Since the plaintiff seeks equitable relief, he or she is required to establish an equitable right to relief. If equity demands that the plaintiff restore the defendant to a prior position, the complaint should include allegations showing that the plaintiff has done, or offered to do, whatever equity demands [see, e.g., Behrendt v. Abraham (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 182, 187, 49 Cal. Rptr. 292, 410 P.2d 828 (plaintiff seller, defendant buyer, under real property sale contract; plaintiff as required to restore payments, less damages)].

[ii] Action Based on Breach of Sale Contract

When the purpose of the action is to foreclose a conditional purchaser's interest following default and cancellation of the agreement, the plaintiff (seller) need not refund any part of the amount paid toward the price if that amount is less than the "benefit of his bargain" [Barkis v. Scott (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 116, 120-121, 208 P.2d 367] . However, if that amount exceeds the benefit of the bargain, the plaintiff is not entitled to a judgment quieting title unless he or she refunds the excess [Baffa v. Johnson (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 36, 39, 216 P.2d 13] .

[10] Prayer

The complaint must include a prayer for the determination of the title against adverse claims [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020(e)].

The plaintiff may, if he or she wishes, add to the prayer a request for prohibitive relief, such as, "That defendant[s] be enjoined from making any further claim to the property adverse to plaintiff, by legal action or otherwise." A judgment including such an injunction is proper [Wolf v. Gall (1916) 174 Cal. 140, 145, 162 P. 115] .

[11] Verification

The complaint must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020].

[12] Process

The form, content, and manner of the service of summons is the same as in civil actions generally [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.010(a)]. The procedure to be followed if the names of all the defendants will not fit in the box on the Judicial Council form of summons is set forth in § 482.81.

If, on affidavit, it appears to the satisfaction of the court that the plaintiff has used reasonable diligence to ascertain the identity and residence of and to serve summons on the persons named as unknown defendants and persons joined as testate or intestate successors of a person known or believed to be dead, the court must order service by publication pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50. The court may, in its discretion, appoint a referee to investigate whether or not the plaintiff has used reasonable diligence to ascertain the identity and residence of persons sought to be served by publication, and the court may rely on the report of the referee instead of the affidavit of the plaintiff in making the order for service by publication. Service is not authorized by publication on any person named as an unknown defendant who is in open and actual possession of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.010(b), (c)]. As a condition of establishing that the party to be served pursuant to publication under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50 cannot with reasonable diligence be served in another manner, the court may not require that a search be conducted of public databases where access by a registered process server to residential addresses is prohibited by law or by published policy of the agency providing the database. These databases include, but are not limited to, voter registration rolls and records of the Department of Motor Vehicles [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(e)].

Whenever the court orders service by publication, the order is subject to the following conditions [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.020]:

- The plaintiff must post, not later than 10 days after the date the order is made, a copy of the summons and complaint in a conspicuous place on the real property that is the subject of the action.

- The plaintiff must record, if not already recorded, a lis pendens.

- The publication must describe the property that is the subject of the action. In addition to particularly describing the property, the publication must describe the property by giving its street address, if any, or other common designation. However, if a legal description of the property is given, the validity of the publication is not affected by the fact that the street address or other common designation recited is erroneous or omitted.

Whenever the court orders service by publication, the publication may [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.030(a)]:

- Name only the defendants to be served by publication.
- Describe only the property in which the defendants to be served thereby claim interests.

Judgment against a defendant who fails to appear and answer following service by publication is conclusive against the defendant named in respect only to property described in the publication [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.030(b)].

Whenever the court orders service by publication, the court before hearing the case must require proof that the summons has been served, posted, and published as required and that the lis pendens has been filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 763.040].

Service of summons is fully discussed in Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[13] Lis Pendens

Immediately on the commencement of a quiet title action by filing the complaint, the plaintiff must file a lis pendens in the office of the county recorder of each county in which any real property described in the complaint is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.010].

Before recording the notice, the plaintiff must cause a copy of the notice to be mailed, by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, to all known addresses of the parties to whom the plaintiff's claim is adverse and to all owners of record of the real property affected by the plaintiff's claim as shown by the latest county assessment roll. If there is no known address for service on an adverse party or owner, then as to that party or owner a declaration under penalty of perjury to that effect may be recorded in lieu of a filed proof of service, and service on that party is not required. Immediately after recording the notice, the plaintiff must file a copy of the notice in the court in which the action is pending. Upon an adverse party's being joined in the action, the notice must be served on that party [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.22].

Any notice of pendency of action is void and invalid as to any adverse party or owner of record unless mailing requirements have been met for that party or owner and a proof of service in the form and content specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a has been recorded with the notice of pendency of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.23] (or an in-lieu declaration has been recorded as described above).

From the time of recording of the notice of pendency of action, any purchaser, encumbrancer, or other transferee of the real property described in the notice is deemed to have notice of the pendency of the action as it relates to the real property, but only insofar as the action is pending against parties not fictitiously named. The plaintiff's rights and interest in the property, as ultimately determined in the pending noticed action, relate back to the date of recording of the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.24].

[14] Costs

If the defendant disclaims, in the answer, any interest or estate in the property, or suffers judgment to be taken against him or her without answering, the plaintiff is not entitled to recover costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.030(b)].

[15] Recovery of Expenses

If the plaintiff sues on account of the defendant's breach of an agreement to convey title to real property by quitclaim deed, the plaintiff's expenses in quieting his or her title, including not only litigation costs but also reasonable attorney's fees and the expenses, if any, incurred in entering the property, are recoverable as damages [see Civ. Code § 3306a]. A count alleging appropriate facts in support of a plea for damages may be included in the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 427.10(a)]. The proper trial procedure in such a case would be first to try the issue of title and then to impanel a jury for trial of the damages issue [see, e.g., Connell v. Bowes (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 870, 872, 123 P.2d 456] .

[16] State Statutes

Procedure for making state agency defendant when it has nonproperty-tax lien on property. Civ. Code § 2931a

Measure of damages for breach of promise to give quitclaim deed as expenses of quiet title action and entry on property plus attorney's fees. Civ. Code § 3306a

Specific relief as including declaring and determining parties' rights other than by award of damages. Civ. Code § 3367

Necessity that plaintiff or predecessor, in action involving "recovery of real property," be seised or possessed of property within five years before action begun. Code Civ. Proc. § 318

Lis pendens. Code Civ. Proc. § 405 et seq.

Necessity, in action for recovery of real property, to describe property with such certainty that officer levying execution can identify it. Code Civ. Proc. § 455

Procedure for quieting title and effect of judgment. Code Civ. Proc. § 760.010-764.080

Cause of action as not lost by death but maintainable by or against personal representative. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 377.20, 377.30, 377.40

Action by heirs or devisees without joining personal representative. Prob. Code § 9654

[17] Decisions

[a] Allegations

Necessity to plead facts showing equitable right to relief, when equity demands plaintiff take preliminary step. Barkis v. Scott (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 116, 120, 208 P.2d 367

Pleading requirements when suit involves riparian water rights. Hudson v. West (1957) 47 Cal. 2d 823, 828-829, 306 P.2d 807

Seller suing conditional purchaser after default is required to refund excess of amount paid toward price over "benefit of his bargain," but is not required to refund any part of amount paid if that amount is less than benefit of thebargain. Baffa v. Johnson (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 36, 39, 216 P.2d 13 ; Barkis v. Scott (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 116, 120-121, 208 P.2d 367

Plaintiff claiming equitable interest is entitled to sue defendant who also claims equitable interest, to determine whose claim is superior. Tuffree v. Polhemus (1895) 108 Cal. 670, 676-677, 41 P. 806 ; O'Keefe v. Aptos Land & Water Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 772, 781-782, 286 P.2d 417

Necessity to allege, in action involving real property, that plaintiff or predecessor was seized or possessed of property within five years before action begun. Safwenberg v. Marquez (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 301, 311, 123 Cal. Rptr. 405

Showing of legal title shows seisin, even if someone else is in possession. Schoenfeld v. Pritzker (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 117, 121, 64 Cal. Rptr. 592

In action by surviving joint tenant to quiet title to certain moneys, complaint need not allege how joint tenancy was created. Daniels v. Harney (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 400, 401, 244 P.2d 773

In action to quiet title to corporate stock, it was sufficient to allege ownership in plaintiffs, and was not necessary to make allegations relating to chain of title through which plaintiffs derived ownership. Hardison v. Corbett (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 310, 320-321, 130 P.2d 226

Necessity to identify claimed interest; complaint is demurrable if alleging only "some interest." Peck v. Martinez (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 855, 855-856, 117 P.2d 7

Description of property is required to be specific. Rapaport v. Forer (1937) 20 Cal. App. 2d 271, 275, 66 P.2d 1242 (description of money as "funds on deposit" insufficient)

Plaintiff is entitled to judgment quieting title to whatever interest he or she proves. Hurt v. Pico Inv. Co. (1932) 127 Cal. App. 106, 113-114, 15 P.2d 203

[b] Limitation of Action

Action by plaintiff in possession is not subject to limitation; action by plaintiff out of possession is subject to some statute of limitation, depending on underlying theory of relief. Muktarian v. Barmby (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 558, 560-561, 47 Cal. Rptr. 483, 407 P.2d 659

Action by plaintiff in possession to invalidate tax collector's deed is subject to one-year limitation under Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 175 and 3521. Sears v. County of Calaveras (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 518, 521, 289 P.2d 425

Application of statute of limitations in quiet title action depends on underlying theory of relief; when theory is based on fraud or mistake, Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) applies, with period beginning when plaintiff discovers or should have discovered facts constituting fraud or mistake. Ankoanda v. Walker-Smith (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 610, 612, 615, 52

Cal. Rptr. 2d 39

Distinction between standing and capacity to sue. Parker v. Bowron (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 344, 351, 254 P.2d 6

Statutes permitting suit against all unknown persons with constructive service by publication or posting is constitutional. Title & Document Restoration Co. v. Kerrigan (1906) 150 Cal. 289, 307-314, 88 P. 356

Vendor of real property is entitled to bring quiet title action even though no longer owner in order to perform warranty that title free from encumbrances. Mitchell v. American Reserve Ins. Co. (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 220, 224, 167 Cal. Rptr. 760 , disapproved on other grounds in Droeger v. Friedman, Sloan & Ross (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 26, 36-39, 283 Cal. Rptr. 584, 812 P.2d 931

State or state agency is subject to suit in quiet title action unless statute specifically gives immunity. Tehachapi-Cummings County Water Dist. v. Armstrong (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 992, 999-1000, 122 Cal. Rptr. 918

Personal representative of decedent's estate is proper party when claim made by, on behalf of, or against heirs; personal representative is not entitled to bring quiet title action against heirs. Jay v. Dollarhide (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1031, 84 Cal. Rptr. 538 , disapproved on other grounds in Morris v. Thogmartin (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 922, 930, 105 Cal. Rptr. 919

Successors in interest of party are bound by judgment. Lake Merced Golf & Country Club v. Ocean Shore R. Co. (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 421, 433, 23 Cal. Rptr. 881

Heirs or devisees, or any one of them, are entitled to bring quiet title action under former Prob. Code § 581 (now see Prob. Code § 9654) without personal representative. Bank of America v. Town of Atherton (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 268, 274, 140 P.2d 678

Necessity to identify defendant, if not individual, as entity against which court's judgment can operate. Tanner v. Best (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 442, 445, 104 P.2d 1084

Judgment giving prohibitive relief against further assertion of adverse claim is proper. Wolf v. Gall (1916) 174 Cal. 140, 145, 162 P. 115

[2. Allege identity and capacity of each known defendant, if necessary, including, the personal representative of a deceased person who appears to have an interest in the land or any claim or cloud on plaintiff's title (seeProb. Code § 573(a)), and/or a person who has an interest, claim, or cloud and who plaintiff believes to be deceased (see Rev. & Tax. Code § 3952).]

[3. If heirs and devisees of a defendant who is deceased, or believed to be deceased, are sued as defendants but their names are not known to plaintiff(s), allege: (Plaintiff(s) is/are informed and believe(s) and thereon allege(s) that) _____ (name) is deceased; plaintiff(s) does/do not know the names of decedent's heirs and devisees(, except for _____ (state names of any known heirs and devisees, who should be included above as named defendant(s))),) and therefore denominate(s) these defendants as "the heirs and devisees of _____ (name of deceased person), (believed to be) deceased," (hereinafter sometimes referred to as "the successor defendants,") pursuant to Section 3952 of the Revenue and Taxation Code. These successor defendants, and each of them, claim some right, title, estate, lien, or interest in the hereinafter-described property adverse to plaintiff's/plaintiffs' title; and their claims, and each of them, constitute a cloud on plaintiff's/plaintiffs' title to that property.]

[4. If "all persons unknown" are named as defendants, allege: The defendants herein named as "all other persons unknown, claiming any right, title, estate, lien, or interest in the real property described in the complaint, adverse to plaintiff's ownership or any cloud on plaintiff's title thereto" (hereinafter sometimes referred to as "the unknown defendants") are unknown to plaintiff(s). These unknown defendants, and each of them, claim some right, title, estate, lien, or interest in the hereinafter-described property adverse to plaintiff's/plaintiffs' title; and their claims, and each of them, constitute a cloud on plaintiff's/plaintiffs' title to that property.]

[5. Fictitious defendants, if appropriate. See § 482.80, Paragraph 5.]

[6. If unknown persons owning or claiming an interest in a special assessment lien are made defendants, allege: Plaintiff(s) does/do not know the names of the owner(s) and persons claiming an interest in the special assessment lien _____ (describe assessment lien as it is described in the bond or assessment records of the district in which it was issued), except _____ (state names of any known owners of claimants, who should be included above as named defendant(s)), who is/are named herein as defendant(s) because he/she/they is/are shown on the records of the Treasurer as the owner(s) and person(s) claiming an interest in the above-described special assessment lien, and therefore plaintiff(s) name(s) this/these unknown defendant(s) herein as "the owner or any person claiming an interest in a special assessment lien" described above. Defendant _____ (name) is the Treasurer of _____ (government entity) and is sued as collecting agent and trustee of the funds collected for unknown owners of the special assessment lien hereinafter referred to or for persons claiming an interest therein. The Treasurer's records show the following persons to be the owners thereof or claimants of an interest therein: _____ (names). (If the special assessment is represented by a bond, add: The payee on the bond representing the special assessment is _____ (name). All of the persons named in this paragraph are made defendants pursuant to Revenue and Taxation Code Section 3955.)]

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of complaint is for use by a person who has purchased tax-defaulted property, including purchases made from other taxing agencies under Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 3771-3841, or a person claiming through him or her, to obtain a judgment quieting his or her title [see Rev. & Tax. Code §§ 3727, 3950]. For further discussion, see the Introduction under Actions Respecting Tax-Defaulted Property, above. The process of tax default, redemption, and sale by the local tax collector is discussed in more detail in Ch. 540, Taxes and Assessments, § 540.30 et seq.

[3] Defendants

[a] Who Must Be Named

The complaint must name as defendants all persons who are known to the plaintiff, or who appear of record, to have some interest in, or claim on, the land described in the complaint, if the interest or claim arose before the date of the tax deed, other than persons owning a special assessment, unless plaintiff seeks to determine the interest or claim of those persons [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3951].

[b] State of California

The state may be made a party defendant if the property was sold prior to September 14, 1984 [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3951]. Under the system in effect since September 14, 1984, the state is not a party to the process of tax default, redemption, and sale. Under the transition rule, sales or deeds to the state that occurred before September 14, 1984, and with respect to which a right of redemption still existed on that date, were cancelled as of September 14, 1984; and the property was deemed to be tax-defaulted as of the date of its sale to the state and became subject to a power of sale for nonpayment of taxes [Stats. 1984, ch. 988, § 74(a)]. The local tax collector was required to record a release of equity or quitclaim deed for and on behalf of the state [Stats. 1984, ch. 988, § 74(b)].

[c] Unknown Claimants

The complaint may name as defendants persons unknown to the plaintiff who claim any right, interest, lien, or claim on the land, or any cloud onplaintiff's title thereto, arising before the date of the tax deed from the state [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3952].

All unknown claimants, except two categories of unknown claimants [see the discussions under §§ 482.81[3][e], [f]], are required to be described in the complaint as follows: "Also all other persons unknown, claiming any right, title, estate, lien or interest in the real property described in the complaint, adverse to plaintiff's ownership or any cloud upon plaintiff's title thereto" [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3953].

Generally, an action does not abate by the death of a person, but may be maintained against his or her personal representative [Prob. Code § 573(a); see also § 482.80].

[e] Heirs; Devisees; Persons Believed Dead

In any case in which any person who appears to have had an interest in the land described in the complaint, or any claim or cloud on the plaintiff's title, is known to be dead, the heirs and devisees of the person may be sued as "the heirs and devisees" of the person, naming him or her. If the person is only believed to be dead, and that belief is alleged in the complaint on information and belief, the heirs and devisees of the person may also be sued as "the heirs and devisees" of the person, naming him or her, provided that he or she is also named as a defendant [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3952].

[f] Owners of Special Assessments

Owners of special assessments need not be made defendants unless the plaintiff seeks to determine the interests or claims of those persons [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3951]. Generally a deed from a county tax collector will be subject to special assessment liens for (1) installments of special assessments that will become payable after the time of the sale; (2) special assessments of any taxing agency that did not consent to the sale; (3) special assessments that were not included in the amount necessary to redeem the tax-defaulted property; and (4) unpaid assessments under the Improvement Bond Act of 1915 [Sts. & Hy. Code § 8500 et seq.] and unpaid special taxes under the Mello-Roos Community Facilities Act of 1982 [Gov. Code § 53311 et seq.] that are not satisfied as a result of the sale proceeds being applied pursuant to Rev. & Tax. Code § 4671 et seq. or that are being collected through a foreclosure action [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3712(a)-(c), (f), (h)].

Unknown defendants owning or claiming an interest in a special assessment are required to be described in the complaint as follows: "The owner or any person claiming an interest in a special assessment lien _____ [description of lien as described in bond or assessment records of district in which it was issued]" [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3954].

Whenever unknown defendants owning or claiming an interest in special assessments are made defendants, the following persons are also required to be made defendants: (1) the payee, as shown by the bond representing the special assessment, if any; (2) the owner of the special assessment, or any person claiming an interest therein, as shown by the treasurer's records; and (3) the treasurer, as the collecting agent and trustee of the funds collected for the unknown owners of a special assessment or persons claiming an interest therein [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3955]. A "treasurer" does not actually have to have the official title "Treasurer," but is any person who is the custodian of the funds collected on special assessments and/or who has the duty to cancel the assessments when they are paid [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3971].

"Special assessment" means any assessment levied pursuant to any of the improvement acts of the state, whether or not represented by a bond, which are liens on a specific parcel of real property [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3972].

[4] Allegations

The complaint is required to allege that (1) tax-defaulted property was purchased at a tax sale, and (2) all subsequent taxes levied and payable have been paid (Paragraph 8) [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3950].

In other respects, the complaint is the same as in an ordinary action [see § 482.80].

[5] Verification

The complaint must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.020; Rev. & Tax. Code § 3950].

[6] Notice of Pendency of Action

Within 10 days after the filing of the complaint, the plaintiff is required to file, or cause to be filed, in the office of the county recorder of the county where the property is situated, a notice of the pendency of the action as prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 405.20 (lis pendens generally) [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3956]. For discussion of such notices generally, and suitable general forms, see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens .

[7] Process

[a] Form of Summons

The summons is required to contain, in addition to the matter prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20 (contents of summons generally), a description of theproperty and a statement of the object of the action. In the summons, unknown defendants are required to be designated as they are designated in the complaint [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3957].

That form can be adapted as follows:

(1) If the block for listing defendants is not large enough to accommodate the designation of defendants as in the complaint, either a facing page containing a complete caption or a following page on which the caption is continued may be attached. Local rules should be consulted. If a facing page is used, it should reproduce the caption which appears on the complaint, but the title of the paper would, of course, be "SUMMONS" instead of "COMPLAINT." If a following page is used, it should be referred to in the block for listing defendants on the Judicial Council form. A reference such as "(continued on attached page)" should be satisfactory. The names of known defendants other than the first-listed name should not be indicated by the abbreviation "et al." because Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20 requires that the summons contain the "names of the parties to the action" [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20].

(2) Because the printed Judicial Council form of summons does not provide enough space for typing a description of the property and a statement of the object of the action, another page should be attached. It should conform to the requirements in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.100 et seq. (format of papers generally). The description of the real property may be single-spaced [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.108(2)]. On the face of the Judicial Council form, in the block containing the word "SUMMONS" there should appear a reference to the additional page, such as "WITH [or AND] ATTACHMENT." (It is also advisable to include such a reference when the designation of defendants is continued on an additional page.)

If the designation of defendants is continued on an additional page, it should be separate from the additional page containing the description of the property and the statement of the object of the action.

If any pages are attached to the Judicial Council form, the proof of service on the reverse side of that form should refer to the attachment. For example, the balance of the first line following "I served the summons" can be stricken and replaced with "with [or and] attachment and complaint as follows:". If more than one additional page is attached, the reference should be to "attachments."

[b] Posting of Summons

Within 30 days after the issuance of the summons, the plaintiff must post, or cause to be posted, in a conspicuous place on the property, a copy of the summons [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3958].

[c] Service of Summons

All known defendants are required to be served in the manner required by law for service of summons in a civil action [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3959; see Code Civ. Proc. § 413.10 et seq. (service of summons in civil action)].

[d] Service by Publication on Unknown Defendants

All unknown defendants must be served by publication as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50, but it must appear by affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) that the plaintiff used reasonable diligence to ascertain the identities of unknown defendants, including persons sued as "heirs and devisees" [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3960]. As a condition of establishing that the party to be served pursuant to publication under Code Civ. Proc. §

415.50 cannot with reasonable diligence be served in another manner, the court may not require that a search be conducted of public databases where access by a registered process server to residential addresses is prohibited by law or by published policy of the agency providing the database. These databases include, but are not limited to, voter registration rolls and records of the Department of Motor Vehicles [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(e)].

All unknown defendants served by publication must have the same rights as are provided by law for other defendants on whom personal service or service by publication is made. The action must proceed against the unknown defendants in the same manner as against the other defendants who are served personally or by publication. Regardless of any legal disability, any unknown defendant who has been served, and anyone claiming under him or her, who has or claims to have any right, title, estate, lien, or interest in the property, or cloud on the title thereto, or who owns or claims to own an interest in a special assessment lien adverse to the plaintiff when the action is begun, must be concluded by a judgment in the action as if the action were brought against, and personal service were made on, that person by his or her name. Service must be deemed complete on the completion of the publication [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3961; see Rev. & Tax. Code § 3972 ("special assessment" defined)].

[e] When County Is Defendant

If the county is named as a defendant, service of process must be made on the tax collector of the county in which the property is situated [Rev. & Tax. Code § 160].

[8] Defaults

No judgment establishing the rights of any of the defendants as to the property shall be rendered on the default of a defendant unless the court requires proof of the facts alleged [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3962].

[9] Judgment

On the trial of the action, the court must determine the rights of all the parties [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3963].

If the court orders a sale of the property or the partition of it, that must be done in accordance with the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 872.010 et seq. (governing partition actions), except that the proceeds of sale belonging to unknown special assessment owners, or persons claiming an interest in these special assessments, must be paid to the "treasurer," to be held by him or her as in like instances of collections by the treasurer of special assessments [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3965; see Rev. & Tax. Code § 3971 (defining "treasurer," and discussed under § 482.81[3][f])].

If the right, title, interest, lien, or estate of a known or an unknown defendant established by the judgment is based on a special assessment or arises from a special assessment, the judgment must direct the treasurer to cancel the special assessments on his or her records [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3966].

If the court determines that none of the defendants have any right, title, interest, lien, or estate in the property, the court shall render judgment for the plaintiff under the tax deed; and if any of the defendants claims to be the owner of, or to have an interest in, a special assessment, and the court determines the special assessment to be invalid or inferior to the plaintiff's title, the judgment must direct that the treasurer cancel the assessment on his or her records [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3967].

The judgment, after becoming final, is conclusive against all of the persons named in the complaint who have been served, and against all unknown persons, and all heirs and devisees of any named defendant served as provided in Rev. & Tax. Code § 3960 [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3968; § 482.81[7][d]].

[10] Cancellation of Special Assessments

After the judgment becomes final, a certified copy of it must be delivered to the treasurer [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 3971 (definition)]. On receipt of the copy, he or she must cause to be canceled the special assessment [see Rev. & Tax. Code § 3972 (definition)] described in the judgment. The treasurer must, on his or her records, mark the special assessment as follows: "Canceled by judgment of court, superior court case number _____ [number]" [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3969].

[11] Cumulation of Remedies

The remedy provided by Rev. & Tax. Code § 3950 et seq. shall be construed as cumulative and not exclusive of any other remedy, form, or right of action, or proceeding now allowed by law [Rev. & Tax. Code § 3970].

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the defendant in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing answer and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

This form of answer is for use by a defendant who disclaims any interest or estate in the property described in the complaint in a quiet title action. The defendant may either file an answer or suffer judgment to be taken against him, her, or it without filing an answer, and in either case, the plaintiff will thereby be precluded from recovering costs from that defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.030(b)]. Dismissal of the action against any disclaiming defendant is proper [Jeffords v. Young (1925) 197 Cal. 224, 226, 239 P. 1054] .

[3] Verification

The answer must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.030(a)].

Defendant [_____ (name, if there are several defendants)] answers the complaint as follows:

1. _____ [Set forth any claim that defendant has to the property, e.g., Defendant is a contingent remainderman to the property under a declaration of trust made by _____ [name] on _____ [date] and recorded in the Official Records of the County of _____, Book _____, page _____].

[2. _____ (Set forth any facts tending to controvert such material allegations of the complaint as the defendant does not wish to be taken as true, e.g., Plaintiff did not take title to the property by the deed from _____(name of grantor) dated _____because _____ (name of grantor) was incompetent when he/she executed the deed.)]

[3. Set forth affirmative defenses, as appropriate, e.g., limitation of action, laches, res judicata, another action pending, etc.; see Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions ; Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions ; Ch. 491, Res Judicata ; and other appropriate articles.]

WHEREFORE, defendant prays judgment as follows:

1. That plaintiff(s) take nothing by his/her/their complaint;

2. That defendant be awarded his/her costs herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification. See § 482.82.]

[2] Use of Form

This form of answer is for use by a defendant who claims an interest in the property adverse to that of the plaintiff. A defendant may seek a decree quieting title in the interest by a cross complaint. § 482.80 may be adapted for use as a cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 761.040; discussion under § 482.83[4]]. In most situations, the defendant should seek to quiet title to his or her interest because such a judgment can quiet title against all named and unknown cross defendants [Code Civ. Proc. § 764.030; see § 482.24].

[3] Allegations in Answer

The answer must set forth [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.030]:

(2) Any facts tending to controvert any material allegations of the complaint that the defendant does not wish to be taken as true.

It should be noted that the quiet title statutes require more in an answer than in an ordinary civil action. The defendant must set forth his or her own claim and must plead facts that controvert plaintiff's allegations. Denials of plaintiff's allegations are not sufficient.

[4] Cross Complaint

[a] Affirmative Relief

A defendant may, by cross complaint, seek affirmative relief in a quiet title action [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.040]. If affirmative relief is sought, a cross complaint must be filed; affirmative relief may not be claimed in the answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(c)]. The cross complaint is required to be a separate document [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.40]. The cross complainant may seek affirmative relief against the plaintiff or plaintiffs, against other defendants, or against third parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10; see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints]. However, a defendant who claims an adverse interest does not have to assert any affirmative relief as against the plaintiff. A simple judgment in a quiet title action in favor of the defendant, that the plaintiff take nothing by the complaint and that the defendant recover costs, operates as an estoppel on the plaintiff, determining title as between the parties, and protects the defendant against any further claim of the plaintiff as fully as would an affirmative judgment in the defendant's favor [Hudson v. West (1957) 47 Cal. 2d 823, 830-831, 306 P.2d 807 ; Warden v. Stoll (1930) 210 Cal. 374, 377, 291 P. 835 ; Jay v. Dollarhide (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1031, 84 Cal. Rptr. 538] .

[b] Allegations in Cross Complaint

A cross complaint to quiet title must contain the same allegations as a complaint to quiet title [see § 482.80]. If the defendant seeks a determination of title as of a date other than the date specified in the complaint, the cross complaint must include the date and a statement of the reason why a determination as of that date is sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.040(b)].

[5] Appearance by Unnamed Person With Interest in Property

Any person who has a claim to the property described in the complaint may appear in the proceeding. Whether or not the person is named as a defendant in the complaint, the person must appear as a defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 762.050]. The appearance by an unnamed defendant ordinarily will be made by filing a motion to intervene and then, with the court's permission, a complaint in intervenor [Code Civ. Proc. § 387; see Ch. 395, Parties]. If a party wants to appear and file an answer without filing a complaint in intervenor, the statute appears to authorize a motion to appear by an unnamed defendant.

[6] Equitable Defenses

If the plaintiff's title is not defective and cannot be proved to be inferior but is subject to being defeated on an equitable ground (e.g., fraud, mistake, unclean hands, etc.), the defendant may assert his or her equitable defense if he or she supports it with appropriate factual allegations [see, e.g., Strong v. Strong (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 540, 546, 140 P.2d 386] . Although the plaintiff is precluded from asserting, in a quiet title action, an equitable interest adverse to the defendant's legal title [see the discussion in the Introduction under Asserting Equitable Interest Against Legal Title, above], the defendant may assert an equitable interest in defense against the plaintiff's legal title [see, e.g., Baucum v. Le Baron (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 593, 595, 289 P.2d 266 ; Wade v. Howe (1934) 2 Cal. App. 2d 435, 439, 38 P.2d 439] .

When the defendant asserts an equitable defense, if the defense is good, he or she may be required to do equity as a condition of receiving a final judgment. For instance, if the defendant alleges and proves that the deed he or she gave to the plaintiff, and on which the plaintiff's complaint for quiet title is based, was intended to be a mortgage, the court may, and should, require the defendant to pay the underlying debt before the court renders judgment against the plaintiff [see Bloom v. Bloom (1929) 207 Cal. 70, 72-73, 276 P. 568 ; see also § 482.86]. Therefore, when pleading an equitable defense, the defendant should allege that he or she has done, or offered to do, whatever equity demands that he or she do.

Because there is no statute of limitations governing quiet title actions as such, it is ordinarily necessary to refer to the underlying theory of relief to determine which statute applies. When the plaintiff is in possession of the property, however, this analysis is unnecessary because no limitation applies. The reasoning is that the person in possession will not necessarily know of dormant adverse claims of persons not in possession, and even if he or she does know of a potential adverse claimant, he or she is not obliged to take any action until an adverse claim is asserted against him or her. However, the question of limitation notwithstanding, a person in possession runs the risk that laches will bar his or her right to relief if he or she delays bringing a lawsuit and thus prejudices the defendant [Muktarian v. Barmby (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 558, 560-561, 47 Cal. Rptr. 483, 407 P.2d 659] .

[8] Laches as Defense

It has been held that in a quiet title action concerning real property, laches is not a defense if the defendant "fails to demonstrate that he was in adverse possession of the contested property during the period of delay" [Gerhard v. Stephens (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 864, 904, 69 Cal. Rptr. 612, 442 P.2d 692] . As an example of the kind of case in which laches may be asserted successfully, see Lundgren v. Lundgren (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 582, 54 Cal. Rptr. 30 .

[9] Propriety of Demurrer Based on Laches

A demurrer asserting laches could not be sustained unless the complaint shows on its face an unexplained, unreasonable delay and some prejudicial effect on the defendant. Even if the complaint showed such a defect, however, the court should not sustain a general demurrer but should proceed to a judgment (in favor of the defendant) so as to achieve the purpose of finally disposing of conflicting claims to the property [Warren v. Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 24, 36, 36 n. 4, 96 Cal. Rptr. 317] .

[10] Verification

The answer and cross complaint must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 761.020, 761.030].

[12] Decisions

Defendant is entitled to assert equitable defense, even against plaintiff's apparent legal title, if defense is specifically alleged. Strong v. Strong (1943)22 Cal. 2d 540, 546, 140 P.2d 386 ; Baucum v. Le Baron (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 593, 595, 289 P.2d 266 ; Wade v. Howe (1934) 2 Cal. App. 2d 435, 439, 38 P.2d 439

Action by plaintiff in possession is not subject to limitation. Muktarian v. Barmby (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 558, 560-561, 47 Cal. Rptr. 483, 407 P.2d 659

Defendant is entitled to assert laches in defense, if in adverse possession. Gerhard v. Stephens (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 864, 904, 69 Cal. Rptr. 612, 442 P.2d 692 ; Lundgren v. Lundgren (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 582, 54 Cal. Rptr. 30 (laches asserted successfully)

Demurrer based on laches is not sustainable unless defect appears on face of complaint; judgment finally disposing of conflicting claims (in defendant's favor) is better procedure than sustaining demurrer on basis of laches. Warren v.

Atchison, T. & S.F. Ry. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 24, 36, 36 n. 4, 96 Cal. Rptr. 317

Simple judgment in defendant's favor, that plaintiff take nothing and defendant recover costs, protects defendant against future claims by plaintiff as fully as would an affirmative judgment in defendant's favor. Hudson v. West (1957) 47 Cal. 2d 823, 830-831, 306 P.2d 807 ; Warden v. Stoll (1930) 210 Cal. 374, 377, 291 P. 835 ; Jay v. Dollarhide (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 1001, 1031, 84 Cal. Rptr. 538

Attorney for _____ [party's status]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a notice of motion, and with the accompanying form of order [see § 482.85], it may be used by either party, in an appropriate case, to gain entry to real property for the purpose of making a survey, when a survey is necessary for adjudication.

[3] Right to Judicial Order

In an action "for the recovery of real property" the court may make an order permitting a party "to enter upon the property and make survey and measurement thereof, and of any tunnels, shafts, or drifts therein, for the purpose of the action, even though entry for such purpose has to be made through other lands belonging to parties to the action" [Code Civ. Proc. § 742].

The above statute, apparently, has not been construed, applied, or even mentioned, in any appellate case. But it probably can be applied in any quiet title action that amounts to an action "for the recovery of real property," such as one where ownership of the present interest [see Civ. Code § 689] is at issue.

[4] Notice

The order may not be made except on noticed motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 742]. For discussion of the usual procedure for making a noticed motion, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[5] Grounds

The order may not be made except for good cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 742]. Any showing of the need, as a practical matter, for a survey or other measurements of the property would probably establish cause.

[6] Points and Authorities

A supporting memorandum must accompany the notice [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1114(a) (motions for which memorandum is not required)]. It may be included on the same paper, after counsel's signature. A sufficient memorandum, in most cases, would need nothing more than the text of Code Civ. Proc. § 742.

For additional discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[7] State Statutes

Court, in action for recovery of real property, is empowered to make order, on noticed motion and for good cause, allowing party to make survey or measurements for purpose of action. Code Civ. Proc. § 742

[8] California Rules of Court

"Papers" includes all documents, except exhibits or copies of documents, offered in support of motion. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.3(2)

Papers not to be filed accompanying motion. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.250(a)

The motion of _____ [name of moving party] came on regularly for hearing this date. Plaintiff(s) appeared by _____ [name(s)], counsel; and defendant(s) appeared by _____ [name(s)], counsel.

On proof of good cause made to the satisfaction of the court that the motion ought to be granted,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that _____ [specify, e.g., Straight & Narrow, Inc., licensed surveyors, and persons under their direction, shall be permitted to enter on the property commonly known as Smith's Addition No. 4 to the City of Goldland in Mountain County, and adjacent parcels held of record by parties to this action, for the purpose of making a survey fixing the eastern boundary of Smith's Addition No. 4. This entry shall be permitted at such times, and as often, as Straight & Narrow, Inc., deems necessary for making the survey as expeditiously as possible, but in no event shall the making of the survey be undertaken in a manner that unduly interferes with the present and customary uses of any party or other person in possession. On completion of the survey, Straight & Narrow, Inc., shall furnish to the court and to each party a map, conforming to current standards of land surveying, illustrating the survey. _____ (Name of moving party) shall make all necessary arrangements with Straight & Narrow, Inc., concerning the making of the survey and shall be liable, pending the judgment in this action, for all costs, charges, and fees attending the making of the survey].

[2] Use of Form

This form is an order for use by the party who moves for an order permitting a survey of real property in connection with a quiet title action.

[3] Contents; Service

The order must describe the property--a metes and bounds description probably is not necessary--and a copy must be served on the owner or occupant [Code Civ. Proc. § 743].

[4] Liability for Injury

If any unnecessary injury is done to the property in the course of making the survey, the party who obtained the order permitting the survey is liable [Code Civ. Proc. § 743].

[2] Use of Form

This form of judgment is for use by the plaintiff in a quiet title action. The form does not include any relief other than a declaration of the parties' interests in the property in question. Commonly, however, and particularly when the property in question is real property, additional relief is given for the sake of making the declarative part of the judgment effective. Injunctive relief is often given [see Mansfield v. Kaiser (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 632, 637, 1 Cal. Rptr. 555] .

The caption on the judgment should be complete, as on the complaint. The parties should not be identified by the abbreviation "et al." but should all be named, because the judgment is a "document of title" [see Welch v. Kai (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 374, 381, 84 Cal. Rptr. 619 ; see also Behrendt v. Abraham (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 182, 186, 49 Cal. Rptr. 292, 410 P.2d 828 (judgment described as "muniment of title and prima facie evidence of ownership")].

Regarding preparation and entry of judgment and service of notice of entry, see Ch. 318, Judgments .

This form of judgment may be adapted for use by a defendant who seeks and obtains affirmative relief.

[3] Scope of Judgment

[a] In General

A quiet title action is brought, as authorized by the statute, for the purpose of determining any adverse claim that may be asserted therein by a defendant to the property in controversy. This does not mean that the court is simply to ascertain, as against a plaintiff shown to have a legal interest, whether or not such defendant has some interest, but also that the court shall declare and define the interest held by the defendant, if any, so that the plaintiff may have a judgment finally adjudicating the extent of his or her own interest in the property in controversy. The object of the action is to finally settle and determine, as between the parties, all conflicting claims to the property in controversy, and to decree to each party such interest or estate therein as he or she may be entitled to [Peterson v. Gibbs (1905) 147 Cal. 1, 5, 81 P. 121] .

[b] When Any Interest Is Part of Decedent's Estate

When it appears that some party has an interest derived from an estate and the estate has not been administered, the court may not determine the nature and extent of that interest. Jurisdiction to make such a determination is given exclusively to the probate court [Marsh v. Edelstein (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 132, 142-143, 88 Cal. Rptr. 26] .

[c] Prohibitive Relief

A judgment including an injunction against the defendant's further assertion of any claim to the property adverse to the plaintiff's is proper [Wolf v. Gall (1916) 174 Cal. 140, 145, 162 P. 115] . Such an injunction may be included if the plaintiff requests it. An appropriate form is, "The defendant(s) is/are enjoined to make no further claim to said property adverse to plaintiff(s), by legal action or otherwise, on the basis of any fact or facts which were proved, or which might have been proved, in this action." The qualification is advisable in order not to enjoin the defendant from asserting in a future action some claim that arises after the judgment.

When the plaintiff is entitled to relief if he or she does some act that equity demands (e.g., restores money paid by the defendant toward the purchase price of the property), it is proper for the court to render an interlocutory judgment stating the conditions that must be fulfilled before a final judgment will be rendered. Similarly, when the plaintiff is entitled to relief on the basis of the defendant's failure to do some act which equity demands he or she be given a chance to do, the court should render an interlocutory judgment. If the conditions specified in the interlocutory judgment are subsequently fulfilled (in the one case) or remain unfulfilled (in the other case), a final judgment may be rendered in the plaintiff's favor, but otherwise, judgment should be rendered against the plaintiff [see Bloom v. Bloom (1929) 207 Cal. 70, 73, 276 P. 568 ; see also Stein v. Simpson (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 79, 87, 230 P.2d 816 ; Perry v. West Coast Bond etc. Co. (1934) 136 Cal. App. 557, 559, 29 P.2d 279] .

The judgment is binding and conclusive on all of the following persons, regardless of any legal disability [Code Civ. Proc. § 764.030]:

- All persons known and unknown who were parties to the action and who have any claim to the property, whether present or future, vested or contingent, legal or equitable, several or undivided; and

- Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 764.045, all persons who were not parties to the action and who have any claim to the property that was not of record at the time the lis pendens was filed or, if none was filed, at the time the judgment was recorded. Code Civ. Proc. § 764.045 is discussed in § 482.24.

[6] Statement of Decision

On request of any party appearing at trial, the court shall issue a statement of decision explaining the factual and legal basis for its decision regarding each principal controverted issue. The request is to be made within 10 days after the court announces a tentative decision or, if the trial has lasted less than one calendar day or less than eight hours over more than one day, prior to submission of the matter for decision. After a statement of decision is requested, any party may make proposals regarding its content. The statement will be in writing unless the parties agree otherwise; however, if trial is completed within one calendar day or within eight hours over more than one day, the statement of decision may be made orally on the record in the presence of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]. For further discussion, see Ch. 529, Statement of Decision .

[7] Description of Property and Interests

The judgment is a kind of document of title; therefore, it should describe the property and the owners' interests as precisely, and in the same manner, as does a deed, or a bill of sale, or any other document of title [see Dalusio v. Boone (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 253, 260-262, 75 Cal. Rptr. 287] . An impossible, wrong, or uncertain description, or no description at all, renders a quiet title judgment erroneous and void [Newport v. Hatton (1924) 195 Cal. 132, 156, 231 P. 987 ; Newman v. Cornelius (1970) 3 Cal. App. 3d 279, 284, 83 Cal. Rptr. 435] . Some practitioners believe that typographical and other errors are minimized by using the legal description copied from a title insurance policy as an exhibit to the judgment.

[8] Costs

If the defendant disclaims in his or her answer any interest or estate in the property or suffers judgment to be taken against him or her without an answer, the plaintiff cannot recover costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 761.030(b)]. The foregoing form of judgment is not appropriate for use in case of a default. Regarding default cases, see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

[9] Motion for New Trial or to Vacate Judgment

If any of certain irregularities exist [see Code Civ. Proc. § 657], counsel may move for a new trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 659], or if the judgment is based on incorrect or erroneous conclusions of law not consistent with, or supported by, findings of fact, counsel may move to vacate the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 663]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial .

[10] Appeal

Any party aggrieved by the judgment may appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 902]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 40, Appeal: An Overview , et seq.

A judgment that leaves any issue for later determination is an interlocutory judgment and, therefore, is generally not appealable, although certain types of interlocutory judgments (not relevant here) are appealable [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1; see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(1), (8), (9), (11); Pomper v. Superior Court (1923) 191 Cal. 494, 495-496, 216 P. 577] .

If real property is involved, a certified copy of the judgment should be recorded in the county where the real property is situated. From the time of filing with the recorder, the certified copy is notice to all persons of its contents, and any subsequent purchaser, mortgagee, or lienholder is charged with having the same notice that he or she would have had if the judgment were a duly recorded deed or other instrument of transfer [Gov. Code § 27326; Civ. Code § 1213].

Judgment in quiet title action is document of title and prima facie evidence of ownership. Behrendt v. Abraham (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 182, 186, 49 Cal. Rptr. 292, 410 P.2d 828

Interlocutory judgment is appropriate when party entitled to judgment should do equity first. Stein v. Simpson (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 79, 87, 230 P.2d 816 ; Bloom v. Bloom (1929) 207 Cal. 70, 73, 276 P. 568 ; Perry v. West Coast Bond etc. Co. (1934) 136 Cal. App. 557, 559, 29 P.2d 279

Judgment leaving any issue for later determination is interlocutory and, therefore, not appealable. Pomper v. Superior Court (1923) 191 Cal. 494, 495-496, 216 P. 577

Judgment is conclusive not only on parties but also on persons claiming through them. Estate of Clark (1923) 190 Cal. 354, 360, 212 P. 622 ; Holman v. Toten (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 309, 314, 128 P.2d 808

Judgment enjoining defendant from making further adverse claims to property is proper. Wolf v. Gall (1916) 174 Cal. 140, 145, 162 P. 115

Court is without jurisdiction to determine nature and extent of interest derived from estate still in administration, except to find that party has such interest as may be determined by probate decree. Marsh v. Edelstein (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 132, 142-143, 88 Cal. Rptr. 26

Caption of judgment is improper if merely referring to first-named party on each side and others as "et al." Welch v. Kai (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 374, 381, 84 Cal. Rptr. 619

Description of property in judgment must be same as description in deed or other document of title. Dalusio v. Boone (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 253, 260-262, 75 Cal. Rptr. 287

Injunctive relief is incidental relief in quiet title action. Mansfield v. Kaiser (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 632, 637, 1 Cal. Rptr. 555

Plaintiff alleges:

1. This is an action under Section 2409a of Title 28 of the United States Code for adjudication of a disputed title to real property in which the United States claims an interest, other than a security interest or water rights. Jurisdiction is based on Section 1346(f) of Title 28 of the United States Code.

2. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, the owner _____ [specify ownership, e.g., in fee simple of or as joint tenant of an undivided interest in or of a reversionary interest in or the like] that certain parcel of real property [if improved property, and if appropriate, add: and all improvements situated thereon], located in _____ County, California, and more particularly described as follows: _____[set forth metes and bounds or other satisfactory description].

3. The circumstances under which plaintiff acquired the aforementioned interest are as follows: _____ [set out chain of title, with names and dates and descriptions of interests transferred].

4. The United States of America claims _____[specify interest which government claims or might claim, e.g., a reversionary interest in the real property hereinabove described, pursuant to the Act of _____ (specify date, e.g., July 1, 1862), _____ (set forth citation to statutes)].

5. Plaintiff first learned of the claim of the United States on _____, 19_____. Plaintiff could not have learned of the claim of the United States before _____ 19_____, because _____ [specify].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays:

1. That this court determine and adjudge that the United States has no interest adverse to the plaintiff's interest in the real property hereinabove described; and

2. That plaintiff is the owner _____ [specify ownership asserted by plaintiff].

[2] Source of Form

The foregoing form is based on the facts of Buchler v. United States (E.D. Cal. 1974) 384 F. Supp. 709 .

[3] Use of Form

The foregoing form of complaint is for use by any person claiming an interest in, and wishing an adjudication of title to, real property in California in which the United States claims an interest, other than a security interest [see 28 U.S.C. § 2410] or water rights [see 43 U.S.C. § 666]. A quiet title action against the United States in such a case is authorized by 28 U.S.C. § 2409a.

A judgment for the plaintiff will not necessarily mean that the plaintiff may take possession of the property even if the plaintiff has a present interest [see § 482.87[10]].

Until the enactment of 28 U.S.C. § 2409a in 1972, the federal government asserted sovereign immunity against being sued in quiet title actions generally. That section is a waiver of sovereign immunity and a consent to be sued in any quiet title action [Buchler v. United States (E.D. Cal. 1974) 384 F. Supp. 709, 710] , although the section does not apply to or affect certain actions [see 28 U.S.C. § 2409a(a); see also the References § 482.87[15]].

When the United States has or claims a mortgage lien or any other lien with respect to real or personal property, a quiet title action is authorized by 28 U.S.C. § 2410.

[4] Jurisdiction and Venue

The United States district courts have exclusive jurisdiction of actions under 28 U.S.C. § 2409a to quiet title [28 U.S.C.

The action must be brought in the district where the property is located, and if the property is located in two or more districts, the action may be brought in any of them [28 U.S.C. § 1402].

[5] Limitation

An action under 28 U.S.C. § 2409a may be barred if it is not begun within 12 years after the date when the plaintiff, or the plaintiff's predecessor in interest, knew, or should have known, of the claim of the United States [28 U.S.C. § 2409a(f)]. Thus it is possible that the plaintiff's right to sue may be foreclosed through no default on his or her part, because his or her predecessor in interest may have known of the government's claim many years earlier [see, e.g., Gendron v. United States (E.D. Cal. 1974) 402 F. Supp. 46, 47-48 , aff'd, 524 F.2d 1154 (1975) (plaintiff's predecessor in interest knew of government's claim 75 years before plaintiff filed suit)].

Despite the fact that no quiet title action could be brought against the United States (except under 28 U.S.C. § 2410 where the government claimed only a security interest) before October 25, 1972, when 28 U.S.C. § 2409a became law, the 12-year period of limitation did not begin on that date. If the limitation period had begun on that date, then until October 26, 1984, every person with a colorable claim of interest in real property adverse to the United States could sue to quiet title, regardless of how stale the claim was. But Congress rejected a proposal to make the waiver of immunity embodied in 28 U.S.C. § 2409a fully retroactive (to the virtual beginning of the republic, if not earlier) in favor of the 12-year limitation period [Hatter v. United States (E.D. Cal. 1975) 402 F. Supp. 1192, 1194] .

The period begins to run on actual or constructive knowledge by the plaintiff, or a predecessor in interest of, any claim, or possible claim, of interest on the part of the government, whether or not the government's interest is to be characterized as "legal" or "merely equitable" [Hatter v. United States (E.D. Cal. 1975) 402 F. Supp. 1192, 1194-1195] .

[6] Parties

The United States "may be named as a party defendant" pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2409a(a), but the United States will not necessarily be the only defendant. The government may claim only a partial interest in the real property. If the plaintiff and the government are not the only claimants, all other persons claiming an interest in the property should be joined as defendants, or as plaintiffs, depending on how the interests align [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 19 (necessary joinder of parties)]. When a person who should join as plaintiff refuses to do so, he or she may be made a defendant or, in proper cases, an involuntary plaintiff [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 19(a)].

The title of the action in the complaint, but not in other pleadings, must contain the names of all parties [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 10(a)].

[a] Jurisdiction

The plaintiff is required to state the grounds on which the court's jurisdiction depends [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a)(1); for discussion and illustrative jurisdictional allegations, see Ch. 265, Federal Courts: Jurisdiction and Removal]. It is customary to make the jurisdictional allegation in the first paragraph.

[b] Nature of Plaintiff's Interest

The complaint must set forth with particularity, but in a "short and plain statement" [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a)(1)], the nature of the right, title, or interest which the plaintiff claims in the real property [28 U.S.C. § 2409a(c)]. This allegation will necessarily include a description of the property [see Buchler v. United States (E.D. Cal. 1974) 384 F. Supp. 709, 711] . Paragraph 2 of this form illustrates a sufficient form of this allegation.

[c] Derivation of Plaintiff's Interest

The complaint must set forth with particularity, but in a "short and plain statement" [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a)(1)], the circumstances under which the plaintiff acquired the claimed right, title, or interest (Paragraph 3) [28 U.S.C. § 2409a(c)]. The plaintiff's failure to set out this information is a defect in pleading which may be attacked by a motion for a more definite statement [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(e)] or by a motion to dismiss [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 12(b); Buchler v. United States (E.D. Cal. 1974) 384 F. Supp. 709, 711] .

The allegation must trace the plaintiff's chain of title. The evident purpose of this requirement, which is not imposed on the plaintiff in a state action in California, is to ease the government's burden in responding to quiet title complaints. The derivation of plaintiff's interest is a matter of evidence ordinarily, but the plaintiff in an action under 28 U.S.C. § 2409a must plead his or her chain of title so that, if there is a gap, the government can obtain a prompt disposition by moving to dismiss [see Gendron v. United States (E.D. Cal. 1974) 402 F. Supp. 46, 47 , aff'd, 524 F.2d 1154 (1975) (complaint, with exhibited deeds, revealed gap in plaintiff's chain of title; action dismissed); Buchler v. United States (E.D. Cal. 1974) 384 F. Supp. 709, 711 (evident purpose of requirement to plead chain of title)]. The government is an extensive landowner. This pleading requirement enables the government to avoid going to trial on quiet title complaints that lack merit.

[d] Nature of Government's Interest

The complaint must set forth with particularity, but in a "short and plain statement" [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a)(1)], the right, title, or interest claimedby the United States (Paragraph 4) [28 U.S.C. § 2409a(c)]. It is not sufficient to allege that the government claims no right, title, or interest whatsoever even if in fact the plaintiff has received official assurance (e.g., from the Secretary of the Interior or his or her staff) that this is the case. Presumably there is some interest that the government might claim; otherwise, there is no reason to sue. The plaintiff is required to allege that the government claims the interest that it might claim, whether or not the plaintiff knows that the facts are otherwise [Buchler v. United States (E.D. Cal. 1974) 384 F. Supp. 709, 712 ; regarding the effect of the government's disclaimer of interest when filed in the action, see § 482.87[9]].

[e] Facts Negating Limitation of Action

The action is subject to a 12-year limitation period [see 28 U.S.C. § 2409a(f); see also the discussion § 482.87[5]]. On the basis of apparent legislative intent behind the limitation provision in 28 U.S.C. § 2409a(f), it has been held that the plaintiff must allege the date on which the plaintiff, or the plaintiff's predecessor in interest, knew, or should have known, of the claim of the United States [Buchler v. United States (E.D. Cal. 1974) 384 F. Supp. 709, 713] . This allegation may be contained in the paragraph alleging the plaintiff's chain of title [see, e.g., Gendron v. United States (E.D. Cal. 1974) 402 F. Supp. 46, 48 , aff'd, 524 F.2d 1154 (1975)] . If, in complying with the pleading requirements, the plaintiff is forced to reveal in the complaint that the action is apparently barred because either the plaintiff or a predecessor in interest knew, or should have known, of the government's claim more than 12 years before the action was begun, the plaintiff will be obliged to allege facts negating the limitation, if he or she can (Paragraph 5).

[8] Prayer; Signature; Verification

The complaint must contain a demand for judgment for the relief to which the plaintiff deems himself or herself entitled [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a)(1)]. The form of prayer in the foregoing complaint is the one customarily used.

The complaint must be signed by the plaintiff's attorney, or by the plaintiff if he or she is not represented by an attorney; and the signer's address must be stated. The signature of an attorney or party constitutes a certificate by him or her that [

Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11(b)]:

- He or she has read the complaint;

- To the best of his or her knowledge, information, and belief formed after reasonable inquiry, it is warranted by existing law or by a nonfrivolous argument for the extension, modification, or reversal of existing law or the establishment of new law;

- The factual contentions have, or are likely (after reasonable investigation) to have, evidentiary support; and

- It is not being presented for any improper purpose, such as to harass or to cause unnecessary delay or needless increase in the cost of litigation.

If a court determines that a party has violated any of the provisions of Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11(b), it may impose on the party, attorney, or law firm responsible for the violation sanctions limited to measures sufficient to deter the same or similar conduct, consisting of nonmonetary directives or penalties to be paid to the court [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11(c)].

Except when otherwise specifically provided by rule or statute, a complaint need not be verified [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11(a)]. No rule or statute requires that a complaint under 28 U.S.C. § 2409a be verified.

[9] Government's Disclaimer of Interest

If the government makes an extrajudicial disclaimer of interest in the real property, that fact is inconsequential [§ 482.87[7][d]].

If the United States disclaims all interest in the real property or any interest in it adverse to the plaintiff at any time prior to the actual commencement of the trial, and this disclaimer is confirmed by court order, the jurisdiction of the district court will cease unless it has jurisdiction of the civil action or suit on a ground other than and independent of the authority conferred by 28 U.S.C. § 1346(f) [28 U.S.C. § 2409a(d)]. Section 1346(f) gives the district courts exclusive jurisdiction of actions under 28 U.S.C. § 2409a.

Because it has been held that the government's disclaimer before the action has been begun does not relieve the plaintiff of the burden of pleading the government's interest [Buchler v. United States (E.D. Cal. 1974) 384 F. Supp. 709, 712 ; § 482.87[7][d]], it seems that the disclaimer referred to in 28 U.S.C. § 2409a(d) must come not only at any time prior to the actual commencement of the trial but also after the commencement of the action. Moreover, if it is to be confirmed by order of the court, the disclaimer must necessarily be made in the action. The court would have no knowledge of an extrajudicial disclaimer.

[10] Government's Election to Retain Possession

The main objection to waiving sovereign immunity against being sued in a quiet title action was that if a plaintiff were successful, he or she might be able to dispossess the government and thereby interfere with the operation of the government. Therefore, 28 U.S.C. § 2409a(b) provides that in a quiet title action, if the judgment is adverse to the United States, the government may elect to retain possession or control of the real property or any part of it on payment to the plaintiff of an amount that the district court in the same action determines is just compensation for this possession or control" [28 U.S.C. § 2409a(b); see Buchler v. United States (E.D. Cal. 1974) 384 F. Supp. 709, 710-711] .

[11] Adverse Possession

Nothing in Title 28 of the United States Code, Section 2409a, authorizing quiet title actions generally against the United States, is to be construed as permitting suits against the United States based on adverse possession [28 U.S.C. § 2409a(g)]. It is a general rule that no person can gain title to property by possession adverse to the government.

[12] Lis Pendens

A notice of an action pending in any United States district court that concerns real property may be recorded in the office of the recorder of the county in which the property is situated [Code Civ. Proc. § 405.5], and the requirements of California lis pendens statutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 405 et seq.] must be complied with in order to give constructive notice of the United States district court action as it relates to real property in California [see 28 U.S.C. § 1968 (notice of pendency of action of any United States district court action concerning real property as recordable under state statutes)]. For further discussion and appropriate forms, see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens .

[13] Costs

Except as otherwise specifically provided by statute, a judgment for costs (as enumerated in 28 U.S.C. § 1920, but not including the fees and expenses of attorneys) may be awarded to the prevailing party in any civil action brought by or against the United States or any agency or official of the United States acting in his or her official capacity in any court having jurisdiction of the action. A judgment for costs when taxed against the United States must, in an amount established by statute, court rule, or order, be limited to reimbursing in whole or in part the prevailing party for the costs incurred by the party in the litigation [28 U.S.C. § 2412(a)(1); see 28 U.S.C. § 2412(a)(2)]. In addition to awarding these costs, and unless expressly prohibited by statute, a court may award reasonable fees and expenses of attorneys to the prevailing party in any civil action brought by or against the United States or any agency or official of the United States acting in his or her official capacity in any court having jurisdiction of the action. The United States is liable for the fees and expenses to the same extent that any other party would be liable under the common law or under the terms of any statute that specifically provides for an award [28 U.S.C. § 2412(b); see 28 U.S.C. § 2412(c)-(f)].

[14] Actions Unaffected by 28 U.S.C. § 2409a

Intervention by United States in any action in which United States claims tax lien under Internal Revenue Code. I.R.C. § 7424

Certain judicial proceedings involving property on which United States has tax lien under Internal Revenue Code. I.R.C. § 7425

Miscellaneous actions arising out of enforcement of tax laws (specifically, Internal Revenue Code). I.R.C. § 7426

Miscellaneous actions in which United States is sued. 28 U.S.C. § 1346

Partition action in which United States is joint tenant. 28 U.S.C. § 1347

Actions against United States in Court of Federal Claims. 28 U.S.C. § 1491

Quiet title action in which United States claims only security interest. 28 U.S.C. § 2410

Actions to adjudicate water rights in which United States has, or claims, an interest. 43 U.S.C. § 666

[15] State Statutes

Notice of pendency of action in United States district court concerning real property in California as recordable in county where property situated. Code Civ. Proc. § 405.20

§ 483.10 Governing Statutes and Regulations

Quo warranto is a statutory civil action in California governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 803-811, 11 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 1-11, 28.1, and all of the pertinent procedural and practice provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 307 et seq. [People v. Richmond (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 107, 117, 296 P.2d 351 (annexation challenged in superior court as trial de novo and not mere review of prior decision by city council on that issue)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

42-483 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 483.11

§ 483.11 Definitions

[1] Relator

A relator is a private party who brings a quo warranto action in the name of the people or in the name of the Attorney General after securing the permission of the Attorney General [11 Cal. Code Reg § 1; Brown v. Memorial Nat. Home Foundation (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 513, 538, 329 P.2d 118 (implied consent of Attorney General to prosecution of cross complaint by private party)]. The action is said to be brought by relation of that party [People v. Milk Producers Asso. (1923) 60 Cal. App. 439, 442, 212 P. 957 (proceeding brought on complaint of private person); People v. California Protective Corp. (1926) 76 Cal. App. 354, 361, 244 P. 1089 (proceeding brought on complaint of bar association)].

A relator need not be entitled to a contested office in order to bring the action [People v. Bingham (1889) 82 Cal. 238, 242-243, 22 P. 1039] .

[2] Franchise

A franchise is a special privilege to perform certain acts or exercise certain functions. It is conferred on a corporation or individual by a government duly empowered legally to grant the privilege. If the privilege is one that any individual may enjoy without a permit from the government or if it is a right which one individual may grant to another without approval of a government, then it is not a franchise [City of Oakland v. Hogan (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 333, 346, 106 P.2d 987] . For example, the right to practice law is in the nature of a franchise from the state [People v. California Protective Corp. (1926) 76 Cal. App. 354, 361, 244 P. 1089] . The right to operate a public utility, such as a private wharfinger out of business on public lands [City of Oakland v. Hogan (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 333, 358, 106 P.2d 987] or the exclusive distribution of water within the territorial limits of a municipality [San Ysidro Irr. Dist. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 708, 717, 16 Cal. Rptr. 609, 365 P.2d 753] , are examples of franchises conferred by local governments.

[3] Public Officer

An individual holding a public office is a public officer. A public office is the right, authority, and duty created and conferred by law by which, for a given period, an individual is invested with power to perform a public function for the public benefit. The term public office includes the positions of city attorney [People ex rel. Chapman v. Rapsey (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 636, 640, 107 P.2d 388] , clerk of the court [Bennett v. Superior Court (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 841, 845, 281 P.2d 285] , and police officer [Estrada v. Indemnity Ins. Co. (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 129, 134-135, 322 P.2d 294] . But a person exercising no independent powers conferred by the state or operating under the direct control and supervision of a local body is not considered a public officer [Stout v. Democratic County Cent. Comm. (1952) 40 Cal. 2d 91, 94, 251 P.2d 321 (party committeman held not public officer because performing duties and exercising powers for particular political party and not for government); Main v. Claremont Unified School Dist. (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 189, 205, 326 P.2d 573 (city or district superintendent of schools held not public officer because under direct control of local school board)]. It is unclear if quo warranto may be brought against an "acting" officer appointed to fill the role of an ousted official temporarily [Nicolopulos v. City of Lawndale (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1221, 1226, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 420] .

[4] Usurpation of Franchise or Office

The "usurpation of franchise or office" is defined as the "unjust intrusion on or exercise of any office, franchise, or liberty belonging to another" [Black's Law Dictionary]. It occurs for example, where a corporation exercises a power which it has no right to exercise [People v. Rosenstein-Cohn Cigar Co. (1900) 131 Cal. 153, 157, 63 P. 163] or where a person occupies a public office as a result of an invalid election [27 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 249, 252 (1956)] .

Chapter 483 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

42-483 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 483.12

§ 483.12 Nature and Purpose of Quo Warranto

[1] Determine Right to Office or Franchise

A quo warranto action may be brought to determine the right of a defendant to exercise an office or franchise [Code Civ. Proc. § 805] and to exclude a usurper from the office or franchise usurped [Code Civ. Proc. § 809]. The remedy is addressed to preventing a continued exercise of an unlawfully asserted authority rather than to correcting what has already been done under that authority. For instance, a quo warranto action may be brought to forfeit a franchise held by a privately owned public utility but not to seek sanctions for failure of the utility to furnish pure or palatable water to its customers [Citizens Utilities Co. v. Superior Court (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 399, 406, 128 Cal. Rptr. 582] .

[2] Parties Defendant

The Attorney-General may bring a quo warranto action, either upon his or her own information or upon the complaint of a private party, as follows [Code Civ. Proc. § 803]:

- Against a person who usurps, intrudes into, or unlawfully holds or exercise any public office, either civil or military.

- Against a person who usurps, intrudes into, or unlawfully holds or exercises any franchise.

- Against a corporation, either de jure or de facto, which usurps, intrudes into, or unlawfully holds or exercises a franchise.

[3] Quo Warranto an Exclusive Remedy

Quo warranto affords the exclusive remedy as to matters coming within its scope [Wilson v. City of San Bernardino (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 603, 611, 9 Cal. Rptr. 431 ; see Visnich v. Sacramento County Bd. of Education (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 684, 690, 112 Cal. Rptr. 469 (quo warranto is the exclusive remedy for trying title to public office)] in the absence of constitutional or statutory regulations providing otherwise [Cooper v. Leslie Salt Co. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 627, 633, 75 Cal. Rptr. 766, 451 P.2d 406 ; International Assn. of Firefighters v. City of Oakland (1985) 174 Cal. App.

3d 687, 694, 220 Cal. Rptr. 256] . For example, the validity of an annexation could not be determined in action to recover taxes while a quo warranto action challenging the annexation was pending [Southwest Exploration Co. v. County of Orange (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 549, 556, 283 P.2d 257 (not reaching question whether validity could be challenged in tax action if quo warranto action were not pending)].

A municipal corporation authorized to bring a quo warranto action without the approval of the attorney general may, however, bring an action for declaratory relief to determine the validity of the existence of another political subdivision [San Ysidro Irr. Dist. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 708, 716, 16 Cal. Rptr. 609, 365 P.2d 753] .

Corp. Code § 1801 makes available a remedy concurrent with the remedy provided by quo warranto [Citizens Utilities Co. v. Superior Court (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 399, 128 Cal. Rptr. 582] . For discussion of when Corp. Code § 1801 and quo warranto are both available, see the discussion § 483.23.

Chapter 483 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 483.13 Distinguished From Mandate

Mandate [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1084-1097] may be brought in any court except a municipal court. It may be issued to compel the performance of an act which the law specifically enjoins such as a duty resulting from an office, trust, or station [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085]. For example, mandate to compel the performance of a legal duty is the proper remedy for attacking the validity of annexation proceedings prior to the completion of the proceedings [Colton v. Rialto (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 174, 181-182, 40 Cal. Rptr. 766 ; Cothran v. Town Council (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 647, 650, 26 Cal. Rptr. 319 (mandate to compel termination of annexation proceedings)]. However, once annexation proceedings are complete, quo warranto is the only remedy by which their validity may be attacked [Los Angeles County v. City Council (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 20, 26, 20 Cal. Rptr. 363 ; People ex rel. Mosk v. City of Santa Barbara (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 342, 356, 13 Cal. Rptr. 423] .

It should be observed, however, that a writ of mandate will issue only to enforce the performance of a clear legal duty and not to compel an action involving discretion [Nider v. City Commission (1939) 36 Cal. App. 2d 14, 26, 97 P.2d 293] . Thus, the Attorney General may be compelled to institute a quo warranto action by a writ of mandate where an abuse of discretion is shown in the Attorney General's refusal to bring the action on application of a relator [Oakland Mun. Improvement League v. City of Oakland (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 165, 173, 100 Cal. Rptr. 29 (court of appeal holding that mandate proper to compel Attorney General to institute quo warranto action where abuse of discretion shown but finding no abuse of discretion in Attorney General's refusal of the application for leave to sue involved in the particular situation presented to the court); see also International Assn. of Firefighters v. City of Oakland (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 687, 698, 220 Cal. Rptr. 256 (declaratory relief actions dismissed as quo warranto action is exclusive remedy; leave to file action presumed forthcoming, however if leave not extended by Attorney General, reasons for denial are judicially reviewable by mandamus)].

Mandate may also issue to compel the admission of a party to the use and enjoyment of an office to which he or she is entitled, and from which he or she is being unlawfully precluded by an inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085]. However, mandate may not be used to try title to an office [Stout v. Democratic County Cent. Comm. (1952) 40 Cal. 2d 91, 94,251 P.2d 321] or to compel payment of a salary to a person out of office but rightfully entitled to it [Nider v. City Com. of Fresno (1939) 36 Cal. App. 2d 14, 26, 97 P.2d 293] . Nevertheless, title to public office may be determined incidentally to a mandate proceeding. Thus, it is proper to determine by way of mandate whether the public office claimed by a person legally exists [Stout v. Democratic County Cent. Comm. (1952) 40 Cal. 2d 91, 93-94, 251 P.2d 321 (party committeeman not a public officer)] or whether a vacancy in an office exists [Klose v. Superior Court (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 913, 918, 217 P.2d 97 (vacancy created when councilman became nonresident of district governed)]. In addition, quo warranto is the proper remedy to challenge title to a public office [Visnich v. Sacramento County Bd. of Education (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 684, 690, 112 Cal. Rptr. 469] .

For additional discussion of the timeliness of a quo warranto action, see the discussion in § 483.22[5]. And for discussion, procedural checklists,and forms for use in bringing mandate proceedings, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

42-483 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 483.14

§ 483.14 Distinguished From Declaratory Relief

Declaratory relief may be sought in an original superior court action or in a cross complaint in a pending superior court action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 et seq.]. The proceeding asks for a declaration of rights and duties with respect to a written instrument, property, or the respective interests of the party bringing the action and another in a written instrument or property [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]. Declaratory relief may be prayed for alone or with other relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060] and is cumulative with any other forms of relief prayed for [Code Civ. Proc. § 1062]. When invoked to remedy the abuse, misuse, or nonuse of a franchise, an action in quo warranto partakes of the essentials of a proceeding for declaratory relief [Oakland v. Key Sys. (1944) 64 Cal. App. 2d 427, 441-442, 149 P.2d 195 (action in quo warranto by city port commission to determine right of defendant to exercise franchise for wharfing and docking on tideland area within territorial limits of municipality)]. However, quo warranto seeks the exclusion of the defendant from a wrongfully exercised office or franchise [see Code Civ. Proc. § 809] rather than a declaration of the respective rights of contesting parties to exercise the office or franchise [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]. For discussion, procedural checklists, and forms for use in bringing a proceeding for declaratory relief, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 483.15 Jurisdiction

Quo warranto falls into the residual category of causes of action within the original jurisdiction of the superior court [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Citizens Utilities Co. v. Superior Court (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 399, 407, 128 Cal. Rptr. 582 (superior court's jurisdiction to cancel franchise)]. The superior court has jurisdiction in quo warranto as an unlimited civil case since jurisdiction in quo warranto has not been specifically included in the matters that may be classified as limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86].

Chapter 483 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

42-483 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 483.16

§ 483.16 Time to Commence Action

[1] Three Months to Attack Annexations

An action to contest the validity of proceedings for the incorporation of a municipal corporation, the annexation of territory to a municipal corporation, or for the consolidation of municipal corporations must be brought within three months after the completion of the proceedings [*Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2]. Although *Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2 does not refer specifically to quo warranto actions, the three-month limitation imposed by the statute has consistently been applied to quo warranto actions [see 23 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 300, 304 (1954) ; People v. Los Angeles (1928) 93 Cal. App. 532, 536, 538, 269 P. 934 (quo warranto action to contest validity of annexation); see People v. Town of Corte Madera (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 32, 37-38, 251 P.2d 988 (section 3491/2 not applicable to contest subsequent void proceedings which follow completed proceedings to annex same territory)].

[2] Six Months to Attack Certain Acts

An action to contest the validity of acts or proceedings taken under color of law to form, organize, incorporate, dissolve, consolidate, change organization or reorganize, or to change the territorial boundaries of, a city, county, city and county, special district, public corporation or other public entity, or an improvement district within any of the foregoing, must be brought within six months from the date of completion of the acts or proceedings contested [Code Civ. Proc. § 349.1].

If no action is commenced within six months to contest the acts or proceedings, they are held valid, legal, and incontestable. These code sections do not supercede any existing statute prescribing a shorter period of limitation [Code Civ. Proc. § 349.1].

[3] Sixty Days to Attack Attempted Validation

The legislative body of a city, county, city and county, special district, public corporation or other public entity, or an improvement district, annexed area, or zone within any of the foregoing, may seek to confirm, validate, and declare legally effective certain acts or proceedings undertaken by the entity under color of law provided the legislative body of the entity instructs its clerk or secretary to mail a notice to all owners of property within the entity, as their names and addresses appear on the last equalized assessment roll or are known to the clerk or secretary [Code Civ. Proc. § 349.4]. The notices to property owners must include the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 349.4]:

- The name of the entity.
- The date the entity, or zone or improvement district within the entity, was ordered formed or its territory changed by annexation or otherwise.
- The amount of bonds authorized, if any.
- A statement that there are 60 calendar days in which any property owner may file an action contesting the validity of the formation of the entity, improvement district, or zone, the change of boundaries by annexation or otherwise, or the validity of any bond authorization.
- Any additional information the legislative body of the entity deems pertinent.

The clerk or secretary mailing the notices must also make and file a certificate of mailing with the legislative body of the entity [Code Civ. Proc. § 349.4].

Therefore, a property owner has 60 calendar days from the date the notices are mailed in which to contest the validity of the following acts or proceedings taken under color of law [Code Civ. Proc. § 349.4]:

- The formation, organization, incorporation, or any change in the territorial boundaries of a city, county, city and county, special district, public corporation or other public entity, or an improvement district, annexed area, or zone within any of the foregoing; or
- The authorization, issuance, sale, or exchange of bonds of the entity or territory.

If no action is commenced by any property owner within the 60-day period to contest the acts or proceedings described, the formation of the entity, improvement district, zone, the change of boundaries by annexation or otherwise, or the bond authorization become valid and uncontestable [Code Civ. Proc. § 349.4].

[4] Where No Time Limit

Lapse of time is not a bar to bringing a quo warranto action to oust a usurping public officer. Although laches could bar relief, it is assumed that the Attorney General will not permit the institution of a quo warranto action where the claim is stale or the state has ceased to have a present interest in the claim [People v. Bailey (1916) 30 Cal. App. 581, 585, 158 P. 1036 (no staleness found in claim of ousted police captain where he asserts rights to office at all times and undertakes various legal proceedings to have title, salary, and position restored to him)]. Action may require the election of a new official, since it is unclear if quo warranto may be brought against an "acting" officer appointed to fill the role of an ousted official temporarily [Nicolopulos v. City of Lawndale (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1221, 1226, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 420] . Moreover, lapse of time is not a bar in bringing a quo warranto action against a corporation illegally exercising a franchise. The continued wrongful exercise of the franchise is considered a continuously renewed usurpation on which a new cause of action arises each day [People v. Jefferds (1899) 126 Cal. 296, 302, 58 P. 704] .

Chapter 483 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

42-483 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 483.18

§ 483.18 Who May Bring Action

[1] In General

A quo warranto action may be brought:

- By the Attorney General on the complaint of a private party as a relator [Code Civ. Proc. § 803; 11 Cal. Code Reg § 1].
- By the Attorney General on his or her own information [Code Civ. Proc. § 803].
- By the Attorney General at the direction of the governor [Code Civ. Proc. § 803].
- By the board of supervisors of a county or city and county [Code Civ. Proc. § 811].
- By the legislative body of a municipal corporation [Code Civ. Proc. § 811].

[2] On Complaint of Private Party as Relator

[a] Presented to Attorney General

A proposed complaint and application for leave to sue may be presented to the Attorney General by a private party, called a relator [see 11 Cal. Code Reg §§ 1-2]. For discussion of the procedural requirements for presenting a proposed complaint and application for leave to sue to the Attorney General, see the discussion in § 483.19.

A relator has no right to sue if Attorney General refuses to act on the relator's application or takes a position contrary to the relator [In re Veterans' Industries Inc. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 902, 925, 88 Cal. Rptr. 303] .

When the Attorney General has reason to believe a franchise is being usurped and brings a quo warranto action against the alleged usurper, he or she is not estopped by the acts or conduct of the relator in other actions between the relator and the defendant [People ex rel. Downey v. Downey County Water Dist. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 786, 803, 21 Cal.

Rptr. 370 (contract between relator and defendant not an estoppel against Attorney General for public policy reasons)].

[b] Attorney General's Discretion in Acting on Relator's Application

The Attorney General has some discretion in passing on the complaints brought before him or her alleging a public wrong to be remedied by a quo warranto action [People v. Milk Producers Ass'n (1923) 60 Cal. App. 439, 444, 212 P. 957] . In acting on a relator's application, the Attorney General considers initially whether there exists a substantial question of law or fact that requires judicial resolution, and if so, whether the proposed quo warranto action would serve the overall public interest [83 Ops. Cal. Att'yGen. 63, 64, 69 (2000) (leave to sue denied after finding no substantial question of law or fact sufficient to require judicial resolution on issue whether defendant refused or neglected to timely file oath of office); see, e.g., [Campbell v. Mosk (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 640, 648, 17 Cal. Rptr. 584 (refusal of leave to sue proper where suit would involve three governmental agencies in expensive litigation, no legalprotests were filed at the appropriate time to object to the annexation in question, the bulk of voters in the annexed territory favored annexation, and the proposed relator's interest presented a private rather than public question)].

The Attorney General does not abuse his or her discretion by refusing to permit suit in quo warranto unless he or she acts in an arbitrary manner, denying without good cause a well-founded case presented by a relator. For instance, no abuse of discretion is found where the process of examining the relator's application is shown to have been thorough [Oakland Mun. Improvement League v. City of Oakland (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 165, 172, 100 Cal. Rptr. 29 (letter from Attorney General refusing relator's application and indicating conclusions and giving reasons for them)]. However, where the abuse of discretion by the Attorney General in refusing leave to sue is extreme and clearly indefensible [Lamb v. Webb (1907) 151 Cal. 451, 454, 91 P. 102, 91 P. 646] , the Attorney General may be compelled to institute suit by a writ of mandate [Visnich v. Sacramento County Bd. of Education (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 684, 690, 112 Cal. Rptr. 469] instructing him or her to proceed in the name of the people [Oakland Mun. Improvement League v. City of Oakland (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 165, 173, 100 Cal. Rptr. 29] .

[3] On Attorney General's Own Information

An Attorney General may bring a quo warranto action on his or her own information and is required to bring the action whenever he or she has reason to believe the grounds for bringing it exist [Code Civ. Proc. § 803]. However, it should be observed that the Attorney General rarely files a quo warranto action on his or her own information under this provision.

[4] At Direction of Governor

An Attorney General is required to bring a quo warranto action when directed to do so by the governor [Code Civ. Proc. § 803].

[5] By Board of Supervisors or by Legislative Body of Municipal Corporation

[a] Regarding Franchise Within Jurisdiction of Board or Legislative Body

A quo warranto action may be maintained by a board of supervisors or by the legislative body of a municipal corporation where the board or body has jurisdiction to grant or withhold the franchise alleged to be usurped [Code Civ. Proc. § 811; see City of Oakland v. Hogan (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 333, 358, 106 P.2d 987 (where legislative body had jurisdiction to grant or withhold franchise to operate private wharf on public lands, legislative body could maintain quo warranto action against alleged usurpers of franchise)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 811 thus enables boards of supervisors and municipal corporations to initiate their own action without going through or waiting for the Attorney General to commence the action [Olson v. Sacramento County (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 316, 326, 79 Cal. Rptr. 140] .

[b] Limitation

Under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 811, a board of supervisors or legislative body may bring quo warranto actions against persons usurping franchises but not against persons usurping public office [San Ysidro Irr. Dist. v. Superior Court (1960) 56 Cal. 2d 708, 716, 16 Cal. Rptr. 609, 365 P.2d 753] .

§ 483.19 Procedure by Which Relator Brings Action

[1] Form and Contents of Application for Leave to Sue

The relator commences an action in quo warranto by preparing an application for leave to sue [for the form of application, see § 483.71]. In addition to the application itself, the application consists of the following:

- A verified proposed complaint prepared for the signatures of the Attorney General, a Deputy Attorney General, and the attorney for the relator [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(a); for forms, see §§ 483.72 -483.76].

- A verified statement of facts [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(a); for a forms, see § 483.77].

- A memorandum of points and authorities showing why the action should be brought in the name of the people and supporting the relator's contention that a public office or franchise is being usurped, intruded into, or unlawfully held or exercised by the proposed defendant [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(b)].

- A notice informing the proposed defendant that the relator is about to apply to the Attorney General for leave to sue in quo warranto and that he or she may show cause, if any, why leave to sue should not be granted in accordance with the relator's application [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(c); for a form, see § 483.70].

After service of these documents on the proposed defendant, the relator will add the proof of service [see § 483.78] to the application for leave to sue [see 11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(d)].

[2] Service on Proposed Defendant

The relator must serve the application for leave to sue on the proposed defendant [11 Cal. Code Reg §§ 1, 2(d)].

[3] Submission of Application to Attorney General

The relator must file the application for leave to sue with the Attorney General within five days after service of the application on the proposeddefendant [11 Cal. Code Reg § 1]. The application submitted must include proof of service of the application [see § 483.78] on the proposed defendant [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(d)].

[4] Appearance by Proposed Defendant

[a] Statement of Facts

The proposed defendant may appear and show cause why leave to sue should not be granted by the Attorney General in accordance with the relator's application [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(c)].

The proposed defendant may file a verified statement of facts [see § 483.77] in response to that filed by the relator [11 Cal. Code Reg § 3] together with proof or admission of service [11 Cal. Code Reg § 5].

[b] Time to Appear

The proposed defendant is allowed 15 days, after service on him or her of the application, in which to appear and show cause where the service on the proposed defendant occurs in the county where the proceeding is brought. Where the service on the proposed defendant takes place outside the county in which the proceeding is brought, he or she is allowed 20 days in which to appear. A shorter time may be prescribed by the Attorney General in special cases or on a showing of good cause. In addition, an extension of time may be granted by (1) the Attorney General on a showing of good cause or (2) a stipulation between the relator and proposed defendant filed with the Attorney General [11 Cal. Code Reg § 3].

[5] Provisional Leave to Sue Where Urgency Shown

The Attorney General may issue leave to sue provisionally where the relator files an application for leave to sue [see 11 Cal. Code Reg § 2] stating the reasons therefor and an undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. § 810; 11 Cal. Code Reg § 6] with approved sureties. Provisional leave to sue may issue only in special cases and on a sufficient showing of urgent necessity by the relator [11 Cal. Code Reg § 10]. For example, the Attorney General may find a special case to exist where it appears that it is necessary to preserve the status quo pending a decision on the application by the Attorney General. And the Attorney General may find urgent necessity where it appears that the statute of limitations may bar the filing of the complaint at a later time.

The relator must file the provisional leave to sue issued by the Attorney General with the complaint in quo warranto [see 11 Cal. Code Reg § 6]. However, the relator may take no action beyond filing the complaint and having summons issued until the Attorney General rules on the application for leave to sue. Furthermore, the defendant may appear before the Attorney General and show cause why leave to sue should not be granted. The Attorney General may then determine the relator's right to maintain and prosecute the action in quo warranto [11 Cal. Code Reg § 10].

[6] Reply by Relator

The relator may reply within 10 days to any showing by the proposed defendant why the application should not be granted. Further time may be granted on a showing of good cause or on the relator and proposed defendant filing a stipulation with the Attorney General [11 Cal. Code Reg § 4]. Proof or admission of service must accompany the relator's reply [11 Cal. Code Reg § 5].

[7] Undertaking as Condition of Issuance

When a quo warranto action is to be brought on the information or application of a relator, the Attorney General requires the relator to enter into an undertaking, with sureties to be approved by the Attorney General [Code Civ. Proc.

§ 810; People v. Petroleum Rectifying Co. (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 289, 290, 68 P.2d 984] . It should be noted that sureties meeting the approval of the Attorney General are corporate sureties.

The regulations promulgated by the Attorney General require the relator to present an undertaking [see § 483.79] executed to the State of California in the sum of $500 within 10 days of receiving notice that the application for leave to sue is approved unless further time is granted [11 Cal. Code Reg § 6]. The undertaking must state that the relator or sureties will pay any judgment for costs or damages recovered against the plaintiff and all costs and expenses incurred in the prosecution of the quo warranto action [Code Civ. Proc. § 810; 11 Cal. Code Reg § 6; see 11 Cal. Code Reg § 28].

[8] Issuance of Leave to Sue

The Attorney General transmits leave to sue in the name of the people, in writing, to the relator on receipt and approval of the undertaking [11 Cal. Code Reg § 6].

[9] Approval of Complaint

[a] Filed With Leave to Sue

The attorney general may suggest or direct changes in or amendments to the proposed complaint [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(a)] submitted by the relator. The approved complaint [see §§ 483.72 -483.76] and leave to sue are filed simultaneously with the clerk of the court. Thereafter, the relator may not change, amend, or alter the complaint without the approval of the Attorney General [11 Cal. Code Reg § 6].

[b] Notice of Filing to Attorney General

The relator must immediately inform the Attorney General of (1) the date on which the complaint is filed and (2) the court number of the filed complaint [11 Cal. Code Reg § 9].

§ 483.20 Attorney General Controls Prosecution of Action

[1] Withdrawal or Dismissal of Action

Whether a quo warranto action is brought on the Attorney General's own information or on the complaint of a relator, the Attorney General has control of the action at all times [People v. Huntington Beach (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 452, 455, 275 P.2d 601] .

For this reason, the Attorney General may, at any and every stage of the quo warranto action, withdraw, discontinue, or dismiss the action as seems fit and proper to him or her and may, at his or her option, assume the management of the quo warranto action at any time [11 Cal. Code Reg § 8]. However, no statutory provision points out the exact manner in which the Attorney General's control over quo warranto actions is to be exercised. Likewise, no statutory provision prevents the Attorney General from acting with or through the relator [People v. Huntington Beach (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 452, 456, 275 P.2d 601 (motion for new trial as brought at direction of Attorney General even where notice of intention to move for new trial signed by attorney for relator)].

[2] Notices to Attorney General

The relator must notify the Attorney General without delay of every proceeding had, motion made, paper filed, or thing done with respect to a quo warranto action. Furthermore, the relator must promptly send the Attorney General a copy of every paper or document filed by any of the parties to the action, including the judgment. And, when the relator is served with any paper by the opposing party, the relator must forward an additional copy of that paper to the Attorney General at once [11 Cal. Code Reg § 9].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

42-483 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 483.21

§ 483.21 Remedying Usurpation of Public or Corporate Office

[1] Challenging Title to Office

Quo warranto actions may be brought to remedy the usurpation of a public office [Code Civ. Proc. § 803] by challenging title to the office [Visnich v. Sacramento County Bd. of Education (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 684, 690, 112 Cal. Rptr. 469] .

The usurpation may be in the nature of one person holding two incompatible offices, thus creating a vacancy in one of them [People ex rel. Chapman v. Rapsey (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 636, 644, 107 P.2d 388 (positions of municipal judge and city attorney held by one individual); People v. Garrett (1925) 72 Cal. App. 452, 458, 237 P. 829 (justice of the peace named police judge in same jurisdiction)]. Such usurpation also may be in the nature of two persons holding certificates of election declaring them entitled to exercise the same office [People v. Davidson (1905) 2 Cal. App. 100, 103, 83 P. 161] .

In addition, usurpation may be in the nature of a person holding office on the board of directors of a private corporation as the result of an invalid election [Guaranty Loan Co. v. Fontanel (1920) 183 Cal. 1, 8-9, 190 P. 177 (applied against directors of loan company); Stesel v. Santa Ana R. Water Co. (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 117, 124, 94 P.2d 1052 (applied against directors of private water company)].

[2] Incumbent's Salary Withheld Pending Outcome

When the title of an incumbent of a public office is contested, no warrant is thereafter drawn or paid for his or her salary until title to the office is finally determined [Gov. Code § 1130] unless he or she holds the certificate of election or commission and discharges the duties of the office [Gov. Code § 1132]. When an action is instituted to try title, the clerk of the court in which the action is pending certifies the facts to the officers whose duty it would otherwise be to draw the warrant or pay the salary [Gov. Code § 1131].

[3] Abatement of Action

A quo warranto action is abated where the defendant voluntarily surrenders the challenged office [People v. Muehe

(1931) 114 Cal. App. 739, 740, 300 P. 829] or is validly appointed to the office [25 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 223, 224-225 (1955) (leave to sue denied where second valid appointment of proposed defendant to seat on city council supercedes first invalid appointment)]. Ouster of the defendant from office thus becomes an unnecessary act unless the prosecution of the action is required for some purpose beyond the ouster of the defendant for the benefit of the plaintiff [People v. Muehe (1931) 114 Cal. App. 739, 740, 300 P. 829 ; 25 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 223, 225 (1955)] , such as determining another claimant's right to the office [People v. Bailey (1916) 30 Cal. App. 581, 586, 158 P. 1036] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

42-483 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 483.22

§ 483.22 Remedying Usurpation of Franchise by Person

[1] In General

Quo warranto actions may be brought to remedy the usurpation of a franchise by a person [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 803 (by or with consent of Attorney General), 811 (by board of supervisors or legislative body of municipal corporation)].

[2] Statutes as Applicable to Public Corporations

A municipal corporation is a "person" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 803 [20 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 93, 94 (1952)] and, while Code Civ. Proc. § 811 refers only to persons usurping a franchise, it is also applied against public corporations and governmental bodies [San Ysidro Irr. Dist. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 708, 716, 717, 16 Cal. Rptr. 609, 365 P.2d 753 (applied against irrigation district)].

[3] Remedy Against Public Corporation

A quo warranto action may be brought to challenge the validity of incorporation or to attack the regularity of organization of municipal or other public corporations, such as reclamation or irrigation districts [Wilson v. City of San Bernardino (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 603, 611, 9 Cal. Rptr. 431] and county water districts [Alden v. Superior Court (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 764, 768, 28 Cal. Rptr. 387] . This is true whether their jurisdiction is de jure or de facto [Bray v. Payne (1930) 210 Cal. 465, 469, 292 P. 478] . Such an action may also be brought to challenge the validity of a county charter [Santa Clara County v. Hayes Co. (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 615, 618, 275 P.2d 456] .

Quo Warranto is also, for example, a proper remedy to challenge county's consolidation of corrections department and probation office on grounds that corrections and probation are incompatible offices and it was improper to subordinate corrections to probation [People ex rel. Deputy Sheriffs' Assn. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1471, 1476, 1491, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 322] .

[4] Validity of Annexation of Territory

[a] Determined by Compliance With Enabling Statute

In annexing territory, a municipal or other public corporation is subject to the statute which authorizes the annexation. That statute constitutes the measure of power to be exercised by the municipality [City of Port Hueneme v. City of Oxnard (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 385, 393, 341 P.2d 318] . The annexation proceeding is subject to court interference in quo warranto for usurpation of a franchise only to the extent the attempted annexation goes beyond the enabling statute in a basic and fundamental respect [Olson v. City of Hawthorne (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 51, 53, 45 Cal. Rptr. 48 (courts will interfere with annexation proceeding in case of fraudulent abuse of powers conferred by statute; cancellation of voters' registrations of residents so territory could be annexed as "uninhabited" found not fraudulent where voters relinquished registrations voluntarily and with full knowledge of effect of their act); People v. Town of Corte Madera (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 726, 732, 218 P.2d 810 (contiguity requirement of annexation statute violated)] or amounts to a fraudulent abuse of the powers conferred by the enabling statute.

[b] Time at Which Validity of Annexation Tested

The validity of an act of annexation is determined as of the date it purportedly took place. For instance, where a water district merges with a city by operation of law, subsequent acts by the water district to annex territory outside the city limits are void from their inception for want of a legally existing entity with jurisdiction to effect an annexation [People ex rel. Downey v. Downey County Water Dist. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 786, 802-803, 21 Cal. Rptr. 370] .

[5] Completeness of Proceedings Required

Except as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 349.4 (60 days to challenge territorial change or bond authorization after date notice sent by public entity), a quo warranto action to challenge an annexation cannot be brought until the annexation proceedings are complete [People ex rel. Mosk v. City of Santa Barbara (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 342, 356, 13 Cal. Rptr. 423] and the annexing municipal corporation or district is exercising control over the territory allegedly annexed [Amer. Distl. Co. v. City Council, Sausalito (1950) 34 Cal. 2d 660, 667, 213 P.2d 704 ; City of Colton v. City of Rialto (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 174, 181-182, 40 Cal. Rptr. 766] . Prior to the time at which proceedings are complete and the right to bring a quo warranto action matures, the proper remedy to test the validity of the proceedings is certiorari and the proper remedy to compel termination of the proceedings is mandate [San Mateo County v. City Council (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 220, 221, 335 P.2d 1013 (proceeding in certiorari and mandate questioning legality of a city council's resolution giving notice of the proposed annexation of territory situated in another county)]. Likewise, a quo warranto action to challenge the validity of a charter is possible only after the charter is put into effect [Santa Clara County v. Hayes Co. (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 615, 618, 275 P.2d 456 ; Oakland Mun. Improvement League v. City of Oakland (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 165, 169, 100 Cal. Rptr. 29] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

42-483 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 483.23

§ 483.23 Remedying Usurpation of Franchise by Corporation

[1] Unlawful Exercise of Privilege by Corporation

A quo warranto action may be brought to remedy the usurpation of a franchise by a corporation [Code Civ. Proc. § 803]. A corporation usurps a franchise when:

- It exercises a privilege unlawful for it to exercise [People v. Merchants Protective Corp. (1922) 189 Cal. 531, 539-540, 209 P. 363 (practice of law); People v. California Protective Corp. (1926) 76 Cal. App. 354, 361, 244 P. 1089 (unlawful privilege exercised where corporationengages in practice of law by employing attorneys to provide legal services for its members and clients)].

- Performs acts either not authorized or forbidden to it [People v. Milk Producers Ass'n (1923) 60 Cal. App. 439, 441, 212 P. 957 (nonprofit corporation operating for profit and violating statutes prohibiting trusts in restraint of trade)].

- Misuses and abandons its franchise [People ex rel. Boole v. Northwestern P. R. Co. (1937) 20 Cal. App. 2d 120, 122-123, 66 P.2d 697 (no cause of action shown for cancellation of franchise for nonuse and abandonment when complaint shows some services actually rendered)].

However, quo warranto is not a means by which censorship is imposed on a corporation for abuse of the franchise granted to it. For instance, a court will not forfeit an insurance company's franchise to underwrite automobile liability policies for having published advertisements on the subject of excessive jury verdicts in several national magazines [People v. American Auto. Ins. Co. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 317, 326, 282 P.2d 559] .

[2] Corp. Code § 1801 as Concurrent Remedy

The remedy in quo warranto is concurrent with that provided by Corp. Code § 1801 [Citizens Utilities Co. v. Superior Court (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 399, 405, 128 Cal. Rptr. 582 ; Brown v. Memorial Nat. Home Foundation (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 513, 540, 329 P.2d 118] . Under the provisions of Corp. Code § 1801, the Attorney General is authorized to bring an action for the involuntary dissolution of a domestic or purportedly domestic corporation which has seriously offended against a provision of the statutes regulating corporations [Corp. Code § 1801(a)(1)], has fraudulently abused or usurped corporate privileges or powers [Corp. Code § 1801(a)(2)], has violated any provision of law by act or default that is a ground for forfeiture of corporate existence [Corp. Code § 1801(a)(3); Citizens Utilities Co. v. Superior Court (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 399, 405, 128 Cal. Rptr. 582] , or has failed to pay taxes as required by the Bank and Corporation Tax Law to the Franchise Tax Board for five years [Corp. Code § 1801(a)(4)]. Corp. Code § 1801 gives the corporation an opportunity to cure its derelictions by charter amendment or other corporate action [Corp. Code § 1801(b); Brown v. Memorial Nat'l Home Foundation (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 513, 540, 329 P.2d 118] before an action to dissolve the corporation is brought [Corp. Code § 1801(a)].

Judgment [see § 483.80] may be rendered in every case on the right of the defendant to exercise an office or franchise. And, judgment may also be rendered on the right of the person alleged to be entitled to an office, as justice requires [Code Civ. Proc. § 805].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

42-483 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 483.25

§ 483.25 Effect of Judgment

[1] Exclusion of Usurper

When a defendant, against whom a quo warranto action is brought, is adjudged guilty of usurping, intruding into, or unlawfully holding an office, franchise, or privilege, judgment is rendered to the effect that the defendant is excluded from the office, franchise, or privilege [Code Civ. Proc. § 809]. A judgment ousting or excluding a usurper is self-executing [People v. West Side County Water Dist. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 228, 233, 246 P.2d 119] and requires no process for its enforcement [People v. Westmoreland (1933) 135 Cal. App. 517, 519, 27 P.2d 394] . For instance, a judgment in quo warranto finding that a water district did not form as a result of failing to meet basic statutory requirements is fatal to the existence of the purported district without additional proceedings by the court [People v. West Side County Water Dist. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 228, 233, 246 P.2d 119] .

[2] Costs and Fine Levied on Defendant

The defendant must pay the costs of the action if found guilty of usurpation of an office or franchise. In addition, the court may, in its discretion, impose on the defendant a fine not exceeding $5,000. Although quo warranto is a civil action, the imposition of the fine permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 809 is clearly penal in nature and is not for the purpose of compensating the state or returning to the state anything belonging to it. For this reason the imposition of the fine rests solely within the discretion of the court and is not based on evidence of loss or damage [People v. Sutter St. Ry. Co. (1900) 129 Cal. 545, 547, 62 P. 104] . Thus, where usurpation of a franchise is shown to have been purposeful and willful, a fine may be imposed on the corporate usurper as a punishment [People v. California Protective Corp. (1926) 76 Cal. App. 354, 363, 244 P. 1089] . And, where the usurpation of a public office is shown, the fine may be imposed on the defendant whether or not the relator is found rightfully entitled to the office [People v. Bingham (1889) 82 Cal. 238, 243, 22 P. 1039] . When collected, the fine is paid into the treasury of the state [Code Civ. Proc. § 809].

[3] Right to Assume Office

[a] Assumption of Office

If judgment is rendered in favor of the right of a person alleged to be entitled to an office, that person is entitled to take and execute the office after taking the oath of office and executing an official bond as required by law [Code Civ. Proc. § 806] and is then entitled to draw his or her salary as an officer de jure [see Bledsoe v. Colgan (1902) 138 Cal. 34, 36-37, 70 P. 924] .

[b] Damages Awarded

If judgment is made in favor of the person alleged to be entitled to the office, he or she may recover the damages sustained as a result of the usurpation of office by the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 807]. In the absence of a statute providing otherwise, the measure of damages recoverable by a party rightfully entitled to an office is the salary and fees payable to the usurper during his or her incumbency in the office [Chubbuck v. Wilson (1907) 151 Cal. 162, 164, 90 P. 524] . However, Code Civ. Proc. § 807 does not authorize as the recovery of damages the amount of salary or compensation of which the rightfully entitled party was deprived when the defendant received that salary or compensation by virtue of holding a certificate of election or commission and exercising the office [Chubbuck v. Wilson (1907) 151 Cal. 162, 168-169, 90 P. 524 (sheriff holding certificate of election and discharging duties of county sheriff protected by Gov. Code § 1132 during pendency of action contesting title to office)].

[4] Judgment Not Retroactive

A judgment of exclusion is not retroactive. For instance, a judgment of ouster, or exclusion, has no legal effect on the exercise of a defendant municipal corporation's franchise prior to the entry of judgment [Bray v. Payne (1930) 210 Cal. 465, 471, 292 P. 478 (court questioning consolidation as unable to rule on status of de facto municipal corporation to attempt consolidation)].

Chapter 483 QUO WARRANTO
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

42-483 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 483.26

§ 483.26 Appeal

[1] Who May Appeal

The relator may appeal from an adverse judgment only after first securing the approval of the Attorney General [11 Cal. Code Reg § 11; People v. Huntington Beach (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 452, 455, 275 P.2d 601] . The approval may be informal, as where the Attorney General transmits a timely dated letter consenting to an appeal by the relator [People ex rel. Bellflower v. Bellflower County Water Dist. (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 344, 347, 55 Cal. Rptr. 584] .

[2] When Appeal Moot

An appeal by a defendant found guilty of usurping an office, and thus excluded from the office, becomes moot if that defendant resigns from the disputed office [People v. Craig (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 615, 616-617, 72 P.2d 135 (appeal dismissed where associate justice of court of appeals resigns after judgment of ouster)].

[3] No Stay of Enforcement Pending Appeal

The perfecting of an appeal does not stay proceedings, in the absence of an order of the trial court providing otherwise or of a writ of supersedas, where a party to the proceeding is adjudged guilty of usurping, intruding into, or unlawfully holding a public office, civil or military, in California [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.8; Day v. Gunning (1899) 125 Cal. 527, 528-529, 58 P. 172 (applicable to public officer ousted by judgment in quo warranto action but not by judgment in election contest)]. Because the operation of a judgment ousting a usurping defendant is not stayed by an appeal, the relator, in qualifying for the office, may properly enter into the duties of the office during the pendency of the appeal [People v. Campbell (1902) 138 Cal. 11, 18, 70 P. 918 (relator assuming office of superior court judge where appeal taken by intervener)].

[ii] Time at Which Validity of Annexation Tested

Validity of annexation as determined as of date it purportedly took place. People ex rel. Downey v. Downey County Water Dist. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 786, 802-803, 21 Cal. Rptr. 370

[13] Usurpation of Public Office

Usurpation as occurring where one person holds two incompatible offices. People ex rel. Chapman v. Rapsey (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 636, 644, 107 P.2d 388 ; People v. Garrett (1925) 72 Cal. App. 452, 458, 237 P. 829

Usurpation as occurring where persons hold offices on boards of directors of private corporations as result of invalid elections. Guaranty Loan Co. v. Fontanel (1920) 183 Cal. 1, 8-9, 190 P. 177 ; Stesel v. Santa Ana R. Water Co. (1939) 35 Cal. App. 2d 117, 124, 94 P.2d 1052

Quo warranto as brought to challenge title to public office. Visnich v. Sacramento County Bd. of Education (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 684, 690, 112 Cal. Rptr. 469

Usurpation as occuring where two persons hold certificates of election to same office. People v. Davidson (1905) 2 Cal. App. 100, 103, 83 P. 161

Quo warranto action as abated by voluntary surrender of challenged office by defendant. People v. Muehe (1931) 114 Cal. App. 739, 740, 300 P. 829

Ouster of defendant as unnecessary unless some other purpose would be served. People v. Muehe (1931) 114 Cal. App. 739, 740, 300 P. 829

Action as permitted to determine another claimant's right to office. People v. Bailey (1916) 30 Cal. App. 581, 586,

158 P. 1036

[14] Who May Bring Action

[a] Board of Supervisors or Legislative Body of Municipal Corporation

Code Civ. Proc. § 811 as enabling boards of supervisors and municipal corporations to initiate own actions without going through or waiting for Attorney General. Olson v. Sacramento County (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 316, 326, 79 Cal. Rptr. 140

Boards of supervisors and municipal corporations as permitted to bring quo warranto actions only against persons usurping franchises and not against persons usurping public offices. San Ysidro Irrigation Dist. v. Superior Court (1960) 56 Cal. 2d 708, 716, 16 Cal. Rptr. 609, 365 P.2d 753

[b] On Complaint of Private Party

[i] Attorney General's Discretion in Acting on Relator's Application

Abuse of discretion found where Attorney General's refusal of leave to sue extreme and clearly indefensible. Lamb v. Webb (1907) 151 Cal. 451, 454, 91 P. 102, 91 P. 646

Attorney General as compelled to institute suit where abuse of discretion shown. Visnich v. Sacramento County Bd. of Education (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 684, 690, 112 Cal. Rptr. 469

Attorney General compelled to sue in quo warranto by writ of mandate instructing him or her to do so. Oakland Mun. Improvement League v. City of Oakland (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 165, 173, 100 Cal. Rptr. 29

No abuse of discretion by Attorney General unless he or she acts arbitrarily in denying relator's application. Oakland Mun. Improvement League v. City of Oakland (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 165, 172, 100 Cal. Rptr. 29

In passing on application, Attorney General as determining whether public interest would be served by institution of suit. Campbell v. Mosk (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 640, 648, 17 Cal. Rptr. 584

Attorney General as having discretion in passing on complaints brought before him or her. People v. Milk Producers Ass'n (1923) 60 Cal. App. 439, 444, 212 P. 957

[ii] Attorney General Not Estopped by Relator's Actions

Attorney General as not estopped in bringing action by acts or conduct of relator in other actions between relator and alleged usurper. People ex rel. Downey v. Downey County Water Dist. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 786, 803, 21 Cal. Rptr. 370

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

42-483 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 483.50

§ 483.50 Relator's Checklist

[1] Facts to Be Ascertained

NOTE:
The following checklist is for use by a relator in bringing an action in quo warranto. It is illustrative of procedures commonly used and is not intended to be exhaustive. Procedures not mentioned in this checklist may be required in a given action. A publication on quo warranto is available from the Attorney General's Office. Counsel may wish to obtain this publication for additional insight on the procedures to follow and the Attorney General's considerations in granting or refusing leave to sue in quo warranto.

NOTE:
Not all of the following facts will be ascertainable from the client in the initial interview. Subsequent interviews may be required, or it may be necessary to ascertain the facts from others, including the potential defendant, by use of discovery proceedings.

1. Facts concerning the relator.

a. Name, address, and telephone number of the relator.

b. Capacity of the relator, such as adult, trustee, conservator, guardian, executor, partnership, or domestic or foreign corporation.

c. Additional facts, as desired, related to relator's stability, financial solvency, employment status, prior residences, credit, banks, and personal references.

2. Facts concerning potential defendants.

a. Name, address, and telephone number of each potential defendant, including:.

(1) . A person usurping, intruding into, or unlawfully holding or exercising a public office, civil or military, in California [Code Civ. Proc. § 803].

(2) A person usurping, intruding into, or unlawfully holding or exercising a franchise in California [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 803, 811].

(3) A corporation, de jure or de facto, usurping, intruding into, or unlawfully holding or exercising a franchise in California [Code Civ. Proc. § 803].

b. Capacity of each potential defendant, such as individual, partnership, municipal corporation, or private domestic or private foreign corporation.

3. Facts concerning the potential cause of action.

a. Office or franchise being usurped, intruded into, or unlawfully held or exercised.

b. Nature of usurpation:

(1) Whether an individual is holding a public office to which he or she is not entitled.

(2) Whether an individual is holding two incompatible offices.

(3) Whether a municipal corporation is purporting to annex territory by means of prohibited procedures.

(4) Whether a municipal corporation is attempting to alter its charter by means of invalid submission to the electorate.

(5) Whether a private corporation is acting in violation of its charter by doing acts prohibited to it.

(6) Whether individuals are claiming to act as a corporation which has no existence.

c. Name of the person, if any, rightfully entitled to hold the usurped office or franchise.

d. Damages, if any, sustained by the relator as a result of the usurpation.

e. Conduct by the defendant sufficient to justify a request that the court impose a fine.

[2] Documents to Be Obtained

Obtain copies of all documentary evidence suggested by the facts relating to the potential cause of action. Documents to be obtained might include the following:

1. Certificates of election or appointment in an action to try title to office.

2. Maps indicating purportedly annexed territory in an action against a municipal corporation.

3. Corporate charters or bylaws in an action against a corporation allegedly usurping its franchise.

[3] Preliminary Determinations

1. If an office is alleged to be usurped, whether the relator, or any other person, is rightfully entitled to the office.

2. If the action is to contest the validity of an annexation by a public entity, whether the complaint can be brought within the statutory period of limitation.

NOTE:

Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2 places a three-months' time limitation on all actions, including quo warranto, concerning the validity of annexation and consolidation proceedings. This section binds the State. It prohibits any contest of those proceedings after three months have elapsed after the filing in the office of the Secretary of State of the certified copy of the ordinance of the city to which the territory is annexed [People v. Los Angeles (1928) 93 Cal. App. 532, 535-538, 269 P. 934] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 349* 1/2 does not, however, permit a municipal corporation to annex territory within the boundaries of a second municipality, even though the latter does not contest the proceedings within the three-month period [People v. Town of Corte Madera (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 32, 37-41, 251 P.2d 988] .

3. If the action is to contest the validity of other acts by a public entity, whether the complaint can be brought within the statutory period of limitation.

NOTE:

Code Civ. Proc. § 349.1* provides a six-month limitation from the date of completion for the filing of an action to contest the validity of any acts or proceedings taken under color of law for the formation, organization, incorporation, dissolution, consolidation, change of organization or reorganization of, or for any change in the territorial boundaries of any city, county, city and county, special district, public corporation, or other public entity, or improvement district within any of the foregoing.

Code Civ. Proc. § 349.1* states that it does not amend or repeal any existing statute prescribing a shorter period of limitation.

Since *Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2 preexisted Code Civ. Proc. § 349.1 and prescribes a limitation of three months from the date of completion for the filing of an action concerning the validity of annexation and consolidation proceedings, it would appear that *Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2 would control in most situations in which quo warranto is available to contest municipal activity.

4. If the action is to contest the validity of other acts by a public entity giving notice to its property owners, whether the complaint can be brought within the statutory period of limitation.

NOTE:

Code Civ. Proc. § 349.4* provides a 60-day limitation from the date notice is mailed to all property owners within an entity for the filing of an action by any of the property owners to contest the validity of the acts or proceedings taken under color of law to (1) form, organize, incorporate, or change the territorial boundaries of any city, county, city and county, special district, public corporation or other public entity, or an improvement district, annexed area, or zone within any of the foregoing, or (2) authorize, issue, sell, or exchange the bonds of the entity or territory [Code Civ. Proc. § 349.4].

5. Whether another remedy, such as mandate, declaratory relief, or certiorari, would be more appropriate than quo warranto (i.e., whether the right to sue in quo warranto has matured).

[4] Preparation of Application for Leave to Sue

1. Prepare proposed complaint by:

a. Reviewing essential allegations [see §§ 483.72 -483.76].

b. Drafting complaint.

c. Including places in the proposed complaint for the signature of the Attorney General, a Deputy Attorney General, and the attorney for the relator as attorneys for the plaintiff [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(a)].

d. Having the proposed complaint verified [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(a)].

2. Prepare a statement of facts by:

a. Drafting a statement of facts [see § 483.77] underlying the proposed complaint [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(a)].

NOTE:
The statement of facts may present a chronology of events giving rise to the cause of action in quo warranto and may be accompanied by relevant supporting exhibits.

b. Having the statement of facts verified [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(a)].

3. Draft a memorandum of points and authorities showing why the proposed action should be brought in the name of the people and supporting the contention of the relator that a public office or franchise is being usurped, intruded into, or unlawfully held or exercised by the proposed defendant [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(b)].

4. Draft a notice to the proposed defendant [see § 483.70] informing him or her or it of the following:

a. That the relator is about to apply to the Attorney General for leave to sue in quo warranto, and

b. That the proposed defendant may appear and show cause, if he or she or it has any, why leave to sue should not be granted in accordance with the relator's application [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(c)].

5. Prepare the application for leave to sue [see § 483.71].

6. Print originals and copies:

a. Original of each paper, except Notice to Proposed Defendant, to be submitted to the Attorney General

b. Original or originals of Notice to Proposed Defendant to be served on each proposed defendant [11 Cal. Code Reg §§ 1, 2(c)].

c. Copies of each paper, except Notice to Proposed Defendant, for each proposed defendant [11 Cal. Code Reg § 1].

d. Copy of Notice to Proposed Defendant to submit to Attorney General.

e. Copy of proposed complaint to submit with the original to Attorney General [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2].

f. Copy of each paper for office file.

g. Copy for each paper client, if desired.

h. Any additional copies desired.

[5] Service on Proposed Defendant

Serve the proposed defendant with [11 Cal. Code Reg § 1]:

1. A copy of the application for leave to sue.

2. A copy of the complaint.

3. . A copy of the statement of facts.

4. A copy of the memorandum of points and authorities.

5. The original notice to the proposed defendant.

[6] Proof of Service

Prepare proof of service [see § 483.78] of the application on the proposed defendant [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(d)].

[7] Submission to Attorney General

File the following with the Attorney General within five days after service of the application for leave to sue on the proposed defendant [11 Cal. Code Reg § 1]:

1. Original and one copy of the verified proposed complaint [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(a)].

2. A verified statement of facts supporting the proposed complaint [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(a)].

3. A memorandum of points and authorities [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(b)].

4. A copy of the notice to the proposed defendant [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(c)].

5. Proof of service of the application on the proposed defendant [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(d)].

NOTE:

The documents should be mailed or taken to the Office of the Attorney General nearest in location to the county in which the action is proposed to be brought. The Attorney General has offices in Sacramento, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and San Diego. On receipt of the application for leave to sue from the proposed relator, the Attorney General acknowledges the receipt of these papers by means of a letter to the proposed relator with a copy to the proposed defendant.

[8] Provisional Leave to Sue Where Urgency Shown

The Attorney General may grant provisional leave to sue where the relator shows a special case and an urgent necessity that leave to sue issue [11 Cal. Code Reg § 10].

NOTE:

Provisional leave to sue is often granted if it appears that the statute of limitations may bar the filing of the complaint at a later time or if it appears that special steps are necessary in order to preserve the status quo pending a decision on the relator's application by the Attorney General.

1. Prepare the application for leave to sue. See [4], above. State in the application the reasons why provisional leave to sue should issue [see 11 Cal. Code Reg § 10].

2. Serve the proposed defendant. See [5], above.

3. Prepare an undertaking with approved sureties [Code Civ. Proc. § 810; 11 Cal. Code Reg §§ 6, 28]. See [10], below.

4. Submit the application for leave to sue to the Attorney General [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2] together with the undertaking with sureties [11 Cal. Code Reg §§ 6, 10]. See [7], above.

[9] Relator's Reply to Showing by Proposed Defendant

1. Reply, if desired, to any showing by the proposed defendant why the application should not be granted [11 Cal. Code Reg § 4].

2. Submit any such reply with the Attorney General within 10 days following the proposed defendant's showing [11 Cal. Code Reg § 4].

3. Extensions of time to reply may be granted by:

a. The Attorney General on a showing of good cause, or

b. A stipulation between the relator and proposed defendant filed with the Attorney General [11 Cal. Code Reg § 4].

4. File any reply with proof or admission of service [11 Cal. Code Reg § 5].

[10] Relator's Undertaking

NOTE:

Leave to sue is granted or denied by the Attorney General in the form of an opinion letter to the relator. Where leave to sue is granted, the relator must then present an undertaking to the Attorney General before he or she will issue leave to sue [Code Civ. Proc. § 810; People v. Petroleum Rectifying Co. (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 289, 290, 68 P.2d 984] .

1. Present an undertaking [see § 483.79] executed to the State of California in the sum of $500 [11 Cal. Code Reg § 6] and stating that the relator or sureties will pay:

a. Any judgment for costs or damages recovered against the plaintiff, and

b. All costs and expenses incurred in the prosecution of the quo warranto action [11 Cal. Code Reg §§ 6, 28].

2. Be certain that the sureties are approved by the Attorney General [Code Civ. Proc. § 810].

NOTE:
In practice, the Attorney General most often requires a corporate, rather than individual, surety.

3. Present the undertaking within 10 days after receiving notice that the application for leave to sue is granted, unless further time is granted [11 Cal. Code Reg § 6].

[11] Obtain Leave to Sue From Attorney General

The Attorney General transmits leave to sue in the name of the people, in writing, to the relator on receipt and approval of the undertaking [11 Cal. Code Reg § 6].

[12] Conform Complaint to Attorney General's Directions

Make any changes in or amendments to the proposed complaint as suggested or directed by the Attorney General [11 Cal. Code Reg § 6].

[13] File Complaint

File the approved complaint [see §§ 483.72 -483.76], together with the leave to sue, with the clerk [11 Cal. Code Reg § 6] of the superior court [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10 (residual jurisdiction of superior court)] for the proper county.

NOTE:
The proper county in which to bring a quo warranto action is: the county in which the defendant, or if several, some of the defendants, reside [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]; the county, city and county, or county in which the city or local agency is situated when the defendant is a county, city and county, city or local agency [see Code Civ. Proc. § 394]; or the county in which a corporation has its principal place of business [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5].

[14] Inform Attorney General of Filing

Immediately inform the Attorney General of:

1. The date on which the complaint is filed; and

2. The court number of the filed complaint [11 Cal. Code Reg § 9].

[15] No Changes in Complaint Without Approval

Make no changes, amendments, or alterations in the complaint after its filing without the approval of the Attorney General [11 Cal. Code Reg § 7].

[16] Notices to Attorney General

NOTE:

The Attorney General has control of the quo warranto action at all times [People v. Huntington Beach (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 452, 455, 275 P.2d 601] . For this reason, the Attorney General may, at any and every stage of the quo warranto action, withdraw, discontinue, or dismiss the action as seems fit and proper to him or her.In addition, the Attorney General may, at his or her option, assume the management of the quo warranto action at any time [11 Cal. Code Reg § 8].

No statutory provisions point out the exact manner in which the Attorney General's control over the quo warranto action is exercised. Likewise, no statutory provisions prevent the Attorney General from acting with or through the relator [People v. Huntington Beach (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 452, 456, 275 P.2d 601] . Generally, the actual burden of discovery, trial and appeal, is borne by the attorney for the relator. Only rarely does the Attorney General actively participate in the court proceedings. Nevertheless, the name of the Attorney General and his or her deputies must appear on all pleadings and briefs filed by the relator.

Notify the Attorney General without delay of every proceeding had, motion made, paper filed, or thing done with respect to a quo warranto action [11 Cal. Code Reg § 9].

1. Send a copy of every paper or document filed by any of the parties to the action, including the judgment, promptly to the Attorney General [11 Cal. Code Reg § 9].

2. Forward an additional copy of any paper served on the relator by the opposing party to the Attorney General at once [11 Cal. Code Reg § 9].

NOTE:

In sending or forwarding the foregoing information to the Attorney General, the relator need not follow formal noticing procedures. Instead, the relator may indicate the documents or other information sent to the Attorney General by means of a cover letter or explanatory note.

[17] Discovery and Trial

NOTE:

After filing of the complaint, a quo warranto action proceeds in the same manner as any other civil action [see People v. Richmond (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 107, 117, 296 P.2d 351 (quo warranto action governed by all the pertinent procedural and practice provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 307 et seq.). Hence, this guide offers no specific suggestions for discovery and trial.

For discussion, procedural checklists, and forms for use in discovery and trial in a quo warranto action, see Ch. 190-200: Discovery Ch. 372, Motions and Orders and Ch. 551, Trial .

Secure the Attorney General's consent before making motions after trial [People v. Huntington Beach (1954) 128 Cal.

App. 2d 452, 457, 275 P.2d 601 (motion for new trial as proper when filed at express direction of Attorney General but signed by relator's attorney)].

NOTE:

For discussion, procedural checklists, and forms for use in moving for judgment notwithstanding the verdict, for a new trial, and to set aside and vacate judgment and enter another and different judgment, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial .

[19] Appeal

Secure the Attorney General's approval before appealing from any adverse judgment by the trial court [11 Cal. Code Reg § 11].

NOTE:

Because a quo warranto action is under the control of the Attorney General at all times [People v. Huntington Beach (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 452, 455, 275 P.2d 601] , any attempt by the relator alone to appeal from an adverse judgment without first securing the permission of the Attorney General is ineffectual for any purpose [People v. Petroleum Rectifying Co. (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 289, 291, 68 P.2d 984] .

The approval by the Attorney General may be informal, as where the Attorney General transmits a timely dated letter consenting to an appeal by the relator [People ex rel. Bellflower v. Bellflower County Water Dist. (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 344, 347, 55 Cal. Rptr. 584] .

It should also be noted that the perfecting of an appeal does not stay proceedings, in the absence of an order of the trial court providing otherwise or of a writ of supersedas, where a party to the proceeding is adjudged guilty of usurping, intruding into, or unlawfully holding a public office, civil or military [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.8].

For discussion, procedural checklist, and forms for use in instituting an appeal and staying enforcement of a judgment pending appeal, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal , and Ch. 43, Appeal: Stay of Proceedings .

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

42-483 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 483.51

§ 483.51 Defendant's Checklist

[1] Appearance by Proposed Defendant in Response to Application

NOTE:
The following checklist is for use by a proposed defendant in opposing an action in quo warranto. It is illustrative of procedures commonly used. It is not intended to be exhaustive. Procedures not mentioned in this checklist may be required in a given action.

1. Prepare and file with the Attorney General a verified statement of facts [11 Cal. Code Reg § 3] in response to that submitted by the proposed relator [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(a)]. For a form of statement of facts which can be adapted by a proposed defendant for use in opposing the proposed relator's application, see § 483.77.

NOTE:
The proposed defendant's appearance to oppose the granting of leave to sue may be in person or in writing. At the present time, conferences are rarely held, and the Attorney General prefers to base his or her decision on the pleadings submitted by the proposed relator and the proposed defendant. Nevertheless, the Attorney General may require a conference at which both the proposed relator and proposed defendant assert their respective positions. The appearance, where in person or in writing, should set forth the reasonswhy leave to sue should not be granted in accordance with the proposed relator's application.

2. Have the statement of facts verified [11 Cal. Code Reg § 3].

3. Serve the statement of facts on the proposed relator.

4. Prepare a declaration of service [see § 483.78] on the proposed relator.

5. Submit the statement of facts to the Attorney General with proof or admission of service on the proposed relator [11 Cal. Code Reg § 5].

6. File any statement of facts, or other appearance with the Attorney General within the following times after service of the application for leave to sue:

a. Within 15 days, if service occurs in the county where the action is brought, or

b. Within 20 days, if service occurs outside the county where the action is brought [11 Cal. Code Reg § 3].

NOTE:
The Attorney General may prescribe a shorter period of time in which to appear in special cases or on a showing of good cause [11 Cal. Code Reg § 3].

7. Extensions of time to appear may be granted by:

a. The Attorney General on a showing of good cause, or

b. A stipulation between the relator and proposed defendant filed with the Attorney General [11 Cal. Code Reg § 3].

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by the relator in a quo warranto action to oust a public officer from a position which he or she is usurping.

The form is based on a situation in which the defendant attempts to occupy and perform the duties of two incompatible offices [see People ex rel. Chapman v. Rapsey (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 636, 107 P.2d 388 (defendant purporting to hold positions of city judge and city attorney); People v. Garrett (1925) 72 Cal. App. 452, 237 P. 829 (defendant purporting to hold positions of justice of the peace and police judge); 76 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 38, 44 (1993) (leave to sue granted to test right of individual to hold concurrently offices of chief of fire protection district, director of fire protection district, and city council member); 75 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 112, 117 (1992) (leave to sue granted to test right of individual to hold incompatible offices of school district trustee and community services district director); for discussion, see § 483.21].

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges:

- That the action is brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 803 (Paragraph 1).
- The defendant's residence to establish venue under Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) (Paragraph 2).
- The position alleged to be usurped (Paragraph 3).
- The usurpation of that position by the defendant (Paragraph IV) [People v. Hayden (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 312, 313, 49 P.2d 314] .
- Specific facts giving the grounds or defects in defendant's title (Paragraphs 5-7) [People ex rel. Paganini v. Corte Madera (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 726, 218 P.2d 810] .

[4] Jurisdiction

A quo warranto action must be brought in the superior court as an unlimited civil case [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10 (residual jurisdiction of superior court)].

[5] Venue

A quo warranto action may be brought against an individual defendant in the county in which that defendant resides at the commencement of the action. If there is more than one defendant, the proper county is the county in which some of the defendants reside [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

[6] Parties

The person holding a contested office is a necessary party to the action in quo warranto [Susanville v. Long (1904) 144 Cal. 362, 365, 77 P. 987] . However, the relator bringing the action need not be the person rightfully entitled to the office [People v. Bingham (1889) 82 Cal. 238, 243, 22 P. 1039] .

In a case in which quo warranto is the proper remedy, the cause of action is vested in the People, and not in any individual or group, no matter how affected they may be, or how much more the subject matter may touch their interests than it does other members of the citizenry. A complaint by an individual or group for quo warranto is subject to demurrer for failure to state a cause of action, and the defect may be raised at any time during proceedings [Oakland Mun. Improvement League v. City of Oakland (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 165, 170-171, 100 Cal. Rptr. 29] .

[7] No Statute of Limitations

Although laches could bar relief, lapse of time is not a bar to bringing a quo warranto action to oust a public officer. It is assumed that the attorney general will not permit the institution of a quo warranto action if the claim is stale or the state has ceased to have a present interest in the claim [People v. Bailey (1916) 30 Cal. App. 581, 585, 158 P. 1036] .

[8] Sufficiency of Complaint

A complaint in a quo warranto action is sufficient if it pleads the ultimate fact of usurpation in general terms. When the complaint is couched in general terms, the defendant bears the burden of proof with respect to the alleged usurpation, being required to move for example, the right to lawfully hold a challenged office [People v. Hayden (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 312, 313, 49 P.2d 314] or the validity of annexation proceedings [People ex rel. Smith v. San Jose (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 57, 59, 222 P.2d 947] .

A complaint in quo warranto is also sufficient if it pleads specific grounds or defects to show an alleged usurpation [People ex rel. Paganini v. Corte Madera (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 726, 218 P.2d 810] . When specific facts are relied on to show usurpation, the pleader assumes the burden of allegation and proof. In addition, where specific allegations are made, the complaint is subject to a general demurrer by the defendant if the facts stated do not constitute a cause of action [People v. City of Palm Springs (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 38, 41, 331 P.2d 4] . For example, a complaint is sufficient which pleads specific facts that two persons were declared elected to one office, that they received certificates, qualified, and were performing the duties of the office, and that they were usurpers and intruders [People v. Davidson (1905) 2 Cal. App. 100, 103, 83 P. 161] .

It should be noted, however, that in practice the Attorney General requires the relator to set forth specific, detailed, and certain allegationsof all the facts relating to the cause of action in considering the application for leave to sue. Moreover, the attorney general requires that the facts presented by the relator be by direct allegation and not on information and belief [27 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 249, 253 (1956)] .

[9] Verification Required

A complaint brought by a relator in quo warranto under Code Civ. Proc. § 803 must be verified [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 (form of declaration)]. Verification of the complaint requires that the defendant file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] and also precludes a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

[10] Number of Copies

Prepare the following copies of the proposed complaint:

- Original and one copy to be submitted to the Attorney General [11 Cal. Code Reg § 2(a)].
- Copy for each proposed defendant [11 Cal. Code Reg § 1].
- Copy for office file.
- Copy for client, if desired.
- Any additional copies desired.

42-483 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 483.73

§ 483.73 Allegations for Use Where Another Person Is Rightfully Entitled to Public Office [Code Civ. Proc. § 804]

[1] FORM Allegations for Use Where Another Person Is Rightfully Entitled to Public Office [Code Civ. Proc. § 804]

1. At all times herein mentioned, _____ [name of person rightfully entitled to office] was a resident of _____ County, California.

2. _____ [Name] is the person rightfully entitled to hold and exercise the position of _____ [position being usurped] _____ [allege specific facts, if desired, showing person entitled to assume office usurped by defendant, e.g., by reason of the fact that _____ (name) holds a valid certificate of _____ (election or appointment) to the position].

[2] Use of Form

The allegations in [1], above, are for use by a relator in a complaint in quo warranto to oust a usurping public officer. The allegations state the name of the person rightfully entitled to the office as permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 804. Thus, the right of another person to occupy the office may be determined in the same action which tries the defendant's right to the office [Code Civ. Proc. § 805; People v. Bailey (1916) 30 Cal. App. 581, 586, 158 P. 1036] . These allegations are for use in addition to those allegations in the complaint in § 483.72.

[3] Prayer to Include Restoration of Claimant

When these allegations are used in a complaint to oust a public officer, the prayer should include a request for an order determining the claimant entitled to the usurped office and putting the claimant in possession of the office [see Code Civ. Proc. § 806].

Although ouster of the defendant from the usurped office is independent of determination of relator's right to the office [People v. Fleming (1893) 100 Cal. 537, 541, 35 P. 163 ; see People v. Bingham (1889) 82 Cal. 238, 243, 22 P. 1039 (relator in quo warranto need not be person claiming to be entitled to contested office)], the right of one thought to be holding office unlawfully and the right of one claiming to be entitled to it are properly adjudicated in the same action [People v. Bailey (1916) 30 Cal. App. 581, 586, 158 P. 1036] .

[4] Damages

If the judgment decrees that a person alleged to be entitled to an office is so entitled, the person may recover, by action, the damages he or she may have sustained by reason of the defendant's usurpation of the office [Code Civ. Proc. § 807].

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by the relator in a quo warranto action to challenge the validity of a purported annexation by a municipal corporation. The form is based on a situation in which the defendant municipality claims to have annexed uninhabited contiguous territory and is exercising its jurisdiction over the territory [see Code Civ. Proc. § 803; People v. City of Palm Springs (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 38, 41-42, 331 P.2d 4 ; see also Gov. Code § 56100 et seq. (requirements for valid territorial annexation); for discussion, see § 483.22[4,[5]].

[3] Adaptation for Use by Municipality Under Code Civ. Proc. § 811

The form of complaint in [1], above, may be adapted for use by a board of supervisors of a county, or city and county, or by the legislative body of a municipal corporation in bringing a quo warranto action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 811; San Ysidro Irr. Dist. v. Superior Court (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 708, 716-717, 16 Cal. Rptr. 609, 365 P.2d 753 (Code Civ. Proc. § 811 as applicable against either persons or governmental bodies usurping franchise)]. Counsel will want to add a paragraph to the form alleging the plaintiff's capacity to bring the action under Code Civ. Proc. § 811. In addition,counsel should adapt the caption and introductions to reflect the party bringing the action. For additional forms for use as captions and introductions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions .

When brought by a board of supervisors of a county, or city and county, or by the legislative body of a municipal corporation, the complaint in quo warranto need not be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. However, the defendant must file a verified answer unless it would subject him or her to criminal prosecution or unless the defendant is also a county, city, or other public corporation [Code Civ. Proc. § 446].

[4] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- That the action is brought under Code Civ. Proc. § 803 (Paragraph 1).
- The defendant's capacity (Paragraph 2).
- The statutes regulating annexation attempts by defendant (Paragraph 3).
- The commencement of proceedings to annex specific described property (Paragraph 4).
- The defective nature of the annexation proceedings (Paragraph 5) [see People v. City of Palm Springs (1958) 51 Cal. 2d 38, 331 P.2d 4] .
- The exercise of control by the defendant over the area claimed to be annexed in the proceedings (Paragraph 6) [Amer. Distl. Co. v. City Council, Sausalito (1950) 34 Cal. 2d 660, 667, 213 P.2d 704] .
- The facts enumerated above as constituting a usurpation by the defendant (Paragraph 7).
- If action brought in response to notification of attempted validation, the assertion that the defendant mailed the notification (Paragraph 8) [Code Civ. Proc. § 349.4].

[5] Venue

A quo warranto action against a county, city and county, city or local agency may be brought in that county, city and county, or the county in which the city or local agency is situated unless the action is brought by the county, city and county, city or local agency, in which case the action may be brought in any county, or city and county, not a party to the action and in which the city or local agency is not situated. When brought in the same county, or city and county, an action, on the motion of either party, must be transferred to another county, or city and county [see Code Civ. Proc. § 394].

An action to contest the validity of proceedings for the incorporation of a municipal corporation, the annexation of territory by a municipal corporation, or for the consolidation of municipal corporations must be brought within three months after the commencement of the proceedings [*Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2]. The three-month limitation of *Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2 is consistently applied to quo warranto actions [23 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 300, 304 (1954) ; People v. Los Angeles (1928) 93 Cal. App. 532, 536, 538, 269 P. 934] . *Code Civ. Proc. § 349*1/2 does not, however, apply to contests of subsequent void proceedings which follow completed proceedings to annex territory [People v. Town of Corte Madera (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 32, 38, 251 P.2d 988] .

An action to contest the validity of acts or proceedings taken under color of law to form, organize, incorporate, dissolve, consolidate, change organization or reorganize, or to change the territorial boundaries of a city, county, city and county, special district, public corporation or other public entity, or an improvement district within any of the foregoing, must be brought within six months from the date of completion of the acts or proceedings contested [Code Civ. Proc. § 349.1]. The limitation prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 349.1 does not supercede the shorter limitation prescribed by any other statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 349.1].

An action to contest acts or proceedings taken under color of law for the formation, organization, incorporation, or any change in the territorial boundaries of a city, county, city and county, special district, public corporation or other public entity, or an improvement district, annexed area, or zone within any of the foregoing, or to contest the authorization, issuance, sale, or exchange of bonds of the entity or territory, must be brought within 60 calendar days of the mailing of a notice to all property owners in the entity or territory of the entity's attempted validation of such acts or proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 349.4].

[Caption. See § 483.72.]

The People of the State of California, on the Relation of _____ [name of relator], complain of defendant(s) [, and each of them], and for cause of action allege:

1. This action is brought pursuant to Section 803 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

2. At all times herein mentioned, _____ [name], the defendant, was a municipal corporation existing, qualifying, and acting under a charter granted by the Legislature of the State of California and adopted pursuant to the Constitution and laws of the State of California.

3. _____ [Allege capacity of relator, if desired, e.g., The relator in this action is _____ (specify, e.g, a labor organization within the meaning of Section _____ of the Labor Code and a recognized public employee organization within the meaning of Section _____ of the Government Code. As one of its functions, the relator represents public employees on matters related to their employment conditions, including wages and hours)].

4. The process of _____ [specify, e.g., bargaining between public employees unions and local governments, including the defendant] is governed by _____ [indicate statutes related to the allegedly invalid charter amendment, e.g., Sections 3500 to 3510 of the Government Code] _____ [commonly known as the _____ (indicate name by which statutes known, if applicable, e.g., Meyers-Milias-Brown Act)].

5. On or about _____[date], the defendant submitted to the electorate of _____ [city or county] a resolution to amend its charter to provide for the following: _____ [specify purpose and subject of resolution, e.g., disciplinary actions against any public employees participating in a strike or job action against the defendant].

6. On or about _____[date], a majority of the electorate approved the foregoing resolution. The charter amendment thus approved was thereafter filed with the Secretary of State.

7. The proceedings described above which were taken by the defendant to amend its charter were defective and violative of _____ [specify code section, or sections, violated, e.g., Section(s) _____ (number) of the Government Code] in that _____ [specify, e.g., no reasonable written notice was given to public employees unions regarding a resolution directly related to matters within the scope of their representation or defendant failed to meet and confer in good faith with public employees unions regarding wages, hours, or conditions of employment prior to arriving at policy governing wages, hours, or conditions or any other requirement not satisfied by the defendant in presenting the foregoing resolution to the electorate].

8. Commencing on or about _____[date], defendant has undertaken to act under color of the defective and invalid charter amendment and, in doing so, has usurped, intruded into, and unlawfully held and exercised powers not belonging to it.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. For judgment determining that the charter amendment is null and void and of no legal effect and that the defendant has unlawfully usurped the powers of the state of California in undertaking to act under color of the amendment;

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by the relator in bringing a quo warranto action to challenge the validity of a charter amendment purportedly adopted by a municipal corporation. The form is based on a situation in which the defendant municipality is acting under color of law in attempting to give the purported amendment legal effect [see Oakland Mun. Improvement League v. City of Oakland (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 165, 100 Cal. Rptr. 29 (proceeding in mandate and prohibition by labor unions to test validity of process of enacting city charter improper; action properly brought in quo warranto)].

Quo warranto is the exclusive remedy to challenge the validity of a city charter once it is put into effect [Santa Clara County v. Hayes Co. (1954)43 Cal. 2d 615, 618, 275 P.2d 456 ; Oakland Mun. Improvement League v. City of Oakland (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 165, 168-169, 100 Cal. Rptr. 29] . Declaratory relief actions brought by firefighters union and individuals are not available to determine the validity of local propositions adopted by the city electorate that amended a city charter, because the exclusive method of attack on city charter amendments lies in a quo warranto action that may only be brought by the Attorney General [International Assn. of Firefighters v. City of Oakland (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 687, 694-698, 220 Cal. Rptr. 256] .

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by the relator in bringing a quo warranto action against a private corporation under Code Civ. Proc. § 803 and Corp. Code § 1801. The form is based on a situation in which a corporation in exercising its franchise is seriously offending the statutes which regulate it [see Citizens Utilities Co. v. Superior Court (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 399, 403-407, 128 Cal. Rptr. 582 (remedy in quo warranto and under Corp. Code § 1801 concurrent)]. For discussion, see § 483.23.

[3] Parties Where Corporate Franchise Questioned

If the legal existence of a corporation is questioned, the quo warranto action must be brought against the individuals wrongfully exercising the franchise to act as a corporation. On the other hand, where a legally existing corporation usurps privileges or powers not granted to it by its charter, the quo warranto action is brought against the corporation [People v. Stanford (1888) 77 Cal. 360, 363, 18 P. 85, 19 P. 693] . Whenever a corporation is made a party defendant, its legal existence cannot then be attacked in quo warranto [People v. Stanford (1888) 77 Cal. 360, 364, 18 P. 85, 19 P. 693 (complaint alleging nonexistence of corporation concedes its existence by naming it as party to action); but see People v. Montecito Water Co. (1893) 97 Cal. 276, 278, 32 P. 236 (corporation a necessary party where substantial compliance with incorporation statutes creates de facto corporation)].

[4] Venue

Venue of an action against a corporation is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5. For discussion, see Ch. 571, Venue .

[2] Source of Form

The form of undertaking in [1], above, is based on 11 Cal. Code Reg. § 28.1. It does not conform to the content requirements of the Bond and Undertaking Law (Code Civ. Proc. § 995.010 et seq.), which generally governs undertakings. For example, in addition to information contained in this form, an undertaking must state addresses at which principal and sureties may be served with notices, papers, and other documents [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320] and state that the sureties are jointly and severally liable on the obligations of the bond, on the provision of the Bond and Undertaking Law, and on the statute providing for the bond [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.320(b)]. However, the Bond and Undertaking Law also states that its provisions apply to an undertaking executed pursuant to any California statute, except to the extent that the statute prescribes a different rule or is inconsistent [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.020(a)]. It further provides that the term "statute" includes an administrative regulation promulgated pursuant to a statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.180(a)]. Since this form is based on an administrative code section promulgated pursuant to a statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 810], the provisions of the Bond and Undertaking Law may not apply to the extent that the administrative code section sets forth an inconsistent form of undertaking.

For a form of undertaking that is sufficient under the Bond and Undertaking Law, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

[3] Use of Form

The form of undertaking in [1], above, is for use by the relator to satisfy the Attorney General's requirement than an undertaking be furnished as a condition for issuance of leave to sue in quo warranto [Code Civ. Proc. § 810; 11 Cal. Code Reg § 6]. The relator must file the undertaking for $500 with the Attorney General within 10 days of receiving notice that leave to sue is granted, unless further time is allowed [11 Cal. Code Reg § 6; see People v. Petroleum Rectifying Co. (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 289, 290, 68 P.2d 984 (Attorney General may require relator to give security for costs)] .

The sureties must be approved by the Attorney General [Code Civ. Proc. § 810; 11 Cal. Code Reg § 6]. The Attorney General usually requires that the undertaking be by a corporate surety because the Attorney General's Office prefers not to maintain actions against personal sureties for the amount of the undertaking. In addition, the Attorney General requires that the relator sign the undertaking as principal.

[Caption. See §§ 483.72, 483.74]

The above-entitled cause came on for trial in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] this court. Plaintiff appeared by _____ [name], Attorney General of the State of California, _____ [name], Deputy Attorney General of the State of California, and _____ [name], Attorney for the Relator, _____ [name of relator]. Defendant appeared by _____ [name], his/her/its attorney. Evidence, both oral and documentary, was presented and considered. The matter was argued and submitted. The court was fully informed and advised in the premises of both parties, _____ [and the court (,on request of _____ (plaintiff or defendant),) caused its written statement of decision to be made and filed herein or; no statement of decision was requested].

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED, ADJUDGED, AND DECREED:

1. That the defendant is guilty of usurping, intruding into, and unlawfully holding and exercising _____ [specify, e.g., the office of _____ (specify position usurped, e.g., city attorney) or control over invalidly annexed territory or a corporate franchise to _____ (specify rights under corporate charter, e.g., the franchise to practice law)].

2. That the defendant is, therefore, excluded from the _____ [specify, e.g., office or privilege or franchise] described above.

3. _____ [If another person is found rightfully entitled to a usurped office: That _____ (name) is rightfully entitled to hold and exercise the office of _____ (specify position, e.g., city attorney)].

4. _____ [If another person is found rightfully entitled to a usurped office: That the defendant pay to _____ (name) the sum of $_____ as damages for the usurpation of the office of _____ (specify position usurped)].

[5. That the defendant pay a fine in the sum of $_____.]

6. That the defendant pay the costs of suit herein, assessed at $_____.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Judge of the Superior Court

The general form of judgment in [1], above, is for use when the relator prevails in a quo warranto proceeding.

The judgment may rule both on the defendant's right to the office or franchise and on the right of another party alleged to be entitled to the office [Code Civ. Proc. § 805]. The person found entitled to office may execute the office after taking oath and posting bond, as required [Code Civ. Proc. § 806].

The judgment may award damages to the person found rightfully entitled to the office that was usurped [Code Civ. Proc. § 807; see Chubbuck v. Wilson (1907) 151 Cal. 162, 164, 168-169, 90 P. 524 (measure of damages)].

In addition, the defendant ousted from an office or franchise by the judgment must pay the costs of the action, and is subject to a fine [Code Civ. Proc. § 809; see. People v. Bingham (1889) 82 Cal. 238, 243, 22 P. 1039 (fine imposed on defendant is not dependent on whether relator is found entitled to office)].

The judgment is self-executing [People v. West Side County Water Dist. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 228, 233, 246 P.2d 119 ; People v. Westmoreland (1933) 135 Cal. App. 517, 519, 27 P.2d 394] .

In the case of a corporation, the court may order dissolution or other or partial relief it deems just and expedient. The court may also appoint a receiver to wind up the corporation's affairs or order the wind up of the corporation's affairs by its board subject to court supervision [Corp. Code § 1801(c)].

Chapter 484 RADIO AND TELEVISION
PART I SCOPE

§ 484.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the governmental regulation of radio and television, contracts for sale of advertising time on radio and television, and employment contracts involving workers in radio and television. It discusses special employment problems of minors in radio and television and the regulation of radio and television repair work. It also discusses causes of action relating to cable television, including small claims liability to a subscriber for delay of service and liability to a cable television corporation for property damage. In addition, liability for unauthorized reception under both California and federal law is discussed.

The chapter includes a form of complaint for damages for breach of contract by a radio or television station against an advertising sponsor [see § 484.60], a form of complaint for injunctive relief by an advertising sponsor against a radio or television station refusing to terminate commercials after cancellation of contract by the advertising sponsor [see § 484.61], and a form of complaint for damages for breach of an employment contract by a television actor against a producer refusing to compensate the actor [see § 484.62].

PART II LEGAL BACKGROUND

42-484 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 484.10

§ 484.10 Governing Statutes

The repair of radios, televisions, and other electronic equipment is governed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 9800 et seq. (Electronic and Appliance Repair Dealer Registration Law).

California law governing the cable industry includes:

- Civ. Code § 1722(b) (small claims action for delay of service by cable television company).
- Corp. Code § 14400 (treble damages for injury to cable television corporation property).
- Gov. Code § 53066 et seq. (franchise or license to construct community antenna television systems).
- Gov. Code § 53066.4 (lockbox made available to cable television system subscribers).
- Gov. Code § 53088.5 et seq. (cable system delinquent payment fees).
- Penal Code § 593d (unauthorized connection with cable system as punishable by fine and/or imprisonment and creating liability for civil damages).
- Penal Code § 593e (unauthorized manufacture, distribution, sale, possession, attachment, or other provision of device for decoding or intercepting transmission of subscription television service as punishable by fine and/or imprisonment and as creating liability for civil damages).
- Pub. Util. Code § 215.5 (cable television corporation defined).

The provision of channels of video services to residences is subject to Gov. Code § 53054 et seq. (Cable Television and Video Provider Customer Service and Information Act), and Gov. Code § 53088 et seq. (Video Customer Service Act).

A variety of California statutes governs the business of producing radio and television programs, including:

- Bus. & Prof. Code § 7319(c) (persons employed in radio and television production exempt from cosmetology licensing requirements).

- Bus. & Prof. Code § 14700 (filing of affidavit of authorship of radio script, radio program, or motion picture scenario with Secretary of State).

- Gov. Code § 14671 (leasing of state property for radio or television purposes when in state's best interest).

- Gov. Code § 26155 (conditions under which boards of supervisors may authorize contributions to nonprofit educational radio and television stations).

- Lab. Code § 271 (deposit of funds sufficient to pay wages of individuals employed in radio or television broadcasting enterprise).

- Lab. Code § 1308.5 (consent of Labor Commissioner required for employment of certain minors in radio broadcasting or television studio).

- Pub. Util. Code § 768.5 (authority of Public Utilities Commission to require health and safety measures of cable television corporations).

Statutes relating to defamation in broadcasts include Civ. Code § 48.5 (defamation by means of visual or sound radio broadcasts) and Civ. Code § 3425.3 (single publication of libel or slander in broadcast over radio or television).

Miscellaneous statutes relating to radio and television include:

- Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17531.6-17531.9 (injunctive relief by state against manufacturer, processor, or distributor of falsely labeled television picture tubes).

- Educ. Code §§ 33120, 41920, 51870-51879.5, 62000, 71035, 78311 (use of instructional television broadcasts or closed-circuit television programs in schools).

- Veh. Code § 27602 (no television sets permitted in motor vehicles forward of back of driver's seat or visible to driver when operating vehicle).

Chapter 484 RADIO AND TELEVISION
PART II LEGAL BACKGROUND

42-484 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 484.11

§ 484.11 Federal Regulation of Radio and Television

The federal government controls all channels of interstate and foreign radio transmissions. In addition, the federal government may grant licenses to individuals to use these channels to transmit radio communications for limited periods of time. The licenses granted to these persons do not create in them ownership rights in the radio channel. Rather, a license provides only for the use and operation of the channel by the licensee under the terms and conditions of the license [47 U.S.C. § 301]. Although not referring specifically to television, the federal regulation of radio applies equally to television [Standard Radio & Television Co. v. Chronicle Pub. Co. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 293, 296, 6 Cal. Rptr. 246] .

The federal statute controlling radio and television evidences a comprehensive federal scheme of regulation of the communications industry [R.E. Spriggs Co. v. Adolph Coors Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 653, 663, 112 Cal. Rptr. 585] . Insofar as the federal government fully occupies the field of radio and television regulation, that field is no longer open to the states [see City of Rancho Palos Verdes v. Abrams (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 367, 370, 376 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 80 (FCC license to amateur radio operator preempted injunction obtained by city to prohibit use of frequency); Standard Radio & Television Co. v. Chronicle Pub. Co. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 293, 300, 6 Cal. Rptr. 246] . Similarly, because a state may not do indirectly by judicial decree what it cannot do directly by legislation [Standard Radio & Television Co. v. Chronicle Pub. Co. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 293, 300, 6 Cal. Rptr. 246] and because the federal scheme of radio and television regulation necessitates uniform enforcement across thecountry [R.E. Spriggs Co. v. Adolph Coors Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 653, 663, 112 Cal. Rptr. 585] , a state court cannot enjoin television advertisements originating in, and transmitted from, another state but containing information contrary to local restrictions on advertisements [People v. Eller Telecasting Co. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 296, 302-303, 91 Cal. Rptr. 468 (overturning injunction that restrained Arizona television station from broadcasting advertisements giving prices for optical work contrary to California law prohibiting quotation of optical prices)].

A state antitrust law claim based on the Cartwright Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 16720 et seq., prohibiting "anticompetitive 'tying' practices"), which is brought by a customer of a cable television service against the cable television operator, is not preempted by provisions of federal statutes (47 U.S.C. §§ 521 et. seq., 541 et. seq.) regulating the cable television industry [Morrison v. Viacom, Inc. (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1514, 1517-1518, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544] .

[2] Restrictions on Antennas

Federal regulation preempts state and local restrictions, including zoning, land-use, or building regulations, to the extent they are unreasonable (as defined), that impair the installation, maintenance, or use of an antenna designed to receive any of the following [47 C.F.R. § 1.4000(a)]:

- Direct broadcast satellite service (if one meter or less in diameter).
- Video programming services via multipoint distribution services (if one meter or less in diameter).
- Broadcast television.

This preemption extends to private covenants, contract provisions, lease provisions, homeowners' association rules, or similar restrictions on property within the exclusive use or control of the antenna user if the antenna user has a direct or indirect ownership or leasehold interest in the property [47 C.F.R. § 1.4000(a)].

Narrowly drawn exceptions to the preemption allow some regulation for safety and in the case of prehistoric or historic districts, buildings, sites, structures, or objects included on or eligible for inclusion on the National Register of Historic Places [see 47 C.F.R. § 1.4000(b)].

A similar, somewhat less expansive, preemption applies to state or local zoning, land-use, building, or similar regulations that materially limit the transmission or reception by satellite earth station antennas [see 47 C.F.R. § 25.104; see also Hunter v. City of Whittier (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 588, 598-599, 257 Cal. Rptr. 559 (ordinance held invalid)].

Volume 42: Public Utilities thru Railroads-Chs. 480-485
Chapter 484 RADIO AND TELEVISION
PART II LEGAL BACKGROUND

42-484 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 484.12

§ 484.12 Contracts for Sale of Advertising Time

[1] Enforcement

Advertising time on radio and television is ordinarily an object of sale [see Barron v. Board of Dental Examiners (1930) 109 Cal. App. 382, 384-385, 293 P. 144 (radio advertisements by dentist not prohibited so long as advertisements not untrue)]. Because advertising time is an object of sale, actions may be brought by buyers and sellers of advertising time to recover money due under contracts for advertising time [see R.H. Macy & Co. v. Robinson (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 182, 184-188, 6 Cal. Rptr. 703 (action brought by seller of advertising time against sponsors and sponsor's advertising agent)]. For example, an owner of television and radio stations may recover the money due for the broadcast of advertising on his or her stations based on a modified written agreement with the sponsor's agent where the owner and the sponsor's agent had discussed each purchase of radio or television time and the sponsor had taken an active role in obtaining the advertisements [R.H. Macy & Co. v. Robinson (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 182, 189, 6 Cal. Rptr. 703] . For discussion, procedures, and forms for use in an action to recover money, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for; Ch. 8, Accounts Stated and Open Accounts ; Ch. 121, Common Counts ; and Ch. 140, Contracts .

[2] Unilateral Cancellation of Advertising Contracts

By canceling an advertising contract, a buyer or seller of advertising time subjects himself or herself to the damages that will compensate the other party for the breach [see Richardson v. Davis (1931) 116 Cal. App. 388, 390, 2 P.2d 860] . Furthermore, when an advertising contract has been unilaterally canceled, a radio or television station cannot continue to run the advertisement and thus increase the damages [see Early v. Santa Clara Broadcasting Co. (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 367, 371, 27 Cal. Rptr. 212 (finding, however, that buyer had not unilaterally canceled)]. In addition a buyer of advertising time may bring an action to restrain the broadcast of advertisements after having unilaterally canceled the contract [see Early v. Santa Clara Broadcasting Co. (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 367, 369, 27 Cal. Rptr. 212 (action by advertising agency to restrain radio and television stations from broadcasting advertisements under purportedly canceled contract between advertising agency and owner of stations)].

§ 484.13 Breach of Employment Contract

Employment contracts providing for fees or commissions have been found to be breached when an employer fails to pay a performer for reuse of videotape recordings [Bupp v. Great W. Broadcasting Corp. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 580, 584, 20 Cal. Rptr. 106 (reuse of commercial advertisements and announcements by staff television announcer) or televisionfilms [Brecher v. Gleason (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 496, 502-503, 103 Cal. Rptr. 831 (reuse of television series featuring comedian)]. A breach of employment contract is also found where an employer fails to pay its authorized agents any commissions or fees for services rendered [Brea v. McGlashan (1934) 3 Cal. App. 2d 454, 461-467, 39 P.2d 877 (refusal of radio station to pay commissions on advertising contracts that sales representative secured pursuant to oral agreement between the sales representative and the station's advertising manager); see Taylor v. Educational Broadcasting Corp. (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 680, 682-683, 94 P.2d 377 (no breach of agreement to pay commissions to radio advertising sales agent when agreement for commissions terminates and employer fails to renew based on agent's unsatisfactory performance)]. In addition, an employment contract is breached when an employer wrongfully discharges an employee [Mason v. Lyl Prod. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 79, 83-84, 69 Cal. Rptr. 769, 443 P.2d 193 (child actress wrongfully discharged when employer terminated employment after child disobeyed unreasonable order to remain on set of television series during lunch hour)].

For discussion, procedures, and forms for use in an action for breach of contract, see Ch. 140, Contracts . For discussion and forms for use in an action for breach of an employment contract, see Ch. 249, Employment Law: Termination and Discipline .

§ 484.14 Remedies for Breach of Employment Contract

[1] Right to Accounting

Ordinarily, an accounting is unnecessary between an employer and an employee. However, where the agreed payment to the employee consists of certain percentages of money that the employer receives and the employee does not know what moneys the employer has been paid as a result of the employee's efforts, an action for accounting is proper [Brea v. McGlashan (1934) 3 Cal. App. 2d 454, 460, 39 P.2d 877 (action for accounting to determine commissions due radio advertising sales agent for radio advertising contracts she procured)]. On the other hand, an action for accounting is improper when the amount sought by an employee is certain to his or her knowledge [Tostevin v. Douglas (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 321, 329-330, 325 P.2d 130 (contract to solicit and procure personnel and material for travelog television shows at fixed salary)].

For discussion, procedures, and forms for use in an accounting action, see Ch. 7, Accounting, Action for.

[2] Compensation After Wrongful Discharge

If an employee is wrongfully discharged, his or her remedy is an action for damages [Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. v. Bumgarner (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 331, 351, 17 Cal. Rptr. 171 ; see Mason v. Lyl Prod. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 79, 84-85, 69 Cal. Rptr. 769, 443 P.2d 193 (wrongful discharge of child actress compensated for in monetary damages)]. However, when an employer has not discharged an employee but merely has prevented the employee from working, the employee need not treat the employment contract as broken. Rather, he or she may sue on the contract and recover the agreed compensation, provided he or she stands ready, able, and willing to perform under the contract [Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. v. Bumgarner (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 331, 351, 17 Cal. Rptr. 171] . Thus, when an employer breaches a contract of employment, the employee has the right to declare the contract terminated but may not recover damages accruing after declaring the contract terminated [Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. v. Bumgarner (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 331, 351, 17 Cal. Rptr. 171 (actor quitting employment on television series after receiving notice of suspension of salary entitled to no more than salary due at time of his quitting)].

[3] Restoration to Position From Which Discharged

Ordinarily, an employer does not have the duty to provide work for his or her employee but is free to utilize the employee's services when and however he or she chooses so long as he or she pays the employee's salary. However, this rule does not apply where the employee's reputation will suffer if the employee is not allowed to practice his or her profession. In the latter situation, the parties to the employment contract are deemed to have contracted with the assumption that the employee would be given opportunities to exercise his or her abilities during a reasonable portion of the period of the contract [Colvig v. RKO General, Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 66-67, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473] . For example, a radio announcer is considered, under his or her contract, to have bargained for the acquisition of a reputation in the public eye, a reputation that appearing through the medium of radio would enhance and failing to appear would diminish [Colvig v. RKO General, Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 68, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473] . For this reason, a radio announcer wrongfully discharged is not only entitled to restoration of his or her position at the renumeration provided for that position but also is entitled to restoration of the duties and functions of the position of radio announcer [Colvig v. RKO General, Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 65, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473] .

§ 484.15 Restrictions on Employment of Minors

The Labor Commissioner must consent in writing to the employment of any minor under 16 years of age in any radio broadcasting or television studio [Lab. Code § 1308.5(a)(1)]. In addition, the Labor Commissioner must give written consent for any minor between the ages of eight and 18, already permitted employment by any state law as an actor, actress, or performer in a presentation in a radio broadcasting or television studio before 10:00 P.M., to continue his or her part in the presentation betweenthe hours of 10:00 and 12:00 P.M. [Lab. Code § 1308.5(a)(4)]. Any person, his or her agent, manager, superintendent, or officer, or any parent or guardian of a minor who employs, or permits the employment of, a minor in violation of the consent requirements outlined above is guilty of a misdemeanor. Failure to produce the written consent of the Labor Commissioner [see Lab. Code § 1308.6 (prerequisites for Labor Commissioner's consent)] is prima facie evidence of the illegal employment of any minor [Lab. Code § 1308.5(b)]. For discussion and forms for use in petitioning for approval of a minor's employment contract for artistic services, see Ch. 365, Minors: Contract Actions .

§ 484.16 Electronic and Appliance Repair Dealer Registration Law

[1] In General

The Electronic and Appliance Repair Dealer Registration Law [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 9800-9874] is designed to protect the public from fraudulent, incompetent, and elusive service dealers who in the past, by unprincipled operations, have imposed upon and swindled the public [see Packard-Bell Electronics Corp. v. Department of Professional & Vocational Standards (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 387, 389, 51 Cal. Rptr. 432] . The Law generally empowers the Director of Consumer Affairs to investigate, regulate, and discipline "service dealers" through the Bureau of Electronic and Appliance Repair, Home Furnishings, and Thermal Insulation, a bureau within the Department of Consumer Affairs, and the Chief of the bureau [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 9801(b)-(e), 9810; Packard-Bell Electronics Corp. v. Department of Professional & Vocational Standards (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 387, 389-390, 51 Cal. Rptr. 432 ; see also Civ. Code § 1793.03 (manufacturer's duty to supply replacement parts)].

[2] Regulation of "Service Dealers"

Insofar as the Electronic and Appliance Repair Dealer Registration Law (Bus. & Prof. Code § 9800 et seq.) affects television and radio repair dealers, "service dealers" are persons who, for compensation, engage in, or hold themselves out to the public as offering services in, the following businesses:

(1) Repairing, servicing, or maintaining an electronic set normally used or sold for personal, family, household, or home office use [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 9801(f)(1); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 9801(g), (n) ("equipment" and "video game" defined)];

(2) Installing, repairing, servicing, or maintaining equipment or a burglar alarm system for use in private motor vehicles [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 9801(f)(2)];

(3) Installing, repairing, servicing, or maintaining television or radio receiver antennas, rotators, and accessories or direct satellite signal receiving equipment located on or adjacent to a residence and not involving a function that is subject to and regulated under Bus. & Prof. Code § 7000 et seq. [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 9801(f)(3); see also Bus. & Prof. Code § 9801(j), (k), (l), (o) ("antenna," "rotator,"

"accessories" and "direct satellite signal receiving equipment" defined)]; or

These dealers are required, with certain specific exceptions [see Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 9802-9805], to register with the Bureau of Electronic and Appliance Repair and to pay the required fee for each place of business [16 Cal. Code Reg. § 2710] operated by them in the state [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9830]. Thus, it is unlawful for a person to act as an electronic repair dealer without being first registered and in possession of a currently valid registration [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9840]. Electronic repair dealers also are required to do the following:

(1) Record invoices describing all the work they do [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9842; 16 Cal. Code Reg. §§ 2723-2725];

(2) Return replaced parts to their customers [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9843; see People v. Regan (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 5-6, 157 Cal. Rptr. 62 (strict liability as imposed by Bus. & Prof. Code § 9843)];

(3) Prepare written estimates of work required for a specific job [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9844; 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 2722];

(4) Advise their customers in writing of the amount of the fee for determining the nature of the malfunction prior to a repair made in the residence, before removal of the consumer goods from the customer's residence, or on acceptance of the goods at the repair facility or registered location [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9844]; and

(5) Maintain records open to inspection by the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs or other law enforcement officers [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9847].

The charge for installation of any equipment subject to the requirements of the Repair Dealer Law must be given to the customer in writing prior to making the installation. Whenever the installation charge is included in the sale price of the item and is not separately stated or whenever the charge for installation is reduced as an incentive to effectuate the purchase and sale, the Bureau of Electronic and Appliance Repair may determine the reasonable charge attributable to the installation, for purposes of enforcement [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9844.1].

In addition, the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs may refuse to validate, or may invalidate, the registration of any dealer for the following acts or omissions of the dealer or of any employee, partner, officer, or member of the service dealer and related to the conduct of the dealer's business [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9841]:

(1) Making or authorizing an untrue or misleading statement or advertising [see 16 Cal. Code Reg. § 2720];

(2) Making a false promise likely to induce a customer to authorize repair, installation, service, or maintenance of a television or radio;

(3) Fraudulent or dishonest conduct;

(4) Incompetent or negligent conduct;

(5) Failure to comply with the Electronic Repair Dealer Registration Law;

(6) Willful departure from, or disregard of, accepted trade standards for good and workmanlike installation or repair;

(7) Conviction of a crime that has a substantial relationship to the qualifications, functions, and duties of the registrant;

(8) Commission of acts or crimes constituting grounds for denial of licensure under Bus. & Prof. Code § 480; and

(9) Holding, currently or in future, registration for the benefit of a former registrant whose registration has been suspended or revoked and who will continue to have some involvement in the business.

The Bureau of Electronic and Appliance Repair is instructed to design a sign which all service dealers must place conspicuously in their places of business. The sign must give notice to the public of mandated service standards and provide the telephone number of the bureau for inquiries or complaints [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9854].

[3] Regulation of "Service Contractors"

[a] In General

In 1993, the legislature adopted provisions that extended the Electronic and Appliance Repair Dealers Registration Law to service contractors as well as to service dealers [see Stats. 1993, ch. 1265, § 7]. These provisions were subject to repeal on January 1, 2003, but the legislature extended that date to January 1, 2008 [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.9; see also Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 9830.5, 9832.5(f), 9847.5, 9849, 9851 (related sections subject to repeal on January 1, 2008)]. It is unlawful for any person to act as a service contractor in California unless that person first registers with the Bureau of Repair Services in accordance with the provisions of the Repair Dealer Law and maintains a valid registration [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.1]. The service contract form to be issued by the service contractor must be filed with the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs by the service contractor before its use [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.3(a)].

"Service contractor" means either a service contract administrator or a service contract seller [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855(e)].

"Service contract seller" means a person who sells or offers to sell a service contract to a service contract holder [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855(c); see discussion in § 48.16[b]].

"Service contract" means a contract in writing to perform, over a fixed period or for a specified duration, services relating to the maintenance or repair of a set or appliance as defined by the Repair Dealer Law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855(a)].

"Service contract holder" means a person who purchases or receives a service contract from a service contract seller [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855(d)].

"Service contract administrator" means a person, other than a service contract seller or an insurer admitted to do business in California, who performs or arranges, or has an affiliate who performs or arranges, the collection, maintenance, or disbursement of money to compensate any party for claims or repairs pursuant to a service contract and who also performs or arranges, or has an affiliate who performs or arranges, any of the following activities on behalf of service contract sellers [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855(b); see discussion under § 484.16[2][d]]:

(1) Providing service contract sellers with service contract forms;

(2) Participating in the adjustment of claims arising from service contracts; or

(3) Arranging on behalf of service contract sellers the insurance required by law [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.2; discussion under § 484.16[2][c]].

Each service contractor must maintain records as required by the regulations adopted to carry out the provisions of the Repair Dealer Law for at least three years. The records must be open for reasonable inspection by the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs or other law enforcement officials [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9847.5].

A service contractor must comply with the provisions of the Civil Code governing (1) the making of a service contract in addition to or in lieu of an express warranty and (2) the requirements for home appliance or home electronic product service contracts [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.5; see Civ. Code §§ 1794.4, 1794.41]. For discussion of those provisions, see Ch. 500, Sales and Secured Transactions , Pt. III. When a service contract holder cancels a service contract in accordance with the provisions of the Civil Code governing the requirements for home appliance or home electronic product service contracts [see Civ. Code § 1794.41], and the refund due is not paid to the service contract holder or credited to his or her account within 30 days after the service contractor receives written notice of cancellation, the amount of the required refund or credit must bear interest, payable to the service contract holder, at the rate of 10 percent a year for each additional 30-day period or part of a 30-day period [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.6].

The Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs may refuse to validate, or may temporarily or permanently invalidate, the registration of a service contractor for any act, omission, or crime by the service contractoror any employee, partner, officer, or agent of the service contractor for any of the following reasons [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.7]:

(1) Any conduct that constitutes fraud or dishonest dealing;

(2) Conviction of a crime that has a substantial relationship to the qualifications, functions, and duties of a registrant under the Repair Dealer Law, in which event the record of conviction is conclusive evidence of it; or

(3) Assisting in or abetting the violation of, or conspiring to violate, any provision of, or any regulation adopted under, the service contractors law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.7; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855 et seq.].

The Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs may issue a citation to the service contractor for any of the following reasons [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.8(a)]:

(1) Failure to file a service contract form with the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs before its use [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.3(a)] or failure to comply with applicable provisions of the Civil Code concerning service contracts [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.5; Civ. Code §§ 1794.4, 1794.41].

(2) On a determination by the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs that the service contractor has committed a violation by either (a) making or authorizing statements or advertisements that are untrue or misleading or (b) making false promises of a character likely to influence, persuade, or induce a customer to purchase a service contract as provided by the Repair Dealer Law. A violation consists of a single publication or single course of conduct that is determined by the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs to be untrue or misleading.

The citation may contain an order of abatement and an order to pay an administrative fine assessed by the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.8(b)].

Each citation must be in writing and must describe with particularity the nature of the violation, including a specific reference to the provision of law determined to have been violated [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.8(b)(1)]. When appropriate, the citation must contain an order of abatement fixing a reasonable time for abatement of the violation [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.8(b)(2)].

A citation or fine assessment issued pursuant to a citation must inform the service contractor that if he or she desires a hearing to contest the finding of a violation, that hearing must be requested by written notice to the Bureau of Repair Services within 30 days after the date of issuance of the citation or assessment. If a hearing is not duly requested, payment of any fine does not constitute an admission of the violation charged. Hearings must be held pursuant to the Administrative Procedure Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.8(b)(3); see Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.]. For discussion of applicable hearing procedures, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication et seq.

In addition to requesting a hearing, the service contractor may request a citation review conference with the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs or his or her designee regarding the acts charged in the citation. A citation review conference must be requested by written notice to the Bureau of Repair Services within 20 days after the date of the issuance of the citation or assessment [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.8(b)(4)(A)].

The Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs or his or her designee must hold a citation review conference within 60 days from the receipt of the request. At the conclusion of the citation review conference, the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs or his or her designee must state, in writing, the reasons for his or her action and transmit a copy of his or her findings and decision to the service contractor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.8(b)(4)(B)].

The failure of a service contractor to pay a fine within 30 days after the date of assessment, unless the citation is being appealed, may result in disciplinary action being taken by the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs. When a citation is not contested and a fine is not paid, the full amount of the assessed fine must be added to the fee for renewal of the registration. A registration may not be renewed without payment of the renewal fee and fine [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.8(b)(5)].

When a citation includes an administrative fine, it must be issued in accordance with the following procedures. For the first, second, or third citation, the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs may assess an administrative fine [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.8(c)(1)-(3)]. For the fourth failure to file a service contract form with the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs before its use [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.3(a)] or failure to comply with applicable provisions of the Civil Code concerning service contracts [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.5; Civ. Code §§ 1794.4, 1794.41], during any two-year period, the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs may either assess an administrative fine or invalidate temporarily or permanently the registration of the service contractor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.8(c)(4)].

The expiration of a valid registration does not deprive the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs of jurisdiction to proceed with any investigation or hearing on a cease and desist order against a service dealer or service contractor or to render a decision invalidating a registration temporarily or permanently [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9849].

[b] Contract Sellers

Every service contract seller must file with his or her application for registration, and thereafter with his or her application for registration renewal, one of the following [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.3(c)]:

(1) A service contract reimbursement insurance policy [see discussion under § 484.16[2][c]];

(2) Evidence that his or her service contracts are administered by a service contract administrator who has obtained a service contract reimbursement insurance policy covering the seller's service contracts;

(3) Evidence of a funded account held in escrow equal to a minimum of 25 percent of the deferred revenues from the service contracts in force; or

(4) The most recent annual report on Form 10-K required by the Securities and Exchange Commission, reflecting a net worth greater than the sum of the deferred revenues from service contracts in force. (If the service contractor is a foreign corporation that files a comparable audited financial statement with its home government, the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs may deem that statement an acceptable substitute for Form 10-K.)

A service contract seller must not issue, sell, or offer for sale a service contract unless he or she complies with one of the following requirements [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.2(a)]:

(1) Obtains a service contract reimbursement insurance policy [see discussion under § 484.16[2][c]];

(2) Sells service contracts that are administered by a service contract administrator who has obtained a service contract reimbursement insurance policy covering the seller's service contracts;

(3) Maintains and annually verifies to the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs a funded account held in escrow equal to a minimum of 25 percent of the deferred revenues from the service contracts in force; or

(4) Files with the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs either: (A) The most recent annual report on Form 10-K required by the Securities and Exchange Commission, reflecting a net worth greater than the sum of the deferred revenues from service contracts in force. (If the service contractor is a foreign corporation that files a comparable audited financial statement with its home government or with the United States government, the director may deem that statement an acceptable substitute for Form 10-K); or (B) The most recent audited financial statement reflecting a net worth of not less than $100,000,000. The financial statement must be certified by a certified public accountant who is licensed in the state where the service contract seller maintains its principal place of business or the seller's state of domestic incorporation.

Nothing in the California Public Records Act requires disclosure of either (a) financial data contained in applications for registration, or registration renewal, as a service contractor filed with the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs for the purpose of establishing the service contractor's net worth or (b) financial data regarding the funded accounts held in escrow for service contracts held in force in California by a service contractor [Gov. Code § 6254(x); but see Gov. Code § 6254.7 (general exceptions)].

[c] Reimbursement Insurance

"Service contract reimbursement insurance policy" means a policy of insurance issued by an insurer admitted to do business in California providing coverage for all obligations and liabilities incurred by a service contract seller under the terms of the service contracts sold in California by the service contract seller to a service contract holder [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855(f)].

The policy must cover the obligations of the service contract seller under the service contracts sold during the period the policy is in force [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.4(a)]. The policy must either cover all service contracts sold or specifically cover all contracts sold to residents of California [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 9855(f), 9855.4(a)].

The policy must contain a provision under which the insurer must notify the Bureau of Repair Services in writing of the termination or nonrenewal of the policy [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.4(b)].

On the effective date of the termination or cancellation of a service contractor's policy, the registrations of the service contractors whose service contracts are covered by the policy are automatically suspended, unless the affected service contractors, before the date of the termination or cancellation of the policy, have either filed a new policy with the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs or otherwise met one of the requirements for dealing in service contracts [see Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.2; discussion under § 484.16[2][b]]. On receipt of a written request from the service contractor, the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs may delay the suspension of registration for no more than 60 days. Following the automatic suspension, an administrative hearing must be provided on written request to the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.4(c); see Gov. Code § 11500 et seq.]. For discussion of applicable hearing procedures, see Ch. 473, Public Agency Adjudication et seq.

[d] Contract Administrators

Every service contract administrator must file with the application for registration, and thereafter, with the application for registration renewal, a service contract reimbursement insurance policy [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.3(b)].

A service contract administrator must not administer service contracts sold in California unless a service contract reimbursement insurancepolicy covering the service contracts has been obtained [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855.2(b)].

A service contract administrator must not be an obligor on a service contract [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9855(b)].

[4] Remedies Under Law

On the application of the Director of the Department of Consumer Affairs, a superior court in the county in which a service dealer or contractor carries on business may issue an injunction or other order restraining the dealer or contractor's conduct that is in violation of the Electronic and Appliance Repair Dealer Registration Law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9851]. Furthermore, the Director accepts complaints from consumers [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9860] and either disposes of a complaint as not stating any violations by the dealer or contractor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9861] or advises the dealer or contractor of the complaint, allowing the dealer or contractor a reasonable opportunity to reply to the complaint before investigating the facts [Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 9862, 9862.5]. If the Director, after investigating the facts, determines that a violation is likely to have occurred, he or she may suggest measures to compensate the complainant for the damages suffered as a result of the violation. If the dealer or contractor is unwilling to abide by the Director's suggestion, the Director may investigate further and may institute disciplinary proceedings against the dealer or contractor [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9863]. Finally, any person who fails to comply with these provisions is guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable by a statutory fine or by imprisonment not exceeding six months, or both [Bus. & Prof. Code § 9850].

PART II LEGAL BACKGROUND

42-484 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 484.17

§ 484.17 Customer Service Standards of Cable Television Operators and Other Video Providers

[1] Adoption

The Cable Television and Video Provider Customer Service and Information Act (Gov. Code § 53054 et seq.) governs the establishment of customer service standards by cable television and video providers. Under the act, each cable television operator or video provider in the state is required to establish customer service standards [see Gov. Code § 53055].

The Video Customer Service Act (Gov. Code § 53088 et seq.) statutorily establishes customer service standards that cable television operators and other video providers are required to adopt [see Gov. Code § 53088.2]. Nevertheless, nothing in that act limits any power of a city, county, city and county, or video provider to adopt and enforce service standards andconsumer protection standards that exceed those established by the act [Gov. Code § 53088.2(q)].

The view of the Legislature in enacting customer service standards legislation is that the establishment and dissemination of customer service standards is one way to ensure that, in an unregulated environment, customers of cable and video providers get their money's worth for the services to which they subscribe [Gov. Code § 53054.1(a)].

For the purposes of Gov. Code § 53054 et seq., a "cable television operator" is the person or entity providing cable television services through a cable television system [Gov. Code § 53054.2(a)]. A "cable television system" is a community antenna television system, under common ownership and control, serving a franchise area or two or more contiguous or electronically connected franchise areas [Gov. Code § 53054.2(b)].

For the purposes of both Gov. Code §§ 53054 et seq. and 53088 et seq., a "video provider" is, with two exceptions, any person, company, or service that provides one or more channels of video programming to a residence, including a home, condominium, apartment, or mobilehome, when some fee is paid, either directly or as included in dues or rental charges, for that service, whether or not public rights-of-way are used in the delivery of the programming. A "video provider" includes, but is not limited to, a provider of cable television, master antenna television, satellite master antenna television, direct broadcast satellite, multipoint distribution service, and any other provider of video programming, whatever its technology [Gov. Code §§ 53054.2(c), 53088.1(a)]. The first exception is that, under the Video Customer Service Act, a mobilehome is not expressly listed as a residence to which a video provider provides channels of programming [see Gov. Code § 53088.1(a)]. The second exception is that, under the Video Customer Service Act, a video provider does not include a landlord providing only broadcast video programming to a single-family home or other residential dwelling consisting of four units or less [Gov. Code § 53088.1(a)].

[2] Installation, Disconnection, Service, and Repair

[a] In General

Each cable television operator or video provider must establish customer service standards regarding installation, disconnection, service, and repair obligations, as well as service call response time and scheduling [Gov. Code § 53055(a)].

Every video provider is required to render reasonably efficient service, to make repairs promptly, and to interrupt service only as necessary [Gov. Code § 53088.2(a)].

In the event of a complete outage in a customer's service, the provider isrequired to respond promptly. The response must occur within 24 hours of the reporting of the outage to the provider, except in situations beyondthe provider's reasonable control. The provider is deemed to have responded to a complete outage when a company representative arrives at the outage location with 24 hours and begins to resolve the problem [Gov. Code § 53088.2(g)].

[a1] Access to Property Owned by Party Other Than Occupant

Cable television companies do not have a First Amendment right to deliver their product to customers residing in property owned by third parties, because delivery is so intrusive as to constitute permanent physical trespass. Accordingly, connection of cable equipment amounts to a private taking in violation of the Fifth Amendment, for which a private entity has no power of eminent domain [Cox Cable San Diego, Inc. v. Bookspan (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 22, 26-32, 240 Cal. Rptr. 407 (preliminary injunction requiring access to property denied)]. There are no statutes granting cable companies a power of eminent domain nor can such a grant be implied from the statutes regulating cable television systems [Cox Cable San Diego, Inc. v. Bookspan (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 22, 27, 240 Cal. Rptr. 407] .

The legislative bodies of cities and counties (not cable television companies) are authorized to require developers, as a condition of a new subdivision map approval, to provide one or more appropriate cable television systems an opportunity to construct, install, and maintain equipment necessary to extend cable television services to each residential parcel in the subdivision [Gov. Code § 66473.3].

[b] Employee Identification

Each cable television operator or video provider must establish customer service standards regarding employee identification [Gov. Code § 53055(a)].

All video provider personnel contacting subscribers or potential subscribers outside the office of the provider are to be clearly identified as associated with the video provider [Gov. Code § 53088.2(b)].

[c] Telephone Availability

Each cable television operator or video provider must establish customer service standards regarding customer telephone and office hours [Gov. Code § 53055(b)].

All video providers are required to have knowledgeable, qualified company representatives available to respond to customer telephone inquiries Monday through Friday, excluding holidays, during normal business hours [Gov. Code §

53088.2(d)]. Additionally, all video providers must provide to customers a toll-free or local telephone number for installation, service, and complaint calls. These calls must be answered promptly by the video providers. The city, county, or city and county may establish standards for what constitutes promptness [Gov. Code § 53088.2(e)].

[d] Complaints

Each cable television operator or video provider must establish customer service standards regarding complaint procedures [Gov. Code § 53055(e); see Gov. Code § 53088.2(e) (phone numbers for complaint calls), discussed in § 484.17[2][b]].

[e] Billing

Each cable television operator or video provider must establish customer service standards regarding procedures for billings, charges, and credits, together with procedures for resolving billing disputes [Gov. Code § 53055(b),(e)].

All video providers must render bills that are accurate and understandable [Gov. Code § 53088.2(f)].

Every video provider must allow every residential customer who pays his or her bill directly to the video provider at least 15 days from the date the bill for services is mailed to the customer to pay the listed charges, unless otherwise agreed to under a residential rental agreement establishingtenancy. Customer payments are to be posted promptly [Gov. Code § 53088.2(i)].

In order to be able to charge fees for delinquent payment, a cable television operator must provide the consumer with written notice at or before the time the consumer enters into the initial agreement for services stating that it is the policy of the seller to impose a fee on delinquent accounts [Gov. Code § 53088.6(a)]. At least 10 days prior to the date a fee is imposed, the consumer must be warned on the face of a written notice of the late fee that will be imposed if a consumer's delinquency is not paid by a specified date certain [Gov. Code § 53088.6(b)]. The consumer's invoice must specify a due date that is not earlier than the tenth day of the service period for which the invoice is issued [Gov. Code § 53088.6(c)]. A fee may only be assessed no earlier than 27 days after the due date specified in the invoice [Gov. Code § 53088.6(d)] and on a balance due of at least $10 [Gov. Code § 53088.6(e)].

A delinquent account fee charged by a cable television operator generally may not exceed $4.75 [Gov. Code § 53088.7]. A fee to which the limitation applies is one "imposed upon a consumer's failure to make full and timely payment of periodic charges for those services," which must include any franchise fee paid by the operator on the delinquent account fee [Manibog v. MediaOne of Los Angeles, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1366, 1372, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 297 (operator's billing of $4.75 delinquent account fee and $0.24 franchise fee added to it to be paid to municipality violated delinquent account fee cap)].

[f] Refunds

Each cable television operator or video provider must establish customer service standards regarding refund procedures [Gov. Code § 53055(b)].

All video providers must issue requested refund checks promptly, but no later than 45 days following the resolution of any dispute and following the return of the equipment supplied by the provider, if service is terminated [Gov. Code § 53088.2(m)].

[g] Rate Increases and Channel or Programming Changes or Deletions

Each cable television operator or video provider must establish customer service standards regarding notice of the deletion of a programming service, the changing of channel assignments, or an increase in rates [Gov. Code § 53055(d)

].

All video providers must provide a minimum of 30 days' written notice before increasing rates or deleting channels. All providers must make every reasonable effort to submit the notice to the city, county, or city and county in advance of distribution of the notice to customers. The 30 days' notice is waived if the rate increases or channel deletions are outside the provider's control. In those cases, however, the provider must make reasonable efforts to provide customers with as much notice as possible [Gov. Code § 53088.2(h)].

[h] Termination of Service

Each cable television operator or video provider must establish customer service standards regarding procedures for termination of service [Gov. Code § 53055(c)].

No provider may terminate residential service for nonpayment of a delinquent account unless the provider furnishes notice of the delinquency and impending termination at least 15 days prior to the proposed termination. The notice must be mailed, postage prepaid, to the customer to whom the service is billed. Notice shall not be mailed until the sixteenth day after the date the bill for services was mailed to the customer. The notice of delinquency and impending termination may be part of a billing statement [Gov. Code § 53088.2(i)].

Every notice of termination of residential service for nonpayment of a delinquent account must include all of the following information [Gov. Code § 53088.2(j)]:

(1) The name and address of the customer whose account is delinquent;

(2) The amount of the delinquency;

(3) The date by which payment is required in order to avoid termination of service; and

(4) The telephone number of a representative of the provider who can provide additional information and handle complaints or initiate an investigation concerning the service and charges in question.

Service can only be terminated on days when the customer can reach a representative of the provider either in person or by telephone [Gov. Code § 53088.2(j)].

Any service terminated without good cause must be restored without charge for the service restoration. Good cause includes, but is not limited to, failure to pay, payment by check for which there are insufficient funds, theft of service, abuse of equipment or system personnel, or other similar subscriber actions [Gov. Code § 53088.2(k)].

[i] Disclosure of Customer Information

Video providers may not disclose the name or address of a subscriber for commercial purposes unrelated to the conduct of the business of the video provider (such as a commercial mailing list), without first notifying the customer. The notice, which may be separate or included in any other customer mailing, must clearly describe the customer's right to prohibit disclosure of personal information and the procedure for doing so [Gov. Code § 53088.2(o)].

[3] Annual Notice Describing Standards

[a] To Employees, Customers, and Local Governments

Each cable television operator or video provider must annually distribute to employees, to each customer, and to the city, county, or city and county in which the operator or provider furnishes service to customers a notice describing the customer service standards adopted under Gov. Code § 53054 et seq. New customers are required to be provided with this notice when service is initiated [Gov. Code § 53055.1(a)].

Additionally, at the time of installation, and annually thereafter, all video providers must provide to all customers a written notice of the programming offered; the prices for that programming; the provider's installation and customer service policies; and the name, address, and telephone number of the local franchising authority [Gov. Code § 53088.2(c)].

[b] To New Customers

The notice given to new customers under Gov. Code § 53055.1(a) must include, first, the operator's or provider's customer standards as adopted under Gov. Code § 53054 et seq. Second, the notice must include a listing of the services offered by the operator or provider that clearly describes all levels of service, including the rates for each level of service. Nevertheless, if this information is otherwise distributed to new customers on installation by the operator or provider, the information need not be included in the notice [Gov. Code § 53055.1(b)(1)]. Third, the notice must include the telephone number(s) through which customers may subscribe to, change, or terminate service; request customer service; or seek general or billing information [Gov. Code § 53055.1(b)(2)]. Finally, the notice must include a description of the rights and remedies that the operator or provider may make available to its customers if the operator or provider does not materially meet its customer service standards [Gov. Code § 53055.1(b)(3)].

[4] Annual Report on Meeting Standards

After the standards established under Gov. Code § 53054 have been in effect for one year, each cable television operator and video provider must report annually on its performance in meeting its customer service standards. This report must be included in the operator's or provider's annual notice distributed to employees, customers, and local governments [Gov. Code § 53055.2].

[5] Effect of Standards on Franchise or License Provisions

Nothing in Gov. Code § 53054 et seq. is to be construed to preempt the prerogative of a city, county, or city and county to enforce customer protection standards contained in a franchise or license granted to a cable television operator or video provider under Gov. Code § 53066.1 or that are otherwise authorized by law for other cable television operators or video providers [Gov. Code § 53055.3].

[6] Dispute Resolution

Disputes concerning the provisions of Gov. Code § 53088 et seq. are to be resolved by the city, county, or city and county in which the customer resides. For video providers under Gov. Code § 53066 (cable television systems to whom a franchise or license has been awarded by a city, county, or city and county), the franchising authority (that is, the city, county, or city and county that has awarded the franchise or license to the provider) must resolve disputes. All other video providers must register with the city in which they provide service or, if the customers reside in an unincorporated area, in the county in which they provide service. The registration must include the name of the company and its address, officers, telephone numbers, and customer service and complaint procedures. Counties and cities may charge these other providers operating in the state a fee to cover the reasonable cost of administering Gov. Code § 53088 et seq. [Gov. Code § 53088.2(p)].There appears to be no statutorily specified method that acity, county, or city and county must use in resolving disputes.

[7] Cumulative Remedies for Violation

Regardless of the availability of a dispute resolution mechanism on the part of the franchising authority for video providers governed by Gov. Code § 53066, or on the part of the city or county of service for video providers governed by Gov. Code § 53088.2(p), or of any other provision of law, Gov. Code § 53088.2 does not preclude a party affected by the statute from using any judicial remedy available to that party without regard to Gov. Code § 53088.2. Actions taken by a local legislative body, including a franchising authority, under Gov. Code § 53088.2 are not binding on a court of law. For this purpose, a court may conduct de novo review of any issues presented [Gov. Code § 53088.2(t)].

[8] Civil Penalty

[a] Failure to Distribute Notice Annually

The legislative body of the city, county, or city and county in which the cable television operator or video provider furnishes service to customers may, by ordinance, provide a schedule of penalties for the failure of the operator or provider annually to distribute notice describing its customer service standards to employees, customers, and local governments. The penalty is not to exceed $500 for each year in which the notice is not distributed to all customers [Gov. Code § 53056(a)].

The city, county, or city and county must give the operator or provider written notice of any alleged failure to distribute to all customers the annual notice before imposing any penalty. If the operator or provider distributes the notice to all customers within 60 days after receipt of notice from the local government, no penalty is to be imposed [Gov. Code § 53056(b)].

[b] Failure to Meet Standards

[i] Assessment Procedure

The legislative body of the city, county, or city and county may, by ordinance, provide a schedule of penalties for a video provider's material breach of any of the customer service requirements of Gov. Code § 53088.2 [Gov. Code § 53088.2(r); see Gov. Code § 53088.2(a)-(o) (customer service requirements, all discussed in foregoing sections)]. Nevertheless, no monetary penalties can be assessed for a material breach when the breach is out of the reasonable control of the provider [Gov. Code § 53088.2(r)]. A "material breach" is any substantial and repeated failure to comply with the consumer service requirements of Gov. Code § 53088.2 [Gov. Code § 53088.1(b)].

If the legislative body adopts a schedule of monetary penalties, prior to imposing a penalty, the city, county, or city and county must give the video provider written notice of any alleged material breaches of the consumer service requirements and allow the provider at least 30 days from receipt of the notice to remedy the specified breach [Gov. Code § 53088.2(s)(1)]. A material breach for the purposes of assessing penalties is deemed to have occurred for each day, following expiration of the time granted the provider in which to remedy the breach, that any material breach has not been remedied by the provider, irrespective of the number of customers affected [Gov. Code § 53088.2(s)(2)].

The penalty schedule is set forth in Gov. Code § 53088.2(r).

With respect to video providers subject to a franchise or license, any monetary penalties assessed will be reduced dollar for dollar to the extent any liquidated damage or penalty provision of a current cable television ordinance, franchise contract, or license agreement imposes a monetary obligation on the provider for the same customer service failures. In these cases, no other monetary damages can be assessed. Nevertheless, Gov. Code § 53088.2(r) does not affect the right of franchising authorities concerning assessment or renewal of a cable television franchise under the provisions of the Cable Communications Policy Act of 1984 (47 U.S.C. § 521 et seq.) [Gov. Code § 53088.2(r)].

PART II LEGAL BACKGROUND

42-484 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 484.18

§ 484.18 Liability of Cable Television Company for Service Delay

[1] Subscriber Notification Requirements

Cable television companies are required to inform their subscribers of the right to service connection or repair within a four-hour period if the presence of the subscriber is required. The company must inform the subscribers of this right by offering the four-hour period at the time the subscriber calls for service connection or repair. Whenever a subscriber contracts with a cable television company for a service connection or repair which is to take place at a later date, and the parties have agreed that the subscriber's presence is required, the cable company and the subscriber are required to agree, prior to the date of service connection or repair, on the time for the commencement of the four-hour period for the service connection or repair [Civ. Code § 1722(b)(1)].

[2] Small Claims Action for Damages

If the service connection or repair is not commenced within the specified four-hour period, except for delays caused by unforeseen or unavoidable occurrences beyond the control of the company, the subscriber may bring an action in small claims court against the company for lost wages,expenses actually incurred, or other actual damages not exceeding a total of $600 [Civ. Code § 1722(b)(2)].

Prima facie evidence of the time period specified for the commencement of the service connection or repair, as well as the time that the company or its agents attempted to make the service connection or repair, consists of logs and other business records maintained by the company or its agents in the ordinary course of business. These records are also prima facie evidence of a diligent attempt by the company to notify the subscriber in person or by telephone of a delay caused by unforeseen or unavoidable occurrences [Civ. Code § 1722(b)(4)].

[3] Defenses

No action will be considered valid if the subscriber was not present at the time, within the specified period, that the company attempted to make the service connection or repair or made a diligent attempt to notify the subscriber by telephone or in person of its inability to do so because of unforeseen or unavoidable occurrences beyond its control. If notification is by telephone, the cable television company or its agent must leave a telephone number for a return telephone call by the subscriber to the company or its agent, to enable the consumer to arrange a new two-hour period for service connection or repair [Civ. Code § 1722(b)(3)].

Other defenses to liability are as follows: (1) a diligent attempt was made to notify the subscriber of delay caused by unforeseen or unavoidable occurrences beyond the control of the company or its agents, and the company commenced service or repairs within a newly agreed upon two-hour period; or (2) the company or its agents was unable to notify the subscriber because of the subscriber's absence or unavailability during the four-hour period, and the company commenced service or repairs within a newly agreed upon two-hour period [Civ. Code § 1722(b)(5)].

Finally, no action will be considered valid against a cable television company pursuant to Civ. Code § 1722 if the franchise or any local ordinance provides the subscriber with a remedy for a delay in commencement of a service connection or repair and the subscriber has elected to pursue that remedy. If a subscriber elects to pursue his or her remedies against a cable television company under Civ. Code § 1722, the franchising, state, or local licensing authority will be barred from imposing any fine, penalty, or other sanction against the company, arising out of the same incident [Civ. Code § 1722(b)(6)].

[4] Waiver Void

Any provision of a delivery, service, or repair contract in which the consumer or subscriber agrees to modify or waive any of the rights afforded under Civ. Code § 1722 is void as contrary to public policy [Civ. Code § 1722(d)].

PART II LEGAL BACKGROUND

42-484 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 484.19

§ 484.19 Liability for Unauthorized Reception of Subscription Television Signals

Both state and federal law create civil and criminal liability for unauthorized interception of subscription television signals and for manufacturing, selling, or distributing devices to assist, or otherwise assisting, in unauthorized interception [47 U.S.C. § 605; Penal Code § 593e]. In the case of importation, manufacture and sale of devices, California law specifies that only products designed to decode, to descramble, to intercept, or otherwise to make intelligible any encoded, scrambled, or nonstandard signal are within the statutory prohibition [Penal Code § 593e(b),(g)]. Both California and federal law provide for injunctive relief [47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(3)(B); Penal Code § 593e(e)]. The civil remedies created by the federal statute may be enforced in California state courts [47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(3)(A); California Satellite Systems, Inc. v. Nichols (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 56, 66, 216 Cal. Rptr. 180 ; see California Satellite Systems, Inc. v. Benvenuti (9th Cir. 1985) 767 F.2d 1364, 1365 ; People v. Babylon (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 719, 723-724, 216 Cal. Rptr. 123, 702 P.2d 205 (describing method of transmitting subscription television programming)].

The California provisions do not apply to interception, or devices to aid in the interception, of unscrambled or unencoded microwave transmissions from a multipoint distribution service (hereinafter MDS) [People v. Babylon (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 719, 725-727, 216 Cal. Rptr. 123, 702 P.2d 205] . Civil liability for unauthorized use is the amount of the value of the connection and subscription service fees actually charged by the subscription television system for the period of unauthorized use [Penal Code § 593e(c)]. One of two statutory formulas may be elected by the subscription television system in an action for civil liability for importation, manufacture, sale, and distribution of decoding and descrambling devices; the damages may be increased by the court if the manufacturer's, importer's, or seller's violations were committed knowingly and willingly for the purpose of commercial advantage or private financial gain [see Penal Code § 593e(c)]. In addition, the prevailing party is entitled to costs and attorney's fees [Penal Code § 593e(d)].

47 U.S.C. § 605 protects unscrambled and uncoded MDS transmissions [California Satellite Systems, Inc. v Benvenuti (9th Cir. 1985) 767 F.2d 1364, 1367 ; California Satellite Systems, Inc. v. Nichols (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 56, 65-69, 216 Cal. Rptr. 180 (1984 federal amendment did not delete this protection)]. Nevertheless, an exception to liability exists for interception or assisting with interception of satellite cable programming for private viewing if the programming is not encrypted and no marketing system is established under which agents have been lawfully designated to authorize private viewing by individuals and under which authorization is available to the individual involved, or the individual involved has obtained authorization [47 U.S.C. § 605(b); see 47 U.S.C. § 605(d)(1),(3)].Alternative formulas for calculating civil liability are provided in the federal provisions; the formulas are the same for the importer, distributor, manufacturer, or seller as for the individual user [see 47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(3)(C)(i),(4)]. If the violation was committed willingly and for purposes of commercial advantage or private financial gain, the court may increase the award of damages to a specified maximum [47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(3)(C)(ii)]. If the violator was not aware and had no reason to believe his or her acts constituted a violation, damages may be reduced by the court [47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(3)(C)(iii)]. In addition, the prevailing party is entitled to costs and attorney's fees [47 U.S.C. § 605(e)(3)(B)(iii)].

§ 484.43 Decisions

[1] Breach of Employment Contract

Employment contract as breached when employer wrongfully discharges employee. Mason v. Lyl Prod. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 79, 83-84, 69 Cal. Rptr. 769, 443 P.2d 193

Employment contract for fees or commissions as breached when employer fails to pay performer for reuse of television films. Brecher v. Gleason (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 496, 502-503, 103 Cal. Rptr. 831

Employment contract for fees or commissions as breached when employer fails to pay performer for reuse of videotape recordings. Bupp v. Great W. Broadcasting Corp. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 580, 584, 20 Cal. Rptr. 106

No breach of agreement to pay commissions to radio advertising sales agent as found when agreement for commissions terminates and employer fails to renew based on agent's unsatisfactory performance. Taylor v. Educational Broadcasting Corp. (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 680, 682-683, 94 P.2d 377

Breach of employment contract as found when employer fails to pay its authorized agents any commissions or fees for services rendered. Brea v. McGlashan (1934) 3 Cal. App. 2d 454, 461-467, 39 P.2d 877

[2] Contracts for Sale of Advertising Time

Action brought by buyer of advertising time to restrain broadcast of advertisements after buyer's unilateral cancellation of contract. Early v. Santa Clara Broadcasting Co. (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 367, 369, 27 Cal. Rptr. 212

When advertising contract unilaterally canceled, radio or television station as not permitted to increase damages by continuing to run advertisements. Early v. Santa Clara Broadcasting Co. (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 367, 371, 27 Cal. Rptr. 212

Action brought by seller of advertising time against sponsors and sponsor's advertising agent. R.H. Macy & Co. v. Robinson (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 182, 184-188, 6 Cal. Rptr. 703

Owner of television and radio stations as recovering money due for broadcast of advertising on stations based on modified written agreement with sponsor's agent when owner and sponsor's agent had discussed each purchase of radio or television time and sponsor had taken active role in obtaining advertisements. R.H. Macy & Co. v. Robinson (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 182, 189, 6 Cal. Rptr. 703

In canceling advertising contract, buyer or seller of advertising time as subject to damages compensating other party for breach. Richardson v. Davis (1931) 116 Cal. App. 388, 390, 2 P.2d 860

Advertising time on radio and television as an object of sale. Barron v. Board of Dental Examiners (1930) 109 Cal. App. 382, 384-385, 293 P. 144

[3] Covenants Against Antennas

FCC regulation preempting local regulation of amateur radio antennas, 47 C.F.R. § 97.15 does not preempt judicial enforcement of private restrictive covenant forbidding construction of antenna. Hotz v. Rich (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1048, 1052-1056, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 219 (remanding for further equitable proceedings in which trial court could find covenant so unreasonable as to render it unenforceable)

Deed restriction in real estate subdivision prohibiting installation of outside television or radio antennas or other device for transmission or reception of television or radio signals does not unconstitutionally limit freedom of speech and is enforceable with respect to Citizens' Band Radio (CB) antenna. Conrad v. Dunn (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 236, 237-238, 154 Cal. Rptr. 726

[4] Electronic Repair Dealer Registration Law

Purpose of Electronic Repair Dealer Registration Law as protection of public from fraudulent, incompetent, and elusive service dealers and theirunprincipled operations. Packard-Bell Electronics Corp. v. Department of Professional & Vocational Standards (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 387, 389, 51 Cal. Rptr. 432

[5] Federal Regulation of Radio and Television Channels

Penal Code § 593e (regulating interception of over-the-air transmission by subscription television system made pursuant to authority granted by FCC, as does 47 U.S.C.S. § 605) held constitutional because it does not conflict with or stand as obstacle to accomplishment and execution of full purposes and objectives of Congress but merely prohibits same activity. People v. Patton (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 8 , 147 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 1, 194 Cal. Rptr. 759

Federal statute controlling radio and television as evidencing comprehensive federal scheme of regulation of communications industry. R.E. Spriggs Co. v. Adolph Coors Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 653, 663, 112 Cal. Rptr. 585

Federal scheme of radio and television regulation as necessitating uniform enforcement across country. R.E. Spriggs Co. v. Adolph Coors Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 653, 663, 112 Cal. Rptr. 585

State court as acting improperly in enjoining television advertisements originating in, and transmitted from, another state but containing information contrary to local restrictions on advertisements. People v. Eller Telecasting Co. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 296, 302-303, 91 Cal. Rptr. 468

Federal regulation of radio as equally applicable to television. Standard Radio & Television Co. v. Chronicle Pub. Co. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 293, 296, 6 Cal. Rptr. 246

Field of radio and television regulation as no longer open to states as result of federal government fully occupying field. Standard Radio & Television Co. v. Chronicle Pub. Co. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 293, 300, 6 Cal. Rptr. 246

State as unable to do indirectly by judicial decree what it cannot do directly by legislation. Standard Radio & Television Co. v. Chronicle Pub. Co. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 293, 300, 6 Cal. Rptr. 246

Wrongful discharge of child actress as compensated for in damages. Mason v. Lyl Prod. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 79, 84-85, 69 Cal. Rptr. 769, 443 P.2d 193

Accounting as unnecessary between employer and employee except where agreed payment to employee consists of certain percentages of money employer received and employee is without knowledge of what moneys employer has been paid as result of employee's efforts. Brea v. McGlashan (1934) 3 Cal. App. 2d 454, 460, 39 P.2d 877

Where employee's reputation is likely to suffer if employee is not allowed to practice profession, employment contract as deemed to be formed with assumption that employee to be given opportunities to exercise abilities during reasonable portion of contract period. Colvig v. RKO General, Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 66-67, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473

Radio announcer as deemed to have bargained for acquisition of reputation in public eye in employment contract with radio station. Colvig v. RKO General, Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 68, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473

Wrongfully discharged radio announcer as entitled to restoration of position at renumeration provided for position and restoration of duties and functions of position of radio announcer. Colvig v. RKO General, Inc. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 56, 65, 42 Cal. Rptr. 473

Wrongfully discharged employee as having remedy in action for damages. Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. v. Bumgarner (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 331, 351, 17 Cal. Rptr. 171

Employee prevented from working as able to sue on contract and recover agreed compensation if employee stands ready, able, and willing to perform under contract. Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. v. Bumgarner (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 331, 351, 17 Cal. Rptr. 171

When employment contract breached by employer, employee as having right to declare contract terminated but as unable to then recover damages accruing after declaring contract ter minated. Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. v. Bumgarner (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 331, 351, 17 Cal. Rptr. 171

Action for accounting as improper when amount employee seeks is certain to that employee's knowledge. Tostevin v. Douglas (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 321, 329-330, 325 P.2d 130

[7] Satellite Antennas

FCC regulation, 47 C.F.R. § 25.104, preempts local regulation of satellite television receiving antennas; local ordinance that did not take into account owner's rights to receive signals and did not enact specific screening or placement requirements for antennas, gives unduly broad discretion to local administrative officials. Hunter v. City of Whittier (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 588, 598-599, 257 Cal. Rptr. 559

[8] Subscription Television

[a] In General

Cable Communications Policy Act of 1984 (47 U.S.C.S. § 521 et seq.) authorizes Federal Communications Commission to preempt state regulation of quality of cable television signals by prohibiting enactment of local regulations that would establish complementary or additional technical standards, even when it is clearly possible for cable operator to comply with these standards in addition to federal standards. City of New York v. FCC (1988) 486 U.S. 57, 64-69, 108 S. Ct. 1637, 100 L. Ed. 2d 48

Cable television company denied franchise by city for lease of space on utility poles stated cause of action for violation of First Amendment rights if refusal to grant franchise to more than one cable company occurred when space on poles and economics of market demand would support more than one cable company in city. Los Angeles v. Preferred Communications, Inc. (1986) 476 U.S. 488, 106 S. Ct. 2034, 90 L. Ed. 2d 480, 487-488

New York statute requiring property owners to allow cable television hookups provided for taking of property without compensation and thus violated Fifth and Fourteenth Amendment rights when cable connection was permanent trespass. Loretto v. Teleprompter Manhattan CATV Corp. (1982) 458 U.S.419, 425-426, 435-436 , 458 U.S. 419, 102 S. Ct. 3164, 73 L. Ed. 2d 868 (remand to determine if fee payable by cable company to owner equaled value of property taken)

City and county are not required to grant cable franchise to every cable television company that applies. Pacific West Cable Co. v. City of Sacramento, Cal. (9th Cir. 1986) 798 F.2d 353, 355 on remand (E.D. Cal. 1987) 672 F. Supp. 1322

Penal Code § 593e as not applicable to unscrambled or unencoded microwave transmissions from multipoint distribution service. People v. Babylon (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 719, 725-727, 216 Cal. Rptr. 123, 702 P.2d 205

Gov. Code § 53088.7 prevents cable television operator from charging delinquency fee in excess of $4.75, irrespective of whether cable television operator designates part of that sum delinquency fee and part franchise fee. Manibog v. MediaOne of Los Angeles, Inc. (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1366, 1372, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 297

A phrase in Penal Code § 593d (unauthorized connection to cable television system), stating "person who violates," may not be construed to presuppose criminal conviction; civil liability is not conditioned on criminal liability. Heritage Cablevision of Cal., Inc. v. Pusateri (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 517, 522-523, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 191

Cable television company has no First Amendment right to deliver its product to customers because delivery is so intrusive, requiring permanent physical trespass; connection of equipment amounts to private taking, for which private entity has no power of eminent domain. Cox Cable San Diego, Inc. v. Bookspan (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 22, 26-32, 240 Cal. Rptr. 407

Denial of preliminary injunction to cable television company to allow it to reconnect subscribers at apartment complex, who had been disconnected by complex owner in breach of contract, was proper when money damages would be adequate, cable company had no First Amendment right to connect equipment, and intrusion would be more harmful to owner and competing cable company than exclusion would be to plaintiff. Cox Cable San Diego, Inc. v. Bookspan (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 22, 25-32, 240 Cal. Rptr. 407

Landowner's consent was not required before cable company installs equipment on telephone pole under lease from telephone company of portion of its easement; cable company's use was within scope of phone company's easement, which was apportionable. Salvaty v. Falcon Cable Television (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 798, 799, 212 Cal. Rptr. 31

[b] Taxation

Disseminators and subscribers of cable television service are engaged in protected First Amendment "speech" and therefore are entitled to protection, but tax that is not differentially burdensome is permissible. Leathers v. Medlock (1991) 499 U.S. 439, 111 S. Ct. 1438, 113 L. Ed. 2d 494, 502, 506-508 (upholding gross receipts tax on cable television even though satellite broadcast services were exempted); Sacramento Cable Television v. City of Sacramento (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 232, 237, 286 Cal. Rptr. 470 (upholding city utility users tax on cable television transmissions taxed in same category as telephone, gas, and electric utilities, even though other television and cable systems were not taxed)

[c] Unauthorized Reception of Signals

Injunction preventing members of general public from using microwave antennas and related equipment (which equipment can be used to unlawfully receive subscription television signals) must be tailored, if possible, so as not to infringe on legitimate uses of equipment. Premier Communications Network, Inc. v. Fuentes (9th Cir. 1989) 880 F.2d 1096, 1101

Unauthorized reception of unscrambled multipoint distribution service transmissions of subscription home television entertainment violated 47 U.S.C.S. § 605. Premier Communications Network, Inc. v. Fuentes (9th Cir. 1989) 880 F.2d

1096, 1099-1100

Prior to 1984 amendments, former 47 U.S.C.S. § 605 protected unscrambled and uncoded transmissions from multipoint distribution service. California Satellite Systems, Inc. v. Benvenuti (9th Cir. 1985) 767 F.2d 1364, 1367

Civil remedies created by 47 U.S.C.S. § 605 are enforceable in California state court. California Satellite Systems, Inc. v. Nichols (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 56, 66, 216 Cal. Rptr. 180

1984 amendments to 47 U.S.C.S. § 605 continue protection for unscrambled and uncoded multipoint distribution service transmissions. California Satellite Systems, Inc. v. Nichols (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 56, 65-69, 216 Cal. Rptr. 180

[2] Source of Form

This form of complaint is based on the findings in R.H. Macy & Co. v. Robinson (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 182, 187-188, 6 Cal. Rptr. 703 . In an action for damages for breach of written contract, the court found that a radio and television station owner had contracted with an advertising sponsor for commercial announcements on radio and television programs, that the contract had been modified in writing by both parties, that the radio and television station owner had rendered the service bargained for, and that the advertising sponsor had failed to pay the money due under the contract and modified contract [R.H. Macy & Co. v. Robinson (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 182, 184-188, 6 Cal. Rptr. 703] .

[3] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a radio or television broadcaster in attempting to recover money due from an advertising sponsor for commercial announcements broadcast for the sponsor pursuant to a written contract. The complaint prays for monetary damages [Civ. Code § 3300] with interest [Civ. Code § 3302].

[4] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- Capacities, residence, fictitious names, and agency of defendants (Paragraphs 1-3).
- Capacity of plaintiff as radio or television broadcaster (Paragraph 4).
- Formation of written contract for advertisements between plaintiff and defendant (Paragraph 5) [R.H. Macy & Co. v. Robinson (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 182, 187-188, 6 Cal. Rptr. 703] .
- An optional allegation of subsequent modification of contract by plaintiff and defendant (Paragraph 6) [R.H. Macy & Co. v. Robinson (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 182, 188, 6 Cal. Rptr. 703] .
- Plaintiff's full performance of its obligations under the contract and any modifications to the contract (Paragraph 7) [R.H. Macy & Co. v. Robinson (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 182, 188, 6 Cal. Rptr. 703] .
- The total amount due under the contract and any modifications to the contract (Paragraph 8).
- The amount due and unpaid by defendant with interest (Paragraph 9) [Civ. Code §§ 3300, 3302].

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action unless it is a limited civil case (amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less) and there is a municipal court in the county in which the action is brought [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases the caption must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000. When a limited civil case is brought in the superior court, the caption must also identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(8), (9)].

[6] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a) (section repealed January 1, 2006, unless a later-enacted statute deletes or extends repeal date)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[2] Source of Form

This form of complaint is based on the factual situation presented in Early v. Santa Clara Broadcasting Co. (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 367, 369-370, 27 Cal. Rptr. 212 . In that case, an advertising business entered into a contract with a radio station for commercials to be broadcast on the station over a specified period of time. When the advertising business canceled this contract, the radio station continued to broadcast the commercials and to charge the advertising business for the commercials broadcast in spite of the advertising business's requests that the broadcasts cease [Early v. Santa Clara Broadcasting Co. (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 367, 369-370, 27 Cal. Rptr. 212] . The trial court granted a preliminary injunction to the advertising business and the radio station immediately ceased broadcasting the commercials. Because it thought the radio station unlikely to recommence the broadcasts enjoined, the trial court denied the advertising business a permanent injunction [Early v. Santa Clara Broadcasting Co. (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 367, 372-373, 27 Cal. Rptr. 212] .

[3] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by an advertising sponsor to enjoin a radio or television station from continuing to broadcast or televise commercial announcements for the sponsor after the sponsor cancels its order for advertising. The complaint prays for a temporary restraining order [Code Civ. Proc. § 527], a preliminary injunction [Code Civ. Proc. § 527], and a permanent injunction [Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526].

[4] Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- Capacities, residence, fictitious names, and agency of defendants (Paragraphs 1-3).

- Capacity of defendant as radio or television broadcaster and plaintiff as advertising sponsor (Paragraphs 4, 5).

- An order plaintiff placed with defendant for commercials to be run on defendant's radio or television programs (Paragraph 6) [Early v. Santa Clara Broadcasting Co. (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 367, 369, 27 Cal. Rptr. 212] .

- Optional allegation of a modification in the order that plaintiff placed and defendant's acceptance of the modification (Paragraph 7) [Early v. Santa Clara Broadcasting Co. (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 367, 369-370, 27 Cal. Rptr. 212] .

- Plaintiff's notification to defendant of complete and immediate cancellation of plaintiff's order (Paragraph 8) [Early v. Santa Clara Broadcasting Co. (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 367, 370, 27 Cal. Rptr. 212] .

- Defendant's continuing to broadcast or telecast plaintiff's commercials and to charge plaintiff for such broadcasts or telecasts (Paragraphs 9, 10) [Early v. Santa Clara Broadcasting Co. (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 367, 370, 27 Cal. Rptr. 212] .

- Plaintiff's request that defendant cease broadcasting or telecasting the commercials and cease charging plaintiff for the broadcasts or telecasts after the date of cancellation of the order (Paragraph 11) [Early v. Santa Clara Broadcasting Co. (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 367, 370, 27 Cal. Rptr. 212] .

- Defendant's refusal to cease broadcasting or telecasting of plaintiff's commercials unless enjoined (Paragraph 12) [see Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 527].

- Plaintiff's lack of an adequate or available legal remedy (Paragraph 13) [see Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 527].

[5] Verification

Verification [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527].

If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary in order to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 92(b), 446] and precludes use of a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

Chapter 485 RAILROADS
PART I. SCOPE

§ 485.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses actions for damages for the personal injury or death of a railroad worker under the Federal Employers' Liability Act, and includes a form of complaint for use in a United States District Court [see § 485.120], forms of complaints for use in a California state court [§§ 485.121, 485.122], forms of allegations for use in conjunction with the complaints [see §§ 485.123 -485.128], and forms of affirmative defenses for use in an answer to the complaint [§§ 485.129, 485.130].

This chapter also discusses actions arising under state law against railroads for injuries to passengers and other persons, such as automobile occupants and railroad trespassers, who are not railroad employees. It includes a form of complaint for use by a passenger to recover for injuries suffered in boarding or alighting from a train [see § 485.150], a form of complaint and forms of complaint allegations for use by an automobile driver in an action arising from a collision with a train [§§ 485.151, 485.153-34], and a form of complaint for use by entitled persons in a wrongful death action involving a driver killed in a crossing collision [see § 485.152]. This part also includes forms of affirmative defense allegations based on comparative negligence [see § 485.155] and the plaintiff's status as a trespasser [see § 485.156].

For discussion and forms relating to actions against carriage of persons and freight generally, see Ch. 109, Carriers . PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

42-485 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 485.10

§ 485.10 Regulation of Railroads

Railroads are extensively regulated under federal and state law. Under federal law, the Surface Transportation Board [see 49 U.S.C.S. § 701 et seq. (provisions of the Interstate Commerce Act establishing the Surface Transportation Board); see also 49 U.S.C.S. §§ 10101-10102 (general provisions of the Interstate Commerce Act)] has exclusive jurisdiction over interstate rail transportation, as well as rail transportation between a state and a territory or possession or foreign country [49 U.S.C.S. § 10501(a)]. The Board has jurisdiction over intrastate transportation by rail when transportation is between two points in the same state, but part of the interstate rail network [49 U.S.C.S. § 10501(a)(2)(A)] and limited jurisdiction over intrastate rail transportation by common carriers [49 U.S.C.S. § 10501(b)]. Railroads are further regulated by railroad safety provisions of Title 49 [49 U.S.C.S. § 20101 et seq.].

Under state law, railroads that provide transportation of people or property and that are owned, operated, controlled, or managed by private corporations and persons, are public utilities subject to regulation by the Public Utilities Commission [Cal. Const. art. XII, §§ 1, 3, 4, 6; see, e.g., Pub. Util. Code §§ 451-632 (rights and obligations of public utilities), 701-880 (regulation of public utilities), 1201-1220 (railroad crossings), 2115 (violations regarding safety or condition of railroad cars or tracks), 7501-7705 (railroad corporations), 7801-7818 (street railroads)]. For discussion of public utilities in general and forms for use in proceedings before the Public Utilities Commission, see Ch. 480, Public Utilities .

B. Injuries to Employees

42-485 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 485.30

§ 485.30 Governing Law

The liability of a railroad employer engaged in interstate or foreign commerce for injuries sustained by its employees employed in that commerce is governed by the Federal Employers' Liability Act (FELA) (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60). Specific duties are imposed on these railroads by the Safety Appliance Act [49 U.S.C.S. §§ 20301-20306], the Boiler Inspection Act [49 U.S.C.S. §§ 20701-20703], and the Hours of Service Act [49 U.S.C.S. §§ 21101-21108; see also Temple v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 988, 990-991, 164 Cal. Rptr. 780] . Railroad workers' duties that are categorized as "maritime employment" for purposes of application of the exclusive remedies of the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act are governed by 33 U.S.C.S. § 901 et seq. and Chesapeake & Ohio Ry. Co. v. Schwalb (1989) 493 U.S. 40, 45-48, 110 S. Ct. 381, 107 L. Ed. 2d 278 .

Volume 42: Public Utilities thru Railroads-Chs. 480-485
Chapter 485 RAILROADS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Injuries to Employees

42-485 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 485.31

§ 485.31 California Law

California has enacted a number of statutes relating to employee injuries establishing various rights and obligations between employers and employees. The two major laws relating to such matters are the Workers' Compensation Law [Lab. Code §§ 3200-6002], and the Safety in Employment Law [Lab. Code §§ 6300-9061]. Lab. Code §§ 6800-7000 specifically regulate the working conditions and safety devices in state railway operations [see Lab. Code §§ 6302(d), 6800 (administration of safety laws enacted for protection of railroad employees delegated to Division of Occupational Safety and Health, Department of Industrial Relations)]. Other state regulation includes Lab. Code §§ 600-607 (work hours of train workers) and Pub. Util. Code §§ 7676-7681 (acts with respect to railroad operations constituting crimes).

The Workers' Compensation Law and the Safety in Employment Law do not apply, however, to employers or employments that are so engaged in interstate commerce as not to be subject to the legislative power of California, or to employees injured while they are so engaged, except insofar as they are permitted to apply under the Constitution or laws of the United States [Lab. Code § 3203]. Rather, the rights and obligations of these employers and employees are governed by the Federal Employers' Liability Act [45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60] and related statutes. To the extent the federal laws apply, they provide the exclusive remedy for the injury or death of a railroad employee [see § 485.83[2][j]]. In such cases, California's workers' compensation law does not apply, and the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board has no jurisdiction over a claim against the employer arising from the injury or death of the employee. This is so, even though the railroad is engaged in both interstate and intrastate commerce, because, if interstate business is clearly a part of the subject to be legislated, the fact that intrastate commerce may be interwoven with it does not prevent Congress from exercising its powers [see Southern Pac. Co. v. Industrial Accident Comm'n (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 271, 279-281, 120 P.2d 880 ; Northwestern Pac. R.R. Co. v. Industrial Accident Comm'n (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 367, 370-377, 166 P.2d 334] .

To the extent the federal laws do not apply, as for example if the railroad is wholly intrastate, the rights of railroad employees or their dependents for injury or death arising out of and in the course of the employment are governed by the California Workers' Compensation Law [see Lab. Code §§ 3200-6002]. For procedure and forms for use by an injured worker or by a deceased worker's dependents in claiming compensation benefits under California's Workers'Compensation Law, see Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation . Insofar as an employee of an interstate railroad is concerned, however, the situations in which the Federal Employers' Liability Act would not apply are rare [see § 485.33].

42-485 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 485.32

§ 485.32 Federal Employers' Liability Act (FELA)

[1] Basis of Liability

The Federal Employers' Liability Act (FELA) [45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60] provides that a common carrier by railroad engaged in interstate or foreign commerce is liable in damages for an employee injured or killed while employed by the carrier in such commerce as a result in whole or in part of the negligence of the railroad or its employees or by reason of any defect or insufficiency in its cars, engines, appliances, machinery, track, roadbed, works, boats, wharves, or other equipment due to its negligence [45 U.S.C.S. § 51]. The term "common carrier by railroad" means one who operates a railroad as a means of carrying persons or property for the public, that is, a railroad company acting as a common carrier [Wells Fargo & Co. v. Taylor (1920) 254 U.S. 175, 187, 41 S. Ct. 93, 65 L. Ed. 205 ; Aguirre v. Southern Pac. Co. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 636, 644, 43 Cal. Rptr. 73] . The term "common carrier," as used in the FELA, includes a receiver or other person or corporation charged with the management and operation of the carrier's business [45 U.S.C.S. § 57; see Eddings v. Collins Pine Co. (N.D. Cal. 1956) 140 F. Supp. 622, 626] .

Under the FELA, liability for negligence attaches if the railroad knew or by the exercise of due care should have known of the danger or risk to an employee [Urie v. Thompson (1949) 337 U.S. 163, 178, 69 S. Ct. 1018, 93 L. Ed. 1282 ; Erskine v. Consolidated Rail Corp. (6th Cir. 1987) 814 F.2d 266, 273] . The employer's liability is determined in a civil action filed in a trial court [see 45 U.S.C.S. § 56; see also §§ 485.37, 485.39, 485.120 -485.122]. The FELA contains no provision subrogating a railroad employer to the employee's rights as against any allegedly negligent third party. An employer found liable under the FELA and the third party are joint tortfeasors [Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. Ohbayashi Am. Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 233, 237, 195 Cal. Rptr. 63 ; see § 485.47].

[2] Enactment and Purpose

The FELA was enacted in 1906 to create a tort remedy for railroad workers injured on the job. Its main purpose was to enable injured railroad workers to overcome a number of traditional defenses to tort liability that had previously operated to bar their actions, including contributory negligence, contractual waiver of liability, the fellow-servant rule, and assumption of the risk [Lewy v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (9th Cir. 1986) 799 F.2d 1281, 1287 ; see § 485.42; see also Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Buell (1987) 480 U.S. 557, 561, 107 S. Ct. 1410, 94 L. Ed. 2d 563] . The act "was designed to put on the railroad industry some of the cost for the legs, eyes, arms, and lives which it consumed in its operations" [Wilkerson v. McCarthy (1949) 336 U.S. 53, 68, 69 S. Ct. 413, 93 L. Ed. 497 (Douglas, J., concurring); see Eckert v. Aliquippa & S. R.R. Co. (3d Cir. 1987) 828 F.2d 183, 186] .

[3] Rule of Liberal Construction

The FELA was passed in response to the special needs of railroad workers and must be construed liberally for their protection [Lewy v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (9th Cir. 1986) 799 F.2d 1281, 1287-1288 ; see Urie v. Thompson (1949) 337 U.S. 163, 182 n. 20, 69 S. Ct. 1018, 93 L. Ed. 1282); Temple v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 988, 992, 164 Cal. Rptr. 780] . Thus, to read into the all-inclusive wording of the act a restriction as to the kinds of employees covered, the degree of negligence required, or the particular sorts of harms inflicted, would contradict the wording, the remedial and humanitarian purpose, and the constant and established course of liberal construction of the act followed by the Supreme Court of the United States [Urie v. Thompson (1949) 337 U.S. 163, 181-182, 69 S. Ct. 1018, 93 L. Ed. 1282 ; see Lewy v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (9th Cir. 1986) 799 F.2d 1281, 1288 ; McMillan v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 841, 843-844, 9 Cal. Rptr. 361, 357 P.2d 449] .

[4] Exclusivity of Remedy

The FELA provides a uniform rule of liability throughout all the states and supersedes state law relating to the liability of carriers by rail engaged in interstate or foreign commerce [Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. Co. v. Coogan (1926) 271 U.S. 472, 474, 46 S. Ct. 564, 70 L. Ed. 1041 ; Davee v. Southern Pac. Co. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 572, 576, 25 Cal. Rptr. 445, 375 P.2d 293] . When a railroad employee [see § 485.33] is injured or killed in such commerce, the FELA provides the only remedy for that employee, or, in the event of the employee's death, for his or her personal representative, and this is true even though the employer may not be liable under the FELA because the injury or death did not result from the employer's negligence [New York Cent. R.R. Co. v. Winfield (1917) 244 U.S. 147, 148-154, 37 S. Ct. 546, 61 L. Ed. 1045 ; see Erie R.R. Co. v. Winfield (1917) 244 U.S. 170, 172-174, 37 S. Ct. 556, 61 L. Ed. 1057] .

[5] California's Workers' Compensation Law Compared

Under state workers' compensation law [see § 485.31], an injured employee, or the employee's dependents in the event of the employee's death, is entitled to recover workers' compensation benefits for a work-related injury without regard to the negligence of any person [see Lab. Code § 3600]; hence, fault is not an issue in the determination of the employer's liability. There is no right to a trial by jury, and proceedings to establish rights to benefits are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board, a tribunal established for that purpose, subject to judicial review [see Lab. Code §§ 111, 3600,5300-5305, 5950]. Moreover, an employer who pays compensation benefits is subrogated to the employee's cause of action against any third-party tortfeasor to the extent of the payment made, subject to the rules of comparative negligence [see Lab. Code §§ 3850-3864]. For further discussion and forms, see Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Injuries to Employees

42-485 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 485.33

§ 485.33 Determining Employer-Employee Status

Liability under the FELA is premised on the injured person's status as one who is an "employee" of a railroad engaged in interstate commerce and who is injured while "employed" in such commerce [see 45 U.S.C.S. § 51 see also §§ 485.32[1], 485.35]. The words "employee" and "employed" are used in 45 U.S.C.S. § 51 in their natural sense and are intended to describe the conventional relation of employer and employee, and do not include, for example, everyone who may work on or around a train. At the time the FELA was enacted, it was well known that on interstate trains there were persons engaged in various services for employers other than the railroad, and Congress, familiar with this situation, did not use any appropriate expression which could be taken to indicate a purpose to include such persons among those to whom the railroad company was to be liable under the act [Robinson v. Baltimore & Ohio R.R. Co. (1915) 237 U.S. 84, 94, 35 S. Ct. 491, 59 L. Ed. 849 ; Aguirre v. Southern Pac. Co. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 636, 644, 43 Cal. Rptr. 73] .

Thus, the question of employment is to be determined by reference to common law principles [Kelley v. Southern Pac. Co. (1974) 419 U.S. 318, 323, 95 S. Ct. 472, 42 L. Ed. 2d 498] . In this connection, Restatement (Second) of Agency §§ 5(2), 220, 226, and 227, concerning the general master-servant relationship and the borrowed-servant doctrine, have been used as a guideline for analysis and proper jury instructions [Kelley v. Southern Pac. Co. (1974) 419 U.S. 318, 323-324, 95 S. Ct. 472, 42 L. Ed. 2d 498] .

In the case of a three-way relationship between two employers, one of which is a railroad, and a worker, there are, under common law principles, basically three ways a worker can establish "employment" with a rail carrier for FELA purposes even while nominally employed by the other employer. In such a case, the worker may show that he or she was (1) serving as the borrowed servant of the railroad at the time of injury [see Restatement (Second) of Agency § 227]; (2) acting for the two employers simultaneously [see Restatement (Second) of Agency § 226)]; or (3) acting as a subservant of a company that was in turn a servant of the railroad [Kelley v. Southern Pac. Co. (1974) 419 U.S. 318, 324, 95 S. Ct. 472, 42 L. Ed. 2d 498 ; see also Restatement (Second) of Agency § 5(2)].

B. Injuries to Employees

42-485 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 485.34

§ 485.34 Duty of Care Under FELA

[1] Employee

An employee subject to the FELA has a duty to use reasonable care in the workplace [Ackley v. Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co. (8th Cir. 1987) 820 F.2d 263, 267] .

[2] Employer

The FELA does not contain any specific standards of care. Nevertheless, certain employer duties have become integral parts of the act. For example, a railroad has a duty to use reasonable care in furnishing its employees with a safe place to work [Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Buell (1987) 480 U.S. 557, 568, 107 S. Ct. 1410, 94 L. Ed. 2d 563 ; Ackley v. Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co. (8th Cir. 1987) 820 F.2d 263, 266 n. 5]. Other duties include (1) the duty to provide reasonably safe tools and equipment, (2) the duty to promulgate and enforce safety rules, (3) the duty to assign workers to jobs for which they are qualified and to avoid placing workers in jobs beyond their physical capacity, (4) the duty to warn employees of unsafe working conditions, (5) the duty to protect an employee from intentional torts committed by another employee, and (6) the duty to guard against conditions in the workplace that cause emotional harm [Ackley v. Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co. (8th Cir. 1987) 820 F.2d 263, 266 n. 5]. The duties are nondelegable and become more imperative as the risk to the employee increases [Ackley v. Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co. (8th Cir. 1987) 820 F.2d 263, 267] . Thus negligence may be proved by showing that the railroad's act violated, for example, its duty to use reasonable care in furnishing its employees with a safe place to work and safe tools and appliances with which to work [Spencer v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 490, 494, 207 P.2d 126] .

An employer's duty of care in a FELA action turns in a general sense on the reasonable foreseeability of harm. The employer's conduct is measured by the degree of care that persons of ordinary, reasonable prudence would use under similar circumstances and by what these same persons would anticipate as resulting from a particular condition. The continuous duty to provide a reasonably safe place to work, however, while measured by foreseeability standards, is broader under the FELA than a general duty of due care [Ackley v. Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co. (8th Cir. 1987) 820 F.2d 263, 267] .

[3] Assumption That Employees Will Exercise Care

The right to assume that others will exercise ordinary care derives from the corresponding duty of care imposed by law on every person. Thus, as a general proposition, one may assume that others will act lawfully and carefully. But the right to assume another's lawful or careful behavior sometimes reflects neither reality nor the facts in a case. It does not, for example, when the facts in a specificcase would show to a reasonable person in the actor's position that another person will probably disobey the law this time. Moreover, because the assumption has often been applied rather mechanically, without any real regard to the factual probabilities of the situation, the trend has been the increasing liberalization in allowing the wrongs of other persons to be regarded as foreseeable. As the risk of harm to such other persons becomes more foreseeable, the duty to foresee that risk increases and the right to assume that the other persons will exercise due care correspondingly decreases [Ackley v. Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co. (8th Cir. 1987) 820 F.2d 263, 267-268] . For example, a railroad has the duty to promulgate and enforce safety rules, and evidence of its failure to do so may be considered by the jury in assessing the employer's negligence; conversely, an employee's failure to obey safety rules may be considered by the jury in assessing contributory negligence. Consequently, a jury instruction in a FELA case that defendant railroad "has a right to assume that its employees will exercise reasonable care for their own safety and that they will not disobey safety rules and practices" is prejudicial error when it negates the railroad's duty reasonably to foresee that an employee would perform his or her work under unsafe conditions. This is particularly true when the railroad has knowledge that its employees are violating a safety regulation, does nothing to remedy a potentially unsafe working condition, and could reasonably foresee that the regulation would continue to be violated by the employee who was injured by the violation [Ackley v. Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co. (8th Cir. 1987) 820 F.2d 263, 268-269 (reversing judgment for the railroad because of the prejudicially erroneous instruction and remanding the cause for a new trial)].

42-485 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 485.35

§ 485.35 Requirements for Recovery in FELA Action

[1] Employment in Interstate Commerce

Under the FELA, any employee of a carrier engaged in interstate or foreign commerce is considered to be employed by the carrier and entitled to the benefits of the act if any part of the employee's duties is the furtherance of that commerce or in any way directly or closely and substantially affects that commerce [45 U.S.C.S. § 51; see Aranda v. Southern Pac. Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 543, 544-545, 282 P.2d 875 , aff'd, 351 U.S. 493, 76 S. Ct. 952 (1956)] . Hence, the claimant will need to show that at least a part of the employee's duties was in the furtherance of that commerce or that the employee's duties directly or closely and substantially affected that commerce. When more than one inference can be drawn from the evidence, the question whether an employee was engaged in interstate commerce at the time of the injury sued for is a question for the jury [Sullivan v. Matt (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 134, 139, 278 P.2d 499] .

[2] Negligence (Breach of Duty)

Under the FELA, the employer is liable for the injury or death of an employee resulting in whole or in part from the employer's negligence, and proof of this negligence is essential to recovery [Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. Co. v. Coogan (1926) 271 U.S. 472, 474, 46 S. Ct. 564, 70 L. Ed. 1041 ; Davee v. Southern Pac. Co. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 572, 576, 25 Cal. Rptr. 445, 375 P.2d 293] . The employer is not an insurer of the employee's welfare; in an action under the FELA, the claimant has the burden of proving the employer's negligence and the railroad is not required to produce evidence to show that it was free from negligence [see Lewis v. Union Pac. R.R. Co. (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 280, 283, 273 P.2d 706 ; Spencer v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 490, 494, 207 P.2d 126] . In order to recover, the claimant must prove that the employee's injury was caused at least in part as a result of the employer's negligence, although that degree of negligence may be slight [see 45 U.S.C.S. § 51; Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. Ohbayashi Am. Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 233, 237, 195 Cal. Rptr. 63 ; Baez v. Southern Pac. Co. (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 714, 717, 26 Cal. Rptr. 899] .

The fact that a third person's negligence was a contributing cause is immaterial so long as the injury was caused in part by the railroad's negligence [see Farnsworth v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 476, 482, 50 Cal. Rptr. 646] . The test of the employer's liability is whether the employer used ordinary care in regard to the risk to the employee [Baez v. Southern Pac. Co. (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 714, 717, 26 Cal. Rptr. 899] . In the absence of negligence, there is no liability [Baez v. Southern Pac. Co. (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 714, 717, 26 Cal. Rptr. 899] .

Notwithstanding these rules, an employer may be liable apart from negligence when the injury resulted from its breach of a statutory duty. That is, under federal decisional law, negligence under the FELA has been equated with "fault," which may consist of a breach of either the duty of care (negligence), analogous but by no means identical to the general common-law duty, or of a statutory duty (resulting in absolute liability) [see Kernan v. American Dredging Co. (1958) 355 U.S. 426, 432, 78 S. Ct. 394, 2 L. Ed. 2d 382 ; see also § 485.45].

Moreover, the FELA has been construed to cover at least some intentional torts as well as negligent acts [see Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Buell (1987) 480 U.S. 557, 562 n.8, 107 S. Ct. 1410, 94 L. Ed. 2d 563 , citing cases; Lewy v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (9th Cir. 1986) 799 F.2d 1281, 1288] .

Whether an act was performed, or tort committed in the scope of one's employment will depend on all the facts and circumstances of the case and on the reasonable inferences that may be drawn from them [Temple v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 988, 995, 164 Cal. Rptr. 780] . Whether theact was or was not within the employment's scope is ordinarily a question of fact for the jury's determination [Temple v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 988, 995, 164 Cal. Rptr. 780 ; Sullivan v. Matt (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 134, 139, 278 P.2d 499] .

[3] Injuries Covered

When the FELA was enacted, Congress's attention was focused primarily on injuries and death resulting from accidents on interstate railroads [see §§ 485.120, 485.121]. Nevertheless, the FELA, on its face, is not limited to accidents, but covers every injury suffered by an employee while employed by reason of the carrier's negligence [Urie v. Thompson (1949) 337 U.S. 163, 181, 69 S. Ct. 1018, 93 L. Ed. 1282 ; see Lewy v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (9th Cir. 1986) 799 F.2d 1281, 1288 ; McMillan v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 841, 843, 9 Cal. Rptr. 361, 357 P.2d 449] . Thus, the concept of "injury" under the FELA is extremely broad and encompasses all reasonably foreseeable injuries that result from a railroad's failure to exercise due care with respect to its employees [Buell v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 771 F.2d 1320, 1322 , vacated on another point in Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Buell (1987) 480 U.S. 557, 107 S. Ct. 1410, 94 L. Ed. 2d 563 ; see §§ 485.122, 485.123 -485.126].

In Urie, the Supreme Court held that the FELA covered industrial, or occupational, disease (silicosis) as well as accidental injuries [Urie v. Thompson (1949) 337 U.S. 163, 180, 69 S. Ct. 1018, 93 L. Ed. 1282 ; see § 485.124 (skin infection)]. In McMillan, coverage was extended to a worker's nervous breakdown caused by the employer's negligently requiring him to work under conditions (of severe stress) likely to bring about harmful consequences [McMillan v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 841, 844, 9 Cal. Rptr. 361, 357 P.2d 449 ; see § 485.123].

The United States Supreme Court has not yet ruled, however, on the question of whether the FELA imposes liability on a railroad for purely mental or emotional injuries to a worker. In Buell v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 771 F.2d 1320, 1322-1323 , relying in part on McMillan v. Western P. R. Co. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 841, 9 Cal. Rptr. 361, 357 P.2d 449 , the Ninth Circuit answered this question in the affirmative, but the Supreme Court vacated the Buell decision on this point on the ground that the record was insufficient to express an opinion on the worker's ultimate chance of recovery under the FELA on his emotional injury claim. The Supreme Court did suggest that the question whether one can recover for emotional injury may not be susceptible to an all-inclusive yes or no answer and that broad pronouncements in this area may have to bow to the precise application of developing legal principles to particular fact situations [see Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Buell (1987) 480 U.S. 557, 568-570, 107 S. Ct. 1410, 94 L. Ed. 2d 563] .

[4] Causation

The claimant has the burden of proving that the employer's negligence was the proximate cause of the employee's injury or death [Spencer v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 490, 494, 207 P.2d 126] . However, the employee need not prove that the employer's negligence was the sole proximate cause; the railroad is liable for an injury to an employee even though its negligence was only a contributing proximate cause [Lewis v. Union Pac. R.R. Co. (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 280, 283-284, 273 P.2d 706] . Thus, liability under the FELA does not depend on the common law concept of proximate cause, that is, a cause that produces injury in a natural and continuous sequence unbroken by any efficient intervening cause, without which the result would not have occurred. In FELA cases, causation exists even if there is a plurality of causes, including the negligence of the defendant or of a third person. The negligence of the employer need not be the sole cause or even a substantial cause of the ensuing injury [Parker v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 675, 678, 70 Cal. Rptr. 8 (involving proper jury instruction on proximate causation in FELA case); see Torres v. Southern Pac. Co. (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 757, 764, 67 Cal. Rptr. 428] . With respect to causation, the test of a jury case under the FELA is simply whether the proofs justify with reason the conclusion that employer negligence played even the slightest part in producing the injury or death for which damages are sought [Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Buell (1987) 480 U.S. 557, 562 n.8, 107 S. Ct. 1410, 94 L. Ed. 2d 563 ; Rogers v. Missouri Pac. R.R.Co. (1957) 352 U.S. 500, 506, 77 S. Ct. 443, 1 L. Ed. 2d 493] . If they do, the judge must find that a jury case exists despite the possibility that from the evidence the jury may also reasonably attribute the results to other causes on grounds of probability, including the employee's contributory negligence [Rogers v. Missouri Pac. R.R.Co. (1957) 352 U.S. 500, 507, 77 S. Ct. 443, 1 L. Ed. 2d 493 ; see Parker v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 675, 677, 70 Cal. Rptr. 8 ; Waller v. Southern Pac. Co. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 201, 212-213, 57 Cal. Rptr. 353, 424 P.2d 937] .

The question as to whether the railroad's negligence was the proximate cause of the injuries sustained is for the jury's determination [Qualls v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1931) 112 Cal. App. 7, 13, 296 P. 645] . The trier of fact may not, however, resort to conjecture as to what might have happened. If the accident might have been caused by one of two or more causes and the employer is responsible for only one, the burden is on the employee to show the accident was produced, at least in part, by the cause for which the employer was responsible [see Lewis v. Union Pac. R.R. Co. (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 280, 283-284, 273 P.2d 706] .

§ 485.36 Survival of FELA Action

An action under the FELA survives the injured employee's death and passes to the employee's personal representative for the benefit of the employee's surviving spouse and children and, if none, the employee's parents and, if none, the employee's next of kin who were dependent on the employee. However, there can be only one recovery for the same injury [45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51, 59].

§ 485.37 Concurrent Jurisdiction of Federal and State Courts Over FELA Actions

The jurisdiction of the federal courts and of the state courts over FELA actions is concurrent [45 U.S.C.S. § 56]. Hence, an action under the FELA may be brought in either a federal district court or a state trial court [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1331 (United States District Courts have original jurisdiction over all civil actions arising under laws of United States); see also § 485.121[6] regarding subject matter jurisdiction in state trial courts].

Nevertheless, because Congress has not expressed in FELA in unmistakably clear language an intent that federal courts shall have jurisdiction over FELA actions by railroad employees against state-owned or state-operated railroads, federal courts lack such jurisdiction [see Welch v. Department of Highways & Public Transp. (1987) 483 U.S. 468, 472-478, 107 S. Ct. 2941, 97 L. Ed. 2d 389 (involving Jones Act, former 46 U.S.C.S. § 688 (now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104), which incorporates remedial provisions of FELA; four justices found that action was barred by U.S. Const. amend. XI, with fifth justice stating that regardless of whether states are immune under U.S. Const. amend. XI, FELA does not apply to states); overruling Parden v. Terminal Ry. of Ala. State Docks Dep't (1964) 377 U.S. 184, 84 S. Ct. 1207, 12 L. Ed. 2d 233 , to extent that Parden is inconsistent with requirement that abrogation by Congress of states' Eleventh Amendment immunity must be expressed in unmistakably clear language]. Following Welch, the U.S. District Court for the District of New Jersey ruled that because Congress has not in unmistakably clear language authorized suits under the FELA against the states, federal courts lack subject matter jurisdiction of FELA actions against a state-owned railroad if the state has not waived its immunity under U.S. Const. amend. XI [Rockwell v. New Jersey Transit Rail Operations (D.N.J. 1988) 682 F. Supp. 280, 282-285] . Although U.S. Const. amend. XI, expressly provides only that "[t]he Judicial power of the United States shall not be construed to extend to any suit in law or equity, commenced or prosecuted against one of the United States by Citizens of another State, or by Citizens or Subjects of any Foreign State," it has been construed also as barring actions in federal court against a state by its own citizens [Welch v. Department of Highways & Pub. Transp. (1987) 483 U.S. 468, 472, 107 S. Ct. 2941, 97 L. Ed. 2d 389 ; Rockwell v. New Jersey Transit Rail Operations (D.N.J. 1988) 682 F. Supp. 280, 281] .

In a subsequent case in which an injured employee of a state-owned railroad brought suit in a state court alleging negligence by his employer, the U.S. Supreme Court placed great emphasis on the strong considerations favoring adherence to stare decisis and decided that FELA does create a cause of action enforceable in state court against a state-owned railroad [Hilton v. South Carolina Pub. Rys. Comm'n (1991) 502 U.S. 197, 112 S. Ct. 560, 116 L. Ed. 2d 560, 567 (reaffirming, in part, Parden v. Terminal Ry. of Ala. State Docks Dep't (1964) 377 U.S. 184, 84 S. Ct. 1207, 12 L. Ed. 2d 233)]. Furthermore, the statutory construction holding of Parden, which held that FELA authorizes suits for damages against state-owned railroads, was undisturbed by Welch [see Welch v. Department of Highways & Pub. Transp. (1987) 483 U.S. 468, 472, 107 S. Ct. 2941, 97 L. Ed. 2d 389 ; *Parden v. Terminal Ry. of Ala. State Docks Dep't (1964) 377 U.S. 184, 84 S. Ct. 1207, 12 L. B. Injuries to Employees

§ 485.38 Law Applicable in State Court Actions

The United States Supreme Court's interpretation of the FELA is the supreme law to be applied by all courts, federal and state [Chesapeake & Ohio R.R. Co. v. Kuhn (1931) 284 U.S. 44, 47, 52 S. Ct. 45, 76 L. Ed. 157 ; Morse v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 128, 135, 133 Cal. Rptr. 577] . FELA cases adjudicated in state courts are as a general matter subject to state procedural rules, but the substantive law governing the cases is federal [St. Louis Sw. Ry. Co. v. Dickerson (1985) 470 U.S. 409, 411, 105 S. Ct. 1347, 84 L. Ed. 2d 303 ; Najera v. Southern Pac. Co. (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 634, 641, 13 Cal. Rptr. 146] . Thus, when an action is properly brought in a state court, the law of the state, in the absence of contrary provisions in the federal statute, is controlling in all matters of practice and procedure [Bohme v. Southern Pac. Co. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 291, 297, 87 Cal. Rptr. 286] .

The terms "practice" and "procedure" include the mode of procedure by which a legal right is enforced, as distinguished from the substantive law that gives or declares the right [Bohme v. Southern Pac. Co. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 291, 298, 87 Cal. Rptr. 286] . Hence, the process of determining on appeal from a California trial court whether the trial court committed error during the trial of the cause and, if so, whether the error was prejudicial and therefore constitutes a ground for reversal, is a matter of state practice and procedure [Bohme v. Southern Pac. Co. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 291, 297-298, 87 Cal. Rptr. 286] . Discovery in FELA actions brought in state court is also governed by state discovery statutes [see, e.g., Pratt v. Union Pacific Railroad Co. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 165, 180, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 321].

On the other hand, state laws are not controlling in determining the incidents of an employee's right to recover damages under the FELA or in determining the validity of releases and other defenses designed to liquidate or defeat employees' claims. If the rule were otherwise, federal rights affording relief to injured railroad employees under a federally declared standard could be defeated by state law, andthe FELA would not be given that uniform application throughout the country essential to effect its purposes [Morse v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 128, 135-136, 133 Cal. Rptr. 577] .

Any matter of state procedural law that would alter the substantive rights of the parties under federal law is inapplicable to cases under the FELA. Otherwise, the FELA would be frustrated by state substantive limitations that are couched in procedural language. For example, although the admissibility of evidence is normally considered a procedural question, federal, not state, law governs the admissibility of evidence relating to payments from collateral sources in an FELA case in a state court [Morse v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 128, 136-137, 133 Cal. Rptr. 577 (admissibility of disability payments under Railroad Retirement Act); see also Lund v. San Joaquin Valley R.R. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1, 7-11, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 412, 71 P.3d 770 (without ruling on whether state or federal law controls, under either law, if FELA action is brought in state court, jury should not generally be told that employee is ineligible for state workers' compensation benefits or other collateral benefits)]. Under federal law, this evidence is inadmissible [Eichel v. New York Cent. R.R. Co. (1963) 375 U.S. 253, 254-256, 84 S. Ct. 316, 11 L. Ed. 2d 307 (evidence proffered to impeach worker's testimony as to his motive for not returning to work and as to permanency of his injuries); Morse v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 128, 137, 133 Cal. Rptr. 577] .

The sufficiency of the evidence in a state court action under the FELA is also governed by federal law [Waller v. Southern Pac. Co. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 201, 206, 57 Cal. Rptr. 353, 424 P.2d 937] . For example, whether the evidence is sufficient to go to the jury or whether a nonsuit should be granted is clearly a matter of substance and governed by federal rather than state law [McGuigan v. Southern Pac. Co. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 704, 714, 247 P.2d 415] . Issues relating to the measure of damages are also matters of substance and governed by federal law [Chesapeake & Ohio R.R. Co. v. Kelly (1916) 241 U.S. 485, 491, 36 S. Ct. 630, 60 L. Ed. 1117 ; Morse v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 128, 137, 133 Cal. Rptr. 577] .

§ 485.39 Proper Court for Trial (Venue) of FELA Actions

An action under the FELA may be brought in a United States District Court in the district of the defendant's residence or in which the cause of action arose or in which the defendant is doing business at the time the action is commenced [45 U.S.C.S. § 56]. Change of venue from one federal district court to another federal district court in which the action might have been brought is provided for in 28 U.S.C.S. § 1404.

The venue of a state court action is dependent on state law. The provisions applicable to actions for personal injury or wrongful death are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 395, and those applicable to actions against corporations in Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5. Change of venue is covered in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 397 and 398-400. For further discussion and forms relating to venue in actions brought in a state court, see Ch. 571, Venue .

§ 485.40 Applicability of Doctrine of Forum Non Conveniens (Inconvenient Forum) in State Court Actions

California courts accept jurisdiction of FELA cases both as to causes of action that arise in California and as to those that arise outside California in favor of nonresident, noncitizen plaintiffs against a foreign corporation doing business in California [Price v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 577, 583, 268 P.2d 457] . However, the doctrine of forum non conveniens (inconvenient forum) applies in California [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 410.30, 418.10(a)(2)], and, in a proper case, will apply in an action under the FELA [Price v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 577, 579, 268 P.2d 457 ; Great N. Ry. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 105, 109-110, 90 Cal. Rptr. 461 ; see Missouri v. Mayfield (1950) 340 U.S. 1, 2-5, 71 S. Ct. 1, 95 L. Ed. 3 (disclaiming any intent to deny states right to apply doctrine in FELA cases)].

The basis of the doctrine is that although the court in which the action was filed has jurisdiction of the subject matter and of the parties and although that venue has been properly laid, the court is nevertheless an inconvenient forum and the action should, therefore, be tried in the court of some other state or country [Great N. Ry. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 105, 108-109, 90 Cal. Rptr. 461] . For further discussion and forms, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal .

§ 485.41 Statute of Limitations on FELA Actions

An action under the FELA must be commenced within three years from the day the cause of action accrued [45 U.S.C.S. § 56; see Great N. Ry. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 105, 108, 90 Cal. Rptr. 461] , that is, from the date of injury. In the case of an occupational disease contracted as a result of the employer's negligence, the "injury" occurs when the accumulated effects of the deleterious substance causing the illness manifest themselves [Urie v. Thompson (1949) 337 U.S. 163, 170, 69 S. Ct. 1018, 93 L. Ed. 1282 (involving silicosis and case in which manifestation of disease and disability were almost simultaneous); see Coots v. Southern Pac. Co. (1958) 49 Cal. 2d 805, 810, 322 P.2d 460 (under facts of case, statute of limitations held not to commence running until date disease (dermatitis caused by continuous exposure to silver cyanide solution) produced substantial harm or disability)]. That is, the statute of limitations on a claim based on occupational illness begins to run when the employee possesses sufficient critical facts to put him or her on notice that a wrong has been committed and that he or she needs to investigate to determine whether he or sheis entitled to redress [Kichline v. Consolidated Rail Corp. (3d Cir. 1986) 800 F.2d 356, 359] . Should the worker delay suing until three years after that time, the cause of action on the primary illness would be barred and the worker's recovery for any aggravation caused by continued exposure to the deleterious substance would be limited to that occurring within three years immediately prior to the filing of the lawsuit. The fact that the worker was aware of the harmful effects of the exposure to pollutants would go to the issue of his or her contributory negligence under 45 U.S.C.S. § 53 [see § 485.83[2][e]], but might not bar the claim for aggravation during that period [Kichline v. Consolidated Rail Corp. (3d Cir. 1986) 800 F.2d 356, 361 (worker failed to file suit within three years after learning his pulmonary disease had been aggravated by exposure to diesel fumes at his work place, and he continued to work even though he was aware of harmful effects of fumes)].

In FELA cases the running of the statute of limitations affects not only the remedy but eliminates the cause of action itself [Kichline v. Consolidated Rail Corp. (3d Cir. 1986) 800 F.2d 356, 360-361] .

42-485 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 485.42

§ 485.42 Defenses to FELA Action

[1] Disclaimer of Liability and Setoff

Any contract, rule, regulation, or device whatsoever, intended to enable the carrier to exempt itself from the liability created by the FELA, is to that extent void [45 U.S.C.S. § 55; see Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Buell (1987) 480 U.S. 557, 561, 107 S. Ct. 1410, 94 L. Ed. 2d 563 ; Aguirre v. Southern Pac. Co. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 636, 643, 43 Cal. Rptr. 73] . For 45 U.S.C.S. § 55 to apply, the contract or device exempting the employer from liability must be with a person who is an employee of the carrier within the meaning of the FELA [Robinson v. Baltimore & Ohio R.R. Co. (1915) 237 U.S. 84, 91, 35 S. Ct. 491, 59 L. Ed. 849] .

The carrier may, however, in an action against it under the provisions of the act, set off against any recovery the sum it has contributed or paid to any insurance, relief benefit, or indemnity that may have been paid to the injured employee or person entitled to it on account of the injury or death for which the action was brought [45 U.S.C.S. § 55; see Folkestad v. Burlington N., Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 813 F.2d 1377, 1379-1384 (setoff allowed of amounts received by injured employee through railroad industry's health and welfare plan to which railroad was party, when under collective bargaining agreement parties so agreed)].

[2] Contributory Negligence

The fact that the employee may have been guilty of contributory negligence does not bar recovery, but the damages are diminished in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to the employee [45 U.S.C.S. § 53]. Thus, any contributory negligence on the worker's part would mitigate, not eliminate, the worker's damages [Ackley v. Chicago & N. W. Transp. Co. (8th Cir. 1987) 820 F.2d 263, 265] . The burden of proving the worker's contributory negligence is on the railroad [Torres v. Southern Pac. Co. (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 757, 763, 67 Cal. Rptr. 428] . The same standard of causation applies to the employee's contributory negligence as applies to the railroad's negligence [Norfolk Southern Railway Co. v. Sorrell (2007) 549 U.S.158, 127 S. Ct. 799, 166 L. Ed. 2d 638, 650-651 ; see § 485.35[4]]. For the manner of pleading the contributory negligence of the worker as an affirmative defense, see § 485.129.

Both the employer's negligence and the worker's contributory negligence are matters to be determined by the jury [

Carter v. Atlanta & St. Andrews Bay Ry. Co. (1949) 338 U.S. 430, 436-437, 70 S. Ct. 226, 94 L. Ed. 236] . The apportionment of damages under the comparative negligence rule is also a matter to be determined by the jury, subject to review if it is excessive as a matter of law [Bohme v. Southern Pac. Co. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 291, 299, 87 Cal. Rptr. 286] .

The doctrine of assumption of risk has been abolished under the FELA [see § 485.83[2][d]], and an act of alleged contributory negligence does not constitute a defense if it is but the practical counterpart of assumption of risk. When an employee carries out a supervisor's direct order to perform a task in a specific manner, although knowing and appreciating that to do so involves risk, the employee ordinarily is not contributorily negligent. However, when an employee is given a general order to perform a task, but not in a particular manner, leaving to the employee the manner of carrying out the task, the employee must use ordinary care in its execution, and may be held to have been contributorily negligent for failing to do so [Jenkins v. Union Pac. R.R. Co. (9th Cir. 1994) 22 F.3d 206, 210-212] .

No employee can be held contributorily negligent if the employer's violation of any statute enacted or regulation adopted for the safety of employees contributed to the employee's injury or death [45 U.S.C.S. §§ 53, 54a; see Qualls v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1931) 112 Cal. App. 7, 14-15, 296 P. 645 ; see also § 485.45].

[3] Assumption of Risk

In any action under FELA, the employee shall not be held to have assumed the risks of his or her employment in any case in which the injury or death resulted in whole or in part from the negligence of any of the officers, agents, or employees of the carrier or in any case in which the railroad's violation of any statute enacted or regulation adopted for the safety of employees contributed to the employee's injury or death [45 U.S.C.S. §§ 54, 54a; see also 49 U.S.C.S. § 20304]. 45 U.S.C.S. § 54 has in effect abolished the doctrine of assumption of the risk by the employee as a defense in FELA cases [see Tiller v. Atlantic Coast Line R.R. Co.(1943) 318 U.S. 54, 58, 63 S. Ct. 444, 87 L. Ed. 610 ; Texas & Pac. Ry. Co. v. Buckles (5th Cir. 1956) 232 F.2d 257, 261] .

[4] Preemption Regarding "Maritime Employment"

The Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act (LHWCA) (33U.S.C.S. § 901 et seq.) provides the exclusive remedy of a railroad employee against the railroad if (1) he or she was injured in the course of employment; (2) the employer has employees who are employed in maritime employment; (3) the injury occurred on the navigable waters of the United States (including specified adjoining areas, such as piers or other adjoining areas used for loading or unloading); and (4) he or she is engaged in maritime employment [Chesapeake & Ohio Ry. Co. v. Schwalb (1989) 493 U.S. 40, 110 S. Ct. 381, 107 L. Ed. 2d 278, 286-288 ; see 33 U.S.C.S. §§ 902(2) (defining "injury" under act), (3) (defining "employee"), (4) (defining "employer"), 903 (limiting remedies under the act to injuries occurring on navigable waters, including specified adjoining areas)]. Consequently, a railroad employee who suffers an employment-related injury governed by the LHWCA is precluded from bringing a cause of action in negligence against the employer, a remedy that would be available under the FELA [Chesapeake & Ohio Ry. Co. v. Schwalb (1989) 493 U.S. 40, 110 S. Ct. 381, 107 L. Ed. 2d 278, 284-288] .

Although LHWCA lists categories of employees engaged in maritime employment, additional occupations have been included pursuant to case law. The United States Supreme Court has held that "employees engaged in maritime employment" include those injured while performing a task integral to loading a ship, such as a railroad worker whose job includes removing fallen coal from beneath conveyor belts used for loading, despite the fact that the employee may have additional duties not integrally connected with the loading or unloading process. LHWCA also covers employees who are injured while maintaining or repairing equipment essential to the maritime loading or unloading process, such as a railroad machinist injured while repairing an aparatus integral to the loading process [Chesapeake & Ohio Ry. Co. v. Schwalb (1989) 493 U.S. 40, 110 S. Ct. 381, 107 L. Ed. 2d 278, 287 (railroad machinist injured while repairing mechanical "retarder" used in connection with loading coal onto ship)]. In determining whether a position constitutes "maritime employment," it is irrelevant that the particular function performed might be considered traditional railroad work, or might be done by railroad employees wherever railroad cars are unloaded. The determinative consideration is whether the function is crucial to the performance of the maritime task [Chesapeake & Ohio Ry. Co. v. Schwalb (1989) 493 U.S. 40, 110 S. Ct. 381, 107 L. Ed. 2d 278, 287-288] . For a form of affirmative defense to a complaint against a railroad seeking relief under the FELA, based on preemption under LHWCA, see § 485.130.

For discussion and forms relating to LHWCA generally, see Ch. 522, Ships and Shipping, § 522.30 et seq.

§ 485.43 Damages Recoverable

The damages recoverable in an action under FELA (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60) are limited to compensatory damages. Punitive damages are not recoverable [Wildman v. Burlington N. R.R. Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 825 F.2d 1392, 1395 ; Kozar v. Chesapeake & Ohio Ry. Co. (6th Cir. 1971) 449 F.2d 1238, 1240] .

A railroad's liability under the FELA is joint and several. Therefore, once the railroad is found liable for an injury, the injured employee may recover all damages stemming from the compensable injury from the railroad, and it is up to the railroad to seek contribution from other alleged tortfeasors [Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. v. Ayers (2003) 538 U.S. 135, 149-156, 123 S. Ct. 1210, 155 L. Ed. 2d 261] .

An employee may recover for negligently-inflicted emotional distress if the employee was within the "zone of danger" of physical impact. Therefore, an employee may recover for physical or emotional injuries caused by employer negligence that threatens the employee with imminent physical impact [Consolidated Rail Corp. v. Gottshall (1994) 512 U.S. 532, 556, 114 S. Ct. 2396, 129 L. Ed. 2d 427] . However, employers are not the insurers of the emotional well-being and mental health of their employees, and therefore they are not liable for emotional distress caused by ordinary work-related stress, such as that caused by having been given too much work [Consolidated Rail Corp. v. Gottshall (1994) 512 U.S. 532, 544, 114 S. Ct. 2396, 129 L. Ed. 2d 427] .

An employee who has been exposed to asbestos at work, but has not yet contracted any disease because of this exposure, is not entitled to recover for emotional distress caused by the fear of contracting cancer, because exposure to asbestos alone is insufficient to meet the "zone of danger" test [Metro-N. Commuter R.R. Co. v. Buckley (1997) 521 U.S. 424, 430, 117 S. Ct. 2113, 138 L. Ed. 2d 560] . However, an employee exposed to asbestos at work who has already contracted asbestosis, an actionable injury, may recover as an element of his or damages for the mental anguish resulting from the fear of developing cancer, so long as the alleged fear is shown to be genuine and serious [Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. v. Ayers (2003) 538 U.S. 135, 157, 123 S. Ct. 1210, 155 L. Ed. 2d 261, 271] . Claims for pain and suffering are generally compensable if they stem from an actual physical injury and if there is an undisputed relationship between exposure to asbestos sufficient to cause asbestosis and asbestos-related cancer [Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. v. Ayers (2003) 538 U.S. 135, 149-153, 123 S. Ct. 1210, 155 L. Ed. 2d 261] .

§ 485.44 Measure of Damages

The measure of damages in a FELA action is an issue of "substance" to be determined by federal law [St. Louis Sw. Ry. Co. v. Dickerson (1985) 470 U.S. 409, 411-412, 105 S. Ct. 1347, 84 L. Ed. 2d 303 (discussing propriety of jury instructions on this issue); see also § 485.38]. That is, the proper measure of damages under the FELA is inseparably connected with the right of action, and therefore is an issue of substance that must be settled according to generalprinciples of law as administered in the federal courts [Monessen Sw. Ry. Co. v. Morgan (1988) 486 U.S. 330, 335, 108 S. Ct. 1837, 100 L. Ed. 2d 349] . For example, prejudgment interest is not available pursuant to federal law in actions under the FELA and therefore may not properly be awarded by a state court even though such an award would be proper under state law [Monessen Sw. Ry. Co. v. Morgan (1988) 486 U.S. 330, 335-336, 108 S. Ct. 1837, 100 L. Ed. 2d 349 , applying Pennsylvania law; Lund v. San Joaquin Valley R.R. (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1, 13-15, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 412, 71 P.3d 770 (prejudgment interest under Civ. Code § 3291 not proper in FELA action brought in state court)]. For similar reasons, expert witness fees cannot be awarded under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 when a plaintiff receives a more favorable outcome at trial than the amount of a rejected settlement offer, as such fees are not recoverable under federal law [Miller v. Union Pac. R.R. Co. (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 451, 458-459, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 893] . Federal law also provides no authority for an award of postjudgment costs, including expert witness fees, to a prevailing defendant whose offer to settle was rejected by the plaintiff [Kinsey v. Union Pacific Railroad Co. (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 201, 207, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 253] .

Under federal law, if future payments or other pecuniary benefits are anticipated, the verdict should be made up on the basis of their present value only. Although no single method for determining present value is mandated under federal law, the method of calculating present value should take into account inflation and other sources of wage increases as well as the rate of interest [St. Louis Sw. Ry. Co. v. Dickerson (1985) 470 U.S. 409, 411-412, 105 S. Ct. 1347, 84 L. Ed. 2d 303] . The jury has the task of making the present value determination. The judge may, however, recommend to the jury one or more methods of calculating present value so long as the judge does not in effect preempt the jury's function. A trial judge's instructions to the jury with regard to discount methods, provided they do not subject the jury's estimate to rigid mathematical limitation, are entitled to substantial deference on appellate review [Monessen Sw. Ry. Co. v. Morgan (1988) 486 U.S. 330, 341-342, 108 S. Ct. 1837, 100 L. Ed. 2d 349, 361-362] . On the other hand, it is error to instruct the jury that, under the state law, future inflation would be conclusively presumed to equal future interest rates, that is, that a zero discount rate was to be applied as a matter of law to future damages [Monessen Sw. Ry. Co. v. Morgan (1988) 486 U.S. 330, 339-342, 108 S. Ct. 1837, 100 L. Ed. 2d 349 (trial court had based the instruction on state law under which awards of future damages were not to be discounted)].

§ 485.45 Safety Provisions Supplementing FELA

[1] Safety Appliance Act

The Safety Appliances Act [49 U.S.C.S. §§ 20301-20306] requires the installation of various safety appliances on locomotives and cars and provides for penalties to be imposed for noncompliance [49 U.S.C.S. § 21302].

Specifically, the Act requires that cars in use on railroad lines have the following:

- Couplers coupling automatically by impact, and capable of being uncoupled, without the necessity of persons going between the ends of the cars [49 U.S.C.S. § 20302(a)(1)(A); see O'Donnell v. Elgin, Joliet & E. Ry. Co. (1949) 338 U.S. 384, 389, 70 S. Ct. 200, 94 L. Ed. 187 (the Act also requires couplers that, after a secure coupling is effected, will remain coupled until set free by some purposeful act of control)];

- Secure sill steps and efficient hand brakes [49 U.S.C.S. § 20301(a)(1)(B)];

- Secure ladders and running boards when required by the Secretary of Transportation, and, if ladders are required, secure handholds or grab irons on its roof at the top of each ladder [49 U.S.C.S. § 20301(a)(1)(C)]; and

- Except as otherwise ordered by the Secretary of Transportation, secure grab irons or handholds in the ends and sides of each car for greater security to persons in coupling and uncoupling cars [49 U.S.C.S. § 20302(a)(2)].

Further, cars must comply with the standard height of drawbars required by regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Transportation [49 U.S.C.S. § 20302(a)(3)].

The Act requires that locomotive engines have a power-driving wheel brake and appliances for operating the train-brake system [49 U.S.C.S. § 20302(a)(4)]. Further, sufficient cars in trains must have power or train brakes so that the engineer on the locomotive hauling the train can control the train's speed without the necessity of brake operators using the common hand brakes for that purpose [49 U.S.C.S. § 20302(a)(5)(A)]. At least 50 percent of the cars in a train must be equipped with power or train brakes and the engineer must be using the power ortrain brakes on those cars and on all other cars equipped with them that are associated with those cars in the train [49 U.S.C.S. § 20302(a)(5)(B)].

The Safety Appliances Act occupies the field of safety devices for freight cars and preempts state products liability actions for design defects related to those safety devices, or to the lack of those devices if the particular device is not expressly required by the Act [Carrillo v. ACF Indus., Inc. (1999) 20 Cal. 4th 1158, 1165, 1168, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 832, 980 P.2d 386 (preempting state action for failure to incorporate guardrail)].

[2] Boiler Inspection Act

The Boiler Inspection Act requires railroads in interstate commerce to maintain the entire locomotive in a safe condition. It also provides for periodic inspection, and specifies the penalty to be imposed for noncompliance [49 U.S.C.S. § 20701 et seq.].

Specifically, the Boiler Inspection Act makes it unlawful for any railroad to use or permit the use on its line of any locomotive unless the locomotive, tender, and all parts and appurtenances thereof are in proper condition and safe to operate in the service to which they are put. They must be in a condition such that they may be employed in active service of the railroad without unnecessary danger of personal injury, and the locomotive, tender, and all parts and appurtenances thereof must be inspected from time to time in accordance with the provisions of 49 U.S.C.S. § 20702 and must be able to withstand the test or tests as may be prescribed in the rules and regulations provided for by the act [49 U.S.C.S. § 20701; see Urie v. Thompson (1949) 337 U.S. 163, 189-191, 69 S. Ct. 1018, 93 L. Ed. 1282] .

The Boiler Inspection Act preempts state law causes of action against locomotive manufacturers for defective design of their products, because Congress intended to occupy the field of locomotive equipment and safety [Scheiding v. General Motors Corp. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 471, 474, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342, 993 P.2d 996] . Therefore, the Act preempts state tort claims brought by railway workers based on injuries caused by exposure to asbestos used in the manufacture of locomotives [Scheiding v. General Motors Corp. (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 471, 476-477, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 342, 993 P.2d 996] . These claims against a locomotive manufacturer for defective design are preempted regardless of whether the relevant locomotive is in use on the railroad line or off line in a roundhouse or repair shop during the period of exposure [Frastaci v. Vapor Corp. (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1389, 1393, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 402].

[3] "Railroad" Defined

As used in the Safety Appliance Act and the Boiler Inspection Act, the term "railroad" has the same meaning as when used in the Federal Railroad Safety Act of 1970 (49 U.S.C.S. § 20103) [49 U.S.C.S. § 20102]. The Federal Railroad Safety Act defines railroad as meaning all forms of nonhighway ground transportation that run on rails or electro-magnetic guideways, including (1) commuter or other short-haul rail passenger service in a metropolitan or suburban area, as well as any commuter rail service that was operated by the Consolidated Rail Corporation as of January 1, 1979, and (2) high speed ground transportation systems that connect metropolitan areas, without regard to whether they use new technologies not associated with traditional railroads, but that the term does not include rapid transit operations within an urban area that are not connected to the general railroad system of transportation [49 U.S.C.S. § 20102(1)(A), (B)].

[4] Employer's Absolute Liability for Violation of Safety Provision

The Safety Appliance Act [49 U.S.C.S. § 20301 et seq.] and the Boiler Inspection Act [49 U.S.C.S. § 20701 et seq.] have been construed to impose absolute liability without regard to negligence on railroads for the injury or death of an employee caused by the railroad's failure to comply with the requirements of either act [see Carter v. Atlanta & St. Andrews Bay Ry. Co. (1949) 338 U.S. 430, 433-434, 70 S. Ct. 226, 94 L. Ed. 236 (Safety Appliance Act) ; O'Donnell v. Elgin, Joliet & E. Ry. Co. (1949) 338 U.S. 384, 390-394, 70 S. Ct. 200, 94 L. Ed. 187 (same); Finley v. Southern Pac. Co. (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 424, 428-429, 3 Cal. Rptr. 895 (same); Lilly v. Grand Trunk W. R.R. Co. (1943) 317 U.S. 481, 485, 63 S. Ct. 347, 87 L. Ed. 411 (Boiler Inspection Act); see also Kernan v. American Dredging Co. (1958) 355 U.S. 426, 430-431, 78 S. Ct. 394, 2 L. Ed. 2d 382 (action under Jones Act that, by reason of former 46 U.S.C.S. § 688 (now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104), incorporates FELA)]. Neither contributory negligence [see 45 U.S.C.S. § 53; Eckert v. Aliquippa & S. R.R. Co. (3d Cir. 1987) 828 F.2d 183, 186 (Safety Appliance Act)] , nor assumption of the risk is a defense to a Boiler Inspection Act violation that has contributed to the cause of an injury [Fontaine v. National R.R. Passenger Corp. (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1519, 1525, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 644] .

The acts apply whether or not the injury involved was of a type that the particular act or statute was designed to prevent [Kernan v. American Dredging Co. (1958) 355 U.S. 426, 432-433, 438, 78 S. Ct. 394, 2 L. Ed. 2d 382] . Liability is imposed whenever a violation of either act is the proximate cause of injury to a railroad employee when engaged in the discharge of his or her duties [Louisville & Nashville R.R. Co. v. Layton (1917) 243 U.S. 617, 621, 37 S. Ct. 456, 61 L. Ed. 931 (violation of 45 U.S.C.S. § 2, relating to couplers); see Coray v. Southern Pac. Co. (1948) 335 U.S. 520, 522-523, 69 S. Ct. 275, 93 L. Ed. 208 (faulty brakes)]. However, the worker is not obliged to prove common-law proximate causation, but only that the injury resulted in whole or in part from the violation [Eckert v. Aliquippa & S. R.R. Co. (3d Cir. 1987) 828 F.2d 183, 186 ; see 45 U.S.C.S. § 51; see also § 485.35[4]].

An employer is also liable for the violation of a rule or regulation that either implements standards of safety required under 49 U.S.C.S. § 20302(a) (Safety Appliance Act) or 49 U.S.C.S. § 20701 (Boiler Inspection Act), or implements standards of railroad safety under 49 U.S.C.S. § 20103 [see 49 C.F.R. pts. 212-236 (setting forth rules and standards adopted by Secretary of Transportation)]. These rules acquire the force of law and become an integral part of the act under which they are adopted; hence a violation of a rule constitutes a violation of the statute [see Urie v. Thompson (1949) 337 U.S. 163, 191, 69 S. Ct. 1018, 93 L. Ed. 1282 (rule adopted under Boiler Inspection Act); Lilly v. Grand Trunk W. R.R. Co. (1943) 317 U.S. 481, 488, 63 S. Ct. 347, 87 L. Ed. 411 (same); Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Scarlett (1937) 300 U.S. 471, 474, 57 S. Ct. 541, 81 L. Ed. 748 (rule adopted under Safety Appliance Act); Eckert v. Aliquippa & S. R.R. Co. (3d Cir. 1987) 828 F.2d 183, 186-187 (rule regulating switch positions (49 C.F.R. § 213.135(g)) adopted under 45 U.S.C.S. § 431); see also 42 U.S.C.S. § 54a (regulations and rules deemed statutes for purposes of 42 U.S.C.S. §§ 53, 54)].

[5] Violation of Safety Provision as Basis for FELA Claim

The Safety Appliance Act [49 U.S.C.S. § 20301 et seq.] and the Boiler Inspection Act [49 U.S.C.S. § 20701 et seq.] have been construed to be in pari materia with the FELA [see Urie v. Thompson (1949) 337 U.S. 163, 188-189, 69 S. Ct. 1018, 93 L. Ed. 1282] . Neither act purports to confer any right of action on injured employees. They merely make violation of their requirements unlawful. Nevertheless, they supplement the FELA by imposing on interstate railroads an absolute and continuing duty to provide safe equipment. This conclusion stems not from any express language in the statutes but by implication from 45 U.S.C.S. §§ 53 and 54, which bar pleading of contributory negligence and assumption of risk in any FELA case in which the common carrier's violation of any statute enacted or regulation or rule adopted for the safety of employees contributed to the employee's injury or death [Urie v. Thompson (1949) 337 U.S. 163, 188, 69 S. Ct. 1018, 93 L. Ed. 1282 ; see also 45 U.S.C.S. § 54].

However, it is 45 U.S.C.S. § 51 [see § 485.32[1]], and not 45 U.S.C.S. §§ 53 and 54, which expressly creates a cause of action and, by the same token, is the basis of an employee's suit for violation of either the Safety Appliance or the Boiler Inspection Act [Urie v. Thompson (1949) 337 U.S. 163, 188-189, 69 S. Ct. 1018, 93 L. Ed. 1282 ; see Kernan v. American Dredging Co. (1958) 355 U.S. 426, 437, 78 S. Ct. 394, 2 L. Ed. 2d 382] . 45 U.S.C.S. § 51 imposes liability on the employer for injury or death resulting in whole or in part "by reason of any defect or insufficiency, due to its negligence, in its cars, engines, appliances, machinery, track, roadbed, works, boats, wharves, or other equipment." The cases hold that under this clause a defect resulting from a violation of either act that causes the injury or death of an employee creates liability without regard to negligence [Kernan v. American Dredging Co. (1958) 355 U.S. 426, 430-431, 78 S. Ct. 394, 2 L. Ed. 2d 382] . The FELA imposes on the employer the duty of paying damages when injury to the worker is caused in whole or in part by the employer's fault. This fault may consist of a breach of the duty of care (negligence) or a statutory duty, such as that imposed by the Safety Appliance and Boiler Inspection Acts (absolute liability) [see Kernan v. American Dredging Co. (1958) 355 U.S. 426, 432, 78 S. Ct. 394, 2 L. Ed. 2d 382] .

Thus, the Safety Appliance Act and the Boiler Inspection Act are substantively, if not in form, amendments to the FELA. They dispense, for the purposes of an employee's suit, with the necessity of proving that violations of the safety statutes constituted negligence, making proof of such violations effective to show negligence as a matter of law. Thus taken, the Safety Appliance Act and the Boiler Inspection Act cannot be regarded as statutes wholly separate from and independent of the FELA. They are rather supplemental to it, having the purpose and effect of facilitating employee recovery [Urie v. Thompson (1949) 337 U.S. 163, 189, 69 S. Ct. 1018, 93 L. Ed. 1282 ; see Finley v. Southern Pac. Co. (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 424, 428-429, 3 Cal. Rptr. 895 (holding that failure of equipment to perform as required by Safety Appliance Act is in itself actionable, in no way dependent on negligence, and for which there is liability that clearly cannot be escaped by proof of care or diligence); Qualls v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1931) 112 Cal. App. 7, 13-14, 296 P. 645 (when negligence consists of failure to comply with Safety Appliance Act, violation of act as not required to be sole efficient cause of injury in order for action under FELA to lie)].

In short, the Safety Appliance Act and the Boiler Inspection Act provide the basis for a claim, but the FELA provides the remedy [see Eckert v. Aliquippa & Southern R. Co. (3d Cir. 1987) 828 F.2d 183, 187 ; Beissel v. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie R.R. Co. (3d Cir. 1986) 801 F.2d 143, 145] .

[6] Liberal Construction of Safety Provisions

Both the Safety Appliance Act and the Boiler Inspection Act are to be liberally construed in the light of their prime purpose, the protection of employees and others by the use of safe equipment [see Lilly v. Grand Trunk W. R.R. Co. (1943) 317 U.S. 481, 486, 63 S. Ct. 347, 87 L. Ed. 411 ; Urie v. Thompson (1949) 337 U.S. 163, 182 n. 20, 69 S. Ct. 1018, 93 L. Ed. 1282] .

§ 485.46 Railway Labor Act (RLA)

The Railway Labor Act (RLA) [45 U.S.C.S. §§ 151-188] provides a comprehensive framework for the resolution of labor disputes in the railroad industry and establishes elaborate administrative procedures for the resolution of both "major" and "minor" disputes [see 45 U.S.C.S. § 153]. The RLA was intended to promote stability in labor-management relations by providing effective and efficient remedies for the resolution of railroad-employee disputes arising out of the interpretation of collective bargaining agreements. Under the RLA, minor disputes, defined in the act as those concerning rates of pay, rules, or working conditions, are intended to be kept within the National Railroad Adjustment Board or a Public Law Board and out of the courts [Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co.v. Buell (1987) 480 U.S. 557, 563-564, 563 n.9, 107 S. Ct. 1410, 94 L. Ed. 2d 563] . The remedy of binding arbitration under the RLA for the resolution of minor disputes is exclusive in at least some situations [Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Buell (1987) 480 U.S. 557, 558-559, 565-566, 107 S. Ct. 1410, 94 L. Ed. 2d 563] .

However, the fact that an injury otherwise compensable under the FELA was caused by conduct that may have been subject to arbitration under the RLA does not deprive an employee of the opportunity to bring a FELA action for damages. Presumably a host of personal injuries suffered by railroad employees are caused by negligent practices and conditions that might have been cured or avoided by the timely invocation of the grievance machinery of the RLA, but the Supreme Court of the United States has never considered that possibility a bar to an employee's bringing a claim for personal injuries under other federal statutes and has declined to do so in FELA cases [Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Buell (1987) 480 U.S. 557, 558-559, 564-565, 107 S. Ct. 1410, 94 L. Ed. 2d 563 ; see Welby v. Consolidated Rail Corp. (M.D. Pa. 1987) 671 F. Supp. 1015, 1017 (if employee can establish physical injury caused by railroad's negligence, employee is entitled to damages under FELA)].

For a form relating to preemption by the RLA of a railroad employee's common law wrongful discharge action against an employer, see Ch. 249, Employment Law: Termination and Discipline, § 249.68.

B. Injuries to Employees

42-485 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 485.47

§ 485.47 Railroad's Right to Indemnity From Third-Party Tortfeasor

[1] Applicable Law

A railroad's right to indemnity in whole or in part from a third party for liability incurred under the FELA depends entirely on state law [Brenham v. Southern Pac. Co. (W.D. La. 1971) 328 F. Supp. 119, 123 , aff'd, 469 F.2d 1095 (5th Cir. 1972) ; Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. Ohbayashi Am. Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 233, 236, 195 Cal. Rptr. 63] . A right to indemnity can arise from, among other things, an express contract, an implied contract, some special relationship legally sufficient to raise an obligation to indemnify, or, as between two tortfeasors, when the fault of one is active and the other passive [Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. Ohbayashi Am. Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 233, 238, 195 Cal. Rptr. 63] .

[2] Contractual Indemnity

A railroad that pays a FELA claim may be entitled to recover from a third party the amount paid pursuant to a written contract of indemnity, even if the worker's injury resulted from the railroad's negligence, provided the indemnity contract so provides and the provision is not in violation of state law [see Illinois Cent. Gulf R. Co.v International Paper Co. (5th Cir. 1987) 824 F.2d 403, 404-408 ; see also Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution, § 300.30 et seq. regarding California law governing express and implied contractual indemnity].

[3] Implied Equitable Indemnity

California has adopted the rule that allows a railroad employer to seek implied indemnification from a third party tortfeasor for amounts paid to an injured employee under the FELA when the railroad's negligence is secondary to the third party's primary negligence [see Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. Ohbayashi Am. Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 233, 238, 195 Cal. Rptr. 63] . For a discussion and forms relating to California law governing implied equitable indemnity and comparative equitable indemnity, the effect of the comparative equitable indemnity doctrine on the concept of primary and secondary negligence, and the effect of the Fair Responsibility Act of 1986 (Proposition 51 [Civ. Code §§ 1431, 1432]) on the doctrine of joint and several liability of tortfeasors as they affect the liability of joint tortfeasors among themselves, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution, § 300.150 et seq.

[4] Statute of Limitations on Indemnity Actions

The statutory period limiting an action by a railroad for indemnity against a third party is that which would apply under the law of the state where the accident occurred, and is not the statutory period applicable to FELA actions [Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. Ohbayashi Am. Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 233, 236, 195 Cal. Rptr. 63 ; see 45 U.S.C.S. § 56; see also § 485.41]. The state statutory period limiting a particular indemnity action depends on the basis for the claim [Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. Ohbayashi Am. Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 233, 238, 195 Cal. Rptr. 63] . Thus, for example, a claim based on an express contract would be subject to the state limitation periods applicable to actions on a contract [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 337(1) (four-year period applicable to action on written contract), 339(1) (two-year period applicable to actions on oral contract)].

Under California law, an action for damages for personal injury or wrongful death must normally be brought within two years (one year, prior to January 1, 2003) after the date that the cause of action accrues [Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1; see former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3); Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, § 345.14]. Usually this period runs from the date of injury. In an action for indemnity based on tort, however, the cause of action accrues not on the date of injury, but on the date the indemnity claimant suffers loss or damage by paying the underlying claim. Thus, when the basis of a complaint for equitable indemnity was liability for personal injury, and when the complaint was filed within one year from the time the personal injury claim was paid, it was timely even though it was filed more than one year after the date of injury [Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. Ohbayashi Am. Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 233, 238-239, 195 Cal. Rptr. 63 (distinguishing County of San Diego v. Sanfax Corp. (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 862, 140 Cal. Rptr. 638, 568 P.2d 363 , which held that employer who had paid workers'compensation benefits had one year after date of employee's injury, and not after date it paid benefits, in which to sue third-party tortfeasor for indemnity, on grounds that railroad's liability under FELA is fundamentally different from employer's liability for workers' compensation and that employer's statutory rights to subrogation under Lab. Code §§ 3850-3864 have no parallels under FELA)].

For further discussion relating to the limitations periods applicable in actions for express or implied contractual indemnity, and for equitable or comparative equitable indemnity, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution, § 300.30 et seq. and § 300.150 et seq.

42-485 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 485.48

§ 485.48 Penalty for Suppression of Voluntary Information Relating to FELA Claim

Any contract, rule, regulation, or device whatsoever, the purpose, intent, or effect of which is to prevent a carrier's employees from voluntarily furnishing information to a person in interest as to the facts incident to the injury or death of any employee, is void [45 U.S.C.S. § 60].

Moreover, anyone who by threat, intimidation, order, rule, contract, regulation, or any device whatsoever, attempts to prevent any persons from voluntarily furnishing such information to a person in interest, or whoever discharges or otherwise disciplines or attempts to discipline any employee for voluntarily furnishing such information to a person in interest, is subject to a fine of up to a $1,000, imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, on conviction of each offense [45 U.S.C.S. § 60]. This applies, however, only to railroad employees discharged or disciplined for furnishing information to others and does not encompass employees who are discharged or disciplined because they themselves initiate FELA actions. Consequently, a claim for emotional distress damages caused by the asserted wrongful discharge of an employee who had sustained physical and emotional distress injuries in a railroad collision is not cognizable under the FELA [Lewy v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (9th Cir. 1986) 799 F.2d 1281, 1293 (employee's remedy, if any, was under Railway Labor Act, 45 U.S.C.S. §§ 151-188)].

45 U.S.C.S. § 60 is not to be construed as voiding any contract, rule, or regulation with respect to any information contained in the carrier's files, or other privileged or confidential reports [45 U.S.C.S. § 60].

§ 485.60 Governing Law

The regulation of public utilities generally is governed by Cal. Const. art. XII, §§ 1-9. The duties of common carriers are set out in Civ. Code §§ 2100-2104. A railroad's qualified immunities from liability are set out in Civ. Code § 1714.7 (trespassers) and Pub. Util. Code § 7654 (passengers). A common carrier's liability for losses and injuries resulting from violation of a statute or Public Utilities Commission decision or order is governed by Pub. Util. Code § 2106. Safety requirements for railroad signal devices and warnings are set out in Pub. Util. Code §§ 7601-7614, and rules concerning operation of railroad trains are set out in Pub. Util. Code §§ 7653-7660. Pub. Util. Code §§ 7626-7627 governs a railroad's liability for injury to animals on tracks caused by failure to maintain fences. Duties of motorists in approaching railroad crossings are governed by Veh. Code §§ 22450-22452.

42-485 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 485.60A

§ 485.60A Scope of Federal Preemption

Under federal law, a state may adopt or continue in force a law, regulation, or order related to railroad safety or security until the Secretary of Transportation, with respect to railroad safety matters, or the Secretary of Homeland Security, with respect to railroad security matters, prescribes a regulation or issues an order covering the subject matter of the state requirement [49 U.S.C.S. § 20106(a)(2)]. In order for a federal regulation to "cover" the same subject matter as a state law, the regulation must do more than "touch upon" or "relate to" the subject matter. Preemption is appropriate only if the federal regulation substantially subsumes the subject matter of the relevant state law [CSX Transp. Inc. v. Easterwood (1993) 507 U.S. 658, 664, 113 S. Ct. 1732, 123 L. Ed. 2d 387].

In one case, for example, plaintiffs brought a common-law negligence suit against a commuter railroad after a derailing that occurred when a man intentionally drove his sports utility vehicle in front of a train that was operating in push mode, that is, with the locomotive at the back of the train and an occupied cab car in the lead. Plaintiffs argued that the railway company was negligent by running in push mode without using a converted locomotive car with baggage or other ballast in the lead position, or an unoccupied cab car, or using a scout vehicle or track surveillance. Agreeing that federal regulations addressed the construction and design of cab cars used in the lead position of a commuter train, plaintiffs argued nonetheless that the regulations did not address the operation of a cab car. However, the California court of appeal held that the negligence claim was preempted, after concluding that the regulations addressed not just the design, but also the actual use, of cab cars in the lead position. The court noted that the regulations contemplated the use of an occupied cab car in the lead position if the cab satisfied increased strength requirements for collision posts, and the regulations specifically took into account the operating environment in which rail passenger service occurs. As such, plaintiffs' claims based on safety concerns with this use of cab cars were preempted [Southern California Regional Rail Authority v. Superior Court (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 712, 732-733, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 765].

The court of appeal in that case also concluded that the absence of a specific federal regulation on push mode was not determinative, but was only one factor to consider when determining whether the matter has been substantially subsumed. In concluding that the issue had been substantially subsumed, the court noted that Congress had directed the Federal Railroad Administration to issue rules and regulations addressing passenger safety, and in response the FRA conducted extensive regulatory proceedings and promulgated regulations related to the operation of a cab car in push mode, albeit in the form of design requirements [Southern California Regional Rail Authority v. Superior Court (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 712, 734-735, 77 Cal. Rptr. 3d 765].

A state may adopt or continue in force an additional or more stringent law, regulation, or order related to railroad safety or security if the law, regulation, or order(1) is necessary to eliminate or reduce an essentially local safety or security hazard, (2) is not incompatible with a federal law, regulation, or order, and (3) does not unreasonably burden interstate commerce [49 U.S.C.S. § 20106(a)(2)].

For all state law causes of action arising from events or activities occurring on or after January 18, 2002, a state law cause of action seeking damages for personal injury, death, or property damage is not preempted by federal law if the cause of action alleges that a party has done any of the following [49 U.S.C.S. § 20106(b)]:

- Failed to comply with the federal standard of care established by a regulation or order on railroad safety issued by the Secretary of Transportation, or a regulation or order on railroad security issued by the Secretary of Homeland Security, covering the subject matter as provided in 49 U.S.C.S. § 20106(a);

- Failed to comply with its own plan, rule, or standard created pursuant to a regulation or order issued by either of the federal Secretaries; or

- Failed to comply with a state law, regulation, or order that is not incompatible with 49 U.S.C.S. § 20106(a)(2).

§ 485.61 Negligence Action Against Railroad

Most commonly, a cause of action against a railroad for damages for injuries to person or property will be based on common law negligence, as codified under Civ. Code § 1714(a). The elements of an action for negligence are essentially (1) a legal duty to use due care, (2) the breach of that duty, and (3) the breach as a proximate cause of plaintiff's injury and damages [see United States Liab. Ins. Co. v. Haidinger-Hayes, Inc. (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 586, 594, 83 Cal. Rptr. 418, 463 P.2d 770 ; see also Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282, 3333].

For discussion relating to negligence actions generally, including discussion of legal duty, breach of duty, proximate cause, and injury, see Ch. 380, Negligence . For discussion of particular duties imposed on railroads, see § 485.62. For discussion relating to a railroad's violation of a statutory duty as negligence per se, see § 485.64. For discussion relating to a separate action for damages under Pub. Util. Code § 2106, for violation of a safety statute or regulation, see § 485.68.

For forms of complaint for use in a negligence action against a railroad, see §§ 485.150 -485.152. For additional forms of complaint for use in a negligence action generally, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

§ 485.62 Railroad's Duty of Care

[1] Duty to Passengers as Common Carrier

[a] Generally

Every "railroad corporation" is a common carrier [Pub. Util. Code § 211(a); Civ. Code § 2168; see Ch. 109, Carriers]. The term "railroad corporation" includes every corporation or person owning, controlling, operating, or managing any railroad for compensation within California [Pub. Util. Code § 230].

As a carrier of persons for reward, a railroad must use the utmost care and diligence for the safe carriage of its passengers [Civ. Code § 2100]. The duty to exercise the utmost care and diligence to prevent injuries begins when the relationship of carrier and passenger is established [Lagomarsino v. Market St. Ry. Co. (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 388, 395-396, 158 P.2d 982] . The relation of passenger and carrier commences when the intending passenger enters the station premises [MacGregor v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 596, 600, 59 P.2d 123] . If a person intends to board a train as a passenger and so indicates by the act of standing alongside, and the person in charge of the train indicates an intention to receive the prospective passenger, and stops the car and prepares to receive the person immediately, the relationship of passenger to the carrier is established, even if no fare has yet been paid [Lagomarsino v. Market St. Ry. Co. (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 388, 395, 397, 158 P.2d 982] .

The carrier is under a duty to provide adequate safeguards to prevent injuries to passengers when boarding or alighting from a train [see MacGregor v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 596, 600, 59 P.2d 123] . This includes the duty to prevent sudden jarring or jolting when starting or stopping [Dempsey v. Market St. Ry. Co. (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 110, 112, 142 P.2d 929] . For a form of complaint for use by a passenger to recover for injuries suffered in boarding or alighting from a train, see § 485.150.

A railroad owes a duty to its passengers to deliver them safely to their destinations [Miller v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1915) 169 Cal. 107, 110, 145 P. 1023] . The relationship of the railroad to its passengers does not terminate until the passenger has had a reasonable opportunity to leave the carrier's premises [Miller v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1915) 169 Cal. 107, 110, 145 P. 1023] . Thus, when a passenger is carried beyond his or her station and is directed by the conductor to alight, the railroad owes that person a duty to provide him or her a safe means of return to the station [Miller v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1915) 169 Cal. 107, 110, 145 P. 1023] .

A railroad is also under a contractual duty to transport passengers safely, and has the duty to protect them against acts of personal violence by agents or employees of the railroad [see Berger v. Southern Pac. Co. (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6-7, 300 P.2d 170] . While some litigants in carrier-passenger cases have attempted to state causes of action for breach of contract as well as in tort, it appears that when the complaint sets out a breach of duty and consequent injury as the gravamen of the action, the carrier's violation of its obligation safely to carry arises out of tort and not contract [see Basler v. Sacramento Elec., Gas & Ry. Co. (1913) 166 Cal. 33, 36, 134 P. 993] .

For discussion of the duties of common carriers to passengers generally and a form of complaint for damages for assault and battery for use by a passenger against an agent of a common carrier, see Ch. 109, Carriers, § 109.30 et seq.

[b] At Railroad Stations

Because a railroad that maintains stations or regular stopping places along its line thereby invites the public to patronize its line, the railroad must, in the exercise of ordinary care, afford protection to the public commensurate with the risk involved [Wilkinson v. United R.Rs. (1924) 195 Cal. 185, 198, 232 P. 131] . Thus, for the safety of intended passengers, railroads have a duty to use a greater degree of care to maintain their property at stations or regular stopping places along the line than at other places along the line [Aydlott v. Key Sys. Transit Co. (1930) 104 Cal. App. 621, 626, 286 P. 456] . It makes no difference whether the stopping place is patronized by a few or by many passengers [Wilkinson v. United R.Rs. (1924) 195 Cal. 185, 198, 232 P. 131] . A railroad is not, however, an insurer of the safety of its station premises [Robson v. Union Pac. R.R. Co. (1945) 70 Cal.App. 2d 759, 761, 161 P.2d 821] . The care required of the railroad involves the duty to exercise reasonable care to construct and maintain safe and adequate stations, platforms, walks, steps, and landings [Robson v. Union Pac. R.R. Co. (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 759, 761, 161 P.2d 821] . The railroad also has a duty to keep the portion of its tracks that is near the station in a safe condition for intended passengers [Aydlott v. Key Sys. Transit Co. (1930) 104 Cal. App. 621, 626-627, 286 P. 456] .

The railroad's duty to provide safe approaches to its stations extends to the duty to take care that any trains that are moving on intervening tracks will not injure passengers who must cross those tracks to board or alight from a train [Wilkinson v. United R.Rs. (1924) 195 Cal. 185, 199-200, 232 P. 131] . The passenger has the right to presume that the intervening tracks he or she must cross will be kept safe while he or she is crossing [Wilkinson v. United R.Rs. (1924) 195 Cal. 185, 200, 232 P. 131] . The passenger has no duty to look and listen before crossing those tracks [Wilkinson v. United R.Rs. (1924) 195 Cal. 185, 199-200, 232 P. 131] . However, the intending passenger is not absolved from the exercise of any care; whether or not the passenger has exercised ordinary care under the circumstances and whether or not the railroad has fulfilled its duty are questions for the jury [Ferran v. Southern Pac. Co. (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 350, 355, 44 P.2d 533] .

Railroads have a duty to provide sufficient lighting at stations to aid passengers transported at night in alighting at stations [Teale v. Southern Pac. Co. (1912) 20 Cal. App. 570, 575-576, 129 P. 949] . Railroads also owe a duty, at least, to make a reasonable inspection of waiting rooms at stations [Hamilton v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1939) 12 Cal. 2d 598, 600, 86 P.2d 829] .

For discussion of the liability of carriers generally for injuries at stations, see. For general discussion of the liability of owners and occupiers of premises, see Ch. 421, Premises Liability .

[c] Additional Statutory Duties to Passengers

Private corporations and persons that own, operate, control, or manage a line plant, or system for the transportation of people or property, directly or indirectly to or for the public, and common carriers, are public utilities subject to control by the legislature [Cal. Const. art. XII, § 3].

In addition to the duties of care generally owed by carriers to passengers, the Public Utilities Code imposes additional duties on railroads [see Pub. Util. Code §§ 7653-7657]. Every railroad must provide sufficient room and accommodations for all passengers to whom tickets are sold for any one trip and for all persons presenting tickets for that trip [Pub. Util. Code § 7653]. Railroads are also required to post in a conspicuous place on the inside of their passenger cars rules and regulations regarding fares and the conduct of passengers [Pub. Util. Code § 7654].

If a passenger is injured on or from the platform of a car or on any baggage, wood, gravel, or freight car while violating either the written rules or verbal instructions by an employee of a railroad, the carrier is relieved of liability for the injuries, unless the railroad has failed to provide adequate accommodations for all passengers as required in Pub. Util. Code § 7653 [Pub. Util. Code § 7654].

[2] Duty to Nonpassengers

[a] Generally

A railroad company has a very wide discretion in the proper operation of its business and the movement and management of its trains [Matoza v. Southern Pac. Co. (1922) 59 Cal. App. 636, 640, 211 P. 252] . However, when a court finds from the evidence that that discretion has been abused, the railroad company may properly be called on to respond in damages to a person suffering from its arbitrary action [Matoza v. Southern Pac. Co. (1922) 59 Cal. App. 636, 638, 640-641, 211 P. 252 (obstruction of crossing by stationary train prevented farmer from removing cows overgrazing in alfalfa field)].

The same standard of care is applied to railroads as to other defendants [Morgan v. Southern Pac. Trans. Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 1006, 1012, 112 Cal. Rptr. 695] . The fact that carelessness in the handling of a train wreaks a far greater quantum of havoc than carelessness in doing other things does not change a railroad's negligence into recklessness [Morgan v. Southern Pac. Trans. Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 1006, 1012, 112 Cal. Rptr. 695] . The law imposes on a railroad company and its train crew the duty to use reasonable care, corresponding to the circumstances constituting the probable danger, to avoid injury to persons traveling on the public highway crossed by the company's tracks [Romo v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 909, 916, 139 Cal. Rptr. 787 ; for discussion of railroad's liability for negligent operation of trains at crossings, see § 485.02[5][a]]. The duty to use reasonable care applies both to the manner of operating the train and to the maintenance of the crossing [Peri v. Los Angeles Junction Ry. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 111, 120, 137 P.2d 441 ; see § 485.105[3] regarding railroad's liability for negligent maintenance of crossings].

Generally, an injured person's status as a trespasser or invitee on a defendant's premises is not determinative of liability, and liability will be imposed on those whose want of ordinary care occasions injury to a person regardless of that person's status [see Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 113-114, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] . Therefore, the distinction between the status of a person injured by a train as a trespasser or as an invitee is not determinative of the duty owed by the railroad to that person [Beard v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 129, 136, 84 Cal. Rptr. 449 ; see generally Ch. 421, Premises Liability].

Civ. Code § 1714.7, however, creates a valid exception to the general rule of liability for injuries to trespassers [see Durham v. City of Los Angeles (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 567, 572-574, 154 Cal. Rptr. 243] . Under the statute, a person who is injured while getting on, or attempting to get on, a moving locomotive or railroad car, without authority from the operator of the railroad, or who, having gotten on, is injured while riding on or getting off of a locomotive or railroad car while in motion without such authority, cannot recover any damages from the owner or operator for those injuries unless they are proximately caused by an intentional act of the owner or operator, with knowledge that serious injury will probably result from the act, or with a wanton and reckless disregard of the probable result of the act [Civ. Code § 1714.7].

One court has noted that the statute was apparently enacted as a direct response to the general rules of premises liability established by case law [Perez v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 462, 467, 267 Cal. Rptr. 100 ; see Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 ; see also Ch. 421, Premises Liability]. Consequently, a train-jumper may recover damages from a railroad only if the railroad expressly authorized the conduct or the railway committed willful misconduct. The statute therefore provides immunity to a railroad for an alleged "implied invitation" to engage in train-jumping by reason of the railroad's failure to erect barriers at locations where that activity is common [Perez v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 462, 467-469, 267 Cal. Rptr. 100] . Civ. Code § 1714.7 does not provide immunity to the railroad if the train was stationary when the person climbed onto it [Wiley v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 177, 191, 269 Cal. Rptr. 240] .

For a form of affirmative defense for use in an answer to a complaint based on negligence when plaintiff was a trespasser injured while getting on, riding on, or getting off a moving train, see § 485.156.

Even in cases not covered by Civ. Code § 1714.7, a plaintiff's status as a trespasser may have a bearing on the question of liability when, for example, it is evidence that plaintiff's conduct was negligent under the circumstances [Jarvis v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 246, 253, 191 Cal. Rptr. 29 ; see Wiley v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 177, 269 Cal. Rptr. 240 (Civ. Code § 1714.7 inapplicable, and plaintiff trespasser found to be 75 percent at fault, but defendant's motion for new trial granted on ground of jury misconduct); see also § 485.67[1]].

[3] Duty to Construct and Maintain Safe Premises

[a] Tracks

A railroad has a duty to keep the portion of its tracks ordinarily crossed by intending passengers in a safe condition [Aydlott v. Key Sys. Transit Co. (1930) 104 Cal. App. 621, 627, 286 P. 456] . For example, a railroad may be liable for injuries to a person who falls under a train due to the failure of the railroad to keep the ground beneath its tracks paved and free of holes and depressions [see Aydlott v. Key Sys. Transit Co. (1930) 104 Cal. App. 621, 626-627, 286 P. 456 ; see also § 485.62[1][a] regarding the duty of care owed to passengers].

An unsafe condition of the rails alone is not enough to support a cause of action against the railroad, however. The plaintiff must prove that the condition was a cause of the accident [Dull v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1938) 27 Cal. App. 2d 473, 476, 81 P.2d 158] . For example, evidence that rails of a track protruded over the fill-in between the rails, which was rough and broken near both rails, has been held insufficient as a matter of law to prove that the condition of the rails had proximately contributed to the accident in which a person was struck by a train while attempting to drive over a crossing [Dull v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1938) 27 Cal. App. 2d 473, 475-476, 81 P.2d 158] . For discussion of a railroad's duty to construct and maintain crossings over tracks generally, see § 485.105[3]. For discussion of negligence in the operation of a railroad at a crossing generally, see § 485.62[5].

[b] Crossings

Every railroad company has the duty to construct and maintain crossings in good condition and to keep that part of its right-of-way at a public crossing reasonably safe for use by members of the general public [City of Oakland v. Schenck (1925) 197 Cal. 456, 463, 241 P. 545 ; Pitcher v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 712, 716, 34 Cal. Rptr. 614] . The crossing may include not only that part within the intersecting roadway, but also that part within an adjoining sidewalk [Pitcher v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 712, 716, 34 Cal. Rptr. 614] . The rule applies to crossings laid out after construction of the railway as well as to those in existence at the time of the construction of the railway [City of Oakland v. Schenck (1925) 197 Cal. 456, 463, 241 P. 545] . The duty of a railroad company to maintain safely the crossing over its tracks where they occupy a portion of the highway rests not only on the corporation that originally constructed the tracks, but also on whatever railroad company thereafter exercises the franchise [County of Alameda v. Southern Pac. Co. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 479, 484, 11 Cal. Rptr. 751, 360 P.2d 327] . The duty of the railroad company is to exercise reasonable or ordinary care with regard to the maintenance of the crossing [Peri v. Los Angeles Junction Ry. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 111, 120, 137 P.2d 441] . A railroad company may be liable for failing to maintain crossing in safe condition when ruts, holes, and depressions immediately adjacent to track cause a driver's truck to be thrown out of control and damaged [see County of Alameda v. Southern Pac. Co. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 479, 485, 11 Cal. Rptr. 751, 360 P.2d 327] .

No railroad crossing may be constructed without first obtaining the permission of the Public Utilities Commission [see Pub. Util. Code § 1201]. The PublicUtilities Commission has the power to prescribe the manner and terms of operation, and the maintenance, use, and protection of public railroad crossings [Pub. Util. Code § 1202]. When the Commission imposes an obligation on a railroad company to maintain its crossing in a certain way, the obligation is for the benefit, protection, and safety of the members of the public who use the crossing [see Pitcher v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 712, 716, 34 Cal. Rptr. 614] . For discussion of violation of Commission regulations as negligence per se, see § 485.64[1]. For discussion of a railroad's negligent operation at a crossing, see § 485.62[4][a].

[c] Signalling Devices and Warnings

A railroad company has a duty to install crossing signals, or to upgrade existing signals, when the peculiar characteristics of a crossing call for such protection [Romo v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 909, 916, 139 Cal. Rptr. 787] . When, for example, a driver's view of approaching trains is obstructed by buildings near to a well-traveled crossing, a jury may find that the lack of a wigwag or warning bell at the crossing constitutes a failure to use reasonable care in warning traffic of the danger [Downey v. Santa Fe Transp. Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 720, 726-727, 286 P.2d 40] . Evidence of custom or business practice of furnishing warning devices under circumstances similar to the case at bar is admissible for the consideration of the jury as it relates to the feasibility of installing and maintain gates at crossings such as the one in the case [Jensen v. Southern Pac. Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 67, 74, 276 P.2d 703 , disapproved on other grounds, Alarid v. Vanier (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 617, 623-624, 327 P.2d 897] . Evidence of the use by the defendant railroad company of gates at other grade crossings is admissible as long as all the crossings are substantially similar, taking into account the amount of vehicular and pedestrian traffic going over the crossings [Jensen v. Southern Pac. Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 67, 74, 276 P.2d 703 , disapproved on other grounds, Alarid v. Vanier (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 617, 623-624, 327 P.2d 897] . For a form of complaint for use in an action to recover for personal injury and property damage caused by a railroad's failure to install a signal or sound warning at a grade crossing, see § 485.151. For a form of complaint for use in a wrongful death action based on a railroad's failure to install a signal or sound warning at a grade crossing, see § 485.152.

A railroad company has a duty to keep signalling devices at crossings in proper condition and repair, if the railroad had actual or constructive notice of the failure of the device to operate properly [Will v. Southern Pac. Co. (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 468, 476, 116 P.2d 44] . The degree of care required of the railroad in this regard is the degree of care that a prudent person would use under like circumstances [Will v. Southern Pac. Co. (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 468, 476, 116 P.2d 44] . When a crossing is equipped with a signal that does not operate uniformly and causes a person to rely on the fact that the signal will operate if it is dangerous to cross, the failure of the signal to operate creates a trap that lures travelers into a dangerous situation, and the railroad may be liable for the injuries caused by this situation [Startup v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 866, 869, 180 P.2d 896 ; Mallett v. Southern Pac. Co. (1937) 20 Cal. App. 2d 500, 507, 510, 68 P.2d 281] . If a railroad maintains signals at a crossing, even if it is not required by law to install them, the public has a right to rely on the exercise of reasonable care on the part of the railroad company to keep them in good repair and efficient working condition [Mallett v. Southern Pac. Co. (1937) 20 Cal. App. 2d 500, 507, 510, 68 P.2d 281] .

The fact that a warning bell does not ring when a train approaches does not necessarily give rise to an inference that the railroad company was negligent in maintaining the bell [Vaca v. Southern Pac. Co. (1928) 91 Cal. App. 470, 480-481, 267 P. 346] . The plaintiff has the burden of submitting evidence to show that the bell did not ring, and that the failure to ring was due to the railroad's negligence [Vaca v. Southern Pac. Co. (1928) 91 Cal. App. 470, 480, 267 P. 346] . The mere fact that the plaintiff proves that the bell did not ring does not permit the inference that its failure to do so was caused by defendant's negligence because it may have been due, instead, to some cause for which the defendant was not responsible [Vaca v. Southern Pac. Co. (1928) 91 Cal. App. 470, 480-481, 267 P. 346] . If there is no evidence that the defendant railroad had actual or constructive notice of the malfunction of the bell, that the railroad had failed to inspect the bell, or that in the exercise of ordinary care the railroad should have done anything more than it did to insure that the bell would ring when trains approached, the railroad cannot be found liable for negligence [Vaca v. Southern Pac. Co. (1928) 91 Cal. App. 470, 481, 267 P. 346] .

The continuous operation of a wigwag signal at a crossing when no train is in the vicinity has been held to create a dangerous situation in which motorists crossing the tracks would assume that no train is approaching [Rice v. Southern Pac. Co. (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 701, 706-708, 55 Cal. Rptr. 840 (for over an hour at a time)]. The operation of a wigwag system that allows the wigwag signal to cease operating when a train clears the crossing, even if it is immediately followed by another train, will support a finding of negligence on the part of the railroad [Startup v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 866, 869, 870, 180 P.2d 896] .

At points along a railroad track other than a road crossing or a train station, a railroad is under no duty to warn of the hazards of walking along a track while a train is passing. Recognizing that the danger of standing next to a moving train is common knowledge, the courts have concluded that the presence of railroad tracks themselves serve as a warning of an open and obvious danger that requires no further warning sign [Christoff v. Union Pac. R.R. Co. (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 118, 126-127, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 6] .

Gov. Code § 14036.8 provides that, as part of a railroad public safetyawareness program, the Department of Transportation must provide appropriate warning signs to be posted on or adjacent to railroad property within 1,000 feet of schools where upgrading of railroad lines has resulted in an increase of operating speeds of passenger trains on those lines by 20 mph or more on or after December 1, 1991 [Gov. Code § 14036.8(a), (b)]. For the purposes of Gov. Code § 14036.8, a "school" is any public school that maintains classes in kindergarten or of grades 1 to 12, inclusive [Gov. Code § 14036.8(c)]. The signs must be posted on the school side of the railroad property at a site to be determined by school officials and railroad representatives. At the request of the department, a railroad that owns the property involved must install and maintain the signs. The signs must be designed to communicate both in words in pictures, using internationally recognized symbols, to warn of train-related hazards [Gov. Code § 14036.8(b)]. The installation and maintenance of these warning signs does not in any way affect the liability of the state or any of its agencies, officers, or employees, or of the owner of the railroad right-of-way, on account of personal injury or property damage alleged to have been caused, in whole or in part, by a sign, or the installation or maintenance of a sign, installed and maintained pursuant to Gov. Code § 14036.8 [Gov. Code § 14036.8(d)].

For a discussion of a railroad's negligence in operation at crossings generally, see § 485.62[4][a]. For a discussion of the award of punitive damages for failure to provide sufficient signals and warnings at a crossing, see § 485.66. For a form of allegation for use in a personal injury or wrongful death action based on a railroad's failure to repair a signal or sound warning at a grade crossing, see § 485.153.

[d] Cattle Guards and Fences

Every railroad must make and maintain good and sufficient fences on both sides of its tracks and property [Pub. Util. Code § 7626]. If the railroad does not do so, and if its engine or cars kill or maim any cattle or other domestic animal on its line of road, except where the road runs through or on public land, the railroad must pay a fair market price for the animal to the animal's owner, unless the killing or maiming occurred through the fault or neglect of the animal's owner [

Pub. Util. Code § 7626; see Pub. Util. Code § 7631]. For a form of complaint for use by an owner whose cattle have been injured or killed by a railroad's failure to maintain a proper fence, see Ch. 23, Animals: Civil Liability .

Pub. Util. Code § 7626 may also raise a jury question as to whether or not a fence was required in an area where it was known that children played on and around the railroad tracks. Although there is no provision made for a small child to recover for his or her personal injuries for the railroad's failure to provide a fence, there is nothing in the statute that limits the railroad's responsibility for such injuries, as long as a jury determines that ordinary care required the railroad to fence its right-of-way and that the absence of a fence, either alone or in connection with other negligence of the railroad, proximately caused injuries to a child [see Staggs v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 492, 505, 287 P.2d 817] .

A railroad company is bound to use reasonable diligence in keeping its right-of-way fences in repair, but it need not resort to extraordinary means, such as the maintenance of a special patrol, to insure that its fences will not be broken or that they are promptly repaired if they are broken [Jesus Maria Rancho v. Southern Pac. Co. (1918) 36 Cal. App. 375, 379, 172 P. 183] .

If a railroad enters into an agreement with the owner of land over which the the railway is located by which the owner agrees, for an agreed price, to construct and maintain a good and sufficient fence, and if the owner fails to construct and maintain the fence, the railroad is relieved and exonerated from all claims for damages arising out of the killing or maiming of any animals belonging to the owner [Pub. Util. Code § 7627]. In such a case, the owners of the animals are responsible for any damages or loss that may accrue to the railroad corporation from the animals being on the track because of the fence not being constructed, unless it is shown that the loss or damage occurred through the negligence or fault of the corporation, its officers, agents, or employees [Pub. Util. Code § 7627].

[4] Duty to Operate Trains Safely

[a] Approaching Crossings

A railroad grade crossing is a place of danger, and a train has the right of way at the crossing [Akers v. City of Palo Alto (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 109, 120-121, 14 Cal. Rptr. 767 ; Nemer v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 445, 451, 319 P.2d 770] . However, the operator of a railroad train has the duty to exercise reasonable or ordinary care at crossings towards persons traveling on the highway and over the crossing [Peri v. Los Angeles Junction Ry. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 111, 120, 137 P.2d 441 ; Romo v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 909, 916, 139 Cal. Rptr. 787] . A train crew cannot assume that a highway in the middle of a city will be clear. They must keep a reasonable lookout for the presence of intersecting traffic [Herrera v. Southern Pac. Co. (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 781, 785, 318 P.2d 784] . The railroad is not relieved of the duty to maintain such a lookout by the installation of automatic signals at a crossing [Herrera v. Southern Pac. Co. (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 781, 786, 318 P.2d 784] . The duty to keep a lookout for traffic at a crossing implies as a corollary the further obligation to have the train under such control as may be reasonably necessary to deal with situations that an ordinarily prudent operator would anticipate [Herrera v. Southern Pac. Co. (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 781, 785, 318 P.2d 784] .

The standard of care imposed on the railroad operator at a crossing is that of an ordinarily prudent person under the circumstances [Peri v. Los Angeles Junction Ry. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 111, 120, 137 P.2d 441] . The question of the negligence ofthe railroad operator is ordinarily one of fact in crossing cases, as it is in other negligence cases [Peri v. Los Angeles Junction Ry. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 111, 120, 137 P.2d 441] . Trains must also take special care at dangerous crossings to pass at a slower rate of speed in proportion to the dangerous character of the crossing [Young v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1929) 208 Cal. 568, 572-573, 283 P. 61] .

For discussion of railroad's liability with regard to excessive speed of train, see § 485.62[4][f]. For a form of allegation for use in a personal injury or wrongful death action based on a railroad's use of excessive speed at a grade crossing, see § 485.154. For discussion of a railroad's duty to maintain adequate warnings and signals at railroad crossings, see § 485.62[3][b].

[b] Blocking Crossing

The unexplained blockading of a street crossing by a railroad train mayconstitute negligence on the part of the railroad company [Hanlon Drydock & Shipbuilding Co. v. Southern Pac. Co. (1928) 92 Cal. App. 230, 234, 268 P. 385] . A railroad cannot unnecessarily and arbitrarily block a railroad crossing without incurring liability for damage proximately resulting from the obstruction [Matoza v. Southern Pac. Co. (1922) 59 Cal. App. 636, 640, 211 P. 252] . A railroad company may be liable for injuries to animals caused by their overgrazing in a field from which their removal was blocked by a train [see Matoza v. Southern Pac. Co. (1922) 59 Cal. App. 636, 641, 211 P. 252] . Plaintiffs can make out a prima facie case of negligence when their property burns to the ground because defendant's train blocked the access of the fire department to the fire [Hanlon Drydock & Shipbuilding Co. v. Southern Pac. Co. (1928) 92 Cal. App. 230, 234, 268 P. 385] .

[c] Avoidance of Persons or Objects on Track

A railroad has a duty to exercise ordinary care towards persons whom the company should expect may be on or near the right-of-way [Smithwick v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1929) 206 Cal. 291, 303-304, 274 P. 980] . The railroad has a duty to keep a lookout for and discover persons on the tracks if it has knowledge that people walk on or cross the tracks regularly in a certain area [Smithwick v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1929) 206 Cal. 291, 303-304, 274 P. 980 ; see Essick v. Union Pac. R.R. Co. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 456, 461, 6 Cal. Rptr. 208] . When a 21-month old child was struck by a train on a railroad right-of-way, for example, and the railroad's employees were aware that members of the public, including both adults and children, were likely to be on the railroad's right-of-way, it was a proper question for a jury whether the exercise of ordinary care or skill included a watchfulness for children in places of danger on or near the tracks [see Staggs v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 492, 501-502, 287 P.2d 817] . For discussion of the duty to keep a lookout in the area of urban crossings, see § 485.62[5].

[d] Backing Up of Train

A railroad may be liable for injuries caused by improper backing procedures. The backing up of a train engine increases the possibility of danger to the public and thereby increases the burden on the train crew to proceed with an awareness of the special dangers involved [Morgan v. Southern Pac. Trans. Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 1006, 1012, 112 Cal. Rptr. 695] . A backing up maneuver by which the engine pushes a boxcar and caboose, conducted at night outside of the railroad yard limits, has been recognized as potentially dangerous [Morgan v. Southern Pac. Trans. Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 1006, 1013, 112 Cal. Rptr. 695] . Factors such as the speed of the maneuver, use of required lights, bells, or whistles, and knowledge on the part of the train crew that pedestrians frequented the area will all be taken into account in determining whether a backing up maneuver was negligently conducted [see Morgan v. Southern Pac. Trans. Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 1006, 1014-1015, 112 Cal. Rptr. 695] . Sufficient evidence of negligence has been found when a train, after switching tracks and picking up empty cars, propelled the cars ahead of the engine, without giving warning by bell or whistle, when the engineer had known or should have had known that workers were on the track and would thereby be endangered [see Barboza v. Pacific Portland Cement Co. (1912) 162 Cal. 36, 39-40, 120 P. 767] . The sounding of warning bells is not sufficient to relieve a railroad of liability for a backing up maneuver if the evidence is not clear as to whether or not the person struck by the train was then in a position to have heard the signal, or whether or not the person would have known what the signal meant, if he or she had heard it [Miller v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1915) 169 Cal. 107, 111, 145 P. 1023] .

[e] Failure to Sound Train Whistle or Signal

Those in charge of a train have the duty to give notice of the approach of the engine when the train is approaching and traveling over a roadway by all warnings reasonably necessary under the conditions existing at the time and place of the accident [Downey v. Santa Fe Transp. Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 720, 727, 286 P.2d 40] . Whether the railroad has complied with that requirement is a question of fact for the jury [Downey v. Santa Fe Transp. Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 720, 727, 286 P.2d 40] .

A railroad must sound a bell, siren, horn, whistle, or similar audible warning device at any public railroad crossing in accordance with federal regulations, except in those areas established as quiet zones [Pub. Util. Code § 7604(a)(1)-(3)]. Under applicable federal regulations, the locomotive horn on the lead locomotive of a train, lite locomotive consist, individual locomotive or lead cab car must be sounded when that locomotive or lead cab car is approaching a public highway-rail grade crossing. Sounding of the locomotive horn with two long blasts, one short blast, and one long blast, must be initiated at a location in accordance with 49 C.F.R. § 222.21(b) and must be repeated or prolonged untilthe locomotive occupies the crossing. This pattern may be varied as necessary if crossings are spaced closely together [49 C.F.R. § 222.21(a)].

Generally, the locomotive horn must begin to be sounded at least 15 seconds, but not more than 20 seconds, before the locomotive enters the crossing, although this requirement does not apply if the horn is defective and the locomotive is being moved for repairs. In addition, if the engineer in good faith is unable to precisely estimate the time of arrival at the crossing, the horn may begin sounding up to 25 seconds before the locomotive enters the crossing [49 C.F.R. § 222.21(b)(2)]. Trains, locomotive consists, and individual locomotives traveling at speeds in excess of 60 miles per hour must not begin sounding the horn more than one-quarter mile in advance of the nearest public highway-rail grade crossing, even if the advance warning provided by the locomotive horn will beless than 15 seconds in duration [49 C.F.R. § 222.21(b)(3)].

Trains, locomotive consists, and individual locomotives that have stopped in close proximity to a public highway-rail grade crossing may approach the crossing and sound the locomotive horn for less than 15 seconds before the locomotive enters the crossing, if the locomotive engineer is able to determine that the crossing is not obstructed and either [49 C.F.R. § 222.21(d)]:

- The crossing is equipped with automatic flashing lights and gates and the gates are fully lowered; or
- There are no conflicting highway movements approaching the crossing.

These rules do not restrict the use of a bell, siren, horn, whistle, or similar audible warning device during an emergency or other similar situation authorized in 49 C.F.R. § 222.23 [Pub. Util. Code § 7604(a)(4)].

For a discussion of when the violation of a railroad safety statute constitutes negligence per se, see § 485.64[1].

In order for liability to attach to the railroad for failure to comply with the whistle blowing requirements of Pub. Util. Code § 7604, the failure to comply must have been the proximate cause of the accident [DeArmond v. Southern Pac. Co. (1967) 253 Cal. App. 2d 648, 655, 61 Cal. Rptr. 844 ; for general discussion of proximate cause, see Ch. 380, Negligence]. Evidence that a plaintiff was in a position to hear a whistle, if it had been sounded, justifies a finding that if such warning would have been given, a collision would have been avoided [Peri v. Los Angeles Junction Ry. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 111, 126, 137 P.2d 441] . Generally, the absence of a signal from an approaching train becomes inconsequential when its approach is seen, but if a warning could have been given soon enough for a driver crossing the tracks to avoid the collision, the jury is justified in concluding that the railroad was negligent [Marquis v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 335, 345, 44 Cal. Rptr. 367] .

For forms of complaint and complaint allegations including allegations of negligence based on a failure to sound a proper warning at a railroad crossing, see §§ 485.151 -485.153.

[f] Excessive Speed

A railroad operator is free, in the exercise of reasonable care, to travel at high speeds, especially when traveling through sparsely settled areas, and to assume that cars approaching the tracks will exercise reasonable care to stop or cross safely, unless the driver's conduct reasonably alerts the engineer to the fact that the driver is not exercising or will not exercise ordinary care [Marquis v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 335, 346-347, 44 Cal. Rptr. 367] . However, in cities and towns and other well-populated areas, trains may not be run at any rate of speed that the railroad desires [Herrera v. Southern Pac. Co. (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 781, 787, 318 P.2d 784] . While no particular rate of speed is negligence per se in the absence of a statute or ordinance, a railroad cannot run its trains under all conditions at any rate of speed it chooses. It must regulate its speed with regard for the safety of people and property, and a rate of speed that may be allowable in a thinly settled part of the country where few people cross the tracks may be so dangerous as to constitute negligence on the part of the railroad when driving a train through a city or village where many people are likely to cross the tracks [Young v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1929) 208 Cal. 568, 573, 283 P. 61 ; see also § 485.64[1]]. As the standard of duty shifts with the circumstances developed in a case, the question whether or not a rate of speed is excessive is one of fact for the jury [Young v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1929) 208 Cal. 568, 572-574, 283 P. 61] .

One of the circumstances to be considered in determining whether or not the rate of speed of the train at that time and place was negligent is the visibility of the train to the person crossing the tracks. It may be negligent to propel a train through a crossing if the view of one approaching it is obstructed [Stout v. Southern Pac. R.R. Co. (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 491, 502, 274 P.2d 194] . When the view of the track is obstructed, for example, by another set of tracks where two trains may pass at the same time, and the noise of one train may obscure the warning noise made by the other train, the situation would call for a reduced speed commensurate with the danger of the situation [see Stout v. Southern Pac. R.R. Co. (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 491, 502, 274 P.2d 194] .

Although a rate of speed imposed by the railroad itself does not have the force of law, it is an admission on the part of the railroad that a higher speed would be improper in that locality [Herrera v. Southern Pac. Co. (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 781, 788, 318 P.2d 784 ; see § 485.64[3]]. It is also a question for the jury whether or not the company-imposed maximum rate of speed is appropriate at the particular place at which the accident occurred [Herrera v. Southern Pac. Co. (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 781, 788, 318 P.2d 784] . Sometimes the issue of thespeed of the train is combined with other factors, such as the failure to sound a train whistle or obstruction of the view of the train, and all the combined factors must be examined to determine whether under the circumstances the speed of the train was reasonable [see Rice v. Southern Pac. Co. (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 701, 708-709, 55 Cal. Rptr. 840] .

A railroad company's violation of a speed ordinance raises a rebuttable presumption of negligence [see Evid. Code § 669(a); see also Lininger v. San Francisco, Vallejo & Napa Valley R.R. Co. (1912) 18 Cal. App. 411, 418, 123 P. 235 ; see generally § 485.64[1] regarding the presumption of negligence arising from a railroad's violation of safety statutes generally]. The speed violation alone does not, however, create liability [Whinery v. Southern Pac. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 126, 128, 85 Cal. Rptr. 649] . For a plaintiff to recover, the negligence must also have been a proximate cause of the accident and the injuries to plaintiff [Whinery v. Southern Pac. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 126, 128, 85 Cal. Rptr. 649 ; see Evid. Code § 669(a)(2)]. If, however, the uncontroverted facts establish that the violation of the ordinance was the proximate cause of the accident, and no other deduction or inference may reasonably be drawn from these facts, then the violation of the ordinance is a proximate cause as a matter of law [Whinery v. Southern Pac. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 126, 128, 85 Cal Rptr 649] . The issue ofproximate cause becomes a question of law, not fact, when the jury cannot reasonably find that the collision would have occurred without the violation of the speed ordinance [Whinery v. Southern Pac. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 126, 128-129, 85 Cal. Rptr. 649] .

For a form of allegation for use in a personal injury or wrongful death action based on a railroad's use of excessive speed at a grade crossing, see § 485.154. For a form of complaint containing a count for use in recovering damages under Pub. Util. Code § 2106 if the defendant railroad violated a Public Utilities Commission order, see § 485.151.

[1] Negligence of Employees

If the employees of the railroad are found to be negligent in their operation of a train, the company is responsible for the negligence under the doctrine of respondeat superior [McNulty v. Southern Pac. Co. (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 841, 852, 216 P.2d 534] . If the charge of negligence against the railroad company rests solely on respondeat superior and not on the company's own independent tort, exoneration of the train crew will exonerate the company [Jensen v. Southern Pac. Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 67, 69, 276 P.2d 703 , disapproved on other grounds in Alarid v. Vanier (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 617, 623-624, 327 P.2d 897] . However, if concurrent negligence of the train crew and the company is charged, or if the company has been negligent independently of its employees, then exoneration of the employees will not exonerate the company [Jensen v. Southern Pac. Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 67, 69-70, 276 P.2d 703 , disapproved on other grounds in Alarid v. Vanier (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 617, 623-624, 327 P.2d 897] . If the negligent act is done without the express direction of the railroad company, then its negligence will be predicated on respondeat superior only. If, however, the negligent act was predicated on the express direction of the company, for example, by directing the maintenance of a certain speed, the liability of the company and the employee is joint [Benson v. Southern Pac. Co. (1918) 177 Cal. 777, 779, 171 P. 948 ; Jensen v. Southern Pac. Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 67, 69-70, 276 P.2d 703 , disapproved on other grounds in Alarid v. Vanier (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 617, 623-624, 327 P.2d 897] . When the liability of the railroad company and an employee is joint, the company is not prejudiced by a failure to find against the employee [Jensen v. Southern Pac. Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 67, 70, 276 P.2d 703 , disapproved on other grounds in Alarid v. Vanier (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 617, 623-624, 327 P.2d 897] . For a general discussion of employer's liability based on respondeat superior, see Ch. 248, Employer's Liability for Employee's Torts .

[2] Negligence of Lessee

A corporation that is the owner of a railroad is presumed to be controlling and in possession of the operation of it [Johnson v. Southern Pac. R.R. Co. (1908) 154 Cal. 285, 289, 97 P. 520] . That presumption is not rebutted by proof that some other company was operating cars over the railroad at the time of the accident [Johnson v. Southern Pac. R.R. Co. (1908) 154 Cal. 285, 293-294, 97 P. 520] . Under the presumption, the burden is on the owner to show, when the question of liability for injury by moving cars arises, that the cars that inflicted the injury were under the control and operation of another company because of a lease of the railroad [Johnson v. Southern Pac. R.R. Co. (1908) 154 Cal. 285, 293-294, 97 P. 520] . However, when it is shown that a lease was executed under which the lessee agreed to maintain the property and operate the railroad with suitable protection to the public, the lessee is liable as if it were operating the road as owner [Barrett v. Southern Pac. Co. (1929) 207 Cal. 154, 161-162, 277 P. 481] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Injuries to Passengers and Other Persons

42-485 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 485.64

§ 485.64 Effect of Safety Statute, Ordinance, or Regulation

[1] Violation Creates Presumption of Negligence

It is presumed that a person has failed to exercise due care if he or she has violated a statute, ordinance, or regulation, the violation proximately caused death or injury to person or property, the death or injury resulted from an occurrence of the nature that the statute or regulation was designed to prevent, and the plaintiff was one of a class of persons that the statute was meant to protect [Evid. Code § 669(a)]. The presumption may be rebutted by proof that the one who violated the statute did what an ordinarily prudent person, who desired to comply with the law, would have done under the circumstances [Evid. Code § 669(b)(1)]. If the presumption is not rebutted, a plaintiff is entitled to have the jury instructed that the railroad is negligent [see Wilcox v. Southern Pac. Co. (1961) 190 Cal. App. 2d 548, 551, 12 Cal. Rptr. 207] . For a general discussion of the presumption of negligence arising from a statutory violation, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

A statutory violation alone creates no liability unless the negligence was also the proximate cause of the accident and plaintiff's injuries [Whinery v. Southern Pac. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 126, 128, 85 Cal. Rptr. 649 ; see Evid. Code § 669(a)(2)]. However, the question of proximate cause becomes one of law when the facts are uncontroverted and only one deduction or inference may reasonably be drawn therefrom [Whinery v. Southern Pac. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 126, 128, 85 Cal. Rptr. 649] . The negligence of a railroad in violating a speed ordinance, for example, is the proximate cause of a collision as a matter of law when the collision that was meant to be prevented by the ordinance was the very thing that did occur, and when the accident would not have occurred but for the violation of the ordinance [see Whinery v. Southern Pac. Co. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 126, 128-132, 85 Cal. Rptr. 649] .

For a discussion of a separate theory of recovery based on Civ. Code § 2106, which provides that a public utility is liable for damages caused by a violation ofa Constitutional provision, a statute, or an order or decision of the Public Utilities Commission, see § 485.68.

[2] Compliance Does Not Per Se Negate Negligence

Statutory regulations constitute only the minimum measure of care required by a railroad, and it is usually a matter for the jury to determine whether or not something more than the minimum was required under the circumstances of the case [Hogue v. Southern Pac. Co. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 253, 258, 81 Cal. Rptr. 765, 460 P.2d 965 ; Dragash v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 233, 241, 326 P.2d 649] . In prescribing safety regulations, whether by legislative enactment expressed in a statute or by action of the Public Utilities Commission expressed in an order, the state has never stated that compliance with those statutes or regulations constitutes a complete discharge of the railroad's duties toward the public [Jensen v. Southern Pac. Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 67, 72, 276 P.2d 703 , disapproved on other grounds in Alarid v. Vanier (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 617, 623-624, 327 P.2d 897] . Therefore, a railroad company will not necessarily be held free from negligence even though it may have literally complied with safety statutes or rules. The circumstances may require it to do more [Hogue v. Southern Pac. Co. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 253, 258, 81 Cal. Rptr. 765, 460 P.2d 965 ; Peri v. Los Angeles Junction Ry. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 111, 126, 137 P2d 441] . If, for example, the peculiar characteristics of a crossing call for the installation of automatic protection or the upgrading of existing automatic protection, the railroad may be guilty of negligence in failing to provide such protection even if it has complied with existing safety regulations [Hinkle v. Southern Pac. Co. (1939) 12 Cal. 2d 691, 701-702, 87 P.2d 349 ; see Romo v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1977) 71 Cal. App. 3d 909, 916, 139 Cal. Rptr. 787 ; see generally §§ 485.62[3][c] and 485.62[4][e] regarding arailroad's failure properly to maintain and construct signals and the negligent operation of signals].

It is error to deny a jury instruction stating that compliance with Public Utilities Commission regulations regarding protective devices at railroad crossings is merely the minimum measure of care [Dragash v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 233, 241-242, 326 P.2d 649] . A jury instruction is proper if it states that if an ordinarily prudent person in the exercise of ordinary care would have supplied additional warning and safety devices over those that were present at the time of the accident, the defendant railroad would have been required to supply them and would have been negligent for failing to do so [Lloyd v. Southern Pac. Co. (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 626, 637-638, 245 P.2d 583] .

[3] Violation of Company Rule Compared

The violation of a railroad's own internal operating rule is not negligence per se, but it is a circumstance for the jury to consider on the issue of the railroad's negligence [Powell v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 40, 46, 216 P.2d 448] . For example, a railroad's rule requiring a reduction in speed well in advance of a highway crossing is admissible in evidence as bearing on the standard of care the railroad thought appropriate to insure the safety of others at its track crossings, but it does not establish plaintiff's right to recover [see Powell v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 40, 46, 216 P.2d 448] .

Company rules do not establish the standard of care of the railroad. That standard is always that of the person of ordinary prudence under the circumstances [Davis v. Johnson (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 466, 473, 275 P.2d 563] . Thus, although an instruction is proper that states that the violation of the railroad's rule is not negligence per se but is a circumstance that the jury may consider in determining the question of negligence, the failure to give it is merely an omission of an instruction on the evidence rather than an omission of an instruction on matter of law [Davis v. Johnson (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 466, 472-473, 275 P.2d 563] .

§ 485.65 Evidence of Prior Accidents or Safeguards

Evidence of a prior railroad accident that occurred under substantially the same general circumstances as the accident in question, and that is not too remote in time, is admissible to prove the existence of a dangerous condition and notice thereof to the railroad [Dragash v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 233, 242, 326 P.2d 649] . Evidence of collisions at other crossings can be excluded, however, if the plaintiff fails to establish that the conditions of traffic, the types of signals, and other physical characteristics were similar at the other crossings [Nemer v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 445, 454, 319 P.2d 770] .

§ 485.66 Punitive Damages

Three essential elements must be present to raise a negligent act to the level of willful misconduct: (1) actual or constructive knowledge of the peril to be apprehended; (2) actual or constructive knowledge that injury is a probable, as opposed to a possible, result of the danger; and (3) conscious failure to act to avoid the peril [Morgan v. Southern Pac. Trans. Co. (1974) 37 Cal. App. 3d 1006, 1012, 112 Cal. Rptr. 695] . Punitive damages may be awarded if the defendant railroad's actions show a state of mind of conscious disregard for the safety of others [Seimon v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 600, 608-609, 136 Cal. Rptr. 787 ; see Civ. Code § 3294(a), (c)(1) (definition of "malice" for purposes of awarding punitive damages as including willful and conscious disregard for rights or safety of others].

A railroad company acts with "conscious disregard of safety" if it is aware of a highly dangerous condition and, in spite of that knowledge, fails to take any corrective action [Seimon v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1977)136 Cal. Rptr. 787] . For example, the failure to provide warning signs or lights at a dangerous blind crossing has been held to show a conscious and callous indifference to or disregard of probable harm to motorists, rather than merely benign neglect on the part of the railroad, and so constitute a basis for an award of punitive damages [see Seimon v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 600, 608-609, 136 Cal. Rptr. 787] . If, however, there is nothing suggesting that the crossing itself was particularly unusual or that vision of oncoming trains was obstructed, the failure to place warning lights or barriers on the crossing is not sufficient to constitute malice [see Schreefel v. Okuly (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 818, 828, 192 Cal. Rptr. 402] .

A railroad company's procedure of not applying brakes unless a collision appeared imminent, as opposed to unavoidable, is not by itself a basis for a finding of willful misconduct [Bains v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 902, 906-907, 128 Cal. Rptr. 778] . The fact that the railroad installed an automatic gate after the accident and had been aware of automobile-train collisions at other railroad crossings in the area is germane to the question of negligence but does not itself show wilful misconduct [Bains v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 902, 907, 128 Cal. Rptr. 778] .

[1] Generally

When, in an action for negligence, the plaintiff's injuries resulted from negligence on his or her own part as well as on the defendant's part, the plaintiff's total recovery is reduced by an amount proportionate to his or her own fault [see Li v. Yellow Cab Co. (1975) 13 Cal. 3d 804, 828-829, 119 Cal. Rptr. 858, 532 P.2d 1226] . For general discussion and forms relating to the defense of comparative negligence, see Ch. 380, Negligence . For a form of affirmative defense based on the comparative negligence of the plaintiff in action against a railroad, see § 485.155.

In a negligence action against a railroad, it is ordinarily a question of fact whether the plaintiff took reasonable and sufficient precautions for his or her safety under the circumstances [Will v. Southern Pac. Co. (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 468, 475, 116 P.2d 44] , as is the question whether the plaintiff's comparative negligence, if any, was a proximate cause of the claimed injuries [see Toschi v. Christian (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 354, 362, 149 P.2d 848] .

If a plaintiff was a passenger, and incurred his or her injury violating either the railroad's written rules or verbal instructions, his or her conduct may, in addition to constituting comparative negligence, relieve the railroad from all liability under Pub. Util. Code § 7654 [see § 485.62[2][a]]. If a plaintiff was a trespasser, his or her conduct on a moving train may similarly relieve relieve the railroad from all liability under Civ. Code § 1715.7 [see § 485.105[7]]. A plaintiff's status as a trespasser on railroad property may also be relevant to the issue of his or her comparative negligence [Jarvis v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 246, 253, 191 Cal. Rptr. 29 ; see also § 485.62[b]].

[2] Stop, Look, and Listen Rule

Because railroad tracks themselves are a warning of danger, a person must take precautions for his or her own safety when attempting to cross them, even if the railroad has installed some system to warn of approaching trains [Startup v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 866, 871, 180 P.2d 896] . A plaintiff's duty in approaching railroad tracks is to use every reasonable opportunity, depending on all the surrounding circumstances, to look and listen for the approach of the train in order to avoid hazard [see Anello v. Southern Pac. Co. (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 317, 321-322, 344 P.2d

Under the "stop, look, and listen" rule, a driver whose view of the tracks is obstructed is not required as a matter of law to stop before crossing the tracks [Pokora v. Wabash Ry. Co. (1934) 292 U.S. 98, 104-106, 54 S. Ct. 580, 78 L. Ed. 1149 ; see Marquis v. St. Louis-San Francisco Ry. Co. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 335, 345, 44 Cal. Rptr. 367] . A driver's failure to stop when his or her view is obstructed does not constitute negligence as a matter of law, although it may constitute negligence in fact if a reasonably prudent person would not have acted as plaintiff did under the circumstances [Lucas v. Southern Pac. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 124, 139, 96 Cal. Rptr. 356] . For example, a driver might not be negligent for failure to stop, look, and listen, if he or she reasonably relied on the absence of a signal or flagman at the crossing to assume that it would be safe to cross [see Crawford v. Southern Pac. Co. (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 427, 434, 439-440, 45 P.2d 183 ; Green v. Key Sys. Transit Lines (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 512, 519, 253 P.2d 780] . For further discussion of a driver's duty of care at a railroad crossing, see, § 485.62[5].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Injuries to Passengers and Other Persons

42-485 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 485.68

§ 485.68 Statutory Action Against Public Utility

A railroad, as a public utility, is liable for all loss, damages, or injury that is caused or that results when the railroad does, causes to be done, or permits any act, matter, or thing prohibited or declared unlawful or that omits to do any act, matter, or thing required to be done by the Constitution, a state law, or an order or decision of the Public Utilities Commission [Pub. Util. Code § 2106; see Cal. Const. art. XII, § 3 (public utility defined)]. An action to recover for such loss, damage, or injury may be brought in any court of competent jurisdiction by any corporation or person [Pub. Util. Code § 2106]. For example, a cause of action for monetary damages is stated under Pub. Util. Code § 2106 when the plaintiffalleges he or she was injured by defendant's violation of an explicit statutory provision of the Public Utilities Code [see Gay Law Students Assn. v. Pacific Tel. & Tel. Co. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 458, 475, 486, 156 Cal. Rptr. 14, 595 P.2d 592 (violation of Pub. Util. Code § 453).

Pub. Util. Code § 2106 appears to authorize a separate theory of recovery of damages, in addition to negligence, when the defendant railroad has violated a constitutional provision, statute, or Commission order or decision. Therefore, the basis for an action under Pub. Util. Code § 2106, such as defendant's violation of a safety statute, should be distinguished from the evidentiary presumption of negligence that may arise under Evid. Code 669 in a negligence action when plaintiff can show at trial that an applicable statute created a duty of care [see § 485.64]. When a cause of action is predicated on defendant's negligence only, plaintiff need not plead or refer to a statute even if relied on as creating a duty. The statute is merely evidentiary, and may be introduced at trial without being pleaded [Jackson v. Hardy (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 6, 12, 160 P.2d 161 (statute)].

If the court finds in an action brought under Pub. Util. Code § 2106 that the defendant's unlawful act or omission was wilful, it may, in addition to actual damages, award exemplary damages [Pub. Util. Code § 2106]. One court has stated in dictum that punitive damages are available under Pub. Util. Code § 2106 for violation of a safety statute only if the violation was authorized by the railroad [Seimon v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 600, 609, n. 3, 136 Cal. Rptr. 787 (dictum)]. For a comparison with a court's award of punitive damages in a negligence action, see § 485.66.

For a discussion of the procedures regarding orders and decisions of the Public Utilities Commission, see Ch. 480, Public Utilities . For a form of complaint containing a count based on Pub. Util. Code § 2106 for use by persons injured in an automobile-train collision, see § 485.151.

§ 485.83 Decisions

[1] Boiler Inspection Act

Boiler Inspection Act (49 U.S.C.S. § 20701 et seq.) imposes absolute liability on employer without regard to negligence when violation of act results in injury to worker. Lilly v. Grand Trunk W. R.R. Co. (1943) 317 U.S. 481, 485, 63 S. Ct. 347, 87 L. Ed. 411 .

Jury instructions on Boiler Inspection Act (BIA) (49 U.S.C.S. § 20701 et seq.) were reversible error for allowing jury to find violation merely because engineer's seat was not in proper condition, rather than requiring showing that seat defect created safety hazard; evidence of failure to furnish proper and safe seat and evidence ofinjury due to attempt to replace seat was sufficient evidence of causation on BIA claim for denial of motion for directed verdict; refusal to instruct jury that BIA violation was proximate or direct cause of injury was not prejudicial error. Oglesby v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (9th Cir. 1993) 6 F.3d 603, 606-610

Under former 45 U.S.C.S. § 23 [now see 49 U.S.C.S. § 20701], carrier by railroad is charged with absolute duty not to use any locomotive in improper or unsafe condition for use in service to which it was assigned. Minehart v. Southern Pac. Co. (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 486, 488, 288 P.2d 999

[2] Federal Employers' Liability Act (FELA)

[a] Generally

In most FELA (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60) cases, finding of nonemployment as doing no more than depriving plaintiff of various procedural and proof advantages of FELA, since common-law negligence action against nonemployer is generally available in alternative. Kelley v. Southern Pac. Co. (1974) 419 U.S. 318, 321 n.3, 95 S. Ct. 472, 42 L. Ed. 2d 498

Railroad employee's claim for aggravation of emotional condition and anxiety resulting from discharge, when condition originated from railroad collision, as not cognizable under FELA but only under Railway Labor Act (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 151-188) and, hence, evidence relating to discharge as properly excluded in employee's action under FELA. Lewy v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (9th Cir. 1986) 799 F.2d 1281, 1283-1286, 1289-1292

FELA's reference to "negligence" in its main liability provision (45 U.S.C.S. § 51) as not to be read so restrictively as to exclude all intentional torts from coverage. Lewy v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (9th Cir. 1986) 799 F.2d 1281, 1288

[b] Appellate Review

On appeal of FELA case, Court of Appeals as examining (1) de novo any question relating to district court's subject matter jurisdiction under FELA or relating to statutory interpretation of that act; (2) trial court's rulings under Federal Rules of Evidence, Rule 403, which provides basis for excluding relevant evidence, for abuse of discretion; and (3) jury instructions as a whole, in context of entire case, to determine whether they were misleading or inadequate to guide jury's deliberations. Lewy v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (9th Cir. 1986) 799 F.2d 1281, 1286-1287

[c] Arising out of and in Course of Employment

Employee as general rule as deemed to be in course of employment while following only practicable route of immediate ingress and egress from employer's premises. Sullivan v. Matt (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 134, 139, 278 P.2d 499

Both federal and California courts as applying rule that if employer furnishes transportation under control of employer to employee, not as independent act of courtesy, but as actual incident appertaining to employment, and if injury is sustained during transportation, injury arises out of and in course of employment. Northwestern Pac. R.R. Co. v. Industrial Accident Comm'n (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 367, 369, 166 P.2d 334

[d] Assumption of Risk

Common law doctrine of assumption of risk as abolished in FELA actions by 45 U.S.C.S. § 54. Minehart v. Southern Pac. Co. (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 486, 489, 288 P.2d 999 ; McGuigan v. Southern Pac. Co. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 704, 714, 247 P.2d 415

[e] Contributory Negligence

When there is some employer negligence proximately causing accident, violation of rule or instruction by employee as constituting only contributory negligence, to be evaluated on comparative negligence basis under FELA (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60). Cordova v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 161, 170, 18 Cal. Rptr. 144

Contributory negligence as no defense to liability but as considered in mitigation of damages on comparative negligence basis. Cordova v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 161, 170, 18 Cal. Rptr. 144

[f] Damages

Although jury has task of determining present value of future damages, trial judge may recommend to jury one or more methods of calculating present value so long as judge does not in effect preempt jury's function; trial judge's instructions to jury with regard to discount methods, provided they do not subject jury's estimate to rigid mathematical limitation, are entitled to substantial deference on appellate review. Monessen Sw. Ry. Co. v. Morgan (1988) 486 U.S. 330, 341-342, 108 S. Ct. 1837, 100 L. Ed. 2d 349

In FELA cases, award of future damages as to be based on present value. St. Louis Sw. Ry. Co. v. Dickerson (1985) 470 U.S. 409, 412, 105 S. Ct. 1347, 84 L. Ed. 2d 303

In action for injuries sustained by 50-year-old switchman as result of fall from top of freight car during switching operation, trier of fact as able to find that in view of worker's age and impaired performance and agility, he was reasonably certain to have suffered loss of future earnings as result of inability to continue work in future for as long as he might have done had he not sustained injury. Robison v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 280, 287-288, 27 Cal. Rptr. 260

In wrongful death action under FELA for benefit of decedent's widow and children, plantiff as entitled to recover for loss of decedent's care, attention, instruction, training, advice, and guidance of children, and evidence of decedent's ability and interest in training and guiding children as proper and significant to show value of that loss. Miller v. Southern Pac. Co. (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 492, 508, 256 P.2d 603

[g] Employee Status

In FELA action, finding that plaintiff was agent of defendant employer as not tantamount to finding that plaintiff was defendant's employee and as not sufficientto meet "employed" requirement of FELA (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60). Kelley v. Southern Pac. Co. (1974) 419 U.S. 318, 325, 95 S. Ct. 472, 42 L. Ed. 2d 498

Railroad employee working on train engaged in interstate commerce at time of death as engaged in interstate commerce within purview of FELA. McGuigan v. Southern Pac. Co. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 704, 714-716, 247 P.2d 415

[h] Employer's Duties

Under FELA, railroad as having duty to use reasonable care in furnishing its employees with safe place to work. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. v. Buell (1987) 480 U.S. 557, 558, 107 S. Ct. 1410, 94 L. Ed. 2d 563 ; Cordova v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 161, 170, 18 Cal. Rptr. 144

Degree of care required under FELA as that which person of ordinary prudence would have exercised under similar circumstances. Aranda v. Southern Pac. Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 543, 546, 282 P.2d 875 , aff'd, 351 U.S. 493, 76 S. Ct. 952, 100 L. Ed. 1357 (1956)

Duty of employer to warn employee of any dangers connected with work of which employer knew, or which employer might have discovered with proper care, and of which employee might reasonably be expected to remain in ignorance. Baez v. Southern Pac. Co. (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 714, 717, 26 Cal. Rptr. 899

Under FELA, duty resting on railroad as same as at common law, namely, to use reasonable care in furnishing its employees with safe place to work and safe tools and appliances. Cordova v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 161, 170, 18 Cal. Rptr. 144

Railroad company as owing substantially same duty with regard to cars of another company used on its road as it does to its own cars. Lewis v. Union Pac. R.R. Co. (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 280, 283, 273 P.2d 706

[i] Evidence

Evidence that plaintiff worker was receiving monthly disability pension payments under Railroad Retirement Act as inadmissible as matter of law, either in mitigation of damages or as bearing on question of malingering. Morse v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 128, 133, 135, 133 Cal. Rptr. 577

[j] Exclusivity of Remedy

FELA as providing uniform rule of liability throughout all the states and as superseding state law relating to liability of carriers by rail engaged in interstate or foreign commerce. Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. Co. v. Coogan (1926) 271 U.S. 472, 474, 46 S. Ct. 564, 70 L. Ed. 1041 ; Davee v. Southern Pac. Co. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 572, 576, 25 Cal. Rptr. 445, 375 P.2d 293]

FELA as only remedy railroad employee, or in event of worker's death, worker's personal representative, has against employer for injury or death sustained in interstate commerce. New York Cent. R.R. Co. v. Winfield (1917) 244 U.S. 147, 148-154, 37 S. Ct. 546, 61 L. Ed. 1045 ; Wildman v. Burlington N. R.R. Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 825 F.2d 1392, 1395

FELA preempted action under state law brought by injured railroad employee for fraudulent concealment. Monarch v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1197, 1211, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 247

When FELA applies, federal remedies provided as exclusive. McGuigan v. Southern Pac. Co. (1952) 112 Cal. App. 2d 704, 714, 247 P.2d 415

[k] Forum Non Conveniens

Doctrine of forum non conveniens applies in action under FELA. Price v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 577, 579, 268 P.2d 457 ; Great N. Ry. Co. v. Superior Court (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 105, 109-110, 90 Cal. Rptr. 461

[l] Indemnity Action by Railroad

Railroad employer as allowed to seek indemnification from third party tortfeasor for amounts paid to injured employee under FELA when railroad's negligence was secondary to third party's primary negligence; cause of action for indemnity as accruing when payment to injured employee is made. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v. Ohbayashi Am. Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 233, 237-239, 195 Cal. Rptr. 63

[m] Injury

Allegation by railroad employee that he suffered myocardial infraction resulting from improper and unsafe working conditions in violation of FELA and Hours of Service Act (45 U.S.C.S. § 61-66) as alleging sufficient injury to take claim from under mandatory provisions of Railway Labor Act (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 151-163) and to support action under FELA. Welby v. Consolidated Rail Corp. (M.D. Pa. 1987) 671 F. Supp. 1015, 1016-1021

[n] Interest

Prejudgment interest is not available in actions under FELA and was not properly awarded by state court even if it would be proper under state's rules of civil procedure. Monessen Sw. Ry. Co. v. Morgan (1988) 486 U.S. 330, 335-336, 108 S. Ct. 1837, 100 L. Ed. 2d 349

Award of interest in action arising under federal statute as governed by federal law and not by law of forum state. Poleto v. Consolidated Rail Corp. (3d Cir. 1987) 826 F.2d 1270, 1274

[o] Negligence of Employer

Negligence, as used in FELA, as act of employer in violation of its duty to use reasonable care in furnishing its employees with safe place to work and safe tools and appliances. Cordova v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 161, 170, 18 Cal. Rptr. 144

Employee as not required to prove negligence of employer or of its servants was sole proximate cause of injury, since railroad is liable for injury to employee even though its negligence was only a contributing proximate cause. Torres v. Southern Pac. Co. (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 757, 764, 67 Cal. Rptr. 428

[p] Preemption Regarding Maritime Employment

Railroad employee who suffers injury governed by Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act (LHWCA) [33 U.S.C.S. §§ 901-950], regarding duties constituting "maritime employment," was limited to exclusive remedies of LHWCA, to exclusion of FELA. Chesapeake & Ohio Ry. Co. v. Schwalb (1989) 493 U.S. 40, 110 S. Ct. 381, 107 L. Ed. 2d 278, 284-288

[q] Res Ipsa Loquitur

[r] Scope of Employment

Whether employee was injured in scope of employment as triable issue of fact when brakeman was injured while returning to work in private car of fellow employee who was on compulsory standby and return to work was in response to work call following layover period. Temple v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 988, 994, 995, 164 Cal. Rptr. 780

[s] Status of Particular Companies

[i] Pullman Company

Pullman Company, which operates sleeping cars for common carriers by railroad, as not itself a common carrier by railroad under FELA and its employees on pullman cars as not accorded relationship of employees of railroad to whose train Pullman cars are attached in absence of coownership of cars by railroad. Robinson v. Baltimore & Ohio R.R. Co. (1915) 237 U.S. 84, 91-94, 35 S. Ct. 491, 59 L. Ed. 849

When pullman car is jointly owned by railroad company and Pullman Company, employee of latter on Pullman car as also employee of railroad company. Oliver v. Northern Pac. Ry. Co. (E.D. Wash. 1912) 196 F. 432, 435-436 , aff'd, 301 F.2d 305

[ii] Railway Express Agency

Railway Express Agency, Inc., organized to carry express transportation business of numerous railroad companies as a common carrier but not a common carrier by railroad under provisions of FELA or Safety Appliance Act. Jones v. New York Cent. R.R. Co. (6th Cir. 1950), 182 F.2d 326, 327-328 ; Norfolk & W. Ry. Co. v. Hall (4th Cir. 1931) 49 F.2d 692, 696

Where cars of Railway Express Agency, Inc. were attached to train of railroad company, employee of express agency as employee of railroad company for purposes of FELA where express agency had no supervision over its cars or work being done. Norfolk & W Ry. Co. v. Hall (4th Cir. 1931) 49 F.2d 692, 696-697

[iii] Refrigerator Car Companies

Company engaged in renting refrigerator cars to railroads or shippers for transportation of perishable commodities and servicing them as not a common carrier by railroad within FELA. Gaulden v. Southern Pac. Co. (N.D. Cal. 1948) 78 F. Supp. 651, 654 , aff'd, 174 F.2d 1022 (9th Cir. 1949) ; Aguirre v. Southern Pac. Co. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 636, 643-648, 43 Cal. Rptr. 73

[t] Statute of Limitations

Railroad brakeman's action for injuries not filed within statutory period was barred when brakeman was fully aware of fact of injury when he fell and landed on his elbow, knew cause of injury, and failed timely to file because he was not aware of extent of injury due to poor medical advice from doctors who were not agents of railroad; when railroad may be estopped to plead statute. Gregory v. Union Pac. R.R. Co. (D. Nev. 1987) 673 F. Supp. 1544, 1547

In FELA action, "definite knowledge" that injury is work-related was not necessary to begin running of statute of limitations; duty to investigate is imposed once plaintiff believes or suspects that potential cause of injury is work-related. Monarch v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1197, 1203, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 247

Provision under FELA as to time when action under act may be commenced as affecting substantive right and as prevailing over limitations provision of state. Hosman v. Southern Pac. Co. (1938) 28 Cal. App. 2d 621, 635, 83 P.2d 88 , cert. denied, 306 U.S. 656, 59 S. Ct. 645, 83 L. Ed. 1054 (1939)

[u] Summary Judgment

Summary judgment, in appropriate case, as available in action under FELA. Aguirre v. Southern Pac. Co. (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 636, 639, 642, 43 Cal. Rptr. 73

[v] Tortious Conduct of Fellow Employee

Railroad employer as liable under FELA to injured employee for injuries proximately caused by employer's negligent employment and retention in employment of person of violent and dangerous propensities. Najera v. Southern Pac. Co. (1961) 191 Cal. App. 2d 634, 635, 13 Cal. Rptr. 146

[3] Juries and Verdicts

One of Congress's primary concerns in adopting FELA as being that issues of whether there was employer fault and whether fault played any part in injury or death of employee should be decided by jury; jury's right to pass on questions of fault and causation as liberally viewed and its power to engage in inferences as significantly broader than in common law negligence actions. Pierce v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 823 F.2d 1366, 1370

Jury's special verdict awarding damages to worker's dependents under FELA as not internally inconsistent in having found that employer was not negligent with respect to accident causing employee's injuries but that employer was negligent in its post-accident treatment of worker with respect to making him fill out accident report, falsely accusing him of having been drinking prior to accident, and temporarily suspending him from his job, all of which caused worker to suffer severe mental anguish leading to his death two days later from heart attack broughton by stress-related aggravation of congenital heart disease of which worker was unaware. Pierce v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 823 F.2d 1366, 1368-1370

[4] Jury Instructions

Propriety of jury instructions concerning measure of damages in action under FELA as issue of "substance" to be determined by federal law; under federal law, defendant as entitled to have jury instructed that when future payments or other pecuniary benefits are to be anticipated, verdict is to be made up on basis of present value only. St. Louis Sw. Ry. Co. v. Dickerson (1985) 470 U.S. 409, 411-412, 105 S. Ct. 1347, 84 L. Ed. 2d 303

In action based on Safety Appliance Act, plaintiff as entitled to peremptory instruction that to equip car with coupler which broke in course of switching operations is violation of Safety Appliance Act, rendering defendant railroad liable for injuries proximately resulting therefrom and that neither evidence of negligence nor evidence of diligence and care are to be considered on question of this liability. O'Donnell v. Elgin, Joliet & E. Ry. Co. (1949) 338 U.S. 384, 394, 70 S. Ct. 200, 94 L. Ed. 187

Trial court's instruction as proper under FELA in stating that "injury" may include sickness and that it is negligence for railroad to assign sick employee, of whose illness it knew or should have known, to tasks for which employee is, by reason of employee's condition, unfitted, and that employee may recover damages from railroad if assignment played any part in proximately worsening or aggravating worker's condition. Waller v. Southern Pac. Co. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 201, 214, 57 Cal. Rptr. 353, 424 P.2d 937

Trial court's instruction to jury in FELA action as nonprejudicial in stating that employee is not protected by California's Workers' Compensation Act, that he receives no benefit under state law, and that his sole remedy for damages, when his injury is sustained in course of his employment in interstate transportation by rail, lies in action brought in court of law as distinguished from claim made against employer and adjudicated before Industrial Accident Commission [now Workers' Compensation Appeals Board]. Bohme v. Southern Pac. Co. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 291, 298-299, 87 Cal. Rptr. 286

[5] Safety Appliance Act

Safety Appliance Act [49 U.S.C.S. § 20301 et seq.] as not creating federal cause of action for either employees or nonemployees seeking damages for injuries resulting from railroad's violation of act, although subsequently enacted FELA [45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60] provides cause of action for employees and embraces claims of employee based on violations of Safety Appliance Act in which employee is required to prove only statutory violation and that injury resulted in whole or in part from violation; worker's contributory negligence as no defense to employer. Crane v. Cedar Rapids & Iowa City Ry. Co. (1969) 395 U.S. 164, 166, 89 S. Ct. 1706, 23 L. Ed. 2d 176

Nonemployee injured by railroad's violation of 49 U.S.C.S. § 20302(a)(1)(A) (failure to maintain cars with couplers coupling automatically by impact) as required to look to his or her remedy to common law action in tort, which is to say he or she must sue in state court in absence of diversity to implement state cause of action. Crane v. Cedar Rapids &

Iowa City Ry. Co. (1969) 395 U.S. 164, 166, 89 S. Ct. 1706, 23 L. Ed. 2d 176

State as permitted to make defense of contributory negligence available to railroad sued by nonemployee for damages for personal injuries caused by railroad's failure to maintain its freight cars with couplers coupling automatically by impact, as required by 49 U.S.C.S. § 20302(a)(1)(A). Crane v. Cedar Rapids & Iowa City Ry. Co. (1969) 395 U.S. 164, 165-167, 89 S. Ct. 1706, 23 L. Ed. 2d 176

Duty imposed on railroad engaged in interstate commerce by to equip cars with couplers coupling automatically by impact, as not based on negligence of carrier, but as absolute duty requiring performance, and normal efficiency of coupler in question at other times as immaterial. Affolder v. New York, Chicago & St. Louis R.R. Co. (1950) 339 U.S. 96, 98, 70 S. Ct. 509, 94 L. Ed. 683

Railroad sued under FELA for violation of Safety Appliance Act by failing to use cars equipped with safe couplers as not escaping liability for coupler's inadequacy by showing that too much was demanded of it, or that while coupler broke it had been properly manufactured, diligently inspected, and showed no visible defects, or merely by showing that railroad was not guilty of negligence. O'Donnell v. Elgin, Joliet & E. Ry. Co. (1949) 338 U.S. 384, 393-394, 70 S. Ct. 200, 94 L. Ed. 187

Failure of equipment to perform as required by Safety Appliance Act as in itself actionable wrong, in no way dependent on negligence, and for proximate results of which there is liability that cannot be escaped by proof of care or diligence. O'Donnell v. Elgin, Joliet & E. Ry. Co. (1949) 338 U.S. 384, 390, 70 S. Ct. 200, 94 L. Ed. 187

Duty imposed by Safety Appliance Act as not based on negligence on part of railroad but as absolute duty; equipment failure as constituting actionable wrong and negligence as not in issue. Eckert v. Aliquippa & S. R.R. Co. (3d Cir. 1987) 828 F.2d 183, 185

Railroad as strictly liable under FELA for injury caused by violation of Safety Appliance Act. Illinois Cent. Gulf R.R. Co. v. International Paper Co. (5th Cir. 1987) 824 F.2d 403, 405

Air brake provisions of Safety Appliance Act are designed to cover defects that prevent brakes from effectively controlling movement of train over main line tracks and are inapplicable to switching operations. Erskine v. Consolidated Rail Corp. (6th Cir. 1987) 814 F.2d 266, 270-271

Plaintiff worker as entitled to recover damages if violation of Safety Appliance Act was contributory proximate cause of plaintiff's injury. Erskine v. Consolidated Rail Corp. (6th Cir. 1987) 814 F.2d 266, 269

Safety Appliance Act [see 49 U.S.C.S. § 20301 et seq.] and pertinent regulations [49 C.F.R. §§ 231.18, 231.25(c)] requiring that uncoupled high/rail vehicle be equipped with secure sill steps as applying to motor van that had been converted for use on both highway and rails when injury occurred when van was in use on highway. Beissel v. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie R.R. Co. (3d Cir. 1986) 801 F.2d 143, 145-148

One of few defenses available to railroad in action involving application of Automatic Couplers Act arises out of failure of device to couple on impact because it had not been properly opened. Finley v. Southern Pac. Co. (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 424, 429, 3 Cal. Rptr. 895

Failure of equipment to perform as required by Safety Appliance Act is itself an actionable wrong, in no way dependent on negligence, and for proximate results of which there is liability that cannot be escaped by proof of care or diligence. Finley v. Southern Pac. Co. (1960) 179 Cal. App. 2d 424, 428-429, 3 Cal. Rptr. 895

Under Safety Appliance Act [see 49 U.S.C.S. § 20301 et seq.], interstate railroad company as having absolute duty to equip and maintain efficient brakes on cars so as to securely hold them under ordinary circumstances. Qualls v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1931) 112 Cal. App. 7, 12, 296 P. 645

When plaintiff argued that injury was caused by presence of vertical handholds on railcar, directed verdict in favor of railroad upheld when implementing regulations of Safety Appliance Act did not prohibit use of vertical handholds in conjunction with horizontal handholds on type of railcar on which plaintiff was injured. Woods v. Union Pacific Railroad Co. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 571, 579-580, 75 Cal. Rptr. 3d 748

§ 485.105 Decisions

[1] Automobile Passengers

Negligence of automobile driver in collision with train as not properly imputed to plaintiffs who were guest passengers in automobile. Peri v. Los Angeles Junction Ry. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 111, 127, 137 P.2d 441

Concurrent liability to passenger as imposed on railroad and automobile driver involved in collision if both defendants are at fault. Deshotel v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 224, 226, 231, 300 P.2d 910

[2] Comparative Negligence

Failure in operation of automatic signal as not absolving driver from the duty to exercise ordinary care for his or her own protection, and to that end, looking and listening for approach of train. Lucas v. Southern Pac. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 124, 142 n. 7, 96 Cal. Rptr. 356

Driver's failure to stop when his or her vision is somewhat obstructed as not constituting contributory negligence as matter of law unless jury determines that reasonably prudent person would not have acted as plaintiff did. Lucas v. Southern Pac. Co. (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 124, 139, 96 Cal. Rptr. 356

Plaintiff in wrongful death action as entitled to presumption that decedent exercised due care when no one witnessed decedent being struck and killed by train. Greene v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1953) 120 Cal. App. 2d 135, 139, 260 P.2d 834

[3] Crossings

Duty to safely maintain crossing over tracks where railroad occupies portion of highway as resting not only with corporation that originally constructed tracks but with whatever railroad company later exercises franchise. County of Alameda v. Southern Pac. Co. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 479, 484, 11 Cal. Rptr. 751, 360 P.2d 327

Railroad as under duty to use reasonable care in maintaining wigwag signal so that appearance of safety does not trap person relying on signal for their protection. Startup v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 866, 869, 180 P.2d 896

Operator of railroad as required to exercise care commensurate with circumstances when conditions existing at crossing create unusual hazard or danger. Peri v. Los Angeles Junction Ry. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 111, 120, 123, 137 P.2d 441

[4] Fences

Nothing in Pub. Util. Code § 7626 as limiting railroad's responsibility for injuries to small child when jury determines that ordinary care requires railroad to fence right-of-way and that absence of fence proximately caused injuries to small child. Staggs v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 492, 505, 287 P.2d 817

[5] Passengers

Quantum of care required of plaintiff who is on railroad tracks with intention of becoming passenger as less than that required of nonpassengers; intending passenger as entitled to assume railroad company will regulate movement of its trains so that he or she can cross in safety. Ferran v. Southern Pac. Co. (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 350, 355, 44 P.2d 533

When complaint alleges breach of carrier's duty to carry passenger safely and consequent injury as gravamen of action, action arises out of tort and not contract and is subject to one-year statute of limitations. Basler v. Sacramento Elec., Gas & Ry. Co. (1913) 166 Cal. 33, 36, 134 P. 993

[6] Presumption of Negligence

[a] Presumption Is Rebuttable

Presumption of negligence arising from violation of statute as rebuttable by evidence that defendant did what might reasonably be expected of person of ordinary prudence acting under similar circumstances who desired to comply with statute. Alarid v. Vanier (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 617, 621-622, 327 P.2d 897

[b] Violation of Company Rule

Company-imposed maximum speed as admission on part of defendant that any higher speed would be improper at locality; whether company maximum was too high under circumstances, whether obstructions at crossing demanded substantial reduction below maximum, and whether accident would not have occurred if train had traveled at lower speed as questions for jury. Herrera v. Southern Pac. Co. (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 781, 788, 318 P.2d 784

[c] Violation of PUC Regulation or Order

PUC regulation as only constituting minimum measure of care required by railroad. Hogue v. Southern Pac. Co. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 253, 258, 81 Cal. Rptr. 765, 460 P.2d 965

[d] Violation of Statute or Ordinance

Although plaintiff's violation of traffic law is negligence per se, whether violation was proximate cause of collision as question of fact for jury. Toschi v. Christian (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 354, 362, 149 P.2d 848

Former Civ. Code § 5486, which only required that bell or whistle be sounded until engine crossed highway, as minimum of care required; jury as justified in concluding that railroad was negligent for failing to sound bell or whistle continuously while crossing. Peri v. Los Angeles Junction Ry. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 111, 125-126, 137 P.2d 441

While no rate of speed is negligence per se in absence of statute or ordinance, railroad company as having duty to run its train over dangerous crossings at rate of speed proportionate to danger. Young v. Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. (1929) 208 Cal. 568, 572, 283 P. 61

[7] Trespassers

Civ. Code § 1714.7 barred action for personal injuries brought against railroad by person who surreptitiously climbed onto railroad car that momentarily stopped while slowing to switch tracks. Rivera v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 294, 300-301, 266 Cal. Rptr. 11

1. This action arises under the Federal Employers' Liability Act, United States Code, Title 45, Sections 51-60.

2. During all the times herein mentioned defendant owned and operated in interstate commerce a railroad that passed through a tunnel located at _____, and known as Tunnel No. _____.

3. On or about _____ [date], defendant was repairing and enlarging the tunnel in order to protect interstate trains and passengers and freight from injury and in order to make the tunnel more conveniently usable for interstate commerce.

4. In the course of thus repairing and enlarging the tunnel on that day, defendant employed plaintiff as one of its workers and negligently put plaintiff to work in a portion of the tunnel that defendant had left unprotected and unsupported.

5. By reason of defendant's negligence in thus putting plaintiff to work in that portion of the tunnel, plaintiff was, while so working pursuant to defendant's orders, struck and crushed by a rock, which fell from the unsupported portion of the tunnel, and was _____ [describe plaintiff's injuries].

6. Prior to these injuries, plaintiff was a strong, able-bodied person, capable of earning and actually earning $ _____ per day. By these injuries plaintiff has been made incapable of any gainful activity, has suffered great physical and mental pain, and has incurred expense in the amount of $ _____ for medicine, medical attendance, and hospitalization.

Wherefore plaintiff demands judgment against defendant in the sum of $ _____ and costs.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by an injured employee of an interstate railroad to sue the railroad under the Federal Employers' Liability Act (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60) in a United States District Court for damages for injuries sustained in the course and scope of the employment as a result of the railroad's negligence. For forms of complaint for use in a California state court, see §§ 485.121 and 485.122.

This form is adapted from Fed. R. Civ. P., Appendix of Forms, Form 14. It is a verbatim reproduction of that form, except for several nonsubstantive format changes and a modification of Paragraph 1, which in this form specifies FELA as the basis for jurisdiction [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1331 (federal question jurisdiction)]. Official Fed. R. Civ. P. Form 14 is sufficient under the Fed. R. Civ. P. and is intended to indicate the simplicity and brevity of statement that these rules contemplate [see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 84].

With appropriate modifications, this form may also be used when the action is by a deceased worker's personal representative [see 45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51, 59; Fed. R. Civ. P., Rules 9(a), 17]. For discussion concerning modification of this form for use when the action is based on the violation of a safety provision, as distinguished from negligence, see § 485.120[7].

For discussion relating to venue, see § 485.39.

[3] Content and Format of Complaint in Federal Court

A complaint in federal court must contain the following [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a)]:

- A short and plain statement of the grounds on which the court'sjurisdiction depends.
- A short and plain statement of the claim showing that the plaintiff is entitled to relief.
- A demand for judgment for the relief the plaintiff seeks.

For the required caption and format of a pleading, see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rules 8(e) and 10.

[4] Allegations

This complaint contains the following:

- A jurisdictional allegation--that is, a statement of the court's jurisdiction over the subject matter of the action (Paragraph 1) [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1331 (federal question jurisdiction); 45 U.S.C.S. § 56 (concurrent federal jurisdiction in FELA actions); see also § 485.37];
- Defendant's ownership and operation of a railroad engaged in interstate commerce (Paragraph 2) [see 45 U.S.C.S. § 51];
- The location where the accident subsequently occurred (Paragraph 2);
- Defendant's activity at the place where the accident subsequently occurred and how it affected interstate commerce (Paragraph 3);
- Plaintiff's employment by defendant to do work affecting that commerce, giving rise to the employer's duties to its employees imposed by federal statutes, rules, and regulations (Paragraph 4) [see 45 U.S.C.S. § 51];
- Defendant's creation of an unsafe work place and its negligent assignment of plaintiff to work there, that is, defendant's breach of duty (Paragraph 4);
- The accidental event and plaintiff's involvement in it (Paragraph 5);
- A description of plaintiff's injuries, that is, plaintiff's detriment (Paragraph 5); and
- The damages sustained by plaintiff as a result of his or her injuries (Paragraph 6).

[5] Prayer

This complaint also contains a demand for judgment (prayer) in a specified dollar amount plus costs [see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a)].

[6] Signature and Verification

Every pleading of a party represented by an attorney must be signed by at least one attorney of record in his or her own name, and must state the attorney's address. If unrepresented, the party must sign the pleading and state his or her address [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11(a)].

Except when otherwise specifically provided by rule or statute, pleadings in federal courts need not be verified [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11(a)]. There is no rule or statute requiring that a complaint for damages under the FELA be verified.

[7] Violation of Safety Acts

If the accident was caused by the employer's violation of the Safety Appliance Act [49 U.S.C.S. § 20301 et seq.; see § 485.45[1]]or the Boiler Inspection Act [49 U.S.C.S. § 20701 et seq.; see § 485.45[2]], counsel should add allegations to that effect and omit the allegations of negligence. The liability of the employer in such case is absolute and negligence is not an issue [see Carter v. Atlanta & St. Andrews Bay Ry. Co. (1949) 338 U.S. 430, 433-434, 70 S. Ct. 226, 94 L. Ed. 236 (Safety Appliance Act) ; Lilly v. Grand Trunk W. R.R. Co. (1943) 317 U.S. 481, 485, 63 S. Ct. 347, 87 L. Ed. 411 (Boiler Inspection Act); see also §§ 485.45[4], 485.121].

Even if the action is based on the railroad's negligence, however, if there is a possibility that the accident may have been the result of the employer's violation of a safety provision in either of the above acts, counsel should include allegations to that effect. The importance of this is that while the amount of any damages awarded the employee for the employer's negligence is diminished by the amount of the employee's contributory negligence, neither negligence nor contributory negligence is in issue when the basis of the claim is a violation of a safety act or adopted regulation or rule, and there is thus no offset against the damages awarded [see 42 U.S.C.S. § 54a; 45 U.S.C.S. § 53; see also § 485.45[4]].

[8] Pleading Separate Theories

While it is not legally necessary to allege violation of the safety acts separately from the allegations of negligence under the FELA when both theories of liability are alleged in the same complaint, the better practice would be to set them forth in a separate count in order to keep the issues of negligence and absolute liability separate [see § 485.121]. Thus, it has been said that in an action under the FELA in which liability is also predicated on a violation by the employer of the Safety Appliance Act[(49 U.S.C.S. § 20301 et seq.], pleadings will serve the purpose of sharpening and limiting the issues only if the claims based on negligence are set forth separately from those based on violation of the appliance acts [O'Donnell v. Elgin, Joliet & E. Ry. Co. (1949) 338 U.S. 384, 392, 70 S. Ct. 200, 94 L. Ed. 187] .

Nevertheless, even though violation of the Safety Appliance or Boiler Inspection Act may provide the basis of the claim, it is the FELA that provides the remedy [Eckert v. Aliquippa & S. R. Co. (3d Cir. 1987) 828 F.2d 183, 187 ; Beissel v. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie R.R. Co. (3d Cir. 1986) 801 F.2d 143, 145] .

[9] Joinder of Parties and Actions

The FELA makes no mention of parties other than the railroad and its employees or the employees' personal representatives. However, the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure authorize the joinder of parties as defendants if there is asserted against them jointly, severally, or in the alternative, any right to relief in respect of or arising out of the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences and if any question of law or fact common to all defendants will arise in the action [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 20]. The rules further provide that misjoinder is not a ground for dismissal, and that parties may be dropped or added by order of the court at any stage of the action [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 21]. The rules also authorize the filing of counterclaims and cross claims among the original parties or to bring in new parties [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 13]. Under these rules, the joinder of parties and claims in an FELA action is authorized [see Blair v. Cleveland Twist Drill Co. (7th Cir. 1952) 197 F.2d 842 (action by railroad employee against railroad under FELA and third-party supplier of defective tool for negligence in which railroad cross claimed against tool company)].

Nevertheless, it is only the employee's claim against the employer that is determined under the FELA, and any action the injured employee may have against a third-party tortfeasor arising out of the same occurrence that gave rise to the FELA claim and whatever claim the railroad may have against a third-party tortfeasor for contribution or indemnity, or vice versa, depends on state law. If such actions are permitted under the law of the state in which the accident occurred, such claims may be joined with the FELA claim in the same lawsuit or filed as a separate action [see Alabama Great S. R.R. Co. v. Chicago & N. W. Ry. Co. (8th Cir. 1974) 493 F.2d 979, 983 ; Missouri Pac. R.R. Co. v. Star City Gravel Co. (E.D. Ark. 1978) 452 F. Supp. 480, 482 , aff'd, 592 F.2d 455 (8th Cir. 1979) ; Brenham v. Southern Pac. Co. (W.D. La. 1971) 328 F. Supp. 119, 123 , aff'd, 469 F.2d 1095 (5th Cir. 1972) ; see generally Personal Injury: Actions, Defenses, Damages, Vol. 13, Federal Employers' Liability Act].

FIRST COUNT
(Negligence)

1. This action arises, and is brought, under and pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Employers' Liability Act, United States Code, Title 45, Sections 51-60.

2. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of _____, authorized to transact, and transacting, business in the State of California, and having its principal place of business in this State in _____ County.

3. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a common carrier by railroad engaged in interstate commerce, doing business as such in California and other states.

4. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [specify place where accident occurred, e.g., owned and operated a switchyard (hereinafter "the switchyard"), consisting of numerous tracks, at _____ California through which interstate trains moved and where interstate trains were put together].

5. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff was employed by defendant as a _____ [e.g., switchman at the switchyard], and at the time of the accident hereinafter alleged was engaged in work that _____ [was in furtherance of or closely and substantially affected] interstate commerce.

6. On or about _____ [date of accident] at about _____ [time], plaintiff was working _____ [e.g., at the switchyard on a cut of cars in connection with a switching operation] in the regular course and scope of plaintiff's duties.

7. At that time and place, defendant, in breach of its duty to provide plaintiff with a reasonably safe place to work, so negligently _____ [specify, e.g., managed, controlled, maintained, and operated a railroad locomotive and certain railroad cars as to cause the locomotive and cars to strike the cut of cars on which plaintiff was working].

8. As a proximate result of defendant's negligence and of _____ [specify, e.g., the locomotive and cars hitting the cut of cars on which plaintiff was working, plaintiff was thrown to the ground] and sustained the injuries hereinafter alleged.

9. As a proximate result of defendant's negligence and of plaintiff's _____ [e.g., being thrown to the ground], plaintiff sustained _____ [describe injuries, e.g., severe physical injuries (hereinafter "the injuries"), both internal and external, consisting in part of abrasions, contusions, lacerations, a dislocated shoulder, a fractured right arm and leg, a fractured pelvis, and internal hemorrhaging, and has endured severe pain and suffering], all to plaintiff's general damage.

10. As a proximate result of defendant's negligence and plaintiff's injuries, plaintiff _____ [specify any medical treatment received, e.g., was hospitalized for a period of _____ (number) _____ (days or weeks or months) (, and continues to be hospitalized,) and was (and continues to be) required to employ physicians and surgeons to treat the injuries, as a result of which plaintiff has incurred (and is incurring) hospital, doctor, and related medical expenses, and will be compelled to incur further hospital, doctor, and medical expenses for the continued treatment of the injuries], all to plaintiff's special damage.

11. At the time of the accident, plaintiff was _____ [specify, e.g., a well and able-bodied person]. As a proximate result of the injuries herein described, plaintiff _____ [was unable to work for a period of _____ (number) _____ (days or weeks or months) or has been unable to work since the date of the accident] and has lost wages as a result thereof[; plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that plaintiff has sustained a permanent loss of earning capacity], all to plaintiff's further damage.

SECOND COUNT
(Violation of Safety Statute)

12. Plaintiff repeats and realleges Paragraphs 1 through 6 and Paragraph 11 of his/her First Count.

13. At all times herein mentioned there was in full force and effect _____ [specify statute breached, e.g., the statute commonly known as United States Code Service, Title 49, Section 20302, which provides as follows:

(A) railroad carrier may use or allow to be used on any of its railroad lines ... a vehicle only if it is equipped with ... couplers coupling automatically by impact, and capable of being uncoupled, without the necessity of [workers] going between the ends of the vehicles].

14. At the time and place mentioned in Paragraph 6, the _____ [railroad cars involved in the switching operation were not equipped with couplers coupling automatically on impact and did not couple on impact].

15. As a proximate result of defendant's violation of _____ [specify statute breached, e.g., United States Code Service, Title 49, Section 20302] _____ [the locomotive and cars struck the cut of cars on which plaintiff was working without coupling, causing plaintiff to be, and plaintiff was, thrown to the ground], suffering the injuries hereinafter alleged.

16. As a proximate result of defendant's violation of _____ [specify statute breached, e.g., United States Code Service, Title 49, Section 20302] and of plaintiff's _____ [e.g., being thrown to the ground], plaintiff sustained _____ [describe injuries, e.g., severe physical injuries (hereinafter " 'the injuries' "), both internal and external, consisting in part of abrasions, contusions, lacerations, a dislocated shoulder, a fractured right arm and leg, a fractured pelvis, and internal hemorrhaging, and has endured severe pain and suffering], all to plaintiff's general damage.

17. As a proximate result of defendant's violation of _____ [specify statute breached, e.g., United States Code Service, Title 49, Section 20302] and plaintiff's injuries, plaintiff _____ [specify any medical treatment, e.g., was hospitalized for a period of _____ (number) _____ (days or weeks or months) (, and continues to be hospitalized,) and was (and continues to be) required to employ physicians and surgeons to treat the injuries, as a result of which plaintiff has incurred (and is incurring) hospital, doctor, and related medical expenses, and will be compelled to incur further hospital, doctor, and medical expenses for the continued treatment of the injuries], all to plaintiff's special damage.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant for:

1. General damages according to proof.

2. Special damages for hospital, physician and surgeon, and related medical expenses according to proof.

3. Loss of income and earnings and impairment of earning capacity according to proof.

4. Costs of suit herein incurred.

5. For such other and further relief as the Court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by an injured employee of an interstate railroad to sue the railroad under the Federal Employers' Liability Act (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60) in a California state court for damages for injuries sustained in the course and scope of the employment as a result of the railroad's negligence. With appropriate modifications, this form may also be used when the action is brought by a deceased worker's personal representative [see 45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51, 59; see also § 485.122].

The jurisdiction of the federal district courts and the California state courts over FELA actions is concurrent [45 U.S.C.S. § 56]. For a form of complaint for use in a federal district court, see § 485.120.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- The jurisdiction of the court to entertain the federally created action (Paragraphs 1, 3, 4, 5, 12) [see 45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51, 56];

- Defendant's corporate capacity and principal place of business (Paragraph 2) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5];

- That the activity involved was interstate commerce (Paragraphs 3, 12) [see 45 U.S.C.S. § 51];

- Plaintiff's employment by defendant, thus giving rise to the employer's duty to provide plaintiff with a reasonably safe workplace and duty to comply with the federal safety acts (Paragraphs 5, 12, 13) [see 45 U.S.C.S. § 51; Civ. Code § 3333];

- The plaintiff's presence at the time of the accident at the work place to carry out his or her duties (Paragraphs 5, 6, 12);

- Defendant's breach of duty (Paragraphs 7, 14) [see 45 U.S.C.S. § 51; Civ. Code § 3333];

- The breach as the proximate cause of the accident (Paragraphs 8, 15) [see Civ. Code § 3333];

- The detriment, or harm, sustained by plaintiff (Paragraphs 9, 10, 11, 12, 16, 17) [see Civ. Code §§ 3282, 3333]; and

- Plaintiff's damages (Paragraphs 9, 10, 11, 12, 16, 17) [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3333].

The complaint alleges the five essential elements of every cause of action for tort damages as identified in Civ. Code § 3333: (1) duty or obligation, (2) breach of duty, (3) proximate cause, (4) detriment (harm or injury), and (5) damages (money claimed) [see Civ. Code §§ 3281 (detriment), 3282 (money claimed)].

[4] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case or whether it is a limited civil case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115], see Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.40 et seq., and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case and must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 72055; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

The proper county for trial of an action for personal injuries or wrongful death is the county in which the injury or injury causing death occurred or the county in which the defendant's principal office or place of business is situated [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395(a), (c), 395.2, 395.5]. This complaint includes an allegation laying venue in the county of the defendant's principal place of business (Paragraph 2) if that county is other than the one in which the accident occurred (Paragraph 4) and counsel wishes to sue in the county of the defendant's principal office or place of business, rather than in the county where the accident occurred.

[7] Inconvenient Forum

Although the form of complaint alleges that the accident giving rise to the cause of action occurred in California, a cause of action for damages for personal injuries is transitory and may be maintained in a California state court even though the accident happened elsewhere. However, a complaint based on an out-of-state accident may be subject to dismissal on the ground of inconvenient forum [see § 485.40].

[8] Alternative Theories of Recovery

The complaint sets forth two counts--that is, two separate theories of liability. The first theory of liability is based on the employer's negligent failure to provide the employee with a reasonably safe place to work [see 45 U.S.C.S. § 51]. The second theory of recovery is absolute liability imposed on a railroad if the injury is caused by the employer's failure to comply with a federal safety statute [see, e.g., 49 U.S.C.S. § 20302], or to comply with a rule or regulation adoptedpursuant to that statute. If recovery is obtained on the first theory (negligence),then the damages are diminished by the jury in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to the employee [45 U.S.C.S. § 53]. If recovery is obtained on the second theory (violation of a safety statute or rule), neither the employer's negligence nor the employee's contributory negligence is an issue, the employer's liability is absolute, and there is thus no setoff because of any contributory negligence on the part of the employee [see § 485.45[4]]. Although the statute alleged to have been violated is in the Safety Appliance Act and not in the Federal Employers' Liability Act (FELA), the Safety Appliance Act provides the basis of the claim, but the FELA provides the remedy [Eckert v. Aliquippa & S. R. Co. (3d Cir. 1987) 828 F.2d 183, 187 ; Beissel v. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie R.R. Co. (3d Cir. 1986) 801 F.2d 143, 145] .

[9] Compared With Federal Complaint

The rules of pleading in federal court are generally different from the rules of pleading in California state courts, because the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure (see Fed. R. Civ. P. Rules 8-11) recognize a form of "notice pleading," usually designed simply to put a defendant on notice of the nature of the claim, whereas California requires the pleading of facts pursuant to its system of "code pleading" [Bach v. County of Butte (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 554, 561, 195 Cal. Rptr. 268 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a)].

The general assumption is that California pleading law is applied to test the adequacy of a complaint brought under the FELA in a California state court. However, this assumption may not be entirely correct [Bach v. County of Butte (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 554, 561, 195 Cal. Rptr. 268] . For example, a state court may not, under its own rules of practice and procedure, properly dismiss a complaint under the FELA on the ground that it fails to state a cause of action under state law when the same complaint would be held sufficient under the federal rules of pleading were it filed in a federal court [see Brown v. Western Ry. of Ala. (1949) 338 U.S. 294, 295-297, 70 S. Ct. 105, 94 L. Ed. 100] .

Violation of Safety Appliance Act (49 U.S.C.S. § 20301 et seq.) or Boiler Inspection Act (49 U.S.C.S. § 20701 et seq.) as imposing absolute liability on railroads for injury or death of employee caused by railroad's failure to comply with act. *Carter v. Jury instructions on Boiler Inspection Act (BIA) were reversible error because they allowed jury to find violation merely because engineer's seat was not in proper condition, rather than requiring showing that seat defect created safety hazard; evidence of failure to furnish proper and safe seat and evidence of injury due to attempt to replace seat was sufficient evidence of causation on BIA claim for denial of motion for directed verdict; refusal to instruct jury that BIA violation was proximate or direct cause of injury was not prejudicial error. *Oglesby v. _____ [name],	)
Defendant.	)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. This action arises, and is brought, under and pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Employers' Liability Act, United States Code, Title 45, Sections 51-60.

2. Plaintiff is the duly appointed, qualified, and acting _____ [specify capacity, e.g., administrator of the estate of] _____ [name], deceased, who died on _____ [date] as the result of the injuries sustained as herein alleged.

[3. Defendant's capacity and principal place of business in California. See § 485.121, Paragraph 2.]

4. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was the owner and operator of certain railroad lines on and over which it owned, operated, and maintained railroad beds, ties, rails, switches, locomotives, cars, and trains in transporting passengers, freight, and mail through the State of California and other states in the United States of America as a common carrier by railroad engaged in interstate commerce.

5. At the time of his/her injuries and death, decedent was in the defendant's employ as _____ [specify, e.g., a switchman] _____ [specify location, e.g., in its railroad yards] at _____, California, engaged in his/her duties as such, and aiding and assisting the defendant in carrying on its business of interstate commerce by railroad. [The switch engine, cars, tracks, railroad yards, and switches with which decedent was working in performinghis/her duties as a switchman in the course of his/her employment at the time of his/her injuries and death, as hereinafter alleged, were then being, had been, and were to be used by the defendant in carrying on its business of interstate commerce by railroad.]

6. On _____ [date], and prior thereto, decedent was suffering from _____ [specify illness or condition, e.g., a cardiovascular disease], which fact defendant, its officers, agents, employees, and physicians well knew, or were duty bound to know, in that _____ [specify, e.g., from on or about _____ (date), decedent, with defendant's knowledge, had been and was being treated for the _____ (e.g., illness) by defendant's physicians at defendant's hospital department in _____, California, as both an in and an outpatient, and, further, that decedent, with defendant's knowledge and consent, was then and thereafter on sick leave from his/her employment from _____ (date) to _____ (date). The decedent was at no time made aware of the seriousness and extent of his/her condition, and the defendant, its agents, officers, employees, and physicians knew of decedent's ignorance in that regard and carelessly and negligently failed to warn him/her of the seriousness and extent of his/her condition or of any limitations he/she should put on his/her physical activities because of it.]

7. On or about _____ [date], defendant, its officers, agents, servants, employees, and physicians carelessly and negligently advised, encouraged, induced, and permitted decedent to accept employment as _____ [e.g., a switchman] _____ [specify location, e.g., in its railroad yards at _____, California], then and there knowing and being bound to know that decedent, because of his/her _____ [e.g., damaged heart], was not in physical condition to engage in that employment and for him/her to do so would be to place decedent in a very dangerous, hazardous, and unsafe situation for which he/she was physically unsuited and incapable, in that the activities required of a _____ [e.g., switchman] _____ [e.g., including the uncovering and throwing of "cellar type" switches and riding on, climbing on, and jumping off moving equipment] would greatly endanger his/her life and impair his/her physical health.

8. Pursuant to the instructions of the defendant, its agents, and employees, decedent, on _____ [date of death], _____ [specify activities, e.g., engaged in switching activities in defendant's yards at _____, California, including uncoupling a locomotive from cars, opening the cover of, and throwing, a "celler type" switch, and climbing on, riding, and jumping off moving equipment].

9. As a proximate result of the negligence of the defendant and its agents, employees, and physicians in failing to warn decedent of the seriousness of his/her condition, and in advising, encouraging, inducing, and permitting him/her to undertake the duties as _____ [e.g., a switchman], as herein alleged, decedent at that time and place suffered _____ [e.g., an acute coronary thrombosis] and died.

10. At the time of his/her death, the decedent was _____ years of age and left surviving him/her at the time of death _____ [specify, e.g., a _____ (wife or husband) and/or _____ child(ren) of the age of _____ (and _____, respectively)][, who _____ (were or was) dependent on the deceased and his/her earnings for support].

11. As a proximate result of defendant's negligence, and the decedent's death, _____ [specify, e.g., the _____ (husband or wife) and child(ren)] have suffered and sustained pecuniary loss, all to their damage.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For general damages.

2. For costs of suit herein incurred.

3. For such other and further relief as the Court may seem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by the personal representative of a deceased worker, on behalf of the worker's surviving spouse and children [see § 485.122[3]], to sue the worker's interstate railroad employer for having negligently caused the decedent's death by exacerbating an existing illness or condition. For forms of complaint based on negligently caused accidental injury, which may be modified to state a cause of action for wrongful death, see §§ 485.120, 485.121.

[3] Liability of Railroad for Worker's Death

A common carrier by railroad engaged in interstate or foreign commerce is, in the event of the worker's death, liable in damages to the deceased worker's personal representative for the benefit of the worker's surviving widow or husband and children, and, if none, the worker's parents, and, if none, the next of kin dependent on the employee, for death resulting in whole or in part from the negligence of the carrier's agents, officers, or employees, or by reason of any defect or insufficiency, due to its negligence, in its cars, engines, appliances, and similar items [45 U.S.C.S. § 51; see also 45 U.S.C.S. § 59].

[4] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following: (1) plaintiff's capacity to maintain theaction as the deceased worker's personal representative (Paragraph 2) [see 45 U.S.C.S. § 51]; (2) defendant's capacity as a carrier by railroad engaged in interstate commerce (Paragraph 4) [see 45 U.S.C.S. § 51]; (3) the decedent's employment by defendant (Paragraph 5) [see 45 U.S.C.S. § 51]; (4) the condition that rendered the decedent unsuited to arduous work and defendant's knowledge of that condition (Paragraph 6); (5) defendant's assigning the deceased to a job requiring extreme physical exertion (Paragraph 7); (6) the decedent's performance of the work (Paragraph 8); (7) the decedent's death as a result of the work (Paragraph 9); (8) the identity of the worker's surviving spouse and children (or other dependents) (Paragraph 10); and (9) the damages sustained by them as a result of the worker's death (Paragraph 11).

42-485 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 485.123

[1] FORM Action Under Federal Employers' Liability Act (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60)--Allegation in Complaint Based on Negligence [45 U.S.C.S. § 51]--Train Dispatcher Suffered Nervous Breakdown Caused by Unusually Stressful Working Conditions

1. From on or about _____ [date] to _____ [date], plaintiff was employed by defendant as a train dispatcher at its _____ [e.g., switchyard].

2. During all of this time, defendant negligently and carelessly required plaintiff to be subjected, as train dispatcher, to working conditions of unusual responsibility, stress, and tension in order for plaintiff to perform his/her duties as a train dispatcher, in that plaintiff was required to operate a system of central traffic control of defendant's railroad, which system involved multitudinous and complex mechanical factors and mental decisions, extreme responsibility, constant but shifting attention, and numerous clerical functions which altogether, under the circumstances, imposed an unusual stress and burden on plaintiff's physical and nervous systems.

3. As a proximate result of that negligence and carelessness, plaintiff was caused to, and did, suffer a severe nervous collapse and the injuries hereinafter described.

[2] Use of Form

These allegations are for use for insertion in a complaint by an injured employee against an interstate railroad employer under the FELA (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60) for damages for personal injuries when the basis of the claim is a nervous breakdown caused by severe job stress as a result of the employer's negligence. The allegations may be inserted in the form in § 485.121 in lieu of Paragraphs 5-9 of that form. If so used, the second count of that form should be deleted. For the kinds of injuries covered by FELA, see § 485.35[3].

[1] FORM Action Under Federal Employers' Liability Act (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60)--Allegation in Complaint Based on Negligence [45 U.S.C.S. § 51]--Plater Contracted Skin Infection From Plating Solution

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendant owned and operated a plating department in [conjunction with its _____ (e.g., switchyard) in] _____, California where metal parts used on its locomotives and cars in interstate commerce were replated.

2. From _____ [date] to _____ [date], plaintiff was employed as a plater by defendant in its plating department. Plaintiff's duties required him/her to work with a solution of _____ [specify, e.g., silver cyanide], a harmful solution that the defendant negligently provided without any precautionary measures to protect plaintiff from its harm, and in the course of which use the solution would get on plaintiff's hands.

3. As a proximate result of defendant's negligence in assigning plaintiff to work in this solution, plaintiff was caused to sustain a skin infection on his/her hands, which condition on or about _____ [date], was diagnosed at defendant's hospital as dermatitis, attributed to _____ [e.g., filtering a cyanide solution that gets on hands] and treated with a lotion. A copy of the hospital's report was furnished to the defendant. At no time prior to the date ofplaintiff's total disability was plaintiff advised that he/she should not work with the plating solution or that it would produce any serious or lasting results. The affliction nevertheless continued to worsen, got really bad on or about _____ [date], spread to other parts of plaintiff's body, and on or about _____ [date], resulted in plaintiff's total inability to work.

[ADD, if first treatment referred to above was more than three years before action was filed]

4. Although plaintiff first became aware of the cause of the skin condition on _____ [date beyond three-year period] when it was first diagnosed and treated at defendant employer's hospital, it was not until _____ [date within three-year period] that the first manifestation of substantial harm to the plaintiff occurred when the affliction got really bad, began spreading to other parts of plaintiff's body, and subsequently resulted in plaintiff's total disability.

[2] Use of Form

This form of allegations is for insertion in a complaint by an injured employee against an interstate railroad employer under the FELA (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60) for damages for personal injury (a skin affliction) that was caused by a plating solution with which the plaintiff was required to work as a result of the railroad's breach of its duty to provide plaintiff with a reasonably safe place to work. The allegations may be inserted in the form in § 485.121 in lieu of Paragraphs 4-9 of that form. If so used, the second count of that form should be deleted. For the kinds of injuries covered by FELA, see § 485.35[3]. PART IV. FORMS
A. Injuries To Employees

[1] FORM Action Under Federal Employers' Liability Act (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60)--Allegation in Complaint Based on Negligence and Violation of Safety Appliance Act (49 U.S.C.S. § 20301 et seq.) [45 U.S.C.S. § 51]--Conductor Injured on Sudden Release of Brake [49 U.S.C.S. § 20302(a)(1)(B)]

1. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff was employed by defendant as a conductor and was engaged in work that was in furtherance of interstate commerce.

2. On or about _____ [date], at about _____ [time], defendant was working as a conductor on one of defendant's _____ [e.g., freight] trains traveling from _____ [point of origin] to _____ [point of destination] and was _____ [specify location, e.g., passing through defendant's freight yards located at _____, California].

3. At that time and place, plaintiff, in the course of his/her employment, was applying a hand brake on a _____ [e.g., flat] car, which brake had been so negligently inspected, maintained, and repaired by the defendant and its employees other than plaintiff that it became stuck or caught. While plaintiff was using extra force to move the brake, the brake suddenly released.

4. As a proximate result of defendant's negligence as herein alleged, the sticking or catching of the brake, and its sudden release, plaintiff was thrown to the ground, thereby receiving the injuries hereinafter described.

5. At all times herein mentioned there was in full force and effect certain federal statutes commonly known as the Safety Appliance Act and, particularly, there was in full force and effect the safety provision set forth in formerUnited States Code, Title 49, Section 20302, which provides in part as follows:

[A] railroad carrier may use or allow to be used on any of its railroad lines ... a vehicle only if it is equipped with ...

6. At the time and place mentioned in Paragraph 2, the _____ [e.g., flat] car was not equipped with an efficient hand brake.

7. As a proximate result of defendant's violation of the Safety Appliance Act in failing to have the _____ [e.g., flat] car equipped with efficient hand brakes, the hand brake became stuck or caught while plaintiff was applying it and, while plaintiff was using extra force to move the brake, it suddenly released.

8. As a proximate result of the defective brake and its sudden release, plaintiff was thrown to the ground, thereby receiving the injuries hereinafter described.

[2] Use of Form

This form of allegations is for use for insertion in a complaint by an injured employee against an interstate railroad employer under the FELA (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60) for damages for personal injuries resulting from a fall from a train caused by the railroad's failure to have the car on which plaintiff was working equipped with an efficient hand brake.

The allegations of Paragraphs 1-4 may be inserted in the form in § 485.121 in lieu of Paragraphs 4-9 of the first count of that form, and the allegations of Paragraphs 5-8 may be inserted in lieu of Paragraphs 13-15 of the second count of that form. For the kinds of injuries covered by FELA, see § 485.35[3]. A violation of the Safety Appliance Act [49 U.S.C.S. § 20301 et seq.] results in the railroad's absolute liability, and neither the negligence of the railroad nor the contributory negligence of the employee is an issue in the case [see § 485.45[4]].

1. At that time and place, plaintiff, in the regular course and scope of his/her employment by defendant as a switchman, was required to, and did, climb _____ [e.g., to the top] of a certain _____ [specify type, e.g., box] car, and to hold on to a certain grab iron attached to it, for the purpose of putting himself/herself in position to give stop signals to the engineer of the switch engine.

2. At that time and place, defendant, acting by and through its agents, servants, and employees, other than plaintiff, so carelessly and negligently operated and controlled the switch engine as to cause the car on which plaintiff was working tobe suddenly, violently, and unusually jerked.

3. As a proximate result of defendant's negligence as herein alleged, plaintiff was caused to be, and was, thrown with such force and violence that the grab iron pl aintiff was holding came loose from the car, thereby causing plaintiff to be thrown to the ground and to sustain the injuries hereinafter described.

4. At all times herein mentioned there was in full force and effect certain federal statutes commonly known as the Safety Appliance Act and particularly there was in full force and effect the safety provision set forth in United States Code, Title 49, Section 20302(a)(2), which provides as follows:

Except as otherwise ordered by the Secretary, a vehicle [may be used on railroad lines] only if it is equipped with secure grab irons or handholds on its ends and sides for greater security to individuals in coupling and uncoupling vehicles.

5. At the time and place mentioned in Paragraph 6, the _____ [e.g. box] car was not equipped with secure grabirons.

6. As a proximate result of defendant's violation of the Safety Appliance Act in failing to have the _____ [e.g., box] car equipped with secure grabirons, the grabiron to which plaintiff was holding came loose with such suddenness when the switch engine was suddenly, violently, and unusually jerked that plaintiff was caused to be thrown to the ground and to sustain the injuries hereinafter described.

[2] Use of Form

This form of allegations is for use for insertion in a complaint by an injured employee against an interstate railroad employer under the FELA [45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60] for damages for personal injuries resulting from a fall from a train caused by a combination of the employer's negligence in causing the car on which plaintiff was working to be jerked with unusual force and an insecure grab iron that came loose. Both theories of liability may be pleaded, but if they are they should be clearly distinguished [see § 485.121]. The allegations of Paragraphs 1-3 may be inserted in the form in § 485.121 in lieu of Paragraphs 7 and 8 of the first count of that form, and the allegations of Paragraphs 4-6 may be inserted in lieu of Paragraphs 13-15 of the second count of that form.

For the kinds of injuries covered by FELA, see § 485.35[3]. A violation of the Safety Appliance Act [49 U.S.C.S. § 20301 et seq.] results in the railroad's absolute liability, and neither the negligence of the railroad nor the contributory negligence of the employee is an issue in the case [see § 485.45[4]].

A. Injuries To Employees

§ 485.128 Action Under Federal Employers' Liability Act (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60)--Allegation in Complaint Based on Negligence and Violation of Boiler Inspection Act (49 U.S.C.S. § 20701 et seq.) [45 U.S.C.S. § 51]--Engineer Injured in Fall From Greasy Ladder on Side of Locomotive [45 U.S.C.S. § 51; 49 U.S.C.S. § 20701]

[1] FORM Action Under Federal Employers' Liability Act (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60)--Allegation in Complaint Based on Negligence and Violation of Boiler Inspection Act (49 U.S.C.S. § 20701 et seq.) [45 U.S.C.S. § 51]--Engineer Injured in Fall From Greasy Ladder on Side of Locomotive [45 U.S.C.S. § 51; 49 U.S.C.S. § 20701]

1. At all times herein mentioned, plaintiff was employed by defendant as a locomotive engineer and at the time of the accident hereinafter alleged was engaged in work that was in furtherance of interstate commerce.

2. On or about _____ [date of accident], plaintiff had reported to work in response to a call to duty to take a _____ [e.g., freight] train from _____, California to _____ [city and state].

3. At that time and place, plaintiff, in the regular course and scope of his/her employment, was required, at night, to inspect the locomotive, which involved descending the tank ladder of the locomotive while it was on the turn-out track of the roundhouse.

4. The locomotive was not in proper condition or safe for operation in that defendant's roundhouse employees had negligently permitted large quantities of grease to remain on the steps and grab irons of the ladder where plaintiff was required to step in descending the ladder.

5. As a proximate result of defendant's negligence in permitting large quantities of grease to remain on the steps and grab irons of the ladder, plaintiff, in attempting to descend, was caused to, and did, slip on the grease and fall to the ground, and thereby received the personal injuries hereinafter alleged.

6. At all times herein mentioned there was in full force and effect certain statutes commonly known as the Boiler Inspection Act, and particularly there was in full force and effect the safety provision set forth in United States Code,

Title 49, Section 20701, which provides in relevant part as follows:

A railroad carrier may use or allow to be used a locomotive or tender on its railroad line only when the locomotive or tender and its parts and appurtenancesare in proper condition and safe to operate without unnecessary danger of personal injury ...

7. At the time and place mentioned in Paragraph 2, the locomotive was not in proper condition and safe to operate in the service to which it was put so as to be em ployed in active service without unnecessary peril to life or limb, in that defendant's roundhouse employees had permitted large quantities of grease to remain on the steps and grab irons of the tank ladder on the side of the locomotive where plaintiff was required to step in descending the ladder.

8. As a proximate result of defendant's permitting large quantities of grease to remain on the steps and grab irons of the ladder and the unsafe and defective condition of the ladder and grab irons, plaintiff, in attempting to descend, was caused to, and he/she did, slip on the grease and fall to the ground and thereby received the personal injuries hereinafter alleged.

[2] Use of Form

This form of allegations is for use for insertion in a complaint by an injured railroad employee against his or her interstate railroad employer under the FELA (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60) for damages for personal injuries resulting from a fall from a locomotive ladder caused by an accumulation of grease on the steps of the ladder which the roundhouse employees had failed to remove before returning the locomotive to service.

The allegations of Paragraphs 1-5 may be inserted in the form in § 485.121 in lieu of Paragraphs 5 and 8 of the first count of that form, and Paragraphs 6-8 may be inserted in lieu of Paragraphs 13-15 of the second count of that form.

For the kinds of injuries covered by FELA, see § 485.35[3].

If the locomotive was "in service" within the meaning of the Boiler Inspection Act [see 49 U.S.C.S. § 20701], then the employer's liability would be absolute and negligence would not be in issue. If the locomotive was not in service, and hence not within the provisions of the Boiler Inspection Act, plaintiff's cause of action would be based on negligence and any contributory negligence of the engineer would be set off against the judgment [see 45 U.S.C.S. § 53]. Both theories of liability may be pleaded, but if they are they should be clearly distinguished [see § 485.121].

[3] Federal Statutes

Requirement that locomotive or tender and its parts and appurtenances be in proper condition and safe to operate without unnecessary danger of personal injury. 49 U.S.C.S. § 20701

[4] Decisions

Duty of carrier to not place in service locomotive in improper or unsafe condition. Minehart v. Southern Pac. Co. (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 486, 488, 288 P.2d 999

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by an interstate railroad employer, sued under the FELA (45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60) by an employee for damages for personal injuries sustained as a result of the employer's alleged negligence, to plead the negligence of the employee and/or third person and the employee's contributory negligence as the cause of the accident [see 45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51, 53]. The defenses are for inclusion in the railroad's answer to the employee's complaint.

For a discussion of answers generally, including general forms into which these affirmative defenses may be inserted, see Ch. 26, Answers .

Each of the affirmative defenses set forth in the form may be used separately or in any combination with the others, inasmuch as pleading inconsistent defenses is allowed under both federal and state law [see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(e)(2) (federal action); Oppenheimer v. Deutchman (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 450, 453, 259 P.2d 457 (California action)] .

The defenses based on negligence would not, however, be used in an answer to a complaint, count, or cause of action in which liability is predicated on the employer's alleged violation of a safety provision [see 42 U.S.C.S. §§ 53, 54a; see also § 485.129[3]]. In such a case, the employer's liability is absolute and negligence is not in issue [see § 485.45[4]].

[3] Negligence and Contributory Negligence

The employer's liability under the FELA [45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60] is predicated on the employer's negligence [see 45 U.S.C.S. § 51; see also § 485.35[2]].

The contributory negligence of the employee in an action under the FELA does not bar recovery, but the damages are diminished by the jury in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to the employee. However, no employee can be found guilty of contributory negligence in any case in which the employee's injury or death was contributed to in any part by the railroad's violation of a statute enacted or regulation or rule adopted for the safety of employees [49 U.S.C.S. §§ 53, 54a; see § 485.45[4]].

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by a railroad employer sued under the FELA [45 U.S.C.S. §§ 51-60] by an employee for damages for personal injuries sustained as a result of the employer's negligence, to plead application of the exclusive remedies under the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act (LHWCA) [33 U.S.C.S. § 901 et seq.], on the ground that, at the time the alleged incident occurred, the employee was engaged in "maritime employment" within the meaning of LHWCA [see Chesapeake & Ohio Ry. Co. v. Schwalb (1989) 493 U.S. 40, 110 S. Ct. 381, 107 L. Ed. 2d 278, 286-288] .

[3] "Maritime Employment"

The United States Supreme Court has defined "maritime employment" as used in the LHWCA to encompass certain railroad workers engaged in maritime-related activities, such as the loading and unloading of cargo between a ship and railroad car, regardless whether the railroad employee's job also includes nonmaritime-related activities [see

Chesapeake & Ohio Ry. Co. v. Schwalb (1989) 493 U.S. 40, 110 S. Ct. 381, 107 L. Ed. 2d 278, 286-288] . For discussion of the LHWCA generally, see Ch. 522, Ships and Shipping, § 522.30 et seq.

Plaintiff alleges:

1. _____ [Allege identity and capacity of defendant railroad company, e.g., Defendant _____ (name of railroad) is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation duly incorporated and existing under the laws of the state of California, with its principal place of business in _____ (city), _____County, California].

[2. _____ [Allege identity, capacity, and/or residence of defendant railroad employees, e.g., Defendant _____ (name) is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ (city), _____ County, California.]

[3. Defendants DOES 1 through _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by such defendants].

4. At all times herein mentioned, defendants _____ [names of railroad employees] were the agents and employees of defendant _____ [name of railroad] and, and in doing the things herein alleged, were acting within the scope of their authority as agents and employees, and with the consent and permission of _____ [name of railroad].

5. Defendant _____ [name of railroad] is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a common carrier of passengers for reward, and as such offered the use of railroad cars owned by defendant, with operators employed by defendant, to the public for hire in and between various points in _____ County and _____ County, California. Defendant owned, operated, and maintained a depot or station in _____ [city], _____ County, California, for the use of its passengers in boarding or alighting from trains operated by defendant.

6. On or about _____ [date], at or about _____ [time], defendants received plaintiff as a fare-paying passenger on a certain train known as _____ [specify] for the purpose of transporting plaintiff from _____ [city], California to _____ [city], California.

7. _____ [Allege negligent act of defendant(s) proximately causing plaintiff's injury, e.g., On or about _____ (date), at or about _____ (time), the train on which plaintiff was a passenger arrived at the station maintained by defendant _____ (name of railroad), at _____ (city), California. At that time and place, plaintiff proceeded to the platform of the passenger car on which he/she had been riding and prepared to alight. Defendants negligently and carelessly operated, repaired, maintained, and controlled the train so as to cause it to violently jerk and move forward as plaintiff was descending the steps of the car, thereby precipitating plaintiff off the passenger car and injuring plaintiff as hereinafter alleged].

8. As a proximate result of the acts and omissions of defendant[(s), and each of them], plaintiff was injured as follows: _____ [specify injuries incurred by plaintiff]. [Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that these injuries will result in some permanent disability to him/her.] As a result of these injuries, plaintiff has suffered general damages.

9. As a further proximate result of the acts and omissions of defendant[(s), and each of them], plaintiff has sustained [and will continue to sustain] special damages, consisting of reasonable hospital and medical and related expenses.

10. As a further proximate result of the acts and omissions of defendant[(s), and each of them], plaintiff's earning capacity has been greatly impaired, both in the past and in the present.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

1. For general damages according to proof;

2. For medical and related expenses according to proof;

3. For damages for loss of income and earnings and impairment of earning ability according to proof;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by a passenger against a railroad company and its employees for injuries caused by the operators' negligence while the passenger was boarding, riding, or alighting from a train [see Civ. Code §§ 1714(a), 2100].

For general forms of complaint for use by a passenger for wrongful ejection by a common carrier, and for assault and battery by a carrier's agent, see Ch. 109, Carriers . For general forms of complaint for use by persons injured by dangerous conditions on property, see Ch. 421, Premises Liability .

[3] Allegations

This complaint first alleges the corporate capacity of the defendant railroad (Paragraph 1) and includes initial, optional paragraphs that state the identity and residence of any defendant railroad employees (Paragraph 2), and that add fictitiously named defendants (Paragraph 3). It then alleges (1) that the employee operators of the train named as defendants were agents of the railroad company, acting within the course of their employment, for purposes of applying vicarious liability to the railroad company (Paragraph 4) [see Ch. 380, Negligence]; (2) the status of defendant railroad as common carrier in order to establish the highest duty of care (Paragraph 5) [Civ. Code §§ 2100, 2168; (3) the status of plaintiff as a person carried for reward (paying passenger) at the time of injury (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code § 2100; Lagomarsino v. Market St. Ry. Co. (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 388, 395-396, 158 P.2d 982] ; (4) that defendant railroad and its employees breached their duty to plaintiff by negligently operating or maintaining the train, proximately causing injury to plaintiff (Paragraph 7) [see McNulty v. Southern Pac. Co. (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 841, 855-856, 216 P.2d 534] ; and (5) that defendant's negligence was the proximate cause of injuries suffered by plaintiff (Paragraphs 8-10) [see Civ. Code §§ 1714(a), 3333].

[4] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case and must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

In an action for injury to person or personal property, either the county in which the injury occurs or the county in which the defendants, or some of them, reside at the commencement of the action is a proper county for the trial of the action (see Paragraphs 1 and 2) [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

[5] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint must not state the amount of actual or punitive damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

Otherwise, the amounts claimed as damages for anything other than personal injury or wrongful death (for example, property damage) must be alleged [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)] or an equivalent statement must be included, for example, a statement that the damages for a particular loss or harm sustained [see Civ. Code §§ 3281, 3282] are not known and that leave will be sought to amend the complaint to state the exact amount when ascertained. If this is done, counsel must remember to seek leave to amend the complaint to so state before judgment.

No claim for punitive damages may state an amount sought regardless of the nature of the case [Civ. Code § 3295(e)].

For discussion of and forms for requesting and stating the amount of damages sought when they are not stated in the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.11, 425.115], see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

(Negligence)

[1. Identity and capacity of defendant railroad company. See § 485.150, Paragraph 1.]

[2. Identity, capacity, and/or residence of defendant railroad employees. See § 485.150, Paragraph 2.]

[3. Fictitious name allegation. See § 485.150, Paragraph 3.]

[4. Agency allegation. See § 485.150, Paragraph 4 .]

5. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name of railroad company] owned, managed, operated, and controlled a railroad, and a portion of the tracks and right-of-way of the railroad extended in a general _____ [specify, e.g., north-south] direction over, on, and across _____ [street], which is a duly dedicated street and public highway extending in a general _____ [specify, e.g., east-west] direction in _____ [city], _____ County, California.

6. On or about _____ [date], at approximately _____ [time], plaintiff was driving a _____ [describe vehicle, e.g., 1988 Dodge pick-up truck] _____ [specify direction, e.g., westbound] on _____ [street]. At that same time, defendants were operating a _____ [specify, e.g., train consisting of one locomotive, five flatcars, and a caboose] _____ [specify direction, e.g., northbound] along the railroad track described above. On or about the time alleged above, at the grade crossing described above, defendants negligently and carelessly operated, repaired, maintained, and controlled the train, so that it ran into and against plaintiff's vehicle, inflicting personal injury [and property damage] as hereinafter alleged.

7. At the time and place referred to herein, defendant _____ [name of railroad] negligently and carelessly failed to maintain a person with a flag or lantern, to furnish an automatic signaling device, or to require its employees to sound a horn or other device at or near the crossing, to warn motorists of the approach of the train to the crossing. Defendant _____ [name of railroad], through its agents and employees acting in the discharge of their duties and within the scope of their authority, did not furnish and maintain these and, as a result, plaintiff was injured.

8. At the time and place referred to herein, defendant(s) _____ [name of railroad employee(s)], negligently and careless operated the _____ [locomotive or railroad car] in that he/she/they failed to sound a horn or other device at or near the crossing, to warn motorists of the approach of the train to the crossing and, as a result, plaintiff was injured.

[9. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ (name of railroad) knew of the existence of a highly dangerous condition in that _____ (allege knowledge by defendant of danger to plaintiff, e.g., at the crossing described herein traffic was normally heavy, no visual warning of oncoming trains was provided, vision was obstructed in two directions by buildings, and the angle of the train's approach to the intersection made it difficult to assess the speed of an oncoming train). Notwithstanding this knowledge, defendant _____ (specify action or omission, e.g., failed to install crossing gates, flashing lights, or any other effective warning signal). (Defendant's failure to take corrective action displayed a conscious and callous indifference to, or disregard of, probable harm to _____ (describe persons in plaintiff's position, e.g., motorists using the crossing described herein], including plaintiff.)]

[10. At all times herein mentioned, defendant(s) _____ (railroad employee(s)) knew of the existence of a highly dangerous condition in that _____ (specify). Notwithstanding this knowledge, defendant(s) _____ (specify action or omission, e.g., failed to sound a horn or other device at or near the crossing, to warn plaintiff of the approach of the train). (Defendants' failure to warn plaintiff displayed a conscious and callous indifference to, or disregard of, probable harm to plaintiff.)]

[11. Allegation of personal injuries. See § 485.150, Paragraphs 8- 10 .]

SECOND COUNT
(Liability under Pub. Util. Code § 2106)

13. Plaintiff refers to and herein incorporates Paragraphs 1-12, inclusive, of the First Count.

14. At the times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name of railroad] was a public utility owning, operating, controlling, or managing a railroad line and system for the transportation of people or property, directly or indirectly to or for the public.

15. At the times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name of railroad] _____ [did, caused to be done, or permitted an act, matter, or thing prohibited or declared unlawful or omitted to do an act, matter, or thing required to be done] by the Constitution, a state law, or an order or decision of the Public Utilities Commission, in that: _____ [specify acts or omissions in violation of Constitution, state statute, or order or decision of the Public Utilities Commission, e.g., defendant failed to locate its crossing signals in a conspicuous position at both corners of the crossing intersection on the right-hand side of highway traffic flow and in advance of the railroad track and arranged to face the highway travel].

16. The foregoing _____ [act(s) or omission(s)] committed by defendant constituted a violation of _____ [specify constitutional provision, statute, or Public Utilities Commission order or decision]. [This Public Utilities Commission _____ (order or decision), a copy of which is attached as Exhibit A and is incorporated herein, was at all times herein in full force and effect.]

[17. Plaintiff requests that judicial notice be taken of the _____ (order or decision) of the California Public Utilities Commission herein described and incorporated.]

18. As a proximate result of the foregoing _____ [act(s) or omission(s)] committed by defendant, plaintiff suffered the injury described above.

[19. Defendant's _____ (act or omission) was wilful and resulted in the loss, damages, and injury to plaintiff described above.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as follows:

1. For general damages according to proof;

2. For medical and related expenses according to proof;

3. For damages for loss of income and earnings and impairment of earning ability according to proof;

[4. For damage to personal property (according to proof or in the sum of $ _____),]

[5. For punitive damages,]

6. For costs of suit herein incurred, and

7. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by an automobile driver to bring an action for personal injuries and, if appropriate, property damage against a railroad company and its train operators for injuries sustained in a collision between the automobile and a train. The complaint includes two counts: the first count is for general use when recovery is based on negligence [see Civ. Code § 1714(a); see also § 485.61]; the second count should be used only when recovery may also be based on liability under Pub. Util. Code § 2106, which provides that a public utility is liable for all loss, damage, or injury caused by its violation of a Constitutional provision, a statute, or an order or decision of the Public Utilities Commission [see § 485.68].

The form may be modified for use by an motor vehicle passenger injured in a crossing collision to allege a cause of action against the railroad and its employees. A passenger may also have separate causes of action against the driver and owner of the vehicle [see Deshotel v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Ry. Co. (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 224, 226, 231, 300 P.2d 910] . For further discussion and forms relating to an action by an motor vehicle passenger against the driver or owner generally, see Ch. 83, Automobiles: Bringing the Action .

[3] Allegations

The first count of the form alleges the corporate capacity of the defendant railroad (Paragraph 1) and includes initial, optional paragraphs that state the identity and residence of any defendant railroad employees (Paragraph 2), and that add fictitiously named defendants (Paragraph 3). It then alleges that (1) the train involved was in the possession of defendant railroad and operated by it at time ofaccident (Paragraph 5) [see Johnson v. Southern Pac. R.R. Co. (1908) 154 Cal. 285, 288-289, 97 P. 520] ; (2) defendant railroad company had a duty to maintain signals or warnings at the crossing under the circumstances (Paragraph 7) [see Downey v. Santa Fe Transp. Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 720, 726-727, 286 P.2d 40] ; (3) defendant operators had a duty to sound a warning at the crossing under the circumstances (Paragraph 8) [see Downey v. Santa Fe Transp. Co. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 720, 727, 286 P.2d 40] ; (4) defendants breached their duty to plaintiff by failing to maintain signals or sound warnings and, as a result, defendants' train collided with plaintiff's automobile (Paragraphs 6-8); and (5) defendant's negligence was the proximate cause of personal injuries suffered by plaintiff (Paragraph 11) [Civ. Code §§ 1714(a), 3333]. The first count also includes optional paragraphs alleging that defendant's negligence was the proximate cause of property damage incurred by plaintiff (Paragraph 12) [Civ. Code §§ 1714(a), 3333], and that defendants' conduct constitutes a willful and conscious disregard of probable harm to plaintiff sufficient to support an award of punitive damages (Paragraphs 9, 10) [Civ. Code § 3294; see Seimon v. Southern Pac. Transp. Co. (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 600, 608-609, 136 Cal. Rptr. 787] .

The second count of this form, based on liability under Pub. Util. Code § 2106, alleges that (1) defendant railroad company was a public utility (Paragraph 14) [see Cal. Const. art. XII, § 3; Pub. Util. Code § 216; (2) defendant railroad company violated a provision of the Constitution, a statute, or an order or decision of the Public Utilities Commission (Paragraphs 15, 16) [see Pub. Util. Code § 2106]; and (3) defendant railroad's violation was a proximate cause of loss, damages, or injury to plaintiff (Paragraph 18) [see Pub. Util. Code § 2106]. The second count includes an optional paragraph alleging that defendant railroad's acts or omissions were wilful and thus are sufficient to support an award of exemplary damages (Paragraph 19) [see Pub. Util. Code § 2106]. It also includes an optional paragraph requesting that judicial notice be taken of an order or decision of the Public Utilities Commission order or decision, for use when a violation of that order or decision is the basis for liability (Paragraph 17) [Pub. Util. Code § 2106; see Evid. Code § 453 (court shall take judicial notice of matters subject to permissive judicial notice under Evid. Code § 452 if party so requests, gives adverse party sufficient notice of that request through pleadings or otherwise, and furnishes court with sufficient information to take judicial notice)].

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint is for use by the person(s) entitled by statute to bring a wrongful death action based on the death of a decedent who had been the driver in an automobile against a railroad company and its employees for the wrongful death of the decedent caused by a collision between the train and the automobile [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60].

For a general form of complaint and allegations to establish plaintiffs' entitlement to bring a wrongful death action, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions .

[3] Allegations

This form of complaint alleges the following:

- The identity of persons entitled under the statute to bring a wrongful death cause of action and their relationship to the decedent and, if the action is brought by the personal representative of the decedent's estate on behalf of these entitled persons, the capacity of the personal representative to do so (Paragraph 1) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60].

- That defendants proximately caused the death of decedent by their negligence (Paragraphs 7, 8, 10) [Civ. Code § 1714(a)].

- That plaintiff(s) sustained a loss of the society, comfort, attention, services, and support of decedent (Paragraph 11) [Krouse v. Graham (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 59, 67, 137 Cal. Rptr. 863, 562 P.2d 1022] .

- That plaintiff(s) incurred expenses for decedent's burial (Paragraph 12) [Francis v. Sauve (1963) 222 Cal. App. 2d 102, 124, 34 Cal. Rptr. 754] . If the plaintiff is a minor, a guardian ad litem must be appointed for the purposes of the action, unless the minor already has a guardian [see Code Civ. Proc. § 372].

[4] Wrongful Death Actions

When the death of a person is caused by the wrongful act or negligence of another, certain persons, or the decedent's personal representative on their behalf, may bring an action for damages against the person causing the death and any other person responsible (or against personal representatives of such persons) [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60]. Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60 permits decedent's surviving spouse, domestic partner, children, and issue of deceased children to bring a wrongful death action without qualification, and permits others to bring an action under specified circumstances. For forms of allegations establishing that specific classes of persons are entitled to bring a wrongful death action, including allegations that are required of plaintiffs who are not the decedent's surviving spouse, domestic partner, children, or issue of deceased children, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions . If a plaintiff is a minor, a guardian ad litem must be appointed for the purposes of the action, unless the minor already has a guardian [see Code Civ. Proc. § 372]. For discussion and forms relating to appointment of a guardian ad litem generally, see Ch. 291, Guardians ad Litem .

In a wrongful death action, damages may be awarded that, under all the circumstances of the case, may be just, but may not include damages recoverable under Code Civ. Proc. § 377.34 (survival actions). The court must determine the respective rights in an award of the persons entitled to assert the cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.61]. An action under Code Civ. Proc § 377.30 (survival actions) may be joined with a wrongful death action arising out of the same wrongful act or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.62(a)]. In addition, a wrongful death action and a survival action under Code Civ. Proc § 377.31 (survival of pending action) arising out of the same wrongful act or neglect may be consolidated for trial as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1048 (consolidation of actions) [Code Civ. Proc. § 377.62(b)].

For further discussion of actions for wrongful death and survival actions generally, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions .

[5] Venue

In an action for death from a wrongful act or negligence, either the county in which the injury occurs or the county in which the defendants, or some of them, reside at the commencement of the action is a proper county for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

§ 485.153 Action for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Against Railroad [Civ. Code § 2338] and Employees [Civ. Code § 2343]--Allegation in Complaint by Automobile Driver--Failure to Repair Signal or Sound Warning at Grade Crossing

[1] FORM Action for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Against Railroad [Civ. Code § 2338] and Employees [Civ. Code § 2343]--Allegation in Complaint by Automobile Driver--Failure to Repair Signal or Sound Warning at Grade Crossing

1. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name of railroad] _____ [allege facts showing defendant's possession and control of location at which the accident occurred, e.g., owned, maintained, controlled, managed, and operated a crossing where its railroad tracks intersect and occupy a portion of _____ (street name) in _____ (city), California]. On or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [name of railroad] installed _____ [specify defective warning device, e.g., a wigwag signal at the southwest corner of the crossing], the purpose of which was to warn motorists of the approach of its trains, and on which the public was thereby encouraged to rely.

2. At the times and place herein mentioned, defendant _____ [name of railroad] negligently and carelessly failed to inspect and to maintain _____ [specify defective warning device, e.g., the wigwag signal]. By reason of defendant's lack of inspection and maintenance, _____ [specify defective warning device, e.g., the wigwag signal] failed to operate properly, in that _____ [specify, e.g., it did not activate on the approach and passing of trains traveling on the northbound track].

3. Defendant _____ [name of railroad] had actual or constructive notice that _____ [specify defective warning device, e.g., the wigwag signal] failed to operate properly in that _____ [allege facts indicating actual or constructive notice, e.g., several motorists had reported the signal's malfunction to defendant's regional office at _____ (address), in the month preceding the accident described below]. Notwithstanding this notice, defendant _____ [railroad company], through its agents and employees acting in the discharge of their duties and within the scope of their authority, negligently and carelessly failed to make necessary repairs.

4. Defendants _____ [names of railroad employees] had actual or constructive notice that _____ [specify defective warning device, e.g., the wigwag signal] failed to operate properly in that _____ [allege facts indicating actual or constructive notice, e.g., during the month preceding the accident described below, defendants passed through the crossing many times and observed or should have observed the signal's malfunction]. Notwithstanding this notice, defendants _____ [names of railroad employees] _____ negligently and carelessly failed to ring a bell, or sound a whistle, or either one or more thereof, at or near the crossing, to warn plaintiff of the approach of the train.

5. _____ [Describe accident caused by defective warning device, e.g., On _____ (date), at approximately _____ (time), plaintiff, as the driver of a motor vehicle, approached the crossing and signal described above, driving eastbound on _____ (street). Plaintiff heard no horn or other sound warning of an approaching train, and, in further reliance on the fact that the wigwag signal was not activated, proceeded to drive his/her motor vehicle through the crossing. There it was struck by a passing northbound train, resulting in plaintiff's injuries described below].

[2] Use of Form

These allegations are for use in a complaint by an automobile driver who has been injured in a collision as a result of a railroad company's failure to inspect and repair defective signal equipment at a crossing [see § 485.62[3][b]]. They may be inserted in lieu of Paragraphs 6-8 in the form in § 485.151. In an action involving wrongful death, the allegations may be adapted for insertion in lieu of Paragraphs 7 and 8 of the form in § 485.152.

[3] Allegations

This form alleges that (1) defendant occupied and controlled the crossing (Paragraph 1) [see County of Alameda v. Southern Pac. Co. (1961) 55 Cal. 2d 479, 484, 11 Cal. Rptr. 751, 360 P.2d 327 ; see also Ch. 421, Premises Liability]; (2) defendant installed a signal on which the public was encouraged to rely (Paragraph 1) [see Will v. Southern Pac. Co. (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 468, 473-474, 116 P.2d 44] ; and (3) defendants breached their respective duties to plaintiff, despite actual or constructive notice of the danger, to inspect and maintain the signal andto sound a warning on approaching the crossing, resulting in the collision that caused plaintiff's injuries (Paragraphs 2-5) [Civ. Code § 1714(a); see Peri v. Los Angeles Junction Ry. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 111, 128, 130-131, 137 P.2d 441 ; Vaca v. Southern Pac. Co. (1928) 91 Cal. App. 470, 481, 267 P. 346] .

[1] FORM Action for Damages [Civ. Code § 3333] Against Railroad [Civ. Code § 2338] and Employees [Civ. Code § 2343]--Allegation in Complaint by Automobile Driver--Use of Excessive Speed at Grade Crossing

[EITHER]

1. At the time and place referred to herein, defendants _____ [names], as agents or employees of defendant _____ [name of railroad] acting in the discharge of their duties and within the scope of their authority, negligently and carelessly controlled, maintained, and operated the _____ [locomotive or railroad car] by causing the train to be propelled at an excessive and dangerous rate of speed, above that which would have been safe or prudent under the circumstances existing at the time and place referred to herein, including the fact that _____ [specify, e.g., parked vehicles, adjacent to the crossing, obscured the vision and view of the engineer and the plaintiff at the crossing].

[AND/OR]

2. At the time and place referred to herein, defendant _____ [name of railroad] negligently and carelessly directed its employees to operate the [locomotive or railroad car] at an excessive and dangerous rate of speed, which rate of speed was maintained by defendant employees _____ [names] at the express direction of defendant _____ [name of railroad].

[2] Use of Form

These allegations are for use in a complaint by an automobile driver who has been injured in a collision caused by the failure of train operators to drive a train at a reasonable speed under the circumstances [see § 485.02[5][f]]. Liability may be based on excessive speed whether or not signals were provided at the crossing [see Peri v. Los Angeles

Junction Ry. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 111, 126, 137 P.2d 441] . The allegations may be inserted either in addition to or in lieu of Paragraphs 6-8 in the form in § 485.151. In a wrongful death action, they may be adapted for insertion in Paragraphs 7 and 8 of the form in § 485.152.

[3] Allegations

This form alleges that the railroad operators were negligent in using excessive speed in operating the train, given the circumstances existing at the crossing (Paragraph 1) [see Stout v. Southern Pac. R.R. Co. (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 491, 502, 274 P.2d 194] . An alternate or additional paragraph alleges that the railroad company was negligent in directing its employees to maintain an excessive rate of speed, for use when there is an independent basis for liability on the part of the company (Paragraph 2) [see Benson v. Southern Pacific Co. (1918) 177 Cal. 777, 779-880, 171 P. 948] .

[4] Decisions

Evidence that railroad company regulated speed of trains at crossing, through use of "speed boards" and prescribed time schedule, as supporting jury finding that company was independently negligent, apart from respondeat superior. Jensen v. Southern Pac. Co. (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 67, 69-71, 276 P.2d 703 , disapproved on other grounds in Alarid v. Vanier (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 617, 623-624, 327 P.2d 897

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES:

1. Plaintiff failed to exercise reasonable and ordinary care, caution, or prudence for his/her own safety in order to avoid the alleged accident in that _____ [set out acts or omissions of plaintiff constituting negligence, e.g., plaintiff could not obtain a reasonably safe view of the tracks in both directions before entering the dangerous track area unless plaintiff stopped his/her automobile. Nevertheless, plaintiff negligently and carelessly failed to stop, to look, and to listen for the approach of defendant's train and instead proceeded without stopping onto the tracks into the path of the oncoming train].

2. The resulting injuries and damages, if any, sustained by plaintiff wereproximately caused by the negligence of plaintiff.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense allegation is for insertion in an answer to a complaint based on negligence brought against a railroad by an automobile driver injured in a collision. The defense alleges that plaintiff's own negligent conduct was the sole or contributing cause of the alleged injury. For discussion of the defense of comparative negligence in negligence actions against railroads, see § 485.67. AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES that plaintiff was injured, if at all, while _____ [getting on or attempting to get on or riding on or getting off of] a moving locomotive or railroad car, without authority from the operator of the railroad. Plaintiff's injuries and damages, if any, were not proximately caused by any intentional act of the owner or operator of the railroad, done either with knowledge that serious injury would probably result from the act, or with a wanton and reckless disregard of the probable result of the act.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense allegation is for insertion in an answer to a complaint based on negligence brought against a railroad by a plaintiff injured while gettingon, riding on, or getting off a moving train. The defense alleges that plaintiff's injury occurred as a result of his or her unauthorized act as a trespasser [Civ. Code § 1714.7; see § 485.62[2][b]]. For a form of Judicial Council answer into which this affirmative defense allegation may be inserted, see Ch. 380, Negligence . § 486.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the remedy of receivership both pendente lite and after judgment. The Legal Background and Forms are subdivided into three subparts. Subpart A discusses the appointment of receivers [see § 486.10 et seq.] and contains the following forms:

- Forms of allegations and prayers for the appointment of a receiver for inclusion in complaints [see §§ 486.130 -486.138].
- A form of declaration and ex parte application for appointment of a receiver [see § 486.139].
- A form of order fixing the amount of the ex parte applicant's bond [see § 486.140].
- A combined form of order on ex parte application appointing a receiver, fixing the amount of the applicant's and the receiver's bonds, and order to show cause why the appointment should not be confirmed [see § 486.141].
- A form of order confirming the appointment [see § 486.142].
- A form of notice of motion for an order appointing a receiver, a form of supporting declaration, and a form of order granting the motion [see §§ 486.143 -486.145].

Subpart B discusses the administration and termination of a receivership [see § 486.30 et seq.] and contains the following forms:

- A skeletal form of inventory [see § 486.150].
- A general form of application by the receiver for an order [see § 486.151].

- A form of petition for leave to employ an attorney [see § 486.152].

- Forms of notice of unclaimed funds in the hands of a receiver [see § 486.153] and of order directing their payment into the California State Treasury [see § 486.154].

- A form of application by the receiver for authority to issue receivership certificates [see § 486.155] and a form of receivership certificate [see § 486.156].

- Forms of the receiver's final account, notice of hearing, and order approving account [see §§ 486.157 -486.159].

- A form of stipulation to approve the receiver's final account and report [see § 486.60].

- A form of motion for an order excusing turnover in a bankruptcy case [see § 486.61].

Subpart C discusses civil actions by and against receivers [see § 486.50 et seq.] and contains the following forms:

- A form of petition by a receiver for permission to sue a third party [see § 486.170].

- A form of order granting the petition [see § 486.171].

- A form of allegations of the receiver's authority to sue for inclusion in the complaint subsequently filed [see § 486.172].

- A form of petition by a third party for leave to sue the receiver in the receiver's official capacity [see § 486.173].

- A form of order granting the motion [see § 486.174].

- A form of allegations of the receiver's status and of the appointing court's permission to sue for inclusion in the complaint filed by the third party [see § 486.175].

The Research Guide [see § 486.60 et seq.] is similarly divided.

Procedural Checklists are provided for seeking [see § 486.90] and opposing [see § 486.91] appointment of a receiver, for administering and terminating a receivership [see § 486.100 et seq.], and for actions by [see § 486.120] and against [see § 486.121] a receiver.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Appointment of Receivers

43-486 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 486.10

AUTHOR: Robert B. Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 486.10 Nature of Receivership

Receivership is a provisional remedy authorized by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564-570; Kreling v. Kreling (1897) 118 Cal. 421, 422, 50 P. 549 ; Steinberg v. Goldstein (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 692, 698, 303 P.2d 80] . Thus, the appointment of a receiver is ancillary to or in aid of the action brought [La Societe Francaise d'Epargnes et de Prevoyance Mutuelle v. District Court of Fifteenth Judicial Dist. (1879) 53 Cal. 495, 553] . Because it is a remedy incidental to the main objects of the complaint, there is no such thing as an action brought for the mere appointment of a receiver [La Societe Francaise d'Epargnes et de Prevoyance Mutuelle v. District Court of Fifteenth Judicial Dist. (1879) 53 Cal. 495, 553 ; Starbird v. Lane (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 247, 261, 21 Cal. Rptr. 280] .

Receivership is, however, an extraordinary remedy, to be applied with caution, and only in cases of apparent necessity, and when other remedies would be inadequate [Rogers v. Smith (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 16, 21, 172 P.2d 365 ; see Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 351, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281] . It is not a substitute for attachment and may not be resorted to for the reason that an attachment would be more expensive [Rogers v. Smith (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 16, 21, 172 P.2d 365] .

A. Appointment of Receivers

43-486 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 486.11

§ 486.11 Nature of Receiver

[1] Classes

There are two classes of receivers: (1) those appointed before judgment during the course of the litigation (pendente lite) and (2) those appointed after judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(8) (appointment of receiver in limited civil case); see also North v. Cecil B. DeMille Productions, Inc. (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 55, 57-58, 39 P.2d 199 (appointment pendente lite); Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 349-350, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281 (appointment after judgment)].

The receiver is the agent of the court and not of any party, and as such [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1179(a)]:

- Is neutral,
- Acts for the benefit of all who may have an interest in the receivership property, and
- Holds assets for the court and not for the plaintiff or the defendant.

[2] Receiver Pendente Lite

A receiver pendente lite is a person appointed by the court to take the charge and management of property that is the subject of the litigationbefore the court to preserve and ultimately dispose of it according to the final judgment in the case [Kreling v. Kreling (1897) 118 Cal. 421, 422, 50 P. 549 ; Neider v. Dardi (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 646, 650, 279 P.2d 598 ; see North v. Cecil B. DeMille Productions, Inc. (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 55, 57-58, 39 P.2d 199 (receiver pendente lite is person appointed to take charge of fund or property while case remains undecided)].

A receiver neither occupies the status of an assignee [Wright v. Standard Engineering Corp. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 244, 248, 104 Cal. Rptr. 539 ; H.D. Roosen Co. v. Pacific Radio Pub. Co. (1932) 123 Cal. App. 525, 534, 11 P.2d 873]

nor is an agent of any party to the action or proceeding [Maggiora v. Palo Alto Inn, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 712, 57 Cal. Rptr. 787] . Rather, a receiver is an officer or representative of the court [City of Santa Monica v. Gonzalez (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 905, 930, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 483, 182 P.3d 1027 ; North v. Cecil B. DeMille Productions, Inc. (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 55, 58, 39 P.2d 199 ; Kreling v. Kreling (1897) 118 Cal. 421, 422, 50 P. 549] and a custodian of the property committed to his or her charge [Neider v. Dardi (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 646, 650, 279 P.2d 598] . Being an officer or representative of the court, the receiver is subject to the court's direction [Highland Secur. Co. v. Superior Court (1931) 119 Cal. App. 107, 112, 6 P.2d 116] , and the property in receivership is under the control and continuous supervision of the court [McClenny v. Superior Court (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 677, 688 n.21, 36 Cal. Rptr. 459, 388 P.2d 691 ; Steinberg v. Goldstein (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 692, 699, 303 P.2d 80] .

Trial courts have broad discretion in the appointment of the receiver to take over the operation of a business. [Barber v. Lewis & Kaufman, Inc. (1954) 125 Cal. App. 2d 95, 99, 269 P.2d 929] . The receiver can be utilized to preserve property of an ongoing business [Sachs v. Killeen (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 205, 215, 331 P.2d 735] . If the receiver is authorized to operate a business, the receiver is normally given the power to incur obligations for supplies and materials incident to the business. In the event a receiver is operating a business and determines that the business is operating at a loss, the receiver should request instructions from the court as to whether or not the operation of the business should be continued [United States v. Johnson (8th Cir. 1938) 98 F.2d 462] . If a creditor wishes to take action against receivership property, it is required to obtain leave of court to do so [Robbins v. Bueno (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 79, 68 Cal. Rptr. 347, 351] .

[3] Receiver After Judgment

A receiver may be appointed after judgment to preserve the property during the pendency of an appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)]. Because the judgment is not final and the lawsuit is continuing, the receiver is a receiver pendente lite [see Code Civ. Proc. § 917.5; for discussion of the nature of such a receiver, see [2], above].

A receiver may also be appointed after judgment to take charge of property for specified purposes with respect to the enforcement of the judgment whether or not the case is a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(8), 564(b)(3),(4), 699.070, 708.610-708.630, 712.060, discussed in §§ 486.13[2][l], [3], 486.19]. When the purpose of the receivership is to reach property of a judgment debtor which cannot be reached by the ordinary levy of execution, that is, when the receivership is supplementary to or in aid of execution, the receivership is a statutory creation and not an equitable remedy; in this situation, the receiver is not, except in a technical sense, an officer of the court, but, rather, represents and is an agent of the judgment debtor, the judgment creditor at whose instance he or she was appointed, and such other judgment creditors as may have caused the receivership to be extended to their claims. The receiver is nevertheless subject to the continued direction and control of the court [Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 349-350, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281] .

The functions of a receiver appointed after judgment, either for the purpose of carrying the judgment into effect, or for its preservation until the judgment is executed, are limited to the property described in the judgment [Kreling v. Kreling (1897) 118 Cal. 421, 423, 50 P. 549] . Moreover, unlike a receiver appointed pendente lite, the functions of a receiver appointed after judgment for the purpose of carrying the judgment into effect (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3)) or of otherwise enforcing a judgment (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)) are suspended by an appeal on which an undertaking is given in a sum fixed by the trial court to stay proceedings on the judgment, and a receiver cannot be appointed to carry the judgment into effect after a stay bond has been given [see Code Civ. Proc. § 917.5; Havemeyer v. Superior Court (1890) 84 Cal. 327, 380-384, 24 P. 121] .

A. Appointment of Receivers

43-486 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 486.12

AUTHOR: Robert B. Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 486.12 Limitations on Appointment of Receiver

[1] Statutory Ground Required

A receiver may be appointed only in the classes of cases expressly set forth in the statutes [Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 811, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475 ; see In re Stein (1936) 14 Cal. App. 2d 303, 305-306, 58 P.2d 175] . The basic statute governing the appointment of receivers is Code Civ. Proc. § 564, discussed in § 486.13[1], [2]. The requirements of this statute are jurisdictional, and without a showing bringing the receiver within one of the subdivisions of that section the court's order appointing a receiver is void [Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 811, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475 ; Rondos v. Superior Court (1957) 151 Cal. App. 2d 190, 195, 311 P.2d 113 ; contra, John H. Spohn Co. v. Bender (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 447, 451, 64 P.2d 152 (party who procured appointment of receiver in improper case was estopped from relying on invalidity to recover fees paid to receiver because erroneous appointment is not jurisdictional)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 564 is, in effect, augmented by a variety of special statutes throughout the codes specifying precise actions or situations in which a receiver may be appointed [see Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 811, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475] . Many of these statutes are cited in § 486.61.

The appointment of receivers in limited civil cases pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 564 is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(8), discussed in § 486.13[3].

[2] Effect of Existence of Alternative Remedies

A receiver should not be appointed when a remedy less drastic in its nature and scope is available and which will insure to the litigants adequate protection [A.G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 613, 238 P. 926 (involving receivership of going corporation); Golden State Glass Corp. v. Superior Ct. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 384, 393, 90 P.2d 75 (same)]. For example, a receiver pendente lite should not be appointed when the rights of the applicant may be as well secured by injunction or other statutory remedies [A. G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 613, 238 P.

926] . However, receivership will not be denied when other available remedies have been pursued to no avail [see Alderson v. Alderson (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 450, 468, 225 Cal. Rptr. 610] . Moreover, the mere possession of other remedies does not preclude the appointment of a receiver in a proper case [Neider v. Dardi (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 646, 651, 279 P.2d 598 ; see City and County of San Francisco v. Daley (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 734, 745, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256 (receiver appointed following judgment to abate public nuisance)]. Query whether the change in Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9) [formerly Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8)], by Stats. 2001, ch. 44, replacing the language "[i]n all other cases where receivers have heretofore been appointed by the usages of courts of equity," with "where necessary to preserve the property or rights of any party" will decrease the availability of receiverships when other remedies are available. Under the former broad language, a court's determination that under detailed circumstances injunctive relief would be inadequate, and that resort should be made to receivership, was not disturbed on appeal in the absence of a clear showing of abuse of discretion [McNeil v. Graner (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 371, 374, 206 P.2d 1120] .

Available alternative remedies might, in any given case, include, among others, one or more of the other provisional remedies, that is: pendente lite injunctive relief (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 525-534), attachment (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 481.010-493.060), claim and delivery (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 511.010-516.050), and deposit in court (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 572-574). See Ch. 303, Injunctions , Ch. 62, Attachment , 119, Claim and Delivery , and Ch. 211, Deposit in Court , respectively.

§ 486.13 Grounds for Appointment

[1] Generally

A receiver may be appointed by the court in which the action or proceeding is pending in any case in which the court is empowered by law to appoint a receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(a)]. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564 and 565 (discussed under [2], below) are the most important of the statutes with respect to grounds for appointment of a receiver. Other commonly used statutes for appointment of a receiver are Code Civ. Proc. § 1422 (escheat proceedings) and Fam. Code § 290 (enforcement of family law judgments and orders).

[2] Statutory Grounds Enumerated

[a] Property in Danger of Being Lost, Removed, or Materially Injured

The court may appoint a receiver in an action by a vendor to vacate a fraudulent purchase of property, or by a creditor to subject any property or fund to the creditor's claim, or between partners or others jointly owning or interested in any property or fund, on application of the plaintiff, or of any party whose right to or interest in the property or fund, or its proceeds, is probable, and when it is shown that the property or fund is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1); see Republic of China v. Chang (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 124, 130-131, 285 P.2d 351 ; Snidow v. Hill (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 702, 705-706, 191 P.2d 513 ; Armbrust v. Armbrust (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 272, 275-276, 171 P.2d 75] . On a motion for receivership under this provision, the trial court is not required to determine the ultimate issues involving the precise relationship of the parties; rather, at this stage of the proceedings, nothing more than a probable joint or common interest in the property concerned need be shown [Maggiora v. Palo Alto Inn, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 711, 57 Cal. Rptr. 787] .

The court may also appoint a receiver in an action by a secured lender for the foreclosure of the deed of trust or mortgage and sale of the property on which there is a lien under a deed of trust or mortgage, when it appears that the property is in danger of loss, removal, or material injury, or that the condition of the deed of trust or mortgage has not been performed and that the property is probably insufficient to discharge the deed of trust or mortgage debt [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2); see Title etc. Trust Co. v. California Dev. Co. (1912) 164 Cal. 58, 61-62, 127 P. 502 ; Bank of Woodland v. Stephens (1904) 144 Cal. 659, 660-661, 79 P. 379 ; see also Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 811, 813-816, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475] .

For discussion of the appointment of a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11) in connection with specific performance of an assignment of rents provision of a deed of trust, mortgage, or separate assignment document and thereafer pending nonjudicial foreclosure, see [i], below.

For a discussion of ex parte motions and the filing fee required in superior court cases, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[b] Inspection of Property for Hazardous Substances

The superior court, other than in a limited civil case, may appoint a receiver in an action brought under Civ. Code § 2929.5 by a secured lender, including a mortgagee or a beneficiary under a deed of trust, to enable the lender to enter and inspect the real property security for the purpose of determining the existence, location, nature, and magnitude of any past or present release or threatened release of any hazardous substance into, onto, beneath, or from the real property security [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(e)(5) (secured lender defined)]. For discussion relating to an action under Civ. Code § 2929.5, see Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages . For a form of allegations for appointment of a receiver for this purpose, see § 486.138.

[c] Dissolution, Insolvency, or Mismanagement of Corporation

[i] Appointment of Receiver

The court may appoint a receiver in cases when a corporation has been dissolved, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 565, discussed at [iii], below [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(5)].

The court may also appoint a receiver when a corporation is insolvent, is in imminent danger of insolvency, or has forfeited its corporate rights [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6)]. Under this provision, a receiver may be appointed to take charge and preserve the property of a corporation that is insolvent or in imminent danger of insolvency [see A.G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 614, 238 P. 926 (showing required on ex parte application for appointment of receiver on ground corporation is in imminent danger of insolvency)].

[ii] Action by Private Person

Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6) does not authorize an action by a private person, either as a stockholder or creditor, to dissolve a corporation on the ground that it is insolvent or to obtain relief by seizing the corporation's property out of the hands of its constituted management and placing it in a receiver's hands [Sunset Farms, Inc. v. Superior Court (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 389, 401, 50 P.2d 106 (applying exception to rule when corporate entity is used by individual debtor to defraud creditor)]. Under the express provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6), a receiver may be appointed to take charge and preserve the property of a corporation that has forfeited its corporate rights [see Havemeyer v. Superior Court (1890) 84 Cal. 327, 374, 24 P. 121] .

[iii] Application of Creditor or Stockholder

In addition, on the dissolution of any corporation, the superior court of the county in which the corporation carries on its business or has its principal place of business may, on the application of any creditor or of any stockholder or member of the corporation, appoint one or more persons to be receivers or trustees of the corporation to do the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 565; see Havemeyer v. Superior Court (1890) 84 Cal. 327, 365-366, 369, 24 P. 121] :

- Take charge of the corporation's estate and effects.
- Collect the debts and property due and belonging to the corporation.
- Pay the corporation's outstanding debts.
- Divide the remaining moneys and other property among its stockholders or members.

[iv] Application of Minority Shareholder

A receiver may also be appointed on the application of a minority shareholder or director to take charge of a going corporation on the ground that the corporation is being injured by fraud or mismanagement. The appointment of a receiver on this ground is made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9), discussed under [k], below. The proceeding is not directed toward closing the affairs of the corporation or toward an attempt to dissolve it, but merely to place the assets of the corporation in safe hands [Boyle v. Superior Court (1917) 176 Cal. 671, 673-674, 170 P. 1140 (action for removal of directors and appointment of receiver to take charge of corporation's assets and property); see Misita v. Distillers Corp., Ltd. (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 244, 252, 128 P.2d 888] .

[d] In Connection With an Arbitrable Controversy

A receiver may also be appointed on the application of a party to an arbitration agreement on the ground that any arbitration award to which the applicant may be entitled may be rendered ineffectual without the appointment of a receiver. The appointment of a receiver on this ground is made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b) [Jordan-Lyon Productions, Ltd. v. Cineplex Odeon Corp. (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1459, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 200 ; see also Baron v. Fire Insurance Exchange (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1184, 1191, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 502] . This provisional remedy only may be made by the court, and appointment of a receiver by an arbitrator is void [Marsch v. Williams (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 238, 246, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 402] .

Any application to appoint a receiver on this ground must be accompanied by a complaint or by copies of the demand for arbitration and any response thereto. If accompanied by a complaint, the application should also be accompanied by a statement stating whether the party is or is not reserving that party's right to arbitration. Since many commercial contracts contain arbitration clauses, utilizing a receiver as a provisional remedy in connection with an arbitrable controversy should always be considered. In the event any application is filed to appoint a receiver in connection with an arbitrable controversy, the applicant must also present to the court an application to stay all other proceedings pending the arbitration of any issue, question, or dispute which is claimed to be arbitrable under the agreement and which is relevant to the action pursuant to which the provisional remedy is sought to avoid waiving the right to arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(d)].

[e] Water or Sewer System Corporation

The court may appoint a receiver at the request of the Public Utilities Commission pursuant to Pub. Util. Code § 855 (receivership of water or sewer system corporation that is unable or unwilling to adequately serve its ratepayers, or has been abandoned by its owners, or is unresponsive to rules or orders of Public Utilities Commission) [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8)].

[f] Household Goods Carrier

The court may appoint a receiver at the request of the Public Utilities Commission pursuant to Pub. Util. Code § 5259.5 (appointment of a receiver whenever the commission determines that any household goods carrier or any officer, director, or agent of a household goods carrier has abandoned, or is abandoning stored household goods or property of any shippers under contract with the carrier or carriers) [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8)].

[g] Unlawful Detainer

The court may appoint a receiver in an unlawful detainer proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(7); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1159 et seq.]. For discussion of unlawful detainer proceedings, see Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions .

[h] Potential Default Under Health Facilities Loan Program

The court may appoint a receiver at the request of the Office of Statewide Health Planning and Development ("Office"), or the Attorney General, pursuant to Health & Safety Code § 129173 [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(10)]. Section 129173 is a part of the California Health Facility Construction Loan Insurance Law [Health & Safety Code § 129000 et seq.], which provides an insurance program for health facility construction, improvement, and expansion loans [Health & Safety Code § 129005; see Health & Safety Code § 129015 (program is administered by the Office)].

Under Health & Safety Code § 129173, upon making a determination that a borrower may be unable to fulfill its obligations under an insured loan transaction, the Office may assume or direct managerial or financial control of the borrower by, among other things, instituting (or requesting the Attorney General to institute) an action or proceeding to obtain injunctive or other equitable relief, including the appointment of a receiver for the borrower or the borrower's assets. The action or proceeding must be brought in the superior court in and for the county in which all or a substantial portion of the borrower's assets are located. On a proper showing, the court must grant the relief provided by law and requested by the Office or the Attorney General. The receiver may be appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564-570 and must be approved by the Office. The receiver may, with the court's approval, exercise all of the powers of the officers and directors of the borrower, including the filing of a petition for bankruptcy. No action at law or in equity may be maintained against the Office, the Attorney General, or the receiver because of the exercise by any of them of the powers of the borrower's officers and directors pursuant to the order of, or with the approval of, the superior court [Health & Safety Code § 129173(a)(4)].

[i] Action for Specified Performance of Assignment of Rents Provision

The court may appoint a receiver in an action by a secured lender for specified performance of an assignment of rents provision in a trust deed or mortgage, or in a separate assignment document [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11)]. The appointment may be continued after entry of a judgment for specific performance, if it is appropriate in order to protect, operate, or maintain real property encumbered by trust deed or mortgage, or in order to collect rents, pending the completion of a nonjudicial foreclosure under the power of sale in trust deed or mortgage [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11); see also [k], below; for detailed discussion and forms relating to an action to enforce an assignment of rents provisions in trust deed or mortgage, see Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages].

[j] Action By Assignee Under Assignment of Leases, Rents, Issues, or Profits

The court may appoint a receiver in a case brought by an assignee under an assignment of leases, rents, issues, or profits pursuant to Civ. Code § 2938(g) [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(12)]. The appointment of a receiver is one of the steps which a real property secured creditor may take in order to enforce an assignment of rents clause which appears in a deed of trust. [Civ. Code § 2938(c)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Because of issues which may arise under the California one-action rule set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 726, it is normally prudent to have any order appointing a receiver to enforce an assignment of rents clause which appears in a mortgage or deed of trust to hold any rents collected until the real property secured creditor who obtained appointment of the receiver has completed its foreclosure. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 564(d) provides that any action by a secured lender to appoint a receiver pursuant to Code

Civ. Proc. § 564 does not constitute an action within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 726(a), having such a provision in an order appointing a receiver will avoid litigation about whether the receiver's payment of rents to the real property secured creditor prior to the foreclosure sale is a violation of the one-action rule.

[k] Equity

A court may appoint a receiver when necessary to preserve the property or rights of any party [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9)]. This provision, formerly Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8), was amended by Stats. 2001, ch. 44, by deleting the language "[i]n all other cases where receivers have heretofore been appointed by the usages of courts of equity," and substituting "where necessary to preserve the property or rights of any party." It is not clear whether this change will decrease the availability of receiverships, especially when other remedies are available. Under the former broad language, appointment of a receiver has been approved to preserve the community estate of spouses in a proceeding under the Family Code, even though Fam. Code § 290 expressly authorizes the appointment of a receiver only for the purposes of enforcing a judgment, order, or decree made in a proceeding under that code [see Nichols v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 589, 596-597, 36 P.2d 380 (discussing former Civ. Code § 140, the predecessor to Fam. Code § 290); Rosenthal v. Rosenthal (1966) 240 Cal. App. 2d 927, 934, 50 Cal. Rptr. 385] . Even under the former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8), receivership under that subdivision could not be invoked when the facts alleged brought the case within one of the other subdivisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 564 [Dabney Oil Co. v. Providence Oil Co. (1913) 22 Cal. App. 233, 237, 133 P. 1155] .

[l] After Judgment

The court may appoint a receiver after judgment, to carry the judgment into effect [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3)]. For example, the trial court has the discretion under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3) to appoint a receiver to carry into effect a judgment to abate a public nuisance [City and County of San Francisco v. Daley (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 734, 742-744, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256] . However, the functions of a receiver appointed after judgment for the purpose of carrying the judgment into effect are suspended by an appeal on which a sufficient undertaking is given to stay the proceedings on the judgment; moreover, a receiver cannot be appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3) after a stay bond has been given [Havemeyer v. Superior Court (1890) 84 Cal. 327, 380-384, 24 P. 121] .

The court may also appoint a receiver after judgment (a) to dispose of the property according to the judgment, or (b) to preserve it during the pendency of an appeal, or (c) pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq. (enforcement of judgments, discussed under § 486.19), or (d) after sale of real property pursuant to a decree of foreclosure, during the redemption period, to collect, expend, and disburse rents as directed by the court or otherwise provided by law [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)].

A receiver may also be appointed after judgment in aid of execution in order to collect a judgment [Olsan v. Comora (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 642, 140 Cal. Rptr. 835] . This remedy should be especially considered in a circumstance where a judgment creditor has obtained a judgment against an individual who is employed by his or her own professional corporation and is receiving payments of salary and other earnings from the professional corporation. In this circumstance, a receiver may be appointed to prevent the judgment debtor from taking his or her earnings out of the corporation for his or her own benefit without applying them to the judgment [Crocker National Bank v. O'Donnell (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 264, 171 Cal. Rptr. 225] .

[3] In Limited Civil Case

In limited civil cases, the court has jurisdiction to appoint receivers pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 564 [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(8); for grounds for appointment, see [2], above]. The actions and proceedings that constitute limited civil cases are primarily set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85 and 86. For discussion of what cases are limited civil cases, see Ch.

323, Jurisdiction: Personal .

The court in a limited civil case also has jurisdiction to make any order or perform any act pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 680.010 et seq. (enforcement of judgments, discussed under § 486.19) [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(8)].

[4] Cases Involving Attachment

Any court in which an action is pending in which property has been or is sought to be attached may appoint a receiver in specified circumstances to take any action the court orders that is necessary to preserve the value of the property, including its sale [see Code Civ. Proc. § 488.700]. A receiver can be appointed in this situation to, among other things, sell the property, if the court determines that the property is perishable or will greatly deteriorate or depreciate in value or for some other reason the interest of plaintiff will be best served by the appointment of a receiver. Thus, the appointment of a receiver should be considered where the property attached is, for example, inventory which consists of food products which will greatly depreciate in value unless it is sold immediately.

§ 486.14 Who May or May Not Be Appointed

No party, attorney of a party, or person interested in the action or related to any judge of the court by consanguinity or affinity within the third degree, can be appointed receiver without the written consent of the parties filed with the court clerk [Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a); see A.G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 618-621, 238 P. 926] . The party seeking the appointment of the receiver may not, directly or indirectly, require any contract, agreement, arrangement, or understanding with any receiver whom it intends to nominate or recommend to the court, nor may the receiver enter into any such contract, arrangement, agreement, or understanding concerning the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1179(b)]:

- The receiver's role with respect to the property following a trustee's sale or termination of a receivership, without specific court permission;

- How the receiver will administer the receivership or how much the receiver will charge for services or pay for services to appropriate or approved third parties hired to provide services;

- Who the receiver will hire, or seek approval to hire, to perform necessary services; or

- What capital expenditures will be made on the property.

Except as so limited, any person may serve as receiver, subject to being challenged if unqualified.

In certain cases in which the appointment of a receiver is necessary to enable the court to discharge its equitable duties, for example, to compel execution of a charitable trust, and no one can be found who is willing to serve as trustee or as receiver, the court may select a public officer or court official, such as the court administrator, the court investigator, or the public administrator to act as receiver [McCarthy v. Poulsen (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1212, 1220 n.3, 219 Cal. Rptr. 375] .

§ 486.15 Appointment Procedures

[1] Manners of Seeking

There are three ways of securing the pendente lite appointment of a receiver on application [see generally Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1175-3.1177]. They are as follows:

- By ex parte application, appointment on the ex parte application, and order to show cause why the appointment should not be confirmed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1175, 3.1176; Republic of China v. Chang (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 124, 132, 285 P.2d 351 ; People v. Christ's Church (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 858, 859, 181 P.2d 49] .

- By ex parte application for an order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed and appointment following a hearing on the order to show cause [see Nichols v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 589, 592, 36 P.2d 380 ; see also Olsan v. Comora (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 642, 644, 140 Cal. Rptr. 835 (involving application for appointment of receiver in aid of execution on judgment)].

- By noticed motion for appointment of a receiver and appointment after hearing on the motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(a); see also, e.g., Armbrust v. Armbrust (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 272, 274-275, 171 P.2d 75] .

The first procedure is used to obtain the appointment of a receiver pendente lite when the facts presented establish an emergency justifying the appointment [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175]. The second procedure is an alternative to the third procedure and is normally used when the opposing party has not yet appeared in the case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1014 (appearance)]. In the first and second procedures, the order to show cause substitutes for a notice of motion and operates both as notice and as a citation to appear [see, e.g., Sarracino v. Superior Court (1974) 13 Cal. 3d 1, 8 n. 6, 118 Cal. Rptr. 21, 529 P.2d 53 ; Difani v. Riverside County Oil Co. (1927) 201 Cal. 210, 213-214, 256 P. 210 ; and discussion in Ch. 372, Motions and Orders]. The third procedure (notice of motion), which is the most common way of applying for the appointment of a receiver, is for use when the opposing party has appeared in the action or proceeding and the facts do not justify, or counsel does not wish to obtain, the immediate appointment of a receiver before hearing.

[2] Supporting Papers and Evidence

An application for the appointment of a receiver, either ex parte or by noticed motion, may be supported by facts alleged in a verified complaint or declaration [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1175(a), 3.1176(b); Bank of Woodland v. Stephens (1904) 144 Cal. 659, 660-661, 79 P. 379] . The application or motion must also be supported by a memorandum [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1113(a), 3.1176(b)] and may be supported by testimony produced at the hearing [see Republic of China v. Chang (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 124, 132, 285 P.2d 351 ; Armbrust v. Armbrust (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 272, 274, 171 P.2d 75] . For restrictions on the use of oral testimony at law and motion hearings, see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306, discussed in [5][a], below.

[3] Ex Parte Application

[a] Additional Showing Required

The procedure for appointment of a receiver on ex parte application and order to show cause confirming the appointment is a drastic remedy andseldom warranted [see, e.g., Golden State Glass Corp. v. Superior Ct. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 384, 393, 90 P.2d 75 (involving appointment of receiver under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(7) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(9), where necessary to preserve property or rights of party))]. From the standpoint of the business welfare of a defendant corporation, the appointment of a receiver on ex parte application is so dangerous an expedient that it should be done only in cases of the greatest emergency and when, without the appointment, irreparable injury will unquestionably result [Golden State Glass Corp. v. Superior Court (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 384, 393, 90 P.2d 75 ; A.G. Col Co. v. Superior Ct. (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 613, 238 P. 926] . Appointment of a receiver will be made on ex parte application and without notice, however, when imperative necessity or emergency is shown in the application or supporting declarations [People v. Christ's Church (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 858, 862, 181 P.2d 49] .

Thus, in addition to the matters establishing the ground for the appointment of a receiver, an ex parte applicant for the immediate appointment of a receiver must show in detail by verified complaint or declaration the matters specified in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175 (discussed in § 486.139[5]), including the nature of the emergency. The application must also include a declaration of affidavit detailing notice given to the adverse parties or attempts to notify them, a memorandum of points and authorities, and other papers required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204, discussed at § 486.137[3]. For a procedural checklist and additional forms, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[b] Undertaking or Bond

If a receiver is appointed on ex parte application, the court, before making the order, must require from the applicant an undertaking in an amount to be fixed by the court, to the effect that the applicant will pay to the defendant all damages that the defendant may sustain by reason of the appointment and the entry by the receiver on his or her duties, in case the applicant shall have procured the appointment wrongfully, maliciously, or without sufficient cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.140, 995.190 (defining "bond" and "undertaking")]. In the case of two or more defendants, the undertaking should run in favor of each defendant in the action and should be in such form that any defendant would have a right of action on it if he or she is damaged by the appointment [Title etc. Trust Co. v. California Dev. Co. (1912) 164 Cal. 58, 65, 127 P. 502] . Liability on the bond, being contractual, is limited to the amount of the bond [Smith v. Hill (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 374, 385, 47 Cal. Rptr. 49] .

The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b), above, are mandatory and an order appointing the receiver is void if the applicant's bond is not fixed and filed [Sweins v. Superior Court (1936) 16 Cal. App. 2d 336, 336, 60 P.2d 313] . Consequently, the court or courtroom clerk may hold the signedorder appointing receiver and the order to show cause until the applicant's undertaking or bond, the receiver's undertaking or bond, and the receiver's oath are filed.

At the hearing to appoint a receiver, the applicant must, and other parties may, propose and state the reasons for the specific amounts of the undertakings required from the applicant for any injunction that is ordered in or with the order appointing a receiver [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1178].

A right of action against a party who wrongfully procures the appointment of a receiver accrues on the adjudication that the appointment was improper [Smith v. Hill (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 374, 386, 47 Cal. Rptr. 49] .

[c] Order to Show Cause

Whenever a receiver is appointed without notice, the matter must be made returnable on an order to show cause why the appointment should not be confirmed. The order to show cause must be made returnable on the earliest date that the business of the court will admit, but not later than 15 days from the date of the order or, if good cause appears to the court, 22 days from the date the order is issued [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(a)].

[d] Service of Papers

After the order to show cause has been issued, the applicant must serve the following on each of the adverse parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(b)]:

- A copy of the complaint if not previously served;
- The order to show cause stating the date, time, and place of the hearing;
- Any declarations supporting the application; and
- A memorandum supporting the application.

Service must be made as soon as reasonably practical, but no later than 5 days after the date on which the order to show cause is issued, unless the court orders another time for service [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(b)].

[e] Failure to Proceed or Serve Adverse Party

When the matter first comes on for hearing, the party who obtained the appointment must be ready to proceed. If that party is not ready to proceed or has failed to exercise diligence to effect service on the adverse parties as provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(b), above, the court may discharge the receiver [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(c)].

[f] Continuances

The adverse parties are entitled to one continuance to enable them to oppose the confirmation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(d)]. If a continuanceis granted under Rule 3.1176(d), the order to show cause remains in effect until the date of the continued hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(d)].

[4] Noticed Motion

[a] Generally

The usual procedure for obtaining appointment of a receiver is by noticed motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1177; for a form of notice of motion, see § 486.143], supported by an affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2009] (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [for a form of declaration, see § 486.144], and by points and authorities [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(a), 3.113(a)], followed by a hearing of the motion [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1304-3.1306; Armbrust v. Armbrust (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 272, 274-275, 171 P.2d 75] . For general discussion of noticed motions, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

The noticed motion procedure eliminates the necessity of plaintiff's filing an indemnity bond in favor of the defendant as is required when a receiver is appointed on an ex parte application [see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b)] and must be used unless the delay occasioned by notice will result in irreparable injury [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175; A.G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 613, 238 P. 926] .

[b] Service of Notice of Motion and Papers

Unless otherwise ordered by the court, the notice of motion accompanied by all the supporting points and authorities, declarations, and other supporting material must be served and filed at least 16 court days before the hearing. The copy served must be a copy of the papers filed or to be filed with the court. Time is extended for a specified number of days, depending on the place of address or place of mailing, or both, when service is by mail. Time is extended two calendar days if service is by facsimile transmission or by express mail or another method of overnight delivery [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (two court day extension in case of electronic service that may apply in that section 1005(b) does not expressly excludes extensions under section 1010.6)].

[c] Service and Filing of Opposing Papers

All papers opposing a noticed motion must be filed with the court and a copy served on each party at least 9 court days before the time appointed for the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(a); cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) (two court day extension in case of electronic service that may apply in that section 1005(b) does not expressly excludes extensions under section 1010.6)].

[d] Local Court Rules

In the large metropolitan courts, application for appointment of a receiver pendente lite is commonly made in the law and motion, or writs and receivers, department of the court [see, e.g., Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 2.5(i) (writs and receivers departments); San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 8.12 (writs and receivers department)].

[5] Hearing

[a] Evidence

The Civil Law and Motion Rules (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1110 et seq.) expressly apply to applications for an order regarding the appointment of a receiver [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1103(a)(2)]. Consequently, whether the hearing is on an order to show cause or a noticed motion, evidence received at the hearing must be by declaration or request for judicial notice without testimony or cross examination, unless the court orders otherwise for good cause shown [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(a)].

Procedure which must be followed before the hearing in order to seek permission to introduce oral testimony at the hearing is set forth in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(a). Matters of which the court must or may take judicial notice are set forth in Evid. Code §§ 451 and 452. Procedure for requesting the court to take judicial notice of matter is specified in Evid. Code § 453 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(b) and matters that may be considered by the court in determining the propriety of taking judicial notice is specified in Evid. Code § 454.

[b] Nomination of Receiver

On the hearing of an application for appointment of a receiver on notice or on the hearing for confirmation of an appointment on ex parte application, each party appearing may, at the time of the hearing, suggest in writing one or more persons for appointment or substitution as receiver, stating the reasons [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1177]. The written suggestion should set forth the nominee's qualifications, business experience, financial rating, and other relevant matters, and show that the nominee is not disqualified under Code Civ. Proc. § 566(a), discussed under § 486.14. Some courts or departments maintain lists of qualified receivers from which appointments are normally made.

The suggestion is without prejudice to any objections the party may make to the appointment or confirmation of the receiver [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1177].

§ 486.16 Receiver's Oath and Bond

Before entering on the duties of a receiver, the receiver must be sworn to perform the duties faithfully [Code Civ. Proc. § 567(a)].

The receiver shall give an undertaking to the State of California in such sum as the court or judge may direct to the effect that the receiver will faithfully discharge the duties of receiver in the action and obey the orders of the court therein [Code Civ. Proc. § 567(b); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.810-995.850]. The receiver shall be allowed the cost of the undertaking [Code Civ. Proc. § 567(b)]. Any party for whose benefit the bond or undertaking is given may object to it [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.840(b); see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.140, 995.190, defining "bond" and "undertaking"]. Objections to bonds are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.910-995.960, discussed in Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

At the hearing to appoint a receiver, the applicant must, and other parties may, propose and state the reasons for the specific amounts of the undertakings required from the applicant for any injunction that is ordered in or with the order appointing a receiver [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1178].

Because a receiver may not enter on the duties of receiver until he or she has taken and filed the required oath and undertaking (see Code Civ. Proc. § 567), some courts will hold the signed order of appointment until the oath and undertaking are filed and then endorse on the order the fact of filing.

§ 486.17 Appellate Review

[1] Order or Judgment Appointing Receiver

An order or judgment appointing a receiver is appealable [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(7) (appeal other than in limited civil case), 904.2(h) (appeal in limited civil case)]. However, if the appointment is made on ex parte application, the order appointing the receiver is not appealable; the appeal, if any, is taken from the subsequent order confirming the appointment [Republic of China v. Chang (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 124, 133, 285 P.2d 351 ; People v. Christ's Church (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 858, 861-862, 181 P.2d 49] .

The perfecting of an appeal does not stay enforcement of the order or judgment unless an undertaking in a sum fixed by the trial court is given on condition that if the order or judgment is affirmed or the appeal is withdrawn or dismissed, the appellant will pay all damages which the respondent may sustain by reason of the stay [Code Civ. Proc. § 917.5].

[2] Order Denying Appointment of Receiver

An order denying appointment of a receiver may, however, be reviewed on a writ of mandate [Conklin v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 601, 603-604, 36 P.2d 386 ; see Barclays Bank of California v. Superior Court (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 593, 597, 602, 137 Cal. Rptr. 743 (writ of mandate issued directing superior court to set aside order denying application for appointment of receiver and take further proceedings not inconsistent with the court of appeal's opinion); see also City and County of San Francisco v. Shers (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1831, 1836, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 57 (dicta that order denying appointment is not appealable)]. However, because the appointment of a receiver is a matter largely within the trial court's discretion, the appellate court will not compel the trial court to act in a particular manner unless the case is one in which the court can exerciseits discretion in only one way [Conklin v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 601, 603-604, 36 P.2d 386 (trial court erred in refusing to make appointment on ground that it lacked jurisdiction to do so; remanded with direction to assume jurisdiction and to rule on the matter as may seem just and proper)].

[3] Order Granting or Denying Motion to Vacate Appointment of Receiver

An order setting aside and vacating an order appointing a receiver that in effect amounts to a discharge of the receiver is of such finality as to be appealable as a final judgment [Hibernia S. & L. Soc. v. Ellis Estate Co. (1932) 216 Cal. 280, 281-282, 13 P.2d 929 ; see City and County of San Francisco v. Shers (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1831, 1836, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 57] .

An order denying a request to vacate appointment of a receiver ordinarily is not appealable [Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Calif. etc. Co. (1911) 159 Cal. 484, 486-487, 114 P. 838 ; see City and County of San Francisco v. Shers (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1831, 1836, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 57 (quoting Witkin, Cal. Procedure, vol. 9. Appeal, § 99, p. 119 (3d ed. 1985))].

[4] Order Appointing Successor Receiver

An order appointing a successor receiver has been held not to be appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(7) [City and County of San Francisco v. Shers (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1831, 1839, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 57 (case of first impression)]. However, an order appointing a successor receiver is appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(2), if the order was made after an appealable judgment and meets the following two requirements [City and County of San Francisco v. Shers (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1831, 1836, 1838-1839, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 57] :

- The issues raised by the appeal from the order must be different from those arising from an appeal from the judgment.

- The order must either affect the judgment or relate to it by enforcing it or staying its execution.

Thus, for example, when property owners had municipal code violations on their property, three judgments against them had been obtained ordering compliance, the superior court granted the city's motion to appoint a receiver to complete the necessary work, the order appointing the receiver was affirmed on appeal, the receiver then resigned, and thereafter the city's motion to appoint a successor receiver was granted, an appeal from the order appointing the successor receiver to bring the property into compliance with the municipal code met the above two requirements and was appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(2). The first requirement was met in that the trial court's decision to appoint the successor receiver doesnot raise the same issues as the underlying judgment in that the underlying judgment concerns the property's condition in relation to the municipal code whereas the order appointing a successor receiver is merely concerned with the person's identity who enforces the judgment. The second requirement, that the order either affect the judgment or relate to its enforcement, was also met in that the order appointing a successor receiver relates to the enforcement of the underlying judgment by deciding who will administer the receivership [City and County of San Francisco v. Shers (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1831, 1838-1839, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 57] .

Appealability of an order appointing a successor receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(2) is limited to those issues that the order being appealed from specifically encompasses and does not extend to anything entirely subsumed in earlier orders [City and County of San Francisco v. Shers (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1831, 1839-1840, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 57 (earlier order appointing receiver subsumed issues of appropriateness of receivership or anything related thereto; substantive issue that may be raised on appeal limited to question of successor receiver's qualifications)]. Moreover, appealability of an order appointing a successor receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(2) is limited to those cases in which the order being appealed from is postjudgment [City and County of San Francisco v. Shers (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1831, 1840, 46 Cal. Rptr. 2d 57] .

§ 486.18 Collateral Attack on Order of Appointment

If the appointment of a receiver is made in a case that does not come within the class of cases in which appointment of a receiver is authorized, or if the trial court's order is for any other reason in excess of jurisdiction, the order is void and subject to collateral attack [see, e.g., Baker v. Varney (1900) 129 Cal. 564, 565, 62 P. 100 (defense that appointment of receiver in mortgage foreclosure action was void sustained in action by receiver to recover possession of cattle claimed to be rents and profits of mortgaged property); In re Stein (1936) 14 Cal. App. 2d 303, 305-306, 58 P.2d 175 (person convicted of conducting sale in violation of statute as unable, in seeking release from incarceration by habeas corpus, to rely on court order appointing him receiver to conduct sale when order of appointment was void); In re Carroll (1933) 135 Cal. App. 672, 676-677, 28 P.2d 84 (order of appointment of receiver held void in habeas corpus proceeding by contemnor to secure release from commitment for disobedience of order not to interfere with receiver in selling property)].

§ 486.19 Appointment of Receiver in Enforcement of Judgment Proceedings

[1] In General

A receiver may be appointed in enforcement of judgment proceedings either to enforce a judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 708.620, 712.060] or to preserve the value of property levied on [Code Civ. Proc. § 699.070].

Appointment of a receiver to enforce a court order applying a franchise to the satisfaction of a money judgment is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 708.920(b) [for discussion and forms, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments]. Appointment of a receiver to enforce a judgment, order, or decree made in a proceeding under the Family Code is authorized by Fam. Code § 290 [for discussion, see Ch. 258, Family Law Enforcement: General Enforcement Principles and Remedies].

[2] To Enforce Judgment

[a] Showing Required

The court may appoint a receiver to enforce a money judgment when the judgment creditor shows that, considering the interests of both the judgment creditor and the judgment debtor, the appointment of a receiver is a reasonable method to obtain the fair and orderly satisfaction of the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.620].

The California Law Revision Commission has pointed out that under Code Civ. Proc. § 708.620, above , a receiver may be appointed in the following situations [15 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 2525-2526 (1980); 16 Cal. L. Revision Comm'n Reports 2100 (1982) (Assembly Report); see Evans v. Galardi (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 291, 294, 155 Cal. Rptr. 505] :

- When a writ of execution would not reach certain property and other remedies appear inadequate.

- In examination proceedings under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 708.110-708.205 when the requisite showing is made under Code Civ. Proc. § 708.620.

- To enforce a charging order (see Code Civ. Proc. § 708.310) against a partnership under former Corp. Code § 15028 (now see Corp. Code § 16504, which replaced former Corp. Code § 15028 on Jan. 1, 1999) or against a limited partnership under Corp. Code § 15522 (now see Corp. Code § 15907.03, [charging order under Uniform Limited Partnership Act of 2008]).

The application of a debtor's interest in an alcoholic beverage license to the satisfaction of a money judgment, including the appointment of a receiver to transfer the judgment debtor's interest in a transferable license, is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 708.630. Pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 708.620 and 708.630, above , and Code Civ. Proc. § 708.610, below , the court may also appoint a receiver to enforce a judgment for possession or sale of property [Code Civ. Proc. § 712.060].

The appointment, qualifications, powers, rights, and duties of a receiver appointed under Code Civ. Proc. § 708.620 are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564-570 (receivers) and by Code Civ. Proc. § 571 (undertaking required of a court referee or commissioner whose duties will involve custody of personal property or receipt or disbursement of money) [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.610].

[b] Discretion and Control of Court

The appointment of a receiver in aid of execution rests wholly within the discretion of the court and, on appointment, the receiver is subject to the continued direction and control of the court. However, the power to appoint a receiver is a delicate one that is exercised sparingly and with caution, and only in an extreme case under such circumstances as demand or require summary relief, and never in a doubtful case or when there is no necessity or occasion for the appointment [Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 350, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281] . The appointment may be made when there are reasonable grounds to believe that the judgment debtor, or third parties, have control of property which rightfully should be subject to execution. However, the receiver has no greater rights against others than the judgment creditor would have [Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 350, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281] . For example, a judgment creditor seeking to sell an occupied dwelling to collect on a money judgment may not bypass Code Civ. Proc. § 704.740 (regarding homestead exemptions) when the sale is conducted by a receiver rather than by a sheriff [Wells Fargo Financial Leasing, Inc. v. D & M Cabinets, 177 Cal. App. 4th 59, 67-69, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 97] .

[c] Notice Motion

Although the appointment of a receiver to enforce a money judgment is normally made in conjunction with statutory proceedings supplemental to execution [former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 714-723], now referred to as examination proceedings and covered in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 708.110-708.205, the court may, in a proper case, appoint a receiver on noticed motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4) [or Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(8)] without the necessity of supplemental, or examination, proceedings [Olsan v. Comora (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 642, 647-649, 140 Cal. Rptr. 835] .

[3] To Preserve Value of Property Levied on

On the application of the judgment creditor, the judgment debtor, or a person who has filed a third-party claim pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 720.010-720.800 (third-party claims and related procedures), a receiver may be appointed by the court to take any action necessary to preserve the value of property levied on, including without limitation the selling of the property if the court determines that the property is perishable or will greatly deteriorate or greatly depreciate in value or that for some other reason the interests of the parties will be best served by the order. The application for appointment of a receiver must be by noticed motion if the court so directs or a court rule so provides; otherwise it may be made ex parte [Code Civ. Proc. § 699.070(a)].

The appointment, qualifications, powers, rights, and duties of the receiver are, except as otherwise provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 699.070, governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564-570 (receivers) and Code Civ. Proc. § 571 (undertaking required of a court referee or commissioner whose duties will involve custody of personal property or receipt or disbursement of money) [Code Civ. Proc. § 699.070(d)].

The daily fee of the receiver is fixed by the court, which may order the judgment creditor to pay the receiver's fees and expenses in advance or may direct that the whole or any part of the fees and expenses be paid from the proceeds of any sale of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 699.070(d)].

Except as otherwise provided by order of the court, any sale of the property must be made in the manner provided by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 701.510-701.680 and the proceeds applied to the satisfaction of the judgment in the manner provided by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 701.810-701.830 [Code Civ. Proc. § 699.070(c)]. Notice of sale must be posted and served at a reasonable time before the sale, considering the character and condition of the property [Code Civ. Proc. § 699.070(c)].

§ 486.30 Powers of Receivers

[1] Generally

A receiver is an officer of the court subject to its continuing control, and has only those powers granted by statute, by the order of appointment, and by subsequent court orders [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568; City of Santa Monica v. Gonzalez (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 905, 930, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 483, 182 P.3d 1027 ; Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 273, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703 ; Robbins v. Bueno (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 79, 84, 68 Cal. Rptr. 347] . After appointment a receiver may petition for additional authority or instructions as the need arises [see Steinberg v. Goldstein (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 692, 696, 699-700, 303 P.2d 80 ; Free Gold Mining Co. v. Spiers (1901) 135 Cal. 130, 131-132, 67 P. 61 ; In re Executive Life Ins. Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 344, 399-400, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453] .

[2] To Take Possession of and Manage Property

A receiver has power, under the control of the court, to take and keep possession of the property, to receive rents, collect debts, to compound for and compromise the same, to make transfers, and generally to do such acts respecting the property as the court may authorize [Code Civ. Proc. § 568].

The receiver acquires no title to the property, however, but only the right of possession as the officer of the court. Title remains in those in whom it was vested when the appointment was made [North v. Cecil B. DeMille Productions, Inc. (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 55, 58, 39 P.2d 199] . The receiver also takes the property in the condition in which it exists and subject to all liens and equities of others in it [H.D. Roosen Co. v. Pacific Radio Pub. Co. (1932) 123 Cal. App. 525, 534, 11 P.2d 873] . Because a receiver acquires no greater interest in an estate than the one from whom he or she takes, it follows that choses in action pass to the receiver subject to any right of setoff existing at the time of the receiver's appointment [People v. California etc. Trust Co. (1914) 168 Cal. 241, 246, 141 P. 1181 ; Downey v. Humphreys (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 323, 336, 227 P.2d 484] . In sum, the receiver, as a custodian of the property subject to the orders of the court, becomes clothed with the title of the debtor and takes the property cum onere, that is, in the plight and condition existing at the time of his or her appointment, subject to all liens and equities, including the right of set-off, and impressed with the legal and equitable rights and claims of creditors, and no lien or contract is disturbed or altered by the court's intervention [Wright v. Standard Engineering Corp. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 244, 248, 104 Cal. Rptr. 539] .

In the event a party to an action refuses to comply with the demand made by receiver for turnover of property which is part of the receivership estate or a party interferes with the receiver's rights to take possession of that property, the receiver has a right to seek to have that party to be found in contempt of the receivership order, by initiating contempt proceedings before the court that appointed the receiver [Crouse v. Superior Court of Los Angeles County (1915) 28 Cal. App. 625, 153 P. 723] .

[3] To Bring and Defend Actions

Under the control of the court, a receiver has power to bring and defend actions in his or her own name, as receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 568; for further discussion, see § 486.50 et seq.].

[4] To Employ Attorney

A receiver must not employ an attorney without the approval of the court. The application for approval must be in writing and state the necessity for the employment, the name of the attorney whom the receiver proposes to employ, and that the attorney is not attorney for, associated with, nor employed by an attorney for any party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1180; see also § 486.152, (form of petition)].

If a receiver retains an attorney to assist in the discharge of his or her duties, the attorney-client privilege applies to communications between the receiver and the attorney [Shannon v. Superior Court (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 986, 993-994, 266 Cal. Rptr. 242] . The court cannot compel disclosure of the communications, even if disclosure is in the best interests of the proceeding or the parties, unless there is evidence of a waiver, lack of confidential intent, or some exception to the privilege [Shannon v. Superior Court (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 986, 994-995, 996-997, 266 Cal. Rptr. 242] . For discussion of the attorney-client privilege generally, see Ch. 190, Depositions and Discovery .

[5] To Deposit Securities

Under the control of the court, a receiver may deposit any securities he or she holds in a securities depository, as defined in Fin. Code § 30004, which is licensed under Fin. Code § 30200 or exempted from licensing by Fin. Code § 30005 or 30006, and such securities may be held by the securities depository in the manner authorized by Fin. Code § 775 [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.1].

[6] To Deposit Receivership Funds

Funds in the hands of a receiver may be deposited in one or more interest bearing accounts in the name and for the benefit of the receivership estate with one or more financial institutions, provided that all of the following conditions are satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. § 569]:

- The deposits are fully guaranteed or insured under federal law.

- The financial institution in which the funds are deposited is not a party to the action in which the receiver is appointed.

- The receiver does not own 1 percent or more in value of the outstanding stock of the financial institution, is not an officer, director, or employee of the financial institution, and is not a sibling, whether by the whole or half-blood, spouse, aunt, uncle, nephew, niece, ancestor, or lineal descendant of an owner, officer, employee, or director.

[7] To Sell Receivership Property

A receiver may sell real or personal property in receivership pursuant to court order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5; for further discussion, see § 486.32].

[8] To Borrow Money

In the event a receivership estate is insolvent, a receiver has the power to borrow money and, as security for loans made to the receiver, to issue receivership certificates which become first liens on the property which is the subject of the receivership estate when issued under the direction and control of the court that appointed the receiver [see Title Insurance etc. Co. v. California Dev. Co. (1915) 171 Cal. 173, 152 P. 542] .

[9] Assumption and Rejection of Contracts

Once a receiver is appointed, a receiver has a reasonable opportunity to either affirm and assume pre-receivership contracts or to reject those contracts. A receiver is normally allowed a reasonable time to decide whether or not to assume or reject a pre-receivership contract [Ross Lumber & Mill Co. v. Muscupiabe Land & Water Co. (1898) 120 Cal. 521, 52 P. 995 ; H.D. Roosen Co. v. Pacific Radio Publishing Co. (1932) 123 Cal. App. 525 , 11 P.2d 873] . Once a pre-receivership contract is assumed, it becomes a liability of the receivership estate. Therefore, a receiver should exercise caution before assuming or rejecting such contracts and should determine whether or not the receivership estate will have sufficient assets to make it possible to pay the assumed contract.

[10] Impact of Bankruptcy Filing

Normally if a receiver is appointed over property in an action and the defendant files bankruptcy, the provisions of the automatic stay set forth in 11 U.S.C. § 362 will require the receiver to turn over possession of the property over which he or she has been appointed back to the defendant. However, under 11 U.S.C. § 543(d) the creditor who is responsible for appointment of the receiver can file a motion in the Bankruptcy Court requesting an order that the receiver be excused from turning over the assets over which he or she was appointed to the Chapter 11 debtor. In considering this motion, the Bankruptcy Court must determine whether or not it would be in the "interest of creditors" for the receiver to remain in possession of the property over which he or she was appointed [11 U.S.C. § 543(d)]. A motion of this type should be made promptly after any bankruptcy filing by a defendant, so as to avoid any contention which may be made by the defendant that the receiver's maintaining possession of the property over which he or she was appointed violates the automatic stay.

For further discussion of the stay, see Ch. 94, Bankruptcy, § 94.30 et seq.

§ 486.31 Duties of Receiver

[1] To Act Faithfully

A receiver takes an oath to perform his or her duties faithfully and gives a bond to the effect that he or she will faithfully discharge the duties of receiver in the action and obey the orders of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 567; see § 486.10 et seq.]. A receiver stands in the position of a court-appointed fiduciary [see Stewart v. State of California (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 345, 348, 77 Cal. Rptr. 418 ; see also Seccombe v. Dionne (1935) 3 Cal. App. 2d 731, 734, 40 P.2d 299] and must refrain from entering into any of the contracts, arrangements, agreements, or understandings prohibited by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1179(b), discussed at § 486.14.

[2] To File Inventories

A receiver must, within 30 days after appointment, or within such other time as the court may order, file an inventory containing a complete and detailed list of all property of which the receiver has taken possession by virtue of the appointment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1181]. The receiver must promptly file a supplementary inventory of all subsequently obtained property [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1181]. For a form of inventory, see § 486.150.

[3] To Publish Notice of Unclaimed Funds and Report to Court

A receiver having any funds belonging to a person whose whereabouts are unknown, shall, before receiving his or her discharge as receiver, publish a notice in one or more newspapers published in the county, at least once a week for four consecutive weeks, setting forth the owner's name, last known place of residence or post office address, and the amount of the unclaimed funds [Code Civ. Proc. § 570; see § 486.153 (form of notice)].

Any funds unclaimed for 30 days after the date of the last publication shall be reported to the court and, on order of the court, paid into the State Treasury accompanied by a copy of the order, which must set forth the facts required in the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 570; see § 486.154 (form of order)]. The funds shall be deemed to have been received by the State under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1500-1582, the Unclaimed Property Law, and may be recovered in the manner prescribed in those sections [Code Civ. Proc. § 570; see Ch. 252, Escheat (Unclaimed Funds)].

[4] To File Reports and Accounts

The receiver must provide monthly reports to the parties and, if requested, to nonparty client lien holders. These reports must include [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1182(a)]:

- A narrative report of events;
- A financial report; and
- A statement of all fees paid to the receiver, employees, and professionals showing:
  - Itemized services;
  - A breakdown of the services by 1/10 hour increments;
  - If the fees are hourly, the hourly fees; and
  - If the fees are on another basis, that basis.

The monthly reports are not to be filed with the court unless the court so orders [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1182(a)]. Interim fees are subject to final review and approval by the court. The court retains jurisdiction to award a greater or lesser amount as the full, fair, and final value of the services received [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1183(b)].

A party may object to a receiver's interim report. Unless good cause is shown, objections to a receiver's interim report and accounting must be made within 10 days of notice of the report and accounting. The objections must be specific and must be delivered to the receiver and all partiesentitled to service of the interim report and accounting [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1183(b); see also discussion at § 486.36].

Before a receiver may be discharged, he or she must file a final report and account [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1184; see also, e.g., Aviation Brake Systems, Ltd. v. Voorhis (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 230, 232-233, 183 Cal. Rptr. 766 ; for further discussion, see § 486.35].

[5] To Petition For Instructions

Since a receiver is an officer of the court, he or she is subject to its continuing control and instructions. Therefore, in the event a receiver is uncertain about how to proceed in a case with respect to taking or not taking a particular action, he or she may apply to the court for instructions [Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 273, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703] .

[6] To Notify Court Regarding Substandard Rental Property

A receiver of real property containing rental housing must notify the court of the existence of any order or notice to correct any substandard or unsafe condition, as defined in Health and Safety Code § 17920.3 or § 17920.10, with which the receiver cannot comply within the time provided by the order or notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.2(a)]. The notice must be filed within 30 days after the receiver's appointment or, if the substandard condition occurs subsequently, within 15 days of its occurrence [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.2(b)]. The notice must inform the court of all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.2(c)]:

- The substandard conditions that exist.

- The threat or danger that the substandard conditions pose to any occupant of the property or the public.

- The approximate cost and time involved in abating the conditions. If more time is needed to approximate the cost, then the notice must provide the date on which the approximate cost will be filed with the court and that date must be within 10 days of the filing.

- Whether the receivership estate is likely to contain sufficient funds to abate the conditions.

If the receivership estate does not contain sufficient funds to abate the conditions, the receiver must request further instructions or orders from the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.2(d)]. The court, on receiving notice pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 568.2(d), must consider appropriate orders or instructions to enable the receiver to correct the substandard conditions or to terminate or limit the period of receivership [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.2(e)].

If, with respect to real property subject to a receivership, (a) substandard conditions exist, as defined by Health and Safety Code § 17920.10, or *(b)*a dispute or controversy exists concerning the powers or duties of the receiver affecting a tenant or the public, any of the following may file a motion in a receivership action for the purpose of seeking further instructions or orders from the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.3]:

- Any tenant of real property that is subject to receivership,

- A tenant association or organization, or

- Any federal, state, or local enforcement agency.

§ 486.32 Sale of Receivership Property

[1] Statutory Authority

Pursuant to a court order, a receiver may sell real or personal property in his or her possession on the notice and in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 701.510-701.680 (relating to sale of property levied on). The sale is not final, however, until confirmed by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5]. In a proper case, the action of a receiver in equity in selling receivership property, though taken without prior court authorization, may be ratified by subsequent court approval. Thus, when a receiver has acted in good faith and when what the receiver has done has been beneficial to the interested parties, his or her acts, though taken without court authorization, should be subsequently approved [People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 582, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68] .

[2] Nature of Receiver's Sale

A receiver's sale is a judicial sale as distinguished from a sale under execution, and in the absence of a statute otherwise providing, the court may authorize a receiver to sell property at either a private or public sale [People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 583, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68] . Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5, providing that the receiver may sell property on the notice and in the manner prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 701.510-701.680 (relating to sale of property levied on in enforcing a judgment), does not compel a different result; it means merely that unless the court prescribes a different mode of sale, a receiver, when authorized, must sell property in the manner provided for sales on execution. When the receiver sells receivership property in a private sale made without prior court authorization, the court, having had power to authorize a private sale in the first instance, possesses the power to subsequently approve the sale [People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 585, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68] .

[3] Analysis Required of Court in Ordering Sale

In determining whether to order a sale, a court must engage in a two-level analysis, first deciding whether a sale is required and then determining when the sale should take place. In some cases the court may decide asale is necessary but leave time for the receiver to obtain a favorable price rather than accede to a single offer discounted to reflect the alleged emergency nature of the transaction. Naturally, a court will focus on the same factors at both analytical stages, but it will likely allocate different weights to these factors at each step. For example, evidence that improved real property is not generating capital and could in the future suffer a substantial deficit or be subject to an adverse judgment or foreclosure might be adequate to order a sale but might not be sufficient to order an immediate sale. On the other hand, evidence the property is faced with imminent destruction or substantial devaluation could justify an immediate sale to any available purchaser [Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 275 n.7, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703] .

[4] Selling Price

If a court orders the sale of receivership property, the receiver has the affirmative duty to endeavor to realize the largest amount from the sale. A court confirming the sale of property should also attempt to obtain the best bargain possible under the circumstances [Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 276 n.8, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703] .

[5] Court's Considerations in Confirming Sale

Judicial confirmation of a receiver's sale rests on the appointing court's sound discretion exercised in view of all the surrounding facts and circumstances and in the interest of fairness, justice, and the rights of the respective parties. The proper exercise of discretion requires the court to consider all material facts and evidence and to apply legal principles essential to an informed, intelligent, and just decision [Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 274, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703] . The status of the litigation and the effect a sale would have on the parties are both facts and circumstances the court must consider before confirming a sale [Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 276, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703] .

§ 486.33 Termination of Receivership

The functions of a receiver appointed pendente lite terminate on entry of judgment. Completion of the duties for which the receiver was appointed also terminates the receiver's functions. In addition, the receiver's functions may be terminated by a prior order of court, such as an order to deliver possession of property held to a designated person or firm. The order may be made on ex parte application on a sworn showing that thepurpose of the receivership has ceased. The order may direct the receiver to file an account within a specified number of days.

§ 486.34 Prior Removal of Receiver

The power of a court of equity to remove or discharge a receiver is a necessary adjunct of the power of appointment and may be exercised at any stage of the litigation [Hozz v. Varga (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 539, 544, 333 P.2d 113] . Hence, a receiver may be removed by the court prior to the termination of the receivership, in which event the receiver will be directed to file an account with the court [see, e.g., Aviation Brake Systems, Ltd. v. Voorhis (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 230, 232, 183 Cal. Rptr. 766 (receiver relieved on motion of party and substitute receiver appointed); *see also Hanno v. Superior Court (1939) 30 Cal. § 486.35 Wages Owed to Pre-Receivership Employees

Normally, when a receiver is appointed, the receiver is under no obligation to pay the defendant or any of its employees wages or vacation pay for amounts which are owed prior to the time the receiver was appointed, unless the receiver has specifically affirmed and assumed the pre-receivership contracts of the defendant. [Pacific Western Oil Co. v. McDuffie (9th Cir. 1934) 69 F.2d 208] . Therefore, to avoid liability for such claims, the receiver should not assume pre-petition contracts of this type unless there are funds available in the receivership estate to pay for wages and vacation pay which are owed to the defendant's employees for pre-receivership services.

§ 486.36 Receiver's Accounts and Reports

[1] Generally

A receiver's monthly reports need not to be filed with the court unless the court so orders [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1182(a); see § 486.31[4]], but a party may object to a receiver's interim report [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1183(b), discussed at [2], below, and at § 486.31[4]].

A receiver must present a final account and report by noticed motion or stipulation of all parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1184(a)]. If any allowance of compensation for the receiver or for an attorney employed by the receiver is claimed in an account, it must state in detail what services have been performed by the receiver or the attorney, and whether previous allowances have been made to the receiver or attorney and the amounts [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1184(d)]. For forms of final report and account and notice of final account and report, see 486.147, 486.158.

[2] Objections and Claims

Any party may file objections to the account or claims against the receivership estate [see Aviation Brake Systems, Ltd. v. Voorhis (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 230, 232, 183 Cal. Rptr. 766 ; Smith v. Hill (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 374, 388, 47 Cal. Rptr. 49] . This applies also to nonparties who are creditors of the receivership estate [Kirk v. Kirk (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 580, 582, 52 Cal. Rptr. 725 (involving objections to account by and claims of United States Government and State of California for taxes and unemployment insurance contributions)]. A party may object to a receiver's interim report, and unless good cause is shown, objections to a receiver's interim report and accounting must be made within 10 days of notice of the report and accounting, must be specific, and must be delivered to the receiver and all parties entitled to service of the interim report and accounting [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1183(b)]. Any objections filed or claims made against the receivership will be determined by the court on the hearing of the receiver's report [see, e.g., Aviation Brake Systems, Ltd. v. Voorhis (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 230, 232, 183 Cal. Rptr. 766] .

[3] Surcharge for Losses

The receiver may, on the final account and report, be personally surcharged for any losses to the receivership estate based on his or her misconduct or mismanagement [Aviation Brake Systems, Ltd. v. Voorhis (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 230, 233-234, 183 Cal. Rptr. 766] .

[4] Claim for Fees

If any allowance of compensation for the receiver or for an attorney or other professional employed by the receiver is claimed on a report, the report must itemize the services, break the services down into 1/10 of an hour increments, if the fees are hourly, state the hourly fees, and if the fees are on another basis, state that basis [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1182(a)]. Interim fees are subject to final review and approval by the court. The court retains jurisdiction to award a greater or lesser amount as the full, fair, and final value of the services received [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1183(b); see § 486.157 (form)].

The amount of the receiver's fee or compensation and expenses and attorney fees properly chargeable against the receivership property is within the sound discretion of the trial court [see Melikian v. Aquila, Ltd. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1364, 1368, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 739 ; People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 587, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68 ; Maggiora v. Palo Alto Inn, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 713, 57 Cal. Rptr. 787] .

[5] Real Property Taxes

Receivers are obligated to pay all taxes on real property in their possession which fall due during the time they are in possession as receiverswithout any prorating based on the proportion between the period of possession and the period covered by the taxes. Taxes falling due during the period of receivership are regarded as ordinary expenses of operating the property, and the full amount of such taxes paid are properly allowed as an operating expense of the receivership [Schreiber v. Ditch Road Investors (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 675, 680-681, 164 Cal. Rptr. 633] . The rule is different, however, if the taxes accrued before the receiver took possession. For example, a receiver is not entitled to credits for taxes paid to redeem from a tax sale the real property subject to receivership when such taxes are paid for the benefit of the owner of the trust deed on the property [Schreiber v. Ditch Road Investors (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 675, 680 n. 3, 164 Cal. Rptr. 633 , citing United States v. Giragossiantz (9th Cir. 1973) 488 F.2d 358)].

[6] Lien Claims

Expenditures incurred by a receiver with the consent of lienholders may be paid ahead of the lien. Accordingly, when a receiver is lawfully appointed at the instance and for the benefit of lien creditors, all proper charges, expenses, and liabilities incurred as incident to duly conferred receivership powers and duties are a charge on the earnings and corpus of the property superior to the lien creditors who take part in, or expressly or impliedly consent to or acquiesce in, the receivership proceedings. Similarly, the expenses of the operation of a business are prior to the claims of lienors who have acquiesced in, agreed to, and consented to, the appointment of a receiver and operation of the business by the receiver, although they have not actively procured the appointment, or who, while not the applicants on whose petition the receiver was appointed, are privy to the action which results in the appointment [Schreiber v. Ditch Road Investors (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 675, 679, 164 Cal. Rptr. 633] .

[7] Effect of Approval of Account

The court's approval of the receiver's final report and account is res judicata not only as to the matters actually litigated at the time the account was settled but as to matters that could or should have been litigated at that time [Aviation Brake Systems, Ltd. v. Voorhis (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 230, 234, 183 Cal. Rptr. 766] . Because the receiver in his or her personal capacity may be surcharged for losses to the receivership estate based on his or her misconduct or mismanagement, such matters include any claim for damages resulting from the receiver's failure to have properly discharged the duties of receiver [Aviation Brake Systems, Ltd. v. Voorhis (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 230, 234, 183 Cal.

Rptr. 766] .

PRACTICE TIP:

Because of the res judicata effect of the court's approval of the receiver's final accounting, it is normally good practice for the receiverand/or his or her counsel to serve a motion to approve of the receiver's final report and account on all parties who may have claims against the receiver and/or the receivership estate. In the event that a party having a potential claim against the receivership estate receives a copy of the receiver's final report and account and does not object to the report, that party has probably waived any claims it may have against the receiver and/or the receivership estate because of the res judicata effect of the final report and account.

[8] Discharge of Receiver

The court has power to discharge the receiver at any time before termination of the receivership [see Aviation Brake Systems, Ltd. v. Voorhis (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 230, 232, 183 Cal. Rptr. 766 ; see also §§ 486.33, 486.34].

The termination of a lawsuit gives cause for the discharge of a receiver, but it does not in and of itself effect the discharge. A receiver can be discharged only by order of the court after the receiver has had the time and opportunity to prepare and present his or her account. This is true even if the plaintiff dismisses the action before any appearance is made in the case by the defendant [Hanno v. Superior Court (1939) 30 Cal. App. 2d 639, 641, 87 P.2d 50] .

On approval of the receiver's report and account, the receiver will be ordered discharged and the bond exonerated on completion of the disbursements and other requirements in accordance with the order settling and approving the receiver's final report and account [see Aviation Brake Systems, Ltd. v. Voorhis (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 230, 232, 183 Cal. Rptr. 766 ; see § 486.159 (form of order)].

In the event the receivership estate is insolvent upon discharge of a receiver, the mere fact that a party was responsible for appointing receiver does not mean that party is responsible for payment of all fees and expenses of the receivership estate [see 2 Clark, A Treatise on the Law and Practice of Receivers, § 641(i) (1959 3d Ed.)].

[9] Appeal

The order settling the account of the receiver is a final appealable order [Aviation Brake Systems, Ltd. v. Voorhis (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 230, 233, 183 Cal. Rptr. 766 ; Schreiber v. Ditch Road Investors (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 675, 677 n.1, 164 Cal. Rptr. 633] .

For discussion of when an order setting aside and vacating an order appointing a receiver may be appealable, see discussion under § 486.17.

Normally, a receiver appointed by a court in a state outside of California has no authority to exercise its powers over property in California [*Melvin v. Carl (1931) 118 Cal. Moreover, where a creditor in California and a receiver appointed outside of California both claim an interest in property located in California, the foreign receiver will normally not be permitted to prevail on his or claim to the property located in California. § 486.50 Actions by Receiver

A receiver has, under the control of the court, power to bring actions in his or her own name, as receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 568; see Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 350, 352-353, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281 (special or express permission required as to whether and against whom to commence action)]. However, a distinction may be made between an action by a receiver to recover funds which have come into his or her possession and an action to recover funds which were never in his or her possession, or which were in his or her possession, subject to a prior lien. In such cases the general authority conferred on the receiver by the order of appointment may not be sufficient to enable him or her to bring the action and specific authority must be obtained from the appointing court [Bishop v. McKillican (1899) 124 Cal. 321, 325-327, 57 P. 76] . Thus, on leave of the appointing court, a receiver for a corporation which does not own funds but has an assertable interest in the funds as conditional or contingent owner, has the right to bring an action for the recovery of the funds [Holzman v. United California Bank (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 833, 835, 839, 57 Cal. Rptr. 33] .

§ 486.51 Actions Against Receiver

[1] Court Permission Required

A receiver has, under the control of the court, power to defend actions in his or her own name, as receiver [Code Civ. Proc. § 568]. However, a receiver is a court appointed official and may not be sued without the permission of the appointing court [McCarthy v. Poulsen (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1212, 1219, 219 Cal. Rptr. 375 ; Ostrowski v. Miller (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 79, 84, 37 Cal. Rptr. 790] . The rule was established to protect receivers from unnecessary litigation [Ostrowski v. Miller (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 79, 83, 84, 37 Cal. Rptr. 790] . The rule does not apply, however, to proceedings to enforce a judgment lien against property in receivership inasmuch as a receiver takes property subject to all prior liens and encumbrances against it. Because creditors' rights are conferred by statuteand cannot be denied by the court appointing a receiver, that court's permission to enforce the lien is not required [Petaluma S. Bank v. Superior Court (1896) 111 Cal. 488, 495-496, 502, 44 P. 177] .

The failure to secure prior court permission is not jurisdictional but a mere irregularity, a plea in abatement, which can be raised by demurrer or answer to the third party's complaint; the defect can be cured by securing subsequent court approval and is waived by the receiver's failure to object [Ostrowski v. Miller (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 79, 82-84, 86, 37 Cal. Rptr. 790] . Should a person sue the receiver without having obtained prior leave of court to do so, and the court appointing the receiver subsequently refuses to give its consent, the receiver's demurrer to the complaint should be sustained without leave to amend, but not "with prejudice" [see Ostrowski v. Miller (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 79, 85-87, 37 Cal. Rptr. 790] .

A motion to sue and a motion to intervene are timely even if the primary action has been dismissed, as long as they are made before the receiver's final accounting and discharge [Jun v. Myers (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 117, 124, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537] . If the receiver has already been discharged, a plaintiff who has an action pending against the receiver may still obtain the court's permission to sue if the plaintiff was not a party to the receivership and had no notice of the discharge, and if the receiver was aware of the plaintiff's claim and should have included it in the receiver's final account to the court before obtaining the discharge [Vitug v. Griffin (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 488, 495-497, 262 Cal. Rptr. 588] .

[2] Independent Suit or Intervention

On application for leave to sue, the appointing court may grant leave to sue the receiver in an independent action, or it may deny leave and require the claimant to assert its claim by intervening in the receivership proceedings [Ostrowski v. Miller (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 79, 84, 37 Cal. Rptr. 790 ; Garris v. Mitchell (1935) 7 Cal. App. 2d 430, 433-434, 46 P.2d 225] .

Although in a proper case leave to sue the receiver in another court will not be denied, and under some situations the denial of leave may amount to an abuse of discretion, ordinarily the court has a wide discretion in the matter. It may not properly refuse leave to sue when it cannot afford the same relief in intervention as the applicant is entitled to in an independent action or when, by virtue of a statute or constitutional provision, a particular kind of action must be brought in a jurisdiction other than that in which the receivership proceeding is pending. But permission may be denied when full relief can be granted by intervention in the receivership proceeding. The more common practice, and the one generally recommended, is to hear and determine all right of action and demands against a receiver by petition in the cause in which he or she was appointed [Ostrowski v. Miller (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 79, 84, 37 Cal. Rptr. 790 ; see De Forrest v. Coffey (1908) 154 Cal. 444, 449-453, 98 P. 27] . The trial court does not have discretionto assess the merits of the proposed lawsuit or action in intervention. Denial of both the motion to intervene and the motion to file a separate action implicates due process. Thus, it is improper for a trial court to deny both the request to intervene and the request for leave to file a separate action [Jun v. Myers (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 117, 125, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 537] .

Should the court deny a petition to sue the receiver in an independent action when the petition discloses a case where it should be granted, mandate will lie to compel the court to grant the petition [De Forrest v. Coffey (1908) 154 Cal. 444, 454, 98 P. 27 ; see Chiesur v. Superior Court (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 198, 199, 172 P.2d 763] .

[3] Tort Liability

A receiver is not personally liable for torts committed in the performance of his or her receivership duties; liability is in the receiver's official capacity only to be satisfied from the receivership estate [McCarthy v. Poulsen (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1212, 1219, 219 Cal. Rptr. 375 (quoting Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 6, Provisional Remedies, § 364 (3d ed.)); see Chiesur v. Superior Court (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 198, 201,172 P.2d 763] . Hence, an application for permission to sue a receiver for damages for personal injuries resulting from the receiver's negligent maintenance and management of the property in receivership should be granted when the proposed complaint states a cause of action against the receiver in the receiver's official capacity and shows no duty owed to the injured person by the receiver in his or her individual capacity [Chiesur v. Superior Court (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 198, 200, 202, 172 P.2d 763 (involving receivership of apartment house)].

[4] Garnishment and Attachment

Property in the custody of a receiver is generally not subject to garnishment or attachment without the court's consent. Because the receiver is appointed by the court, he or she becomes an officer of the court; thus the receiver's custody is actually the custody of the court. But when there has been a final determination that a party has a right to a certain share of the funds held by a receiver, the receiver is subject to garnishment by a creditor of the party so entitled after the court has ordered the receiver to pay it [Robbins v. Bueno (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 79, 84-85, 68 Cal. Rptr. 347] .

§ 486.53 Actions on Receiver's Bond

A receiver's undertaking must be given to the State of California [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 567(b), 995.810-995.850]. An undertaking given to the State of California may be enforced by or for the benefit of, and in the name of, any and all persons for whose benefit the bond was given who are damaged by breach of the condition of the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.850(a)]. Any such person may, in addition to any other remedy he or she has, enforce the liability on the bond in his or her own name, without assignment of the bond [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.850(b)]. The manner of enforcing liability is governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 996.410-996.495. § 486.64 Decisions

[1] Affidavits and Declarations

Facts allegedly supporting conclusions of affiant in affidavit in support of motion for appointment of receiver as required to be based on affiant's knowledge. McCaslin v. Kenney (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 87, 94, 223 P.2d 94

[2] Abuse of Process

Cause of action for abuse of process in having receiver appointed as not stated when request for appointment of receiver was proper. Spira v. Superior Court (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 536, 539-540, 116 Cal. Rptr. 93

[3] Appeal

Order denying motion to vacate order appointing receiver and terminate receivership as nonappealable. Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 273 n.4, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703

Order appointing receiver to disburse funds from defendant's paycheck in accordance with court order as appealable. Sheridan v. Sheridan (1972) 33 Cal. App. 3d 917, 918, 918 n.1, 109 Cal. Rptr. 466

Order appointing receiver as appealable. Hillman v. Stults (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 848, 875, 70 Cal. Rptr. 295

Order appointing receiver on ex parte application as not appealable; order confirming appointment as appealable. Republic of China v. Chang (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 124, 133, 285 P.2d 351

[4] Appellate Review

An order authorizing a receiver to contract for demolition rests upon the court's sound discretion exercised in view of all the surrounding facts and circumstances and in the interest of fairness, justice and the rights of the respective parties. The proper exercise of discretion requires the court to consider all material facts and evidence and to apply legal principles essential to an informed, intelligent, and just decision. An appellate court's view of the facts must be in the light most favorable to the order and the court must refrain from exercising its judgment retrospectively. City of Santa Monica v. Gonzalez (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 905, 931, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 483, 182 P.3d 1027

Trial court's order based on facts as to which reasonable minds might differ with respect to necessity for receivership as not reversed on appeal; conclusion of appellate court as not substituted for that of trial court made on sufficient evidence; to justify appellate interference, showing that order was arbitrary exercise of power as required. Armbrust v. Armbrust (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 272, 275-276, 171 P.2d 75

[5] Appointment of Receivers

[a] In General

Appointment of receiver as drastic remedy; courts as carefully weighing propriety of appointment in exercising discretion to appoint receiver, particularly if there is alternative remedy. Hoover v. Galbraith (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 519, 528, 102 Cal. Rptr. 733, 498 P.2d 981 ; Barclays Bank of California v. Superior Court (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 593, 597, 137 Cal. Rptr. 743

Party forfeited its challenge to the validity of receiver's appointment during arbitration by failing to raise it below. Baron v. Fire Insurance Exchange (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 1184, 1191, 65 Cal. Rptr. 3d 502

Effect of receivership on going business. In re Jamison Steel Corp. (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 27, 35, 322 P.2d 246

If there is any other remedy less severe in its results than receivership that will adequately protect rights of parties, court as ordinarily not taking property out of hands of its owners by appointing receiver. Golden State Glass Corp. v. Superior Ct. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 384, 393, 90 P.2d 75

Rule as well established that receiver should not be appointed if remedy less drastic in its nature and scope is available that will insure to litigants adequate protection. A.G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 613, 238 P. 926

Receiver as not appointed when writ of injunction or other statutory remedies will protect all rights of party applying for appointment of receiver. A. G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 614, 238 P. 926

Party to action as not, against his or her will, to be subjected to onerous expense of receiver, except when one may be lawfully appointed and appointment is obviously necessary to protection of opposite party. DeLeonis v. Walsh (1905) 148 Cal. 254, 255, 82 P. 1047 ; Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 351, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281

Appointment of conservator as not precluding appointment of receiver. Hillman v. Stults (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 848, 875-876, 70 Cal. Rptr. 295

Receivers as often legal luxuries, frequently representing extravagant cost to losing litigant; when it appears that no reasonably certain benefit will result to one litigant and distinct disadvantage will result to another, courts as weighing carefully propriety of appointing receiver. Elson v. Nyhan (1941) 45 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5, 113 P.2d 474

Arbitration panel as exceeding its powers when it appointed receiver without benefit of any statutory authority empowering it to make such an appointment. Marsch v. Williams (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 238, 245-247, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 402

[b] Crops, Cases Involving

Appointment of receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1) as authorized in appropriate proceeding when crops are planted by trespasser who wrongfully assumes to hold possession and threatens to harvest and market crops for his or her own benefit. Barnes v. Morrison (1929) 102 Cal. App. 152, 159, 282 P. 986

[c] Dissolution of Partnership Cases

Appointment of receiver in action for dissolution of partnership. Galich v. Brkich (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 187, 190-191, 229 P.2d 89

[d] Equitable Cases

Party could not invoke provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8) when facts alleged would bring situation within another subdivision of Code Civ. Proc. § 564. Alhambra-Shumway Mines. Inc. v. Alhambra Gold Mine Corp. (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 869, 874, 254 P.2d 599 ; Dabney Oil Co. v. Providence Oil Co. (1913) 22 Cal. App. 233, 237, 133 P. 1155

Broad provision granting court power, under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(8), to appoint receiver in all cases in which receivers had been appointed by usages of courts of equity, gave court all discretion formerly utilized by chancellor in equity, and exercise of that discretion would not be disturbed on appeal absent clear showing of abuse of discretion. McNeil v. Graner (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 371, 374, 206 P.2d 1120

Order reinstating receiver to collect attorney's fees and sanctions against party to settlement agreement is not void with respect to party merely because there is superior competing claim to party's income; assertion by superior claim holder does not excuse payment of undisputed income to receiver or obligation to supply financial information. Alioto Fish Co. v. Alioto (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1669, 1688, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 244

Order appointing receiver in aid of execution against doctor and medical corporation of which doctor was sole shareholder as not giving overly broad powers to receiver by permitting him to take possession of all records of corporation when receivership was not to take assets of corporation and apply them to doctor's debt but rather was simply to prevent doctor from effectively withdrawing his earnings from corporation without applying them to judgment. Crocker National Bank v. O'Donnell (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 264, 267-268, 171 Cal. Rptr. 225

Charging order receivership as not strictly speaking in aid of execution but as serving same function as writ of execution. Evans v. Galardi (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 291, 294, 155 Cal. Rptr. 505

Appointment of receiver to collect simple money judgment as proper in appropriate circumstances. Olsan v. Comora (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 642, 646-647, 140 Cal. Rptr. 835 (involving former statutes relating to proceedings supplemental to execution and former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(4) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)) prior to its 1982 amendment to conform with Enforcement of Judgments Law (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 680.010-724.260))

Appointment of receiver in aid of execution as resting wholly within judicial discretion, but power to appoint receiver as delicate one that is exercised sparingly and with caution, and only in extreme cases under circumstances as demand or require summary relief, and never in doubtful case or when there is no necessity or occasion for appointment; appointment as properly made when there are reasonable grounds to believe that judgment debtor, or third parties, have control of property that rightfully should be subject to execution. Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 350-351, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281 (involving former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(4) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(4)) prior to its 1982 amendment to conform with Enforcement of Judgments Law (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 680.010-724.260))

California court as properly ordering defendant federal government employee to endorse and deliver federal wages to receiver to enforce judgment; although sovereign immunity precludes ordering federal government or agency to pay directly to receiver, that immunity as not extending to employee once federal funds are in his or her possession. Sheridan v. Sheridan (1972) 33 Cal. App. 3d 917, 919-922, 109 Cal. Rptr. 466

[f] Foreclosure Cases

Stipulation in mortgage that, on filing of complaint to foreclose, mortgagee would be entitled to have receiver appointed to take possession of premises as not conferring jurisdiction on court to appoint receiver in absence of showing that property is insufficient to pay debt (Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)). Bank of Woodland v. Stephens (1904) 144 Cal. 659, 661-662, 79 P. 379

When one's entitlement to receiver is not otherwise established, mortgagee or beneficiary of trust deed as unable by stipulation or consent, however manifested, to confer jurisdiction on superior court to appoint receiver. Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 812, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475

In California, receiver as appointed only as permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 564; when entitlement of mortgagee or beneficiary of trust deed on default of mortgagor or trustor is not established pursuant to that statute, stipulation or consent of parties to appointment of receiver as not conferring jurisdiction on superior court to appoint receiver. Barclays Bank of California v. Superior Court (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 593, 597, 600, 137 Cal. Rptr. 743

Discretion of court to appoint receiver in foreclosure proceeding. Reidy v. Young (1931) 119 Cal. App. 322, 325, 6 P.2d 112

[g] Fraud Cases

Appointment of receivers in actions by creditors to set aside property transferred with intent to defraud creditors. Burrows v. Jorgensen (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 644, 647-652, 323 P.2d 150 (involving transfer of leasehold interests)

When basis of action is alleged fraudulent misappropriation of money belonging to plaintiff, addition of another cause of action for money had and received as not changing nature of action or depriving plaintiff of right to have receiver appointed to protect its interest in property that was allegedly purchased with misappropriated funds. Republic of China v. Chang (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 124, 131, 285 P.2d 351

In action to set aside transfer of property as fraudulent, trial court as properly appointing receiver to preserve property under former Code Civ. Proc. § 564(1),(7) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1), (9)) and Civ. Code § 3439.11 (now see Civ. Code §§ 3439.07(a)(3)(B), 3439.10). Heffernan v. Bennett & Armour (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 564, 588-589, 243 P.2d 846

[h] On Court's Own Motion

Court as able to appoint receiver whenever proper case is made even though neither party has asked for it. Neider v. Dardi (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 646, 650, 279 P.2d 598 ; Venza v. Venza (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 878, 884, 211 P.2d 913 (stressing, however, that parties had consented to appointment)

[i] On Ex Parte Application

From standpoint of business welfare of defendant corporation, appointment of receiver on ex parte application as so dangerous an expedient that it should be done only in cases of greatest emergency and when, without such appointment, irreparable injury will unquestionably result. Golden State Glass Corp. v. Superior Ct. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 384, 393, 90 P.2d 75 ; A.G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 614-615, 238 P. 926

Appointment of receiver on ex parte application as resting in sound discretion of trial court, in exercise of which it must be governed necessarily by situation as it is presented and appears to court at time order is made. People v. Christ's Church (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 858, 861, 181 P.2d 49

[j] Attachment

Use of provisional remedy of attachment in lieu of receivership. Samuels v. Superior Court (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 264, 270, 81 Cal. Rptr. 216 (allowed but criticized)

Receivership as not a substitute for attachment and as not to be resorted to for reason that attachment would have been more expensive. Rogers v. Smith (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 16, 21, 172 P.2d 365

[k] Complaint

Complaint based largely on generalities and conclusions of plaintiff and on information and belief as insufficient basis on which to appoint receiver. Golden State Glass Corp. v. Superior Ct. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 384, 396, 90 P.2d 75

Allegation in complaint to impose trust and for accounting that defendant corporation is in imminent danger of insolvency (see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(6)) without alleging facts on which conclusion is based as insufficient to justify appointment of receiver. A.G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 613, 238 P. 926

Allegation in complaint to foreclose mortgage that security is insufficient (see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)) without stating facts on which such allegation is based as insufficient to justify appointment of receiver of mortgaged property. Title etc. Trust Co. v. California Dev. Co. (1912) 164 Cal. 58, 60-61, 127 P. 502 ; Bank of Woodland v. Stephens (1904) 144 Cal. 659, 660-661, 79 P. 379

When order appointing receiver on ex parte application was based entirely on verified complaint, that pleading as properly examined by reviewing court in prohibition proceeding to determine whether trial court exceeded its jurisdiction in making order. Sunset Farms, Inc. v. Superior Court (1935) 9 Cal. App. 2d 389, 396, 50 P.2d 106

[l] Corporations

Court of equity as having power to appoint receiver of going corporation on showing that there are such dissensions in its governing body as to create virtual suspension of its business; but even if there is dissension in corporate management receiver should not be appointed when no actual or threatened cessation or diminution of business operations is shown. Golden State Glass Corp. v. Superior Ct. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 384, 393-394, 90 P.2d 75

In action for involuntary dissolution of corporation, intervenor, whether shareholder or creditor, as able to seek any relief court has jurisdiction to grant that affects or protects his or her underlying interest in corporation or its assets during pendency of proceeding, and court as having power to appoint receiver. Hagan v. Superior Court (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 498, 504, 2 Cal. Rptr. 288, 348 P.2d 896 (citing former Corp. Code § 4656; now Corp. Code § 1803).

Power to appoint receiver for going corporation as exercised sparingly; receivership as drastic remedy which should not be invoked unless there is threatened injury to corporation of serious nature. Starbird v. Lane (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 247, 261, 21 Cal. Rptr. 280

In action for involuntary dissolution of corporation, trial court as having discretion to appoint receiver under former Civ. Code § 404(E) (now see Corp. Code §§ 1800(b)(3), 1803) when complaint alleged that plaintiffs and defendants, husbands and wives, each owned 50 percent of stock, that two families constituted two factions, that defendants on board of directors perpetuated themselves in office by refusing to call an election, that there was internal dissension, deadlock, and inability to agree on board of three directors and to conduct business with advantage to shareholders, that unless receiver was appointed interest of corporation and plaintiff faction would suffer and be damaged pending hearing and determination of action, and answer and affidavit denying foregoing were general and did not attempt to set forth actual situation with respect to affairs of corporation. Merlino v. Fesno Macaroni Mfg. Co. (1944) 64 Cal. App. 2d 462, 466-467, 148 P.2d 884

[m] Discretion of Court

Appointment of receiver as resting largely in discretion of trial court whose action in appointing or refusing to appoint receiver will not be disturbed on appeal absent showing that discretion was abused. Alderson v. Alderson (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 450, 467, 225 Cal. Rptr. 610

Appointment of receiver in aid of execution as resting wholly within judicial discretion. Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 350, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281

Appointment of receiver as resting largely in discretion of trial court; discretion of trial court as so broad that order based on facts as to which reasonable minds might differ with respect to necessity for receiver as not reversed on appeal. Maggiora v. Palo Alto Inn, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 710-711, 57 Cal. Rptr. 787

In absence of clear showing of abuse of discretion, trial court's order either appointing or refusing to appoint receiver as upheld on appeal. Starbird v. Lane (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 247, 261, 21 Cal. Rptr. 280

Appointment of receiver as resting largely in discretion of trial court whose order will not be disturbed on appeal absent showing of abuse of discretion. Venza v. Venza (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 878, 883, 211 P.2d 913

Appointment of receiver as matter within sound discretion of trial court. Galich v. Brkich (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 187, 191-192, 229 P.2d 89 ; Armbrust v. Armbrust (1946) 75 Cal. App. 2d 272, 276, 171 P.2d 75

[n] Enforcement of Judgments and Orders

Trial court as not abusing its discretion under facts of case in appointing receiver under former Civ. Code § 4380 (now see Fam. Code § 290), relating to enforcement of family law orders, to enforce judgment awarding child support to woman who had custody of parties' three children born during 12-year period of unmarried cohabitation in which parties held themselves out as being husband and wife. Alderson v. Alderson (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 450, 467, 225

Cal. Rptr. 610

[o] Hearing

So serious a matter as appointment of receiver as not made without full and complete hearing unless due administration of justice clearly requires it. Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 273 n.3, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703

[p] Jurisdiction

Requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 564, setting forth when receiver may be appointed in superior court case, as jurisdictional, and without showing bringing receiver within one of subdivisions of that section, court's order appointing receiver as void. Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 811, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475

Courts of equity as having inherent power to appoint receivers in exercise of their equity jurisdiction. Hillman v. Stults (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 848, 875, 70 Cal. Rptr. 295

Superior court's appointment of receiver in improper case as mere error in exercise of jurisdiction. John H. Spohn Co. v. Bender (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 447, 450-451, 64 P.2d 152

[q] Order

To preserve property that is subject of litigation, pending its disposition according to judgment entered, court as permitted to direct receiver to take and keep possession of it. Steinberg v. Goldstein (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 692, 698, 303 P.2d 80

Court as able to direct delivery to receiver of specific property which is involved in litigation. Steinberg v. Goldstein (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 682, 686, 278 P.2d 22

[r] Prohibition and Mandate

Prohibition as appropriate remedy to restrain enforcement of trial court's order appointing receiver when, under circumstances of case, appeal from order would be inadequate remedy. Golden State Glass Corp. v. Superior Ct. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 384, 388-389, 90 P.2d 75 ; A.G. Col Co. v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 604, 621-622, 238 P. 926

Prohibition as appropriate remedy to prohibit receiver from attempting to enforce order seizing and holding property in hands of person who is not a party to action and who claims to be bona fide purchaser of it. Havemeyer v. Superior Court (1890) 84 Cal. 327, 389-408, 24 P. 121

[s] Property Subject to Receivership

Receiver as taking property subject to all prior liens and encumbrances. Petaluma S. Bank v. Superior Court (1896) 111 Cal. 488, 495-496, 44 P. 177

Court as without power to authorize receiver to reach out and latch onto appropriate property to use of receivership which is not properly part of receivership estate. Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 813, 140 Cal.

Rptr. 475

Interest of plaintiff partner in property being clear and danger of removal or loss at hands of defendant partner as presenting typical case for receivership. Spira v. Superior Court (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 536, 540, 116 Cal. Rptr. 93

[t] Rents, Issues, and Profits

If rents, issues, and profits are not part of security for mortgage debt, not having been contractually assigned for that purpose, court as having no power under Code Civ. Proc. § 564 in foreclosure action to authorize receiver to take possession of rents, issues, and profits and apply them to mortgage debt. Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 812, 815, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475

Trial court as exceeding its jurisdiction insofar as it may purport to authorize rents and profits receiver to take into his or her possession, without consent of those entitled to give or withhold consent, property which is not hypothecated in deed of trust. Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 816, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475

Authority of receiver to collect rent as vested by Code Civ. Proc. § 568; whether authority should be exercised as discretionary matter with court. Steinberg v. Goldstein (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 692, 699, 303 P.2d 80

Main purpose of receivership as being to receive rents, issues, and profits of land or other thing pending suit when it does not seem reasonable to court to entrust either party with such right. Neider v. Dardi (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 646, 649-650, 279 P.2d 598

[u] Wrongful Procurement of Receivership

Liability of applicant for appointment of receiver on bond given under Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b) as arising when applicant procured appointment of receiver wrongfully, maliciously, or without probable cause, but such liability, being contractual, as limited to amount of bond. Smith v. Hill (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 374, 385, 47 Cal. Rptr. 49

Person who secures appointment of receiver maliciously and without probable cause as liable for malicious prosecution independent of statutory liability under Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b). Smith v. Hill (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 374, 386, 47 Cal. Rptr. 49

Cause of action on bond under Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b) or for malicious prosecution as not accruing until determination of action in which receiver was appointed. Smith v. Hill (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 374, 386, 47 Cal. Rptr. 49

Under certain circumstances, receiver may be held to be agent of one or more parties to action; and under proper circumstances, vicarious liability for conduct of receiver might be placed on party who secured appointment of receiver as cause of action distinct from action on applicant's bond under Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b) or for malicious prosecution. Smith v. Hill (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 374, 386, 47 Cal. Rptr. 49

[6] Nature of Receiver

Receiver as officer of court. North v. Cecil B. DeMille Productions, Inc. (1934) 2 Cal. 2d 55, 58, 39 P.2d 199 ; McCarthy v. Poulsen (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1212, 1219, 219 Cal. Rptr. 375 ; H.D. Roosen Co. v. Pacific Radio Pub. Co. (1932) 123 Cal. App. 525, 534, 11 P.2d 873

Receiver as officer or representative of court appointed on behalf of all parties who may establish rights in cause to take charge and management of property which is subject of litigation before it, for purpose of its preservation and ultimate disposition according to final judgment entered. Kreling v. Kreling (1897) 118 Cal. 421, 422, 50 P. 549 ; Neider v. Dardi (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 646, 650, 279 P.2d 598 ; Highland Secur. Co. v. Superior Court (1931) 119 Cal. App. 107, 112, 6 P.2d 116 .

As an officer of the court, a receiver is not an agent of any particular party to the action, but represents all persons interested in the property. City of Santa Monica v. Gonzalez (2008) 43 Cal. 4th 905, 930, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 483, 182 P.3d 1027

Receiver as agent of court, not of parties, and receivership estate consisting of property which is properly in receiver's hands as under control and continuous supervision of court. Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 813, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475

Receiver as not occupying status of assignee; receiver's function as being that of minister of court in possession of property to end of conserving rights of everybody having any interest. Wright v. Standard Engineering Corp. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 244, 248, 104 Cal. Rptr. 539 ; Burrows v. Jorgensen (1958) 158 Cal. App. 2d 644, 649, 323 P.2d 150

Receiver as neutral court official. Hillman v. Stults (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 848, 875, 70 Cal. Rptr. 295

Receiver as not an agent of either party to action but as representing all persons interested in property involved. Maggiora v. Palo Alto Inn, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 712, 57 Cal. Rptr. 787

Receiver as custodian of property committed to his or her charge. Neider v. Dardi (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 646, 650, 279 P.2d 598

Receiver as holding property as representative of, and under control of court, but for benefit of its owners, their creditors, and others in whose favor claims might exist or arise against estate in receivership. Chiesur v. Superior Court (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 198, 200-201, 172 P.2d 763

[7] Nature of Receivership

Purpose of receivership as being to preserve property which is subject of litigation pending its disposition according to judgment subsequently entered. Kreling v. Kreling (1897) 118 Cal. 421, 422, 50 P. 549 ; La Societe Francaise d'Epargnes et de Prevoyance Mutuelle v. District Court of Fifteenth Judicial Dist. (1879) 53 Cal. 495, 553 ; Steinberg v. Goldstein (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 692, 698, 303 P.2d 80

Appointment of receiver as ancillary proceeding concerned with preservation of property subject to litigation pending its ultimate disposition pursuant to final judgment. Maggiora v. Palo Alto Inn, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 711-712, 57 Cal. Rptr. 787

§ 486.73 Decisions

[1] Appeal

Order denying motion to terminate receivership as nonappealable. Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 273 n.4, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703

Order confirming sale of property in receivership as appealable. Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 273-274, 273 n.4, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703

Approval of final report and accounting as final appealable order fixing personal liability of receiver. Aviation Brake Systems, Ltd. v. Voorhis (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 230, 234-235, 183 Cal. Rptr. 766 ; Schreiber v. Ditch Road Investors (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 675, 677 n.1, 164 Cal. Rptr. 633

Order awarding surplus receivership funds on deposit with court made subsequent to discharge of receiver as appealable as order on collateral matter made subsequent to judgment. United Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Hoffman (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 306, 308, 106 Cal. Rptr. 275 (citing former Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(b) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(2))

Orders on requests relating to preserving or managing property are not appealable except on review of final judgment. Free Gold Mining Co. v. Spiers (1901) 135 Cal. 130, 131-132, 67 P. 61 ; see In re Executive Life Ins. Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 344, 399-400, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453 (applying Free Gold Mining Co. by analogy to orders for payment of professional fees in proceedings for settlement of claims against insolvent insurer)

[2] Contempt of Court

Interference with receiver in carrying out his or her duties as contempt of appointing court. Petaluma S. Bank v. Superior Court (1896) 111 Cal. 488, 494, 44 P. 177

[3] Costs of Receivership

Compensation of receiver as normally payable out of receivership estate or funds. Andrade v. Andrade (1932) 216 Cal. 108, 110, 13 P.2d 676

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(a) (repealed, now see Code Civ. Proc. § 1032(b)), allowing costs to prevailing party in action to recover money or damages, Code Civ. Proc. § 1032.6 (repealed), providing judgment creditor is entitled to costs in aid of execution on any judgments, and Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.7(f) (repealed), providing for inclusion by judgment creditor in bill of costs incurred in connection with proceedings supplementary to execution, costs of charging order receivership as allowable "of course" to prevailing plaintiff. Evans v. Galardi (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 291, 295, 155 Cal. Rptr. 505

Cost of defending against unfounded challenge to receiver's account as regarded as necessary expense incurred in course of receiver's official duties for which receiver is entitled to reimbursement out of receivership estate. People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 587, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68

Liability for expenses and fees of receivership as properly placed on one of parties to litigation, although not on plaintiff who has properly obtained appointment of receiver and has established his or her cause of action; conversely, costs of receivership and any compensation for receiver as required to be borne by plaintiff who trial court finds wrongfully obtained unnecessary receivership. Smith v. Hill (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 374, 387, 47 Cal. Rptr. 49

Discretionary power to make allowance for compensation of receiver. Murphy v. Cosentino (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 614, 615-616, 22 Cal. Rptr. 441

Court as having power to order reimbursement of receiver for expenditures if proper and approved by court; proper expenditures as including those made for necessary repairs on property in receivership and for purchase of furniture necessary for conducting business on property, when receiver was directed by order of appointment to take charge of, use, operate, manage, and control property and to conduct business thereof, to collect rents, issues, profits, and income thereof, and to apply same to payment of all usual and necessary expenses of the property, including taxes, mortgage payments, management costs, and all other regular and necessary costs of operation of business operated on premises. Hozz v. Varga (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 539, 542-543, 333 P.2d 113

Costs of receivership as properly assessed against defendant in equitable action between joint venturers for accounting when trial court was justified in finding that defendant was guilty of reprehensible conduct. Neider v. Dardi (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 156, 165, 313 P.2d 72

Court as having power to assess costs of receivership against fund or property in receivership or against applicant for receivership, or to apportion costs among parties, depending on circumstances. Baldwin v. Baldwin (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 851, 856, 187 P.2d 429

Trial court as having power to determine value of receiver's services without aid of expert testimony. John H. Spohn Co. v. Bender (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 447, 450, 64 P.2d 152

[4] Court Control of Receiver and Property

Receiver as under control of court, as is property of which receiver is custodian. De Forrest v. Coffey (1908) 154 Cal.

444, 449, 98 P. 27

Receiver as officer of court possessing property for court. McCarthy v. Poulsen (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1212, 1219, 219 Cal. Rptr. 375 ;

Receivership estate consisting of property properly in receiver's hands as under control and continuous supervision of court. Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 813, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475

Receiver appointed in aid of execution as subject to continued direction and control of court. Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 350, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281

Receiver appointed by court as officer of court and property in receiver's custody as in custody of court. Robbins v. Bueno (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 79, 84, 68 Cal. Rptr. 347

Property subjected to receivership as under control and continuous supervision of court. Steinberg v. Goldstein (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 692, 699, 303 P.2d 80

[5] Dismissal of Action, Effect on Receivership

Entry of final judgment or abatement of action as not in itself effecting discharge of receiver, and receiver as remaining subject to court's orders in relation to receivership property until discharged by court; hence, entry of judgment of dismissal by clerk at plaintiff's request before summons is issued or appearance of any defendant as not depriving court of jurisdiction to settle account of receiver appointed at plaintiff's request to take possession of property described in complaint. Pacific Bank v. Madera Fruit etc. Co. (1899) 124 Cal. 525, 526, 57 P. 462

Court as not losing jurisdiction of receivership on filing of written notice of dismissal of action by plaintiff, but as having jurisdiction to settle receiver's accounts, to direct disposition of assets in receiver's hands, and to provide for payment of receivership costs and expenses. Hanno v. Superior Court (1939) 30 Cal. App. 2d 639, 640-641, 87 P.2d 50

[6] Fees and Expenses

Fees are awarded to receiver in sound discretion of trial court and appellate court is not justified in setting aside order setting fees in absence of clear showing of abuse; award of hourly fee plus 4 per cent commission on sale of property in partition action upheld when parties had previously agreed to method for calculating fees and receiver had earned through efforts to sell property; although appellate court may award fees for services of receiver's counsel rendered on appeal, court declined to do so because receiver had already been awarded total fee substantially in excess of ordinary fee. Melikian v. Aquila, Ltd. (1998) 63 Cal. App. 4th 1364, 1368, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 739

Appellate court as having power to award fees for services of receiver's counsel rendered on appeal. Schreiber v. Ditch Road Investors (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 675, 681, 164 Cal. Rptr. 633 (declining to award fees under circumstances of case)

Fees as awarded to receivers in sound discretion of trial court and appellate court as not justified in setting aside order setting fees in absence of clear showing of abuse of discretion. People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 587, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68

Cost of defending against unfounded challenge to receiver's account as regarded as necessary expense incurred in course of receiver's official duties for which receiver is entitled to reimbursement out of receivership estate. People v.

Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 587, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68

Party procuring improper appointment of receiver as estopped to recover fees paid receiver pursuant to court order settling receiver's account. John H. Spohn Co. v. Bender (1937) 18 Cal. App. 2d 447, 451-452, 64 P.2d 152

[7] Final Account and Discharge

Approval of receiver's final report and accounting as res judicata to future actions against receiver for mismanagement or misconduct of receivership estate. Aviation Brake Systems, Ltd. v. Voorhis (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 230, 234, 183 Cal. Rptr. 766

When loss has been sustained through receiver's misconduct in connection with sale of receivership property and it is impracticable for court to set aside sale, proper procedure as being to confirm sale and surcharge receiver rather than to grant receiver conditional discharge. People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 583 n. 6, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68

[8] Hearings

Criticism of unnecessary limitation on oral argument at hearing to confirm receiver's sale of property in receivership. Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 273 n.3, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703 (trial court at first limited each party to 60 seconds and relented to allow five minutes; property involved was multi-million dollar shopping center and office complex)

[9] Orders

[a] Generally

In action for foreclosure of trust deed, trial court's order purporting to imbue rents and profits receiver with authority to take possession of property not hypothecated under deed of trust without consent of those entitled to give or withhold consent as beyond its power. Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 815-816, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475

In action for foreclosure of trust deed, trial court as without power to authorize receiver to sell property that is not part of security without consent of all persons having an interest in it. Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 816-819, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475

Court order requiring return of equipment in defendant partner's possession to receiver appointed in action for dissolution of partnership as legal exercise of court's discretion when over six years had transpired since defendant was given permission to use property and no rental had been paid to receiver during that time; depreciation of property while in use as factor to be considered by those charged with its preservation. Steinberg v. Goldstein (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 692, 698, 303 P.2d 80

On hearing of petition by receiver, appointed in action for dissolution of partnership and accounting, for instructions with respect to equipment, supplies, and rental collected by defendant partner from subtenant, and lease of defendant's office, order requiring defendant to pay receiver rental due on equipment and market value of supplies consumed was supported by protracted trend of litigation, depreciating nature of equipment, ever-present hazard of individual's insolvency, and allegations in defendant's answer that partnership funds were used to pay for equipment and expenses of his office; fact that order gave defendant option of paying market value of equipment in lieu of returning property and paying rental found due was something about which defendant could not complain. Steinberg v. Goldstein (1956) 145

Cal. App. 2d 692, 696-699, 303 P.2d 80

[b] Shortening Time

Professional courtesy and basic fairness militate against use of orders shortening time or similar techniques which create unnecessary handicap for lawyer representing adverse party; whether couched in terms of professional courtesy, the golden rule, or due process, cases should be decided on merits and not on strategy of paper war which denies party reasonable time within which to respond. Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 272 n.2, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703

[10] Powers and Duties of Receiver

[a] Generally

Receiver's functions and powers are controlled by statute, by order appointing receiver, and by court's subsequent orders. Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 273, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703 ; Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 351, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281 ; Robbins v. Bueno (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 79, 84, 68 Cal. Rptr. 347 ; Nulaid Farmers Assn. v. LaTorre (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 791, 60 Cal. Rptr. 821

Receiver in aid of execution have no powers beyond those conferred. Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 351, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281

In ordinary receivership over private business concerns, receiver, in absence of specific authority, has only very limited powers and in doubtful or important matters is required to apply to court for instruction and advice; however, when receiver is appointed to take possession of and operate quasi-public corporation obligated to render continued service to public (such as public utility), receiver is in first instance vested with broad authority to "do anything the corporation might have done to make the most out of the assets in his hands." People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 580, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68

Trial court has broad discretion in its directions and approvals given to receiver in respect to management of property. Hillman v. Stults (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 848, 876, 70 Cal. Rptr. 295

Receiver's powers and duties not directly prescribed by statute depends on court's order of appointment. Nulaid Farmers Assn. v. LaTorre (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 791, 60 Cal. Rptr. 821

[b] Power to Contract

General rule is that receiver has no power to make contract binding property or fund in his or her custody without authority or approval of court; unauthorized agreement of receiver is not binding court in charge of receivership, is not recognized as contract of receivership, and is treated as receiver's own contract. Nulaid Farmers Assn. v. LaTorre (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 793, 60 Cal. Rptr. 821

Order appointing receiver and investing him with usual powers to manage, preserve, and repair property, which is subject of receivership, under control and subject to order of court does not authorize receiver to enter into contracts. Nulaid Farmers Assn. v. LaTorre (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 788, 793, 60 Cal. Rptr. 821

[11] Ratification of Receiver's Acts by Subsequent Court Order

Action of receiver in equity, though taken without prior court authorization, is in proper case subject to ratification by subsequent court approval. People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 582, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68

[12] Receivership Estate

In action for dissolution of partnership and accounting in which receiver was appointed, rentals collected by partner from subtenant before receiver took possession of property were not proceeds from receivership property, but were subject of accounting between partners. Steinberg v. Goldstein (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 692, 700, 303 P.2d 80

[13] Res Judicata

Demurrer to complaint against receiver seeking damages from receiver and insurer who provided receiver's bond for receiver's alleged mismanagement of receivership estate was properly sustained without leave to amend on ground of res judicata when matters sought to be litigated could or should have been litigated at hearing on receiver's final report and account which was approved. Aviation Brake Systems, Ltd. v. Voorhis (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 230, 234, 183 Cal. Rptr. 766

[14] Sale of Property

Secured party was exempted from requirement of giving notice of sale under former Com. Code § 9504(3) (now see Com. Code §§ 9611-9614) if sale of collateral was conducted by court-appointed receiver, because receiver, not secured party, controlled time and place of sale; creditor was required to account to debtor for any proceeds of sale received by it after discharge of receiver. Security Pacific National Bank v. Geernaert (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1425, 1431, 1431, 245 Cal. Rptr. 712 (noting that same rule would apply to sale by trustee in bankruptcy)

Receiver appointed under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 564-576 is required to give notice of sale of collateral under Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5, and debtor is entitled to seek to surcharge receiver and to make objections regarding appointment of receiver, defects in receiver's notice of sale, receiver's mismanagement of property, or receiver's final accounting; debtor is not entitled to attack sale if he or she fails to object. Security Pacific National Bank v. Geernaert (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1425, 1431-1433, 245 Cal. Rptr. 712

Judicial confirmation of receiver's sale rests on appointing court's sound discretion exercised in view of all surrounding facts and circumstances and in interest of fairness, justice, and rights of respective parties; proper exercise of discretion requires court to consider all material facts and evidence and to apply legal principles essential to an informed, intelligent, and just decision; reversal is warranted only if appellate court concludes that trial court abused its discretion by confirming fraudulent, unfair, or oppressive sale. Cal-American Income Property Fund VII v. Brown Development Corp. (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 268, 274, 187 Cal. Rptr. 703

Absent statute providing otherwise, court is empowered to authorize receiver to sell property at either private or public sale. People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 583, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68

Trial court is not precluded by Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5 from confirming sale of receivership property made in mode different from that provided for execution sales; Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5 means that unless court prescribes different mode of sale, receiver, when authorized, must sell property in manner provided for sales on execution; trial court is empowered to prescribe or ratify unconditionally different mode of sale than that provided for execution sales; receiver's sale and sale under execution distinguished. People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 583-585, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68

Having power to authorize private sales of receivership property in first instance, trial court possesses power to approve private sales made without prior authorization People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 585, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68

Effect of judicial confirmation of receiver's sale of property in receivership. People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 582, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68

Order of appointment of receiver of educational institution with instructions to keep it operating and to do all things and incur risks and obligations ordinarily incurred by owners, managers, and operators of similar educational institutions and providing that no risk or obligation so incurred shall be personal risk or obligation of receiver, but risk and obligation of receivership estate, implicitly authorized receiver to sell unneeded furniture and equipment in order to provide funds for current operating expenses. People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 580-581, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68

Court, in action for dissolution of partnership, accounting, appointment of receiver, and damages, as having authority to direct receiver to sell assets of partnership, including lease, if such action is necessary to preserve assets for disposition under judgment on merits. Steinberg v. Goldstein (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 692, 700, 303 P.2d 80

§ 486.81 Decisions

[1] Attachment or Garnishment of Property in Receivership

When property in receiver's custody may be subject to garnishment or attachment. Robbins v. Bueno (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 79, 84-85, 68 Cal. Rptr. 347

[2] Court Permission for Receiver to Sue

When receiver must obtain leave of court before instituting action to recover property. Bishop v. McKillican (1899) 124 Cal. 321, 325-326, 57 P. 76

Receiver in aid of execution as permitted to maintain action to effect purpose of receivership only by authority of statute or special or express permission of appointing court. Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 350, 351, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281

Court order authorizing receiver to sue one person as not authorizing receiver to sue others. Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 350, 352-353, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281

Scant reasons as existing for trial court in exercise of its judicial discretion, to authorize receiver in aid of execution to commence action which could and should have been brought by judgment creditor under Code Civ. Proc. § 720 (repealed, now see Code Civ. Proc. § 708.210). Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 352, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281

PRACTICE TIP:
Frequently, when a third party files a motion to obtain leave of court to sue a receiver, the third party seeks to obtain consent to sue the receiver in a court other than the one in which the receiver has been appointed. Any efforts made by the third party to sue the receiver in a forum other than the one in which the receiver has been appointed should be opposed by the receiver. While any litigation brought against the receiver will compel the receiver to expend assets of the receivership estate to defend against the action, it is normally in the receiver's best interest to have any action which is filed against him or her to be venued in the court which originally appointed the receiver, so that this court can minimize the litigation expenses which will be incurred by the receivership estate in defending against such third party litigation and can exercise ultimate control over all aspects of the receivership estate. Any application made by third party to sue the receiver in a court other than the one in which the receiver was appointed should be opposed on this ground.

[3] Attorney Fees

Trial court as properly denying to receiver attorney fees incurred or paid by receiver for services rendered after receiver's appointment when attorney was also attorney for party procuring appointment, although allowance of fees to such attorney for services rendered in obtaining appointment of receiver is proper. Smith v. Hill (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 374, 387, 47 Cal. Rptr. 49 ; Hozz v. Varga (1958) 166 Cal. App. 2d 539, 543, 333 P.2d 113

[4] Court Permission to Sue Receiver

Discretion of court that appointed receiver to grant or refuse leave to other parties to sue receiver in another court. Petaluma S. Bank v. Superior Court (1896) 111 Cal. 488, 497, 44 P. 177

Demurrer as proper method of raising issue of failure to obtain leave of court to sue receiver. Ostrowski v. Miller (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 79, 85-86, 37 Cal. Rptr. 790

[5] Encumbrances, Liens, and Other Priority Interests

Intervenor bank, which had acquiesced in appointment of receiver, as not entitled to sue receiver for disregarding priority of bank's security interest; consent to appointment of receiver as implied consent that operating expenses thereof be given priority over security interests of party giving consent. Schreiber v. Ditch Road Investors (1980) 105 Cal. App. 3d 675, 680, 164 Cal. Rptr. 633

Right of successor of second trust deed beneficiaries to rents previously collected by receiver to extent of deficiency. United Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Hoffman (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 306, 311-314, 106 Cal. Rptr. 275

[6] Liability of Receivers

Receiver as liable for torts committed in performance of receiver's duties solely in official and not personal capacity and liability as to be satisfied from receivership funds. McCarthy v. Poulsen (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1212, 1219, 219 Cal. Rptr. 375

Receiver who undertakes to carry on business of apartment operation as liable, in capacity as receiver, to all persons employed by him or her in conduct of apartment house operation as their employer. Pacific Indem. Co. v. Workmen's Comp. App. Bd. (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 35, 41, 65 Cal. Rptr. 429

Under federal law (former 31 U.S.C. §§ 191, 192; now see 31 U.S.C. § 3713(b)), receiver as personally liable to United States to extent receiver pays other creditors when there are debts owing to United States or fails to give priority to federal tax liens. Kirk v. Kirk (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 580, 582-583, 52 Cal. Rptr. 725

Receiver as liable to persons not beneficially interested in receivership in receiver's official capacity only. Sealite, Inc. v. Finster (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 612, 618, 309 P.2d 51

Receiver as liable for negligence in performance of his or her authorized duties to those not interested in receivership estate only in his or her official capacity; any recovery as charge against estate in receivership. Chiesur v. Superior Court (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 198, 201-202, 172 P.2d 763

Deposit of receivership funds by receiver in bank of receiver's choice without prior court authorization as constituting breach of duty to take and keep possession of receivership property and as rendering receiver liable on his or her bond if bank subsequently fails and refuses to repay deposit even though receiver was not negligent in selecting bank. Miller v. Fidelity etc. Co. of Maryland (1935) 3 Cal. App. 2d 580, 582-586, 40 P.2d 951

Receiver, such as commissioner of banks, building and loan commissioner, or insurance commissioner, who is guilty of fraud, as not above law but as amenable to process of law and subject to suit by stockholder or creditor to conserve or repossess assets of receivership; receiver liquidating business of bank as amenable to law and subject to suit by creditors if he or she exceeds powers, or wastes estate, or fails to act to recover property of receivership. Garris v. Mitchell (1935) 7 Cal. App. 2d 430, 434, 46 P.2d 225

[7] Liability of Surety

Surety on receiver's bond as liable for receiver's breach of duty during period bond was in effect; thus, action against surety to recover money on bond as not barred by order exonerating surety made in action in which receiver was appointed when plaintiff had obtained judgment antedating order of exoneration in independent action finding that receiver had failed to faithfully execute his duties. Administrative Management Services, Inc. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 532, 535-536, 152 Cal. Rptr. 620 (quoting former Gov. Code § 1612; repealed, now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 996.410-996.495)

[8] Setoffs

Right of setoff against receiver. People v. California etc. Trust Co. (1914) 168 Cal. 241, 245-251, 141 P. 1181 ; Downey v. Humphreys (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 323, 331-332, 227 P.2d 484

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST
A. Appointment of Receivers

43-486 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 486.90

AUTHOR: Robert B. Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 486.90 Applicant's Checklist

[1] Preliminary Determinations

☐ What are the costs of a receivership (which at a minimum would include the receiver's fee and the cost of the receiver's bond or undertaking [see Code Civ. Proc. § 567(b)])?

☐ Determine whether to proceed by noticed motion or by ex parte application for order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed (e.g., if the appointment is sought by plaintiff and defendant has not yet appeared in the case).

☐ Do facts exist which establish the kind of emergency that would necessitate the immediate appointment on ex parte application and order to show cause why the appointment should not be confirmed [see discussion in § 486.15].

☐ Weigh the additional costs involved against the amount in controversy and what might be lost by delaying the appointment until after hearing on a notice of motion or order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed.

☐ The additional costs would include at a minimum the cost of the undertaking which the applicant would be required to post [see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b)].

☐ Check any local rules and practices of the court in which the action or proceeding is pending or will be filed that apply to receivers and receiverships [see § 486.15[4][d]].

[2] Ex Parte Application for Appointment of Receiver and Order to Show Cause Why Appointment Should Not Be Confirmed

☐ Draft the declaration and ex parte application for appointment of a receiver [see form in § 486.139], in the following number of copies:

☐ Draft any additional affidavits or declarations setting forth any facts in addition to those set forth in the Declaration and Ex Parte Application that are required to be shown in order to support the appointment and which are not within the personal knowledge of the person signing the Declaration and

Ex Parte Application but which are within the personal knowledge of the person who will sign the affidavit or declaration.

☐ Set forth the following facts in a verified complaint, affidavit, or declaration under penalty of perjury, or any combination of these:

☐ Draft a memorandum showing that the appointment of the receiver is authorized and should be confirmed in the same number of copies for the same distribution as the Declaration and Ex Parte Application [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(b)]. For memoranda of points and authorities that may be used for this purpose, see California Points and Authorities , Ch. 200, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

☐ Draft the order fixing the amount of the applicant's undertaking (see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b)) [see form in § 486.140].

☐ If desired, combine the order fixing the undertaking with the order appointing the receiver and fixing the amount of the receiver's undertaking and order to show cause why the appointment should not be confirmed.

☐ Draft the order appointing the receiver and fixing the amount of the receiver's undertaking and the order to show cause [§ 486.141] in the same number of copies for the same distribution as the Declaration and Ex Parte Application.

☐ Notify the adverse party when and where the application will be presented, unless excused from doing so.

☐ Draft the affidavit or declaration of notification or excuse from notification in the same number of copies and for the same distribution as the ex parte application for appointment of receiver [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204, discussed at § 486.137[3] and in Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

☐ If not already done, present the complaint to the court clerk for filing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 411.10] together with the summons for issuance [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 412.10, 412.20(a)].

☐ Present the following to the proper judge for consideration and signing of the orders:

☐ If not known, ascertain from the court clerk the procedure to be followed in presenting the ex parte application, papers, and orders to a judge for reading, ex parte hearing if required, and signature [see also § 486.90[1]].

☐ Draft the applicant's undertaking in the amount fixed by the court in the same number of copies and for the same distribution as the Declaration and Ex Parte Application.

☐ Have it executed by the surety or sureties or secure a bond in the amount fixed from an admitted surety insurer [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 566(b), 995.120, 995.210, 995.330; see also discussion in § 486.15[3][b]].

☐ If the orders are signed, notify the receiver that the appointment has been made.

☐ Draft the receiver's undertaking in the same number of copies and for the same distribution as the Declaration and Ex Parte Application or secure a bond from an admitted surety insurer [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 567(b), 995.120, 995.210, 995.330; see also discussion in § 486.16].

☐ Draft the receiver's oath and have the receiver take the oath [see Code Civ. Proc. § 567(a)] before a person authorized to administer oaths [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2093 (authorized persons)]. For discussion and a form of oath, see Ch. 392, Oath and Affirmation .

☐ Present the oath, the applicant's undertaking or bond and the receiver's undertaking or bond, with proof of service attached, to the court clerk for filing.

☐ If not served with the order appointing receiver and order to show cause, do the following [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(b)]:

☐ Serve a copy of the Declaration and Ex Parte Application, a copy of each additional declaration if any, and a copy of the supporting memorandum, as well as a copy of the complaint if not already served, on the attorney for the adverse party or on the adverse party if he or she has no attorney. For a procedural guide for use in serving papers, see Ch. 518, Service Of Summons and Papers .

☐ Prepare the proof of service of the papers served and file the original of the proof of service with the court clerk.

☐ If the adverse party's response is not timely served and time is needed to prepare to respond to it, seek a continuance by stipulation or by court order.

☐ Examine any affidavits or declarations submitted by the adverse party to determine whether they controvert any of the facts set forth in the supporting papers or state additional facts that counsel was unaware of it.

☐ Check the adverse party's points and authorities to determine whether they are correct and, if correct, whether they apply to the facts of the case.

☐ Nominate a substitute receiver, if desired, by securing the name, address, phone number, and qualifications of any person counsel desires to have substituted for the receiver appointed.

☐ Present any new evidence that has surfaced since the filing and service of the papers or new case law handed down in the interim.

☐ Draft the order confirming the appointment of the receiver [see form in § 486.142], or discharging the receiver, in the same number of copies and for the same distribution as the order appointing receiver set forth above.

☐ Prepare the notice of the court's ruling, one copy for the adverse party, an office copy, and such additional copies as may be desired.

☐ Serve a copy, with a conformed copy of the order, on the adverse party's attorney or, if none, the adverse party.

☐ File with the court the original of the notice of ruling with the original of the proof of service attached.

[3] Ex Parte Application for Order to Show Cause and Order to Show Cause Why Receiver Should Not Be Appointed ☐ Draft the ex parte application for an order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed and the order to show cause in the following number of copies:

☐ Draft in the same number of copies for the same distribution as the ex parte application any affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury necessary to present the facts required to establish the ground or grounds for the appointment that are not contained in the ex parte application or verified complaint.

☐ Draft the supporting memorandum in the same number of copies for the same distribution as the ex parte application and order to show cause [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113]. For points and authorities that may be used in support of an application for appointment of a receiver, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 200, Receivers (Matthew Bender).

☐ Notify the adverse party when and where the application will be presented, unless excused from doing so.

For a general discussion of notice, see § 486.90[2].

☐ Present the following to the proper judge:

☐ Any affidavits or declarations.

- ☐ The memorandum of points and authorities.
- ☐ The court's file containing the verified complaint.
- ☐ The court orders.

☐ If the judge signs the order to show cause, leave the original with the courtroom clerk for filing and have the copies conformed.

☐ Serve the following on the adverse party:

- ☐ A conformed copy of the order to show cause.
- ☐ Ex parte application.
- ☐ Supporting affidavits or declarations, if any.
- ☐ Points and authorities.

☐ Prepare a proof of service and have it signed by the person who made service.

- ☐ File the original of the proof of service with the court. Proof of service of the moving papers must be filed no later than five court days before the time appointed for the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(c)]. For a procedural guide for use in serving papers, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

☐ On receipt of the adverse party's opposition papers, examine any affidavits or declarations submitted by the adverse party to determine whether they controvert any of the facts set forth in the supporting papers or state additional facts that counsel was unaware of.

☐ Check the adverse party's points and authorities to determine whether they are correct and, if correct, whether they apply to the facts of the case.

☐ Nominate a person to serve as receiver, if desired, by doing the following:

- ☐ Securing the name, address, phone number, and qualifications of any person counsel desires to have appointed as receiver.
- ☐ Draft a suggestion that such person be appointed, stating the reasons [see § 486.142[2]].

For further discussion, see § 486.90[2].

☐ If the court appoints a receiver, draft the order of appointment in the same number of copies and for the same distribution as the ex parte application and order to show cause as set forth above.

For further discussion of notice, see § 486.90[2].

For further discussion, see § 486.90[2].

For further discussion, see § 486.90[2].

For further discussion, see § 486.90[2].

[4] Notice of Motion for Appointment of Receiver

☐ Draft moving papers [see forms in §§ 486.143 and 486.144]. For the procedure to follow in preparing, serving, and filing a notice of motion and supporting papers, and the filing fee required in superior court cases, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders , and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

For further discussion, see § 486.90[3].

For further discussion, see § 486.90[2].

☐ Draft the order granting the motion appointing a receiver, and fixing the amount of the receiver's undertaking or bond [see form in § 486.145] in the following number of copies:

- ☐ One copy for the adverse party's attorney or, if none, for the adverse party.
- ☐ One copy for receiver.
- ☐ One copy for client, if desired.
- ☐ One office copy.
- ☐ Such additional copies as may be desired.

☐ Present the original and copies of the orders to the judge who granted the motion, or to the judge's courtroom clerk to present to the judge, for signature, and conform, or have the clerk conform, the copies.

For further discussion, see § 486.90[2].

For further discussion, see § 486.90[2].

For further discussion, see § 486.90[2].

For further discussion, see § 486.90[2].

PRACTICE TIP:

To increase the possibility that your application to appoint a receiver will be granted, it is important to demonstrate to the court that theproperty over which the appointment of a receiver is sought is subject to being harmed in some manner and that the appointment of a receiver is the only remedy available to prevent harm from occurring to the property. In many instances, the court will not appoint a receiver on an ex parte basis, but will instead issue injunctive relief pending a hearing on the appointment of a receiver. Therefore, it is normally good practice to have an alternative proposed form of temporary restraining order prepared in connection with any ex parte application made to appoint a receiver, so that in the event that a receiver is not appointed, the court will issue a temporary restraining order.

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST
A. Appointment of Receivers

43-486 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 486.91

AUTHOR: Robert B. Kaplan Editorial Consultant

§ 486.91 Opposing Party's Checklist

[1] Ex Parte Hearing

☐ If notified in advance of the place and time when the ex parte application for appointment of a receiver and order to show cause why the appointment should not be confirmed or when the ex parte application for an order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed will be presented to a judge, the opposing party's counsel or, if none, the opposing party, may appear if he or she wishes to oppose the appointment at that time [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1207].

[2] Continuance of Confirmation Hearing

☐ If a receiver is appointed on ex parte application and a continuance is required to prepare a response showing that the appointment should not be confirmed, then, on receipt of the applicant's papers, apply for a continuance.

☐ Secure the consent of the attorney of the ex parte applicant or, if none, of the ex parte applicant, to a continuance.

☐ Have the stipulation for a continuance signed by the ex parte applicant's attorney or, if none, the ex parte applicant.

☐ Present the stipulation to the judge for signing, or

☐ Prepare an ex parte application for a continuance with an order granting the continuance appended in an original, one copy for the adverse party's attorney or, if none, the adverse party, an office copy, and such additional copies as may be desired;

☐ Notify the adverse party's attorney or, if none, the adverse party when and where the application will be presented to the court for signature and draft and sign the declaration of notification [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204];

☐ Present the original and copies of the application for a continuance and order and of the declaration of notification to the courtroom clerk of the judge who signed the order to show cause for delivery to the judge for signature;

☐ Leave the signed original of the application and order with the courtroom clerk for filing and have the clerk conform the copies;

☐ Serve a conformed copy of the application and order on the adverse party's attorney [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1015] or, if none, on the adverse party; and

[3] Preliminary Determinations

☐ Examine the complaint to determine whether the case is one in which a receiver may be appointed.

☐ Examine the supporting affidavits or declarations, as well as the complaint if verified to determine whether the facts relied on by the applicant support the appointment of a receiver.

☐ Ascertain whether any additional facts exist which would militate against confirmation of the appointment.

[4] Response to Order to Show Cause or Notice of Motion

For general discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

☐ Draft any affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury denying the existence of any facts stated by the applicant which are not true and stating the true facts and/or stating other facts that would militate against confirmation of the appointment of a receiver.

☐ Have each affidavit made or declaration executed by a person having personal knowledge of the facts stated in it.

☐ Check the applicant's points and authorities to determine whether the points are correctly stated and the authorities cited support them, and, if they do, whether they apply to the facts of the case.

☐ Serve the opposing papers on the applicant's counsel or, if none, the applicant [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1015].

☐ Prepare and file a proof of service. For procedure, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

☐ Secure the name, address, and phone number of any person desired to be nominated to serve as a substitute receiver (appointment made on ex parte application) or as receiver (order to show cause why receiver should not be appointed or notice of motion for appointment of receiver).

[5] Hearing

☐ Submit the written suggestion, if any, nominating a person to act as receiver or as a substitute receiver.

☐ Present any new evidence that has surfaced since the filing and service of the papers or new case law handed down in the interim.

[6] Sufficiency of Undertaking or Surety

☐ Counsel may wish to object to the sufficiency of the undertakings filed by the applicant or receiver or to the sufficiency of the sureties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.920].

☐ Objection is made by noticed motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 995.930(a)] and the proceeding is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.910-995.960. For procedure and forms for use in objecting to bonds and undertakings, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings, § 538.40 et seq.

PRACTICE TIP:

In attempting to defeat the appointment of the receiver, defendant should argue that there is equity in the property over which the appointment of a receiver is sought. In addition, defendant should also argue that the appointment of receiver is expensive, will disrupt defendant's operation of its business and/or management of the property in question and that there are alternative equitable remedies available to the plaintiff such as injunctive relief, rather than the drastic remedy of the appointment of a receiver. Defendant's counsel should also carefully review declarations filedby the plaintiff in support of the application to appointment of a receiver and should file evidentiary objections to those declarations to the extent that they contain hearsay or other inadmissible evidence. The defendant can also argue the receiver is not qualified. Finally, defendant should attempt to present evidence to the court that defendant has attempted to work with plaintiff regarding the problems which have given rise to plaintiff's request for the appointment of a receiver and therefore a receiver is not necessary.

[7] Notice of Court's Ruling

☐ If the opposing party prevails at the hearing, prepare the notice of the court's ruling in an original for filing, one copy for the moving party, an office copy, and such additional copies as may be desired.

☐ Serve a copy on the moving party's attorney or, if none, the moving party, prepare the proof of service in an original and one copy, and file the original of the notice of ruling with the original of the proof of service attached with the court.

§ 486.101 Inventory Property

[1] Extension of Time

☐ If more than 30 days is required to prepare the inventory [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1181].

☐ Draft an application, or petition, for an order extending time with the order appended in an original and one copy for the receiver and such additional copies as may be desired.

☐ Present the original of the application and order and copies to the courtroom clerk of the judge supervising the receivership.

☐ If the order is signed, the receiver will have the additional time allowed to file the inventory.

[2] Draft Inventory

☐ Make a list of all property received and draft the inventory [see form in § 486.150] in the following number of copies, then sign the original and conform the copies:

[3] Serve Copies on Parties

☐ Serve a copy of the inventory on the attorney for each party or if none on the party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1015].

[4] Supplementary Inventory

☐ If the receiver subsequently takes possession of any additional property, draft the supplementary inventory [§ 486.150] and follow the same procedure as for the initial inventory ([1]-[3], above).

§ 486.104 Employment of Attorney

[1] Draft Petition for Authority to Employ Attorney

☐ If the receiver requires legal counsel in carrying out his or her duties as receiver [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1180]:

☐ Draft the petition for authority to employ attorney with an order granting the petition appended [see form in § 486.152], or:

☐ If the court requires, draft a separate formal order, in an original for filing, one copy for each party's attorney of record and for each party who is unrepresented by counsel, one copy for the attorney nominated for employment, one copy for the receiver, and such additional copies as may be desired.

[2] Present Petition and Order to Court

☐ Present the original and copies of the petition and order to the courtroom clerk of the judge supervising the receivership.

☐ If the order is signed, the original will be retained for filing and the copies will be conformed and returned to the receiver.

[3] Serve Papers

☐ Serve a copy of the petition and order on each party's attorney or, if none, on the party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1015].

☐ Deliver a conformed copy of the petition and order to the attorney to be employed. For manners of serving papers and a form of proof of service by mail, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[1] Petition to Sue Third Party

☐ If it becomes necessary for the receiver to file suit against a third party and leave of court is required, draft the petition for permission to sue [see form in § 486.170], specifying the nature of the action to be brought, facts justifying its need, and its probable outcome, in the following number of copies:

☐ The petition to sue may be combined with the petition for authority to employ an attorney to prosecute the lawsuit [see § 486.104 (employment of attorney)].

[2] Order Granting Petition

☐ Draft the order authorizing the receiver to file suit [see form in § 486.171] in the same number of copies as the petition.

[3] Present Petition and Order to Court

☐ Present the originals and copies of the petition and order to the courtroom clerk of the judge supervising the receivership for consideration and signature.

[4] Service of Order

☐ Serve a copy of the petition and a conformed copy of the order on the attorney for each party, and on any nonrepresented parties, in the receivership action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1015].

[5] Complaint Against Third Party

☐ Allege in the complaint against the third party that court permission to sue has been obtained [see form in § 486.172].

§ 486.121 Lawsuits Against Receiver

[1] Preliminary Determinations

☐ Determine nature of action against receiver and whether receiver's liability is based on an act or omission of the receiver in his or her official capacity which will be satisfied, if at all, from receivership funds [see McCarthy v. Poulsen (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1212, 1219, 219 Cal. Rptr. 375] or arises from the receiver's failure to faithfully discharge the duties of receiver in the action or obey the orders of the court in which event the receiver's liability is on his or her official bond [see Code Civ. Proc. § 567(b)].

☐ If the action is based on a liability imposed on the receiver in his or her official capacity, determine whether relief should and can be sought by intervention in the same action or proceeding in which the receiver was appointed or a separate action should be filed.

[2] Application for Leave to Sue Receiver

☐ Draft application or petition for leave to sue receiver [see form in § 486.173] in an original for filing, one copy for the receiver, one copy for client if desired, office copy, and such additional copies as may be desired.

☐ Draft complaint against receiver [see form in § 486.175 for allegations of authority to sue to be included in the complaint] which will be filed if permission to sue is granted.

☐ Attach to the application or petition a copy of the proposed complaint [see Chiesur v. Superior Court (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 198, 199, 172 P.2d 763] .

☐ Draft order granting leave to sue [§ 486.174] in the same number of copies and for the same distribution as the application.

☐ Give receiver advance notification of when and where application or petition will be presented to judge.

☐ Present original and copies of application and order to courtroom clerk of judge supervising receivership.

☐ If the receiver receives advance notification that a person will apply at a specified time and place for an order granting leave to sue, the receiver may wish to do the following:

☐ File a written response or pleading and/or:

☐ Appear at the time and place specified to present any opposition he or she may have to the granting of the application or to respond to any questions the court may want to ask.

☐ If the receiver is sued as receiver, the receiver should apply to the court for permission to employ an attorney to represent the receiver in the lawsuit. For procedure, see § 486.104.

§ 486.130 Allegations and Prayer of Complaint for Appointment of Receiver--To Take Possession of Property or Fund in Which Parties Have Joint Interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]

[1] FORM Allegations and Prayer of Complaint for Appointment of Receiver--To Take Possession of Property or Fund in Which Parties Have Joint Interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]

1. _____ [Allege parties' joint interest in property or fund, e.g., Plaintiff and defendant are the sole co-owners of an apartment house, located at _____ (address)], hereinafter "the property"].

2. At all times herein mentioned, defendant was, and is, in complete control and management of the _____[property or fund].

[EITHER, if fund is in danger of loss or removal]

3. _____ [Allege facts showing fund is in danger of loss or removal, e.g., Contrary to _____ (specify law or contract governing parties' relationship, e.g., the agreement between plaintiff and defendant has excluded plaintiff from participating in the management of the property or sharing in its proceeds and was, and is, using the rents, issues, and profits of the property for his/her own exclusive benefit in that _____ (specify facts showing that defendant has been using proceeds of property and partnership funds for his or her own exclusive benefit)].

[AND/OR, if property is in danger of being materially injured]

3. _____ [Allege facts showing that property is in danger of being materially injured, e.g., The property is in immediate need of substantial repair in that, as shown by the reports of _____ (names), who are duly licensed termite exterminators and building con tractors, which are attached hereto as Exhibits

"_____" and "_____," respectively, and made a part hereof, the apartment building is infested with dry rot and termites requiring immediate correction to avoid extensive and permanent structural damage to the building; in addition, the roof leaks, which condition, if not immediately repaired, will allow water to enter the building when it rains; the reports further show the repairs that must be made forthwith if substantial and permanent damage to the apartment building is to be avoided].

[4. _____ (Allege any efforts made by plaintiff to have defendant protect the property from material injury, e.g., On numerous occasions, plaintiff has requested defendant to apply the proceeds of the property to the repair of the foregoing conditions, but defendant has failed and refused and continues to fail and refuse to do so or to apply any part of the proceeds, or any other moneys, to the repair and maintenance of the building or to take any other steps to properly repair or maintain the building).]

[CONTINUE]

[5. Unless a receiver is appointed and instructed to take possession of the _____ (property or fund) and to _____ (specify duties to be given to receiver, e.g., receive rents as they fall due, and immediately apply the rents to the repair of the property), the _____ (property or fund) will be _____ (materially injured or lost or removed), as herein alleged (and, in addition, the parties hereto may be subjected to serious personal civil liability to third parties for any injury or damage sustained by them as a result of the defects, as well as to liability for maintaining a habitation in an uninhabitable condition).]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays:

1. That a receiver be appointed to take possession of the _____[specify property or fund, e.g., apartment house], to _____ [specify general powers to be given to receiver, e.g., manage, control, care for, preserve, maintain, and incur the expenses necessary for the management, control, care, preservation, and maintenance of, the _____ (specify property or fund, e.g., apartment house and personalty located in it), and, specifically, to _____ (state specific powers, e.g., collect the rents, issues, and profits therefrom and apply the same to the immediate repair of the aforementioned infestations and dilapidations and thereafter to maintain the property in a good and habitable condition pending the determination of this lawsuit, to pay any taxes or assessments falling due during the period of receivership, and to otherwise employ labor as may be necessary, purchase supplies, and incur the risks and obligations ordinarily incurred by owners, managers, and operators of similar apartment houses)].

[2] Use of Form

The allegations and prayer in [1], above, are for insertion in a verified complaint in an action by a person jointly owning or interested in any property or fund involved in the lawsuit to show that appointment of a receiver is justified because the property or fund is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]. If the complaint alleges facts sufficient to establish the above ground, it may be used to support in whole or in part either a noticed motion or an ex parte application for appointment of a receiver pending the hearing and determination of the complaint [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175, 3.1176; for forms, see §§ 486.139, 486.143]. For the additional showing required when the application for appointment of a receiver is made ex parte, see § 486.139[5].

The allegations in [1], above, with appropriate modifications, may be incorporated in an ex parte application and declaration for appointment of a receiver [see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175].Alternatively, they may be incorporated in an affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003] or declaration under penalty of perjury in support of a noticed motion for appointment of a receiver [see § 486.144] or in support of an ex parte application for an order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009, 2015.5; Cal. Rules of Ct.,

Rules 3.1177 (referring to appointment of receiver "on notice," which would include both notice of motion and order to show cause why receiver should not be appointed)].

[3] Allegations

The form in [1], above, alleges the existence of a joint interest in property, showing that the action is one in which a receiver may be appointed (Paragraph 1) [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)], and that the property is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured, showing the ground for the appointment (alternative Paragraphs 3 or 3 and 4) [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]. It also includes an allegation of what will happen if a receiver is not appointed for use when the complaint will be used to support an ex parte application for an immediate order appointing a receiver or for an order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed (Paragraph 5).

[4] Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver

If ex parte appointment of a receiver is sought, additional facts must be shown in the verified complaint or declaration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175; see § 486.139[5]].

[5] Verification

If the application for appointment of the receiver is be to based in any part on the complaint, then the complaint must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002, 2015.5; Evid. Code §§ 702, 710].

§ 486.131 Allegations and Prayer of Complaint For Appointment of Receiver--Action to Foreclose Mortgage or Trust Deed [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)]

[1] FORM Allegations and Prayer of Complaint For Appointment of Receiver--Action to Foreclose Mortgage or Trust Deed [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)]

[EITHER]

1. The condition of the _____[deed of trust or mortgage] has not been performed, in that _____ [specify facts showing breach of obligation for which deed of trust or mortgage is security, e.g., defendant has failed, and continues to fail, to make timely installment payments of principal and interest due for the months of _____ through _____ (dates)].

[AND/OR]

1. The _____[mortgaged or trust] property is in danger of being _____[lost or removed or materially injured] in that _____[specify facts showing danger of loss, removal or material injury, e.g., defendant has abandoned the property and there is no one now on the property to occupy, care for, or maintain it].

[AND]

2. The _____[mortgaged or trust] property is insufficient to discharge the debt secured by the _____[mortgage or trust deed] in that the unpaid balance due on the note so secured is $_____, whereas the fair market value of the property is $_____.

[CONTINUE]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays:

1. That a receiver be appointed to take possession of the _____[mortgaged or trust] property and to care for, control, manage, and preserve it pending further order of the court.

[2] Use of Form

The allegations and prayer in [1], above, are for insertion in a complaint for foreclosure and sale by the mortgagee named in a mortgage or the trustee or beneficiary under a trust deed [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 725a-730.5 (foreclosure)] as a basis for securing the appointment of a receiver to take charge of the mortgaged or trust property when the property is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured, or the condition of the mortgage or trust deed has not been performed, and the property is probably insufficient to discharge the mortgage or trust debt [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)]. A complaint alleging facts sufficient to establish either of the grounds in this form in whole or in part may be used to support in whole or in part either a noticed motion or an ex parte application for appointment of a receiver pending the hearing and determination of thecomplaint for dissolution [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1003, 1005; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.1175, 8.1177; for forms, see §§ 486.139, 486.140]. For the additional showing required when the application is made ex parte, see § 486.139[5]. The allegations and prayer, when inserted in a complaint for foreclosure and sale, should be renumbered as appropriate.

The allegations, with appropriate modifications, may be incorporated in an ex parte application and declaration for appointment of receiver [see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1175; for a form, see § 486.139]. Alternatively, they may be incorporated in an affidavit (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003) or declaration under penalty of perjury in support of a noticed motion for appointment of a receiver or in support of an ex parte application for an order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009, 2015.5; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1177].

For a form of allegations relating to appointment of a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11) in connection with specific performance of an assignment of rents provision of a deed of trust, mortgage, or separate assignment document and thereafer pending nonjudicial foreclosure, see § 486.132.

[3] Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver

If ex parte appointment of a receiver is sought, additional facts must be shown in the verified complaint or declaration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.1175; see § 486.139[5]].

[4] Verification

If the application for appointment of the receiver is be to based in any part on the complaint, then the complaint must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002, 2015.5; Evid. Code §§ 702, 710].

§ 486.132 Allegations and Prayer of Complaint to Enforce Assignment of Leases, Rents, Issues, or Profits [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11)]

[1] FORM Allegations and Prayer of Complaint to Enforce Assignment of Leases, Rents, Issues, or Profits [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11)]

1. _____[Allege that defendant executed a deed of trust or mortgage in favor of plaintiff on certain property containing an assignment of leases, rents, issues, and profits].

2. On _____[date], the _____[specify mortgage or deed of trust containing an assignment of lease, rents, issues, and profits] was duly recorded in the Official Records of the Office of the County Recorder of _____[specify county of recording] County, State of California.

3. _____[Allege defaults that have occurred under the terms of the mortgage or deed of trust containing an assignment of leases, rents, issues, or profits].

4. Prior to the filing of this action, plaintiff notified the defendant of its default under the terms of the _____[specify mortgage or deed of trust that is in default]; however, the defendant has failed and refused to take any steps to remedy that default.

5. In accordance with the terms of the _____[specify mortgage or deed of trust that is in default], plaintiff has declared the following sums to be delinquent, and they are now due and payable to plaintiff from the defendant:

(a) _____[Specify amounts owed to plaintiff as a result of default in mortgage or deed of trust];

6. Plaintiff has duly performed all of the conditions precedent on its part required to be performed.

7. There is no adequate remedy at law to enforce the provisions of the _____[specify mortgage or deed of trust that is in default], and it is necessary that a receiver be appointed to take possession and charge of the property and to conserve and manage it pending the sale under the terms of the _____[specify mortgage or deed of trust that is in default], and to collect any and all rents, issues, income, interests, and leases, and/or profits thereof pending the sale.

8. As a result of the default by defendant under the _____[specify mortgage or deed of trust that is in default], plaintiff is entitled to enter upon and take possession of the property to collect the rents, issues and profits thereof, as provided for therein.

9. Unless a receiver is appointed by this Court to take possession of, care for, and manage and operate the property, plaintiff will be materially prejudiced.

10. By reason of these facts, plaintiff prays that this Court appoint a receiver in accordance with the law to take control of and manage the property.

11. For the foregoing reasons, and in aid of the receiver, plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order and preliminary and permanent injunctions, restraining and enjoining the defendants and Does 1 through 30, inclusive (sometimes collectively referred to as "defendants"), and their agents, servants and employees, and all those acting in concert with them, and each of them, from engaging in or performing, directly or indirectly, any of the following acts:

(a) Demanding, collecting, receiving, or in any other way diverting or using any of the profits, income, issues, rents, or lease payments emanating from the property, including, without limitation, rents or lease payments due or hereafter to become due under any rental or lease agreements;

(b) Interfering with or hindering, in any way whatsoever, the receiver in the performance of the receiver's duties herein described and in the performance of any duties incident thereto;

(c) Interfering in any manner with the property or its possessions;

(d) Transferring, concealing, destroying, defacing, or altering any of the instruments, documents, ledger cards, books, records, printouts, or other writings relating to the property, or any portion thereof; and

(e) Transferring, conveying, assigning, pledging, deeding, selling, renting, leasing, encumbering, changing ownership, vesting of title to, or otherwise disposing of, the property.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays:

1. That a receiver be appointed to take possession and charge of the property, and to conserve and manage the property pending sale under the terms of the _____[specify mortgage or deed of trust which is in default];

2. That the defendants, and anyone holding under said defendants, be ordered to deliver possession of the property to the receiver forthwith;

3. That the receiver, after taking possession of the property, be permitted to do the following:

(a) Exclude the defendants, or anyone claiming under or through said defendants who does not have a valid lease or rental agreement for possession of the property, or any portion thereof, from possession of the property, or any portion thereof;

(b) Use, operate, manage, and control the property;

(c) Care for, preserve, and maintain the property;

(d) Incur all expenses necessary for the care, preservation, and maintenance of the property;

(e) Demand, collect and receive any rents, issues, income, profits and lease payments due from the date of defendants' default or hereafter coming due from tenants or lessees of the property, or any portion thereof;

(f) To rent or lease from time to time any part of the property and to keep the buildings thereon insured and in good repair, and to pay the taxes and assessments on the property incurred during the receivership;

(g) Bring and prosecute all proper actions for collection of rent or lease payments due on the property, as well as all necessary actions and proceedings for the removal of tenants or lessees in default of any rental or lease agreement, or any other persons, from the property, and to bring and prosecute all proper actions for the protection of the property or to recover possession thereof;

(h) To employ agents or employees to collect said rents, manage the property, and keep the same insured and in good repair, if the receiver shall deem the same necessary, and to pay the reasonable value of said services out of the rent receipts;

(i) To open up bank accounts as deemed necessary by the receiver in connection with the above-referenced duties; and

(j) All other powers and duties referred to in this complaint, together with all other powers reasonably necessary to carry out the receiver's duties and responsibilities.

4. For a temporary restraining order and for preliminary and permanent injunctions restraining and enjoining the defendants, and their servants, agents and employees, and all those acting in concert with them, and each of them, from engaging in, or performing, directly or indirectly, any or all of the following acts:

(a) Interfering with or hindering, in any manner whatsoever, the receiver in the performance of the receiver's duties;

(b) Demanding, collecting, receiving or in any other way diverting and using any of the profits, income, issues, rents, payments, and/or lease payments emanating from the property, including, without limitation, rents or lease payments due or hereafter to become due under any rental or lease agreements;

(c) Interfering in any manner with the property or its possessions;

(d) Transferring, concealing, destroying, defacing or altering any of the instruments, documents, ledger cards, books, records, printouts, or other writings relating to the property or any portion thereof; or

(e) Transferring, conveying, assigning, pledging, deeding, selling, renting, leasing, encumbering, changing ownership, vesting of title to, or otherwise disposing of, the property.

5. For costs and expenses incurred by the receiver in the performance of the receiver's duties, and including without limitation, receiver's fees and charges and attorneys' fees.

[2] Use of Form

The allegations and prayer in [1], above, are for insertion in a verified complaint to enforce the assignment of leases, rents, issues, or profits clause in a mortgage or deed of trust in the lawsuit to seek appointment of a receiver [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(10)]. If the complaint alleges facts sufficient to establish the above grounds, it may be used to support in whole or in part either a noticed motion or an ex parte application for appointment of a receiver pending the hearing and determination of the complaint [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a), 3.1177(a); for forms, see §§ 486.139, 486.143]. For discussion of the additional showing required when the application for appointment of a receiver is made ex parte, see § 486.139[5].

The allegations in [1], above, with appropriate modifications, may be incorporated in an ex parte application and declaration for appointment of a receiver [see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a); for a form, see § 486.139]. Alternatively, they may be incorporated in an affidavit (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003) or declaration under penalty of perjury in support of a noticed motion for appointment of a receiver [for a form, see § 486.144] or in support of an ex parte application for an order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009, 2015.5; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1177(a) (referring to appointment of receiver "on notice," which would include both notice of motion and order to show cause why receiver should not be appointed)].

For forms of notice of motion, declaration, and order appointing a receiver under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11), see Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages .

[3] Allegations

The form in [1], above, alleges that the defendant has executed a deed of trust or mortgage on certain real property containing an assignment of leases, rents, issues or profits (Paragraphs 1 and 3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(10)], and that a default has occurred under the terms of that mortgage or deed of trust (Paragraph 3). It also includes an allegation of what will happen if a receiver is not appointed when the complaint will be used to support an ex parte application for an immediate order appointing a receiver or for an order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed (Paragraph 9).

[4] Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver

If ex parte appointment of a receiver is sought, additional facts must be shown in the verified complaint or an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175; see § 486.139[5]].

[5] Verification

If the application for appointment of the receiver is to be based in any part on the complaint, then the complaint must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002, 2015.5; Evid. Code §§ 702, 710].

§ 486.133 Allegations and Prayer of Complaint for Appointment of Receiver in Aid of Arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1218.8]

[1] FORM Allegations and Prayer of Complaint for Appointment of Receiver in Aid of Arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1218.8]

1. On or about _____[date], plaintiff and defendant entered into a written agreement in which _____ [allege terms of arbitration clause, e.g., at Paragraph _____, the parties agreed that any controversy or claim arising out of the agreement between or among the parties thereto shall be determined by arbitration. The agreement further provides that no provision of the arbitration agreement shall limit the right of any party to exercise or obtain any provisional or ancillary remedies during or after the pendency of any arbitration and that the institution and maintenance of an action for judicial relief or a provisional remedy shall not constitute a waiver of the right of any party to submit the controversy to arbitration].

2. _____[Allege existence of dispute and whether a complaint has been filed and/or arbitration demanded or pending]

3. This complaint is being filed against the defendants pursuant to the provisions of Code of Civil Procedure Section 1218.8 on the grounds that any award which the plaintiff may obtain pursuant to the mandatory arbitration provisions contained in the agreement may be rendered ineffectual without provisional relief in the form of the appointment of a receiver. The plaintiff reserves its right to arbitration of the claims under the agreement.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays for entry of orders granting the provisional relief requested by the plaintiff in the applications and pleadings accompanying this complaint against defendants as follows:

1. That a receiver be appointed to take possession of the _____[specify property or fund] to _____[list powers to be given to receiver to insure that any arbitration award which may be obtained will not be rendered ineffectual].

[2] Use of Form

The allegations and prayer in [1], above, are for insertion in application for a provisional remedy in connection with an arbitrable controversy which is filed on the ground that the arbitration award to which the applicant may be entitled may be rendered ineffectual without provisional relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b)]. The application must be accompanied by a complaint or by copies of the demand for arbitration and any response thereto. If the application is accompanied by a complaint, the application must also be accompanied by a statement stating whether the party is or is not reserving the party's right to arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b)].

An application for a provisional remedy under Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(b) does not operate to waive any right of arbitration which the applicant may have if, at the same time as the application for provisional remedy is presented, the applicant also presents to the court an application that all other proceedings in the action shall be stayed pending the arbitration of any issue, question, or dispute which is claimed to be arbitrable under the agreement and which is relevant to the action pursuant to which the provisional remedy is sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(d)].

[3] Allegations

The form in [1], above, alleges the existence of an arbitration agreement (Paragraph 1) and of an arbitrable dispute (Paragraph 2), the current status of the dispute with respect to pending litigation or arbitration (Paragraph 2), and that a receiver should be appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 564 in connection with the arbitrable controversy on the ground that the award to which the applicant may be entitled may be rendered ineffectual without provisional relief [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(a)(4), (b)].

The form also includes a statement that the plaintiff is or is not reserving the right to arbitration. This statement is mandatory if the application is accompanied by a complaint (Paragraph 3) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1281.8(d)].

[4] Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver

If ex parte appointment of a receiver is sought, additional facts must be shown in the verified complaint or an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175; see § 486.139[5]].

[5] Verification

If the application for appointment of the receiver is to be based in any part on the complaint, then the complaint must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002, 2015.5; Evid. Code §§ 702, 710].

§ 486.134 Allegations and Prayer of Complaint for Appointment of Receiver--Action for Involuntary Dissolution of Corporation [Corp. Code § 1803]

[1] FORM Allegations and Prayer of Complaint for Appointment of Receiver--Action for Involuntary Dissolution of Corporation [Corp. Code § 1803]

1. Unless a receiver is appointed to take over and manage the business and affairs of the corporation and to preserve its property during the pendency of this action, the interests of both the corporation and its shareholders will suffer in that _____ [specify facts showing that unless a receiver is appointed the interests of the corporation and its shareholders will suffer pending the determination of the action, e.g., because the corporation has an even number of directors equally divided who cannot agree as to the management of its affairs, the entire management of the corporation, as shown by the declaration of _____ (name) attached hereto as Exhibit "_____" and made a part hereof, has broken down with the following results]:

[LIST corporate problems in successive subparagraphs as in the example below]

a. Key middle managers and supervisors have terminated their employment with the corporation because of the prevailing chaos and lack of direction.

b. Morale of remaining employees is low and deteriorating.

c. No records are being maintained of employee attendance.

d. Records of accounts receivable have been misfiled, destroyed, or lost and cannot be found.

e. Records of current accounts payable were inadvertently mixed with the retired files (files more than 10 years old) and all of them shredded.

f. Inventories of corporate property have disappeared.

g. Office equipment and supplies have also disappeared.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays:

1. That a receiver be appointed to take over and manage the business and affairs of the corporation and to preserve its property pending the hearing and determination of this complaint for dissolution of the corporation.

[2] Use of Form

The allegations and prayer in [1], above, are for insertion in a verified complaint for involuntary dissolution of a corporation [see Corp. Code § 1800 (specifying who may bring action, grounds for involuntary dissolution, and corporations to which statute does not apply)] as a basis for securing the appointment of a receiver to take over and manage the business and affairs of the corporation and to preserve its property when the interests of the corporation and its shareholders will suffer pending the hearing and determination of the complaint [see Corp. Code § 1803, discussed under [3], below]. If the complaint alleges facts sufficient to establish the ground for appointment, the complaint may be used to support either a noticed motion or an ex parte application for appointment of a receiver [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1003, 1005; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1175, 3.1177(a)]. For discussion of the additional showing required when the application is made ex parte, see § 486.139[5]. The allegations and prayer when inserted in a complaint for involuntary dissolution should be renumbered as appropriate.

Alternatively, the declarations attached to the complaint may be attached to a notice of motion for appointment of a receiver [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009, 2015.5; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1177(a); for a form, see § 486.143] or to an ex parte application for appointment of a receiver [see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175; for a form, see § 486.139].

Other grounds for appointing a receiver of a corporation are discussed in § 486.13[2].

[3] Grounds and Procedure

If, at the time the complaint for involuntary dissolution is filed or at any time thereafter, the court has reasonable grounds to believe that unless a receiver of the corporation is appointed the interests of the corporation and its shareholders will suffer pending the hearing and determination of the complaint, the court may, on the application of the plaintiff and after a hearing on such notice to the corporation as the court may direct and on the giving of security pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 566 and 567, appoint a receiver to take over and manage the business and affairs of the corporation and to preserve its property pending the hearing and determination of the complaint for dissolution [Corp. Code § 1803].

However, subject to any contrary provision in the corporation's articles, in any suit for involuntary dissolution initiated by the vote of shareholders representing only 50 percent of the voting power, the corporation, or, if it does not elect to do so, the holders of 50 percent or more of the voting power of the corporation, may avoid the dissolution and the appointment of a receiver by purchasing for cash the shares owned by the plaintiffs or by the shareholders initiating the proceedings at their fair value [Corp. Code § 2000(a)]. If the parties can't agree on the fair value and the parties electing to purchase give a bond to protect the plaintiffs or shareholders initiating the proceeding, the court on application of the purchasing parties must stay the action and proceed to ascertain and fix the fair value of the shares [Corp. Code § 2000(b)]. These provisions are mandatory and when the prescribed conditions are met the court must stay the proceedings and proceed to ascertain and fix the value of the shares owned by plaintiffs [Merlino v. Fesno Macaroni Mfg. Co. (1944) 64 Cal. App. 2d 462, 464, 148 P.2d 884 (construing predecessor statute)].

[4] Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver

If ex parte appointment of a receiver is sought, additional facts must be shown in the verified complaint or an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175; see § 486.139[5]].

[5] Verification

If the application for appointment of the receiver is be to based in any part on the complaint, then the complaint must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002, 2015.5; Evid. Code §§ 702, 710].

§ 486.135 Allegations and Prayer of Complaint for Appointment of Receiver--Action by Creditor Against Insolvent Debtor and Debtor's Transferee to Set Aside Transfer of Property in Fraud of Creditors [Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B); Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]

[1] FORM Allegations and Prayer of Complaint for Appointment of Receiver--Action by Creditor Against Insolvent Debtor and Debtor's Transferee to Set Aside Transfer of Property in Fraud of Creditors [Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B); Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]

1. Defendant _____[name], ever since the transfer of the property as herein alleged, has been, and is now, in the receipt of and appropriating to his/her own use the income and profits of the property without the consent and against the will of plaintiff, and has failed, refused, and neglected, and continues to fail, refuse, and neglect, to account for them.

2. To prevent defendant _____[name] from continuing to misuse and misappropriate the profits and income of the property, it is necessary that a receiver be appointed to take possession of the property and to receive the profits and income therefrom pending the outcome of this action.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays:

1. That a receiver be appointed to take possession of the property, together with its profits and income, and to preserve the same during the pendency of this action.

[2] Use of Form

The allegation and prayer in [1], above, are for insertion in a verified complaint by a creditor against a debtor and the debtor's transferee to set aside a transfer of property made in fraud of creditors [see Civ. Code § 3439.07] as a basis for securing the appointment of a receiver to take charge of the asset transferred or its proceeds pending the outcome of the litigation [see Civ. Code § 3439.07(a)(3)(B); Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]. If the complaint alleges facts sufficient to establish the fraudulent transfer and the ground for appointment, the complaint may be used to support either a noticed motion or an ex parte application for appointment of a receiver [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1003, 1005; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1175, 3.1177]. For the additional showing required when the application is made ex parte, see § 486.139[5]. The allegations and prayer when inserted in a complaint to set aside the fraudulent transfer should be renumbered as appropriate.

The above allegations, with appropriate modifications, may be incorporated in an ex parte application and declaration for appointment of a receiver [see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175; for a form, see § 486.139]. Alternatively, they may be incorporated in an affidavit [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003] or declaration under penalty of perjury in support of a noticed motion for appointment of a receiver or in support of an ex parte application for an order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009, 2015.5; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1177].

[3] Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver

If ex parte appointment of a receiver is sought, additional facts must be shown in the verified complaint or declaration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175; see § 486.139[5]].

[4] Verification

If the application for appointment of the receiver is be to based in any part on the complaint, then the complaint must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002, 2015.5; Evid. Code §§ 702, 710].

§ 486.136 Allegations and Prayer of Complaint for Appointment of Receiver--Action by Secured Creditor to Enforce Personal Property Security Agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]

[1] FORM Allegations and Prayer of Complaint for Appointment of Receiver--Action by Secured Creditor to Enforce Personal Property Security Agreement [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)]

1. On or about _____[date], defendant executed _____[describe contract containing a personal property security agreement in favor of plaintiff with description of property in which plaintiff was granted a security interest].

2. _____[Allege facts showing that defendant breached the terms of the personal property security agreement].

3. _____[Allege facts showing that property in which plaintiff was granted a security interest is in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured and that defendant is taking actions to deprive and deny plaintiff of the property in which it holds a security interest].

4. Although plaintiff has demanded possession from defendant of the property in which it holds a security interest, and the proceeds thereof, defendant has failed and refused, and continues to fail and refuse to affirmatively respond to such demands, preferring instead to engage in the conduct herein alleged.

5. It is critical that a receiver be appointed at this time to marshal and safeguard the remaining property in which plaintiff holds a security interest to realize the remaining proceeds thereof, to open mail and recover all payments and sums for the benefit of plaintiff, and do all the acts necessary to protect the property.

6. Unless a receiver is appointed, defendant will continue to misappropriate, secrete, and wrongfully liquidate property in which plaintiff holds a security interest, all to the detriment and irreparable loss of the plaintiff.

7. Plaintiff has no speedy or adequate remedy at law and will suffer irreparable damage, injury and harm unless appropriate equitable relief is granted.

8. In accordance with the _____[specify personal property security agreement] plaintiff is entitled to enter the business premises of defendant and take possession of the property in which plaintiff holds a security interest and the records pertaining thereto and exercise all remedies under the California Code of Civil Procedure and California Commercial Code. Such remedies are consistent with plaintiff's request for a receiver, who in the natural course of carrying out his or her duties would protect the plaintiff from further injury while making certain that defendant receives credit to which it might be entitled.

9. For all the foregoing reasons, and in aid of the receiver, plaintiff also seeks a temporary restraining order, and preliminary and permanentinjunction, restraining and enjoining defendant from engaging in, or performing, directly or indirectly, any or all of the following acts:

a. Demanding, collecting, receiving, spending or in any other way converting or using any of the proceeds of the property in which plaintiff holds a security interest; and

b. Hiding, secreting, transferring, selling, pledging, granting a security interest in, or in any other manner disposing or hypothecating any of that property; and

c. Transferring, concealing, destroying, defacing or altering any of the instruments, documents, ledger cards, books, records, printouts or any other writings relating to the business of defendant; and

d. Transferring directly or indirectly any interest by sale, shipment of goods, pledge or grant of security interest, assignment, invoice or encumbering in any manner the property in which plaintiff holds a security interest more specifically described in the documents attached hereto and incorporated herein by this reference, and any and all proceeds or products thereof.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendants, and each of them, as to all causes of action, as follows:

A. By reason of plaintiff's cause of action for appointment of receiver:

1. For an appointment of a receiver pendente lite to manage, receive and collect the property in which plaintiff holds a security interest to the extent that the same is not in plaintiff's possession, including, without limitation, the proceeds therefrom; and

2. For the receiver to apply the same to the payment of principal and interest owing from defendant to plaintiff in accordance with orders of this Court and the parties' agreements; and

3. To uphold and carry into effect the terms of plaintiff's security interest; and

4. That the receiver have all other powers and duties referred to in the complaint, together with all other powers reasonably necessary to carry out his other duties and responsibilities, including, without limitation, authority, pursuant to orders of this Court, to sell the assets of defendant as a going concern or otherwise; and

5. For a temporary restraining order, and preliminary and permanent injunctions restraining and enjoining defendants from engaging in, or performing directly or indirectly, any or all of the following acts:

a. Demanding, collecting, receiving, spending or in any other way converting or using any of the property;

b. Transferring, selling, pledging, granting a security interest in or in any other manner disposing or hypothecating any of the property;

c. Transferring, concealing, destroying, defacing or altering any of the instruments, documents, ledger cards, books, records, printouts or any other writings relating to the business of defendant;

d. Transferring directly or indirectly any interest by sale, shipment of goods, pledge or grant of security interest, assignment, invoice or encumbering in any manner the property in which plaintiff holds a security interest specifically described in the documents attached hereto and incorporated herein by this reference, and any and all proceeds or products thereof.

[2] Use of Form

The allegations and prayer in [1], above, are for insertion in a complaint to appoint a receiver to enforce a personal property security interest. The complaint alleges that the plaintiff has an interest in certain personal property by virtue of the defendant having executed a security agreement and that the plaintiff's security is in danger of being lost, removed or materially injured (Paragraph 3) [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(1)].

[3] Ex Parte Appointment of Receiver

If ex parte appointment of a receiver is sought, additional facts must be shown in the verified complaint or declaration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175; for a form, see § 486.139[5]].

[4] Verification

If the application for appointment of the receiver is be to based in any part on the complaint, then the complaint must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002, 2015.5; Evid. Code §§ 702, 710].

I, _____[name], declare:

1. I am _____[identify declarant, e.g., employed as an account manager by the plaintiff in the above-entitled action].

2. I am one of the custodians of the books, records, files and credit records of plaintiff as those books, records, files and credit records pertain to loans or extensions of credit made by plaintiff to defendant. I personally have worked on those books, records, files and credit records and, as to the following facts, I know them to be true of my own knowledge or have gained knowledge of them from the business records of plaintiff, records which are maintained in the ordinary course of plaintiff's business. I could and would testify competently to the facts set forth in this declaration if called as a witness since those facts are personally known by me to be true.

3. The records of plaintiff as they pertain to the loans and extensions of credit which are the subject of this case are kept in the regular course of plaintiff's business, and the records are carefully prepared to reflect all acts, conditions and events at or near the time those acts, conditions and events occurred. Based upon my personal knowledge and experience with plaintiff, I know that these records are accurate and trustworthy.

4. I have personally reviewed the complaint filed in this case, verified the same, and hereby adopt that verified complaint, which is incorporated herein by this reference, as though set forth in full.

5. _____[Describe general nature of defendant's business and its operations and set forth the principal place of business of defendant].

6. _____[Set forth facts showing defendant's execution of a personal property security agreement in favor of plaintiff and property in which plaintiff was granted a security interest].

7. _____[Set forth facts showing defaults that have occurred under the terms of the personal property security agreement].

8. Plaintiff will be irreparably harmed unless a receiver is immediately appointed to take possession of the property of defendant in which plaintiff holds a security interest. Unless an ex parte receiver is appointed immediately, defendant will continue to utilize and unlawfully dispose of property in which plaintiff holds a security interest. Once this property is disposed of, it will be forever lost and available to plaintiff as a source of repayment of the obligations owed by defendant to plaintiff.

9. _____[Set forth additional dangers to property in which plaintiff holds a security interest, e.g., the immediate appointment of a receiver is necessary to protect the personal property of defendant in which plaintiff holds a security interest because the property is small in size, and can be easily disposed of and/or secreted].

10. In view of all the foregoing circumstances, plaintiff contends that it is appropriate that a receiver be appointed over defendant on an ex parte basis. Alternatively, in the event that the Court is not inclined to appoint a receiver immediately, it should issue a restraining order prohibiting defendant from disposing of any property of defendant in which plaintiff holds a security interest pending a hearing on an order to show cause re appointment of receiver.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The form of declaration and ex parte application in [1], above, is for use to obtain an order appointing a receiver to take immediate possession of property in which the plaintiff has a security interest and order to show cause why appointment should not be confirmed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175; see also discussion in § 486.15; for the number of copies to prepare and procedures to follow, see § 486.90[2]]. The form must be accompanied by a declaration regardingnotice to the other parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204] and by a supporting memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1112(a), 3.1113(a)].

[3] Notice to Opposing Party

The application must be accompanied by an affidavit or declaration showing one of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(b)]:

- Within a reasonable time before the application the party informed the opposing party or the opposing party's attorney when and where the application would be made, including the date, time, manner, and name of the party informed, any response, and whether any opposition is expected.

- The party in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party and the opposing party's attorney but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to inform them.

- For reasons specified the party should not be required to inform the opposing party or the opposing party's attorney.

The declaration or affidavit must also state the name, address, and telephone number of any attorney known to the applicant to be an attorney for any party or, if no such attorney is known, the name, address, and telephone number of such party if known to the applicant [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1202(b)]. The party seeking the ex parte order must notify all parties no later than 10:00 a.m. the court day before the ex parte appearance, absent a showing of exceptional circumstances [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1203; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204 (contents of notice)].

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204 does not require that the notification be given in writing, and, therefore, it would appear that the notification may be written or oral.

For further discussion, a procedural checklist of other documents that must accompany the application, and forms of declaration in support of ex parte applications, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[4] Nature of Ex Parte Appointment

The appointment of a receiver on ex parte application is a drastic remedy and is seldom warranted [see Golden State Glass Corp. v. Superior Ct. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 384, 393, 90 P.2d 75] . Such an order should be made only in cases of emergency which make it imperatively necessary to act at once without notice [Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 810 n.2, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475] . On the other hand, when such necessity or emergency is shown, a receiver may be appointed [see People v. Christ's Church (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 858, 862, 181 P.2d 49 ; Misita v. Distillers Corp., Ltd. (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 244, 250, 128 P.2d 888] . But even in an extreme case, the appointment of a receiver on ex parte application willbe made only if less onerous remedies would be inadequate or are unavailable [see § 486.12[2]].

[5] Showing Required

[a] Mandatory Requirements

In addition to showing that the action or proceeding is one in which a receiver may properly be appointed and the facts establishing the ground of the motion (see generally Code Civ. Proc. § 564, and discussion in § 486.13), an ex parte applicant for appointment of a receiver must show in detail the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a)]:

- The nature of the emergency and the reasons irreparable injury would be suffered by the applicant during the time necessary for a hearing.

- The names, addresses, and phone numbers of the persons in actual possession of the property for which a receiver is requested, or of the president, manager, or principal agent of any corporation in possession of the property.

- The use being made of the property by the persons in possession.

- If the property is a part of the plant, equipment, or stock in trade of any business, the nature and approximate size or extent of the business, and facts sufficient to show whether the taking of the property by a receiver would stop or seriously interfere with the operation of the business.

The requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175 are mandatory and must be met before a receiver is appointed on ex parte application [see Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 810 n.2, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475 (citing former Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule 238, the predecessor of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175)].

[b] Unknown Matters

If any of these matters are unknown to the applicant and cannot be ascertained by the exercise of due diligence, the applicant's declaration or verified complaint must fully state the matters unknown and the efforts made to acquire the information [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175].

[c] Verification

The showing required to have a receiver appointed on ex parte application may be made by verified complaint or declaration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175]. For sample forms of allegations and prayers that may be included in a complaint alleging the ground or grounds for the appointment, see §§ 486.130 -486.133.

§ 486.138 Allegations and Prayer of Complaint for Appointment of Receiver--Action by Secured Creditor to Appoint Receiver to Inspect for Hazardous Substances [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(c)]

[1] FORM Allegations and Prayer of Complaint for Appointment of Receiver--Action by Secured Creditor to Appoint Receiver to Inspect for Hazardous Substances [Code Civ. Proc. § 564(c)]

1. On or about _____[date] _____[allege that defendant executed a deed of trust or mortgage in favor of plaintiff granting plaintiff a security interest in real property].

[EITHER]

2. On or about _____[date] plaintiff commenced _____[judicial or non-judicial] foreclosure proceedings against the real property security.

[OR]

2. On or about _____[date] plaintiff became aware that _____[allege facts showing that plaintiff has a reasonable belief as to the existence of a past or present release or threatened release of a hazardous substance into, onto, beneath, or from the real property S]. This _____[release or threatened release] was not previously disclosed in writing to the plaintiff in conjunction with the _____[making or renewal or modification or any combination of these] of the loan alleged above.

[CONTINUE]

3. On or about _____[date] plaintiff _____[allege plaintiff's attempts to inspect the real property]. Defendant, in contravention of plaintiff's rights as a secured lender in Civ. Code § 2929.5, refused plaintiff the right to inspect the real property which is the subject of the _____[deed of trust or mortgage].

4. _____[Allege that receiver should be appointed to enable plaintiff as the secured lender to enter and inspect the real property which is the subject of the deed of trust or mortgage for the purpose of determining the existence, location, nature and magnitude of any past or present release or threatened release of any hazardous substance into, onto, beneath or from the real property security].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays:

1. That a receiver be appointed, enter upon and inspect the real property for the purpose of determining the existence, location, nature and magnitude of any past or present release or threatened release of any hazardous substance into, onto, beneath or from the real property security.

[2] Use of Form

The allegation and prayer in [1], above, are for insertion in a verified complaint to enforce inspection rights given to a real property securedlender set forth in Civ. Code § 2929.5. A complaint to appoint a receiver may be filed in the event the defendant refuses the secured lender its right to inspect its real property security to determine the existence, location, nature and magnitude of any past or present release or threatened release of hazardous substances into, onto, beneath or from the real property security. The real property secured lender's inspection demand may be made after the commencement of non-judicial or judicial foreclosure proceedings on the real property security or upon the real property secured lender having a reasonable belief as to the existence of a past or present release or threatened release of a hazardous substance into, onto, beneath or from the real property security not previously disclosed in writing to the secured lender in conjunction with the making, renewal or modification of a loan involving the defendant borrower [Civ. Code § 2929.5(a)].

If the complaint alleges facts sufficient to establish the above grounds, it may be used to support in whole or in part either a noticed motion or an ex parte application for appointment of a receiver pending the hearing and determination of the complaint [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1175(a), 3.1177; for forms, see §§ 486.139, 486.143]. For discussion of the additional showing required when the application for appointment of a receiver is made ex parte, see § 486.139[5].

The allegations in [1] above, with appropriate modifications, may be incorporated in an ex parte application and declaration for appointment of a receiver [see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175]. Alternatively, they may be incorporated in an affidavit (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003) or declaration under penalty of perjury in support of a noticed motion for appointment of a receiver [see § 486.144] or in support of an ex parte application for an order to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2009, 2015.5; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1177 (referring to appointment of receiver "on notice," which would include both notice of motion and order to show cause why receiver should not be appointed)].

[3] Allegations

The form in [1], above, alleges that the defendant has executed a real property security instrument in favor of the plaintiff (Paragraph 1), and that the real property secured lender has previously commenced non-judicial or judicial foreclosure proceedings or has a reasonable belief as to the existence of a past or present release or threatened release of hazardous substance into, onto, beneath or from the real property security not previously disclosed in writing to the real property secured lender in connection with the making, renewal or modification of a loan, letter of credit, guaranty or other obligation involving the defendant (alternative Paragraphs 2). It then alleges that the plaintiff has sought to inspect the property for the purpose of determining the existence, location, nature and magnitude or any past or present release or threatened release of anyhazardous substance into, onto, beneath or from the real property security as authorized by Civ. Code § 2929.5, but that the defendant has refused the plaintiff access to inspect the real property security (Paragraph 3).

I, _____[name], declare:

1. I am the [attorney of record for the] _____[identify party, e.g., plaintiff] herein.

2. _____ [Specify facts showing that action is one in which appointment of a receiver is authorized, e.g., As shown by the verified complaint herein, this is an action to dissolve a partnership and for an accounting. As further shown by that complaint, (a) the partnership was formed by written agreement between the parties on _____ (date) to own and operate a business known as _____ (name) to buy and market gold and silver bullion; (b) defendant was the managing partner and he/she alone was authorized to draw checks on partnership accounts; (c) the business was enormously successful grossing in excess of $_____ for the fiscal year _____; and (d) since on or about _____ (date), defendant has excluded plaintiff from in any way participating in the management or conduct of the business and has failed and refused, and continues to fail and refuse, to account to plaintiff for either any or all of the profits)].

3. _____[State nature of emergency, e.g., As further shown by the verified complaint, defendant, contrary to his/her agreement with, and without any notice to, plaintiff, has left the country and has expressed an intent not to return; before leaving, he/she ceased operating the business and withdrew all balances from the accounts held by him/her in both his/her personal name and under the firm's name; the remaining assets of the partnership consist of specified personal property, including art objects purchased with partnership funds, and of a stock of gold and silver bullion, all of which is in immediate danger of being removed from the jurisdiction of this court and will be removed if a receiver is not immediately appointed to take possession of them].

4. _____[State reasons why irreparable injury would be suffered by applicant during time necessary for hearing on notice, e.g., If the appointment of a receiver is delayed until after defendant is given notice, defendant will accelerate his/her plans for removal of the property out of the country where it will be dispersed and difficult, if not impossible, to trace and recover, and plaintiff will thereby be deprived of any source from which to receive payment of his/her share of the partnership profits as subsequently determined by the judgment of this court, all to plaintiff's irreparable injury].

5. _____ [State name(s), address(es), and phone number(s) of person(s) in actual possession of property for which receiver is requested, or of president, manager, or principal agent of any corporation in possession of property, e.g., As shown by the declaration of _____ (name), attached hereto, the specified personal property, including the art objects, and gold and silver bullion, are in that declarant's possession under instructions from the defendant to make all arrangements for their shipment to _____ (him/her or other designated consignee) on further notice from defendant but no later than _____ (date). The address and telephone number of _____ (name of declarant in possession) are _____].

6. _____ [Specify use being made of property by person(s) in possession, e.g., As shown by the declaration of _____ (name), attached hereto, _____ (name of declarant in possession) is making no use of the property; he/she has had the property and bullion boxed and crated and is holding it until arrangements are completed for their shipment out of the country].

[7. _____ (If property is part of the plant, equipment, or stock in trade of any business, specify the nature and approximate size or extent of the business and facts sufficient to show whether receiver's taking of property would stop or seriously interfere with operation of the business, e.g., Although the specified items of personal property, other than the art objects, described in the verified complaint are part of the equipment of the partnership business and the gold and silver bullion are its stock in trade, the partnership has ceased doing any business and will be dissolved onthe judgment of this court; consequently, the taking of the property by a receiver would in no way stop or seriously interfere with the operation of the business.]

[8. _____ (If any of the matters enumerated in paragraphs 3-7, above, are unknown to the applicant and cannot be ascertained with due diligence, state fully matters unknown and efforts made to acquire information).]

WHEREFORE, _____[specify party, e.g., plaintiff] _____[name] requests an order appointing a receiver to take immediate possession of _____ [describe property, e.g., the gold and silver bullion and all other property placed by _____ (name of partner) in the custody of _____ (name) for shipment abroad] and to _____[specify powers to be given to receiver, e.g., preserve and care for the property] pending further order of this Court and for an order to show cause why the appointment should not be confirmed.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

The form of declaration and ex parte application in [1], above, is for use to obtain an order appointing a receiver to take immediate possession or charge of property involved in litigation and for an order to show cause why the appointment should not be confirmed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175; see also discussion in § 486.15].

The form must be accompanied by a declaration regarding notice to the other parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(b)] and by a supporting memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1112(a), 3.1113(a), 3.1176(b)].

For the number of copies to prepare and procedure to follow, see § 486.90[2].

[3] Notice to Opposing Party

An application for ex parte relief must be accompanied by an affidavit or declaration showing that notice has been given, attempted to be given, or stating reasons why notice should not be required [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204]. For discussion, see § 486.137[3].

[4] Nature of Ex Parte Appointment

The appointment of a receiver on ex parte application is a drastic remedy and is seldom warranted [see Golden State Glass Corp. v. Superior Ct. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 384, 393, 90 P.2d 75] . Such an order should be made only in cases of emergency which make it imperatively necessary to act at once without notice [Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 810 n.2, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475] . On the other hand, when necessity or emergency is shown, a receiver may be appointed [see People v. Christ's Church (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 858, 862, 181 P.2d 49 ; Misita v. Distillers Corp., Ltd. (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 244, 250, 128 P.2d 888] . But even in an extreme case, the appointment of a receiver on ex parte application will be made only if less onerous remedies would be inadequate or are unavailable [see § 486.12[2]].

[5] Showing Required

[a] Mandatory Requirements

In addition to showing that the action or proceeding is one in which a receiver may properly be appointed and the facts establishing the ground of the motion (see, generally, Code Civ. Proc. § 564, and discussion in § 486.13), an ex parte applicant for appointment of a receiver must show in detail the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a)]:

- The nature of the emergency and the reasons irreparable injury would be suffered by the applicant during the time necessary for a hearing.

- The names, addresses, and phone numbers of the persons in actual possession of the property for which a receiver is requested, or of the president, manager, or principal agent of any corporation in possession of the property.

- The use being made of the property by the persons in possession.

- If the property is a part of the plant, equipment, or stock in trade of any business, the nature and approximate size or extent of the business, and facts sufficient to show whether the taking of the property by a receiver would stop or seriously interfere with the operation of the business.

The requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175 are mandatory and must be met before a receiver is appointed on ex parte application [see Turner v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 804, 810 n.2, 140 Cal. Rptr. 475 (citing former Cal. Rules of Ct, Rule 238, the predecessor of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175)].

[b] Unknown Matters

If any of these matters are unknown to the applicant and cannot be ascertained by the exercise of due diligence, the applicant's declaration or verified complaint must fully state the matters unknown and the efforts made to acquire the information [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175].

[c] Verification

The showing required to have a receiver appointed on ex parte application may be made by verified complaint or declaration [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1175(a)]. For sample forms of allegations and prayers that may be included in a complaint alleging the ground or grounds for the appointment, see §§ 486.130 -486.133.

WHEREAS Section 566(b) of the Code of Civil Procedure provides that before a receiver is appointed on ex parte application the Court must require from the applicant an undertaking in an amount fixed by the Court for the defendant's protection,

IT IS ORDERED that plaintiff file an undertaking, or bond, in the amount of $_____.
Dated: _____

_____ [signature]
Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The order in [1], above, is for use to fix the amount of the undertaking required to be filed by the ex parte applicant for the appointment of a receiver before the court makes the order of appointment. An order appointing a receiver on ex parte application is void unless the applicant's undertaking is fixed and filed [Sweins v. Superior Court (1936) 16 Cal. App. 2d 336, 60 P.2d 313 ; Westphal v. Superior Court (1932) 120 Cal. App. 263, 264, 7 P.2d 711 ; Ryan v. Murphy (1919) 39 Cal. App. 640, 643, 179 P. 517] . For a combined form of order appointing a receiver, orders setting the amounts of the applicant's and the receiver's undertakings, and order to show cause why the appointment should not be confirmed, see § 486.141.

In the case of a receivership to take charge of rents, issues, and profits under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11), counsel may prefer to use optionalJudicial Council Form RC-200, which provides for plaintiff's ex parte bond at Item 8. RC-200 is illustrated in Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages.

[3] Form and Content of Undertaking

The undertaking must be to the effect that the applicant will pay to the defendant all damages the defendant may sustain by reason of the appointment of the receiver and the entry by the receiver on his or her duties, in case the applicant shall have procured the appointment wrongfully, maliciously, or without sufficient cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b); see Havemeyer v. Superior Court (1890) 84 Cal. 327, 366, 24 P. 121] . In the case of multiple defendants, the undertaking should run in favor of each defendant in the action and should be in such form that any defendant would have a right of action on it if he or she is damaged by the appointment [Title etc. Trust Co. v. California Dev. Co. (1912) 164 Cal. 58, 65, 127 P. 502] .

The undertaking may be in the form of an undertaking given by personal sureties or of a bond issued by an admitted surety insurer [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.210(b), 995.310, 995.610(a)]. A form of bond or undertaking is set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 995.330. The bond or undertaking must be filed with the court, preserved in the office of the clerk of the court, and appropriate entries made in the court's register of actions [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 995.340, 995.350].

[4] Amount of Undertaking

The amount of the undertaking would normally be the amount that would cover the value of transferable personal property and cash which the receiver may possess at any point in time during the expected period of the receivership.

At the hearing to appoint a receiver, the applicant must, and other parties may, propose and state the reasons for the specific amounts of the undertakings required from the applicant for any injunction that is ordered in or with the order appointing a receiver [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1178].

Having considered the declaration and ex parte application of _____[identify moving party, e.g., plaintiff] _____[name] for an order appointing a receiver [and the verified complaint herein or the affidavit(s) of _____ (name(s)) or the declaration(s) of _____ (name(s)) or any combination of the foregoing], and the Court having determined that (1) good cause exists for the appointment of a receiver; (2) _____[identify moving party, e.g., plaintiff] would suffer irreparable injury during the time necessary for a hearing on notice; (3) _____[identify moving party, e.g., plaintiff] must execute and file an undertaking in the amount of $_____ to the effect that the _____[identify moving party, e.g., plaintiff] will pay to the _____[identify opposing party, e.g., defendant] all damages the _____[identify opposing party, e.g., defendant] may sustain by reason of the appointment of the receiver and the entry by the receiver on his/her duties, in case the _____[identify moving party, e.g., plaintiff] shall have procured the appointment wrongfully, maliciously, or without sufficient cause; and (4) _____[name of proposed receiver] is qualified to act as a receiver in this case,

IT IS ORDERED that:

1. _____[Name of proposed receiver] is appointed receiver in this _____[action or proceeding].

2. On qualifying to act as receiver herein by the taking and filing of an oath to perform his/her duties as receiver faithfully and securing and filing an undertaking or bond to the State of California in the amount of$_____ to the effect that _____[name of receiver] will faithfully discharge the duties of receiver in the action and obey the orders of the Court, _____[name of receiver], as receiver, shall take possession of _____[describe property] and _____[manage or operate or preserve or maintain or other or any combination of the foregoing] the property pending further order of this Court [and, in exercising the foregoing functions, the receiver shall have the following powers in addition to those specified by law: _____ (specify)].

3. The receiver shall take possession of all the books and records pertaining to the property of the defendant, wherever located, as the receiver deems necessary for the proper administration, management and/or control of the estate, but the books and records shall be made available to defendant as is reasonably necessary;

4. To execute and prepare all documents and to perform all acts, either in the name of the defendant or in the receiver's own name, which are necessary or incidental to preserving, protecting, managing and/or controlling the property of the receivership estate;

5. To employ agents, servants, employees, guards, clerks, accountants, on-site managers and management consultants to administer the receivership estate, manage the property and keep the same insured and in good repair, if the receiver shall deem the same necessary, and to pay the reasonable value of those services out of the rents received;

6. The defendant shall notify the receiver upon the receiver's taking possession of the property whether or not there is sufficient insurance coverage on the property. If sufficient insurance coverage does exist, the defendant shall be responsible for naming, and is hereby ordered to name, the receiver as an additional insured on the insurance policy or policies for the period that the receiver shall be in possession of the property. If there is insufficient insurance coverage, it is hereby ordered that the receiver shall have thirty (30) working days to procure insurance on the property, providing that the receiver has funds available to do so, and during that period the receiver shall not be personally responsible for claims arising or for the procurement of insurance;

7. The monies coming into possession of the receiver pursuant to his or her operation of the business thereto, and not expended for any of the purposes herein authorized, shall be held by the receiver for the payment of the Defendants' obligation to plaintiff sued upon in the complaint, subject to such orders as this Court may hereinafter issue as to their disposition;

8. To establish bank accounts for the deposit of monies and funds collected and received in connection with his or her administration of the receivership estate, at any financial institution the receiver deems appropriate, provided that any funds on deposit at the financial institution are fully insured by an agency of the United States government;

9. To institute ancillary proceedings in this state or other states and countries as are necessary to preserve and protect the receivership estate, and the receiver may engage the services of legal counsel, if necessary, upon further application to the Court. The receiver may pay for such services from the funds of the receivership estate;

10. To the extent feasible, the receiver shall, within thirty (30) days of his or her qualification hereunder, file in this action an inventory of all property of which he shall have taken possession pursuant to this order and shall conduct periodic accountings thereafter;

11. To prepare periodic interim statements reflecting the receiver's fees and administrative costs and expenses incurred for that interim period in the operation and administration of the receivership estate. Upon completion of an interim statement, and the mailing of the statement to the parties' respective attorneys of record, or any other designated person or agent, the receiver shall pay from the estate funds, if any, the amount of that statement based upon the fee schedule set forth in the declaration of the receiver filed in support of plaintiff's motion for appointment of a receiver. Despite the periodic statement of receiver's fees and administrative expenses, such fees and expenses shall be submitted to the Court for its approval and confirmation, in the form of a notice of an interim request for fees, an agreement among the parties, or the receiver's final accounting and report;

12. The receiver shall take possession of all the books and records of defendant wherever located, as the receiver deems necessary for the proper administration, management, and/or control of the estate;

13. The receiver, or any party to this action, may, from time to time and on due notice to all parties, make application to this Court for further orders instructing the receiver.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the defendant, and all persons and entities now in possession of any part of the Subject Property and not holding under valid leases or rental agreements, shall forthwith surrender their possession thereof to the receiver, and that all tenants or lessees in possession of any part of the Subject Property, and any other persons or entities as may be lawfully in possession thereof, are hereby directed, until further order of this Court, to pay over to the receiver all rents of the Subject Property now due and unpaid or that may hereafter become due, and all persons and entities liable for such rents are hereby enjoined and restrained from paying any rents for the Subject Property to the defendant, its agents, servants or attorneys.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that _____[identify opposing party, e.g., defendant] _____[name] appear in [_____ (Department or Division) _____ (number) of] this Court, located at _____[street address and city], California, on _____[date] at _____[time] and show cause, if any he/she has, why the appointment of the receiver should not be confirmed.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use when the court grants an ex parte application for the appointment of a receiver and an order to show cause. The order to show cause must be made returnable on the earliest date that the business of the court will admit, but not later than 15 days from the date of the order or, if good cause appears to the court, 22 days from the date the order is issued [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(a)].

In the case of a receivership to take charge of rents, issues, and profits under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11), counsel may prefer to use Judicial Council Form RC-200, an ex parte order appointing receiver and order to show cause. RC-200 is illustrated in Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages.

[3] Order Appointing Receiver

An order appointing a receiver is erroneous if it fails to define the scope of the receivership or to describe the property to be affected by it. The property must be sufficiently described so that the receiver can take possession of it [Ryan v. Murphy (1919) 39 Cal. App. 640, 642, 179 P. 517] . Thus, the order must describe the property of which the receiver is to take possession with sufficient certainty, although in certain cases the order may require the receiver to take possession of "all the property" of the party affected [Havemeyer v. Superior Court (1890) 84 Cal. 327, 387, 24 P. 121] .

The court may order not only the party, but the party's agents and employees, to deliver property to the receiver, but the fact that the order describes specific property does not give the receiver a right to take the property from the possession of a stranger to the action who claims to be a good-faith purchaser of it [Havemeyer v. Superior Court (1890) 84 Cal. 327, 387, 24 P. 121] .

For a discussion of the receiver's duties, see § 486.30 et seq.

[4] Undertakings

The order of appointment is not effective until the applicant's undertaking in the amount specified by the court is filed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b)] and the receiver cannot embark on his or her duties until he or she has taken the required oath and filed the required undertaking in the sum specified by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 567].

At the hearing to appoint a receiver, the applicant must, and other parties may, propose and state the reasons for the specific amounts of theundertakings required from the applicant for any injunction that is ordered in or with the order appointing a receiver [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1178].

[5] Service of Papers

As soon as reasonably practical, but no later than 5 days after the date on which the order to show cause is issued, unless the court orders another time for service, the applicant must serve the following on each of the adverse parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1176(b)]:

- A copy of the complaint if not previously served;
- The order to show cause stating the date, time, and place of the hearing;
- Any declarations supporting the application; and
- A memorandum supporting the application.

For further discussion, see § 486.90[2].

On _____[date], this Court, on the ex parte application of _____[identify party, e.g., plaintiff] _____[name], appointed _____[name] as receiver of _____[describe property] and ordered _____[identify opposing party, e.g., defendant] to appear and show cause if any he/she had why the appointment should not be confirmed.

The matter on the order to show cause came on for hearing before this Court, the Honorable _____[ name] presiding, on _____[date] at _____[time]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____[name]. Defendant appeared by counsel _____[name].

On proof made to the satisfaction of the Court that the appointment should be confirmed,

IT IS ORDERED that the appointment by this Court of _____[name of receiver] as receiver be and is hereby confirmed.

[IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the undertakings filed by _____ (identify moving party, e.g., plaintiff) and the receiver in the amounts of $_____ and $_____, respectively, remain in effect.]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use when the court, on the hearing of an order to show cause, confirms its earlier order appointing a receiver on ex parte application. At the hearing each party may suggest in writing one or more persons for substitution as receiver, stating the reasons [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1177]. If the court orders a substitution, the order relieving the original receiver, and the order appointing the new receiver and fixingthe amount of his or her undertaking, should be included in the order, as well as any orders as to when the original receiver's final report and account [for procedural checklist, see § 486.91] should be filed.

In the case of a receivership to take charge of rents, issues, and profits under Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(11), counsel may prefer to use Judicial Council Form RC-210, an order confirming appointment of receiver and preliminary injunction. RC-210 is illustrated in Ch. 555, Trust Deeds and Real Property Mortgages.

[Add memorandum of points and authorities supporting motion.]

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, is for use to apply for an order appointing a receiver. The form assumes that the motion will be made on one of the grounds specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 564, which apply whether or not the action is a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(8) (in limited civil cases, receiver may be appointed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 564)]. The form may, however, be used to apply for appointment of a receiver in other cases. If the motion is made on a ground provided by some statute other than Code Civ. Proc. § 564, citation to that other statute should be substituted for Code Civ. Proc. § 564 in this form.

Motions for the appointment of a receiver without notice are authorized in limited situations and subject to a number of conditions to meet procedural due process requirements [see Code Civ. Proc. § 566(b); for a form of ex parte application, see § 486.139].

[3] Noticed Motion Procedure

Neither Code Civ. Proc. § 564 nor any other statute authorizing the appointment of a receiver specifies the procedure to be followed to secure the appointment [see, e.g., Neider v. Dardi (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 646, 650, 279 P.2d 598] . Consequently, the general provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure apply. Under those provisions, an "order" is a direction of a court or judge, made or entered in writing, and not included in a judgment, and an application for an order is a motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1003]. Thus, the court's appointment of a receiver is an "order" and the application for the order is a "motion." For an outline of the procedure, see § 486.90[1]. For further discussion and general forms of motions and orders, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[4] Memorandum of Points and Authorities

A memorandum of points and authorities must be served and filed with this notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1103(a)(2), 3.1112(a), 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and general forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

I, _____[name], declare:

1. I am the _____[identify declarant, e.g., plaintiff in the above-entitled action].

2. _____ [Specify nature of action, showing that it is one in which appointment of receiver is authorized, e.g., As shown by the verified complaint herein, this is an action to foreclose a mortgage on a 10-unit apartment house located at _____ (street address and city), California, after defendant's default in making installment payments on the mortgage note and for the sale of the property].

3. _____ [Set forth conditions justifying the appointment of a receiver pendente lite, e.g., The apartment building has been cited several times in the past year for building code violations, none of which has been corrected either in whole or in part. The costs of correcting these violations and bringing the building up to code are in excess of $_____. As shown by the Current Income/Expense Sheet attached hereto and made a part hereof, only four of the units are rented, producing a total monthly income of $_____, and the current operating expenses of the building amount to $_____ per month. It is unlikely, because of the building code violations, that any or all of the remaining six units will be rented within the foreseeable future. The total amount of the balance due on the mortgage debt is $_____. As shown by the declaration of _____ (name), a licensed real estate appraiser, attached hereto and made a part hereof, the property's present value is $_____. This is insufficient to discharge the mortgage debt].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]
_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The declaration in [1], above, is for use to support a motion for the appointment of a receiver to take possession of property during the pendency of the action. In the fact situation illustrated, the motion is by the plaintiff mortgagee in an action to foreclose the mortgage and for the sale of the property because the mortgagor has defaulted in his or her installment payments and the present value of the property is probably insufficient to discharge the mortgage debt [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(2)].

The motion of _____[identify party, e.g., plaintiff] _____[name] for the appointment of a receiver in the above-entitled action came on regularly for hearing before the Court, the Honorable _____[name] presiding, on _____[date], at _____[time]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____[name]. _____ [Defendant appeared by counsel _____ (name) or No appearance was made by defendant or by anyone on his/her behalf].

On proof made to the satisfaction of the Court that the motion ought to be granted,

IT IS ORDERED that:

1. The motion be and is granted;

2. _____[Name], whose address is _____[specify], is appointed receiver;

3. Before entering on his/her duties as receiver, _____[name] take an oath to perform the duties of receiver faithfully, that he/she execute an undertaking, or secure a bond, in the amount of $_____ to the State of California for the faithful performance of those duties subject to the orders of this Court, and that the oath and undertaking, or bond, be filed with the Clerk of the Court;

4. On the filing of the executed oath and undertaking, or bond, _____[name], as receiver, shall take possession of the following described property (hereinafter "the property"): _____[description]; [and]

5. Pending further order of this Court, _____[name], as receiver, is instructed to _____[specify receiver's duties, e.g., manage, control,care for, preserve, maintain, and incur the expenses necessary for the management, control, care, preservation, and maintenance of, the property, and, specifically, to collect the rents, issues, and profits therefrom, to pay any taxes or assessments falling due during the period of receivership, and to otherwise employ labor as may be necessary, purchase supplies, and incur the risks and obligations ordinarily incurred by owners, managers, and operators of similar businesses] [; and]

[6. _____ (Name), as receiver, is further instructed to _____ (specify any further instructions).]

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED THAT _____[party, e.g., defendant] _____[name] [and any of his/her agents or employees], on request and exhibition of a conformed copy of this order, immediately deliver possession of any property herein described to _____[name of receiver].
Dated: _____

_____ [signature]
Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, is for use in granting a motion for the appointment of a receiver, appointing a receiver, fixing the amount of the receiver's undertaking, and specifying the receiver's duties and powers. The specific duties and powers given must, of course, be responsive to the precise situation involved. With appropriate modifications, the foregoing form may also be used to appoint a receiver after judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 564(b)(3),(4)].

For some examples of orders appointing a receiver and specifying their duties in specific actions, see Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 351, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281 (receiver appointed in aid of execution; authority held not to extend to certain litigation); People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 577-581, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68 (receiver appointed in action by attorney general to operate university; receiver of quasi-public corporation impliedly had power to sell unneeded furniture and equipment to obtain funds for current operating expenses); Venza v. Venza (1949) 94 Cal. App. 2d 878, 881-882, 211 P.2d 913 (receiver appointed to take charge of going business in action to set aside property settlement agreement).

[2] Use of Form

The skeletal form in [1], above, is for use by a receiver to render his or her original or supplementary inventory of property taken into receivership. To complete the form, a complete and detailed list of the property must be compiled below the introductory paragraph [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1181]. If any of the property consists of money and the court has notdesignated a bank in which it may be deposited, the receiver may wish concurrently to apply for an order designating a depository bank [see § 486.103; see § 486.151 (form of application for order)].

Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The form of application in [1], above, is for use by a receiver to apply without prior notice to the parties to the action for an order permitting him or her to do an act or exercise a power that is not expressly authorized by the order of appointment. With appropriate modifications, the form may also be used by a receiver to petition the court for instructions, in which event the title of the paper should be changed to "PETITION FOR INSTRUCTIONS" and the applicant referred to as "Petitioner." In addition, the matters giving rise to the need for instructions should be clearly and fully stated.

If the order sought is one that will affect the rights or liabilities of any party to the action, then notice to that party or to all parties would normally be required to meet the procedural due process requirements of notice and opportunity to be heard of U.S. Const., amend. XIV and Cal. Const., art. I, § 7. In that event, the receiver should seek the order by petition filed with the court with a copy of the petition and a notice of hearing served on all parties to the action or by noticed motion to the parties, supported by an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury setting forth the facts necessitating the order. For a form of petition, see § 486.152. For an example of the format for a notice of motion, supporting declaration, and order granting a noticed motion, see §§ 486.143 -486.145.

[3] Terminology

Applications by a receiver for a court order have been variously referred to in the cases as an "application," a "motion,"or a "petition" [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1003 (defining an "application" for an order as a "motion")]. The term "application" is, however, normally used in connection with an oral or written motion made without notice to the adverse party, usually referred to as an ex parte application or motion. The application of a receiver is not technically speaking an ex parte application even if made without notice to the parties to the action, however, because the receiver is not a party to the action, but, rather, an officer of the court [see Miller v. Fidelity etc. Co. of Maryland (1935) 3 Cal. App. 2d 580, 584, 40 P.2d 951 ; see discussion in § 486.11[2]]. Hence, if the word "application" is used it should not be called an "ex parte" application.

Use of the term petition also finds support in the codes when a hearing on the application is or may be required. The term "petition" is frequently used to mean a written motion which is filed with the court with a conformed copy of the petition, together with a notice of the time and place of the hearing, served on each party to the action. For a form of notice of hearing that may be adapted for use in such case, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[2] Use of Form

The petition in [1], above, is for use by a receiver to apply for an order permitting him or her to employ an attorney on behalf of the receivership estate with a short form of order appended [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1180; for discussion, see § 486.30[4], for a procedural checklist, see § 486.104]. Local practice may require a separate order. For a general form of order, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[3] Time of Application

Application for leave to employ an attorney should normally be made and approval secured before the attorney is employed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1180]. However, because the court has power to approve the receiver's employment of an attorney beforehand, it may subsequently ratify an employment made without prior court authorization. This rule has been said to be one of common sense necessitated by the fact that often a receiver is required to act in an emergency when no prior approval is possible [Maggiora v. Palo Alto Inn, Inc. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 706, 713, 57 Cal. Rptr. 787 ; see People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 582, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68] . But if prior court approval is not obtained, the receiver may be personally liable for the attorney's fee if the court does not subsequently ratify the employment.

Receiver

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a receiver having funds belonging to a person whose whereabouts are unknown to give public notice of the unclaimed funds in his or her possession. Publication of the notice is required before the receiver may receive his or her discharge as receiver [see Code Civ. Proc. § 570; for a procedural checklist, see § 486.107].

[3] Contents of Notice

The notice must set forth the name of the owner of the unclaimed funds, the last known place of residence or post office address of the owner, and the amount of the unclaimed funds [Code Civ. Proc. § 570]. By implication, the notice should also specify the receiver's address at which any claim to the funds may be made.

[4] Period of Publication

The notice must be published in one or more newspapers published in the county at least once a week for four consecutive weeks [Code Civ. Proc. § 570].

[5] Costs of Publication

All costs and expenses connected with the advertising are to be paid out of the unclaimed funds of the owner whose whereabouts are unknown [Code Civ. Proc. § 570].

CERTIFICATE OF INDEBTEDNESS OF THE RECEIVER

Certificate No. _____

Issue of _____ Dollars

1. This certificate of indebtedness is issued by _____[name] ("the Receiver"), not individually, but in his/her other capacity as Receiver of the real property, personal property, fixtures, and other materials located on the real property and located elsewhere if designated for the real property commonly known as _____[address] (the "Property"). A legal description of the real property is attached hereto as Exhibit 1.

2. This certifies that there is due to _____[name of lender] from the Receiver the principal sum of $_____, together with interest thereon as provided in Paragraph 3 below, payable (a) upon the sale (by foreclosure or otherwise) or refinance of the Property, from the proceeds thereof, or (b) upon the date of the final distribution of the receivership's assets, from liquid assets over and above those necessary to pay debts incurred by the Receiver by reason of his appointment. If the indebtedness evidenced hereby has not been paid in full before or pursuant to final distribution of the receivership's assets, this certificate shall continue to be a lien on all property, real and personal, of the receivership estate distributed in the final distribution of the Receiver's assets, with such priority as provided in Paragraph 4, below, and the indebtedness evidenced hereby shall be payable from any proceeds generated (a) upon the sale or refinance of the Property, from the proceeds thereof, or (b) upon collection of rental or other income from the Property, from the monies collected thereby, until such indebtedness is paid in full. All payments hereunder shall be applied first to the payment of any accrued and unpaid interest, fees, and costs, and then to the payment of principal. Payment due hereunder shall be made at such place as the holder shall direct and upon such payment, the holder hereof shall surrender this certificate to the person making such payment,marking the same "paid in full," and shall deliver to the person making such payment an instrument in recordable form executed by the obligee hereof, such obligee's successor in interest or such obligee's assign (in which case written assignment hereof in recordable form shall also be delivered), releasing the lien of this certificate on all property encumbered hereby. In addition to and not in derogation of the foregoing provisions of this Paragraph 2, the obligee hereof (or such obligee's successor in interest or assign) shall have the right at any time following the recordation hereof in the Official Records of _____[name of county], to release the lien of this certificate on all property encumbered hereby by executing an instrument in recordable form releasing such lien, and such lien shall be released upon the recordation of such instrument in the Official Records of _____[name of county].

3. Interest on the principal sum of this certificate shall accrue from the date hereof at the rate of _____[specify interest rate]. Interest will be computed on a three hundred sixty-five (365) day basis and the actual number of days elapsed, and shall be compounded annually.

4. This certificate shall constitute a lien on all of the Property, have priority over all other liens encumbering the Property, whether previously existing or hereafter created; provided, however, that with respect to the certificates of indebtedness issued by the Receiver, this certificate shall have priority all other certificates of indebtedness of a larger certificate number which will be executed subsequent to the time hereof and shall be subordinated to all certificates of indebtedness of a smaller certificate number which were executed prior to the time hereof.

5. This certificate is issued under the authority of, and in accordance with, the orders of this Court in the receivership proceeding.

6. This certificate is declared to be a debt of the Receiver, and his/her successors as Receiver, and the Receiver shall have no personal liability with respect to any of the obligations referred to herein.

7. This certificate shall not be obligatory for any purpose until signed by the Receiver.

In witness whereof, the Receiver, has executed this certificate as Receiver, but not personally, on _____[date], at _____[city], California.

_____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The receivership certificate in [1], above, is for use when a receiver appointed over real property obtains an order from a court permitting him or her to issue a receivership certificate on behalf of the receivership estate in order to borrow money to fund the operations of the receivership estate. For discussion, see § 486.14. For a form of application for authority to issue a receivership certificate, see § 486.155.

Property remaining in hands of receiver			$_____
Cash remaining in hands of receiver			$_____
	Total Credits		$_____

REPORT OF ADMINISTRATION

_____[Name] was appointed receiver herein by an order of this Court duly made and entered on _____[date]. Immediately thereafter,he/she qualified to act as receiver by executing the oath required by law and filing a bond in the amount of $_____ as fixed by the Court.

_____ [Continue recitals of acts performed by receiver in the course of his/her duties, e.g., Pursuant to the Court's order receiver took over the business known as _____ and operated and ran the business from _____ (date) until _____ (date), on which date the business was _____ (sold or liquidated). Receiver actively managed the business and was present during all business hours and has been paid the sum of $_____ per _____ (e.g., week) for such services for a total of $_____].

In addition to the services mentioned above, receiver performed additional services consisting of _____[describe services] and the sum of $_____ is a reasonable and fair amount to be allowed him/her as additional compensation for his/her services as receiver.

Pursuant to the order of this Court, receiver employed _____[name] of _____[address] as his/her attorney to represent him/her in matters pertaining to the administration of the receivership estate; the attorney performed the services and has submitted to receiver an itemized statement, a copy of which is attached hereto, for services rendered in the amount of $_____; receiver is informed and believes that the amount stated represents the reasonable value of the services rendered; _____ [no previous payments or allowances for attorney fees have been made or the attorney has previously been allowed and paid the sum of $_____].

WHEREFORE, receiver prays as follows:

1. After due notice is given and proceedings had, this Court make its order settling and approving this Final Account and Report;

2. Receiver be authorized and directed to pay the sum of $_____ to attorney _____[name];

3. Receiver be allowed the further sum of $_____ as additional compensation for his/her services as receiver;

4. This Court order and direct the manner in which the funds and assets remaining in receiver's hands are to be distributed; and

5. On distribution of the funds and assets in accordance with the Court's order, receiver be discharged and that his/her bond be exonerated.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a receiver to render a final account and report. The form is illustrative only, and the actual contents will depend on the nature of the receivership property, the services performed by the receiver with respect to it, whether income was received or expenditures made, whether the receiver had to employ an attorney to counsel him or her on the receivership property or to prosecute or defend a lawsuit,and the nature of the receivership property remaining in his or her possession.

The form is for use either when the receiver's functions have been terminated by termination of the lawsuit or in response to a court order to file the report and account. For a form of notice of hearing on the final account and report, see § 486.158. As an alternative procedure, the receiver may serve and file a notice of motion for termination of the receivership, approval of the final account (which would be attached to the notice of motion), and an award of attorney fees (if incurred), receiver's fee, and costs [see, e.g., Administrative Management Services, Inc. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 532, 534, 152 Cal. Rptr. 620] . For a form of notice of motion which may be adapted for such use, see § 486.143.

[3] Duty to Keep and File Accounts

A receiver, like any other fiduciary, has the duty to keep accurate accounts and may in a proper case be held liable for failure to do so [Seccombe v. Dionne (1935) 3 Cal. App. 2d 731, 734, 40 P.2d 299] . A receiver must make monthly reports to the parties, and if requested to nonparty client lien holders, as discussed at § 486.31[4]. However, these reports need not be filed with the court unless the court so orders [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1182]. A receiver has the further duty to file his or her accounts when required by the court. If the receiver fails to do so, the court, on its own motion or on the motion of a party in interest, may order the receiver to do so [Adams v. Woods (1857) 8 Cal. 306, 316] . The filing and approval of the receiver's account is necessary for the receiver to be discharged and his or her bond exonerated [see Seccombe v. Dionne (1935) 3 Cal. App. 2d 731, 733, 40 P.2d 299] .

[4] Contents of Account and Report

The account and report should contain the following:

- A description of the property received by the receiver (generally stated by reference to the inventory and any supplementary inventories filed).
- A statement of the income, if any, received from the property or business taken over by the receiver.
- A description of other property and income received.
- A statement of the disposition of any property by sale [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568.5] or otherwise and the amounts received.
- A statement of the expenditures made by the receiver.
- A statement or description of the property and cash remaining in the hands of the receiver.
- If any allowance of compensation for the receiver is claimed, a detailed statement of the services performed by the receiver [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1184(d)].
- If any allowance of compensation for an attorney employed by the receiver is claimed, a detailed statement of the services performed by the attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1184(d)].
- A statement as to whether previous allowances have been made to the receiver or attorney and, if so, the amounts [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1184(d)].

[5] Verification

There is no express statutory requirement that the receiver's account and report must be verified. However, the factual contents of the account and report must be presented to the court; this may be accomplished by calling the receiver to testify, having him or her sworn, and asking him or her if the contents of the report and account are true, or it may be accomplished by verifying the account and report [see, e.g., People v. Riverside University (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 572, 586, 111 Cal. Rptr. 68] .

The Final Account and Report of _____[name], receiver, having been filed with the Court and notice of hearing having been served on all parties who have appeared in this _____[action or proceeding], the Account and Report came on regularly for hearing before the Court on _____[date]. _____[Name] appeared as attorney for plaintiff; _____[name] appeared as attorney for defendant; and [_____ (name) appeared as attorney for the receiver and] the receiver appeared in person. Having read and considered the Account and Report[, the objections filed by _____ (identify any objecting party or parties, e.g., defendant) _____ (name(s)), and the points and authorities filed by _____ (specify, e.g, both parties),] having heard the argument of counsel, and being fully advised in the premises, the Court finds that _____[specify findings as to accuracy and completeness of report, e.g., the Account and Report is true and correct and that the receiver has duly accounted for all moneys and other property coming into his/her hands].

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that:

[1. The objections to the report are overruled.]

2. The Final Account and Report be and is approved.

3. The receiver be and is allowed the [further] sum of $_____ as and for his/her compensation for services rendered as receiver herein and that such sum be paid

[4. The receiver pay the sum of $_____ to _____ (name), whose address is _____, for legal services rendered herein on behalf of the receiver.]

5. After payment of the foregoing amounts, the receiver pay the balance of the funds remaining in his/her hands [and deliver _____ (describe assets remaining in receiver's possession)] to _____ [identify party or parties to receive assets, e.g., plaintiff, _____ (name)].

6. On receipt of the funds [and property], _____[identify party, e.g., plaintiff] _____[name] file with this Court an acknowledgment of receipt.

[EITHER]

7. On the filing of the acknowledgment of receipt, _____[name of receiver] is discharged from all further duties, liabilities, and responsibilities as receiver herein and his/her bond is exonerated.

[OR]

7. On the filing of the acknowledgment of receipt, the Court will, by further order, order the receiver discharged and the bond of _____[name of receiver] exonerated.

[CONTINUE]

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the _____ Court

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use when the court grants an order settling and approving the receiver's final account and report. In the situation illustrated, any objections to the account are overruled, the account is approved, and the receiver is not surcharged for any loss. With appropriate modifications it may be used when objections are sustained or the receiver is surcharged.

[3] Costs of Receivership

Normally, the costs of a receivership are payable out of the estate or funds of the receivership [Andrade v. Andrade (1932) 216 Cal. 108, 110, 13 P.2d 676 ; McCarthy v. Poulsen (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1212, 1219 n.3, 219 Cal. Rptr. 375] . However, if the appointment of the receiver was void or wrongfully obtained on a false or unsubstantiated showing, the party who obtained the appointment may be personally liable [see Smith v. Hill (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 374, 387, 47 Cal. Rptr. 49 ; Baldwin v. Baldwin (1947) 82 Cal. App. 2d 851, 854-856, 187 P.2d 429] . It has also been held that the costs of receivership were properly assessed against the defendant in an equitable action between joint venturers for an accounting when the trial court was justified in finding that the defendant was guilty of reprehensible conduct [Neider v. Dardi (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 156, 165, 313 P.2d 72] .

[4] Approval of Account and Report

On approval of the account and report, the receiver will be ordered discharged and the bond exonerated on completion of disbursements and other requirements in accordance with the order settling and approving the final account and report [see, e.g., Aviation Brake Systems, Ltd. v. Voorhis (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 230, 232, 183 Cal. Rptr. 766] .

Plaintiff _____[name] ("Plaintiff") and Defendant _____[name] ("Defendant") hereby stipulate and agree as follows:

1. On _____[date], this Court entered its order appointing _____[name] as receiver ("Receiver") over the Subject Property. The Receiver took possession of the Subject Property pursuant to the Court's Order, and filed an undertaking in the amount of $_____. On or about _____[date], Plaintiff's undertaking in the amount of $_____ was filed in the above-entitled action.

2. On or about _____[date], in compliance with the terms of the order of appointment, the Receiver carried out his duties by taking possession of the Subject Property.

3. On or about _____[date], this Court entered its order confirming the appointment of the Receiver.

4. Pursuant to the request of Plaintiff and the Defendant, the Receiver has prepared and submitted his/her final accounting for the receivership estate. A true and correct copy of the Receiver's final accounting is attached hereto as Exhibit 1 and incorporated herein by this reference.

5. As set forth in the final accounting, the Receiver represents that $_____ were collected during the course of the receivership. The Receiver incurred operating expenses in the amount of $_____, leaving a cash balance in the receivership account of $_____.

6. The parties hereto wish to terminate the receivership estate. Accordingly, the parties hereto agree and stipulate that:

A. The final accounting, attached as Exhibit 1 hereto, be approved;

B. The Receiver's fees and costs are approved;

C. The Court ratify all actions taken by the Receiver during the course of the receivership;

D. _____[Name] be discharged as Receiver;

E. The undertaking filed by the Receiver be exonerated;

F. The undertaking filed by Plaintiff be exonerated; and

G. The remaining balance of monies in the receivership estate of $_____ shall be paid to Plaintiff.

7. This Stipulation may be executed in one or more counterparts, but all of the counterparts together shall constitute one agreement.

8. All parties to this Stipulation, at all times material hereto, have had the opportunity to consult with legal counsel of their own choosing concerning the rights affected by this Stipulation, the form and content of this Stipulation, and the advisability of executing it.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use when a receiver has previously been appointed and when the party who has appointed a receiver wishes the receiver to remain in possession of the assets over which the receiver was appointed after the defendant has filed a voluntary Chapter 11 petition under the Bankruptcy Code. The moving party must demonstrate under 11 U.S.C. Section 543(d) that it would be in the "interest of creditors" for the receiver to remain in possession over the property over which he or she was appointed. The motion should be supported by a memorandum of points and authorities and by declarations of the receiver and/or the appointing secured creditor to attempt to convince the Bankruptcy Court that the "interest of creditors" test set forth in section 543(d) has been satisfied.

[2] Use of Form

The form of petition in [1], above, is for use by a receiver to request permission to sue a third party [see Code Civ. Proc. § 568]. A receiver must obtain leave of court before instituting action to recover property of which he or she was never in possession [Bishop v. McKillican (1899) 124 Cal. 321, 325-326, 57 P. 76 ; see Morand v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal. App. 3d 347, 350, 353, 113 Cal. Rptr. 281 ; for discussion, see § 486.50]. Under the fact situation illustrated, the purpose of the lawsuit is to recover property belonging to the receivership estate. If the employment of an attorney will be necessary to prosecute the lawsuit, a request for leave to employ an attorney [for a form, see § 486.152] may be combined with the foregoing petition for leave to file suit.

§ 486.175 Allegations in Third Party's Complaint Against Receiver of Authorization to Sue

[1] FORM Allegations in Third Party's Complaint Against Receiver of Authorization to Sue

1. By order of the _____ [above-entitled court or Court of _____] made and entered on _____[date], defendant was duly appointed receiver of the _____[specify, e.g., property, funds, rents, and profits] (hereinafter "the property") of _____[name of business or party for whose property receiver was appointed] [located at _____ (street address and city), California], thereafter duly qualified to undertake the duties of receiver, and, at all times hereinafter mentioned, was in possession of the property as receiver.

2. By further order of the _____ [above-entitled court or _____ Court of _____] made and entered on _____[date], plaintiff _____[name] was authorized to sue _____[name of defendant], as receiver, in his/her official capacity for _____[specify relief sought, e.g., damages] as hereinafter alleged.

[2] Use of Form

The form of allegation in [1], above, is for inclusion in the third party's complaint to allege the third party's authority to sue the receiver. The balance of the complaint will allege the ultimate facts establishing plaintiff's cause of action against the receiver. The matters alleged will depend on the nature of the tort involved. For forms of complaints which may be adapted for use in an action against a receiver, see the appropriate chapter, for example, Ch. 150, Conversion, Ch. 380, Negligence, and Ch. 421, Premises Liability.

[3] Form and Contents of Complaint

The caption of a complaint against a receiver in his or her official capacity should identify the defendant, "as Receiver"; the body of the complaint should allege the due appointment of the defendant as receiver, that permission to sue the receiver has been granted, and that the receiver is being sued in his or her official capacity [see Sealite, Inc. v. Finster (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 612, 615-618, 309 P.2d 51] . However, the objection of one sued individually that he or she should have been sued in a representative capacity or also in a representative capacity can be waived; furthermore, if one is sued in an individual capacity when the true liability, if any, is in a representative capacity, amendment of the complaint to that effect may be permitted [see Sealite, Inc. v. Finster (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 612, 618, 309 P.2d 51] .

§ 488.11 Reformation Defined

Reformation is an equitable remedy used to reframe a written instrument to express accurately the parties' true agreement when, through fraud, mutual mistake, or unilateral mistake in limited instances, the writing does not embody their agreement [see Black's Law Dictionary 1281 (6th ed.); see also Civ. Code § 3399; Bailard v. Marden (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 703, 708, 227 P.2d 10] . This remedy has been codified under Civ. Code § 3399, which provides that a written contract may be revised to reflect the true intent of the parties. Because of the use of the word "revised" in Civ. Code § 3399, the terms "reformation" and "revision" are used interchangeably in this chapter.

Chapter 488 REFORMATION OF INSTRUMENTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-488 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 488.12

§ 488.12 Nature and Purpose of Reformation

Civ. Code § 3399 codifies the equitable remedy of reformation of written instruments. This section provides that a written contract may be revised on application of the party aggrieved, when, through fraud, mutual mistake, or mistake of one party that the other party knew of or suspected at the time, a written contract does not express the true intention of the parties. A written contract may be revised so as to express the intention of the aggrieved party, so far as is possible without prejudice to the rights acquired by third persons, in good faith, and for value [Civ. Code § 3399]. In determining the propriety of granting reformation, a court of equity exercises broad powers [Jones v. First American Title Insurance Company (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 381, 383, 388-390, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 859 (reformation may validate foreclosure sale when former trustee mistakenly conducts sale after new trustee has been substituted); Cardoza v. Millington (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 26, 32, 297 P.2d 778 (preincorporation agreement reformed to provide for equal control of corporation and distribution of stock)].

The purpose of reformation is to effectuate the common intention of the parties, when that intention was incorrectly reduced to writing [Bailard v. Marden (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 703, 708, 227 P.2d 10] . The "intention of the parties" under Civ. Code § 3399 refers to a single intention that is entertained by both of the parties [Bailard v. Marden (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 703, 708, 227 P.2d 10 (judgment reforming deed to include residential use restriction reversed because buyer, though intending to use property for residential purposes only, never expressly agreed to that limitation)].

Although reformation is sometimes referred to as a "cause of action," it is actually a remedy, usually sought in conjunction with other remedies appropriate for that particular cause of action [Landis v. Superior Court (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 548, 555, 42 Cal. Rptr. 893 ; see § 488.19].

[1] In General

Reformation requires that the parties to the transaction share a complete and mutual understanding on all essential terms. In the absence of a common understanding among the parties, the written instrument would have no standard to which it could be reformed [Bailard v. Marden (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 703, 708, 227 P.2d 10] .

Conversely, a written instrument that already accurately reflects the common understanding of the parties is not subject to reformation. Even if the understanding of the parties is based on a mistaken assumption of fact, a court cannot, through reformation of the written instrument, improve the parties' understanding. To do so would be to create a new contract, based on terms to which the parties never agreed [Lemoge Electric v. County of San Mateo (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 659, 663-664, 297 P.2d 638 (contract arising out of contractor's bid not subject to reformation even though bid contained a clerical error, because party accepting bid never agreed to pay more than that sum designated in bid); Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1178, 232 Cal. Rptr. 603 (trust not subject to reformation when it accurately reflected trustor's intent, even though that intent was based on mistaken assumption that one beneficiary would receive a separate inheritance)]. In sum, the remedy of reformation arises on failure to reduce accurately to writing a definite understanding of the parties [Bailard v. Marden (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 703, 708, 227 P.2d 10] .

Although a written instrument that accurately reflects a common intent based on a mistake of fact cannot be reformed, the mistake may be ground for rescission [White v. Berrenda Mesa Water Dist. (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 894, 900-908, 87 Cal. Rptr. 338 (contractor entitled to rescind construction contract for a mistake in calculating the bid)]. For further discussion and forms relating to rescission, see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

Reformation may also be raised as a defense to enforcement of a contract [Appalachian Ins. Co. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1, 18 n.8, 262 Cal. Rptr. 716 (considering reformation claim apparently first raised by plaintiff in products liability action in response to defendants' motion for summary judgment seeking to enforce disclaimer and hold harmless clauses in written contract); see also California Packing Corp. v. Larsen (1921) 187 Cal. 610, 612, 203 P. 102] .

[2] Rights of Bona Fide Purchaser Protected

Reformation is permitted only to the extent that it can be done without prejudice to the "rights acquired by third persons in good faith and for value" [Civ. Code § 3399]. These rights have been defined as those acquired, after execution of the written instrument, by a bona fide purchaser for value, from a party to the instrument [Baines v. Zuieback (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 483, 491, 191 P.2d 67] .

Rights acquired bona fide or in good faith are those acquired without notice of the defect in the instrument sought to be reformed [Arp v. Ferguson (1917) 175 Cal. 646, 648, 166 P. 803] . Thus, "third persons" protected under Civ. Code § 3399 do not include those who acquire their rights with either actual or constructive notice of the rights of other persons whose interests are defectively described in the instrument [Shupe v. Nelson (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 693, 698, 62 Cal. Rptr. 352] .

Third parties include corporate entities. The surviving entity of a corporate merger, however, cannot claim third-party status in an action for reformation of a written instrument to which it has succeeded [Treadaway v. Camellia Convalescent Hospitals, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 189, 199, 118 Cal. Rptr. 341] . This is because, in the context of a corporate merger, the surviving corporation is charged with constructive notice of the claims of the extinct corporation's creditors, and is therefore not a "good faith" purchaser within the meaning of Civ. Code § 3399 [Treadaway v. Camellia Convalescent Hospitals, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 189, 199, 118 Cal. Rptr. 341 ; see also Corp. Code § 1107 (pertaining to the rights and liabilities of a surviving corporation in a merger or consolidation)]. Additionally, in a merger, the acquisition is not "for value" if the only consideration given to the shareholders of the extinct corporation is shares of stock in the surviving corporate entity and its parent company [Treadaway v. Camellia Convalescent Hospitals, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 189, 200, 118 Cal. Rptr. 341] .

For an affirmative defense based on the intervening rights of bona fide purchasers, see § 488.67.

[3] Agreement Must Be Valid

A void agreement has no standing in the law and cannot be reformed [see, e.g., Ainsworth v. Morrill (1916) 31 Cal. App. 509, 511, 160 P. 1089 (reformation denied when agreement sought to be reformed violated statute)]. In other words, a court will not make a new contract from a void one, at least when it appears that the parties never intended to make a legal and valid agreement. Reformation is available, however, to reform an otherwise valid instrument by removing an illegal term that was never intended by the parties but was erroneously included [see First American Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Cook (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 592, 597-598 (note reformed to delete unintended and inadvertently included usurious provision)]. For discussion of reformation of an agreement that is void for an erroneous noncompliance with the statute of frauds, see § 488.13[5].

[4] Standing to Seek Reformation

A written instrument may be revised on application of a party aggrieved [Civ. Code § 3399]. A "party aggrieved" includes not only those who are the original parties to the transaction that is memorialized by the instrument, but also any third party who has suffered prejudice or pecuniary loss [Orcutt v. Ferranini (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 216, 224, 46 Cal. Rptr. 715 (third-party beneficiary deemed aggrieved party entitled to seek reformation of insurance contract)].

If reformation is sought by a party to the written instrument for a mistake that is material to the parties' agreement, that party is entitled to reformation despite the absence of actual injury [Siem v. Cooper (1926) 79 Cal. App. 748, 755, 250 P. 1106] .

[5] Effect of Statute of Frauds

Under Civ Code § 1624(a), the general statute of frauds, certain categories of contracts are required to be in writing or evidenced by a written note or memorandum and subscribed by the party to be charged or by the party's agent in order to be valid [see also Civ. Code § 2309 (agent's authorization to enter into contract subject to "equal dignities rule"); Fam. Code § 1611 (premarital agreement)]. An agreement or contract that is valid in other respects and is otherwise enforceable, however, is not invalid for lack of a writing if it is a "qualified financial contract" and there is sufficient evidence to show that a contract has been made or the parties have agreed to be bound by the terms of the contract [see Civ. Code § 1624(b); see also Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds]. The statute of frauds is designed to prevent the commission of fraud and perjury with respect to certain agreements by ensuring that they are reliably evidenced in writing [Sherwood v. Lowell (1917) 34 Cal. App. 365, 375, 167 P. 554 ; see also Lockwood v. Smigel (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 800, 803, 96 Cal. Rptr. 289 ; for discussion and forms relating to the statute of frauds generally, see Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds].

Whether a contract that is void under the statute of frauds may be reformed depends on the manner in which it fails to satisfy the statute. If, for example, an essential term has been omitted because the parties never in fact came to any agreement on that term, the intended contract is void and cannot be reformed. On the other hand, a court will reform a contract that is void only because of a technical failure to satisfy the requirements of the statute due to a mistake in the preparation of the instrument. In the latter situation, the true agreement of the parties is validexcept for the error in writing [see Oatman v. Niemeyer (1929) 207 Cal. 424, 426-427, 278 P. 1043 (deed reformed to supply omitted property description); Merkle v. Merkle (1927) 85 Cal. App. 87, 111, 258 P. 969] . For discussion of reformation of void agreements generally,§ 488.13[3].

The statute of frauds does not bar an action seeking reformation brought on the ground of fraud. Barring relief on this ground would only undermine a primary object of the statute, that is, the prevention of fraud [see Merkle v. Merkle (1927) 85 Cal. App. 87, 110-111, 258 P. 969] .

[6] Effect of Parol Evidence Rule

The parol evidence rule prohibits the introduction of extrinsic evidence, oral or written, to contradict the terms of a writing intended by the parties as a final expression of their agreement [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1856]. Reformation actions, however, fall within a major exception to the application of this rule. Extrinsic evidence is admissible to show that the writing does not express the true intention of the parties in an action to reform a written instrument on the ground of mistake or fraud [Berendsen v. McIver (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 347, 356, 272 P.2d 76] .

A court will not admit extrinsic evidence to reform the written instrument in the absence of clear and convincing proof that the language sought to be reformed resulted from fraud, mutual mistake, or a unilateral mistake when the other party knew of the mistake or suspected it [Moore v. Vandermast, Inc. (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 94, 96-97, 119 P.2d 129] .

[7] Particular Instruments Subject to Reformation

[a] In General

Although Civ. Code § 3401, pertaining to the scope of judicial inquiry in an action for reformation, refers to the reformation of a "written instrument," the remaining code provisions relating to the law of reformation (Civ. Code §§ 3399, 3400, and 3402) appear solely to address reformation of a "contract." Despite the limiting language employed in the code sections, courts have uniformly granted reformation of written instruments, other than contracts, which are designed to create legal rights and obligations in the parties. An exception to this broad judicial outlook concerns wills, which are not reformable [Estate of Callaghan (1898) 119 Cal. 571, 575, 51 P. 860 ; Kobus v. San Diego Trust & Savings Bank (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 574, 580, 342 P.2d 468 (invalid will, claimed to have been executed to carry out oral agreement to leave property to plaintiff in return for services rendered but containing no reference to agreement, as not reformable under reformation statutes)].

[b] Contracts

Contracts generally are subject to the remedy of reformation [Lemoge Electric v. County of San Mateo (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 659, 663, 297 P.2d 638 (contract arising out of electrical contractor's bid); Meyerstein v. Burke (1924) 193 Cal. 105, 108-109, 222 P. 810 (executory contract for purchase and sale of house and lot); McClure v. Cerati (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 74, 82-83, 194 P.2d 46 (written employment contract)]. An executed contract, however, may not be reformed if the aggrieved party, with knowledge of the facts, accepts performance in accordance with the terms of the contract as written [Vantress Farms, Inc. v. Sydenstricker (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 943, 950, 90 Cal. Rptr. 251 (reformation of land sale contract by grantee to include specific assignment of oil and gas rights disallowed because grantee accepted delivery of deed and payment of purchase price with knowledge that grantor was relying on contract as written); see also discussion in § 488.15[5]].

Contracts subject to reformation include contracts for insurance coverage, which generally may be reformed to show, among other things: (1) the premises to be covered [Maier Brewing Co. v. Pacific Nat. Fire Ins. Co. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 869, 874, 33 Cal. Rptr. 67] ; (2) the persons to be covered [Eagle Indem. Co. v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 222, 224-225, 206 P.2d 877] ; (3) the name and capacity of the insured [Bankers Indem. Ins. Co. v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 89, 93-94, 47 P.2d 719] ; (4) the nature of the coverage [Cantlay v. Olds & Stoller Inter-Exch. (1932) 119 Cal. App. 605, 614, 7 P.2d 395] ; and (5) the amount payable under the policy [Modica v. Hartford Acc. & Indem. Co. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 588, 595-596, 46 Cal. Rptr. 158] .

An insurance policy may be reformed, in accordance with the parties' common intention, to limit or exclude coverage even if the rights of third-party claimants under the policy are adversely affected [Truck Ins. Exch. v. Wilshire Ins. Co. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 553, 559, 87 Cal. Rptr. 604 (car dealer permitted to reform insurance policy to limit coverage as to permissive users of loaner cars after occurrence of accident in which innocent third party was killed by permissive user)].

Other types of reformable contracts include (1) leases [Moore v. Vandermast, Inc. (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 94, 96-97, 119 P.2d 129 ; Treadaway v. Camellia Convalescent Hospitals, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 189, 196-197, 118 Cal. Rptr. 341] , (2) property settlement agreements [Stare v. Tate (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 432, 436-437, 98 Cal. Rptr. 264] , and (3) promissory notes [First American Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Cook (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 592, 597-598, 90 Cal. Rptr. 645 (action to delete inadvertently included usurious interest provision from promissory note)].

[c] Other Instruments

In addition to contracts, courts have permitted reformation of the following types of written instruments:

- Deeds [Bailard v. Marden (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 703, 708-709, 227 P.2d 10 ; MacFarlane v. Peters (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 627, 631, 163 Cal. Rptr. 655] .

- Trusts [Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1172-1175, 232 Cal. Rptr. 603] ; and substitutions of trustees [Jones v. First American Title Insurance Company (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 381, 390, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 859 (trial court abused its discretion by denying reformation of defective substitution of trustee)].

- Trust deeds and mortgages [San Jose Ranch Co. v. San Jose L. & W. Co. (1901) 132 Cal. 582, 583-584, 64 P. 1097 (reformation of mortgage); San Fernando Valley C. of C. v. Thomas (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 348, 350-351, 266 P.2d 891 (reformation of trust deed)].

Some courts have also stated that the remedy of reformation is available to correct mistakes in judgments [Voge, Inc. v. Rose (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 534, 538, 23 Cal. Rptr. 87 ; Douglass v. Dahm (1950) 101 Cal. App. 2d 125, 128, 224 P.2d 914] . More commonly, however, a party seeking correction of a clerical error after entry of final judgment may simply invoke the inherent power of the court to correct its own mistakes [Zisk v. Roseville (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 41, 47, 127 Cal. Rptr. 896] . For further discussion and forms relating to the correction or modification of judgments under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 or under a court's inherent powers, see Ch. 318, Judgments . For discussion and forms relating to a separate action in equity to set aside or modify a judgment that has been obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders .

Chapter 488 REFORMATION OF INSTRUMENTS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-488 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 488.14

§ 488.14 Establishing Entitlement to Reformation

[1] In General

To obtain reformation of a written instrument, a party must generally allege and show the following:

- The true intention of the parties [see Civ. Code § 3399; American Home Ins. Co. v. Travelers Indemnity Co. (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 951, 961, 175 Cal. Rptr. 826] . The party seeking relief must show the instrument as it was truly intended to be [Auerbach v. Healy (1916) 174 Cal. 60, 62, 161 P. 1157 ; Totten v. Underwriters At Lloyd's London (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 440, 448, 1 Cal. Rptr. 520 ; see Appalachian Ins. Co. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1, 20-21, 262 Cal. Rptr. 716 (fact that parties intended to comply with interparty waivers that would be required in related services agreement with others not sufficient to establish intent to limit scope of waiver in their contract to that in related agreement)]. The parties' agreement must be shown to have been valid prior to its erroneous reduction to writing [see Paterson v. Board of Trustees (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 811, 815, 321 P.2d 825 ; see also discussion in § 488.13[3]].

- The agreement as it was, in fact, written [see Civ. Code § 3399; Holmes v. Anderson (1928) 90 Cal. App. 276, 282, 265 P. 1010 (agreement as executed incorporated into complaint); Johnson v. Sun Realty Co. (1934) 138 Cal. App. 296, 299-301, 32 P.2d 393 (agreement as executed set forth according to its legal effect)].

- That the failure of the writing to reflect the true agreement resulted from (1) mutual mistake of fact, (2) unilateral mistake of fact when the other party knew of the mistake or suspected it at the time, or (3) fraud [Civ. Code § 3399]. Unconscionable conduct may also be proper cause for which a court may grant reformation, although it is not so enumerated under Civ. Code § 3399 [see MacFarlane v. Peters (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 627, 631, 163 Cal. Rptr. 655] . For further discussion,§ 488.14[3].

The party seeking reformation must also show his or her standing as an aggrieved party [see Civ. Code § 3399; American Home Ins. Co. v. Travelers Indemnity Co. (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 951, 961, 175 Cal. Rptr. 826] . For further discussion, see § 488.13[4].

If there has been considerable delay between the occurrence of the fraud or mistake justifying reformation and the filing of the action, defenses based on lapse of time may be raised. The party seeking reformation may anticipate these defenses by alleging recent discovery of the underlying fraud or mistake and diligence sufficient to excuse the long delay [see Miller v. Lantz (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 544, 548, 71 P.2d 585 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d); Wilson v. Wilson (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 542, 545, 18 Cal. Rptr. 768] . For further discussion, see § 488.15[2], [3], below.

For a complaint for reformation of a written instrument based on unilateral mistake of fact, see § 488.60. For allegations of additional grounds for reformation, see §§ 488.61 -488.63.

[2] Burden of Proof

To reform a written instrument, the party seeking relief must establish by clear and convincing evidence the true intent of the parties and the fact that the defect in the writing resulted from fraud or mistake [see Shupe v. Nelson (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 693, 700, 62 Cal. Rptr. 352 ; Perry v. Bedford (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 6, 11, 47 Cal. Rptr. 461] . For further discussion, see § 488.13[6].

[3] Underlying Cause of Defect

[a] Mutual Mistake of Fact

When the failure of the written instrument to express the true intention of the parties is due to the inadvertence of both of them, the mistake is mutual and the instrument may be reformed on application of the party aggrieved [Shupe v. Nelson (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 693, 700, 62 Cal. Rptr. 352] . It makes no difference who wrote the instrument to be reformed so long as both parties were in common mistake concerning the instrument's contents [Renshaw v. Happy Valley Water Co. (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 521, 524-525, 250 P.2d 612] . For discussion and forms relating to mutual mistake of fact as a defense to a contract action, see Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake .

Reformation on the ground of mutual mistake presupposes (1) actual agreement among the parties concerning their true intention, and (2) a mutual but mistaken belief that the written instrument reflects that intention [Treadaway v. Camellia Convalescent Hospitals, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 189, 197, 118 Cal. Rptr. 341] .

Commonly, the mistake of a third person, acting on behalf of the parties, accounts for the failure of a written instrument to express the true intent of the parties. Courts uniformly hold that a mistake attributable to a third person in reducing the commmon intent of the parties to writing is a ground for reformation [Breen v. Donnelly (1887) 74 Cal. 301, 304, 15 P. 845 (mistake of surveyor in running a boundary line); First American Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Cook (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 592, 598, 90 Cal. Rptr. 645 (mistake of scrivener); Mills v. Schulba (1950) 95 Cal. App. 2d 559, 561-562, 213 P.2d 408 (mistake of attorney jointly employed to effect transfer of title)].

For a form for an allegation of mutual mistake of fact as a basis for reformation, see § 488.63.

[b] Unilateral Mistake of Fact

Reformation is available when, through the unilateral mistake of one party, known to or suspected by the other party, the written instrument does not express accurately the true intention of the parties [City of Cypress v. New Amsterdam Cas. Co. (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 219, 225, 66 Cal. Rptr. 357] . The innocent party is led to believe, by the other party's failure to identify the mistake, that the parties share a common intent. A court of equity will not make a new contract, for example, when the parties' intent has been accurately recorded but is based on a mutual misunderstanding [see discussion § 488.13]. In the context of a unilateral mistake, however, equity precludes the nonmistaken party from capitalizing on his or her own inequitable conduct by claiming an intent different from that which he or she has led the innocent party to believe [Stare v. Tate (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 432, 438-439, 98 Cal. Rptr. 264 (reformation of property settlement agreement on ground of unilateral mistake allowed because husband's attorney knew that wife's proposal reflected a $100,000 undervaluation of which she was unaware at time of execution)].

Because the nonmistaken party is barred from asserting a different intent, the instrument that was intended by the party acting under the unilateral mistake becomes, as a matter of law, the binding agreement of the parties. Accordingly, in an action for reformation on the ground of unilateral mistake, the court reframes the written instrument to reflect the innocent party's view [Eagle Indem. Co. v. Industrial Acc. Com. (1949) 206 P.2d 877] . This position is supported by the presumption that all parties to a transaction intend an equitable and conscientious agreement [Civ. Code § 3400; see discussion in § 488.17].

A unilateral mistake is ground for reformation only when the other party knows of or suspects the mistake [Civ. Code § 3399]. Constructive notice of a unilateral mistake is not equivalent to knowledge or suspicion. In the context of a unilateral mistake, the non-mistaken party's inequitable conduct invokes an estoppel to bar that party's assertion of a contrary intent. In the absence of actual knowledge or suspicion, there is no blameworthy conduct on which to base an estoppel. Constructive notice of a unilateral mistake, therefore, is insufficient ground for reformation [La Mancha Dev. Corp. v. Sheegog (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 9, 16-17, 144 Cal. Rptr. 59 (reformation of deed to insert land use restriction on ground of unilateral mistake improper because defendant grantees had no actual knowledge or suspicion of the mistake, only constructive notice, at best)].

Notwithstanding the general rule that constructive notice of a unilateral mistake is insufficient to justify reformation, a court may permit reformation when a duly authorized agent of the non-mistaken party knows of or suspects the mistake. The knowledge or suspicion of a duly authorized agent is imputed to the party against whom reformation is sought [Eagle Indem. Co. v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 222, 225-226, 206 P.2d 877 (knowledge of insurance agent concerning insured's mistake concerning coverage of worker's compensation insurance policy imputed to insurer even though knowledge was acquired before that agent was appointed to execute policy); see Stare v. Tate (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 432, 436, 436, n. 5, 98 Cal. Rptr. 264 (in action to reform property settlement agreement, knowledge of husband's attorney concerning wife's mistaken undervaluation of certain real property imputed to husband)].

For a form for a complaint for reformation based on a unilateral mistake of fact, see § 488.60. For discussion and forms relating to unilateral mistake of fact as a defense in a contract action, see Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake .

[c] Mistake of Law

Equity will reform a written instrument that fails to express the parties' true intention on account of a mistake of law [Tyler v. Larson (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 317, 319-320, 235 P.2d 39 (reformation of voluntary conveyance to describe grantee's interest as tenancy in common, instead of joint tenancy, proper because grantor only intended to give grantee undivided half interest and mistakenly believed that joint tenancy designation effectuated transfer as intended); see Civ. Code § 1578 (mistake of law in contract cases)]. For discussion and forms relating to mistake of law as a defense to an action for breach of contract, see Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake .

Parties to a transaction may execute an instrument with the intention that it produce a certain legal effect. If, by mistake, the instrument, as written, fails to honor the parties' intention, the instrument may be reformed to accord with its intended effect [Stafford v. California C.P. Growers (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 212, 218-219, 78 P.2d 1150 (peach growers and marketing association signed contract calling for payment to growers at certain price, intending, however, that legal effect of contract would be to entitle growers to a different price contained in resolution of association that parties mistakenly believed was incorporated in contract; mistake regarding legal effect of instrument constituted mistake of law, entitling aggrieved party to reformation)].

For a form for an allegation of mutual mistake of law as a basis for reformation, see § 488.61.

[d] Fraud

Fraud, as a basis for reformation, consists of (1) a false representation by one party and (2) justifiable reliance on the false representation by the other party. Specifically, when one party justifiably relies on the other party's false representation that the written instrument either already conforms or will conform to the parties' true intent, reformation or rescission is appropriate [Security-First Nat. Bank v. Earp (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 774, 777-778, 122 P.2d 900 (upholding rescission of trust deed on showing that defendants justifiably relied on false representation that it was renewal of prior mortgage); Lane v. Davis (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 302, 307, 342 P.2d 267] . For discussion and forms relating to fraud as a defense in a contract action, see Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake . For discussion and forms relating to a cause of action in tort for fraud, see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit .

If the aggrieved party is justified in relying on the fraudulent misrepresentations of the other party, negligence in failing to read the instrument is no bar to reformation [Security-First Nat. Bank v. Earp (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 774, 777, 122 P.2d 900 ; see also discussion in § 488.41[2][d]].

The misrepresentation must be fraudulent and not merely an inaccurate statement of opinion [Kneer v. Baruch Corp. (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 601, 603-604, 118 P.2d 488 (subcontracter who executed building contract in reliance on general contractor's erroneous estimate held not entitled to reformation on ground of fraud)].

Fraud as a basis for reformation is limited to misrepresentations regarding the contents of the writing; the instrument is revised to conform with the intent of the defrauded party or parties. Fraudulent inducement to enter into a written agreement is not a proper basis for reformation, because in this situation the writing, though fraudulently induced, does in fact reflect the intent of the parties [Lane v. Davis (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 302, 307-308, 342 P.2d 267 ; see also discussion in § 488.13].

For a form of allegation of fraud as a basis for reformation, see § 488.62.

[e] Unconscionable Conduct

Civ. Code § 3399 provides that reformation is available to correct a defect based on fraud, mutual mistake, or the mistake of one party that is known or suspected by the other. Nevertheless, one appellate court has stated that reformation is also available to correct a defect in a deed resulting from the unconscionable conduct of one party that is neither fraudulent nor illegal [MacFarlane v. Peters (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 627, 631, 163 Cal. Rptr. 655] . In that case, a quiet title action involving multiple interests in the same parcel of land, plaintiff had obtained his interest at an improvement bond assessment delinquency sale, at which time the majority property owner had been legally incompetent. The deed conveyed to plaintiff a divided interest in the form of narrow strips running completely around and through the parcel, and plaintiff admitted that his design in the execution of this deed had been to deny the majority owner access to the property. The court of appeal affirmed reformation of the deed to grant plaintiff an undivided interest in the same amount, stating that such unconscionable advantage over a legally incompetent landowner falls within the area to which a court may address its equitable powers [MacFarlane v. Peters (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 627, 631-633, 163 Cal. Rptr. 655] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-488 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 488.15

§ 488.15 Defenses to Reformation Action

[1] In General

The party against whom reformation is sought may, in addition to raising affirmative defenses, simply rebut one or more of the essential elements that must be proven. For example, the defending party may show that the writing does reflect the true intent of the parties [see Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1178, 232 Cal. Rptr. 603 (trust reflected trustors' intent, even though intent was based on mistaken understanding); see discussion § 488.13], or that she or he did not know of or suspect the other party's mistake [see La Mancha Dev. Corp. v. Sheegog (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 9, 16-17, 144 Cal. Rptr. 59 (constructive knowledge is not equivalent to knowledge or suspicion and therefore does not support reformation on ground of unilateral mistake); see discussion § 488.41[1][b][iv]]. Similarly, a defense to reformation may be based on prejudice to the legitimate rights of a bona fide third-party purchaser for value [see Baines v. Zuieback (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 483, 491, 191 P.2d 67 ; see also discussion in § 488.13[2]], or the invalidity of the parties' agreement [Ainsworth v. Morrill (1916) 31 Cal. App. 509, 511, 160 P. 1089 ; see discussion in § 488.13[3]].

For further discussion relating to each essential element, see § 488.14. For general forms denying allegations of a complaint, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[2] Lapse of Statutory Limitation Period

An action for relief on the ground of fraud or mistake is generally required to be brought within three years of the time the cause of action arises [see Code Civ. Proc. 338(d)].

A cause of action for reformation based on fraud or mistake is not deemed to accrue until the discovery, by the aggrieved party, of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake [see Code Civ. Proc. 338(d); Welsher v. Glickman (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 134, 140, 77 Cal. Rptr. 141] .

When there has been considerable delay between the occurrence of fraud or mistake and its discovery by the aggrieved party, the court uses a reasonable diligence standard to determine the point at which the aggrieved party should be charged with constructive notice of the facts [Laing v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 811, 820, 53

Cal. Rptr. 681 ; Western Title Guar. Co. v. Sacramento & San Joaquin Drainage Dist. (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 815, 825, 45 Cal. Rptr. 578] .

In an action to reform a deed, the inclusion of a cause of action to quiet title does not necessarily extend the limitations period. If, in order to quiet title, a deed must first be reformed, the three-year limitation period for actions based on fraud or mistake applies [Welsher v. Glickman (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 134, 139-140, 77 Cal. Rptr. 141 (limitations period governing actions quieting title not applicable to action seeking reformation of deed and quiet title because court could not quiet title before first striking reservations of easement and surface entry; three-year period applicable); see Ch. 482, Quieting Title].

For a form for an affirmative defense based on lapse of statutory limitation period, see § 488.66. For discussion and forms relating to limitation periods generally, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions . For discussion of the equitable defense of laches, see § 488.15[6].

[3] Res Judicata

An action for reformation may be barred by the doctrine of res judicata. For example, a court's prior approval of a trustee's accounting is a bar to a subsequent action for reformation seeking to alter the income distribution provisions of the trust [Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1174-1175, 232 Cal. Rptr. 603] . Res judicata, however, will not bar reformation of a judgment itself [see Douglass v. Dahm (1950) 101 Cal. App. 2d 125, 128, 224 P.2d 914] .

[4] Unclean Hands

Reformation, an equitable remedy, is subject to the equitable defense of unclean hands. Under this maxim of equitable jurisprudence, a party who has acted wrongfully, dishonestly, or unfairly in bringing an action to court is precluded from obtaining equitable relief [Seymour v. Cariker (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 300, 305, 33 Cal. Rptr. 727] .

The party asserting the defense of unclean hands must plead it or otherwise call it to the attention of the trial court. Only in cases involving "flagrantly unconscionable" conduct will the court, on its own initiative, apply the doctrine of unclean hands even though it was not raised initially by the parties [Behm v. Fireside Thrift Co. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 15, 21, 76 Cal. Rptr. 849] .

[5] Waiver and Ratification

Reformation is subject to the equitable defenses of waiver and ratification. These defenses must be pleaded affirmatively in order to be considered by the court [San Fernando Valley C. of C. v. Thomas (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 348, 350-351, 266 P.2d 891] . For a form for an affirmative defense based on waiver, see § 488.64.

[6] Laches

Reformation is subject to the equitable defense of laches [Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1170-171, 232 Cal. Rptr. 603 (39-year delay between time trust beneficiary could be charged with knowledge of facts on which reformation action was based and time action was brought and prejudice resulting from death of important witnesses as constituting laches)]. The essential elements of laches are the following [Stafford v. Ballinger (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 289, 296, 18 Cal. Rptr. 568] :

- An omission to assert a right.
- A delay in the assertion of the right for some appreciable period.
- Circumstances that would cause prejudice to an adverse party if assertion of the right is permitted.

Courts decide what period of time constitutes a bar to reformation on the ground of laches on a case-by-case basis [Voge, Inc. v. Rose (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 534, 542, 23 Cal. Rptr. 87] .

Laches is an affirmative defense. The party asserting the defense of laches must show both delay and prejudice proximately caused thereby [Laing v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 811, 821, 53 Cal. Rptr. 681] . Unless laches is disclosed on the face of the complaint, the party asserting laches bears the burden of pleading and proving it [Utica Mut. Ins. Co. v. Monarch Ins. Co. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 538, 543, 58 Cal. Rptr. 639 (laches no defense when complaint bore no evidence of prejudice and delay was less than the analogous statutory limitation period)]. If laches does appear on the face of the complaint, it is susceptible to a general demurrer [Kleinclaus v. Dutard (1905) 147 Cal. 245, 250, 81 P. 516] .

For a form for an affirmative defense based on laches, see § 488.65. For discussion of related defense of lapse of statutory limitation period, see § 488.15[2].

[7] Negligence

As a general equitable rule, inexcusable negligence in failing to discover the mistake for which a remedy is sought bars the granting of equitable relief [Voge, Inc. v. Rose (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 534, 539, 23 Cal. Rptr. 87] . Negligence is not, however, a blanket bar to reformation. Instead, the court analyzes the circumstances of the individual case and determines the extent to which the aggrieved party has been negligent. Courts will excuse that negligence of which a person of ordinary prudence might have been guilty [Voge, Inc. v. Rose (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 534, 539, 23 Cal. Rptr. 87] . Conversely, negligence that is so gross as to constitute a neglect of legal duty will bar the granting of relief [Los Angeles & Redondo R.R. Co. v. New Liverpool Salt Co. (1906) 150 Cal. 21, 28, 87 P. 1029 ; see also Civ. Code § 1577(regarding neglect of legal duty in context of a mistake of fact)].

Negligence in failing to read a written instrument sought to be reformed is not necessarily a bar to relief [see Baines v. Zuieback (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 483, 491, 191 P.2d 67 (negligence in failing to read instrument before signing it as not bar to reformation)]. Whether a court will grant reformation turns on the underlying cause of the party's failure to read the instrument. Reformation will be denied when the party seeking reformation fails to read the contents of the writing and this failure is due solely to the party's own carelessness or negligence [Miller v. Lantz (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 544, 548, 71 P.2d 585] . On the other hand, failure to read the instrument will not bar an action for reformation when the failure is attributable to fraud and false representations by the other party concerning the contents of the writing [California Trust Co. v. Cohn (1932) 214 Cal. 619, 627, 7 P.2d 297] . Also, if the other party knows of or suspects the mistake of the aggrieved party, negligence in failing to read the written instrument is no defense [Ramseier v. Oakley Sanitary Dist. (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 722, 726-727, 17 Cal. Rptr. 464 (failure to read final version of contract held not to bar reformation when plaintiff knew of or suspected defendant's mistake in omitting a term of their agreement)].

Conversely, a party who has read the instrument but fails to detect an error in its contents is nevertheless entitled to bring an action for reformation [Mills v. Schulba (1950) 95 Cal. App. 2d 559, 565, 213 P.2d 408 (reformation of deed not barred by failure of ordinary businessperson to detect a defect in the property description)].

§ 488.16 Right to Jury Trial

An action seeking the reformation of a written instrument is a proceeding in equity [Martinez v. Martinez (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 425, 428], and therefore there is generally no right to a jury trial [Loftus v. Fischer (1896) 113 Cal. 286, 288, 45 P. 328] . When legal and equitable issues are joined in the same action, however, as when a party seeks reformation of contract and damages for breach of the contract as reformed, the parties may demand a jury trial on the legal issues [Abbott v. City of Los Angeles (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 438, 462, 326 P.2d 484 ; Robinson v. Puls (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 664, 665-666, 171 P.2d 430] .

§ 488.18 Scope of Court's Inquiry Into True Intent

In reforming a written instrument, the court must ascertain the true intent of the parties [First American Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Cook (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 592, 598, 90 Cal. Rptr. 645] . To this end, the court may inquire into (1) the intended meaning of the instrument, (2) the intended legal consequences of the instrument, as well as (3) the intended language of the instrument [Civ. Code § 3401].

§ 488.19 Specific Performance of Reformed Instrument and Other Additional Relief

Although sometimes referred to as a "cause of action," reformation is merely one of several remedies for a single wrong. When the cause of action is based on failure to perform the intended agreement, the plaintiff may seek reformation and other forms of relief [Landis v. Superior Court (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 548, 555, 42 Cal. Rptr. 893] . For example, Civ. Code § 3402 expressly provides for specific enforcement of a written instrument once it has been reformed. Reformation and specific enforcement can be sought in the same action [Tomas v. Vaughn (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 188, 192, 146 P.2d 499] . For discussion and forms relating to specific enforcement generally, see Ch. 528, Specific Performance .

A general equitable principle dictates that a court of equity administer a full measure of relief, so as to avoid circuity of action and to promote the ends of justice [Voge, Inc. v. Rose (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 534, 538, 23 Cal. Rptr. 87] . Accordingly, a court, having first obtained equitable jurisdiction over the subject matter, may award any additional relief incidental to the equitable relief being sought [Tomas v. Vaughn (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 188, 192, 146 P.2d 499] . For example, a court of equity may award damages if they are purely incidental to the relief of reformation. The award of monetary relief does not change the equitable nature of the action into an action at law. It merely enables a court of equity to settle all disputesbetween the parties in one action [Tomas v. Vaughn (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 188, 192, 146 P.2d 499] .

For discussion and forms relating to contract remedies generally, including reformation, see Ch. 140, Contracts . For discussion and forms relating to the cancellation of written instruments as an alternative remedy to reformation, see Ch. 107, Cancellation of Instruments . For discussion and forms relating to the alternative remedies of rescission and restitution, see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

43-488 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 488.41

§ 488.41 Decisions

[1] Action for Reformation

[a] Establishing Elements of Action

Reformation of insurance policy to cover additional party requires objective manifestation of mutual intent to so cover. American Home Ins. Co. v. Travelers Indemnity Co. (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 951, 965, 175 Cal. Rptr. 826

Court correctly admitted evidence of parties' lack of intent to violate usury law in action to reform note by deleting usurious provision. First American Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Cook (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 592, 597-598, 90 Cal. Rptr. 645

Clear and convincing proof is proper evidentiary standard in action seeking reformation. Baines v. Zuieback (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 483, 488, 191 P.2d 67

[b] Grounds for Relief

[i] Fraud

Reformation on ground of fraud is proper to remedy fraud in execution. Lane v. Davis (1959) 172 Cal. App. 2d 302, 307-308, 342 P.2d 267

[ii] Mistake of Law

Reformation on ground of mistake of law is proper to delete joint tenancy designation from voluntary conveyance because grantor mistakenly believed it meant she would retain undivided one half interest. Tyler v. Larson (1951) 106

Cal. App. 2d 317, 319-320, 235 P.2d 39

[iii] Mutual Mistake of Fact

Reformation on ground of mutual mistake presupposes actual agreement among parties as to their true intention, and the parties' mutual yet mistaken belief that written instrument reflects that intention. Treadaway v. Camellia Convalescent Hospitals, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 189, 197, 118 Cal. Rptr. 341

Mistake by insurer and insured employer in writing group disability policy that is not known to or suspected by employee covered under policy is not ground for reformation. Insurance Co. of North America v. Bechtel (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 310, 316-318, 111 Cal. Rptr. 507

Mistake of scrivener in reducing the commmon intent of the parties to writing is ground for reformation. First American Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Cook (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 592, 598, 90 Cal. Rptr. 645

Mutual mistake is failure of written instrument to express true intent of parties due to inadvertence of both of them. Shupe v. Nelson (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 693, 700, 62 Cal. Rptr. 352

[iv] Unilateral Mistake of Fact

No mistake of fact or failure of consideration, only error in judgment, was established when contract became unprofitable for party who knew that its value could be affected by particular future event and made no provision in contract with respect to that risk; risk is borne by that party, who is not entitled to avoid, rescind, or reform contract. Mosher v. Mayacamas Corp. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1, 5-6, 263 Cal. Rptr. 373

Constructive notice of unilateral mistake is insufficient ground for reformation. La Mancha Dev. Corp. v. Sheegog (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 9, 16-17, 144 Cal. Rptr. 59

Operation of estoppel in context of unilateral mistake prevents non-mistaken party from claiming different intent. Stare v. Tate (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 432, 438-439, 98 Cal. Rptr. 264

Agreement was intended by party acting under unilateral mistake as contract of parties. Eagle Indem. Co. v. Industrial Acc. Com. (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 222, 229, 206 P.2d 877

Knowledge or suspicion of duly authorized agent is sufficient to support reformation on ground of unilateral mistake. Eagle Indem. Co. v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 222, 225-226, 206 P.2d 877

[c] Valid Instrument Required

Valid agreement between the parties is prerequisite to granting of reformation. Paterson v. Board of Trustees (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 811, 815, 321 P.2d 825

Written contract for employment alleged by employee to be "illegal, void, false and erroneous" was void agreement not subject to reformation. McClure v. Cerati (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 74, 85, 194 P.2d 46

Agreement void for illegality is not subject to reformation. Ainsworth v. Morrill (1916) 31 Cal. App. 509, 511, 160 P. 1089

[2] Defenses

[a] Equitable Estoppel

Equitable estoppel is not to be applied against one who is blameless; trust beneficiaries as not in privity with alleged promisor for purpose of avoiding general rule of inapplicability. Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1185, 232 Cal. Rptr. 603

[b] Illegality or Statutory Noncompliance

Attempted reformation of insurance policy to reflect mutual intent of parties was void when policy as reformed would not comply with statute relating to retained limit of self insurance. Alderson v. Insurance Co. of North America (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 397, 411-413, 273 Cal. Rptr. 7

[c] Lapse of Statutory Limitation Period and Laches

Representation is estoppel effecting bar to laches only when made by party against whom reformation is sought. Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1171-1172, 232 Cal. Rptr. 603 (upholding trial court's refusal to reform trust)

Limitation period for reformation based on fraud and mistake is three years from date fraud or mistake was or should have been discovered. Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1168, 232 Cal. Rptr. 603

Thirty-nine-year delay between time trust beneficiary could be charged with knowledge of facts on which reformation action was based and time action was brought, and prejudice resulting from death of important witnesses, was laches. Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1170-1171, 232 Cal. Rptr. 603

Three-year statute of limitations (former Code Civ. Proc. 338(4) (now Code Civ. Proc. 338(d)) is applicable to action for reformation of deed or contract on ground of fraud or mistake. Welsher v. Glickman (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 134, 140, 77 Cal. Rptr. 141

Action on cross complaint for reformation of automobile insurance contract is not barred by laches because not barred by applicable limitations period and, also, cross defendant failed to show how it suffered prejudice by delay. Utica Mut. Ins. Co. v. Monarch Ins. Co. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 538, 543-544, 58 Cal. Rptr. 639

Defense of laches in action to reform insurance contract requires showing of delay and prejudice proximately caused thereby. Laing v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 811, 821, 53 Cal. Rptr. 681

Laches appearing on face of complaint is susceptible to general demurrer. Kleinclaus v. Dutard (1905) 147 Cal. 245, 249-250, 81 P. 516

[d] Negligence

Negligence of attorney in evaluating worth of equity in real property is no bar to reformation of property settlement agreement. Stare v. Tate (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 432, 437, 98 Cal. Rptr. 264

Failure to read insurance policy is no absolute bar to reformation. Laing v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 811, 819, 53 Cal. Rptr. 681

Negligence in not reading instrument before signing is no bar to reformation. Baines v. Zuieback (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 483, 491, 191 P.2d 67

Failure to read instrument with sufficient attention to detect error is no bar to reformation. Strauss v. Bruce (1934) 139 Cal. App. 62, 66, 33 P.2d 71

[e] Res Judicata

Res judicata is defense to action for reformation; action seeking to reform income distribution provisions of trust is barred by prior judgments that affirmed validity of trust's terms and approved trustees' accountings. Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1172-1175, 232 Cal. Rptr. 603

[f] Unclean Hands

Doctrine of unclean hands is defense to action for reformation of subordination agreement of chattel mortgage. Behm v. Fireside Thrift Co. (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 15, 21-22, 76 Cal. Rptr. 849 .

[g] Waiver or Ratification

Defenses of waiver and ratification is required to be raised affirmatively. San Fernando Valley C. of C. v. Thomas (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 348, 350-351, 266 P.2d 891

[3] Nature and Scope of Reformation

Court is not permitted to create new contract for the parties. Lemoge Electric v. County of San Mateo (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 659, 663-664, 297 P.2d 638

Purpose of reformation is to correct written instrument in order to effectuate common intention of parties which was incorrectly reduced to writing. Bailard v. Marden (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 703, 708, 227 P.2d 10

Intention of parties is defined as single intention entertained by both parties. Bailard v. Marden (1951) 36 Cal. 2d

703, 708, 227 P.2d 10

Action seeking reformation is equitable proceeding with no right to trial by jury. Loftus v. Fischer (1896) 113 Cal. 286, 288, 45 P. 328

Sole purpose of reformation is to correct written instrument to conform to underlying agreement of parties which was incorrectly reduced to writing; when instrument reflects agreement based on mutual mistake of fact, reformation as unavailable. Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1178, 232 Cal. Rptr. 603

Purpose of reformation is to permit court to do equity. Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1180, 232 Cal. Rptr. 603

Reformation is based on some underlying agreement of parties; if alleged mistake was failure of parties to agree what to do in event of certain contingency, which did in fact occur, reformation is unavailable. Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1178-1180, 1181-1182, 232 Cal. Rptr. 603

Executed contract is not subject to reformation if aggrieved party, with knowledge of facts, accepts performance in accordance with terms of contract as written. Vantress Farms, Inc. v. Sydenstricker (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 943, 950, 90 Cal. Rptr. 251

Reformation requires prior agreement among the parties on all essential terms. Shupe v. Nelson (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 693, 699-700, 62 Cal. Rptr. 352

Reformation is merely one of several remedies for single wrong. Landis v. Superior Court (1965) 232 Cal. App. 2d 548, 555, 42 Cal. Rptr. 893

Reformation of judgments and decrees is proper given equitable nature of remedy. Voge, Inc. v. Rose (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 534, 538-539, 23 Cal. Rptr. 87

[4] Reformable Instruments

Reformation of promissory note to delete usurious provision is proper when inclusion of provision contravened parties' true intent to execute note with legal interest rate. First American Title Ins. & Trust Co. v. Cook (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 592, 598, 90 Cal. Rptr. 645 Strauss v. Bruce (1934) 139 Cal. App. 62, 66, 33 P.2d 71

Reformation of major medical expense insurance policy to delete exclusionary provisions is proper. Laing v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 811, 817-821, 53 Cal. Rptr. 681

[5] Rights of Third Parties

Reformation is not limited to parties to original transaction but as available to one who has suffered prejudice or pecuniary loss, such as trust beneficiary; aggrieved party as not required to have paid consideration in order to obtain reformation. Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1180-1181, 232 Cal. Rptr. 603

General principles of third-party beneficiary law are applicable to insurance contracts and therefore bar incidental beneficiary from reforming policy to expand coverage. American Home Ins. Co. v. Travelers Indemnity Co. (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d 951, 967-968, 175 Cal. Rptr. 826

Surviving entity of corporate merger is not bona fide purchaser for value in action to reform lease to which it has succeeded. Treadaway v. Camellia Convalescent Hospitals, Inc. (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 189, 199-200, 118 Cal. Rptr. 341

Insurance policy is reformable to limit or exclude coverage if that was parties' intention, even when rights of third-party claimants, not parties to the insurance contract, are adversely affected. Truck Ins. Exch. v. Wilshire Ins. Co. (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 553, 559, 87 Cal. Rptr. 604

Party "aggrieved," and therefore entitled to seek reformation, is one who has suffered prejudice or pecuniary loss as well as original parties to transaction. Shupe v. Nelson (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 693, 698, 62 Cal. Rptr. 352

Landowner is not bona fide purchaser for value in action by adjoining landowner to reform misdescription in landowner's deed because had landowner made thorough examination of property before purchase, she would have noticed defect in deed. Saxon v. Du Bois (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 713, 717-718, 26 Cal. Rptr. 196

Original lessor is not bona fide purchaser for value in action between lessee and sublessee. Baines v. Zuieback (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 483, 491-492, 191 P.2d 67

§ 488.60 Reformation of Written Instrument [Civ. Code § 3399]--Complaint Based on Unilateral Mistake of Fact [Civ. Code §§ 1577, 1640]

[1] FORM Reformation of Written Instrument [Civ. Code § 3399]--Complaint Based on Unilateral Mistake of Fact [Civ. Code §§ 1577, 1640]
SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF _____

vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR REFORMATION
_____ [name(s)] [and DOES I through _____,] Defendant(s).	)	[Amount demanded _____ (exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]

Plaintiff alleges:

[1. _____ (Allege identity and capacity of plaintiff, e.g., Plaintiff _____ (name) is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a partnership with its principal place of business in _____ (city), _____ County, California, and it has filed and published the fictitious name statement required under Business and Professions Code Sections 17910 through 17917).]

[2. _____ (Allege identity, capacity, and residence of defendant(s), e.g., Defendant _____(name) is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of California with its principal place of business in _____ (city), California).]

[3. Defendants DOES I through _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that each of the fictitiously named defendants has, or claims to have, an interest in the _____ (specify written instrument, e.g., lease agreement) herein described, the exact nature of which is unknown to plaintiff.)]

[4. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that) (A)t all times herein mentioned each of the defendants was the agent and employee of each of the remaining defendants, and in doing the things hereinafteralleged, was acting within the course and scope of that agency and employment.]

5. _____ [Allege facts leading to the formation of a valid agreement, e.g., On or about _____(date), in _____ (city), _____ County, California, plaintiff _____ (name) and defendant _____(name) negotiated for and mutually agreed to the lease, by plaintiff from defendant, of commercial property located at _____ (address). The purpose of this agreement was to enable plaintiff to open and operate a second business location].

6. _____ [Allege the terms of the agreement reflecting the true intent of the parties, e.g., The oral agreement of plaintiff and defendant consisted, in pertinent part, of the following terms. Defendant agreed to lease the premises to plaintiff for a fixed term of five years, commencing on _____ (date). Plaintiff agreed to pay defendant, as the monthly rent for the premises, a sum equal to 10 percent of the gross income for that month from plaintiff's second place of business located on the leased premises].

7. _____ [Allege the terms of the agreement as they were actually reduced to writing, e.g., On _____(date), in _____ (city), _____ County, California, plaintiff and defendant executed a written lease to carry out their intended agreement, a true copy of which is attached as Exhibit "A" and is incorporated by reference].

8. The above-described written _____ [specify instrument, e.g., lease agreement], fails to reflect the true intent of the parties in that _____ [specify, e.g., it provides that the monthly rent equal 10 percent of the gross income for that month from plaintiff's principal place of business and plaintiff's second place of business]. To reflect the true intent of the parties, it should instead provide that _____ [specify, e.g., the monthly rent shall be a sum equal to 10 percent of the gross income for that month from plaintiff's second place of business only, that is, the place of business located on the premises].

9. The above-described failure of the written _____[specify written instrument, e.g., lease agreement] to reflect the true intent of the parties resulted from a unilateral mistake on the part of _____ [specify party to agreement, e.g., plaintiff], in that _____ [specify nature of mistake, e.g., plaintiff made a clerical error in drafting the rental clause of the lease agreement, but mistakenly believed, in presenting the lease agreement to defendant for execution, that the clause correctly expressed the terms for rental intended by the parties].

10. Defendant _____ [knew of or suspected] the above-described mistake at the time of execution of the written _____ [specify instrument, e.g., lease agreement], in that _____ [specify, e.g., defendant, prior to signing the agreement, specifically asked to review the rental clause of the agreement, in view of the parties' extensive negotiations with respect to the calculation of rent].

[11. Plaintiff, although not a named party to the above-described written _____ (specify instrument, e.g., lease agreement) may nonetheless suffer _____ [prejudice and/or pecuniary loss unless the _____ (specify instrument, e.g., lease agreement) is reformed, in that _____ (specify)].

12. On or about _____ (date), plaintiff discovered the error in the written _____ [specify instrument, e.g., lease agreement] when _____ [allege manner in which plaintiff discovered the mistake].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For the reformation of the written _____[specify instrument, e.g., lease agreement] to reflect the true intent of the parties, as follows: _____ [specify the revision sought];

2. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

3. For such other and further relief as the Court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a plaintiff to seek reformation of a written instrument on the ground of plaintiff's unilateral mistake of fact if the other party knew of the mistake or suspected it [see Civ. Code § 3399].

This form may be combined with other causes for relief when additional or alternative relief is requested. For further discussion, see the Introduction § 488.19.

[3] Allegations

This complaint includes initial, optional paragraphs that allege the following:

- The identity and capacity of the plaintiff (Paragraph 1).
- The identity, capacity, and residence of the defendant (Paragraph 2).
- Fictitiously named defendants (Paragraph 3).

- Agency of the defendants (Paragraph 4).

- Facts describing the formation of a valid agreement (Paragraph 5) [see Civ. Code §§ 3399 (reformation after fraud or mistake), 3400 (presumption of equitable and conscientious agreement)].

- The terms of the agreement as they were intended by the parties (Paragraph 6).

- The terms of the agreement as they were reduced to writing (Paragraph 7) [see Civ. Code §§ 3399, 3400; see also Auerbach v. Healy (1916) 174 Cal. 60, 62-63, 161 P. 1157] .

- The manner in which the written instrument should be corrected to express the true intent of the parties (Paragraph 8) [see Civ. Code §§ 3399, 3401].

- The existence of a unilateral mistake causing failure of the written instrument to embody the true intent of the parties and nature of that mistake (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code §§ 1577 (mistake of fact defined), 3399 (reformation after fraud or mistake)].

- Facts describing defendant's knowledge or suspicion of the mistake (Paragraph 10) [see Miller v. Lantz (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 544, 548, 71 P.2d 585] .

- The date and manner of plaintiff's discovery of the mistake (Paragraph 12) [see Auerbach v. Healy (1916) 174 Cal. 60, 62-63, 161 P. 1157] .

Optional Paragraph 11 alleges plaintiff's status as an aggrieved party, for use when plaintiff is not a named party and his or her status is not otherwise apparent from the preceding allegations [see Civ. Code § 3399 (standing in reformation action); see also Orcutt v. Ferranini (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 216, 224, 46 Cal. Rptr. 715] .

[4] Pleading With Particularity Required

The party seeking reformation of a written instrument should take great care in pleading the ultimate facts constituting the basis for the action. Lack of particularity in pleading could result in the sustaining of an interposed demurrer [Girard v. Miller (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 266, 273, 29 Cal. Rptr. 359] .

[5] Anticipating Defenses Based on Lapse of Time

The three-year statute of limitations under Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) does not commence to run against an action for reformation until discovery of the underlying fraud or mistake. Although the party against whom reformation is sought has the burden of raising the statute of limitations defense, the complaint, nonetheless, must allege facts showing the date and manner in which the fraud or mistake was discovered [see Wilson v. Wilson (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 542, 545, 18 Cal. Rptr. 768] .

If there has been considerable delay between the occurrence of the fraud or mistake on which the action for reformation is based and the filing of the action, defenses based on lapse of time may be raised. The party seeking reformation should anticipate the raising of these defenses by alleging recent discovery of the underlying fraud or mistake and diligence sufficient to excuse the long delay [see Miller v. Lantz (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 544, 548, 71 P.2d 585] . For further discussion, see §§ 488.15[2], [6], 488.65, 488.66.

[6] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

For alternative forms for verification, see Ch. 572, Verification .

[7] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action. Because relief under Civ. Code § 3399 is equitable, actions for reformation of an instrument will be classified as unlimited civil cases unless they fall within one of the specific categories of actions in equity that are designated as limited civil cases [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(3),(b), 88].

Actions to revise a contract are limited civil cases when the relief is sought in an action upon the contract if the action otherwise is a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(3)]. In this connection, an action normally is classified as a limited civil case if the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85(a), 86(a)(1)].

In addition, the following cases in equity are designated as limited civil cases, and an action seeking reformation of an instrument presumably would be a limited civil case if it came within one of these categories [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)]:

- Cases to try title to personal property when the amount involved is not more than $25,000.
- Cases when equity is pleaded as a defensive matter in any case that is otherwise a limited civil case.
- Cases to vacate a judgment or order of the court obtained in a limited civil case through extrinsic fraud, mistake, inadvertence, or excusable neglect.

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

[8] Venue

In an action for reformation, the proper county for the trial of the action depends on the nature of the instrument sought to be reformed. An action to reform a contract may generally be brought in the county in which any defendant resides at the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 (action against corporation or association properly brought in county of defendant's principal place of business)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a), which allows an action founded on a contractual obligation to be brought in the county where the obligation is to be performed or in the county in which the contract in fact was entered into, as well as in the county of defendant's residence, does not apply to an action for reformation of contract. An action to reform a contract is not considered to be an action on the obligation itself. It is essentially a personal action in equity [Mettler v. Hedley (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 277, 280-281, 338 P.2d 489] .

The proper venue of an action for the reformation of a deed or other instrument that would affect a right or interest in real property is the county in which all or part of the subject property is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1); see also Franklin v. Dutton (1889) 79 Cal. 605, 606, 21 P. 964 ; Massae v. Superior Court (1981) 118 Cal. App. 3d 527, 535-539, 173 Cal. Rptr. 527 (action to reform deed of trust to delete power of sale was properly brought in county in which real property was situated because action had direct impact on real property right or interest)].

§ 488.61 Reformation of Written Instrument [Civ. Code § 3399]--Allegation of Ground for Reformation--Based on Mistake of Law [Civ. Code §§ 1578, 1640]

[1] FORM Reformation of Written Instrument [Civ. Code § 3399]--Allegation of Ground for Reformation--Based on Mistake of Law [Civ. Code §§ 1578, 1640]

[EITHER, if alleging mutual mistake of law]

The above-described failure of the written _____ [specify written instrument, e.g., conveyance contract] to reflect the true intent of the parties resulted from a mutual mistake of law by plaintiff and defendant in that _____ [specify nature of mistake, e.g., both parties believed that the effect of describing their interest in the conveyance contract as a joint tenancy was to allow each party to retain an undivided one-half interest in the property].

[OR, if alleging unilateral mistake of law by one party known or suspected by other]

The above-described failure of the written _____ [specify written instrument, e.g., conveyance contract] to reflect the true intent of the parties resulted from a mistake of law on the part of _____ [specify party to agreement, e.g., plaintiff], which _____ [specify party to agreement, e.g., defendant] knew or suspected at the time of execution of the agreement in that _____ [specify nature of mistake, e.g., plaintiff believed that the effect of holding title in joint tenancy was to allow each party to retain an undivided one-half interest in the property. After completion of the transaction and execution of the contract, defendant told plaintiff that he knew that in order for each party to retain an undivided one-half interest in the property, they would have had to describe their interest as a tenancy in common and not as a joint tenancy, in the conveyance contract].

[2] Use of Form

This allegation is for use by a plaintiff to seek reformation of a written instrument on the ground of mistake of law [Civ. Code § 3399]. The first alternative paragraph alleges facts describing a mutual mistake in law [see Civ. Code § 1578(1)

(defining mutual mistake of law)], whereas the second alternative paragraph alleges facts describing a unilateral mistake in law by the plaintiff, known or suspected by the defendant [see Civ. Code § 1578(2) (defining unilateral mistake of law)]. Either allegation may be inserted in § 488.60 in place of Paragraphs 9 and 10 of that form.

§ 488.62 Reformation of Written Instrument [Civ. Code § 3399]--Allegation of Ground for Reformation--Based on Fraud [Civ. Code §§ 1571-1573, 1640]

1. The above-described failure of the written _____ [specify instrument, e.g., conditional sales contract] to reflect the true intent of the parties resulted from defendant's false representation to plaintiff that the above-mentioned written instrument embodied their real agreement.

2. Without knowledge of the true facts and in reliance on defendant's false representations, plaintiff was deceived and misled into signing a writing that differed materially from the prior oral understanding of the parties. Plaintiff's reliance on defendant's false representations that the written _____ [identify instrument, e.g., conditional sales contract] conformed to the parties' intended agreement was reasonable and justified in that _____ [specify, e.g., defendant had previously shown plaintiff a writing that contained the parties' intended agreement and plaintiff believed that it was this writing that she was asked to sign and did, in fact, sign].

[2] Use of Form

This allegation is for use by a plaintiff to seek reformation of a written instrument on the ground of fraud [see Civ. Code § 3399]. It alleges (1) the fact that the defendant's false representation resulted in the failure of the instrument to embody the intent of the parties (Paragraph 1); and (2) the fact that the instrument was materially altered due to defendant's fraud, and justifiable reliance by plaintiff (Paragraph 2) [see Civ. Code § 1572 (actual fraud defined); see also Vasquez v. Superior Court of San Joaquin County (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 811, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 (elements of fraud)]. The allegation may be inserted in see § 488.60 in place of Paragraphs 9 and 10.

[1] FORM Reformation of Written Instrument [Civ. Code § 3399]--Allegation of Ground for Reformation--Based on Mutual Mistake of Fact [Civ. Code §§ 1577, 1640]

1. The above-described failure of the written _____ [specify written instrument, e.g., promissory note] to reflect the true intent of the parties resulted from a mutual mistake of both parties in that _____[specify nature of mistake, e.g., the escrow agent employed by the parties to arrange the loan inadvertently used a standard printed form of note containing a provision that in the event the note was not paid when due, interest would be compounded; the parties did not request inclusion of the compound interest provision, which had the effect of rendering the note usurious on its face, and did not believe that the written instrument that they signed contained such a provision].

[2] Use of Form

This allegation is for use by a plaintiff to seek reformation of a written instrument on the ground of mutual mistake of fact [Civ. Code § 3399; see also Civ. Code § 1577 (mistake of fact)]. The allegation may be inserted in see § 488.60 in place of Paragraphs 9 and 10 of that form.

§ 488.64 Reformation of Written Instrument [Civ. Code § 3399]--Affirmative Defense Allegation--Waiver and Ratification of Mistake by Plaintiff

[1] FORM Reformation of Written Instrument [Civ. Code § 3399]--Affirmative Defense Allegation--Waiver and Ratification of Mistake by Plaintiff

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES:

1. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff discovered the _____ [mistake or fraud] and communicated his/her discovery to defendant. At that time, plaintiff informed defendant that he/she would abide by the instrument "as is," notwithstanding the _____ [mistake or fraud] and that the instrument as written was satisfactory.

2. Plaintiff's communication to defendant of his/her discovery of the _____ [mistake or fraud] constituted a waiver of plaintiff's right to reformation and a ratification of the instrument as written.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be used in an answer to a complaint for reformation of a written instrument [Civ. Code § 3399]. The affirmative defense alleged is that the plaintiff has waived his or her right to relief by acts or statements that, in effect, ratify the written instrument as is. For further discussion of this defense, see the Introduction § 488.41[2][g]. For discussion relating to answers generally, including general forms into which the foregoing affirmative defense allegation may be inserted, see Ch. 26, Answers .

§ 488.65 Reformation of Written Instrument [Civ. Code § 3399]--Affirmative Defense Allegation--Laches

[1] FORM Reformation of Written Instrument [Civ. Code § 3399]--Affirmative Defense Allegation--Laches

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES:

1. Plaintiff has delayed an unreasonable period of time in bringing this action in that _____ [specify length of delay, indicating when the mistake/fraud occurred and when plaintiff brought suit].

2. Plaintiff's delay in bringing this action has prejudiced defendant in that _____ [describe how the delay has prejudiced the defendant].

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be used in an answer to a complaint for reformation of a written instrument [Civ. Code § 3399]. The affirmative defense alleged is that the plaintiff is barred from asserting his or her claim for reformation by operation of the equitable doctrine of laches. For further discussion of this defense, see the Introduction § 488.15[6]. For discussion relating to answers generally, including general forms into which this affirmative defense allegation may be inserted, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[3] Alternative Use of Demurrer

Laches is an affirmative defense that usually must be raised by way of allegation in the answer. It may be considered as a ground for demurrer only when it is apparent on the face of the complaint [Kleinclaus v. Dutard (1905) 147 Cal. 245, 250, 81 P. 516] . For further discussion and forms relating to demurrers generally, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[4] Decisions

Reformation is subject to the equitable defense of laches. Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1170-1171, 232 Cal. Rptr. 603

Thirty-nine-year delay in bringing action and undue prejudice caused by death of important witnesses constitutes laches. Getty v. Getty (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1159, 1170-1171, 232 Cal. Rptr. 603

Delay without prejudice caused thereby is insufficient to support defense of laches. Utica Mut. Ins. Co. v. Monarch Ins. Co. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 538, 543-544, 58 Cal. Rptr. 639 ; Laing v. Occidental Life Ins. Co. (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 811, 821, 53 Cal. Rptr. 681

Laches is decided by court on case-by-case bases. Voge, Inc. v. Rose (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 534, 542, 23 Cal. Rptr. 87

Essential elements of laches are omission to assert right, delay in assertion of right for some appreciable period, and circumstances that would cause prejudice to an adverse party if assertion of right is permitted. Stafford v. Ballinger (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 289, 296, 18 Cal. Rptr. 568

[1] FORM Reformation of Written Instrument [Civ. Code § 3399]--Affirmative Defense Allegation--Lapse of Statutory Limitation Period [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES that the action is barred by the provisions of Code of Civil Procedure Section 338(d).

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use by defendant in an action for reformation to raise the bar of the statute of limitations by way of an affirmative defense allegation in her or his answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)]. For further discussion, see Introduction § 488.15[2]. For discussion relating to answers generally, including general forms into which this affirmative defense allegation may be inserted, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[3] Alternative Use of Demurrer

If the defense of the statute of limitations is apparent from the face of the complaint or from matter of which the court may take judicial notice, the objection may be raised by general demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a); see Evid. Code §§ 451, 452 (judicial notice)]. The specific grounds must be pleaded (an exception to the general rule that general demurrers need only state that the complaint fails to state a cause of action). The defense of the statute of limitations, however, is not waived for failure to demur, and may be asserted as an affirmative defense in the answer [California Safe etc. Co. v. Sierra etc. Co. (1910) 158 Cal. 690, 697-698, 112 P. 274] . For further discussion and forms relating to demurrers generally, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

[4] State Statutes

Statute of Limitations in an action for relief on the ground of fraud or mistake. Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)

[5] Decisions

Cause of action for reformation accrues on discovery of actual conflict between written terms of agreement and alleged mutual intent of parties; when contract became ambiguous because of change in law, party seeking reformation, who was familiar with copyright law, was charged with discovery of conflict on date new law came into effect. Hal Roach Studios v. Richard Feiner and Co. (9th Cir. 1990) 896 F.2d 1542, 1547-1550 (applying California law)

Three-year statute of limitations (former Code Civ. Proc. § 338(4); now see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d)) is applicable to action for reformation of deed or contract on ground of fraud or mistake. Welsher v. Glickman (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 134, 140, 77 Cal. Rptr. 141

Cause of action for reformation is not deemed to accrue until discovery, by aggrieved party, of facts constituting underlying fraud or mistake. Welsher v. Glickman (1969) 272 Cal. App. 2d 134, 140, 77 Cal. Rptr. 141

Action on cross complaint for reformation of automobile insurance contract was not barred by laches because action was not barred by applicable limitations period and cross defendant also failed to show how it suffered prejudice by delay. Utica Mut. Ins. Co. v. Monarch Ins. Co. (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 538, 543-544, 58 Cal. Rptr. 639

Reasonable diligence standard is used to determine point at which aggrieved party should be charged with constructive notice of facts constituting fraud or mistake for purposes of calculating when statutory limitation period commences to run. *Laing v. Chapter 489 RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
I. SCOPE

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.01

§ 489.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter covers direct attacks on valid and void judgments, dismissals, orders, and proceedings in the trial court by various statutory motions at law and by motions and actions in equity. It begins by comparing the methods of relief from judgments, including the distinction between direct and collateral attacks, and which of the orders dealt with in the chapter are appealable as well as the considerations on appeal [see § 489.10 et seq.].

The chapter discusses and provides forms [for discussion, see § 489.30 et seq.; for forms, see § 489.360 et seq.] relating to Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding, including a default judgment, taken through a party's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. It also discusses and includes forms relating to motions for relief from defaults and default judgments on other statutory grounds:

- California court has assumed jurisdiction over the party's attorney's law practice [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1; for discussion, see § 489.100 et seq.; for forms, see § 489.400];

- Service of summons did not result in actual notice to the defendant in time to defend [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5; for discussion, see § 489.70 et seq.; for forms, see § 489.380];

- Default or default judgment was entered without compliance with certain consumer venue statutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5; for discussion, see § 489.90 et seq.; for forms, see § 489.390]; and

- Servicemembers' Civil Relief Act [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.; for discussion, see § 489.110 et seq.; for forms, see § 489.410].

The chapter also discusses and includes forms relating to direct and collateral attacks on void judgments and orders, including motions for relief from void judgments and orders under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), and the court's inherent jurisdiction at law [for discussion, see § 489.130 et seq.; for forms, see § 489.420 et seq.].

In addition, the chapter discusses and provides forms relating to direct attacks in equity on judgments and orders. It includes discussion of motions and actions in equity for relief from valid and void judgments and orders, including defaults and default judgments, on the equitable grounds of extrinsic fraud or mistake [for discussion, see § 489.220 et seq.; for forms, see § 489.430 et seq.].

The chapter also includes a Research Guide [see § 489.280 et seq.] of related Matthew Bender publications, federal and state statutes, decisions, and text references relating to relief from judgments.

The chapter also provides Procedural Checklists for moving [see § 489.330 et seq.] and opposing [see § 489.340 et seq.] parties in proceedings for relief from judgment, dismissal, or order.

I. SCOPE

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.03

§ 489.03 Governing Law

The manners of attacking judgments and orders are governed by statutory and case law, the California Rules of Court, and local court rules.

Statutory motions for relief from judgments, dismissals, orders, or other proceedings taken by or against a party through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise or excusable neglect are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), (c) (discussed in § 489.30 et seq.).

Statutory motions for relief from a judgment, order, or other proceeding, including the dismissal of an action for failure to prosecute, taken against a party when a California court has assumed jurisdiction over the law practice of the party's attorney pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6180 or 6190 are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1 (discussed in § 489.100 et seq.).

Statutory motions for relief from a default and default judgment when service of the summons did not result in actual notice to the party in time to defend are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 (discussed in § 489.70 et seq.) and statutory motions for relief from a default or default judgment entered without full compliance with certain consumer statutes are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5 (discussed in § 489.90 et seq.).

Motions for relief from a default or default judgment against a defendant whose active military service prejudiced his or her ability to defend the action are authorized by 50 U.S.C. App. § 521 (discussed in § 489.110 et seq.).

Motions for relief from judgment under the protections provided to military service members under state law are authorized by Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d) (discussed in § 489.118).

Motions for relief from judgment of dissolution of marriage are governed by Fam. Code § 2120 et seq., discussed in Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure .

Motions to reconsider and renewed motions are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1008, which is discussed in Ch. 374, Motions to Reconsider and Renewed Motions .

Relief from void judgments and orders is governed by case law and by Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d). Relief in equity in unlimited civil cases to set aside a void judgment is governed by case law, and relief by a motion in equity in limited civil cases is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)(3).

Relief in equity is governed primarily by case law. The general jurisdiction of superior courts is set forth in Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10. The power of the state Legislature to prescribe the jurisdiction of the municipal courts is set forth in Cal. Const., art. VI, § 5(a). The equitable jurisdiction of unlimited and limited civil cases prescribed by the Legislature is set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86.

II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Comparison of Methods of Relief From Judgments

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.10

§ 489.10 Inherent and Statutory Powers of Courts

Apart from statutory authority, all courts have inherent power to correct their records to make them accurate, and under this power courts have frequently corrected their final judgments when, because of clerical errors or omissions, the judgments actually rendered were not the judgments intended to be rendered [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 574, 122 P.2d 564]. Thus, a trial court has inherent power to set aside a judgment entered through its own inadvertence or improvidence, such as a judgment that does not express the court's true intention or when the court acted in ignorance of some material fact of record [Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 703, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581]. However, when the error is inherently judicial rather than clerical or inadvertent, the court does not have power to amend its decision [Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 703, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581].

Similarly, a court has inherent power, apart from statute, to correct its records by vacating a judgment that is void on its face, for the judgment is a nullity and may be ignored [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 574, 122 P.2d 564].

The inherent power to correct clerical errors and to set aside void judgments and orders is confirmed in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) (see § 489.130 et seq.). In addition, superior courts have inherent equitable jurisdiction in unlimited civil cases to relieve a party from a judgment or order resulting from extrinsic fraud or mistake, and statutory jurisdiction under Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)(3) to do the same in limited civil cases (see § 489.227).

In addition to the court's inherent and statutory powers discussed above, courts have statutory power to relieve a party or his or her legal representative from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under a variety of circumstances, the most common of which is when the judgment, order, or proceeding was taken through a party's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (discussed in § 489.30 et seq.]. Other statutory grounds for relief are discussed in § 489.70 et seq.

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.11

§ 489.11 Manners of Attacking Judgments and Orders

A judgment or order may be attacked directly or, depending on its nature and the specific ground relied on, collaterally [see, e.g., Parsons v. Weis (1904) 144 Cal. 410, 415, 77 P. 1007 ; People ex rel. Mosk v. City of SantaBarbara (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 342, 356, 13 Cal. Rptr. 423]. Although not all judgments and orders subject to direct attack are subject to collateral attack, all judgments and orders subject to collateral attack are subject to a direct attack if the direct attack is timely made [see, e.g., Parsons v. Weis (1904) 144 Cal. 410, 415, 77 P. 1007].

A. Comparison of Methods of Relief From Judgments

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.12

§ 489.12 When Extrinsic Evidence Is Admissible

On a direct attack extrinsic evidence may normally be introduced to establish the ground or grounds for relief from the order, judgment, or proceeding. On a collateral attack extrinsic evidence may not be introduced and the court is confined to an inspection of the judgment roll (discussed in § 489.136), or record, that is conclusively presumed to be correct [see, e.g., Milstein v. Turner (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 296, 298, 200 P.2d 799 ; County of Fresno v. Roberson, M. & Co. (1954) 269 P.2d 252]. However, if a direct attack on a judgment, order, or proceeding that is void in fact, but not on its face, is not timely made (see discussion in § 489.15[2][a]), it is subject to the rules of collateral attack, and extrinsic evidence may not be introduced to show the true facts [see Wells Fargo & Co. v. San Francisco (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 37, 40, 152 P.2d 625 ; see also discussions in §§ 489.17 and 489.138].

II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Comparison of Methods of Relief From Judgments

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.13

§ 489.13 Direct Attack

[1] Defined

A direct attack on a judgment or order is normally made by motion in the trial court to vacate it or to set it aside or for a new trial, or by an appeal from the judgment or order to a higher court [Parsons v. Weis (1904) 144 Cal. 410, 415, 77 P. 1007 ; Palmquist v. Palmquist (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 340, 344, 27 Cal. Rptr. 756 ; Rico v. Nasser Bros. Realty Co. (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 878, 882, 137 P.2d 861 ; County of Fresno v. Roberson, M. & Co. (1954) 124 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 888, 891 , 269 P.2d 252].

Direct attacks may also be made in other ways. For example, a direct attack on a prior judgment or order may be made by an action in quo warranto or by certiorari and other writs [People ex rel. Mosk v. City of Santa Barbara (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 342, 356, 13 Cal. Rptr. 423 (direct attack by action in quo warranto to test validity of annexation of uninhabited territory to city)]. In a direct attack, the proceeding is brought specifically to nullify the judgment or order as it pertains to the immediate issue under consideration [People ex rel. Mosk v. City of Santa Barbara (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 342, 356, 13 Cal. Rptr. 423]. Thus, an action in equity to vacate a judgment on the grounds of extrinsic fraud or mistake is a direct attack (see discussion in § 489.220).

Direct attacks discussed in this chapter are as follows:

- Motions under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding taken through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, or based on an attorney's affidavit of fault (discussed in § 489.30 et seq.);

- Motions under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1, for relief from a judgment, order, or proceeding when a court has assumed jurisdiction over the law practice of the party's attorney; and motions for relief from default under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473.5, 585.5, and 50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq. (discussed in § 489.70 et seq.);

- Motions under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), or directed to a court's inherent power at law, to set aside a void judgment or order (discussed in § 489.130 et seq.); and

- Motions and actions in equity for relief from a judgment or order (discussed in § 489.220 et seq.).

Although any one or more of these direct attacks may be proper to attack a particular judgment or order, each attack is subject to its own rules and requirements, that are discussed in this chapter. For discussion and forms for use in other types of procedures that may be used for direct attacks of judgments or orders, see the chapter dealing with that procedure, such as:

- Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition,

- Ch. 371, Motions after Trial,

- Ch. 483, Quo Warranto, or

- Ch. 492, Review (Certiorari), Writ of.

[2] Grounds for Direct Attack

A direct attack may generally be used with respect to any type of material error that is properly preserved [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 657 (grounds for new trial), 906 (power of reviewing court on appeal)]. This includes attacks based on the judgment or order being in excess of jurisdiction [People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 122-123, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246 ; for discussion of the limited collateral attack available on this ground, see § 489.14[2][b]]. Direct attack may also address lack of jurisdiction [see Unruh v. Truck Insurance Exchange (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 616, 622, 102 Cal. Rptr. 815, 498 P.2d 1063 (lack of jurisdiction is not waived and may be asserted for first time on appeal); for discussion of lack of jurisdiction as a basis of collateral attack, see § 489.14[2][a]].

Chapter 489 RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Comparison of Methods of Relief From Judgments

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.14

§ 489.14 Collateral Attack

[1] Defined

Any procedural challenge that does not constitute a direct attack is collateral [People ex rel. Mosk v. City of Santa Barbara (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 342, 356, 13 Cal. Rptr. 423]. Thus, a collateral attack on a judgment or order is an indirect attack [People ex rel. Mosk v. City of Santa Barbara (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 342, 356, 13 Cal. Rptr. 423]. A collateral attack attempts to avoid the effect of a judgment or order made in some other proceeding, and for the attack to succeed, the invalidity of the former judgment or order must appear on the face of the record [see discussion under [2], below; see also § 489.139[1]].

[2] Grounds for Collateral Attack

[a] Lack of Jurisdiction

Collateral attack is proper to contest lack of personal or subject matter jurisdiction [Armstrong v. Armstrong (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 942, 950, 126 Cal. Rptr. 805, 544 P.2d 941]. That is, a collateral attack is proper when the court that rendered the judgment or made the order lacked either jurisdiction of the subject matter of the action or personal jurisdiction over the parties. In these cases, the court is said to lack jurisdiction in the fundamental sense [see Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 288, 109 P.2d 942 ; § 489.130 et seq.]. For a discussion and forms relating to subject matter jurisdiction and personal jurisdiction, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal , and Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter .

There is a difference between lack of jurisdiction in the fundamental sense, which ordinarily is essential for collateral attack, and the broader meaning of the term "lack of jurisdiction" (discussed under [b], below) when used in determining the availability of restraint by prohibition or review by certiorari (direct attacks) of an order or judgment [see Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. McConnell (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 715, 725, 285 P.2d 636 (noting that some cases involving collateral attacks have unfortunately failed to recognize this distinction); Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 288, 109 P.2d 942].

[b] Excess of Jurisdiction

Excess of jurisdiction exists when the court, though having jurisdiction over the subject matter and the parties in the fundamental sense, has no jurisdiction, or power, to act except in a particular manner, or to give certain kinds of relief, or to act without the occurrence of certain procedural prerequisites. Speaking generally, any acts that exceed the defined power of a court in any instance, whether that power is defined by constitutional provision, express statutory declaration, or rules developed by the courts and followed under the doctrine of stare decisis, are in excess of jurisdiction, insofar as that term is used to indicate that those acts may be restrained by prohibition or annulled on certiorari [Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 290-291, 109 P.2d 942 ; see also Barquis v. Merchants Collection Asso. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 94, 120, 101 Cal. Rptr. 745, 496 P.2d 817].

A final judgment or order of a court having jurisdiction in the fundamental sense, that is, jurisdiction over the subject matter of the action and the parties, is, as a general rule, res judicata, even though contrary to statute [Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. McConnell (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 715, 725, 285 P.2d 636 ; Frank v. Frank (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 717, 722, 80 Cal. Rptr. 141].

In such a case, the one who complains of an act is normally before the court and has an opportunity to object, or to have the judgment or order reviewed by the usual methods of direct attack, such as by a motion for new trial or appeal [see discussion in § 489.13]. Hence, acts in excess of jurisdiction by a court having jurisdiction of the subject matter and the parties are not normally subject to collateral attack [Frank v. Frank (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 717, 722, 80 Cal. Rptr. 141 ; see also Armstrong v. Armstrong (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 942, 951, 126 Cal. Rptr. 805, 544 P.2d 941 ; Farley v. Farley (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 1, 8, 38 Cal. Rptr. 357].

When unusual or exceptional circumstances prevented an earlier and more appropriate attack, however, a judgment or order in excess of jurisdiction may be subject to collateral attack [Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. McConnell (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 715, 727, 285 P.2d 636]. For example, a collateral attack might be made when a judgment or order granted relief that the court had no power, that is, jurisdiction, to grant [see Armstrong v. Armstrong (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 942, 950-951, 126 Cal. Rptr. 805, 544 P.2d 941]. An example is a judgment or order that grants relief in violation of a statute [see, e.g., Burtnett v. King (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 805, 807-809, 205 P.2d 657 (default judgment granting relief exceeding that demanded in complaint in violation of Code Civ. Proc. § 580); 311 South Spring Street Co. v. Department of General Services (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1009, 1015-1018, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 176 (collateral attack permitted when court granted excess interest); Vershbow v. Reiner (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 879, 883, 282 Cal. Rptr. 684 (writ of attachment issued by court clerk prior to posting of an undertaking by the creditor in violation of Code Civ. Proc. § 489.210)].

Excess of jurisdiction must be distinguished from mere errors in the exercise of jurisdiction, which are not subject to collateral attack [see discussion in § 489.139[6]].

[c] Judgment or Order Within Jurisdiction

A judgment rendered within the court's jurisdiction can be reviewed and corrected only by one of the established methods of direct attack [see Estate of Wemyss (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 53, 58, 122 Cal. Rptr. 134].

[d] Default Judgment

A default judgment that awards relief in excess of that requested in the complaint or, if it is a superior court personal injury action, in excess of that set forth in the statement of damages, is in excess of jurisdiction [Swycaffer v. Swycaffer (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 689, 693, 285 P.2d 1 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 580 (relief on default limited to amount demanded in complaint, Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement or Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement)], and may be attacked directly [see Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 703, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581]. The judgment may also be attacked collaterally because it is void on its face to the extent of the excess [see Armstrong v. Armstrong (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 942, 950, 126 Cal. Rptr. 805, 544 P.2d 941 ; and discussion under [2], above; see also § 489.191].

However, a default judgment that merely awards damages that are excessive as a matter of law in that they are not supported by the evidence, but that do not exceed the amount claimed in the complaint, is not a jurisdictional error, but a judicial error, which the trial court may not amend. The defendant's remedy in that case is to move for a new trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 657(5), that is, for a new judgment hearing, or to raise the issue on appeal from the default judgment [Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 703-704, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581], that is, by direct attack [see § 489.13[1]].

[3] How Collateral Attack Is Made

A collateral attack on a final judgment or order may be made in a variety of ways. Examples of collateral attack include the following:

- If an action has been dismissed with prejudice and judgment entered, bringing a second action on the same grounds is a collateral attack on the judgment [Palmquist v. Palmquist (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 340, 343-344, 27 Cal. Rptr. 756].

- An action to quiet title to property awarded to another by a partially void judgment is a collateral attack on the judgment [Vasquez v. Vasquez (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 280, 282-283, 285, 240 P.2d 319].

- A proceeding in prohibition to prevent a threatened punishment for contempt for violating an order appointing a receiver in an accounting action is a collateral attack on the order appointing the receiver [Lieberman v. Superior Court (1925) 72 Cal. App. 18, 35, 236 P. 570].

- An action brought on a claim previously settled with court approval on petition to the court constitutes a collateral attack on that settlement [Rico v. Nasser Bros. Realty Co. (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 878, 881-882, 137 P.2d 861].

- An action to quiet title to land that has been sold under execution is a collateral attack on the prior judgment [Milstein v. Turner (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 296, 298, 200 P.2d 799].

- A proceeding in mandate to compel a trial court to strike from its records a portion of an appealable order that reduced the judgment is a collateral attack on the order [Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 372, 217 P.2d 951].

- In an action on a judgment, an attack on the judgment is a collateral attack [Cradduck v. Financial Indem. Co. (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 850, 852, 855, 52 Cal. Rptr. 90].

- When orders are independently appealable and become final by lapse of time, a subsequent attack on them in an appeal from a later order or judgment is collateral [Estate of Wemyss (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 53, 58, 122 Cal. Rptr. 134].

However, the courts have not always been precise in their classification or terminology. For example, in Swain v. Swain (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10, 58 Cal. Rptr. 83 , the appellate court referred to a motion to vacate a portion of a decree on the ground the decree was in excess of jurisdiction as a collateral attack on the decree, which had been entered more than two years earlier. More accurately, the motion was a direct attack that, because it was untimely, was subject to the rules of collateral attack [see discussion under § 489.12].

[4] Presumption of Jurisdiction on Collateral Attack

[a] Rule

The judgment or order of any California court, United States court, or court of general jurisdiction in any other state or nation, is presumed on collateral attack to have been made in the lawful exercise of the court's jurisdiction [Evid. Code § 666; see also Evid. Code § 664 (official duty is presumed to have been regularly performed); Thomas v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 335, 337, 90 Cal. Rptr. 586, 475 P.2d 858 (ordinarily a judgment is presumed valid if collaterally attacked, unless it is void on its face); Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 373-374, 217 P.2d 951 ; In re Marriage of Steiner (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 363, 370, 152 Cal. Rptr. 612 ; Frazier v. Wasserman (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 120, 124, 69 Cal. Rptr. 510]. Thus, on collateral attack every presumption is in favor of the validity of the judgment or order of a court of general jurisdiction, and any condition of facts consistent with its validity and notaffirmatively contradicted by the judgment roll will be presumed to have existed, and, under this rule, it will be presumed when necessary that the parties consented to the court's action or waived objection to it [Gagnon Co., Inc. v. Nevada Desert Inn (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 448, 456, 289 P.2d 466 ; Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 373-374, 217 P.2d 951].

For example, if the record is silent, it will be presumed that process and pleadings were properly served and that due proof of service was presented to the court. Similarly, notice, or facts rendering it unnecessary, are presumed unless the record shows the contrary, and, when the court may shorten time or dispense with notice, it will be presumed that the court did so if the order is silent on the point [Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 373-374, 217 P.2d 951 , citing additional examples].

The presumption of jurisdiction is overcome, however, when the defects that make the judgment void may be shown without going outside the record, or judgment roll, that is, when the judgment is void on its face [see Swain v. Swain (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10, 58 Cal. Rptr. 83 ; see also § 489.130 et seq.].

[b] Exception for Criminal Judgment

An exception to the foregoing rule applies to a judgment of prior conviction of a crime; such a judgment, even though valid on its face, may be attacked at any time on constitutional grounds in a proceeding in which by reason of the prior conviction increased sanctions may be imposed against the person suffering it [Thomas v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 335, 337-338, 90 Cal. Rptr. 586, 475 P.2d 858 (but holding that the invalidity of the prior judgment must be raised in the subsequent action in which increased sanctions may be imposed and that the judgment in the second action, in which the issue as to the invalidity of the prior judgment was neither raised nor adjudicated, could not be collaterally attacked in a mandate proceeding against the DMV to cause it to set aside its administrative act of suspending the defendant's driver's license based on the two convictions); De Rasmo v. Smith (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 601, 607, 93 Cal. Rptr. 289 (collateral attack permitted in proceeding in which real estate salesman's license was revoked for failure to reveal constitutionally void prior conviction in license application)].

A. Comparison of Methods of Relief From Judgments

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.15

§ 489.15 Time Limitations

[1] Depends on Ground for Relief

The time within which a party may seek relief from a judgment, including a default judgment, depends on the particular ground or grounds on which the party relies. In any given case, relief from a judgment, order, or other proceeding may be available on alternative grounds, each having its own limitation period. Consequently, if counsel discovers that relief is time barred on a particular ground, he or she should examine alternative grounds that may not be barred.

[2] Time Limits for Relief at Law

[a] Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

A motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect must be filed within a reasonable time not exceeding six months after the judgment, order, or proceeding was taken, or, if relief is sought from a default judgment based on an attorney's affidavit (declaration) of fault, within six months from the date the judgment was entered (without the reasonable time limitation) [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (discussed in § 489.30 et seq.)].

[b] Court Assumed Jurisdiction Over Party's Attorney's Practice

A motion for relief from a judgment, order, or other proceeding, including a dismissal, taken against a party when a court has assumed jurisdiction over the law practice of the party's attorney, must be made within a reasonable period of time, in no case exceeding six months after the court took jurisdiction over the attorney's practice [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1 (discussed in § 489.100 et seq.)].

[c] Service of Summons Did Not Give Actual Notice in Time to Defend

A motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 from a default judgment entered when the service of the summons did not result in actual notice to the party in time to defend must be made within a reasonable time not exceeding the earlier of two years after entry of the default judgment or 180 days after service on the party of a written notice that the default or default judgment was entered [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(a) (discussed in § 489.70 et seq.)].

[d] Default Taken After Violation of Consumer Protection Venue Statutes

A motion for relief from a default judgment entered without full compliance with certain venue statutes and for leave to defend the action must be made within 60 days after the defendant received notice of a levy under a writ of execution or notice of any other procedure for enforcing the judgment. The venue statutes, designed for consumer protection, are Civ.Code §§ 1812.10 (Unruh Act) and 2984.4 (Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act) and Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) (actions arising from offer or provision of goods, services, loans, or credit for personal, household, or family use) [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(b) (discussed in § 489.90 et seq.)].

[e] Relief Based on Military Service

A motion for relief under the federal Servicemembers' Civil Relief Act by a defendant who did not appear and who was prejudiced in making a defense by reason of his or her military service may be filed at any time the person is in active military service or not later than 90 days thereafter [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)(2) (discussed in § 489.110 et seq.)].

A motion to vacate or set aside a judgment entered during a period of protected military service by a defendant who was prejudiced in making defense and who can assert a meritorious or legal defense to all or part of the action must be made not later than 90 days after termination of the service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d); for discussion, see § 489.117 et seq.].

[f] Judgments Void in Fact But Not on Face

The time limitations set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473(b) and 473.5, above, apply by analogy to motions under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), and to motions directed to the court's inherent jurisdiction at law, for relief from judgments that are void in fact but not void on their face [see, e.g., Estate of Estrem (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 563, 571-572, 107 P.2d 36 (applying six-month limitation in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)); Johnson v. E-Z Ins. Brokerage, Inc. (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 86, 98-99, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 782 ; Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1120-1126, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 (applying time limitation set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5); see also § 489.142[6]].

[g] Judgment Void on Its Face

There is no time limitation on seeking relief from a judgment that is void on its face for lack of subject matter or personal jurisdiction [see, e.g., Forbes v. Hyde (1866) 31 Cal. 342, 347 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d); and § 489.141].

[3] Time Limits for Relief at Equity

There is no time limit per se on a motion in equity for relief from a judgment or order, but the motion must be made within a reasonable time after the moving party discovered the facts and, after discovering the facts, the moving party must have acted diligently in seeking relief [see §§ 489.39[6] and 489.262[1]].

On the other hand, an action in equity for relief from a judgment or order is subject to the applicable statute of limitations and to the defense of laches [see § 489.261[1]].

§ 489.16 Seeking Relief on Multiple Grounds

[1] In General

Occasionally, a party will seek relief on multiple grounds in one motion. For example, a party may seek relief on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)], on the ground that the judgment is void [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)], and on the further equitable ground that the judgment was obtained by extrinsic fraud or mistake [see, e.g., Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 698-699, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581].

[2] When Attack Is Based on Lack of Jurisdiction Over Defendant

When the motion for relief from a judgment is made on the ground that the judgment is void for lack of jurisdiction over the person of the moving defendant, counsel should be careful in mixing the grounds of relief. This is important to avoid inadvertently making a general appearance and, in so doing, waiving the lack of jurisdiction objection by voluntarily submitting to the in personam jurisdiction of the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 410.50(a)]. A motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 or 473.5, if joined with a motion to quash service of summons for lack of personal jurisdiction (see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)) or to dismiss an action for inconvenient forum (Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(2)), or a motion to dismiss for delay in prosecution (Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(3)), does not constitute a general appearance [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(d)].

A motion that incorporates any other ground, particularly if it seeks relief that may be granted only on the ground that the court has jurisdiction over the defendant, may be deemed a general appearance and subject the defendant to the court's in personam jurisdiction in subsequent proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. § 410.50].

For further discussion of personal jurisdiction, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal . For discussion of motions to dismiss for delay in prosecution without making a general appearance under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(3), see Ch. 212, Dismissal .

§ 489.17 Affidavits and Declarations

[1] When Authorized

Affidavits [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2002] and/or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] may normally be submitted in support of and in opposition to a timely filed motion attacking a judgment or order [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2009], that is, on a direct attack. A motion not made within the time prescribed in the applicable statute is untimely and subject to the rules of collateral attack. Under these rules, extrinsic evidence is not admissible, and, therefore, the use of affidavits or declarations on those motions is forbidden [see § 489.12].

[2] Effect on Appeal of Trial on Motion by Affidavits or Declarations

When a motion for relief is tried on affidavits (or declarations under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]), the rule on appeal is that those affidavits (or declarations) favoring the prevailing party's contention establish not only the facts stated in them but also all facts that reasonably may be inferred from them, and if there is a substantial conflict in the facts stated, a determination of the controverted facts by the trial court will not be disturbed [Lynch v. Spilman (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 251, 259, 62 Cal. Rptr. 12, 431 P.2d 636 ; Outdoor Imports, Inc. v. Stanoff (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 518, 522, 86 Cal. Rptr 593 ; Baratti v. Baratti (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 917, 922, 242 P.2d 22 ; see also Stevens v. Stevens (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 426, 429, 74 Cal. Rptr. 54 ; Kooper v. King (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 621, 626, 15 Cal. Rptr. 848]. The rule applies to orders made on motions for relief from a judgment, order, or proceeding at law [see, e.g., Lynch v. Spilman (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 251, 259, 62 Cal. Rptr. 12, 431 P.2d 636 (affirming order granting motion to vacate summary judgment for plaintiff on grounds of inadvertence and excusable neglect); Outdoor Imports, Inc. v. Stanoff (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 518, 522, 86 Cal. Rptr 593 (affirming order granting motion to vacate default and default judgment on ground of excusable neglect)], and on motions for relief in equity [In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 149-150, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583 (affirming order vacating and setting aside for extrinsic fraud or mistake portion of judgment relating to distribution of community property, rendered after uncontested hearing on default of wife)].

II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Comparison of Methods of Relief From Judgments

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.18

§ 489.18 Appeal

[1] Who Can Appeal

Only an aggrieved party can appeal, and a party cannot normally appeal from a judgment or order in his or her favor [Hensley v. Hensley (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 895, 898, 235 Cal. Rptr. 684]. Subject to limited qualifications, an aggrieved party is one whose rights or interests are injuriously affected by the judgment or order [Hensley v. Hensley (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 895, 899, 235 Cal. Rptr. 684].

[2] From Void Judgment or Order

When the law allows an appeal from a judgment or order, it is appealable even though void, and a special order after final judgment is appealable regardless of whether it is void and regardless of whether it is provided for by any of the prescribed methods of procedure [Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 366, 370-371, 217 P.2d 951 (overruling Stanton v. Superior Court (1927) 202 Cal. 478, 261 P. 1001 , and the cases following it, as well as Kahn v. Smith (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 12, 142 P.2d 13 ; Payne v. Hunt (1932) 214 Cal. 605, 7 P.2d 302 ; and Kraft v. Lampton (1936) 13 Cal. App. 2d 596, 57 P.2d 171); see also Hensley v. Hensley (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 895, 898, 235 Cal. Rptr. 684 (order setting aside final judgment is appealable and rule is the same if the order after final judgment is void)].

[3] From Order Granting or Denying Motion to Vacate Default and Motion to Reconsider

An order granting a motion to vacate the entry of a default on which no judgment has been entered is not appealable, although the propriety of the order may be raised on appeal from a judgment adverse to the party resisting the motion [see Leo v. Dunlap (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 24, 25, 66 Cal. Rptr. 888]. On the other hand, an order vacating default and default judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is appealable as an order after final judgment [see [5], below].

Likewise, an order denying a motion to vacate the entry of default is not appealable, although the propriety of the order can be reviewed on appeal from the subsequent default judgment (discussed under [4], below) [see Gudarov v. Hadjieff (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 412, 418, 240 P.2d 621 ; Lopez v. Fancelli (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1305, 1307 n.2, 271 Cal. Rptr. 87 ; Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 699, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581 ; Stevenson v. Turner (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d

315, 317, 156 Cal. Rptr. 499 ; Uva v. Evans (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 356, 360, 147 Cal. Rptr. 795]. However, an appeal from an order denying relief from default may be construed as an appeal from the default judgment if one has been entered [see Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 699, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581].

Moreover, because an order denying a motion to vacate a default is not an appealable order, an order denying reconsideration of the order under Code Civ. Proc. § 1008 is, likewise, not appealable [Jade K. v. Viguri (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 1466, 258 Cal. Rptr. 907 (criticized in Passavanti v. Williams (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1602, 1608 n.5, 275 Cal. Rptr. 887 , for its apparent approval of postjudgment motions for reconsideration)].

[4] From Default Judgment

A default judgment, being a final judgment, is appealable under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(1), 904.2(a) [see Luz v. Lopes (1960) 55 Cal. 2d 54, 59 n.2, 10 Cal. Rptr. 161, 358 P.2d 289]. Hence, a defendant has a right to appeal from a default judgment, although the scope of the appeal is limited to jurisdictional considerations and fundamental pleading defects [Aheroni v. Maxwell (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 284, 294, 252 Cal. Rptr. 369 ; see also Ludka v. Memory Magnetics International (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 316, 323, 101 Cal. Rptr. 615 ; Bristol Convalescent Hosp. v. Stone (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 848, 858-859, 66 Cal. Rptr. 404]. That is, if the defaulting party has taken no step in the trial court to set aside the default judgment, an appeal from the judgment presents for review only the questions of jurisdiction and the sufficiency of the pleadings [Corona v. Lundigan (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 764, 766-767, 204 Cal. Rptr. 846]. Thus, on appeal, an objection that the complaint failed to state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action may be considered, as well as the question as to whether or not the default was properly entered [Bristol Convalescent Hosp. v. Stone (1968) 258 Cal. App. 2d 848, 859, 66 Cal. Rptr. 404 ; Gore v. Witt (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 681, 686, 308 P.2d 770 ; see also Martin v. Lawrence (1909) 156 Cal. 191, 193, 103 P. 913 ; see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments].

Moreover, on a timely appeal from a default judgment, the court may determine the propriety of the trial court's order denying defendant's motion to set aside and vacate a default and default judgment (see [5][c], below), even though the order was appealable itself as an order after judgment, and the time for appeal from it had passed [see Ludka v. Memory Magnetics International (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 316, 319, 101 Cal. Rptr. 615].

[5] From Order Granting Relief From Judgment or Order

[a] Appealability Generally

An order granting relief from an appealable judgment or order is normally appealable as a special order made after a final judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(2), 904.2(b); for exceptions, see [b], below]. Thus, an order vacating a default and setting aside a default judgment is appealable [see, e.g., Moghaddam v. Bone (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 283, 287, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 602 ; Jones v. Interstate Recovery Service (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 925, 928, 206 Cal. Rptr. 924], as is an order granting relief from a void judgment [Zirbes v. Stratton (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1407, 1411, 232 Cal. Rptr. 653 (court lacked jurisdiction to render judgment against defendant who was never served with summons and whose appearance in action was solely by an attorney not authorized to represent her)].

[b] Conditional vs. Unconditional Orders

To be appealable, the order granting relief must be unconditional or, if it is conditional, it must be self-executing. If the order is conditional and not self-executing, that is, it requires a second order setting aside the judgment, it is interlocutory and nonappealable [Yarbrough v. Yarbrough (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 610, 613-614, 301 P.2d 426 (involving conditional self-executing order granting relief from default and judgment); see also Jacuzzi v. Jacuzzi Bros., Inc. (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 1, 25-26, 52 Cal. Rptr. 147].

[c] Relief Granted on Ground of Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

An order granting relief from an order or judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect) is an appealable order [see, e.g., Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 895, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775 (order vacating and setting aside judgment of dismissal entered on failure to comply with discovery orders); Lynch v. Spilman (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 251, 256, 62 Cal. Rptr. 12, 431 P.2d 636 (order vacating summary judgment for plaintiff on grounds of inadvertence and excusable neglect); Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 524, 190 P.2d 593 (order setting aside default and default judgment based on defendant's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect); Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 253 n.1, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80 (order granting relief from dismissal for failure to file amended pleading after demurrer was sustained)].

In addition, such an order may, in unusual circumstances, be reviewed by a petition for a writ of mandate [see Gardner v. Superior Court (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 335, 336, 227 Cal. Rptr. 78 (discussed in § 489.22[1]].

[d] Relief Granted on Other Grounds

The following orders are also appealable:

- An order granting relief, based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, from an involuntary dismissal following plaintiff's failure to amend the complaint after a demurrer to it was sustained [Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 253 n.1, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80] (the further holding of Billings that the affidavit of fault provision does not apply to dismissal, but to defaults and default judgments only, was abrogated by 1992 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to expressly include dismissal);

- An order granting relief from a default and default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 (service of summons did not result in actual notice to defendant in time to defend) [see Olvera v. Olvera (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 32, 34 n.1, 283 Cal. Rptr. 271 ; Rosenthal v. Garner (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 891, 894, 191 Cal. Rptr. 300];

- An order granting relief from a default judgment for plaintiffs' failure to have served the defendant with the statement of damages required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 [see Jones v. Interstate Recovery Service (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 925, 928, 206 Cal. Rptr. 924]; and

- An order granting relief from a judgment obtained by extrinsic fraud or mistake [see Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 851, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 (order granting relief from default, based on excusable extrinsic mistake); In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 73, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 (order granting motion to set aside property and support provisions of dissolution of marriage judgment on grounds of duress and extrinsic fraud or mistake); Aheroni v. Maxwell (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 284, 289 n.1, 252 Cal. Rptr. 369 (order granting relief from default and default judgment, based on extrinsic fraud); Slusher v. Durrer (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 747, 750, 138 Cal. Rptr. 265 (order granting relief from default and default judgment, based on extrinsic fraud or excusable mistake)].

[e] Effect of Appeal on Judgment

An appeal from an order vacating a judgment reinstates the judgment for the limited purpose of allowing the party against whom the judgment was entered to cross appeal from the judgment [Aheroni v. Maxwell (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 284, 289 n.1, 252 Cal. Rptr. 369 ; Conrad v. Superior Court (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1362, 1365, 247 Cal. Rptr. 712 ; see also, e.g., Lynch v. Spilman (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 251, 256, 62 Cal. Rptr. 12, 431 P.2d 636 (appeal from order vacating summary judgment on ground of inadvertence or excusable neglect of attorneys and cross appeal from summary judgment); § 489.19]. However, any postjudgment orders that affect the judgment by enforcing it are not reviewable on the cross appeal. Those orders are directly appealable [Aheroni v. Maxwell (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 284, 295, 252 Cal. Rptr. 369].

[6] From Order Denying Relief From Judgment or Order

[a] Relief Sought on Ground of Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

Although an order denying a motion to vacate an appealable judgment or order is not ordinarily appealable because it would merely take the place of an appeal from the original judgment or order [see Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 228-229, 317 P.2d 613 ; Martin v. Johnson (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 603, 151 Cal. Rptr. 816 ; see also Daley v. County of Butte (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 380, 388-389, 38 Cal. Rptr. 693], a motion for relief on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect is expressly authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and an order denying relief is, therefore, treated as a special order made after final judgment and is appealable under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(2) and 904.2(b) [Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 229, 317 P.2d 613 (appeal from order denying relief, based on mistake of fact, from an order taxing costs); Brown v. Williams (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 182, 185 n.2, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634 (appeal from order denying relief from judgment on arbitration award based on attorney's failure to timely request trial de novo); Sunseri v. Camperos Del Valle Stables, Inc. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 559, 561 n.2, 230 Cal. Rptr. 23 (appeal from order denying insurer's motion for relief from stipulated judgment between third-party plaintiff and defendant insured); Cochran v. Linn (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 245, 249, 205 Cal. Rptr. 550 (appeal by plaintiff from order denying relief, based on excusable neglect, from a summary judgment)].

In the case of a dismissal for delay in prosecution (see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq., discussed in Ch. 212, Dismissal), the order of dismissal is directly appealable. But a plaintiff whose case has been dismissed may also, in an appropriate case, seek redress through a motion to vacate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (see discussion in § 489.41). However, the denial of the motion to vacate is as a general rule not appealable unless a direct appeal from the dismissal order would be relatively ineffectual. An appeal from a dismissal order would be ineffectual when the plaintiff has failed to present any opposition, when hitherto unknown facts have come to light, or when due to other unforeseen circumstances the record of the dismissal hearing is deficient in that it presents an inadequate factual record for appeal purposes. In such a situation, when subsequent information has been brought forth during the motion to vacate, the denial of that motion is appealable [City of Los Angeles v. Gleneagle Dev. Co. (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 543, 553, 133 Cal. Rptr. 212 (treating motion to reconsider motion to dismiss as motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and allowing appeal from denial of motion)].

[b] Relief Sought on Other Grounds

The following orders are also appealable:

- An order denying a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 on the ground that the service of summons did not result in actual notice to the defendant in time to defend [Tunis v. Barrow (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1074-1075, 229 Cal. Rptr. 389 ; Rosenthal v. Garner (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 891, 894, 191 Cal. Rptr. 300];

- An order denying a motion for relief on the ground that the judgment or order is void [Sanford v. Smith (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 991, 998, 90 Cal. Rptr. 256 (appeal from order denying motion to set aside void default and default judgment); see also Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1116, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 (appeal from trial court's order vacating its previous order granting relief from void default judgment, and reinstating default and default judgment)]; and

- An order denying a motion for relief on the ground of extrinsic fraud or mistake Orange Empire Nat. Bank v. Kirk (1968) 66 Cal. Rptr. 240 (reversing order denying motion to vacate default and set aside default judgment, directed to court's inherent equitable power to grant relief in case of extrinsic fraud or mistake)].

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.19

§ 489.19 Effect of Appeal on Jurisdiction of Trial Court

An appeal removes from the trial court's jurisdiction the subject matter of the judgment or order appealed from, including all issues going to the validity orcorrectness of the judgment or order. The trial court has no power thereafter to amend or correct its judgment or order, or to vacate or set it aside. That power cannot be reinvested in the trial court even by consent of the parties [Davis v. Thayer (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 912, 170 Cal. Rptr. 328]. The purpose of the rule is to protect the appellate court's jurisdiction by preserving the status quo until the appeal is decided. The rule prevents the trial court from rendering an appeal futile by altering the appealed judgment or order by conducting other proceedings that may affect it [Elsea v. Saberi (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 625, 629]. For further discussion of stay of proceedings in the trial court pending appeal, see Ch. 43, Appeal: Stay of Proceedings .

However, when the trial court grants a motion to vacate and set aside a default judgment, and plaintiff appeals, the trial court retains jurisdiction, on motion, to order the return of property collected by the plaintiff in partial satisfaction of the judgment during the pendency of the judgment, unless the plaintiff posts a bond to secure a stay pending the appeal of the order granting relief from the judgment [Conrad v. Superior Court (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1362, 1365, 247 Cal. Rptr. 712].

The trial court also retains jurisdiction over ancillary or collateral matters that do not affect the judgment on appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 916(a); Hennessy v. Superior Court (1924) 194 Cal. 368, 371-372, 228 P. 862 (motion to tax costs); Silver v. Gold (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 17, 26, 259 Cal. Rptr. 185 (imposition of sanctions for frivolous motion); see also Betz v. Pankow (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 931, 938, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 (dicta)].

The general rule that a pending appeal deprives the trial court of jurisdiction of the cause does not apply to a judgment or order that is void on its face because a court may set it aside at any time [Andrisani v. Saugus Colony Limited (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 517, 523 ; see Morgan v. Clapp (1927) 207 Cal. 221, 224, 277 P. 490].

§ 489.20 General Policies

[1] Policy Favoring Trial on Merits

The policy of the law is to have every litigated case tried on its merits, and disfavors a party who, regardless of the merits of the case, attempts to take advantage of the mistake, surprise, inadvertence, or neglect of his or her adversary [Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 (affirming order setting aside default judgment on ground of excusable extrinsic mistake); Berri v. Rogero (1914) 168 Cal. 736, 740, 145 P. 95] (affirming order setting aside default and vacating judgment based on inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect); see also Laguna Village, Inc. v. Laborers' Internat. Union of North America (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 174, 178, 181-182, 197 Cal. Rptr. 99, 672 P.2d 882 (reversing order denying relief from default, holding that clerk's entry of default was "voidable" under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] on ground of defendant's motion to dismiss in federal court before remand to state court was equivalent to demurrer in state court and prevented entry of default)].

When the trial court denies a motion for relief from default, the strong policy in favor of trial on the merits conflicts with the general rule of deference to the trial court's exercise of discretion (discussed under in § 489.21[3]). Unless inexcusable neglect is clear, the policy favoring trial on the merits prevails [Elston v. City of Turlock (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 227, 235, 211 Cal. Rptr. 416, 695 P.2d 713 (reversing summary judgment for defendants entered after plaintiffs' motion to set aside admissions, which were deemed admitted for failure to respond, on the ground of excusable neglect had been denied by trial court); Jade K. v. Viguri (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 1473, 258 Cal. Rptr. 907 (dismissing as untimely defendant's appeal from default judgment and, finding insurer intervener's appeal timely, reversing order denying intervener's motion to vacate default judgment against defendant; criticized on other grounds in Passavanti v. Williams (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1602, 1608 n.5, 275 Cal. Rptr. 887)]. That is, the policy behind the statutes relating to time limits and other procedural matters is less powerful than the policy that seeks to dispose of litigation on the merits rather than on procedural grounds [Credit Managers Ass'n v. National Indep. Bus. Alliance (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1166, 1172, 209 Cal. Rptr. 119].

[2] Countervailing Policies

Although the policy of the law favors deciding cases on their merits, other policies favor getting cases to trial on time, avoiding unnecessary and prejudicial delay, and preventing litigants from playing fast and loose with the pertinent legal rules and procedures [Gardner v. Superior Court (1986)182 Cal. App. 3d 335, 339, 227 Cal. Rptr. 78] . Thus, the policy favoring trying all cases and controversies on their merits should not be prostituted to permit the slovenly practice of law or to relieve courts of the duty of scrutinizing carefully the affidavits or declarations filed in support of motions for relief to ascertain whether they set forth, with adequate particularity, grounds for relief. When inexcusable neglect is condoned even tacitly by the courts, they themselves unwittingly become instruments undermining the orderly process of the law [Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 900, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775 (quoting Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 282, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848); see also Barragan v. Banco BCH (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 283, 301, 232 Cal. Rptr. 758 (quoting Carroll)].

§ 489.21 Considerations on Appeal

[1] Disposition of Appellate Courts

It has been said that appellate courts are much more disposed to affirm an order when the result is to compel a trial on the merits than they are when a judgment by default is allowed to stand and it appears that a substantial defense could have been made in the action [see, e.g., Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 854, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 (affirming order setting aside default judgment); Lovato v. Santa Fe Internat. Corp. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 549, 555-556, 198 Cal. Rptr. 838 (reversing order denying motion to set aside default judgment)]. Default judgments that include punitive damages are looked on with special disfavor [Nicholson v. Rose (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 457, 462-463, 165 Cal. Rptr. 156 (conditionally reversing order denying defendants' motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), based on excusable neglect of defendants' counsel, to vacate judgment, awarding both compensatory and punitive damages, that had been entered on defendants' failure to appear at trial)].

Consequently, an order denying relief from default is subject to closer appellatescrutiny than one granting relief, and doubts will be resolved in favor of the party attempting to get to trial [Fasuyi v. Permatex, Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 681, 696, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 351 ; Jade K. v. Viguri (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 1473, 258 Cal. Rptr. 907 (criticized on other grounds in Passavanti v. Williams (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1602, 1608 n.5, 275 Cal. Rptr. 887)]. Reversal is particularly appropriate when relieving the default will not seriously prejudice the opposing party [Elston v. City of Turlock (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 227, 235, 211 Cal. Rptr. 416, 695 P.2d 713].

[2] Conflicts in Evidence

Any conflicts in the testimony or affidavits or declarations on the motion for relief are for the trial court to determine, and, if there is a conflict, the trial court's determination is conclusive on appeal [Luz v. Lopes (1960) 55 Cal. 2d 54, 62, 10 Cal. Rptr. 161, 358 P.2d 289].

[3] Abuse of Discretion

[a] As Required for Reversal

Absent an abuse of discretion, the ruling of the trial court on a motion for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding taken against a party through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect will not be disturbed on appeal [Elston v. City of Turlock (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 227, 232-233, 211 Cal. Rptr. 416, 695 P.2d 713 ; see Lynch v. Spilman (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 251, 257, 62 Cal. Rptr. 12, 431 P.2d 636 (affirming order granting relief from summary judgment for plaintiff on grounds of inadvertence and excusable neglect); Gudarov v. Hadjieff (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 412, 418, 240 P.2d 621 (modifying default judgment and affirming it as modified); Coyne v. Krempels (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 257, 263, 223 P.2d 244 (affirming summary judgment for plaintiff and order denying defendant's motion to vacate it under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)); Cochran v. Linn (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 245, 249, 251, 205 Cal. Rptr. 550 (affirming summary judgment for defendant and order denying motion to set it aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)); Martin v. Johnson (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 604, 151 Cal. Rptr. 816 (affirming order denying plaintiff's motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), to set aside summary judgment)].

Conversely stated, if the trial court abused its discretion, its order on a motion for relief will be reversed [see Elston v. City of Turlock (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 227, 238, 211 Cal. Rptr. 416, 695 P.2d 713 (reversing summary judgment for defendants entered after trial court denied plaintiffs' motion to set aside deemed admissions on ground of excusable neglect); Martin v. Cook (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 799, 809-810, 137 Cal. Rptr. 434 (reversing order granting relief)]. Abuse of discretion is established, for example, if the moving party's affidavit or declaration fails to set forth facts sufficient to constitute grounds for relief, or, when the motion must be made within a reasonable time, if the supporting affidavit or declaration is devoid of any explanation for a failure to move for relief within a reasonable time [Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 280, 281, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848 ; see also Aheroni v. Maxwell (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 284, 292, 252 Cal. Rptr. 369 ; and discussion in § 489.39[5]].

[b] Applicability to Motions for Relief From Default Judgments

The same rules apply to a motion for relief from a default and/or default judgment, whether relief is sought under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), or on the equitable grounds of extrinsic fraud or mistake; the trial court's ruling on a motion for relief will not be disturbed on appeal absent a clear showing of abuse of discretion [Monsan Homes, Inc. v. Pogrebneak (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 826, 829, 258 Cal. Rptr. 676 (affirming order denying motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), for relief from default and default judgment on ground of attorney abandonment; criticized on other grounds in Passavanti v. Williams (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1602, 1608 n.5, 275 Cal. Rptr. 887); Barragan v. Banco BCH (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 283, 301, 232 Cal. Rptr. 758 (appeal from default judgment after trial court had denied defendant's motion to set aside default under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); appellate court modified judgment in part, reversed in part, and remanded for trial court to redetermine specified issue); Ford v. Herndon (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 492, 494-495, 133 Cal. Rptr. 111 , rev'd on other grounds, Salas v. Cortez (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 22, 34 n.10, 154 Cal. Rptr. 529, 593 P.2d 226 (affirming order denying motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), to vacate and set aside default and default judgment on ground of excusable neglect or mistake); Outdoor Imports, Inc. v. Stanoff (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 518, 522, 86 Cal. Rptr. 593 (affirming order granting motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), to vacate default and default judgment on ground of excusable neglect); Palmer v. Moore (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 134, 142, 71 Cal. Rptr. 801 (affirming order setting aside, on ground of extrinsic fraud or mistake, default and default judgment entered on defendant's failure to answer interrogatories)].

[c] Discretion Is That of Trial Court

The discretion to be exercised is that of the trial court and not that of the reviewing court. Thus, even if the reviewing court might have ruled otherwise in the first instance, the trial court's order will not be reversed unless, as a matter of law, it is not supported by the record [Cochran v. Linn (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 245, 251, 205 Cal. Rptr. 550 ; Guenter v. Lomas & Nettleton Co. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 460, 467, 189 Cal. Rptr. 470 ; Martin v. Johnson (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 604, 151 Cal. Rptr. 816 ; for restrictions on the trial court's exercise of discretion, see § 489.38[4]].

[d] Burden of Proof

All presumptions on appeal will be made in favor of the correctness of the order appealed from, and the burden of showing abuse of discretion rests with the party seeking appellate relief [Lint v. Chisholm (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 615, 620, 177 Cal. Rptr. 314 (burden is on defendant on appeal from order denying motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), to vacate default judgment); see also Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 278, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848 (burden is on plaintiff on appeal from order granting motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), to set aside entry of default and default judgment)].

[e] Ruling on Appeal

If there is any reasonable ground on which the lower court's action may be upheld, the reviewing court must uphold it [A & S Air Conditioning v. John J. Moore Co.(1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 617, 619-620, 7 Cal. Rptr. 592]. Thus, if there is any doubt as to whether the excuse offered is or is not sufficient to justify relief, or whether, in the case of a default judgment, the defense set up is with or without merit when examined under those rules of law by which judges are guided to a conclusion, the judgment of the trial court will not be disturbed. If, however, the appellate court is satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the trial court has come to an erroneous conclusion, the order will be reversed [see Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 526, 190 P.2d 593 (quoting Bailey v. Taaffe (1866) 29 Cal. 422, 424 , and reversing order setting aside default and default judgment on grounds of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect); Martin v. Cook (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 799, 807, 137 Cal. Rptr. 434 (also quoting Bailey; reversing order granting relief, on grounds of inadvertence and mistake, from mandatory dismissal for failure to bring action to trial within five years [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310, 583.360])].

A. Comparison of Methods of Relief From Judgments

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.22

§ 489.22 Review by Mandate

[1] Order Granting Relief

Mandate has been used to review an order granting relief from a default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), when the trial court, in ruling on the motion for relief, failed to exercise its discretion, deferring to what it conceived to be the appellate courts' predisposition in such matters [Gardner v. Superior Court (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 335, 336, 227 Cal. Rptr. 78]. In Gardner, the court of appeal issued a writ of mandate directing the superior court (1) to vacate its order setting aside the default judgment entered on defendants' failure to appear at a trial setting conference or at trial, and (2) to exercise its informed discretion in deciding the matter.

[2] Order Denying Relief

Despite the availability of an appeal (see § 489.18[6]), mandate has been used in unusual circumstances to review an order denying relief. Thus, in Brown v. Superior Court (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 51 Cal. Rptr. 633 , the court of appeal allowed use of a petition for mandate to review an order denying motion to set aside default and default judgment on the ground that the default was void on the face of the record when both the petitioner and real party in interest had assumed the order was not appealable. In Brown, the petition was filed and an alternative writ of mandate issued less than a month after the trial court denied the motion to vacate. If the court had rejected the petition, a notice of appeal could have been filed forthwith, and would have involved questions identical to those fully debated in the mandate proceeding. Under these circumstances the court held it appropriate to grant relief by mandate if relief were otherwise warranted [Brown v. Superior Court (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 522, 51 Cal. Rptr. 633].

In equally unusual circumstances, an appeal from an order denying relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), has been treated as a petition for writ of mandate [In re Marriage of Fuller (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1070, 210 Cal. Rptr. 73]. In this case, the trial court imposed a monetary sanction against both a client and her attorney for failing to comply with discovery orders. The attorney moved for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), on the grounds of mistake, inadvertence, and excusable neglect, and appealed from the trial court's denial of his motion. After ruling that the appeal was authorized but declining to disturb the trial court's ruling, the court of appeal pointed out that the many contentions raised by the attorney on appeal included his contention, made for the first time, that he'd received no prior notice that the trial court intended to impose sanctions against him as well as against the client. The court said this argument could not be considered on appeal from the order denying relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), but that, under the circumstances, it would treat the appeal as a petition for writ of mandate to consider the notice issue, that had been briefed by both parties [In re Marriage of Fuller (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1070, 1072 n.1, 1076, 210 Cal. Rptr. 73].

§ 489.30 Default Defined

"Default" is most commonly used to describe the entry made in the court's records by the clerk when the defendant fails to file a responsive pleading or other authorized paper in response to a complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585]. The term is also used to describe a party's failure to respond to certain discovery proceedings [see, e.g., Janetsky v. Avis (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 799, 803, 804, 222 Cal. Rptr. 342 (affirming order denying relief under former statute from notice of default for failure to respond to request for admissions, and the subsequent summary judgment); Palmer v. Moore (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 134, 137, 71 Cal. Rptr. 801 (affirming order granting relief when defendant failed to answer interrogatories)]. A default judgment entered by the court after striking the defendant's answer as a terminating sanction is a "default judgment" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [Matera v. McLeod (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 44, 62-68, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 331] .

§ 489.31 Default Judgment and Related Judgments Distinguished

Strictly speaking, a default judgment is one rendered against a party who has failed to file a responsive pleading to a complaint or cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585; see also Mosler v. Parrington (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 354, 356, 101 Cal. Rptr. 829 ; Wilson v Goldman (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 573, 576, 79 Cal. Rptr. 309]. However, the judgment entered when a defendant's answer is stricken for failure to respond to discovery motions is also referred to as a default judgment [see, e.g., Palmer v. Moore (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 134, 137, 71 Cal. Rptr. 801]. Moreover, it has been held that an order of dismissal entered for failure to comply with an order compelling answers to interrogatories (although the judgment is entered against a plaintiff rather than a defendant) is the practical equivalent of a default judgment [Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 736, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300].

On the other hand, a judgment rendered for plaintiff when the defendant failed to appear at trial after proper notice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 594(a)] is not a defaultjudgment, but rather a judgment entered after an uncontested trial or hearing [see, e.g., Merrifield v. Edmonds (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 336, 341, 194 Cal. Rptr. 104 ; Wilson v. Goldman (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 573, 577, 79 Cal. Rptr. 309]. Nevertheless, courts sometimes refer to a judgment rendered after any uncontested proceeding as a default judgment [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 87, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 (uncontested hearing on petition for dissolution of marriage)].

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.32

§ 489.32 Relief Grounded on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

A court, on any terms as may be just (see discussions in § 489.33 and § 489.42), may, on application, relieve a party or his or her legal representative from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding taken against the party through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Each of these grounds is separately discussed in § 489.44. Although "excusable" appears only before the word "neglect," relief on the other stated grounds can be granted only when the mistake, inadvertence, or surprise is excusable [Conway v. Municipal Court (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1017, 166 Cal. Rptr. 246 ; see also, e.g., Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 898, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775 (mistake, inadvertence, or general neglect); Beeman v. Burling (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1602, 265 Cal. Rptr. 719 (same); Credit Managers Ass'n v. National Indep. Bus. Alliance (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1166, 1173, 209 Cal. Rptr. 119 (surprise)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) is directed to setting aside valid judgments [People v. One 1941 Chrysler 6 Touring Sedan, 81 Cal. App. 2d 18, 183 P.2d 368].

On its face, Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), provides for relief taken "against" a party. However, relief is also available under the statute to a party in whose favor the judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding was taken [see § 489.47].

The existence of a defense is irrelevant to the critical question of whether the moving party showed his or her failure to act was caused by mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Lipson v. Jordache Enterprises, Inc. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 151, 161, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271 ; Uva v. Evans (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 356, 362, 147 Cal. Rptr. 795].

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.33

§ 489.33 Equitable Relief

The purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) is to enable courts to relieve a party from the consequences of enforcing the strict and technical rules of procedure, by applying equitable rules in any individual case so as to do justice between the litigants [Melde v. Reynolds (1900) 129 Cal. 308, 312, 61 P. 932]. Thus, it has been said that in empowering courts to grant relief upon any terms as may be just, Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) authorizes courts to exercise their equitable powers in considering applications for relief under that statute [see Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 736, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300].

§ 489.34 Relief on Other Grounds

[1] Additional Grounds Available

In an appropriate case, when Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) relief is available for mistake, inadvertence, surprise or excusable neglect, relief may also be available on other grounds. Relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding also may be available under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1 (California court has assumed jurisdiction over party's attorney's law practice), or from a default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 (service of summons did not result in actual notice in sufficient time to defend), or 585.5 (default taken after failure to comply with certain consumer venue statutes), or 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g) (default judgment against defendant who was prejudiced in making a defense by reason of his or her military service), all discussed in § 489.70 et seq.

Relief from an order or judgment, including a default judgment may be available on the ground that the judgment or order is void [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d); § 489.130 et seq.] or that it was obtained by extrinsic fraud or mistake (see [2], below, and § 489.220 et seq.).

[2] Combining Relief in Case of Extrinsic Fraud or Mistake

If the mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect on which a Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) motion for relief is based may have resulted from extrinsic fraud or mistake, relief also may be available in equity. In that event, counsel may wish to combine motions for equitable and statutory relief in one notice of motion. While such a motion would be proper, counsel should keep in mind the separate requirements and limitations that apply to each motion. For discussion of the requirements and limitations applicable to motions for equitable relief, see § 489.260 et seq; see also § 489.39[8].

§ 489.35 Imputation of Attorney's Fault to Client

The mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect of the party's attorney is normally imputed to the party [see, e.g., Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 898, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775 ; Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 626, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42]. However, two situations exist in which the attorney's conduct is not ascribed to the client and relief may be granted when the mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect is that of the attorney and is inexcusable.

The first exception is when the motion is supported by the errant attorney's affidavit or declaration of fault [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), discussed in § 489.40[1]].

The second exception is when the attorney's neglect is so extreme that it amounts to positive misconduct by which the moving party was effectually and unknowingly deprived of representation, and is relatively free from negligence. This exception was first announced in Daley v. County of Butte (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 380, 391, 38 Cal. Rptr. 693 (reversing order denying relief from discretionary dismissal of case for failure to prosecute and directing trial court to vacate order of dismissal), and the cases following it are referred to as the "Daley line of cases" [see e.g., Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 898, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775].

Relief on this ground may be given in the action in which the judgment was entered either under the authority statutorily conferred by Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), or in the exercise of the court's equitable jurisdiction [Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d296, 301, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61 ; see § 489.46[1]].

§ 489.37 Rule of Liberal Construction

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is remedial and is to be liberally construed to bring about a trial on the merits whenever possible [Standard Microsystems Corp. v. Winbond Electronics Corp. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 868, 894, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140 ; Davis v. Thayer (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 904, 170 Cal. Rptr. 328 ; A & S Air Conditioning v. John J. Moore Co. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 617, 619, 7 Cal. Rptr. 592]. Thus, the statute is often applied liberally in the case of default when the defaulting party moves promptly to seek relief, and the party opposing the motion will not suffer prejudice if relief is granted. In these situations, very slight evidence will be required to justify a court in setting aside a default. Moreover, because the law strongly favors trial and disposition on the merits, any doubts in applying Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), must be resolved in favor of the party seeking relief from default [Elston v. City of Turlock (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 227, 233, 211 Cal. Rptr. 416, 695 P.2d 713 ; Fasuyi v. Permatex, Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 681, 696, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 351 ; see also § 489.50].

Despite the rule of liberal construction, relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 cannot be granted for failure to take a jurisdictional step, such as filing a timely notice of motion for new trial [Advanced Building Maintenance v. State Comp. Ins. Fund (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1388, 1393, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 310 (section does not apply to untimely motion to vacate judgment under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 663, 663a)].

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.38

§ 489.38 Discretion of Trial Court

[1] Ruling on Motion for Relief

A motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is addressed to the trial court's sound discretion [Elston v. City of Turlock (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 227, 233, 211 Cal. Rptr. 416, 695 P.2d 713 (trial court abused its discretion in denying motion to set aside deemed admissions on ground of excusable neglect); Lynch v. Spilman (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 251, 257, 62 Cal. Rptr. 12, 431 P.2d 636 (affirming order vacating summary judgment on grounds of inadvertence or excusable neglect of attorneys)]. Thus, the task of whether to grant relief is committed in the first instance to the trial court's discretion; it is the trial judge's responsibility to consider and weigh all the evidence and argument and make a reasoned choice [Gardner v. Superior Court (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 335, 338-339, 227 Cal. Rptr. 78 ; for the effect of the court's exercise of discretion on the issues on appeal, see § 489.21[3]].

[2] When Exercise of Discretion Is Required

In a plain case discretion plays no part. Rather, its exercise is limited to doubtful cases, when an impartial mind hesitates [Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 526, 190 P.2d 593 (quoting Bailey v. Taaffe (1866) 29 Cal. 422, 424)]. Consequently, it has been said that Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), both grants and circumscribes trial court discretion. If a party shows that a judgment has been taken against him or her through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect the court may grant relief or not, in its discretion. However, if a party fails to show that a judgment has been taken against him or her through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, the court has no discretion and may not grant relief [Iott v. Franklin (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 521, 528, 253 Cal. Rptr. 635].

[3] Default Judgments

The same rules apply to defaults and default judgments. A motion to set aside and vacate a default and default judgment, under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court [Monsan Homes, Inc. v. Pogrebneak (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 826, 829, 258 Cal. Rptr. 676 (affirming order denying motion to set aside default and default judgment on ground that neglect of attorney who had not abandoned client was imputed to client; criticized on other grounds in Passavanti v. Williams (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1602, 1608 n.5, 275 Cal. Rptr. 887); Ford v. Herndon (1976) 62 Cal. App. 3d 492, 494, 133 Cal. Rptr. 111 , rev'd on other grounds, Salas v. Cortez (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 22, 34 n.10, 154 Cal. Rptr. 529, 593 P.2d 226 (affirming order denying motion to vacate entry of default and to set aside default judgment on ground that defendant failed to demonstrate excusable neglect or mistake that would warrant relief); Outdoor Imports, Inc. v. Stanoff (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 518, 522, 86 Cal. Rptr. 593 (affirming order granting motion to vacate default and default judgment on ground of excusable neglect)]. For the limited exception to this rule when relief is sought based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see discussion in § 489.40[1].

[4] Limitations on Court's Discretion

The trial court's discretion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is not unlimited and must be exercised in conformity with the spirit of the law and in a manner to subserve and not to impede or defeat the ends of substantial justice [Elston v. City of Turlock (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 227, 233, 211 Cal. Rptr. 416, 695 P.2d 713 ; McCormick v. Board of Supervisors (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 359-360, 243 Cal. Rptr. 617]. Otherwise stated, the discretion intended under the statute is not capricious or arbitrary, but an impartial discretion, guided and controlled by fixed legal principles. It is not a mental discretion, to be exercised as a favor or indulgence, but a legal discretion, to be exercised in conformity with the spirit of the law and in a manner to subserve and not to impede or defeat the ends of substantial justice [Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 898, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775 (reversing order granting relief from judgment of dismissal entered on failure to comply with discovery orders); Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 526, 190 P.2d 593 (reversing order setting aside default and default judgment); Fasuyi v. Permatex, Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 681, 695-696, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 351 (court abused discretion by failing to grant relief from default)].

Thus, while a large amount of discretion is vested in the trial court, the ensuing decision must rest on sound considerations consistent with the showing made for the relief sought [Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 525-526, 190 P.2d 593].

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.39

§ 489.39 Limitations on When Relief Must Be Sought

[1] Six-Month Limitation

An application for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), must be made within a reasonable time [discussed under [2], below], in no case exceeding six months, after the judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding was taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The six-month period is jurisdictional, and the court may not consider any motion made after expiration of that period [Manson, Iver & York v. Black (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 36, 42, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 522 ; Arambula v. Union Carbide Corp. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 333, 344-345, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854 ; Puryear v. Stanley (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 293, 218 Cal. Rptr. 196 ; Stevenson v. Turner (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 318, 156 Cal. Rptr. 499 ; see also Jackson v. Bank of America (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 55, 59, 190 Cal. Rptr. 78 (in the absence of extrinsic fraud [discussed in § 489.243], the six-month limitation of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is jurisdictional); De Mello v. Souza (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 79, 84, 111 Cal. Rptr. 274 (reversing judgment correcting and confirming arbitration award)].

However, after relief is no longer available under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), for mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, relief might still be available under some other statute (see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, discussed in § 489.70) or on the ground that the judgment or order is void (see § 489.130 et seq.). Equitable relief from an otherwise valid judgment also may still be available if the judgment was obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Alexander (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 677, 684, 261 Cal. Rptr. 9 ; Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 737, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300 ; see also § 489.220 et seq.].

[2] Six Months Defined

As used in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), "six months" is the equivalent of half a year, that, under Gov. Code § 6803 (defining "half year"), is the equivalent of 182 days [Davis v. Thayer (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 903, 170 Cal. Rptr. 328].

[3] When Time Commences to Run

The time commences to run when the judgment, dismissal, or order was entered or the proceeding taken. If a default was entered and relief is sought from both the default and the default judgment, the six-month period runs from the date the default was entered, rather than from the date the default judgment was entered, because, for relief to be effective, the default must normally be set aside as well as the judgment [Rutan v. Summit Sports, Inc. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 965, 970, 219 Cal. Rptr. 381 (criticized on another ground in Canadian Commercial Bank v. Ascher Findley Co. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1139, 1152, 280 Cal. Rptr. 521); Weiss v. Blumencranc (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 536, 541, 131 Cal. Rptr. 298 ; Northridge Financial Corp. v. Hamblin (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 825, 122 Cal. Rptr. 109 ; see also Howard Greer etc. Originals v. Capritti (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 886, 888-889, 221 P.2d 937 ; exceptions are discussed in §§ 489.39[9] and 489.40].

However, the default and default judgment are separate procedures. The latter does not necessarily have any bearing on, and may be set aside without disturbing, the former [Rutan v. Summit Sports, Inc. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 965, 970, 219 Cal. Rptr. 381 (criticized on another ground in Canadian Commercial Bank v. Ascher Findley Co. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1139, 1152, 280 Cal. Rptr. 521)]. Thus, if it is merely the default judgment that the moving party wants corrected, for example, it awards relief not requested in the complaint, a motion to vacate the default judgment would be sufficient and it would be unnecessary to move to set aside the default as well (see discussion in § 489.191).

When relief is sought from a judgment other than a default judgment, for example, when the defendant, after answering, failed to appear at trial and the matter proceeded as an uncontested hearing, the period commences to run from the date the judgment was entered [Berman v. Klassman (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 908, 95 Cal. Rptr. 417 (period started running from date the court's formal written judgment was entered, rather than from date of the minute order, because the minute order directed counsel to prepare the judgment in accordance with the minute order's terms for the judge's signature and therefore was not appealable)].

[4] When Motion Is Deemed Made

A motion is deemed to have been made and to be pending before the court when the notice of motion has been duly served and filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005.5; see also Arambula v. Union Carbide Corp. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 333, 340-342, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854 ; Puryear v. Stanley (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 294, 218 Cal. Rptr. 196 ; First Small Business Inv. Co. v. Sistim, Inc. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 645, 648, 90 Cal. Rptr. 798 ; Estate of Parks (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 623, 629, 24 Cal. Rptr. 250], and continuance of the hearing to a date beyond the six-month limit specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), does not affect the motion's timeliness [Estate of Parks (1962) 206 Cal. App. 2d 623, 629, 24 Cal. Rptr. 250].

[5] Reasonable Time Requirement

The statutory six-month limitation in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is a limitation on the power of the court to grant any relief under the statute. However, Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), also requires that the application for relief be made within a reasonable time within that six-month period [Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 528, 530, 190 P.2d 593 ; see also Northridge Financial Corp. v. Hamblin (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 824, 122 Cal. Rptr. 109 ; Hodge Sheet Metal Products v. Palm Springs Riviera Hotel (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 657, 11 Cal. Rptr. 435 ; Baratti v. Baratti (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 917, 921, 242 P.2d 22 ; for exception when motion is for relief from a default and default judgment based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see discussion in § 489.40].

Thus, the "reasonable time" requirement is an independent consideration, whether or not the other party suffered any prejudice from the delay, although if the plaintiff makes no showing of prejudice or that injustice will result from trying the case on its merits, very slight evidence will be required to justify the court in setting aside a default [Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 530, 530-531, 190 P.2d 593 ; see also Elston v. City of Turlock (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 227, 233, 211 Cal. Rptr. 416, 695 P.2d 713 (trial court abused its discretion in denying motion to set aside deemed admissions on ground of excusable neglect); Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 856-857, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 (equitable motion in which court discussed Benjamin, discussed above)].

The trial court's determination as to what constitutes a reasonable time in any given situation, within the maximum six-month period, depends on the circumstances of the particular case [Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 530, 190 P.2d 593]. That is, what constitutes "a reasonable time" under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is a question of fact for the trial court to determine unless the circumstances demonstrate unreasonable delay as a matter of law [Outdoor Imports, Inc. v. Stanoff (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 518, 523, 86 Cal. Rptr. 593 ; see also Berman v. Klassman (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 909, 95 Cal. Rptr. 417]. However, the "busy attorney" reason for delay ("press of business" or "unusual press of business") has been almost uniformly rejected by the courts as a ground for failure to seek relief from a default within a reasonable time [Martin v. Taylor (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 112, 117, 72 Cal. Rptr. 847].

In determining whether relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 from an order denying the original relief because of untimeliness was sought within a reasonable time, the court may take into account the fact that a valid untimeliness argument was raised in opposition papers. When the law governing a deadline is clear, a party would be "well advised" to withdraw the belated motion and move immediately for Code Civ. Proc. § 473 relief or seek to combine the request for relief from missing a deadline under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 relief with the hearing on the belated motion [Lee v. Wells Fargo Bank (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1187, 1200, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726].

The determination of whether a moving party filed for Code Civ. Proc. § 473 relief with reasonable alacrity is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court, whose discretion will not be overturned on appeal absent a clear showing of abuse of discretion [Lee v. Wells Fargo Bank (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1187, 1200, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726].

[6] Diligence Requirement

Because the motion for relief must be made within a reasonable time within the six-month period (see discussion under [5], above), diligence is an essential ingredient of a motion for relief [Caldwell v. Methodist Hospital (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1521, 1524-1525, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 894 ; Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 255, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80 (both involving motion for relief based on attorney's affidavit of fault; for discussion of application of the diligence requirement to such motions, see § 489.40[2]); Ludka v. Memory Magnetics International (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 316, 321, 101 Cal. Rptr. 615 ; Outdoor Imports, Inc. v. Stanoff (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 518, 523, 86 Cal. Rptr. 593 ; Gore v. Witt (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 681, 685, 308 P.2d 770].

Thus, a party seeking relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), ordinarily has the double burden of showing [Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 255, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80 (mistake or inadvertence); Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42 (neglect)]:

- Diligence in making the motion after discovering its own mistake, and
- A satisfactory excuse for the occurrence of that mistake.

The court must generally consider the facts and circumstances of the case to determine whether the party was diligent in seeking relief, and whether the reasons given for the party's mistake are satisfactory [Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 255, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80]. As a result, even if a proper ground for relief might be made out, a motion for relief may still be denied if the moving party failed to exercise diligence in seeking relief [see Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 528, 190 P.2d 593 ; Gore v. Witt (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 681, 685, 308 P.2d 770].

In the case of a default judgment, the diligence requirement applies to the defendant taking timely and adequate steps to retain counsel or to personally act to avoid an undesirable judgment. Unless the defendant shows that, in arranging for a defense, he or she has exercised the reasonable diligence that a person of ordinary prudence usually bestows on important business, the court will deny a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [Davis v. Thayer (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 907, 170 Cal. Rptr. 328 ; see also Gore v. Witt (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 681, 685,308 P.2d 770 ; for exception when motion is based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see discussion in § 489.40[1]].

Although diligence is an essential ingredient of a motion for relief, it is just an ingredient and its existence does not compel relief [Uva v. Evans (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 356, 362, 147 Cal. Rptr. 795].

[7] Effect of Unexplained Delay in Applying for Relief

An unexplained delay within the six-month period may result in denial of relief [see Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 528-533, 190 P.2d 593 (reversing order setting aside default and default judgment because of unexplained 104-day delay in seeking relief, even though motion for relief was served and filed approximately three and one-half months after the default and default judgment were entered and no counteraffidavit was filed in opposition to the motion); Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 254-255, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80 (in reversing order setting aside dismissal of complaint for failure to file amended pleading, court pointed out that plaintiff failed to explain five-month delay in filing the motion for relief; involving motion for relief based on attorney's affidavit of fault; for discussion of application of the diligence requirement to such motions, see § 489.40[2]); A & B Metal Products v. MacArthur Properties, Inc. (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 642, 649, 89 Cal. Rptr. 873 (affirming order denying relief from default and default judgment on ground that motion for relief was not made within reasonable time when default was entered December 26, 1967, judgment was filed January 9, 1968, notice of motion for relief was filed May 7, 1968, and no explanation for delay was given); see also Ludka v. Memory Magnetics International (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 316, 321-322, 101 Cal. Rptr. 615 (three-month unexplained delay in making motion as precluding relief on two of three causes of action; judgment on third cause of action reversed for violation of Code Civ. Proc. § 580 limitation of relief on default to amount demanded in complaint, discussed in § 489.191)].

On the other hand, an unexplained delay in moving for relief within the six-month period may not result in a denial of relief if the denial would result in the enforcement of a judgment that is against public policy [see Berman v. Klassman (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 909-910, 95 Cal. Rptr. 417 (affirming order granting relief from a default judgment, despite 93-day unexplained delay, when to allow the judgment to stand might result in usury law violation)].

[8] Effect of Six-Month Period on Equitable Relief

The six-month period specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), does not act as a statute of limitations as to the grounds of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Desper v. King (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 659, 663, 59 Cal. Rptr. 657]. Thus, after the six-month period has passed, a defendant may still be able to obtain equitable relief based on extrinsic fraud or mistake from a default judgment [see, e.g., Rappleyea v. Campbell (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 975, 981, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669, 884 P.2d 126 ; Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 ; Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 578, 122 P.2d 564]. Although the grounds on which equitable relief may be granted are somewhat narrower, the procedure is essentially the same [In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 148-149, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583].

Hence, it has been held that a motion in a superior court action for relief from a default judgment made more than six months after the default was entered is not directed to the court's statutory power to grant relief for mistake or excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), but rather to the court's inherent equity power under which the court has the power to grant relief from a default judgment when there has been extrinsic fraud or mistake [Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 ; see also Slusher v. Durrer (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 747, 754, 138 Cal. Rptr. 265 ; see § 489.227 (equitable jurisdiction)]. This is true even though the party seeking relief from default, for example, bases his or her motion solely on Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [Davis v. Thayer (1980) 113 Cal.

App. 3d 892, 910, 170 Cal. Rptr. 328 (nevertheless finding equitable relief singularly inappropriate because of defendants' negligence in failing to take any meaningful action to protect themselves after being served with summons and complaint and notice requesting entry of their default)].

In addition, when relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is denied on procedural or jurisdictional grounds, for example, on the ground it was made more than six months after the judgment, order, or proceeding was taken, the order denying relief is not res judicata, and a subsequent action in equity, or motion filed in the same case, based on equitable grounds, may lie [Sternbeck v. Buck (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 829, 831, 307 P.2d 970 ; see also Desper v. King (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 659, 663, 59 Cal. Rptr. 657]. But to the extent that the grounds were litigated on the merits in the Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), motion, the ruling is res judicata in the subsequent equity proceeding [Darlington v. Basalt Rock Co. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 706, 709-710, 10 Cal. Rptr. 556 (involving denial of motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), to vacate and set aside order approving compromise of minor's claim for damages for personal injuries)]. For further discussion of equitable relief and the relationship between the statutory motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and equitable motions, see § 489.263[2].

[9] Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Determining Ownership or Right to Possession of Property

A shorter period than six months may apply in the case of a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding determining the ownership or rightto possession of real or personal property. Without extending the six-month period, if a written notice is personally served in California on both the party against whom the judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding was taken, and on the party's attorney of record, if any, notifying the party and the attorney that the order, judgment, or other proceeding was taken against the party and that any rights the party has to apply for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 expires 90 days after service of the notice, then the application for relief must be made within 90 days after service of the notice on the defaulting party or the party's attorney of record, whichever is later [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Statutory Relief From Valid Judgments and Orders
1. Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.40

§ 489.40 Relief Based on Attorney's Affidavit of Fault

[1] When Relief Is Authorized

[a] Relief Is Mandatory on Proper Application and Affidavit

Notwithstanding any other requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, if an application for relief is made no more than six months after entry of judgment, is in proper form, and is accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, the court must vacate the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]:

- Any resulting default entered by the clerk against the attorney's client that will result in entry of a default judgment, or

- Any resulting default judgment or dismissal entered against the client.

Relief under the mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) is available only if the application is accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit of mistake, inadvertence, surprise or neglect, which resulted in dismissal or default being taken against the client. Admission by counsel that his or her error resulted in the entry of default or dismissal from which relief is sought is indispensable and is commonly referred to as an "attorney affidavit of fault" [State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. v. Pietak (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 600, 608-609, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256 (trial court not required to grant relief where no such affidavit filed by counsel)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 473 does not require California licensure on the part of the affiant in order to invoke the mandatory provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). An affidavit attesting that the default was the product of the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect entitles the defaulting party to mandatory relief if it is executed by an attorney not licensed to practice in California, but licensed in another jurisdiction [Rodrigues v. Superior Court (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1027, 1033-1037, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 194 (attorney licensed in Portugal)].

An attorney affidavit of fault is competent if signed by an attorney representing the client in another action. Thus, for example, an affidavit of fault signed by an attorney who represents a party in a bankruptcy proceeding but not in the civil action is competent to support a party's motion in the civil action for mandatory relief under Code of Civil Procedure § 473(b) [see SJP Limited Partnership v. City of Los Angeles (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 511, 516-520, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 55] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is mandatory and requires the court to grant relief whether the attorney's neglect is excusable or not [Standard Microsystems Corp. v. Winbond Electronics Corp. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 868, 896, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140 ; Metropolitan Service Corp. v. Casa De Palms, Ltd. (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 1481, 1488, 37 Cal.Rptr. 2d 575 (reversing order denying relief); Beeman v. Burling (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1604-1606, 265 Cal. Rptr. 719 (involving provision prior to its 1991 amendment, but involving identical language)]. Thus, the rule requiring relief based on an attorney's affidavit or declaration of fault is a limited exception to the court's discretionary powers (discussed in § 489.38) [Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 255, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80].

Despite the express language of the statute permitting relief from a default "entered by the clerk," relief may be extended to defaults entered by a court when entry of the default does not involve the exercise of discretion [Lorenz v. Commercial Acceptance Ins. Co. (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 981, 990, 995, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 362 (term "clerk" is word of description rather than word of limitation)].

For discussion regarding relief from a judgment or order other than a default, default judgment, or dismissal, when that judgment or order is the functional equivalent of a default, see [b], below.

For a form for a statement that may be used in a declaration fault that may be used in support of a motion for "mandatory" relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see § 489.362.

[b] Proceedings in Which Relief Is Not Authorized

The "mandatory" provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) permits relief only from a "default," "default judgment," or "dismissal" entered "against the client" [see discussion in [a], above].

With respect to dismissals, the mandatory provision affords relief only from those dismissals that are functionally equivalent to a default. That is, mandatory relief is generally limited to set aside only those dismissals in which the client's attorney's has failed, excusably or inexcusably, to respond to a motion to dismiss, and the resulting dismissal therefore deprives the client of his or her "day in court" to adjudicate the matter on the merits [see Huens v. Tatum (1997) 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 438]. For example, relief is not available to set aside the following types of dismissals:

- A dismissal entered after a motion to dismiss, pursuant to an order granting the motion after it was fully litigated by the parties. In particular,relief is not available to set aside a discretionary dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.410 et seq. for delay in prosecution, since all such motions are generally the result of attorney neglect and the court, in hearing the motion to dismiss, has already considered and rejected any mitigating reasons for the delay [Peltier v. McCloud River R.R. Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1809, 1824, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182 ; Graham v. Beers (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1656, 1661, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 765]. It is similarly not available to set aside a mandatory dismissal for delay in prosecution [Bernasconi Commercial Real Estate v. St.Joseph's Regional Healthcare System (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1078, 1080, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475 (dismissal for failure to serve complaint within three years under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210)]. For further discussion of the relationship of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 relief and involuntary dismissal, see § 489.41.

- A dismissal based on a failure to file within the applicable statute of limitations. This, too, usually involves inexcusable neglect either by the client or counsel, and neither the mandatory nor discretionary provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) were intended to allow circumvention of the policy considerations that require rigid enforcement of the limitations statutes [Castro v. Sacramento County Fire Protection Dist. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 927, 929, 934, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 193 ; see Huens v. Tatum (1997) 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 438].

- A dismissal based on failure to serve process within a statutorily required period [Sprague v. County of San Diego (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 119, 133-135, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 517 (failure to serve summons within 90-day period required by Gov. Code § 66499.37)].

- A voluntary dismissal (that is, a dismissal that is not even "against the client" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)) entered pursuant to a settlement between the parties, that was reached after full negotiation proceedings had been conducted [Huens v. Tatum (1997) 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 438 (party was simply attempting to cure counsel's inexcusable neglect in failing to ascertain correct amount of insurance coverage during settlement negotiations)].

- A dismissal after the granting of terminating sanctions for failure to respond to discovery requests or oppose motions to compel discovery, based on an intentional strategic decision [Jerry's Shell v. Equilon Enterprises, LLC (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1058, 1069-1074, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 637] .

The mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) has thus been construed to be limited to defaults, default judgment, and dismissals that are equivalent to a default [see, e.g., Vandermoon v. Sanwong (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 315, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 772 (mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) does not apply to judgment entered after uncontested trial in defendant's absence because judgment is not "default," "default judgment," or "dismissal" within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)); English v. IKON Business Solutions, Inc. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 130, 136-149, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 93 (mandatory provision of § 473(b) inapplicable to granting of summary judgment)].

Note that some courts have applied the mandatory relief provision in other proceedings in which the functional equivalent of a default has occurred, depriving the client of any opportunity to litigate on the merits. For example, in one case the appellate court held that the mandatory provision was available to set aside a summary adjudication, when it had resulted from a failure of the opposing party's counsel to file any timely response to the motion. This court deemed this situation to be equivalent to a default because the trial court, as a result, determined the summary adjudication motion solely on the basis of the moving party's papers and there was no litigation on the merits [Avila v. Chua (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 860, 868, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 373 ; see also In re Marriage of Hock & Gordon-Hock (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1438, 1443-1444, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 546 (failure of attorney formally retained a week prior to appear at trial because he was not advised of trial date by former counsel); Yeap v Leake (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 591, 600-601, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680 (mandatory relief applied to plaintiff whose opportunity to participate in arbitration was lost due to negligence of counsel and award became final due to attorney misfeasance)]. Other courts have taken issue with these decisions and construe the word "dismissal" in the mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) not to encompass a judgment to which a court had determined the defendant is entitled as a matter of law based on undisputed facts before the court, so that a summary judgment is not a "dismissal" within the meaning of section 473(b) [English v. IKON Business Solutions, Inc. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 130, 136-149, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 93 (mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) inapplicable to granting of summary judgment; expressly disagreeing with Avila, Yeap, and In re Marriage of Hock & Gordon-Hock)]. The same court also held that the mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) does not apply to a judgment entered after an uncontested trial in a defendant's absence, because the judgment is not a "default," "default judgment," or "dismissal" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [Vandermoon v. Sanwong (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 315, 319-321, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 772 (defendants whose attorney did not inform them of trial date were not entitled to have amended judgment issued after uncontested trial set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); expressing disagreeing with In re Marriage of Hock & Gordon-Hock)].

Otherwise, the mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) does not apply to set aside other types of judgments or orders. In particular, the mandatory provision is not intended to be used as an "escape hatch," by which a party maycorrect inexcusably negligent acts or mistakes made by his or her counsel in the course of litigating a matter on the merits. The client's remedy is these situations is an action against his or her counsel for malpractice. Neither mandatory nor discretionary relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) is available, for example, to set aside a summary judgment that was entered after the opposing party's counsel did in fact oppose the motion, but the opposition papers submitted were inexcusably insufficient. This is "not a default but rather a motion lost, on its merits, after opposition was filed" [Garcia v. Hejmadi (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 674, 681-685, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228 ; see also In re Marriage of Hock & Gordon-Hock (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1438, 1444, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 546 ; see Brown v. Williams (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 182, 189, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634 (plaintiff's counsel failed to timely request trial de novo after plaintiff appeared and participated in arbitration hearing); Bernasconi Commercial Real Estate v. St. Joseph's Regional Healthcare System (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1078, 1080, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 475 (dismissal for delay in service of summons); Huens v. Tatum (1997) 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 438 (mandatory provision does not apply to set aside a summary judgment or a judgment after trial)]. Similarly, the mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) does not apply to a judgment entered after an uncontested trial in a defendant's absence because such a judgment is not a "default," "default judgment," or "dismissal" within the meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [Vandermoon v. Sanwong (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 315, 319-321, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 772 (defendants whose attorney did not inform them of trial date were not entitled to have amended judgment issued after uncontested trial set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b))].

The mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) also does not apply to an attorney's failure to timely file opposition and a cross-motion to a motion to enforce a settlement [Hossain v. Hossain (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 454, 457-459, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 356].

For forms statements that may be used in declarations opposing a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see § 489.370.

[c] Causation in Fact Required

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), which mandates the court to grant relief unless it finds that the default was not in fact caused by lawyer error, is not only a credibility testing device but also "a causation testing device" [Standard Microsystems Corp. v. Winbond Electronics Corp. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 868, 900-901, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140 ; Milton v. Perceptual Development Corp. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 861, 867, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 98]. Therefore, the court is not required to vacate the default, default judgment, or dismissal if it finds that the default was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see, e.g., Cisneros v. Vueve (1995) 37 Cal. App. 4th 906, 909, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682 (section does not afford relief to client who, after inexcusably allowing his or default to be entered, hires attorney whose neglect results in default judgment)]. However, mandatory relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) does not require that the attorney be solely responsible for the entry of default; relief can be granted when default is entered as a result of a combination of attorney and client fault. Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) merely requires that the attorney's conduct be a cause in fact of the entry of default when the client's conduct contributing to entry of default is not intentional [Benedict v. Danner Press (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 923, 923-932, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896].

The appellate court will affirm the trial court's finding on the causation issue so long as it is supported by substantial evidence [Benedict v. Danner Press (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 923, 928, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896].

A lawyer's negligence need not be the only proximate cause of a client's injury so long as there is causation in fact [Milton v. Perceptual Development Corp. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 861, 867 & n.5, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 98 (applying rule from legal malpractice context; rejecting contention that client represented by more than one lawyer cannot obtain relief unless all counsel submit affidavit of fault)].

[2] Time Limitation

Prior to the 1991 amendment of former Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)], which added a specific six-month limitation, the provision required that the motion be "timely." Under the former language, it was held that the "reasonable time" requirement, as well as the "in no case exceeding six months" requirement set forth earlier in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), applied to a motion based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, and, therefore, did not alter the diligence requirement applied to other Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) motions. Thus, the court could still refuse to entertain the matter if the motion itself was not "timely," that is, not diligently made within the six-month period [Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 258, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80 ; see § 489.39[6]].

In 1991, after Billings was decided, the legislature amended Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to replace the word "timely" with the phrase "made no more than six months after entry of judgment" in the sentence dealing with relief based on an attorney affidavit. The argument might be made that the Legislature intended to override Billings and to eliminate the diligence requirement by adding this phrase without using the "reasonable time" phrase that appears earlier in the same paragraph. However, the court in Caldwell v. Methodist Hospital (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1521, 1524-1525, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 894 , relied on Billings in rejecting a motion for relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault filed three months after the action was dismissed. The Caldwell opinion did not address this change in the language of Code Civ. Proc. § 473.

The six-month period starts to run when the judgment is entered. If that time limit is met and the court grants relief based on the attorney's affidavit of fault, Code Civ. Proc. § 473 requires the court to set aside the default as well as the default judgment [Sugasawara v. Newland (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 294, 297, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 484].

[3] Award of Fees and Costs to Opposing Counsel or Parties

Whenever relief is granted on an attorney's affidavit (or declaration) of fault, the court must direct the attorney to pay reasonable compensatory legal fees and costs to the opposing counsel or parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see also discussion in § 489.42].

[4] Relief to Be Nonconditional

When a court grants relief from a default or default judgment pursuant to Code Civ.Proc. § 473(b), based on the affidavit (or declaration) of the defaulting party's attorney attesting to the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, the relief is not to be made conditional on the attorney's payment of compensatory legal fees or costs or monetary penalties imposed by the court or on compliance with other sanctions ordered by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(c)(2)].

[5] Attorney Acting in Pro Per

The mandatory relief provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), requiring a court to vacate a default when an application for relief is accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, applies only in the case of an attorney representing a client. The discretionary provision applies to a party, including a party appearing in propria persona, and an attorney representing a party, whereas the mandatory provision applies only to an attorney representing a party. An attorney who brings an action both on the attorney's own behalf and on behalf of others, such as a taxpayer in a representative capacity, similarly is not entitled to mandatory relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). In this case, if the attorney binds other taxpayers by the action, the attorney does so as a fellow taxpayer, not as an attorney for the taxpayers [Esther B. v. City of Los Angeles (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1099-1100, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 596].

II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Statutory Relief From Valid Judgments and Orders
1. Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.41

§ 489.41 Relief From Involuntary Dismissals

With respect to involuntary dismissals for failure to prosecute (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 581, 583.110 et seq.), Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) enables a plaintiff to file belated opposition to the motion to dismiss after having failed, through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, to oppose the motion to dismiss, or failed to make the showing he or she could have made at the hearing on the motion. Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) does not provide grounds to oppose a motion to dismiss for failure to prosecute; it merely allows the belated contest on the dismissal motion on its merits [Peltier v. McCloud River R.R. Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1809, 1821, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182 (dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.410); Graham v. Beers (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1656, 1661, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 765 (dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.410); Tustin Plaza Partnership v. Wehage (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1557, 1565-1566 , 33 Cal. Rtpr. 2d 366; Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 253, 256, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80 (dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 583(f)(2)); Wilcox v. Ford (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1170, 1176-1178, 254 Cal. Rptr. 138 (dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310)].

This result is not changed by the 1992 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), adding the word "dismissal" to the list of matters from which relief is available [Peltier v. McCloud River R.R. Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1809, 1824, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182 ; Graham v. Beers (1994) 30 Cal. App. 4th 1656, 1661, 36 Cal. Rptr. 2d 765 ; see Tustin Plaza Partnership v. Wehage (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1557, 1564 , 33 Cal. Rtpr. 2d 366 (dicta)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 473, as amended, does not lengthen the time, however, within which an action may be brought to trial pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 (mandatory dismissal for failure to bring action to trial within five years) [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

Although the Court of Appeal of the Third Appellate District has said that a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) may be filed in opposition to a motion to dismiss for lack of prosecution and may be heard and considered contemporaneously with it [Martin v. Cook (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 799, 804 n.3, 137 Cal. Rptr. 434], this statement was characterized in Wilcox as dictum and rejected as an erroneous statement of the law [Wilcox v. Ford (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1170, 1178-1179, 254 Cal. Rptr. 138 (Court of Appeal, Second Appellate District, Division Four)].

For procedure and forms for use on a motion to dismiss for lack of prosecution, see Ch. 212, Dismissal .

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.42

§ 489.42 Terms and Penalties Imposed When Relief Is Granted

[1] Costs, Attorney's Fees, and Nonmonetary Conditions

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), permits the court to grant relief "upon any terms as may be just." This phrase has been construed to allow an award of costs or attorney's fees to the adverse party to compensate that party for any losses or expenses occasioned by the motion [Jade K. v. Viguri (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 1474, 258 Cal. Rptr. 907 (holding that as a condition to relief from default, intervener was to pay plaintiff reasonable costs and attorney's fees in an amount to be determined by superior court; criticized on other grounds in Passavanti v. Williams (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1602, 1608 n.5, 275 Cal. Rptr. 887); Hearst v. Ferrante (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 234 Cal. Rptr. 385]. For discussion of when a written statement of reasons is required, see [4], below. For the effect of conditions on the appealability of the order, see § 489.18[5][b]. For the award of fees and costs that may be imposed on granting relief from a default or default judgment based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see § 489.40[3].

Nonmonetary conditions on the granting of relief may also be imposed when dictated by fairness [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Helsel (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 332, 340-341 n.7, 243 Cal. Rptr 657 (on setting aside stipulated order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), trial court as properly considering whether fairness required relieving opposing party from other parts of stipulation)].

[2] Penalty on Relief From Default Judgment

Whenever the court grants relief from a default, default judgment, or dismissal based on any of the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, the court may also do any of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(c)(1); see also discussion under [4], below]:

- Impose a penalty of no greater than $1,000 on an offending attorney or party.

- Direct that the offending attorney pay an amount no greater than $1,000 to the State Bar Client Security Fund.

- Grant any other appropriate relief.

[3] Penalty for Bad Faith Actions or Tactics

Apart from Code Civ. Proc. § 473(c)(1), a trial court may order a party, the party'sattorney, or both to pay any reasonable expenses, including attorney's fees, incurred by another party as a result of bad faith actions or tactics that are frivolous or solely intended to cause unnecessary delay [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(a); see Hearst v. Ferrante (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 234 Cal. Rptr. 385]. The term "actions or tactics" includes the making or opposing of motions [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(b)(1)].

Sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 apply only to actions or proceedings pending as of December 31, 1994. Actions or proceedings filed after that date are subject to sanctions under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.5(b)(1), 128.7(i)]. For discussion of Section 128.5 and 128.7 sanctions, see Ch. 510, Sanctions .

[4] Court's Statement of Reasons

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), empowers the trial court to award attorney's fees, due process requires that the court provide a written statement of reasons for the award when the fees are imposed as sanctions. This requirement affords a safeguard against an abuse of the trial court's discretion and permits appellate review of that decision [Hearst v. Ferrante (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 234 Cal. Rptr. 385].

By statute, an order imposing expenses under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 (see [3], above) must be in writing and recite in detail the conduct or circumstances justifying the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(c)]. An order lacking this statement cannot stand [Hearst v. Ferrante (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 234 Cal. Rptr. 385 ; see also County of Imperial v. Farmer (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 479, 486, 252 Cal. Rptr. 382].

When imposing Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 sanctions, the court is required to describe the conduct determined to have violated Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7 and explain the basis for the sanction imposed [Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(e)].

§ 489.43 Treating Motion for Relief as Motion for New Trial

An order setting aside a default judgment may, in an appropriate case, be treated as a proper exercise of the trial court's authority to grant a newtrial (or more precisely, in the context of a default judgment, a new judgment hearing) if the damages awarded are excessive as a matter of law [see Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 699, 702-706, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581].

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.44

§ 489.44 Grounds for Relief

[1] Mistake

[a] Kinds of Mistakes

Mistakes are of two kinds: mistakes of fact and mistakes of law.

A mistake of fact occurs when a person understands the facts to be other than they are. A mistake of law occurs when a person knows the facts as they really are but has a mistaken belief as to the legal consequences of those facts [Hodge Sheet Metal Products v. Palm Springs Riviera Hotel (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 656, 11 Cal. Rptr. 435 ; Baratti v. Baratti (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 917, 921, 242 P.2d 22].

Mere mistake does not warrant relief unless, on a consideration of all the evidence, it is found to be excusable [Martin v. Taylor (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 112, 113, 72 Cal. Rptr. 847]. Thus, a party who seeks relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), on the basis of mistake must generally demonstrate that the mistake was excusable [Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 898, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775].

Frequently, a motion for relief will be based both on mistake and on one or more of the other grounds listed in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), that is, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [see, e.g., Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 253, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80 (mistake or inadvertence); Martin v. Johnson (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 605, 151 Cal. Rptr. 816 (mistake and inadvertence); Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 300-302, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61 (mistake and surprise); Martin v. Taylor (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 112, 115, 72 Cal. Rptr. 847 (mistake and excusable neglect)].

[b] Mistake of Fact

[i] General Examples

Generally, relief may be had from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding resulting from reasonable mistakes of fact [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Vacation of Order Striking Cost From Plaintiff's Cost Bill. A trial court issued an order striking the cost of a transcript from the plaintiff's cost bill on the ground that the item was not allowable because the transcript had not been ordered by the court. The plaintiff moved to vacate the order after it was later discovered that the court did order the transcript. May the plaintiff's motion be granted? Yes. A Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) motion is proper to vacate an order striking a cost when the court's order results from a reasonable mistake of fact [see Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 226 (reversing order denying motion to vacate)].

ILLUSTRATION: Vacation of Voluntary Dismissal. Plaintiff dismissed her lawsuit regarding a portion of real property, intending to forclose on a deed of trust that she held. She later learned, however, that a prior trust deed on the property had foreclosed, rendering the security valueless. Plaintiff moved to vacate the judgment, should her motion be granted? Yes. The trial court granted the motion to vacate the judgment of dismissal for mistake of fact, and the court of appeal affirmed [see Salazar v. Steelman (1937) 22 Cal. App. 2d 402, 409-410, 71 P.2d 79].

For a statement that may be used in a declaration supporting a motion for relief under Section 473(b), based on excusable mistake of fact, see § 489.361[1].

[ii] Examples Regarding Defaults and Default Judgments

In the case of default, relief based on mistake of fact has been granted when the defendant or his or her attorney was reasonably mistaken as to:

- The fact of service [see Riskin v. Towers (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 274, 278-279, 148 P.2d 611 (reversing order denying relief)], or

- The date of service [see, e.g., Miller v. Carr (1897) 116 Cal. 378, 381, 48 P. 324 ; Gore v. Witt (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 681, 684-687, 308 P.2d 770].

ILLUSTRATION:

Default Entered Because of Client's Mistake Regarding Date Summons Was Served. Defendant's counsel filed a demurrer on what the attorney believed was the last day to file the demurrer. Counsel discovered, however, that defendant mistakenly wrote the wrong date on the summons. The summons was served on June 24th instead of June 25th. A default was entered and defendant's counsel moved for relief. The court denied the motion. Was the court's order denying relief proper? No. Relief from default is proper when an attorney's mistake as to date of service is result of "inadvertence or negligence" on his or her client's part as to the date of service [see Miller v. Carr (1897) 116 Cal. 378, 381, 48 P. 324 ; see also Gore v. Witt (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 681, 684-687, 308 P.2d 770 (actual date was May 7 instead of May 17, and complaint failed to state facts sufficient to constitute cause of action)].

Other examples of cases in which relief from a default or default judgment has been granted for mistake of fact include the following:

- Because of a misunderstanding between the defendant and his or her secretary [see Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 526-528, 190 P.2d 593 (order granting relief reversed on because moving party lacked diligence)];

ILLUSTRATION:

Defendant's Secretary Filed Papers in Office File Instead of Forwarding Them to Counsel. A summons and a complaint was served on defendant's secretary. The secretary placed the documents in defendant's office file instead of forwarding them defendant's attorney. After a default was entered, defendant sought relief from the default. Should relief be granted? Yes. The court ordered that the default be set aside based on defendant's mistake of fact permitting relief [see Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 526-528, 190 P.2d 593 (although mistake was established, order granting relief was reversed for lack of diligence in seeking relief [see discussion in § 489.39[6]])].

- The defendant mistakenly believed that the papers served on him related to a lien claim not requiring immediate attention, put them away for later attention, and then misplaced them [Hodge Sheet Metal Products v. Palm Springs Riviera Hotel (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 657-658, 11 Cal. Rptr. 435 (affirming order setting aside default and default judgment)]; and

- The defendants did not realize they had a meritorious defense to the action because the complaint was misleading [Brill v. Fox (1931) 211 Cal. 739, 743, 297 P. 25 (reversing order denying relief from default in mortgage foreclosure action)].

For discussion of the client's mistake in relying on an attorney who has abandoned him or her, see § 489.46.

[c] Attorney's Mistake of Fact

When the mistake is not that of the party but that of his or her attorney, it appears that there is greater tolerance in granting relief, as the courts are somewhat loath to penalize a litigant on account of some omission on the attorney's part, particularly if the party has acted promptly and has relied on the attorney to protect his or her rights [Dingwall v. Vangas, Inc. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 108, 113, 32 Cal. Rptr. 351 (order granting relief from default and default judgment affirmed when failure to answer complaint was principally due to failure of liaison between attorney fully familiar with case in turning it over to another attorney, and mistake was of type that reasonably prudent attorneys make); see also Martin v. Johnson (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 604, 151 Cal. Rptr. 816 (nevertheless finding attorney's mistake in filing affidavits containing hearsay in opposition to summary judgment motion not excusable)].

However, the client is charged with the acts of his or her attorney, and thus, to secure relief, the client must show that the attorney's mistake or neglect was excusable [Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 898, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775 (reversing order setting aside dismissal for failure to comply with discovery order); Martin v. Cook (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 799, 809, 137 Cal. Rptr. 434 (criticized on another ground in Wilcox v. Ford (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1170, 1178, 254 Cal. Rptr. 138)]. In Martin the court of appeal held that counsel's mistake in believing that a stipulation waiving the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 583(a) (providing for dismissal when action is not brought to trial within two years [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.410, 583.420(a)(2)(B)]) waived the provisions of former Code Civ. Proc. § 583(b) (providing for mandatory dismissal when action is not brought to trial within five years [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310, 583.360]) was inexcusable and, hence, no ground for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), for failure to bring the action to trial within five years [Martin v. Cook (1979) 68 Cal. App. 3d 799, 810, 137 Cal. Rptr. 434 (reversing order granting relief on grounds of inadvertence and mistake)].

The mistake of a paralegal who is on the attorney's staff is attributable to the attorney for purposes of relief from a default judgment [Hu v. Fang (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 61, 64-66, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 756 (paralegal's calendaring mistake was attributable to attorney)].

For discussion of relief from a default judgment that may be granted when the attorney files an affidavit or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 attesting to his or her mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)], see § 489.40[1].

[d] Mistake of Law

Relief may be had from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding resulting from reasonable mistakes of law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)], but they present a more difficult issue than mistakes of fact. Although mistakes of law may warrant relief in proper cases, a mistake as to the law does not require relief as a matter of law [City of Ontario v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 335, 346, 85 Cal. Rptr. 149, 466 P.2d 693 ; A & S Air Conditioning v. John J. Moore Co. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 617, 620, 7 Cal. Rptr. 592].

The line between a mistake of law and ignorance of the law is somewhat tenuous [Security Truck Line v. Monterey (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 441, 445, 257 P.2d 755]. Mere ignorance of the law coupled with negligence in ascertaining it will not justify relief, and will sustain an order denying relief [Martin v. Johnson (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 605, 151 Cal. Rptr. 816 (affirming order denying motion to set aside summary judgment on grounds of inadvertence and mistake in filing affidavits based on hearsay in response to summary judgment motion); A & S Air Conditioning v. John J. Moore Co. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 617, 620, 7 Cal. Rptr.592 (affirming order denying relief from a default judgment on the ground that defendants' attorney believed that the award of attorney's fees in default matters were the same in county in which action was filed as in county in which defendants and attorney lived, when in fact they were higher); Security Truck Line v. Monterey (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 441, 445, 257 P.2d 755 (affirming order denying relief from default based on city attorney's mistaken belief that an appeal from an order granting a preliminary injunction operated as a stay of all proceedings in the main action)].

To warrant relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), the attorney's mistake of law must be of a type that prevented a party from presenting his or her case in court [see Guenter v. Lomas & Nettleton Co. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 460, 466, 189 Cal. Rptr. 470 (trial court did not err in denying relief from order striking unauthorized pleading)], or resulted from an honest and reasonable mistake of law on a complex and debatable issue that resulted in the judgment, order, or proceeding against the client [see City of Ontario v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 335, 346, 85 Cal. Rptr. 149, 466 P.2d 693] (trial court did not abuse its discretion in relieving plaintiffs from their mistake of law resulting in failure to comply with certain statutory requirements for publication of summons in action against city); State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. v. Pietak (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 600, 611-615, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256 (complexity of whether to assert cross claims in interpleader action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 386, 426.30(a) or separate action); Miller v. City of Hermosa Beach (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 1136, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 408 ; McCormick v. Board of Supervisors (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 360, 362, 243 Cal. Rptr. 617] (in mandate proceeding under California Environmental Quality Act [Pub. Res. Code § 21000 et seq.] reversing order denying relief from dismissal for noncompliance with Pub. Res. Code § 21167.4 [failure to request hearing within 90 days of filing petition] resulting from attorney's reasonable mistake of law); Brochtrup v. INTEP (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 323, 329, 235 Cal. Rptr. 390 (reversing summary judgment for plaintiff, based primarily on matters deemed admitted arising from improper response to plaintiff's request for admissions, with directions to trial court to vacate its order denying motion forrelief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), based on mistake of law, from default resulting from improper response, to grant motion, and to file defendants' responses that were attached to motion for reconsideration, subsequently filed by substituted attorney, and properly verified)].

The issue as to whether a mistake of law is excusable presents a fact question, the determining factors of which are the reasonableness of the misconception and the justifiability of the attorney's failure to determine the correct law [City of Ontario v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 335, 346, 85 Cal. Rptr. 149, 466 P.2d 693 ; Miller v. City of Hermosa Beach (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 1118, 1136, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 408 ; McCormick v. Board of Supervisors (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 360, 243 Cal. Rptr. 617 ; A & S Air Conditioning v. John J. Moore Co. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 617, 620, 7 Cal. Rptr. 592 (affirming order denying relief)].

There is, of course, no requirement that the mistake of law be mutual [A & S Air Conditioning v. John J. Moore Co.

(1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 617, 620, 7 Cal. Rptr. 592]. Moreover, a mistake of law may be excusable when made by a layperson but not when made by an attorney [Tammen v. County of San Diego (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 468, 479, 58 Cal. Rptr. 249, 426 P.2d 753].

For discussion of relief from a default judgment that may be granted when the attorney files an affidavit or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 attesting to his or her mistake [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)], see § 489.40[1].

[e] Mistake of Court

Relief cannot be granted under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), for mistakes of the court, or of the court and the adverse party, in issuing erroneous orders [Consolidated Const. Co. v. Pacific E. Ry. Co. (1920) 184 Cal. 244, 247, 193 P. 238]. That is, Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), has no application to judicial mistakes, but only to mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect of the moving party [Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 702, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581].

Nevertheless, a court has power, independently of statute, to set aside a judgment entered through the court's mistake or inadvertence; that is, when the court is deceived or is laboring under a mistake or misapprehension as to the state of the record or as to the existence of extrinsic facts on which it is predicated, it has inherent power to vacate a judgment that would not otherwise have been rendered [Key System Transit Lines v. Superior Court (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 184, 187-188, 222 P.2d 867 ; see Badella v. Miller (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 81, 87, 279 P.2d 729 (discussing when notice and hearing are necessary); see also discussion in § 489.10].

[2] Inadvertence

Relief may be had from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding resulting from inadvertence [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Inadvertence is a lack of heedfulness or attentiveness, inattention, or fault from negligence [Dingwall v. Vangas, Inc. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 108, 113, 32 Cal. Rptr. 351 ; Kooper v. King (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 621, 626, 15 Cal. Rptr. 848 ; Hodge Sheet Metal Products v. Palm Springs Riviera Hotel (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 656, 11 Cal. Rptr. 435 ; Baratti v. Baratti (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 917, 921, 242 P.2d 22]. Mere inadvertence does not warrant relief, however, unless, on a consideration of all the evidence, it is found to be excusable [Martin v. Taylor (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 112, 113, 72 Cal. Rptr. 847]. Thus, the reasons, the causes, and the excuses for the inadvertence are matters that concern the court. Inadvertence in the abstract is no plea on which to set aside a default. The moving party must acquaint the court with the reasons for the inadvertence and, if satisfactory, the court will act on them and relieve the party from the burdens caused by them. If the inadvertence is wholly inexcusable, however, as when it arises from gross negligence, the court will not look on it kindly, and will have none of it [Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 624, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42 (quoting Davis v. Thayer (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 905, 170 Cal. Rptr. 328 , which in turn was quoting Shearman v. Jorgensen (1895) 106 Cal. 483, 485, 39 P. 863)].

Rather than treating inadvertence as a distinct ground for relief, courts most often consider it in conjunction with the grounds of excusable neglect [see, e.g., Lynch v. Spilman (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 251, 258, 62 Cal. Rptr. 12, 431 P.2d 636 ; Kooper v. King (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 621, 626, 15 Cal. Rptr. 848 ; Gore v. Witt (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 681, 685, 308 P.2d 770], mistake [see. e.g., Martin v. Johnson (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 595, 605, 151 Cal. Rptr. 816 (mistake of law); Martin v. Cook (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 799, 802, 137 Cal. Rptr. 434 (mistake of fact)], or surprise [see, e.g., Yarbrough v. Yarbrough (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 610, 613, 301 P.2d 426 (inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect)]. Thus, unless it is shown that there were circumstances that would render the mistake, surprise, or negligence excusable, relief will be denied. For example, mere forgetfulness, such as misfiling or mislaying of plaintiff's complaint and summons, is not a sufficient ground for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [Kooper v. King (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 621, 627, 15 Cal. Rptr. 848].

For discussion of relief from a default judgment that may be granted when the attorney files an affidavit or declaration attesting to his or her inadvertence [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)], see § 489.40[1].

[3] Surprise

[a] In General

Relief may be had from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding resulting from surprise [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Surprise is often coupled with excusable neglect as grounds for relief [see, e.g., Lint v. Chisholm (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 615, 620, 177 Cal. Rptr. 314 (surprise and excusable neglect); Yarbrough v. Yarbrough (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 610, 612-613, 301 P.2d 426 (inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect)] or with mistake [see Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 302, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61].

For discussion of relief from a default judgment that may be granted when the attorney files an affidavit or declaration attesting to his or her surprise [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)], see § 489.40[1].

[b] Surprise Defined

"Surprise" means some condition or situation in which a party is unexpectedly placed to his or her injury, without any fault or negligence of his or her own, that ordinary prudence could not have guarded against [see Credit Managers Ass'n v. National Indep. Bus. Alliance (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1166, 1173, 209 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; Lint v. Chisholm (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 615, 620, 177 Cal. Rptr. 314].

[c] Examples of Surprise

Examples of surprise include the following:

- In an action by an assignee for the benefit of creditors for breach of contract between the defendant and the assignor, the assignee was taken by surprise when the defendant filed a cross complaint against the assignor and took the assignor's default with no notice to the assignee [Credit Managers Ass'n v. National Indep. Bus. Alliance (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1166, 1172-1173, 209 Cal. Rptr. 119 (reversing orders denying plaintiff's motion for relief from the default and default judgment and to be substituted in place of the assignor and to defend against the cross complaint)].

- When settlement negotiations are pending between counsel and there is an oral or implied understanding that notice would be given before a default would be taken, the plaintiff's taking of a default without prior notice to the defaulting party or to his or her attorney may constitute excusable neglect or surprise that will support relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see Yarbrough v. Yarbrough (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 610, 616, 301 P.2d 426 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 587 (regarding notice of request for entry of default, but also providing that nonreceipt of notice does not invalidate or constitute ground for setting aside any judgment)].

Failure to receive a notice will not always constitute surprise from which relief will be available. For example, neither surprise nor excusable neglect was established when the defendant's failure to receive notice of trial, which resulted in a judgment for plaintiff, was caused by the defendant's failure to notify the court of a change of address or otherwise arrange for the forwarding of mail [Lint v. Chisholm (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 615, 620, 177 Cal. Rptr. 314 (trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying motion to vacate default and set aside default judgment entered on defendant's failure to appear at trial)].

[4] Excusable Neglect

[a] In General

Relief may be had from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding resulting from "excusable neglect" [Code

Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The statute itself expressly requires that the person who seeks relief on this ground show that the neglect was "excusable" [Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 279, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848]. Thus, mere neglect does not warrant relief unless, on a consideration of all the evidence, it is found to be excusable [Martin v. Taylor (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 112, 113, 72 Cal. Rptr. 847]. In seeking relief, counsel will often couple excusable neglect with one or more of the other grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), as a basis for granting relief (that is, mistake, inadvertence, or surprise, discussed under [1] through [3], above).

In considering whether attorney error constitutes excusable neglect, the court must consider the attorney's overall diligence in prosecuting the case [McCormick v. Board of Supervisors (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 361, 243 Cal. Rptr. 617 (citing Bettencourt v. Los Rios Community College Dist. (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 270, 278, 228 Cal. Rptr. 190, 721 P.2d 71); see also Cabamongan v. City of Long Beach (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 946, 950-951, 256 Cal. Rptr. 621].

For discussion of relief that may be granted a party based on attorney abandonment, see § 489.46[1]. For discussion of relief from a default judgment that may be granted when the attorney files an affidavit or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 attesting to his or her "neglect" [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)], see § 489.40[1].

For statements that may be used in a declaration supporting a motion for relief under Section 473(b), based on excusable neglect, see § 489.361[2], [5].

[b] What Constitutes Excusable Neglect

To be excusable, the neglect must have been the act or omission of a reasonably prudent person under the same circumstances [Beeman v. Burling (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1602-1603, 265 Cal. Rptr. 719 (quoting Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 279, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848); see also Lint v. Chisholm (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 615, 620, 177 Cal. Rptr. 314 (omitting "or omission" from the statement of the rule)].

[c] Examples of Excusable Neglect

[i] Attorney Illness

Illness of the attorney that actually disables him or her from timely compliance with the statutory rules of procedure constitutes excusable neglect if he or she moves promptly for relief as soon as the disability terminates or attenuates to the extent that a reasonable person under similar conditions would take action for relief [Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 280, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848 (reversing order setting aside default and default judgment)]. In such case, the court will examine the nature of the illness as described and then consider if the illness was so disabling that the neglect consisted only of acts or omissions of a kind that a reasonably prudent practitioner in similar circumstances would commit. If the neglect consisted of both excusable and inexcusable acts or omissions, the court will consider which part caused the default [Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 286-287, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848].

[ii] Reliance on Third Party

Generally, neglect to act to prevent entry of a default or to seek relief from a default judgment, may constitute excusable neglect when it was due to the defendant's reasonable reliance on a third party to defend [see, e.g., Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 (involving relief in equity on ground of extrinsic mistake; see § 489.220 et seq. for further discussion of relief in equity); Fasuyi v. Permatex, Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 681, 696-701, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 351 (relief granted when insurer failed to act to prevent default); see also § 489.361[2] (form of statement in supporting declaration that default was due to defendant's excusable neglect in reasonably relying on promise of codefendant or employer to defend)]. Thus, a defendant who relied on a codefendant or employer to defend the action need show only that his or her reliance was reasonable without inquiring into the conduct of the codefendant or employer [Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 700, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581].

However, the neglect of the defendant's insurer to defend after the defendant notified the insurer of the action and service of process is imputed to the defendant who must show not only reasonable reliance on the carrier to defend, but justification for the carrier's inaction as well, that is, that the insurer's failure was excusable [see Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 701, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581].

[iii] Misinformation

Neglect to act to prevent entry of a default or to seek relief from a default judgment may constitute excusable neglect when it was due to the defendant's reasonable reliance on misrepresentations made by the opposing party or his or her attorney [see Nelson v. Southerland (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 140, 141-142, 9 Cal. Rptr. 735 (affirming order granting relief from default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), without specifying ground for relief)].

Relief may also be granted on the ground of excusable neglect when a party's failure to appear at trial was due to reliance on misinformation provided by a court officer [see Lynch v. de Boom (1915) 26 Cal. App. 311, 314, 146 P. 908 (reversing order denying motion to vacate judgment of dismissal on ground that plaintiff's failure to appear at trial resulted from excusable neglect in relying on misinformation given to him by courtroom clerk); see also § 489.361[5]].

[iv] Multiple Factors

Excusable neglect may result from a combination of several factors. For example, in a case involving multiple plaintiffs, numerous causes of action, and a complex and developing field of law, plaintiffs' attorney submitted a detailed declaration, in support of a motion for relief from dismissal for failure to have timely filed an amended complaint, listing the following factors which the court held sufficient to establish excusable neglect [see Contreras v. Blue Cross of California (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 945, 951, 245 Cal. Rptr. 258 (rejecting defendant's claim that defendant should have been allowed to depose plaintiffs' counsel and subpoena her files to impeach her claim of workload)]:

- Counsel was the sole counsel from her firm assigned to the case.
- Fifty-eight individual plaintiffs remained active members of the lawsuit;
- Her firm broke up the month before the amended complaint was due, leaving three attorneys with the work of five.
- In the same month, she received an appellate opinion that required her to prepare a petition for hearing to the Supreme Court.
- She conferred with 40 of the plaintiffs to prepare answers to interrogatories due the same day the amended complaint was due.
- The issues raised by the case and the prior demurrer were very complex.
- 10 days before the amended complaint was due, she fractured her right elbow and wrist, leaving her in a sling and substantially impairing her mobility and writing ability.
- On the day the amended complaint was due she tried to obtain an extension of time from a court commissioner but he refused to entertain it.

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.45

§ 489.45 Inexcusable Neglect

[1] As Preventing Relief

Inexcusable neglect prevents relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), based on excusable neglect, and, as a general rule, an attorney's inexcusable neglect is chargeable to the client, whose remedy is an action against the attorney for malpractice[Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 895, 898, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775 ; Beeman v. Burling (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1602, 265 Cal. Rptr. 719 ; Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 700, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581]. For discussion of relief based on neglect, whether excusable or inexcusable, when the party's attorney files an affidavit or declaration attesting to his or her fault, see § 489.40[1]. For discussion of relief on the ground of attorney abandonment, see § 489.46[1].

If the neglect is inexcusable, a judgment may not be set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) on the ground that the other side has not been prejudiced [Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 900, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775].

[2] Examples of Inexcusable Neglect

[a] In General

Examples of inexcusable neglect include the following:

- A mere showing, in an effort to set aside a summary judgment, that the opposing party's attorney had negligently failed to present a particular argument in the papers which the attorney filed in opposition to the motion for summary judgment. The advancement of arguments by counsel is the very essence of the attorney's professional responsibilities and the failure to do so appropriately is not excusable [Garcia v. Hejmadi (1997) 58 Cal. App. 4th 674, 684-685, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 228].

- A mere showing that defendant, after being served, mislaid the summons and complaint and did not find them until after default had been entered, at which time he consulted an attorney [Yarbrough v. Yarbrough (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 610, 615, 301 P.2d 426 (reversing order granting relief; noting that a trial court does not have legal power to set aside a default simply because the defendant did not realize the legal effect of failing to file an answer); additional facts may make the case eligible for relief as a mistake (see, e.g., Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 526-528, 190 P.2d 593 , and other cases discussed in § 489.44[1][b][ii])].

- Defendant's attorney assumed opposing counsel had granted extensions of time to file an answer because, in an effort to request such extensions, the attorney had placed telephone calls to, but did not speak with, and had written letters to, but did not receive any answers from, opposing counsel [Iott v. Franklin (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 521, 531, 253 Cal. Rptr. 635 (reversing order granting relief)].

- Failure to file an answer because of an erroneous assumption that the case was moot [Jackson v. Bank of America (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 55, 58, 190 Cal. Rptr. 78 (reversing order granting relief from default on grounds that no excusable neglect was shown and that motion was untimely)].

- After having been given an extension of time to file, failure to file an answer because the attorney's office was disrupted by his having to seek new offices and the defendants had decided not to file the answer as they were considering filing a petition for bankruptcy [Northridge Financial Corp. v. Hamblin (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 823-824, 122 Cal. Rptr. 109 (affirming order denying relief)].

- Defendant's declaration that, after he was served with the summons and complaint, he forgot about the matter because of Christmas season business pressures, the serious illness of his father, who subsequently died, and the recent death of his mother [Bellm v. Bellia (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 1036, 1038, 198 Cal. Rptr. 389].

[b] Clerical Errors

The courts may show a willingness to excuse an attorney's neglect caused by clerical errors of the attorney's office staff. However, the existence of other factors may result in the denial of relief. Thus, in Davis v. Kay (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 680, 682-684, 110 Cal. Rptr. 198 , the appellate court reversed an order granting a motion to vacate a summary judgment for plaintiff based on the neglect of defendants' attorney's secretary to calendar the date of the hearing on the summary judgment motion, because [Davis v. Kay (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 680, 682-684, 110 Cal. Rptr. 198 (noting that the "tactics of counsel for respondents was to proceed with all deliberate delay" and that the court would "not tolerate such tactics")]:

- A default judgment in the same action had been set aside for excusable neglect attributable to the same secretary's mistake in recording the date for the answer to be filed;

- The secretary's declaration supporting the motion to vacate the summary judgment implicitly admitted that the attorney handling the case had examined the summary judgment motion and its contents whenit was received, knew or could have known without effort that it was to be heard in just 10 days, and that the points and authorities and exhaustive declarations with extensive exhibits attached to the motion would require substantial time for preparation of answers; and

- Defendants' attorneys were notified of the court's adverse ruling on the summary judgment motion two days after it was made and took no action to vacate it for another 23 days.

[c] Press of Business

Generally, the attorney's neglect caused merely by the press of other business or similar procrastination will not support the client's motion for relief based on excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), absent some further showing of excuse [Bellm v. Bellia (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 1036, 1038, 198 Cal. Rptr. 389 (affirming default judgment and order denying motion to set it aside); Martin v. Taylor (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 112, 117, 72 Cal. Rptr. 847 (affirming order denying motion to set aside default and default judgment on grounds of excusable neglect and mistake)]. Conversely, press of business coupled with unusual circumstances may justify relief [see § 489.361[3] (form of statement in supporting declaration that default ws due to attorney's excusable neglect resulting from press of business coupled with unusual circumstances)].

1. Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.46

§ 489.46 Attorney Abandonment

[1] Rule

As a general rule, the mistake authorizing relief may not be predicated on the neglect of a party's attorney unless shown to be excusable, because the attorney's negligence is imputed to the client and may not be offered by the latter as a basis for relief [Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 301, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61 ; see also Freedman v. Pacific Gas & Electric Co. (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 696, 705, 242 Cal. Rptr. 8 ; Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 738, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300]. However, as an exception to that rule, relief is available if the attorney's neglect is of that extreme degree amounting to positive misconduct by which the moving party was effectually and unknowingly deprived of representation, and the person seeking relief is relatively free from negligence [see Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 898, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775 (reversing order granting relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)); Tunis v. Barrow (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1078, 229 Cal. Rptr. 389 (reversing order denying Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 relief [discussed in § 489.70 et seq.] and equitable grounds [discussed in § 489.220 et seq.] from default and default judgment); see also People v. One Parcel of Land (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 579, 584, 286 Cal. Rptr. 739 (affirming order granting equitable relief on ground of attorney abandonment)].

This exception to the normal rule that the attorney's conduct is imputed to the client was first announced in Daley v. County of Butte (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 380, 391, 38 Cal. Rptr. 693 , and the cases following it are referred to as the "Daley line of cases" [see Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 898, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775]. The exception is premised on the concept that the attorney's conduct, in effect, obliterates the existence of the attorney-client relationship, and for this reason the attorney's negligence should not be imputed to the client [Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 898, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775 ; Monsan Homes, Inc. v. Pogrebneak (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 826, 829, 258 Cal. Rptr. 676) (criticized on other grounds in Passavanti v. Williams (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1602, 1608 n.5, 275 Cal. Rptr. 887)].

Positive misconduct is found if there is a total failure on the part of counsel to represent his or her client [Aldrich v.

San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 739, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300 (affirming order granting relief from dismissal on equitable grounds)]. However, the client's own negligence in following up and pursuing his or her case is scrutinized [see Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 738, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300].

This exception is to be narrowly applied to guard against negligent attorneys finding that the simplest way to rescue clients from defaults and themselves from malpractice liability is to rise to ever greater heights of incompetence and professional irresponsibility while, nonetheless, maintaining a beatific attorney-client relationship [Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 900, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775].

[2] Example

As an example, a motion for relief from a judgment against plaintiffs and cross defendants entered after they failed to appear at trial has been held to have been properly set aside on the grounds of mistake and surprise when it was shown that the attorney failed to notify the plaintiffs of the trial date, did not himself appear, regarded the attorney-client relationship as nonexistent, was not representing plaintiffs as their attorney, although he purported to do so, and plaintiffs had no reason to believe he would not represent them, believed he was representing them, were free from any negligence in failing to appear, and acted diligently to have the judgment vacated after learning from the defendant and cross complainant that it had been entered [Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 301-302, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61]. In such a case, the fact that the attorney's neglect in failing to notify plaintiffs of the trial date was inexcusable is irrelevant tothe issue [Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 302, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61].

[3] Motion for Relief

Relief from the client's mistake in believing the attorney was properly representing the client may be had either by a timely motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), or by a court in the exercise of its equitable jurisdiction (discussed in § 489.220 et seq.) [Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 301, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61 (equitable grounds of extrinsic surprise or mistake); see also Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 738, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300 (equitable ground of extrinsic mistake); Orange Empire Nat. Bank v. Kirk (1968) 259 Cal. App. 2d 347, 352-353, 66 Cal. Rptr. 240 (reversing order denying motion to vacate default and set aside default judgment; noting that motion made more than six months after entry of default was not directed to court's power to grant relief for mistake or excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), but to court's inherent equitable power to grant relief); Daley v. County of Butte (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 380, 391, 38 Cal. Rptr. 693 (Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) motion)].

B. Statutory Relief From Valid Judgments and Orders
1. Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.47

§ 489.47 Who May Seek Relief

[1] Party to Action or Legal Representative

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), by its express terms, is intended to benefit the party against whom a judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding was taken and his or her legal representative. However, a party in whose favor an order or judgment was taken, as well as the party against whom it was taken, is entitled under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), to seek relief from it in an appropriate case [Olson v. Olson (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 479, 482-483, 306 P.2d 1036 ; see also Stevens v. Stevens (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 426, 429, 74 Cal. Rptr. 54].

The term "legal representative," has been interpreted with considerable liberality to permit one who would not normally be considered a "representative" of a party but has a sufficient interest in the action to bring a motion for relief [Clemmer v. Hartford Insurance Co. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 865, 885, 151 Cal. Rptr. 285, 587 P.2d 1098]. Clemmer, which involved the defendant's liability insurer, cited cases permitting the following persons to bring a motion [Clemmer v. Hartford Insurance Co. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 865, 885, 151 Cal. Rptr. 285, 587 P.2d 1098]:

- A trustee in bankruptcy as successor of the bankrupt party;
- A successor in interest to property;
- A person who obtained a bond to release an attachment of defendant's property in which he had contractual rights; and
- A person contesting the appointment of another as guardian and seeking appointment himself.

The term includes, for example, the assignee or grantee of a defaulting party in regard to the thing assigned or granted [see Credit Managers Ass'n v. National Indep. Bus. Alliance (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1166, 1171-1172, 209 Cal. Rptr. 119 (in a breach of contract action, plaintiff, an assignee for the benefit of creditors, had standing to move for relief from default and default judgment taken against the assignor, without notice to the plaintiff, on a cross complaint filed by the defendant after the assignment had become effective)].

[2] Nonparty to Action

An interested nonparty may intervene [Code Civ. Proc. § 387] in an action after judgment and move for relief from the judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) when the judgment was taken through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [see, e.g., Jade K. v. Viguri (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 1468, 1470, 1473-1474, 258 Cal. Rptr. 907 (intervention by defendant's insurer to move to vacate default judgment against defendant; criticized on other grounds in Passavanti v. Williams (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1602, 1608 n.5, 275 Cal. Rptr. 887)].

Though preferable, moving to intervene may not be essential. Prior to its 1977 amendment to allow intervention on "timely application," Code Civ. Proc. § 387 allowed intervention only before trial. Nonetheless, some cases allowed a nonparty adversely affected by a judgment to become a party to an action by moving to vacate the judgment without first moving to intervene [see Elliott v. Superior Court (1904) 144 Cal. 501, 509, 77 P. 1109 ; Skolsky v. Electronovision Productions, Inc. (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 246, 249-250, 62 Cal. Rptr. 91 ; but see Drinnon v. Oliver (1972) 24 Cal. App. 3d 571, 585, 101 Cal. Rptr. 120 , disapproved on other grounds in Johnson & Johnson v. Superior Court (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 243, 255 n.7, 211 Cal. Rptr. 517 (intervention not proper after trial had been concluded and judgment rendered)]. Both the trial and appellate courts in at least one more recent reported case reached the merits of a Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), motion to vacate a judgment made by a nonparty who did not move to intervene [see Sunseri v. Camperos Del Valle Stables, Inc. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 559, 561, 230 Cal. Rptr. 23 (appellate court pointed out that the trial court had not ruled on standing to set aside the judgment, but had rejected the motion on its merits; appellate court, likewise, did not rule on standing and affirmed the order on the merits)]. Formally moving to intervene under Section 387 would appear to be the prudent procedure, however.

For further discussion of intervention and forms for use to seek intervention, see Ch. 395, Parties .

§ 489.48 Relief on Court's Own Motion Prohibited

A court cannot of its own motion grant relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), because its jurisdiction to do so depends on the filing of an application for such relief, and a showing made of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Remainders, Inc. v. Superior Court (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 411, 412, 13 Cal. Rptr. 221].

§ 489.49 Showing Required on Motion for Relief

[1] Basis for Relief

To secure relief from a default, default judgment, or dismissal based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, the moving party must show that the default judgment or dismissal resulted from the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see § 489.40[1]].

To secure relief from a default, default judgment, or dismissal not based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, or from any other judgment, order, or proceeding, the party must present to the court a reasonable excuse, based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [see § 489.44], that prevented the party from presenting his or her case to the court or from making the showing he or she could have made [see Wilcox v. Ford (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 1170, 1176, 254 Cal. Rptr. 138 ; Guenter v. Lomas & Nettleton Co. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 460, 466, 189 Cal. Rptr. 470]. If relief is sought from a default or default judgment the moving party must show that the mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect was the actual cause of the party's failure to appear [Hodge Sheet Metal Products v. Palm Springs Riviera Hotel (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 657, 11 Cal. Rptr. 435 ; Baratti v. Baratti (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 917, 921-922, 242 P.2d 22]; that is, the party must show good cause for the default [see Lynch v. Spilman (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 251, 256, 62 Cal. Rptr. 12, 431 P.2d 636 ; see also Elston v. City of Turlock (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 227, 234, 211 Cal. Rptr. 416, 695 P.2d 713 (moving party must submit affidavits or testimony demonstrating a reasonable cause for default)].

The moving party must also show that if granted relief, he or she has a meritorious defense to the plaintiff's cause of action on the merits (see discussion in § 489.53) or to the other proceeding leading to the judgment, order, or proceeding from which relief is sought [see Lynch v. Spilman (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 251, 256, 62 Cal. Rptr. 12, 431 P.2d 636].

[2] Timeliness of Motion

The moving party must show that the motion for relief is timely, that is, the motion was not only made within the six-month period, but also that it was made within a reasonable time within that period [see discussion in § 489.39[5]; see also Elston v. City of Turlock (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 227, 233, 211 Cal. Rptr. 416, 695 P.2d 713] . For discussion of the time requirement regarding motions for relief from a default or default judgment based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see § 489.40[1].

[3] Diligence in Seeking Relief

For the motion to be filed within a reasonable time within the six-month period, the moving party must have acted diligently in seeking the relief (see discussion in § 489.39[6]). Thus, the circumstances of any delay in applying for relief after receiving notice of the entry of the order or judgment should be explained in an affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002, 2003, 2009] or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] supporting the motion for relief or by testimony presented at the hearing, if allowed [see Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 529, 190 P.2d 593 ; A & B Metal Products v. MacArthur Properties, Inc. (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 642, 649, 89 Cal. Rptr. 873 ; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1306]. However, this rule apparently does not apply to motions for relief from a default, default judgment, or dismissal based on an attorney's affidavit of fault (see § 489.40[1]).

[4] Effect of Absence of Prejudice to Adverse Party

On a motion for relief from a default judgment, when there is no showing that the party opposing the motion will suffer any prejudice if relief is granted, very slight evidence will be required to justify a court in setting aside the default [Elston v. City of Turlock (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 227, 233, 211 Cal. Rptr. 416, 695 P.2d 713 (holding trial court abused its discretion in denying motion to set aside deemed admissions on ground of excusable neglect); Berri v. Rogero (1914) 168 Cal. 736, 740, 145 P. 95 (affirming order setting aside default and vacating judgment based on inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect); see also Jade K. v. Viguri (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 1473, 258 Cal. Rptr. 907 (reversing order denying intervener's motion for relief, based on excusable neglect, from default judgment against defendant; Viguri was criticized on other grounds in Passavanti v. Williams (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1602, 1608 n.5, 275 Cal. Rptr. 887); Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 302-303, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61 (affirming order setting aside judgment on ground of attorney abandonment)]. However, the required showing of compliance with the reasonable time requirement (discussed under [2], above) is not obviated by the rule that very slight evidence is required to justify a court's granting relief from a default judgment when the plaintiff files no counteraffidavits or counterdeclarations and makes no showing that he or she has suffered any prejudice or that injustice will result fromthe trial of the case on its merits [Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 531, 190 P.2d 593].

§ 489.50 Burden of Proof

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is remedial and liberally construed (see discussion in § 489.37), the moving party has the burden of showing that the judgment, dismissal, or order was entered through the party's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, as the case may be [see Luz v. Lopes (1960) 55 Cal. 2d 54, 62, 10 Cal. Rptr. 161, 358 P.2d 289 ; Iott v. Franklin (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 521, 528, 253 Cal. Rptr. 635 ; Davis v. Thayer (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 904, 170 Cal. Rptr. 328]. That is, the moving party must affirmatively show that the situation clearly falls within one of the foregoing categories [Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 623-624, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42]. The moving party's burden is to establish his or her position by a preponderance of the evidence [Luz v. Lopes (1960) 55 Cal. 2d 54, 62, 10 Cal. Rptr. 161, 358 P.2d 289 ; Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 279, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848]. This applies to the party moving for relief from a default and default judgment taken against the party through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 624, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42 (initial burden is on moving party to prove excusable neglect by a preponderance of the evidence); Barragan v. Banco BCH (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 283, 300, 232 Cal. Rptr. 758 (burden is on moving party to show good cause for relief)].

1. Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.51

§ 489.51 Application for Relief

[1] Procedure

Relief is obtained by application [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see § 489.360[1] (form of notice of motion and supporting declaration in proceedings for relief based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect or attorney's affidavit of fault)], that is, by the service and filing of a noticed motion [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1003, 1005(a)(12), (13), 1010]. Thus, the party seeking relief must cause to be served on the adverse party's attorney, or on the adverse party if he or she has no attorney, and file with the court, a notice of motion stating the order sought, the grounds for its issuance, and the papers on which the motion is based [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010-1013, 1015; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(a)(2), 3.1113(a), 3.1300; see also, e.g., Outdoor Imports, Inc. v. Stanoff (1970)7 Cal. App. 3d 518, 522, 86 Cal. Rptr. 593]. For the requirements of a motion for relief from a default judgment based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, see the discussion in § 489.40[1].

[2] Specification of Grounds

Although relief may be granted on any one of the four grounds set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), the grounds often overlap (see discussion in § 489.44[1]). Consequently, it is not uncommon for a party, in applying for relief under that statute, to base his or her motion on two or more of the grounds [see, e.g., Kooper v. King (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 621, 625, 15 Cal. Rptr. 848 (inadvertence and excusable neglect); Yarbrough v. Yarbrough (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 610, 613, 301 P.2d 426 (inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect); see also discussion under § 489.44], or on all of the listed grounds [see, e.g., Riskin v. Towers (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 274, 275, 148 P.2d 611 ; Brill v. Fox (1931) 211 Cal. 739, 740, 297 P. 25 ; Northridge Financial Corp. v. Hamblin (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 822, 122 Cal. Rptr. 109 ; Dingwall v. Vangas, Inc. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 108, 110, 32 Cal. Rptr. 351 ; A & S Air Conditioning v. John J. Moore Co. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 617, 619, 7 Cal. Rptr. 592 ; Gore v. Witt (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 681, 683, 308 P.2d 770 ; Security Truck Line v. Monterey (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 441, 444, 257 P.2d 755].

§ 489.52 Supporting Papers

[1] Affidavits, Declarations, and Points and Authorities

The notice of motion must be accompanied by affidavits [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002, 2003, 2009] or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] or both setting forth the facts necessary to establish the grounds of the motion and showing that the motion is timely [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(a)(2), 3.1115, 3.1306; see, e.g., Benjamin v. Dalmo Mfg. Co. (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 523, 526-528, 190 P.2d 593]. If subject to the civil law and motion rules [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(a)] or if required by local court rule, it must also be accompanied by a memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(a)(2), 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010; see also, e.g., Outdoor Imports, Inc. v. Stanoff (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 518, 522, 86 Cal. Rptr. 593 ; Skolsky v. Electronovision Productions, Inc. (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 246, 251, 62 Cal. Rptr. 91]. For discussion and forms relating to memoranda generally, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[2] Attorney's Affidavit of Fault

If the motion is for relief from a default or a default and a default judgment and is based on an attorney's affidavit of fault (see Code Civ. Proc.§ 473(b), and discussion in § 489.40[1]), the affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) of fault must accompany the notice of motion [see Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 256, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80].

[3] No Affidavit of Merits Required

No affidavit, or declaration, of merits is to be required of the moving party [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Case law long held that the motion must be accompanied by an affidavit, or declaration, of merits [see Woodward v. Backus (1862) 20 Cal. 137, 140-141 ; see also First Small Business Inv. Co. v. Sistim, Inc. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 645, 649, 90 Cal. Rptr. 798], but with respect to motions under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), this requirement was abrogated by a 1981 amendment (Stats. 1981, ch. 122) of Section 473 expressly to provide that no affidavit or declaration of merits shall be required of the moving party.

Chapter 489 RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Statutory Relief From Valid Judgments and Orders
1. Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.53

§ 489.53 Pleading Proposed to Be Filed

[1] When Pleading Is at Issue

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), requires that the application for relief be accompanied by a copy of the answer or other pleading proposed to be filed (but see discussion under [4], below) or the application will not be granted [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. However, at the hearing on the motion for relief the court's inquiry is limited to whether the pleading contains a statement of facts sufficient to constitute a meritorious case, that is, a meritorious claim or defense, and the truth concerning the meritorious case is not at issue [Ludka v. Memory Magnetics International (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 316, 323, 101 Cal. Rptr. 615].

[2] When Pleading Is Not at Issue

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), on its face, authorizes relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding. Thus, it has been held that:

- A motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is not limited to cases in which a pleading is the issue, but authorizes relief from other matters as well, such as the effect of a delay in taking procedural steps that do not involve pleadings, for example, to relieve a party from a failure to file a timely cost bill or to relieve a party from an order taxing costs [Spellens v. Spellens (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 210, 227-228, 317 P.2d 613]; and

- When the judgment resulted from the failure to file a paper other than a pleading, or the filing of a defective paper, a copy of the paper or corrected paper must accompany the notice of motion [see, e.g., Brochtrup v. INTEP (1987) 190 Cal App. 3d 323, 333, 235 Cal. Rptr. 390 (properly verified responses to request for admissions); Estate of Parks (1962) 206 Cal App. 2d 623, 632, 24 Cal. Rptr. 250 (order granting relief in probate case affirmed, although proposed objection to report of inheritance tax appraiser was not filed until after trial court had granted relief but was specified in verified application for relief and in supporting declaration)].

[3] Purpose of Requirement

The plain object of the Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), requirement that a copy of the pleading accompany the application for relief is simply to require the delinquent party seeking leave to contest on the merits, to show his or her good faith and readiness to file the answer at once if leave is granted by producing a copy of the proposed answer for the adversary and the court to inspect [Job v. Farrington (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 338, 341, 257 Cal. Rptr. 210 , quoting County of Los Angeles v. Lewis (1918) 179 Cal. 398, 400, 177 P. 154].

[4] When Proposed Pleading Must Be Filed

The courts of appeal appear to agree that the proposed pleading need not be filed with the notice of motion for relief, but are in conflict as to whether the pleading must be filed within the six-month period.

Thus, the Court of Appeal of the Third Appellate District has ruled that, although a motion for relief from default and a default judgment is timely filed, the trial court is without jurisdiction to grant relief when the defendant fails to serve and file the proposed answer or other responsive pleading with the motion for relief or within the six-month period prescribed by the statute [Puryear v. Stanley (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 291, 293-295, 218 Cal. Rptr. 196 (distinguishing County of Los Angeles v. Lewis (1918) 179 Cal. 398, 399, 177 P. 154 , and Sousa v. Capital Co. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 744, 759-761, 34 Cal. Rptr. 71 (both involving substantial compliance with the statute)]. In Puryear, the court affirmed the order denying relief from default and default judgment on the ground that, although the motion was timely filed, the proposed answer was not filed until after the six-month limitation period had passed.

However, the Court of Appeal of the Second Appellate District, Division Six, relying on the cases distinguished by Puryear, rejected Puryear and ruled to the contrary in a case involving substantially similar circumstances [Job v. Farrington (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 338, 340-341, 257 Cal. Rptr. 210]. In Job v. Farrington, the court reversed the order denying relief from default and default judgment when the motion for relief was timely filed within six months of entry of the default, but the proposed answerwas not filed until after the six-month period had passed, although it was filed before the scheduled hearing on motion [Job v. Farrington (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 338, 340-341, 257 Cal. Rptr. 210].

Citing Job, the Fifth District held that a party substantially complies with the "accompanied by" requirement by filing the proposed answer sufficiently in advance of the hearing to permit the other party to prepare for the hearing [County of Stanislaus v. Johnson (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 832, 838, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 73]

[5] Possible Constitutional Exception to Requirement

It has been held that to require showing a meritorious defense on a defendant's motion for relief from a default judgment in an action in which the trial court never acquired personal jurisdiction over the defendant, that is, when the judgment is void for lack of personal jurisdiction, would violate procedural due process and cannot constitutionally be required [see Peralta v. Heights Medical Center, Inc. (1988) 485 U.S. 80, 86, 108 S. Ct. 896, 99 L. Ed. 2d 75]. Although a motion for relief from such a judgment, which although void in fact is not void on its face, would more appropriately be made under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), that does not require the submission of a proposed answer or other pleading, or by a motion directed to the court's equity jurisdiction based on extrinsic fraud or mistake [for a discussion of attacks on void judgments and orders, see § 489.130 et seq., and for discussion of attacks in equity, see § 489.220 et seq.], it would nevertheless appear that such a motion could also be made under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), based on surprise or excusable neglect.

§ 489.55 Motions to Reconsider

Motions to reconsider are authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 1008. Section 1008 provides that when an application for an order has been refused in whole or in part, or granted, or granted conditionally, or on terms, any party affected by the order may, within 10 days after knowledge of the order and based on an alleged new or different state of facts, circumstances, or law, apply to the same judge who made the order to reconsider the matter and modify, amend, or revoke the prior order [Code Civ. Proc. § 1008(a)]. The motion must be supported by an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) showing what application was made before, when and to what judge, what order or decision was made on it, and what new or different facts, circumstances or law are claimed to be shown [Code Civ. Proc. § 1008(a)]. It would appear that if the conditions of the statute are met a party could move to reconsider an order granting or denying relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), although it would also appear that the motion would have to be made within the six-month limitation specified in Section 473(b) as well as within the 10-day limitation of Section 1008(a) [see discussion under § 489.56]. For further discussion and a form of motion to reconsider, see Ch. 374, Motions to Reconsider and Renewed Motions .

§ 489.56 Renewed Motions

When a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is denied and a different state of facts, circumstances, or law exists that would support the granting of the motion, a party may renew his or her motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 1008(b). Section 1008(b) provides that, when the party who originally applied for an order that was refused in whole or in part, or granted conditionally or on terms, makes a subsequent application for the same order on an alleged different state of facts, circumstances, or law, it shall be shown by affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) what application was made before, when and to what judge, what order or decision was made on it, and what new facts, circumstances, or law are claimed to be shown [Code Civ. Proc. § 1008(b)].

This provision for renewal of an earlier motion is not subject to the 10-day limitation governing motions to reconsider under Code Civ. Proc. § 1008(a), discussed in § 489.55 [Monsan Homes, Inc. v. Pogrebneak (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 826, 831, 258 Cal. Rptr. 676 (criticized on other grounds in Passavanti v. Williams (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1602, 1608 n.5, 275 Cal. Rptr. 887)]. However, the renewed motion is subject to the six-month limitation provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) and hence must be made within that period [Northridge Financial Corp. v. Hamblin (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 825, 122 Cal. Rptr. 109 (treating motion to reconsider as renewed motion)].

§ 489.70 Relief From Default or Default Judgment if Summons Did Not Result in Actual Notice in Time to Defend

When service of the summons did not result in "actual notice" to a party in time to defend, and a default or default judgment was entered against the party, the party may move to set aside the default and any resulting default judgment and for leave to defend the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(a); see § 489.380[1] (form of notice of motion for use in proceedings to set aside default and default judgment when service of summons did not result in actual notice to defendant in time to defend)]. A noticed motion is expressly required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(a), (b)]. Notice of the motion must be served and filed at least 16 court days before the time appointed for the hearing, but if service is by mail, the required 16-day period of notice is increased by five calendar days if the place of mailing and place of address are in California, 10 calendar days if either the place of mailing or place of address is outside California but in the United States, and 20 calendar days if either the place of mailing or the place of address is outside the United States. If notice is served by fax, express mail, or other overnight delivery method, the 16-day period is extended by two calendar days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(10), (b)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 is directed to setting aside valid judgments [People v. One 1941 Chrysler Sedan (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 18, 21, 183 P.2d 368 (involving former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a, predecessor to Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5)]. It does not apply to a motion to set aside a default founded on a fraudulent return of service [In re Marriage of Smith (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 543, 545, 555, 185 Cal. Rptr. 411], that is void in fact but not on its face. Such a judgment may, however, be attacked under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) (discussed in § 489.130 et seq.), in which case the time limitation imposed by Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 would apply by analogy (see discussion in § 489.142[2], [6]). Such a judgment may also be attacked by a motion or action in equity (discussed in § 489.220 et seq.).

2. Relief on Other Grounds
a. Service of Summons Did Not Result in Actual Notice in Time to Defend

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.71

§ 489.71 "Actual Notice" Defined

"Actual notice," as used in the statute, does not mean constructive notice, but, rather, genuine knowledge of a party litigant. Thus, "actual notice" does not include imputed notice, such as the notice imputed to a client from his or her attorney's actual notice [Rosenthal v. Garner (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 891, 895, 191 Cal. Rptr. 300 ; see also Tunis v. Barrow (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1077, 229 Cal. Rptr. 389]. Moreover, it has been held that if a court has acquired jurisdiction, that is, summons has been served, but service of summons has not resulted in actual notice to a defendant, the fact that the defendant has acquired actual knowledge of the lawsuit from another source does not necessarily preclude the defendant from seeking relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 [Olvera v. Olvera (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 32, 40, 283 Cal. Rptr. 271]. On the other hand, knowledge from a source other than service of summons does not require the trial court to grant relief under all circumstances. Thus, for example, if the trial court can reasonably conclude the defendant had actual notice in time to defend, the court need not grant relief [see, e.g., Ellard v. Conway (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 540, 547-548, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 399].

Obvious examples of a kind of service that may not result in actual notice to the defendant in time to defend would include the following:

- Service of summons by publication [see, e.g., Olvera v. Olvera (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 32, 35-36, 283 Cal. Rptr. 271 ; Tunis v. Barrow (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1074, 229 Cal. Rptr. 389 ; Rosenthal v. Garner (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 891, 894, 191 Cal. Rptr. 300];

- Service on a domestic corporation, whose designated agent for service cannot be found, by delivery of the summons to the California Secretary of State pursuant to Corp. Code § 1702 [see, e.g., Tunis v. Barrow (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1073, 229 Cal. Rptr. 389];

- Service on an out-of-state motorist involved in an vehicular accident in California by delivery of the summons to the California Director of Motor Vehicles [see Veh. Code §§ 17450-17456]; or

- Misdirected combined substituted and mail service pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20 [see, e.g., Kodiak Films, Inc. v. Jensen (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1260, 1261-1262, 281 Cal. Rptr. 728].

For additional examples of service on a defendant by delivery of the summons to a state official, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

A copy of the answer, motion, or other pleading proposed to be filed is required to be served and filed with the notice of motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(b) ; *see Sakaguchi v. § 489.74 Showing Meritorious Defense

[1] Requirement

In addition to the statutory requirements, it has been held that the defendant must also show that he or she has a meritorious defense and that this may be shown by a verified answer denying essential allegations of the complaint [see, e.g., Goya v. P.E.R.U. Enterprises (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 886, 890-891, 151 Cal. Rptr. 258 ; Brockman v. Wagenbach (1957) 152 Cal. App. 2d 603, 612, 313 P.2d 659 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a); Thompson v. Sutton (1942) 50 Cal. App. 2d 272, 277-279, 122 P.2d 975 (same); see also Rosenthal v. Garner (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 891, 898, 191 Cal. Rptr. 300 (a proposed verified answer denying each cause of action and an affirmative defense as sufficient to show a meritorious defense)]. However, Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 does not by its terms require that the proposed answer be verified, although, if the complaint is verified, or is filed by a specified public entity, the answer would have to be verified under Code Civ. Proc. § 446.

Moreover, in at least one case relief was granted without the defendant's showing a meritorious defense or submitting an answer, motion, or other pleading proposed to be filed [see Olvera v. Olvera (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 32, 41, 283 Cal. Rptr. 271]. In Olvera, the summons was served by publication, the defendant did not answer, a default and default judgment were entered, and the defendant moved for relief on the ground that the judgment was void because of improper service and that it was obtained through extrinsic fraud. She did not submit a proposed answer or other proposed pleading with her motion. The trial court granted the motion as one falling squarely within the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5. The appellate court affirmed on alternative grounds that (1) the motion was properly granted under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5; and (2) the affidavit for publication was deficient on its face and materially misleading, and the judgment based on service by publication was therefore void and subject to direct or collateral attack [Olvera v. Olvera (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 32, 37-42, 283 Cal. Rptr. 271].

Nevertheless, prudent counsel would be well advised to have the proposed answer verified until an appellate court might categorically state that the requirement is not necessary in a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5.

[2] Due Process Limitation

The United States Supreme Court, in a case arising under Texas law, has held that to require the showing of a meritorious defense on a defendant's motion for relief from a default judgment in an action in which the trial court never acquired personal jurisdiction over the defendant (service was effected but under Texas law was untimely and did not constitute service), violates procedural due process and cannot constitutionally be required [see Peralta v. Heights Medical Center, Inc. (1988) 485 U.S. 80, 84-87, 108 S. Ct. 896, 99 L. Ed. 2d 75].

The applicability of Peralta to a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 is unclear: Peralta involved a void judgment, whereas the default judgment involved in a Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 motion is a valid judgment, and what the statute authorizes is an order vacating and setting aside the default and default judgment and granting leave to defend. Nevertheless, in Peralta the defendant did have notice that an action had been filed by service of the citation, that, because of its untimeliness, was ineffective to confer jurisdiction over him; whereas, in the situation contemplated by Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, the service is valid but of a kind that in fact gives the defendant no notice of the action before it is too late to defend.

Until an appellate court rules on the applicability of Peralta to a Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 motion, if the defendant has a meritorious defense, the better practice would be to present it to avoid the costs of an appeal and possibly an adverse appellate decision. A defendant who has no meritorious defense may wish to consider the resemblances, if any, between his or her case and the U.S. Supreme Court case, and, if they are substantial, argue that Peralta should apply.

For further discussion of Peralta, see § 489.264[3].

§ 489.90 Relief From Default or Default Judgment for Failure to Comply With Consumer Venue Statutes

Relief from a default or default judgment is authorized when it is subject to, but entered without full compliance with the following venue statutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(b)]:

- Civ. Code § 1812.10, governing venue under the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.);

- Civ. Code § 2984.4, governing venue under Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.); or

- Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b), governing venue of actions arising from the offer or provision of goods, services, loans, or extensions of credit intended primarily for personal, family, or household use, other than an obligation described in Civ. Code § 1812.10 or 2984.4, or actions arising from transaction consummated as proximate result of unsolicited telephone calls made by sellers engaged in the business of consummating transactions of that kind.

When a default or default judgment has been taken without compliance with these statutes, the defendant may serve and file a notice of motion to set aside the default or default judgment and for leave to defend the action in the proper court [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(b); see § 489.390[1] (form of notice of motion for relief under improper venue statute)]. A noticed motion is expressly required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(b)]. Notice must be served and filed at least 16 court days before the time appointed for the hearing, but if service is by mail, the required 16-day period of notice is increased by five calendar days if the place of mailing and place of address are in California, 10 calendar days if either the place of mailing or place of address is outside California but in the United States, and 20 calendar days if either the place of mailing or the place of address is outside the United States. If notice is served by fax, Express Mail, or other overnight delivery method, the 16-day period is extended by two calendar days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(12), (b); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(a)].

Federal statute, 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)(1), requires a plaintiff to file an affidavit of a defendant's military status before a person's default can be entered [for discussion, see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments]. Under 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)(2), the court in which an action or proceeding is pending may appoint an attorney to represent a party in military service who does not personally appear in the action or proceeding. In an action covered by the Act, if it appears the defendant is in military service, the court may not enter a judgment until after the court appoints an attorney to represent the defendant [*50 U.S.C. § 489.111 Servicemembers' Civil Relief Act to Be Liberally Construed

The Servicemembers' Civil Relief Act is to be liberally construed to protect those who have been obliged to drop their own affairs to take up the burdens of the nation. The discretion that is vested in trial courts to that end is not to be withheld on nice calculations as to whether the prejudice suffered results from the absence (discussed in § 489.113), or whether the absence results from the service. Absence when one's rights or liabilities are being adjudged is usually prima facie prejudicial. But in some few cases absence may be a policy, instead of the result of military service, and discretion is vested in the courts to see that the immunities of the act are not put to such an unworthy use [Boone v. Lightner (1943) 319 U.S. 561, 575, 63 S. Ct. 1223, 87 L. Ed. 1587 ; In re Marriage of Lopez (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 776, 783, 173 Cal. Rptr. 718].

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.112

§ 489.112 Persons Protected by Act

The Servicemembers' Civil Relief Act protects members of the uniformed services, as "uniformed services" is defined in 10 U.S.C. § 101(a)(5) [50 U.S.C. App. § 511(1)]. 10 U.S.C. § 101(a)(5) defines "uniformed services" to include the following:

(A) The armed forces.

(B) The commissioned corps of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

(C) The commissioned corps of the Public Health Service.

The Act provides protection to a servicemember for the period beginning on the date on which a servicemember enters military service and ending on the date on which the servicemember is released from military service or dies while in military service [50 U.S.C. App. § 511(3); see also 50 U.S.C. App. §§ 515 (notice of benefits to military persons), 516 (extension of benefits to persons ordered to report for induction or military service); Syzemore v. County of Sacramento (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 517, 521, 127 Cal. Rptr. 741 (citing former 50 U.S.C. App. § 464; 50 U.S.C. App. § 466(c) [Military Selective Service Act of 1967])]. United States citizens serving with the forces of war allies may also be protected [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 514].

If a judgment is vacated or set aside as to a service member, the court has discretion to set it aside or vacate it as to other persons who may be primarily or secondarily liable on the contract or liability of the person in the military service [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 513(2)].

§ 489.113 Grounds and Application for Relief

If a default judgment is entered in an action covered by 50 U.S.C. App. § 521 against a servicemember during the servicemember's period of military service, or within 60 days after termination of or release from such military service, the court entering the judgment must, on application by or on behalf of the servicemember, reopen the judgment for the purpose of allowing the servicemember to defend the action if both of the following appear [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)(1); see In re Marriage of Lopez (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 776, 781-782, 783, 173 Cal. Rptr. 718 ; see also § 489.410[1] (form of notice of motion and supporting declaration for relief under Servicemembers' Civil Relief Act), and discussion in § 489.74[2]]:

> (A) The servicemember was materially affected by reason of the military service in making a defense to the action.
> (B) The servicemember has a meritorious or legal defense to the action or some part of it.

The vacating, setting aside, or reversing of any judgment does not impair any right or title acquired by a bona fide purchaser for value under the judgment [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(h)].

§ 489.114 Applicability of Act to Orders and to "Interested Persons"

The protection of the Act extends to persons in the military service who are "interested parties" in relation to orders and decrees in probate and equity matters [Winslow v. Harold G. Ferguson Corp. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 274, 280-281, 153 P.2d 714 (attorney's objection to an order made during his absence in military service, subordinating his previous allowance of counsel fees for preserving a trust fund to the claims of creditors, comes within the statute)]. This is also true of special proceedings. Thus, the act has been held to apply to a judgment changing the name of a minor child on the mother's petition while the father was in the military and absent from the country. Although not a necessary party to the proceeding, the father was "an interested party" with the status of "defendant" under the federal statute, and entitled to attack the validity of the proceedings In re Larson (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 258, 261-262, 183 P.2d 688 (disapproved in In re Marriage of Schiffman (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 640, 647, 169 Cal. Rptr. 918, 620 P.2d 579 , to the extent it gave father, as against mother, a primary right to have a child bear his surname)].

In an action for which the Servicemembers' Civil Relief Act provides protection of servicemembers against default judgments [*see 50 U.S.C. > (1) There may be a defense to the action and a defense cannot be presented without the presence of the defendant.

A stay of proceedings under these provisions is not be controlled by procedures or requirements under 50 U.S.C. App. § 522 [*50 U.S.C. If a court stays an action for compliance with a contract under the Act, no fine or penalty may accrue during the stay [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 523(a)].

A court may also vacate or stay any prejudgment or postjudgment attachment or garnishment of property, money, or debts in the hands of another when the military defendant's ability to comply with the judgment entered or order sought is materially affected by reason of his or her military service [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 524].

§ 489.119 Certificate Evidencing Service

A certificate signed by an appropriately authorized officer of the military department, branch, or unit in which a service member is serving is prima facie evidence as to any of the following facts as stated in the certificate [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.8(a)]:

- That a person named has not been, or is, or has been in the military service.
- The time when and the place where the person entered military service.
- The person's residence at that time, and the rank, branch, and unit of the service the person entered.
- The dates within which the person was in the military service.
- The monthly pay received by the person at the date of issuing the certificate.
- The time when and the place where the person died in or was discharged from the service.

The authorized officer must furnish the certificate on application. Any certificate purporting to be signed by an officer purporting on the face of the certificate to have been authorized to sign it, is prima facie evidence of its contents and of the authority of the signer to issue it [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.8(b)].

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.130

§ 489.130 Terminology

Terminology in court opinions regarding judgments is sometimes confusing. For example, a judgment is either void or it is valid. A judgment is void, for example, when the court that rendered it lacked jurisdiction of thedefendant's person or of the subject matter of the action. A void judgment may be either void on its face or void in fact but valid on its face [see discussion in § 489.134]. In dealing with void judgments, courts have used the terms "void," "invalid," "in excess of jurisdiction," and "without authority" somewhat interchangeably [see Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 366 n. 2, 217 P.2d 951] to mean void.

However, some courts have used the term "voidable" to describe a judgment that is valid on its face but void in fact [see, e.g., Laguna Village, Inc. v. Laborers' Internat. Union of North America (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 174, 182, 197 Cal. Rptr. 99, 672 P.2d 882 ; Lee v. An (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 558, 565, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 620 (if court lacks fundamental authority, judgment is void; if court acts in excess of jurisdiction or defined power, judgment is voidable); Brown v. Superior Court (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 526, 51 Cal. Rptr. 633]. The term "voidable" has also been applied to certain void-in-fact judgments whose invalidity resulted from some defect in the proceedings, for example, to a judgment rendered by a judge who was disqualified from acting in the case by reason of a concealed financial interest in one of the parties [see Cadenasso v. Bank of Italy (1932) 214 Cal. 562, 568, 6 P.2d 944 (discussed in § 489.166)].

Nevertheless, the term "voidable" is a contract term and is not normally applied to judgments. With respect to judgments, a judgment that is not void on its face is, more accurately, described as a judgment that is valid on its face but void in fact. It is simply a judgment that will be enforced as a valid judgment unless its invalidity is properly made to appear in a manner authorized by law [see, e.g., Thompson v. Cook (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 564, 570, 127 P.2d 909].

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.131

§ 489.131 Statutory and Inherent Powers of Courts

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), a court may, on motion of either party, after notice to the other party, set aside any void judgment or order. This provision applies in all courts [see People v. One 1941 Chrysler Sedan (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 18, 22, 183 P.2d 368].

Apart from Code Civ. Proc. § 473, courts of record (which today include all California state courts [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 1]) historically have inherent power at law to set aside a void judgment on the motion of a party, whether or not it is void on its face [People v. One 1941 Chrysler Sedan (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 18, 21, 25, 183 P.2d 368]. Hence, it has been said that Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), is merely a legislative recognition of the inherent power of the courts to set aside void judgments and orders [see, e.g., Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1121-1122, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 ; People v. One 1941 Chrysler Sedan (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 18, 22, 183 P.2d 368 ; see also Estate of Estrem (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 563, 571-572, 107 P.2d 36].

It has also been said that the language that is now the Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) codified the court's inherent power to set aside an order or judgment void on its face at any time [National Diversified Services, Inc. v. Bernstein (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 414, 214 Cal. Rptr. 113]. However, a judgment that is void on its face is not necessarily governed by that statute, inasmuch as the judgment may be vacated by the court on its own motion, as well as on a motion of a party [see Eveleth v. American Brass & Iron Foundry (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 41, 47, 21 Cal. Rptr. 95 ; Montgomery v. Norman (1953) 120 Cal. App. 2d 855, 858, 262 P.2d 360]. Moreover, in dealing with relief from a judgment that is void on its face, many courts continue to point out that a trial court has the inherent power to set aside such a judgment at any time [see, e.g., Connelly v. Castillo (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1588, 236 Cal. Rptr. 112 ; see also discussion in § 489.201[1]].

The superior court also has inherent power in equity to vacate void judgments obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake. This power may be exercised either by a motion made in the original action or by an independent action in equity [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 574, 122 P.2d 564 ; Lovato v. Santa Fe Internat. Corp. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 549, 554, 198 Cal. Rptr. 838 ; see also Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 558, 305 P.2d 20

; Estate of Estrem (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 563, 571-572, 107 P.2d 36 ; In re Marriage of Mansell (1989) 217 Cal. App. 3d. 219, 225, 265 Cal. Rptr. 227 , cert. denied, (1990), 498 U.S. 806]. In limited civil cases, courts, by statute, have equitable power to vacate judgments or orders rendered or made by the court from which relief is sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)(3)]. For a discussion of motions and actions in equity, see § 489.220 et seq.

Because courts have power both at law and in equity to vacate and set aside void judgments, although the rules applicable to relief at law and relief in equity differ, cases in equity may be cited in cases at law, and vice versa, to the extent that they identify or define what constitutes a void judgment.

C. Relief From Void Judgments and Orders
1. Attacking Void Judgments and Orders Generally

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.132

§ 489.132 Void Judgment Defined

To render a valid judgment, a court must be lawfully organized, it must have jurisdiction over the subject matter and the parties, and it must have the power to grant the judgment [Vasquez v. Vasquez (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 280, 283, 240 P.2d 319 ; see also Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 288, 109 P.2d 942 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 1917]. Thus, a judgment rendered by a court that lacked jurisdiction over the subject matter of the action or the person of the defendant or that granted relief the court had no power to grant is void [Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (2010) 181 Cal. App. 4th 752, 766-767, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 641 ; 311 South Spring Street Co. v. Department of General Services (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1009, 1015-1018, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 176 (judgment granting excess interest deemed void); Lee v. An (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 558, 565, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 620 (if court lacks fundamental authority, judgment is void; if court acts in excess of jurisdiction or defined power, judgment is voidable); Connelly v. Castillo (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1588, 236 Cal. Rptr. 112 ; see also Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 493, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 , quoting Armstrong v. Armstrong (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 942, 950, 126 Cal. Rptr. 805, 544 P.2d 941 (collateral attack is proper to contest judgment void on its face for lack of personal or subject matter jurisdiction or granting of relief that court has no power to grant)]. A judgment may also be void if it was rendered in violation of a party's due process rights [see County of Ventura v. Tillett (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 105, 112, 183 Cal. Rptr. 741].

Conversely, a mere erroneous decision on a question of law, even though the error appears on the face of the record, does not make the judgment void, if the court had jurisdiction of the subject matter and of the person of the defendant [Wells Fargo & Co. v. San Francisco (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 37, 40, 152 P.2d 625 ; Jones v. World Life Research Institute (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 836, 844, 131 Cal. Rptr. 674]. Nor does the failure of the complaint to state a cause of action render a subsequent default judgment void so long as the court had jurisdiction of the parties and the subject matter and the complaint was sufficient to apprise the defendant of the nature of plaintiff's demand [Thorson v. Western Development Corp. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 206, 215, 59 Cal. Rptr. 299 , quoting Trans-Pacific Trading Co. v. Patsy Frock & Romper Co. (1922) 189 Cal. 509, 513-514, 209 P. 357].

Nevertheless, a judgment may be partially void and subject to direct or collateral attack (see discussions in §§ 489.138 and 489.139) as to the invalid portion, even when the court does have jurisdiction of the subject matter and the parties [see, e.g., Jones v. World Life Research Institute (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 836, 844-848, 131 Cal. Rptr. 674 ; Vasquez v. Vasquez (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 280, 283, 240 P.2d 319 ; see also discussion in § 489.139[4]].

§ 489.133 Judgment Procured by Fraud

A judgment may be void because it was procured by fraud. Thus, it has been said that fraud practiced on the court is always ground for voiding the judgment, as when the court is deceived or misled as to material circumstances, or its process is abused, resulting in the rendition of a judgment that would not have been given if the whole conduct of the case had been fair [Swallow v. Tungsten Products Co. (1928) 205 Cal. 207, 211-212, 270 P. 366 ; see also Steiner v. Flournoy (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 1051, 1055, 100 Cal. Rptr. 680 (every court may treat as a nullity any judgment that can be shown to have been obtained by manifest fraud); Batchelor v. Finn (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 410, 417, 346 P.2d 795]. If the motion for relief from such a judgment is timely (see discussion in § 489.142), it is immaterial whether the fraud was intrinsic or extrinsic [see Batchelor v. Finn (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 410, 417, 346 P.2d 795] (declining to rule on whether the six-month period in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), or the one-year period in former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(a) (discussed under in § 489.142[6]) applied by analogy, as the motion was made within the shorter period)]. If the motion is not timely, relief may still be had in equity if the fraud was extrinsic (see discussion and forms in § 489.220 et seq.).

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.134

§ 489.134 Void on Face and Void in Fact Distinguished

A judgment is void on its face when its invalidity appears from:

- Inspection of the judgment roll [see, e.g., Morgan v. Clapp (1929) 207 Cal. 221, 224, 277 P. 490 ; Parsons v. Weis (1904) 144 Cal. 410, 414-415, 77 P. 1007] as defined in the statute in force at the time the judgment was entered [People v. Davis (1904) 143 Cal. 673, 677, 77 P. 651], or

- Inspection of certain other papers on file in the case [see, e.g., Swain v. Swain (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10-11, 58 Cal. Rptr. 83 (facts stated in domestic relations officer's report that had been filed in case)].

For what constitutes the judgment roll in a civil action, see Code Civ. Proc. § 670 (discussed in § 489.136). Because the invalidity must appear from the face of the record, no extrinsic evidence is required or permitted to show its invalidity.

Conversely, a judgment that is void in fact but not void on its face requires the presentation of extrinsic evidence to show that it is void. Such evidence is normally set out in one or more affidavits (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003, 2009) or declarations under penalty of perjury (see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) submitted with the notice of motion for relief [see, e.g., People v. One 1941 Chrysler Sedan (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 18, 25-27, 183 P.2d 368 ; see also discussion in § 489.138].

§ 489.135 Impeachment of Judicial Record

Code Civ. Proc.§ 1916 provides that "[a]ny judicial record may be impeached by evidence of a want of jurisdiction in the court or judicial officer... in respect to the proceedings." This simply means, however, that evidence is admissible to impeach a judgment in the cases allowed by law and not in all cases whatsoever. This rule does not mean that a void judgment will be enforced as though valid. It does mean that a judgment may only be shown to be void in certain ways [Hill v. City Cab etc. Co. (1889) 79 Cal. 188, 191, 21 P. 728].

§ 489.136 Judgment Roll in Civil Actions

If no defendant filed an answer, the judgment roll in a civil action consists of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 670(a)]:

- The summons, with the affidavit (or declaration) of proof of service;
- The complaint;
- The request for entry of default with a memorandum endorsed on it that the defendant's default was entered, and a copy of the judgment;
- If the defendant appeared by a demurrer that was overruled, the notice of the overruling served on defendant's attorney, together with proof of service; and
- If service was by publication, the affidavit (or declaration) for publication of summons, and the order directing publication of summons.

In all other cases, the judgment roll in a civil action consists of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 670(b)]:

- The pleadings;
- All orders striking out any pleading in whole or in part;
- A copy of the jury verdict;
- The court's statement of decision or referee's finding;
- A copy of any order made on demurrer, or relating to a change of parties;

- A copy of the judgment;

- If there are multiple defendants in the action, and any one of them has allowed judgment against him or her by default, the summons, with proof of its service, on the defendant, and if the service on the defaulting defendant was by publication, the affidavit (or declaration) for publication, and the order directing the publication of summons.

Thus, motions, notices of motions, and affidavits of service of notices of motion are not part of the judgment roll [see Johnson v. Hayes Cal Builders, Inc. (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 572, 576-577, 35 Cal. Rptr. 618, 387 P.2d 394].

§ 489.137 Attacking Void Judgment or Order

An order or judgment that is void on its face is a nullity and may be attacked directly or collaterally [see, e.g., Traub Co. v. Coffee Break Service, Inc. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 368, 370, 57 Cal. Rptr. 846, 425 P.2d 790 ; Andrews v. Superior Court (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 208, 214-215, 174 P.2d 313 ; People v. Davis (1904) 143 Cal. 673, 675, 77 P. 651 ; see also Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 493, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915]. In granting relief from the order or judgment, the court is exercising its jurisdiction at law (see discussion in § 489.131).

A judgment that is not void on its face but is void in fact may be attacked only by one of the established methods of direct attack [see, e.g., Estate of Wemyss (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 53, 58, 122 Cal. Rptr. 134]. Thus, it may be attacked by a motion at law or by a motion or action in equity (for a discussion of relief in equity, see § 489.220 et seq.).

II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Relief From Void Judgments and Orders
1. Attacking Void Judgments and Orders Generally

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.138

§ 489.138 Direct Attack

A direct attack on a judgment or order is usually one made in the same action or proceeding, as by appeal or by a motion to vacate the judgment. However, a motion in equity or a separate suit in equity to set aside a judgment or order on equitable grounds is also a direct attack [Rico v. Nasser Bros. Realty Co. (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 878, 882, 137 P.2d 861 ; see also discussion in § 489.13[1]; for direct attacks in equity, see § 489.220 et seq.].

Thus, a motion at law to vacate a judgment or order on the ground that it is void on its face or that it is void in fact although not void on its face is a direct attack. A judgment or order that is void on its face, as already pointed out, requires no extrinsic evidence to show the invalidity (see discussion § 489.134). If the judgment or order is not void on its face but is void in fact, and the motion is timely (see discussion in § 489.142), any facts showing the invalidity of the judgment or order may be presented, including facts outside the record as well as facts appearing on the face of the judgment roll or record [Norton v. Atchison, T., & S. F. R. Co. (1893) 97 Cal. 388, 392-393, 32 P. 452 ; In re Dahnke (1923) 64 Cal. App. 555, 561, 222 P. 381 (criticized on another point in Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1122-1123, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286); see also Sousa v. Freitas (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 660, 667, 89 Cal. Rptr. 485].

Nevertheless, an untimely, and therefore impermissible, direct attack by motion (see discussion in § 489.142) is often referred to as a collateral attack [see, e.g., Connelly v. Castillo (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1588, 236 Cal. Rptr. 112 ; National Diversified Services, Inc. v. Bernstein (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 416, 214 Cal. Rptr. 113 ; Swain v. Swain (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10, 58 Cal. Rptr. 83]. More precisely, the motion is a direct attack [see Norton v. Atchison, T., & S. F. R. Co. (1893) 97 Cal. 388, 392, 32 P. 452 (a motion to vacate a judgment is a direct and not a collateral attack)] but, because of its untimeliness, it is subject to the rules that apply to collateral attacks (discussed in § 489.139) [Wells Fargo & Co. v. San Francisco (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 37, 40, 152 P.2d 625 ; see also Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 492-493, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 (applying to rules that govern collateral attacks on judgments because motion to vacate was not timely)]. This means that extrinsic evidence cannot be presented on an untimely motion to show the invalidity of the judgment. Thus, a judgment so attacked cannot be set aside at law unless it is void on its face [Wells Fargo & Co. v. San Francisco (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 37, 40, 152 P.2d 625

]. However, reliefmay still be available in equity after the time for relief at law has expired (see § 489.220 et seq.).

II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Relief From Void Judgments and Orders
1. Attacking Void Judgments and Orders Generally

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.139

§ 489.139 Collateral Attack

[1] Defined

A collateral attack is an attempt to avoid the effect of a judgment or order made in some other proceeding. For the attack to succeed, the invalidity of the former judgment or order must appear on the face of the record [Palmquist v. Palmquist (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 340, 344, 27 Cal. Rptr. 756 ; Milstein v. Turner (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 296, 298, 200 P.2d 799 ; Rico v. Nasser Bros. Realty Co. (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 878, 882, 137 P.2d 861 ; County of Fresno v. Roberson, M. & Co. (1954) 269 P.2d 252 ; see also People ex rel. Mosk v. Santa Barbara (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 342, 356, 13 Cal. Rptr. 423 ; and discussion in § 489.14]. Collateral attack is proper to contest lack of personal or subject matter jurisdiction or the granting of relief that the court has no power to grant [Armstrong v. Armstrong (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 942, 950, 126 Cal. Rptr. 805, 544 P.2d 941 ; In re Marriage of Maxfield (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 755, 761]. However, absent unusual circumstances, a collateral attack will not be allowed when there was fundamental jurisdiction, that is, jurisdiction of the party and the subject matter, even though the judgment is contrary to statute [Armstrong v. Armstrong (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 942, 951, 126 Cal. Rptr. 805, 544 P.2d 941 ; In re Marriage of Maxfield (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 755, 761].

[2] On Domestic Judgment

When a California judgment is collaterally attacked, the court may review only matters that appear in the judgment roll or that are admitted by the parties [Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 372-373, 217 P.2d 951 ; for discussion of the judgment roll, see § 489.136; for discussion of the effect of admissions by the parties, see § 489.142[6][b]], or that appear from certain other papers filed in the case [see Swain v. Swain (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 1, 10, 58 Cal. Rptr. 83 (untimely postjudgment motion treated as collateral attack; trial court relied on domestic relations officer's report filed in case in vacating portion of judgment); see also Lopez v. Fancelli (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1305, 1310, 271 Cal. Rptr. 87 ; and Plotitsa v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 755, 760 (both holding void on the face of the record a default entered without defendant's having been personally served with a statement of damages as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11; for discussion of statement of damages, see discussion in § 489.189)].

[3] On Foreign Judgment

When the judgment is one of either a sister state or a foreign nation, extrinsic evidence is normally admissible to show lack of jurisdiction [De Rasmo v. Smith (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 601, 607 n.6, 93 Cal. Rptr. 289], provided the foreign court did not find that the facts necessary to establish personal or subject matter jurisdiction existed [see Estate of Estrem (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 563, 570, 107 P.2d 36]. That is, the judgment of the court of a sister state need not be given full faith and credit in California as to parties or property not subject to the jurisdiction of that court, unless the jurisdiction issue was fully and fairly litigated in, and finally decided by, the sister-state court. Thus, a defendant or unnamed party who was never served with summons and who never appeared in the proceedings in the sister state (the laws of which, like California, requires the service of summons and the complaint, or a voluntary appearance, for the court to acquire jurisdiction over a defendant), but whose rights were directly adjudicated therein, may attack the judgment either directly or collaterally as void for failure to obtain jurisdiction over his or her person [St. Sava Mission Corp. v. Serbian Eastern Orthodox Diocese (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1354, 1364, 1374, 273 Cal. Rptr. 340 ; see also Estate of Pusey (1919) 180 Cal. 368, 374, 181 P. 648 (neither the doctrine of laches nor the statute of limitations applies to a collateral attack on a foreign judgment that is void for lack of jurisdiction over the defendant)]. Moreover, a foreign judgment that is void on its face is subject to collateral attack in California, as well as elsewhere, regardless of the participation of the parties in the foreign action [Airlines Reporting Corp. v. Renda (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 14, 20-21, 99 Cal. Rptr. 3d 66 (sister state judgment void when state did not have jurisdiction over defendant); Aldabe v. Aldabe (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 453, 470-471, 26 Cal. Rptr. 208 (involving invalid Nevada divorce decree obtained while California divorce action was pending)].

For discussion of additional rules applicable to collateral attacks, see § 489.14. For further discussion of attacks on foreign judgments, see Ch. 318, Judgments .

[4] Partial Invalidity

A judgment granting relief that the court under no circumstances had any authority to grant is to that extent void [Vasquez v. Vasquez (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 280, 284, 240 P.2d 319]. A judgment that appears on its face to be partially void may be properly challenged collaterally with respect to the void portion only when it can be readily severed from the valid portion as surplusage [Harwell v. Harwell (1938) 26 Cal. App. 2d 143, 144-145, 78 P.2d 1167]. When a default judgment is partially void for being excessive (see discussion in § 489.191), the appellate court may strike the excess and affirm the valid portion [National Diversified Services, Inc. v. Bernstein (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 419, 214 Cal. Rptr. 113]. An example of a partially void judgment is a judgment based on the stipulationof the parties that awards interest in excess of that agreed to in the stipulation, although the remainder of the judgment is valid [see Jones v. World Life Research Institute (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 836, 844-848, 131 Cal. Rptr. 674]. For other examples, see discussion in § 489.160.

[5] Denial of Collateral Attack for Change of Position

When some parties have relied on, or changed their position in accordance with, a former judgment granting relief the court was without power to grant, a court may deny a collateral attack on the judgment [Armstrong v. Armstrong (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 942, 951, 126 Cal. Rptr. 805, 544 P.2d 941 (action by children of divorced parents against father for past child support and misappropriation of income from testamentary trust established by paternal grandfather); In re Marriage of Maxfield (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 755, 761, 191 Cal. Rptr. 267 (contempt proceeding arising out of modification of spousal support proceeding)]. The reasoning is that if the court has jurisdiction of the subject matter and the parties, one who complains of the act is usually before the court and has the opportunity to object, or to have the judgment or order reviewed by the usual manners of direct attack. Because these methods of direct attack, such as a motion for new trial or appeal, are adequate, the aggrieved party who fails to seek them and later raises the objection by collateral attack is almost presumed to have been negligent [Frank v. Frank (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 717, 722, 80 Cal. Rptr. 141 ; see also Moffat v. Moffat (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 645, 657-658, 165 Cal. Rptr. 877, 612 P.2d 967].

[6] Nonjurisdictional Errors

Nonjurisdictional errors are not subject to collateral attack. Thus, failure to state a cause of action, insufficiency of evidence, abuse of discretion, and mistake, or misapplication, of law are nonjurisdictional errors for which a collateral attack will not lie [Armstrong v. Armstrong (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 942, 950-951, 126 Cal. Rptr. 805, 544 P.2d 941].

§ 489.140 Who May Attack Judgment

A judgment that is void on its face may be attacked either by the parties or strangers [Forbes v. Hyde (1866) 31 Cal. 342, 347 ; see also Ivory v. Superior Court (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 455, 461, 85 P.2d 894 ; People v. Davis (1904) 143 Cal. 673, 675, 77 P. 651 ; Nagel v. P & M Distributors, Inc. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 176, 180, 78 Cal. Rptr. 65]. It can be attacked by the parties without any showing of prejudice and by strangers to the record when the judgment, if given full effect, would injuriously affect their rights [Mitchell v. Automobile Owners Indem. Underwriters (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 1, 7, 118 P.2d 815 ; see also Ryerson v. Riverside Cement Co. (1968) 266 Cal.App. 2d 789, 795, 72 Cal. Rptr. 595 ; Mumma v. Mumma (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 133, 136, 194 P.2d 24].

Moreover, an aggrieved person may intervene (see Code Civ. Proc. § 387) after judgment for the purpose of vacating a void default judgment [Johnson v. Hayes Cal Builders, Inc., 60 Cal. 2d 572, 575-576, 35 Cal. Rptr. 618, 387 P.2d 394 ; Morton Regent Enterprises, Inc. v. Leadtec California, Inc. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 846-847, 141 Cal. Rptr. 706]. For a discussion and forms for use in seeking intervention, see Ch. 395, Parties .

§ 489.141 Time Limitations When Judgment or Order Is Facially Void

A judgment that is void on its face may be attacked at any time it presents itself. It is simply a nullity, and can be neither the basis nor evidence of any right whatever [Andrews v. Superior Court (1946) 29 Cal. 2d 208, 214-215, 174 P.2d 313 ; Forbes v. Hyde (1866) 31 Cal. 342, 347 ; see Manson, Iver & York v. Black (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 36, 43, 97 Cal. Rptr. 705, 395 P.2d 665 (judgment void on its face is subject to collateral attack at any time); Ivory v. Superior Court (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 455, 461, 85 P.2d 894 (order void on its face is a nullity, assailable wherever and whenever it may be produced, and whether attack on it is direct or collateral); *Parsons v. 43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.142

§ 489.142 Time Limitations When Void Judgment Is Not Facially Void

[1] Reasonable Time

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), imposes no time limit on when a motion for relief from a void judgment or order must be made, an attack on a judgment that is void in fact, but not on its face, must be made within a reasonable time, whether the attack is made under the statute or pursuant to the court's inherent power at law to set aside void judgments and orders [see, e.g., Estate of Estrem (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 563, 569, 571, 107 P.2d 36 ; Morgan v. Clapp (1929) 207 Cal. 221, 224, 277 P. 490 ; Smith v. Jones (1917) 174 Cal. 513, 515-516, 163 P. 890 ; People v. One 1941 Chrysler Sedan (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 18, 21, 183 P.2d 368 ; Washko v. Stewart (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 311, 317, 112 P.2d 306].

A motion for relief not made within a reasonable time (and not coming within the exception discussed [6][b], below) is subject to the rules applicable to collateral attack, which means that extrinsic evidence cannot beintroduced to show the invalidity (see discussion under in §§ 489.134, and 489.14; see also § 489.420[1] (form)). Any order vacating such a judgment on motion made after a reasonable time has expired is itself void on its face and is assailable wherever and whenever it may be produced, whether the attack on it is direct or collateral; and it may be set aside by the court that rendered it of its own motion at any time [People v. Davis (1904) 143 Cal. 673, 675-676, 77 P. 651]. For discussion of what constitutes a reasonable time, see discussion under [2] and [6], below.

[2] Statutory Periods That Apply by Analogy

A "reasonable time" is the statutory periods set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473 and 473.5, which apply by analogy (see discussion under [6], below).

[3] Statutory Periods

[a] Code Civ. Proc. § 473

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), provides for correction of clerical errors and relief from void judgments and orders. No time limitation is contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d). The only time period mentioned in the statute is the six-month limitation set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), relating to relief from judgments, orders, and proceedings taken against a person through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect and to relief based on an attorney's affidavit of fault. That subdivision deals with valid judgments, orders, and proceedings [see People v. One 1941 Chrysler Sedan (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 18, 21, 183 P.2d 368] and is discussed in § 489.30 et seq. When this limitation applies by analogy, the motion for relief must be made within six months from the date the judgment or order was entered (see discussion under [6], below).

[b] Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5

Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 (discussed in § 489.70 et seq.) provides for relief from a default or default judgment entered against a party when the service of summons did not result in actual notice to the party in time to defend. This statute, like Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), deals with valid judgments [see People v. One 1941 Chrysler Sedan (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 18, 21, 183 P.2d 368 (involving former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a); see also In re Marriage of Smith (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 543, 546, 185 Cal. Rptr. 411 (Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 does not govern a default or default judgment obtained through fraudulent return of service of summons)].

The time limitation specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 is "a reasonable time, but in no event exceeding the earlier of [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(a)]:

- Two years after entry of a default judgment against him or her; or

- One hundred eighty days after service on him or her of a written notice that the default or default judgment has been entered."

Thus, when this period applies by analogy, the motion must be made within the earlier of two years or 180 days after defendant was served with notice of default or, if a default judgment has been entered, notice of the default judgment [see discussion under [6], below].

[4] Failure of Cases to Consider Interim Statutory Amendments

Since 1872, literally hundreds of cases have applied by analogy the time limitations of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, and its statutory spinoffs, to proceedings seeking relief from void judgments and orders. However, the statute has been amended numerous times, and the cases have not always kept abreast of the changes. To avoid the confusion that has plagued the profession in the determining the applicable time limitations, counsel should be alert, in reading a case, to the wording of the statute as it existed at the time the case was decided, keeping in mind that often an appellate court, in applying the statute, cites prior case authority as support for its holding without discussing interim changes in the statutes. Moreover, from its inception and through its version as amended in 1917, courts often failed to specify which of the two periods then contained in the statute was being applied by analogy to void judgments, particularly in cases in which relief was sought more than one year after the judgment was entered.

[5] Summary of Amendments of Time Limitations

The following summary of the amendments of the time limitations imposed in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473 and 473.5 is provided to assist counsel in determining what time periods older case law is referring to when applying these statutes by analogy.

The original statute was derived from Section 68 of the Practice Act (Stats. 1851, ch. 5), that was codified in 1872 [see First Small Business Inv. Co. v. Sistim, Inc. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 645, 649, 90 Cal. Rptr. 798]. As codified in 1872,

Code Civ. Proc. § 473 contained two time provisions:

- A reasonable time not exceeding five months after adjournment of the term for relief from mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect; and

- Six months after the rendition of any judgment for relief when the summons and complaint were not "personally served on the defendant."

Subsequent amendments affecting time limits stated in Section 473 are as follows:

- In 1873-1874 legislation the five-month period relating to relief for mistake, etc. was extended to six months, and the six-month period relating to relief for lack of personal service was extended to one year.

- In 1880, the six-month period for relief for mistake, etc. was amended to be six months following the judgment, order, or proceeding, instead of six months after the adjournment of the court's term.

- As amended in 1933, and since then, Code Civ. Proc. § 473 has contained only one time limitation, the six-month limitation governing relief from mistake, inadvertence, surprise, and excusable neglect. The one-year limitation relating to relief for failure to have personally served the defendant was moved to Code Civ. Proc. § 473a (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5). Nevertheless, some courts continued to cite the time limitation in Section 473, whether applying the six-month or the one-year limitation.

- In 1969, former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a was repealed and replaced by Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, which contains a single time limitation (the shorter of two periods, discussed under [3][b], above).

[6] Application of Statutory Periods That Apply by Analogy

[a] Rule

What constitutes a reasonable time for seeking relief at law from an order or judgment void in fact but not void on its face is either:

- The time limitation specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, which applies by analogy when the invalidity of the judgment or order resulted from the improper service or nonservice of summons, or other required notice [Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1123-1124, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 ; People v. One 1941 Chrysler Sedan (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 18, 21, 183 P.2d 368 (involving former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a, the predecessor to Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5); Washko v. Stewart (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 311, 317, 112 P.2d 306 (same); see also, e.g., Estate of Estrem (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 563, 571, 107 P.2d 36 (involving predecessor statute); Morgan v. Clapp (1929) 207 Cal. 221, 224, 277 P. 490 (same); Smith v. Jones (1917) 174 Cal. 513, 516, 163 P. 890 (same)]. The period specified is a reasonable time not exceeding the earlier of two years after entry of the default judgment or 180 days after the defendant was served with a written notice that the default or default judgment has been entered [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(a)]. The period starts running from the date the judgment, rather than the default, was entered [Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1126, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 ; see also, e.g., Morgan v. Clapp (1929) 207 Cal. 221, 224, 277 P. 490 (involving predecessor statute)]. The "reasonable time" requirement is separate from the two-year limit set forth in Code*Civ. Proc. § 473.5*, and thus, although the court has jurisdiction to set aside the judgment within the two year period, a party bringing the motion within that period must demonstrate a satisfactory excuse for the default and diligence in making the motion after discovery of the default [see Schenkel v. Resnik (1994) 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 60]. Neither the actual notice provision in Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(a) nor the affidavit requirement set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(b) applies to a motion for relief from a void judgment [see In re Marriage of Smith (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 543, 546, 554-555, 185 Cal. Rptr. 411 and Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1124, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 , respectively]; or,

- In all other cases, the six-month limitation set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), which applies by analogy [see, e.g., Thompson v. Cook (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 564, 569, 127 P.2d 909 ; Estate of Estrem (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 563, 571, 107 P.2d 36 ; Consolidated Const. Co. v. Pacific E. Ry. Co. (1920) 184 Cal. 244, 247-248, 193 P. 238 ; see also, e.g., Wells Fargo & Co. v. San Francisco (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 37, 40, 152 P.2d 625 (default judgment claimed to have been entered by trial court in excess of its jurisdiction)]. The six-month period, that is, the 182 days allowed, in the case of a default judgment, is calculated from the time the default, and not the judgment, was entered [National Diversified Services, Inc. v. Bernstein (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 416, 214 Cal. Rptr. 113], unless, of course, the attack is limited simply to vacating the default judgment.

[b] Exception to Rule

The rule that relief must be sought within a reasonable time does not apply to an untimely motion when the party in whose favor the judgment or order runs admits facts showing the invalidity of the judgment or order, or, without objection on his or her part, evidence is admitted that clearly shows the existence of those facts. The situation is the same as when the judgment is void on its face, and it is the duty of the court to declare the judgment or order void [Thompson v. Cook (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 564, 569-570, 127 P.2d 909 ; see also Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 372-373, 217 P.2d 951].

For example, a judgment that is valid on its face cannot be impeached on an untimely motion by evidence showing that the summons was not served if the evidence is objected to, but if evidence to that effect is admitted without objection, or the parties stipulate or admit that in fact summons was not served, it is the court's duty to declare the judgment void as a matter of law on the admitted facts [Thompson v. Cook (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 564, 570, 127 P.2d 909].

[7] Effect of Motion Not Made Within Reasonable Time

A motion made after expiration of a reasonable time is governed by the rules applicable to collateral attack, which means that the motion must be determined on the judgment roll alone; extrinsic evidence cannot be produced to show the invalidity, and without extrinsic evidence, the invalidity cannot be shown [see Wells Fargo & Co. v. San Francisco (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 37, 40, 152 P.2d 625 ; Borenstein v. Borenstein (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 379, 381, 125 P.2d 465 ; see also Connelly v. Castillo (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1588, 236 Cal. Rptr. 112]. The rule is not that a void judgment will be enforced as though valid, but, rather, that it cannot be shown to be void except in certain ways [Thompson v. Cook (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 564, 570, 127 P.2d 909].

[8] Alternative Relief in Equity

Although relief from a void judgment that is not void on its face may be barred at law because not timely sought within the specified periods, relief might still be available either by an equitable motion in the same action or by an independent action in equity to have the judgment or order declared void on the ground of extrinsic fraud or mistake if those grounds exist [see Smith v. Jones (1917) 174 Cal. 513, 517-518, 163 P. 890 ; People v. Davis (1904) 143 Cal. 673, 675, 77 P. 651 ; Munoz v. Lopez (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 178, 180-181, 79 Cal. Rptr. 563 ; Olivia v. Suglio (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 7, 9, 293 P.2d 63 ; see also People v. One 1941 Chrysler Sedan (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 18, 21-22, 183 P.2d 368 (when motion is not made within reasonable time, party is relegated to action in equity)]. Resort to equity requires that the moving party establish a meritorious defense to the action in which the allegedly void judgment was entered [see, e.g., Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 554, 305 P.2d 20 ; Cromwell v. Heward (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 88, 90, 337 P.2d 151]. For further discussion of equitable relief, see § 489.220 et seq.

No affidavit or declaration of merits is required to support a motion for relief at law from a judgment on the ground that it is void on its face [Montgomery v. Norman (1953) 120 Cal. App. 2d 855, 858, 262 P.2d 360] or from a judgment that is void in fact, although not void on its face [*Norton v. Atchison, T., & S. F. R. Co. § 489.144 Showing of Meritorious Defense or Case

If the judgment is void on its face, no showing of a meritorious case, that is, a good claim or defense, by the party moving for relief is required because the judgment may be attacked collaterally [see Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 554, 305 P.2d 20], and may be set aside by the court on its own motion [see, e.g., Montgomery v. Norman (1953) 120 Cal. App. 2d 855, 858, 262 P.2d 360]. Nor is a meritorious defense required to be shown on a motion to set aside a judgment that is valid on its face but void in fact [see County of Ventura v. Tillett (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 105, 112, 183 Cal. Rptr. 741 ; Mattison v. Lichlyter (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 60, 65, 327 P.2d 599 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) (authorizing relief from void judgments and orders and, unlike Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), imposing no requirement that a proposed pleading accompany the motion)].

Moreover, the United States Supreme Court has held that to require the showing of a meritorious defense on a defendant's motion for relief from a default judgment in an action in which the trial court never acquired personal jurisdiction over the defendant, that is, when the judgment is void for lack of personal jurisdiction, would violate procedural due process and cannot constitutionally be required [see Peralta v. Heights Medical Center, Inc. (1988) 485 U.S. 80, 84-87, 108 S. Ct. 896, 99 L. Ed. 2d 75].

For discussion of the rule that applies when relief is sought in equity and the impact of Peralta on that rule, see § 489.264.

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.161

§ 489.161 No Subject Matter Jurisdiction

A judgment of a court lacking subject matter jurisdiction of the action is void (see discussion under § 489.132). A court is without subject matter jurisdiction when it lacks power to adjudicate the matter in question. For discussion of the subject matter jurisdiction of the California courts, see Ch. 324, Jurisdiction: Subject Matter

However, a court may not, after the time for appeal has passed, set aside a judgment or order on the ground that the court lacked jurisdiction, when the facts establishing such jurisdiction were found by the court in the original proceedings, and all adverse parties were properly served with notice and had the opportunity to present their objections [Estate of Estrem (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 563, 569-570, 572, 107 P.2d 36 (probate court had found that facts establishing subject matter jurisdiction existed)]. Thus, a determination of subject matter jurisdiction by the trial court may become res judicata [Perry v. Farley Bros. Moving & Storage, Inc. (1970) 6 Cal. App. 3d 884, 888, 86 Cal. Rptr. 397].

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.162

§ 489.162 No Personal Jurisdiction

[1] Improper Service of Summons

Unless the defendant makes a general appearance [see Code Civ. Proc. § 410.50(a)], proper service of the summons is a requirement for a court's exercise of personal jurisdiction over the defendant [Caldwell v. Coppola (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 859, 863, 268 Cal. Rptr. 453 ; Slaughter v. Legal Process & Courier Service (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1236, 1251, 209 Cal. Rptr. 189]. Absent such jurisdiction, a court's judgment is void [see Sousa v. Freitas (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 660, 667-668, 89 Cal. Rptr. 485 (judgment rendered without legal service of process or legal notice to defendant is properly challenged in equity, and divorce secured some 46 years prior to husband's death through husband's extrinsic fraud was void for lack of notice to wife); Sternbeck v. Buck (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 829, 832, 834, 307 P.2d 970 (involving attack on judgment by independent action in equity); see also In re Abrams (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 685, 693, 166 Cal. Rptr. 749]. Thus, a judgment rendered in a case in which the summons was served by plaintiff, in violation of Code Civ. Proc. § 414.10, and a false return of service was filed, is void [see In re Marriage of Smith (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 543, 545-546, 185 Cal. Rptr. 411]. The same is true of an order directed against a defendant over whom the court has not acquired jurisdiction [Caldwell v. Coppola (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 859, 863, 268 Cal. Rptr. 453 (noting that under Code Civ. Proc. § 414.10, a party to an action is prohibited from personally serving the defendant)].

Moreover, service of a substantially defective summons does not confer jurisdiction over a party and will not support a default judgment [MJS Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 557, 200 Cal. Rptr. 286 , citing Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30, which prohibits entry of default when statutorily required notices are not contained in summons served)].

[2] Nonresident Defendant

Personal jurisdiction is lacking with respect to a nonresident defendant who does not appear in the case and lacks sufficient contacts with California to permit the state's exercise of in personam jurisdiction over him or her, even if a summons was properly served on him or her [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Merideth (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 356, 361-363, 180 Cal. Rptr. 909 ; see also Great-West Life Assurance Co. v. Guarantee Co. of North America (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 199, 205, 252 Cal. Rptr. 363 ; for a discussion of the bases for in personam jurisdiction over a nonresident defendant, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal].

[3] Effect of Failure to File Summons and Proof of Service

The summons, together with its proof of service (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 417.10, 417.20, 417.40), must be returned to the court (that is, returned for filing) [Code Civ. Proc. § 417.30(a)], and they form a part of the judgment roll [Code Civ. Proc. § 670, discussed in § 489.136]. Historically, the absence from the judgment roll of the summons with its proof of service rendered the judgment void on its face [see, e.g., Pearson v. Superior Court (1932) 122 Cal. App. 571, 574-575, 10 P.2d 489].

However, a default judgment, at least one entered by the court (as opposed to the clerk) under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b), is valid if based on actual service of summons on the defendant, even though no proof of service is filed prior to the entry of judgment. The modern rule is that a judgment based on a late return of summons is irregular, but is not void [National Diversified Services, Inc. v. Bernstein (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 416, 214 Cal. Rptr. 113 ; see also Connelly v. Castillo (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1589, 236 Cal. Rptr. 112]. Thus, contrary to former case law, a default judgment is not void on its face when the judgment roll contains no proof of service of summons and, consequently, is not subject to collateral attack [National Diversified Services, Inc. v. Bernstein (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 415-416, 214 Cal. Rptr. 113].

§ 489.163 Service of Papers on Suspended Attorney

The service of interrogatories or discovery motions on a party's attorney who has been suspended from practice may render any subsequent dismissal or default judgment entered for failure to respond void. For example,it has been held that the dismissal of an action because plaintiff failed to answer interrogatories is void, and may be set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), when, unknown to plaintiff, plaintiff's attorney had been suspended from practice and no longer represented plaintiff at the time the interrogatories were mailed to him, the attorney failed to notify the client of them, and defendants failed, before moving for dismissal, to give plaintiff written notice to appoint another attorney or to appear in person, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 286 [Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 742, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300].

Likewise, it has been held that a default judgment taken against a defendant for failure to respond to interrogatories and discovery motions, of which defendant had neither actual nor constructive notice, is void under the due process clause of the federal constitution (U.S. Const., amend. XIV) when the interrogatories and discovery motions were served on defendant's attorney after he had been suspended from the practice of law and the attorney failed to notify defendant of them [Lovato v. Santa Fe Internat. Corp. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 549, 553-554, 198 Cal. Rptr. 838].

Proc. § 594(a)*], is not merely error, it is an act in excess of the court's jurisdiction (see discussion in § 489.130), and is not only subject to attack under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), but is subject to collateral attack at any time [*Wilson v. Goldman (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 573, 577-578, 79 Cal. § 489.166 Judgment by Disqualified Judge

[1] For Financial Interest or Bias

A judgment rendered by a judge in a case in which he or she is disqualified under Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1 et seq. (relating to disqualification of judges, court commissioners, and referees, generally on the ground of a financial interest in the case or bias) from sitting is absolutely void, whether or not it correctly decided the case [Cadenasso v. Bank of Italy (1932) 6 P.2d 944 (equitable action attacking judgment; decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 170); see also Giometti v. Etienne (1934) 219 Cal. 687, 689, 28 P.2d 913 (order granting hearing in Supreme Court signed by four of seven justices held void when one of the justices signing the order was related to petitioners' counsel and thereby disqualified); Lindsay-Strathmore I. Dist. v. Superior Court (1920) 182 Cal. 315, 333-336, 187 P. 1056 (issuing writ of prohibition to restrain judge who had slight interest in matter in litigation from proceeding to try matter)].

Although courts applying the former disqualification statutes generally held that a judgment or order rendered by a disqualified judge is void whenever brought into question, it has been said that the theory on which the rule rests is not clearly stated in the decisions and that the proposition itself is not uniformly accepted in its broadest form by all of them [Urias v. Harris Farms, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 415, 423-424, 285 Cal. Rptr. 659 (citing Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 2, Courts, § 74 (3d ed. 1985))]. In Urias, the court said the problem was really one of excess of jurisdiction and that the actions of a disqualified judge are not void in any fundamental sense but at most voidable if properly raised by an interested party [Urias v. Harris Farms, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 415, 424, 285 Cal. Rptr. 659 (citing Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 2, Courts, §§ 75, 76 (3d ed. 1985))].

For discussion and forms for use in having a judge disqualified for cause from hearing a case, see Ch. 317, Judges .

[2] Showing Required

A party seeking to have a judgment declared void on the ground that the judge was disqualified must allege and prove facts that clearly show that the disqualification existed [Urias v. Harris Farms, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 415, 424, 285 Cal. Rptr. 659 (citing Wickoff v. James (1958) 159 Cal. App. 2d 664, 670, 324 P.2d 661 , and holding that a summary judgment granted by a disqualified judge before the judge's disqualification was discovered by the affected party is "voidable" if the unsuccessful party properly raises the disqualification issue and alleges facts that show the judge was disqualified to hear the case)].

[3] Time Limitation

The time within which a judgment rendered by a judge in a case in which he or she is disqualified may be challenged is not clear under the case law.

In Cadenasso v. Bank of Italy (1932) 214 Cal. 562, 6 P.2d 944 , the Supreme Court said the objection to the disqualification of a trial judge by reason of his or her interest in the subject matter of the suit may be made at any time before the judgment becomes final [Cadenasso v. Bank of Italy (1932) 214 Cal. 562, 569, 6 P.2d 944 ; see also Caminetti v. Pac.Mutual L. Ins. Co. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 386, 390-392, 139 P.2d 930 (requirement that disqualification be raised at earliest practicable opportunity after discovery lest it be deemed waived)]. The Court expressed no opinion, however, as to whether an action to vacate the judgment would lie after judgment became final [Cadenasso v. Bank of Italy (1932) 214 Cal. 562, 569, 6 P.2d 944]. In T.P.B. v. Superior Court (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 881, 136 Cal. Rptr. 311 , a prohibition proceeding in which a juvenile unsuccessfully attempted to prevent a new trial on the ground of double jeopardy after the trial judge had declared a mistrial because of the judge's bias in the case, the appellate court, citing Cadenasso among other cases, said, in support of its conclusion that declaring the mistrial was a matter of legal necessity and therefore did not prevent a new trial, that any act of a disqualified judge in violation of Code Civ. Proc. § 170 (repealed; now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170-170.8) is absolutely void whenever brought into question and a judgment rendered by such a judge is open to attack at any time [T.P.B. v. Superior Court (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 881, 885-886, 136 Cal. Rptr. 311 ; see also Lindsay-Strathmore I. Dist. v. Superior Court (1920) 182 Cal. 315, 333, 187 P. 1056].

However, in Urias v. Harris Farms, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 415, 285 Cal. Rptr. 659 , an action for wrongful termination in which the newly appointed judge who granted the defendant's motion for summary judgment had been a member of the law firm that for many years had handled the defendant employer's legal business (see Code Civ. Proc. § 170.1(a)(2)(A)), which fact the plaintiff did not discover until after the judgment was entered, the appellate court, in reversing the summary judgment, said: (1) the rule that applies when the facts constituting disqualification are discovered before a case is submitted for decision is that the matter of disqualification should be raised when the facts constituting the grounds for disqualification are first discovered and, in any event, before the matter involved is submitted for decision; and (2) when the grounds for disqualification are not discovered until after judgment is entered, a statement of the disqualification is timely if submitted at the earliest practicable opportunity after the disqualifying facts are discovered [Urias v. Harris Farms, Inc. (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 415, 424-425, 285 Cal. Rptr. 659].

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.167

§ 489.167 Judgment Rendered by Commissioner Acting as Temporary Judge Without Stipulation of Parties

The order or judgment of a commissioner acting as a temporary judge is void when the defendant refused to stipulate to the commissioner's deciding the matter [Reisman v. Shahverdian (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 1074, 1087, 1094-1097, 201 Cal. Rptr. 194 ; see also Rooney v. Vermont Investment Corp. (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 351, 359-360, 372, 110 Cal. Rptr. 353, 515 P.2d 297]. In Reisman, the appellate court upheld the commissioner's judgment for the plaintiff when the plaintiff had stipulated to the commissioner's acting as a temporary judge on the plaintiff's petition for confirmation of an arbitration award. The defendant failed to file any response to the petition or to appear at the hearing. Consequently, the commissioner could properly hear the matter as an uncontested one (see former Code Civ. Proc. § 259(7)) even though the defendant did not stipulate to the commissioner's hearing the matter. However, the court held that the subsequent order by the commissioner denying the defendant's motion under what is now Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), to vacate that allegedly void judgment, although not an ancillary proceeding, was void because the defendant refused to stipulate to the commissioner's hearing the motion and had not stipulated to his hearing the petition for confirmation of the arbitration award [Reisman v. Shahverdian (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 1074, 1097, 201 Cal. Rptr. 194].

A court clerk is not authorized to enter a default or a default judgment (*see Code Civ. 43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.182

§ 489.182 Unauthorized Entry of Default Judgment by Clerk

Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a) authorizes the clerk to enter a default judgment only in an action based on a contract or judgment for money or damages in which the amount appears in or may be mathematically calculated from the contract or judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a) (may also deduct admitted credits, and add attorney's fees according to court schedule); Brown v. Superior Court (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 524, 51 Cal. Rptr. 633]. The clerk has no power to enter the judgment if the determinationof damages involves any discretion or the taking of any evidence [Brown v. Superior Court (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 524, 526, 51 Cal. Rptr. 633]. A default judgment entered by a court clerk who lacks power under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a) to enter the judgment is void on the face of the record and subject to being set aside at any time, although the invalidity of the judgment does not affect the preceding default [Brown v. Superior Court (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 524, 526, 51 Cal. Rptr. 633 (applying former Code Civ. Proc. § 585(1); clerk-entered judgment void when action required determination of reasonable value of services)].

While a default judgment will not normally be set aside when the default cannot be set aside because the plaintiff could immediately have a judgment of like effect entered, this does not apply to a default judgment that is void on the face of the record because of its unauthorized entry by the clerk; in that case, when the judgment is set aside, the plaintiff must apply to the court for a judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(b) in the amount justified by the complaint [Brown v. Superior Court (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 526, 51 Cal. Rptr. 633].

A default entered under those circumstances is void and is subject to expungement at any time either by motion made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), or by virtue of the court's inherent power to vacate a judgment or order void on its face [Wilson v. Goldman (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 573, 577, 79 Cal. Rptr. 309].

§ 489.185 Removal and Remand of Case

The entry of a defendant's default by a court clerk for failure to file a responsive pleading is "voidable" under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), if, after the action was removed to federal court, the defendant filed a motion to dismiss, and the federal court remanded the case to the state court. Entry of default is improper because a motion to dismiss in federal court is equivalent to a demurrer in state court, and a demurrer is a pleading that prevents the clerk's entry of default under Code Civ. Proc. § 585 [Laguna Village, Inc. v. Laborers' Internat. Union of North America (1983) 35 Cal. 3d 174, 182, 197 Cal. Rptr. 99, 672 P.2d 882 (applying former Section 473)].

§ 489.186 Judgment Based on Void Order for Publication of Summons or Substituted Service

When an order for publication of the summons is void because the affidavit on which it is based is insufficient, the default and default judgment entered and rendered on the basis of the service made pursuant to that order are likewise void on their face, are subject to direct or collateral attack, and should be set aside [*see Olvera v. When a defendant has failed to appear in an action, service of an amended complaint to increase the amount of damages or relief sought, in the manner provided for service of summons, while not necessarily a requirement for personal jurisdiction, is an essential prerequisite to a valid default judgment for the increased amount [Engebretson & Co. v. Harrison (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 436, 443, 178 Cal. Rptr. 77 (involving attack on default and default judgment by independent action in equity in which appellate court affirmed judgment setting aside default judgment but not default); *see also Leo v. § 489.189 Failure to Give Notice of Damages Claimed

[1] Statement of Damages

A complaint brought in superior court to recover actual or punitive damages for personal injury or wrongful death is not to state the amount of damages sought [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)]. Before taking default, the plaintiff must serve a statement of damages on the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(c); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 580 (if there is no answer, relief is limited to that demanded in complaint, Section 425.11 statement of damages, or Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement regarding punitive damages)].

Any default or subsequent default judgment entered without the statement of damages having been given is in excess of the court's jurisdiction [see Petty v. Manpower, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 794, 797-798, 156 Cal. Rptr. 622 ; see also Jones v. Interstate Recovery Service (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 925, 929-930, 206 Cal. Rptr. 924] and void [Barragan v. Banco BCH (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 283, 303, 232 Cal. Rptr. 758 ; see also Stevenson v. Turner (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 318-320, 156 Cal. Rptr. 499 ; and discussion in § 489.130].

For discussion of the sufficiency of a Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages and service of the statement prior to taking a default, see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments . For the procedure and a form of statement, see Ch. 177, Damages .

[2] Punitive Damages

No claim for exemplary, or punitive, damages may state the amount [Civ. Code § 3295(e)]. Under Section 3295(e), neither the body nor the prayer of a complaint for damages may state the amount of punitive damages claimed in any action in any court [Wiley v. Rhodes (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1470, 1472, 273 Cal. Rptr. 279]. However, a default judgment greater than the amount specifically demanded is void as beyond the court's jurisdiction [see Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 826, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 580 (if there is no answer, relief is limited to that demanded in complaint, Section 425.11 statement of damages, or Section 425.115 statement regarding punitive damages); for further discussion, see § 489.191]. A general allegation of entitlement to punitive damages in a complaint does not apprise the defendant of his or her potential financial liability for those damages if judgment is taken by default, and an award of punitive damages without prior notice of the amount claimed contravenes due process and is, in effect, void [Wiley v. Rhodes (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1470, 1472, 273 Cal. Rptr. 279 (reversing judgment to extent it awarded punitive damages)].

If the plaintiff wishes to obtain punitive damages as part of a default judgment, the plaintiff, before taking the default, must serve a statement preserving the right to seek punitive damages in a stated amount [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115]. For discussion and a form of statement, see Ch. 177, Damages .

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.191

§ 489.191 Award in Excess of Demand or For Relief Not Requested

[1] When No Answer Was Filed

The relief granted to a plaintiff when the defendant does not answer cannot exceed the relief the plaintiff demanded in the complaint, in the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 statement of damages, or in the Code Civ. Proc. § 425.115 statement preserving the right to punitive damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 580]. Code Civ. Proc. § 580 deprives a trial court of jurisdiction to enter a judgment against a defaulting defendant that awards greater relief than that sought in the plaintiff's complaint [In re Marriage of Lippel (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1160, 1167, 276 Cal. Rptr. 290, 801 P.2d 1041 ; for discussionof the statement of damages, see § 489.189; see also Damele v. Mack Trucks, Inc. (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 29, 39-41, 267 Cal. Rptr. 197].

A default judgment in excess of the amount prayed for is void [Ludka v. Memory Magnetics International (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 316, 322, 101 Cal. Rptr. 615 ; see also Ely v. Gray (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1257, 1260, 274 Cal. Rptr. 536 (noting that issue may be raised for first time on appeal from judgment)]. The judgment is subject to collateral, as well as to direct, attack [see Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 492-493, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 ; In re Marriage of Lippel (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1160, 1163, 276 Cal. Rptr. 290, 801 P.2d 1041]. The same is true with respect to a default judgment on a cross complaint [see Swycaffer v. Swycaffer (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 689, 692-693, 285 P.2d 1].

A default judgment is in excess of the court's jurisdiction and void if it grants relief of a kind essentially different from that which a defaulting defendant would reasonably anticipate from reading the complaint [Gudarov v. Hadjieff (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 412, 417, 240 P.2d 621], or that exceeds the demand of the complaint (or the statement of damages when the amount of damages cannot be alleged), or gives relief when no demand for it was made [Burtnett v. King (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 805, 807, 205 P.2d 657 ; Morton Regent Enterprises, Inc. v. Leadtec California, Inc. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 848, 141 Cal. Rptr. 706].

The judgment is void only as to the excess amount or relief granted [see Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27

Cal. 3d 489, 495, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 (default judgment awarding damages void only to extent of amount in excess of that stated in prayer); see also Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 829-830, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295 (default judgment reduced to amount claimed in complaint); Wiley v. Rhodes (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1470, 1473-1475, 273 Cal. Rptr. 279 (reversing portions of default judgment awarding punitive damages when defendant was not given notice of amount claimed and awarding attorney's fees as costs when complaint did not demand those costs and complaint did not allege any contract authorizing them); Brown v. McAdoo (1987) 242 Cal. Rptr. 473 (default judgment proper in municipal court action when prayer sought damages according to proof but remitted sums exceeding court's jurisdiction)].

A default judgment that exceeds the demand for compensatory damages cannot be justified by a demand for punitive damages that remains unexhausted [Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 494-495, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915 ; see also Olvera v. Olvera (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 32, 36 n.4, 283 Cal. Rptr. 271]. A prayer for compensatory damages in an amount less than that alleged in the body of the complaint will control [Barragan v. Banco BCH (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 283, 305,232 Cal. Rptr. 758 (reducing amount awarded in default judgment for compensatory damages to amount claimed in the prayer although the amount of general damages alleged in the body of the complaint far exceeded that amount)].

[2] Applicability to Cases in Which Amount Claimed Is Not Normally Alleged in Complaint

The restriction of relief granted to that demanded in the complaint applies even to cases in which an amount claimed is not normally, by the nature of the action, specified in the complaint. For example, in an action for dissolution of partnerships and an accounting when the amount due is unliquidated and unascertained, it has been held that a default judgment awarding a sum of money of which no prior notice as to the amount was given to the defendant was in excess of the trial court's jurisdiction [Ely v. Gray (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1257, 1260-1261, 274 Cal. Rptr. 536]. By analogy to personal injury or wrongful death cases in which the amount claimed cannot be stated in the complaint but must be stated in a statement of damages served personally on the defendant before his or her default can be entered, the court held that the plaintiff who seeks an accounting has the solution of a postcomplaint and predefault notice to the defendant of the amount plaintiff will seek to prove due if the defendant defaults, and that, as with the statement of damages required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11, the notice must be given with adequate time for the defendant to respond before a default is entered [Ely v. Gray (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1257, 1263-1264, 274 Cal. Rptr. 536 (affirming portion of judgment dissolving partnerships and reversing that portion awarding a specified sum on the accounting); decided before Section 425.11 was amended by Stats. 1993, ch. 456, to provide specific notice period); for discussion of Section 425.11, see § 489.189].

[3] Applicability to Default After Answer Filed

The restriction of relief granted to that demanded in the complaint applies whether the default occurred before or after an answer is filed [see Greenup v. Rodman (1986) 42 Cal. 3d 822, 826-829, 231 Cal. Rptr. 220, 726 P.2d 1295 (answer stricken for refusal to comply with discovery orders and matter continued as default proceeding); see also Morton Regent Enterprises, Inc. v. Leadtec California, Inc. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 847-848, 141 Cal. Rptr. 706 (involving motion by plaintiff's and cross defendant's surety to intervene after judgment to vacate judgment when plaintiff failed to appear at trial and judgment was entered against it on complaint and cross complaint)]. That is, the principles apply to defaultsand uncontested proceedings other than to those consisting of the failure of a defendant to file a responsive pleading.

§ 489.200 Motion for Relief

[1] From Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

A judgment that is void on its face may be attacked anywhere, anytime, in any action or proceeding (see discussions in §§ 489.137 and 489.141). Hence, such a judgment may be attacked directly, as by motion in the court that rendered the judgment, or collaterally in any court. The actions and proceedings in which collateral attacks have been made are varied and not susceptible to being reduced to a standard form. For examples of actions and proceedings in which collateral attacks have been made, see discussion in § 489.14[3].

[2] From Judgment Void in Fact But Not on Face

A judgment or order that is void in fact but not on its face may be attacked directly only (see discussion in § 489.137). Relief may thus be obtained by a motion in the court that rendered the judgment pursuant either to the court's inherent power at law, or pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) (see discussion in § 489.131).

If a judgment or order is void in fact but not on its face because it was obtained by extrinsic fraud or mistake, it may also be attacked by an equitable motion or independent action in equity. For relief in equity, see § 489.220 et seq.

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.201

§ 489.201 Notice of Motion

[1] Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

The power of a court to vacate a judgment or order void on its face is not extinguished by a lapse of time, but may be exercised whenever the matter is brought to the court's attention [see Manson, Iver & York v. Black (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 36, 43-47, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 522 (judgment naming incorrect defendant void on its face and subject to attack at any time)]. While a motion to vacate is entirely appropriate, neither a motion nor notice to an adverse party is essential. The court has full power to take such action on its own motion and without any application having been made on the part of anyone [People v. Davis (1904) 143 Cal. 673, 675-676, 77 P. 651 (affirming order, made apparently on ex parte application, vacating prior void-on-its-face order made on untimely motion that vacated and set aside default and default judgment that were not void on their face); see also People v. Glimps (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 315, 325, 155 Cal. Rptr. 230 (quoting Davis, above)]. Glimps involved appeals from denial of the People's motions, notice of which was served on one but not the other of two defendants, to vacate orders sealing records on the ground the court lacked jurisdiction to make the orders and that the orders were therefore void. The appellate court said that a sealing order made without legislative authority is in excess of the court's jurisdiction. When this fact appears from the record, it is void (on its face) and the court that made the order must set it aside on motion at any time after its entry. Therefore, the order denying the motion (with respect to the defendant who was served with a notice of the motion) must be reversed. The same result must be reached (as to the defendant who was not served with notice) since, though a motion with notice is appropriate in the case of a void judgment, notice to the adverse party is not essential; the court has full power to vacate a void order without any application on the part of anyone [People v. Glimps (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 315, 321, 155 Cal. Rptr. 230 ; see also discussion in § 489.131].

[2] Judgment or Order Not Void on Its Face

A motion to set aside a void judgment or order under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), is expressly required by that statute to be noticed.

§ 489.202 Supporting Papers

[1] Affidavits or Declarations

The invalidity of a judgment or order that is void on its face must appear from the judgment roll or from some other document filed or of record in the case, and, hence, extrinsic evidence is not required, or permitted, to show its invalidity (see discussion in § 489.134). If extrinsic evidence is required, then the judgment or order is not void on its face. Therefore, on a motion to set aside or vacate a judgment or order that is void on its face, no supporting affidavit or declaration is prepared. However, counsel should request that the court take judicial notice of the judgment or order and the judgment roll, or, if the invalidity is disclosed by some other paper or report filed in the action, that particular paper or report. For matters subject to judicial notice and the manner of requesting it, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453.

If the judgment or order is not void on its face but is void in fact, extrinsic evidence is required to show the invalidity. This evidence is normally set out in one or more supporting affidavits (see Code Civ. Proc. § 2009 (affidavits authorized on motions)) or declarations under penalty of perjury (see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) swearing to or signed by the person having personal knowledge of the particular facts [see § 489.420[1] (form ofdeclaration supporting motion to set aside void judgment or order); see also discussions in § 489.360[1] (form of declaration in support of motion for relief based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable nelgect) and in §§ 489.134, 489.138, and 489.139].

[2] Supporting Memorandum

Whether the judgment or order is void on its face or void in fact but not on its face, a memorandum should be prepared. It must be prepared and submitted if the motion is subject to the Civil Law and Motions Rules [Cal. Rules of Ct., 3.1100 et seq.], as is a motion, for example, to set aside a default judgment [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1103(a)(2)], or if local court rule so requires.

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), requires that notice be given to "the other party," that is, to the adverse party. This includes all persons who may be affected by the order sought, including any codefendants [Washko v. Stewart (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 311, 319, 112 P.2d 306]. Hence, the notice of motion and its supporting papers must be served on all parties who may be adversely affected by the granting of the relief sought. The failure to serve any such party will render void as to that party any order granting the relief sought [see Washko v. Stewart (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 311, 319, 112 P.2d 306].

Service of papers must be made on the party's attorney in the action, if any, or, if none, on the party [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1011, 1012, 1015].

An equitable attack on a judgment or order, whether by motion in the same action or by a separate action in equity, is a direct attack on the judgment or order [*see Bennett v. D. Relief From Valid or Void Judgment or Order in Equity
1. Attack in Equity in General

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.221

§ 489.221 Judgments Subject to Equitable Attack

In the exercise of its equity jurisdiction, a court can in a proper case set aside or modify any otherwise valid final judgment on the ground of extrinsic fraud or extrinsic mistake (defined in § 489.241 et seq.), or a void judgment [see Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 470-471, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 ; In re Marriage of Melone (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 757, 762, 238 Cal. Rptr. 510 ; Stiles v. Wallis (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1147, 195 Cal. Rptr. 377]. A court may also grant relief from a default judgment forfeiting real property on which drug trafficking had occurred [People v. One Parcel of Land (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 579, 582-583, 286 Cal. Rptr. 739 ; see § 489.263[3]]. For discussion and examples of void judgments, see § 489.130 et seq.

In addition, a court always retains the inherent power at law or in equity to vacate a judgment obtained through fraud [In re Olivia A. (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 237, 242-243, 226 Cal. Rptr. 382 ; Holt v. Parmer (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 329, 331, 235 P.2d 43]. For when a judgment procured by a fraud on the court may be attacked, see discussion in §§ 489.133 and 489.223. Because courts have power both at law and in equity to vacateand set aside void judgments, cases in equity may be cited in cases at law, and vice versa, to the extent that they identify or define what constitutes a void judgment, even though the rules applicable to relief in law and equity differ.

Extrinsic fraud may also be used as a defense against the enforcement of a judgment of a sister state [see Holt v. Parmer (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 329, 330-331, 235 P.2d 43].

§ 489.223 Doctrine of Res Judicata

Res judicata precludes parties or their privies from relitigating a cause of action that has been finally determined by a court of competent jurisdiction [see Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 18, 193 P.2d 728 ; Henn v. Henn (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 323, 329, 161 Cal. Rptr. 502, 605 P.2d 10 ; see also Ch. 491, Res Judicata]. Under the doctrine, a judgment on the merits that is not void on its face (discussed in § 489.130 et seq.) is normally conclusive after the time for appeal has expired [see Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 470-471, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17]. However, under certain circumstances involving extrinsic fraud or mistake that prevented a fair adversary hearing, the doctrine of res judicata may be suspended and the judgment modified or nullified by a court of equity [see Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 470, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 ; In re Marriage of Melone (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 757, 762, 238 Cal. Rptr. 510 ; see also discussion in § 489.228].

§ 489.224 Scope of Relief

Relief normally consists of the setting aside or vacating of the judgment under attack, or modifying it, but relief is not limited to that. Any appropriate, and otherwise proper, relief may be given. For example, a court may impose a constructive trust [see Caldwell v. Taylor (1933) 218 Cal. 471, 475, 23 P.2d 758 (action in equity)]. However, relief will not be granted against a bona fide purchaser [Marlenee v. Brown (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 668, 675, 134 P.2d 770 (action to set aside order confirming executrix's sale of real property, to have conveyances declared void, and to quiet title)].

§ 489.225 Who May Seek Relief and Manner in Which Relief May Be Sought

A party or one in privity with a party who has been prevented from obtaining a fair adversary hearing through extrinsic fraud or mistake (defined below) may bring an equitable action to vacate the judgment [Morton Regent Enterprises, Inc. v. Leadtec California, Inc. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 847, 141 Cal. Rptr. 706 ; People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 119, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246]. Relief is available either by a motion in the action in which the judgment was rendered or in an independent action in equity [see Morton Regent Enterprises, Inc. v. Leadtec California, Inc. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 847, 141 Cal. Rptr. 706 ; Villarruel v. Arreola (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 309, 318, 136 Cal. Rptr. 19 ; see also Swallow v. Tungsten Products Co. (1928) 205 Cal. 207, 214-220, 270 P. 366 ; In re Olivia A. (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 237, 243, 226 Cal. Rptr. 382 ; People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 119, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246].

A stranger to the proceedings may maintain such an action if his or her interests have been adversely affected by the judgment [Morton Regent Enterprises, Inc. v. Leadtec California, Inc. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 847, 141 Cal. Rptr. 706 ; People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 119, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246 ; see also Villarruel v. Arreola (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 309, 318, 136 Cal. Rptr. 19]. The right of a third party to set aside a judgment may depend on extrinsic mistake as well as extrinsic fraud [Villarruel v. Arreola (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 309, 318, 136 Cal. Rptr. 19].

Relief by a stranger to the proceedings may also be sought by intervention [Villarruel v. Arreola (1977) 66 Cal. App. 3d 309, 318, 136 Cal. Rptr. 19]. The interest necessary for intervention must involve such an immediate and direct claim on the very subject matter of the litigation that the intervener will either gain or lose by the direct operation of the judgment that may be rendered [People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 119, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246]. While the interest of the intervener is normally pecuniary, that is not an indispensable element [People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 119, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246]. For the procedure for seeking to intervene, see Code Civ. Proc. § 387. For further discussion and forms for use in seeking to intervene, see Ch. 395, Parties .

§ 489.227 Equitable Jurisdiction

Superior courts are courts of general jurisdiction [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. As such, in unlimited civil cases, they have general jurisdiction to grant equitable relief from a judgment entered through extrinsic fraud or mistake (defined in §§ 489.243[1] and 489.244[1]). This authority to grant equitable relief does not derive from statute but is a power inherent in those courts [see Baske v. Burke (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 38, 43-44, 177 Cal. Rptr. 794 ; see also In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 149, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583]. The equitable power of a superior court may be invoked by either a motion in the original action or by a separate independent action [see, e.g., Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 ; Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 576, 122 P.2d 564 ; In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 81, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 ; In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 149, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583 ; Neubrand v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 311, 318-319, 88 Cal. Rptr. 586].

In limited civil cases, courts are granted equitable jurisdiction to vacate a judgment or order rendered by the court from which relief is sought if the judgment or order was obtained through extrinsic fraud, mistake, inadvertence, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)(3); for the meaning of the italicized words, see discussion in §§ 489.243[1] and 489.244[1]]. Thus, this jurisdiction is invoked by a motion for relief addressed to the court that rendered the judgment or made the order.

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.228

§ 489.228 Competing Public Policies

The public policy underlying the principle of res judicata (discussed in § 489.223), which requires that the issues involved in a case be set at rest by a final judgment, even when a party has persuaded the court or the jury by false allegations supported by perjured testimony, must be considered together with the policy that a party shall not be deprived of a fair adversary proceeding in which fully to present his or her case [Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 18, 193 P.2d 728].

The terms "intrinsic" and "extrinsic" fraud or mistake are used to describe the two different categories of cases to which these polices of law apply. They do not, however, constitute a simple and infallible formula to determine whether in a given case the facts surrounding the fraud or mistake warrant equitable relief from a judgment [Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 19, 193 P.2d 728 ; Kachig v. Boothe (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 632-634, 99 Cal. Rptr. 393 ; see also discussion in § 489.246].

In accord with the competing public policies, a final judgment may be set aside by a court if it is established that extrinsic factors prevented one party to the litigation from presenting his or her case [In re Marriage of Park (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 337, 342, 165 Cal. Rptr. 792, 612 P.2d 882].

D. Relief From Valid or Void Judgment or Order in Equity
1. Attack in Equity in General

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.229

§ 489.229 Basis of Equity Jurisdiction

The basis of equitable relief is that a party has been deprived of his or her day in court, that is, of a hearing or trial, through no fault of his or her own or of any person whose fault will be attributed to the party, such as his or her attorney or insurance carrier. A condition or event that caused such a deprivation is referred to as extrinsic fraud or mistake (defined in §§ 489.243[1] and 489.244[1]). Conversely, if the deprivation resulted from, for example, the party's negligence, a court will not find extrinsic fraud or mistake, but at most intrinsic fraud or mistake, and will deny relief.

Thus, it has been said that the basis of equitable jurisdiction to interfere with final judgments is the absence of a fair adversary hearing or trial in the original action [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 575, 577, 122 P.2d 564 ; Humes v. MarGil Ventures, Inc. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 486, 499, 220 Cal. Rptr. 186 ; Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 737, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300].

Typical of the situations in which equity has interfered with final judgments are the cases in which the lack of a fair adversary hearing in the original action is attributable to matters outside the issues adjudicated that prevented one party from presenting his or her case to the court because of extrinsic fraud or extrinsic mistake [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 575, 577-578, 122 P.2d 564 ; see also De Mello v. Souza (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 79, 85, 111 Cal. Rptr. 274]. Thus, a court may grant equitable relief from a judgment only if, due to the fraud of the opponent or the aggrieved party's own mistake, the aggrieved party was deprived of a fair adversary hearing and was prevented from presenting his or her claim or defense to the court [De Mello v. Souza (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 79, 85, 111 Cal. Rptr. 274]. The mistake, however, need not be that of the aggrieved party [see Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 18, 193 P.2d 728 (fraud or mistake of the other party); Baske v. Burke (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 38, 44, 177 Cal. Rptr. 794 (mistake of court clerk)].

2. Grounds for Equitable Relief

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.240

§ 489.240 Grounds for Relief

In unlimited civil cases, courts may grant equitable relief from a judgment or order on the grounds of extrinsic fraud or extrinsic mistake(defined in §§ 489.243[1] and 489.244[1]) [see, e.g., Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 ; Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 578, 122 P.2d 564 ; Desper v. King (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 659, 662-663, 59 Cal. Rptr. 657].

It has also been said that this relief may be granted on the ground of duress (defined in § 489.245) [In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 83-84, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403]. In Marriage of Baltins, the appellate court acknowledged, however, that it had found no case stating that it was granting relief solely on the ground of duress, "but this is probably because duress is often characterized as fraud" [In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 83, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403]. Moreover, the court affirmed the trial court's order setting aside the property and support provisions of the interlocutory and final judgments of dissolution of marriage on the grounds of duress and extrinsic fraud or mistake.

Other grounds mentioned in conjunction with extrinsic fraud or mistake include:

- Excusable neglect [see, e.g., Davis v. Thayer (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 911, 170 Cal. Rptr. 328 ; see also definition in § 489.44[4]];

- Accident or extrinsic accident [see, e.g., Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 557, 140 P.2d 3 (see Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 472 n.2, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 , noting that Hallett has been criticized by Witkin on other grounds); Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 575, 122 P.2d 564 ; In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 80, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 ; Baske v. Burke (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 38, 43, 177 Cal. Rptr. 794 ; In re Marriage of Guardino (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 77, 87, 156 Cal. Rptr. 883 ; Turner v. Allen (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 753, 757, 11 Cal. Rptr. 630]; and

- Extrinsic surprise [Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 300, 302, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61].

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)(3) (discussed in § 489.227[2]) grants courts jurisdiction in limited civil cases, to vacate judgments or orders obtained "through extrinsic fraud, mistake, inadvertence, or excusable neglect," this jurisdiction to grant equitable relief is coextensive with, and no greater, than that of courts in unlimited civil cases. That is, the jurisdiction is to grant relief in equity on the grounds of extrinsic fraud or mistake only [Marianos v. Tutunjian (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 61, 65, 138 Cal. Rptr. 529].

The sufficiency of the grounds on which equitable relief is sought is determined according to the same standard, regardless of whether equity is invoked by motion or by an independent action. Therefore, in determining whether a complaint or motion states adequate grounds for equitable relief, the court may properly consider those cases in which equitable relief was sought, either by motion or by independent action [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 576, 122 P.2d 564].

§ 489.242 Extrinsic Fraud or Mistake Generally

Equity will grant relief against a judgment when extrinsic fraud or mistake deprived the unsuccessful party of an opportunity to fully present his or her case or prevented a fair adversary hearing [Larrabee v. Tracy (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 645, 649, 134 P.2d 265 ; see also Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 535-536, 310 P.2d 423], that is, when because of the fraud or mistake, the aggrieved party was prevented from presenting his or her claim or defense to the court [see Aheroni v. Maxwell (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 284, 291, 252 Cal. Rptr. 369 ; De Mello v. Souza (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 79, 85, 111 Cal. Rptr. 274].

The terms "extrinsic fraud" and "extrinsic mistake" are given a broad meaning and tend to encompass almost any set of extrinsic circumstances that deprive a party of a fair adversary hearing, and it does not matter if the particular circumstances qualify as fraudulent or mistaken in the strict sense [In re Marriage of Park (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 337, 342, 165 Cal. Rptr. 792, 612 P.2d 882 ; see also, e.g., Estate of Sanders (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 607,614, 221 Cal. Rptr. 432, 710 P.2d 232 ; In re Marriage of Modnick (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 897, 905, 191 Cal. Rptr. 629, 663 P.2d 187 ; Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 558-559, 305 P.2d 20].

It has been said that in a classic case in equity that seeks to set aside a judgment, two essential conditions are found [Aheroni v. Maxwell (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 284, 291, 252 Cal. Rptr. 369 (quoting Otani v. Kisling (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 438, 442, 33 Cal. Rptr. 239)]:

- The judgment is one entered against a party by default under circumstances that prevented him or her from presenting his or her case, and

- These circumstances result from extrinsic fraud practiced by the other party or the other party's attorney.

The vital question in such a case is whether the successful party by inequitable conduct, either direct or insidious in nature, lulled the other party into a state of false security, thus causing the latter to refrain from appearing in court or asserting legal rights [Aheroni v. Maxwell (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 284, 291, 252 Cal. Rptr. 369 (citing Colich v. United Concrete Pipe Corp. (1956) 145 Cal. App. 2d 102, 107, 302 P.2d 445)]. However, relief is not limited to those cases. Whether or not the aggrieved party has shown grounds such that equity ought to afford relief must depend on all the facts in each case [Larrabee v. Tracy (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 645, 649, 134 P.2d 265].

2. Grounds for Equitable Relief

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.243

§ 489.243 Extrinsic Fraud

[1] Defined

Extrinsic fraud as a ground for vacating a judgment is a broad concept that tends to encompass almost any set of extrinsic circumstances that deprive a party of a fair adversary hearing [In re Marriage of Modnick (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 897, 905, 191 Cal. Rptr. 629, 663 P.2d 187 ; In re Marriage of Park (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 337, 342, 165 Cal. Rptr. 792, 612 P.2d 882]. Thus, fraud is extrinsic when it deprives the unsuccessful party of an opportunity to present his or her claim or defense to the court, as, for example, if he or she was kept in ignorance of the action or was fraudulently prevented from fully participating in the proceeding in some manner, other than by his or her own negligence or other fault [see In re Marriage of Modnick (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 897, 905, 191 Cal. Rptr. 629, 663 P.2d 187 ; Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 471, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 ; see also Lopez v. Lopez (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 735, 738, 48 Cal. Rptr. 136, 408 P.2d 744 ; Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 575, 577, 122 P.2d 564].

However, actual fraud is not required. Extrinsic fraud that deprives the adversary of a fair hearing may exist though only the result of mistake [Sousa v. Freitas (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 660, 667, 89 Cal. Rptr. 485]. Moreover, when the fraud consists of misrepresentations, there is no requirement that the misrepresentations be made to the party defrauded [Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 537, 310 P.2d 423].

On the other hand, extrinsic fraud or mistake is not established, for example, by the inclusion of patently ambiguous language for division of property in a dissolution judgment, that was based on a marital termination agreement drafted by the attorney for the party claiming equitable relief [In re Marriage of Dorris (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1208, 1213, 207 Cal. Rptr. 160 (provision that each party will receive "a share" of personal property)].

For when fraud is intrinsic and not a ground for equitable relief, see discussion in § 489.246.

[2] Examples of Extrinsic Fraud

[a] In General

Examples of extrinsic fraud include:

- The opponent's preventing the unsuccessful party by fraud or deception from exhibiting fully his or her case, as by keeping the party away from court, or by a false promise of a compromise; or

- When the defendant never had knowledge of the suit, being kept in ignorance by the acts of the plaintiff; or

- When an attorney fraudulently or without authority assumes to represent a party and connives at the party's defeat; or

- When the attorney regularly employed by a party corruptly sells out the client's interest to the other side.

These and similar cases show that there has never really been a real contest in the trial or hearing of the case and are reasons for which a new suit may be sustained to set aside and annul the former judgment and open the case for a new and fair hearing [United States v. Throckmorton (1878) 98 U.S. 61, 65-66, 25 L. Ed. 93 ; Estate of Sanders (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 607, 614, 221 Cal. Rptr. 432, 710 P.2d 232 ; Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 471, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 ; see also Estudillo v. Security Loan etc. Co. (1906) 149 Cal. 556, 563-564, 87 P. 19 ; Pico v. Cohn (1891) 91 Cal. 129, 133-134, 27 P. 537 ; Lovato v. Santa Fe Internat. Corp. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 549, 554-555, 198 Cal. Rptr. 838 ; Kachig v. Boothe (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 633, 99 Cal. Rptr. 393 (quoting Pico v. Cohn (1891) 91 Cal. 129, 133-134, 27 P. 537)].

[b] Fraudulent or Negligent Failure to Give Notice

An equitable attack on a final judgment may be made on the ground of extrinsic fraud when it appears that there was a willful failure to give therequired service or that willfully false affidavits of service were filed. Similarly, an independent suit in equity has been allowed when there has been a failure to exercise the degree of diligence required by law in connection with personal service and when false recitals of service were the result of fraud, negligence, or mistake [Carney v. Simmonds (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 84, 94, 315 P.2d 305 ; Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 558, 305 P.2d 20 ; see also Sousa v. Freitas (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 660, 667, 89 Cal. Rptr. 485 (judgment rendered without legal service of process or legal notice); Sternbeck v. Buck (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 829, 834, 307 P.2d 970 (false return of service filed; improper service of summons renders judgment void)].

With respect to a false return, the rule is the same whether the false return of service resulted from fraud or mistake, because, in either event, the court never acquires jurisdiction over the person of the defendant, who, not being present in court, is not able to combat any intrinsic fraud that may be practiced against him or her [Swallow v. Tungsten Products Co. (1928) 205 Cal. 207, 212, 219-220, 270 P. 366].

In cases involving a false return of service, the judgment rendered is void in fact but not void on its face, and relief may be obtained by a timely motion at law directed to the court's inherent power or under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d). If relief at law is not timely sought, the defendant's only remedy is in equity. For further discussion and examples of void judgments, see § 489.130 et seq.

[c] Reliance on Fraudulent Representations of Other Party

When one party has willfully misled the other with respect to the other party's need to appear and protect his or her rights and the other party has reasonably relied on that representation, equitable relief from the subsequent judgment will be granted if the other conditions for equitable relief exist [see Davi v. Belfiore (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 325, 327, 314 P.2d 596 (equitable action for relief from a default judgment)].

[d] Fraudulent Change in Property Settlement Agreement

In some cases, a court will grant equitable relief from a property settlement incorporated in a dissolution of marriage judgment when it is shown that one party fraudulently changed the terms of the oral agreement in reducing it to a written document under circumstances that would excuse the other party from recognizing and contesting the change. For example, when after having agreed orally to pay a particular sum for alimony and child support for an indeterminate period of time, the husband changed the written settlement to provide for the termination of those payments on his remarriage, the court set aside the property settlement on grounds of extrinsic fraud when the evidence revealed that the wife, relying on her attorney and not fully understanding the terms of the agreement, did not have notice of the change in the written document prior to its incorporation in the divorce judgment [Lopez v. Lopez (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 735, 736-737, 48 Cal. Rptr. 136, 408 P.2d 744].

[e] Concealment From Party by Fiduciary or Person in Confidential Relationship

When a relationship of trust and confidence exists, the one in whom confidence is reposed is under a duty to make full disclosure of all material facts within his or her knowledge relating to the transaction in question. The disclosure must be full and complete. Any material concealment or misrepresentation will amount to fraud sufficient to entitle the party injured by it to an action [Estate of Sanders (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 607, 616, 221 Cal. Rptr. 432, 710 P.2d 232].

For example, the personal representative of an estate is an officer of the court and occupies a fiduciary relationship toward all parties having an interest in the estate [Estate of Sanders (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 607, 616, 221 Cal. Rptr. 432, 710 P.2d 232]. A personal representative who is also a residuary legatee has a clear duty to refrain from taking unfair advantage of those with whom he or she deals in the administration of the estate. Thus, if the personal representative leads a beneficiary to believe that a particular distribution will be made in his or her behalf and later changes the proposed distribution, failure to inform the beneficiary of that change in a manner that will allow the beneficiary to appear and contest it constitutes extrinsic fraud that would allow the court to vacate the subsequent distribution decree. Even though notice of the proceedings was properly posted, the personal representative's action would constitute extrinsic fraud, when the personal representative knew that the notice would not alert the beneficiary to the actual need to appear and contest the issue [Larrabee v. Tracy (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 645, 646-652, 134 P.2d 265].

The same is true of a party standing in a confidential relationship [Estate of Sanders (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 607, 615 n.7, 221 Cal. Rptr. 432, 710 P.2d 232]. A confidential relationship exists when one party gains the confidence of the other and purports to act or advise with the other's interests in mind; it may exist although there is no fiduciary relationship, and is particularly likely to exist when there is a family relationship or one of friendship. Or, put another way, a confidential relationship exists when trust and confidence are reposed by one person in the integrity and fidelity of another. It is not necessary that there be an extended period of business or accommodation transactions or dealings between persons for a confidential relationship to be established between them [Estate of Sanders (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 607, 615, 221 Cal. Rptr. 432, 710 P.2d 232].

Thus, the policy permitting a party to seek relief from a judgment applies when the party's adversary, in violation of a duty arising from a trust or confidential relationship, concealed from the party facts essential to the protection of the party's rights. This is so even though such facts concerned issues involved in the case in which the judgment was entered [Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 19, 193 P.2d 728]. The failure to speak or make disclosures that rests on one because of the trust or confidential relationship is obviously a fraud for which equity may afford relief from a judgment thereby obtained, even though the breach of duty occurs during a judicial proceeding and involves false testimony. This is true whether the fraud is regarded as extrinsic or as an exception to the extrinsic fraud rule [Estate of Sanders (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 607, 615 n.7, 221 Cal. Rptr. 432, 710 P.2d 232 (reversing order denying motion to set aside court's previous orders admitting will to probate and ordering final distribution); see also Jorgensen v.

Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 19, 193 P.2d 728].

Thus, equitable relief has been granted from final judgments settling the accounts of guardians, administrators, or executors who withheld information that would have enabled the beneficiaries to attack the accounts and to decrees distributing a decedent's estate adversely to the rights of beneficiaries who have been precluded from pursuing their rights by the fiduciary's concealment of facts [Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 19-20, 193 P.2d 728 (holding rule inapplicable to case before it); see also Kachig v. Boothe (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 634, 99 Cal. Rptr. 393].

However, when in a probate proceeding there is no allegation or showing that the complaining party did not receive notice of the proceeding or that some attempt was made to prevent his or her full participation in it, the concealment of the complaining party's interest in the estate to be distributed will not serve as a basis for equitable relief. In that case, the complaining party has every opportunity to present his or her case, and it follows that there is no extrinsic fraud or mistake sufficient to constitute the basis for an attack on the decree in equity [Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 397, 126 P.2d 105].

[f] Concealment From Court or Party of Party's Rights

In some instances, equitable relief from a judgment has been granted when the evidence establishes that the rights and interests of certain parties have been concealed from the court and from the interested party. For example, the invocation of equity on the ground of extrinsic fraud is warranted when an heir or legatee fails to notify the court of the existence of other heirs of whom he or she has knowledge and files false petitions with the court representing that there are no such heirs [Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 535, 310 P.2d 423]. Actual or positive fraud, however, is not required, because a mistake made by the distributee that keeps a legatee in ignorance of the true facts or deprives him or her of fair notice of the probate proceedings constitutes a type of extrinsic fraud [Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 535, 310 P.2d 423].

Similarly, a final divorce decree may properly be vacated in equity if one spouse proves that the other had secretly obtained the decree after reconciliation and resumption of marital relations [McGuinness v. Superior Court (1925) 196 Cal. 222, 228-229, 237 P. 42 (parties were cohabiting when decree, which made no division of community property, was entered and continued to cohabit until death of spouse who procured decree); see also Gale v. Witt (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 362, 365, 188 P.2d 755]. Moreover, when the parties to a lawsuit fraudulently conceal the existence of an indispensable party in an attempt to obtain a judgment that cuts off the legal rights of that party, the judgment may be vacated [In re Olivia A. (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 237, 241-243, 226 Cal. Rptr. 382 (relief in equity)].

However, when the loss of rights results from the party's failure to investigate and pursue them rather than from the adverse party's active concealment, the courts will deny relief. For example, although a spouse may secure relief from a property settlement agreement obtained through the other spouse's concealment of assets in violation of his or her duty to disclose them, when the ground for relief is merely the mistaken reliance on the other spouse's classification of the fully disclosed assets as either community or separate property, the complaining spouse is barred from obtaining equitable relief by an admission that he or she and his or her attorney did not investigate the facts having had full opportunity to do so [Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 22-23, 193 P.2d 728].

[g] Concealment From Court of Defendant's Incompetency

Incompetency that is alleged to render a defendant wholly devoid of understanding and incapable of transacting business of any nature is a condition that exists independently of a judicial determination of that fact. When the defendant is under such a legal disability and the plaintiff has knowledge of that condition, a duty rests on the plaintiff to disclose those matters to the court and to have a guardian appointed for the purpose of the proceeding. If the plaintiff knows of the defendant's incompetency, conceals the information from the court, and, to prevent a true adversary hearing, proceeds to a default judgment by taking advantage of the defendant's condition, that conduct constitutes a fraud on the court as well as on the incompetent defendant. Because the direct effect of the concealment is to prevent the incompetent from presenting whatever defense he or she has to the court, the fraud is extrinsic in nature. If other requirements for equitable relief are present, allegation of such facts is sufficient to state a cause of action in equity to set aside the judgment on behalf of theincompetent [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 577, 122 P.2d 564 (equitable action to set aside default judgment)]. In Olivera, the Court added that fraud on the plaintiff's part in the former action is not essential in such cases, and that when an adversary hearing has in fact been held, a cause of action for relief in equity can be stated on the ground that extrinsic fraud prevented a fair adversary proceeding [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 577, 122 P.2d 564]. If the plaintiff was not aware of the incompetency and no adversary hearing was had, relief from the judgment might still be had based on extrinsic mistake (see discussion in § 489.244[3][b]).

[h] Concealment From Court of Reason for Party's Absence

When a defendant is prevented by forces beyond his or her control from appearing in the action, coupled with the plaintiff's concealment from the court of the facts causing the absence and/or the misrepresentation of those facts to the court, relief in equity may be obtained from the subsequent judgment whether the fraud is characterized as extrinsic or a fraud on the court, if the court's action might have been different had the true facts been properly disclosed.

For example, relief from a divorce judgment was granted to a husband who was unable to appear in his wife's divorce action because he was, while on a business trip, taken prisoner by the Japanese when war broke out between Japan and the United States. The wife, knowing what had happened to her husband, concealed those facts from the court and made positive misstatements of fact in an affidavit to the court concerning the reason for her husband's absence [Landon v. Landon (1946) 74 Cal. App. 2d 954, 955-958, 169 P.2d 980 (wife's concealment of facts and positive misrepresentations constituted extrinsic fraud on the trial court and a ground for relief from the judgment)].

Similarly, in In re Marriage of Park (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 337, 165 Cal. Rptr. 792, 612 P.2d 882 , the Supreme Court reversed an order denying the wife's motion to vacate a judgment granting the husband a dissolution of marriage and awarding him substantially all of the community property and custody of the children when it was shown that, after an earlier show cause hearing in which the wife was awarded custody of the children, child support, and exclusive possession of the family home, the wife was arrested and summarily deported to Korea, the husband was well aware of the facts and of the wife's inability to be present but concealed this information from the trial court. The Supreme Court held that the husband had a duty to inform the court of the extrinsic facts that prevented his wife's attendance, and that by concealing those facts, the husband breached his duty of disclosure and perpetrated a fraud on the court as well as on the wife [In re Marriage of Park (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 337, 343, 165 Cal. Rptr. 792, 612 P.2d 882] .

Although not entirely clear, it would appear that relief in equity might also be available in the same circumstances based on extrinsic mistake on the ground that the defendant was denied a fair hearing when plaintiff was ignorant of the reason for the defendant's absence and did not make any misrepresentations to the court [see Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 577-578, 122 P.2d 564 ; see also In re Marriage of Park (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 337, 343 n.4, 165 Cal. Rptr. 792, 612 P.2d 882 , above, stating that equitable relief could also be given based solely on the wife's deportation and her attorney's appointment as a court commissioner, but that it was not necessary to address this alternative theory for relief in light of the clear presence of extrinsic fraud)].

[1] Defined

Like extrinsic fraud, extrinsic mistake deprives the unsuccessful party of an opportunity to present his or her case to the court [Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 397, 126 P.2d 105 ; Lopez v. Superior Court (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 925, 934, 223 Cal. Rptr. 798 ; McCreadie v. Arques (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 39, 44 n.3, 56 Cal. Rptr. 188]. The extrinsic mistake may be that of any of the following:

- The aggrieved party [see, e.g., Lopez v. Superior Court (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 925, 934-935, 223 Cal. Rptr. 798],

- The adverse party [see, e.g., Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 18, 193 P.2d 728 ; Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 577-578, 122 P.2d 564], or

- A third person [see, e.g., Baske v. Burke (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 38, 44, 177 Cal. Rptr. 794].

"Mistake" has been defined as the doing of an act under an erroneous conviction, which act, but for such conviction, would not have been done. The same reasoning applies to a failure to act, that is, to an omission [Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 738, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300].

For when mistake is intrinsic and not a ground for equitable relief, see discussions in § 489.246.

[2] Test to Qualify for Relief

The following stringent three-part test applies to determine whether the court should grant a request for equitable relief from a default judgmenton the grounds of extrinsic mistake [Rappleyea v. Campbell (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 975, 982, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669, 884 P.2d 126 ; see Lee v. An (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 558, 566, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 620 (delay of several years in seeking relief did not demonstrate diligence)]:

- First, the defaulting party must demonstrate that it has a meritorious case.

- Second, it must articulate a satisfactory excuse for not presenting a defense to the original action.

- Third, it must demonstrate diligence in seeking to set aside the default once discovered [see also discussion in § 489.262].

For example, in Rappleyea v. Campbell, the California Supreme Court reversed a default judgment, finding that the out-of-state in propria persona defendants reasonably relied on the mistake of the court clerk regarding the amount of the filing fee, which ultimately resulted in a default judgment, their defense had merit, and plaintiff's counsel misinformed defendants regarding the law so that it would not be prejudiced by the judgment being set aside [Rappleyea v. Campbell (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 975, 983-984, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669, 884 P.2d 126]. The court stressed that its decision was narrowly drawn, based on the clerk's error and the plaintiff's incorrect statement of the law, and not on defendants' self-representation.

It also left open the question of the appropriate test applicable to requests for equitable relief when a default judgment has not been entered.

[3] Examples of Extrinsic Mistake

[a] In General

Extrinsic mistake has been found in the following situations:

- When a party becomes incompetent but no guardian ad litem is appointed (see discussion in [b], below).

- When one party relies on another to defend (see §§ 489.361[2] and 489.430[1] (form for notice of motion to set aside judgment or order and supporting declaration).

- When there is reliance on an attorney who becomes incapacitated to act (see discussion in [c], below).

- When a mistake led a court to do what it never intended.

- When a mistaken belief of one party prevented proper notice of the action.

- When the complaining party was disabled at the time the judgment was entered [Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 471-472, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 (citing cases for each example); see also Stiles v. Wallis (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1147, 195 Cal. Rptr. 377].

- When the defendant was incarcerated and unable to attend or to secure an attorney and so notified the court and asked for a continuance [see Humes v. MarGil Ventures, Inc. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 486, 499-500, 220 Cal. Rptr. 186].

Other examples include the apparent loss in the mail of an answer on its way to court; the act of the defendant's secretary in placing the summons and complaint in defendant's file, having misunderstood his instruction to send them to his attorney; and the inadvertent failure of an attorney, representing both an individual and a corporation and intending to answer for both, to put the corporation's name on the answer [see Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 856, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 (citing cases for each example); see also [d], below].

In addition, relief in equity on the ground of extrinsic mistake might be obtained when the mistake is that of the court clerk [Baske v. Burke (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 38, 44, 177 Cal. Rptr. 794 (clerk failed to file letters from elderly defendant as responsive pleading and entered defendant's default for failure to answer)].

Extrinsic mistake may entail an aggrieved party's excusable neglect in failing to present his or her claim or defense, thereby resulting in an unjust judgment against him or her without a fair adversary hearing [Lopez v. Superior Court (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 925, 934-935, 223 Cal. Rptr. 798 ; see also Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 471, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 ; In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 83, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 ; Jackson v. Bank of America (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 375, 386, 233 Cal. Rptr. 162].

For discussion of when a party may secure relief, based on mistake or extrinsic mistake, from a judgment entered as a result of attorney abandonment, see § 489.46.

[b] Disability of Aggrieved Defendant

When the defendant is an unadjudicated mentally incompetent person and there has been no adversary proceeding at all, the right of the incompetent to equitable relief from a default judgment may be established when the plaintiff's ignorance of defendant's legal disability prevented a true adversary hearing as well as when the plaintiff's fraud prevented such a hearing (see § 489.243[2][g]). In that case, the ground for relief is extrinsic mistake [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 577-578, 122 P.2d 564].

Relief is not limited, however, to cases in which the aggrieved party is actually incompetent. Relief from a default and default judgment may be available when they resulted from a party's inexperience with the legal system and inability to understand the nature of the documents served[Berri v. Rogero (1914) 168 Cal. 736, 739, 145 P. 95]. For example, when the defendant in an equitable motion to set aside a default and interlocutory judgment in a divorce action was a newly arrived immigrant with few friends or relatives and with little or no command of English, the court found extrinsic mistake sufficient to set aside the judgment when these factors resulted in the defendant's having been taken advantage of insofar as the she had not fully understood the legal effect of the summons in the previous action, and thereby forfeited valuable property rights in the default judgment [Watson v. Watson (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 35, 36-39, 325 P.2d 1011].

The disability of imprisonment has also been found to constitute extrinsic mistake [Humes v. MarGil Ventures, Inc. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 486, 499, 500, 220 Cal. Rptr. 186].

[c] Death or Illness of Counsel

The general rule is to charge the client with his or her attorney's negligence. However, if, without the client's knowledge or fault, the attorney becomes physically or mentally incapacitated leading to a damaging result in pending litigation, equity may intervene to set aside the judgment, at least in a situation in which the circumstances could not reasonably have been anticipated or avoided by the exercise of due diligence [McCreadie v. Arques (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 39, 45, 56 Cal. Rptr. 188 (equitable relief from default judgment denied); Smith v. Busniewski (1952) 115 Cal. App. 2d 124, 127, 251 P.2d 697].

[d] Attorney's Excusable Mistake or Neglect

The principle that an attorney's neglect is usually not grounds for equitable relief from a judgment applies rigidly to a matter heard on the merits [Tuck v. Tuck (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 743, 746, 70 Cal. Rptr. 822]. Equity will not grant relief against a judgment at law, when the judgment was obtained in consequence of the attorney's neglect, inattention, mistake, or incompetency, unless caused by the opposite party [Tuck v. Tuck (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 743, 746, 70 Cal. Rptr. 822 , quoting Lennefelt v. Cranston (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 171, 175, 41 Cal. Rptr. 598]. Similarly, an attorney's negligence in failing to timely file for new trial or appeal does not constitute extrinsic fraud or mistake that would allow a final judgment rendered after a full adversarial hearing to be set aside in equity [Tuck v. Tuck (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 743, 745, 70 Cal. Rptr. 822].

Relief may be granted when a default is the result of excusable mistake or neglect on the part of the party's attorney or the attorney's total failure to represent the client, but relief will not be granted when the attorney has not totally failed to represent the client and has been guilty of inexcusable neglect [Lopez v. Superior Court (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 925, 935, 223 Cal. Rptr. 798]. Likewise, relief should not be granted when the aggrieved party was guilty of inexcusable neglect [Aheroni v. Maxwell (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 284, 293, 252 Cal. Rptr. 369].

When a clerical or ministerial mistake on the part of the attorney or the attorney's staff has resulted in a default judgment being entered, equity may set the judgment aside if the circumstances surrounding the mistake are deemed excusable. For example, if a default judgment was entered because a properly mailed document failed to reach the clerk's office, the party may be entitled to equitable relief from the judgment [Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 557, 140 P.2d 3 (equitable relief from default judgment; see Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 472 n.2, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 , noting that Hallett has been criticized by Witkin); see also Turner v. Allen (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 753, 759, 11 Cal. Rptr. 630 (equitable relief from default judgment)].

[e] Acts Not Amounting to Actual Fraud

Acts of a party that do not amount to actual or intentional fraud may constitute extrinsic mistake. It is well established that in cases in which the aggrieved party is unable to make out a case of intentional fraud, the courts will extend a liberal interpretation to relieve him or her from a judgment taken without a fair adversary hearing. The basis for equitable relief in these cases, whether referred to as "extrinsic fraud" or "extrinsic mistake," is a situation that has resulted in a judgment taken under circumstances of unfairness and injustice without affording a party the opportunity to participate in the proceedings [Aldabe v. Aldabe (1962) 209 Cal. App. 2d 453, 475, 26 Cal. Rptr. 208 (collateral attack on foreign divorce judgment in which notices were served on wife's discharged attorney who failed to notify wife, husband's attorney knew of discharge, and both husband and his attorney knew where wife was)].

§ 489.245 Duress Defined

Duress includes whatever destroys one's free agency and constrains a person to do what is against the person's will. Duress may be exercised by threat, importunity, or any species of mental coercion. It is shown when a party intentionally used threats or pressure to induce action or inaction to the other party's detriment. The coercion must induce the assent of the coerced party, who has no reasonable alternative to succumbing [In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 84, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403].

To determine whether a default judgment, for example, was the product of duress, the courts look not so much to the nature of the threats, but to their effect on the threatened person's state of mind [In re Marriage ofBaltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 84, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 (wife, through extrinsic factor of duress, had been denied fair adversary hearing in dissolution of marriage proceeding by husband's causing her to sign papers providing cause could be tried as uncontested matter without notice)].

§ 489.246 Intrinsic Fraud or Mistake

[1] Statement of Rule

Courts distinguish between extrinsic and intrinsic fraud or mistake, and the general rule is that only extrinsic fraud or mistake provides a basis for equitable relief [see Buesa v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1537, 1545-1547, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 86 ; In re Marriage of Guardino (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 77, 88, 156 Cal. Rptr. 883 ; De Mello v. Souza (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 79, 85, 111 Cal. Rptr. 274]. Hence, equitable relief is normally denied when the fraud or mistake is intrinsic [see, e.g., Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 472-473, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 ; for discussion of relief from a judgment procured by fraud, see § 489.133].

[2] Public Policy

The principles of res judicata (discussed in § 489.223) demand that the parties present their entire case in one proceeding. Public policy requires that pressure be brought on litigants to use great care in preparing cases for trial and in ascertaining all the facts. A rule that would permit previously decided cases to be reopened because of error or ignorance during the progress of the trial would in large measure vitiate the effects of the rules of res judicata. Courts deny relief, therefore, when the fraud or mistake is intrinsic, that is, when it goes to the merits of the prior proceedings, that should have been guarded against by the party at that time [Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 472-473, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17].

[3] Reason for Rule

The reason for denying relief when fraud is intrinsic is classically stated as follows [Kachig v. Boothe (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 633, 99 Cal. Rptr. 393 , quoting Pico v. Cohn (1891) 91 Cal. 129, 133-134, 27 P. 537]:

> That a former judgment or decree may be set aside, and annulled for some frauds there can be no question; but it must be a fraud extrinsic or collateral to the question examined and determined in the action. And we think it is settled beyond controversy that a decree will not be vacated merely because it was obtained by forged documents or perjured testimony. The reason of this rule is, that there must be an end of litigation; and when parties have once submitted a matter, or have had the opportunity of submitting it, for investigation and determination, and when they have exhausted every means for reviewing such determination in the same proceeding, it must be regarded as final and conclusive, unless it can be shown that the jurisdiction of the court has been imposed upon, or that the prevailing party, by some extrinsic or collateral fraud, has prevented a fair submission of the controversy...

In all such instances the unsuccessful party is really prevented, by the fraudulent contrivance of his adversary, from having a trial; but when he has a trial, he must be prepared to meet and expose perjury then and there. He knows that a false claim or defense can be supported in no other way; that the very object of the trial is, if possible, to ascertain the truth from the conflict of the evidence, and that, necessarily, the truth or falsity of the testimony must be determined in deciding the issue. The trial is his opportunity for making the truth appear. If, unfortunately, he fails, being overborne by perjured testimony, and if he likewise fails to show the injustice that has been done him on motion for a new trial, and the judgment is affirmed on appeal, he is without remedy. The wrong in such case, is of course a most grievous one, and no doubt the legislature and the courts would be glad to redress it if a rule could be devised that would remedy the evil without producing mischiefs far worse than the evil to be remedied. Endless litigation in which nothing was ever finally determined, would be worse than occasional miscarriages of justice; and so the rule is, that a final judgment cannot be annulled merely because it can be shown to have been based on perjured testimony; for if this could be done once, it could be done again and again ad infinitum.

[4] Application of Rule

Application of the rule, however, is not always clear, particularly when the fraud may be classified as either intrinsic or extrinsic, depending on how it is viewed. For example, a false return of service may be considered as intrinsic fraud on the court in that it is a misrepresentation made directly to the court, but extrinsic fraud on the defendant in that it prevents the defendant's participation in the action [see, e.g., Swallow v. Tungsten Products Co. (1928) 205 Cal. 207, 211-212, 270 P. 366 (suggesting it would be extrinsic); see also Carney v. Simmonds (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 84, 92-95, 315 P.2d 305 (action for equitable relief from probate decree in which plaintiff was not given special notice, as requested, and did not appear, and administrator represented to court that notice had been given; would be extrinsic fraud)]. Furthermore, the concealment of facts from the court may be both a fraud on the court and a fraud on a nonappearing party [see,e.g., Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 536, 310 P.2d 423 ; see also discussion in § 489.243[2][h]].

[5] Determining Nature of Fraud or Mistake

Whether a case involves intrinsic or extrinsic fraud or mistake is not determined abstractly. Rather, it is necessary to examine the facts in the light of the policy that a party who failed to assemble all his or her evidence at the trial should not be privileged to relitigate a case, as well as the policy permitting a party to seek relief from a judgment entered in a proceeding in which he or she was deprived of a fair opportunity fully to present his or her case [Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 473, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 ; In re Marriage of Guardino (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 77, 89, 156 Cal. Rptr. 883].

[6] What Constitutes Intrinsic Fraud or Mistake

Fraud or mistake is intrinsic and not a ground for relief if a party has been given notice of the action and has not been prevented from participating in it; that is, if he or she had the opportunity to present his or her case and to protect himself or herself from any mistake or fraud of his or her adversary, but unreasonably neglected to do so [Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 397, 126 P.2d 105 ; In re Marriage of Baltins (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 66, 81-82, 260 Cal. Rptr. 403 ; In re Marriage of Melone (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 757, 762, 238 Cal. Rptr. 510 ; McCreadie v.

Arques (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 39, 44 n.3, 56 Cal. Rptr. 188 ; see also Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 472, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 ; In re Marriage of Umphrey (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 647, 656, 267 Cal. Rptr. 218].

Having had an opportunity to protect his or her interest, that party cannot attack the judgment once the time for appeal or other direct attack at law has passed [see Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 472, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 ; Gale v. Witt (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 362, 367, 188 P.2d 755]. Thus, a judgment normally will not be set aside because of perjured evidence, whether the judgment was obtained by default or after a contested trial [Buesa v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1537, 1545-1548, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 86 ; In re Marriage of Guardino (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 77, 89, 156 Cal. Rptr. 883] or because of the use of forged documents [Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 19-20, 193 P.2d 728 ; Gale v. Witt (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 362, 366, 188 P.2d 755]. Equitable relief will also be denied when it is sought to relitigate an issue involved in a former action on the ground that allegations or proof of either party was fraudulent or based on mistake. Equitable relief may be granted, however, if the party seeking it was precluded by fraud or the mistake of the other party from participating in the proceeding or from fully presenting his or her case [Jorgensen v. Jorgensen (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 13, 18, 193 P.2d 728].

[7] Mutual Mistake

A mutual mistake that might be sufficient to set aside a contract is not sufficient to set aside a final judgment [Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 472-473, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17]. For example, in an equitable motion by the husband to modify a divorce decree on the ground of extrinsic fraud or mistake to relieve him of any liability for certain taxes on the assertion that both spouses were unaware of the repercussions of tax liability with respect to certain properties, the trial court committed reversible error in granting relief when it was established by the evidence that both parties were aware of the assets, full disclosure of the assets had been made during the proceedings, but the complaining party chose not to investigate the taxability of the assets [Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 472-473, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17].

[8] Attorney's Mistake of Law

When a party's attorney knows the facts but mistakenly interprets their legal significance, the mistake is intrinsic and will not warrant relief. An attorney's mistake will not provide the basis for relief unless it was caused by the party's adversary [Janetsky v. Avis (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 799, 811, 222 Cal. Rptr. 342].

Thus, mistaken legal advice from one's own attorney constitutes intrinsic, rather than extrinsic, mistake and does not justify setting aside a final judgment [see In re Marriage of Guardino (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 77, 93-94, 156 Cal. Rptr. 883 ; Westinghouse Credit Corp. v. Wolfer (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 63, 70, 88 Cal. Rptr. 654 ; see also Lennefelt v. Cranston (1964) 231 Cal. App. 2d 171, 175, 41 Cal. Rptr. 598 (equitable proceeding to set aside order fixing inheritance tax)].

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.260

§ 489.260 Time Limitations on Relief From Void Judgments or Orders

No statute of limitations, or any other time limitation, applies to attacks on judgments or orders that are void on their face; they may be attacked anywhere, anytime, directly or collaterally (see discussion in § 489.141). Hence, relief is fully available at law and there is no need to resort to equity for relief from such judgments or orders.

Equitable relief is available, however, from a judgment or order that is void in fact but not void on its face. The time within which relief must be sought depends on whether it is sought by an independent action in equity or by equitable motion, as discussed in § 489.261.

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.261

§ 489.261 Time Limitations on Actions in Equity

[1] Three-Year Statute of Limitations

[a] Fraud or Mistake

When extrinsic fraud or mistake is the gravamen of a suit in equity to vacate, or to secure relief from, a judgment that is not void on its face, the action is governed by the three-year period of limitation set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d), governing actions for fraud or mistake [see Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 560, 305 P.2d 20 (action timely); Estudillo v. Security Loan etc. Co. (1906) 149 Cal. 556, 565, 87 P. 19 (action timely); Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 538, 310 P.2d 423 (action timely); see also Zastrow v. Zastrow (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 710, 714, 132 Cal. Rptr. 536 (stating rule but holding case governed by four-year statute, discussed under [2], below)].

[b] When Action Accrues

Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) further states that the cause of action is not deemed to have accrued until the aggrieved party discovers the facts constituting the fraud or mistake [see Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 560, 305 P.2d 20]. However, the courts have construed this provision to mean that the cause of action accrues when the aggrieved party discovers, or in the exercise of reasonable diligence should have discovered, the facts constituting the fraud or mistake [see Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 559, 305 P.2d 20].

[c] Duty to Investigate

As indicated [b], above, the aggrieved party must exercise reasonable diligence in discovering the facts constituting the fraud or mistake. However, a party's right to proceed on the theory of fraud is not destroyed merely because opportunities for examination or means of knowledge were open to him or her when no legal duty devolved on the party to employ those means of knowledge. When there is an improper concealment of facts at the time of the transaction and thereafter that causes a party to forego an investigation, the statute of limitations does not commence to run until the party discovers the fraud thereby worked on him or her. In addition, when by reason of representations made to a defrauded party, the party is dissuaded from making inquiry, he or she is not charged with constructive notice of the contents of public records [Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 538, 310 P.2d 423 (involving attack on prior probate decree distributing estate)].

Moreover, the existence of a fiduciary relationship between the parties may lessen the plaintiff's duty to make an earlier discovery of the facts [Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 559-563, 305 P.2d 20 (action timely)]. The same is true when there is a confidential relationship between the parties [Estate of Sanders (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 607, 615, 221 Cal. Rptr. 432, 710 P.2d 232 (involving motion, rather than action, in equity); see also discussion in § 489.243[2][e]].

But even absent a fiduciary or confidential relationship, one who speaks is not only obligated to tell the truth but is equally bound not to suppress or conceal any facts within his or her knowledge that materially qualify those stated [Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 537, 310 P.2d 423].

In the final analysis, it is a question for the trier of fact to determine whether the delay in the investigation and discovery of the true facts was reasonable and excusable, as the acts of a person of ordinary care and prudence, under the same circumstances [Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 539, 310 P.2d 423].

[2] Four-Year Statute of Limitations

When the vacation of a judgment is sought in equity on grounds distinct from fraud or mistake, for example, when it seeks to set aside a marital dissolution judgment and a property settlement agreement incorporated in it on the ground that the defaulting wife was mentally incompetent when she signed the agreement and the appearance, stipulation, and waiver filed in her husband's marital dissolution action, it is subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 343, which provides that an action for relief not otherwise provided for must be commenced within four years after the cause of action accrues [Zastrow v. Zastrow (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 710, 714-717, 132 Cal. Rptr. 536 (reversing trial court's ruling that action was barred by three-year statute, and holding that four-year statute applied, and fact that wife delayed suit for almost three and one-half years after regaining her competency did not bar action)].

In holding that mental incompetence was a ground for relief separate from fraud or mistake, the court in Zastrow relied on Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 122 P.2d 564 . Olivera distinguished three situations in which relief in equity from a judgment might be granted to an unadjudicated incompetent defendant:

- On the ground of extrinsic fraud when the plaintiff in the prior case knew the defendant was an unadjudicated mentally incompetent person, concealed that information from the court, and, to prevent a true adversary hearing, took a default judgment [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 577, 122 P.2d 564 (discussed in § 489.243[2][g])];

- On the ground of extrinsic fraud, when, under the same facts, an unfair adversary hearing was held [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 577, 122 P.2d 564 (discussed in § 489.243[2][g])]; and

- To the point involved in Zastrow, on the ground of extrinsic mistake when there has been no adversary proceeding at all, as in the case before it, and it was plaintiff's ignorance of defendant's legal disability that prevented a true adversary hearing [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 577-578, 122 P.2d 564 (discussed in § 489.244[3][b])].

The court in Zastrow failed to explain how this "mistake" is different from the mistake referred to in Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d), discussed in § 489.261[1][a]. Consequently, it is not clear whether, or to what extent, the four-year statute will be held to apply to cases based on extrinsic mistake, arising from some fact other than mental incompetency.

In addition, it should be noted that, unlike Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d), Code Civ. Proc. § 343 does not contain a delayed discovery rule. Nevertheless, Zastrow apparently applied a similar rule by pointing out that the parties agreed that the four-year period commenced to run not from the date the judgment was entered but, rather, from the date the wife regained her competency some two years after the final judgment was entered, and so treating the case. Although the court did not mention it, incompetency that amounts to insanity does toll the statute of limitations [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 328, 352; for a discussion of the several meanings of the term "insanity," see Ch. 304, Insane and Other Incompetent Persons].

[3] Inapplicability of Reasonable Time Requirement

In In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 149, 133 Cal. Rptr 583 , the appellate court, quoting Munoz v. Lopez (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 178, 181, 79 Cal. Rptr. 563 , said: "The time limit for the filing of such a motion [equitable motion] or separate suit [in equity] is a reasonable time from discovery of the default judgment irrespective of when it may actually have been entered" (citing Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700] ; Bennett v. Hibernia Bank 47 Cal. 2d 540, 305 P.2d 20 ; Hayes v. Risk 255 Cal. App. 2d 613, 64 Cal. Rptr. 36 ; Fidelity Bank v. Kettler 264 Cal. App. 2d 481, 70 Cal. Rptr. 500] .

Neither Coffin nor Munoz discussed the statutes of limitation applicable to equitable actions and both involved equitable motions. The rule quoted is a correct statement insofar as equitable motions are concerned (see discussion in § 489.262), but to the extent that it includes equitable actions, it is dictum at most, and its applicability to equitable actions, which are governed by statutes of limitations, is questionable at best [see, e.g., Zastrow v. Zastrow (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 710, 714, 132 Cal. Rptr. 536 (action for equitable relief from marital dissolution decree incorporating property settlement agreement based on mental incompetency held timely when filed almost three and one-half years after plaintiff had been restored to mental competency, during which period there is nothing in the decision to indicate that she did anything to seek relief from the judgment)].

Moreover, the cases cited in Munoz and quoted in Coffin do not support the rule insofar as it would apply to equitable actions. Both the first and fourth cases cited, Weitz and Fidelity Bank, involved motions. In Weitz, the Court said that "One moving in equity to set aside a default judgment must act diligently in making his motion after he learns of the default judgment" [Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 856-857, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700]. Fidelity Bank involved a motion to quash an order for appearance of a judgment debtor for lack of service; the court treated the motion as one attacking a void order, and, by applying by analogy the time limitation in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), found the motion untimely [Fidelity Bank v. Kettler (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 481, 486, 70 Cal. Rptr. 500 (criticized in Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1122, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286 , on the ground that it improperly applied the six-month period in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)], instead of the time limitation in former Code Civ. Proc. § 473a [now Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(a)]); for discussion of attacks on void judgments and orders, see § 489.130 et seq.]. In summarily dismissing equity as a ground for relief, the Fidelity court said that the mere use of an affidavit of personal service not in fact true, through some honest mistake of identity or for some reason compatible with good faith, is not extrinsic fraud, nor fraud at all, and that the 13-month delay in seeking relief was "a distinct badge of laches" and barred defendant's right to have the order quashed [Fidelity Bank v. Kettler (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 481, 486-487, 70 Cal. Rptr. 500]. With respect to a false return of service, the court, apparently, was thinking only of intentional fraud, since a negligently false return of service, insofar as equity is concerned, also constitutes extrinsic fraud or mistake [see Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 558, 305 P.2d 20 (stating that a direct attack on a judgment is allowed in an independent action in equity when false recitals of service were the result of fraud, negligence, or mistake); Munoz v. Lopez (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 178, 181, 79 Cal. Rptr. 563 (stating that a false recital of service, although not deliberate, is treated as extrinsic fraud or mistake); with respect to the court's use of the term "laches" for diligence, see discussion in § 489.262[3]].

The third case cited in Munoz and Coffin, Hayes v. Risk (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 613, 64 Cal. Rptr. 36 , which was an action in equity to vacate and set aside a default judgment and for other relief in a prior action in which summons on a first amended complaint had been served by publication, does not discuss at all the issue of when an action for equitable relief must be filed, other than to state that the default judgment was entered on July 2, 1963 [Hayes v. Risk (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 613, 620, 64 Cal. Rptr. 36], the complaint in equity was filed March 19, 1965 [Hayes v. Risk (1967)255 Cal. App. 2d 613, 621, 64 Cal. Rptr. 36] , and the complaint alleged that plaintiff first had knowledge that summons on the first amended complaint had been served by publication and the entry of the default judgment on February 19, 1965 [Hayes v. Risk (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 613, 620, 621, 64 Cal. Rptr. 36].

The second case cited in Munoz and Coffin, Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 305 P.2d 20 , was a declaratory relief action involving an attack on a prior judgment, in which the Supreme Court reversed the judgment of dismissal entered after the trial court sustained a general demurrer to the complaint. The Court held that equitable relief from the prior judgment was available and that the action, which had been timely filed, was not barred by the three-year statute of limitations [Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 559-560, 305 P.2d 20]. Neither Coffin nor Munoz gave point pages for the cases they cited. Nevertheless, there appears to be no discussion in Bennett (a 26-page opinion) to the effect that an equitable action for relief must be filed within a reasonable time from discovery of the judgment or that the aggrieved party must act diligently in filing an action for equitable relief. The case merely states, as already pointed out (see § 489.261[1][a]), that the statute of limitation for fraud or mistake commences to run when the aggrieved party discovers he or she has a cause of action, or in the exercise of reasonable diligence should have discovered it, and discusses when the aggrieved party is and is not under a duty to make inquiry [Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 559, 563-564, 305 P.2d 20 (holding at p. 561 that the same delayed discovery rule applies to an action for fraudulent conversion)]. Bennett mentions diligence in two other situations: (1) relating to the duty imposed on a fiduciary (bank corporation) to discover the identity of a beneficiary (successor in interest to deceased member of bank corporation) [Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 556, 557, 559, 305 P.2d 20]; and (2) relating to when a direct attack in equity may be made; the Court said: "A direct attck has also been allowed in an independent action in equity when there has been a failure to exercise the degree of diligence required by law in connection with personal service" [Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 558, 305 P.2d 20]. In support of this statement, the Court cited Stern v. Judson (1912) 163 Cal. 726, 728 et seq., 127 P. 38 , and a Washington case. Stern was talking about the diligence required of a plaintiff to locate the defendant before having summons served by publication, the lack of which diligence could render a judgment void, and it is clear that Bennett understood it as such. Consequently, Bennett does not support the proposition that an action in equity must be filed within a reasonable time after the fraud or mistake is discovered or that the aggrieved party must act diligently in seeking relief after discovering the judgment.

Notwithstanding that the reasonable time and diligence requirements may not apply to an action in equity, the aggrieved party should nevertheless act diligently in seeking relief once he or she discovers the judgment to avoid the possible defense of laches, discussed under [4], below.

[4] Defense of Laches

Laches is prejudice to the adverse party resulting from any delay in seeking relief, and it may be a valid defense to an action for equitable relief. However, one is not barred by alleged laches in failing to discover sooner that his or her rights have been injured by the fraud of another [Sousa v. Freitas (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 660, 667-669, 89 Cal. Rptr. 485 (vacating divorce judgment entered some 46 years before on the ground that it was void for lack of valid service of the summons and complaint on the wife)]. Nor is a plaintiff seeking equitable relief barred by laches when, on learning the facts leading him or her to suspect the fraud or mistake, plaintiff exercised reasonable diligence in the commencement and prosecution of the action [see In re Marriage of Modnick (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 897, 908-910, 191 Cal. Rptr. 629, 663 P.2d 187 ; Sullivan v. Lumsden (1897) 118 Cal. 664, 670, 50 P. 777].

Moreover, it has been held that a plaintiff was not guilty of neglect, laches, and want of diligence precluding relief from a default judgment, although some degree of negligence might be charged to her attorney in failing to discover that an answer had not been filed in the prior action, when her delay in discovering the entry of default was due in part to defendants' apparently designed and deliberate failure to take earlier action to enforce their judgment, the suit was commenced within a few weeks after plaintiff learned of the extrinsic mistake and was diligently prosecuted by her, and defendants failed to show that they had suffered injury as a result of the delay before plaintiff knew of the mistake [Hallett v. Slaughter (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 552, 557, 140 P.2d 3 (see Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 472 n.2, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 , noting that Hallett has been criticized by Witkin)]. Hallett has been construed to mean that if the aggrieved party makes a strong showing of diligence in seeking relief after discovery of the facts, and the other party is unable to show prejudice from the delay, the original negligence in allowing the default to be taken will be excused on a weak showing [Turner v. Allen (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 753, 759, 11 Cal. Rptr. 630].

§ 489.262 Time Limitations on Motions in Equity

[1] Reasonable Time Requirement

A motion for relief in equity must be filed within a reasonable time from the date the judgment, or the extrinsic fraud or mistake, was discovered,irrespective of when the judgment was entered [Rappleyea v. Campbell (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 975, 981, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669, 884 P.2d 126 (equitable motion granted when filed one year from date of default judgment but two months from date defendants discovered correct legal consequences of default); see also In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 149, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583 (equitable motion granted when it was filed approximately two months after entry of final judgment of dissolution and about eight and one-half months after interlocutory judgment was entered); Munoz v. Lopez (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 178, 181, 79 Cal. Rptr. 563 (equitable motion to vacate default and default judgment for lack of jurisdiction over defendant granted when service of summons was by publication and motion was made more than four years after entry of judgment)]. The same rule applies to statutory motions for equitable relief filed in a municipal court [Marianos v. Tutunjian (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 61, 65, 138 Cal. Rptr. 529].

Consequently, a judgment is not entitled to the usual conclusive effect when statutory time periods for direct attack have expired. Equitable relief is allowed long after the time for appeal, new trial, or other statutory means of review have expired if the judgment was obtained under circumstances of fraud or mistake that prevented a fair adversary hearing, and the aggrieved party did not have a reasonable opportunity to litigate his or her claim or defense [Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 737, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300 (equitable motion to vacate order setting aside previous order of dismissal for failure to answer interrogatories when motion was filed almost three years after order was entered); see also In re Marriage of Guardino (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 77, 88, 156 Cal. Rptr. 883].

[2] Diligence Requirement

The granting of equitable relief on a motion requires not only a showing of the aggrieved party's satisfactory excuse for not having made his or her claim or defense in the original action, but also a showing of his or her diligence in seeking relief after discovery of the facts [Manson, Iver & York v. Black (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 36, 48, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 522

(incorrectly named defendant acted diligently in setting aside void judgment); Aheroni v. Maxwell (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 284, 294, 252 Cal. Rptr. 369]. Thus, one moving in equity for relief from a judgment or order must act diligently in making the motion after learning of the judgment or order [Rappleyea v. Campbell (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 975, 981, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669, 884 P.2d 126 ; Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 856-857, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 ; Lee v. An (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 558, 566, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 620 (delay of several years in seeking relief did not demonstrate diligence)]. The same rule applies to a party seeking equitable relief from an arbitrator's award by opposing the proceeding to confirm the award [see Humes v. MarGil Ventures, Inc. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 486, 500 (award by Labor Commissioner); De Mello v. Souza (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 79, 85-86, 111 Cal. Rptr. 274 (arbitrator's award)].

In determining whether due diligence has been exercised a court must examine both the time factor and the possible prejudice that might result from setting aside the judgment [McCreadie v. Arques (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 39, 47, 56 Cal. Rptr. 188 ; see discussion in [3], below].

The failure to show due diligence after discovery of the fraud or mistake, by itself, is fatal and constitutes a bar to the granting of equitable relief [De Mello v. Souza (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 79, 86, 111 Cal. Rptr. 274 (reversing judgment correcting and confirming arbitration award that had been made a year earlier and was claimed, in response to petition for confirmation, to have been erroneously determined and contrary to the stipulation of the parties); see also Washko v. Stewart (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 311, 318, 112 P.2d 306 (party seeking equitable relief by motion as not permitted to wait until more than a year after he admittedly had actual notice of judgment before attacking it)].

However, the primary requirement for granting equitable relief is a satisfactory excuse for not presenting a defense in the original action; diligence is merely a further requirement, not an alternative to the first requirement. If the moving party fails to show extrinsic fraud or mistake, relief will be denied on that ground, and the fact he or she acted diligently in seeking the relief is irrelevant [see Aheroni v. Maxwell (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 284, 294, 252 Cal. Rptr. 369].

[3] Effect of Prejudice to Opposing Party

Although the requirement that a party act diligently in moving for relief from a judgment or order is sometimes put in terms of laches [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Modnick (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 897, 908, 191 Cal. Rptr. 629, 663 P.2d 187 ; In re Marriage of Park (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 337, 345, 165 Cal. Rptr. 792, 612 P.2d 882], this is not the appropriate doctrine. Laches requires a finding of prejudice to the adverse party caused by the delay, whereas the failure to act diligently in seeking relief is an independent consideration that may defeat the motion for equitable relief, whether or not the other party was prejudiced by any delay [see Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 856-857, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700].

Thus, just as lack of prejudice to the other party will not automatically enable one to succeed when moving for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), which includes a reasonable time requirement (see § 489.39[5]), lack of prejudice will not automatically enable one who failed to timely move for relief under the statute to have the judgment set aside by appealing to the equity powers of the court [Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 857, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 ; Gribin Von Dyl & Associates, Inc. v. Kovalsky (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 653, 660-661, 230 Cal. Rptr. 50]. Accordingly, the adverse party' failure to show any prejudice resulting from the moving party's claimed lack of diligence, although important, is not decisive.

Lack of prejudice is one of the factors the trial court may properly consider in determining whether defendant acted diligently [Rappleyea v. Campbell (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 975, 983-984, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669, 884 P.2d 126 ; Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 857, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 ; see also Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 740, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300]. That is, in determining whether the moving party exercised diligence in seeking relief, the court must look to the extent of prejudice to the opposing party and to the reasonableness of the moving party in not filing the motion to vacate earlier [Rappleyea v. Campbell (1994) 8 Cal.

4th 975, 983-984, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669, 884 P.2d 126 ; In re Marriage of Modnick (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 897, 908, 191 Cal. Rptr. 629, 663 P.2d 187 ; In re Marriage of Park (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 337, 345, 165 Cal. Rptr. 792, 612 P.2d 882]. The greater the prejudice, the more timely must be the relief sought [In re Marriage of Modnick (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 897, 908, 191 Cal. Rptr. 629, 663 P.2d 187 ; McCreadie v. Arques (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 39, 47, 56 Cal. Rptr. 188].

D. Relief From Valid or Void Judgment or Order in Equity
3. Proceedings for Equitable Relief

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.263

§ 489.263 Relationship to Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) and (d)

[1] Distinct and Cumulative to Proceeding in Equity

Remedies under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (discussed in § 489.30 et seq.), based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, and a proceeding in equity for relief based on extrinsic fraud or extrinsic mistake are entirely distinct and cumulative [Otani v. Kisling (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 438, 442, 33 Cal. Rptr. 239 (action in equity); Rose v. Fuqua (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 719, 724, 19 Cal. Rptr. 634 (action in equity); Wilson v. Wilson (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 421, 426, 130 P.2d 782 (action in equity)].

However, the mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect that provides a ground for relief under the statute might also constitute, or have been the result of, extrinsic fraud or extrinsic mistake, which would provide a ground for relief in equity. Thus, in discussing motions to vacate defaults and default judgments, for example, the courts often speak of cases under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and those in equity interchangeably, distinguishing between the two primarily on the ground of the six-month time limitation under the statute [see, e.g., Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 301, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61]. The primary difference in the grounds for the two motions is that equitable relief is not as a rule available for mistakes of law (see discussion in § 489.246[8]).

In addition, a party who seeks relief in equity must normally make a stronger showing than is necessary for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). During the period when the statutory relief is available, there is a strong public policy in favor of granting relief and allowing the requesting party his or her day in court. Beyond this period, there is a strong public policy in favor of the finality of judgments and only in exceptional circumstance should relief be granted [Aheroni v. Maxwell (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 284, 291, 252 Cal. Rptr. 369].

[2] Limitation on Equitable Relief

To the extent that the court's equity power to grant relief differs from its power under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (discussed in § 489.33), the court's equity power is narrower than its power under the statute [Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 857, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 ; Jackson v. Bank of America (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d

375, 386, 233 Cal. Rptr. 162 ; Gribin Von Dyl & Associates, Inc. v. Kovalsky (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 653, 660, 230 Cal. Rptr. 50].

[3] Relief From Forfeiture

The superior court has inherent equitable jurisdiction to set aside a default judgment taken under Health & Safety Code § 11470 et seq., forfeiting real property at which drug trafficking had occurred [see People v. One Parcel of Land (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 579, 582, 286 Cal. Rptr. 739 (so holding even though the forfeiture law then included a provision, since removed, that Code Civ. Proc. § 473 did not apply to it)].

[4] Six-Month or Other Statutory Limitation as Not Barring Equitable Relief That Overlaps Statutory Relief

The six-month limitation set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (discussed in § 489.30 et seq.), does not bar a subsequent equitable motion for relief on the ground of extrinsic fraud or mistake merely because that fraud or mistake might also constitute mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect within the meaning of the statute [see Desper v. King (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 659, 662-663, 59 Cal. Rptr. 657]. Thus, equitable relief may be available when a defendant fails to seek relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and the six-month period prescribed by that statute has expired [see, e.g., Rappleyea v. Campbell (1994) 8 Cal. 4th 975, 981, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 669, 884 P.2d 126 ; Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 ; Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 578, 122 P.2d 564 ; see also discussion in § 489.39[8]].

This is also true when the time that applies by analogy to a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), or to a nonstatutory motion directed to the court'sinherent power at law, to set aside a judgment or order that is void in fact but not void on its face, has expired. That is, equitable relief may still be available (see discussion in § 489.142[8]).

[5] Treating Statutory Motion as Equitable Motion

When a party moves for relief solely on the basis of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), a court may treat the motion as one for equitable relief [Billings v. Edwards (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 238, 245, 174 Cal. Rptr. 722 ; Davis v. Thayer (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 910, 170 Cal. Rptr. 328 ; see also People v. One Parcel of Land (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 579, 582-583, 286 Cal. Rptr. 739 (motion made under statute but counsel urged court's inherent equitable authority as alternative ground in written reply to People's opposition and at hearing on motion, and trial court granted relief on ground that it was required by "both justice and equity")].

Moreover, a motion for relief under the statute that was not filed within the prescribed six-month period may be treated as a motion addressed to the court's equitable powers when there has been extrinsic fraud or mistake [see, e.g., Aheroni v. Maxwell (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 284, 290, 252 Cal. Rptr. 369 ; Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 736, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300 ; Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 698-699, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581 ; see also Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 856, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700]. This is also true of motions for relief filed in a municipal court [see Marianos v. Tutunjian (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 61, 64, 138 Cal. Rptr. 529 (motion to vacate default judgment made approximately seven months after judgment was entered)].

[6] Effect on Equitable Remedy of Denial of Relief Under Statute

When relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is denied on procedural or jurisdictional grounds, for example, on the ground that the motion was made more than six months after the judgment, order, or proceeding was entered, made, or taken, the order denying relief is not res judicata, and a subsequent action in equity, or motion for equitable relief filed in the same case, may lie [Sternbeck v. Buck (1957), 148 Cal. App. 2d 829, 831, 307 P.2d 970 ; see also Desper v. King (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 659, 663, 59 Cal. Rptr. 657]. This is also true when the aggrieved party at the hearing on the statutory motion did not make a detailed presentation of the issues and oral testimony was not taken [Rose v.

Fuqua (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 719, 724, 19 Cal. Rptr. 634].

However, to the extent that the grounds were litigated on the merits in the statutory motion, the ruling is res judicata in the subsequent equity proceeding [Darlington v. Basalt Rock Co. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 706, 10 Cal. Rptr. 556 (involving denial of motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), to vacate order approving compromise of minor's claim for damages for personal injuries)]. For example, in an action in which the defendant moved for relief from a default judgment on equitable grounds after the court of appeal had already reversed an order granting relief from the judgment, the holding of the appellate court on the prior appeal that the defendant was inexcusably negligent under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), was determinative of the negligence issue and thus precluded equitable relief on the ground of extrinsic fraud or mistake [Jackson v. Bank of America (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 375, 386, 233 Cal. Rptr. 162].

[7] Authority in Equity of Cases Decided Under Statute

Because Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), empowers courts to grant relief under that statute on such terms as may be just, thereby authorizing the courts to exercise their equitable powers in considering applications for relief under the statute, the reasoning of appellate courts in determining causes based on the statute may be considered, when germane, in determining causes addressed to the court's inherent equity power to vacate or set aside a judgment or order entered because of extrinsic fraud or mistake [Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 736, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300].

D. Relief From Valid or Void Judgment or Order in Equity
3. Proceedings for Equitable Relief

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.264

§ 489.264 Meritorious Case Requirement

[1] Equitable Action or Motion for Relief

As a general rule, equity will not interfere with a judgment that is unjust unless it appears that the one whose interests were infringed can present a meritorious case; that is, a good claim or defense, as the case may be. Thus, in an action for equitable relief the plaintiff must plead and prove facts from which it appears, at least prima facie, that if the judgment were set aside and the proceedings reopened, a different result would probably follow [Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 554, 305 P.2d 20 ; Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 579, 122 P.2d 564 ; New York Higher Education Assistance Corp. v. Siegel (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 684, 688-689, 154 Cal. Rptr. 200].

The same rule applies to a party seeking equitable relief from a judgment by a motion [see Bailey v. Roberts (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 282, 286, 76 Cal. Rptr. 572] or by opposing a proceeding to confirm an arbitrator's award [see Humes v. MarGil Ventures, Inc. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 486, 500, 220 Cal. Rptr. 186 (involving award by Labor Commissioner)].

For an exception from the meritorious case requirement when the judgment was rendered by a judge who was disqualified from hearing inthe case by reason of a financial interest in it or bias (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 170.1-170.5), see discussion in § 489.166. For discussion of the rules that apply when the aggrieved defendant was never served with summons or the service was defective, see [3], below.

[2] Showing Required

The requirement of presenting a meritorious case does not require an absolute guarantee of victory. For example, in an action for equitable relief it is enough if the complaint presents facts from which it can be ascertained that the plaintiff has a sufficiently meritorious claim to entitle him or her to a trial of the issue at a proper adversary proceeding [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 578-579, 122 P.2d 564]. For example, if the judgment from which relief is sought is a default judgment entered against an incompetent, the requirement of showing a meritorious defense is satisfied when the complaint for equitable relief alleges that but for the conduct of the present defendant the court in the former action would have considered testimony of additional witnesses concerning the matter in litigation and would have reached a different conclusion [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 580, 122 P.2d 564].

By the same token, on a motion for equitable relief from a judgment, the moving party does not have to demonstrate with a certainty that a different result would obtain on retrial, but must merely show facts indicating a sufficiently meritorious claim or defense to entitle him or her to a fair adversary hearing [In re Marriage of Park (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 337, 346, 165 Cal. Rptr. 792, 612 P.2d 882 ; Crane v. Kampe (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 200, 208, 37 Cal. Rptr. 220]. If the motion seeks relief from a default judgment, a meritorious defense may be shown by either filing with the notice of motion a proposed verified answer negating essential allegations of the complaint or alleging valid affirmative defenses [see Stiles v. Wallis (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1148, 195 Cal. Rptr. 377], or by filing a proposed unverified answer and supporting declarations under penalty of perjury showing a meritorious defense [see Bailey v. Roberts (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 282, 285-287, 76 Cal. Rptr. 572], or simply by filing one or more supporting declarations under penalty of perjury showing a meritorious defense [see People v. One Parcel of Land (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 579, 582, 286 Cal. Rptr. 739].

If relief is sought from some other kind of default, for example, one resulting from a failure to answer discovery proceedings, one might show a meritorious claim or defense by completing and submitting with the notice of motion a verified copy of the response to the discovery motion showing that a good cause of action or defense, as the case may be, exists.

[3] Defective Service or Nonservice of Summons

The requirement of showing a meritorious defense as a condition for equitable relief has been held to apply to cases in which the court never acquired jurisdiction over the defendant's person by reason of a defective service of summons or failure to serve the summons at all [see Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 554-555, 305 P.2d 20 (and cases there cited); see also New York Higher Education Assistance Corp. v. Siegel (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 684, 689, 154 Cal. Rptr. 200].

However, the United States Supreme Court has held that to require the showing of a meritorious defense on a defendant's motion for relief from a default judgment in an action in which the trial court never acquired personal jurisdiction over the defendant, that is, when the judgment is void for lack of personal jurisdiction, violates procedural due process and cannot constitutionally be required [see Peralta v. Heights Medical Center, Inc. (1988) 485 U.S. 80, 84-87, 108 S. Ct. 896, 99 L. Ed. 2d 75].

Peralta arose out of a Texas action to recover a sum allegedly due under the defendant's guarantee of a hospital debt incurred by one of his employees, in which a default judgment was rendered for the amount claimed and attorney's fees. Because defendant had not been timely served with summons, the judgment was void under Texas law. The defendant alleged that an abstract of the judgment had been recorded creating a cloud on the title of his real property, and that, unknown to him, a writ of attachment was issued and his real property sold for much less than its true value to satisfy the judgment. Relief was denied in the state court because defendant did not plead a meritorious defense, and he admittedly had none. The Supreme Court explained that an elementary and fundamental requirement of due process in any proceeding which is to be accorded finality is notice reasonably calculated, under the circumstances, to apprise interested parties of the pendency of the action and afford them the opportunity to present their objections, and that failure to give notice violates the most rudimentary demands of due process of law [Peralta v. Heights Medical Center, Inc. (1988) 485 U.S. 80, 84, 108 S. Ct. 896, 99 L. Ed. 2d 75]. The Supreme Court found untenable the claim that without a defense the same judgment would again be entered on retrial. The Court said that, as defendant asserts, had he notice of the suit he might have impleaded the employee whose debt had been guaranteed, worked out a settlement, or paid the debt, and that he would have preferred to sell his property himself in order to raise funds rather than to suffer it sold at a constable's auction on execution of the judgment [Peralta v. Heights Medical Center, Inc. (1988) 485 U.S. 80, 85-87, 108 S. Ct. 896, 99 L. Ed. 2d 75].

§ 489.266 Action for Equitable Relief

[1] In General

To maintain an independent action in equity to set aside a judgment, it is not necessary to have first made a motion for that relief in the action in which the judgment was rendered, under either Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) or (d) or by an equitable motion; rather, the aggrieved party may seek relief directly by an independent action in equity [Baker v. Baker (1933) 217 Cal. 216, 217, 18 P.2d 61]. Sound reasons may exist for filing an action rather than a motion. For example, a party proceeding by motion may be limited to the ex parte affidavits of voluntary witnesses in support of the motion, whereas in a separate action the same party would be entitled to bring unwilling witnesses to court by subpoena and to take their depositions. In light of these differences, the courts have ruled that equity must allow the separate action regardless of any earlier opportunity to move for the same relief in the action in which the judgment was rendered [Estudillo v. Security Loan etc. Co. (1906) 149 Cal. 556, 564, 87 P. 19]. If relief in addition to vacating the prior judgment is sought, for example, the imposition of a constructive trust, an action, rather than a motion, would be necessary. An action would also be necessary whenever relief is sought from a court other than that which rendered the judgment.

For forms of complaint in equity to set aside a judgment or order, see §§ 489.440 and 489.441.

[2] When Motion May Preclude Independent Action

Moreover, the making of a prior motion for relief may not bar a subsequent action in equity. The mere fact that issues might have been raised on a prior motion to set aside a judgment does not bar presentation of those issues in a later action if, in fact, they were not presented on the motion. But a detailed presentation of the issues of fraud and mistake on a motion to vacate, with full opportunity at the hearing to develop the issues by oral testimony, may bar a subsequent action to set aside the order attacked by the earlier motion [Darlington v. Basalt Rock Co. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 706, 709-710, 10 Cal. Rptr. 556 (adding that such a bar would not apply when the opportunity to present evidence was withheld in the discretion of the trial court)]. Conversely, there is no bar to an independent action when the motion is heard on affidavits only, thus precluding a full opportunity to develop the issue by oral testimony [Huff v. Mendoza

§ 489.267 Denial of Relief

Equitable relief will ordinarily be denied if the court determines that the fraud or mistake is intrinsic and not extrinsic (see discussions in § 489.246; see also discussion in § 489.133). Relief will also be denied if the complaining party contributed to the fraud or mistake giving rise to the judgment, that is, if the party seeking relief was guilty of negligence in permitting the fraud to be practiced or the mistake to occur [Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 473, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 ; see also Davis v. Thayer (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 911, 170 Cal. Rptr. 328 (equitable relief as inappropriate when defaulting defendants were negligent in failing to take any meaningful action to protect themselves after being served with summons and complaint and notice requesting entry of default)].

Relief will also be denied if the aggrieved party fails to present a meritorious case (see discussion in § 489.264). In the case of an equitable motion, relief will be denied if the aggrieved party failed to exercise diligence in seeking relief after discovery of the judgment (see discussion in § 489.262[2]), and in the case of an equitable action, the action may be barred by the statute of limitations or under the doctrine of laches (see in § 489.261), both being affirmative defenses.

III. RESEARCH GUIDE
A. General Considerations

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.283

§ 489.283 Decisions

[1] Policy Favoring Trial on Merits

Policy of law favoring finality of judgments does not control when judgment or order set aside was in exercise of discretionary power of court not based on merits of action; recognized policy in such cases requires trial on merits whenever possible, and this policy is basis for enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 473; in giving effect to that policy, appellate courts generally refrain from interfering on jurisdictional grounds with court's reconsideration of discretionary order not based on merits of litigation. Key System Transit Lines v. Superior Court (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 184, 187, 222 P.2d 867

When trial court denies motion for relief from default, strong policy in favor of trial on merits conflicts with general rule of deference to trial court's exercise of discretion; unless inexcusable neglect is clear, policy favoring trial on merits prevails; doubts are resolved in favor of application for relief from default, and reversal of order denying relief results. Tunis v. Barrow (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1079, 229 Cal. Rptr. 389

Policy of law is to have every litigated case tried on its merits and looks with disfavor on party who, regardless of merits of his or her case, attempts to take advantage of mistake, surprise, inadvertence, or neglect of his or her adversary; appellate courts are much more disposed to affirm order when result is to compel trial on merits than it is when judgment by default is allowed to stand, and it appears that substantial defense can be made. Palmer v. Moore (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 134, 142, 71 Cal. Rptr. 801

[2] Discretion of Trial Court

[a] In General

Right to set aside default judgment within six months of entry for inadvertence, mistake, and excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is matter largely within trial court's discretion and is not disturbed on appeal absent clear showing that discretion has been abused. Beard v. Beard (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 645, 647, 107 P.2d 385 ; Monsan Homes, Inc. v. Pogrebneak (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 826, 829, 258 Cal. Rptr. 676 (criticized on other grounds in Passavanti v. Williams (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1602, 1608 n.5, 275 Cal. Rptr. 887)

Trial court's ruling on motion to vacate judgment will only be disturbed on appeal where there is clear showing of abuse of discretion and manifest miscarriage of justice. Gamet v. Blanchard (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1276, 1283, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439

Standard of review on appeal of denial of motion for relief from judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is abuse of discretion, and court of appeal will not reverse in absence of clear showing of abuse of discretion resulting in injury sufficiently grave as to amount to manifest miscarriage of justice; when two or more inferences can reasonably be deduced from facts, reviewing court has no authority to substitute its decision for that of trial court; burden is on complaining party to establish abuse of discretion, and showing on appeal is insufficient if it presents state of facts which simply affords opportunity for difference of opinion. In re Marriage of Eben-King & King (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 92, 118, 95 Cal. Rptr. 2d 113

Motion seeking relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) lies within sound discretion of trial court, whose decision will not be overturned absent abuse of discretion. Khourie, Crew & Jaeger v. Sabek, Inc. (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1012, 269 Cal. Rptr. 687 ; McCormick v. Board of Supervisors (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 352, 359, 243 Cal. Rptr. 617 ; Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 736, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300

Use of equitable powers to provide relief from default is within trial court's sound discretion and burden on review rests heavily on appellant to show abuse of discretion or error. Janetsky v. Avis (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 799, 811, 222 Cal. Rptr. 342

Motion (in equity) to set aside default judgment is addressed to sound discretion of trial court and is not disturbed on appeal absent clear showing of abuse of discretion. In re Marriage of Guardino (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 77, 87, 156 Cal. Rptr. 883 ; Palmer v. Moore (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 134, 142, 71 Cal. Rptr. 801

[b] Abuse of Discretion

Granting relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from dismissal of case is abuse of discretion when trial court characterized attorney's continuous failure to provide court-ordered discovery is grossly negligent and attorney's conduct was not within inexcusable negligence exception, which requires attorney's conduct to be of such extreme degree it amounts to positive misconduct so as to obliterate existence of attorney client relationship. Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 898, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775

Trial court abuses discretion in denying relief from default judgment when defendant failed to answer complaint because he believed he had not legally been served with summons, he diligently attacked service by motion to quash it and set aside entry of default, and, being unsuccessful on that motion, diligently sought relief from default judgment by motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). Riskin v. Towers (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 274, 277, 148 P.2d 611

Trial court's exercise of discretion in denying motion to vacate judgment is subject to reversal on appeal where no reasonable basis for trial court's action is shown. Gamet v. Blanchard (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1276, 1283, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439

Motion to set aside judgment is addressed to trial court's discretion and is not reversed without clear showing of abuse of that discretion. Philippine Export & Foreign Loan Guarantee Corp. v. Chuidian (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1058, 1077, 267 Cal. Rptr. 457

On appeal from denial of motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), on ground of mistake, abuse of discretion is not established in absence of clear showing that injury resulted from wrong sufficiently grave is to amount to manifest miscarriage of justice. Berris & Seaton v. Meyers (1984) 210 Cal. Rptr. 444

Burden of proof on appeal of showing abuse of discretion in denying motion for equitable relief from default judgment is on appellant. McCreadie v. Arques (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 39, 48, 56 Cal. Rptr. 188

[3] Collateral Attack on Judgments and Orders

Proceedings to prohibit or annul judgments of contempt for violation of injunctions and other equitable orders made contrary to statute constitutes permissible forms of collateral attack. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. McConnell (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 715, 727, 285 P.2d 636

[4] Appeal

[a] In General

On judgment roll appeal, validity of default judgment is determined only by consideration of matters constituting part of judgment roll. Johnson v. Hayes Cal Builders, Inc. (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 572, 576, 35 Cal. Rptr. 618, 387 P.2d 394

When notice of motion to set aside default, though ambiguous, was treated in trial court applies both to entry of default and to entry of judgment, Supreme Court does same on appeal. Luz v. Lopes (1960) 55 Cal. 2d 54, 61, 10 Cal. Rptr. 161, 358 P.2d 289

[b] Appealable Judgments and Orders

Appeal from order refusing to vacate judgment lies when record available to appellate court on appeal raises issues that are not disclosed or could not be disposed of on appeal from judgment itself. Rooney v. Vermont Investment Corp. (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 351, 359, 110 Cal. Rptr. 353, 515 P.2d 297

When law allows appeal from judgment or order, judgment or order is appealable even though void; special order after final judgment is appealable regardless of whether it is void and regardless of whether it is provided for by any of prescribed methods of procedure. Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 366, 370-371, 217 P.2d 951 (overruling Stanton v. Superior Court (1927) 202 Cal. 478, 261 P. 1001 , cases following it, and Kahn v. Smith (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 12, 142 P.2d 13 ; Payne v. Hunt (1932) 214 Cal. 605, 7 P.2d 302); see also Hensley v. Hensley (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 895, 898, 235 Cal. Rptr. 684

Order denying relief from judgment on arbitration award pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 473, based on attorney's failure to timely request trial de novo, is appealable. Brown v. Williams (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 182, 185 n.2, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634

Order denying motion to vacate void judgment is itself void and appealable because it gives effect to void judgment. Carlson v. Eassa (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 684, 691, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 884

Order setting aside void judgment is appealable order. Jones v. Interstate Recovery Service (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 925, 928, 206 Cal. Rptr. 924

Order granting or denying motion to vacate or set aside void judgment is special order made after entry of judgment and directly appealable. County of Ventura v. Tillett (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 105, 110, 183 Cal. Rptr. 741

Order vacating judgment and setting aside default is special order after judgment and appealable. Baske v. Burke (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 38, 43, 177 Cal. Rptr. 794 (motion in equity); Berman v. Klassman (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 902 n.1, 95 Cal. Rptr. 417 (involving judgment entered after noncontested hearing when defendant failed to appear for trial)

Under principle that postjudgment order that affects judgment in some manner or its enforcement, whether it favors judgment creditor or debtor, is appealable, order denying defendant's motion made after judgment to vacate and quash levy of execution and to vacate judgment on ground itwas void is appealable order. Jones v. World Life Research Institute (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 836, 839, 131 Cal. Rptr. 674

Order denying relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from default and default judgment is appealable. First Small Business Inv. Co. v. Sistim, Inc. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 645, 648, 90 Cal. Rptr. 798

Order denying relief from judgment on ground of extrinsic fraud or mistake is appealable. Cope v. Cope (1964) 230 Cal. App. 2d 218, 228-229, 40 Cal. Rptr. 917

Order vacating defendants' default before any judgment had been rendered against them is not separately appealable, since it is neither final judgment nor order made after final judgment, but is reviewable on appeal from judgment subsequently entered. Smith v. Los Angeles Bookbinders Union (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 486, 498, 284 P.2d 194 , disapproved on other grounds in Macleod v. Tribune Publishing Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 551, 343 P.2d 36

[c] Nonappealable Judgments and Orders

Order denying motion to vacate appealable judgment is generally not appealable if appeal raises only matters reviewable on appeal from judgment. Rooney v. Vermont Investment Corp. (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 351, 358, 110 Cal. Rptr. 353, 515 P.2d 297

Order amending order vacating default judgment by striking provision in vacating order setting date for determining value of condemned property is not appealable as special order after final judgment because there is no longer any final judgment in action, and amending order does not affect default judgment but merely recognizes its vacation. City of San Diego v. Superior Court (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 483, 486, 224 P.2d 685

Order denying reconsideration of order setting aside default judgment is nonappealable when issues are same as on original motion. Berman v. Klassman (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 902 n.1, 95 Cal. Rptr. 417

[d] Untimely Appeal

Person who failed to file timely notice of appeal is not always without remedy; for example, when, after rendition of judgment, person entitled to take proceeding looking to reversal or modification of judgment is prevented from doing so by fraud or duress of other party until it is too late, or who is prevented from taking appeal by circumstances over which person has no control is entitled to equitable relief from judgment; such relief is invoked in unusual case of fraud or hardship without interfering with rules governing jurisdiction of appeal. Hollister Convalescent Hosp., Inc. v. Rico (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 660, 675, 125 Cal. Rptr. 757, 542 P.2d 1349

[e] Considerations on Appeal

Policy of law favors hearing on merits whenever possible; appellate court is much more disposed to affirm order that compels trial on merits than to allow default judgment to stand. Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 854, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 (equitable proceeding); Aldrich v. SanFernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 737, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300 (same); Palmer v. Moore (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 134, 142, 71 Cal. Rptr. 801 (same)

Standard of review of trial court order refusing to vacate judgment is if any applicable ground will sustain order, ruling will not be disturbed on appeal; any factual conflicts in evidence are resolved in favor of party who prevailed in trial court. Philippine Export & Foreign Loan Guarantee Corp. v. Chuidian (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1058, 1076-1077, 267 Cal. Rptr. 457

Lower court decision is not overturned merely because it was given for wrong reason; if right on any theory of law applicable to case, lower court decision is required to be sustained regardless of considerations that may have moved trial court to its conclusion. Aheroni v. Maxwell (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 284, 292, 252 Cal. Rptr. 369

In reviewing evidence in support of motion for relief from default and default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), appellate court extends all legitimate and reasonable inferences to uphold judgment; disposition of motion is largely within trial court's discretion, and is not disturbed on appeal absent abuse of discretion; appropriate test of abuse of discretion, although precise definition is difficult, is whether trial court exceeded bounds of reason, all circumstances before it being considered. Carrasco v. Craft (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 796, 803, 210 Cal. Rptr. 599

Order denying relief from default is subject to closer appellate scrutiny than one granting relief, and doubts are resolved in favor of party attempting to get to trial; policy of law favors hearing on merits and law looks with disfavor on party who, regardless of merits of case, attempts to take advantage of mistake, surprise, inadvertence, or neglect of adversary. Lovato v. Santa Fe Internat. Corp. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 549, 554, 555-556, 198 Cal. Rptr. 838

Appellate courts are favorably disposed toward orders excusing defaults and permitting controversies to be adjudicated on their merits; such orders are rarely reversed and never unless abuse of discretion clearly appears. In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 148, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583

[f] Trial on Affidavits (Declarations)

Trial court's resolution of disputed fact issues on basis of affidavits of parties has same standing on appeal is findings based on oral testimony; if affidavits conflict, those favoring prevailing party are accepted as true; because all intendments are in favor of action taken by trial court, affidavits in behalf of successful party are deemed not only to establish facts directly stated therein but all facts reasonably to be inferred from those stated. In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 149-150, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583

Rule on appeal when issue is tried on affidavits is that those affidavits favoring contention of prevailing party establish not only facts stated in them but also facts that reasonably may be inferred from them, and if stated facts are in substantial conflict, determination of controverted facts by trial court is not disturbed on appeal. Wilson v. Eddy (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 613, 617-618, 82 Cal. Rptr. 826

[g] Power of Trial Court After Appeal

Appeal removes from trial court's jurisdiction subject matter of judgment or order appealed from; trial court has no power thereafter to amend or correct its judgment or order, or to vacate it or set it aside. Takahashi v. Fish and Game Com. (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 719, 725, 185 P.2d 805

[5] Cross Appeal

Plaintiff's appeal from order vacating default judgment permits defendant to cross appeal from judgment under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3(c) [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.108(f)]; order in which appeals are heard. Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 699-700, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581

§ 489.292 Decisions

[1] Liberal Construction

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) is a remedial statute and is to be construed liberally to favor its object that cases be adjudicated on the merits rather than determined by default. Standard Microsystems Corp. v. Winbond Electronics Corp. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 868, 894, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 140

Because the law favors disposing of cases on their merits, any doubts in applying Code Civ. Proc. § 473 must be resolved in favor of the party seeking relief from default. Fasuyi v. Permatex, Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 681, 696, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 351

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is liberally construed because law strongly favors trial and disposition on merits; any doubts in applying statute are required to be resolved in favor of party seeking relief. Brochtrup v. INTEP (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 323, 329, 235 Cal. Rptr. 390

[2] Default

[a] In General

Plaintiff's quiet speed in having default entered, though perhaps constituting breach of professional courtesy, does not take away trial court's discretion to grant or deny motion for relief from default, but as merely factor to be considered by trial court in ruling on motion. Carrasco v. Craft (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 796, 807, 210 Cal. Rptr. 599

Taking default quietly on beginning of first day on which defendant's answer was delinquent without prior notice to defendant's counsel is professional discourtesy that justifies vacating default. Robinson v. Varela (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 611, 616, 136 Cal. Rptr. 783

[b] Default Judgments

In personal injury action, trial court properly denied defendant's motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) to vacate default judgment because defendant made no showing that default or judgment was taken against it through its mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. Defendant's insurers were unable to retain counsel to defend it until Rev. & Tax. Code § 19719, prohibiting any person from attempting or purporting to exercise powers, rights, and privileges of corporation suspended pursuant to Rev. & Tax. Code § 23301, was ruled to provide defense for suspended corporation in civil action was amended. Defendant failed to explain why its insurers waited over two and one-half years to retain counsel to defend it or why its insurers never intervened in action. Evidence showed that defendant and its insurers were aware of claims but neither appeared until the trial court was about to enter default judgments against defendant. Schwab v. So. Calif. Gas Co. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1319-1320, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) did not bar cross-defendants' motion to vacate default judgment entered on cross-complaint for failure to seek relief within six months of entry of judgment, when entry of default was not based on cross-defendants' mistake, but because plaintiff neglected to inform cross-defendants of trial date, court improperly ordered their default for failing to appear at trial apparently without confirming they were notified; plaintiff sought type and amount of damages not specified in their cross-complaint, and court granted request. Motion was governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), which allows court to set aside void judgment at any time. Heidary v. Yadollahi, 99 Cal. App. 4th 857, 862, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 695

Trial court abused its discretion under facts of case in striking defendants' pleading and entering default judgment against them for general and compensatory damages for their failure to attend court-ordered deposition pertaining to inquiry into their financial condition pursuant to Civ. Code § 3295. McArthur v. Bockman (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1076, 1080-1081, 256 Cal. Rptr. 522

Judgment rendered for failure to appear at trial after notice (see Code Civ. Proc. § 594(a)) is not default judgment but rather a judgment entered after uncontested trial. Merrifield v. Edmonds (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 336, 341, 194 Cal. Rptr. 104

When defendant has filed answer, neither clerk nor court has power to enter default based on defendant's failure to appear at trial. Wilson v. Goldman (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 573, 577, 79 Cal. Rptr. 309

[3] Dismissal of Action

Order granting unopposed motion for summary judgment did not come within mandatory provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); mandatory provision applies only to relief sought in response to defaults, default judgments or dismissals, and summary judgments thus are not within purview of mandatory relief provision. Huh v. Wang (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1414-1418, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 65

Order granting unopposed motion for summary judgment was not default judgment or dismissal so as to entitle party to mandatory relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on attorney error. Further, counsel's flat assertion that he did not receive motion for summary judgment was simply a statement of fact, not an acknowledgment that counsel was at fault in not opposing motion for summary judgment. Prieto v. LoyolaMarymount University (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 290, 294-297, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 639

Extension of mandatory relief for dismissals resulting from attorney error under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) is not available when judgment of dismissal is for failure to comply with 90-day limitations provisions for commencement of suit and service of summons set forth in Gov. Code § 66499.37. Sprague v. County of San Diego (2003) 106 Cal. App.

4th 119, 135, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 517

"Dismissal" in mandatory provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) does not encompass judgment to which court had determined defendant is entitled as matter of law based on undisputed facts before court, so that summary judgment is not "dismissal" within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). English v. IKON Business Solutions, Inc. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 130, 136-149, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 93

Trial court abused its discretion in dismissing action when court failed to give consideration to plaintiff's personal and family traumas and court's comments about wanting to "keep heat on" plaintiff and dismissing action shortly thereafter seemed arbitrary and created appearance of substantial unfairness, when plaintiff had received information that was plainly inaccurate as she was not informed that plaintiff's counsel's motion to withdraw had been granted and she needed to retain other counsel immediately, and dismissal continued to list her counsel; although in pro per litigants are not entitled to special exemptions from rules of procedure, they are entitled to equal treatment, and confusing and misleading nature of various orders and communications plaintiff received from trial court was particularly important in light of her involuntary in pro per status. Gamet v. Blanchard (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1276, 1283, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 439

Mandatory relief provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) did not apply when counsel's declaration concerning his inexcusable neglect in filing fourth amended complaint presented no answer to issues posed by plaintiff's motion for leave to amend or by defendants' motion to strike fourth amended complaint and dismiss, since plaintiffs could only use counsel's declaration of fault as basis for vacating entered dismissal, while court could not enter dismissal until it had exercised its informed discretion on basis of showings made in support of pending motions; further, court could not say that plaintiffs' attorney's conduct deprived them of their day in court since proposed amendment, which did not address all issues previously raised by trial court, would not necessarily have allowed plaintiffs to proceed to trial. Leader v. Health Industries of America, Inc. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 603, 615-621, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 489

"Dismissal" within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) does not include judgment of dismissal for failure of plaintiff to comply with statute of limitations, hence, relief is unavailable under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 in those circumstances. Castro v. Sacramento County Fire Protection Dist. (1996) 47 Cal. App. 4th 927, 929, 934, 55 Cal. Rptr. 2d 193

Trial court has jurisdiction, even after voluntary dismissal with prejudice is filed, to vacate judgment of dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), when it was entered is result of plaintiff's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. Basinger v. Rogers & Wells (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 16, 21, 269 Cal. Rptr. 332

[4] Claims Against Public Entities

Showing required for relief from failure to file timely claim against public entity (Gov. Code §§ 911.4, 911.6) on grounds of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect is same as that required under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). Torbitt v. State of California (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 860, 864, 208 Cal. Rptr. 1

[5] Settlements

No rule of law gives appellate court carte blanche to set aside "unjust" settlement; motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 to vacate stipulated judgment based on settlement agreement is not governed by same standards applicable to judgments incurred through excusable neglect; when parties by their own agreement, while represented by counsel, and after protracted negotiation, settled litigation, policies of law of contract, which favors enforcement of valid bargains between private parties, and of settlements, which favors private resolution of disputes, and of finality of judgments prevail. Philippine Export & Foreign Loan Guarantee Corp. v. Chuidian (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1058, 1075-1076, 267 Cal. Rptr. 457

[6] Grounds for Relief

[a] In General

In action against medical providers based on plaintiffs' mother's death in nursing home, trial court properly denied relief under discretionary portion of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) to set aside order dismissing complaint for failure to timely amend on basis of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, when plaintiff's mistake of law was unreasonable, and where plaintiffs' inaction after remand appeared to trial court to be intentional conduct rather than mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect. Trial court also properly denied relief under mandatory portion, when trial court did not believe failure to timely file amended complaint was due to mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, but was instead knowing and intentional conduct. Pagarigan v. Aetna U.S. Healthcare of California, Inc. (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 38, 43-46, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627

Personal injury plaintiff's self-representation was not grounds for relief from judgment against him when mistake was not mistake of law but mistake of judgment; there is no authority for relieving litigant from consequences of mistake in judgment when choosing to act as his or her own attorney. Burnete v. La Casa Dana Apartments (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1262, 1267-1268, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 437

Trial court correctly concluded that defendants' Portuguese lawyer was attorney whose affidavit of fault entitled his clients to relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). Rodrigues v. Superior Court (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 1027, 1033-1037, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 194

Trial court was not required to grant relief from dismissal of interpleader action under mandatory portion of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on client's failure to file claims in interpleader action due to attorney neglect, when counsel did not file affidavit of fault, but rather attorney's first declaration chiefly authenticated documents filed in support of motion for relief from dismissal and second declaration stated only that counsel lacked authority to dismiss on client's behalf affirmative claims not then on file in instant proceeding, and neither declaration contained any sworn admission of mistake, inadvertence, surprise or error resulting in dismissal of claims. Attorney's affirmation of contents of legal memorandum were not adequate to satisfy requirement of attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to fault within meaning of Code Civ. Pro. § 473(b), when it contained no concession of error on attorney's part. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. v. Pietak (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 600, 608-610, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256

Although attorney affidavit of fault makes relief mandatory under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) from default judgment or dismissal, it does not mandate relief from judgment entered on arbitration award unless the client was denied hearing; in this case, attorney negligence consisted of failing to timely request trial de novo after arbitration award in defendants' favor, so relief was not mandated; further, award resulted from arbitration hearing in which plaintiff and her attorney actually participated, and denial ofdiscretionary relief was not error. Brown v. Williams (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 182, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 634

Mandatory language of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), requiring that default judgment be set aside when application for relief is accompanied by attorney's affidavit attesting to his or her error, was not applicable to attorney's failure to make timely request for trial de novo after judgment was entered on arbitrator's award; rather, judgment was governed by discretionary provisions of section. Ayala v. Southwest Leasing & Rental, Inc. (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 40, 44, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 637

Relief is granted when default is result of excusable mistake or neglect on part of party's attorney or attorney's total failure to represent client; relief is not granted if attorney has not totally failed to represent client, but has been guilty of inexcusable neglect. Lopez v. Superior Court (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 925, 935, 223 Cal. Rptr. 798

When defendant, with full knowledge of proceedings, obtained extension of time within which to answer, but failed to answer because it was considering filing petition in bankruptcy, trial court's refusal to vacate default taken against defendant is proper under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). Northridge Financial Corp. v. Hamblin (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 824, 122 Cal. Rptr. 109

When answer was mailed on last day before time to answer expired and default was taken before answer reached clerk, defense attorney's unexplained delay in discussing settlement with client and preparing answer until next to last day is insufficient showing to entitle defendant to relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). A & B Metal Products v. MacArthur Properties, Inc. (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 642, 648, 89 Cal. Rptr. 873

[b] Mistake

Trial court abused its discretion in denying motion for relief from default based on paralegal's mistake in calendaring order to show cause hearing so that attorney failed to appear and trial court ordered attorney's client's answer stricken; attorney is responsible for supervising work of legal assistants and paralegal's error was attributable to attorney for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). Hu v. Fang (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 61, 64-66, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 756

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in vacating plaintiff's voluntary dismissal of action against county based on plaintiff's mistaken belief that on dismissal county would cooperate with development of real property under ground lease, when trial court could have inferred that plaintiff was mistaken as to county's general intent to cooperate and acted under erroneous conviction that county wanted plaintiff to proceed with development. H. D. Arnaiz, Ltd. v. County of San Joaquin (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 1357, 1368-1369, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 71

Trial court abused its discretion in denying motion for relief from dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) of interpleader action brought by insurer against insured and bank, when insured's failure to file cross-complaint in interpleader action and instead filing independent action in federal court was attributable to attorney's reasonable misinterpretation of interpleader statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 386] that led attorney to conclusion that filing cross-complaint was not compulsory under Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30, even though counsel failed to consult compulsory cross-complaint statute. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. v. Pietak (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 600, 611-615, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), has no application to judicial mistakes, but only to mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect of moving party; in that defendant cannot participate in default judgment hearing, any action taken at that hearing cannot possibly result from any mistake by defendant, thus, award of excessive damages in default judgment is "mistake" by court. Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 702, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581

Defendants' attorney's mistaken belief as to rules governing attorney's fees on default matters in county in which plaintiff brought action does not require that defendants' default be vacated. A & S Air Conditioning v. John J. Moore Co. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 617, 620, 7 Cal. Rptr. 592

[c] Inadvertence

Inadvertence presupposes mistake or negligence of one degree or another, either excusable or inexcusable under particular facts of case. Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 95, 108-109, 191 Cal. Rptr. 549

When defendant placed summons and complaint in general file and inadvertently failed to make notation of it and there was no indication that he did not understand nature of papers or any indication that acts of any third person intervened, contributing to inadvertence, such inadvertence is mere forgetfulness not entitling defendant to relief. Kooper v. King

[d] Surprise

Surprise was not grounds for relief from dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) in interpleader action brought by insurer against insured and bank, when, after insured stipulated to disbursement of deposited funds, he received copy of letter by insurer to clerk of court requesting filing of enclosed request for dismissal as soon as funds had actually been disbursed, and insured made no objection, so that it could be inferred that trial court concluded insured anticipated insurer would dismiss interpleader once deposited funds had been disbursed so that dismissal was not unexpected, which was reasonable inference. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co. v. Pietak (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 600, 611, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 256

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), surprise is some condition or situation in which a party is unexpectedly placed to his or her injury, without any fault or negligence of his or her own, which ordinary prudence could not have guarded against. Credit Managers Ass'n v. National Indep. Bus. Alliance (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1166, 1173, 209 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; Lint v. Chisholm (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 615, 620, 177 Cal. Rptr. 314 ; Hodge Sheet Metal Products v. Palm Springs Riviera Hotel (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 653, 656-657, 11 Cal. Rptr. 435

[e] Excusable Neglect

"Excusable neglect," in context of ruling on motion for relief from default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), encompasses mistake, inadvertence, and surprise. Iott v. Franklin (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 521, 528 n.8, 253 Cal. Rptr. 635

Defendant's neglect in failing to file answer is not ground for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), when failure was based on defendant's wrongful belief that case was moot and that it was under no obligation to answer. Jackson v. Bank of America (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 55, 58, 190 Cal. Rptr. 78

[f] Failure to Notify Opposing Counsel of Intent to Take Default

If a plaintiff's counsel knows the identity of the lawyer representing a defendant, he or she owes an ethical obligation to warn before requesting entry of the defendant's default. Fasuyi v. Permatex, Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 681, 696, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 351

Plaintiff's counsel is under no legal obligation to give notice of impending default toattorney who represented defendant in another case in which the two attorneys were adversaries, although counsel should have done so as matter of professional courtesy; failure to give notice does not require court to set aside default, although, by taking default without notice, counsel takes risk that court would grant relief. Bellm v. Bellia (1984) 150 Cal. App. 3d 1036, 1038, 198 Cal. Rptr. 389

While no statute or rule requires plaintiff's attorney to notify defendant's attorney that he or she intends to take default, failure to do so usually is sufficient ground for setting default aside on motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). Nelson v. Southerland (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 140, 142, 9 Cal. Rptr. 735

[g] Insurer's Neglect

Unexcused neglect of insurance carrier in failing to defend insured defendant is imputed to defendant. Don v. Cruz

(1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 699, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581

[h] Attorney's Error or Omission

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying discretionary relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on plaintiff's failure to appear at all in opposition to summary judgment motion on grounds of unexplained delay or inexcusable neglect, when plaintiff did not act diligently in seeking relief based on length of delay in seeking relief since triggering event for seeking relief from judgment was notice of its entry, and plaintiff waited to file his motion until more than three months later and plaintiff offered no evidence explaining delay in seeking relief; and when plaintiff failed to carry burden of establishing entitlement to relief from judgment since counsel being overwhelmed and disorganized, misfiling summary judgment motion among completed items and not calendaring hearing date or due date of opposition was not excusable neglect because there was no clerical mistake or extraordinary circumstance. Huh v. Wang (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1406, 1420-1425, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 65

Attorney who brought action on attorney's own behalf in pro per and on behalf of others as taxpayer in representative capacity was not entitled to mandatory relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), when mandatory relief provision of that section applied only in case of attorney representing client, and where, as to aspect of bringing action on behalf of other taxpayers, if attorney bound other taxpayers by action, attorney did so as fellow taxpayer, not as attorney for taxpayers. Esther B. v. City of Los Angeles (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1093, 1099-1100, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 596

In dispute over termination of partnership for operation of hotel, trial court properly denied plaintiff relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on attorney's failure to file timely opposition to motion to enforce settlement agreement, and plaintiff's tardiness in filing his own motion to enforce, which trial court declined to consider; attorney fault provision in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) did not apply to attorney's failure to timely file opposition and cross-motion to motion to enforce settlement. Hossain v. Hossain (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 454, 457-459, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 356

In action on sublease, defendants were entitled under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) to mandatory relief from defaults entered by court after striking defendants' answer as sanction for failure to comply with discovery order and from resulting default judgment, based on attorney's affidavit of fault, when default judgment was "default judgment" within meaning of statute, and when defendant's attorney's declaration stated that, due to his own neglect, he had failed to file opposition to discovery motions, failed to attend hearing on those motions, failed to inform defendants of discovery order against them, failed to file opposition to motion for terminating sanction, and failed to attend hearing on that motion, and attorney's neglect was sole cause of defendants' failure to comply with discovery order resulting in terminating sanction. Plaintiffs or their counsel were entitled to recover from attorney reasonable compensatory legal fees and costs necessitated by his neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)], and trial court on remand could impose sanctions and grant other relief provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 473(c)(1). Matera v. McLeod (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 44, 62-68, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 331

Defendants whose attorney did not inform them of trial date were not entitled to have amended judgment issued after uncontested trial set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), because judgment was not "default," "default judgment," or "dismissal" within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and uncontested trial in their absence and resulting judgment were not procedural equivalent of default. Vandermoon v. Sanwong (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 315, 319-321, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 772

Affidavit of fault signed by attorney who represented partnership in bankruptcy proceeding but not in civil action against city was competent to support partnership's motion in civil action for mandatory relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), when attorney's declaration made clear his fault lay in not appearing at order to show cause hearing in spite of fact that he had not been retained to represent partnership in civil action because of his belief that court could take no action in civil action based on stay obtained in bankruptcy proceeding. SJP Limited Partnership v. City of Los Angeles

(2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 511, 516-520, 39 Cal. Rptr. 3d 55

Trial court properly refused to grant plaintiffs mandatory relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) from dismissal based on granting of motion for terminating sanctions based on plaintiffs' failure to respond to discovery requests or oppose motions to compel discovery or terminating sanctions, when plaintiffs' attorneys regularly failed to respond to discovery when due without informing other side or seeking extension, attempts by opposing counsel to discuss or "meet and confer" were ignored, giving opposing counsel no choice but to go to trouble and expense of preparing and filing motion to compel, which still did not engender response, and, while plaintiffs' counsel did not oppose such motions, neither did they concede, drawing court into conflict, wasting judicial resources and, in case of appointed referee, leading to further expense, and when order issued compelling responses, plaintiffs' counsel defied that too, leading to second go round of each step; and when ultimate sanction of dismissal reared its head, plaintiffs' counsel's obvious plan was to claim attorney fault and revive claims through Section 473(b) motion for relief. Jerry's Shell v. Equilon Enterprises, LLC (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 1058, 1069-1074, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 637

In action by California Attorney General against attorney to make attorney stop filing shakedown lawsuits against small businesses under the unfair competition law, trial court was within its discretion to enter default judgment against attorney and to conclude that attorney had not shown excusable neglect or genuine surprise, mistake or inadvertence to justify relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) and excuse his failure to answer after his demurrer was overruled based on his answer being stolen out of his home mailbox; claim of lost mail is not grounds for automatic relief from a default judgment, and, although attorney provided trial court with series of anecdotes suggesting mail theft from his home mailbox and other mailboxes in his neighborhood, he failed to specify dates, and trial court was justified in concluding that attorney knew of risks of putting mail out for collection in his neighborhood prior to putting his answer in theft-prone mailbox, and proceeded without due regard for known risk; alternatively, given vagueness of attorney's declaration, trial court could reasonably conclude he was being untruthful in asserting story that could not be disproved; and even assuming attorney was truthful in his declaration, absence of conformed copy of his answer should have put him on notice something was wrong and needed correction. People ex rel. Lockyer v. Brar (2005) 134 Cal. App. 4th 659, 662-664, 36 Cal. Rptr. 3d 272

Trial court erred in denying motion for relief from entry of default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) and showing of attorney fault was sufficient, when attorney's declarations explicitly absolved his clients from any responsibility for failure to answer complaint, and although attorney admitted that failure to answer was not accidental or inadvertent, but was calculated result of his mistaken suppositions about settlement possibilities, statute did not require unintentional failure to act, and client was entitled to relief when attorney admitted inaction was his responsibility. Solv-All v. Superior Court (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 1003, 1008-1012, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 202

Trial court properly concluded that counsel's mistake or neglect caused entry of default and granted relief from default and default judgment, when record did not contain disclaimer of attorney fault, and it would have been difficult to accept full disclaimer of responsibility from counsel since before entry of default, counsel learned that court file included declaration of service from process server setting up possible credibility dispute between process server and agent for service of process, who was also defendant, and, even if counsel believed agent accurately described attempted service, counsel should not have presumed court would believe agent's description over process server's; and when although entry of default was not solely caused by defendants or by their counsel, but was caused by both defendants and their counsel, defendants' conduct contributing to default was mistake and not intentional. Benedict v. Danner Press (2001) 87 Cal. App. 4th 923, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896

Code Civ. Proc. § 473 applied to circumstances under which judgment was entered after trial on reserved issues arising from marital dissolution, at which neither former wife nor her attorney appeared, when circumstances were akin to procedural equivalent of default judgment as there was no litigation on merits, and attorney had been formally retained one week prior to trial and former attorney did not advise him of trial date so that both counsel and former wife failed to appear, trial was had and former wife did not have her day in court; further, trial court should have granted motion to set aside judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), when attorney attested in affidavit one of reasons in § 473(b) existed as to why no appearance was made to defend former wife at trial, i.e., attorney's negligence in not inquiring of former attorney about status of case, when attorney's negligence was proximate cause of default, and when former wife had not contributed to default. In re Marriage of Hock & Gordon-Hock (2000) 80 Cal. App. 4th 1438, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 546

Attorney's failure to effectuate proper service of notice of intent to commence medical malpractice action against physicians pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 364(d) does not constitute excusable mistake of law; Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is not available to toll statute of limitations. Hanooka v. Pivko (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1553, 1562-1563 ,

Attorney, who assumes that opposing counsel has granted him extensions of time to file answer because he placed phone calls and wrote letter to opposing counsel in effort to request extension but received no response, is guilty of inexcusable neglect within meaning of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); trial court's granting of relief on such showing is abuse of discretion. Iott v. Franklin (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 521, 531, 253 Cal. Rptr. 635

Existence of excusable neglect for purposes of motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), based on attorney's mistake of law is determined by reasonableness of misconception and justifiability of lack of determination of correct law. Brochtrup v. INTEP (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 323, 329, 235 Cal. Rptr. 390 (default under former Code Civ. Proc. § 2033 for failure to respond to requests for admissions)

Attorney's inexcusable neglect in failing to research law is chargeable to client, whose remedy is action for malpractice against attorney. Torbitt v. State of California (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 860, 866, 208 Cal. Rptr. 1

Relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), for attorney's neglect or mistake requires excusable neglect or mistake of counsel; mere neglect or negligence is insufficient basis for relief. Cochran v. Linn (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 245, 252, 205 Cal. Rptr. 550 ; Robinson v. Varela (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 611, 615-616, 136 Cal. Rptr. 783

Evaluation of attorney's neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) involves consideration of reasonableness of defaulting attorney's conduct and conduct of attorney in taking default. Westinghouse Electric Corp. v. Superior Court (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 95, 109, 191 Cal. Rptr. 549

When party's failure to appear is result of neglect of his or her attorney, party is charged with neglect. Conway v. Municipal Court (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1017, 166 Cal. Rptr. 246

[i] Attorney Abandonment

Record showing that former attorney was served with complaint, written request for responsive pleading, and notice of request to enter default, but failed to file answer and then withdrew from case, was not sufficient to support relief from default under exception for attorney neglect of extreme degree amounting to positive misconduct. Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 626, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42

Default judgment of dissolution of marriage was properly set aside when amended petition was not properly served on husband, husband's attorney failed to represent him and lied to conceal that failure, and wife's attorney took unfair advantage of husband. In re Marriage of Rhoades (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 169, 172-173, 211 Cal. Rptr. 531

[j] Lack of Actual Notice

Error to deny relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), when presumption arising from proof of service was overcome by defendant's detailed, credible, and unimpeached evidence that it received no actual notice of hearing. Bonzer v. City of Huntington Park (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 1474, 1479-1481, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 278

[7] Attorneys's Act or Omission as Imputed to Client

When defaulting defendant has relied on attorney retained for purpose of defending action, general rule is that attorney's inexcusable negligence is charged to client who is relegated to action against attorney for malpractice. Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 700, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581

Negligence of attorney is imputed to client and may not be offered by latter is basis for relief from judgment. Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 301, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61

[8] Constructive Knowledge

Even though knowledge of lawyer is knowledge of client, client ordinarily is charged with constructive notice only when knowledge of attorney has been gained in course of particular transaction in which he or she has been employed by principal. Zirbes v. Stratton (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1407, 1413, 232 Cal. Rptr. 653

[9] Timeliness of Motion

[a] In General

When attorney affidavit of fault is filed under 1991 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 473,six month period commences from date default judgment is entered, not date of entry of default. Sugasawara v. Newland (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 294, 297, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 484

Court was unable to say as matter of law that delay of 21 days after entry of default and 12 days from time default judgment was taken was unreasonable under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). Robinson v. Varela (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 611, 617, 136 Cal. Rptr. 783

Delay of nearly six months in filing motion to set aside default after discovery of its entry is unreasonable under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). Northridge Financial Corp. v. Hamblin (1975) 48 Cal. App. 3d 819, 824, 122 Cal. Rptr. 109

When strong possibility existed that default judgment, if allowed to stand, would affirm transactions in violation of usury law, court was unable to say as matter of law that unexplained delay of 93 days in filing motion to set aside default should compel trial court, in exercise of discretion, to deprive defendant of trial on merits. Berman v. Klassman (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 900, 910, 95 Cal. Rptr. 417

When defendant's attorney was informed that plaintiff's attorney was seeking to have default entered and motion to vacate default was not made until one day before expiration of six months after entry of default, court was warranted in determining that defendant's motion to set aside default was not timely made under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). Cannon v. American Hydrocarbon Corp. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 639, 651, 84 Cal. Rptr. 575

[b] Diligence Requirement

Every party desiring to resist an action or participate in a judicial proceeding has duty to take timely and adequate steps to retain counsel or act personally to avoid undesirable judgment; motion for relief from default under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is denied unless defendant shows that, in arranging for his or her defense, he or she has exercised that reasonable diligence that person of ordinary prudence usually bestows on important business. Luz v. Lopes (1960) 55 Cal. 2d 54, 62, 10 Cal. Rptr. 161, 358 P.2d 289

Delay of several years in seeking relief did not demonstrate diligence. Lee v. An (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 558, 566, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 620

In action by county to impose child support obligation on biological father, county timely moved to set aside voluntary declaration of paternity signed by another man under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, and county and mother met diligence requirement, when biological father took child into his house, held her out as his own, and supported her for three years, so that it was perfectly reasonable that mother, who did not understand legal effect of voluntary declaration, did not attempt to rescind declaration, and she acted promptly once biological father refused to continue to support his daughter. County of Los Angeles v. Sheldon P. (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 1337, 1346-1347, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 350

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), motion for relief from default is properly denied when events raised as excuse each occurred after entry of default and related only to counsel's diligence in seeking relief. Barragan v. Banco BCH (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 283, 301, 232 Cal. Rptr. 758

Showing of due diligence is as much of a prerequisite to granting relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), as it is under inherent equitable power of court; party failing to show due diligence or reasonable excuse for failing to file timely response is not entitled to relief under statute. De Mello v. Souza (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 79, 86, 111 Cal. Rptr. 274

[c] Reasonable Time Requirement

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in finding that moving party filed Code Civ. Proc. § 473 motion within reasonable time in filing motion only a few days short of six months after court issued order denying attorney's fees and costs, even though moving party apparently obtained declaration from former counsel in support of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 relief on the very day the order was issued, when although former attorney, after refusing to communicate with client for protracted period and eventually abandoning him, advised him on September 30, 1999, that he had six months to pursue Code Civ. Proc. § 473 relief, between September 30th and March 4, 2000, moving party sought to retain counsel to represent him in bringing motion, but because of financial difficulties caused in part by underlying lawsuit, could not obtain counsel until he arranged for personal loan to provide necessary financial retainer in February 2000, and during same period was occupied by loss of his business. Lee v. Wells Fargo Bank (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1187, 1200-1201, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726

Lack of funds to obtain counsel does not require default to be set aside as matter of law, but trial court properly considers this matter in determining whether motion to set aside default under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), was brought within reasonable time; trial court does not abuse its discretion in determining under facts of case that excuse did not tip scales in favor of granting relief. Carrasco v. Craft (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 796, 805-806, 210 Cal. Rptr. 599

When plaintiff claimed without contradiction that defendant's attorney was informed of entry of default within two days of entry, defendant's four-month delay in applying for relief from default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), was unreasonable. A & B Metal Products v. MacArthur Properties, Inc. (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 642, 749, 89 Cal. Rptr. 873

[d] Unexplained Delays

Unexplained delays of more than three months in seeking relief from default after knowledge of its entry generally results in denial of relief. Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 625, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42

[e] Six-Month Limitation

Trial court erred in vacating summary judgment in favor of defendant on plaintiff's motion to set aside summary judgment based on procedural default resulting from counsel's excusable neglect, when, although plaintiff filed first motion for relief within six months of entry of judgment, plaintiff failed to serve defendant within six months and second motion for relief was both filed and served after six-month period had expired, so motions were untimely and court had no authority to grant requested relief; when defendant did not waive six-month limit by appearing at hearing on motion and opposing motion on merits; and when trial court had no authority under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) to excuse plaintiff's noncompliance with six-month time limit. Arambula v. Union Carbide Corp. (2005) 128 Cal. App. 4th 333, 340-345, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 854

Trial court did not err in granting motion for Code Civ. Proc. § 473 relief from order denying attorney's fees and costs which was filed more than six months after opposing party raised issue of untimeliness of original motion but within six months of date trial court issued final order denying fees and costs, where six-month deadline in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 ran from date trial court issued its final order, not date opposing party raised issue. Lee v. Wells Fargo Bank (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 1187, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726

Six-month time limit for granting relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is jurisdictional and relief is not granted under statute if application for relief is instituted more than six months after entry of judgment, order, or proceeding from which relief is sought. Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 735 n.3, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300

[10] Proposed Pleading

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), requirement that application for relief be accompanied by copy of pleading proposed to be filed is not satisfied by motion for order continuing time within which to plead. Sousa v. Capital Co. (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 744, 759-760, 34 Cal. Rptr. 71

[11] Burden of Proof

In motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), initial burden is on moving party to prove excusable neglect by preponderance of evidence. Iott v. Franklin (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 521, 528, 253 Cal. Rptr. 635 ; Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 624, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42

Moving party has burden of proving he or she is entitled to relief. Conway v. Municipal Court (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 1009, 1017, 166 Cal. Rptr. 246

[12] Prejudice to Opposing Party

Judgment is not permitted to be set aside under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), in spite of inexcusable neglect, simply because other side has not been prejudiced. Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 900, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775

If conduct of defendant's attorney was excusable, prejudice to plaintiff does not make it inexcusable; and if conduct was inexcusable, absence of prejudice to plaintiff does not make it excusable. Iott v. Franklin (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 521, 531, 253 Cal. Rptr. 635

Lack of prejudice to party opposing motion for relief does not permit relief from default if moving party fails to establish sufficient grounds for relief. Gribin Von Dyl & Associates, Inc. v. Kovalsky (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 653,

660, 230 Cal. Rptr. 50

Although in determining whether defendant acted diligently in filing delayed application for relief from default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), court may properly consider plaintiff's inability to assert any prejudice suffered from delay of trial on merits and very slight evidence is required to justify court in setting aside default, plaintiff's failure to show any prejudice resulting from defendant's claimed lack of diligence is not decisive. Carrasco v. Craft (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 796, 806, 210 Cal. Rptr. 599

[13] Hearing on Motion

In hearing on motion, trial court has discretion to refuse oral testimony and decide issues raised on declarations alone. Robinson v. Varela (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 611, 618, 136 Cal. Rptr. 783

[14] Discretion of Trial Court

[a] In General

Default judgment entered after defendant did not appear at trial is proper exercise of court discretion even though court clerk did not comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 (relating to service by mail) in giving defendant notice of trial date, when jurisdictional requirements in case of nonappearance under Code Civ. Proc. § 594(a) were met. Isherwood v. Hydrosen Properties, Inc. (1987) 240 Cal. Rptr. 157

[b] Abuse of Discretion

Granting relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from dismissal of case is abuse of discretion when trial court characterized attorney's continuous failure to provide court-ordered discovery was grossly negligent and attorney's conduct was not within inexcusable negligence exception (attorney abandonment). Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 898-900, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in setting aside default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), on basis of assertion that continued negotiations between parties had lulled defendant's attorney into sense of security. Beard v. Beard (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 645, 648, 107 P.2d 385

Trial court abused its discretion as matter of law in denying Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), motion for relief from waiver of right to jury trial for failure to post jury fees when failure resulted from confusion over amount required to be posted and there was no showing that adverse party would suffer any prejudice if relief from waiver were granted. Wharton v. Superior Court (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 100, 104, 282 Cal. Rptr. 349

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying motion to vacate default, under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), or court's equitable powers, when defendant averred reasonable reliance on an insurance carrier to defend action but failed to make any showing that carrier's inaction was excusable. Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 702, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581

Trial court, in action arising out of defendants' alleged wrongful eviction of tenant, did not abuse its discretion in denying defendants' motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), to set aside default when defendants unreasonably relied on insurance company to defend them, where they were placed on notice that some action was required of them when plaintiff's counsel informed them that their default would be taken and that insurance company was not protecting their position. Cyrus v. Haveson (1977) 65 Cal. App. 3d 306, 315, 135 Cal. Rptr. 246

[15] Motions to Reconsider and Renewed Motions

Trial court erred in denying plaintiff's motion for order setting aside default judgment, which court properly characterized as motion for reconsideration of its original granting of defendants' motion to set aside default under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, when plaintiff was not given notice of defendants' motion because plaintiff's addresses to which it was sent contained wrong zip codes, and when trial court erred in placing burden of proof as to certain elements on plaintiff, rather than on defendants. Moghaddam v. Bone (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 283, 288-292, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 283

Trial court has jurisdiction to entertain second motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), after denial of first such motion, even if no new evidence is presented to support second motion; in that case, motion is considered to be renewal of first motion. Rambush v. Rambush (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 734, 740, 73 Cal. Rptr. 268

[1] Relief Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying defendants' motion to vacate default judgment and reasonably concluded that defendants had actual notice in time to defend when, after substituted service on defendants at their private post office box, defendant called plaintiffs' counsel to discuss lawsuit and faxed document to counsel proposing to waive/toll deadline to answer complaint, which referenced case number, and then called to settle case, so that it was reasonable to find actual notice; and when defendants had actual knowledge of lawsuit two weeks before answer was due, and plaintiffs' counsel warned defendant default would be taken if they did not answer, so that failure to answer was result of inexcusable neglect. Ellard v. Conway (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 540, 547-548, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 399

Party is required to show that lack of actual notice was not due to inexcusable neglect; although inexcusable neglect of party's attorney is normally imputed to party, exception exists when attorney's neglect is so extreme as to amount to positive misconduct that obliterates attorney-client relationship. Tunis v. Barrow (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1077-1078, 229 Cal. Rptr. 389

Service of summons on attorney who represented defendant in previous action between parties does not constitute actual notice for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5. Tunis v. Barrow (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1077, 229 Cal. Rptr. 389 ; Rosenthal v. Garner (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 891, 897, 191 Cal. Rptr. 300

Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 is not applicable to set aside default when jurisdiction was acquired by fraud, but is available only to persons on whom service was made or attempted and who did not have actual notice of pendency of action. In re Marriage of Smith (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 543, 554-555, 185 Cal. Rptr. 411

[2] Servicemembers' Civil Relief Act

[a] In General

Denial of motion to vacate default judgment modifying support order is error when service was made on attorney who represented serviceman in divorce, but not on serviceman, and no attorney was appointed to represent his interests. Allen v. Allen (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 433, 435-437, 182 P.2d 551

Denial of motion to vacate default judgment modifying spousal support award is error when court entering default knew defendant was stationed abroad in military service, but no affidavit of military status was filed, no attorney was appointed to represent serviceman's interests, and service was made only on his former attorney of record. In re Marriage of Lopez (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 776, 782-784, 173 Cal. Rptr. 718

Denial of motion to set aside default judgment is not error despite erroneous affidavit of nonmilitary status and failure to appoint attorney, when defendant actively sought uncontested divorce and property settlement. Wilterdink v. Wilterdink (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 526, 532-535, 184 P.2d 527

Denial of motion to vacate decree changing minor's name is error when notice was not given to father in military service who was prisoner of war at time of proceedings, no affidavit of military status was made, and no attorney was appointed to represent his interests. In re Larson (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 258, 260-263, 183 P.2d 688

Granting motion to vacate judgment under former 50 U.S.C. App. § 520 (now see 50 U.S.C. App. § 521) is error when plaintiff fully complied with Act's requirements and defendant made no showing that military service prejudiced him in making defense orthat he had meritorious or legal defense and refused advice and services of appointed attorney. Reeh v. Reeh (1945) 69 Cal. App. 2d 200, 203-206, 158 P.2d 751

[b] Liberal Construction of Act

Former 50 U.S.C. App. § 520 (now see 50 U.S.C. App. § 521) is liberally construed to extend to persons who are interested parties in probate and equity proceedings. Winslow v. Harold G. Ferguson Corp. (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 274, 280-281, 153 P.2d 714

Former 50 U.S.C. App. § 520 (now see 50 U.S.C. App. § 521) is liberally construed "defendant" to include "interested party," and "judgment" to decree changing child's name. In re Larson (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 258, 261-262, 183 P.2d 688

[c] Prejudice

Absence when rights or liabilities are being adjudicated is prima facie prejudicial except in few cases when absence is matter of policy rather than result of military service. In re Marriage of Lopez (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 776, 783, 173 Cal. Rptr. 718

C. Relief From Void Judgments and Orders

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.312

§ 489.312 Decisions

[1] Void Judgments Generally

Judgment entered in plaintiff's favor following ex parte trial at which defendant corporation failed to appear was void, despite plaintiff's service on defendant of notice of trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 594(a), when defendant had previously received inadequate notice of withdrawal of its counsel thus rendering notice of trial ineffective. Urethane Foam Experts, Inc. v. Latimer (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 763, 767, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 404

Stipulated judgment secured by county from unrepresented welfare recipient in action by county for reimbursement of welfare funds is void when record showed that defendant did not voluntarily, knowingly, and intelligently waive right to counsel and to trial. County of Ventura v. Tillett (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 105, 112-113, 183 Cal. Rptr. 741

Any judgment entered either for or against person who is not party to proceeding is void as to that person. Fazzi v. Peters (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 590, 594, 68 Cal. Rptr. 170, 440 P.2d 242 (disapproving Calimpco, Inc. v. Warden (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 429, 224 P.2d 421)

[2] Void on Face Judgments

Validity of judgment on its face is determined only by consideration of matters constituting part of judgment roll. Johnson v. Hayes Cal Builders, Inc. (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 572, 576, 35 Cal. Rptr. 618, 387 P.2d 394

Cross-defendants were entitled to relief at any time under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) from default judgment entered on cross-complaint on their failure to appear at trial as judgment void on its face, where although cross-defendants had answered cross-complaint, plaintiff neglected to inform them of trial date, court improperly ordered their default for failing to appear apparently without confirming they were notified, plaintiff sought type and amount of damages not specified in cross-complaint, and court granted request. Plaintiff's sole remedy was to move court to proceed with trial and introduce evidence to sustain plaintiff's cause of action. Further, damages awarded clearly exceeded what was pled, both because amount was higher and because each cross-defendant was held jointly liable for damages alleged against the other, and none of damages were alleged to be jointly owed by them. Heidary v. Yadollahi, 99 Cal. App. 4th 857, 862-867, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 695

[3] Service of Summons

California's Jurisdiction and Service of Process Act of 1969 (Code Civ. Proc. § 410.10 et seq.) clearly rejects common law rule that defendant's general appearance after entry of default judgment against him or her based on void service of summons retroactively makes that service valid. In re Marriage of Smith (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 543, 546, 185 Cal. Rptr. 411

Court is without jurisdiction when summons is served on defendant in manner other than that specified by statute. Wilson v. Eddy (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 613, 616, 82 Cal. Rptr. 826 (involving former Code Civ. Proc. § 411(8), requiring delivery of summons when not otherwise specified to defendant personally [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90, authorizing delivery of summons when not otherwise specified to person or to person authorized by him or her to receive service])

[4] Constructive Service of Process

Compliance with statutory conditions for constructive service of process is jurisdictional, and person not designated by his or her name is not proper party to action. Sousa v. Freitas (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 660, 667, 89 Cal. Rptr. 485

[5] Excess of Jurisdiction

When statute requires court to exercise its jurisdiction in particular manner, follow particular procedure, or subject to certain limitations, act beyond those limits are in excess of jurisdiction and void. Vershbow v. Reiner (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 879, 883, 282 Cal. Rptr. 684

[6] Partial Invalidity

Interest on judgment provision in judgment entered pursuant to stipulation of parties, but that was contrary to stipulation by providing for interest on judgment "as provided by law" from date some 16 months prior to rendition or entry of judgment, was contrary to law, beyond jurisdiction of court, void, and subject to collateral attack by motion to quash execution and vacate levy of execution, although remainder of judgment, which was in accord with stipulation, was valid and not subject to collateral attack. Jones v. World Life Research Institute (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 836, 840, 844-848, 131 Cal. Rptr. 674

[7] Corporate Defendants

Suspension of corporate powers at time corporation filed action does not affect jurisdiction of court to proceed; suspension after filing of action but before rendition of judgment in favor of corporation does not deprive court of jurisdiction or rendering judgment void and subject to collateral attack after it has become final. Traub Co. v. Coffee Break Service, Inc. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 368, 371, 57 Cal. Rptr. 846, 425 P.2d 790

Judgment against corporation is nullity and subject to collateral attack when lack of jurisdiction over corporation is disclosed on face of judgment roll. Traub Co. v. Coffee Break Service, Inc. (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 368, 370, 57 Cal. Rptr. 846, 425 P.2d 790

Default judgment against foreign corporation is void for lack of jurisdiction when service of process was made in manner not authorized by statute. Nagel v. P & M Distributors, Inc. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 176, 180-181, 78 Cal. Rptr. 65

[8] Void Judgments by Default

[a] In General

When action for accounting, declaratory relief, and damages was brought against three defendants, but complaint named first defendant alone as one who had received money belonging to parties and who had failed to account for it and complaint specifically stated that only purpose for joining second defendant was to name all parties in interest, portion of default judgment imposing liability on second defendant is void on face of record and vulnerable to collateral attack. Nemeth v. Trumbull (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 788, 790-791, 792, 34 Cal. Rptr. 127

[b] Defective Service or Nonservice of Summons

Failure to designate and serve corporation in its corporate capacity as requiring reversal of default judgment entered against corporation since it was not possible for individual to have been served in his or her representative capacity for unnamed corporation. Earl W. Schott, Inc. v. Kalar (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 943, 946-947, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 580

Service of substantially defective summons does not confer jurisdiction over party; hence, default judgment against defendant corporation was void for lack of personal jurisdiction when summons was fatally defective in that it failed to notify recipient that he was being served on behalf of defendant corporation was required by Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30. MJS Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1984) 153 Cal. App. 3d 555, 557-558, 200 Cal. Rptr. 286

[c] Default to Amended Complaint

When defendant answered original complaint, default judgment entered after failure to answer amended complaint when amendments consisted only of minor corrections not affecting cause of action was void. Carrasco v. Craft (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 796, 808-811, 210 Cal. Rptr. 599

Judgment awarding relief requested in amended complaint that was served in incorrect manner after default was taken was void for granting relief in excess of that requested in original complaint when amended complaint increased amount of relief requested. Engebretson & Co. v. Harrison (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 436, 444, 178 Cal. Rptr. 77 (attack by independent action in equity)

[d] Cross Complaints

Code Civ. Proc. § 580, declaring that relief granted to plaintiff, if there is no answer, cannot exceed that which he or she demanded in his or her complaint, is applicable to relief granted on cross complaint. Swycaffer v. Swycaffer (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 689, 692-693, 285 P.2d 1

[e] Answer or Other Responsive Pleading Filed

Code Civ. Proc. § 585 does not authorize entry of any default in case in which answer is on file, whether or not defendant appears when action is called for hearing, and Code Civ. Proc. § 594, relating to procedure when party fails to appear at trial, does not authorize entry of default if defendant fails to appear; default entered after answer has been filed is void. Wilson v. Goldman (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 573, 576-577, 79 Cal. Rptr. 309

Default entered by court clerk when demurrer was on file was void and properly set aside on motion. Stevens v. Torregano (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 105, 112, 13 Cal. Rptr. 604

[f] Amendment of Complaint After Entry of Default

When, after defendant's default has been entered, complaint is amended in matter of substance is distinguished from mere matter of form, that amendment opens default, and, unless amended complaint has been served on defendant in manner provided for service of summons, no judgment can properly be entered on default. Thompson v. Cook (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 564, 568, 127 P.2d 909 ; Engebretson & Co. v. Harrison (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 436, 440, 178 Cal. Rptr. 77

Substantive amendment to complaint effectively opens default, which permits defaulting defendant to answer; purpose of rule is to insure that defendant has opportunity to reassess action in light of changes made in complaint; but rule was inapplicable when amendment did not result in any substantive changes and did not expose defendant to any greater or different liabilitythan was presented by complaint on file. Beeman v. Burling (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1586, 1594-1595, 265 Cal. Rptr. 719

General rule that when plaintiff amends declaration or complaint so as to change cause of action or add new one, judgment by default may be taken against defendant if he or she fails to file new or amended answer or plea, is without application when amendment is merely as to formal or immaterial matters or when original plea or answer set forth sufficient defense to declaration or complaint is amended. Smith v. Los Angeles Bookbinders Union (1955) 133 Cal. App. 2d 486, 500-501, 284 P.2d 194 , disapproved on other grounds in Macleod v. Tribune Publishing Co. (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 536, 551, 343 P.2d 36

[g] Failure to Serve Statement of Damages

Default judgment not void under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) when statement of damages properly served in same manner as summons. Sakaguchi v. Sakaguchi (2009) 173 Cal. App. 4th 852, 860-861, 92 Cal. Rptr. 3d 717
