Default judgment taken by plaintiff against one defendant in personal injury action was not void under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), where plaintiffs complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 by personally serving statement of damages on defendant. Statement set forth amounts of general and special damages each plaintiff was seeking, default was entered 15 days after statement was served, and more than three years later, default judgment was entered in aggregate amount less than amounts set forth in statement of damage. Default judgment was also properly entered on another defendant's cross-complaint for indemnity and contribution against same defendant, where cross-complainant personally served defendant with statement of damages setting forth property and other damages, including detailed declaration stating that amounts were paid in settlement of various claims in action, including plaintiffs' claims, identifying persons to whom each amount was paid, sufficiently specific to allow defendant to make informed decision whether to appear and defend cross-complaint, and default was entered more than six weeks after cross-complainant's statement of damages was properly served, allowing defendant reasonable time to determine whether to appear and defend the action. However, default judgments taken by two other cross-complainants for indemnity against same defendant were void, where neither statement of damages served by cross-complainants on defendant was served in same manner as summons as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11(d), and cross-complainants failed to give formal notice of amount of money damages sought within reasonable time before defaults were entered because defendant had no time to respond to cross-complaints after it was finally given formal notice of amount of damages, and where although defendant had actual notice of amount of damages cross-complainant sought, actual notice does not satisfy formal notice requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10 et seq., 585. Schwab v. So. Cal. Gas Co. (2004) 114 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1320-1326, 8 Cal. Rptr. 3d 627

Default judgment for trespass, assault, conversion, intentional infliction of emotional distress, and wrongful repossession was properly set aside when plaintiff had failed to inform defendant of amount of damages sought as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11; nonpersonal injury claims alleged is so closely tied to personal injury claims as to require Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 disclosure for all causes of action. Jones v. Interstate Recovery Service (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 925, 929-930, 206 Cal. Rptr. 924

[h] Discovery Proceedings

Default judgment entered after defendant's answer was stricken for failure to answer interrogatories or comply with discovery motions is void under due process clause of federal constitution when defendant had neither actual nor constructive notice of interrogatories and motions; relief from such a judgment is available either on motion at law under court's inherent power or by motion in equity on ground of extrinsic fraud. Lovato v. Santa Fe Internat. Corp. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 549, 553-555, 198 Cal. Rptr. 838

[i] Judgment Entered by Court Clerk

Clerk's authority under Code Civ. Proc. § 585(1) [now Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a)] to enter default judgment is limited to actions on contracts in which proper amount appears in contract is alleged in complaint or follows therefrom by mathematical computation; if determination of damages involves discretion or taking of evidence, clerk is without power to enter judgment, and clerk's action in doing so is void on face of record. Brown v. Superior Court (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 525-526, 51 Cal. Rptr. 633

[j] Premature Default Judgments

Premature default judgment is merely irregular or erroneous and not void; as against collateral attack in proceeding in which it has been pleaded is res judicata, it is res judicata, even though erroneous. Guardianship of Jacobson (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 326, 334, 182 P.2d 545

[k] Judgment Exceeds Demand or Gives Unrequested Relief

Default judgment that exceeds demand of complaint or gives relief that has not been demanded is in excess of court's jurisdiction and void. Swycaffer v. Swycaffer (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 689, 693, 285 P.2d 1

In legal malpractice action, trial court properly set aside $2.5 million superior court default judgment as void because it was greater than amount demanded in first amended complaint, when first amended complaint was for legal malpractice and sought damages based on contract and tort theories according to proof, and filing of statement of damages under Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 before default was entered based on sixteenth cause of action for emotional distress based on same professional negligence did not make action one for personal injury or wrongful death within meaning of § 425.11, and plaintiff suing for legal malpractice may not, as general rule, recover emotional distress damages. Levine v. Smith (2006) 145 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 1136-1137, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 197

Marital dissolution petition provided adequate notice to husband who defaulted that wife sought division of property and liabilities. In re Marriage of Andresen (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 873, 878-880, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 147

When complaint alleged $50,000 actual damages plus statutory entitlement to treble damages, default judgment awarding $150,000 actual damages was properly vacated; trial court erred in setting aside entry of default, however, and should have entered default judgment for $50,000 actual damages, doubled under statute that authorized treble, but mandated double damages for malicious injury to trees on another's land. Ostling v. Loring (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1731, 1742, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 391

In cause of action involving defendant corporation's failure to allow plaintiff to exercise option to purchase shares of stock in two corporations, default judgment awarding plaintiff $17,500 was void when adequate notice to defendant of amount of plaintiff's claim as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 580 was not given in complaint that alleged damages "in sum equal to the present market value" of the shares, less the option price, and praying for damages "according to proof." Ludka v. Memory Magnetics International (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 316, 322-323, 101 Cal. Rptr. 615

Allegation in complaint that "by reason of said facts plaintiffs have been damaged in sum of $10,000" combined with prayer for "damages according to proof" gives defendant sufficient notice that plaintiff sought damages in addition to restitutional relief to sustain award of damages. Thorson v. Western Development Corp. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 206, 213, 59 Cal. Rptr. 299

Portion of judgment granting relief in excess of that demanded in complaint is void on face of record and subject to collateral attack. Nemeth v. Trumbull (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 788, 792, 34 Cal. Rptr. 127

[l] Damages

Award of punitive damages in default judgment that had been prayed for was not void because no award of compensatory damages was made or requested when defendant's fraudulent acts and actual damages caused were alleged and proved, because Civ. Code § 3294 requirement of "actual damages" is simply requirement that tortious act be proved if punitive damages are to be assessed. Weiss v. Blumencranc (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 536, 542-543, 131 Cal. Rptr. 298

[m] Review on Appeal

Default judgment is void when it is clear from "face of the appellate record" that default should not have been entered, and relief from default on which it rests may be sought at any time; thus, when it appears from appellate record that default judgment was entered without giving defendant notice of special and general damages sought to be recovered, as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 425.11 when damages cannot be alleged under former Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(a) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)], default judgment is void. Stevenson v. Turner (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 315, 318-320, 156 Cal. Rptr. 499

[9] Void Orders

Trial court erred in denying motion to set aside order dismissing case that had been stayed based on defendant's petition in bankruptcy, where petition created automatic stay of all judicial proceedings against bankruptcy debtor [11 U.S.C. § 362 (a)], and judicial proceedings in violation of automatic stay are void [In re Shamblin (9th Cir. 1989) 890 F.2d 123, 125], so that trial court had no power to dismiss case based on statement on preprinted form that unless plaintiff filed declaration before stated hearing date indicating why case should not be dismissed at that time, stayed action would be dismissed on court's own motion and dismissal was void. Sindler v. Brennan (2003) 105 Cal. App. 4th 1350, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 888

Order made on motion requiring notice of which no notice was given was void. Thompson v. Cook (1942) 20 Cal. 2d

564, 569, 127 P.2d 909

[10] Writ of Execution

Trial court has power and duty to vacate or recall writ of execution improvidently issued, such as one issued to enforce void judgment. Jones v. World Life Research Institute (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 836, 840, 131 Cal. Rptr. 674

[11] Timeliness of Motion for Relief

Judgment or order that is in fact void for want of jurisdiction, but invalidity of which does not appear from judgment roll or record, is subject to beingset aside on motion within a reasonable time after its entry, not exceeding time limit prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 473(b), 473.5(a)], and independent suit in equity to set aside judgment or order is not necessary. Norton v. Atchison, T., & S. F. R. Co. (1893) 97 Cal. 388, 393, 32 P. 452 ; In re Dahnke (1923) 64 Cal. App. 555, 560, 222 P. 381 (criticized on another point in Rogers v. Silverman (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1114, 1122-1123, 265 Cal. Rptr. 286)

Judgment naming incorrect defendant void on its face and subject to attack at any time. Manson, Iver & York v. Black (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 36, 43-47, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 522

Judgment void for lack of due process notice or extrinsic fraud is subject to attack at any time in proceeding or action initiated for that purpose; judgment that is proven void due to lack of due process notice suffers from fatal jurisdictional defect. Ansley v. Superior Court (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 477, 488, 490, 229 Cal. Rptr. 771

Judgment that is void on its face is subject to attack at any time, and six-month limit (set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)) to make other motions to vacate judgment does not apply. National Diversified Services, Inc. v. Bernstein (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 414, 214 Cal. Rptr. 113

Judgment or order that is void on face of record is subject to being set aside at any time by court that made it. Daudert v. People (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 580, 585, 156 Cal. Rptr. 640

Judgment or order that is void on its face and that requires only inspection of judgment roll or record to show its invalidity is subject to being set aside on motion at any time after its entry by court that rendered judgment or made order. Neubrand v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 311, 317, 88 Cal. Rptr. 586 ; Thorson v. Western Development Corp. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 206, 210, 59 Cal. Rptr. 299

That portion of judgment giving greater relief than that demanded in complaint is void on face of record and is vulnerable to collateral attack on motion independent of Code Civ. Proc. § 473, that is, with no limit on time within which motion must be made. Nemeth v. Trumbull (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 788, 792, 34 Cal. Rptr. 127

[12] Inherent Power of Court to Vacate Void Judgment

Trial court has inherent power to set aside judgment void on its face at any time. Connelly v. Castillo (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1583, 1588, 236 Cal. Rptr. 112

Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d)] codifies inherent power of court to set aside order or judgment void on its face at any time. National Diversified Services, Inc. v. Bernstein (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 414, 214 Cal. Rptr. 113

Court has inherent power to set aside judgment obtained by fraud on it, such as filing false return of service. In re Marriage of Smith (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 543, 555, 185 Cal. Rptr. 411

[13] Attacks on Void Judgments

[a] In General

Judgment absolutely void on its face is subject to attack anywhere, directly or collaterally, whenever it presents itself, either by parties or strangers; judgment is simply a nullity and neither basis nor evidence of any right whatever; when judgment on face of judgment roll is void for lack of jurisdiction, it may be attacked at any time. Nagel v. P & M Distributors, Inc. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 176, 180, 78 Cal. Rptr. 65

Wrong decision made within limits of court's power is error correctable on appeal or other direct review, but decision that oversteps jurisdiction and power of court is void and subject to being set aside directly or collaterally. Vasquez v. Vasquez (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 280, 283, 240 P.2d 319

[b] Collateral Attack

Collateral attack is proper to contest judgment void on its face for lack of personal or subject matter jurisdiction or granting relief that court has no power to grant. Becker v. S.P.V. Construction Co. (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 489, 493, 165 Cal. Rptr. 825, 612 P.2d 915

On collateral attack on order or judgment of court of general jurisdiction only evidence that may be considered in determining whether order or judgment is void is record in proceeding in which it was entered, and, if record is silent as to existence of jurisdictional fact, that fact is presumed; but if proceeding is wholly statutory and unknown to common law, court, even though ordinarily one of general jurisdiction, is a court of special jurisdiction for that proceeding, and if jurisdictional facts do not appear of record in such proceeding, no presumption of regularity exists; however, failure of record to recite jurisdictional fact does not make judgment void, because extrinsic evidence is admissible to prove that fact, unless applicable statute makes record exclusive mode of proof. Burge v. City & County of San Francisco (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 608, 612-613, 262 P.2d 6

Judgment, in action to recover taxes paid under protest, erroneously awarding aggrieved taxpayer interest calculated from wrong date is not open to collateral attack on ground that scope of relief granted exceeds relief to which taxpayer is entitled under law applicable to its cause of action; and judgment awarding costs against city and county is not subject to collateral attack, costs being incident of judgment, but is conclusive after judgment becomes final when court had jurisdiction of person and subject matter. Wells Fargo & Co. v. San Francisco (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 37, 44, 152 P.2d 625

Judgment of any court against party over whose person court has not acquired jurisdiction is void for want of jurisdiction and is subject to collateral attack when lack of jurisdiction appears from record. Forbes v. Hyde (1866) 31 Cal. 342, 347-348

Fact that defendant was not served and return of service was not filed within three years of commencement of action (former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a; nowsee Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210) does not render resulting default judgment subject to collateral attack for being void on its face. National Diversified Services, Inc. v. Bernstein (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 410, 413-416, 214 Cal. Rptr. 113

Judgment that is void on its face is subject to collateral attack. County of Ventura v. Tillett (1982) 133 Cal. App. 3d 105, 110, 183 Cal. Rptr. 741

Judgment that is simply erroneous but not void, even though error appears on face of judgment or record, is not subject to collateral attack. Jones v. World Life Research Institute (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 836, 840, 131 Cal. Rptr. 674

Judgment of prior conviction, even though valid on its face, is subject to attack on constitutional grounds at any time in proceeding in which, by reason of prior conviction, increased sanctions may be imposed against person suffering it; similarly, collateral attack on conviction on constitutional grounds is permitted in proceeding in which license is revoked is result of that conviction. De Rasmo v. Smith (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 601, 607-608, 93 Cal. Rptr. 289 (proceeding to revoke real estate salesman's license by reason of past conviction of crime in sister state)

One rule on collateral attack is that hearsay in affidavit for publication of summons may be considered and supports judgment thereafter made. Cradduck v. Financial Indem. Co. (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 850, 855, 52 Cal. Rptr. 90

Failure of complaint to state cause of action does not expose default judgment to collateral attack so long as complaint apprises defendant of nature of demand. Brown v. Superior Court (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 519, 524, 51 Cal. Rptr. 633

[c] Direct Attack

Rule is settled that judgment or order that is void on its face, and that requires only inspection of judgment-roll or record to show its invalidity, may be set aside on motion at any time after its entry by court that rendered judgment or made order. Hayashi v. Lorenz (1954) 42 Cal. 2d 848, 851, 271 P.2d 18 ; Neubrand v. Superior Court (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 311, 317, 88 Cal. Rptr. 586 ; Nagel v. P & M Distributors, Inc. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 176, 179, 78 Cal. Rptr. 65

[14] Presumptions

When it does not appear affirmatively that jurisdictional defect was present, absence of recital that jurisdictional requisites were met does not make judgment void on its face; all presumptions favors judgment, and if invalidity does not appear from face of record, presumption is that which ought to have been done was not only done but rightly done. Olivia v. Suglio (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 7, 8-9, 293 P.2d 63

§ 489.321 Decisions

[1] In General

First duty of equity is to be equitable; court of equity is bound to consider substance over form (see Civ. Code § 3528). In re Marriage of Umphrey (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 647, 657, 267 Cal. Rptr. 218

[2] When Equitable Relief Is Available

[a] Alternative to Relief Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473

Once relief is no longer available under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), public policy favoring finality of judgments predominates and power to set aside final judgments and marital settlement agreements incorporated in them is to be exercised only when exceptional circumstances require that consequences of res judicata be denied; exceptional circumstances that are only basis for overturning judgment in equity is commonly referred to is extrinsic fraud or mistake. In re Marriage of Umphrey (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 647, 655, 267 Cal. Rptr. 218 ; see also In re Marriage of Alexander (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 677, 681, 261 Cal. Rptr. 9

Court of equity in independent action has authority to grant relief respecting default judgment when defendant was prevented by extrinsic mistake from presenting meritorious defense in original proceedings, even though motion to vacate default had previously been denied. Huff v. Mendoza (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 677, 680, 167 Cal. Rptr. 348

[b] Basis of Equitable Jurisdiction

Court of equity interferes in suit when legal judgment was obtained or entered through fraud, mistake, or accident, or when defendant in action, having valid legal defense on merits, was prevented from maintaining it by fraud, mistake, or accident, without negligence, laches, or other fault on his, her, or his or her agents' part; ground for exercise of jurisdiction was that there has been no fair adversary trial at law. Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 575, 122

P.2d 564 ; Baske v. Burke (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 38, 44,177 Cal. Rptr. 794 ; In re Marriage of Guardino (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 77, 87, 156 Cal. Rptr. 883

Basis of equitable relief from judgment, whether denominated extrinsic fraud or extrinsic mistake, is that which results in judgment taken under circumstances of unfairness and injustice without affording party opportunity to participate in proceedings. Palmer v. Moore (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 134, 140-141, 71 Cal. Rptr. 801

Equity is empowered to grant relief from orders and decrees in probate proceedings for extrinsic fraud. Carney v. Simmonds (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 84, 94, 315 P.2d 305

Superior court has inherent equity power under which, apart from statutory authority, it may grant relief from default judgment obtained through extrinsic fraud or mistake. Munoz v. Lopez (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 178, 181, 79 Cal. Rptr. 563

[d] Public Policy

Policy of law is to favor hearing on merits whenever possible, and appellate courts are much more disposed to affirm order that compels trial on merits than to allow default judgment to stand; policy is to disapprove of party who attempts to take advantage of mistake, surprise, inadvertence, or neglect of adversary. Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 854-855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 ; Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 737, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300

[3] Meritorious Claim or Defense Is Essential

Court does not set aside valid judgment merely because it was obtained by extrinsic fraud or mistake in order to give barren right to adversary hearing; plaintiff is required to plead and prove that he or she has meritorious case, i.e., good claim or defense that, if asserted in new trial, would be likely to result in judgment favorable to him or her; party seeking to vacate judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 1710.40 (vacating judgment entered on sister state money judgment) is required to allege facts establishing meritorious defense to action in which judgment was entered. New York Higher Education Assistance Corp. v. Siegel (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 684, 688-689, 154 Cal. Rptr. 200

In husband's prior divorce action, based on foreign wife's alleged refusal to come to him in America, in which a judgment of divorce was entered, that he did not send for her or provide funds for her transportation was sufficient meritorious defense. Sousa v. Freitas (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 660, 664, 89 Cal. Rptr. 485

Moving party ordinarily has burden of demonstrating to court that move favorable result might be obtained if matter were to be heard on merits. McCreadie v. Arques (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 39, 45, 56 Cal. Rptr. 188

Equity does not overturn judgment unless it appears that like judgment would not follow; hence, complainant is required to plead and prove that result in main action would have been different had fraud or mistake not occurred. Wilson v. Wilson (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 421, 427, 130 P.2d 782

[4] Grounds for Relief

[a] In General

Attack on order or judgment by motion in equity on ground of extrinsic fraud is permitted when there was willful failure to give required notice or willfully false affidavits of service were filed; direct attack by independent action in equity is also allowed when there has been a failure to exercise degree of diligence required by law in connection with personal service, when false recitals of service were result of fraud, negligence, or mistake, and when failure to name person as party was result of mistake; extrinsic mistake is ground to vacate judgment by independent action in equity when there has been no fair adversary trial. Carney v. Simmonds (1957) 49 Cal. 2d 84, 95-96, 315 P.2d 305

Final judgment of court having jurisdiction over persons and subject matter is subject to attack in equity after expiration of time for direct attack at law only if alleged fraud or mistake is extrinsic. Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 397, 126 P.2d 105

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to grant personal injury plaintiff who represented himself equitable relief from judgment against him, when plaintiff had his day in court and lost his case due to his own inability to present his case as a licensed attorney would have; self-represented litigants generally are entitled to no special treatment. Burnete v. La Casa Dana Apartments (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1262, 1268-1270, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 437

While grounds for equitable action to set aside default judgment are commonly stated as being those of extrinsic fraud or mistake, terms are given very broad meaning that tends to encompass all circumstances that deprive adversary of fair notice of hearing whether or not those circumstances would qualify as fraudulent or mistaken in strict sense. In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 149, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583

Terms "extrinsic fraud or mistake" are given very broad meaning that tends to encompass all circumstances that deprive adversary of fair notice of hearing whether or not those circumstances would qualify are fraudulent or mistaken in strict sense; thus, false recital of service of summons although not deliberate was treated as extrinsic fraud or mistake in context of equitable action to set aside default judgment. Munoz v. Lopez (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 178, 181, 79 Cal. Rptr. 563

Extrinsic accident and mistake of fact, as well as extrinsic fraud, is, in some situations, proper basis for exercise of court's equitable jurisdiction to vacate default judgment; ground for exercise of that jurisdiction is that there has been no fair adversary trial at law. Turner v. Allen (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 753, 757, 11 Cal. Rptr. 630

Rule is established that, in cases in which aggrieved party is unable to make out case of intentional fraud, courts on motion will extend liberal interpretation to relieve party from judgment taken without fair adversary hearing; basis for equitable relief in these cases, whether denominated "extrinsic fraud" or "extrinsic mistake," is that which has resulted in judgment taken under circumstances of unfairness and injustice without affording party opportunity to participate in proceedings. Davisv. Davis (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 788, 794, 8 Cal. Rptr. 874

Suppression of fact by one who gives information of other facts likely to mislead for want of communication of fact concealed is deceit [Civ. Code § 1710], and any other act intended to deceive is actual fraud [Civ. Code § 1572]. Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 536, 310 P.2d 423

Fraud or mistake is extrinsic when it deprives unsuccessful party of opportunity to present his or her case. Cardozo v. Bank of America (1953) 116 Cal. App. 2d 833, 838, 254 P.2d 949

Equity relieves injured party from effect of judgment procured by extrinsic fraud, mistake, or excusable neglect that was not result of complaint's negligence or laches. Wilson v. Wilson (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 421, 426, 130 P.2d 782

[b] Extrinsic Fraud

Fraud that will justify setting aside final judgment by court of equity is required to be of such character as to prevent trial of issues presented to court for determination. Gale v. Witt (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 362, 365, 188 P.2d 755

Taking default judgment against defendant known by plaintiff to be incompetent without having a general guardian or guardian ad litem appointed, thereby preventing defendant from presenting whatever defense he or she has, constitutes fraud on court and extrinsic fraud as to defendant; relief is warranted whenever extrinsic fraud prevents fair adversary proceeding. Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 576-577, 122 P.2d 564

To qualify for equitable relief on the ground of extrinsic fraud or mistake, moving party must demonstrate diligence in seeking to set aside default once it was discovered. Manson, Iver & York v. Black (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 36, 48, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 522

Though plaintiff did not receive notice of entry, judgment could not be set aside on grounds of extrinsic fraud, when plaintiff failed to establish essential elements of extrinsic fraud because there was neither misrepresentation by defendant nor reliance by plaintiff. Kimball Avenue v. Franco (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1224, 1229-1230 , 78 Cal. Rtpr. 3d 352

No extrinsic fraud in settlement of earlier action based on defendant-former joint venturer's alleged misrepresentations about profitability of franchisee loans and financial condition of company, because plaintiff conducted no formal discovery to obtain financial documents relating to those issues, and there was no evidence of elaborate conspiracy to keep those records or information from him. Any alleged fraud in securing dismissal of earlier action through misleading statements about value of company or loan servicing rights was intrinsic, because plaintiff settled action on reviewing single 10-page financial statement, conducted no formal discovery and undertook no review of financial records of company he claimed to have interest in. Heyman v. Franchise Mortgage Acceptance Corp. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 921, 926-928, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 465

No extrinsic fraud shown when both parties in marital dissolution action were represented by counsel and wife's attorney could have conducted discovery on pension plan, even though husband mispresented estimate of present value of future pension benefits. In re Marriage of Melton (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 931, 936, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 761

Confession of judgment was fraudulently entered and properly set aside when, despite attorney's declaration in support of judgment, attorney was found to have represented opposing parties to dispute and was, therefore, not acting independently in representing party. Rivercourt Co. Ltd. v. Dyna-Tel, Inc. (1996) 41 Cal. App. 4th 1477, 1481-1482, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 279

No extrinsic fraud is shown when party is given notice of action and is not prevented from participating in action and thus had opportunity to protect against fraud or mistake of adversary but unreasonably neglected to do so. In re Marriage of Melone (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 757, 762, 238 Cal. Rptr. 510

Defaulting party was entitled to relief for extrinsic fraud when default was due to positive misconduct of his or her former attorney, who purported to continue representing him or her without authority and failed to notify defaulting party of, or respond to, papers served on him by opposing party, and when defaulting party was relatively free from personal neglect and opposing party did not sufficiently show prejudice resulting from grant of relief. Lovato v. Santa Fe Internat. Corp. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 549, 554-555, 198 Cal. Rptr. 838

Collusive judgment adversely affecting rights of third persons may be set aside on ground of extrinsic fraud. People ex rel. Public Util. Com. v. Ryerson (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 115, 121, 50 Cal. Rptr. 246

Actual fraud is not required to grant relief from judgment; extrinsic fraud that deprives adversary of fair notice of hearing exists even though it was accomplished by mistake. Davis v. Davis (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 788, 793, 8 Cal.

Rptr. 874

Fraud or mistake is extrinsic when it deprives unsuccessful party of opportunity to present his or her case to court; if unsuccessful party to action has been kept in ignorance of action, or has been prevented from fully participating in it, there has been no true adversary proceeding, and judgment is open to attack at any time. Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 535-536, 310 P.2d 423

[c] Extrinsic Mistake

Reasonable reliance on insurer to defend action on defendant's behalf and insurer's failure to do so, resulting in entry of default and default judgment against defendant, constitutes extrinsic mistake. Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 857-858, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700

Three elements are required to set aside judgment based on extrinsic mistake: (1) defaulted party must show it has meritorious case; (2) it must articulate satisfactory excuse for not presenting defense to original action; and (3) it must demonstrate that it was diligent in seeking to set aside default once it had been discovered; same rule applies when motion is to vacate order of dismissal. People v. One Parcel of Land (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 579, 583-584, 286 Cal. Rptr. 739 ; Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 738, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300

Doctrine of permitting relief in equity from judgment entered as result of extrinsic mistake is applicable to court clerk's mistakes; hence, when elderly defendant wrote letters to court clerk requesting that clerk do "what was needed" to answer complaint, stating that defendant would pay any necessary fees, and sufficiently alleging meritorious defense, failure of clerk to file letters was responsive pleading was ministerial mistake entitling defendant to equitable relief. Baske v. Burke (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 38, 44-45, 177 Cal. Rptr. 794

Cases that grant equitable relief from final judgments are without exception being those in which aggrieved party or court has been victim of factual misrepresentations rather than legal misrepresentations. In re Marriage of Guardino (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 77, 92, 156 Cal. Rptr. 883

Reasonable reliance on codefendant to defend action on defendant's behalf and his failure to do so, resulting in entry of default and default judgment against defendant, constitutes extrinsic mistake. Bailey v. Roberts (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 282, 285-286, 76 Cal. Rptr. 572

Reasonable reliance by defendant former owners of property on assurances of present owner codefendants to protect their rights in action arising out of interference by present owners with plaintiff's easement right over the property constitutes mistake of fact or accident. Crane v. Kampe (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 200, 205-206, 37 Cal. Rptr. 220

[5] Insufficient Grounds

[a] Inexcusable Neglect

Inexcusable neglect bars equitable relief on grounds of extrinsic fraud or mistake. Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 892, 901-902 n.8, 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775 ; In re Marriage of Park (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 337, 345, 165 Cal. Rptr. 792, 612 P.2d 882 ; Jackson v. Bank of America (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 375, 386, 386 n.6, 233 Cal. Rptr. 162

[b] Attorney's Act or Omission

On motion for relief in equity, plaintiff was required to plead that his or her attorney's neglect or omission was excusable, because inexcusable neglect is ordinarily imputed to client whose redress is malpractice action; however, when attorney's neglect is of extreme degree amounting to positive misconduct and client is relatively free from negligence, attorney's conduct obliterates existence of attorney-client relationship. Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 738, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300

[c] Intrinsic Fraud

Use of forged documents or perjured testimony to secure judgment constitutes intrinsic fraud and is no basis for attack on judgment in equity. Gale v. Witt (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 362, 366, 188 P.2d 755

Party who has been given proper notice of action, and who has not been prevented from full participation in it, has had opportunity to present case to court and to protect self from any fraud attempted by adversary; fraud perpetrated under those circumstances is intrinsic, even though unsuccessful party does not avail himself or herself of opportunity to appear before court; having had opportunity to protect his or her interest, he or she cannot attack judgment once time has elapsed for appeal or other direct attack. Westphal v. Westphal (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 393, 397, 126 P.2d 105 ; Janetsky v. Avis (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 799, 811, 222 Cal. Rptr. 342

Introduction of perjured testimony is a classic example of intrinsic fraud and may not be used to overturn a judgment. Buesa v. City of Los Angeles (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 1537, 1545-1548, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 86

Ordinarily, if aggrieved party is aware of proceeding and is not prevented from appearing, any fraud is intrinsic and not basis for equitable relief, although rule is sometimes relaxed when, by fraud, aggrieved party's claim or defense is concealed from him or her; perjured evidence is not ground for setting aside judgment, particularly when perjury involved is that of person seeking to set aside judgment; rule is same in case of default judgment or a judgment after contested trial. In re Marriage of Guardino (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 77, 88-89, 156 Cal. Rptr. 883

Mutual mistake that might be sufficient to set aside contract is not sufficient to set aside final judgment on equitable grounds. Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 472, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17

[e] Unjust Judgment or Order

Unjust judgment or order by itself is not enough to grant relief under equitable principles. De Mello v. Souza (1973) 36 Cal. App. 3d 79, 85, 111 Cal. Rptr. 274

[6] Defenses to Equitable Relief

[a] Laches

Facts set forth in wife's declaration, in proceeding to set aside interlocutory judgment of dissolution of marriage disposing of community property rendered after uncontested hearing on wife's default, does not establish laches on her part as matter of law when wife stated that she first consulted an attorney in March 1975, after entering into marital settlement agreement in 1974 without benefit of counsel, from which it may be inferred that she did not appreciate her rights until that time, and reason for delay from April to August of 1975 before filing notice of motion for relief was to avoid interfering with child's marriage; husband's claim of prejudice that it will be time consuming and cause great expense to relitigate whole issue of dissolution of marriage and community property rights was not prejudice arising out of delay; such prejudice results whenever decree was set aside. In re Marriage of Coffin (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 139, 155, 133 Cal. Rptr. 583

One is not barred by alleged laches in negligence in failing to discover sooner that his or her rights have been injured by fraud of another. Sousa v. Freitas (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 660, 668, 89 Cal. Rptr. 485

[b] Estoppel

Estoppel arises in context of court's exercise of equitable powers; estoppel is enforced to prevent person from asserting right when person's conduct or silence makes it unconscionable for person to assert it; elements of estoppel is (1) representation or promise; (2) made with knowledge of facts; (3) to party ignorant of truth; (4) with intent that other party act on it; (5) when other party has, in fact, been induced to rely on it. In re Marriage of Umphrey (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 647, 658, 267 Cal. Rptr. 218

[7] Proceedings Subject to Equitable Relief

[a] Default and Default Judgment

In creditor's action on promissory note to obtain possession of property securing note against debtor and guarantor of note in which defendants'default was entered, trial court granted plaintiff possession of property but continued default judgment hearing until after sale, and then entered deficiency judgment against defendants, defect in notice, required by former Com. Code § 9504(3) (now see Com. Code §§ 9611-9614) before selling collateral, which occurred after default was entered, provides no equitable grounds for vacating default. Rutan v. Summit Sports, Inc. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 965, 970, 219 Cal. Rptr. 381

[b] Void Judgments

While diligence is enjoined on those who seek to avoid default judgments, what is initially void is always void and life is not breathed into it by lapse of time. Sousa v. Freitas (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 660, 668, 89 Cal. Rptr. 485 (relief from invalid divorce decree entered some 46 years before)

[c] Satisfaction of Judgment

Satisfaction of judgment is subject to being vacated and judgment revived in appropriate circumstances. Kachig v. Boothe (1971) 22 Cal. App. 3d 626, 632, 99 Cal. Rptr. 393

[d] Foreign Judgments

Full faith and credit clause does not bar aggrieved party's right to pursue equitable relief in California from sister-state judgment when sister state authorizes such relief under its laws. Huff v. Mendoza (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 677, 680, 167 Cal. Rptr. 348

[8] Substantive Areas in Which Equitable Relief Is Available

[a] Family Law Cases

Law is well settled that extrinsic fraud is proper ground for setting aside alimony award and property settlement incorporated in divorce decree; failure of one spouse to disclose existence of community property assets constitutes fraud and warrants equitable relief from judgment dividing community property between parties. In re Marriage of Modnick (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 897, 904-906, 191 Cal. Rptr. 629, 663 P.2d 187

When property settlement is incorporated in divorce decree, settlement was merged with decree and becoming the final judicial determination of parties' property rights; thus, rules governing extrinsic fraud and mistake applies to alimony awards and property settlements incorporated in divorce decrees. Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 470-471, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17

Deliberate concealment by one spouse of existence of community assets constitutes extrinsic fraud; however, when party has had opportunity to protect self from any mistake or fraud on part of his or her adversary but unreasonably fails to do so, equitable relief is unavailable. In re Marriage of Umphrey (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 647, 655, 267 Cal. Rptr. 218

Trial court errs, in setting aside judgment and marital settlement agreement on motion for relief on ground of extrinsic fraud, when court found that moving party had failed to establish extrinsic fraud and there was, therefore, no basis for relief in equity. In re Marriage of Alexander (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 677, 681, 261 Cal. Rptr. 9

[b] Probate Cases

Even absent timely will contest, court may exercise its equitable jurisdiction to set aside orders and decree of probate proceedings in cases of fraud or mistake. Estate of Sanders (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 607, 613-614, 221 Cal. Rptr. 432, 710 P.2d 232

When sole basis for motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 is that party did not receive actual notice of the probate action, relief from the judgment is not available. Parage v. Couedel (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1037, 1043-1044, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671

Former rule that probate court lacked equitable jurisdiction to set aside its own orders and decree on ground of extrinsic fraud was eroded by subsequent case authorities. Goldberg v. Frye (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1258, 1265, 266 Cal. Rptr. 483

When decree of distribution has been procured from probate court by fraud in matters outside issues to be adjudicated, as when distributee has prevented party who has interest in estate from making appearance to protect his or her interest, equity intervenes to rectify wrong perpetrated by that extrinsic fraud; while there are many varieties, facets, and shadings of extrinsic fraud, familiar example consists of deceptive conduct on part of distributee of estate that has kept other interested parties away from court by some fraudulent artifice or wilful suppression of material facts; invocation of equity on grounds of extrinsic fraud is warranted when heir or legatee fails to notify court of existence of other heirs of whose existence he or she has knowledge and files false petitions with court representing nonexistence of such heirs; actual or positive fraud is not required as element of extrinsic fraud, since mistake on part of distributee that kept legatee in ignorance of true facts or deprives him or her of fair notice of probate proceedings constitutes type of extrinsic fraud; extrinsic mistake that has foreclosed party from presenting his or her case in court also furnishes ground for equitable intervention. Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 534-535, 310 P.2d 423

Equitable power of court is invoked either by motion or by independent action in equity. Baske v. Burke (1981) 125 Cal. App. 3d 38, 45, 177 Cal. Rptr. 794

Equitable power is invoked by party seeking to set aside default judgment either by filing separate suit for that purpose or by motion made in action in which default was taken. Munoz v. Lopez (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 178, 181, 79 Cal. Rptr. 563

After a lapse of six months [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)], attack on default judgment may be made by separate action in equity or by motion based on equitable grounds in same action. Desper v. King (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 659, 662, 59 Cal. Rptr. 657

Action in equity to vacate and set aside default judgment on ground of lack of jurisdiction over defendant's person based on nonservice of summons is direct attack on judgment. Hayes v. Risk (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 613, 623, 64 Cal. Rptr. 36

[10] Timeliness of Motion

[a] In General

Judgment obtained through extrinsic fraud, though long since final, was subject to being set aside by independent suit in equity. Lazzarone v. Bank of America (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 581, 595, 226 Cal. Rptr. 855

Rule that invalidity of default judgment or order that is in fact void for want of jurisdiction over defendant that is not apparent from judgment roll or record may be set aside in motion at law only within time limit specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5], which applies by analogy, is inapplicable to proceeding in equity to set aside judgment. Munoz v. Lopez (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 178, 182-183, 79 Cal. Rptr. 563

Application for relief from default based on extrinsic fraud is not subject to six-month time limit contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (relief from judgment, order, or proceeding taken through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect), but is required to be made within reasonable time, determination of which is within trial court's discretion. Davis v. Davis (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 788, 792, 8 Cal. Rptr. 874

[b] Delay in Seeking Relief

Participation of plaintiff's counsel in defendant's delay in seeking relief from default and default judgment by indicating willingness to discuss setting aside default on conditions affecting codefendant, which were met, and then after receiving full satisfaction of codefendant's obligation refusing to set aside default, renders defendant's inaction during that period reasonable. Bailey v. Roberts (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 282, 287, 76 Cal. Rptr. 572

Equitable motion to set aside default judgment is addressed to trial court's sound discretion. Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 854, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 ; People v. One Parcel of Land (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 579, 584, 286 Cal. Rptr. 739 ; Palmer v. Moore (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 134, 142, 71 Cal. Rptr. 801 ; Roussey v. Ernest W. Hahn, Inc. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 251, 255, 59 Cal. Rptr. 399 ; McCreadie v. Arques (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 39, 44-45, 56 Cal. Rptr. 188

Use of equitable powers to provide relief from default is within trial court's sound discretion. Janetsky v. Avis (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 799, 811, 222 Cal. Rptr. 342

Order of dismissal for failure to comply with order compelling answers to interrogatories, signed by court and filed in action, is practical equivalent of default judgment; motion to set aside order is addressed to trial court's sound discretion. Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 736, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300

Equitable motion for relief from default judgment is addressed to trial court's sound discretion. Slusher v. Durrer (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 747, 753, 138 Cal. Rptr. 265

Like motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), relating to judgment, order, or proceeding taken through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, motion for relief from default based on extrinsic fraud is addressed to trial court's sound discretion. Davis v. Davis (1960) 185 Cal. App. 2d 788, 792, 8 Cal. Rptr. 874

[12] Extrinsic Evidence

Extrinsic evidence is admissible on equitable motion for relief from judgment void in fact but not void on its face to show invalidity of judgment. Munoz v. Lopez (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 178, 183, 79 Cal. Rptr. 563

Fraud, like any other fact, may be proved by circumstantial evidence. Harkins v. Fielder (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 528, 536, 310 P.2d 423

[13] Denial of Relief

Equity denies relief from judgment when complaining party has contributed to fraud or mistake giving rise to judgment thus obtained or if complainant was guilty of negligence in permitting fraud to be practiced or mistake to occur. Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 473, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17 ; In re Marriage of Guardino (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 77, 89-90, 156 Cal. Rptr. 883

Equitable relief from default and default judgment is singularly inappropriate when defendant was negligent in failing to take any meaningful action to protect self after being served with summons and complaint and notices requesting entry of default. Davis v. Thayer (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 892, 911, 170 Cal. Rptr. 328

Equitable relief from judgment is denied when complainant is chargeable with fault, as when complainant was guilty of negligence in permitting fraud to be practiced or mistake to occur; not every mistake justifies equity's setting aside final judgment. Wilson v. Wilson (1942) 55 Cal. App. 2d 421, 427, 130 P.2d 782

§ 489.330 Planning and Procedures

[1] Ascertain Facts

☐ Identify judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding from which relief is sought.

☐ Ascertain circumstances leading to entry of the judgment or order, including timing of relevant events.

☐ Ascertain which facts appear of record and which do not.

☐ For all persons who have personal knowledge of facts that do not appear of record, obtain:

- ☐ Names.
- ☐ Addresses.
- ☐ Phone numbers.

☐ If relief is available on facts that do not appear of record [see [2], below], determine whether persons with personal knowledge are willing to:

- ☐ Testify.

☐ Give affidavit or make declaration under penalty of perjury.

[2] Make Preliminary Determinations

☐ Determine whether judgment or order from which relief is sought is:

☐ Valid or

☐ If void, determine whether it is [see § 489.134]:

☐ Void on its face or ☐ Void in fact but not on its face.

☐ For available relief, see §§ 489.332 and 489.333.

☐ Determine whether there are any defenses to relief [see §§ 489.341 489.343].

[3] Review Time Limits

☐ Consider any time limitations that apply to ground on which relief will be sought [see §§ 489.331 -489.333; see also § 489.15].

[4] Consider Combining Motions

☐ If several grounds for relief exist, consider combining those that are not time barred in one motion for relief.

☐ Review the following alternative grounds and determine which apply to judgment, order, or other proceeding at issue.

☐ Relief from judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding based mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see § 489.331[1]; see also § 489.30 et seq.].

☐ Relief from default, default and default judgment, or dismissal based on attorney's affidavit or declaration of fault [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see § 489.331[2]; see also § 489.40].

☐ Relief from default, default and default judgment, or dismissal when service did not result in actual notice in time to defend [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5; see § 489.331[3]; see also § 489.70 et seq.].

☐ Relief from default and default judgment under consumer venue statutes [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5; see § 489.331[4]; see also § 489.90 et seq.].

☐ Relief based on California court's having assumed jurisdiction over attorney's law practice [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1; see § 489.331[5]; see also § 489.100 et seq.].

☐ Relief from default or default and default judgment based on Servicemembers' Civil Relief Act [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g); see § 489.331[6]; see also § 489.110 et seq.].

☐ Relief from void judgment and order that is void on its face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d); Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 574, 122 P.2d 564 (court's inherent power); see § 489.332[1]; see also § 489.130 et seq.].

☐ Relief from void judgment and order that is void in fact although not void on its face [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d); Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 574, 122 P.2d 564 (court's inherent power); see § 489.332[1]; see also § 489.130 et seq.].

☐ Relief from valid or void judgment, dismissal, or order in equity [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10 (general jurisdiction of superior court); Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)(3) (limited civil case); see § 489.333; see also § 489.220 et seq.].

NOTE:

Consider Separate Conditions for Relief. If counsel desires to combine grounds, he or she should keep in mind the separate requirements of each form of relief and, generally, the respects in which the preconditions for relief on the several grounds might differ. Counsel should be aware of the terms, conditions, and penalties that might be imposed either on the makingof the motion or the granting of relief [see §§ 489.331 489.333]. In addition, if counsel is attacking a judgment on the ground that the court lacked personal jurisdiction, care should be taken to avoid inadvertently making a general appearance and, in so doing, waiving the lack of jurisdiction objection by voluntarily submitting to the in personam jurisdiction of the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 410.50(a); see also § 489.16[2]].

[5] Prepare Notice of Motion

☐ Select or reserve hearing date according to local practice.

☐ Calendar:

☐ Hearing date and reminder to call for tentative ruling.

☐ Last day to serve opposing party's attorney (or opposing party who is not represented by attorney) with copy of notice of motion and accompanying papers.

☐ Last day to file papers; calendar at least 16 court days before time appointed for the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(a)].

NOTE:
Time for Service. Service must be made at least 16 court days, plus specified extended periods when service is by mail, fax, or overnight delivery, before the time appointed for the hearing, unless an order shortening time is obtained [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(a)(10), (12), (13), (b), 1010; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(a)].

☐ If required, prepare applicable for order shortening time [for a form of ex parte application for an order shortening time, see Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time].

[6] Serve and File Papers

☐ Serve copy of notice of motion and accompanying papers, as discussed under [5] and [6], above. For an outline of the procedure for serving a notice of motion, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

☐ Deliver the originals of the notice of motion and accompanying papers to the court clerk for filing and pay the required fee [see Gov. Code §§ 70611, 70613] at least 16 court days before time appointed for the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(a)].

NOTE:
Comply With Local Practice Regarding Proof of Service. Normal practice is to attach the original of the proof of service to the original notice of motion, to file them together, and to attach a copy of the proof of service to each copy of the notice of motion. However, Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a (relating to service by mail) does not require this, and unless otherwise required by local court rule, the proof of service can be filed after the notice of motion is filed. If the motion is subject to the Civil Law and Motion Rules, which applies to most pretrial motions and to motions to set aside a default judgment, proof of service must be filed no later than five calendar days before the time appointed for the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1300(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103 (proceedings to which rules apply)].

[7] Prepare for Hearing

☐ If counsel intends to present oral evidence at hearing and motion is subject to Civil Law and Motion Rules:

☐ Prepare written statement setting forth nature and extent of evidence proposed to be introduced and reasonable time estimate for hearing.

☐ Deliver statement to the court for filing no later than three court days before the hearing.

☐ If statement is filed less than five court days before hearing, prepare additional copy and serve it on adverse party in manner to assure delivery to that party no later than two days before hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(a)].

NOTE:
Civil Law and Motion Rules. Evidence received at a motion hearing subject to the Civil Law and Motion Rules (see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103) must be by declaration and affidavit and by request for judicial notice (see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(b)) without testimony or cross-examination, except as allowed in the court's discretion for good cause shown or as permitted by local rule. A party seeking permission to introduce oral evidence, except in rebuttal to oral evidence presented by the other party, must file, no later than three court days before the hearing, a written statement setting forth the nature and extent of the evidence proposed to be introduced and a reasonable time estimate for the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(b), 3.1306(a)].

☐ Advise persons who will offer supporting testimony at hearing of time, date, and place of the hearing, and instruct them to attend.

NOTE:
Consider Issuing Subpoena. Counsel may wish to consider the advisability of issuing, or having issued, a subpoena [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985] and serving it on the witnesses to secure their attendance in court [see generally, Code Civ. Proc. § 1985 et seq. and Ch. 535, Subpoena].

[8] Call for Tentative Ruling

☐ Call for tentative ruling, if available. If counsel wishes to appear at hearing and argue motion, contact clerk of court within time specified in tentative ruling message.

[9] Attend Hearing

☐ Attend the hearing, if necessary or desired.

☐ Have witnesses testify, if applicable.

[10] Prepare and Serve Order

☐ If the motion is granted, present order for signature:

- [ ] If counsel previously prepared order granting motion:
- [ ] Present original of order to courtroom clerk for judge's signature.
- [ ] Deliver copies to be conformed to courtroom clerk.
- [ ] If counsel has not prepared order, or order is different from one prepared:
- [ ] Prepare order and deliver it to courtroom clerk for delivery to judge for signature.
- [ ] Deliver copies to be conformed to courtroom clerk.

A. Moving Party's Checklist

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.331

§ 489.331 Consideration of Alternative Remedies for Relief: Valid Judgment and Order

[1] Relief Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

[a] Is Client Proper Party?

☐ Determine whether party seeking relief is proper party. Confirm that moving party is any of the following:

☐ Aggrieved party in favor of or against whom judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding was taken;

☐ Party's legal representative; or ☐ Stranger whose rights have been adversely affected by judgment, order, or proceeding.

[b] Is Judgment or Order Proper Target of Relief?

☐ Moving party seeks relief against any of following [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]:

☐ Judgment.

☐ Dismissal.

☐ Order.

☐ Proceeding, including default and default judgment.

[c] Does Basis for Relief Exist?

☐ Determine whether any of following grounds exist:

NOTE:

Attorney's Affidavit of Mistake, Etc. In the case of a default, default judgment, or dismissal only, if the attorney will give an affidavit or declaration attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, the defendant may move for relief under a different provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see [2], below].

[d] Is Relief Appropriate to Client's Case?

☐ Determine what kind of relief is desired; that is, order:

☐ Setting aside or vacating judgment, dismissal, or order, or ☐ Nullifying proceeding and allowing moving party to file pleading or paper if appropriate.

[e] Has Time to File Motion for Relief Expired?

☐ Determine whether time to file notice of motion has expired:

☐ The motion must be made within reasonable time, in no case exceeding six months from the date the judgment or dismissal was entered, order was made, or proceeding was taken [for discussion, see § 489.39].

NOTE:

Shorter Time for Determination of Ownership or Possession Right. A potentially shorter period applies to a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding determining the ownership or right to possession of property [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); for discussion, see § 489.39[9]].

☐ If time to file notice of motion has not expired, determine whether moving party has at all times exercised diligence in seeking relief [for discussion, see § 489.39[6]].

[f] If Time Has Expired, Is Alternative Remedy Available?

☐ Determine whether relief might still be a vailable under one of other statutory proceedings [see [2]-[6], below] or in equitable proceedings [see § 489.333; for discussion, see § 489.220].

[g] What Is Proper Court for Motion?

☐ Ascertain proper court for motion; motion must be made in court in which judgment or dismissal was entered, order was made, or proceeding was taken.

[h] Prepare Moving Papers

☐ Prepare notice of motion [see § 489.360[1] (form of notice of motion)].

☐ Prepare one or more affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury [see §§ 489.360[1], 489.361 (forms of declaration)].

☐ Prepare supporting memorandum of points and authorities [see s California Points and Authorities, Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender)].

☐ Prepare papers to be filed if motion is granted:

☐ If relief is sought from default or default and default judgment, copy of proposed verified answer showing meritorious defense to action; or

☐ In other cases, a copy of the pleading or other paper, if any, proposed to be filed.

☐ Prepare proposed order, if desired or required [see § 489.360[2] (form)].

[2] Relief From Default, Default and Default Judgment, or Dismissal Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) Based on Attorney's Affidavit or Declaration of Fault

[a] Is Client Proper Party?

☐ Determine whether party seeking relief is proper party. Confirm that moving party is either of the following:

☐ Defendant or

[b] Is Judgment or Order Proper Target of Relief?

☐ Moving party seeks relief against any of following [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]:

☐ Default.

☐ Dismissal.

[c] Does Basis for Relief Exist?

☐ Determine whether any of following exist [for discussion, see § 489.40[1]]:

☐ Mistake.

☐ Surprise.

☐ Neglect of attorney whether excusable or not.

[d] Is Relief Appropriate to Client's Case?

☐ Relief available under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) is order setting aside and vacating default, default and default judgment, or dismissal and permitting defendant to answer.

[e] Has Time to File Motion for Relief Expired?

☐ Determine whether time to file notice of motion has expired; the motion must be made within six months from the date the judgment was entered.

[f] If Time Has Expired, Is Alternative Remedy Available?

☐ There appears to be no alternative relief available, other than:

☐ Appeal.

☐ Client may have claim against attorney that can be pursued in independent action for malpractice (see Ch. 76, Attorney Professional Liability).

[g] What Is Proper Court for Motion?

☐ Ascertain proper court for motion; motion must be made in court in which default, default and default judgment, or dismissal was entered.

[h] Prepare Moving Papers

☐ Prepare notice of motion [see § 489.360[1] (form of notice of motion)].

☐ Prepare one or more affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury [see §§ 489.360[1], 489.361[3] (forms of declaration)].

NOTE:
Facts May Be Combined With Affidavit of Fault. If the affidavit or declaration is made by the party's attorney, these facts may, instead of being set forth in a separate affidavit or declaration, be combined with the attorney's affidavit or declaration of fault (discussed below;).

☐ Prepare attorney's affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury attesting to his or her fault, that is, to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect and that the default, default and default judgment, or dismissal was entered because of it [see § 489.362 (form)].

☐ Prepare proposed order, if desired or required [see § 489.360[2] (form)].

[3] Relief From Default or Default and Default Judgment Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 Based on Lack of Notice in Time to Defend

[a] Is Client Proper Party?

☐ Determine whether party seeking relief is proper party. Confirm that moving party is either of the following:

☐ Defendant or

☐ Moving party seeks relief against either of following [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(a); see § 489.70]:

☐ Default.

☐ Default and default judgment.

[c] Does Basis for Relief Exist?

☐ Determine whether service of summons did not result in actual notice in time to defend [for discussion, see §§ 489.70, 489.71].

[d] Is Relief Appropriate to Client's Case?

☐ Relief available under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 is order setting aside or vacating default and default judgment and granting leave to defend the action.

[e] Has Time to File Motion for Relief Expired?

☐ Determine whether time to file notice of motion has expired. The motion for relief must be filed within reasonable time in no case exceeding the earlier of [for discussion, see § 489.75]:

☐ Two years after entry of default judgment, or

☐ One hundred eighty days after service on moving party of written notice that default or default judgment has been entered.

[f] If Time Has Expired, Is Alternative Remedy Available?

☐ Determine whether relief might still be available in equitable proceedings [§ 489.333 (checklist); for discussion, see § 489.220].

[g] What Is Proper Court for Motion?

☐ Ascertain proper court for motion. Motion made in court in which default or default and default judgment were entered.

[h] Prepare Moving Papers

☐ Prepare notice of motion [see § 489.380[1] (form of notice of motion)].

☐ Prepare one or more affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury [see § 489.360[1] (form)], setting forth evidentiary facts showing:

☐ That service did not result in actual notice to defendant until specified date.

☐ That date of service was too late to file responsive pleading or motion.

NOTE:
Facts May Be Combined With Declaration of No Fault of Defendant. If the affidavit or declaration is made by the defendant or cross defendant, these facts may, instead of being set forth in a separate affidavit or declaration, be combined with the affidavit or declaration discussed below.

☐ Prepare moving party's affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury showing that the lack of actual notice in time to defend was not caused by the defendant's or cross defendant's avoidance of service or inexcusable neglect [see § 489.380[1]].

☐ Prepare copy of the answer, motion, or other pleading proposed to be filed in the action [see § 489.73; see also Ch. 26, Answers , Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints , Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings , and Ch. 372, Motions and Orders Ch. 375, Motions to Strike: Pleadings , Ch. 376, Motions to Strike: Anti-SLAPP , and Ch. 389, Nonsuit and Motions for Judgment].

☐ Prepare proposed order, if desired or required [see § 489.380[2] (form)].

[4] Relief From Default or Default and Default Judgment in Certain Consumer Actions Under Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5 Based on Filing of Action in Wrong Court

[a] Is Client Proper Party?

☐ Determine whether party seeking relief is proper party. Confirm that moving party is either of the following [see § 489.90]:

☐ Defendant or

[b] Is Judgment or Order Proper Target of Relief?

☐ Moving party seeks relief against either of following:

☐ Default.

☐ Default and default judgment.

[c] Does Basis for Relief Exist?

☐ Determine whether action was filed in wrong court under one of following venue provisions [see § 489.90]:

☐ Unruh Act (Civ. Code § 1812.10).

☐ Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act (Civ. Code § 2984.4).

☐ Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) (venue of actions relating to goods, services, loans, or credit intended primarily for personal, family, or household use).

[d] Is Relief Appropriate to Client's Case?

☐ Relief available under Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5 is order setting aside or vacating default and default judgment and granting leave to defend action in proper court [see § 489.93].

[e] Has Time to File Motion for Relief Expired?

☐ Determine whether time to file notice of motion has expired; the motion for relief must be served and filed within 60 days after defendant first receives notice of levy under writ of execution, or notice of any other procedure for enforcing the default judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(b); see § 489.93].

[f] If Time Has Expired, Is Alternative Remedy Available?

☐ Determine whether any of following relief is available:

☐ Claim against plaintiff for securing judgment in wrong court that can be pursued in independent action for abuse of process.

☐ Claim against plaintiff for unlawful business practice [see Barquis v. Merchants Collection Assn. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 94, 103-113, 101 Cal. Rptr. 745, 496 P.2d 817] if plaintiff habitually files actions in wrong county.

☐ Potentially, relief in equitable proceedings [see § 489.333; for discussion, see § 489.220].

NOTE:

Question of Whether Equitable Relief Available Not Resolved. Prior to the 1970 enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5, a default judgment entered in an action filed in an improper court under Civ. Code § 1812.10 or 2984.4 or Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) was subject to attack by motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) [see Barquis v. Merchants Collection Asso. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 94, 119 n.22, 101 Cal. Rptr. 745, 496 P.2d 817], and, inferentially, to an attack in equity if the statutory motion would have been untimely [see § 489.220]. However, no case has been found holding that equitable relief from a default and default judgment subject to Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5 is or is not available.

[g] What Is Proper Court for Motion?

☐ Ascertain proper court for motion; motion is made in court in which default or default and default judgment were entered [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(d)].

[h] Prepare Moving Papers

☐ Prepare notice of motion [see § 489.390[1] (form of notice of motion)].

☐ Prepare one or more affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury sworn to or signed by person having personal knowledge of facts, setting forth evidentiary facts showing that action was not commenced in proper court [see § 489.390[1] (form of declaration)].

☐ Prepare copy of the answer, motion, or other pleading proposed to be filed in the action [see § 489.91; see also Ch. 26, Answers , Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints , Ch. 206, Demurrers, Motions to Strike, Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings, and Motions for Nonsuit and Judgment , and Ch. 372, Motions and Order Ch. 375, Motions to Strike: Pleadings , Ch. 376, Motions to Strike: Anti-SLAPP , and Ch. 389, Nonsuit and Motions for Judgment].

☐ Prepare proposed order, if desired or required [see § 489.390[2] (form)].

[5] Relief Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1 Based on California Court's Having Assumed Jurisdiction Over Attorney's Law Practice

[a] Is Client Proper Party?

☐ Determine whether party seeking relief is proper party. Confirm that moving party is aggrieved party in favor of or against whom judgment, order, or proceeding was taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1; see § 489.100].

☐ Moving party seeks relief against any of following [for discussion, see § 489.100]:

☐ Judgment.

☐ Order.

☐ Proceeding, including dismissal or default and default judgment.

[c] Does Basis for Relief Exist?

☐ Determine whether California court has assumed jurisdiction pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6180 or 6190 over law practice of party's attorney who is unable to practice because of incapacity, death, disbarment, etc. [for discussion, see § 489.100].

[d] Is Relief Appropriate to Client's Case?

☐ Relief available under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1 is order setting aside or vacating judgment or order, or nullifying proceeding [for discussion, see § 489.100].

[e] Has Time to File Motion for Relief Expired?

☐ Determine whether time to file notice of motion has expired [see § 489.101]:

☐ The motion must be made within reasonable time, in no case exceeding six months from date court took jurisdiction over attorney's law practice.

NOTE:
Shorter Time for Determination of Ownership or Possession Right. A shorter period may apply if the judgment, order, or proceeding is one determining the ownership or right to possession of real or personal property.

☐ Because motion must be made within reasonable time, moving party must, apparently, exercise diligence in seeking relief within six-month period after discovery of the court's assumption of jurisdiction.

[f] If Time Has Expired, Is Alternative Remedy Available?

☐ If time in which relief may be sought expires before aggrieved party discovers that jurisdiction over his or her attorney's practice has been assumed by California court, determine whether relief might still be available in equitable proceedings discussed in § 489.333 [for discussion, see § 489.220].

[g] What Is Proper Court for Motion?

☐ Ascertain proper court for motion. Motion must be made in court in which judgment was entered, order was made, or proceeding was taken [for discussion, see § 489.100].

[h] Prepare Moving Papers

☐ Prepare notice of motion [see § 489.400[1] (form of notice of motion)].

☐ Prepare one or more affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury [see § 489.400[1]].

☐ Prepare proposed order, if desired or required [see § 489.400[2] (form)].

[6] Relief From Default or Default and Default Judgment Based on Servicemembers' Civil Relief Act

☐ Determine whether party seeking relief is proper party. Confirm that moving party is either [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 511; for discussion, see § 489.112]:

☐ Member of:

☐ Army.

☐ Navy.

☐ Marine Corps.

☐ Air Force.

☐ Coast Guard.

☐ Public Health Service officer detailed by proper authority for duty with Army or Navy.

☐ Relief is sought against either of following [for discussion, see § 489.110]:

☐ Default.

☐ Default and default judgment.

[c] Does Basis for Relief Exist?

☐ Determine whether there was the following [for discussion, see § 489.113]:

☐ Prejudice in making defense by reason of military service.

☐ Defendant has meritorious or legal defense to action or to some part of it.

[d] Is Relief Appropriate to Client's Case?

☐ Relief available under 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g) is order vacating and setting aside default or default and default judgment and granting defendant leave to defend.

[e] Consider Effect of Other Limitations

☐ Vacating, setting aside, or reversing of any judgment under Servicemembers' Civil Relief Act will not impair any right or title acquired by bona fide purchaser for value under judgment.

[f] Has Time to File Motion Expired?

☐ Determine whether time to file notice of motion has expired. The motion must be filed either [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)(2); for discussion, see § 489.113]:

☐ While defendant is in military service, or ☐ Ninety days after military service terminates.

[g] If Time Has Expired, Is Alternative Remedy Available?

☐ Determine whether relief might still be available under one of other statutory proceedings [see [1]-[5], above] or in equitable proceedings [see § 489.333; for discussion, see § 489.220].

[h] What Is Proper Court for Motion?

☐ Ascertain proper court for motion; motion is made in court in which judgment was entered, order was made, or proceeding was taken.

[i] Prepare Moving Papers

☐ Prepare notice of motion [see § 489.410[1] (form of notice of motion)].

☐ Prepare one or more affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury setting forth evidentiary facts showing that [see § 489.410[1] (form of declaration)]:

☐ Moving party was prejudiced in making defense by reason of his or her military service.

☐ He or she has meritorious defense to action or to some part of it.

NOTE:
Copy of Proposed Verified Answer Sufficient. Similar to a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), a copy of the verified answer proposed to be filed containing a meritorious defense would appear to be sufficient to show the defense.

☐ Motion is timely.

☐ Prepare supporting memorandum of points and authorities [see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender)].

☐ Prepare proposed order, if desired or orders [see § 489.410[2] (form)].

[7] Relief From Judgment Under State Law Based on Military Service

- Determine whether party seeking relief is proper party. Confirm that moving party is one of the following [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(a); for discussion, see § 489.118]:

  ☐ Officer or enlisted member of National Guard called or ordered into active state service by Governor pursuant to Mil. & Vet. Code §§ 143 or 146.

  ☐ Officer or enlisted member of National Guard called or ordered into active federal service by President pursuant to Title 10 or 12 of United States Code.

  ☐ Reservist of United States Military Reserve called to full-time active duty.

☐ Relief is sought against a judgment [for discussion, see § 489.117].

[c] Does Basis for Relief Exist?

☐ Determine the following [for discussion, see § 489.117]:

  ☐ Was there prejudice in making defense by reason of military service.

  ☐ Does the defendant has meritorious or legal defense to action or to some part of it.

[d] Is Relief Appropriate to Client's Case?

☐ Relief available under Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d) is order vacating and setting aside judgment and granting defendant leave to defend.

[e] Consider Effect of Other Limitations

☐ Vacating, setting aside, or reversing of any judgment will not impair any right or title acquired by bona fide purchaser for value under judgment.

[f] Has Time to File Motion Expired?

☐ Determine whether time to file notice of motion has expired. The motion must be filed within ninety days after military service terminates [Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d)].

[g] If Time Has Expired, Is Alternative Remedy Available?

☐ Determine whether relief might still be available under one of other statutory proceedings [see [1]-[5], above] or in equitable proceedings [see § 489.333; for discussion, see § 489.220].

[h] What Is Proper Court for Motion?

☐ Motion is made in court in which judgment was entered, order was made, or proceeding was taken.

[i] Prepare Moving Papers

☐ Prepare notice of motion [see § 489.411[1] (form of notice of motion)].

☐ Prepare one or more affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury setting forth evidentiary facts showing that [see § 489.411[1] (form of declaration)]:

☐ Moving party was prejudiced in making defense by reason of his or her military service.

☐ He or she has meritorious defense to action or to some part of it.

NOTE:
Copy of Proposed Verified Answer Sufficient. Similar to a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), a copy of the verified answer proposed to be filed containing a meritorious defense would appear to be sufficient to show the defense.

☐ Motion is timely.

☐ Prepare proposed order, if desired or orders [see § 489.411[2] (form)].

§ 489.332 Consideration of Alternative Remedies for Relief: Void Judgment and Order

[1] Relief Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) From Judgment or Order that Is Void on Its Face

[a] Is Client Proper Party?

☐ Determine whether party seeking relief is proper party:

☐ Third person prejudiced by judgment or order.

[b] Is Judgment or Order Proper Target of Relief?

☐ Person is seeking relief from:

☐ Judgment.

☐ Order.

[c] Does Basis for Relief Exist?

☐ Determine whether judgment or order is void on its face [for discussion, see §§ 489.134, 489.136].

[d] Is Relief Appropriate to Client's Case?

☐ Relief available is order setting aside or vacating judgment or order or declaring it void [for discussion, see § 489.131].

[e] No Time Limits Apply

☐ Judgment or order void on its face is always subject to attack [for discussion, see § 489.141]

[f] What Manner of Attack Is Preferred?

☐ Direct attack [see § 489.138]; may be commenced in action in which judgment or order was entered by:

☐ Motion.

☐ Ex Parte Application.

NOTE:
Ex Parte Application Permitted. Party's motion may be made ex parte because the court can vacate or set aside a void judgment on its own motion, a party's motion may be made ex parte.

☐ Collateral attack [see § 489.139]; may be made in many different procedural contexts, for example [for discussion, see § 489.14[3]]:

☐ Proceeding in mandate to compel trial court to strike from its records portion of appealable order that reduced judgment.

☐ Subsequent attack on orders independently appealable and final by lapse of time by appeal from later order or judgment.

[g] Prepare Papers

☐ Prepare papers as appropriate in procedural context in which issue is raised.

[2] Relief Under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) From Judgment or Order That Is Void in Fact Although Not Void on Its Face

[a] Is Client Proper Party?

☐ Determine whether party seeking relief is proper party. Confirm that party seeking relief is aggrieved party.

[b] Is Judgment or Order Proper Target of Relief?

☐ Moving party is seeking relief from:

☐ Judgment.

☐ Order.

[c] Does Basis for Relief Exist?

☐ Determine whether judgment or order is void in fact although it is not void on its face any of following exist [for discussion, see § 489.134].

[d] Is Relief Appropriate to Client's Case?

☐ Relief available is order setting aside or vacating judgment or order.

[e] Has Time to File Motion for Relief Expired?

☐ Determine whether time to file notice of motion has expired [for discussion, see § 489.142].

☐ Motion to set aside judgment that is void because defendant was never served in action and return of service filed is false must be made within time specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(a), which applies by analogy, namely, within earlier of:

☐ Two years from the date the judgment was entered, or

☐ One hundred eighty days after service on the moving party of a written notice that judgment has been entered.

☐ Motion for relief from any other judgment or order must be made within six-month period specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), which applies by analogy.

[f] If Time Has Expired, Is Alternative Remedy Available?

☐ Determine whether relief might still be available in equitable proceedings [see § 489.333; for discussion, see § 489.220].

[g] What Is Proper Court for Motion?

☐ Ascertain proper court for motion. Motion made in court in which judgment or order was entered.

[h] Prepare Moving Papers

☐ Prepare notice of motion [see § 489.420[1] (form of notice of motion)].

☐ Prepare one or more affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury setting forth evidentiary facts showing that [see § 489.420[1] (form of declaration)]:

☐ Judgment or order is void.

☐ Motion is timely.

☐ Prepare supporting memorandum of points and authorities [see s California Points and Authorities, Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender)].

☐ Prepare proposed order, if desired or required [see § 489.420[2] (form)].

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.333

§ 489.333 Consideration of Alternative Remedies for Relief: Equitable Relief From Valid or Void Judgment, Dismissal, or Order

[1] Is Client Proper Party?

- ☐ Aggrieved party.
- ☐ Person in privity with party.
- ☐ Stranger whose rights have been adversely affected by judgment or order.

[2] Is Judgment or Order Proper Target of Relief?

☐ Determine whether judgment or order at issue is final [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1, 904.2; see also Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal].

[3] Does Basis for Relief Exist?

☐ Determine whether judgment or order is either:

- ☐ Void [for discussion, see § 489.132], or
- ☐ Obtained through extrinsic:

- ☐ Fraud [for discussion, see §§ 489.241 -489.243].
- ☐ Mistake [for discussion, see §§ 489.241 -489.242, 489.244].
- ☐ Duress [for discussion, see § 489.245].

[4] Is Relief Appropriate to Client's Case?

- ☐ Consider whether equitable relief is appropriate in client's case [see § 489.220 et seq.].
- ☐ Determine what manner of relief is desired; that is, order or judgment:
  - ☐ Modifying, setting aside, or nullifying judgment or order.
  - ☐ Permitting defendant in default case to defend against action.
  - ☐ Permitting aggrieved party to file pleading or paper.
  - ☐ Granting, or other appropriate relief.

[5] Which Proceedings Are Preferred?

- ☐ Consider the advantages and disadvantages of equitable motion compared to independent action in equity [for discussion, see § 489.266]:
  - ☐ Time limits: Applicable time limit or statute of limitations [see [7] and [8], below].
  - ☐ Speed of relief: Moving party may obtain hearing on equitable motion sooner than trial.
  - ☐ Expense: Equitable motion is less expensive than independent action in equity.
  - ☐ Need for discovery: Independent action in equity permits formal discovery, such as deposition of witnesses.
  - ☐ Willingness of witnesses to testify at trial: Hearing on equitable motion is normally based on affidavits or declarations.
  - ☐ Credibility of witnesses: In independent action, counsel may cross examine witnesses.

☐ Judge to determine case: Desirability of disposition by law and motion judge versus trial judge.

☐ Claim and issue preclusion: Collateral estoppel and res judicata effect of full opportunity to litigate when witnesses testify in court [for discussion, see § 489.266[2]].

[6] Which Court Is Proper Court to Seek Relief?

☐ Equitable motion: relief may be sought in court that rendered judgment [for discussion, see § 489.225].

☐ Independent action in equity: may be filed in superior court only [for discussion, see § 489.266].

[7] Motion for Equitable Relief

☐ Determine whether time to file motion has expired:

☐ Motion must be made within reasonable time after discovery of judgment or facts constituting extrinsic fraud or mistake [for discussion, see § 489.262[1]].

NOTE:
No Other Time Limit. No specific time limitation is otherwise imposed for a motion for relief from judgment or order in equity.

☐ Moving party must act diligently in seeking relief after discovering the facts [for discussion, see § 489.262[2]].

☐ Prepare one or more affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury [see §§ 489.430[1], 489.431 (forms)], setting forth evidentiary facts showing:

☐ If relief is sought on ground of extrinsic fraud or mistake, that judgment or order resulted from extrinsic fraud or mistake, and stating that judgment or order was entered because of that extrinsic fraud or mistake.

☐ If relief is sought on ground that judgment or order is void, that judgment or order is void (and, in case of judgment that is void on its face, including appropriate reference to judgment roll).

☐ Moving party has meritorious case [for discussion, see § 489.264].

[8] Independent Action in Equity

☐ Determine whether statute of limitations has expired. A complaint for relief in equity must be filed within either [for discussion, see § 489.261]:

☐ Three years, subject to a delayed discovery rule [see Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 560, 305 P.2d 20 (applying Code Civ. Proc. § 338(d) limitation period governing actions for fraud or mistake)] or ☐ Four years [Zastrow v. Zastrow (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 710, 717, 132 Cal. Rptr. 536 (applying Code Civ. Proc. § 343 limitation period for when no other period is provided)].

☐ Determine court in which plaintiff prefers to file action.

NOTE:
Independent Action May Be Filed in Different Court. Independent action need not be filed in the court that rendered the judgment or made the order [for discussion, see § 489.266[1]].

☐ Prepare complaint for equitable relief to vacate or set aside the judgment or order [see §§ 489.440, 489.441 (forms)].

☐ Commence action by filing complaint for equitable relief, and paying appropriate filing fee.

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.340

§ 489.340 Response to Request for Relief From Judgment, Dismissal, or Order

[1] Make Preliminary Determinations

☐ Read reading notice of motion and supporting papers, determine:

☐ Whether notice of motion was properly served.

☐ Whether motion is timely.

☐ Whether notice of motion sets forth legal grounds for relief [see §§ 489.331 -489.333].

☐ Whether any supporting affidavits or declarations contain facts within affiant's or declarant's personal knowledge or contain inadmissible hearsay.

NOTE:
Stipulation to Terms of Relief. If the moving papers support the relief requested and there is no defense to the motion, counsel may wish to stipulate that the motion be granted (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 128.5(a), (b), 128.7 (relating to sanctions imposed for bad faith actions or tactics), discussed in § 489.42. If counsel believes that the court could go either way on the motion, he or she may still wish to negotiate a stipulation granting the motion on the best terms obtainable for his or her client [see discussion in § 489.42].

[2] Prepare Papers

☐ Prepare one or more counter affidavits or counter declarations under penalty of perjury [see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations (for general requirements for affidavits and declarations)].

☐ Prepare opposing memorandum of points and authorities [see s California Points and Authorities, Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender)].

☐ Serve opposing papers on other party's attorney (or on other party if he or she has no attorney) at least 9 court days before the hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(a)(10), (12), (13), (b), 1010; see also Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

☐ Deliver the originals of all opposition papers to court clerk for filing at least 9 court days before the hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)].

[4] Prepare for Hearing

☐ Advise persons who will be offering testimony at hearing in opposition to the motion of the time, date, and place of the hearing, and instruct them to attend the hearing.

[5] Attend Hearing

☐ Attend the hearing and argue against the motion.

[6] Prepare and Serve Order, if Required

☐ If motion is denied and court requires preparation of formal order, draft order in compliance with court's instructions [see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders].

☐ Prepare sufficient copies of order to provide copies to:

- ☐ Court (with original as well).
- ☐ Opposing counsel (if the court so requires).
- ☐ Office copy.

☐ Deliver copies to courtroom clerk to deliver original to judge for signing and to conform copies.

NOTE:

Ruling. The judge may rule on the motion from the bench or take the matter under submission and render his or her decision at a later date.

[7] Prepare Notice of Order

☐ Prepare the notice of order [see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders]:

☐ Set forth verbatim language of order, or notice of order.

☐ Serve notice of order, or have it served, on attorney for moving party (or on party if he or she has no attorney).

NOTE:

Prevailing Party to Give Notice of Order. Unless otherwise ordered by the court or notice is waived by all parties in open court and is entered in the minutes, notice of the court's order granting or denying the motion must be given by the prevailing party to all other parties or their attorneys [Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5].

§ 489.341 Defenses to Relief From Valid Judgment and Order From Judgment, Dismissal, or Order

[1] Relief Based on Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

☐ Motion is not timely and relief is therefore barred [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); for discussion, see § 489.39; see also § 489.331[1][e] (moving party's checklist)].

NOTE:
Court May Treat Motion as Equitable Motion. The court may on its own motion treat an untimely motion for relief as a motion in equity and therefore timely.

☐ Judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding did not result from mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect claimed [for discussion, see § 489.44].

☐ Moving party failed to act diligently in seeking relief, and/or there are substantial periods of total inactivity in seeking relief [for discussion, see § 489.39[6]].

[2] Relief From Default, Default and Default Judgment, or Dismissal Based on Attorney's Affidavit or Declaration of Fault

☐ Motion is not timely and relief is therefore barred [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); for discussion, see § 489.40[2]; see also § 489.331[2][e] (moving party's checklist)].

☐ Default, default and default, or dismissal judgment did not result from attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); for discussion, see §§ 489.40[1], 489.44].

[3] Relief From Default or Default and Default Judgment Based on Lack of Notice in Time to Defend ☐ Motion is not timely and relief is therefore barred [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5; for discussion, see § 489.75; see also § 489.331[3][e] (moving party's checklist)].

☐ Defendant or cross defendant received actual notice of action in time to defend.

[4] Relief From Default or Default and Default Judgment in Certain Consumer Actions Based on Filing of Action in Wrong Court

☐ The motion is not timely and relief is therefore barred [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5; for discussion, see § 489.92; see also § 489.331[4][e] (moving party's checklist)].

☐ The action was filed in proper court, if that is true.

[5] Relief Based on California Court's Having Assumed Jurisdiction Over Attorney's Law Practice

☐ Motion is not timely and relief is therefore barred [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1; for discussion, see § 489.101; see also § 489.331[5][e] (moving party's checklist)].

☐ Moving party failed to act diligently in seeking relief, and/or there are substantial periods of total inactivity in seeking relief.

☐ Motion is not timely and relief is therefore barred [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)(2); for discussion, see § 489.115; see also § 489.331[6][f] (moving party's checklist)].

☐ Defendant was not prejudiced in making his or her defense by reason of military service [for discussion, see § 489.110].

☐ Facts relied on do not constitute prejudice.

MEMORANDUM

[b] Use of Form

This form is a notice of motion and supporting declaration for use by a party or his or her legal representative (discussed in § 489.47[1]) to obtain relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from any judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding, including a default or default judgment, taken by or against the party through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect.

The first alternative paragraph in the notice of motion is to be used when relief is sought under the mandatory relief provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from a default and any resulting default judgment or dismissal entered as a result of the mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect of the moving party's attorney to which the attorney has attested in an affidavit or declaration under penalty of perjury [see § 489.362[1] (form of declaration); see also § 489.40 (legal background)].

The second alternative paragraph of the notice of motion is to be used when relief is sought under the discretionary provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), if the motion is for relief from:

- A default, default judgment, or dismissal without an attorney's affidavit or declaration attesting to fault or

- Any other judgment, order, or proceeding whether or not the attorney attests to his or her fault.

For statements that may be inserted in Paragraph 2 of the declaration, see § 489.361. For additional statements that may be modified for use in Paragraph 2, see § 489.431.

The form in [a], above, may also be used by a party's legal representative, such as an assignee [see § 489.47[1]].

For discussion of the time within which the motion must be filed, see § 489.39. For discussion of alternative relief that may be available when the time for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), has expired, see § 489.39[8].

[c] Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Proceeding Taken by Party

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), on its face, authorizes relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding taken against a party or his or her legal representative, the statute has been construed to authorize relief when the judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding, was taken by a party as well [Olson v. Olson (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 479, 482-483, 306 P.2d 1036 ; see § 489.47]. However, relief based on an attorney's affidavit or declaration of fault is limited to relief from a default, default judgment, or dismissal taken against a party [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); for discussion of relief based on attorney's affidavit, see § 489.40].

[d] Relief From Default Judgment

The time for moving for relief from a default and default judgment commences to run when the default was entered [Rutan v. Summit Sports, Inc. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 965, 970, 219 Cal. Rptr. 381 ; see also § 489.39[3]].

Normally, if relief is sought from a default judgment the default must also be set aside; otherwise, the vacated judgment would leave the prior default intact and, on application, the court would be required to render immediately a judgmentof like effect, which defendant, being still in default, could not oppose [Howard Greer etc. Originals v. Capritti (1950)35 Cal. 2d 886, 888-889, 221 P.2d 937 (affirming order denying motion to set aside default judgment); see also Rutan v. Summit Sports, Inc. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 965, 970, 219 Cal. Rptr. 381 (affirming order granting relief from default judgment as to one defendant and reversing as to other defendant and reversing orders vacating default of both defendants as untimely; criticized on another ground in Canadian Commercial Bank v. Ascher Findley Co. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1139, 1152, 280 Cal. Rptr. 521)].

Consequently, the notice of motion should request that both the default and default judgment be vacated and set aside. However, a motion in equity, made after the time for attacking a judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), had expired, to set aside the default without mentioning the default judgment, entered for failure to answer interrogatories, and to reinstate the answer has been treated as a matter of "common sense" as one to set aside both the default and the default judgment [Palmer v. Moore (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 134, 137, 71 Cal. Rptr. 801 (affirming order granting relief); for further discussion of equitable relief, see § 489.220 et seq.]. Although the rule on this point would apparently be the same whether the motion is based on the court's equitable powers or on the statutory motion, the better practice on all motions is to specify in the notice of motion all the relief sought.

If equitable, as well as statutory, grounds exist for vacating the judgment, counsel may wish to move for relief under both Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), and alternatively on the grounds of extrinsic fraud and mistake [see Rutan v. Summit Sports, Inc. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 965, 974, 219 Cal. Rptr. 381 ; for a discussion of equitable motions and relief in equity, see § 489.220 et seq.].

The foregoing rules would not apply when the attack is solely on the default judgment as, for example, when the judgment makes an award different from or in excess of that requested in the complaint, or statement of damages [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 425.10(b), 425.11, 580]. For a discussion and forms for use in attacking a void or partially void default judgment, see §§ 489.130 et seq. and 489.220 et seq., respectively.

[e] Notice Requirement

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), unlike Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) (relating to void judgments, discussed in § 489.130 et seq.), does not expressly require that the application for relief from a judgment, order, or other proceeding, be made on notice or served on the adverse party. Nor does Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a) (specifying motions of which notice is required) expressly require that a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), unlike a motion for relief from default under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 or 585.5 (see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(10), (12), respectively), discussed in §§ 489.70 et seq. and 489.90 et seq., respectively, be made on notice [see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1003 ("an application for an order is a motion")].

Nevertheless, the general rule is that notice of a motion must be given whenever the order sought may affect the rights of the adverse party [see McDonald v. Severy (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 629, 631, 59 P.2d 98 ; Bohn v. Bohn (1913) 164 Cal. 532, 536, 129 P. 981 ; St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 82, 85, 202 Cal. Rptr. 571 ; People ex rel. Dept. Public Wks. v. Loop (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 466, 474, 326 P.2d 902]. Since an order granting relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), will affect the right of the party in whose favor the judgment, order, or proceeding was taken, the motion is one that, under the general rule, requires notice. Consequently, the motion would be governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1005, which, in addition to specified motions, requires written notice of a motion in "[a]ny other proceeding under this code in which notice is required and no other time or method is prescribed by law or by court or judge" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(13)].

[f] Amount of Notice Required

Because the motion is one that falls within the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(13) [see discussion under [e], above], the provisions for service and filing under Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) apply. Consequently, unless otherwise ordered by the court, all moving and supporting papers are required to be served and filed at least 16 court days before the time appointed for the hearing, provided that, if the notice is served by mail, the required 16-day period of notice before the time appointed for the hearing is increased by five calendar days if the place of mailing and the place of address are within California, 10 calendar days if either the place of mailing or place of address is outside California but in the United States, and 20 calendar days if either the place of mailing or the place of address is outside the United States. If notice is served by fax, express mail, or other overnight delivery method, the 16-day period is extended by two calendar days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(a)].

Opposing papers must be filed and served at least nine court days and all reply papers at least five court days before the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)].

[g] Supporting Declaration

[i] Requirement

In addition to the memorandum of points and authorities, the notice of motion for relief based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect of a party or the party's attorney must be accompanied by one or more affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2003, 2009, 2015.5] setting forth the facts establishing the ground or grounds of the motion. A generalform for a supporting declaration is included in the form in [1], above. For other forms for supporting declarations, see § 489.361. If the motion will be based on the attorney's affidavit or declaration of fault, that affidavit or declaration must accompany the notice of motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see § 489.361].

[ii] Content and Form

Absent statutory authority to the contrary, an affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) to be used as evidence of facts must normally be positive, direct, and not based on hearsay [see Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721]. A statement made without personal knowledge and solely on information and belief is hearsay and does not prove the facts contained in it [Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 624, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42 ; see also Magnolia Square Homeowners Assn. v Safeco Ins. Co. (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1049, 1057, 271 Cal. Rptr. 1 (allegation on information and belief is hearsay)]. However, facts averred on information and belief are proper when, for example, the facts to be established are incapable of positive averment [see City of Santa Cruz v. Municipal Court (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 74, 87, 260 Cal. Rptr. 520, 776 P.2d 222]. Moreover, unobjected-to hearsay may be considered by the court in ruling on a motion [see Slusher v. Durrer (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 747, 753, 138 Cal. Rptr. 265].

An affidavit or declaration setting forth only conclusions, opinions, or ultimate facts is also insufficient [Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 624, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42]. The declaration should be carefully drafted to avoid these, and it should set forth evidentiary, or probative, facts sufficient to show the following:

- One or more grounds for relief [see § 489.44; and cases cited in § 489.292[10]].

- That the motion is filed within a reasonable time, in no case exceeding six months, after the judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding was taken [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

- That the moving party exercised diligence in seeking relief [see, e.g., Kendall v. Barker (1988) 197 Cal. App. 3d 619, 623-624, 243 Cal. Rptr. 42 ; see also discussion in § 489.39[6]].

Explanations should be clear and detailed. For example, it will be insufficient to merely indicate that one was ill, without stating the dates of the illness [see, e.g., Gudarov v. Hadjieff (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 412, 417-418, 240 P.2d 621].

Inexcusable carelessness on the part of the defendant or his or her attorney can be disclosed by silence as well as by facts affirmatively set out [Transit Ads, Inc. v. Tanner Motor Livery, Ltd. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 275, 281, 75 Cal. Rptr. 848 (nonproduction of evidence that would naturally be produced by moving party allows inference that it is unfavorable)].

A declaration attached or appended to the notice of motion, which in its caption refers to the declaration, normally need not have a separate caption. But if it does not have a separate caption, it should nevertheless be titled.

For further discussion of the form and content of affidavits and declarations, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations .

[h] Other Accompanying Papers

[i] Supporting Memorandum

A memorandum must be served and filed with the notice of motion [a], above, if the motion is subject to the Civil Law and Motion Rules (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1100 et seq.) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103 (motions subject to rules)] or if required by local court rule. A motion to set aside a default judgment is subject to the Civil Law and Motions Rules [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1103(a)(2)]. The better practice is to prepare, serve, and file memorandum in support of any noticed motion, unless excluded expressly or by implication from the Civil Law and Motion Rules or by local court rule.

[ii] Pleading Proposed to Be Filed

A copy of the answer or other pleading, if any, proposed to be filed must also be submitted and is normally served and filed with the notice of motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); for further discussion of this requirement, including a discussion of a conflict among the courts of appeal as to when the proposed pleading must be filed, see § 489.53].

[i] Affidavit of Merits

No affidavit of merits is required [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b); see discussion in § 489.52[3]].

[j] Service of Notice of Motion

The notice of motion must be served on the adverse party's attorney if any or, if none, on the adverse party [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1011, 1012, 1015].

[k] Parties to Be Served

The person entitled to notice is, of course, the adverse party. Moreover, in the case of multiple parties, notwithstanding the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1014 that service of notice or papers need not be made on a defendant who has not appeared in the action, "adverse party" would include all parties who may be adversely affected by the order sought, whether or not they have appeared in the action [see McDonald v. Severy (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 629, 631, 59 P.2d 98 (involving motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) (then fourth paragraph) [see § 489.130 et seq.], which expressly requires notice, to set aside dismissal with prejudice based on fraud)], including, in the case of a motion by defendant, any codefendants whose rights would be adversely affected by the granting of relief [see Washko v. Stewart (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 311, 319, 112 P.2d 306 (involving motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d) (then fifth), to set aside default and default judgment, void in fact but not void on its face, for lack of personal jurisdiction over the defaulting defendant [see § 489.130 et seq.])].

Judge of the _____ Court

[b] Use of Form

The form in [a], above, is an order for use when the court grants a motion for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding taken through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect of a party or a party's attorney, or a motion for relief based on an attorney's affidavit (declaration) of fault [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. For legal background relating to orders granting or denying relief, see § 489.54.

The order should be submitted to the judge for signature in accordance with the local court's rules and practice.

For discussion of the appealability of the order, see § 489.18[5].

[c] Findings

Unless a specific finding is required by statute or case law, findings of fact are not required and, in fact, have no place in the court's ruling on a motion [Waller v. Weston (1899) 125 Cal. 201, 204, 57 P. 892 ; see also Allstate Ins. Co. v. Orlando (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 858, 867, 69 Cal. Rptr. 702 ; Skouland v. Skouland (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 677, 679, 20 Cal. Rptr. 185]. The only express finding required by Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), is in the requirement that relief be granted from a default, default judgment, or dismissal based on an attorney's affidavit of fault, "unless the court finds the default or dismissal was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect." Nevertheless, one court has stated that to grant relief on this basis, the court must find that the default (or dismissal) was actually caused by the attorney's fault [see Billings v. Health Plan of America (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 250, 256, 275 Cal. Rptr. 80 (to extent Billings held that relief is limited to relief from default judgments, this holding has been abrogated by 1992 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), which expressly allows for relief from dismissals)]. If the court meant that the order must set forth that express finding, it is not supported by the statute. However, so long as the Billings dictum remains unrepudiated, counsel may wish to include in the proposed order granting relief an express finding that the default (or dismissal) was caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect. Because the same rule would seem equally applicable to a motion for relief under the first part of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), from a judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding taken through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, counsel for the moving party may also wish to include findings if the motion under that provision is granted to avoid an unnecessary appeal or one that might result in an adverse judgment.

[d] Conditions of Relief

[i] On Any Terms That May Be Just

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), permits the court to relieve a party from a judgment, dismissal, order, or other proceeding "upon any terms as may be just." This phrase has been interpreted as authorizing the court to order payment of costs or attorney's fees to the adverse party as compensation for loss or expense occasioned by the granting of the motion [Jade K. v. Viguri (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1459, 1474, 258 Cal. Rptr. 907 (criticized on other grounds in Passavanti v. Williams (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1602, 1608 n.5, 275 Cal. Rptr. 887); Hearst v. Ferrante (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 234 Cal. Rptr. 385 ; see also Kodiak Films, Inc. v. Jensen (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1260, 1264, 281 Cal. Rptr. 728].

For further legal background, see § 489.42.

[ii] Relief Based on Attorney's Affidavit or Declaration of Fault

Whenever relief is granted based on an attorney's affidavit (or declaration) of fault, the court is required to direct the attorney to pay reasonablecompensatory legal fees and costs to opposing counsel or parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. Therefore, if the motion for relief is accompanied by an attorney's sworn affidavit attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, the second bracketed order in the form in [a], above, limited to directing the attorney to pay legal fees and costs, should be included in the order. The relief cannot, however, be made conditional on the attorney's payment of compensatory legal fees or costs or monetary penalties (discussed under [iii], below) imposed by the court or on compliance with other sanctions ordered by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(c)(2)].

[iii] Penalties

Whenever the court grants relief from a default, default judgment, or dismissal based on any of the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), the court may [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(c)(1)]:

- Impose a penalty of no greater than $1,000 on an offending attorney or party,
- Direct that an offending attorney pay an amount no greater than $1,000 to the State Bar Client Security Fund, or
- Grant other appropriate relief.

For discussion of the imposition of penalties under Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5(a), see § 489.42[3]. If penalties are imposed, the third optional order in the form in [a], above, should be included.

[e] Statement of Reasons

If attorney's fees are awarded as a sanction or other sanctions are imposed, the order must also contain a written statement of the reasons [see Hearst v. Ferrante (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 234 Cal. Rptr. 385 ; see also discussion in § 489.42[4]].

Chapter 489 RELIEF FROM JUDGMENTS AND ORDERS
V. FORMS
A. Statutory Relief From Valid Judgments and Orders
1. Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.361

§ 489.361 Relief From Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Other Proceeding Taken Through Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect or Based on Attorney's Affidavit (Declaration) of Fault [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--
Supporting Declaration--Statement in Supporting Declaration

[1] Default Was Due to Defendant's Excusable Mistake of Fact

[a] FORM Relief From Judgment, Dismissal, Order, or Other Proceeding Taken Through Mistake, Inadvertence, Surprise, or Excusable Neglect or Based on Attorney's Affidavit (Declaration) of Fault [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]--Supporting Declaration--Statement in Supporting Declaration--Default Was Due to Defendant's Excusable Mistake of Fact

[The following may be substituted for the factual statement in Paragraph 2 of the declaration in support of motion for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) in § 489.360[1][a].]

[SET FORTH facts showing that entry of default (and default judgment, if applicable) was due to defendant's excusable mistake of fact, e.g.:]

2. As shown by the records herein, of which the court is requested to take judicial notice, the default [and default judgment] was/were entered through my _____ [mistake or inadvertence or surprise or excusable neglect or all or any combination of these].

3. I was served with the summons and complaint in this action by a process server. At that time, I wrote at the top of the papers the date I received them, _____ [specify date, e.g., June 24, 1992].

4. I read the summons which said that I had 30 days from the date of service in which to answer, and believed that I, therefore, had through _____ [e.g., July 24] in which to do so. I read the complaint and believed that I had a good and substantial defense to the action, and continue to believe so, as shown by my proposed answer to the complaint.

5. Sometime within the next day or two, I phoned the office of my attorney, _____ [name], and learned that he/she was out of town on a trial and would not be back in his/her office until _____ [e.g., July 20]. I explained to the secretary that I had received the summons and complaint and, in response to his/her question, said that I had received them on _____ [e.g., June 24]. The secretary told me that he/she believed that Mr./Ms. _____ [name of attorney] would be able to handle my defense and file a timely pleading, but that Mr./Ms. _____ would be checking in with him/her on _____ [e.g., July 1], he/she would then confirm it with the attorney and call me back.

6. On _____ [e.g., July 1], Mr./Ms. _____ [name of attorney] phoned me personally and we discussed the case. He/she suggested that I obtain copies of certain papers that he/she believed would support my defense and that I leave them, together with the summons and complaint,with the secretary at his/her office no later than _____ [e.g., July 17], and I did so.

7. In the evening of _____ [e.g., July 23], I went to my attorney's office where I read and signed the answer he/she had prepared.

8. On _____ [e.g., July 24] my attorney phoned to tell me that when he/she attempted to file the answer that morning, the court clerk rejected it on the ground my default had been entered the day before, that he/she then checked the file of the case and learned that I had been served on _____ [e.g., June 23].

9. If in fact I was served on _____ [e.g., June 23], I honestly believed in good faith that it was _____ [e.g., June 24] and do not understand how I could have been mistaken as to the date of the day service was made. Ever since reading the complaint I have had every intention of answering it and at no time would have intentionally misled my attorney as to the date I was served. If I did, in fact, err in the date I wrote on the papers, it was an honest mistake made in the utmost good faith.

The form of declaration in [a], above, is for use to support a motion for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding taken by or against a party through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

The form in [a], above, is an illustration of the type of detailed statement that may be substituted for Paragraph 2 of the supporting declaration in § 489.360[1]. In the statement, the defendant is seeking relief from a default that resulted from his or her reasonable mistake of fact as to the date of service, and the mistake led to an untimely presentation of the answer for filing. In this situation, a declaration by the secretary setting forth his/her statement of the facts should also be prepared and submitted. The attorney should also make a declaration verifying what he/she did prior to the default, the plaintiff's refusal to stipulate to setting aside the default, and the prompt steps the attorney took in making the motion to set aside.

The general requirements for drafting a declaration in support of a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) are discussed in § 489.360[1][g].

For a memorandum of points and authorities supporting relief from default based on the defendant's reasonable mistake of fact as to service, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 70, Defaults, Default Judgments, and Relief From Judgments and Orders (Matthew Bender).

[2] Default Was Due to Defendant's Excusable Neglect in Reasonably Relying on Promise of Codefendant or Employer to Defend

[a] FORM

[The following may be substituted for the factual statement in Paragraph 2 of the declaration in support of motion for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) in § 489.360[1][a] .]

[SET FORTH facts showing that entry of default (and default judgment, if applicable) was due to defendant's excusable neglect in reasonably relying on a codefendant's or employer's promise to defend, e.g.:]

2. The default [and default judgment] was/were entered through my _____ [mistake or inadvertence or surprise or excusable neglect or all or any combination of these].

3. On _____ [date], immediately after being served with the summons and complaint in this action, defendant notified _____ [name], his/her _____ [codefendant or employer] of the service. _____ [Name of codefendant or employer] advised defendant _____ [state substance of representations made to defendant] [and instructed defendant to forward the summons and complaint to him/her.

4. Thereafter, on _____ (date), defendant forwarded the summons and complaint by mail to _____ (name of codefendant or employer)].

5. As a result of these representations [and instructions] and because the cause of action arose out of _____ [specify, e.g., a debt for which _____ (name of codefendant) was primarily liable or defendant's employment] defendant reasonably relied on _____ [name of codefendant or employer] to defend the action on behalf of defendant and defendant took no further action in the matter. However, without defendant's knowledge or fault, _____ [name of codefendant or employer] failed to answer or otherwise plead to the complaint [within the proper time].

6. Defendant's default was taken on _____ [date] [and a default judgment subsequently entered on _____ (date)].

[b] Use of Form

The form of declaration in [a], above, is for use to support a motion for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding taken by or against a party through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

The form in [a], above, is an illustration of the type of detailed statement that may be substituted for Paragraph 2 of the supporting declaration in § 489.360[1]. In the statement, the defendant is seeking relief from a default (and default judgment) that resulted from his or her reasonable reliance on a codefendant or employer to defend the action on defendant's behalf. If the time for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), has expired, relief may still be available by a motion in equity [see, e.g., Desper v. King (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 659, 662, 59 Cal. Rptr. 657].

The general requirements for drafting a declaration in support of a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) are discussed in § 489.360[1][g].

With appropriate modifications to substitute equitable for statutory grounds, that is, to substitute extrinsic mistake for excusable neglect, the statement in [a], above, may be included in a declaration in support of the equitable motion. For a form of declaration in support of a motion for equitable relief, see § 489.430[1]. For discussion of equitable relief, see § 489.260 et seq..

[c] Reliance on Third Party to Defend

When a default is entered because the defendant has relied on a codefendant or other interested party to defend, the question is whether the defendant was reasonably justified under the circumstances in his or her reliance or whether his or her neglect to attend to the matter was inexcusable [Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 (treating motion for relief filed more than six months after default was entered as motion for relief in equity based on extrinsic mistake in relying on insurer to defend after following mailing summons and complaint to insurer pursuant to instructions in policy, but insurer never received them); Roussey v. Ernest W. Hahn, Inc. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 251, 256, 59 Cal. Rptr. 399 ; see discussion in § 489.39[8])].

The inexcusable neglect of the insurer, who is, in effect if not in law, the real party in interest, like that of the defendant's attorney, is imputed to the defendant [see Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 700-701, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581]. Thus, a defendant seeking to vacate a default under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), or under the court's equitable powers, who alleges reasonable reliance on an insurance carrier to defend, must also establish justification for the carrier's inaction in failing to file an answer [see Don v. Cruz (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 695, 702, 182 Cal. Rptr. 581].

[3] Default Was Due to Attorney's Excusable Neglect Resulting From Press of Business Coupled With Unusual Circumstances

[a] FORM

[The following may be substituted for the factual statement in Paragraph 2 of the declaration in support of motion for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) in § 489.360[1][a] .]

[SET FORTH facts showing that entry of default (and default judgment, if applicable) was due to attorney's excusable neglect resulting from press of business coupled with unusual circumstances, e.g.:]

2. The default [and default judgment] was/were entered through my _____ [mistake or inadvertence or surprise or excusable neglect or all or any combination of these].

3. _____ [State nature of proceeding and time within which answer must be filed if less than the normal 30 day period, e.g., This is an unlawful detainer proceeding arising out of a complex commercial transaction in which the defendant had only five days to answer the complaint].

4. _____ [Specify when the action was commenced and the summons was served, e.g., As shown by the court's file herein, the complaint was filed on _____ (specify day of week, e.g., Friday) _____ (date) and served on the defendant late the same day]. _____ [Specify circumstances in which counsel undertook to represent defendant, e.g., The summons and complaint were delivered to my office the following Monday.]

5. _____ [Describe office situation, e.g., Normally, an attorney would have been available to handle the manner forthwith. However, the office's Chief Trial attorney had become seriously ill the week before and has not yet returned, and his cases had been reassigned between myself and the office's other attorney. At the time the defendant's papers arrived both of us were out of town on other trials.]

6. _____ [Specify additional circumstances, e.g., Moreover, the papers arrived during Christmas week. I arrived back in the office on Wednesday, the day before Christmas, and the day the answer was due. The other attorney in the office had not yet returned. After reading the papers, I phoned the office of the attorneys representing the plaintiff to request an extension of time and was informed that the attorney handling the matter had left town for the Christmas holiday and would not be back until Monday, and that there was no one else in the office who could grant me an extension of time. I also tried several times to reach the defendant by phone, but there as no answer. The following Monday I phoned the office of plaintiff's attorney and was informed that the defendant's default hadbeen entered the preceding Friday, although neither I nor the defendant, as shown by his/her declaration submitted herewith, had received any advance notice at all of plaintiff's intention to have the default entered].

The form of declaration in [a], above, is for use to support a motion for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding taken by or against a party through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

The form in [a], above, is an illustration of the type of detailed statement that may be substituted for Paragraph 2 of the supporting declaration in § 489.360[1]. In the statement, the defendant is seeking relief from a default (and default judgment) that resulted from the failure of the defendant's attorney to file an answer on behalf of a client within the limited time allotted. The ground of the motion would be excusable neglect [see § 489.44[4], for discussion of what constitutes excusable neglect]. The fact situation illustrated is adapted from the one described in Robinson v. Varela (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 611, 614-615, 616, 136 Cal. Rptr. 783 , in which relief was granted.

Note, however, that press of business alone is not normally a valid ground for relief from a default judgment entered as the result of an attorney's failure to file an answer [see discussion § 489.45[2][c]].

The general requirements for drafting a declaration in support of a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) are discussed in § 489.360[1][g].

[4] Default Resulted From Attorney Abandonment

[a] FORM

[The following may be substituted for the factual statement in Paragraph 2 of the declaration in support of motion for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) in § 489.360[1][a] .]

[SET FORTH facts showing that entry of default (and default judgment, if applicable) was due to abandonment by the declarant's attorney, e.g.:]

2. On being served with the summons and complaint in this action on or about _____ [date], I immediately phoned the plaintiff, who told me that he/she would not talk with me and that I should contact his/her attorney, whose name and phone number he/she gave me.

3. I immediately phoned the attorney who informed me that if I intended to contest the complaint I should consult with my own attorney.

4. I had no attorney, but immediately, on the same day phoned _____ [name], an attorney duly licensed to practice law in this state, whose name I got from the yellow pages of the phone book. The attorney said he could see me that day and that I should come in. I did. The attorney said that he/she would take my case, and that I should "leave everything" to him/her. He/she further instructed me to have no further communication with either the plaintiff or his/her attorney and that any contact with them should be made solely by himself/herself.

5. At that time I paid him/her the sum of $_____, as a retainer, and he/she gave me a receipt, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A.

6. On or about _____ [date], the attorney phoned to tell me that he/she had talked with plaintiff's attorney and told plaintiff's attorney that he/she was representing me. The attorney subsequently drafted an answer to the complaint, which he/she had me read and sign on _____ [date] at his/her office, at which time he/she told me the answer would be filed forthwith. Unknown to me the answer was not filed "forthwith" or at all.

7. Not hearing from the attorney for about two weeks, I phoned him/her and asked the status of the matter. He/She told me the answer had been filed, that he/she was preparing papers to send to the plaintiff to obtain certain admissions, and that he/she would contact me at such time it became necessary to do so, and that it could take over a year before the case was brought to trial. At the same time, he/she asked that I send him/her an additional payment in the amount of $_____, which I sent by check. A copy of the canceled check is attached hereto as Exhibit B.

8. Approximately five weeks later, over a period of several days, I again phoned the attorney several times and was informed each time by the man/woman who answered the phone, who I assumed was the attorney's secretary, that the attorney was "in trial" or "on a trial out of town" or "on a business trip" and that he/she would have the attorney call when the attorney "got in" or "got back."

9. Receiving no return call, again, on or about _____ [date], I phoned, and this time the attorney answered. He/she seemed flustered and upset and told me the case had been dismissed, that I had nothing more to worry about, that he/she would send me a copy of the judgment. Thereafter, on or about _____ [date], I received what purported to be, but was not, a valid judgment of the court, which had stamped over the signature line the name of a judge. A copy of this document is attached hereto as Exhibit C and made a part hereof.

10. Subsequently, on or about _____ [date], I was notified by my bank that my savings account had been levied on by the plaintiff pursuant to a judgment that had been rendered against me. I immediately tried to phone my attorney, but was told by the operator that the number had beendisconnected. I immediately went to the attorney's office and found that it was vacant. I went to the building manager who told me that the attorney's lease had run out, the attorney had moved, and that the manager did not know the attorney's new address. I phoned information and asked for the attorney's current phone number and was told that there was no listing for him/her.

11. I then retrieved the copy of the judgment my attorney had sent me and went to the courthouse where I spoke to a clerk and showed him/her the judgment. The clerk said he/she had no record of any such judgment in his/her records, that his/her records showed an answer was mailed to the court for filing, but that it was returned to the attorney for failure to pay the filing fee.

12. The clerk further got the court file of my case and went through it in my presence. There was no judgment in my favor in the file. Rather, both the court's records and the file showed that the clerk had entered my default for failure to file an answer and that a judgment was entered against me on _____ [date].

13. The clerk further suggested that I might locate the attorney's present address by phoning the State Bar, which I did, but the only address it had was the one for the now vacated office.

14. Pursuant to the suggestion of the person at the State Bar, I phoned the local bar association and secured the names of three attorneys any one of which they felt could help me. I phoned the first name on the list and was given an appointment for the following day, which appointment I kept.

15. I explained the facts as set forth herein to the attorney, who agreed to represent me. That same day, while I remained in the office, the attorney drafted a motion to vacate and set aside the default and default judgment, and this declaration, which I signed in his/her presence.

[b] Use of Form

The form of declaration in [a], above, is for use to support a motion for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding taken by or against a party through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

The form in [a], above, is an illustration of the type of detailed statement that may be substituted for Paragraph 2 of the supporting declaration in § 489.360[1]. In the statement, the defendant is seeking relief from a default (and default judgment) that resulted from the defendant's employment of, and reliance on the assurances of, his or her attorney, to represent the defendant when, with no notice to the defendant, the attorney, through positive misconduct, of which the defendant had no knowledge, abandoned the defendant [see Carroll v. Abbott Laboratories, Inc. (1982) 187 Cal. Rptr. 592, 654 P.2d 775 ; Tunis v. Barrow (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1069, 1078, 229 Cal. Rptr. 389 ; for discussion, see § 489.46].

The same facts would support either a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), based on mistake, or a motion for relief in equity based on extrinsic mistake [see Buckert v. Briggs (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 296, 301, 93 Cal. Rptr. 61 ; see also § 489.430[g]]. Diligence in seeking relief is required whether the motion is made pursuant to the statute [see discussion in § 489.39[6]], or is directed to the equitable powers of the court [see § 489.262[2]]. A motion under the statute cannot be made more than six months after the default was entered, whereas the only limitation on a motion for equitable relief is that the motion be made within a reasonable time after discovery of the entry of the default and judgment. Both forms of relief may be sought in the same motion, but if more than six months have passed since the judgment was entered, the motion should be limited to a request for equitable relief based on extrinsic mistake.

The general requirements for drafting a declaration in support of a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) are discussed in § 489.360[1][g].

[5] Dismissal of Action Resulted From Defendant's Reliance on Erroneous Information Given by Court Officer

[a] FORM

[The following may be substituted for the factual statement in Paragraph 2 of the declaration in support of motion for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) in § 489.360[1][a] .]

[SET FORTH facts showing that entry of default (and default judgment, if applicable) was due to defendant's excusable neglect in reasonably relying on a codefendant's or employer's promise to defend, e.g.:]

2. As shown by the records herein, of which the court is requested to take judicial notice, the judgment dismissing plaintiff's action was entered through my _____ [mistake or inadvertence or surprise or excusable neglect or all or any combination of these] arising from erroneous information I received from _____ [specify court officer, e.g., the courtroom clerk].

3. On _____ [date], _____ [specify what was done, e.g., the date scheduled for trial of this action, as attorney for the plaintiff, I arrived early with my client in the courtroom of Judge _____, who was scheduled to try the case]. At that time I was advised by the _____ [specify court officer, e.g., courtroom clerk] _____ [set forth statement(s), e.g., that the trial had been postponed, that it would be reset, and that I would be notified at a later time of the new trial date].

4. _____ [Specify action taken in reliance on statement, e.g., So notified, the plaintiff and I left the courtroom].

5. The _____ [e.g., clerk's] statement was erroneous in that _____ [specify true facts, e.g., the trial had not been postponed, and it was called for trial as scheduled]. As a result of the clerk's erroneous advice, _____ [specify, e.g., no one appeared for the plaintiff when the case was called, and the action was dismissed on defendant's motion].

[b] Use of Form

The form of declaration in [a], above, is for use to support a motion for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding taken by or against a party through his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

The form in [a], above, is an illustration of the type of detailed statement that may be substituted for Paragraph 2 of the supporting declaration in § 489.360[1]. In the statement, the defendant is seeking relief from a judgment of dismissal resulting from justifiable reliance on statements of a court officer on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, and excusable neglect.

For additional examples of these grounds, see discussion in § 489.44[1][a]. The general requirements for drafting a declaration in support of a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) are discussed in § 489.360[1][g].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [2], above, is a declaration for use by a party's attorney to attest to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, which resulted in the entry of a default, default judgment, or dismissal entered against his or her client. The declaration should be attached or appended to, and submitted with, the notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

The general requirements for drafting a declaration are discussed in § 489.360[1][g].

[3] Effect of Affidavit or Declaration

If the motion is made no more than six months after entry of judgment, is in proper form, and is accompanied by the attorney's sworn affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) attesting to his or her mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect, the court is required to vacate any resulting default, default judgment, or dismissal entered against the attorney's client, unless the court finds that the default or dismissal was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)]. The statute does not require the moving party to act diligently in filing the motion.

For further discussion, as well as the conditions and penalties that may be imposed on the granting of relief, see § 489.40[1].

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am _____ [specify, e.g., the plaintiff in the above-entitled action or an attorney at law duly admitted to practice in all California state courts and the attorney of record for the _____ (specify party, e.g., plaintiff)] and make this declaration in opposition to _____ [party, e.g., defendant's] motion _____ [specify relief sought, e.g., to set aside and vacate] _____ [specify judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding, e.g., the default and default judgment] entered in this action against _____ [party, e.g., the defendant].

2. As shown by the records of this court, the _____ [specify when judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding was taken, e.g., default was entered on _____ (date) and the default judgment was entered on _____ (date)].

[EITHER]

3. As further shown by the records herein, of which this court is requested to take judicial notice, _____ [specify moving party, e.g., defendant's] motion was filed on _____ [date], and is therefore untimely in that it was not filed within six months from the date _____ [specifyjudgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding moving party seeks to set aside, e.g., the default was entered or, if relief is sought only from a default judgment or other judgment, the (default) judgment was entered].

[OR]

3. As further shown by the proof of service filed in this action, _____ [specify moving party, e.g., defendant] was served with notice of _____ [specify judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding moving party seeks to set aside, e.g., entry of the default and default judgment] on _____ [date], yet failed to take any steps to seek relief from _____ [specify, e.g., default] until _____ [date], when _____ [specify moving party, e.g., defendant's] motion was filed. The declaration of _____ [name] submitted in support of the motion shows not only that _____ [specify moving party, e.g., defendant] failed to act diligently in seeking relief from _____ [specify, e.g., default], but that he/she failed to take any action at all for a period of _____ [e.g., four months] after receiving notice that the _____ [specify, e.g., default and default judgment were entered].

[AND/OR]

4. There is no showing that the _____ [mistake or inadvertence or surprise or neglect or any combination of these] relied on by _____ [specify moving party, e.g., defendant] is excusable.

5. [Specify any defects, omissions, or statements in moving party's supporting declaration that admit or imply inexcusability, or are disputed, e.g., Defendant makes no claim that at the time he/she was served with the summons and complaint in this action that he/she did not have full possession of his/her faculties, that he/she was ill or incapacitated, or that he/she could not read or write the English language or did not understand the summons, but states in sum only that on receipt of the papers he/she "didn't really understand what the fuss was all about," mislaid the papers, and forgot about them until he/she received a copy of plaintiff's request to enter default. Plaintiff knew, or was bound to know, the meaning of the contents of the summons and complaint served, and knew, or was bound to know, from a simple reading of the summons, that action on his/her part was required within 30 days of service, and knew, or was bound to know, that a judgment would be taken against him/her in the amount stated in the complaint in the event that he/she failed to file a responsive pleading].

6. _____ [Set forth facts within declarant's personal knowledge negating any claims in moving party's supporting declaration, e.g., Defendant is _____ (specify business or occupation). Over a period beginning almost two months before the complaint was filed, I attempted unsuccessfully to negotiate a settlement of the dispute with the defendant. These negotiations terminated on _____ (date), at which time, I told the defendant that I was going to hire an attorney and file an action against him/her to recover the money he/she owed me. His/Her reply to me was that I could do what I wanted, but that, if I did sue, he/she would keep the case tied up in the trial and appellate courts for years and I'd never receive a cent. Consequently, defendant knew in advance that I was going to sue him/her, had my statement confirmed when he/she received the summons and complaint, and his/her statement about tying up the case in the courts implies familiarity with court proceedings].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is a declaration to oppose a motion for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding taken through a party's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect.

For discussion of the requirement that any mistake, inadvertence, or surprise, as well as neglect, be excusable, see § 489.32. For discussion of when the motion must be filed, see § 489.39. For discussion of what constitutes mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, see § 489.44[1].

The general requirements for drafting a declaration are discussed in § 489.360[1][g].

Counterdeclarations should be limited to showing that the motion is not timely, or that the moving party was not diligent in seeking relief, or that the mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect was not excusable, or, if it is excusable, that it was not the cause of the judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding [see, e.g., First Small Business Inv. Co. v. Sistim, Inc. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 645, 651, 90 Cal. Rptr. 798]. It would also appear to be proper, if the motion is for relief from a default judgment and the moving party's claimed meritorious defense consists of an affirmative defense alleged in the proposed answer, to show that the defense, if true, would be no defense to the cause of action alleged in the complaint.

Otherwise, counterdeclarations going to the merits of the case are irrelevant and improper, because a hearing on the motion is not theoccasion to try the merits of the case. Hence, on a motion for relief from a default and default judgment, for example, facts stated in the defendant's supporting affidavit or declaration or in the proposed answer showing a sufficient defense to the action may not be rebutted in the counteraffidavits or counterdeclarations of the opposing party [see Douglass v. Todd (1892) 96 Cal. 655, 657-658, 31 P. 623 ; First Small Business Inv. Co. v. Sistim, Inc. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 645, 651, 90 Cal. Rptr. 798 (noting that H.A. Pulaski, Inc. v. Abbey Contr. Specialties, Inc. (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 883, 74 Cal. Rptr. 590 , apparently holding to the contrary, was out of line with the Supreme Court cases); see also Beard v. Beard (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 645, 649, 107 P.2d 385 (proposed answer denying allegations clearly raised issue of fact and law that trial court was justified in holding a meritorious defense);

Rauer's Law etc. Co. v. Gilleran (1903) 138 Cal. 352, 353-354, 71 P. 445 (trial court erred in denying motion to vacate default judgment because defendant refused to appear to be examined under oath as to defense's nature when court doubted its merits)].

[4] Legal Argument

Legal argument is normally set forth in the accompanying memorandum of points and authorities, rather than in an opposing declaration. However, there appears to be no prohibition against legal argument in the declaration when it helps to give legal meaning to the probative facts averred or summarizes the basis of the result sought. Nevertheless, the memorandum of points and authorities should set forth any statement of law supporting a legal argument in the declaration, as well as the statutory, case, or other authority for the statement.

[5] Service of Opposing Papers

Opposing papers must be filed and served at least 9 court days before the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a)(13), (b)].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an order denying a motion for relief from a judgment, dismissal, order, or proceeding allegedly taken through mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect or a motion for relief from default based on an attorney's affidavit or declaration of fault is for use when the motion is denied and a formal order denying the motion is required by the court or by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

The order should be submitted to the judge for signature in accordance with the local court's rules and practice, which should be checked if counsel is unfamiliar with them.

The general requirements for drafting an order, including conditions for relief, are discussed in § 489.360[2] in the context of an order granting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b).

For discussion of the appealability of an order denying relief, see § 489.18[6][a].

[3] Motion Based on Attorney's Affidavit of Fault

A motion for relief from a default and any resulting default judgment, or dismissal, based on an attorney's affidavit (or declaration) of fault meeting the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), must be granted unless the court finds that the default, or dismissal, was not in fact caused by the attorney's mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b)].

Attorney for Defendant

DECLARATION OF _____ [name] IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ORDER SETTING ASIDE AND VACATING DEFAULT [AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT] AND GRANTING DEFENDANT LEAVE TO DEFEND

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am the defendant in the above-entitled matter.

2. As shown by the records in this action, of which the court is requested to take judicial notice, the summons was served _____ [specify, e.g., by publication from _____ (date) to _____ (date) in the _____ (name) newspaper, which is published in _____, California].

[SET FORTH in as many paragraphs as necessary facts showing why personal service may have been difficult, e.g.:]

3. My permanent residence is _____ [address], but the business in which I am engaged often requires my absence from my home for extended periods, during which time I have the utilities turned off and close up my house.

4. I am an unmarried self-employed entrepreneur affiliated with over 200 business establishments, including a number of the largest jewelry houses, department stores, and other stores and shops throughout California. I am engaged in the business of searching out unique merchandise ranging from trinkets and novelties to fine furniture, porcelain, jewelry, and dry goods, which I will buy and then resell to one or more of the businesses with which I am affiliated. My search for unique merchandise frequently takes me to faraway places.

5. During the entire period the summons was being published, and for several months thereafter, I was traveling about in Central America, and eventually to a small village where the villagers are engaged in the manufacture of unique porcelain pottery. After lengthy negotiations, I managed to purchase and receive a guarantee of a continued supply of a substantial amount of this pottery. I then negotiated for, and supervised, the shipment of this pottery to California.

6. I returned to _____ [city], California on _____ [date]. The following day a neighbor informed me that she had read in a legal newspaper that I was being sued and asked me what it was all about. She told me the name of the newspaper and its location. I immediately went to the newspaper office where I was shown a copy of the summons that had been published with the name of the court and a case number on it; I then went to the court clerk's office where I was told that my default for failing to file an answer had been entered on _____ [date] and that a default judgment in the sum of $_____ had been entered against me on _____ [date]. I explained that I knew nothing of the lawsuit and asked whether the judgment were legal. The clerk said it was and suggested that I see a lawyer.

7. It was too late to phone a lawyer that day, but the next day I phoned and made an appointment with my present lawyer, _____ [name]. After learning the above facts from me, the lawyer said he would draw up the necessary papers to try to have the default and judgment set aside and that I should return the following morning to sign them, which I did.

8. My failure to obtain actual notice of the service of summons in time to defend in no way resulted from any attempt on my part to avoid service or by any inexcusable neglect on my part. Rather, my absence from the country was normal to the business in which I am engaged and of which plaintiff was fully aware. Moreover, in talking to the court clerk, I learned that the complaint, of which until that day I'd known nothing, had been filed almost a year before I left on my trip to Central America.

9. At no time during that almost one-year period did I have any inkling that an action had been filed against me, and all during that period, except for a one-week period in July when I went to Arizona to purchase some Indian art work, I was living at my home where I was available for service of process. After my departure for Central America, any reasonable inquiry of any of my neighbors, all of whom watch my house when I am on a trip, would have revealed where I was, the approximate time I would return, and how I could be reached. My neighbors have assured me that no such inquiries were made.

10. Further, I have a good and meritorious defense to the complaint _____ [specify, e.g., as shown by the proposed answer which I have this day signed (and verified) or specify facts showing a meritorious defense].

[b] Use of Form

This form is a notice of motion and supporting declaration for use by a defendant to move for an order vacating and setting aside defendant's default and,if entered, the default judgment, when service of the summons did not result in actual notice to the defendant in time to defend [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(a)]. With appropriate modifications, the notice of motion may be used by a cross defendant for the same purpose.

The declaration contained in the form in [a], above, illustrates the type of detailed statement a defendant should provide in a declaration in support of his or her motion for relief. As required by Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(b), the declaration shows that the defendant's lack of actual notice in time to defend was not caused by any attempt by him or her to avoid service of summons and was not the result of any inexcusable neglect on the defendant's part.

For discussion of the papers that must accompany the motion, the time the motion must be filed, the required notice, and other matters, see § 489.70 et seq.

The general requirements for drafting a declaration are discussed in § 489.360[1][g].

[c] Supporting Memorandum

A memorandum must be served and filed with the notice of motion in [a], above [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(a)(2), 3.1103(a); for discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities]. The notice must also be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) showing that the party's lack of actual notice in time to defend was not caused by his or her avoidance of service or inexcusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(b)]. A copy of the answer, motion, or other pleading proposed to be filed in the action must also accompany the notice [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(b)].

The motion of _____ [identify party, e.g., defendant] for an order _____ [specify, e.g., setting aside and vacating the default (and default judgment) heretofore entered] came on regularly for hearing by the court on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

The court, having considered _____ [describe all types of evidence presented, e.g., the evidence presented at the hearing and the declarations submitted in support of and in opposition to the motion], having heard the argument of counsel, and being fully advised in the premises, finds as follows:

1. The service of the summons did not result in actual notice to the defendant in time to defend;

2. The motion for relief was timely filed; and

3. The defendant's lack of actual notice in time to defend the action was not caused by his/her avoidance of service or inexcusable neglect.

IT IS, THEREFORE, ORDERED that the default [and default judgment] heretofore entered in this action against defendant _____ [name] be, and hereby is/are vacated and set aside and defendant is granted leave to file his/her proposed answer and to defend the action.

[IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that _____ (name of party or party's attorney) pay to _____ (specify, e.g., plaintiff) legal fees and costs in the sum of $_____.]
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Judge of the _____ Court

[b] Use of Form

This is for use when a motion for relief from default under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 is granted.

For legal background relating to the court's ruling on a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5, see § 489.77. The general requirements for drafting an order are discussed in § 489.360[2]. For a form of formal order that may be adapted for use in lieu of the form in [a], above, when relief is denied and a formal order is required, see § 489.371[1].

[c] Findings

The court may set aside the default and any subsequent default judgment on whatever terms as may be just and allow the party to defend the action, if it finds that the motion for relief was made within the period specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(a) (discussed in § 489.75), and that the party's lack of actual notice in time to defend the action was not caused by his or her avoidance of service orinexcusable neglect [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5(c)].

[d] Terms on Granting Relief

Any terms imposed should be included in the order. For example, in granting the motion, the court may make a monetary award to plaintiff in a proper case, as, for example, when the defendant's lack of notice resulted from the defendant's excusable neglect, mistake, or inadvertence, or when the service was entirely proper but for some reason the defendant did not receive actual notice in time to defend [Kodiak Films, Inc. v. Jensen (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1260, 1264, 281 Cal. Rptr. 728]. However, when a defendant is free from fault and nothing more is at issue than the legal expense the plaintiff has incurred, it is error to condition relief from a default and default judgment on the payment of a monetary award to plaintiff [Kodiak Films, Inc. v. Jensen (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1260, 1265, 281 Cal. Rptr. 728].

[e] Sanctions

Unlike Code Civ. Proc. § 473(c), Code Civ. Proc. § 473.5 does not authorize the court, in granting relief from the default and default judgment, to impose sanctions on the defendant, and none may be imposed under that statute [see Kodiak Films, Inc. v. Jensen (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1260, 1263, 281 Cal. Rptr. 728].

[b] Use of Form

This form of notice of motion may be used by a defendant to move for relief from a default and, if entered, a default judgment in an action that is subject to any of the following venue provisions:

- Civ. Code § 1812.10 (Unruh Act).
- Civ. Code § 2984.4 (Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act).
- Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b) (contract action arising from offer or provision of goods, services, loans, or extensions of credit intended primarily for personal, family, or household use or from transaction consummated as proximate result of unsolicited phone call made by seller engaged in business of consummating transactions of that kind).

The ground of the motion is that the applicable statute has not been fully complied with [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(b)].

The form of declaration in [a], above, may be used by a defendant to support his or her motion to set aside a default and, if entered, default judgment, and for leave to defend and for an award of damages, costs, and attorney's fees when the plaintiff fails to show that he or she used reasonable diligence to avoid filing the action in the improper court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(c), (e)]. The general requirements for drafting a declaration are discussed in § 489.360[1][g] in the context of a declaration supporting a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b).

For further discussion, including the time the motion must be filed, accompa nying papers, the amount of notice required, and the availability of damages, costs, and attorney's fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(e), see § 489.90 et seq. [see also § 489.360[1]].

[c] Declaration Required

A notice of motion to set aside a default and, if entered, default judgment, and for leave to defend the action must be accompanied by an affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) showing under oath (or penalty of perjury) that the action was not commenced in the proper court according to Civ. Code § 1812.10 or 2984.4 or Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b), as the case may be [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(c)].

The motion of _____ [identify party, e.g., defendant] for an order _____ [specify, e.g., setting aside and vacating the default (and default judgment) heretofore entered] came on regularly for hearing by the court on _____ [date]. Plaintiff appeared by counsel _____ [name]; defendant appeared by counsel _____ [name].

The court, having considered _____ [describe all types of evidence presented, e.g., the evidence presented at the hearing and the declarations submitted in support of and in opposition to the motion], having heard the argument of counsel, and being fully advised in the premises, finds as follows:

1. The motion for relief was timely filed.

2. This action was not filed in the proper court.

[3. The plaintiff failed to show that he/she exercised reasonable diligence to avoid filing the action in an improper court.]

IT IS, THEREFORE, ORDERED THAT the default [and default judgment] heretofore entered in this action against defendant _____ [name] be,and hereby is/are, vacated and set aside and defendant is granted leave to defend the action when it is filed in the proper court.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that plaintiff pay to defendant damages in the sum of $_____, a reasonable attorney's fee in the further sum of $_____, and costs in the sum of $_____.]
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

Judge of the _____ Court

[b] Use of Form

This form is for use when a motion for relief from default under Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5 is granted. Any terms on the granting of relief imposed by the court should also be set out in the order. For legal background regarding the court's ruling on a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5, see § 489.93.

For a form of formal order that may be adapted for use in lieu of the form in [a], above, when relief is denied and a formal order is required, see § 489.371[1].

[c] Findings

If the court finds that the motion for relief was made within the period specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(b) (discussed in § 489.92), and that the action was not commenced in the proper court, the court must set aside the default and default judgment on such terms as may be just and allow the party to defend the action in the proper court [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(d)].

[d] Award of Damages, Costs, and Attorney's Fee

If the court finds that the action was commenced in an improper court, the court must award the defendant actual damages and costs, including reasonable attorney's fees, unless the plaintiff showed that he or she used reasonable diligence to avoid filing the action in the improper court [Code Civ. Proc. § 585.5(e)].

[b] Use of Form

This form of notice of motion and supporting declaration is for use by a party seeking relief from a judgment, order, or other proceeding taken against him or her when a California court has assumed jurisdiction over the law practice of the party's attorney and the judgment, order, or other proceeding was taken against the party after the application for the court to assume jurisdiction over the practice was filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1].

As indicated in the form, an additional declaration by the party should be drafted and submitted setting forth those relevant facts within the party's personal knowledge, but not within the personal knowledge of the attorney.

For discussion of when the application must be filed, and the amount of notice that must be given, see § 489.100 et seq.

Code Civ. Proc. § 473.1 does not require the moving party to attach to the notice of motion a copy of the answer or other pleading proposed to be filed if relief is granted.

[c] Supporting Memorandum

A memorandum must be served and filed with this notice of motion if the motion is subject to the Civil Law and Motion Rules [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); for motions subject to the Civil Law and Motion Rules, see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103], or if required by local court rule. The better practice is to prepare, serve, and file memoranda in support of any noticed motion, unless excluded expressly or by implication from the Civil Law and Motion Rules or by local court rule. For discussion and forms relating to memoranda, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am the defendant in the above-entitled matter.

2. As shown by the court's records, the default [and default judgment] was/were entered against me in this action on _____ [date] [and _____ (date), respectively].

[EITHER]

3. At the time the default [and default judgment] was/were entered, I was on active military service in the _____ [specify branch of service, e.g., United States Army]. I entered active service on _____ [date], and _____ [have been in active service at all times since then or was discharged on _____ (date)].

[OR]

3. I served on active duty in the _____ [branch of service, e.g., United States Army] from _____ [date] to _____ [date], on which latter date I received my discharge. As shown by Paragraph 2, above, the default [and default judgment] was/were entered within 30 days from the date of my discharge.

[CONTINUE]

4. My default [and the judgment based thereon] resulted from _____ [specify reasons why moving party's military service prejudiced him or her in making a defense, e.g., my confinement to a military hospital in Germany as a result of serious injuries I sustained in a jeep accident while on military police duty. I was hospitalized and bedridden from _____ (date) to _____ (date)].

5. I have a _____ [meritorious or legal] defense to the action in that _____ [specify in detail the facts constituting a meritorious or legal defense].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

[b] Use of Form

This form of notice of motion and supporting declaration may be used by a party to set aside a default and default judgment pursuant to 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g) on the ground that he or she did not appear and was prejudiced in making a defense by reason of his or her military service. To obtain relief the defendant must show that he or she has a meritorious or legal defense to the action or to a part of it [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)]. For further discussion, including the time in which the motion must be filed, and the amount of notice that must be given, see § 489.110 et seq.

[c] Contents of Declaration

The affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) in support of the motion to vacate must show:

- That the servicemember was materially affected by reason of military service in making a defense to the action (Declaration, Paragraph 4) [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g); Kromm v. Kromm (1948) 84 Cal. App. 2d 523, 530, 191 P.2d 115 (nothing in supporting affidavit showing that defendant's being in the military service prevented him from being represented in the case or from being present at trial)].

- The affidavit or declaration must also show that there is a meritorious or legal defense to the action or proceeding or to some part of it (Declaration, Paragraph 5) [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)]. Although no California appellate court has apparently ruled on this requirement, an Arizona case has held that this requirement is not satisfied by a mere declaration that there is such a defense, but that the affidavit or declaration must set out what that defense is [La Mar v. La Mar (1973) 19 Ariz. App. 128, 505 P.2d 566, 569].

A memorandum must be served and filed with the form of notice of motion in [a], above [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(a)(2), 3.1103(a); for discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities].

This form of notice of motion and supporting declaration is for use by a party seeking relief from a judgment taken against him or her during or within 30 days after a period of military service after being called or ordered into active state service as an officer or enlisted member of the National Guard by the Governor pursuant Mil. & Vet. Code §§ 143 or 146 or into active federal service by the President pursuant to Title 10 or 12 of the United States Code or as a reservist of the United States Military Reserve called to full-time active duty [Mil. & Vet. Code §§ 400(a), (b), 402(d)], who was prejudiced by reason of military service in making a defense to the action.

For discussion of when the application must be filed, and the requirement that the application state a meritorious or legal defense to the action or a part of it, see § 489.117.

[c] Supporting Memorandum

A memorandum must be served and filed with the notice of motion if the motion is subject to the Civil Law and Motion Rules [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); for motions subject to the Civil Law and Motion Rules, see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103], or if required by local court rule. The better practice is to prepare, serve, and file a memorandum in support of any noticed motion, unless excluded expressly or by implication from the Civil Law and Motion Rules or by local court rule. For discussion and forms relating to points and authorities, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

Attorney for _____ [moving party]

DECLARATION OF _____ [name] IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ORDER TO SET ASIDE VOID _____ [specify judgment or order, e.g., DEFAULT AND DEFAULT JUDGMENT]

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am _____ the _____ [specify party, e.g., defendant] herein, and I make this declaration in support of my motion _____ [specify relief sought, e.g., to set aside and vacate the default and default judgment heretofore entered against me].

[SET FORTH facts showing that the judgment or order is void in fact, e.g.:]
[EITHER]

2. At no time have I ever been served with or received a copy of the summons and of the complaint filed in this action. I reside, and since _____ [date] have resided, at _____ [address] in the city of _____. I am, and for the past _____ years have been, listed by my full and correct name in that city's directory and in the phone directory for that city.

3. At no time have I ever lived or resided in the city of _____ [city where summons was served]. As shown by the return of service in this action, of which the court is requested to take judicial notice, the summons purportedly was served on me by delivering a copy of the summons and complaint to some unnamed person in the city of _____ [name] at the following residential address: _____ [specify], and thereafter mailing a copy of the summons and complaint to me at the same address. I do not now, and have never, resided at or visited the address specified, or in the city specified, nor have I ever represented to anyone at any time that I did so.

4. I do not know the unnamed person to whom the summons and complaint were delivered, or anyone else who might be a resident of or a visitor to that address.

5. I have never received the copy of the summons and complaint delivered to the unnamed person or the copy of the summons and complaint thereafter mailed to that address, nor was I in any other way notified of them.

6. Rather, I discovered their existence and the default judgment that was entered against me on _____ [date], _____ [specify circumstances of discovery, e.g., when, in the course of trying to secure a loan on my home, I was informed that a "lis pendens" had been recorded in the county recorder's office and that it constituted a lien on my property to secure payment of a judgment entered against me by this court. Immediately went to the court clerk's office and was shown my "file" and specifically the above-mentioned so-called proof of sevice].

[OR]

2. As shown by the record herein, of which the court is requested to take judicial notice, the complaint was filed on _____ [date] by my then attorney of record, _____ [name] and dismissed on _____ [date] as a sanction for my having "repeatedly" failed to respond to discovery motions or to answer written interrogatories.

3. At no time was I ever informed by anyone that I had been ordered to appear at depositions or to answer interrogatories. When I employed my attorney, he/she told me it could take a year or two before the matter would get to trial and there would be periods of noticeable inaction.

4. On _____ [date], I signed and verified the complaint. Thereafter, on or about _____ [date] my attorney mailed me a conformed copy of the filed complaint, and on _____ [date] I received in the mail a file stamped copy of the summons and proof of service.

5. Several times over the next few weeks, I phoned my attorney and each time was assured that everything was proceeding normally. I phoned again on _____ [date] and was told by the man/woman who answered the phone that my attorney had "closed his/her office the day before and moved away." I immediately phoned the court clerk's office to learn the status of my case and was told that my complaint had been dismissed on _____ [date] for the reasons stated above. This was the first and only notice I had that my case had been dismissed or that I was supposed to have appeared at depositions and answer interrogatories. Had I been informed that I was supposed to attend depositions or to answer interrogatories I would have done so.

6. The same day I consulted another attorney, _____ [name] who, in my presence, phoned the State Bar of California and was told that my attorney, _____ [name], had been disbarred on _____ [date], which was the day I received the file-stamped copy of the summons and proof of service. This was the very first I had heard of his/her disbarment. At no time did he/she tell me he/she had been disbarred or was being investigated by the State Bar, and I have never received any letter or notice from him/her informing me of this fact. Nor have I at any time received any notice, written or oral, from the defendant herein or his/her counsel advising me of the disbarment of my attorney.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[b] Use of Form

This form of notice of motion and supporting declaration is for use to move for an order setting aside a void judgment or order that is not void on its face but is void in fact. For discussion of what constitutes a void judgment, see § 489.132. For discussion of the court's power to grant relief, when the motion must be filed, and requirements relating to the notice of motion, see §§ 489.131, 489.141 et seq., and 489.200 et seq., respectively. For discussion of relief in equity if the motion at law is untimely, see 489.220 et seq.

For further discussion of requirements for notice of motion for relief from judgment or order generally, including accompanying papers and service, see § 489.430[1].

The alternative paragraphs in the supporting declaration are illustrative only. The first set of alternative paragraphs supports a motion by a defendant to set aside and vacate a default and default judgment, and the second set of alternative paragraphs supports a motion by plaintiff to vacate an order dismissing the complaint.

No affidavit of merits is required (see discussion in § 489.143).

[c] Alternative Use for Judgment or Order Void on Its Face

No notice is required to set aside a judgment or order that is void on its face (see discussion in § 489.200[1]). However, to avoid any possible due process objections, the better practice might be to proceed by noticed motion. The form in [a], above, of notice of motion may be used for this purpose, in which case "on its face" should be inserted after "void" in the first paragraph and the nature of the invalidity should be added, for example, "in that the default judgment grants relief entirely different from that prayed for in the complaint." A judgment that is void on its face requires no extrinsic evidence to show its invalidity, and, hence, any reference to affidavits or declarations or to evidence in the second paragraph should be omitted.

[d] Extrinsic Evidence

A judgment that is not void on its face but is void in fact requires extrinsic evidence to show its invalidity; it is subject to direct attack only and to time limitations (see discussions § 489.140). Consequently, one or more affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury setting forth the facts showing the invalidity will be required.

[e] Alternative Remedies

A void judgment may be set aside on the ground of invalidity (that is, at law) or in equity on the ground of extrinsic fraud or mistake [see Lovato v. Santa Fe Internat. Corp. (1984) 151 Cal. App. 3d 549, 554, 198 Cal. Rptr.838] . Thus, if the time for an attack at law by motion on a void judgment or order has expired, relief in equity may still be available. For a discussion and requirements for relief in equity, see § 489.220 et seq.

[f] Nonservice or Defective Service of Summons and Motion to Quash

A judgment against a party who was not served with summons (and a false return of service was filed) or who was defectively served is void for lack of personal jurisdiction (see discussion in § 489.132). In such a case, the moving party may also want to have service of the summons quashed under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1), particularly if the defendant would not be subject to the in personam jurisdiction of the California courts, or the quashing of the summons might subject the action to the mandatory dismissal statutes (Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq., discussed in Ch. 212, Dismissal) or to some affirmative defense such as the bar of the statute of limitations.

A motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473, when combined with a motion to quash service of summons under Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1), does not constitute a general appearance [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(d)]. For the distinction between general and special appearances, as well as a combined form of notice of motion to set aside and vacate a default and default judgment and quash service of summons, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances .

[g] Supporting Memorandum

A memorandum must be served and filed with this notice of motion if the motion is subject to the Civil Law and Motion Rules (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100 et seq.) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); for motions subject to the Civil Law and Motion Rules, see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103], or if required by local court rule. A motion to set aside a default judgment, for example, is subject to the Civil Law and Motions Rules [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1103(a)(2)]. The better practice is to prepare, serve, and file a memorandum in support of any noticed motion, unless excluded expressly or by implication from the Civil Law and Motion Rules or by local court rule. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[b] Use of Form

This form of notice of motion and supporting declaration is for use by a party to obtain equitable relief from a judgment or order (including a default or default judgment) taken through extrinsic fraud or mistake.

If the judgment is void, the optional phrase "is void and" in the first paragraph of the notice should be included. The optional statement at the end of thatparagraph, relating to a meritorious defense, should be included unless the judgment is void for lack of jurisdiction (see discussion in § 489.264[3]. For further discussion of void judgments and orders, see § 489.130 et seq.

For other statements that may be inserted in lieu of Paragraph 2 of the declaration, see § 489.431. For additional statements that may be modified and substituted for Paragraph 2, see § 489.361; and in particular, see § 489.361[2] and [4]. The statement in § 489.361[2] may be used when the extrinsic mistake consists of the defendant's reasonable reliance on the representation of a codefendant or the defendant's employer that the codefendant or employer would defend on behalf of defendant [see Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 ; Roussey v. Ernest W. Hahn, Inc. (1967) 251 Cal. App. 2d 251, 256, 59 Cal. Rptr. 399]. The statement in § 489.361[4] may be used when the extrinsic mistake consists of the defendant's reliance on his or her attorney and the attorney abandoned the defendant [see People v. One Parcel of Land (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 579, 584, 286 Cal. Rptr. 739].

For discussion of the jurisdiction of courts to grant equitable relief, see § 489.227. For when relief may be obtained by an action in equity, see [g], below.

When relief from a default judgment is based on nonservice of summons (a false return having been filed), the motion for equitable relief may be joined with a motion to quash service of summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(d)], or, if knowledge of the defective or nonservice of summons is discovered before default is entered, by a simple motion to quash service of summons [see Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1)]. For forms of notices of motion to quash service of summons for lack of jurisdiction, as well as a combined notice of motion to quash service of summons and to vacate and set aside a default judgment, and related forms, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances .

For further discussion of requirements for notice of motion for relief from judgment or order generally, including accompanying papers and service, see § 489.360[1].

[c] Determining Whether Grounds for Relief Exist

The starting point in determining whether equitable grounds for relief exist is to determine whether the aggrieved party was deprived of a fair opportunity to fully present his or her case. If so, the second step is to determine why. The third step is to classify the reason; if the reason is because of some act or omission (when a duty to act existed) of the adverse party or that party's attorney, does that act come within any of the broad definitions of extrinsic fraud or mistake. If the reason is because of some act or omission of a third person or the aggrieved party, does the act or omission come within any of the broad definitions of extrinsic mistake, and, if the act or omission was of the aggrieved party did it involve excusable or inexcusable neglect.

If it is determined that the party was deprived of a fair opportunity to fully present his or her case either because of some act or omission of the adverse party or of that party's attorney or because of some act or omission of a third party or of the aggrieved party, and, if of the aggrieved party, that the party was not inexcusably negligent, relief should be granted if the fraud or mistake may properly be classified as extrinsic and the other requirements for equitable relief are met.

[d] Alternative Remedies

If the judgment attacked is a valid judgment and relief is sought within a reasonable time, in no case exceeding six months after the judgment was entered, a motion for relief at law on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (discussed in § 489.30 et seq.), may be available. If both statutory and equitable grounds exist for setting the judgment aside, a single notice of motion combining both statutory and equitable grounds may be made.

If the judgment attacked is a void judgment and relief is sought within the time periods that apply by analogy to attacking such judgments (discussed in § 489.130 et seq.), counsel may move for relief at law directed to the court's inherent power to set aside void judgments or under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d).

[e] Showing Required

The moving party must show that the judgment or order was entered as a result of extrinsic fraud or mistake and that the moving party has been diligent in seeking relief after discovery of the judgment or order. This is normally done by having the moving party, or other person, give an affidavit (see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(a), 2003, 2009) or execute a declaration under penalty of perjury (see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5), illustrated in the form in [a], above, stating the facts within the affiant's or declarant's personal knowledge that establish the ground for relief and the diligence of the moving party.

The moving party must also show that he or she has a meritorious claim or defense, as the case may be (for an exception, see § 489.264[3]). If the motion seeks relief from a default judgment, this may be done by attaching a copy of a proposed verified answer either denying essential allegations of the complaint or setting forth an affirmative defense, or both. In seeking relief from some other judgment or order, the facts showing that the result would probably have been different had the extrinsic fraud or mistake not occurred may be contained in the supporting affidavits or declarations.

[f] Supporting Memorandum

A memorandum of points and authorities must be served and filed with the foregoing notice of motion if the motion is subject to the Civil Law and Motion Rules (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100 et. seq.) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); for motions subject to the Civil Law and Motion Rules, see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103], or if required by local court rule. The better practice is to prepare, serve, and file a memorandum in support of any noticed motion, unless excluded expressly or by implication from the Civil Law and Motion Rules or by local court rule. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[g] Action in Equity

If any probative facts must be established by the affidavit or declaration of a person other than the moving party who is unwilling to give an affidavit or make a declaration, counsel may wish to file a separate action in equity [see § 489.440[1]] rather than use the noticed motion procedure. In a separate action, counsel could subpoena witnesses to testify and take depositions, and may secure ancillary relief by a provisional remedy or otherwise [see, e.g., Hayes v. Risk (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 613, 64 Cal. Rptr. 36].

[b] Use of Form

This form of order is for use when the court grants the motion for equitable relief from a judgment or order.

For a form of formal order that may be adapted for use in lieu of the form in [a], above, when relief is denied and a formal order is required, see § 489.371[1]. For the appealability of the order, see discussions § 489.18[5].

[C] Ruling on Motion for Relief

To set aside a default judgment on a motion based on equitable grounds, three elements must be satisfied [see Stiles v. Wallis (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1143, 1147-1148, 195 Cal. Rptr. 377 (holding that ignorance of the law is not a proper excuse); see also Bailey v. Roberts (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 282, 285, 76 Cal. Rptr. 572]:

- The defaulted party must show that it has a meritorious case (for an exception when relief is granted on the ground that the court never acquired jurisdiction over the person of the defendant, see discussion in § 489.264[3];

- It must articulate a satisfactory excuse for not presenting a defense to the original action; and

- It must demonstrate that it was diligent in seeking to set aside the default once it was discovered.

The rule applies equally when the motion is to vacate an order of dismissal [Aldrich v. San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 738, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300].

[d] Discretion of Trial Court

As in the case of a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (discussed in § 489.30 et seq.), a motion for equitable relief is addressed to the trial court's sound discretion and absent a clear showing of abuse in its exercise will not be disturbed by an appellate court [Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 854, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 ; Aldrich v.

San Fernando Valley Lumber Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 725, 736, 216 Cal. Rptr. 300 ; Crane v. Kampe (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 200, 204-205, 37 Cal. Rptr. 220 ; for discussion, see § 489.21[3], and § 489.38].

[e] Findings

Unless statute or case law requires a specific finding, the general rule is that findings of fact are not required, and, in fact, have no place in the court's ruling on a motion [Waller v. Weston (1899) 125 Cal. 201, 204, 57 P. 892 ; see also Allstate Ins. Co. v. Orlando (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 858, 867, 69 Cal. Rptr. 702 ; Skouland v. Skouland (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 677, 679, 20 Cal. Rptr. 185]. Consequently, the first alternative in the form in [a], above, should be sufficient [see Sullivan v. Sullivan (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 301, 306, 64 Cal. Rptr. 82 (findings are not required to support orders made after motions)]. However, if counsel wishes to include findings, because equitable relief may be granted only when the judgment or order resulted from extrinsic fraud or mistake and the moving party diligently sought relief and has a meritorious claim or defense, the second alternative may be used.

[f] Award of Costs

Whether or not costs incurred in connection with the default judgment are awarded to plaintiff on an equitable motion for relief from a default judgment is within the trial court's discretion [Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 859, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700 (trial court did not abuse discretion in denying costs)].

43-489 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 489.431

§ 489.431 Motion in Equity to Set Aside Judgment or Order Procured by Extrinsic Fraud or Mistake--Supporting Declaration

[1] Default Due to Disability of Party

[a] FORM Motion in Equity to Set Aside Judgment or Order Procured by Extrinsic Fraud or Mistake--Supporting Declaration--Default Due to Disability of Party

[The following may be substituted for the factual statement in Paragraph 2 of the declaration in support of motion for relief in equity provided in § 489.430[1].]

[SET FORTH facts showing that entry of default (and default judgment, if applicable) was due to party's disability, e.g.:]

2. At the time the summons and complaint in this action were served, I _____ [did not understand the nature and purpose of the documents served on me and/or was not familiar with the requirements of the California legal system and/or was unable to arrange to defend the action] because _____ [state facts showing defendant's disability, for example, mental or physical illness or inability to comprehend the English language].

3. By reason of my _____ [disability or inability], I failed to answer or otherwise plead to the complaint and as a result plaintiff obtained entry of the default and default judgment.

[4. Plaintiff at all times was well aware of my inability in that _____ (specify) and concealed such fact(s) from the court.]

[b] Use of Form

The form in [a], above, is an illustration of the type of detailed statement that may be substituted for Paragraph 2 of the declaration in § 489.430[1]. The statement in [a], above, may be used to support a motion for relief from a default or default judgment entered against the defendant as a result of his or her disability. That is, the right to equitable relief from a judgment, based on extrinsic mistake, extends to cases in which the complaining party was disabled at the time the judgment was entered [Humes v. MarGil Ventures, Inc. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 486, 499, 220 Cal. Rptr. 186].

[c] Examples of Party Disability

The disability might consist of any of the following:

- Mental incompetency [Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 570, 577-578, 122 P.2d 564];

- Physical illness of a serious nature [McCreadie v. Arques (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 39, 45, 56 Cal. Rptr. 188];

- Unfamiliarity with the English language or the American legal system [Berri v. Rogero (1914) 168 Cal. 736, 739, 145 P. 95];

- In certain circumstances, imprisonment [Humes v. MarGil Ventures, Inc. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 486, 499, 500, 220 Cal. Rptr. 186]; or

- Deportation to or detention in another country [In re Marriage of Park (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 337, 343, 165 Cal. Rptr. 792, 612 P.2d 882].

[d] Plaintiff's Concealment Is Extrinsic Fraud

If the plaintiff was aware of defendant's inability and concealed that information from the court in order to obtain the default judgment, the ground of defendant's motion would be extrinsic fraud [In re Marriage of Park (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 337, 343, 165 Cal. Rptr. 792, 612 P.2d 882 ; Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal.2d 570, 577-578, 122 P.2d 564]. If the plaintiff lacked that knowledge, the ground of the motion would be extrinsic mistake [see Olivera v. Grace (1942) 19 Cal.2d 570, 577-578, 122 P.2d 564].

For further discussion, see § 489.243.

[e] Related Uses

With appropriate modifications, the statement in [a], above, may be substituted for Paragraph 5 in the complaint for equitable relief set out in § 489.440[1].

[f] Alternative Statutory Relief

If relief is sought within a reasonable time, in no case exceeding six months from the date the default was entered, relief may be sought by motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (discussed in § 489.30 et seq.), on the ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. In that case, the form in [a], above, omitting the optional statement regarding plaintiff's knowledge and concealment from the court, may be adapted for use in to fill in the blank at the end of Paragraph 2 of the declaration in § 489.360[1].

[2] Default Due to Disability of Defendant's Attorney

[a] FORM

for relief in equity provided in § 489.430[1].*]

[SET FORTH facts showing that entry of default (and default judgment, if applicable) was due to disability of defendant's attorney, e.g.:]

2. On _____ [date], I was served with the summons and complaint herein and immediately thereafter, on _____ [date], I obtained the services of _____ [name], an attorney, to represent me in this action.

3. Thereafter, and without my knowledge, the attorney became seriously ill and disabled and was away from, and unable to attend to matters then pending in, his/her office, including the preparation and filing of my answer to the complaint.

4. At all times I reasonably believed that the attorney was properly handling the matter on my behalf and I was unaware of his/her condition until _____ [date], when I _____ [specify manner of discovery including nature and extent of illness and disability and from whom information was obtained].

5. Subsequently, on _____ [date], I secured the services of my present counsel who discovered that my default, as shown by the records of this court, was entered on _____ [date] and the default judgment was entered on _____ [date].

6. By reason of the illness and disability of my attorney and my ignorance of it, plaintiff obtained entry of the default and default judgment against me.

[b] Use of Form

The form in [a], above, is an illustration of the type of detailed statement that may be substituted for Paragraph 2 of the declaration in § 489.430[1]. The statement in [a], above, may be used to support a motion for relief from a default and default judgment entered against the defendant as a result of the sudden illness and disability of his or her counsel. The ground of the motion is the defendant's extrinsic mistake (akin to excusable neglect) in failing to learn of the illness and disability and secure new counsel in time to file an answer to prevent the entry of default.

To be fully prepared at the hearing on the motion, and to avoid any delay that might result from an objection that the foregoing statement contains hearsay, counsel should obtain an additional supporting affidavit ordeclaration from the treating doctor or other individual having personal knowledge of the facts regarding the attorney's death or illness.

[c] Related Use

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing statement may be substituted for Paragraph 5 in the complaint for equitable relief set out in § 489.440[1].

[d] Alternative Statutory Relief

If relief is sought within a reasonable time, in no case exceeding six months after the default was entered, relief may be sought by motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (discussed in § 489.30 et seq.), in which event the ground of the motion would be mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. The form in [a], above, by deleting the last two sentences and substituting a statement of the manner in which the defendant and his or her counsel learned of the entry of the default and judgment, may be adapted for use in the blank space at the end of Paragraph 2 of the declaration in § 489.360[1].

[3] Default Due to Defendant's Reliance on Representations of Adverse Party's Attorney

[a] FORM

[The following may be substituted for the factual statement in Paragraph 2 of the declaration in support of motion for relief in equity provided in § 489.430[1].]

[SET FORTH facts showing that entry of default (and default judgment, if applicable) was due to defendant's reliance on representations of adverse party's attorney, e.g.:]

2. As shown by the return of service herein on file, the summons and complaint were served on the defendant on _____ [date].

3. Thereafter, on _____ [date], the defendant retained me to represent him/her in this action. After discussing the matter with my client, I was of the opinion that the case might be settled.

4. On _____ [date], I phoned plaintiff's attorney, _____ [name], to explore the possibility. In that conversation, _____ [name of plaintiff's attorney] told me that so long as there was a possibility of settlement, I need not file an answer on behalf of my client, and that, should negotiations not prove satisfactory, he/she would give me _____ days written notice to file the answer.

5. Negotiations between me and plaintiff's attorney continued on and off over a period of _____ weeks, and at no time were the negotiations ever expressly terminated by either of us.

6. Notwithstanding the representation of plaintiff's counsel that he/she would give me notice before taking a default, and while negotiations were continuing, plaintiff on _____ [date] had defendant's default entered. At no time did I ever receive from plaintiff's counsel or anyone else notice, written or oral, that the defendant's answer would have to be filed in _____ days or at all.

7. Moreover, no Request to Enter Default was ever served on me, and the copy on file states that the request was mailed to the defendant on _____ [date]. As shown by the accompanying declaration of the defendant, no notice to file an answer and no Request to Enter Default were ever received by him/her.

8. Thereafter, according to the records herein, a default judgment was rendered against defendant on _____ [date].

9. No attempt to enforce the judgment was made at that time. But, as shown by the statement from _____ Bank, a copy of which is attached hereto, on _____ [date], more than six months after the default had been entered, plaintiff attached defendant's bank account. This was the first notice defendant or I had that a default and judgment had been entered].

[b] Use of Form

The form in [a], above, is an illustration of the type of detailed statement that may be substituted for Paragraph 2 of the declaration in § 489.430[1]. The statement in [a], above, may be used to support a motion for relief from a default and default judgment entered against the defendant as a result of the failure of plaintiff's counsel to comply with his or her express representations. The ground of the motion is the extrinsic fraud (negligent or intentional) of plaintiff's counsel or the extrinsic mistake (akin to excusable neglect) of defendant's counsel in relying on the attorney's promise.

[c] Related Use

With appropriate modifications, the foregoing statement may be substituted for Paragraph 5 in the complaint for equitable relief set out in § 489.440[1].

[d] Alternative Statutory Relief

If relief is sought within a reasonable time, in no case exceeding six months after the default was entered, relief may be sought by motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) (discussed in § 489.30 et seq.), in which event the ground of the motion would be mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect. The form in [a], above, by deleting the last two sentences and substituting a statement of the manner in which the defendant and his or her counsel learned of the entry of the default and judgment, may be adapted for use in the blank at the end of Paragraph 2 of the declaration in § 489.360[1].

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and, as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use by a party seeking relief in equity from a prior judgment or order entered against the plaintiff. The grounds of relief are extrinsic fraud or mistake. Alternatively, relief may be sought by a motion on the same grounds in the court in which the judgment or order was entered [see § 489.430[1]]. For discussion of trial court's equitable jurisdiction, see § 489.227. For matters of which a court may take judicial notice and the manner of requesting it to do so, see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453.

For a form of complaint for use when relief is sought from a default judgment on the ground of lack of personal jurisdiction, see § 489.441.

For discussion of when an action as opposed to a motion should be used to set aside a judgment or order, see § 489.266. For discussion of the statute of limitations that apply to the action, see § 489.261.

[3] Venue

An action in equity to set aside the judgment of a court is transitory and, under the general rule that a defendant is entitled to have transitory actions tried in the county of his or her residence (see Code Civ. Proc.§ 395(a)), the proper county for trial is the county in which the defendant or some of the defendants reside at the commencement of the action [Brown v. Happy Valley Fruit Growers (1929) 206 Cal. 515, 523-524, 274 P. 977 (reversing order denying motion to change venue to county in which defendants resided and judgment was entered); Deas v. Lido Lumber Co. (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 402, 404-407, 282 P.2d 90 (explaining apparently contrary dictum in Brown and reversing order denying motion to change venue from county in which judgment was entered to defendant's county of residence)].

[4] Allegations

The complaint identifies the judgment or order from which relief is sought and requests that the court take appropriate judicial notice [see Evid. Code §§ 452(d), 453] (Paragraphs 3, 4). The complaint then alleges [see, e.g., Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 559, 305 P.2d 20 ; Turner v. Allen (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 753, 758-759, 11 Cal. Rptr. 630]:

- The grounds for relief (the fraud or mistake must be specifically pleaded) (Paragraph 5);

- Plaintiff's discovery of the fraud or mistake, which normally starts the running of the statute of limitations [see discussion in § 489.261[1]], and if it was not promptly discovered after entry of the judgment, the reason for failure to discover it earlier, and plaintiff's freedom from fault in the entry of the judgment or order [see Kulchar v. Kulchar (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 467, 470-473, 82 Cal. Rptr. 489, 462 P.2d 17], (Paragraph 6);

- Plaintiff's diligence in seeking relief if there is any delay between the time plaintiff discovered the facts constituting the fraud or mistake and the filing of the present action, anticipating the defense of laches [see discussion in § 489.261[4]] (Paragraph 7);

- That plaintiff has a meritorious claim or defense with respect to the prior judgment [see discussion in § 489.264] (Paragraph 8); and

- The absence of any remedy at law, either because the time for relief by appeal or by motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) or (d) or any other remedy at law, expired before plaintiff was aware of the judgment [see Parsons v. Weis (1904) 144 Cal. 410, 421, 77 P. 1007 ; see also Weitz v. Yankosky (1966) 63 Cal. 2d 849, 855, 48 Cal. Rptr. 620, 409 P.2d 700], or because the plaintiff's earlier motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) or (d) was denied without a full hearing of the issues [see Rose v. Fuqua (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 719, 724, 19 Cal. Rptr. 634] (alternative Paragraphs 9).

Allegations for use in declarations supporting motions for relief are contained §§ 489.430 and 489.431. With appropriate modifications as to parties and grounds relied on, these averments may be used to describe the particular extrinsic fraud or mistake in Paragraph 5 of the form in [1], above.

[5] Prayer

The prayer should request the precise relief sought. Paragraph 1 of the prayer in the form in [1], above, illustrates three possibilities:

- Plaintiff seeks relief from a default and default judgment with leave to answer;

- Plaintiff seeks to have declared null and void a judgment procured by extrinsic fraud or mistake, for example, a judgment quieting the defendant's title to real property owned by plaintiff; and

- Plaintiff seeks to have the defendant declared to be a constructive trustee of property for the plaintiff's benefit, as, for example, when the judgment attacked is one in probate distributing to another property that, but for the extrinsic fraud or mistake, would have been distributed to plaintiff, and the property has been distributed in accordance with the judgment.

Being an action in equity, there is no right to a jury trial [see Holt v. Parmer (1951) 106 Cal. App. 2d 329, 331-332, 235 P.2d 43].

4. [Allege entry of judgment sought to be set aside. See § 489.440[1] , Paragraph 4.]

5. The judgment referred to in Paragraph 4 is void for lack of jurisdiction over the person of the defendant (plaintiff herein), in that _____ [specify why judgment or order is void, e.g., at no time was the plaintiff herein (defendant in the prior action) ever served with a copy of the summons and/or complaint in that action in person, by mail, or in any other manner, and had no notice whatsoever of this proceeding until on or about _____ (date) when execution of that judgment was levied on my account in the _____ Bank, located in _____ (city)].

6. The judgment was entered as the result of the extrinsic fraud or mistake of the defendant (plaintiff in prior action) in that the proof of service filed in the prior action, a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit _____, and made a part hereof, and of which the court is hereby requested to take judicial notice, _____ [specify what proof of service states and state facts showing that it is false].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. That the default and default judgment entered against plaintiff herein in the prior action be _____ [vacated and set aside (and plaintiff be granted leave to file an answer) or declared null and void].

2. For costs of suit herein incurred.

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification. See § 489.440[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use to secure relief from a judgment that is valid on its face but void in fact for lack of jurisdiction over the defendant's person because [see, e.g., In re Marriage of Merideth (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 356, 363, 180 Cal. Rptr. 909 ; Sousa v. Freitas (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 660, 667, 89 Cal. Rptr. 485 ; see also discussion in § 489.134 et seq.]:

- The defendant (plaintiff herein) was never served with a copy of the summons and complaint and the return of service filed was false; or

- The service of the summons or the summons was defective and the defect does not appear from the judgment roll; or

- Defendant (plaintiff herein) is a nonresident and lacks sufficient contacts with California to permit the exercise of judicial jurisdiction over him or her.

The form of complaint in [1], above, is for use either when relief is sought from a court other than the one that rendered the judgment or, if filed in the same court, when an equitable motion, or a motion at law (discussed in [3], below), might not provide adequate relief, or, in the case of a motion at law, is time barred [see discussion in § 489.266].

For further discussion relating to a complaint commencing an independent action in equity, such as venue, and unavailability of jury trial, see § 489.440[1].

[3] Motion at Law

A judgment rendered in an action in which the court did not acquire jurisdiction over the person of the defendant is void [see, e.g., Fazzi v. Peters (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 590, 594, 68 Cal. Rptr. 170, 440 P.2d 242]. A judgment that is not void on its face but is void in fact may be attacked by a motion at law, either under the court's inherent jurisdiction at law or under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(d), codifying that inherent power (see discussion in § 489.10). However, if not sought within a reasonable time, relief at law is time barred and the aggrieved party's only remedy is in equity, either by a motion or by an independent action (see discussion in § 489.142).

[4] Judgment Void on Its Face for Lack of Jurisdiction

A judgment that is void on its face for lack of jurisdiction is subject to an attack at law, not only in the court that rendered it, but anywhere, anytime, directly or collaterally, and there is no need to resort to equityto have it declared void (see §§ 489.137 -489.141). The most expedient method of directly attacking it is by a motion at law in the court that rendered the judgment.

[5] Meritorious Defense

To require the showing of a meritorious defense on a defendant's motion for relief from a default judgment in an action in which the trial court never acquired personal jurisdiction over the defendant, that is, when the judgment is void for lack of personal jurisdiction, violates procedural due process and cannot constitutionally be required [see Peralta v. Heights Medical Center, Inc. (1988) 485 U.S. 80, 84-87, 108 S. Ct. 896, 99 L. Ed. 2d 75]. For further discussion of Peralta, see discussion in § 489.264[3]. California cases that have pointed out that the meritorious defense requirement applies to a judgment that is void in fact, but not on its face, because the summons had not been served or the service was in some manner defective [see, e.g., Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 554, 305 P.2d 20 ; (and cases there cited); see also New York Higher Education Assistance Corp. v. Siegel (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 684, 689, 154 Cal. Rptr. 200 ; Sousa v. Freitas (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 660, 667, 89 Cal. Rptr. 485] do not appear to be viable in light of Peralta.

Chapter 490 RESCISSION AND RESTITUTION
PART I. SCOPE

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.01

§ 490.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the procedural and general aspects of rescission of contract, restitution based on rescission, and defenses to those actions. It contains the following:

- A general form for giving notice of unilateral rescission [see § 490.60].
- Forms of complaints for relief based on rescission [see § 490.61 -490.64].
- Forms of defenses to complaints for rescission [see § 490.65 -490.67].

Rescission as a remedy in particular contexts is considered in this chapter only by way of example. For a listing of chapters that discuss or contain forms relating to rescission of particular contracts or transactions, see the Research Guide under Cross References.

Discussion and forms relating to general contract requirements and factors negating formation of contract or providing grounds for avoidance of contract are discussed in Ch. 140, Contracts , and Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake . Requirements for rescission of contracts for the sale of goods governed by Com. Code § 2101 et seq. are discussed in Ch. 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code .

§ 490.10 Governing Law

Rescission of contract in general is governed by Civ. Code § 1688 et seq. Many statutes provide a right of rescission in particular situations that are beyond the scope of this chapter. For a listing of the more frequently invoked of these statutes, see § 490.40.

Chapter 490 RESCISSION AND RESTITUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.11

§ 490.11 Rescission and Cancellation

One of the difficulties in distinguishing between rescission and cancellation is that the term cancellation has several meanings. One meaning refers to a specific statutory remedy relating to written instruments [see Civ. Code §§ 3412-3414]. A written instrument, in respect to which there is a reasonable apprehension that, if left outstanding it may cause serious injury to a person against whom it is void or voidable, may, on that person's application, be so adjudged and ordered to be delivered up or canceled [Civ. Code § 3412]. In this context, the distinction must be made between rescission of the underlying contract and cancellation of the instrument. After a fraudulently induced real estate transaction, for example, the contract may be rescinded and the deed cancelled [see, e.g., Millar v. James (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 530, 532, 62 Cal. Rptr. 335] . Another aspect of this distinction concerns the requirement of restitution. Both rescission of contracts and cancellation of voidable instruments require restitution, but cancellation of a void instrument, such as a deed of trust one was tricked into signing, does not require restitution [Fleming v. Kagan (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 791, 796-799, 11 Cal. Rptr. 737] . For discussion and forms relating to cancellation of instruments, see Ch. 107, Cancellation of Instruments .

The term cancellation is also used to refer to termination of contracts. In this context, the distinction between rescission and cancellation is that cancellation is prospective [see, e.g., Welles v. Turner Entm't Co. (9th Cir. 2007) 488 F.3d 1178, 1187 (contract was not rescinded but was canceled, with only prospective effect, when parties made subsequent agreement expressing "the mutual desire of the parties to terminate and cancel" their prior contract)], whereas rescission is retroactive. Cancellation terminates further performance under the contract and operates as of the time of cancellation, whereas rescission operates to restore the parties to the status quo ante as of the time the contract was formed [Fireman's Fund American Ins. Co. v. Escobedo (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 610, 619, 145 Cal. Rptr. 785 ; Mamula v. McCulloch (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 184, 197, 79 Cal. Rptr. 571] . After termination or cancellation the parties retain their right to damages for breaches occurring prior to termination [B.L. Metcalf General Contractor, Inc. v. Earl Erne, Inc. (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 689, 694, 28 Cal. Rptr. 382] . In contrast, rescission is an alternative to damagesfor breach and amounts to renunciation and waiver of any claim for damages. Except in the case of a mutual rescission agreement that affirmatively reserves the right, rescission extinguishes the contract so that thereafter, neither party can maintain an action for its breach [Imperial Cas. and Indem. Co. v. Sogomonian (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 169, 184-185, 243 Cal. Rptr. 639 ; Larsen v. Johannes (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 491, 502, 86 Cal. Rptr. 744] . In this context, confusion often results from the the parties' use of the terms rescission, termination, and cancellation without any regard to the legal distinctions [see, e.g., Pico Citizens Bank v. Tafco Inc. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 131, 136, 19 Cal. Rptr. 905] .

[2] Terminology of Parties Not Controlling

The question of whether a contract has been cancelled, rescinded, or abandoned is a mixed question of law and fact. The terminology used is not controlling. Generally, the use of the term rescission does not amount to renunciation of claims for prior damages unless such an intention clearly appears [Pico Citizens Bank v. Tafco Inc. (1962) 201 Cal. App. 2d 131, 136, 19 Cal. Rptr. 905 ("notice of rescission" as actually notice of cancellation pursuant to contract provision); Grant v. The Aerodraulics Co. (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 68, 72-74, 204 P.2d 683 (cancellation only; parties intended that liability for accrued royalties remain)].

[3] Under the Commercial Code

The distinctions between rescission, cancellation, and termination have been codified in Division 2 of the Commercial Code, which governs contracts for the sale of goods. Termination occurs when either party pursuant to a power created by agreement or law puts an end to a contract otherwise than for its breach. On termination, all obligations that are still executory on both sides are discharged, but any right based on prior breach or performance survives [Com. Code § 2106(3)]. Cancellation occurs when either party puts an end to the contract for breach by the other party. On cancellation, all executory obligations are discharged, except that the cancelling party retains any remedy for breach of the whole contract or any unperformed balance [Com. Code § 2106(4)]. Unless the contrary intention clearly appears, the terms cancellation and rescission are not to be construed as a renunciation or discharge of any claim in damages for an antecedent breach [Com. Code § 2720]. Under Division 2, unless otherwise provided by the specific agreeement of the parties, rejection [Com. Code §§ 2601, 2602] or revocation of acceptance of nonconforming goods [Com. Code § 2608], which are akin to rescission, or rescission itself, does not bar and is not inconsistent with, a claim for damages or any other remedy [Com. Code §§ 2703, 2711, 2720, 2721; Seely v. White Motor Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 9, 14, 45 Cal. Rptr. 17, 403 P.2d 145 ; Cal. Code Comment to Com. Code § 2608; see Ch. 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code .].

Chapter 490 RESCISSION AND RESTITUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.12

§ 490.12 Rescission and Abandonment of Contract Distinguished

Abandonment is another term that has several meanings, one of which is implied mutual rescission. Abandonment by one party is likely to be a form of breach of contract [C. Norman Peterson Co. v. Container Corp. of America (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 628, 640-644, 218 Cal. Rptr. 592] . Once one party has abandoned the contract, the other party is not required to tender his or her performance [Sausalito Bay Land Co. v. Sausalito Improv. Co. (1913) 166 Cal. 302, 308, 136 P. 57 ; United California Bank v. Maltzman (1974) 44 Cal. App. 3d 41, 52, 118 Cal. Rptr. 299] . If the other party acquiesces or concurs in the unilateral abandonment, a mutual abandonment amounting to implied mutual rescission results [C. Norman Peterson Co. v. Container Corp. of America (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 628, 640-643, 218 Cal. Rptr. 592 ; see § 490.15[2]].

Whether called mutual abandonment or implied rescission, the conduct of the parties relied on to establish it must be positive, unequivocal, and inconsistent with the contract [Pennel v. Pond Union School Dist. (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 832, 838, 105 Cal. Rptr. 817 ; see § 490.15[2]]. Mutual abandonment is a question of intent to be determined from the facts and circumstances surrounding the transaction and out of which the abandonment is claimed to have resulted. It may be implied from the acts of the parties, often from their negotiating a new and different contract concerning the same subject matter [Busch v. Globe Industries (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 315, 320, 19 Cal. Rptr. 441 ; Honda v. Reed (1958) 156 Cal. App. 2d 536, 539, 319 P.2d 728] .

Like cancellation or termination, mutual abandonment has been described as abrogating so much of the contract as remains unperformed [Honda v. Reed (1958) 319 P.2d728 ; Grant v. Aerodraulics Co. (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 68, 75, 204 P.2d 683] . However, it is not always clear whether the parties intended to reserve any rights after abandonment [see Busch v. Globe Industries (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 315, 320, 19 Cal. Rptr. 441 (noting there was no evidence of any such intention); Kane v. Sklar (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 480, 481-483, 265 P.2d 29 (employment contract for salary and share of profits mutually abandoned; employee awarded accrued unpaid salary to date of abandonment but held to have no right to share of profits)]. Sometimes, often in the context of a construction contract, after abandoning the original contract the parties continue with the project on a quantum meruit basis [see C. Norman Peterson Co. v. Container Corp. of America (1985) 172 Cal. App. 3d 628, 644-646, 218 Cal. Rptr. 592 (maximum price contract abandoned by owner's excessive design changes; contractor entitled to recover for work on quantum meruit basis); Daugherty Co. v. Kimberly-Clark Corp. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 151, 156-159, 92 Cal. Rptr. 120 (same)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.13

§ 490.13 Determining Whether Contract Was Formed or Is Void or Voidable

Whether a contract in fact exists, and if so, whether it is void, or merely voidable, will determine the remedies available. If a contract is voidable, usually notice of rescission and an offer to restore will be necessary to recover what one has parted with [see Civ. Code § 1689(b)(5),(6) (illegality as grounds for rescission) (see § 490.16[3][c]); Civ. Code § 1691 (offer to restore), (see § 490.21)]. If the contract is void, it may be disregarded without necessity of rescission, and one can proceed on other theories [Ford v. Shearson Lehman American Express, Inc. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1011, 1015, 1028, 225 Cal. Rptr. 895 (contract described as void for lack of voluntary assent; negligence, conversion, breach of fiduciary duty, conspiracy to commit fraud); for discussion of voidable contracts and contracts that are void based on lack of assent or illegality, see Ch. 140, Contracts]. If there is no contract and plaintiff has not suffered any tort damages, for instance when plaintiff's loss amounts only to that with which he or she has parted, the equitable theory of restitution allows recovery under an implied-in-law contract [Ward v. Taggart (1959) 51 Cal. 2d 736, 741-743, 336 P.2d 534 ; Desny v. Wilder (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 715, 734-740, 744, 750, 299 P.2d 257 ; see § 490.27].

In determining whether or not a contract was ever formed, a distinction is made between consent that is not free because it was obtained by duress, menace, fraud, undue influence, or mistake [Civ. Code §§ 1565, 1567] and consent that is not mutual because the parties did not agree on the same thing in the same sense. If the consent is not free, the contract is not absolutely void, but may be rescinded by the parties [Civ. Code § 1566]. If consent is not mutual, no contract is formed [Chakmak v. H. J. Lucas Masonry, Inc. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 124, 129, 127 Cal. Rptr. 404 (newspaper printed wrong name of contractor for construction of student health center when centers were being bid for Fresno and Hayward campuses; subcontractor's bid intended to be submitted to Hayward contractor was submitted to and accepted by Fresno contractor); German Sav. and Loan Soc. v. McLellan (1908) 154 Cal. 710, 716, 99 P. 194 ; Carlson, Collins, Gordon & Bold v. Banducci (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 212, 222, 64 Cal. Rptr. 915] .

In the context of mistake, when an offer is made on terms that the offeree misunderstands, and the offeree accepts it in terms that the offeror understands as an assent to the offer that he or she meant to make, each party is mistaken about the meaning of the other and no contract exists unless one of the parties so negligently expressed himself or herself that the other was caused to reasonably believe that agreement existed [Chakmak v. H. J. Lucas Masonry, Inc. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 124, 129, 127 Cal. Rptr. 404] . In the context of fraud, when the promisor knows what he or she is signing, but the signature is induced by fraud, a voidable contract is formed and notice of rescission and an offer to restore are necessary. However, when the fraud goes to the inception or execution so that the promisor is deceived as to nature of the act and does not know what he or she is signing or did not intend to enter a contract, mutual assent is lacking, no contract is formed, and rescission is not necessary [Ford v. Shearson Lehman American Express, Inc. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1011, 1028, 225 Cal. Rptr. 895] . Defenses to formation of contract based on lack of free and mutual assent are discussed in Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake .

Chapter 490 RESCISSION AND RESTITUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.14

§ 490.14 Contract Provision for Unilateral Termination

A contract provision purporting to give one party the unconditional and unilateral right to terminate the contract at his or her pleasure will cause the entire contract to be unenforceable for lack of mutuality of obligation and want of consideration [Kowal v. Day (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 720, 723-725, 98 Cal. Rptr. 118] . The validity of such a provision, and thus the entire contract, is saved if the option is exerciseable only within a certain time or on specified conditions, such as on notice or for cause. Courts do not favor arbitrary termination clauses and tend to interpret even a slight restriction on the exercise of the right as constituting a legal detriment to satisfy the requirement of sufficient consideration [R. J. Cardinal Co. v. Ritchie (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 124, 143-144, 32 Cal. Rptr. 545] . Nevertheless, a clause in a contract other than one between employer and employee, which gives one party the right to terminate without cause on notice, is valid and allows that party to terminate on account of the other party's refusal to participate in or condone practices that are contrary to public policy [Abrahamson v. NME Hospitals, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1325, 1328-1330, 241 Cal. Rptr. 396] .

A contract that would otherwise fail because of a provision giving one party the unconditional and unilateral right to terminate the contract is saved if at least one party has partially performed [The Money Store v. Southern California Bank (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 722, 728-729, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 58 (lender's performance-providing loan money necessary to complete sale- cured any illusory aspect of agreement); Kowal v. Day (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 720, 725-728, 98 Cal Rptr 118 (part performance by party who had right to rescind as creating irrevocable option); Burgermeister Brewing Corp. v. Bowman (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 274, 280, 38 Cal. Rptr. 597 (performance by both parties)].

When a provision allowing one party to unilaterally terminate the contract is valid, unless the contract specifies otherwise, termination of the contract by exercise of the right discharges all liability for further transactions, but obligations that have accrued prior to termination remain enforceable [Merrill v. Continental Assurance Co. (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 663, 670, 19 Cal. Rptr. 432] . This is to be distinguished from the ordinarysituation in which there is no termination provision in the contract, but one party unilaterally rescinds for cause. Then, although no liability remains for obligations or breaches that accrued prior to rescission, the compensation and adjustments provided for by Civ. Code § 1692 (see § 490.23) should be taken into account [see, e.g., Runyan v. Pacific Air Industries, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 304, 308 n. 3, 318-319, 85 Cal. Rptr. 138, 466 P.2d 682 ; see § 490.23[2][b]].

For discussion of unilateral termination, Ch. 140, Contracts .

Chapter 490 RESCISSION AND RESTITUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.15

§ 490.15 Rescission by Mutual Agreement

[1] Requirements

A contract may be rescinded if all the parties to the contract consent [Civ. Code § 1689(a)]. The formalities required for mutual rescission of a contract are the same as those required for formation of a contract--namely a meeting of the minds evidenced by an offer, acceptance, and consideration [Harriman v. Tetik (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 805, 810, 17 Cal. Rptr. 134, 366 P.2d 486 ; Tuso v. Green (1924) 194 Cal. 574, 582, 229 P. 327] . The mutual promises to waive all rights under the contract being rescinded constitute consideration for the rescission [Schertzinger v. Williams (1961) 198 Cal. App. 2d 242, 246, 17 Cal. Rptr. 719 ; Sass v. Hank (1952) 108 Cal. App. 2d 207, 215, 238 P.2d 652] . An offer of rescission can be withdrawn at any time before it is accepted [Sanders Construction Co. v. San Joaquin First Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 387, 397, 186 Cal. Rptr. 218] . Mutual rescission is sometimes referred to as mutual abandonment [see, e.g., Evans v. Rancho Royale Hotel Co. (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 503, 508, 250 P.2d 283 ; for discussion of mutual abandonment, see § 490.12].

[2] Implied Mutual Rescission

A mutual rescission need not be express, but the intent to mutually rescind may be implied from the conduct of the parties [Unger v. Isaacs (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 533, 535, 266 P.2d 869 ; see § 490.12]. The intent of the parties may be determined from the facts and circumstances surrounding the transaction and out of which the mutual abandonment or rescission is claimed to have resulted. It may be implied from the acts of the parties, often from their negotiating a new and different contract concerning the same subject matter [Busch v. Globe Industries (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 315, 320, 19 Cal. Rptr. 441 ; Honda v. Reed (1958) 156 Cal. App. 2d 536, 539, 319 P.2d 728] . The conduct of the parties relied on to establish mutual rescission must be positive, unequivocal, and inconsistent with the continued assertion of rights under the contract. For example, conduct equally consistent with illness, as claimed by one party, will not establish an intent to rescind or abandon the contract [Pennel v. PondUnion School Dist. (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 832, 838, 105 Cal. Rptr. 817 ; Ross v. Tabor (1921) 53 Cal. App. 605, 615, 200 P. 971] . Commencement of a quiet title action can constitute both a repudiation and an offer of rescission. A cross complaint in that action for reasonable value of services performed amounts to an acceptance [Mayo v. Pacific Project Consultants, Inc. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1018, 82 Cal. Rptr. 117] .

[3] Oral Rescission of Written Agreement

Unless the contract being rescinded is one for the sale of goods governed by Com. Code §§ 2101-2801, and provides that it can only be rescinded in writing, an oral agreement to rescind is sufficient [Sass v. Hank (1951) 108 Cal. App. 2d 207, 215, 238 P.2d 652 ; Com. Code § 2209(2); but see Com. Code § 2209(4) (oral rescission agreement may operate as waiver)]. An oral agreement for rescission of a written contract is sufficient even when the underlying contract is within the statute of frauds [Hastings v. Matlock (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 826, 837, 217 Cal. Rptr. 856] . An oral agreement for mutual rescission may be specifically enforced [see Hastings v. Matlock (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 826, 840-842, 217 Cal. Rptr. 856 : for a complaint for specific performance, see Ch. 528, Specific Performance].

Chapter 490 RESCISSION AND RESTITUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.16

§ 490.16 Unilateral Rescission for Cause

[1] Grounds

The grounds for rescission are set forth in Civ. Code § 1689, discussed below.

[2] Failure of Consent

A contract requires that the consent of the parties be free, mutual, and communicated by each to the other [Civ. Code § 1565]. Consent that is not free is nevertheless not absolutely void, but provides a basis for rescission [Civ. Code §§ 1566, 1689(b)(7)]. Thus, a party to a contract may rescind the contract if his or her consent, or that of any party jointly contracting with him or her, was given by mistake, or obtained through duress, menace, fraud, or undue influence, exercised by or with the connivance of the party as to whom he or she rescinds, or of any party jointly interested with that party [Civ. Code § 1689(b)(1); see, e.g., Harris v. Rudin, Richman & Appel (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1332, 1339, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 552 (reversing summary judgment for plaintiff because defendants raised triable issues of fact as to whether they were entitled to rescind settlement agreement based on mutual mistake of fact or law)]. Acts and omissions constituting duress, menace, fraud, undue influence, and mistake that vitiate consent are defined by Civ. Code §§ 1567-1584, and are discussed in Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake . Forms for allegations regarding the various bases for failureof consent are contained in that chapter, and may be used in conjunction with § 490.61 of this chapter.

[3] Failure of Consideration

[a] In General

A party to a contract may rescind the contract if the consideration for his or her obligation:

- Fails, in whole or in part, through the fault of the party against whom he or she rescinds [Civ. Code § 1689(b)(2)];

- Becomes entirely void from any cause [Civ. Code § 1689(b)(3)]; or

- Before it is rendered to him or her, fails in a material respect from any cause [Civ. Code § 1689(b)(4)].

Partial failure of consideration under Civ. Code § 1689(b)(2) must be material in order to provide the basis for rescission [Wyler v. Feuer (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 392, 403-404, 149 Cal. Rptr. 626 ; Crofoot Lumber, Inc. v. Thompson (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 324, 332-333, 329 P.2d 302] . Breach by nonperformance without repudiation supports rescission only if it is so material that it goes to the essence of the contract. It must be a breach that would discharge the rescinding party from any further obligations on his or her part. Failure of consideration is material if it will render it impossible for the rescinding party to perform or will frus trate the whole purpose of the contract. Failure of consideration is immaterial if it is only of minor importance, does not go to the root of the matter, and can be readily compensated for by damages [Fountain v. Semi-Tropic L. & W. Co. (1893) 99 Cal. 677, 680-681, 34 P. 497 ; Crofoot Lumber, Inc. v. Thompson (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 324, 332-333, 329 P.2d 302] . A willful default may be a material failure even though no economic loss ensues [Coleman v. Mora (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 137, 150, 69 Cal. Rptr. 166 ; Wilson v. Corrugated Kraft Containers (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 691, 697, 256 P.2d 1012] . Breach of a requirements contract by purchasing from outside sources is an example of such a willful, material breach that is not vitiated by the ability of the injured party to sell the excess elsewhere [Wilson v. Corrugated Kraft Containers (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 691, 696-697, 256 P.2d 1012] .

The party against whom the contract is rescinded need not have been the cause of the failure of consideration contemplated by Civ. Code § 1689(b)(4) in order for rescission to be available. Failure of consideration from any cause includes failure of consideration on account of acts of third parties. Even though a defendant in such a situation is totally without fault, he or she will still have to return any consideration received from the plaintiff [Nelson v. Sperling (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 194, 195, 76 Cal. Rptr. 481 (manufacturer failed to deliver home defendant sold to plaintiff)].

If a party gets all the consideration he or she bargained for, the fact that it proves worthless or of little value because of an unexpected occurrence, does not constitute a failure of consideration or ground for rescission [Fox v. Ehrmantraut (1980) 28 Cal. 3d 127, 137, 167 Cal. Rptr. 595, 615 P.2d 1383 ; Schultz v. County of Contra Costa (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 242, 247-248, 203 Cal. Rptr. 760 (conveyance of undevelopable property); Konecko v. Konecko (1958) 164 Cal. App. 2d 249, 253, 330 P.2d 393 (death of wife as not ground for rescission of property settlement agreement)].

For a form of complaint for relief based on rescission on the ground of failure of consideration, see § 490.62. For further discussion of failure of consideration, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

[b] Failure to Pay Money

Failure to pay money is often a breach that will not justify rescission, especially failure to make installment payments, be cause it is a breach that can be compensated by damages [see Walker v. Harbor Business Blocks Co. (1919) 181 Cal. 773, 780, 186 P. 356 ; Murphy v. Sheftel (1932) 121 Cal. App. 533, 540, 9 P.2d 568] . For failure to pay to justify rescission, it must amount to a breach that is material enough to discharge the injured party from further performance. Thus, failure of a producer to pay an actor the weekly salary stipulated by their contract was material enough to give the actor the election to terminate the contract under Lab. Code § 2925, as well as to recover accrued salary to the date he elected to declare the termination [Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. v. Bumgarner (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 331, 350, 17 Cal. Rptr. 171 (willful failure and refusal)]. Similarly, failure of an owner to make progress payments under a contruction contract is material enough to warrant rescission if it involves an extended or unreasonable delay, imposition of new and onerous conditions to payment, outright refusal, or total repudiation [Porter v. Arrowhead Reservoir Co. (1893) 100 Cal. 500, 504, 35 P. 146 ; Integrated, Inc. v. Alec Fergusson Electrical Contractor (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 287, 296-297, 58 Cal. Rptr. 503] . In construction contracts, a material failure to make progress payments, in addition to entitling the contractor to rescind, entitles the contractor to recovery in quantum meruit for the reasonable value of services performed to the date of rescission [Porter v. Arrowhead Reservoir Co. (1893) 100 Cal.

500, 502, 35 P. 146 ; Integrated, Inc. v. Alec Fergusson Electrical Contractor (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 287, 296, 58 Cal. Rptr. 503] .

[i] Delay in Performance

Delay in performance is another failure of consideration that is often not material. Unless the contract declares time to be of the essence, performance within a reasonable time is sufficient and rescission cannot be granted for a slight delay. What is a reasonable time in any given situation is a question of fact [Civ. Code § 1657; Baypoint Mortgage Corp. v. Crest Premium Real Estate etc. Trust (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 818, 825-826 al. Rptr. 531; Palmquist v. Palmquist (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 322, 330-331, 27 Cal. Rptr. 744 (dismissal of action 11 days after settlement agreement as reasonable); but see Fowler v. Ross (1982) 142 Cal. App. 3d 472, 478-478, 191 Cal. Rptr. 183 (no time of the essence clause; rescission upheld on notice given 52 days after date specified for verification of financing)]. Even if the time-essence provision gives a unilateral right of terminiation for failure to perform on time, if the parties by their conduct have waived it, the party seeking to rescind must first make demand for performance, notify the other party that the time provision is being reinstated, and allow a reasonable time after demand for performance [Major-Blakeney Corp. v. Jenkins (1953) 121 Cal. App. 2d 325, 335-337, 263 P.2d 655 (termination pursuant to time-essence provision giving unilateral right of cancellation held proper after demand on June 29, when performance was seven weeks overdue, for performance by July 5)]. Even when time is declared to be of the essence, a slight delay will not support rescission if rescission would work a forfeiture, the default is not willful, grossly negligent, or a fraudulent breach of duty, and the injured party can be compensated by money [Civ. Code § 3275 (relief from forfeiture); Holiday Inns of America v. Knight (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 327, 329, 74 Cal. Rptr. 722, 450 P.2d 42 ; Williams Plumbing Co. v. Sinsley (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 1027, 1031-1035, 126 Cal. Rptr. 345] .

For further discussion of the time for performance, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

[ii] Impossibility or Commercial Frustration

The doctrine of commercial frustration is a species of failure of consideration, akin to the doctrine of impossibility. It operates when a not reasonably foreseeable supervening event totally or nearly totally destroys the value of counterperformance in a contract or lease [Lloyd v. Murphy (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 48, 53-54, 153 P.2d 47 ; Federal Leasing Consultants, Inc. v. Mitchell Lipsett Co. (1978) 150 Cal. Rptr. 82 (leased burglar alarm system forced to be rendered inoperable by federal injunction)]. For a form of complaint for relief based on rescission on the ground of failure of consideration, see § 490.62. For discussion of impossibility and commercial frustation, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

[c] Contract Unlawful or Prejudicial to Public Interest

The ordinary rule is that a party to an illegal contract can neither recover damages for its breach nor, by rescinding the contract, recover the performance he or she rendered under the contract or its value [Tiedje v. Aluminum Taper Milling Co. (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 450, 453-454, 296 P.2d 554 ; Fong v. Miller (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 411, 413, 233 P.2d 606 ; Rest Contracts 2d § 197; for forms of affirmative defense based on illegality and conflict with public policy, see Ch. 140, Contracts]. This rule is, however, subject to many exceptions.

A contract contrary to public policy is not always void, nor is it universally true that it cannot be subject to rescission [People ex rel Mosk v. Barenfeld (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 166, 181, 21 Cal. Rptr. 501] . The extent of enforceability and the kind of remedy granted depend on factors including the particular policy of law transgressed, the kind of illegality and particular facts, whether the party claiming illegality would be unjustly enriched if the other party were denied recovery, and whether any forfeiture resulting from refusal to permit recovery would be harsh in proportion to the character and extent of the illegality. Relief may also involve restitution of money to either party under the contract or enforcement of an election to rescind by the party to be protected if he or she restores whatever he or she received under the contract. Generally, all the consequences that attend a contract that is malum in se or contrary to public morals do not attend one that is only malum prohibitum [Asdourian v. Araj (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 276, 291-294, 211 Cal. Rptr. 703, 696 P.2d 95 (allowing recovery to contractor under oral contract for home improvement despite statutory requirement that contract be in writing); South Tahoe Gas Co. v. Hofmann Land Improvement Co. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 750, 758-761, 102 Cal. Rptr. 286 (allowing recovery at reasonable rate under utility contract written at illegal rate); for further discussion, see Ch. 140, Contracts].

A party to a contract may rescind the contract (1) if the contract is unlawful for causes which do not appear in its terms or conditions, and the parties are not equally at fault [Civ. Code § 1689(b)(5)] or (2) if the public interest would be prejudiced by permitting the contract to stand [Civ. Code § 1689(b)(6)]. A contract is unlawful if its consideration or object is (1) contrary to an express provision of law, (2) contrary to the policy of express law, though not expressly prohibited, or (3) otherwise contrary to good morals [Civ. Code § 1667]. Whether a contract is illegal or contrary to public policy is a question of law to be determined from the circumstances of each particular case [Jackson v. Rogers & Wells (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 336, 349-350, 258 Cal. Rptr. 454 ; Kallen v. Delug (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 940, 951, 203 Cal. Rptr. 879 ; Russell v. Soldinger (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 633, 642, 131 Cal. Rptr. 145] . Although the cases rarely mention Civ. Code § 1689(b)(5),(6), two rules relating to rescission and restitution reflect application of the rules set forth in Civ. Code § 1689(b)(5),(6). Under one rule, similar to Civ. Code § 1689(b)(5), rescission is granted merely because the parties are not equally at fault (in pari delicto) [Tiedje v. Aluminum Taper Milling Co. (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 450, 454-455, 296 P.2d 554 ; Smith v. Turner (1965) 238 Cal. App. 2d 141, 145-151, 47 Cal. Rptr. 582 (rescission and restitution of money paid for shares under unlawful preincorporation agreement); Restatement (2d) of Contracts, § 198]. Sometimes when this exception is applied, the additional factor of whether or not the contract is executed is taken into consideration. Rescission is allowed under this rationale when the contract is not fully executed and the party rescinding is less at fault. In such a case, it is considered the duty of the court in furtherance of justice to aid one not in pari delicto, though to someextent involved in the illegality, and to permit him or her to recover money paid on a contract as the circumstances of the case may require [Murphy v. San Gabriel Mfg. Co. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 365, 368-369, 222 P.2d 85 (seller rescinded sale of real property in violation of Bus. & Prof. Code § 11012)].Whether or not the parties are equally at fault is a question of fact. While even the innocent party is chargeable with knowledge of the law, if he or she has no duty to perform under the applicable law, he or she may assume the other party complied with the law [Tiedje v. Aluminum Taper Milling Co. (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 450, 454-455, 296 P.2d 554] .

A second exception provides that even when the parties are equally at fault, there is a period of time referred to as the locus penitentiae prior to performance or the accomplishment of the illegal object, during which either party may repent and have rescission [Wassermann v. Sloss (1897) 117 Cal. 425, 428, 49 P. 566 ; Glos v. McBride (1920) 47 Cal. App. 688, 690-691, 191 P. 67 (but restitution not allowed for value during portion of lease term prior to renunciation); Restatement (2d) of Contracts, § 199].

Another ground for rescission and restitution not addressed by Civ. Code § 1689(b) allows recovery when the parties were ignorant of the illegality at the time they entered into the contract [Adams v. Heinsch (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 300, 302-305, 200 P.2d 796 (also on ground of mistake); Brashears v. Giannini (1933) 131 Cal. App. 706, 709-711, 22 P.2d 47 ; Restatement (2d) of Contracts, § 198].

For a form of complaint for relief after rescission based on these grounds, see § 490.64.

[d] Rescission of Participation in Chain Scheme

A participant in an endless chain scheme, as defined in Penal Code § 327, may rescind the contract on which the scheme is based, and may recover all consideration he or she paid pursuant to the scheme, less any amounts paid or consideration provided to him or her pursuant to the scheme [Civ. Code § 1689.2]. In such an action, the court may, on motion, award reasonable attorney's fees to a prevailing plaintiff [Civ. Code § 1689.2]. § 490.64 may be used with appropriate modifications to obtain relief after rescission based on these grounds.

[e] Contract Made Before Adjudication of Incompetency

A contract of a person who is of unsound mind but not totally without understanding, made before his or her incapacity has been judicially determined, may be rescinded [Civ. Code §§ 39(a), 1689(b)(7)]. It is not necessary that one be incompetent to enter any kind of contract; the test is whether or not the person could deal with the subject matter of the contract sought to be rescinded with a full understanding of his or her rights and the nature, purpose, and effect of what he or she did with respect to the particular transaction [Walton v. Bank of California (1963) 218 Cal. App.2d 527, 541, 32 Cal. Rptr. 856 ; Smalley v. Baker (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 824, 832, 69 Cal. Rptr. 521] . Thus, the test of understanding varies from one contract to the next [Smalley v. Baker (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 824, 832, 69 Cal. Rptr. 521] . However, for purposes of rescission, there exists a rebuttable presumption affecting the burden of proof that a person is of unsound mind if the person is substantially unable to manage his or her own financial resources or resist fraud or undue influence [Civ. Code § 39(b)]. Substantial inability may not be proved solely by isolated incidents of negligence or imprudence [Civ. Code § 39(b)]. For further discussion and a form of affirmative defense based on Civ. Code § 39, see Ch. 140, Contracts . For a form of complaint for relief based on rescission on this ground, see § 490.63.

[f] Creditor's Right to Rescind Novation

When a creditor has accepted the obligation of a third person, or an order on that person in satisfaction, the creditor may rescind the acceptance if the debtor prevents the third person from complying with the order or from fulfulling the obligation; or if, at the time the obligation or order is received, the third person is insolvent, and the fact of insolvency is unknown to the creditor, or if, before the creditor can with reasonable diligence present the order to the person on whom it is given, the third person becomes insolvent [Civ. Code §§ 1533, 1689(b)(7)]. This is an exception to the general rule that a novation extinguishes the original obligation, whether or not the obligation of the novation is performed [see Alexander v. Angel (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 856, 862, 236 P.2d 561 (failure to perform novation did not revive original agreement)].

A party to a contract may rescind the contract if the other party repudiates the contract with respect to a performance not yet due, the loss of which will substantially impair the value of the contract to the rescinding party [see Civ. Code § 1689(b)(7), referring to former Civ. Code § 1785 (repealed; now see Com. Code § 2610) as a ground for rescission]. The refusal of one party to perform an obligation that is a condition precedent or concurrent will not justify rescission if it is of minor importance or does not go to the root of the matter. A party injured by a refusal of minor importance cannot rescind, but must perform his or her obligations under the contract and seek compensation in damages [Fountain v. Semi-Tropic L. & W. Co. (1893) 99 Cal. 677, 680, 34 P. 497 ; see also § 490.62 and § 490.62[10]]. Repudiation gives the injured party the election to treat the contract as rescinded and to recover on a quantum meruit basis the value of any services rendered as partial performance [Oliver v. Campbell (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 298, 302, 273 P.2d 15] .

A notice of rescission given without legal cause amounts to a repudiation [Mayo v. Pacific Project Consultants, Inc. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1013,1017-1018, 82 Cal. Rptr. 117] . Likewise, if one is bound to perform, conditioning an offer to perform on an unwarranted condition constitutes a repudiation [Woody v. Bennett (1891) 88 Cal. 241, 243-244, 26 P. 117 ; Loop Bldg. Co. v. DeCoo (1929) 97 Cal. App. 354, 364, 275 P. 881] . An obligor's statement to the obligee indicating that the obligor would breach an important contractual promise, thereby substantially impairing the value of the contract, constitutes repudiation of the contract [Mobil Oil Exploration & Producing Southeast, Inc. v. United States (2000) 530 U.S. 604, 120 S. Ct. 2423, 147 L.Ed. 2d 528, 534 (holding that plaintiffs were entitled to restitution whether or not repudiated contracts would have ultimately produced financial gain); see Restatement (Second) of Contracts § 373].

[h] Bailments

When a thing is let for a particular purpose and the hirer uses it for any other purpose, the hirer is liable to the letter for all damages resulting from the unauthorized use, or the letter may treat the contract as rescinded [Civ. Code §§ 1689(b)(7), 1930]. This type of bailment is discussed in Ch. 93, Bailments, § 93.60 et seq.

[i] Principal's Rescission of Ratification

A principal may rescind a ratification made without such consent as is required for a contract, or with an imperfect knowledge of the material facts of the transaction ratified, but not otherwise [Civ. Code §§ 1689(b)(7), 2314; see Civ. Code §§ 1565-1590 (consent to contract); see generally Ch. 427, Principal and Agent]. However, Civ. Code § 2314 does not grant the right of rescission to a principal who has deliberately remained ignorant of certain material facts regarding the transaction ratified [Hutchinson Co. v. Gould (1919) 180 Cal. 356, 358, 181 P. 651] .

[j] Insurance Contracts

Civ. Code § 1689(b)(7) specifically incorporates the right of rescission granted by the following sections of the Insurance Code [Civ. Code § 1689(b)(7)]:

- Any party injured by a concealment, whether intentional or unintentional, is entitled to rescind insurance [Ins. Code § 331, discussed in Ch. 308, Insurance ,];

- An intentional and fraudulent omission, on the part of an insured, to communicate information of matters proving or tending to prove the falsity of a warranty, entitles the insurer to rescind [Ins. Code § 338, discussed in Ch. 308, Insurance ,];

- Any party injured by a representation that is false in a material point, whether affirmative or promissory, is entitled to rescind the insurance contract from the time the representation becomes false [Ins. Code § 359, discussed in Ch. 308, Insurance ,];

- The violation of a material warranty or other material provision of a policy, on the part of either party thereto, entitles the other party to rescind [Ins. Code § 447, discussed in Ch. 308, Insurance ,];

- In marine insurance, if a representation by the insured is intentionally false in any respect, whether material or immaterial, the insurer may rescind the entire contract [Ins. Code § 1904; for discussion of marine insurance generally, see Ch. 308, Insurance ; see also California Insurance Law & Practice, Ch. 44, Marine Insurance, § 44.06[2] (Matthew Bender)];

- An insurer is entitled to rescind a contract of fire insurance on an alteration in the use or condition of the subject matter insured from that to which it is limited by the policy when the alteration is made without the consent of the insurer by means within the control of the insured, and increases the risk [Ins. Code § 2030; see also California Insurance Law & Practice, Ch. 35, Property Insurance In General, § 35.12 (Matthew Bender)].

For a general form of affirmative defense based on rescission of an insurance contract, see Ch. 308, Insurance, § 308.10 et seq. For more detailed coverage of rescission in the context of insurance policies, see California Insurance Law & Practice, Ch. 8, The Insurance Contract, §§ 8.08, 8.09, 8.10[1] (Matthew Bender).

[k] Contracts for Sale of Goods

[i] Applicable Law

Since 1931, Civ. Code § 1689 has provided that a party to a contract may rescind it under the circumstances provided for in former Civ. Code § 1785 and Civ. Code § 1789 [see Stats. 1931, ch. 1070, § 10, p 2260]. Former Civ. Code § 1789 gave a buyer of goods the election to rescind in the event of the seller's breach of warranty [former Civ. Code § 1789(1)(d)]. Former Civ. Code § 1785 gave a seller of goods the right to rescind when the goods had not been delivered and the buyer had repudiated the contract, manifested an inability to perform, or committed a material breach [former Civ. Code § 1785]. Both of those sections were repealed in 1963 and replaced by the California Commercial Code [see Stats. 1963, ch. 819].

Under the Commercial Code, the remedies of Com. Code §§ 2101-2801 will be available if the transaction involves "goods" as defined in Com. Code § 2105(1), which are all things (including specially manufactured goods) that are movable at the time of identification to the contract for sale other than the money in which the price is to be paid, investment securities [see Com. Code §§ 8101-8603], and things in action. Goods also includes theunborn young of animals and growing crops and other identified things attached to realty as described in Com. Code § 2107 [Com. Code § 2105(1)]. Unless the context otherwise requires, Division 2 applies to transactions in goods; those sections do not apply to any transaction which, although in the form of an unconditional contract to sell or a present sale, is intended to operate only as a security transaction.

Division 2 does not "impair or repeal" any statute regulating sales to consumers, farmers, or other specified classes of buyers [Com. Code § 2102]. This language in Com. Code § 2102 does not actually exclude particular transactions from the coverage of Division 2. Thus, for example, the sale of an automobile from one dealer to another and the sale of that vehicle by the "buyer" dealer to a consumer are both subject to Division 2, although certain sections of the Vehicle Code and the Rees-Levering Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.) also apply to the transactions [English v. Ralph Williams Ford (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 1038, 1046, 95 Cal. Rptr. 501] .

[ii] Commercial Code Rights and Remedies

In place of the right to rescind for breach of warranty, the Commercial Code established the right of revocation of acceptance of nonconforming goods if the nonconformance substantially impairs the value to the buyer [Com. Code § 2608]. Under Com. Code § 2608, the buyer need not elect between "revocation of acceptance" and damages, but may have both [Seely v. White Motor Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 9, 14, 45 Cal. Rptr. 17, 403 P.2d 145 ; see Cal. Code Comment to Com. Code § 2608; see also Com. Code §§ 2601-2607 (buyer's rights and duties regarding rejection of delivered goods prior to acceptance; definition and effect of acceptance)].

The rights of either party in the event of a repudiation with respect to a performance not yet due are governed by Com. Code § 2610, which allows resort to any remedy for breach [see also Com. Code §§ 2703-2710 (seller's remedies); Com. Code §§ 2711-2717 (buyer's remedies)]. The specific manifestation of inability to perform created by the buyer's insolvency is governed by Com. Code § 2702. Rights of the buyer in the event of the seller's insolvency are governed by Com. Code § 2502.

Under the Commerical Code, specific types of material breach or failure of consideration require that specific steps be taken by the injured party. For example, a buyer who rejects nonconforming goods on inspection before acceptance is required to follow the seller's instructions regarding those goods or to resell them [Com. Code § 2603]. The remedies provided are equally specific and generally include consequential damages [see, e.g., Com. Code §§ 2711-2717 (buyer's remedies)]. In most instances, however, unlike the Civil Code rescission provisions applicable to other contracts, the Commercial Code remedies are cumulative and allow the equivalent of rescission, albeit sometimes under other names, as well as recovery of damages [see Com. Code § 2721 (rescission as not barring, nor as inconsistent with, other remedies for fraud); Seely v. White Motor Co. (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 9, 14, 45 Cal. Rptr. 17, 403 P.2d 145 (no election between rescission and damages required on breach of warranty); see also U.C.C. and Cal. Code Comments to Com. Code § 2703].

If the transaction is governed by Division 2, remedies for material misrepresentation or fraud include all remedies available under Division 2 for nonfraudulent breach, and neither rescission or a claim for rescission of the contract for sale nor rejection or return of the goods bars, or is to be deemed inconsistent with, a claim for damages or other remedy [Com. Code § 2721]. Since Com. Code § 2714(2),(3) provides that the measure of damages for breach of warranty is the difference at the time and place of acceptance between the value of the goods accepted and the value they would have had if they had been as warranted, unless special circumstances show proximate damages of a different amount, and also provides for recovery of incidental and consequential damages in a proper case, the effect of Com. Code § 2721 may be to change the "out-of-pocket" measure of damages for fraud set forth in Civ. Code § 3343 to substitute or permit the "loss of bargain" rule under which the defrauded party is permitted to obtain the benefits he or she would have received if the representations had been true [see Civ. Code § 3343; Com. Code §§ 2714, 2721; see also Com. Code § 2721, Cal. Code Comment]. Unless the contrary intention clearly appears, expressions of "cancellation" or "rescission" of a contract or the like will not be construed as a renunciation or discharge of any claim in damages for an antecedent breach [Com. Code § 2720].

Although punitive damages ordinarily are not recoverable under the Commercial Code, they may be recovered if provided for by another statute [Com. Code § 1305(a); see Metowski v. Traid Corp. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 332, 336-337, 104 Cal. Rptr. 599 (class action seeking punitive damages and stating causes of action for fraud and Commercial Code warranty claims)].

The remedies available under Division 2, other than those for breach of warranty, are discussed in Ch. 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code . Remedies for breach of warranty under Com. Code §§ 2321(2), 2607, 2714, 2715, 2800, 2801, and 8301 et seq. are discussed in Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties .

Since 1961, Civ. Code § 1689(b)(7) has provided that a party to a contract may rescind it under the circumstances provided for in former Corp. Code § 2470 [see Stats. 1961, ch. 589, § 1]. Former Corp. Code § 2470 was repealed in 1963 [see Stats. 1963, ch. 819, § 34]. It established grounds for rescission of transfer ofshare certificates.

Currently, various statutory provisions specifically provide a right of rescission to purchasers of corporate securities under specified circumstances. These statutes include Corp. Code § 25501, which authorizes rescission for violation of Corp. Code § 25401, which generally prohibits material misrepresentations in connection with the purchase or sale of securities, and Com. Code § 8307, which permits a purchaser of investment securities to rescind a transaction if the transferor refuses, within a reasonable time, to comply with the transferee's demand for proof of the transferor's authority to transfer the security or with any other requisite necessary to obtain registration of the transfer.

Chapter 490 RESCISSION AND RESTITUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.17

§ 490.17 Partial Rescission

Generally one must rescind all of the contract and cannot retain the rights under it that he or she deems desirable to have and rescind the remainder [IMO Development Corp. v. Dow Corning Corp. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 451, 458, 185 Cal. Rptr. 341] . However, this rule is not controlling in the case of a severable or divisible contract. If the consideration for a contract is entire, the contract is entire and not divisible. If the consideration is apportioned, the contract may be regarded as severable. A contract may be severable as to some of its terms, or for certain purposes, but indivisible as to others [Simmons v. California Institute of Technology (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 264, 275, 209 P.2d 581 (rescission of royalty agreement as to licensee but not as to manufacturer); Merced County Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. State of California (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 765, 775-776, 284 Cal. Rptr. 680 (additional insured endorsement severable from main policy and could be separately rescinded); Howell v. Courtesy Chevrolet, Inc. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 391, 404, 94 Cal. Rptr. 33 (rescission of garbage truck sales as to rubbish bodies that were to have been furnished by another company but were never mounted on trucks)]. If there is a showing that the parties intended to treat the contract as entire and that they would not have entered into it except on a clear understanding that the full object of the contract would be performed, the contract is not divisible [IMO Development Corp. v. Dow Corning Corp. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 451, 458-459, 185 Cal. Rptr. 341] .

§ 490.18 Rescission of Gifts

A gift can be rescinded if it was induced by fraud or material misrepresentation, whether committed by the donee or a third person, or by mistake as to a basic fact. The failure of the donee to reveal material facts when he or she knows that the donor is mistaken as to those facts is fraudulent nondisclosure. A mistake as to the identity or essential character of the gift or one that entails a frustration of the donor's purpose entitles the donor to restitution [Earl v. Saks & Co (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 602, 609, 226 P.2d 340 ; see also Restatement Restitution, §§ 26, 39 and Comments]. In one case, it was held that when the retailer and the donee both lied to a purchaser/donor about the price of a gift and the fact that the donee paid part of the price, the purchaser/donor was entitled to rescind both the purchase and the gift although no economic injury was suffered. The injury is in the alteration of the essential character of the transaction and to the donor's interest in making a free choice and exercising his or her own judgment in the transaction [Earl v. Saks & Co (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 602, 609-613, 226 P.2d 340] .

A gift may also be rescinded on the ground of undue influence [see Estate of Bliss (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 630, 639-640, 18 Cal. Rptr. 821 (elements leading to presumption of undue influence); McDonald v. Hewlett (1951) 102 Cal. App. 2d 680, 686, 228 P.2d 83] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.19

§ 490.19 Rescission of Third-Party Beneficiary Contracts

A third-party beneficiary contract may be rescinded by the parties just like any other contract at any time before the third-party beneficiary has accepted it, or a benefit under it, or changed his or her position in reliance on it [see Civ. Code § 1559; R. J. Cardinal Co. v. Ritchie (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 124, 149-150, 32 Cal. Rptr. 545 ; Griffin v. Williamson (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 308, 317-318, 290 P.2d 361 (no acceptance found)]. Even if the third-party beneficiary has accepted the contract for his or her benefit, rescission is still permissible if the third-party beneficiary had knowledge of the facts that provide the ground for rescission at the time he or she accepted the property. A third-party beneficiary who has notice of the possible defect in the underlying contract at the time he or she received the benefit must make restitution [see Holmes v. Steele (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 675, 678-679, 75 Cal. Rptr. 216 (broker as third-party creditor beneficiary of real estate sales contract)]. However, a third-party beneficiary has no standing to rescind a contract [Schauer v. Mandarin Gems of California, Inc. (2005) 125 Cal. App. 4th 949, 957-958, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 233] .

Chapter 490 RESCISSION AND RESTITUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.20

§ 490.20 Defenses to Rescission

[1] Executed Contract

Rescission is unavailable to one who has fully performed under the contract when the counterperformance owing is only money; however, full performance does not bar rescission if at least some of the return consideration is other than a liquidated debt [Oliver v. Campbell (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 298, 306-307, 273 P.2d 15] .

[2] "Rescinding" Party in Default

A party cannot unilaterally rescind if he or she is in material default of performance of a covenant or obligation on which the obligation the other party has failed to perform is dependent or that is concurrent to the obligation the other party has failed to perform or that affects the other party's performance or duty to perform [Nelson v. Spence (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 493, 499, 6 Cal. Rptr. 312 ; Joshua Tree T. Co. v. Joshua Tree L. Co. (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 590, 596, 224 P.2d 85] . This rule will not prevent rescission if the default of the rescinding party is unrelated to the other party's obligation on which the asserted right of rescission is based [American-Hawaiian Engineering & Constr. Co. v. Butler (1913) 165 Cal. 497, 516, 133 P. 280 ; Integrated, Inc. v. Alec Fergusson Electrical Contractor (1967) 250 Cal. App. 2d 287, 298, 58 Cal. Rptr. 503] . California's presumption against construing covenants is dependent, especially when the "rescinding" party's default is partial and can be fully compensated. If the party in default is entitled to rescind, its obligation to perform will be expunged by the rescission [FDIC v. Air Florida System, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 822 F.2d 833, 841] .

Moreover, a purchaser who has been defrauded may have rescission even though he or she is in default, because such a purchaser has a right to withhold payments once he or she learns of the grounds for rescission [Kent v. Clark (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 779, 783, 128 P.2d 868 ; Warfield v. Richey (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 93, 97-98, 334 P.2d 101] .

When a party has full knowledge of the facts that would warrant rescission but nevertheless accepts and receives benefits under a contract, waiver of his or her right to rescind will be presumed [Neet v. Holmes (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 447, 458, 154 P.2d 854 ; Whitney Inv. Co. v. Westview Dev. Co. (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 594, 603, 78 Cal. Rptr. 302] .

To support a claim of waiver, the conduct must be so inconsistent with an intent to enforce the contract as to induce a reasonable belief that the right to rescind has been relinquished [Soon v. Beckman (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 33, 36, 44 Cal. Rptr. 190 ; Howard J. White, Inc. v. Varian Associates (1960) 178 Cal. App. 2d 348, 355, 2 Cal. Rptr. 871] . Waiver is a question of fact to be determined after consideration of all the circumstances of the particular case. Acceptance of rent accruing after a known default is a common example of waiver [Soon v. Beckman (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 33, 36, 44 Cal. Rptr. 190] . A spouse could not rescind a property settlement agreement on the ground that the other spouse delayed unreasonably in dismissing a separate maintenance action because, before the attempted rescission and after the dismissal had been filed, he continued to reap the benefits of that agreement by not making support payments as called for by an order in the action dismissed [Palmquist v. Palmquist (1963) 27 Cal. Rptr. 744] . Acceptance of later performance waives the right to rescind for failure of compliance with a time provision [Leiter v. Eltinge (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 306, 317, 54 Cal. Rptr. 703] . For discussion of waiver by delay, see § 490.20[5].

Acts by which the rescinding party preserves the subject matter in order to be able to restore it to the party against whom he or she rescinds will not amount to waiver. For instance, one can make payments on a note or mortgage after giving notice of rescission without waiving the right to rescind [Hefferan v. Freebairn (1950) 34 Cal. 2d 715, 723, 214 P.2d 386 (payments made with intent to avoid default); see Cameron v. Evans Securities Corp. (1931) 119 Cal. App. 164, 171, 6 P.2d 272 (payments made after discovery of fraud but before giving of notice, offer to restore)]. Payment of stock assessments does not necessarily waive the right to rescind a stock purchase [Munson v. Fishburn (1920) 183 Cal. 206, 215, 190 P. 808] .

Waiver is an affirmative defense that must be pleaded [Calabrese v. Rexall Drug & Chemical Co. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 774, 785, 32 Cal. Rptr. 665 ; for a form of affirmative defense of waiver, see § 490.65].

[4] Statute of Limitations

An action based on the rescission of a contract in writing is subject to a four-year limitation period that commences on the date on which the facts that entitle the aggrieved party to rescind occurred [Code Civ. Proc. § 337(3); Miller v. Bechtel Corp. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 868, 873, 191 Cal. Rptr. 619, 663 P.2d 177 (referred to as limitation for rescission of written contract); see Luna Records Corp., Inc. v. Alvarado (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1026, 283 Cal. Rptr. 865 (parties had consented in writing to rescission; court and parties considered statute as beginning to run on date of written consent to rescission)].

If the ground for rescission is fraud or mistake, the time does not begin to run until the discovery by the aggrieved party of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake [but see Miller v. Bechtel Corp. (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 868, 873, 191 Cal. Rptr. 619, 663 P.2d 177 (action commenced in 1978 for rescission of marital settlement agreement based on misrepresentation of value of stock; statute commenced when spouse first had constructive notice and thus duty to inquire arose in 1971-1972, not with spouse's sale of stock in 1977); Keidatz v. Albany (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 826, 829, 249 P.2d 264 (action for rescission for fraud filed one year after discovery as barred by laches)].

If the ground for rescission is misrepresentation under Ins. Code § 359, the time does not begin to run until the representation becomes false [Code Civ. Proc. § 337(3)].

If the claim for rescission is brought as a cross complaint in an action for breach of contract, the limitation period "relates back" to the time thecomplaint was filed; but, if no cross complaint is filed, the limitation period is not considered tolled or suspended while the breach of contract action is pending [Luna Records Corp. v. Alvarado (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1028-1031, 283 Cal. Rptr. 865] . In Luna Records, plaintiff notified defendants that it had rescinded the contract for failure of consideration. Defendants consented to the rescission in writing on June 1, 1981. Defendants, however, never returned the consideration furnished by plaintiff, and commenced a breach of contract action against plaintiff on August 7, 1981. Plaintiff never filed an answer or a cross complaint in that action, which was dismissed on August 1, 1985, on the court's own motion for lack of prosecution. Plaintiff commenced an action for rescission in July 1988, claiming that the statute of limitations was tolled during the pendency of the breach of contract action. The court of appeal held otherwise, making the distinction described above between "tolling" and relating back: it is the fact that the action is pending that triggers the relation-back doctrine and allows a defendant to file in that action a cross complaint that was viable when the complaint was filed. If the defendant makes no appearance and offers no defense or cross claim, there is simply nothing to relate back [Luna Records Corp. v. Alvarado (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1023, 1028, 283 Cal. Rptr. 865] .

[5] Prejudicial Delay

Since September 15, 1961, a delay in giving notice of rescission or tendering restoration of benefits received does not bar relief based on rescission unless the delay has substantially prejudiced the other party [Civ. Code § 1693]. This is a reversal of prior case law that held that no prejudice had to be shown in order for laches to bar rescission [Wilke v. Coinway, Inc. (1967) 257 Cal. App. 2d 126, 140, 64 Cal. Rptr. 845] . Ordinarily, the defense of laches does not rest entirely on the lapse of time, as does a statute of limitations. Laches can be applied, even if any applicable limitation period has not run, if, in addition to mere showing of passive neglect or acquiescence in the acts complained of, other circumstances make the granting of relief inequitable [Neet v. Holmes (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 447, 460, 154 P.2d 854 (acceptance of royalties under transfer of mining interests sought to be rescinded and fluctuations in value of mining interests in general as rendering rescission inequitable); Joshua Tree T. Co. v. Joshua Tree L. Co. (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 590, 596-597, 224 P.2d 85 (plaintiff's own defaults that prevented defendant from doing anything with land that was the subject of the contract as providing equitable grounds for application of laches)].

Under prior law, a complaint was demurrable if it showed an unexplained delay between the discovery of the ground for rescission and the notice of rescission [Williams v. Smith (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 607, 612, 274 P.2d 204] . Since adoption of Civ. Code § 1693, however, a plaintiff seeking relief based on rescission need not establish promptness. The defendant must establish that he or she has been prejudiced by any delay. Prejudice is a question of fact to be determined from the particular circumstances of each case [see Saret-Cook v. Gilbert, Kelly, Crowley & Jennett (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1211, 1225-1227, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732 (employee's delay in giving notice of rescission of settlement agreement resulted in substantial prejudice to employer); In re Consol. Pretrial Proceedings in Air West (N.D. Cal. 1977) 436 F. Supp. 1281, 1290 (applying California law)]. Laches and waiver are sometimes pleaded or established together [see, e.g., Neet v. Holmes (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 447, 458-461, 154 P.2d 854] as are laches, waiver, and estoppel [see, e.g., Wilson v. Beazley (1921) 186 Cal. 437, 441-442, 199 P. 772] . Forms for affirmative defenses based on waiver, prejudicial delay, and estoppel by election of another remedy are set forth in § 490.65 -490.67, respectively.

[6] Substantive Statute or Policy Precludes Rescission

[a] Judicial Privilege

The judicial privilege of Civ. Code § 47(b) precludes rescission. In a federal diversity action turning on California law, one court concluded that participation in a government investigation was within the privilege and denied the purchaser of a $762,240 computer system rescission after it paid for the system and received a "dummy" system [Caesar Electronics Inc. v. Andrews (9th Cir. 1990) 905 F.2d 287, 289-290] . The manufacturer suspected that the system, which could be converted to military use and was therefore subject to strict export regulations, was going to be diverted to a purchaser other than the ostensible purchaser and notified the United States Customs Service of its suspicions. After receiving written assurances from the United States Departments of Justice and Commerce that it was acting with the consent of those departments, the manufacturer aided in the government's investigation, including giving false information to the purchaser. It manufactured a "dummy" system, which the government substituted for the functioning one immediately before its shipment to France. The purchaser had opened a letter of credit in a Swiss bank. On presentation of the shipping documents, the purchaser authorized transfer of the funds to the manufacturer. The purchaser, its agent, and key officers of each were charged with violations of United States export laws and French customs laws. The purchaser sued for rescission and damages for fraud and breach of fiduciary duty. All relief was denied on the basis of Civ. Code § 47(b). For further discussion of Civ. Code § 47(b), see Ch. 340, Libel and Slander, § 340.50 et seq.

[b] Health Care Service Plan Contracts

Health & Safety Code § 1389.3 proscribes post-claim underwriting [see [c], below] by a health care service plan and has the effect of precluding a health care service plan's rescission of a subscriber's contract because of the subscriber's material misrepresentation or omission, unless the health care service plan can demonstrate that the misrepresentation or omission was willful or that the health care service plan made reasonable efforts, as part of the pre-contract underwriting process, to ensure that the subscriber's application was accurate and complete [Hailey v. California Physicians' Service (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 452, 459, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 789].

[c] Insurance Contracts: Post-Claim Underwriting

Health & Safety Code § 1389.3 [see [b], above] proscribes a practice, common in the insurance business generally, known as post-claim underwriting. It is the practice, by an insurer, of waiting until a claim has been filed before diligently obtaining the relevant information and making the underwriting decision--something that should be done when the application for insurance is made and before the policy is issued. Inother words, the insurer postpones doing significant underwriting research (such as investigating a health care service plan subscriber's pre-contract health) until after a claim is made, so as to determine then whether to rescind the insurance contract on the ground of misrepresentations or omissions in the application. It is not clear whether post-claim underwriting would preclude rescission of an insurance contract in circumstances in which a statute like Health & Safety Code § 1389.3 did not exist or could not be invoked [cf. Hailey v. California Physicians' Service (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 452, 467-469, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 789 (discussing reasons to support that result in absence of applicable statute; but in this case, section 1389.3 did apply and provided sufficient basis for decision)].

It appears that Ins. Code § 331 ("Concealment, whether intentional or unintentional, entitles the injured party to rescind insurance.") and considerations of public policy can support the imposition of a no-rescission rule on an automobile insurer that engaged in post-claim underwriting in a particular case [see Barrera v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1969) 71 Cal. 2d 659, 79 Cal. Rptr. 106, 456 P. 2d 674 ; Hailey v. California Physicians' Service (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 452, 469-471, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 789 (effect of Barrera explained)].

If an insurance contract were wrongly rescinded by the insurer, in a case of post-claim underwriting, the insured probably would have a bad faith claim against the insurer [see Hailey v. California Physicians' Service (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 452, 472-473, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 789]. For discussion of bad faith claims against insurers, see Ch. 308, Insurance, § 308.24. The insured might also have a claim for intentional infliction of emotional distress [see Hailey v. California Physicians' Service (2007) 158 Cal. App. 4th 452, 473-476, 69 Cal. Rptr. 3d 789]. For discussion of that cause of action, see Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress, § 362.10.

Chapter 490 RESCISSION AND RESTITUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.21

§ 490.21 Notice of Rescission and Offer to Restore Consideration

Subject to Civ. Code § 1693, see § 490.20[5], a party seeking rescission must, promptly on discovering the facts that entitle him or her to rescind if he or she is free from duress, menace, undue influence, or disability andis aware of his or her right to rescind, give notice of rescission to the party as to whom he or she rescinds and restore to the other party everything of value that he or she has received from that party under the contract or offer to restore everything received on condition that the other party do the same, unless the other party is unable to do so or positively refuses to do so [Civ. Code § 1691]. When notice of rescission has not otherwise been given or an offer to restore the benefits received under the contract has not otherwise been made, service of a pleading in an action or proceeding that seeks relief based on rescission is deemed notice or an offer to restore or both [Civ. Code § 1691].

It is not necessary that the notice of rescission be formal and explicit; a notice is sufficient if it clearly shows the intention of the person rescinding to consider the contract at an end [Hull v. Ray (1930) 211 Cal. 164, 167-168, 294 P. 700 ; Wilson v. Lewis (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 802, 809, 165 Cal. Rptr. 396] . Thus, notice of rescission need not state the grounds relied on. One may even justify an asserted rescission by proving that at the time there was adequate cause although it did not become known to the rescinding party until after the asserted rescission [Earl v. Saks & Co. (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 602, 609, 226 P.2d 340 ; Wilson v. Lewis (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 802, 809, 165 Cal. Rptr. 396] . For example, a seller's oral rescission of a contract for the sale of real property was effective although she did not learn of the failure of consideration providing the ground for rescission until later [see Wilson v. Lewis (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 802, 809-810, 165 Cal. Rptr. 396] .

[2] Restoration or Offer to Restore Excused

If the rescinding party has not received anything of value, no offer to restore is necessary [Orton v. Privett (1927) 202 Cal. 754, 757, 262 P. 713 (total failure of consideration); Realty Co. of America v. Burton (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 178, 195-196, 325 P.2d 171] . For example, when plaintiffs, owners of an oil and gas lease, hired defendants to drill a well to a depth of 5,000 feet, and defendants abandoned the work after drilling a crooked well to a depth of 2,111 feet, leaving their equipment cemented to the well and over it, making other drilling operations impossible, plaintiffs had received nothing of value and were not required to make restoration [Modoc Mineral & Oil Co. v. Cal-Vada Drilling etc. Co. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 868, 873-874, 46 Cal. Rptr. 508] . No offer of restoration is necessary when the plaintiff would be entitled to whatever would be restored in any event. This rule applies after rescission based on breach of contract when plaintiff has rendered services in part performance. Because such a plaintiff would be entitled to the reasonable value of those services, payments made under the contract before breach need not be restored [Oliver v. Campbell (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 298, 306, 273 P.2d 15 ; Hil-Mac Corp. v. Mendo Wood Products, Inc. (1965) 235 Cal. App. 2d 526, 530, 45 Cal. Rptr. 396] . Nor is an offer to restore necessary when the transactions between the parties are so complicated that full judicial action or an accounting is necessary to determine their respective rights [California etc. Co. v. Schiappa-Pietra (1907) 151 Cal. 732, 739-742, 91 P. 593 ; Klein v. Farmer (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 51, 61-62, 160 P.2d 30] .

No offer to restore is necessary when, because of no fault of the rescinding party, restoration cannot be made [Carruth v. Fritch (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 426, 430-431, 224 P.2d 702 (defendant's fraud); Stegeman v. Vandeventer (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 753, 760-762, 135 P.2d 186 (same)]. When the rescinding party seeks return of the specific thing with which he or she has parted, as opposed to the value of it, no offer to restore need be made prior to commencement of the action. In an action for relief based on rescission, the court can condition return of the specific property on return of the consideration received by the rescinding party [see Civ. Code § 1692 (rescinding party may recover thing parted with); Alder v. Drudis (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 372, 384, 182 P.2d 195 (rescinding party sought return of models of invention)]. Failure to make an offer of restoration does not bar recovery if the court can fashion a decree that adjusts the equities between parties [Alder v. Drudis (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 372, 384-385, 182 P.2d 195 ; Lobdell v. Miller (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 328, 344, 250 P.2d 357 (status quo as not required to be exactly reproduced)].

Chapter 490 RESCISSION AND RESTITUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.22

§ 490.22 Judicial Enforcement of Rescission

[1] By Action or as Defense

The party seeking rescission may begin either by giving notice of rescission and, if necessary, restoring or offering to restore any benefits he or she received under the contract, or by instituting an action for relief based on rescission [see Civ. Code § 1691 (service of pleading in action for relief based on rescission deemed notice and offer to restore)]. If the rescinding party has not restored or offered to restore anything he or she received under the contract before commencing suit, he or she will have to preserve anything received by him or her during the pendency of the action so that it can be returned [see Prichard v. Reitz (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 465, 467-469, 223 Cal. Rptr. 734 (rescission of real property sale as unavailable after purchasers demolished house with defective foundation, believing that was only way to correct defect)]. A rescinding party who gives notice of rescission and restores or offers to restore benefits does not have to commence an action for additional relief based on rescission, but may wait to see if the other party insists on performance. If the party against whom the contract was rescinded insists on performance and sues the rescinding party, the rescinding party then can assert the rescission and seek relief based on the rescission by way of defense and/or cross complaint [Civ. Code § 1692; for forms of affirmative defense based on rescission, see Ch. 140, Contracts].

[2] Nature of Action

Prior to 1961, a party seeking to rescind a contract had two options. He or she could invoke the power of a court of equity to effect a rescission that had not previously been made [see former Civ. Code §§ 3406-3408]; or, he or she could effect "unilateral" rescission as provided in Civ. Code §§ 1688-1691, going into court based on a prior out-of-court rescission if met with a reluctant response from the party as to whom the contract was rescinded. Since 1961, the rescinding party has been able to seek any form of relief warranted by the situation, whether legal or equitable in nature in an action or cross action. The fusing of the procedures available under prior law did not eradicate the substantial differences in the underlying procedures. Now, the right to a jury trial and the court in which the action must be brought are determined by the nature of the substantive relief requested [Runyan v. Pacific Air Industries, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 304, 311-313, 85 Cal. Rptr. 138, 466 P.2d 682] .

Under prior law, if a party sought the legal remedy (court enforcement of an out-of-court rescission), the court could not award any consequential damages, but was limited to restoration of the consideration received by the defendant [

Runyan v. Pacific Air Industries, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 304, 314, 85 Cal. Rptr. 138, 466 P.2d 682 ; Philpott v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 512, 518, 36 P.2d 635] . The present statute, like the former equitable remedy, authorizes the court to provide the aggrieved party complete relief and to otherwise adjust the equities between the parties [Civ. Code § 1692; Runyan v. Pacific Air Industries, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 304, 314-318, 85 Cal. Rptr. 138, 466 P.2d 682] .

[3] Form of Action

Relief based on rescission may seek only money, or it may take the form of an action for declaratory relief or one for claim and delivery [Civ. Code § 1692; see, e.g., City of Torrance v. Castner (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 76, 77-78, 83, 120 Cal. Rptr. 23 (setting aside sale by purchaser at execution sale; judgment debtor did not own property on which levy was made); but see Alder v. Drudis (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 372, 384-385, 182 P.2d 195 (judgment for plaintiff in action for claim and delivery as not proper unless conditioned on plaintiff's restoration of benefits received under rescinded contracts); see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief , Ch. 119, Claim and Delivery].

Imposition of a constructive trust on the consideration paid by the plaintiff is another possible way of implementing relief following rescission. It is especially useful when the consideration paid by plaintiff has reaped profits or dividends or secondary rights and is often coupled with a request for an accounting of those profits [see Neet v. Holmes (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 447, 455, 461-468, 154 P.2d 854 (reversing sustaining of demurrer); see Chs. 561, Trusts: Constructive Trusts and 562, Resulting Trusts].

A common count for money had and received is also appropriate, based on the implied promise of restitution arising after rescission [Runyan v. Pacific Air Industries, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 304, 312, 85 Cal. Rptr. 138, 466 P.2d 682 ; Philpott v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 512, 523-526, 36 P.2d 635 ; see Ch. 121, Common Counts].

Quiet title may be a proper procedural alternative in some instances. For instance if a vendee fails to make any payments, the vendor is entitled to rescission on the ground of failure of consideration. If such a vendee refuses to comply with a demand by the vendor for rescission and return of the deed, the vendor is entitled to have his or her title quieted [J. R. Garrett Co. v. States (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 379, 383-384, 44 P.2d 538] . Commencement of a quiet title action after sending notice of rescission may amount to an offer of rescission. In that instance, a cross complaint for the reasonable value of services rendered amounts to an acceptance of the offer [Mayo v. Pacific Project Consultants, Inc. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1018, 82 Cal. Rptr. 117 ; see Ch. 482, Quieting Title]. A vendor's retaking possession and commencing a quiet title action without offering to restore excess payments to the purchaser does not amount to rescission or an offer of rescission [Gantner v. Johnson (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 869, 875, 79 Cal. Rptr. 381] .

Chapter 490 RESCISSION AND RESTITUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.23

§ 490.23 Recovery by Rescinding Party

[1] In General

When a contract has been rescinded in whole or in part, any party to the contract may seek relief based on rescission by bringing an action to recover any money or thing owing to him or her by the other party to the contract as a consequence of the rescission or for any other relief to which he or she may be entitled under the circumstances [Civ. Code § 1692; see Alder v. Drudis (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 372, 384-385, 182 P.2d 195 (recovery of specific property)]. Rescission may also be asserted as an affirmative defense to an action on the contract [Civ. Code § 1692; for a form of affirmative defense based on rescission, see Ch. 140, Contracts].

If the relief sought by a plaintiff based on rescission cannot be awarded because rescission has not in fact occurred, the court may grant any party to the action any relief to which he or she is entitled under the circumstances [Civ. Code § 1692; see, e.g., Walters v. Marler (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 1, 16, 147 Cal. Rptr. 655] .

[2] Restitution and Consequential Damages

[a] Recoverable

A claim for damages is not inconsistent with a claim for relief based on rescission. The aggrieved party is entitled to complete relief, includingrestitution of any benefits conferred by him or her as a result of the transaction and any consequential damages to which he or she is entitled. However, duplicate recovery or inconsistent items of recovery are not permitted [Civ. Code § 1692; see, e.g., Jahn v. Brickey (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 399, 406, 214 Cal. Rptr. 119 (seller's loss on sale seller rescinded disallowed by trial court as duplicative; not contested on appeal)]. Some courts have used Civ. Code § 1692 to allow damages for fraud as well as consequential damages required to make the rescinding party whole [Jahn v. Brickey (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 399, 406-407, 214 Cal. Rptr. 119 (consequential damages after rescission and emotional distress damages for fraud and breach of fiduciary duty relating to rescinded contract as not inconsistent)], whereas others have adhered to the rule applicable under prior law, requiring the rescinding party to elect between damages for fraud and rescissionary relief [Whistler v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 108, 118, 91 Cal. Rptr. 879] .

Restitution is discretionary with the court and is not required even when rescission is ordered. Before restitution can be ordered, it must be determined that the party seeking restitution has conferred a benefit or something of economic value on the other party [Ogden Martin Systems v. San Bernardino County (9th Cir. 1991) 932 F.2d 1284, 1287 (applying California law and finding that environmental impact report compiled by contractor at cost of $3.5 million amounted to benefit conferred on county)]. In a case in which plaintiffs sought restitution after the federal government repudiated their contracts, the United States Supreme Court held that plaintiffs were entitled to restitution whether or not the repudiated contracts would have ultimately produced financial gain to plaintiffs [Mobil Oil Exploration & Producing Southeast, Inc. v. United States (2000) 530 U.S. 604, 120 S. Ct. 2423, 147 L.Ed. 2d 528, 543-544] .

[b] Examples of Consequential Damages

The consequential damages recoverable vary widely from case to case. For example, a vendee of real property can recover any portion of the purchase price paid, plus the value of any improvements he or she made to the property, less the reasonable rental value of the land while he or she had possession [Kent v. Clark (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 779, 785-786, 128 P.2d 868 ; see Whistler v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 108, 115, 91 Cal. Rptr. 879 (calculation in findings included improvements, loan payments, moving costs, downpayment, less offset for use of house)]. A rescinding vendee can also recover any payments made on a mortgage placed on the property by the vendor [Arthur v. Graham (1923) 64 Cal. App. 608, 612, 222 P. 371] . A seller who rescinds a sale of personal property may recover the reasonable value of the use of the property during the time the purchaser had possession [Vice v. Thacker (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 84, 92, 180 P.2d 4 ; see Gentry v. Kelley Kar Co. (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 324, 337, 14 Cal. Rptr. 121 (seller cannot omit evidence of value of use and base award on depreciation during time purchaser had possession); see also Berge v. International Harvester Co. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 152, 163, 190 Cal. Rptr. 815 (buyer's award of restitution and lost profits were offset by reasonable rental value of item purchased prior to repossession by seller)].

The purchaser of a franchise who gave up his former employment to operate the franchise and later rescinded that transaction was entitled, in addition to the return of the franchise fee, to consequential damages including loss of income from the date the service area contract was signed to the date of the notice of rescission at the rate of his former salary, plus his training and operating expenses, less the gross income from the franchise operation [Runyan v. Pacific Air Industries, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 304, 308 n. 3, 318-319, 85 Cal. Rptr. 138, 466 P.2d 682] . Consequential damages recoverable by a lender on rescission of a fraudulently induced loan secured by a second deed of trust include amounts advanced for payments on the first deed of trust and for maintenance of the property taken back in foreclosure, as well as costs and attorney's fees expended for the appointment of a receiver in accordance with a trust deed provision, net of deductions for rentals received [Kass v. Weber (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 417, 420 n.2, 423-424, 67 Cal. Rptr. 876] .

Towing charges and rental expense for a substitute vehicle are proper elements of consequential damages on rescission of a vehicle conditional sale contract [Leaf v. Phil Rauch, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 371, 376, 120 Cal. Rptr. 749] .

After rescission of an insurance contract, the insured is entitled to recover the premiums paid and whatever else may be required to restore the insured to the status quo ante as though the insurance contract had never existed [Akin v. Certain Underwriters at Lloyd's London (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 291, 298, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 284] .

[3] Emotional Distress

The case law is inconsistent with respect to whether damages for emotional distress can be recovered as a form of consequential damages under Civ. Code § 1692. They have been denied under both Civ. Code § 1692 and Civ. Code § 3343 if rescission was granted on the ground of undue influence or fraud [In re Marriage of McNeill (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 548, 559, 206 Cal. Rptr. 641 ; O'Neil v. Spillane (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 147, 158-159, 119 Cal. Rptr. 245] . Damages for emotional distress have been sustained on the theory that plaintiff had also prevailed on tort theories [Jahn v. Brickey (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 399, 406-407, 214 Cal. Rptr. 119 (court's finding that rescission was available did not require plaintiff to elect between rescisssionary relief and tort remedies); see Erlich v. Menezes (1999) 21 Cal.

4th 543, 551-554, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 886, 981 P.2d 978 (discussing when breach of contract allows recovery of tort damagesincluding emotional distress); see also discussion § 490.42[2]].

Damages for emotional distress are not recoverable as consequential damages for breach of contract, subject to a narrow exception when emotional tranquility is the contract's essence [see Erlich v. Menezes (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 543, 558-560, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 886, 981 P.2d 978 (recognizing exception, but declining to extend it to action regarding home constructiondefect)]. For further discussion of the availability of damages for emotional distress, see Ch. 362, Mental Suffering and Emotional Distress .

[4] Interest

In an action for relief based on rescission of contract, since right to the repayment of moneys paid under the contract is fixed by the rescission, interest on those moneys is recoverable from the date of rescission [Potter v. Contra Costa Realty Co. (1934) 220 Cal. 31, 34, 29 P.2d 189 ; Leaf v. Phil Rauch, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 371, 376, 120 Cal. Rptr. 749] . When the elements of consequential damages are certain, interest on them is also recoverable from the date of rescission. When the party against whom the rescission is made is entitled to an offset, for example, the reasonable value of the use of the subject matter of the contract, interest is calculated on the rescinding party's net recovery [Leaf v. Phil Rauch, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 371, 376-377, 120 Cal. Rptr. 749] .

[5] Punitive Damages

When defendant's conduct meets the requirements of Civ. Code § 3294(a)--that is, when plaintiff has established by clear and convincing evidence that the defendant acted with malice, fraud, or oppression--punitive damages are awardable in a rescission action. Punitive damages cannot be awarded under Civ. Code § 3294(a) except in addition to actual damages. This actual damage requirement is satisfied in a rescission action by plaintiff's recovery in the form of specific restitution [see Douglas v. Ostermeier (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 729, 750, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 594 (although plaintiffs recovered $10,000 on related fraud cause of action, substantial portion of money returned to them on rescission count was net monetary award to them)]. Recovery of money damages is not necessary [In re Marriage of McNeill (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 548, 561, 206 Cal. Rptr. 641 ; Millar v. James (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 530, 533, 62 Cal. Rptr. 335] .

[6] Attorney's Fees

Although a contract is extinguished by its rescission, an action for relief based on rescission involves the contract within the meaning of Civ. Code § 1717. Thus, if the contract rescinded contained a provision for attorney's fees that did not limit its operation to particular types of actions on the contract, attorney's fees are recoverable in an action for relief based on rescission [Hastings v. Matlock (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 826, 840-842, 217 Cal. Rptr. 856 ; Leaf v. Phil Rauch, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 371, 377-379, 120 Cal. Rptr. 749] . In addition, if the contract rescinded is governed by the Unruh Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.) or the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.), Civ. Code § 1811.1 or Civ. Code § 2983.4 provides the basis for recovery of attorney's fees in an action for relief based on rescission [see Morgan v. Reasor Corp.(1968) 69 Cal. 2d 881, 896-897, 73 Cal. Rptr. 398, 447 P.2d 638 (Unruh) ; Leaf v. Phil Rauch, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 371, 378-379, 120 Cal. Rptr. 749 (Rees-Levering) ; for discussion and forms relating to rescission of installment sales contracts governed by the Unruh Act, see Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales ; for discussion and forms relating to rescission of motor vehicle conditional sales contracts, see Ch. 89, Automobiles: Actions Involving Defects and Repairs].

Also, as discussed in § 490.23[2][b], attorney's fees in other litigation reasonably required to protect the party's interests may be recovered as consequential damages [Kass v. Weber (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 417, 423-424, 67 Cal. Rptr. 876] .

[7] Attachment Available

Attachment is available to one seeking restitution based on rescission because the basis of recovery is the implied contract for repayment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 483.010(a) (attachment available in action on implied contract when more than $500 is involved); Landry v. Marshall (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 170, 177-178, 52 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; Modoc Mineral & Oil Co. v. Cal-Vada Drilling etc. Co. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 868, 875, 46 Cal. Rptr. 508] . Attachment is a positive act in pursuit of a contractual right inconsistent with the right to pursue an action for tort damages, but it does not amount to an election to pursue damages for breach of contract, which would bar rescission [Modoc Mineral & Oil Co. v. Cal-Vada Drilling etc. Co. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 868, 874-875, 46 Cal. Rptr. 508] . For further discussion and forms relating to attachment procedures, see Ch. 62, Attachment .

§ 490.24 Damages or Offsets Allowed to Defendant

In an action for relief based on rescission, the court may require the party to whom relief is granted to make any compensation to the other that justice may require and may otherwise adjust the equities between the parties [Civ. Code § 1692]. Thus, when a purchaser rescinds a sale of real or personal property, the seller is ordinarily entitled to payment or credit for the value of the property during the time the purchaser had possession [Kent v. Clark (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 779, 785-786, 128 P.2d 868 (real property)]. The burden of proof as to the value of use or rental value is on the seller [McCoy v. West (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 295, 302, 138 Cal. Rptr. 660 ; Gentry v. Kelley Kar Co. (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 324, 337, 14 Cal. Rptr. 121 (no recovery for depreciation of vehicle during plaintiffs' use when no evidence of value of use was introduced)]. In a transaction involving the sale of a business, recovery by the seller against whom the sale is rescinded is limited to the lesser of the reasonable rental value of the property involved or the profits, if any, generated by the purchaser from the subject matter. Applying this rule to the burden of proof, a seller who does notintroduce evidence of both rental value and profits is not entitled to recover based on either [McCoy v. West (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 295, 303, 138 Cal. Rptr. 660 ; see comments to Restatement of Restitution § 157; but see Heintzsch v. La France (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 180, 183, 44 P.2d 358 (defendant seller allowed rental value although plaintiffs contended no profits were made)].

A defendant is not allowed a setoff to compensatory damages in the form of a deduction or credit for income tax benefits that the plaintiff may have derived from the rescinded contract [DePalma v. Westland Software House (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1534, 1539-1546, 276 Cal. Rptr. 214 ; for further discussion, see Ch. 177, Damages].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.25

§ 490.25 Election of Remedies

[1] What Constitutes Election

Whenever a party entitled to enforce two remedies institutes an action on one of them or performs any act in pursuit of one remedy whereby he or she gains an advantage over the other party, he or she will be held to have made an election of that remedy and will not be entitled to pursue any other remedy for the enforcement of his or her rights [Steiner v. Rowley (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 713, 720, 221 P.2d 9 ; Modoc Mineral & Oil Co. v. Cal-Vada Drilling etc. Co. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 868, 874-875, 46 Cal. Rptr. 508] . The doctrine of election of remedies is a specific application of the doctrine of estoppel. Thus, mere pursuit by the injured party of a different or additional remedy does not amount to an election unless it involves a prejudice to the opposing party [Warfield v. Richey (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 93, 99, 334 P.2d 101] . Simply giving notice of rescission does not amount to an election. Notice of rescission is revocable until everything with which plaintiff has parted has been restored to him or her [Mackenzie v. Voelker (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 538, 541, 266 P.2d 867 ; Karapetian v. Carolan (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 344, 355, 188 P.2d 809] . However, an agreement for rescission will generally bar any claims for fraud arising out of the same transaction unless the release or mutual rescission agreement specifically provides otherwise [Evans v. Rancho Royale Hotel Co. (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 503, 508-509, 250 P.2d 283] .

It is permissible for plaintiff to plead inconsistent remedies [Walters v. Marler (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 1, 16, 147 Cal. Rptr. 655] . When all the evidence is in, the court will determine which remedies the plaintiff may have [Mackenzie v. Voelker (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 538, 541, 266 P.2d 867] . Pleading inconsistent remedies allows a plaintiff to recover on another theory, without having to bring a second action, if rescission is for some reason unavailable [Walters v. Marler (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 1, 16, 147 Cal. Rptr. 655 ; Karapetian v. Carolan (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 344, 352, 188 P.2d 809] . The general rule is that no election need be made before the case goes to the jury. If the jury or the court finds that plaintiff is entitled to rescission and damages, the plaintiff must then elect, and may recover, compensatory damages consistent with rescission so long as there is no double recovery [Jahn v. Brickey (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 399, 406, 214 Cal. Rptr. 119 ; Walters v. Marler (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 1, 16, 147 Cal. Rptr. 655] .

It is not always clear what constitutes an election. For example, in Whistler v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 108, 91 Cal. Rptr. 879 , in which the trial was bifurcated, the court did not clearly indicate whether it was the determination of the rescission issue in the first part of the trial or later correspondence by counsel that constituted the election [Whistler v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 108, 116, 118, 91 Cal. Rptr. 879] . Some cases that have not required an election between tort and rescissionary remedies can be explained as ones in which the defendant did not require clear findings or special verdicts regarding damages. In those cases, the damages that the opinion refers to as being awarded under the fraud cause of action might properly have been awarded as consequential or punitive damages under the rescissionary relief provisions of Civ. Code § 1692 [see, e.g., Campbell v. McClure (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 806, 808, 810, 227 Cal. Rptr. 450 (compensatory damages not separated under causes of action for fraud, rescission of sale of business, and cancellation of assumption of obligations of business); Cobian v. Ordonez (1980) 163 Cal. Rptr. 126 (no showing of duplication of damages); see also Horn v. Guaranty Chevrolet Motors (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 477, 484-485, 75 Cal. Rptr. 871 (punitive damages as proper even when restitution is only relief awarded after rescission)].

[2] Asserting Election of Remedies as Defense

The defendant can waive its right to require an election by failing to assert it [Bank of America N.T. & S. Assn v. Hill (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 495, 500, 71 P.2d 258 ; City Bank of San Diego v. Ramage (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 570, 588, 72 Cal. Rptr. 273] . If the facts giving rise to the alleged election occurred prior to commencement of the action, election of remedies must be specifically pleaded as an affirmative defense, unless it appears on the face of the complaint [Modoc Mineral & Oil Co. v. Cal-Vada Drilling etc. Co. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 868, 875, 46 Cal. Rptr. 508 (dicta); Karapetian v. Carolan (1948) 83 Cal. App. 2d 344, 346-347, 188 P.2d 809 (dicta); see § 490.67 for a form of affirmative defense]. If the facts giving rise to the alleged election occurred after commencement of the action, the election must be raised at the earliest possible time [Modoc Mineral & Oil Co. v. Cal-Vada Drilling etc. Co. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 868, 875, 46 Cal. Rptr. 508 (dicta, election claimed to arise from plaintiff's filing attachment asserted for first time on appeal as too late)].

Chapter 490 RESCISSION AND RESTITUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.26

§ 490.26 Right to Jury Trial

The right to a jury trial is determined by the nature of the substantive relief requested [Runyan v. Pacific Air Industries, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 304, 312-313, 85 Cal. Rptr. 138, 466 P.2d 682] . When restitution or damages are sought and there is a question of fact to be resolved regarding the amount of damages or restitution, a party is entitled to a jury trial in an action for relief based on rescission [Paularena v. Superior Court (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 906, 911-913, 42 Cal. Rptr. 366] . When one is not seeking restitution or damages, but only relief of an equitable nature, there is no right to a jury trial [Porter v. Superior Court (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 793, 798-801, 141 Cal. Rptr. 59 (cancellation of deed)].

When a party to a contract, after rescinding the contract on a ground allowed in Civ. Code § 1689(b), sues for relief under Civ. Code § 1692 and, in lieu of asking for the return of consideration, demands the value of the consideration given (because, for instance, it would be impracticable to return the consideration), that demand for a money judgment does not make the action one "at law" in which the party may have a jury trial. The action is equitable in nature, and no party is entitled to have a jury trial [NMSBPCSLDHB v. County of Fresno (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 954, 956, 962-963, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 425] .

Chapter 490 RESCISSION AND RESTITUTION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.27

§ 490.27 Restitution to Avoid Unjust Enrichment

[1] Equitable Principle

When no contract exists between the parties, equity sometimes will imply a contract in order to prevent the unjust enrichment of the party who has received some benefit [Kossian v. American Nat'l Ins. Co. (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 647, 650-651, 62 Cal. Rptr. 225 ; County of Santa Clara v. Robbiano (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 845, 848-849, 5 Cal. Rptr. 19] . To some extent, recovery is premised on the equitable maxim of Civ. Code § 3521 that one who takes a benefit must bear the burden [Civ. Code § 3521; Halperin v. Raville (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 765, 771-774, 222 Cal. Rptr. 350] . Similar principles allow recovery to one who has made payments under a void contract [Page v. Preuss (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 494, 496-497, 38 Cal. Rptr. 221 ; see §§ 490.13, 490.16[3][c]].

Unjust enrichment is synonymous with the term "restitution" [Dinosaur Development, Inc. v. White (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1310, 1314, 265 Cal. Rptr. 525] . Restitution includes not only the restoration or giving back of something to its rightful owner, but also compensation, reimbursement, indemnification, or reparation for benefits derived from, or for loss or injury caused to, another. The phrase "unjust enrichment" is used to characterize the result or effect of a failure to make restitution of or for property or benefits received under circumstances that give rise to a legal or equitable obligation to account for them [Dinosaur Development, Inc. v. White (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1310, 1315, 265 Cal. Rptr. 525 ; Lucky Auto Supply v. Turner (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 872, 885, 53 Cal. Rptr. 628] . It is not enough that one has conferred a benefit on another. To be entitled to restitution, one must confer the benefit by mistake, fraud, coercion, or request [Dinosaur Development, Inc. v. White (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1310, 1315-1316, 265 Cal. Rptr. 525 ; Nibbi Brothers, Inc. v. Home Federal Sav. & Loan Assn. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1415, 1422, 253 Cal. Rptr. 289 ; see Restatement of Restitution §§ 2, 106].

This principle allows recovery of money paid by mistake, no matter how negligent the paying party may have been in making the mistake, providedthe party who received the money has not changed his or her postion in reliance [National Bank of California v. Miner (1914) 167 Cal. 532, 537, 140 P. 27 ; Doyle v. Matheron (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 521, 522-523, 306 P.2d 913 ; see First Sav. & Loan Assn. v. Bank of America (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 393, 396, 84 Cal. Rptr. 532 (no detrimental change of position found)]. A request coupled with assurances of payment, however, may not invoke sufficient reliance or change of position to allow recovery of the value of the benefit conferred unless the party making the request promises to make payment itself. For example, a promise of payment that amounts to an optimistic and nonactionable opinion that another person will pay for the benefit conferred will not support restitution [Nibbi Brothers, Inc. v. Home Federal Sav. & Loan Assn. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1415, 1422-1423, 253 Cal. Rptr. 289] . Similarly, a request by the owner of landlocked property to a local government agency not to approve an adjacent owner's development plans unless the plans required the developer to provide access to the landlocked parcel does not constitute either request or coercion for purposes of entitling the developer to restitution from the benefited owner [Dinosaur Development, Inc. v. White (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1310, 1316, 265 Cal. Rptr. 525] . Nor, in that situation, does the agency's action constitute coercion [Dinosaur Development, Inc. v. White (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1310, 1318, 265 Cal. Rptr. 525] . The cost of rerouting and extending its planned access road to service the adjoining parcel and the benefit to the landlocked owner were merely indirect and incidental consequences of the developer's decision to build the project [Dinosaur Development, Inc. v. White (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1310, 1316, 265 Cal. Rptr. 525] .

Equitable restitution generally is not available to provide recovery of money paid voluntarily with knowledge of the facts. One situtation in which restitution is not available arises when an insurer denies coverage, but provides a defense to the insured under a reservation of rights. The insurer cannot recover defense costs under the theory of equitable restitution because the primary reason for the expenditure is usually the insurer's desire to protect itself from a subsequent claim that it breached its agreement with the insured [Insurance Co. of the West v. Haralambos Beverage Co. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1308, 1323, 241 Cal. Rptr. 427] .

A health insurer could mistakenly pay benefits to a health care provider under the usual assignment of benefits by the insured patient. The insurer could, for example, pay for treatment that is not covered by the policy or pay for treatment that the insured received after the policy expired. In that case, if the health care provider disclosed all material facts in connection with presenting the claim to the insurer and received payment without knowledge of the insurer's mistake, the insurer has no claim for equitable restitution [City of Hope Nat. Medical Center v. Superior Court (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 633, 636-637, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 465] .

[2] When Contract Is Forfeited

When a contract has a forfeiture clause or one party is allowed to cancel it because of the other party's breach or nonperformance, the party in default is entitled to restitution of any benefits he or she bestowed on the other party that are in excess of the damages suffered by that party [Freedman v. St. Matthias Parish (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 16, 20-23, 230 P.2d 629 ; Barkis v. Scott (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 116, 118, 208 P.2d 367] . For instance, if a contract for the purchase and sale of real estate is canceled by the seller after the purchaser has made substantial improvements or expended time and money in obtaining subdivision approval, the seller would be unjustly enriched if he or she were allowed to keep the land at its enhanced value without any compensation to the purchaser. In that case, the purchaser's restitution is measured by the reasonable value of services rendered by it that benefited the land owner, not the increase in value of the property attributable to those services. The purpose of this type of restitution is to make the defaulting party whole, not to bestow a benefit [Lesny Development Co. v. Kendall (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1022-1025, 210 Cal. Rptr. 890] .

No particular form of pleading is necessary to invoke the doctrine of restitution [Dinosaur Development, Inc. v. White (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1310, 1316, 265 Cal. Rptr. 525] . Nevertheless, a common count is often the proper form of action [see Philpott v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 512, 520-526, 36 P.2d 635 ; Doyle v. Matheron (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 521, 522-523, 306 P.2d 913] .

A cause of action for unjust enrichment has been described as a quasi-contractual form of common count for money had and received to recover money paid by fraud or mistake. As such, it is governed by the three-year limitation period applicable to fraud actions. That period commences not at the time of the mistake but when the defendant realizes a windfall from the mistake [First Nationwide Savings v. Perry (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 1657, 1670, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 173] . For discussion and forms for various types of common counts, see Ch. 121, Common Counts .

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.42

§ 490.42 Decisions

[1] Alternative Remedies and Procedures

Question of California courts' jurisdiction to grant equitable relief under civil remedies provision of Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (herainafter "RICO"), specifically order requiring divestiture of interests sold to defendants (18 U.S.C. § 1964(a)), is open; trial court properly refused summary judgment to defendant; court of appeal was reluctant to decide emerging question of law without full evidentiary record. Nakash v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 59, 71, 241 Cal. Rptr. 578

[2] Election of Remedies

Rescission is not cause of action, but is remedy; thus continuing conduct is basis for series of actions based on rescission. Nakash v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 59, 70, 241 Cal. Rptr. 578

Superior court action was not election of remedy barring petition to Labor Commission to avoid contract because remedies were not inconsistent; court action was based on execution of agreement; Commission proceeding was based on conduct after execution. Humes v. MarGil Ventures, Inc. (1985) 174 Cal. App. 3d 486, 493-494, 220 Cal. Rptr. 186

Choice of remedy is that of wronged party, not of court. Walters v. Marler (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 1, 16, 147 Cal. Rptr. 655

[3] Defendant's Right to Offsets

On rescission of partnership agreement for fraud and franchise law violations, plaintiff was entitled to continue to use partnership name, but defendant was entitled to compensation for contributions that enhanced value of name. Neptune Society Corp. v. Longanecker (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1233, 1245-1246, 240 Cal. Rptr. 117

Failure to award defendant rental value of car, misrepresented to be new but that was used, was not error when defendant produced no evidence of rental value of used car, but only of new car. Horn v. Guaranty Chevrolet Motors (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 477, 483, 75 Cal. Rptr. 871

[4] Delay in Performance

Unless contract declares time to be of essence, performance within reasonable time is sufficient and rescission cannot be granted for slight delay. Hofland v. Gustafson (1955) 132 Cal. App. 907, 282 P.2d 1039 (8 days)

[5] Dismissal of Prior Action for Rescissionary Relief

State court action for rescission of sale of business, breach of fiduciary duty, and other relief was not barred by plaintiffs' dismissal and settlement of prior federal court action for rescission be cause breaches of contract, fiduciary duties, and tortious conduct were continuing, and second action alleged transactional nucleus of facts that occurred after first judgment. Nakash v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 59, 67-70, 241 Cal. Rptr. 578

[6] Judgments

When plaintiff proved two grounds for rescission (fraud and violation of Corp. Code § 31300, relating to franchises), judge's failure to articulate one ground in oral announcement of decision did not preclude finding or judgment on that ground. Neptune Society Corp. v. Longanecker (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1233, 1245, 240 Cal. Rptr. 117

Judgment against both principals and agents was proper for restitution after rescission of sale for fraud and mistake; agents allowed their default to be taken. Heintzsch v. La France (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 180, 183-184, 44 P.2d 358

[7] Mistake of Fact

Principle that valid contract may be rescinded for unilateral mistake of fact by one party if other party should have known about mistake required reversal of summary judgment for trial of factual question whether attorney should have known from demand letter that opposing counsel miscalculated amount of interest claimed. Bldg. Serv. Emp. Pension Tr. v. Amer. Bldg. Maint. (9th Cir. 1987) 828 F.2d 576, 578

Rescission was justified because of both parties' mistake of fact regarding one party's ability to qualify for status that was essential to achieving contract's purpose. Habitat Trust for Wildlife, Inc. v. City of Rancho Cucamonga (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1306, 1343, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 813

Life annuity contract cannot be rescinded for buyer's benefit on ground of mistake of fact when alleged mistake is that, at time of making contract, buyer was ignorant of preexisting condition leading inexorably to unexpectedly early death. Grenall v. United of Omaha Life Ins. Co. (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 188, 193-196, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 609

[8] Mistake of Law

Summary judgment for plaintiff reversed because defendants raised triable issues of fact as to whether they were entitled to rescind settlement agreement based on mutual mistake of fact or law; parties' mutual mistake regarding amendment to Probate Code, which would diminish plaintiff's damages from trust which exposed trustees to tax liability, went to heart of agreement settling action for legal malpractice in drafting trust. Harris v. Rudin, Richman & Appel (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 1332, 1339-1341, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 552

[9] Nature of Rescission

Rescission voided contract ab initio and extinguished all rights of either party undercontract, including right to bring action for tortious breach of that contract; each party was entitled to recover payments made to other party under rescinded contract. Imperial Cas. and Indem. Co. v. Sogomonian (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 169, 184-185, 243 Cal. Rptr. 639

[10] Rescission Unavailable

Rescission under Truth in Lending Act [see 15 U.S.C. § 1635] is personal remedy not suitable for class-action treatment. LaLiberte v. Pacific Mercantile Bank (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1, 10, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 745

Rescission of former member's gift to religious organization made on basis of religious beliefs no longer held was not permitted; challenge to validity of former beliefs is prohibited by constitutional guarantees of freedom of religion. Estate of Supple (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 410, 414-415, 55 Cal. Rptr. 542

[11] Restitution Based on Repudiation

Obligor's statement to obligee indicating that obligor will breach important contractual promise, thereby substantially impairing value of contract, constitutes repudiation of the contract, entitling obligee to restitution. Mobil Oil Exploration & Producing Southeast, Inc. v. United States (2000) 530 U.S. 604, 120 S. Ct. 2423, 147 L.Ed. 2d 528, 534

[12] Restitution Based on Undue Influence

Undue influence occurs when one party uses its dominant psychological position in unfair manner to induce subservient party to consent to agreement to which he or she would not otherwise have consented; claim for restitution alleging subservient party had been deceived by church into submitting unknowingly to coercive persuasion was not direct attack on truth or falsity of religious beliefs prohibited by First Amendment. Molko v. Holy Spirit Assn. (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 1092, 1124-1125, 252 Cal. Rptr. 122, 762 P.2d 46

[13] Restitution to Avoid Unjust Enrichment

Cause of action for unjust enrichment could be stated by beneficiary of first deed of trust which was mistakenly reconveyed against purchaser at foreclosure sale of junior deed of trust when facts would support amendmentto allege that purchaser knew of mistake; statute barring deficiency judgments [see Code Civ. Proc. § 580b] was inapplicable. First Nationwide Savings v. Perry (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 1657, 1662-1665, 1669-1670, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 173

Restitution may be required when person benefitting from another's mistake knew about mistake and circumstances surrounding unjust enrichment. First Nationwide Savings v. Perry (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 1657, 1664, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 173

One who has been unjustly enriched at another's expense is required to make restitution if benefit was conferred by mistake, fraud, coercion or request; claim for restitution was properly stated when lessor's lack of knowledge that defendant had taken possession of equipment and was making lease payments prevented it from asserting its rights regarding assignment of lease. Enterprise Leasing Corp. v. Shugart Corp. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 737, 748-749, 282 Cal. Rptr. 620

Restitution of money paid by plaintiff as guarantor of restaurant equipment lease when money was paid under material mistake as to lessor's title. Bridges v. Cal-Pacific Leasing Co. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 118, 124-127, 93 Cal. Rptr. 796

[14] Restoration Excused

On dissolution of partnership formed by franchisor and franchisee under agreement that did not grant, assign, or sell any name to partnership, franchisee was permitted to continue using partnership name; unregistered name was not thing of value bestowed by franchisor, but franchisor was entitled to money compensation for contributions that enhanced name. Neptune Society Corp. v. Longanecker (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1233, 1245-1246, 240 Cal. Rptr. 117

§ 490.60 Notice of Rescission of Contract--General Form [Civ. Code § 1691]

[1] FORM Notice of Rescission of Contract--General Form [Civ. Code § 1691]

TO: _____

You are hereby notified that _____ [name or the undersigned] hereby rescinds that certain _____ [describe the contract or lease in terms of parties, date, and purpose, mentioning all documents comprising it, e.g., three-year lease of an ABC Co. type 275 burglar alarm system by and between you as lessor and _____ (name or the undersigned), as lessee dated _____ (date), _____ (specify purpose/relevant terms of contract, e.g., under the terms of which title to the system remained in you and the undersigned was to have possession and use of the system for the protection of its retail outlet at 359 Main Street, Anytown, California)].

[This rescission is made on the ground that _____ (specify, e.g., The United States District Court issued an injunction requiring the burglar alarm system to be rendered inoperable because it interfered with secret government radio frequencies. The system has therefore been rendered useless.]

[_____ (Name or The undersigned) hereby _____ (offers to restore or restores) and tenders to you all consideration and benefits received by him/her/it pursuant to the _____ (lease or contract), specifically _____ (specify, e.g., all removable parts of the alarm system). (This offer is conditioned on your restoring the consideration you recieved as demanded below).]

_____ [Name or The undersigned] hereby demands that you restore to him/her/it all consideration furnished to you by him/her/it, specifically _____ [specify consideration to be returned, taking into account any offsets the rescinding party agrees to allow, e.g., $1,000, less the sum of $250 that was the reasonable value to the undersigned of the use of the system for the three weeks it operated before the undersigned was notified of the injunction, for a total of $750].

[2] Use of Form

This notice of rescission is for use by a rescinding party to give notice of rescission and to tender restoration to the party against whom he or she rescinds [see Civ. Code § 1691]. It can be used as is, as a formal notice, or the pertinent paragraphs can be incorporated into a letter. The factualexample is based in part on the facts in Federal Leasing Consultants, Inc. v. Mitchell Lipsett Co. (1978) 150 Cal. Rptr. 82 .

When notice of rescission has not otherwise been given or an offer to restore the benefits received under the contract has not otherwise been made, service of a pleading in an action or proceeding that seeks relief based on rescission is deemed notice or an offer to restore or both [Civ. Code § 1691].

[3] Contents of Notice

[a] Grounds

The grounds for rescission need not be stated, as long as the intent to rescind is clear [Hull v. Ray (1930) 211 Cal. 164, 167-168, 294 P. 700] . One may even justify an asserted rescission by proving that at the time there was adequate cause even though the rescinding party did not learn of it until after he or she had given notice of rescission [Earl v. Saks & Co. (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 602, 609, 226 P.2d 340 ; Wilson v. Lewis (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 802, 809, 165 Cal. Rptr. 396 (both cases involved oral notice of rescission)]. If grounds other than those set forth in the notice are the basis of the complaint and the defendant is not prejudiced by the change or addition, as when he or she knew of the grounds relied on in the complaint before suit was filed, the notice is sufficient [Hull v. Ray (1930) 211 Cal. 164, 167-168, 294 P. 700] .

[b] Offer to Restore

Unless the other party is unable to do so or positively refuses to do so, a party seeking rescission ordinarily must restore to the other party everything of value that he or she has received from that party or offer to restore everything received on condition that the other party do the same [Civ. Code § 1691]. If the rescinding party has not received anything of value, no offer to restore is necessary [Realty Co. of America v. Burton (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 178, 195-196, 325 P.2d 171 ; Esau v. Briggs (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 427, 436, 201 P.2d 25] . Nor is an offer to restore necessary when the transactions between the parties are so complicated that full judicial action or an accounting is necessary to determine their respective rights [California etc. Co. v. Schiappa-Pietra (1907) 151 Cal. 732, 739-742, 91 P. 593 ; Klein v. Farmer (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 51, 61-62, 160 P.2d 30] . In addition, no offer to restore is necessary when, due to no fault of the rescinding party, restoration cannot be made [Carruth v. Fritch (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 426, 430-431, 224 P.2d 702 (defendant's fraud); Stegeman v. Vandeventer (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 753, 760-762, 135 P.2d 186 (same); see § 490.21[2]].

[c] Setoffs or Credits

The party against whom a contract is rescinded must restore anything of value that he or she has received, but he or she is also entitled to credit for anything of value furnished to the rescinding party [see Civ. Code § 1692]. In rescinding a real property contract or lease, the rescinding party ordinarily must pay or allow credit for the value of the use of the property during the time he or she had possession [Heintzsch v. La France (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 180, 183, 44 P.2d 358 (sale of auto camp and lease); Bush v. Vernon (1955) 135 Cal. App. 2d 33, 39, 286 P.2d 903] . When a construction contract is voided, the contractor is entitled to be compensated for the value of labor done and materials delivered to the site prior to the owner's avoidance of the contract [Sullivan v. California Realty Co. (1904) 142 Cal. 201, 204, 75 P. 767] .

[4] State Statutes

Grounds for unilateral rescission. Civ. Code § 1689(b)

Effect of stipulation regarding errors of description. Civ. Code § 1690

Notice of rescission and offer to restore. Civ. Code § 1691

Relief based on rescission; damages; compensation to party against whom rescission is made. Civ. Code § 1692

Effect of delay in giving notice of rescission. Civ. Code § 1693

[5] Decisions

Broker who was party to related commission agreement, but not party to purchase and sale contract, and was named defendant in action to rescind purchase and sale contract, was not entitled to attorney's fees for successfully defending that claim; rescission was based on tort of fraud, not on contract. Super 7 Motel Assocs. v. Wang (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 541, 547-550, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 193

Until express contract is voided, relief based on implied contract or common count is unavailable. McCall v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 527, 533, 538, 36 P.2d 642 ; Lloyd v. Williams (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 646, 649, 38 Cal. Rptr. 849

Party who cannot restore consideration cannot rescind and therefore cannot maintain action for money had and received; such party's remedy is tort action for damages. Lloyd v. Williams (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 646, 649, 38 Cal. Rptr. 849

Notice of rescission is not required to be served on party whose interest in contract has been assigned; notice to assignee as sufficient. Drips v. Moore (1918) 179 Cal. 249, 252, 176 P. 159

When nothing of value has been received by rescinding party, institution of suit is sufficient notice of rescission. Realty Co. of America v. Burton (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 178, 195-196, 325 P.2d 171

To rescind sale of business including leasehold and goodwill, sublessee is not required to give notice of rescission to seller/sublessor who acquiesced insublessee's payment of rent to primary lessor after primary lessor exercised option to terminate primary lease. Esau v. Briggs (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 427, 435-436, 201 P.2d 25

Offer to restore is unnecessary when rescinding party has not received anything of value. Esau v. Briggs (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 427, 436, 201 P.2d 25

Notice of rescission of fraudulently induced transaction is properly addressed to joint tortfeasors. McDevitt v. Butte City Ranch (1935) 7 Cal. App. 2d 252, 256, 46 P.2d 290

FIRST COUNT
(Relief Based on Rescission)

[1. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California (or other allegations of capacity or residence as necessary).]

2. Defendant is, and at all times herein mentioned was, _____ [state capacity and residence of defendant or other basis of venue, e.g., a resident of _____ County, California or a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the state of California with its principal place of business at _____ (street address, including city and county), California].

[3. Defendants Doe I through Doe _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges, that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those defendants.)]

[4. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that) at all times herein mentioned, defendants DOE I through DOE _____ were agents, servants, and employees of their codefendants, and in doing the things hereinafter alleged were acting in the scope of their authority as agents,servants, and employees, and with the permission and consent of their codefendants.]

5. On or about _____ [date], at _____, California, plaintiff and defendant entered into _____ [a written or an oral] _____ [contract or lease] whereby _____ [describe relevant terms of the contract, attaching a copy if desired, e.g., plaintiff was to purchase from defendant and defendant was to sell to plaintiff defendant's 1984 Mercedes 500 SEL automobile, California registration number _____, for the sum of $_____. A copy of the contract is attached as Exhibit "A" and incorporated by reference].

6. On or about _____ [date], at _____, California, defendant, knowing the representations to be false and with the intent to deceive plaintiff and to induce him/her to enter into the contract, falsely and fraudulently represented to plaintiff that _____ [allege in exact language or as close to exact language as possible the statements of material fact claimed by plaintiff to be false, e.g., the odometer correctly indicated that the automobile had only been driven approximately 25,000 miles and that no repairs to the automobile other than normal maintenance had ever been necessary or made].

7. The representations made by defendant were in fact false. The true facts were _____ [set forth true facts, e.g., the odometer had been turned back and the automobile had in fact been driven approximately 125,000 miles by the date the parties made their contract. Further, the automobile had been involved in a collision and although major repairs were made to it on account of the collision, it was never thereafter properly alignable].

8. At the time the representations were made, at the time plaintiff entered into the _____ [contract or lease], and at the time plaintiff rendered his/her performance under the _____ [contract or lease], plaintiff did not know the representations were false, but believed them to be true and reasonably relied on them. _____ [Specify facts making reliance reasonable, e.g, Plaintiff drove the automobile before entering into the contract. During that test drive, it handled well, even at high speeds, and plaintiff noticed no abnormalities. Plaintiff would have taken the car to be checked by his/her mechanic, but when plaintiff expressed a desire to do so, defendant said he/she had another offer for $_____, which he/she was bound to accept at 5 P.M. that evening unless he/she and plainfiff had come to an agreement by that time]. Had plaintiff known the true facts, he/she would not have entered into the _____ [contract or lease] and would not have rendered or accepted performance thereunder.

9. Under the terms of the _____ [contract or lease], on or about _____ [date], plaintiff _____ [describe plaintiff's performance, excuse for nonperformance, or impossibility of performance, e.g., personally delivered to defendant cashier's check number _____ drawn on _____ (name of bank) and payable to defendant in the amount of $_____, the full purchase price].

10. On or about _____ [date], defendant _____ [describe defendant's performance or nonperformance, e.g., delivered possession of the automobile to plaintiff, along with the registration and certificate of ownership that he/she had properly endorsed].

11. Thereafter, on or about _____ [date], plaintiff discovered the true facts to be those alleged in Paragraph 7. _____ [Describe circumstances of discovery, e.g., The automobile overheated often in traffic and after plaintiff had owned it for a few weeks, it pulled to the right when the brakes were applied. In addition, the tires were wearing unevenly. In the course of having these problems repaired, plaintiff discovered the true facts].

12. Plaintiff would/will suffer substantial harm and injury under the _____ [contract or lease] if it were/is not rescinded in that [as a result of defendant's conduct,] plaintiff _____ [specify, e.g., would/will be deprived of his/her bargain and would/will have an automobile substantially different from and inferior to the one he/she bargained and paid for and intended to purchase].

[EITHER, if notice of rescission has not been given and plaintiff has not received anything of value]

13. Plaintiff intends service of the summons and complaint in this action to serve as notice of rescission of the _____ [contract or lease], and hereby demands that defendant restore to him/her the consideration furnished by plaintiff, specifically _____ [specify, e.g., the sum of $_____ (plus $_____ representing _____ (describe any consequential damages, or in the case of real property, the value of any improvements made by plaintiff, e.g., the amount expended by plaintiff in attempted repairs before discovering that the representations made by defendant were false))][, _____ (specify any offsets which plaintiff agrees to allow, e.g., less the reasonable value to the plaintiff of the use of the automobile for the two months before the misrepresentations were discovered)].

[OR, if notice of rescission has not been given and plaintiff has received something of value]

13. Plaintiff intends service of the summons and complaint in this action to serve as notice of rescission of the _____ [contract or lease], and hereby offers to restore all consideration furnished by defendant under the _____ [contract or lease], on condition that defendant restore to him/her the consideration furnished by plaintiff, specifically _____ [specify, e.g., the sum of $_____ (plus $_____ representing _____ (describe any consequential damages, or in the case of real property, the value of any improvements made by plaintiff, e.g., the amount expended by plaintiff in attempted repairs before discovering that the representations made by defendant were false))][, _____ (specify any offsets which plaintiff agrees to allow, e.g., less the reasonable value to the plaintiff of the useof the automobile for the two months before the misrepresentations were discovered)].

[OR, if a notice of rescission and, when necessary, an offer to restore, which sufficiently set forth all claims and demands, has already been given]

13. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff notified defendant in writing that plaintiff had rescinded the _____ [contract or lease] [on the ground of _____ (specify, e.g., fraudulent misrepresentation)]. A copy of that notice is attached hereto marked Exhibit "_____" and made a part hereof. Defendant refused, and continues to refuse, to restore to plaintiff, in whole or in part, the consideration paid by plaintiff [or to recognize that the _____ (contract or lease) has been rescinded].

[CONTINUE]

[14. As a result of entering into the _____ (contract or lease) with defendant, plaintiff has incurred expenses in addition to those alleged above. Additional expenses include, without limitation, _____ (specify additional items plaintiff will have to recover in order to be placed in the position he or she was in prior to the execution of the contract being rescinded, e. g., registration fees, insurance, and storage costs). Plaintiff has paid a total of $_____ for those expenses to the date of this complaint (and will continue to incur them in an amount unknown to him/her at this time. Plaintiff prays leave of this court to amend this complaint to insert the true amount of those expenses when they are ascertained).]

[15. In performing the acts herein alleged, defendant intentionally _____ (misrepresented to or concealed from) plaintiff material facts known to defendant, specifically _____ (specify substance of misrepresentations or nondisclosures, e.g., the automobile's mileage and the fact that the automobile had suffered irreparable damage in a collision), with the intention on the part of defendant of depriving plaintiff of his/her money and property, thereby justifying an award of punitive damages against defendant.]

SECOND COUNT
(Damages for Fraud)

16. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates herein Paragraphs 1-11 (and Paragraph(s) 14 and/or 15) of the First Count.

17. As a proximate result of defendant's fraud and deceit and the facts herein alleged, plaintiff was _____ [allege facts showing specific items of damage recoverable for fraud, e.g., damages in the sum of $_____, which is the difference between the purchase price paid by plaintiff for the automobile and its true value, which is $_____].

THIRD COUNT
(Common Count for Money Had and Received)

18. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates herein Paragraphs 1-4 of the First Count.

19. _____ [Within the last _____ (two or four) years or On or about _____ (date)], at _____ [city], California, defendant became indebted to plaintiff in the sum of $_____ for money had and received by defendant for the use and benefit of plaintiff.

20. Neither the whole nor any part of this sum has been paid [except the sum of $_____ (, which is acknowledged as an offset owing from plaintiff to defendant),] although demand therefor has been made, and there is now due, owing, and unpaid the sum of $_____, with interest thereon at the legal rate from _____ [date].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

On the first COUNT:

1. That this Court declare that the _____ [contract or lease] has been rescinded;

2. That defendant be ordered to pay plaintiff the following sums:

[Use any or all of the following subparagraphs as applicable]

(a) The consideration paid by plaintiff in the sum of $_____, with interest thereon at _____ [specify legal or agreed rate] percent per annum from _____ [date of rescission];

(b) The sums paid, or which will be paid, by plaintiff for _____ [enumerate other items for which plaintiff will have to be reimbursed to be placed in the position he or she was in prior to the execution of the contract being rescinded, e.g., registration fees, insurance, repairs, and storage] _____ [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof], with interest thereon at _____ [specify legal or agreed rate] percent per annum from _____ [date of rescission];

(c) Exemplary damages.

3. That plaintiff be ordered to _____ [specify, e.g., transfer title and possession of the automobile to defendant] on condition that defendant pay to plaintiff the sums as ordered by the judgment of this Court;

[4. For reasonable attorney's fees as _____ (provided for in the contract or authorized by _____ (specify any applicable statute that provides for attorney's fees, e.g., Civil Code Section 2983.4)) according to proof.]

On the second COUNT:

5. For general damages _____ [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof];

6. For special damages _____ [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof];

7. For exemplary damages.

On the third COUNT:

8. For the sum of $_____, with interest thereon at _____ [specify legal or agreed rate] percent per annum from _____ [date of rescission].

On all COUNTS:

9. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

10. For such other relief as the Court deems just.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a person to whom material false representations have been made to bring an action for restitution after rescission or, in the alternative, for damages for fraud or deceit [see Civ. Code §§ 1692, 1709, 3333, 3343]. The common count for money had and received is an additional alternative ground for recovery of sums paid by plaintiff under the rescinded contract [see Philpott v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 512, 518, 36 P.2d 635 (propriety of pleading express count and common count based on same facts); Lloyd v. Williams (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 646, 649, 38 Cal. Rptr. 849 (common count not applicable until voidable contract has been rescinded)]. Because recovery under the common count is limited to the value of what defendant actually received, counsel may wish to consult Ch. 121, Common Counts, before deciding to include the third count [see Pollak v. Staunton (1930) 210 Cal. 656, 665-666, 293 P. 26 (money had and received based on false representations)].

Allegations from Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake, can be used in place of Paragraphs 6-8 in the first count of the foregoing complaint to modify that count for use when the failure of assent is based on a ground other than intentional misrepresentation. In most of those situations, Paragraph 11 of the foregoing form, alleging discovery of the true facts, will also be unnecessary. Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake, contains the following forms of allegations:

- Duress and menace by threats of or actual confinement of, or injury to, a person or property [see § 215.120].

- Duress by depriving one of the ability to exercise free will but without confining a person or detaining property [see § 215.121].

- Duress in the form of threats to economic, business, or property interests [see § 215.122].

- Undue influence or constructive fraud arising from a confidential relationship [see § 215.130].

- Undue influence in the form of taking unfair advantage of another's trust, confidence, or weakness [see § 215.131].

- Undue influence in the form of taking unfair advantage of another's distress or weakness [see § 215.132].

- Mutual mistake of fact [see § 215.140].

- Unilateral mistake of fact [see § 215.141].
- Mistake of law [see § 215.142].
- Innocent misrepresentation [see § 215.143].
- Intentional misrepresentation of fact [see § 215.144].

[3] Other Possible Remedies

If the transaction being rescinded involves goods, see the discussion of the possibly broader remedies available under Com. Code § 2101 et seq. [see Com. Code § 2105 (defining goods as all movable things except money, investment securities, and things in action)].

If the transaction being rescinded involves a manufacturer or a retailer and a consumer, additional remedies may be provided by the following laws:

- The Consumers Legal Remedies Act (Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.) [see, e.g., Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 817-820, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 (Act held not to apply retroactively to transactions at issue)], discussed in Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act .
- The Unruh Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.) [see, e.g., Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 806, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964] , discussed in Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales .
- The Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act (Civ. Code § 1790 et seq.), discussed in Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties . and as applied to new motor vehicles, discussed in Ch. 91, Automobiles: Actions Involving Defects and Repairs .
- The federal Truth in Lending Act (15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.), discussed in Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales .
- The federal Magnuson-Moss Warranty--Federal Trade Commission Improvement Act (15 U.S.C. § 2301 et seq.), discussed in Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties .
- The Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act (Civ. Code § 2981et seq.), discussed in Ch. 89, Automobiles: Sales and Financing Under the Rees-Levering Act .

If the transaction involved a deed or other instrument that may cause plaintiff harm if left outstanding, a count for cancellation can be added. For complaints for cancellation, see Ch. 107, Cancellation of Instruments . For complaints containing causes of action for both rescission and cancellation of real property transactions and the instruments created by them. see Ch. 569, Vendor and Purchaser . See the Research Guide, Cross References, for additional particular types of contracts, such as home solicitation contracts, that may be governed by specific statutes discussed in other chapters.

[4] Parties

This complaint alleges the residences and capacities of the parties (Paragraphs 1, 2) [see Civ. Code §§ 1812.10, 2984.4; see also § 490.61[9], regarding certain contracts that may require additional allegations to establish proper venue]. Every party to the rescinded contract or lease is an indispensible party to an action for relief based on rescission, and must therefore be joined as a plaintiff or defendant [see Hartman Ranch Co. v. Associated Oil Co (1937) 10 Cal. 2d 232, 262-265, 73 P.2d 1163 (lessor of master lease indispensible to action based on rescission of sublease); Holder v.

Home Sav. & Loan Assn. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 91, 107, 72 Cal. Rptr. 704] .

As long as the court can devise a decree granting relief without infringing the rights of a third-party lender from whom the plaintiff obtained a loan in order to finance his or her performance of the rescinded contract, the third-party lender is not an indispensible party to an action based on rescission of the primary contract. Such a lender is a necessary party, and difficulties are alleviated by making the lender a party [Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 254-255, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800] . If there are grounds for rescission of such a loan and plaintiff seeks to rescind the loan as well as the transaction that the loan financed, the third-party lender would have to be named as a party. Whether or not such a loan can be rescinded by requiring the defendant to pay the remaining balance is determined by each situation. For instance, when the lender is not a party, the defendant cannot be made to pay a loan secured by a purchase money deed of trust but can be required to assume it and to hold plaintiff harmless on any claims arising under it [Snelson v. Ondulando Highlands Corp. (1970) 5 Cal. App. 3d 243, 254-258, 84 Cal. Rptr. 800] .

In addition, the complaint includes optional allegations for alleging fictitious defendants (Paragraph 3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474; see also Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used] and the agency relationship of the defendants (Paragraph 4) [see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used , Ch. 427, Principal and Agent].

[5] Relief Based on Rescission

[a] General Allegations

To establish the basis for relief based on rescission, the complaint alleges the following:

- The formation and relevant terms of the contract (Paragraph 5).

- Facts showing the existence of a ground for rescission. In this case, the ground alleged is fraudulent misrepresentation (Paragraphs 6-8) [see § 490.61[18]].

- Plaintiff's performance or excuse for nonperformance (Paragraph 9).

- The extent of defendant's performance and nonperformance (Paragraph 10) [see Conslolidated Concessions Co. v. McConnell (1919) 40 Cal. App. 443, 444-445, 180 P. 842 (complaint insufficient for failure to specify whether note and stock certificates sought to be cancelled were executed/issued)].

- Plaintiff's discovery of the basis for rescission, in the example of misrepresentation, being discovery of the true facts (Paragraph 11).

- The injury or harm suffered by plaintiff (Paragraph 12) [see Engalla v. Permanente Medical Group (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 951, 979-980, 64 Cal. Rptr. 2d 843, 938 P.2d 903 (defrauded party does not have to show pecuniary damages in order to defeat petition to compel arbitration); Earl v. Saks & Co. (1951) 36 Cal.2d 602, 611-613, 226 P.2d 340 (pecuniary loss not necessary; alteration of essential character of transaction is sufficient injury); Guthrie v. Times-Mirror Co. (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 879, 886, 124 Cal. Rptr. 577 (complaint that fails to set forth facts showing plaintiff was harmed was fatally defective)].

- Plaintiff's giving of notice of rescission and offer of restoration or facts showing restoration is not necessary or statement that service of summons and complaint are to serve as notice of rescission and/or offer of restoration (Alternative Paragraphs 13) [see Civ. Code § 1691; Walsh v. Majors (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 384, 396, 49 P.2d 598 (plaintiff is not required to restore or offer to restore when action is based on theory of constructive trust or when plaintiff received nothing of value to which he or she would not have been entitled independently of the transations sought to be rescinded)].

- Optional allegations to assert any additional or consequential damages (Paragraph 14) [Civ. Code § 1692; see, e.g., De La Hoya v. Slim's Gun Shop (1978) 146 Cal. Rptr. 68] .

- Optional allegations of the basis for punitive damages (Paragraph 15) [see Civ. Code § 3294, 3295(e); Horn v. Guaranty Chevrolet Motors (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 477, 484, 75 Cal. Rptr. 871 ; Millar v. James (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 530, 533, 62 Cal. Rptr. 335] .

[b] Fraudulent Misrepresentation

As noted in the preceding discussion, this complaint alleges fraudulent misrepresentation as the basis for rescission. To establish fraudulent misrepresentation as the grounds for rescission, the complaint alleges the following [see Civ. Code § 1689(b)(1); Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 811, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 (rescinding party must establish that defendant made false representations, with knowledge of their falsity and with intent to induce reliance, that plaintiff's reliance was reasonable, and resultant injury); Horn v. Guaranty Chevrolet Motors (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 477, 482-483, 75 Cal. Rptr. 871 (elements are fraud by concealment or misrepresentation, materiality, intent, reliance; materiality and reliance as questions of fact; intent to deceive as often proved by inference)]:

- Misrepresentations made knowingly by defendant to induce plaintiff to enter the contract (Paragraph 6).

- The true facts (Paragraph 7).

- Plaintiff's ignorance of the true facts and reliance on the misrepresentations at all relevant times, together with facts showing that the misrepresentations were material (Paragraph 8).

[6] Damages for Fraud

The second count incorporates all allegations of the first and adds only the measure of damages (Paragraph 17). Because the hypothetical situation that is used for illustration in the complaint involves fraudulent misrepresentation, the form alleges the measure of damages for fraud in the sale, purchase, or exchange of property [see Civ. Code § 3343].

If the transaction involves goods as defined by Com. Code § 2105, the measure of damages established by Com. Code §§ 2101-2801 will be available. If no sale or exchange was involved, damages would be governed by Civ. Code § 3333 [see Civ. Code §§ 1709, 3333; Sprague v. Frank J. Sanders Lincoln Mercury, Inc. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 412, 419, 174 Cal. Rptr. 608 (distinguishing fraud in sale and fraud occurring after sale)].

[7] Common Count for Money Had and Received

The third count is the common count for money had and received. It is based on the right to restitution arising from the rescission of the contract [see Crocker-Anglo Nat. Bank v. Kuchman (1964) 224 Cal. App. 2d 490, 496-497, 36 Cal. Rptr. 806] . The necessary allegations are a statement of indebtedness in a sum certain and nonpayment [Allen v. Powell (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 502, 510, 56 Cal. Rptr. 715] .

A common count is demurrable if the specifically pleaded cause of action on which it necessarily rests is insufficient [Zumbrun v. University of Southern California (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1, 14, 101 Cal. Rptr. 499] . One may plead a cause of action based on contract and one based on tort along with a common count [see Weitzenkorn v. Lesser (1953) 40 Cal. 2d 778, 793-795, 256 P.2d 947 (demurrer sustained as to tort cause of action on grounds unrelated to inconsistency of remedies); Zumbrun v. University of Southern California (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 1, 11-14, 101 Cal. Rptr. 499 (same)].

For additional discussion, see Ch. 121, Common Counts .

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is in the superior court and is not a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial except in a limited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

If the rescinded contract is governed by the Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.] or the Rees-Levering Act [Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.], either the complaint must be verified and show that the action is commenced in a proper place for trial under Civ. Code § 1812.10 (Unruh Act) or 2984.4 (Rees-Levering Act), or an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) showing that the action is being commenced in a proper place for the trial of the action [see § 490.61[9]] must be filed concurrently with the complaint [Civ. Code §§ 1812.10(c), 2984.4(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a); see also § 490.61[9][b]].

[9] Jurisdiction and Venue

[a] In General

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

If the gravamen of an action for relief based on rescission is fraud, the action is considered transitory, and the proper venue is the county of defendant'sresidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); Postin v. Griggs (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 147, 149-150, 151 P.2d 887] .

[b] Actions Under Unruh or Rees-Levering Act

An action on a contract or installment account governed by the Unruh Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.) or on a contract or purchase order governed by the Rees-Levering Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.) must be tried in the county in which (1) the contract was signed by the buyer, (2) the buyer resided at the time the contract was entered into or at the time of the commencement of the action, or (3) the goods purchased have become affixed to realty (Unruh Act) or the vehicle purchased is permanently garaged (Rees-Levering Act) [Civ. Code §§ 1812.10(a), 2984.4(a); see Morgan v. Reasor Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 881, 896-897, 73 Cal. Rptr. 398, 447 P.2d 638 (action for relief based on rescission as "on contract" for purposes of attorney's fee award under Civ. Code § 1811.1); Leaf v. Phil Rauch, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 371, 377-379, 120 Cal. Rptr. 749 (action for relief based on rescission as "on contract" for purposes of attorney's fee award under Civ. Code § 2983.4)].

If the contract that was rescinded was governed by the Unruh Act or the Rees-Levering Act, either the complaint must be verified and allege facts showing that the action is commenced in a proper place for trial under Civ. Code § 1812.10 or Civ. Code § 2984.4, or, concurrently with the filing of the complaint, the plaintiff must file an affadavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5) showing that the action is being commenced in a proper place for the trial [

Civ. Code §§ 1812.10(c), 2984.4(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a)]. For a declaration under the Unruh Act, see Ch. 501, Sales: Retail Installment Sales ; for a declaration under the Rees-Levering Act, see Ch. 89, Automobiles: Sales and Financing Under the Rees-Levering Act .

[c] Other Goods or Services for Personal or Family Use; Telephone or Electronic Solicitation

In an action arising from an offer or provision of goods, services, loans, or extensions of credit intended primarily for personal, family or household use (other than obligations under the Unruh Act or Rees-Levering Act [see § 490.61[9][b]]), or an action arising from a transaction consummated as a proximate result of either an unsolicited telephone call made by a seller whose business is consummating that type of transaction, or a telephone call or electronic transmission made by the buyer or lessee in response to a solicitation by the seller, the superior court in the county where the buyer or lessee in fact signed the contract, or where the buyer or lessee resided at the time the contract was entered into, or where the buyer or lessee resides at the commencement of the action, is the proper court for the trial of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b); Fontaine v. Superior Court (CashCall, Inc.) (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 830, 838-840, 96 Cal. Rptr. 3d 607 (statute applies to action by consumer plaintiff, as well as to action against consumer, and if any defendant in consumer's action is individual, that is irrelevant to application of statute)].

If the action is a limited civil case, either the complaint must be verified and state facts showing that the action is subject to the requirements noted in the preceding paragraph and has been commenced in the proper court for trial, or those facts must be shown in an affidavit of the plaintiff or the plaintiff's attorney filed with the complaint. If an affidavit is used, it must be served with the summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a)].

[10] Lis Pendens

If the property plaintiff is seeking to regain as a result of rescission is real property, plaintiff should record a notice of pendency of the action in order to put third parties on notice and prevent their acquisition of a right to the property superior to plaintiff's [see Code Civ. Proc. § 405 et seq.; Mason v. Superior Court (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 989, 994-995, 210 Cal. Rptr. 63 (lis pendens improperly expunged in action to set aside deed, for cancellation, and declaratory relief); Joshua Tree T. Co. v. Joshua Tree L. Co. (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 590, 596, 224 P.2d 85 (rescission unavailable as to parcels conveyed to third persons); see Ch. 348, Lis Pendens]. The recording of a lis pendens may amount to an election of remedies, foreclosing damages, if defendant is prejudiced [but see Brandolino v. Lindsay (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 319, 325, 75 Cal. Rptr. 56 (recordation of lis pendens in action for specific performance or damages for breach of contract does not constitute election; damages as proper when specific performance was not available)]. For discussion of election of remedies, § 490.42[2]. For an affirmative defense based on election of remedies, see § 490.67.

[13] Decisions

[a] Acts of Third Persons as Grounds for Rescission

Duress or fraud of third party renders transaction voidable only if other party has reason to know of fraud or duress before giving or promising in good faith something of value or materially changing position by reason of transaction. Leeper v. Beltrami (1959) 53 Cal. 2d 195, 206, 1 Cal. Rptr. 12, 347 P.2d 12 ; Hall v. Department of Adoptions (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 898, 903, 121 Cal. Rptr. 223

[b] Attorney's Fees

If rescinded contract is governed by Unruh Act (Civ. Code §§ 1801-1812.20), Civ. Code § 1811.1 is basis for recovery of attorney's fees in action for relief based on rescission. See Morgan v. Reasor Corp. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 881, 896-897, 73 Cal. Rptr. 398, 447 P.2d 638

If rescinded contract contains provision for attorney's fees that does not limit its operation to particular types of actions, attorney's fees are recoverable under Civ. Code § 1717 in action for relief based on rescission. Hastings v. Matlock (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 826, 840-842, 217 Cal. Rptr. 856 ; *Leaf v. Phil Rauch, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. If rescinded contract is governed by Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act (Civ. Code §§ 2981-2984.4), Civ. Code § 2983.4 is basis for recovery of attorney's fees in action for relief based on rescission. Leaf v. Phil Rauch, Inc. (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 371, 378-379, 120 Cal. Rptr. 749

[c] Damages

Price of gun, costs, and attorney's fees for defense after arrest were properly awarded to innocent buyer of stolen gun under Com. Code §§ 2714, 2715 for breach of warranty of title. De La Hoya v. Slim's Gun Shop (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 6, 8-12 , 146 Cal. Rptr. 68

Exemplary damages are proper in action for relief based on rescission. Horn v. Guaranty Chevrolet Motors (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 477, 484, 75 Cal. Rptr. 871 ; Millar v. James (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 530, 533, 62 Cal. Rptr. 335

[d] Notice

Requirement of notice of breach set forth in Com. Code § 2607 is applicable even when breach of warranty is framed according to tort theory. Metowski v. Traid Corp. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 332, 339, 104 Cal. Rptr. 599

[e] Fraudulent Misrepresentation

[i] Damages

$80,000 punitive damage award (27 times compensatory damages) was proper against dealer who defrauded elderly couple in connection with sale of vehicle whose odometer had been turned back. Devlin v. Kearny Mesa AMC/Jeep/Renault, Inc. (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 381, 389-392, 202 Cal. Rptr. 204

Proper measure of damages is that set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1709, 3333, not Civ. Code § 3343, when gravamen of complaint was not fraud inducing purchase contract but later misrepresentations as to defects and repairs. Sprague v. Frank J. Sanders Lincoln Mercury, Inc. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 412, 419, 174 Cal. Rptr. 608

Storage charges are proper element of damages for deceit. Sprague v. Frank J. Sanders Lincoln Mercury, Inc. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 412, 419-420, 174 Cal. Rptr. 608

[ii] Reliance

Direct evidence is not required to show reliance; circumstances of case as basis for inferring reliance. Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 814, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964

Independent investigation of property does not preclude reliance on representation when falsity of statement would not be apparent from inspection or when person making misrepresentation has superior knowledge. *Bagdasarian v. [f] Injury

Pecuniary loss is not necessary; gift and sale of gift item are rescindable for fraud or donee and retailer; alteration of essential character of transaction is sufficient injury. Earl v. Saks & Co (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 602, 611-613, 226 P.2d 340

Pecuniary loss is not required to be pleaded or proved to justify rescission for fraud so long as some injury is shown. Hefferan v. Freebairn (1950) 34 Cal. 2d 715, 721-722, 214 P.2d 386 (misrepresentation regarding earnings of business sold)

[g] Pleading

Complaint that fails to set forth facts showing plaintiff was harmed is fatally defective. Guthrie v. Times-Mirror Co. (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 879, 886-889, 124 Cal. Rptr. 577 (mistake of law)

Fraud is required to be specifically pleaded. Hall v. Department of Adoptions (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 898, 904-905, 121 Cal. Rptr. 223

Unsupported allegations of fraud are insufficient; rescinding party as required to have actually been deceived by misrepresentation of material fact, by which other party intended to deceive, and to have relied to his or her injury. SECOND COUNT
(Damages for Breach of Contract)

11. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates herein Paragraphs 1-7 [and Paragraph 10] of the First Count.

12. As a result of _____ [defendant's breach of or the failure of the consideration to be received by plaintiff under] the contract, plaintiff has been damaged in the sum of $_____, which is the amount that plaintiff _____ [specify items of damage, e.g., expended on a totally useless burglar alarm system (if any offsets or credits are to be acknowledged, add them here, e.g., less the sum of $_____ which plaintiff acknowledges to be the reasonable value of the use of the system for the two weeks it operated before the plaintiff was notified of the injunction)].

THIRD COUNT
(Common Count for Money Had and Received)

13. Plaintiff realleges and incorporates herein Paragraphs 1-3 of the First Count.

14. [Defendant's indebtedness. See § 490.61[1], Paragraph 19.]

15. [Nonpayment. See § 490.61[1], Paragraph 20.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

On the first COUNT:

1. That this Court declare that the _____ [contract or lease] has been rescinded;

2. That defendant be ordered to pay plaintiff the following sums:

[Use any or all of the following subparagraphs as applicable]

(a) The consideration paid by plaintiff in the sum of $_____, with interest thereon at _____ [specify legal or agreed rate] percent per annum from _____ [date of rescission];

(b) The sums paid, or which will be paid, by plaintiff for _____ [enumerate other items for which plaintiff will have to be reimbursed to be placed in the position he or she was in prior to execution of the contract being rescinded, e.g., costs of installing and dismantling the alarm system on plaintiff's premises] _____ [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof], with interest thereon at _____ [specify legal or agreed rate] percent per annum from _____ [date of rescission];

3. That plaintiff be ordered to _____ [specify, e.g., return possession of the alarm system to defendant] on condition that defendant pay to plaintiff the sums as ordered by the judgment of this Court;

[4. For reasonable attorney's fees as _____ (provided for in the contract or authorized by _____ (specify any applicable statute that provides for attorney's fees, e.g., Civ. Code § 2983.4)) according to proof.]

On the second COUNT:

5. For compensatory damages _____ [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof], with interest thereon at _____ [specify legal or agreed rate] percent per annum from _____ [date of rescission];

On the third COUNT:

6. For the sum of $_____, with interest thereon at _____ [specify legal or agreed rate] percent per annum from _____ [date of rescission].

On all COUNTS:

7. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

8. For such other relief as the Court deems just.

_____ [signature]
Attorney for Plaintiff

CAUTION:
If the rescinded contract is governed by the Unruh Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.) or the Rees-Levering Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.), an affadavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5), showing that the action is being commenced in a proper place for the trial of the action, must be filed concurrently with the complaint, unless the complaint is verified and shows the action is commenced in a proper place for trial under Civ. Code § 1812.10 or Civ. Code § 2984.4 [Civ. Code §§ 1812.10(c), 2984.4(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a); see § 490.61[9]].

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a plaintiff to bring an action to seek restitution after rescission or, in the alternative, damages for breach of contract, when the consideration he or she was to receive under a contract or lease failed in whole or in material part [see Civ. Code §§ 1689(b)(2), (4), 1692, 3300]. The common count for money had and received is an additional alternative ground for recovery of sums paid by plaintiff under the rescinded contract [see Philpott v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 512, 518, 36 P.2d 635 (propriety of pleading express count and common count based on same facts); Bray v. Lowery (1912) 163 Cal. 256, 260, 124 P. 1004 (failure of consideration as proper basis for action for money had and received)]. If plaintiff's performance, or part performance, took the form of work, labor, or services rather than money, then quantum meruit is the appropriate common count, not money had and received as set forth in the foregoing form [Oliver v. Campbell (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 298, 304, 273 P.2d 15 (after employer's repudiation by wrongful discharge, employee may recover reasonable value of services rendered on quantum meruit even if reasonable value exceeds contract rate); Mayo v. Pacific Project Consultants, Inc. (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1013, 1018-1019, 82 Cal. Rptr. 117 ; for a form of complaint based on quantum meruit, see Ch. 121, Common Counts].

If the transaction involved a deed or other instrument that may cause plaintiff harm if left outstanding, a count for cancellation may be added. For forms of complaint for cancellation, see Ch. 107, Cancellation of Instruments . For forms of complaint containing causes of action for both rescission and cancellation of real property transactions and the instrument created by them, see Ch. 569, Vendor and Purchaser .

[3] Allegations

[a] Preliminary Allegations

The first count of this complaint incorporates the allegations from § 490.61 regarding the capacity and residence of the parties (Paragraphs 1-3), the formation of the contract or lease being rescinded (Paragraph 4), and the extent of plaintiff's performance or excuse for nonperformance (Paragraph 5). For discussion of those allegations, see § 490.61.

[b] Failure of Consideration

Optional Paragraph 6 is for use when defendant's performance was conditioned on the occurrence of an event or performance of some act to allege the performance, happening, or waiver of the condition precedent or concurrent [see Ch. 140, Contracts].

Alternative Paragraphs 7 allege failure of consideration based on one of the following:

- Defendant's total failure to perform the contract [Paragraph 7, first alternative provision].

- Defendant's material breach of the contract [Paragraph 7, second alternative provision].

- Defendant's repudiation of the contract [Paragraph 7, third alternative provision; see Oliver v. Campbell (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 298, 302, 273 P.2d 15] . For discussion of repudiation of a contract, see § 490.16[3][g]. For a complaint for damages based on anticipatory repudiation, see Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.105.

All of the above alternatives allege facts establishing that the breach or failure is total or material [Civ. Code § 1689(b)(2)-(4); see also Fountain v. Semi-Tropic L. & W. Co. (1893) 99 Cal. 677, 680-681, 34 P. 497 (what constitutes material breach or failure); Wyler v. Feuer (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 392, 403-404, 149 Cal. Rptr. 626 (partial failure of consideration under Civ. Code § 1689(b)(2) must be material to provide basis for rescission)]. For additional discussion of these grounds for rescission, see § 490.16[3][b][ii]

Under Civ. Code § 1689(b)(3) and*(b)(4)*, rescission is available even if the defendant was not the cause of the failure of consideration [see Nelson v. Sperling (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 194, 195-196, 76 Cal. Rptr. 481 (Civ. Code § 1689(b)(4))].

[c] Other Allegations

The first count of this complaint incorporates allegations from § 490.61 regarding the following:

- Plaintiff's injury [Paragraph 8; see Coleman v. Mora (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 137, 150, 69 Cal. Rptr. 166 ; Wilson v. Corrugated KraftContainers (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 691, 697, 256 P.2d 1012 (willful default may be material failure justifying rescission even though no economic loss ensues)].

- That plaintiff gave notice of rescission and offered to restore, or facts showing that restoration is not necessary, or allegations that service of the summons and complaint are to serve as notice of rescission and/or offer of restoration [Alternative Paragraphs 9; see Civ. Code § 1691; Oliver v. Campbell (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 298, 306, 273 P.2d 15 (plaintiff need not restore reasonable value of services he or she performed before defendant's breach)].

- Optional allegations regarding plaintiff's additional or consequential damages [Paragraph 10; see Civ. Code § 1692; see, e.g., Runyan v. Pacific Air Industries, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 304, 308 n.3, 310-313, 318-319, 85 Cal. Rptr. 138, 466 P.2d 682 (rescission of franchise agreement, loss of former salary, training, and net operating expenses)].

These allegations are discussed in § 490.61. The essential allegations for money had and received are discussed in § 490.61.

[d] Damages for Breach of Contract

The allegations in the count for damages for breach of contract differ from those in the count for relief based on rescission only in that plaintiff's injury is assigned a money value in the count for damages (Paragraph 12), while allegation in the count for relief based on rescission did not necessarily do so [see Coleman v. Mora (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 137, 150, 69 Cal. Rptr. 166 ; Wilson v. Corrugated Kraft Containers (1953) 117 Cal. App. 2d 691, 697, 256 P.2d 1012 (willful default may be material failure justifying rescission even though no economic loss ensues)].

A vendor who rescinds a contract for the sale of personal property is entitled to the cost of replacement if the specific property cannot be returned [Gardiner Solder v. SupAlloy Corp. (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 1537, 1544, 284 Cal. Rptr. 206 (seller of solder sought rescission and restitution after solder had been shipped and buyer had failed to pay)].

[4] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless it is a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. § 85]. Actions to cancel or rescind a contract when the relief is sought in connection with an action to recover money not exceeding $25,000 or property of a value not exceeding $25,000, paid or delivered under or in consideration of the contract, are limited civil cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(a)(3)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case and must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

If the gravamen of an action for relief based on rescission is deemed to be quasi-contractual arising from the implied contract for restitution, the proper venue is the county in which the obligation is to be performed, in which the contract was entered into, or in which the defendant resides at the commencement of the action. If no place is specified as the place of performance, performance is due where the liability was incurred [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); see Philpott v. Superior Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 512, 517-518, 524-526, 36 P.2d 635 (considering jurisdiction under former law, not venue; when tort is waived action for money had and received or quantum meruit as ex contractu)]. The implied contract is formed when and where the notice of rescission is served, which will usually be the defendant's residence or principal place of business [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a); Fitzhugh v. University Realty Co. (1920) 46 Cal. App. 198, 201, 188 P. 1023 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 (venue for action against corporation or association, same as venue for contract action under Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a) with additional option of county of principal place of business)].

If the rescinded contract is governed by the Unruh Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.) or the Rees-Levering Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.), or arises from an offer or provision of goods, services, loans or extensions of credit intended primarily for personal, family or household use, or from a transaction consummated as the result of either an unsolicited telephone call made by a seller or a telephone call or electronic transmission made by the buyer or lessee in response to a solicitation by the seller [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b)], special venue requirements apply [Civ. Code §§ 1812.10, 2984.4; Code Civ. Proc. § 396a]. Those requirements are discussed in § 490.61.

[7] Decisions

[a] Common Count

After breach of contract by employer that is material enough to warrant rescission by employee, employee is entitled to recover reasonable value of services rendered on quantum meruit even if reasonable value exceeds contract rate. Oliver v. Campbell (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 298, 304, 273 P.2d 15

[b] Consequential Damages

After rescission for failure of defendant's performance, plaintiff is entitled to recover loss of income from date service-area contract was signed to date of notice of rescission at rate of former salary, training, and operating expenses, less gross income from franchise operation. Runyan v. Pacific Air Industries, Inc. (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 304, 308 n.3, 310-313, 318-319, 85 Cal. Rptr. 138, 466 P.2d 682

[c] Failure of Consideration

When agreement for sale of block of stock required purchaser to make tender offer for outstanding shares held by other minority interests at price no less than price paid to seller, and, if purchaser acquired 80 percent of shares, to adjust price paid to seller to reflect price paid to other offerees, purchaser's failure to make tender offer was breach of contract and failure of consideration; whether failure of consideration was sufficiently material to allow seller to rescind was question of fact. FDIC v. Air Florida System, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 822 F.2d 833, 839-840

No mistake of fact or failure of consideration, only error in judgment, was established when contract became unprofitable for party who knew that its value could be effected by particular future event and made no provision in contract with respect to that risk; risk is borne by that party, who is not entitled to avoid, rescind, or reform contract. *Mosher v. Partial failure of consideration under Civ. Code § 1689(b)(2) required to be material to justify rescission. Wyler v. Feuer (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 392, 403-404, 149 Cal. Rptr. 626 ; Crofoot Lumber, Inc. v. Thompson (1958) 163 Cal. App. 2d 324, 332-333, 329 P.2d 302

When goods are of no use for purpose for which they were purchased, failure of consideration is total, and restoration need not be made prior to suit. Hot-N-Kold Corp. v. Todd (1930) 105 Cal. App. 718, 723, 288 P. 687

Failure to use money loaned for agreed purpose is failure of consideration. Richards v. Tavares (1930) 105 Cal. App. 261, 269, 287 P. 552

[e] Repudiation

Obligor's statement to obligee indicating that obligor will breach important contractual promise, thereby substantially impairing value of contract, constitutes repudiation of contract, entitling obligee to restitution; restitution is appropriate whether or not contracts ultimately would have produced financial gain to plaintiff. Mobil Oil Exploration & Producing Southeast, Inc. v. United States (2000) 530 U.S. 604, 120 S. Ct. 2423, 147 L. Ed. 2d 528, 534, 543-544

At the time plaintiff and defendant entered into the _____ (contract or lease) (, and at the time plaintiff rendered his/her performance [and accepted defendant's performance] thereunder), plaintiff was a person of unsound mind, substantially unable _____ (to manage his/her own financial resources and/or to resist fraud or undue influence).]

[10. On _____ (date), plaintiff was adjudicated incompetent by order of the _____ (above-entitled or specify other) Court in Case No. _____.]

[11. Plaintiff has been damaged in that _____ (set forth any facts showing harm from bargain, e.g., in that he parted with property worth approximately $33,000, which then represented approximately two-thirds of his entire net worth, in return for an unprofitable orchard, on real property worth only $12,000).]

12. [Notice of rescission and offer to restore or allegation that service of complaint is to serve as notice and offer. See § 490.61[1], Alternative Paragraphs 13.]

[13. Consequential damages, if any. See § 490.61[1], Paragraph 14.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment as follows:

1. That this Court declare that the _____ [contract or lease] has been rescinded;

2. That defendant be ordered to pay plaintiff the following sums:

[Use any or all of the following subparagraphs as applicable]

a. The consideration paid by plaintiff in the sum of $_____, with interest thereon at _____ [specify legal or agreed rate] percent per annumfrom _____ [date of rescission];

b. The sums paid, or which will be paid, by plaintiff for _____ [enumerate other items for which plaintiff will have to be reimbursed to be placed in the position he or she was in prior to the execution of the contract being rescinded, e.g., losses incurred in operating the orchard]_____ [in the sum of $_____ or according to proof], with interest thereon at _____ [specify legal or agreed rate] percent per annum from _____ [date of rescission];

3. That plaintiff be ordered to _____ [specify, e.g., return title and possession of the real and personal property to the defendant] on condition that defendant pay to plaintiff the sums as ordered by the judgment of this Court;

[4. For reasonable attorney's fees as _____ (provided for in the contract or authorized by _____ [specify any applicable statute that provides for attorney's fees, e.g., Civ. Code § 2983.4]) according to proof.]

5. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

6. For such other relief as the Court deems just.

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 490.61[1].]

CAUTION:

If the rescinded contract is governed by the Unruh Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.) or the Rees-Levering Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.), an affadavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5), showing that the action is being commenced in a proper place for the trial of the action, must be filed concurrently with the foregoing complaint, unless the complaint is verified and shows the action is commenced in a proper place for trial under Civ. Code § 1812.10 or Civ. Code § 2984.4 [Civ. Code §§ 1812.10(c), 2984.4(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a); see § 490.61[9]]. In a limited civil case that arises from an offer or provision of goods, services, loans or extensions of credit intended primarily for personal, family or household use, or from a transaction consummated as the result of either an unsolicited telephone call made by a seller or a telephone call or electronic transmission made by the buyer or lessee in response to a solicitation by the seller [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b)], the complaint must be accompanied by an affidavit of plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney showing that the action is being commenced in the proper court, unless the complaint is verified and shows that the action and showsthat the action is being commenced in the proper court [Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a)].

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by an adult plaintiff, appearing alone, or by his or her conservator or guardian ad litem if one has been appointed, to bring an action for restitution after rescission on the ground that plaintiff had no understanding of the nature, purpose, and effect of the contract or conveyance rescinded [see Civ. Code §§ 39(a), 1689(b)(7)]. If the plaintiff is incompetent at the time of the commencement of the action and no conservator of the estate has been appointed, a guardian ad litem will have to be appointed to represent the incompetent in the action [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 372(a), 373 (party who is incompetent is required to appear by conservator or guardian ad litem); for a petition for appointment of a guardian ad litem, see Ch. 291, Guardians ad Litem].

When using this form, an attorney should consider whether other grounds for rescission, such as unsound mind, undue influence, or mistake, exist in the particular situation and should be alleged [see Odorizzi v. Bloomfield School Dist. (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 123, 131, 54 Cal. Rptr. 533 (continuum of undue susceptibility in which weakness that provides sufficient ground to rescind for undue influence is lesser degree of weakness than lack of capacity to make contract under Civ. Code § 39)]. Allegations setting forth those grounds are in Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake.

If the transaction involved a deed or other instrument that may cause plaintiff harm if left outstanding, a count for cancellation may be added. For complaints for cancellation, see Ch. 107, Cancellation of Instruments . For complaints containing causes of action for both rescission and cancellation of real property transactions and the instrument created by them, see Ch. 569, Vendor and Purchaser .

[3] Allegations

This complaint provides allegations for three alternatives as to plaintiff's appearance (Introduction and Alternative Paragraphs 1). If the plaintiff is competent at the time the action is commenced, he or she may appear alone [Code Civ. Proc. § 367]. If a conservator of the estate has been appointed, plaintiff may appear by the conservator of his or her estate [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 372(a), 373; see In re Marriage of Higgason (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 476, 484, 110 Cal. Rptr. 897, 516 P.2d 289 , overruled on other grounds (when conservator has been appointed, conservatee should not appear in action except by conservator or guardian ad litem)]. A guardian ad litem can be appointed even if there is a conservator of the estate if the conservator has not acted or has a conflict of interest or if it is otherwise appropriate [Boyd v. Lancaster (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 103, 108-109, 132 P.2d 214 (inaction)].

Paragraphs are incorporated from other forms to allege:

- Defendants' capacities and residences, if necessary to establish venue or for any other reason (Paragraphs 2-4) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 395(a), 395.5; see also § 490.62[4]].

- Formation of the contract, and the extent to which either or both parties have performed under it (Paragraphs 5-7).

- The giving notice of rescission and the making of an offer to restore (alternative Paragraphs 12) [Civ. Code § 1691; Burgess v. Security-First Nat. Bank (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 808, 818-821, 113 P.2d 298] .

Paragraph 8 of this form alleges plaintiff's incompetence with regard to the particular transaction at issue [Civ. Code § 39; see Guidici v. Guidici (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 497, 502, 41 P.2d 932 (incapacity may arise from intoxication of such a degree as to deprive person of reason and understanding; Drum v. Bummer (1946) 77 Cal. App. 2d 453, 460, 175 P.2d 879] .

This complaint includes optional paragraphs for use to allege the following:

- That the plaintiff was of unsound mind because he or she was substantially unable to manage his or her own financial resources or to resist fraud or undue influence (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code § 39(b) (rebuttable presumption affecting burden of proof that person is of unsound mind)].

- That the plaintiff has been adjudicated incompetent since the contract was made (Paragraph 9) [see Prob. Code § 1872(a) (appointment of conservator as adjudication of conservatee's lack of capacity to enter into contracts except as provided in Prob. Code §§ 1872(b)-1876); but see In re Marriage of Higgason (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 476, 484, 110 Cal. Rptr. 897, 516 P.2d 289 (decided before enactment of Prob. Code § 1872) (overruled on other grounds in In re Marriage of Dawley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 342, 352, 131 Cal. Rptr. 3, 551 P.2d 323)].

- That the plaintiff entered into the transaction for less than adequate consideration or any other facts tending to establish the inequity of the transaction or incompetence of plaintiff in entering into it (Paragraph 11) [see, e.g., Guidici v. Guidici (1935) 2 Cal. 2d 497, 499-501, 41 P.2d 932 ; Philbrook v. Howard (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 210, 213, 320 P.2d 609] .

- Any damages sustained by plaintiff as a result of the transaction (Paragraph 13) [Civ. Code § 1692 (providing for complete relief); Weseman v. Latham (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 841, 845-846, 315 P.2d 364 (defendant's profit and expenses deducted from amount plaintiff was required to restore)].

[4] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

[8] Decisions

[a] Incompetency as Ground for Rescission

Right of incompetent under Civ. Code § 39 to rescind is entirely predicated on his or her incompetency; defendant's fraud or knowledge of plaintiff's incompetency is not required. Weseman v. Latham (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 841, 846, 315 P.2d 364 ; Neale v. Sterling (1931) 117 Cal. App. 507, 509, 4 P.2d 250

Right of incompetent under Civ. Code § 39 is supported by finding of incompetency; overreaching by defendant is not required. Stratton v. Grant (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 814, 816-817, 294 P.2d 500

Right of incompetent under Civ. Code § 39 to rescind does not require that he or she have been adjudicated incompetent prior to transaction. Neale v. Sterling (1931) 117 Cal. App. 507, 509, 4 P.2d 250

[b] Lack of Understanding

Intoxication that deprives person of reason and understanding is basis for incapacity. Guidici v. Guidici (1932) 2 Cal. 2d 497, 502, 41 P.2d 932 ; Walton v. Bank of California (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 527, 541, 32 Cal. Rptr. 856 (plaintiff found competent); Mundorff v. Ramm (1924) 66 Cal. App. 553, 565, 226 P. 820

To rescind under Civ. Code § 39, test is whether or not person could deal with subject matter of contract with full understanding of his or her rights and nature, purpose, and effect of what he or she did with respect to particular transaction; incompetency to enter any kind of contract is not required. Smalley v. Baker (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 824, 832, 69 Cal. Rptr. 521 (plaintiff found competent); Walton v. Bank of California (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 527, 541, 32 Cal. Rptr. 856 (plaintiff found competent); Peterson v. Ellebrecht (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 718, 721, 23 Cal. Rptr. 349 ; Philbrook v. Howard (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 210, 214, 320 P.2d 609 ; Stratton v. Grant (1956) 139 Cal. App. 2d 814, 817, 294 P.2d 500 ; Drum v. Bummer (1946) 77 Cal. App. 2d 453, 460, 175 P.2d 879

Test of understanding varies from one contract to next; test is cognitive rather than motivational; imprudent tendencies of manic phase of manic depression is example of motivational test applied in some jurisdictions; California test is narrower, focusing only on impaired understanding. Smalley v. Baker (1968) 262 Cal. App. 2d 824, 832-835, 69 Cal. Rptr. 521

Incompetency is question of fact to be determined by jury or trial court; findings supported by evidence will not be disturbed on appeal. Peterson v. Ellebrecht (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 718, 721, 23 Cal. Rptr. 349

Evidence that one's mental capacity is limited to simple, everyday situations, and that one is unable to deal with abstractions, such as concept of title to property, supports finding that one is unable to competently deal with subject matter with full understanding of his or her rights. Peterson v. Ellebrecht (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 718, 722, 23 Cal. Rptr. 349

One lacking enough mental vigor to protect him or herself against imposition is entitled to protection even though mental weakness is not such as to justify one being regarded as totally incompetent. Philbrook v. Howard (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 210, 214, 320 P.2d 609

Evidence of incompetence before and after transaction is admissible and will support finding of incompetence despite existence of some evidence of competence at time of transaction. Mundorff v. Ramm (1924) 66 Cal. App. 553, 565-566, 226 P. 820

[c] Limitations and Laches

If based on fraud or mistake, complaint is required to allege discovery within three years prior to commencement of action to avoid bar of former Code Civ. Prov. § 338.4 (now see Code. Civ. Proc. § 338(d)); laches not applicable when statute of limitation for fraud applies. Castro v. Geil (1895) 110 Cal. 292, 295-296, 42 P. 804

Laches does not bar rescission when guardian acted as soon as she discovered facts. Philbrook v. Howard (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 210, 215, 320 P.2d 609

Four-year limitation of Code Civ. Proc. § 343 did not bar rescission of deed when plaintiff never recovered his mental powers sufficiently to comprehend situations and guardian ad litem first learned of facts one month before action was brought Boyd v. Lancaster (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 103, 111, 132 P.2d 214

[d] Party Plaintiff

When conservator has been appointed, Code Civ. Proc. § 372 requires conservatee to appear in action by conservator or guardian ad litem; other party can raise defect; guardian ad litem is only representative, not party. In re Marriage of Higgason (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 476, 484, 110 Cal. Rptr. 897, 516 P.2d 289 (overruled on other grounds in In re Marriage of Dawley (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 342, 352, 131 Cal. Rptr. 3, 551 P.2d 323)

Suit should be brought in name of incompetent by guardian; cause of action is ward's not guardian's; complaint in name of guardian is demurrable for want of plaintiff. Dixon v. Gries (1895) 106 Cal. 506, 507, 39 P. 857 ; Fox v. Minor (1867) 32 Cal. 111, 117-119

[e] Restoration or Offer to Restore

Failure of plaintiff to make offer to restore is not fatal since decree could be conditioned on payment or restoration. Weseman v. Latham (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 841, 846-847, 315 P.2d 364

Offer to restore made during trial is sufficient. Boyd v. Lancaster (1942) 56 Cal. App. 2d 103, 109-111, 132 P.2d 214

If offer to restore was made prior to suit, allegation or finding that parties can be restored to status quo is not necessary. Neale v. Sterling (1931) 117 Cal. App. 507, 509-510, 4 P.2d 250

Right of incompetent under Civ. Code § 39 to rescind held barred for failure to offer to restore value with which other party had parted in reliance on contract. Burgess v. Security-First Nat. Bank (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 808, 818-821, 113 P.2d 298

Plaintiff alleges:

FIRST COUNT
(Relief Based on Rescission)

1. [Capacity and residence of defendant. See § 490.61[1], Paragraph 2.]

[2. Fictitious name allegations. See § 490.61[1], Paragraph 3.]

[3. Agency allegations. See § 490.61[1], Paragraph 4.]

4. On or about _____ [date], at _____, California, [if circumstances in which agreement was made bear on its unlawfulness, set forth those circumstance, e.g., plaintiff was a stockholder in a corporation of which defendant was president and which held certain logging permits relating to land owned by the United States. The permits were subject to cancellation or renewal. Defendant told plaintiff that certain persons of authority and influence would require financial renumeration to successfully negotiate the renewal of the logging rights. In response to this specific request of defendant plaintiff and defendant entered into _____ [a written or an oral] _____ [contract or lease] whereby _____ [describe the contract or lease, setting forth the purpose or consideration that renders it and/or its enforcement unlawful and/or prejudicial to public policy, attaching a copy if desired, e.g., plaintiff was to make $35,000 in cash or gold bars available to defendant. Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 490.61[1].]

CAUTION:

If the rescinded contract is governed by the Unruh Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.) or the Rees-Levering Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.), an affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5), showing that the action is being commenced in a proper place for the trial of the action, must be filed concurrently with the complaint, unless the complaint is verified and shows the action is commenced in a proper place for trial under Civ. Code § 1812.10 or Civ. Code § 2984.4 [Civ. Code §§ 1812.10(c), 2984.4(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a); see § 490.61]. In a limited civil case that arises from an offer or provision of goods, services, loans or extensions of credit intended primarily for personal, family or household use, or from a transaction consummated as the result of either an unsolicited telephone call made by a seller or a telephone call or electronic transmission made by the buyer or lessee in response to a solicitation by the seller [see Code Civ. Proc. § 395(b)], the complaint must be accompanied by an affidavit of plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney showing that the action is being commenced in the proper court, unless the complaint is verified and shows that the action and shows that the action is being commenced in the proper court [Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a)].

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a plaintiff to bring an action for restitution after rescission of a contract or lease that is unlawful or that would prejudice the public interest if allowed to stand [see Civ. Code § 1689(b)(5),(6), see also § 490.16[3][c]]. If the transaction rescinded concerns an interest in real property, an additional count for quiet title may be necessary to prevent a cloud on plaintiff's title [see, e.g., Harper v. Raya (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 908, 913, 201 Cal. Rptr. 563 (suggesting quiet title or forcible detainer as proper remedy to terminate possession and claimed life estate of former mistress); see Ch. 482, Quieting Title , and Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions]. If a written instrument must be cancelled to give the plaintiff complete relief, a count for cancellation should be added [see Civ. Code § 3412; see Ch. 107, Cancellation of Instruments]. Other complaints for relief based on rescission on the ground of noncompliance with particular statutes, mostly licensing statutes and consumer protection statutes, may be found in the chapters listed under References, Cross References.

[3] Allegations

In addition to allegations incorporated from previous forms, this complaint alleges the following:

- The formation and relevant terms of the contract (Paragraph 4).

- The particular statute or public policy or interest that is offended by the contract or lease (alternative Paragraphs 5) [see Civ. Code § 1689(b)(5),(6), see also § 490.16[3][c]].

- The extent of plaintiff's performance (Paragraph 6).

- The extent of defendant's performance (Paragraph 7).

Note that the theory that provides the basis for the factual allegations used as examples requires the plaintiff to withdraw from the illegal bargain while the contract is still executory [see, e.g., Wassermann v. Sloss (1897) 117 Cal. 425, 428, 49 P. 566 (imposition of constructive trust on stock to be used as bribe); cf. Tognazzi v. Wilhelm (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 123, 125-126, 56 P.2d 1227 (agreement to defraud creditor was complete when property is transferred, even if creditor does not yet have judgment)].

If plaintiff is proceeding under Civ. Code § 1689.2 [for discussion, see § 490.16[3][d]], he or she does not have to withdraw while the contract is executory, but can only recover net losses, that is, amounts paid pursuant to the scheme, less any amounts or consideration received [Civ. Code § 1689.2].

Contract made to defraud creditors was void and unenforceable by colluding vendee. Severance v. Knight-Counihan Co. (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 561, 567-569, 177 P.2d 4

[g] Drugs and Drug Paraphernalia

Court may refuse to enforce alleged settlement agreement for sums owed as purchase price for company that manufactured jewelry and drug paraphernalia; fact that law making manufacture of paraphernalia illegal was enacted after sale was irrelevant; statute prohibiting possession, use, or transfer of marijuana was basis for public policy against manufacture of paraphernalia when company was sold. Bovard v. American Horse Enterprises, Inc. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 832, 838-841, 247 Cal. Rptr. 340

[h] Failure to Obtain License

Rescission and restitution of sums paid under life care contract with unlicensed party was required to protect class of persons from unlicensed and unsupervised activities of another; no unjust enrichment or forfeiture was found. Stenger v. Anderson (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 970, 978-979, 59 Cal. Rptr. 844, 429 P.2d 164

When illegality consists of failure to secure license, and performance has already been rendered to parties designed to be protected by licensing statute, culpable party was unable to rely on licensing statute to retain proceeds of transaction and avoid payment to innocent party. Holland v. Morgan & Peacock Properties (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 206, 211, 335 P.2d 769

[i] Gambling

Public policy is best served by court's refusal to aid recovery of amounts lost on wager, even rigged wager. Bradley v. Doherty (1973) 30 Cal. App. 3d 991, 997-998, 106 Cal. Rptr. 725 ; Schmitt v. Gibson (1910) 12 Cal. App. 407, 412-413, 415-416, 107 P. 571

Gambling debt is not supported by consideration and is therefore unenforceable, unlawful; payment of gambling debt is transfer of community funds without consent of other spouse; nongambler spouse is entitled to avoid transfer. Novo v.

Hotel Del Rio (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 304, 307-308, 295 P.2d 576

Restaurant lease given in partial consideration of percentage of profits earned from illegal gambling on premises is illegal and unenforceable; consideration not severable; waiver of claim for gambling profits does not entitle lessee to recover value of improvements to premises. Fong v. Miller (1951) 105 Cal. App. 2d 411, 413-415, 233 P.2d 606

[j] Inequality of Fault

When parties to executed illegal contract are not equally at fault, recovery by party whose fault is slight is permitted. Tiedje v. Aluminum Taper Milling Co. (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 450, 454, 296 P.2d 554 ; Severance v. Knight-Counihan Co. (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 561, 569, 177 P.2d 4 (dicta)

Whether or not parties are equally at fault is question of fact. Tiedje v. Aluminum Taper Milling Co. (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 450, 455, 296 P.2d 554

Relatively innocent party is chargeable with knowledge of law; if he or she has no duty to perform under applicable law, he or she is entitled to assume other party complied with law. Tiedje v. Aluminum Taper Milling Co. (1956) 46 Cal. 2d 450, 455, 296 P.2d 554

If parties are not in pari delicto, party who is only slightly at fault is entitled to recover money paid under executory contract. Severance v. Knight-Counihan Co. (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 561, 569, 177 P.2d 4 (dicta); McAllister v. Drapeau (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 102, 112, 92 P.2d 911

Party not equally at fault is entitled to repudiate contract any time before it is executed and reclaim consideration furnished thereunder. Smith v. Bach (1920) 183 Cal. 259, 263-264, 191 P. 14

[k] Laches

Laches, estoppel not applicable to illegal contract. Colby v. Title Ins. and Trust Co. (1911) 160 Cal. 632, 638-644, 117 P. 913

[l] Parties

Third party whose interests are affected by contract is entitled to invoke its illegality. River Garden Farms, Inc. v. Superior Court (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 986, 1000, 103 Cal. Rptr. 498 (nonsettling tortfeasor attacking settlements)

[m] Persons Accused of Crime

Party who committed no crime and whose consent was obtained in return for promise not to prosecute is not in pari delicto and is entitled to defeat enforcement of contract and have cancellation and restoration; such consideration is void. Colby v. Title Ins. and Trust Co. (1911) 160 Cal. 632, 638-644, 117 P. 913 ; Woodham v. Allen (1900) 130 Cal. 194, 198-199, 62 P. 398

Police officer's entering into any transaction with prisoner in his or her custody is against public policy; public confidence in law enforcement official requires avoidance of such contract; any contract by officer that interferes with unbiased discharge of his or her duty to public in exercise of office is against public policy. Grimes v. Allen (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 653, 656-657, 209 P.2d 651

[n] Ratification

One is never estopped to deny validity of illegal contract because he or she accepted receipts under it; illegal contract is not subject to ratification. Fewel & Dawes, Inc. v. Pratt (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 85, 91, 109 P.2d 650 ; Russell v. Soldinger (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 633, 646, 131 Cal. Rptr. 145

Payment on note given for illegal consideration is not ratification of transaction. Woodham v. Allen (1900) 130 Cal. 194, 199, 62 P. 398

[o] Renunciation During Locus Penitentiae

Recovery of what one paid under illegal contract is allowed even to party equally at fault if he or she repudiates contract before illegal part of bargain is executed. Severance v. Knight-Counihan Co. (1947) 29 Cal. 2d 561, 569,177 P.2d 4 (dicta); Wassermann v. Sloss (1897) 117 Cal. 425, 428, 49 P. 566 (imposition of constructive trust on stock to be used as bribe)

[p] Restoration by Plaintiff

Necessity of restoration to wrongdoer in order for innocent party to rescind illegal transaction. People ex rel Mosk v. Barenfeld (1962) 203 Cal. App. 2d 166, 181-182, 21 Cal. Rptr. 501

[q] Silence

Although it is illegal and against public policy for one who has duty to reveal material fact to court to agree to conceal that fact, provision in settlement agreement requiring parties to keep agreement private did not amount to agreement to suppress evidence and therefore was not illegal or against public policy. Philippine Export & Foreign Loan Guarantee Corp. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1058, 1082-1083, 267 Cal. Rptr. 457

[r] Spouses

Contract of married woman to perform domestic services that are incidental to her marital status is void as against public policy because it would breed discord within and mischief to marital relation; husband not in pari delicto entitled to recover sums paid thereunder. Brooks v. Brooks (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 347, 349-351, 119 P.2d 970

[s] Subdivided Lands

Innocent purchaser is entitled to rescind purchase of real property for seller's failure to comply with Bus. & Prof. Code § 11012 and to recover money paid on contract. Murphy v. San Gabriel Mfg. Co. (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 365, 368-369, 222 P.2d 85

[t] Tax Evasion

Court may refuse to enforce oral agreement for payment of interest when note stated that it did not bear interest and purpose of secret oral agreement was to allow payee not to have to report interest as income on tax returns. Homami v. Iranzadi (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1104, 1112, 260 Cal. Rptr. 6

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.65

§ 490.65 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)] to Action for Relief Based on Rescission of Contract--Waiver of Right to Rescind [Civ. Code § 1691]--General Form

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)] to Action for Relief Based on Rescission of Contract--Waiver of Right to Rescind [Civ. Code § 1691]--General Form

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES that:

1. On _____ [date], plaintiff had full knowledge _____ [specify facts giving rise to plaintiff's right to rescind, e.g., of the wave damage and erosion thatconstitute the alleged failure on consideration referred to in the complaint. The damage occurred in January and February, 1992. Plaintiff had possession of the property from and after October 14, 1991. Plaintiff and defendant discussed the damage in March, 1992].

2. Plaintiff waived his/her/its right to rescind the _____[contract or lease] by _____ [specify actions of plaintiff which constitute waiver, e.g., making payments due to this defendant under the contract for a period of 18 months after learning of the alleged failure of consideration. This continuation of payments] was consistent with an intention to treat the _____ [contract or lease] as still valid, viable, and binding.

[2] Use of Form

This form of affirmative defense is for use in an answer to an action for relief based on rescission when the plaintiff has waived his or her right to rescind the contract or lease [see Civ. Code § 1691]. The form is based in part on the facts in Carpenter v. First Trust etc. Bank (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 668, 54 P.2d 495 . For forms of affirmative defenses based on prejudicial delay and on plaintiff's election of another remedy, see § 490.66 and 490.67, respectively.

[3] State Statutes

Notice of rescission is required to be given promptly on learning of facts justifying rescission. Civ. Code § 1691

[4] Decisions

Waiver is question of fact to be determined after consideration of all circumstances of particular case. Hefferan v. Freebairn (1950) 34 Cal. 2d 715, 722, 214 P.2d 386 (no waiver found); Howell v. Courtesy Chevrolet, Inc. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 391, 405, 94 Cal. Rptr. 33

Acceptance of benefits, even when stipulated to be "without prejudice," i waiver, which bars rescission. Neet v. Holmes (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 447, 458-460, 154 P.2d 854

Waiver of one breach or ground for rescission is not waiver of subsequent or other breach or ground. Hunt v. L. M. Field, Inc. (1927) 202 Cal. 701, 705-706, 262 P. 730 ; Bowman v. Santa Clara County (1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 707, 713, 315 P.2d 67

By joining in grant of supplemental easement to same party, vendee waives right to rescind on ground of defect in title due to existence of easement; delay in claiming rescission and payment of balance of purchase price is election to affirm contract. Wilson v. Beazley (1921) 186 Cal. 437, 441-442, 199 P. 772

Estoppel, but not waiver, requires detrimental reliance by other party. Rubin v. Los Angeles Fed. Sav. & Loan Assn. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 292, 298, 205 Cal. Rptr. 455

Commencement and continuation of action for damages for two and one-half years by party who has notice of facts allowing rescission is election of remedies and waiver of right to rescind. Doctor v. Lakeridge Constr. Co. (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 715, 720-721, 60 Cal. Rptr. 824

Acceptance of late performance is waiver of right to rescind. Leiter v. Eltinge (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 306, 317, 54 Cal. Rptr. 703

Waiver of right to rescind is affirmative defense to action for relief based on rescission, which must be pleaded. Calabrese v. Rexall Drug & Chemical Co. (1963) 218 Cal. App. 2d 774, 782, 785, 32 Cal. Rptr. 665

Under both Commercial Code and Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act, reasonable continued use of motorized vehicle that does not conform to express warranty did not, as matter of law, amount to waiver of right to rescind or to revoke acceptance. Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 897-898, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES that:

1. On or before _____ [date], plaintiff had full knowledge _____ [specify facts giving rise to plaintiff's right to rescind, e.g., that the 1996 crop and the gross receipts from it were not as large as those of the three previous years. Plaintiff and defendant discussed this in March, 1997].

[EITHER, if no notice of rescission was given prior to service of complaint]

2. Plaintiff inexcusably and unreasonably delayed the filing of this action and gave no prior notice of rescission, causing substantial prejudice to plaintiff in that _____ [set forth facts showing prejudice, e.g., during the 18 months after learning of the alleged failure of consideration during which plaintiff continued to operate the business before commencing this action, several large accounts became dissatisfied with plaintiff's service and found other suppliers to meet their needs. The goodwill of the business, its value, and its competitive position in the industry have been so substantially eroded by plaintiff that defendant could not be made whole by its return. Plaintiff's continuation of the business was consistent with an intention to treat the contract of sale as still valid, viable, and binding].

[OR, if notice of rescission and offer to restore were given before commencement of the action]

2. Plaintiff inexcusably and unreasonably delayed providing defendant with notice of rescission and tender of restoration, causing substantial prejudice to plaintiff in that _____ [set forth facts showing prejudice, e.g., during the 18 months after learning of the alleged failure of consideration during which plaintiff continued to operate the business before commencing this action, several large accounts became dissatisfied with plaintiff's service and found other suppliers to meet their needs. The goodwill of the business, its value, and its competitive position in the industry have been so substantially eroded by plaintiff that defendant could not be made whole by its return. Plaintiff's continuation of the business was consistent with an intention to treat the contract of sale as still valid, viable, and binding].

[2] Use of Form

This form of affirmative defense is for use in an answer to an action for relief based on rescission when plaintiff's delay in giving notice of rescission or commencing the action has substantially prejudiced defendant [see Civ. Code § 1693]. For forms raising the affirmative defenses of waiver, plaintiff's election of another remedy, see §§ 490.65 and 490.67, respectively.

[3] State Statutes

Relief based on rescission is not to be denied for delay in giving notice of rescission unless delay has been substantially prejudicial to other party. Civ. Code § 1693

[4] Decisions

Laches requires more than delay or passive acquiescence in acts complained of, and requires other facts making relief inequitable. Neet v. Holmes (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 447, 460, 154 P.2d 854

Employee's delay in giving notice of rescission of settlement agreement resulted in substantial prejudice to employer. Saret-Cook v. Gilbert, Kelly, Crowley & Jennett (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 1211, 1225-1227, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 732

Defrauded buyer entitled to reasonable time to investigate, and time thus consumed was not unreasonable delay. Howell v. Courtesy Chevrolet, Inc. (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 391, 405-406, 94 Cal. Rptr. 33

Rescission was impracticable or inequitable because of intervening rights of third parties to whom defendant had sold land. Shumaker v. Foster (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 216, 221, 276 P.2d 876

Plaintiff's own defaults that prevented defendant from doing anything with land and sale or option by plaintiff of land to third parties provided equitable grounds for denial of rescission. Joshua Tree T. Co. v. Joshua Tree L. Co. (1950) 100 Cal. App. 2d 590, 596-597, 224 P.2d 85

Plaintiff's silence after learning of forged loan documents and endorsement on check for proceeds until lapse of limitation period on lender's action against bank for payment on forged endorsement barred rescission on basis of laches. Merry v. Garibaldi (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 397, 401, 119 P.2d 768

Making payments under contract for two years after discovering facts, during which time value of land depreciated to defendant's prejudice barred rescission. McCray v. Title Ins. & Trust Co. (1936) 12 Cal. App. 2d 537, 540-541, 55 P.2d 1234

PART IV. FORMS

43-490 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 490.67

§ 490.67 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Election of Another Remedy

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Election of Another Remedy

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES that:

1. [Plaintiff's knowledge of grounds for remedy being defended against. See § 490.65[1], Paragraph 1.]

2. By _____ [set forth plaintiff's acts and time during which they occurred, e.g., commencing an action for specific performance on June 17, 1998, and pursuing that action to judgment] plaintiff has _____ [describe injury or prejudice to defendant, e.g., required defendant to keep the property off the market and to expend attorney's fees and defense costs for three years], all to defendant's injury and prejudice and is thereby estopped to now seek _____ [specify remedy, e.g., rescission].

[2] Use of Form

This form of affirmative defense is for use in an answer to any type of action based on rescission when earlier actions or conduct of plaintiff amounted to an election of another remedy [see Steiner v. Rowley (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 713, 720, 221 P.2d 9 ; Modoc Mineral & Oil Co. v. Cal-Vada Drilling etc. Co. (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 868, 874-875, 46 Cal. Rptr. 508 ; see § 490.42[2]]. For instance, the form may be used to claim that plaintiff's own alteration or destruction of the property that would have to be restored on rescission constituted an election to seek only damages [see, e.g., Prichard v. Reitz (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 465, 467-469, 223 Cal. Rptr. 734] .

Conversely, the form may also be used to claim that damages for fraud were barred by a mutual rescission agreement of the parties [see, e.g., Evans v. Rancho Royale Hotel Co. (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 503, 507, 250 P.2d 283] .

For forms of affirmative defenses based on waiver and prejudicial delay, see §§ 490.65 and 490.66, respectively.

Attachment obtained in pursuit of contract remedy estops recovery under tort theory. Estrada v. Alvarez (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 386, 391, 240 P.2d 278

Plaintiff's destruction of house after learning of defects in foundation and believing condition could only be corrected by rebuilding barred relief based on restitution. Prichard v. Reitz (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 465, 467-469, 223 Cal. Rptr. 734

Appeal of judgment for defendant in specific performance action manifested election to pursue one of two inconsistent remedies; because amendment to seek relief based on rescission would prejudice defendant, relief was barred. Lawrence v. Shutt (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 749, 766-767, 75 Cal. Rptr. 533

Foreclosure was election to affirm agreement inconsistent with rescission for fraud inducing loan transaction. City Bank of San Diego v. Ramage (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 570, 587, 72 Cal. Rptr. 273

[b] Acts Not Constituting Election

Filing claim in bankruptcy was not election of remedy absent evidence that dividends had been received on claim. Kraus v. Willow Park Public Golf Course (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 354, 370-371, 140 Cal. Rptr. 744 (action to impose constructive trust on property conveyed due to fraud)

Dismissal of action for relief based on rescission and damages for fraud did not amount to election of remedy barring second action for same remedies arising from same facts when no disadvantages were caused to defendant. Warfield v. Richey (1959) 167 Cal. App. 2d 93, 99, 334 P.2d 101

When plaintiff pleaded damages for fraud and rescission, defendant's offer to restore only part of what plaintiff was entitled to did not bar recovery of fraud damages on theory of election. Mackenzie v. Voelker (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 538, 541, 266 P.2d 867

Plaintiff was entitled to seek rescission even after judgment in her favor for specific performance when defendant had conveyed property to third party and could not comply with specific performance judgment. Timm v. McCartney (1938) 30 Cal. App. 2d 241, 247-248, 85 P.2d 920

Chapter 491 RES JUDICATA
PART I. SCOPE

43-491 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 491.01

§ 491.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the preclusion of civil claims or issues by a prior adjudication, including the terminology used in this field [see § 491.11], claim preclusion, traditionally known as res judicata [see § 491.14], issue preclusion, traditionally known as collateral estoppel [see § 491.15], and the assertion and waiver of the defense [see § 491.17 -491.20]. The discussion also covers the relationship of claim and issue preclusion and their purpose [see § 491.12 -491.13] and federal and sister-state judgments [see § 491.16].

The chapter also discusses the doctrine of judicial estoppel, or preclusion of inconsistent positions [see § 491.21].

The chapter includes a Research Guide [see § 491.40 et seq.] the following forms:

- Demurrer on the ground the action is barred by a prior judgment [see § 491.50].

- Allegations raising the affirmative defense that an action or issue is barred by a prior adjudication [see §§ 491.51 -491.55].

- Notice of motion, declaration, and order for a judicial determination that a judgment is conclusive as to a nonparty [see §§ 491.56, 491.57].

- Notice of motion and order for a separate trial of the special defense of res judicata [see §§ 491.58, 491.59].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-491 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 491.10

§ 491.10 Governing Law

Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1908-1917 govern the conclusiveness and effect of judgments and orders.

The pleading of a judgment is governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 456. The admissibility of a judgment is governed by Evid. Code §§ 1300-1302. Evid. Code § 639 sets forth presumptions applicable to nonconclusive judgments.

Various statutes set forth additional rules concerning the effect of particular types of judgments. For example, Fam. Code § 2212(b) governs the conclusive effect of a judgment annulling marriage and Veh. Code § 40384 governs the effect of a judgment of conviction for violation of Vehicle Code provisions. For a listing of other provisions concerning the conclusive effect of particular types of judgments, see § 491.41[3].

Res judicata and collateral estoppel principles have also been extensively developed by decisional law. In fact, most courts continue to discuss and to apply these principles as a matter of common law, without reference to the their codification under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1908-1917 [see, e.g., Busick v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 967, 972-976, 104 Cal. Rptr. 42, 500 P.2d 1386 ; Lockwood v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 667, 671-672, 206 Cal. Rptr. 785 ; see also Lazzarone v. Bank of America (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 581, 591, 226 Cal. Rptr. 855 (stating that ordinarily, res judicata is a "judicially created" doctrine)].

Chapter 491 RES JUDICATA
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-491 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 491.11

§ 491.11 Terminology

[1] Res Judicata

In traditional usage, "res judicata" (literally "a thing adjudged") referred to the doctrine precluding relitigation of a previously adjudicated claim, while "collateral estoppel" referred to the doctrine precluding relitigation of a previously adjudicated issue [see Restatement (Second) of Judgments Ch. 1, Introduction]. California courts, however, typically use "res judicata" to include both doctrines [see Henn v. Henn (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 323, 329, 161 Cal. Rptr. 502, 605 P.2d 10 ; see also Kahn v. Pelissetti (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 832, 833, 67 Cal. Rptr. 517 ; O'Connor v. O'Leary (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 646, 648, 56 Cal. Rptr. 1] . In accordance with the latter usage, "res judicata" is used in this chapter when referring to both doctrines collectively. For separate definition of the two doctrines, see [2] and [3], below.

[2] Merger and Bar as Claim Preclusion

The traditional or primary aspect of res judicata operates to preclude parties or their privies from relitigating a cause of action that has been finally determined by a court of competent jurisdiction [see Henn v. Henn (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 323, 329, 161 Cal. Rptr. 502, 605 P.2d 10 ; Busick v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 967, 972, 104 Cal. Rptr. 42, 500 P.2d 1386 ; Rice v. Crow (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 725, 734, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110 ; see also Restatement (Second) of Judgments §§ 17-20]. The term "claim preclusion" is used in this chapter to refer to this aspect of res judicata, to distinguish it from the separate aspect of "issue preclusion" (discussed under [3], below), and also to distinguish it from the broader doctrine of res judicata (discussed under [1], above). "Claim preclusion" is the term adopted by the American Law Institute [see Restatement (Second) of Judgments Ch. 1, Introduction].

Claim preclusion consists of the rules of merger and bar, both of which operate to preclude a second action between the same parties or their privies on the same cause [see Busick v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 967, 972-973, 104 Cal. Rptr. 42, 500 P.2d 1386] . Under the rule of merger, a valid, final judgment for the plaintiff merges his or her cause of action in the judgment [Busick v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 967, 973, 104 Cal. Rptr. 42, 500 P.2d 1386] . The merged cause of action is extinguished, and the plaintiff cannot thereafter bring another action on that same cause [Sukut Construction, Inc. v. Cabot, Cabot & Forbes Land Trust (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 527, 530, 157 Cal. Rptr. 289 ; see Restatement (Second) of Judgments §§ 17(1), 18]. The plaintiff's remedies, or those of the person claiming under the plaintiff, are limited to satisfaction of the judgment [Panos v. Great Western Packing Co. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 636, 638-639, 134 P.2d 242 ; Wick v. Wick Tool Co. (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 677, 685, 1 Cal. Rptr. 531] . For a form of affirmative defense allegation based on the rule of merger, see § 491.51.

Under the rule of bar, a valid, final judgment for the defendant extinguishes the plaintiff's cause of action and bars any subsequent action by the plaintiff on that same cause [Panos v. Great Western Packing Co. (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 636, 639-640, 134 P.2d 242 ; Louie Queriolo Trucking, Inc. v. Superior Court (1967) 252 Cal. App. 2d 194, 200, 60 Cal. Rptr. 389 ; Restatement (Second) of Judgments §§ 17(2), 19]. For forms of affirmative defense allegation based on the rule of bar, see §§ 491.52 and 491.53.

[3] Collateral Estoppel as Issue Preclusion

The second aspect of res judicata operates, in the second of two actions that do not involve identical causes of action, to preclude the relitigation of any issue that was decided in the first action, when the second action involves the same parties or their privies, and when the first action was finally determined by a court of competent jurisdiction [see Lockwood v. Superior Court (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 667, 671, 206 Cal. Rptr. 785 ; O'Connor v. O'Leary (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 646, 648, 56 Cal. Rptr. 1] . In other words, the parties or their privies are precluded from relitigating in a new proceeding on a different cause of action issues litigated in a prior proceeding [In re Russell (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 229, 233, 115 Cal. Rptr. 511, 524 P.2d 1295 ; see also Professional Engineers v. Department of Transportation (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 543, 568, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467, 936 P.2d 473] . This aspect of res judicata is commonly termed "collateral estoppel" [see, e.g., Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 828, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229 ; Henn v. Henn (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 323, 329-330, 330 n.4, 161 Cal. Rptr. 502, 605 P.2d 10 ; see also Henn v. Henn (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 323, 330 n.4, 161 Cal. Rptr. 502, 605 P.2d 10 ("judgment by estoppel"); Ion Equipment Corp. v. Nelson (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 868, 881, 168 Cal. Rptr. 361 ("estoppel by judgment")]. The term "issue preclusion" has also been used [see, e.g., Rosse v. DeSoto Cab Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1051, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680 ; see also Rice v. Crow (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 725, 734, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110] , and is so used in this chapter to distinguish this aspect of res judicata from the separate aspect of "claim preclusion" (discussed under [2], above), and also to distinguish it from the broader doctrine of res judicata (discussed under [1], above). "Issue preclusion" is the term adopted by the American Law Institute [see Restatement (Second) of Judgments, Ch. 1, Introduction].

For a form of affirmative defense allegation based on the doctrine of issue preclusion, see § 491.54.

[4] Direct Estoppel as Issue Preclusion

Most commonly, issue preclusion arises from successive suits on different claims and is referred to as collateral estoppel. If, however, the second action is on the same claim, issue preclusion based on the earlier determination is described as direct estoppel. Both collateral estoppel and direct estoppel, like the related doctrine of res judicata have the dual purpose of protecting litigants from the burden of relitigating an identical issue with the same party or his or her privy and of promoting judicial economy by preventing needless litigation [Plumley v. Mockett (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1031, 1050, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 822 ; Sabek, Inc. v. Engelhard Corp. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 992, 997, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882 (after orders quashing service for lack of personal jurisdiction, plaintiff's failure to seek reconsideration or appellate review barred plaintiff from relitigating issue by direct estoppel); see also People v. Mitchell (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 132, 136, 154-156, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 401 (direct estoppel and law of case applied to preclude relitigation of defendant's prior serious felony conviction allegations for purpose of both five-year enhancement and a strike under three strikes law)].

In either of its forms, issue preclusion should be determined according to the same threshold requirements [see Sabek, Inc. v. Engelhard Corp. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 992, 997, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882 ; for discussion of threshold requirements, § 491.15, below].

§ 491.12 Effects of Claim and Issue Preclusion Compared

The preclusive effect of claim preclusion is substantially broader than that of issue preclusion. When successfully asserted as a defense, claim preclusion prevents not only the relitigation of issues that were decided in the former action, but also the relitigation of issues that might have been litigated in the former action [see Busick v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 967, 975, 104 Cal. Rptr. 42, 500 P.2d 1386 ; Duffy v. City of Long Beach (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 1352, 1357-1358, 247 Cal. Rptr. 715 ; see also § 491.14[4], below]. In contrast, issue preclusion only precludes relitigation of issues actually litigated and determined in the prior action [Taylor v. Hawkinson (1957) 47 Cal. 2d 893, 895-896, 306 P.2d 797 ; Corral v. State Farm Mutual Auto. Ins. Co. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 1004, 1010, 155 Cal. Rptr. 342 ; see also § 491.15[3], below]. When the issue is a question of law rather than one of fact, however, the prior determination is not conclusive either if injustice would result or if the public interest requires that relitigation not be foreclosed [City of Sacramento v. State of California (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 51, 64, 266 Cal. Rptr. 139, 785 P.2d 522] .

Chapter 491 RES JUDICATA
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-491 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 491.13

§ 491.13 Purpose of Res Judicata

The doctrine of res judicata rests on the ground that a party who has litigated a matter or had an opportunity to do so should not be permitted to litigate it again to the harassment and vexation of his or her opponent. Public policy and the interests of litigants alike require that there be an end to litigation [Busick v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 967, 972, 104 Cal. Rptr. 42, 500 P.2d 1386 ; see also Rubenstein v. Rubenstein (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 1144, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 707 (whether applied as total bar to further litigation or as collateral estoppel, doctrine rests on sound policy of limiting litigation by preventing party that had one fair adversary hearing on issue from drawing it into controversy again and subjecting other party to further expense in its reexamination); Brinton v. Bankers Pension Services, Inc. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 550, 556, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469 (purpose of res judicata doctrine is to preserve integrity of judicial system, promote judicial economy, and protect litigants from harassment by vexatious litigation)]. The rule of res judicata is to prevent vexatious litigation and to require the parties to rest on one decision in their controversy; res judicata bars not only the reopening of the original controversy, but also subsequent litigation of all issues that were or could have been raised in the original suit [Torrey Pines Bank v. Superior Court (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 813, 821, 265 Cal. Rptr. 217 ; see Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 907, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151 (rule against plaintiff splitting single cause of action so as to make it the basis of several suits is, in part, application of doctrine of res judicata); for provisions relating to vexatious litigants, see Weikel v. TCW Realty Fund II Holding Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 1245, 1249-1250, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25 (res judicata precludes piecemeal litigation by splitting a single cause of action, i.e., dividing a primary right, or relitigation of the same cause of action on a different legal theory or for different relief); see also Ch. 573, Vexatious Litigants].

Chapter 491 RES JUDICATA
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-491 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 491.14

§ 491.14 Claim Preclusion

[1] General Requirements

For the claim preclusion aspect of res judicata to apply as an affirmative defense to an action [Busick v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 967, 974, 104 Cal. Rptr. 42, 500 P.2d 1386] :

- The prior action relied on must have been a final judgment on the merits;
- The present action must be on the same cause of action as the prior action; and
- There must be privity between the parties to the prior action and the present action.

[2] Former Judgment Final

[a] Generally

It is an elementary principle that the doctrine of res judicata applies when the prior judgment is final [People ex rel. Gow v. Mitchell Brothers' Santa Ana Theater (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 296, 306, 161 Cal. Rptr. 562 ; see also Busick v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 967, 974, 104 Cal. Rptr. 42, 500 P.2d 1386 ; Boccardo v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 1037, 1041, 184 Cal. Rptr. 903] . A judgment should not be the basis for application of res judicata if anything is left to conjecture as to what was necessarily involved and decided [Irwin v. Irwin (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 317, 322, 138 Cal. Rptr. 9] .

[b] Judgment Free From Direct Attack

Only judgments that are free from direct attack are final and may not be relitigated [People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 486, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321 ; but see Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 558, 305 P.2d 20 (under certain circumstances, direct attack of final judgment possible through suit in equity to set aside judgment)]. Once a judgment is free from direct attack on appeal, it is final and conclusive even if it is erroneous rather than correct [see Busick v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 967, 975, 104 Cal. Rptr. 42, 500 P.2d 1386 ; see also Castro v. Higaki (1994) 31 Cal. App. 4th 350, 359, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 84 ; Smith v. Smith (1981) 127 Cal. App. 3d 203, 209, 179 Cal. Rptr. 492] . A final judgment or order is res judicata even if it is wrong or unjust, so long as the merits of the claim have been tried and determined [Hight v. Hight (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 498, 502-503, 136 Cal. Rptr. 685 ; see Weir v. Ferreira (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1515, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33 (erroneous final judgments bar to further proceedings based on same cause of action)].

Consistent application of the traditional principle that final judgments, even erroneous ones, are a bar to further proceedings based on the same cause of action is necessary to the well-ordered functioning of the judicial process. It should not be impaired for the benefit of particular plaintiffs, regardless of the sympathy their plight might arouse in an individual case [Slater v. Blackwood (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 791, 797, 126 Cal. Rptr. 225, 543 P.2d 593 ; Robert J. v. Leslie M. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1642, 1647, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 905] . A judgment is final even if its factual underpinning is erroneous [Robert J. v. Leslie M. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1642, 1648, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 905] . Similarly, a final judgment or order is res judicata even though it is contrary to statute, when the court has jurisdiction over subject matter and parties [People v. Silva (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 538, 549-550, 170 Cal. Rptr. 713 ; see Law Offices of Stanley J. Bell v. Shine, Browne & Diamond (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1011, 1019-1026, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 717 (order was res judicata when court had jurisdiction over subject matter and parties, but acted contrary to case law in excess of jurisdiction)].

A judgment based on a statute that is later ruled unconstitutional is nevertheless res judicata in a subsequent suit [Slater v. Blackwood (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 791, 797, 126 Cal. Rptr. 225, 543 P.2d 593] .

For discussion of the federal rule concerning finality of a judgment for purposes of res judicata, which differs from the state rule, see [d], below.

[c] Invalid Judgment Distinguished

Res judicata may apply only when the prior judgment is valid; void judgments cannot be res judicata [see Balaam v. Perazzo (1931) 211 Cal. 375, 380-381, 295 P. 330 (holding that judgment in favor of defendant quieting title against plaintiff and co-defendant was void as against co-defendant who defaulted and was never served with defendant's answer); California Nat. Supply Co. v. Flack (1920) 183 Cal. 124, 126, 190 P. 634 (holding that judgment rendered against defunct corporation was void in action brought after forfeiture of corporation's charter)]. If a judgment is void only in part, the judgment is res judicata to the extent that it is not void [see Lang v. Lang (1920) 182 Cal. 765, 769, 190 P. 181 (holding that in default judgment, any relief exceeding prayer is not entitled to res judicata effect); Ludwig v. Murphy (1904) 143 Cal. 473, 476, 77 P. 150 (prior judgment was void to the extent it decreed a foreclosure, notwithstanding its other possible conclusive effect)].

Thus, even when a judgment is final in the sense that it is free from direct attack, it may be void and subject to collateral attack, and thus not conclusive for purposes of res judicata [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1916 (judicial record may be impeached by evidence of want of jurisdiction in court or judicial officer, of collusion between parties, or of fraud in party offering record); see also Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders].

[d] Cases on Appeal

A judgment is not final for purposes of res judicata during the pendency of and until the resolution of the appeal [Agarwal v. Johnson (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 932, 954 n.11, 160 Cal. Rptr. 141, 603 P.2d 58] ; Franklin & Franklin v. 7-Eleven Owners for Fair Franchising (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1168, 1171, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 770 (finality required to invoke preclusive bar of res judicata is not achieved until appeal from trial court judgment has been exhausted or time to appeal has expired)]. A technically pending appeal does not preclude the application of res judicata when the appeal is abandoned and is subject to dismissal on the motion of the appellate court [see Wood v. Herson (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 737, 748, 114 Cal. Rptr. 365] .

Moreover, the dismissal of an appeal is with prejudice to the right to file another appeal within the time permitted, unless the dismissal is expressly made without prejudice to another appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 913; Lyons v. Security Pacific Nat. Bank (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1017, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174] . Thus, when an appeal was dismissed for mootness, the dismissal was not made without prejudice, and approximately one year elapsed from the date of filing the judgment to a remittitur being issued, it was held that the underlying judgment become final, absent the appeal, when the period for filing the appeal had expired and principles of res judicata applied [Lyons v. Security Pacific Nat. Bank (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1017, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174 ; but see Chamberlin v. City of Palo Alto (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 181, 187, 230 Cal. Rptr. 454 (decided in context of collateral estoppel; when party to judgment cannot obtain decision of appellate court because matter determined against party is moot, judgment is not conclusive against party in subsequent action on different cause of action)].

When a former federal judgment is involved, the federal rule concerning finality of a judgment on appeal for purposes of res judicata differs from the state rule. Under the federal rule, a judgment or order, once rendered, is final for purposes of res judicata until it is reversed on appeal, or modified or set aside in the court of rendition [Calhoun v. Franchise Tax Bd. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 881, 887, 143 Cal. Rptr. 692, 574 P.2d 763 , cert. denied, 439 U.S. 872 ; Lumpkin v. Jordan (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1230, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303 ; see, e.g. Abdallah v. United Savings Bank (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1101, 1110, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 286 , cert. denied, 519 U.S. 1081 (1997) (plaintiffs' cause of action untenable in state court action in light of earlier action that had been dismissed with prejudice in federal district court; although appeal from that judgment was pending, judgment is final for res judicata purposes until reversed and doctrine of res judicata precludes litigation of any claim that could have been raised in federal action)]. For discussion of the full faith and credit requirement, see § 491.16.

[e] Interlocutory Orders

As a general rule, res judicata applies to interlocutory judgments and decrees that are appealable by law [see Rebco Development, Inc. v. Superior Court (1977) 67 Cal. App. 3d 13, 16-17, 136 Cal. Rptr. 351 ; see also Acuna v. Regents of University of California (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 639, 649-650, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 388 (summary judgment in federal court on two of several claims involved in action barred their relitigation in state court)]. For example, an interlocutory decree in a divorce case is conclusive with respect to all proper or necessary issues determined thereby [Green v. Green (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 50, 61, 151 P.2d 679 (disapproved on other grounds in Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. McConnell (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 715, 725, 285 P.2d 636); see Weir v. Ferreira (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1515, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33 (interlocutory and final judgments of dissolution of marriage entitled to res judicata as to all questions determined by them)].

[f] Simultaneous Actions

When two actions involving the same issue are pending at the same time, it is not the final judgment in the first suit, but the first final judgment, although it may be rendered in the second suit, that renders the issue res judicata in the other court [Consumer Advocacy Group, Inc. v. ExxonMobil Corp. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 675, 684, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 39 ; Domestic & Foreign Pet. Co., Ltd. v. Long (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 547, 562, 51 P.2d 73] .

When the judgment in one suit becomes final through lapse of time or affirmance on appeal while an appeal is still pending in another court from judgment in the other action, the first final judgment may be brought to the attention of the court in which an appeal is still pending and relied on as res judicata [Domestic & Foreign Pet. Co., Ltd. v. Long (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 547, 562, 51 P.2d 73] .

[g] Prior Conflicting Judgments

If the res judicata effect of a prior judgment is not raised or established in a subsequent action in which it could have been raised or established, and the litigated matter arises again in a third action, it is the final judgment in the second of the first two actions that controls and determines the rights of the parties in the third action [California Bank v. Traeger (1932) 215 Cal. 346, 351, 10 P.2d 51] . As a general rule, when there are successive and conflicting judgments in different proceedings between the same parties on the same issues, the last judgment is conclusive [Maloney v. Mass. Bonding & Ins. Co. (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 1, 6, 123 P.2d 449] .

[3] Former Judgment on Merits

[a] Generally

A final judgment is res judicata only if it is based on the merits [Hasson v. Cozens (1970) 1 Cal. 3d 576, 580, 83 Cal. Rptr. 161, 463 P.2d 385] . A judgment is on the merits for purposes of res judicata if the substance of the claim is tried and determined [Johnson v. City of Loma Linda (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 61, 77, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316 (quoting Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 7, Judgment, § 313 (4th ed. 1997)]; see also Burdette v. Carrier Corp. (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1668, 1682, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 185 (claim tried and determined by summary judgment was determined on the merits). For example, the defense of laches has nothing to do with the merits of the cause against which it is asserted, and a judgment denying a petition for writ of administrative mandate because of the defense of laches is not a judgment on the merits for purposes of res judicata [Johnson v. City of Loma Linda (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 61, 76-77, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316 (for discussion of laches, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions, §§ 345.40 -345.43)]. Similarly, a determination by a court that it has no jurisdiction is not a decision on the merits, and cannot be res judicata [Maddern v. Superior Court (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 998, 1004, 99 Cal. Rptr. 832] .

[b] Stipulated Judgment

A stipulated judgment may be given res judicata effect [see Citizens for Open Access Etc. Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1064-1069, 1073, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77 ; Robert J. v. Leslie M. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1642, 1647-1648, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 905] .

For example, when a district attorney child support division filed a complaint in 1990 to establish paternity against a party, and the party stipulated to paternity and entry of judgment requiring payment of child support without asking for appointment of counsel or demanding a blood test with full knowledge of his rights and without coercion, that judgment was held to bar, based on res judicata, that party's action in 1995 to establish nonpaternity, even though a 1994 blood test excluded him as the biological father [Robert J. v. Leslie M. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1642, 1647-1648, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 905] .

Although parties may stipulate to a judgment binding between them, it will not necessarily bind third parties [Xebec Development Partners, Ltd. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 501, 540-544, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 ; see Knowles v. Tehachapi Valley Hospital Dist. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1083, 1091, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 192] . For example, a judgment based on stipulation by an insured and third parties in which the insurer did not join should not be regarded as a binding adjudication of the insurer's interests, particularly when the stipulation was given for a covenant not to execute [Xebec Development Partners, Ltd. v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 501, 540-544, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 726 (judgment based on stipulation might be entitled to presumptive weight, but should bind the insurer only to the extent it represents a true independent adjudication of the insured's liability)]. Similarly, a stipulated judgment between a plaintiff and a defendant doctor in which the doctor admitted negligence was not res judicata and thus not binding on the codefendant hospital district, which had no contractual or statutory right to control the doctor's defense in the action and did not in fact control the defense. The trial court did not err, however, in treating stipulated judgment as presumptive evidence of doctor's liability [Knowles v. Tehachapi Valley Hospital Dist. (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1083, 1089-1092, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 192] .

Nonetheless, in some instances third parties may be bound by judgments entered in earlier actions in accordance with a settlement agreement and rendered through consent and stipulation. For example, when authority to pursue public rights or interests in litigation is given to a public entity by statute, a stipulated judgment rendered in an action involving the agency is res judicata as to all members of the class represented. Thus, when issues in the current and earlier actions are identical, the plaintiff is bound by its terms when found to be in privity with the state agencies who pursued public rights in the earlier actions even though plaintiff was not a party to the settlement agreement [Citizens for Open Access Etc. Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1064-1069, 1073, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77 ; see also Consumer Advocacy Group, Inc. v. ExxonMobil Corp. (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 675, 694, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 39 (settlement of prior lawsuit plaintiff filed against ExxonMobil on behalf of public operated as final judgment on merits for res judicata purposes although second suit brought by different public interest plaintiff)].

For a settlement and dismissal with prejudice of an action constituting a retraxit invoking the principles of res judicata, see [e], below.

[c] Default Judgment

In general, a prior default judgment may have collateral estoppel effect [see, e.g., English v. English (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 358, 363-364, 70 P.2d 625] . In a subsequent proceeding between the parties on a different cause of action, a default judgment conclusively establishes the truth of all material allegations contained in the complaint in the first action, and every fact necessary to uphold the default judgment [Four Star Electric, Inc. v. F & H Construction (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 1375, 1380, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1] . However, a default judgment is not conclusive as to any defense or issue that was not raised and is not necessary to uphold the judgment [Four Star Electric, Inc. v. F & H Construction (1992) 7 Cal. App. 4th 1375, 1380, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 (reversing dismissal when default judgments not entitled to collateral estoppel effect)].

[d] Judgment on Demurrer

[i] General Demurrer

A judgment following the sustaining of a general demurrer may be on the merits and provide the basis for res judicata[Pollock v. University of Southern California (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 1416, 1427-1428, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 122 ; Ojavan Investors, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1996) 54 Cal. App. 4th 373, 383-384, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 803] . Whether a judgment based on the sustaining of a general demurrer is a judgment on the merits depends on the facts of the specific case and the reason for the ruling [Kanarek v. Bugliosi (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 327, 334, 166 Cal. Rptr. 526] .

It is generally held that a demurrer sustained for failure of the facts alleged to establish a cause of action is a judgment on the merits [Kanarek v. Bugliosi (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 327, 334, 166 Cal. Rptr. 526 ; see Ojavan Investors, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1996) 54 Cal. App. 4th 373, 383-384 and n.8, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 803] . However, this is true only if the same facts are pleaded in the complaint in the second action, or if complaint in the second action, although pleading different facts, contains the same defects as the former complaint [Kanarek v. Bugliosi (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 327, 334, 166 Cal. Rptr. 526] . The causes of action need not be identical [Ojavan Investors, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1996) 54 Cal. App. 4th 373, 384, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 803 (rulings on former appeal after general demurrer was sustained held binding when crux former and present appeals dealt with enforceability of deed restrictions as to plaintiffs)].

When a judgment is entered after a general demurrer has been sustained with leave to amend and plaintiff has failed to amend within the time allowed, the judgment is a judgment on the merits to the extent that it adjudicates that the facts alleged do not constitute a cause of action, and will, accordingly be a bar to a subsequent action alleging the same facts. Moreover, even though different facts may be alleged in the second action, if the demurrer was sustained in the first action on a ground equally applicable to the second, the judgment will also be a bar. If, on the other hand, new or additional facts are alleged that cure the defects in the original pleading, the judgment is not a bar to the subsequent action whether or not plaintiff had an opportunity to amend his or her complaint [Keidatz v. Albany (1952) 39 Cal. 2d 826, 828, 249 P.2d 264 ; see also Wells v. Marina City Properties, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 781, 789, 176 Cal. Rptr. 104, 632 P.2d 217 ; for related discussion, see [e], below].

[ii] Special Demurrer

A judgment based on the sustaining of a special demurrer for technical or formal defect is not on the merits and is not a bar to the filing of a new action [Goddard v. Security Title Ins. & Guar. Co. (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 47, 52, 92 P.2d 804 ; see Ojavan Investors, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1996) 54 Cal. App. 4th 373, 384, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 803 (dicta)].

[e] Judgment of Dismissal

Dismissal is a judgment on the merits to the extent that it adjudicates that the facts alleged do not constitute a new cause of action. [see Wells v. Marina City Properties, Inc. (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 781, 789, 176 Cal. Rptr. 104, 632 P.2d 217 (dismissal with prejudice under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581 subdivision 3 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 581(f)(2)) following sustaining of general demurrer with leave to amend and plaintiff failed to amend within time allowed)].

A common law "retraxit" has a similar effect. At common law, a retraxit was an open and voluntary renunciation of a suit in open court. The primary features of a common law retraxit were that it was made by the plaintiff in person and in open court. A dismissal with prejudice is the modern name for a common law retraxit. A retraxit invokes the principles of res judicata and is a judgment on the merits preventing a subsequent action on the dismissed claim. Because it invokes the principles of res judicata, however, a retraxit only bars claims dismissed with prejudice between the same parties or their privies [Deleon v. Verizon Wireless (2008) 170 Cal. App. 4th 519, 528, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 29 (dismissal with prejudice of class action suit following settlement was final judgment on the merits); see also Rice v. Crow (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 725, 733-736, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110 (settlement and dismissal with prejudice of action operated as retraxit)].

On the other hand, if the plaintiff voluntarily dismisses the entire action without prejudice, the dismissal is not a final judgment on the merits [Syufy Enterprises, L.P. v. City of Oakland (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 869, 879, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 808 (not final judgment when appellate division reversed and remanded, then plaintiff voluntarily dismissed without prejudice)].

[f] Denial of Writ Petition

Denial without opinion of a petition for a writ of mandate or prohibition is not res judicata [Hoversten v. Superior Court (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 636, 640, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 197 (noting summary denial of previous writ petition was not decision on merits); see Gammoh v. City of Anaheim (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 186, 196, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 194 (court of appeal's denial of petition does not mean it made decision on merits)]. Moreover, unless there is a written opinion following the issuance of an alternative writ, the denial of a writ petition does not have issue preclusive effect [Gammoh v. City of Anaheim (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 186, 196, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 194 ; for discussion of issue preclusion generally, see § 491.15, below)].

Hoversten and Gammoh relied on Kowis v. Howard (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 888, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728, 838 P. 2d 250 as authority for the above stated rules. In Kowis, the court held the summary denial of a writ petition does not establish the law of the case whether or not that denial is intended to be on the merits or is based on some other reason [Kowis v. Howard (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 888, 899, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728, 838 P. 2d 250] . The Kowis court in part stated that "[w]hen the court denies a writ petition without issuing an alternative writ, it does not take jurisdiction over the case; it does not give the legal issue full plenary review" [Kowis v. Howard (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 888, 897, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728, 838 P. 2d 250 (italics added)]. More recently, the Supreme Court, distinguished Kowis in a case in which the issue was whether the court of appeal had failed to exercise its appellate jurisdiction to review an administrative decision as it was required to do by statute when the court summarily denied an extraordinary writ petition [Leone v. Medical Board (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 660, 669-670, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 61, 995 P.2d 191] . In Leone, the Court noted that Kowis was addressed to writ petitions challenging pretrial superior court rulings that could also be reviewed on appeal from the judgment ultimately entered in the action; it was not addressed to situations in which a writ petition was the only authorized mode of appellate review. In the latter situation, an appellate court must judge the petition on its procedural and substantive merits, and a summary denial of the petition is necessarily on the merits [Leone v. Medical Board (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 660, 669-670, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 61, 995 P.2d 191] .

From Leone it may be reasoned that there is a distinction for res judicata purposes between summary denial of writ petitions that are the exclusive means of judicial review versus summary denial of writ petitions challenging pretrial superior court rulings that could also be reviewed on appeal from a later judgment. Thus, later courts may ultimately limit the rule stated by Hoversten and Gammoh to the latter situation.

[g] Arbitration Award

The doctrine of res judicata applies not only to judicial proceedings but also to arbitration proceedings [Lyons v. Security Pacific Nat. Bank (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1015, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174 ; Thibodeau v. Crum (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 749, 755, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27 ; see also Kelly v. Vons Companies, Inc. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1329, 1335, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 (citing cases concerning res judicata or collateral estoppel effect)]. Further, depending on the circumstances, an unconfirmed arbitration award may or may not have res judicata effect [Thibodeau v. Crum (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 749, 761, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27 (plaintiffs precluded from litigating tort and contract claims against contractor after arbitration on specific construction defects); Kahn v. Pelissetti (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 832, 834-835, 67 Cal. Rptr. 517 (unconfirmed award finding third-party uninsured motorist not liable had no res judicata effect because third-party was not a third-party beneficiary of unconfirmed award as contract)].

Res judicata can even operate to bar a plaintiff from litigating a claim against a non-arbitrating party where an arbitration award eliminated the basis for that party's liability [Richard B. LeVine, Inc. v. Higashi (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 566, 579, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 244] . In LeVine, plaintiff initiated an arbitration proceeding against his medical partners for breach of fiduciary duty. The arbitrator ruled that the partners had not committed such a breach. Plaintiff subsequently sued the partnership's accounting firm for civil conspiracy and aiding and abetting the partners. The trial court held that the arbitration proceedings operated to preclude plaintiff's claim against the accounting firm despite the fact that the accounting firm had not been a party to the arbitration. The court of appeals agreed. Prior cases such as Thibodeau and Sartor v. Superior Court (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 322, 187 Cal. Rptr. 247 held a res judicata defense was available in such a circumstance, where the liability of the party in the second proceeding was strictly derivative. The court noted that liability based on conspiracy or aiding and abetting is also derivative. If the arbitrator had found no underlying tort had been committed, it would be anomalous for the court to then find the accounting firm had conspired to commit a tort or aided and abetted the commission of a tort [Richard B. LeVine, Inc. v. Higashi (2005) 131 Cal. App. 4th 566, 579, 32 Cal. Rptr. 3d 244] .

Res judicata only applies to issues which were or could have been litigated in the arbitration [Truck Ins. Exchange v. Superior Court (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 985, 998-999, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 529 (when insurer reserves it rights to contest coverage and provides defense by independent counsel, arbitration award under Civ. Code § 2860(c), relating to attorney's fees incurred by independent counsel, is not res judicata of coverage issues; absent an agreement, arbitrator could not decide coverage issues, and in this case parties specifically agreed that arbitrator would not have power to decide coverage issues)]. Moreover, a court may not give preclusive effect to a decision in a prior arbitration proceeding if doing so is contrary to the legislative body's intent that established the proceeding in which res judicata is urged [Liska v. Arns Law Firm (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 275, 283, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 21 (arbitration under Mandatory Fee Arbitration statute did not preclude subsequent lawsuit by plaintiff against his former attorneys for breach of contract, negligence, and fraud as the only binding determination made in the arbitration was as to the amount of fees awarded the attorneys); Brosterhous v. State Bar (1995) 12 Cal. 4th 315, 326, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 87, 906 P.2d 1242 (arbitration decision concerning State Bar members' objections to manner in which State Bar calculates portion of annual dues used for political and ideological purposes not entitled to res judicata effect at demurrer stage to preclude plaintiffs' action under 42 U.S.C. § 1983)].

An arbitration award will not be given preclusive effect unless the arbitration agreement "clearly and unmistakably" provides for arbitration of the issues to be precluded and the arbitration record shows that the procedures followed allowed for full and fair adjudication of those issues [Camargo v. California Portland Cement Co. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1018, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841 (arbitration of sex discrimination and sexual harassment claims under collective bargaining agreement did not bar state court action for sex discrimination and sexual harassment under the Fair Employment and Housing Act)].

For further discussion of the res judicata effect of arbitration awards, see Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judicial Review , and Ch. 36, Judicial Arbitration .

[h] Small Claims Court Judgment

Generally speaking, a valid final judgment in plaintiff's favor merges any claim of the same cause of action in the judgment, and precludes the plaintiff from maintaining any later suit on the same cause of action. This aspect of res judicata applies to judgments rendered by the small claims court. The rule against a plaintiff splitting a single cause of action so as to make it the basis of several suits is, in part, an application of the doctrine of res judicata [Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 907, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151] .

Thus, when (1) a person whose car was damaged by the negligence of a car dealer tendered the claim to her insurance company, (2) the company paid off, but the policy did not cover all the damages, (3) the policyholder thereafter filed a small claims action against the car dealer tortfeasor to recover the uninsured loses and obtained a small claims court judgment, and (4) after the small claims court judgment was obtained, the insurance company brought a municipal court subrogation action against the tortfeasor to recover what the insurance company had paid to its policyholder to cover losses she suffered as a result of the tortfeasor's negligence, it was held that the small claims judgment against the tortfeasor barred the insurance company from pursuing its subrogation action because the latter action was precluded by the res judicata effect of the rule against splitting a cause of action. Although the insurer may bring a separate action against the tortfeasor, the rule against splitting a cause of action is violated when both the insurer and insured pursue separate actions. This is so because the general rule of subrogation provides that an insurer stands in the shoes of its insured; if a second action by the insured is barred, so is the action by the insurer [Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 905-909, 913-914, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151 (when tortfeasor's single act causes plaintiff to suffer both personal injury and property damage, however, there two separate causes of action exist; for what constitute single cause of action for purposes of rule, see discussion under [4], below)]. For discussion of issue preclusion and small claims court judgments, see § 491.15[3][i].

[i] Retraxit

A retraxit is a judgment on the merits [Rice v. Crow (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 725, 733, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110] . For discussion, see § 419.14[3][e].

[4] Same Cause of Action

[a] Generally

Whenever a judgment in one action is raised as a bar to a later action under the doctrine of claim preclusion, the key issue is whether the same cause of action is involved in both suits [Eichman v. Fotomat Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1170, 1174, 197 Cal. Rptr. 612] .

Although claim preclusion will bar relitigation of the same cause of action by the same parties, the question of whether a cause of action is identical for purposes of claim preclusion depends not on the legal theory or label used, but on the primary right sought to be protected in the two actions. The invasion of one primary right gives rise to a single cause of action [Slater v. Blackwood (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 791, 795, 126 Cal. Rptr. 225, 543 P.2d 593 ; Frommhagen v. Board of Supervisors (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1292, 1299-1300, 243 Cal. Rptr. 390 ; accord Brinton v. Bankers Pension Services, Inc. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 550, 557, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469] . That is, a cause of action consists of [Gamble v. General Foods Corp. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 893, 898, 899, 280 Cal. Rptr. 457] :

- A primary right possessed by the plaintiff;
- A corresponding primary duty devolving on the defendant; and
- A delict or wrong done by the defendant consisting of a breach of the primary right and duty.

Each invasion of a primary right gives rise to a separate cause of action [Gamble v. General Foods Corp. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 893, 898, 899, 280 Cal. Rptr. 457] .

Thus, a single cause of action is based on the substantive right violated or the harm suffered, rather than on the particular legal theory asserted or relief sought by plaintiff [Deleon v. Verizon Wireless (2008) 170 Cal. App. 4th 519, 528, 88 Cal. Rptr. 3d 29 ; Burdette v. Carrier Corp. (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1668, 1682, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 185 ; Gamble v. General Foods Corp. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 893, 899, 280 Cal. Rptr. 457 ; see also Peiser v. Mettler (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 594, 605, 328 P.2d 953] . For example, when a defendant's negligence causes injury both to the property and person of the plaintiff, there are two causes of action under the primary right theory, one for harm to the property and one for harm to the person [see Holmes v. David H. Bricker (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 786, 788-789, 76 Cal. Rptr. 431, 452 P.2d 647] . Conversely, two actions constitute a single cause of action if they both affect the same primary right [Weikel v. TCW Realty Fund II Holding Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 1246, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25] .

The distinction is between the violation of one primary right giving rise to multiple legal theories of recovery and the violation of different primary rights by the same wrongful conduct. When there are multiple legal theories on which recovery might be predicated, one injury gives rise to only one claim for relief [Slater v. Blackwood (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 791, 795, 126 Cal. Rptr. 225, 543 P.2d 593 ; see Citizens for Open Access Etc. Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1067, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77 (for invasion of one primary right there is single cause of action, even if multiple theories of recovery asserted); Weikel v. TCW Realty Fund II Holding Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 1246-1247, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25 (a cause of action is to be distinguished from the remedy or relief sought, for a plaintiff may frequently be entitled to several species of remedy for the enforcement of a single right); Henry v. Clifford (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 315, 321, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116 (when two actions involve same injury to plaintiff and same wrong by defendant, same primary right at stake even if plaintiff in second suit pleads different theories of recovery, seeks different forms of relief and/or adds new facts supporting recovery)]. For example, one breach of a nonseverable contract can only give rise to one cause of action for legal and equitable relief; a plaintiff cannot bring successive actions for specific performance and damages based on the same breach [see Abbott v. The 76 Land and Water Co. (1911) 161 Cal. 42, 47-48, 118 P. 425] .

When different primary rights are violated by the same wrongful conduct, a final adjudication of one of the plaintiff's rights does not necessarily bar a second action [Agarwal v. Johnson (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 932, 954, 160 Cal. Rptr. 141, 603 P.2d 58] . For example, a judgment in defendant's favor in a civil rights action under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C. § 2000e et seq., does not have res judicata effect over a subsequent action brought in state court for common law claims arising out of the same employment dispute since Title VII vests employees with independent federal statutory rights against discriminatory employment practices and does not supplant state remedies [Agarwal v. Johnson (1979) 25 Cal. 3d 932, 954, 160 Cal. Rptr. 141, 603 P.2d 58 ; see also Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App.

4th 171, 182, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44 (action for breach of contract did not assert same primary right as plaintiff's prior action in family law court to establish paternity); Branson v. Sun-Diamond Growers (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 327, 343-345, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 314 (primary right to seek authorization for indemnity under Corp. Code § 317 is not the same cause of action as one for breach of a contract for indemnity or for equitable estoppel since Corp. Code § 317(g) expressly provides no preclusive effect on other legal rights for indemnity)].

However, if plaintiff has two mutually exclusive remedies, and judgment is rendered in the plaintiff's favor giving the plaintiff one of the remedies, the plaintiff cannot thereafter maintain an action for the other [Mycogen Corporation v. Monsanto Company (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 888, 904-909 (company that sued another company seeking the equitable remedy of specific performance of a license agreement was precluded from bringing a subsequent suit for the legal remedy of monetary damages); see also Busick v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 967, 973, 104 Cal. Rptr. 42, 500 P.2d 1386 (employee, who suffered injuries inflicted by her employer and successfully brought tort action against employer's estate, as precluded from bringing separate worker's compensation action based on same injuries)].

Because res judicata only applies between the same parties or their privies, when defendants are neither it makes no difference that the claims in the underlying action and current action arose from the same primary right. Such defendants cannot invoke res judicata on their behalf [Rice v. Crow (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 725, 736, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110] . For discussion of same parties or privies requirement, see § 491.14[5].

The primary right theory has been criticized on the grounds that the term "primary right" is not of fixed meaning, but may be broadly or narrowly interpreted [see Witkin, California Procedure (3d ed), Vol. 4, Pleading, § 24; see also Sawyer v. First City Financial Corp. (1981) 124 Cal. App. 3d 390, 399-400 (discussing application of primary right theory)]. The trend in other jurisdictions has been to reject primary right analysis and to adopt the "transaction" approach taken by the Second Restatement of Judgments, under which a cause of action (or "claim") is defined for res judicata purposes to include all rights of the plaintiff to remedies against the defendant arising out of the same transaction or series of connected transactions [see Restatement (Second) of Judgments § 24(1) cmt. a; s Moore's Federal Practice § 130.10[3] (3rd ed. Matthew Bender)].

[b] Compulsory Cross Complaint

An effect analogous to claim preclusion can occur when, in a prior action, a party has failed to plead in a cross complaint a related cause of action against the plaintiff. In such a case, the party may be precluded from reasserting that unpleaded cause of action in a later action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30]. For general discussion of compulsory cross complaints, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints . For a form for use by a defendant as an affirmative defense allegation in his or her answer, to allege a plaintiff's failure in a prior action to allege a related cause of action in a compulsory cross complaint, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[c] Special Proceeding Distinguished

A judgment rendered in a special proceeding, such as in a mandamus proceeding, does not give rise to claim preclusion in a cause of action [see Mata v. City of Los Angeles (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 141, 149, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 314 (holding that 42 U.S.C. § 1983 civil rights action for damages was not barred by earlier mandate proceeding that directed city to reinstate plaintiff as a police officer)]. Nonetheless, the judgment in the mandate proceeding is not to be ignored, and may result in issue preclusion [see Mata v. City of Los Angeles (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 141, 149, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 314] .

[5] Same Parties or Privies

[a] Generally

For claim preclusion to be available as a defense, the same parties or their privies must be involved in both the prior and present actions [see Busick v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 967, 974, 104 Cal. Rptr. 42, 500 P.2d 1386 ; Rice v. Crow (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 725, 734, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110 ; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1908, 1910; but see Law Offices of Stanley J. Bell v. Shine, Browne & Diamond (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1011, 1019-1026, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 717 (when court issued order in earlier minor's personal injury action denying plaintiff's quantum meruit lien, plaintiff in subsequent declaratory relief action with respect to entitlement to those fees was barred by res judicata from proceeding against defendant attorneys who represented minor in earlier action who were not technically parties to that action)].

[b] Effect of Party Acting in Different Capacities

The identity of parties necessary to establish the defense of res judicata must be identity of parties in the same capacity [Meldrim v. Board of Supervisors (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 341, 346, 127 Cal. Rptr. 52 (res judicata inapplicable when first action against county, second action against county board of supervisors in their capacity as public officers); see Finnerty v. Cummings (1933) 132 Cal. App. 48, 50-51, 22 P.2d 37 (res judicata inapplicable when first action by mother as guardian ad litem for injuries suffered by child, second action by mother in her own right for medical expenses and loss of earnings)].

[c] Persons in Privity

The requirement of identity of parties or privies is a requirement of due process of law [Citizens for Open Access Etc. Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1070, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77 ; see also discussion in § 491.15[5], below].

Traditionally, courts considered a person to be in privity with a party when he or she was so identified in interest with that party that he or she represented the same legal right [Zaragosa v. Craven (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 315, 318, 202 P.2d 73 ; see Citizens for Open Access Etc. Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1069, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77] . The concept of privity was expanded from rights acquired after judgment through or under inheritance, succession, or purchase to include a mutual or successive relationship to the same rights of property, or to such an identification in interest of one person with another as to represent the same legal rights, and, more recently, to a relationship between the party to be estopped and the unsuccessful party in the prior litigation that is sufficiently close so as to justify application of the doctrine of collateral estoppel [Dyson v. State Personnel Bd. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 711, 723, 262 Cal. Rptr. 112 ; see Citizens for Open Access Etc. Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1069-1070, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77] .

Thus, under the modern approach, privity denotes that the plaintiffs in the succeeding action have an identity or community of interest with, and adequate representation by, the losing party in the first action as well as that the circumstances must have been such that the party to be estopped should reasonably have expected to be bound by the prior adjudication [Clemmer v. Hartford Insurance Co. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 865, 875, 151 Cal. Rptr. 285, 587 P.2d 1098 ; Helfand v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (1992) 10 Cal. App. 4th 869, 902, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 295 ; Ceresino v. Fire Ins. Exchange (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 814, 820, 264 Cal. Rptr. 30 ; White Motor Corp. v. Teresinski (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 754, 761, 263 Cal. Rptr. 26 ; see Citizens for Open Access Etc. Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1070, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77 ; see also Dyson v. State Personnel Bd. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 711, 724-725, 262 Cal. Rptr. 112] .

Privity, however, is not susceptible of a neat definition, and determination of whether it exists is not a cut-and-dried exercise. In the final analysis, the determination of privity depends on the fairness of binding one with the results obtained in earlier proceedings in which it did not participate [Citizens for Open Access Etc. Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1070, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77] . Thus, with respect to the issue of privity, in deciding whether to apply collateral estoppel, the court must balance the rights of the party to be estopped against the need for applying collateral estoppel in the particular case, in order to promote judicial economy by minimizing repetitive litigation, to prevent inconsistent judgments which undermine the integrity of the judicial system, or to protect against vexatious litigation [Clemmer v. Hartford Insurance Co. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 865, 875, 151 Cal. Rptr. 285, 587 P.2d 1098 ; Martin v. County of Los Angeles (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 688, 701, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303 ; see Zapata v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 108, 115, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 855 (DMV in privity with prosecution for purposes of municipal court hearing on lawfulness of driving under the influence arrest)].

A person who is not a party to an action but who is represented by a party is bound by and entitled to the benefits of the judgment as though he or she were a party [Del Costello v. State of California (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 887, 891, 185 Cal. Rptr. 582] . For example, a five-year-old child ordinarily has no cognizable independent interest in relitigating a liability claim that has been determined adversely to his parents; sufficient privity exists to invoke the doctrine of collateral estoppel [Garcia v. Rehrig Internat., Inc. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 869, 878, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 723] .

In certain actions, courts have found that California governmental entities brought suit as the representative of individual claimants and were thus in privity with the individuals [see, e.g., Rynsburger v. Dairymen's Fertilizer Coop., Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 269, 277-278, 72 Cal. Rptr. 102 (plaintiffs in private nuisance action held to have been represented by cities that had earlier brought public nuisance actions on plaintiff's request); Trujillo v. County of Santa Clara (9th Cir. 1985) 775 F. 2d 1359, 1366 (California Fair Employment & Housing Commission brought administrative proceeding at claimant's request and thus, represented him for purposes of claimant's federal civil rights action under 42 U.S.C. § 1983); see also Citizens for Open Access Etc. Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1070, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77 (plaintiff, a nonprofit public interest group, who brought action for implied dedication of a public recreational easement, held to be in privity with state agencies that pursued rights of public concerning same property in earlier actions)]. However, the courts will examine the particular facts of each case to determine whether the action was brought on the individual's behalf [see Victa v. Merle Norman Cosmetics, Inc. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 454, 463-468, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117 (Equal Employment Opportunity Commission's action, although initially prompted by plaintiff's discrimination charge against employer for age discrimination under the Age Discrimination in Employment Act 29 U.S.C. § 261 et seq., did not bar plaintiff's action against employer for state-based age discrimination since EEOC pursued action on behalf of all of defendant's employees)]. Successors in interest to the original parties and persons who control the prior action may also be privies for purposes of res judicata [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(a)(2), (b)]. For further discussion of how parties who control an action may be bound, see [d], below.

[d] Party Who Controlled Prior Action

A person who is not a party but who controls an action, individually or in cooperation with others, is bound by the adjudications of litigated matters as if he or she were a party if he or she has a proprietary or financial interest in the judgment or in the determination of a question of fact or of a question of law with reference to the same subject matter or transaction; if the other party has notice of his or her participation, the other party is equally bound [Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(b)].

At any time prior to a final judgment, as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 577, a determination of whether the judgment, verdict on which it was entered, or a finding on which it was entered is to be binding on a nonparty pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(b) or whether such nonparty is entitled to the benefit of Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(b) may, on the noticed motion of any party or any nonparty that may be affected by Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(b), be made in the court in which the action was tried or in which the action is pending on appeal. If no such motion is made before the judgment becomes final, the determination may be made in a separate action. If appropriate, a judgment may be entered or ordered to be entered pursuant to such a determination [Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(b)]. For a form of notice of motion and order that may be used in proceedings to determine whether a judgment is binding on a nonparty pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(b), see §§ 491.56 and 491.57.

[e] Representative Actions Under the Unfair Competition Law

Traditional res judicata principles do not apply to a judgment obtained by the Attorney General or a district attorney under the Unfair Competition Law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.] because an action brought pursuant to those sections by a prosecutor is fundamentally different from a class action or other representative litigation; it is fundamentally a law enforcement action and seeks primarily injunctive relief [Payne v. National Collection Systems (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1037, 1045-1047, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 260] . Any request for restitution is ancillary. Moreover, in such an action brought by a prosecutor, there is no occasion to give notice to the persons directly affected by the action. Therefore, res judicata effect is not accorded to a judgment in an unlawful competition law lawsuit commenced by a prosecutor in a subsequent lawsuit by persons defrauded by a defendant [Payne v. National Collection Systems (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 1037, 1045-1047, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 260] .

[6] Public Interest Exception to Res Judicata

When the issue is a question of law rather than of fact, the prior legal determination is not conclusive either if injustice would result or if the public interest requires that relitigation not be foreclosed [Kopp v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 607, 622-623, 675, 685, 693, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108, 905 P.2d 1248 (Lucus, C.J.; Werdegar, J., concurring; Baxter, J., joined by Arabian, J., and George, J., concurring and dissenting)]. Application of the public interest exception is not conditioned on a finding that the initial determination of an issue was erroneous [Kopp v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 607, 622-623 n.16, 675, 685, 693, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108, 905 P.2d 1248 (Lucus, C.J.; Werdegar, J., concurring; Baxter, J., joined by Arabian, J., and George, J., concurring and dissenting].

In Kopp, several Government Code sections enacted by Proposition 73, which was designed to reform financing of statewide and local political campaigns, were declared unconstitutional by a federal district court, and their enforcement was enjoined. The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals affirmed the judgment of the district court. Thereafter, an original mandate proceeding was brought in the California Supreme Court. The issue before the Court was one of state law, that is, assuming enforcement of the challenged sections as enacted would violate the federal constitution, may the statutes be judicially reformed in a manner that avoids its unconstitutionality, and if so, should they be reformed [Kopp v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 607, 614, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108, 905 P.2d 1248] . The Court assumed that the principles of res judicata or collateral estoppel applied, but held that they should entertain and resolve the litigation under the public interest exception to those doctrines [Kopp v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 607, 621, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108, 905 P.2d 1248 (Lucus, C.J.; Werdegar, J., concurring; Baxter, J., joined by Arabian, J., and George, J., concurring and dissenting)]. The Court noted that a state supreme court is not constrained by principles of res judicata, collateral estoppel, or comity, to keep silent on a state law statutory reformation issue, when the question is presented to it in litigation such as the one before the court. The court's sovereign duty as a state court of last resort, consistent with principles of federalism and comity, requires that the court not automatically accept the federal court's ruling on this important state law issue, but consider the reformation question afresh and reach a different conclusion if state law leads the court to that result [Kopp v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 607, 625-626, 675, 679, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108, 905 P.2d 1248 (Lucus, C.J.; Werdegar, J., concurring; Baxter, J., joined by Arabian, J., and George, J., concurring and dissenting)]. The court further held, however, that reformation was inappropriate in the particular case [Kopp v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 607, 671, 675, 685, 693, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108, 905 P.2d 1248 (Lucus, C.J.; Mosk, J. (based on lack of authority to do so), and Werdegar, J., concurring; Kennard, J., concurring and dissenting (based on full faith and credit reasons); see also Citizens for Open Access Etc. Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1065, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77 (even if thresholdrequirements for application of res judicata are established, that is, issues adjudicated in earlier action are identical with those in later action, final judgment on merits was rendered in earlier action, and party against whom plea is raised was party or in privity with party to earlier adjudication, res judicata will not be applied if injustice would result or if public interest requires relitigation not be foreclosed)].

A statutory scheme may also create an exception to res judicata [see Rubenstein v. Rubenstein (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 1144, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 707 (statutory scheme under Fam. Code § 2120 et seq., dealing with setting aside a dissolution judgment, creates exception to res judicata based on recognition that public policy of assuring finality of judgments must be balanced against public interest in ensuring proper division of marital property, in ensuring sufficient support awards, and in deterring misconduct)].

For further discussion of the public interest exception to the doctrine of res judicata or collateral estoppel, see § 491.15[6], below.

[7] Prior Action Was in Federal Court

Although it is established that the doctrine of res judicata precludes parties or their privies from relitigating a cause of action that has been finally determined by a court of competent jurisdiction, the ways in which the federal courts define "cause of action" and the way California courts define the term differs. The federal courts utilize a transactional analysis; that is, two suits constitute a single cause of action if they both arise from the same "transactional nucleus of facts" or a single "core of operative facts." California on the other hand, follows the primary right theory of Pomeroy [for discussion, see [4], above]. Thus, two actions constitute a single cause of action if they both affect the same primary right. When an action is filed in a California state court and the defendant claims the suit is barred by a final federal judgment, California law will determine the res judicata effect of the prior federal court judgment on the basis of whether the federal and state actions involve the same primary right [Gamble v. General Foods Corp. (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 893, 898, 280 Cal. Rptr. 457 ; see also Acu na v. Regents of University of California (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 639, 648, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 388] .

Also following a federal judgment, the state court is not bound by federal law when determining whether an exception to the doctrine of res judicata applies [Kopp v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 607, 622 n.16, 675, 685, 693, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108, 905 P.2d 1248 (Lucus, C.J.; Werdegar, J., concurring; Baxter, J., joined by Arabian, J., and George, J., concurring and dissenting); for discussion of public interest exception to res judicata doctrine, see [6], above].

The state court, however, will apply the federal rule as to when a judgment is considered final for purposes of res judicata [Lumpkin v. Jordan (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1230-1231, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303 ; see also Butcher v. Truck Ins. Exchange (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1442, 1452-1455, 1460, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 521 (California follows rule that preclusive effect of prior federal court judgment is determined by federal law, at least where prior judgment was based on federal question jurisdiction; on question of finality federal law is controlling)]. For discussion of the federal rule concerning finality of a judgment for purposes of res judicata, see [2][d], above.

The courts of appeal are split over whether res judicata should apply to bar a state law claim that is dismissed out of a federal lawsuit that has resulted in a final judgment. The Fourth Appellate District, Division Two, held that once it is known that the federal court will not exercise pendent jurisdiction over the state claim and it is dismissed out of the lawsuit, if the plaintiff then elects to proceed to trial and judgment in the federal court, the plaintiff's entire cause of action is either merged in or barred by the federal court judgment so that the plaintiff may not thereafter maintain a second suit on the same cause of action in a state court [Mattson v. City of Costa Mesa (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 441, 445-446, 164 Cal. Rptr. 913] . However, the Second Appellate District, Division Eight, is of the opposite view, finding that despite Mattson's concerns, a contrary rule would not invite manipulation, thus the plaintiff is not barred by res judicata from going forth with the state claim after the federal claim has resulted in a final judgment [Harris v. Grimes (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 180, 188-189, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 791] .

For discussion of the full faith and credit requirement, see § 491.16, below.

[8] Effect of Change of Law After Final Judgment on the Merits

When a cause of action has been adjudicated under the law in effect at that time resulting in a final judgment on the merits, the judgment is res judicata and bars relitigation between the same parties on the same cause of action despite a subsequent change of law. A change in statute or law does not entitle a litigant to escape an earlier ruling by filing a new action [Slater v. Blackwood (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 791, 796-797, 126 Cal. Rptr. 225, 543 P.2d 593 ; Castro v. Higaki (1994) 31 Cal. App. 4th 350, 359, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 84] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-491 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 491.15

§ 491.15 Issue Preclusion

[1] General Requirements

The doctrine of issue preclusion precludes relitigation of an issue previously adjudicated when the following requirements are satisfied [Hernandez v. City of Pomona (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 501, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1, 207 P.3d 506 ; Lucido v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 335, 341, 795 P.2d 1223 ; Silver v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 338, 357, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 287 ; Kelly v. Vons Companies, Inc. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1329, 1339, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 ; see Producers Dairy Delivery Co. v. Sentry Ins. Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 903, 910, 226 Cal. Rptr. 558, 718 P.2d 920 ; :

- The issue sought to be precluded must be identical to that decided in a prior proceeding;
- The issue must have been actually litigated in the prior proceeding;
- The issue must have been necessarily decided in the prior proceeding;
- The decision in the former proceeding must be final and on the merits; and
- The party against whom issue preclusion is asserted must be the same as or in privity with the party to the prior proceeding.

These same threshold requirements apply to both collateral estoppel and direct estoppel [see Sabek, Inc. v. Engelhard Corp. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 992, 997-998, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882] .

The burden is on the party asserting collateral estoppel to establish these requirements [Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 181, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44 ; Lumpkin v. Jordan (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1230, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303] .

[2] Final Judgment on Merits

[a] Less Strict Requirement Than for Claim Preclusion

For issue preclusion to apply, there must ordinarily be a final judgment on the merits in the previous suit [Producers Dairy Delivery Co. v. Sentry Ins. Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 903, 910, 226 Cal. Rptr. 558, 718 P.2d 920] . However, the requirement of finality of judgment is interpreted less strictly for the purpose of issue preclusion than for the purpose of claim preclusion [Sandoval v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 932, 936, 190 Cal. Rptr. 29 ; see Producers Dairy Delivery Co. v. Sentry Ins. Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 903, 911, 226 Cal. Rptr. 558, 718 P.2d 920 ; see also Sabek, Inc. v. Engelhard Corp. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 992, 997-998, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882 (involving direct estoppel; issue preclusion may be appropriate even though stage of litigation for merger and bar requirement for claim preclusion has not been reached; thus, issue preclusion may apply when underlying cause of action itself is not barred)].

For example, settlement of a prior adjudication during the pendency of an appeal may render a prior judgment sufficiently final to support the doctrine of issue preclusion, provided other factors of certainty and finality are satisfied [see Sandoval v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 932, 936-937, 190 Cal. Rptr. 29] . The final determination on the merits can be a judgment, a motion, or an order that determines a substantial matter of right on issues of fact or law [People v. Howie (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 729, 736-737, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 505 (court determination that prior felony conviction is constitutionally invalid collaterally estops subsequent court proceeding that seeks to impose sentence based on invalid prior); see Code Civ. Proc. § 577 (a judgment is final determination of rights of parties in action or proceeding)].

When the prior action was in a California state court, the judgment is not final for the purposes of collateral estoppel while it is open to direct attack, for example, by appeal [Lumpkin v. Jordan (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1231 n.5, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303] .

When, however, the prior action was in federal court, a federal judgment has the same effect in the California courts as it would have in federal court [Lumpkin v. Jordan (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1230, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303 ; see discussion in § 491.16, below]. Under the federal rule, an order or judgment, once rendered, is final for res judicata purposes until it is reversed on appeal, or modified or set aside in the court of rendition [Calhoun v. Franchise Tax Bd. (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 881, 887, 143 Cal. Rptr. 692, 574 P. 2d 763 , cert. denied, 439 U.S. 872 ; Lumpkin v. Jordan (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1230, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303] . Thus, for collateral estoppel purposes, a federal court's ruling on a summary judgment, even though appealed, must be considered final, that is, if the federal court's ruling on the summary judgment has not been reversed or modified, the decision is final [Lumpkin v. Jordan (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1230-1231, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303] .

For further discussion of the requirement that the former judgment be final and on the merits, see § 491.14[2] and [3], above.

[b] Denial of Extraordinary Writ

Just because the court of appeal denies a petition for a writ of mandate does not mean it made a decision on the merits having res judicata effect. The proper rule is that unless there is a written opinion following the issuance of an alternative writ, the denial of a writ petition does not have issue preclusive effect [Gammoh v. City of Anaheim (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 186, 196, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 194] .

For discussion of Leone v. Medical Board (2000) 22 Cal. 4th 660, 669-670, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 61, 995 P.2d 191 , concerning when a summary denial of a writ petition is necessarily on the merits and its potential impact on res judicata/collateral estoppel issues, see § 491.14[3][f], above].

[3] Identity of Issues

[a] Generally

For issue preclusion to apply, the issue decided in the prior adjudication must be identical with the issue presented in the instant action [Producers Dairy Delivery Co. v. Sentry Ins. Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 903, 910, 226 Cal. Rptr. 558, 718 P.2d 920 ; Plumley v. Mockett (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1031, 1049, 79 Cal. Rptr. 3d 822 ; Wimsatt v. Beverly Hills Weight Etc. Internat., Inc. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1511, 1516, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612] . The doctrine of collateral estoppel depends on what issues were adjudicated, not the nature of the proceeding or the relief requested [Lumpkin v. Jordan (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1231, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303] . For example, a 1941 Ohio bastardy proceeding was found to have presented an identical issue to that presented in a probate proceeding for intestate distribution: whether the relationship of natural parent and child existed [Estate of Griswold (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 904, 922, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 24 P.3d 1191] .

The issue must have been actually litigated and determined in the first action [Taylor v. Hawkinson (1957) 47 Cal. 2d 893, 895-896, 306 P.2d 797 (collateral estoppel not found); Nash v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1793, 1812-1813, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 454 (collateral estoppel not found); Corral v. State Farm Mutual Auto. Ins. Co. (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 1004, 1010, 155 Cal. Rptr. 342 (collateral estoppel not found); see Lumpkin v. Jordan (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1232, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303 (collateral estoppel found)]. An issue is actually litigated when it is properly raised by the pleadings or otherwise, is submitted for determination and is actually determined. A determination may be based on a failure of proof [Younan v. Caruso (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 401, 407, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 103 (citing People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 484, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321 which quoted from Restatement (Second) of Judgments § 27, comment d (1982))].

The issue must have been necessarily decided in former proceeding [Townsel v. San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Bd. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 940, 951, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 231 (collateral estoppel not found); see McMillin Development, Inc. v. Home Buyers Warranty (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 896, 906, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 611 (determination of issue must have been necessary to judgment; collateral estoppel not found)]. This requirement prevents the incidental or collateral determination of a nonessential issue from precluding reconsideration of that issue in later litigation [McMillin Development, Inc. v. Home Buyers Warranty (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 896, 906-907, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 611] . No aspect of what was decided in the previous proceeding can be left to conjecture on the record, and if it is left to conjecture, estoppel is inapplicable [Silver v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 338, 357, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 287 ; see Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 181-182, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44 (it must appear precise question was raised and determined in former suit)].

A settlement that avoids trial generally does not constitute actually litigating any issues and thus prevents application of collateral estoppel. There is a line of cases, however, holding that a consent or stipulated judgment may properly be given collateral estoppel effect. This principle, however, has been tempered by the rule that a consent judgment is not usually given preclusive effect in subsequent litigation on a different cause of action, unless the parties manifest an intent in the consent judgment to give it preclusive effect [Rice v. Crow (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 725, 736, 737 n.15, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110] .

[b] Multiple Issues

If the questions involved in a suit are tried and decided, no matter how numerous they may be, issue preclusion will apply to each point so settled, in the same degree as if it were the sole issue in the case [Bank of America v. McLaughlin etc. Co. (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 620, 628, 105 P.2d 607] .

[c] Binding Even Though Facts or Arguments That Could Have Been Presented Were Not

Issue preclusion will apply with respect to all issues that were involved in the prior case, even though some factual matters or legal arguments that could have been presented in the prior case in support of those issues were not presented. Thus, when two lawsuits are brought and they arise out of the same alleged factual situation, and although the causes of action or forms of relief may be different, the prior determination of an issue in the first lawsuit becomes conclusive in the subsequent lawsuit between the same parties with respect to that issue and also with respect to every matter that might have been urged to sustain or defeat its determination [Frommhagen v. Board of Supervisors (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1292, 1301, 243 Cal. Rptr. 390 ; see also Interinsurance Exchange of the Auto. Club v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 177, 181-182, 257 Cal. Rptr. 37] . However, when determination of an issue was entirely unnecessary to the former judgment, it will not have issue preclusion effect [Estate of Simmons (1966) 64 Cal. 2d 217, 222-223, 49 Cal. Rptr. 369, 411 P.2d 97 ; Berry v. City of Santa Barbara (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 438, 444-445, 56 Cal. Rptr. 553 ; see Wilson v. Interlake Steel Co. (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 229, 234, 185 Cal. Rptr. 280, 649 P.2d 922] .

[d] Effect of New Facts or Different Substantive Law

Collateral estoppel does not apply when there are changed conditions or new facts which did not exist at the time of the prior judgment, or where the previous decision was based on different substantive law [United States Golf Ass'n v. Arroyo Software Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 607, 616-619, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 708] .

[e] Determining What Issues Have Been Adjudicated

What has been adjudicated is to be determined not from the opinion rendered but from a consideration of the judgment actually entered in reference to the issues presented for decision [Ball v. Rodgers (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 442, 448, 9 Cal. Rptr. 666] . Whatever issue was actually and necessarily included in a former judgment will be deemed to have been adjudged thereby [Branson v. Sun-Diamond Growers (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 327, 348, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 314 (no collateral estoppel found); Strickland v. Calancorporation, Ltd. (1957) 156 Cal. App. 2d 488, 495, 319 P.2d 737 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1911].

To determine what issues were actually litigated in the underlying action the court in the subsequent action cannot rely exclusively on the findings in the underlying action, but must carefully scrutinize the pleadings and proof. This scrutiny includes looking behind the findings at the evidence presented to determine what was actually decided [Hernandez v. City of Pomona (2009) 46 Cal. 4th 501, 514, 94 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1, 207 P.3d 506 (court must look at entire record from prior proceeding, including pleadings, evidence, jury instructions and any special jury findings or verdicts); Schaefer/Karpf Productions v. CNA Ins. Companies (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1306, 1314, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42 ; see also Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 182, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44 (reference must be made to pleadings and proof in each case)].

Making the distinction between "issues" and "legal theories" is not always easy; reference must be made to the pleadings and proof in each case [see United States Golf Ass'n v. Arroyo Software Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 607, 617, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 708 ; Wimsatt v. Beverly Hills Weight Etc. Internat., Inc. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1511, 1517, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612] . Evidence extrinsic to the judgment roll, such as a reporter's trial transcript, may be used to ascertain what issues were determined in the former action [Southwell v. Mallery, Stern & Warford (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 140, 144, 239 Cal. Rptr. 371] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Identifying Issue That Was Litigated. Residents of California sign franchise agreements under which they agree that any action against the franchisor will be brought in a Virginia court. They sue the franchisor on claims relating to the agreement in federal district court in California based on diversity jurisdiction. The judge, applying federal procedural law, grants the franchisor's motion to dismiss for lack of proper venue based on the forum selection clause. Plaintiffs bring suit in a California state court. Can the case be dismissed on the ground that the issue of the "validity and enforceabiltiy" of the forum selection clause has been fully and fairly litigated in federal court? No [Wimsatt v. Beverly Hills Weight

Etc. Internat., Inc. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1511, 1517-1524, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612] . The Wimsatt court noted that the case turned on what the exact issue was that was decided in the federal diversity action. The court held that framing the issue as the validity and enforceability of the forum selection clause was unreasonably broad [Wimsatt v. Beverly Hills Weight Etc. Internat., Inc. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1511, 1517, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612] . Looking at the factual and legal foundation of the prior decision, the court found that it really decided only whether plaintiff had the right to sue in federal court in California as a matter of federal procedural law, and held that this did not and by definition could not reach the question of the validity of the forum selection clause as a matter of California substantive law [Wimsatt v. Beverly Hills Weight Etc. Internat., Inc. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1511, 1517-1520, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612] .

If a court of first instance makes its judgment on alternative grounds and a reviewing court affirms on only one of those grounds, declining to consider the other, the second ground is no longer conclusively established [Butcher v. Truck Ins. Exchange (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1442, 1460, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 521 (court declining to follow Bank of America v. McLaughlin etc. Co. (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 620, 105 P.2d 607 , which held that judgment is conclusive on both grounds); see also Newport Beach Country Club v. Founding Members of the Newport Beach Country Club (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 1120, 1130, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 207 (adopting Butcher court's reasoning and declining to follow Bank of America case); Zevnik v. Superior Court (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 76, 86, 70 Cal. Rptr. 3d 817 (also adopting Butcher court's reasoning)].

If an issue such as that of attorney's fees is raised in two separate appeals, and the appellate court defers determination of it in the first appeal, then dismisses the second appeal, the issue has not been conclusively resolved and may be raised in a third appeal [McAdams v. Aiello (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1221, 1226, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 742] .

[f] Issue Decided in Prior Criminal Action

[i] Conviction

When successive proceedings are different in nature, one criminal and one civil, issue preclusion may still prevent relitigation of issues decided in the first action [People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 482, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321] . For example, the doctrine of issue preclusion may be applicable when a civil action follows a criminal prosecution; any issue necessarily decided in a prior criminal trial resulting in conviction is conclusively determined as to the parties if it is involved in a subsequent civil action [Teitelbaum Furs, Inc. v. Dominion Ins. Co., Ltd. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 601, 607, 25 Cal. Rptr. 559, 375 P.2d 439 ; see, e.g., Higginbotham v. King (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 1040, 1044, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 114 ; People ex rel. State of Cal. v. Drinkhouse (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 931, 935, 84 Cal. Rptr. 773 ; see also Leader v. State of California (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 1079, 1083-1089, 226 Cal. Rptr. 207 (misdemeanor conviction as having issue preclusion effect in subsequent civil action)].

If a criminal conviction is subject to a successful collateral attack, for example because it was obtained through the knowing use of perjured testimony or the suppression of evidence, it has no issue preclusion effect in a subsequent action [see Teitelbaum Furs, Inc. v. Dominion Ins. Co., Ltd. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 601, 607, 25 Cal. Rptr. 559, 375 P.2d 439 (recognizing, but declining to apply rule)]. This does not require the exhaustion of every conceivable collateral attack. Rather, a judgment is "subject to collateral attack" only when the party actually advances meritorious grounds that would sustain such an attack [Mueller v. J.C. Penney Co. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 713, 719-720, 219 Cal. Rptr. 272 (statements that conviction resulted from perjury and suppression of evidence insufficient when already considered and found meritless by several courts)].

[ii] Acquittal

Because of the difference in the degree of proof required in the two proceedings, an acquittal in a prior criminal case is not res judicata of the issue in a subsequent civil case [People ex rel. Gow v. Mitchell Brothers' Santa Ana Theater (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 296, 306, 161 Cal. Rptr. 562 ; see also Holt v. Department of Food & Agriculture (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 427, 433, 218 Cal. Rptr. 1 (similar rule applies when subsequent proceeding is administrative hearing)].

[iii] Guilty Plea

A criminal judgment arising from a guilty plea does not draw any issues into controversy and has no issue preclusion effect [see Teitelbaum Furs, Inc. v. Dominion Ins. Co., Ltd. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 601, 605-606, 25 Cal. Rptr. 559, 375 P.2d 439 (dictum); People v. Camp (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 651, 654, 89 Cal. Rptr. 242 (issue preclusion denied in subsequent criminal action); but see Olson v. Meacham (1933) 129 Cal. App. 670, 675, 19 P.2d 527 (guilty plea may be used in evidence in subsequent civil trial as admission against interest)].

[iv] Ruling on Habeas Corpus

Although a final judgment granting habeas corpus relief is res judicata and a decision denying habeas corpus relief is not res judicata, under appropriate circumstances a decision denying a request for habeas corpus relief may, for all intents and purposes, be final as to the facts adjudicated and may be given collateral estoppel effect [Younan v. Caruso (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 401, 410-412, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 103] . This turns on the burden of proof, because collateral estoppel ordinarily will not apply if the party sought to be bound by a previous factual determination faced a higher burden of proof in the first proceeding than is required by the later proceeding [Younan v. Caruso (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 401, 409 n.4, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 103] . Thus, for example, because the threshold determination on a habeas corpus petition regarding ineffective assistance of counsel is whether or not counsel's performance was deficient, based on a preponderance of the evidence, the same burden as in a civil trial, collateral estoppel may apply to bar relitigation of the issue of the attorney's competence in a later malpractice action [Younan v. Caruso (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 401, 408-414, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 103] . The result might well be different if the issue were lack of prejudice, the other element of habeas relief based on ineffective assistance of counsel, since a habeas petitioner must do more than show harm by a preponderance of the evidence, but must instead show that it is reasonably probable that trial counsel's poor representation prejudiced petitioner [Younan v. Caruso (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 401, 409 n.4, 414 n.7, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 103] .

[v] Ruling At Preliminary Hearing

A prior judicial determination at a preliminary hearing that there was sufficient evidence to hold the plaintiff over for trial may, in some situations, preclude the plaintiff from relitigating the issue of probable cause to arrest in a subsequent civil suit [McCutchen v. City of Montclair (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1138, 1147, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 95 (court, however, concluded that finding of probable cause at preliminary hearing did not have collateral estoppel effect because evidence presented at preliminary hearing was not same as evidence available to officer at time of plaintiff's arrest)].

On the other hand, if a defendant in a criminal case has a tactical reason not to litigate the probable cause issue, in that situation collateral estoppel might not apply. Unless, however, the plaintiff in a civil suit can demonstrate that the issue of probable cause was not litigated at the preliminary hearing for tactical reasons, an appellate court will presume that the plaintiff had a full and fair opportunity to litigate the issue of probable cause [McCutchen v. City of Montclair (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1138, 1147, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 95] .

[vi] Mental Health Determination

In light of the changeable nature of a person's mental health and dangerousness, it is inconsistent with the legislative intent under the Sexually Violent Predators Act to give conclusive effect to a 20-year-old finding that defendant was a not a mentally disordered sex offender [People v. Carmony (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 317, 325-326, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 896 (the doctrines of res judicata and collateral estoppel are not generally considered to be constitutional rules, and the Legislature may abrogate them in appropriate circumstances, such as in the facts of this case)].

[g] Issue Decided in Prior Administrative Action

Issue preclusion applies to a final adjudication of an administrative agency of statutory creation so as to preclude relitigation of the same issues in a subsequent case, if the following apply [People v. Sims (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 468, 479, 186 Cal. Rptr. 77, 651 P.2d 321 ; Marie Y. v. General Star Indemnity Company (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 928, 954-955, 2 Cal. Rptr. 3d 135 ; Housing Authority v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 1083, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 738 ; County of Los Angeles v. Department of Industrial Relations (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1538, 1544, 263 Cal. Rptr. 351 ; Carmel Valley Fire Protection Dist. v. State of California (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 521, 535, 234 Cal. Rptr. 795] :

- The administrative agency acted in a judicial capacity;
- It resolved disputed issues properly before it; and
- All parties were provided with the opportunity to fully and fairly litigate their claims.

This general rule may not apply if the statutory scheme that is involved specifically addresses the collateral estoppel effect of the type of adjudication in issue [see Gikas v. Zolin (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 841, 851-852, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 500, 863 P.2d 745 (recognizing that, by statute, DMV administrative proceedings to suspend drivers' licenses for driving under the influence have no collateral estoppel effect on criminal prosecution for driving under the influence)].

In determining whether an agency acted in a judicial capacity, the court must consider the presence of factors indicating that the administrative proceedings and determination possessed a judicial character [Imen v. Glassford (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 898, 906-907, 247 Cal. Rptr. 514] . These factors include the following [Imen v. Glassford (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 898, 907, 247 Cal. Rptr. 514] :

- Whether the administrative hearing was conducted in a judicial-like adversary proceeding;
- Whether the proceedings required witnesses to testify under oath;
- Whether the agency determination involved the adjudicatory application of rules to a single set of facts;
- Whether the proceedings were conducted before an impartial hearing officer;
- Whether the parties had the right to subpoena witnesses and present documentary evidence; and
- Whether the administrative agency maintained a verbatim record of the proceedings.

Additional factors include whether the hearing officer's decision was adjudicatory and in writing and contained a statement of reasons and whether the decision was adopted by the director of the agency with the potential for later judicial review [Imen v. Glassford (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 898, 907, 247 Cal. Rptr. 514] .

When a statutory scheme of remedies contemplates proceedings in different tribunals affording different remedies which are cumulative, not mutually exclusive, res judicata has been held inapplicable because the first proceeding was an administrative proceeding at which the second remedy (statutorily decreed to be a cumulative remedy) could not be sought [People v. Damon (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 958, 967-974, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504 (People's civil action alleging unfair business practices in defendant's operation of automotive repair dealership, pursuant to Automotive Repair Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 9880 et seq.), not barred by res judicata following administrative proceeding by Department of Consumer Affairs for violations of Automotive Repair Act; civil statutes do not authorize any action to be taken against registration whereas administrative statutes do not authorize imposition of civil penalty for unfair business practices)]. The court in Damon, in holding res judicata inapplicable, noted that there was no prior judgment but only an administrative decision. Res judicata principles sometimes, but not always, apply to administration decisions. The cases typically deal with the secondary aspect of res judicata, that is, collateral estoppel [People v. Damon (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 958, 969, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504] . The court further noted that administrative decisions should not be given res judicata effect if the statutory scheme explicitly or implicitly shows a contrary intent, citing as one authority Gikas v. Zolin (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 841, 851-852, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 500, 863 P. 2d 745 , which addressed the issue in the context of collateral estoppel [see People v. Damon (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 958, 970, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504] . The court specifically stated, however, that it was expressing no view on whether collateral estoppel should be applied in the circumstances of the case [People v. Damon (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 958, 968 n.10, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504] .

[h] Issue Decided in Prior Arbitration Proceeding

An arbitration award in an private arbitration governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1280 et seq., is not entitled to collateral estoppel effect in favor of a nonparty to the arbitration unless the parties to the arbitration agreed to that effect in the particular case [Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 824, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229] .

In so holding in Vandenberg, the Supreme Court noted that it was making a very narrow holding, and listed a number of issues it was not addressing [Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 824 n.2, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229] :

- The strict res judicata ("claim preclusion") effect of a private arbitration award [citing Thibodeau v. Crum (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 749, 756-761, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27 (award between homeowner and general contractor barred homeowner action against subcontractor); Sartor v. Superior Court (1982) 136 Cal. App. 3d 322, 327-328, 187 Cal. Rptr. 247 (award between homeowner and architectural firm barred homeowner's identical action against firm's employees)].

- The circumstances, if any, in which a private arbitration award would have collateral estoppel effect in subsequent litigation between the same parties on a different cause of action.

- Whether the Federal Arbitration Act (9 U.S.C. § 1 et seq.) would alter the ruling.

- The application of collateral estoppel to arbitrations under collective bargaining agreements within the purview of federal or state labor relations laws [citing Kelly v. Vons Companies, Inc. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1329, 1339-1341, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 (arbitration between union and employer bound employees on similar issues in later litigation with employer) and Lehto v. Underground Constr. Co. (1977) 69 Cal. App. 3d 933, 939-944, 138 Cal. Rptr. 419 (union-employer arbitration not preclusive against union member's subsequent unfair representation claim)].

- The collateral estoppel effect of arbitrations under various other California statutory schemes, including:

  - Mandatory judicial arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq.

  - Statutory arbitration of uninsured motorist claims under Ins. Code §§ 11580.2(f), 11580.5.

  - Statutory arbitration of attorney-client fee disputes under Bus. & Prof. Code § 6204.

In other contexts, collateral estoppel may apply to findings made in an arbitration award [see Liska v. Arns Law Firm (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 275, 284, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 21 (in suit where former client sued his attorneys for breach of contract and fraud following a binding attorney-client fee dispute, court held that only the arbitrator's award of attorney fees was to be given collateral estoppel effect in the subsequent lawsuit and therefore reversed the trial court's sustaining of the law firm's demurrer; plaintiff was permitted to maintain his action in so far as he was seeking affirmative relief relating to the prior lawsuit and not merely to recover the fees awarded to the law firm in the fee arbitration)].

Findings made during arbitration may have collateral estoppel effect so long as the arbitration had the elements of an adjudicatory procedure. Parties to an arbitration, like parties to an administration hearing, are often afforded the opportunity for a hearing before an impartial and qualified officer, at which they may give formal recorded testimony under oath, cross-examine and compel the testimony of witnesses, and obtain a written decision. It is not unjust to bind the parties to determinations made during the proceedings when the arbitration has these attributes [Kelly v. Vons Companies, Inc. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1329, 1336-1337, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763 (labor arbitration; distinguishing Flynn v. Gorton (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1550 , which holds that findings made during judicial arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.10 et seq. not entitled to collateral estoppel effect, and cases which hold that findings made during labor arbitration are not binding in employee lawsuit asserting federal statutory causes of action); see also State Farm Mut. Auto Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 5, 12-14, 259 Cal. Rptr. 50 (judgment based on judicial arbitration can have collateral estoppel effect; Flynn distinguished and rationale rejected)].

Two conditions must be satisfied before an arbitration award of a Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) claim under a collective bargaining agreement (CBA) can be given collateral estoppel effect [Camargo v. California Portland Cement Company (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1018-1019, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841] :

(1) The agreement to resolve the claims by arbitration in the CBA must be clear and unmistakable; and

(2) the procedures of the arbitration must allow for the full litigation and fair adjudication of the FEHA claim.

The court distinguished Kelly, on the basis that it held only that the arbitration of common law claims under a CBA collaterally estops a subsequent attempt to litigate those claims [Camargo v. California Portland Cement Company (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1019, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841] .

In Taylor v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 380, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 358 , the second appellate district applied the reasoning of Camargo to claims for retaliatory discharge under Lab. Code § 6310(b). The court held that a labor arbitration can only have a collateral estoppel effect on a subsequent statutory claim under Lab. Code § 6310(b) if the collective bargaining agreement contained a clear and unmistakable waiver of the employee's right to file a lawsuit on the statutory claim; and distinguished Kelly on the ground that Kelly did not involve a statutory discrimination claim but rather a common law tort claim [Taylor v. Lockheed Martin Corp. (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 380, 386-387, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 358] .

[i] Issue Decided in Prior Small Claims Proceeding

Issue preclusion does not generally apply to a small claims court judgment or superior court judgment after a hearing de novo in an action arising under the Small Claims Act, Code Civ. Proc. § 116.110 et seq. [Rosse v. DeSoto Cab Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1050-1053, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680 (rejecting Perez v. City of San Bruno (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 875, 168 Cal. Rptr. 114, 616 P.2d 1287 , on ground it is no longer sound due to repeal of former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 155, and enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 116.770(b))]. Because a superior court judgment in a de novo small claims proceeding is final and not appealable (Code Civ. Proc. § 116.780(a)), the proceeding is not ordinarily transcribed as there is no need to do so, and also because the superior court provides no statement of decision in a small claims matter (Code Civ. Proc. § 116.770(b)), it will be ordinarily impossible to reliably determine whether particular issues were actually litigated and decided which must be established to accord a prior judgment issue preclusion effect [

Rosse v. DeSoto Cab Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1052, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680] .

However, issue preclusion may be applied to prevent a plaintiff from relitigating an issue litigated and expressly decided against the plaintiff in a small claims action [Pitzen v. Superior Court (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 1374, 1381, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 628] . In Pitzen, the small claims court had issued a memorandum of decision stating that plaintiffs had failed to meet their burden of proving that defendant had caused the accident. Accordingly, the small claims court entered judgment against plaintiffs. One of the plaintiffs subsequently filed a superior court action against defendant based on the same accident. The court of appeals reversed the trial court's order overruling defendant's demurrer and held that issue preclusion prevented plaintiff from relitigating the matter against defendant. The court noted that its holding was limited to cases in which it was the small claims plaintiff who sought to relitigate the matter. The court further stated that its holding was further based on the fact that the record from the small claims proceeding adequately reflected that the issue was litigated and decided in the proceeding.

[j] Issue Decided in Prior Bastardy Proceeding--Application to Probate Action

Issue preclusion applied to a probate proceeding after a 1941 Ohio judgment in a bastardy proceeding where the father admitted paternity [Estate of Griswold (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 904, 923, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 24 P.3d 1191] . The California Supreme Court rejected the argument that res judicata should not apply because, even assuming the bastardy proceeding was quasi-criminal, the circumstances did not call for application of the rule that a trial court in a civil proceeding may not give collateral estoppel effect to a criminal conviction involving the same issues if the conviction resulted from a guilty plea because the paternity judgment was not being challenged by the father nor those claiming a right to inherit through him and the record failed to support any claim that the father's confession merely reflected a compromise [Estate of Griswold (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 904, 923, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 24 P.3d 1191] .

[k] Issue Decided in Prior Bankruptcy Proceeding

Issue preclusion applies to a bankruptcy court's factual findings in a wrongful death case in which plaintiffs' sons were killed in an automobile accident caused by defendant [Roos v. Red (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 870, 886, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 446] . After a one-day trial, the bankruptcy court ruled that plaintiffs' claims were not discharged because the claims were a result of defendant's willful and malicious conduct. The court of appeals held that the trial court correctly gave collateral estoppel effect to the bankruptcy court findings and that defendant could not contest liability in the state court proceedings. The court rejected defendant's contention that he had not had a full and fair opportunity to litigate the issue of liability because he had not had a jury trial on the issue. Defendant's right to a jury trial was not denied simply because the court had given collateral estoppel effect to the bankruptcy court's findings on the issue of liability [Roos v. Red (2005) 130 Cal. App. 4th 870, 881-886, 30 Cal. Rptr. 3d 446] .

[4] Identity of Parties or Privies

[a] Generally

The party against whom issue preclusion is asserted must have been a party or in privity with a party to the prior adjudication [see Bernhard v. Bank of America (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 807, 813, 122 P.2d 892 ; People v. Gillard (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 136, 159-160, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790] .

The term "privity" refers to some relationship or connection with the party that makes it proper to hold privies bound with the actual party. Whether privity exists is determined by analyzing the circumstances that are involved in each case. The courts have abandoned application of rigid categories in favor of a practical approach that addresses the question of whether the nonparty is sufficiently close to the original case so that issue preclusion may be applied [Martin v. County of Los Angeles (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 688, 700, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303 ; see Weir v. Ferreira (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1515, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33 (privity arising from representing same legal right)]. Thus, for purposes of issue preclusion, privity is a relationship between the party to be estopped and the unsuccessful party in the prior litigation that is sufficiently close so as to justify application of issue preclusion [Shopoff & Cavallo LLP v. Hyon (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1489, 1516, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 268 ; Clemmer v. Hartford Insurance Co. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 865, 875, 151 Cal. Rptr. 285, 587 P.2d 1098] .

Three factors may favor the application of issue preclusion in a given case even though precise identity of parties and issues may be lacking. Issue preclusion may be invoked to protect against vexatious litigation, to further the finality of litigation in which public interests are involved, or to promote the stability of adjudications in prior criminal actions [Lynch v. Glass (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 943, 947, 119 Cal. Rptr. 139] .

Issue preclusion may be applied against nonparties who had a proprietary or financial interest in and control of a prior action [see Zingheim v. Marshall (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 736, 745, 57 Cal. Rptr. 809] . It may also be applied against a nonparty for whom the unsuccessful party in the first action acted in a representative capacity [see Rynsburger v. Dairymen's Fertilizer Coop., Inc. (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 269, 277-278, 72 Cal. Rptr. 102 ; see also Alvarez v. May Department Stores Co. (2006) 143 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1238, 49 Cal. Rptr. 3d 892 (plaintiffs in prior attempt to obtain class certification were "virtual representatives" of plaintiffs as the parties, claims, and counsel were all the same; denial of class certification in prior case therefore had collateral estoppel effect); but see Johnson v. GlaxoSmithKline, Inc. (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 1497, 83 Cal. Rptr. 3d 607 (prior class certification determinations were litigated before effective date of a proposition that significantly changed standing requirements for actions under Bus.& Prof. Code § 17200 and therefore the element of identity of the issue to be precluded from relitigation was missing); Bufil v. Dollar Financial Group, Inc. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1193, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 804 (trial court's judgment on the pleadings in favor of class-action defendant on collateral estoppel grounds reversed; class asserted in second action was distinct subclass restricted to certain employees and therefore the issues surrounding class certification were different)].

However, whatever may be the scope of expanded notions of privity, it is clear that collateral estoppel may only be applied when due process requirements are met [Nein v. HostPro, Inc. (2009) 174 Cal. App. 4th 833, 846-847, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 34 ; Rodgers v. Sargent Controls & Aerospace (2006) 136 Cal. App. 4th 82, 92-93, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 528 (fact that plaintiff was represented by same counsel as plaintiffs in prior cases was not sufficient to extend doctrine of privity to plaintiff's case; plaintiff had no proprietary interest in prior cases and could not be charged with notice that he "avoided the prior proceedings at his peril"); Old Republic Ins. Co. v. Superior (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 128, 154-155, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642 (insurers held not bound by earlier judicial determination requiring coverage by another insurer because they were neither parties nor privies to prior coverage action in that they were not named in that action as parties, they did not have a financial or proprietary interest in the outcome of the coverage action, nor could it be fairly said that insurer in earlier action was in any way acting as their representative; they had no control over, or impact on, the earlier coverage action)].

For further discussion of privity, see § 491.14[5]. For discussion of the due process limitations on privity and the due process requirement that the litigant in the prior proceeding must have had an adequate opportunity to litigate, see [5] and [6], below.

[b] Use of Issue Preclusion by Stranger

For issue preclusion to be applicable, the person asserting issue preclusion need not be in privity with parties to the prior action [see Producers Dairy Delivery Co. v. Sentry Ins. Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 903, 910, 226 Cal. Rptr. 558, 718 P.2d 920 (party against whom issue preclusion asserted as only party required to be in privity); Housing Authority v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 1083, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 738 (it is the party against whom collateral estoppel is sought to be invoked that must be the same as or in privity with the party in the earlier proceeding)]. Issue preclusion may be asserted by a stranger to the prior judgment [see, e.g., Bernhard v. Bank of America (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 807, 813, 122 P.2d 892] .

Issue preclusion may be asserted by a stranger to a prior judgment either offensively, as a plaintiff, or defensively, as a defendant [see Parklane Hosiery Co. v. Shore (1979) 439 U.S. 322, 329, 99 S. Ct. 645, 58 L. Ed. 2d 552 ; see also Burdette v. Carrier Corp. (2008) 158 Cal. App. 4th 1668, 1688, 71 Cal. Rptr. 3d 185]. Defensive use of issue preclusion occurs when a defendant argues that an issue in the present suit was previously litigated in his or her favor in a prior suit in which the same plaintiff lost against another defendant. This type of issue preclusion is clearly authorized under California law [see Bernhard v. Bank of America (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 807, 813, 122 P.2d 892] . A party, however, cannot assert collateral estoppel if that party's negligence led to the adjudication sought to be used defensively [Ruffalo v. Patterson (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 341, 344, 285 Cal. Rptr. 647 (issue decided in underlying action not given collateral estoppel effect in malpractice action against attorney); see Campbell v. Scripps Bank (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1328, 1335, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 635 (recognizing rule)].

Offensive use of issue preclusion occurs when a plaintiff is seeking to prevent a defendant from relitigating issues that a defendant litigated and lost against another plaintiff [Parklane Hosiery Co. v. Shore (1979) 439 U.S. 322, 329, 99 S. Ct. 645, 58 L. Ed. 2d 552] . Courts have denied the offensive assertion of issue preclusion when, under the circumstances, it would be unfair to the defendant or otherwise against public policy [see, e.g., Kelly v. Trans Globe Travel Bureau, Inc. (1976) 60 Cal. App. 3d 195, 202, 131 Cal. Rptr. 488 ; O'Connor v. O'Leary (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 646, 649-650, 56 Cal. Rptr. 1] . The most common area in which offensive assertion of issue preclusion has been denied for unfairness to the defendant is when the plaintiff's suit is one of a set of cases maintained by different persons in separate negligence actions for personal injuries against a single defendant [R.E. Spriggs Co. v. Adolph Coors Co. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 419, 430, 156 Cal. Rptr. 738 , cert. denied, 444 U.S. 1076 (1980) ; see Nevarov v. Caldwell (1958) 161 Cal. App. 2d 762, 774-775, 327 P.2d 111] . Issue preclusion may also be denied in successive products liability actions involving the same defendant when inconsistent verdicts are extant on the issue of liability [see Sandoval v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 932, 941-944, 190 Cal. Rptr. 29] .

Although the United States Supreme Court has expressly approved the offensive use of issue preclusion, the Court also stated that judges should deny issue preclusion when the plaintiff could easily have joined in the earlier action or when the application of preclusion would be unfair to the defendant [Parklane Hosiery Co. v. Shore (1979) 439 U.S. 322, 331, 99 S. Ct. 645, 58 L. Ed. 2d 552] . Moreover, the court has held that nonmutual offensive collateral estoppel does not extend against the United States [United States v. Mendoza (1984) 464 U.S. 154, 157-158, 104 S. Ct. 568, 78 L. Ed. 2d 379] .

[c] When Coparties Use of Issue Preclusion May Be Appropriate

Ordinarily, when the plaintiff and defendant in a subsequent action were merely codefendants in the original action, the prior judgment cannot be used by one against the other as an estoppel since they were not adversary parties in the original action and no issues were raised or adjudicated between them in the original action. Coparties to an action, however, may in some situations have adverse interests even when no issue is framed between them by the pleadings. Coparties who were not adversaries may be bound by a judgment in a subsequent controversy between each other when they, in fact, occupied, in the prior trial an attitude of adversaries. The formal arrangement of parties on the record is unimportant, so that if coparties on the record were, in fact, adversaries on an issue, and the issue was actually litigated, and they had full opportunity to contest it with each other, coparties are concluded by adjudication of that issue in a subsequent controversy between each other [Pleasant Valley Canal Co. v. Borror (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 742, 769, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 ; see also Sutton v. Golden Gate Bridge Highway & Transportation Dist. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 1155, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155] .

[5] Constitutional and Public Policy Restrictions on Issue Preclusion

Issue preclusion may be applied only if due process requirements are satisfied [Clemmer v. Hartford Insurance Co. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 865, 875, 151 Cal. Rptr. 285, 587 P.2d 1098 ; Bernhard v. Bank of America (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 807, 811-812, 122 P.2d 892 ; White Motor Corp. v. Teresinski (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 754, 761, 263 Cal. Rptr. 26] . The requirement of identity of parties or privity is a due process requirement [Children's Hospital v. Sedgwick (1996) 45

Cal. App. 4th 1780, 1788, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 725] . Due process requires that the party to be estopped must have had an identity or community of interest with, and adequate representation by, the losing party in the first action. Furthermore, the circumstances of the case should reflect that the party to be estopped should reasonably have expected to be bound by the prior adjudication [Lynch v. Glass (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 943, 948, 119 Cal. Rptr. 139 ; accord Sutton v. Golden Gate Bridge Highway & Transportation Dist. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 1155, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155 ; Old Republic Ins. Co. v. Superior (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 128, 154, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642 ; Citizens for Open Access Etc. Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1070, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77] . Due process also requires that the party sought to be estopped must have had a fair opportunity to pursue his or her claim the first time [Blonder-Tongue Lab. v. University of Illinois Found. (1971) 402 U.S. 313, 333, 91 S. Ct. 1434, 28 L. Ed. 2d 788 ; accord Old Republic Ins. Co. v. Superior (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 128, 154, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642] .

A party is adequately represented for purposes of the privity rule if his or her interests are so similar to a party's interest that the latter was the former's virtual representative in the earlier action. If the party's motive for asserting a common interest is relatively weak, however, one does not infer adequate representation and there is no privity [Citizens for Open Access Etc. Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1070-1071, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77] .

Collateral estoppel is not mechanically applied. In each case the court must determine whether its application will advance the public policies that underlie the doctrine [Wright v. Ripley (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1191, 1193, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334 (issues resolved on routine sanction motion are not entitled to preclusive effect in later action for malicious prosecution)]. Those public policies are [Lucido v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 335, 343, 795 P.2d 1223 ; AmericanContinental Ins. Co. v. American Casualty Co. of Reading, Pa. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 929, 945, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 632] :

- Preservation of the integrity of the judicial system,
- Promotion of judicial economy,
- Protection of litigants from harassment by vexatious litigation.

Thus, in deciding whether to apply issue preclusion, the court must balance the rights of the party to be estopped against the need for applying issue preclusion in the particular case, in order to promote judicial economy by minimizing repetitive litigation, to prevent inconsistent judgments that undermine the integrity of the judicial system, or to protect against vexatious litigation [Clemmer v. Hartford Insurance Co. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 865, 875, 151 Cal. Rptr. 285, 587 P.2d 1098 ; accord Sutton v. Golden Gate Bridge Highway & Transportation Dist. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 1155, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155 ; White Motor Corp. v. Teresinski (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 754, 761-762, 263 Cal. Rptr. 26 ; see Younan v. Caruso (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 401, 407, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 103] .

Even when the minimal prerequisites for invocation of the doctrine are present, collateral estoppel is not an inflexible, universally applicable principle. Policy considerations may limit its use when underpinnings of the doctrine are outweighed by other factors. Whether collateral estoppel is fair and consistent with public policy in a particular case depends in part on the character of the forum that first decided issue later sought to be foreclosed. In this regard, courts consider the judicial nature of the prior forum, i.e., its legal formality, the scope of its jurisdiction, and its procedural safeguards, particularly including the opportunity for judicial review of adverse rulings. Moreover, particular danger of injustice arises when collateral estoppel is invoked by a nonparty to the prior litigation. Such cases require close examination to determine whether nonmutual use of the doctrine is fair and appropriate [Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 829-830, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229] .

Ultimately, determination of privity may depend on whether it is fair to reach that conclusion [see Children's Hospital v. Sedgwick (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1780, 1788, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 725 (fair to bind hospital with earlier judgment in medical malpractice action in which it was dismissed as party before trial so as to bar hospital's action for equitable indemnity against anesthesiologist, who had prevailed in first action, after award of damages against hospital in second suit by same plaintiff; in earlier action hospital had opportunity to prove anesthesiologist caused plaintiff's injuries and had community of interest with plaintiff in seeking to hold anesthesiologist liable for plaintiff's injuries)].

When injustice would result either because of the effect on third persons or because the public interest requires full litigation, issue preclusion may not be applied [Moore v. Panish (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 535, 540 n.5, 186 Cal. Rptr. 475, 652 P.2d 32 ; City of Los Angeles v. City of San Fernando (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 199, 230, 123 Cal. Rptr. 1, 537 P.2d 1250 ; Gutierrez v. Superior Court (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 153, 169-170, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 376 , cert. denied, 514 U.S. 1049 (1995) (collateral estoppel inappropriate against criminal defendant in successive criminal proceedings; would vitiate right to fair trial); People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 532, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164 ; see also Wright v. Ripley (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1191, 1193, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334] .

For example, collateral estoppel cannot be used to bind a California litigant to a principle of law adopted in prior out-of-state litigation that is contrary to California law, or to preclude a party from litigating a novel issue of law in California [American Continental Ins. Co. v. American Casualty Co. of Reading, Pa. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 929, 945, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 632] . In this situation, none of the policies underlying the doctrine of issue preclusion would be advanced because determining an issue of first impression (1) could not degrade public confidence in judicial system, which is threatened when two or more courts render inconsistent decisions, (2) could not be waste of judicial resources, and (3) could not be seen as baseless or unjustified litigation that might harass a party [American Continental Ins. Co. v. American Casualty Co. of Reading, Pa. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 929, 945-946, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 632] .

In deciding whether to apply collateral estoppel, a court must balance the need to limit litigation against the right of a fair adversary proceeding in which a party may fully present his or her case. Thus, collateral estoppel should not be applied if there was no opportunity for a full presentation of the issue in the first proceeding [Wright v. Ripley (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1193, 1194 n.4, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334 (mere showing that affidavits were submitted may not be sufficient to carry burden of proving issue was actually litigated)].

At least one court has also declined to apply collateral estoppel for equitable reasons after determining that the party against whom the doctrine was to be invoked had not, through no fault of its own, had a "full and fair opportunity" to litigate the claim in the prior litigation. In a case where defendant's expert was unable to testify at the last minute due to his daughter's death in a car accident, the court held it was not equitable to apply collateral estoppel on the issue of defendant's liability in a subsequent lawsuit involving the same issues. The court noted that the unavailability of a crucial witness at the prior proceeding might render the use of collateral estoppel inappropriate and, in the "unusual and compelling" circumstance presented in that case, collateral estoppel should not have been applied [Smith v. Exxon Mobile Oil Corp. (2007) 153 Cal. App. 4th 1407, 1417, 1420, 64 Cal. Rptr. 3d 69] .

Issue preclusion is not applicable when the party against whom preclusion is sought could not, as a matter of law, have obtained review of the judgment in the initial action [Long Beach Grand Prix Assn. v. Hunt (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1195, 1203, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 70 ; Anderson-Cottonwood Disposal Service v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 326, 332, 185 Cal. Rptr. 336] .

[6] Public Interest Exception to Issue Preclusion

A public interest exception to issue preclusion may apply in certain cases involving public entities [see Arcadia Unified School Dist. v. State Dept. of Education (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 251, 257, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545, 825 P.2d 438] . In these cases, when the issue is a question of law rather than of fact, the prior determination is not conclusive either if injustice would result or if the public interest requires that relitigation not be foreclosed [Arcadia Unified School Dist. v. State Dept. of Education (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 251, 257, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545, 825 P.2d 438 (applying exception); City of Sacramento v. State of California (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 51, 64, 266 Cal. Rptr. 139, 785 P.2d 522 (applying exception); Oliver v. County of Los Angeles (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 1397, 1402 n.3, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 641 (applying exception);

Pleasant Valley Canal Co. v. Borror (1998) 61 Cal. App. 4th 742, 771, 72 Cal. Rptr. 2d 1 (exception not applicable); Housing Authority v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 1084-1086, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 738 (exception not applicable)].

In Arcadia Unified, taxpayers in a prior action in which the opinion was depublished, had successfully challenged the constitutionality of a statute permitting school districts to charge fees for pupil transportation. The primary defendant, the State Board of Education, then issued an advisory that the stature authorizing the fee was unconstitutional, but many school districts that were not parties to the taxpayer suit continued to charge the fee, and ultimately brought a subsequent action to determine the validity of the statute [Arcadia Unified School Dist. v. State Dept. of Education (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 251, 255-256, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545, 825 P.2d 438] . In upholding the statute, the Court first ruled that the plaintiff school districts were not bound by the prior decision because the public interest exception to the collateral estoppel rule applied. The Court determined it would be detrimental to the public interest to foreclose relitigation of the issue, since there had been a continuing and demonstrable uncertainty about the validity of the statute [Arcadia Unified School Dist. v. State Dept. of Education (1992) 2 Cal. 4th 251, 256-257, 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 545, 825 P.2d 438 ; see Connell v. Superior Court (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 382, 394-397, 402, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 231 (public interest exception applied; Water Control Board's decision did not constitute final adjudication precluding further consideration; issue presented was not limited to validity of any finally adjudicated individual claim, but encompassed question of subvention obligations in general under regulatory amendment of wastewater purification standards; if Board's decision were wrong but unimpeachable, taxpayers statewide would suffer unjustly consequences of a continuing obligation to fund costs of local water districts); Millan v. Restaurant Enterprises Group, Inc. (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 477, 490-491, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 198 (finding no estoppel against public agency)].

Application of the public interest exception to issue preclusion may also apply in certain cases that do not involve public entities. The California Supreme Court, discussing Arcadia Unified School Dist. and City of Sacramento v. State of California (1990) 50 Cal. 3d 51, 64-65, 266 Cal. Rptr. 139, 785 P.2d 522 , has noted in a matter involving a public agency that no authority confines application of the public interest exception to cases concerning public agencies [Kopp v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 607, 622-623 n.16, 675, 685, 693, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108, 905 P.2d 1248 (Lucus, C.J., Werdegar, J., concurring, Baxter, J., joined by Arabian, J., and George, J., concurring and dissenting)].

Some cases suggest that court may have discretionary power to relax res judicata and collateral estoppel rules somewhat, in rare instances when the inability to raise a constitutional argument would work a serious injustice and harm the public interest [Littoral Development Co. v. San Francisco Bay Conservation Com. (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 211, 217, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 266 (rule inapplicable to case before court)]. The public interest exception, however, is a very narrow one [Acu na v. Regents of University of California (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 639, 652, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 388] .

Chapter 491 RES JUDICATA
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-491 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 491.16

§ 491.16 Judgments of Federal or Sister-State Courts

As a general rule, full faith and credit must be given to the final orders and judgments of federal and sister state courts [Levy v. Cohen (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 165, 172, 137 Cal. Rptr. 162, 561 P.2d 252 , cert. denied, 434 U.S. 833 ; Hicks v. Corbett (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 87, 90-91, 278 P.2d 77 , cert. denied, 349 U.S. 965 ; see U.S. Const., art. IV, § 1; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1908(a), 1913]. Such an order or judgment must be given the same effect in the courts of California as it would have been given in the federal or sister state court in which it was made [Levy v. Cohen (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 165, 173, 137 Cal. Rptr. 162, 561 P.2d 252 , cert. denied, 434 U.S. 833 ; Hood v. Hood (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 332, 337-338, 27 Cal. Rptr. 47 ; for discussion of the distinction between the federal and California rule concerning finality of a judgment for purposes of res judicata, see § 491.14[2][d]]. Likewise, a final judgment entered in an action filed in California will be given res judicata effect in federal court [Palomar Mobilehome Park v. City of San Marcos (9th Cir. 1993) 989 F.2d 362, 364] .

California follows the rule that the preclusive effect of a prior federal court judgment is determined by federal law, at least where the prior judgment was based on federal question jurisdiction [Butcher v. Truck Ins. Exchange (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1442, 1452-1455, 1460, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 521] . In Butcher, the court noted that the California Supreme Court in Levy v. Cohen (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 165, 172-173, 137 Cal. Rptr. 162, 561 P.2d 252 and Martin v. Martin (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 752, 761, 470 P.2d 662 , did not give any indication that the rule it was announcing (i.e., the preclusive effect of a prior judgment of a federal court is determined by federal law) would differ depending on whether federal court's jurisdiction was based on diversity or federal question. Butcher involved diversity jurisdiction and did not resolve the issue of whether the res judicata law of the state whose law the federal court applyied in the action leading to the judgment in the federal action or federal law would apply to determine the effect of the judgment, because in either case, California law would apply [Butcher v. Truck Ins. Exchange (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1442, 1455, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 521] .

However, following a federal judgment, a state court is not bound by federal law when determining whether an exception to the doctrines of res judicata or collateral estoppel applies, such as the public interest exception [Kopp v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 607, 620-626, 622 n.16, 675, 685, 693, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108, 905 P.2d 1248 (Lucus, C.J.; Werdegar, J., concurring; Baxter, J., joined by Arabian, J., and George, J., concurring and dissenting)]. For discussion of public interest exception to res judicata and collateral estoppel, see §§ 491.14[6] and

In making its determination as to whether a sister state or federal court judgment is res judicata, a California court may take judicial notice of the judgment [see Evid. Code § 452(d)].

A judgment or order of another state must be given full faith and credit if final and rendered by a court of competent jurisdiction in accordance with constitutional procedural requirements and the forum state's laws. The court that rendered the judgment must have had proper jurisdiction over both the subject matter and the parties [In re Marriage of Hanley (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1109, 1119, 245 Cal. Rptr. 441 (disavowed on other grounds, Leadford v. Leadford (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 571, 575 n.5, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 9)].

However, the doctrine of collateral estoppel cannot be utilized to bind a California litigant to a principle of law adopted in prior litigation in a foreign state court which is contrary to the law of California; nor can it be utilized to preclude a party from litigating a novel issue of law in California [American Continental Insurance Co. v. American Casualty Co. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 929, 945, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 632] .

If the forum court lacked jurisdiction, the judgment may be collaterally attacked in a California court, and extrinsic evidence is admissible to support the attack. However, a collateral attack for jurisdictional defect is not available if the attacking party litigated or could have litigated the jurisdictional issue in the forum court. In such a case, the judgment is res judicata as to the forum court's jurisdiction and cannot be challenged by collateral attack in a later proceeding [In re Marriage of Hanley (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1109, 1120, 245 Cal. Rptr. 441 ; see also Bank of America v. Jennett (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 104, 113-114, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359 (judgment may be challenged on jurisdictional grounds only if issue of jurisdiction was not litigated in foreign state; if question was expressly litigated, determination is res judicata and is protected by full faith and credit clause)].

The courts of appeal are split over whether res judicata should apply to bar a state law claim that is dismissed out of a federal lawsuit that has resulted in a final judgment. The Fourth Appellate District, Division Two, held that once it is known that the federal court will not exercise pendent jurisdiction over the state claim and it is dismissed out of the lawsuit, if the plaintiff then elects to proceed to trial and judgment in the federal court, the plaintiff's entire cause of action is either merged in or barred by the federal court judgment so that the plaintiff may not thereafter maintain a second suit on the same cause of action in a state court [Mattson v. City of Costa Mesa (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 441, 445-446, 164 Cal.Rptr. 913] . However, the Second Appellate District, Division Eight, is of the opposite view, finding that despite Mattson's concerns, a contrary rule would not invite manipulation, thus the plaintiff is not barred by res judicata from going forth with the state claim after the federal claim has resulted in a final judgment [Harris v. Grimes (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 180, 188-189, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 791] .

Chapter 491 RES JUDICATA
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-491 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 491.17

§ 491.17 Asserting Defense of Res Judicata

[1] Pleading Judgment

When a judgment or order of a court is conclusive, the judgment or order must be alleged in the pleadings if there be an opportunity to do so; if there be no such opportunity, the judgment or order may be used as evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1908.5].

In pleading a judgment, it is not necessary to state the facts conferring jurisdiction, but such judgment or determination may be stated to have been duly given or made and to have become final. If such allegation is controverted, the party pleading must establish on the trial the facts conferring jurisdiction and creating finality [Code Civ. Proc. § 456].

[2] By Demurrer

If the defense of res judicata appears from the face of the complaint, or from matter of which the court must or may take judicial notice [see Evid. Code §§ 451, 452; Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)], the complaint is subject to a general demurrer (or a motion for judgment on the pleadings) on the ground that the complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action in that it appears the action is res judicata, unless facts are alleged that will justify setting the prior judgment aside [Bennett v. Hibernia Bank (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 540, 554, 305 P.2d 20 ; Henry v. Clifford (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 315, 320, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 116 ; Frommhagen v. Board of Supervisors (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1292, 1299-1300, 243 Cal. Rptr. 390 ; for a form of demurrer, see § 491.50]. For discussion and forms relating to demurrers generally, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings .

A trial court may take judicial notice of a prior judgment in deciding whether to sustain a demurrer based on res judicata, regardless of whether the prior judgment was pleaded, provided that the court has been correctly apprised of the judgment and the party responding to the demurrer is given adequate notice and an opportunity to be heard as to the effect of the judgment [Pease v. Pease (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 29, 32, 246 Cal. Rptr. 762] .

[3] By Answer

When the defense of res judicata exists but does not appear from the face of the complaint or from judicially noticed matter, the objection may be raised by answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.30(b), 431.30(b)(2)] and separate trial of that issue [see Code Civ. Proc. § 597; for discussion of special trial of the defense, see § 491.20, below].

[4] By Motion for Summary Judgment

The defense of res judicata is properly raised by a motion for summary judgment, and is a proper ground on which to grant a summary judgment [Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 907, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151 ; Seltzer v. Seltzer (1969) 276 Cal. App. 2d 137, 141-142, 80 Cal. Rptr. 688] .

Summary judgment is an appropriate remedy when the doctrine of issue preclusion refutes all triable issues of fact suggested by the pleadings and supporting documents [Southwell v. Mallery, Stern & Warford (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 140, 144, 239 Cal. Rptr. 371 ; County of Alameda v. Sampson (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 584, 589-590, 163 Cal. Rptr. 915] .

For forms and discussion relating to summary judgment, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment .

[5] By Motion to Dismiss

Although there is no statutory procedure to move for dismissal on res judicata grounds, earlier decisions permitted that defense to be raised by a motion to dismiss supported by affidavits, citing the inherent power of the courts to dismiss sham or fictitious complaints [see High v. Cavanaugh (1962) 205 Cal. App. 2d 495, 497, 23 Cal. Rptr. 121 ; McKenna v. Elliott & Horne Co. (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 551, 554-555, 258 P.2d 528] . More recently, however, the Supreme Court has stated that nonstatutory speaking motions (that is, motions that are supported by facts outside the pleadings) have been superseded by the procedure governing motions for summary judgment contained in Code Civ. Proc. § 437c [Vesely v. Sager (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 153, 167-168, 95 Cal. Rptr. 623, 486 P.2d 151 ; see also McKinney v. County of Santa Clara (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 787, 793, 168 Cal. Rptr. 89 (speaking motion to dismiss treated as motion for summary judgment in order to preserve safeguards provided by summary judgment statute)]. It appears that a motion to dismiss on the ground of res judicata constitutes a speaking motion of the type contemplated by the court in Vesely, and consequently this motion would be deemed to be one for summary judgment, subject to the procedural requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 437c.

[6] Invoking Defense on Appeal

Normally, the res judicata effect of a prior judgment must be pleaded and proven at trial. However, when the prior judgment becomes final during the pendency of an appeal in another action, the first final judgment may be brought to the attention of the appellate court in which the appeal is pending and may be there relied on as a bar [Palm Springs Paint Co. v. Arenas (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 682, 688, 51 Cal. Rptr. 747] . Similarly, issue preclusion may be raised for the first time on appeal when a judgment in a prior action becomes final pending appeal and there was no opportunity to raise the issue in the trial court [First N.B.S. Corp. v. Gabrielsen (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 1189, 1195, 225 Cal. Rptr. 254] .

Chapter 491 RES JUDICATA
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-491 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 491.18

§ 491.18 Waiver of Defense

Res judicata is merely a defense. It is not jurisdictional, and as such, it may be waived if not properly raised by pleading or evidence [Busick v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 967, 977, 104 Cal. Rptr. 42, 500 P.2d 1386 ; Wolfsen v. Hathaway (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 632, 638, 198 P.2d 1 (overruled on other grounds in Flores v. Arroyo (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 492, 497, 15 Cal. Rptr. 87, 364 P.2d 263); see People v. Gillard (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 136, 160, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790 (collateral estoppel argument waived when not raised in trial court by timely objection)]. Otherwise stated, because the prohibition against splitting a cause of action exists for the defendant's benefit, the defendant may waive it and if he or she fails to object, will be deemed to have acquiesced in plaintiff's splitting a cause of action [Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 909, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151] .

The defense of res judicata is not waived for failure to assert a claim if the facts forming the basis of that cause of action are not known by the plaintiff at the time of the earlier action [see Allied Fire Protection v. Diede Const. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 150, 154-155, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 195] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-491 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 491.19

§ 491.19 Proof of Defense

Generally, the burden of establishing the defense of res judicata is on the party asserting it [Erlich v. Superior Court (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 551, 556-557, 47 Cal. Rptr. 473, 407 P.2d 649 ; Casad v. Qualls (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 921, 927, 139 Cal. Rptr. 243 ; see also Vella v. Hudgins (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 251, 257, 142 Cal. Rptr. 414, 572 P.2d 28 (requiring party asserting issue preclusion to prove that each of the elements of the doctrine have been met)]. In carrying this burden of proof, the party may resort to the judgment, the record of the entire proceedings, and extrinsic evidence [Casad v. Qualls (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 921, 927, 139 Cal. Rptr. 243] .

A party asserting issue preclusion must prove that the issue was raised, actually submitted for determination, and determined, and that contrary evidence on issue was not restricted [Schaefer/Karpf Productions v. CNA Ins. Companies (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1306, 1314, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42 ; Barker v. Hull (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 221, 226, 236 Cal. Rptr. 285] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-491 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 491.20

§ 491.20 Special Trial of Defense of Res Judicata

When an answer raises the affirmative defense that the action is barred by a prior judgment, the court may, either on its own motion or on the motion of any party, proceed to trial of that defense before trial of any other issue in the case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 597; Ball v. Citizens Casualty Co. (1959) 170 Cal. App. 2d 590, 591, 339 P.2d 241] . When the defense of res judicata is tried separately and first, there is no right to a jury trial of the res judicata defense even if plaintiff's action is an action at law. Therefore, the facts underlying the applicability of the res judicata defense are tried to the court and not a jury [Windsor Square Homeowners Assn. v. Citation Homes (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 547, 557-558, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 818] .

For a form of notice of motion and order that may be used in proceedings to obtain a separate trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 597, see §§ 491.58 and 491.59.

Chapter 491 RES JUDICATA
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-491 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 491.21

§ 491.21 Judicial Estoppel

[1] Preclusion of Inconsistent Positions

Judicial estoppel is an equitable doctrine that prevents a party from asserting a position in a legal proceeding that is contrary to a position previously taken in the same or some earlier proceeding [Jackson v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 181-183, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96 ; see Drain v. Betz Laboratories, Inc. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 950, 955-958, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 864] .

Judicial estoppel is sometimes referred to as the doctrine of preclusion of inconsistent positions, and its purpose is to protect the integrity of the judicial process [Jackson v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 181, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96 ; see Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1015-1016, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544 (doctrine intended to protect court rather than litigants; under majority view privity not required for its application); International Engine Parts, Inc. v. Feddersen & Co. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 345, 351, 354, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178 (reliance or prejudice not required before doctrine may be invoked); Billmeyer v. Plaza Bank of Commerce (1995) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1086, 1092, 1096 n.8, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 119 (federal doctrine of judicial estoppel does not require reliance or prejudice before party may invoke it; its primary purpose is not to protect litigants, but to protect integrity of judiciary); but see In re Marriage of Dekker (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 842, 850, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642 (purpose is to prevent injury to innocent party); see also California Coastal Com. v. Tahmassebi (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 255, 259, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 321 (under doctrine of judicial estoppel, party who has taken particular position in litigation, may under some circumstances, be estopped from taking inconsistent position to detriment of other party)].

[2] When Doctrine Applies

[a] Equitable Doctrine Vague in Application

California courts have not established a clear set of principles for applying judicial estoppel [Jackson v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 181-182, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96] , and the doctrine is vague in its application [Associated Creditors' Agency v. Wong (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 61, 67, 30 Cal. Rptr. 705 ; Coleman v. Southern Pacific Co. (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 121, 128, 296 P.2d 386 ; see International Engine Parts, Inc. v. Feddersen & Co. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 345, 351, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178 (equitable doctrine with some vagueness in its application); Ng

v. Hudson (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 250, 258, 142 Cal. Rptr. 69 (proper application of doctrine at best uncertain); see also Prilliman v. United Air Lines, Inc. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 935, 956, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142 (doctrine of judicial estoppel not uniformly defined or applied by federal courts; federal and state law discussed)].

Judicial estoppel should be applied with caution. It is an extraordinary remedy to be invoked when a party's inconsistent behavior will otherwise result in a miscarriage of justice [Haley v. Dow Lewis Motors, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 497, 511, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352] .

The doctrine of judicial estoppel should apply when [Drain v. Betz Laboratories, Inc. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 950, 957, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 864 ; International Engine Parts, Inc. v. Feddersen & Co. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 345, 351, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178 ; Jackson v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 183, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96] :

- The same party has taken two positions;
- The positions were taken in judicial or quasi-judicial administrative proceedings;
- The party was successful in asserting the first position (i.e., the tribunal adopted the position or accepted it as true) [see [b], below];
- The two positions are totally inconsistent; and
- The first position was not taken as a result of ignorance, fraud, or mistake.

[b] Successful Assertion of Earlier Position

California courts have recognized that there is no hard and fast rule that limits application of the doctrine of judicial estoppel to those situations where the litigant was successful in asserting the contradictory position [Thomas v. Gordon (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 113, 118, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 28] . In Jackson v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96 , the court noted that under the "majority view," the party sought to be estopped must have been successful in asserting the earlier position because if the earlier position was not adopted by the tribunal, there is no danger of inconsistent results and thus no impairment of the judicial process. However, because judicial estoppel is an equitable doctrine, the Jackson court recognized the possibility that in a future case circumstances might warrant application of the doctrine even if the earlier position was not adopted by the tribunal [Jackson v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 183 n.8, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96 ; accord Thomas v. Gordon (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 113, 118, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 28 ; Drain v. Betz Laboratories, Inc. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 950, 958, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 864 (in a suit for racial harassment and wrongful termination, when plaintiff had earlier received a workers' compensation award through a compromise and settlement approved by a workers' compensation referee, judicial estoppel was applied even though the referee's approval of the parties' compromise and release did not incorporate any factual findings)]. Under the "minority view," judicial estoppel may be applied even if the party was unsuccessful in asserting the inconsistent position if by the party's change of position, the party is playing "fast and loose" with the court [see Thomas v. Gordon (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 113, 119, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 28] . For example, in Thomas v. Gordon (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 113, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 28 , the court found that the case before it warranted application of the doctrine even absent proof of success in the earlier litigation, given the party's egregious attempt to manipulate the legal system [Thomas v. Gordon (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 113, 119, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 28 (plaintiff's action was predicated on an interest in assets she had previously transferred to keep out of the hands of credits and had failed to list in bankruptcy proceedings; alternatively, the court found that although her bankruptcy petitions were dismissed, plaintiff had derived a benefit from automatic stay of creditors' actions adequate to satisfy the successful assertion factor)]. However, courts have since made clear that such situations are "rare" and that only "egregious misconduct" warranted an exception to the successful assertion of earlier position doctrine [Gottlieb v. Kest (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 110, 142, 46 Cal. Rptr. 3d 7 (judicial estoppel doctrine not applicable because bankruptcy court in prior proceeding had not accepted plaintiff's position by confirming a plan of reorganization).]

Similarly, a party's claim of entitlement to attorney fees based on breach of a contract containing a fees provision judicially estops that party from contending that the provision does not authorize an award of attorney fees against himself or herself. Consistent with the purposes of Civ. Code § 1717, a pleader should not be permitted to threaten a litigant with the prospect of an adverse attorney fees award and avoid the same fate if unsuccessful [International Billing Services, Inc. v. Emigh (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 1175, 1186-1192, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 532 (recognizing that some jurisdictions require prior success on the fact asserted, but stating that the doctrine may also apply to prevent a party from changing its position over the course of a proceeding)].

[c] Not Applicable When Prior Position Was Taken as Result of Ignorance or Mistake

Asserting inconsistent positions does not trigger application of judicial estoppel unless intentional self-contradiction is used as a means of obtaining unfair advantage. An inconsistent argument sufficient to invoke judicial estoppel must be attributable to intentional wrongdoing [Haley v. Dow Lewis Motors, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 497, 509-510, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352] . Thus, the doctrine cannot be invoked when the position was taken as a result of ignorance or mistake in the first proceeding [Coleman v. Southern Pacific Co. (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 121, 128, 296 P.2d 386 ; accord Jackson v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 182-183, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96 ; see also Haley v. Dow Lewis Motors, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 497, 509 (doctrine does not apply when position taken because of good faith mistake rather than as part of scheme to mislead court); Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1016-1018, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544 (doctrine only applies to deliberate inconsistencies that are tantamount to a knowing misrepresentation to or even fraud on court); cf. Michelson v. Camp (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 955, 959-961, 970-971, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 539 (when plaintiffs sought and obtained leave of bankruptcy court for relief from stay to allow them to foreclose on property, in later action plaintiffs estopped to deny knowledge of appraisal report submitted by their counsel on their behalf in bankruptcy court to convince court there was no equity to protect on behalf of debtor's estate and gain advantage for them in court of law; possibility plaintiffs might not have been aware of their counsel's specific arguments to court does not make them innocent bystanders; they accepted benefits of their counsel's representations to court and went ahead with foreclosure and resale; for purposes of judicial estoppel, their actual knowledge irrelevant)].

[d] Final Judgment Not Required

Unlike collateral estoppel, judicial estoppel does not require a final judgment [Jackson v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 189 n.12, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96 (when workers' compensation judge accepted parties' stipulations with request for award and approved work restrictions as part of award, judicial estoppel barred plaintiff's claim under the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. § 12101 et seq.) because of position plaintiff took in workers' compensation proceeding with respect to work restrictions although award did not become final until five years after plaintiff's injury)].

[e] In Court's Discretion

The doctrine is invoked by the courts in their discretion [International Engine Parts, Inc. v. Feddersen & Co. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 345, 351, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178] .

[3] Raises Factual Issues

A defense of judicial estoppel raises factual issues. Cases concerning judicial estoppel have generally been decided after a fact-finding or evidence-reviewing proceeding of some sort [Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1000, 1018-1020, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544 (factual determinations necessary to support judicial estoppel could not be decided solely by reviewing plaintiff's complaint and matters that could be judicially noticed, and thus could not be decided on motion for judgment on pleadings); see also Haley v. Dow Lewis Motors, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal.

App. 4th 497, 510 (whether judicial estoppel should be applied is factual question; determination of existence of judicial estoppel is factual finding that will be upheld if supported by substantial evidence)]. Whether or not to apply judicial estoppel, however, is a question of law for the trial court which can be made in the context of a summary judgment motion where none of the facts material to the court's decision to apply judicial estoppel are disputed [Drain v. Betz Laboratories, Inc. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 950, 959 n.8, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 864] .

[4] Application in Multiple Proceedings

Judicial estoppel is especially appropriate when a party has taken inconsistent positions in separate proceedings [International Engine Parts, Inc. v. Feddersen & Co. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 345, 350-351, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178 ; Jackson v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 181, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96] . In the context of multiple proceedings, the doctrine of judicial estoppel precludes a party who has assumed a particular position in a judicial proceeding to assume an inconsistant position to the prejudice of an adverse party in a later proceeding involving the same parties and questions. For such an estoppel to apply, the position taken in the first proceeding must be so clearly inconsistent with the position taken in the later proceeding that the one necessarily excludes the other [Coleman v. Southern Pacific Co. (1956) 141 Cal. App. 2d 121, 128, 296 P.2d 386 ; see Jackson v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 182, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96 (inconsistency must be clear so that one necessarily excludes other); Prilliman v. United Air Lines, Inc. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 935, 960-963, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142 (following Coleman; plaintiff's assertion of disability for purpose of obtaining Social Security benefits did not constitute judicial estoppel that precluded plaintiff from arguing in Fair Employment and Housing Act case that plaintiff was capable of performing an alternative position with employer); Billmeyer v. Plaza Bank of Commerce (1995) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1086, 1091-1096, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 119 (doctrine precludes party from asserting position in judicial proceeding that is inconsistent with position party previously successfully asserted in earlier proceeding; doctrine's essential function and justification is to prevent use of intentional self-contradiction as means of obtaining unfair advantage in forum provided for suitors seeking justice); see also International Engine Parts, Inc. v. Feddersen & Co. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 345, 350, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178 (judicial estoppel most commonly applied to bar party from making factual assertion in legal proceeding that directly contradicts earlier assertion made in same proceeding or a prior one); cf. Loube v. Loube (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 421, 428, 74 Cal. Rptr. 2d 906 (position taken by attorneys on behalf of their clients not binding on attorneys when later sued by same clients; judicial estoppel inapplicable because attorneys were not parties to earlier proceeding)].

Thus, for example, when parties to a pending action have been properly shown to have been less than sufficiently forthcoming in another tribunal, the doctrine is available to maintain the integrity of the judicial system [International Engine Parts, Inc. v. Feddersen & Co. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 345, 354, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178 (judicial estoppel applied to bar plaintiffs' action against defendant when plaintiffs had failed to disclose potential action against defendant in bankruptcy proceeding)].

[5] Equitable Estoppel Distinguished

Unlike equitable estoppel, judicial estoppel looks to the connection between the litigant and the judicial system while equitable estoppel focuses on the relationship between the parties to the prior litigation [International Engine Parts, Inc. v. Feddersen & Co. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 345, 350-351, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178] .

Equitable estoppel entails detrimental reliance by one party, judicial estoppel does not. Judicial estoppel may apply to prevent a party from changing its position over the course of a judicial proceeding when the positional change has an adverse impact on the judicial process [International Billing Services, Inc. v. Emigh (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 1175, 1190-1191, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 532 (claim of entitlement to attorney's fees under Civ. Code § 1717 in complaint estopped plaintiff from denying contract contained fee clause)]. Unlike equitable estoppel, judicial estoppel may be applied even if detrimental reliance or privity does not exist [International Billing Services, Inc. v. Emigh (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 1175, 1190, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 532 , citing Jackson v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 181, 70 Cal.

Rptr. 2d 96] .

[6] Distinguished From Pleading Inconsistent or Alternative Theories

The doctrine of judicial estoppel should be distinguished from the permissible practice of allowing a plaintiff to plead inconsistent or alternative theories in a complaint [see Jackson v. County of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 181, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96 ; for discussion of pleading inconsistent or alternative theories in a complaint, see s California Points and Authorities, Ch. 71, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings , Form 27 (Matthew Bender)].

[7] Distinguished From Election of Remedies

Similarly, the doctrine should be distinguished from an election of remedies that occurs in two ways, under the doctrine of res judicata or under the doctrine of estoppel [see Kirkpatrick v. Westamerica Bank (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 982, 990-991, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 876] .

[8] Application of State Versus Federal Law

State law governs the issue of whether plaintiff is judicially estopped from proceeding with a claim when the state law supplies the rule of decision on the claim [Prilliman v. United Air Lines, Inc. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 935, 959-960, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142 (state law governs issue of judicial estoppel concerning plaintiff's Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) claim brought in state court; distinguishing federal decision dealing with FEHA claim which held that federal law governs application of judicial estoppel in federal courts)].

43-491 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 491.42

§ 491.42 Decisions

[1] Administrative Agencies

Enforcement of res judicata rules relating to administrative orders is permitted to be more flexible than judicial orders; recognition that traditional principle of res judicata as developed in judicial system should be fully applicable to some administrative action but not applicable to other administrative action and that much administrative action should be subject to relaxed set of rules concerning res judicata. George Arakelian Farms, Inc. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 1279, 1290, 265 Cal. Rptr. 162, 783 P.2d 749

Res judicata did not bar employee's action against California Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board under Fair Employment and Housing Act for retaliation, based on impropriety of discipline imposed in administrative proceedings, where primary right protected by the state civil service system was right to continued employment, while primary right protected by FEHA was right to be free from invidious discrimination and from retaliation for opposing discrimination, and doctrine of res judicata did not act as complete bar to FEHA action when employee sought review through alternative administrative remedy available as consequence of employee's civil servant status. Doctrine of collateral estoppel did not act to preclude employee from recovering on her FEHA claim, where, although Board's decisions established that some reasons given for suspensions were legitimate and it upheld two suspensions, and these findings were binding on employee in her FEHA action under doctrine of collateral estoppel, findings did not preclude entire retaliation cause of action, because employee was not simply challenging adverse action on ground it was discriminatory, she alleged agency accumulated number of minor incidents and used them collectively to support suspensions with retaliatory animus, and board's findings did not resolve these issues in favor of agency so as to completely defeat retaliation cause of action. George v. California Unemployment Ins. Appeals Bd. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1475, 1482-1488, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 431

Doctrine of collateral estoppel applies to administrative determination when made by administrative agency that is acting in judicial capacity and resolving disputed issues which parties have had adequate opportunity to litigate; opinion and order of Workers' Compensation Appeals Board qualifies as such administrative determination. Housing Authority v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 1083, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 738

Although jurisdiction of agency in particular proceeding ordinarily lapses when it renders its decision, decision must be on merits in order to be entitled to res judicata effect. Hunt v. County of Shasta (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 432, 442 n.8, 275 Cal. Rptr. 113

Finality for purposes of administrative collateral estoppel is two-step process: (1) decision is final with respect to action by administrative agency; and (2) decision has conclusive effect, that is, it must be free from direct attack; because direct attack on administrative decision may be made by appeal to superior court for review by petition for administrative mandamus, decision is not given collateral estoppel effect if such appeal has been taken or if time for such appeal has not lapsed. Long Beach Unified Sch. Dist. v. State of California (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 155, 168-169, 275 Cal. Rptr. 449

No privity exists between city and county retirement board and Workers' Compensation Appeals Board because former is designated by city and county to administer workers' compensation benefits and allegedly has proprietary interest in Appeals Board's award; hence, retirement board was not collaterally estopped to deny Appeals Board finding that plaintiff's heart trouble was due to industrial cause. Geoghegan v. Retirement Board (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1525, 1531, 272 Cal. Rptr. 419

Collateral estoppel applies to prior administrative adjudications when (1) administrative agency acted in judicial capacity, (2) agency resolved disputed issues properly before it, and (3) all parties were provided with opportunity to litigate their claims fully and fairly. County of Los Angeles v. Department of Industrial Relations (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1538, 1544, 263 Cal. Rptr. 351

[2] Burden of Proof

Party asserting collateral estoppel bears burden of establishing requirements for its application. Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 181, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44

Defendant bore burden of demonstrating that waiver issue was actually determined by federal district court when that court, on defendant's motion, issued order compelling arbitration and thereafter in state court action between parties defendant moved to compel arbitration and plaintiff in opposition argued, among other things, that defendant waived its right to arbitrate; defendant did not meet its burden, and trial court did not err in reaching merits of plaintiff's waiver argument because nothing in district court's ruling or pleadings suggested that district court decided waiver issue. McMillin Development, Inc. v. Home Buyers Warranty (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 896, 906-907, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 611

Party asserting collateral estoppel must prove issue was raised, actually submitted for determination, and determined, and that contrary evidence on issue was not restricted. Schaefer/Karpf Productions v. CNA Ins. Companies (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1306, 1314, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42

Burden of proving collateral estoppel as resting with party asserting doctrine. Bronco Wine Co. v. Frank A. Logoluso Farms (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 699, 708, 262 Cal. Rptr. 899

[3] Claim Preclusion

[a] Claims That Could Have Been Raised

Res judicata is not a bar to claims that arise after the initial complaint is filed. Although the parties litigated a breach of contract action in federal court, res judicata did not bar plaintiff from later suing defendant on a fraud theory in state court where plaintiff was unaware of the facts forming the basis for the fraud suit until after the federal complaint was filed. Allied Fire Protection v. Diede Const. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 150, 154-155, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 195 .

Order settling account is entitled to res judicata effect and is conclusive as to all matter passed on notwithstanding some theory that might have been advanced, and probate court approving account necessarily passes on trustee's veracity and exercise of due care. Noggle v. Bank of America (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 853, 862, 82 Cal. Rptr. 2d 829

Res judicata only applies to issues which were or could have been litigated in arbitration; when insurance carrier is providing defense under reservation of rights and has agreed to use of independent counsel, Civ. Code § 2860 arbitration is appropriate to resolve attorneys fee disputes before legal determination of coverage issues; carrier was not precluded by res judicata from litigating coverage issues when parties specifically agreed that the arbitrator would not have power to decide any coverage issues and the only issues resolved by arbitrator were those relating to attorney fees. Truck Ins. Exchange v. Superior Court (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 985, 998-999, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 529

With regard to bankruptcy court's order granting defendants relief from automatic stay, res judicata bars plaintiffs from thereafter asserting in state court action that rules of procedure in connection with motion for relief from stay were violated, including rules requiring advance notice of specific relief sought and submission of proposed order, when order was not appealed, modified, or set aside in bankruptcy court; res judicata bars relitigation of issues that could have been raised in prior action. Abdallah v. United Savings Bank (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1101, 1106-1107, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 286

Valid final judgment on merits in favor of defendant as barring future litigation on same cause of action; bar as including matters that were relevant and within scope of first action, which thus could have been raised by first suit. Craig v. County of Los Angeles (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1294, 1299, 271 Cal. Rptr. 82

Res judicata as applying to claims actually litigated in prior proceeding and to those that could have been litigated as part of that cause of action; fact that plaintiff requests different type of relief, or even presents different legal theory, as not negating or lessening binding effect of previous state court judgment. California Coastal Com. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1488, 1499, 258 Cal. Rptr. 567

[b] Final Judgment on Merits

Defense of laches has nothing to do with merits of cause against which it is asserted and thus, judgment denying petition for writ of administrative mandate because of defense of laches is not judgment on merits for purposes of res judicata. Johnson v. City of Loma Linda (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 61, 76-77, 99 Cal. Rptr. 2d 316

Termination of an action by statute of limitations is a technical rather than a substantive termination and does not operate as a final determination on the merits; therefore, a statute reviving claims arising out of the Northridge earthquake revived claimant's case against his insurance company because his prior lawsuit, dismissed after the court sustained a demurrer, was not litigated to finality in the res judicata sense. Mid-Century Insurance Co. v. Superior Court (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 769, 776-777, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 883

Defendant's dismissal of cross-complaint with prejudice was a judgment on the merits and operated to bar defendant from asserting affirmative defenses involving the same primary rights as those asserted in the cross-complaint. Alpha Mechanical, Heating & Air Conditioning, Inc. v. Travelers Casualty & Surety Co. of America (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 1319, 1327-1329, 35 Cal. Rptr. 3d 496

Final judgment on merits not found when appellate division reversed and remanded, then plaintiff voluntarily dismissed without prejudice. Syufy Enterprises, L.P. v. City of Oakland (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 869, 879, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 808

Denial without opinion of writ of mandate or prohibition is not res judicata; court's summary denial of previous writ petition was not decision on merits. Hoversten v. Superior Court (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 636, 640, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 197

Partial summary judgment, not entered as judgment, is not final; election of remedies occurs in two ways, under doctrine of res judicata or under doctrine of estoppel. Kirkpatrick v. Westamerica Bank (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 982, 990-991, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 876

Judgments entered in earlier actions in accordance with settlement agreement and rendered through consent and stipulation, qualified as final on the merits for purposes of res judicata. Citizens for Open Access Etc. Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1067-1069, 1073, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77

When party stipulated to paternity and entry of judgment requiring payment of child support without asking for appointment of counsel or demanding blood test with full knowledge of his rights and without coercion, judgment barred party's later action to establish nonpaternity, even though blood test taken after judgment excluded him as biological father. Robert J. v. Leslie M. (1997) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1642, 1647-1648, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 905

Res judicata principles sometimes, but not always, apply to administration decisions; cases typically deal with the secondary aspect of res judicata, i.e., collateral estoppel; administrative decisions should not be given res judicata effect if the statutory scheme explicitly or implicitly shows contrary intent; when statutory scheme of remedies contemplates proceedings in different tribunals affording different remedies that are cumulative, not mutually exclusive, res judicata held inapplicable because first proceeding was an administrative proceeding at which the second remedy (statutorily decreed to be a cumulative remedy) could not be sought. People v. Damon (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 958, 967-974, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504

Trial judge's ruling on issue of substantial justification in awarding costs and attorney fees after trial in taxpayers refund action was not binding on later motion following appeal and remittitur filed by taxpayers in superior court seeking litigation expenses incurred in appellate proceeding; doctrines of res judicata and collateral estoppel inapplicable because first ruling was not in a former action, but was earlier ruling in same action; prior appealable order becomes res judicata in sense that it becomes binding in same case if not appealed; law of case doctrine inapplicable because no appellate court in the litigation ever actually determined question. Lennane v. Franchise Tax Board (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1180, 1185-1186, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602

Under federal rule, order or judgment, once rendered, is final for res judicata purposes until it is reversed on appeal, or modified or set aside in the court of rendition. Lumpkin v. Jordan (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1230, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 913, when dismissal of appeal was not expressly made without prejudice to another appeal, dismissal does not mean that underlying judgment is not final; res judicata applied. Lyons v. Security Pacific Nat. Bank (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1017, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174

Order denying petition for leave to file complaint alleging civil conspiracy between attorneys under Civ. Code § 1714.10 on merits is res judicata barring new action based on same primary right; amendment of Section 1714.10 not relevant because change in statute or law does not entitle litigant to escape earlier ruling by filing new action. Castro v. Higaki (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 350, 359, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 84

Doctrine of res judicata as precluding parties or their privities from relitigating cause of action that has been finally determined by court of competent jurisdiction; but judgment not rendered on merits as not operating as a bar; termination of action by statute of limitations as deemed technical or procedural, rather than substantive, termination; hence, summary judgment granted on ground that action is barred by statute of limitations as not precluding subsequent action on new theory on which statute of limitations has not yet run. Koch v. Rodlin Enterprises (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1591, 1595-1597, 273 Cal. Rptr. 438

Fact that judgment is based in part on granting of a nonsuit as not making it any less a judgment on merits for purposes of res judicata. Aronow v. LaCroix (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1039, 1047, 268 Cal. Rptr. 866

Although admission by party may be admissible as evidence of liability under Evid. Code § 1220, such evidence as not conclusively establishing liability as matter of law for purposes of res judicata. Aronow v. LaCroix (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1039, 1053, 268 Cal. Rptr. 866

Final judgment or order as having res judicata effect, even if it is incorrect, if merits of claim are tried and determined or might have been urged, but were not, by one of parties; order as deemed final if it is directly appealable. Peck v. Hagen (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 602, 607-608, 263 Cal. Rptr. 198

Prior judgment on question of law as conclusive in subsequent action between parties or their privities when both causes of action arose out of same subject matter or transaction and when conclusive reach of that judgment to present action will not result in injustice. City of Gilroy v. State Bd. of Equalization (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 589, 606, 260 Cal. Rptr. 723

Single adverse intermediate appellate decision, although binding trial court, as not excusing party's failure to pursue available judicial remedies on theory it would have been futile to do so; final judgment on merits of action as precluding parties or their privities from relitigating issues that were or could have been raised in that action; res judicata consequences of final, unappealed judgment on merits as not altered by fact that judgment may have been wrong or rested on legal principle subsequently overruled in another case; change in controlling law as not providing exception to res judicata. California Coastal Com. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1488, 1498, 1498 n.6, 1499, 258 Cal. Rptr. 567

Order denying motion for summary judgment as not a final judgment and not res judicata. De La Pena v. Wolfe (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 481, 485, 223 Cal. Rptr. 325

Fraud by party as not undermining conclusiveness of judgment unless fraud was extrinsic, that is, unless it deprived opposing party of opportunity to appear and present its case. Eichman v. Fotomat Corp. (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 1170, 1176, 197 Cal. Rptr. 612

[c] Policy Considerations

Doctrine of res judicata rests on ground that party to be affected, or some other with whom he or she is in privity, has litigated, or had opportunity to litigate same matter in a former action in a court of competent jurisdiction, and should not be permitted to litigate it again to harassment and vexation of his or her opponent; public policy and interests of litigants alike require that there be end to litigation. Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 181, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44

Purpose of res judicata doctrine is to preserve integrity of judicial system, promote judicial economy, and protect litigants from harassment by vexatious litigation. Brinton v. Bankers Pension Services, Inc. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 550, 556, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469

Doctrine of res judicata, whether applied as total bar to further litigation or as collateral estoppel, rests on sound policy of limiting litigation by preventing party that had one fair adversary hearing on issue from drawing it into controversy again and subjecting other party to further expense in its reexamination; thus, spouse who conceals existence of community assets, thereby depriving other spouse of opportunity fully to present his or her case in dissolution proceeding, cannot claim judgment of dissolution bars subsequent tort action based on that failure. Rubenstein v. Rubenstein (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 1131, 1144, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 707

Application of res judicata based on policy of preventing party who has had one fair adversary hearing on an issue from relitigating it; res judicata as not barring claim that husband in prior dissolution proceedings violated fiduciary duty to account to wife for community property, including excess assets. Worton v. Worton (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1638, 1648-1649, 286 Cal. Rptr. 410

[d] Same Cause of Action in Prior Action

Res judicata did not bar disabled plaintiff's state court action for damages against defendant for alleged violation of California's Disabled Persons Act although federal court had entered a consent decree resolving federal class action for violation of ADA; consent decree was limited to injunctive relief, declaratory relief and attorney fees. Louie v. BFS Retail and Commercial Operations, LLC (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1544, 1553, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 441

In a case where a company first sought specific performance of a license agreement and in a second suit sought monetary damages based on the same agreement, both suits sought to vindicate the same primary right and therefore the second suit seeking monetary damages was barred under the res judicata doctrine. Mycogen Corporation v. Monsanto Company (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 888, 904-909, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 432

Plaintiff could not bring action against insurer for breach of the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing where court had already entered judgment on prior cross-complaint for breach of the duty to defend and indemnify; the two causes of action involved the same primary right and could not be split. Lincoln Property Co., N.C., Inc. v. The Travelers Indemnity Co. (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 905, 913, 41 Cal. Rptr. 3d 39

When federal court does not exercise pendent jurisdiction over the state claim and it is dismissed out of lawsuit, and plaintiff elects to proceed to trial and judgment in federal court, res judicata does not bar plaintiff from thereafter maintaining second suit on same cause of action in state court. Harris v. Grimes (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 180, 188-189, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 791

To define cause of action California follows primary right theory; two actions constitute single cause of action if they both affect same primary right; there is only single cause of action for invasion of one primary right, even if multiple theories of recovery are asserted. Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 182, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44

Rule against plaintiff splitting single cause of action so as to make it basis of several suits is, in part, application of doctrine of res judicata; in determining whether cause of action has been split, relief sought by injured party should not be confused with cause of action; violation of one primary gives rise to single cause of action although many forms of relief may be available; thus, when an insured obtained small claims court judgment against tortfeasor to recover uninsured part of loss, that judment barred insurance company's subrogation action against the tortfeasor to recover amount insurance company had paid to its policyholder to cover losses she suffered as a result of the tortfeasor's negligence; although insurer may bring separate action against the tortfeasor, rule against splitting a cause of action is violated when both insurer and insured pursue separate actions because in subrogation insurer stands in shoes of its insured, and if second action by insured is barred, so is action by insurer; when tortfeasor's single act causes plaintiff to suffer both personal injury and property damage, however, two separate causes of action exist. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 905-909, 913-914, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151

California employs primary rights theory to determine if two successive proceedings involve same cause of action; under primary rights theory, invasion of one primary right gives rise to single cause of action; when court confirmed private arbitration award against plaintiff, plaintiff barred by doctrine of res judicata from proceeding with subsequent lawsuit when both arbitration and later lawsuit were based on alleged violations of same primary right. Brinton v. Bankers Pension Services, Inc. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 550, 557, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469

Unless cause of action in two actions is identical, first judgment does not bar second suit; to define cause of action, California follows primary rights theory, under which cause of action consists of primary right belonging to plaintiff, defendant's corresponding primary duty and defendant's breach of primary right or duty; thus, two actions constitute single cause of action if they both affect same primary right; there is only single cause of action for invasion of one primary right, even if multiple theories of recovery are asserted; court must compare actions, looking at rights which are sought to be vindicated and harm for which redress is claimed; reference must also be made to pleadings and proof in each case. Citizens for Open Access Etc. Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1067, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77

Under primary rights theory, invasion of one primary right gives rise to a single cause of action; two actions constitute single cause of action if they both affect same primary right; cause of action is based on harm suffered rather than particular theory asserted by litigant; cause of action is to be distinguished from remedy or relief sought; when there is only one primary right adverse judgment on merits in first suit is bar even though second suit is based on different theory, or seeks different remedy; thus, when plaintiff splits cause of action, i.e., divides a primary right, into more than one lawsuit and judgment on merits is entered in one of them, defendant in second suit may set up judgment as bar under principles of res judicata. Weikel v. TCW Realty Fund II Holding Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 1246-1250, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25

Whether res judicata doctrine applies does not depend on whether the causes of action in present action are identical to causes of action in prior action; although causes of action in first lawsuit may differ from those in second lawsuit, prior determination of an issue in first lawsuit becomes conclusive in subsequent lawsuit between same parties with respect to that issue and also with respect to every matter that might have been urged to sustain or defeat its determination. Ojavan Investors, Inc. v. California Coastal Com. (1996) 54 Cal. App. 4th 373, 384, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 803

Change in statute or law after final judgment on merits does not entitle litigant to escape earlier ruling by filing new action based on same primary right as adjudicated in earlier action. Castro v. Higaki (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 350, 359, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 84

Doctrine of res judicata does not apply when primary right to seek authorization for indemnity under Corp. Code § 317 was not same cause of action as one for breach of contract for indemnity or for equitable estoppel since Corp. Code § 317(g) expressly provided no preclusive effect on other legal rights for indemnity. Branson v. Sun-Diamond Growers (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 327, 343-345, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 314

California courts as employing "primary rights" theory to determine scope of causes of action; under this theory, only single cause of action exists for invasion of one primary right; involvement of same facts in both suits as not conclusive. Gill v. Hughes (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1299, 1305, 278 Cal. Rptr. 306

If second action involves different cause of action, rather than different legal theory, doctrine of res judicata as not applying. Craig v. County of Los Angeles (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1294, 1299, 271 Cal. Rptr. 82

Under "primary rights" theory, underlying right sought to be enforced as determinative as to whether cause of action is barred by res judicata principles; in determining primary right, significant factor as being harm suffered. Takahashi v. Board of Education (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1464, 1474, 249 Cal. Rptr. 578

Mere fact that plaintiff requested injunctive relief in first suit and monetary relief in second suit as not distinguishing two law suits sufficiently to avoid bar of res judicata in second suit. Duffy v. City of Long Beach (1988) 201 Cal. App.

3d 1352, 1358, 247 Cal. Rptr. 715

"Primary right" theory as applied to suits brought to attack similar governmental charges or taxes levied in different years. Frommhagen v. Board of Supervisors (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 1292, 1300, 243 Cal. Rptr. 390

Doctrine of res judicata as not applying when there are changed conditions and new facts that were not in existence at time of prior judgment, and on which prior judgment was based. Neil Norman, Ltd. v. William Kasper & Co. (1983) 149 Cal. App. 3d 942, 947, 197 Cal. Rptr. 198

[e] Claims Decided In Prior Arbitration Proceeding

Arbitration determination of claims against driver and owner of vehicle in which plaintiff was a passenger in which arbitrator assigned one percent of liability to the driver of the other vehicle involved in the accident did not preclude the litigation of the other driver's liability as that defendant was not involved in the arbitration. Cuevas v. Truline Corp. (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 56, 62, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 706

No collateral estoppel effect would be given to arbitration award when on record, two conditions necessary to be satisfied before arbitration award of Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) claim under a collective bargaining agreement (CBA) can be given collateral estoppel effect were not met: (1) agreement to resolve claims by arbitration in CBA must be clear and unmistakable; and (2) arbitration procedures must allow for full litigation and fair adjudication of FEHA claim. Camargo v. California Portland Cement Company (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1018-1019, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 841

In light of Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229 , no collateral estoppel effect given to private arbitration award; nothing in Vanderberg decision, however, imposes or implies any limitation on strict res judicata, or claim preclusive, effect of California law private arbitration award; prior judgment confirming private arbitration award that denied plaintiff's claims was subject to res judicata doctrine's claim preclusion rule thus barring plaintiff's subsequent lawsuit that sought recovery for same injury against defendant whose liability was merely derivative of one of parties in whose favor arbitration award was rendered. Brinton v. Bankers Pension Services, Inc. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 550, 556-558, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469

[f] Public Interest Exception

Issue in prior litigation of whether peace officer personnel records may be disclosed at public disciplinary appeal hearings is subject to the public interest exception to the res judicata doctrine. San Diego Police Officers' Assn. v. City of San Diego Civil Service Commission (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 275, 280, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 248

[4] Extraordinary Writs

Summary denial of writ does not establish law of the case whether or not denial is intended to be on merits or is based on some other reason. Kowis v. Howard (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 888, 899, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728, 838 P. 2d 250

Denial without opinion of petition for writ of mandate or prohibition is not res judicata; summary denial of previous writ petition in case was not decision on merits. Hoversten v. Superior Court (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 636, 640, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 197

Just because court of appeal denies petition for writ of mandate does not mean it made decision on merits having res judicata effect; proper rule is that unless there is written opinion following issuance of alternative writ, denial of writ petition does not have issue preclusive effect. Gammoh v. City of Anaheim (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 186, 196, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 194

Terminated police officer, who obtained writ of mandate directing city and its chief of police to reinstate him, was not barred from seeking compensatory damages for violation of his civil rights pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983, as mandamus proceeding was special proceeding. Mata v. City of Los Angeles (1993) 20 Cal. App. 4th 141, 149, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 314

[5] Issue Preclusion

[a] Constitutional and Public Policy Restrictions

Sound judicial policy against applying collateral estoppel in cases that concern matters of important public interest, such as certain banking practices. Chern v. Bank of America (1976) 15 Cal. 3d 866, 872, 127 Cal. Rptr. 110, 544 P.2d 1310

Public policies underlying collateral estoppel include preservation of integrity of judicial system, promotion of judicial economy, and protection of litigants from harassment by vexatious litigation, and these factors can strongly influence whether application of collateral estoppel in particular circumstance would be fair to parties and constitutes sound judicial policy; determination of issue not previously addressed by California court [whether insurer of nurse not named in malpractice complaint was liable for equitable contribution to insurer of hospital and its employees for its "fair share" of indemnity and defense costs incurred in settling malpractice claim] would not undermine any of fundamental public policies and counsels against application of collateral estoppel doctrine, despite contention that previous Arizona court judgment had held under identical facts presented and involving same insurers that insurer was liable for equitable contribution regardless of whether nurse was named as defendant in underlying action; because issue was one of first impression in California; none of policies underlying doctrine of issue preclusion would be advanced in this case where (1) determining issue could not degrade public confidence in judicial system which is threatened when two or more courts render inconsistent decisions, (2) directly addressing issue in California could not be waste of judicial resources, and (3) addressing novel issue could not be seen as baseless or unjustified litigation that might harass party. American Continental Ins. Co. v. American Casualty Co. of Reading, Pa. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 929, 942-946, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 632

Even if threshold requirements for collateral estoppel are established, res judicata will not be applied if injustice would result or if public interest requires that relitigation not be foreclosed. Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 181, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44

Doctrine of collateral estoppel, similar to res judicata, is based on sound public policy of limiting litigation by preventing party who has had one fair trial on an issue from again drawing it into controversy; purposes of both are to promote judicial economy by minimizing repetitive litigation, to prevent inconsistent judgments that undermine integrity of judicial system, and to provide repose by preventing person from being harassed by vexatious litigation; generally, court in deciding whether res judicata is applicable in particular case must balance need to limit litigation against right of fair adversary proceeding in which party may fully present his or her case. People v. Mitchell (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 132, 146, 96 Cal. Rptr. 2d 401

Collateral estoppel may be applied only if due process requirements are satisfied; due process requires that party to be estopped must have had identity or community of interest with, and adequate representation by, losing party in first action as well as that circumstances must have been such that party to be estopped should reasonably have been expected to be bound by the prior adjudication; court must balance rights of party to be estopped against need for applying collateral estoppel in particular case, in order to promote judicial economy by minimizing repetitive litigation, to prevent inconsistent judgments which undermine integrity of judicial system, or to protect against vexatious litigation. Sutton v. Golden Gate Bridge Highway & Transportation Dist. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 1155, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155 (quoting Clemmer v. Hartford Insurance Co. (1978) 22 Cal. 3d 865, 874, 151 Cal. Rptr. 285, 587 P.2d 1098)

Collateral estoppel is not mechanically applied; in each case court must determine whether its application will advance public policies which underlie doctrine; those policies are to (1) promote judicial economy by minimizing repetitive litigation, (2) prevent inconsistent judgments that undermine integrity of judicial system, and (3) provide repose by preventing person from being harassed by vexatious litigation; court concluded that issues resolved on routine sanction motion are not entitled to preclusive effect in later action for malicious prosecution. Wright v. Ripley (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1193, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334

Court's inquiry does not end when threshold requirements for collateral estoppel are met; court must also consider whether application of collateral estoppel in particular case will advance public policies that underlie doctrine; purposes of doctrine are to promote judicial economy by minimizing repetitive litigation, prevent inconsistent judgments that undermine integrity of judicial system and to protect against vexatious litigation. Younan v. Caruso (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 401, 407, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 103

Court of appeal decision affirming that portion of San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission jurisdictional decision which asserted jurisdiction over landowner's property, based on administrative decision that property was "marshland" subject to Commission's jurisdiction under Gov. Code § 66610 barred landowner who on later appeal contended that property did not meet statutory definition of "marshland," and who should have produced evidence on this issue in earlier proceeding, from producing such evidence due to res judicata and collateral estoppel; although some cases suggest that court may have discretionary power to relax these rules somewhat in rare instances when inability to raise constitutional argument would work serious injustice and harm public interest, case before court not such an exceptional case. Littoral Development Co. v. San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission (1995) 33 Cal. App. 4th 211, 215-221, 39 Cal. Rptr. 2d 266

When plaintiff voluntarily dismisses with prejudice one defendant against whom other defendant has cross complained for indemnity, cross defendant cannot use dismissal entered by plaintiff to bar cross complainant from litigating question of cross defendant's negligence in relation to plaintiff. Long Beach Grand Prix Assn. v. Hunt (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 1195, 1203, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 70

Public interest requires full litigation of issue involving public agency's ongoing obligation to administer statutes and regulations enacted for public benefit; application of collateral estoppel against Department of Health Services in action involving limitations period was therefore unjust. Palmdale Hospital Medical Center v. Department of Health Services (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 1306, 1311, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 926

Even if collateral estoppel were otherwise applicable, public interest exception as permitting zoning authority to pass zoning ordinance again; considerations as including changed circumstances, language, or goals. Ewing v. City of Carmel-by-the-Sea (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1579, 1586, 286 Cal. Rptr. 382

Doctrine of res judicata as intended to prevent multiple litigation causing vexation and expense to parties and wasted effort and expense in judicial administration by precluding parties from relitigating issues they could have raised in prior action concerning same controversy; most important criterion in determining that two suits concern same controversy is whether they both arose from same transactional nucleus of facts. Hulsey v. Koehler (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1150, 1157, 267 Cal. Rptr. 523

Collateral estoppel as not barring separate equitable action for relief from default judgment on grounds of extrinsic fraud even though motion to vacate judgment, denied in earlier action, was made on same grounds, because party seeking relief did not have opportunity for detailed presentation on issue of extrinsic fraud on earlier motion but was limited to affidavits. Rohrbasser v. Lederer (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 290, 297-300, 224 Cal. Rptr. 791

[b] Final Judgment on Merits

Litigation of a claim for rent and property damages in a bankruptcy proceeding rendered subsequent proceedings in a superior court for breach of a lease agreement res judicata notwithstanding the fact that the bankruptcy proceeding was dismissed before confirmation of a reorganization plan. Hecker v. Nathanson (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 1158, 1163-1165, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 773

For purposes of issue preclusion, final determination by Workers' Compensation Appeals Board as final judgment. Traub v. Board of Retirement (1983) 34 Cal. 3d 793, 798, 195 Cal. Rptr. 681, 670 P.2d 335

Finality for purposes of issue preclusion is not same as finality essential to claim preclusion; issue preclusion may be appropriate even when litigation has not reached stage of merger and bar required for claim preclusion; thus, when underlying cause of action itself is not barred, issue preclusion may nevertheless apply to final order in which personal jurisdiction was found lacking; after previous orders quashing service on ground of lack of personal jurisdiction, plaintiff's failure to seek reconsideration or appellate review barred plaintiff from relitigating issue by direct estoppel. Sabek, Inc. v. Engelhard Corp. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 992, 997-998, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882 (court distinguishing and disagreeing with GMS Properties, Inc. v. Superior Court of Fresno County (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 407, 33 Cal. Rptr. 163)

Jury verdict determining comparative fault in wrongful death action was entitled to collateral estoppel effect in action on cross-complaint for equitable indemnity when cross complaint was severed for later trial to the court alone; judgment in wrongful death action would become final when appeal process in that action was completed, allowing application of collateral estoppel principles. Martin v. County of Los Angeles (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 688, 699-701, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303

While final judgment granting habeas corpus relief is res judicata and decision denying habeas corpus relief is not, under appropriate circumstances decision denying request for habeas corpus relief may, for all intents and purposes, be final as to facts adjudicated and may be given collateral estoppel effect. Younan v. Caruso (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 401, 410-412, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 103

Under federal rule, order or judgment, once rendered, is final for res judicata purposes until it is reversed on appeal, or modified or set aside in court of rendition; for collateral estoppel purposes, federal court's ruling on summary judgment, even though appealed, must be considered final, i.e., if federal court's ruling on summary judgment has not been reversed or modified, decision is final; when prior action was in California state court, however, rule is that judgment is not final for purposes of collateral estoppel while it is open to direct attack, e.g., by appeal. Lumpkin v. Jordan (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1230-1231, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303

First judgment as not precluding second action between same parties on different cause of action, but first judgment as operating as estoppel or conclusive adjudication as to such issues in second action as having been actually litigated or determined in first action; trial court's adjudication, which is interlocutory and nonappealable, as having no res judicata effect and as not constituting estoppel. Casella v. City of Morgan Hill (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 43, 48-49, 280 Cal. Rptr. 876

Traditional elements of collateral estoppel as including requirement that prior judgment be final. Long Beach Unified Sch. Dist. v. State of California (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 155, 168, 275 Cal. Rptr. 449

Term "final judgment" as defined less strictly for purposes of issue preclusion through collateral estoppel than for purposes of merger or bar through res judicata; term as including any prior adjudication of issue in another action that is determined to be sufficiently firm to be accorded conclusive effect. Rymer v. Hagler (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1171, 1181, 260 Cal. Rptr. 76

In action to determine insurer's duty to defend insured in wrongful-death action, doctrine of collateral estoppel regarding issue of willfulness of insured's act (relating to exclusion in policy) as inapplicable when insured was granted writ of habeas corpus in criminal action that provided basis for collateral estoppel; collateral estoppel doctrine as requiring final judgment on merits. Grain Dealers Mutual Ins. Co. v. Marino (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1083, 1088-1089, 246 Cal. Rptr. 410

Doctrine of issue preclusion as not encompassing informal evidentiary ruling that is not binding on judge or parties and that is unnecessary to judgment. Reed v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1979) 102 Cal. App. 3d 662, 667, 164 Cal. Rptr. 373

[c] Identical Issue Litigated in Previous Suit

Collateral estoppel doctrine precludes relitigation of issue of parentage previously adjudicated in bastardy proceeding. Estate of Griswold (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 904, 922, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 24 P.3d 1191

Collateral estoppel doctrine precludes relitigation of issue previously adjudicated by final judgment between the parties; later legislation provided insufficient basis for modifying final injunction. Professional Engineers v. Department of Transportation (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 543, 568, 574, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 467, 936 P.2d 473

Failure to appeal trial court judgment in prior proceeding in which statement of decision contained dicta unnecessary to judgment did not collaterally estop county from raising different issue. County of Santa Clara v. Deputy Sheriffs' Ass'n (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 873, 878 n.7, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 53, 838 P.2d 781

Insurer that timely and adequately reserves its right to assert noncoverage defense later and that does not subsequently intentionally waive its reservation of rights as not collaterally estopped by judgment in favor of third party against its insured to assert that insured's conduct was intentional rather than negligent in later action by third party or insured against insurer or by insurer for declaratory relief. J.C. Penney Casualty Ins. Co. v. M.K. (1991) 52 Cal. 3d 1009, 1017-1018, 278 Cal. Rptr. 64, 804 P.2d 689

Under collateral estoppel or issue preclusion effect of res judicata, party as barred from raising issue of fact or law if issue was actually litigated and determined by valid and final judgment in previous proceeding and determination was essential to judgment. George Arakelian Farms, Inc. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 1279, 1289-1290, 265 Cal. Rptr. 162, 783 P.2d 749

For identity of issues purposes when asserting res judicata or collateral estoppel, the issue of whether an appeal is frivolous is not identical to the issue of whether an attorney who pursues an appeal that is ultimately adjudged to be frivolous has committed malpractice. Dawson v. Toledano (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 387, 398, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 689

When issue of attorney's fees is raised in two separate appeals of a litigation, and appellate court defers determination of it in the first appeal, then dismisses the second appeal, issue has not been conclusively resolved and may be raised in a third appeal. McAdams v. Aiello (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1221, 1226, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 742

Denial of event promoter's motion to intervene in action by district agriculture association to declare municipal ordinance imposing certain license fees and admission taxes invalid did not necessarily decide issue of promoter's entitlement to reimbursement of license fees and admission taxes paid by him, and therefore action for reimbursement of such fees and taxes was not barred by res judicata and collateral estoppel principles. Bame v. City of Del Mar (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 1346, 1363-1365, 104 Cal. Rptr. 2d 183

Under doctrine of res judicata, parties to prior proceeding are precluded from relitigating issues determined in prior proceeding; prior judgment operates as estoppel to issues actually litigated and determined in first action; unless issue or cause of action in two actions is identical, first judgment does not bar second suit; if anything is left to conjecture as to what was necessarily involved and decided, there can be no collateral estoppel; it must appear precise question was raised and determined in former suit; there is only a single cause of action for invasion of one primary right, even if multiple theories of recovery are asserted; court focused on identity-of-issues requirement to resolve defendant's claim of res judicata and held prior judgment against plaintiff did not bar plaintiff's current action in that plaintiff's present action for breach of contract did not assert same primary right as plaintiff's prior action in family law court to establish paternity; resolution of issue of enforceability of contract was unnecessary to court's judgment in family law dispute that plaintiff lacked standing to bring paternity action, and neither issue of plaintiff's standing to request paternity nor plaintiff's paternity rights must necessarily be adjudicated to resolve plaintiff's claim for damages for defendant's breach of contract. Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 180-182, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44

Settlement that avoids trial generally does not constitute actually litigating any issues and thus prevents application of collateral estoppel; there is line of cases, however, holding that consent or stipulated judgment may properly be given collateral estoppel effect; this principle, however, has been tempered by rule that consent judgment is not usually given preclusive effect in subsequent litigation on different cause of action, unless parties manifest intent in consent judgment to give it preclusive effect. Rice v. Crow (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 725, 736, 737 n.15, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110

No aspect of what was decided in previous proceeding can be left to conjecture on the record and if it is left to conjecture estoppel is inapplicable. Silver v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 338, 357, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 287

Issues before family law court and juvenile court can never, in fact, be identical, even if some or all of facts of abuse or neglect adduced in two proceedings are same, because of important differences between purposes and operations of two courts, and state's overriding concern for protection of children. In re Carissa G. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 731, 736, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 561

Collateral estoppel does not apply when there are changed conditions or new facts which did not exist at time of prior judgment, or where previous decision based on different substantive law; because both underlying factual conditions and substantive law at issue changed from time of earlier decision, issues before court in earlier case and present case were not identical. United States Golf Ass'n v. Arroyo Software Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 607, 616-619, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 708

For determination of issue to be given preclusive effect, it must have been necessary to judgment. McMillin Development, Inc. v. Home Buyers Warranty (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 896, 906, 80 Cal. Rptr. 2d 611

Issues resolved on routine sanction motion are not entitled to preclusive effect in later action for malicious prosecution. Wright v. Ripley (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1193, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334

Employee who was terminated was not collaterally estopped from litigating issue of whether he was entitled to posttermination evidentiary hearing by federal district court's earlier ruling that he was not entitled to postdisciplinary hearing following three weeks' suspension; because suspension and termination trigger significantly different due process protections, employee's federal court case did not involve identical issues; also, employee's posttermination rights were not necessarily decided in federal court action because employee had not been terminated when he brought that action. Townsel v. San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Bd. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 940, 951-952, 77

Cal. Rptr. 2d 231

Insurer on notice of action against its insured, but who refuses to defend on ground alleged claim not within policy coverage, is bound by judgment in action, absent fraud or collusion, as to all material findings of fact essential to judgment of liability; insurer not bound, however, as to issues not necessarily adjudicated in prior action and can still present any defenses not inconsistent with judgment against insured; generally speaking, in injured party's action against party alleged to have caused injury, court does not adjudicate issue of insurance coverage; rather only questions litigated are defendant's liability and amount of damages; plaintiff not concerned with theory of liability that produces victory but only with procuring largest possible judgment; similarly, defendant concerned only with avoiding, or at least minimizing, judgment for plaintiff; whether plaintiff's loss covered by defendant's insurance is not germane to action and evidence on that issue would be excluded as irrelevant. Schaefer/Karpf Productions v. CNA Ins. Companies (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1306, 1313, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 42

When on trustor's death, trust assets were to be distributed to trustor's children, or if they predeceased trustor, to their issue, and trustor's son (decedent) predeceased trustor leaving issue, and trustee filed petition to ascertain beneficiaries and determine entitlement to trust distribution pursuant to Prob. Code § 17200(b)(4), asking whether respondent was an issue of decedent, other son of decedent who opposed trustee's petition held barred from relitigating parent-child relationship between respondent and decedent by interlocutory judgment of dissolution of marriage that made express finding that respondent was one of decedent's four children; although California court's have held child who is not party to divorce action is not bound by determination of his or her status made in that proceeding, those cases did not support decedent's son; those cases might support action by respondent attacking finding of parentage as to her, but she did not make that claim; neither did decedent's son attack finding as to himself; instead, decedent's son challenged finding as to respondent only. Weir v. Ferreira (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1514-1517, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33

In criminal prosecution for making false or fraudulent statements for purpose of obtaining workers' compensation benefits and for perjury, court rejected defendant's contention that because workers' compensation judge concluded defendant did suffer work-related injury, prosecution was collaterally estopped from relitigating whether defendant was injured and if so how injury occurred; element of collateral estoppel is that issue sought to be precluded from relitigation is identical to that decided in former proceeding; issue identity absent in case because issue in criminal trial was whether defendant made material false statements in obtaining workers' compensation benefits, not whether defendant suffered compensable injury. People v. Gillard (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 136, 159, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790

Trial judge's ruling on issue of substantial justification in awarding costs and attorney fees after trial was not binding on later motion, following appeal and remittitur, filed in superior court seeking litigation expenses incurred in appellate proceeding; res judicata inapplicable in that trial judge's ruling on issue after trial necessarily was made on facts as they then appeared; following remittitur, judge limited decision to question of litigation costs in appellate proceedings in court of appeal and Supreme Court; rulings concerned two different temporal assessments. Lennane v. Franchise Tax Board (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 1180, 1185-1186, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 602

State of California Department of Industrial Relations (DLSE) was not collaterally estopped from litigating proper limitation period in action by it on behalf of workers on public works project for prevailing wages against surety furnishing required payment bond by virtue of DLSE having been losing party in unpublished court of appeal decision of another district of same division when in current case DLSE argued limitation period is governed by Civ. Code § 3249 and earlier unpublished decision did not address that contention; since identical issue was not necessarily decided in earlier unpublished decision first element for applying collateral estoppel missing. Division of Labor Standards Enforcement v. Seaboard Sur. Co. (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1501, 1512-1515, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 532

Previously dismissed federal action based on diversity of citizenship that only decided issue of whether plaintiffs had right to sue in federal court and ruled on validity and enforceability of forum selection clause as matter of federal procedural law, did not estop plaintiffs from raising issue of validity and enforceability of clause in later state court action governed by state substantive law, which involved different considerations. Wimsatt v. Beverly Hills Weight Loss Clinics Internat., Inc. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 1511, 1516-1524, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 612

Issue adjudicated in prior workers' compensation proceeding was not identical to subsequent proceeding for purposes of collateral estoppel, despite applicant's status as injured worker with substantial percentage of permanent disability in same body parts. Nash v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1793, 1812-1813, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 454

Factual issue of application of fair return formulas in rent control ordinance was not resolved by earlier cases that challenged only the facial validity of formulas in ordinance; dismissal based on res judicata defense as reversed. Kirkpatrick v. City of Oceanside (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 267, 282, 283 Cal. Rptr. 191

Collateral estoppel as depending on several preconditions, including (1) issue must have been actually litigated in previous action, which is to say it must have been properly raised by pleadings or otherwise, submitted for determination, and determined; and (2) issue thus litigated must be identical to issue to which estoppel is to apply. Briggs v. Lawrence (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 605, 611, 281 Cal. Rptr. 578

Request for temporary equitable relief pending determination of case on its merits as entreaty to court to exercise its discretion, and ruling thereon as not determination of merits of case; such pretrial ruling as not subject to issue preclusive effect with respect to merits of action. People ex rel. Bender v. Wind River Mining Project (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1390, 1395, 269 Cal. Rptr. 106

Collateral estoppel as precluding parties from litigating issue previously determined in another cause of action between them or their privities; as prerequisite for asserting this doctrine, that issue was in fact litigated and decided in prior action as required to be shown. Hulsey v. Koehler (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1150, 1156, 1158, 267 Cal. Rptr. 523

Matrix for determining whether collateral estoppel doctrine may be invoked as being that second action between same parties on different cause of action is not precluded by former judgment, but that first judgment operates as an estoppel or conclusive adjudication as to such issues in second action that were actually litigated and determined in first action. McClain v. Rush (1989) 216 Cal. App. 3d 18, 28-29, 264 Cal. Rptr. 563

Issue as "actually litigated" only when it is raised by pleadings and factually resolved either by proof or failure of proof. In re Pedro C. (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 174, 181, 263 Cal. Rptr. 428

In new action on different cause of action, former judgment as not complete merger or bar, but as effective as collateral estoppel, that is, as conclusive on issues actually litigated between parties in former action; former judgment as not collateral estoppel on issues that might have been raised but were not; just as clearly, former judgment as collateral estoppel on issues that were raised, even though some factual matters or legal arguments that could have been presented were not. Interinsurance Exchange of the Auto. Club v. Superior Court (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 177, 181, 257 Cal. Rptr. 37

Collateral estoppel as preventing parties from relitigating any issue that was actually litigated and finally decided in earlier action; issue decided in earlier proceeding as required to be identical to one presented in subsequent action. Flynn v. Gorton (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1550, 1554, 255 Cal. Rptr. 768

Summary judgment on plaintiff's complaint in favor of one defendant, against whom another defendant had cross complained for comparative indemnity, as not barring cross complaint under principles of collateral estoppel when plaintiff and cross complainant have asserted different theories of liability. Frank v. State of California (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 488, 491-495, 252 Cal. Rptr. 410

After plaintiff has lost personal injury suit and then dies, heirs as precluded by issue preclusion from bringing wrongful-death suit based on same injury. Evans v. Celotex Corp. (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 741, 744-745 , 238 Cal. Rtpr. 259

Issue as not finally determined for purposes of issue preclusion if appellate court would not rule on the decision of the trial court on the issue because the issue was moot. Chamberlin v. City of Palo Alto (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 181, 187, 230 Cal. Rptr. 454

Principles of collateral estoppel as barring cross complaint against first defendant by second defendant for comparative indemnity when summary judgment has been entered on plaintiff's complaint in favor of first defendant on ground that first defendant is not concurrent tortfeasor responsible for plaintiff's injuries. Columbus Line, Inc. v. Gray Line Sight-Seeing Companies Associated, Inc. (1981) 120 Cal. App. 3d 622, 628-631, 174 Cal. Rptr. 527

[d] Issue Decided in Prior Administrative Action

At administrative hearing at which government seeks recoupment from welfare recipient for overpayments, recipient may in appropriate circumstances assert equitable estoppel as defense; application of equitable estoppel by administrative agency does not violate either separation of powers doctrine set forth in Cal. Const., art. III, § 3, or proscription against exercise of judicial power, as that term is used in Cal. Const., art. VI, § 1. Lentz v. McMahon (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 393, 396, 405-406, 261 Cal. Rptr. 310, 777 P.2d 83

Los Angeles Housing Authority was collaterally estopped from denying that respondent was entitled to benefits of Lab. Code § 4850 because issue had been resolved against Housing Authority in previous workers' compensation case. Housing Authority v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 1083-1084, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 738

When statutory scheme contemplates proceedings in different tribunals affording different remedies which are cumulative, not mutually exclusive, res judicata held inapplicable because first proceeding was administrative proceeding at which second remedy could not be sought; administrative decisions should not be given res judicata effect if statutory scheme explicitly or implicitly shows contrary intent; People's civil action alleging unfair business practices in defendant's operation of automotive repair dealership, pursuant to Automotive Repair Act (Bus. & Prof. Code § 9880 et seq.), was not barred by res judicata following administrative proceeding by Department of Consumer Affairs for violations of Automotive Repair Act; civil statutes did not authorize any action be taken against registration whereas administrative statutes did not authorize imposition of civil penalty for unfair business practices. People v. Damon (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 958, 967-974, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 504

Doctrine of collateral estoppel does not apply when fundamental nature of proceedings before administrative agency and trial court are significantly different, as when primary issue in administrative hearings is to determine whether to revoke license and primary issue in civil action is to determine amount necessary to compensate injured party fully for licensee's breach of contract. Bronco Wine Co. v. Frank A. Logoluso Farms (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 699, 710-712, 262 Cal. Rptr. 899

Failure of probationary teaching employee to seek judicial review by writ under Gov. Code § 11523 of State Personnel Board determination that he could not reasonably be accommodated because of aggravation of epilepsy collaterally estopped employee from pursuing claim in civil action under Fair Employment and Housing Act. Oquendo v. California Institution for Women (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 520, 522-523, 260 Cal. Rptr. 688

Doctrine of collateral estoppel applies to final decisions of administrative agencies acting in judicial or quasi-judicial capacity; administrative agency acts in judicial capacity when it resolves disputed issues of fact properly before it and provides parties with opportunity to present evidence and to litigate issues fully. Rymer v. Hagler (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1171, 1178-1179, 260 Cal. Rptr. 76

Term "jurisdiction," for purposes of applying narrow res judicata exception permitting collateral attack of agency's action taken without jurisdiction, is limited to jurisdiction of most fundamental kind; if tribunal has jurisdiction of parties and of subject matter, decision by it as res judicata notwithstanding that decision is incorrect. California Coastal Com. v. Superior Court (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1488, 1501, 258 Cal. Rptr. 567

Decision of quasi-judicial administrative agency is entitled to res judicata effect when agency's function is reviewing another agency's decision to determine whether the decision conforms to the law and is supported by substantial evidence. City and County of San Francisco v. Ang (1979) 97 Cal. App. 3d 673, 678-679, 159 Cal. Rptr. 56

[e] Issue Decided in Prior Criminal Action

Applicability of doctrine of collateral estoppel (issue preclusion) in criminal proceedings. Lucido v. Superior Court (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 335, 341-351, 272 Cal. Rptr. 767, 795 P.2d 1223

Issue preclusion as applicable in civil case to issues determined in previous criminal prosecution. Teitelbaum Furs, Inc. v. Dominion Ins. Co., Ltd. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 601, 604-607, 25 Cal. Rptr. 559, 375 P.2d 439

Applicability of collateral estoppel in later action for attorney malpractice when civil malpractice complaint is based on same factual allegations of attorney neglect which were actually determined after full evidentiary hearing in earlier habeas corpus proceeding in which relief sought was based on ineffective assistance of counsel. Younan v. Caruso (1996) 51 Cal. App. 4th 401, 408-414, 59 Cal. Rptr. 2d 103

Collateral estoppel properly applied to preclude relitigation, in civil declaratory relief action, of issue determined in juvenile court proceeding. Western Mutual Ins. Co. v. Yamamoto (1994) 29 Cal. App. 4th 1474, 1483, 35 Cal. Rptr. 2d 698

Purposes of collateral estoppel as being (1) to promote judicial economy by minimizing repetitive litigation; (2) to prevent inconsistent judgments that undermine integrity of judicial system; and (3) to provide repose by preventing person from being harassed by vexatious litigation; in deciding whether doctrine is applicable in particular criminal trial, court as required to balance need to limit litigation against right of fair adversary proceeding in which party may fully present his or her case; pursuit of judicial economy and efficiency as never to be used to deny defendant right to fair trial. People v. Hogue (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1500, 1506, 279 Cal. Rptr. 647

Department of Social Services, in administrative proceeding to recover entire amount of welfare funds wrongfully received by petitioner as not collaterally estopped to claim portion of amount by criminal proceeding in which petitioner had pleaded guilty to welfare fraud and, as condition of probation, has been ordered to pay that portion in restitution, since issue necessarily decided in criminal proceeding (appropriate amount of restitution) was not same as issue litigated in administrative proceeding (amount of overpayment). Shor v. Department of Social Services (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 70, 73-74, 272 Cal. Rptr. 632

In administrative disciplinary proceeding before State Personnel Board resulting in discharge of youth counselor for theft of property from youth facility, board erred in failing to exclude as evidence property improperly seized at employee's home under doctrine of res judicata when property seized was excluded as evidence in criminal prosecution, criminal prosecution was dismissed, and subsequent administrative hearing was initiated by facility. Dyson v. State Personnel Bd. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 711, 715-728, 262 Cal. Rptr. 112

Doctrine of collateral estoppel as applicable in civil case to issues determined in prior criminal proceeding by court in ruling on motion to suppress evidence under Code Civ. Proc. § 1538.5, provided necessary criteria are met: (1) prior conviction must have been for serious offense so that defendant was motivated to litigate charges fully; (2) there must have been full and fair trial to prevent convictions of doubtful validity from being used; (3) issue on which prior conviction is offered must of necessity have been decided at criminal trial; and (4) party against whom collateral estoppel is asserted was party or in privity with party at prior trial. McGowan v. City of San Diego (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 890, 895, 256 Cal. Rptr. 537

Any doubt as to what was decided by prior criminal proceeding as to be resolved against using it as estoppel in civil action, as litigant invoking doctrine will still have opportunity to establish its contentions at trial. McGowan v. City of San Diego (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 890, 897, 256 Cal. Rptr. 537

Application of doctrine of collateral estoppel to bar civil action after prior adjudication in criminal prosecution of issues raised in it as not violating plaintiff's right to jury trial under U.S. Const., amend. VII, which was designed to preserve basic institution of jury trial in only its most fundamental elements. McGowan v. City of San Diego (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 890, 897-898, 256 Cal. Rptr. 537

[f] Use of Issue Preclusion by Stranger

Offensive use of issue preclusion does not violate right to jury trial under U.S. Const., amend. VII. Parklane Hosiery Co. v. Shore (1979) 439 U.S. 322, 337, 99 S. Ct. 645, 58 L. Ed. 2d 552

Defendant is not precluded by lack of privity or of mutuality of estoppel from asserting issue preclusion against plaintiff. Bernhard v. Bank of America (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 807, 813, 122 P.2d 892

By abrogating requirement of mutuality, different parties, not party to or in privity with party to prior action, may assert collateral estoppel defensively as shield against one who was party to prior action to prevent party to prior action from relitigating issue it already actually litigated. Rice v. Crow (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 725, 736, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110

It is party against whom collateral estoppel is sought to be invoked that must be same as or in privity with party in earlier proceeding. Housing Authority v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1076, 1083, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 738

Collateral estoppel is equitable concept based on fundamental principles of fairness; offensive use of collateral estoppel is more closely scrutinized than defensive use of doctrine. White Motor Corp. v. Teresinski (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 754, 763, 263 Cal. Rptr. 26

Consent judgment against trustors in lender's foreclosure action in which they had raised lender's fraud in inducement as affirmative defense barred trustors' cross complaint for fraud against lender's parent corporation by collateral estoppel, because fraud alleged in cross complaint was related only to inducing loan and could have been fully litigated in foreclosure action. Wittman v. Chrysler Corp (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 586, 591-593, 245 Cal. Rptr. 20

[6] Judgments of Federal or Sister-State Courts

Final judgment in 1941 Ohio bastardy proceeding is res judicata in probate action in California court. Estate of Griswold (2001) 25 Cal. 4th 904, 922-923, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 165, 24 P.3d 1191

Final judgment entered in action filed in California is res judicata in federal court action. Palomar Mobilehome Park Ass'n v. San Marcos (9th Cir. 1993) 989 F.2d 362, 364

After federal court found some sections of Proposition 73 unconstitutional, relitigation of state law issue, i.e., whether sections that were declared unconstitutional could be reformed so as to avoid their unconstitutionality, was not precluded in later state court proceeding under public interest exception to doctrines of res judicata and collateral estoppel; following federal judgment, state court not bound by federal law when determining whether exception to the doctrines of res judicata or collateral estoppel applies; application of public interest exception is not conditioned on finding that initial determination of issue was erroneous. Kopp v. Fair Pol. Practices Com. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 607, 620-626 and n.16, 675, 685, 693, 47 Cal. Rptr. 2d 108, 905 P 2d 1248 (Lucus, C.J.; Werdegar, J., concurring; Baxter, J., joined by Arabian, J., and George, J., concurring and dissenting)

Because Florida federal district court class action alleging defendant's facilities denied equal access to disabled persons in violation of Americans with Disabilities Act was resolved by consent decree expressly reserving damage claims, res judicata did not bar plaintiff's action for alleged violation of California's Disabled Persons Act [Civ. Code § 54 et seq.] because countertops in defendant's business establishments were allegedly too high to allow wheelchair access, where federal court was not required to decide whether to dismiss state law claims, because those claims were reserved by the consent of parties reserving any issue of damages. Louie v. BFS Retail & Commercial Operations, LLC (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 1544, 1553-1560, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 441

Insurer was not collaterally estopped from relitigating issue of its liability for equitable contribution, despite contention that Arizona court had held in different case, but under identical fact situation involving same insurance companies, that insurer of nurse under professional liability policy was liable for equitable contribution to insurer of hospital and its employees who had settled medical malpractice action, even though nurse was not named as defendant in underlying action; Arizona court was applying Arizona law, and to extent it may have relied on California law, Arizona court wrongly applied it; doctrine of collateral estoppel cannot be used to bind California litigant to principle of law adopted in prior foreign court litigation that is contrary to California law, nor can it be utilized to preclude party from litigating novel issue of law in California merely because that party had failed to persuade court of another state on wisdom of its position, particularly where it appeared that foreign court based its decision, at least in part, on its interpretation of California authority; insurer seeking equitable contribution failed to establish that "same issue" was actually litigated and resolved in prior litigation since Arizona court reached its decision under Arizona law. American Continental Ins. Co. v. American Casualty Co. of Reading, Pa. (2001) 86 Cal. App. 4th 929, 942-946, 103 Cal. Rptr. 2d 632

Preclusive effect of prior federal court judgment is determined by federal law, at least when prior judgment was on bases of federal question jurisdiction; California Supreme Court in Levy v. Cohen (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 165, 172-173, 137 Cal. Rptr. 162, 561 P.2d 252 and Martin v. Martin (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 752, 761, 470 P.2d 662 , did not give any indication that rule would differ depending on whether federal court jurisdiction was based on diversity or federal question; whether California Supreme Court, in a diversity situation, would apply res judicata law of state whose law federal court was applying, or would apply federal law under rule of Levy and Martin, result would be to look to California law. Butcher v. Truck Ins. Exchange (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 1442, 1452-1455, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 521

Judgment of court of one state is conclusive on merits in court in another state only if court in first state had jurisdiction to render judgment; thus, before court is bound by judgment rendered in another state, it may inquire into jurisdictional basis of foreign court's decree; if that court did not have jurisdiction over subject matter or relevant parties, full faith and credit need not be given; judgment may be challenged only if issue of jurisdiction was not litigated in foreign state; if that question was expressly litigated, determination is res judicata and is itself protected by full faith and credit clause. Bank of America v. Jennett (1999) 77 Cal. App. 4th 104, 113-114, 91 Cal. Rptr. 2d 359

When federal court granted summary judgment to defendant concerning plaintiff's employment discrimination claim brought under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 and declined to exercise supplemental jurisdiction on plaintiff's cause of action under the California Fair Employment and Housing Act (FEHA) barring discrimination in employment decisions on the basis of religion (Gov. Code § 12940) and dismissed the FEHA claims without prejudice to refiling in state court, state court held to have properly sustained defendant's demurrer to plaintiff's complaint in that issues raised in plaintiff's complaint had been fully litigated in prior federal action and plaintiff was collaterally estopped from relitigating them. Lumpkin

v. Jordan (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1229-1234, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303

Federal judgment has same effect in California state courts as it would have in federal court; under federal rule, federal order or judgment, once rendered, is final for res judicata purposes until it is reversed on appeal, or modified or set aside in court of rendition. Lumpkin v. Jordan (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1230-1231, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303

Plaintiffs' cause of action for violation of Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO) was untenable in state court action in light of plaintiffs' RICO claim against defendants having been earlier dismissed with prejudice in federal district court; although appeal from district court's judgment was pending before Ninth Circuit, federal judgment is final for res judicata purposes until reversed, and doctrine of res judicata precludes litigation of any claim that could have been raised in federal action. Abdallah v. United Savings Bank (1996) 43 Cal. App. 4th 1101, 1110, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 286

Failure of a debtor to disclose its lender-liability lawsuit cause of action in bankruptcy proceeding barred debtor under one or another form of issue preclusion from thereafter proceeding with state court action against lender alleging that lender was catalyst for bankruptcy when in bankruptcy proceeding the lender obtained final bankruptcy orders liquidating its claims against debtor and giving lender all of debtors tangible and intangible property. Billmeyer v. Plaza Bank of Commerce (1995) 42 Cal. App. 4th 1086, 1096, 50 Cal. Rptr. 2d 119

Federal court's summary adjudication of federal claim and dismissal of plaintiffs' pendent claims without prejudice to their being refiled in state court, all of which claims arose out of alleged fraudulent acquisition, subdivision, and resale of Arizona property to plaintiffs, as not res judicata on plaintiffs' state law claims and as not barring action in California state court on those claims. Koch v. Hankins (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1599, 1602, 1605, 273 Cal. Rptr. 442 (distinguishing Mattson v. City of Costa Mesa (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 441, 164 Cal. Rptr. 913)

Prior judgment rendered by federal court as required to be given same effect by state courts that it would have in federal court; in addition, principles governing federal court's power over nonfederal claims as coming into play in determining preclusive effect of judgment in subsequent state court action on state claims. Koch v. Hankins (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1599, 1603, 273 Cal. Rptr. 442

Full faith and credit clause (U.S. Const., art. IV, § 1) as generally requiring every state to give to judgment of court of another state at least res judicata effect that judgment would be accorded in state rendering it; state court judgment as not to be given full faith and credit by other states as to parties or property not subject to jurisdiction of court that rendered it unless that state fully and fairly litigated its jurisdiction and finally decided question in favor of jurisdiction, in which case second state is not permitted to reexamine question but must give judgment of first state full faith and credit; burden of showing invalidity of judgment as on party attacking it, and, in absence of violation of federal constitutional rights, validity and effect of judgment of sister state as governed by law of state where judgment was rendered. St. Sava Mission Corp. v. Serbian Eastern Orthodox Diocese (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1354, 1364, 273 Cal. Rptr. 340

Trial court as erring in sustaining defendant's demurrer to complaint for employment discrimination on ground of res judicata based on prior federal civil rights action because federal court had dismissed state actions without consideration when they were pendent to federal civil rights causes of action that had been summarily dismissed; federal court left resolution of pendent state claims to state court by noting that statute of limitations on those claims was equitably tolled by federal court's decision not to exercise pendent jurisdiction. Craig v. County of Los Angeles (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1294, 1299, 1301, 271 Cal. Rptr. 82

Judgment in federal court action against plaintiff as res judicata of simultaneously filed state court action containing virtually identical allegations; although state court had concurrent jurisdiction over matter and plaintiff could theoretically initiate simultaneous actions in both forums, final judgment deciding matter by one court as barring action in other court under basic res judicata principles. Weber v. Willard (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1006, 1009, 255 Cal. Rptr. 165

Final judgment in sister-state action as res judicata in California action involving same issues even though California action filed first. Baughman v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 621, 624-625, 196 Cal. Rptr. 35

If federal court declines to exercise pendent jurisdiction over state claim that would be barred by res judicata principles from being prosecuted if federal claim is fully litigated and plaintiff then elects to proceed to trial and judgment in federal court, entire cause of action, including state claim, as either merged or barred by federal court judgment so that plaintiff may not thereafter maintain second suit on same cause of action in state court. Mattson v. City of Costa Mesa (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 441, 455, 164 Cal. Rptr. 913

[7] Judicial Estoppel

Doctrine of judicial estoppel prevents party from taking two inconsistent positions in the same proceeding, including in the same document. Plaintiffs sued hospital contending that hospital's policy of terminating medical care for patients who file lawsuits is illegal. In opposition to the hospital's motion for summary judgment, plaintiffs contended that the hospital's actions violated the professional duty of care. Elsewhere in the same document, the plaintiffs asserted that the hospital's actions were administrative, not professional decisions. This latter assertion was made by plaintiffs in an attempt to avoid summary adjudication of the punitive damages claim. The court held that plaintiffs were judicially estopped from asserting the latter position. Each of the elements of the test for judicial estoppel set forth in Jackson v. Cty. of Los Angeles (1997) 60 Cal. App. 4th 171, 183, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 96 were met. Scripps Clinic v. Superior Court (Thompson) (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 917, 943, 134 Cal. Rptr. 2d 101

Principles stated in Thomas v. Gordon (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 113, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 28 (some courts not limiting judicial estoppel where litigant successfully asserted contradictory position) did not apply in case in which defendant's position in prior proceeding was not adopted by the trial court in that proceeding and defendant had not gained any advantage by virtue of the inconsistent position taken in the prior matter; exception stated in Thomas limited to "rare situation" where litigant has made an egregious attempt to manipulate the legal system. Tuchscher Development Enterprises, Inc. v. San Diego Unified Port District (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1219, 1244-1247, 132 Cal. Rptr. 2d 57

In plaintiff's suit against accountant and accountancy corporation for fraud or breach of a duty of care for failing to inform her of financial condition of corporations to which she had transferred assets to keep those assets out of her creditors' hands, plaintiff was estopped from claiming any equitable interest in those corporations; plaintiff had declared under oath in multiple unrelated bankruptcy proceedings that she had no interest in assets of those corporations, and court held that, assuming that doctrine of judicial estoppel should be applied to unsuccessful litigant only in rare situation where litigant had made egregious attempt to manipulate legal system, this was situation that warranted application of judicial estoppel even absent proof of success in earlier litigation; also, trial court properly inferred that position taken in earlier litigation was not taken as result of ignorance, fraud, or mistake given plaintiff's admission that she formed corporations to hide assets from creditors and her failure to list corporations in bankruptcy petition two years later; alleged failure to read bankruptcy petitions or schedules before signing them and reliance on advice of professionals as to which assets to list was not type of ignorance that permits party to avoid impact of signing legal document. Thomas v. Gordon (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 113, 118-121, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 28

When former employees prevailed in action brought against them by their former employer for, among other things, misappropriation of trade secrets, unfair competition, and breach of confidentiality agreements, and sought attorney's fees award under Civ. Code § 1717, employer was judicially estopped from denying that the contract authorized award of attorney fees when employer's complaint had included request for attorney fees incurred in action and had copy of agreement that included fees provision attached. International Billing Services, Inc. v. Emigh (2000) 84 Cal. App. 4th 1175, 1186-1192, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 532

Doctrine of judicial estoppel precludes party from asserting position in judicial proceeding that is inconsistent with position previously successfully asserted in prior proceeding and prevents use of intentional self-contradiction as means of obtaining unfair advantage in forum provided for suitors seeking justice; when plaintiffs sought and obtained leave of bankruptcy court for relief from stay to allow them to foreclose on property, in later action plaintiffs were estopped to deny knowledge of appraisal report submitted through their counsel on their behalf in bankruptcy court; plaintiffs cannot be permitted to obtain right to foreclose on piece of property by assuring bankruptcy court that it is worth less than its liens, and then complain in later suit that they were surprised by their inability to make huge windfall profit on it; possibility plaintiffs might not have been aware of their counsel's specific arguments to court does not make them innocent bystanders; they accepted benefits of their counsel's representations to court and went ahead with foreclosure and resale; for purposes of judicial estoppel, their actual knowledge irrelevant. Michelson v. Camp (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 955, 959, 970-971, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 539

Judicial estoppel (doctrine against assertion of inconsistent positions) is judge made doctrine that seeks to prevent litigant from asserting position inconsistent with one that litigant previously asserted in same or previous proceeding; it is designed to prevent litigants from playing fast and loose with courts; asserting inconsistent positions does not trigger application of judicial estoppel unless intentional self-contradiction is used as means of obtaining unfair advantage; doctrine does not apply when position taken because of good faith mistake rather than as part of scheme to mislead court; inconsistent argument sufficient to invoke judicial estoppel must be attributable to intentional wrongdoing; whether judicial estoppel should apply is factual question; determination of existence of judicial estoppel is factual finding that will be upheld if supported by substantial evidence; judicial estoppel should be applied with caution; it is extraordinary remedy to be invoked when party's inconsistent behavior will otherwise result in miscarriage of justice; judicial estoppel rarely appropriate in chapter 7 context in case in which debtor failed to schedule claim. Haley v. Dow Lewis Motors, Inc. (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 497, 509-511, 85 Cal. Rptr. 2d 352

In suit claiming racial harassment and wrongful termination, evidence of inconsistency in positions taken in disability proceeding and current lawsuit supported trial court's application of judicial estoppel doctrine; doctrine of judicial estoppel has had particular significance in cases involving Americans With Disabilities Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. § 12101 et seq.); significant number of federal courts have decided that person who characterizes himself or herself as "totally disabled" to receive state, federal, or even insurance benefits will normally be estopped from proving that he or she is qualified individual with disability within meaning of ADA or similar state laws; although phrased in terms of racial discrimination, instant case analogous to an ADA claim; because judicial estoppel is equitable doctrine, circumstance may warrant application of doctrine even if earlier position was not adopted by tribunal; thus, when plaintiff earlier sought workers' compensation benefits and received award through compromise and settlement, approved by workers' compensation referee, although no factual findings were incorporated in referee's approval of parties' compromise and release, that held not fatal to applying judicial estoppel under facts of case. Drain v. Betz Laboratories, Inc. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 950, 956-960, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 864 (distinguishing Bell v. Wells Fargo Bank (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1382, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 354 , as not involving totally inconsistent position in the two proceedings, and Prilliman v. United Airlines, Inc. (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 935, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 142 , as not involving two clearly inconsistent positions)

Doctrine of judicial estoppel applied to bar defendant from successfully opposing California Coastal Commission's motion to enforce previously entered stipulated judgment in its favor when defendant's defense against motion was that "Calvo exclusion" applied, but merits of that defense had been resolved when defendant earlier stipulated to judgment thereby agreeing that Commission had authority to require defendant to restore property; under doctrine of judicial estoppel, party who has taken particular position in litigation, may under some circumstances, be estopped from taking inconsistent position to detriment of other party; here defendant took inconsistent positions in litigation, first waiving right to further litigate exclusion and agreeing to obey any Commission order regarding restoration of property, and later asserting exclusion and denying obligation to obey Commission orders; detriment to other party clear. California Coastal Com. v. Tahmassebi (1998) 69 Cal. App. 4th 255, 259, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 321

Cases such as Ryan Operations G.P. v. Santiam-Midwest Lumber Co (3d Cir 1996) 81 F.3d 355, 359-360 and International Engine Parts, Inc. v. Feddersen & Co. (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 345, 350-351, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178 , can be cited as authority for proposition that (1) judicial estoppel can be applied to bar claim beyond reaches of res judicata and can preclude suit even against party whose legal liabilities have never previously been determined, (2) doctrine is intended to protect judiciary without regard to litigant's rights, (3) doctrine may be invoked in court's discretion, (4) it requires neither reliance nor prejudice, and (5) it may bar claim without regard to rights of creditors of bankruptcy estate involved; trial court should not have attempted to decide issue on motion for judgment on pleadings. Cloud v. Northrop Grumman Corp. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 995, 1016, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 544

[8] Merger of Cause of Action in Judgment

Under doctrine of res judicata, once plaintiff prevails on his or her claim, cause of action as merged into judgment and plaintiff's only remaining right as on judgment; merger as prohibiting plaintiff from splitting single cause of action into successive suits. Craig v. County of Los Angeles (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 1294, 1301, 271 Cal. Rptr. 82

Doctrine of res judicata as giving conclusive effect to former judgment in subsequent litigation between same parties involving same cause of action; prior judgment for plaintiff as resulting in merger and superseding new action by right of action on judgment, and prior judgment for defendant on same cause of action as complete bar to new action. Rymer v. Hagler (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1171, 1178, 260 Cal. Rptr. 76

[9] Nature and Effect of Res Judicata Doctrine

Collateral estoppel is one of two aspects of doctrine of res judicata; in its narrowest form, res judicata precludes parties or their privies from relitigating cause of action finally resolved in prior proceeding; res judicata also includes broader principle, collateral estoppel, under which issue necessarily decided in prior litigation may be conclusively determined against parties thereto or their privies; thus, res judicata does not merely bar relitigation of identical claims or causes of action; in its collateral estoppel aspect, doctrine may preclude party to prior litigation from redisputing issues decided against him or her, even when those issues bear on different claims raised in later case. Vandenberg v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 815, 828, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 366, 982 P.2d 229

Under doctrine of res judicata, parties to prior proceeding are precluded from relitigating issues determined in prior proceeding; prior judgment operates as estoppel to issues actually litigated and determined in first action; unless issue or cause of action in two actions is identical, first judgment does not stand as bar to second suit; prior determination by tribunal will be given collateral estoppel effect when (1) issue is identical to that decided in former proceeding, (2) issue is actually litigated and (3) necessarily decided, (4) doctrine is asserted against party to former action or one in privity with such party, and (5) former decision is final and made on merits; if anything is left to conjecture as to what was necessarily involved and decided, there can be no collateral estoppel; it must appear the precise question was raised and determined in former suit. Dunkin v. Boskey (2000) 82 Cal. App. 4th 171, 180-181, 98 Cal. Rptr. 2d 44

Doctrine of res judicata consists of two different aspects; first, it precludes parties or their privies from relitigating cause of action that has been finally determined by court of competent jurisdiction; this is traditionally referred to as "res judicata" or "claim preclusion"; second, any issue necessarily decided in such litigation is conclusively determined as to parties or their privies if it is involved in subsequent lawsuit as to parties on different cause of action; this is known as "collateral estoppel" or "issue preclusion"; res judicata is applicable only to same causes of action between same parties or their privies; collateral estoppel is applicable to bar relitigation of issues previously litigated between same parties on different cause of action if issues for which collateral estoppel is sought in second action (1) are identical to those litigated in first action, (2) were actually litigated and necessarily decided in determining first action, (3) are asserted against a participant in first action or one in privity with that party, and (4) former decision was final on merits. Rice v. Crow (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 725, 734-735, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110

Prior determination will be given collateral estoppel effect when (1) issue is identical to that decided in a former proceeding, (2) issue was actually litigated and (3) necessarily decided, (4) doctrine is asserted against party to former action or one who was in privity with such a party, and (5) former decision is final and was made on merits; no aspect of what was decided in previous proceeding can be left to conjecture on the record and if it is left to conjecture estoppel is inapplicable. Silver v. Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 338, 357, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 287

Doctrine of collateral estoppel precludes relitigation of issue previously adjudicated if (1) the issue necessarily decided in previous suit is identical to issue sought to be relitigated, (2) there is final judgment on merits of previous suit, and (3) party against whom plea is asserted was party, or in privity with party, to previous suit, stranger to prior judgment may assert defensive issue preclusion. Campbell v. Scripps Bank (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 1328, 1334-1335, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 635

Generally speaking, valid final judgment in plaintiff's favor merges any claim of same cause of action in judgment, and precludes plaintiff from maintaining any later suit on same cause of action; rule against plaintiff splitting single cause of action so as to make it basis of several suits is, in part, an application of doctrine of res judicata. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 907, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151

Doctrine of res judicata has two aspects; it applies to both a previously litigated cause of action, referred to as claim preclusion, and to an issue necessarily decided in prior action, referred to as issue preclusion; prerequisite elements for applying doctrine to either entire cause of action or one or more issues are same: (1) claim or issue raised in present action is identical to claim or issue litigated in prior proceeding, (2) prior proceeding resulted in final judgment on the merits, and (3) party against whom doctrine is asserted was party or in privity with party to prior proceeding. Brinton v. Bankers Pension Services, Inc. (1999) 76 Cal. App. 4th 550, 556, 90 Cal. Rptr. 2d 469

Doctrine of collateral estoppel or issue preclusion is secondary form of res judicata; it prevents party who had full and fair opportunity to litigate particular issue in prior proceeding from relitigating it in subsequent proceeding; prior determination by tribunal will be given collateral estoppel effect when (1) issue is identical to that decided in former proceeding, (2) issue was actually litigated and (3) necessarily decided, (4) doctrine is asserted against party to former action or one in privity with such party, and (5) former decision is final and was made on merits. McCutchen v. City of Montclair (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1138, 1144, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 95

Under collateral estoppel aspect of res judicata, relitigation of issue previously adjudicated is generally precluded if certain criteria met: (1) issue necessarily decided in previous suit identical to issue sought to be relitigated, (2) there was final judgment on merits of previous suit, and (3) party against whom plea asserted was party, or in privity with party, to previous suit. Gregory v. State Bd. of Control (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 584, 592, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 575

Collateral estoppel bars party to action, or one in privity, from subsequently relitigating issues actually litigated and finally decided against that party in earlier action; nonparty may invoke collateral estoppel against party to earlier action only if three conditions met: (1) issue necessarily decided in earlier action is identical to issue sought to be relitigated in current action, (2) there was final judgment on merits in earlier action, and (3) party against whom collateral estoppel asserted was party, or in privity with party, to previous suit. United States Golf Ass'n v. Arroyo Software Corp. (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 607, 616, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 708

Party will be collaterally estopped from relitigating issue only if (1) issue decided in prior adjudication identical with that presented in action in question, (2) there was final judgment on merits, and (3) party against whom plea asserted was party or in privity with party to prior adjudication. Sutton v. Golden Gate Bridge Highway & Transportation Dist. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 1155, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155

Collateral estoppel or issue preclusion aspect of res judicata does not operate as complete bar to subsequent relitigation; rather, under collateral estoppel, issues that have been fully and fairly litigated and determined between parties are regarded as conclusively determined in subsequent litigation; resolved issues may or may not be determinative in subsequent litigation, depending on its importance to cause of action, but when collateral estoppel applies parties will not be permitted to relitigate previously determined issue; threshold requirements for application of collateral estoppel are (1) issue sought to be precluded must be identical to that decided in prior litigation, (2) issue must have been actually litigated in prior litigation, (3) issue must have been necessarily decided in prior litigation, (4) decision in prior litigation must be final and on merits, and (5) party against whom issue preclusion sought must be same as or in privity with party to prior litigation. Old Republic Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 128, 151, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642

Collateral estoppel, or issue preclusion, is form of res judicata; collateral estoppel precludes party to action from relitigating in second proceeding matters litigated and determined in prior proceeding. Wright v. Ripley (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 1189, 1193, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 334

Most commonly, issue preclusion arises from successive suits on different claims and is referred to as collateral estoppel; if, however, second action is on same claim, issue preclusion based on the earlier determination is described as direct estoppel; both collateral and direct estoppel, like res judicata, have dual purpose of protecting litigants from burden of relitigating identical issue with same party or his or her privy and of promoting judicial economy by preventing needless litigation; in either form, issue preclusion should be determined according to threshold requirements: (1) issue sought to be precluded from relitigation must be identical to that decided in former proceeding, (2) issue must have been actually litigated in former proceeding, (3) it must have been necessarily decided in former proceeding, (4) decision in former proceeding must be final and on merits, and (5) party against whom preclusion sought must be same, or in privity with, party to former proceeding. Sabek, Inc. v. Engelhard Corp. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 992, 997-998, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 882

Collateral estoppel, as aspect of res judicata, precludes relitigation of issues decided in prior proceeding; traditionally, collateral estoppel applies only if following requirements satisfied: (1) issue sought to be precluded from relitigation must be identical to that decided in former proceeding, (2) issue must have been actually litigated in former proceeding, (3) it must have been necessarily decided in former proceeding, (4) decision in former proceeding must be final and on merits, and (5) party against whom preclusion sought must be same, or in privity with, party to former proceeding. Townsel v. San Diego Metropolitan Transit Development Bd. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 940, 951, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 231

Elements of collateral estoppel are (1) issue sought to be precluded from relitigation is identical to that decided in former proceeding, (2) issue was actually litigated and necessarily decided in former proceeding, and (3) party against whom preclusion sought was party, or in privity with party, to former proceeding. People v. Gillard (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 136, 159, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790

Res judicata precludes piecemeal litigation by splitting single cause of action or relitigation of the same cause of action on different legal theory or for different relief; res judicata operates as bar to maintaining second suit between same parties or parties in privity with them on same cause of action; doctrine of res judicata gives conclusive effect to final judgment rendered on merits by court having jurisdiction of cause. Weikel v. TCW Realty Fund II Holding Co. (1997) 55 Cal. App. 4th 1234, 1245, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 25

Doctrine of res judicata precludes parties or their privies from relitigating cause of action that has been finally determined by court of competent jurisdiction; any issue necessarily decided in such litigation is conclusively determined as to parties or their privies if it is involved in later lawsuit on different cause of action; prior judgment is res judicata on matters that were raised, or could have been raised, on matters litigated or litigable; in determining validity of plea of res judicata there are three pertinent questions: (1) were issues decided in former adjudication identical with those in later litigation; (2) was there final judgment on the merits; and (3) was party against whom plea asserted party or in privity with party to prior adjudication? Lyons v. Security Pacific Nat. Bank (1995) 40 Cal. App. 4th 1001, 1015, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 174

Three prerequisites to applying doctrine of collateral estoppel as being (1) issue in second action must be identical to issue adjudicated in first action; (2) first action must have proceeded to final judgment on merits; and (3) party against whom collateral estoppel is to be asserted must have been party, or in privity with party, to first action. Brown v. Rahman (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1458, 1461, 282 Cal. Rptr. 815 ; People v. Hogue (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1500, 1504, 279 Cal. Rptr. 647 ; Gill v. Hughes (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1299, 1304, 278 Cal. Rptr. 306 ; People v. Henderson (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1129, 1150, 275 Cal. Rptr. 837 ; Oro Fino Gold Mining Corp. v. County of El Dorado (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 872, 878, 274 Cal. Rptr. 720

Res judicata effect of final judgment on merits as having two aspects: (1) judgment bars parties (or those in privity with them) from litigating same cause of action in subsequent proceeding; and (2) parties (or those in privity with them) are collaterally estopped from litigating in subsequent proceeding on different cause of action any issue actually litigated and determined in former proceeding; res judicata aspect that bars relitigation on same cause of action as precluding piecemeal litigation by splitting single cause of action and as also precluding relitigation of same cause of action on different legal theory or for different relief; prior final judgment on merits as settling issues that were not only actually litigated but every issue that might have been raised and litigated in first action. Koch v. Hankins (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1599, 1602, 273 Cal. Rptr. 442

Doctrine of res judicata as providing that final judgment on merits bars parties or those in privity with them from litigating same cause of action in subsequent proceeding, and collaterally estops parties or those in privity with them from litigating in subsequent proceeding on different cause of action any issue actually litigated or determined in former proceeding; for purposes of res judicata, erroneous judgment as being as conclusive as correct one. White Motor Corp. v. Teresinski (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 754, 761, 763, 263 Cal. Rptr. 26

Doctrines of res judicata and collateral estoppel as serving two public policies: (1) preventing party who already has had fair trial on issue from again drawing it into controversy; and (2) protecting parties from being twice vexed for same cause; preventing relitigation of same issue as also fostering important public policy of judicial economy. Bronco Wine Co. v. Frank A. Logoluso Farms (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 699, 708, 262 Cal. Rptr. 899

Collateral estoppel as distinct aspect of res judicata and as involving second action between same parties on different cause of action; in such case, first action as not operating as complete merger or bar, but as operating as an estoppel or conclusive adjudication of issues in second action that were actually litigated and determined in first action. Rymer v. Hagler (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 1171, 1178, 260 Cal. Rptr. 76

Doctrine of res judicata as composed of two parts, claim preclusion and issue preclusion; claim preclusion as prohibiting party from relitigating previously adjudicated cause of action; thus, new lawsuit on same cause of action as entirely barred; issue preclusion, or collateral estoppel, as applying to subsequent suit between parties on different cause of action. Flynn v. Gorton (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1550, 1554, 255 Cal. Rptr. 768

Res judicata and collateral estoppel as sharing common goals; both prevent inconsistent results and promote finality and judicial economy by bringing an end to litigation. Flynn v. Gorton (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1550, 1554, 255 Cal. Rptr. 768

[10] Pleading

Although normally res judicata effect of prior judgment must be pleaded and proven at trial, when judgment becomes final during pendency of appeal in another action, first final judgment may be brought to attention of appellate court in which appeal is pending and may there be relied on as res judicata. Aronow v. LaCroix (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1039, 1046, 268 Cal. Rptr. 866

Collateral estoppel as not required to be specially alleged as defense; in contrast, objection based on doctrine of res judicata as required to be specially pleaded or it is waived. Hulsey v. Koehler (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1150, 1156, 1158, 267 Cal. Rptr. 523

[11] Privity

[a] Considerations

A five-year-old child ordinarily has no cognizable independent interest in relitigating a liability claim that has been determined adversely to his parents; sufficient privity exists to invoke the doctrine of collateral estoppel. Garcia v. Rehrig Internat., Inc. (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 869, 878, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 723

Party is one with direct interest in subject matter who has right to raise defense, or to control action, and to appeal; privy is one who, after rendition of judgment, has acquired interest in subject matter affected by judgment through or under one of parties, as by inheritance, succession, or purchase. Rice v. Crow (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 725, 735, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110

Ordinarily, collateral estoppel does not apply against parties who were codefendants in former action; this rule does not apply, however, when codefendants were adversaries who opposed and litigated issues adversely to each other. Sutton v. Golden Gate Bridge Highway & Transportation Dist. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 1155, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155

Findings made during labor arbitration are only binding in subsequent employee lawsuit if employee was party to arbitration or in privity with union during proceeding; privity requires identity of interest, or relationship which is sufficiently close to justify application of of collateral estoppel; person in privity with party to former proceeding bound by that proceeding only when his or her interests were adequately represented; when employee does not participate directly in labor arbitration and union's position was contrary to his or her interests, employee can successfully assert lack of privity or fair representation as bar to collateral estoppel. Kelly v. Vons Companies, Inc. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 1329, 1338, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 763

Whatever scope of expanded notions of privity may be, it is clear that collateral estoppel may only be applied when due process requirements are met; in context of collateral estoppel, due process requires that party to be estopped must have had identity or community of interest with, and adequate representation by, losing party in first action as well as that circumstances must have been such that party to be estopped should reasonably have expected to be bound by prior adjudication; reasonable expectation requirement is satisfied if party to be estopped had propriety interest in and control of prior action, or if unsuccessful party in first action might fairly be treated as acting in representative capacity for party to be estopped; moreover, due process requires that party to be estopped must have had fair opportunity to pursue his or her claim first time. Old Republic Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 128, 154, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642

Privity for purposes of res judicata or collateral estoppel refers to mutual or successive relationship to same property rights, to identification in interest of one person with another as to represent the same legal rights, or to relationship between party to be estopped and unsuccessful party in prior litigation that is sufficiently close so as to justify application of collateral estoppel; due process requires that nonparty have had identity or community of interest with,

and adequate representation by party in first action; nonparty should reasonably have expected to be bound by prior adjudication; privity is not susceptible of neat definition and determination of whether it exists is not cut-and-dried exercise; in final analysis, determination of privity depends on fairness of binding one with result obtained in earlier proceedings in which it did not participate; whether someone is in privity with actual parties requires examination of facts and circumstances of case; party is adequately represented for purposes of privity if his or her interests are so similar to party's interest that latter was former's virtual representative in earlier action; adequacy of representation is inferred from whether party in suit asserted to have preclusive effect had same interest as party to be precluded and whether party had strong motive to assert that interest; if interests are divergent or party's motive for asserting common interest is relatively weak, one does not infer adequate representation and there is no privity. Citizens for Open Access Etc. Tide, Inc.v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1069-1071, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77

Close examination of circumstances of case required to determine whether someone is in privity with party; in general, privity involves person being so identified in interest with another as to represent same legal right. Weir v. Ferreira (1997) 59 Cal.App. 4th 1509, 1522, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33

"Privity" as relationship between party to be estopped and unsuccessful party in prior litigation that is sufficiently close so as to justify application of doctrine of collateral estoppel; historically, parties as not deemed to be in privity unless they shared same legal interests; under more contemporary approach in context of collateral estoppel, due process as requiring that party to be estopped had identity or community of interest with, and adequate representation by, losing party in first action, as well as that circumstances must have been such that party to be estopped should reasonably have expected to be bound by prior adjudication. Brown v. Rahman (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1458, 1462, 282 Cal. Rptr. 815

Whether someone is in privity with actual parties as requiring close examination of circumstances of each case; privity as involving person so identified in interest with another that he or she represents same legal right. People v. Henderson (1990) 225 Cal. App. 3d 1129, 1150-1151, 275 Cal. Rptr. 837

Concept of privity as operating as safety valve to defeat preclusive effect of prior decision in circumstances in which such result would be unfair; "privity" as representing legal conclusion that relationship between one who is party on record and nonparty is sufficiently close to afford application of principle of preclusion. City of Gilroy v. State Bd. of Equalization (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 589, 606, 260 Cal. Rptr. 723

[b] No Privity Found

A dismissal with prejudice is a judgment on the merits between the plaintiff and the dismissed defendant. It is not, however, a judgment on the merits between the plaintiff and other defendants in the action. Johnson v. County of Fresno (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 1087,1096, 4 Cal. Rptr. 3d 475

Plaintiff who settled and dismissed with prejudice legal malpractice action against counsel who represented plaintiff in underlying action that was still pending was not barred from going forward with underlying action because defendants in underlying action were not parties to malpractice action, nor in privity with them; moreover, since malpractice action was settled and not tried, collateral estoppel did not bar litigating any issue in underlying action. Rice v. Crow (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 725, 736-740, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110 (declining to follow Arciniega v. Bank of San Bernardino (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 213, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 495)

When plaintiff and defendant in present case had been codefendants in earlier action, record failed to support requirement of privity between parties because plaintiff did not have incentive to litigate issue in earlier action despite plaintiff and defendant having been adversaries in that action by virtue of a cross complaint; in earlier action, plaintiff was not represented by present counsel, but by plaintiff's insurer who had no interest in pursuing any claim against codefendant in that action and hence did not oppose codefendant's summary judgment motion and did not appear at oral argument on motion; plaintiff's counsel in present action not served with that summary judgment motion; under circumstances, it would violate due process to preclude plaintiff from litigating same issue decided in previous motion; plaintiff was not adequately represented on issue in earlier case, had no incentive to litigate issue in earlier case and could not have reasonably been expected to be bound by that adjudication. Sutton v. Golden Gate Bridge Highway & Transportation Dist. (1998) 68 Cal. App. 4th 1149, 1155-1157, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 155

When insurer in earlier declaratory relief action was found liable to provide defense and indemnify its insureds under coverage provisions of its policy and other insurers not named in earlier action also issued liability policies to same insureds containing substantially same language, but denied coverage and refused to participate in defense, and insurer thereafter brought suit against those other insurers, other insurers were held not bound by earlier judicial determination requiring coverage because they were neither parties nor privies to prior action in that they were not named in that action as parties, did not have financial or proprietary interest in its outcome, and it could not be fairly said that insurer in earlier action was in any way acting as their representative. Old Republic Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1998) 66 Cal. App. 4th 128, 134-135, 154-155, 77 Cal. Rptr. 2d 642

In criminal prosecution for making false or fraudulent statements for purpose of obtaining workers' compensation benefits and for perjury, workers' compensation judge's conclusion that defendant suffered work-related injury did not collaterally estop prosecution from relitigating whether, and if so, how, defendant was injured; party identity element was absent because defendant's adversary in Workers' Compensation Appeals Board proceeding was defendant's employer, state agency that was not part of executive branch, whereas defendant's adversary in criminal proceeding was county district attorney's office, which is part of executive branch. People v. Gillard (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 136, 159-160, 66 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790

Action for attorney malpractice arising out of terms of probate court settlement order as not barred by res judicata when parties did not have adversarial interests in prior probate action and thus, lacked privity. Schultz v. Harney (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1611, 1620, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 276

Due to nature of principal/surety relationship, rule as that when one party to judgment has unity of interest with another party whose rights are not determined by judgment, no appeal lies until rights or duties of interested party have been resolved by final judgment. T&R Painting Construction, Inc. v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 738, 743, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 199

Equal Employment Opportunity Commission prosecuting federal discrimination action brought under Age Discrimination in Employment Act, 29 U.S.C. § 261, et seq., against defendant employer, eventually entering into injunctive consent judgment, did not stand in privity with plaintiff in subsequent action against employer for state-based age discrimination since EEOC had dispensed with plaintiff's particular interest during prosecution of its action. Victa v. Merle Norman Cosmetics, Inc. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 454, 463-468, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 117

Person who is neither party to action nor in privity with party as not bound by judgment; fact that person may have been vitally interested in and directly affected by outcome of action as immaterial; due process as requiring that that person have his or her own day in court. County of Fresno v. Lehman (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 340, 347, 280 Cal. Rptr. 310

Fact that individual appears as witness in action as not in and of itself supporting finding of privity with party in that action for purposes of application of collateral estoppel in subsequent proceeding. Dyson v. State Personnel Bd. (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 711, 727 n.6, 262 Cal. Rptr. 112

Judgment against principal as not binding in separate action against surety. All Bay Mill & Lumber Co. v. Surety Co. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 11, 17, 255 Cal. Rptr. 790

Department of Motor Vehicles, in role of controlling licensing of drivers, as not in privity with prosecutor in criminal proceeding arising from driving of motor vehicle. Pawlowski v. Pierce (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 692, 698, 249 Cal. Rptr. 49 (noting that courts of appeal are split on this issue)

[c] Privity Found

Plaintiff nonprofit public interest group that brought action for implied dedication of public recreational easement, held to be in privity with state agencies that were responsible for representation of public interest who pursued rights of public concerning same property in earlier state and federal actions; when authority to pursue public rights or interests in litigation is given to public entity by statute, judgment rendered is res judicata as to all members of class represented; similarly, when one governmental agency represents interests of State of California in prior litigation and another seeks to pursue same issue, agents of same government are in privity with each other, since they represent not their own rights but rights of government. Citizens for Open Access Etc. Tide, Inc. v. Seadrift Assn. (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 1053, 1073, 1073 n.12, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 77

In proceeding on trustee's petition to ascertain beneficiaries and determine entitlement to trust distribution, determination of parent-child relationship in interlocutory judgment of dissolution of marriage barred one child from relitigating parent-child relationship of another child to their deceased parent when sole interest of decedent's child in trust was as member of class of remaindermen defined by their relationship to decedent; because point in dispute, i.e., whether other party was decedent's child, was same point adjudicated in dissolution action, and because its determination was binding on decedent, it should likewise be binding on those claiming through decedent. Weir v. Ferreira (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1514-1517, 1521-1522, 70 Cal. Rptr. 2d 33

Hospital bound by earlier judgment in medical malpractice action in which it was dismissed as party before trial in which anesthesiologist prevailed so as to bar hospital's action for equitable indemnity against anesthesiologist after award of damages against hospital in second suit by same plaintiff; in earlier action hospital had opportunity to prove anesthesiologist caused plaintiff's injuries and had community of interest with plaintiff in seeking to hold anesthesiologist liable for plaintiff's injuries. Children's Hospital v. Sedgwick (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1780, 1788, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 725

Plaintiff barred by res judicata from collaterally attacking order made in earlier minor's personal injury action that denied plaintiff's quantum meruit lien claim for attorney fees in that action when defendant attorneys represented minor in that action and were not technically parties to it and plaintiff became party to that action by filing purported lien; fact that defendants were not technically parties in that action was not significant for res judicata purposes as long as issue presented was same, there was final judgment on merits, and party against whom res judicata asserted is same. Law Offices of Stanley J. Bell v. Shine, Browne & Diamond (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 1011, 1026, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 717

Liability insurance carrier, who significantly participated in uncontested proceeding against its insured resulting in nondisclosure agreement and covenant not to execute, and who stood to gain financially from agreement, as collaterally estopped from relitigating issues of liability and damages in separate action. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Lynette C. (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1434, 1452-1453, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 496

Privity for collateral estoppel purposes found between Department of Motor Vehicles and prosecution in prior criminal action on issue of lawfulness of arrest when both represented government's interest in protecting public from persons driving under influence. Zapata v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1991) 2 Cal. App. 4th 108, 115, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 855

Nonparty should reasonably be expected to be bound if he or she had in reality contested prior action even if he or she did not make formal appearance; thus, collateral estoppel as having been applied against nonparties who had a proprietary or financial interest in, and control of, prior action and as applicable when nonparty has such an interest in determination of question of fact or law with reference to same subject matter or transaction. Ceresino v. Fire Ins. Exchange (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 814, 820, 264 Cal. Rptr. 30

When probate litigation between son of decedent and son's creditor over disposition of estate assets results in judgment adjudicating creditor's rights, son's children (decedent's grandchildren) as bound by adjudication, notwithstanding their status as beneficiaries of trust created by decedent's will; rights of grandchildren as accruing solely through estate, which was party to first action and consequently bound. Estate of Baumann (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 927, 935, 247 Cal. Rptr. 532

Agents and officials of same government as in privity with one another. Carmel Valley Fire Protection Dist. v. State of California (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 521, 535-536, 234 Cal. Rptr. 795

Spouse of party to prior action as in privity with that party for purposes of issue preclusion when prior litigation was community in nature. Mueller v. J.C. Penney Co. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 713, 723-724, 219 Cal. Rptr. 272

[12] Proof of Defense

Action as not barred by res judicata when defendant did not present any evidence to support its contention that factual issues in case at bench were finally litigated in earlier action. Santa Clara County Environmental Health Assn. v. County of Santa Clara (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 74, 83-84, 218 Cal. Rptr. 678

[13] Requirement of Final Judgment

[a] Demurrer

Judgment on general demurrer as having effect of bar in new action in which complaint states same facts that were held not to constitute cause of action on former demurrer or, notwithstanding differences in facts alleged, when ground on which demurrer in former action was sustained is equally applicable to second action. McKinney v. County of Santa Clara (1980) 110 Cal. App. 3d 787, 794, 168 Cal. Rptr. 89

[b] Dismissal

Plaintiffs' voluntary dismissal with prejudice of municipal court complaint after they had filed virtually identical complaint in superior court as constituting determination on merits and as res judicata, thus barring superior court action; request for dismissal with prejudice as not depending on consideration and as operating as retraxit, barring new action on same subject matter. Roybal v. University Ford (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1080, 1085-1087, 255 Cal. Rptr. 469

Dismissal of action on court's own motion under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310 and 583.360 as dismissal without prejudice under Code Civ. Proc. § 581(b)(4), (g) and, hence, as not barring subsequent action under doctrine of res judicata or collateral estoppel. *Ashworth v. Memorial Hospital (1988) 206 Cal. For res judicata pruposes, dismissal for failure to obey court's discovery orders as having effect of judgment on merits against plaintiff. Bernstein v. Allstate Insurance Co. (1981) 119 Cal. App. 3d 449, 451, 173 Cal. Rptr. 841 , cert. denied, 454 U.S. 966, 102 S. Ct. 508, 70 L. Ed. 2d 382

Order of dismissal based on plaintiff's failure to amend complaint within specified time as not judgment on merits, therefore as not res judicata. Kanarek v. Bugliosi (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 327, 333-334, 166 Cal. Rptr. 526

[b.1] Retraxit

At common law, "retraxit" was open and voluntary renunciation of suit in open court; primary features of common law retraxit were that it was made by plaintiff in person and in open court; dismissal with prejudice is modern name for common law retraxit; retraxit invokes principles of res judicata; retraxit is judgment on merits preventing subsequent action on dismissed claim; because it invokes principles of res judicata, however, retraxit only bars claims dismissed with prejudice between same parties or their privies; settlement and dismissal with prejudice of action operated as retraxit so as to invoke doctrine of res judicata. Rice v. Crow (2000) 81 Cal. App. 4th 725, 733-736, 97 Cal. Rptr. 2d 110

[c] Stipulation

When parties have consented or stipulated to dismissal of previous action after compromise or settlement of case, issue and scope of settlement agreement as required to be determined before application of res judicata doctrine. Nakash v. Superior Court (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 59, 67, 241 Cal. Rptr. 578

Dismissal, when filed in return for consideration from defendant, as complete bar to any future actions on same controversy and as having same legal effect as common law retraxit. Gates v. Superior Court (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 301, 311, 223 Cal. Rptr. 678

Judgment by stipulation as equivalent to judgment after trial for purpose of applying bar of res judicata. De Weese v. Unick (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 100, 105, 162 Cal. Rptr. 259

[d] Summary Judgment

Partial summary judgment, not entered as judgment, is not final. Kirkpatrick v. Westamerica Bank (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 982, 990-991, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 876

Summary judgment on complaint is judgment on merits. Lumpkin v. Jordan (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1230, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 303

Judgment entered on motion for summary judgment as determination that there is no factual dispute and one party is entitled to judgment as matter of law; such judgment as final and conclusive a determination of merits as judgment after trial and, once final, as res judicata. Stuart v. Lilves (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1215, 1219, 258 Cal. Rptr. 780

Order denying motion for summary judgment as not final judgment and not res judicata. De La Pena v. Wolfe (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 481, 485, 223 Cal. Rptr. 325

[14] Small Claims Courts

Although small claims judgment may not be given issue preclusion effect with regard to common questions arising in subsequent proceeding on different cause of action, when losing defendant in small claims action invokes his or her right of appeal to superior court and when superior court conducts a trial de novo and enters judgment against appealing defendant, doctrine of issue preclusion as precluding defendant from raising issues decided in such trial de novo in subsequent proceeding. Perez v. City of San Bruno (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 875, 884-885, 168 Cal. Rptr. 114, 616 P.2d 1287

Under rule against splitting cause of action, which is application of doctrine of res judicata, judgment of small claims court held to bar subsequent suit on same cause of action. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 907, 914, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151

Issue preclusion does not apply to small claims court judgment or superior court judgment after a hearing de novo in an action arising under the Small Claims Act (Code Civ. Proc. § 116.110 et seq.); holding of Perez v. City of San Bruno (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 875, 168 Cal. Rptr. 114, 616 P.2d 1287 , that collateral estoppel applies to superior court judgment entered after trial de novo on appeal from small claims judgment, is no longer sound due to enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 116.770(b). Rosse v. DeSoto Cab Company (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1050-1053, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680

Small claims judgment does not invoke issue preclusion as to later actions. Foothills Townhome Assn. v. Christiansen (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 688, 692, 76 Cal. Rptr. 2d 516

Small claims decisions as having only limited collateral estoppel effect as to issues actually litigated and as not res judicata. Jellinek v. Superior Court (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 652, 659, 279 Cal. Rptr. 6

[15] Summary Judgment Motion

Defense of res judicata is properly raised by motion for summary judgment and is ground on which to grant summary judgment. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 907, 914, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151

Summary judgment is appropriate remedy when doctrine of res judicata in its subsidiary form of collateral estoppel refutes all triable issues of fact suggested by pleadings. Gill v. Hughes (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 1299, 1304, 278 Cal. Rptr. 306

Plea of res judicata is properly raised by motion for summary judgment. Roybal v. University Ford (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 1080, 1088, 255 Cal. Rptr. 469

[16] Waiver of Defense

Rule against splitting single cause of action so as to make it basis of several suits is, in part, application of doctrine of res judicata; because prohibition against splitting cause of action exists for defendant's benefit, defendant may waive it; under facts, however, waiver not found. Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 907, 909, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151

Plaintiff's failure to raise res judicata as defense in plaintiff's pleadings or at trial resulted in waiver of defense. Parker v. Walker (1992) 5 Cal. App. 4th 1173, 1191, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 908 (defense based on order of final distribution of decedent's estate waived when not raised in subsequent Prob. Code § 9860 petition claiming estate property or at trial)

Defendant demurs to the complaint herein on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to state a cause of action, in that it appears on the face thereof that _____ [plaintiff or _____ (specify other party in privity with plaintiff)] [, with whom plaintiff is in privity,] obtained a final judgment on the merits in the action referred to in _____ [specify, e.g., Paragraph 3] of the complaint, and that the cause of action asserted in the action was merged in the judgment and is the same cause of action asserted in this action, and that plaintiff may not therefore maintain this action.

[OR, if bar is defense]

Defendant demurs to the complaint herein on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to state a cause of action, in that it appears on the face thereof that _____ [defendant or _____(specify other party in privity with defendant)] [, with whom defendant is in privity,] obtained a final judgment on the merits against _____ [plaintiff or _____ (specify other party in privity with plaintiff)] [, with whom plaintiff is in privity,] in the action referred to in _____ [specify, e.g., Paragraph 3] of the complaint and that the cause of action asserted in this action is the same as that asserted in the former action, and that the judgment rendered in the former action is a bar to the maintenance of this action.

[OR, if collateral estoppel is defense]

Defendant demurs to the complaint herein on the ground that it does not state facts sufficient to state a cause of action in that it appears on the face thereof that this action involves only the issue(s) of _____ [specify issue or issues involved in present action]; and that the issue(s) _____ [was or were] actually and necessarily determined in the former action referred to in _____ [specify, e.g., Paragraph 3] of the complaint, in favor of _____ [defendant or _____ (specify other party)] [, with whom defendant is in privity,] and against _____ [plaintiff or _____ (specify other party in privity with plaintiff)] [, with whom plaintiff is in privity,] and final judgment on the merits was rendered therein so that such issue(s) cannot therefore be relitigated in this action.

SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM

[Add memorandum supporting demurrer]

[2] Use of Form

The form of general demurrer in [1], above, is for use by a defendant to object to a complaint on the ground that it does not state a cause of action in that the cause of action is precluded by a prior judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 1908(a)].

The demurrer must be accompanied by a supporting memorandum in support of each ground thereof [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1103(c); for discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities]. It must also be accompanied by a notice of hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(c); for a form of notice of hearing, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadngs].

Counsel should select one of the three alternative paragraphs in the body of the form, depending on whether the demurrer is based on (1) merger, (2) bar, or (3) collateral estoppel [for discussion of these terms, see § 491.11]. The form contains an optional prayer; a prayer to a demurrer is not required but is frequently included.

This form should only be used if the facts giving rise to the defense of res judicata appear on the face of the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(a)]. Reference by the plaintiff to the prior judgment in the complaint, aided by judicial notice, sufficiently raises the issue of res judicata, justifying an order sustaining a demurrer [Legg v. United Benefit Life Ins. Co. (1960) 182 Cal. App. 2d 573, 580-581, 6 Cal. Rptr. 73] . The court can consider a prior judgment by judicial notice on defendant's general demurrer to determine whether the prior judgment bars the action [Lazzarone v. Bank of America (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 581, 590, 226 Cal. Rptr. 855] . Otherwise, the defendant may raise the res judicata issue by way of affirmative defense in the answer [for forms of affirmative defense, see §§ 491.51 -491.55].

[3] Specification of Ground of Objection

A demurrer must distinctly specify the grounds on which any of the objections to the complaint are taken and unless it does so, it may be disregarded [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.60]. Nevertheless, a general demurrer expressed in the words of Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e) need not specify particulars in which the complaint fails to state facts constituting a cause of action [Burke v. Maguire (1908) 154 Cal. 456, 462-463, 98 P. 21 ; Patton v. Board of Harbor Commissioners (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 536, 544 n.7, 91 Cal. Rptr. 832] . Therefore, as an alternative to form of demurrer in [1], above, stating specific res judicata grounds, the defendant may simply demur on the ground that the complaint does not state a cause of action [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e); for further discussion and forms, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings].

§ 491.51 Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Cause of Action Was Merged in Prior Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(a)]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Cause of Action Was Merged in Prior Judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(a)]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES that:

1. On _____ [date], an action was commenced by _____ [plaintiff or _____ (specify other party in privity with plaintiff)] [, with whom plaintiff is in privity,] against _____ [defendant or _____ (specify other party in privity with defendant)] [, with whom defendant is in privity,] in an action entitled _____ [specify title of prior action] in the Superior Court of California, _____ County, Case number _____.

2. Judgment in the action was duly rendered on the merits in favor of _____ [plaintiff or _____ (specify other party in privity with plaintiff)], [with whom plaintiff is in privity,] the Court having jurisdiction of the parties and subject matter; the judgment became final on _____ [date], prior to the filing of this action. _____ [Specify whether defendant in prior action appealed from judgment, and if defendant appealed, note the disposition of the appeal, e.g., The judgment has never been appealed from and the time for appealing has expired]. The judgment has never been vacated or modified. A certified copy of the judgment is attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof.

3. The cause of action asserted in this action involves the same cause of action as that decided in the former action.

4. By reason of the aforesaid, the cause of action asserted by plaintiff in this action has been merged in the judgment and the judgment is res judicata of this action.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a defendant as an affirmative defense allegation in his or her answer, to allege that the cause of action has merged with a prior action. For further discussion relating to an swers generally, including general forms of answer into which the foregoing affirmative defense allegation may be inserted, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[3] Merger

Merger is the concept that a cause of action that has been reduced to judgment has merged in the judgment, so that another action based on the same cause cannot be asserted. The doctrine serves to protect a defendant who has been unsuccessful in litigating a cause of action; the successful plaintiff is precluded from bringing successive lawsuits against the defendant based on the same cause [see Busick v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 967, 973, 104 Cal. Rptr. 42, 500 P.2d 1386] .

[4] Contents

This form of affirmative defense alleges the existence of a prior action against the defendant or another party in privity with the defendant (Paragraph 1); that such action was final (Paragraph 2); that the cause of action asserted in the present action involves the same cause of action as that decided in the former action (Paragraph 3); and that the former judgment is res judicata (Paragraph 4) [see Busick v. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. (1972) 7 Cal. 3d 967, 974, 104 Cal. Rptr. 42, 500 P.2d 1386 (stating that only a final judgment on merits between same parties or their privies and on the same cause of action is entitled to res judicata effect of merger)].

[5] Pleading Prior Judgment

When a judgment or order of a court is conclusive, the judgment or order must be alleged in the pleadings if there is an opportunity to do so. If there is no such opportunity, the judgment or order may be used in evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1908.5].

In pleading a judgment, it is not necessary to state the facts conferring jurisdiction, but such judgment or determination may be stated to have been duly given or made and to have become final (see Paragraph 2). If such allegation is controverted, the party pleading must establish on the trial the facts conferring jurisdiction and creating finality [Code Civ. Proc. § 456].

43-491 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 491.53

§ 491.53 Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Judgment for Employee Defendant in Prior Action Bars Present Action Against Employer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(a)]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Judgment for Employee Defendant in Prior Action Bars Present Action Against Employer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(a)]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES that:

1. On or about _____ [date], a complaint in a previous cause of action was filed by plaintiff against _____ [name of defendant's employee], the action being filed in the _____[specify court] and numbered _____ in the files and records thereof.

2. _____ [Recite allegations of prior complaint and specify any denials and affirmative defenses offered by employee, e.g., In the complaint, plaintiff alleged negligence by _____ (name of defendant's employee), proximately causing damage to plaintiff. In an answer to this complaint, which was duly filed by _____ (name of defendant's employee), he/she denied his/her own negligence, and, by affirmative defense, alleged contributory negligence on the part of plaintiff].

3. Trial was duly had in the previous action, the Court having jurisdiction of the persons and subject matter thereof, and judgment against plaintiff and in favor of defendant therein, on the merits thereof, was duly rendered in favor of the defendant, on findings that _____ [specify, e.g., there was no negligence on the part of defendant and that there was contributory negligence on the part of plaintiff].

4. Judgment in the action became final on _____ [date]. _____ [State whether plaintiff in prior action appealed from judgment, and if plaintiff appealed, note the disposition of the appeal, e.g., The judgment has never been appealed from and the time for appealing has expired]. The judgment has never been vacated or modified.

5. A certified copy of judgment roll in the prior action is attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof.

6. Defendant admits that at the time of _____ [specify incident at issue, e.g., the accident] as alleged in the complaint, _____ [name of defendant's employee] was acting as an employee of defendant.

7. By reason of the aforesaid, plaintiff cannot assert the purported cause of action herein; the judgment is res judicata.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a defendant as an affirmative defense allegation in his or her answer, to allege that the cause of action is barred by a prior action against the defendant's employee [see City of Los Angeles v. Superior Court (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 143, 154, 149 Cal. Rptr. 320 ; Barrabee v. Crescenta Mutual Water Co. (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 192, 195-196, 198 P.2d 558 (judgment in favor of defendant for whom another party is vicariously liable is res judicata as to other party if judgment was based on merits)]. For further discussion relating to answers generally, including general forms of answer into which the foregoing affirmative defense allegation may be inserted, see Ch. 26, Answers .

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES that:

1. On _____ [date], and prior to the filing of the within action, an action was commenced against _____, [name] [the defendant in the present action,] in the _____ [specify court], the prior action being numbered _____ in the files and records of the Court.

2. The prior action was brought by _____, [name] [_____ the plaintiff in the present action,] and was based on _____ [specify, e.g., personal injuries sustained in a motor vehicle accident in which _____ (name of plaintiff in prior action) was the operator of one of the vehicles involved and defendant the operator of the other].

3. One of the issues necessarily determined in the prior action was _____ [specify issue in present action that was determined in prior action, e.g., whether defendant was negligent in the operation of his/her motor vehicle].

[4. Although the plaintiff in this action was not a party to the former action, the plaintiff in this action controlled the former action and had a _____ (proprietary and/o r financial) interest in the _____ (judgment or determination of a question of _____ (law or fact) with reference to _____ (specify matter or transaction in prior action that is also at issue in the present action)).]

[5. Although the defendant in this action was not a party to the former action, the defendant controlled the prior action and had a _____ (proprietary and/or financial) interest in the _____ (judgment or determination of a question of _____ (law or fact) with reference to _____ (specify matter or transaction in prior action that is also at issue in the present action)). Plaintiff had notice of the defendant's participation in the prior action.]

6. In the prior action, the Court having jurisdiction of the parties and subject matter, judgment was rendered on the merits for _____, [name] [the defendant in the present action,] on findings that [_____ specify, e.g., defendant was not negligent in the operation of his/her motor vehicle]. A certified copy of the judgment roll in the action is attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof. Judgment in the action became final on _____ [date]. _____ [State whether losing party in prior action appealed from judgment, and if losing party appealed, note the disposition of the appeal, e.g., The judgment has never been appealed from and the time for appealing has expired]. The judgment has never been vacated or modified.

7. The instant action is one for _____ [specify, e.g., wrongful death of the plaintiff in prior action] and liability of defendant is predicated on and depends on _____ [specify, e.g., his/her asserted negligence in the accident].

8. By reason of the aforesaid, and the determination in the prior action that _____ [specify, e.g., defendant was not negligent in the operation of his vehicle in the accident], plaintiff is estopped to assert _____ [specify, e.g., negligence] and to maintain this action.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a defendant as an affirmative defense allegation in his or her answer, to allege that an issue or issues in the action have already been adjudicated in a prior action based on a different cause of action. For further discussion relating to answers generally, including general forms of answer into which the foregoing affirmative defense allegation may be inserted, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[3] Issue Preclusion

Issue preclusion, also known as collateral estoppel, bars parties or their privies from relitigating in a new proceeding on a different cause of action issues litigated in a prior proceeding [In re Russell (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 229, 233, 115 Cal. Rptr. 511, 524 P.2d 1295] . Under issue preclusion, the prior judgment is not a complete bar, but it operates against the party against whom it was obtained as an estoppel or conclusive adjudication as to such issues in the second action as were actually litigated and determined in the first action [Henn v. Henn (1980) 26 Cal. 3d 323, 329-330, 161 Cal. Rptr. 502, 605 P.2d 10] .

Three requirements must be met before issue preclusion can be applied [Producers Dairy Delivery Co. v. Sentry Ins. Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 903, 910, 226 Cal. Rptr. 558, 718 P.2d 920 ; :

- The issue necessarily decided at the previous proceeding must be identical to the one that is sought to be relitigated.

- The previous proceeding must have resulted in a final judgment on the merits.

- The party against whom collateral estoppel is asserted must be party or in privity with a party at the prior proceeding.

The person asserting issue preclusion has the burden of proof that each of the requirements for application of the doctrine have been met [Vella v. Hudgins (1977) 20 Cal. 3d 251, 257, 142 Cal. Rptr. 414, 572 P.2d 28] .

For additional discussion, see § 491.15.

[4] Contents

The form of affirmative defense alleges, in part, the existence of a prior action in which final judgment was rendered on the merits (Paragraphs 1, 2 and 6); the issue necessarily determined in the prior action (Paragraph 3); the issue in the present action that was adjudicated in the prior action (Paragraph 7); and the applicability of estoppel (Paragraph 8) [see Producers Dairy Delivery Co. v. Sentry Ins. Co. (1986) 41 Cal. 3d 903, 910, 226 Cal. Rptr. 558, 718 P.2d 920 (listing requirements for collateral estoppel)].

The form also includes two optional paragraphs that should be used if the plaintiff (Paragraph 4) or defendant (Paragraph 5) were not parties to the previous action but controlled the action. A person who is not a party but who controls an action, individually or in cooperation with others, is bound by the adjudications of litigated matters as if he or she were a party if he or she has a proprietary or financial interest in the judgment or in the determination of a question of fact or law with reference to the same subject matter or transaction. If the other party has notice of his or her participation, the other party is equally bound [Code Civ. Proc. § 1908(b); for a form of notice of motion to bind a nonparty on a judgment, see § 491.56].

§ 491.55 Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Plaintiff's Asserted Remedy and Cause of Action Barred by Previous Judgment--Attempt to Split Single Cause of Action

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Plaintiff's Asserted Remedy and Cause of Action Barred by Previous Judgment--Attempt to Split Single Cause of Action

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES that:

1. On _____ [date], plaintiff filed an action against defendant, in the _____ [specify court], which action was numbered _____ in the files and records of the Court.

2. The purported cause of action in the previous suit was, and is, identical to the cause of action asserted by plaintiff in the complaint on file herein.

3. In the previous suit, plaintiff _____ [state relief sought by plaintiff in prior action, e.g., sought to have a deed to certain real property located in _____ County set aside on the ground of fraud].

4. Reference is hereby made to the judgment roll of the former action, including the pleadings and judgment therein, a certified copy of which roll is attached hereto as Exhibit "A" and made a part hereof.

5. The remedy plaintiff seeks in this action, that is, _____ [specify, e.g., setting aside of the deed on the ground of undue influence], is a remedy arising out of the identical purported cause of action between plaintiff and defendant in the former action and one that plaintiff could have sought in the action.

6. The judgment rendered in the previous suit has, prior to the filing of the within pleading, become final. _____ [State whether losing party in prior action appealed from judgment, and if losing party appealed, note the disposition of the appeal, e.g., The judgment has never been appealed from and the time for appealing has expired]. The judgment has never been vacated or modified.

7. By reason of the aforesaid, plaintiff is estopped from seeking the relief he/she seeks in this action.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a defendant as an affirmative defense allegation in his or her answer, to allege that plaintiff's asserted cause of action is identical to a cause of action asserted by plaintiff against defendant in a previous suit. The form is designed for the specific situation in which a plaintiff attempts to split a single cause of action into separate causes of action [see Wulfjen v. Dolton (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 891, 894, 151 P.2d 846 (party prohibited from splitting up single cause of action and making it the basis of separate suits); Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 907, 914, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151 (rule against plaintiff splitting single cause of action is, in part, an application of doctrine of res judicata; judgment of small claims court held to bar subsequent suit on same cause of action)].

[2] Use of Form

The form of notice of motion in [1], above, is for use when a defendant or cross defendant seeks a separate, prior trial of the defense of bar of a prior judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 597]. When the answer pleads any of several special defenses, among them that the action is barred by a prior judgment, the court may, either on the court's own motion or on the motion of any party, proceed to the trial of that special defense before the trial of any other issue in the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 597].

A memorandum of points and authorities must be filed and a copy served with this form [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. For discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities .

[2] Use of Form

The form of order in [1], above, may be used when the court grants a motion for separate trial of the special defense that an action is barred by res judicata [see Code Civ. Proc. § 597; for the related form of notice of motion, see § 491.58].

[3] Decision or Verdict After Special Trial

If, on separate trial of the special defense, the decision or verdict is in favor of the defendant pleading it, then judgment for that defendant must thereupon be entered; and no trial of other issues in the case may be had againt that defendant unless the judgment is reversed on appeal or is set aside or otherwise vacated. If, however, this decision or verdict is in the plaintiff's favor, then trial of the other issues must thereafter be had, either on the court's own motion or on the motion of any party; and judgment must thereafter be entered thereon in the same manner and with the same effect as if all of the issues in the case had been tried at one time [Code Civ. Proc. § 597]. In the event of a decision or verdict in the plaintiff's favor, any and all decisions and verdicts on the special defense and all rulings on the trial of it are deemed excepted to, and they may be reviewed on a motion for a new trial or on appeal from the final judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 597].

Chapter 492 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART I. SCOPE

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.01

§ 492.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the special proceeding in state superior and appellate courts known as writ of review or writ of certiorari. It includes a procedural guide and the following forms:

- Petitions for the writ [see §§ 492.100 -492.102].
- Order granting a petition and directing issuance of the writ [see § 492.103].
- The writ [see § 492.104].
- Notice of motion and order for use in obtaining further return to the writ [see §§ 492.105 -492.106].
- Demurrer to the writ [see § 492.107].
- Verified answer to the writ [see § 492.108].
- Judgment affirming, modifying, or annulling the decision below following review on the writ [see § 492.109].

Specialized writs of review, used to review decisions of various administrative agencies, are discussed in the chapters pertaining to the particular agency. Thus, for discussion and forms relating to writs of review under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 23090 and 23090.1 to review decisions of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Appeals Board, see Ch. 18, Alcoholic Beverage Licenses . For discussion and forms relating to writs of review under Pub. Util. Code § 1756 to review decisions of the Public Utilities Commission, see Ch. 480, Public Utilities . For discussion and forms relating to writs of review under Lab. Code § 5950 to review decisions of the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board, see Ch. 577, Workers' Compensation . For discussion and forms relating to a similar proceeding for review of disciplinary actions by the State Bar, see Ch. 71, Attorney Discipline .

Petitions for review in the California Supreme Court and petitions for writ of certiorari in the United States Supreme Court are both distinct from petitions for writ of review discussed in this chapter. For discussion and forms relating to these proceedings, see Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.10

§ 492.10 Governing Law

Writs of review (certiorari) are governed generally by Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1027, 1067-1077, 1107, 1108, and, in appellate courts, by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.485-8.493. Local appellate or superior court rules may also affect writ proceedings [see, e.g., Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 1st App. Dist., Policy Statement A].

To the extent that they are consistent, the general provisions governing civil actions (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 307-1062.10) also apply to writ of review proceedings [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1109, 1110]. Similarly, the civil law and motion rules for trial courts (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100-3.1390) apply to writ of review proceedings in superior courts [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(a)(2)].

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.11

§ 492.11 Definitions

A writ of "review" is synonymous with the common law writ of "certiorari" [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1067]. In conformity with code usage, this chapter uses the term "review," although the term "certiorari" is also in common use [see, e.g., Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.485].

Chapter 492 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.12

§ 492.12 Nature and Purpose of Writ of Review

A writ of review is the method by which a superior or appellate court may examine a decision or other action by a lower court, a board, or an officer exercising judicial functions, when the latter has exceeded its jurisdiction and there is no right to appeal or any plain, speedy, and adequate remedy [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1068(a)]. The writ commands the respondent to certify fully to the reviewing court the transcript of the record and proceedings to be reviewed, and may, in addition, require the respondent to desist in the meantime from further proceedings in the matter to be reviewed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1071; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1070 (respondent is inferior tribunal, board, or officer, or any other person having custody of record or proceeding to be certified); see also § 492.19]. On full return of the writ, the court reviews the certified record and renders judgment affirming, annulling, or modifying the proceedings below [Code Civ. Proc. § 1075].

A writ of review proceeding constitutes a direct, and not a collateral, attack on the challenged judgment or order [Great Western Power Co. v. Pillsbury (1915) 170 Cal. 180, 185, 149 P. 35] .

Use of the writ of review proceeding is extremely limited in comparison with other writ proceedings, particularly writ of mandate proceedings [see § 492.13[2]]. This is because review is limited to jurisdictional issues involving a judicial action concerning which there is no right to appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 1074; see § 492.18[2], [3], [5]]. The circumstances under which a writ of review may be granted under Code Civ. Proc. § 1068 has been summarized by one court of appeal as "not very often" [see Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1107, 231 Cal. Rptr. 189] . Its most common use is to challenge a contempt order [see § 492.18[3][c][iii]].

Chapter 492 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.13

§ 492.13 Other Writs Compared

[1] Writ of Prohibition

A writ of prohibition arrests the proceedings of a tribunal, board, or person exercising judicial functions when such proceedings are in excess of jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. § 1102]. It will issue only to enjoin threatened judicial action and will not lie after judgment is entered where there are no further judicial acts to be performed [Chodos v. Superior Court (1964) 226 Cal. App. 2d 703, 714, 38 Cal. Rptr. 301] . While a writ of review issues only when there is no appeal and no other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068(a)], prohibition may issue when there is a remedy by appeal, so long as the appellate remedy is inadequate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1103(a)]. When a petitioner seeks to annul a judgment or order and, at the same time, to stop any further proceedings in the case, the court may issue both writs of review and of prohibition [County of Marin v. Superior Court (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 633, 642-643, 2 Cal. Rptr. 758, 349 P.2d 526] . For discussion and forms relating to proceedings seeking a writ of prohibition, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[2] Writ of Mandate or Administrative Mandate

A writ of mandate compels an inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or person to perform a legal duty, or to extend to a party a right or office to which that party is entitled, when no other speedy or adequate remedy exists at law [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086]. The writ may be used to challenge any action of a court or of a nonjudicial body that constitutes an abuse of discretion, even when that action lies within the jurisdiction of the court or other body [see Simmons v. Superior Court (1950) 96 Cal. App. 2d 119, 132, 214 P.2d 844 ; see also discussion § 492.56[2][c]]. For discussion and forms relating to proceedings seeking a writ of mandate, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

A special type of writ of mandate, administrative mandate, is available to review decisions resulting from administrative hearings held by either governmental or nongovernmental bodies [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a); Anton v. San Antonio Community Hospital (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 802, 815-817, 140 Cal. Rptr. 442, 567 P.2d 1162] . The scope of review under this writ goes beyond the issue of jurisdiction and includes a determination of whether the administrative body held a fair trial or committed any prejudicial abuse of discretion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)]. For a discussion, procedural guide, and forms relating to proceedings seeking a writ of administrative mandamus, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

[3] Writ of Habeas Corpus

A writ of habeas corpus generally reviews the legality of custody when a person is incarcerated [Penal Code § 1473(a)]. In contempt cases, when both a fine and prison sentence have been imposed, it is appropriate to petition a higher court for a writ of habeas corpus or, alternatively, for a writ of review [In re Buckley (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 237, 240 n.1, 110 Cal. Rptr. 121, 514 P.2d 1201] . The scope of review for both writs is the same [In re Karpf (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 355, 364, 88 Cal. Rptr. 895 ; In re Circosta (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 777, 784-785, 33 Cal. Rptr. 514] . For discussion and forms relating to proceedings seeking a writ of habeas corpus, see Ch. 292, Habeas Corpus .

Chapter 492 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.14

§ 492.14 Alternative or Mislabeled Petitions

Superior and appellate courts are authorized to grant extraordinary relief "in the nature of mandamus, certiorari, and prohibition" [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. Under modern principles of pleading, neither a mislabeled petition nor a defective prayer bars the relief justified by proper allegations and proof [Peck's Liquors, Inc. v. Superior Court (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 772, 775, 34 Cal. Rptr. 735] . A petitioner who is in doubt as to the type of writ he or she should seek can petition, in an alternative form, for a writ of review, prohibition, or mandate [Peck's Liquors, Inc. v. Superior Court (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 772, 775, 34 Cal. Rptr. 735] . Should a party petition for the wrong writ, the reviewing court will treat the petition as one for the appropriate writ [Davis v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 164, 170-171, 162 Cal. Rptr. 167 (petition for review treated as petition for mandate); Chase v. Superior Court (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 872, 878, 27 Cal. Rptr. 383 (petition for prohibition treated as petition for review); Thomasian v. Superior Court (1953) 122 Cal. App. 2d 322, 324, 265 P.2d 165 (petition for prohibition treated as petition for review or mandate)].

Chapter 492 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.15

§ 492.15 Parties to Proceeding for Writ of Review

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 1063 provides that the party bringing a writ may be known as the "plaintiff" and the adverse party as the "defendant," the party seeking the writ files a "petition" rather than a complaint and so the parties are usually referred to as the "petitioner" and the "respondent" [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1069].

A proceeding for a writ of review is normally a three-party proceeding when a court is named as the respondent. In this situation the "real party in interest," the party whose interest will be directly affected by issuance of the writ, must be named and identified as a party in the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(2); Inland Counties Regional Center, Inc. v. Office of Administrative Hearings (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 700, 704-705, 238 Cal. Rptr. 422] . When the petition seeks review of the decision of a municipal, superior, or appellate court, normally the real party in interest will be the opposing party in the action below. The respondent court is a neutral party with no interest in the controversy [Hupp v. Superior Court (1913) 22 Cal. App. 162, 133 P. 987] . Because a respondent court will not usually file any opposition to the writ proceedings, opposition to the petition and to the writ must ordinarily be made solely by the real party in interest.

When the writ seeks to review action by a court, the respondent is the court as such, not the judge as a person [Lois R. v. Superior Court (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 895, 903, 97 Cal. Rptr. 158 (prohibition); Lawson v. Superior Court (1957) 155 Cal. App. 2d 755, 761, 318 P.2d 812] .

Chapter 492 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.16

§ 492.16 Original Jurisdiction to Issue Writ

The Supreme Court, courts of appeal, superior courts, and their judges have original jurisdiction in proceedings for extraordinary relief in the nature of certiorari [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. In other words, any court may issue a writ of review to any inferior tribunal, board, or officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068(a)].

The appellate division of the superior court has original jurisdiction in proceedings for extraordinary relief in the nature of certiorari directed to the superior court in causes subject to its appellate jurisdiction [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10]. In other words, the appellate division of the superior court has original jurisdiction to issue a writ or review to the superior court in a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2 (appeal of ruling by superior court judge or other judicial officer in limited civil case is to appellate division of superior court)]. When the appellate division of the superior court issues a writ of review to the superior court, the superior court is an inferior tribunal for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1067-1077, the provisions governing review or certiorari generally [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068(b)].

Chapter 492 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.17

§ 492.17 Refusal to Exercise Original Jurisdiction

[1] When Lower Court Has Concurrent Jurisdiction

Absent exceptional circumstances, the courts of appeal and the Supreme Court normally refuse to exercise their original jurisdiction when a petition for an extraordinary writ could have been made first to a lower court [Funeral Dir. Assn. v. Bd. of Funeral Dirs. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 104, 110, 136 P.2d 785 (mandate); Cohen v. Superior Court (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 268, 270, 274, 72 Cal. Rptr. 814 (mandate)]. Therefore, a petitioner for a writ of review should usually file in the superior court to challenge the act of a municipal or justice court, or of aconstitutionally created administrative agency, in a court of appeal to challenge the act of a superior court, and in the California Supreme Court to challenge the act of a court of appeal.

If the petition could lawfully be made to a lower court in the first instance, it must set forth the circumstances that, in the opinion of the petitioner, render it proper that the writ should issue originally from the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(1)]. A court of appeal will take jurisdiction without a prior petition to a lower court to resolve issues of great public import whose prompt resolution is necessary [Aden v. Younger (1976) 57 Cal. App. 3d 662, 670, 129 Cal. Rptr. 535] . The Supreme Court will consider an original petition only when some emergency exists or the public welfare is involved, and even then usually only in a mandate case [Jolicoeur v. Mihaly (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 565, 570 n.1, 96 Cal. Rptr. 697, 488 P.2d 1 (mandate to compel registration of voters 18 and older); County of Sacramento v. Hickman (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 841, 845, 59 Cal. Rptr. 609, 428 P.2d 593 (mandate to compel proper county tax assessments); cf. Sacramento v. Superior Court (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 479, 481, 481, 105 Cal. Rptr. 374, 503 P.2d 1382 (prohibition to restrain private wrongful death action in light of sovereign immunity defense)].

Absent a showing sufficient to justify the court's exercise of its original jurisdiction, the court may deny the petition, and the petitioner's right to reapply for the writ in the proper lower tribunal will not be prejudiced [Funeral Dir. Assn. v. Bd. of Funeral Dirs. (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 104, 110, 136 P.2d 785] . Alternatively, the Supreme Court has the power to transfer the case to the appropriate court of appeal [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 12; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 10.1000(a)].

[2] For Unreasonable Delay in Bringing Petition

There is no statutory time limit in which a petition for a writ of review must be filed. When there has been an unreasonable, unexplained delay in seeking the writ, however, the courts may refuse to consider the petition [Bernstein v. Superior Court (1941) 46 Cal. App. 2d 568, 569, 116 P.2d 172] . The court's refusal to exercise jurisdiction because of excessive delay differs from the defense of laches. One appellate court has explained that the doctrine of laches, which requires a showing of prejudice to opposing parties, might bar those writs, such as administrative mandamus, for which review is essentially a matter of right. Review of an action of a court, however, is a matter of discretion, and delay in seeking a writ of review is a sufficient reason for the higher court to refuse the writ unless the delay is satisfactorily explained [Scott v. Municipal Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 995, 997, 115 Cal. Rptr. 620] .

The time allowed by law within which to appeal from a final judgment has been held, by analogy, to be a reasonable time in which to file a petition for a writ of review, and the writ may be barred by the unexcused lapse of the same length of time [Reynolds v. Superior Court (1883) 64 Cal. 372, 373, 28 P. 121 ; Bryant v. Superior Court (1936) 16 Cal. App. 2d 556, 561, 61 P.2d 483 (dictum)]. Usually an appeal must be filed on or before 60 days after the date the court serves a notice of entry of judgment or appealable order, or 60 days after service of a notice of entry of judgment or appealable order, or 180 days after the date of entry of the judgment, whichever is earliest [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a)]. Applying this guideline and examining the particular facts of a case, a court may refuse to consider a writ petition once a comparable length of time has elapsed [Donovan v. Board of Police Commrs. (1916) 32 Cal. App. 392, 399, 163 P. 69 (14-month delay); Estate of Glassgold (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 859, 863-864, 218 P.2d 1016 (nine-month delay); Scott v. Municipal Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 995, 996, 115 Cal. Rptr. 620 (six-month delay); Krueger v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 934, 938, 152 Cal. Rptr. 870 (six-month delay)]. Denial of a petition in these cases is not an abuse of the reviewing court's discretion [Scott v. Municipal Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 995, 997, 115 Cal. Rptr. 620] .

Chapter 492 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.18

§ 492.18 Grounds for Issuance of Writ of Review

[1] In General

A writ of review may be granted only when a petitioner shows all of the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068(a); People v. Cimarusti (1978) 81 Cal. App. 3d 314, 319, 146 Cal. Rptr. 421 ; Buchwald v. Superior Court (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 347, 353, 62 Cal. Rptr. 364] :

- An inferior tribunal, board, or officer exercised judicial functions.

- The petitioner has no remedy by appeal, nor, in the judgment of the court, does any plain, speedy, and adequate remedy exist.

- The challenged judicial act exceeded the jurisdiction of the tribunal, board, or officer.

In addition, the petitioner must show that he or she has a beneficial interest in the writ of review proceedings [Code Civ. Proc. § 1069; see Taylor v. Superior Court (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 244, 247, 125 P.2d 1] .

For discussion of additional facts that an appellate court requires to be shown when the petition could have been brought in a lower court, see § 492.17[1]. For discussion of the time requirement for filing a petition, see § 492.17[2].

[2] Judicial Function

[a] Act Must Be Completed

Courts employ writ of review proceedings to scrutinize the acts of an inferior tribunal, board, or officer "exercising judicial functions" [Code Civ. Proc.§ 1068(a)]. A judicial act cannot be challenged by a writ of reviewunless that act has been completed [Holabird v. Railroad Commission (1916) 171 Cal. 691, 694, 154 P. 831] . If a court has only threatened to act in excess of its jurisdiction, a writ of prohibition may lie [see § 492.13]. Conversely, if a party petitions for a writ of prohibition, and before the petition can be heard, the lower court completes its decision, the reviewing court will deem the petition as one for a writ of review [Chase v. Superior Court (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 872, 878, 27

Cal. Rptr. 383] .

[b] Act Must Be in Exercise of Constitutionally Conferred Judicial Power

Only a constitutional grant of judicial power, like that resting in the state's courts, authorizes an inferior tribunal, board, or officer to exercise judicial functions [Standard Oil Co. v. State Board of Equal. (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 557, 562-563, 59 P.2d 119 ; see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 1]. For example, a writ of review will not lie to review an adjudication by a nongovernmental body [Hill-Tellman v. Musicians' Union (1924) 67 Cal. App. 279, 280-281, 227 P. 646 (writ of review held to be improper to review action of voluntary unincorporated association)]. On the other hand, the writ may issue to review a quasi-judicial action by the state governor in the exercise of a constitutionally conferred power to hold a hearing and remove prison directors from office [O'Brien v. Olson (1941) 42 Cal. App. 2d 449, 453, 109 P.2d 8] .

A ministerial act of a court, such as the issuance of a writ of execution, does not constitute a judicial action subject to writ of review [Duke v. Justice's Court of Berkeley (1940) 42 Cal. App. 2d 178-179, 180, 108 P.2d 707 ; Community Nat. Bank v. Superior Court (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 770, 771, 773, 51 Cal. Rptr. 782] .

[c] Acts of Most Administrative Agencies Excluded

The decisions of statewide administrative agencies, entities that the state constitution prohibits from exercising judicial functions, are not subject to a writ of review [Standard Oil Co. v. State Board of Equal. (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 557, 559-564, 59 P.2d 119] . More recently the courts have recognized that local agencies, too, are without constitutional authority to exercise judicial functions [Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Ass'n (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 28, 42-44, 112 Cal. Rptr. 805, 520 P.2d 29] . Examples of such local agencies no longer subject to a writ of review are city councils, school boards, planning commissions, and civil service and merit systems boards and commissions [see Strumsky v. San Diego County Employees Retirement Ass'n (1974) 11 Cal. 3d 28, 46 n.1, 112 Cal. Rptr. 805, 520 P.2d 29 (Burke, J., dissenting)]. The sole type of administrative agency whose acts are judicial for purposes of a writ of review is one that derives its adjudicating powers from the constitution itself [Boren v. State Personnel Board (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 634, 637-638, 234 P.2d 981 (StatePersonnel Board)]. For a discussion of those agencies authorized to perform judicial functions, see Ch. 470, Overview of Public Administrative Law, § 470.12.

Adjudicatory decisions of state constitutional agencies can also be challenged by writs of administrative mandate [Boren v. State Personnel Board (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 634, 637-638, 234 P.2d 981 ; People v. County of Tulare (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 317, 319, 289 P.2d 11] . Because the scope of review allowed in a writ of mandate proceeding extends beyond the question of jurisdiction, and reaches to whether or not there is evidentiary support for the decision, the writ of review is, for all practical purposes, a seldom-used tool for review of administrative adjudications [see § 492.13[2]].

[3] No Appeal

[a] In General

A writ of review will not lie when the aggrieved party has a remedy by appeal from the order or judgment [Stoddard v. Superior Court of Stanislaus County (1895) 108 Cal. 303, 305 ; Stoner v. Superior Court (1945) 67 Cal. App. 2d 760, 761, 155 P.2d 697 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1068(a)]. This distinguishes a writ of review from a writ of mandate or prohibition; the latter writs will issue even when there is a remedy of appeal, so long as that remedy is inadequate [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1086, 1103]. The writ of review is not available to a petitioner who has a right of appeal, whether or not such appeal affords a plain, speedy, and adequate remedy [Monterey Club v. Superior Court (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 351, 355, 112 P.2d 321] .

For further discussion of appealable judgments and orders under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1 (unlimited civil cases in superior court) and 904.2 (ruling by superior court judge or other judicial officer in limited civil cases in superior or municipal court), see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal, § 42.12, and see Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases, § 345A.34.

[b] Lack of Appeal Not Shown

[i] Interlocutory Orders

In general, there is no appeal from orders that are interlocutory, with the exception of certain orders in probate or real property actions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a), 904.2(a)].

Nevertheless, a writ of review normally is not available so long as the petitioner has an adequate remedy by appeal from an eventual final judgment, even though the challenged order itself is interlocutory and not appealable [Bank of America v. Superior Court (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 697, 703, 128 P.2d 357] . The analysis used by some courts is that the opportunity for review of an interlocutory ruling by an eventual appeal affords a "plain, speedy, and adequate remedy" for the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1068 [see De Lao v. Superior Court (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 711, 712-713, 234 P.2d 961 ; see also § 492.18[4]].

If an appeal from a final judgment is arguably not an adequate remedy a writ of review may lie, for example, to annul an interlocutory order that is void for lack of jurisdiction [see Howard v. Superior Court (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 784, 787, 154 P.2d 849 (dictum)]. In Estate of Bodger (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 710, 715, 276 P.2d 83 , for example, a probate court made an ex parte appointment of an attorney to represent trust beneficiaries, over the objection of one of the beneficiaries who then petitioned for a writ of review to annul the probate order. The court of appeal, holding the order void and violative of due process, stated that the petitioner should not have to wait and appeal from the order for the appointed attorney's fees to challenge the appointment and, therefore, the order was annulled on a writ of review.

[ii] Lapse of Time for Appeal

Generally, if a petitioner loses an existing right of appeal for failure to file a timely notice of appeal, this fact will not support issuance of a writ of review on the ground that there is no remedy of appeal [Simmons v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 373, 375, 341 P.2d 13 ; see also O'Kuna v. Small Claims Court, etc. (1927) 81 Cal. App. 588, 589-590, 254 P. 291] . This is particularly true when the petitioner's loss of the right of appeal is attributable to neglect or laches [see Hochheimer & Co. v. Superior Court (1924) 65 Cal. App. 206, 211, 223 P. 564] .

A petitioner's loss of the right of appeal will, however, support the issuance of a writ of review if the loss is not the petitioner's fault, but is due to the fact that he or she received no notice and had no knowledge of the entry of the judgment or order until after the time for appeal had expired [Lee v. Small Claims Court (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 1, 4, 92 P.2d 937 ; O'Kuna v. Small Claims Court, etc. (1927) 81 Cal. App. 588, 590, 254 P. 291 ; see also Grinbaum v. Superior Court (1923) 192 Cal. 528, 556, 221 P. 635] . This exception does not apply if notice was not required to be given to the petitioner [Simmons v. Superior Court (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 373, 376, 341 P.2d 13 ; Arens v. Superior Court (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 623, 625, 290 P.2d 257] .

The writ may also be available if there is uncertainty in the law concerning whether the challenged order or judgment is appealable. If the court considering the writ petition determines that the remedy of appeal was available, the court may nevertheless go on to decide the merits of the petition even though the time to appeal has lapsed [see Phelan v. Superior Court (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 363, 371-372, 217 P.2d 951 (overruling prior decisions holding there was no right to appeal)].

[c] Lack of Appeal Shown

[i] Decision of Superior Court Appellate Department

Generally, a ruling by a superior court judge or other judicial officer in a limited civil case may be appealed to the appellate division of the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 77(e), 904.2(a); see Whittaker v. Superior Court (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 357, 363-364, 66 Cal. Rptr. 710, 438 P.2d 358] . Once the superior court has decided the appeal, there is no further right of appeal from the judgment of the appellate division, although the aggrieved party may move the superior court to transfer on certification to the court of appeal, or alternatively, may request the court of appeal to exercise its discretion to take certification [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a), 911; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.1002-8.1008]. Even when certified by the superior court, the court of appeal has discretion to refuse to transfer the case, and this refusal ordinarily terminates appellate review [see Dvorin v. Appellate Dep't of Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 648, 650-651, 125 Cal. Rptr. 771, 542 P.2d 1363] .

A writ of review will issue from a court of appeal when the appellate division of the superior court exceeded its jurisdiction in a judgment on appeal from the municipal court, and when the superior court refused certification [see, e.g., East Bay Municipal Utility Dist. v. Appellate Department (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 839, 842, 153 Cal. Rptr. 597, 591 P.2d 1249 ; Dvorin v. Appellate Dep't of Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 648, 650-651, 125 Cal. Rptr. 771, 542 P.2d 1363 ; Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 456, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937] .

[ii] Nonappealable Arbitration Orders

Although an order denying a petition to compel arbitration is appealable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(a)], an order compelling arbitration is nonappealable [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1294]. If the arbitration order has exceeded the court's jurisdiction and the party compelled to arbitrate has no other plain, speedy, or adequate remedy, a writ of review is an appropriate method of challenging the order [Buchwald v. Superior Court (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 347, 353, 62 Cal. Rptr. 364] . An order compelling arbitration has been held to exceed a court's jurisdiction when provisions of the Labor Code conferred exclusive jurisdiction of the dispute on the state Labor Commissioner [Buchwald v. Superior Court (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 347, 358, 62 Cal. Rptr. 364] . Another court reviewing an arbitration order on appeal from a subsequent judgment has suggested that a jurisdictional fact is missing when the parties did not voluntarily and fairly enter into the arbitration agreement [Ramirez v. Superior Court (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 746, 752, 163 Cal. Rptr. 223 (dictum)].

A party compelled to arbitrate may have the validity of the order reviewed on an appeal from a judgment confirming an arbitration award [Wheeler v. St. Joseph Hospital (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 345, 353, 133 Cal. Rptr. 775 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1294(d) (arbitration judgment appealable)]. Some cases have described orders to compel arbitration as interlocutory in nature, noting that the rationale behind the rule making such orders nonappealable is that the party who objects to arbitration may win at the arbitration hearing and, if not, the issue is still reviewable on appeal from the order of confirmation [see Wheeler v. St. Joseph Hospital (1976) 63 Cal. App. 3d 345, 353, 133 Cal. Rptr. 775 ; Maddy v. Castle (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 716, 719-720, 130 Cal. Rptr. 160] . Courts recognize, however, that the extraordinary writs of mandate or prohibition are available to review orders to arbitrate if the matters ordered arbitrated fall clearly outside the scope of the arbitration agreement, or if the arbitration would appear to be unduly time consuming or expensive [Atlas Plastering, Inc. v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 63, 68, 140 Cal. Rptr. 59 (writ of mandate or prohibition); see Unimart v. Superior Court (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 1039, 1041, 82 Cal. Rptr. 249 (writ of mandate)]. A petitioner for a writ of review may argue, by analogy, that the court's order was in excess of its jurisdiction and, due to the expense to the parties of participating in and seeking review of the arbitration award, appeal from a subsequent judgment confirming the award does not constitute a plain, speedy, or adequate remedy [see Atlas Plastering, Inc. v. Superior Court (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 63, 68, 140 Cal. Rptr. 59 ; Code Civ. Proc. § 1068(a); see also § 492.56[2][d][ii]]. For discussion of appeal and review of orders to arbitrate, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration .

[iii] Contempt Orders

All judgments and orders relating to contempt proceedings are final and conclusive, and no appeal may be taken [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a)(1)(B), 904.2(a), 1222; Moffat v. Moffat (1980) 27 Cal. 3d 645, 656, 165 Cal. Rptr. 877, 612 P.2d 967] . Thus, when a sentence of contempt has been imposed, the appropriate petition is for a writ of habeas corpus or for a writ of review [In re Buckley (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 237, 240 n.1, 110 Cal. Rptr. 121, 514 P.2d 1201 (habeas petition denied)]. In current practice, in fact, writs of review are used predominantly in the area of contempt adjudications.

Although a judgment of contempt is not appealable under Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1(a)(1)(B), the denial by a superior court of a writ of review from a judgment of contempt in a municipal court is appealable to the court of appeal [Bermudez v. Municipal Court (1992) 1 Cal. 4th 855, 861-864, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 609, 823 P. 2d 1210] .

For further discussion of the scope of review applicable to contempt orders, see § 492.59[2]. For forms and discussion relating to review of contempt proceedings, see Ch. 135, Contempt .

[iv] Small Claims Judgments

Generally, a small claims judgment is conclusive on the plaintiff, who chose the special forum, but the defendant may appeal to the superior court, which then tries the cause de novo [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.710]. The superior court's judgment on that trial is not appealable [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.780(a)], so a writ of review will lie to attack it for lack of jurisdiction [see Davis v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 164, 170, 162 Cal. Rptr. 167 (jurisdiction exceeded); Yoakum v. Small Claims Court (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 398, 403, 404, 125 Cal. Rptr. 882 (jurisdiction not exceeded); Cook v. Superior Court (1969) 274 Cal. App. 2d 675, 676, 679, 79 Cal. Rptr. 282 (jurisdiction exceeded)]. For discussion and forms relating to proceedings in small claims courts, see Ch. 526, Small Claims .

[v] Particular Probate Orders

A writ of review lies to examine and annul certain unappealable probate orders [see Lilienkamp v. Superior Court (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 293, 295, 297, 93 P.2d 1008 (order vacating order for partial distribution); Fredrickson v. Superior Court (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 593, 597, 241 P.2d 541 (order vacating decree settling final account, ordering distribution, and discharging administratrix)]. For a discussion of nonappealable probate orders, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal .

[4] No Other Plain, Speedy, and Adequate Remedy

A petitioner for a writ of review must show that there is not only no appeal from the lower court's order or judgment but also that there is no other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068(a)]. The language of this requirement parallels the language in the statutes governing issuance of writs of mandate and prohibition, where it refers to a discretionary determination, made by the reviewing court, that the delay involved in an appeal might result in injury to the petitioner [W.A. Rose Co. v. Municipal Court (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 67, 74-75, 1 Cal. Rptr. 49 ; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1086, 1103]. With respect to writs of review, one court has stated that for a legal remedy to be adequate, it must afford relief on the very matter that is the subject of the petition and must be as convenient and efficacious as the extraordinary remedy demanded [Estate of Bodger (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 710, 715, 276 P.2d 83 (appeal from eventual attorney's fees award inadequate remedy when probate court made unauthorized appointment of attorney for petitioner), citing Dufton v. Daniels (1923) 190 Cal. 577, 582, 213 P. 949 (mandate proceeding); but see Monterey Club v. Superior Court (1941) 44 Cal. App. 2d 351, 354-355, 112 P.2d 321 (writ of review not available to petitioner who has a right of appeal, whether or not such appeal affords a plain, speedy and adequate remedy)].

[5] Lack or Excess of Jurisdiction

[a] Jurisdiction Defined

The meaning of "jurisdiction" for purposes of the writ of review is different and broader than the fundamental meaning of a court's jurisdiction over the parties and over the subject matter of the cause of action [Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 454-455, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937 ; Mitchell v. Superior Court (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 759, 762, 104 Cal. Rptr. 921] . Any acts that exceed the power of a court, whether that power is defined by constitutional provision, express statutory declaration, or rules developed by the courts and followed under the doctrine of stare decisis, are in excess of the court's jurisdiction [Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 291, 109 P.2d 942] .

[b] Errors in Exercise of Jurisdiction Distinguished

In contrast to the remedy of appeal, a writ of review cannot reach errors of law or fact [Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 C2d 280, 287, 109 P.2d 942 ; Brown Co. v. Appellate Department (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 891, 904, 196 Cal. Rptr. 258] . Once the reviewing court finds that the lower court had jurisdiction to make the challenged order, the reviewing court must deny the writ notwithstanding its view that the ruling was erroneous [Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1105, 231 Cal. Rptr. 189 (writ of review granted in original appellate proceeding and then discharged on rehearing)].

For example, when the appellate department of a superior court overturned a judgment on a mechanic's lien, finding as a matter of fact and law that the materialman's preliminary notice was defective, there was no basis for a court of appeal to annul the reversal on a writ of review [Brown Co. v. Appellate Department (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 891, 896, 904, 196 Cal. Rptr. 258] . A superior court's refusal to disclose the amount of appointed criminal counsel's earned fees to the press under the California Public Records Act also was affirmed on a writ of review, even though the majority of the appellate panel disagreed with the superior court's factual conclusion that disclosure would prejudice the indigent defendant's right to a fair trial [Freedom Newspapers, Inc. v. Superior Court (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1106-1107, 231 Cal. Rptr. 189 , on petition for rehearing].

[c] Failure to Follow Statutory Procedure

When a statute authorizes a prescribed procedure and a court acts contrary to this authority, it has exceeded its jurisdiction and a writ of review will lie to correct such excess [Mitchell v. Superior Court (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 759, 762, 104 Cal. Rptr. 921 (trial court exceeded its jurisdiction in appointing receiver and instructing him)]. For example, an appellate court acts in excess of its jurisdiction when, in reversing a summary judgment, it orders that judgment be entered for the opposing party even though that party never made a motion for summary judgment [Dvorin v. Appellate Dep't of Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 648, 650, 125 Cal. Rptr. 771, 542 P.2d 1363] . It is beyond the jurisdiction of a court to make an order extending time to plead beyond limits that have been set by statute [Thelander v. Superior Court of Placer County (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 811, 813 n.3, 26 Cal. Rptr. 643 (interpreting Code Civ. Proc. § 1054)]. A court has no power to allow a district attorney, absent any statutory authority, to bring civil proceedings for contempt on behalf of one party to a private lawsuit [Safer v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 230, 233, 124 Cal. Rptr. 174, 540 P.2d 14] .

[d] Refusal to Follow Stare Decisis

The scope of review for lack or excess of jurisdiction was greatly expanded in the leading case of Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 454, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937 , in which the court, issuing a writ of review, held that the appellate department of a superior court exceeded its jurisdiction by failing to follow a clear, binding precedent laid down by a higher court. The court stated that the rule of stare decisis is a rule of jurisdiction for the purposes of a writ of review [Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 456, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937] . In Auto Equity, the appellate department of the superior court had explicitly refused to follow a case that it admitted was directly on point, holding that the case had been wrongly decided [Auto Equity Sales, Inc. v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 450, 454, 20 Cal. Rptr. 321, 369 P.2d 937] . In a subsequent case, the Supreme Court found that a lower court exceeded its jurisdiction by failing to follow the rule of stare decisis even when the applicable law, according to the lower court, was unclear [see East Bay Municipal Utility Dist. v. Appellate Department (1979) 23 Cal. 3d 839, 842-843, 153 Cal. Rptr. 597, 591 P.2d 1249 (holding that language in single case interpreting applicable statute as on point and not dicta)]. If, on the other hand, there is statutory authority for the outcome and the lower court attempted conscientiously to follow the law, the decision below will not be be overturned on a writ of review [Brown Co. v. Appellate Department (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 891, 896, 904, 196 Cal. Rptr. 258] .

[e] Nonexistence of Jurisdictional Facts

When an inferior board or tribunal has power to act only on certain facts, and there is no evidence whatever to show the existence of those jurisdictional facts, the court will annul the decision or judgment below [Great Western Power Co. v. Pillsbury (1915) 170 Cal. 180, 185-186, 191, 149 P. 35 ; see also discussion § 492.28[2]].

In the case of contempt orders, the factual question of whether petitioner's acts constituted contempt is jurisdictional [In re Ciraolo (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 389, 394, 74 Cal. Rptr. 865, 450 P.2d 241] . The order of contempt must recite on its face particular facts showing that petitioner's conduct constituted contempt; if not, the order is void and should be annulled for lack of jurisdiction [Arthur v. Superior Court (1965) 62 Cal. 2d 404, 409, 42 Cal. Rptr. 441, 398 P.2d 777 ; see Chula v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 199, 203, 18 Cal. Rptr. 507, 368 P.2d 107] . Although the power to weigh evidence and to determine the credibility of witnesses rests with the trial court, the role of the reviewing court is to ascertain whether any substantial evidence exists in support of the trial court's finding that a contempt was committed and, in the absence of sufficient evidence, the contempt order will be annulled [In re Buckley (1973) 10 Cal. 3d 237, 247, 110 Cal. Rptr. 121, 514 P.2d 1201 ; Coursey v. Superior Court (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 147, 154, 239 Cal. Rptr. 365] . For discussion of the elements constituting contempt, see Ch. 135, Contempt .

[6] Beneficial Interest of Petitioner

A writ of review can only issue on the verified petition of "the party beneficially interested" [Code Civ. Proc. § 1061]. This standing requirement is generally common to petitions for all the extraordinary writs [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1086 (mandate), 1103 (prohibition)].

To be a beneficially interested party for purposes of a writ of review, the petitioner need not be a party in the action below but need only demonstrate that he or she was directly and prejudicially affected by the challenged order [Burlingame v. Justice's Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 71, 75, 33 P.2d 669] . Early cases emphasized that the writ was available to a stranger to the record only when the matter sought to be reviewed grew out of a collateral proceeding and was not an order or judgment made between the parties [Burlingame v. Justice's Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 71, 75, 33 P.2d 669 (dictum); Elliott v. Superior Court (1904) 144 Cal. 501, 508, 77 P. 1109] . Since then courts have recognized various situations in which a nonparty petitioner for a writ of review has the requisite beneficial interest. For instance, buyers who acquire title to property that is the subject of pending litigation may be sufficiently interested in a motion to expunge a lis pendens that they can challenge the court's ruling by writ of review even though they were not parties to the motion [Peery v. Superior Court (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 837, 841, 176 Cal. Rptr. 533, 633 P.2d 198 , superseded by statute (dictum)]. When a court refuses to hold a party in contempt for disobeying an injunction, the person for whose benefit the injunction was issued can successfully challenge the dismissal of contempt proceedings by writ of review [Goodall v. Superior Court (1918) 37 Cal. App. 723, 726-727, 174 P. 924] . While the person who presents a charging declaration is not, strictly speaking, a party to the contempt proceeding, he or she is beneficially interested in the discharge ruling for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 1069 [Taylor v. Superior Court (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 244, 247, 125 P.2d 1] . On the other hand, a default in an heirship proceeding will not be annulled on a writ of review when the petitioners are too far removed in relationship from the decedent to be beneficially interested in the estate [Marlow v. Superior Court (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 393, 395, 110 P.2d 11 (petitioner's grandfather was uncle of the decedent)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 492.19 Stay of Proceedings Pending Disposition of Writ

A writ of review may provide for a temporary stay ordering the respondent court to desist from further proceedings in the matter to be reviewed, pending entry of judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1071]. The decision to stay proceedings rests with the sound discretion of the reviewing court. To be effective, the words of the stay must be inserted explicitly into the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 1072].

There is no statutory requirement that the petitioner put up a bond as a condition for the stay. Nor is any express procedure prescribed for requesting that a stay order be included in the writ. The usual practice, however, is to ask for the stay in the verified petition, setting out the reasons for urgency as well as the relevant time constraints [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(7) (appellate courts)].

There appear to be no decisions that are specifically concerned with the propriety of a stay pending determination of a writ of review. By analogy, however, denial of a motion to stay execution of a judgment pending appeal has been held to be an abuse of discretion when the appellant has demonstrated that he or she is raising a substantial question on the appeal, that he or she will suffer irreparable injury if the stay is not granted, and that the respondent would not be sorely prejudiced by the stay [Mehr v. Superior Court (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 1044, 1050, 189 Cal. Rptr. 138 (motion to stay execution pending appeal of unlawful detainer judgment)]. It is arguable that similar allegations in a petition for a writ of review are sufficient to support the inclusion of a stay order in the writ.

For a form of petition including allegations supporting a request for a stay order, see § 492.101. For a form of writ including a stay order, see § 492.104. For discussion relating to a request for an immediate stay of the proceedings below, as distinguished from a request for a stay in a petition filed after prior service, see § 492.21.

Chapter 492 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.20

§ 492.20 Petition for Writ of Review

[1] General Rules of Pleading Apply

Writ of review proceedings are subject to the general rules of procedure (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 307-1062.10) to the extent that these provisions are consistent with directly applicable provisions of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1063-1110b [Code Civ. Proc. § 1109]. Accordingly, a petition for a writ of review is subject to the general rules of pleading (Code Civ. Proc. §§ 420-475) governing complaints [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10]. For discussion of these general rules of pleading, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints .

[2] Contents

A petition for a writ of review must be verified and must set forth all the allegations required by law to support its issuance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a), (b); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1069; for discussion of the showing necessary for issuance of the writ, see § 492.18]. The petition must not only name the respondent court or other tribunal, but must also name the real party in interest [see § 492.15].

If the petition might lawfully have been made to a lower court in the first instance, it must also set forth the circumstances which, in the petitioner's opinion, justify issuance of the writ originally from the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(1)]. For discussion of these circumstances, see § 492.17[1].

If the petitioner seeks a stay of the proceedings below until such time as the judgment or order below is affirmed or an nulled, the petition should include factual allegations showing the need for the stay [see § 492.19]. If the petitioner seeks an immediate stay, but the reviewing court, as a matter of local practice, does not normally grant a petition without prior service, the petition should allege reasons for the urgency of the stay and request that the court exercise its discretion to grant the petition ex parte [see §§ 492.21, 492.22].

For forms of petition for writ of review, see §§ 492.100 -492.102.

[3] Verification

A petition for a writ of review must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1069; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(4)]. The allegations in the petition must not be verified on information and belief because such hearsay cannot support issuance of an extraordinary writ [see Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721 (petition for writ of mandate verified wholly on information and belief by petitioner's attorney)]. If, however, a petition made on information and belief otherwise supplies a sufficient record of the underlying facts and trial court proceedings, enabling the appellate court to review the judgment or order below, the petition is not fatally defective [Pacific Gas & Electric Co. v. Superior Court (1983) 145 Cal. App. 3d 253, 255 n.1, 193 Cal. Rptr. 336 ; Ansley v. Superior Court (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 477, 489, 229 Cal. Rptr. 771 (writ of mandate)].

Failure to verify the original petition is a procedural defect readily cured by amendment of the petition [Franchise Tax Bd. v. Municipal Court (1975) 45 Cal. App. 3d 377, 383-384, 119 Cal. Rptr. 552 (mandate)]. One court, reviewing the issuance of a writ of prohibition on appeal, has held that a petitioner should have the opportunity to amend an improperly verified petition even though the real party in interest raised an objection by demurrer in response to the alternative writ [see Perlman v. Municipal Court (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 568, 574-575, 160 Cal. Rptr. 567 (suggesting that the proper objection is a motion to strike)].

[4] Accompanying Papers

[a] Points and Authorities

A petition for a writ of review filed in an appellate court must be accompanied by a supporting memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)]. Although there is no correspondingly explicit requirement applicable to petitions for writ of review filed in superior courts, Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a) provides that a party filing a notice of motion must serve and file with it a supporting memorandum [see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1003 (any written direction of a court not included in a judgment is denominated an order, and any application for an order is a motion)]. Writ of review proceedings are subject to this rule as well as to all other general law and motion rules applicable in superior courts (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1110 et seq. [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1103(a)(2); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1100].

For forms of memoranda of points and authorities for use in support of petitions for writs of review, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 205, Review (Matthew Bender).

[b] Record of Proceedings Below

In the Supreme Court or a court of appeal, the verified petition must be accompanied by a transcript of the proceedings leading to the order or judgment below [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(1)]. If a transcript is unavailable, counsel must make and file a declaration that either (1) explains why a transcript is unavailable and fairly summarizes the proceedings, including arguments by counsel and the basis of the trial court's decision, if stated; or (2) states that the transcript has been ordered, the date it was ordered, and the date it is expected to be filed, which must be a date prior to any action requested of the reviewing court other than issuance of a stay supported by other parts of the record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(2)]. The writ petition must also be accompanied by (1) a copy of the order or judgment from which relief is sought, (2) copies of all documents and exhibits submitted to the trial court supporting and opposing petitioner's position, and (3) copies of all other documents submitted to the trial court that are necessary for a complete understanding of the case and the ruling. In exigent circumstances, a petition may be filed without these documents if a declaration by counsel explains the urgency and the circumstances making the documents unavailable and fairly summarizes their substance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(4)]. If a petitioner does not submit the required record and explanations or does not present facts sufficient to excuse the failure to submit them, the court may summarily deny the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(5)].

If a party seeks to seal or unseal all or a portion of the record supporting the petition, that party must follow the procedures of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(d); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e), (f)

(motions to seal, unseal records in reviewing court)]. Rule 8.46 also sets out other requirements relating to sealed records in appeals or writ proceedings in reviewing courts, including the manner of filing a sealed record in a reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.46(e)], and the requirement that publically filed documents, including writ petitions and supporting and opposing papers, not disclose material contained in a sealed record or a record proposed to be sealed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.155(g)]. For detailed discussion and forms relating to sealed records and proceedings in the reviewing court to seal or unseal records under Rule 8.46, see Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record, § 44.100 et seq. and § 44.300 et seq.

In a superior court, there is no rule requiring that such a full record be filed, and a petition that simply incorporated the order or judgment to be reviewed will probably be sufficient to withstand a demurrer, as long as all required allegations are otherwise adequately pleaded [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e); see also § 492.27]. The better practice, however, is to provide the court with a transcript of the relevant proceedings, as well as copies of all relevant documents that were submitted to the trial court. As a matter of decisional law, the burden is on the petitioner to allege a prima facie case of entitlement to an extraordinary writ, and courts require that the petition not only plead facts supporting the writ sought but also incorporate enough documentation filed in the trial court so that the reviewing court can intelligently consider the the petition [see Krueger v. Superior Court (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 934, 936-938, 152 Cal. Rptr. 870] .

[c] Proof of Service of Petition

The petition normally must be accompanied by proof of service of a copy on the respondent and the real party or parties in interest at the time it is submitted for filing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(c)]. The usual sequence of service and filing for a writ of review is, therefore, the reverse of the order of filing and service of a complaint in an ordinary civil action. For a discussion of ex parte petitions, which may be filed and granted without prior service, see § 492.21. For further discussion of service requirements, see § 492.22.

[d] Proposed Order and Writ

Appellate courts draft their own orders and writs. When the petition is filed in a superior court, in which counsel is expected to draft orders for the court's signature, a proposed order and writ may accompany the petition at the time of filing. For forms of order directing issuance of the writ and writ of review, see §§ 492.103 and 492.104.

[e] Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons

Each party to an appeal must serve and file a Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons at the time it files its first document in the Court of Appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.280(c)] and must include a copy of the certificate in its principal brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)]. The petitioner's certificate must be included in the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(1)]. The certificates of the respondent and real party in interest must be included in their preliminary opposition or, if no such opposition is filed, in their return, if any. The certificate must appear after the cover and before the tables [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(3)].

Chapter 492 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.21

§ 492.21 Ex Parte Petition for Writ of Review

A court may grant a petition for a writ of review ex parte, without prior notice or service of the petition, on a showing of good cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1069 (writ may be granted without notice); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e)(6) (court in its discretion may allow filing of petition without prior service)]. This constitutes an exception to the general rule that the petition must be accompanied by proof of prior service on the respondent and each real party in interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e)(1); see §§ 492.20[4][c], § 492.22]. The construction given to this exception varies among local courts, and counsel should therefore consult local practice to determine the circumstances under which a particular court will grant a petition ex parte.

A superior court may, in general, grant an application for an order ex parte only if it is supported by an affidavit or declaration showing that (1) within a reasonable time before the application the party informed the opposing party or the opposing party's attorney when and where the application would be made; (2) the party in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party and the opposing party's attorney but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to inform them; or (3) for reasons specified the party should not be required to inform the opposing party or the opposing party's attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(a)(2) (law and motion rules made applicable to writs of review)]. For further discussion and a general form of declaration supporting an ex parte application, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

Circumstances may arise in which a petitioner may desire an immediate stay of the proceedings below, such as one involving direct contempt [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1211; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1209 (attorney under sentence of contempt entitled to three-day stay of execution during which to file petition)]. Although Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1071 and 1072 provide for inclusion of a stay order in the writ of review, there is no express provision for obtaining an immediate stay pending issuance of the writ [cf. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.112 (ex parte stay pending disposition of petition for writ of supersedeas)]. Because courts do, however, have express authority to grant a petition for a writ of review without notice to the adverse party, a petitioner seeking an immediate stay of proceedings may simply combine a request for a stay with a request that the petition be granted immediately, without notice or opposition. For further discussion of a temporary stay, see § 492.19.

For a form of petition for writ of review that may be used in an ex parte application, including a request for stay and a proposed order directing the clerk to permit filing without proof of prior service, see § 492.101.

§ 492.23 Initial Opposition to Petition

If the court has required the petitioner to give notice of the petition by serving copies on the respondent and the real party in interest [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e); see §§ 492.21, 492.22], within 10 days after the petition is filed, the respondent or any real party in interest, separately or jointly, may serve and file a preliminary opposition [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)]. The opposition must contain points and authorities and a statement of any material fact not included in the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)(2)]. This initial opposition is not an opposing pleading or return but rather is a legal argument for the benefit of the court, designed to prevent issuance of the writ where the real party in interest or the respondent can show the petition has no merit [see Patterson v. Board of Supervisors (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 670, 671-672, 180 P.2d 945 ; Peter v. Board of Supervisors (1947) 78 Cal. App. 2d 515, 521, 178 P.2d 73] .

For discussion of subsequent opposition by return, see § 492.27.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.24

§ 492.24 Summary Denial of Petition

An appellate court is entitled to deny summarily an application for a writ of review, either before or after entertaining preliminary opposition, without a hearing on the merits [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)(4); see Tex-Cal Land Management, Inc. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 335, 350, 156 Cal. Rptr. 1, 595 P.2d 579 ; Wine v. Council of City of Los Angeles (1960) 177 Cal. App. 2d 157, 164, 2 Cal. Rptr. 94] . Appellate courts also have the authority to deny a petition summarily if the petitioner fails to submit the transcript and other documents that are required to support the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)(4); see discussion under § 492.20[4][b]].

An order summarily denying a petition for an extraordinary writ does not have res judicata effect in subsequent proceedings [see People v. Medina (1972) 6 Cal. 3d 484, 490-492, 99 Cal. Rptr. 630, 492 P.2d 686 (prohibition proceeding); Hagan v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 767, 770, 22 Cal. Rptr. 206, 371 P.2d 982 (mandate proceeding); De Bottari v. Melendez (1975) 44 Cal. App. 3d 910, 914 n.3, 119 Cal. Rptr. 256 (mandate proceeding)], regardless of whether the denial is intended to be on the merits or is based on some other reason [Kowis v. Howard (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 888, 899, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728, 838 P.2d 250 (discrediting and rejecting long-standing "sole possible ground" exception, and disapproving the one case that applied the rule and the many cases that contain dicta implying the existence of the exception, including Hagan v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 767, 770, 22 Cal. Rptr. 206, 371 P.2d 982)].

Summary denial of a petition for a writ of review by a superior court may be reviewed on appeal to a court of appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 904.1]. When a court of appeal denies a petition without issuance of the writ, the order is final immediately on filing and petitioner may therefore petition the Supreme Court for a hearing without waiting the normal 30-day period prescribed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.264(b) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.264(b)(2)]. For forms and discussion of appeal and petition for review, see Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review .

Chapter 492 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.25

§ 492.25 Grant of Petition

[1] Issuance of Writ

The reviewing court grants a petition by signing an order that directs the clerk to issue a writ of review. The court may grant the petition and issue the writ, or may grant an order to show cause why it should not be issued, with or without notice to the respondent and real party in interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 1069; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)(4); see also discussion § 492.21]. For a form of order directing that the writ issue for use in a superior court, see § 492.103.

[2] Form and Contents of Writ

The writ is directed to the respondent or to any other person having the custody of the record or proceedings to be certified, and commands the respondent or custodian to certify to the reviewing court a transcript of the proceedings below [Code Civ. Proc. § 1070]. It may also require the respondent to desist in the meantime from further proceedings in the matter to be reviewed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1071; see also § 492.19]. For a form of a writ of review, including an optional stay order, see § 492.104.

[3] Service of Writ

The writ must be served in the same manner as a summons in a civil action unless otherwise expressly directed by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1073; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-417.40 (governing service of summons generally); see also § 492.104]. For discussion and forms relating to methods of service of summons generally, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

If the writ is issued by an appellate court, the clerk of that court is required to promptly transmit a certified copy of the writ to the respondent to whom it is directed. If, in addition, this writ includes an order that stays proceedings that are scheduled to occur within seven days of its issuance, the clerk of that court is required to make a reasonable effort to give telephone notice to the respondent to whom it is directed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.489].

Chapter 492 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.26

§ 492.26 Return of Writ With Required Transcript

[1] By Respondent

When the writ of review is directed to a court, the clerk of court must return the writ with the required transcript [Code Civ. Proc. § 1070]. The return must be made on the date for the return of the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 1071].

[2] Burden on Petitioner to Insure Timely Return

The burden is on the petitioner, not the real party in interest, to see that the return is filed and, in the absence of a return, the writ will be discharged and the proceeding will be dismissed [Middlebrook v. Superior Court (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 579, 580, 134 P.2d 241] . The petitioner must pay the fees charged by the clerk to make a return of the record [see Gov. Code §§ 26831-26837, 72054 (clerks' transcript fees); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.130(b), 8.753(c) (reporter's transcript fees)]. Even though a writ of review has issued, the respondent court's compliance with the writ cannot be compelled unless the petitioner has paid for preparation of the clerk's transcript [I.X.L. Lime Co. v. Superior Court (1904) 143 Cal. 170, 175, 76 P. 973] .

[3] Proceedings for Further Return of Transcript

If the return of the writ is defective or incomplete, the reviewing court may order that a further return be made [Code Civ. Proc. § 1075]. For a form for notice of motion and order for further return, see §§ 492.105 and 492.106.

Chapter 492 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.27

§ 492.27 Return by Demurrer or Answer to Writ

[1] By Respondent or Real Party in Interest

In addition to the return by the respondent with the certified transcript of the proceedings to be reviewed [discussed under § 492.26], either the respondent or the real party in interest may make a return by demurrer, verified answer, or both [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(1)]. For a form of return by demurrer, see § 492.107. For a form of return by answer, see § 492.108.

[2] Time for Return

If the petition is before a superior court, the return must be made on the date for the return of the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 1089; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1069.1]. If the petition is before an appellate court, the return or opposition must be served and filed within 30 days after the court issues the alternative writ or order to show cause or notifies the parties that it is considering issuing a peremptory writ in the first instance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(2)].

If the return is by demurrer only, but the demurrer is not sustained, the court may or may not allow a further return by verified answer within a time that it may designate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1089; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1069.1; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(4) (when return to alternative writ is by demurrer only and is not sustained, court may issue peremptory writ without leave to answer)].

[3] Return by Demurrer

The effect of a return by demurrer is to adopt all the facts alleged in the petition as the return to the writ [Estrin v. Superior Court (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 670, 672, 96 P.2d 340] .

The grounds enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10 for demurrers in ordinary civil actions apply to proceedings for writs of review [Code Civ. Proc. § 1109]. The most commonly asserted ground is the failure of the petition to state facts that constitute a cause of action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)], by which the real party in interest argues that one or more of the grounds for issuance of the writ has not been adequately alleged [see discussion under § 492.56[2]]. In addition, the demurrer may argue that the court should not exercise its original jurisdiction to entertain the writ petition, either when the petitioner could have filed for the writ of review in a lower tribunal, or when the petitioner filed later than the period allowed for an appeal, with no explanation for the delay [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a); Scott v. Municipal Court (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 995, 997, 115 Cal. Rptr. 620 ; see § 492.17]. For discussion of a demurrer on the ground of defective verification of the petition, see § 492.20[3]].

If a return is made by demurrer only, but the demurrer is not sustained, the courtmay allow an answer to be filed within such time as it may designate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1089; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1069.1; but see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(4) (when return to alternative writ is by demurrer only and is not sustained, court may issue peremptory writ without leave to answer)].

For forms and discussion of demurrers generally, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings . For a form of return by demurrer, see § 492.107.

[4] Return by Answer

The statutes governing an answer to a complaint in a civil action apply to the answer to a petititon for a writ of review [Code Civ. Proc. § 1109]. Thus the answer must generally contain a general or specific denial of each of the material allegations in the petition, as well as any statement of new matter constituting a defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30]. The answer must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1089; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1069.1; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(1)].

Leave of court is required to file a return by answer when an initial return was made by demurrer only and the demurrer was not sustained [see § 492.27[3]].

For forms and discussion of answers generally, see Ch. 26, Answers . For a form of answer to a petition for writ of review, see § 492.108.

Chapter 492 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.28

§ 492.28 Scope of Review

[1] In General

Review in a writ of review proceeding is limited to the determination of whether the lower court or tribunal has regularly pursued its authority; that is, whether it has exceeded its jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. § 1074; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; for further discussion, see § 492.56[2][c]]. In making this determination, the reviewing court is not limited to examination of the clerk's transcript, but may also look to the transcript of the oral proceedings and even to the evidence offered below [Little v. Superior Court (1968) 260 Cal. App. 2d 311, 317, 67 Cal. Rptr. 77] . The court may not, however, consider facts that do not appear in record as it is transmitted. No evidence outside the record is admissible for any purpose, and the reviewing court may not try any factual issue [see Rinaldo v. Superior Court (1936) 15 Cal. App. 2d 585, 593, 59 P.2d 868 ; but see Wilde v. Superior Court (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 168, 176, 127 P.2d 560 (testimony allowed in contempt review)].

[2] Existence of Jurisdictional Facts

When the jurisdiction of the lower court or tribunal exists only on given facts, a review of its action in a writ proceeding extends to the whole of the record below and the reviewing court may examine the evidence itself [Great Western Power Co. v. Pillsbury (1915) 170 Cal. 180, 185, 191, 149 P. 35 ; People v. Board of Delegates (1860) 14 Cal. 479, 500] . If there is no evidence whatever to show the existence of the necessary jurisdictional facts, the reviewing court will annul the decision or judgment below [Great Western Power Co. v. Pillsbury (1915) 170 Cal. 180, 185, 149 P. 35] .

This principle now applies mainly to the review of contempt orders, which includes an examination of the entire record below to ascertain whethersubstantial evidence existed to support the finding of contempt [Chula v. Superior Court (1962) 57 Cal. 2d 199, 204-205, 18 Cal. Rptr. 507, 368 P.2d 107 ; see also § 492.18[5][e]].

[3] Petitioner's Burden on Review

In usual writ proceedings, all intendments and presumptions are indulged to support the judgment on matters as to which the record is silent, and error must be affirmatively shown [Lemelle v. Superior Court (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 148, 156, 143 Cal. Rptr. 450 (mandate)].

Initially, a petitioner on writ of review has the burden of ensuring a proper return of the transcript to be reviewed, much as an appellant must perfect the record on appeal [see Middlebrook v. Superior Court (1943) 21 Cal. 2d 579, 134 P.2d 241 ; North Side etc. Assn. v. County of L.A. (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 598, 608, 161 P.2d 613 ; see § 492.26[2]]. This burden is particularly important when the petition challenges the sufficiency of the evidence [see Landtbom v. Board of Fire Commrs. (1929) 98 Cal. App. 629, 631, 632, 277 P. 369 (annulment by writ of review not proper when return showed on its face that it did not include all the evidence and showed some competent evidence in support of board's decision)].

On the question of whether the lower court acted without or in excess of its jurisdiction, a reviewing court, faced with no record of how the lower court reached its findings and seeing that conflicting inferences could be made from the evidence, is compelled to resolve all conflicts in favor of the respondent court and to indulge in all reasonable inferences to uphold the findings [Tomlinson v. Superior Court (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 640, 643, 152 P.2d 517 (prohibition)].

[4] Contempt Orders

On a writ of review a contempt order is to be construed strictly in favor of the accused and no presumption of the sufficiency of the evidence applies [see Bennett v. Superior Court of San Diego County (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 585, 593, 222 P.2d 276 ; Andrews v. Superior Court (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 756, 759, 7 Cal. Rptr. 194] . Even in a contempt review, however, the court will not annul the judgment unless the record is devoid of competent evidence in support of the trial court's findings. If the reviewing court can find a conflict in the evidence, it will defer to the lower court's resolution of the conflict [see Freeman v. Superior Court (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 533, 538-539]. For a discussion relating to review of contempt orders generally, see Ch. 135, Contempt .

A decision in an original writ proceeding in a reviewing court is filed with the clerk, who then transmits copies of the decision to the lower court or tribunal and to the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.264(a)(1)].

A decision of a court of appeal becomes final as to that court 30 days after filing. The decision becomes final as to that court immediately after filing upon the denial of a petition for a writ of supersedeas [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.264(b)(2)].

A decision of the Supreme Court becomes final 30 days after filing unless the court orders a shorter time or, prior to the expiration of the 30-day period or any extension, orders one or more additional periods not to exceed a total of 60 additional days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.264(b)(1)].

Chapter 492 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.31

§ 492.31 Costs

[1] Generally Allowed

When the decision of a court of inferior jurisdiction is brought before a higher court in any other way than by appeal, the same costs must be allowed as in cases on appeal [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1027, 1109; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.278 (costs in appellate court), 8.764 (costs in superior court)]. For discussion and forms relating to costs on appeal in appellate courts generally, see Ch. 51, Appeal: Hearing and Decision, § 51.18. For discussion and forms relating to costs on appeals to the appellate division of superior courts generally, see Ch. 345A, Limited Civil Cases .

[2] No Award on Summary Denial

An appellate court normally awards costs through the issuance of a remittitur [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.272(b)]. In writ proceedings, however, a remittitur cannot be issued when an original petition is summarily denied and the court never determined on the merits whether the decision of the lower court, board, or tribunal was valid [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.272(b)]. Apparently no mechanism exists for an appellate court to award costs to the prevailing respondent when it summarily denies a petition for writ of review [see Johnson v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1984)] .

[3] Not Charged to Respondent Court

Although a party prevailing on the merits in writ proceedings can recover costs from the real party or parties in interest, the reviewing court will not charge such costs against a respondent court, a neutral party with no interest in the controversy [Hupp v. Superior Court (1913) 22 Cal. App. 162, 166-167, 133 P. 987 (contempt review); Platnauer v. Superior Court (1917) 33 Cal. App. 394, 395, 165 P. 41 ; *Oksner v. Superior Court (1964) 229 Cal. Chapter 492 REVIEW (CERTIORARI), WRIT OF
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.32

§ 492.32 Subsequent Review of Writ Proceedings

A superior court judgment on a writ of review can be appealed to a court of appeal [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a), 1110]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1064 states that a judgment in a special proceeding is the final determination of the rights of the parties therein. Code Civ. Proc. § 1110 makes the statutes on appeal applicable to writ actions except where they are inconsistent with writ statutes. Thus, because an appeal is the regular and adequate remedy, a reviewing court will usually decline to consider a new and independent application of the same writ [L.A. Surety Co., Inc. v. Municipal Court (1931) 111 Cal. App. 133, 135, 295 P. 591 ; City of South Gate v. Los Angeles Unified School Dist. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 1416, 1421 n.2, 229 Cal. Rptr. 568 (writ of mandate denied because an adequate remedy available in right of appeal)].

When writ of review proceedings are initiated in the court of appeal, review from that court's judgment may be had by a petition for review by the state Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.500(a)(1)]. This is not a refiling of a writ petition but rather a request for a hearing. The Supreme Court will grant review only when it appears necessary to secure uniformity of decisions of the courts of appeal or to the settlement of important questions of law, when the court of appeal was without jurisdiction to hear the writ of review proceedings, or when the court of appeal decision lacked the concurrences of the required majority of qualified judges [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.500(b)].

§ 492.60 Summary Denial of Writ

Summary denial of petition for extraordinary writ as not res judicata in subsequent proceedings, regardless of whether denial is intended to be on merits or is based on some other ground. Kowis v. Howard (1992) 3 Cal. 4th 888, 899, 12 Cal. Rptr. 2d 728, 838 P.2d 250 (rejecting "sole possible ground" exception)

Court as capable of summarily denying petition for writ of review without any statement of reasons. Tex-Cal Land Management, Inc. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 335, 350, 156 Cal. Rptr. 1, 595 P.2d 579

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.80

§ 492.80 Petitioner's Checklist

[1] Preliminary Determinations

1. Review all papers relating to the case to determine whether facts support issuance of writ of review [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; see § 492.18].

a. Petitioner must have no right to review by appeal, including review of interlocutory order on appeal from final order or judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1, 904.2].

b. Petitioner must have no other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068].

c. The act sought to be reviewed must be the exercise of a judicial function by a lower court, board, or officer [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068].

d. The act sought to be reviewed must be one made in excess of jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068].

e. Petitioner must have a beneficial interest in the challenged decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 1069].

2. Determine proper court in which to file petition.

NOTE:
All appellate courts and superior courts have original jurisdiction to issue a writ of review [see Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. § 1068]. Usually, however, a petition is filed in the superior court to challenge the act of a or constitutionally created administrative agency within its district; in the appellate division of the superior court to challenge the act of the superior court in a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068(b)]; in a court of appeal to challenge the act of a superior court within its district; and in the California Supreme Court to challenge the act of a court of appeal. If the petition is filed in an appellate court, and might lawfully be made to a lower court in the first instance, it must set forth the circumstances which, in the opinion of the petitioner, render it proper that the writ should issue originally from the reviewing court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(1)].

3. Determine whether it is desirable to petition, in the alternative, for another type of extraordinary writ [see §§ 492.13, 492.14].

[2] Documents to Be Obtained

Obtain certified copies of the judgment or order sought to be reviewed. Obtain certified transcripts of relevant portions of the record as necessary to make a prima facie showing that writ should issue. For review of a contempt order, obtain at least a copy of the order violated, a transcript of the contempt hearing, and if appropriate, the process by which the court acquired jurisdiction over the contemner, such as proof of service of a subpoena or court order.

NOTE:

When filed in the Supreme Court or in a court of appeal, the verified petition must be accompanied by (1) a copy of the order or judgment from which relief is sought, (2) copies of all documents and exhibits submitted to the trial court supporting and opposing petitioner's position, and (3) copies of all other documents submitted to the trial court that are necessary for a complete understanding of the case and the ruling. In exigent circumstances, a petition may be filed without these documents if a declaration by counsel explains the urgency and the circumstances making the documents unavailable and fairly summarizes their substance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(1)-(3)]. In addition, a transcript of the proceedings leading to the order or judgment below must accompany the writ petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(1)(D)]. If a transcript is unavailable, counsel must make and file a declaration that either (1) explains why a transcript is unavailable and fairly summarizes the proceedings, including arguments by counsel and the basis of the trial court's decision, if stated; or (2) states that the transcript has been ordered, the date it was ordered, and the date it is expected to be filed, which must be a date prior to any action requested of the reviewing court other than issuance of a stay supported by other parts of the record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(2)].

Although the statutes and rules of court governing writ of review proceedings do not expressly require that a petition filed in superior court be supported by portions of the record, the inclusion of these exhibits may be required by local practice and, in any event, may be necessary to preclude summary denial of the petition [see § 492.20[4][b]]

Follow local practice regarding the preparation of documentary exhibits to be submitted with the petition. In appellate court proceedings, counsel need only lodge one set of any separately bound supporting documents, in contrast with the greater number of copies of the petition that are required to be filed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.44(b)(5)].

Clerks' fees for preparing copies of the court's record are set forth in Gov. Code §§ 26831-26837. Court reporters' fees for preparation of transcripts are set forth in Gov. Code § 69950.

[3] Prepare Petition for Writ of Review

1. Review essential allegations. See generally §§ 492.101 and 492.102.

2. Draft petition.

For discussion of the required number of copies of the petition and format requirements, see § 492.101[8], [9]. For a cover for use in filing a petition in an appellate court, see § 492.100.

3. Sign petition.

The petition must be signed by the petitioner or his or her attorney [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 1109; see also §§ 492.101, 492.102].

4. Verify petition.

The petition must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1069; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(4); §§ 492.101, 492.102]. For discussion of verification in superior and appellate courts, see §§ 492.101[7] and 492.102.

[4] Prepare Proposed Order and Writ for Superior Court

For a proceeding in a superior court, prepare an order for the judge's signature and the writ of review for issuance by the clerk of court. Counsel should draft the writ of review and order either separately [see §§ 492.103 and 492.104] or as one document [see § 492.104], depending on what the local practice requires. The Supreme Court and courts of appeal prepare their own orders and writs.

[5] Prepare Points and Authorities

Draft a supporting memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(5) (appellate courts); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(a)(2), 3.1113 (superior courts)]. Prepare the same number of copies as were prepared for the petition and attach a copy to each copy of the petition. For forms of memoranda for use in supporting a petition for writ of review, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 205, Review (Matthew Bender).

[5a] Prepare Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons

If a party files a motion, an application, or an opposition to a motion or application before filing its principal brief, the party must serve and file a Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons at the time it files the first such motion, application, or opposition and must include a copy of this certificate in the party's principal brief. If no motion, application, or opposition to such motion or application is filed before the parties file their principal briefs, each party must include a Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons in its principal brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)]. If the identity of any party or any entity or person subject to disclosure has not been publicly disclosed in the proceedings and a party wants to keep that identity confidential, the party may serve and file an application for permission to file its certificate under seal separately from its principal brief, motion, application, or opposition. If the application is granted, the party must file the certificate under seal and without service within 10 days of the court's order granting the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)(2)]. The petitioner's certificate must be included in the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(1)]. The certificates of the respondent and real party in interest must be included in their preliminary opposition or, if no such opposition is filed, in their return, if any. The certificate must appear after the cover and before the tables [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(3)].

For a form of the Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons--Judicial Council Form APP-008, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.83.

[6] Serve Petition

Serve copy of petition and accompanying papers on respondent and real party in interest. The general service requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020 apply [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; for further discussion and forms, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers ; see also § 492.101[12]].

NOTE:

Usually the petition must be filed with proof that it has been served on both the respondent and the real party in interest, unless the court exercises its discretion power to permit filing without service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1069]. Consult local practice with respect to this requirement. For further discussion of ex parte applications, see § 492.102[5][b].

[7] Prepare Proof of Service of Petition

When the petition is served on the respondent and real party in interest before filing [see § 492.80[6]], prepare a proof of service in as many copies as the petition, and append the original and copies of the proof of service to the original and copies of the petition.

Proof of service is made in the same manner as proof of service of summons and complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 1109; see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 417.10, 1013a, 2009, 2015.3, 2015.5]. Thus, for example, the mandatory Judicial Council form of proof of service of summons [Cal. Judicial Council Form 982(a)(23); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen., Div., III] may be adapted for use as proof of service of the petition. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge. For further discussion and forms of proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

NOTE:

If the petition is to be filed in an appellate court, in addition to complying Cal. Rules of Ct. Rule 8.25, the proof of service must give the telephone number of each attorney served; an appellate court may strike a petition accompanied by a defective proof of service, or may impose a lesser sanction, unless a proper proof of service is filed within five days after the clerk gives notice of the defect [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e)(5)].

[8] File Original Petition

File, with the clerk of the proper court, the original petition and the required number of copies [see, e.g., Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.44; see also § 492.101[9]]. Aside from incorporated exhibits, if any [see § 492.80[2]], the original and each copy must be accompanied by a supporting memorandum of points and authorities [§ 492.80[5]] and by a proof of service, if prior service was required [§ 492.80[6], [7]]. Counsel should consult local practice for additional requirements [see, e.g., Cal. Rules of Ct., Supp., Local Rules of Cts. of Appeal, 5th App. Dist., Rule 3 (requiring writ petition to be accompanied with completed fact sheet available from court clerk)].

NOTE:

A filing fee of $655, payable to the clerk of the court, must accompany the filing of a petition for a writ of review in the Court of Appeal (or $590 in the Supreme Court) [Gov. Code §§ 68926, 68926.1(b) (requires additional $170 for deposit in appellate court trust fund), 68927]. The filing fee required in superior courts varies [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 411.20, 1109; Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 6321-6324], and counsel should check with the clerk of the court to determine the applicable amount. For a form of waiver of filing fees in proceedings in forma pauperis, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

[9] Consideration and Ruling on Petition

1. Hearing of petition

A superior court judge may hear and dispose of the writ petition in chambers [Code Civ. Proc. § 166(a)(1)]. Appellate courts usually determine in conference whether to grant the petition and issue the writ of review or to deny the petition.

2. Review of summary denial

If the petition is denied summarily, determine whether to seek review of the denial. The usual method of review of an order denying a petition for a writ of review is by appeal. When a court of appeal denies a petition without issuance of the writ, the order is final immediately on filing and petitioner may therefore petition the Supreme Court for a hearing without waiting the normal 30-day period prescribed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.264(b) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.264(b)(2)].

3. Granting of petition and issuance of writ of review.

If the superior court grants an order commanding a writ of review to issue [see §§ 492.103 and 492.104], the clerk then issues the writ. In a superior court proceeding, counsel will have drafted the writ and order [see § 492.80[4], [5], and §§ 492.103, 104]. Appellate courts draft their own writs and orders.

The date for hearing on the writ of review is supplied by the judge or the clerk. A hearing date may be set at any time [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1108].

[10] Serve Writ of Review

Serve a copy of the writ on the respondent and each real party in interest in the same manner as a summons would be served in a civil action, unless the court expressly directs otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 1073]. If they were not served before filing, a copy of the petition and the memorandum of points and authorities should accompany the writ when served [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.10-415.40 (service of complaint with summons); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1073 and § 492.104[4]]. When the respondent is a court, consult local procedure to determine if service should be made on the presiding judge or on the clerk of the court.

If the writ is issued by an appellate court, the clerk of that court is required to promptly transmit a certified copy of the writ to the respondent to whom it is directed. If, in addition, this writ includes an order that stays proceedings scheduled to occur within seven days of its issuance, the clerk of that court is required to make a reasonable effort to give telephone notice to the respondent to whom it is directed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.489].

[11] Insure Return of Certified Record

Insure that a certified record of the proceedings below is filed and that therecord provided to the reviewing court is complete [see also § 492.26[2]].

1. Pay the fees charged by the clerk to make a return of the record.

Clerks' fees for preparing copies of the court's record are set forth in Gov. Code §§ 26831-26837 (superior court) and 72054 (appellate division). If a transcript of some or all of the proceedings below will be necessary to meet the burden on review, deposit with the court the estimated cost of preparing court a reporter's transcript as required by Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 8.130(b) (superior court) and Cal. Rule of Ct., Rule 8.753(c) (appellate division).

2. See that the certified record of the proceedings below has been properly prepared and filed by the date set for the return in the writ of review.

The burden is on the petitioner to ensure that the record is filed and, in the absence of a return, the writ can be discharged and the proceeding dismissed.

3. If the record filed by the respondent is incomplete, file a motion in the reviewing court to compel a further return of record [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1075 and §§ 492.105, 492.106].

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.81

§ 492.81 Guide for Real Party in Interest

NOTE:

When the circumstances or local practice permit, the petitioner may be able to obtain issuance of a writ of review without prior service of the petition on the real party in interest [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Code Civ. Proc. § 1069; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e)(6); § 492.80[6]]. In this situation the first step for the real party in interest will be a return to the writ by demurrer or verified answer [see § 492.81[3]].

[1] Prepare Opposition to Petition

1. Draft opposing memorandum [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)].

For forms of memoranda of points and authorities for use in opposing a petition for writ of review, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 205, Review (Matthew Bender).

2. If proceeding is in an appellate court, prepare, in the same number of copies as the opposing memorandum, a statement of any material fact that was not included in the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)].

3. If proceeding is in appellate court, serve and file a Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons in the first document filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)] and include a copy of the certificate in the principal brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)].

For a form of the Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons--Judicial Council Form APP-008, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.83.

[2] Serve and File Opposition to Petition

Within 10 days after the petition is filed, serve a copy of the opposing memorandum on the petitioner, and file the original and any required copies, together with proof of service, with the clerk of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107;

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(1)]. The general requirements for service of papers under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020 apply [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1109; for further discussion and forms, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

[3] Return to Writ of Review: Answer or Demurrer

1. Preliminary determinations

Determine whether grounds exist to challenge the petition and support a judgment discharging the writ, either by demurrer or by answer filed as a return to the writ [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)].

a. Is the petition properly verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1069; see § 492.20[3]], timely filed [see § 492.17[2]], or unjustifiably filed in higher court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(1); see § 492.17[1]].

b. Does petition disclose, or do facts otherwise indicate, the absence of any necessary ground for issuance of the writ, that is, beneficial interest on part of petitioner, judicial action lacking or in excess of jurisdiction, and no right to appeal or other plain, speedy, and adequate remedy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; see § 492.18].

2. Prepare demurrer or verified answer, or both.

NOTE:
If demurrer alone is filed but is not sustained, the reviewing court may or may not permit subsequent filing of a verified answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)(4); see also § 492.26].

If grounds for an objection appear on the face of the petition, draft a demurrer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; see § 492.107], showing why the petition does not state facts sufficient to support annulment of the challenged order or judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.10(e), 430.30(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1109].

If grounds for objection do not appear on the face of the petition but can be raised by denial of the petition's material allegations or by a statement of new matters, draft an answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; see § 492.108] showing why, given the denials or allegations in the verified answer, petitioner is not entitled to annulment of the challenged order or judgment [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 430.30(b), 431.30(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1109].

Prepare enough copies to file the original and required number of court copies, to serve all other parties to the action, and to retain one office copy.

3. Sign demurrer or answer.

The demurrer or answer must be signed by the petitioner or his or her attorney [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 1109].

4. Verify answer.

A return by answer must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule

8.486(b)(1); see §§ 492.101[7] and 492.102].

5. Prepare an opposing memorandum.

Draft a memorandum in support of the demurrer, if filing in superior court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(a)]. In other situations, a memorandum of points and authorities is not expressly required, although they may be desirable, particularly if a previous opposing memorandum has not been filed [§ 492.81[1]].

Prepare the same number of copies as the demurrer (or answer) and attach. For forms of memoranda for use in supporting a petition for writ of review, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 205, Review (Matthew Bender).

6. Serve and file answer or demurrer.

Serve a copy of the demurrer or answer, or both, together with the supporting memorandum, if any, on the petitioner, and file the original and any required copies, together with proof of service, with the clerk of the court. The general requirements for service of papers under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020 apply [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1109; for further discussion and forms, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers]. Service and filing must be completed on the date specified for the return if the proceeding is in a superior court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1089; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1069.1; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1171 (writ specifies date for return)], if in the appellate court, within 30 days after the court issues the alternative writ or order to show cause or notifies the parties that it is considering issuing a peremptory writ in the first instance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.409(h)(2)].

43-492 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 492.82

§ 492.82 Hearing and Posthearing Procedure

[1] Attend Hearing and Present Oral Argument, if Appropriate

When a full return has been made, the court will hear those parties who attend for that purpose [Code Civ. Proc. § 1075]. This does not mean, however, that oral argument may not be waived. Appellate procedures, in particular, may deem argument waived unless requested [see, e.g., Cal. Cts. of Appeal Internal Operating Practices and Procedures, 1st Dist., Part III(A), § 20].

[2] Prepare and Serve Proposed Judgment (Superior Court Only)

If the judge of the superior court orders counsel to prepare a proposed judgment, or if local practice so requires, draft the appropriate judgment affirming, modifying, or annulling the order or judgment below, serve it on all other parties, and submit it to the court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(f)-(h)]. In a proceeding in an appellate court, the written opinion of the court constitutes its judgment and therefore counsel does not prepare a form of judgment.

For a form of judgment for use in superior court, see § 492.104.

[3] Prepare Notice of Entry of Judgment (Superior Court Only)

The party submitting the proposed judgment for entry must also prepare and mail a copy of the notice of entry of judgment to all parties who have appeared in the proceeding and then file with the court the original notice of entry of judgment, together with the proof of service by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5(a), (c)].

[4] Prepare Costs Memorandum or Motion to Tax Costs

The party in whose favor the court has awarded costs should prepare a verified memorandum of costs to be served and filed in the trial court within 40 days after the remittitur is filed with the trial court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.278(c) (appellate court), 8.764(d); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1027]. The party against whom the court awards costs may move to tax costs by a notice of motion served and filed 15 days after service of the cost memorandum, or 20 days after service if the service was by mail [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1700(b); Code Civ. Proc. § 1013, applicable by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.278(c)(2) (appellate court), Rule 8.764(d); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1027]. For forms and discussion of the memorandum of costs, or the motion to tax costs, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees .

If aggrieved by the judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 902, 904.1, 1110], file a timely notice of appeal [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.104(a); for further discussion and forms, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal].

[2] Appellate Court

1. Petition for rehearing

If aggrieved by the judgment, file a petition for rehearing within 15 days after the filing of the decision [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.268(b)(1); for further discussion and forms, see Ch. 52, Appeal: Rehearing].

2. Petition for review (court of appeal only)

Serve and file in the Supreme Court a petition for review within 10 days after the decision of the court of appeal becomes final as to that court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.500(d)(1); for further discussion and forms, see Ch. 54, Appeal: California Supreme Court Review].

[2] Use of Form

This form illustrates the format of a cover for a petition for a writ of review to be filed in the Supreme Court or in a court of appeal. For a form of petition, see § 492.101.

[3] Format

A petition for review filed in an appellate court must, on its cover, designate the title of the case, the name, address, and telephone numberof the attorney filing the petition, the name of the trial judge, and the number of the case in the trial court, if any [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204].

The cover must also contain the California State Bar membership number of the attorney filing the petition and of every attorney who joins in the petition. California State Bar membership numbers of the supervisors in a law firm or public law office of the attorney responsible for the case need not be stated [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204].

So far as practicable, the cover of any petition for an original writ should be red in color [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.40(b)]. The court will accept a petition with the wrong color cover for filing but, in case of repeated violations by an attorney or a party, may order the petition returned or stricken until corrected within a specified time [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.204(e), 8.40(b)].

The use of recycled paper for the cover is encouraged [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)].

[4] Request for Stay

This form includes, in the title, optional language indicating that a stay is requested. Whenever a petition for a writ filed in an appellate court includes a request for a temporary stay [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 1071 (temporary stay in writ of review proceeding)], the cover of the petition must bear the conspicuous notation "STAY REQUESTED," and identify the nature and date of the proceeding or act sought to be stayed.

[5] Related Appeal Pending

When the petition seeks review of trial court proceedings that are also the subject of a pending appeal, the title of the petition must include the notation "Related Appeal Pending." In such a case this form should be modified accordingly [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(3); see also § 492.101].

TO THE HONORABLE _____ [CHIEF or PRESIDING] JUSTICE AND ASSOCIATE JUSTICES OF THE _____ [SUPREME COURT or COURT OF APPEAL OF THE _____ (number) APPELLATE DISTRICT] OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA:

Petitioner alleges:

1. Petitioner is _____ [identify petitioner and describe capacity, if other than as an individual, in which the proceeding is being brought, e.g., and at all times herein mentioned was, a corporation duly organized and existing under the laws of the State of California].

2. Respondent is _____ [identify respondent, e.g., the Superior Court of the _____ County, California, in which the above entitled action is pending].

3. Real party in interest is _____ [name], and has an interest that is directly affected by this proceeding in that _____ [specify facts that make person the real party in interest, e.g., he/she is the _____ (plaintiff or defendant) in the action entitled _____ (case name), Civil Action No. _____, now pending before respondent court].

4. Petitioner is a person beneficially interested in the issuance of a writ of review by virtue of the fact that _____ [specify facts that demonstrate petitioner's beneficial interest in the issuance of a writ, e.g., he/she is_____ (plaintiff or defendant) in the action entitled _____ (case name), Civil Action No. _____, now pending before respondent court].

5. _____ [Allege facts showing that challenged action of respondent constitutes exercise of a judicial function, e.g., On _____ (date), in respondent court, the Honorable _____ (name), Judge, made an order directing petitioner to _____ (specify). A copy of this order is attached and incorporated as Exhibit A. On _____ (date), in respondent court, the Honorable _____ (name), Judge, issued an order to show cause directing petitioner to appear at a hearing to determine whether or not he/she should be held in contempt of court for allegedly violating the order attached as Exhibit A. At the conclusion of the hearing, the Honorable _____ (name), Judge, ordered that petitioner be held in contempt of court for failure to comply with the order attached as Exhibit A. A copy of the order of contempt is attached and incorporated as Exhibit B. A transcript of the contempt hearing, held on _____ (date), is attached and incorporated as Exhibit C].

6. _____ [Allege facts showing that the challenged action of respondent was made without or in excess of jurisdiction, e.g., Respondent, in making _____ (specify challenged action, e.g., the contempt order attached as Exhibit B), _____ (acted without or exceeded its) jurisdiction in that _____ (specify, e.g., the order contains a finding, unsupported by substantial evidence, that petitioner was able to comply with the allegedly disobeyed order attached as Exhibit A)].

7. Petitioner has no right of appeal from _____ [specify, e.g., the above-described order of respondent attached as Exhibit A], and he/she has no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy other than the relief sought in this petition.

[8. This petition is made to this court in the first instance rather than to the _____ (specify lower court in which petition might lawfully have been made, e.g., Superior Court of _____ County, California), for the following reason(s): _____ (specify circumstances, as required under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(1), which, in petitioner's opinion, render it proper that the writ should issue originally from the reviewing court).]

[9. Unless the proceedings before respondent are stayed by order of this Court, petitioner will sustain immediate and irreparable damage in that _____ (a llege facts showing that the challenged order or judgment caused serious detriment to petitioner and set forth the relevant time constraints justifying the inclusion in the writ of a stay of the proceedings below, e.g., as a result of the above-described order of respondent attached as Exhibit A, petitioner has been held in criminal contempt and will be required to pay monetary sanctions in the amount of $_____ by _____ (date) unless said requirement is stayed by order of this Court).]

[10. As a result of _____ (specify, e.g., the above-described order of respondent attached as Exhibit A), petitioner will sustain irreparableinjury before this matter can be heard on notice in that _____ (allege facts showing urgency of need for relief and justifying the court's grant of the petition ex parte, if local practice requires that good cause be shown, e.g., as a result of the above-described order of respondent attached as Exhibit A, petitioner has been sentenced for criminal contempt and ordered to serve 30 days in the county jail, which order may be executed immediately), and the serious and imminent injury to petitioner constitutes good cause for this Court to consider and grant this petition ex parte without notice or service to or on respondent or real party in interest named in this action.]

WHEREFORE, petitioner prays,

1. That a writ of review issue under the seal of this Court commanding respondent to certify fully to this court, at a specified time and place, a transcript of the record and proceedings described above.

2. That the foregoing cause be heard and fully considered by this court and that the _____ [specify challenged action, e.g., order of contempt made on _____ (date), by the Honorable _____ (name), Judge of respondent court], be annulled and set aside;

[3. That this court issue an order requiring respondent to desist and refrain from further proceedings in the above-described matter during the pendency of this proceeding;]

4. For recovery of costs incurred in this proceeding; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

[Add supporting memorandum of points and authorities]

CAUTION:
The petition for writ or review filed in an appellate court must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1069; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(4)]. Proof of service of a copy of the petition on each respondent and real party in interest must accompany the petition at the time of filing, except when the court has exercised its discretion to permit filing without notice or service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1069].

[2] Use of Form

This form of petition for a writ of review is for use in the Supreme Court or in a court of appeal. Because the reviewing court may deny the petition summarily, counsel should insure, when adapting this form to particular fact situations, that no essential allegations are omitted inadvertently.

The form of petition must be accompanied by a supporting memorandum of points and authorities [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)].

For a form of cover to be used with this petition, see § 492.100. For a form of petition for writ of review for use in superior courts, see § 492.102.

[3] Allegations

The petition alleges (1) the identity and capacity of the petitioner (Paragraph 1); (2) the identity and capacity of the respondent (Paragraph 2); (3) the identity and capacity of the real party or parties in interest (Paragraph 3) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a); see Inland Counties Regional Center, Inc. v. Office of Administrative Hearings (1987) 193 Cal.

App. 3d 700, 704-705, 238 Cal. Rptr. 422] ; (4) the beneficial interest of the petitioner [Code Civ. Proc. § 1069; see Burlingame v. Justice's Court (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 71, 75, 33 P.2d 669] ; (5) respondent's exercise of judicial functions (Paragraph 5) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; see Standard Oil Co. v. State Bd. of Equalization (1936) 6 Cal. 2d 557, 559, 59 P.2d 119] ; (6) lack or excess of jurisdiction (Paragraph 6) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; see Abelleira v. District Court of Appeal (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 280, 288, 291, 109 P.2d 942] ; and (7) petitioner'slack of appeal or any other plain, speedy, or adequate remedy (Paragraph 7) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1068; see De Lao v. Superior Court (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 711, 712, 234 P.2d 961] . Optional Paragraph 8 is included for use when the petition is filed in an appellate court but could have been properly filed in a lower court, alleging the circumstances that render it appropriate for the appellate court to exercise its original jurisdiction in the first instance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(1)]. Optional Paragraph 9 is included for use when the petitioner seeks to allege facts supporting his or her request for a stay of the proceedings below pending disposition of the writ [Code Civ. Proc. § 1071; see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(7)]. Optional Paragraph 10 is included for use when the petitioner seeks to allege facts showing good cause for allowing the petition to be filed without proof of prior service on the respondent and real party in interest [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069, 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e)(6)].

[4] General Rules of Pleading Apply

A petition for a writ of review is subject to the general rules of pleading (Code Civ. Proc. § 420 et seq.) governing complaints to the extent that these provisions are consistent with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1063-1110 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1109; for discussion of general rules of pleading, see Ch. 123, Complaints and Cross Complaints].

[5] Naming Respondent

When identifying the respondent (Paragraph 2), a petition should name the court, board, or other body, as distinguished from an individual judge, board member, or other person [see Lois R. v. Superior Court (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 895, 903, 97 Cal. Rptr. 158 (prohibition); Sperry & Hutchinson Co. v. Cal. State Bd. of Pharmacy (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 229, 236, 50 Cal. Rptr. 489] .

[6] Request for Stay

[a] Pending Disposition of Writ

There are no express requirements for requesting that the court include a stay order in the writ of review. However, a petitioner who requests a stay of the proceedings below should explain in the petition the reasons for the urgency and set forth all relevant time constraints [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(a)(7)]. The showing necessary to obtain a temporary stay order, at least in an appellate court proceeding, may be inferred from that required to stay a lower court's proceeding pending appeal [see Mehr v. Superior Court (1983) 139 Cal. App. 3d 1044, 1050, 189 Cal. Rptr. 138 (writ of mandate issued to compel lower court to stay proceedings pending appeal when appeal raised substantial question and stay appeared proper in view of potential irreparable injury to petitioner absent stay order andlack of prejudice to respondent); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.112 (procedure for writ of supersedeas to stay lower proceeding pending appeal)]. For further discussion and forms relating to stays pending appeal, see Ch. 43, Appeal: Stay of Proceedings . For a form of writ including a stay order, see § 492.104.

If the petition includes a request for a stay, the cover must include a notation to that effect and identify the nature and date of the proceeding or act sought to be stayed [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.116 and § 492.100[4]].

[b] Pending Disposition of Petition

Although Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1071 and 1072 provide for inclusion of a stay order in the writ of review, there is no express provision for obtaining an immediate stay before the court grants or denies the petition for the writ [cf. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.112 (ex parte stay pending disposition of petition for writ of supersedeas)]. Courts do, however, have express authority to grant a petition for a writ of review without notice to the adverse party, and thus a petitioner seeking an immediate stay of proceedings may simply combine a request for a stay with a request that the petition be granted immediately, without notice or opposition [see § 492.101[11]].

In a jurisdiction where filing of the petition without a proof of service is allowed as a matter of course, counsel simply should include in the prayer of the petition the allegations necessary to support a stay of the proceedings below [Optional Paragraph 9]. In a court that normally requires proof of service before accepting the petition for filing, counsel should request a stay in the petition and also allege facts showing good cause for issuance of the writ without proof of prior service [Optional Paragraph 10; see also § 492.101[11], [12]]. To facilitate filing without proof of prior service in a court in which this is not routinely permitted, counsel may append to the petition the optional order in the foregoing form, for the court's endorsement, directing the clerk to permit filing of the petition without proof of prior service. After filing, the court may then sign an order for immediate issuance of the writ. For forms to use in preparing an order and writ in a superior court, see §§ 492.103 and 492.104.

[7] Verification

The requirement that the petition be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1069] may be satisfied by affidavit or by declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446, 1109, 2015.5]. The usual method of verification, and that used in the foregoing form, is by declaration under penalty of perjury [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]. The declaration is executed by the petitioner if an individual is involved. It is executed by counsel if petitioner is out of the county in which counsel has his or her office, if for some reason petitioner is unable to verify it, or when the facts are within the attorney'sknowledge [Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. If petitioner is a corporation, the declaration is executed by an officer of that corporation [Code Civ. Proc. § 446].

The verification in the form omits standard language by which matters in the petition are verified on information and belief as well as on personal knowledge, because verification on information and belief is a form of hearsay that will not support the issuance of a writ for extraordinary relief [see Star Motor Imports, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 88 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 151 Cal. Rptr. 721 (petition for writ of mandate verified wholly on information and belief by petitioner's attorney); see also § 492.20[3]].

For further discussion of the general requirements for verification and for alternative forms of verification, see Ch. 572, Verification .

[8] Format of Petition

[a] Generally Subject to Requirements for Appellate Briefs

Except as otherwise provided in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.485-8.493, a petition must, insofar as practicable, comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.485(a)]. Rule 8.204 sets out the format requirements governing appellate briefs. Accordingly, in the following discussion of the requirements of Rule 8.212, the term "petition" has been substituted for the term "brief."

[b] Headings, References, Index, and Tables

Each point in a petition must appear separately under an appropriate heading, with subheadings if desired. Such headings should be concise headings which are generally descriptive of the subject matter covered [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(a)(1)(B)].

The statement of any matter in the record must be supported by appropriate reference to the record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(a)(1)(C)].

A petition must be prefaced by a topical index of its contents and a table of authorities, separately listing cases, statutes, court rules, constitutional provisions, and other authorities [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(a)(1)(A)].

For a form of appellate brief illustrating compliance with the heading, index, and tables requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(a)(1), see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs .

[c] Format Requirements

A petition may be reproduced by any process that produces a clear, black image of letter quality. The paper must be white or unbleached, recycled, 81/2 by 11 inches, and of at least 20-pound weight [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(1)]. Any conventional typeface may be used. The typeface may be either proportionally spaced or monospaced [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(2)]. The type style must be roman; but for emphasis, italics or boldface may be used, or the text may be underscored. Case names must be italicized or underscored. Headings may be in uppercase letters [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(3)]. The type size, including footnotes, must not be smaller than 13-point, and both sides of the paper may be used [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(4)]. The lines of text must be unnumbered and at least one-and-a-half spaced. Headings and footnotes may be single-spaced. Quotations may be block-indented and single-spaced. Single-spaced means six lines to a vertical inch [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(5)]. The margins must be at least 11/2 inches on the left and right and 1 inch on the top and bottom [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(6)]. The pages must be consecutively numbered. The tables and the body of the petition may have different numbering systems [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(7)].

A typewritten original and carbon copies may be filed only with the presiding justice's permission, which will ordinarily be given only to unrepresented parties proceeding in forma pauperis. All other typewritten petitions must be filed as photocopies [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(11)(A)]. Both sides of the paper may be used if a photocopy is filed; only one side may be used if a typewritten original and carbon copies are filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(11)(B)]. The type size, including footnotes, must not be smaller than standard pica, 10 characters per inch. Unrepresented incarcerated litigants may use elite type, 12 characters per inch, if they lack access to a typewriter with larger characters [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(11)(C)]. In all other respects, the typewritten motion must conform to the requirements for all other papers [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b); see § 492.101[8][a]].

A petition produced on a computer must not exceed 14,000 words, including footnotes. Such a petition must include a certificate by appellate counsel or an unrepresented party stating the number of words in the petition. The person certifying may rely on the word count of the computer program used to prepare the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(c)(1)]. A petition produced on a typewriter must not exceed 50 pages [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(c)(2)].

The following items are not included in the word or page limit [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(c)(3)]:

- The tables.
- The certificate stating the number of words in the petition.
- Any attachment, not to exceed 10 pages, except with permission from the presiding justice, consisting of copies of exhibits or other materials in the appellate record [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(d)].

[e] Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons

If a party files a motion, an application, or an opposition to a motion or application before filing its principal brief, the party must serve and file a Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons at the time it files the first such motion, application, or opposition and must include a copy of this certificate in the party's principal brief. If no motion, application, or opposition to such motion or application is filed before the parties file their principal briefs, each party must include a Certificate of Interested Entitites or Persons in its principal brief [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)]. If the identity of any party or any entity or person subject to disclosure has not been publicly disclosed in the proceedings and a party wants to keep that identity confidential, the party may serve and file an application for permission to file its certificate under seal separately from its principal brief, motion, application, or opposition. If the application is granted, the party must file the certificate under seal and without service within 10 days of the court's order granting the application [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.208(d)(2)]. The petitioner's certificate must be included in the petition [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(1)]. The certificates of the respondent and real party in interest must be included in their preliminary opposition or, if no such opposition is filed, in their return, if any. The certificate must appear after the cover and before the tables [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.488(c)(3)].

For a form of the Certificate of Interested Entities or Persons--Judicial Council Form APP-008, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.83.

[9] Copies

Format requirements applicable generally to appellate papers, include the requirement that copies be clear and legible [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)(1) (the clerk or the court may reject for filing or strike any petition that is not clearly legible, or that appears to be printed with the characters artificially close to each other)].

The petition must be drafted in the following number of copies:

(1) Original and 13 copies for filing if petition is filed in Supreme Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.44(a)(1)]; original and four copies for filing if petition is filed in Court of Appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.44(b)(1)].

(2) Copy for service on respondent.

(3) Copy for service on real party in interest. When there are two or more respondents or two or more real parties in interest, a copy for service on each such party will be prepared.

(4) Office copy.

(5) Copy for petitioner, if desired.

(6) Additional copies as desired.

[10] Attaching Complete Record

Whenever a petition for a writ of mandate in an appellate court seeks review of a trial court ruling, it must be accompanied by a record adequate to permit the review, including the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)]:

(1) A copy of the ruling from which relief is sought;

(2) Copies of all documents and exhibits submitted to the trial court supporting and opposing the petitioner's position;

(3) Copies of all other documents submitted to the trial court that are necessary for a complete understanding of the case and the ruling; and

(4) A transcript of the proceedings leading to the order or judgment below or, if a transcript is unavailable, a declaration by counsel explaining why a transcript is unavailable and fairly summarizing the proceedings, including arguments by counsel and the basis of the trial court's decision, if stated; or a declaration by counsel stating that the transcript has been ordered, the date it was ordered, and the date it is expected to be filed, which must be a date prior to any action requested of the reviewing court other than issuance of a stay supported by other parts of the record.

In exigent circumstances, a petition may be filed without a copy of the order, judgment, or relevant documents, other than the transcript, if a declaration by counsel explains the urgency and the circumstances making the documents unavailable and fairly summarizes their substance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(b)].

All copies of documents must be legible [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.204(b)].

Documents submitted in support of a petition must comply with the following requirements [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(c)]:

- They must be bound together at the end of the petition or in separate volumes not to exceed 300 pages each, with consecutive pagination throughout.

- They must be index-tabbed by number or letter.

- They must begin with a table of contents listing each document by title and its index-tab number or letter.

The appellate court clerk is required to accept for filing petitions and supporting documents not in compliance with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(c), but the court may give the petitioner notice requiring that the petition and documents be brought into compliance within a stated reasonable time of not less than five days, or the petition may be stricken or denied summarily [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(c)].

Unless the court orders otherwise by local rule or in the specific case, only one set of any separately bound supporting documents accompanying a petition need be filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.44(b)(5)].

For detailed discussion and forms relating to requirements for preparing a record to be filed in a reviewing court, see Ch. 44, Appeal: Preparing and Filing the Record .

[11] Ex Parte Petition

The court in which a petition for a writ of review is filed is authorized to grant the petition ex parte, without notice or service of the petition, on a showing of good cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1069 (writ may be granted without notice); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(a)(4) (court in its discretion may issue alternative writ without service or filing of opposition)]. This constitutes an exception to the general rule that the petition must be accompanied by proof of service on the respondent and each real party in interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e); see § 492.102[5]; see also § 492.21]. As a practical matter, appellate courts are usually reluctant to grant an ex parte writ of review and usually request an opposing memorandum of points and authorities, which helps the courts to weed out those petitions with no merit.

When seeking to file a petition without prior notice, counsel may append to the petition the optional order set out in this form, for the court's endorsement, directing the clerk to permit filing of the petition without proof of prior service. Local procedure should be consulted to determine whom counsel should approach to sign the order [cf. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.50 (Chief Justice or Presiding Justice for applications on routine matters)]. Once the petition has been filed, the court may rule on it in conference and order the clerk to issue the writ [see Code Civ. Proc. § 165 (ex parte writ cannot be granted in chambers)].

[12] Service Requirements

[a] Methods of Service

The petition must be served pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1020, which governs service of papers generally [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. Therefore, service of a copy of the petition and memorandum of points and authorities on respondent and each real party in interest may be made by delivering a copy to each person personally or by mail [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1011-1013a, 1107]. Local rules may provide that service on a respondent court should be made on the presiding judge, or on the court clerk if he or she is authorized to accept service for the court. If a real party in interest is a board or commission, proper service can be made on the presiding officer, on the secretary, or on a majority of the members of the board or commission [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107].

For discussion and forms relating to methods of service of papers and pleadings generally, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[b] Proof of Service

The petition normally must be accompanied by proof of service of a copy on the respondent and the real party or parties in interest at the time it is submitted for filing [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e); for exception to normal procedure, see § 492.101[11]]. In addition to complying with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.25, the proof of service must give the telephone number of each attorney served [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e)]. A petition accompanied by a defective proof of service will be filed, but if a proper proof of service is not filed within five days after the clerk gives notice of the defect the court may strike the petition or impose a lesser sanction [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.486(e)]. Although it is not expressly required, the proof of service should also show that copies of petitioner's memorandum of points and authorities, as well as of any exhibits incorporated into the petition, were properly served on the opposing parties.

For discussion and forms relating to a declaration of proof of service of papers and pleadings generally, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[13] Petition for Writ of Review in the Alternative

This form of petition may be adapted and combined with requests for other writs in the alternative, such as prohibition, habeas corpus, and mandate [Lankton v. Superior Court (9136) 5 Cal. 2d 694, 697, 55 P.2d 1170 (prohibition); In re Smith (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 291, 296, 135 Cal. Rptr. 5 (habeas corpus); Oksner v. Superior Court (1964) 229 Cal. App. 2d 672, 691, 40 Cal. Rptr. 621 (mandate)]. A petitioner who is in doubt as to the type of writ he or she should seek can petition, in the alternative form, for a writ of review, prohibition, or mandate [Peck's Liquors, Inc. v. Superior Court (1963) 221 Cal. App. 2d 772, 775, 34 Cal. Rptr. 735] . For discussion and forms of petition for writs of habeas corpus, mandate, or prohibition, see respectively Ch. 292, Habeas Corpus , and Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

MEMORANDUM

CAUTION:
A petition for a writ of review filed in superior court must be verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1069]. Proof of service of a copy of the petition on each respondent and real party in interest must accompany the petition at the time of filing, except when the court has exercised its discretion to permit filing without notice or service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1069].

[2] Use of Form

This form of petition is for use when filing an original petition for a writ of review in a superior court. For a form of petition for use in an appellate court, see § 492.101.

It appears that this form of petition must be accompanied by a supporting memorandum of points and authorities [see § 492.102[4]].

[3] Number of Copies

The original petition and copies should be prepared as follows: (1) original for filing; (2) copies as needed to serve on respondent and on each real party in interest [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]; (3) one office copy; (4) one copy for petitioner, if desired; (5) additional copies, if desired.

[4] Points and Authorities

The general rules governing law and motion proceedings (Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100 et seq.) apply to proceedings for writ of review in the superior court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(a)(2)]. Thus, it appears that the foregoing form of petition must be accompanied by a supporting memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113 (notice of motion required to be supported by memorandum); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1003 (motion is any application for order); for further discussion, see § 492.20[4]]. For forms of points and authorities for use in support of petitions for writs of review, see California Points and Authorities, Ch. 205, Review (Matthew Bender).

[5] Service Requirements

[a] Prior Service Usually Required

A petition for a writ of review generally must be accompanied by proof of service of a copy of the petition on the respondent and on each real party in interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. For further discussion of methods of service and proof of service, see § 492.101[12].

[b] Applications Ex Parte

A court may, in its discretion and for good cause, grant a petition ex parte without the notice or service usually required under Code Civ. Proc. § 1107 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. Construction of this exception varies among local courts, and counsel should therefore consult local practice to deter mine the circumstances under which a particular court will grant a petition ex parte. As a general rule, a court may not grant an application ex parte unless it appears by affidavit or declaration that (1) within a reasonable time before the application the party informed the opposing party or the opposing party's attorney when and where the applications would be made;(2) the party in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party and the opposing party's attorney but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to inform them; or (3) for reasons specified the party should not be required to inform the opposing party or the opposing party's attorney [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(a)(2); see also Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rules 9.31(e)(1), (2)].

When a court does grant a petition ex parte, counsel may then simultaneously serve the petition, memorandum of points and authorities, and the writ of review, thereby avoiding the cost of double service.

GOOD CAUSE APPEARING from the verified petition on file in this action,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that a writ of review issue under the seal of this Court directing respondent _____ [name of court] to certify to this Court a full, true, and complete transcript of the record and proceedings in the matter of _____ [case name], No. _____[number], including _____ [describe with particularity the transcript that respondent is ordered to prepare as a return], so that the same may be reviewed by this Court; and to show cause before this Court why the _____ [order or judgment or other action to be reviewed] described in the petition should not be annulled.

[IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the writ command respondent to desist from further proceedings in the matter to be reviewed, pending further order of this Court.]

[IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that a copy of the writ (and a copy of the petition and this order) be served at least _____ (number) days before hearing on the return to the writ of review.]
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

This form of order is for use in a superior court when local practice requires the writ and order to be prepared separately. The order directing issuance of the writ of review is drafted for the judge's signature, in contrast to the writ itself, which requires the signature of the clerk of the court [see § 492.104]. The proposed order and writ may both be submitted to the court at the same time the writ petition is filed.

[3] Number of Copies

The original order and copies may be prepared as follows: (1) original and copies for respondent and each real party in interest who will be served with the writ, all delivered to the clerk for the judge's signature; (2) one copy for petitioner, if desired; (3) additional copies, if desired.

[4] Notice of Order

Notice of the order should be given to all other parties or to their attorneys [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1019.5 (notice after ruling on motions); see also San Francisco City & Co. Uniform Local Rules of Ct., Rule 8.6(c) (endorsed copies of all written orders to be served on all parties)]. For further discussion and a forms of notice and proof of service, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders , and Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]
Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

This form of writ of review is for use by a successful petitioner in a superior court proceeding. Appellate courts usually draft their own writs. The relevant parts of the record to be returned for review must be described in the writ with convenient certainty [Code Civ. Proc. § 1071]. The writ is to be drafted for signature by the court clerk, as it is the clerk who issues the writ on order of the court. The attached court order, directing issuance of the writ, should be used only when local practice permits or requires that the order be combined with the writ. For a form of separate order, see § 492.103.

[3] Stay of Proceedings

This form includes optional language to be used when the court has exercised its discretion to stay the proceedings in the lower court pending disposition of the writ [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1071, 1072]. If the words requiring the stay are omitted from the writ, the power of the inferior court is not suspended or the proceedings stayed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1072]. For discussion of the court's power to stay the proceedings below, see § 492.19. For a form of allegations and prayer to be used in a petition requesting a stay, see § 492.101.

[4] Service of Writ

The writ must be served on any real party in interest [see Lee v. Small Claims Court (1939) 34 Cal. App. 2d 1, 5-6, 92 P.2d 937] , and, of course, on the respondent to whom it is directed [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1070, 1071]. Counsel should consult local practice to determine the individual to be served on a respondent court, such as the presiding judge or the court clerk.

The writ must be served in the same manner as a summons in a civil action, unless the court expressly directs otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 1073]. Service of a summons is governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-417.40. Although Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30 permits service by mail, courts prefer personal service because of the certainty that notice of the hearing has been received by the respondent and the real party in interest. Personal service may be made by counsel, provided that he or she is not a party to the action, or by any other person over the age of 18 years who is not a party to the action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 414.10, 1073]. For further discussion and forms relating to service of summons generally, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

For further discussion concerning notice of the writ to be given by the clerk when it is issued by an appellate court, see § 492.25[3].

Attorney for _____ [party's status]

SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF _____ [name]

I, _____ [name], declare:

1. I am _____ [identify declarant, e.g, an attorney at law duly admitted to practice before all the courts of the State of California and the attorney of record for petitioner in the above-entitled special proceeding].

2. _____ [Set forth facts from declarant's personal knowledge establishing the grounds for the motion, e.g., On _____ (date), petitioner made a payment in the amount of $_____ to respondent court, as required by Gov. Code §§ 26831-26837, for copying and certification of the parts of the record that respondent was commanded to certify to this Court in the writ of review issued on _____ (date). On _____ (date), respondent _____ (name) made its return to the writ, but failed to include the following items: _____ (specify). The writ issued by this Court, a true of copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof, described these items with reasonable particularity as follows: _____ (specify). Respondent failed to include those parts of the record described above].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [date]

MEMORANDUM
[Add supporting memorandum]

CAUTION:

Although notice of the motion is not expressly required under Code Civ. Proc. § 1075, a notice of motion, if given, is required to be supported by a memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.54, 3.113].

[2] Use of Form

This form of motion and supporting declaration is for use by a petitioner in a proceeding on writ of review, to obtain a further return of the record when the respondent has failed to make a full return [Code Civ. Proc. § 1075]. For discussion relating to motions and declarations generally, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders , and Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations . For discussion and forms relating to service of this form, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[3] State Statutes

MEMORANDUM

CAUTION:
A memorandum in support of each ground of the demurrer must accompany a demurrer filed in a superior court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); for discussion and forms, see Ch. 417, Points and Authorities]. There is no express requirement for a points and authorities in support of a demurrer in an appellate court but this would seem indispensable in arguing the legal merits of the demurrer [cf. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.54(a) (motion shall be accompanied by memorandum)]. A demurrer filed in superior court must be served and filed with a notice of hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1320(c); for further discussion and a form of notice, see Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings].

[2] Use of Form

This form of demurrer is for use in either a superior or an appellate court by the real party in interest who wishes to demur to a petition for a writ of review [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)]. The form may adapted for use by a respondent as well, in those situations in which the respondent is not a court that is, in effect, a neutral party [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)]. For discussion of the grounds for a demurrer to a petition for a writ of review, see § 492.27[3].

[3] Effect of Demurrer

The effect of a demurrer is to adopt all the facts alleged in the petition as the return to the writ [Estrin v. Superior Court (1939) 14 Cal. 2d 670, 672, 96 P.2d 340] . If a return is made by demurrer only, but the demurrer is not sustained, the court may allow an answer to be filed within such time as it may designate [Code Civ. Proc. § 1089; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1069.1; but see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(4) (when return to alternative writ is by demurrer only and is not sustained, court may issue peremptory writ without leave to answer)]. For a form of return by answer, see § 492.108.

[4] Time for Making Return by Demurrer

When the proceeding is in the superior court, the demurrer must be filed no later than the date, as set forth in the writ, for making a return to the writ [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1089, see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1069.1]. If the proceeding is in an appellate court, the demurrer must be served and filed within 30 days after the court issues the alternative writ or order to show cause or notifies the parties that it is considering issuing a peremptory writ in the first instance [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(2)].

[Verification. See § 492.101.]

CAUTION:
An answer filed as a return to a writ of review must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487(b)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This form of verified answer is for use by the real party in interest in a proceeding on writ of review before either a superior or an appellate court [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487]. The form may adapted for use by a respondent as well, in those situations in which the respondent is not a court that is, in effect, a neutral party [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1069.1, 1089; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.487].

The statutes governing an answer to a complaint in a civil action apply to the answer to a petition for a writ of review [Code Civ. Proc. § 1109]. Thus the answer must generally contain a general or specific denial of each of the material allegations in the petition, as well as any statement of new matter constituting a defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30].

Leave of court is required to file a return by answer when a initial return was made by demurrer only and the demurrer was not sustained [see §§ 492.27[3], 492.107[3]].

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

This form of judgment is for use by a petitioner in superior court once the cause has been heard and decided in the petitioner's favor. A copy of the judgment, signed by the clerk, must be transmitted to the court or board having custody of the record [Code Civ. Proc. § 1076]. A proposed judgment is not required in a writ proceeding in an appellate court.

[3] Preparation of Written Judgment

In the superior courts of most counties, it is customary for the judge to order counsel for one of the parties to prepare, serve on the others, and submit to the court a proposed judgment [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(a)-(f)]. Local practice may require that the prevailing party always prepare the judgment, whether the judge requests it or not. If any of the parties requests a statement of decision, the court may prepare the statement of decision and proposed judgment or may order a party to do so [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(f)]. Any party may object to the proposed statement of decision and the proposed judgment, or both [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(g), (j)]. For discussion and forms relating to a statement of decision, see Ch. 529, Statement of Decision .

[4] Notice of Entry of Judgment

The party submitting an appealable judgment for entry must also prepare and mail a copy of a notice of entry of judgment to all parties who have appeared in the proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.5; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 904.1(a), 1110 (judgment on writ of review as appealable)]. For discussion and forms for notice of entry of judgment, see Ch. 318, Judgments .

§ 493.02 Governing Law

Private rewards are generally governed by case law.

Rewards by various public entities are governed by a variety of statutes:

- Rewards offered by the governor of California are governed by Penal Code § 1547.
- Rewards offered by local agencies are governed by Gov. Code §§ 53069.5 and 53069.7.
- Rewards offered by boards of supervisors are governed by Gov. Code §§ 26207-26209.
- Rewards offered by certain state agencies are governed by Health & Safety Code § 25191.7, Pub. Res. Code § 4417, and Rev. & Tax Code § 19525.
- Certain rewards to be paid by local courts are governed by Penal Code § 374a.

Prohibitions against certain awards are set out under Penal Code §§ 70, 94, and 1558.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-493 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 493.10

§ 493.10 Reward as Unilateral Contract

A reward is an offer, made to no person in particular, of payment for the performance of some particular act. When the act is performed, the offer and the act combined make a complete contract between the person making the offer and the person who performs the act [County of San Luis Obispo v. Gage (1903) 139 Cal. 398, 407, 73 P. 174] . An offer of a reward is an offer of a unilateral contract that may be accepted only by performance, not by a promise to perform [Davis v. Jacoby (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 370, 378, 34 P.2d 1026] .

43-493 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 493.11

§ 493.11 Cause of Action for Breach of Reward Contract

[1] Private Reward

A cause of action for damages for breach of a reward contract must allege an offer of reward, performance by the plaintiff of the requested act in reliance on the offer, a demand for the reward, and the defendant's refusal to pay [see, e.g., Wilson v. Stump (1894) 103 Cal. 255, 257-258, 37 P. 151] .

As a contract action, a cause of action based on reward is subject to defenses applicable to such actions generally, such as the incompetency of the offeror [see Civ. Code §§ 38-40]. For discussion and forms relating to contract actions generally, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

[2] Public Reward

An action for damages based on a reward offered by a public entity or official differs from one based on a private offer of reward, in that publicly offered rewards must be authorized by statute, and before a complaint may be filed in court to recover this type of reward, the plaintiff must first exhaust his or her administrative remedies by presenting a claim in accordance with Gov. Code §§ 900-915.4. For further discussion, see § 493.13, below.

§ 493.12 Defenses

[1] Controverting Matter

A defendant in an action based on reward may, in addition to other general defenses, simply rebut one or more of the essential elements that plaintiff must prove. For example, a plaintiff cannot claim a reward if he or she has only promised to perform the act for which the reward is offered; the offer can be accepted only by actual performance of the act [Davis v. Jacoby (1934) 1 Cal. 2d 370, 378, 34 P.2d 1026] . Similarly, a plaintiff also cannot claim a reward if he or she has performed the act for which the reward is offered, but has not done so with the intent of obtaining the reward or a part of it [Hewitt v. Anderson (1880) 56 Cal. 476, 477-478] .

[2] Revocation of Offer

Revocation of the offer of reward, before the plaintiff has performed the act for which the reward is offered, is an affirmative defense [see, e.g., Wilson v. Stump (1894) 103 Cal. 255, 257-258, 37 P. 151 ; for a form for such an affirmative defense, see § 493.52].

[3] Other Compensation for Performance

A plaintiff cannot claim the reward if he or she was already otherwise being compensated for performing the act for which the reward is separately offered [Van Horn v. Ricks Water Co. (1896) 115 Cal. 448, 452, 47 P. 361] .

[4] Public Reward

Because a public offer of reward must be authorized by statute, an action based on such a reward may be subject to statutory restrictions that may be raised in defense. For further discussion of the various statutes and restrictions regarding public rewards, see § 493.13, below.

Chapter 493 REWARDS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

43-493 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 493.13

§ 493.13 Restrictions on Rewards Offered by Public Entities, Officers, or Employees

[1] Statutory Authorization Required

Rewards offered by public entities, officers, or employees must be authorized by statute. For example, early case law held that absent other legislation, Penal Code § 1547 (discussed under [2], below) precludes local public entities from offering rewards for the apprehension of persons charged with offenses against the people of the state, because Penal Code § 1547 grants that power exclusively to the governor [Brite v. Board of Supervisors (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 233, 236-237, 68 P.2d 1007] . Thus, a city has no inherent power to offer a reward for the apprehension and conviction of a felon, and a city's charter cannot vest a municipality with that authority [City of Los Angeles v. Gurdane (1932) 59 F.2d 161, 164-165] . However, an exception might be made if the need for protection of the public interest is peculiarly local and municipal [Griffin v. City of Los Angeles (1933) 134 Cal. App. 763, 773-774, 26 P.2d 655] .

Various legislation has been passed over the years authorizing certain public entities, officers, or employees, under certain circumstances as discussed below, to offer rewards. To claim a reward offered by a public entity, officer, or employee, a claim must be presented in accordance with Gov. Code § 900 et seq. [see § 493.51[2] and Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act].

For a complaint for breach of a reward contract by a public entity, officer, or employee, see § 493.51.

[2] Rewards Offered by Governor

The governor of California may offer a reward of not more than $50,000, payable out of the General Fund, for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any of the following [Penal Code § 1547(a)]:

- Any convict who has escaped from a state prison, prison camp, prison farm, or the custody of any prison officer or employee, or as provided in Penal Code § 4530, or any paroled prisoner who has left the state without permission [see Penal Code § 3059].

- Any person who has committed or is charged with the commission of an offense punishable with death.

- Any person engaged in the robbery or hijacking of, or any attempt to rob or hijack, any person on, or in charge of, in whole or in part, any public conveyance engaged at the time in carrying passengers within California [see Penal Code § 1547(a)(3)(B) (defining "hijacking")].

- Any person who attempts to murder, assails with a deadly weapon, or inflicts serious bodily harm on, a peace officer or firefighter who is acting in the line of duty.

- Any person who has committed a crime involving the burning or bombing of public or private property, including any public hospital housed in a privately owned facility.

- Any person who has committed a crime involving the burning or bombing of any private hospital, only if a reward in conjunction with the same crime is offered by the hospital or other public or private donor on its behalf; however, the reward offered by the Governor may not exceed the aggregate amount offered privately or $50,000, whichever is less.

- Any person who explodes, ignites, or attempts to explode or ignite any destructive device or any explosive, or who commits arson, in or about any health facility, place where medical care is provided by a licensed health care professional, church, temple, synagogue, mosque, or other place of worship, abortion-counseling facilities, bookstores, public or private libraries, buildings, facilities designated as a courthouse, homes or offices, of judicial officers, buildings or facilities regularly occupied by county probation department personnel in which the employees perform official duties of the probation department, private property which was targeted in whole or in part because of any of the actual or perceived characteristics of the owner or occupant of the property listed in Penal Code § 422.55(a) (disability, gender, nationality, race or ethnicity, religion, sexual orientation, or association with a person or group with one or more of these actual or perceived characteristics), or any public or private school providing instruction in kindergarten or grades 1 through 12, for the purpose of terrorizing another or in reckless disregard of terrorizing another [see Penal Code § 11413].

- Any person who commits a violation of Penal Code § 207 (kidnapping).

- Any person who has committed a crime involving the burning or bombing of any bookstore or public or private library not subject to Penal Code § 11413, if a reward in conjunction with the same crime is offered by the bookstore or library, or any other public or private donor on its behalf, provided that the reward offered by the Governor may not exceed the aggregate amount offered privately or $50,000, whichever is less.

- Any person who commits a violation of Penal Code § 454 (arson-related offenses committed during a state of emergency or local emergency resulting from specified disasters) or Penal Code § 463 (second-degree burglary during an emergency).

- Any person who willfully and maliciously sets fire to, or willfully and maliciously attempts to set fire to, any property that is included in a hazardous fire area designated by the Department of Forestry [see Pub. Res. Code §§ 4252, 4253], if the fire, or attempt to set the fire, results in death or great bodily injury to anyone, including fire protection personnel, of if the fire causes substantial structural damage.

- Any person who has committed, or is charged with the commission of, a felony that is punishable under Penal Code § 422.75(felonies against persons or property of public agency or private institution because of class membership) and that resulted in serious bodily injury or in property damage of more than $10,000.

- Any person who commits an act that violates Penal Code § 11411 (placing marks or desecrating religious symbols on private property to terrorize owner or occupant), if the governor determines that the act is one in a series of similar or related acts committed in violation of that statute by the same person or group.

In addition, the Governor may offer a reward of not more than $100,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person who kills a peace officer or firefighter acting in the line of duty [Penal Code § 1547(b)]. The Governor also may offer a reward of not more than $100,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person who commits arson upon a place of worship [Penal Code § 1547(c)].

The reward must be paid to the person giving the information, promptly on the conviction of the person so arrested, after a recommendation from the United States attorney, or the California Attorney General, or the district attorney and the chief law enforcement officer, or his or her designate, in the jurisdiction where the crime occurred. Rewards may be paid to the person only if the information is given voluntarily, at the person's own initiative. Rewards may not be paid as part of any plea bargain [Penal Code § 1547(d)].

The reward may also be paid to the person giving the information if both of the following requirements are met [Penal Code § 1547(e)]:

- The arrest or conviction of the person for an offense described in Penal Code § 1547(a)-(c) is rendered impossible by an intervening event, including, but not limited to, the death of the person during a pursuit by law enforcement, or while in custody.

- The appropriate law enforcement officials, after reviewing the evidence related to the crime or crimes, determine that the person is the individual responsible for the crime or crimes for which the reward was offered, and that the information would have reasonably led to the arrest and conviction of that person.

If more than one claimant is eligible for any reward issued pursuant to Penal Code § 1547, the governor may apportion the reward money in a manner the governor deems appropriate [Penal Code § 1547(f)].

[3] Rewards Offered by Local Agency

[a] Willful Misconduct Resulting in Injury or Death

A local agency may offer and pay a reward for information leading to the determination of the identity of, and the apprehension of, any person whose willful misconduct results in injury or death to any person. The amount of the reward is to be determined by the local agency [Gov. Code § 53069.5; see Gov. Code § 54951 (defining "local agency")].

The person who committed the willful misconduct is liable for the amount of the reward paid, if the person's willful misconduct resulted in injury or death to any student or any person employed by or performing volunteer services for a local agency. If the person is an unemancipated minor, his or her parent or guardian is also liable for the amount of the reward paid [Gov. Code § 53069.5].

[b] Willful Damage to or Destruction of Property

A local agency may offer and pay a reward for information leading to the determination of the identity of, and the apprehension of, any person who willfully damages or destroys any property. The amount of the reward is to be determined by the local agency [Gov. Code § 53069.5; see Gov. Code § 54951 (defining "local agency")].

The person who committed the willful damage or destruction is liable for the amount of the reward paid, if the person willfully damaged or destroyed any property of a local agency, or any property of any other local agency or state or federal agency located within the boundaries of the local agency. If the person is an unemancipated minor, his or her parent or guardian is also liable for the amount of the reward paid [Gov. Code § 53069.5].

[c] Aiding Peace Officer

A local agency may offer and pay a reward to any person who comes to the aid of any peace officer of the local agency or who furnishes information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person or persons killing or assaulting with a deadly weapon or inflicting serious bodily harm on a peace officer of the local agency while the officer is acting in the line of duty. The amount of the reward is to be determined by the local agency [Gov. Code § 53069.7; see Gov. Code § 54951 (defining "local agency")].

[4] Rewards Offered by Board of Supervisors

The board of supervisors of a county may offer and pay rewards, payable from county funds, for the furnishing of information leading to the apprehension and conviction of persons who willfully destroy or damage property of the county [Gov. Code § 26207].

The board of supervisors may also offer and pay rewards, payable from county funds, for the furnishing of information leading to the apprehension and conviction of persons who commit within the county criminal acts against the person or residence of a public officer or employee [Gov. Code § 26207].

The board of supervisors may establish a uniform procedure for the payment of rewards, payable from county funds, for ideas or suggestions made by members of the public, which the board determines, in its discretion, would reasonably result in financial savings to the county [Gov. Code § 26208; see Gov. Code § 26209 (authorizing board of supervisor of Humboldt County to establish reward procedure for ideas and suggestions of county employees as well as members of public)].

[5] Rewards to Be Paid by Local Court

Every person giving information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person for refuse dumping in violation of Penal Code § 374.3, or for shooting a firearm from or on a public road or highway in violation of Penal Code § 374c, is entitled to a reward equal to half of the fine levied against and collected from the offender. The reward is to be paid by the court. If the reward is payable to two or more persons, it is to be divided equally [Penal Code § 374a].

[6] Rewards Offered by Department of Forestry

A person who gives information leading to the arrest and conviction, or commitment to a public facility, of any person who willfully and maliciously sets fire to any property in a state responsibility area [see Pub. Res. Code § 4125 et. seq.], is eligible for a reward of up to $10,000 out of state funds that are made available to the Department of Forestry for fire protection [Pub. Res. Code § 4417(a); see Pub. Res. Code § 4003 ("department" defined)]. If the fire results in death or great bodily injury to anyone, including fire protection personnel, or if the fire causes substantial structural damage, the person is eligible for an enhanced reward of up to $25,000 [Pub. Res. Code § 4417(b), (c)]. The reward may be paid on the initiative of the Department or on application by the person eligible for the reward. If more than one person is eligible for the reward, the Department will determine how the reward should be divided, taking into consideration the significance of the information contributed by each of the eligible persons [Pub. Res. Code § 4417(d)].

[7] Rewards Offered by State Department of Health Services

Any person who provides information that materially contributes to the imposition of a civil penalty or criminal fine against any person violating the hazardous waste control laws shall be paid a reward pursuant to the regulations adopted by the State Department of Health Services [Health & Safety Code § 25191.7(a); see Health & Safety Code § 25191.7(f) (adoption of regulations; determination of "materially contributed"); see also Health & Safety Code § 25100 et seq. (hazardous waste control)]. If more than one person provides information about a single violation, the first notification received by the Department is eligible for the reward, unless the notifications are postmarked on the same day or telephone notifications are received on the same day, in which case the reward is to be equally divided among the informants [Health & Safety Code § 25191.7(c)].

The reward is required to be equal to 10 percent of the amount of the civil penalty or criminal fine that is collected, not to exceed $5000 [Health & Safety Code § 25191.7(a)].

If the information results in an imposition of a civil penalty, the reward is paid by the State Department of Health Services. If the information results in an imposition of a criminal fine, the reward is paid by the county [Health & Safety Code § 25191.7(a)].

No public officer or employee is eligible for the reward, unless the reporting of the violation does not relate in any manner to his or her responsibilities as a public officer or employee [Health & Safety Code § 25191.7(d)].

If an informant has provided information that the business in which he or she is employed has committed a violation, the informant is not eligible for the reward if the employee intentionally or negligently caused the violation or if the employee's primary and regular responsibilities included investigating the violation, unless the business knowingly caused the violation [Health & Safety Code § 25191.7(e)].

[8] Rewards Offered by South Coast Air Quality Management District

Any person who provides information that materially contributes to the imposition of a civil penalty or criminal fine against any person for violating any provision of Health & Safety Code § 41500 et seq. or any rule, regulation, or order of a district pertaining to mobile source emission regulations or limitations must be paid a reward in accordance with regulations adopted by the South Coast Air Quality Management District under Health & Safety Code § 42405.1(f) [Health & Safety Code § 42405.1(a),(h)]. The reward may not exceed 10 percent of the amount of the civil penalty or criminal fine collected by the district, district attorney, or city attorney, and may not exceed $5,000 [Health & Safety Code § 42405.1(a)].

If there is more than one informant for a single violation, the first to notify the district is eligible for the reward. If notifications are postmarked or telephoned on the same day, the reward must be divided equally among the informants [Health & Safety Code § 42405.1(c)].

Federal, state, and local public officers and employees are not eligible for the reward, unless the reporting of the violations is not related to their responsibilities as public officers or employees [Health & Safety Code § 42405.1(d)].

No employee who reports a violation by the business in which he or she is employed is eligible for the reward, if the employee intentionally or negligently caused the violation or if the employee's primary and regular responsibilities include investigating the violation, unless the business knowingly caused the violation [Health & Safety Code § 42405.1(e)].

[9] Establishment of Reward Program by Tax Board

The State Board of Equalization, under its regulations, may establish a reward program for information resulting in the identification of underreported or unreported sales and use taxes. The reward may not exceed 10 percent of the taxes collected as a result of the information provided [Rev. & Tax Code § 7060(a)]. However, any person employed by or under contract with any state or federal tax collection agency is not eligible for the reward [Rev. & Tax Code § 7060(a)].

The Franchise Tax Board, under its regulations, may establish a reward program for information resulting in the identification of underreported or unreported bank and corporation income subject to taxes. The reward may not exceed 10 percent of the taxes collected as a result of the information provided [Rev. & Tax Code § 19525]. Persons employed by or under contract to state or federal tax collection agencies are not eligible for awards under Rev. & Tax. Code § 19525.

[10] Performing Official Act

It is against sound public policy to allow a public officer who is under a duty to arrest criminals to receive a reward for the performance of that duty [see, e.g., Lees v. Colgan (1898) 120 Cal. 262, 265-270, 52 P. 502 (even though Legislature gave governor authority to offer reward under Penal Code § 1547, authority does not include offering reward to public officer performing his or her duties)]. Further, every executive or ministerial officer, employee, or appointee of the State of California or any county, city, or other political subdivision, who knowingly asks, receives, or agrees to receive, and every judicial officer who asks for or receives, any emolument, gratuity, or reward, or any promise of the same, except such as may be authorized by law, for doing any official act, is guilty of a misdemeanor [Penal Code §§ 70(a), 94]. These provisions abrogate earlier decisions holding that an officer could accept a reward from a private party if his or her superiors consented [see, e.g., Lees v. Colgan (1898) 120 Cal. 262, 265-270, 52 P. 502] . They do not, however, appear to abrogate other early decisions holding that a public officer may accept a reward for services rendered that do not fall within the scope of his or her official duties [see 2 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 301, 301-302 (1943)] .

[11] Person Employed to Return Fugitive

When the governor of California has demanded the surrender of a fugitive from justice from the executive authority of another state or foreign government, either the state or a local government may employ a person to travel to the foreign jurisdiction for the express purpose of returning the fugitive to California. The state controller on approval of the governor will pay the employed person for the services rendered [Penal Code § 1557]. It is a misdemeanor for a public officer or other person to pay or receive any other reward for this service [Penal Code § 1558].

§ 493.31 Decisions

Reward is not available when claimant was already being compensated for performing act for which reward is posted; plaintiff not eligible for reward because he had been requested to keep lookout for acts or sources of pollution, and request had been accompanied by offer of compensation; immaterial whether or not plaintiff had actually agreed to keep lookout for compensation. Van Horn v. Ricks Water Co. (1896) 115 Cal. 448, 452, 47 P. 361

"Bounty" distinguished from "reward," although both close in meaning; "bounty" refers to offer of gratuity for performance of many persons, each of whom on performance will be entitled to gratuity without prejudice from or to claims of others, while "reward" applies to single service that can only be performed once, and is earned only by person or cooperating persons who succeed while others fail. Ingram v. Colgan (1895) 106 Cal. 113, 124, 39 P. 437

When offer for reward is not expressly limited in time, presumption is that it remained open on fifth day after it was made; revocation of offer is matter of defense. Wilson v. Stump (1894) 103 Cal. 255, 258, 37 P. 151

Offer and promise to pay reward is only proposal or conditional promise and not consummated contract; however, when person relies on offer and performs service before offer is revoked, valid contract is consummated. Wilson v. Stump (1894) 103 Cal. 255, 257, 37 P. 151

To recover reward that is advertised, claimant must prove that he or she substantially performed service as proposed in advertisement. Burke v. Wells, Fargo & Co. (1875) 50 Cal. 218, 221

Offer of reward or compensation, either to particular person or class of persons, or to any and all persons, is conditional promise that becomes legal and binding contract if any one to whom offer is made performs service before offer is revoked; offer may be revoked at any time by offeror. Ryer v. Stockwell (1859) 14 Cal. 134, 137

When grant of award was by its own terms discretionary by private company, employee reading about award could not have reasonably concluded that he or she would be entitled to reward by submitting suggestion, but should have understood that submission was only gratuity and did not create binding contract. Lisec v. United Air Lines, Inc.

(1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 969, 978, 149 Cal. Rptr. 847

Valid contract is formed when person returns property to another who has made express promise of reward, either to particular person or in general terms to any one who will return property to him or her, or even by publication of advertisement offering reward; offer may be revoked before being acted on. Berthiaume v. John Doe (1913) 22 Cal. App. 78, 79-80, 133 P. 515

Plaintiff alleges:

[1. _____ (Allege basis for venue, e.g., Defendant _____ (name) is, and at all times herein mentioned was, a resident of _____ County, California.]

[2. Defendants Doe I through Doe _____, inclusive, are sued herein under fictitious names. Their true names and capacities are unknown to plaintiff. When their true names and capacities are ascertained, plaintiff will amend this complaint by inserting their true names and capacities herein. (Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges, that each of the fictitiously named defendants is responsible in some manner for the occurrences herein alleged, and that plaintiff's damages as herein alleged were proximately caused by those defendants.)]

[3. Plaintiff is informed and believes and thereon alleges that at all times herein mentioned defendant _____ (name) was the agent of defendant _____ (name), and in doing the things hereinafter alleged was acting in the scope of that agency and with the permission and consent of his/her codefendant.]

4. On or about _____ [date], _____ [describe circumstances over which offer of reward arose, e.g., a pet collie dog, Fido, belonging to _____ (name), disappeared from the residence of _____ (name)].

5. On or about _____ [date], _____ [describe offer of reward, e.g., defendant _____ (name) placed an advertisement in the _____ (name of publication), a copy of which is attached hereto and made a part hereof, offering a reward of $30,000 for the safe return of Fido to him/her].

6. Plaintiff, on or about _____ [date], after _____ [reading or learning of or other as appropriate] the above-described offer of reward and in reliance on that offer, _____ [describe performance of offer, e.g., discovered the whereabouts of Fido, and safely returned the dog to defendant _____ (name).]

7. On or about _____ [date], plaintiff by _____ [form of demand, e.g., telephone], made demand on defendant _____ [name] at _____, California, for payment of the promised reward, which defendant _____ [name] refused and continues to refuse to pay.

8. As a result of the breach of the contract by defendant(s) _____ [name(s)] for payment of reward, plaintiff has suffered damages in the amount of $_____.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant(s) as follows:

1. For compensatory damages in the sum of $_____;

2. For interest on the sum of $_____ from and after _____ [date];

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

_____ [typed name]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action for damages for breach of contract for a reward offered by private party [see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 337, 339 (statute of limitations)].

[3] Allegations

The complaint includes initial, optional paragraphs that allege:

- A basis for venue (Paragraph 1).
- Fictitiously named defendants (Paragraph 2).
- Agency (Paragraph 3).

It then alleges the elements of a cause of action for breach of contract for reward:

- Defendant's offer of a reward (Paragraphs 4, 5).
- The performance of the act for which the reward was offered (Paragraph 6).
- The demand for payment of reward (Paragraph 7) [see Wilson v. Stump (1894) 103 Cal. 255, 257, 37 P. 151] .
- The amount of damages to which plaintiff is entitled (Paragraph 8) [see Civ. Code §§ 3300, 3302].

[4] Costs and Attorney's Fees

If the plaintiff prevails in the action, he or she is entitled to costs [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1021, 1032-1033.5]. Attorney's fees, however, are generally available in a contract action only when specifically provided for in the contract itself [see Civ. Code § 1717; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1021; for general discussion and forms relating to costs and attorney's fees, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees].

[5] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified also, if the action is an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Jurisdiction and Venue

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

When a defendant has contracted to perform an obligation in a particular county, venue is proper either in the county in which the obligation is to be performed or in which the contract in fact was entered into, or in the county in which the defendant or any defendant resides at the commencement of the action [see Paragraph 1]. The county in which the obligation is incurred is deemed to be the county in which it is to be performed, unless there is a special contract in writing to the contrary [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. For further discussion, including alternative bases for venue, see Ch. 571, Venue .

8. On or about _____ [date], _____ [name of public entity] _____[rejected the claim in its entirety or allowed the claim in the amount of

$_____ and rejected it as to the remainder or failed to act on the claim within the period of 45 days after its presentation, and the claim was thus deemed rejected, under the provisions of Government Code Section 912.4, at the expiration of the 45-day period, to wit, on _____ (date)].

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant(s) as follows:

1. For compensatory damages in the sum of $_____;

2. For interest on the sum of $_____ from and after _____ [date];

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification, if desired. See Form 1.]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action for damages for breach of contract for a reward offered by a public entity, officer, or employee, as authorized by statute, after a claim for the reward has been rejected.

To claim a reward offered by a public entity, officer, or employee, a claim must be presented in accordance with Gov. Code § 900 et seq. within one year after the accrual of the cause of action [see Gov. Code §§ 905 (claims against local public entities), 905.2 (claims against state), 911.2 (statute of limitations), 950.2 (claim against public employee)]. The claim requirement is a condition precedent to an action against the public entity, officer, or employee [Gov. Code §§ 945.4, 950.2; see also Gov. Code §§ 945.6, 950.6 (statutes of limitations)]. For further discussion of and forms for use as claims against public entities, officers, and employees, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

[3] Allegations

This complaint includes initial, optional paragraphs that allege:

- A basis for venue (Paragraph 1),
- Fictitiously named defendants (Paragraph 2), and
- Agency (Paragraph 3).

It then alleges the elements of a cause of action for breach of contract for reward:

- The circumstances over which the offer for reward arose (Paragraph 4),
- The offer of reward (Paragraph 5),
- The performance of the act for which the reward was offered (Paragraph 6),
- The claim for payment of reward (Paragraph 7) [see Gov. Code §§ 905, 905.2], and the rejection of the claim for reward (Paragraph 8) [see Gov. Code § 912.4].

[4] Venue

If the action is against a county, city and county, city, or local agency, the action is properly brought in the county in which the public entity is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 394(a)]. If the action is against a public officer, the action is brought in the county in which the cause of action arose [Code Civ. Proc. § 393(b)]. If, however, the action is brought against the state or a state agency or officer, the action may be brought in any county in which the Attorney General has an office, although the Attorney General may request a change of venue to Sacramento County [Code Civ. Proc. § 401; Gov. Code § 955].

[5] Verification

A public entity need not verify its answer even though the complaint is verified [see Code Civ. Proc. § 446]. The verification of a complaint against a public entity does, however, preclude a general denial in superior court and in some limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

[6] Cross References

For discussion and forms relating to claims and actions against public entities and officers, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES that on or about _____ [date], before plaintiff acted on the offer of reward stated in the complaint, defendant withdrew the offer by _____ [describe withdrawal, e.g., publicly announcing on the evening news programs of the American Broadcasting Company, the National Broadcasting Company, and the Columbia Broadcasting Company, that the offer of reward was thereby withdrawn].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by a defendant as an affirmative defense allegation in his or her answer in an action for damages for breach of contract for a reward. The affirmative defense alleged is that the defendant withdrew the offer [Wilson v. Stump (1894) 103 Cal. 255, 258, 37 P. 151 ; Ryer v. Stockwell (1859) 14 Cal. 134, 137] of reward before the plaintiff performed the act for which the reward was offered [Berthiaume v. John Doe (1913) 22 Cal. App. 78, 79-80, 133 P. 515] . A. Introduction and Definitions

44-500 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 500.10

§ 500.10 Governing Statutes

[1] Division 2 of the Commercial Code

Statutes governing sales or contracts to sell goods under Division 2 of the Commercial Code are contained in Com. Code § 2101 et seq. Unless the context otherwise requires, Division 2 applies to transactions in goods; it does not apply to any transaction that, although in the form of an unconditional contract to sell or present sale, is intended to operate only as a security transaction [see Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions]. Nor does Division 2 impair or repeal any statute regulating sales to consumers, farmers, or other specified classes of buyers [Com. Code § 2102]. For instance, vehicles, although goods, are excluded from the scope of Division 2 because sales of vehicles are regulated by the Vehicle Code [Quartz of S. Cal., Inc. v. Mullen Bros., Inc. (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 901, 907-908, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 54].

[2] Applicability of Division 9 to Sales Covered by Division 2

Division 9 (Secured Transactions, Com. Code § 9101 et seq.), discussed in Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions , governs particular security interests arising under Division 2 as follows [Com. Code § 9109(a)]:

- Interests arising under Com. Code § 2401 (identification of goods), discussed in § 500.11[4].
- Interests arising under Com. Code § 2505 (shipment under reservation), discussed in § 500.35[6].
- The buyer's special interest under Com. Code § 2711(3), which arises on buyer's indentifying the goods to the contract, discussed in § 500.76[2].

However, until the debtor obtains possession of the goods, all of the following rules apply [Com. Code § 9110]:

- The security interest is enforceable, even if Com. Code § 9203(b)(3) has not been satisfied.
- Filing is not required to perfect the security interest.

- The rights of the secured party after default by the debtor are governed by Division 2 (Com. Code § 2101 et seq.) or Division 10 (Com. Code § 10101 et seq.), in the case of personal property leases.

- The security interest has priority over a conflicting security interest created by the debtor.

Security interests arising under Com. Code § 2401 or 2505, a buyer's security interest under Com. Code § 2711(3), or a lessee's security interest under Com. Code § 10508(e), until the debtor obtains possession of the collateral, are perfected when they attach [Com. Code § 9309(6)].

The general rule [Com. Code § 9322(a)-(e)] governing priority of security interests is subject to Com. Code § 9110 (discussed above) with respect to a security interest arising under Division 2 [Com. Code § 9322(f)(4)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Introduction and Definitions

44-500 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 500.11

§ 500.11 Definitions

[1] Buyer

In Division 2, unless the context otherwise requires, "buyer" means a person who buys or contracts to buy goods [Com. Code § 2103(1)(a)].

[2] Goods

"Goods" means all things (including specially manufactured goods) which are movable at the time of identification to the contract for sale other than the money in which the price is to be paid, investment securities (Division 8) and things in action. "Goods" also includes the unborn young of animals, growing crops, and other identified things attached to realty as described in Com. Code § 2107, governing goods to be severed from realty, and discussed in [5], below [Com. Code § 2105(1)].

Goods must be both existing and identified before any interest in them can pass. Goods which are not both existing and identified are "future" goods. A purported present sale of future goods or of any interest them operates as a contract to sell [Com. Code § 2105(2)]. There may be a sale of a part interest in existing identified goods [Com. Code § 2105(3)]. An undivided share in an identified bulk of fungible goods is sufficiently identified to be sold although the quantity of the bulk is not determined. Any agreed proportion of that bulk or any quantity of it agreed on by number, weight or other measure may to the extent of the seller's interest in the bulk be sold to the buyer who then becomes an owner in common [Com. Code § 2105(4)].

"Lot" means a parcel or a single article which is the subject matter of a separate sale or delivery, whether or not it is sufficient to perform the contract [Com. Code § 2105(5)].

"Commercial unit" means a unit of goods which by commercial usage is a single whole for purposes of sale and division of which materially impairs its character or value on the market or in use. A commercial unit may be a single article (as a machine) or a set of articles (as a suite of furniture or an assortment of sizes) or a quantity (as a bale, gross, or carload) or any other unit treated in use or in the relevant market as a single whole [Com. Code § 2105(6)].

[3] Merchant; Between Merchants

"Merchant" means a person who deals in goods of the kind, or otherwise by his or her occupation holds himself or herself out as having knowledge or skill peculiar to the practices or goods, involved in the transaction or to whom that knowledge or skill may be attributed by his or her employment of an agent or broker or other intermediary who by his or her occupation holds himself or herself out as having that knowledge or skill [Com. Code § 2104(1)]. "Between merchants" means in any transaction with respect to which both parties are chargeable with the knowledge or skill of merchants [Com. Code § 2104(3)].

[4] Sale

The term "sale" as used in this chapter and in Division 2 means the passing of title from the seller to the buyer for a price [Com. Code § 2106(1); see Imperial NH3 v. Central Valley Feed Yards, Inc. (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 513, 520, 139 Cal. Rptr. 8] . In determining when a "sale" occurs, therefore, the passage of title is critical. Each provision of Division 2 with regard to the rights, obligations, and remedies of the seller, the buyer, purchasers, or other third parties applies irrespective of title to the goods except when the provision refers to title. Insofar as situations are not covered by the other provisions of Division 2 and matters concerning title become material, the following rules apply [Com. Code § 2401]:

- Title to goods may not pass under a contract for sale prior to their identification to the contract (discussed in § 500.51), and, unless otherwise explicitly agreed to, the buyer acquires by their identification a special property as limited by the Commercial Code. Any retention or reservation by the seller of the title (property) in goods shipped or delivered to the buyer is limited in effect to a reservation of a security interest. Subject to these provisions and to the provisions of Division 9 (secured transactions, discussed in Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions), title to goods passes from the seller to the buyer in any manner and on any conditions explicitly agreed on by the parties [Com. Code § 2401(1)].

- Unless otherwise explicitly agreed, title passes to the buyer at the time and place at which the seller completes its performance regarding the physical delivery of the goods, despite any reservation of a security interest and even though a document of title is to be delivered at a different time or place. In particular, despite any reservation of a security interest by the bill of lading, if the contract requires or authorizes the seller to send the goods to the buyer but does not require him or her to deliver them at destination, title passes to the buyer at the time and place of shipment. If the contract requires delivery at destination, title passes on tender there [Com. Code. § 2401(2)].

- Unless otherwise explicitly agreed, when delivery is to be made without moving the goods:

  - If the seller is to deliver a tangible document of title, title passes at the time when and the place where the seller delivers that document [Com. Code § 2401(3)(a)].

  - If the seller is to deliver an electronic document of title, title passes when the seller delivers the document [Com. Code § 2401(3)(a)].

  - If the goods are already identified at the time of contracting and no documents of title are to be delivered, title passes at the time and place of contracting [Com. Code § 2401(3)(b)].

- A rejection or other refusal by the buyer to receive or retain the goods, whether or not justified, or a justified revocation of acceptance reverts title to the goods in the seller. This revesting occurs by operation of law and is not a "sale" [Com. Code § 2401(4)].

A contract for the sale, apart from the land, of growing crops or other things attached to realty and capable of severance without material harm thereto, or of timber to be cut, is a contract for the sale of goods regardless of whether the subject matter is to be severed by the buyer or by the seller, even though it forms a part of the realty at the time of contracting, and the parties can by identification effect a present sale before severance [Com. Code § 2107(2)]. In addition, a contract for the sale of minerals or the like (including oil and gas) or a structure or its material to be removed from realty is a contract for the sale of goods if they are to be severed by the seller. Until severance, however, a purported interest in land is effective only as a contract to sell [Com. Code § 2107(1)].

[5] Seller

In Division 2 unless the context otherwise requires, "seller" means a person who sells or contracts to sell goods [Com. Code § 2103(1)(d)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Formation of Contracts

44-500 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 500.20

§ 500.20 Formation

[1] Generally

A contract for sale of goods may be made in any manner sufficient to show agreement [see Com. Code § 1201(b)(3)], including conduct by both parties [see Com. Code § 1201(b)(26)] that recognizes the existence of the contract [Com. Code § 2204(1)]. An agreement sufficient to constitute a contract for sale may be found even though the moment of its making is undetermined [Com. Code § 2204(2)] and one or more terms [Com. Code § 1201(b)(40)] are left open, if the parties have intended to make a contract and there is a reasonably certain basis for giving an appropriate remedy [Com. Code §§ 1201(b)(32), 2204(3)]. A party includes a person [Com. Code § 1201(b)(27)] acting through an agent [see Com. Code § 1201(b)(26)].

If terms are left open, commercial standards on the point of "indefiniteness" are intended to be applied [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2204]. Some of these standards are supplied by the Code itself, including provisions for certain missing terms, such as the provisions in Com. Code § 2305 fixing the price when the contract contains an open price term [see § 500.33[2]], and in Com. Code § 2311 permitting the parties to supply missing terms in the course of their performance [see § 500.32[2]].

The more terms the parties leave open, the less it is likely the parties intend to conclude a binding contract [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2204]. Even the failure to agree on one term that is essential to the contract and that cannot be added by recourse to commercial standards may indicate that the parties did not reach an agreement. For example, an open price term that is to be fixed by a third person is deemed to be the price at the time of delivery if the person fails to fix the price [see Com. Code § 2305(1)(c)]. But if the third person was chosen not merely as a barometer or index of a fair price but as an essential condition to entering into a contract, the failure to set the price may show that no contract was formed [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2305].

Even if the parties' writings [Com. Code § 1201(b)(43)] are insufficient to establish a contract for sale, conduct by both parties that recognizes the existence of a contract, such as shipping the goods, accepting the goods, and paying for the goods, is sufficient. In those cases, the terms of the contract consist of those on which the writings of the parties agree, together with any supplementary terms incorporated under the provisions of the Commercial Code [Com. Code § 2207(3); see Steiny & Co. v. California Elec. Supply Co. (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 285, 294-296 (when conduct by contractor and seller showed that contract had been formed despite materially differing terms of purchase order and invoice, trial court's failure to instruct the jury on Com. Code § 2207 was prejudicial error); Textile Unlimited, Inc. v. A.BMH and Co. Inc. (9th Cir. 2001) 240 F.3d 781, 787-788 (because under Com. Code § 2207(3) disputed additional terms on which parties do not agree drop out from contract, disputed arbitration clause did not become part of contract; UCC does not contain "gap-filler" provision providing for arbitration)].

[2] Offer and Acceptance

Unless otherwise unambiguously indicated by the language or circumstances of the agreement, an offer to make a contract is construed as inviting acceptance in any manner and by any medium reasonable in the circumstances [Com. Code § 2206(1)(a)]. However, if the beginning of a requested performance is a reasonable mode of acceptance, an offeror who is not notified of acceptance within a reasonable time may treat the offer as having lapsed before acceptance [Com. Code § 2206(2)].

An order or other offer to buy goods for prompt or current shipment is construed as inviting acceptance either by a prompt promise to ship or by the prompt or current shipment of conforming [Com. Code § 2106(2)] or nonconforming goods, unless the seller seasonably [Com. Code § 1205(c)] notifies the buyer that the shipment of nonconforming goods is offered only as an accommodation to the buyer [Com. Code § 2206(1)(b); see Com. Code § 2504]. "Shipment" for the purpose of acceptance under Com. Code § 2206(b) does not include the beginning of delivery by the seller's own truck or by messenger, although loading on the seller's own truck might be construed as the beginning of performance under Com. Code § 2206(2)[see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2206].

[3] Firm Offers

A merchant's [Com. Code § 2104(1)] offer to buy or sell goods in a signed [Com. Code § 1201(b)(37)] writing which by its terms gives assurance that it will be held open is not revocable, for lack of consideration, during the time stated or, if no time is stated, for a reasonable time [Com. Code § 1205], although the period of irrevocability may never exceed three months [Com. Code § 2205(a)]. For the purpose of this provision, almost every person in business would be deemed to be a merchant [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2104]. Any term of assurance on a form supplied by the offeree must be separately signed by the offeror [Com. Code § 2205(a)]. For the purpose of this statute, "signed" includes authentication [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2205]. An assurance under Com. Code § 2205 which is made for a period longer than three months will bind the offeror only for the first three months, unless it is renewed or supported by consideration [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2205].

In any case, an oral or written offer to supply goods to a contractor made by a merchant who has actual or imputed knowledge that the contractor (1) is licensed under California law or a similar law of another state and (2) will rely on the offer in submitting its bid for a construction contract with a third party is irrevocable for 10 days after the awarding of the contract to the prime contractor but in no event for more than 90 days after the date the bid or offer was made, unless the merchant provides that the offer will be held open for less than these prescribed times. A merchant is released from an oral bid or offer of $2,500 or more unless the contractor or his or her agent confirms the offer within 48 hours after it was rendered [Com. Code § 2205(b)]. For a further discussion and a form for use in an action on a firm offer, see § 500.110.

[4] Additional Terms

A definite and seasonable expression of acceptance or a written confirmation which is sent within a reasonable time operates as an acceptance even though it states terms additional to or different from those offered or agreed on, unless acceptance is expressly made conditional on assent to the additional or different terms [Com. Code § 2207(1); see, e.g.,

PMC Inc. v. Porthole Yachts Ltd. (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 882, 888-889, 76 Cal.Rptr. 2d 832 (there was no acceptance under Com. Code § 2207(1) because addendum to agreement was sent on last day to accept, contents of addendum included new term, and cover letter emphasized conditional nature of acceptance); Textile Unlimited v. A..BMH & Co. (9th Cir. 2001) 240 F.3d 781, 787-788 (contract containing new terms, including arbitration clause, not formed under Com. Code § 2207(1) when no specific and unequivocal assent was given to supplemental conditions)]. Any additional terms are construed as proposals for addition to the contract and, between merchants, become part of the contract, unless (1) the offer expressly limits acceptance to the terms of the offer, (2) the terms materially alter the contract, or (3) notification [Com. Code § 1202(d)] of objection to the terms has already been given or is given within a reasonable time after notice of them is received [Com. Code § 2207(2); Boyd v. Oscar Fisher Co. (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 368, 379, 258 Cal. Rptr. 473 (attorney's fees provision in invoices was additional term of dealership agreement between parties); see National Controls, Inc. v. Commodore Bus. Machines, Inc. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 693-695, 209 Cal. Rptr. 636 (oral contract complete in phone conversation, thus purchase order adding materially different term had no effect)].

If clauses on confirming forms sent by both parties conflict, each party is assumed to object to the other party's conflicting clause; thus, the requirement that there be notice of objection [Com. Code § 2207(2)] is satisfied and the conflicting terms do not become a part of the contract. The contract then consists of the terms originally expressly agreed to, the terms on which the confirmations agree, and the terms supplied by the provisions of the Code [Com. Code § 2207(3); see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2207; see also Transwestern Pipeline Co. v. Monsanto (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 502, 514-515, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 887] .

§ 500.21 Unconscionability

Section 2-302 of the Uniform Commercial Code dealing with unconscionable contracts or clauses has not been enacted in California based, in part, on the belief that giving courts unqualified power to strike down terms they might consider "unconscionable" could result in the renegotiation of contracts in every case of disagreement with the fairness of provisions the parties had accepted [see Cal. Code Comment to Com. Code § 2302].

In 1979, however, California enacted a general unconscionability statute, Civ. Code § 1670.5, governing all contracts, including contracts for the sale of goods under Division 2 [Stats. 1979, Ch 819, § 3; see Civ. Code § 1670.5]. Civ. Code § 1670.5 provides that if the court as a matter of law finds the contract or any clause of the contract to have been unconscionable at the time it was made, the court may refuse to enforce the contract, enforce the remainder of the contract without the unconscionable clause, or so limit the application of that clause as to avoid any unconscionable result [Civ. Code § 1670.5(a)]. When it is claimed or appears to the court that the contract or any clause thereof may be unconscionable, the parties are afforded a reasonable opportunity to present evidence as to its commercial setting, purpose, and effect in order to aid the court in its determination [Civ. Code § 1670.5(b)].

The basic test of unconscionability under Civ. Code § 1670.5 is whether, in the light of the general background and the needs of the particular case, the clauses involved are so one-sided as to be unconscionable under the circumstances existing at the time of the making of the contract [see Legislative Committee Comment to Civ. Code § 1670.5-Assembly 1979 Addition]. For a form and further discussion relating to unconscionability as an affirmative defense to a breach of contract action, see Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.146.

44-500 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 500.22

§ 500.22 Modification, Rescission, and Waiver

[1] No Consideration Required

An agreement modifying a contract within Division 2 needs no consideration to be binding [Com. Code § 2209(1); see also Civ. Code § 1697]. This rule also applies to oral modifications of oral contracts [see Cal. Code Comment to Com. Code § 2209]. Modifications nevertheless must be made in good faith, which may, as between merchants or against merchants in some situations, require an objectively demonstrable reason for seeking a modification. In any case the use of bad faith to escape performance on the original contract is barred, and the extortion of a modification without legitimate commercial reason is ineffective as a violation of the duty of good faith. A mere technical consideration also may not be used to support a modification made in bad faith [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2209].

[2] Satisfying Requirement of Writing

A signed agreement which excludes modification or rescission except by a signed writing cannot be otherwise modified or rescinded. Except as between merchants, such a requirement on a form supplied by a merchant must be separately signed by the other party [Com. Code § 2209(2)]. Modification or rescission includes abandonment or other change by mutual consent but does not include unilateral termination or cancellation [Com. Code § 2106(3),(4); see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2209]. In addition, the requirements of the statute of frauds [Com. Code § 2201] must be satisfied if the contract, as modified, is within the statute's provisions [Com. Code § 2209(3); see Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds].

[3] Waiver

When an attempt at modification or rescission does not satisfy the writing requirements of Com. Code § 2209(2) or (3), it nevertheless can operate as a waiver [Com. Code § 2209(4)]. A party who has made a waiver affecting an executory portion of the contract may retract the waiver by reasonable notification, received by the other party, indicating that strict performance will be required of any term waived, unless the retraction would be unjust in view of a material change of position in reliance on the waiver [Com. Code § 2209(5)].

The obligation of the seller is to transfer and deliver and the buyer's obligation is to accept [Com. Code § 2606] and pay in accordance with the contract [Com. Code § 2301]. To determine what is "in accordance with the contract," usage of trade, course of dealing and performance, and the general background of circumstances must be given due consideration in conjunction with the lay meaning of the words used to define the scope of the conditions and duties [see UCC Comment to *Com. C. Construction and Interpretation of Contract

§ 500.31 Parol Evidence

Terms with respect to which the confirmatory memoranda of the parties agree or which are otherwise set forth in a writing intended by the parties as a final expression of their agreement with respect to the terms included in that writing may not be contradicted by evidence of any prior agreement or of a contemporaneous oral agreement but may be explained or supplemented by course of dealing or usage of trade [Com. Code § 1303(b), (c)] or by course of performance [Com. Code §§ 1303(a), 2202(a); see § 500.32[1]], and by evidence of consistent additional terms, unless the court finds the writing to have been intended also as a complete and exclusive statement of the terms of the agreement [Com. Code § 2202(b); see Com. Code § 2207].

The Commercial Code alters the parol evidence rule by rejecting both the premise that the language used in the agreement or contract has the meaning attributable to it by rules of legal construction rather than the meaning which arises out of the commercial context in which it was used and the requirement that as a condition precedent to the admissibility of evidence of course of dealing, usage of trade, or course of performance the court determine that the language used in the writing be ambiguous [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2202]. More fundamentally, the Code alters the rule by assuming that the contract does not express the full agreement of the parties unless the court expressly so finds [see Cal. Code Comment to Com. Code § 2202; see also Civ. Code §§ 1625, 1647; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1856, 1857]. Moreover, if the court determines that the additional terms are such that, if agreed on, they would certainly have been included in the document, then evidence of their alleged making must not be considered by the trier of fact [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2202].

§ 500.32 Performance

[1] Course of Performance

A course of performance is a sequence of conduct between the parties to a particular transaction that exists if (1) the agreement of the parties with respect to the transaction involves repeated occasions for performance by a party and (2) the other party, with knowledge of the nature of the performance and opportunity for objection to it, accepts the performance or acquiesces in it without objection [Com. Code § 1303(a)]. The express terms of the agreement and any course of performance, as well as any course of dealing and usage of trade, are construed whenever reasonable as consistent with each other; but when that construction is unreasonable, express terms control course of performance and course of performance controls both course of dealing and usage of trade [Com. Code § 1303(e)]. Subject to the provisions of Com. Code § 2209[see discussion in § 500.22], course of performance is relevant to show a waiver or modification of any term inconsistent with that course of performance [Com. Code § 1303(f)].

[2] Specification of Particulars of Performance

An agreement for sale which is otherwise sufficiently definite [Com. Code § 2204(3)] to be a contract is not made invalid because it leaves particulars of performance to be specified by one of the parties, although any specification must be made in good faith and within limits set by commercial reasonableness [Com. Code § 2311(1)]. The agreement which permits one party to specify certain particulars of performance may be found in a course of dealing, usage of trade, or by implication from circumstances, as well as in the explicit language used by the parties [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2311].

Specifications or arrangements relating to shipment are at the seller's option, except as otherwise provided in Com. Code § 2319(1)(c),(3) (F.O.B. and F.A.S. terms) [see discussion in § 500.52[5][a]], and specifications relating to assortment of the goods are at the buyer's option, unless otherwise agreed [Com. Code § 2311(2)], not only under the parties' express terms but in the light of the background and circumstances in which they entered into the agreement [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2311].

If specifications relating to assortment of the goods or to shipment which would materially affect the other party's performance are not seasonably made, or if one party's cooperation which is necessary to the agreed performance of the other is not seasonably forthcoming, the other party, in addition to all other remedies, is excused for any resulting delay in his or her own performance [Com. Code § 2311(3)(a)] and in addition, may either proceed to perform in any reasonable manner or, after the time for a material part of his or her own performance, treat the failure to specify or to cooperate as a breach by failure to deliver or accept the goods [Com. Code § 2311(3)]. These remedies are not available to the party adhering to the terms of the contract, however, if the situation falls within the scope of Com. Code § 2614, discussed in § 500.32[4].

[3] Right to Assurance

A contract for sale imposes an obligation on each party that the other's expectation of receiving due performance will not be impaired. When reasonable grounds for insecurity arise with respect to the performance of either party, the other may, in writing, demand adequate assurance of due performance. Until receiving that assurance, the other party may, if commercially reasonable, suspend any performance for which he or she has not already received the agreed return by holding up performance pending the outcome of the demand, including holding up any preparatory action [see Com. Code § 2609(1); UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2609]. Between merchants the reasonableness of grounds for insecurity and the adequacy of any assurance offered is determined according to commercial standards [Com. Code § 2609(2)]. Under commercial standards and in accordance with commercial practice, a ground for insecurity need not arise from or be directly related to the contract in question, because the law as to "dependence" or "independence" of promises within a single contract does not control the application of Com. Code § 2609 [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2609]. In any case, acceptance of any improper delivery or payment does not prejudice the aggrieved party's right [Com. Code § 1201(b)(34)] to demand adequate assurance of future performance [Com. Code § 2609(3)].

After receipt of a justified demand, failure to provide, within a reasonable time not exceeding 30 days, reasonable assurance of due performance which is adequate under the circumstances of the particular case is a repudiation of the contract [Com. Code § 2609(4)]. A party who fails to provide that assurance may retract the repudiation, unless the aggrieved party has acted on the breach in some manner [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2609; Com. Code § 2611].

In addition to the protection given by statute when a ground for insecurity arises, a party may be given wide powers to cancel or readjust the contract when a ground for insecurity arises. This contract protection, however, must be read in light of the good faith obligation which is not subject to modification by agreement [Com. Code § 1302(b)], and any clause seeking to set up arbitrary standards for action is ineffective [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2609].

[4] Substituted Performance When Agreed Performance Impracticable

If, without fault [Com. Code § 1201(b)(17)] of either party, the agreed berthing, loading, or unloading facilities fail, an agreed type of carrier becomes unavailable, or the agreed manner of delivery otherwise becomes commercially impracticable but a commercially reasonable substitute is available, that substitute performance must be tendered and accepted [Com. Code § 2614(1)].

If the agreed means or manner of payment fails because of domestic or foreign governmental regulation, the seller may withhold or stop delivery, unless the buyer provides a means or manner of payment which is commercially a substantial equivalent. If delivery has already been taken, payment by the means or in the manner provided by the regulation discharges the buyer's obligation unless the regulation is discriminatory, oppressive, or predatory [Com. Code § 2614(2)].

§ 500.33 Price

[1] Manner of Payment

The price can be made payable in money or otherwise. If it is payable in whole or in part in goods, each party is a seller of the goods which he or she is to transfer [Com. Code § 2304(1)]. When all or part of the price is payable in an interest in realty, the transfer of the goods and the seller's obligations with reference to them are subject to Division 2, but not the transfer of the interest in realty or the transferor's obligations in connection with realty [Com. Code § 2304(2); see also discussions in § 500.35[3] and [4]].

[2] Open Price Term

The parties, if they so intend, can conclude a contract for sale even though the price is not settled. In that case, the price is a reasonable price at the time for delivery if any of the following is true [Com. Code § 2305(1)]:

- Nothing is said as to price.
- The price is left to be agreed by the parties and they fail to agree.
- The price is to be fixed in terms of some agreed market or other standard as set or recorded by a third person or agency and it is not so set or recorded.

Thus, an agreement is not unenforceable on the ground of indefiniteness because the price term is left open if the parties intend a binding agreement [see also discussion in § 500.20[1]; for a form for use in an action on a contract with an open price term, see § 500.101].

A price to be fixed by the seller or buyer means a price to be fixed in good faith [Com. Code § 2305(2); see Com. Code § 1201(b)(20)]. But in the normal case, a "posted price" or a future seller's or buyer's "given price," "price in effect," "market price," or the like satisfies the good faith requirement [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2305]. When a price left to be fixed in a way other than by agreement of the parties fails to be fixed through fault of one party, the other party has the option to treat the contract as canceled or to fix a reasonable price [Com. Code § 2305(3)].

If, however, the parties intend not to be bound unless the price is fixed or agreed, and it is not fixed or agreed, there is no contract [see § 500.121(form for affirmative defense)]. In that case the buyer must return any goods already received or if unable to do so, must pay their reasonable value at the time of delivery, and the seller must return any portion of the price paid on account [Com. Code § 2305(4)].

§ 500.34 Quantity

[1] When Quantity Must Be in Writing

The UCC makes no specific provision for supplying the quantity term in an agreement when none has been agreed to by the parties, except in the case of output and requirements contracts [see Com. Code § 2306 and discussion in [2], below; but see also Com. Code § 1201(b)(3) and the discussion in § 500.20[1]]. In any case, a contract for the sale of goods for the price of $500 or more is not enforceable under the statute of frauds beyond the quantity of goods shown in a writing [Com. Code § 2201(1)] or admitted [Com. Code § 2201(3)(b)]. Thus, while it need not be accurately stated, the quantity term is the only term which must appear in the writing [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2201].

[2] Output and Requirements Contracts

A term which measures the quantity by the output of the seller or the requirements of the buyer means the actual output or requirements that may occur in good faith, except that no quantity unreasonably disproportionate to any stated estimate or, in the absence of a stated estimate, to any normal or otherwise comparable prior output or requirements, may be tendered or demanded [Com. Code § 2306(1); see also Shea-Kaiser-Lockheed-Healy v. Department of Water & Power (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 679, 687-688, 140 Cal. Rptr. 884] . For further discussion and a form for use in an action on a requirements contract, see § 500.102.

A lawful agreement by either the seller or the buyer for exclusive dealing in the kind of goods concerned imposes, unless otherwise agreed, an obligation by the seller to use best efforts to supply the goods and by the buyer to use best efforts to promote their sale [Com. Code § 2306(2)]. Parties to these contracts are held to have impliedly, even when not expressly, bound themselves to use reasonable diligence as well as good faith in their performance [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2306]. In the case of a seller's breach of an output and requirements contract involving a limited source or market, specific performance is the typical remedy [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2716 and discussion in § 500.76[5]].

§ 500.35 Delivery

[1] General Rule

Unless otherwise agreed, all goods called for by a contract for sale must be tendered in a single delivery, and payment is due only on tender. However, if the circumstances give either party the right to make or demand delivery in lots [see Com. Code § 2105(5), discussed in § 500.11[2]], the price, if it can be apportioned, may be demanded for each lot [Com. Code § 2307]. A partial delivery under circumstances when it is not commercially feasible to deliver or to receive the goods in a single lot is not subject to rejection for a defect in quantity alone, unless the circumstances indicate a repudiation or default by the seller as to the expected balance or do not give the buyer ground for suspending his or her performance because of insecurity [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2307].

[2] Place

Unless otherwise agreed, the place for delivery of goods is the seller's place of business, or if the seller has none, the seller's residence [Com. Code § 2308(a)]. But, in a contract for sale of identified goods which to the knowledge of the parties at the time of contracting are in some other place, that place is the place for their delivery [Com. Code § 2308(b)]. Documents of title [Com. Code § 1201(b)(16)] may be delivered through customary banking channels [Com. Code § 2308(c)].

[3] Tender of Delivery and Payment

[a] Two Senses in Which "Tender" Is Used

"Tender" may be used in Division 2 in two different senses. Unless the context indicates otherwise, it refers to "due tender," which contemplates an offer coupled with a present ability to fulfill all the conditions resting on the tendering party and must be followed by actual performance if the other party shows himself or herself ready to proceed. At other times it is used to refer to an offer of goods or documents under a contract as if in fulfillment of its conditions, even though there is a defect when measured against the contract obligation. Used in either sense, however, "tender" connotes performance by the tendering party which puts the other party in default by failing to proceed in some manner

[see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2503].

[b] General Requirements for Tender

Tender of delivery requires that the seller put and hold conforming goods at the buyer's disposition and give the buyer any notification reasonably necessary to enable the buyer to take delivery. The manner, time, and place for tender are determined by the agreement and by Com. Code § 2501 et seq. (performance) [Com. Code § 2503(1)]. In particular, tender must be at a reasonable hour, and if it is of goods, they must be kept available for the period reasonably necessary to enable the buyer to take possession [Com. Code § 2503(1)(a)], but unless otherwise agreed, the buyer must furnish facilities reasonably suited to the receipt of the goods [Com. Code § 2503(1)(b)]. Usage of the trade and the circumstances of the particular case determine what is a reasonable hour for tender and what constitutes a reasonable period of holding the goods available [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2503].

If the case is within Com. Code § 2504 respecting shipment by the seller [see discussion in [5], below], tender requires that the seller comply with its provisions [Com. Code § 2503(2)]. If the seller is required to deliver at a particular destination, tender requires that the seller comply with Com. Code § 2503(1), above, and also, in any appropriate case, tender documents as described in Com. Code § 2503(4),(5) [Com. Code § 2503(3)]. However, the seller is not obligated to deliver at a named destination and bear the concurrent risk of loss until arrival, unless he or she has specifically agreed to so deliver or the commercial understanding of the terms used by the parties contemplates such delivery [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2503].

[c] Tender of Goods in Possession of Bailee

If goods are in the possession of a bailee [see Com. Code § 7102(a)(1)] and are to be delivered without being moved, tender requires that the seller either tender a negotiable document of title covering those goods or procure acknowledgment by the bailee of the buyer's right to possession of the goods [Com. Code § 2503(4)(a)]. However, tender to the buyer of a nonnegotiable document of title or of a record directing to the bailee to deliver is sufficient tender unless the buyer seasonably objects, receipt by the bailee of notification of the buyer's rights fixes those rights as against the bailee and all third persons. Risk of loss of the goods and of any failure by the bailee to honor the nonnegotiable document of title or to obey the direction remains on the seller until the buyer has had a reasonable time to present the document or direction, and a refusal by the bailee to honor the document or to obey the direction defeats the tender [Com. Code § 2503(4)(b)].

If the contract requires the seller to deliver documents [see Com. Code § 1201(b)(15)], the seller must tender all documents in correct form, except as provided in Com. Code § 2323(2) with respect to bills of lading [Com. Code § 1201(b)(6)] in a set [Com. Code § 2503(5)(a)]. Tender through customary banking channels is sufficient. Dishonor of a draft [Com. Code §§ 3104, 3502] accompanying or associated with the documents constitutes nonacceptance or rejection [Com. Code § 2503(5)(b)].

[4] Tender of Deliver and Payment as Conditions

Tender of delivery is a condition to the buyer's duty to accept the goods and, unless otherwise agreed (as when payment in advance has been promised or a letter of credit term included), to the buyer's duty to pay for them. Tender entitles the seller to acceptance of the goods and to payment according to the contract [Com. Code § 2507(1); see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2507]. If payment is due and demanded on the delivery to the buyer of goods or documents of title, the buyer's right as against the seller to retain or dispose of them is conditional on his or her making the payment due [Com. Code § 2507(2)].

Unless otherwise agreed, tender of payment is a condition to the seller's duty to tender and complete any delivery [Com. Code § 2511(1)]. This requirement is applicable to noncommercial sales generally, to ordinary sales at retail, to documentary contracts in general, and to contracts which anticipate shipment by the seller but contain no term on time and manner of payment. It has no application, however, to the great body of commercial contracts which carry credit terms [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2511]. Tender of payment is sufficient when made by any means or in any manner current in the ordinary course of business unless the seller demands payment in legal tender and gives any extension of time reasonably necessary to procure it [Com. Code § 2511(2)].

Subject to the provisions of the Commercial Code on the effect of an instrument on an obligation [Com. Code § 3310], payment by check [Com. Code § 3104] is conditional and is defeated as between the parties by dishonor of the check on due presentment [Com. Code § 2511(3)].

[5] Shipment

If the seller is required or authorized to send the goods to the buyer and the contract does not require delivery at a particular destination, then unless otherwise agreed, the seller must put the goods in the possession of a carrier and make a contract for their transportation that is reasonable with regard to the nature of the goods and other circumstances of the case [Com. Code § 2504(a)]. The seller must also obtain and promptly deliver or tender in due form any document necessary to enable the buyer to obtain possession of the goods or otherwise required by the agreement or by usage of trade [Com. Code § 2504(b)]. In addition, the seller must promptly notify the buyer of the shipment [Com. Code § 2504(c)].

Failure to notify the buyer, however, or to make a proper contract for transportation is a ground for rejection only if material delay or loss ensues [Com. Code § 2504(c)]. A standard and acceptable manner of notification in open credit shipments is the sending of an invoice and, in the case of documentary contracts, is the prompt forwarding of the documents as provided under Com. Code § 2504(b), above [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2504].

[6] Shipment Under Reservation

If the seller has identified goods to the contract by or before shipment, the seller's procurement of a negotiable bill of lading to his or her own order or otherwise reserves in him or her a security interest [Com. Code § 1201(b)(35)] in the goods; the seller's procurement of the bill to the order of a financing agency or of the buyer indicates in addition only the seller's expectation of transferring that interest to the person named [Com. Code § 2505(1)(a)]. A nonnegotiable bill of lading to the seller or his or her nominee reserves possession of the goods as security, but except in a case of conditional delivery [Com. Code § 2507(2)], a nonnegotiable bill of lading naming the buyer as consignee [see Com. Code § 7102(a)(3)] reserves no security interest even though the seller retains possession or control of the bill of lading [Com. Code § 2505(1)(b)]. When shipment by the seller with reservation of a security interest is in violation of the contract for sale, it constitutes an improper contract for transportation within Com. Code § 2505(1) but impairs neither the rights given to the buyer by shipment and identification of the goods to the contract nor the seller's powers as a holder [Com. Code § 1201(b)(21)] of a negotiable document of title [Com. Code § 2505(2)].

[7] Rights of Financing Agency

A financing agency, by paying or purchasing for value [Com. Code § 1201(b)(29), 1204] a draft which relates to a shipment of goods, acquires, to the extent of the payment or purchase and in addition to its own rights under the draft and document of title securing it, any rights of the shipper in the goods, including the right to stop delivery and the shipper's right to have the draft honored by the buyer [Com. Code § 2506(1)]. A draft which "relates to a shipment of goods" is a broad term which particularly covers the case of a draft against an invoice or against a delivery order. It is unnecessary that there be an explicit assignment of the invoice attached to the draft to bring the transaction within the reason of Com. Code § 2506(1). The rights of the shipper of the goods which are acquired by the financing agency are merely security rights and are subject to the buyer's right to force delivery on tender of the price [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2506].

The right to reimbursement of a financing agency which has in good faith honored or purchased the draft under commitment to or authority from the buyer is not impaired by subsequent discovery of defects with reference to any relevant document which was apparently regular [Com. Code § 2506(2)].

"Financing agency" means a bank, finance company or other person who in the ordinary course of business makes advances against goods or documents of title or who by arrangement with either the seller or the buyer intervenes in ordinary course to make or collect payment due or claimed under the contract for sale, as by purchasing or paying the seller's draft or making advances against it or by merely taking it for collection whether or not documents of title accompany or are associated with the draft. "Financing agency" includes also a bank or other person who similarly intervenes between persons who are in the position of seller [see Com. Code § 2707] and buyer in respect to the goods [Com. Code § 2104(2)].

[8] Improper Delivery and Cure by Seller

When any tender or delivery by the seller is rejected because it is nonconforming, and the time for performance has not yet expired, the seller may seasonably notify the buyer of his or her intention to cure and may then, within the contract time, make a conforming delivery [Com. Code § 2508(1)]. Even a seller who has taken back the nonconforming goods and refunded the purchase price may still make a good tender within the contract period [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2508].

When the buyer rejects a nonconforming tender which the seller had reasonable grounds to believe would be acceptable with or without money allowance [see Com. Code § 1201(b)(24)], the seller may, by seasonally notifying the buyer, have a further reasonable time to substitute a conforming tender [Com. Code § 2508(2)]. Reasonable grounds can lie in prior course of dealing, course of performance, or usage of trade, as well as in the particular circumstances surrounding the making of the contract. However, the seller is charged with commercial knowledge of any factors in a particular sales situation, including implicit or express notice given by the buyer, which require the seller to comply strictly with his or her obligations under the contract [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2508].

§ 500.36 Time

The time for shipment or delivery or any other action under a contract, if not provided in Division 2 or agreed on, is a reasonable time [Com. Code § 2309(1)]. What is a "reasonable time" [Com. Code § 1205] depends on what constitutes acceptable, commercial conduct in view of the nature, purpose, and circumstances of the action to be taken; the time for payment, if not agreed on, is related to the time for delivery [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2309 and the discussion in § 500.35[3] and [4]].

If the contract provides for successive performances but is indefinite in duration it is valid for a reasonable time but, unless otherwise agreed, may be terminated at any time by either party [Com. Code § 2309(2)]. Termination of a contract by one party, except on the happening of an agreed event, requires that reasonable notification be received by the other party, and an agreement dispensing with notification is invalid if its operation would be unconscionable [Com. Code § 2309(3)].

§ 500.37 When Payment Is Due

[1] If No Time for Payment Is Specified

Payment is due at the time and place at which the buyer is to receive the goods even though the place of shipment is the place of delivery [Com. Code § 2310(a)]. Because the receipt of goods rather than delivery is a concurrent condition with payment, the buyer has an opportunity to inspect the goods before making payment, even though under the delivery term the risk of loss may have previously passed to the buyer or the running of the credit period has already started [see Cal. Code Comment and UCC Comments to Com. Code § 2310].

Although a seller who is authorized to send the goods may ship them under reservation and may tender the documents of title, the buyer may inspect the goods after their arrival [Com. Code § 2513] and before payment is due, unless inspection is inconsistent with the terms of the contract [Com. Code § 2310(b)]. If delivery is authorized and made by way of documents of title otherwise than by Com. Code § 2310(b), then payment is due, regardless of where the goods are to be received [Com. Code § 2310(c)]:

- At the time and place at which the buyer is to receive delivery of tangible documents.
- At the time the buyer is to receive delivery of electronic documents
- At the seller's place of business or, if none, the seller's residence.

If the seller is required or authorized to ship the goods on credit, the credit period runs from the time of shipment, but postdating the invoice or delaying its dispatch will correspondingly delay the starting of the credit period [Com. Code § 2310(d)].

For discussion of the rights of a buyer who has made partial or complete payment and has a special property interest under Com. Code § 2501 (identification of goods to the contract, discussed in § 500.51) if the seller becomes insolvent, or in the case of consumer goods, repudiates or fails to deliver as required by the contract, see Com. Code § 2502, discussed in § 500.74[3].

[2] Buyer's Right of Inspection

Unless otherwise agreed, and subject to Com. Code § 2513(3), the buyer has a right, before payment or acceptance, to inspect goods at any reasonable place and time and in any reasonable manner, where they are tendered, delivered, or identified to the contract for sale. When the seller is required or authorized to send the goods to the buyer, the inspection may be after their arrival [Com. Code § 2513(1)]. Expenses of inspection must be borne by the buyer but may be recovered from the seller if the goods do not conform and are rejected [Com. Code § 2513(2)]. Unless otherwise agreed, and subject to the provisions of Com. Code § 2321(3) on C.I.F. contracts [see discussion in § 500.52[5][b]], the buyer is not entitled to inspect the goods before payment of the price when the contract provides for delivery "C.O.D." or on other like terms [Com. Code § 2513(3)(a)] or for payment against documents of title, except when that payment is due only after the goods are to become available for inspection [Com. Code § 2513(3)(b)].

A place or method of inspection fixed by the parties is presumed to be exclusive, but unless otherwise expressly agreed, it does not postpone identification or shift the place for delivery or for passing the risk of loss. If compliance becomes impossible, inspection is as provided in Com. Code § 2513, discussed above, unless the place or method fixed was clearly intended as an indispensable condition, failure of which avoids the contract [Com. Code § 2513(4)].

§ 500.38 Sale on Approval and Sale or Return

A transaction is a "sale on approval" if the goods are delivered primarily for use, and unless otherwise agreed, they may be returned by the buyer even though they conform to the contract [Com. Code § 2326(1)(a)]. Although the goods are delivered to the proposed purchaser, they remain the property of the seller until the buyer accepts them. The buyer's willingness to receive and test the goods is the consideration for the seller's engagement to deliver and sell [see UCC Comment 1 to Com. Code § 2326]. Goods held on approval are not subject to the claims of the buyer's creditors until acceptance [Com. Code § 2326(2)].

An ordinary retail sale, in which the seller gives the buyer a privilege to return the goods and get a refund, is not a "sale on approval" of the kind contemplated by Com. Code § 2326. In order for a sale to be a sale on approval under that code section, there must be some provision or objective fact demonstrating the parties' intent that, whether or not the buyer has paid any amount before the goods are shipped or delivered, the goods do not belong to the buyer until the buyer approves them. In such a case, the seller's rights in the goods are superior to the rights of the buyer's creditors until the approval period has passed. On the other hand, a retailer's practice of permitting a customer to return goods for a refund is merely a benefit to the customer. That does not in and of itself suggest that the parties intended the seller to retain an interest in the goods until some time after they have been delivered to the customer, and does not convert a routine sale with a right to return into a sale on approval [Wilson v. Brawn of Cal., Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 549, 559-560, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 769] .

A transaction is a "sale or return" if the goods are delivered primarily for resale, and unless otherwise agreed, they may be returned by the buyer even though they conform to the contract [Com. Code § 2326(1)(b)]. Goods held on sale or return are subject to the claims of the buyer's creditors while in the buyer's possession [Com. Code § 2326(2)]. Any "or return" term of a contract for sale is to be treated as a separate contract for sale within the statute of frauds section of Division 2 (Com. Code § 2201) and as contradicting the sale aspect of the contract within the provisions of Division 2 on parol or extrinsic evidence (Com. Code § 2202) [Com. Code § 2326(3)]. A "sale or return" typically is a sale to a merchant whose unwillingness to buy is overcome by the seller's engagement to take back the goods (or any commercial unit of the goods) in lieu of payment if they fail to be resold. "Sale on approval" and "sale or return" are so strongly delineated in practice and in general understanding that every presumption runs against delivery to a consumer being a "sale or return" and against a delivery to a merchant for resale being a "sale on approval" [see UCC Comment 1 to Com. Code § 2326].

Although the goods are identified to the contract under a sale on approval, the risk of loss and the title do not pass to the buyer until acceptance, unless otherwise agreed [Com. Code § 2327(1)(a)]. Unless otherwise agreed, use of the goods consistent with the purpose of trial is not acceptance, but failure to notify the seller seasonably of election to return the goods is acceptance. If the goods conform to the contract, acceptance of any part is acceptance of the whole [Com. Code § 2327(1)(b)]. After due notification of election to return, the return is at the seller's risk and expense, but a merchant must follow any reasonable instructions, unless otherwise agreed [Com. Code § 2327(1)(c)].

Unless otherwise agreed, under a sale or return the option to return extends to the whole or any commercial unit [Com. Code § 2105(6)] of the goods while in substantially their original condition, but the option must be exercised seasonably, and the return is at the buyer's risk and expense [Com. Code § 2327(2)].

§ 500.39 Consignments of Consumer Goods

Certain true consignments were governed by former Com. Code § 2326(3) and (5). Consignments to merchants are now governed by revised Division 9 [Com. Code § 9109(a)(4)], are defined in Com. Code § 9102(a)(20), and are discussed in Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions, §§ 503.11[7] and 503.46. Consignments of goods that were consumer goods immediately before delivery to the consignee are now governed by Com. Code § 2326(4), which provides that if a person delivers or consigns for sale goods which the person used or bought for use for personal, family, or household purposes, these goods do not become the property of the consignee unless the consignee purchases and fully pays for the goods [Com. Code § 2326(4)]. Nothing in Com. Code § 2326(4) prevents the consignee from acting as the deliverer's agent to transfer title to these goods to a buyer who pays the full purchase price. Any payment received by the consignee from a buyer of these goods, less any amount which the deliverer expressly agreed could be deducted from the payment for commissions, fees, or expenses, is the property of the deliverer and is not subject to the claims of the consignee's creditors [Com. Code § 2326(4)].

44-500 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 500.50

§ 500.50 General Rules for Allocation of Risk

The rules governing allocation of risk under Division 2 are controlled by the issues that arise between seller and buyer in terms of performance or nonperformance under the contract for sale and not in terms of whether or not title to the goods has passed [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2401]. The concept of title, which is governed by Com. Code §§ 2401-2403, is significant only as it affects the definition of a sale [Com. Code § 2106(1); see discussion in § 500.11[4]], which determines the issue of which transactions are covered by Division 2 [see Com. Code § 2102].

If Division 2 allocates a risk or a burden as between the parties "unless otherwise agreed," the agreement may not only shift the allocation but may also divide the risk or burden [Com. Code § 2303]. The risk or burden may be divided by the express terms of the agreement or by the attending circumstances, because the circumstances surrounding a transaction, as well as the express language used by the parties, enter into the meaning and substance of the agreement [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2303].

D. Allocation of Risk

44-500 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 500.51

§ 500.51 Insurable Interest in Goods

The buyer obtains a special property and an insurable interest in goods identified as goods to which the contract refers, even if the identified goods are nonconforming. In the absence of an explicit agreement, identification occurs in existing and identified goods when the contract is made and in future goods when the goods are designated by the seller as goods to which the contract refers, except for unborn young and future crops in which case identification occurs when the crops become growing crops or the young are conceived [Com. Code § 2501(1)(a),(b)]. There is no requirement, however, that the goods be in a deliverable state or that all of the seller's duties with respect to the processing of the goods be completed in order that identification occur. For example, despite identification, the risk of loss remains on the seller under the risk of loss provisions until completion of his or her duties as to the goods, and all of the seller's remedies remain dependent on not defaulting under the contract [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2501].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Allocation of Risk

44-500 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 500.52

§ 500.52 Risk of Loss in Absence of Breach

[1] General Rule

Risk of loss in the absence of breach by either party is governed by contract rather than by the use of title passage or property passage [see Cal. Code Comment and UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2509]. Unless the parties agree otherwise, Com. Code § 2509 provides the rules to be applied to the issue of risk of loss depending on the type of delivery anticipated by the contract [Com. Code § 2509(4); see [2]-[4], below].

[2] Shipment by Carrier

If the contract requires or authorizes the seller to ship the goods by carrier and does not require the seller to deliver them at a particular destination, the risk of loss passes to the buyer when the goods are duly delivered to the carrier, even though the shipment is under reservation [Com. Code § 2509(1)(a); see discussion in § 500.35[6]].

If the contract does require the seller to deliver the goods at a particular destination and the goods are duly tendered there while in the possession of the carrier, the risk of loss passes to the buyer when the goods are tendered there so as to enable the buyer to take delivery [Com. Code § 2509(1)(b)].

[3] Goods Held by Bailee

If the goods are held by a bailee to be delivered without being moved, the risk of loss passes to the buyer on receipt of possession or control of a negotiable document of title covering the goods; on acknowledgment by the bailee of the buyer's right to possession of the goods; or after the buyer's receipt of possession or control of a nonnegotiable document of title or other direction to deliver in a record, as provided in Com. Code § 2503(4)(b) [Com. Code § 2509(2)(a)-(c)].

[4] Other Situations

In any case in which the contract does not require or authorize the seller to ship the goods by carrier or in which the goods are not held by a bailee to be delivered without being moved, the risk of loss passes to the buyer on receipt of the goods if the seller is a merchant; otherwise, the risk passes to the buyer on tender of delivery [Com. Code § 2509(3)].

[5] UCC Rules Governing Shipment

[a] F.O.B. and F.A.S.

The general rules set out in Com. Code § 2509 for allocating the risk of loss in the absence of breach are subject to the parties' agreement and special terms governing shipment that the parties may use which are set out in Division 2 and discussed below.

"F.O.B." (free on board) and "F.A.S." (free alongside) are delivery terms commonly used in sales contracts, the use of which affect a variety of rights and obligations. Com. Code § 2319 specifies the duties of a seller who engages to deliver F.O.B. or F.A.S. When delivery is F.O.B. seller's city [Com. Code § 2319(1)(a)], the obligation is a shipment contract and the allocation of risk is governed by Com. Code § 2509(1)(a), discussed in § 500.52[2] when it is F.O.B. buyer's city [Com. Code § 2319(1)(b)] the obligation creates a destination contract, under which risk is governed by Com. Code § 2509(1)(b), also discussed in [2], above.

[b] C.I.F. and C. & F.

Com. Code § 2320 governs the obligations of buyers and sellers under "C.I.F." and "C. & F." contracts. "C.I.F." means that the price includes in a lump sum the cost of the goods and the insurance and freight to the named destination. The term "C. & F." (or C.F.) means that the price so includes cost and freight to the named destination [Com. Code § 2320(1)]. The C.I.F. contract is not a destination but a shipment contract with risk of subsequent loss or damage to the goods passing to the buyer on shipment if the seller has properly performed all obligations with respect to the goods. Delivery to the carrier is delivery to the buyer for purposes of risk and title [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2320].

"C.I.F." is a term usually found in contracts between merchants. While "C.I.F." is not commonly used in consumer mail-order or Internet sales, the same result as under a standard C.I.F. contract--the buyer bears the risk of loss in transit even though the cost of insurance is rolled into the purchase price and is in fact paid by the seller--would follow from the practice of expressly requiring the buyer to pay for transit insurance as part of the total price for the sale [Wilson v. Brawn of Cal., Inc. (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 549, 556-557, 33 Cal. Rptr. 3d 769] .

[c] Ex-Ship

The delivery term "ex-ship" (from the carrying vessel) [Com. Code § 2322(1)], as between seller and buyer, is the reverse of the term F.A.S. [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2322 and the discussion under [a], above]. Under an "ex-ship" term, unless otherwise agreed, the risk of loss does not pass to the buyer until the goods leave the ship's tackle or are otherwise properly unloaded [Com. Code § 2322(2)(b)].

[d] Overseas

A shipment by water or by air or a contract contemplating a shipment by water or air is "overseas" insofar as by usage of trade or agreement it is subject to the commercial, financing, or shipping practices characteristic of international deep-water commerce [Com. Code § 2323(3)]. The parties' obligations with respect to documents in "overseas" shipments, if they have not agreed otherwise, are set out in Com. Code § 2323.

[6] Casualty to Identified Goods

When the contract requires for its performance goods identified when the contract is made, and the goods suffer casualty without fault of either party before the risk of loss passes to the buyer, the contract is avoided if loss is total. If loss is partial or the goods no longer conform to the contract, the buyer is relieved from his or her obligation but may demand inspection and has the option of taking the surviving goods at a fair adjustment without further right against the seller or treating the contract as avoided [Com. Code § 2613]. Fault includes negligence as well as willful wrong and Com. Code § 2613 applies if the goods were already destroyed at the time of contracting without the knowledge of either party or are destroyed subsequently but before the risk of loss passes to the buyer [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2613]. The rights of the buyer under Com. Code § 2613 also apply in a proper case under a "no arrival, no sale" term [Com. Code § 2324] if the goods arrive after the time provided in the contract.

If the seller breaches the contract by tendering or delivering goods which do not conform to the contract, the risk of loss remains on the seller until cure or acceptance [Com. Code § 2510(1)]. If there has been a breach and the aggrieved party is in control of the goods, the extent of any deficiency in the effective insurance coverage of the aggrieved party falls on the breaching party [Com. Code § 2510(2),(3); see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2510].

44-500 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 500.60

§ 500.60 Buyer's Options Concerning Nonconforming Goods

[1] Rejection

[a] In Whole or in Part

If the goods or the tender of delivery fail in any respect to conform to the contract, the buyer may either reject the whole [Com. Code § 2601(a); see § 500.112 (form)], accept the whole [Com. Code § 2601(b)], or accept any commercial unit or units and reject the rest [Com. Code § 2601(c)], subject to the provisions of Com. Code § 2612 (breach in installment contracts) and unless otherwise agreed under Com. Code §§ 2718, 2719 (contractual limitations of remedy) [Com. Code § 2601]. The buyer is not penalized by the loss of any remedy otherwise open to him or her by accepting a nonconforming tender [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2601].

Rejection of goods must be within a reasonable time after their delivery or tender and is ineffective unless the buyer seasonably notifies the seller [Com. Code § 2602(1)]. What constitutes a reasonable time must be viewed in light of the provisions of Division 2 dealing with the right to inspection of the goods [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2602; § 500.37].

Subject to the provisions of Com. Code §§ 2603, 2604 (rejected goods), any exercise of ownership by the buyer after rejection with respect to any commercial unit is wrongful as against the seller [Com. Code § 2602(2)(a)]. A buyer who has, before rejection, taken physical possession of goods in which he or she does not have a security interest under Com. Code § 2711(3) is required after rejection to hold them with reasonable care at the seller's disposition for a time sufficient to permit the seller to remove them [Com. Code § 2602(2)(b)]. Otherwise, the buyer has no further obligations with regard to goods rightfully rejected [Com. Code § 2602(2)(c)].

If the seller has made a tender which in all respects conforms to the contract, the buyer has a positive duty to accept, and failure to do so constitutes a wrongful rejection, which gives the seller the immediate remedies for breach set out in Com. Code § 2703 [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2602; § 500.75[1]].

[b] Failure to Particularize

The buyer's failure to state, in connection with rejection, a particular defect which is ascertainable by reasonable inspection, precludes him or her from relying on the unstated defect to justify rejection or to establish breach if the seller could have cured it if stated seasonably [Com. Code § 2605(1)(a); see Lockheed Electronics Co. v. Keronix, Inc. (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 304, 314-315, 170 Cal. Rptr. 591 (failure to object precluded on defect)]. A failure to justify rejection or to establish breach is also precluded between merchants when the seller has, after rejection, made a request in writing for a full and final written statement of all defects on which the buyer proposes to rely [Com. Code § 2605(1)(b); see § 500.112[2] -[3]].

Payment against documents made without reservation of rights precludes recovery of the payment for defects apparent in the documents [Com. Code § 2605(2)]. When payment is required against the documents, they must be in inspected before payment, and the payment then constitutes acceptance of the documents [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2605].

[c] Obligations Respecting Rejected Goods

Subject to any security interest in the buyer under Com. Code § 2711(3), when the seller has no agent or place of business at the market of rejection, a merchant buyer is under a duty, after rejection of goods in his or her possession or control, to follow any reasonable instructions received from the seller with respect to the goods, and in the absence of such instructions, to make reasonable efforts to sell them for the seller's account if they are perishable or threaten to decline in value speedily. Instructions are not reasonable if, on demand, indemnity for expenses is not forthcoming [Com. Code § 2603(1)]. The limitations on the buyer's duty to resell are to be liberally construed, and in effect, the measure of the buyer's control is whether or not he or she can practicably effect control without undue commercial burden. A buyer who fails to make a salvage sale when under a duty to do so has arisen is subject to a claim for damages [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2603].

A buyer who sells goods under Com. Code § 2603(1) is entitled to reimbursement from the seller or out of the proceeds for reasonable expenses of caring for and selling them, and if the expenses include no selling commission, to a commission that is usual in the trade or if there is none, to a reasonable sum not exceeding 10 percent on the gross proceeds [Com. Code § 2603(2)]. In complying with Com. Code § 2603, such as in determining if the value of the goods is sufficiently threatened to justify a quick resale, or the buyer has waited a sufficient length of time for instructions, or what a reasonable means and place of resale is, the buyer is held only to good faith, and good faith conduct under that statute is neither acceptance, conversion, nor the basis of an action for damages [Com. Code § 2603(3); see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2603].

Subject to the provisions of Com. Code § 2603(1) on perishables, if the seller gives no instructions within a reasonable time after notification of rejection, the buyer may store the rejected goods for the seller's account, reship them to the seller, or resell them for the seller's account with reimbursement as provided in Com. Code § 2603(2). That action is not acceptance or conversion [Com. Code § 2604]. These options are conditioned on nonconformity of the goods and due notification of rejection to the seller under Com. Code § 2602. They are available to merchant and non-merchant buyers alike. The merchant-buyer may in some instances, however, be under a duty, rather than an option, to resell under the provisions of Com. Code § 2603[see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2604].

[2] Acceptance

[a] Defined

Acceptance of goods occurs when the buyer, after a reasonable opportunity to inspect the goods, signifies to the seller that the goods are conforming or that he or she will take or retain them in spite of their nonconformity [Com. Code § 2606(1)(a)]. Payment made after tender is one circumstance tending to signify acceptance of the goods, but it is not conclusive [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2606].

Acceptance also occurs when the buyer fails to make an effective rejection [Com. Code § 2602(1)] after having had a reasonable opportunity to inspect the goods [Com. Code § 2606(1)(b)]. When the buyer does any act inconsistent with the seller's ownership, it constitutes acceptance; if the act is wrongful as against the seller however, it is an acceptance only if the seller ratifies it [Com. Code § 2606(1)(c)]. Acceptance of a part of any commercial unit is acceptance of that entire unit [Com. Code § 2606(2)].

Under Division 2, acceptance of goods is always acceptance of identified goods which have been appropriated to the contract or are appropriated by the contract. There is no provision for acceptance of title apart from acceptance in general, because acceptance of title is not material to the detailed rights and duties of the parties [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2606 and discussion in § 500.50 et seq.].

[b] Effect of Acceptance

A buyer who accepts a tender must pay at the contract rate for any goods accepted [Com. Code § 2607(1)]. In cases of partial acceptance, the price of any part accepted is, if possible, to be reasonably apportioned, to be determined in terms of the contract rate, which is the rate determined from the bargain in fact (the agreement) after the rules and policies of Division 2 have been applied [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2607].

The buyer's acceptance of goods precludes rejection of the goods accepted and, if made with knowledge of a nonconformity, cannot be revoked because of it unless the acceptance was on the reasonable assumption that the nonconformity would be seasonably cured; acceptance, however, does not of itself impair any other remedy provided by Division 2 for nonconformity, including the buyer's rights with respect to future installments despite acceptance of any earlier nonconforming installment [Com. Code § 2607(2); see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2607].

When a tender has been accepted, the buyer must notify the seller of any breach within a reasonable time after the buyer discovers or should have discovered the breach, or be barred from any remedy [Com. Code § 2607(3)(A); for discussion of the notification requirements when the seller is sued for a breach of the warranty of infringement, see Com. Code § 2607(3)(B), discussed in Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties]. While the time of notification is to be determined by applying commercial standards to a merchant buyer, what constitutes a reasonable time for notification from a retail consumer is judged by the good faith standard [see Metowski v. Traid Corp. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 332, 339, 104 Cal. Rptr. 599] . To preserve the buyer's rights, the notification need only inform the seller that the transaction is claimed to involve a breach. It need not include a clear statement of all the objections that will be relied on by the buyer nor contain a claim for damages, threat of litigation, or other resort to a remedy [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2607]. The buyer has the burden of proving reasonable notice. The question whether notice was properly given must be determined from the particular circumstances, and when but one inference can be drawn from undisputed facts, the issue may be determined as a matter of law [Cardinal Health 301, Inc. v. Tyco Electronics Corp. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 116, 135-136, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 5] .

Under the provision which codifies the practice known as "vouching in" [Com. Code § 2607(5)(A)], a dealer (buyer), who is being sued in connection with a product furnished to him or her by a manufacturer (seller), may "vouch in" the manufacturer by giving the manufacturer written notice of the litigation. If the notice states that the seller may come in and defend or otherwise be bound in any action the buyer brought against him or her by any determination of fact common to the two litigations, then unless the seller, after seasonable receipt of the notice, does come in and defend, the seller is so bound [Com. Code § 2607(5)(A)]. This "vouching in" procedure has a collateral estoppel effect against the manufacturer if the dealer and manufacturer are both liable but the manufacturer is not joined as a defendant, as when the manufacturer is in a different jurisdiction and thus, is not able to be joined [see Cal. Code Comment to Com. Code § 2607].

In most cases, one letter from the buyer to the seller cannot double as both a breach of warranty letter under Com. Code § 2607(3)(A) and a "vouching in" letter under Com. Code § 2607(5)(A); the vouching in letter must meet far more stringent statutory requirements. If a litigant is to be bound by application of Com. Code § 2607(5)(A), due process demands that the literal requirements be strictly obeyed [Bendix-Westinghouse Automotive Air Brake Co. v. Swan Rubber Co. (1976) 55 Cal. App. 3d 256, 261-262, 127 Cal. Rptr. 571] . If the buyer is sued for breach of a warranty or other obligation for which his or her seller is answerable over and the claim is one for infringement or the like [Com. Code § 2312(3)], the original seller may demand in writing that his or her buyer turn over to the original seller control of the litigation, including settlement, or else be barred from any remedy over, and if the original seller also agrees to bear all expense and to satisfy any adverse judgment, then unless the buyer, after seasonable receipt of the demand, does turn over control, the buyer is so barred [Com. Code § 2607(5)(B)].

[c] Revocation of Acceptance

A buyer may revoke acceptance of a lot or commercial unit whose nonconformity substantially impairs its value to the buyer if he or she has accepted it (1) on the reasonable assumption that its nonconformity would be cured and it has not been seasonably cured or (2) without discovery of the nonconformity, if acceptance was reasonably induced either by the difficulty of discovery before acceptance or by the seller's assurances [Com. Code § 2608(1)]. A lot is a parcel or a single article that is the subject matter of a separate sale or delivery, whether or not it is sufficient to perform the contract [Com. Code § 2105(5)]. Thus, when the goods are shipped in a single lot, the right of revocation extends to the entirety [S & R Metals, Inc. v. C. Itoh & Co. (America) (9th Cir. 1988) 859 F.2d 814, 817 (diversity action applying California law)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Entire Shipment Constituted Lot. A shipment of steel was warranted to be of commercial quality and thus was required to pass a "bend test" according to industry custom. The shipment consisted of steel of several gauges, including 14-gauge steel, which comprised approximately 25 percent, by weight, of the shipment. Usually, a buyer will not perform the bend test on receipt of a delivery because the test, as well as being expensive, destroys or substantially harms the coil being tested. The buyer, which was in the business of selling steel in smaller lots, did not learn of the defect until one of its customers reported that the 14-gauge steel was not of commercial quality. Limited tests were run on other gauges. The buyer revoked as to the entire shipment. The seller argued that the buyer could only revoke acceptance of the "commercial lot" consisting of the 14-gauge steel, half of which was defective. Was revocation as to the entire shipment proper? Yes. The court found that the requirements of Com. Code § 2608 were satisfied because performing the bend test would substantially reduce the value of the steel, yet without performing the test, the buyer could not be confident that it was of sufficient quality for resale. The purpose of the commercial unit provision is to protect a seller against return of components that make up less than a commercial unit and therefore have a severely reduced market value [S & R Metals, Inc. v. C. Itoh & Co. (America) (9th Cir. 1988) 859 F.2d 814, 817] .

Revocation of acceptance must occur within a reasonable time after the buyer discovers or should have discovered the ground for it and before any substantial change in condition of the goods which is not caused by their own defects; revocation is not effective until the buyer notifies the seller [Com. Code § 2608(2)]. Because revocation will generally be resorted to only after attempts at adjustment have failed, the reasonable time period should extend in most cases beyond the time (1) in which notification of breach must be given, (2) for discovery of nonconformity after acceptance, and (3) for rejection after tender, although the parties may limit the time for notification by agreement. The content of the notice of the revocation of acceptance should be determined by considerations of good faith, prevention of surprise, and reasonable adjustment, although more will generally be necessary than the mere notification of breach required under Com. Code § 2607(3)(A), and the content requirements are less stringent in the case of a nonmerchant buyer [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2608; see, e.g., S & R Metals, Inc. v. C. Itoh & Co. (America) (9th Cir. 1988) 859 F.2d 814, 817 (revocation given five months after delivery and nine days after buyer learned of defect held to have been made within reasonable time after discovery of latent defect)]. In the case of a nonconforming motor vehicle, because the practical reality often requires purchasers of unsatisfactory vehicles to continue using them in view of the financial burdens of securing alternative means of transportation for a substantial period of time, reasonable continued use of the vehicle does not, as a matter of law, prevent the buyer from asserting revocation of acceptance [Ibrahim v. Ford Motor Co. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 878, 897-898, 263 Cal. Rptr. 64] . A buyer who revokes has the same rights and duties with regard to the goods involved as if he or she had rejected them [Com. Code § 2608(3)]. For further discussion and a form for use as an affirmative defense in an action involving revocation of acceptance, see § 500.123.

§ 500.61 Anticipatory Repudiation

[1] Requires Overt Communication or Action

Anticipatory repudiation centers on an overt communication of an intention or an action that renders performance impossible or demonstrates a clear determination not to continue with performance. Performance need not be made literally and utterly impossible, but may result from action which reasonably indicates a rejection of the continuing obligation [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2610].

When either party repudiates the contract with respect to a performance not yet due, the loss of which will substantially impair the value of the contract to the other, the aggrieved party may await performance by the repudiating party for a commercially reasonable time [Com. Code § 2610(a)] or resort to any remedy for breach (Com. Code §§ 2703, 2711), even though the aggrieved party has notified the repudiating party that he or she would await the latter's performance and has urged retraction [Com. Code § 2610(b)]. If the aggrieved party awaits performance beyond a commercially reasonable time however, he or she cannot recover resulting damages which should have been avoided [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2610]. In either case, the aggrieved party may suspend his or her own performance or proceed in accordance with the provisions of Division 2 on the seller's right to identify goods to the contract notwithstanding breach or to salvage unfinished goods as provided in Com. Code § 2704 [Com. Code § 2610(c)].

The test of substantial impairment of value under Com. Code § 2610 is the determination whether material inconvenience or injustice will result if the aggrieved party is forced to wait and receive an ultimate tender minus the part or aspect repudiated [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2610].

[2] May Be Retracted

Until the repudiating party's next performance is due, he or she can retract the repudiation, unless the aggrieved party, since the repudiation, has canceled or materially changed his or her position or otherwise indicated that the repudiation is final [Com. Code § 2611(1)]. Retraction may be by any method which clearly indicates to the aggrieved party that the repudiating party intends to perform, but must include any assurance justifiably demanded under Com. Code § 2609 [Com. Code § 2611(2)], because repudiation is sufficient to give reasonable ground for insecurity and to warrant a request for assurance as an essential condition of the retraction [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2611]. Retraction reinstates the repudiating party's rights under the contract with due excuse and allowance to the aggrieved party for any delay occasioned by the repudiation [Com. Code § 2611(3)].

§ 500.62 Installment Contracts

A contract that requires or authorizes the delivery of goods in separate lots to be separately accepted is an "installment contract," even if it contains a clause providing that "each delivery is a separate contract" or its equivalent [Com. Code § 2612(1)]. Such clauses nonetheless call for installment deliveries [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2612].

The buyer may reject any installment which is nonconforming if the nonconformity substantially impairs the value of that installment and cannot be cured or if the nonconformity is a defect in the required documents. If the nonconformity does not fall within Com. Code § 2612(3), as discussed below, and the seller gives adequate assurance of its cure, the buyer must accept that installment [Com. Code § 2612(2)]. However, an installment contract may require accurate conformity in quality as a condition to the right to acceptance if the need for conformity is made clear either by express provision or by the circumstances. In such a case, the agreement, in effect, defines explicitly what amounts to substantial impairment of value impossible to cure [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2612].

Whenever nonconformity or default with respect to one or more installments substantially impairs the value of the whole contract, there is a breach of the whole. But the aggrieved party reinstates the contract by accepting a nonconforming installment without seasonable notification of cancellation [see Gantry Constr. Co. v. American Pipe & Constr. Co. (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 186, 193-194, 122 Cal. Rptr. 834] , bringing an action with respect only to past installments, or demanding performance as to future installments [Com. Code § 2612(3)].

E. Breach

44-500 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 500.63

§ 500.63 Impossibility

[1] Excuses Seller's Performance

Subject to Com. Code § 2614, on substituted performance and except so far as a seller may have assumed a greater obligation, delay in delivery or nondelivery in whole or in part by a seller who complies with Com. Code § 2615(b) and (c), as discussed below, is not a breach of his or her duty under a contract for sale if performance as agreed has been made impracticable by the occurrence of a contingency, the nonoccurrence of which was a basic assumption on which the contract was made or by compliance in good faith with any applicable foreign or domestic governmental regulation or order, whether or not it later proves to be invalid [Com. Code § 2615(a)]. The failure of conditions which go to convenience or collateral values rather than to the commercial practicability of the main performance does not amount to a complete excuse. In regard to compliance with a governmental regulation or order, the seller's good faith belief in the validity of the regulation is the test, and the best evidence of good faith is the general commercial acceptance of the regulation. However, government interference is not an excuse unless it truly supervenes in such a manner as to be beyond the seller's assumption of risk [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2615].

If the causes of impracticability or nonperformance affect only a part of the seller's capacity to perform, the seller must allocate production and deliveries among his or her customers but has the option of including regular customers not then under contract, as well as his or her own requirements for further manufacture; the seller may so allocate in any manner which is fair and reasonable [Com. Code § 2615(b)]. The statutory demand for a "fair and reasonable" allocation of short supplies denotes a collective quality characterizing the supplier's treatment of his or her customers as a group. An individualized approach, geared solely to the needs of particular customers, may provide adequacy to some, insufficiency to others. A fair and reasonable allocation distributes benefit and hardship equally. The seller, however, is no longer obligated to adopt a proration plan applicable to the entire group of customers, as the cases required prior to the adoption of the Commercial Code in California [Terry v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 962, 968-969, 140 Cal. Rptr. 510] .

The seller must notify the buyer seasonably that there will be delay or nondelivery and, when allocation is required under Com. Code § 2615(b), of the estimated quota thus made available for the buyer [Com. Code § 2615(c)].

[2] Buyer's Rights

If the buyer receives notification of a material or indefinite delay or an allocation justified under Com. Code § 2615, the buyer may by written notification to the seller as to any delivery concerned, and if the prospective deficiency substantially impairs the value of the whole contract under Com. Code § 2612, relating to breach of installment contracts, then also as to the whole, terminate and thereby discharge any unexecuted portion of the contract or modify the contract by agreeing to take his or her available quota in substitution [Com. Code § 2616(1)]. No consideration is necessary in such a case to support a modification [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2616].

If, after receipt of the seller's notification the buyer fails so to modify the contract within a reasonable time not exceeding 30 days, the contract lapses with respect to any deliveries affected [Com. Code § 2616(2)]. The buyer's silence, after receiving the seller's claim of excuse, operates as a termination of the contract [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2616]. The provisions of Com. Code § 2616 may not be negated by agreement, except insofar as the seller has assumed a greater obligation under Com. Code § 2615 [Com. Code § 2616(3)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Remedies

44-500 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 500.70

§ 500.70 Remedies Generally

An agreement may provide for remedies in addition to or in substitution for those provided in Division 2 and may limit or alter the measure of damages recoverable thereunder, within certain limitations [Com. Code § 2719(1)(a)]. However, it is of the very essence of a sales contract that at least minimum adequate remedies be available. Thus, if parties intend to conclude a contract for sale within Division 2, they must accept the legal consequence that there be at least a fair quantum of remedy for breach of the obligations or duties outlined in the contract [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2719].

Division 2 rejects any doctrine of election of remedy as a fundamental policy; thus, the remedies are essentially cumulative in nature. Whether the pursuit of one remedy bars another depends entirely on the facts of the individual case [see B.K.K. Co. v. Schultz (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 786, 793-794, 86 Cal. Rptr. 760] . It should also be noted that the Commercial Code requires its remedies to be liberally administered and provides that any right or obligation which it declares is enforceable by action unless a different effect is specifically prescribed (Com. Code § 1305) [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2703]. For a more detailed discussion of the specific remedies available to both parties, see §§ 500.75 -500.78.

§ 500.71 Liquidated Damages

Damages for breach by either party may be liquidated in the agreement subject to and in compliance with Civ. Code § 1671 (reasonable at time made), which is discussed in Ch. 177, Damages, § 177.140 et seq. [Com. Code § 2718(1)]. If the agreement provides for liquidated damages, but the liquidated damage provision does not comply with Civ. Code § 1671, damages may be had as provided in Com. Code § 2101 et seq. [Com. Code § 2718(1)].

If the seller justifiably withholds delivery of goods because of the buyer's breach, the buyer is entitled to restitution of any amount by which the sum of its payments to the seller exceeds the amount to which the seller is entitled by virtue of terms liquidating the seller's damages in accordance with Com. Code § 2718(1) [Com. Code § 2718(2)(a)] or, in the absence of terms, 20 percent of the value of the total performance for which the buyer is obligated under the contract or $500, whichever is smaller [Com. Code § 2718(2)(b)]. No distinction is made between cases in which the buyer's payment was to be applied on the price of the goods and those cases in which it was intended as security for performance [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2718].

The buyer's right to restitution under Com. Code § 2718(2) is subject to offset to the extent that the seller establishes a right to recover damages under Com. Code § 2701 et seq., other than under Com. Code § 2718(1), and establishes the amount or value of any benefits received by the buyer directly or indirectly by reason of the contract [Com. Code § 2718(3)]. If a seller has received payment in goods, their reasonable value or the proceeds of their resale are treated as payments for the purposes of Com. Code § 2718(2), but if the seller has notice of the buyer's breach before reselling goods received in part performance, the resale is subject to the conditions laid down in Com. Code § 2706 on resale by an aggrieved seller [Com. Code § 2718(4); see discussion in § 500.75[6]].

44-500 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 500.72

§ 500.72 Contractual Limitation on Remedies

Subject to the provisions of Com. Code § 2718, discussed in § 500.71, and Com. Code § 2719(2),(3), discussed below, the agreement may provide for remedies in addition to or in substitution for those provided in Division 2, and may limit or alter the measure of damages recoverable under Division 2, as by limiting the buyer's remedies to return of the goods and repayment of the price or to repair and replacement of nonconforming goods or parts [Com. Code § 2719(1)(a)]. Resort to a remedy as provided is optional unless the remedy is expressly agreed to be exclusive, in which case it is the sole remedy [Com. Code § 2719(1)(b)]. Thus, parties are left free to shape their remedies to their particular requirements and reasonable agreements limiting or modifying remedies are to be given effect. However, there is a presumption that clauses prescribing remedies are cumulative with those provided by the code rather than exclusive, unless the parties expressly agree otherwise [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2719].

If circumstances cause an exclusive or limited remedy to fail in its essential purpose, remedy may be had as provided in the Commercial Code [Com. Code § 2719(2)]. For example, a purchaser of machinery, on failure of the limited repair remedy to serve its essential purpose because of the seller's inability to repair, is entitled to recover the difference between the value of what he should have received and the value of what the buyer received under Com. Code § 2714(2) (measure of damages for breach of warranty) [S.M. Wilson & Co. v. Smith Int'l, Inc. (9th Cir. 1978) 587 F.2d 1363, 1375 ; see discussion in § 500.76[4][b]].

Consequential damages may be limited or excluded unless the limitation or exclusion is unconscionable. Limitation of consequential damages for injury to the person in the case of consumer goods is invalid unless it is proved that the limitation is not unconscionable. Limitation of consequential damages when the loss is commercial is valid unless it is proved that the limitation is unconscionable [Com. Code § 2719(3); see Dorman v. International Harvester Co. (1975) 46 Cal. App. 3d 11, 19-20, 120 Cal. Rptr. 516] . However, a contractual provision barring consequential damages may not be enforceable against the buyer after a limited repair remedy has failed of its essential purpose [Com. Code § 2719(2)]; whether the consequential damage limitation will be expunged from the contract depends on the facts of the individual case [S.M. Wilson & Co. v. Smith Int'l, Inc. (9th Cir. 1978) 587 F.2d 1363, 1375-1376] .

§ 500.73 Remedies Against Third Parties

If a third party so deals with goods which have been identified to a contract for sale as to cause actionable injury to a party to that contract, a right of action against the third party belongs to either party to the contract for sale who has title to, a security interest, a special property, or an insurable interest in the goods. If the goods have been destroyed or converted, a right of action also belongs to the party who either bore the risk of loss under the contract for sale or has since the injury assumed that risk as against the other [Com. Code § 2722(a)].

If at the time of the injury, the party plaintiff did not bear the risk of loss as against the other party to the contract for sale, and there is no arrangement between them for disposition of the recovery, the party's suit or settlement is, subject the party's own interest, as a fiduciary for the other party to the contract [Com. Code § 2722(b)]. Either party may, with the consent of the other, sue for the benefit of whom it may concern [Com. Code § 2722(c)].

Prior to the time the goods have been identified to a contract for sale only the seller has a right of action. During the period between identification and final acceptance (except in the case of revocation of acceptance) it is possible for both parties to have the right of action. Even after final acceptance, both parties may have the right of action if the seller retains possession or otherwise retains an interest [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2722].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Remedies

44-500 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 500.74

§ 500.74 Effect of Insolvency

[1] Insolvency Defined

Division 2 provides special remedies to a party to a sales contract if the other party to the contract becomes insolvent. For the purpose of these provisions, a person is "insolvent" who either has ceased to pay his or her debts in the ordinary course of business or cannot pay his or her debts as they become due or is insolvent within the meaning of the federal bankruptcy law [Com. Code § 1201(b)(23); for a discussion of the definition of an insolvent person under federal bankruptcy law, see Ch. 94, Bankruptcy].

[2] Buyer's Insolvency

If the seller discovers the buyer to be insolvent, the seller may refuse delivery except for cash including payment for all goods already delivered under the contract, and stop delivery as provided in Com. Code § 2705 [Com. Code § 2702(1)]. The seller may exercise these rights regardless of the passage of title [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2702 and the discussion of title in § 500.50 et seq.].

A seller who discovers that the buyer has received goods on credit while insolvent may reclaim the goods on demand made within 10 days after the receipt, but if a misrepresentation of solvency has been made to the particular seller in writing within three months before delivery, the 10-day limitation does not apply. Except as so provided, the seller may not base a right to reclaim goods on the buyer's fraudulent or innocent misrepresentation of solvency or of intent to pay [Com. Code § 2702(2)]. Misrepresentation of solvency is considered to have been "made" at the time it is presented to the seller, not as of the date that the written misrepresentation is prepared or dated [see In re Bel Air Carpets, Inc. (9th Cir. 1971) 452 F.2d 1210, 1211-1212] .

The seller's right to reclaim under Com. Code § 2702(2), however, is subject to the rights of a buyer in ordinary course or other good faith purchaser under Com. Code § 2403. Successful reclamation of goods excludes all other remedies with respect to them [Com. Code § 2702(3); see In re Daylin, Inc. (9th Cir. 1979) 596 F.2d 853, 856] .

[3] Seller's Insolvency

Even though the goods have not been shipped, and subject to Com. Code § 2502(2) and (3), discussed below, a buyer who has paid a part or all of the price of goods in which the buyer has a special property under the provisions of Com. Code § 2501[see discussion in § 500.51], may, on making and keeping good a tender of any unpaid portion of their price, recover them from the seller if either of the following occurs:

- In the case of goods bought for personal, family, or household purposes, the seller repudiates or fails to deliver as required by the contract [Com. Code § 2502(1)(a)].

- In all cases, if the seller becomes insolvent within 10 days after receipt of the first installment on their price [Com. Code § 2502(1)(b)].

The buyer's right to recover the goods under Com. Code § 2502(1)(a) vests on acquisition of a special property, even if the seller had not then repudiated or failed to deliver [Com. Code § 2502(2)]. Inasmuch as a secured party normally acquires no greater rights than its debtor had or had power to convey [see Com. Code § 2403(1)], a buyer who acquires a right to recover under this section will take free of a security interest created by the seller if it attaches to the goods after the goods have been identified to the contract. The buyer will take free even if the buyer does not buy in the ordinary course and even if the security interest is perfected. Of course, to the extent that the buyer pays the price after the security interest attaches, the payments will constitute proceeds of the security interest [see UCC Comment 3 to Com. Code § 2502]. Whether or not the buyer also acquires a security interest in identified goods and has rights to the goods when insolvency takes place after the 10-day period depends on compliance with the provisions of Division 9 of the Commercial Code on secured transactions [see UCC Comment 2 to Com. Code § 2502 and discussion in Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions, § 503.20 et seq.].

A buyer who has made the identification creating special property acquires the right to recover the goods only if they conform to the contract for sale [Com. Code § 2502(3)]. This provision precludes the possibility of unjust enrichment which exists if the buyer were permitted to recover goods even though they were greatly superior in quality or quantity to that called for by the contract for sale [see UCC Comment 4 to Com. Code § 2502].

§ 500.75 Seller's Remedies

[1] Generally

If the buyer wrongfully rejects or revokes acceptance of goods, fails to make a payment due on or before delivery, or repudiates with respect to a part or the whole, then with respect to any goods directly affected, and with respect to the whole undelivered balance if the breach is of the whole contract [see Com. Code § 2612], the aggrieved seller may do the following:

- Withhold delivery of the goods [Com. Code § 2703(a)];
- Stop delivery by any bailee as provided in Com. Code § 2705 [Com. Code § 2703(b)];
- Proceed under Com. Code § 2704 respecting goods still unidentified to the contract [Com. Code § 2703(c)];
- Resell and recover damages as provided in Com. Code § 2706 [Com. Code § 2703(d)];
- Recover damages for nonacceptance [Com. Code § 2708] or in a proper case, the price (Com. Code § 2709) [Com. Code § 2703(e)]; and
- Cancel [Com. Code § 2703(f)].

The buyer's action in failing to make a payment due, which would make the foregoing remedies available to the seller, includes the dishonor of a check on due presentment, the nonacceptance of a draft, and the failure to furnish an agreed letter of credit, in addition to the typical case of refusal to pay or default in payment. The buyer's breach which gives rise to these statutory remedies may involve only one lot or delivery of goods, or may involve all of the goods which are the subject matter of the particular contract [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2703].

[2] Person in Position of Seller

A person in the position of a seller may withhold or stop delivery under Com. Code § 2705 and resell under Com. Code § 2706 and recover incidental damages under Com. Code § 2710 [Com. Code § 2707(2)]. A "person in the position of a seller" includes, as against a principal, an agent who has paid or become responsible for the price of goods on behalf of the principal, such as a financing agency which has acquired documents by honoring a letter of credit for the buyer or by discounting a draft for the seller, or anyone who otherwise holds a security interest or other right in goods similar to that of a seller [Com. Code § 2707(1); see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2707].

[3] Right to Identify Goods Which Are Subject of Breach

Under Com. Code § 2703, an aggrieved seller may do either of the following:

- Identify to the contract [Com. Code § 2501] conforming goods not already identified if, when the seller learns of the breach, those goods are in its possession or control [Com. Code § 2704(1)(a)], or

- Treat as the subject of resale goods which have demonstrably been intended for the particular contract, even though those goods are unfinished [Com. Code § 2704(1)(b)].

If the goods are unfinished, an aggrieved seller, in the exercise of reasonable commercial judgment for the purposes of avoiding loss and of effective realization, may either complete the manufacture and wholly identify the goods to the contract, cease manufacture and resell for scrap or salvage value, or proceed in any other reasonable manner [Com. Code § 2704(2)]. "Any other reasonable manner" includes an action for the price to give the seller the value of its contract in the special case in which resale is not practicable [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2704]. The seller's right to identify certain unfinished and finished goods to the contract and proceed to dispose of them in a commercially reasonable fashion in order to mitigate damages only applies to raw materials which are the property of the aggrieved seller. This remedy is distinguishable from a possessory lien and does not permit the seller to appropriate material furnished by the buyer on which no work has been performed [Morton Regent Enterprises, Inc. v. Leadtec California, Inc. (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 842, 849, 141 Cal. Rptr. 706] .

[4] Withhold Delivery

One of the remedies available to an aggrieved seller on the buyer's breach is the withholding of delivery of goods directly affected by the breach, whether they are the subject of the whole or only a part of the contract [Com. Code § 2703(a)].

[5] Stop Delivery

The seller may stop delivery of goods in the possession of a carrier or other bailee on discovering the buyer to be insolvent [Com. Code § 2702] and may stop delivery of carload, truckload, planeload, or larger shipments of express or freight when the buyer repudiates or fails to make a payment due before delivery or if for any other reason the seller has a right to withhold or reclaim the goods [Com. Code § 2705(1)]. These rights are also given to a "person in the position of a seller" under Com. Code § 2707.

PRACTICE TIP:

Seller May Want to Ship C.O.D. The right to stoppage is limited to carload, truckload, planeload, or larger shipments to avoid the burden on carriers if it covered all small shipments in these situations. Thus, a seller shipping to a buyer of doubtful credit can always be protected by shipping C.O.D. [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2705].

As against the buyer, the seller may stop delivery until any of the following occurs [Com. Code § 2705(2)]:

- Receipt of the goods by the buyer, including receipt by the buyer's designated representative, the subpurchaser, when shipment is made directly to the subpurchaser and the buyer never receives the goods [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2705];

- Acknowledgment to the buyer, by any bailee of the goods except a carrier, that the bailee holds the goods for the buyer;

- Acknowledgment to the buyer that a carrier, by reshipment or as a warehouse, holds the goods for the buyer; or

- Negotiation to the buyer of any negotiable document of title covering the goods.

To stop delivery, the seller must so notify the bailee by reasonable diligence to prevent delivery of the goods [Com. Code § 2705(3)(a)]. After it receives notification, the bailee must hold and deliver the goods according to the directions of the seller. The seller is liable to the bailee for any ensuing charges or damages [Com. Code § 2705(3)(b)].

If a negotiable document of title has been issued for goods, the bailee is not obliged to obey a notification to stop until surrender of possession or control of the document [Com. Code § 2705(3)(c)]. A carrier who has issued a nonnegotiable bill of lading is not obliged to obey a notification to stop received from a person other than the consignor [Com. Code § 2705(3)(d)]. In effect, the carrier is under no duty to recognize the stop order of a person who is a stranger to the carrier's contract, but the seller's right as against the buyer to stop delivery remains, whether or not the carrier is obligated to recognize the stop order. If the carrier does obey it, the seller becomes obligated under Com. Code § 2705(3)(b) to pay the carrier any ensuing damages or charges [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2705].

[6] Resale

[a] Seller's Right to Resell; Measure of Damages After Resale

On the buyer's breach, the aggrieved seller may resell and recover damages [Com. Code § 2703(d); see § 500.100]. If the buyer wrongfully rejects or revokes acceptance of goods, fails to make a payment due on or before delivery, or repudiates with respect to a part or the whole, the seller may resell the goods concerned or the undelivered balance [Com. Code § 2703].

Com. Code § 2706 governs resales. Under this section, if the resale is made in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, the seller may recover the difference between the resale price and the contract price, together with any incidental damages allowed under the provisions of Com. Code § 2710, but less expenses saved in consequence of the buyer's breach [Com. Code §§ 2703, 2706(1)]. The permissible methods of resale under Com. Code § 2706 are discussed in [b], below.

Com. Code § 2706 and the official comments do not prohibit resale to affiliates, nor do they say that these sales are per se commercially unreasonable. Of course, resale to an affiliated entity may be a sham, for example, if it is conducted when there is an actual market for the goods being resold [Allied Grape Growers v. Bronco Wine Co. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 432, 445-446, 249 Cal. Rptr. 872] . On the other hand, if there is such a glut that there is no market for the goods, the seller makes unsuccessful attempts to resell to others, and the resale to the affiliate is an attempt to mitigate losses, resale to an affiliate is commercially reasonable and executed in good faith [Allied Grape Growers v. Bronco Wine Co. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 432, 447, 249 Cal. Rptr. 872] .

[b] Approved Methods of Resale

Unless otherwise agreed, or except as otherwise provided in Com. Code § 2706(3), resale may be at public (auction) or private sale (directly or through a broker), including sale by way of one or more contracts to sell or of identification to an existing contract of the seller. Sale may be as a unit or in parcels, at any time and place, and on any terms, but every aspect of the sale, including the method, manner, time, place and terms, must be commercially reasonable [Com. Code § 2706(2)]. If the sale does not meet this standard, the seller is not entitled to the measure of damages set forth in Com. Code § 2706(1), but is relegated to that provided in Com. Code § 2708, discussed in [7][a], below. Division 2 rejects the theory that the seller is required to resell at the agreed place for delivery and that a resale elsewhere can be permitted only in exceptional cases [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2706].

The resale must be reasonably identified as referring to the broken contract, but except in the case of a public sale (as discussed below), it is not necessary that the goods be in existence or that any or all of them have been identified to the contract before the breach [Com. Code § 2706(2); but see Com. Code § 2706(4)(a)]. This provision applies when the buyer is guilty of anticipatory repudiation of a contract for future goods before the goods, or some of them, have come into existence. The seller may then exercise the right of resale and fix damages by "one or more contracts to sell" the quantity of conforming future goods affected by the repudiation. If the goods have come into existence, but have not been identified prior to the breach, their resale will fix the seller's damages [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2706].

If the resale is at public sale, only identified goods can be sold except when there is a recognized market for a public sale of futures in goods of the kind [Com. Code § 2706(4)(a); see Com. Code § 2706(2)]. The sale must be made at a usual place or market for public sale if one is reasonably available, and except in the case of goods that are perishable or threaten to decline in value speedily, the seller must give the buyer reasonable notice of the time and place of the resale [Com. Code § 2706(4)(b)]. One of the purposes of requiring notice is to give the buyer the opportunity to bid at the sale or to secure the attendance of other bidders. A "usual place or market for public sale" is one which prospective bidders may reasonably be expected to attend. When a market is "reasonably available," even though it is at a considerable distance from the location of the goods, the expense of transporting the goods for resale is recoverable by the seller from the buyer as incidental damages under Com. Code § 2706(1) [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2706].

The seller may buy at the public resale [Com. Code § 2706(4)(d)], which benefits the buyer by tending to increase the resale price, thus decreasing the damages for which the latter might be liable [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2706].

[c] Notification of Sale

If the resale is at private sale, the seller must give the buyer reasonable notification of the intention to resell [Com. Code § 2706(3)]. The length of notification depends on the urgency of the matter. However, notice of the time and place of the resale is not necessary [see Cal. Comment and UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2706]. A seller's attorney's declaration in support of a motion for partial summary judgment was sufficient notice under Com. Code § 2706(3) when it described attempts to resell the crop of which defendant refused to take delivery and was served before the sale [Allied Grape Growers v. Bronco Wine Co. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 432, 448, 448 n.12, 249 Cal. Rptr. 872] .

If the resale is at public sale, except in the case of goods which are perishable or threaten to decline in value speedily, the seller must give the buyer reasonable notice of the time and place of the resale [Com. Code § 2706(4)(b); see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2706, discussed in [b], above, purposes of giving notice]. If the goods are not to be within the view of those attending the public resale, the notification of sale must state the place where the goods are located and provide for their reasonable inspection by prospective bidders [Com. Code § 2706(4)(c)].

[d] Purchaser Takes Free

A purchaser who buys in good faith at a resale takes the goods free of any rights of the original buyer, even though the seller fails to comply with one or more of the requirements of Com. Code § 2706 [Com. Code § 2706(5)]. The seller is not accountable to the buyer for any profit made on any resale [Com. Code § 2706(6)].

However, if resale is made by "a person in the position of a seller" [Com. Code § 2707] or a buyer who has rightfully rejected or justifiably revoked acceptance [Com. Code § 2711(3)], that person or buyer must account to the seller for any excess of the resale price over its security interest as defined in Com. Code § 2711(3) [Com. Code § 2706(6)]. In that situation, the person or buyer exercises the right of resale only for the limited purpose of obtaining cash for its security interest in the goods [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2706].

[7] Recovery of Damages

[a] Measure of Damages

On the buyer's breach, the seller may recover damages for nonacceptance or in a proper case, the price [Com. Code § 2703(e); see §§ 500.100, 500.101 (forms)].

The measure of damages for nonacceptance or repudiation by the buyer, subject to Com. Code §§ 2708(2), 2723 (proof of market price), is the difference between the market price at the time and place for tender and the unpaid contract price together with any incidental damages provided in Com. Code § 2710(1), but less expenses saved in consequence of the buyer's breach [Com. Code § 2708(1)]. The time and place of tender is determined by reference to Com. Code §§ 2503, 2319, 2320, 2322, 2324 [see discussions in §§ 500.35 -500.38]. In the event that there is no evidence available of the current market price at the time and place of tender, proof of a substitute market may be made under Com. Code §§ 2723, 2724 [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2708 and discussion in § 500.77].

If the measure of damages provided in Com. Code § 2708(1) is inadequate to put the seller in as good a position as performance would have done, then the measure of damages is the profit, including reasonable overhead, which the seller would have made from full performance by the buyer, together with any incidental damages provided in Com. Code § 2710, due allowance for costs reasonably incurred, and due credit for payments or proceeds of resale [Com. Code § 2708(2)]. This measure of damages should be applied when, due to special circumstances, the measure of damages as the difference between the market price and the contract price under Com. Code § 2708(1) is not a true representation of the seller's damages, such as in a sale to a buyer by an intermediate dealer or "middleman" whose relationship with a producer enables him or her to supply all obtainable customers. In that case, the buyer's breach does not make possible a new sale in which the profit lost by the breach would be replaced but, instead, results in an irreplaceable loss of profits, because every new sale by the seller would bring in a new profit [see Distribu-Dor, Inc. v. Karadanis (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 463, 469-470, 90 Cal. Rptr. 231] . Nor will the Com. Code § 2708(1) measure of damages be adequate when a so-called lost-volume seller is involved. A lost-volume seller is one who proves that, even though it resold the contract goods, the sale to the third party would have been made regardless of the buyer's breach. Put another way, the lost-volume seller must establish that had the breaching buyer performed, the seller would have realized profits from both sales. A lost-volume seller is entitled to the *Com. Code § 2708(2)*measure of damages, except that no credit is to be given for the proceeds of the resale [National Controls, Inc. v. Commodore Bus. Machines, Inc. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 696-699, 209 Cal. Rptr. 636] .

[b] Price

When the buyer fails to pay the price as it becomes due, the seller may recover, together with any incidental damages under Com. Code § 2710 (see discussion in [b], below), both of the following:

- The price of goods accepted or of conforming goods lost or damaged within a commercially reasonable time after risk of their loss has passed to the buyer [Com. Code § 2709(1)(a); see Com. Code § 2510(3)].

- The price of goods identified to the contract [see Com. Code §§ 2501, 2704], if the seller is unable, after reasonable effort, to resell them at a reasonable price or the circumstances reasonably indicate that a reasonable effort to resell will be unavailing [Com. Code § 2709(1)].

Goods accepted by the buyer under Com. Code § 2709(1)(a) include only goods as to which there has been no justified revocation of acceptance, for a justifiable revocation would mean that there has been a default by the seller which would bar that seller's right to maintain an action for the price [UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2709]. The test of whether or not a seller may maintain an action for the price of goods identified to the contract under Com. Code § 2709(1)(b) is an objective one based on whether or not the seller has made a reasonable effort to resell the goods at a reasonable price or the circumstances indicate that the seller's efforts to do so would be unavailing [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2709].

Com. Code § 2709 is intended to be exhaustive in its enumeration of the situations when an action for the price by the seller lies. Neither the passing of title to the goods [see discussion in § 500.50 et seq.] nor the appointment of a day certain for payment is now material to a price action [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2709]. Acceptance of goods without payment allows the seller to sue at once, not only for past due payments, but for the price of all goods then delivered and accepted [see Gantry Constr. Co. v. American Pipe & Constr. Co. (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 186, 192, 122 Cal. Rptr. 834] .

A seller who sues for the price must hold for the buyer any goods which have been identified to the contract and are still in that seller's control, except that if resale becomes possible, the seller may resell them at any time prior to the collection of the judgment; the net proceeds of any resale must be credited to the buyer and payment of the judgment entitles the buyer to any goods not resold [Com. Code § 2709(2)]. This prevents an action for the price from being construed as an election of a remedy which would prevent the resale of goods [see Cal. Code Comment to Com. Code § 2709].

After the buyer has wrongfully rejected or revoked acceptance of the goods, has failed to make a payment due, or has repudiated [Com. Code § 2610], a seller who is held not entitled to the price under Com. Code § 2709 nevertheless should be awarded damages for nonacceptance under Com. Code § 2708 [Com. Code § 2709(3)].

[c] Incidentals

Incidental damages to an aggrieved seller or to a "person in the position of a seller" [Com. Code § 2707], which are recoverable on the seller's resale under Com. Code § 2706 [see discussion in § 500.75[6]] and on the buyer's repudiation under § 2708 [see discussion in § 500.75[7][a]], include any commercially reasonable charges, expenses, or commissions incurred in stopping delivery, in the transportation, care, and custody of goods after the buyer's breach, in connection with return or resale of the goods, or otherwise resulting from the breach [Com. Code § 2710]. While this provision only sets forth the principal normal and necessary additional elements of damage flowing from the breach, it intends to allow all commercially reasonable expenditures the seller has made [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2710; see § 500.100[3]].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Remedies

44-500 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 500.76

§ 500.76 Buyer's Remedies

[1] Buyer's Options

If the seller fails to make delivery or repudiates, or the buyer rightfully rejects or justifiably revokes acceptance, then the buyer has the following options:

- The buyer may cancel with respect to any goods involved and with respect to the whole if the breach goes to the whole contract as provided in Com. Code § 2612 [Com. Code § 2711(1)].

- Whether or not the buyer has canceled, the buyer may recover as much of the price as has been paid [see Com. Code § 2711(1); Green Wood Indus. Co. v. Forceman Int'l Dev. Group, Inc. (2008) 156 Cal. App. 4th 766, 772, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624]. The buyer's right to recover entire amount paid is not affected by the fact that part of that amount was paid, at the buyer's request, directly to the seller by a person with whom the buyer had made a resale contract [Green Wood Indus. Co. v. Forceman Int'l Dev. Group, Inc. (2008) 156 Cal. App. 4th 766, 772, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624].

- In addition to recovering as much of the price as has been paid, the buyer may either:

  - "Cover" and have damages under Com. Code § 2712 as to all goods affected, whether or not they have been identified to the contract [Com. Code § 2711(1)(a); see § 500.76[3]; see also § 500.110 (form)]; or

  - Recover damages for nondelivery as provided in Com. Code § 2713 [Com. Code § 2711(1)(b); see § 500.76[4][a]].

The buyer's right to "cover" or to have damages for nondelivery is not impaired by exercise of the right of resale under Com. Code § 2711(3) [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2711].

If the seller fails to deliver or repudiates, the buyer also may recover the goods as provided in Com. Code § 2502 if they have been identified [Com. Code § 2711(2)(a)] or, in a proper case, may obtain specific performance or replevy the goods as provided in Com. Code § 2716 [Com. Code § 2711(2)(b); see discussion in § 500.76[5], [6]].

In a case of fraudulent nondelivery--for example, when the seller never had the goods and did not intend to obtain them for delivery, yet nevertheless promised to deliver the goods and required a prepayment of the price--the buyer's remedies for the seller's fraud include all remedies available under Division 2 for nonfraudulent breach [Com. Code § 2721]. This rule is an exception to the general rule in California [see Civ. Code § 3343] that a plaintiff defrauded in the purchase or sale of property may recover only out-of-pocket loss [Green Wood Indus. Co. v. Forceman Int'l Dev. Group, Inc. (2008) 156 Cal. App. 4th 766, 773-774, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 624 (buyer that did not "cover" could recover lost profits as consequential damages, pursuant to Com. Code §§ 2713 and 2715); see discussion of consequential damages in [4][c], below)].

[2] Buyer's Security Interest

On rightful rejection or justifiable revocation of acceptance, a buyer has a security interest in goods in his or her possession or control for any payments made on their price and any expenses reasonably incurred in their inspection, receipt, transportation, care and custody, and may hold those goods and resell them in the same manner as an aggrieved seller under Com. Code § 2706 [Com. Code § 2711(3); see discussion in § 500.10[2] (extent to which Divisions 2 and 9 govern)]. However, the buyer may not keep any profit resulting from the resale and is limited to retaining only the amount of the price paid and the costs involved in the inspection and handling of the goods. The security interest in the goods is limited to the items specifically listed in Com. Code § 2711(3), and the buyer is not permitted to retain any amount of those funds he or she might believe adequate as damages [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2711]. A buyer's payments on the price of goods under Com. Code § 2711(3) includes acceptance of a draft or other time negotiable instrument or the signing of a negotiable note [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2711].

[3] Cover

After a seller fails to make delivery or repudiates or the buyer rightfully rejects or justifiably revokes acceptance within Com. Code § 2711, the buyer may "cover" by making, in good faith and without any unreasonable delay, any reasonable purchase of, or contract to purchase, goods in substitution for those due from the seller [Com. Code § 2712(1)]. This remedy is the buyer's equivalent of the seller's right to resell and envisages: (1) a series of contracts or sales, as well as a single contract or sale; (2) goods not identical with those contracted for but commercially usable as reasonable substitutes; and (3) contracts on credit or delivery terms differing from the breached contract but reasonable under the circumstances. The test of proper cover is whether the buyer acted in good faith and in a reasonable manner at the time and place of cover, not in hindsight [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2712].

The buyer may recover as damages from the seller the difference between the cost of cover and the contract price, together with any incidental or consequential damages as defined in Com. Code § 2715 [see discussion in [c], below], but less expenses saved in consequence of the seller's breach [Com. Code § 2712(2)]. One court has held that this contract-cover differential is appropriate even when the aggrieved buyer ultimately is able to pass on its additional costs to other parties [KGM Harvesting Co. v. Fresh Network (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 376, 384, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 286 , criticizing Allied Canners & Packers, Inc. v. Victor Packing Co. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 905, 209 Cal. Rptr. 60 (discussed in [4][a], below)]. Failure of the buyer to effect cover within Com. Code § 2712 does not bar any other remedy [Com. Code § 2712(3)]. However, the recovery of consequential damages is limited to those which could not reasonably be prevented by cover or otherwise [see Com. Code § 2715(2)(a)]. Thus, in order to recover consequential damages other than those which could not have been avoided by cover or otherwise, the buyer must have made a good faith attempt to mitigate his or her losses by "cover" [see § 500.110[2] -[3]].

The concept of "cover" thus serves two purposes: it enables the buyer to make reasonable substitute purchases and to recover the cost of those purchases rather than the difference between market value and contract price and, at the same time, protects the seller from consequential damages which could have been mitigated by the purchase of substitute goods [Gerwin v. Southeastern Cal. Assn. of Seventh Day Adventists (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 209, 219, 92 Cal. Rptr. 111] . It should be noted that Com. Code § 2715(2)(a) applies the reasonable standard to a buyer's attempts to cover. Thus, for example, a buyer who fails to purchase substitute items because of their unavailability at prices within the buyer's financial ability nevertheless may be entitled to recover consequential damages [Gerwin v. Southeastern Cal. Assn. of Seventh Day Adventists (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 209, 219-220, 92 Cal. Rptr. 111] .

[4] Damages

[a] Measure of Damages for Nondelivery

On the seller's breach, another remedy available to the aggrieved buyer is to recover damages for nondelivery [Com. Code § 2711(1)(b)]. This remedy is a complete alternative to cover under Com. Code § 2712, discussed in § 500.76[3], and applies only when, and to the extent that, the buyer has not covered [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2713 and § 500.111 (form)]. The measure of damages for nondelivery or repudiation by the seller, subject to the provisions of Com. Code § 2723 (discussed in § 500.77[1]) with respect to proof of market price, is the difference between the market price at the time when the buyer learned of the breach and the contract price, together with any incidental and consequential damages provided in Com. Code § 2715 [see § 500.76[3], and § 500.76[4][c]], but less expenses saved in consequence of the seller's breach [Com. Code § 2713(1)]. One appellate court, construing former Com. Code § 1106 (now see Com. Code § 1305) and Com. Code § 2713 together, adopted a rule limiting this market price measure of damages for the noncovering buyer, in the absence of any bad faith on seller's part, to the actual profit the buyer would have made on resale. Thus, when the seller knows the buyer has a resale contract but does not act in bad faith and the buyer does not show that it will be liable in damages to the buyer on its forward contract, the buyer's damages are limited to the actual amount it expected to make on the transaction [Allied Canners & Packers, Inc. v. Victor Packing Co. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 905, 914-915, 209 Cal. Rptr. 60 ; contra KGM Harvesting Co. v. Fresh Network (1995) 36 Cal. App. 4th 376, 384, 42 Cal. Rptr. 2d 286] .

The use of the market price at the time of knowledge of the breach as the standard of comparison with the contract price is intended to be measured by the market in which the buyer would have obtained cover had he or she sought that relief, so the place for measuring damages is the place of tender or the place of arrival if the goods are rejected or their acceptance is revoked after reaching their destination [Com. Code § 2713(2)]. The price is for goods in the same branch of trade. When the market price is difficult to prove, Com. Code § 2723 may be used to permit a showing of a comparable market price; if no market price is available, evidence of spot sale prices is proper. It should be noted that, if the unavailability of a market price is caused by a scarcity of goods of the type involved, a good case may be made for specific performance (Com. Code §§ 2711(2)(b), 2716, and discussion in § 500.76[5], below) [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2713].

[b] Measure of Damages for Nonconforming Goods

If the buyer has accepted goods and given notification of breach pursuant to Com. Code § 2607(3) [see discussion in § 500.60[2][b]], the buyer may recover as damages for any nonconformity of tender the loss resulting in the ordinary course of events from the seller's breach, as determined in any manner which is reasonable [Com. Code § 2714(1)]. Nonconformity includes not only breaches of warranties but also any failure of the seller to perform according to the seller's obligations under the contract [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2714]. Incidental and consequential damages under Com. Code § 2715 may also be recovered in a proper case [Com. Code § 2714(3); see § 500.76[4][c]].

The buyer, on notifying the seller of his or her intention to do so, may deduct all or any part of the damages resulting from any breach of the contract from any part of the price still due under the same contract [Com. Code § 2717 ; see AmerisourceBergen Corp. v. Dialysist West, Inc. (9th Cir. 2006) 445 F.3d 1132, 1135-1136 (construing Arizona statute identical to Com. Code § 2717; buyer may not set off contractual claim against debt on separate contract; statute preempts common law right of equitable setoff in situations in which statute applies)]. The buyer must give this notice to avoid a default within the meaning of Com. Code § 2609 on insecurity and right to assurances [see discussion in § 500.32[4]]. However, no formality of notice is required, and any language which reasonably indicates the buyer's reason for withholding payment is sufficient [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2717].

[c] Buyer's Incidental and Consequential Damages

Incidental damages [Com. Code § 2714(3)] resulting from the seller's breach include expenses reasonably incurred in inspection, receipt, transportation, care and custody of goods rightfully rejected, any commercially reasonable charges, expenses or commissions in connection with effecting cover, and any other reasonable expense incident to the delay or other breach [Com. Code § 2715(1)]. These specific damages enumerated are not intended to be an exhaustive list but are merely illustrative [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2715].

Consequential damages resulting from the seller's breach [Com. Code § 2714(3); see § 500.110 (form)] include any loss resulting from general or particular requirements and needs of which the seller at the time of contracting had reason to know and which could not reasonably be prevented by cover or otherwise [Com. Code § 2715(2)(a); see Sun Maid Raisin Growers v. Victor Packing Co. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 787, 791, 194 Cal. Rptr. 612] and injury to person or property proximately resulting from any breach of warranty [Com. Code § 2715(2)(b)]. To charge the seller with knowledge, particular needs of the buyer must generally be made known, while general needs must rarely be made known [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2715]. Under Com. Code § 2715(2)(a), the injured buyer has the burden of proving the extent of its consequential damages. The allegedly breaching seller has the burden of proving the inadequacy of buyer's efforts to mitigate its consequential damages [Carnation Co. v. Olivet Egg Ranch (1986) 189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 818, 229 Cal. Rptr. 261] .

When loss of anticipated profits is an element of consequential damages, the evidence must show, with reasonable certainty, both their occurrence and the extent of the damages, and the loss is measured by net, not gross, profits [see Gerwin v. Southeastern Cal. Assn. of Seventh Day Adventists (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 209, 221-223, 92 Cal. Rptr. 111] . If the seller knows that the buyer is in the business of reselling the goods, the seller is charged with knowledge that the buyer will be selling the goods in anticipation of a profit. Absent a contractual provision against consequential damages, a seller breaching in bad faith therefore will be liable for the buyer's resulting loss of profit [Sun Maid Raisin Growers v. Victor Packing Co. (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 787, 791, 194 Cal. Rptr. 612] .

Financing costs, such as amounts paid or owed to the buyer's financier, were held to be a proper element of the buyer's consequential damages when the seller knew of the loan. In the case of a finance lease in which the financing lessor validly disclaimed all warranties and the lessor was entitled to revoke acceptance as to the manufacturer for defects [see Com. Code §§ 2608, 2711], the lessor was entitled to recover from the manufacturer the amount of the deficiency it owed to the financing lessor after the financing lessor repossessed the equipment and sold it [U. S. Roofing, Inc. v. Credit Alliance Corp. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1431, 1454, 279 Cal. Rptr. 533] .

[5] Specific Performance

Specific performance may be decreed if the goods are unique or in other proper circumstances [Com. Code § 2716(1)]. However, specific performance is no longer limited to goods which are already specific or ascertained at the time of contracting; the test of uniqueness must be made in terms of the total situation which characterizes the contract. For example, output and requirements contracts [see discussion in § 500.34[2]] involving a particular or peculiarly available source or market present a typical, commercial specific performance situation. If the goods are not unique, inability to cover is strong evidence of "other proper circumstances" justifying specific performance [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2716 and Copylease Corp. of America v. Memorex Corp. (S.D.N.Y. 1976) 408 F. Supp. 758, 759-760] . When a seller refuses to perform and the buyer shows threatened irreparable injury as a result, the latter may be entitled to a preliminary injunction to restrain the seller from failing to perform under the contract pending the outcome of an action for specific performance and damages [see Kaiser Trading Co. v. Associated Metals & Minerals Corp. (N.D. Cal. 1970) 321 F. Supp. 923, 933] . The decree for specific performance may include such terms and conditions as to payment of price, damages, or other relief as the court may deem just [Com. Code § 2716(2)].

[6] Replevin

The buyer has a right of replevin for goods identified to the contract if, after reasonable effort, the buyer is unable to effect cover for the goods, the circumstances reasonably indicate that the effort will be unavailing, or the goods have been shipped under reservation and satisfaction of the (seller's) security interest in them has been made or tendered [Com. Code §§ 2711(2)(b), 2716(3)]. This remedy is in addition to the buyer's right to recover identified goods under Com. Code § 2502, discussed in § 500.74 [see UCC Comment 3 to Com. Code § 2716].

In the case of goods bought for personal, family, or household purposes, the buyer's right of replevin vests when the buyer acquires his or her special property [see Com. Code § 2501, discussed in § 500.51], even if the seller had not then repudiated or failed to deliver [Com. Code § 2716(3)].

Inasmuch as a secured party normally acquires no greater rights in its collateral than its debtor had or had power to convey [see Com. Code § 2403(1)], a buyer who acquires a right of replevin under Com. Code § 2716(3) will take free of a security interest created by the seller if it attaches to the goods after the goods have been identified to the contract. The buyer will take free even if the buyer does not buy in the ordinary course and even if the security interest is perfected. Of course, to the extent that the buyer pays the price after the security interest attaches, the payments will constitute proceeds of the security interest [see UCC Comment 3 to Com. Code § 2716; see Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions, § 503.20 et seq. for discussion of when security interests attach].

§ 500.77 Proof of Price

[1] Time as of Which Price is Determined

If an action based on anticipatory repudiation [see the discussion in § 500.61] comes to trial before the time for performance with respect to some or all of the goods, any damages based on market price [Com. Code §§ 2708, 2713] are determined according to the price of those goods prevailing at the time when the aggrieved party learned of the repudiation [Com. Code § 2723(1)].

If evidence of a price prevailing at the times or places described in Division 2 is not readily available, the price prevailing within any reasonable time before or after the time described or at any other place which in commercial judgment or under usage of trade would serve as a reasonable substitute for the one described may be used, making any proper allowance for the cost of transporting the goods to or from that other place [Com. Code § 2723(2)].

Evidence of a relevant price prevailing at a time or place other than the one described in Division 2 offered by one party is not admissible unless and until the party has given the other party such notice as the court finds sufficient to prevent unfair surprise [Com. Code § 2723(3)]. The provisions of Com. Code § 2723, however, are not intended to exclude the use of any other reasonable method of determining market price or of measuring damages if the circumstances of the case make this necessary [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2723].

[2] Market Quotations

Whenever the prevailing price or value of any goods regularly bought and sold in any established commodity market is in issue, reports in official publications or trade journals or in newspapers or periodicals of general circulation published as the reports of that market are admissible in evidence [Com. Code § 2724]. "Any established commodity market" is one in which transactions in the commodity are frequent and open enough to make a market established by usage in which one price can be expected to affect another and in which an informed report of the range and trend of prices can be assumed to be reasonably accurate [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2724]. The circumstances of the preparation of the report may be shown to affect its weight but not its admissibility [Com. Code § 2724]. Although Com. Code § 2724 does not explicitly provide for the weight to be given to market quotations, such quotations, in the absence of compelling challenge, offer an adequate basis for a verdict [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2724].

§ 500.78 Statute of Limitations

An action for breach of any contract for sale must be commenced within four years after the cause of action has accrued. By their original agreement, the parties may reduce the period of limitation to not less than one year but may not extend it [Com. Code § 2725(1); see Therma-Coustics Manufacturing, Inc. v. Borden, Inc. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 282, 296, 213 Cal. Rptr. 611 (upholding one-year limitation inserted under Com. Code § 2207)]. The period of limitation prescribed by Com. Code § 2725(1) applies to both oral and written contracts. It also applies to implied-in-law sales contracts, as when the plaintiff waives a claim in conversion and elects to treat the action as a purchase and sale of the converted property [see H. Russell Taylor's Fire Prevention Service, Inc. v. Coca Cola Bottling Corp. (1979) 99 Cal. App. 3d 711, 719-725, 160 Cal. Rptr. 411] . A cause of action accrues for the breach of any contract of sale when the breach occurs, regardless of the aggrieved party's lack of knowledge of the breach [Com. Code § 2725(2)]. A breach of warranty occurs when tender of delivery is made, except that when a warranty explicitly extends to future performance of the goods and discovery of the breach of the breach must await the time of that performance, the cause of action accrues when the breach is or should have been discovered [Com. Code § 2725(2); see Cardinal Health 301, Inc. v. Tyco Electronics Corp. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 116, 131-133, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 5 (seller's promise that product would work for 50,000 cycles did not fall within future-performance exception in Com. Code § 2725(2) because it did not specify date or time in future, nor did it pertain to time period that could be determined by reference to external source, and buyer could have discovered defect at any time without waiting for completion of 50,000 cycles; additionally, both parties were large and sophisticated companies and could have drafted their agreement to explicitly state duration of warranty so as to ensure that limitation period would extend beyond four years, if that had been their intent); Carrau v. Marvin Lumber and Cedar Co. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 281, 290-292, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869 (generalized assertions in advertisements and literature do not rise to level of warranty explicitly extending to "future performance"; plaintiff thus did not meet exception to four-year limitation period)]. The future performance exception in Com. Code § 2725(2) cannot apply with respect to an implied warranty, however. Because an implied warranty is one that arises by operation of law rather than by an express agreement of the parties, it is not a warranty that "explicitly" extends to future performance of the goods, as that code section requires [Cardinal Health 301, Inc. v. Tyco Electronics Corp. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 116, 134, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 5] .

When an action commenced within the time provided in Com. Code § 2725(1) is so terminated as to leave available a remedy by another action for the same breach, the other action may be commenced after the expiration of the time limit and within six months after the termination of the first action, unless the termination resulted from voluntary discontinuance or from dismissal for failure or neglect to prosecute [Com. Code § 2725(3)].

The provisions contained in Com. Code § 2725 governing the period of limitations for the commencement of an action for the breach of any contract for sale do not alter the law on tolling the statute of limitations [Com. Code § 2725(4); see generally Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions].

44-500 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 500.79

§ 500.79 Goods Bought Through Web Site--Personal Jurisdiction of Seller

While it is possible that Internet activity alone could create the necessary minimum contacts to expose a nonresident defendant to personal jurisdiction in California courts, that issue must be determined by examining the level of interactivity and commercial nature of the exchange of information that occurs on the defendant's web site [Pavlovich v. Superior Court (2002) 29 Cal. 4th 262, 274, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 329, 58 P.3d 2 ; see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances, § 323.14[4][b]]. A disgruntled California consumer will not necessarily be able to sue a nonresident seller in a California court. In one case, for instance, a Florida seller's web site merely advertised a consumer product (a car) for sale, which a California resident bought after initiating contact with the seller. There was no evidence that files were exchanged through the web site or that any business was actually conducted through the web site, nor any evidence that anything about the web site specifically targeted California residents, and the seller had none of the traditionally sufficient ties with California to establish minimum contact. Therefore, the seller's maintenance of the web site alone was insufficient to establish personal jurisdiction when the California consumer sued the seller in a California court for rescission or damages [Shisler v. Sanfer Sports Cars, Inc. (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 1254, 1260-1262, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 335] .

The Ninth Circuit has said that when a seller uses the eBay web site as a means for "establishing regular business with" persons in a state other than the seller's state, that may be properly taken into account for purposes of determining whether asserting personal jurisdiction of the seller in that other state would comport with traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice [Boschetto v. Hansing (9th Cir. 2008) 539 F.3d 1011, 1019 (in this case involving one-time transaction by Wisconsin seller and California buyer, "the use of eBay as the conduit for that transaction does not have any dispositive effect on jurisdiction" in California)]. Relevant evidence could include [Boschetto v. Hansing (9th Cir. 2008) 539 F.3d 1011, 1018-1019, 1019 n.6]:

- The seller's overall eBay statistics, experience, or any marketing directed at potential customers and designed to welcome bids from residents in the buyer's state.

- That the seller engaged in other transactions, even if only a few transactions, with the buyer or other residents of the buyer's state, either through the eBay web site or otherwise.

- That the seller was a commercial seller, and the eBay web site was the seller's primary marketing vehicle, or that the seller's use of the eBay web site was regular.

PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

44-500 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 500.92

§ 500.92 Decisions

[1] Contractual Limitations on Damages

Carrier who delivers goods into consignee's possession in breach of C.O.D. contract and who allows consignee to dispose of them may not dispute market value of goods because of alleged defects. Cermetek, Inc. v. Butler Avpak, Inc. (9th Cir. 1978) 573 F.2d 1370, 1379

Criteria established by Tunkl v. Regents of University of California (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 92, 32 Cal. Rptr. 33, 383 P.2d 441 , for determining whether exculpatory clause is unenforceable on grounds of public interest, are not applicable to commercial transaction between large sophisticated companies. Appalachian Ins. Co. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1, 27-32, 262 Cal. Rptr. 716

Total disclaimer of all warranties and requirement that buyer purchase insurance to cover all losses and hold seller and all seller's contractors and subcontractors harmless was reasonable allocation of risk between large sophisticated commercial entities in specially manufactured, specialized high technology, high-risk product (rocket for launching communications satellite). Appalachian Ins. Co. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1, 27, 262 Cal. Rptr. 716

When warranty disclaimer and hold-harmless provisions are clear and unambiguous in precluding suit by purchaser against manufacturer's subcontractors, intent of drafters of related service contract between different parties and covering different subject matter was not relevant. Appalachian Ins. Co. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1, 18, 262 Cal. Rptr. 716

[2] Definitions

Car dealership's name in printed newspaper advertisement was "signature" within meaning of Com. Code § 1201(b)(37) sufficient to satisfy statute of frauds; when advertisement reasonably justifies recipient's understanding that communication was intended as offer; offeror's intent to authenticate his or her name as signature can be established from face of advertisement. Donovan v. RRL Corp. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 261, 276- 278, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807, 27 P.3d 702

Exporter with resale contract was "buyer" under Com. Code § 2103(1)(a) when it contracted with seller in its own name; thus, damages for seller's breach were not limited to commission but were established by Com. Code § 2713. Allied Canners & Packers, Inc. v. Victor Packing Co. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 905, 910-911, 209 Cal. Rptr. 60

Funds held by bank as result of money orders remaining uncashed more than seven years were not "goods" under Com. Code § 2105(1). Cory v. Golden State Bank (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 360, 368, 157 Cal. Rptr. 538

[3] Formation of Contract

When buyer's purchase order stated that it could only be accepted on its own terms unless additional terms were agreed to in writing, fact that seller's acceptance specified different terms did not impose different terms because acceptance was not made conditional on acceptance of different terms; fact that parties had used same forms on earlier orders did not impose seller's terms by custom because those terms and conditions were not utilized. Lockheed Electronics Co. v. Keronix, Inc. (1981) 114 Cal. App. 3d 304, 310-313, 170 Cal. Rptr. 591

[4] Good Faith Purchaser; Entrustment; Power to Transfer

"Full title" scheme of vehicle registration [see Veh. Code § 6300 et seq.] relates only to security interests, not title, and does not defeat Com. Code § 2403(1); good faith purchaser who relied on facially valid certificate of title "laundered" through another state acquired no title as against true owner. Suburban Motors, Inc. v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1354, 1361-1364, 268 Cal. Rptr. 16

Com. Code § 2403 is applicable to sale of automobiles; good faith purchaser from thief acquires no title; thief's title is void, not just voidable, and thief has no power to transfer; voidable title under Com. Code § 2403(1) only arises from voluntary transfer or delivery by true owner. Suburban Motors, Inc. v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 1354, 1359-1361, 268 Cal. Rptr. 16

Entrusting goods so that person with possession has power to transfer all rights of entruster to buyer in ordinary course of business [Com. Code § 2403(2)] requires entruster's acquiescence in retention of possession for purpose of sale, obtaining offers to purchase, locating buyer, or the like under Com. Code § 2403(3). Budget Rent-A-Car of So. Cal. v. Bergman (1981) 121 Cal. App. 3d 256, 262, 263, 175 Cal. Rptr. 286

[5] Liquidated Damages

Defendant having failed to prove that interest of 1.5 percent per month on balance due for assembly work and remaining unpaid after 30 days was unreasonable, interest provision was validated liquidated damages provision under Civ. Code § 1671(b) and Com. Code § 2718; in addition, parties were merchants and bound to provision under Com. Code § 2718. O'Connor v. Televideo System, Inc. (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 709, 718-719, 267 Cal. Rptr. 237

[6] Revocation of Acceptance

When financing lessor validly disclaimed all warranties and goods conform to lease, lessee could not revoke acceptance as to lessor, but could as to manufacturer. U.S. Roofing, Inc. v. Credit Alliance Corp. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1431, 1445, 1450-1453, 279 Cal. Rptr. 533

[7] Sale or Service

Film processing is service, not goods; contract relating to those services was not governed by Division 2. Eichman v. Fotomat Corp. (9th Cir. 1989) 880 F.2d 149, 165

Oral contract to make release prints of motion picture from other party's negatives was not contract for sale of goods within meaning of Com. Code § 2105(1), but contract for services; action for breach of contract was governed by two-year limitation period, not Com. Code § 2725. Filmservice Laboratories, Inc. v. Harvey Bernhard Enterprises, Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1297, 1305-1306, 256 Cal. Rptr. 735 ; accord U.S. ex rel. Bartec Ind. v. United Pacific (9th Cir. 1992) 976 F.2d 1274, 1277-1278 (essence test applied to steel painting and fabricating, which were incidental to sale of goods)

When transaction has elements of sale and of service, essence or predominant element of transaction is determinative. Filmservice Laboratories, Inc. v. Harvey Bernhard Enterprises, Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1297, 1305, 256 Cal. Rptr. 735

[8] Statute of Limitations

Although action for breach of oral contract of sale is governed by four-year limitation of Com. Code § 2725, oral contract for services is subject to two-year limitation. Filmservice Laboratories, Inc. v. Harvey Bernhard Enterprises, Inc. (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 1297, 1304-1305, 256 Cal. Rptr. 735

Action seeking deficiency judgment on sales contract but not seeking recovery for any penalty or forfeiture is governed by four-year limitations period set out in Com. Code § 2725. Jack Heskett Lincoln-Mercury, Inc. v. Metcalf (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 38, 42-43, 204 Cal. Rptr. 355

[9] Strict Liability

Strict liability is not applicable to defective product in commercial setting when only business loss is involved; thus, disclaimer of strict liability in commercial transaction was effective. Appalachian Ins. Co. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1, 33, 262 Cal. Rptr. 716

[10] Unconscionability

Disclaimer of warranties by financing lessor was not per se unconscionable, but was to be tested under Com. Code § 2316. U. S. Roofing, Inc. v. CreditAlliance Corp. (1991) 228 Cal. App. 3d 1431, 1450-1453, 279 Cal. Rptr. 533

Fact that manufacturer is better able than buyer to detect defects was not relevant in evaluating claimed unconscionability of exculpatory clauses when item was not mass produced but was specialized high technology, high-risk product and contract was not preprinted but was negotiated by parties. Appalachian Ins. Co. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1, 25-26, 262 Cal. Rptr. 716

Purchaser that drafted one of two exculpatory clauses in contract and had dealt with similar provisions in previous contracts between parties was unable to claim surprise at scope of provisions claimed to be unconscionable. Appalachian Ins. Co. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1, 24-25, 262 Cal. Rptr. 716

Between large sophisticated companies no procedural element of unconscionability was established with respect to exculpatory provisions by alleged total monopoly on manufacture of upper-stage rockets used to launch communications satellites when French company, with which purchaser had originally contracted, provided alternative launch capability. Appalachian Ins. Co. v. McDonnell Douglas Corp. (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 1, 23, 262 Cal. Rptr. 716

When parties had 20-year-long commercial relationship, unconscionability of seller's limitation on consequential damages was tested under Com. Code § 2719(3) rather than under Civ. Code § 1668; limitation was not unconscionable, but was material part of bargain; each case is determined on its particular facts. Nunes Turfgrass, Inc. v. Vaughan-Jacklin Seed Co., Inc. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1518, 1538-1539, 246 Cal. Rptr. 823

Unconscionability is common law doctrine applicable in absence of statutory authorization; although UCC § 2-302 has not been adopted by Legislature, Civ. Code § 1670.5 incorporates identical language and applies to all contracts, not just sales transactions. A & M Produce Co. v. FMC Corp. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 473, 484-485, 186 Cal. Rptr. 114

Disclaimer of warranties and exclusion of consequential damages appearing on reverse side of standard contract was unconscionable and unenforceable because (1) seller made no attempt to provide buyer with knowledge of disclaimer or exclusion, even though warranty was conspicuous and buyer could have read back of contract; (2) seller was much larger company and terms of seller's contract were standard; (3) disclaimer was commercially unreasonable because it attempted to disclaim all warranties; (4) buyer was forced to rely on seller's expertise due to lack of experience with product; (5) consequential damages were obvious; and (6) seller was only party reasonably able to prevent loss. A & M Produce Co. v. FMC Corp. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 473, 489-493, 186 Cal. Rptr. 114

[1] FORM Complaint for Damages for Breach of Contract [Com. Code §§ 2703(e), 2704, 2706, 2708-2710]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name] [, a California Corporation],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES
_____ [names] [, individually and doing business as _____ (fictitious name)],	)	[LIMITED CIVIL CASE]
	)	[Amount demanded _____ (exceeds or does not exceed) $10,000]
Defendant.	)

Plaintiff alleges:

1. Plaintiff is, and at all times herein mentioned was a corporation, organized and existing under the laws of California, with its principal place of business in _____ County [or allege other capacity and residence of plaintiff, if appropriate].

2. At all times herein mentioned, defendant _____[name], was doing business under the fictitious name of _____ [name] with its principal office in _____ [city], _____ County, California [or allege other capacity of defendant and basis of venue as appropriate].

3. _____ [Allege that plaintiff is a merchant, if appropriate, e.g., Plaintiff is a merchant engaged in the retail sale of _____ (describe goods, wares, or merchandise)].

4. _____ [Allege that defendant is a merchant, if appropriate, e.g., Defendant is a merchant engaged in the wholesale _____ (type of business) business.]

[EITHER, if agreement is evidenced by written contract]

5. _____ [Allege facts showing execution and terms of contract, e.g., On _____ (date), defendant (, acting by and through its duly authorized agent,) executed and delivered to plaintiff a contract for the purchase of goods. The contract, a true copy of which is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference, provides for the sale by plaintiff to defendant of _____ (in general terms describe goods, wares, or merchandise made subject of contract), and obligates defendant to make payment in the sum of $ _____, on delivery of the goods].

[OR, if no written contract is in existence]

5. _____ [Allege facts showing making and substance of agreement, e.g., On _____ (date), at the special instance and request of defendant, and in consideration of defendant's promise to pay the purchase price, plaintiff shipped and delivered to defendant the goods, wares and merchandise shown on the attached Exhibit B, which is incorporated by reference].

[CONTINUE]

6. _____ [Allege facts showing performance by plaintiff under contract, e.g., Plaintiff fully and in all things performed his/her/its part of the agreement described in Paragraph 5, in that on _____ (date), plaintiff _____ (delivered or tendered delivery of), the goods to defendant in the time and manner and at the place required by the agreement].

7. _____ [Allege defendant's breach of contract, e.g., In violation of its promises and obligations under the agreement described in Paragraph 5, defendant _____ (wrongfully refused to accept delivery of the goods or wrongfully revoked acceptance of the goods or wrongfully fails and refuses to make payment due for the goods)].

[EITHER, if resale was at public sale]

8. _____ [Set forth plaintiff's actions in response to defendant's breach, e.g., Following defendant's breach of the contract as described in Paragraph 7, plaintiff attempted to locate another party willing to purchase the goods. After giving defendant reasonable notice of the time and place of the resale of the goods, plaintiff sold the goods to the highest bidder for cash in a public sale conducted in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner.]

[OR, if resale was at private sale]

8. _____ [Set forth plaintiff's actions in response to defendant's breach, e.g., Following defendant's breach of the contract as described in Paragraph 7, plaintiff attempted to locate another party willing to purchase the goods. After giving defendant reasonable notification of his/her intention to resell the goods, plaintiff sold the goods in a commercially reasonable manner and in good faith to _____ (name). The resale contract, a true copy of which is attached as Exhibit B and incorporated by reference, provides for the sale by plaintiff to third party _____(name) on the following terms: _____ (in general terms, state contract price, delivery terms, etc., of resale contract).]

[CONTINUE]

[EITHER, if damages are based on resale]

9. _____ [Set forth claim for damages, e.g., The price received by plaintiff from the resale of the goods described in Paragraph 8 is $_____. The price defendant contracted and agreed to pay for these goods, as described in Paragraph 5, is $ _____. As a direct and proximate result of defendant's breach of contract, plaintiff has suffered damages _____ (in the sum of $_____)].

[OR, if resale damages are not sought, and claim is for lost profits for completed goods]

9. _____ [Set forth claim for damages for lost profits, e.g., The price defendant contracted and agreed to pay for the goods, as described in Paragraph 5, is $ _____. Plaintiff's costs directly attributable to the manufacture of these goods are _____ (specify variable costs only, not fixed costs). The damages specified in Commercial Code Section 2708(1) would be inadequate to put plaintiff in as good a position as performance would have done, because plaintiff was operating at less than full capacity at the time of defendant's breach, and plaintiff's volume of sales was decreased by defendant's breach. Thus, as a direct and proximate result of defendant's breach of contract, plaintiff has suffered damages _____ (in the sum of $ _____)].

[OR, if resale damages are not sought, and claim is for lost profits as "lost volume seller"]

9. _____ [_____. Plaintiff's costs directly attributable to the manufacture of these goods are _____ (specify variable costs only, not fixed costs). The damages specified in Commercial Code Section 2708(1) would be inadequate to put plaintiff in as good a position as performance would have done, because plaintiff was operating at less than full capacity at the time of defendant's breach, and plaintiff would have made the sale referred to in Paragraph 8, even if defendant had not breached the contract described in Paragraph 5. If defendant had not breached the contract described in Paragraph 5, plaintiff would have earned the profits from both sales. The damages specified in *Commercial Code Section 2708(1)*would only compensate plaintiff for the loss of profits on one sale. Thus, as a direct and proximate result of defendant's breach of contract, plaintiff has suffered damages _____ (in the sum of $ _____)].

[OR, if resale damages are not sought, claim for lost profit for incomplete goods]

9. _____ [If goods were incomplete at time of breach and manufacture of goods was not completed following breach, set forth claim for lost profits, e.g., The price defendant contracted and agreed to pay for the goods, as described in Paragraph 5, is $ _____. Plaintiff's costs incurred in the manufacture of the goods up to the time of defendant's breach, including fixed expenses attributable to the contract, are $ _____. However, plaintiff saved expenses in the amount of $_____ by not being required to complete manufacture because of defendant's breach, and plaintiff was able to recoup $ _____ of the expenses incurred by selling the partially manufactured goods. It not being commercially reasonable to complete manufacture of the goods under the contract, as a direct and proximate result of defendant's breach of contract, plaintiff has suffered damages in the sum of _____].

[CONTINUE]

[EITHER, if the contract included liquidated damages provision]

10. The parties agreed in Paragraph _____ of the contract that _____ [specify conditions under which liquidated damages provision would apply, e.g., in the event of a breach by either party] plaintiff would be entitled to recover _____ [specify amount of damages and/or formula for determining amount].

[OR, if defendant has made a deposit which the contract stipulates will be liquidated damages in the event of a breach]

10. On entering into the contract with plaintiff, defendant provided a deposit of $ _____ as security for the performance of his/her contractual obligations. The contract provided that this deposit would be liquidated damages in the event of a breach of the contract. Since defendant has breached the contract as herein alleged, plaintiff is entitled to the sum of $_____ as damages.

[CONTINUE]

11. _____ [Set forth claim for incidental damages, if sought, e.g., As a further direct result of defendant's breach of contract, plaintiff was caused to incur the following commercially reasonable charges, expenses, and commissions: _____ (list, e.g.:)

Transportation costs to and from defendant's warehouse	$ _____
Storage for 14 days	$ _____
Auctioneer's commission	$ _____
Total	$ _____]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

[EITHER]

1. For actual damages in the sum of $ _____ and liquidated damages according to the agreement of the parties in the amount of $ _____;

[OR, if agreement provides for liquidated damages]

1. For liquidated damages according to the agreement of the parties in the sum of $_____;

[CONTINUE]

[2. For incidental damages in the sum of $ _____;]

VERIFICATION

I, _____ [name], am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action. I have read the foregoing complaint and know the contents thereof. The same is true of my own knowledge, except as to those matters which are therein alleged on information and belief, and as to those matters, I believe it to be true.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

[2] Use of Form

The complaint for damages [Com. Code §§ 2703(e), 2704, 2706, 2708-2710] in [1], above, is for use by an aggrieved seller of goods whose buyer has wrongfully rejected [Com. Code §§ 2601(a), 2602] or revoked acceptance of goods [Com. Code § 2608] or failed to make a payment due on or before delivery [Com. Code § 2301; see § 500.75[1], [3], [6][a], [7] (seller's options, measure of damages)].

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- Plaintiff's capacity to sue (Paragraph 1). This need not be alleged if plaintiff is a natural person, but if plaintiff is a legal entity, failure to allege capacity to sue may be grounds for demurrer to the complaint under Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(b).

- Defendant's capacity to be sued and basis of venue (Paragraph 2) [see [8], below].

- Plaintiff's and/or defendant's status as a merchant (Paragraphs 3 and 4). The complaint should allege that the parties are merchants [Com. Code § 2104(1)] if appropriate, because any transaction between merchants impliedly charges the parties with the knowledge or skill of merchants [Com. Code § 2104(3)]. That knowledge may be specialized knowledge as to the goods, specialized knowledge as to business practices, or both, depending on the provisions of Division 2 involved in the transaction [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2104].

- Facts showing the existence of a contract between plaintiff as seller and defendant as buyer (alternative Paragraphs 5) [see § 500.11[1] and [5] (definitions of buyer and seller). The form contains alternative allegations of a written contract (first alternative Paragraph 5) and of a sale of goods on open account or by verbal order (second alternative Paragraph 5). A complaint on a contract is subject to demurrer if it does not allege whether the contract sued on was oral or in writing [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g)]. Consideration to support the contract should be pleaded, as it is here, whenever the claim is not founded on a written contract, because consideration is a necessary element of executory contracts [see Civ. Code § 1605; see also Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.23]. However, because a written instrument is presumptive evidence of consideration [Civ. Code § 1614], the plaintiff does not need to plead the existence and character of the consideration if the pleading states that the contract was in writing. The burden of pleading and proving lack of consideration sufficient to support a written instrument is on the party seeking to avoid it or invalidate it [Civ. Code § 1615; but see Rancho Santa Fe Pharmacy, Inc. v. Seyfert (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 875, 884, 883, 268 Cal. Rptr. 505 (Civ. Code § 1614 is presumption affecting burden of producing evidence and not burden of proof; once evidence is admitted sufficient to call existence of consideration into question, proponent of written instrument retains burden of proving consideration); see Ch. 140, Contracts]. A contract not evidenced by a written instrument is not enforceable by way of action if the price of the goods is $500 or more [Com. Code § 2201(1)] unless it comes within one of the exceptions to the Statute of Frauds under Com. Code § 2201(3), but pleading facts raising the statute is the defendant's burden as an affirmative defense [see Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds].

- The terms of the contract (alternative Paragraphs 5) [see §§ 500.20 et seq., 500.30 et seq.].

- Plaintiff's performance under the contract (Paragraph 6) [see § 500.32].

- Defendant's breach (Paragraph 7) [see § 500.60 et seq.]. When particular contract terms or additional verbal agreements are pertinent to plaintiff's cause of action those terms should be added to the allegations [see § 500.20[4]]. Additional allegations may also be necessary to outline the complete history of the dispute following the seller's tender of delivery, such as the buyer's attempt to revoke acceptance of delivery [Com. Code § 2608; see § 500.60[2][c]] and any relevant actions by plaintiff-seller in response to defendant's breach.

- If plaintiff seller has resorted to the remedy of resale [Com. Code § 2703(d)], that should be alleged (alternative Paragraphs 8), in addition to facts showing compliance with the conditions governing resale, whether public or private, under Com. Code § 2706[see § 500.75[6][b] -[c]]. The seller is entitled to incidental damages resulting from the resale [Com. Code §§ 2706(1), 2710], which should be alleged (Paragraph 11) and included in the prayer for incidental damages.

- Four alternative claims for damages (alternative Paragraphs 9), depending on whether the claim is based on resale or lost profits and whether the goods were completed and/or identified to the contract at the time of breach. The plaintiff-seller will usually prefer to claim damages based on lost profits, because that measure of damages should fully compensate the plaintiff. However, if the seller is operating at full capacity so that it had more customers than it could supply, making the resale contract a true substitute contract in the sense that the seller could not have made it in addition to the one with the defendant, then resale damages should entitle the seller to a more advantageous recovery. If lost profits are claimed under

Com. Code § 2708(2), plaintiff must allege that damages based on the difference between the market price and the contract price under Com. Code § 2708(1) are inadequate to put the seller in as good a position as performance would have done [Com. Code § 2708(2); see Paragraphs 9; see also § 500.75[3], [6][a], [7][a]]. The alternative damage allegations are based on the following:

- Resale, in which case the plaintiff is entitled to the difference between the resale price and the contract price, together with any incidental damages under Com. Code § 2710, but less expenses saved in consequence of the breach (first alternative Paragraph 9) [Com. Code § 2706(1); § 500.75[6][a]] or

- Lost profits. If the goods were complete at the time of the breach, and plaintiff, due to its excess capacity, does not think the Com. Code § 2708(1) measure of damages is adequate but cannot prove that the specific resale would have taken place in addition to the sale to the defendant, the second alternative Paragraph 9 should be used. In that case, plaintiff is entitled to damages equal to the profit it would have made from full performance (including reasonable overhead or fixed costs) together with consequential damages [Com. Code § 2710] and costs, less credit for payments or proceeds of resale [Com. Code § 2708(2); see § 500.75[7][a]].

- If the goods were complete at the time of the breach and plaintiff can qualify for the "lost volume seller" measure of damages by proving that the specific resale would have taken place in addition to the sale to the defendant, the third alternative Paragraph 9 should be used. In that case, plaintiff is entitled to damages equal to its lost profit on defendant's contract but without deduction for proceeds of the resale [National Controls, Inc. v. Commodore Bus. Machines, Inc. (l985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 688, 696-699, 209 Cal. Rptr. 636] .

- If the goods were incomplete at the time of breach, the fourth alternative Paragraph 9 should be used [Com. Code § 2704; see § 500.75[3]].

- If the contract included a liquidated damages provision, its existence and terms should be alleged (Paragraph 10); it should be kept in mind that there is a presumption that clauses prescribing remedies are cumulative with those provided by the code rather than exclusive, unless otherwise agreed by the parties; thus plaintiff may be entitled to liquidated as well as actual damages [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2719 and discussion in § 500.71]. If plaintiff is claiming that the liquidated damages provision is unreasonable, unconscionable, or void for any other reason, that must also be alleged [see Com. Code § 2718 and discussion in § 500.71].

- A claim for incidental damages (Paragraph 11) [see Com. Code § 2710; see also § 500.75[7][c]].

If the claim is payable in a foreign currency, or computable by conversion to or from a foreign currency, allegations should be added setting forth that fact. Otherwise, the claim is made in U.S. dollars [Code Civ. Proc. § 676.6(a)]. For discussion and a form for a judgment under the Uniform Foreign-Money Claims Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 676 et seq.], see Ch. 177, Damages , and Ch. 318, Judgments .

[4] Recovery of Interest

The prayer includes a request for interest on awarded damages, although failure to include it does not preclude interest from being awarded [Sanders v. City of Los Angeles (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 252, 263, 90 Cal. Rptr. 169, 475 P.2d 201] . The date from which the interest is calculated depends on whether the amount of damages was capable of being made certain (liquidated) prior to the filing of the action [see Civ. Code § 3287; see also Ch. 140, Contracts, § 140.56[3]].

[5] Attorney's Fees

In an action on a contract, when the contract specifically provides that attorney's fees and costs that are incurred to enforce the provisions of the contract will be awarded to one of the parties, the prevailing party may recover reasonable attorney's fees as an element of the costs of suit, not as damages [Civ. Code § 1717; see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.50 et seq.]. For discussion of attorney's fees under Civ. Code § 1717.5 in certain contract actions based on a book account as defined in Code Civ. Proc. § 337a, see Ch. 8, Accounts Stated and Open Accounts .

[6] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446], and will also preclude a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[7] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of the action, which will be classified as an unlimited civil case unless the amount in controversy, exclusive of interest, is $25,000 or less, in which case it will be classified as a limited civil case [Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86(a)(1)].

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case and must state whether the demand exceeds or does not exceed $10,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Gov. Code § 70613(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9), (10)].

[8] Venue

When a defendant has contracted to perform an obligation in a particular county, the proper county for the trial of an action founded on that obligation is in either the county in which the obligation is to be performed or in which the contract in fact was entered into or in the county in which the defendant or any defendant resides at the commencement of the action; the county in which the obligation is incurred will be deemed to be the county in which it is to be performed unless there is a special contract in writing to the contrary [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

A corporation or association may be sued in the county where the contract is made or is to be performed, where the obligation or liability arises or the breach occurs, or in the county where the principal place of business of the corporation is situated, subject to the power of the court to change the place of trial as in other cases [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5]. The last act necessary to the validity of a contract, usually the act constituting acceptance, or the place where the obligation arises is the place the contract is made for the purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5 [Jhirmack Enterprises, Inc. v. Superior Court (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 715, 723, 158 Cal. Rptr. 192] .

[9] Statute of Limitations

An action for breach of any contract for sale must be commenced within four years after the cause of action has accrued [Com. Code § 2725(1)]. A cause of action accrues when the breach occurs, regardless of the aggrieved party's lack of knowledge of the breach [Com. Code § 2725(2)]. A breach of warranty occurs when tender of delivery is made, except that when a warranty explicitly extends to future performance of the goods and discovery of the breach of the breach must await the time of that performance, the cause of action accrues when the breach is or should have been discovered [Com. Code § 2725(2); see Cardinal Health 301, Inc. v. Tyco Electronics Corp. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 116, 131-133, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 5 (seller's promise that product would work for 50,000 cycles did not fall within future performance exception in Com. Code § 2725(2) because it did not specify date or time in future, nor did it pertain to time period that could be determined by reference to external source, and buyer could have discovered defect at any time without waiting for completion of 50,000 cycles; additionally, both parties were large and sophisticated companies and could have drafted their agreement to explicitly state duration of warranty so as to ensure that limitation period would extend beyond four years, if that had been their intent); Carrau v. Marvin Lumber and Cedar Co. (2001) 93 Cal. App. 4th 281, 290-292, 112 Cal. Rptr. 2d 869 (generalized assertions in advertisements and literature do not rise to level of warranty explicitly extending to "future performance"; plaintiff thus did not meet exception to four-year limitation period)]. However, by their original agreement, the parties may reduce the period of limitation to not less than one year but may not extend it [Com. Code § 2725(1)]. For further discussion of the period of limitation in an action for breach of a contract for sale, see § 500.78.

The future performance exception in Com. Code § 2725(2) cannot apply with respect to an implied warranty. Because an implied warranty is one that arises by operation of law rather than by an express agreement of the parties, it is not a warranty that "explicitly" extends to future performance of the goods, as that code section requires [Cardinal Health 301, Inc. v. Tyco Electronics Corp. (2008) 169 Cal. App. 4th 116, 134, 87 Cal. Rptr. 3d 5] .

[10] Parties

In addition to the buyer and seller maintaining actions for breach, a "person in the position of a seller" [Com. Code § 2707(1); see § 500.75[2]] may resell and recover incidental damages [Com. Code § 2707(2)].

FIRST COUNT
(Price)

1. [Capacity and residence of plaintiff. See § 500.100[1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Capacity of defendant and basis of venue. See § 500.100[1], Paragraph 2.]

3. [Plaintiff's status as merchant. See § 500.100[1] 1, Paragraph 3.]

4. [Defendant's status as merchant. See § 500.100[1], Paragraph 4.]

5. _____ [Allege facts showing execution and terms of contract, e.g., On _____ [date], defendant[, acting by and through its duly authorized agent,] executed and delivered to plaintiff a contract for the purchase of goods. The contract, a true copy of which is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference, provides for the sale by plaintiff to defendant of _____ [in general terms describe goods, wares, or merchandise made subject of contract], and obligates defendant to pay on delivery of the goods _____ [the sum of $_____ or a reasonable price, as determined by the parties at the time of delivery or a reasonable price to be fixed in terms of _____ (set forth agreed market or other standard by which price was to be fixed)].

6. [Plaintiff's performance under contract. See § 500.100[1], Paragraph 6.]

7. [Defendant's breach of contract. See § 500.100[1], Paragraph 7.]

[If contract had open price term, add if appropriate, EITHER]

8. Plaintiff and defendant have been unable to agree on the price of the goods delivered.

[OR]

8. The price of the goods delivered has not been fixed in terms of _____ [set forth agreed market or other standard by which price was to be fixed] because _____ [allege reason why price has not been fixed as provided for in contract].

[CONTINUE]

9. _____ [If defendant has not accepted delivery of goods, add either Plaintiff has made a reasonable effort to resell the goods described in Paragraph 5 at a reasonable price but has been unable to do so or Circumstances reasonably indicate at all times herein alleged that any effort by plaintiff to resell the goods described in Paragraph 5 would be impracticable].

10. _____ [Set forth claim for price, e.g., The price defendant contracted and agreed to pay for the goods, as described in Paragraph 5, is _____ ($_____ or a reasonable price, as determined by the parties at the time of delivery or a reasonable price to be fixed in terms of _____ [set forth agreed market or other standard by which price was to be fixed]. The reasonable price of the goods described in Paragraph 5 is $_____ per unit, and a total of $_____ for the units delivered and accepted by the defendant). Thus, as a direct and proximate result of defendant's breach of contract, plaintiff has suffered damages in the sum of $_____ (set forth either the contract price or the reasonable price of the goods described in Paragraph 5)].

SECOND COUNT
(Damages)

1. Plaintiff refers to and herein incorporates Paragraphs 1-9, inclusive, of the First Count.

2-5. [Allegations supplying claim for damages. See § 500.100[1], Paragraphs 8-10.]

6. Plaintiff refers to and herein incorporates Paragraph 11 of the First Count.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

On The FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION:

1. For the price of the goods described in Paragraph 3 in the sum of $_____ [set forth either the contract price or if the contract had open price term, the reasonable price of the goods];

[2. For incidental damages in the sum of $_____;]

3. For interest on the sum of $_____ from and after _____ [date on which amount of damages was capable of being made certain or date on which action was filed, whichever is appropriate];

On the SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION:

[EITHER]

4. For actual damages in the sum of $_____ and liquidated damages according to the agreement of the parties in the amount of $_____;

[OR, if the agreement provides that liquidated damages agreed to are the exclusive remedy]

4. For liquidated damages according to the agreement of the parties in the sum of $_____;

[CONTINUE]

[5. For incidental damages in the sum of $_____;]

6. For interest on the sum of $_____ from and after _____ [date on which amount of damages was capable of being made certain or date on which action was filed, whichever is appropriate];

On BOTH CAUSES OF ACTION:

7. For costs of suit herein incurred [including reasonable attorney's fees as authorized by Civ. Code § 1717]; and

8. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification, if desired. See § 500.100[1] .]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use by an aggrieved seller whose buyer has wrongfully rejected [Com. Code §§ 2601(a), 2602] or revoked acceptance of goods [see Com. Code § 2608] or failed to make a payment due on delivery [Com. Code § 2301], to recover the contract price of goods [see Com. Code §§ 2703(e), 2709; see also § 500.100[4] -[11]]. An action for the price is generally limited to those cases in which resale of the goods is impracticable, except when the buyer has accepted the goods or when they have been destroyed after risk of loss has passed to the buyer. A defaulting seller cannot maintain an action for the price. Thus, if the buyer's rejection or revocation of acceptance was justifiable, this complaint should not be used, or at least counsel should be prepared to resist a demurrer [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2709; see also §§ 500.33, 500.75[7][b], 500.77 and [3], below].

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, sets forth two counts as a basis for recovery of damages for breach. The first count alleges in pertinent part:

- Facts showing the existence of a written contract between plaintiff as seller and defendant as buyer, and the terms of the contract (Paragraph 5). The form contains alternative allegations for the price term (Paragraph 5), one being a specifically stated price and the others, a reasonable price to be determined by the parties or by an agreed market or standard, or an open price term [Com. Code § 2305; see § 500.33[2]].

- Optional allegations, to be included when appropriate to the facts, that the parties have been unable to agree on the price of the goods or that the price has not been fixed by the agreed standard, and the reason why the price has not been so fixed (Paragraph 8). The reason for the failure of the price to be fixed is significant, because when a price is left to be fixed (other than by agreement of the parties) and fails to be fixed through fault of one party, the other has the option of treating the contract as cancelled or fixing a reasonable price [Com. Code § 2305(3)]. This complaint does not allege the intent of the parties to be bound to the agreement unless the price be fixed or agreed, which is an essential element of the contract [see Com. Code § 2305(4)], because that appears to be an affirmative defense involving the defendant's burden of pleading and proof [see § 500.121].

- Another optional allegation, to be used if defendant has not accepted delivery of the goods, that either plaintiff has made a reasonable but unsuccessful effort to resell the goods or that an effort to do so would be impracticable (Paragraph 9). An action for the price is generally limited to cases in which resale of the goods is impracticable, except when the buyer has accepted the goods [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2709].

- Alternative terms to be used in the claim for price, depending on whether the contract stated a price term or left it open (Paragraph 10). In the latter situation, the complaint alleges what amount constitutes a reasonable price for the goods delivered and accepted by the defendant, because if the parties fail to agree to a price, the contract is interpreted so as to provide for a reasonable price [Com. Code § 2305(1)(b)]. This also enables the plaintiff to request a specific dollar amount in damages, in order to satisfy the jurisdictional requirements of the appropriate court [see § 500.33[1]].

The second count alleges in pertinent part a claim for damages pursuant to Com. Code § 2708 (Paragraphs 2-5) [see § 500.100[3]]. If the buyer has wrongfully rejected or revoked acceptance of the goods, failed to make a payment due, or repudiated, and the seller is not successful in its action on the price, that seller may nevertheless be awarded damages for nonacceptance in the same action [Com. Code § 2709(3); see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2709].

5. _____ [Allege facts showing execution and terms of contract, e.g., On _____ (date), defendant (, acting by and through its duly authorized agent,) executed and delivered to plaintiff a contract for the purchase of goods. The contract, a true copy of which is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference, provides that plaintiff agrees to specially manufacture for defendant and defendant agrees to purchase _____ (in general terms describe goods, wares, or merchandise made subject of contract), and obligates defendant to purchase these _____ (describe goods) in such quantity as defendant, in good faith, requires for its manufacturing needs. (Defendant agreed to pay $_____ per unit with certain discounts which would depend on the size of orders placed from time to time.) The contract also provides that delivery will be made from time to time as ordered and required by defendant].

6. _____ [Allege defendant's estimation of its anticipated requirements, if any, e.g., Defendant's requirements were estimated by the defendant to be at least 10,000 units, and further units would be required depending on the demand for the goods by defendant's dealers.]

8. _____ [Allege any additional facts relevant to the history of dealings between the parties, e.g., On _____ (date), plaintiff delivered _____ (number of units) of the goods described in Paragraph 5 to the defendant at $_____each, for which defendant paid the sum of $_____).]

9. _____ [Allege defendant's breach of contract, e.g., Defendant was obligated under its agreement with plaintiff to make the subject goods available to its dealers and in good faith to ascertain from all of its dealers in the United States which of those dealers desired to distribute the subject goods. Defendant, in violation of its promises and obligations described in Paragraph 5, failed to acquaint all of its dealers with plaintiff's goods, did not request its division managers to make the subject goods available to its dealers, and did not give all of its dealers an opportunity to order the subject goods. Defendant advised plaintiff on _____ (date), that defendant rejected any further purchase of the goods described in Paragraph 5, because the majority of its divisions did not feel that they could distribute them to its dealers in sufficient quantities].

10. _____ [Set forth claim for price, e.g., The price defendant contracted and agreed to pay for the goods, as described in Paragraph 5, is $_____ per unit. Defendant was obligated to purchase its good faith requirements for the goods described in Paragraph 5 from plaintiff under the subject agreement. The number of units of goods which the defendant would have required in good faith was easily ascertainable by defendant and would not have been less than _____(number) units. Thus, as a direct and proximate result of defendant's breach of contract, plaintiff has suffered damages in the sum of $_____ (set forth the price of the number of units of goods which the defendant would have required in good faith)].

SECOND COUNT
(Damages)

1. Plaintiff refers to and herein incorporates Paragraphs 1-9, inclusive, of the First Count.

2. [Allegation supplying claim for liquidated damages, if applicable. See § 500.100[1], Paragraph 10.]

3. _____ [Set forth claim for damages for lost profit, e.g., Defendant was obligated to purchase its good faith requirements for the goods described in Paragraph 5 from plaintiff under the subject agreement. The number of units of goods which the defendant would have required in good faith was easily ascertainable by defendant and would not have been less than _____ (number) units. The price defendant contracted and agreed to pay for the goods, as described in Paragraph 5, is $_____ per unit. Thus, as a direct and proximate result of defendant's breach of contract, plaintiff has suffered damages in the sum of $_____].

4. Plaintiff refers to and herein incorporates Paragraph 11 of the First Count.

[Prayer. See § 500.101[1].]

[Verification, if desired. See § 500.100[1] .]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, for the contract price of goods [Com. Code §§ 2703(e), 2709] is for use by an aggrieved seller-supplier whose buyer-user under a requirements contract [Com. Code § 2306] has failed to demand and pay for the amount of specially manufactured goods which in good faith the buyer estimated to be required under the contract. Good faith and reasonableness are required, in addition to other obligations of parties to a requirements contract and may not be disclaimed by agreement [see Shea-Kaiser-Lockheed-Healy v. Department of Water & Power (1977) 73 Cal. App. 3d 679, 689, 140 Cal. Rptr. 884 ; discussion in § 500.34[2]]. Although two counts are alleged, one for price and one for damages, the action for the price, rather than damages, would be more appropriate, because when goods are specially manufactured to fit the needs of the buyer, it may be unreasonable to resell them to anyone else [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2709; see also §§ 500.75[7][b], 500.100[4] -[11], 500.101[2] -[3]].

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, sets forth two counts as a basis for recovery of damages for breach. The first count alleges in pertinent part:

- Facts showing the existence of a requirements contract for specially manufactured goods between plaintiff and defendant (Paragraph 5).

- Plaintiff's and defendant's respective statuses as seller-supplier and buyer-user (Paragraphs 3 and 4).

- The terms of the contract (Paragraph 5). A term which measures the contract quantity by the requirements of the buyer means actual requirements as would occur in good faith [Com. Code § 2306(1); see § 500.34[2]].

- That the contract contained an estimation of the buyer's requirements which should be alleged (Paragraph 6), because the estimate will be regarded as a measure of the variation or elasticity which the parties intended to allow within the good faith standard [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2306].

- Defendant's breach, by failing to acquaint its dealers with the goods contracted for, thereby denying them the opportunity to order them and resulting in defendant's failure to order the amount of goods estimated as required in the contract (Paragraph 9). Defendant, as a merchant, has a duty to conduct his or her business not only in good faith, but according to commercial standards of fair dealing in the trade, which implies that the buyer's requirements approximate a reasonably foreseeable figure [see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2306].

- The amount of goods that the defendant would have required in good faith was easily ascertainable (Paragraph 10). If a contract term, such as quantity, is left open, the contract may fail for indefiniteness unless there is a reasonably certain basis for giving an appropriate remedy [Com. Code § 2204; see § 500.20 et seq.].

The second count alleges in pertinent part a claim for damages pursuant to Com. Code § 2708 (Paragraph 3) [see §§ 500.75[7][a], 500.100[3]] as an alternative to the claim for price, as authorized by Com. Code § 2709(3) [see § 500.101[2] and [3]].

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of plaintiff. See § 500.100[1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Capacity of defendant and basis of venue. See § 500.100[1], Paragraph 2.]

3. [Plaintiff's status as merchant. See § 500.100[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. [Defendant's status as merchant. See § 500.100[1], Paragraph 4.]

5. _____ [Allege facts showing course of conduct between plaintiff and defendant leading to making of firm offer by defendant, e.g., On _____ (date), plaintiff requested defendant to submit an offer to supply _____ (in general terms describe goods, wares, or merchandise made subject of firm offer), for purchase by plaintiff].

6. _____ [Allege facts showing making and substance of firm offer, e.g., By a writing dated _____, a true copy of which is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference, defendant offered to supply the goods described in Paragraph 5 to plaintiff for the total amount of $_____].

7. _____ [Allege facts showing plaintiff's acceptance of defendant's firm offer and any facts relevant to plaintiff's requirements made known to defendant, e.g., Plaintiff advised defendant that he/she would accept his/her offer, provided he/she received orders from his/her distributors within two weeks from the date of the offer for the goods described in Paragraph 5].

8. _____ [Allege facts showing defendant's assurance to hold offer open, e.g., Defendant assured plaintiff he would hold his/her offer open for a period of _____ (number) days and, at plaintiff's request, defendant reduced that assurance to a separate writing dated _____, a true copy of which is attached as Exhibit B and incorporated by reference].

9. _____ [Allege facts showing plaintiff's reliance on defendant's firm offer, e.g., Relying on defendant's firm offer described in Paragraph 6, plaintiff quoted a firm price to his/her distributors for the goods described in Paragraph 5, which was accepted by them on _____ (date)].

10. _____ [Allege defendant's revocation of offer, e.g., Subsequent to plaintiff's acts in reliance on defendant's firm offer, as described in Paragraph 9, on _____ (date), and prior to _____ (date on which firm offer became revocable under terms of writing described in Paragraph 8), defendant withdrew his/her firm offer to supply the goods described in Paragraph 5, which were necessary for plaintiff to complete his/her contract with his/her distributors, as described in Paragraph 9].

11. _____ [Set forth plaintiff's actions in response to defendant's breach, e.g., On _____(date), in good faith and without unreasonable delay, plaintiff entered into another contract with a third party a true copy of which is attached as Exhibit C and incorporated by reference, for the purchase of an equal quantity of the goods described in Paragraph 5).]

[EITHER, if damages are based on cover]

12. _____ [Set forth claim for damages, e.g., The cover price plaintiff paid for the goods sold to him/her by the third party, as described in Paragraph 11, was $_____ per unit, or a total of $_____. The price for which defendant offered to sell these goods to plaintiff, as described in Paragraph 6, is $_____. As a direct and proximate result of defendant's revocation of his/her firm offer, plaintiff has been compelled to expend an additional $_____ to obtain substitute goods and has suffered damages in the sum of $_____. Defendant's breach of contract did not result in any saving of expenses to plaintiff].

[OR, if damages based on cover are not sought]

12. _____ [Set forth claim for damages for repudiation, e.g., The price for which the defendant made a firm offer to sell the goods, as described in Paragraph 6, is $_____. The market price of the goods described in Paragraph 5 on _____ (date on which plaintiff learned of defendant's revocation of firm offer) was $_____. Thus, as a direct and proximate result of defendant's revocation of his/her firm offer, plaintiff has suffered damages in the sum of $_____. Defendant's breach of contract did not result in any saving of expenses to plaintiff].

[14. _____ (Set forth claim for consequential damages, if sought, e.g., As a further result of defendant's revocation of his firm offer, plaintiff suffered the following consequential loss and damage in the sum of $_____. This sum is the discount which plaintiff was required to give to its distributors when plaintiff was unable to deliver the goods described in Paragraph 5 on the date promised. Defendant knew of plaintiff's commitment to furnish these goods to plaintiff's distributors at the time of the making of the contract between plaintiff and defendant).]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For actual damages in the sum of $_____;

[2. For incidental damages in the sum of $_____;]

[3. For consequential damages in the sum of $_____;]

4. For interest on the sum of $_____ from and after _____ [date on which amount of damages was capable of being made certain or date on which action was filed, whichever is appropriate];

5. For costs of suit herein incurred[, including reasonable attorney's fees as authorized by Civil Code Section 1717]; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification, if desired. See § 500.100[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use by a buyer whose seller has wrongfully repudiated by revoking a firm offer [Com. Code § 2205; see discussion in § 500.20[3]] to recover damages [Com. Code §§ 2711(1), 2712, 2713; see discussions in § 500.76[3] and [4]].

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges:

- The status of the parties as merchants (Paragraphs 3, 4). Although plaintiff's merchant status is an optional allegation, defendant's is mandatory, because Com. Code § 2205 governing firm offers only applies to offers by a merchant [see discussion in § 500.20[3]].

- The conduct of the parties leading to the making of the offer and a description of the goods (Paragraph 5)

- The making and substance of a firm offer (Paragraph 6). A firm offer must be made in a signed writing [Com. Code § 2205].

- Plaintiff's acceptance of the offer, together with any facts relevant to his or her requirements made known to defendant at the time of contracting which might affect defendant's liability for consequential damages (Paragraph 7) [see Com. Code § 2715(2)(a); see discussion in § 500.76[4][c]].

- Defendant's written signed assurance to plaintiff to hold the offer open for a certain period of time (Paragraph 8). This assurance must be in a signed writing and the period for which it is kept open may not exceed three months [Com. Code § 2205].

- Plaintiff's detrimental reliance on the offer (Paragraph 9).

- Defendant's revocation of the firm offer prior to the expiration of the period during which defendant assured plaintiff it would remain open (Paragraph 10).

- Plaintiff's actions in response to defendant's breach (Paragraph 11), such as procuring substitute goods or "cover" [Com. Code §§ 2711(1)(a), 2712; see § 500.76[3]]. The allegation that plaintiff "covered" in good faith and without unreasonable delay is necessary to claim damages under Com. Code § 2712.

- Alternative claims for plaintiff buyer's damages (alternative Paragraphs 12), the first based on "cover," being the difference between the cost of "cover" and the firm offer price, less any expenses saved in consequence of the seller's breach [Com. Code § 2712(2)], and the second based on damages for repudiation, being the difference between the market price at the time when the buyer learned of the breach and the contract price, less expenses saved in consequence of the seller's breach [Com. Code § 2713]. Both measures of damages may include incidental (Paragraph 13) and consequential damages (Paragraph 14) [Com. Code § 2715; see § 500.76[4][c]]. Consequential damages are recoverable only if they could not reasonably be prevented by cover [Com. Code § 2715(2)(a)]. Under Com. Code § 2715(2)(a) (damages after cover), the burden of proving the extent of the loss incurred is on the injured buyer, but the burden of proving the inadequacy of efforts to mitigate consequential damages is on allegedly breaching seller [Carnation Co. v. Olivet Egg Ranch (1986) 189 Cal. App. 3d 809, 818, 229 Cal. Rptr. 261] .

Any allegation that plaintiff procured "cover" and any claim for damages based thereon is optional. Failure of the buyer to effect "cover" does not bar any other remedy [Com. Code § 2712(3)].

§ 500.111 Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384] After Seller's Breach of Contract [Com. Code § 2716]

[1] FORM Complaint for Specific Performance [Civ. Code § 3384] After Seller's Breach of Contract [Com. Code § 2716]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name] [, a California Corporation], Plaintiff, vs. _____ [names] [, individually and doing business as _____ (fictitious name)], Defendant.	)	NO. _____ COMPLAINT FOR SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE

Plaintiff alleges:

1. [Capacity and residence of plaintiff. See § 500.100[1], Paragraph 1.]

2. [Capacity of defendant and basis of venue. See § 500.100[1], Paragraph 2.]

3. [Plaintiff's status as merchant. See § 500.100[1], Paragraph 3.]

4. [Defendant's status as merchant. See § 500.100[1], Paragraph 4.]

5. _____ [Allege facts showing execution and terms of contract, e.g., On _____ (date), plaintiff (, acting by and through its duly authorized agent,) executed and delivered to defendant a contract for the purchase of goods. The contract, a true copy of which is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference, provides for the sale by defendant to plaintiff of _____(in specific terms describe goods, wares, or merchandise made subject of contract), and obligates defendant to make payment in the sum of $_____, on delivery of the goods].

6. _____ [Allege facts showing plaintiff's performance or willingness to perform under contract, e.g., Plaintiff fully and in all things performed his/her part of the agreement described in Paragraph 5, in that on _____ (date), plaintiff _____ (paid or tendered payment of) the purchase price set forth in the agreement to defendant and requested defendant to deliver the goods as described in Paragraph 5].

7. _____ [Allege defendant's breach of contract, e.g., In violation of its promises and obligations under the agreement described in Paragraph 5, defendant _____ (wrongfully refused to accept plaintiff's tender of payment of the purchase price or has failed and refused, and continues to fail and refuse to make delivery of the goods described in Paragraph 5, and has repudiated the agreement described therein)].

8. _____ [Allege defendant's ability to perform, e.g., At all times referred to herein, defendant was, and now is, the owner and in possession of the goods described in Paragraph 5].

9. _____ [Allege unique nature of goods or other circumstances warranting specific performance and inadequacy of remedy at law, e.g., The goods described in Paragraph 5 are unique in character in that _____ (describe why goods are unique). Therefore, plaintiff has no plain, speedy, or adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law, and damages, if awarded, cannot be properly ascertained and would be inadequate to compensate plaintiff for the detriment suffered as a result of defendant's breach].

10. At the time the agreement described in Paragraph 5 was entered into, on _____ [date] the goods described therein were reasonably worth $_____; accordingly, that agreement is just, fair, and reasonable as to the defendant, and the consideration therefor accruing to the defendant is adequate.

11. _____ [Set forth claim for consequential damages, if sought, e.g., As a further result of defendant's breach of contract, plaintiff suffered the following consequential loss and damage in the sum of $_____. This sum is the penalty plaintiff was required to pay to _____ (third party) when plaintiff was unable to forward to that third party on schedule the goods defendant failed to deliver to plaintiff. Defendant knew of plaintiff's commitment to furnish these unique goods to _____ (third party) at the time of the making of the contract between plaintiff and defendant. This consequential loss to plaintiff could not reasonably be prevented by cover or otherwise.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. That the court decree specific performance of the agreement described in Paragraph 5;

2. That defendant be specifically ordered to deliver to plaintiff the goods described in Paragraph 5;

[3. For consequential damages in the sum of $_____;]

[4. For interest on the sum of $_____ from and after _____ (date on which amount of consequential damages was capable of being made certain or date on which action was filed, whichever is appropriate);]

5. For costs of suit herein incurred [, including reasonable attorney's fees as authorized by Civil Code Section 1717]; and

6. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification, if desired. See § 500.100[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint for specific performance [Civ. Code § 3384] in [1], above, is for use by an aggrieved buyer whose seller has wrongfully repudiated or failed to deliver unique goods [Com. Code § 2716]. An action for specific performance under the Commercial Code is generally limited to those cases in which the goods involved are unique, although the remedy may be decreed in other proper circumstances [Com. Code § 2716(1); see § 500.76[5] and [3], below; see also §§ 500.100[4] -[11], 500.110[3]]. A decree for specific performance may include such terms and conditions as to payment of the price, damages, or other relief as the court may deem just [Com. Code § 2716(2)].

For additional discussion and forms for use in actions for specific performance, see Ch. 528, Specific Performance .

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges the following:

- Facts showing the execution and terms of the contract (Paragraph 5), including a specific description of the goods in order to support the allegation of their unique nature.

- Facts showing the plaintiff's performance or tender of performance (Paragraph 6), because performance by the plaintiff is generally a condition precedent to a decree of specific performance [see Civ. Code § 3392].

- Facts showing the defendant's breach and refusal to perform (Paragraph 7) and the plaintiff's demand for the defendant's performance (Paragraph 6), because both are essential to a cause of action for specific performance [see Crocker v. Grandi (1961) 189 Cal. App. 2d 431, 435, 11 Cal. Rptr. 330] .

- The defendant's ability to perform (Paragraph 8) [Civ. Code § 3394].

- The unique nature of the subject goods or other proper circumstances warranting specific performance (Paragraph 9) [Com. Code § 2716(1)].

- The inadequacy of the remedy at law (Paragraph 9) [Korabek v. Weaver Aircraft Corp. (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 32, 40, 149 P.2d 876] .

- That the consideration to be received by the defendant is adequate, and the contract as to the defendant is just and reasonable (Paragraph 10) [Civ. Code § 3391].

Even when the contract provides for liquidated damages or a penalty in the event of breach, which the defendant is willing to pay, the contract may be specifically enforced if the case satisfies all other requirements for that remedy [Civ. Code § 3389].

[4] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of actions for specific performance. Specific performance is an equitable remedy [

Schaefer v. United Bank & Trust Co. (1930) 104 Cal. App. 635, 641, 286 P. 723 ; see discussion of the elements of specific performance in Ch. 528, Specific Performance]. It is not one of the types of equitable remedies that are limited civil cases under Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b), nor do Civ. Code §§ 3384-3402, which govern specific performance, authorize such an action to be brought as a limited civil case. It appears, therefore, that an action for specific performance cannot be brought as a limited civil case, regardless of the amount in controversy [see Code Civ. Proc. § 85(c) (relief sought must be exclusively of a type described in one or more statutes that classify action or proceeding as limited civil case)].

7. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification, if desired. See § 500.100[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint for damages in [1], above, is for use by an aggrieved buyer who has rightfully rejected [Com. Code §§ 2601(a), 2602] defective goods and is seeking recovery of the price paid [Com. Code § 2711(1)], as well as damages for repudiation [Com. Code §§ 2711(1), 2712, 2713]. This complaint is only applicable if the buyer has not yet accepted the goods [Com. Code § 2606] at the time of discovering their defects, and, therefore, the provisions governing buyer's damages in regard to accepted goods [Com. Code § 2714] and the burden of proving breach with respect to accepted goods [Com. Code § 2607(4); see UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2607] do not apply [see discussion in [3], below].

Acceptance of goods by the buyer precludes resort to the remedy of rejection with regard to the accepted goods, unless the acceptance was on the reasonable assumption that any nonconformity would be seasonably cured [Com. Code § 2607(2)]. For discussion of buyers' remedies with respect to accepted goods, see § 500.60[2][b] and [c].

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges the following:

- The status of the parties as merchants (Paragraphs 3, 4) which in the case of the plaintiff buyer affects his or her duties as to the rejected goods [Com. Code § 2603] and as to notification to the seller (Com. Code § 2605(1)(b)) [see discussion in § 500.60[1][b] and [c]].

- The execution and terms of the contract, including a provision that there would be no acceptance of the goods unless they remained defect-free for a specified period of time (Paragraph 5) [see discussion in [2], above].

- Plaintiff's performance under the contract (Paragraph 6). Plaintiff need not have already performed or paid for the goods to be entitled to maintain an action based on rightful rejection; however, if the buyer has already performed, he or she may recover any part of the price that has been paid, in addition to damages [Com. Code § 2711(1)].

- The grounds for plaintiff's rejection of the goods and the date on which they were discovered (Paragraph 7).

- Plaintiff's seasonable notification to defendant of discovery of the defects (Paragraph 8). The buyer's failure to seasonably state a particular defect that is ascertainable by reasonable inspection precludes that buyer from relying on that defect to justify rejection or to establish defendant's breach if the seller could have cured it [Com. Code § 2605(1)(a); see discussion in § 500.60[1][b]].

- Defendant's breach (Paragraph 9), such as failure to cure or make an attempt to cure within a reasonable time [Com. Code § 2508; see discussion in § 500.35[8]].

- Plaintiff's seasonable notification of rejection after defendant's failure to cure (Paragraph 10), which must be made within a reasonable time after delivery of the goods [Com. Code § 2602(1); see the discussion in § 500.60[1]].

- If plaintiff is a merchant, plaintiff's compliance with Com. Code § 2603(1) regarding duties with respect to the rejected goods (Paragraph 11).

- Plaintiff's "cover" [Com. Code § 2712], if any (Paragraph 12).

- An optional claim for price (Paragraph 13), which is applicable if plaintiff paid any portion of the purchase price prior to rejection [Com. Code § 2711(1)].

- Alternative claims for damages (Paragraph 14), the first based on "cover" [Com. Code § 2712(2); see discussion in § 500.76[3]], and the second based on damages for repudiation including incidental and consequential damages, if appropriate [Com. Code § 2713; see discussion in § 500.76[4][b] and [c]]. If the seller repudiates, as in this case, the buyer's claims for price and damages are cumulative, not alternative [see Com. Code § 2711(1)].

§ 500.120 Defense Based on Custom and Usage [Com. Code § 1303(b), (c)]

[1] FORM Defense Based on Custom and Usage [Com. Code § 1303(b), (c)]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state: TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges:

1. At all times mentioned in plaintiff's complaint herein, there existed and still exists, in the _____ [describe type of business in which parties are engaged] business, a well-established and well-understood custom and usage in _____ [set out locality, e.g., the State of California] to the effect that _____ [describe custom and usage]. Plaintiff had notice of that custom and usage, and the contract referred to in plaintiff's complaint herein was made by the parties with reference to, and with knowledge of, that custom and usage.

2. In accordance with custom and usage, defendant _____ [set forth defendant's actions under the custom and usage that he or she relies on to constitute a defense].

[2] Use of Form

The defense of custom and usage is appropriate in any action on an agreement [Com. Code § 1303(d)] unless the parties have specifically agreed that usage of trade should not be construed as a part of the agreement [Heggblade-Marguleas-Tenneco, Inc. v. Sunshine Biscuit, Inc. (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 948, 955, 131 Cal. Rptr. 183 ; see Com. Code § 1303(e)], because an agreement, by definition, is the bargain of the parties as found in their language or by implication from circumstances including usage of trade [Com. Code § 1201(b)(3)]. Some sections of Division 2, such as the following, specifically incorporate usage of trade into their provisions:

- Com. Code § 2314(3) (warranties implied from usage of trade), discussed in Ch. 502, Sales: Warranties .

- Com. Code § 2316(3)(c) (modification of implied warranty by usage of trade), discussed in Ch. 502,

Sales: Warranties .

- Com. Code § 2323(3) ("overseas" shipment), discussed in § 500.52[5][d].
- Com. Code § 2504(b) (shipment by seller), discussed in § 500.35[5].

The admission of trade usage evidence does not violate the parol evidence rule [Com. Code § 2202(a); see discussion in § 500.31]. However, evidence of a relevant usage of trade offered by one party is not admissible unless and until that party has given the other party notice which the court finds sufficient to prevent unfair surprise to the latter [Com. Code § 1303(g)].

[3] Allegations

The existence and scope of trade usage must be proven as facts [Com. Code § 1303(c)] and therefore, must be specifically pleaded (Paragraph 1). Defendant may allege in the alternative either that the usage of trade exists, that the parties are aware of it, or that they should be aware of it (Paragraph 1) [see Com. Code § 1303(d)]. The knowledge of persons carrying on a particular trade as to prominent trade customs may be actual or constructive [Heggblade-Marguleas-Tenneco, Inc. v. Sunshine Biscuit, Inc. (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 948, 956, 131 Cal. Rptr. 183] . The affirmative defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)] in [1], above, also alleges the particular conduct of the answering defendant that is in accordance with the custom and usage alleged in the first paragraph (Paragraph 2.).

§ 500.121 Defense Based Lack of Intent to Be Bound While Price Term Remained Open [Com. Code § 2305(4)]

[1] FORM Defense Based Lack of Intent to Be Bound While Price Term Remained Open [Com. Code § 2305(4)]

AS A SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE, defendant alleges:

1. The terms of the transaction described in Paragraph _____ of the complaint herein provided that the price of the subject _____ [describe in general terms goods, wares, or merchandise made subject of agreement] was to be determined [by mutual agreement of the parties or by _____ (set forth agreed market or other standard by which price was to be fixed)] no later than _____ [date].

2. Plaintiff and defendant did not intend to be bound to the agreement described in Paragraph _____ of the complaint herein unless a price for the subject goods was _____ [agreed on by mutual consent of the parties or fixed according to the method described in Paragraph 1].

3. _____ [Plaintiff and defendant were unable to agree on a price for the subject goods prior to _____(date), and _____ (have never agreed on a price or a price has never been set according to the method set forth in Paragraph 1) prior to the service of the complaint herein, on _____ (date)].

4. The transaction described in Paragraph _____ of the complaint herein did not, therefore, result in a binding agreement, and defendant has no further duties thereunder.

[2] Use of Form

The defense of no intention to be bound unless price term agreed on is appropriate in an action on an agreement which contains an open price term if either (1) the parties have failed to agree on a price or (2) a price has not been fixed as agreed on [see § 500.101], and the parties did not intend to be bound unless the price was set according to the terms of the agreement [Com. Code § 2305(4); see discussion in §§ 500.33[2], 500.101[3]].

[3] Allegations

The defendant should specifically allege that the parties did not intend to be bound by the agreement unless and until the price term was agreed on or fixed. In the absence of that intent, the agreement will be considered binding in spite of the absent price term, and a reasonable price will be fixed (Paragraph 2) [Com. Code § 2305(1)]. In addition, if defendant successfully proves this defense of no intent to be bound, there is no contract (Paragraph 4), and the defendant buyer is liable only for returning goods already received or paying their reasonable value at the time of delivery [Com. Code § 2305(4)].

§ 500.122 Defense Based on Fact That Defendant Is Not a Merchant [Com. Code § 2104(1)]

[1] FORM Defense Based on Fact That Defendant Is Not a Merchant [Com. Code § 2104(1)]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. Defendant is an inexperienced _____ [buyer or seller] of _____ [describe goods, wares or merchandise involved in the subject contract].

2. Defendant is not a merchant of _____[describe goods, wares, or merchandise made subject of contract] as defined by Commercial Code Section 2104(1) and has no knowledge of the customs and practices peculiar to the _____ [selling or marketing] of those goods.

3. Defendant is a _____ [describe defendant's business or profession].

[2] Use of Form

This form sets forth the affirmative defence that the defendant is not a "merchant" within the meaning of the Commercial Code. The defense of not being a merchant is available in any action in which the defendant is inappropriately being charged with having knowledge or skill peculiar to the practices or goods involved in the transaction [Com. Code § 2104(1), discussed in § 500.11[3]] or is being incorrectly held to a standard of performance required of merchants in certain situations, such as those involving firm offers [Com. Code § 2205; see §§ 500.20[3], 500.110[3]] and rejected goods [Com. Code §§ 2603, 2605(1)(b); see §§ 500.60[1][b] and [c], 500.112[3]].

§ 500.123 Defense Based on Buyer's Failure to Effectively Revoke Acceptance [Com. Code § 2608]

[1] FORM Defense Based on Buyer's Failure to Effectively Revoke Acceptance [Com. Code § 2608]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

[1. Plaintiff's status as merchant, if appropriate. See § 500.100[1], Paragraph 3.]

[2. Defendant's status as merchant, if appropriate. See § 500.100[1], Paragraph 4.]

3. On _____ [date], defendant delivered _____ (describe goods, wares or merchandise made subject of agreement) to plaintiff (in accordance with the specifications contained in the contract between plaintiff and defendant, a true copy of which is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference)].

4. _____ [Set forth facts showing plaintiff's alleged revocation, e.g., On _____ [date], plaintiff notified defendant by letter, a true copy of which is attached as Exhibit B and incorporated by reference, that he/she was dissatisfied with the subject goods and was placing them in storage. That notification was not made within a reasonable time after plaintiff should have discovered any defects in the subject goods].

5. _____ [Allege facts showing defendant's response to plaintiff's alleged revocation, e.g., By letter dated _____ [date], a true copy of which is attached as Exhibit C and incorporated by reference, defendant requested that plaintiff particularize his/her dissatisfaction with the accepted goods, but defendant received no further communication from plaintiff until the service of the complaint in this action on _____ [date].

[6. Prior to the filing of the complaint herein, plaintiff never asserted to defendant that the alleged nonconformity in _____ (describe subject goods) substantially impaired the value of those goods.]

7. _____ [Allege grounds for defense of ineffective revocation, e.g., Plaintiff's failure to particularize any alleged defects in the subject goods, and thus, to allow defendant an opportunity to cure them, and plaintiff's failure to notify defendant of any alleged nonconformity in the subject goods within a reasonable time after he/she should have discovered any defects, precludes plaintiff from recovering from defendant any damages resulting from any alleged breach by defendant].

[2] Use of Form

The defense that the buyer has failed to effectively revoke acceptance of the goods is available to a defendant seller if the buyer has failed to comply with the requirements of proper revocation [see Com. Code § 2608, discussed in § 500.60[2][c]] or has failed to particularize defects on which the revocation is based [Com. Code § 2605(1); see discussions in §§ 500.60[1][b], 500.112[2] -[3]].

[3] Allegations

If both parties are merchants, that status should be alleged (Paragraphs 1, 2), because between merchants, the buyer's failure to particularize any defect which is ascertainable by reasonable inspection after rejection, when so requested in writing by the seller (Paragraph 5), precludes the buyer from relying on the unstated defect to justify the rejection [Com. Code § 2605(1)(b); see discussion in § 500.60[1][b]].

Defendant may allege, depending on the facts, that plaintiff's revocation of acceptance was improper because defendant's performance was in total conformity with the contract requirements (Paragraph 3), plaintiff's revocation was not made within a reasonable time after plaintiff should have discovered any defects in the goods (Paragraph 4) [Com. Code § 2608(2); see discussion in § 500.60[2][c]], or plaintiff failed to particularize the alleged defects on which plaintiff based the revocation (Paragraph 5). If the seller could have cured the defect if it had been stated seasonably, the failure to particularize precludes plaintiff from relying on the unstated defect to justify revocation [Com. Code § 2605(1)(a)]. The affirmative defense may also allege that plaintiff never asserted that the alleged nonconformity substantially impaired the value of the goods (Paragraph 6), which is a prerequisite to the right of revocation [see Com. Code § 2608(1)] and, finally, the basis for defendant's claim that plaintiff's revocation was ineffective (Paragraph 7).

Chapter 501 SALES: RETAIL INSTALLMENT SALES
PART I. SCOPE

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.01

§ 501.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter focuses on credit disclosure requirements as they apply to retail installment sales of personal property, and services for other than commercial or business use. It discusses the requirements of the Unruh Act [Civ. Code § 1801], also known as the Retail Installment Sales Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.; hereinafter referred to as RISA) and similar or parallel provisions of the federal Truth in Lending Act (15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.; referred to as TILA), insofar as that act affects retail installment sales, as well as certain notice requirements to cosigners of retail installment contracts or accounts [Civ. Code § 1799.90 et seq.]. Rights and remedies of consumer litigants as well as the defenses available to creditors are treated. Discussion and forms relating to the special protections available under California and federal law with respect to pre-existing obligations incurred by military personnel serving on active duty [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.; Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.] are also discussed [see §§ 501.60 et seq., 501.300 et seq.].

Included are forms for complaints by a buyer to recover the following:

- Statutory penalties from a seller for violations of RISA [see § 501.100].
- Statutory penalties based on a willful violation by a seller of the provisions of RISA pertaining to finance charges on a consolidated total of two or more contracts [see § 501.101].
- Damages and statutory penalties for violations of TILA [see § 501.200].
- The consideration paid under a contract rescinded pursuant to TILA [see § 501.201].

This chapter also contains the following forms:

- Allegations of violations of a number of specific provisions of RISA [see §§ 501.104 -501.109].
- A seller's affirmative defenses based on the provisions of RISA [see § 501.140] and TILA [see §§ 501.210 -501.212].

- A declaration of proper venue which must be filed with the complaint in any action on a contract or account subject to RISA [see § 501.102].

- A complaint by a seller against a buyer who defaults on a contract that is subject to RISA [see § 501.130].

- A buyer cosigner's affirmative defense based on the creditor's failure to comply with liability notice requirements [see § 501.120].

- An application for stay of enforcement of pre-existing obligation during the period of the applicant's military service [see § 501.300].

- An application (motion) for temporary relief from an obligation on the ground that the person is or was in active military service after entering into the obligation [see § 501.301].

- An affirmative defense to an action on an interest-bearing obligation on the ground that the annual rate of interest may not exceed 6 percent per year during the period of the defendant's military service [see § 501.302].

- An application (motion) in an action on a contract for the purchase of personal property for a stay of proceedings on the ground that the defendant is on active military service [see § 501.303].

This chapter does not discuss automotive sales and leases, credit advertising, credit reporting, credit transactions under credit cards issued by persons other than retail sellers, discrimination in the extension of credit, home solicitation sales, unsolicited goods or services, discount buying services, open-end credit accounts with financing institutions unless those accounts come within the terms of RISA [see Civ. Code § 1801.6], installment loans of financing institutions, service contracts other than those related to a sale of goods regulated by RISA, or real estate sales purchased with federally related mortgage loans.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Introduction and Definitions

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.10

§ 501.10 Governing Law

[1] State Statutes

The provisions of the Retail Installment Sales Act (RISA) are set out in Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.

- Civ. Code §§ 1801-1801.7 set forth general provisions applicable to all retail installment sales transactions entered into in California, whether made under a retail installment contract or an installment account.

- Definitions applicable to retail installment sales are set forth in Civ. Code § 1803.1 et seq. and § 1802.21 et seq.

- Provisions governing the retail installment contract, including restrictions, finance charge limitations, payments, refinancing and consolidation, and treatment of add-on sales, are set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1803.1-1808.6.

- Purchase by a financing agency of a retail installment contract or an installment account is governed by Civ. Code § 1809.1.

- Provisions governing retail installment accounts are set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1810.1-1810.11.

- Attorney's fees and court costs in actions on both retail installment contracts and installment accounts are set forth in Civ. Code § 1811.1.

- Procedures for repossession and resale after a default in payment under a retail installment contract or an installment account are set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1812.2-1812.5.

- Statutory penalties and buyer remedies for seller violations of RISA are provided in Civ. Code §§ 1812.6-1812.9.

- The proper place for trial of an action on a retail installment contract or an installment account is determined by Civ. Code § 1812.10.

- Civ. Code § 1812.20 prohibits any person from requiring a purchaser of goods or services to obtain financing from any particular source.

- Criminal liability for violation of RISA is proscribed by Civ. Code § 1812.6.

Disclosure and notice requirements, applicable when consumer credit contracts involve cosigners who are not married to each other are governed by Civ. Code § 1799.90 et seq. Confidentiality of information obtained from a federal or state income tax return submitted by a consumer in connection with a financial or other business-related transaction is governed by Civ. Code § 1799.1a.

[2] Truth in Lending Act (TILA)

Federal credit disclosure requirements as prescribed by the Truth in Lending Act (TILA) are set out in 15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq. and are in addition to the requirements of RISA.

For a description of how TILA is organized and what topics are covered by the provisions in each part, see Ch. 127, Consumer Contracts and Loans, § 127.21.

[3] Federal Regulations; Regulation Z

Regulations prescribed by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System in compliance with TILA [see 15 U.S.C. § 1604(a)] for the purpose of implementing and enforcing TILA are contained in Regulation Z, 12 C.F.R. § 226.1 et seq.

Regulation Z refers to any rule, regulation, or interpretation promulgated by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System under TILA, and any interpretation or approval issued by an official or employee of the Federal Reserve System duly authorized by the board under TILA to issue interpretations or approvals [Civ. Code § 1802.18].

[4] Effect of Federal Requirements on State Law

[a] TILA Supersedes Inconsistent State Law

TILA does not annul, alter or affect, or exempt any creditor from complying with the laws of California relating to the disclosure of information in credit transactions, except to the extent that the California law is inconsistent with the provisions of TILA or Regulation Z, and then only to the extent of the inconsistency [see 15 U.S.C. § 1610(a)]. A state law is inconsistent if it requires a creditor to make disclosures or take actions that contradict the requirements of federal law. A state law is contradictory if it requires the use of the same term to represent a different amount or a different meaning than the federal law, or if it requires the use of a term different from that required in the federal law to describe the same term [12 C.F.R. § 226.28(a)(1)]. A creditor, state, or other interested party may request the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System to determine whether a state law requirement is inconsistent with TILA. If the board determines that the state requirement is inconsistent, creditors located in that state may not make disclosures using the inconsistent term or form, and will incur no liability for failure to use the term or form, notwithstanding that the board's determination is subsequently amended, rescinded, or determined to be invalid by judicial or other authority for any reason [see 15 U.S.C. § 1610(a)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.28(a)(1)].

Any creditor, state, or other interested party may request the board to determine whether any state-required disclosure is substantially the same in meaning as a disclosure required by TILA or Regulation Z. If the board determines that the state-required disclosure is substantially the same in meaning as that required by TILA or Regulation Z, creditors located in that state may make the state-required disclosure in lieu of the federally required disclosure, except that the annual percentage rate and finance charge must be disclosed as required by 15 U.S.C. § 1632, and the disclosure applicable to certain mortgages must be made as required by 15 U.S.C. § 1639 [see 15 U.S.C. § 1610(a)(2); 12 C.F.R. § 226.28(b)].

[b] When TILA Disclosures Satisfy RISA

Notwithstanding any provision of RISA to the contrary, any information required to be disclosed in a retail installment contract or other document under RISA may be disclosed in any manner, method, or terminology required or permitted under Regulation Z, as in effect at the time the disclosure is made, except that permitted by 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(c)(2) (relating to itemization of amount financed), provided that all of the requirements and limitations set forth in Civ. Code § 1803.3(b) are satisfied. Nothing contained in RISA may be deemed to prohibit the disclosure in the contract or other document of additional information required or permitted under Regulation Z, as in effect at the time the disclosure is made [Civ. Code § 1801.5; see Civ. Code § 1802.18 ("Regulation Z" defined, discussed in [3], above)].

[5] Servicemembers Civil Relief Act and Similar California Legislation

The Servicemembers Civil Relief Act [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] provides for the temporary suspension of various legal proceedings, obligations, and liabilities, including pre-existing installment obligations, for persons in military service [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 502 (purpose of statute)]. The statute is applicable to all members of the uniformed services [see 10 U.S.C. § 101(a)(5) (definition)] during periods of military service [see 50 U.S.C. § 511(1)-(3)] and, in many cases, for 90 days after termination of a member's period of military service. The California counterpart to the federal legislation [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.] is designed to fill certain gaps in the federal law in the wake of the events of September 11, 2001. The latter statute, many provisions of which are virtually identical to their federal counterparts, is designed to apply to military reservists and National Guard members who are called to active military service under specified circumstances and, in many cases, for limited periods of time [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 400]. For detailed discussion of the relief available under these statutes, the manner in which such relief can be requested, and the persons who qualify for this relief, see §§ 501.60 et seq., 501.300.

Chapter 501 SALES: RETAIL INSTALLMENT SALES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Introduction and Definitions

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.11

§ 501.11 Retail Installment Sales Act Definitions

[1] Goods

RISA defines "goods" as tangible chattels bought for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, including certificates or coupons exchangeable for those goods, and including goods which, at the time of sale or subsequently, are to be so affixed to real property as to become a part of it, whether or not severable from it. The term does not include any vehicle required to be registered under the Vehicle Code, nor any goods sold or leased with the vehicle if sold under a contract governed by Civ. Code § 2981 et seq. (Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act) or leased under a contract governed by Civ. Code § 2985.7 (vehicle leasing act). "Goods" also includes a trailer that is sold in conjunction with a vessel, as defined in Veh. Code § 9840(a), unless the sales transaction is exempted under Civ. Code § 1801.4. As used in this definition, "trailer" means a vehicle designed solely for carrying vessels [Civ. Code § 1802.1]. The purchaser's intent at the time the contract is entered into determines whether the goods are for personal, family, or household purposes [Cessna Finance Corp. v. Pivo (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 281, 287, 129 Cal. Rptr. 888] .

[2] Retail Buyer

A "retail buyer" or "buyer" is a person who buys goods or obtains services from a retail seller in a retail installment sale and not principally for the purpose of resale [Civ. Code § 1802.4].

[3] Retail Installment Sale

A "retail installment sale" is defined as the sale of goods or furnishing of services by a retail seller to a retail buyer for a deferred payment price which is payable in installments [Civ. Code § 1802.5]. Retail installment sales are divided by RISA into two types of transactions: retail installment contracts and retail installment accounts [see discussion in § 501.22].

[4] Retail Seller

A "retail seller" is any individual, partnership, corporation, association, or other group, however organized, which is engaged in the business of selling goods or furnishing services [as defined in [5], below] to retail buyers [Civ. Code § 1802.3; see Civ. Code § 1802.15 (definition of "person")].

The provisions of RISA may also apply to assignees in certain instances [see Civ. Code § 1804.2; see also discussion in § 501.50[5]].

[5] Services

"Services" means work, labor, and services, for other than commercial or business use, including services furnished in connection with the sale or repair of goods as defined in Civ. Code § 1802.1 or furnished in connection with the repair of motor vehicles (except for service contracts defined by Civ. Code § 2981(p) which are sold in conjunction with the sale or lease of a vehicle required to be registered under the Vehicle Code) or furnished in connection with the improvement of real property or the providing of insurance. The term does not include the services of physicians or dentists, nor services for which the tariffs, rates, charges, costs, or expenses, including in each instance the deferred payment price, are required by law to be filed with and approved by the federal government or any official, department, division, commission, or agency of the United States [Civ. Code § 1802.2].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Introduction and Definitions

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.12

§ 501.12 Truth In Lending Act Definitions

[1] Consumer Credit

Under TILA, consumer credit is credit that is offered or extended to a natural person, primarily for personal, family, or household purposes [15 U.S.C. § 1602(h); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(11), (12)].

[2] Credit

Under TILA the term "credit" means the right granted by a creditor to a debtor to defer payment of a debt or to incur a debt and defer its payment [15 U.S.C. § 1602(e); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(14); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(b)(2) ("obligation" and "transaction" in Regulation Z refer to consumer credit obligation or transaction, depending on context, and "credit" means consumer credit unless context clearly indicates otherwise)].

[3] Creditor

A "creditor" within the meaning of TILA is any person or organization who both (1) regularly extends consumer credit that is subject to a finance charge or is payable by agreement in more than four installments (not including a downpayment), and (2) is the person to whom the debt arising from the consumer credit transaction is initially payable, either on the face of the evidence of indebtedness, or, if there is no evidence of indebtedness, by agreement [15 U.S.C. § 1602(f); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(17)(i)]. The term "creditor" includes certain persons who issue credit cards and those who honor the credit cards, under certain circumstances [see 15 U.S.C. § 1602(f); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(17)(ii)-(iv)]. The term "creditor" also includes persons who originate certain mortgages [see 15 U.S.C. § 1602(f); see also 15 U.S.C. § 1602(aa) ("mortgage" defined as consumer credit transaction secured by consumer's principal dwelling, other than residential mortgage transaction, reverse mortgage transaction, or transaction under open end credit plan, if certain conditions are met)].

[4] Credit Sale

A "credit sale" is any sale in which the seller is a creditor. "Credit sale" includes contracts in the form of a bailment or lease if the bailee or lessee agrees to pay, as compensation for use, a sum substantially equivalent to, or in excess of, the value of the property or services involved for use thereof, and it is agreed that the bailee or lessee will become, or has the option of becoming, for no added cost or for nominal consideration, the owner of the property on full compliance with his or her obligations under the contract [15 U.S.C. § 1602(g)].

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.20

§ 501.20 Purpose of Credit Disclosure Laws

[1] To Aid Consumer in Making Comparisons

RISA (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.) and TILA (15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.) are designed to regulate retail installment sales of consumer goods and services, and assure meaningful disclosure of credit terms so that consumers may compare the various forms of credit available and avoid the uninformed use of credit [see 15 U.S.C. § 1601(a) (purpose of TILA); Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 823, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964 (RISA to be liberally construed to protect consumers)] . The provisions of TILA apply to a broader range of transactions, but only those provisions applicable to retail installment sales of consumer goods and services are addressed in this chapter.

[2] RISA Waiver Is Void

Any waiver by the buyer of the provisions of RISA is unenforceable and void as contrary to public policy [Civ. Code § 1801.1].

Chapter 501 SALES: RETAIL INSTALLMENT SALES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Purpose and Application of Credit Disclosure Laws

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.21

§ 501.21 Transactions and Persons Governed by Credit Disclosure Laws

[1] Retail Installment Sales Act

[a] Transactions to Which RISA Applies

RISA applies to all retail installment sales transacted in California [see Civ. Code § 1802.5 ("retail installment sale" defined, discussed in § 501.11[3]]. Any of the following occurrences is deemed to have been made within California state, thereby triggering the operation of RISA:

- An offer or agreement by a seller in California, to sell to a buyer who is a California resident, or an offer or acceptance of a buyer in California, regardless of the situs of the contract as specified therein [Civ. Code § 1802.19(a)];

- Any oral or written solicitation or communication to sell, originating outside California, but forwarded to, and received in California by, a buyer who is a California resident [Civ. Code § 1802.19(b)]; or

- Any oral or written solicitation or communication to buy, originating within California, from a buyer who is a California resident, but forwarded to, and received by, a retail seller outside of California [Civ. Code § 1802.19(c)].

The provisions of RISA may also apply to assignees in certain instances [see Civ. Code § 1804.2; see also discussion in § 501.50[5]].

[b] Transactions to Which RISA Does Not Apply

[i] Sales of Vehicles

RISA does not apply to contracts for the sale of a vehicle required to be registered under the Vehicle Code, or to goods sold or leased with that vehicle, if the sale is subject to the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.) or if the lease is governed by the Vehicle Leasing Act (Civ. Code § 2985.7 et seq.). A trailer sold in conjunction with a vessel, as defined in Veh. Code § 9840(a), is subject to RISA unless the transaction is exempted under Civ. Code § 1801.4 [Civ. Code § 1802.1].

[ii] Construction

RISA does not apply to any contract for either of the following [Civ. Code § 1801.4]:

- The construction and/or sale of an entire residence or all or part of a structure designed for commercial or industrial occupancy, with or without a parcel of real property or an interest in one.

- The sale of a lot or parcel of real property, including any site preparation incidental to the sale.

[iii] Sales of Vessels or Aircraft

RISA also does not apply to any contract for either of the following [Civ. Code § 1801.4]:

- The sale of any aircraft required to be registered under the Federal Aviation Act of 1958.

- The sale of any vessel as defined in Veh. Code § 9840(a) if the cash price of the vessel, including accessories and equipment sold in conjunction with it, exceeds $25,000.

[iv] Transactions by Supervised Financial Institutions

The provisions of RISA are also inapplicable to any transaction in the form of a loan made by a "supervised financial organization" to a buyer of goods or services if all or a portion of the loan proceeds are used to purchase those goods or services, regardless of whether the seller arranges the loan or participates in the preparation of loan documents. RISA does apply, however, if the seller and the supervised financial organization (1) are related by common ownership and control and the relationship was a material factor in the loan transaction, or (2) share in the profits and losses of either or both the sale and the loan [Civ. Code § 1801.6(b)].

Receipt of a loan commission, brokerage, or referral fee by a seller from a supervised financial organization does not constitute a sharing of profits of the supervised financial organization, provided that the payment (1) is reasonable under the circumstances existing at the time the loan is consummated, and (2) is not refundable or is wholly or partly refundable only if the loan is voluntarily paid in full prior to its scheduled maturity. A loan commission, brokerage, or referral fee not exceeding the greater of one percent of the amount financed (as that term is defined by Regulation Z with respect to loans), or $20, is deemed reasonable under the circumstances existing at the time the loan is consummated, for purposes of this provision [Civ. Code § 1801.6(c)(2)]. Likewise, payment of money by a seller to a supervised financial organization pursuant to an actual or alleged contractual or statutory obligation to indemnify a supervised financial organization for losses incurred as a result of the assertion by a buyer of claims or defenses with respect to the goods or services purchased with loan proceeds does not constitute participation in or sharing of loan losses by the seller [Civ. Code § 1801.6(c)(3)].

For purposes of Civ. Code § 1801.6, the term "supervised financial organization" means a person [see Civ. Code § 1802.15 (definition of "person" under RISA)] organized, chartered, or holding a license or authorization to make loans pursuant to the laws of California or the United States, who is subject to supervision by an official or agency of California or the United States [Civ. Code § 1801.6(c)(1)].

[v] Transactions by Other Licensed Lenders

The California Finance Lenders Law (Fin. Code § 22000 et seq.), which supplanted the Personal Property Brokers Law (Fin. Code § 22000 et seq.) and the Consumer Finance Lenders Law (former Fin. Code § 24000 et seq.), effective July 1, 1995 [Stats. 1994, ch. 1115], provides that RISA does not apply to loans made to refinance a retail installment contract by any finance lender or broker licensed under the California Finance Lenders Law. For a discussion of refinancing retail installment contracts under RISA, including brief discussions of the refinancing provisions, which were operative until July 1, 1995, that applied to loans made under the Personal Property Brokers Law and the Consumer Finance Lenders Law and of the comparable refinancing provisions that apply to loans made under the California Finance Lenders Law, which became operative on July 1, 1995, see § 501.36.

[2] Truth In Lending Act

[a] Transactions to Which TILA Applies

Any creditor within the meaning of TILA [see 15 U.S.C. § 1602(f), discussed in § 501.12[3]], must comply with TILA, regardless of whether credit is extended in connection with loans, sales of property or services, or otherwise [15 U.S.C. § 1602(f); 12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(17)(i)]. TILA applies to any credit sale to a consumer [15 U.S.C. § 1602(g); see definition of "credit sale" in § 501.12[4]].

With regard to consumer loans and leases, TILA is broader in scope than RISA. TILA is not limited to governing only loans made by a supervised financial organization under circumstances as described in Civ. Code § 1801.6 [see discussion in [1][b][iv], above]. Rather, TILA governs all consumer loans offered or extended by lenders which do not constitute a consumer credit sale [see 15 U.S.C. § 1602(f) (definition of "creditor" applicable to persons who regularly extend consumer credit in connection with loans)]. In addition to the leases governed by 15 U.S.C. § 1602(g), discussed in § 501.12[4], for which RISA contains a parallel provision [see Civ. Code § 1802.6; see also discussion in [1], above], TILA governs all other consumer leases, as well [see 15 U.S.C. §§ 1667-1667e (consumer lease provisions)]. For discussions and forms respecting loans and leases outside the scope of RISA, see the discussion in § 501.01.

Unlike RISA, however, TILA is solely a disclosure statute. TILA does not contain substantive limitations on the types of provisions that may be included in consumer credit contracts, nor does it limit the amount of finance charges which may be made, as does RISA.

[b] Transactions to Which TILA Does Not Apply

TILA does not apply to the following transactions [12 C.F.R. § 226.3; see 15 U.S.C. § 1603]:

- An extension of credit primarily for a business, commercial, or agricultural purpose.

- An extension of credit to other than a natural person, including credit to government agencies or instrumentalities.

- An extension of credit in which the amount financed exceeds $25,000 or in which there is an express written commitment to extend credit in excess of $25,000, except that TILA does apply, regardless of the amount of credit, to extensions of credit in which a security interest is or will be acquired in real property, or in personal property used or expected to be used as the principal dwelling, of the consumer [12 C.F.R. § 226.3(b)] and to private education loans subject to 15 U.S.C. § 1650 [15 U.S.C. § 1603(3)].

- An extension of credit that involves public utility services provided through pipe, wire, other connected facilities, or radio or similar transmission (including extensions of those facilities), if the charges for service, delayed payment, or any discounts for prompt payment are filed with or regulated by any government unit. The financing of durable goods or home improvements by a public utility is not exempt from the provisions of TILA.

- Transactions in securities or commodities accounts in which credit is extended by a broker-dealer registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission or the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

- An installment agreement for the purchase of home fuels in which no finance charge is imposed.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Purpose and Application of Credit Disclosure Laws

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.22

§ 501.22 Classification of Credit Plans

[1] In General

Both RISA and TILA divide credit transactions into two types. Each type of transaction is subject to a separate set of statutory regulations.

[2] RISA

[a] Retail Installment Contract

A retail installment contract is any contract for a retail installment sale [see Civ. Code § 1802.5 (defining "retail installment sale")], between a buyer and seller, entered into in California [see discussion in § 501.21[1][a]], which provides for [Civ. Code § 1802.6]:

- Repayment in installments, whether or not the contract contains a title retention provision, and in which the buyer (a) agrees to pay a finance charge; or (b) does not agree to pay a finance charge, but the goods or services are available at a lesser price if paid for by cash or credit card; or (c) would have received additional or higher quality goods or services at no added cost above the total amount payable in installments had the sale been for cash; or

- Payment in more than four installments.

When taken in connection with a retail installment sale, a retail installment contract includes but is not limited to a security agreement. It also includes a contract for the bailment or leasing of goods by which the bailee or lessee contracts to pay as compensation for their use a sum substantially equivalent to or in excess of their value and by which is agreed that the bailee or lessee will become, or has the option of becoming, for no other or nominal consideration, the owner of the goods on full compliance with the terms of the contract [Civ. Code § 1802.6].

[b] Add-on Sales

A retail installment contract [Civ. Code § 1802.6] made in compliance with RISA may contain a provision allowing the buyer to make subsequent purchases under the contract, thereby increasing the amount due on the contract by the price of the additional purchases. The provision may provide that all finance charges and installments, may, at the seller's option, be increased proportionately, and that all terms and conditions of the contract apply equally to the additional purchases. The provision may also provide that add-on purchases be secured by the goods purchased under the previous contract, but only until all payments thereunder are paid [Civ. Code § 1808.1; compare 15 U.S.C. § 1638(d) discussed in [3][a], below]. For a further discussion of the add-on sales provisions of RISA, see § 501.37.

[c] Retail Installment Account

Retail installment accounts, also known as installment accounts or revolving accounts, are defined as accounts established by an agreement entered into in California [see discussion in § 501.21[1][a]] by which a buyer promises to make installment payments to the retail seller with whom the buyer has contracted for the purpose of liquidating the outstanding balance the buyer has incurred in making retail installment purchases, and which provides for payment of a finance charge. The retail installment account is distinguished from the retail installment contract [Civ. Code § 1802.6; see discussion in [a], above] by the fact that the retail installment account finance charge is expressed as a percentage of the periodic balance rather than as a stated dollar amount or capitalized item [Civ. Code § 1802.7].

[3] TILA

[a] Closed-end Credit Plan

The TILA counterpart to the RISA retail installment contract [Civ. Code § 1802.6; see discussion in [2][a], above] is the closed-end credit plan, which refers to any extension of consumer credit other than open-end credit [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(10); see discussion at [b], below; see also 15 U.S.C. § 1638; 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.17, 226.18 (setting forth specific disclosures required)]. Like RISA, TILA contains provisions for add-on sales under a closed-end credit plan contract [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(d); 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(h)].

[b] Open-end Credit Plan

The counterpart to the RISA retail installment account [Civ. Code § 1802.7] is the TILA open-end credit plan. Open-end credit is consumer credit extended by a creditor under a plan in which all of the following are true [12 C.F.R. § 226.2(a)(20); see 15 U.S.C. § 1602(i)]:

- The creditor reasonably contemplates repeated transactions.
- The creditor may impose a finance charge from time to time on an outstanding unpaid balance.
- The amount of credit that may be extended to the consumer during the term of the plan (up to any limit set by the creditor) is generally made available to the extent that any outstanding balance is repaid.

C. Disclosures, Requirements, and Prohibitions

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.30

§ 501.30 Disclosures to Cosigners Required for Various Types of Credit

[1] Types of Credit Included

The requirements and penalties of Civ. Code § 1799.90 et seq. apply to the following types of credit [Civ. Code § 1799.90; see also Civ. Code § 1799.99 discussed in [6], below]:

- Retail installment contracts, as defined in Civ. Code § 1802.6.

- Retail installment accounts, as defined in Civ. Code § 1802.7.

- Conditional sales contracts as defined in Civ. Code § 2981 (Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act).

- Loans or extension of credit secured by other than real property, or unsecured, for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes.

- Loans or extension of credit for use primarily for personal, family, or household purposes if the loan or extension of credit is subject to the provisions of Bus. & Prof. Code § 10240 et seq. (loans negotiated by real estate licensees), Fin. Code § 18000 et seq. (industrial loan companies), or Fin. Code § 22000 et seq. (finance lenders), whether secured by real property or otherwise.

- Lease contracts as defined in Civ. Code § 2985.7(d).

[2] Notice Requirement

Unless the borrowers are married to each other, whenever a creditor obtains the signature of more than one person on a consumer credit contract, the notice must be delivered to each person who does not in fact receive any money, property, or services which are the subject matter of the contract. The notice must be given prior to the time that person becomes obligated on the contract, and it must be given in Spanish and English [Civ. Code § 1799.91(a)]. If the consumer credit contract is written in a language other than Spanish or English, the notice must be given in English and in the language in which the contract is written [Civ. Code § 1799.91(b)]. The creditor may not obtain the signature of any person entitled to notice if the consumer credit contract contains blank spaces to be filled in after the person's signature has been obtained [Civ. Code § 1799.93(a)].

In the case of a motor vehicle lease contract on which the lessor obtains the signature of more than one person, unless the persons are married to each other, the lessor must deliver to each person who does not in fact receive the vehicle that is the subject of the lease contract, before that person becomes liable on the lease contract, a prescribed notice in English and Spanish or possibly another language [see Civ. Code § 1799.91(b)], in lieu of the notice prescribed in Civ. Code § 1799.91(a) [Civ. Code § 1799.91(d)].

[3] Exceptions

The notice requirements of Civ. Code § 1799.91(a), (b) do not apply to open-end credit as defined in Regulation Z or extended to joint applicants if both of the following conditions are satisfied [Civ. Code § 1799.91(c); see Civ. Code § 1799.91(e) (Regulation Z has same meaning as set forth in Civ. Code § 1802.18, discussed in § 501.10[3])]:

- The application or agreement signed by each applicant clearly and conspicuously discloses that after credit approval each applicant shall have the right to use the open-end credit plan to the extent of any limit set by the creditor and may be liable for all amounts extended under the plan to any joint applicant; and

- After credit approval, the creditor issues for the use of each applicant any credit device, such as a credit card, which may be used to obtain credit under the open-end credit plan and sends the credit device to the address specified in the application or otherwise delivers the credit device in a manner specified in the application or agreement signed by each applicant. This requirement does not apply to a creditor who does not issue a credit card or other credit device to obtain credit under the creditor's open-end credit plan.

If federal law or regulations require or permit the use of a notice substantially similar to the Civ. Code § 1799.91 notice, the use of the federally sanctioned notice and an accurate Spanish translation of that notice constitutes compliance with Civ. Code § 1799.91, but the other provisions of Civ. Code §§ 1799.90-1799.99 remain unaffected [Civ. Code § 1799.96; see Civ. Code § 1799.99 discussed in [6], below].

[4] Size, Placement, and Content of Notice

The notice is entitled NOTICE TO COSIGNER and AVISO PARA EL FIADOR. The form of notice is prescribed by Civ. Code § 1799.91(a) and informs the cosigner, in English and in Spanish, that, among other things, he or she may be held liable for the full amount, plus collection costs, and late fees, if the borrower does not pay, and that default may become part of his or her credit record.

The notice must be set forth in both languages in at least 10-point type [Civ. Code § 1799.91(a)]. If the notice is included in the consumer credit contract or other document establishing liability, it must appear either directly above the space for signature or above or adjacent to any other notices legally required to be placed immediately above the signature space. It must be contained in a box formed by a heavy line [Civ. Code § 1799.92(a)]. If the notice is not included in the contract, it must be on a separate sheet which must not contain any other text except as necessary to identify the creditor and the consumer credit contract to which it refers and to provide for the date and the person's acknowledgment of receipt [Civ. Code § 1799.92(b)].

[5] Other Documents That Must Be Given

In addition to the notice, each person entitled to the notice must receive a copy of the debt instrument and security agreement or deed of trust, if any, evidencing the consumer credit contract, as well as a copy of the document evidencing that person's obligation and a copy of the notice [Civ. Code § 1799.93(b)].

[6] Effect of Noncompliance

A creditor who fails to comply with Civ. Code § 1799.90 et seq., or any assignee of that creditor, cannot bring an action or enforce a security interest against any person, however designated, who is entitled to notice under Civ. Code § 1799.91 and who does not in fact receive any of the money, property, or services that are the subject matter of the consumer credit contract [Civ. Code § 1799.95; see Engstrom v. Kallins (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 773, 778-779, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 842] . However, this does not affect the rights of a bona fide purchaser for value of property sold pursuant to the enforcement of a security interest if the purchase was made without notice of any facts constituting a violation of Civ. Code § 1799.90 et seq. [Civ. Code § 1799.95; for a form for an affirmative defense, see § 501.120].

Additionally, if a transaction is not one of the consumer credit contracts described in Civ. Code § 1799.90 but is subject to the provisions of 12 C.F.R. § 227.14 (consumer credit extended by bank or subsidiary that is not member of Federal Home Loan Bank Board), 12 C.F.R. § 535.3 (consumer credit extended by member institutions of Federal Home Loan Bank Board), or 16 C.F.R. § 444.3 (credit regulated by Federal Trade Commission), unless the persons who are obligated under the transaction are married to each other, no action may be brought, and no security interest enforced, against the persons entitled to receive notice under 12 C.F.R. §§ 227.14 or 535.3 or 16 C.F.R. § 444.3, whichever is applicable, if that person did not receive the notice in the manner prescribed by the applicable regulation and an accurate Spanish translation [Civ. Code § 1799.99].

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.31

§ 501.31 Required Formalities and Disclosures for Retail Installment Contracts

[1] In General

The disclosure requirements discussed in [2]-[11], below, are those prescribed by RISA. Applicable TILA disclosure requirements are discussed in § 501.32.

[2] Dated and Written Document Required

Every retail installment contract must be dated and in writing [Civ. Code § 1803.1].

[3] Translation of Contract Negotiated in Language Other than English

If a language other than English is the primary language used for negotiations with a consumer, the consumer may have to be provided with a translation of the contract in that other language. For contracts entered into prior to July 1, 2004, this requirement is applicable only to contracts negotiated primarily in Spanish. On and after July 1, 2004, it is applicable to contracts negotiated primarily in Spanish, Chinese, Tagalog, Vietnamese, or Korean [see Civ. Code § 1632].

Generally, any person engaged in a trade or business who negotiates primarily in the other language, orally or in writing, in the course of entering into a contract or agreement subject to the Unruh Retail Installment Sales Act, must deliver to the lessee, before he or she executes the contract or agreement, a translation of the contract or agreement in the other language, which includes a translation of every term and condition in that contract or agreement [Civ. Code § 1632(b)(1)]. At the time and place for entering into the contract or agreement, a notice in the other language must be conspicuously displayed, to the effect that the seller is required to provide a contract or agreement in the other language in which the contract or agreement was negotiated [Civ. Code § 1632(f)]. However, these requirements do not apply if the buyer negotiates using his or her own interpreter who is fluent and literate in both English and the other language and who is not employed or furnished by the seller [Civ. Code § 1632(h)]. Noncompliance with the foreign-language requirements is a ground for rescission of the contract or agreement by the buyer [Civ. Code § 1632(k)].

For a more detailed discussion of Civ. Code § 1632, see Ch. 127, Consumer Contracts and Loans . For a discussion of, and forms for use in, an action to rescind a contract, see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

[4] Printing and Notice Requirements

The printed portion of a retail installment contract must be in at least 8-point type [Civ. Code § 1803.1]. If a security interest in the goods purchased is retained or a lien on other goods or realty is obtained by the seller as security for the purchase, the contract must be labeled, in at least 12-point bold type: "Security Agreement." When the seller does not retain a security interest or lien, the contract must be clearly labeled, in at least 12-point bold type: "Retail Installment Contract" [Civ. Code § 1803.2(b)(1), (2)]. The buyer must also be alerted not to sign the contract before he or she has read it or if it contains any blank spaces, and must be notified of his or her right to a completely filled-in copy of the agreement [see Civ. Code § 1803.2(c)-(e)].

The contract must also contain a notice, in at least 10-point boldface, alerting the buyer of his or her right to prepay the full amount due on the contract and, depending on the method of computation of the finance charge, his or her entitlement to a partial refund of the finance charge [Civ. Code § 1803.2]. The exact language required is specified in Civ. Code § 1803.2(c)-(e), and the choice of language depends on whether the finance charge is determined on a precomputed or simple-interest basis and also on whether the refund of the unearned finance charge is computed on the actuarial basis or some other basis.

Any contract for goods or services that provides for a security interest in real property must also provide notice in the form and content prescribed by RISA, alerting the buyer that on signing the contract his or her property will be put up as security. A security interest in any contract that does not provide the required notice is void and unenforceable [Civ. Code § 1803.2(b)(3)].

[5] Required Disclosures

[a] In General

Except as provided in Civ. Code § 1801 et seq. (governing add-on sales provisions), every retail installment contract is required by RISA to contain the information at [b]-[h], below.

[b] Identification of Parties and Subject Matter

The contract must disclose the names of the seller and the buyer, the place of business of the seller, the residence or place of business of the buyer as specified by the buyer, and a description of the goods or services sufficient to identify them. Services or multiple items of goods may be described in general terms and may be described in detail sufficient to identify them in a separate writing [Civ. Code § 1803.3(a)].

[c] Regulation Z Disclosures

Every contract subject to RISA must contain the disclosures required by Regulation Z [see § 501.32[2]], whether or not Regulation Z applies to the transaction. In addition, to the extent applicable, the contract must contain the other disclosures and notices required by, and must satisfy the requirements and limitations of, Civ. Code § 1803.3. Except for the disclosures required by Civ. Code § 1803.3(c) [see discussion in [d], below], the disclosures and notices required by Civ. Code § 1803.3 may appear in the contract in any location or sequence and may be combined or interspersed with other provisions of the contract [see Civ. Code § 1803.3(b)].

[d] Itemization of Amount Financed

The retail installment contract must contain the following disclosures, as applicable, which must be labeled "itemization of the amount financed" [Civ. Code § 1803.3(c)]:

- The cash price [see Civ. Code § 1802.8 (definition of cash price)], exclusive of taxes imposed on the sale;
- Taxes imposed on the sale;
- The total of first and second items;
- An itemization of the amount to be paid to any public officer for official fees;
- The aggregate amount of premiums agreed, on execution of the contract, to be paid for policies of insurance included in the contract, excluding the amount of any insurance premium included in the finance charge;
- A subtotal representing the sum of the third through the fifth items;
- The amount of the buyer's downpayment (not including any administrative finance charge charged, received, or collected by the seller pursuant to former Civ. Code § 1805.1(c) and disclosed under the next item), itemized to show (1) the net agreed value of the property being traded in, (2) the amount of any portion of downpayment to be deferred until not later than the due date of the second regularly scheduled installment under the contract and which is not subject to a finance charge, (3) the amount of any manufacturer's rebate applied or to be applied to the downpayment, and (4) the remaining amount paid or to be paid by the buyer as a downpayment;
- The amount of any administrative finance charge, labeled as prepaid finance charge; and
- The difference between the sixth item above and the sum of the seventh and eighth items above, labeled as amount financed.

The disclosures required by Civ. Code § 1803.3(c) may be itemized or subtotaled to a greater extent than set forth above; however, the disclosures must be made together and in the sequence set forth above. No particular terminology is required to disclose the above items, except as expressly indicated [see Civ. Code § 1803.3(b)].

If the payment of all or a portion of the downpayment is to be deferred, the deferred payment must be reflected in the payment schedule disclosed pursuant to Regulation Z [Civ. Code § 1803.3(d)].

[e] Description of Trade-In Property

If the downpayment includes property being traded in, the contract must contain a brief description of that property [Civ. Code § 1803.3(e)].

[f] Information Concerning Prepayment

If the contract includes a finance charge determined on the precomputed basis, the contract must identify the method of computing the unearned portion of the finance charge in the event of prepayment in full of the buyer's obligation and contain a statement of the amount or method of computation of any charge that may be deducted from the amount of any unearned finance charge in computing the amount that will be credited to the obligation or refunded to the buyer. Reference to the Rule of 78's, the sum of the digits, the sum of the periodic time balances, or the actuarial method constitutes a sufficient identification of the method of computing the unearned portion of the finance charge [Civ. Code § 1803.3(f)(1)].

If the contract includes a finance charge determined on the simple-interest basis, but provides for a minimum finance charge in the event of prepayment in full, the contract must contain a statement of that fact and the amount of the minimum finance charge or its method of calculation [Civ. Code § 1803.3(f)(2)].

[g] Itemization of Insurance

The contract must contain an itemization of any insurance included as part of the amount financed (disclosed pursuant to Civ. Code § 1803.3(c)(3)) and of any insurance included as part of the finance charge. The itemization must identify the type of insurance coverage and the premium charged, and, if the insurance expires before the date of the last scheduled installment included in the repayment schedule, the term of the insurance must be stated [Civ. Code § 1803.3(g)].

[h] Disclosures Regarding Insurance

If the cost of any insurance is included in the retail installment contract and a separate charge is made to the buyer for that insurance, then the seller must comply with the requirements of Civ. Code § 1803.5. Under Civ. Code § 1803.5, the contract must state if the insurance is to be procured by the buyer or the seller. The amount included in the contract for insurance must not exceed the premiums chargeable in accordance with the rate fixed for that insurance by the insurer. If the insurance is procured by the seller or holder, he or she must deliver or mail to the buyer, at the address specified in the contract, notice of the seller's or holder's procurement of insurance or a copy of the insurance policies or certificates procured. These must be mailed or delivered to the buyer within 45 days after delivery of the goods or furnishing of the services under the contract [Civ. Code § 1803.5].

[6] Single-Document Rule

Except as provided in Civ. Code § 1808.3, every retail installment contract must consist of a single document containing the entire agreement between the parties as to the cost and terms of payment, including any promissory notes or other evidence of indebtedness [Civ. Code § 1803.2].

Certain add-on sales transactions which conform to the requirements of Civ. Code § 1808.3 are excepted from the single-document rule of Civ. Code § 1803.2. For a further discussion of the add-on sales provisions of RISA, see § 501.37.

[7] Execution and Delivery of Documents

Except with regard to catalog sales [see discussion in [11], below], a seller must not obtain the signature of the buyer to a contract when the contract contains blank spaces to be filled in after it has been signed [Civ. Code § 1803.4]. At the time the buyer signs the contract, the seller must deliver to the buyer a legible copy of the contract or any other document which the seller has required or requested the buyer to sign, and which the buyer has signed, during the contract negotiation [Civ. Code § 1803.7].

[8] Effect of Nondelivery

In addition to the statutory penalties provided in Civ. Code §§ 1812.6-1812.9 [see discussion in § 501.50], until the seller delivers the required documents to the buyer, the buyer is obligated to pay only the cash price [Civ. Code § 1803.7].

[9] Acknowledgment of Delivery

Any acknowledgment by the buyer of delivery of a copy of the contract or other document must be printed or written in at least 10-point bold type, and if contained in the contract itself, must also appear directly above the space reserved for the buyer's signature [Civ. Code § 1803.7].

[10] Presumption of Delivery

The buyer's written acknowledgment of delivery of a copy of the contract or other document raises a rebuttable presumption of delivery under Civ. Code § 1803.7 and of compliance with Civ. Code § 1803.4 (prohibition against obtaining buyer's signature if contract contains blank spaces). This presumption applies in any action or proceeding by or against an assignee of the contract who has no knowledge to the contrary, when he or she purchases the contract. Moreover, a conclusive presumption of delivery under Civ. Code § 1803.7 and of compliance with Civ. Code § 1803.4 is raised if either (1) the holder furnishes the buyer a copy of the contract or other document, or (2) the buyer fails to respond within 30 days to a notice containing the items required by Civ. Code § 1803.3 (required contents of RISA contract) and stating that the buyer must give the holder 30 days written notice that he or she was not furnished a copy of the contract or any other document signed by the buyer at the seller's request during the contract negotiation [Civ. Code § 1803.7].

[11] Catalog Sales

When a retail installment sale is negotiated and entered into by mail or telephone, without personal solicitation by a salesperson or other representative of the seller, and the seller's cash and deferred payment prices and other terms are clearly set forth in a catalog or other printed solicitation of business which is generally available to the public, the seller is not required to deliver a copy of the contract to the buyer as provided in Civ. Code § 1803.7 [see discussion in [7], above]. Moreover, if when the proposed retail installment contract is received by the seller from the buyer, there are blank spaces to be filled in, the seller may insert in the appropriate blank spaces the amounts of money and other terms which are set forth in the seller's catalog then in effect. In lieu of a copy of the contract provided for in Civ. Code § 1803.7 the seller, within 15 days from the date of shipment of the goods, must furnish the buyer with a written statement of the items inserted in those blank spaces [Civ. Code § 1803.8].

§ 501.32 Formalities and Disclosures Required by TILA

[1] Time and Form of Disclosures

Retail installment contracts under RISA are also subject to the disclosure requirements of TILA for closed-end credit transactions [see discussions in §§ 501.21, 501.22[2][a]]. Except in the case of certain transactions involving residential mortgages, mail or telephone orders, or variable-rate transactions add-on sales, for which TILA has provisions similar to those of RISA [see discussion at § 501.37], these disclosures must be made before credit is extended [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(b); 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(b)]. The disclosures required by TILA must be made clearly, conspicuously, and in writing, in a form that the consumer may keep. The disclosures must be grouped together and segregated from all other terms, data, or information provided in connection with the transaction, including any computations or itemization [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(1)].

[2] Disclosures Required by TILA

For each closed-end credit transaction, the creditor must disclose the following information as applicable [12 C.F.R. § 226.18; see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)]:

- The identity of the creditor making the disclosure.

- The "amount financed," using that term, and a brief description, such as "the amount of credit provided to you or on your behalf." The amount financed is calculated by (1) determining the principal loan amount or cash price (subtracting any downpayment), (2) adding any other amounts that are financed by the creditor and are not part of the finance charge, and (3) subtracting any prepaid finance charge.

- A separate written itemization of the amount financed, including (1) the amount of any proceeds distributed directly to the consumer, (2) the amount credited to the consumer's account with the creditor, (3) any amount paid to other persons by the creditor on the consumer's behalf and the identity of those persons, and (4) the prepaid finance charge. The creditor need not provide the foregoing itemization if the creditor provides a statement that the consumer has the right to receive a written itemization of the amount financed, together with a space for the consumer to indicate whether or not he or she desires such an itemization, and the consumer does not request it. The itemization of the amount financed must be separate from the other required disclosures [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(a)(1)].

- The "finance charge," using that term, and a brief description such as "the dollar amount the credit will cost you."

- The "annual percentage rate," using that term, and a brief description such as "the cost of your credit as a yearly rate." The creditor need not disclose the annual percentage rate if the transaction involves a finance charge of $5 or less on an amount financed of $75 or less, or a finance charge of $7.50 or less on an amount financed of more than $75.

- If the annual percentage rate may increase after consummation, a statement of (1) the circumstances under which the rate may increase, (2) any limitations on the increase, (3) the effect of an increase, and (4) an example of the payment terms that would result from an increase.

- The number, amounts, and timing of payments scheduled to repay the obligation.

- The "total of payments," using that term and descriptive explanation such as "the amount you will have paid when you have made all scheduled payments."

- If the obligation has a demand feature, that fact must be disclosed.

- In a credit sale, the "total sale price," using that term, and a descriptive explanation (including the amount of any down payment) such as "the total price of your purchase on credit, including your downpayment of $_____." The total sale price is the sum of the cash price, any other amounts that are financed by the creditor, and the finance charge.

- A statement indicating whether a penalty may be imposed if the obligation is prepaid in full, or whether the consumer is entitled to a rebate of any finance charge if the obligation is prepaid in full. It should be noted that under RISA, no such penalty may be charged, and a consumer is entitled to a rebate of unearned finance charges in the event of prepayment in full [see discussion in § 501.35[4]].

- Any dollar or percentage charge that may be imposed before maturity due to a late payment, other than a deferral or extension charge.

- The fact that the creditor has or will acquire a security interest in the property purchased as part of the transaction, or in other property identified by item or type.

- Any items required by 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(d) in order to exclude certain insurance premiums from the finance charge.

- Disclosures required by 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(e) in order to exclude from the finance charge certain fees prescribed by law or certain premiums for insurance in lieu of perfecting a security interest.

- A statement that the consumer should refer to the appropriate contract document for information about nonpayment, default, the right to accelerate the maturity of the obligation, and prepayment rebates and penalties. At the creditor's option, the statement may also include a reference to the contract for further information about security interests.

- In a residential mortgage transaction, a statement of whether or not a subsequent purchaser of the dwelling from the consumer may be permitted to assume the remaining obligation on its original terms.

- If the creditor requires the consumer to maintain a deposit as a condition of the specific transaction, a statement that the annual percentage rate does not reflect the effect of the required deposit.

In the case of any variable interest rate residential mortgage transaction, in disclosures provided at the time of application as prescribed by regulations for a variable rate transaction secured by the consumer's principal dwelling, at the option of the creditor, the creditor must state that the periodic payments may increase or decrease substantially, and the maximum interest rate and payment for a $10,000 loan originated at a recent interest rate, as determined by regulations, assuming the maximum periodic increases in rates and payments under the program, or a historical example illustrating the effects of interest-rate changes implemented according to the loan program [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(14)].

In the case of a consumer credit transaction that is secured by the principal dwelling of the consumer, in which the extension of credit may exceed the fair market value of the dwelling, the creditor must provide, at the time of application, a clear and conspicuous statement that the interest on the portion of the credit extension that is greater than the fair market value of the dwelling is not tax deductible for Federal income tax purposes, and the consumer should consult a tax adviser for further information regarding the deductibility of interest and charges [15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(15), (b)(3)].

[3] Model TILA Forms and Clauses

Pursuant to TILA [see 15 U.S.C. § 1604(b)], the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System has published model disclosure forms and clauses for common transactions to facilitate compliance with TILA [see 12 C.F.R., Part 226, Appendices G, H]. Creditors are not required to use these forms and clauses; however, a creditor who uses an appropriate model clause or form is deemed to be in compliance with TILA [see 15 U.S.C. § 1604(b)].

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.33

§ 501.33 RISA Restrictions on Retail Installment Contracts

[1] Prohibited Terms Are Void

Certain types of provisions contained in retail installment contracts are either unenforceable or prohibited. Any contract provision proscribed by RISA is void but does not otherwise affect the validity of the contract [Civ. Code § 1804.4].

[2] Inducing Contract Contingent on Happening of Future Event Proscribed

It is unlawful for a seller to induce or attempt to induce a person to enter into a retail installment contract by offering a rebate, discount, commission, or other consideration, contingent on the happening of a future event, on condition that the person either sell or assist in the sale of the same or related goods [Civ. Code § 1803.10].

[3] Requiring Buyer to Obtain Financing From Particular Source

RISA provides that, notwithstanding Civ. Code § 1801.6 [see discussion in § 501.20[1][b][iv] and [v]] which exempts certain third-party loan transactions, no person may require a purchaser of goods or services to obtain financing from a particular source, and violation of this provision subjects the violator to the penalties provided in Civ. Code § 1812.6 (criminal penalties) [Civ. Code § 1812.20].

[4] Acceleration Clauses

A retail installment contract must not contain a provision by which the holder, in the absence of the buyer's default in performing his or her obligations, may accelerate the maturity of any part or all of the amount owing thereunder [Civ. Code § 1804.1(b)].

[5] Agency Appointments by Buyer

A retail installment contract must not provide for the buyer's execution of a power of attorney appointing the seller or holder of the contract, or other person acting on his or her behalf, as the buyer's agent in the collection of payments under the contract or in the repossession of goods [Civ. Code § 1804.1(f)].

[6] Change of County of Trial

A retail installment contract must not provide that the seller or holder of the contract is given the right to commence an action on the contract in a county other than (1) the county in which the contract was in fact signed by the buyer, (2) the county in which the buyer resides at the commencement of the action, (3) the county in which the buyer resided at the time that the contract was entered into, or (4) the county in which the goods purchased pursuant to that contract have been so affixed to real property as to become a part thereof [Civ. Code § 1804.1(i)]. For a discussion of the venue provisions of RISA, see § 501.102[3].

[7] Confession of Judgment or Assignment of Wages

A retail installment contract must not provide for a power of attorney to confess judgment in California, or for an assignment of wages. However, the giving of an assignment of wages contained in a separate instrument, executed pursuant to Lab. Code § 300, is not prohibited [Civ. Code § 1804.1(c)].

[8] Lien Provisions

No retail installment contract other than one for services may provide for a security interest on any goods theretofore fully paid for or which have not been sold by the seller [Civ. Code § 1804.3(a)].

Any contract for goods that provides for a lien on real property if the goods sold are not to be attached to the real property is a violation of RISA and subject to the statutory penalties thereof [Civ. Code § 1804.3(b); see Civ. Code §§ 1812.6-1812.9 (penalty provisions of RISA)].

[9] Rescission or Avoidance of Contract

A retail installment contract must not provide that the buyer agrees to the payment of any charge by reason of the exercise of his or her right to rescind or avoid the contract [Civ. Code § 1804.1(h)].

[10] Security Interest

A retail installment contract must not provide that the seller takes a security interest, other than a mechanic's lien, in the buyer's real property that is the buyer's primary residence, when the buyer is 65 years of age or older and the contract is for a home improvement as defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 7151.1 [Civ. Code § 1804.1(j)].

[11] Unlawful Acts

A retail installment contract must not provide that the seller or holder of the contract or other person on his or her behalf is given authority to enter on the buyer's premises unlawfully or to commit any breach of the peace in the repossession of goods [Civ. Code § 1804.1(d)].

[12] Waivers

In addition to the general rule that a waiver by the buyer of any RISA provision is contrary to public policy and is unenforceable and void [Civ. Code § 1801.1], a retail installment contract must not contain the following:

- A provision by which the buyer agrees not to assert against a seller a claim or defense arising out of the sale or agrees not to assert against an assignee such a claim or defense, other than as provided in Civ. Code § 1804.2, which subjects the assignee to all the buyer's equities and defenses against the seller arising out of the sale, notwithstanding an agreement to the contrary [Civ. Code § 1804.1(a)]. Civ. Code § 1804.1(a) only precludes waiver of defenses arising out of a sale and does not apply to a defense such as the statute of limitations, which the buyer may waive in the contract [Mysel v. Gross (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 10, 138 Cal. Rptr. 873] .

- A provision by which the buyer waives any right of action against the seller or holder of the contract, or other person acting on his or her behalf, for any illegal act committed in the collection of payments under the contract or in the repossession of goods [Civ. Code § 1804.1(e)].

- A provision by which the buyer relieves the seller from liability for any legal remedies which the buyer may have against the seller under the contract or any separate instrument executed in connection with the contract [Civ. Code § 1804.1(g)].

§ 501.34 Finance Charges in Retail Installment Contracts

[1] Components of Finance Charge Under RISA

The finance charge constitutes the amount charged to the buyer for the privilege of purchasing goods or services on an installment basis [see Civ. Code § 1802.10 (defining "finance charges")]. Under RISA, the charge must include all charges incident to investigating and making the contract and for the extension of the credit provided for in the contract, and no fee, expense, or other charge can be taken, received, reserved, or contracted for except as otherwise provided by RISA [Civ. Code § 1805.4]. Charges for insurance premiums, delinquency charges, attorney's fees, court costs, collection expenses, official fees, extension or deferral agreement charges as provided for in Civ. Code § 1807.1, or amounts for insurance, repairs to or preservation of goods, or preservation of the holder's security interest therein advanced by the holder subsequent to the execution of the contract are not considered finance charges under RISA [Civ. Code § 1802.10; compare 15 U.S.C. § 1605(d); 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(c)-(e) (items that may be excluded from finance charge under TILA); see discussions in [2][a] and [b], below]. The seller or holder of a retail installment contract may charge and collect a $15 fee for the return by a depository institution of a dishonored check, negotiable order of withdrawal, or share draft issued in connection with the retail installment contract. This fee also is not considered a finance charge under RISA [Civ. Code § 1805.4].

[2] Components of Finance Charge Under TILA

[a] Includable Charges

Under TILA, the finance charge is the cost of consumer credit as a dollar amount. It includes any charge payable directly or indirectly by the consumer and imposed directly or indirectly by the creditor as an incident to or condition of the extension of credit. It does not include any charge of a type payable in a comparable cash transaction [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(a); see 15 U.S.C. § 1605(a)]. The finance charge also does not include fees and amounts imposed by third party closing agents, including settlement agents, attorneys, and escrow and title companies, if the creditor does not require the imposition of the charges or the services provided and does not retain the charges [15 U.S.C. § 1605(a)]. The finance charge includes the following types of charges, except for charges specifically excluded by 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(c)-(e) [see discussion, below]:

- Interest, time price differential, and any amount payable under an add-on or discount system of additional charges [15 U.S.C. § 1605(a)(1); 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(b)(1)].

- Service, transaction, activity, and carrying charges, including any charge imposed on a checking or other transaction account to the extent that the charge exceeds the charge for a similar account without a credit feature [15 U.S.C. § 1605(a)(2); 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(b)(2)].

- Points, loan fees, assumption fees, finder's fees, and similar charges [15 U.S.C. § 1605(a)(3); 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(b)(3)].

- Appraisal, investigation, and credit report fees [15 U.S.C. § 1605(a)(4); 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(b)(4)].

- Premiums or other charges for any guarantee or insurance protecting the creditor against the consumer's default or other credit loss [15 U.S.C. § 1605(a)(5); 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(b)(5)].

- Charges imposed on a creditor by another person for purchasing or accepting a consumer's obligation, if the consumer is required to pay the charges in cash, as an addition to the obligation, or as a deduction from the proceeds of the obligation [15 U.S.C. § 1605(a)(6); 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(b)(6)].

- Premiums or other charges for credit life, accident, health, or loss-of-income insurance, written in connection with a credit transaction [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(b)(7)] unless (1) the coverage of the debtor by the insurance is not a factor in the approval by the creditor of the extension of credit, and this fact is clearly disclosed in writing to the person applying for or obtaining the extension of credit, and (2) in order to obtain the insurance in connection with the extension of credit, the person to whom the credit is extended must give specific affirmative written indication of his or her desire to do so after written disclosure of the cost [15 U.S.C. § 1605(b); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(d) (exclusion of premiums or other charges for voluntary credit life, accident, health, or loss-of-income insurance)].

- Premiums or other charges for insurance against loss of or damage to property, or against liability arising out of the ownership or use of property, written in connection with a credit transaction [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(b)(8)] unless a clear and specific statement in writing is furnished by the creditor to the person to whom the credit is extended, setting forth the cost of the insurance if obtained from or through the creditor, and stating that the person to whom the credit is extended may choose the person through which the insurance is to be obtained [15 U.S.C. § 1605(c)].

- Discounts for the purpose of inducing payment by a means other than the use of credit [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(b)(9); see Virachack v. University Ford (9th Cir. 2005) 410 F.3d 579, 581-582 (rebate available to cash buyer after completion of sale transaction is not discount, since price to be paid is not reduced, nor is it "charge" of any kind--charge is request for payment; rebate is reduction of amount paid--and it need not be accounted for, either in computing finance charge or in making related disclosures)].

- Charges or premiums paid for debt cancellation or debt suspension coverage written in connection with a credit transaction, whether or not the coverage is insurance under applicable law [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(b)(10)].

[b] Excludable Charges

If itemized and disclosed to the customer, the following types of charges need not be included in the finance charge under TILA [15 U.S.C. § 1605(d); 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(e)]:

- Fees and charges prescribed by law that actually are or will be paid to public officials for determining the existence of, or for perfecting, releasing, or satisfying, any security interest related to the credit transaction.

- The premium payable for any insurance in lieu of perfecting any security interest otherwise required by the creditor in connection with the transaction, if the premium does not exceed the fees and charges described immediately above, which otherwise would be payable.

- Any tax levied on security instruments or on documents evidencing indebtedness, if the payment of those taxes is a precondition for recording the instrument securing the evidence of indebtedness.

The following charges may also be excluded from the finance charge [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(c)]:

- Application fees charged to all applicants for credit, whether or not credit is actually extended.

- Charges for actual unanticipated late payments, or for exceeding a credit limit [see Household Credit Servs., Inc. v. Pfennig (2004) 541 U.S. 232, 235, 124 S. Ct. 1741, 158 L. Ed. 2d 450 (regulatory exclusion of over-limit fees from definition of "finance charge" is not unreasonable interpretation of TILA)], or for a delinquency, default, or similar occurrence.

- Charges imposed by a financial institution for paying items that overdraw an account, unless the payment of such items and imposition of the charge were previously agreed on in writing.

- Fees charged for participation in a credit plan, whether assessed on an annual or other periodic basis.

- Seller's points.

- Interest forfeited as a result of an interest reduction required by law on a time deposit used as security for an extension of credit.

- Discounts offered to induce payment for a purchase by cash, check, or other means, as provided in 15 U.S.C. § 1666f(b).

In a transaction secured by real property, or in a residential mortgage transaction, the following fees may also be excluded from the finance charge, if bona fide and reasonable in amount [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(c)(7); see 15 U.S.C. § 1605(e)]:

- Fees for title examination, abstract of title, title insurance, property survey, and similar purposes.

- Fees for preparation of loan-related documents.

- Notary fees, appraisal fees, (including fees related to any pest infestation or flood hazard inspections conducted prior to closing [15 U.S.C. § 1605(e)(5); but see 15 U.S.C. § 1649(a)(1)(B) (no liability for transactions occurring prior to Sept. 30, 1995)]), and credit report.

- Property appraisal fees or fees for inspections to assess the value or condition of the property if the service is performed before closing, including fees related to pest infestation or flood hazard determinations.

- Amounts required to be paid into escrow or trustee accounts, if the amounts would not otherwise be included in the finance charge.

[c] Prohibited Offsets

Interest, dividends, or other income received or to be received by the consumer on deposits or investments may not be deducted in computing the finance charge [12 C.F.R. § 226.4(f)].

[d] Tolerances for Accuracy

The disclosure of finance charges in connection with an open end credit plan secured by real property or a dwelling will be treated as being accurate for purposes of the TILA if the amount disclosed in the finance charge does not vary from the actual finance charge by more than $100, or is greater than the amount required to be disclosed by the TILA [15 U.S.C. § 1605(f)(1)]. For purposes of the obligor's right of rescission under 15 U.S.C. § 1635 [see discussion in § 501.51[1][a]], the disclosure will be treated as accurate if either [15 U.S.C. § 1605(f)(2)]:

- The amount disclosed as the finance charge does not vary from the actual finance charge by more than an amount equal to one-half of one percent to the total amount of credit extended [15 U.S.C. § 1605(f)(2)(A)]; or

- In the case of a transaction that is a refinancing of the principal balance then due and any unpaid finance charges of a residential mortgage transaction [see 15 U.S.C. § 1502(w)], or any subsequent refinancing of such a transaction, and that does not provide any new consolidation or new advance, if the amount disclosed as the finance charge does not vary from the actual finance charge by more than an amount equal to one percent of the total amount of credit extended [but see 15 U.S.C. §§ 1605(f)(2)(B), 1602(aa) (standard specified in this subparagraph (2) inapplicable to certain specified mortgages)].

These tolerance requirements do not apply to transactions after the initiation of any judicial or nonjudicial foreclosure process on the primary dwelling of an obligor securing an extension of credit. In the latter situation, the disclosures of any finance charge and other disclosures affected by any finance charge will be treated as accurate if the amount disclosed as the finance charge does not vary from the actual finance charge by more than $35 or is greater than the amount required to be disclosed by the TILA [15 U.S.C. § 1635(i)(2)].

These tolerances are also inapplicable to disclosures made before the passage of 1995 TILA amendments [15 U.S.C. § 1649(a)(3); Pub. L. No. 104-29, § 4 (Sept. 30, 1995)]. The latter disclosures may be treated as accurate for TILA purposes if the amount disclosed as the finance charge does not vary from the actual finance charge by more that $200, or if they satisfy the requirements of 15 U.S.C. § 1605(f)(2), or if the amount disclosed is greater than the amount or percentage required to be disclosed by the TILA [see 15 U.S.C. § 1649(a)(3)].

[3] Annual Percentage Rate Under TILA

The annual percentage rate (commonly referred to as APR) is a measure of the cost of credit, expressed as a yearly rate [12 C.F.R. § 226.22(a)(1)]. It relates the finance charge to the amount financed over a specified period of time. In the case of closed-end credit transactions, such as retail installment contracts, the APR must be determined by either the actuarial method or the United States rule, and the APR disclosed must be accurate to within 1/8 of 1 percentage point of the true rate as determined under either method [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.22(a)(1), (2)]. Because the mathematical formulas used to calculate the APR under both methods are quite complex, the Federal Reserve Board has published tables which may be used by creditors to determine the APR on any particular transaction. Any rate determined from these tables in accordance with the instructions therein will comply with the requirements of TILA [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.22(b)(1)].

The APR, as defined by Regulation Z, must be included in all retail installment contracts [Civ. Code § 1803.3(b); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.18(e)]. It should also be noted that although RISA has omitted any reference to the appearance of the annual percentage rate on the periodic statement of a RISA installment account, it is still required by virtue of the federal provisions [12 C.F.R. § 226.7(g); see Civ. Code § 1801.5 (stating that notwithstanding any provision of RISA, disclosures required by Regulation Z must be provided in a RISA contract or other document required by RISA)]. For additional discussion of the annual percentage rate, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 45, Consumer Installment Loans and Credit Sales (Matthew Bender)

[4] Methods for Computing Finance Charges Under RISA

[a] Options

Finance charges on retail installment contracts may be determined on the simple-interest basis [Civ. Code § 1802.20] or on the precomputed basis [see Civ. Code § 1802.21]. However, no RISA contract or obligation may provide for a finance charge that is determined in part by the precomputed basis and in part by the simple-interest basis, except for a finance charge permitted by Civ. Code § 1805.8 (finance charge on certain amounts advanced by holder subsequent to execution of contract) [Civ. Code § 1805.9].

Finance charges on contracts entered into on or after January 1, 1983, must be calculated as provided for in Civ. Code § 1805.1(a)(1) [see discussion in [5], below] on the simple-interest basis if, according to the original contract terms, the due date of the final installment is more than 62 months from the date of the contract [Civ. Code § 1805.7].

[b] Simple-Interest Basis

Under the simple-interest method for determining finance charges, a constant rate is applied to the unpaid balance as it changes from time to time, either (1) calculated on the basis of a 365-day year and actual days elapsed, or (2) for contracts entered into prior to January 1, 1988, calculated on the basis of a 360-day year consisting of 12 months of 30 days each and on the assumption that all payments will be received by the seller on their respective due dates [Civ. Code § 1802.20].

[c] Precomputed Basis

Under the precomputed basis, the finance charge is determined by multiplying the original unpaid balance of the contract by a periodic rate and multiplying that product by the number of payment periods elapsing between the date on which the finance charge begins to be assessed and the date of the last scheduled payment [Civ. Code § 1802.21].

[5] Maximum Amount of Finance Charge Under RISA

There is no limit on the interest rate that may be charged, received, or collected on a retail installment contract, although no annual fee may be charged. The only limitation is that the holder of the contract shall not charge, collect, or receive any finance charge in excess of that shown on the disclosure required by Civ. Code § 1803.3(b), discussed in § 501.31[5][c] [Civ. Code § 1805.1]. There are three exceptions. One exception is that the holder may retain any excess finance charge that it received because one or more payments under a contract that determined the finance charge on a 365-day basis were made at a time or times other than as originally scheduled. This exception applies whether or not the parties enter into a refinancing agreement under Civ. Code § 1807.1 [see discussion in § 501.36[2]]. The holder may also retain any excess finance charge that is permitted by 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(c)(2)-(4) (estimates, payments at unscheduled times, unequal billing periods) or by Civ. Code § 1805.8 (finance charge on amounts advanced by holder after execution of contract) [Civ. Code § 1805.1].

[6] When Finance Charge May Be Assessed Under RISA

Notwithstanding the provision of any contract to the contrary, except as provided in Civ. Code § 1805.6(b) or (c), no retail seller is to assess any finance charge for goods purchased under a retail installment contract until the goods are in the buyer's possession [Civ. Code § 1805.6(a)]. A finance charge may be assessed for undelivered goods (1) from the date when the goods are available for pickup by the buyer and the buyer is notified of their availability or (2) from the date of purchase when the goods are delivered or available for pickup by the buyer within 10 days of the date of purchase [Civ. Code § 1805.6(b)]. In the case of a home improvement contract as defined in Bus. & Prof. Code § 7151.2, a finance charge may be assessed from the approximate date of commencement of the work as set forth in the home improvement contract [Civ. Code § 1805.6(c)].

§ 501.35 Payments on Retail Installment Contracts

[1] Schedule of Installments

Contracts may be payable in successive monthly, semimonthly, or weekly installments [Civ. Code § 1805.2].

[2] Payment to Last Known Holder

Unless the buyer has notice of actual or intended assignment of a contract or installment account, payment thereunder made by the buyer to the last known holder of the contract discharges the buyer's obligation to the extent of the payment [Civ. Code § 1806.1].

[3] Statement of Unpaid Balance

At any time after the execution of a retail installment contract, but not later than one year after the last payment thereunder, the holder of the contract must, on written request of the buyer made in good faith, promptly give or forward to the buyer a detailed written statement that states with accuracy the total amount, if any, unpaid thereunder. This statement must be supplied by the holder once each year without charge. If any additional statement is requested by the buyer, the holder must supply the statement to the buyer at a charge not exceeding $1 for each additional statement supplied to the buyer [Civ. Code § 1806.2]. The provisions of Civ. Code § 1806.2 apply only to those transactions wherein, instead of periodic statements of account, the buyer is provided with a passbook or payment book in which all payments, credits, charges, and the unpaid balance are entered [Civ. Code § 1806.2].

[4] Prepayment; Refund Credit

Notwithstanding any provision of a contract to the contrary, the buyer may pay at any time before maturity the entire indebtedness evidenced by the contract without penalty [Civ. Code § 1806.3(a)]. When prepayment in full occurs, the amount required to repay or prepay the contract depends on whether the finance charge was determined on a precomputed or simple-interest basis and the formula for computing the amount is provided by the statute [see Civ. Code § 1806.3(a)]. These computations also apply in determining the buyer's outstanding obligation, notwithstanding any provision of a contract to the contrary, when the indebtedness in a retail installment contract is satisfied prior to maturity through surrender of the collateral, repossession of the collateral, redemption of the collateral after repossession, or judgment, provided that the buyer's obligation is computed by the holder as of the date the holder recovers the value of the collateral or the date judgment is entered or, if the holder elects to keep the collateral, the date the holder takes possession of the collateral [Civ. Code § 1806.3(b)]. Nothing in Civ. Code § 1806.3 precludes the collection or retention by the holder of any delinquency charge made pursuant to Civ. Code § 1803.6 [Civ. Code § 1806.3(c); see discussion in [6], below].

[5] Delivery of Instruments Indicating Payment in Full

After payment of all sums for which the buyer is obligated under a contract and on demand made by the buyer, the holder must deliver, or mail to the buyer at his or her last known address, good and sufficient documentation to acknowledge payment in full and to release all security in the goods under contract [Civ. Code § 1806.4].

[6] Delinquency and Collection Charges Permitted

A retail installment buyer may be obligated to pay delinquency charges. A delinquency charge may not exceed $10 for a period in default of not less than 10 days or $15 for a period in default of not less than 15 days [Civ. Code § 1803.6(a)]. Only one charge may be collected on any installment, regardless of how long it remains in default. The buyer also may be obligated to pay actual and reasonable collection costs occasioned by (1) the removal of the goods from the state without the written permission of the holder of the installment contract, (2) the buyer's failure to notify the holder of any change in residence, or (3) the buyer's failure to communicate with the holder for 45 days after the buyer's default in making payments under the contract [Civ. Code § 1803.6(b)].

§ 501.36 Refinancing and Consolidation of Retail Installment Contracts

[1] Extension of Payment Dates

On agreement between the parties, the holder of a retail installment contract may extend the scheduled due date or defer the scheduled payment of all or part of any installment payments under the contract. If the agreement is in writing and signed by the parties, the holder can charge a fee for the extension or deferral, in an amount and for a period as prescribed by Civ. Code § 1807.1. The agreement may also provide that the buyer pay any additional insurance premiums if insurance coverage is provided for in the contract [Civ. Code § 1807.1(d); see Civ. Code § 1803.5].

[2] Refinancing Agreement

On a written agreement signed by the parties, the holder of a retail installment contract may refinance the remaining amount owing on the contract by providing for a new schedule of installment payments. The holder may charge a fee for refinancing, in an amount prescribed by Civ. Code § 1807.2. The agreement may also provide that the buyer pay any additional insurance premiums if insurance coverage is provided for in the refinanced contract. The items required to be disclosed in the refinancing agreement are prescribed by Civ. Code § 1807.2(a)-(g) [Civ. Code § 1807.2(d); Civ. Code § 1803.5].

[3] New Payment Schedule After Default on "Balloon Payment"

If any payment under a contract or refinancing agreement, other than a deferred downpayment, is more than twice the amount of an otherwise regularly scheduled equal payment, the contract or refinancing agreement must contain a provision notifying the buyer of the fact [Civ. Code § 1807.3(a)]. The exact wording of the required provision is set forth in Civ. Code § 1807.3(a). If the buyer defaults in the payment of any such balloon payment, he or she must be given an absolute right to obtain a new payment schedule. Unless agreed to by the buyer, the periodic payments under the new schedule must not be substantially greater than the average of the preceding installments [Civ. Code § 1807.3(b)].

[4] Refinancing by California Finance Lenders

In 1994 the Legislature repealed the Personal Property Brokers Law (former Fin. Code § 22000 et seq.), which regulated certain persons making loans secured by personal property, and the Consumer Financial Lender's Law (former Fin. Code § 24000 et seq.), which regulated certain consumer lenders [Stats. 1994, ch. 1115]. Effective July 1, 1995, those laws and the Commercial Finance Lenders Law (Fin. Code § 26000 et seq.), regulating certain commercial lenders, are consolidated in the California Finance Lenders Law [Fin. Code § 22000 et seq.].

No licensee under the California Finance Lenders Law [see Fin. Code § 22007] may make a loan to refinance a retail installment contract subject to RISA (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.) that is held by the licensee, or subsidiaries or affiliates of the licensee, unless specified conditions are satisfied [see Fin. Code § 22341(a)]. These conditions are substantially similar to comparable provisions under the superseded laws. For example, the loan may not be made unless (1) the buyer has been making installment payments for at least 90 days, and (2) the contract has a term of at least 180 days and does not provide for any scheduled installment that is more than twice the amount of any other scheduled installment [Fin. Code § 22341(a)(1)]. In addition, the licensee may not take a security interest in real property that is the borrower's principal residence unless the principal amount of the loan is $5,000 or more and the licensee furnishes a written notice as provided by statute that warns the borrower of the consequences of accepting the loan [see Fin. Code § 22341(a)(3)].

The requirements of the Finance Lenders Law are matters of fundamental public policy and cannot be waived by agreement between the parties. For example, the Finance Lenders Law may not be circumvented by a choice-of-law provision in a loan agreement of a type regulated by the law, by which another state's law is chosen as the governing law. In determining whether such a provision should be enforced in California, a court will consider which state, under the circumstances presented, would suffer greater impairment of its policies if the other state's law were applied [Brack v. Omni Loan Co., Ltd. (2008) 164 Cal. App. 4th 1312, 1326, 1329, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 275 (choice of Nevada law, in consumer loan contract of adhesion, was not enforceable)].

Loans made under the California Finance Lenders Law to refinance retail installment contracts are subject to that law and are not governed by RISA [Fin. Code § 22341(b)].

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.37

§ 501.37 Add-on Sales Provisions

[1] In General

RISA contains special provisions for retail installment contracts that contemplate the incorporation of a number of retail installment sales into a single contract. RISA divides add-on sales transactions into two types, as discussed in [2] and [3], below.

[2] Subsequent Purchases Added to Prior Contract

[a] Terms

The first type of add-on sales transaction permitted by RISA is one that gives the seller the option of adding subsequent purchases made by the buyer to the existing contract. That contract may provide that the total price of the goods or services covered by the contract will be increased by the price of the additional goods or services purchased, that all finance charges and installment payments may be increased proportionately, and that all terms and conditions of the original contract will apply equally to the subsequent sale [Civ. Code § 1808.1].

[b] Allocation of Installment Payments After Subsequent Purchase

When a subsequent purchase is added to an existing contract, the entire amount of all payments previously made must be deemed to have been applied toward the deferred payment price(s) of any goods or services previously purchased. Each payment received thereafter must be allocated to all of the various deferred payment prices in the same proportion or ratio as the original cash prices of the various purchases bear to one another. If the amount of each installment payment is increased with the subsequent purchase, the seller may elect to allocate the subsequent payments as follows: (1) an amount equal to the original installment payment to the previous deferred payment price; and (2) an amount equal to the increase to the subsequent deferred payment price. Any downpayment on the subsequent purchase must, however, be allocated in its entirety to that purchase [Civ. Code § 1808.2].

[c] Security Interest in Goods Previously Purchased

The contract, the terms of which apply to subsequent purchases, may provide that previously purchased goods will be security for goods subsequently purchased, but only until the total of payments under previous purchases is fully paid [Civ. Code § 1808.1].

[d] Time and Contents of Disclosures

When a subsequent purchase is added to an existing contract, the seller must deliver a memorandum to the buyer prior to the due date of the first installment that sets forth information similar to that required in an ordinary retail installment contract under Civ. Code § 1803.3 [see discussion in § 501.31[5]]. In addition, the seller also must disclose the following:

- The amount of the existing outstanding balance to be consolidated, which consists of the unpaid time balance(s) of the prior contract(s) to be consolidated;

- The amount of any unearned finance charge, determined by deducting from the amount of item (1) above, any unearned finance charge in an amount not less than the refund credit provided for by Civ. Code § 1806.3 (providing for refund of unearned finance charges in the event of prepayment in full of a retail installment contract); in computing this amount, no minimum finance charge is allowed; and

- The difference between these two items, above, which is the net outstanding balance to be consolidated [see Civ. Code § 1808.2].

[3] Series of Credit Sale Transactions

[a] In General

The second type of add-on sale transaction under RISA is one that is part of a series of credit sales made pursuant to an agreement providing for the addition of the amount financed plus the finance charge for the current sale to an existing outstanding balance [see Civ. Code § 1808.3]. Those transactions differ from the transactions governed by Civ. Code §§ 1808.1 and 1808.2 [see discussion in [2], above] in that, under the latter type of transaction, the outstanding balance, less a refund credit for any unearned finance charge, is added to the unpaid balance of the cash price of the subsequent purchase, and the finance charge is recomputed on the basis of the consolidated total of the previous and subsequent purchases [see Civ. Code § 1808.2(e)-(g), (j)]. By contrast, in a transaction governed by Civ. Code § 1808.3, the amount financed plus the finance charge for the current sale are simply added to the existing outstanding balance from prior sales, with no recomputation of the finance charge on the prior sale transactions [see Civ. Code § 1808.3(g)-(j)].

[b] Delay of Disclosures Permitted

Both RISA and TILA provide that, in the case of subsequent purchases under both types of provisions [see discussion in [a], above], the disclosures required to be made for the current sale may be made at any time prior to the date that the first installment for that sale is due, provided that (1) the customer has approved in writing both the annual percentage rate(s) and the method of treating any unearned finance charge on an existing outstanding balance in computing the new finance charge, and (2) the creditor retains no security interest in any property as to which he or she has received payments aggregating the amount of the sale price, including any finance charges attributable thereto [15 U.S.C. § 1638(d); 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(h); see Civ. Code § 1808.3]. Civ. Code § 1808.3 is worded differently than the comparable federal provisions, and its meaning is unclear. The Legislature apparently intended, however, that Civ. Code § 1808.3 conform to the requirements of TILA and Regulation Z [see Stats. 1969, ch. 626, § 24].

For purposes of the above provisions, when items are purchased on different dates, the first purchased must be deemed the first paid for. When several items are purchased on the same date, the lowest priced must be deemed the first paid for [15 U.S.C. § 1638(d); 12 C.F.R. § 226.17(h); Civ. Code § 1808.3].

[c] Contents of Disclosure Memorandum

The contents of the memorandum that the seller must deliver to the buyer prior to the due date of the first installment for a particular credit sale are set forth in Civ. Code § 1808.3 and are similar to the items required to be disclosed in an ordinary retail installment contract under Civ. Code § 1803.3 [see discussion in § 501.31[5]].

[4] Consequences of Failure to Make Disclosures

Until the seller delivers to the buyer the memoranda required by Civ. Code § 1808.2 or 1808.3 [see discussions in [2][d] and [3][b], above], the buyer is obligated only to pay the cash price of the subsequent purchase [Civ. Code § 1808.4].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Disclosures, Requirements, and Prohibitions

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.38

§ 501.38 Retail Installment Accounts

[1] In General

As discussed above [see discussion in § 501.22[2][c]], a retail installment account [Civ. Code § 1802.7] differs from a retail installment contract [Civ. Code § 1802.6] in that the former provides for the extension of credit on a revolving basis, whereas the latter provides for a single credit transaction pursuant to a contract. Retail installment accounts are subject to regulations that differ from those applicable to retail installment contracts.

[2] Acceptance by Buyer

A retail installment account agreement is considered to be accepted by the buyer if (1) the buyer signs the agreement, including signing the application containing the agreement's terms, or (2) the buyer, or a person authorized by the buyer, uses the account, and the buyer has been notified in writing that the use of the credit card will mean that the agreement has been accepted by the buyer [Civ. Code § 1810]. The agreement will not become effective, however, unless and until the buyer has been given the disclosures required by Civ. Code § 1810.1 [see [3][b], below] and has accepted the agreement as required [Civ. Code § 1810]. A change in any term of the agreement will not become effective until the seller has been given notice of the change and complies with the provisions of Civ. Code § 1810.3 [see [3][d], below].

[3] Disclosure Requirements Under RISA

[a] Disclosure in Credit Card Application

State law requirements relating to the disclosure of credit information in credit or charge card applications or solicitations that are subject to 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c) (the section of TILA that governs these disclosures) are preempted by the federal law [15 U.S.C. § 1610(e)]. Therefore, Civ. Code § 1810.21, which sets forth the disclosures that must appear in an application form or preapproved written solicitation for a credit card issued in connection with a retail installment account that is mailed on or after October 1, 1987, is preempted. Nevertheless, a disclosure that satisfies the initial disclosure statement requirements of Regulation Z (12 C.F.R. § 226.6) is sufficient for purposes of Civ. Code § 1810.21(a) [Civ. Code § 1810.21(a)(2)]. In addition, if a retail seller is required under federal law to make any disclosure of the terms applicable to a retail installment account in connection with application forms or solicitations, the retail seller is deemed to have complied with the requirements of Civ. Code § 1810.21(a)(1) with respect to those application forms or solicitations if the retail seller complies with the federal disclosure requirement [Civ. Code § 1810.21(f)].

The TILA disclosure requirements apply to certain direct mail, telephone, and other applications and solicitations offering a credit or charge card, whether the card is connected to a retail installment account or not [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)]. For discussion of the TILA requirements, see Ch. 127, Consumer Contracts and Loans .

[b] Initial Disclosure

Before the first transaction is made on any retail installment account, the seller must disclose to the buyer, in a single written statement, information regarding the following [Civ. Code § 1810.1]:

- Conditions under which a finance charge may be imposed, including an explanation of the time period, if any, within which any credit extended may be paid without incurring a finance charge;

- The method of determining the balance on which the finance charge may be imposed;

- The method of determining the amount of the finance charge, including the method of determining any minimum charge that may be imposed as a finance charge;

- When one or more periodic rates may be used to compute the finance charge, each such rate, the range of balances to which it is applicable, and the corresponding annual percentage rate determined by multiplying the periodic rate by the number of periods in the year;

- The conditions under which any other charges may be imposed, and the method by which they will be determined;

- The conditions under which the creditor may retain or acquire any security interest in any property to secure the payment of any credit extended on the account, and a description or identification of the type of interest that may be retained or acquired; and

- The minimum periodic payment required.

Until the single written statement is delivered to the buyer, the buyer is obligated to pay only the cash price of the goods or services purchased under the account [Civ. Code § 1810.1; see 12 C.F.R. § 226.7 (setting out similar requirements under TILA that must be disclosed to the consumer prior to the first transaction on an open-end credit account)].

[c] Statement Regarding Insurance

If the cost of any insurance is to be separately charged to the buyer, there must be a written agreement signed by both buyer and seller, and the buyer must be provided with a copy of the agreement. The agreement must state if the insurance is to be procured by the buyer or by the seller or holder. If the insurance is to be procured by the seller or holder, the seller or holder must comply with Civ. Code § 1803.5 [Civ. Code § 1810.5; see Civ. Code § 1803.5 (required disclosures when insurance included in price and charged to buyer) and discussion in § 501.31[5][h]].

[d] Change in Terms of Account

If any change is to be made in terms of a retail installment account previously disclosed to the buyer, the seller must mail or deliver to the buyer written disclosure of such proposed change not less than 30 days prior to the effective date of the change or 30 days prior to the beginning of the billing cycle within which the change will become effective, whichever is the earlier date [Civ. Code § 1810.3(d); cf. 12 C.F.R. § 226.9(c) (providing that, except in certain circumstances, creditor must mail or deliver to consumer written notice of change in any term required to be disclosed under 12 C.F.R. § 226.6 at least 15 days prior to effective date of change)].

If the change only involves the reduction of any component of a finance or other charge, then a notice of the change that appears on the periodic statement or accompanies it is sufficient [Civ. Code § 1810.3(d)].

If a change involves any of the following, it will be effective only with respect to purchases made on or after the effective date of the change [Civ. Code § 1810.3(d)]:

- An increase in any component of a finance charge [see Civ. Code 1802.10 (finance charge defined)];
- A change in a charge permitted by Civ. Code 1810.4 [see [9], below]; or
- A change in the attorney's fee provision of the agreement [see Civ. Code 1802.4].

[e] Periodic Statement of Account; Required Contents

Except in the case of an account that the seller deems to be uncollectible or with respect to which delinquency collection procedures have been instituted, the seller must provide the buyer with a statement of account in the format prescribed by Civ. Code § 1810.3(b) and (c) for each billing cycle [see Civ. Code § 1802.17 ("billing cycle" defined)] at the end of which there is a balance due in excess of one dollar, setting out the following to the extent applicable [Civ. Code § 1810.3(a); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.7(b) (similar requirements for periodic billing statements)]:

- The previous balance on the account;
- The amount and date of each extension of credit and, unless previously furnished, a brief identification of any goods or services purchased or other extension of credit;
- All amounts credited to the account during the billing cycle, including payments, returns, rebates of finance charges, and adjustments, and, unless previously furnished, a brief identification of each of the items;
- The amount and itemization of finance charges debited to the account during the billing cycle, using appropriate descriptive terminology;
- Each periodic rate, using the term "periodic rate" or "periodic rates," that may be used to compute the finance charge (whether or not applied during the billing cycle), and the range of balances to which it applies;
- The balance on which the finance charge was computed and a statement of how it was determined; if any balance is determined without first deducting all credits during the billing cycle, that fact and the amount of such credits must also be disclosed; and
- The closing date of the billing cycle and the outstanding balance on that date, using the term "new balance," accompanied by the statement of the date that, or the period, if any, within which, payment must be made to avoid additional finance charges.

The seller must mail or deliver the statements required by Civ. Code § 1810.3(a) at least 14 days prior to any date or the end of any time period required to be disclosed under Civ. Code § 1810.3(a)(7) for the consumer to avoid an additional or other finance charge. A seller that fails to meet this requirement may not collect any finance or other charges imposed as a result of that failure [Civ. Code § 1810.3(b)].

[4] Disclosure Requirements Under TILA

[a] In General

As noted previously [see discussions in 501.22[1and [2][b]]], retail installment accounts are also subject to the TILA disclosure requirements for open-end credit plans. Like RISA, TILA requires certain disclosures to be made before an account is opened, and periodically thereafter.

TILA also requires that certain disclosures be made in applications or solicitations offering a credit or charge card, whether the card is connected to a retail installment account or not [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(c)]. These disclosure requirements preempt state law disclosure requirements relating to credit card applications and solicitations [15 U.S.C. § 1610(e)]. For discussion of the TILA requirements, see Ch. 127, Consumer Contracts and Loans .

[b] Initial Disclosures

Before opening any account under an open-end consumer credit plan, the creditor is required to disclose a number of items to the person to whom credit is to be extended. These items are substantially the same as those required by RISA [compare Civ. Code § 1810.2 with 15 U.S.C. § 1637(a)]. In addition to these items, TILA requires the creditor to disclose to the obligor his or her rights with respect to billing errors under 15 U.S.C. § 1666 et seq. [15 U.S.C. § 1637(a); see 12 C.F.R. § 226.7(a)(9) for the exact wording of the required notice].

[c] Periodic Statement

Like RISA, TILA requires that the creditor of any open-end account mail or deliver a statement to the customer for each billing cycle at the end of which there is an outstanding credit or debit balance in excess of $1, or on which a finance charge has been imposed [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5(b)(2)(i)]. The items required to be disclosed on the periodic statement are basically the same as those required by Civ. Code § 1810.3(a) [see discussion in [3][e], above]. The requirements of TILA, as implemented by Regulation Z, differ from those of Civ. Code § 1810.3(a) in that TILA requires that the amounts and dates of any credits made to an account during the billing cycle be disclosed on the statement, whereas RISA requires disclosure of only the total amounts credited for payments and for other credits [compare 12 C.F.R. § 226.7(c) with Civ. Code § 1810.3(a)(3)]. In addition to the items required to be disclosed by RISA under Civ. Code § 1810.3, TILA also requires disclosure of the annual percentage rate when a finance charge is imposed during the billing cycle [15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(5); 12 C.F.R. § 226.7(g)]. In addition, the periodic statement must include an address to be used by the creditor for the purpose of receiving billing inquiries from customers [see 15 U.S.C. § 1637(b)(10); 12 C.F.R. § 226.7(k)].

[5] Refund of Credit Balance on Retail Installment Account

If any outstanding credit balance in excess of $1 exists in a retail installment account, the seller must either refund to the buyer the amount of the credit balance or notify the buyer of the credit balance [Civ. Code § 1810.3(e)(1)].

If the credit balance exists for 90 days, the seller must either (1) notify the buyer, as prescribed by Civ. Code § 1810.3(e)(2)(A), of his or her right to receive a cash refund, or (2) refund to the buyer the outstanding credit balance at any time after the credit balance is created and prior to the date by which the first notice of the outstanding balance would have been sent had the seller elected to proceed under Civ. Code § 1810.3(e)(2)(A) [Civ. Code § 1810.3(e)(2)].

If the account with an outstanding balance is dormant for 180 days after the credit balance is created, the seller must proceed as prescribed by Civ. Code § 1810.3(f). If, after three years, the seller is unable to refund the credit balance, the balance escheats to the state [Civ. Code § 1810.3(g)].

For the purposes of Civ. Code § 1810.3, an outstanding credit balance is created at the end of the billing cycle in which the credit balance is first recorded on a buyer's account and is created anew at the end of the billing cycle in which the recorded amount of an existing credit balance is changed because of the buyer's use of the account [Civ. Code § 1810.3(h)].

[6] Security Interest Until Goods Paid For

The buyer and seller may execute an agreement under which the seller retains a security interest in the goods sold until full payment has been made. For purposes of release of the security interests, in the case of goods or services purchased on different dates, the first purchase is deemed first paid for. In the case of goods or services purchased on the same date, the lowest priced is deemed first paid for. All amounts allocated to payment for these goods and services must be applied to accomplish the above result. However, any downpayment on a specific purchase must be deemed to be allocated in its entirety to that purchase [Civ. Code § 1810.6].

[7] Notes Cutting off Buyer's Defenses Prohibited

No installment account may require or entail the execution of any note or series of notes by the buyer that, when separately negotiated, will cut off as to third parties any right of action or defense that the buyer may have against the seller [Civ. Code § 1810.7].

[8] Delinquency Charges

Notwithstanding the restrictions on charges set forth in Civ. Code § 1810.4, a seller or holder of a retail installment account may, subject to the provisions of Civ. Code § 1810.3(d) [see discussion in [3][d], above], provide that, for each installment in default, the buyer must pay a delinquency charge not to exceed $10 for a period in default of not less than 10 days or not to exceed $15 for a period in default of not less than 15 days [Civ. Code § 1810.12(a)]. Only one delinquency charge may be collected on any installment regardless of the period during which it remains in default. No delinquency charge may be imposed for any default of payment due prior to the mailing or delivery to the buyer of the written disclosure concerning a change in the delinquency charge required by Civ. Code § 1810.3(d) [see discussion in [3][d], above]. Payments received by the seller in a timely manner under a written extension or deferral agreement shall not be subject to any delinquency charge [Civ. Code § 1810.12(b)].

The agreement may also provide for payment of any actual and reasonable costs of collection occasioned (a) by the removal of goods from the state without written permission of the holder, (b) by the failure of the buyer to notify the holder of any change of residence, or (c) by the failure of the buyer to communicate with the holder for a period of 45 days after any default in making payments due under the agreement [Civ. Code § 1810.12(b)].

Notwithstanding the time period for statements set forth in Civ. Code § 1810.3(b) [see discussion in [3][e], above], the seller or holder of a retail installment account must provide a minimum of 20 days between the monthly billing date and the date on which the minimum payment is due, exclusive of the applicable grace period [Civ. Code § 1810.12(c)].

[9] Finance Charge Limits on Retail Installment Accounts

There is no limit on the interest rate that may be charged, received, or collected by the seller or holder of a retail installment account, as long as the finance charge has been disclosed to the buyer as required by Civ. Code § 1810.3 [Civ. Code § 1810.2; see [3][e], above].

The seller or holder of a retail installment account may charge and collect a fee not to exceed $15 for the return by a depository institution of a dishonored check, negotiable order of withdrawal, or share draft issued in connection with the retail installment account. This fee is not considered to be part of the finance charge under RISA [Civ. Code § 1810.4]. In addition, when credit cards are issued in connection with a retail installment account, the seller, either in the agreement or after giving the notice required by Civ. Code § 1810.3(d) (see discussion in [3][e], above), may require an annual payment of not more than $15 for membership in the credit card plan. This fee is also not considered part of the finance charge under RISA [Civ. Code § 1810.4].

[10] Payments on Account

The payment provisions set out in Civ. Code §§ 1806.1 and 1806.4 with regard to retail installment contracts govern payment on retail installment accounts [Civ. Code § 1810.8; see § 501.35, above].

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.50

§ 501.50 Buyer Remedies Under RISA

[1] Rescission of Retail Installment Contract

If there is an explicit understanding between the seller and the buyer that all or any part of the cash price will be paid from the proceeds of a loan to be obtained by the buyer from a third party, the contract or purchase order can be rescinded at the buyer's election, and all considerations will be returned to the respective parties without further demand, if the buyer is unable to obtain the loan on reasonable terms after having made a reasonable effort to do so, and the buyer notifies the seller of the rescission within three business days [Civ. Code § 1803.9].

[2] Civil Liability for Violations of RISA

Both RISA and TILA impose specific duties on creditors to disclose information to debtors and subject any creditor in breach of those duties to statutory damages [see Civ. Code §§ 1812.7, 1812.9; 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a)]. There apparently is no rule in California regarding whether or not federal and state remedies are cumulative. It appears that, absent a case or statute providing that recovery under one act is in lieu of recovery under the other when based substantially on the same violation, both RISA and TILA remedies would be available.

If any person fails to comply with the provisions of RISA, that person, or any person who acquires a contract or installment account with knowledge of the noncompliance, is barred from recovery of any finance charge or of any delinquency, collection, extension, deferral, or refinance charge imposed in connection with the contract or installment account. The buyer has the right to recover from that person an amount equal to any charges he or she has paid [Civ. Code § 1812.7].

[3] Statutory Penalty for Willful Violation on Consolidated Contracts

In any case in which a person willfully violates any provision of RISA in connection with the imposition, computation, or disclosures of or relating to a finance charge on a consolidated total of two or more contracts under the provisions of RISA governing add-on sales [see Civ. Code §§ 1801.1-1808.5], the buyer may recover from that person an amount equal to three times the total of the finance charges and any delinquency, collection, extension, deferral, or refinance charges imposed, contracted for, or received on all contracts included in the consolidated total. In addition, the seller is barred from the recovery of any such charges [Civ. Code § 1812.9].

[4] Costs and Attorney's Fees

RISA provides that reasonable attorney's fees and costs must be awarded to the prevailing party in an action on a retail installment contract or installment account, regardless of whether the action is instituted by the seller, holder, or buyer. If the defendant alleges in his or her answer that he or she has tendered to the plaintiff the full amount to which the plaintiff is entitled, and deposits that amount in court for the plaintiff, and the allegation is found to be true, then the defendant is deemed to be the prevailing party within the meaning of RISA [Civ. Code § 1811.1]. However, the tender must be made prior to commencement of the litigation [Joseph Magnin Co. v. Schmidt (1978) 89 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 7, 13 , 152 Cal. Rptr. 523] .

[5] Assignee Liability Under RISA

An assignee of the seller's rights is subject to all equities and defenses of the buyer against the seller arising out of the sale, notwithstanding an agreement to the contrary; however, the assignee's liability cannot exceed the amount of the debt owing to the assignee at the time of the assignment [Civ. Code § 1804.2(a)].

The assignee has recourse against the seller to the extent of any liability incurred by the assignee pursuant to Civ. Code § 1804.2, regardless of whether the assignment was with or without recourse [Civ. Code § 1804.2(b)].

D. Remedies

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.51

§ 501.51 Buyer's Remedies Under TILA

[1] Rescission of Contract Creating Security Interest in Principal Dwelling

[a] Availability

In any consumer credit transaction in which a security interest, including any security interest arising by operation of law, is or will be retained or acquired in any property that is used as the principal dwelling of the obligor, the obligor has the right to rescind the transaction until midnight of the third business day following the consummation of the transaction or the delivery of the information and forms required under 15 U.S.C. § 1635 together with a statement containing the material disclosures required by TILA, whichever is later, by notifying the creditor of his or her intention to do so [15 U.S.C. § 1635(a); see 15 U.S.C. § 1602(u) (definition of "material disclosures"); see also 15 U.S.C. § 1605(f)(2) (criteria for determining whether amount disclosed as finance charge is accurate for purposes of determining when period for exercise of rescission rights begins to run), discussed in § 501.34[2][d]]. The transaction is "consummated" at the time the consumer becomes contractually obligated, which is determined by looking to California contract law [Jackson v. Grant (9th Cir. 1989) 890 F.2d 118, 120] . For example, if an essential element of the contract is reserved for future agreement of the parties, no legal obligation is created and the transaction is consummated only when the parties agree to the missing term [Jackson v. Grant (9th Cir. 1989) 890 F.2d 118, 120-121 (mortgage contract with real estate loan broker did not bind borrower until eventual lender was identified)].

It should be noted that RISA contains no provision for rescission in this situation. RISA does, however, require notice when a security interest is granted or retained [see Civ. Code § 1803.2, discussed in § 501.31[4]]. RISA also provides that any contract for the sale of goods that provides for a security interest in real property if the primary goods sold are not to be attached to the real property is a violation of RISA and subject to the penalties provided in Civ. Code §§ 1812.6-1812.9 [Civ. Code § 1804.3(b)].

In addition to the general right to rescind, after the initiation of any judicial or nonjudicial foreclosure process on the primary dwelling of an obligor securing an extention of credit, the obligor has a right to rescind the transaction, equivalent to the other rights provided by 15 U.S.C. § 1635, if (1) a mortgage broker fee is not included in the finance charge in accordance with the applicable statutes and regulations; or (2) the notice of rescission for the transaction is not the appropriate form of written notice published and adopted by the Federal Reserve Board, or a comparable written notice complying with all applicable notice requirements [15 U.S.C. § 1635(i)(1)]. Special tolerances for the required disclosures apply in the latter situation [see 15 U.S.C. § 1635(i)(2)].

Rescission under 15 U.S.C. § 1635 is a personal remedy not suitable for class-action treatment [LaLiberte v. Pacific Mercantile Bank (2007) 147 Cal. App. 4th 1, 10, 53 Cal. Rptr. 3d 745] .

[b] Disclosure of Right to Rescind Required

The creditor must clearly and conspicuously disclose, in accordance with regulations of the Federal Reserve Board, to any obligor in a transaction in which a security interest is created, the rights of the obligor to rescind the transaction under the provisions of 15 U.S.C. § 1635 [15 U.S.C. § 1635(a)]. The contents of the required notice are prescribed by 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.15(b) (open-end credit) and 226.23(b) (closed-end credit). Suggested model forms for notice of the right to rescind are contained in 12 C.F.R. Part 226, Appendices G and H.

The obligor has no rescission rights arising solely from the form of the written notice the creditor uses to inform the obligor of the obligor's rights under 15 U.S.C. § 1635, as long as the creditor provided the obligor with the appropriate form of written notice published and adopted by the Federal Reserve Board, or a comparable written notice of the obligor's rights that was properly completed by the creditor and otherwise complied with all other requirements of 15 U.S.C. § 1635 regarding notice [15 U.S.C. § 1635(h)].

[c] Form of Notice to Creditor

The consumer must notify the creditor of his or her intent to rescind the transaction by mail, telegram, or other writing. Notification by mail is deemed given at the time the notice is mailed; notification by telegram is deemed given at the time the notice is filed for transmission; notification by other writing is deemed given at the time the writing is delivered to the creditor's designated place of business [12 C.F.R. §§ 226.15(a)(2) (open-end credit), 226.23(a)(2) (closed-end credit)].

[d] Return of Money or Property

When an obligor exercises his or her right to rescind, he or she is not liable for any finance or other charge, and any security interest given by the obligor, including any security interest arising by operation of law, becomes void on rescission. Within 20 days after receipt of a notice of rescission, the creditor must return to the obligor any money or property given as earnest money, downpayment, or otherwise, and must take any action necessary or appropriate to reflect the termination of the security interest created. If the creditor has delivered any property to the obligor, the obligor must return that property to the creditor only when the creditor has performed all obligations with regard to the rescission. If the return of the property in kind would be impracticable or inequitable, the obligor must tender its reasonable value. If the creditor does not take possession of the property within 20 days after tender by the obligor, ownership of the property vests in the obligor without obligation on his or her part to pay for it [15 U.S.C. § 1635(b)].

The Tenth Circuit has held that even though an obligor who exercises the right to rescind is not liable by statute for finance or other charges, a court may apply equitable principles, for example, to impose interest charges if the borrower had the benefit of the use of loan proceeds [see Rachbach v. Cogswell (10th Cir. 1977) 547 F.2d 502, 505 (involving rescission of mortgage contract)]. However, the latter position has been rejected by the Ninth Circuit on the ground that it contravenes 15 U.S.C. § 1635(b), which states that a borrower is not liable for any finance charge, and 15 U.S.C. § 1605(a), which lists interest as an example of a finance charge [Semar v. Platte Valley Federal S. & L. Ass'n (9th Cir. 1986) 791 F.2d 699, 706] .

[e] Action for Restitution of Money or Property

If the consumer exercises his or her right to rescind a transaction under 15 U.S.C. § 1635, but the creditor fails to return to the consumer any money or property given by the consumer under the agreement, the consumer's remedy is to bring an action for restitution of the money or property based on the rescission of the agreement [see Civ. Code §§ 1689(b)(7), 1692]. For a complaint for use by the consumer in seeking restitution, see § 501.201.

[f] Time Limit

[i] Three-day Optional Rescission Period

If the transaction has been consummated and the required disclosures, forms, and information have not been delivered, the obligor has the right to rescind the transaction at any time until midnight of the third business day following delivery of the disclosures, forms, and information [15 U.S.C. § 1635(a)]. If there are two or more obligors, one court has held that the time period for rescinding the transaction does not begin to run until a disclosure statement has been delivered to each obligor [Gerasta v. Hibernia Nat. Bank (E.D. La. 1975) 411 F. Supp. 176, 188 , rev'd in part on other grounds, (5th Cir. 1978) 575 F.2d 580, 583 ; see 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.5(d), 226.17(d); see also former 12 C.F.R. § 226.603 (interpretation of the board regarding transactions involving multiple customers)].

If the disclosures are delivered before consummation of the transaction and, because of the timing of the delivery, notify the consumer of the wrong expiration date on his or her right to rescind, one court has held that this is equivalent to making no disclosure at all [see Jackson v. Grant (9th Cir. 1989) 890 F.2d 118, 120-122] .

If no disclosure has been delivered, the right to rescind expires three years after the date of the consummation of the transaction or on the sale of the property, which ever occurs first [15 U.S.C. § 1635(f); see Pacific Shore Funding v. Lozo (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1342, 1347, 1355, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 283 (borrowers not precluded from rescinding consumer loan that is secured by their residence and subject to TILA merely because they already refinanced that loan, provided they rescind within three years after original loan date)].

[ii] Use as Affirmative Defense

The United States Supreme Court has held that a borrower may not assert the right to rescind as an affirmative defense in a collection action brought by the lender more than three years after the consummation of the transaction. Because 15 U.S.C. § 1635(f) completely extinguishes the right of rescission at the end of the three-year period, it is not a statute of limitations and the mortgagors cannot assert the right to rescind as a recoupment defense beyond the expiration period [Beach v. Ocwen Federal Bank (1998) 523 U.S. 410, 417-419, 118 S. Ct. 1408, 140 L. Ed. 2d 566] .

[iii] In Action by Agency Empowered to Enforce TILA

If an agency empowered to enforce the provisions of TILA, institutes an action, the obligor's right of rescission expires three years after the date of consummation of the transaction or earlier sale of the property, or one year following the conclusion of the proceeding or any judicial review or period for judicial review, whichever is later [15 U.S.C. § 1635(f)]. The foregoing applies when all of the following occur:

- The agency instituted a proceeding to enforce the provisions of 15 U.S.C. § 1635 within three years after the date of consummation of the transaction.

- The agency found a violation of 15 U.S.C. § 1635.

- The obligor's right to rescind is based in whole or in part on any matter involved in the proceeding.

[g] Election of Remedies Not Required

In addition to rescission, the court may award relief under 15 U.S.C. § 1640 for violations of TILA not related to the right to rescind [15 U.S.C. § 1635(g); see discussion in § 501.51[2]]. Thus, a debtor can successfully pursue damages under the statutory penalty provisions of TILA, as well as seeking rescission [Ljepava v. M.L.S.C. Properties, Inc. (9th Cir. 1975) 511 F.2d 935, 945 ; Eby v. Reb Realty, Inc. (9th Cir. 1974) 495 F.2d 646, 651 ; see § 501.200 (complaint for statutory damages and penalties)]. Accordingly, failure to state the obligor's right to rescind coupled with failure to make other required disclosures entitles an obligor to rescission as well as statutory penalties provided for under the federal act [see Palmer v. Wilson (9th Cir. 1974) 502 F.2d 860, 861] .

[h] Right to Rescind as Against Assignee

Any consumer who has the right to rescind a transaction under 15 U.S.C. § 1635 may rescind the transaction as against any assignee of the obligation [15 U.S.C. § 1641(c)].

[i] Attorney's Fees

Reasonable attorney's fees may also be awarded to the successful consumer-litigant in any action in which he or she is found to have a right of rescission under 15 U.S.C. § 1635 [see 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), 1st sentence, cl. (3); see also § 501.201[6] and [3], respectively].

[2] Civil Liability for Violations of TILA

[a] Individual Action for Damages and Statutory Penalties

Except as otherwise provided in 15 U.S.C. § 1640, a creditor is liable for the recovery of any actual damages sustained by a consumer that are the result of the creditor's failure to meet the disclosure requirements of TILA [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), 1st sentence, cl. (1)]. The creditor also may be liable for a statutory penalty in an amount equal to twice the amount of any finance charge imposed in connection with the transaction [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), 1st sentence, cl. (2)(A)(i)]; or, if the transaction was under an open end consumer credit plan that is not secured by real property or a dwelling, the penalty is twice the amount of any finance charge in connection with the transaction, with a minimum of $500 and a maximum of $5,000, or such higher amount as may be appropriate in the case of an established pattern or practice of such failures [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), 1st sentence, cl. (2)(A)(iii)]; or, if the transaction was not under an open end credit plan and was secured by real property or a dwelling, the penalty is not less than $400 or more than $4,000 [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), 1st sentence, cl. (2)(A)(iv)]. Liability for a penalty can be based only on a violation of any of the following [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), 5th sentence]:

- 15 U.S.C. § 1635 (concerning the consumer's right to rescind);
- 15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(2) insofar as it requires a disclosure of the amount financed;
- A disclosure requirement in 15 U.S.C. § 1638(a)(3)-(6) or (9);
- The variable-rate disclosure requirement in 15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(2)(C)(ii).
- Certain requirements applicable to private educational loans [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638(e)(2)(A), (B), (D), (F), (J), (4)(c), (6)-(8); for discussion, see Ch. 127, Consumer Contracts and Loans, § 127.34]; or
- 15 U.S.C. § 1641(f) or (g) (requirements regarding treatment of a servicer or notice of a new creditor).

The statutory penalty may be recovered without proving actual damages [Demando v. Morris (9th Cir. 2000) 206 F.3d 1300, 1303] .

TILA imposes a statutory penalty in "twice the amount of the finance charge" [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), 1st sentence, cl. (2)(A)(i)]. It is not clear whether these words refer to the amount of the finance charge as disclosed to the buyer at the time of the sale or refer to the amount of the finance charge actually owing as determined under the provisions of TILA and Regulation Z [see 15 U.S.C. § 1605; 12 C.F.R. § 226.4(a); see also discussion in § 501.34].

When there are multiple obligors in a consumer credit transaction, there may be only one recovery of the statutory penalty under 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a) for violation of TILA [15 U.S.C. § 1640(d)].

[b] Class Action Under TILA

In the case of a class action the creditor is liable for the recovery of any actual damages sustained by class members which resulted from the creditor's failure to meet the disclosure requirements. In addition, the court may award an additional amount as a penalty, but this additional amount may not exceed the lesser of $500,000 or one percent of the net worth of the creditor in any class action or series of class actions arising out of the same failure to comply [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), 1st sentence, cl. (2)(B).]. In a class action, a lender liable for a TILA violation is subject to statutory damages even in the absence of any actual damages [Demando v. Morris (9th Cir. 2000) 206 F.3d 1300, 1303] .

In determining the amount of award in any class action, the court must consider, among other relevant factors, the following [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), 1st sentence, cl. (4)]:

- The amount of any actual damages awarded.
- The frequency and persistence of failures of compliance by the creditor.
- The resources of the creditor.
- The number of persons adversely affected.
- The extent to which the creditor's failure to comply was intentional.

[c] Applicability of Statutory Penalty

Creditor liability for the statutory penalty provided in 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a) is limited to violations of TILA provisions specified in 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a) [see McDonald v. Checks-N-Advance, Inc. (In re Ferrell) (9th Cir. BAP 2006) 358 B.R. 777, 785 (list in 15 U.S.C. § 1640 of specified TILA provisions for violation of which statutory penalty may be claimed is exclusive, since list is introduced with qualifier "only")].

[3] Costs and Attorney's Fees

In the case of any successful action to enforce creditor liability under TILA, the individual plaintiff or the class may recover the costs of the action, together with reasonable attorney's fees, as determined by the court [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), 1st sentence, cl. (3); see 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), 1st sentence, cl. (4) (amounts recoverable for failure to comply with requirements for certain mortgages under 15 U.S.C. § 1639)].

[4] Multiple Violations in Single Transaction

TILA limits an obligor to a single recovery for multiple failures to disclose with regard to a single credit transaction [15 U.S.C. § 1640(g)]. However, continued failure to disclose after a recovery has been granted gives rise to the right to additional recoveries [15 U.S.C. § 1640(g)].

[5] Penalties Inapplicable to Government Agencies

No civil or criminal penalty provided under TILA for any violation may be imposed on the United States, any state or political subdivision, or any government agency [15 U.S.C. § 1612].

[6] Assignee Liability Under TILA

[a] In General

Except as otherwise specifically provided by TILA, any civil action for a violation of TILA that may be brought against a creditor may be maintained against any assignee of the creditor only if the violation for which the action or proceeding is brought is apparent on the face of the disclosure statement, except when the assignment was involuntary [15 U.S.C. § 1641(a)].

For purposes of 15 U.S.C. § 1641, a violation apparent on the face of the disclosure statement includes, but is not limited to the following [15 U.S.C. § 1641(a)]:

- A disclosure that can be determined to be incomplete or inaccurate from the face of the disclosure statement or other documents assigned; or

- A disclosure that does not use the terms required to be used by TILA.

Except as provided in 15 U.S.C. § 1635(c) pertaining to rescission of certain transactions, in any proceeding or action by or against any subsequent assignee of the original creditor, written acknowledgment of receipt by a person to whom a statement is required to be given pursuant to TILA, absent contrary knowledge by the assignee at the time of the assignment, constitutes conclusive proof of the delivery of the statement and of compliance with the requirements of TILA, except if violations are apparent on the face of the disclosure statement, as discussed above. The foregoing provisions do not affect the rights of the obligor in any action against the original creditor [15 U.S.C. § 1641(b)].

A servicer of consumer credit obligations is not treated as the assignee of those obligations unless it is or was the owner of the obligations [15 U.S.C. § 1640(f)].

In addition to other disclosures required by TILA, not later than 30 days after the date on which any consumer credit transaction that is secured by the principal dwelling of a consumer (that is, a mortgage loan) is sold or otherwise transferred or assigned to a third party, the creditor that is the new owner or assignee of the debt must give the borrower written notice of the transfer, including the identity, address, telephone number of the new creditor, the date of transfer, how to reach an agent or party having authority to act on behalf of the new creditor, the location of the place where transfer of ownership of the debt is recorded, and any other relevant information regarding the new creditor [15 U.S.C. § 1641(g)].

[b] Consumer Credit Transactions Secured by Real Property

A civil action for a TILA violation may be maintained against the assignee of a creditor with respect to a consumer credit transaction secured by real property only if (1) the violation is apparent on the face of the disclosure statement provided in connection with the transaction, and (2) the assignment to the assignee was voluntary [15 U.S.C. § 1641(e)(1)]. For purposes of this requirement, a violation is apparent on the face of the disclosure statement if the disclosure can be determined to be complete or inaccurate by a comparison among the disclosure statement, any itemization of the amount financed, the note, or any other disclosure of disbursement, or if the disclosure does not use the terms or format required by the TILA [15 U.S.C. § 1641(e)].

When a controversy exists between a buyer and a seller in a retail installment transaction as to whether or not the transaction is one governed by the provisions of either RISA or TILA, the remedy of declaratory relief under *Code Civ. § 501.53 Procedural Considerations

[1] Jurisdiction of TILA Action

Any action based on a violation of TILA may be brought in any United States district court, or in any other court of competent jurisdiction [15 U.S.C. § 1640(e)]. Although the federal act does not specifically provide that federal district courts have jurisdiction over actions for rescission, that jurisdiction has been upheld on the basis of a federal statute [28 U.S.C. § 1337] conferring original jurisdiction on federal district courts in any civil action arising under any act of Congress regulating commerce [Sosa v. Fite (5th Cir. 1972) 465 F.2d 1227, 1229 ; 28 U.S.C. § 1337; but see Wachtel v. West (6th Cir. 1973) 476 F.2d 1062, 1065 , cert. denied, 414 U.S. 874 ; see § 501.51[1]]. If violations of both TILA and RISA arise out of a common nucleus of operative facts, an action under RISA may be joined with an action under TILA in federal court under the doctrine of pendant jurisdiction. For a further discussion of pendant jurisdiction, see Ch. 265, Federal Courts: Jurisdiction and Removal .

[2] Removal of Actions

When a plaintiff relying on federal law brings an action in state court, a defendant may be able to remove the case to federal court [28 U.S.C. §§ 1441-1445]. However, actions for violation of disclosure laws are frequently brought defensively by an obligor who is being sued for payment of a credit contract. In that instance, an obligor who sets up a defense based on the plaintiff's violation of TILA cannot remove the action to a federal court if the plaintiff's claim is based solely on California law. The state court provides the defendant with "a court of competent jurisdiction" to try the issues involving the federal act [15 U.S.C. § 1640(e)]. For further discussion and forms for use in removing cases to federal courts, see Ch. 265, Federal Courts: Jurisdiction and Removal .

[3] Venue in Action on Contract or Account Subject to RISA

An action on a contract or installment account subject to RISA must be tried in one of the following counties [Civ. Code § 1812.10(a)]:

- The county in which the contract was in fact signed by the buyer.

- The county in which buyer resided at the time the contract was entered into.
- The county in which the buyer resides at the commencement of the action.
- The county in which the goods purchased pursuant to the contract have been so affixed to real property as to become a part of the real property.

In any action subject to the provisions of Civ. Code § 1812.10, the plaintiff must file an affidavit, concurrently with the filing of the complaint, stating facts showing that the action has been commenced in a proper county. These facts may be stated in a verified complaint and may not be stated on information and belief. If a plaintiff fails to file such an affidavit or allege such facts in a verified complaint, no further proceedings may be had, and the court must dismiss the action without prejudice, on its own motion or on the motion of any party [see Civ. Code § 1812.10(c)]. For a further discussion of the venue provisions of Civ. Code § 1812.10, see § 501.102[3] -[5].

[4] Limitation of Actions

[a] TILA

An action for violation of TILA must be brought within one year from the date of the occurrence of the violation [15 U.S.C. § 1640(e)]. It appears that a violation involving a failure to disclose in an open-end credit plan occurs at the time the account is opened, or, at the latest, sometime before the first credit transaction takes place [see 12 C.F.R. § 226.5(b)(1)]. On the other hand, a violation by an incomplete, inaccurate, or misleading disclosure of credit terms in connection with an open-end credit plan occurs, and limitation commences, on the date on which a finance charge was first imposed [Goldman v. First Nat'l Bank of Chicago (7th Cir. 1976) 532 F.2d 10, 20-21 , cert. denied, 429 U.S. 870] .

If the credit transaction is other than an open-end account, the transaction is completed when the creditor and obligor contract for the extension of credit. Accordingly, if the proper disclosure is not made, violation of the act occurs, at the latest, when the parties perform their contract [Wachtel v. West (6th Cir. 1973) 476 F.2d 1062, 1065 , cert. denied, 414 U.S. 874] .

The one-year statute of limitations does not bar a person from asserting a violation of TILA in an action to collect the debt that was brought more than one year from the date of the occurrence of the violation as a matter of defense by recoupment or set-off in an such action, except as otherwise provided by state law [15 U.S.C. § 1640(e)]. An action to enforce a violation of 15 U.S.C. § 1639 (disclosure requirements for certain mortgages) may also be brought by the state attorney general not later than three years after the date on which the violation occurs [15 U.S.C. § 1640(e)].

[b] RISA

Because RISA itself contains no specific time limit for bringing actions under Civ. Code §§ 1812.7 and 1812.9, the-one year statute of limitations for statutory penalties or forfeitures would appear to be applicable [see Code Civ. Proc. § 340(a)].

[5] Joinder With Action Under Consumers Legal Remedies Act

If an action under TILA or RISA involves deceptive practices that are unlawful under Civ. Code § 1770, as well as in violation of the disclosure requirements of RISA or TILA, counsel should consider the possibility of joining the action with one under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act [Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.]. For procedures and forms involving the Consumers Legal Remedies Act, see Ch. 504, Sales: Consumers Legal Remedies Act .

One possible advantage of joinder with an action under the Consumers Legal Remedies Act is that the act contains specific provisions [see Civ. Code § 1781] authorizing the bringing of a class action in which the unlawful method, act, or practice has caused damage to consumers similarly situated with the plaintiff.

[6] TILA Claims Are Arbitrable

A provision in a contract subject to TILA that requires the parties to arbitrate any disputes arising regarding the agreement is enforceable. There is nothing in the Truth in Lending Act to indicate that Congress evinced an intention to preclude a waiver of judicial remedies for the statutory rights under the Act [Green Tree Financial Corp.-Ala. v. Randolph (2000) 531 U.S. 79, 121 S. Ct. 513, 148 L. Ed. 2d 373, 383] . Nor does the fact that the agreement is silent with respect to costs and fees create a risk that the consumer will be required to bear prohibitive arbitration costs if he or she pursues a TILA claim in an arbitral forum, in effect rendering it impossible for the consumer to vindicate his or her statutory rights. The party seeking to resist arbitration bears the burden of showing the likelihood of incurring costs that would be prohibitively expensive [Green Tree Financial Corp.-Ala. v. Randolph (2000) 531 U.S. 79, 148 L. Ed 2d 373, 383-384, 121 S. Ct. 513] .

§ 501.54 Statutory Defenses to Liability

[1] Correction of RISA Violation Within 30 Days of Execution Date

Any failure to comply with any provision of RISA may be corrected by the holder [see Civ. Code § 1802.13 (defining "holder")] in accordance with Civ. Code § 1812.8, provided that a willful violation may not be corrected, and a correction that will increase the amount owed by the buyer or the amount of any payment will not be effective unless the buyer agrees to the correction in writing. If a violation is corrected by the holder in accordance with Civ. Code § 1812.8, neither the seller nor the holder will be subject to any penalty under RISA. The correction must be made by delivery to the buyer of a corrected copy of the contract within 30 days from the execution of the original contract by the buyer. Any amount that was improperly collected from the buyer must be credited against the indebtedness evidenced by the contract [Civ. Code § 1812.8].

[2] Correction of TILA Error Within 60 Days of Discovery

A creditor or assignee is not liable under 15 U.S.C. § 1607, 1611, or 1640 for any violation of TILA if within 60 days after discovering an error, whether pursuant to a final written examination report or notice issued under 15 U.S.C. § 1607(e)(1) or through the creditor's or assignee's own procedures, and prior to the institution of an action under 15 U.S.C. § 1640 or the receipt of written notice of the error from the obligor, the creditor or assignee notifies the person concerned of the error and makes whatever adjustments in the appropriate account are necessary to assure that the person will not be required to pay an amount in excess of the charge actually disclosed, or the dollar equivalent of the annual percentage rate actually disclosed, whichever is lower [15 U.S.C. § 1640(b)].

It should be emphasized that TILA permits correction of errors within 60 days after discovery of an error, whenever that may occur, whereas RISA permits the avoidance of penalties only if the error is corrected within 30 days after execution of the contract [see Civ. Code § 1812.8; see also [1], above].

[3] Bona Fide Error Under TILA

The federal act provides that a creditor may not be held liable in any action brought for violation of disclosure requirements if he or she shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the violation was not intentional but resulted from a bona fide error, notwithstanding the maintenance of procedures reasonably adopted to avoid that type of error [15 U.S.C. § 1640(c)]. The creditor has the burden of pleading and proving both that the error was not intentional [Turner v. Firestone (5th Cir. 1976) 537 F.2d 1296, 1298] , and that it constituted a bona fide error notwithstanding the maintenance of procedures reasonably adopted to avoid those errors [Demando v. Morris (9th Cir. 2000) 206 F.3d 1300, 1303 (reversing summary judgment because creditor's affidavit not did explain what procedures it employed that were reasonably adapted to avoid the error)]. Apparently, the bona fide error defense is available only for clerical errors that occur despite the creditor's system for correction of those errors and is not available for mistakes of law [see Ives v. W.T. Grant (2d Cir. 1975) 522 F.2d 749, 757-758] . This rule appears to have been codified in an amendment to 15 U.S.C. § 1640(c), effective April 1, 1982, which states that examples of "bona fide errors" include, but are not limited to clerical, calculation, computer malfunction, programming, and printing errors. Errors of legal judgment with respect to a person's obligations under TILA are specifically excluded from the category of "bona fide errors." RISA contains no comparable provision for defense based on bona fide error.

[4] Good Faith Compliance With TILA Rule, Regulation, or Interpretation

Acts or omissions done in Good Faith conformity with the rules, regulations, and interpretations of the Federal Reserve System Board [15 U.S.C. § 1602(b)], or interpretations or approvals of its employees or officials, preclude liability under 15 U.S.C. §§ 1611 (criminal liability), or 1640, notwithstanding that after the occurrence of the act or omission, the rule, regulation, interpretation, or approval is amended, rescinded, or determined by judicial or other authority to be invalid for any reason [15 U.S.C. § 1640(f)]. Under RISA, there is no comparable good faith compliance defense.

§ 501.55 Seller's Remedies Under RISA

[1] Repossession and Resale

If the buyer defaults in the performance of his or her contract or installment account obligations, the holder, pursuant to any rights granted therein, may either retake the goods or proceed to recover judgment for the balance due without retaking the goods. If the seller retakes the goods, he or she must, within 10 days, notify the buyer in the manner prescribed by Civ. Code § 1812.3, of his or her intention either to sell the goods at public sale or to retain the goods in satisfaction of the balance due. The notice must state the amount of the overdue payments that the buyer must pay within 10 days of the notice in order to redeem the goods. In either case, the buyer has an absolute right to redeem the goods within 10 days after the notice is given by paying the amount owing under the contract. If the holder gives notice of election to sell the goods, the buyer also has the absolute right to redeem the goods at any time before the sale by paying the amount specified by the holder, as well as any expense reasonably incurred in good faith by the seller or holder for repairing or reconditioning the goods or preparing them for sale. If the holder gives notice of his or her intention to retain the goods in satisfaction of the indebtedness, he or she is deemed to have done so at the end of the 10-day period if the goods are not redeemed [Civ. Code § 1812.2].

At the time the notice is given, the holder must furnish the buyer with a written statement of the sum due under the contract and of any expenses incurred by the holder for repairing or reconditioning the goods or preparing them for sale. If the holder fails to render such a statement, he or she must forfeit $10 to the buyer and is also liable to the buyer for all damages suffered because of that failure [Civ. Code § 1812.2].

[2] Application of Resale Proceeds

The proceeds of a resale must be applied to the following [Civ. Code § 1812.4]:

- Payment of the expenses of the resale.

- Payment of any expenses of retaking, including reasonable attorney's fees actually incurred, and of any expenses of keeping, storing, repairing, reconditioning, or preparing the goods for sale to which the holder may be entitled.

- Satisfaction of the balance due under the contract.

Any sum remaining after satisfaction of these claims must be paid to the buyer [Civ. Code § 1812.4].

[3] No Deficiency Judgment

If the proceeds of the resale are not sufficient to cover the items set forth in Civ. Code § 1812.4, the holder may not recover the deficiency from the buyer or from anyone who has succeeded to the obligations of the buyer [Civ. Code § 1812.5].

§ 501.60 Governing Law

[1] Servicemembers Civil Relief Act

The Servicemembers Civil Relief Act of 1940 [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] provides for the temporary suspension of various legal proceedings, and relief from contracts and obligations, for persons in military service [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 502 (purpose of statute)]. The statute is applicable to all members of the uniformed services [see 10 U.S.C. § 101(a)(5) (definition)] during periods of military service [see 50 U.S.C. § 511(1)-(3)] and, in many cases, for 90 days after termination of a member's period of military service. Although the Act is a federal statute, it is specifically made enforceable in state courts. Any application required to be made to a court in which no proceeding has already been commenced with respect to the matter may be made in any court [50 U.S.C. App. § 512(c)]. For these purposes, "court" includes any court of competent jurisdiction of the United States or any state, whether or not it is a court of record [50 U.S.C. App. § 511(5)].

[2] California Statutes

The California counterpart to the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.] is designed to fill certain gaps in the federal law in the wake of the events of September 11, 2001. This statute, many provisions of which are virtually identical to their federal counterparts, is designed to apply to military reservists and National Guard members who are called to active military service under specified circumstances and, in many cases, for limited periods of time [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 400]. Because the federal and California statutes are so similar in content, language, and purpose, decisions of California and federal courts under the federal act can provide guidance in construing and applying the California law.

[3] Available Relief

The federal and California statutes provide specific relief to qualifying military personnel in a variety of areas, including default judgments [50 U.S.C. App. § 521; Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a)], pending judicial proceedings [50 U.S.C. App. § 522; Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(a)], fines or penalties on contracts and similar obligations [50 U.S.C. App. § 523; Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(b)], execution of judgments, attachments, and similar matters [50 U.S.C. App. § 524; Mil. & Vet. Code

§ 403(c)], statutes of limitations [50 U.S.C. App. § 526; Mil. & Vet. Code § 404], interest rates [50 U.S.C. App. § 527; Mil. & Vet. Code § 405], rent and eviction [50 U.S.C. App. § 531], leases [50 U.S.C. App. § 535; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409], installment contracts [50 U.S.C. App. § 532; Mil. & Vet. Code § 407], mortgages [50 U.S.C. App. § 532; Mil. & Vet. Code § 408], insurance [50 U.S.C. App. §§ 536, 541 et seq.; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.1], and taxes [50 U.S.C. App. §§ 561 et seq.; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.2]. In addition to these specific types of relief, the federal and California statutes contain "catch-all" type provisions that allow qualifying service members to initiate proceedings to seek relief.

Any interlocutory order made by any court under these statutes may, on the court's own motion or otherwise, be revoked, modified, or extended by it, on notice to the parties affected as the court may require [50 U.S.C. App. § 583; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.9].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Credit Protection for Military Personnel

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.61

§ 501.61 Persons Who May Invoke Relief Provisions

[1] Under Federal Statute

The Servicemembers Civil Relief Act applies to members of the uniformed services [see 10 U.S.C. § 101(a)(5) (definition)] during periods of military service [see 50 U.S.C. § 511(1)-(3)] and, in many cases, for 90 days after termination of a member's period of military service. A servicemember who has been reported missing is presumed to continue in service until accounted for [50 U.S.C. § 582(c)].

[2] Under California Statute

The California counterpart to the Servicemebers Civil Relief Act generally applies to the following persons [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(a)]:

- Members of the National Guard called or ordered into active state service by the Governor under Mil. & Vet. Code §§ 143 or 146, or by the President of the United States under Titles 10 or 32 of the United States Code.

- Reservists of the United States Military Reserve who have been called to full-time active duty.

For these purposes, "military service" means full time active service, as described above, for a period in excess of seven days in any 14-day period. For any service member who has been called to active service or duty since September 11, 2001, to engage in homeland defense against terrorism, his or her days of service since that time will be credited toward that seven-day period, even if they precede the effective date of the California statute [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(b); see also Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.8(c) (persons missing in action considered to be on active service)].

[3] Dependents

Dependents of service members are entitled to many (but not all) of the key benefits of the federal and California statutes. Dependents are entitled to these benefits upon application to a court, unless in the opinion of the court the ability of the dependents to comply with the terms of the obligation, contract, lease, or bailment has not been materially impaired by reason of the military service of the person upon whom the applications are dependent [50 U.S.C. App. § 538; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.5].

§ 501.62 Actions or Proceedings Involving Military Service Members

[1] Tolling of Statutes of Limitation

Statutes of limitation are tolled for personnel on military service. Specifically, the period of military service is not to be included in computing any period to be limited by any law, regulation, or order for the bringing of any action or proceeding in any court, board, bureau, commission, department, or other agency of government by or against any service member or by or against his or her heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns, whether the cause of action or the right or privilege to institute the action or proceeding accrued before or during the period of service [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 526(a); Mil. & Vet. Code § 404(a) (from June 21, 2002, forward)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions .

Under California law, any person violating any provision of Mil. & Vet. Code § 404 is guilty of a misdemeanor [Mil. & Vet. Code § 404(c)]. Federal law does not contain a specific comparable provision.

[2] Court-Ordered Stays in Civil Actions and Proceedings

[a] Stay of Action or Proceeding

At any stage in any action or proceeding in which a service member is involved, either as plaintiff or defendant, during the period of military service or within 90 days after that period, the court may, in its discretion on its own motion, and must on application to it by the service member or some person on his or her behalf, stay the action or proceeding unless, in the opinion of the court, the ability of the service member as plaintiff to prosecute the action or as defendant to conduct his or her defense is not materially affected by reason of his or her military service [50 U.S.C. App. § 522; Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(a)]. For further discussion and forms, see Ch. 136, Continuances .

[b] Automatic Suspension of Contractual Penalties

When an action for compliance with the terms of any contract is stayed, no fine or penalty can accrue by reason of failure to comply with the terms of the contract during the period of the stay. In any case in which a person fails to perform any obligation, if a fine or penalty for the nonperformance is incurred, a court, on terms that are just, may provide relief against the enforcement of that fine or penalty if it appears that the person who would suffer by that fine or penalty was in the military service when the penalty was incurred and that by reason of military service the ability of the person to pay or perform was materially impaired [50 U.S.C. App. § 523; Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(b)].

[c] Stay of Attachment or Garnishment and Stay of Execution of Judgment or Order

In any action or proceeding against a service member, before or during the period of the service, or within 90 days after that period, the court may, in its discretion on its own motion, or must on application to it by the service member or some person on his or her behalf, unless in the opinion of the court the ability of the defendant to comply with the judgment or order entered or sought is not materially affected by reason of his or her military service, (1) vacate or stay any attachment or garnishment of property, money, or debts in the hands of another, whether before or after judgment, and (2) stay the execution of any judgment or order entered against a service member [50 U.S.C. App. § 524; Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(c)]. For further discussion and forms, see Ch. 62, Attachment , Ch. 276, Garnishment , and Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments .

[d] Extended Duration of Stay

Any stay of any action, proceeding, attachment, or execution ordered by any court may, except as otherwise provided, be ordered for the period of military service and 90 days after that period or any part of that period, and subject to terms that are just, including terms with respect to payment in installments of whatever amounts at whatever times the court may fix. If the service member is a codefendant with others, the plaintiff may nevertheless, by leave of court, proceed against the others [50 U.S.C. App. § 525; Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(d)].

[3] Defaults and Default Judgments

[a] Declaration Regarding Defendant's Military Service

In any action or proceeding commenced in any court, if any defendant defaults in any appearance, the plaintiff, before entering judgment, must file in the court a declaration under penalty of perjury setting forth facts showing that the defendant is not in the military service. If unable to file that declaration, the plaintiff must instead file a declaration setting forth either that the defendant is in the service or that the plaintiff is not able to determine whether the defendant is in the service. If a declaration is not filed showing that the defendant is not in the military service, no judgment may be entered without first obtaining an order of court directing that entry, and no order may be made if the defendant is in the military service until after the court appoints an attorney to represent the defendant and protect his or her interest [see [c], below]. The court, on application, must make that appointment [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)(2); Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a)]. For further discussion and forms, see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

[b] Plaintiff's Bond

Unless it appears that the defendant is not in the military service, the court may require, as a condition before judgment is entered, that the plaintiff file a bond approved by the court conditioned to indemnify the defendant, if in the military service, against any loss or damage that he or she may suffer by reason of any judgment, should the judgment be later set aside in whole or in part. The court may make such other and further order or enter that judgment as in its opinion may be necessary to protect these rights of the defendant [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)(3); Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a)].

[c] Appointment of Attorney for Defendant

In any action or proceeding in which a service member is a party, if the service member does not personally appear or is not represented by an authorized attorney, the court may appoint an attorney to represent the service member. In that case a bond may be required and an order made to protect the rights of the service member. However, no attorney appointed under an order to protect a service member has the power to waive any right of the person for whom he or she is appointed or to bind him or her by the attorney's acts [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b)(2),(3); Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(c)]. For further discussion and forms, see Ch. 2, Procedural Guide to Civil Actions , and Ch. 323, Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances .

[d] Relief From Judgment

If any judgment is rendered against any service member in any action or proceeding governed by the federal or California statutes discussed in this section during the period of that member's service or within 30 days (or 60 days, under the federal statute) after that period, and it appears that the service member was prejudiced (or "materially affected," under the federal statute) by reason of his or her military service in making his or her defense, the judgment, on application made by the service member or his or her legal representative not later than 90 days after the termination of the service, may be opened by the court that rendered it, and the defendant or his or her legal representative may be let in to defend, provided the application states a meritorious or legal defense to the action or some part of it. Vacating, setting aside, or reversing any judgment in this manner will not impair any right or title acquired by any bona fide purchaser for value under that judgment [50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g),(h); Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d)]. For further discussion and forms, see Ch. 489, Relief From Judgments and Orders .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
E. Credit Protection for Military Personnel

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.63

§ 501.63 Contracts and Obligations

[1] Interest Rate Ceiling

No obligation or liability bearing interest at a rate in excess of 6 percent per year incurred by a service member before that person's entry into service can bear interest during any part of the period of military service at a rate in excess of 6 percent per year unless, in the opinion of the court, on application by the obligee, the ability of the service member to pay interest on that obligation or liability at a rate in excess of 6 percent per year is not materially affected by reason of that service, in which case the court may make whatever order is in its opinion just. "Interest" includes service charges, renewal charges, fees, or any other charges, except bona fide charges for insurance, in respect of any obligation or liability [50 U.S.C. App. § 527(d); Mil. & Vet. Code § 405]. For additional discussion, and an affirmative defense against enforcement of an obligation bearing interest at a rate in excess of 6 percent, see § 501.302.

[2] Rescission or Termination of Installment Contract; Repossession

Under both the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act and the comparable California legislation, after a service member enters military service, a contract by the service member for either the purchase of real or personal property (including a motor vehicle) or the lease or bailment of such property may not be rescinded or terminated for a breach of terms of the contract occurring before or during that person's military service, nor may the property be repossessed for such a breach without a court order [50 U.S.C. App. § 532(a); see Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(a)]. This relief applies only to a contract for which a deposit or installment has been paid by the servicemember before the servicemember enters military service [50 U.S.C. App. § 532(b), Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(a)]. This provision is designed to protect military service members against repossession, forfeiture of deposits and payments, and termination of installment contracts while they are in active military service. It compels the holder of the obligation to institute a court proceeding before any of these actions can be taken. In such an action, the court may order the repayment of all or part of any prior installments or deposits as a condition of terminating the contract and resuming possession. Instead the court may, on its own motion, or must on application by the service member when the service member's ability to comply with the contract is materially affected by military service, stay the proceedings for a period of time as, in the opinion of the court, justice and equity require; or the court may make other disposition as is equitable to preserve the interests of all parties [50 U.S.C. App. § 532(c); see Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(b)].

There are penalties for repossessing or attempting to repossess property in violation of these requirements. Violators are guilty of a misdemeanor [50 U.S.C. App. § 532(b)(1); Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(c)].

For additional discussion of these requirements and a form for an application (motion) for a stay of proceedings on the ground that a person is on active military service, see § 501.303.

[3] Enforcement of Security Interests

The Servicemembers Relief Act and the comparable California law provisions limit the enforcement of security interests in real or personal property. These protections are available only with respect to an obligation on real or personal property owned by a service member (1) that originated before the period of the service member's military service and (2) for which the service member is still obligated and (3) that is secured by a mortgage, trust deed, or other security in the nature of a mortgage [50 U.S.C. App. § 533(a); see Mil. & Vet. Code § 408(a)]. Security agreements covering goods (such as motor vehicles) under Division 9 of the Commercial Code apparently are "in the nature of a mortgage" in this context.

A sale, foreclosure, or seizure of property for a breach of an obligation described above is not valid if made during, or within 90 days after, the period of the service member's military service, except if made either on a court order granted before the sale, foreclosure, or seizure, with a return made and approved by the court, or pursuant to an enforceable waiver agreement [50 U.S.C. App. § 533(c); Mil. & Vet. Code § 408(c) ("pursuant to an agreement between the parties"); see also 50 U.S.C. § 517 (waiver agreement)]. Violators are guilty of a misdemeanor [50 U.S.C. App. § 533(d)(1); Mil. & Vet. Code § 408(d)].

In an action filed during, or within 90 days after, a service member's period of military service to enforce an obligation described above, the court may, after a hearing and on its own motion, or must, on application by a service member, when the service member's ability to comply with the obligation is materially affected by military service, either stay the proceedings for a period of time as justice and equity require or adjust the obligation to preserve the interests of all parties [50 U.S.C. App. § 533(b); see Mil. & Vet. Code § 408(b)].

Secured transactions are discussed in detail in Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions . For additional discussion of these requirements and a form for an application (motion) for a stay of enforcement of a security interest on the ground that a person is on active military service, see Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions, § 503.113.

[4] General Relief from Contracts and Obligations

[a] Availability of Relief

In addition to the specific types of relief discussed in [1]-[3], above, additional relief of a more general nature also may be available under 50 U.S.C. App. § 591 or Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3, the general relief provisions of the federal and California statutes. These statutes basically authorize courts to grant an extension of any obligation for a period equal to the period of military service or, in the case of installment obligations for the purchase of real property or secured by a real property mortgage or similar instrument, for a period equal to the period of the military service plus a period equal to the remaining installments, or any part of that combined period [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 591(b); Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3(a)]. Relief under this provision is available only for pre-existing obligations, not those entered into during the period of military service. When a court has granted a stay of the obligation, no fine or penalty may accrue during the period the terms and conditions of the stay are complied with by reason of failure to comply with the terms or conditions of the obligation in respect of which the stay was granted [50 U.S.C. App. § 591(c); Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3(b)].

The court is required to hold a hearing on the application prior to granting any relief. For more detailed discussion, and a form for an application requesting relief under these provisions, see § 501.300. For a form asserting these statutes in a pending action or proceeding, see § 501.301.

[b] Court's Discretion

The court has a measure of discretion on whether to grant relief. If, in the opinion of the court, the applicant's ability to comply with the terms of the obligation in question has not been materially affected by reason of the applicant's military service, the court may deny relief [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 591(b); Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3(a)]. The court also is empowered to deny relief if it demonstrated to the court's satisfaction that the obligation in question was transferred or acquired with the intent to delay its enforcement by taking advantages of these provisions. In such a case, the court is required to enter such a judgment or make such an order as might otherwise lawfully have been entered or made, without regard to the provisions authorizing relief [50 U.S.C. App. § 581; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.7].

[c] Relief from Mortgages or Installment Contracts for Purchase of Real Estate

If the obligation is payable under its terms in installments under a contract for the purchase of real estate, or if it is secured by a mortgage (or other instrument in the nature of a mortgage) on real estate, the court may grant a stay of the enforcement of the obligation during the applicant's period of military service and, from the date of termination of the period of military service, or from the date of the application if the application is made after the termination of that service, for a period equal to the period of the remaining life of the installment contract or other instrument plus a period of time equal to the period of military service or any part of that combined period, subject to payment of the balance of principal and accumulated interest due and unpaid at the date of termination of the period of military service (or from the date of application, as the case may be), in equal installments during that combined period at the rate of interest on the unpaid balance that is prescribed in the contract or other instrument evidencing the obligation, for installments paid when due, and subject to such other terms as may be just [50 U.S.C. App. § 591(b)(1); Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3(a)(1)].

[d] Relief From Other Obligations

In the case of any obligation or liability other than those covered under [c], above, the court may grant a stay of the enforcement during the applicant's period of military service and, from the date of termination of the period of military service, or from the date of the application if the application is made after the termination of that service, for a period of time equal to the period of military service or any part of that period, subject to payment of the balance of principal and accumulated interest due and unpaid at the date of termination of the period of military service (or the date of the application, as the case may be), in equal periodic installments during the extended period at such a rate of interest as may be prescribed for the obligation, liability, tax, or assessment, if paid when due, and subject to such other terms as may be just [50 U.S.C. App. § 591(b)(2); Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3(a)(2)].

§ 501.64 Transfers to Take Advantage of Statutes

When in any proceeding to enforce a civil right in any court, it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the court that any interest, property, or contract has been transferred or acquired with the intent to delay the just enforcement of that right by taking advantage of the benefits provided under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act or the comparable California statutes, the court has power to enter any judgment or make any order that might lawfully be entered or made, notwithstanding any contrary provision in the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act or the comparable California statutes [*50 U.S.C. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.65

§ 501.65 Retaliation by Lender, Creditor, or Other Person

It is unlawful for any lender, creditor, credit reporting agency, or other person to take specified retaliatory actions relating to the extension or denial of credit, or the creditworthiness of a service member solely because the service member applied for or received a stay, postponement, or suspension in the payment of any tax, fine, penalty, insurance premium, or other civil obligation or liability [50 U.S.C. App. § 518; Mil. & Vet. Code § 401(a)].

The California statute expressly creates a cause of action for violation of the prohibitions discussed above. Any person violating any of these prohibitions is liable for actual damages and reasonable attorney's fees incurred by the injured party [Mil. & Vet. Code § 401(b)]. The Servicemembers Civil Relief Act, unlike its California counterpart, does not expressly provide for a private right of action for violation of these prohibitions [compare 50 U.S.C. App. § 518 with Mil. & Vet. Code § 401(b)].

In addition to the civil cause of action, the California statute also provides that any person violating the above prohibitions is guilty of a misdemeanor [Mil. & Vet. Code § 401(c)].

For more detailed discussion of the anti-retaliation provisions of these statutes, and a form for a complaint against a party who has violated these prohibitions, see Ch. 129, Consumer Credit Reporting, § 129.150.

§ 501.66 Temporary Debt Relief for Service Members in Iraq and Afghanistan

[1] Service Members Who Qualify for Relief

Relief under Mil. & Vet. Code § 800 et seq. is available to a member of the U.S. military reserve or California national guard called to active duty as a result of the Iraq conflict pursuant to the Authorization for Use of Military Force Against Iraq Resolution of 2002 [Pub. L. No. 107-243] or the Afghanistan conflict pursuant to Presidential Order No. 13239. Such a service member is called a "reservist" in the statutes [Mil. & Vet. Code § 803].

Mil. & Vet. Code § 800 et seq. will not apply to any active duty voluntarily served after the close of the Iraq or Afghanistan conflicts or to any reservist on active duty as part of the Iraq or Afghanistan conflicts before January 1, 2006 [Mil. & Vet. Code § 809].

[2] Option to Defer Payments on Debts

[a] Debts Eligible for Deferred-Payment Option

In addition to any other benefits provided by law and to the extent permitted by federal law, any member of the U.S. military reserve or the California national guard who is called to active duty after February 9, 2005, as a part of the Iraq and Afghanistan conflicts may defer payments on any of the following obligations while serving on active duty [Mil. & Vet. Code § 800(a); see [c], below (relief during deferment period)]:

- An obligation secured by a mortgage or deed of trust.
- Credit-card debt [see Civ. Code § 1747.02 (definition); Ch. 127, Consumer Contracts and Loans].
- Retail installment contract debt [see Civ. Code § 1802.6 (definition); § 501.22[2][a]].
- Retail installment account or revolving account debt [see Civ. Code § 1802.7 (definition); § 501.22[2][c]].

- Up to two loans subject to the Rees-Levering Automobile Sales and Finance Act [see Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.; Ch. 89, Automobiles: Sales and Financing Under the Rees-Levering Act].

- Any payment of property tax or any special assessment of in-lieu property tax imposed on real property [see Ch. 540, Taxes and Assessments] that is assessed on residential property owned by the reservist and used as that reservist's primary place of residence on the date the reservist was ordered to active duty.

During the deferment period, the reservist also may defer payments for leased vehicles without breach of the lease or the foreclosure or repossession of the vehicle [Mil. & Vet. Code § 808; see Veh. Code § 670 (definition of vehicle); Ch. 90, Automobiles: Vehicle Leasing Act].

Mil. & Vet. Code § 800 et seq. apply only to an obligation that was incurred prior to the date a member of the U.S. military reserve or California national guard was called to active duty as part of the Iraq and Afghanistan conflicts [Mil. & Vet. Code § 811].

[b] Procedure to Obtain Deferment

In order for an obligation or liability of a reservist to be subject to the provisions of Mil. & Vet. Code § 800 et seq., the reservist or the reservist's designee must deliver to the lender both of the following [Mil. & Vet. Code § 800(b)]:

- A letter signed by the reservist, under penalty of perjury, requesting a deferment of financial obligations.

- If required by a financial institution, proof that the reservist's employer does not provide continuing income to the reservist while the reservist is on active military duty, including the reservist's military pay, of more than 90 percent of the reservist's monthly salary and wage income earned before the call to active duty.

On request of the reservist or the reservist's dependent or designee and within five working days of that request, if applicable, the employer of a reservist must furnish the letter or other comparable evidence showing that the employer's compensation policy does not provide continuing income to the reservist, including the reservist's military pay, of more than 90 percent of the reservist's monthly salary and wage income earned before the call to active duty [Mil. & Vet. Code § 800(c)].

[c] Relief During Deferment Period

The deferment period on financial obligations will be the lesser of 180 days or the period of active duty plus 60 calendar days and will apply only to those payments due subsequent to the notice provided to a lender by the reservist or reservist's designee [Mil. & Vet. Code § 800(d)].

If a lender defers payments on an open-end credit obligation [see § 501.22[3][b]], the lender may restrict the availability of additional credit with respect to that obligation during the term of the deferment [Mil. & Vet. Code § 800(f)].

If a lender defers payments on a closed-end credit obligation [see § 501.22[3][a]] or an open-end credit obligation with a maturity date, the lender must extend the term of the obligation by the number of months the obligation was deferred [Mil. & Vet. Code § 800(e)]. If a lender defers payments for a leased vehicle, the lender must extend the term of the lease by the number of months the lease was deferred [Mil. & Vet. Code § 808].

During the deferment period, the reservist may defer the payment of principal and interest on the specified obligations. No penalties may be imposed on the nonpayment of principal or interest during this period. No interest may be charged or accumulated on the principal or interest on which the payment was delayed. No foreclosure or repossession of property on which payment has been deferred may take place during the period [Mil. & Vet. Code § 804].

[d] Effect on Holder in Due Course

When a financial obligation covered by Mil. & Vet. Code § 800 et seq. is sold, any requirement to defer payments as specified in those code sections is transferred to the purchaser of the obligation [Mil. & Vet. Code § 810].

[e] No Adverse Effect on Creditworthiness

A stay, postponement, or suspension under Mil. & Vet. Code § 800 et seq. of the payment of any tax, fine, penalty, insurance premium, or other civil obligation or liability of a person in military service may not provide the basis for affecting credit ratings, denial or revocation of credit, or a change by the lender in the terms of an existing credit arrangement [Mil. & Vet. Code § 805].

[3] Continuation of Credit Disability Insurance

The holder of a loan or retail installment sales contract with respect to which the debtor has purchased prepaid credit disability insurance [see Ch. 127, Consumer Contracts and Loans] must give notice to the debtor, not less than 30 days before the expiration date of the insurance, that the debtor will not be protected during the period between that expiration date and the deferred maturity date of the loan or contract unless the insurance is extended. The debtor, at the debtor's option, may direct the holder to add the amount of the additional premium to the unpaid balance of the loan or contract [Mil. & Vet. Code § 807(a)].

The holder of an open-ended loan or retail installment account with respect to which the debtor has purchased credit disability insurance with premiums payable monthly together with the installment payments on the loan or the account must give notice to the debtor that the debtor will not be protected by the insurance during the deferment period specified in [2], above, unless the debtor elects to continue payment of premiums during that period. The debtor, at the debtor's option, may direct the holder to add the amount of those premiums to the unpaid balance of the account [Mil. & Vet. Code § 807(b)].

[1] Who Qualifies for Relief

The California Military Families Financial Relief Act of 2005 [Mil. & Vet. Code § 143 or § 146, or into active federal service by the President under 10 U.S.C. § 32, as well as for reservists of the U.S. military reserve who have been called to full-time active duty [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 820(a)].

The relief will relate to a service member's period of "military service," meaning full-time active state service or full-time active federal service, or full-time active duty of a reservist, for a period of 30 consecutive days [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 820(a)].

[2] Relief Under Retail Installment Contracts

[a] Termination of Cell Phone Contract Without Penalty

Any service member who is in military service [see [1], above], or any spouse or legal dependent of that service member, may terminate, without penalty, a mobile telephony services contract (that is, a cell phone contract) that meets both of the following requirements [Mil. & Vet. Code § 823(a)]:

- It was entered into on or after January 1, 2006.

- It was executed by or on behalf of the service member, or by any spouse or legal dependent of the service member.

Termination of the contract will not be effective until both of the following occur [Mil. & Vet. Code § 823(b)]:

- Thirty days have passed after the service member or the spouse or legal dependent gave notice by certified mail, return receipt requested, of the intention to terminate the contract, and provided a copy of the service member's activation or deployment order and any other information that substantiates the duration of the service member's military service.

- The cell phone has been returned to the custody or control of the company that provides service under the contract, or the service member or the spouse or legal dependent has agreed in writing to return the cell phone as soon as practicable after the military service is completed. This requirement does not apply if the service member, or the spouse or legal dependent of the service member, owns the cell phone.

[b] Equal-Payments Plan for Debt Remaining After Termination of Vehicle Lease

Beginning January 1, 2006, any service member who terminates a motor vehicle lease pursuant to the federal Servicemembers Civil Relief Act must be allowed by the lessor to make payment of any arrearages and other obligations that are due and unpaid at the time of termination of the lease in equal installments over a period equal to at least the period of military service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 826].

[1] Disclosures

Over-limit fees were not required to be classified as "finance charge" in disclosure under Truth in Lending Act (15 U.S.C. § 1605(a)); Regulation Z (12 C.F.R. § 226.4(c)(2)), which specifically excludes over-limit fees from definition of "finance charge," is not unreasonable interpretation of § 1605(a). Household Credit Servs. v. Pfennig (2004) 541 U.S. 232, 235, 124 S. Ct. 1741, 158 L. Ed. 2d 450

Assignment to seller of unearned premiums on insurance policy covering automobile purchased under retail installment contract does not constitute "security interest" required to be disclosed under 15 U.S.C. § 1638(a). Anderson Bros. Ford v. Valencia (1981) 452 U.S. 205, 211-222, 101 S. Ct. 2266, 68 L. Ed. 2d 783

Creditor's undisclosed intent to act inconsistently with its disclosures is irrelevant in determining sufficiency of those disclosures under Regulation Z sections mandating general disclosure requirements, content of initial disclosure statement, and subsequent disclosure requirements [see 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.5, 226.6, 226.9]. *Hauk v. Purchase price of insurance is not required to be disclosed under Truth in Lending Act (15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.) when neither car dealer nor bank financed insurance purchase even though purchase of insurance was a prerequisite for buyer to take possession of car. Boncyk v. Cavanaugh Motors (9th Cir. 1982) 673 F.2d 256, 260-261

[2] Purpose and Application of Credit Disclosure Laws

[a] Purpose

Retail Installment Sales Act, constituting a broad legislative approval of the credit sale principle, is an exception to the usury laws and a recognition that, whatever the rational weakness of the distinction on which it is based, significant practical considerations justify the regulation of credit sales by a means more flexible than that provided by the usury laws. Boerner v. Colwell Co. (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 37, 46, 145 Cal. Rptr. 380, 577 P.2d 200

RISA is to be construed liberally to protect consumers, with a view toward expanding, rather than limiting, its coverage. Vasquez v. Superior Court (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 800, 823, 94 Cal. Rptr. 796, 484 P.2d 964

[b] Transactions Covered

Finance charges on retail installment accounts are subject to time-price doctrine and not subject to usury laws; RISA limits on finance charges were not a violation of usury limits of California Constitution. Fox v. Federated Dep't Stores, Inc. (1979) 94 Cal. App. 3d 867, 880-882, 156 Cal. Rptr. 893

[c] Transactions Not Covered

Automobile insurance payment plan that was actually policy for one-month term renewable for successive terms on payment of monthly premium plus service charge did not constitute consumer credit transaction and, therefore, was not subject to either RISA or TILA. Crawford v. Framers Group, Inc. (l984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 1164, 1168-1170, 207 Cal. Rptr. 155

[3] Remedies

[a] In General

TILA claims are arbitrable; nothing in TILA evinces a Congressional intention to preclude waiver of judicial remedies for the statutory rights under the Act. Green Tree Financial Corp.-Ala. v. Randolph (2000) 531 U.S. 79

Fact that arbitration agreement which is silent with respect to costs and fees may require consumer to bear prohibitive arbitration costs to pursues a TILA claim in arbitral forum, in effect rendering it impossible for the consumer to vindicate his or her statutory rights, does not prohibit arbitration; party seeking to resist arbitraiton bears the burden of showing likelihood of incurring costs that would be prohibitively expensive. Green Tree Financial Corp.-Ala. v. Randolph (2000) 531 U.S. 79, 148 L. Ed.2d 373, 383-384, 121 S. Ct. 513

Civ. Code § 1804.3(b) requires deeds of trust taken by carpet seller to be voided when carpets were not attached to purchasers' real property; when those deeds of trust had been sold to finance companies, trial court's failure to require carpet seller to make restitution to purchasers, to repurchase contracts, or to pay any delinquencies necessary to avoid foreclosure was abuse of discretion. People v. Custom Craft Carpets, Inc. (l984)159 Cal. App. 3d 676, 685-686, 206 Cal. Rptr. 12

Civ. Code § 1811.1, which deems a defendant who tenders the amount due on a contract or installment account to be the prevailing party in any action on a contract or installment account governed by RISA, requires defendant to tender amount due prior to commencement of litigation. Joseph Magnin Co. v. Schmidt (1978) 89 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 7, 152 Cal. Rptr. 523

[b] Rescission Under Truth in Lending Act

Borrower may not assert right to rescind under 15 U.S.C. § 1635(f) as affirmative defense in collection action brought by lender more than three years after consummation of transaction; because statute expressly extinguishes right of rescission at end of three-year period, it is not a statute of limitations and right to rescind cannot be asserted as recoupment defense beyond expiration period. Beach v. Ocwen Federal Bank (1998) 523 U.S. 410, 417-419, 118 S.

Ct. 1408, 140 L. Ed. 2d 566

Technical violation (failure to specify date of expiration of three-day rescission period, for example) allows borrowers to rescind entire transaction within three years after date of loan. Semar v. Platte Valley Federal S. & L. Ass'n. (9th Cir. 1986) 791 F.2d 699, 703

Court is not permitted to deny rescission to unsympathetic borrowers or borrowers who do not need protection of TILA and is not permitted to weigh equities; lender is entitled to require weighing of equities only by assertion of defense under 15 U.S.C. § 1604(c). Semar v. Platte Valley Federal S. & L. Ass'n. (9th Cir. 1986) 791 F.2d 699, 704-705

If only 10 percent of loan proceeds were used for business capital and lender had treated loan as primarily for personal purposes by issuing TILA disclosures, finding that loan was primarily for personal purposes was not clearly erroneous. Semar v. Platte Valley Federal S. & L. Ass'n. (9th Cir. 1986) 791 F.2d 699, 704 n.11

On rescission in accordance with 15 U.S.C. § 1635(b), borrower is required to return loan amount less sum of (1) all payments previously made on loan, (2) loan expenses (closing charges), (3) civil penalty ($1,000), and (4) any attorney's fees awarded; lender is not entitled to finance charge; court is not empowered to require borrower to pay finance charge in contravention of 15 U.S.C. § 1635(b). Semar v. Platte Valley Federal S. & L. Ass'n. (9th Cir. 1986) 791 F.2d 699, 704-705

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is a general form for use by a buyer under a retail installment contract [see Civ. Code § 1802.6; see also Civ. Code § 1802.5 ("retail installment sale")] to recover the amount of finance, delinquency, collection, extension, deferral, or refinance charges he or she paid in connection with that contract, when the seller violated one or more of the provisions of RISA [see Civ. Code § 1812.7, discussed in § 501.50[2]; see also § 501.53[4][b] (statue of limitation)]. For examples of allegations of violations of specific provisions of RISA, see §§ 501.104 -501.109.

When the violation alleged is a willful violation of a provision of RISA in connection with the imposition, computation, or disclosure of a finance charge on a consolidated total of two or more contracts, counsel will want to combine the complaint with the one set forth in § 501.101[1], to recover three times the amount of the finance or other charges contracted for or received [see Civ. Code § 1812.9].

This form may also be used, with appropriate modifications, as a cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10] filed by the buyer in a seller's action to recover money allegedly due under the contract.

[3] Accompanying Affidavit

Unless a complaint for RISA remedies is verified and shows that the action is commenced in a proper place for trial under Civ. Code § 1812.10, counsel must file concurrently with the complaint an affidavit, or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5], showing that the action is being commenced in a proper place for the trial of the action [Civ. Code § 1812.10(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a); see § 501.102 (form of affidavit) and discussions in [6] and [7], below].

[4] Allegations

The complaint at [1], above alleges:

- Plaintiff's capacity and residence (Paragraph 1).
- Defendant's capacity and residence, and status as a retail seller [see Civ. Code § 1802.3] (Paragraph 2).
- Any assignment of the contract (Optional Paragraph 3).
- Execution of a retail installment contract (alternative Paragraphs 4), for the purchase of goods or services primarily for personal, family, or household purposes (Paragraph 5) [see Civ. Code §§ 1801.6, 1802.1, 1802.2, 1802.5, 1802.6].
- A violation of one of the provisions of RISA (Paragraph 6), which bars defendant from recovering finance charges or delinquency, collection, extension, deferral, or refinance charges under the contract.
- Plaintiff's entitlement to recover from defendant the total amount of any charges previously paid by plaintiff [Civ. Code § 1812.7] (Paragraph 7).
- Plaintiff's entitlement to reasonable attorney's fees and costs incurred in bringing the action [Civ. Code § 1811.1] (Paragraph 8).

[5] Right to Recover Finance Charges Paid Under Contract Violating RISA

When a seller fails to comply with the provisions of RISA, the seller, and any person who acquires a contract or installment account with knowledge of the noncompliance, is barred from recovering any finance charge or any delinquency, collecting, extending, deferring, or refinancing any charge imposed in connection with that contract or installment account. In addition, the buyer has a right to recover from the seller an amount equal to any charges paid by the buyer [Civ. Code § 1812.7].

[6] Venue in Action Brought Under RISA

In any action brought on a contract or installment account subject to RISA, the plaintiff must, concurrently with the filing of the complaint, file an affidavit stating facts showing that the action has been commenced in a proper place for trial of the action under Civ. Code § 1812.10. In lieu of an affidavit, those facts may be stated in a verified complaint [Civ. Code § 1812.10(c)] or in a declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]. For a further discussion of the venue requirements of RISA and a form of declaration of proper venue, see § 501.102.

[7] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

Moreover, if the plaintiff states in his or her complaint facts showing that the action has been commenced in a proper place for trial of the action, and no affidavit or declaration is filed stating those facts, the complaint must be verified [see Civ. Code § 1812.10(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a)].

[Verification, if desired. See § 501.100[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use by a buyer to recover the statutory penalty for the seller's willful violations of the provisions of RISA in connection with the imposition, computation, or disclosure of or relating to finance charges on a consolidated total of two or more retail installment contracts [see Civ. Code § 1812.9, discussed in §§ 501.50[2], [3], 501.51[1][a]; see also § 501.53[4][b] (statue of limitation)].

Willful violations of other provisions of RISA are not subject to the statutory penalty imposed by Civ. Code § 1812.9 (three times the amount of the finance charge), but do subject the seller or holder to liability under Civ. Code § 1812.7 [see § 501.100]. This form may be combined with the complaint set forth in § 501.100 if there are additional or nonwillful violations of RISA [see Civ. Code § 1812.7].

The complaint at [1], above, also may be used, with appropriate modifications, as a cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10] in an action brought by the seller to recover amounts allegedly due under the contract.

[3] Accompanying Affidavit

Unless a complaint for RISA remedies is verified and shows that the action is commenced in a proper place for trial under Civ. Code § 1812.10, counsel must file concurrently with the complaint an affidavit, or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5], showing that the action is being commenced in a proper place for the trial of the action [Civ. Code § 1812.10(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a); see § 501.102 (form of affidavit)].

[4] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges the following:

- That the goods or services purchased under a retail installment contract were primarily for personal, family, or household purposes (Paragraph 4) [see Civ. Code §§ 1802.1, 1802.2, 1802.5, 1802.6].

- The terms of the contract that make it subject to Civ. Code § 1808.1 et seq. (Paragraph 5) [Civ. Code § 1812.9].

- A subsequent purchase of additional goods or services by plaintiff (Paragraph 6) [see Civ. Code §§ 1808.1-1808.3 (add-on sales provisions, discussed in §§ 501.22[2][b], 501.37)].

- The defendant's violation of the provisions of RISA in connection with the imposition, computation, or disclosure of or relating to a finance charge on the consolidated total of two or more contracts under the provisions of Civ. Code § 1808.1 et seq. (Paragraph 7) [see Civ. Code § 1812.9, § 501.50[3]].

- That the violation was willful (Paragraph 8) [Civ. Code § 1812.9];

- That the plaintiff is entitled to recover the statutory penalty equal to three times the amount of all finance, delinquency, collection, extension, deferral, and refinance charges imposed, contracted for, or received by the defendant on the consolidated total (Paragraph 9) [see Civ. Code § 1812.9].

- That the defendant is barred from recovering any of those charges (Paragraph 10) [Civ. Code § 1812.9].

- That the plaintiff is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees and costs incurred in bringing the action (Paragraph 11) [Civ. Code § 1811.1].

§ 501.102 Declaration of Proper Venue for Action on Retail Installment Sale [Civ. Code § 1812.10; Code Civ. Proc. § 396a]

[1] FORM Declaration of Proper Venue for Action on Retail Installment Sale [Civ. Code § 1812.10; Code Civ. Proc. § 396a]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name], Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	DECLARATION OF _____ [name]

I _____ [name], declare:

I am the plaintiff in the above-entitled action which is based on a retail installment _____ [contract or other as appropriate account] subject to the provisions of Civil Code Section 1812.10. _____ [Set forth facts showing that the action is being commenced in a county in which the contract was in fact signed by the buyer, in which the buyer resided at the time the contract was entered into, in which the buyer resides at the commencement of the action, or in which the goods purchased have been so affixed to real property as to become a part thereof].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.
Dated: _____.

_____ [signature]

[2] Use of Form

The declaration in [1], above, satisfies Civ. Code § 1812.10 and Code Civ. Proc. § 396a, which require a plaintiff in an action under RISA at the time the complaint is filed, if that complaint is not verified and does not allege compliance with the venue provisions of Civ. Code § 1812.10 and Code Civ. Proc. § 396a. The declaration must set forth facts showing that the action is commenced in the proper court [see discussion at [3], below]. Those facts also may be set forth in an affidavit, as opposed to a declaration under penalty of perjury, or in the verified complaint [Civ. Code § 1812.10(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a)].

For an affidavit, see Ch. 15, Affidavits, Certificates, and Declarations .

For alternative forms for captions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions .

[3] Venue

An action on a contract or account subject to the provisions of RISA must be tried in one of the following counties [Civ. Code § 1812.10(a)]:

- The county where the contract was in fact signed by the buyer.
- The county where the buyer resided at the time the contract was entered into.
- The county where the buyer resides at the commencement of the action.
- The county in which the goods purchased have been so affixed to real property as to become a part thereof.

[4] Requirement That Affidavit Be Filed

Concurrently with the filing of the complaint the plaintiff must file an affidavit (or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) stating facts showing that the action has been commenced in a proper county [see discussion in [3], above]. In addition, a copy of the declaration must be served on the defendant at the time the summons is served. The facts establishing proper venue may be stated in a verified complaint, but cannot be stated on information or belief. If the plaintiff fails to file the affidavit or state facts in a verified complaint (or declaration) as required, there can be no further proceedings and the court must, on its own motion or on the motion of any party, dismiss the action without prejudice. However, on any terms that are just, the court has discretion to permit late filing of the affidavit (or declaration) [Civ. Code § 1812.10(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a); see [5], below].

[5] Late Filing of Affidavit

On any terms that are just, the court may permit the affidavit (or declaration) to be filed subsequent to the filing of the complaint. A copy of the affidavit must be served on the defendant. Then, the time to answer or otherwise plead dates from that service [Civ. Code § 1812.10(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a)].

[1] FORM Allegation for Use in RISA Complaint--Seller Violated Single Document Rule [Civ. Code § 1803.2]

Defendant(s) _____ [name(s)] _____ [has or other as appropriate have] failed to comply with the provisions of Civil Code Section 1803.2 in connection with the above-described retail installment contract, a copy of which is attached as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference, in that defendant(s) failed to include within a single document all of the terms of the agreement between plaintiff and defendant(s) with respect to the cost and terms of payment for the _____ [goods or other as appropriate services] purchased according to the contract, as required by that section. [The following terms were omitted from the agreement: _____ (specify)].

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint or cross complaint to recover the amount of finance or other charges imposed and paid in connection with a retail installment contract when the seller has violated the provisions of RISA [see Civ. Code § 1812.7]. The allegation may be inserted in lieu of Paragraph 6 of the complaint at § 501.100[1]. It alleges that defendant(s) failed to include all of the terms of the agreement between the parties with respect to the cost and terms of payment for goods and services within a single document, as is required by RISA [see Civ. Code § 1803.2, discussed in § 501.31[6]].

With appropriate modifications, this form the form may also be used as an affirmative defense in a seller's action against the buyer to recover finance or other charges imposed pursuant to the contract.

For allegations of violations of other provisions of RISA, see §§ 501.105 -501.109.

[1] FORM Allegation for Use in RISA Complaint--Failure to Disclose All Required Information [Civ. Code §§ 1803.2, 1803.3, 1807.2, 1808.3, 1810.1, 1810.3]

Defendant(s) _____ [name(s)] _____ [has or other as appropriate have] failed to comply with the provisions of _____ [specify the appropriate disclosure provision of the Civil Code which defendant(s) have violated, e.g., Civil Code Section 1803.2(c)] in connection with the above-described _____ [retail installment contract or other as appropriate retail installment account or other as appropriate refinancing agreement or other as appropriate], a copy of which is attached to this complaint as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference, in that _____ [set forth specific facts showing a violation of the specified disclosure provision, e.g., the contract contains a finance charge which is computed on the precomputed basis, as defined by Civil Code Section 1802.21, and defendant(s) failed to include in the contract a notice concerning plaintiff's right to prepay the amount due under the contract, as required by Civil Code Section 1803.2(c)].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is an allegation for use in a complaint or cross complaint to recover the amount of finance or other charges imposed and paid in connection with a retail installment contract or account when the seller has violated the provisions of RISA [see Civ. Code § 1812.7]. The allegation may be inserted in lieu of Paragraph 6 of the form of complaint in § 501.100[1]. It alleges that defendant(s) failed to disclose information required by RISA.

The allegation may also be used, with appropriate modifications, as an affirmative defense by the buyer to a seller's action to recover finance or other charges imposed under the contract.

For examples of allegations of violations of other provisions of RISA, see §§ 501.104, 501.106 -501.109.

[3] Disclosure Requirements of RISA

RISA contains detailed provisions setting forth the information that must be disclosed in various types of retail installment sales transactions. This allegation contains only one of many possible violations of these provisions. The act has separate disclosure provisions for retail installment contracts [Civ. Code §§ 1803.2-1803.8, discussed in § 501.31], refinancing agreements [Civ. Code § 1807.2, discussed in § 501.36], and add-on sales contracts [Civ. Code §§ 1810.1-1810.3, discussed in § 501.37]. For discussion of other restrictions and disclosure requirements, see §§ 501.33 -501.35 (restrictions and rules regarding payment) and § 501.38 (retail installment accounts).

[The following portions of the contract were left blank at the time defendant(s) obtained plaintiff's signature thereto: _____ (specify).]

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint or cross complaint to recover the amount of finance or other charges imposed and paid in connection with a retail installment contract when the seller has violated the provisions of RISA [see Civ. Code § 1812.7]. The allegation may be inserted in lieu of Paragraph 6 of the complaint in § 501.100[1]. It alleges that defendant(s) obtained plaintiff's signature to the contract when it contained blank spaces to be filled in after it was signed, in violation of RISA [*see Civ. [2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, for use in a complaint or cross complaint to recover the amount of finance or other charges imposed on and paid by the buyer in connection with a retail installment contract when the seller has violated the provisions of RISA [see Civ. Code § 1812.7]. The allegation may be inserted in lieu of Paragraph 6 of the form of complaint at § 501.100[1]. It alleges that defendant(s) failed to deliver to plaintiff a legible copy of the contract at the time of obtaining the plaintiff's signature, as required by RISA [see Civ. Code § 1803.7, discussed in § 501.31[7]].

The buyer may also use this allegation, with appropriate modifications, as an affirmative defense to a seller's action for recovery of finance charges or other charges imposed pursuant to the contract.

For examples of allegations of violations of other provisions of RISA, see §§ 501.104, 501.106, 501.108 -501.109.

[3] Seller's Obligation to Provide Buyer With Copy of Contract

The seller must deliver to the buyer at the time the buyer signs the contract a legible copy of the contract or of any other document which the seller has requested or required the buyer to sign, and which the buyer has signed, during the contract negotiation. In addition to the civil and criminal penalties provided for in Civ. Code §§ 1812.6-1812.9, a buyer is obligated to pay only the cash price of the contract until the seller delivers these documents to the buyer [Civ. Code § 1803.7, see discussions in § 501.31[7] and [8]].

[1] FORM Allegation for Use in RISA Complaint--Inclusion of Prohibited Provision in Contract [Civ. Code §§ 1804.1, 1804.4]

Defendant(s) _____ [name(s)] _____ [has or other as appropriate have] violated the provisions of _____ [specify applicable subdivision which has been violated, e.g., Subdivision (b) of Civil Code Section 1804.1] in connection with the above-described retail installment contract, a copy of which is attached to this complaint as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference, in that the contract provides that _____ [describe the contractual provision which violates Civ. Code § 1804.1, e.g., in the absence of plaintiff's default in the performance of any of his/her contractual obligations, the defendant(s) may accelerate the maturity of any part or all of the amount owing under the contract]. [In accordance with Civil Code Section 1804.4, the above-described contractual provision is void and unenforceable.]

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, is for use in a complaint or cross complaint to recover the amount of finance or other charges imposed on and paid by the buyer in connection with a retail installment contract when the seller has violated the provisions of RISA [see Civ. Code § 1812.7]. The allegation may be inserted in lieu of Paragraph 6 of the form of complaint at § 501.100[1]. It alleges that defendant(s) inserted into the contract a provision which is prohibited by RISA [see discussion in [3], below].

The buyer may also use this allegation, with appropriate modifications, as an affirmative defense to an action by the seller to enforce the illegal contractual provision or to recover finance charges or other charges imposed pursuant to the contract.

For examples of allegations of violations of other provisions of RISA, see §§ 501.104 -501.107, 501.109.

[3] Prohibited Contractual Provisions

RISA prohibits sellers from inserting certain types of provisions into retail installment contracts. The provision contained in this allegation is only one of many types of contractual provisions prohibited by RISA. The types of provisions prohibited by RISA are set forth in Civ. Code §§ 1803.10, 1804.1-1804.3, and 1812.20, and discussed in § 501.33. A contract provision proscribed by RISA is void but does not otherwise affect the validity of the contract [Civ. Code § 1804.4]. Inclusion of a prohibited provision in a contract constitutes a failure to comply with RISA, thus subjecting the seller or holder to liability under the penalty provisions of RISA [see Civ. Code §§ 1812.6-1812.9, discussed in § 501.51[2], [3]].

§ 501.109 Allegation for Use in RISA Complaint--Excessive Finance Charge Imposed [Civ. Code §§ 1805.1, 1810.2]

[1] FORM Allegation for Use in RISA Complaint--Excessive Finance Charge Imposed [Civ. Code §§ 1805.1, 1810.2]

Defendant(s) _____ [name(s)] _____ [has or other as appropriate have] violated the provisions of Civil Code Section _____ [1805.1 or other as appropriate 1810.2] in connection with the above-described _____ [retail installment contract or other as appropriate retail installment account or other as appropriate refinancing agreement or other as appropriate], a copy of which is attached to this complaint as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference, in that the _____ [contract or other as appropriate account or other as appropriate agreement] provides for the payment by plaintiff of a finance charge in the sum of $_____, over a period extending from _____ [date] to _____ [date]. [This finance charge exceeds the maximum amount permitted to be charged in a _____ (retail installment contract or other as appropriate retail installment account or other as appropriate refinancing agreement or other as appropriate) under Civil Code Section _____ (1805.1 or other as appropriate 1810.2).]

[2] Use of Form

The allegation in [1], above, for use in a complaint or cross complaint to recover the amount of finance or other charges imposed on and paid by the buyer in connection with a retail installment contract or account when the seller has violated the provisions of RISA [see Civ. Code § 1812.7]. This allegation may be inserted in lieu of Paragraph 6 of the form of complaint at § 501.100[1]. It alleges that the contract or account provides for payment by the buyer of a finance charge which exceeds the maximum amount permissible under RISA [see Civ. Code §§ 1805.1, 1810.2].

A provision in a retail installment contract or account for a finance charge which exceeds the maximum amount permitted by Civ. Code § 1805.1 or 1810.2 is a failure to comply with RISA which bars the seller or holder from recovering any finance charge whatsoever in connection with the contract or account [see Civ. Code § 1812.7]. For a more detailed discussion of finance charge limitations under RISA, see §§ 501.34 (retail installment contracts) and 501.38[9] (retail installment accounts).

The buyer may use this allegation, with appropriate modifications, as an affirmative defense to the seller's action to collect finance charges imposed pursuant to the contract or account.

For examples of allegations of violations of other provisions of RISA, see §§ 501.104 -501.108.

§ 501.120 Affirmative Defense to Creditor's Action Against Cosigner on Consumer Credit Contract-Failure to Comply With Cosigner Liability Notice Requirements [Civ. Code § 1799.95; see Civ. Code §§ 1799.90-1799.99]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense to Creditor's Action Against Cosigner on Consumer Credit Contract-Failure to Comply With Cosigner Liability Notice Requirements [Civ. Code § 1799.95; see Civ. Code §§ 1799.90-1799.99]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES:

1. The consumer credit contract on which this action is based is _____ [specify type of account described at Civ. Code § 1799.90 or account that does not qualify for exceptions of Civ. Code § 1799.91(c) or Civ. Code § 1799.99, e.g., a retail installment account as defined in Civil Code Section 1802.7] [and is written in _____ (specify language other than English or Spanish)].

2. Defendant is not now and was not at the time he/she signed the _____ [application or other as appropriate agreement] married to _____ [name], the primary obligor. Defendant did not in fact receive any money, property, or services which are the subject matter of the consumer credit contract.

[EITHER, if transaction is not one which could qualify for any of the exceptions set forth in Civ. Code § 1799.91(c)]

3. Defendant did not receive [a _____ (specify language other than English or Spanish) translation of] the notice required by Civil Code Section 1799.91 [prior to becoming obligated on the consumer credit contract].

[OR, if action is on open-end credit subject to Regulation Z or to allegedly joint applicants but notices or issuance of a credit device did not comply with Civ. Code § 1799.91(c), use as many of the sentences below as are applicable]

3. [Defendant was not a joint applicant, but only provided credit information to plaintiff and signed the _____ (application or other as appropriate agreement) after _____ (name), the original sole applicant and primary obligor, failed to qualify for credit in his/her name alone.] [Plaintiff's _____ (application or other as appropriate agreement) did not contain the clear and conspicuous statement required by Section 1799.91(c) of the Civil Code to the effect that each applicant would have the right to use the open-end credit plan to the extent of the credit limit established by plaintiff and would be liable for all amounts extended under the plan to any joint applicant.] [Although plaintiff normally issues a credit _____ (card or other as appropriate device) to its borrowers in order to allow them to obtain credit under this open-end credit plan, plaintiff did not issue any credit _____ (card or other as appropriate device) to this defendant.]

[OR, if action is on credit subject to 12 C.F.R. § 227.14, 12 C.F.R. § 535.3, or 16 C.F.R. § 444.3 but notice did not comply with applicable regulation]

3. Plaintiff did not provide defendant with the notice required by _____ [Section 227.14 of Title 12 of the Code of Federal Regulations or other as appropriate Section 535.3 of Title 12 of the Code of Federal Regulations or other as appropriate Section 444.3 of Title 16 of the Code of Federal Regulations] [or with an accurate Spanish translation of that notice] [in the manner required by that regulation].

[CONTINUE]

4. For the foregoing reasons, plaintiff's action [against this defendant] is precluded by Section _____ [1799.95 or other as appropriate 1799.99] of the Civil Code.

[2] Use of Form

The affirmative defense in [1], above, is for use by a cosigner who did not receive the notice required by Civ. Code § 1799.91 or the notice required by any of the federal regulations set forth in Civ. Code § 1799.99 in action by the creditor against that cosigner or to enforce any security. The types of accounts for which the cosigner notice is required are discussed in § 501.30[1]. The form in [1], above, may be modified to allege the failure to deliver to the cosigner copies of any of the documents evidencing the obligation or any security interest taken [see Civ. Code § 1799.93(a)]. If the complaint does not allege that the cosigner actually received money, property, or services which were the subject of the contract or that the cosigner is married to the person who did receive the consideration, the foregoing form may be used as a demurrer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30; see Ch. 206, Demurrersn and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings].

[3] Allegations

The affirmative defense in [1], above, alleges the following:

- That the credit transaction was of the type governed by Civ. Code §§ 1799.90-1799.99 (Paragraph 1) [see Civ. Code §§ 1799.90, 1799.99].

- That the defendant was not married to the primary obligor and did not receive any of the subject matter of the transaction (Paragraph 2) [see Civ. Code § 1799.91(a)].

- If appropriate, that the plaintiff was required to comply with Civ. Code § 1799.91(a) and (b) (first alternative Paragraph 3).

- If appropriate, that the plaintiff failed to bring itself within the exceptions of Civ. Code § 1799.91(c) by selecting allegations which describe the noncompliance involved (second alternative Paragraph 3.).

- If true, that the plaintiff failed to comply with whichever of the federal regulations applied to it by selecting allegations which describe the particular noncompliance involved (third alternative Paragraph 3.) [see Civ. Code § 1799.99(b)].

7. Plaintiff has demanded that defendant pay the sum due under the _____ [contract or other as appropriate agreement or other as appropriate] but defendant failed and refused, and continues to fail and refuse, to pay all or any part of that sum. [When appropriate, add: As a result of that failure, plaintiff has exercised his/her right under the _____ (retail installment contract or other as appropriate agreement establishing the retail installment account) to declare the _____ (amount unpaid on the deferred payment price or other as appropriate outstanding balance as appropriate) immediately due and payable, which _____ (amount unpaid or other as appropriate outstanding balance as appropriate) is the sum of $_____.]

[8. When contract allows seller to declare entire indebtedness immediately due and payable if buyer defaults, add: By reason of defendant's default as alleged above and plaintiff's declaring the _____ (amount unpaid on the deferred payment price or other as appropriate outstanding balance as appropriate) immediately due and payable, defendant is indebted to plaintiff in the sum of $_____, which sum is computed after extending to defendant all credits to which he/she is entitled.]

9. The retail installment _____ [contract or other as appropriate account] involved herein is subject to the provisions of the Retail Installment Sales Act, Civil Code Section 1801 et seq. Under Civil Code Section 1801 et seq., plaintiff is entitled to recover reasonable attorney's fees and costs incurred, and to be incurred, in this action on the _____ [contract or other as appropriate account], in an amount to be determined by the court.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant as follows:

1. For the sum of $_____, with interest thereon from _____ [date], at _____ percent per year;

2. For attorney's fees in an amount to be determined by the court;

3. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [firm name, if any]

By: _____ [signature]

_____ [typed name]

Attorney for Plaintiff

[Verification, if desired. See § 501.100[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use by a seller in an action to recover the balance due under a retail installment contract or account subject to the provisions of RISA when the buyer has defaulted in making payments under the contract or account [see Civ. Code § 1812.2, discussed in § 501.55[1]].

[3] Accompanying Affidavit

Plaintiff must either file, concurrently with the complaint, an affidavit, or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5], showing that the action is being commenced in a proper place for the trial of the action [see § 501.102 for a form of declaration] or verify the complaint, which must show that the action is commenced in a proper place for trial under Civ. Code § 1812.10 [Civ. Code § 1812.10(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a)]. The second alterative of Paragraph 3 may be used to allege those facts, which are set forth in Civ. Code § 1812.10, discussed in § 501.102[4] and [5]. In some cases, Paragraph 2 will, or could be modified to, set forth the facts showing proper court [see also [8], below].

[4] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges the following:

- Capacity and residence of plaintiff and defendant (Paragraphs 1, 2);

- Facts showing the action was commenced in a proper place, or the filing of a declaration so stating [Civ. Code § 1812.10] (Paragraph 3);

- Execution of a retail installment contract [see Civ. Code § 1812.6, discussed in § 501.22[2][a]] or an agreement establishing a retail installment account [Civ. Code § 1812.7, discussed in § 501.22[2][c]] (Paragraph 4);

- Plaintiff's performance of all conditions precedent under the contract or the agreement establishing the account (Paragraph 5);

- Defendant's default, plaintiff's demand for payment, and, if appropriate, plaintiff's exercise of a contractual right to declare the entire indebtedness immediately due and payable [cf. Civ. Code § 1804.1(b), discussed in § 501.33[4] (acceleration under retail installment contract is not permitted in absence of buyer's default)] (Paragraphs 6-8); and

- Plaintiff's right to recover attorney's fees and costs [Civ. Code § 1811.1] (Paragraph 9).

[5] Interest

For purposes of Civ. Code § 3289, which allows interest at "any legal rate" specified in a contract from the time of breach until the contract is superseded by a verdict or another new obligation, the contracted finance charge is the legal rate of interest stipulated by a retail installment contract governed by RISA [Civ. Code § 3289.5]. In the unlikely event that a contract entered into after January 1, 1986, does not stipulate a legal rate of interest, the obligation bears interest at 10 percent a year after a breach [Civ. Code § 3289(b)]. For purposes of Civ. Code § 3289(b), the term "contract" does not include a note secured by a deed of trust on real property [Civ. Code § 3289(b)].

[6] Attorney's Fees

Civ. Code § 1811.1 provides that: "[r]easonable attorney's fees and costs shall be awarded to the prevailing party in any action on a contract or installment account subject to the provisions of this chapter [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.] regardless of whether such action is instituted by the seller, holder or buyer." The statutory language appears to authorize a court to award attorney's fees to a seller suing for the balance due on a contract or account which is subject to the provisions of RISA, regardless of whether any violation of RISA is alleged by any party to the action.

[7] Limitation of Action

RISA contains no specific statute pertaining to a limitation of action. Therefore, the four-year limitation period applicable to contracts and accounts applies [Code Civ. Proc. § 337].

[8] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude the defendant from using a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case if the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)].

Also, if the plaintiff states his or her complaint facts showing that the action has been commenced in a proper place for trial of the action, and no affidavit or declaration is filed stating those facts, the complaint must be verified [see Civ. Code § 1812.10(c); Code Civ. Proc. § 396a(a); see also [3], above].

For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense to Buyer's Action Based on Seller's Correction of Error Within Statutory Time Allowed [Civ. Code § 1812.8]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES that:

Plaintiff's action has been precluded by defendant's correction of the violation complained of by the plaintiff, within the statutory time provided by Civil Code Section 1812.8, in that _____ [allege facts showing correction in compliance with statutory provisions, e.g., On or about _____ (date), the day after the plaintiff and defendant executed the retail installment credit contract, defendant discovered the error. Defendant immediately notified the plaintiff in writing, informing plaintiff of the error, and on the same day mailed by registered mail a corrected copy of the contract including all required information. The correction of the error did not increase the amount owed to defendant by the plaintiff]. The error complained of was not willful.

[2] Use of Form

The affirmative defense in [1], above, is for inclusion with the defendant's answer to an action filed against him or her for violation of RISA [Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.]. The defense is statutory [Civ. Code § 1812.8] and provides that if a defendant corrects a nonwillful error within 30 days of the execution of the contract, there will be no liability under the penalty provisions of RISA, provided that the correction does not result in increasing the amount owed by the buyer, unless the buyer agrees to that increase in writing [Civ. Code § 1812.8; see discussion at § 501.54[1]].

9. By reason of the above-mentioned violation of Section 1638 of Title 15 of the United States Code [and of Section 226.18 of Title 12 of the Code of Federal Regulations] by defendant(s), plaintiff is entitled to recover from defendant(s), pursuant to Subparagraph (A) of Paragraph (2) of Subsection (a) of Section 1640 of Title 15 of the United States Code, the sum of $_____, which is twice the amount of the finance charge imposed in connection with the above-mentioned retail installment contract, computed as follows: _____ [describe method of computing finance charge].

10. By reason of the above-mentioned violation of Section 1638 of Title 15 of the United States Code [and Section 226.18 of Title 12 of the Code of Federal Regulations] by defendant(s), plaintiff has suffered actual damages in the amount of $_____ in that _____ [specify nature of plaintiff's damages].

11. Under Paragraph (3) of Subsection (a) of Section 1640 of Title 15 of the United States Code, plaintiff is entitled to recover reasonable attorney's fees and costs incurred in bringing this action in an amount to be determined by the court.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant[s, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For actual damages in the amount of $_____;

2. For the sum of $_____, which is twice the amount of the finance charges imposed under the contract;

3. For reasonable attorney's fees in an amount to be determined by the court;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use in an action by a buyer under 15 U.S.C. § 1640 to enforce the civil liability of a seller or assignee for violations of the disclosure provisions of TILA and Regulation Z relating to credit sales [see 15 U.S.C. § 1638; 12 C.F.R. § 226.18]. Because a single retail installment contract may give rise to violations of both TILA and RISA, counsel should consider combining this complaint with the complaints set forth in §§ 501.100[1] and 501.101[1], alleging each as a separate cause of action.

The complaint in [1], above, also may be used, with appropriate modifications, as a cross complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 428.10] in an action brought by the seller to recover money allegedly due under the contract.

[3] Allegations

The complaint in [1], above, alleges the following:

- Capacity and residence of plaintiff and defendant (Paragraphs 1, 2).
- Defendant's status as creditor [see 15 U.S.C. § 1602(f)] subject to the provisions of TILA (Paragraph 3).
- Execution of a retail installment contract (Paragraph 4).
- That the goods were purchased primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, making the transaction a consumer credit sale subject to TILA [see 15 U.S.C. §§ 1602(g), (h), 1638] (Paragraph 5).
- That defendant violated the disclosure provisions of TILA (Paragraph 6).
- When appropriate, assignment of the contract by the seller to a third party [see 15 U.S.C. § 1641(a)] (Paragraph 7).
- That plaintiff served written notice on defendant of the violations (optional) (Paragraph 8).

- That plaintiff is thus entitled to damages, statutory penalties, attorney's fees, and costs [see 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a)] (Paragraphs 9-11).

[4] Applicability of Statutory Penalty

A creditor is liable for the statutory penalty provided in 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a) only for violations of specified TILA provisions. For example, on the question of liability for a statutory penalty in connection with the disclosures referred to in 15 U.S.C. § 1638, the Ninth Circuit held that a creditor cannot be liable for a penalty except for failing to comply with any of the provisions of that section mentioned in the fifth sentence of 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a) [see § 501.51[2][a]]. Therefore, a consumer could not recover the statutory penalty for a violation of 15 U.S.C. § 1638(b)(l) because that subsection is not one of the provisions specified in the fifth sentence of 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a) [McDonald v. Checks-N-Advance, Inc. (In re Ferrell) (9th Cir. 2008) 539 F.3d 1186, 1190-1191] .

[5] Statute of Limitations

Any action under 15 U.S.C. § 1640 brought in any U.S. District Court, or in any other court of competent jurisdiction, must be brought within one year after the date of the occurrence of the violation [15 U.S.C. § 1640(e)]. An action to enforce a violation of 15 U.S.C. § 1639 (disclosure requirements for certain mortgages) may also be brought by the state attorney general not later than three years after the date the violation occurred [15 U.S.C. § 1640(e)].

10. [Plaintiff's right to reasonable attorney's fees and costs. See § 501.200[1], Paragraph 11.]

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays judgment against defendant[s, and each of them,] as follows:

1. For a determination by the court that the above-mentioned _____ [retail installment contract or other as appropriate] has been rescinded and that the security interests created thereby are void;

2. For the sum of $_____, which is the total amount paid by plaintiff to defendant under the above-mentioned _____ [retail installment contract or other as appropriate], with interest thereon at the legal rate from _____ [date];

3. For reasonable attorney's fees in an amount to be determined by the court;

4. For costs of suit herein incurred; and

5. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification, if desired. See § 501.100[1].]

[2] Use of Form

The complaint in [1], above, is for use by a buyer in an action to recover the amount of any downpayment or other consideration paid to the seller pursuant to a retail installment contract which the seller has rescinded in accordance with 15 U.S.C. § 1635(a) [see discussions in § 501.51[1][a] and in [3], below]. No election of remedy is required: if the creditor has violated TILA, a plaintiff may have rescission, restitution, and statutory damages and penalties under 15 U.S.C. § 1640(a) [15 U.S.C. § 1635(g); see discussion in § 501.51[1][g]]. Thus, the complaint in [1], above, may be combined with the one in § 501.100[1].

The allegations of the complaint may be adopted for use in an answer and cross complaint in an action brought by the seller to recover from the buyer amounts allegedly due under the contract.

[3] Right to Rescind Certain Transactions

Under TILA, a consumer may rescind a consumer credit transaction (including opening or increasing the credit line for an open-end credit plan) in which a security interest is or will be retained or acquired in any property which is used as the principal dwelling of the obligor. The consumer must rescind the contract prior to midnight of the third business day following the consummation of the transaction or the delivery of the disclosures and forms required by TILA, whichever is later, by notifying the creditor, in accordance with 12 C.F.R. §§ 226.15(a)(2), 226.23(a)(2), of his or her intention to rescind [15 U.S.C. § 1635(a)].

When a consumer exercises his or her right to rescind under 15 U.S.C. § 1635(a), he or she is not liable for any finance or other charge, and any security interest given by the consumer becomes void. Within 20 days after receipt of a notice of rescission, the creditor must return to the obligor any money or property given as earnest money, downpayment or otherwise, and must take any action necessary or appropriate to the termination of the security interest created by the transaction. If the creditor has delivered any property to the consumer, the consumer may retain possession of it until the creditor has performed its obligations under 15 U.S.C. § 1635, at which time the consumer must tender the property, or its reasonable value, if return of the property in kind would be impracticable or inequitable, to the creditor. Tender may be made at the location of the property or the residence of the consumer, at the consumer's option. If, after tender by the consumer, the creditor does not take possession of the property within 20 days, ownership vests in the consumer without any obligation on his or her part to pay for it [15 U.S.C. § 1635(b); see § 501.51[1][d]]. A court cannot apply equitable principles, for example, to impose interest charges if the borrower had the benefit of the use of loan proceeds [see Semar v. Platte Valley Federal S. & L. Ass'n (9th Cir. 1986) 791 F.2d 699, 706 (rejecting Tenth Circuit position, held in Rachbach v. Cogswell (10th Cir. 1977) 547 F.2d 502, 505 (involving rescission of mortgage contract)].

[4] Exempted Transactions

The right of rescission provided in 15 U.S.C. § 1635 does not apply to the following [15 U.S.C. § 1635(e)]:

- A residential mortgage transaction, as defined in 15 U.S.C. § 1602(w).

- A transaction which constitutes a refinancing or consolidation (with no new advances) of the principal balance then due and any accrued and unpaid finance charges of an existing extension of credit by the same creditor secured by an interest in the same property.

- A transaction in which an agency of a state is the creditor.

- Advances under a preexisting open-end credit plan if a security interest has already been retained or acquired and the advances are in accordance with a previously established credit limit for the plan.

[5] Time Limit on Right to Rescind

A consumer's right of rescission expires three years after the date of the consummation of the transaction or on the date of the sale of the property, whichever occurs earlier, notwithstanding the fact that the disclosures required by TILA have not been delivered to the consumer [15 U.S.C. § 1635(f); see Pacific Shore Funding v. Lozo (2006) 138 Cal. App. 4th 1342, 1347, 1355, 42 Cal. Rptr. 3d 283 (borrowers not precluded from rescinding consumer loan that is secured by their residence and subject to TILA merely because they already refinanced that loan, provided they rescind within three years after original loan date); see also discussion in § 501.51[1][f][i]]. The United States Supreme Court has held that a borrower may not assert the right to rescind as an affirmative defense in a collection action brought by the lender more than three years after the consummation of the transaction. Because 15 U.S.C. § 1635(f) completely extinguishes the right of rescission at the end of the three-year period, it is not a statute of limitations and the mortgagors cannot assert the right to rescind as a recoupment defense beyond the expiration period [Beach v. Ocwen Federal Bank (1998) 523

U.S. 410, 417-419, 118 S. Ct. 1408, 140 L. Ed. 2d 566] .

If an agency empowered to enforce the provisions of TILA institutes a proceeding to enforce the provisions of 15 U.S.C. § 1635 within three years after the date of consummation of the transaction and finds a violation of 15 U.S.C. § 1635, and if the obligor's right to rescind is based in whole or in part on any matter involved in the proceeding, then the obligor's right of rescission expires three years after the date of consummation of the transaction or earlier sale of the property, or one year following the conclusion of the proceeding or any judicial review or period for judicial review of the proceeding, whichever is later [15 U.S.C. § 1635(f), see § 501.51[1][f][iii]].

[6] Attorney's Fees

In any action in which a consumer is found to have a right of rescission under 15 U.S.C. § 1635, the creditor is liable to the consumer for reasonable attorney's fees in an amount to be determined by the court [15 U.S.C. § 1640(a), 1st sentence, cl. (3)].

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense for Use by Seller in TILA Action Based on Defendant's Correction of Error Within Statutory Time Allowed [15 U.S.C. § 1640(b)]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], DEFENDANT ALLEGES:

Plaintiff's action has been precluded by defendant's correction of the violation, in compliance with United States Code, Title 15, Section 1640(b) in that: _____ [describe acts taken to correct error, e.g., On _____ [date], defendant discovered the error in plaintiff's _____ (contract or other as appropriate account agreement) on which plaintiff bases his/her cause of action. Thereafter, on _____ [date], within 60 days of the date the error was discovered by the defendant, defendant notified the plaintiff of the error, by registered mail, informing plaintiff that the error had been corrected, that no additional charges would accrue against plaintiff therefor, and enclosing a corrected copy of the _____ (contract or other as appropriate account agreement). A copy of the return receipt signed by the plaintiff on receipt of the registered mail is attached to this document as Exhibit A and incorporated by reference]. The error complained of was corrected, and the above-described notification was given to plaintiff prior to the commencement of this action [, and prior to receipt by defendant of any written notice of the error].

[2] Use of Form

The affirmative defense in [1], above, is for incorporation into defendant's answer to an action filed against him or her for violation of TILA [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.]. TILA provides a statutory defense to liability if a creditor or assignee discovers an error which constitutes a violation of TILA, and within 60 days thereafter notifies the buyer of the error and makes whatever adjustments in the appropriate account are necessary to assure that the buyer will not be required to pay an amount in excess of the charge actually disclosed, or the dollar equivalent of the annual percentage rate actually disclosed, whichever is lower. It should be noted, however, that the defense is only available if the creditor corrects the error and notifies the buyer before the receipt of a written notice from the buyer or the institution of an action by the buyer to impose liability for the error [15 U.S.C. § 1640(b); see also § 501.54[2]].

Defendant's failure to _____ [describe violation, e.g., include the amount of the finance charge in the retail installment contract] was the result of an unintentional and bona fide error. _____ [Specify reason for error, e.g., Defendant's computer is programmed to include all disclosures required by law. On or about _____ [date], the day plaintiff's contract was executed, the computer repair agency of _____ (name of agency) had just completed a general maintenance check of the computer. It was not until the following morning that defendant discovered that all of the contracts prepared by the computer after the time of the maintenance check failed to reflect the amount of the finance charge].

2. _____ [Describe system for preventing errors, e.g., Defendant retains a full-time employee whose job is to recheck all retail installment credit transactions, and it was on the day following the maintenance check, in rechecking plaintiff's contract, that the error was discovered by defendant. Never before in defendant's six years of use of the same computer has this type of omission occurred].

[2] Use of Form

The affirmative defense [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)] in [1], above, may be included in a defendant's answer to a complaint filed against him or her for violation of the disclosure requirements of TILA [15 U.S.C. § 1601 et seq.]. TILA provides a defense to liability when the creditor's error is unintentional and results from a bona fide error, notwithstanding the maintenance of reasonable procedures for avoiding errors of that type [15 U.S.C. § 1640(c)]. The creditor has the burden of pleading and proving by a preponderance of the evidence both that the error was not intentional and that it constituted a bona fide error notwithstanding the maintenance of procedures reasonably adopted to avoid those errors [Demando v. Morris (9th Cir. 2000) 206 F.3d 1300, 1303 (reversing summary judgment because creditor's affidavit not did explain what procedures it employed that were reasonably adapted to avoid the error)]. For a discussion of what constitutes a "bona fide error," see § 501.54[3].

omitted in good faith in conformity with any rule, regulation, or interpretation of by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System or its authorized officials or employees, notwithstanding that subsequent to the commission of the act or omission, the rule, regulation, or interpretation relied on by the creditor is amended, rescinded, or determined by judicial or other authority to be invalid for any reason [15 U.S.C. § 1640(f)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is an application by a person in active military service, or who has been in active military service within six months preceding the date of the application, requesting a stay of the enforcement of a pre-existing obligation for the duration of the applicant's military service and a specified period thereafter, as permitted by the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act of 1940 [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] and comparable provisions of California law [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.].

Many, possibly even most instances involving claims for relief under these statutes, can be expected to arise when a military service member is the defendant in a pending action for a matter such as breach of contract, foreclosure, eviction, attachment, garnishment, or other creditor's action, or in connection with the entry of a default judgment or execution of a judgment previously entered. In these situations, the federal and state statutes granting relief to military personnel will be raised by the defendant in response to some other action by another party. For cross references to forms for use in these situations, see [7], below. However, the governing statutes also permit military service members to initiate proceedings on their own, in anticipation of or prior to the commencement of any action against them, to obtain temporary relief from obligations before any suit is commenced against them. The form in [1], above, is for use in the latter type of proceeding.

[3] Governing Law

The Servicemembers Civil Relief Act [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] provides for the temporary suspension of various legal proceedings and transactions for persons in military service [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 502 (purpose of statute)]. The statute is applicable to all members of the uniformed services [see 10 U.S.C. § 101(a)(5) (definition)] during periods of military service [see 50 U.S.C. § 511(1)-(3)] and, in many cases, for 90 days after termination of a member's period of military service. Although the Act is a federal statute, it is specifically made enforceable in state courts. Any application required to be made to a court in which no proceeding has already been commenced with respect to the matter may be made in any court [50 U.S.C. App. § 512(c)]. For these purposes, "court" includes any court of competent jurisdiction of the United States or any state, whether or not it is a court of record [50 U.S.C. App. § 511(5)].

The California counterpart to the federal legislation [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.] is designed to fill certain gaps in the federal law in the wake of the events of September 11, 2001. This statute, many provisions of which are virtually identical to their federal counterparts, is designed to apply to military reservists and National Guard members who are called to active military service under specified circumstances and, in many cases, for limited periods of time [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 400].

The federal and California statutes provide specific relief to qualifying military personnel in a variety of areas, including default judgments [50 U.S.C. App. § 521; Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a)], pending judicial proceedings [50 U.S.C. App. § 522; Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(a)], fines or penalties on contracts and similar obligations [50 U.S.C. App. § 523; Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(b)], execution of judgments, attachments, and similar matters [50 U.S.C. App. § 524; Mil. & Vet. Code § 403(c)], statutes of limitations [50 U.S.C. App. § 526; Mil. & Vet. Code § 404], interest rates [50 U.S.C. App. § 527; Mil. & Vet. Code § 405], rent and eviction [50 U.S.C. App. § 531], leases [50 U.S.C. App. § 535; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409], installment contracts [50 U.S.C. App. § 532; Mil. & Vet. Code § 407], mortgages [50 U.S.C. App. § 533; Mil. & Vet. Code § 408], insurance [50 U.S.C. App. §§ 536, 541 et seq.; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.1], and taxes [50 U.S.C. App. §§ 561 et seq.; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.2]. For discussion of some of these specific types of relief, see § 501.60 et seq. and the cross-references to other chapters of this publication cited in [7], below. In addition to these specific types of relief, the federal and California statutes contain "catch-all" type provisions that allow qualifying service members to initiate proceedings to seek relief. These general provisions, discussed in greater detail in [5], below, provide the statutory basis for this form.

[4] Who May Invoke Relief Provisions

[a] Federal Statute

The Servicemembers Civil Relief Act applies to members of the uniformed services [see 10 U.S.C. § 101(a)(5) (definition)] during periods of military service [see 50 U.S.C. § 511(1)-(3)] and, in many cases, for 90 days after termination of a member's period of military service. A servicemember who has been reported missing is presumed to continue in service until accounted for [50 U.S.C. § 582(c)].

[b] California Statute

The California counterpart to the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act generally applies to the following persons [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(a)]:

- Members of the National Guard called or ordered into active state service by the Governor under Mil. & Vet. Code §§ 143 or 146, or by the President of the United States under Titles 10 or 32 of the United States Code.

- Reservists of the United States Military Reserve who have been called to full-time active duty.

For these purposes, "military service" means full time active service, as described above, for a period in excess of seven days in any 14-day period. For any service member who has been called to active service or duty since September 11, 2001, to engage in homeland defense against terrorism, his or her days of service since that time will be credited toward that seven-day period, even if they precede the effective date of the California statute [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400(b); see also Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.8(c) (persons missing in action considered to be on active service)].

[c] Dependents

Dependents of service members are entitled to many of the key benefits of the federal and California statutes, including those covered by this form. Dependents are entitled to these benefits upon application to a court, unless in the opinion of the court the ability of the dependents to comply with the terms of the obligation, contract, lease, or bailment has not been materially impaired by reason of the military service of the person upon whom the applications are dependent [50 U.S.C. App. § 538; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.5].

This form is drafted for the situation in which the applicant is the service member. If the applicant is one of the service member's dependents, an additional statement to that affect should be added to the form, and the form modified accordingly.

[5] Stay of Obligation or Liability

[a] Application for Relief

A service member [see [4], above] may apply to a court for relief with respect to any obligation or liability incurred by the service member prior to his or her period of military service [50 U.S.C. App. § 591(b); Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3(a)]. Note that relief under this provision is available only for pre-existing obligations, not those entered into during the period of military service].

[b] Notice and Hearing

The court is required to hold a hearing on the application prior to granting any relief. "Appropriate notice" must be given [50 U.S.C. App. § 591(b); Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3(a)]. The statutes do not specify any more detailed requirements for the notice.

[c] Discretion of Court to Grant or Deny Relief

The federal and California statutes confer discretion on the court on whether or not to grant relief. If, in the opinion of the court, the applicant's ability to comply with the terms of the obligation in question has not been materially affected by reason of the applicant's military service, the court may deny relief [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 591(b); Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3(a)]. In other cases, the court may grant the relief discussed in [d] and [e], below.

The court also is empowered to deny relief if it demonstrated to the court's satisfaction that the obligation in question was transferred or acquired with the intent to delay its enforcement by taking advantages of these provisions. In such a case, the court is required to enter such a judgment or make such an order as might otherwise lawfully have been entered or made, without regard to the provisions authorizing relief [50 U.S.C. App. § 581; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.7].

[d] Relief from Mortgages or Installment Contracts for Purchase of Real Estate

If the obligation is payable under its terms in installments under a contract for the purchase of real estate, or if it is secured by a mortgage (or other instrument in the nature of a mortgage) on real estate, the court may grant a stay of the enforcement of the obligation during the applicant's period of military service and, from the date of termination of the period of military service, or from the date of the application if the application is made after the termination of that service, for a period equal to the period of the remaining life of the installment contract or other instrument plus a period of time equal to the period of military service or any part of that combined period, subject to payment of the balance of principal and accumulated interest due and unpaid at the date of termination of the period of military service (or from the date of application, as the case may be), in equal installments during that combined period at the rate of interest on the unpaid balance that is prescribed in the contract or other instrument evidencing the obligation, for installments paid when due, and subject to such other terms as may be just [50 U.S.C. App. § 591(b)(1); Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3(a)(1)].

[e] Relief From Other Obligations

In the case of any obligation or liability other than those covered under [d], above, the court may grant a stay of the enforcement during the applicant's period of military service and, from the date of termination of the period of military service, or from the date of the application if the application is made after the termination of that service, for a period of time equal to the period of military service or any part of that period, subject to payment of the balance of principal and accumulated interest due and unpaid at the date of termination of the period of military service (or the date of the application, as the case may be), in equal periodic installments during the extended period at such a rate of interest as may be prescribed for the obligation, liability, tax, or assessment, if paid when due, and subject to such other terms as may be just [50 U.S.C. App. § 591(b)(2); Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3(a)(2)].

[f] Other Effects of Relief

When a court has granted a stay, no fine or penalty may accrue during the period the terms and conditions of the stay are complied with by reason of failure to comply with the terms or conditions of the obligation in respect of which the stay was granted [50 U.S.C. App. § 591(c); Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3(b)].

A stay has other ancillary consequences. Specifically, application for or receipt of a stay may not, without other considerations, provide the basis for any of the following [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 518; Mil. & Vet. Code § 401(a)]:

- A determination by any lender or other person that the service member is unable to pay any civil obligation or liability in accordance with its terms.

- With respect to a credit transaction between a creditor and the service member, any denial or revocation of credit by the creditor, change by the creditor in the terms of an existing credit arrangement, or refusal by the creditor to grant credit to the service member in substantially the amount or on substantially the terms requested.

- An adverse report relating to the creditworthiness of the service member by or to any person or entity engaged in the practice of assembling or evaluating consumer credit information.

- A refusal by an insurer to insure the service member.

- An annotation in a service member's record by a creditor or a person engaged in the practice of assembling or evaluating consumer credit information, identifying the service member as a member of the National Guard or a reserve component.

- A change in the terms offered or conditions required for the issuance of insurance.

The California statute provides that any person violating the above provisions is liable for actual damages and reasonable attorney's fees incurred by the injured party [Mil. & Vet. Code § 401(b)]. The California statute also provides that any person violating the above prohibitions is guilty of a misdemeanor [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3(c)].

For additional discussion and a complaint for violation of the above provisions, see Ch. 129, Consumer Credit Reporting, § 129.150.

[g] Limitations with Respect to Child Support Obligations

Under the California provisions, service members may not use the provisions discussed above to obtain a delay, deferment, or stay on an obligation to pay child support. However, this does not preclude a service member ordered to military service from seeking a modification of an order to pay child support due to a reduction in income resulting from the order to service, or from seeking the imposition of the maximum 6-percent interest rate under the statute [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 405 (maximum rate of interest limited to 6 percent)] on arrearages in child support payments existing prior to the order to service. [Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3(c)]. The Servicemembers Civil Relief Act has no analogous provision; nevertheless, the California Supreme Court set aside, under the general provision for relief from default judgments under the federal act [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(g)], an order for increased spousal and child support against an absent serviceman who was unable to appear and defend the proceeding due to his military service [Allen v. Allen (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 433, 435, 182 P.2d 551 (applying antecedent provision in former 50 U.S.C. § 520(1))].

[6] Contents of Form

The application in [1], above, states the following:

- The applicant's California residence [Paragraph1].

- The date applicant entered into the obligation in question, and the nature of the obligation [Paragraph 2].

- The approximate remaining balance due on the obligation, or other portion of the obligation remaining outstanding [Paragraph 3].

- The fact that the applicant subsequently entered or was called up to active military service, and the dates of that service [Paragraph 4]. Alternative versions are presented, depending on whether the applicant's service was as a member of the regular armed forces and therefore subject to the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act, or alternatively as a member of the member of the military reserve of National Guard called to active duty, and as such subject to the California statute.

- The fact that the applicant's ability to comply with the terms of the obligation has been materially affected by virtue of the applicant's military service [Paragraph 5]. For the significance of this statement, see [5][c], above.

The application in [1], above, contains alternative prayers for relief, depending on whether the obligation in question is (1) an installment contract for the purchase of real estate, or another obligation secured by a mortgage (or other instrument in the nature of a mortgage) on real estate (first alternative); or (2) any other kind of obligation (second alternative). For discussion of the nature of the relief that may be granted in each of these cases, see [5][d], [e], below.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an application by a defendant, or a person acting on the defendant's behalf, for an order granting a stay in an action to enforce an obligation or liability that was entered into by a defendant who was subsequently called to active military service. The application requests a stay of the enforcement of the underlying obligation for the duration of the applicant's military service and a specified period thereafter, as permitted by the general relief provisions [50 U.S.C. App. § 591; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3] of the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act of 1940 [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] and comparable provisions of California law [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.].

As explained in the discussion below, under the circumstances this application functions in effect as a temporary defense to the underlying action.

Many, possibly even most instances involving claims for relief under these statutes, can be expected to arise when a military service member is the defendant in a pending action for a matter such as breach of contract, foreclosure, eviction, attachment, garnishment, or other creditor's action, or in connection with the entry of a default judgment or execution of a judgment previously entered. In these situations, the federal and state statutes granting relief to military personnel will be raised by the defendant in response to some other action by another party. This form is for use when requesting a stay in a pending proceeding against the service member on the underlying liability or obligation. In addition, however, the governing statutes also permit military service members to initiate proceedings on their own, in anticipation of or prior to the commencement of any action against them, to obtain temporary relief from obligations before any suit is commenced against them [50 U.S.C. App. § 591; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3]. For an application to use when there is no proceeding pending to collect on the underlying liability of obligation, see § 501.300.

[3] Governing Law and Eligibility for Relief

The Servicemembers Civil Relief Act [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] provides for the temporary suspension of various legal proceedings, obligations, and liabilities for persons in military service [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 502 (purpose of statute)]. The statute is applicable to all members of the uniformed services [see 10 U.S.C. § 101(a)(5) (definition)] during periods of military service [see 50 U.S.C. § 511(1)-(3)] and, in many cases, for 90 days after termination of a member's period of military service. The California counterpart to the federal legislation [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.] is designed to fill certain gaps in the federal law in the wake of the events of September 11, 2001. The latter statute, many provisions of which are virtually identical to their federal counterparts, is designed to apply to military reservists and National Guard members who are called to active military service under specified circumstances and, in many cases, for limited periods of time [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 400]. For detailed discussion of the relief available under these statutes, the manner in which such relief can be requested, and the persons who qualify for this relief, see § 501.300[4], [5].

[4] Stay of Pre-Existing Obligation

Under the general relief provisions of the federal and California statutes, an eligible service member or dependent [for discussion of who is eligible, see § 501.300[4]] may apply to a court for relief in for relief with respect to any obligation or liability incurred by the service member prior to his or her period of military service [50 U.S.C. App. § 591(a), (b); Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3(a)]. Relief under this provision is available only for pre-existing obligations; those entered into during the period of military service].

The court is required to hold a hearing on the application prior to granting any relief. "Appropriate notice" must be given [50 U.S.C. App. § 591(b); Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3(a)].

For a detailed discussion of the nature of relief available under these general relief provisions of these statutes, see § 501.300.

[5] Procedure and Accompanying Papers

The statute states that the service member may "apply" to the court for a stay of the type discussed in this statute [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 591(a); Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3(a)]. For purposes of the applicable procedural requirements, an application in this context is deemed a motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1003 (any application for order is deemed a motion)]. Accordingly, the application in this form is in the form of a motion, although the term "application" is retained in deference to the statutory language.

A notice of motion is normally accompanied by one or more affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury setting forth the evidentiary facts required to establish the grounds of the motion [see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders, §§ 372.21[5][b], [17], 372.61[2] et seq.; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(a) (evidence received at a law and motion hearing must be by declaration and affidavit); Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2003 (affidavit defined), 2009, (use of affidavit in support of motion), 2015.5].

A supporting memorandum must be filed and a copy served with this notice of motion [Cal Rules of Ct, Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010].

For discussion, a procedural checklist, and general forms relating to law and motion practice, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

44-501 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 501.302

§ 501.302 Affirmative Defense to Action on Interest-Bearing Obligation--Annual Rate of Interest May Not Exceed 6 Percent per Year During Period of Military Service [50 U.S.C. App. § 527; Mil. & Vet. Code § 405]

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense to Action on Interest-Bearing Obligation--Annual Rate of Interest May Not Exceed 6 Percent per Year During Period of Military Service [50 U.S.C. App. § 526; Mil. & Vet. Code § 405]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], Defendant alleges:

1. The obligation forming the basis for Plaintiff's complaint bears interest at the annual rate of _____ percent, including all applicable service charges, renewal charges, fees, or other charges with respect to that obligation.

[For members of regular armed forces]

2. On _____ [date], which date is subsequent to the date Defendant entered into the obligation forming the basis for Plaintiff's complaint, Defendant entered military service (within the meaning of Title 50 United States Code Appendix, Section 511(2)) with the United States _____ [list branch of military service, e.g., Army or Navy or Marine Corps or Air Force or Coast Guard]. Defendant _____ [is currently in military service or was released from active military service on _____ (date)].

[OR, for members of United States Military Reserve or the National Guard]

2. Defendant is a member of _____ [specify branch of service, e.g., the United States Air Force Reserve or the California National Guard]. On _____ [date subsequent to Sept. 11, 2001], which date is subsequent to the date Defendant entered into the obligation forming the basis for Plaintiff's complaint, Defendant was called to active military service (within the meaning of Military and Veterans Code Section 400) for a period in excess of seven days in a 14-day period. Defendant _____ [is currently on active military service or was released from active military service on _____(date)].

[CONTINUE]

3. The ability of Defendant to pay interest on the obligation forming the basis for Plaintiff's complaint has been materially affected by Defendant's military service in that _____ [describe, e.g., Defendant is self-employed as a _____ (e.g., lawyer) and has been unable to work at _____ (his or her) regular occupation during the terms of Defendant's military service as described in Paragraph 2, above, as a result of which Defendant has been unable to generate enough income to meet Defendant's financial obligations, including the obligation forming the basis for Plaintiff's complaint].

4. The rate of interest on the obligation referred to in Plaintiff's complaint exceeds the maximum rate of 6 percent per year for pre-existing obligations incurred by individuals in active military service as specified in _____ [for members of regular armed forces: Title 50 United States Code Appendix, Section 527(a) or, for members of United States Military Reserve or National Guard: Military and Veterans Code Section 405]. Defendant therefore is not liable to pay any interest (as defined in _____ [for members of regular armed forces: Title 50 United States Code Appendix, Section 527(d) or, for members of United States Military Reserve or National Guard: Military and Veterans Code Section 405]) on the obligation referred to in Plaintiff's complaint during the period of Defendant's active military service beginning _____ [date] and continuing without interruption _____ [until _____ (ending date of service) or, if defendant remains on active military service: through this date and until further notice]. Plaintiff is not entitled to any interest on the obligation in excess of the 6 percent limitation during the period of Defendant's active military service. [Defendant asserts that the amount of the difference between the rate of interest specified in Paragraph 1, above, and the maximum 6 percent rate imposed by law on the obligation during Defendant's period of military service, amounts to $ _____.]

[2] Use of Form

This form is an affirmative defense to an action on an interest-bearing obligation bearing interest at an annual rate in excess of 6 percent. In this defense, the defendant asserts that he or she entered active military service after entering into the interest-bearing obligation, and that under the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act of 1940 [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] and comparable provisions of California law [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.], the annual interest rate on the obligation during the period of defendant's active military service may not exceed 6 percent [50 U.S.C. App. § 527(a); Mil. & Vet. Code § 405] and the defendant is not liable for interest in excess of that amount.

[3] Governing Law

The Servicemembers Civil Relief Act [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] provides for the temporary suspension of various legal proceedings, obligations, and liabilities for persons in military service [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 502 (purpose of statute)]. The statute is applicable to all members of the uniformed services [see 10 U.S.C. § 101(a)(5) (definition)] during periods of military service [see 50 U.S.C. § 511(1)-(3)] and, in many cases, for 90 days after termination of a member's period of military service. The California counterpart to the federal legislation [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.] is designed to fill certain gaps in the federal law in the wake of the events of September 11, 2001. The latter statute, many provisions of which are virtually identical to their federal counterparts, is designed to apply to military reservists and National Guard members who are called to active military service under specified circumstances and, in many cases, for limited periods of time [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 400]. For general discussion of the relief available under these statutes, the manner in which such relief can be requested, and the persons who qualify for this relief, see §§ 501.60 et seq., 501.300.

With respect to interest-bearing obligations, the California and federal statutes provide that no obligation or liability bearing interest at a rate in excess of 6 percent per year incurred by a service member before that person's entry into service may, during any part of the period of military service, bear interest at a rate in excess of 6 percent per year unless, in the opinion of the court, upon application by the obligee, the ability of the service member to pay interest on the obligation or liability at a rate in excess of 6 percent per year is not materially affected by reason of that service. For this purpose, "interest" also includes service charges, renewal charges, fees, or any other charges, except bona fide insurance, with respect to any obligation or liability [50 U.S.C. App. § 527(d); Mil. & Vet. Code § 405].

[4] Enforcement

The statutes do not specify exactly how a claim of relief based on an interest-bearing obligation should be asserted. However, it is likely that this issue would frequently arise in the context of an action against a present or former service member who has defaulted on an interest-bearing obligation. For this reason, this form is set forth as an affirmative defense for use in an answer to a complaint seeking unpaid principal and interest on such an obligation. The statutes do not specifically authorize the service member to institute an affirmative action for relief under the provisions governing the maximum rate of interest, as they do in the case of stays of obligations or liabilities [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 591; Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3; see also § 501.300 (application for stay of enforcement of pre-existing obligation during period of military service)], but if an appropriate situation arose, it may be that such an action would be permitted under the general enforcement powers available to courts under these statutes.

Although the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act is a federal statute, it is enforceable in state courts. Any application required to be made to a court in which no proceeding has already been commenced with respect to the matter may be made in any court [50 U.S.C. App. § 512(c)]. For these purposes, "court" includes any court of competent jurisdiction of the United States or any state, whether or not it is a court of record [50 U.S.C. App. § 511(5)].

[2] Use of Form

This form is an application by a defendant, or a person acting on the defendant's behalf, for an order granting a stay in an action under an installment contract for the purchase of real or personal property in which the plaintiff is seeking to exercise a right or option to rescind or terminate the contract, or resume possession of the property, due to the defendant's alleged nonpayment of an installment or other breach of the contract. The application seeks the stay on the ground that the nonpayment or breach occurred while the defendant was on active military service [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 532(a); Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(b)].

As illustrated in the discussion below, under the circumstances, this application functions in effect as a temporary defense to the underlying action.

[3] Governing Law

The Servicemembers Civil Relief Act [50 U.S.C. App. § 501 et seq.] provides for the temporary suspension of various legal proceedings, obligations, and liabilities for persons in military service [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 502 (purpose of statute)]. The statute is applicable to all members of the uniformed services [see 10 U.S.C. § 101(a)(5) (definition)] during periods of military service [see 50 U.S.C. § 511(1)-(3)] and, in many cases, for 90 days after termination of a member's period of military service. The California counterpart to the federal legislation [Mil. & Vet. Code § 400 et seq.] is designed to fill certain gaps in the federal law in the wake of the events of September 11, 2001. The latter statute, many provisions of which are virtually identical to their federal counterparts, is designed to apply to military reservists and National Guard members who are called to active military service under specified circumstances and, in many cases, for limited periods of time [see Mil. & Vet. Code § 400]. For detailed discussion of the relief available under these statutes, the manner in which such relief can be requested, and the persons who qualify for this relief, see §§ 501.60 et seq., 501.300.

[4] Rescission or Termination of Installment Contract; Repossession

Under both the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act and the comparable California legislation, after a service member enters military service, a contract by the service member for either the purchase of real or personal property (including a motor vehicle) or the lease or bailment of such property may not be rescinded or terminated for a breach of terms of the contract occurring before or during that person's military service, nor may the property be repossessed for such a breach without a court order [50 U.S.C. App. § 532(a); see Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(a)]. This relief applies only to a contract for which a deposit or installment has been paid by the servicemember before the servicemember enters military service [50 U.S.C. App. § 532(b), Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(a)]. This provision is designed to protect military service members against repossession, forfeiture of deposits and payments, and termination of installment contracts while they are in active military service. It compels the holder of the obligation to institute a court proceeding before any of these actions can be taken. In such an action, the court may order the repayment of all or part of any prior installments or deposits as a condition of terminating the contract and resuming possession. Instead the court may, on its own motion, or must on application by the service member when the service member's ability to comply with the contract is materially affected by military service, stay the proceedings for a period of time as, in the opinion of the court, justice and equity require; or the court may make other disposition as is equitable to preserve the interests of all parties [50 U.S.C. App. § 532(c); see Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(b)].

There are penalties for repossessing or attempting to repossess property in violation of these requirements. Violators are guilty of a misdemeanor [50 U.S.C. App. § 532(b)(1); Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(c)].

[5] Stay of Proceeding

The governing statutes do not specify the length of time for which a stay of the proceeding may be granted. Rather, it is simply left to the discretion of the court [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 532(c); Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(b)]. This raises some interesting practical issues regarding the time period of the stay. If the stay is granted for a period of indefinite duration, such as the period of the defendant's military service or a specified amount of time (for example, six months) thereafter, it may be difficult for the plaintiff to determine when the action can resume, as it might be expected that in the ordinary case the plaintiff would not know, and could not determine without difficulty, when the defendant's period of military service is over. On the other hand, if the stay is set for a finite period of time, such as six months, and the defendant either (1) is released from military service earlier than the time period specified in the stay, or (2) conversely, is still in military service when the period of the stay ends, the defendant presumably would have to seek an additional stay at that point. It appears that the court would have discretion to grant either type of stay under its general authority to order a stay for a period of time as, in the opinion of the court, justice and equity require [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 532(c); Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(b) (stay of proceedings "as the court deems just")]. This form does not request a specific length of time for the stay, but the party filing the application may wish to consider whether inclusion of such language is desirable or whether the length of the stay would be better left to the discretion of the court. The form may be modified to add a specific length of time for the stay if desired.

Additional relief of a more general nature also may be available 50 U.S.C. App. § 591 or Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3, the general relief provisions of the federal and California statutes. These statutes basically grant an extension of the underlying installment obligation for a period equal to the period of military service or, in the case of installment obligations for the purchase of real property or secured by a real property mortgage or similar instrument, for a period equal to the period of the military service plus a period equal to the remaining installments, or any part of that combined period [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 591(b); Mil. & Vet. Code § 409.3(a)]. For more detailed discussion of these provisions, see § 501.300.

[6] Who May Request Stay

The statutes are extremely broad as to who may request a stay of the proceeding. Under California law, application for a stay may be made by the person in military service or by "some person on the service member's behalf" [Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(b)]. There are no statutory restrictions on who that "some person" may be. Presumably in many cases the service member will be absent due to the military service, and the request will have to be made by someone else on the service member's behalf. Under federal law, the stay may be requested by an attorney acting on the behalf of the service member, or by an individual possessing a power of attorney from the service member [see 50 U.S.C. App. § 519; see also 50 U.S.C. § 592 (automatic extension of power of attorney while service member is missing)].

[7] Procedure and Accompanying Papers

The statute states that a request for a stay of the type discussed in this statute is to be made by "application" to the court [50 U.S.C. App. § 532(c); Mil. & Vet. Code § 407(b)]. For purposes of the applicable procedural requirements, an application in this context is deemed a motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1003 (any application for order is deemed a motion)]. Accordingly, the application in this form is in the form of a motion, although the term "application" is retained in deference to the statutory language.

A notice of motion is normally accompanied by one or more affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury setting forth the evidentiary facts required to establish the grounds of the motion [see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders, §§ 372.21[5][b], [17], 372.61[2] et seq.; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(a) (evidence received at a law and motion hearing must be by declaration and affidavit); Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2003 (affidavit defined), 2009, (use of affidavit in support of motion), 2015.5].

A supporting memorandum must be filed and a copy served with this notice of motion [Cal Rules of Ct, Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010].

For discussion, a procedural checklist, and general forms relating to law and motion practice, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

Chapter 502 SALES: WARRANTIES
PART I. SCOPE

44-502 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 502.01

§ 502.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the basic warranty laws applicable to the sale of goods generally, as well as the special warranty provisions that apply to consumer purchases under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act (Civ. Code § 1790 et seq.) and the federal Magnuson-Moss Warranty-Federal Trade Commission Improvement Act (15 U.S.C. § 2301 et seq.). This chapter primarily addresses breaches of warranties that result in commercial losses. Losses in the nature of personal injuries and related consequential damages are covered in Ch. 460, Products Liability . Remedies connected with warranties on mobilehomes are treated in Ch. 369, Mobilehomes and Mobilehome Parks .

Three different types of statutory bases for actions for breach of warranty are discussed.

- The large variety of express and implied warranties as well as other statutory warranties that are found in Division 2 of the Commercial Code for basic sales transactions [see § 502.20 et seq.].

- The Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act (Civ. Code § 1790 et seq.; hereinafter referred to as the "Song-Beverly Act"), which recognizes particular kinds of express warranties made to consumers--those in writing which undertake to make good on the product, and those resulting from employing demonstration wares [see § 502.40 et seq.]. The act sets up a system whereby the manufacturers must provide, in connection with the creation of an express warranty, service facilities or substitutions for those facilities if they are not available [see §§ 502.43, 502.44]. Special causes of action are made available in the case of express warranties [see §§ 502.45 -502.50]. The act also mandates the presence of certain implied warranties somewhat more streamlined than under the Commercial Code in consumer sales [see § 502.51]. An action on an implied warranty action may be simpler than that provided in the Commercial Code, with broader remedies and a fuller range of possible defendants, and fewer defenses available [see § 502.53].

- The federal Magnuson-Moss Warranty-Federal Trade Commission Improvement Act (15 U.S.C. § 2301 et seq.; hereinafter referred to as the "Magnuson-Moss Act"), which recognizes a broader type of written warranty made to consumers than that made under the Song-Beverly Act, but requires more elements to be present [see § 502.60 et seq.]. It imposes certain disclosure requirements on warrantors [ see §§ 502.62, 502.63]. It recognizes any implied warranties arising under state law and ties them to written warranties [see § 502.64]. It provides a broad cause of action in state as well as federal courts for a range of plaintiffs broader than that available under state law and against a full range of defendants with few defenses available to defendants in the action [see § 502.68].

Forms in this chapter include the following:

- Notices of breach of warranty under the Commercial Code [see § 502.100] and under the Magnuson-Moss Warranty-Federal Trade Commission Improvement Act [see § 502.101].

- A notice to take over defense of a suit given by a defendant to a third party who is answerable over [see § 502.102].

- A complaint by a former defendant against a third party answerable over for the claim established in the earlier suit [see § 502.103].

- An allegation for consequential damages arising out of personal or property injuries for use in a breach of warranty action under the Commercial Code [see § 502.104].

- Forms for defense against breaches of warranty generally [see §§ 502.120 and 502.121].

- Forms of complaint and allegations for, and defense to, a breach of an express warranty under the Commercial Code [see §§ 502.140 -502.142, 502.150].

- A complaint and an allegation, for use by a retail buyer, for violation of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act applicable to express warranty [see §§ 502.160 -502.161], as well as a complaint by a seller or service agent against a manufacturer for willful or repeated violations of the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act [see § 502.162].

- Complaints and allegations for use in a class action under the Magnuson-Moss Warranty-Federal Trade Commission Improvement Act [see §§ 502.180 and 502.181].

- A complaint and allegations for, and a form for defense to, a breach of the implied warranty of merchantability under the Commercial Code [see §§ 502.200, 502.201, and 502.210].

- A complaint for a breach of the implied warranty of merchantability, and a form for defense to breaches of implied warranty, under the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act [see §§ 502.202 and 502.211].

- A complaint for, and a form for defense to, a breach of the implied warranty of fitness under the Commercial Code [see §§ 502.220 and 502.230].

- A complaint for breach of an implied warranty through course of dealing or usage of trade [see § 502.240].

- Forms for defenses to breaches of implied warranties under the Commercial Code [see §§ 502.212 -502.214].

- Forms for a complaint and allegations for, and defense to, a breach of the warranty of title [see § 502.260 et seq.].

- Forms for notice and demand, a complaint for, and defenses to, a breach of the warranty against infringement [see § 502.280 et seq.].

- A complaint for breach of warranty as to quality or condition of goods on arrival [see § 502.300].

Remedies for violation of Civ. Code §§ 1770(a)(21) and 1797.8 et seq. (required advertising disclosures regarding trademark consumer goods normally accompanied by manufacturer's warranty that are imported into this country through unauthorized channels and do not have manufacturer's express warranty) are discussed in Ch. 14, Advertising .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Introduction and Definitions

44-502 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 502.10

§ 502.10 Governing Law

[1] State Statutes

Warranties for the sale of goods is basically and most broadly covered in Division 2 of the Commercial Code known as "Uniform Commercial Code--Sales" (Com. Code § 2101), in Com. Code §§ 2312-2317, 2321(2), 2607(3)(B), (5), (6), 2714(2), 2715(2)(b), 2800, and 2801. This law is amplified in certain substantive ways as to consumer sales only (and related wholesale transactions) by the Song-Beverly Consumer Warranty Act in Civ. Code § 1790 et seq.

As a complement to consumer warranty legislation, a statutory standard of performance by service personnel has been adopted with respect to labor involving consumer goods brought in for repair under warranty, or otherwise. Any individual, partnership, corporation, association, or other legal entity that engages in the business of installing new or used consumer goods has a duty to the buyer to install them in a "good and workmanlike" manner [Civ. Code § 1796]. If the entity engages in the business of providing service or repair to new or used consumer goods, it has a duty to the purchaser to perform those services in "good and workmanlike" manner [Civ. Code § 1796.5]. These provisions, however, do not provide a specific remedy for their violation.

[2] Federal Statutes and Regulations

Consumer protection with respect to warranties in the sale of goods is further extended, primarily through disclosure requirements, and otherwise given support concurrent with or residual to the state scheme, through the federal Magnuson-Moss Warranty-Federal Trade Commission Improvement Act (15 U.S.C. § 2301 et seq.), with implementing regulations found in 16 C.F.R. §§ 700.1-703.8.

Chapter 502 SALES: WARRANTIES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Introduction and Definitions

44-502 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 502.11

§ 502.11 Definitions

[1] Warranty

A warranty is not a technical term for legal purposes in the area of sales transactions in the absence of some added qualification, such as "express" or "implied." It was defined in the sales context in an early statute, former Civ. Code § 1763, as an engagement by which a seller assures to a buyer the existence of some fact affecting the transaction [see Harley v. Golden State & M.I.W. (1884) 66 Cal. 238, 239, 5 P. 160] . A warranty may involve title, character, quantity, quality, identity, or condition of goods [A.A. Baxter Corp. v. Colt Indus., Inc. (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 144, 153, 88 Cal. Rptr. 842] .

[2] Express Warranty

An "express warranty" is sometimes described as an affirmation of fact or a promise [see Com. Code § 2313(1)(a); 15 U.S.C. § 2301(6)(A)], or as a written undertaking [see Civ. Code § 1791.2(a)(1); 15 U.S.C. § 2301(6)(B)] concerning the goods. In some instances it may take the form of a description of goods [see Com. Code § 2313(1)(b)] or a sample or model of the goods [see Com. Code § 2313(1)(c); Civ. Code § 1791.2(a)(2)]. To be enforceable, an express warranty may be required to be part of the basis of the bargain between the parties [see Com. Code § 2313(1); 15 U.S.C. § 2301(6)].

[3] Implied Warranty

An "implied warranty" is a warranty that is implied in a contract for sale of the goods involved [see Com. Code § 2314], or exists at the time of contracting for a sale of goods under particular circumstances [see Com. Code § 2315], or accompanies in certain situations a sale of particular goods [see Civ. Code §§ 1792-1792.2]. An implied warranty is normally, and under certain legislation, exclusively, one for merchantability or for fitness for certain purposes [see Com. Code § 2314(1), (2); Civ. Code § 1791.1], but other implied warranties may be present from time to time through course of dealing or usage of trade [see Com. Code § 2314(3)]. An implied warranty has been described as one "arising under" or "imposed by" [see U.C.C. Comment 2 to Com. Code § 2314] "State law" [see 15 U.S.C. § 2301(7)]; however, certain other nonexpress warranties also may be imposed by law without being designated or treated as "implied" [see U.C.C.

Comment to Com. Code § 2312; Com. Code § 2312(1)(B)].

§ 502.12 Nature of Action for Breach of Warranty

[1] Hybrid of Tort and Contract

The seller's warranty has been referred to as "a curious hybrid" of tort and contract and as unique in the law [Prosser on Torts (4th ed), § 95]. Liability for a breach of a warranty originally was considered a tort, but eventually it became identified as being governed by contract principles in the area of sales. Nevertheless, it is regarded as having essentially retained its substantive tort character, and recovery for breach of warranty is seen as a form of strict liability [see Prosser on Torts (4th ed), § 95; Frumer & Friedman, Products Liability, Ch. 3, Introduction to Strict Liability , Ch. 3A, Manufacturer's Strict Liability in Warranty (Matthew Bender)]. The basis for recovery is the failure of a promise or representation [see Corbin on Contracts, Vol. I, § 14], or of an engagement or assurance [see § 502.11[1], above], by the seller to the buyer in association with a sale. Thus, while a warranty arises in connection with a sale, it is independent of the contract for sale (although the agreement may refer directly or implicitly to the warranty as well), and an action on the warranty is not in the nature of a formal proceeding on the breach of a contract.

This analysis of the nature of the action for a breach of a warranty would not appear to be affected by the requirement that express warranties governed by Division 2 of the Commercial Code [see § 502.20 et seq., below] must have become or been made "part of the basis of the bargain" [see Com. Code § 2313(1)], a requirement that is also part of the description of a written warranty under the Magnuson-Moss Act [see 15 U.S.C. § 2301(6) and § 502.60 et seq., below]. The requirement is not given a definitive meaning in the Uniform Commercial Code [see U.C.C. Comments 1-8 to Com. Code § 2313; see also Comment, The Meaning of 'Part of the Basis of the Bargain,' 19 Santa Clara L. Rev. 447, 448 (1979)], but the Supreme Court has made it clear that it imposes a less onerous burden on the plaintiff in proving the existence of an express warranty than was imposed prior to the adoption of the Commercial Code, because a plaintiff is no longer required to prove his or her reliance on the seller's affirmation or promise [see Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 115-116, 116 n.13, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377 ; see also § 502.23[1]]. Thus, it appears that the "basis of the bargain" requirement for express warranties under the Magnuson-Moss Act does not require that the representation constituting the warranty be part of the bargain proper or that it be a consideration for the agreement.

A distinction remains between damages recoverable for breach of warranty and those recoverable in product liability cases. The difference between price paid and value received, and deviations from standards of quality that have not resulted in property damage or personal injury, are primarily the domain of contract and warranty law or the law of fraud, rather than of negligence. In actions for negligence, a manufacturer's liability is limited to damages for physical injuries; no recovery is allowed for economic loss alone, under a general principle, referred to as the economic loss rule [see Aas v. Superior Court (2000) 24 Cal. 4th 627, 636, 101 Cal. Rptr. 2d 718, 12 P.3d 1125] .

[2] Breach of Warranty as Alternative to Breach of Contract

There may be instances when an expression appearing in, or intended to be incorporated into, a contract may be capable of being interpreted as a warranty or as an integral element or condition of the primary contract of sale itself. It would seem that in those instances the plaintiff has a cause of action for breach of warranty and for breach of the sales contract. Normally, the plaintiff suing for breach of warranty may expect the contract to remain in force, and the usual elements of a cause of action for breach of contract will not be required to be shown [see discussion in [1], above]. On the other hand, the plaintiff in an action for breach of contract must plead all the necessary elements to state a cause of action, such as plaintiff's compliance with all conditions of the contract, but presumably may be able to invoke other remedies provided in the Commercial Code [see Ch. 500, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code].

§ 502.20 Warranties Applicable to Sales of Goods Only

Warranties arising under Division 2 of the Commercial Code (which is also referred to as the Uniform Commercial Code--Sales, and which is the general sales law) are generally restricted to sales of goods only [see Com. Code §§ 2102, 2105(1); see also Com. Code §§ 2312-2316]. Although general sales warranty law extends to other transactions by reasoning which is analogous to the law of sales, the law typically has been considered unavailable in the area of services, including professional services [see Allied Props. v. John A. Blume & Associates (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 848, 855-856, 102 Cal. Rptr. 259 (relying principally on Gagne v. Bertran (1954) 43 Cal. 2d 481, 487-490, 275 P.2d 15)]. The Commercial Code, however, does provide that the serving for value of food or drink to be consumed either on the premises or elsewhere is a sale for purposes of the implied warranty of merchantability [Com. Code § 2314(1)]. Thus, generally, if a transaction is treated as a service rather than as a sale of a good, such as transactions in blood and its by-products for purposes of injecting or transfusing into humans [see Health & Safety Code § 1606; Shepard v. Alexian Brothers Hosp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 606, 609-610, 614, 109 Cal. Rptr. 132 ; see also Fogo v. Cutter Laboratories, Inc. (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 744, 750-754, 758-761, 137 Cal. Rptr. 417] , Division 2 does not apply.

§ 502.21 Warranty of Title

[1] Scope of Warranty of Title

In every contract for sale (unless excluded or modified in a permissible fashion, as discussed below), the seller warrants both knowledge [Com. Code § 2312(1)]:

- That the title conveyed is good, and its transfer rightful.

- That the goods are delivered free from any security interest, or other lien or encumbrance, of which the buyer at the time of contracting has no knowledge.

This warranty is intended to make provisions for a buyer's basic needs regarding a title that he or she expects in good faith to acquire--a good, clean title transferred in a rightful manner so that the buyer will not be exposed to a lawsuit in order to protect it. This warranty is extended whether or not the seller was in possession of the goods at the time the sale or contract to sell was made. The "knowledge" which the buyer might have of title deficiencies that could delimit the warranty is "actual" [see Com. Code § 1202(a)(b)] knowledge as distinct from broader notice. The warranty has not been designated an "implied" one and thus is not subject to restrictions applicable to implied warranties per se [U.C.C. Comments 1, 6 to Com. Code § 2312].

[2] Exclusion or Modification

The warranty of title may be excluded or modified, but only by specific language or by circumstances that give the buyer reason to know that the seller is not personally claiming title or is purporting to sell only whatever right the seller or a third person may have [Com. Code § 2312(2)].

§ 502.22 Warranty Against Infringement

A seller who is a merchant regularly dealing in goods of the kind automatically gives a warranty against infringement, unless there is an agreement otherwise. The parties' agreement "otherwise" can be an agreement that expands, rather than limits or excludes, the statutory warranty against a "rightful claim" of infringement [Linear Tech. Corp. v. Applied Materials, Inc. (2007) 152 Cal. App. 4th 115, 127, 61 Cal. Rptr. 3d 221 ("[h]ere the parties' contracts ... were expansive in embracing a warranty that the use of the purchased equipment would not result in any claim of infringement"; original emphasis)]. The warranty is that the goods will be delivered free of the rightful claim of any third person by way of infringement or the like. However, if the buyer furnishes specifications to the seller, the buyer must hold the seller harmless against any claim that arises out of compliance with the specifications [Com. Code § 2312(3)].

A "rightful claim" under Com. Code § 2312(3) is not synonymous with a claim that ultimately will prove successful in litigation. Rather, it is a nonfrivolous claim of infringement that has any significant and adverse effect on the buyer's ability to make use of the goods [Pacific Sunwear of Cal., Inc. v. Olaes Enters., Inc. (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 466, 470, 481, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 182].

Special examples of sellers who are not merchants are sheriffs, executors, foreclosing lienors and persons similarly situated, and sellers who are so out of the ordinary commercial course that their peculiar character is immediately apparent to the buyer. No personal obligation is imposed on such a seller who is purporting to sell only an unknown or limited right [U.C.C. Comment 5 to Com. Code § 2312].

44-502 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 502.23

§ 502.23 Express Warranties

[1] Creation by Seller

A seller creates express warranties as follows [Com. Code § 2313(1)]:

- Any affirmation of fact or promise made by the seller to the buyer, which relates to the goods and becomes part of the basis of the bargain, creates an express warranty that the goods will conform to the affirmation or promise.

- Any description of the goods that is made part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the goods will conform to the description.

- Any sample or model which is made a part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the whole of the goods will conform to the sample or model.

When the seller makes "[a]ny affirmation of fact or [any] promise ... to the buyer which relates to the goods" [Com. Code § 2313(1)(a)], there is a presumption that it "is intended to become a basis of the bargain" [see U.C.C. Comment 6 to Com. Code § 2313]. Therefore, unless the presumption is rebutted, the affirmation or promise "becomes part of the basis of the bargain" [Keith v. Buchanan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 13, 23, 220 Cal. Rptr. 392] , and thus the seller "creates an express warranty that the goods shall conform to the affirmation or promise" [Com. Code § 2313(1)(a)]. Rebuttal of the presumption "requires clear affirmative proof" of "any fact which is [relied on] to take such affirmations, once made, out of the agreement" [Hauter v. Zogarts (1975) 14 Cal. 3d 104, 115, 120 Cal. Rptr. 681, 534 P.2d 377 ; Weinstat v. Dentsply Int'l, Inc. (2010) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1229, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614 ; U.C.C. Comment 3 to Com. Code § 2313].

The express warranty in that case is presumptively created solely by the seller's making an "affirmation of fact or [a] promise" that "relates to the goods" and is "made to the buyer" [Com. Code § 2313(1)(a)]. In that event, once the sale is concluded, the warranty exists (unless and until the presumption is rebutted), whether or not any of the following facts can be shown:

- The seller did not use the word "warrant" or a similar word, or the seller did not intend to make a warranty [Com. Code § 2313(2); U.C.C. Comment 3 to Com. Code § 2313].

- The seller's affirmation of fact or promise did not come to the buyer's attention until after the sale was concluded [Weinstat v. Dentsply Int'l, Inc. (2010) 180 Cal. App. 4th 1213, 1230-1231, 103 Cal. Rptr. 3d 614 ("affirmations, promises and descriptions about the goods contained in product manuals and other materials that are given to the buyer at the time of delivery can become part of the basis of the bargain, ... notwithstanding that delivery occurs after the purchase price has been paid. ... Even before purchasing a product, a buyer would reasonably expect any statement or description of the product appearing in a user manual or similar publication to be true, regardless of when the manual was received or read. A seller's defense based solely on the postsale timing of receipt or awareness of the manual arguably would fall short of good faith."); U.C.C. Comment 7 to Com. Code § 2313].
