez v. Schwarzenegger (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 73, 77-78, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 270 , 33 Cal. Rpt. 3d 270 (1.9 million dollar fee award against the State of California based on catalyst theory)].

The California Court of Appeal held that a nonprofit corporation, the Marine Forests Society, could not recover appellate attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 because it was not a prevailing party as to the claims for which it sought attorney's fees. The corporation sought injunctive relief against the California Coastal Commission to prohibit the commission from commencing cease and desist proceedings against the corporation's experimental manmade reef on the ocean floor. The corporation was successful in challenging the legislative appointment authority for the Commissioners of the California Coastal Commission. However, its successful litigation related to appointment did not change the behavior of the commission, only the legislature's behavior, and thus neither the judicially sanctioned relief nor the catalyst theory are applicable (citing the Graham decision), and the corporation was not a prevailing party (successful litigant) under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 [Marine Forests Society v. California Coastal Commission (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 867, 869-871, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 32].

The California Supreme Court held that the catalyst theory requirement that the party seeking attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 make a reasonable attempt to settle the dispute with defendant prior to litigation did not apply to recovery of fees in cases that did not rely on the catalyst theory. In non-catalyst theory cases, the reasonable attempt factor would be considered as part of the court's equitable discretion in determining whether the necessity and financial burden of private enforcement requirement for fee recovery under Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 was satisfied, but it would not be a requirement for fee recovery [Vasquez v. State of California (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 243, 247-249, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 466, 195 P.3d 1049].

Attorneys fees that are awarded under Gov. Code § 12965, which awards prevailing parties, other than public agencies or officials, reasonable attorneys fees in court litigation under The California Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) [Gov. Code § 12900 et seq.], belong to the attorneys who earned those fees when there is no enforceable contractual agreement that decides who is entitled to those attorneys fees [Flannery v. Prentice (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 572, 575-577, 110 Cal. Rptr. 2d 809, 28 P.3d 860] .

The California Court of Appeal upheld an award of $39,472.30 in trial related attorney's fees under Gov. Code § 12965 in favor of a city and against a former city employee who brought a frivolous lawsuit claiming racial discrimination under the FEHA statute. The court held that while the trial court that ordered the fee award has the responsibility to consider the losing parties' financial status, the losing party in this case did not offer any evidence of financial or income information that would support a lowered fee award. Therefore, the fee order was not an abuse of discretion. The court of appeal denied the city appellate attorney's fees under Gov. Code § 12965 because the former employee's appeal was not frivolous as to the issue of whether the fee awarding court has to consider the losing parties ability to pay [Villanueva v. City of Colton (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 1188, 1202-1204, 73 Cal. Rptr. 3d 343].

The California Court of Appeal held that a taxpayer, who successfully challenged the assessment by the State Board of Equalization (SBE) of past sale taxes due plus interest, and received a refund equal to 90 percent of the past due taxes plus interest, was not entitled to recovery of attorney's fees and costs under the provisions of Rev. and Tax Code § 7156 because the SBE's legal positions related to the assessments had enough reasonable basis so that the taxpayer could not satisfy the requirement that the agency position "was not substantially justified" [Agnew v. State Bd. of Equalization (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 899, 910-911, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 464] . However, the taxpayer was entitled to recover costs and expert witness fees under Code Civ. Proc §§ 998, 1028, and 1032, as the taxpayer substantially prevailed in his challenge to the assessment, and the provisions of Rev & Tax Code § 7156 are not the exclusive means for a costs recovery by a prevailing litigant [Agnew v. State Bd. of Equalization (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 899, 914-915, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 464] .

The California Supreme Court held that political advocacy groups (e.g., the California Business Council) who unsuccessfully defended the constitutionality of state statutes that granted improper preferences based on race or gender, were not "opposing parties" for purposes of the California private attorney general statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5], and therefore could not be held liable for attorney's fees awarded to the successful prevailing plaintiff. Advocacy groups participated in the litigation initially as amicus curiae, but later intervened as real parties in interest, and defended the statutes constitutionality on the merits. This holding was supported by the advocacy group's political or ideological interest in the litigation, which differentiated that group from the normal defendant in litigation that had a direct interest in litigation, or has duty to defend the underlying statute. Furthermore, a contrary holding would discourage parties from participating in litigation as amicus curiae [Connerly v. State Personnel Bd. (2006) 37 Cal. 4th 1169, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 788, 797-799, 129 P.3d 1] .

The California Court of Appeal reversed an award of attorney's fees under the Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) fee award statute [Gov. Code § 12965(b)] and held that the trial court judge had committed an abuse of discretion in making the fee award [Horsford v. Board of Trs. of Cal. State Univ. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 359, 366, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 644] . The trial court abused its discretion by completely rejecting the time records submitted by the attorneys seeking fees, in not using the attorney's time records as the initial basis for the lodestar determination (reasonable hours times a reasonable hourly rate), in failing to consider a higher hourly rate for an out of town attorney, in failing to consider relevant factors for awarding enhancement multipliers to the lodestar fee award, in relying on the public entity status of the defendant to deny any enhancement multiplier, and in requiring the attorneys to obtain full compensation form their clients under the terms of the contingency fee agreement [Horsford v. Board of Trs. of Cal. State Univ. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 359, 397-399, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 644] .

[10] Hearing Costs

The California Supreme Court held that a statutory cost sharing provision [Educ. Code § 44944] which required a teacher who lost a suspension or dismissal hearing to pay one half of the costs of the administrative law judge who heard the case violated due process of law [California Teachers Assn v. State of Cal. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 327, 337, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 425, 975 P. 2d 622] . The California Court of Appeal held that a provision in a memorandum of understanding agreement (between a city and the public employees association) which required that an employee who sought to challenge their termination from public employment had to share equally in the cost of paying a hearing officer to hear the employee's appeal from a job termination violated the employee's due process of law right to a hearing, and this right could not be waived [Florio v. City of Ontario (2005) 130 Cal. App 4th 1462, 1465-1467, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 841] . However, the California Court of Appeal rejected an argument that the financial interest bias rule codified in the Haas case was violated by an award of $1.8 million in pre-hearing costs related to disciplinary proceedings against an accounting firm. The Court held that the Board did not have an improper pecuniary interest in the outcome of the discipline proceedings. The award was paid to the Board of Accountancy to reimburse the Board for extensive costs incurred in investigating and preparing for hearing a discipline case against the accounting firm. The Board did not have an improper pecuniary interest because the cost award was authorized and regulated by statute, Bus. & Prof. Code § 5107, and this statute protected the Board from improper influences related to the cost award. This is because the cost award was made by the administrative law judge (ALJ) who heard the case, and that ALJ did not have a financial interest in the cost award that he or she assessed. The Board has the authority to decrease or eliminate the award, or to affirm the award, but not to increase the cost award [McBride v. California Board of Accountancy (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 518, 525-527, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 287] .

[11] Restitution Orders

License holders that are regulated by the Department of Motor Vehicles under Veh. Code § 11703.2 can be required to provide restitution for financial losses or damages suffered by a person as a condition of the issuance of a license. Restitution orders can be issued by administrative law judges as part of an adjudicatory decision. Failure to pay money owed under a restitution order provides separate grounds for the DMV to not issue a license [Veh. Code § 11703.2]. Specifically, a decision rendered against a licensee under Article 1 (commencing with Section 11700) of Chapter 4 of Division 5 of the Vehicle Code may include an order of restitution for any financial loss or damage found to have been suffered by a person in the case [Gov. Code § 11519.1(a)]. Furthermore, the failure to make the restitution in accordance with the terms of the decision is separate grounds for the Department of Motor Vehicles to refuse to issue a license under Article 1 (commencing with Section 11700) of Chapter 4 of Division 5 of the Vehicle Code, and constitutes a violation of the terms of any applicable probationary order in the decision [Gov. Code § 11519.1(b)]. Finally, nothing in this section is intended to limit or restrict actions, remedies, or procedures otherwise available to an aggrieved party pursuant to any other provision of law [Gov. Code § 11519.1(c)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicensesHealthcare LawBusiness Administration & OrganizationLicensesRevocation & SuspensionLegal EthicsSanctionsDisbarmentsReal Property LawBrokersDiscipline, Licensing & Regulation

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Effective Date and Consequences of Agency Decision

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.36

§ 473G.36 Reinstatement of Licenses

[1] Petition

Under the APA, a person whose license has been suspended or revoked [see § 473G.35[2]] may petition the agency for reinstatement or reduction of penalty [Gov. Code § 11522]. The APA provisions do not apply, however, if the agency is required by statute to comply with different procedures for reinstatement or reduction of penalty [Gov. Code § 11522]. Under the APA, the licensee cannot file the petition until one year has elapsed from either the effective date of the decision revoking or suspending the license, or the denial of a similar petition [Gov. Code § 11522]. Although the APA does not prescribe the form and contents of a petition, counsel should check for specific requirements in the statutes governing the particular agencies. For an example of a petition for reinstatement, see § 473G.71.

[2] Proceedings After Petition Is Filed

An agency must notify the attorney general of the filing of a reinstatement or reduction petition [Gov. Code § 11522]. Both the petitioner and the attorney general must be given the opportunity to present either oral or written argument before the agency itself [Gov. Code § 11522]. The burden is on the petitioner to prove that he or she has been rehabilitated and is entitled to have his or her license restored [Housman v. Board of Medical Examiners (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 308, 312, 190 P.2d 653 ; see Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings , for a discussion of the burden of proof].

[3] Decision

The agency itself must decide the petition. It must state the reasons for its decision granting or denying the petition, and must specify any terms and conditions that it reasonably deems appropriate to impose as a condition of reinstatement [Gov. Code § 11522]. A statement of reasons (1) allows a reviewing court to determine why an agency made its decision, and thus to ascertain whether substantial evidence exists to support that decision, and (2) advises the rejected petitioner for reinstatement of his or her deficiencies, so that he or she may correct them [Crandell v. Fox (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 760, 765, 150 Cal. Rptr. 426] . If the agency fails to specify its reasons for granting or denying a petition, the court will reverse and remand the decision. For example, in Crandell v. Fox (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 760, 150 Cal.

Rptr. 426 , the Court of Appeal held that the agency's statement that the petitioner had failed to demonstrate to its satisfaction that he had undergone sufficient rehabilitation to warrant reinstatement of his license was insufficient [Crandell v. Fox (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 760, 764, 150 Cal. Rptr. 426 (petition to reinstate real estate license)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsContentsAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewSubstantial EvidenceEvidenceProcedural ConsiderationsBurdens of ProofGeneral OverviewGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsLicenses

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Effective Date and Consequences of Agency Decision

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473G.37-473G.39

[Reserved]

§§ 473G.37[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.40

§ 473G.40 Related Matthew Bender Publications

For forms for use in drafting memoranda in judicial proceedings to review a public agency decision, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law (Matthew Bender).

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.41

§ 473G.41 Federal Constitution

Due process clause. U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.42

§ 473G.42 State Constitution

Due process clause. Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.43

§ 473G.43 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

Accusation. Gov. Code § 11503

Administrative adjudication bill of rights. Gov. Code §§ 11425.10-11425.60

Administrative Law Judges. Gov. Code § 11502

Affidavits. Gov. Code § 11514

Agency decisional authority. Gov. Code § 11440.10

Agencies to which act applies. Gov. Code §§ 11410.10, 11501

Amendment of pleadings. Gov. Code §§ 11507, 11516

Applicability of provisions to statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504.5

Conduct of hearing. Gov. Code § 11512

Consolidation of proceedings. Gov. Code § 11507.3

Contempt. Gov. Code §§ 11455.10-11455.30

Continuances. Gov. Code § 11524

Conversion of proceedings. Gov. Code §§ 11470.10-11470.50

Decision. Gov. Code §§ 11516-11520, 11526

Declaratory decision. Gov. Code §§ 11465.10-11465.70

Definitions of terms. Gov. Code §§ 11405.10-11405.80, 11500

Depositions. Gov. Code § 11511

Discovery. Gov. Code §§ 11507.5-11507.7

Disqualification. Gov. Code §§ 11425.30, 11425.40, 11512

Emergency decision. Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80

Evidence. Gov. Code §§ 11435.10, 11440.40, 11513

Ex parte communications. Gov. Code §§ 11430.10-11430.80

Hearings by electronic means. Gov. Code § 11440.30

Informal hearings. Gov. Code §§ 11445.10-11445.60

Intervention. Gov. Code § 11440.50

Language assistance. Gov. Code §§ 11435.05-11435.65

Judicial review. Gov. Code § 11523

Notice of defense. Gov. Code § 11506

Notice of hearing. Gov. Code § 11509

Oaths. Gov. Code § 11528

Official notice. Gov. Code § 11515

Reconsideration. Gov. Code § 11521

Reporting proceedings. Gov. Code § 11512

Restoration of rights. Gov. Code § 11522

Separate hearings. Gov. Code § 11507.3

Service and notice. Gov. Code § 11440.20

Service of initial pleading. Gov. Code § 11505

Settlement conferences. Gov. Code § 11511.7

Sexual harrassment. Gov. Code § 11440.40

Statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504

Subpoenas. Gov. Code §§ 11450.05-11450.50

Time and place of hearing. Gov. Code § 11508

Waiver of rights. Gov. Code § 11415.40

[2] Related Statutes

Affidavit of good cause as required for subpoena duces tecum. Code Civ. Proc. § 1985

Witness served with subpoena as entitled to demand one day's fees and mileage allowance. Code Civ. Proc. § 1987

Witness fees and mileage allowances. Gov. Code §§ 11191, 68093, 68097.2

Right to have subpoena issued. Gov. Code § 11190

Office of Administrative Hearings. Gov. Code §§ 11370.1-11370.5

Board of supervisors of county as empowered to establish county hearing officer. Gov. Code §§ 27720, 27721

Oaths used in civil proceedings. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2094-2097

Evidentiary effect of plea of nolo contendere. Penal Code § 1016

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law Judges

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.44

§ 473G.44 Decisions

[1] Clerical Mistakes

Agency is empowered to correct clerical mistakes in decision by nunc pro tunc order. Russ v. Smith (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 385, 391, 70 Cal. Rptr. 813

[2] Contested Cases

Statutory requirement that agency members hear evidence does not mean members must listen to witness testify. Cooper v. State Bd. of Medical Examiners (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 242, 246, 217 P.2d 630

Failure to serve copy of proposed decision before adoption of it is not denial of due process. Stoumen v. Munro (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 302, 314, 33 Cal. Rptr. 305

[3] Law of the Case

Agency is prohibited from acting inconsistently with court order once court has passed on question of law in its review of agency action; decision of reviewing court establishes law of the case and binds agency in all further proceedings. George Arakelian Farms, Inc. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 1279, 1291, 265 Cal. Rptr. 162, 783 P.2d 749

[4] Reconsideration Under Administrative Procedure Act

Under Gov. Code § 11521(a), agency is deemed to have acted on petition for reconsideration when it issues formal order; when no formal order issued within 30-day statutory period for granting petition, petition is not acted on within meaning of statute and deemed denied even though agency members cast requisite number of votes to grant petition. Gamm v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 34, 35, 181 Cal. Rptr. 23

OSHA Board has acted on petition for reconsideration within 30-day limit for purpose of retaining jurisdiction when it took petition under submission and stayed administrative law judge's decision. Newbery Electric Corp. v. Occupational Safety & Health Appeals Bd. (1981) 123 Cal. App. 3d 641, 648, 176 Cal. Rptr. 734

Agency loses jurisdiction to reconsider if it makes decision effective on delivery. Moran v. Board of Medical Examiners (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 301, 304, 196 P.2d 20

Stay of decision to allow reconsideration is required to be actually ordered. Koehn v. State Board of Equalization (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 109, 113, 333 P.2d 125

[5] Rehearing

Rehearing is not essential to due process. Whitley v. Superior Court (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 75, 81, 113 P.2d 449

Agency is authorized to reconsider without rehearing where it has continuing jurisdiction. Olive Proration etc. Com. v. Agri. etc. Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 204, 209, 109 P.2d 918

Power to reconsider is distinguishable from power to reopen case. Lindell Co. v. Board of Permit Appeals (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 303, 316-317, 144 P.2d 4

Power to hold rehearing is not inherent. Heap v. City of Los Angeles (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 405, 407, 57 P.2d 1323

Second hearing is not rehearing but original hearing where first hearing void; power to hold such second hearing is inherent. Ferdig v. State Personnel Bd. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 96, 108, 77 Cal. Rptr. 224, 453 P.2d 728 ; Aylward v. State Bd. etc. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 833, 839, 192 P.2d 929

Statement of ground to support request for rehearing is not required in absence of statutory requirement. Argonaut Ins. Exchange v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1958) 49 Cal. 2d 706, 711, 321 P.2d 460

Agency is principal judge of cause for hearing where rehearing may be had for good cause. Clendaniel v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 659, 661-662, 111 P.2d 314

Good cause for rehearing is cause, unknown to agency at time of original decision, rendering decision wrong or unfair. Merritt-Chapman & Scott Corp. v. Ind. A.C. (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 314, 316, 57 P.2d 501

Agency is not empowered to give rehearing simply because it later concluded original decision was wrong. Pullman Co. v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 379, 388, 170 P.2d 10 ; Merritt-Chapman & Scott Corp. v. Ind. A.C. (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 314, 316, 57 P.2d 501

Discovery of new evidence is cause for rehearing only if new evidence makes different result likely. Clendaniel v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 659, 661-662, 111 P.2d 314 ; Cahill v. E.B. & A.L. Stone Co. (1914) 167 Cal. 126, 135, 138 P. 712 ; Daggs v. Personnel Commission (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 925, 929, 82 Cal. Rptr. 157

Necessity to raise all possible grounds for rehearing in order to exhaust administrative remedies. People v. West Publishing Co. (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 80, 88, 216 P.2d 441 ; Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 295, 109 P.2d 942

Agency is required to give rehearing on timely application where cause exists. Helmick v. Industrial Acci. Com.

(1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 651, 655-656, 116 P.2d 658

Agency is not required to consider second or subsequent petition for rehearing. Goodrich v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 604, 611, 140 P.2d 405 .

Rehearing is required to proceed in manner of original hearing. Conti v. Board of Civil Service Commissioners (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 351, 363, 82 Cal. Rptr. 337, 461 P.2d 617

[6] Res Judicata and Collateral Estoppel

Res judicata is not applicable if issue of law or fact essential to adjudication of administrative claim has been reserved for future determination, or if the administrative agency has decided that one party should have relief but the amount of the damages, or the form or scope of other relief, remains to be determined. George Arakelian Farms, Inc. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 1279, 1290-1291, 265 Cal. Rptr. 162, 783 P.2d 749

Application of res judicata rules is more flexibly applied to administrative orders than to judicial orders. George Arakelian Farms, Inc. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 1279, 1290, 265 Cal. Rptr. 162, 783 P.2d 749

Collateral estoppel is applicable to final adjudication of administrative agency of statutory creation so as to preclude relitigation of same issues in subsequent case when: (1) administrative agency acted in judicial capacity, (2) it resolved disputed issues properly before it, and (3) all parties were provided with opportunity to fully and fairly litigate their claims. People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 479, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321 ; Carmel Valley Fire Protection Dist. v. State of California (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 521, 534-535, 234 Cal. Rptr. 795

Finality for purposes of administrative collateral estoppel is two-step process in which: (1) decision must be final with respect to action by administrative agency, and (2) decision must have conclusive effect. Long Beach Unified Sch. Dist. v. State of California (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 155, 168-169, 275 Cal. Rptr. 449

Decision attains requisite administrative finality for collateral estoppel purposes when agency has exhausted its jurisdiction and possesses no further power to reconsider or rehear claim. Long Beach Unified Sch. Dist. v. State of California (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 155, 169, 275 Cal. Rptr. 449

Decision attains requisite conclusiveness for collateral estoppel purposes when decision is free from direct attack. Long Beach Unified Witkin Sch. Dist. v. State of California (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 155, 169, 275 Cal. Rptr. 449

Determination of particular issue in administrative proceeding does not preclude relitigation of same issue in subsequent proceeding if, in interim period between two administrative proceedings, decision by appellate court has created new law that would have affected determination of issue in first administrative proceeding. County of Los Angeles v. Department of Industrial Relations (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1538, 1544, 263 Cal. Rptr. 351

Administrative adjudication is sometimes accorded collateral estoppel effect in subsequent judicial proceeding; in absence of statutory rule, issue of availability of collateral estoppel as to particular kinds of administrative adjudications is ascertained as matter of common law. Mahon v. Safeco Title Ins. Co. (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 616, 621, 245 Cal. Rptr. 103

Administrative body's order for license revocation is properly given effect in later proceeding because meaningful judicial review was available by petition for writ of mandate. Miller v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 1371, 1378, 238 Cal. Rptr. 915

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsCollateral EstoppelAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsRes JudicataAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityExhaustion of RemediesCivil ProcedureJudgmentsPreclusion & Effect of JudgmentsLaw of the Case

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.45

§ 473G.45 Text References

Judicial Council of California, Tenth Biennial Report (1944)

California Administrative Agency Practice (Cal CEB 1970)

Witkin, California Evidence, ch. II, Judicial Notice, §§ 80-126; ch. IX, Witnesses, §§ 1806-1892; ch. XI, Introduction of Evidence at Trial, §§ 1906-2000 (3d ed. 1986)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473F.46

§ 473F.46 Internet References

Office of Administrative Hearings. This site includes information and location concerning specific OAH offices; an OAH hearing guide; information concerming Administrative Procedure Act statutes, regulations, and proposed regulations; OAH forms; information concerning alternative dispute resolution procedures; and declaratory decisions. http://www.dgs.ca.gov/oah

NOTE:
On and after July 1, 1998, The OAL is required by Gov. Code § 11340.1(b) to make the full text of the California Code of Regulations, with reference citations and history notes, available on the Internet free of charge.

Office of Administrative Law. This site includes OAL publications; links to OAL statutes and regulations relating to rulemaking; regulations submitted to the OAL for review, and information for contacting or provding input to the OAL regarding rulemaking. http://www.oal.ca.gov

California Home Page. This site includes links to other sites maintained by numerous state agencies. http://www.ca.gov

Department of Consumer Affairs. This site includes links to sites maintained by many state agencies that are under this department, as well as links to agency sites. http://www.dca.ca.gov

California Courts. This site includes general information about state court organization and specific court; text of recently filed slip opinions; court minutes and calendars; text of California Rules of Court; Judicial Council forms and other information promulgated by the Judicial Council; links to sites of most Court of Appeal districts, with text of local appellate rules, forms, and internal operating procedures; links to other sites maintained by local trial courts, state government agencies and organizations, federal courts and federal organizations, and other sources of legal information. http://www.courtinfo.ca.gov

California Legislative Information. This site includes text of constitution, codes, and statutes (including complete text of APA); and information concerning pending legislation. http://www.leginfo.ca.gov

Matthew Bender. This site includes links to Matthew Bender publications and Shepard's citation service. http://www.bender.com

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute ResolutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsCreation & OrganizationGovernmentsLegislationEnactment

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473G.47-473G.49

[Reserved]

§§ 473G.47[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.50

§ 473G.50 Mistake or Clerical Error in Decision

☐ Prepare application for correction of mistake or clerical error [Gov. Code § 11518.5(a); see § 473G.34].

☐ File application within 15 days after service of decision, but not later than effective date of decision [Gov. Code § 11518.5(a); see §§ 473G.31[1], 473G.34].

☐ Give notice to other parties in proceeding [Gov. Code § 11518.5(a); see § 473G.34].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.51

§ 473G.51 Reconsideration of Agency Decision

- ☐ Prepare petition [Gov. Code § 11521; see § 473G.33[2], for a form, see § 473G.70].
- ☐ Prepare affidavit or declaration [Gov. Code § 11521; see § 473G.33[2]].
- ☐ File with agency within applicable time limits [Gov. Code § 11521(a); see § 473G.33[3][a]].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.52

§ 473G.52 Reinstatement or Reduction of Penalty

☐ Prepare petition for reinstatement or reduction of penalty [Gov. Code § 11522; see § 473G.36[1]].

☐ File one year after effective date of decision or denial of a similar petition [Gov. Code § 11522; for a form, see § 473G.71].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.53

§ 473G.53 Judicial Review

☐ Prepare petition for judicial review whether or not reconsideration was sought [Gov. Code § 11523; see § 473G.31[2]].

☐ File within 30 days from last day in which reconsideration can be ordered [Gov. Code § 11523; see Gov. Code § 11521 (earlier date); § 473G.31[4]].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473G.54-473G.69

[Reserved]

§§ 473G.54[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART V. FORMS

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.70

§ 473G.70 Petition for Reconsideration [Gov. Code § 11521]

[1] FORM Petition for Reconsideration [Gov. Code § 11521]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

	)
In the Matter of	)	NO. _____
_____ [name]	)	PETITION FOR RECONSIDERATION
Respondent.	)
	)

_____

Respondent requests that the _____[agency] reconsider its decision in this proceeding, and in support of this request respondent represents:

1. _____ [Here, and in subsequently numbered paragraphs, specify grounds on which reconsideration is sought, e.g., The findings set forth in the decision are not supported by the evidence in that _____ (specify)].

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Respondent

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition for reconsideration in [1], above, is for use by the respondent who wishes the agency to reconsider an adverse decision. For discussion of reconsideration, see § 473G.33.

LexisNexis®

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473G AGENCY ADJUDICATION DECISIONS
PART V. FORMS

41A-473G California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473G.71

§ 473G.71 Petition for Restoration of Rights [Gov. Code § 11522]

[1] FORM Petition for Restoration of Rights [Gov. Code § 11522]

BEFORE THE _____ [agency]

	)
In the Matter of	)	NO. _____
_____ [name]	)	PETITION FOR RESTORATION OF RIGHTS
Respondent.	)
	)

_____

Respondent requests that the _____[agency] _____ [restore respondent's _____ (e.g., license) or reduce the penalty imposed against respondent in this proceeding], and in support of this request respondent represents:

1. One year has elapsed from the _____ [effective date of the decision in this proceeding or date when respondent's last previous request of this nature was denied], which date was _____.

2. _____ [Specify grounds on which agency might restore rights or reduce penalty, e.g., For the past two years respondent has been an active member of Alcoholics Anonymous, has regularly attended meetings of that organization, and has absolutely refrained from consuming any alcoholic beverages whatever, all with the result that respondent has become rehabilitated from his/her previous condition of addiction to alcohol which was the cause for the original disciplinary action of the _____ (agency) against respondent].

Respectfully submitted,

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Respondent

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition for restoration of rights in [1], above, is for use by the respondent where a cause for discipline has been removed or the respondent has become rehabilitated. At least one year must elapse after the effective date of the decision to suspend or revoke the respondent's license before he or she may petition for restoration of his or her rights [Gov. Code § 11522]. For discussion regarding restoration of rights, see § 473G.36.

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 473H.syn

§ 473H.syn Synopsis to Chapter 473H: ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS

§ 473H.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 473H.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Alternative Resolution Procedures

[2] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

[3] Judicial Remedies and Review

[4] Public Administrative Law Generally

[5] Specific Public Agencies

[6] Other Chapters Relating to Public Agencies

§§ 473H.03-473H.09 [Reserved]

§ 473H.10 Governing Law

[1] APA Requirements

[2] Office of Administrative Hearings Regulations Governing Hearing Procedures

[3] Alternative Dispute Resolution Procedures

[a] General Regulations

[b] Mediation Regulations

[c] Arbitration Regulations

[d] Declaratory Decision Regulations

§ 473H.11 Definitions

[1] "Adjudicative Proceeding"

[2] "Agency"

[3] "Agency Head"

[4] "Decision"

[5] "Party"

[6] "Person"

[7] "Presiding Officer"

§ 473H.12 Alternative Dispute Resolution Processes

[1] Referral With Party Consent

[2] Model Regulations

[3] Confidentiality of Communications

§ 473H.13 Informal Hearing Procedure

[1] Legislative Findings

[2] Applicable Proceedings

[3] Notice of Hearing and Objection

[4] Authority of Presiding Officer and Applicable Hearing Procedures

[5] Discretion to Deny or Convert Informal Hearing

[6] Presenting Proof as to Material Facts in Dispute

§ 473H.14 Emergency Decision Procedure

[1] Authority for Emergency Decision Procedure

[2] Regulations Authorizing Emergency Decisions for Temporary, Interim Relief

[3] Requirement of Immediate Danger to Public Health, Safety, or Welfare

[4] Notice and Hearing Requirement

[5] Emergency Decision and Adjudicative Proceeding

[6] Agency Record and Judicial Review

§ 473H.15 Declaratory Decision Procedure

[1] Authority for Declaratory Decision

[2] Application and Issuance of Decision

[3] Notice and Applicable Law

[4] Agency Action

[5] Declaratory Decision

[6] Model Regulations

§ 473H.16 Conversion of Agency Proceedings

[1] Authority of Presiding Officer or Other Agency Official

[2] Conversion Procedures

[a] Appointment of Successor

[b] Record of Original Proceeding

[c] Duties of Official Responsible for New Proceeding

[3] Regulations

§§ 473H.17-473H.19 [Reserved]

§ 473H.20 Federal Constitution

§ 473H.21 State Constitution

§ 473H.22 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

[2] Related Statutes

§ 473H.23 Internet References

§§ 473H.24-473H.29 [Reserved]

§ 473H.30 Alternative Dispute Resolution

[1] Options

[2] Procedure

§ 473H.31 Objection to Informal Hearing Procedure

§ 473H.32 Emergency Decision

§ 473H.33 Declaratory Decision

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473H.01

§ 473H.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA), which became operative July 1, 1997, and which introduce a number of alternative decision making procedures that may be utilized in lieu of a formal agency hearing to resolve a public agency adjudication. These procedures are:

- Alternative dispute resolution by mediation or arbitration [see § 473H.12].
- Informal hearings [see § 473H.13].
- Emergency decisions [see § 473H.14].
- Declaratory decisions [see § 473H.15].
- Conversion of an agency adjudication from one type of proceeding to another proceeding [see § 473H.16].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute Resolution

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473H.02

§ 473H.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Alternative Resolution Procedures

For discussion and forms relating to the alternative resolution procedures discussed in this chapter, applicable to civil actions generally as distinguished from agency actions, see:

- Ch. 30, Using Alternative Dispute Resolution .
- Ch. 31, Mediation .
- Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration .
- Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding
- Ch. 34, Conrtractual Arbitration: Judicial Review .
- Ch. 35, Arbitration and Conciliation of International Commercial Disputes .
- Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration .
- Ch. 37, Judicially Mandated Civil Action Mediation .
- Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief.

[2] Related Coverage of Agency Adjudication

For general discussion and overview of agency adjudication under the Administrative Procedure Act (APA), see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication .

For related discussion and forms providing coverage of the other stages of an agency adjudication under the formal hearing provisions of the APA, see:

- Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication .
- Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications .
- Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications .
- Ch. 473D, Prehearing Preparations in Agency Adjudications .
- Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges .
- Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings .
- Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to licensing agencies, including licensing adjudications, see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies .

[3] Judicial Remedies and Review

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to review by California courts of agency adjudications, see:

- Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions .
- Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions .
- Ch. 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions .
- Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions .

For other related discussion and forms relating to judicial review generally, see:

- Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, through Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review (discussion and forms relating to civil appeals).
- Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of orders by extraordinary writ of mandate or prohibition).
- Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of civil proceedings by extraordinary writ of review).

[4] Public Administrative Law Generally

For related discussion of California public administrative law generally, including discussion of public agency functions and powers (including adjudicative or quasi-judicial powers), and organization generally, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law (for general discussion of judicial power, see §§ 470.12[5]). For detailed discussion of the general procedures imposed in agency proceedings by constitutional due process and related statutory requirements, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies .

For discussion and forms relating to the law governing access to and conduct of meetings by California public agencies, see Ch. 470B, Public Agency Meetings .

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the law governing disclosure of public records under the California Public Records Act [Cal. Gov. Code §§ 6250 et seq.], see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to agency investigations and inspections, see:

- Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies .
- Ch. 471A, Inspections by Public Agencies .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to the legislative or rulemaking functions of California public agencies, including judicial review of these functions, see:

- Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules .
- Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures .
- Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking .

[5] Specific Public Agencies

For related coverage of adjudicative proceedings before particular public agencies, see:

- Ch. 18, Alcoholic Beverage Licenses (discussion and forms relating to licensing proceedings before the department of Alcoholic Beverage Control).
- Ch. 70, Attorney Admission and Ch. 71, Attorney Discipline (discussion and forms relating to licensing and discipline of attorneys and proceedings before the State Bar and the State Bar Court).
- Ch. 92 Automobiles: Drivers' Licenses (discussion and forms relating to drivers' licensing and proceedings before the Department of Motor Vehicles).
- Ch. 104, Building Contracts, § 104.70 et seq. (discussion relating to licensing and discipline of building contractors by the Contractors' State License Board).
- Ch. 118, Civil Service (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the Personnel Board).
- Ch. 209, Dentists (discussion and forms relating to licensing and discipline of dentists and proceedings before the Board of Dental Examiners).
- Ch. 214, Drugs and Pharmacists (discussion and forms relating to licensing and discipline of pharmacists and proceedings before the State Board of Pharmacy).
- Ch. 414, Physicians: Licensing and Discipline (discussion and forms relating to licensing and discipline of physicians and proceedings before the Medical Board of California).
- Ch. 480, Public Utilities (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the Public Utilities Commission).

- Ch. 512, Schools: Certification, Dismissal, and Related Employment Issues (discussion and forms relating to teacher certification and dismissal proceedings before the State Board of Education and local boards).

- Ch. 527, Social Services (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the State Department of Social Service or the State Department of Health Services).

- Ch. 564, Unemployment and Disability Insurance, §§ 564.30 et seq, 564.100 et seq. (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board).

- Ch. 575, Waters , §§ 575.10 et seq., 575.210 et seq. (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the State Water Resources Control Board and local water districts).

- Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation (discussion and forms relating to proceedings before the Division of Workers' Compensation and the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board).

For additional cross references to coverage of other particular public agencies, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law, § 470.02[2].

[6] Other Chapters Relating to Public Agencies

For discussion and forms relating to access to records of a state or local agency under the California Public Records Act (Gov. Code. Code. Code § 6250 et seq.), see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act .

For discussion and forms relating to claims and actions under the California Tort Claims Act (Gov. Code § 810 et seq.), for damages for injuries arising from the tortious conduct of public agencies or their officers and employees, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionArbitrationsGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473H.03-473H.09

[Reserved]

§§ 473H.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473H.10

§ 473H.10 Governing Law

[1] APA Requirements

The following two chapters of the Government Code comprise the administrative adjudication provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA) [Gov. Code §§ 11400.10(a), 11501]:

- Chapter 4.5, Administrative Adjudication: General Provisions (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.), and
- Chapter 5, Administrative Adjudication: Formal Hearings (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.).

For convenience, they are termed hereafter simply as Chapter 4.5 and Chapter 5. Technically, these chapters are not chapters of the APA itself, but are chapters within Part 1 (State Departments and Agencies) of Division 3 (Executive Department) of Title 2 (California State Government) of the Government Code.

Chapter 5 sets out the APA provisions governing formal hearings. These provisions are discussed in detail in Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication through Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions .

Chapter 4.5 sets out provisions which became operative July 1, 1997 [see Gov. Code § 11400.10(a)]. It includes a number of general provisions, such as those governing ex parte communications, language assistance, enforcement, and procedural rights in agency adjudication. These general procedural provisions of Chapter 4.5 are discussed in Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication .

The remaining provisions of Chapter 4.5, relating to alternative adjudication procedures, are the focus of this chapter:

- Alternative dispute resolution (Gov. Code § 11420.10 et seq.).
- Informal hearing (Gov. Code § 11445.10 et seq.).
- Emergency decision (Gov. Code § 11460.10 et seq.).

- Declaratory decision (Gov. Code § 11465.10 et seq.).
- Conversion of proceeding (Gov. Code § 11470.10 et seq.).

The provisions of Chapter 4.5 generally apply to public agency proceedings in which a evidentiary hearing is required by statute or constitutional provision [see Gov. Code § 11410.10 et seq.]. For further discussion of the applicability of Chapter 4.5 provisions, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication .

[2] Office of Administrative Hearings Regulations Governing Hearing Procedures

The Office of Administrative Hearings adopted regulations [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1440 (1997)] to govern hearing procedures in hearings conducted before OAH administrative law judges [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1000 (1998)]. The regulations cover the subjects of general APA hearing procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1046 (1998)], special hearing procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1100-1148 (1997)], alternative dispute resolution procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1200-1292 (1999)], arbitration procedures for state contract act contract claims [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1300-1393 (1997)], and protest arbitration procedures 1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1440 (1998)]. The basic purpose [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1000 (1998)], definitions [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1002 (1998)], and principles of interpretation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1004 (1998)], are set forth in specific regulations. Specific regulations that are applicable to to Ch. 473H, Alternative Agency Adjudications, include informal hearings [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1027 (1998)], and all of the regulations listed above, except for the general hearing procedures regulations.

[3] Alternative Dispute Resolution Procedures

[a] General Regulations

The Office of Administrative Hearings adopted regulations governing alternative dispute resolution procedures in chapter 3, agency alternatives to formal hearings [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1200-1292 (1997)]. The subjects of the general ADR regulations [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1200-1210] include the following:

- Scope of regulations [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1200 (1997)];
- Purpose of regulations [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1202 (1997)];
- Definitions [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1204 (1997)];
- Referral to ADR [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1206 (1997)];
- Standards of conduct for neutrals [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1208 (1997)]; and
- Resumes for neutrals [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1210 (1997)].

[b] Mediation Regulations

The Office of Administrative Hearings adopted regulations governing alternative dispute resolution procedures in chapter 3, agency alternatives to formal hearings [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1200-1292 (1997)]. The subjects of the mediation regulations [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1212-1230] include the following:

- Definitions for Mediation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1212 (1997)];
- Initiating Mediation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1214 (1997)];

- Appointment of Mediator [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1216 (1997)];
- Cost of Mediation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1218 (1997)];
- Date, Time, and Place of Mediation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1220 (1997)];
- Attendance at Mediation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1222 (1997)];
- Statements before Mediation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1224 (1997)];
- Confidentiality [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1226 (1997)];
- Agreements [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1228 (1997)]; and
- Termination of Mediation [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1230 (1997)].

[c] Arbitration Regulations

The Office of Administrative Hearings adopted regulations governing alternative dispute resolution procedures in chapter 3, agency alternatives to formal hearings [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1200-1292 (1997)]. The subjects of the arbitration regulations [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1232-1258] include the following:

- Definitions for Arbitration [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1232 (1997)];
- Agreement to Arbitrate [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1234 (1997)];
- Selection of Arbitrator [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1236 (1997)];
- Costs of Arbitration [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1238 (1997)];
- Timing and Scheduling the Hearing [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1240 (1997)];
- Discovery [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1242 (1997)];
- Conference before Arbitration [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1244 (1997)];
- Statements before Arbitration [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1246 (1997)];
- Attendance at Arbitration [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1248 (1997)];
- Authority of Arbitrators [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1250 (1997)];
- Procedures at Arbitration [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1252 (1997)];
- Defaults [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1254 (1997)];
- Decision [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1256 (1997)]; and
- Proceeding De Novo [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1258 (1997)].

[d] Declaratory Decision Regulations

The Office of Administrative Hearings adopted regulations governing alternative dispute resolution procedures in chapter 3, agency alternatives to formal hearings [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1200-1292 (1997)]. The subjects of the declaratory decision regulations [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1260-1292] include the following:

- Definitions for Declaratory Decisions [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1260 (1997)];
- Scope of Declaratory Decisions [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1262 (1997)];
- Application for Declaratory Decision [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1264 (1997)];
- Initial Agency Review of Application [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1266 (1997)];
- Agency Notice of Application for Declaratory Decision [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1270 (1997)];
- Initial Decision to Consider Application [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1272 (1997)];
- Denial of Application [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1274 (1997)];
- Agency Notice of Declaratory Decision [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1276 (1997)];
- Requests for Notice of Declaratory Decision Proceedings [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1278 (1997)];
- Written Comments to Agency [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1280 (1997)];
- Request to Become a Party or Intervenor [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1282 (1997)];
- Hearings [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1284 (1997)];
- Declaratory Decision Proceeding Record [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1286 (1997)];
- Issuance and Service of a Declaratory Decision [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1288 (1997)];
- Judicial Review of a Declaratory Decision [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1290 (1997)]; and
- Proceeding De Novo [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1290 (1997)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute ResolutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingDue ProcessAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingStatutory Right

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473H.11

§ 473H.11 Definitions

[1] "Adjudicative Proceeding"

"Adjudicative proceeding" is defined to mean an evidentiary hearing for determination of facts pursuant to which an agency formulates and issues a decision [Gov. Code § 11405.20].

[2] "Agency"

"Agency" is defined in Chapter 4.5 to mean a board, bureau, commission, department, division, office, officer or other administrative unit, including the agency head, and one or more members of the agency head or agency employees or other persons directly or indirectly purporting to act on behalf of or under the authority of the agency head. To the extent it purports to exercise authority under Chapter 4.5, an administrative unit otherwise qualifying as an agency shall be treated as a separate agency even if the unit is located within or subordinate to another agency [Gov. Code § 11405.30].

This definition in Gov. Code § 11405.30 is drawn from 1981 Model State APA § 1-102(1) and supplements Gov. Code § 11000 (defining "state agency" generally). The intent of the definition is to subject as many governmental units as possible to this chapter. The definition explicitly includes the agency head and those others who act for an agency, so as to effect the broadest possible coverage. The definition also would include a committee or council. The last sentence of this definition is in part derived from Federal APA § 551(1) (1988), treating as an agency "each authority of the Government of the United States, whether or not it is within or subject to review by another agency." A similar provision in Gov. Code § 11405.30 is used to avoid difficulty in ascertaining which is the agency in a situation where an administrative unit is within or subject to the jurisdiction of another administrative unit. An administrative unit of an agency that has no authority to issue decisions or take other action on behalf of an agency is not an "agency" within the meaning of this section [25 Cal.L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 137-138 (1995)].

[3] "Agency Head"

"Agency head" is defined in Chapter 4.5 to mean a person or body in which the ultimate legal authority of an agency is vested, and includes a person or body to which the power to act is delegated pursuant to authority to delegate the agency's power to hear and decide [Gov. Code § 11405.40]. The first part of this definition is taken from Model State APA § 1-102(3). The definition of agency head is included to differentiate for some purposes between the agency as an organic entity that includes all of its employees, and those particular persons in which the final legal authority over its operations is vested. The last part of the definition is drawn from Gov. Code § 11500(a) (defining "agency" for purposes of Chapter 5), relating to use of the term, "agency itself," to refer to a nondelegable power to act. An agency may delegate review authority [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 138 (1995)].

[4] "Decision"

"Decision" is defined in Chapter 4.5 to mean an agency action of specific application that determines a legal right, duty, privilege, immunity or other legal interest of a particular person [Gov. Code § 11405.50(a)]. The definition of decision in this statute does not limit the precedential effect of a decision under Gov. Code § 11425.60 [Gov. Code § 11405.50(b)(1)], nor does it limit the authority of an agency to make a declaratory decision under Gov. Code § 11465.10 et seq. [Gov. Code § 11405.50(b)(2)].

The definition of decision in Gov. Code § 11405.50(a) is taken form the 1981 Model State APA § 1-102(5). The definition makes clear that it includes only legal determinations made by an agency that are of specific applicability because they are addressed to particular or named persons. More than one identified person may be the subject of a decision. "Person" includes legal entity and governmental subdivision under Gov. Code § 11405.70 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 138-139 (1995)].

A decision includes every agency action that determines any of the legal rights, duties, privileges, or immunities of a specific, identified individual or individuals. In contrast, a regulation, as defined under Gov. Code § 11342.600, is an agency action of general application, applicable to all members of a described class. The decision definition statute should not be interpreted to expand the types of cases in which an adjudicative proceeding is required. Under Gov. Code § 11410.10, an adjudicative proceeding is required under Chapter 4.5 only when another statute or the constitution requires such a proceeding [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 139 (1995)].

Consistent with the definition of "decision" in this statute, rate making and licensing determinations of specific application, addressed to named or particular parties such as a certain power company or a specific licensee, are decisions subject to Chapter 4.5. However, ratemaking and licensing actions of general application, addressed to all members of a described class of providers or licensees, are regulations as defined in Gov. Code § 11342 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 139 (1995)].

Furthermore, some decisions may have precedential effect under Gov. Code § 11425.60 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 139 (1995)].

[5] "Party"

"Party" is defined in Chapter 4.5 to include the agency that is taking action, the person to which the agency action is directed, and any other person named as a party or allowed to appear or intervene in the proceeding. If the agency that is taking action and the agency that is conducting the adjudicative proceeding are separate proceedings, the agency that is taking action is a party and the agency that is conducting the adjudicative proceeding is not a party [Gov. Code § 11405.60].

The first sentence of the definition of party in Gov. Code § 11405.60 is taken from Gov. Code § 11500(b) (see below) and 1981 Model State APA § 1-102(6). The second sentence is new [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 139 (1995)]. Person is defined in Gov. Code § 11405.70, see [g], below, and includes legal entity and governmental subdivisions. Under this definition, if an officer or employee of an agency appears in an official capacity, the agency and not the person is the party. A staff division authorized to act on behalf of the agency may be a party under Chapter 4.5 because of the definition of agency [see [c], above] under Gov Code § 11405.30 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 139-140 (1995)]. The definition of party in this statute does not address the question of whether a person is entitled to judicial review. Standing to seek judicial review is dealt with in other law [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 140 (1995)].

[6] "Person"

"Person" is defined for purposes of Chapter 4.5 to include an individual, partnership, corporation, governmental subdivision or unit of a governmental subdivision, or public or private organization or entity of any character [Gov. Code § 11405.70].

This definition supplements the definition of person in Gov. Code § 17. This definition is drawn from 1981 Model State APA, § 1-102(8), and includes the trustee of a trust or other fiduciary. This definition is broader than the Gov. Code § 17 definition of person in that it also applies to a governmental subdivision or unit. This aspect of the definition would include an agency other than the agency against which rights under this chapter are asserted by the person. Including these agencies and units of government insures, therefore, that other agencies or other governmental bodies can, for example, apply to an agency for a decision, and will be accorded all the other rights that a person has under Chapter 4.5 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 140 (1995)].

[7] "Presiding Officer"

"Presiding officer" is defined for purposes of Chapter 4.5 to mean the agency head, member of the agency head, administrative law judge, hearing officer, or other person who presides in an adjudicative proceeding [Gov. Code § 11405.80]. This section is intended for drafting convenience [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 140 (1995)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsStare DecisisAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingDue ProcessAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsRight to HearingStatutory RightAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473H.12

§ 473H.12 Alternative Dispute Resolution Processes

[1] Referral With Party Consent

An agency, with the consent of all the parties, may refer a dispute that is the subject of an adjudicative proceeding for resolution by any of the following means [Gov. Code § 11420.10(a)]:

- Mediation by a neutral mediator [Gov. Code § 11420.10(a)(1)]. Mediators may use any mediation technique under Gov. Code § 11420.10(a) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 151 (1995)]. For discussion of mediation techniques generally, see Ch. 32, Mediation (in vol. 4 on Alternative Dispute Resolution).

- Binding arbitration by a neutral arbitrator. An award in a binding arbitration is subject to judicial review in the same manner as provided under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1285-1287.6 [Gov. Code § 11420.10(a)(2)]. Gov. Code § 11420.10(a)(2) authorizes delegation of the agency's binding authority to decide, with the consent of all parties [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 151 (1995)]. For discussion of binding arbitration and their judicial review generally, see Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration , et seq. (in vol. 4 on Alternative Dispute Resolution).

- Nonbinding arbitration by a neutral arbitrator. The arbitrator's decision in a nonbinding arbitration is final unless, within 30 days after the arbitrator delivers the award to the agency head, a party requests that the agency conduct a de novo adjudicative proceeding. If the decision in the de novo proceeding is not more favorable to the party electing the de novo proceeding, the party shall pay the costs and fees specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 insofar as applicable in the adjudicative proceeding [Gov. Code § 11420.10(a)(3)]. Gov. Code § 11420.10(a)(3) parallels the procedure applicable to judicial arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.20 et seq. The costs and fees specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.21 for a civil proceeding may not all be applicable in an adjudicative proceeding, but Gov. Code § 11420.10(a)(3) requires such costs and fees to be assessed to the extent they are applicable [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 151 (1995)]. For discussion of the parallel procedure of judicial arbitration, see Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration (in vol. 4 on Alternative Dispute Resolution).

If another statute requires mediation or arbitration in a particular adjudicative proceeding, that statute prevails over the foregoing provisions of Gov. Code § 11420.10(a) [Gov. Code § 11420.10(b)]. Gov. Code § 11420.10(b) recognizes that other statutes, applicable to specific agencies or specific agency proceedings, may require alternative dispute resolution techniques [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 151 (1995)].

The provisions of Gov. Code § 11420.10(a) do not apply to the extent that a particular agency, by regulation, provides it is not applicable in a proceeding of that agency [Gov. Code § 11420.10(c)]. In other words, if there is no statute requiring the agency to use mediation or arbitration, this statute applies unless the agency makes it inapplicable by regulation under Gov. Code § 11420.10(c) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 151 (1995)].

[2] Model Regulations

The Office of Administrative Hearings (OAH) is required to adopt and promulgate model regulations for alternative dispute resolution under this law. The model regulations govern alternative dispute resolution by an agency under this law, except to the extent that the agency by regulation provides inconsistent rules or provides that the model regulations are not applicable in a proceeding of the agency [Gov. Code § 11420.20(a)]. The model regulations must include provisions for selection and compensation of a mediator or arbitrator, qualifications of a mediator or arbitrator, and confidentiality of the mediation or arbitration proceeding [Gov. Code § 11420.20(b)].

Gov. Code § 11420.20 authorizes regulations to govern the details of alternative dispute resolution proceedings. In addition to the matters listed in Gov. Code § 11420.20(b), the regulations may address other issues such as cost allocation, discovery, and enforcement and review of alternative dispute resolution. This statute does not require each agency to adopt regulations. The model regulations developed by the OAH will automatically govern mediation or arbitration for an agency, unless the agency provides otherwise. The agency may choose to preclude mediation or arbitration altogether [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 152 (1995)].

The Office of Administrative Hearings adopted regulations [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1000-1440 (1997)] to govern hearing procedures in hearings conducted before OAH administrative law judges [1 Cal. Code Reg. § 1000 (1998)]. The regulations include alternative dispute resolution procedures [1 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1200-1292 (1999)]. Specific regulations governing ADR are discussed in § 473H.10[3].

[3] Confidentiality of Communications

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a communication made in alternative dispute resolution under this law is protected to the following extent [Gov. Code § 11420.30]:

- Anything said, any admission made, and any document prepared in the course of, or pursuant to, mediation under this law is a confidential communication, and a party to the mediation has a privilege to refuse to disclose and to prevent another from disclosing the communication, whether in an adjudicative proceeding, civil action, or other proceeding. This subdivision does not limit the admissibility of evidence if all parties to the proceeding consent [Gov. Code § 11420.30(a)]. This provision is analogous to Evid. Code § 1119(a) (mediation) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 153 (1995)].

- No reference to nonbinding arbitration proceedings, a decision of the arbitrator that is rejected by a party's request for a de novo adjudicative proceeding, the evidence produced, or any other aspect of the arbitration may be made in an adjudicative proceeding or civil action, whether as affirmative evidence, by way of impeachment, or for any other purpose [Gov. Code § 11420.30(b)]. This provision is taken from Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.25 (arbitration) and former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1616(c) (arbitration) [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., 3.826]; it protects confidentiality of a proposed decision in nonbinding arbitration that is rejected by a party. It does not protect a decision accepted by the parties in a nonbinding arbitration, nor does it protect an award in a binding arbitration [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 153 (1995); see also Gov. Code § 11425.20 (open hearings)].

- No mediator or arbitrator is competent to testify in a subsequent administrative or civil proceeding as to any statement, conduct, decision, or order occurring at, or in conjunction with, the alternative dispute resolution [Gov. Code § 11420.30(c)]. This provision derives from Evid. Code § 703.5 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 153 (1995)].

- Evidence otherwise admissible outside of alternative dispute resolution under this law is not inadmissible or protected from disclosure solely by reason of its introduction or use in alternative dispute resolution under thus law [Gov. Code § 11420.30(d)].

The policy of Gov. Code § 11420.30 is not to restrict access to information but to encourage dispute resolution [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 153 (1995)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute ResolutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsEvidenceAdmissibilityPrivilege

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473H.13

§ 473H.13 Informal Hearing Procedure

[1] Legislative Findings

An agency may conduct an adjudication under the informal hearing procedures of Gov. Code §§ 11445.10-11445.60, subject to any limitations set out in those provisions [Gov. Code § 11445.10(a)].

Legislative findings concerning informal hearing are [Gov. Code § 11445.10(b)]:

- The informal hearing procedure is intended to satisfy due process and public policy requirements in a manner that is simpler and more expeditious than hearing procedures otherwise required by statute, for use in appropriate circumstances [Gov. Code § 11445.10(b)(1)].

- The informal hearing procedure provides a forum in the nature of a conference in which a party has an opportunity to be heard by the presiding officer [Gov. Code § 11445.10(b)(2)].

- The informal hearing procedure provides a forum that may accommodate a hearing where by regulation or statute a member of the public may participate without appearing or intervening as a party [Gov. Code § 11445.10(b)(3)].

Gov. Code § 11445.10 states the policy that underlies the informal hearing procedure. The circumstances where the simplified procedure is appropriate are provided in Gov. Code § 11445.20 (when informal hearing may be used). The simplified procedures are outlined in Gov. Code § 11445.40 (procedure for informal hearing). Basic due process and public policy protections of the administrative adjudication bill of rights are preserved in the informal hearing under Gov. Code §§ 11445.40(a) (procedure for informal hearing) and 11425.10 (administrative adjudication bill of rights) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 183-184 (1995)].

Thus, for example, the presiding officer must be free of bias, prejudice, and interest; the presiding officer must be neutral, the adjudicative function being separated from the investigative, prosecutorial, and advocacy functions within the agency; the hearing must be open to public observation; the agency must make language assistance available; ex parte communications are restricted; the decision must be in writing, be based on the record, and include a statement of the factual and legal basis of the decision; and the agency must designate and index significant decisions as precedents [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 184 (1995)].

Reference in Gov. Code § 11445.10 et seq. to the "presiding officer" is not intended to imply unnecessary formality in the proceeding. The presiding officer may be the agency head, an agency member, an administrative law judge, or another person who presides over the hearing [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 184 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11405.80 (presiding officer defined)].

[2] Applicable Proceedings

Subject to the requirements of Gov. Code § 11445.30 (governing notice of hearing and objections to use of informal hearing procedures), an agency may use an informal hearing procedure in any of the following proceedings, if, in the circumstances, its use does not violate another statute or the federal or state constitution [Gov. Code § 11445.20]:

- A proceeding where there is no disputed issue of material fact [Gov. Code § 11445.20(a)]. This provision permits the informal hearing to be used, regardless of the type or amount at issue, if no disputes issue of material fact has appeared, for example, a power plant siting proceeding in which the power company and the Energy Commission have agreed on all material facts. However, if consumers intervene and dispute material facts, the proceeding may be subject to conversion from an informal hearing procedure to a formal or other type of hearing procedure consistent with Gov. Code § 11470.10 et seq. (conversion of proceeding procedures, discussed in § 473H.15) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 185 (1995)].

- A proceeding where there is a disputed issue of material fact, if the matter is limited to (1) a monetary amount of not more than $1,000, (2) a disciplinary sanction against a student that does not involve expulsion from an academic institution or suspension for more than 10 days, (3) a disciplinary sanction against an employee that does not involve discharge from employment, demotion, or suspension for more than 5 days, or (4) a disciplinary sanction against a licensee that does not involve an actual revocation of a license or an actual suspension of a license for more than five days (this does not, however, preclude an agency from imposing a stayed revocation or a stayed suspension of a license in an informal hearing) [Gov. Code § 11445.20(b)(1)-(4); City of Rancho Cucamonga v. Regional Water Quality Control Bd. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1377, 1384-1385, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 450 (informal adjudicative hearing procedures properly used for public hearing related to issuance of NPDES permit, as agency had authorized such hearing procedures by regulations [23 Cal Code Reg. §§ 648(d) and 648.5.1], and the hearing was quasi-judicial, exempt from rulemaking procedures under Gov. Code § 11352(b), and not subject to the formal adjudicative hearing procedures of Gov. Code §§ 11500-11523)]. This provision permits an informal hearing to be used, even if a disputed issue of material fact has appeared or if the amount or other stake involved is relatively minor; also, an informal hearing procedure may be used if the if the sanction imposed in the decision falls within its limitations, even though a greater penalty may result if a party fails to comply with the sanction imposed in the decision. The reference to a "licensee" in Gov. Code § 11445.20(b)(4) includes a certificate holder [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 185 (1995)].

- A proceeding where, by regulation, the agency has authorized use of an informal hearing [Gov. Code § 11445.20(c); 25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 185 (1995)].

- A proceeding where an evidentiary hearing for determination of facts is not required by statute but where the agency determines the federal or state constitution may require a hearing [Gov. Code § 11445.20(d)].

Gov. Code § 11445.20(c) imposes no limits on the authority of the agency to adopt the informal hearing by regulation, other than the general limitation that use of the informal hearing procedure is subject to statutory and constitutional due process requirements. Thus, an agency by regulation may authorize use of the informal hearing procedure in a case where the amount in issue or sanction exceeds the amount provided in Gov. Code § 11445.20(b), so long as use of the informal hearing procedure would not contravene other statutes or due process of law [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 185 (1995)].

Each subdivision in Gov. Code § 11445.20 provides an independent basis for conducting an informal hearing. For example, if there is no issue of material fact, an agency may conduct an informal hearing under Gov. Code § 11445.20(a) whether or not a disciplinary sanction that exceeds the limits of Gov. Code § 11445.20(b) may result from the hearing [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 185 (1995)].

Nothing in Gov. Code § 11445.20 implies that this procedure is required in a proceeding in which a hearing is not statutorily or constitutionally required, including an agency's authority in minor disciplinary matters to make an investigation with or without a hearing as it deems necessary [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 185-186 (1995); see Gov. Code §§ 11410.10 (application to constitutionally and statutorily required hearings), 11415.50 (when adjudicative proceeding not required)].

[3] Notice of Hearing and Objection

The notice of hearing sent by an agency initiating a hearing must state the agency's selection of the informal hearing procedure [Gov. Code § 11445.30(a)].

A responding party must, in his or her responsive pleading, raise any objection to use of informal hearing procedures [Gov. Code § 11445.30(b)]. The presiding officer is required to resolve an objection to the use of the informal hearing procedure before the hearing on the basis of the pleadings and any written submissions in support of the pleadings. An objection to the use of the informal hearing procedure in a disciplinary proceeding involving an occupational license shall be resolved in favor of the licensee [Gov. Code § 11445.30(c)].

A litigant that challenged the administrative record supporting the issuance of an NPDES permit, and also made specific objections to specific documents supporting the permit issuance, waived the right to object to the admission of the documents, by not making the objections before or at the time of the administrative hearing. The litigant was properly notified that the permit hearing would follow informal adjudicative hearing procedures in which liberal rules governing introduction of evidence applied, and it failed to object to evidence introduction until it challenged the permit in court [City of Rancho Cucamonga v. Regional Water Quality Control Bd. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1377, 1384-1385, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 450 (informal adjudicative hearing procedures properly used for public hearing related to issuance of NPDES permit, as agency had authorized such hearing procedures by regulations [23 Cal Code Reg. §§ 648(d) and 648.5.1], and the hearing was quasi-judicial, exempt from rulemaking procedures under Gov. Code § 11352(b), and not subject to the formal adjudicative hearing procedures of Gov. Code §§ 11500-11523)].

Gov. Code § 11445.30 provides a procedure for resolving objections to the use of the informal hearing procedure in advance of the hearing [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 186 (1995); see also Gov. Code § 11511.5 (prehearing conference)]. However, conversion to a formal hearing or other type of hearing may be appropriate if during the course of the hearing circumstances indicate the need for it [see Gov. Code §§ 11445.50 (cross-examination), 11445.60 (proposed proof) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 186 (1995)].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the pleadings in an agency adjudication, including the notice of hearing and the respondent's notice of defense, see Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication .

[4] Authority of Presiding Officer and Applicable Hearing Procedures

In an informal hearing, the presiding officer is required to regulate the course of the proceeding. The presiding officer is required to permit the parties, and may permit others, to offer written or oral comments on the issues. The presiding officer may limit the use of witnesses, testimony, evidence, and argument, and may limit or eliminate the use of pleadings, intervention, discovery, prehearing conferences, and rebuttal [Gov. Code § 11445.40(b)].

Except as provided in Gov. Code §§ 11445.10-11445.60, the hearing procedures otherwise required by statute for an adjudicative proceeding apply to an informal hearing [Gov. Code § 11445.40(a)]. For detailed discussion and forms relating to agency hearing procedures generally, see Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings .

Gov. Code § 11445.40 is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 4-402. This statute indicates that the informal hearing is a simplified version of a formal hearing. The informal hearing need not have a prehearing conference, discovery, or testimony of anyone other than the parties. It is intended to permit agencies to allow public participation when appropriate [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 186-187 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11445.10].

[5] Discretion to Deny or Convert Informal Hearing

The presiding officer has discretion to deny use of the informal hearing procedure, or to convert an informal hearing to a formal hearing after an informal hearing is commenced, if it appears to the presiding officer that cross-examination is necessary for proper determination of the matter and that the delay, burden, or complication due to allowing cross-examination in the informal hearing will be more than minimal [Gov. Code § 11445.50(a)]. This provision gives the presiding officer discretion to limit availability of the informal hearing in situations when it appears that substantial cross-examination will be necessary [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 187 (1995)]. For discussion of conversion under Gov. Code §§ 11470.10-11470.50, see § 473H.16.

Agencies have authority to specify, by regulation, categories of cases in which cross-examination is deemed not necessary for proper determination of the matter under the informal hearing procedure. Nevertheless, the presiding officer may allow cross-examination of witnesses in an informal hearing notwithstanding an agency regulation if it appears to the presiding officer that in the circumstances cross-examination is necessary for proper determination of the matter [Gov. Code § 11445.50(b)]. This provision permits an agency to specify types of informal hearings in which cross-examination will be precluded. In recognition of the possibility that occasionally a case may demand cross-examination for proper determination of a matter, the presiding officer has limited authority to depart from the general procedure for cases of that type [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 187 (1995)].

The actions of the presiding officer under Gov. Code § 11445.50 are not subject to judicial review [Gov. Code § 11445.50(c)].

[6] Presenting Proof as to Material Facts in Dispute

If the presiding officer has reason to believe that material facts are in dispute, the presiding officer may require a party to state the identity of the witnesses or other sources through which the party would propose to present proof if the proceeding were converted to a formal or other applicable hearing procedure. If disclosure of a fact, allegation, or source is privileged or expressly prohibited by a regulation, statute, or the federal or state constitution, the presiding officer may require the party to indicate that confidential facts, allegations, or sources are involved, but not to disclose the confidential facts, allegations, or sources [Gov. Code § 11445.60(a)].

If a party has reason to believe that essential facts must be obtained in order to permit an adequate presentation of the case, the party may inform the presiding officer regarding the general nature of the facts and the sources from which the party would propose to obtain the facts if the proceeding were converted to a formal or other hearing procedure [Gov.

Code § 11445.60(b)].

Gov. Code § 11445.60 is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 4-403 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 188 (1995)]. For discussion of conversion of proceedings under Gov. Code §§ 11470.10-11470.50, see § 473H.16.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityEx Parte ContactsAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & Powers

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473H.14

§ 473H.14 Emergency Decision Procedure

[1] Authority for Emergency Decision Procedure

Subject to the limitations set forth in Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80, an agency may conduct an adjudicative proceeding under the emergency decision procedure of those provisions [Gov. Code § 11460.10].

This provision makes available an emergency decision procedure for decisions in which an adjudicative proceeding is required [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 193 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11410.10 (application to constitutionally and statutorily required hearings)]. The emergency decision procedure does not apply to an agency decision to seek injunctive relief [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 193 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11415.50 (when adjudicative proceeding not required)]. The decision whether to use the emergency decision procedure, if available, is in the discretion of the agency. The provisions of Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80 supplement and do not replace other statutes that provide for interim suspension orders or other emergency orders [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 193 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11415.10 (regarding applicable procedure); see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication, § 473.16[1][a]]. For other statutes on interim suspension orders and other emergency orders see the following [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 193-194 (1995)]:

- Order for interim suspension of licensee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 494].
- Order for interim suspension of attorney [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6007(c)].
- Order for interim suspension of real estate licensee [Bus. & Prof. Code § 10086(a)].
- Immediate suspension of disruptive student, teacher, staff member, or administrator [Educ. Code § 66017].
- Emergency suspension of approval of private postsecondary institution to operate [Educ. Code § 94319.12].

- Immediate removal of officer or employee of savings association [Fin. Code § 8201(f)].
- Community care facilities [Health & Safety Code § 1550.5].
- Residential care facilities for the elderly [Health & Safety Code § 1569.50].
- Child day care facilities [Health & Safety Code § 1596.886].
- Trucking license [Pub. Util. Code § 1070.5].
- DMV licenses of manufacturers, transporters, and dealers [Veh. Code § 11706].

The California Court of Appeal rejected both a facial and an as applied challenge to statutory procedures in the California Education Code [Educ. Code § 56366.6(a), (b); 5 Cal. Code Regs. § 3068] that provided for a post-suspension and post-revocation hearing to private special education schools that had their certifications to operate suspended or revoked by the Superintendent of Public Instruction. The schools argued that they were entitled to a pre-suspension or pre-revocation hearing. The Court of Appeal rejected that argument based upon the application of the three Mathews v. Eldridge (1976) 424 U.S. 319, 335, 96 S. Ct. 893, 47 L. Ed 2d 18 factors, the private interest, the risk of error with existing procedures, and the governmental interest, as well as California due process of law principles [Cal. Const., Art. 1, Sect. 7(a)]. The court held that a post-suspension or post-revocation hearing satisfied due process of law requirements because it provides a reasonably prompt method for determining the validity of a suspension or revocation in circumstance in which there is a strong governmental interest, protecting disabled children [Cal. Ass'n of PSES v. Cal. Dept. of Educ. (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 360, 374-376, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 888] . The Court of Appeal also held that the statutory procedures do not provide for the issuance of emergency decisions, and thus the certification suspension and revocation procedures for nonpublic, nonsectarian schools are not subject to the emergency decision procedures requirements of Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80 [California Ass'n of PSES v. Cal. Dept. of Educ. (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 360, 378-379, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 888] .

[2] Regulations Authorizing Emergency Decisions for Temporary, Interim Relief

An agency may issue an emergency decision for temporary, interim relief under the requirements of Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80 if the agency has adopted a regulation that provides that the agency may use the procedures set out therein [Gov. Code § 11460.20(a)]. An agency regulation is required to elaborate the application of the provisions of Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80 to an emergency decision by the agency, including all of the following [Gov. Code § 11460.20(b)]:

- Define the specific circumstances in which an emergency decision may be issued under Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80 [Gov. Code § 11460.20(b)(1)].
- State the nature of the temporary, interim relief that the agency may order [Gov. Code § 11460.20(b)(2)].
- Prescribe the procedures that will be available before and after issuance of an emergency decision under Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80. The procedures may be more protective of the person to which the agency action is directed than those provided under Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80 [Gov. Code § 11460.20(b)(3)].

The emergency decision procedures of Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80 do not apply to an emergency decision, including a cease and desist order or an interim or temporary suspension order, issued pursuant to other express statutory authority [Gov. Code § 11460.20(c)].

Gov. Code § 11460.20 requires specificity in agency regulations that adopt an emergency decision procedure. Notwithstanding these requirements, a statute on emergency decisions, including cease and desist orders and temporary suspension orders, applicable to a particular agency or proceeding prevails over the provisions of this law governing emergency decision procedures [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 194 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11415.20 (conflicting or inconsistent statute controls)].

[3] Requirement of Immediate Danger to Public Health, Safety, or Welfare

An agency may only issue an emergency decision under the requirements of Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80 in a situation involving an immediate danger to the public health, safety, or welfare that requires immediate agency action [Gov. Code § 11460.30(a)]. An agency may only take action under the requirements of Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80 that is necessary to prevent or avoid the immediate danger to the public health, safety, or welfare that justifies issuance of an emergency decision [Gov. Code § 11460.30(b)]. An emergency decision issued under the requirements of Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80 is limited to temporary, interim relief. The temporary, interim relief is subject to judicial review under Gov. Code § 11460.80, and the underlying issue giving rise to the temporary, interim relief is subject to an adjudicative proceeding under Gov. Code § 11460.60 [Gov. Code § 11460.30(c)].

Gov. Code § 11460.30 is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 4-501(a)-(b). The emergency decision procedure is applicable only if the agency has adopted an authorizing regulation [see Gov. Code § 11460.20]. The authority for an emergency decision to avoid immediate danger to the public health, safety, or welfare includes avoiding adverse effects on the environment, such as to fish and wildlife [25 Cal. L Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 195 (1995)].

[4] Notice and Hearing Requirement

Before issuing an emergency decision under the requirements of Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80, the agency shall, if practicable, give the person to which the agency action is directed notice and opportunity to be heard [Gov. Code § 11460.40(a)]. Notice and hearing under Gov. Code § 11460.40 may be oral or written, including notice and hearing by telephone, facsimile transmission, or other electronic means, as the circumstances permit. The hearing may be conducted in the same manner as an informal hearing [Gov. Code § 11460.40(b); see Gov. Code § 11445.60 (procedure for informal hearing)].

Gov. Code § 11460.40 applies to the extent practicable in the circumstances of the particular emergency situation. The agency must use its discretion to determine the extent of the practicability, and give appropriate notice and opportunity to be heard accordingly [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995)]. By regulation the agency may prescribe the emergency notice and hearing procedure [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 195 (1995); see, e.g., State Bar Rules of Procedure, Transitional Rules 789-798 (proceedings re involuntary transfer to inactive status upon a finding that the attorney's conduct poses a substantial threat of harm to the public or the attorney's clients)]. The regulation may be more protective of the person to which the agency action is directed than the provisions of Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80 [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 196 (1995)].

[5] Emergency Decision and Adjudicative Proceeding

The agency is required to issue an emergency decision, including a brief explanation of the factual and legal basis and reasons for the emergency decision, to justify the determination of an immediate danger and the agency's emergency decision to take the specific action [Gov. Code § 11460.50(a)]. The agency shall give notice to the extent practicable to the person to which the agency action is directed. The emergency decision is effective when issued or as provided in the decision [Gov. Code § 11460.50(b)].

Gov. Code § 11460.50 is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 4-501(c)-(d). Under this provisions the agency has flexibility to issue its emergency decision orally, if necessary to cope with the emergency [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 196 (1995)].

After issuing an emergency decision under Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80 for temporary, interim relief, the agency is required to conduct an adjudicative proceeding under a formal, informal, or other applicable hearing procedure to resolve the underlying issues giving rise to the temporary, interim relief [Gov. Code § 11460.60(a)]. The agency is required to commence an adjudicative proceeding under another procedure within 10 days after issuing an emergency decision under the requirements of Gov. Code. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80, notwithstanding the pendency of proceedings for judicial review of the emergency decision [Gov. Code § 11460.60(b)].

Gov. Code § 11460.60 is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 4-501(e). If the emergency proceedings have rendered the matter completely moot, this statue does not direct the agency to conduct useless follow-up proceedings, since these would not be required in the circumstances [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 196 (1995)].

[6] Agency Record and Judicial Review

In an emergency decision procedure, the agency record consists of any documents concerning the matter that were considered or prepared by the agency. The agency is required to maintain these documents as its official record [Gov. Code § 11460.70]. This provision is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 4-501(f) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 197 (1995)].

When an emergency decision is issued under the requirements of Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80, the person to which the agency action is directed may obtain judicial review of the decision in the manner provided in Gov. Code § 11460.80 without exhaustion of administrative remedies [Gov. Code § 11460.80(a)]. Judicial review under Gov. Code § 11460.80 shall be pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 subject to the following provisions [Gov. Code § 11460.80(b)]:

- The hearing shall be on the earliest day that the business of the court will admit of, but no later than 15 days after service of the petition on the agency [Gov. Code § 11460.80(b)(1)].

- When it is claimed that the findings are not supported by the evidence, abuse of discretion is established if the court determines that the findings are not supported by substantial evidence in light of the whole record [Gov. Code § 11460.80(b)(2)].

- A party, on written request to another party, before the proceedings for review and within 10 days after issuance of the emergency decision, is entitled to appropriate discovery [Gov. Code § 11460.80(b)(3)].

- The relief that may be ordered on judicial review is limited to a stay of the emergency decision [Gov. Code § 11460.80(b)(4)].

Gov. Code § 11460.80 is taken from Gov. Code § 11529(h) (interim suspension of medical care professional) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm Reports 55, 197 (1995)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingFormal RulemakingAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesStays of Proceedings & SupersedeasAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityExhaustion of Remedies

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473H.15

§ 473H.15 Declaratory Decision Procedure

[1] Authority for Declaratory Decision

Subject to the limitations set forth in Gov. Code §§ 11465.10-11465.70, an agency may conduct an adjudicative proceeding under the declaratory decision procedures set out therein [Gov. Code § 11465.10].

Gov. Code § 11465.10 et seq. create, and establish all of the requirements for, a special proceeding to be known as a "declaratory decision" proceeding. The purpose of the proceeding is to provide an inexpensive and generally available means by which a person may obtain fully reliable information as to the applicability of agency administered law to the person's particular circumstances [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 198 (1995)].

An agency not governed by Chapter 4.5, the APA's general adjudication provisions (Gov. Code § 11400 et seq.), of which this procedure is a part, nonetheless has general power to issue a declaratory decision. This power is derived from the power to adjudicate [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 198 (1995); see, e.g., M. Asimow, Advice to the Public from Federal Administrative Agencies 121-22 (1973)]. However, the specific declaratory decision procedure provided in Gov. Code §§ 11465.10-11465.70 applies only to proceedings that are subject to Chapter 4.5, including a proceeding under the APA's formal hearing provisions (Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 198 (1995); see Gov. Code §§ 11410.50 (application where formal hearing procedure required), 11501 (application of chapter); see also Gov. Code. Code § 11410.10 (application to constitutionally and statutorily required hearings)].

[2] Application and Issuance of Decision

A person may apply to an agency for a declaratory decision as to the applicability to specified circumstances of a statute, regulation, or decision within the primary jurisdiction of the agency [Gov. Code § 11465.20(a)]. Under Gov. Code § 11465.20(a), a declaratory decision may determine whether the subject of the proceeding is or is not within the agency's primary jurisdiction [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 199 (1995); see Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 302-303, 109 P. 2d 942 ; United Insurance Co. v. Maloney (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 155, 157-158, 273 P. 2d 579] .

The agency in its discretion may issue a declaratory decision in response to the application. The agency shall not issue a declaratory decision if any of the following applies [Gov. Code § 11465.20(b)]:

- Issuance of the decision would be contrary to a regulation adopted under the provisions of Gov. Code §§ 11465.10-11465.70 [Gov. Code § 11465.20(b)(1); see Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules , et seq., for discussion of the procedure by which an interested person may petition requesting adoption, amendment, or repeal of a regulation under Gov. Code §§ 11347-11347.1].

- The decision would substantially prejudice the rights of a person who would be a necessary party and who does not consent in writing to the determination of the matter by a declaratory decision proceeding [Gov. Code § 11465.20(b)(2)]. This provision prohibits an agency from issuing a declaratory decision that would substantially prejudice the rights of a person who would be a necessary party, and who does not consent to the determination of the matter by a declaratory decision proceeding. A necessary party is one that is constitutionally entitled to notice and an opportunity to be heard, a flexible concept depending on the nature of the competing interests involved [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 199 (1995); Horn v. County of Ventura (1979) 24 Cal. 3d. 605, 612, 617, 156 Cal. Rptr. 718, 596 P. 2d 1134] . Such a person may refuse to give consent because in a declaratory decision proceeding the person might not have all of the same procedural rights the person would have in another type of adjudicative proceeding to which the person would be entitled [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 199 (1995)].

- The decision involves a matter that is the subject of pending administrative or judicial proceedings [Gov. Code § 11465.20(b)(3)].

Gov. Code § 11465.20(a), (b) are taken from 1981 Model State APA § 2-103(a). Unlike the model act, issuance of a declaratory decision under this statute is discretionary with the agency, not mandatory [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 199 (1995)].

An application for a declaratory decision is not required for exhaustion of the applicant's administrative remedies for purposes of judicial review [Gov. Code § 11465.20(c)]. This provision makes clear that application for a declaratory decision is not a necessary part of the administrative process. A person may seek judicial review of an agency action after other administrative remedies have been exhausted; the person is not required to seek declaratory relief as well. Nothing in this subdivision authorizes judicial review without exhaustion of other applicable administrative remedies [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 199 (1995)].

[3] Notice and Applicable Law

Within 30 days after receipt of an application for a declaratory decision, an agency shall give notice of the application to all persons to which notice of an adjudicative proceeding is otherwise required, and may give notice to any other person [Gov. Code § 11465.30].

Gov. Code § 11465.30 is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 2-103(c) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 200 (1995); see also Gov. Code § 11440.20 (notice)].

The provisions of a formal, informal, or other applicable hearing procedure do not apply to an agency proceeding for a declaratory decision except to the extent provided in Gov. Code §§ 11465.10-11465.70, or to the extent the agency so provides by regulation or order [Gov. Code § 11465.40]. This provision is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 2-103(d). It makes clear that the specific procedural requirements for adjudications imposed by the formal hearing procedure or other applicable hearing procedure on an agency when it conducts an adjudicative proceeding are inapplicable to a proceeding for a declaratory decision unless the agency elects to make some or all of them applicable. Regulations specifying precise procedures available in a declaratory proceeding may be adopted under Gov. Code §

11465.70. The reason for exempting a declaratory decision from usual procedural requirements for adjudications is to encourage an agency to issue a decision by eliminating requirements it might deem onerous. Moreover, many adjudicative provisions have no applicability. For example, cross-examination is unnecessary since the application establishes the facts on which the agency should rule. Oral argument could also be dispensed with [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 200 (1995)].

Note that there are no contested issues of fact in a declaratory decision proceeding because its function is to declare the applicability of the law in question to facts furnished by the applicant. The actual existence of the facts on which the decision is based will usually become an issue only in a later proceeding in which a party to the declaratory decision proceeding seeks to use the decision as a justification of the party's conduct. Note also that the party requesting a declaratory decision has the choice of refraining from filing such an application and awaiting the ordinary agency adjudicative process. A declaratory decision is, of course, subject to provisions governing judicial review of agency decisions and for public inspection and indexing of agency decisions [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 200 (1995); see, e.g., Gov. Code §§ 6250-6268 (California Public Records Act), discussed in Ch. 470C, Public Records Act]. A declaratory decision may be given precedential effect, subject to the provisions governing precedent decisions [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 201 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11425.60 (precedent decisions)].

[4] Agency Action

Within 60 days after receipt of an application for a declaratory decision, an agency shall do one of the following, in writing [Gov. Code § 11465.50(a)]:

- Issue a decision declaring the applicability of the statute, regulation, or decision in question to the specified circumstances [Gov. Code § 11465.50(a)(1)].

- Set the matter for specified proceedings [Gov. Code § 11465.50(a)(2)].

- Agree to issue a declaratory decision by a specified time [Gov. Code § 11465.50(a)(3)].

- Decline to issue a declaratory decision, stating in writing the reasons for its actions. Agency action under this paragraph is not subject to judicial review [Gov. Code § 11465.50(a)(4)]. The decision by an agency not to issue a declaratory decision is within the absolute discretion of the agency and is therefore not reviewable [Gov. Code § 11465.50(a)(4); 25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 201-202 (1995); see also Gov. Code § 11465.20 (declaratory decision permissive)].

Gov. Code § 11465.50(a) is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 2-103(e). The requirement that an agency dispose of an application within 60 days ensures a timely agency response to a declaratory decision application, thereby facilitating planning by affected parties [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 201 (1995)].

A copy of the agency's action under Gov. Code § 11465.50(a) must be served promptly on the applicant and any other party [Gov. Code § 11465.50(b)]. Gov. Code § 11465.50(b) is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 2-103(f). It requires that the agency communicate to the applicant and to any other parties any action it takes in response to an application for a declaratory decision. This includes each of the types of actions listed in paragraphs (1)-(4) of Gov. Code § 11465.50(a). Service is made by personal delivery or mail or other means to the last known address of the person to which the agency action is directed [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 201 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11440.20].

If an agency has not taken action under Gov. Code § 11465.50(a) within 60 days after receipt of an application for a declaratory decision, the agency is considered to have declined to issue a declaratory decision on the matter [Gov. Code § 11465.50(c)].

[5] Declaratory Decision

A declaratory decision shall contain the names of all parties to the proceeding, the particular facts on which it is based, and the reasons for its conclusion [Gov. Code § 11465.60(a)]. A declaratory decision has the same status and binding effect as any other decision issued by the agency in an adjudicative proceeding [Gov. Code § 11465.60(b)].

Gov. Code § 11465.60 is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 2-103(g). A declaratory decision issued by an agency is judicially reviewable; is binding on the applicant, other parties to that declaratory proceeding, and the agency, unless reversed or modified on judicial review; and has the same precedential effect as other agency adjudications. A declaratory decision, like other decisions, only determines the legal rights of the particular parties to the proceeding in which it was issued. The requirement in Gov. Code § 11465.60(a), that each declaratory decision issued contain the facts on which it is based and the reasons for its conclusion, will facilitate any subsequent judicial review of the decision's legality. It also ensures a clear record of what occurred for the parties and for persons interested in the decision because of its possible precedential effect [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 202 (1995)].

[6] Model Regulations

The Office of Administrative Hearings is required to adopt and promulgate model regulations under Gov. Code §§ 11465.10-11465.70 that are consistent with the public interest and with the general policy of Gov. Code §§ 11465.10-11465.70 to facilitate and encourage agency issuance of reliable advice. The model regulations shall provide for all of the following [Gov. Code § 11465.70(a)]:

- A description of the classes of circumstances in which an agency will not issue a declaratory decision [Gov. Code § 11465.70(a)(1)].

- The form, contents, and filing of an application for a declaratory decision [Gov. Code § 11465.70(a)(2)].

- The procedural rights of a person in relation to an application [Gov. Code § 11465.70(a)(3)].

- The disposition of an application [Gov. Code § 11465.70(a)(4)].

The regulations adopted by the Office of Administrative Hearings under this authority apply in an adjudicative proceeding unless an agency adopts its own regulations to govern declaratory decisions of the agency [Gov. Code § 11465.70(b)]. These provisions do not apply in an adjudicative proceeding to the extent an agency by regulation provides inconsistent rules or provides that these provisions are not applicable in a proceeding of the agency [Gov. Code § 11465.70(c)].

Gov. Code § 11465.70 is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 2-103(b). An agency may choose to preclude declaratory decision altogether. Regulations should specify all of the details surrounding the declaratory decision process including a specification of the precise form and contents of the application; when, how, and where an application is to be filed; whether an applicant has the right to an oral argument; the circumstances in which the agency will not issue a decision; and the like [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 203 (1995)].

Regulations also should require a clear and precise presentations of facts, so that an agency will not be required to rule on the application of law to unclear or excessively general facts. The regulations should make clear that, if the facts are not sufficiently precise, the agency can require additional facts or a narrowing of the application. Agency regulations on this subject will be valid so long as the requirements they impose are reasonable and are within the scope of agency discretion. To be valid these rules must also be consistent with the public interest, which includes the efficient and effective accomplishment of the agency's mission, and the express general policy of this article to facilitate and encourage the issuance of reliable agency advice. Within these general limits, therefore, and agency may include in its rules reasonable standing, ripeness, and other requirements for obtaining a declaratory decision [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 203 (1995)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsContentsAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsStare DecisisAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityExhaustion of RemediesAdministrative LawSeparation of PowersPrimary Jurisdiction

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473H.16

§ 473H.16 Conversion of Agency Proceedings

[1] Authority of Presiding Officer or Other Agency Official

Subject to applicable regulations adopted under Gov. Code § 11470.50, at any point in an agency proceeding, the presiding officer or other agency official responsible for the proceeding [Gov. Code § 11470.10(a)]:

- May convert the proceeding to another type of agency proceeding provided for by statute if the conversion is appropriate, is in the public interest, and does not substantially prejudice the rights of a party [Gov. Code § 11470.10(a)(1)].

- Must convert the proceeding to another type of agency proceeding provided for by statute, if required by regulation or statute [Gov. Code § 11470.10(a)(2)].

A proceeding of one type may be converted to a proceeding of another type only on notice to all parties to the original proceeding [Gov. Code § 11470.10(b)].

Gov. Code § 11470.10 is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 1-107(a)-(b). For purposes of this statute, a "party" in the case of an adjudicative proceeding means "party" as defined in Gov. Code § 11405.60 (see definition in § 473H.11[5]); in the case of a rulemaking proceeding, it means an active participant in the proceeding or one primarily interested in its outcome [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 204 (1995)].

Agency proceedings covered by Gov. Code §§ 11470.10-11470.50 include a rulemaking proceeding as well as an adjudicative proceeding. The conversion provisions may be irrelevant to some types of proceedings by some agencies, and in that case these provisions would be inapplicable. Under Gov. Code § 11470.10(a)(1), a proceeding may not be converted to another type of proceeding that would be inappropriate for the action being taken. For example, if an agency elects to conduct a formal hearing in a case in which it could have elected an informal hearing initially, a subsequent decision to convert to an informal hearing would be appropriate. The further limitation in Gov. Code § 11470.10(a)(1), that the conversion must not substantially prejudice the rights of a party, must also be satisfied. The courts will have to decide on a case-by- case basis what constitutes substantial prejudice. The concept includes both the right to an appropriate procedure that enables a party to protect its interests, and freedom of the party from great inconvenience caused by the conversion in terms of time, cost, availability of witnesses, necessity of continuances and other delays, and other practical consequences of the conversion. Of course, even if the rights of a party are substantially prejudiced by a conversion, the party may voluntarily waive them [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 204 (1995); see Gov. Code § 11415.40].

The limitation on discretionary conversion of an agency proceeding from one type to another, to avoid substantial prejudice to the rights of a party, is not intended to disturb an existing body of law. In certain situations an agency may lawfully deny an individual an adjudicative proceeding to which the individual would otherwise be entitled by conducting a rulemaking proceeding that determines for an entire class an issue that otherwise would be the subject of a necessary adjudicative proceeding [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55 (1995); see Note, The Use of Agency Rulemaking To Deny Adjudications Apparently Required by Statute, 54 Iowa L. Rev. 1086 (1969)]. Similarly, the substantial prejudice limitation is not intended to disturb the existing body of law allowing an agency, in certain situations, to make a determination through an adjudicative proceeding that has the effect of denying a person an opportunity the person might otherwise be afforded if a rulemaking proceeding were used instead [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 204-205 (1995)].

Gov. Code § 11470.10(a)(2) makes clear that an agency must convert a proceeding of one type to a proceeding of another type when required by regulation or statute, even if a nonconsenting party is prejudiced thereby. Under this provision, however, both a discretionary and a mandatory conversion must be accompanied by notice to all parties to the original proceeding so that they will have a fully adequate opportunity to protect their interests. Within the limits of this statute, an agency should be authorized to use procedures in a proceeding that are most likely to be effective and efficient under the circumstances [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 205 (1995)]. Gov. Code § 11470.10(a) allows an agency this flexibility. For example, an agency that wants to convert a formal hearing into an informal hearing, or an informal hearing to a formal hearing, may do so under this provision if the conversion is appropriate and in the public interest, if adequate notice is given, and if the rights of the parties are not substantially prejudiced [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 205 (1995)].

Similarly, an agency called on to explore a new area of law in a declaratory decision proceeding may prefer to do so by rulemaking. That is, the agency may decide to have full public participation in developing its policy in the area and to declare law of general applicability instead of issuing a determination of only particular applicability at the request of a specific party in a more limited proceeding. So long as all of the standards in this statute are met, this statute would authorize such a conversion from one type of agency proceeding to another. While it is unlikely that a conversion consistent with all of the statutory standards could occur more than once in the course of a proceeding, the possibility of multiple conversions in the course of a particular proceeding is left open by the statutory language. In an adjudication, the prehearing conference could be used to choose the most appropriate form of proceeding at the outset, thereby diminishing the likelihood of a later conversion [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 205 (1995)].

[2] Conversion Procedures

[a] Appointment of Successor

If the presiding officer or other agency official responsible for the original proceeding would not have authority over the new proceeding to which it is to be converted, the agency head shall appoint a successor to preside over or be responsible for the new proceeding [Gov. Code § 11470.20]. This statute is taken form 1981 Model State APA § 1-107(c). It deals with the mechanics of transition from one type of proceeding to another [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 206 (1995)].

[b] Record of Original Proceeding

To the extent practicable and consistent with the rights of parties and the requirements of Gov. Code §§ 11470.10-11470.50, relating to the new proceeding, the record of the original agency proceeding shall be used in the new agency proceeding [Gov. Code § 11470.30].

Gov. Code § 11470.30 is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 1-107(d). It seeks to avoid unnecessary duplication of proceedings by requiring the use of as much of the agency record in the first proceeding as is possible in the second proceeding, consistent with the rights of the parties and the requirements of the applicable statute governing the hearing procedure [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 206 (1995)].

[c] Duties of Official Responsible for New Proceeding

After a proceeding is converted from one type to another, the presiding officer or other agency official responsible for the new proceeding shall do all of the following [Gov. Code § 11470.40]:

- Give additional notice to parties or other persons necessary to satisfy the statutory requirements relating to the new proceeding [Gov. Code § 11470.40(a)].

- Dispose of the matters involved without further proceedings if sufficient proceedings have already been held to satisfy the statutory requirements relating to the new proceeding [Gov. Code § 11470.40(b)].

- Conduct or cause to be conducted any additional proceedings necessary to satisfy the statutory requirements relating to the new proceeding, and allow the parties a reasonable time to prepare for the new proceeding [Gov. Code § 11470.40(c)].

Gov. Code § 11470.40 is drawn from the 1981 Model State APA § 1-107(e) [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm. Reports 55, 207 (1995)].

[3] Regulations

An agency may adopt regulations to govern the conversion of one type of proceeding to another. The regulations may include an enumeration of the factors to be considered in determining whether and under what circumstances one type of proceeding will be converted to another [Gov. Code § 11470.50]. Gov. Code § 11470.50 is taken from 1981 Model State APA § 1-107(f). Adoption of regulations is permissive, rather than mandatory [25 Cal. L. Rev. Comm Reports 55, 207 (1995)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersDuties & PowersAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral Overview

128 of 187 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473H.17-473H.19

[Reserved]

§§ 473H.17[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473H.20

§ 473H.20 Federal Constitution

Due process clause. U.S. Const., amend. XIV, § 1

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473H.21

§ 473H.21 State Constitution

Due process clause. Cal. Const., art. I, § 7(a)

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473H.22

§ 473H.22 State Statutes

[1] Administrative Procedure Act

Accusation. Gov. Code § 11503

Administrative adjudication bill of rights. Gov. Code §§ 11425.10-11425.60

Administrative Law Judges. Gov. Code § 11502

Affidavits. Gov. Code § 11514

Agency decisional authority. Gov. Code § 11440.10

Agencies to which act applies. Gov. Code §§ 11410.10, 11501

Amendment of pleadings. Gov. Code §§ 11507, 11516

Applicability of provisions to statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504.5

Conduct of hearing. Gov. Code § 11512

Consolidation of proceedings. Gov. Code § 11507.3

Contempt. Gov. Code §§ 11455.10-11455.30

Continuances. Gov. Code § 11524

Conversion of proceedings. Gov. Code §§ 11470.10-11470.50

Decision. Gov. Code §§ 11516-11520, 11526

Declaratory decision. Gov. Code §§ 11465.10-11465.70

Definitions of terms. Gov. Code §§ 11405.10-11405.80, 11500

Depositions. Gov. Code § 11511

Discovery. Gov. Code §§ 11507.5-11507.7

Disqualification. Gov. Code §§ 11425.30, 11425.40, 11512

Emergency decision. Gov. Code §§ 11460.10-11460.80

Evidence. Gov. Code §§ 11435.10, 11440.40, 11513

Ex parte communications. Gov. Code. Code §§ 11430.10-11430.80

Hearings by electronic means. Gov. Code § 11440.30

Informal hearings. Gov. Code §§ 11445.10-11445.60

Intervention. Gov. Code § 11440.50

Language assistance. Gov. Code §§ 11435.05-11435.65

Judicial review. Gov. Code § 11523

Notice of defense. Gov. Code § 11506

Notice of hearing. Gov. Code § 11509

Oaths. Gov. Code § 11528

Official notice. Gov. Code § 11515

Reconsideration. Gov. Code § 11521

Reporting proceedings. Gov. Code § 11512

Restoration of rights. Gov. Code § 11522

Separate hearings. Gov. Code § 11507.3

Service and notice. Gov. Code § 11440.20

Service of initial pleading. Gov. Code § 11505

Settlement conferences. Gov. Code § 11511.7

Sexual harassment. Gov. Code § 11440.40

Statement of issues. Gov. Code § 11504

Subpoenas. Gov. Code §§ 11450.05-11450.50

Time and place of hearing. Gov. Code § 11508

Waiver of rights. Gov. Code § 11415.40

[2] Related Statutes

Affidavit of good cause as required for subpoena duces tecum. Code Civ. Proc. § 1985

Witness served with subpoena as entitled to demand one day's fees and mileage allowance. Code Civ. Proc. § 1987

Witness fees and mileage allowances. Gov. Code §§ 11191, 68093, 68097.2

Right to have subpoena issued. Gov. Code § 11190

Office of Administrative Hearings. Gov. Code §§ 11370.1-11370.5

Board of supervisors of county as empowered to establish county hearing officer. Gov. Code §§ 27720, 27721

Oaths used in civil proceedings. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2094-2097

Evidentiary effect of plea of nolo contendere. Penal Code § 1016

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationImpartialityGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationPresiding OfficersAdministrative Law Judges

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473H.23

§ 473H.23 Internet References

Office of Administrative Hearings. This site includes information and location concerning specific OAH offices; an OAH hearing guide; information concerning Administrative Procedure Act statutes, regulations, and proposed regulations; OAH forms; information concerning alternative dispute resolution procedures; and declaratory decisions. http://www.dgs.ca.gov/oah

NOTE:
On and after July 1, 1998, The OAL is required by Gov. Code § 11340.1(b) to make the full text of the California Code of Regulations, with reference citations and history notes, available on the Internet free of charge.

Office of Administrative Law. This site includes OAL publications; links to OAL statutes and regulations relating to rulemaking; regulations submitted to the OAL for review, and information for contacting or providing input to the OAL regarding rulemaking. http://www.oal.ca.gov

California Home Page. This site includes links to other sites maintained by numerous state agencies. http://www.ca.gov

Department of Consumer Affairs. This site includes links to sites maintained by many state agencies that are under this department, as well as links to agency sites. http://www.dca.ca.gov

California Courts. This site includes general information about state court organization and specific court; text of recently filed slip opinions; court minutes and calendars; text of California Rules of Court; Judicial Council forms and other information promulgated by the Judicial Council; links to sites of most Court of Appeal districts, with text of local appellate rules, forms, and internal operating procedures; links to other sites maintained by local trial courts, state government agencies and organizations, federal courts and federal organizations, and other sources of legal information. http://www.courtinfo.ca.gov

California Legislative Information. This site includes text of constitution, codes, and statutes (including complete text of APA); and information concerning pending legislation. http://www.leginfo.ca.gov

Matthew Bender. This site includes links to Matthew Bender publications and Shepard's citation service. http://www.bender.com

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationAlternative Dispute ResolutionAdministrative LawAgency AdjudicationHearingsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawAgency RulemakingGeneral OverviewGovernmentsCourtsCreation & OrganizationGovernmentsLegislationEnactment

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 473H.24-473H.29

[Reserved]

§§ 473H.24[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473H.30

§ 473H.30 Alternative Dispute Resolution

[1] Options

☐ Mediation [Gov. Code § 11420.10(a)(1); see Gov. Code § 11420.10(b); § 473H.12[1]].

☐ Binding arbitration [Gov. Code § 11420.10(a)(2); see Gov. Code § 11420.10(b); § 473H.12[1]].

☐ Nonbinding arbitration [Gov. Code § 11420.10(a)(3); see Gov. Code § 11420.10(b); § 473H.12[1]].

[2] Procedure

☐ Obtain consent of all parties [see § 473H.12[1]].

☐ Obtain agency referral [see § 473H.12[1]].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationDecisionsGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureAlternative Dispute ResolutionGeneral Overview

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473H.31

§ 473H.31 Objection to Informal Hearing Procedure

☐ Object in responsive pleading [Gov. Code § 11445.30(b); see § 473H.13[3]].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473H.32

§ 473H.32 Emergency Decision

☐ Obtain judicial review [Gov. Code § 11460.80(a), (b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; § 473H.14[6]].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 473H ALTERNATIVE PROCEDURES FOR AGENCY DECISIONS
PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

41A-473H California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 473H.33

§ 473H.33 Declaratory Decision

☐ Apply to agency for declaratory decision [Gov. Code § 11465.20(a); see § 473H.15[2]].

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 474 AVAILABILITY OF JUDICIAL REVIEW OF AGENCY DECISIONS

41A-474 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated 474.syn

§ 474.syn Synopsis to Chapter 474: AVAILABILITY OF JUDICIAL REVIEW OF AGENCY DECISIONS

§ 474.01 Scope of Chapter

§ 474.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Judicial Review

[2] Agency Adjudication

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

§§ 474.03-474.09 [Reserved]

§ 474.10 Nature of Mandate Proceedings

[1] General Nature of Remedy

[2] Procedure

[3] Ordinary and Administrative Mandate Distinguished

§ 474.11 Review in Ordinary Mandate Proceedings

[1] Nature of Review

[2] Administrative Officials and Bodies Subject to Ordinary Mandate Proceedings

[3] Actions and Decisions Reviewable in Ordinary Mandate Proceedings

[a] Quasi-Legislative Action or Decision

[b] Refusal to Perform Ministerial Action

[c] Adjudicatory Action or Decision That Is Not Subject to Review in Administrative Mandate Proceedings

[4] Facts and Evidence on Which Review Is Based

[5] Relief Available

§ 474.12 Review in Administrative Mandate Proceedings

[1] Nature of Review

[2] Administrative Officials and Bodies Subject to Administrative Mandate Proceedings

[3] Prerequisites for Review of Administrative Order or Decision in Administrative Mandate Proceeding

[a] Adjudicatory Order or Decision

[b] Final Order or Decision

[c] Order or Decision Resulting From Evidentiary Hearing Required by Law

[d] Improper Petition for Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 Relief Not to Be Dismissed if Adequate for Ordinary Mandate

[4] Facts and Evidence on Which Review Is Based

[5] Relief Available

[a] Reversal or Annulment of Order if Agency Acted in Excess of Jurisdiction

[b] No Control or Limitation of Discretion Vested in Agency; Remand Required

[c] When Substantial Evidence Standard Applies

[d] When Independent Judgment Standard Applies

§ 474.13 Requirements Common to All Mandate Proceedings

[1] Beneficially Interested Petitioner

[a] Nature of Requirement

[b] Judicially Recognized Exceptions to Requirement

[c] Effect of Statute Providing for Participation in Administrative Proceeding

[2] Lack of Adequate Remedy at Law

[3] Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies

[4] When Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies Is Not Required

[a] Claim That Administrative Entity Lacks Subject Matter Jurisdiction Under Governing Statutes

[b] Challenge to Constitutionality of Governing Statutes

[c] Administrative Remedy Is Inadequate or Unavailable

[d] Pursuit of Administrative Remedy Is Futile

[e] Petitioner Is Threatened With Irreparable Injury

[f] Application of Rule Is Contrary to Public Interest

[g] Concurrent Primary Jurisdiction

§ 474.14 Defenses Common to All Mandate Proceedings

[1] Statute of Limitations

[2] Equitable Defenses

[a] Laches

[b] Unclean Hands

[c] Waiver

[d] Estoppel

§ 474.15 Res Judicata and the Failure to Seek Judicial Review

§§ 474.16-474.19 [Reserved]

§ 474.20 Review by Other Extraordinary Writs

[1] Prohibition

[2] Certiorari

[3] Extraordinary Writ

§ 474.21 Action for Declaratory Relief

§ 474.22 Action for Injunctive Relief

§ 474.23 Orders and Decisions Reviewable Under Special Constitutional and Statutory Provisions

[1] Decisions of the Public Utilities Commission

[2] Decisions of the State Bar

[3] Orders, Rules, and Decisions of the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board

[4] Orders of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board

[5] Orders of the Agricultural Labor Relations Board

[6] Certain Orders and Determinations of the Public Employment Relations Board

§§ 474.24-474.29 [Reserved]

§ 474.30 Related Matthew Bender Publications

§ 474.31 Federal Constitution

§ 474.32 State Constitution

§ 474.33 State Statutes

§ 474.34 Decisions

[1] Generally

[2] Acts Subject to Judicial Review

[3] Finality of Decision

[4] Hearing Required by Law

[5] Evidence Required to Be Taken

[6] Beneficial Interest

[7] Lack of Other Remedies

[8] Res Judicata

[9] Limitation and Laches

[10] Questions Not Presented to Agency

[11] Judicial Review

[a] Right

[b] Scope

[c] Proceedings

§ 474.35 Law Reviews

§ 474.36 Text References

§ 474.37 Internet References

§§ 474.38-474.49 [Reserved]

§ 474.50 Determine Availability of and Procedure for Judicial Review

§ 474.51 Petition for Writ of Mandate

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 474 AVAILABILITY OF JUDICIAL REVIEW OF AGENCY DECISIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-474 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 474.01

§ 474.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter provides a discussion of the availability of judicial review, including the following in Part II:

- Subpart A discusses availability of judicial review under ordinary mandate and administrative mandate [see § 474.10 et seq.].

- Subpart B discusses availability of judicial review under other writs, actions, and specialized orders and decisions [see § 474.20 et seq.].

The terms mandate and mandamus are interchangeable. In the Legal Background in this chapter, the writ is referred to by the term mandate.

A Research Guide [Part III; see § 474.30 et seq.] and a Procedural Checklist [Part IV; see § 474.50 et seq.] are also included.

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamus

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 474 AVAILABILITY OF JUDICIAL REVIEW OF AGENCY DECISIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-474 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 474.02

§ 474.02 Cross References

[1] Related Coverage of Judicial Review

For related discussion concerning judicial review by California courts of agency adjudications, see:

- Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions.
- Ch. 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions.
- Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions.

For other related discussion and forms relating to judicial review generally, see:

- Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview, et seq. (discussion and forms relating to civil appeals).
- Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of orders by extraordinary writ of mandate or prohibition).
- Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of (discussion and forms relating to immediate judicial review of civil proceedings by extraordinary writ of review).

For memoranda of points of points and authorities supporting and opposing petitions for writs of mandate generally, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition (Matthew Bender).

For memoranda of points and authorities supporting and opposing petitions for administrative mandate, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 195, Public Administrative Law (Matthew Bender).

[2] Agency Adjudication

For detailed discussion and forms relating to agency adjudications that are the subject of the judicial review discussed in this chapter, see:

- Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication.
- Ch. 473A, Commencing Agency Adjudication.
- Ch. 473B, Discovery in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473C, Prehearing Procedures in Agency Adjudications.
- Ch. 473E, Public Administrative Law Judges.
- Ch. 473F, Agency Adjudication Hearings.
- Ch. 473G, Agency Adjudication Decisions.
- Ch. 473H, Alternative Administrative Adjudication Procedures.

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to licensing agencies, including licensing adjudications, see Ch. 471B, Licensing by Public Agencies .

[3] Public Administrative Law Generally

For related discussion of California public administrative law generally, including discussion of public agency functions and powers (including adjudicative or quasi-judicial powers), and organization generally, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law (general discussion of judicial power is in § 470.12[5]). For detailed discussion of the general procedures imposed in agency proceedings by constitutional due process and related statutory requirements, see Ch. 470A, Due Process Restrictions on Public Agencies .

For discussion and forms relating to the law governing access to and conduct of meetings by California public agencies, see Ch. 470B, Public Agency Meetings .

For detailed discussion and forms relating to the law governing disclosure of public records under the California Public Records Act [Cal. Gov. Code §§ 6250 et seq.], see Ch. 470C, Public Records Act .

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to agency investigations and inspections, see:

- Ch. 471, Investigations by Public Agencies.
- Ch. 471A, Inspections by Public Agencies.

For detailed discussion and forms relating generally to the legislative or rulemaking functions of California public agencies, including judicial review of these functions, see:

- Ch. 472, Public Agency Rules.
- Ch. 472A, Agency Rulemaking Procedures.
- Ch. 472B, Review of Agency Rulemaking.

For additional cross references to coverage of particular public agencies, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law, § 470.02[2].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawAgency AdjudicationPrehearing ActivityAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesGeneral OverviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesProhibitionAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamus

141 of 187 DOCUMENTS

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 474 AVAILABILITY OF JUDICIAL REVIEW OF AGENCY DECISIONS
PART I. SCOPE

41A-474 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated §§ 474.03-474.09

[Reserved]

§§ 474.03[Reserved]

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 474 AVAILABILITY OF JUDICIAL REVIEW OF AGENCY DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Review by Writ of Mandate

41A-474 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 474.10

§ 474.10 Nature of Mandate Proceedings

[1] General Nature of Remedy

The proper method for obtaining judicial review of most administrative acts or decisions is by instituting a proceeding for issuance of a writ of mandate [see Bodinson Mfg. Co. v. California E. Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 321, 328-329, 109 P.2d 935] .

The writ of mandate is a broad remedy that enables interested persons to compel performance of a legal duty when the law provides no other adequate remedy [Dowell v. Superior Court (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 483, 486-487, 304 P.2d 1009 ; Harbach v. El Pueblo de Los Angeles etc. Com. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 828, 837, 92 Cal. Rptr. 757 ; Potomac Oil Co. v. Dye (1909) 10 Cal. App. 534, 537, 102 P. 677] . The writ is characterized as an extraordinary legal remedy that performs the equitable function of alleviating deficiencies in traditional legal remedies [Dowell v. Superior Court (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 483, 486,304 P.2d 1009 ; Harbach v. El Pueblo de Los Angeles etc. Com. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 828, 837, 92 Cal. Rptr. 757] .

Issuance of the writ is governed in large part by equitable considerations [Dowell v. Superior Court (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 483, 486, 304 P.2d 1009 ; Dare v. Bd. of Medical Examiners (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 790, 795, 136 P.2d 304 ; Advance Medical Diagnostic Laboratories v. County of Los Angeles (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 263, 274, 129 Cal. Rptr. 723] .

The California Court of Appeal held that it would treat a doctor's petition for a writ of habeas corpus as a request for a writ of mandate requiring the Superior Court to vacate an order prohibiting the doctor from practicing medicine while criminal charges were pending. This was because the issues raised in the petition alleged the trial court exceeded its jurisdiction in making the prohibition order as a bail condition. Also, the issues in the petition were legal not factual, and there was no need for an evidentiary hearing to decide those issues [Gray v. Superior Ct. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 629, 636, fn. 3, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 50 ; Alfredo A. v. Superior Ct. (1994) 6 Cal. 4th 1212, 1217, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 623, 865 P. 2d 56 (habeas corpus petition treated as petition for writ of mandate)].

[2] Procedure

A proceeding for the issuance of a writ of mandate is a special civil proceeding governed by the provisions of Title I of Part Three of the Code of Civil Procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 1063 et seq.]. The California Constitution gives the Supreme Court, the courts of appeal, and the superior courts concurrent original jurisdiction of mandate proceedings [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. However, unless a case presents issues of great public importance that require prompt resolution, the Supreme Court and the courts of appeal generally decline, as a matter of judicial policy, to exercise their original jurisdiction [San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. Johnson (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 937, 944-945, 92 Cal. Rptr. 309, 479 P.2d 669 ; Roma Macaroni Factory v. Giambastiani (1933) 219 Cal. 435, 436-438, 27 P.2d 371 ; County of Los Angeles v. Nesvig (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 600, 601-602, 41 Cal. Rptr. 916 ; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(a); for a discussion of the rules that govern mandate proceedings and other original proceedings in the Supreme Court and the courts of appeal, see Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Procedures].

A mandate proceeding is instituted by filing a petition in a proper court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.490(a)]. The official, board, or agency involved and other interested parties must be served with the petition and may file responsive pleadings [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1088, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.49(f), (g)]. Depending on the nature of the administrative action and the issues raised by the parties, the court may determine the petitioner's entitlement to relief on the basis of any of the following:

- The pleadings [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 1094; Town of Hayward v. Pimental (1895) 107 Cal. 386, 390-391, 40 P. 545 ; Rodriguez v. Municipal Court (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 521, 526-527, 102 Cal. Rptr. 45 ; Harbach v. El Pueblo de Los Angeles etc. Com. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 828, 835, 92 Cal. Rptr. 757] .

- An administrative record [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. 1094.5(a); Merz v. Board of Supervisors (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 933, 937, 195 Cal. Rptr. 370 ; Transcentury Properties, Inc. v. State of California (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 835, 842, 116 Cal. Rptr. 487 ; Housman v. Board of Medical Examiners (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 308, 313, 190 P.2d 653] .

- Evidence presented by the parties [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1090, 1094.5(e); No Oil, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 68, 79 n. 6, 118 Cal. Rptr. 34, 529 P.2d 66 ; Bruce v. Gregory (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 666, 670-671, 56 Cal. Rptr. 265, 423 P.2d 193 ; English v. City of Long Beach (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 311, 316-317, 250 P.2d 298] .

If the court determines that mandate relief is warranted, it issues a peremptory writ of mandate directing the administrative body or officer to take the action that is required by law [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1087, 1094.5(f)]. For a detailed discussion of the procedural aspects of a mandate proceeding, see Ch. 474C, Procedures in Reviewing Agency Decisions .

[3] Ordinary and Administrative Mandate Distinguished

Controlling statutes provide for review of administrative actions and decisions in two types of mandate proceedings: ordinary mandate and administrative mandate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1094.5]. The type of mandate applicable in any case is determined by the nature of the administrative action or decision to be reviewed [Tielsch v. City of Anaheim (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 570, 574, 206 Cal. Rptr. 738] .

Administrative mandate proceedings, the most common type of mandate proceedings, are used to review actions or decisions of an administrative body or officer acting in a judicial capacity [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5; Temescal Water Co. v. Dept. of Public Works (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 90, 101, 280 P.2d 1 ; Neighbors in Support of Appropriate Land Use v. County of Tuolumne (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 997, 1004-1005, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 882 (issuance of conditional use permit is a quasi-judicial administrative action reviewable under administrative mandate); Estes v. City of Grover City (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 509, 514, 147 Cal. Rptr. 131 ; County of L.A. v. Tax Appeals Bd. No. 2 (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 830, 833, 73 Cal. Rptr. 469 ; see § 474.12, for a more detailed discussion of the types of actions and decisions reviewable in administrative mandate proceedings].

Ordinary mandate proceedings are used to review actions or decisions of an administrative body or officer acting in a legislative or executive capacity [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085; Neighbors in Support of Appropriate Land Use v. County of Tuolumne (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 997, 1004-1005, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 882 (approval of a development agreement is a legislative act reviewable under ordinary mandate); Wagner Farms, Inc. v. Modesto Irrigation District (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 765, 772-773, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683 (approval of a transmission line project is a quasi-legislative action review able in ordinary mandate); Environmental Charter High Sch. v. Centinela Valley Union High Sch. Dist. (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 139, 145, 18 Cal. Rptr. 3d 417 (school district decision to deny charter school use of district facilities for 2003-2004 school year was reviewed under ordinary mandate); Karlson v. City of Camarillo (1980) 100 Cal. App. 3d 789, 798, 161 Cal. Rptr. 260 (legislative actions); Harbach v. El Pueblo de Los Angeles etc. Com. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 828, 833-834, 92 Cal. Rptr. 757 (ministerial actions); see § 474.11, for a more detailed discussion of the kinds of actions and decisions reviewable in ordinary mandate proceedings].

The Court of Appeal reversed the denial of writs of ordinary [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085] and administrative [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5] mandate, and held that both types of mandate could appropriately be ordered in an action brought by Medi-Cal beneficiaries that sought reimbursement from the State Department of Health Services of covered expenses paid to providers. The court determined that ordinary mandate could be used to order the agency to adopt procedures providing for timely reimbursement of recipients' expenses, and administrative mandate could be used to review decisions following administrative hearings that denied reimbursement [Conlan v. Bonta (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 745, 751-753, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 788 , mod. den. reh.].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusCivil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionJurisdiction Over ActionsConcurrent JurisdictionCivil ProcedureEquityGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeService of ProcessGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamus

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 474 AVAILABILITY OF JUDICIAL REVIEW OF AGENCY DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Review by Writ of Mandate

41A-474 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 474.11

§ 474.11 Review in Ordinary Mandate Proceedings

[1] Nature of Review

Ordinary mandate proceedings are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1085. In an ordinary mandate proceeding, the court conducts a limited review and is authorized to determine only two kinds of issues [Fullerton Joint Union High School Dist. v. State Bd. Of Education (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 779, 187 Cal. Rptr. 398, 654 P.2d 168 , 786, 32 Cal. 3d 779, 187 Cal. Rptr. 398, 654 P.2d 168 ; Stauffer Chemical Co. v. Air Resources Board (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 789, 794, 180 Cal. Rptr. 550 ; City of Santa Cruz v. Local Agency Formation Com. (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 381, 392-393, 142 Cal. Rptr. 873] :

- Whether the administrative action or decision was arbitrary, capricious, or entirely lacking in evidentiary support; or

- Whether the administrative body or officer gave the notices and followed the procedures required by law [Mileikowsky v. Tenet Healthsystem (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 531, 554-555, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 171 , overruled in part by Mileikowsky v. West Hills Hospital & Medical Center (2009) 45 Cal. 4th 1259, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 516, 203 P.3d 1113 (hearing required by law); DeCuir v. County of Los Angeles (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 75, 82, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102] .

For a discussion of the issues reviewed and the standards of review in ordinary mandate proceedings, see Ch. 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions, § 474B.30 et seq.

[2] Administrative Officials and Bodies Subject to Ordinary Mandate Proceedings

Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 provides that a writ of mandate may be issued by any court "to any inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or person, to compel the performance of an act which the law specially enjoins, as a duty resulting from an office, trust, or station ... ." This broad language clearly means that, in a proper case, ordinary mandate will lie against any administrative officer or body [Santa Clara County Counsel Atty's Assn. v. Woodside (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 525, 540-542, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 617, 869 P.2d 1142 ; cf. California Housing Finance Agency v. Elliott (1976) 17 Cal.

3d 575, 579, 131 Cal. Rptr. 361, 551 P.2d 1193 ; Glendale City Employees' Assn., Inc. v. City of Glendale (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 328, 344 n.24, 124 Cal. Rptr. 513, 540 P.2d 609 ; People ex rel. Younger v. County of El Dorado (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 480, 491, 96 Cal. Rptr. 553, 487 P.2d 1193 ; Johnson v. City and County of San Francisco (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 7, 19-20, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 8 (property owners sought declaratory relief and a writ of mandate to challenge notice provisions of city and county rental ordinance on grounds that provisions were preempted by state law. The California Court of Appeal held that it was proper to grant a writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085 and 1086 against the city and county of San Francisco to prevent the city and county from enforcing an ordinance that was preempted by a state statute); City of Arcadia v. State Water Resources Control Bd. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1392, 1409, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 373 ; Klajic v. Castaic Lake Water Agency (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 5, 11-12, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 746 ; McLeod v. Board of Pension Commissioners (1970) 14 Cal. App. 3d 23, 27, 94 Cal. Rptr. 58] . A writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 (ordinary mandate) must be brought against the governmental body that took the action challenged in the mandate proceeding [Sacramento County Alliance of Law Enforcement v. County of Sacramento (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1012, 1020-1021, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 202 (denial of petition for writ of mandate affirmed on appeal because petitioners erroneously named county as respondent, and they were required to name county civil service commission as proper party respondent)].

[3] Actions and Decisions Reviewable in Ordinary Mandate Proceedings

[a] Quasi-Legislative Action or Decision

Quasi-legislative actions of an administrative body--actions that it performs in a legislative capacity--are reviewable in ordinary mandate proceedings [Clean Air Constituency v. California State Air Resources Bd. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 801, 809, 114 Cal. Rptr. 577, 523 P.2d 617 ; Environmental Protection & Information Center v. California Dept. of Forestry & Fire Protection (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 459, 521, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 28, 187 P.3d 888 (regulatory approvals related to streambed alteration agreement did not require findings, and agreement was not invalid without findings because statutory approval process did not required that a hearing be held by law. Agreement was reviewable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 (ordinary mandate)); Exxon Mobil Corp. v. Office of Environmental Health Hazard Assessment (2009) 169 Cal. App. 4th 1264, 1275-1277, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580 (agency decision to list chemical under Proposition 65 was quasi-legislative action reviewable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 (ordinary mandate)); O.W.L. Foundation v. City of Rohnert Park (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 568, 585-586, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 (city adoption of water supply assessment was reviewable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 (ordinary mandate) even though city held public hearing related to adoption because no hearing was required by law); SN Sands Corporation v. City and County of San Francisco (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 185, 191-192, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885 (the award of a contract by a public entity is a quasi-legislative act that is judicially reviewable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 (ordinary mandate)); Association of Irritated Residents v. San Joaquin Valley Unified Air Pollution Control Dist. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 535, 542-543, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 590 (agency decision to adopt rule regulation volatile organic compound emissions was a quasi-legislative action reviewable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 (ordinary mandate)); Friends of the Sierra Railroad v. Tuolumne Park and Recreation District (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 643, 651-652, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 500 (County district to sell a piece of district property was quasi-legislative action (nonadjudicatory in character) subject to judicial review under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 (ordinary mandate); Western States Petroleum Ass'n v. South Coast Air Quality Mgmt. Dist. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1012, 1018-1019, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 354 (adoption of emission reduction rule by air quality management district was quasi-legislative action subject to judicial review under Code Civ Proc. § 1085 (ordinary mandate); State Water Resources Control Bd. Cases (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 674, 726-727, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 189 (adoption of water quality control plan is quasi-legislative act); City of Arcadia v. State Water Resources Control Bd. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1392, 1409, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 373 (decision to adopt trash total maximum daily load standard (TDML plan) as part of regional water quality control plan was quasi-legislative action reviewable under ordinary mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085]); Fed. of Hillside and Canyon Ass'ns v. City of Los Angeles (2004) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1180, 1195, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 543 (city's adoption of general plan for land use and development is legislative act reviewable by writ of ordinary mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085; Reclamation District No. 684 v. State Dept. of Indus. Rel. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1000, 1004-1005, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 269 (director of state agency made prevailing wage determination for particular construction project under authority conferred by administrative regulations. Director's decision is quasi-legislative action that is subject to judicial review by writ of ordinary mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085); Vasquez v. Happy Valley Union School District (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 969, 980-981, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 15 (ordinary mandamus is the proper remedy to challenge a school district's assignment, classification, or discipline of a teacher); Marshall v. Pasadena Unified School Dist. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1241, 1253, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 344 (school district decision to award contract to construction company based on emergency resolution which bypassed competitive bidding procedures was a legislative act reviewable under ordinary mandate); Carrancho v. California Air Resources Board (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1255, 1265-1267, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 536 (agencies preparation of diversion plans and progress reports based on statutory requirements are quasi-legislative acts reviewable in ordinary mandate); Joint Council of Interns & Residents v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1202, 1209, 258 Cal. Rptr. 762 ; Carlton Santee Corp. v. Padre Dam Mun. Water Dist. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 14, 18-19, 174 Cal. Rptr. 413 ; Karlson v. Camarillo (1980) 161 Cal. Rptr. 260] .

An action may be quasi-legislative even though it:

- Determines the propriety of relief requested in a petition [Wilson v. Hidden Valley Mun. Water Dist. (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 271, 279, 63 Cal. Rptr. 889] ; or

- Is based on an evaluation of evidence presented at a hearing [Joint Council of Interns & Residents v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1202, 1211-1212, 258 Cal. Rptr. 762 ; Heist v. County of Colusa (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 841, 846, 213 Cal. Rptr. 278] .

The distinction between a quasi-legislative action and an adjudicatory action is that a quasi-legislative action involves the formulation of a rule or policy to be applied to all future cases, while an adjudicatory action involves the actual application of the rule to a specific set of facts [Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Ass'n (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 28, 34 n.2, 112 Cal. Rptr. 805, 520 P.2d 29 ; Joint Council of Interns & Residents v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1202, 1209-1210, 258 Cal. Rptr. 762 ; Patterson v. Central Coast Regional Com. (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 833, 840, 130 Cal. Rptr. 169] . For example, the enactment of a zoning ordinance for a particular area is a quasi-legislative action because it involves the adoption of a rule to be applied to all landowners within the area [see Ensign Bickford Realty Corp. v. City Council (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 467, 473, 137 Cal. Rptr. 304 , overruled in part by Hernandez v. City of Hanford (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 279, 297, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 442, 159 P.3d 33 ; see also Toso v. City of Santa Barbara (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 934, 942, 162 Cal. Rptr. 210 (denial of application for rezoning is legislative action)]. The determination of an application for a variance from the ordinance is an adjudicatory action because it involves the application of established rules to a specific set of facts applicable to a particular landowner [see Topanga Assn. for a Scenic Community v. County of Los Angeles (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 506, 514, 113 Cal. Rptr. 836, 522 P.2d 12 ; Allen v. Humboldt County Board of Supervisors (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 877, 881-882, 34 Cal. Rptr. 232] . Similarly, the fixing of employee salaries or benefits by a governmental body is a quasi-legislative action [Campbell Municipal Employees Assn. v. City of Campbell (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 416, 425 n.2, 182 Cal. Rptr. 461] , while the determination of the salary or benefits to which a particular employee is entitled under a legislative scheme is an adjudicatory function [Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Ass'n (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 28, 44, 112 Cal. Rptr. 805, 520 P.2d 29] . A litigant's challenge to adoption of air quality regulations by an agency, which is quasi-legislative action, is properly brought as a petition for traditional mandate [Western States Petroleum Assn. v. Superior Court (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 559, 567-568, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139, 888 P.2d 1268] .

The California Building Standards Commission's approval of building standards is a quasi-legislative act of administrative rulemaking that is judicially reviewable in an ordinary mandate proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 [Plastic Pipe and Fittings Association v. California Building Standards Commission (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1390, 1406-1407, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 393 (Commission adopted Uniform Plumbing Code provisions but excluded provisions of Code allowing use of PEX pipes because of concerns about public health. Trade association challenged exclusion by writ of mandate in superior court. Court of appeal reversed superior court grant of petition allowing challenge)].

[b] Refusal to Perform Ministerial Action

The refusal of an administrative official or body to perform a ministerial action is reviewable in an ordinary mandate proceeding [City of Dinuba v. County of Tulare (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 859, 868-869, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614, 161 P.3d 1168 (county had ministerial duty to calculate and distribute property tax revenue to city); Lazan v. County of Riverside (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 453, 459-460, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 394 (county had ministerial duty to file disability application on behalf of disabled employee); Great Western Sav. & Loan Assn. v. City of Los Angeles (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 403, 414, 107 Cal. Rptr. 359 ; Harbach v. El Pueblo de Los Angeles etc. Com. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 828, 834, 92 Cal. Rptr. 757] .

A ministerial action is one that an administrative official or body is required by law to perform at the occurrence of a certain contingency [Drummey v. State Bd. of Funeral Directors (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 75, 83, 87 P.2d 848 ; Morris v. Harper (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 52, 62, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62 ; Ridgecrest Charter Sch. v. Sierra Sands Unified Sch. Dist. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 986, 1002-1003, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 648 ; Great Western Sav. & Loan Assn. v. City of Los Angeles (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 403, 413, 107 Cal. Rptr. 359 ; Palmer v. Fox (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 453, 458, 258 P.2d 30] .

In determining whether an action is ministerial, the critical question is whether the official or body is authorized to exercise judgment or discretion. An administrative entity's duty to act is ministerial when the controlling statutes do not vest the entity with discretion to determine whether the prescribed contingency has occurred or what action should be taken at the occurrence of that contingency [Glendale City Employees' Assn., Inc. v. City of Glendale (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 328, 344, 124 Cal. Rptr. 513, 540 P.2d 609 (computation and payment of salaries in accordance with binding memorandum of understanding is ministerial function); Jenkins v. Knight (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 220, 223-224, 293 P.2d 6 (governor's duty to call election to fill legislative vacancy is ministerial when controlling constitutional provision does not give governor discretion to determine whether election should be called); Great Western Sav. & Loan Assn. v. City of Los Angeles (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 403, 413-414, 107 Cal. Rptr. 359 (city council's duty to approve final subdivision map on compliance with tentative map conditions was ministerial when it had no discretion under state law to withhold approval or impose additional conditions); Harbach v. El Pueblo de Los Angeles etc. Com. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 828, 834-835, 92 Cal. Rptr. 757 (duty of public commission to implement resolution requiring restoration of building as a historical monument was ministerial when it had no discretion to rescind or withdraw resolution); see also Drummey v. State Bd. of Funeral Directors (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 75, 83, 87 P.2d 848 (explaining difference between discretionary and minist erial actions); V.S. v. Allenby (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 665, 669-671, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 143 (mandamus is proper to compel the California Department of Social Services to direct county welfare departments to comply with statutory requirements under Welf. & Inst. Code § 16507.6 within 180 days of foster care placement; department had ministerial duty to direct compliance by county welfare departments)].

Mandamus is proper to compel performance when an agency fails to perform a statutorily mandated obligation to license correctional treatment centers for provision of medical services [Morris v. Harper (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 52, 58-60, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62] . Ordinary mandate was proper to compel a county to trim or remove trees on county property that exceeded height limits for the clear zone of an airport. County had mandatory ministerial duty under both state statutes [Pub. Util. Code § 21659(a)] and county ordinances to trim or remove trees that exceeded obstruction standards impacting navigable airspace [Rancho Murieta Airport, Inc. v. County of Sacramento (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 323, 326-327, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 309] .

Mandamus under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 is not proper when there is no ministerial duty for the agency to perform. Mandamus was not proper because the Board of Registered Nursing had discretion as to how it evaluated course work of out of state nursing college graduates who are seeking California nursing licenses under the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 2376. A New York college that administered a distance learning nursing degree program challenged the Board's change in practice where it reviewed the course work completed by individual applicants for nursing licenses in California rather than grant a blanket equivalency recognition for all nursing graduates of that college [Excelsior College v. Cal. Bd. of Registered Nursing (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1237-1239, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 618] . Mandamus under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 also was not proper due to a lack of a ministerial duty as the Department of Conservation did not have affirmative mandatory duties under the Beverage Container Recycling and Litter Reduction Act to provide convenient, economical, and efficient beverage container redemption opportunities for California consumers [Shamsian v. Dept. of Conserv. (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 621, 640-642, 39 Cal. Rptr.3d 62] . Mandamus is not proper to enforce a contractual obligation with a public entity [300 DeHaro Street Investors v. Department of Housing and Community Development (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1240, 1252-1254, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 98 (ordinary mandamus not proper when developer challenges denial of rent increase by department when department and developer have a rental contract. Breach of contract action coupled with declaratory relief is the proper way to challenge the denial of a rent increase)]. Mandamus is not proper for a court to order the state legislature to appropriate moneys form future budget acts to reimburse counties because this would violate separations of powers [County of San Diego v. State of California (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 580, 593-595, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 489].

Ordinary mandate was not proper to challenge the Department of Health Services (DHS) failure to implement children's health program for babies because there was no clear present ministerial duty requiring department to include "deemed eligibility" requirements in program that was based on presumptive eligibility requirements. Without a clear specific duty, ordinary mandate was not available to challenge DHS action [Doe v. Bonta (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 13, 16-17, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 66 (residents of county who challenged county's approval of residential development project and certification of environmental impact report complied with requirements of governing statute when they requested a hearing, even though they did not request a hearing date)]. When there is no clear ministerial duty owed by DMV to a vehicle owner, ordinary mandate is not available [Moran v. Cal. Dep't of Motor Vehicles (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 688, 690, 693, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116 (vehicle owner challenged DMV refusal to register vehicle because of lack of salvage certificate; Court of Appeal affirmed judgment denying writ of mandate because DMV did not owe owner a ministerial duty, and owner could not show a lack of an adequate remedy at law)]. When there is no clear ministerial duty on the part of a city to provide a subdivision developer with a specific amount of credit for private open space, ordinary mandate is not available [Branciforte Heights, LLC v. City of Santa Cruz (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 914, 939-940, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 96] .

[c] Adjudicatory Action or Decision That Is Not Subject to Review in Administrative Mandate Proceedings

An administrative action or decision is considered to be adjudicatory in nature when the administrative entity applies policies or rules to the facts of a specific case to determine whether an individual is entitled to relief or subject to punitive action [see Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Assn. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 28, 34 n.2, 112 Cal. Rptr. 805, 520 P.2d 29 ; Estes v. City of Grover City (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 509, 514, 147 Cal. Rptr. 131 ; Patterson v. Central Coast Regional Com. (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 833, 840, 130 Cal. Rptr. 169 ; see § 474.12[3][a], for discussion of adjudicatory acts and decisions]. Some administrative adjudicatory actions or decisions are subject to review in ordinary mandate proceedings. Ordinary mandate proceedings are used to review adjudicatory actions or decisions when administrative mandate is not available because the administrative entity is not required by law to hold an evidentiary h earing [American Board of Cosmetic Surgery v. Medical Board of California (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 534, 547-548, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 574 (ordinary mandate proper because Medical Board was not required by law to hold a hearing before denying a specialty board equivalency application); Munroe v. Los Angeles County Civil Service Commission (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 1295, 1302-1303, 93 Cal. Rptr. 3d 716 (wit of ordinary mandate proper way to review decision of Commission denying former employee's late filing of an appeal challenging the employee's discharge from county employment. The Commission ruled that the employee failed to establish good cause for a late appeal, and that ruling was not an abuse of discretion); Blue Cross of California v. Department of Health Services (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 322, 329, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 772 (ordinary mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 is applicable because hearing officer's decision is not based on proceeding in which hearing is required to be given by law); Decuir v. County of Los Angeles (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 75, 83, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 102 (applicant for civil service employment must seek judicial review through ordinary mandate); Weary v. Civil Service Com. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 189, 194-195, 189 Cal. Rptr. 442 (decision upholding adverse performance rating); Taylor v. State Personnel Bd. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 498, 505, 161 Cal. Rptr. 677 (decision upholding 10-day suspension); Shuffer v. Board of Trustees (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 208, 218-219, 136 Cal. Rptr. 527 (decision imposing requirements for completion of degree on graduate student)]. This principle is true even when an entity that is not required to hold an evidentiary hearing holds one [Weary v. Civil Service Com. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 189, 194-195, 189 Cal. Rptr. 442 ; Court House Plaza Co. v. City of Palo Alto (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 871, 879-880, 173 Cal. Rptr. 161 ; Taylor v. State Personnel Bd. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 498, 505, 161 Cal. Rptr. 677] . For a discussion on the requirement of an evidentiary hearing as a prerequisite of administrative mandate, see § 474.12[3][c].

[4] Facts and Evidence on Which Review Is Based

In an ordinary mandate proceeding, the administrative action or decision is reviewed in light of evidence presented by the parties in court, as well as that contained in the official record of the administrative proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1090; No Oil, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 68, 79 n.6, 118 Cal. Rptr. 34, 529 P.2d 66 ; Bruce v. Gregory (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 666, 670-671, 56 Cal. Rptr. 265, 423 P.2d 193] . In determining whether an administrative action or decision was arbitrary, capricious, or entirely lacking in evidentiary support, however, the court may only consider evidence that was before the administrative body or officer [Lewin v. St. Joseph Hospital of Orange (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 368, 387 n. 13, 146 Cal. Rptr. 892 ; Brock v. Superior Court (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 594, 607-608, 241 P.2d 283] .

In determining whether there is substantial evidence to support an agency's quasi-legislative action, such as the adoption of air quality regulations, the reviewing court may generally only consider the administrative record [Western States Petroleum Assn. v. Superior Court (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 559, 574, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139, 888 P.2d 1268] . Extra-record evidence cannot be introduced in court in traditional mandate actions reviewing quasi-legislative action to show that the agency has not proceeded in a manner required by law [Western States Petroleum Assn. v. Superior Court (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 559, 577, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139, 888 P.2d 1268 ; San Joaquin Local Agency Formation Commission v. Superior Court (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 159, 163, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 93 (protective order prohibiting taking depositions of LAFCP commissioners and executive officer was justified because extra record evidence was not admissible in ordinary mandate proceeding, and deliberative process privilege would be violated if discovery allowed); Carrancho v. California Air Resources Board (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1255, 1269, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 536]. The "reasonable diligence" exception to this rule only allows introduction of extra-record evidence when the evidence existed before the agency made its decision and the evidence could not have been presented to the agency before the decision was made in the exercise of reasonable diligence [Western States Petroleum Assn. v. Superior Court (1995) 9 Cal. 4th 559, 579, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139, 888 P.2d 1268] .

[5] Relief Available

The principal form of relief available in an ordinary mandate proceeding is a peremptory writ of mandate--a form of court order--compelling the administrative official or entity to take the actions that are mandatory under the law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085; Forest Lawn Co. v. City Council (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 343, 346, 53 Cal. Rptr. 452 ; Bollotin v. Workman Service Co. (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 339, 342-343, 275 P.2d 599] . When an administrative entity has discretion to determine whether an adequate factual basis exists for a given action or decision, or to determine what type of action or decision is warranted under a set of facts, a peremptory writ issued in an ordinary mandate proceeding cannot compel the entity to exercise its discretion in a particular way or to reach a particular result [Common Cause v. Board of Supervisors (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 432, 445-446, 261 Cal. Rptr. 574, 777 P.2d 610 ; Lindell Co. v. Board of Permit Appeals (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 303, 315, 144 P.2d 4 ; Better Alternatives for Neighborhoods v. Heyman (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 663, 672, 260 Cal. Rptr. 758 ; Riggs v. City of Oxnard (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 526, 530, 201 Cal. Rptr. 291] . When, however, undisputed facts establish that a petitioner is entitled to a particular action or decision as a matter of right, the writ may compel that action or decision [County of Sacramento v. Loeb (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 446,

449-450, 206 Cal. Rptr. 626 (writ issued to compel State Department of Mental Health to recommend payment of counties' claims for reimbursement under Short-Doyle Act); Thelander v. City of El Monte(1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 736, 748, 195 Cal. Rptr. 318 (writ issued to compel city and pension board to award disability pension to petitioner)]. For example, when an agency is required by law to issue regulations, then the issuance of the regulations is a public duty that a citizen has a right to compel by a petition for a writ of mandate [Newland v. Kizer (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 647, 652, 654-656, 257 Cal. Rptr. 450 ; Madera Community Hospital v. County of Madera (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 136, 152, 201 Cal. Rptr. 768] . The court may not, however, compel the agency to exercise its discretion in a particular manner by mandating the substance and content of the regulations [Newland v. Kizer (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 647, 655, 257 Cal. Rptr. 450 ; Sklar v. Franchise Tax Board (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 616, 625-626, 230 Cal. Rptr. 42] .

A peremptory writ issued in an ordinary mandate proceeding may also compel an administrative entity to do any of the following:

- Exercise its discretion and make a determination, when it has refused to act [Ballard v. Anderson (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 873, 884-885, 95 Cal. Rptr. 1, 484 P.2d 1345 (writ issued to compel County Therapeutic Abortion Committee to determine minor's application for abortion without requiring parental consent); Hollman v. Warren (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 351, 355, 196 P.2d 562 (writ issued to compel governor to exercise discretion concerning appointment of notaries public)].

- Annul its action or decision, when it has exceeded its powers [Aylward v. State Board etc. Examiners (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 833, 839, 192 P.2d 929 (writ issued to compel State Board of Chiropractic Examiners to annul order canceling chiropractic licenses when order made without notice or hearing); B.W. v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 219, 233-234, 215 Cal. Rptr. 130 (writ issued to compel Medical Board of California to annul order imposing disciplinary action against physician when statute prohibited imposition of disciplinary action under facts of case)].

- Set aside its decision and exercise its discretion in accordance with applicable laws and rules, when it has acted arbitrarily or failed to follow applicable procedural rules [Anderson v. Phillips (1975) 13 Cal. 3d. 733, 737, 119 Cal. Rptr. 879, 532 P.2d 1247 (writ issued to compel presiding judge to exercise discretion to assign business to duly appointed judge under proper interpretation of applicable law); see also Clean Air Constituency v. California State Air Resources Bd. (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 801, 819-820, 114 Cal. Rptr. 577, 523 P.2d 617 (writ issued to compel California State Air Resources Board to vacate unauthorized regulation and enforce emission control program according to governing statute); Fidelity & Cas. Co. of New York v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1016, 163 Cal. Rptr. 339 (writ issued to compel Workers' Compensation Appeals Board to determine petition for reconsideration according to statutory and constitutionally mandated procedures)].

- Perform a duty that is purely ministerial [Glendale City Employees' Assn., Inc. v. City of Glendale (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 328, 344, 124 Cal. Rptr. 513, 540 P.2d 609 (writ issued to compel city to pay employee salaries according to binding memorandum of understanding); Harbach v. El Pueblo de Los Angeles etc. Com. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 828, 834, 92 Cal. Rptr. 757 (writ issued to compel public commission to follow resolution to relocate and restore historical building)].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamusGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsAdministrative BoardsGovernmentsLocal GovernmentsEmployees & OfficialsGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsEmployees & Officials

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 474 AVAILABILITY OF JUDICIAL REVIEW OF AGENCY DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Review by Writ of Mandate

41A-474 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 474.12

§ 474.12 Review in Administrative Mandate Proceedings

[1] Nature of Review

Administrative mandate proceedings are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5. In an administrative mandate proceeding, the court reviews a final adjudicatory order or decision of an administrative entity to determine one or more of the following matters [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b); Selby Realty Co. v. City of San Buenaventura (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 110, 123-124, 109 Cal. Rptr. 799,514 P.2d 111 ; Windigo Mills v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 586, 595, 155 Cal. Rptr. 63] :

- Whether the entity proceeded without jurisdiction or, alternatively, exceeded its jurisdiction.

- Whether the entity conducted a fair trial [An administrative entity proceeds by conducting a hearing. However, the statutory wording "fair trial" is used here to distinguish these issues from the constitutional issue of "notice and fair hearing."].

- Whether the entity committed a prejudicial abuse of discretion. An abuse of discretion is established only by a showing that [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b); Selby Realty Co. v. City of San Buenaventura (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 110, 123-124, 109 Cal. Rptr. 799, 514 P.2d 111 (complaint sufficiently alleged abuse of discretion); Windigo Mills v. Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 586, 595, 155 Cal. Rptr. 63 (evidence sufficient to support finding that Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board abused its discretion in allowing unemployment benefits)]:

  - The entity has not proceeded in the manner provided by law;

  - The order or decision is not supported by the findings; or

  - The findings are not supported by the evidence.

Depending on the nature of the order or decision and the administrative entity, the court reviews the sufficiency of the evidence supporting an administrative order or decision under one of two standards established by Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(c). These standards are as follows:

- The "independent judgment" standard, which is applied by the court when an order or decision of an administrative entity that is not constitutionally vested with judicial powers affects a fundamental vested right; in this instance, the court reweighs the evidence and makes its own independent findings of fact [Harlow v. Carleson (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 731, 734-735, 129 Cal. Rptr. 298, 548 P.2d 698 (decision upholding termination of welfare benefits reviewable under independent judgment standard); Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Ass'n (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 28 (decision denying death allowance claimed under provisions of county retirement plan reviewable under independent judgment standard); Los Angeles County Employees' Assn. v. Sanitation Dist. No. 2 (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 294 (decision upholding discharge of permanent civil service employee reviewable under independent judgment standard); Guymon v. Board of Accountancy (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 128 Cal. Rptr. 137 (decision revoking license to practice accountancy reviewable under independent judgment standard); see also Bixby v. Pierno (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 130, 137-147, 93 Cal. Rptr. 234, 481 P.2d 242 (discussing when independent judgment standard applies)].

- The court applies the "substantial evidence" standard when the administrative entity has exercised judicial powers granted to it by the California Constitution; in this instance, the court reviews the evidence only to determine whether the administrative entity's findings are supported by substantial evidence in light of the whole record [County of Los Angeles v. Commission on State Mandates (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1176, 1186, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 419 (substantial evidence review specified by statute Gov. Code § 17559(b) for decision of Commission on State Mandates which is a constitutional agency under Cal. Const. Art. XIII, § 6); Respers v. University of Cal. Retirement System (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 864, 873-874, 217 Cal. Rptr. 594 (decision of University of California Retirement System denying retirement benefits reviewable under substantial evidence standard); Jones v. Superior Court (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 725, 727-730, 170 Cal. Rptr. 837 (decision of California Horse Racing Board suspending trainer's license reviewable under substantial evidence standard)]. The court also used this standard when the administrative order or decision does not affect a fundamental vested right [Turner v. Board of Trustees (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 818, 824, 129 Cal. Rptr. 443, 548 P.2d 1115 (school board's decision not to rehire probationary teacher reviewable under substantial evidence standard); Bixby v. Pierno (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 130, 147-148, 93 Cal. Rptr. 234, 481 P.2d 242 (decision of commissioner of corporations approving recapitalization plan for closely held corporation reviewable under substantial evidence standard); Whaler's Village Club v. California Coastal Com. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 240, 251, 220 Cal. Rptr. 2 (decision of California Coastal Commission imposing conditions on development of coastal property reviewable under substantial evidence standard); Toczauer v. State Bd. of Registration (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 1067, 1069-1070, 98 Cal. Rptr. 211 , appeal dismissed, 406 U.S. 913, 92 S. Ct. 1806, 32 L. Ed. 2d 113 (decision of State Board of Registration denying application for registration as industrial engineer under grandfather clause reviewable under substantial evidence standard)]. Decisions of the Commission on State Mandates denying test claims by local agencies are reviewable in court only by administrative mandamus [County of Los Angeles v. Commission on State Mandates (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1176, 1186, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 419 (judicial review under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 specified by Gov. Code § 17559(b) for decision of Commission on State Mandates which is a constitutional agency under Cal. Const. Art. XIII, § 6)].

For a more detailed discussion of the applicability of the independent judgment and substantial evidence standards of review in administrative mandate proceedings, see Ch. 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions, § 474B.16.

[2] Administrative Officials and Bodies Subject to Administrative Mandate Proceedings

Gov. Code § 11523 provides that adjudicatory orders and decisions made under the procedures of the Administrative Procedures Act are reviewable by writ of mandate. However, review by administrative mandate proceedings is not limited to those administrative officials and bodies subject to the Administrative Procedures Act. Under the broader provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, administrative mandate lies against any administrative entity issuing a formal adjudicative order or decision meeting the prerequisites specified in section 1094.5 [Temescal Water Co. v. Dept. of Public Works (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 90, 100-101, 280 P.2d 1 ; Boren v. State Personnel Board (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 634, 637, 234 P.2d 981 ; El Dorado Irrigation Dist. v. State Water Resources Control Board (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 937, 960, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 468 (water resources control board performs adjudicatory functions in allocating water rights; challenges to water rights decisions are reviewed under administrative mandamus statute, Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5); Bldg Industry Ass'n of San Diego County v. State Water Resources Control Bd (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 866, 879, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 128 (state water board decision approving municipal storm water sewer permit was subject to judicial review by petition for a writ of mandate under Water Code § 13330(a) and Code Civ Proc. § 1094.5 (administrative mandate); the prerequisites for review under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 are discussed in [3], below]. Decisions of private universities to deny tenure to a professor, or to revoke the tenure of a tenured professor, are subject to challenge by administrative mandate [Pomona College v. Superior Court (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1716, 1729, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 662 (denial of tenure); Gutkin v. University of So. California (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 967, 978-979, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 115 (revocation of tenure); Pollock v. Univ. of S. Cal. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1425-1426, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 122 (revocation of tenure)]. Decisions of private universities to impose academic discipline on students are subject to challenge by administrative mandate because university disciplinary proceedings provide for a formal evidentiary hearing [Gupta v. Stanford Univ. (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 407, 411-412, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 192] . Administrative mandate is not available to review decisions of arbitrators [Zazueta v. County of San Benito (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 106, 110-111, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 678] .

However, some state agency decisions are not subject to judicial review under a writ of administrative mandate. The State Water Resources Control Board refused to review a decision of a regional water quality control board assessing substantial administrative penalties against a farm property owner for violating provisions of water pollution control laws. The State Board had discretion to review regional board decisions under Water Code § 13320(a) but the Board had adopted regulations [Cal. Code Regs., tit. 23, § 2052 (a)(1)] limiting review of regional board decisions to those that raise substantial issues. The Court of Appeal held that the decision of the state board refusing to review the regional board decision was not subject to judicial review under administrative mandate [Johnson v. State Water Resources Control Board (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1107, 1112-1114, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 441] . The Court of Appeal in Johnson cited and relied upon the Court of Appeal decision in People ex rel. Cal. Regional Wat. Quality Control Bd. v. Barry (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 158, 176-177 in ruling on the case. The Court of Appeal also noted that the regional board order was subject to judicial review, and the property owner had a pending action in the superior court challenging that regional board order [Johnson v. State Water Resources Control Bd. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1107, 1112-1114, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 441] .

[3] Prerequisites for Review of Administrative Order or Decision in Administrative Mandate Proceeding

[a] Adjudicatory Order or Decision

An administrative order or decision is reviewable in an administrative mandate proceeding only if it is adjudicatory in nature [Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Ass'n (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 28, 34 n.2, 112 Cal. Rptr. 805, 520 P.2d 29 ; American Canyon Community United for Responsible Growth v. City of American Canyon (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 1062, 1069-1071, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 312 (city decision concluding that supplemental environmental review was not necessary when project changed was adjudicative decision review able under administrative mandate); State Water Resources Control Board Cases (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 674, 720-722, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 189 (board decisions that allocate water rights are adjudicatory decisions that are reviewable by administrative mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5); Wilson v. Hidden Valley Mun. Water Dist. (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 271, 279, 63 Cal. Rptr. 889 ;

Brock v. Superior Court (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 594, 598-601, 241 P.2d 283] . An action or decision is adjudicatory when it involves the application of existing rules and policies to a specific set of facts to reach a conclusion affecting the rights of a specific person [Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Ass'n (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 28, 34 n. 2, 112 Cal. Rptr. 805, 520 P.2d 29 ; Estes v. City of Grover City (1978) 82 Cal. App. 3d 509, 514, 147 Cal. Rptr. 131 ; Patterson v. Central Coast Regional Com. (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 833, 840, 130 Cal. Rptr. 169] . Common types of adjudicatory decisions subject to review in administrative mandate proceedings are those that, on the basis of factual determinations relating to the applicability of controlling laws or regulations, do one or more of the following:

- Grant or deny a land use permit or variance [Saad v. City of Berkeley (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1206, 1211, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 95 (denial of a land use permit to build a residence on a lot); Eureka Citizens for Responsible Government v. City of Eureka (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 357, 366-367, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 485 (approval of a zoning variance to expand a school playground)].

- Deny or revoke licenses or permits that are prerequisites to engaging in certain activities [see, e.g., Selby Realty Co. v. San Buenaventura (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 110, 109 Cal. Rptr. 799, 514 P.2d 111 (denial of application for building permit); Tringham v. State Board of Education (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 507, 326 P.2d 850 (revocation of teaching credential); Guymon v. Board of Accountancy (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 128 Cal. Rptr. 137 (revocation of license to practice accountancy)].

- Deny or terminate government benefits [see, e.g., Frink v. Prod (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 166, 181 Cal. Rptr. 893, 643 P.2d 476 (denial of application for welfare benefits); Harlow v. Carleson (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 731, 129 Cal. Rptr. 298, 548 P.2d 698 (termination of welfare benefits); King v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 199, 101 Cal. Rptr. 660 (denial of application for unemployment insurance benefits)].

- Impose discipline or penalties under a regulatory scheme [see, e.g., Moran v. Board of Medical Examiners (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 301, 196 P.2d 20 (suspension of medical license); McConville v. Alexis (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 593, 159 Cal. Rptr. 49 (suspension of driver's license); David Kikkert & Associates, Inc. v. Shine (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 112, 86 Cal. Rptr. 161 (suspension of collection agency license)].

- Terminate government employment [see, e.g., Jabola v. Pasadena Redevelopment Agency (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 931, 178 Cal. Rptr. 452 (discharge of employee terminable only for cause); Los Angeles County Employees' Assn. v. Sanitation Dist. No. 2 (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 294, 152 Cal. Rptr. 415 (discharge of permanent civil service employee)].

- Claims for reimbursement by local government entities or school districts for increased costs incurred by local government that are mandated by state statutes. The Commission on State Mandates [Gov. Code § 17525] has the responsibility to determine whether claims for reimbursement will be granted. Those decisions are subject to judicial review under a writ of administrative mandamus [Gov. Code § 17551]. Increased costs incurred by school districts for providing hearings, including federally required hearing procedures, meet the "higher level of service" requirement of Cal. Const., Art. XIII B, § 6, and therefore satisfy the requirements for a reimbursable state mandate for all hearing costs incurred by school districts when state law requires suspension and mandates expulsion of a student found to have committed certain offenses [Educ. Code § 48915], but not when state law makes expulsion discretionary [Educ. Code § 48915]. Costs related to discretionary expulsions, including costs for hearing procedures that exceed federal law requirements, do not satisfy the higher level of service requirement for reimbursement by the state [San Diego Unified School Dist. v. Commission on State Mandates (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 859, 866-867, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 466, 94 P.3d 589] .

- Property tax assessment disputes in which the taxpayer applies for a reduction of a tax assessment, requests a hearing after the tax assessment board denies that application, and the assessment board fails to provide a hearing to the taxpayer on his claim. Administrative mandate applies regardless of whether the Board in fact held a hearing [Helene Curtis, Inc. v. Los Angeles County Assessment Appeals Bds. (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 29, 36-37, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 658] .

[b] Final Order or Decision

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, only a "final order or decision" can be reviewed in an administrative mandate proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a); Prip v. City of Santa Barbara (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 626, 630-631, 29 Cal. Rptr. 558] .

State agency decisions subject to the APA [see Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.; see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication, § 473.15] are final 30 days after the agency decision is delivered or mailed to the respondent, unless the agency orders a reconsideration within the 30-day period, grants a stay of execution, or orders the decision to be effective at an earlier date [Gov. Code § 11519(a); Moran v. Board of Medical Examiners (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 301, 304, 196 P.2d 20 ; Governing Board v. Commission on Professional Competence (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 447, 455, 140 Cal. Rptr. 206 ; Kramer v. State Board of Accountancy (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 163, 176, 19 Cal. Rptr. 226] . For more detailed discussion of the finality of decisions and period of limitations under the APA, see Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions, §§ 474A.10[3][b] and 474A.20[2][b].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b) sets forth the rules for determining the finality of certain types of decisions or orders made by a decision or order of a local agency [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(a), (e)]. Section 1094.6 applies to decisions suspending, demoting, or dismissing an officer or employee, revoking, or denying an application for a permit, license, or other entitlement, or denying an application for a retirement benefit or allowance [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(e)]. Section 1094.6 applies to those agencies, other than school districts, that are defined as local agencies by Gov. Code § 54951, which defines a local agency as "a county, city, whether general law or chartered, city and county, town, school district, municipal corporation, district, political subdivision, or any board, commission or agency thereof, or other local public agency. For discussion of the rules for determining finality of a decision and the period of limitations under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b), see Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions, §§ 474A.10[3][b] and 474A.20[3][c].

The finality of agency adjudicatory decision not subject to the APA is determined by examining provisions of the agency governing statute. For example, decisions of the Agricultural Labor Relations Board are final when issued and the appealing party must file its petition for review within 30 days "of the date of issuance of the Board's order ... " [Lab. Code § 1160.8; United Farm Workers of America v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1985) 37 Cal. 3d 912, 915, 210 Cal. Rptr. 453, 694 P.2d 138] .

The rules for determining when other adjudicative decisions or orders are final for the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 are not covered by statute and do not appear to have been discussed by California appellate courts. Under decisions arising in other contexts, the finality of administrative orders and decisions is determined by ascertaining the intent of the legislative scheme under which the administrative entity is empowered to act. An order or decision is ordinarily deemed final when, under the applicable legislative scheme, the entity loses its jurisdiction to reconsider the decision and reach a different conclusion [Lindell Co. v. Board of Permit Appeals (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 303, 323, 144 P.2d 4 ; In re Fain (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 376, 390, 135 Cal. Rptr. 543 ; McDonald's Systems of California, Inc. v. Board of Permit Appeals (1975) 119 Cal. Rptr. 26] . Gov. Code § 11523 appears to confirm, by implication, the applicability of this general rule to decisions governed by the Administrative Procedure Act (APA) [see Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.], since it provides that the limitations period for proceedings to review such decisions commences on the termination of the administrative agency's power to order reconsideration.

[c] Order or Decision Resulting From Evidentiary Hearing Required by Law

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 applies only when an administrative order or decision is made as a result of a proceeding in which by law a hearing is required and evidence must be taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a); Keeler v. Superior Court (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 596, 598-599, 297 P.2d 967 ; Department of Corrections v. Office of Administrative Hearings (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1100, 1106-1107, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 473 (review of decision based on administrative hearing required for renewed petition for involuntary medication of prisoner); Weary v. Civil Service Com. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 189, 194-195, 189 Cal. Rptr. 442 ; Taylor v. State Personnel Bd. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 498, 505, 161 Cal. Rptr. 677] . When the administrative entity is not required to conduct an evidentiary hearing, its order or decision cannot be reviewed in an administrative mandate proceeding, even if the entity has discretion to conduct an evidentiary hearing and does, in fact, base its decision on an evidentiary hearing [Weary v. Civil Service Com. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 189, 194-195, 189 Cal. Rptr. 442 ; Court House Plaza Co. v. City of Palo Alto (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 871, 879-880, 173 Cal. Rptr. 161 ; Taylor v. State Personnel Bd. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 498, 505, 161 Cal. Rptr. 677] . Absent other provisions negating the requirement for an evidentiary hearing, however, a requirement for such a hearing may be implied from provisions in the controlling legislative scheme that either preclude the administrative entity from acting in the absence of cause [Ratliff v. Lampton (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 226, 230, 195 P.2d 792 ; Steen v. Board of Civil Service Commrs. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 716, 723, 160 P.2d 816] or grant a right of appeal [Chavez v. Civil Service Com. (1978) 86 Cal. App. 3d 324, 332, 150 Cal. Rptr. 197] .

Administrative mandamus under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 is not available when the party seeking a writ of administrative mandamus did not have a right to an evidentiary hearing under the law [300 DeHaro Street Investors v. Department of Housing and Community Development (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1240, 1250-1252, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 98 (no hearing required by law when department denied rent increase sought by developer. Judicial review under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 was not available)]. Mandamus was sought by a New York college that administered a distance learning nursing degree program. The Court of Appeal held that mandamus was not proper because the college did not have a due process protected property interest in the continued recognition of equivalency for that program by the California Board of Registered Nursing. Thus, the college did not have the right to an evidentiary hearing to challenge the Board's change in practice to review the course work completed by individual applicants for nursing licenses in California rather than grant a blanket equivalency recognition for all nursing graduates of that college [Excelsior College v. Cal. Bd. of Registered Nursing (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1218, 1237-1239, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 618] .

The California Supreme Court has also inferred a right to a hearing to ensure that the law is consistent with requirements of due process of law [Traverso v. People ex rel. Dept. of Transportation (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 1152, 1163-1166, 26 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217, 864 P.2d 488] . The California Court of Appeal held that the child abuse or neglect reporting statutes [Penal Code §§ 11165.7, 11165.9, 11169] required an "active investigation" by the social services agency (SSA), and contemplated some form of hearing to a parent responding to a child abuse charge that was reported to the child abuse central index (CACI). Thus, the Superior Court had jurisdiction to review a parent's challenge to the SSA decision to report the parent for suspected child abuse under a writ of administrative mandate authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 because the decision of the county met the requirement that "by law a hearing is required to be given" [Burt v. County of Orange (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 273, 281-283, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 373] .

However, judicial review is not available for recoupment efforts based on an audit of hospital performance of terms and conditions of a negotiated contract for MediCal services unless there has been a prior administrative review of the recoupment efforts [Cedars-Sinai Med. Center v. Shewry (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 964, 976-978, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 48] .

[d] Improper Petition for Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 Relief Not to Be Dismissed if Adequate for Ordinary Mandate

Even when relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 is unavailable because the board or agency was not required to hold an evidentiary hearing, a court should not dismiss a petition for administrative mandate if the allegations of the petition entitle the petitioner to ordinary mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 [Coelho v. State Personnel Bd. (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 968, 971, 257 Cal. Rptr. 557 ; see Woods v. Superior Court (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 668, 673-674, 170 Cal. Rptr. 484, 620 P.2d 1032 (demurrer to petition for extraordinary relief should be overruled when the allegations of the petition entitle the petitioner to ordinary mandate, even though the petition erroneously requests administrative mandate)]. For discussion of ordinary mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085, see § 474.11.

[4] Facts and Evidence on Which Review Is Based

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e) authorizes the court to admit additional relevant evidence if it finds either one of the following: (1) the evidence could not have been produced at the administrative hearing in the exercise of due diligence; or (2) the evidence was improperly excluded at the administrative hearing.

The California Court of Appeal held that a developer had the right to introduce new evidence relating to bias by the decision maker at the superior court level during the mandamus proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e). The developer satisfied the statutory test that the evidence could not have been produced at the administrative hearing under the reasonable diligence standard because he did not have the opportunity to take the deposition of the commissioner until the mandamus proceeding was in the superior court. Thus, the new evidence of the commissioner's bias could properly have been introduced at the judicial review stage [Nasha L.L.C. v. City of Los Angeles (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 470, 485-486, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 772] .

The California Court of Appeal held that there was no valid basis to remand a matter to permit the school district a second chance to present authentication evidence so that videotape evidence could be properly admitted into evidence at an administrative hearing [Ashford v. Culver City Unified Sch. Dist. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 344, 346-347, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728] . The foundation (authentication evidence) was not improperly excluded from evidence, as it was never offered into evidence by the district, and there was no showing as to why the foundation evidence could not have been presented, with reasonable diligence, at the original hearing. Thus, there was no basis for a remand for new evidence under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e) [Ashford v. Culver City Unified Sch. Dist. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 344, 350-351, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728] . The videotape evidence was considered to be hearsay evidence. Videotapes are also considered to be writings that must be authenticated before being admitted into evidence. Unauthenticated videotapes can not be properly admitted into evidence, and without an authenticating foundation these videotapes are considered to be irrelevant and unreliable evidence. Admission of these videotapes was objected to and the videotapes (of a school district employee) were considered to be hearsay evidence offered to prove the truth of the matter asserted [Ashford v. Culver City Unified Sch. District (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 344, 350-351, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 728] .

Except in those cases in which Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e) authorizes the admission of additional evidence, the court's review of the administrative order or decision must be based solely on the record of the proceedings before the administrative body [Pegues v. Civil Service Com. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 95, 103-104, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705 ; PMI Mortgage Ins. Co. v. City of Pacific Grove (1981) 128 Cal. App. 3d 724, 729, 179 Cal. Rptr. 185 ; Transcentury Properties, Inc. v. State of California (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 835, 842, 116 Cal. Rptr. 487] .

In cases in which the court is authorized to exercise its independent judgment on the evidence, a court admitting additional evidence under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 has discretion to either proceed to make its independent assessment of the evidence or to remand the case to the administrative body with directions to reconsider the order or decision in light of the additional evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(d); Tiholiz v. Northridge Hospital Foundation (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 1197, 1204-1205, 199 Cal. Rptr. 338 ; Hand v. Board of Examiners (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 605, 616-617, 136 Cal. Rptr. 187] .

In instances in which the substantial evidence standard applies, the court must remand the case for reconsideration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(d)].

For discussion of when these different standards apply, see Ch. 474B, Standards in Reviewing Agency Decisions, § 474B.16.

[5] Relief Available

[a] Reversal or Annulment of Order if Agency Acted in Excess of Jurisdiction

When the administrative body has acted in excess of its jurisdiction by determining a matter it is not constitutionally or legislatively empowered to determine, the judgment directs the entity to reverse or annul its order or decision, but will not authorize further proceedings [see BMW of North America, Inc. v. New Motor Vehicle Bd. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 980, 994, 209 Cal. Rptr. 50 ; Foth v. City of Long Beach (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 520, 530-531, 270 P.2d 868] .

[b] No Control or Limitation of Discretion Vested in Agency; Remand Required

Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 governs the relief that may be awarded in an administrative mandate proceeding. Section 1094.5 authorizes the court to set aside the administrative order or decision and to direct the administrative body to reconsider it or to proceed in the manner required by law. However, Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 also provides that the court may not enter a judgment that limits or controls the discretion vested in the administrative body. Thus, when discretion to make particular determinations is vested in the administrative body, the court cannot substitute its decision for that of the administrative body. If the administrative body has abused its discretion, the proper procedure is for the court to remand the case to the administrative body for rehearing or reconsideration, not to decide it on the merits [Fascination, Inc. v. Hoover (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 260, 265, 246 P.2d 656 ; Carson Gardens L.L.C. v. City of Carson Mobilehome Park Rental Review Bd. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 856, 858-859, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 768 (superior court exceeded judicial authority when it decided what the correct amount of a rent increase would be instead of remanding decision back to rent review board to decide rent increase question); Walters v. Pine Cove CountyWater Dist. (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 498, 500, 2 Cal. Rptr. 253 ; National Auto. & Cas Ins. Co. v. Downey (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 586, 594, 220 P.2d 962] . Nonetheless, when a court determines that a penalty is so excessive as to constitute an abuse of discretion, the court has the power to direct the agency to set a lesser penalty than the penalty found to be excessive. The precise terms of this lesser penalty remain within the agency's discretion [Richardson v. Board of Supervisors (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 486, 495, 250 Cal. Rptr. 1] .

A remand to the administrative body for rehearing or further proceedings is ordinarily ordered when the administrative body has acted in one or more of the following ways:

- Failed to follow applicable procedural rules [Fascination, Inc. v. Hoover (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 260, 268, 246 P.2d 656 ; National Auto & Cas Ins. Co. v. Downey (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 586, 594, 220 P.2d 962] ;

- Denied the petitioner a fair hearing [English v. City of Long Beach (1950) 35 Cal. 2d. 155, 159-160, 217 P.2d 22 ; Walters v. Pine Cove County Water Dist. (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 498, 500, 2 Cal. Rptr. 253] ;

- Made findings that are insufficient to support the decision or to permit adequate review [Fairfield v. Superior Court (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 768, 779, 122 Cal. Rptr. 543, 537 P.2d 375 ; American Funeral Concepts v. Board of Funeral Directors & Embalmers (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 303, 311 n.7, 186 Cal. Rptr. 196 ; Hadley v. City of Ontario (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 121, 130, 117 Cal. Rptr. 513] .

- Failed to comply with court ordered methodologies on remand [Carson Gardens L.L.C. v. City of Carson Mobilehome Park Rental Review Bd. (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 856, 858-859, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d

768 (rental review board rent increase decision was reversed on judicial review because board failed to include mortgage interest costs in determining fair rate of return calculation. On remand, board again failed to include mortgage interest costs in determining rent increase, and reviewing court overturned board's decision a second time. However, superior court exceeded judicial authority when it decided what the correct amount of a rent increase would be instead of remanding decision back to rent review board a second time to decide rent increase question)].

The Court of Appeal held that the Medical Board of California deprived a physician of due process of law by conducting a fundamentally unfair physician license revocation hearing when the Board disqualified all of the doctor's experts as to standard of care, thereby precluding the doctor from putting on any evidence in his defense to charges that the doctors treatment of several patients was grossly negligent or was an extreme departure from the standard of practice [Sinaiko v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1133, 1137, 1141, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371] . The Court of Appeal also applied the independent judgment test to review the fairness of the administrative hearing as a matter of law [Sinaiko v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1133, 1140-1141, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371] . Finally the Court of Appeal held that this case must be remanded to the Medical Board to consider the evidence presented by the doctor's experts. It was not proper for the reviewing (superior) court to admit the evidence under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(e), and then to reweigh the evidence to support the Medical Board's fact findings because this was an unfair proceeding. It is the agency's responsibility to consider the evidence erroneously excluded and to make an informed decision based on that evidence and agency expertise. Thus, a remand to the agency is required [Sinaiko v. Superior Court (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1133, 1146-1147, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 371] .

[c] When Substantial Evidence Standard Applies

If the evidence is insufficient to support the findings of the administrative body in a case in which the substantial evidence standard applies, the court will take one of two actions, depending on the nature of the evidence adduced at the administrative hearing:

- If there are material conflicts in the evidence so that it will support more than one decision or order, the court must remand the case for rehearing or further proceedings; it may not make its own findings and decide the matter on the merits [Fascination, Inc. v. Hoover (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 260, 268, 246 P.2d 656 ; Walters v. Pine Cove County Water Dist. (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 498, 500-501, 2 Cal. Rptr. 253] .

- If the evidence is such that it will support only one particular order or decision, the court may direct the administrative body to enter that order or decision [Tripp v. Swoap (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 671, 677, 131 Cal. Rptr. 789, 552 P.2d 749 , overruled on other grounds, Frink v. Prod (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 166, 180, 181 Cal. Rptr. 893, 643 P.2d 476 ; Ross Gen. Hosp., Inc. v. Lackner (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 346, 354, 147 Cal. Rptr. 801] .

[d] When Independent Judgment Standard Applies

If the factual findings made by a court reviewing the evidence under the independent judgment standard establish the petitioner's right to a particular order or decision, the judgment may direct the administrative body to enter that order or decision [see, e.g., Byrnes v. Riles (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 1170, 1176, 204 Cal. Rptr. 100 (directing school district to grant handicapped student's claim for private school tuition and transportation); Anderson v. City of La Mesa (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 657, 660-661, 173 Cal. Rptr. 572 (directing city to grant application for variance and use permit); Quintana v. Board of Administration (1976) 54 Cal. App. 3d 1018, 1021, 127 Cal. Rptr. 11 (directing board to grant disability claim)]. But, when the administrative body has discretion to determine what penalty should be imposed, or what action should be taken as a result of the facts found by the court, the case is remanded for determination of the appropriate penalty or action [see Zink v. City of Sausalito (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 662, 666, 139 Cal. Rptr. 59] .

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewAbuse of DiscretionAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewDe Novo ReviewAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewExceeding Statutory AuthorityAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewStandards of ReviewSubstantial EvidenceGovernmentsState & Territorial GovernmentsEmployees & Officials

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 474 AVAILABILITY OF JUDICIAL REVIEW OF AGENCY DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Review by Writ of Mandate

41A-474 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 474.13

§ 474.13 Requirements Common to All Mandate Proceedings

[1] Beneficially Interested Petitioner

[a] Nature of Requirement

Standing to bring a mandate action is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1086, which requires that the petitioner be "beneficially interested" in the administrative action or decision at issues [Carsten v. Psychology Examining Com. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 793, 796, 166 Cal. Rptr. 844, 614 P.2d 276 ; Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351, 254 P.2d 6 ; Santiago County Water Dist. v. County of Orange (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 818, 832, 173 Cal. Rptr. 602] . The requirement of petitioner's beneficial interest applies in administrative mandate as well as ordinary mandate proceedings [Employees Service Asso. v. Grady (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 817, 826, 52 Cal. Rptr. 831 ; Grant v. Board of Medical Examiners (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 820, 826, 43 Cal. Rptr. 270] .

The steelworkers union had standing (was beneficially interested) under Code of Civil Procedure § 1086 as a citizen litigant to challenge regulatory approvals related to a streambed alteration agreement [Environmental Protection & Information Center v. California Dept. of Forestry & Fire Protection (2008) 44 Cal. 4th 459, 479-481, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 28, 187 P.3d 888]. A nonprofit corporation and a low income plaintiff had standing as citizen litigants to challenge the alleged failure of a city to adopt a low income housing plan [Urban Habitat Program v. City of Pleasanton (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1561, 1580-1581, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 300]. Counties had standing to challenge the constitutionality of state laws that imposed direct obligation on counties, but counties did not have standing to challenge the constitutionality of state laws that did not impose obligations of counties [County of San Diego v. San Diego NORML (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 798, 817-818, 81 Cal. Rptr. 3d 461]. Hospitals have standing to challenge a freeze on Medicaid reimbursement rates enacted by the state legislature. Hospitals are beneficially interested under Code Civ. Proc. § 1086 because they have an interest in the proper administration of the Medicaid laws that is distinct from the interest of the public at large in that they are adversely affected by the reimbursement rate freeze [Mission Hospital Regional Medical Center v. Shewry (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 460, 478-480, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 639].

Members of the public have standing under the public trust doctrine to challenge harm to the public trust related to wildlife including raptors and other birds allegedly harmed by wind turbines [Center for Biological Diversity v. FPL Group, Inc. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1349, 1364-1366, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 588]. However, members of the public seeking to challenge harm to the public trust must file a lawsuit against the responsible public agencies, the County of alameda, and the California Department of Fish and Game, which are charged with enforcing the public trust. They may not file a lawsuit against the operators of the wind turbines that have allegedly caused the harm [Center for Biological Diversity v. FPL Group, Inc. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1349, 1366-1368, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 588]. Failure to join the County of Alameda under Code Civ. Proc. § 389 is grounds for dismissing the action. The county is a necessary party because it issued the wind turbine permits being challenged. Because the limitations period for challenging the issuance of the permits has expired, the county cannot be joined to the lawsuit and the county is an indispensable party [Center for Biological Diversity v. FPL Group, Inc. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1349, 1371-1373, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 588].

An academic senate of a community college was determined to have the requisite beneficial interest, and therefore had standing, to challenge a community college board of trustee's adoption of revised hiring policies without giving the academic senate the meaningful opportunity to participate in the adoption process. The academic senate had a beneficial interest because under the law, the senate had a real interest, not merely an advisory role, in that senate members were elected by the faculty, and the senate had the responsibility to agree jointly on faculty hiring policies [Irvine Valley College Academic Senate v. Board of Trustees of the South Orange County Community College District (2005) 129 Cal. App. 4th 1482, 1487-1489, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 336] .

A pharmaceutical company that manufactured a drug, Oxandin, did not have standing to challenge the contract provisions between the Department of Health Services and an outside vendor, Ramsdell, that administered the AIDS Drug Assistance Program's (ADAP) under the statutory authority of Health & Safety Code § 120955(a)(2). The pharmaceutical company was not a party to the contract [Savient Pharmaceuticals, Inc. v. Department of Health Services (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1457, 1465-1466, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 689] . An outdoor advertising company that sought writ of mandate to challenge validity of amendment to city zoning ordinance did not have standing to bring challenge based on failure to complete an environmental review under CEQA [Regency Outdoor Advertising, inc. v. City of West Hollywood (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 825, 829-830, 63 Cal. Rptr. 3d 287] .

Cell phone companies had standing to challenge the constitutionality of city ordinance imposing local government fee on cell phone users to fund city's 911 communication system notwithstanding that the fee was paid by cell phone customers. The companies business operations were closely linked to enforcement of the ordinance, as the companies had to collect and remit the fees to the city, and the companies competitive standing could be affected [Andal v. City of Stockton (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 86, 94-95, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 34].

An apartment owners association had standing to sue to challenge a rent stabilization ordinance on behalf of its members. The association challenged the ordinance through a complaint for declaratory and injunctive relief. The association satisfied a three part test for associational standing: 1) members of the association could have sued to raise the same challenges; 2) the interests to be protected are related to the purpose of the organization; and 3) the association can assert their claim and seek the requested relief without individual owners having to be a part of the lawsuit [Apt. Ass'n of Los Angeles County, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 119, 128-130, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 575] .

However, landowners were not aggrieved parties for purposes of challenging the addition of encroachment lands with required habitat mitigation conditions and, therefore, did not have standing to challenge that decision because they could not show that they would suffer an immediate, pecuniary, and substantial injury, as they would not be required to pay habitat mitigation costs [State Water Resources Control Board Cases (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 674, 829-831, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 189] . An irrigation district did not have standing to challenge a trial court judgment in favor of that district, as the district was not an aggrieved party for purposes of appeal [El Dorado Irrigation Dist. v. State Water Resources Control Board (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 937, 977-978, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 468] .

Under the standing requirement imposed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1086, a writ of mandate is issued only when it is necessary to protect some special right of the petitioner, or if the petitioner will suffer some substantial damage if it is denied [see, e.g., Ballard v. Anderson (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 873, 876, 95 Cal. Rptr. 1, 484 P.2d 1345 (physician subject to criminal prosecution for performing unapproved abortion had standing to petition for writ compelling Therapeutic Abortion Committee to pass on applications without requiring parental consent); Citizens Assn. for Sensible Development of Bishop Area v. County of Inyo (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 151, 159, 217 Cal. Rptr. 893 (petitioners living or working in close proximity to site had standing to petition for writ compelling county board of supervisors to set aside actions enabling construction of proposed shopping center); Cooperrider v. Civil Service Com. (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 495, 499-500, 158 Cal. Rptr. 801 (nonresident applicant for civil service position had standing to petition for writ compelling civil service commission to accept and process application notwithstanding residency requirement); Taschner v. City Council (1973) 31 Cal. App. 3d 48, 56, 107 Cal. Rptr. 214 (petitioner owning property in affected area had standing to petition for writ invalidating ordinance limiting height of buildings), disapproved on other grounds, Associated Home Builders, Inc. v. City of Livermore (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 582, 596 n.14, 135 Cal. Rptr. 41, 557 P.2d 473 ; Jefferson Union Sch. Dist. v. City Council (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 264, 267, 277 P.2d 104 (school district had standing to petition for writ terminating proceedings for annexation of territory within its geographical boundaries)].

The California Court of Appeal held that an association of home health care providers, one of those providers and a disability rights advocacy group had associational standing to sue on behalf of recipients of Medi-Cal services to ensure that the department of health services fulfilled its responsibilities to Medi-Cal recipients and made sure that payment rates for providers are sufficient to enlist enough providers to provide adequate care and services to recipients [California Association for Health Services v. Department of Health Services (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 696, 706-707, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 102] .

The writ will not issue in a case in which the petitioner has no direct interest in the legal duty sought to be compelled and will gain no benefit from its performance [see, e.g., Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351, 254 P.2d 6 (labor official who was not city employee, resident, or taxpayer had no standing to bring mandate action to compel city to fix salaries of city employees at prevailing rates); McDonald v. Stockton Met. Transit Dist. (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 436, 442-443, 111 Cal. Rptr. 637 (users of transit system had no standing to bring mandate action to compel transit district to construct bus shelters in accordance with terms of federal grant); Silva v. City of Cypress (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 374, 376-377, 22 Cal. Rptr. 453 (petitioner who had no interest in any property located in the area affected and was not personally affected had no standing to challenge decision granting variance)]. As a rule, the petitioner must have some special interest to be served or some particular right to be protected over and above those common to the public at large [Carsten v. Psychology Examining Com. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 793, 796, 166 Cal. Rptr. 844, 614 P.2d 276 ; Santiago County Water Dist. v. County of Orange (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 818, 832, 173 Cal. Rptr. 602 ; see, e.g., Associated Builders & Contractors, Inc. v. San Francisco Airports Commission (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 352, 361-363, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 654, 981 P.2d 499 (association of building contractors had standing to represent interests of its members to challenge project stabilization agreement related to expansion of airport based upon showing that agreement infringed on the associational rights of its members or had anti-competitive impact on those members)]. A special district did not have standing to challenge a county's determination as to the district's allocated share of property tax revenue because the district did not have a property interest in tax increments received. This is because the County had unlimited discretion to decide the tax allocation that the district received [Embarcadero Mun. Improvement Dist. v. County of Santa Barbara (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 781, 787-788] .

A competitor (Waste Management, Inc.) did not have standing to challenge the Waste Management Board's approval of permitting a solid waste facility by a competing company (Browning-Ferris Co.) without requiring CEQA review. This is because the challenging competitor's interests related to extra costs it incurred through having to complete CEQA review of its own permitting process, and the lower costs that the permitting competitor (Browning Ferris Co.) had because it did not have to complete CEQA review for its permitting process. Commercial and competitive interests are not beneficial interests within the meaning of standing requirements. Also, those interests were not within the zone of interests protected or preserved by CEQA. The challenging competitor cannot use the citizen suit standing alternative because it is not seeking to vindicate environmental interests protected by CEQA, but rather is seeking to vindicate its own economic and competitive interests [Waste Management of Alameda County, Inc. v. County of Alameda (2000)

79 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1229-1230, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 740] . However, a competitor (Burtec) trash company did have standing to challenge a city's approval of a conditional use permit granted to another trash company (Taormina) based on the adequacy of the public notice required by CEQA. This is because the challenging company (Burtec) was a taxpayer and a property owner with a close geographic proximity to the site of the solid waste facility receiving the CUP, and the company was seeking to enforce a public duty and a proper express beneficial interest concerning the adequacy of public notice under CEQA [Burrtec Waste Industries, Inc. v. City of Colton (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 1133, 1138-1139, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 410] . Another California Court of Appeal held that an organization had standing to challenge CEQA compliance because one of its members was a homeowner residing near one of the building projects who spoke in opposition to the projects at the public hearing prior to the approval of the projects by the City [Bakersfield Citizens for Local Control v. City of Bakersfield (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 1184, 1202-1204, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 203] . Two litigants who challenged a decision of the State Water Resources Control Board had standing to seek disqualification of the attorney general and to challenge the attorney generals's failure to comply with Water Code § 186 (which prohibited dual representation by the attorney general of the board and another state agency when both are parties to litigation) because these two litigants who challenged the boards adjudicatory decision have a direct and substantial interest in a neutral decision maker, and both are within the zone of interests protected by Water Code § 186 [State Water Resources Control Board v. Superior Court (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 907, 915-916, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 784] .

The petitioner's interest must be a present interest. The writ will not issue when it would be of no practical benefit to the petitioner due to events occurring after the administrative action or decision [Clementine v. Board of Civ. Ser. Commrs. (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 112, 114, 117 P.2d 369 (proceeding to compel certification of names on civil service eligible list dismissed when list expired)].

A physician whose license to practice medicine was suspended had standing ("beneficial interest") to challenge the suspension at the time he filed his mandate action. His standing was made moot by the completion of the suspension during the time of judicial review under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(g) [Medical Board of California v. Superior Court (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1008-1009, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381] . In contrast, a former property owner who sought a writ of mandate to compel a county planning department to issue certificates of compliance of the real property with old subdivision maps did not have a beneficial interest sufficient to be granted administrative mandamus when due to a mortgage foreclosure, he was divested of all interest in the real property in question [County of San Luis Obispo v. Superior Court (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 288, 292-293, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 753] .

The California Supreme Court held that the Director of the Department of Conservation had standing (i.e., a beneficial interest) sufficient to allow the Director to petition for a writ of mandate challenging the reclamation plans and financial assurances approved by the County of El Dorado for surface mining operations regulated under the Surface Mining and Reclamation Act of 1975 [Pub. Resources Code § 2710 et. seq.; People ex. Rel. Dept. of Conservation v. El Dorado County (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 971, 980-981, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 109, 116 P. 3d 567 . The California Supreme Court also held that the attorney general did not have standing to file a lawsuit under the California False Claims Act (CFCA) for civil remedies related to the assets of an insolvent insurance company as to which the Insurance Commissioner has acquired title, because those assets are not "state funds" within the meaning of the CFCA. The Court also held that the attorney general has standing to seek civil penalties under the Unfair Competition Law (UCL), but not restitution, and only injunctive relief that serves to protect the public and serve a law enforcement function [State of Cal. v. Altus Fin. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 1284, 1303-1305, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 498, 116 P.3d 1175] .

The California Court of Appeal held that a pension plan that sought a refund of property taxes and penalties paid by the trustee of the plan for the plan did not have standing to bring the refund action because the plan had not paid the tax itself, and the tax refund statutes [Rev. & Tax Code § 5140] require that only the person who has paid the tax may maintain a refund action. Thus, the plan, which was the real party in interest, did not have standing to bring the refund action for a refund greater than two million dollars [IBM Pers. Pension Plan v. City and County of San Francisco (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1291, 1294, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 656] .

The Court of Appeal held that taxpayer standing [Code Civ. Proc. § 526a] was sufficient to satisfy the beneficial interest standard required for ordinary mandate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086] so that a taxpayer could challenge the awarding of the interim contract by a city as an illegal expenditure of city funds. Furthermore, the competitor who was not chosen for the interim contract also had standing because it met the direct and substantial interest standard, and was within the zone of interests protected by Election Code § 9241 [Lindelli v. Town of San Anselmo (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1099, 1106-1107, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 453 (mandamus challenge to city award of an interim contract pending the results of a referendum)].

The California Court of Appeal held that a citizen/taxpayer had standing to challenge procedures used by the Department of Social Services to exempt employees of community care facilities from employment prohibitions based on criminal convictions. The court noted that the citizen/taxpayer had shown determination in pursuing the litigation against the department which satisfied the purpose of the standing requirement to ensure an actual controversy between parties with adverse interests [Gresher v. Anderson (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 88, 114, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 408 ; Doe v. Saenz (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 960, 999, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 126 (plaintiffs that challenged department procedures related to exempt criminal conviction provisions had taxpayer standing to challenge adequacy of statutory procedures)].

The California Court of Appeal held that a graduated student of a private college did not have standing under the California Leonard Law [Educ. Code § 94367] to bring tort and statutory violation claims against the college because the statute required that the student be enrolled in the college at the time the lawsuit was filed. The former student filed this lawsuit after he graduated from the college. Thus, the former student was limited to seeking relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 (administrative mandamus) [Antebi v. Occidental College (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1542, 1544-1545, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 277] .

[b] Judicially Recognized Exceptions to Requirement

California courts have recognized two main exceptions to the general rule requiring that the petitioner have a direct and immediate personal interest in the administrative order or decision.

First, when a case involves a question of public right and seeks to procure the enforcement of a duty owed to the public, as opposed to one owed to an individual applicant or party, the petitioner need not show a direct or special interest in the order or decision at issue. The petitioner's interest as a citizen in having the laws properly enforced is sufficient [Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 144, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256 (petition for writ requiring Department of Benefit Payments to properly calculate income to be offset against welfare benefits); Hollman v. Warren (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 351, 357, 196 P.2d 562 (petition for writ to compel governor to appoint notaries public); Bd. of Soc. Welfare v. County of Los Angeles (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 98, 100-101, 162 P.2d 627 (petition for writ to compel county to refund erroneously collected repayment of old age assistance benefits); American Friends Service Committee v. Procunier (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 252, 256, 109 Cal. Rptr. 22 (petition for writ to require Department of Corrections and Adult Authority to formulate rules and regulations in accordance with Administrative Procedure Act)]. A private citizen who sued to challenge the constitutionality of statutory affirmative action programs under equal protection of the law as well as for violating Proposition 209 [Cal. Const. Art. I, § 31] had standing as both a citizen and a taxpayer to maintain the lawsuit [Connerly v. State Personnel Bd. (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 16, 28-31] . Citizen standing was recognized when a construction company and its president challenged a school district's award of a contract to another construction company when the contract award was made under an emergency resolution that allowed the district to bypass competitive bidding procedures that are normally required. The challenger's sought to protect the public tax dollars by seeking to enforce competitive bidding laws which are designed to facilitate the award to contracts to the lowest responsible bidder [Marshall v. Pasadena Unified School Dist. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 1241, 1250-1252, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 344] . This exception promotes a policy of ensuring that governmental bodies do not frustrate the purpose of legislation establishing important public rights [Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 144, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256 ; Bd. of Soc. Welfare v. County of L.A. (1945) 27 Cal. 2d 98, 100-101, 162 P.2d 627 ; California Homeless and Housing Coalition v. Anderson (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 450, 458-459, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 639] .

Second, when a case presents issues that are of great public importance and that are likely to recur, a court has inherent discretion to decide it even though the issuance of a writ will not benefit the petitioner [Ballard v. Anderson (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 873, 876-877, 95 Cal. Rptr. 1, 484 P.2d 1345 (petition for writ compelling Therapeutic Abortion Committee to process minor petitioner's application for approval of abortion without requiring parental consent determined notwithstanding petitioner's ineligibility due to expiration of 20-week statutory period); City of Garden Grove v. Superior Court (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 355, 369-371, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 656 (city had standing to seek mandamus review challenge court order requiring return of lawfully seized marijuana); Kirstowsky v. Superior Court (1956) 143 Cal. App. 2d 745, 749, 300 P.2d 163 (petition for writ compelling vacation of order excluding public from criminal trial determined despite conclusion of trial)].

A public interest group entity that was created after a challenged governmental practice started had standing to challenge legality of housing fund payment calculations in mandamus action against city commission because the public rights exception permits plaintiff to have standing notwithstanding the lack of a beneficial interest in the proceedings [Hogar v. Community Development Commission of the City of Escondido (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1288, 1294-1296, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 497] .

[c] Effect of Statute Providing for Participation in Administrative Proceeding

A person or entity authorized by statute to participate in an administrative proceeding is deemed to have a sufficient beneficial interest to obtain judicial review of an order or decision made in that proceeding by mandate [Bodinson Mfg. Co. v. California E. Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 321, 330, 109 P.2d 935 (employer authorized by Unemployment Insurance Act to participate in proceeding to determine claimant's eligibility for unemployment insurance benefits had standing to petition for writ to annul decision awarding benefits); California School Employees Association v. Tustin Unified School District (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 510, 523-524, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 739 (Gov. Code § 3543.8 gives employee organizations standing to sue in court on behalf of members of organization to seek prospective relief for those members); Yamada Brothers v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 112, 126, 159 Cal. Rptr. 905 (employer authorized by ALRB regulations to oppose administrative petition for extension of union's certification had standing to seek review of order extending certification in mandate proceeding); Memorial Hosp. of So. Cal. v. State Health Planning Council (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 167, 177-178, 104 Cal. Rptr. 492 (other hospitals authorized by statute and administrative regulations to participate in administrative hearing on convalescent hospital's application to covert to acute care center had standing to petition for writ compelling hearing on application); see also Covert v. State Board of Equalization (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 125, 130, 173 P.2d 545 (person whose complaint was basis of proceedings for revocation of on-sale liquor license had standing to seek review of State Board of Equalization decision dismissing complaint in mandate proceeding)]. However, a petitioner who is not a person or entity authorized by statute to participate in a particular proceeding may nonetheless be entitled to obtain judicial review of an order or decision made in that proceeding if the person or entity is sufficiently interested in or affected by the order or decision [cf. Peery v. Superior Court (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 837, 841, 176 Cal. Rptr. 533, 633 P.2d 198 (property owners were aggrieved parties entitled to bring mandate proceeding to review order denying motion to expunge lis pendens even though they were not parties to the underlying lawsuit); Burlingame v. Justice's Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 71, 75, 33 P.2d 669 (petitioner aggrieved by justice court order for substitution of judgment debtor is party beneficially interested within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 1069 and thus may seek writ of certiorari annulling order even though he was not a party to the underlying action)]. This principle does not apply when legislation provides that some other party or entity, such as local government, has the sole and exclusive right to use statutory procedures to enforce statutory or constitutional rights [Kinlaw v. State (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 326, 334-336, 285 Cal. Rptr. 66, 814 P.2d 1308] .

The California Court of Appeal interpreted the "interested person" language of Gov. Code § 54960(a) and Gov. Code § 54960.1(a) very broadly to include all citizens of the state of California; it is not to be limited to residents or taxpayers of the city, county, or district legislative body whose action was being challenged on grounds of Brown Act violations.

This broad interpretation meant that plaintiff, who was a taxpayer and resident of Los Angeles County, had standing to bring a Brown Act action against the Orange Unified School District even though he did not reside within the boundaries of the school district nor did he pay property taxes in that district. The court's rationale was that any citizen of California has the right to enforce the public's right to know what their elected governmental officials are doing and whether they are following the law. Plaintiff is not required to have a personal stake in the lawsuit because he is enforcing public rights [McKee v. Orange Unified School District (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 1310, 1316-1318, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 774] .

[2] Lack of Adequate Remedy at Law

The writ of mandate was created to supply a remedy for cases in which a specific legal right exists with no specific legal remedy with which to enforce it [Drummey v. State Bd. of Funeral Directors (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 75, 82, 87 P.2d 848 ; Royal Convalescent Hospital, Inc. v. State Board of Control (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 788, 794, 160 Cal. Rptr. 458] . Thus, Code Civ. Proc. § 1086 requires that, to establish entitlement to issuance of the writ, a petitioner must show that a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy does not exist in the ordinary course of the law [Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 366, 217 P.2d 951 ; Barnard v. Municipal Court (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 324, 326, 298 P.2d 679 ; Lohr v. Superior Court (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 231, 234, 244 P.2d 5] . This requirement applies to administrative mandate as well as ordinary mandate proceedings [Grant v. Board of Medical Examiners (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 820, 826, 43 Cal. Rptr. 270] .

To preclude the use of mandate, the alternative remedy generally must meet the following two qualifications [Dufton v. Daniels (1923) 190 Cal. 577, 582, 213 P. 949 ; Robertson v. Library Trustees (1902) 136 Cal. 403, 405, 69 P. 88 ; Cory v. Poway Unified School Dist. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1158, 1167, 195 Cal. Rptr. 586 ; Ross v. Board of Education (1912) 18 Cal. App. 222, 225, 122 P. 967] :

- The remedy must be equally convenient, beneficial, and effective; and
- It must be capable of directly affording and enforcing the relief sought in the mandate proceeding.

Mandate will not lie when an adequate alternative remedy has been lost due to the petitioner's delay or neglect unless a sufficient showing is made to excuse the petitioner's failure to pursue the remedy [Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 370-371, 217 P.2d 951 ; Andrews v. Police Court (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 479, 480, 133 P.2d 398 ; Wadey v. Justice Court (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 426, 428-429, 1 Cal. Rptr. 382] .

The rule requiring a petitioner to show the lack of another legal remedy is not jurisdictional, but rather is a rule of procedure, the application of which is committed to the sound discretion of the court [McKannay v. Horton (1907) 151 Cal. 711, 716, 91 P. 598 ; see also Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 366, 217 P.2d 951 ; Running Fence Corp. v. Superior Court (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 400, 408, 124 Cal. Rptr. 339] . The issue of the adequacy of other remedies is a question of fact; thus, its determination is largely within the court's discretion and depends on the particular circumstances of the case [Barnard v. Municipal Court (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 324, 326, 298 P.2d 679 ; La Mar v. Superior Court (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 126, 131-132, 196 P.2d 98 ; San Francisco v. Superior Court (1928) 94 Cal. App. 318, 320, 271 P. 121] .

Ordinarily, a writ of mandate is not a proper remedy when the relief sought by the petitioner can be obtained in any of the following ways:

- In an action for damages [ABI, Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 669, 687-688, 200 Cal. Rptr. 563 ; Wenzler v. Municipal Court (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 128, 132-133, 45 Cal. Rptr. 54 ; Johnston v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 516, 517, 107 P.2d 102 ; Coombs v. Smith (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 454, 455, 62 P.2d 380] .

- In a special statutory action, proceeding or hearing [see, e.g., Sherman v. Quinn (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 661, 665, 192 P.2d 17 (action for refund of taxes improperly collected); Donnellan v. Hite (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 43, 45, 293 P.2d 158 (special proceeding for order preventing error in printing of election ballot); Rhode Island Ins. Co. v. Downey (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 220, 247, 212 P.2d 965 (hearing required in proceeding for order authorizing seizure of insolvent insurer)].

- By means of another extraordinary writ [see, e.g., Klose v. Superior Court (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 913, 925-926, 217 P.2d 97 (writ of quo warranto); Nider v. City Commission (1939) 36 Cal. App. 2d 14, 26, 97 P.2d 293 (writ of review)].

- When another statutory remedy is available [Barratt American, Inc. v. City of Rancho Cucamonga (2005) 37 Cal. 4th 685, 704-705, 37 Cal. Rptr. 3d 149, 124 P. 3d 719 (Mitigation Fee Act [Gov. Code §§ 66000-66025], provided adequate legal remedy under Gov. Code § 66016 for developer to challenge building permit fees and therefore mandamus was not available for the same challenge)].

- Tax refund litigation (Little v. Los Angeles County Assessment Appeals Board (2007) 155 Cal. App. 4th 915, 922-924 , 66 Cal. Rtpr. 3d 401 (challenge to assessment of real property could not be brought using ordinary mandamus under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 because there is an adequate remedy at law in paying the taxes owed and filing a lawsuit in the superior court for a refund of taxes paid; mandamus can not be used to prevent or enjoin the collection of taxes under Cal Const. Art. 13, § 32).

Mandate usually is not precluded, however, simply because the petitioner can obtain a comparable remedy in an action for declaratory or injunctive relief [California Teachers Assn. v. Nielsen (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 25, 28-29, 149 Cal. Rptr. 728 ; County of Los Angeles v. State Dep't of Public Health (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 425, 446, 322 P.2d 968 ; Brock v. Superior Court (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 594, 603, 241 P.2d 283] .

[3] Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies

Before seeking relief in a mandate proceeding, the petitioner must exhaust available administrative remedies [Ralph's Chrysler-Plymouth v. New Car Dealers Policy & Appeals Bd. (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 792, 794, 106 Cal. Rptr. 169, 505 P.2d 1009 ; Temescal Water Co. v. Dept. of Public Works (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 90, 106, 280 P.2d 1 ; Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 292, 109 P.2d 942; Richards v. Dep't of Alcoholic Beverage Control (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 304, 309, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 782 (restaurant owner's failure to apply for transfer of license or for original license when he purchased restaurant was a failure to exhaust administrative remedies that precludes his lawsuit challenging the department's revocation of an alcoholic beverage license issued to the prior owner)] . This requirement applies in both administrative mandate proceedings [Ralph's Chrysler-Plymouth v. New Car Dealers Policy & Appeals Bd. (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 792, 794, 106 Cal. Rptr. 169, 505 P.2d 1009 ; Temescal Water Co. v. Dept. of Public Works (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 90, 106, 280 P.2d 1] and ordinary mandate proceedings [see Horack v. Franchise Tax Board (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 363, 368, 95 Cal. Rptr. 717] .

The California Supreme Court affirmed the dismissal of a lawsuit brought against the Regents of the University of California by a former employee who had been terminated. The employee challenged the termination claiming that it was retaliatory in violation of Gov. Code § 12653 and Labor Code § 1102.5, which provide protection for so called "whistleblowers," that is employees who disclose wrongdoing by their employers and are fired from employment as a result. The court held that the former employee's lawsuit was barred because the employee failed to exhaust administrative remedies before filing her lawsuit. Specifically, the court held that the former employee failed to exhaust required university internal administrative remedies (filing a grievance under UCSF's policies and procedures for reporting improper governmental activities) before filing her lawsuit [Campbell v. Regents of Univ. of Cal. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 311, 317-318, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 320, 106 P.3d 976] .

This requirement must be met for the court to have subject matter jurisdiction; it is not merely a procedural rule subject to the discretion of the court [Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 292, 109 P.2d 942 ; Horack v. Franchise Tax Board (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 363, 368, 95 Cal. Rptr. 717 ; People v. Coit Ranch, Inc. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 52, 57, 21 Cal. Rptr. 875 ; Yamaha Motor Corp. v. Superior Court (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 1232, 230 Cal. Rptr. 382 ; Barnes v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 365, 380-381, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 87 ; Wright v. State (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 659, 664-665, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92] and cannot be waived by the parties' stipulation or consent [Noonan v. Green (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 25, 31, 80 Cal. Rptr. 513] , or by a party's failure to raise it [People v. Coit Ranch, Inc. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 52, 57, 21 Cal. Rptr. 875 ; but see Doster v. County of San Diego (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 257, 260, 251 Cal. Rptr. 507 (exhaustion of administrative remedies is a fundamental rule of procedure, but it is not a condition of jurisdiction); Green v. City of Oceanside (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 212, 220-223, 239 Cal. Rptr. 470 (exhaustion of administrative remedies is merely procedural requirement that may be waived); for discussion of Green, see Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions].

The exhaustion requirement is judicially created [Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 292, 109 P.2d 942] , and applies even if the controlling statutes do not expressly make exhaustion of administrative remedies a condition of judicial relief [Woodard v. Broadway Fed. S. & L. Assn. (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 218, 221, 244 P.2d 467 ; A. Teichert & Son, Inc. v. State of Cal. (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 736, 746, 48 Cal. Rptr. 225] . The purpose of the rule is to lighten the workload of overburdened courts by requiring litigants to initially resort to administrative proceedings that may afford the remedies sought, thus obviating the need for judicial proceedings [Bozaich v. State of California (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 688, 698, 108 Cal. Rptr. 392 ; Morton v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 977, 982, 88 Cal. Rptr. 533] . Exhaustion of administrative remedies requirements for an employee to bring employment discrimination claims against the county employer requires that the employee obtain a right to sue letter from the EEOC as a prerequisite to filing a lawsuit bringing Title VII claims against the county. It is not sufficient for the employee plaintiff to have obtained a right to sue letter from the State Department of Fair Employment and Housing to file a lawsuit that includes Title VII claims [Roman v. County of Los Angeles (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 316, 325-326, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 13] .

Prisoners must exhaust administrative remedies before seeking judicial relief. A prisoner who sued the Department of Corrections for medical malpractice, and failure to furnish medical care, failed to complete the prison administrative review process before filing his lawsuit. As a result, his court claim was barred by failure to exhaust administrative remedies. The court noted a number of policies furthered by the exhaustion requirements including "bolstering administrative autonomy, mitigating damages, giving agencies the opportunity to make factual findings, encouraging settlement, filtering out frivolous claims, fostering better prepared litigation, and promoting judicial economy" [Wright v. State (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 659, 666-667, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92] . Prison administrative remedies must be exhausted even though the prisoner could not recover damages except by going to court. Substantial compliance is not enough. The prisoner must complete all three levels of prison administrative review of his grievances [Wright v. State (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 659, 667-668, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 92] .

The exhaustion of administrative remedies requirement applies not only to the overall claim for relief made by a petitioner, but to individual contentions and issues raised in support of that claim. In general, a contention or issue that is not raised at the administrative level may not be considered in a subsequent mandate proceeding [Gilroy Citizens for Responsible Planning v. City of Gilroy (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 911, 919-921, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 102 (citizens group failed to raise certain issues during public comment period for environmental impact report, and therefore failed to meet issue exhaustion requirements for exhaustion of administrative remedies; citizens group raised other issues in public comment period, and those issues can be raised in court challenge to adequacy of EIR, but not the issues that were not raised in public comment period); Evans v. City of San Jose (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 1123, 1137-1138, 27 Cal. Rptr. 3d 675 (issue exhaustion requirement avoids unnecessary litigation, provides a more complete record for judicial review and ensures that agency expertise is utilized. Citizens who participate in city redevelopment hearings are not held to the same high standard as are lawyers in specific proceedings, but citizens have to be specific enough in raising issues before the city so that the city has the opportunity to respond to that issue prior to judicial review. A response that is too general will not satisfy the issue exhaustion requirement); Hobson v. Raychem Corporation (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 614, 630-632, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497 (exhaustion of administrative remedies requirement not satisfied when an employee failed to file an administrative charge specifically identifying the alleged discrimination that provided the basis for the later lawsuit); Pegues v. Civil Service Com. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 95, 103-104, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 705 ; NBS Imaging Systems, Inc. v. State Bd of Control (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 328, 336-337, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 237 ; American Alliance Ins. Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 601, 609, 184 Cal. Rptr. 674 ; Griswold v. Mt. Diablo Unified Sch. Dist. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 648, 652-653, 134 Cal. Rptr. 3 ; Savoy Club v. Boardof Supervisors (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 1042, 91 Cal. Rptr. 198] . Issue exhaustion requirements also compel the plaintiff to raise issues at successive stages of the administrative process to preserve those issues for later judicial review. Thus, a litigant who raises an issue before the first administrative agency that can consider the issue, but who fails to raise that same issue in an administrative appeal to an administrative agency that has final decision making authority, has not satisfied issue exhaustion requirements and cannot raise that same issue on judicial review [Tahoe Vista Concerned Citizens v. County of Placer (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 577, 589-590, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 880] . However, the exhaustion requirement is met when the allegations in a civil lawsuit are similar to or reasonably related to the charges presented to the agency [Soldinger v. Northwest Airlines, Inc. (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 345, 381-383, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 747 (discrimination charges brought by plaintiff employee before DFEH agency that were later the basis of a civil lawsuit)]. Similarly, an appealing party satisfied exhaustion requirements even though it was not a formal applicant in the administrative proceeding, when its business partner did exhaust administrative remedies before the agency as to issues that the appealing party was raising on appeal [CAT Partnership v. County of Santa Cruz (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1071, 1080-1081, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 652] . Issue exhaustion requirements did not have to be satisfied under Pub. Res. Code Section 21177(b) (requiring raising of objection during public comment period or during public hearing as prerequisite to challenging approval in court) to challenge agency approval of sales agreement because the agency decision to give approval was not a project within the requirements of CEQA, and the CEQA process of preparation of an EIR would take place after the date of the approval agreement [Concerned McCloud Citizens v. McCloud Community Services District (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 181, 189-191, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1] .

An agency's grievance procedures satisfy due process requirements for exhaustion of administrative remedies in that the remedy is constitutionally adequate by providing reasonable notice and opportunity to be heard. Neither the lack of subpoena power nor the advisory nature of the decision of the hearing body make the procedures inadequate in due process terms [Bockover v. Perko (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 479, 487-488, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 423] .

To satisfy the requirement of exhaustion of administrative remedies, a petitioner must not only institute all available administrative proceedings, but must pursue them to completion and receive a final determination on the merits [McHugh v. County of Santa Cruz (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 533, 538-539, 109 Cal. Rptr. 149 ; Fiscus v. Dept. Alcoholic Bev. Control (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 234, 236, 317 P.2d 993] . When applicable statutes and regulations provide for an interagency or intra-agency appeal of an initial administrative decision, the petitioner must take the appeal [see, e.g., Lynn v. Duckel (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 845, 849-850, 299 P.2d 236 ; Vernon & Vernons, Ltd. v. County of Los Angeles (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 943, 945-946, 171 Cal. Rptr. 785 ; Grant v. Superior Court (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 606, 609, 145 Cal. Rptr. 699] .

When a statute specifies that reconsideration or rehearing of an adverse decision of an agency may be sought by an affected party, reconsideration is not required prior to seeking judicial review, at least with respect to issues litigated before and finally decided by the agency. Reconsideration is required only when raising issues not previously presented to the agency [Sierra Club v. San Joaquin LAFCO (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 489, 493-494,87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 702, 981 P.2d 543] . Statutory provisions consistent with this rule include the following:

- Gov. Code § 11523 expressly provides that failure to seek reconsideration of an administrative decision governed by the Administrative Procedure Act shall not affect the right to petition for mandate.

- Provisions similar to those in Gov. Code § 11523 exist in a number of statutes specifically applicable to other administrative proceedings [see, e.g., Gov. Code § 19588 (failure to seek rehearing before State Personnel Board decision shall not affect right to petition for mandate)].

A litigant's contentions need not be presented to the administrative entity in the most precise or effective manner [Graham v. Bryant (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 66, 70, 266 P.2d 44 ; see also Citizens Assn. for Sensible Development of Bishop Area v. County of Inyo (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 151, 163, 217 Cal. Rptr. 893] . Exhaustion of administrative remedies requirements were satisfied when litigants adequately presented the specific grounds for non-compliance with CEQA issue to the agency before the close of the public hearing [State Water Resources Control Board Cases (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 674, 793-795, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 189] . A litigant's deliberate refusal to participate in a scheduled hearing, however, is deemed a failure to exhaust an administrative remedy and precludes the litigant from obtaining judicial review of a decision made in that hearing [Doyle v. City of Chino (1981) 117 Cal. App. 3d 673, 681, 172 Cal. Rptr. 844] .

Gov. Code § 18671.1 specifies that the State Personnel Board must decide appeals from an employee of a departmental disciplinary action within specified time limits (90 days or six months). If the Board fails to reach a decision within the time limits, the statute deems administrative remedies to be exhausted, but the Board does not lose jurisdiction over the appeal because the time limit is directory not mandatory [California Correctional Peace Officers Assn. v. State Personnel Bd. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1133, 1138, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693, 899 P.2d 79] .

However, when the employee has not waived the time limit for decision, the employee may seek judicial review by writ of mandate against the Board to compel the Board to decide that appeal by a specified date. Alternatively, the employee may seek judicial review by writ of mandate against the employing agency to set aside the adverse action. If the Board reaches a decision while the mandate proceeding against the employing agency is pending, the employee may, but is not required to, dismiss the mandate proceeding and seek review of the Board's decision by petition for a writ of administrative mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 [California Correctional Peace Officers Assn. v. State Personnel Bd. (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1133, 1138-1139, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 693, 899 P.2d 79] . State civil service employees who brought employment discrimination claims under California Fair Employment and Housing Act, Gov. Code § 12900, had the choice of whether to exhaust administrative remedies with the State Personnel Board (Board), or of exhausting administrative remedies by filing a claim with the Department of Fair Employment and Housing (DFEH). Employees filed a claim with DFEH, and received a right to sue letter. Employees were held to have exhausted administrative remedies requirements by filing claim with DFEH, and were not required to also pursue administrative remedies with Board [Ruiz v. California Department of Corrections (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 891, 896-898, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139] .

Plaintiff former employee's lawsuit against the City of Los Angeles asserting FEHA claims of employment discrimination due to physical disability by the city against plaintiff was not barred by the Plaintiff's failure to exhaust internal grievance remedies provided under the Los Angeles city charter. Plaintiff had exhausted FEHA administrative remedies by obtaining a "right to sue" letter from the DFEH, and that was sufficient. Plaintiff was not required to exhaust both sets of administrative remedies as a precondition to filing his FEHA lawsuit in court. The court's rationale for the holding included reasons: 1) FEHA preemption of local government laws, 2) public employees have the same rights under FEHA as private employees, and 3) public employees have a choice between pursuing the internal grievance remedies provided by their governmental employer, or choosing the FEHA remedies, with a right to sue letter, and a civil lawsuit [Schifando v. City of Los Angeles (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1074, 1082-1090, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 457, 79 P.3d 569] .

A former employee of Los Angeles County Probation Department brought a disability discrimination claim against her employer. She filed a grievance with the County Civil Service Commission and completed the hearing process, and the hearing officer issued a decision that was adverse to her claims. While she challenged the hearing office recommended findings before the Commission, she did not file a petition for a writ of administrative mandate to overturn the Commission's final decision. Rather, she filed a complaint for discrimination with the Department of Fair Employment and Housing (DFEH), received a right-to-sue letter, and then filed a civil lawsuit against the Probation Department for disability discrimination in violation of the FEHA [Gov. Code § 12940(a)]. Her civil lawsuit was filed before the Commission had issued a final decision in her grievance action. The Court of Appeal held that the employee's FEHA lawsuit was barred because she failed to exhaust administrative and judicial remedies by failing to file a petition for a writ of administrative mandate to challenge the commission's final decision [Page v. Los Angeles Cty. Probation Dept. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1142-1143, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 598] . In so holding, the Court of Appeal cited and relied upon California Supreme Court decisions in Johnson v. City of Loma Linda (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 61, 72, 5 P.3d 874 and Schifando v. City of Los Angeles (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1074, 1088, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 457, 79 P.3d 569] . The Court of Appeal noted that the employee made a choice as to the forum to assert her discrimination claims, the civil service commission, but failed to exhaust the administrative and judicial remedies related to that forum [Page v. Los Angeles Cty. Probation Dept. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1142-1143, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 598] . Rather, the employee entered the "procedural minefield" of pursuing one administrative remedy, the civil service commission process, and then in midstream choosing the other administrative remedy, a FEHA claim, without properly exhausting the administrative and judicial remedies associated with the civil service commission process [Page v. Los Angeles Cty. Probation Dept. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1135, 1142-1143, 20 Cal. Rptr. 3d 598] .

Similarly, an employee of the Housing Authority of the City of Los Angeles (HACLA) who was terminated from employment had the choice of pursuing the internal administrative remedies provided by HACLA, or pursuing the FEHA administrative remedy, before filing a civil lawsuit alleging disability discrimination in violation of the FEHA statute [Williams v. Housing Auth. of City of Los Angeles (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 708, 720-721, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 374] . Furthermore, that employee is not required to exhaust administrative remedies to bring a FEHA-related non-statutory claim (wrongful termination based on public policy) when an agency decision on the FEHA-related claim could have preclusive effect on the FEHA statutory claim [Williams v. Housing Auth. of City of Los Angeles (2004) 121 Cal. App. 4th 708, 727-728, 17 Cal. Rptr. 3d 374] .

The California Court of Appeal held that former employees of a private employer had to comply with notice and exhaustion requirements of Labor Code § 2699.3(a) before filing civil law suits for civil penalties under Labor Code § 2698, but that those employees claims for unpaid wages, and for statutory penalties paid to the employee, could be brought to court in a civil lawsuit without the employees having to comply with the same notice and exhaustion requirements [Caliber Bodyworks, Inc. v. Superior Court (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 365, 371-372, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 31] .

Failure to exhaust administrative remedies is not excused by parties' lack of legal representation nor by incorrect advice as to required procedures by agency officials [Park Area Neighbors v. Town of Fairfax (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1442, 1450-1451, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334] . Motorist's failure to request a hearing within ten (10) days to challenge a driver's license suspension under the provisions of Veh. Code § 13558, constitutes a failure to exhaust administrative remedies that precludes judicial review of the suspension decision by the DMV [Marquez v. Gourley (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 710, 712-714, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 784] . A physician was not excused from completing a hospital peer review process before filing a tort lawsuit and seeking damages in the Superior Court because the hospital failed to start the hearing within the required 60-day time period. Failure to start on time does not make an administrative remedy inadequate or unavailable. Further, the physician was required to raise the issue of hearing officer bias before the hearing officer first [Kaiser Foundation Hospitals v. Sacramento Superior Court (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 85, 91, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 744] . For further discussion of the rule requiring exhaustion of administrative remedies, see Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions .

[4] When Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies Is Not Required

[a] Claim That Administrative Entity Lacks Subject Matter Jurisdiction Under Governing Statutes

Judicial relief is not precluded under the exhaustion doctrine by a failure to seek a possible administrative remedy if the constitutional provisions or statutes under which the administrative agency operates do not vest it with subject matter jurisdiction over the type of claim or controversy at issue [County of Alpine v. County of Tuolumne (1958) 49 Cal. 2d 787, 798, 322 P.2d 449 ; County of Los Angeles v. Dept. of Social Welfare (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 455, 457, 260 P.2d 41 ; Residents for Adequate Water v. Redwood Water District (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1801, 1807-1808, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 123] . Compliance with the exhaustion requirement will not be excused, however, because a petitioner claims that the controlling statutes did not empower the agency to act under the facts of a particular case [United States v. Superior Court (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 189, 194-195, 120 P.2d 26 ; Metcalf v. County of Los Angeles (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 267, 270-273, 148 P. 2d 645 ; McAllister v. County of Monterey (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 253, 284-286, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116 ; People v. Sonleitner (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 350, 363-365, 8 Cal. Rptr. 528] .

The administrative jurisdiction exception to exhaustion of administrative remedies was held to be applicable to the issue of the proper limitations period for bringing unfair labor practice claims before the Public Employee Relations Board (PERB). The California Supreme Court excused the District from adjudicating the limitations issue before PERB, and allowed the District to go to court to resolve this issue. In applying the administrative jurisdiction exception, the Supreme Court utilized a three-part test: 1) the injury or burden that exhaustion will impose; 2) the strength of the legal argument that the agency lacks jurisdiction; and 3) the extent to which administrative expertise may aid in resolving the jurisdictional issue. The Court held that as to the first factor, while the district would not be unduly burdened by having to exhaust administrative remedies, there was a strong public interest in definitively resolving the legal issue presented. As to the second factor, the District's legal argument is very strong. As to the third factor, the issue before the court are purely legal, within court expertise, and the court had the benefit of PERB's views on the issues in the case in the appellate briefs it filed with the Court [Coachella Valley Mosquito & Vector Control Dist. v. Cal. Pub. Emp. Relations Bd. (2005) 35 Cal 4th 1072, 1081-1083, 29 Cal. Rptr. 3d 234, 112 P. 3d 623] .

The administrative jurisdiction exception to exhaustion of administrative remedies did not apply to excuse failure to exhaust administrative remedies by a challenger to a coastal development permit who failed to appeal to the California Coastal Commission a county decision to grant the permit to a neighboring landowner. The challenger argued that the county action was void and therefore exhaustion was not required, but the court of appeal rejected that argument and held that exhaustion is required for as applied challenges to agency action based on voidness. The Coastal Commission had jurisdiction over this type of dispute at the appellate level [McAllister v. County of Monterey (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 253, 284-286, 54 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116] .

[b] Challenge to Constitutionality of Governing Statutes

A litigant who claims that a statute under which an administrative agency operates is unconstitutional on its face may raise the claim in a judicial proceeding to review an order or decision of the agency, even if it was not raised at the administrative level [State of California v. Superior Court of Orange County (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 237, 251, 115 Cal. Rptr. 497, 524 P.2d 1281 ; Andal v. City of Stockton (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 86, 93-94, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 34 (constitutional challenge brought by cell phone companies and their customers to challenge constitutionality of city ordinance imposing local government fee on cell phone users to fund city's 911 communication system. Administrative remedies need not be exhausted to raise constitutional challenge in court); Nissan Motor Corp. v. New Motor Vehicle Bd. (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 109, 115, 202 Cal. Rptr. 1 ; Hand v. Board of Examiners (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 605, 617-620, 136 Cal. Rptr. 187] . However, this exception does not apply to a claim that a governing statute is unconstitutional as applied to the facts of a particular case [Security First Nat. Bk. v. County of Los Angeles (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 319, 321, 217 P.2d 946 ; Griswold v. Mt. Diablo Unified Sch. Dist. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 648, 652-653, 134 Cal. Rptr. 3 ; Savoy Club v. Board of Supervisors (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1034, 1042, 91 Cal. Rptr. 198 ; but see Anderson v. Department of Real Estate (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 696, 701 n.2, 155 Cal. Rptr. 307] , and is subject to a number of other important qualifications [see Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions].

[c] Administrative Remedy Is Inadequate or Unavailable

Exhaustion of an administrative remedy is not required when the administrative remedy is inadequate or is unavailable to the petitioner [Ramos v. County of Madera (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 685, 691, 94 Cal. Rptr. 421, 484 P.2d 93 ; Endangered Habitats League, Inc. v. State Water Resources Control Board (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 227, 237-238, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 388 ; Daniels v. Shasta-Tehama-Trinity J. Community College Dist. (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 909, 927, 260 Cal. Rptr. 867 ; Diaz v. Quitoriano (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 807, 812, 74 Cal. Rptr. 358 ; Martino v. Concord Community Hosp. Dist. (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 51, 56, 43 Cal. Rptr. 255] . For example, a petitioner is not required to submit a claim to an administrative body that is unable to directly grant relief because it only has the power to render advisory decisions [Pearson Candy Co. v. Waits (1946) 27 Cal. 2d 615, 619, 165 P.2d 674 ; James v. Marinship Corp. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 721, 744-745, 155 P.2d 329 ; Pasillas v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 312, 358-359, 202 Cal. Rptr. 739] .

The mere possibility that the petitioner may be able to obtain some relief from an administrative entity is not sufficient to require the satisfaction of the exhaustion doctrine; a clearly defined set of procedures must exist under which the petitioner is entitled to submit the claim at issue and have it evaluated and resolved [Rosenfield v. Malcolm (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 559, 566-567, 55 Cal. Rptr. 505, 421 P.2d 697 ; City of Coachella v. Riverside County Airport Land Use Com. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1277, 1287-1288, 258 Cal. Rptr. 795 ; Diaz v. Quitoriano (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 807, 813, 74 Cal. Rptr. 358 ; see also Martino v. Concord Community Hosp. Dist. (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 51, 56-57, 43 Cal. Rptr. 255] . For example, an insured was not required to exhaust administrative remedies under CAARP (California Automobile Assigned Risk Plan) [Ins. Code § 11620] before filing a bad faith lawsuit against an insurer because the CAARP regulatory scheme does not provide a remedy to resolve disputes relating to claims for benefits [Hightower v. Farmers Ins. Exchange (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 853, 860-861, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 348] . Termination of doctor's hospital staff privileges for cause was challenged by doctor because of lack of a pre-termination hearing. The court of appeal concluded that physician had a due process and statutory [Bus. & Prof. Code § 809] right to a pre-termination hearing before staff privileges could be terminated [Sahlolbei v. Providence Healthcare, Inc. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1147-1150, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 598] . The Court of Appeal held that physician was entitled to a preliminary injunction reinstating staff privileges until the required hearing procedures were completed [Sahlolbei v. Providence Healthcare, Inc. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1160, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 598] . The court also held that physician did not have to exhaust internal hospital grievance procedures, including a post-termination procedure to assert a claim that the hospital failed to follow hearing procedures required by law (statutory procedures codified under Bus & Prof. Code § 809) [Sahlolbei v. Providence Healthcare, Inc. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1137, 1154-1155, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 598 ; Payne v. Anaheim Mem'l Med. Ctr. (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 729, 739, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 230 (hospital bylaws did not provide for an internal grievance hearing to remedy doctor's complaint about discriminatory comments; therefore hospital administrative remedies did not have to be exhausted because there was no such remedy)].

An administrative remedy must have some procedures to be considered adequate. The absence of any internal remedies means that there is not an adequate administrative remedy [Life Care Ctrs. of Cal. v. CalOptima (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1169, 11771178, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 387 ; Unfair Fire Tax Com. v. City of Oakland (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 1424, 1429-1431, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 701 (city ordinance did not provide adequate administrative remedy because the ordinance had no procedural mechanisms for submission, evaluation, and resolution of the appeal specified under the ordinance; so, litigant is not required to exhaust that remedy and can file lawsuit)]. This exception is discussed in greater detail in Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions.

[d] Pursuit of Administrative Remedy Is Futile

A petitioner is not required to pursue an administrative remedy when it is reasonably certain that the decision of the administrative entity will be adverse [Eldridge v. City of Palo Alto (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 613, 633, 129 Cal. Rptr. 575 (when city rezoned geographical area in which petitioner's land was located to change minimum size of parcel required for building from 1 to 10 acres for specific purpose of creating open-space area, petitioners were not required to apply for variance allowing construction on one-acre parcels before seeking review of zoning ordinance); Ogo

Associates v. City of Torrance (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 830, 834, 112 Cal. Rptr. 761 (when city rezoned petitioner's property to limit it to manufacturing uses for express purpose of preventing petitioner from constructing low-income housing, petitioner not required to apply for variance before commencing mandate action to compel city to set aside); cf. Gantner & Mattern Co. v. California E. Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 314, 318, 109 P.2d 932 (dicta acknowledging exception)]. Conversely, if the petitioner cannot show that the agency decision is reasonably certain to be adverse, the futility exception does not apply [Sea & Sage Audubon Society, Inc. Planning Comm. (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 412, 418-419, 194 Cal. Rptr. 357, 668 P.2d 664 ; Economic Empowerment Foundation v. Quackenbush (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 677, 692, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 323] . However, the futility of pursuing a particular claim before an administrative entity cannot be established by merely showing that the entity has ruled adversely on claims or contentions similar to the petitioner's in other cases [Gantner & Mattern Co. v. California E. Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 314, 318, 109 P.2d 932 ; Mountain View Chamber of Commerce v. City of Mountain View (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 82, 92-93, 143 Cal. Rptr. 441 ; In re Serna (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1014, 143 Cal. Rptr. 350] . The petitioner must make a showing of some declaration or conduct on the part of the entity that positively demonstrates that the entity has taken an adverse position on the particular application or claim asserted by petitioner [Gantner & Mattern Co. v. California E. Com. (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 314 318, 109 P.2d 932 ; see also Mountain View Chamber of Commerce v. City of Mountain View (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 82, 92-93, 143 Cal. Rptr. 441] . The futility exception is discussed in greater detail in Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions.

[e] Petitioner Is Threatened With Irreparable Injury

Failure to exhaust an administrative remedy may be excused when pursuing the administrative remedy would result in irreparable injury to the petitioner [Greenblatt v. Munro (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 596, 606-607, 326 P.2d 929 ; cf. United States v. Superior Court (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 189, 196, 120 P.2d 26 (dicta acknowledging rule)]. The scope of this exception, however, is severely restricted [In re Serna (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1014-1015, 143 Cal. Rptr. 350 (exception is not applicable even if administrative action at issue constitutes direct, immediate, and irremediable infringement on religious beliefs and practices); Humbert v. Castro Valley County Fire Protection Dist. (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6, 29 Cal. Rptr. 158 (exception applies only to cases in which rate order of regulatory commissions imposes a confiscatory rate on a public utility)]. The irreparable injury exception is discussed in greater detail in Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions.

[f] Application of Rule Is Contrary to Public Interest

A few California decisions have excused failures to exhaust available administrative remedies on the ground that application of the exhaustion doctrine under the facts presented would be contrary to some important public interest [Lindeleaf v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 861, 870-871, 226 Cal. Rptr. 119, 718 P.2d 106 ; Hull v. Cason (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 344, 358-359, 171 Cal. Rptr. 14 ; Environmental Law Fund, Inc. v. Town of Corte Madera (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 105, 114, 122 Cal. Rptr. 282] . For further discussion of the "public interest" exception applied in these cases, see Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions .

[g] Concurrent Primary Jurisdiction

When the legislature has vested concurrent original jurisdiction over a particular type of claim or controversy in the courts and an administrative agency, a litigant need not apply to the administrative agency for relief before utilizing the judicial remedy [Scripps etc. Hospital v. Cal. Emp. Com. (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 669, 673-674, 151 P.2d 109 ; Elmore v. Imperial Irrigation Dist. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 185, 192-193, 205 Cal. Rptr. 433 ; California School Employees Assn. v. Travis Unified School Dist. (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 242, 249-250, 202 Cal. Rptr. 699 ; Muir v. Steinberg (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 264, 269, 17 Cal. Rptr. 431] .

The Public Utilities Commission had primary jurisdiction over issues raised in a civil lawsuit brought by plaintiffs against Pacific Gas & Electric Company for unfair business practices (Bus & Prof. Code § 17200, and Bus. & Prof.

Code § 17500], and fraud. Primary jurisdiction was not exclusive, and thus dismissal of the civil action was improper. Rather, the civil lawsuit was stayed pending further action before the PUC [Wise v. Pacific Gas & Electric Company (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 287, 299-301, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 479] . In a second appellate decision (Wise II), the California Court of Appeal held that the completion of a Public Utilities Commission (PUC) investigation into fraud charges against a regulated utility, Pacific Gas & Electric Company (PG&E) without the PUC reaching any decision about those charges did not have collateral estoppel effect on a related civil lawsuit claim for fraud damages brought against PG&E by consumers [Wise v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 725, 742-743, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 222] . The fraud issues had been referred to the PUC under the doctrine of primary jurisdiction, and the trial court had stayed the civil lawsuit pending PUC resolution of the fraud issues. When the PUC closed its investigation, having taken no action, the trial court lifted the stay, and granted a motion for judgment on the pleadings brought by PG&E. The court of appeal reversed the judgment, and held the PUC decision to close the investigation did not have collateral estoppel effect on the civil lawsuit because there was no PUC ruling or decision on the merits, there were no parties to the proceeding, and the PUC was not acting in an adjudicatory capacity [Wise v. Pacific Gas & Elec. Co. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 725, 742-743, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 222] . The Superior court properly refused to apply the primary jurisdiction doctrine and submit a lawsuit claim related to the validity of a land use under a conditional use permit to the city planning department because the issues in the lawsuit involved statutory interpretation that is appropriate for judicial resolution, and there were no issues requiring the fact finding expertise of the administrative agency [Tenderloin Housing Clinic, Inc v. Astoria Hotel, Inc. (2000) 83 Cal. App. 4th 139, 142-143, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 924] .

Primary jurisdiction doctrine did not apply to justify dismissal of lawsuit brought by customers against suppliers of telephones and telephone service suppliers for damages for improper charges assessed for monthly telephone rental service. The damage lawsuit was authorized by Pub. Util. Code § 2106, the lawsuit would not adversely affect the commission's decisions or orders, and the issues in the lawsuit did not require application of commission's specialized regulatory expertise to decide claims for damages [Cundiff v. GTE California, Inc. (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 1395, 1412-1414,125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445] .

Insured had the right to file a civil lawsuit in Superior Court under the unfair competition law [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200-17210] against an insurance company to challenge insurer's use of absence of prior insurance as a rating factor in determining eligibility for good driver discounts, and other purposes, in violation of Ins. Code § 1861.02 (part of Proposition 103). The court of appeal rejected the argument that the Insurance Commissioner had exclusive primary jurisdiction to decide such issues, concluded that exhaustion of administrative remedies was not applicable, and upheld the right of insureds (under the provisions of Ins. Code §§ 1861.03 and 1861.10) to file a civil lawsuit to challenge in court such insurer practices under the UCL law [Donabedian v. Mercury Insurance Co. (2004) 116 Cal. App. 4th 968, 986-987, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 45] .

The superior court has subject matter jurisdiction under Pub. Util. Code § 2106 to award intentional tort damages, including exemplary damages, for fraud sought in a civil lawsuit by a customer against a public utility regulated by the Public Utilities Commission (PUC) when that regulated utility engages in willful and unlawful activities. The resolution of the lawsuit and the award of damages would not violate Pub. Util. Code § 1759 which restricts the authority of the courts, including the superior court, to review decisions or orders of the PUC. The award of damages in this lawsuit by a customer of a regulated utility would not "hinder or frustrate" the PUC's supervisory or regulatory policies [Pink Dot, Inc. v. Teleport Communications Group (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 407, 417-419, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 392] .

The California Court of Appeal held that the Department of Managed Health Care has concurrent jurisdiction over enforcement of the provisions of Health & Safety Code § 1371.4, part of the Knox-Keene Health Care Service Plan Act of 1975, and that the provisions of the statute can be privately enforced by emergency room physicians filing civil lawsuits [Bell v. Blue Cross of Cal. (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 211, 216-218, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 688] . The Court of Appeal also gave deference to the Department of Managed Health Care's interpretation of Health & Safety Code § 1371.4 (that health care providers have the right to privately enforce provisions of the statute through filing lawsuits under the unfair competition law, as well as for breach of contract, and quantum meruit, when a health care plan did not provide adequate reimbursement for the value of service rendered by emergency room physicians) and concluded that physicians had standing to file a lawsuit against a health care service plan [Bell v. Blue Cross of Cal. (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 211, 217-219, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 688] .

An insured trucking company filed a tort cross-complaint in a court lawsuit for breach of contract to collect disputed premium charges in an action that was brought against the insured by a collection agency as an assignee of the insurer. The tort cross-complaint alleged that the insurer had breached the covenant of good faith and fair dealing owed to its insured, and had also committed fraud, in relation to an insurance premium billing dispute between the insured and the insurer. The insurer was assigned to provide automobile liability insurance to the insured company under the California Automobile Assigned Risk Plan. The insured recovered a substantial jury verdict against the insurer [Jonathan Neil & Assocs., Inc. v. Jones (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 917, 923-924, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 849, 94 P.3d 1055] . The California Supreme Court upheld the Court of Appeal, which had reversed the trial court judgment for the insured, but disagreed on the rationale for that decision. The California Supreme Court rejected the Court of Appeals holding that exhaustion of administrative remedies requirements were applicable and not satisfied. Rather, the Supreme Court held that exhaustion of administrative remedies was not required, but that the doctrine of primary jurisdiction did apply and required the trial court to stay its decision-making and refer the premium billing dispute issue to the Department of Insurance and the State Insurance Commissioner [Jonathan Neil & Assocs., Inc. v. Jones (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 917, 923-924, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 849, 94 P.3d 1055] . The Court reasoned that exhaustion of administrative remedies did not apply because the insured's tort claims, and the insurer's breach of contract claims, were within the superior court's jurisdiction, and the Insurance Commissioner had no authority to decide these common law claims. However, primary jurisdiction did apply because one of the issues in this lawsuit, the validity of premium billing by the insurer under the CAARP program, was within the regulatory authority and expertise of the California Insurance Commissioner. The court concluded that the premium dispute issue had to be referred to the Insurance Commissioner for resolution, the referral would promote a uniform application of complex insurance regulations, and that the referral would utilize the insurance agency's expertise in regulating insurer's operating under the CAARP program, thereby helping to ensure a more accurate determination of the premium billing dispute issue in the lawsuit [Jonathan Neil & Assocs., Inc. v. Jones (2004) 33 Cal. 4th 917, 933-934, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 849, 94 P.3d 1055] .

In a breach of contract lawsuit, defendant's defense (that the contract was void because plaintiff acted as a talent agency, but was unlicensed in violation of the act) based on the Talent Agencies Act, Labor Code §§ 1700-1700.47, must first be brought before the Labor Commissioner under Labor Code § 1700.44(a), and the civil lawsuit for breach of contract must be stayed pending resolution by the Labor commissioner of issues related to the Talent Agencies Act defense [Styne v. Stevens (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 42, 47-48, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 14, 26 P.3d 343] . Furthermore, a defense based on the Talent Agencies Act does not have to be raised within the one year statute of limitations [Labor Code § 1700.44(a)] for bringing actions or proceedings under the Act as the one year statute applies only to claims for affirmative relief, not to defenses [Styne v. Stevens (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 42, 51-54, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 14, 26 P.3d 343] . The Labor Commissioner has exclusive jurisdiction to determine talent agency act related issues that arise in a breach of contract lawsuit in court. The Commissioner has jurisdiction to determine whether the contract involved the services of a talent agency, and if so, to determine that the contract is void and unenforceable. These issues must first be submitted to the Commissioner to be decided, with the opportunity for a do novo appeal to the superior court after the commissioner makes a decision [Styne v. Stevens (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 42, 55-57, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 14, 26 P.3d 343] . When a Talent Agency Act defense arises in civil lawsuit in court, the superior court proceeding should be stayed, and a "petition to determine controversy" should be filed with the Commissioner. The merits of that defense cannot be considered by the court until the defense has been decided by the commissioner [Styne v. Stevens (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 42, 58-59, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 14, 26 P.3d 343] . The Labor Commissioner has exclusive original jurisdiction over disputes under the Talent Agencies Act and issues related to the validity of contracts must first be submitted to the Commissioner, notwithstanding that the contract has a mandatory arbitration clause requiring arbitration of those disputes. The arbitration action was properly stayed pending a resolution of the Act issues by the Commissioner [Ferrer v. Preston (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 440, 445-447, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 628] .

The California Public Utilities Commission had exclusive jurisdiction to resolve a dispute between a city and a telephone company over which of the parties was required to pay the costs of compliance with a city ordinance requiring utilities to move overhead facilities underground. The superior court properly granted the telephone company's demurrer without leave to amend because the superior court lacked subject matter jurisdiction over this dispute [City of Anaheim v. Pacific Bell Tel. Co. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 838, 841-842, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 725] .

The California Supreme Court also held that the attorney general did not have standing to file a lawsuit under the California False Claims Act (CFCA) for civil remedies related to the assets of an insolvent insurance company as to which the Insurance Commissioner has acquired title because those assets are not "state funds" within the meaning of the CFCA [State of Cal. v. Altus Fin. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 1284, 1302-1303, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 498, 116 P.3d 1175] . The Court also held that the attorney general has standing to seek civil penalties under the Unfair Competition Law (UCL), but not restitution, and only injunctive relief that serves to protect the public and serve a law enforcement function [State of Cal. v. Altus Fin. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 1284, 1303-1304, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 498, 116 P.3d 1175] . In holding that the attorney general could not bring a restitution related claim under the UCL law, the Court based its decision on the exclusive authority granted to the Insurance Commissioner under Insurance Code § 1037(f) [State of Cal. v. Altus Fin. (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 1284, 1304-1306, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 498, 116 P.3d 1175] .

For further discussion of concurrent primary jurisdiction, see Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions, § 474.12[3].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusAdministrative LawJudicial ReviewReviewabilityExhaustion of RemediesAdministrative LawSeparation of PowersJurisdictionCivil ProcedureJusticiabilityExhaustion of RemediesAdministrative RemediesCivil ProcedureJusticiabilityStandingPersonal StakeCivil ProcedureJurisdictionSubject Matter JurisdictionJurisdiction Over ActionsConcurrent JurisdictionCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamus

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

Volume 41A: Public Agency Adjudications Judicial Review-Chs. 473-479
Chapter 474 AVAILABILITY OF JUDICIAL REVIEW OF AGENCY DECISIONS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Review by Writ of Mandate

41A-474 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 474.14

§ 474.14 Defenses Common to All Mandate Proceedings

[1] Statute of Limitations

Mandate proceedings must be commenced within the limitation period prescribed by applicable statutes [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6; Gov. Code § 11523; Veh. Code § 14401], or if no applicable statute exists, within the four-year limitation period prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 343 [Valvo v. University of Southern California (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 887, 894, 136 Cal. Rptr. 865] . A mandate proceeding not commenced within the applicable limitation period is barred [Barlow v. City Council of Inglewood (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 688, 697, 197 P.2d 721 ; Sinetos v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1172, 1175, 207 Cal. Rptr. 207 ; Kupka v. Board of Administration (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 791, 794, 176 Cal. Rptr. 214] .

The statute of limitations does not start running until the agency has reached a final decision. A petition for writ of mandate is not time barred when the agency decision sought to be challenged is tentative and not final until further steps have been completed by the agency [Cequel III Communications I, LLC v. Local Agency Formation Commission of Nevada County (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 310, 315-316, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 32 (cable television provider's challenge to LAFCO determination was not time barred)].

The 90-day time period under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(b) does not begin to run until the notice required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6(f) is given to the party seeking to petition for judicial review [Cummings v. City of Vernon (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 919, 922, 263 Cal. Rptr. 97 ; El Dorado Palm Springs, Ltd. v. Rent Review Com. (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 335, 344-345, 281 Cal. Rptr. 327] . When the final day of the 90-day period falls on a Sunday, and the record is silent on when notice of judicial review limitations was given, a petition filed on the following Monday is not barred [Lowe v. City of Commerce (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1075, 1079-1080, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 356] .

Administrative mandate proceedings are also subject to the general dismissal for delay in prosecution provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.120 (dismissal for failure to bring case to trial within five years of filing lawsuit); Binyon v. State (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 952, 956-957, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 673] . For a more detailed discussion of statutes of limitation applicable to mandate proceedings, see Ch. 474A, Timing of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions .

[2] Equitable Defenses

[a] Laches

The equitable defense of laches is available in a mandate proceeding [Conti v. Board of Civil Service Commissioners (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 351, 366, 82 Cal. Rptr. 337, 461 P.2d 617 ; Bakersfield Elementary Teachers Assn. v. Bakersfield City School Dist. (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1273-1275, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 486 (temporary employees mandamus remedies not precluded by laches); People v. Department of Housing & Community Dev. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 185, 195, 119 Cal. Rptr. 266 ; Audubon Soc. v. City of Moreno Valley (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 593, 606, 609, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 897 (mandate action barred by laches as a matter of law)]. Laches may apply to bar a proceeding commenced well within the period prescribed by the applicable statute of limitations [People v. Department of Housing & Community Dev. (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 185, 195, 119 Cal. Rptr. 266 ; Corcoran v. City of Los Angeles (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 839 (disapproved to extent it implies that prejudice is assumed or that delay without more is a defense in Conti v. Board of Civil Service Commissioners (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 351, 362, 82 Cal. Rptr. 337, 461 P.2d 617)] . To sustain this defense, the evidence must show both of the following [Miller v. Eisenhower Medical Center (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 614, 624, 166 Cal. Rptr. 826, 614 P.2d 258 ; Conti v. Board of Civil Service Commissioners (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 351, 359, 82 Cal. Rptr. 337, 461 P.2d 617 ; Green v. Board of Dental Examiners (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 786, 793-795, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 140] :

- An unreasonable delay on the part of the petitioner; and
- Either:
  - Acquiescence to the order or decision by petitioner; or
  - Prejudice to adverse parties as a result of the delay [see, e.g., Lam v. Bureau of Security and Investigative Services (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 29, 39-40, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 137 (laches not established as defense when affected party fails to make sufficient showing as to prejudice from delay)].

If there is an analogous statute of limitations that may be borrowed for purposes of measuring what time period constitutes reasonable delay and an agency's delay in taking action exceeds that borrowed time period, the burden of proof as to both elements of laches (unreasonable delay and prejudice) shifts to the agency, in the form of a rebuttable presumption. In this situation, the agency must offer evidence showing why laches does not bar the agency action [Fountain Valley Regional Hospital and Medical Center v. Bonta (1999) 75 Cal. App. 4th 316, 324-326, 89 Cal. Rptr. 2d 139] .

The laches defense barred the filing of a petition for a writ of administrative mandate challenging discharge of an employee when more than three years passed from the date of the agency decision before the superior court ruled on a summary judgment motion brought by the agency on the petition. The delay period included both the time before, and the time after the filing of the petition for administrative mandate. The employee failed to pursue court determination of his petition for more than 18 months after waiting a substantial period of time (another 18 months) to file the petition. The unreasonable delay element was satisfied on these facts. The prejudice element is satisfied because if the former employee wins his lawsuit and is reinstated with back pay, the agency would have to had to make double wage payments as well as having to reorganize its employment structure to include the reinstated employee. The laches defense precluded relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6. It was the only applicable timing defense because the agency failed to notify the employee of the 90 day statutory of limitations under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.6. The granting of a summary judgment by the superior court based on the defense of laches is reviewed de novo. [Johnson v. City of

Loma Linda (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 61, 68-70, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316, 5 P.3d 874] . The laches defense was rejected in a Tanner Act lawsuit because the party asserting the defense could not show that prejudice resulted from delay in the administrative proceedings [Padres Hacia una Vida Mejor v. Davis (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1123, 1134-1135, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 727] .

For a more detailed discussion of the defense of laches, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions .

[b] Unclean Hands

The equitable defense of unclean hands is also applicable in mandate proceedings; it is used to deny relief to a petitioner who has been guilty of wrongful conduct in connection with the matter that is the subject of the petition [Allen v. Los Angeles County District Council of Carpenters (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 805, 811-812, 337 P.2d 457 ; Wallace v. Board of Education (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 611, 617, 147 P.2d 8 ; Dierssen v. Civil Service Commission (1941) 43 Cal. App. 2d 53, 57-58, 110 P.2d 513] . A showing that the petitioner has been guilty of wrongful conduct in an unrelated matter is not sufficient to establish the defense [Pepper v. Superior Court (1977) 76 Cal. App. 3d 252, 259, 142 Cal. Rptr. 759 ; McCarthy v. City of Oakland (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 546, 552, 141 P.2d 4] .

[c] Waiver

The Court of Appeal held that a city did not waive the right to asset statute of limitations defenses to a claim for interest on refunds for sewer service fees when the city made refund payments without asserting limitations defenses as to those payments [Utility Audit Co., Inc. v. City of Los Angeles (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 950, 953, 959, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 520] .

The California Court of Appeal held that a building industry association did not waive the right to make legal arguments challenging the validity of a storm water system water permit on grounds that the permit violated the federal clean water statute by failing to challenge superior court factual findings related to permit requirements [Bldg. Industry Ass'n of San Diego County v. State Water Resources Control Bd (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 866, 880-881, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 128] . Another California Court of Appeal held that a developer did not waive the right to raise the issue of decision maker bias during the mandamus proceeding in the Superior Court because the developer raised the issue before the planning commission by requesting reconsideration of the adverse decision based on new facts of bias [Nasha L.L.C. v. City of Los Angeles (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 470, 484-485, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 772] .

The California Court of Appeal held that a litigant waived the right to assert on appeal an issue that the opposing parties failed to satisfy a statutory time limit for asserting a position in the trial court because the litigant failed to raise this issue before the trial court where fact issues related to the time limit could have been resolved [San Ramon Valley Fire Protection Dist. v. Contra Costa County Employees' Retirement Assn. (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 343, 350-351, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 724] . Another California Court of Appeal held that an objecting party waived the right to claim that the appealing party failed to exhaust administrative remedies because the objecting party failed to raise this issue in the trial court [DuFauchard v. U.S. Financial Management, Inc. (2009) 169 Cal. App. 4th 1502, 1511-1513, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 615]. The Court of Appeal also held that a county retirement board's decision to adopt new employer contribution amounts for employees of a county fire protection district was not an act to further the board's right of petition or free speech within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 425.16 (commonly known as the anti-SLAPP statute), and thus the Board could not seek dismissal of the District's lawsuit against the board based on that statute [San Ramon Valley Fire Protection Dist. v. Contra Costa County Employees' Retirement Assn. (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 343, 357-358, 22 Cal. Rptr. 3d 724] .

[d] Estoppel

The Court of Appeal held that the defense of equitable estoppel did not apply to prohibit the County of Los Angeles retirement agency from reclassifying deputy district attorneys as general members for retirement purposes even though attorneys had previously been employed as deputy sheriffs, and properly had safety member classification at that time. Change in status of employment changed retirement system member status. County lacked authority to continue to classify attorneys as safety members, and thus equitable estoppel defense was not applicable against county [Medina v. Board of Retirement Los Angeles County Employees Retirement Association (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 864, 870-871, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 634] . Another Court of Appeal held that the defense of equitable estoppel did not apply to prohibit the Victim's Compensation and Government Claims Board from asserting the defense of statute of limitations (based on the three-year statute of limitations from the date of the crime) to deny two crime victims compensation from the crime victim restitution fund. The victims' estoppel claim was based on the failure of the law enforcement officers to inform the victims of the availability of restitution claim funds [Moore v. State Bd. of Control (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 371, 384-386] . Another court of appeal held that the estoppel defense did not apply to prohibit a county board of appeals from raising a statute of limitations defense to a challenge to the granting of a building permit [Honig v. San Francisco Planning Dept. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 520, 529-530, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 649] . The actions of a subordinate government agency cannot provide the basis for an estoppel defense against the government agency that has the authority to review the subordinate agency [Independent Roofing Contractors v. California Apprenticeship Council (2003) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1330, 1337-1338, 9 Cal. Rptr. 3d 477] . Equitable estoppel was not recognized as a defense when the asserting party could not prove injurious reliance [State Water Resources Control Board Cases (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 674, 818-820, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 189] .

The Court of Appeal recognized the defense of equitable estoppel and held that a county employer was equitably estopped from asserting the defense of exhaustion of administrative remedies for a wrongful termination lawsuit brought by a former county employee who alleged unlawful retaliation for disclosing wrongful conduct by other county employees. The court recognized the estoppel defense based on the negligent acts of county employees that led the former employee to conclude that there was no administrative remedy available to her before she filed her lawsuit [Shuer v. County of San Diego (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 476, 486-487, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 776] .

The Court of Appeal held that a city was estopped from arguing that a landowner's failure to bring an administrative mandate action bars the landowner's right to recover damages for the value of property from the city in a condemnation proceeding. The city was estopped because it had illegally violated a preliminary injunction granted against it prohibiting the very action, building a curb that eliminated a driveway and a parking space, the lawfulness of which could have been determined by a writ of administrative mandate. The city was also estopped because it elected to file a condemnation lawsuit against the landowner, and that was a remedy that was inconsistent with the argument that the landowner must file an administrative mandate action to determine whether the city's building action was lawful. Finally, the city was estopped because the landowner, in filing an action for a permanent injunction against the city, was complying with the substance of an administrative mandate action requirement [Hurwitz v. City of Orange (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 835, 843, 845-846,19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 213] .

The California Court of Appeal held that the California Department of Corrections was not estopped from challenging the jurisdiction of the juvenile court by sending a form letter to a mother telling her that she would have to seek a court order from the juvenile court to enforce visitation rights of her children with their incarcerated father. The rule invoking estoppel against a party that files a lawsuit in a court and later seeks to attack that court's jurisdiction was not applicable because the CDC did not file a lawsuit in this court [Robin J. v. Superior Court (2004) 124 Cal. App. 4th 414, 422-423, 21 Cal. Rptr. 3d 417] .

The California Supreme Court held that the City of Goleta was not estopped to deny approval of a developer's subdivision's map because no city official expressly represented that it would give approval. Also, the city's adoption of county ordinances at the time the city incorporated did not create a reasonable expectation on the developer's part that its final subdivision map would receive ministerial approval by the city [City of Goleta v. Superior court (2006) 40 Cal. 4th 270, 279-281, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 114, 147 P. 3d 1037] . The California Court of Appeal held that a county was subject to estoppel based on the language used in a claim rejection letter under the procedures required by the California Tort Claims Act. The language of the letter estopped the county for asserting the defense of statutes of limitation under the Tort Claims Act [Sofranek v. Merced County (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1238, 1250-1252, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 426 (claim rejection letter language was reasonably relied upon by claimant who filed his lawsuit consistent with reasonable understanding of six-month limitations language in second claim rejection letter)]. The Second District Division 7 California Court of Appeal held that a litigant who challenged the subject matter jurisdiction of the California Coastal Commission on judicial review was estopped to contest that jurisdiction by participating fully in the administrative proceedings before the commission without contesting the Commission's jurisdiction [Mt. Holyoke Homes, LP v. California Coastal Commission (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 830, 842-843, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 452].

Legal Topics:

For related research and practice materials, see the following legal topics:
Administrative LawJudicial ReviewRemediesMandamusCivil ProcedureEquityMaximsClean Hands PrincipleCivil ProcedurePleading & PracticeDefenses, Demurrers & ObjectionsAffirmative DefensesGeneral OverviewCivil ProcedureRemediesWritsCommon Law WritsMandamusGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsEquitable EstoppelGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsTime LimitationsGovernmentsLegislationStatutes of LimitationsWaivers

California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated

Copyright 2010, Matthew Bender & Company, Inc., a member of the LexisNexis Group.

