45-518 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 518.53

§ 518.53 Decisions

[1] Abuse of Process

Knowing execution of false declaration of service is actionable abuse of process. Kappel v. Bartlett (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1457, 1463-1467, 246 Cal. Rptr. 815

[2] Action for Unpaid Taxes

In county's action for unpaid taxes, service on taxpayer is not effective without evidence tending to show that taxpayer was California resident on date cause of action for unpaid taxes arose. Ward v. Superior Court (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 1, 4, 88 Cal. Rptr. 726

[3] Civil Action Pending Workers' Compensation Case

Proper procedure if plaintiff in civil damage action against third-party tortfeasor desires to await outcome of related workers' compensation cases before trying civil matter is to serve summons within reasonable time after complaint is filed and, if necessary, to apply for continuance in bringing case to trial. Black Bros. Co. v. Superior Court (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 501, 509, 71 Cal. Rptr. 344 , disapproved on other grounds, Denham v. Superior Court (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 557, 563, 86 Cal. Rptr. 65, 468 P.2d 193

[4] Foreign Corporations

Service on foreign corporation can be made only in manner and form authorized by statute. Cannon v. American Hydrocarbon Corp. (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 639, 646, 84 Cal. Rptr. 575

[5] Process

"Process" defined. In re Baker (1916) 32 Cal. App. 320, 323-324, 162 P. 922

[6] Proof of Service

Jurisdiction does not depend on proof of service but on fact that service was made. Vail v. Jones (1930) 209 Cal. 251, 255, 287 P. 99 ; City & County of San Francisco v. Carraro (1963) 220 Cal. App. 2d 509, 518, 33 Cal. Rptr. 696 ; Otsuka v. Balangue (1949) 92 Cal. App. 2d 788, 791, 208 P.2d 65

Gov. Code § 915.2 does not mandate strict compliance with the proof of service requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a. Instead, it provides that proof maybe made in compliance with that statute. Also, even where proof of service must conform to the requisites of Section 1013a, only substantial compliance is required. Courts have consistently concluded that listing the city and state where the documents were placed in the U.S. mail is sufficient to satisfy the requirements of section 1013a. [Him v. City and County of San Francisco (2005) 133 Cal. App. 4th 437, 443, 34 Cal. Rptr. 3d 838] .

Proof of service by mail on out-of-state defendants must strictly comply with requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 417.20(a). Bolkiah v. Superior Court (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 984, 1001, 88 Cal. Rptr. 2d 540

Filing proof of service creates rebuttable presumption that service was proper, but only if proof of service complies with applicable statutory requirements. Floveyor Internat., Ltd. v. Superior Court (1997) 59 Cal. App. 4th 789, 795, 69 Cal. Rptr. 2d 457

Failure to follow requirement of former Code Civ. Proc. § 410 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 417.10) that certificate of service recite that summons and complaint served on defendant contained notice that defendant was served in multiple capacity does not deprive trial court of jurisdiction to enter default judgment when service was otherwise valid. Willen v. Boggs (1971) 21 Cal. App. 3d 520, 523-524, 97 Cal. Rptr. 917

[7] Service of Papers Other Than Summons

[a] By Mail

Code Civ. Proc. § 1020 does not require mailed notices to be sent by registered mail. Likewise, while a signed return receipt may create a rebuttable presumption that the notice was received, the absence of such a signed return receipt does not negate any other presumptions concerning mailed items, and a party cannot defeat notice by a willful failure to accept certified mail. Bear Creek Master Assn. v. Edwards (2005) 130 Cal App. 4th 1470, 1486, 31 Cal. Rptr. 3d 337

The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) apply to the 10-day notice requirement set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b), which requires that a section 998 offer be served not less than 10 days prior to the commencement of trial, therefore a mailed 998 offer must be mailed at least 15 days prior to commencement of trial. Lecuyer v. Sunset Trails Apartments (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 920, 927, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 169

Under former Welf. & Inst. Code § 337, notice of jurisdictional and dispositional hearings must be made personally or by certified mail, return receipt requested. Neither service by first-class mail nor by leaving a telephone message constitutes adequate service under California law. In Re Alyssa F. (2003) 112 Cal. App. 4th 846, 854, 6 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1

Successful service by mail requires strict compliance with statute; thus, effective service requires strict compliance with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1012, 1013, 1013(a). Silver v. McNamee (1999) 69 Cal. App. 4th 269, 279, 81 Cal. Rptr. 2d 445 (service by mail of Code Civ. Proc. § 364 notice)

Proof of service by mail was fatally defective when first affidavit did not state address to which request for trial de novo had been mailed and second affidavit, which did state address, was prepared 11 months after mailingand did not explain how affiant had recalled that address. Dobrick v. Hathaway (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 913, 921-922, 207 Cal. Rptr. 50

Strict compliance with section governing service by mail is required. Valley Vista Land Co. v. Nipomo Water & Sewer Co. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 172, 174, 63 Cal. Rptr. 78

Notice by mail entails physical act of depositing written notice in mail box. Bird v. McGuire (1963) 216 Cal. App. 2d 702, 715, 31 Cal. Rptr. 386

Service on defendant of notice of motion for judgment on pleadings may be made by mail when defendant has no attorney of record. Batchelor v. Finn (1959) 169 Cal. App. 2d 410, 425, 337 P.2d 545, 341 P.2d 803, 346 P.2d 795

Burden of proof of service by mail is not on sender. Caldwell v. Geldreich (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 78, 81, 289 P.2d 832

Mere fact that person to be served with document may not have received it does not establish that affidavit of mailing is false. Miller v. Cortese (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 47, 48, 288 P.2d 297

[b] By Service on Attorney

Service on attorney discharged by client constitutes service on client when client failed to comply with Code Civ. Proc. §§ 284 and 285 in discharging attorney. Forslund v. Forslund (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 476, 488, 37 Cal. Rptr. 489

Notice to attorney is notice to client. Mindess v. Goodman (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 566, 570, 18 Cal. Rptr. 909

[c] Service of Deposition Subpoena

As between Code Civ. Proc. § 1987.5 (requiring that in the case of a subpoena duces tecum requiring appearance and the production of matters and things at the taking of a deposition, the subpoena is not valid unless a copy of the affidavit upon which the subpoena is based and the designation of the materials to be produced, as set forth in the subpoena, is attached to the notice of taking the deposition served upon each party or its attorney) and Code Civ. Proc. § 2020.510(b) (providing that a deposition subpoena commanding the attendance and the testimony of the deponent, as well as the production of business records, documents, or tangible things, does not need to be accompanied by an affidavit or declaration showing good cause for the production of the documents and things designated), the latter controls. Thus, service of a deposition subpoena on a nonparty witness is effective despite the absence of a supporting affidavit or declaration. Terry v. SLICO (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 352, 355, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 900

[8] Service of Process

A finding of substantial compliance with the statutory requirements for service of process requires three preconditions. First, there must have been some degree of compliance with the offended statutory requirements. Second, the objective nature and circumstances of the attempted service must have made it highly probable that it would impart the same notice as full compliance. Finally, it must in fact have imparted such notice, or at least sufficient notice to put the defendant on his or her defense. In this regard, it is not enough that the process inform the defendant of the fact of a lawsuit, or even of a lawsuit in which his or her name appears; due process requires notice of the duty to defend.

Carol Gilbert, Inc. v. Haller (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 852, 865-866, 101 Cal. Rptr. 3d 843

Service on a defendant's personal manager was not upheld on the theory a close connection between the defendant manager where it was highly probable that defendant would receive actual notice of the service of process on the manager. An actual notice rule would create a standardless free-for-all in which defendants would bring motions to quash service claiming they never received actual notice and, in many cases, plaintiffs would be unable to prove otherwise. In addition, such a rule would put a premium on defendants developing creative ways of evading service thereby thwarting the fundamental principle disputes should be resolved in courts, on the merits. Summers v. McClanahan (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 403, 415, 44 Cal. Rptr. 3d 338

Strict compliance with statutes governing service of process not required; in deciding whether service valid, statutory provisions regarding service of process should be liberally construed to effectuate service and uphold jurisdiction of court if defendant received actual notice; thus, substantial compliance sufficient; service on person who was ostensibly, even if not actually, corporate officer sufficient under Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10. Gibble v. Car-Lene Research, Inc. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 295, 313, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892

California jurisdiction generally requires strict statutory compliance with requirements for service of original process. In re Abrams (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 685, 693-694, 166 Cal. Rptr. 749

No requirement that summons be served with temporary restraining order. Chrysler Credit Corp. v. Waegele (1972) 29 Cal. App. 3d 681, 687-689, 105 Cal. Rptr. 914

[9] Service of Summons by Hand

When attempted manual delivery of summons is sufficient. In re Abrams (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 685, 694-695, 166 Cal. Rptr. 749 ; Crescendo Corp. v. Shelted, Inc. (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 209, 212, 72 Cal. Rptr. 776 ; Sternbeck v. Buck (1957) 148 Cal. App. 2d 829, 833, 307 P.2d 970

[10] Service of Summons by Mail

Read together, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.40 and 417.20 permit completion of service by mail when the return receipt is signed by a person so authorized by the defendant. The personal signature of the defendant is not required. Evidence that a mailed summons actually reached the individual to be served is sufficient to establish valid service, and thus to establish substantial compliance, even if the summons was signed for by someone who did not have the authority to do so. The Legislature has determined that plaintiffs may serve foreign individuals and entities by mail and has incorporated significant safeguards into the process to create a process that is reasonably calculated to provide notice to defendants. The fact that the internal mail handling procedures of a company may have resulted in the misplacement of documents that the evidence establishes were delivered to the company is not a sufficient excuse. Cruz v. Fagor America, Inc. (2007) 146 Cal. App. 4th 488, 499-500, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 862

Service by mail does not constitute personal service. People ex rel. Cranston v. Bonelli (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 129, 132, 92 Cal. Rptr. 828

[11] Service of Summons by Publication

[a] In General

Nonresident defendant served by publication has 30 days from date of last publication of summons within which to appear in action. Whealton v. Whealton (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 656, 659, 63 Cal. Rptr. 291, 432 P.2d 979

Sufficiency of affidavit for order for publication. Vorburg v. Vorburg (1941) 18 Cal. 2d 794, 797, 117 P.2d 875 (defendant cannot be found within state); Langley v. Zurich Gen. A. & L. Ins. Co (1933) 219 Cal. 101, 105, 25 P.2d 418 (defendant conceals self to avoid service); Bell v. McDermoth (1926) 198 Cal. 594, 598-600, 246 P. 805 (defendant departed state); Bender v. Hutton (1911) 160 Cal. 372, 373, 117 P. 322 (nonresident defendant)

Once a party obtains a court order allowing service of the summons and complaint by publication, a separate order is not necessary to also simultaneously serve a statement of damages by publication before taking a default. Anastos v. Lee (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 1314, 1318, 13 Cal. Rptr. 3d 716

Compliance with statutory conditions for constructive service is jurisdictional; person not designated by own name is not proper party. Sousa v. Freitas (1970) 10 Cal. App. 3d 660, 667, 89 Cal. Rptr. 485

[b] Showing of Diligence Required

Plaintiff's failure to use reasonable diligence to locate out-of-state defendant under Hawaii statute comparable to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50 was established when plaintiff resorted only to phone directory when it could have examined county clerk's fictitious name file or contacted codefendant's counsel. Donel, Inc. v. Badalian (1978) 87 Cal. App. 3d 327, 333-334, 150 Cal. Rptr. 855

Civ. Code § 235(b) requires showing of due diligence to locate and serve parent in proceeding to declare child free from parental control as prerequisite to order for service on parent by publication. In re Beebe (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 643, 646, 115 Cal. Rptr. 322

Affidavits devoid of averments of facts showing that diligence was exercised to make service are not sufficient, and orders for service by publication based on such affidavits are beyond jurisdiction of court and void. Batte v. Bandy (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 527, 534, 332 P.2d 439

[12] Service of Summons on Sister State

Validity of service of process on sister state and its university pursuant to Veh. Code §§ 17450-17463, providing for service of process on nonresidents who operated vehicles on highways of California. Hall v. University of Nevada (1972) 8 Cal. 3d 522, 524-526, 105 Cal. Rptr. 355, 503 P.2d 1363 , cert. denied, 414 U.S. 820, 94 S. Ct. 114, 38 L. Ed. 2d 52 (1973) ; see also Hall v. University of Nevada (1977) 74 Cal. App. 3d 280, 284, 141 Cal. Rptr. 439 , aff'd sub nom. Nevada v. Hall (1978) 440 U.S. 410, 99 S. Ct. 1182, 59 L. Ed. 2d 416

[13] Substituted Service

The plain language of Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b) authorizes substitute service at a defendant's usual mailing address, which can include a private/commercial post office box. Ellard v. Conway (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 540, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 399

Party is under no duty to attempt substituted service of corporation through Secretary of State unless service cannot, with reasonable diligence, be accomplished pursuant to either Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10 or 416.20; Corp Code § 1702 suggests that party serving process on corporation that failed to designate agent for service of process should, and arguably must, first attempt service on both offices and agents enumerated in Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10(b), (c), and on trustee pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 416.20, before resorting to Secretary of State service; only if it can show that it cannot accomplish service by one of these methods is party required to seek assistance of court and Secretary of State in obtaining jurisdiction over corporate defendant. Gibble v. Car-Lene Research, Inc. (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 295, 311-312, 78 Cal. Rptr. 2d 892

Reasonable diligence requirement to permit substituted service ordinarily should be satisfied when personal service has been attempted two or three times; if form of substituted service is reasonably calculated to give interested party actual notice of proceedings and opportunity to be heard, traditional notions of fair play substantial justice implicit in due process are satisfied; pre-1969 service of process statutes requiring strict and exact compliance have now been more liberally construed to effectuate service if actual notice has been received by defendant. Stafford v. Mach (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1174, 1182-1183, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 809

Substituted service is ineffective if service was effectuated at address having no connection to party alleged to be served. Corcoran v. Arouh (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 310, 315, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 326

To obtain in personam jurisdiction through any form of substituted service, strict compliance with statutory procedures is required; to be constitution ally sound, form of substituted service must be reasonably calculated to give interested party actual notice of proceedings and opportunity to be heard so that traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice implicit in due process are satisfied. Zirbes v. Stratton (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 1407, 1416, 232 Cal. Rptr. 653

Substituted service under former Corp. Code § 6408 (now see Corp. Code § 2111) in action for breach of license agreement is not proper if corporation's transactions in California were interstate rather than intrastate. U.S. Cap & Closure, Inc. v. Superior Court (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 408, 409-413, 71 Cal. Rptr. 184

[14] Substituted Service Combined With Service by Mail

Sufficiency of service of summons in compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(a) when summons and complaint were left with person apparentlyin charge of the common reception room serving corporate defendant's office during usual office hours, and plaintiff later mailed copy of same papers to same place. Ludka v. Memory Magnetics International (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 316, 319-321, 101 Cal. Rptr. 615

[15] Summons

The Foreign Money-Judgments Act does not exempt compliance with the procedures applicable to civil actions, including service of a summons. Compliance with the statutory procedures for service of process is essential to establish personal jurisdiction. Renoir v. Redstar Corp. (2004) 123 Cal. App. 4th 1145, 1152

Minor variances, such as designation of defendant in complaint by misspelled or otherwise erroneous names, that are carried over to summons will not defeat jurisdiction when service is otherwise properly made and person served is aware that he or she is person named as defendant in erroneous manner; minor variances may be corrected by amended return. Billings v. Edwards (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 826, 831, 154 Cal. Rptr. 453

Requirement that statutes prescribing form of summons must be substantially observed. Community Redevelopment Agency v. Superior Court (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 164, 170-173, 56 Cal. Rptr. 201

[16] Tortious Service

Allegations that defendants caused service of civil process on plaintiff by pounding on front door of plaintiff's home at midnight in loud and boisterous manner (in spite of fact that home was unlit and equipped with functioning doorbell) thereby awakening plaintiff, his family, and his neighborhood and that defendants had not attempted service previously and had no reason to believe service could not be effected at reasonable time and manner states cause of action for intentional infliction of emotional distress. Golden v. Dungan (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 295, 310, 97 Cal. Rptr. 577

☐ Present originals and copies of the summons to the clerk of the court in which the action is commenced, so that the clerk, after payment of all applicable fees, will issue the summonses.

NOTE:
The summons ordinarily is presented to the clerk for issuance at the time the complaint is filed. Counsel will at that time concurrently present all of the original summonses as well as the copies to the clerk. The clerk will sign and seal [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 412.20(a), 153(b)] the originals, insert the case number, conform the copies, retain the original summons for the court file, and return the copies to counsel [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.10].

CAUTION: Local rules enacted to implement the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act (Gov. Code § 68600 et seq.) may require that service of the complaint be completed and proof of service filed with the court 60 days after the filing of the complaint. Failure to meet this time limit may result involuntary dismissal [see Gov. Code § 68616(a)]. For discussion, see § 518.22[2] and Ch. 552, Trial Court Delay Reduction . ☐ Within 40 days after date of mailing.

☐ If the defendant was served pursuant to some statute other than the foregoing, see discussion of the specific statutes at § 518.17.

[2] Preparation of Papers

☐ A responsive pleading (answer or demurrer), in at least three copies (original for filing, copy for service on plaintiff, and office copy); and

☐ If a demurrer is prepared, the supporting memorandum of points and authorities and the notice of hearing [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1113(a), 3.1320(b)], in the same number of copies as the demurrer [see Ch. 26, Answers ; Ch. 206, Demurrers and Motions for Judgment on the Pleadings]; or

☐ One of the following motions, in at least three copies (original for filing, copy for service and plaintiff, and office copy), and, in the same number of copies, the supporting affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. § 2009] or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5], if any, and the memorandum of points and authorities [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1113(a)]:

☐ A motion to strike [see Code Civ. Proc. § 435; Ch. 375, Motions to Strike: Pleadings; Ch. 376, Motions to Strike: anti-SLAPP].

☐ A motion to transfer pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 396b.

☐ A motion to quash service of summons pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(1) [see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances].

☐ A motion to stay or dismiss the action for inconvenient forum pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(2) [see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum, and Appearances].

☐ A motion to dismiss for delay in prosecution pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(a)(3) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 418.10(d), 585 (relating to entry of default); Ch. 212, Dismissal].

☐ Prepare the certificate, affidavit, or declaration of service [see § 518.62].

☐ If a demurrer or related motion is prepared, attach the originals of the demurrer, memorandum of points and authorities, and notice of hearing or the originals of the notice of motion, supporting affidavit or declaration, if any, and memorandum of points and authorities together. The copies of these documents should also be attached to make three sets. Local court rule may require that these papers appear under a single cover, in which case the demurrer or notice of motion, in its caption, to the right of the title of the case, will list all three papers.

[3] Service of Papers

☐ Serve a copy of the answer and/or demurrer or motions (and accompanying papers) listed above on counsel for plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 465, 1015], either by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013] or as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 1011 [see §§ 518.30 -518.36, 518.62].

[2] Use of Form

The form of summons illustrated in [1], above (with attached proof of service, discussed at [3], [4], below), is a reproduction of the form prescribed by the Judicial Council for use in a civil action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20(c); Judicial Council Form SUM-100]. Use of the form of summons when applicable is mandatory [see Gov. Code § 68511; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.30; see also Clark v. Palmer (1891) 90 Cal. 504, 506-507, 27 P. 375 ; Lyman v. Milton (1872) 44 Cal. 630, 634-635 (statutory form of summons as mandatory)].

[3] Judicial Council Summons Forms

[a] Six Summons Forms

The Judicial Council has adopted five additional specialized summons forms in addition to the summons for general use that is illustrated in [1], above [Judicial Council Form SUM-100]:

- Summons (Joint Debtor), used for enforcing a judgment against a joint debtor who was not a party to the action underlying the judgment [Judicial Council Form SUM-120; see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments, § 254.340 et seq.];

- Summons (Unlawful Detainer), used in unlawful detainer proceedings [Judicial Council Form SUM-130; see Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions];

- Summons (Storage Lien Enforcement), for use to enforce a storage lien under Bus. & Prof. Code § 21710 and Code Civ. Proc. §§ 412.20, 465 [Judicial Council Form SUM-140; see Ch. 517, Self-Service Storage Facilities, § 517.51];

- Summons (Family Law), used in proceedings for dissolution of marriage, nullity of marriage, or separation and in proceedings under the Uniform Parentage Act [Fam. Code § 231 et seq. (inclusion of temporary restraining orders in summons in these proceedings); see Ch. 221, Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure];

- Summons (Joinder), used to bring a third party into a family law proceeding [see Ch. 221 Dissolution of Marriage: Procedure].

[b] Additional Party Attachment

The Judicial Council has also adopted a form of Additional Parties Attachment that may be attached to any summons on which there is not room to list all parties [see Judicial Council Form SUM-200(A); for an illustration of the form, see § 518.71].

[4] General Summons Form Contents

[a] Overview

Except as otherwise required by statute, a summons must be directed to the defendant, signed by the court clerk (or judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 167]), and issued under the seal of the court in which the action is pending [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20(a); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 153(b), requiring that summons be sealed].

The required contents of the summons are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 412.20, 412.30, 474.

Service of summons is governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-416.90 [see §§ 518.15, 518.17].

Proof of service and return of the summons are governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.30, 417.10-417.40, 2009, 2010, 2011, 2015.3, 2015.5 [see §§ 518.20 -518.21, 518.76 -518.78].

[b] Names of Parties

The summons must contain the names of the parties to the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20(a)(2)].

Every plaintiff and defendant, including fictitiously named defendants [Code Civ. Proc. § 474], must be named in the title of the case. Hence, the title of the case as it appears in the summons is the same as that in the complaint.

[c] Title and Number of Case

Although it will not be assigned until the complaint is filed and the summons is issued, the case number must be inserted in the appropriate box of the Judicial Council form.

[d] Title and Address of Court

The Judicial Council approved forms require the title of the court, including, if applicable, the name of any municipal court district or title of any branch court [see also Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20(a)(1)].

The post office and street address of the court or branch of the court must be included in the summons.

[e] Directions, Legends, and Warnings

The Judicial Council form of summons contains the notice to defendant, the legend indicating "YOU ARE BEING SUED," and the warning the defendant must file a response with the court within 30 days after being served with the summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20(a)(3), (6), (b), (c)]. The form also contains a reminder advising the defendant he or she may want to seek the advice of an attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20(a)(5)]. The foregoing appear in English and in Spanish [see Code Civ. Proc. § 412.20(b)].

[f] Plaintiff or Plaintiff's Attorney

The summons must contain the name, address, and telephone number of the plaintiff's attorney, or if the plaintiff does not have an attorney, the plaintiff's own name, address, and telephone number.

[g] Capacity in Which Defendant Is Served

The plaintiff must indicate on the face of the summons the capacity or capacities in which the defendant is served [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 413.10-416.90; see also § 518.17].

If service is made on a person in two capacities, for instance as an individual and on behalf of a corporation or unincorporated association, the notice on the summons must indicate that service is being made on that person as an individual as well as on behalf of the corporation or unincorporated association. If that notice does not appear on the copy of the summons served, no default may be taken against the corporation or unincorporated association or against the person individually served [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30]. The requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 412.30 are mandatory so that service on a corporation of a summons which fails to comply substantially with this section is ineffective [Tresway Aero, Inc. v. Superior Court (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 431, 435, 96 Cal. Rptr. 571, 487 P.2d 1211 ; Schering Corp. v. Superior Court (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 737, 741, 125 Cal. Rptr. 337] . The process server's oral statements to the person served of the fact omitted from the summons does not cure the failure of the summons to contain the notice [Schering Corp. v. Superior Court (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 737, 741, 125 Cal. Rptr. 337] .

Similarly, when a person is served as a fictitiously named defendant, that notice on the summons must be checked and completed. No default or default judgment may be taken against such defendant unless the proper notice appears [Code Civ. Proc. § 474]. Compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 474 is mandatory; if the provisions are not complied with, the court acquires no jurisdiction over the fictitiously named defendant [Armstrong v. Superior Court (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 420, 424, 301 P.2d 51 ; see also National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1966) 247 Cal. App. 2d 326, 328-329, 247 Cal. App. 2d 326, 329, 55 Cal. Rptr. 574 ; see also Nissan v. Barton (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 76, 81, 84 Cal. Rptr. 36] .

[5] Number of Copies of Summons

Counsel will ordinarily prepare (for filing with proof of service) one original summons for each defendant or person to be served. The code makes no distinction between the original and any subsequent or "alias" summons. Hence, subsequent or additional summonses will be issued against any defendant on plaintiff's request [Code Civ. Proc. § 412.10].

Counsel will also need a copies for service or each defendant, and as many office copies and additional copies as desired.

The form reproduced at [1], above, is an illustration of the form adopted by the Judicial Council for mandatory use as an attachment to any summons in civil actions and proceedings if space does not permit the listing of all parties on the summons [Judicial Council Form SUM-200(A)].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Filling Out Form

The short title of the case (normally written as the last name of plaintiff vs. last name of defendant) and case number of the action or proceeding should be set forth in the top two boxes. The appropriate box should be checked to indicate the type of party for which additional names are listed. Only one box should be checked; a separate attachment page should be used for each type of party.

If this form is used, the following statement must appear in the plaintiff or defendant box on the summons: "Additional Parties Attachment form is attached."

At the bottom of the form, the page number and the total number of pages should be set forth.

The form reproduced at [1], above, is the form adopted by the Judicial Council for mandatory use to prove service of summons in civil actions and proceedings [Judicial Council Form POS-010]. The form was adopted to comply with the legislative mandate that all proof of personal service shall be made on a form adopted by the Judicial Council [see Code Civ. Proc. § 417.10(f)]. However, the form is for use in all civil cases, regardless of the manner of service, although additional requirements may have to be met, as, for example, when service is made by posting the premises or by publication. For discussion of proving service by publication, see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 417.10(b), 2010, 2011; also see § 518.16[6]. For discussion of proving service by posting, see Code Civ. Proc. § 417.10(e).

Although the use of the form in [1], above, is mandatory, a form for proof of service of a summons and complaint prepared entirely by word processor, typewriter, or similar process may be used for proof of service of summons and complaint in any action or proceeding in lieu of the printed Judicial Council proof of service of summons form if certain format requirements are followed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.150(a); see [4], below].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Filling Out Form

[a] Block Heading

The name, address, phone number, and state bar number of the party's attorney, or of the party if appearing in propria persona, should be set forth in the first box of the block heading.

The name of the court (including its judicial district and branch name) should be set forth in the second box, and the short title of the case (normally last name of plaintiff vs. last name of defendant), in the third box.

If an order to show cause was served with the complaint and summons, the date, time, and department or division where the hearing will be held should, if required by local court rule, be set forth in the bottom boxes of the block heading. The case number should be inserted in the final box.

Paragraph 1 affirms the person serving process satisfies the age and nonparty requirements.

In Paragraph 2, check the boxes indicating the documents served. At a minimum, the Complaint box should be checked because service of summons requires service of both summons and complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 414.10-415.95]. A plaintiff or cross-complainant must serve an Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) package along with the complaint [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.221(c)]. The court provides the package at the time the complaint is filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.221(a)]. Also indicate whether other documents are served, such as an injunction or order to show cause.

Paragraph 3a requires insertion of the name of the party served as shown on the documents served.

In Paragraph 3b, the first box should be checked if the party specified in Paragraph 3b was actually served. If any other person was served, the second box should be checked and the name of that person and his or her title or relationship to the party should be specified. For example, if the party named was a corporation and the papers were served on an officer of the corporation, the officer's name and title should be listed in Paragraph 3b.

[iii] Paragraph 4

Paragraph 4 requires insertion of the address of the person on whom the documents were served or to whom they were delivered.

[iv] Paragraph 5

Paragraph 5 covers the manner of service.

For detailed discussion of different manners of serving summons, see § 518.16.

Box 5a should be checked if service or delivery was made in person.

Box 5b and the appropriate boxes under it (boxes (1) through (5)) should be checked if service was made by a combination of substituted service and service by mail as authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20.

A declaration of diligence must be attached if service is made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b), that is if service is made by leaving copy at party's dwelling, business, or usual mailing address (other than a United States Postal Service post office box) with competent member of householdor person apparently in charge and by mailing of another copy [see § 518.16[3][b]].

Box 5c and the appropriate boxes under it (boxes (1)-(4)) should be checked if service was by mail pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30 or 415.40. Note that if service was made under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30 [see § 518.16[4]], the proof of service must include the acknowledgment of receipt of summons or other written acknowledgment of receipt of summons satisfactory to the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 417.10(a); see § 518.73]. If service was made under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.40 [see § 518.16[5]], proof of service must include evidence satisfactory to the court establishing actual delivery to the person to be served, by a signed return receipt or other evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 417.20(a)].

Box 5d should be checked when a statute requires or directs a court to order the mailing of the summons and complaint to the defendant in addition to some other manner of service, such as service by publication under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50 or service by posting in unlawful detainer proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.45 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 417.10(b), (e) (proof of service by publication and posting)]. When the mailing is in addition to some other manner of service, Box 3e also should be checked and the manner of service and authorizing code section should be inserted. Box 3e should be checked alone if service was in some other manner than as covered by the form and mailing of the complaint and summons was not required; the code section authorizing that form of service should also be cited. For example, if service was by certified mail under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.47 (relating to abandoned real property), Box 3e should be checked and "Certified mail under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.47" should be inserted.

[v] Paragraphs 6 and 7

Paragraph 6 indicates how service was made on particular defendants. For detailed discussion of how service is made of different defendants, see § 518.17.

With respect to Paragraph 7, any proof of service signed by a registered process server or by his or her employee or independent contractor must indicate the county in which the server is registered and the number assigned to the server pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 22355 [Code Civ. Proc. § 417.40; see Paragraph 5(d)(1)-(3)].

[vi] Paragraphs 8 and 9

Paragraph 8 should be checked if the summons was served by anyone other than a California sheriff or marshal.

Paragraph 9 should be checked if service was by a California sheriff or marshal.

[vii] Date

The date that the proof of service was executed should be inserted on the dateline, and the person who made service should sign his or her name above the signature line.

[4] Computer-Generated or Typewritten Alternative Form

Notwithstanding the adoption of mandatory Judicial Council Form POS-010 reproduced at [1], above, mandatory, a form for proof of service of a summons and complaint prepared entirely by word processor, typewriter, or similar process may be used for proof of service of a summons and complaint in any action or proceeding in lieu of the printed Judicial Council proof of service of summons form, if certain format requirements are adhered to [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.150(a)]. These conditions are as follows [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.150(a)]:

1. The requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.100 (format of papers filed in trial courts) applies except as otherwise provided in Rule 3.714, but numbered lines are not required.

2. The left, right, and bottom margins of the proof of service must be at least one-half inch. The top margin must be at least three-quarters of an inch. The typeface must be Times, Courier, Arial, or an equivalent roman typeface not smaller than 9 points. Text must be single-spaced, and a blank line must precede each main numbered item.

Rules of Ct., Rule 2.150(b)*].

[5] Filing

After a summons has been served on a person, proof of service of the summons must be filed, unless the defendant has previously made a general appearance [Code Civ. Proc. § 417.30]. Proof of service of the summons must be filed within 60 days after the time the summons and complaint must be served upon a defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210(b)], in order to implement the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act (Gov. Code § 68600 et seq.) [see, e.g., San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. II, Rule 2.1.5; see also Gov. Code § 68616(a); discussion at § 518.22[2]].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1014 defines acts that constitute an appearance [see § 518.31[2]]. For discussion of what constitutes a general appearance, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal Jurisdiction, Inconvenient Forum and Appearances, § 323.60 et seq.

[6] Number of Copies

Unless the proof of service is prepared by someone else, signed, and returned to counsel, prepare the proof of service (affidavit, declaration, or certificate) in two copies (original for filing and office copy). For discussion of return of summons, see § 518.21.

[2] Source and Use of Form

The Notice and Acknowledgment of Receipt reproduced at [1], above, is the form prescribed by the Judicial Council for use when the summons is served by mail pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30 [Judicial Council Form POS-015].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

If service is made by mail pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30 [see § 518.16[4], [5]], proof of service must include the acknowledgment of receipt of summons in the form provided by that statute or other written acknowledgment of receipt of summons satisfactory to the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 417.10(a)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30(b) sets forth a form of notice and requires that the notice and acknowledgment be in substantially that form. Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30(e), however, provides that a notice or acknowledgment of receipt in the form approved by the Judicial Council is deemed to comply with this section. Use of the Judicial Council form when applicable is mandatory [Gov. Code § 68511; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.30(b)].

For the form of proof of service, see § 518.72

[3] Failure of Person Served to Acknowledge Receipt

The failure to complete and return the acknowledgment form (or other written form of acknowledgment satisfactory to the court) within 20 days from the date the papers were mailed renders the person served liable to the serving party for reasonable expenses thereafter incurred in serving or attempting to serve the person by another method permitted by law. Except for good cause shown, the court in which the action is pending is required, on motion with or without notice, to award the party those expenses whether or not the party is otherwise entitled to recover costs in the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.30(d)].

[b] Use of Form

The form set forth in [a], above, is for use in securing an order for publication of a summons [see [2][a], below] when defendant's whereabouts are unknown and defendant has no known or fixed location where service can be effected in a manner specified in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.10-415.40.

[c] Local Forms

Some trial courts, for example Los Angeles Superior Court, provide their own preprinted form of application for an order for publication. When acourt has its own form, that form should, of course, be used. Blank copies may be obtained in that case from the court clerk's office.

[d] Procedure

While practice may vary from court to court, the normal procedure appears to be for counsel to present the original of the application and order to a judge at chambers for his or her signature [see Code Civ. Proc. § 166(a)(1)]. If the judge signs the order, the originals of the application and order will be filed and the copies conformed and returned to counsel. Counsel will then deliver a conformed copy of the order together with the summons to the newspaper which is to publish it. On completion of publication, the newspaper will prepare and file with the court a proof of service [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 417.10(b), 2010, 2011].

[e] Caption

Application for the order is made by affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(a)] or, as in the foregoing form, by a declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]. The application will be entitled "EX PARTE APPLICATION FOR ORDER FOR PUBLICATION OF SUMMONS" [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(6)]. Except for this title, the caption will conform to the caption on papers previously filed in the case.

[f] Showing Required

The application for the order must, to the court's satisfaction, satisfy the following conditions:

- Establish the exercise of reasonable diligence in attempting to serve the defendant by the other methods of service specified in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.10-415.40 (Paragraphs 3 and 4) [see also [g], below]; and

- Show that (Paragraph 2) [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(a)].

  - A cause of action exists against the defendant;

  - The defendant is a necessary or proper party to the action;

  - The defendant has or claims an interest in real or personal property in this state that is subject to the jurisdiction of the court; or

  - The relief demanded in the action consists wholly or in part in excluding the defendant from any interest in such property.

Local court rules may require a showing of other or additional facts and should be consulted before the application for the order is drafted [see Sanford v. Smith (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 991, 1001, 90 Cal. Rptr. 256 (approving Los Angeles County Superior Court rule on scope and content of application)].

The statutory conditions on which service of summons by publication depends to obtain jurisdiction must be strictly observed; otherwise, the court has no power to render a judgment [Bank of America v. Carr (1956) 138 Cal. App. 2d 727, 737, 292 P.2d 587] .

[g] Reasonable Diligence

"Reasonable diligence" denotes a thorough, systematic investigation and inquiry conducted in good faith by the plaintiff or by the plaintiff's agent or attorney. A number of honest attempts to learn the defendant's whereabouts or address by questioning defendant's relatives, friends, acquaintances, and employer and by investigation of appropriate city and phone directories, the voters register, and the property index in the assessor's office near defendant's last known location are generally sufficient. These are likely sources of information and must be searched before resorting to service by publication. The affidavit for publication must show in detail the probative facts establishing a sincere desire and thorough search to locate the defendant, including dates and any attempts made to serve the defendant by another method of service [see Li, Attorney's Guide to California Jurisdiction and Process, § 1.25 (Cal. C.E.B. 1970)].

As a condition of establishing that the party to be served cannot with reasonable diligence be served in another manner specified in this article, the court may not require that a search be conducted of public databases where access by a registered process server to residential addresses is prohibited by law or by published policy of the agency providing the database, including, but not limited to, voter registration rolls and records of the department of motor vehicles [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(e)].

[h] Statement of Facts

As already indicated, the facts establishing the right to an order for publication must be shown by affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(a)]. An affidavit is one of the modes in which the testimony of a witness can be taken [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 2002(1), 2003]. Hence, the facts stated in the affidavit must usually be within the personal knowledge of the affiant and be matters to which he or she is competent to testify. For example, the fact that a cause of action exists against the person to be served [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(a)(1) (requiring that a cause of action exist before service by publication)] may not be established by reference to the complaint which has been verified on information and belief by plaintiff's counsel. That verification is no substitute for the sworn statement of facts which Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(a) requires of the affiant. For the purpose of service by publication, the existence of a cause of action is a jurisdictional fact. Accordingly, an affidavit in proper form is a jurisdictional basis of the order for publication, and the affidavit must contain a statement of some fact that would be legal evidence, having some appreciable tendency to make the jurisdictional fact appear, for the judge to act on before heor she has any jurisdiction to make the order. Unless the affidavit contains some such evidence tending to establish every material jurisdictional fact, the judge has no legal authority to be satisfied, and, if he or she makes the order, the act is without jurisdiction and all proceedings based on it are void [Harris v. Cavasso (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 723, 726-727, 137 Cal. Rptr. 410] .

The facts may, of course, be established by a declaration under penalty of perjury instead of an affidavit [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5] or, when it is executed by a sheriff or marshal, by a certificate [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.3]. But, in any case, probative facts within the personal knowledge (not hearsay) of the affiant, declarant, or certifier, as the case may be, must normally be stated [see Ricketson v. Richardson (1864) 26 Cal. 149, 153 ; Sanford v. Smith (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 991, 998-1000, 90 Cal. Rptr. 256 ; Miller v. Superior Court (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 779, 783, 16 Cal. Rptr. 36] . However, in appropriate situations statements may be made on information and belief. For example, a statement as to the defendant's out-of-state residence would be sufficient, so long as the facts on which the statement is based are set forth [see Davis-Heller-Pearce Co. v. Ramont (1924) 66 Cal. App. 778, 780, 226 P. 972] .

[i] Multiple Affidavits

Since the facts set forth in the affidavits or declarations must normally be within the personal knowledge of the affiant or declarant, if some of the facts are known to plaintiff, for example, and others to plaintiff's attorney or to someone else which, taken together, would establish the required showing, a separate affidavit or declaration for each person should be prepared and executed by the affiant or declarant having personal knowledge of the particular facts. That is, under various circumstances, multiple affidavits or declarations are appropriate. For example, the plaintiff would normally make the affidavit or declaration as to the cause of action; the process server would make the affidavit, declaration, or (if the process server is a deputy sheriff or marshal) the certificate that the defendant could not be found and personally served; the person who made the inquiries and searches locate defendant would make the affidavit or declaration as to those inquiries and searches, and so forth [see Li, Attorney's Guide to California Jurisdiction and Process, § 1.25 (Cal. C.E.B. 1970)].

_____ [signature]
Judge of the _____ Court

[b] Use of Form

The form of order in [a], above, is for use when the court grants an order allowing service of summons by publication. Local courts often provide printed forms of orders for publication of summons, copies of which can be obtained from the clerk's office. If none is provided, the order may be drafted using this general form, stating the appropriate grounds for the order. An order for publication of summons is jurisdictional [McKeon v. Superior Court of San Francisco (1927) 81 Cal. App. 720, 721-722, 254 P. 944] .

[c] Contents of Court Order

When the required showing is made to the court's satisfaction, the court will order that the summons be published in the named newspaper, published in this state, that is most likely to give actual notice to the party to be served and will direct that a copy of the summons and a copy of the complaint be forthwith mailed to the party if his or her address is ascertained before expiration of the time prescribed for publication of the summons. Except as otherwise provided by statute, the publication must be made as provided by Gov. Code § 6064 (once a week for four successive weeks), unless the court in its discretion orders publication for a longer period [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(b)].

If the party to be served resides or is located out of this state, the court may also order the summons to be published in a named newspaper outside this state that is most likely to give actual notice to that party [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(b)].

The attempts at personal service, search, execution of the affidavits, declarations, or certificates, and the court's order for publication mustfollow in reasonably quick succession so that they all relate to conditions existing at the time of publication [Li, Attorney's Guide to California Jurisdiction and Process (Cal. C.E.B. 1970), § 1.25].

[d] Accomplishing Service by Publication

Deliver the original and one copy of the summons, together with a copy of the court order for publication, to the newspaper in which the summons is to be published. In addition, mail a copy of the summons, of the complaint, and of the order for publication to the party to be served if his or her address is ascertained before expiration of the time prescribed for publication of summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(b); for a form of proof of this mailing, see § 518.78].

[e] When Service Is Complete

Service of summons by publication is deemed complete as provided in Gov. Code § 6064 [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(c)]. Gov. Code § 6064 provides that the period of notice commences with the 1st day of publication and terminates at the end of the 28th day, including the first day.

[f] Service in Another Manner

Notwithstanding an order for publication, a summons may be served in another manner authorized by the code, in which event such service supersedes any published summons [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.50(d)].

[b] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in securing a court order that service of summons on a domestic or foreign corporation be made by delivery of the process to the Secretary of State [Corp. Code §§ 1702(a), 2111(a)].

[c] Application for Order

Application for the order is made by affidavit [Corp. Code §§ 1702(a), 2111(a)] or declaration under penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]. For the requirement that affidavits set forth probative facts to which the affiant is competent to testify, see § 518.74[1][h], [i]. The application should be entitled "EX PARTE APPLICATION FOR ORDER DIRECTING SERVICE OF SUMMONS ON DEFENDANT CORPORATION BY DELIVERY OF PROCESS TO SECRETARY OF STATE" [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(6)]. Except for the title of the paper, the caption will conform to the caption on papers previously filed in the case.

Although practice may vary from court to court, the normal procedure appears to be for counsel to present the original of the application and of the order [see [2], below] to a judge at chambers for his or her signature [see Code Civ. Proc. § 166(a)(1)]. If the judge signs the order, the originals of the application and order will be filed and the copies conformed and returned to counsel. Counsel will then deliver the required copy or copies of the order and process, together with the required fee, to an assistant or deputy in the Secretary of State's office in person or have them personally so delivered.

The certificate of the Secretary of State, under his or her official se al, certifying to the receipt of process, the giving of notice thereof to the corporation, and the forwarding of the process is competent and prima facie evidence of the matters stated in it [Corp. Code §§ 1702(c), 2111(c)].

[e] Showing Required

[i] Domestic Corporation

Service on a domestic corporation by delivery of process to the Secretary of State is authorized by Corp. Code § 1702(a) [see also Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10(d)], which provides that if the agent for service of process has resigned and not been replaced, or if the agent cannot with reasonable diligence be found at the address designated for service, or if no agent hasbeen designated, and it is shown by affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) to the court's satisfaction that process cannot be served with reasonable diligence on the designated agent as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 415.10 (personal delivery), 415.20(a) (combination of substituted service and service by mail), or 415.30(a) (service by mail and acknowledgment of receipt), or on the corporation in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10(a)-(c) (service on agent or officer) or 416.20 (service on defunct corporation), the court may order that service be made on the corporation by hand delivery to the Secretary of State, or to an assistant or deputy secretary of state, of one copy of the process for each defendant to be served, together with a copy of the court order. Service in this manner is deemed complete on the 10th day after the process is delivered to the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 1702(a)].

[ii] Foreign Corporation

Service on a foreign corporation by delivery of process to the Secretary of State is authorized by Corp. Code § 2111(a) [see also Code Civ. Proc. § 416.10(d)], which provides that if the agent designated for the service of process is a natural person and cannot be found with due diligence at the address stated in the designation or if the agent is a corporation and no person can with due diligence be found to whom the delivery authorized by Corp. Code § 2110 (corporate officer or general manager, or, in case of bank, cashier or assistant cashier, or agent designated for service of process) can be found after diligent search and it is so shown by affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) to the court's satisfaction, the court may order that service be made by personal delivery to the Secretary of State, or to an assistant or deputy secretary of state, of two copies of the process together with two copies of the court order. If, however, the corporation to be served has not filed the statement required by Corp. Code § 2105 (to obtain certificate of qualification), only one copy of the process and order need be delivered, but the order must include an address to which the process shall be sent by the Secretary of State. Service in this manner is deemed complete on the 10th day after delivery of the process to the Secretary of State [Corp. Code § 2111(a)].

For further discussion, see § 518.17[1] -[3].

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California that the foregoing is true and correct.

The form in [1], above, is for use to prove mailing of copies of the following documents pursuant to a court order for service by publication [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.50, 417.10(b), discussed at §§ 518.16[6], 518.20]:

- The summons.
- The complaint.
- The order for publication to defendant.

The cited sections do not prescribe the contents of the affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]), other than that it must show "the time and place a copy of the summons and of the complaint were mailed to the party to be served" [Code Civ. Proc. § 417.10(b)]. Consequently, the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a, relating to service of papers by mail [see §§ 518.90 -518.93], are usually followed.

For a form of proof of service by mail executed by a member of the California Bar, see § 518.92.

[3] Proof of Service by Publication

Proof of service of a summons by publication is governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 417.10(b), 2010, 2011, as discussed at § 518.20[3]]. The proof of publication is normally prepared by the printer or publisher.

[4] Filing

Both the proof of publication provided by the publisher and the proof of mailing must be filed with the court. When following the provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a, relating to proof of service by mail, it is sufficient for the proof of service set forth the exact title of the document served and filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a]. Thus, the proof of mailing of a copy of the summons and a copy of the complaint, pursuant to the court's direction in its order for publication, carrying its own caption, may be filed without copies of the summons and complaint attached to it. The publisher's or printer's affidavit (or declaration [Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) of publication, on the other hand, is required to be annexed to a copy of the document published [Code Civ. Proc. § 2010] which is then filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 2011].

[2] Use of Form

The Proof of Personal Service--Civil, Judicial Council Form POS-020 reproduced at [1], above, is the form prescribed by the Judicial Council for use when a person at least 18 years of age or older personally serves documents other than a summons and complaint. This form should not be used for proof of service of a summons and complaint; for that purpose, use Proof of Service of Summons (form POS-010) [see § 518.72].

The Attachment to Proof of Personal Service--Civil (Documents Served), Judicial Council Form POS-020(D) is the form prescribed by the Judicial Council for listing the documents served when there is insufficient space to list the documents served on Judicial Council Form POS-020. The Attachment to Proof of Personal Service--Civil (Persons Served), Judicial Council Form POS-020(P) is the form prescribed by the Judicial Council for listing the persons served when there is insufficient space to list the persons served on Judicial Council Form POS-020.

These forms are optional and may be used by parties and must be accepted for filing by all courts [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.35].

Another set of optional Judicial Council forms that may be used in lieu of the above forms for personal service are Proof of Service--Civil, Judicial Council Form POS-040, Attachment to Proof of Service--Civil (Documents Served), Judicial Council Form POS-040(D) and Attachment to Proof of Service--Civil (Persons Served), Judicial Council Form POS-040(P). This alternative set of proof of service forms are a catch-all set of forms that allow the person filing out the primary form to select from one of six forms of service: (1) personal service; (2) messenger service; (3) by mail; (4) by facsimile; (5) by overnight delivery; or (6) by e-mail/electronic service. If using this alternative set of forms for personal service, select the appropriate boxes on Judicial Council Form POS-040 indicating personal service.

This form should not be used for proof of service of a summons and complaint; for that purpose, use Proof of Service of Summons (form POS-010) (see § 518.72).

[3] Attorney's Certificate

In lieu of above form, an attorney who is an active member of the State Bar may execute a certificate of proof of service by mail without the requirement of being made by affidavit or under declaration of penalty of perjury [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(2); see § 518.93].

[4] Presumption of Receipt

There is a presumption that a correctly addressed and properly mailed letter is received in ordinary course of mail [Evid. Code § 641].

[5] Presumption of Invalidity

On motion of a party served, service that was made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(3) (placing the envelope for collection and mailing following ordinary business practices rather than depositing the sealed envelope with the United States Postal Service) is presumed invalid if the postal cancellation date or postage meter date on the envelope is more than one day after the date of deposit form mailing contained in the affidavit [*Code Civ. [2] Use of Form

The Proof of Service--Civil, Judicial Council Form POS-040, reproduced at [1], above, is the form prescribed by the Judicial Council for proof of service using one of six methods of service: (1) personal service; (2) messenger service; (3) by mail; (4) by facsimile; (5) by overnight delivery; or (6) by e-mail/electronic service. This form should not be used for proof of service of a summons and complaint; for that purpose, use Proof of Service of Summons (form POS-010) (see § 518.72).

This form is a catch-all form in that it includes both the elements of personal service and service by mail that are already addressed in Proof of Personal Service, Judicial Council Form POS-020 and Proof of Service by First-Class Mail--Civil, Judicial Council Form POS-030; and, it adds the elements required for the four other methods of service listed above. It would appear the better practice is to use the more specific forms for personal service and service by mail when using those methods, and to use this form when method of service is by messenger service, by facsimile, by overnight delivery, or by e-mail/electronic service.

The Attachment to Proof of Service by First-Class Mail--Civil (Documents Served), Judicial Council Form POS-040(D) is the form prescribed by the Judicial Council for listing the documents served when there is insufficient space to list the documents served on Judicial Council Form POS-040. The Attachment to Proof of Service by First-Class Mail--Civil (Persons Served), Judicial Council Form POS-040(P) is the form prescribed by the Judicial Council for listing the persons served when there is insufficient space to list the persons served on Judicial Council Form POS-040.

These forms are optional and may be used by parties and must be accepted for filing by all courts [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.35].

[3] Service by Express Mail, Overnight Delivery, or Facsimile Transmission

Papers served by express mail, overnight delivery, or facsimile transmission involve the same extension by two court days of any prescribed period within which to exercise any right or duty to any act as is provided for service by express mail or another form of overnight delivery [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(c), (e), (f); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.300 et seq.].

[4] Service by E-Mail or Electronic Transmission

Code Civ. Proc. § 1005 is silent as to whether service by e-mail or electronic transmission extends by two court days any prescribed period within which to exercise any right or duty to any act; however, Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) might be construed to extend the times provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) [see § 518.48[3]].

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use to prove service of one or more papers by an active member of the State Bar [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(2)]. It should be noted that an attorney's certificate of service is not required to be made by affidavit or otherwise sworn to and, hence, is not executed "under penalty of perjury." That is, the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5 do not apply to such a certificate, which is merely an unsworn statement of the service [cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.3 (certificate of sheriff or marshal as having same force as affidavit)].

Nevertheless, a willfully false proof of service would constitute a violation of the attorney's oath to discharge the duties of an attorney to the best of his or her knowledge and ability [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6067] and of the duty not to mislead the judge or any judicial officer by an artifice or false statement of fact or law [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6068(d)] and, hence, would subject the attorney to possible suspension or disbarment [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6103].

[3] Contents

The certificate of service must set forth the exact title of the document served and filed in the cause. It must also show the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(2)]:

- The name and business address of the person making the service.
- That he or she is an active member of the State Bar of California and is not a party to the cause.
- The date and place of deposit in the mail.
- The name and address of the person served as shown on the envelope.
- That the envelope was sealed and deposited in the mail with the postage on it fully prepaid [see also Evid. Code § 641 (presumption that correctly addressed and properly mailed letter is received in ordinary course of mail)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Settlement

§ 520.11 Settlement With Authority of Attorney

An attorney must be specifically authorized to settle and compromise a claim, and has no implied or ostensible authority to bind his or her client to a compromise settlement of pending litigation merely on the basis of his or her employment [Navrides v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 698, 702 n.1, 97 Cal. Rptr. 309, 488 P.2d 637 ; Bice v. Stevens (1958) 160 Cal. App. 2d 222, 231-232, 325 P.2d 244]. However, a client is bound by an unauthorized settlement if the client accepts the benefits of the settlement or otherwise ratifies the settlement agreement [Navrides v. Zurich Ins. Co. (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 698, 704, 97 Cal. Rptr. 309, 488 P.2d 637 (action to enforce agreement constituted ratification); Villa v. Cole (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1327, 1336-1337, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 644 (accepting benefits of agreement constituted ratification); City of Fresno v. Baboian (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 753, 758-760, 125 Cal. Rptr. 332]. Further, a rebuttable presumption exists that an attorney has the authority to compromise the client's action that he or she is prosecuting [Gagnon Co. Inc. v. Nevada Desert Inn (1955) 45 Cal. 2d 448, 460-461, 289 P.2d 466]. For further discussion of the authority of an attorney, see Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics .

§ 520.12 Settlement Without Attorney

Litigants may enter into settlements without the concurrence of their attorneys of record. A contrary rule would countervail the public policy that favors settlement of litigation. If there are no elements of fraud, coercion, or overreaching and both parties freely and with full understanding of their rights to the advice of counsel wish to negotiate a settlement without the involvement of their attorneys, they may do so [*In re Marriage of Hasso (1991) 229 Cal. § 520.13 Settlement Agreement as Contract Compromise and settlement agreements are governed by the legal principles applicable to contracts in general [Folsom v. Butte County Assn. of Governments (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 668, 677, 186 Cal. Rptr. 589, 652 P.2d 437 ; Vaillette v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. (1994) 18 Cal. App. 4th 680, 686, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807 ; In re Marriage of Hasso (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1174, 1180, 280 Cal. Rptr. 919 ; Distefano v. Hall (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 380, 385, 69 Cal. Rptr. 691]. The agreement must be supported by sufficient consideration [Tooley v. Parker (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 542, 549-551, 125 P.2d 66 ; see Gill v. Southern Pac. Co. (1916) 174 Cal. 84, 88, 161 P. 1153]. However, if a claim is compromised in good faith, it is not essential that the claim be a valid or subsisting obligation [California Viking Sprinkler Co. v. Pacific Indem. Co. (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 844, 854, 29 Cal. Rptr. 194].

Settlement agreements are subject to any applicable statute of frauds [Nicholson v. Barab (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1671, 1681-1683, 285 Cal. Rptr. 441 ; but see Kohn v. Jaymar-Ruby, Inc. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1530, 1534-1535, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 780 (refusing to apply statute of frauds to bar enforcement under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6); see § 520.21[1]]. For further discussion of contractual enforcement of settlement agreements, see § 520.21.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Settlement

46-520 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 520.14

§ 520.14 Offer to Compromise Pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998

[1] In General

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 998, any party may serve an offer in writing on any other party to the action to allow judgment to be taken or an award to be taken in accordance with the terms and conditions stated at that time [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)]. A statutory offer of compromise need not contain any magic language, so long as it is clear the offer, which must be written, is made under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 and, if accepted, will result in the entry of judgment or an alternative final disposition of the action legally equivalent to a judgment. In the absence of a specific alternative disposition stated in the written offer, a Section 998 offer that does no more than refer to the statute and proposes finally "to settle the case" against a particular defendant for a specified sum will, if accepted, result in a judgment being taken against the offeree by the court [Berg v. Darden (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 721, 731-732, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829].

The written offer must include a statement of the offer, containing the terms and conditions of the judgment or award, and a provision allowing the accepting party to indicate acceptance of the offer by signing a statement that the offer is accepted [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)]. In addition, the offer must remain open for the statutorily designated period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)(2) ("prior to trial or ... within 30 days after it is made, whichever occurs first") [Marina Glencoe, L.P. v. Neue Sentimental Film AG (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 874, 880, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 800].

The Judicial Council has promulgated a standard form (Judicial Council Form CIV-090) for optional use by plaintiffs for offers to compromise under Code Civ. Proc. § 998. The form includes space for acceptance of the offer by the defendant. The Judicial Council form may be used only in civil actions involving a single plaintiff and a single defendant, and the offer and acceptance must involve a money judgment. The court will file the offer and acceptance only if it is accompanied by a judgment prepared for the court's signature and entry of judgment. For an illustration of Form CIV-090, see § 520.110A. For forms for judgment and entry of judgment, see Ch. 318, Judgments .

The offer must be served not less than 10 days before the commencement of trial or arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281, 1295 (agreement to arbitrate and arbitration of medical services contract, respectively) [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)]. The provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) apply to the 10-day notice requirement in Code Civ. Proc. §

998(b); thus, if the offer is served by mail, it must be served not less than 15 days before commencement of the trial or arbitration [Lecuyer v. Sunset Trails Apartments (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 920, 925-927, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 169]. Formal proof of service, or a certificate of mailing is one method by which the date of service may be established. However, formal proof of service is not required. It is sufficient proof of mailing offer served by mail bears a notation of the date and place of mailing [Berg v. Darden (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 721, 733, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(b)]. For purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b), a trial or arbitration is deemed to be actually commenced at the beginning of the opening statement of the plaintiff or counsel and, if there is no opening statement, at the time the oath or affirmation is administered to the first witness or with the introduction of any evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)(3)].

A party who makes an erroneous Section 998 offer may obtain relief pursuant to the discretionary relief provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b). Thus, for example, in typing up a Section 998 offer to compromise, an attorney's legal assistant typed the word "against" instead of the phrase "in favor of," and as a result, the document mistakenly offered to settle the matter for a judgment against the attorney's client. The party making the offer was entitled to relief after the opposing party accepted [Zamora v. Clayborn Contr. Group, Inc. (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 249, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 187, 47 P.3d 1056].

Judicial arbitration does not constitute a "trial" for the purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 998 [Nott v. Superior Court (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1106-1108, 251 Cal. Rptr. 842].

If the offer is rejected, the costs allowed under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1031 and 1032 will be withheld or augmented as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 998 [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(a)]. Items of costs that are allowable under Code Civ. Proc. § 1032 are set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5 [see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.10 et seq.]. Note that both attorney's fees authorized by statute or bylaw and those recoverable under a contract are now considered to be costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(a)(10)]. Thus, if an offer under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 is not accepted, it may affect the plaintiff's right to prejudgment interest and the apportionment of the costs of trial with the nonaccepting party recovering less or paying more costs, depending on the circumstances [see Civ. Code § 3291; Code Civ. Proc. § 998(a), (c)-(e); see also §§ 520.14[6], [7], [8], 520.110, 520.111].

In interpreting a Section 998 offer, general contract principles apply when they neither conflict with nor defeat the statute's purpose of encouraging the settlement of lawsuits prior to trial [T.M. Cobb Co. v. Superior Court (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 273 ; Elite Show Services, Inc. v. Staffpro, Inc. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 263, 268, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 184]. Under California law, a contract is enforceable if it is sufficiently definite that a court can ascertain the parties' obligations and determine whether those obligations have been performed or breached [Elite Show Services, Inc. v. Staffpro, Inc. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 263, 268, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 184 ; Ersa Grae Corp. v. Fluor Corp. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 613, 623, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 288]. The issue of whether a settlement offer is sufficiently certain to be enforceable involves a question of law, which an appellate court reviews de novo [Elite Show Services, Inc. v. Staffpro, Inc. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 263, 268, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 184] .

[a] Definition

A joint offer to compromise is one made either by a single party to multiple parties or by multiple parties to a single party. A joint offer to compromise served on any other party or on each of several other parties to an action must be unconditional [Hutchins v. Waters (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 69, 72-74, 123 Cal. Rptr. 819 (defendant made offer under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 for aggregate sum with apportionment between plaintiffs but conditioned it on acceptance by both plaintiffs)].

[b] Offers by or to Multiple Plaintiffs

A joint offer to compromise made by a single defendant to multiple plaintiffs is a nullity if it fails to designate the amount offered to each plaintiff [Randles v. Lowry (1970) 4 Cal. App. 3d 68, 74, 84 Cal. Rptr. 321 (discussing former Code Civ. Proc. § 997); see Meissner v. Paulson (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 785, 791, 260 Cal. Rptr. 826 (as matter of law, only offer made to single plaintiff, without need for allocation or acceptance by other plaintiffs, qualifies as valid Section 998 offer); see also Burch v. Children's Hospital of Orange County Thrift Stores, Inc. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 537, 544, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 404 (single lump sum offer to multiple plaintiffs requiring them to agree to apportionment among themselves is not valid); Palmer v. Schindler Elevator Corp. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 154, 157, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 339 (to be effective, offer to multiple parties must be explicitly apportioned among parties to whom offer is made so each offeree may accept or reject offer individually)].

Under the general rule, an offer made by multiple plaintiffs is null unless the amount demanded is apportioned among all plaintiffs so that it may be determined with regard to each plaintiff whether the amount awarded after trial was more favorable [Hurlbut v. Sonora Community Hospital (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 388, 409-410, 254 Cal. Rptr. 840]. However, a Section 998 offer made to a married couple asserting damage to a singular interest in community property does not have to be allocated between the husband and wife, and is not inherently conditional on acceptance by both [Vick v. DaCorsi (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 206, 209-213, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 626]. Further, one court refused to apply this rule mechanically under circumstances in which the sole plaintiff whose claim was tried was awarded damages in excess of the joint Section 998 offer [Fortman v. Hemco, Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 241, 262-263, 259 Cal. Rptr. 311 (joint offer of $1 million; verdict for sole plaintiff in excess of $23 million)].

There also appears to be a split of authority regarding the applicability of this rule to a wrongful death action. One court refused to find an unsegregated offer made by multiple heir-plaintiffs to be invalid because, in a wrongful death action, there is a single verdict to be compared to the single offer [Stallman v. Bell (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 740, 745-747, 286 Cal. Rptr. 755]. This court stated that the proper procedure is for the court to apportion, in a separate proceeding, the amount awarded in the verdict among the various plaintiffs [see Canavin v. Pacific Southwest Airlines (1983) 148 Cal. App. 3d 512, 529-530, 196 Cal. Rptr. 82]. Another court has found such an offer void under the view that a wrongful death action is not a joint cause of action, but merely involves compulsory joinder of the separate causes of each heir-plaintiff [Gilman v. Beverly California Corp. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 121, 124-126, 283 Cal. Rptr. 17]. Another court has stated that a wrongful death defendant can settle with either all or some heirs. According to this court, when the claims of all heirs are encompassed in a lump-sum settlement, the court has authority to apportion the settlement, and, if the settlement is with less than all known heirs, the defendant waives the right to face only a single wrongful death action and the non-settling heirs may continue to pursue the action against the defendant [Smith v. Premier Alliance Ins. Co. (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 691, 698, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 461]. For further discussion of the nature of a wrongful death action, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions .

When an offer to multiple plaintiffs does not involve money, such as an offer to settle for waiver of costs, the court will imply that the offer is conditioned on acceptance by all plaintiffs so that the offer is void [Menees v. Andrews (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1540, 1545-1546, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 664].

[c] Offers by or to Multiple Defendants

Multiple defendants who are sued on a theory of joint and several liability may make a joint offer to compromise to a single plaintiff, with all defendants to be released on acceptance [Santantonio v. Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 102, 114-116, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 486 ; Brown v. Nolan (1979) 98 Cal. App. 3d 445, 449-451, 159 Cal. Rptr. 469]. However, the effect of Proposition 51's elimination of joint and several liability for noneconomic damages has yet to be addressed [see Civ. Code § 1431.2(a), discussed in Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution]. It would seem that the amount of any joint and several judgment for economic damages would have to be added separately to each several-only judgment for noneconomic damages to determine whether the plaintiff obtained a more favorable judgment than the Section 998 offer [see Civ. Code § 1431.2(a)]. The sums would be compared to the offer amount separately with regard to each defendant.

A plaintiff seeking damages against multiple defendants may make separate 998 offers to each defendant. In light of the principles of comparative indemnity and the effect of Proposition 51 on joint and several liability, the offer will not trigger the Section 998 penalties for nonacceptance unless it is sufficiently specific to determine the exact amount that the plaintiff is seeking from each defendant [Taing v. Johnson Scaffolding Co. (1992) 9 Cal. App. 4th 579, 586, 11 Cal. Rptr. 2d 820]. Thus, to be effective, an offer to multiple parties under Section 998 must be explicitly apportioned among the parties to whom the offer is made so that each offeree may accept or reject the offer individually [Burch v. Children's Hospital of Orange County Thrift Stores, Inc. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 537, 544, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 404 (in general, Section 998 offer to multiple parties is valid only if it is expressly apportioned among them and not conditioned on acceptance by all of them); Palmer v. Schindler Elevator Corp. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 154, 157, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 339 (offer to three defendants jointly and severally was defective)].

The plaintiff may also make a Section 998 offer to fewer than all of the defendants. The offer as to any particular defendant may take into account that defendant's liability for the conduct of other defendants through principles of vicarious liability [see Lakin v. Watkins Associated Industries (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 644, 658 n.9, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109, 863 P.2d 179 ; Bihun v. AT&T Information Systems, Inc. (1993) 13 Cal. App. 4th 976, 1000-1001, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 787 (both involving Section 998 offers made to employer based on conduct of both employer and employee for which employer was also liable under principle of respondeat superior); see also § 520.16].

[3] Acceptance of Offer

Any acceptance of an offer to compromise pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998, whether made on the document containing the offer or on a separate document of acceptance, must be in writing and signed by counsel for the accepting party or, if not represented by counsel, by the accepting party [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)].

If an offer to compromise pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998 is accepted, the offer, with proof of acceptance, must be filed, and the clerk or the judge must enter judgment accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)(1)]. In the case of an arbitration, the offer with proof of acceptance must be filed with the arbitrator or arbitrators who must promptly render an award accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)(1)]. A judgment or award so entered is deemed to be a compromise settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(f)]. It operates as a bar to the reopening of the original controversy [see County of Los Angeles v. Law Bldg. Corp. (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 848, 853, 62 Cal. Rptr. 542 (compromise agreement resulting in dismissal); Klinker v. Klinker (1955) 132 Cal. App. 2d 687, 695, 283 P.2d 83 (judgment by stipulation); see Ch. 491, Res Judicata]. Although evidence of the offer is inadmissible for proving liability for the claim that the offer is an attempt to compromise, evidence of the offer may be admissible to prove other issues such as the bad faith of the offeror [see White v. Western Title Ins. Co. (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 870, 888-889, 221 Cal. Rptr. 509, 710 P.2d 309]. A qualified acceptance of the offer is considered a counteroffer [Glende Motor Co. v. Superior Court (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 389, 393-398, 205 Cal. Rptr. 682 , disapproved on other grounds, Poster v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 266, 270-272, 276 Cal. Rptr. 321, 801 P.2d 1072].

Section 998 does not expressly require service of an acceptance. Under general contract principles, an acceptance of an offer must be communicated to the offeror to become effective, and consent is deemed to be fully communicated as soon as the party accepting a proposal has put his or her acceptance in the course of transmission to the proposer [Civ. Code § 1582; see Drouin v. Fleetwood Enterprises (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 486, 491, 209 Cal. Rptr. 623]. Any mode of communicating acceptance is appropriate, unless a specific mode is prescribed in the offer itself [Civ. Code § 1582; Hofer v. Young (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 52, 56-57, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27]. Contract law requires that the acceptance be communicated in a clear and unequivocal fashion [Gray v. Stewart (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 1394, 1397, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217]. Prior to the amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 998 effective January 1, 2006, requiring that acceptance of a Section 998 offer be in writing and signed, courts held that an undisputed oral acceptance of a Section 998 offer followed by written proof of acceptance was permitted unless the offer required another mode of acceptance. However, a purported oral acceptance evidenced by written notice of acceptance that included an additional term not present in a Section 998 offer did not communicate an absolute and unequivocal acceptance of the offer as required by Civil Code § 1585 [Bias v. Wright (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 811, 817-821, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 137].

ILLUSTRATION:

Acceptance by Fax Valid Even Though Fax Service Not Permitted by Local Rule. Plaintiff served a Section 998 offer on defendants by mail. Two days before the 35-day time limit, defendants faxed and mailed a letter accepting the offer. In sending the letter, however, defendants put the wrong zip code on the envelope, and the letter did not arrive within the time limit. Further, service by fax is not allowed in defendants' county. After receiving the faxed acceptance, plaintiff's counsel mailed and faxed a revocation of the offer stating that plaintiff rejected the faxed acceptance. Was the acceptance effective even though service by fax was not allowed under local rules of court? Yes. Section 998 does not require that an acceptance be served, therefore statutory restraints on fax service do not apply. According to general principles of contract law, the section 998 offer was deemed accepted on dispatch. Moreover, because the defendants communicated their acceptance within the required time period, it is irrelevant that the confirming letter was misdirected and arrived after the limit [Hofer v. Young (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 52, 56-57, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 27].

Code Civ. Proc. § 998 does not require service of the acceptance. Further, filing proof of acceptance after an attempted revocation of the offer does not affect the validity of an acceptance made before the offer is revoked, since that section does not dictate when proof of acceptance must be filed [Gray v. Stewart (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 1394, 1397-1398, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217] .

[4] Expiration of Offer

If an offer to compromise is not accepted prior to trial or within 30 days after it is made, whichever occurs first, it must be deemed withdrawn and cannot be given in evidence in the trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)(2)]. For these purposes, a trial or arbitration is deemed to be actually commenced at the beginning of the opening statement of the plaintiff or counsel, and if there is no opening statement, at the time of the administering of the oath or affirmation to the first witness, or the introduction of any evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)(3)]. The 30-day period is extended five days by Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 if the offer is served by mail [Poster v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 266, 272-275, 276 Cal. Rptr. 321, 801 P.2d 1072].

[5] Revocation or Rejection of Offer

Code Civ. Proc. § 998 is silent on a number of issues, including what constitutes acceptance, whether an offer may be revoked before it expires under the terms of the statute, and what effect a counteroffer has on the viability of the offer. Because the settlement and compromise process encompassed by Code Civ. Proc. § 998 is contractual, the courts have referred to general contract principles to interpret the gaps in the statutory language [see One Star, Inc. v. Staar Surgical Co. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1082, 1089-1090, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 195] . However, contract law does not necessarily resolve all the gaps in the language of Code Civ. Proc. § 998. Courts properly apply contract principles only to the extent that they do not conflict with the statute nor undermine its purpose of encouraging settlement [Guzman v. Visalia Community Bank (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1370, 1375, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581]. On the one hand, for example, the Supreme Court determined that the policy reflected in Code Civ. Proc. § 998 is best promoted by applying contract law so as to permit an offeror to make an express revocation of an offer before it expires under terms of the statute. Revocable settlement offers promote the public policy of compensating injured parties because newly discovered evidence may indicate greater culpability than originally thought, and the offeror will not be bound to an inadequate compromise [T.M. Cobb Co. v. Superior Court (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 273, 280-282, 204 Cal. Rptr. 143, 682 P.2d 338 ; One Star, Inc. v. Staar Surgical Co. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1082, 1090-1091, 102 Cal Rptr. 3d 195 ; see also Estate of Watts (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1160, 1162-1165, 208 Cal. Rptr. 846 (offer of defendant to compromise terminated by plaintiff offeree's death under general contract principles)].

Similarly, courts have applied contract principles in holding that an unexpired but still unaccepted Section 998 offer is necessarily revoked by a subsequent, different offer [Palmer v. Schindler Elevator Corp. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 154, 157, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 339 ; Distefano v. Hall (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 380, 385, 69 Cal. Rptr. 691 ; see T.M. Cobb Co. v. Superior Court (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 273, 279, 204 Cal. Rptr. 143, 682 P.2d 338 (approving rule of Distefano)]. This is true even if the subsequent offer is defective [Palmer v. Schindler Elevator Corp. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 154, 157-159, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 339]. If a Section 998 offer is withdrawn by a party before its statutory expiration, the withdrawing party's right to cost shifting under Section 998 is determined by the last rejected Section 998 offer [One Star, Inc. v. Staar Surgical Co. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1082, 1093-1094, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 195] .

In other respects, however, courts have rejected contract principles in favor of more "bright line" rules. For example, the Supreme Court held that an offeree's counteroffer does not terminate the original offer. The offeree may negotiate for other terms during the 30-day period, and still accept the original offer unless it is expressly revoked by the offeror [Poster v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 266, 270-272, 276 Cal. Rptr. 321, 801 P.2d 1072]. The Court, in so ruling, reasoned that applying the normal contract principle, that a counteroffer operates as a rejection of the offer, would not only be inconsistent with the purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 998 of encouraging settlements, but would also result in significant and undesirable uncertainty requiring constant resolution of the factual question of whether a particular communication constituted a counteroffer or merely an inquiry into the possibility of different terms [Poster v. Southern Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 266, 271-272, 276 Cal. Rptr. 321, 801 P.2d 1072].

Citing this reasoning in Poster, one court of appeal rejected the application of normal contract principles with respect to what constitutes an offeree's rejection of a Section 998 offer, adopting instead another bright line rule. The court ruled that, absent an unequivocal rejection of a Section 998 offer, the offer remains effective and may be accepted until it has been revoked or has expired under the terms of the statute [Guzman v. Visalia Community Bank (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1370, 1378, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581]. Thus, an offeree's communication that merely criticizes or disparages a Section 998 offer, without expressly rejecting it, does not operate as a rejection that terminates the offer, notwithstanding contrary contract principles [Guzman v. Visalia Community Bank (1999) 71 Cal. App. 4th 1370, 1376-1378, 84 Cal. Rptr. 2d 581].

Along these same lines, another court of appeal held that communications made during judicial arbitration, which do not constitute an express rejection or an express revocation of a Section 998 offer, do not terminate the offer, and if that offer has not yet expired under the statute it may still be accepted by the offeree following such arbitration [Nott v. Superior Court (1988) 204 Cal. App. 3d 1102, 1108-1109, 251 Cal. Rptr. 842].

An offer unilaterally revoked before the expiration of the period specified by Code Civ. Proc. § 998 forfeits its status as an offer under the remaining provisions of that section. Thus, for example, a Section 998 offer that is unilaterally revoked before the expiration of the statutory period does not trigger the cost shifting provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 998 [Marcey v. Romero (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1211, 1215-1217, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 402] .

[6] Effect of Defendant's Offer on Costs

If an offer made by a defendant (or cross defendant) under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 is not accepted and the plaintiff (or cross complainant) fails to obtain a more favorable judgment or award, the plaintiff does not recover his or her postoffer costs and must pay the defendant's costs from the time of the offer. In addition, in any action or proceeding other than an eminent domain action, the court or arbitrator, in its discretion, may require the plaintiff to pay a reasonable sum to cover costs of the service of expert witnesses, who are not regular employees of any party, actually incurred and reasonably necessary preparation of the defendant's case for trial or arbitration, or presentation of defendant's case during trial or arbitration, or both [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(c)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 998(f) ("plaintiff" includes cross complainant and "defendant" includes cross defendant)].

If an offer made by a defendant is not accepted and the plaintiff fails to obtain a more favorable judgment or award, the costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 998, from the time of the offer, are deducted from any damages awarded in favor of the plaintiff. If the costs awarded to the defendant exceed plaintiff's damages, the net amount is awarded to the defendant and judgment or award is entered accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(e); see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.10 et seq.].

[7] Effect of Offer on Cost of Expert Witness Services

[a] In General

Although expert witness fees not ordered by the court are generally not recoverable as costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 1033.5(b)(1)], Code Civ. Proc. § 998(c)(1) expressly authorizes augmentation of recoverable costs to include expert witness fees as within the court's discretion when plaintiff rejects defendant's offer and then fails to obtain a more favorable judgment or award [People ex rel. Lockyer v. Fremont General Corp. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1264-1265, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127]. It is not against public policy to award defendant expert witness fees in an action for civil penalties, restitution or injunctive relief brought by the Attorney General pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200, 17500 [People ex rel. Lockyer v. Fremont General Corp. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1265-1267, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127]. However, this case was decided before the effective date of Code Civ. Proc. § 998(g)(2) (January 1, 2002) which provides the 998 offers do not apply in enforcement actions brought in the name of the state of California by the attorney general, a district attorney, or a city attorney acting as a public prosecutor [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(g)(2)].

The costs for services of expert witnesses, whether recoverable by the plaintiff or defendant after a rejected 998 offer, may not exceed those specified in Gov. Code § 68092.5 [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(h); see Evers v. Cornelson (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 310, 314-320, 209 Cal. Rptr. 497 (discussing scope of recoverable expenses for expert witnesses under Code Civ. Proc. § 998)]. This reference means that any fees charged for trial time may not exceed the expert's normal rate [Santantonio v. Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 102, 123, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 486]. Police officers are considered expert witnesses [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(f)]. Fees are not assessed with regard to a witness who testifies both as a percipient witness and an expert [Stiles v. Estate of Ryan (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 1057, 1067, 219 Cal. Rptr. 647].

The award and amount of expert witness costs to either plaintiff or defendant is within the discretion of the court and will be set aside only for abuse of discretion [Santantonio v. Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 102, 121, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 486 ; Brake v. Beech Aircraft Corp. (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 930, 940, 229 Cal. Rptr. 336]. If there are multiple parties and expert costs are to be assessed against only one of them, it is within the court's discretion to award only a proportionate share [see Santantonio v. Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 102, 124-125, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 486]. It has been noted, in dicta, that the court may consider a party's ability to pay in exercising its discretion with regard to expert costs [see Santantonio v. Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 102, 125 n.7, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 486].

[b] Recovery by Plaintiff

If a defendant does not accept an offer made by the plaintiff and subsequently fails to obtain a more favorable judgment or award in any action or proceeding other than an eminent domain action, the court or arbitrator, in its discretion, may require the defendant to pay a reasonable sum to cover the costs of the services of expert witnesses (other than regular employees of any party) actually incurred and reasonably necessary in preparation of the plaintiff's case for trial or arbitration, or presentation of plaintiff's case during trial or arbitration, or both, in addition to the other allowable costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(d); see Weisman v. Blue Shield of California (1984) 163 Cal. App. 3d 61, 68, 209 Cal. Rptr. 169].

[8] Effect of Plaintiff's Offer on Prejudgment Interest in Personal Injury Action Under Civ. Code § 3291

[a] Recovery by Plaintiff

If a plaintiff makes a Code Civ. Proc. § 998 offer that the defendant does not accept prior to trial or within 30 days, whichever occurs first, and then obtains a more favorable judgment, the plaintiff is entitled to prejudgment interest under Civ. Code § 3291 in addition to costs. Civ. Code § 3291 has a narrower application than Code Civ. Proc. § 998. It applies only in actions brought to recover damages for personal injury, whether by negligence or by willful intent and whether the injury was fatal or otherwise [Civ. Code § 3291]. However, the Civ. Code § 3291 is pre-empted in actions brought under the Federal Employers Liability Act [Lund v. San Joaquin Valley Railroad (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1, 13-15, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 412, 71 P.3d 770].

The purpose of awarding prejudgment interest under Civ. Code § 3291 is to encourage settlements by creating a risk of increased cost to the defendant [Gutierrez v. State Ranch Services (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 83, 88, 198 Cal. Rptr. 16 (rejecting retroactive application to offers made prior to January 1, 1983)]. There is no requirement that the complaint include a separate prayer for prejudgment interest [Lakin v. Watkins Associated Industries (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 644, 662 n.12, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109, 863 P.2d 179]. The award is not considered to be in the nature of additional damages [Mendez v. Kurten (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 481, 486, 215 Cal. Rptr. 924].

The award is mandatory if the conditions of the statute are met, even if the defendant ultimately offers to settle for an amount that exceeds the judgment [Morin v. ABA Recovery Service, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 200, 205-207, 240 Cal. Rptr. 509]. The plaintiff bears the burden of proving entitlement to prejudgment interest [Morin v. ABA Recovery Service, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 200, 207-212, 240 Cal. Rptr. 509 ; see Lakin v. Watkins Associated Industries (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 644, 657-662, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109, 863 P.2d 179].

A judgment does not operate to terminate rights to prejudgment interest under Code of Civ. § 998 and Civ. Code § 3291, when that judgment is later vacated and a new trial is held [Saakyan v. Modern Auto, Inc. (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 383, 389-392, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 674].

[b] Definition of Personal Injury Action

Whether a claim is one for "personal injury" within the meaning of the statute depends on the nature of the action, not on the damages sought [Holmes v. General Dynamics Corp. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1418, 1435-1437, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 172]. The scope of the term is broader than "bodily injury," but does not encompass all actions sounding in tort. Actions that essentially involve invasion of a property right are not within the statute, even though damages for incidental emotional distress may be recoverable [Gourley v. State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co., (1991) 279 Cal. Rptr. 307, 806 P.2d 1342 .] It does encompass claims of emotional distress that are not merely incidental to an invasion of a property interest [Lakin v. Watkins Associated Industries (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 644, 657 n.8, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109, 863 P.2d 179 .] Under this distinction, prejudgment interest has been allowed, for example, on claims for defamation [O'Hara v. Storer Communications, Inc. (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1101, 1117-1119, 282 Cal. Rptr. 712] and denied on claims for bad-faith insurance practices [Gourley v. State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co. (1991) 279 Cal. Rptr. 307, 806 P.2d 1342] and wrongful termination in violation of public policy [Holmes v. General Dynamics Corp. (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1418, 1435-1437, 22 Cal. Rptr. 2d 172]. The statute has been held to apply to actions brought on a strict products liability theory [Fortman v. Hemco, Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 241, 262, 259 Cal. Rptr. 311].

[c] Allocation of Award in Mixed Action

If a judgment awards both personal injury and other damages, prejudgment interest may be awarded only on the personal injury portion. A plaintiff who seeks recovery both for personal injury and other injury bears the burden of proving what portion of the judgment constitutes damages for personal injury [Lakin v. Watkins Associated Industries (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 644, 661, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109, 863 P.2d 179]. Special jury findings should be requested in order to allocate the damages awarded among the various injuries [Morin v. ABA Recovery Service, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 200, 211-212, 240 Cal. Rptr. 509]. Interest is computed only on the part of the judgment that represents compensatory damages for personal injury; interest is not computed on any punitive damages that are awarded [Lakin v. Watkins Associated Industries (1993) 6 Cal. 4th 644, 662-664, 25 Cal. Rptr. 2d 109, 863 P.2d 179].

[d] Calculation of Amount of Prejudgment Interest

Prejudgment interest is awarded at the legal rate of 10 percent per annum, calculated from the date of the plaintiff's first Section 998 offer that is exceeded by the judgment [Civ. Code § 3291]. When there are two successive unaccepted Section 998 offers tendered by a successful plaintiff in personal injury litigation and that plaintiff subsequently recovers a judgment in excess of either offer, the prejudgment interest awarded pursuant to Civ. Code § 3291 begins from the date of the first offer [Ray v. Goodman (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 83, 87-92, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659] .

Interest accrues until the judgment is satisfied [Civ. Code § 3291]. The 10-percent interest rate of Civ. Code § 3291 is not combined with the 10-percent interest rate of Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010(a) (judgment bears 10-percent rate of interest from date judgment rendered) to give a combined interest rate of 20 percent, but instead is applied separately or conjunctively with Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010(a) to permit recovery of no more than a 10-percent rate of interest for the covered time period [Mendez v. Kurten (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 481, 487, 215 Cal. Rptr. 924 (applied separately or conjunctively so as not to offend Cal. Const., art. XV, § 1)].

[e] Effect of Policy-Limit Offer by Insurer

An insurer may, if authorized by appropriate policy language, terminate any obligation to pay prejudgment interest assessed against its insured under Civ. Code § 3291 by making an offer to settle for the policy limits. There is no requirement that the insurer show a reasonable possibility that the policy-limits offer will be accepted [State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Crane (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1127, 1134-1138, 266 Cal. Rptr. 422].

[f] Application During Arbitration

In addition to proceedings in court, Civ. Code § 3291 has been held to apply to offers made and judgments entered in cases resolved by judicial arbitration [Wagy v. Brown (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1, 8-10, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 48 ; Joyce v. Black (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 318, 322-323, 266 Cal. Rptr. 8]. It has been held not to apply to cases resolved by contractual arbitration [Woodard v. Southern Cal. Permanente Medical Group (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 656, 665-666, 217 Cal. Rptr. 514]. By its terms, the statute does not apply to a public entity or to a public employee for an act or omission within the scope of employment [Civ. Code § 3291].

[9] Determination of Whether More Favorable Judgment Was Obtained

[a] Post Offer Costs Excluded

In determining whether the plaintiff obtains a more favorable judgment, the court or arbitrator must exclude the postoffer costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(c)(2)(A)].

The Legislature's intent in enacting Code Civ. Proc. § 998(c)(2)(A) was to supersede the holding in Encinitas Plaza Real v. Knight (1989) 209 Cal. App. 3d 996, 1001, 1003, 257 Cal. Rptr. 646 , that attorney's fees awarded to the prevailing party were not costs for purposes of Section 998 but were a part of the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(c)(2)(B)].

[b] Joint Offers

In the case of an offer made by or to multiple parties, whether a party has obtained a more favorable judgment may require that a joint offer be properly apportioned among the parties [see Hurlbut v. Sonora Community Hospital (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 388, 409-410, 254 Cal. Rptr. 840]. For further discussion of joint offers, see § 520.14[2].

[c] Structured Settlements

Offers that are completely or partially in the form of a structured settlement are neither expressly authorized nor prohibited by the statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 998]. However, such an offer, if it is made, involves valuation problems. The offeror bears the burden of proving that the present value of the payments called for under the offer is less or more than the amount obtained at trial [Hurlbut v. Sonora Community Hospital (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 388, 408-409, 254 Cal. Rptr. 840 ; see Atkins v. Strayhorn (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 1380, 1398-1399, 273 Cal. Rptr. 231].

[10] Post Offer Debt Payments in Action on Debt

In a contract action on a debt, when the defendant makes a Section 998 offer that is not accepted, and then afterwards makes a voluntary payment on the debt that is the subject of the action, this payment to plaintiff must be included with any judgment awarded in plaintiff's favor, when determining whether or not the judgment is less favorable than the settlement offer for purposes of awarding post offer costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 [Mesa Forest Products, Inc. v. St. Paul Mercury Ins. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 324, 334-335, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 398]. For example, in Mesa Forest Products, defendant in a contract action on a debt made a settlement offer to plaintiff of $62,690. After the offer expired, the defendant made a voluntary and unilateral payment on the debt in the amount of $62,690. The jury, after having been appraised of defendant's $62,690 payment, awarded plaintiff damages of only $13,205. Defendant argued that it was entitled to post offer costs and fees because the offer exceeded this award. The trial court, however, compared the amount of the offer not just with the amount of the award, but with the amount of the sum of the award, plaintiff's pre-offer costs, and the defendant's payment, the last of which the jury had applied to offset the damages it awarded to plaintiff. As this total exceeded the unaccepted offer, the trial court ruled that plaintiff, rather than defendant, was entitled to recover post offer costs and fees. The court of appeal agreed, reasoning that to hold otherwise would lead to absurd results contrary to the purpose underlying Code Civ. Proc. § 998 [Mesa Forest Products, Inc. v. St. Paul Mercury Ins. Co. (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 324, 334-335, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 398].

[11] Post-Offer Payments Not Under Contract

Post-offer payments by a non-prevailing party who made the Section 998 offer to the prevailing party can be properly included in the determination of whether the prevailing party obtained a more favorable recovery, even when the action is not on a contract. For example, a condominium owner was found to have obtained a recovery more favorable than the Section 998 offer made by the homeowner's association she sued for failure to properly maintain the common areas, resulting in damage to her unit. She sued for damages and declaratory relief. The association admitted its liability and agreed to perform its obligations. After making the Section 998 offer, which the owner refused, the association paid her sums of money for a variety of things. The trial court specifically added that sum to the jury's award to determine that the award was more favorable than the offer. The court of appeal agreed with the trial court's analysis and held that when a Section 998 offer includes a nonmonetary component, the offer must be evaluated in light of all the terms and conditions attached to it, not just the monetary component, in order to determine whether the plaintiff has received a more favorable judgment. When the reverse is true, i.e., the offer contains only a monetary offer but the relief recovered is both monetary and nonmonetary, the trial court must also consider the offer in light of the totality of the recovery [Arias v. Katella Townhouse Homeowners Assn., Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 847, 853-856, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 113].

[12] Post-Offer Prejudgment Interest

Prejudgment interest accruing after an Section 998 offer has been made is excluded from the judgment when determining whether the plaintiff obtained a judgment more favorable than the defendant's offer under Code Civ. Proc.

§ 998 [Bodell Construction Co. v. Trustees of the California State University (1998) 62 Cal. App. 4th 1508, 1523-1527, 73 Cal. Rptr. 2d 450].

[13] Determination if Offer Made in Good Faith

[a] Reasonableness of Offer

Offers made under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 are subject to a good faith requirement [Barba v. Perez (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 444, 450-451, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 715 (court can determine good faith of offer made before answer is filed); Elrod v. Oregon Cummins Diesel, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 692, 698, 241 Cal. Rptr. 108]. Thus, if a party makes an unreasonable settlement offer that is rejected, even if the offeree fails to obtain a more favorable judgment, the offeror is barred from claiming costs from the offeree under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 [see Elrod v. Oregon Cummins Diesel, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 692, 698-699, 241 Cal. Rptr. 108].

The reasonableness of a settlement offer is evaluated in light of the circumstances existing at the time the offer is made and is a matter left to the discretion of the trial court [Elrod v. Oregon Cummins Diesel, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 692, 699-700, 241 Cal. Rptr. 108].

A judgment that is more favorable than the offer is prima facie evidence that the offer was reasonable. The burden is on the offeree to prove unreasonableness [Santantonio v. Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. (1994) 25 Cal. App. 4th 102, 117, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 486]

[b] Measuring Reasonableness of Defendant's Offer

Two objective tests must be satisfied to determine whether a defendant's offer is reasonable. The first test is premised on information that was known or reasonably should have been known by the defendant. The court evaluates whether, based on such information, the defendant's offer represents a reasonable prediction of the amount of money, if any, defendant would have to pay plaintiff following a trial. The second test is premised on information known, or that should have been known, by the plaintiff [Elrod v. Oregon Cummins Diesel, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 692, 699, 241 Cal. Rptr. 108].

[c] Measuring Reasonableness of Plaintiff's Offer

Although no California court has stated the test for determining the reasonableness of a plaintiff's settlement offer under Code Civ. Proc. § 998, it seems likely that courts will apply the two-part objective test used for defendants' offers. Thus, a court will determine whether the plaintiff objectively knew or should have known that his or her settlement offer was reasonable. Then, the court will determine whether or not the defendant knew or should have known the information on which the plaintiff's settlement offer was made.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Settlement

46-520 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 520.15

§ 520.15 Exceptions to Code Civ. Proc. § 998 and Civ. Code § 3291

[1] Eminent Domain Actions

The procedure for offers to compromise does not apply to an offer made by a plaintiff in an eminent domain proceeding [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(g)(1)].

[2] Inverse Condemnation

Code of Civil Procedure section 998 does not authorize an award of costs against an inverse condemnation plaintiff that obtains a judgment less favorable than the public entity's settlement offer, in an action in which the plaintiff shows that the governmental entity had interfered with the plaintiff's use of its property [Orpheum Bldg. Co. v. San Francisco Bay Area Rapid Transit Dist. (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 863, 878, 146 Cal. Rptr. 5], because an award of costs against a party whose property was taken or damaged by a governmental entity would reduce the just compensation mandated by the California Constitution [Goebel v. City of Santa Barbara (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 549, 559, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 901]. However, when the court determines there was no taking or damage by the governmental entity, there is no constitutional bar to assessing costs against an unsuccessful inverse condemnation plaintiff, and no policy reason to excuse the plaintiff from the operation of section 998 [Goebel v. City of Santa Barbara (2001) 92 Cal. App. 4th 549, 559-560, 111 Cal. Rptr. 2d 901].

[3] Family Law Act

Code of Civil Procedure section 998 does not apply to proceedings under the Family Law Act [In re Marriage of Green (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 14, 23-24, 261 Cal. Rptr. 294].

[4] Enforcement Actions

Code Civ. Proc. § 998(g)(2) specifically excludes any enforcement action brought in the name of the people of the State of California by the Attorney General, a district attorney, or city attorney, acting as public prosecutor, from the provisions of section 998 [Civ. Code § 998(g)(2)]. However, before the January 1, 2002, effective date of this exception, the court held that it is not against public policy to award defendant expert witness fees in an action for civil penalties, restitution or injunctive relief brought by the Attorney General pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200, 17500 [People ex rel. Lockyer v. Fremont General Corp. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 1265-1267, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127].

[5] Arbitration

It has been held that Code Civ. Proc. § 998 and Civ. Code § 3291 do not apply to arbitration [Woodard v. Southern Cal. Permanente Medical Group (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 656, 665-666, 217 Cal. Rptr. 514]. However, this rule has been limited to judgments entered after contractual arbitration; the statutes have been held to apply to judgments entered after judicial arbitration proceedings [Wagy v. Brown (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 1, 8-10, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 48 ; Joyce v. Black (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 318, 322-323, 266 Cal. Rptr. 8 ; see also § 520.14[8]. For discussion of arbitration fees and expenses, see Ch. 32, Contractual Arbitration: Agreements and Compelling Arbitration , Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding , and Ch. 34, Contractual Arbitration: Judical Review .

[6] Relinquishment of Additional Claims

Costs may not be shifted under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 if the settlement offer requires relinquishment of claims in addition to those contained in the complaint that is the basis of the litigation being settled. For example, if a defendant in a personal injury case offers a plaintiff a particular amount on the condition that the plaintiff release the defendant, its attorneys, and its insurance carrier from liability for bad faith or any other causes of action related to the injury, the plaintiff rejects the offer, and the jury awards plaintiff less than the offered amount, the offer is ineffective to shift costs to the plaintiff [Valentino v. Elliott Sav-On Gas, Inc. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 692, 701, 247 Cal. Rptr. 483]. However, the requirement of a general release as part of the settlement does not defeat an award of costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 [Linthicum v. Butterfield (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 259, 271-272, 95 Cal. Rptr. 3d 538] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Settlement

46-520 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 520.16

§ 520.16 Settlement With Less Than All Joint Codefendants

[1] In General

If a settlement is entered into in good faith between the plaintiff and one or more, but less than all, tortfeasors claimed to be liable for the same tort or coobligors mutually subject to contribution rights, it has the following effects: (1) it does not discharge any other party from liability to the plaintiff unless its terms so provide [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(a)]; (2) it reduces the claims against other parties in the amount stipulated in the settlement or in the amount of consideration paid for it, whichever is the greater [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(a)]; and (3) it discharges the settling defendant from all liability for any "contribution" to any other party [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(b); see Goodman v. Lozano (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1327, 1333, 104 Cal. Rptr. 3d 219, 223 P.3d 77 ; American Motorcycle Assn. v. Superior Court (1978) 20 Cal. 3d 578, 604, 146 Cal. Rptr. 182, 578 P.2d 899 (extending meaning of term "contribution" to encompass judicially created doctrine of comparative or equitable indemnity)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 877 does not apply to coobligors who have expressly agreed in writing to an apportionment of liability for losses or claims among themselves [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(c)]. Nor does it apply to contract debts on contracts entered into before January 1, 1988 [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(d)].

As used in Code Civ. Proc. § 877, the "claims" that are reduced as to the remaining tortfeasors, due to a settlement with another tortfeasor, ordinarily do not encompass costs awarded to the prevailing party after the issue of liability has been determined, unless the settlement so specified [Reed v. Wilson (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 439, 441, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 510].

Some courts allow a nonsettling defendant to introduce a settlement into evidence, and then instruct the jury to reduce any verdict against the nonsettling defendant by the amount paid in settlement [see Helling v. Lew (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 434, 440, 104 Cal. Rptr. 789]. Other courts inform the jury of a settlement, but also instruct the jury that the jury's award of damages should be made without considering any amount that the plaintiff may have received in settlement and that after the jury has returned a verdict, the judge will make the proper deduction from the award of damages [CACI No. 3926; see also BAJI No. 14.64]. Still other courts take the view that the presentation of evidence concerning the amount or fact of settlement to the jury is confusing and can lead to abuse in argument [Shepherd v. Walley (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 1079, 1083, 105 Cal. Rptr. 387], and these courts reduce the verdict award by the amount paid in settlement before entering judgment on the verdict [Syverson v. Heitmann (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 106, 111, 214 Cal. Rptr. 581 ; see also Brawley v. J.C. Interiors, Inc. (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1133-1134, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 832].

When each party sues the other for breach of contract, and each party is found by the jury to have breached the contract, the proper procedure for the court is to offset the jury's damages award findings against each other, just as the court would do if there had been no settlement, and to then apply the settlement credit to any net amount of damages for which the nonsettling defendant would have been liable if there had been no settlement [Brawley v. J.C. Interiors, Inc. (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1134, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 832].

For further discussion of the effect of good faith settlements, including discussion of the standards and procedures for making the good faith determination, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution, § 300.60 et seq.

[2] Interaction With Proposition 51

The effect of a settlement on the liabilities of nonsettling defendants and on indemnity and contribution rights are affected by the Fair Responsibility Act of 1986 (Proposition 51), which abolished the rule of joint and several liability for certain "noneconomic" damages [see Civ. Code §§ 1431.1-1431.5]. Proposition 51 is discussed in Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution, § 300.60 et seq. Many of the issues surrounding the interaction of Proposition 51 and settlements are unresolved. For discussion of these issues, see N. Levy, M. Golden & L. Sacks, eds., California Torts, Ch. 74 (Matthew Bender).

[3] Sliding Scale Recovery Agreement

[a] Initial Requirements

When an agreement or covenant is made that provides for a sliding scale recovery agreement between one or more, but not all, alleged defendant tortfeasors and the plaintiff or plaintiffs, the following must be done:

> (1) The parties entering into any such agreement or covenant must promptly inform the court in which the action is pending of the existence of the agreement or covenant and its terms and provisions; and
> (2) If the action is tried before a jury and a defendant party to the agreement is called as a witness at trial, the court must, on motion of a party, disclose to the jury the existence and content of the agreement or covenant, unless the court finds that the disclosure will create substantial danger of undue prejudice, of confusing the issue, or of misleading the jury [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.5(a)].

The amended version of Code Civ. Proc. § 877.5, enacted in 1987, which applies to actions based on acts or omissions occurring on or after January 1, 1988 [1987 Cal. Stats, ch. 1202, § 2], provides that the information disclosed to the jury must be no more than necessary to inform the jury of the possibility that the agreement may bias the testimony of the witness [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.5(a)(2)].

[b] Definition

As used in Code Civ. Proc. § 877.5(a), a "sliding scale recovery agreement" is an agreement or covenant between a plaintiff or plaintiffs and one or more, but not all, alleged tortfeasor defendants that limits the liability of the agreeing tortfeasor defendants to an amount that is dependent on the amount of recovery that the plaintiff is able to recover from the nonagreeing defendant or defendants. This includes, but is not limited to, agreements within the scope of Code Civ. Proc. § 877, and an agreement in the form of a loan from the agreeing tortfeasor defendant or defendants to the plaintiff or plaintiffs that is repayable in whole or in part from the recovery against the nonagreeing tortfeasor defendant or defendants [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.5(b)].

[c] Notice of Intent

In actions based on acts or omissions occurring on or after January 1, 1988, no sliding scale agreement is effective unless, at least 72 hours before entering into the agreement, a notice of intent to enter an agreement has been served on all nonsignatory alleged defendant tortfeasors [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.5(c)]. On a showing of good cause, the court or a judge of the court may allow a shorter time. The failure to comply with these notice requirements does not constitute good cause to delay commencement of trial [Code Civ. Proc. § 877.5(c)].

For a discussion of the validity of sliding-scale agreements, or "Mary Carter" agreements as they are commonly referred to, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution, § 300.60 et seq.

An attorney must communicate promptly to his or her client all amounts, terms, and conditions of any written offer of settlement made by or on behalf of an opposing party. The term "client" includes a person employing the attorney who possesses the authority to accept an offer of settlement or, in a class action, who is a representative of the class [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6103.5(a); Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rule 3-510]. Any oral offer of settlement made to a client in a civil matter should also be communicated to the client if it constitutes a significant development in the case [see Cal. Rules Prof. Conduct, Rules 3-500, 3-510; see also Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.270 et seq.].

§ 520.18 Notice to Court and Arbitrator of Settlement

If an entire case is settled, each plaintiff or other party seeking affirmative relief must immediately file written notice of the settlement with the court and serve the notice on all parties and any arbitrator or other court-connected ADR neutral involved in the case. Each plaintiff or other party seeking affirmative relief must also immediately give oral notice to all of them if a hearing, conference, or trial is scheduled to take place within 10 days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(a)(1)].

If the plaintiff or other party seeking affirmative relief does not notify an arbitrator or other court-connected ADR neutral involved in the case of a settlement at least two days before a scheduled hearing or session with that arbitrator or neutral, the court may order the party to compensate the arbitrator or other neutral for the scheduled hearing time. The amount of compensation ordered by the court must not exceed the maximum amount of compensation the arbitrator would be entitled to receive for service as an arbitrator under Code Civ. Proc. § 1141.18(b) or that the neutral would have been entitled to receive for service as a neutral at the scheduled hearing or session [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(a)(2)].

The Judicial Council has adopted Form CM-200 for mandatory use as the Notice of Settlement. For an illustrative reproduction of the form, see § 520.114.

§ 520.19 Mandatory Request for Dismissal

Unless a settlement is conditional or involves the compromise of the claim of a minor or person with a disability, each plaintiff or other party seeking affirmative relief must serve and file a request for dismissal of the entire case within 45 days after the date of settlement of the case. If the plaintiff or other party required to serve and file the request does not do so, the court must dismiss the entire case 45 days after it receives notice of settlement unless good cause is shown why the case should not be dismissed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(b)].

If the settlement agreement conditions dismissal on the satisfactory completion of specified terms that are not to be performed within 45 days of the settlement, the notice of conditional settlement served and filed by each plaintiff or other party seeking affirmative relief must specify the date by which the dismissal is to be filed. If the plaintiff or other party required to serve and file a request for dismissal within 45 days after the dismissal date specified in the notice does not do so, the court must dismiss the entire case unless good cause is shown why the case should not be dismissed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(c)].

If the settlement of the case involves the compromise of the claim of a minor or person with a disability, the court may not hold an order to show cause hearing before the court has held a hearing to approve the settlement, provided the parties have filed appropriate papers to seek court approval of the settlement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(d)].

If a party who has served and filed a notice of settlement under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(a) determines that the case cannot be dismissed within the prescribed 45 days, that party must serve and file a notice and a supporting declaration advising the court of that party's inability to dismiss the case within the prescribed time, showing good cause for its inability to do so, and proposing an alternative date for dismissal. The notice and a supporting declaration must be served and filed at least five court days before the time for requesting dismissal has elapsed. If good cause is shown, the court must continue the matter to allow additional time to complete the settlement. The court may take other actions that may be appropriate for the proper management and disposition of the case [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(e)].

For discussion and forms relating to filing of a voluntary dismissal before trial, see Ch. 212, Dismissal .

Chapter 520 SETTLEMENT AND RELEASE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Settlement

§ 520.20 Enforcement of Settlement Agreement

Settlement agreements are contracts and are governed by the legal principles applicable to contracts in general [Nicholson v. Barab (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1671, 1681, 285 Cal. Rptr. 441]. Thus, a settlement may be enforced as any other contract, including by way of an equitable action for specific performance [Gopal v. Yoshikawa (1983) 147 Cal. App. 3d 128, 132, 195 Cal. Rptr. 36 ; see also Barndt v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 397, 403-406, 259 Cal. Rptr. 372 (provisions in settlement agreement requiring that party be reinstated to employment are not specifically enforceable)]. For further discussion and forms, see Ch. 528, Specific Performance .

Unless a writing is required by a statute of frauds, oral settlement agreements are enforceable in the same manner as oral agreements in general. If the party proves the oral settlement agreement by substantial evidence and the defendant proffers no valid defense, a court will enter judgment enforcing the oral agreement [see Ryan v. Garcia (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 1006, 1009, 33 Cal. Rptr. 2d 158]. Settlement agreements are not exempt from the statutes of frauds if one would otherwise apply [Nicholson v. Barab (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1671, 1681-1683, 285 Cal. Rptr. 441 (Civ. Code § 1624 applies to settlement agreement for sale of real property); see Texaco, Inc. v. Ponsoldt (9th Cir. 1991) 939 F.2d 794, 800-801 (considering divisibility of settlement agreement partially within statute of frauds); Pietrobon v. Libarle (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 992, 998-999, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 718 (statute of frauds did not render settlement agreement invalid, even though agreement by its terms was not to be performed within one year from making and defendant did not sign agreement, where defendant agreed to terms of settlement on record of settlement hearing and affirmed agreement and its terms in his testimony at trial of action to enforce agreement; see also § 520.21].

A variety of statutes of limitation apply to actions to enforce settlement agreements, depending on the facts. In one case, the four-year statute of limitations for a written contract [Code Civ. Proc. § 337] applied, even though the defendant had not signed the settlement agreement drafted by his attorney, because defendant had agreed to the specific terms in open court at the settlement proceeding. Further, at trial, defendant admitted that he had agreed to the settlement and reaffirmed that the terms to which he had agreed were those set forth in the written settlement agreement prepared by his attorney [Pietrobon v. Libarle (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 992, 997-998, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 718 ; see also Amen v. Merced County Title Co. (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 528, 25 Cal. Rptr. 65, 375 P.2d 33 (when party has agreed to writing, there is no reason to invoke two-year statute of limitations applicable to oral agreements; four-year statute of limitations, unlike statute of frauds, does not require writing be signed by party to be charged)].

In addition to contractual remedies, some settlements may be enforced by a special motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, by which disputes of fact may be resolved [see Skulnick v. Roberts Express, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 884, 889, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 597]. For further discussion, see § 520.21. However, Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 does not apply when the underlying matter has been dismissed and the parties did not request that the court retain jurisdiction either in a writing signed by both parties themselves, or orally before the court at the time of the stipulated settlement as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 [Pietrobon v. Libarle (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 992, 996, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 718 ; Wackeen v. Malis (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 429, 433, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 502] . In that situation, the party seeking to enforce the agreement is left to pursue enforcement of the settlement agreement by means of a separate action. It is worthy of note, however, that matters such as statutes of limitation and the ability to bring an absent litigant back into court make enforcement of a settlement agreement under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 preferable to a separate suit [Pietrobon v. Libarle (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 992, 996 -997, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 718 ; Wackeen v. Malis (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 429, 441, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 502] .

Settlement may also be enforced by a motion for summary judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 437c [see Kilpatrick v. Beebe (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 1527, 1529-1530, 269 Cal. Rptr. 52 (enactment of Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 did not preclude enforcement of oral, out-of-court settlement agreement by summary judgment motion)]. However, summary judgment is precluded if there are disputed facts [see Hastings v. Matlock (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 876, 882-883, 166 Cal. Rptr. 229]. For further discussion of summary judgment, see Ch. 537, Summary Judgment .

Settlement may also be raised as an affirmative defense [see Thompson v. Williams (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 566, 571, 259 Cal. Rptr. 518]. For discussion, see §§ 520.22 and 520.23, and Ch. 26, Answers .

46-520 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 520.21

§ 520.21 Motion Under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6

[1] Nature of Motion

If parties to pending litigation stipulate, in a writing signed by the parties outside the presence of the court or orally before the court, for settlement of the case, or part thereof, the court may entertain a motion to enter judgment pursuant to the terms of the settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, a party who agrees to a settlement in writing outside the presence of the court may enforce it against a party who agreed to the same settlement orally before the court [1538 Cahuenga Partners, LLC v. Turmeko Properties, Inc. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 139, 143, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 552 (Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 does not require that party to be bound consent to settlement "on the record," only that party consent to it "orally before the court"); Elyaoudayan v. Hoffman (2003) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1421, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 41]. For a form for a motion to enter judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, see § 520.115.

Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 provides a summary procedure by which the trial court can specifically enforce an agreement settling pending litigation without the need of a second lawsuit [Timney v. Lin (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1125, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 387 ; Kirby v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 840, 843, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223]. For Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 to apply, however, there must be pending litigation; it will not apply to a settlement reached before a lawsuit is filed [Kirby v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 840, 844-846, 93 Cal. Rptr.2d 223 ; see also Housing Group v. United Nat. Ins. Co. (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497 (parties engaged in private dispute resolution may not stipulate to appointment of judicial referee or judge pro tempore to secure settlement enforceable under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 unless they seek reference in pending litigation)]. Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 does not apply in an ordinary civil action after a judgment, unrelated to the alleged settlement and therefore containing no provision for continuing jurisdiction to enforce it, has been entered and has become final in the sense that the time for appeal has passed [Walton v. Mueller (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 161, 171-172, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 605] .

If requested by the parties, the court may retain jurisdiction over the parties to enforce the settlement until performance in full of the terms of the settlement [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]. The latter provision, added by amendment effective January 1, 1994, is a change from prior law, under which the court had no subject matter jurisdiction to entertain a motion if the action had been dismissed pursuant to the agreement [see Viejo Bancorp, Inc. v. Wood (1989) 217 Cal. App. 3d 200, 206-208, 265 Cal. Rptr. 620 ; but see Basinger v. Rogers & Wells (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 16, 21-23, 269 Cal. Rptr. 332 (noting that court could set aside voluntary dismissal under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 on ground of mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect, and then enforce settlement)]. When the parties do not request continuing jurisdiction, the court has no subject matter jurisdiction on motions Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 once the suit has been dismissed. The parties' request for retention of jurisdiction must satisfy the same formalities that courts and the Legislature have imposed generally on Section 664.6 motions and the settlement agreements they seek to enforce, and the motion must be made prior to the dismissal of the suit. The request must be made orally before the court or in a signed writing, and it must be made by the parties, not by their attorneys, spouses or other agents. If after the suit has been dismissed, a party cannot present a request for retention of jurisdiction that meets all of these requirements, enforcement of the agreement must be left to a separate lawsuit [Wackeen v. Malis (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 429, 433, 118 Cal. Rptr. 2d 502].

On its face, Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 appears to provide a vehicle by which parties who have settled their litigation may move by stipulation to have judgment entered according to the terms of the settlement. The statute does not particularly suggest an adversary proceeding. However, sometimes parties appear to have reached an oral agreement at a judicially supervised settlement conference, but then are unable to later reduce the agreement to writing, perhaps because one party is attempting to renege on the settlement. In such a case, a Section 664.6 motion is often brought not by parties who are stipulating to a judgment, but by a party who wants to enforce the settlement against a party who now claims that there had been no sufficient meeting of the minds [see, e.g., Datatronic Systems Corp. v. Speron, Inc. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 1168, 1174-1175, 222 Cal. Rptr. 658]. This use of the statute has generated a number of appellate opinions and some significant disagreements over its interpretation.

Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 cannot be used to enforce a settlement signed by a party's agent, rather than the party itself, when the agent had sole and exclusive authority to settle claims on the party's behalf. The summary, expedited enforcement procedure afforded by Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 is available only when a settlement satisfies the statutory requirements designed to ensure the parties have actually consented to the terms of the settlement. A writing not signed by one of the parties does not satisfy Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 [Gauss v. GAF Corp. (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 1112, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370 (mass tort settlement silent as to extent of party's obligation could not be enforced under § 664.6)].

Even though there is a strong public policy favoring settlement, Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 does not allow a court to endorse or enforce a provision in a settlement agreement or stipulation that is illegal, contrary to public policy, or unjust [Timney v. Lin (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1127, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 387]. In addition, a judgment omitting material terms of the parties' settlement fails to accurately reflect their agreement and therefore fails to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 [Hines v. Lukes (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1174, 1185, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 689].

[2] Determination That Settlement Is Binding

A Section 664.6 motion may be heard even if there is a dispute of fact regarding the alleged settlement provided that there is a sufficient meeting of the minds between the parties for the settlement to be binding [In re Marriage of Assemi (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 896, 905, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265, 872 P.2d 1190 ; see Malouf Bros. v. Dixon (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 280, 283-284, 281 Cal. Rptr. 235] In determining whether the parties entered into a binding settlement, the trial court should consider the following:

- Whether the material terms of the settlement were explicitly defined;

- Whether the supervising judicial officer questioned the parties regarding their understanding of the terms; and

- Whether the parties expressly acknowledged their understanding of, and agreement to be bound by, those terms.

In making these determinations, the court may consider declarations of the parties and their counsel, any transcript of the stipulation orally presented and recorded by a certified reporter, and any additional oral testimony [In re Marriage of Assemi (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 896, 911, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265, 872 P.2d 1190]. The judge who presided over the settlement conference may also preside over the Section 664.6 hearing and rely on his or her own recollection [see Kohn v. Jaymar-Ruby, Inc. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1530, 1533, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 780]. The standard governing review of the trial court's determination is whether the court's ruling is supported by substantial evidence [In re Marriage of Assemi (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 896, 911, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265, 872 P.2d 1190 ; Conservatorship of McElroy (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 536, 544, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 485 .

When enforcing a settlement under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, the court may not supply material terms not agreed to by the parties. The power to enforce a settlement agreement extends only to those terms actually agreed upon by the parties [Weddington Productions, Inc. v. Flick (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 793, 817-819, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265]. In addition, a judgment omitting material terms of the parties' settlement fails to accurately reflect their agreement and therefore fails to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 [Hines v. Lukes (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1174, 1185, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 689].

Leaving an unresolved term for future agreement is not invariably fatal, because a settlement may be enforceable under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 if the parties agree the remaining issue will be decided by arbitration [Lindsay v. Lewandowski (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1618, 1623, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 846 ; see Weddington Prods., Inc. v. Flick (1998) 60 Cal. App. 4th 793, 801, 71 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265 (parties theoretically could confer wide-ranging arbitration authority on arbitrator, even to extent of allowing arbitrator to write licensing agreement for them)]. However, the parties' agreement on the future means of resolution must be clear [see, e.g., Lindsay v. Lewandowski (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1618, 1622-1625, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 846 (stipulation for settlement was not enforceable under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, when court could not tell what parties meant when they provided for "binding mediation" of payment dispute)].

[3] Written Settlements

A written settlement agreement must be signed by the parties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 ("if parties ... stipulate, in writing")]. The term "parties" in § 664.6 literally means the litigants personally and does not include the litigants' attorneys of record [Levy v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 578, 580, 586, 41 Cal. Rptr. 2d 878, 896 P.2d 171 (resolving conflicting decisions in the courts of appeals, compare Diaz v. May (1993) 15 Cal. App. 4th 1268, 1273, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 409 with Nicholson v. Barab (1991) 285 Cal. Rptr. 441); Johnson v. Department of Corrections (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 1700, 1708, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 740 (applying Levy retroactively)]. Thus, for either a written or an oral settlement agreement to be enforceable, it must have been personally agreed to or signed by the litigant; an agreement entered only by the litigant's attorney is insufficient [see Cortez v. Kenneally (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 523, 528, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671]. The written settlement agreement must be signed by both parties, not just the party to be charged, in order to be enforced [Harris v. Rudin, Richman & Appel (1999) 74 Cal. App. 4th 299, 304-306, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 822].

[4] Oral Settlements

An oral settlement must be made before the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6]. However, Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 does not require that the party to be bound consent to the settlement "on the record," only that the party consent to it "orally before the court" [1538 Cahuenga Partners, LLC v. Turmeko Properties, Inc. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 139, 143, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 552]. This requirement means that it must be at a judicially supervised proceeding [Skulnick v. Roberts Express, Inc. (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 884, 889, 3 Cal. Rptr. 2d 597]. The Calfornia Supreme Court has held that binding arbitration held before a retired judge according to the stipulation of the parties is such a proceeding and is "before the court" [In re Marriage of Assemi (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 896, 906-910, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265, 872 P.2d 1190]. However, a deposition is not before the court, and a settlement placed on the record at a deposition may not be entered as a stipulated judgment under § 664.6 [City of Fresno v. Maroot (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 755, 762, 234 Cal. Rptr. 353 ; Datatronic Systems Corp. v. Speron, Inc. (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 1168, 1173-1174, 222 Cal. Rptr. 658 ; see In re Marriage of Assemi (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 896, 906, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265, 872 P.2d 1190].

There is a conflict of authority as to whether failure to comply with an applicable statute of frauds bars enforcement of an oral settlement agreement. It has been held that a statute of frauds is not a bar to enforcement under Code Civ. Proc. 664.6 because judicial involvement ensures that the purpose behind the statute is fulfilled [Kohn v. Jaymar-Ruby, Inc. (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 1530, 1534-1535, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 780 (involving alleged applicability of statute of frauds to confidentiality provision of agreement because it could not be performed in one year)]. However, another court has found that no policy considerations favor exempting judicially supervised settlement agreements from statutes of frauds and refused to enforce an oral settlement agreement that involved a transfer of real property [Nicholson v. Barab (1991) 233 Cal. App. 3d 1671, 1683, 285 Cal. Rptr. 441].

Disagreements between the parties can arise if they are unable to later reduce an oral agreement to writing, perhaps because one party was attempting to renege on the settlement [see discussion in § 520.21[1], [2]]. A 1993 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 attempted to resolve such problems by requiring parties to place an oral agreement on the record [see Stats. 1993, ch. 768], but this language has been repealed [Stats. 1994, ch. 587 § 7]. The court may consider oral testimony to resolve a conflict between the parties [see In re Marriage of Assemi (1994) 7 Cal. 4th 896, 911, 30 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265, 872 P.2d 1190 ; Casa de Valley View Owner's Assn. v. Stevenson (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1182, 1189, 213 Cal. Rptr. 790].

A nod of the head does not equate with oral consent. Unambiguous assent, expressed orally, i.e., "uttered by the mouth or in words," is required for a settlement to be enforceable under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 [Conservatorship of McElroy (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 536, 550-551, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 485 , citing Webster's 3d New Int'l. Dict. (1993) p. 1585].

[5] Judgment Enforcing Settlement

Voluntary acceptance of any of the benefits of a settlement agreement precludes a party from subsequently appealing from the judgment enforcing the settlement [Epstein v. DeDomenico (1990) 224 Cal. App. 3d 1243, 1246-1248, 274 Cal. Rptr. 521].

A judge hearing a Section 664.6 motion may receive evidence, determine disputed facts, and enter the terms of a settlement agreement as a judgment. In ruling on a motion to enforce settlement, the judge necessarily has the power to resolve factual disputes relating to the agreement. For example, the judge has the power to extend a deadline for performance of the settlement agreement terms in favor of a party who is not at fault and against a party who is at fault. However, nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 authorizes a judge to create the material terms of a settlement, as opposed to deciding what terms the parties themselves previously agreed upon [Hines v. Lukes (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1174, 1185, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 689 (judgment omitting material terms of settlement failed to accurately reflect parties' agreement and therefore failed to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6); Osumi v. Sutton (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1355, 1359-1361, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693] .

For forms for use to bring a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 to enter judgment on a settlement agreement, see Ch. 318, Judgments, § 318.40 et seq.

[6] Time for Motion

The courts of appeal are split on whether a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 to enforce the settlement must be brought within five years after the action is filed, to avoid dismissal of the pending litigation for want of prosecution [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310-583.360 (dismissal for failure to bring matter to trial within five years after action filed); see former Code Civ. Proc. § 583(b)]. Some courts have held that dismissal is not required and that an enforcement motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 may be brought after five years [Malouf Bros. v. Dixon (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 280, 284-285, 281 Cal. Rptr. 235 ; Schiro v. Curci (1990) 220 Cal. App. 3d 840, 844-845, 269 Cal. Rptr. 639 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.340(c); see also Brown & Bryant, Inc. v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 247, 252-256, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144 (five-year period tolled during time when settlement was in effect even though condition precedent to dismissal never occurred); Gorman v. Holte (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 984, 987-988, 211 Cal. Rptr. 34 (decided under prior law)].

However, another court has held to the contrary and required dismissal after five years despite the settlement agreement [Varwig v. Leider (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 312, 315-316, 217 Cal. Rptr. 208 (decided under prior law)]. Under this view, if the pending litigation is dismissed pursuant to the five-year statutory limit, thus precluding a motion under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, the parties nevertheless retain their right to otherwise seek enforcement of the settlement agreement, which remains a contract governed by the general principles of contract law [Varwig v. Leider (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 312, 316, 217 Cal. Rptr. 208].

[1] In General

If a pleading sufficiently establishes a compromise and settlement of a controversy between parties, the compromise constitutes a valid defense to the action. A pleading sufficiently establishes a compromise if it alleges (1) a dispute in good faith over a legal claim, (2) offer and acceptance of the compromise, and (3) consideration [Stub v. Belmont (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 208, 215-217, 124 P.2d 826 ; see § 520.112].

[2] Accord and Satisfaction

Accord and satisfaction may also be pleaded as an affirmative defense. There has been an accord and satisfaction of an unliquidated claim if all of the following conditions are satisfied [Potter v. Pacific Coast Lumber Co. (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 592, 597, 234 P.2d 16 ; Thompson v. Williams (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 566, 571, 259 Cal. Rptr. 518] :

- There was a bona fide dispute between the parties;
- The debtor made it clear that acceptance of the amount tendered was subject to the condition that it was to be in full satisfaction of the creditor's claim;
- The creditor clearly understood, in accepting the amount tendered, that the debtor intended the remittance to constitute payment in full of the claim.

For a discussion and forms for use in settling a dispute by accord and satisfaction, see Ch. 6, Accord and Satisfaction.

[3] Pleading Tender in Action to Recover Money

In an action for the recovery of money only, the defendant may, as an affirmative defense, allege in the answer that before commencement of the action defendant had tendered to the plaintiff the full amount to which the plaintiff was entitled, and then deposit in court, for plaintiff, the amount so tendered. If the allegation is found to be true, the plaintiff cannot recover costs, but must pay costs to the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1025; see § 520.113]. The defendant may make a similar allegation in any action on a contract that specifically provides for an award of attorney's fees and costs incurred in enforcing the contract to one of the parties or to the prevailing party. If the allegation is found to be true, the defendant is deemed to be the prevailing party within the meaning of Civ. Code § 1717, whether or not he or she is the party specified in the contract, and is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees in addition to other costs [see Civ. Code § 1717(a), (b)(2)]. When the deposit has been made pursuant to Civ. Code § 1717, the court, on the application of any party to the action, must order the deposit to be invested in an insured, interest-bearing account. Interest on the amount is required to be allocated to the parties in the same proportion as the original funds are allocated [Civ. Code § 1717(b)(2)].

Proc. § 464*; see also Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings]. If the issue of settlement has been properly pleaded, the issue may be separately determined pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 597 in advance of any trial on the merits [Hastings v. Matlock (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 876, 881, 883, 166 Cal. Rptr. 229 ; for discussion and forms relating to *Code Civ. 46-520 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 520.24

§ 520.24 Rescinding or Opposing Enforcement of Settlement Agreement

A compromise and settlement agreement is subject to the general contract principles of rescission [see Larsen v. Johannes (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 491, 503, 86 Cal. Rptr. 744 (mutual mistake as to legal effect of agreement); Cilibrasi v. Reiter (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 397, 400, 229 P.2d 394 (fraud or overreaching); for discussion and forms relating to rescission, see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution]. However, a party must make an effort to rescind the agreement, including by offering to return any money received in consideration of the settlement [see Myerchin v. Family Benefits, Inc. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 1533-1537, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 816]. For a general discussion of contract defenses that may be raised in opposition to the enforcement of a settlement agreement, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

An appropriate way to challenge a judgment entered pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998 is by a motion for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [Premium Commercial Services Corp. v. National Bank of California (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1493, 1496, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65]. However, the judgment may not be vacated based on mistake or evidence of no intent, such as when a party forgets to include a cost provision in an offer to compromise [Premium Commercial Services Corp. v. National Bank of California (1999) 72 Cal. App. 4th 1493, 1497, 86 Cal. Rptr. 2d 65].

§ 520.25 Effect of Settlement Negotiations on Statutory Time Limitations

Settlement negotiations may in some instances serve to estop a party from asserting the statute of limitations for filing a complaint [see Muraoka v. Budget Rent-A-Car, Inc. (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 107, 116-118, 206 Cal. Rptr. 476]. If negotiations continue after the complaint is filed, it has been held that they do not excuse the failure to effect service of summons within three years, as is required by Code Civ. Proc. § 583.210 [Lesko v. Superior Court (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 476, 485-487, 179 Cal. Rptr. 595].

It has been held that the mandatory five-year period within which to bring the case to trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 583.310 is tolled for the period during which a written settlement agreement is in effect, even if the case is never dismissed under the settlement because of the failure of a condition precedent [Brown & Bryant, Inc. v. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. (1994) 24 Cal. App. 4th 247, 252-256, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 144]. However, negotiations that fall short of producing an actual settlement agreement may not have the same tolling effect.

[1] Release

A release is the abandonment, relinquishment, or surrender of a known right or claim, by the person in whom it exists or to whom it accrues, to the person against whom it might have been demanded or enforced, operating to extinguish a cause of action [Pellett v. Sonotone Corp. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 705, 711, 160 P.2d 783 ; Hastings v. Matlock (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 876, 882, 166 Cal. Rptr. 229 ; see Civ. Code § 1541].

[2] Releasor and Releasee

Under Civ. Code §§ 1541-1543, a "creditor" surrenders a claim by giving a release to the "debtor" [see Civ. Code § 1541]. Because a release may surrender a claim other than one based on a debt, this part uses a broader terminology: "releasor" designates the person who surrenders a claim, whereas "releasee" designates the person against whom that claim might have been enforced.

46-520 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 520.42

§ 520.42 Covenant Not to Sue Distinguished

A covenant not to sue, as distinguished from a release, is not a present abandonment or relinquishment of a right or claim, but merely an agreement not to enforce an existing cause of action. Therefore, it does not have the effect of extinguishing a cause of action [Pellett v. Sonotone Corp. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 705, 711, 160 P.2d 783].

The difference between a release and a covenant not to sue is essentially that the former extinguishes the underlying claim, while the latter is an agreement not to prosecute a suit on the underlying claim [see Civ. Code § 1541; Mesler v. Bragg Management Co. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 290, 298, 216 Cal. Rptr. 443, 702 P.2d 601]. Practically, as between the parties to the agreement, there is no real distinction between a release and a covenant not to sue. The final result in either case is the same, that is, there is no further recovery from the settling defendant [see Mesler v. Bragg Management Co. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 290, 298, 216 Cal. Rptr. 443, 702 P.2d 601 (citing Pellett v. Sonotone Corp. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 705, 711, 160 P.2d 783)].

The distinction between the two agreements was originally significant with respect to joint obligors who were not included in the release agreement. Under common law, a release of one joint obligor or tortfeasor was a release of all [see, e.g., Prince v. Lynch (1869) 38 Cal. 528, 531]. Covenants not to sue were developed to avoid this strict rule [see Mesler v. Bragg Management Co. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 290, 297-298, 216 Cal. Rptr. 443, 702 P.2d 601 ; Pellett v. Sonotone Corp. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 705, 711, 160 P.2d 783]. This historical difference was effectively eliminated, however, by the abrogation of the strict common law rule under Civ. Code § 1543 and Code Civ. Proc. § 877 [see Mesler v. Bragg Management Co. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 290, 298, 216 Cal. Rptr. 443, 702 P.2d 601 ; Lippert v. Bailey (1966) 241 Cal. App. 2d 376, 381, 50 Cal. Rptr. 478]. For discussion of Civ. Code § 1543 and Code Civ. Proc. § 877, see § 520.44[4]].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Release

46-520 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 520.43

§ 520.43 Interpretation of Release Agreements

The policy of the law is to encourage out of court settlements. To further this policy, the parties to a dispute should be encouraged to negotiate settlements and to enter into releases. In the absence of unfair conduct on the part of the releasee, the law should extend its protection to the stability of the transaction by holding the parties to the express terms of the release [Casey v. Proctor (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 97, 111, 28 Cal. Rptr. 307, 378 P.2d 579].

A release is a species of contract [River Garden Farms, Inc. v. Superior Court (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 986, 1000, 103 Cal. Rptr. 498]. Therefore, the general rules governing the interpretation and construction of contracts apply to releases [see Jersey Island Dredging Co. v. Whitney (1906) 149 Cal. 269, 272-273, 86 P. 691 (construing release at bar under principles governing construction of contracts); see also Civ. Code §§ 1635-1662 (rules governing interpretation of contracts)].

In ascertaining the legal effect of a release, one must look to the instrument itself to determine the intent of the parties [Hofland v. Gustafson (1955) 282 P.2d 1039]. Therefore, the intention that the instrument work as a release must be evidenced by the instrument [Golden West Credit etc. Co. v. Wilson (1932) 119 Cal. App. 627, 637, 7 P.2d 345]. If a release is ambiguous, in that it refers to another document or transaction, the court must construe the release together with all referenced documents or transactions to determine the intention of the parties [Consumers Holding Co. v. County of Los Angeles (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 234, 241, 22 Cal. Rptr. 106]. Extrinsic evidence of the parties' intentions may be admitted to show that the language of the release is reasonably susceptible to another interpretation and therefore ambiguous [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1856; Pacific Gas & E. Co. v. G.W. Thomas Drayage etc. Co. (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 33, 37, 69 Cal. Rptr. 561, 442 P.2d 641 (the test of admissibility of extrinsic evidence to explain the meaning of a written instrument is not whether it appears to the court to be plain and unambiguous on its face, but whether the offered evidence is relevant to prove a meaning to which the language of the instrument is reasonably susceptible)]. However, if there is no ambiguity in the express language of the release, extrinsic evidence is not admissible to prove a contrary intention of a party that was undisclosed during negotiations [Edwards v. Comstock Insurance Co. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 1164, 1167-1169, 252 Cal. Rptr. 807 (in uninsured motorist case in which insureds executed "release of all claims" with their insurer, parol evidence of undisclosed intention to retain right to bring bad faith action is inadmissible); see also Lama v. Comcast Cablevision (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 59, 64, 17 Cal. Rptr. 2d 224 (plaintiff released the defendant and "any other person, corporation, association or partnership" responsible for injuries arising from a car accident, and dismissed the action with prejudice; the court held that plaintiff's subsequent action against the defendant's employer alleging respondeat superior liability was barred because the release applied to the employer and the dismissal with prejudice was a common law retraxit that served as a judgment on the merits as to the defendant and the employer); General Motors Corp. v. Superior Court (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 435, 441 , 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 622 (in an action arising out of an automobile accident, the plain language of a general form release that released the owner of the vehicle that struck plaintiff's car and "all other persons, firms and corporations" also released General Motors from liability although it was not specifically named in the release; plaintiff presented no competent evidence to show that another meaning was intended by the parties)].

As with other contracts, releases are construed against those who draft them, and ambiguities in releases are construed against those who cause them to exist [see Estate of O'Donnell (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 514, 519, 145 Cal. Rptr. 617].

If a party insists on a strict interpretation of one part of a release, that party cannot complain if the entire release is literally construed [see Bradbury v. Thomas (1933) 135 Cal. App. 435, 443, 27 P.2d 402].

For discussion of the rules for interpreting contracts generally, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Release

46-520 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 520.44

§ 520.44 Effect of Release Agreement

[1] Cause of Action Extinguished

Absent fraud, deception, misrepresentation, duress or undue influence, a valid release, given by the releasor to the releasee, extinguishes the cause of action that is the subject of the release [Skrbina v. Fleming Companies (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1366, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 481 ; see Civ. Code § 1541; Hastings v. Matlock (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 876, 882, 166 Cal. Rptr. 229]. A valid release conclusively estops the parties from reviving and relitigating the claim released [Faye v. Feldman (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 319, 328, 275 P.2d 121 (when person capable of reading and understanding release signs it, he or she is bound by its provisions and estopped from claiming they are contrary to his or her intentions or understanding)]. However, assent is necessary for the release to be binding; if it can be established that a party did not in reality assent to it, i.e., due to fraud or duress, the party is not estopped from claiming the release is not binding for want of assent [Skrbina v. Fleming Companies (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1366-1367, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 481].

A release of one or more of a number of joint obligors does not extinguish the cause of action against the remaining joint obligors [see Civ. Code § 1543; Code Civ. Proc. § 877; for further discussion, § 520.44[4]].

[2] Limitations on Effect of General Release

[a] Unknown Claims

A general release does not extend to claims that the creditor does not know or suspect to exist in his or her favor at the time of executing the release when those claims, if known by the creditor, would have materially affected the settlement with the debtor [Civ. Code § 1542]. The purpose of Civ. Code § 1542 is to prevent the inadvertent barring of later-discovered claims by a boilerplate recital in the release [Casey v. Proctor (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 97, 109, 28 Cal. Rptr. 307, 378 P.2d 579]. It is not intended to prevent a releasor who understands the significance of the act from knowingly releasing all unknown claims [Carmichael v. Industrial Acc. Com. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 311, 314-315, 44 Cal. Rptr. 470 ; see Perez v. Uline, Inc. (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 953, 958-959, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 872 (release of all claims arising from employment not required to contain waiver of Civ. Code § 1542 because plaintiff understood he was releasing claims arising under all statutes agreement referred to, even those he did not understand); Winet v. Price (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1159, 1166-1173, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 554].

Whether a specific later-discovered claim was intended to be covered by a broad release can be a disputable issue of fact if the language of the release is reasonably susceptible to either interpretation [Vega v. Western Employers Ins. Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 922, 926-927, 216 Cal. Rptr. 592 , overruled in part on other grounds, Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Companies (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 310, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58 ; see Winet v. Price (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1159, 1167, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 554]. However, if the express language of the release unambiguously encompasses all unknown claims, the uncommunicated subjective intent of the releasor that unknown or unsuspected claims were not to be released does not raise a triable issue of fact [Winet v. Price (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1159, 1167, 1170-1171 n.7, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 554].

In determining whether there is substantial evidence that a release of unknown claims was knowingly made, courts have considered the following [Casey v. Proctor (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 97, 113, 28 Cal. Rptr. 307, 378 P.2d 579]:

- The amount of consideration received compared with the risk of the existence of unknown injuries.
- The presence of bargaining and negotiation leading to the settlement.
- The closeness of the issue of liability.
- Whether the subject of personal injuries was discussed.
- The reasonableness of the contention that the injuries were, in fact, unknown at the time the release was executed.

[b] Release Given During Period of First Physical Confinement

A general release from a liability claim obtained from any person during the period of the first physical confinement, whether as an inpatient or outpatient, in a clinic or health facility defined in Health & Safety Code §§ 1203 and 1250, as a result of the injury alleged to have given rise to the claim and primarily for treatment of that injury, is presumed fraudulent if the release is executed within 15 days after the commencement of the confinement or prior to release from that confinement, whichever occurs first [Bus. & Prof. Code § 6152(b)].

[3] Exculpatory Release

As a general rule, a contract violates public policy if its object is to exempt a person from responsibility for his or her own fraud, willful injury to another's person or property, or violation of law [Civ. Code § 1668 see Neubauer v. Goldfarb (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 47, 55-57, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 218 (waiver of corporate directors' and majority shareholders' fiduciary duties to minority shareholders in private close corporations is against public policy and contract provision in buy-sell agreement purporting to effect such a waiver is void)]. Civ. Code § 1668 does not, however, invalidate a contract that seeks to release one from liability for future simple negligence or strict liability [Hulsey v. Elsinore Parachute Center (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 333, 341-342, 214 Cal. Rptr. 194]. Even a release agreement found to be a contract of adhesion is enforceable if it does not defeat the weaker party's reasonable expectations and is not unconscionable [Hulsey v. Elsinore Parachute Center (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 333, 343-344, 214 Cal. Rptr. 194]. A valid exculpatory release is a defense to negligence under the doctrine of express assumption of risk [see, e.g., Coates v. Newhall Land & Farming, Inc. (1987) 191 Cal. App. 3d 1, 4, 236 Cal. Rptr. 181]. For discussion of this defense, see Ch. 380, Negligence .

On the other hand, an agreement made in the context of sports or recreational programs or services, purporting to release liability for future gross negligence, generally is unenforceable as a matter of public policy [City of Santa Barbara v. Superior Court (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 747, 753-781, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 527, 161 P.3d 1095 (agreement purporting to release liability for future gross negligence committed against developmentally disabled child who participated in recreational camp designed for needs of such children violated public policy and was unenforceable)].

For a form for a release agreement designed for use as an exculpatory release of future claims, see California Legal Forms, Ch. 77, Discharge of Obligations (Matthew Bender).

[4] Release of Less Than All Joint Debtors, Tortfeasors, or Coobligors

Under Civ. Code § 1543, a release of one of two or more joint debtors does not extinguish the obligations of any of the others, unless they are mere guarantors; nor does it affect their right to contribution from the released debtor, except as provided under Code Civ. Proc. § 877. Federal common law in the Ninth Circuit generally mirrors the law of Civ. Code § 1543 in that a release of one tortfeasor does not release all other joint tortfeasors absent an agreement to effect a release of any or all of the other tortfeasors [see Avery v. U.S. (9th Cir. 1987) 829 F.2d 817, 819 (Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. v. Winchester Drive-in Theatre, Inc. (9th Cir. 1965) 351 F.2d 925, 931 , cert. denied, 382 U.S. 1011 (1966) , and Undersea Eng. & Const. Co. v. International Tel. & Tel. Corp. (9th Cir. 1970) 429 F.2d 543, 551)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 877 applies to any release (or to any dismissal or covenant not to sue or not to enforce judgment) that is given in good faith before verdict or judgment to one or more of a number of tortfeasors claimed to be liable for the same tort or to one or more of a number of coobligors mutually subject to contribution rights. A release (or other instrument) of this type does not discharge any other such party from liability unless its terms so provide, but does reduce the claims against the others by the amount stipulated by the release or by the amount paid in consideration for the release, whichever is greater [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(a)]. In determining whether the "terms so provide," courts apply the same rules that govern any other contract [Hess v. Ford Motor Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 516, 524, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220, 41 P.3d 46]. In addition, it discharges the released party from all liability for any contribution to any other parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(b)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 877 does not apply to coobligors who have expressly agreed in writing to an apportionment of liability for losses or claims among themselves [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(c)]. Nor does Code Civ. Proc. § 877 apply to a release given to a coobligor on an alleged contract debt when the contract was made prior to January 1, 1988 [Code Civ. Proc. § 877(d)].

For discussion of the procedure under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6, to determine whether a settlement made by release or other instrument has been made in "good faith" for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 877, see Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution, § 300.130 et seq.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Release

46-520 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 520.45

§ 520.45 Requirements for Formation of Valid Release

[1] In General

To be effective in extinguishing an obligation, a release agreement must be given by the releasor to the releasee either on new consideration or in writing with or without new consideration [Civ. Code § 1541].

For a form for a general written release, see § 520.130. For discussion of requirements applicable to the formation of a valid agreement generally, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

[2] Mutual Assent

As with any contract, all parties to be bound by the release must first assent to its terms [Smith v. Occidental & Oriental S.S. Co. (1893) 99 Cal. 462, 470-471, 34 P. 84]. If there is no actual assent to the release, then it never becomes effective [Wheat v. Morse (1961) 197 Cal. App. 2d 203, 206, 17 Cal. Rptr. 226].

Generally, a releasor who has no disability preventing him or her from reading a written release is bound by its clear provisions [DuBois v. Sparrow (1979) 92 Cal. App. 3d 290, 298, 154 Cal. Rptr. 717]. However, if the releasor was under a misapprehension, not due to releasor's own neglect, as to the nature or scope of the release, and if this misapprehension was induced by the misconduct of the releasee, then the release, regardless of how comprehensively worded, is binding only to the extent actually intended by the releasor [Casey v. Proctor (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 97, 103, 28 Cal. Rptr. 307, 378 P.2d 579]. For example, courts have held that a misapprehension as to the nature and scope of a release was not due to the neglect of the releasor when the releasor was unable to read the release, the release was presented to the releasor when he was still in the hospital suffering from injuries sustained in the accident, or the release was presented to the releasor within a few hours of the accident while she was still nervous and upset [see Casey v. Proctor (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 97, 103 n. 2, 28 Cal. Rptr. 307, 378 P.2d 579].

It is for the trier of fact to determine what the releasor understood to be covered by the release, and whether the releasor's understanding, which is different from the writing, was induced by the releasee. If the trier of fact finds that the releasee is responsible for a misconception, the release is ineffective to the extent that it purports to release claims other than those understood by the releasor to be released [Jordan v. Guerra (1943) 23 Cal. 2d 469, 475-476, 144 P.2d 349].

[3] Necessity of Writing

Generally, a release need not be in writing [see Civ. Code § 1541; see Hastings v. Matlock (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 876, 882, 166 Cal. Rptr. 229]. If, however, the release agreement is subject to the statute of frauds, such as when it provides for the performance of a continuing obligation over a period of time in excess of one year, then it must be in writing to be valid [see Civ. Code § 1624; for discussion of contracts required to be in writing by the statute of frauds, see Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds].

An oral release agreement is required to be made on new consideration, whereas a written release may be made with or without new consideration [Civ. Code § 1541; see discussion in § 520.45[4]]. Further, it appears that a disputed, unpleaded oral settlement and release agreement made out of court is not enforceable by motion [see Hastings v. Matlock (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 876, 881-883, 166 Cal. Rptr. 229 (disputed, out of court, oral settlement is unenforceable by nonstatutory "speaking motion," even when motion is treated as one for summary judgment); cf. Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 (if parties to pending litigation stipulate to settlement before court, court may enter judgment on motion pursuant to terms of settlement agreement)].

For further discussion of requirements for drafting a written release agreement, see § 520.130.

[4] Consideration

An oral release must be supported by new consideration [Civ. Code § 1541]. However, a written release may, but need not be, supported by consideration [Civ. Code § 1541; Worthington v. State Bd. of Control (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 697, 699-700, 72 Cal. Rptr. 449].

If the writing is unsupported by consideration, it must be plain and explicit, given for the express purpose of effecting a complete release of the obligation [Sheehan v. Atlanta Intern. Ins. Co. (9th Cir. [Cal] 1987) 812 F.2d 465, 470] , and expressly showing the releasor's intent to extinguish the obligation [Tenzer v. Superscope, Inc. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 18, 31 n. 7, 216 Cal. Rptr. 130, 702 P.2d 212].

For discussion of the effect of insufficient or failure of consideration on the validity of a release, see § 520.48[2].

[5] Delivery

A written release, signed by the releasor, ordinarily is presently operative once it is delivered. Even though consideration may be required [see discussion in § 450.45[4]], the nonpayment of consideration at the time of signature and delivery does not affect the immediate operative effect of the instrument as a valid release [Hofland v. Gustafson (1955) 132 Cal. App. 907, 282 P.2d 1039].

[6] Conditions Affecting Operation of Release

A release may be subject to the occurrence of a condition precedent. When it is, the release is not operative for any purpose until the occurrence of the condition [Johnson v. Pickwick Stages System (1930) 108 Cal. App. 279, 284, 291 P. 611]. Thus, for example, if a party has been given, but has not exercised, an option to release another from liability, the release is inoperative if the option is not exercised [see Johnson v. Pickwick Stages System (1930) 108 Cal. App. 279, 284, 291 P. 611]. Similarly, if delivery of the release is subject to the occurrence of a condition precedent, delivery is not effective, and the release is not operative, until the condition occurs [see Clark v. Child (1884) 66 Cal. 87, 90-91, 4 P. 1058].

§ 520.46 Enforcement of Release Agreement

[1] Affirmative Defense

Because the effect of a release is to extinguish an obligation giving rise to a cause of action, it may be pleaded as an affirmative defense to an action based on the extinguished obligation [see Pellett v. Sonotone Corp. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 705, 711, 160 P.2d 783 ; see also Landis v. Morrissey (1886) 69 Cal. 83, 86, 10 P. 258] (stating that plea of release admits cause of action, but sets forth release subsequently executed)]. The pleading of a release agreement is the pleading of new matter [Landis v. Morrissey (1886) 69 Cal. 83, 10 P. 258 . It must be expressly pleaded and proved [Hastings v. Matlock (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 876, 882, 166 Cal. Rptr. 229] . For forms for affirmative defenses, pleading the execution of a release agreement, see §§ 520.131 and 520.132.

When the operation of a release is subject to the occurrence of a condition precedent, the release cannot be pleaded as a bar to the underlying cause of action, because it is not operative until the occurrence of the condition. Thus, for example, if an option to exercise a release has been given, the release cannot be pleaded as a bar to the underlying cause of action unless the option has been exercised [Johnson v. Pickwick Stages System (1930) 108 Cal. App. 279, 284, 291 P. 611 ; see also discussion in § 520.45[6]].

On motion made, and granted at the discretion of the court, a release may be raised as an affirmative defense in a supplemental answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 464 (supplemental pleadings); see Seehorn v. Big Meadows & Bodie Wagon Road Co. (1882) 60 Cal. 240, 250-2252 ; see also Johnson v. Pickwick Stages System (1930) 108 Cal. App. 279, 281, 291 P. 611] . The motion may be made and granted even after trial has begun on the underlying cause of action. Factors considered by a court in exercising its discretion whether to permit the raising of the defense in a supplemental answer are the existence of laches surrounding defendant's filing of the supple mental answer, as well the factual circumstances surrounding the transaction giving rise to the release [see Seehorn v. Big Meadows & Bodie Wagon Road Co. (1882) 60 Cal. 240, 251-252 (trial court as abusing its discretion in denying motion to raise affirmative defense of release in supplemental answer absent laches and in view of facts surrounding settlement of case)]. For further discussion and forms relating to supplemental pleadings in general, see Ch. 21, Amended and Supplemental Pleadings .

[2] Action for Specific Performance or Declaratory Relief

A release may also be pleaded as a specifically performable settlement and release agreement. When pleaded in this manner the pleading must allege a definite, just, and reasonable contract, adequacy of consideration, and resultant breach [Hastings v. Matlock (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 876, 882, 166 Cal. Rptr. 229]. For discussion and forms relating to specific enforcement of contracts generally, see Ch. 528, Specific Performance .

In some circumstances, either the releasee or the releasor may bring an action under Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 for a declaration of his or her rights under a release. The releasee may bring this type of action when, for example, the releasor has attempted an out-of-court rescission of the release and the releasee believes the attempted rescission is invalid [see Union Pacific R.R. Co. v. Zimmer (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 524, 528, 197 P.2d 363 (validity of release decided under federal law)]. In a declaratory relief action under Code Civ. Proc. § 1060, the court may make a binding declaration of the rights and duties of the parties, including a declaration as to the validity of the release [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060; see Union Pacific R.R. Co. v. Zimmer (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 524, 528, 197 P.2d 363 (validity of release decided under federal law)]. For discussion and forms for use in seeking declaratory relief generally, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Release

46-520 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 520.47

§ 520.47 Opposing Enforcement of Release Agreement

[1] Generally

A releasor may challenge the validity of a release agreement on the same grounds as any contract [see, e.g., Union Pacific R.R. Co. v. Zimmer (1948) 87 Cal. App. 2d 524, 529, 197 P.2d 363 (stating that release may be avoided on ground of mutual mistake); Baird v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co. (1919) 39 Cal. App. 512, 514, 179 P. 449 (stating that defense of release may be controverted by evidence of fraud, mistake, undue influence, compromise, payment, estoppel, mental incompetency, and like defenses); for discussion of defenses to the enforcement of contracts generally, see, e.g., Ch. 140, Contracts , Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake , and Ch. 528, Specific Performance].

In an action on the underlying claim, a releasor may simply controvert the affirmative defense that a release precludes the claim [see, e.g., Baird v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co. (1919) 39 Cal. App. 512, 514, 179 P. 449 ; see also discussion in § 520.47[3]]. The releasor may, when appropriate, bring an action to cancel a void or voidable written release [see Civ. Code § 3412], an action to declare a release void [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060; see also discussion in]; an action to reform a release agreement [see Civ. Code § 3399], or an action to rescind a voidable release [see Civ. Code § 1692; see also § 520.48]. For discussion and forms of complaint relating generally to the remedies of cancellation, declaratory relief, reformation, and rescission, see respectively Ch. 107, Cancellation of Instruments , Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief , Ch. 488, Reformation of Instruments , and Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

[2] Burden of Proof

Generally, when a releasor challenges the validity of a release, he or she has the burden of proof on that issue [see, e.g., Myers v. Carter (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 238, 242, 30 Cal. Rptr. 91 (burden of showing undue influence); Chung v. Johnston (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 157, 164, 274 P.2d 922 (burden of showing fraud); Castor v. Bernstein (1906) 2 Cal. App. 703, 708, 84 P. 244 (burden of showing want of consideration pursuant to Civ. Code § 1615)]. When, however, the challenged release was executed during the course of a trust relationship, the party relying on the release has the burden of showing that the release is just and fair, and that it is based on a true and correct settlement and on adequate consideration [Smith v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1933) 130 Cal. App. 45, 56-57, 19 P.2d 1018].

[3] Controverting Defense of Release

[a] Pleading Requirements

A releasor seeking to recover on the underlying claim need not, in the complaint, anticipate a defense of release [Hoffman v. Sports Car Club of America (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 119, 125, 225 Cal. Rptr. 359 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.20(b) (all allegations of affirmative matter in answer are deemed controverted)]. Therefore, in response to an affirmative defense of release raised in the answer, plaintiff releasor need only adduce proof at trial either taking issue with the truth of the release or avoiding the release by a showing that destroys its validity as a defense [Thompson (1920) 183 Cal. 476, 480, 191 P. 927 ; Hoffman v. Sports Car Club of America (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 119, 125, 225 Cal. Rptr. 359].

[b] Separate Trial on Defense Before Trial on Underlying Claim

When an affirmative defense does not involve the merits of the plaintiff's cause of action, but sets up a bar to its prosecution, the court may, either on its own motion or on the motion of any party, proceed to trial of that defense before trial of any other issue in the case [see Code Civ. Proc. § 597]. This procedure applies to the defense of release raised in an answer [see Hastings v. Matlock (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 876, 881, 166 Cal. Rptr. 229]. For further discussion and forms relating to proceedings for a separate trial under Code Civ. Proc. § 597, see Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions, § 3.110 et seq.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Release

46-520 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 520.48

§ 520.48 Rescission of Voidable Release

[1] Availability

A release agreement is subject to rescission in the same manner as other contracts [Matthews v. A.T. & S.F. Ry. (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 549, 557, 129 P.2d 435]. Rescission is necessary only with respect to a release that is voidable, rather than absolutely void [see Garcia v. California Truck Co. (1920) 183 Cal. 767, 770, 192 P. 708].

For discussion and forms relating to rescission generally, see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

[2] Grounds for Rescission

A contract may generally be rescinded mutually, by consent [Civ. Code § 1689(a)], or unilaterally, on specified grounds [Civ. Code § 1689(b)]. The chief grounds for unilateral rescission are those negating consent: when the rescinding party, or any party jointly contracting with the rescinding party, has given his or her consent by mistake, or when that consent was obtained by duress, menace, fraud, or undue influence [Civ. Code § 1689(b)(1); see, e.g., Carr v. Sacramento C.P. Co. (1917) 35 Cal. App. 439, 447, 170 P. 446 (release obtained by undue influence subject to rescission); for discussion and forms relating to factors negating contractual consent in general, see Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake].

Thus, for example, when a releasor knows that he or she is signing a release, but is fraudulently induced to do so, this fraud renders the release agreement voidable, not void, and rescission is necessary to avoid the agreement [Bonacci v. Mass. Bonding & Ins. Co. (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 657, 664, 137 P.2d 487 ; see Ford v. Shearson Lehman American Express, Inc. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1011, 1028, 225 Cal. Rptr. 895 (stating rule as applicable to contracts generally); for discussion of fraud rendering a release absolutely void, see § 520.49].

Similarly, a release may be rescinded for mutual mistake [see O'Meara v. Haiden (1928) 204 Cal. 354, 358, 268 P. 334 ; see also Civ. Code §§ 1576-1578 (defining mistake)]. A release may be rescinded for a unilateral mistake concerning its effect only if the mistake arose from an unrectified misrepresentation by one party of which the other was aware [Larsen v. Johannes (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 491, 503, 86 Cal. Rptr. 744 ; see Myers v. Carter (1963) 215 Cal.

App. 2d 238, 241, 30 Cal. Rptr. 91]. Thus, a releasor cannot claim that he or she was mistaken about what was in a release when he or she failed to read it before signing it [Hoffman v. Sports Car Club of America (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 119, 126, 225 Cal. Rptr. 359].

Another ground for unilateral rescission is mental incompetence under Civ. Code § 39 [Civ. Code § 1689(b)(7)], that is, when the rescinding party was of unsound mind, but not entirely without understanding, and made the contract before his or her incapacity was judicially determined [see Civ. Code § 39]. Thus, a releasor need not have been incompetent to make any kind of a contract or to transact any business, however simple; the test is whether he or she was mentally competent to deal with the particular subject with full understanding of his or her rights, such that he or she actually understood the nature, purpose, and effect of the release [Carr v. Sacramento C.P. Co. (1917) 35 Cal. App. 439, 442, 170 P. 446 ; for discussion of mental incompetence rendering a release absolutely void, see § 520.49].

Still another basis for unilateral rescission is failure of consideration [see Civ. Code § 1689(b)(2)-(4)]. To justify rescission of a release, the failure must be substantial [see Hofland v. Gustafson (1955) 132 Cal. App. 907, 909-910 282 P.2d 1039 (holding that delay in payment of consideration until several days after execution of release was not substantial failure of consideration and justified damages but not rescission)]. Moreover, a court will not set aside a written release merely because the consideration is inadequate, although this may be considered with other factors affecting its validity [Moore v. Rogers (1958) 157 Cal. App. 2d 192, 197, 320 P.2d 524 ; see also Civ. Code § 1541 (new consideration required to support oral, but not written, release); Castor v. Bernstein (1906) 2 Cal. App. 703, 708, 84 P. 244 (rule under Civ. Code § 1614, that written instrument is presumptive evidence of consideration, applies to releases)].

For additional discussion relating to grounds for unilateral rescission generally, and forms of complaint for rescission based on these grounds, see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

[3] Notice and Restitution

To rescind a contract, a party who is free from duress, menace, undue influence, or disability, and who is aware of his or her right to rescind, must promptly, on discovering the ground justifying rescission, give notice of rescission to the other party. The rescinding party must also restore to the other party everything of value that he or she has received from that party under the contract or offer to make restitution on condition that the other party do likewise, unless the other party is unable or positively refuses to do so [see Civ. Code § 1691]. Notwithstanding this general rule, in the case of a release, no restitution need be made until an attack is made on the release, which usually does not occur until the releasor brings an action on the underlying claim and seeks to controvert the affirmative defense that the claim is barred by release [see O'Meara v. Haiden (1928) 204 Cal. 354, 364, 268 P. 334].

Restitution is required only if the releasor received something of value; if the releasor received nothing, he or she need give back nothing [Gajanich v. Gregory (1931) 116 Cal. App. 622, 633-634, 3 P.2d 389]. Additionally, the releasor need not restore or offer to restore in any of the following circumstances: when the releasor has received only that which has no value to either of the parties; when the releasor has merely received the individual promissory note of the releasee; when the release is absolutely void; when it clearly appears that the releasee could not possibly have been injuriously affected by a failure to restore; or when, without any fault of the releasor, there have been peculiar complications that make it impossible for the releasor to offer full restoration [see Weger v. Rocha (1934) 138 Cal. App. 109, 117-118, 32 P.2d 417].

For further discussion relating to notice and restitution requirements generally, see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

Chapter 520 SETTLEMENT AND RELEASE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Release

46-520 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 520.49

§ 520.49 Nullifying Void Release

A void release need not be rescinded, because there is no contract to rescind [see Garcia v. California Truck Co. (1920) 183 Cal. 767, 770, 192 P. 708 ; see also Ford v. Shearson Lehman American Express, Inc. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1011, 1028, 225 Cal. Rptr. 895]. Aside from controverting a defense of release on the ground that it is void, a releasor may also seek affirmative relief opposing its enforcement, either by having it cancelled or declared void [see Civ. Code § 3412 (cancellation of void instrument); Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 (declaratory relief); for further discussion and forms, see respectively Ch. 107, Cancellation of Instruments and Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief].

One circumstance that renders a release absolutely void is fraud in the inception, that is, when the releasor is tricked or deceived into signing a release that is different in terms and object from that which he or she has made and understands that he or she is executing [see Meyer v. Haas (1899) 126 Cal. 560, 563, 58 P. 1042]. In this case, the release is void because mutual assent is lacking, and it may be disregarded without resorting to rescission [Ford v. Shearson Lehman American Express, Inc. (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 1011, 1028, 225 Cal. Rptr. 895]. The releasor need not restore any consideration received, as he or she is not avoiding the release so much as showing that he or she never made a release [Meyer v. Haas (1899) 126 Cal. 560, 563, 58 P. 1042 ; cf. discussion of fraud as basis for rescission in 520.48[2]]. For discussion and forms relating to fraud negating contractual consent in general, see Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake .

Similarly, when a releasor is totally mentally incompetent at the time of executing the release, that release is absolutely void because there is no meeting of the minds and no contract is formed. Therefore, rescission and an offer of restoration of consideration are not necessary [Backus v. Sessions (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 380, 384, 390, 110 P.2d 51 ; cf. discussion of mental incompetency as basis for rescission in § 520.48[2]].

§ 520.50 Ratification of Release

A release that is subject to rescission may nonetheless be ratified by the conduct of the releasor. For example, the releasor's acceptance of the benefits of a release agreement subsequent to an attempted rescission of the release can amount to a waiver of the right to assert the invalidity of the release and constitute a ratification of the terms of the release [see Eustace v. Lynch (1941) 43 Cal. App. 2d 486, 491, 111 P.2d 372]. There can be no ratification of a void agreement, however, when the person alleged to have made the ratification did not know what the agreement contained or all the facts when the alleged ratification occurred [Backus v. Sessions (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 380, 385, 110 P.2d 51].

[1] Generally

If Section 998 offer is withdrawn by party before its statutory expiration, withdrawing party's right to cost shifting under Section 998 is determined by last rejected Section 998 offer. One Star, Inc. v. Staar Surgical Co. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1082, 1093-1094, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 195

Plaintiff's allegations that no enforceable settlement has been reached constituted good cause under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(b) and precluded trial court from dismissing medical malpractice action; only decision before court at Rule 3.1385 hearing was whether to dismiss case or restore it to civil active list. Irvine v. Regents of Univ. of Calif. (2007) 149 Cal. App. 4th 994, 1000-1002, 57 Cal. Rptr. 3d 500

In action for breach of contract and related causes of action, trial court erred in involuntarily dismissing action under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 225(c) [now see Cal. Rules of Court, Rule 3.1385] on grounds that declarations filed by parties were too vague after parties had notified court that they had a settlement "in principle," meaning they had yet to fix its exact terms; settlement with open material terms is not a conditional settlement and because parties never entered into binding settlement, former Rule 225 did not apply. Levitz v. The Warlocks (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 531, 534-536, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 800

Trial court properly found that party to settlement agreement that required it as obligor to provide security bond for quarterly payments it was required to make was in default after security company that had furnished bond became insolvent and obligor failed to supply subsequent bond, when parties intended that bond security party's continuing obligation to make quarterly payments. The objective would be achieved only if during entire period, other parties could look to bond as source of payment in event of obligor's default and parties contemplated that bond would be valid until last payment had been made. Obligor selected surety and bore risk it might become insolvent, and even if parties' conflicting interpretations were equally plausible, court would still construe security provision in other party's favor because it was for their benefit. Citizens for Goleta Valley v. HT Santa Barbara (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1073, 1076-1077, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 249

Settlement with car dealership that did not release dealers "assigns" did not release agency that financed car lease transaction or corporation to whom lease was assigned because their liability, if any, arose from their status as assignees of lease. LaChapelle v. Toyota Motor Credit Corp. (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 977, 980-981, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 32

Settlement is not required to be written; compromise settlement is governed by legal principles applicable to contracts generally and is decisive of rights of parties, serving to bar reopening of issues settled; absent fundamental defect in agreement itself, terms as binding on parties. Gorman v. Holte (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 984, 989, 211 Cal. Rptr. 34

Court is not able to force litigant to settle, but may order appearance and engagement in settlement negotiations. City of El Monte v. Takei (1984) 158 Cal. App. 3d 244, 248, 204 Cal. Rptr. 559

Compromise and release agreement determines rights of parties in dispute. Burbank Studios v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 929, 935, 184 Cal. Rptr. 879

Necessary elements of contract are required for compromise and release agreement to be effective. Burbank Studios v. Workers' Comp. Appeals Bd. (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 929, 935, 184 Cal. Rptr. 879

Law favors settlement of controversies. Hilliger v. Golden (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 394, 398-401, 166 Cal. Rptr. 33

Compromise distinguished from stipulation by existence of bona fide dispute between parties. People ex rel. Dept. Pub. Wks. v. Amsden Corp. (1973) 33 Cal. App. 3d 83, 87, 109 Cal. Rptr. 1

Compromise of claim is settlement of differences by mutual concessions and adjustment of conflicting claims, but does not include discussions or negotiations leading up to agreement. Isaacson v. City of Oakland (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 414, 421, 69 Cal. Rptr. 379

[2] Attorney's Fees

On motions to enforce settlement agreement, trial court did not err in refusing to award plaintiff interest from original closing date, or plaintiff's costs or attorney fees, when trial court's order to plaintiff to pay defendant's fees and costs was an implied finding that plaintiff was the breaching party. Osumi v. Sutton (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1355, 1360-1361, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693

In insolvency proceedings involving life insurance company, provisions in settlement agreements for payment of attorney's fees of various settling parties were not improperly approved by trial court when amounts in settlements were simply part of settlement package and were of no greater consequence than would have been provision for cash payment; so long as settlements overall are reasonable and to benefit of insolvency estate, trial court acts within its discretion in approving them. In re Executive Life Ins. Co. (1995) 32 Cal. App. 4th 344, 399, 38 Cal. Rptr. 2d 453

Attorney's fees were properly awarded to party granted specific performance of oral settlement agreement rescinding contract that included attorney's fee provision that did not limit attorney's fees to particular forms of action involving contract. Hastings v. Matlock (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 826, 840-842, 217 Cal. Rptr. 856

[3] Authority of Attorney

Attorney's stipulation to settlement is subject to court ordered enforcement without competent evidence of disputed issues of material fact. Phelps v. Kozakar (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 1078, 1083, 194 Cal. Rptr. 872

[4] Costs

Absent affirmative agreement of parties to contrary, trial court retains jurisdiction to award costs and attorney's fees although settlement agreement is filed. Folsom v. Butte County Assn. of Governments (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 668, 679, 186 Cal. Rptr. 589, 652 P.2d 437

[5] Dismissal of Codefendant

Codefendant was properly dismissed pursuant to settlement agreement which expressly released and discharged him despite fact that he was not present during negotiations and did not sign the agreement. Golden Bear Forest Products, Inc. v. Misale (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 573, 575, 188 Cal. Rptr. 48

[6] Enforcement of Compromise or Settlement Agreements

Federal district court has inherent power to enforce agreement in settlement of litigation before it, and enforcement power includes authority to award damages for failure to comply with settlement agreement. TNT Marketing, Inc. v. Agresti (9th Cir. 1986) 796 F.2d 276, 278

Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 does not apply in ordinary civil action after judgment, unrelated to alleged settlement and therefore containing no provision for continuing jurisdiction to enforce it, has been entered and has become final in sense that time for appeal has passed. Walton v. Mueller (2009) 180 Cal. App. 4th 161, 171-172, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 605

Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 does not require that party to be bound consent to settlement "on the record," only that party consent to it "orally before the court." 1538 Cahuenga Partners, LLC v. Turmeko Properties, Inc. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 139, 143, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 552

Judgment omitting material terms of parties' settlement failed to accurately reflect their agreement and therefore failed to comply with Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6. Hines v. Lukes (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 1174, 1185, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 689

Trial court properly entered summary judgment against plaintiff after he accepted settlement from defendant, even though defendant had negotiated settlement with plaintiff directly even after he retained counsel, where evidence was insufficient as matter of law to demonstrate that settlement agreement was product of duress, was unconscionable, or was rendered void or unenforceable as matter of public policy; and where plaintiff's failure to effect rescission of settlement agreement, including specifically his failure to notify defendant he was rescinding and to tender restoration of payments he received, precluded his attempt to avoid application of agreement to claims he asserted in his complaint. Myerchin v. Family Benefits, Inc. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1526, 1533-1541, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 816

On motions to enforce settlement agreement, trial court did not create material term of settlement or otherwise err when it extended closing date for real property transaction, when doing so was necessary in order to grant relief sought by both parties. Osumi v. Sutton (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1355, 1360-1361, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693

On motions to enforce settlement agreement, trial court did not err when it ordered plaintiff to sign purchase agreement incorporating revised counteroffer, because nothing in settlement agreement allowed plaintiff to document construction defect claims by making unchallenged evidence of alleged defects part of purchase agreement that was term of settlement. Osumi v. Sutton (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 1355, 1360-1361, 60 Cal. Rptr. 3d 693

In action by condominium owners against homeowners' association arising out of water damage to condominium, settlement reached between one condominium owner and homeowners' association's insurer and one employee of outside management company could not be enforced under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 because there was no evidence association gave insurer right to settle without association's consent and settlement prejudiced association's rights separate from payment by its insurer, because settlement limited association's ability to enforce CC&Rs for noncompliance by condominium owners in repairing water damage. Elnekave v. Via Dolce Homeowners Assn. (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 1193, 1198-1200, 48 Cal. Rptr. 3d 663

Stipulation for settlement was unenforceable under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, when, although leaving unresolved term for future agreement was not necessarily fatal because settlement could be enforceable if parties agreed remaining issue would be decided by arbitration, court could not tell what parties meant when they provided for "binding mediation" of payment dispute and it was clear parties did not regard binding mediation as equivalent of arbitration. Lindsay v. Lewandowski (2006) 139 Cal. App. 4th 1618, 1622-1625, 43 Cal. Rptr. 3d 846

In action to enforce settlement agreement, statute of frauds did not render agreement invalid, even though agreement by its terms was not to be performed within one year from making and defendant did not sign agreement drafted by his own attorney, when defendant agreed to terms of settlement on record of settlement hearing and affirmed agreement and its terms in his testimony at trial of action to enforce agreement. Four-year statute of limitations for a written contract [Code Civ. Proc. § 337] applied, even though defendant had not signed agreement, because defendant had agreed to specific terms in open court at settlement proceeding, and at trial, defendant admitted that he had agreed to settlement and reaffirmed that terms to which he had agreed were those set forth in written settlement agreement prepared by his attorney. Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 did not apply because underlying matter was dismissed and parties did not request that court retain jurisdiction either in writing signed by both parties themselves or orally before court at the time of stipulated settlement as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6. Pietrobon v. Libarle (2006) 137 Cal. App. 4th 992, 996-998, 40 Cal. Rptr. 3d 718

Trial court properly entered judgment enforcing settlement agreement under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, when defendants were all insured under policies giving insurers right to settle without defendants' consent and to bind defendants to settlement; court would not read case law to preclude enforcement pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 of insurance-funded settlement reached by authorized insurance defense counsel or adjuster when carrier had contractual right to settle. Fiege v. Cooke (2004) 125 Cal. App. 4th 1350, 1353-1355, 23 Cal. Rptr. 3d 496

In action to enforce settlement agreement based on underlying action for specific performance of real estate sales contract, forfeiture of buyers' deposit as result of delay in delivering quitclaim deed, which caused sellers no cognizable damages, constituted illegal forfeiture provision that court could not enforce, even though parties declined to use term "liquidated damages" explicitly in contract, because legal effect of provision was to allow forfeiture for lateness without regard to any damage caused. Timney v. Lin (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 1121, 1126-1128, 131 Cal. Rptr. 2d 387

When some parties to litigation agreed to settlement orally before trial court and other parties agreed to settlement by signing written agreement which, although it included terms not part of oral agreement, shared same material terms, all parties demonstrated same degree of mature reflection and deliberate assent and agreement was enforceable under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6. Oral agreement that parties would later sign written agreement did not affect enforceability of oral settlement under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6. Elyaoudayan v. Hoffman (2003) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1421, 129 Cal. Rptr. 2d 41

Trial court's interpretation of party's nod as oral consent satisfying requirement Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 for enforcement of settlement agreement was error, when unambiguous assent, expressed orally, is required to minimize possibility of conflicting interpretations of settlement, and trial court did not question any party as to whether they understood settlement terms and were agreeing to be bound by them. Conservatorship of McElroy (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 536, 550-551, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 485

Mass tort settlements in asbestos-related cases could not be enforced against one corporate defendant under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, when defendant's agent signed settlement agreements but no corporate officer of defendant signed, and when agreements did not specify material term, i.e., what that defendant was obligated to pay. Gauss v. GAF Corp. (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 1110, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 370

Documents signed by plaintiffs but not defendants, which did not specify which defendant, if any, was responsible for making settlement payments to plaintiffs, were not enforceable as settlement agreements under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, because as drafted, documents were merely unilateral offers to settle and were revoked prior to their acceptance by defendants' tender of payment, and also were not signed by parties as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6. Sully-Miller Contracting Co. v. Gledson/Cashman Construction, Inc. (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 30, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 400

Parties engaged in private dispute resolution may not stipulate to appointment of judicial referee or judge pro tempore to secure settlement enforceable under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 unless reference is sought in pending litigation. Housing Group v. United Nat. Ins. Co. (2001) 90 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 497

Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 does not apply to enforce release agreement entered into more than five months before wrongful death action is filed, since at time plaintiff executed release, there was no pending litigation. Kirby v. Southern Cal. Edison Co. (2000) 78 Cal. App. 4th 840, 93 Cal. Rptr. 2d 223

Requirement of personal agreement by a party does not preclude enforcement of insurance-funded settlement reached by authorized insurance defense counsel or adjuster when carrier has contractual right to settle. Robertson v. Chen (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 1290, 1295, 52 Cal. Rptr. 2d 264

"Parties" in Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 means litigants themselves, so that for settlement agreement to be enforceable it must have been personally agreed to or signed by litigants. Cortez v. Kenneally (1996) 44 Cal. App. 4th 523, 528, 51 Cal. Rptr. 2d 671

Requirement that oral settlement agreement be before the court is not satisfied when agreement is before mediator who is not authorized by statute to act in quasi-judicial capacity. Murphy v. Padilla (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 707, 714, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722

Direct party-litigant participation is required to enforce settlement agreements. Murphy v. Padilla (1996) 42 Cal. App. 4th 707, 714, 49 Cal. Rptr. 2d 722

Order approving compromise of minor's claim was binding on insurer when settlement agreement called for court to make binding determination of one outstanding issue to be used to complete otherwise stipulated disposition of claim. Mohn v. Kohlruss (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 595, 598-599, 242 Cal. Rptr. 110

Stipulation recited to court reporter at deposition hearing and later reduced to writing but not signed by one party was insufficient basis for judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 because oral stipulation must be entered into before court, and written stipulation must be signed by parties. City of Fresno v. Maroot (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 755, 760-762, 234 Cal. Rptr. 353

Entry of judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 (settlement agreement orally stipulated to before court) over objections of one party was proper when court's determination that parties entered into valid and binding settlement agreement in open court was supported by substantial evidence. Estate of Dipinto (1986) 188 Cal. App. 3d 625, 629-630, 231 Cal. Rptr. 612

When ruling on motion to compel enforcement of out-of-court settlement pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, trial court was trier of fact and authorized to receive oral testimony or to determine motions on declarations alone; standard of appellate review is whether trial court's determination is supported by substantial evidence. Fiore v. Alvord (1985) 182 Cal. App. 3d 561, 565-566, 221 Cal. Rptr. 400

Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 makes it unnecessary to file motion for summary judgment to enforce oral settlement agreement, even when material facts of purported agreement are in dispute; legislature endorsed use of "speaking motions" to enforce disputed agreements by enacting Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6. Richardson v. Richardson (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 91, 96, 225 Cal. Rptr. 370

"Parties" under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, which provides that parties may stipulate to settlement and entry of judgment, means individual litigant and his or her attorney acting on litigant's behalf; litigant is not required to be personally present at or to personally agree to settlement so long as attorney, in trial court's determination, had authority to settle. Haldeman v. Boise Cascade (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 230, 233-234, 221 Cal. Rptr. 412

Former Code Civ. Proc. § 583(b) (now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.310-583.360), providing mandatory dismissal of action not brought to trial within five years after it is filed, was not applicable to enforcing settlement agreement. Gorman v. Holte (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 984, 989, 211 Cal. Rptr. 34

Oral agreements to compromise and settle lawsuits reached at judicially supervised settlement conferences are enforceable in several ways, including by motion pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6, by motion for summary judgment, by separate suit in equity, or by amendment of pleadings to raise settlement as affirmative defense. Gorman v. Holte (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 984, 989, 211 Cal. Rptr. 34

Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6 authorizes what was formerly nonstatutory speaking motion and makes it applicable to oral or written settlement stipulations; motion for entry of judgment pursuant to settlement allowed under Code Civ. Proc. § 664.6. Corkland v. Boscoe (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 989, 994-995, 203 Cal. Rptr. 356

Motion for summary judgment is proper method to enforce pretrial settlement; granting of summary judgment is improper when triable issue of fact existed as to whether defendant's obligation under settlement agreement was conditioned on approval of written agreement. Duran v. Duran (1983) 150 Cal. App. 3d 176, 179-180, 197 Cal. Rptr. 497

Motion for order compelling enforcement of alleged settlement agreement is in effect motion for summary judgment and is improperly granted when it presents issue of material fact. Nabi v. Laudermill (1982) 130 Cal. App. 3d 282, 284, 182 Cal. Rptr. 368 ; Mancina v. Hoar (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 796, 797, 181 Cal. Rptr. 347

In action under Federal Employers Liability Act, trial court erroneously awarded plaintiff prejudgment interest under Civ. Code § 3291, because FELA preempts Civ. Code § 3291. Lund v. San Joaquin Valley Railroad (2003) 31 Cal. 4th 1, 13-15, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 412, 71 P.3d 770

In action for breach of contract, in which defendant filed a cross-complaint, trial court did not abuse its discretion in granting plaintiff relief to set aside judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b) based on typographic error in Section 998 offer plaintiff's counsel sent to defendant in which legal assistant mistakenly typed word "against" as opposed to phrase "in favor of" plaintiff, which was sent to defendant without being reviewed by plaintiff's counsel and which defendant accepted; trial court reasonably concluded that mistake made by plaintiff's counsel was excusable, even though counsel's failure to review document before sending it out was imprudent, when plaintiff was diligent in seeking relief and defendant was not prejudiced. Zamora v. Clayborn Contr. Group, Inc. (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 249, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d

Settlement offer made under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 is revocable by offeror; settlement offer made under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 does not create irrevocable option. T.M. Cobb Co. v. Superior Court (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 273, 280-283, 204 Cal. Rptr. 143, 682 P.2d 338

Amount of offer after suit commences is to include costs. Spencer Kennelly, Ltd. v. Bk. of Amer. (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 586, 592, 122 P.2d 552

Voluntary dismissal with prejudice is judgment for purposes of Code Civ. Proc. § 998. Chinn v. KMR Property Management (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 175, 196, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 586

No minimum period must elapse following commencement of suit for service of valid Code Civ. Proc. § 998 offer. Barba v. Perez (2008) 166 Cal. App. 4th 444, 450-451, 82 Cal. Rptr. 3d 715

Offer must remain open for the statutorily designated period set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)(2) in order to constitute proper offer under Code Civ. Proc. § 998. Marina Glencoe, L.P. v. Neue Sentimental Film AG (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 874, 880, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 800

After plaintiff unilaterally withdrew a Section 998 offer before statutory period for defendant to respond had lapsed, plaintiff was not entitled to seek costs after jury verdict, because a Section 998 offer that was unilaterally revoked before expiration of statutory period did not trigger cost shifting provisions of Code. Civ. Proc. § 998. Marcey v. Romero (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 1211, 1215-1217, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 402

In personal injury action, trial court erred in awarding plaintiff prejudgment interest from date of second Section 998 offer rather than date of first offer, when ultimate verdict was in excess of both offers. Ray v. Goodman (2006) 142 Cal. App. 4th 83, 87-92, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 659

Trial court erred in denying individual members of board of homeowners association award of expert witness fees pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998 on ground that association's insurer made Section 998 offers on behalf of individuals; litigant may recover attorney fees even though litigant has not paid for them out of his or her own pocket, and Section 998 contains no requirement that any particular person must have incurred expert witness fees, just that fees must have been actually incurred. Skistimas v. Old World Owners Assn. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 948, 951-953, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 319

In action by condominium owner for damages and declaratory relief against homeowners association for failure to maintain common areas resulting in damage to her unit, trial court properly determined that owner obtained judgment more favorable than Section 998 offer made by association, which owner had refused, by including voluntary post-offer payments made by association to homeowner and value of association's agreement to make repairs in conformance with its legal obligations. Arias v. Katella Townhouse Homeowners Assn., Inc. (2005) 127 Cal. App. 4th 847, 853-856, 26 Cal. Rptr. 3d 113

Section 998 offer by defendant to two plaintiffs to settle action for waiver of costs did not confer liability for expert witness fees on plaintiffs after failing to prevail at trial, when offer was conditional because it was made in single document referring to plaintiffs in conjunctive, and notice of acceptance that accompanied offer again referred to plaintiffs in conjunctive and provided only one signature line, which was for attorney representing both of them. Legislative purpose of Code Civ. Proc. § 998 is best served in multi-plaintiff cases by requiring that offers be separately prepared and served on individual plaintiffs, allowing each individual opportunity to accept individually. Menees v. Andrews (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 1540, 1545-1546, 19 Cal. Rptr. 3d 664

Service of Section 998 offer more than 10 but less than 15 days before trial was not timely because provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a), requiring additional five days for service by mail, apply to 10-day notice requirement in Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b). Lecuyer v. Sunset Trails Apartments (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 920, 925-927, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 169

Plaintiff's offer under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 to settle dental malpractice case for specified sum and specifying that if there was no acceptance of offer within 30 days, plaintiff would seek full panoply of Section 998 awards, including prejudgment interest starting from date of service and expert costs if she received greater sum from defendant at trial, was valid Section 998 offer and satisfied requirements of specificity and clarity, even though it did not specify method by which litigation would be finally resolved. Berg v. Darden (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 721, 731-733, 15 Cal. Rptr. 3d 829

Defendant's failure to specify dollar amount for attorney's fees in settlement offer under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 did not render offer so uncertain as to be unenforceable, since many contracts contain provision authorizing prevailing party in litigation arising out of contract to recover reasonable attorney's fees from another party to contract, and no published authority has held that inclusion of provision renders contract uncertain or unenforceable, and when failure to specify dollar amount of reasonable fees would not have precluded court from ascertaining with reasonable certainty defendant's obligations under offer had plaintiff accepted offer because applicable statutory and rule provisions set forth procedure for determining amount of attorney's fees to be awarded pursuant to contractual provision, which did not leave matter open for parties' future agreement, nor did it create uncertainty rendering it unenforceable. Offer was not also uncertain because plaintiff would have been required to incur additional, nonrecoverable attorney's fees to bring motion to have court determine fee amount if parties could not reach agreement. Elite Show Services, Inc. v. Staffpro, Inc. (2004) 119 Cal. App. 4th 263, 268-270, 14 Cal. Rptr. 3d 184

Defendants' offer under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 served on plaintiffs, who were married couple, to settle litigation between them for $35,000, which did not apportion settlement amount between plaintiffs, and which neither husband nor wife accepted, was valid and entitled defendants to recovery of expert witness fees when plaintiffs lost litigation, when plaintiff's suit arose out of their purchase of community property, they sued on choses in action which were community property, and their recovery would be community property; defendants could not allocate their settlement offer between husband and wife because they each had equal, undivided half-interest in causes of action for fraud and breach of contract and would have had equal, undivided half-interest in settlement proceeds; offer did not have to be accepted by both plaintiffs to be effective because Fam. Code § 1100(a) places management and control of the community personal property in either spouse. Vick v. DaCorsi (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 206, 209-213, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 626

Section 998 offer to multiple defendants was not valid because it was not apportioned among defendants and, as of time of the offer, under pleadings, defendants could have been found liable, but not jointly and severally liable, for full amount of the judgment under permissive user doctrine and Proposition 51. Burch v. Children's Hospital of Orange County Thrift Stores, Inc. (2003) 109 Cal. App. 4th 537, 547-551, 135 Cal. Rptr. 2d 404

Subsequent offer under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 revoked prior offer, even though subsequent offer was defective because it was not explicitly apportioned among parties to whom offer was made, but was directed to all three defendants jointly and severally. Palmer v. Schindler Elevator Corp. (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 154, 157-159, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 339

Oral acceptance of offer followed by written proof of acceptance is permitted under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 when offer does not specify a mode of communicating acceptance; however, defendant did not accept plaintiff's offer in timely, absolute and unqualified manner as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 998, when defendant's notice of acceptance, which contained provision that parties bear own costs, which did not appear in plaintiff's offer, actually set forth counteroffer, not acceptance, and did not constitute proof of acceptance under Code Civ. Proc. § 998. Bias v. Wright (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 811, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 137

In personal injury action arising from automobile accident, trial court erroneously held that jury verdict in first trial extinguished right plaintiffs acquired under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 based on their statutory offers to compromise which were not accepted, and denied prejudgment interest and expert witness fees after second trial at which they prevailed, when effect of trial court's grant of new trial was to nullify first judgment with result that neither judgment entered after first trial nor special verdict upon which it was based, existed to extinguish any benefits that may have arisen under Code Civ. Proc. § 998. Saakyan v. Modern Auto, Inc. (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 383, 389-392, 126 Cal. Rptr. 2d 674

Section 998 settlement offer in medical malpractice action was not invalid when made jointly by husband and wife, when it was clear that bulk of $1 million offer was meant for husband because wife's recovery was limited to $250,000 on her cause of action, and jury awarded far greater amount than was requested in the Section 998 offer less the maximum that wife could have recovered. Deocampo v. Ahn (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 758, 776-777, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79

Provision in Section 998 settlement offer that would allow plaintiffs, at their option, to vacate their offer or a resulting Section 998-based judgment did not invalidate offer; provision was intended simply to hold defendant to discovery representation that he only had $1 million in insurance coverage, and litigants have right to condition offer to compromise on accuracy of information supplied by offeree in discovery. Deocampo v. Ahn (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 758, 778, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79

Section 998 offer to compromise for greater of $1 million or combined limits of defendant's policies that would provide defendant with coverage for plaintiff's claims was basic policy limit offer and was not vague as to amount requested, since actual total insurance coverage, if it differed from stated $1 million figure, was fact peculiarly within defendant's knowledge. Deocampo v. Ahn (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 758, 779, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 79

In personal injury action, trial court properly granted defendants' motion for summary judgment on grounds that action was barred by settlement, when defendants' unequivocal oral acceptance of plaintiff's written Section 998 offer before it was revoked was valid, Code Civ. Proc. § 998 does not require service of acceptance, and fact that proof of acceptance was filed after attempted revocation did not affect validity of acceptance. Gray v. Stewart (2002) 97 Cal. App. 4th 1394, 1397-1398, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 217

In action by Attorney General in name of People for civil penalties, restitution and injunctive relief against life insurer and its parent company under Bus. & Prof. Code §§ 17200, 17500, trial court properly awarded parent company expert witness fees as costs after Attorney General rejected parent company's offer to settle pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998 and Attorney General failed to prove parent company's liability as life insurer's alter ego People ex rel. Lockyer v. Fremont General Corp. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 1260, 108 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127

Prejudgment interest under Civ. Code § 3291 and Code Civ. Proc. § 998 applies to future periodic portion of judgment, and is calculated from date of plaintiff's first Section 998 offer. Hrimnak v. Watkins (1995) 38 Cal. App. 4th 964, 980-981, 45 Cal. Rptr. 2d 514

"Judgment" in Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b) contemplates that offer to compromise that is accepted will result in final disposition of underlying lawsuit; statute does not indicate intent to limit terms of compromise settlement or type of final disposition; compromise agreement calling for voluntary dismissal with prejudice satisfies requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 998. Goodstein v. Bank of San Pedro (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 899, 906, 32 Cal. Rptr. 2d 740

Trial court is entitled to infer that defendant's settlement offer was not in good faith when jury concluded that defendant was directly liable for damages almost eight times greater than settlement offer and was, through joint and several liability, liable for damages more than 20 times greater than settlement offer. Elrod v. Oregon Cummins Diesel, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 692, 700-701, 241 Cal. Rptr. 108

In action on contract providing for recovery of attorney's fees by prevailing party, when judgment is entered based on offer of compromise under Code Civ. Proc. § 998, prevailing party is entitled to recover attorney fees under Civ. Code § 1717 as item of costs after judgment, even though compromise agreement is silent on costs and fees. Lanyi v. Goldblum (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 181, 189, 223 Cal. Rptr. 32 ; see also Rappenecker v. Sea-Land Service, Inc. (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 256, 261-264, 155 Cal. Rptr. 516 (costs)

Code Civ. Proc. § 998 (award costs of suit to offering party) and Civ. Code § 3291 (interest on more favorable judgment secured by offering party) are inapplicable to arbitration proceedings. Woodard v. Southern Cal. Permanente Medical Group (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 656, 666, 217 Cal. Rptr. 514

Offer made under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 is governed by principles of contract law; offer is withdrawn if acceptance not communicated within statutory period. Drouin v. Fleetwood Enterprises (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 486, 491-492, 209 Cal. Rptr. 623

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 998, when plaintiff rejected defendant's settlement offer and prevailed at trial, but failed to recover more favorable judgment, reduction in plaintiff's recoverable costs by amount of both defendant's and plaintiff's regular court costs incurred after time of offer was proper since provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 998 for recovery of costs from time of offer are mandatory. Lafayette v. County of Los Angeles (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 547, 557, 208 Cal. Rptr. 668

Qualified acceptance of a Code Civ. Proc. § 998 settlement offer that contains terms or conditions materially different from those in original offer constitutes counter offer that terminates power of original offeree to accept settlement offer. Glende Motor Co. v. Superior Court (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 389, 398, 205 Cal. Rptr. 682

In personal injury action, former Code Civ. Proc. § 998(g) (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 998(h)) and Gov. Code § 68092.5, governing payment of costs by unsuccessful party who refused to compromise, restrict fees allowable to witness who testifies solely as to any expert opinion and trial court properly rejected claim for expert witness fees when witnesses were physicians whose testimony could have been compelled by simple subpoena. Ellenberger v. Karr (1982) 127 Cal. App. 3d 423, 428, 179 Cal. Rptr. 583 (Gov. Code § 68092.5 later amended to permit fees when witness testifies primarily as expert)

It is within discretion of trial court to disallow defendant's expert witness fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 998(c) if defendant's offer to compromise is unreasonable, unrealistic, and made with no expectation of its acceptance. Pineda v. Los Angeles Turf Club, Inc. (1980) 112 Cal. App. 3d 53, 62-63, 169 Cal. Rptr. 66

Plaintiff's recovery of costs not prohibited by acceptance of defendant's offer to allow judgment to be taken in "full compromise settlement" of claims. Rappenecker v. Sea-Land Service, Inc. (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 256, 261-264, 155 Cal. Rptr. 516

Compromise settlement without trial of prior action pursuant to stipulation for payment to truck driver, when stipulation included disclaimer as to liability and recited that merit of driver's claim was in dispute, did not preclude trial on merits involving party who was not party to compromise. Clovis Ready Mix Co. v. Aetna Freight Lines (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 276, 285, 101 Cal. Rptr. 820

Offer to compromise pursuant to former Code Civ. Proc. § 997 made before second trial superseded higher offer made prior to first trial for purpose of recovering costs. Distefano v. Hall (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 380, 384-385, 69 Cal. Rptr. 691

[8] Satisfaction of Compromise or Settlement Judgments

Satisfaction of compromise settlement judgment entered under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 did not discharge liability of defendants who were not parties to settlement agreement. Milicevich v. Sacramento Medical Center (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 997, 1000-1007, 202 Cal. Rptr. 484

[9] Settlement With One or More of Several Tortfeasors

To extent settlement is dictated by tactical advantage of removing deep-pocket defendant, it is not made in good faith consideration of the relevant liability of all parties. Long Beach Memorial Medical Center v. Superior Court (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 865, 877, 91 Cal. Rptr. 3d 494

Applying settlement credit pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 877 in satisfaction of judgment is not modification of arbitration award on which judgment was based. Wade v. Schrader (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1039, 1045, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 865

In contract action in which property owner sued contractor and contractor sued property owner, and in which other property owners settled with contractor, after jury determined that property owner's breach caused $32,551.52 in unmitigable damages to contractor, and that contractor's breach caused $19,800 in damages to property owner, trial court properly gave property owner credit for $100,000 settlement paid by former codefendants, which exceeded amount awarded by jury, and correctly determined that property owner therefore owed contractor nothing, but erred when it entered judgment in favor of property owner for $19,800, and should have entered judgment awarding nothing to either party, where, under Code Civ. Proc. § 877(a), reversal of property owner's verdict for $19,800 did not result in double recovery to contractor because trial court's judgment awarding $19,800 to property owner and nothing to contractor gave contractor no recovery at all, and judgment appellate court instructed trial court to enter on remand, awarding nothing to either side, would still give contractor no recovery at all, and only recovery contractor obtained was settlement it received from property owner's former codefendants. Brawley v. J.C. Interiors, Inc. (2008) 161 Cal. App. 4th 1126, 1132-1135, 74 Cal. Rptr. 3d 832

After attorneys settled malpractice and negligent misrepresentation action against them by trust beneficiaries and obtained good faith settlement determination order pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6, and, in separate probate proceeding, beneficiaries sought relief against trustee for dereliction of his trust duties, which dispute was settled, trial court erred in not granting summary judgment and summary adjudication to attorneys in action by trustee, whom attorneys had represented, for torts related to services provided trustee in connection with trusts, on grounds that claims were barred by good faith determination order, when good faith determination could bar claims of unnamed party; trustee and attorneys were joint tortfeasors; trustee's claims were either for indemnification or in effect for indemnification; and therefore, under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6, good faith settlement barred the trustee's claims. Gackstetter v. Frawley (2006) 135 Cal. App. 4th 1257, 1270-1279, 38 Cal. Rptr. 3d 333

Determination of good faith settlement governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 applies only to trial court, not to Court of Appeal. Lopez v. Jarrett (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 1298, 106 Cal. Rptr. 2d 829

Finding that settlement was in good faith under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6 as possible even though insurer for one of settling defendants arguably breached its "good faith" obligations by denying coverage and refusing to negotiate on behalf of one of nonsettling defendants; possible bad faith claim against insurer as irrelevant to issue of whether settling tortfeasor acted in good faith. Rankin v. Curtis (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 939, 944-947, 228 Cal. Rptr. 753

[1] Conditions Affecting Operation of Release

Act of State Board of Control employee in withholding appropriation made by Legislature to compensate private citizen injured while preventing crime [former Penal Code §§ 13600-13603, now see Gov. Code §§ 13970-13974.1] constituted unlawful condition to payment rendering release ineffective. Worthington v. State Bd. of Control (1968) 266 Cal. App. 2d 697, 699-700, 72 Cal. Rptr. 449

[2] Consideration for Release

Written release unsupported by consideration requires express showing of creditor's intent to extinguish obligation. Tenzer v. Superscope, Inc. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 18, 31 n. 7, 216 Cal. Rptr. 130, 702 P.2d 212

[3] Definition of Release

Definition and theory of release. Pellett v. Sonotone Corp. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 705, 711, 160 P.2d 783 ; Hastings v. Matlock (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 876, 882, 166 Cal. Rptr. 229

Definition of release under Civ. Code § 1542. Sime v. Malouf (1949) 95 Cal. App. 2d 82, 108-110, 212 P.2d 946

[4] Effect of Release

Application form signed by parents releasing city and its employees from liability for "any negligent act" related to child's participation in city's summer camp for developmentally disabled children violated public policy and was unenforceable to extent it released liability for future gross negligence. City of Santa Barbara v. Superior Court (2007) 41 Cal. 4th 747, 753-781, 62 Cal. Rptr. 3d 527, 161 P.3d 1095

Trial court erred in finding that release signed by plaintiff before beginning trail ride operated by stable did not bar action against stable based on negligence of employee leading ride, where release did not unambiguously exempt stable from liability for its own negligence or for any and all risks plaintiff encountered while using stable's facilities, and trial court not only improperly resolved ambiguity in favor of drafter, but ignored principle that release relieves defendant of consequences of its own negligence only if it does so in clear, unambiguous, and explicit language. Cohen v. Five Brooks Stable (2008) 159 Cal. App. 4th 1476, 1484-1491

Release agreement signed by employee regarding suspension of his employment following altercation with coworker was ambiguous about scope of waiver and question of whether release waived employee's right to bring discrimination action was question of fact, for which extrinsic evidence could be introduced to resolve ambiguity. Butler v. Vons Cos., Inc. (2006) 140 Cal. App. 4th 943, 947-951, 45 Cal. Rptr. 3d 151

Release signed by dog owner to have dog neutered was complete defense to action resulting from dog's death, when claims were within scope of release language and owner failed to show defendants' retention of dog because he was not neutered was unlawful so as to establish statutory duress which coerced owner to sign release. Release applied to claims of wrongful impoundment and detention, because claims sought recovery of general and special damages arising from dog's death, which owner waived by his agreement to release defendants from and against any and all claims arising from surgery on dog. Finally, agreement, voluntarily entered into, did not violate public policy. Tarpy v. County of San Diego (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 267, 276-279, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 607

Agreement for minority shareholder to sell stock back to majority shareholders could not release directors or majority shareholders from tort liability to seller on any claim based on their subsequent sale of company, which resulted in their receiving higher price for their shares than seller received. Agreement provided that seller would not sue merely because majority shareholders ultimately obtained more for their shares than seller received for his, but tort causes of action were not based on claim they breached duty to share ultimate proceeds from sale with him on a pro rata basis, but when that in negotiating purchase of minority shareholder's shares defendants breached their duties to disclose and not misrepresent all material facts bearing on value of shares at time he sold them. Neubauer v. Goldfarb (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 47, 58-59, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 218

Release conclusively estops party from reviving and relitigating claim released. In re Mission Ins. Co. (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 828, 838, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 209

Mere recital that protection of Civ. Code § 1542 is waived, or that release covers unknown claims or unknown parties, does not control; whether releasor intended to discharge claims or parties is ultimately question of fact. Vega v. Western Employers Ins. Co. (1985) 170 Cal. App. 3d 922, 927, 216 Cal. Rptr. 592 , overruled in part by Moradi-Shalal v. Fireman's Fund Ins. Companies (1988) 46 Cal. 3d 287, 310, 250 Cal. Rptr. 116, 758 P.2d 58

Release does not extend to claims not known or suspected to exist, and mere recital in release, that it covers unknown claims or that Civ. Code § 1542 is waived, does not of itself bar assertion that bodily injuries were unknown; whether releasor actually intended to discharge claims is question of fact; and mere knowledge of some injury does not necessarily imply knowledge of extent thereof. Grebe v. McDaniel (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 901, 903, 71 Cal. Rptr. 662

[5] Requirements for Formation of Valid Release

Terms of release require mutual assent by all parties to release for release to be binding on them. Smith v. Occidental and Oriental Steamship Co. (1893) 99 Cal. 462, 470-471, 34 P. 84

Employment severance agreement could be enforced despite lack of waiver of Civ. Code § 1542 providing that general release does not extend to claims creditor does not know or suspect to exist in his or her favor at time of executing release, which if known by him or her must have materially affected his or her settlement with debtor, where agreement stated plaintiff waived all claims existing as of date he signed agreement arising from or relating to his employment or termination of his employment and any claims arising under common law of contract, implied contract, tort, public policy, or statute, such as claims under specified legislative enactments, or any other federal or state law, statute, decision, order, policy or regulation establishing or relating to claims or rights of employees, including, but not limited to claims in tort or contract, based upon public policy, and any and all claims alleging breach of express or implied, or oral or written, contract, or alleging misrepresentation, defamation, interference with contract, or wrongful discharge, and plaintiff understood he was releasing claims arising under all statutes agreement referred to, even those he did not understand; and where nothing in Civ. Code § 1542 required that it be designated in release or that party specifically waive its provisions. Perez v. Uline (2007) 157 Cal. App. 4th 953, 958-959, 68 Cal. Rptr. 3d 872

Agreement for sale of stock could not knowingly and intelligently waive any fiduciary duty directors or majority shareholders owed to seller, because waiver of corporate directors' and majority shareholders' fiduciary duties to minority shareholders in private close corporations is against public policy and contract provision in buy-sell agreement purporting to effect such waiver is void. Even if fiduciary duty validly could be waived, waiver required knowing and intelligent relinquishment of right, and triable issue of fact existed as to whether seller's purported waiver was fully informed. Neubauer v. Goldfarb (2003) 108 Cal. App. 4th 47, 55-57, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 218

Release is knowingly and voluntarily signed notwithstanding contention that signer was not told that release would affect certain claims. Skrbina v. Fleming Companies (1996) 45 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1367, 53 Cal. Rptr. 2d 481

[6] Enforcement of Release

Absent laches, defendant may file supplemental answer setting up defense of release. Seehorn v. Big Meadows & Bodie Wagon Road Co. (1882) 60 Cal. 240, 251

[7] Interpretation of Release

Parol evidence of circumstances surrounding execution of release is admissible to place court in position of those whose language he or she must interpret. Jersey Island Dredging Co. v. Whitney (1906) 149 Cal. 269, 273, 86 P. 691

Release given by decedent was no bar to death action by heirs. Earley v. Pacific Electric Ry. Co. (1917) 176 Cal. 79, 81-82, 167 P. 513

In personal injury action by spectator against speedway owner for injuries suffered when speedway pit-area bleachers collapsed, trial court erred in finding that release of liability signed by plaintiff releasing defendant from all liability for any injuries sustained while on premises was complete defense because injury was reasonably related to purpose of release agreement. The purpose of release was not merely to give access to restricted areas of speedway, but to require releasee to assume risk of injury as result of being in close proximity to dangerous activity of automobile racing and any further risk that might result from activity of observing such a race. Plaintiff's express assumption of risk would cover all hazards related to automobile race and its observation, but release agreement did not contractually charge plaintiff with assuming risk of injury from defectively constructed or maintained bleachers. Sweat v. Big Time Auto Racing, Inc. (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 1301, 1304-1308, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 678

In action by skier against resort for negligence and premises liability based on fall, trial court erroneously granted defendant summary judgment based on release to which plaintiff agreed as part of season pass, which allowed plaintiff to use defendant's facilities Monday through Friday. The accident occurred on Sunday, for which plaintiff had bought day pass which did not include a release, and defendant did not demonstrate that release necessarily applied to plaintiff's claim. Solis v. Kirkwood Resort Co. (2001) 94 Cal. App. 4th 354, 360-364, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 265

In carrying out de novo interpretation of release, appellate court's inquiry is whether release is broad enough in scope to cover activities in question, or whether activities were of type originally contemplated by parties in entering into release. Paralift, Inc. v. Superior Court (1993) 23 Cal. App. 4th 748, 756, 29 Cal. Rptr. 2d 177

[8] Joint Debtors, Tortfeasors, and Coobligors

In Ninth Circuit, release of one tortfeasor does not release all other joint tortfeasors, absent agreement to effect release of any or all other tortfeasors. Avery v. U.S. (9th Cir. 1987) 829 F.2d 817, 819

In action against automobile manufacturer based on automobile accident, extrinsic evidence presented at trial established as matter of law that inclusion of language in release of driver of other vehicle and his insurance company ostensibly releasing all third parties from liability was mutual mistake, when testimony of contracting parties to effect that release of manufacturer was not intended was relevant in describing their disclosed intentions; trial court properly removed issue of scope of release from jury so any error in judicially noticing that there had been judicial reformation judgment conforming release to parties' intentions was harmless. Hess v. Ford Motor Co. (2002) 27 Cal. 4th 516, 117 Cal. Rptr. 2d 220, 41 P.3d 46

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 877, plaintiff in tort action who sues one party as alter ego of subsidiary corporation can proceed against alleged alter ego after settlement with subsidiary. Mesler v. Bragg Management Co. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 290, 297-306, 216 Cal. Rptr. 443, 702 P.2d 601

Settlement made in good faith under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 877 and 877.6 bars claims against settling defendant for contribution or indemnity by other joint tortfeasors, including claims for total indemnity, partial indemnity and implied contractual indemnity. Fullerton Redevelopment Agency v. Southern California Gas Co. (2010) 183 Cal. App. 4th 428, 432, 107 Cal. Rptr. 3d 396

Due process requires that unnamed joint tortfeasor not be bound by good faith determination under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6, when that tortfeasor's potential liability was known or reasonably should have been known to settling parties but he or she was not given opportunity to be heard at good faith determination. Singer Co. v. Superior Court (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 875, 881, 890-895, 225 Cal. Rptr. 159

When parties stipulate to fact and amount of prior settlement after verdict but before entry of judgment, defendant is entitled to judgment in amount that reflects credit for payment received by plaintiff in settlements from other tortfeasors prior to trial; when plaintiff's settlement completely offsets damages assessed against nonsettling joint tortfeasor, judgment is reduced to zero by operation of law, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 877. Syverson v. Heitmann (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 106, 110-112, 214 Cal. Rptr. 581

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 877.6, good faith settlement by one or more joint tortfeasors that bars any other joint tortfeasor from claiming comparative indemnity against settling tortfeasors is available in commercial actions and not limited to personal injury actions. Kohn v. Superior Court (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 323, 332, 191 Cal. Rptr. 78

Requirement that settlement with released joint tortfeasor be in good faith is meant to insure that settling parties refrain from tortious or other wrongful conduct against nonsettling parties; failure of sliding scale agreements to achieve equitable apportionment or final settlement of litigation does not mean that good faith is absent. Burlington Northern R.R. Co. v. Superior Court (1982) 137 Cal. App. 3d 942, 945-947, 187 Cal. Rptr. 376

In action involving joint tortfeasors, settlement and release by plaintiff of one joint tortfeasor requires offset in trial judgment against nonsettling tortfeasor. Knox v. County of Los Angeles (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 825, 832, 167 Cal. Rptr. 463

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 877, release of agent before trial does not discharge principal from tort liability, even though sole basis alleged for recovery from principal is his vicarious liability for acts of agent. Ritter v. Technicolor Corp. (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 152 153-155, 103 Cal. Rptr. 686

Release executed by tort victim in violation of good faith requirement of Code Civ. Proc. § 877 did not activate common law rule that release of one joint tortfeasor releases all, but rather permitted tortfeasor to invoke release's illegality, have it set aside, and seek damages from tort victim. River Garden Farms, Inc. v. Superior Court (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 986, 999-1001, 103 Cal. Rptr. 498

Effect of payment from one joint tortfeasor on amount of damages recoverable against other joint tortfeasor. Steele v. Hash (1963) 212 Cal. App. 2d 1, 2-3, 27 Cal. Rptr. 853

[9] Ratification of Release

Ratification of void release is not possible when person alleged to have ratified did not know what agreement contained or all the facts when alleged ratification occurred. Backus v. Sessions (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 380, 385, 110 P.2d 51

Rescindable release is subject to ratification by conduct of releasor. Eustace v. Lynch (1941) 43 Cal. App. 2d 486, 491, 111 P.2d 372

[10] Rescission of Voidable Release

Rescission is required of releases that are merely voidable, rather than void. Garcia v. California Truck Co. (1920) 183 Cal. 767, 770, 192 P. 708

In determining whether releasor was mentally competent to execute release, court properly receives evidence of releasor's mental condition both before and after execution of release. Perkins v. Sunset Tel. and Tel. Co. (1909) 155 Cal. 712, 717, 103 P. 190

Release is subject to rescission for same reasons as other contracts. Matthews v. A.T. & S.F. Ry. (1942) 54 Cal. App. 2d 549, 557, 129 P.2d 435

Circumstantial evidence is admissible to prove fraud in execution of release. Wilson v. San Francisco O. T. Railways (1920) 48 Cal. App. 343, 348, 191 P. 975

[11] Review

Appellate court is not required to consider or rule on validity of release that is neither framed by pleadings nor specially pleaded. Hildebrand v. Stonecrest Corp. (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 158, 164, 169, 344 P.2d 378

Generally when conflicting evidence is offered on existence of facts tending to negate consent to release, inferences to be drawn from these facts are for trier of fact, and resulting findings of fact are not to be disturbed on appeal. Mathews v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. (1941) 47 Cal. App. 2d 424, 430, 118 P.2d 10

[12] Summary Judgment

Mutual release supported summary judgment against owner as to claim against architect for negligent supervision of construction contract. Larsen v. Johannes (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 491, 496-507, 86 Cal. Rptr. 744

Release is sufficient to support summary judgment for releasee. Grebe v. McDaniel (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 901, 902-904, 71 Cal. Rptr. 662

[2] Use of Form

This form is an offer to compromise that may be served by any party on any other party to an action to allow judgment (or contractual arbitration award under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281, 1296) to be taken in accordance with the terms and conditions stated at that time [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)].

As an alternative to this form, optional Judicial Council Form CIV-090, illustrated in § 520.110, may be used in appropriate cases. Form CIV-090 may be used only in civil actions involving a single plaintiff and a single defendant, and the offer and acceptance must involve a money judgment. In other cases, an attorney-drafted form such as this one must be used.

The written offer must include a statement of the offer, containing the terms and conditions of the judgment or award, and a provision allowing the accepting party to indicate acceptance of the offer by signing a statement that the offer is accepted [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)].

If the offer is not accepted, the costs allowed under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1031 and 1032 (see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1033-1034 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1700 et seq.) are to be withheld as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 998 [see

Code Civ. Proc. § 998(a)].

This form may be adapted for use by a cross complainant or cross defendant, as Code Civ. Proc. § 998 applies to those parties as well [see Code Civ. Proc. § 998(f)].

If a personal injury plaintiff's offer is not accepted and the plaintiff obtains a more favorable judgment, the judgment must bear interest from the date of plaintiff's first offer pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998 which is exceeded by the judgment [Civ. Code § 3291].

The optional language referring to attorney's fees would be included only if there is some reason why the general rule that a party bears his or her own attorney's fees [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1021] would not apply, such as when a contract provision states otherwise [see discussion in Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees]. Note that if the offer is silent on attorney's fees, and the action was brought on a contract providing for recovery of attorney's fees by the prevailing party, the prevailing party may recover attorney's fees under Civ. Code § 1717 as an item of costs after judgment [Lanyi v. Goldblum (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 181, 189, 223 Cal. Rptr. 32].

Similarly, when the accepted offer is silent on the issue of costs, the plaintiff may recover costs in addition to the specified amount of the written offer [Rappenecker v. Sea-Land Service, Inc. (1979) 93 Cal. App. 3d 256, 261-264, 155 Cal. Rptr. 516].

This form should include a place for the offeree to accept the offer or be accompanied by a notice of acceptance [see § 520.111; see Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)]. The offeror may also request that the offeree prepare the acceptance form, with either party filing the offer with proof of acceptance to obtain a judgment. The acceptance provision may be combined with this form instead of using a separate notice.

For forms for captions for use in contractual arbitration proceedings, see Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding .

[3] Signatures

The offer should be signed by the offeror, as well as the offeror's attorney, in order to avoid problems concerning the attorney's authority to compromise a claim for the client [see Code Civ. Proc. § 283; see also § 520.76[3], and Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.30 et seq.].

[4] Time and Manner of Service

An offer to compromise made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998 must be served not less than 10 days prior to commencement of the trial or contractual arbitration under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1281, 1296 [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)]. According to Code Civ. Proc. § 581(1), a trial or arbitration is deemed to be actually commenced at the beginning of the opening statement of the plaintiff or his or her counsel, and if there is no opening statement, then at the time of the administration of the oath or affirmation to the first witness, or of the introduction of any evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)(3)].

The offer may be served on the party or attorney by personal service, substituted service, or mail [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1010-1013]. Counsel should secure proof of service in case the offer is rejected and it later becomes necessary to establish the making of the offer in order to recover costs pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998(c), (d) or (e). This form contains an acknowledgment of service. The offeror can serve an extra copy of the form on the offeree to be signed and returned to the offeror. For forms and procedure relating to service and proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

If a Section 998 offer is withdrawn by party before its statutory expiration, withdrawing party's right to cost shifting under Section 998 is determined by last rejected Section 998 offer. One Star, Inc. v. Staar Surgical Co. (2009) 179 Cal. App. 4th 1082, 1093-1094, 102 Cal. Rptr. 3d 195

When judgment is entered based on Code Civ. Proc. § 998 settlement offer in action brought on contract that provided for recovery of attorney's fees by prevailing party, attorney's fees may be recovered under Civ. Code § 1717 as item of costs after judgment, even though settlement agreement is silent on costs and fees. Lanyi v. Goldblum (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 181, 189, 223 Cal. Rptr. 32

Settlement offer made under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 is revocable by offeror; settlement offer made under Code Civ. Proc. § 998 does not create irrevocable option. T.M. Cobb Co. v. Superior Court (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 273, 280-283, 204 Cal. Rptr. 143, 682 P.2d 338

The form may be used only in civil actions involving a single plaintiff and a single defendant. The offer and acceptance must involve a money judgment. In other cases, a form such as that illustrated in § 520.110 should be used.

This form includes space for acceptance of the offer by the defendant. For an attorney-drafted form for a defendant's acceptance of a plaintiff's offer to compromise under Code Civ. Proc. § 998, see § 520.111.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a notice for use by a party who has received an offer to compromise to notify the offeror of his or her acceptance [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)]. This form may be adapted for use by a cross complainant or cross defendant, as Code Civ. Proc. § 998 applies to those parties as well [see Code Civ. Proc. § 998(f)].

This form should be modified as appropriate if used in contractual arbitration proceedings. For forms for captions for use in those proceedings, see Ch. 33, Contractual Arbitration: Appointment of Arbitrator and Conduct of Proceeding .

When the plaintiff uses optional Judicial Council Form CIV-090 [see § 520.110A] for an offer to compromise under Code Civ. Proc. § 998, that form contains a signature block for the defendant's acceptance of the offer, and use of a separate form such as this one is unnecessary in that case.

[3] Requirement of Writing and Signature

Any acceptance of an offer to compromise under Code Civ. Proc. § 998, whether made on the document containing the offer or on a separate document of acceptance, must be in writing and signed by counsel for the accepting party or, if not represented by counsel, by the accepting party [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)].

[4] Timing of Acceptance

An offer to compromise made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 998 must be accepted prior to trial or arbitration, or within 30 days after it is made, whichever occurs first, or else it is deemed withdrawn and cannot be given in evidence on trial or arbitration [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)(2)].

[5] Notice to Court

If an entire case in superior court is settled, each plaintiff or other party seeking affirmative relief must immediately file written notice of the settlement or other disposition with the court and serve the notice on all parties and any arbitrator or other court-connected ADR neutral involved in the case. Each plaintiff or other party seeking affirmative relief also must immediately give oral notice to all of the above if a hearing, conference, or trial is scheduled to take place within 10 days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(a)]. For the Judicial Council form for a Notice of Settlement, which is required for use to notify the court and any arbitrator or court-connected ADR neutral, see § 520.114.

[6] Obtaining Judgment or Arbitration Award

If the offer to compromise is accepted, the offer, with proof of acceptance, must be filed, and the clerk or the judge must enter judgment accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)(1)]. The offeree's signed notice of acceptance filed with the court should be sufficient proof of acceptance.

In the case of an arbitration, the offer of proof of acceptance must be filed with the arbitrator or arbitrators who promptly must render an award accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)].

For forms for judgments obtained by similar procedures, see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments , for forms for default judgments entered by clerk pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 585(a), and Ch. 318, Judgments, § 318.40 et seq., for a form for a judgment entered by the clerk on a jury verdict pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 664.

[7] State Statutes

Acceptance of offer to compromise. Code Civ. Proc. § 998(b)(1)

[8] California Rules of Court

Duty of plaintiff or other party seeking affirmative relief to file with court and give any arbitrator or other court-connected ADR neutral written notice of settlement of case. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1385(a)

46-520 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 520.112

§ 520.112 Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Compromise of Claim Before Suit by Acceptance of Defendant's Promise

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--Compromise of Claim Before Suit by Acceptance of Defendant's Promise

AS A SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE, defendant alleges:

1. On or about _____ [date], and before the filing of plaintiff's complaint in this action, plaintiff demanded from defendant _____ [the sum sued for in the complaint or describe other property as appropriate], and defendant refused to _____ [pay the sum or deliver the property] because a dispute existed between them as to the extent of defendant's obligation to plaintiff.

2. On _____ [date], plaintiff and defendant entered into a[n] _____ [oral or written] agreement in compromise of plaintiff's claim whereby defendant promised to _____ [pay the sum of $_____ or deliver the property described above] to plaintiff on or before _____ [date], and plaintiff promised to accept defendant's promise in full compromise and satisfaction of the claim. [If written agreement, add: A copy of the compromise agreement is attached hereto as Exhibit 1 and made a part hereof.]

3. The time for performance of defendant's promise has not expired.

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use as an affirmative defense [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)] in an answer to a complaint based on the breach of an obligation [see Civ. Code §§ 1427, 1428] which has been extinguished by an oral or written compromise and settlement agreement. A compromise and settlement agreement is either a form of accord and satisfaction, if the parties intended that the mere execution of the agreement without satisfaction not extinguish the underlying obligation [see Stub v. Belmont (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 208, 217-218, 124 P.2d 826] , or else it is a form of novation, if they intended its mere execution to extinguish the obligation [see Armstrong v. Sacramento Valley R. Co. (1919) 179 Cal. 648, 651, 178 P. 516 ; see also Ch. 6, Accord and Satisfaction].

[3] Allegations

A pleading sufficiently establishes a compromise and settlement agreement if it alleges the following: (1) a dispute in good faith over a legal claim; (2) offer and acceptance of the compromise (Paragraph 2); and (3) consideration (Paragraph 2) [Stub v. Belmont (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 208, 215-217, 124 P.2d 826] .

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30]--Tender Before Commencement of Action of Full Amount Due Plaintiff and Deposit of That Amount in Court [Civ. Code § 1717; Code Civ. Proc. § 1025]

AS A SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE TO PLAINTIFF'S REQUEST FOR COSTS, defendant alleges:

1. Before the commencement of the above-entitled action, defendant tendered to plaintiff the full amount to which plaintiff was entitled, in the sum of $_____.

2. Defendant herewith deposits in court for plaintiff the amount of $_____ so tendered.

[2] Use of Form

This form is for use as an affirmative defense [see Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)] in an answer to plaintiff's request for costs in an action for the recovery of money only, in which defendant alleges that before the commencement of the action he or she tendered to the plaintiff the full amount to which he or she was entitled, and thereon deposits in court, for plaintiff, the amount so tendered. If the allegation is found to be true, the plaintiff cannot recover costs, but must pay costs to the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 1025].

The allegation may also be used as an affirmative defense in any action on a contract providing for fees and costs to determine if the defendant is a prevailing party on the contract within the meaning of Civ. Code § 1717 [see Civ. Code § 1717(a), (b)(2); see also § 520.22].

§ 520.130 General Release Agreement [Civ. Code §§ 1541, 1542]

[1] FORM General Release Agreement [Civ. Code §§ 1541, 1542]

GENERAL RELEASE OF EXISTING CLAIMS

_____ [Name of releasor], _____ [street address], _____ [city and state], hereinafter referred to as "Releasor," and _____ [name of releasee], _____ [street address], _____ [city and state], hereinafter referred to as "Releasee," in consideration of the promises made herein, agree as follows:

1. Releasor has sustained _____ [injury and/or damages] arising out of [EITHER, if claims arise from contract]

_____ [describe transaction, e.g., a contract entered into between Releasor and Releasee] on _____ [date], at _____ [city and state], a copy of which is marked as Exhibit _____, attached hereto, and incorporated by reference herein.

[OR, if claims arise from tort]

_____ [describe occurrence, e.g., an automobile accident] that occurred on _____ [date] in _____ [city and state].

[ADD, if releasor has commenced an action against releasee based on transaction or occurrence giving rise to claims released]

2. On _____ [date], Releasor filed an action in the _____ Court for the County of _____, California, case number _____, entitled _____. This action arose out of the _____ [occurrence or transaction] described in Paragraph 1.

[CONTINUE]

3. Releasor, on behalf of himself/herself, his/her heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns[, and in consideration of $ _____ paid to him/her by Releasee], hereby fully releases Releasee, his/her successors, and all other persons and associations, known or unknown, from all claims and causes of action by reason of any _____ [injury and/or damage] which _____ [has or have] been sustained, or may be sustained, as a result of the above-described _____ [transaction or occurrence].

[ADD, if release extends to unknown claims]

4. Releasor acknowledges and agrees that this release applies to all claims that Releasor may have against Releasee arising out of the above-described _____ [transaction or occurrence] for injuries, damages, or losses to Releasor's person and property, real or personal, whether those injuries, damages, or losses are known or unknown, foreseen or unforeseen, or patent or latent.

5. Releasor certifies that he/she has read Section 1542 of the Civil Code, set out below, and indicates that fact by signing his/her initials here: _____.

A general release does not extend to claims which the creditor does not know or suspect to exist in his favor at the time of executing the release, which if known by him must have materially affected his settlement with the debtor.

6. Releasor hereby waives application of Section 1542 of the Civil Code.

7. Releasor understands and acknowledges that the significance and consequence of this waiver of Section 1542 of the Civil Code is that even if Releasor should eventually suffer additional damages arising out of the above-described _____ [transaction or occurrence], he/she will not be permitted to make any claim for those damages. Furthermore, Releasor acknowledges that he/she intends these consequences even as to claims for _____ [injury and/or damages] that may exist as of the date of this release but which Releasor does not know exist, and which, if known, would materially affect Releasor's decision to execute this release, regardless of whether Releasor's lack of knowledge is the result of ignorance, oversight, error, negligence, or any other cause.

[CONTINUE]

8. Releasor warrants and represents that in executing this release, he/she has relied on legal advice from the attorney of his/her choice, that the terms of this release and its consequences have been completely read and explained to Releasor by that attorney, and that Releasor fully understands the terms of this release.

9. Releasor acknowledges and represents that he/she has been apprised of all relevant information and data furnished by _____ [name of expert] and all other information relevant to his/her claim and this release, including, without limitation, _____ [specify, e.g., future risks, complications, and costs]. Releasor further acknowledges and represents that, in executing this release, he/she has not relied on any inducements, promises, or representations made by Releasee or any party representing or serving Releasee.

10. Releasor acknowledges and warrants that his/her execution of this release is free and voluntary. [Releasor further declares that at the time he/she executed this release, he/she was neither an inpatient nor an outpatient of a medical facility for treatment of the injury that gave rise to the claim to which this release relates.]

11. This release pertains to a disputed claim and does not constitute an admission of liability by Releasee for the above-described _____ [transaction or occurrence]

[ADD, if Releasor will move to dismiss underlying cause of action]

12. Releasor will prepare and file a request for dismissal with prejudice of the action described in Paragraph 2 by _____ [date].

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of general release is for use to release another party from liability arising out of an occurrence or transaction giving rise to a cause of action against that party. As such, a release is generally a part of most settlement agreements.

The foregoing form may be adapted for use in securing a release from liability in either tort or contract actions (alternative Paragraphs 1). It includes optional language for use when the releasor has filed an action arising out of the facts giving rise to liability (Paragraph 2) and has agreed to file a dismissal of that action with prejudice (Paragraph 12). The form also includes optional language for use when the release extends to claims unknown at the time of executing the release (Paragraphs 4-7).

This form is only for use to release a party from liability for acts already committed and should not be adapted as an exculpatory release from liability arising from future acts [see also discussion in § 520.44[3]].

For alternate forms of release agreements, see 14 California Legal Forms, Ch. 77, Discharge of Obligations.

[3] Drafting Requirements

[a] In General

A written release agreement may, but need not, recite new consideration for the release (Paragraph 3) [Civ. Code § 1541; for further discussion relating to the effect of a written release and when a written release is required, see § 520.45[3]]. Otherwise, there is no particular form or set of words essential to the validity of a release [Coats v. General Motors Corp. (1934) 3 Cal. App. 2d 340, 351, 39 P.2d 838] . One court has suggested that sometimes "boiler plate" or stereotyped language is acceptable in a release, if the language is used appropriately, because the language has the value of frequent usage and general understanding, and may thus enhance the clarity of the release beyond doubt [see Dart Industries Co. v. Westwood Chemical Co. (9th Cir. 1980) 649 F.2d 646, 648-649] .

For additional discussion regarding drafting release agreements generally, see 14 California Legal Forms, Ch. 77, Discharge of Obligations.

[b] Exclusion of Specified Claims

When the claims subject to release involve two or more joint tortfeasors or coobligors, a release of one or more will not extinguish the claims against the others [see Civ. Code § 1543; Code Civ. Proc. § 877; for further discussion see § 520.44[4]]. In conformity with this statutory exception, the foregoing form may be modified to except from release any claims that the releasor may have against persons other than the releasee. It may also be modified to exclude only specified claims that the releasor may have against the releasee [see Western Mortgage etc. Co. v. Gray (1932) 215 Cal. 191, 200-202, 8 P.2d 1016 (claims expressly excepted from release)].

For additional discussion and an alternate form of release agreement designed for use with one of several joint tortfeasors or coobligors, see 14 California Legal Forms, Ch. 77, Discharge of Obligations.

[c] Signature

To be effective, a written release must be signed by the releasor [see Hofland v. Gustafson (1955), 282 P. 1039]. This is expressly required if the release agreement is subject to the statute of frauds [see Civ. Code § 1624 (agreement subject to statute of frauds required to be signed by party to be charged, or by party's agent)]. The releasee need not sign the release to make it legally binding on the parties to it, as long as the release shows on its face that it was not intended to be signed by the releasee [Golden Bear Forest Products, Inc. v. Misale (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 573, 576, 188 Cal. Rptr. 48 ; Hofland v. Gustafson (1955) 282 P.2d 1039].

[4] Waiver of Protection of Civ. Code § 1542

A releasor may waive the prohibition of Civ. Code § 1542 against the extension of a general release to claims which the releasor does not know or suspect to exist in his or her favor at the time of executing the release (optional Paragraphs 4-7) [see Carmichael v. Industrial Acc. Com. (1965) 234 Cal. App. 2d 311, 314-315, 44 Cal. Rptr. 470]. However, mere recital that the protection of Civ. Code § 1542 is waived, or that the release covers unknown claims or unknown parties, is not controlling [Leaf v. City of San Mateo (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 398, 411, 163 Cal. Rptr. 711]. If the evidence, independent of the words of the release, indicates that the parties have consciously contracted in reference to unknown claims, the release is binding [Casey v. Proctor (1963) 59 Cal. 2d 97, 109, 28 Cal. Rptr. 307, 378 P.2d 579]. For further discussion of the effect of Civ. Code § 1542, see § 520.44[2][a].

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense Allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)]--General Release [Civ. Code § 1541]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that on or about _____ [date], for a good and valuable consideration, plaintiff duly executed and delivered to defendant a general release in writing, in which plaintiff released defendant from all liability to plaintiff for any and all claims of plaintiff against defendant, including the alleged cause of action set forth in the complaint, that existed at the date of execution of the release, or that might thereafter arise against defendant for, and on account of, any thing or things done by defendant prior to the date of execution of the release. A copy of the release, marked as Exhibit _____, is attached and incorporated herein by reference.

The foregoing form of allegation is for use in an answer to a complaint to raise the affirmative defense that the plaintiff has released defendant from all liability for the cause of action alleged in the complaint [see Pellett v. Sonotone Corp. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 705, 711, 160 P.2d 783]. Under certain conditions, the defense of release may be raised in a supplemental answer, which may, in turn, be filed even after trial on the underlying cause of action has begun [see Code Civ. Proc. § 464 (supplemental pleadings); Seehorn v. Big Meadows & Bodie Wagon Road Co. (1882) 60 Cal. 240, 251-252].

The defense of release admits the cause of action, but sets forth a subsequently executed release [see Landis v. Morrissey (1886) 69 Cal. 83, 86, 10 P. 258 (dictum)]. The defense must be expressly pleaded and proved [Hastings v. Matlock (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 876, 882, 166 Cal. Rptr. 229].

For further discussion of raising the affirmative defense of release, see § 520.46[1]. For discussion relating to answers generally, including general forms into which the foregoing affirmative defense allegation may be inserted, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[3] Alternate Form of Pleading Release

A release may also be pleaded as a specifically performable settlement and release agreement [Hastings v. Matlock (1980) 107 Cal. App. 3d 876, 882, 166 Cal. Rptr. 229]. For further discussion of this mode of pleading release, see § 520.46[2].

A copy of the release, marked as Exhibit _____, is attached and incorporated herein by reference.

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of allegation is for use in an answer to a complaint to raise the affirmative defense that the plaintiff is barred from further recovery because he or she has received, in consideration for the release of a codefendant, a sum that equals or exceeds the amount recoverable under the cause of action alleged in the complaint [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877(a)].

[3] Effect of Release of Less Than All Joint Tortfeasors or Coobligors

A release, given in good faith before verdict or judgment, to one or more of a number of tortfeasors claimed to be liable for the same tort, or to one or more other coobligors mutually subject to contribution rights, does not discharge any other such party from liability unless its terms so provide. It does, however, reduce the claims against the others in the amount stipulated by the release, or in the amount of the consideration paid for it, whichever is the greater [see Code Civ. Proc. § 877(a)]. For further discussion, see § 520.44[4].

[4] State Statutes

Effect of release of one or more of several tortfeasors or coobligors. Code Civ. Proc. § 877

[5] Decisions

Code Civ. Proc. § 877(a) as mandating that award against nonsettling joint tortfeasors be reduced only by present cash value of structured settlement calling for periodic future payments. Franck v. Polaris E-Z Go Div. of Textron, Inc. (1984) 157 Cal. App. 3d 1107, 1120, 204 Cal. Rptr. 321

This chapter also discusses and contains forms for use in actions by shipowners to protect their property interests [see § 522.50 et seq.]. Forms are provided for the following kinds of cases: (1) breach of contract for payment of freight for transportation of cargo [see § 522.200 (state court complaint in personam), § 522.201 (federal complaint, combined in personam and in rem)]; (2) enforcement of maritime lien for freight [see § 522.202 (warrant for arrest of cargo), § 522.203 (stipulation between shipowner and shipper for release of cargo from lien for freight and for posting of security)]; (3) property damage from collision between two vessels or a vessel and land object [see § 522.204 (complaint in rem against vessel and in personam against owners), § 522.205 (motion to transfer custody of vessel from marshal to private marina)]; and (4) damages to a tow, such as a barge, during towage by tug [see § 522.206 (complaint in state court)].

Shipowners' and carriers' defenses in actions by shippers for cargo damage are discussed in §§ 522.70 et seq. Shipowners' actions for limitation of liability, which apply to both personal and property injuries, are discussed in § 522.10 et seq.

Actions for damages based on tort and breach of contract in cases involving the owner or operator of a recreational boat are discussed in Ch. 100, Boats and Boating .

The federal district courts have original jurisdiction, exclusive of state courts, of any civil case of admiralty or maritime jurisdiction, saving to suitors in all cases all other remedies to which they are otherwise entitled [28 U.S.C.S. § 1333]. This savings clause preserves exclusive federal jurisdiction over actions in rem against a vessel or other maritime property, but permits state courts to establish concurrent jurisdiction in actions in personam based on a common law remedy [Madruga v. Superior Court (1954) 346 U.S. 556, 560, 561, 74 S. Ct. 298, 98 L. Ed. 290]. §§ 522.201, 522.204 and 522.224 are examples of federal in rem complaints. Admiralty jurisdiction and the choice of federal or state forum are discussed more extensively in Ch. 100, Boats and Boating.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. In General

46-522 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 522.12

§ 522.12 Limitation of Shipowner's Liability

[1] In General

Federal statutes limit a vessel owner's liability for any embezzlement, loss, or destruction of any property, goods, or merchandise shipped or put on board the vessel, or for any loss, damage, or injury by collision, or for any act, matter, or thing, loss, damage, or forfeiture, done, occasioned, or incurred, without the privity or knowledge of the owner or owners. Under such circumstances, the owner's liability may not exceed the amount or value of his or her interest in the vessel and the freight then pending, except with respect to personal injuries [46 U.S.C.S. § 30505(a), (b)].

If the amount of a seagoing vessel owner's liability, as limited under the statute, is insufficient to pay all losses in full, and the portion of such amount applicable for payment of losses respecting loss of life or bodily injury is less than $420 per ton of the vessel's tonnage, such portion must be increased to an amount equal to $420 per ton. The increased amount is to be available only for the payment of losses for death or bodily injury. If the increased portion is insufficient to pay these losses in full, they must be paid therefrom in proportion to their respective amounts [46 U.S.C.S. §§ 30506(a), (b), 30507(2)].

The law excludes a number of vessels from the definition of "seagoing vessel" for purposes of creating the increased amount available for deaths or personal injuries. Among the vessels excluded are pleasure yachts, tugs, towboats, towing vessels, tank vessels, fishing vessels, fish tender vessels, canal boats, scows, car floats, barges, lighters (boats used to carry cargo to and from ship and wharf), or nondescript vessels [46 U.S.C.S. § 30506(a)].

Additional provisions apply only to deaths or personal injuries. For example, separate limits of liability apply to claims for personal injury or death arising on distinct occasions [46 U.S.C.S. § 30506(d)]. In addition, in a claim for personal injury or death, the privity or knowledge of the master of a seagoing vessel or of the owner's superintendent or managing agent, at or prior to the commencement of each voyage, is imputed to the vessel owner [46 U.S.C.S. § 30506(e)].

The limitation of liability provisions are designed to assure some recovery to death and personal injury claimants by establishing the per-ton fund. The statute limiting liability was not intended, however, to alter established admiralty concepts by allowing a limiting ship to avoid primary liability in a mutual-fault collision case at the expense of the non-limiting ship [Oliver J. Olson & Co. v. American S.S. Marine Leopard (9th Cir. 1966) 356 F.2d 728, 737 (decided before United States Supreme Court overturned rule of equal contribution in cases of mutual fault); see § 522.70 et seq]. Therefore, a seagoing vessel's owner will be liable if the collision was caused, at least in part, by the fault of the vessel. Furthermore, a fund must be created to pay the owner's portion of the damages if the amount, as limited, is insufficient according to the limitation of liability statute.

[2] Application to Charterers

A charterer will be deemed the owner of a vessel within the meaning of the limitation of liability statute whenever the charterer mans, supplies, and navigates the vessel at his or her own expense or by his or her own procurement [46 U.S.C.S. § 30501].

[3] Privity or Knowledge of Owner

The shipowner will not be allowed to benefit from the limitation of liability provisions if the loss, injury, or damage occurred within the owner's privity or knowledge [46 U.S.C.S. § 30505(b)]. The determination of privity or knowledge turns on the facts of individual cases. In particular, the courts have distinguished between corporate and individual shipowners in deciding whether or not to limit liability [Coryell v. Phipps (1943) 317 U.S. 406, 411, 63 S. Ct. 291, 87 L. Ed. 363] .

The requisite privity or knowledge can be attributed to a corporate owner only by the acts of its employees. The courts distinguish employees having sufficient managerial authority to bind the corporate owner from employees having no general powers of superintendence [United States v. Standard Oil Co. of Cal. (9th Cir. 1974) 495 F.2d 911, 917] .

A corporate shipowner is within privity or knowledge if the acts of negligence are committed by a managing officer or supervisory employee. The real test of supervision is not the official's title, but the scope of his or her authority. A managing officer is any person to whom the corporation has committed the general management or general superintendence of the whole or a particular part of its business [Waterman S.S. Corp. v. Gay Cottons (9th Cir. 1969) 414 F.2d 724, 731] . The same standards apply when the United States seeks limitation of liability based on the absence of privity or knowledge of its employees [United States v. Standard Oil Co. of Cal. (9th Cir. 1974) 495 F.2d 911, 917] .

Some courts have ruled, with respect to individual owners, that privity means some personal participation of the owner in the fault or negligence which caused or contributed to the loss or injury. Other cases have focused on the scope of authority delegated by an individual owner, inputing privity and knowledge when the delegation has been broad. The Supreme Court has not exclusively adopted either method of determining privity, but has noted only that privity and knowledge turn on the facts of particular cases [Coryell v. Phipps (1943) 317 U.S. 406, 411, 63 S. Ct. 291, 87 L. Ed. 363] .

The Ninth Circuit has refused to adopt a rule basing privity and knowledge solely on the delegation of authority, because it has been termed too encompassing and all-inclusive. Accordingly, in the Ninth Circuit, the privity determination turns on all facts of the particular case [Admiral Towing Co. v. Woolen (9th Cir. 1961) 290 F.2d 641, 648] . The owner, however, must show lack of both knowledge and the means of obtaining knowledge [States S.S. Co. v. United States (9th Cir. 1957) 259 F.2d 458, 466] . Furthermore, a shipowner cannot ignore something that a prudent inspection would disclose [Waterman S.S. Corp. v. Gay Cottons (9th Cir. 1969) 414 F.2d 724, 739] .

[4] Limitation of Liability as Defense

Although the federal statute limiting a shipowner's liability can be asserted as a defense in state court actions, the preferable procedure is an action in federal court seeking limitation of liability. By filing in federal court, the shipowner or charterer can resolve all claims surrounding a particular incident, and avoid a diversity of suits in different states [Providence & N.Y. S.S. Co. v. Hill Mfg. Co. (1883) 109 U.S. 578, 594, 595, 3 S. Ct. 379, 27 L. Ed. 1038] .

[5] Actions for Limitation of Liability

[a] In General

A vessel owner may petition a district court of competent jurisdiction for limitation of liability within six months after a claimant has given to or filed with the owner written notice of claim. The owner must deposit with the court, for the benefit of claimants, a sum equal to the amount or value of the owner's interest in the vessel and freight, or approved security. As an alternative, the owner may transfer his or her interest in the vessel and freight to a trustee appointed by the court. In addition to either of the above acts, the owner must deposit such sums or approved security as the court may from time to time fix as necessary to carry out the statutory provisions. Finally, the plaintiff must give security for costs. On compliance with these requirements, all claims and proceedings against the owner with respect to the matter in question will cease [46 U.S.C.S. § 30511; Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule F(1)].

In a limitation of liability proceeding, the owner or charterer bears the burden of proving the absence of privity or knowledge [Coryell v. Phipps (1943) 317 U.S. 406, 409, 63 S. Ct. 291, 87 L. Ed. 363 ; Tug Ocean Prince, Inc. v. United States (2d Cir. 1978) 584 F.2d 1151, 1155 ; see also § 522.12[2]]. The lack of privity or knowledge need only be shown by a preponderance of the evidence [Waterman S.S. Corp. v. Gay Cottons (9th Cir. 1969) 414 F.2d 724, 738] .

[b] Injunction Against Other Actions

On application of the plaintiff, the court must enjoin the further prosecution of any action or proceeding against the plaintiff or his or her property with respect to any claim subject to limitation in the action [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule F(3)]. The issuance of an injunction is not necessary to stop proceedings in separate or independent suits, however, because the statue expressly obligates every other court to stop its proceedings when a suit is properly filed in district court. Yet, the injunction against actions already filed may prove useful in protecting the exclusiveness of the court's jurisdiction [The San Pedro (1912) 223 U.S. 365, 372, 32 S. Ct. 275, 56 L. Ed. 473] .

§ 522.30 Governing Law

Federal statutes and case law control maritime torts [see § 522.11], but are supplemented in some instances by state law. The significant statutes include recovery for personal injuries or death of seamen under the Jones Act [46 U.S.C.S. § 30104], and of longshore and harbor workers under the Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act [33 U.S.C.S. §§ 901 et seq.], and recovery for wrongful death of passengers or seamen under the Death on the High Seas Act (DOHSA) [46 U.S.C.S. § 30301 et seq.]. The general liability of marine carriers to passengers is created by 46 U.S.C.S. § 30102 and Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 420, 491(f)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. Personal Injuries

§ 522.31 Jones Act

[1] Nature of Action

Under federal legislation commonly called the Jones Act, any seaman who suffers personal injury in the course of employment may, at his or her election, maintain an action for damages at law, with the right of trial by jury [see §§ 522.170, 522.171 (First Cause of Action)]. In that action, all federal statutes that modify or extend the common law right or remedy in cases of personal injury to railway employees are applicable [see § 522.31[6]]. For death from personal injury, the personal representative of the seaman may maintain an action in the same manner as a living seaman's claim for injuries. The statutes affecting railway employees apply insofar as they confer or regulate the right of action for death [see § 522.181].

[2] Jurisdiction in Federal and State Courts

State courts have concurrent jurisdiction with federal courts to entertain and try actions pleaded pursuant to the Jones Act and the general maritime law [Donaldson v. National Marine, Inc. (2005) 35 Cal. 4th 503, 510-511, 25 Cal. Rptr. 3d 584, 107 P.3d 254 ; Baptiste v. Superior Court (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 87, 94, 164 Cal. Rptr. 789] . Furthermore, the Federal Employers' Liability Act (FELA) expressly makes the jurisdiction of federal [see § 522.170] and state [see § 522.171] courts concurrent [45 U.S.C.S. § 56]. Finally, the jurisdiction of United States courts (state and federal) over a suit under the Jones Act does not depend on the place where the injury is sustained, but depends on the relation of the seaman's service to the operation of the vessel plying navigable waters. Thus, American courts will exercise jurisdiction over actions for injuries on ships flying the United States flag, even if the incident occurs on the high seas beyond territorial waters. [Correia v. Van Camp Sea Food Co. (1953) 113 Cal. App. 2d 71, 75, 76, 248 P.2d 81] .

So long as the Jones Act applies to a seaman's claims, the claim may not be dismissed on the ground of forum non conveniens [Zipfel v. Halliburton Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 832 F.2d 1477, 1485-1487 ; see also Nicol v. Gulf Fleet Supply Vessels, Inc. (5th Cir. 1984) 743 F.2d 289, 293 ; Needham v. Phillips Petroleum Co. of Norway (10th Cir. 1983) 719 F.2d 1481, 1483 ; Szumlicz v. Norwegian Am. Lines, Inc. (11th Cir. 1983) 698 F.2d 1192, 1195 ; but see Cruz v. Maritime Co. of Philippines (2d Cir. 1983) 702 F.2d 47, 48] .

Prior to amendment effective in 2007, the Jones Act provided for venue in the judicial district in which the employer resides or principal place of business is located [see former 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104(b)]. That separate venue provision has been eliminated, however, and the rule of venue for cases brought in federal court is apparently now the same as that under the Federal Employers Liability Act (FELA) [see 45 U.S.C.S. § 51 et seq.; 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104]. Under the FELA, suit may be filed in a federal district court in the district of the residence of the defendant, in a district in which the cause of action arose, or in a district in which the defendant is doing business at the time the action is commenced [45 U.S.C.S. § 56].

The statute determines venue only for cases prosecuted in federal courts. Venue in state court actions must be decided according to state law [Bainbridge v. Merchants & Miners Transp. Co. (1932) 287 U.S. 278, 280, 281, 53 S. Ct. 159, 77 L. Ed. 302] .

An action for personal injury or wrongful death in California may be brought against an individual defendant in the county where the injury or death occurs or the county in which the defendant resides [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)]. A corporation or association may be sued in the county where the obligation or liability arises, or in the county of the corporation's principal place of business [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5].

[4] Applicability of Federal Law

Federal substantive law applies to cases brought under the Jones Act and cases brought under general maritime law, regardless of whether the action is brought in a federal or state forum. This rule stems from the need for uniformity in maritime tort law, as well as the importance of protecting the rights of injured seamen. Thus, some obstacles traditionally posed by state law have been avoided. In this context, the California courts view their task as ascertaining and applying appropriate legal principles derived from the considerable body of federal maritime law that has developed in the United States [Baptiste v. Superior Court (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 87, 94, 164 Cal. Rptr. 789] .

[5] "Seaman" Plaintiff Defined

"Seaman" under the Jones Act is defined solely in terms of the employee's connection to a vessel in navigation; the employee's connection to a vessel, rather than the particular job, is determinative. Although the United States Supreme Court has not defined the required connection in all its details, it has held that a necessary element of the connection is that a seaman "perform the work of a vessel" [McDermott Int'l v. Wilander (1991) 498 U.S. 337, 355, 111 S. Ct. 807, 112 L. Ed. 2d 866] . In that regard, it is necessary that an employee's duties contribute to the function of the vessel or to the accomplishment of its mission [McDermott Int'l v. Wilander (1991) 498 U.S. 337, 345-346, 111 S. Ct. 807, 112 L. Ed. 2d 866 ; Offshore Co. v. Robison (5th Cir. 1959) 266 F.2d 769, 779] . A seaman must have a connection to a vessel in navigation that is substantial in both duration and nature [Chandris, Inc. v. Latsis (1995) 515 U.S. 347, 368, 115 S. Ct. 2172, 132 L. Ed. 2d 314 ; Spears v. Kajima Eng'g & Constr., Inc. (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 466, 474, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 97] . It is not necessary that a seaman aid in navigation or contribute to the transportation of the vessel, but a seaman must be one who does the ship's work [McDermott Int'l v. Wilander (1991) 498 U.S. 337, 355, 111 S. Ct. 807, 112 L. Ed. 2d 866] . Examples of employees who are seamen under the Jones Act include those who aid in navigation directly, as well as firemen, engineers, carpenters, surveyors, surgeons, coopers, cabin boys, waiters, and cooks [see McDermott Int'l v. Wilander (1991) 498 U.S. 337, 344-345, 111 S. Ct. 807, 112 L. Ed. 2d 866 (quoting with approval 19th-century treatise's broad definition of "mariner")].

The Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act (LHWCA) [33 U.S.C.S. § 901 et seq.] and the Jones Act are mutually exclusive [McDermott Int'l v. Wilander (1991) 498 U.S. 337, 347, 111 S. Ct. 807, 112 L. Ed. 2d 866 ; see § 522.32]. Inasmuch as the scope of the LHWCA is defined in part by the exclusion of an employee covered by the Jones Act--that is, a "master or member of a crew of any vessel" is not covered by the LHWCA--the scope of this exclusion is an integral part of the definition of "seaman" under the Jones Act. In arriving at its definition, the Court therefore gleaned corresponding definitions with respect to both acts in light of the overall intent of Congress to create two distinct remedies for land-based (LHWCA) and sea-based (Jones Act) maritime employees [McDermott Int'l v. Wilander (1991) 498 U.S. 337 347-355, 111 S. Ct. 807, 112 L. Ed. 2d 866] .

The terms "member of a crew," and "seaman" are statutory terms, and their interpretation is a question of law. However, it is the court's duty to determine if there is a reasonable basis to support the jury's conclusion. If reasonable persons, applying the proper legal standard, could differ as to whether the employee was a "member of a crew," it is a question for the jury [McDermott Int'l v. Wilander (1991) 498 U.S. 337, 356, 111 S. Ct. 807, 112 L. Ed. 2d 866] . The inquiry into seaman status is of necessity fact-specific, and depends on the nature of the vessel, and the employee's precise relation to it. Nonetheless, summary judgment or a directed verdict is mandated if facts and the law will reasonably support only one conclusion [McDermott Int'l v. Wilander (1991) 498 U.S. 337, 356, 111 S. Ct. 807, 112 L. Ed. 2d 866] .

The United States Supreme Court has held that the inclusion of an occupation within the Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act (LHWCA) definition of "employee" [33 U.S.C.S. § 902(3)] does not necessarily preclude an employee who engages in that occupation from being a seaman under the Jones Act, because some maritime workers may in fact be Jones Act seaman performing a job specifically enumerated under the LHWCA [Southwest Marine, Inc. v. Gizoni (1991) 502 U.S. 81, 112 S. Ct. 486, 116 L. Ed. 2d 405, 416] . For example, an employee who works on floating marine platforms alongside vessels that are in port for purposes of repair, is not necessarily precluded from being termed a seaman with regard to injuries sustained while moving about the platform, even though a ship repairer is listed under the enumerated definitions of employee under the LHWCA. The United States Supreme Court stated that, although in some cases a ship repairer may lack the requisite connection to a vessel in navigation to qualify for seaman status, not all ship repairers lack that connection as a matter of law [Southwest Marine, Inc. v. Gizoni (1991) 502 U.S. 81, 112 S. Ct. 486, 116 L. Ed. 2d 405, 416] . Consequently, a maritime worker is limited to LHWCA remedies only if no genuine issue of fact exists as to whether the worker is a seaman under the Jones Act for purposes of the claim in question [Southwest Marine, Inc. v. Gizoni (1991) 502 U.S. 81, 112 S. Ct. 486, 116 L. Ed. 2d 405, 416, 418 (issues of fact made trial court's grant of summary judgment improper); see § 522.32[5]].

The United States Supreme Court has rejected the contention that, if a maritime worker is arguably covered by the LHWCA, the district court should stay any Jones Act proceeding pending a final LHWCA administrative agency determination that the worker is, in fact, a "master or member of a crew" (and therefore excluded from LHWCA coverage). The Court found no indication in the LHWCA that Congress intended to preclude or stay traditional Jones Act suits in the district courts, finding instead that the LHWCA anticipated that such suits would be brought, and contains a limitations tolling provision for that purpose [Southwest Marine, Inc. v. Gizoni (1991) 502 U.S. 81, 112 S. Ct. 486, 116 L. Ed. 2d 405, 417 ; see 33 U.S.C.S. § 913(d)]. Moreover, an employee who receives voluntary payments under the LHWCA without a formal award is not barred from subsequently seeking relief under the Jones Act, because the question of coverage has never actually been litigated [see Southwest Marine, Inc. v. Gizoni (1991) 502 U.S. 81, 112 S. Ct. 486, 116 L. Ed. 2d 405, 418] .

[6] Relationship to FELA Legislation

The references in the Jones Act to United States statutes applicable to railway employees [see § 522.31[1]] are to the Federal Employers' Liability Act (FELA) [45 U.S.C.S. § 51 et seq.], which governs recovery for personal injury and death of railroad workers. Congress intended to treat seamen and their land-based counterparts, railroad workers, as uniformly as possible. Accordingly, judicial interpretations of the FELA are generally regarded as persuasive authority in Jones Act litigation [Baptiste v. Superior Court (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 87, 98-99, 164 Cal. Rptr. 789 ; see § 522.31[12]].

[7] Liability for Negligence or Defects

Under the FELA, an employer is liable in damages for injury to or death of an employee resulting in whole or in part from the negligence of any of the employer's officers, agents, or employees, or by reason of any defect or insufficiency, owing to its negligence, in any of its equipment, such as its engines, appliances, machinery, works, boats, or wharves [45 U.S.C.S. § 51]. The term "employer" includes any receiver or other person or corporation charged with the duty of the management and operation of the employer's business [45 U.S.C.S. § 57]. Nothing under the FELA limits the duty or liability of the employer or impairs the rights of its employees under any other federal law [45 U.S.C.S. § 58].

[8] Liberality of Approach to Negligence

After enactment in 1920, the Jones Act was extensively used by seamen to pursue negligence actions against their employers, because it provides for trial by jury and also affords a remedy not available under general maritime law, that of wrongful death. While these actions involve the basic elements of negligence (duty, breach, and proximate causation) it is not inaccurate to characterize them as subject to extremely liberal interpretations by the courts in favor of the seamen-litigants [Baptiste v. Superior Court (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 87, 98, 164 Cal. Rptr. 789 ; Williams v. Tide Water Associated Oil Co. (9th Cir. 1955) 227 F.2d 791, 794 ; see also § 522.31[13]].

[9] Liability to Seaman's Survivors

The Jones Act, through its incorporation of the FELA, provides that a seaman's right of action for injuries due to negligence survives to the seaman's personal representatives [Miles v. Apex Marine Corp. (1990) 498 U.S. 19, 33, 111 S. Ct. 317, 112 L. Ed. 2d 275] . The FELA provides, in the case of the death of an employee covered under the act, that the employer is liable in damages for the employee's death to the employee's personal representative for the benefit of the surviving widow or husband and children; if none, then of the employee's parents; and, if none, then of the next of kin dependent on the employee [45 U.S.C.S. § 51]. In cases of recovery by survivors, there may be only one recovery for the same injury [45 U.S.C.S. § 59].

[10] Defenses Not Available

[a] Contributory Negligence

In any action brought against a FELA employer for injuries or death, the employee's contributory negligence does not bar recovery; but the damages are diminished by the jury in proportion to the amount of negligence attributable to the employee. However, an employee is not considered guilty of contributory negligence when the employer's violation of any statute enacted or regulation or rule adopted for the safety of the employees contributed to the injury or death [45 U.S.C.S. §§ 53, 54a].

[b] Assumption of Risk

An employee under the FELA has not assumed the risks of his or her employment ifthe injury or death resulted in whole or in part from the negligence of any of the employer's officers, agents, or employees. Additionally, no employee has assumed the risks of employment if the employer's violation of a statute enacted or regulation or rule adopted for the safety of employees contributed to the injury or death [45 U.S.C.S. §§ 54, 54a].

[c] Employer's Ability to Limit Liability or Offset

Any contract, rule, regulation, or device whatsoever, the purpose or intent of which would be to enable an employer to exempt itself from any liability created under the FELA, is void to that extent. However, in any action brought against the employer under or by virtue of any provisions of the FELA legislation, the employer may set off any sum it has contributed or paid to any insurance, relief benefit, or indemnity that may have been paid to the injured employee or the person entitled to it on account of the injury or death involved [45 U.S.C.S. § 55].

[11] Limitation of Actions

Unless otherwise specified by law, a suit for recovery of damages for personal injury or death arising out of a maritime tort must be commenced within three years after the date the cause of action accrued [46 U.S.C.S. § 30106]. An action based on unseaworthiness falls within this provision because no other statute controls the time period for bringing suit [see [12], below].

[12] Unseaworthiness as Alternative Basis for Recovery

A further avenue to recovery for an injured seaman arises from the shipowner's duty to provide seamen with safe surroundings during their employment, that is, a seaworthy vessel. This duty is not based on statute but has developed over centuries through decisional admiralty and general maritime law. In recent times, the duty has expanded to the point where it is now considered a form of absolute liability [Baptiste v. Superior Court (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 87, 99, 164 Cal. Rptr. 789 ; see §§ 522.171 (Second Cause of Action), 522.173].

A party may pursue a general maritime claim for unseaworthiness, as well as a general negligence claim, even if the party does not qualify for seaman status under the more stringent standards of the Jones Act [Freeze v. Lost Isle Partners (2002) 96 Cal. App. 4th 45, 51-52, 116 Cal. Rptr. 2d 520] .

For further discussion of general maritime law, see § 522.35.

[13] Liberality of Application of Doctrine

The California courts have commented that the demonstrated tendency of the United States Supreme Court has been to regard the Jones Act primarily as an addition to an even larger body of federal maritime law whenever FELA precedent would in some manner limit the liability imposed on a defendant shipowner. On those occasions the Court has called attention to the existence of an independent body of federal law, of which the Jones Act is only a part, and has not allowed the Jones Act to be utilized as a conduit through which limitations on liability could pass from land-based law such as FELA doctrines. Although there is considerable overlapping between Jones Act negligence and the doctrine of unseaworthiness, there is neither an authoritative precedent nor a reason of policy for imposing whatever limitations exist in Jones Act litigation on general federal admiralty law, from which the doctrine of unseaworthiness derives. Apparently, the United States Supreme Court continues to regard tort actions based on general admiralty law as the particular province of decisional law development and an area in which principles are applied with a liberal rather than a restraining hand [Baptiste v. Superior Court (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 87, 103, 164 Cal. Rptr. 789] . Moreover, absolute liability is imposed only for breach of a duty to furnish a vessel and appurtenances that are reasonably fit for their intended use by ordinary seamen; the duty does not require a perfect, accident-free ship that will withstand every imaginable peril of the sea [Smith v. Marilyn M. Fishing, Inc. (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 453, 457-458, 219 Cal. Rptr. 57] .

The concept of unseaworthiness is not limited to situations involving negligence or contractual obligation, but imposes liability regardless of fault for any deficiency in the ship's hull, equipment, or crew that renders the ship less than reasonably fit for its intended purposes [see Waldron v. Moore-McCormack Lines, Inc. (1967) 386 U.S. 724, 726, 727, 87 S. Ct. 1410, 18 L. Ed. 2d 482] .

§ 522.32 Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act (LHWCA)

[1] Overlap With State Coverage

Prior to 1972, the Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act (LHWCA) [33 U.S.C.S. § 901 et seq.] was simply an effort to fill the gap in workers' compensation coverage, because the state compensation systems could not reach longshore workers injured seaward of the water's edge [P. C. Pfeiffer Co. v. Ford (1979) 444 U.S. 69, 72, 100 S. Ct. 328, 62 L. Ed. 2d 225] . States are constitutionally barred from applying their workers' compensation systems to maritime injuries, and thus interfering with the overriding federal policy of a uniform maritime law [Southern Pac. Co. v. Jensen (1917) 244 U.S. 205, 216-218, 37 S. Ct. 524, 61 L. Ed. 1086] . In 1972, the LHWCA was amended to include injuries occurring beyond the shoreline of the navigable waters of the nation, an area that had always been considered to be within the province of state compensation law. Presently, an injured employee may elect relief in this overlapping area of coverage [see § 522.32[3]] under either the federal or state compensation systems [Sun Ship, Inc. v. Pennsylvania (1980) 447 U.S. 715, 716-718, 100 S. Ct. 2432, 65 L. Ed. 2d 458] .

[2] Nature of Coverage

The LHWCA provides compensation for the death or disability of most private enterprise employees resulting from injuries occurring on navigable waters of the United States, including adjoining piers, wharves, dry docks, terminals, building ways, marine railways, or other adjoining areas customarily used by employers in loading, unloading, repairing, or building vessels [33 U.S.C.S. § 903(a)]. Coverage extends to accidental injuries or death arising out of and in the course of employment, as well as certain related occupational diseases or infections. The act also applies to injuries caused by willful acts of third persons directed against employees because of the employment [33 U.S.C.S. § 902(2)].

[3] Persons Covered

Employees covered by the LHWCA include persons engaged in maritime employment, longshore workers or other persons engaged in longshoring operations, and harbor workers, including ship repairers, shipbuilders, and shipbreakers. The act excludes the following individuals from coverage if they are covered under a state workers' compensation law [

33 U.S.C.S. § 902(3)]:

- Individuals employed exclusively to perform office clerical, secretarial, security, or data processing work;

- Individuals employed by a club, camp, recreational operation, restaurant, museum, or retail outlet;

- Individuals employed by a marina who are not engaged in construction, replacement, or expansion of the marina (except for routine maintenance);

- Individuals who are employed by suppliers, transporters, or vendors, are temporarily doing business on the premises of a statutory employer, and who are not engaged in work normally performed by employees of a statutory employer;

- Aquaculture workers; or

- Individuals employed to build, repair, or dismantle any recreational vessel under sixty-five feet in length.

The LHWCA also excludes from coverage masters or members of a crew of any vessel, and any persons engaged by a master to load or unload or repair any small vessels under 18 tons, without regard to possible workers' compensation coverage [33 U.S.C.S. § 902(3)].

The reference of the LHWCA to longshore workers and any "other person engaged in longshoring operations" to describe persons engaged in maritime employment demonstrates that workers doing tasks traditionally performed by longshore workers are within the purview of the act as amended. The scope of maritime employment does not depend on the vagaries of union jurisdiction nor the assignment policies of the employer. Instead, the crucial factor is the nature of the activity to which a worker may be assigned. Persons moving cargo directly from ship to land transportation are engaged in maritime employment. A worker responsible for some portion of that activity is as much an integral part of the process of loading or unloading a ship as a person who participates in the entire process. Yet, coverage does not extend to all workers on the marine site. For instance, persons who only pick up stored cargo for further shipment are excluded [P. C. Pfeiffer Co. v. Ford (1979) 444 U.S. 69, 82-83, 100 S. Ct. 328, 62 L. Ed. 2d 225] . A welder working on a fixed offshore oil-drilling platform has also been held to be excluded from the LHWCA [Herb's Welding, Inc. v. Gray (1985) 470 U.S. 414, 424-426, 105 S. Ct. 1421, 84 L. Ed. 2d 406 (nothing inherently marine in activity; not everyone on site satisfies status test)].

For discussion of whether a maritime worker may be a "seaman" under the Jones Act [46 U.S.C.S. § 30104], even though the occupation in question is enumerated under the LHWCA (for example, ship repairer), see §§ 522.31[5] and 522.32[5].

[4] Compensation Procedure

All employers are liable for and must secure the payment of compensation payable under the LHWCA. When the employer is a subcontractor, the contractor must be liable for and secure the payment of compensation to employees of the subcontractor unless the subcontractor has secured such payment. Compensation is payable irrespective of fault [33 U.S.C.S. § 904] except in certain instances of the employee's intoxication or willful intent to injure or kill himself or herself or another [33 U.S.C.S. § 903(c)]. The act provides for the timely furnishing of notice of injury or death [see 33 U.S.C.S. § 912] and filing of claims [see 33 U.S.C.S. § 913] and for a comprehensive program of determination and payment of expenses and compensation [see 33 U.S.C.S. §§ 906-914]. The statute creates a special procedure for paying claims [see 33 U.S.C.S. §§ 919, 920] and reviewing compensation orders [see 33 U.S.C.S. § 921].

An administrative law judge may grant or deny a claim for benefits under the LHWCA. If the claim is denied, the claimant may take an administrative appeal to the Benefits Review Board. The claimant must file a notice of appeal from the administrative law judge's compensation order within 30 days of the day the order is filed [33 U.S.C.S. § 921(a)]. The running of the 30-day period for the filing of the notice of appeal is triggered by the filing of the administrative law judge's compensation order as provided in 33 U.S.C.S. § 919, which requires that the order be submitted to the Deputy Commissioner and sent to the parties by registered or certified mail. Service on the parties must be effected before a compensation order is deemed filed [Nealon v. California Stevedore & Ballast Co. (9th Cir. 1993) 996 F.2d 966, 970-971] .

Review from an adverse decision of the Benefits Review Board is by petition to the court. A petition for judicial review from a final determination of the Board must be filed within sixty days [33 U.S.C.S. § 921(c)]. The papers will not be regarded as filed until they are actually received by the clerk of the court [Fed. Rules App. Proc., Rule 25(a)]. The sixty-day filing period is a jurisdictional requirement, and if the petition is not received by the court of appeals within the filing period, the court lacks subject-matter jurisdiction [Felt v. Director, Office of Workers' Comp. Programs (9th Cir. 1993) 11 F.3d 951, 952 (neither equitable tolling principles nor excusable neglect apply)].

[5] Exclusive Liability of Employer

The liability of the employer for compensation prescribed under the LHWCA is exclusive and in place of all other liability of the employer to the employee, or the employee's legal representative, spouse, parent, dependent, next of kin, or anyone otherwise entitled to recover damages from the employer at law or in admiralty because of the injury or death [33 U.S.C.S. § 905(a)]. For example, 33 U.S.C.S. § 905(a) has been held to bar a wrongful death action brought by the parent of a deceased employee against an employer who was liable under the provisions of the LHWCA [see Seide v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 985, 989-990, 215 Cal. Rptr. 629] .

If the employer fails to secure payment of compensation required by the LHWCA, the injured employee, or his or her legal representative in case death results from the injury, may choose between two modes of proceeding. Compensation may be claimed under the act, or an action may be maintained at law or in admiralty for damages. In an action, the defendant may not defend on the basis of negligence of a fellow servant, assumption of risk, or contributory negligence [33 U.S.C.S. § 905(a)].

A judicially recognized exception to the exclusive liability provision of 33 U.S.C.S. § 905(a) is that an employee may bring an action to recover for injuries resulting from an intentional tort by his or her employer [see Seide v. Bethlehem Steel Corp. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 985, 989-990, 215 Cal. Rptr. 629] .

A maritime worker who is arguably covered under the LHWCA is not precluded from bringing a Jones Act (46 U.S.C.S. § 30104) suit, nor is a Jones Act suit subject to a stay pending a final administrative determination under the LHWCA whether the worker is a "master or member of a crew" (and therefore excluded from coverage under the LHWCA) [Southwest Marine, Inc. v. Gizoni (1991) 502 U.S. 81, 112 S. Ct. 486, 116 L. Ed. 2d 405, 417-418 (maritime worker on floating platforms, whose job involved ship repairing); see § 522.31[5]]. If the worker asserts "seaman" status under the Jones Act, and a genuine question of fact exists regarding that issue, it must be factually determined, and a Jones Act suit may proceed accordingly [Southwest Marine, Inc. v. Gizoni (1991) 502 U.S. 81, 112 S. Ct. 486, 116 L. Ed. 2d 405, 417-418 ; see § 522.31[5]].

[6] Negligence of Third Parties

[a] When Employee's Rights Are Assigned to Employer

If the person entitled to recover under the LHWCA determines that someone other than the employer or those who work for the employer is liable in damages, he or she need not elect whether to receive compensation under the act or to recover damages against the third person [33 U.S.C.S. § 933(a); see § 522.177]. Acceptance of compensation under an award in a compensation order operates as an assignment to the employer of the right of the entitled person to recover damages against the third person, unless the employee or other entitled person commences an action against the third person within six months after the award [see § 522.178]. If the employer fails to commence an action against the third person within ninety days after the cause of action is assigned, the right to bring the action reverts to the person entitled to compensation [33 U.S.C.S. § 933(b)]. Payment of compensation into the fund on official determination that no one is entitled to receive compensation for the death of an employee who would otherwise be compensable under the statute [see 33 U.S.C.S. § 944(c)(1)] acts as an automatic assignment to the employer of the right of the legal representative of the deceased to recover damages against the third party [33 U.S.C.S. § 933(c)]. As an alternative to claiming subrogation rights under 33 U.S.C.S. § 933(b), an employer who has paid benefits to an employee injured by the negligence of a third party may bring an independent action against the tortfeasor under federal maritime law [Stevedoring Services v. Prudential Lines, Inc. (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 154, 159, 226 Cal. Rptr. 225] .

The employer may either bring suit [see § 522.178] or settle the case without suing. In either event, any amounts recovered by the employer must be distributed according to the LHWCA. The employer first retains an amount equal to expenses of the action, including a reasonable attorney's fee, the cost of medical benefits rendered, all amounts paid as compensation, and the present value of future amounts payable. The employer then retains one-fifth of the excess and pays over the remainder to the person entitled to compensation or to his or her personal representative [33 U.S.C.S. § 933(d), (e)].

[b] When Employee Sues

If the person entitled to recover under the LHWCA determines that someone other than the employer or those who work for the employer is liable in damages, the person has six months after the award of compensation within which to sue the third party [33 U.S.C.S. § 933(a), (b); see §§ 522.176, 522.182]. If the person sues the third party, the employer is required to pay as compensation only any excess of the amount determined to be compensation due under the LHWCA over the net amount recovered against the third party. If the employee or his or her representative has settled with the third party for an amount less than is due under the act, the employer is responsible for the difference only if written approval of the settlement is obtained from the employer and the employer's insurance carrier before it is executed and filed on the appropriate form with the Secretary of Labor within 30 days [33 U.S.C.S. § 933(g)(1)]. Failure of the employee to obtain and file a prior, written employer approval, or the failure of the employee to inform the employer of any settlement or judgment against the third party, terminates any rights to compensation and medical benefits under the LHWCA, even if the employer has already made payments or acknowledged entitlement to benefits [33 U.S.C.S. § 933(g)(2)]. The forfeiture provision of 33 U.S.C.S. § 933(g)(2) also applies to a worker whose employer, at the time the worker settles with a third party, is neither paying compensation to the worker nor is yet subject to an order to pay under the LHWCA [Estate of Cowart v. Nicklos Drilling Co. (1992) 505 U.S. 469, 112 S. Ct. 2589, 120 L. Ed. 2d 379, 389] .

[c] When Vessel Is Third Party

If the injury was caused by the negligence of a vessel, the employee, or anyone otherwise entitled to recover, may bring an action for damages against the vessel under 33 U.S.C.S. § 933, the provision authorizing actions against third parties [33 U.S.C.S. § 905(b); see 33 U.S.C.S. § 933; see also § 522.176]. "Vessel" refers to any vessel on which or in connection with which an employee suffers injury or death arising out of or in the course of his or her employment. The term also includes the vessel's owner, owner pro hac vice, agent, operator, charter or bare boat charterer, master, officer, or crew member [33 U.S.C.S. § 902(21)].

If the injured person was employed to provide stevedoring services, no action lies if the injury was caused by the negligence of persons providing the same service. If the injured person was employed to provide shipbuilding, repairing, or breaking services, and the injured person's employer was the owner, owner pro hac vice, agent, operator, or charterer of the vessel, no action lies against the employer in any capacity (including that of owner) or against other employees of the employer [33 U.S.C.S. § 905(b)].

The employer is not liable to the vessel for damages allowed under 33 U.S.C.S. § 905(b), directly or indirectly, and any agreements or warranties to the contrary are void [33 U.S.C.S. § 905(b)]. In enacting this provision, Congress denied to the vessel a cause of action for indemnity against the longshore worker's employer, in order to prevent a "circuity" of actions that would result in much greater liability for the employer than otherwise owed under then existing compensation schedules, and that would reduce the longshore worker's compensation by the cost of the ensuing litigation [Streatch v. Associated Container Transp., Ltd. (C.D. Cal. 1975) 388 F. Supp. 935, 939] .

The liability of the vessel under 33 U.S.C.S. § 905(b) is not based on the warranty of seaworthiness or a breach of that warranty at the time the injury occurred [33 U.S.C.S. § 905(b)]. This provision, enacted in 1972, specifically removes a longshore worker's cause of action against the vessel based on any theory other than negligence [Streatch v. Associated Container Transp., Ltd. (C.D. Cal. 1975) 388 F. Supp. 935, 939 ; see § 522.35[3]].

The remedy provided under 33 U.S.C.S. § 905(b) is exclusive of all other remedies against the vessel except remedies available under 33 U.S.C.S. § 901 et seq. [33 U.S.C.S. § 905(b)].

If the employer is also the shipowner, some federal courts allow a negligence action by the employee, whereas other courts hold the employer liable only for compensation, regardless of its breach of duties as a shipowner [see, e.g., Baker v. Pacific Far E. Lines, Inc. (N.D. Cal. 1978) 451 F. Supp. 84, 93-96 (negligence action not allowed)].

[7] Duties of Shipowner Under LHWCA

The vessel or shipowner owes to the stevedore and its longshore employees the duty of exercising due care under the circumstances. This duty extends at least to exercising ordinary care under the circumstances to have the ship and its equipment in such condition that an expert and experienced stevedore will be able, by the exercise of reasonable care, to carry on its cargo operations with reasonable safety to persons and property. The exercise of care also includes warning the stevedore of any hazards on the ship or with respect to the equipment that are known to the vessel or shipowner, or should be known in the exercise of reasonable care, that would likely be encountered by the stevedore in the course of its cargo operations, and that are not known by the stevedore and would not be obvious to or anticipated by the stevedore if it is reasonably competent in the performance of its work [Marine Terminals v. Burnside Shipping Co. (1969) 394 U.S. 404, 415, 416 n.18, 89 S. Ct. 1144, 22 L. Ed. 2d 371 ; see Scindia Steam Nav. Co. v. De Los Santos (1981) 451 U.S. 156, 166-167, 101 S. Ct. 1614, 68 L. Ed. 2d 1] .

Generally, however, the shipowner has no general duty by way of supervision or inspection to exercise reasonable care to discover dangerous conditions that develop within the confines of the cargo operations that are assigned to the stevedore. Thus, the vessel owner is not liable to the longshore worker for injuries caused by dangers unknown to it and about which it had no duty to inform itself. This conclusion is plainly consistent with congressional intent to foreclose the faultless liability of the shipowner based on a theory of unseaworthiness or nondelegable duty. The shipowner, within limits, is entitled to rely on the stevedore and owes no duty to the longshore worker to inspect or supervise the cargo operations [Scindia Steam Navigation Co. v. De Los Santos (1981) 451 U.S. 156, 172, 101 S. Ct. 1614, 68 L. Ed. 2d 1 ; Dugas v. C. Brewer & Co. (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 203, 209, 211 Cal. Rptr. 573] .

The duty of providing safety equipment is on the stevedore, and the stevedore is liable for injuries to workers that result from breach of that duty. The shipowner is liable only in the exceptional case. Further, a longshore worker may not bring a products-liability claim against the shipowner, because the shipowner may only be held liable when the injured longshore worker can prove that the shipowner is negligent. The shipowner gives no warranty that the vessel is free from defect [Whitehill v. United States Lines, Inc. (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 1201, 1207-1208, 223 Cal. Rptr. 452 ; but see Streatch v. Associated Container Transp., Ltd. (C.D. Cal. 1975) 388 F. Supp. 935, 939 (strict products liability action available if defendant shipowner is in business of providing product to public)].

A shipowner may be obligated to intervene in the stevedore's cargo operation when the owner learns that an apparently dangerous condition exists or has developed. If the condition presents an unreasonable risk of harm to longshore workers and the stevedoring company's judgment is improvident, the shipowner must perform any repairs necessary for the protection of longshore workers [see Scindia Steam Navigation Co. v. De Los Santos (1981) 451 U.S. 156, 173-176, 101 S. Ct. 1614, 68 L. Ed. 2d 1 (dicta)].

Once unloading operations have begun, the shipowner can be held liable for injuries to the employees of the stevedore resulting from open and obvious dangers only if the shipowner had actual knowledge of the hazards, and should have realized that an unreasonable risk of harm to the longshore workers existed, but did not intervene to eliminate or neutralize the hazard [Dugas v. C. Brewer & Co. (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 203, 210, 211 Cal. Rptr. 573] .

A negligent shipowner's liability may be reduced but is not eliminated by the negligence of the stevedore or the longshore worker [Dugas v. C. Brewer & Co. (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 203, 210, 211 Cal. Rptr. 573] .

46-522 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 522.33

§ 522.33 Maintenance and Cure

[1] Nature of Remedy

The most basic remedy afforded an injured seaman is that of damages for "maintenance and cure" [see § 522.180]. The objective is primarily the same as that of land-based workers' compensation laws. The plaintiff seaman is almost always entitled to food, lodging, and medical care from the employer when the seaman is injured or becomes ill during the course of employment. This entitlement lasts until some type of stability has attached to his or her condition. However, maintenance and cure differs markedly from ordinary workers' compensation in that it is not the seaman's exclusive remedy when injured during the course of employment [Baptiste v. Superior Court (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 87, 98, 164 Cal. Rptr. 789] . For discussion of a seaman's other remedies, see §§ 522.31, 522.34, and 522.35.

A seaman's right to maintenance and cure arises under general maritime law. The obligation has been recognized consistently as an implied provision in contracts of marine employment. Wages constitute only one part of a ship's obligation to sailors, while maintenance and cure is another kind [Gilliam v. California Employment Stabilization Comm'n (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 102, 111, 278 P.2d 528] .

The obligation or liability for maintenance and cure is not predicated on the fault or negligence of the employer. Whether by traditional standards the employer is or is not responsible for the injury or sickness, he or she is liable for the expense of curing it as an incident of the maritime employer-employee relationship [Da Silva v. Pacific King, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1, 11, 240 Cal. Rptr. 395 ; Petersen v. Marine Transport Lines (1948) 36 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 927, 935, 194 P.2d 161 , 194 P.2d 161] .

A seaman may recover punitive damages under general maritime law for a ship owner's willful and wanton failure to pay maintenance and cure, even if such damages might not be available in an action brought solely under the Jones Act [Atl. Sounding Co. v. Townsend (2009) -- U.S. -- 129 S. Ct. 2139, 174 L. Ed. 2d 382, 398-400 ; see § 522.31].

[2] Extent of Statutory Recognition

Under a California statute, if a mate or seaman becomes sick or disabled during the voyage, without his or her fault, the expense of furnishing the person with suitable medical advice, medicine, attendance, and other provision for his or her wants, must be borne by the vessel until the close of the voyage [Harb. & Nav. Code § 873]. However, maintenance and cure is in fact not a statutory obligation of the employer but is a common law liability; although maintenance and cure is the payment of a liability by an employer, it is not paid under what is commonly considered an employer's liability law [Gilliam v. California Employment Stabilization Comm'n (1955) 130 Cal. App. 2d 102, 114, 278 P.2d 528] . Nevertheless, the California statute appears to reaffirm, through codification of the common law, that portion of the employer's obligation for the disability during the remainder of the voyage [see § 522.33[3]].

[3] Breadth of Liability

The employer's responsibility for maintenance and cure extends beyond injuries sustained because of, or while engaged in, activities required by the seaman's employment [Petersen v. Marine Transp. Lines (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 927, 935 , 194 P.2d 161] . Thus, seamen have been said to be "in service" even while on shore leave. Shore leave has been described as an elemental necessity in the sailing of ships, a part of the business, as old as the art and not merely a personal diversion, a necessity in the maintenance of the crew's morale, without which the efficiency of the ship's operations would be seriously impaired [Moss v. Alaska Packers Ass'n (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 857, 859, 160 P.2d 244]. However, a seaman who does not live aboard ship but commutes to the ship is not generally "in service of" the ship after the hours of service have ended for the day [Price v. Connolly-Pacific Co. (2008) 162 Cal. App. 4th 1210, 1221-1223, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 872 (seaman with permission to live in own camper parked on company property was not in service of ship when contracting disease from mosquito bite likely sustained after duty hours)].

[4] Unavailability of Most Defenses

So broad is the shipowner's obligation for maintenance and cure that negligence or acts short of probable misconduct on the seaman's part will not relieve the employer of the responsibility. Considerations of contributory negligence, the fellow servant rule, and assumption of risk are not relevant either. Only willful misbehavior or a deliberate indiscreet act suffices to deprive the seaman of protection. Classic examples are venereal disease and injuries received as a result of intoxication, although on occasion even the latter appear to have been qualified in recognition of the predisposition of sailors ashore [Petersen v. Marine Transp. Lines (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d Supp. 927, 935 , 194 P.2d 161] .

§ 522.34 Death on High Seas Act (DOHSA)

[1] Nature of Action

Under the Death on the High Seas Act (DOHSA) [46 U.S.C.S. § 30301 et seq.], whenever a person's death is caused by wrongful act, neglect, or default occurring on the high seas beyond three nautical miles from the shore of the United States, the personal representative may maintain a suit for damages in the federal courts, in admiralty, for the exclusive benefit of the decedent's wife, husband, parent, child, or a dependent relative against the person or vessel responsible [46 U.S.C.S. § 30302; see § 522.184].

State courts have concurrent jurisdiction to hear DOHSA actions, making available to DOHSA beneficiaries a convenient forum for the decision of their wrongful death claims [see 46 U.S.C.S. § 30308(a); Offshore Logistics, Inc. v. Tallentire (1986) 477 U.S. 207, 221-222, 232, 106 S. Ct. 2485, 91 L. Ed. 2d 174 ; Garofalo v. Princess Cruises, Inc. (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1060, 1079-1085, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 754 (rejecting earlier court of appeals decision that state courts had no jurisdiction over DOHSA claims)]. The DOHSA does not affect state law regulating rights of action or remedies for death. Otherwise, however, state statutes are preempted by the DOHSA whenever it applies [Offshore Logistics, Inc. v. Tallentire (1986) 477 U.S. 207, 232, 106 S. Ct. 2485, 91 L. Ed. 2d 174] . So long as the injury occurring on the high seas is one cause of the death, the DOHSA provides the exclusive remedy, even if the high seas injury is not the sole cause of the death [Garofalo v. Princess Cruises, Inc. (2000) 85 Cal. App. 4th 1060, 1079, 102 Cal. Rptr. 2d 754] .

Furthermore, the DOHSA does not apply to waters within the territorial limits of a state [46 U.S.C.S. § 30308(b); Offshore Logistics, Inc. v. Tallentire (1986) 477 U.S. 207, 221, 106 S. Ct. 2485, 91 L. Ed. 2d 174] . Thus, state courts may entertain causes of action and provide wrongful death remedies for accidents arising on territorial waters (less than three nautical miles from shore) [46 U.S.C.S. § 30308(a); Code Civ. Proc. § 377.60; Offshore Logistics, Inc. v. Tallentire (1986) 477 U.S. 207, 221, 106 S. Ct. 2485, 91 L. Ed. 2d 174] . However, the courts have construed the term "high seas" to include all waters that are not the territorial waters of the United States. Therefore, the DOHSA applies to injuries that occur within the territorial waters of another nation, even if that body of water is an inland river or lake [Beckett v. MasterCraft Boat Co. (2005) 126 Cal. App. 4th 1045, 1048-1049, 24 Cal. Rptr. 3d 490] .

For a discussion of the federal nonstatutory remedy for deaths occurring within state territorial waters, see § 522.35. For additional discussion of maritime wrongful-death actions see Ch. 100, Boats and Boating . For a discussion of and forms relating to state wrongful-death actions, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions .

[2] Nature of Recovery

Wrongful death recovery under the DOHSA consists of fair compensation for the pecuniary loss sustained by the persons for whose benefit the suit is brought. It is apportioned among these plaintiffs by the court in proportion to the loss they may severally have suffered by reason of the decedent's death [46 U.S.C.S. § 30303].

[3] Unavailability of Defense of Contributory Negligence

In suits under the DOHSA, the fact that the decedent was guilty of contributory negligence does not bar recovery, but the court takes into consideration the degree of negligence attributable to the decedent and reduces the recovery accordingly [46 U.S.C.S. § 30304].

[4] Limitation of Actions

A suit for wrongful death on the high seas must be commenced within three years from the date the cause of action accrued [46 U.S.C.S. § 30106].

[5] Conversion of Pending Personal Injury Suit

If a person dies as a result of the wrongful act, neglect, or default during the pendency in admiralty court of a suit to recover damages for personal injuries in respect to the act, neglect, or default in question, the personal representative of the decedent may be substituted as a party and the suit may proceed as one for wrongful death on the high seas [46 U.S.C.S. § 30305].

§ 522.35 General Maritime Law

[1] Creation of Common Law Remedy for Wrongful Death

To achieve uniformity under the existing statutory scheme, the United States Supreme Court held that an action lies under general maritime law for death caused by violation of maritime duties, such as the duty of seaworthiness [Moragne v. States Marine Lines (1970) 398 U.S. 375, 401, 409, 90 S. Ct. 1772, 26 L. Ed. 2d 339 ; see § 522.31[12] regarding the duty of seaworthiness]. The Court noted that if the Jones Act and the Death on the High Seas Act (DOHSA) were construed to forbid recognition of a general maritime remedy for wrongful death within territorial waters, the following anomalies would occur: (1) in territorial waters, general maritime law would allow a remedy for unseaworthiness resulting in injury, but not for death; and (2) although the DOHSA allows a remedy for death resulting from unseaworthiness on the high seas, general maritime law would not allow that recovery for a similar death in territorial waters [Miles v. Apex Marine Corp. (1990) 498 U.S. 19, 26-27, 111 S. Ct. 317, 112 L. Ed. 2d 275 ; Moragne v. States Marine Lines (1970) 398 U.S. 375, 395, 90 S. Ct. 1772, 26 L. Ed. 2d 339] .

Therefore, this remedy applies whether the act occurred on the high seas or in territorial waters [see Miles v. Apex Marine Corp. (1990) 498 U.S. 19, 26, 29-30, 111 S. Ct. 317, 112 L. Ed. 2d 275] . Although it applies to the death of a "true" seaman, it does not apply to the death of a longshore worker, because of superseding federal legislation barring that application [Miles v. Apex Marine Corp. (1990) 498 U.S. 19, 28, 111 S. Ct. 317, 112 L. Ed. 2d 275 ; see 33 U.S.C.S. § 905(b); see also § 522.35[3]].

Although the holding in Moragne technically addressed only claims brought for a violation of the duty of seaworthiness, the United States Supreme Court has subsequently ruled that the holding extends to negligence claims as well [Norfolk Shipbuilding & Drydock Corp. v. Garris (2001) 532 U.S. 811, 121 S. Ct. 1927, 150 L. Ed. 2d 34, 43] .

The United States Supreme Court has allowed recovery for loss of support, services, and society, and funeral expenses in a claim brought under general maritime law based on the death of a longshore worker within territorial waters [Sea-Land Servs., Inc. v. Gaudet (1974) 414 U.S. 573, 584, 94 S. Ct. 806, 39 L. Ed. 2d 9] . Loss of society provides compensation for loss of mutual benefits of the relationship, but not for mental anguish and grief [Sea-Land Servs.,

Inc. v. Gaudet (1974) 414 U.S. 573, 585 n.17, 94 S. Ct. 806, 39 L. Ed. 2d 9] . That case also allowed recovery for wrongful death despite recovery by decedent during lifetime for personal injuries [Sea-Land Servs., Inc. v. Gaudet (1974) 414 U.S. 573, 583, 94 S. Ct. 806, 39 L. Ed. 2d 9] . The Court subsequently emphasized that its holding applies only to a claim based on the death of a longshore worker that occurs in territorial waters [Miles v. Apex Marine Corp. (1990) 498 U.S. 19, 30-31, 30 n.1, 111 S. Ct. 317, 112 L. Ed. 2d 275] . Because of superseding federal legislation under the Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act [33 U.S.C.S. § 905(b)], Sea-Land Services is no longer applicable on its facts, because a longshore worker may no longer bring an action against a shipowner on the general maritime theory of unseaworthiness (although he or she may bring such an action on a negligence theory) [Miles v. Apex Marine Corp. (1990) 498 U.S. 19, 30 n.1, 111 S. Ct. 317, 112 L. Ed. 2d 275] . For further discussion, see § 522.35[3].

Subsequently, the United States Supreme Court held that damages in Moragne-type wrongful death actions brought for the death of a non-seafarer--that is, someone who was neither a seaman covered by the Jones Act nor a longshore worker--are subject to the application of state law [Yamaha Motor Corp. v. Calhoun (1996) 516 U.S. 199, 202, 116 S. Ct. 619, 133 L. Ed. 2d 578] . For a discussion of remedies afforded under California wrongful death law, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions .

There is no recovery for loss of society in a general maritime action for the wrongful death of a Jones Act (46 U.S.C.S. § 30104) seaman, which is consistent with a uniform rule barring recovery for those damages for the wrongful death of a seaman, whether brought under the DOHSA (46 U.S.C.S. § 30301 et seq.), the Jones Act, or general maritime law [Miles v. Apex Marine Corp. (1990) 498 U.S. 19, 30-33, 111 S. Ct. 317, 112 L. Ed. 2d 275] . Moreover, in a general maritime action surviving the death of a seaman, the estate cannot recover damages for the decedent's lost future earnings [Miles v. Apex Marine Corp. (1990) 498 U.S. 19, 33-37, 111 S. Ct. 317, 112 L. Ed. 2d 275] .

For discussion of wrongful-death actions under the general maritime law with emphasis on jurisdictional issues and within the context of recreational boating, see Ch. 100, Boats and Boating .

[2] Beneficiaries Determined by Reference to Death on High Seas Act (DOHSA)

The class of beneficiaries in a claim for wrongful death based on general maritime law is determined by reference to the Death on the High Seas Act (DOHSA) [46 U.S.C.S. § 30301 et seq.] and the rule expressed by a majority of the state wrongful death schemes [Skidmore v. Grueninger (5th Cir. 1975) 506 F.2d 716, 729 n.11 ; see Moragne v. States Marine Lines (1970) 398 U.S. 375, 407-408, 90 S. Ct. 1772, 26 L. Ed. 2d 339 ; see also § 522.34[1]]. For example, by analogy to these statutory provisions, adult children, parents, and posthumous illegitimate children are included in the class of beneficiaries, but an intended spouse is not [Skidmore v. Grueninger (5th Cir. 1975) 506 F.2d 716, 729 n.11 (adult children); Hamilton v. Canal Barge Co. (E.D. La. 1975) 395 F. Supp. 978, 985-988 (remaining beneficiaries)].

[3] Inapplicability to Longshore and Harbor Workers

In 1972, the United States Congress amended 33 U.S.C.S. § 905(b) to bar any recovery from shipowners for the death or injury of a longshore or harbor worker based on any cause of action other than negligence [33 U.S.C.S. § 905(b); Miles v. Apex Marine Corp. (1990) 498 U.S. 19, 28, 111 S. Ct. 317, 112 L. Ed. 2d 275] . The purpose of this amendment is to place a longshore or harbor worker injured aboard a vessel in the same position as he or she would be if injured in nonmaritime employment ashore, insofar as bringing a third-party damage action (for example, an action against a party other than the employer) is concerned, and not to endow the employee with any special maritime theory of liability or cause of action under whatever judicial nomenclature it may be called, such as "unseaworthiness" [see Streatch v. Associated Container Transp., Ltd. (C.D. Cal. 1975) 388 F. Supp. 935, 939 ; see also H.R. Rep. No. 1441, 92nd Cong., 2d Sess. (1972), reprinted in 1972 U.S. Code Cong. & Admin. News 4698, 4703]. This change was based on the conclusion that the "seaworthiness" concept was developed by the courts to protect seamen from the extreme hazards incident to their employment that frequently requires long sea voyages and duties of obedience to orders not generally required of other workers; and that the rationale that justifies holding the vessel absolutely liable to seamen if the vessel is unseaworthy does not apply with equal force to longshore workers and other nonseamen working on board a vessel while it is still in port. In doing so, Congress stressed the adequacy of compensation remedies available to longshore and harbor workers under the simultaneously amended compensation provisions of the Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act [see H.R. Rep. No. 1441, 92nd Cong., 2d Sess. (1972), reprinted in 1972 U.S. Code Cong. & Admin. News 4698, 4703].

Moreover, any person sustaining loss or injury through the negligence or willful misconduct of any master, mate, engineer, or pilot, or the defendant's neglect or refusal to obey the laws governing the navigation of vessels, may also sue the master, mate, engineer, or pilot for damages [46 U.S.C.S. § 30103].

The DOHSA is not restricted to maritime employees; it provides for recovery whenever the death of a person is caused by wrongful act, neglect, or default on the high seas [46 U.S.C.S. § 30302].

For matters more properly within the jurisdiction of state law, California provides that a marine carrier (on the ocean or arms of the sea [*Civ. § 522.51 Definitions

Contracts of affreightment and bills of lading set forth the essential terms governing shipping transactions. The term "contract of affreightment" encompasses any agreement for the conveyance of persons or the carriage of property by vessels. A bill of lading is merely written acknowledgment that goods have been received by a vessel for shipment to a particular place. Normally, a bill of lading also states terms of carriage, making it both a receipt and a contract [Pollard v. Vinton (1882) 105 U.S. 7, 8, 26 L. Ed. 998] .

The term "freight" refers to the payment or charges for shipping goods. The term "cargo" means the goods being shipped. Under California law, however, the goods being shipped are referred to as freight, while freightage means payment or charges for shipment.

[1] Action for Breach of Contract

If the shipper refuses payment of freight on delivery of the goods in accordance with the parties' contract, the shipowner can seek collection through an action for breach of contract. Such actions can be maintained in personam in state court or, because shipment contracts fall within maritime jurisdiction, in federal district court [28 U.S.C.S. § 1333; Madruga v. Superior Court (1954) 346 U.S. 556, 560, 561, 74 S. Ct. 298, 98 L. Ed. 290] .

[2] Maritime Liens

In addition to actions based on contract, a shipowner may collect freight charges by enforcement of maritime liens. A lien on the shipper's cargo arises when the owner of a vessel takes possession of the goods for shipment [Hayes v. Campbell (1880) 55 Cal. 421, 423-426] . Maritime liens do not depend on the parties' agreements for their existence, but arise independently, from the usages of commerce [Bird of Paradise v. Heyneman (1867) 72 U.S. 545, 554-558, 18 L. Ed. 662] .

The shipowner may retain the goods until freight is paid or file an action in rem against the cargo in federal court. The lien is possessory, however, and an owner should not release the cargo until after an action is filed or the shipper gives additional security [Beverly Hills Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. v. Compania de Navegacione Almirante S.A. (9th Cir. 1971) 437 F.2d 301, 303, 304] . Partial delivery of the goods will not defeat a lien on the remainder for the full amount of freight due [Frothingham v. Jenkins (1850) 1 Cal. 42, 43-44] .

The parties to a shipping transaction may modify or exclude the shipowner's lien in their contract or through their actions. In the absence of express words, the lien may be waived if the agreement contains stipulations inconsistent with the right, such as a provision that payment is due within two months after delivery of the goods [Bird of Paradise v. Heyneman (1867) 72 U.S. 545, 554-558, 18 L. Ed. 662] . In addition, the unconditional surrender of the goods without payment operates as a waiver of the shipowner's lien [Beverly Hills Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. v. Compania de Navegacione Almirante S.A. (9th Cir. 1971) 437 F.2d 301, 303, 304 ; see Eastern Transp. Co. v. United States (2d Cir.

Chapter 522 SHIPS AND SHIPPING
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Property Interests
1. Actions by Shipowners

46-522 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 522.53

§ 522.53 Actions Based on Maritime Collisions

[1] Fault Requirements

Liability for damages from collisions between two ships or a ship and a stationary object arises from fault. When neither party to the collision is at fault, damages cannot be collected by one vessel from the other [The "Clara" (1880) 102 U.S. 200, 203, 26 L. Ed. 145] .

[2] Federal Navigational Rules

Detailed rules of navigation govern the actions of ships on navigable waters [33 U.S.C.S. §§ 1601-1608, 2001-2073]. On the high seas and connected waters navigable by seagoing vessels, the International Regulations for Preventing Collisions at Sea guide vessels' movements [33 U.S.C.S. §§ 1601-1608]. Another set of rules applies to navigation of all vessels on the inland waters of the United States, and to vessels of the United States on the Canadian waters of the Great Lakes to the extent that there is no conflict with Canadian law [33 U.S.C.S. §§ 2001-2073].

[3] California Navigational Rules

California rules of navigation [Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 240-308] apply to navigable waters of the United States and the state insofar as they are not in conflict with the admiralty and maritime jurisdiction and laws of the United States [Harb. & Nav. Code § 240]. In practice, federal rules concerning navigation on navigable waters will control except as they permit application of a special local law [Intagliata v. Shipowners & Merchs. Towboat Co., Ltd. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 365, 375, 159 P.2d 1] .

[4] Determination of Fault--Pennsylvania Rule

Admiralty law imposes liability for damages from a collision on the ship whose fault causes the injury [Pennsylvania v. Troop (1874) 86 U.S. 125, 136, 22 L. Ed. 148] . The United States Supreme Court has established rules concerning imposition of fault when parties are in violation of the navigational statutes. The Court has held that when a ship at the time of collision is in actual violation of a statutory rule intended to prevent collisions, it is no more than a reasonable presumption that the fault, if not the sole cause, was at least a contributing cause of the disaster. In such case, the ship must show not merely that the fault might not have been one of the causes, or that it was probably not, but that it could not have been a cause. If the ship's fault clearly had nothing to do with the disaster, it may be dismissed [Pennsylvania v. Troop (1874) 86 U.S. 125, 136, 22 L. Ed. 148] .

The purpose of the Pennsylvania rule was to enforce obedience to the mandate of safety statutes. It was also designed to simplify adjudication of collision cases [Ishizaki Kisen Co., Ltd. v. United States (9th Cir. 1975) 510 F.2d 875, 879, 880] . The Pennsylvania rule concerns only the question of whether an alleged statutory violation was one of the collision's causes. It does not exonerate a party whose negligence may also have been a cause of the disaster [Crown Zellerbach Corp. v. Willamette-Western Corp. (9th Cir. 1975) 519 F.2d 1327, 1329] .

The Ninth Circuit has consistently followed the Pennsylvania rule. The court, however, interprets the rule to mean that a ship in violation of statutory rules intended to prevent collisions must establish that the violation could not reasonably be held to have been the proximate cause of the collision. This view follows from the court's finding that the Supreme Court did not intend to establish a hard and fast rule that every vessel guilty of statutory fault must establish that the fault could not by any stretch of imagination have had any causal relation to the collision no matter how special, improbable, or remote [States S.S. Co. v. Permanente S.S. Corp. (9th Cir. 1956) 231 F.2d 82, 86] . The court also has ruled that the Pennsylvania burden is discharged by a clear and convincing showing of no proximate cause, and not by the stricter beyond-a-reasonable-doubt test [Trinidad Corp. v. S.S. Keiyoh Maru (9th Cir. 1988) 845 F.2d 818, 825] .

The Pennsylvania rule nevertheless proves frequently difficult, if not impossible, for violators to discharge [Waterman S.S. Corp. v. Gay Cottons (9th Cir. 1969) 414 F.2d 724, 736 , modified, 419 F.2d 372] . Until a change in 1975 by the United States Supreme Court, a vessel that could not satisfy the Pennsylvania burden would bear half of the damages even if its contribution to the accident was minimal [United States v. Reliable Transfer Co. (1975) 421 U.S. 397, 411, 95 S. Ct. 1708, 44 L. Ed. 2d 251 (overruled rule of divided damages in collision cases); see § 522.53[4])].

[5] Apportionment of Damages

[a] In General

If a vessel is solely at fault, it must bear its own damages as well as those of the faultless party [The "Clara" (1880) 102 U.S. 200, 203 26 L. Ed. 145] .

When two or more parties have contributed by their fault to cause property damage in a maritime collision or stranding, liability for such damage must be allocated among the parties in proportion to the comparative degree of their fault [United States v. Reliable Transfer Co. (1975) 421 U.S. 397, 411, 95 S. Ct. 1708, 44 L. Ed. 2d 251] . Under the previous rule of divided damages in collision cases, both parties' damages were added together and divided by two [Sapphire v. Napoleon III (1874) 85 U.S. 51, 56, 21 L. Ed. 814 (describes computation of divided damages)]. According to the Reliable rule, damages will be allocated equally only when the parties are equally at fault or when it is not possible fairly to measure the comparative degree of their fault [United States v. Reliable Transfer Co. (1975) 421 U.S. 397, 411, 95 S. Ct. 1708, 44 L. Ed. 2d 251] .

The Reliable rule applies to collisions between two vessels and also to contact between vessels and stationary objects (allisions).

[b] Major-Minor Fault Rule

The "major-minor fault" rule attempts to ease the burden on a vessel which is guilty of a minor violation in comparison with the neglect of the other party. Under such circumstances, the vessel guilty of minor fault benefits from a presumption that the minor fault could not have been a cause of the collision. The party primarily at fault must bear all damages unless it can rebut the presumption of its responsibility by showing that the minor fault did in fact contribute as a proximate cause of the collision [California v. Italian Motorship Ilice (9th Cir. 1976) 534 F.2d 836, 840] . There is, however, some question as to the continued viability of this rule in light of the decision in United States v. Reliable Transfer Co. (1975) 421 U.S. 397, 95 S. Ct. 1708, 44 L. Ed. 2d 251 ; see § 522.53[4].

[6] Post-Reliable Application of Fault Rules

The decision in Reliable [United States v. Reliable Transfer Co. (1975) 421 U.S. 397, 95 S. Ct. 1708, 44 L. Ed. 2d 251] clearly overruled the holding in Pennsylvania v. Troop (1874) 86 U.S. 125, 22 L. Ed. 148 , insofar as it relates to the principle of divided damages when two parties' fault contribute to a collision [California v. Italian Motorship Ilice (9th Cir. 1976) 534 F.2d 836, 840 (dicta)]. Courts of appeal in two circuits have ruled, however, that the Pennsylvania rule pertaining to the burden on vessels in violation of statutes remains in force subsequent to Reliable [Florida E. C. R. Co. v. Revilo Corp. (5th Cir. 1981) 637 F.2d 1060, 1067 ; Tug Ocean Prince, Inc. v. United States (2d Cir. 1978) 584 F.2d 1151] .

The Ninth Circuit has applied the Pennsylvania rule in post-Reliable cases, but has not directly discussed its viability. In a pre-Reliable decision, the court noted that a Japanese system of comparative fault, similar to the Reliable method of apportioning damages, might become frustrated by application of the rule [see Ishizaki Kisen Co., Ltd. v. United States (9th Cir. 1975) 510 F.2d 875, 880] . However, the Ninth Circuit discussed application of the Pennsylvania rule in a subsequent case applying the Reliable principle retroactively [Crown Zellerbach Corp. v. Willamette-Western Corp. (9th Cir. 1975) 519 F.2d 1327, 1329] .

The "major-minor fault" rule appears to have been overturned by the Reliable decision. The Second Circuit has ruled that cases applying the "major-minor fault" rule are no longer viable after Reliable and that damages must be apportioned even if one vessel is primarily responsible for the loss and the other is only slightly negligent. The court relied on the Supreme Court's disapproval of the rule as unfair because the primarily negligent party bears the entire burden even though another party shared the fault [Getty Oil Co., Inc. v. S.S. Ponce De Leon (2d Cir. 1977) 555 F.2d 328, 333] .

In dicta, the Ninth Circuit has discussed the "major-minor fault" rule subsequent to the Reliable decision, but has made no determination of its continued effect [California v. Italian Motorship Ilice (9th Cir. 1976) 534 F.2d 836, 840] .

[7] Joint and Several Liability

If two parties are at fault for damages to a third party, liability is joint and several; the injured party can recover wholly from one or the other, or partially from one and partially from the other [see The Beaconsfield (1895) 158 U.S. 303, 307, 15 S. Ct. 860, 39 L. Ed 993 ; The "Atlas" (1876) 93 U.S. 302, 315, 23 L. Ed. 863] .

The rule of joint and several liability appears to be largely unchanged by the rule announced in United States v. Reliable Transfer Co. (1975) 421 U.S. 397, 95 S. Ct. 1708, 44 L. Ed. 2d 251 [see § 522.53[4]]. In a later decision, the Supreme Court stated that the Reliable rule changed apportionment of liability from an equal division to a division on the basis of relative fault, but did not upset the rule that an injured party may recover for all loss from one of several joint tortfeasors [Edmonds v. Compagnie Generale Transatlantique (1979) 443 U.S. 256, 271 n.30, 99 S. Ct. 2753, 61 L. Ed. 2d 521 ; see also McDermott, Inc. v. AmClyde (1994) 511 U.S. 202, 207-208, 114 S. Ct. 1461, 128 L. Ed. 2d 148] . This statement has been adopted and applied in a noncollision case [Ebanks v. Great Lakes Dredge & Dock Co. (11th Cir. 1982) 688 F.2d 716, 720-722] and would appear to be equally applicable in collision cases, although the issue has yet to be squarely decided by an appellate court in that context.

Although one joint tortfeasor may be severally liable for all damages, he or she may seek pro rata contribution or partial indemnity from other joint tortfeasors [Edmonds v. Compagnie Generale Transatlantique (1979) 443 U.S. 256, 271 n.30, 99 S. Ct. 2753, 61 L. Ed. 2d 521 ; The "Juniata" (1876) 93 U.S. 337, 340, 23 L. Ed. 930 ; Loose v. Offshore Navigation, Inc. (5th Cir. 1982) 670 F.2d 493, 500-502 ; Petition of Bloomfield S.S. Co. (2d Cir. 1970) 422 F.2d 728, 734] .

If a plaintiff sues one joint tortfeasor after settling with and releasing another, the nonsettling tortfeasor's liability is reduced by that amount of the total damages that is found to be attributable to the settling tortfeasor's proportionate share of liability, and the settling tortfeasor's liability is, in turn, extinguished [Kizer v. Peter Kiewit Sons' Co. (N.D. Cal. 1980) 489 F. Supp. 835, 837-841] . This rule differs from California law regarding the effect of settlement, which is discussed in Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution .

[8] Effects of Settlement

The United States Supreme Court has established the federal common law applicable to cases in which one or more defendants have settled with plaintiff, and held that the proper calculation of the liability of nonsettling defendants is based on the jury's allocation of proportionate responsibility; the Court rejected the alternative method of giving nonsettling defendants a credit for the dollar value of the settlement [McDermott, Inc. v. AmClyde (1994) 511 U.S. 202, 217, 114 S. Ct. 1461, 128 L. Ed. 2d 148] . The rejected method is that reflected in California law regarding the effect of settlement, which is discussed in Ch. 300, Indemnity and Contribution .

§ 522.54 Partitioning Ownership Interests in Vessels

Federal and state courts have concurrent jurisdiction to partition ownership interests in ships [28 U.S.C.S. § 1333]. Actions against the vessel in rem must be brought in federal court, while state courts retain power to adjudicate such controversies when an action is prosecuted against the vessel owners in personam [Madruga v. Superior Court of California (1954) 346 U.S. 556, 560, 74 S. Ct. 298, 98 L. Ed. 290] . A state court action cannot necessarily dispose of the rights of any and all persons in the vessel, however, unless every person claiming an interest in the property happens to be made a party in the action. An in rem action, on the other hand, adjudicates the interests of all persons in the property [Madruga v. Superior Court of California (1954) 346 U.S. 556, 561, 74 S. Ct. 298, 98 L. Ed. 290] .

Accordingly, if the attorney is unsure whether or not there are any outstanding claims, an action should be prosecuted in federal court against the vessel in rem and against all known claimants in personam. Furthermore, the action must be brought in rem if any liens are outstanding against the vessel. Such liens would be considered maritime and therefore subject to the exclusive admiralty jurisdiction of federal courts [Madruga v. Superior Court of California (1954) 346 U.S. 556, 560, 74 S. Ct. 298, 98 L. Ed. 290] .

In California, partition actions are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 872.010-874.240. For discussion and forms relating to partition actions in state court, see Ch. 397, Partition . The state court forms in Ch. 397, Partition , may easily be converted for use in a federal in rem action by adding an admiralty jurisdiction allegation, by stating that the vessel is or will be within the district during the pendency of the action, and by following other in rem procedures provided in the federal Supplemental Rules for Certain Admiralty and Maritime Claims [see §§ 522.201 -522.205].

Towage is the supplying of power by a tug or vessel to tow or draw another vessel. The vessel being towed is called the "tow" [Stevens v. White City (1932) 285 U.S. 195, 200, 52 S. Ct. 347, 76 L. Ed. 699] .

In an agreement of towage, the tow owner is responsible for its seaworthiness. The tug owner is not responsible for the proper stowage of cargo on a barge, an honest error of judgment on the part of the tug's master, or nonapparent unseaworthiness of the tow [Nat G. Harrison Overseas Corp. v. American Tug Titan (5th 1975) 516 F.2d 89, 94] .

The tug owner's primary responsibility is safe navigation. He or she must exercise such reasonable care and maritime skill as prudent navigators employ for the performance of similar service. Unlike the common carrier with respect to cargo, however, the tug does not act as an insurer or bailee of the vessel in tow [Stevens v. White City (1932) 285 U.S. 195, 201, 202, 52 S. Ct. 347, 76 L. Ed. 699] .

Suits against a tug for damages to a tow are based on negligence. The plaintiff must show that the loss was caused by a breach of the duty to exercise the skill of a prudent navigator. Unlike cases involving carriage of cargo, the fact that a tow was in good order when received by a tug and damaged when delivered does not raise any presumption of negligence [Stevens v. White City (1932) 285 U.S. 195, 202, 52 S. Ct. 347, 76 L. Ed. 699] .

Even though the tow owner bears the burden of proving the tug's negligence, the tug may be required to produce exculpatory evidence under certain circumstances. For instance, if an accident occurs during a deviation from the tug's course, it must show that the deviation was consistent with cautious and skillful management [The Steamer Webb (1872) 81 U.S. 406, 414-415, 20 L. Ed. 774] . In addition, on proof of grounding, the tug must provide evidence that the tug was operating within the designated channel and did not hit a known obstruction therein [Mid-America Transp. Co., Inc. v. National Marine Serv., Inc. (8th Cir. 1974) 497 F.2d 776, 780 , aff'd, 526 F.2d 629 (1975)] .

§ 522.70 Governing Law

The rights of shippers, seamen, and holders of maritime liens are governed by the substantive rules of federal maritime law, regardless of whether the plaintiff chooses a state or a federal forum [Intagliata v. Shipowners & Merchs. Towboat Co., Ltd. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 365, 371, 159 P.2d 1] . State law applies only to the extent that it does not render changes in the maritime law [Madruga v. Superior Court (1954) 346 U.S. 556, 561, 74 S. Ct. 298, 98 L. Ed. 290] . Admiralty jurisdiction and the choice of federal or state forum are discussed more extensively in Ch. 100, Boats and Boating.

Statutory law primarily controls the rights of shippers, seamen, and holders of maritime liens. The interests of shippers are governed by the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act (COGSA) [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note] and the Harter Act [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 et seq.]. Seamen's rights to wages are protected by federal and state statutes [46 U.S.C.S. §§ 10301-10321 (foreign and intercoastal voyages), 10501-10509 (coastwise voyages), 10701-10711 (deceased seamen), 11101 et seq. (protection and relief of seamen); Harb. & Nav. Code § 493]. Finally, federal maritime lien law controls the creation of liens in favor of materialmen, tugs, pilots, seamen, and other persons furnishing services or supplies necessary for the shipping industry [46 U.S.C.S. §§ 31305, 31341 et seq.].

§ 522.71 Actions for Cargo Damage or Loss

[1] Who May Prosecute

An action for cargo damage or loss may be prosecuted by a shipper, consignee, holder of a negotiable (order) bill of lading or any other person demonstrating an ownership interest in the goods [The Vaughan & Tel. (1872) 81 U.S. 258, 266, 20 L. Ed. 807 ; The Thames (1872) 81 U.S. 98, 106, 20 L. Ed. 804] .

[2] Types of Shipping Agreements

Usually, the conditions governing cargo damage are contained in a written agreement evidencing the shipping transaction. The contract may be a bill of lading which is also a receipt for the cargo, or a charter party.

A charter party is an agreement whereby the owner gives the charterer full capacity of the ship [The Fri (2d Cir. 1907) 154 F. 333, 338] . Such an agreement is a private contract of carriage and a bill of lading issued by the ship's master or by an agent of the owner operates merely as the receipt for the goods and as a document of title, passing the property of the goods. The provisions of the bill of lading do not vary the contract (charter party) between the shipowner and the charterer [In re Marine Sulphur Queen (2d Cir. 1972) 460 F.2d 89, 103 ; Romano v. West India Fruit & S.S. Co. (5th Cir. 1945) 151 F.2d 727, 730 ; The Fri (2d Cir. 1907) 154 F. 333, 336-337] .

The owner of a ship carrying the cargo of more than one shipper is called a common carrier, and the ship is referred to as a general ship [Liverpool & Great W. Steam Co. v. Phenix Ins. Co. (1889) 129 U.S. 397, 437, 9 S. Ct. 469, 32 L. Ed. 788] . A bill of lading issued by a common carrier is both a receipt for the goods and a contract between the parties [Pollard v. Vinton (1882) 105 U.S. 7, 8, 26 L. Ed. 998] .

[3] Laws Regulating Shipping Contracts

[a] In General

Shipowners and shippers must comply with several statutes that regulate commercial shipping transactions.

[b] Carriage of Goods by Sea Act (COGSA)

The Carriage of Goods by Sea Act (COGSA) [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note] applies to every bill of lading or similar document of title that evidences a contract for the carriage of goods (excluding cargo carried on deck and live animals) by sea to or from ports of the United States in foreign trade [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 1(b), (c)].

In addition, the COGSA governs shipments between United States ports and carriage agreements not covered for some other reason (such as the carriage of cargo on deck) if the bill of lading contains an express statement making the COGSA's provisions applicable [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 13; North River Ins. Co. v. Fed Sea/Fed Pac Line (9th Cir. 1981) 647 F.2d 985, 987] . If incorporated by the parties, the COGSA becomes merely another contractual term to be construed with the entire agreement [Commonwealth Petrochemicals v. Steam Ship Puerto Rico (4th Cir. 1979) 607 F.2d 322, 324-327] .

The COGSA specifically excludes charter parties from its coverage [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 5]. Also, a bill of lading issued by the vessel owner to a charterer would not fall within the COGSA because it is not evidence of the parties' contract [see 46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note]. The bill of lading operates as a receipt and document of title under such circumstances, but the charter party is the contract of carriage [In re Marine Sulphur Queen (2d Cir. 1972) 460 F.2d 89, 103] .

Although charter parties are excluded, the act covers any bill of lading issued under or pursuant to a charter party from the moment at which such document regulates the relations between a carrier and holder of the bill [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 1(b)]. For example, if a charterer issues bills of lading to shippers instead of using the ship's entire carrying capacity, the bills of lading evidence a contract of carriage and must comply with the terms of the COGSA [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 5].

The statute covers only the period from the time when goods are loaded to the time when they are discharged from the ship [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 1(e)]. The parties may agree, however, to hold the carrier or the ship responsible for loss or damage prior to loading and subsequent to discharge of cargo [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 7].

[c] Harter Act

The Harter Act [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 et seq.] was originally enacted prior to COGSA, and as now codified applies to the carriage of goods to or from any port in the United States [46 U.S.C.S. § 30702(a)]. However, the Harter Act has been almost completely superseded with respect to foreign trade by the COGSA [Sunkist Growers, Inc. v. Adelaide Shipping Lines (9th Cir. 1979) 603 F.2d 1327, 1333] . In addition, many bills of lading issued for transportation between ports within the United States include a provision making the COGSA applicable. Therefore, the Harter Act will generally apply only with respect to shipments between United States ports and only when the parties have not made the COGSA expressly applicable [PPG Indus., Inc. v. Ashland Oil Co.-Thomas Petroleum Transit Div. (3d Cir. 1975) 527 F.2d 502, 505 , appeal on remand, 592 F.2d 138 (1978)].

In contrast to the COGSA, the Harter Act applies to the periods prior to loading and subsequent to discharge of the goods up until delivery [46 U.S.C.S. § 30704; The Monte Iciar (3d Cir. 1948) 167 F.2d 334, 336] . The parties may contract to apply the COGSA during this period, but otherwise the Harter Act governs their rights [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 7; 46 U.S.C.S. § 30704].

The period prior to loading begins when the goods are delivered and accepted by the carrier for transportation. The primary determinant in showing the beginning of this period is whether or not the cargo has become subjected to the ship's control. The issuance of bills of lading or dock receipts indicates that custody has taken place, but neither action represents conclusive proof of acceptance for shipment [Mackey v. United States (2d Cir. 1952) 197 F.2d 241, 242, 243] .

The Harter Act's coverage of delivery comes into play as soon as the cargo has left the ship's tackle (when transportation is covered by the COGSA), and continues until the goods are properly delivered by depositing them on a fit wharf at the port of destination [Isthmian S.S. Co. v. California Spray-Chem. Corp. (9th Cir. 1961) 290 F.2d 486, 488-490 , modified, 300 F.2d 41 (1962)] .

[d] Federal Bills of Lading (Pomerene) Act

The Pomerene or Federal Bills of Lading Act [49 U.S.C.S. § 80101 et seq.] applies to bills of lading issued by any common carrier for the transportation of goods between ports within the United States (interstate) and between the United States and a foreign country [49 U.S.C.S. § 80102]. A common carrier issuing a bill of lading is generally liable for damages caused by nonreceipt of any part of the goods by the date shown in the bill or by failure of the goods to correspond with the description contained in the bill [49 U.S.C.S. § 80113(a)]. However, a common carrier issuing a bill of lading is not liable: (1) if the goods are loaded by the shipper; (2) the bill describes the goods in terms of marks or labels, or in a statement about kind, quantity, or condition, or is qualified by "contents or condition of contents of packages unknown," "said to contain," "shipper's weight, load, and count," or words of the same meaning; and (3) to the extent the carrier does not know whether any part of the goods were received or conform to the description [49 U.S.C.S. § 80113(b)]. In addition, a common carrier issuing a bill of lading is not liable for damages caused by improper loading if the shipper loads the goods and the bill contains the words "shipper's weight, load, and count," or words of the same meaning indicating that the shipper loaded the goods [49 U.S.C.S. § 80113(c)].

Although enacted later, the Pomerene Act did not repeal the Harter Act. The two acts may reasonably be read together as compatible legislation [Mississippi Valley Barge Line Co. v. Inland Waterways Shippers Ass'n, Inc. (8th Cir. 1961) 289 F.2d 374, 382] . Furthermore, the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act (COGSA) specifically provides in 46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 3(4), that it will not be construed as repealing or limiting the application of any part of the Bills of Lading Act. Therefore, attorneys should consider compliance with Pomerene's provisions when preparing an action under the COGSA or the Harter Act.

[e] California Law Regarding Cargo Damage Intrastate

As noted previously, federal maritime law supercedes state regulation of shipping transactions in interstate and foreign commerce [Intagliata v. Shipowners & Merchs. Towboat Co., Ltd. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 365, 371, 159 P.2d 1] . California statutes recognize that the rights and duties peculiar to carriers by sea are defined by acts of Congress [Civ. Code § 2088; Harb. & Nav. Code § 421]. State law applies to fill the gaps in admiralty law, but only to the extent that it does not render changes [Harb. & Nav. Code § 399; Madruga v. Superior Court (1954) 346 U.S. 556, 561, 74 S. Ct. 298, 98 L. Ed. 290] .

The carriage of freight (refers to cargo in California) within the state of California is regulated by Civ. Code §§ 2110-2144 and Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 420-432. Basically, a marine carrier bears the same liability as an inland carrier, except for loss or injury caused by perils of the sea or fire [Harb. & Nav. Code § 420]. The statute lists perils of the sea and prohibits the stowage of freight on deck unless it is usual to do so [Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 422, 423]. In addition, the law regulates jettison (throwing cargo overboard when necessary for the safety of the vessel or cargo) and general average loss (apportioning losses over the cargo) [Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 425-432]. Finally, the Civil Code specifies the place of delivery of freight, in the absence of contrary usage [Civ. Code § 2119].

Federal admiralty jurisdiction is determined by a two-part test, requiring a location on navigable waters and a sufficient relationship or nexus to maritime commerce [Sisson v. Ruby (1990) 497 U.S. 358, 361, 364, 110 S. Ct. 2892, 111 L. Ed. 2d 292 ; Executive Jet Aviation v. City of Cleveland (1972) 409 U.S. 249, 253, 261, 93 S. Ct. 493, 34 L. Ed. 2d 454] . When the injury occurs on land, admiralty jurisdiction normally is not proper [David Wright Charter Serv. of N.C., Inc. v. Wright (4th Cir. 1991) 925 F.2d 783, 785] . Claims against terminal operators for damage to cargo while in storage awaiting shipment are governed by state law, rather than admiralty law. The booking of passage of cargo on a ship, followed by the turning over of the cargo to a terminal operator for storage pending shipment, creates a bailment or deposit between the cargo owner and the terminal operator under California law. Civ. Code § 1840 limits the amount of damages recoverable for negligence by a depository or bailor to the declared value of the cargo [Whitcombe v. Stevedoring Servs. of Am. (9th Cir. 1993) 2 F.3d 312, 314, 316] .

For discussion of and forms for use in the liability of an inland carrier, see Ch. 109, Carriers .

[4] Actions Under Carriage of Goods by Sea Act (COGSA)

[a] Obligations of the Carrier

Under the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act (COGSA), after receiving goods for transportation, the carrier must issue, on demand of the shipper, a bill of lading which (1) shows the leading marks necessary for identification of the goods as furnished by the shipper before the loading starts, (2) states the number of cargo pieces or the quantity or weight, as furnished in writing by the shipper, and (3) notes the apparent order and condition of the goods [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 3(3)]. The carrier need not show any marks, number, quantity, or weight which he or she has reasonable ground for suspecting not accurately to represent the goods actually received, or which he or she has had no reasonable means of checking [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 3(3)(c)].

The COGSA also imposes affirmative duties with respect to the ship and cargo. Before and at the beginning of a voyage, the carrier must exercise due diligence to make the ship seaworthy as well as properly manned, equipped, and supplied. Furthermore, the holds, refrigerating and cooling chambers, and all other parts of the ship in which goods are carried must be made fit and safe for the reception, carriage, and preservation of cargo [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 3(1)]. Finally, the carrier must properly and carefully load, handle, stow, carry, keep, care for, and discharge the goods carried [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 3(2)].

As an additional means of controlling contracts of carriage, the COGSA voids and nullifies any clause, covenant, or agreement relieving the carrier or the ship from liability for loss or damage to cargo arising from negligence, fault, or failure in any duties and obligations required by statute. Clauses which attempt to lessen the carrier's liability, except as provided in the statute, will also be disregarded [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 3(8)].

[b] Special Agreements Under Carriage of Goods by Sea Act (COGSA)

Under the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act (COGSA), the shipper and carrier may enter into any agreement embodying any terms, regardless of the statute's requirements, with respect to any particular goods. Although it employs broad language, this provision applies only to extraordinary shipments where the character or condition of the property to be carried or the circumstances, terms, and conditions under which the carriage is to be performed are such as reasonably to justify a special agreement. Any stipulation regarding seaworthiness, however, must not be contrary to public policy [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 6].

[c] Limitation on Scope of Carrier's Liability

The COGSA relieves the carrier from liability for loss or damage arising or resulting from unseaworthiness unless caused by want of due diligence to make the ship seaworthy and to secure the proper personnel and equipment as specified with respect to the carrier's obligations [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 4(1)]. In addition, the statute exempts a carrier from liability for loss or damage arising or resulting from the following acts or events [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 4(2)]:

- Act, neglect, or default of the master, mariner, pilot, or the servants of the carrier in the navigation or in the management of the ship;
- Fire, unless caused by the actual fault or privity of the carrier;
- Perils, dangers, and accidents of the sea or other navigable waters;
- Act of God;
- Act of war;
- Act of public enemies;
- Arrest or restraint of princes, rulers, or people, or seizure under legal process;
- Quarantine restrictions;
- Act or omission of the shipper or owner of the goods, his agent or representative;
- Strikes or lockouts or stoppage or restraint of labor from whatever cause, whether partial or general: provided that nothing herein contained be construed to relieve a carrier from responsibility for the carrier's own acts;
- Riots and civil commotions;
- Saving or attempting to save life or property at sea;
- Wastage in bulk or weight or any other loss or damage arising from inherent defect, quality, or vice of the goods;
- Insufficiency of packing;
- Insufficiency or inadequacy of marks; and
- Latent defects not discoverable by due diligence.

An umbrella provision excludes any other cause arising without the actual fault and privity of the carrier and without the fault or neglect of the carrier's agents or servants [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 4(2)(q)].

The burden of proof with respect to limitation of liability falls on the carrier or any person claiming the exemption. If the loss or damage results from unseaworthiness, the person claiming exemption must prove the exercise of due diligence [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 4(1)]. A person claiming exemption because of an act for which the carrier is not responsible must prove the absence of causation between the damage or loss and any fault or neglect of the carrier [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 4(2)(q)]. The burden is satisfied if these facts are shown by a preponderance of the evidence [States Marine Corp. of Del. v. Producers Coop. Packing Co. (9th Cir. 1962) 310 F.2d 206, 212, 213] .

[d] Limitation on Amount of Carrier's Liability

The COGSA provides that neither the carrier nor the ship may in any event be liable for any loss or damage to or in connection with the transportation of goods in an amount exceeding $500 per package, or in case of goods not shipped in packages, per customary freight unit. The shipper can avoid this limitation if the nature and value of the goods have been declared before shipment and inserted in the bill of lading. Furthermore, the parties may agree on a different maximum amount so long as it does not fall below the $500 limitation. Regardless of the amount declared, the carrier will not be liable for more than the actual damage [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 4(5)].

When cargo is shipped within a sealed container, the container is not considered the package or customary freight unit to which the $500 limitation applies if the bill of lading lists the number of packages within the container, notwithstanding a provision in the bill of lading that seeks to limit liability by providing that where cargo is packed into containers, the number of the containers shall be considered the number of packages or units for the purpose of limiting liability. Such a contract definition of "package" is neither reasonable nor consistent with the language and purpose of the COSGA, which provides, in 46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 3(8), that any contract agreement lessening the statutory liability of the carrier is null and void [All Pac. Trading v. Vessel M/V Hanjin Yosu (9th Cir. 1993) 7 F.3d 1427, 1433] .

When the carrier seeks to limit its liability to $500, the shipper must be afforded a fair opportunity to declare a higher value for the cargo and pay a corresondingly higher shipping charge [Pan Am. World Airways, Inc. v. California Stevedore & Ballast Co. (9th Cir. 1977) 559 F.2d 1173, 1176] . Provisions in the bill of lading and the COGSA advising shippers of the carrier's limited liability are considered prima facie evidence of the opportunity to avoid the limitation, however, and the holder of a bill of lading (or shipper) must prove that a choice of declaring a higher liability did not in fact exist [Tessler Bros. (B.C.) Ltd. v. Italpacific Line (9th Cir. 1974) 494 F.2d 438, 443 ; see also Continental Ins. Co. v. Columbus Line, Inc. (2003) 107 Cal. App. 4th 1190, 1200, 133 Cal. Rptr. 2d 199 (reference in bill of lading incorporating COGSA, but not specifically noting $500 limitation was insufficient evidence, by itself, that shipper was denied opportunity to negotiate for greater limitation)].

Although the statute appears clear in limiting the carrier's liability to $500 per package, unlimited liability may be imposed if the carrier makes an unreasonable deviation during transit. The COGSA provides that any reasonable deviation, such as to save lives or property at sea, does not constitute a breach of the parties' contract. However, a deviation for the purpose of loading or unloading passengers or cargo is regarded prima facie as unreasonable [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 4(4)].

The United States Circuit Courts of Appeal do not treat the issue uniformly. The Fifth Circuit has ruled that an unreasonable deviation breaches the parties' contract, rendering the $500 limitation inapplicable and restoring the carrier's full liability as an insurer of the goods [Spartus Corp. v. S/S Yafo (5th Cir. 1979) 590 F.2d 1310, 1315-1317] . On the other hand, the Seventh Circuit has decided that the words "in any event" in 46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 4(5) mean that the $500 limitation applies regardless of an unreasonable deviation which breaches the contract [Atlantic Mut. Ins. Co. v. Poseidon Schiffahrt (7th Cir. 1963) 313 F.2d 872, 874-875] .

In the state courts of California, mere negligent conduct will not displace the $500 limitation on a carrier's liability under the COGSA. In dicta, the court of appeal has stated that even in the event of an unreasonable deviation, the statute places an invariable $500 per package limitation on the carrier's financial responsibility unless the shipper has declared a higher value in the bill of lading [Varian Assocs. v. Compagnie Generale Transatlantique (1978) 85 Cal. App. 3d 369, 372-376, 149 Cal. Rptr. 534] .

[e] Notice of Loss or Damage

Under the COGSA, the consignee or person entitled to delivery must give written notice of loss or damage and the general nature of such loss or damage to the carrier or his or her agent at the port of discharge before or at the time of the removal of the goods. If the loss or damage is not apparent, the notice must be given within three days of the delivery. The notice may be endorsed on the receipt for the goods given by the person taking delivery [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 3(6)].

If the notice is not given, removal of the goods is prima facie evidence of the carrier's delivery of the goods as they are described in the bill of lading. The failure to give notice does not affect or prejudice the shipper's right to bring suit within the allowable time period [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 3(6)].

[f] Period for Bringing Suit

Under the COGSA, suits for loss or damage to cargo must be brought within one year after delivery of the goods or the date when the goods should have been delivered. Otherwise, the carrier will be discharged from all liability [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 3(6)]. Loss or damage within the meaning of 46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 3(6), refers only to direct damage to cargo and not to imdemnity claims. Thus, a cause of action for indemnity, although it originates in the same loss or damages suffered by the cargo owner, does not have legal existence until the indemnitee has incurred a loss by paying the underlying claim or judgment [U. S. Cold Storage of Cal. v. Matson Navigation Co. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1228, 1231-1232, 209 Cal. Rptr. 144] .

The one-year statute of limitations cannot be avoided even if the carrier intentionally violates the parties' contract by stowing cargo on deck [Francosteel Corp. v. N. V. Nederlandsch Amerikaansche, Stoomvart-Maatschappij (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 880, 902, 903, 57 Cal. Rptr. 867] .

For a general form asserting the affirmative defense of expiration of the time period for bringing suit, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions .

[g] Elements of Shipper's Action

Under the COGSA, a shipper or consignee may establish a prima facie case against the carrier by showing that the cargo was delivered to the carrier in good condition but was damaged when discharged [Nissho-Iwai Co. Ltd. v. M/T Stolt Lion (2d Cir. 1980) 617 F.2d 907, 911, 912] . A bill of lading issued in accordance with the act's requirements constitutes prima facie evidence of the carrier's receipt of the goods as described therein [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 3(4)]. Therefore, if the bill of lading states that the cargo was received in apparent good order and the goods are damaged when discharged, the shipper or consignee has established his or her case.

Once the shipper presents a prima facie case, the carrier must show that the loss or damage arose from a cause for which the carrier is not liable, such as peril of the sea, and not from any negligence with respect to the cargo [States Marine Corp. of Del. v. Producers Coop. Packing Co. (9th Cir. 1962) 310 F.2d 206, 212, 213] . The shipper maintains the burden of showing that the carrier's negligence contributed to the loss or damage. If the shipper establishes negligence, the carrier must bear the entire loss (subject to the limitation on amount of liability) unless the carrier can segregate that part of the loss due to the excepted cause. Under such circumstances, the carrier will pay for only the amount which relates to the wrongful conduct [Tri-Valley Packing Ass'n v. States Marine Corp. of Del. (9th Cir. 1962) 310 F.2d 891, 892, 893] .

[5] Actions Under Harter Act

[a] Shipowner's Obligations and Liability

The Harter Act [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 et seq.] requires a shipowner (or his or her agent) to issue bills of lading which contain basically the same information mandated by the COGSA [46 U.S.C.S. § 30703(a), (b)]. Instead of imposing positive obligations with respect to the cargo and ship, however, the Harter Act prohibits the inclusion of exculpatory clauses in bills of lading. The owner may not insert a provision excluding liability for loss or damage arising from negligence or fault in loading, stowage, custody, care, or proper delivery of cargo [46 U.S.C.S. § 30704]. In addition, the law forbids a clause which lessens, weakens, or avoids the shipowner's obligation to exercise due diligence in making the ship seaworthy and properly equipped, manned, and supplied [46 U.S.C.S. § 30705(a)].

If the owner exercises due diligence to make the vessel in all respects seaworthy and properly manned, equipped, and supplied, the vessel and owner are not responsible for loss or damage resulting from an error in navigation or management of the vessel [46 U.S.C.S. § 30706(a)]. In addition, without regard to the exercise of such due diligence, neither a carrier nor a vessel are liable for loss or damage arising from [46 U.S.C.S. § 30706(b)]:

- Dangers of the sea or other navigable waters.
- Acts of God, or public enemies.
- Any inherent defect, quality, or vice of the thing carried.
- Insufficiency of package.
- Seizure under legal process.
- Saving or attempting to save life or property at sea, or from any deviation in rendering such service.
- Any act or omission of the shipper or owner of the goods, or his or her agent or representative.

This list includes some but not all of the causes stated in the COGSA [see 46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 4(2)].

The generally accepted definition of "perils of the sea" is fortuitous action of elements at sea, of such force as to overcome the strength of a well-found ship or usual precautions of good seamanship. The validity of the defense depends on the nature and cause of loss under the particular facts of the case, and the carrier has the burden of showing freedom from negligence [Taisho Mar. & Fire Ins. Co. v. M/V Sea-Land Endurance (9th Cir. 1987) 815 F.2d 1270, 1272, 1275] . Findings of unusually high winds and seas, rolling of ship, damage to ship, loss and damage of containers, and due diligence in making the vessel and cargo system seaworthy support the conclusion that cargo was lost because of perils of the sea [Taisho Marine & Fire Ins. Co. v. M/V Sea-Land Endurance (9th Cir. 1987) 815 F.2d 1270, 1274] .

[b] Period for Bringing Suit

The Harter Act provides no period within which suit must be instituted. Under such circumstances, admiralty law requires application of the doctrine of laches [Young v. Key City (1872) 81 U.S. 653, 660, 20 L. Ed. 896] .

[c] Elements of Shipper's Action

Under the Harter Act, a shipper's or consignee's prima facie case is established much the same as in an action under the COGSA, by showing that goods delivered for transportation in apparent good order were discharged in a damaged condition [Caterpillar Overseas, S. A. v. The Expeditor (2d Cir. 1963) 318 F.2d 720, 724] . The carrier bears the burden of proving a cause of the loss or damage that the statute recognizes as an excepted peril [Schnell v. Vallescura (1934) 293 U.S. 296, 303, 304, 55 S. Ct. 194, 79 L. Ed. 373] . The owner must also show that the vessel was seaworthy at the beginning of the voyage or that due diligence was used to make it seaworthy [W.J. McCahan Sugar Refining Co. v. S.S. Wildcroft (1906) 201 U.S. 378, 386-390, 26 S. Ct. 467, 50 L. Ed. 794] . If the owner cannot prove seaworthiness, the statute will not provide relief from liability, regardless of whether or not the defect is causally connected with the disaster creating the loss or damage [May v. Hamburg-Amerikanische Packetfahrt Aktiengesellschaft (The Isis) (1933) 290 U.S. 333, 350-354, 54 S. Ct. 162, 78 L. Ed. 348] . Finally, if the cause of cargo damage falls within a statutory exception, the shipper bears the burden of proving the owner's negligence or other failure [Schnell v. Vallescura (1934) 293 U.S. 296, 304, 305, 55 S. Ct. 194, 79 L. Ed. 373] .

The tremendous burdens on both shipowner and shipper under the Harter Act have hampered its effectiveness and made the COGSA the preferable law under which to proceed [Wirth Ltd. v. S/S Acadia Forest (5th Cir. 1976) 537 F.2d 1272, 1278 n.21]. As discussed previously, however, the Harter Act will apply to all bills of lading for transportation between ports within the United States when the contract does incorporate the COGSA. In addition, the Harter provisions apply to the periods prior to loading and subsequent to discharge of the goods unless the parties have agreed to application of the COGSA during that period [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, §§ 7, 12].

§ 522.72 Actions by Seamen for Wages

[1] Preferential Treatment and Enforcement Generally

Seamen's wages are strictly protected by state and federal statutes [46 U.S.C.S. §§ 10301-10321 (foreign and intercoastal voyages), 10501-10509 (coastwise voyages), 10701-10711 (deceased seamen), 11101 et seq. (protection and relief of seamen); Harb. & Nav. Code § 493]. This preferential treatment is part of the traditional protection of seamen's rights by Congress [Isbrandtsen Co. v. Johnson (1952) 343 U.S. 779, 782, 783, 72 S. Ct. 1011, 96 L. Ed. 1294] .

A seaman's right to wages commences either at the time he or she begins work or at the time specified in the agreement for commencement of work or presence on board, whichever occurs first [46 U.S.C.S. § 10313(a)]. The right to wages must not be dependent on the earning of freight by the vessel [46 U.S.C.S. § 10313(b)]. In addition, a seaman may not forfeit his or her lien against the ship or be deprived of any remedy for the recovery of wages under any agreement other than one provided for under 46 U.S.C.S. § 10301 et seq. Any stipulation in an agreement inconsistent with these provisions, or any stipulation by which a seaman consents to abandon either a right to wages if the ship is lost or a right in the nature of salvage, is void [46 U.S.C.S. § 10317].

A seaman's right to wages gives rise to a maritime lien, entitling the seaman to bring an action in rem against the vessel under federal maritime lien law [46 U.S.C.S. § 31341 et seq.; see § 522.73[3][c]]. A seaman's right to wages may also be enforced by an action in personam. For further discussion and forms of a complaint for wages, see Benedict on Admiralty (Matthew Bender).

[2] Deductions and Set-Offs Against Wages

Federal law strictly limits deductions that may be taken against seamen's wages. No wages due or accruing to any seaman are subject to attachment or arrestment from any court except for the support and maintenance of a wife and minor children [46 U.S.C.S. § 11109(a)]. A seaman may be required to forfeit a portion of his or her own wages as punishment for certain specific offenses, such as desertion [46 U.S.C.S. § 11501]. The shipowner must restrict deductions and set-offs, however, to those recognized in the statutes as allowable for a seaman's derelictions in the performance of his or her duties [Isbrandtsen Co. v. Johnson (1952) 343 U.S. 779, 787, 72 S. Ct. 1011, 96 L. Ed. 1294 (disallowed set-off for expenses in medical care and hospitalization of another crew member for injuries inflicted by the discharged seaman)]. In certain instances, payment of wages may take a form other than cash or a pay voucher [American Foreign S.S. Co. v. Matise (1975) 423 U.S. 150, 160, 96 S. Ct. 410, 46 L. Ed. 2d 354 (payment in form of airline ticket for return to United States when owner not required to pay repatriation expenses)].

[3] Time of Payment

After five days have passed at the beginning of a voyage, a seaman is entitled to receive from the master, on demand, one half of the balance of unpaid wages earned at each port at which the ship loads or delivers cargo [46 U.S.C.S. §§ 10313(e), 10504(a)]. At the end of a foreign or intercoastal voyage, the balance of a seaman's wages due must be paid within 24 hours after the cargo has been discharged or within four days after the seaman has been discharged, whichever is earlier [46 U.S.C.S. §§ 10301(a), 10313(f)]. In either event, a seamen on such a voyage is entitled to receive one third of the wages due immediately after discharge [46 U.S.C.S. § 10313(f); see Thomas v. SS Santa Mercedes (9th Cir. 1978) 572 F.2d 1331, 1334, 1335 (purpose of latter provision is to provide seaman with funds to live on when he or she is left ashore, regardless of reason of discharge)]. In the case of a coastwise voyage, from one state to another nonadjoining state, the balance of wages due a seaman must be paid within two days after termination of the shipping agreement or when the seaman is discharged, whichever is earlier [46 U.S.C.S. §§ 10501(a), 10504(b)].

[4] Penalty for Late Payment

Every master or owner who refuses or neglects to make timely final payment without sufficient cause must pay the seaman a sum equal to two days pay for every day during which payment is delayed beyond the statutory period [46 U.S.C.S. §§ 10313(g), 10504(c); but see Petersen v. Interocean Ships, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 823 F.2d 334, 336-337 ("wages" under 46 U.S.C.S. § 10313 does not include "comp time" earnings)]. The penalty of double payment is mandatory if a shipowner withholds payment of wages without sufficient cause. The phrase "without sufficient cause" means more than the absence of a valid defense to the claim for wages. The delay in payment must be arbitrary or unreasonable. It is not unreasonable for a shipowner to withhold payment when the seaman does not abide by a reasonable precondition, such as putting the claim for wages in writing [Larkins v. Hudson Waterways Corp. (9th Cir. 1981) 640 F.2d 997, 999, 1000] . Once it has been determined that a wage penalty is due, however, the courts do not have discretion to limit the period during which the penalty is assessed [Griffin v. Oceanic Contractors, Inc. (1982) 458 U.S. 564, 102 S. Ct. 3245, 73 L. Ed. 2d 973, 979-984] .

[5] Prepayment of Process Fees by Seamen

Prepayment of the marshal's fee for seizing and maintaining custody over the vessel may present a formidable barrier for seamen seeking to collect their wages. The amount required by the marshal may be substantial and may have to be renewed if additional time is required. Counsel should check with the local United States Marshal to determine the amount of deposit required.

28 U.S.C.S. § 1921 requires an advance payment for the marshal's costs and subsequent periodic amounts during the course of the litigation. On the other hand, 28 U.S.C.S. § 1916 allows seamen to institute and prosecute suits and appeals for wages without prepayment of fees or costs, or the furnishing of security.

The two circuit courts of appeal that have addressed the conflict between these two provisions have not resolved the question uniformly. The Second Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled that the more specific exemption for seamen in 28 U.S.C.S. § 1916 controls suits against vessels for wages [Thielebeule v. M/S Nordsee Pilot (2d Cir. 1971) 452 F.2d 1230, 1232, 1233] . The Fifth Circuit, however, has given controlling authority to 28 U.S.C.S. § 1921 as the more recent enactment [Araya v. McLelland (5th Cir. 1976) 525 F.2d 1194, 1196] . The Ninth Circuit has not dealt with the conflict. A federal district court decision from Washington followed the Fifth Circuit's reasoning, however, in upholding the prepayment requirement of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1921 [Setera v. F/V Olympic (W.D. Wash. 1980) 491 F. Supp. 844, 845] .

§ 522.73 Actions to Enforce Maritime Liens

[1] Scope and Preemption

Federal maritime lien law [46 U.S.C.S. §§ 31305, 31341 et seq.] grants a lien against a vessel in favor of any person furnishing repairs, supplies, towage, use of dry dock or marine railway, or other necessaries. The lien may be enforced by an action in rem, and a plaintiff need not allege or prove that credit was given to the vessel [46 U.S.C.S. §§ 31301(4), 31342(a)]. Because the existence of a maritime lien based on a breach of contract depends on a finding that the subject matter of the contract falls within the admiralty jurisdiction, the issue of admiralty jurisdiction may arise in such a case [see Exxon Corp. v. Central Gulf Lines (1991) 500 U.S. 603, 608-612, 111 S. Ct. 2071, 114 L. Ed. 2d 649 (agency contracts are not per se excepted from admiralty jurisdiction in action brought to enforce maritime lien under former 46 U.S.C.S. § 971 (now see 46 U.S.C.S. § 31342); but Court did not decide whether plaintiff was entitled to maritime lien); see generally Ch. 100, Boats and Boating].

The maritime lien arises from the ship's need to obtain promptly supplies, repairs, and other services that facilitate its movement from place to place [Piedmont & Georges Creek Coal Co. v. Seaboard Fisheries Co. (1920) 254 U.S. 1, 8, 9, 41 S. Ct. 1, 65 L. Ed. 97] . Furthermore, federal maritime lien law supersedes any state statute conferring a lien on a vessel to the extent that the statute establishes a claim to be enforced by a civil action in rem [46 U.S.C.S. § 31307; see Dampskibsselskabet Dannebrog v. Signal Oil & Gas Co. of Cal. (1940) 310 U.S. 268, 272, 60 S. Ct. 937, 84 L. Ed. 1197 (construing former Federal Maritime Lien Act)].

[2] Authority to Bind Vessel

[a] Presumed Authority

Federal maritime liew law lists persons presumed to have authority from the owner to procure services giving rise to a lien. The list includes the managing owner, ship's husband, master, or any person to whom the management of the vessel at the port of supply is entrusted [46 U.S.C.S. § 31341(a)(3)]. The phrase "management of the vessel" denotes direction and control for the purposes for which the vessel is used, as opposed to mere navigation of the ship [

Dampskibsselskabet Dannebrog v. Signal Oil & Gas Co. of Cal. (1940) 310 U.S. 268, 272, 60 S. Ct. 937, 84 L. Ed. 1197] . The chief officer of a vessel, second in command to the master, has been included within the definition of persons to whom management of the vessel is entrusted for purposes of binding the ship [Atlantic & Gulf Stevedores v. M/V Grand Loyalty (5th Cir. 1979) 608 F.2d 197, 200] .

[b] Officers and Agents of Charterer

Prior to 1972, materialmen often faced difficult problems enforcing liens against a vessel when it was operated under the terms of a charter party or contract. The law disallowed a lien when the furnisher knew or, by the exercise of due diligence, could have ascertained that, because of the terms of the charter party, the person ordering the supplies or services was without authority to bind the vessel. In effect, materialmen were precluded from asserting a lien when the charter agreement contained a provision, termed a "no lien" clause or proviso, not allowing the charterer to create a lien against the vessel [United States v. Carver (1923) 260 U.S. 482, 488, 489, 43 S. Ct. 181, 67 L. Ed. 361] .

At present, the law provides simply that officers and agents with presumed authority include the persons appointed by a charterer [46 U.S.C.S. § 31341(a)(4)]. No lien provisions are outlawed, and materialmen need not inquire into a person's authority to bind the ship for repairs, supplies, or services, beyond ascertaining the person's title [Atlantic & Gulf Stevedores v. M/V Grand Loyalty (5th Cir. 1979) 608 F.2d 197, 201, 202] .

[3] Services and Supplies Giving Rise to Lien

[a] In General

A person who provides necessaries to a vessel on the order of the owner or a person authorized by the owner has a maritime lien on the vessel [46 U.S.C.S. § 31342(a)]. The term "necessaries" includes repairs, supplies, towage, and the use of a dry dock or marine railway [46 U.S.C.S. § 31304(4)]. It also covers, for example, stevedoring services [Atlantic & Gulf Stevedores v. M/V Grand Loyalty (5th Cir. 1979) 608 F.2d 197, 201] . The term "necessaries" does not mean absolutely indispensable goods or services, but includes most goods or services that are convenient or useful to the vessel [Ajubita v. S/S Peik (5th Cir. 1970) 428 F.2d 1345, 1346, 1347] .

[b] Pilotage

Pilotage fees are paid to pilots for navigating vessels between ports and the open sea. Although pilotage falls within the scope of federal regulation under the Commerce Clause (U.S. Const. art. I, § 8, cl. 3), it is a local concern that may constitutionally be regulated by the states in the absence of any conflicting federal legislation [Cooley v. Board of Wardens (1851) 53 U.S. 299, 319, 13 L. Ed. 996] .

The federal government has assumed exclusive authority over the regulation of pilots on coastwise seagoing vessels that are not sailing on register but are either propelled by machinery and subject to inspection under 46 U.S.C.S. § 3101 et seq. or are subject to inspection under 46 U.S.C.S. §§ 3701-3718 (carriage of liquid bulk dangerous cargoes) [46 U.S.C.S. § 8502]. Otherwise, pilots in the bays, rivers, harbors, and ports of the United States are left to state regulation [46 U.S.C.S. § 8501; see Jackson v. Marine Exploration Co., Inc. (5th Cir. 1978) 583 F.2d 1336, 1340, 1341] . California laws regulate pilotage of registered vessels to and from the ports in San Francisco, San Pablo, and Suisan Bays [Harb. & Nav. Code § 1100 et seq.]. The state statutes require registered vessels to obtain pilotage by licensed pilots within these bays, and mandate payment of fees whether or not a pilot is used [Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 1125-1127].

Pilotage fees fall within the definition of "necessaries" under federal maritime lien law, especially when required by state law [Ajubita v. S/S Peik (5th Cir. 1970) 428 F.2d 1345, 1346, 1347] . At least one court has enforced a lien in favor of a pilot whose services were offered but unlawfully refused [Blair v. M/V Blue Spruce (D. Mass. 1971) 329 F. Supp. 178, 179] . Arguably, the same type of lien would arise in California because a vessel must pay fees when pilotage is required even if the services are refused [Harb. & Nav. Code §§ 1125-1127].

[c] Seamen's Wages

Seamen's wages are considered "necessaries" under federal law, thus giving rise to a lien against the vessel [46 U.S.C.S. § 31342; see Bank of New Orleans & Trust Co. v. Oil Screw Tracy Marie (5th Cir. 1978) 580 F.2d 808] . The lien for seamen's wages takes priority over other claims against the ship [see 46 U.S.C.S. §§ 31301(5), 31326; see also International Paint Co., Inc. v. M/V Mission Viking (5th Cir. 1981) 637 F.2d 382, 385] . So long as any part of the vessel remains in existence, the sailor is entitled to the proceeds as against all other persons claiming a lien [The John G. Stevens (1898) 170 U.S. 113, 119, 18 S. Ct. 544, 42 L. Ed. 969] . For additional discussion of seamen's wages, see § 522.72.

Salvage is compensation allowed to a person who voluntarily assists a ship at sea, saving in whole or part the vessel or cargo from impending sea peril or recovering the property from actual peril or loss, as in the case of a shipwreck. A valid salvage claim requires three elements: (1) a marine peril; (2) service voluntarily rendered when not required as an existing duty or from a special contract; and (3) success in whole or part or contribution to success by the service [The "Sabine" (1880) 101 U.S. 384, 25 L. Ed. 982] .

A salvor's services give rise to a maritime lien against the ship for salvage [46 U.S.C.S. §§ 31301(5), 31342; Veverica v. Drill Barge Buccaneer No. 7 (5th Cir. 1974) 488 F.2d 880, 883] . The lien for salvage may be enforced by an action in rem against the salvaged vessel or property [The "Sabine" (1880) 101 U.S. 384, 25 L. Ed. 982] .

A suit to recover remuneration for rendering assistance or salvage services will not be maintainable if brought later than two years after the date when the assistance or salvage was rendered, unless within the period there was no reasonable opportunity for arresting the assisted or salved vessel within the court's jurisdiction [46 U.S.C.S. § 80107(c)]. For a general form for asserting the affirmative defense of expiration of the time period for bringing suit, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions .

[4] Waiver of Maritime Liens

The furnisher of repairs, supplies, or necessaries may waive the right to a lien by agreement or otherwise [46 U.S.C.S. § 31305]. An express renunciation of the lien in a contract or agreement will operate as a waiver, but such action is not necessary. Waiver may come about by reliance on specific security, such as a contract making the shipowner personally liable for the debt, instead of dependence on the lien. If the furnisher of supplies or services takes other and different security, he or she must stipulate for retention of the lien against the vessel in order to prevent waiver [W. A. Marshall & Co. v. S.S. "President Arthur" (1929) 279 U.S. 564, 568-572, 49 S. Ct. 420, 73 L. Ed. 846] .

[5] Enforcement of Maritime Liens

A lien arising under federal maritime lien law may be enforced by an action in rem against the vessel [46 U.S.C.S. § 31342(a)(2); Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule C(1)]. Furthermore, federal law states that it is not necessary to allege or prove that credit was given to the vessel [46 U.S.C.S. § 31342(a)(3)]. This provision creates a strong presumption that persons who furnish repairs, supplies, and other necessaries look to the credit of the vessel itself, as opposed to any personal guaranty by the owner [Sasportes v. M/V Sol De Copacabana (5th Cir. 1978) 581 F.2d 1204, 1209] . A person attacking the lien bears the burden of proving that the supplier relied solely on the owner's personal credit [Point Landing, Inc. v. Alabama Dry Dock & Shipbuilding Co. (5th Cir. 1958) 261 F.2d 861, 867] . A maritime lien arises unless it is affirmatively established that necessaries were furnished solely on the personal credit of the promising party [Point Landing, Inc. v. Alabama Dry Dock & Shipbuilding Co. (5th Cir. 1958) 261 F.2d 861, 867 ; The Astorian (9th Cir. 1932) 57 F.2d 85, 89, 90] .

Personal injury action under Jones Act former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 688, now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104 is not maintainable in rem against vessel because it does not give rise to maritime lien. Plamals v. Pinar Del Rio (1928) 277 U.S. 151, 155-157, 48 S. Ct. 457, 72 L. Ed. 827

In suit under Jones Act former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 688, now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104, claims of vessel's chief cook were not barred by "primary duty rule," because injury was not caused by his breach of duty that he consciously assumed as term of employment; he did not create, nor could he have controlled or eliminated, dangerous condition that caused his injury; injury resulted from momentary inattention to his own safety, not knowing breach of duty. Bernard v. Maersk Lines, Ltd. (9th Cir. 1994) 22 F.3d 903, 907-908

In suit under Jones Act former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 688, now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104, right to jury trial is option belonging only to plaintiff, not defendant; plaintiff is not able to establish right to jury trial (1) by reliance on defendant's erroneous request for jury trial, (2) under Seventh Amendment of United States Constitution, because of lack of diversity of citizenship, nor (3) as abuse of discretion or estoppel of defendants. Craig v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (9th Cir. 1994) 19 F.3d 472, 476

Unseaworthiness was established by injury to seaman caused by unsecured, open, hinged, steel hatch cover that fell on him as he ascended ladder, when obstacle kept hatch cover open ninety degrees; negligence under Jones Act former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 688, now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104 was established by uncorroborated, but uncontroverted, testimony of seaman; award for diminished earning capacity was not excessive, when trial court took into consideration possibility that seaman's future employment would again be interrupted by periods of incarceration. Havens v. F/T Polar Mist (9th Cir. 1993) 996 F.2d 215, 218-219

If Jones Act applies to seaman's claims, court ss precluded from dismissing claim on ground of forum non conveniens. Zipfel v. Halliburton Co. (9th Cir. 1987) 832 F.2d 1477, 1485-1487 ; see also Nicol v. Gulf Fleet Supply Vessels, Inc. (5th Cir. 1984) 743 F.2d 289, 293 ; Needham v. Maritime Co. of Philippines (2d Cir. 1983) 702 F.2d 47, 48

Use of words "Jones Act and General Maritime Law" in title of cause of action do not invoke admiralty jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1333 when complaint expressly claims jurisdiction exclusively under Jones Act and 28 U.S.C.S. § 1331. Trentacosta v. Frontier Pacific Aircraft Industries, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 813 F.2d 1553, 1556

Jones Act former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 688, now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104 was applicable to maritime action brought by Syrian seaman injured while at port in United States on vessel of Greek registry and operated by Liberian corporation, based on evidence that vessel's owners were United States nationals, and that vessel had substantial and continuing contacts with United States and virtually none with Liberia. Dalla v. Atlas Mar. Co. (9th Cir. 1985) 771 F.2d 1277, 1278-1279

Jones Act former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 688, now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104 was not applicable to suit brought by American citizen arising out of accident on high seas when vessel was Mexican, based in Mexico, and owners and shareholders were Mexican. Bilyk v. Vessel Nair (9th Cir. 1985) 754 F.2d 1541, 1542-1545

Under general rule in personal injury actions brought in admiralty (both under Jones Act former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 688, now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104 and general maritime law) and under Federal Employers' Liability Act, contributory negligence is not complete bar to recovery, but operates to reduce amount of damages award. Kopczynski v. Jacqueline (9th Cir. 1984) 742 F.2d 555, 558

Punitive damages are not allowed on negligence claim based on Jones Act former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 688, now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104; damages under Jones Act are limited to pecuniary losses. Kopczynski v. Jacqueline (9th Cir. 1984) 742 F.2d 555, 560-561

Summary judgment with respect to claim under Jones Act former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 688, now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104 for alleged injuries was erroneous when material issues of fact might exist; exclusion of demonstrative evidence was not abuse of discretion when ample and more reliable evidence admitted to show severity of injury. Lies v. Farrell Lines, Inc. (9th Cir. 1981) 641 F.2d 765, 772, 773

In combined action for negligence under Jones Act former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 688, now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104 and for unseaworthiness under general admiralty law, trial judge is required to give negligence instruction if evidence will support submission of negligence issue to jury; failure to instruct on negligence is prejudicial error. Mohn v. Marla Marie, Inc. (9th Cir. 1980) 625 F.2d 900, 901-902

Plaintiff was not seaman under Jones Act because when accident occurred, he was at waterfront construction site working aboard derrick barge that was anchored to harbor bottom and secured by headline to shore. Spears v. Kajima Eng'g & Constr., Inc. (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 466, 475-481, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 97

Triable issue of fact as to whether plaintiff was seaman entitled to recovery under Jones Act; plaintiff was employed as pile driver on barge being used to build bridge over flood control channel, barge was moved several times weekly, barge was being moved by crane at time of accident, and plaintiff had responsibilities involved in movement of barge. Gault v. Modern Cont'l/Roadway Constr. Co., Inc. Joint Venture (2002) 100 Cal. App. 4th 991, 999-1005, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 85

Seaman's use of cigarettes, allegedly resulting in lung cancer, purchased on employer's vessel was not "in the course of his employment" for purposes of the Jones Act former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 688, now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104; substantial factor leading to death in unseaworthiness claim was not established by employers' on-board sale of cigarettes without warning label; summary judgment properly granted. Tinsley v. American President Lines, Ltd. (1992) 6 Cal. App. 4th 562, 566-569, 8 Cal. Rptr. 2d 851

Damages award is not inadequate as matter of law for lack of compensation for loss of future earnings; award for future medical expenses does not require implied finding that there was loss of future earnings. Da Silva v. Pacific King, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1, 10-11, 240 Cal. Rptr. 395

Violation of National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) regulation, enforcement of which had been suspended by NMFS pending reconsideration of its appropriateness, was not conscious disregard of safety of others sufficient to support punitive damages. Da Silva v. Pacific King, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1, 7, 240 Cal. Rptr. 395

Exclusive remedy provision of Workers' Compensation Act (Lab. Code § 3601) was inapplicable to county lifeguard and rescue boat lieutenant who sued county for damages under Jones Act former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 688, now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104 because application of Workers' Compensation Act to maritime employment cases would materially prejudice uniformity of maritime law. Hamilton v. County of Los Angeles (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 982, 986-992, 182 Cal. Rptr. 868

County lifeguard/rescue boat lieutenant who received workers' compensation benefits was not barred or collaterally estopped from recovering against county employer under Jones Act or general maritime law; factors necessary to recover under state Workers' Compensation Act differ from factors necessary to determine whether or not plaintiff may recover under Jones Act or general maritime law. Hamilton v. County of Los Angeles (1982) 131 Cal. App. 3d 982, 997-998, 182 Cal. Rptr. 868

Punitive damages are not precluded under federal maritime law as matter of law. Baptiste v. Superior Court (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 87, 104, 164 Cal. Rptr. 789

Judgment for defendant notwithstanding verdict was improper when evidence would at least circumstantially justify jury finding that employer's negligence played some part, even though of slightest degree, in producing injury. Catania v. Halcyon S.S. Co. (1974) 44 Cal. App. 3d 348, 356, 118 Cal. Rptr. 513

Directed verdict was proper in action by seaman for personal injuries sustained on launch carrying seamen from shore to ship when no agency relationship shown between launch operator and shipowner defendant. Bell v. Seatrain Lines, Inc. (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 16, 23, 24, 115 Cal. Rptr. 76

Liability of shipowner for injuries incurred while employee attempting to open stuck valve. Texaco, Inc. v. Petroleum Specialists Corp. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 427, 434-439, 110 Cal. Rptr. 641

Fact that widow received part of workmen's compensation award did not preclude assertion of her rights under Jones Act former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 688, now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104; applicability of maritime law in cases within maritime jurisdiction is exclusive, and thus Workmen's Compensation Appeals Board has no jurisdiction to award compensation in these cases. De Court v. Beckman Instruments, Inc. (1973) 32 Cal. App. 3d 628, 632-635, 108 Cal. Rptr. 109

Propriety of instruction that plaintiff was seaman as matter of law; refusal to furnish jury with "Present Value Table" in appendix to BAJI No. 14.70 was not prejudicial. Howard v. Global Marine, Inc. (1972) 28 Cal. App. 3d 809, 813-817, 105 Cal. Rptr. 50

Shipowner was not under duty to provide seaman with safe means of going ashore and returning to his ship beyond ship's gangplank; shipowner had no duty to furnish transportation to and from ship to seamen granted shore leave when ship is anchored away from dock; seaman injured while on authorized shore leave was in service of his vessel for purpose of right to maintenance and cure. Dixon v. Grace Lines, Inc. (1972) 27 Cal. App. 3d 278, 287-291, 103 Cal. Rptr. 595

When special purpose vessel is being used for its designated purpose, injured worker is "seaman" and "member of the crew" within meaning of Jones Act former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 688, now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104 if permanently assigned to vessel and work contributed to function of vessel or to accomplishment of its mission. Soucie v. Trautwein Bros. (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 20, 25-26, 79 Cal. Rptr. 671

Obligation of shipowner to seamen defined. Bozanich v. Jo Ann Fisheries, Inc. (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 178, 186-192, 75 Cal. Rptr. 463

[3] Longshore and Harbor Workers

Retiree's work-related hearing-loss claim is maintainable under scheduled benefits set forth in § 8(c)(13) of Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act [33 U.S.C.S. § 908(c)(13)], and not § 8(c)(23) [33 U.S.C.S. § 908(c)(23)], which applies to benefits provided retirees suffering from latent occupational diseases. Bath Iron Works Corp. v. Director, OWCP, United States DOL (1993) 506 U.S. 153, 163-167, 113 S. Ct. 692, 121 L. Ed. 2d 619, 625

Longshoreman's third-party action for personal injuries against negligent shipowner or other party is not maintainable after automatic assignment of right of action to employer 6 months following award of compensation, even though possible conflict of interest exists between employee and employer. Rodriguez v. Compass Shipping Co. (1981) 451 U.S. 596, 603, 618, 101 S. Ct. 1945, 68 L. Ed. 2d 472 (decided before 1984 amendment of 33 U.S.C.S. § 933(b))

Permanently partially disabled employee entitled to compensation under LHWCA schedule establishing set amounts for specific injuries is not allowed to elect to receive larger recovery under provision that compensates for actual impairment of wage earning capacity caused by other injuries not specifically listed. Potomac Elec. Power Co. v. Director, Office of Workers' Comp. Programs (1980) 449 U.S. 268, 270-271, 101 S. Ct. 509, 66 L. Ed. 2d 446

Stevedore that has paid compensation benefits to injured longshoreman, though having lien therefor on longshoreman's subsequent recovery against shipowner under 33 U.S.C.S. § 933(e), does not have to reduce such lien by amount of longshoreman's costs in obtaining such recovery. Bloomer v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co. (1980) 445 U.S. 74, 85, 100 S. Ct. 925, 63 L. Ed. 2d 215

Sixty-day period for filing petition for review with court of appeals from final determination of compensation order by Benefits Review Board is jurisdictional requirement; petition not regarded as filed until received by clerk of court, and if not received by court of appeals within filing period, court lacks subject-matter jurisdiction. Felt v. Director, Office of Workers' Comp. Programs (9th Cir. 1993) 11 F.3d 951, 952

Administrative officers lack authority to impose cost as sanction against claimant who in bad faith initiates or continues workers compensation proceeding under Longshore & Harbor Workers' Compensation Act. Metropolitan Stevedore Co. v. Brickner (9th Cir. 1993) 11 F.3d 887, 890-891

Vessel has duty to take necessary steps to protect longshoreworkers against open and obvious cargo hazards created by on--loading foreign stevedores, not just concealed cargo hazards. Riggs v. Scindia Steam Navigation Co. (9th Cir. 1993) 8 F.3d 1442, 1447-1448

Filing of compensation order is not complete until service of order on parties, to begin running of 30-day period for filing of notice of appeal from compensation order. Nealon v. California Stevedore & Ballast Co. (9th Cir. 1993) 996 F.2d 966, 970-971

In action brought by longshore workers against employer stevedore and its liability insurers for bad faith breach of contract, based on stevedore's conduct regarding longshore workers' negligence action against shipowner, federal admiralty jurisdiction was lacking, because insurance contracts forming basis of claim were not maritime in nature, in that they only indirectly connected with maritime commerce. Simon v. Intercontinental Transp. (ICT) B.V. (9th Cir. 1989) 882 F.2d 1435, 1441-1444

In proceeding under Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, once longshore worker seeking permanent total disability benefits proves that work-related injury prevented him from performing his or her former job, burden shifts to employer to prove that suitable alternate work was available in community; to show job availability, employer is required to point to specific jobs that claimant can perform and not merely to point to general work that claimant may be physically able to perform. Hairston v. Todd Shipyards Corp. (9th Cir. 1988) 849 F.2d 1194, 1196

Veterans' disability benefits are neither claimed nor paid pursuant to Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, workers' compensation law, or Jones Act former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 688, now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104, and thus are not included within "credit doctrine" as codified in 33 U.S.C.S. § 903(e) (providing that amounts paid to employee for same injury, disability, or death under any other workers' compensation law or Jones Act must be credited against any liability under LHWCA). Todd Shipyards Corp. v. Director, Office of Workers' Comp. Programs (9th Cir. 1988) 848

Because statutory scheme of Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act and regulations clearly contemplate that Secretary or his or her delegate shall participate as matter of course in review proceedings under 33 U.S.C.S. § 921(c), Director of Office of Workers' Compensation Programs should be named in those proceedings as respondent, whether or not he or she supports order of Benefits Review Board. Goldsmith v. Director, Office of Workers' Compensation Programs (9th Cir. 1988) 838 F.2d 1079, 1080

Under 33 U.S.C.S. § 921(b)(3), Benefits Review Board reviews administrative law judge's findings of fact for support by substantial evidence in record as a whole, and court reviews board's decisions for adherence to statutory standard governing review of facts and errors of law. Goldsmith v. Director, Office of Workers Compensation Programs (9th Cir. 1988) 838 F.2d 1079, 1080-1081

Diver working on nonnavigable lake that does not constitute "situs" under 33 U.S.C.S. § 903(a) was not within coverage of LHWCA. Williams v. Director, Office of Workers' Comp. Programs (9th Cir. 1987) 825 F.2d 246, 247

Injured longshoreman's action against shipowners based on theory that ship was negligently designed was foreclosed by LHWCA since generalized conclusions in complaint about causation constituted alternative way of saying vessel was unseaworthy, and under 29 U.S.C.S. § 905, longshoreman's right to sue ship for unseaworthiness was abolished. Bilderbeck v. World Wide Shipping Agency (9th Cir. 1985) 776 F.2d 817, 818-819

Admiralty jurisdiction was conferred on suit brought by two longshoremen injured while loading car onto ramp of ship, thereby satisfying requirement of maritime locality and traditional maritime services or activities in furtherance of commerce. Solano v. Beilby (9th Cir. 1985) 761 F.2d 1369, 1370-1372

Primary responsibility for maintaining safe condition during cargo operations rests on stevedore; exception to stevedore's primary responsibility arises when shipowner (1) has actual or constructive knowledge of dangerous condition, (2) knows that longshoremen are continuing to work despite existence of unreasonable risk of harm, and (3) could not reasonably expect that stevedore would remedy situation. Taylor v. Moram Agencies (9th Cir. 1984) 739 F.2d 1384, 1387-1388

Shipowner who has turned over safe vessel and equipment has right to rely on stevedore to avoid exposing longshoremen to hazards of cargo operation; shipowner who is actively involved in cargo operation or who fails to exercise due care to avoid exposing longshoremen to hazards in area or from equipment under vessel's active control is exposed to liability. Taylor v. Moram Agencies (9th Cir. 1984) 739 F.2d 1384, 1386-1387

1972 amendments to Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act eliminated action for unseaworthiness by both private and public longshoremen. Normile v. Maritime Co. of Philippines (9th Cir. 1981) 643 F.2d 1380, 1382

Vessel has duty to protect longshoremen against concealed dangers created by foreign stevedore that the vessel could, in the exercise of reasonable care, have corrected or warned of. Turner v. Japan Lines, Ltd. (9th Cir. 1981) 651 F.2d 1300, 1304 , modified on other grounds, (9th Cir. 1983) 702 F.2d 752

Time charterer was not liable to longshoreman who was injured while working in hold of vessel, when charter-party contract placed responsibility for maintenance and repair of deck gratings on vessel owner; charterer's right to inspect deck gratings did not create agency as to their maintenance. Torres v. Cool Carriers A.B. (1993) 26 Cal. App. 4th 900, 907, 31 Cal. Rptr. 2d 790

Employer possessed subrogation right to reimbursement from worker's net recovery from third party for full amount of compensation benefits already paid under LHWCA; employer was permitted to exercise right by intervening in worker's lawsuit and asserting compensation lien that attaches to funds obtained by worker either by settlement or by judgment. National Metal & Steel Corp. v. Colby Crane & Mfg. Co. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1111, 1117, 246 Cal. Rptr. 435

By permitting worker's employer to file complaint in intervention against them, defendants in intervention did not agree to permit employer to recover automatically from them amounts paid in compensation benefits to worker's widow; agreement was limited to permitting employer to attempt to prove defendants' liability to worker and, if able to do so, to then recover amount of benefits paid to worker's widow. National Metal & Steel Corp. v. Colby Crane & Mfg. Co. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1111, 1119-1120, 246 Cal. Rptr. 435

In action by stevedore against shipowner to recover damages for personal injuries incurred during unloading operation, contentions pertaining to questions of fact, such as defendant's knowledge of defective conditions and proximate cause, were triable issues precluding summary judgment for defendant. Dugas v. Brewer & Co. (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 203, 210-213, 211 Cal. Rptr. 573

Shipowner is not liable to longshoreworkers for injuries caused by dangers unknown to owner and about which owner had no duty to become informed; but shipowner has duty to intervene and eliminate or neutralize hazard if owner knew of defect and knew that stevedore was continuing to use it. Dugas v. Brewer & Co. (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 203, 210, 211 Cal. Rptr. 573

Exclusiveness of liability provision of LHWCA precludes actions for indemnity or contribution against employer based on allegations of negligence by tortfeasors when employer has paid death benefits under LHWCA to ship repairman's survivors. Graco, Inc. v. Colberg, Inc. (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 322, 329-333, 208 Cal. Rptr. 465

Longshoremen are precluded from suing vessel under Veh. Code § 17154, which provides for vicarious liability of motor vehicle bailee, since 33 U.S.C.S. § 905(b) provides longshoreman's exclusive remedy and eliminates vicarious liability of vessel. Stance v. Jackson (1984) 155 Cal. App. 3d 838, 840-844, 202 Cal. Rptr. 480

Section 905 of Longshoremen's and Harbor Worker's Act (pertaining to when employer not liable to vessel for injury to worker) is applicable only between vessel and stevedore, not between stevedore and wharf owner. Crescent Wharf & Warehouse Co. v. City of Los Angeles (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 979, 982-983, 184 Cal. Rptr. 901

Longshoreman's action for injuries was barred by laches when cause of action arose more than three years prior to enactment of statute of limitations for maritime torts [former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 763a, now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30106]; trial court properly applyied one-year limitation period for negligence actions under former Code Civ. Proc. § 340(3) [now see Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1 (two-year limitations period)], rather than three-year period under Jones Act former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 688, now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104. Ponce v. Graceous Navigation, Inc. (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 823, 827-829, 179 Cal. Rptr. 164

Shipowner sued by stevedore's employee, who was injured while working on vessel, was unable to demand indemnity from stevedore employer, who is liable to employee under 33 U.S.C.S. § 905, because elimination from statute of doctrine of unseaworthiness precludes any reliance on warranty of workmanlike performance. IT Corp. v. Superior Court (1978) 83 Cal. App. 3d 443, 451, 147 Cal. Rptr. 828 ; see also Davis v. Chas. Kurz & Co., Inc. (9th Cir. 1973) 483 F.2d 184, 186-188

Judicially created rule that shipowner can be held liable for damages not due to longshoreman's own negligence was not changed by 1972 amendments to 33 U.S.C.S. § 905 (Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act) Edmonds v. Compagnie Generale Transatlantique (1979) 443 U.S. 256, 263-264, 99 S. Ct. 2753, 61 L. Ed. 2d 521

"Checker" and temporary laborer on stevedoring gang were both covered by Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act. Northeast Marine Terminal Co. v. Caputo (1977) 432 U.S. 249, 271, 273, 97 S. Ct. 2348, 53 L. Ed.

33 U.S.C.S. § 922 applies only to Deputy Commissioner's power to modify orders previously entered by him or her. Intercounty Constr. Corp. v. Walter (1975) 422 U.S. 1, 10-12, 95 S. Ct. 2016, 44 L. Ed. 2d 643

[4] Loss of Consortium

When pattern before injury was that seaman would go on two- or three-month fishing trips with two- or three-week intervals between trips, failure to award seaman's spouse damages for loss of consortium was not error; evidence was sufficient to support finding that there was no net loss of society, comfort, and conpanionship. Da Silva v. Pacific King, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1, 12, 240 Cal. Rptr. 395

[5] Maintenance and Cure

Shipowner's duty to furnish maintenance and cure continues from date seaman leaves ship to date when medical diagnosis is made that injury was permanent immediately after seaman's accident and therefore incurable. Vella v. Ford Motor Co. (1975) 421 U.S. 1, 5, 95 S. Ct. 1381, 43 L. Ed. 2d 682

Maintenance and cure is obligation of shipowner to care for seaman injured during course of maritime employment; attorney's fees are allowed only when failure to provide maintenance and cure was arbitrary, recalcitrant, or unreasonable. Kopczynski v. Jacqueline (9th Cir. 1984) 742 F.2d 555, 559

To be entitled to maintenance and cure, seaman is only required to show injury or illness while in service as seaman without willful misbehavior on his or her part; negligence of employer or unseaworthiness of vessel is not required to be established. Da Silva v. Pacific King, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1, 11, 240 Cal. Rptr. 395

Instruction that maintenance rate was $12 per day, which was amount established by collective bargaining agreement covering plaintiff and defendant, ws proper. Da Silva v. Pacific King, Inc. (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1, 8-9, 240 Cal. Rptr. 395

§ 522.113 Decisions

[1] Collection of Freight

Shipowner's lien is waived without express words to that effect when agreement contains stipulations inconsistent with exercise of the right. Bird of Paradise v. Heyneman (1867) 72 U.S. 545, 554-558, 18 L. Ed. 662

Lien for freight and demurrage arises and exists by force of law unless expressly waived by charter party. Atlantic Richfield Co. v. Good Hope Refineries (5th Cir. 1979) 604 F.2d 865, 872

Shipowner's lien for freight is discharged by unconditional delivery of cargo. Beverly Hills Nat'l Bank & Trust Co. v. Compania de Navegacione Almirante S.A. (9th Cir. 1971) 437 F.2d 301, 303, 304 ; Eastern Transp. Co. v. United States (2d Cir. 1947) 159 F.2d 349, 351

Partial delivery of cargo does not defeat lien on remainder for entire freight. Frothingham v. Jenkins (1850) 1 Cal. 42, 43, 44

[2] Collisions

Mutual contribution to fault by two or more vessels requires allocation of damages among the parties in proportion to comparative degree of their fault. United States v. Reliable Transfer Co. (1975) 421 U.S. 397, 411, 95 S. Ct. 1708, 44 L. Ed. 2d 251

Violation of statutory rule intended to prevent collisions requires vessel to show its violation could not have been a contributing cause of collision. Pennsylvania v. Troop (1874) 86 U.S. 125, 136, 22 L. Ed. 148

Pennsylvania burden is discharged by clear and convincing showing of no proximate cause, and not by stricter beyond-a-reasonable-doubt test. Trinidad Corp. v. S.S. Keiyoh Maru (9th Cir. 1988) 845 F.2d 818, 825

Evidence of industry custom is usable to support finding of negligence in collisions at sea when it does not completely contradict statutory rule of navigation. Stevens v. F/V Bonnie Doon (9th Cir. 1981) 655 F.2d 206, 208

Pennsylvania rule regarding burden of proof on vessels in violation of navigational statutes is applicable in post-Reliable case. Moran Towing & Transp. Co. v. New York City (2d Cir. 1980) 620 F.2d 356, 358

Pennsylvania rule was overruled only in so far as Reliable case abolished Mutual Fault-Equal Contribution Rule and substituted new rule requiring allocation of liability proportionately to comparative degree of fault. Tug Ocean Prince, Inc. v. United States (2d Cir. 1978) 584 F.2d 1151, 1160

Allocation of fault in collision case is question of fact subject to clearly erroneous test on appellate review. Getty Oil Co. v. S.S. Ponce De Leon (2d Cir. 1977) 555 F.2d 328, 334

Reliable rule of equitable division of damages as not applicable in cargo damage case when carrier unable to allocate fault. Vana Trading Co. v. S.S. "Mette Skou" (2d Cir. 1977) 556 F.2d 100, 106 (carrier must bear entire loss)

Reliable rule is not applicable when one party solely responsible for loss (as opposed to mutual fault). Cliff, Jr., Inc. v. M.V. Captain Will (5th Cir. 1976) 529 F.2d 1169

Pennsylvania rule is not applicable when vessel has committed no statutory violation. United States v. Joyce (9th Cir. 1975) 511 F.2d 1127, 1130

Presumption of negligence on part of moving vessel arises when moored and stationary vessel struck. Pacific Tow Boat Co. v. States Marine Corp. of Del. (9th Cir. 1960) 276 F.2d 745, 750

All vessels-parties bear burden of proving that individual fault could not have been one of causes of collision. States S.S. Co. v. Permanente S.S. Corp. (9th Cir. 1956) 231 F.2d 82, 88 s

City and shipowner were jointly and severally liable to third party for negligence of pilot who was furnished by city at shipowner's request under doctrine of respondeat superior. Societa Per Azioni De Navigazione Italia v. City of Los Angeles (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 446, 461-462, 183 Cal. Rptr. 51, 645 P.2d 102

City's port tariff ordinance allowing city to escape respondeat superior liability for negligence of harbor pilots and to secure full indemnification from shipowners was void because in conflict with Tort Claims Act (Gov. Code §§ 810-996.6). Societa Per Azioni De Navigazione Italia v. City of Los Angeles (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 446, 462-465, 183 Cal. Rptr. 51, 645 P.2d 102

[3] Partitioning Ownership Interests in Vessels

State courts are free to follow state partition laws. Madruga v. Superior Court (1952) 40 Cal. 2d 65, 251 P.2d 1 , aff'd, (1954) 346 U.S. 556, 74 S. Ct. 298, 98 L. Ed. 290 (lower court decision not affirmed insofar as expressed federal policy of allowing actions by majority owners only)

[4] Damages From Towage

Contracts relieving tugs from all liability for negligence, including attempts to make pilots servants (employees) of the tow, were invalid. Bisso v. Inland Waterways Corp. (1955) 349 U.S. 85, 75 S. Ct. 629, 99 L. Ed. 911

Drifting of unmanned barge shortly after moored on delivery by tug presumptively established fault by tug in its duty to properly moor and shifted duty to produce evidence showing exercise of due care. Pasco Mktg., Inc. v. Taylor Towing Serv., Inc. (8th Cir. 1977) 554 F.2d 808, 811

All Pac. Trading v. Vessel M/V Hanjin Yosu (9th Cir. 1993) 7 F.3d 1427, 1433*

Claim against terminal operator for damage to cargo while in storage awaiting shipment was governed by state law rather than admiralty law; booking of passage of cargo on ship, followed by turning over of cargo to terminal operator for storage pending shipment, created bailment between cargo owner and terminal operator under California law; Civ Code § 1840 limited amount of damages recoverable for negligence by depository or bailor to declared value of cargo. *Whitcombe v. In action arising from cargo damaged at sea, assertion of defense under Carriage of Goods by Sea Act former 46 U.S.C.S. app. § 1300 et seq., now 46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note did not implicitly raise issue of misrepresentation in bill of lading. Contact Lumber Co. v. Vessel Sammi Aurora (9th Cir. 1990) 903 F.2d 1244, 1246

Co. v. Vessel Gladiolus (9th Cir. 1985) 762 F.2d 1364, 1367*

[3] Actions to Enforce Maritime Liens

California statute imposing mandatory pilotage fees on registered vessels entering and leaving San Francisco Bay was valid regulation of commerce in absence of federal enactment pertaining to registered ships. Anderson v. Pacific Coast S.S. Co. (1912) 225 U.S. 187, 202, 32 S. Ct. 626, 56 L. Ed. 1047

Ownership of vessel by defendant was prerequisite to attachment, even though maritime lien may issue without ownership; "lease" was security instrument rather than true lease, for purposes of establishing "ownership" giving rise to attachment rights, when "lessor" does not have reversionary ownership interest in vessel. Interpool Ltd. v. Char Yigh Marine (Panama) S.A. (9th Cir. 1989) 890 F.2d 1453, 1460

Courts exercising admiralty jurisdiction have power to apply doctrine of equitable subordination to resolve priority disputes under former 46 U.S.C.S. §§ 951, 953 [now see 46 U.S.C.S. §§ 31301(5), (6), 31325, 31326]; equitable subordination requires that (1) claimant have engaged in inequitable conduct, (2) misconduct have resulted in injury to competing claimants or unfair advantage to claimant, and (3) subordination is not inconsistent with federal law. Wardley Int'l Bank, Inc. v. Nasipit Bay Vessel (9th Cir. 1988) 841 F.2d 259, 263

Preferred ship mortgage enjoys priority over all other claims against vessel except certain maritime liens and fees and costs imposed by court; preferred mortgage on foreign vessel is also subordinate to maritime liens for repairs, supplies, towage, use of drydock or marine railway, or other necessaries performed or supplied in United States. United States v. Pacific Far E. Lines, Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 809 F.2d 1435, 1438 ; Mobil Sales & Supply Corp. v. Panamax Venus (9th Cir. 1986) 804 F.2d 541, 542

In Ninth Circuit, grant of maritime lien under former 46 U.S.C.S. § 971 [now see 46 U.S.C.S. § 31342] requires that person claiming lien (1) have furnished repairs, supplies, or other necessaries (2) to any vessel (3) on order of vessel's owner or of person authorized by owner; Ninth Circuit has adopted narrow construction of "furnishing" requirement. Foss Launch & Tug Co. v. Char Ching Shipping U.S.A. (9th Cir. 1987) 808 F.2d 697, 699, 701-703

In action to enforce maritime lien as security for recovery of damages based on seamen's claim against vessels for aggregate amount of deferred wages and wage penalties, Congressional retroactive amendment of 46 U.S.C.S. § 10504 extinguished and prevented execution on seamen's lien for wage penalties. Aguirre v. S.S. Sohio Intrepid (9th Cir. 1986) 801 F.2d 1185, 1190

Under statutory presumption in favor of materialmen under former Federal Maritime Lien Act [now see 46 U.S.C.S. §§ 31305, 31341 et seq.], subcontractor who supplied steel to vessel was entitled to lien if he or she relied on vessel for repayment rather than on primary contractor. Farwest Steel Corp. v. Barge Sea-Span 241 (9th Cir. 1985) 769 F.2d 620, 623-624

Salvage claim did not requirie saving by sole efforts of person seeking award of salvage. West Coast Shipping Brokers Corp. v. Ferry "Chuchequero" (5th Cir. 1978) 582 F.2d 959, 960

Seizure of vessel in rem before expiration of grace period for payment by owner waived lien for salvage. Veverica v. Drill Barge Buccaneer No. 7 (5th Cir. 1974) 488 F.2d 880, 884

Contractual salvage gave rise to lien under former Federal Maritime Lien Act [now see 46 U.S.C.S. §§ 31305, 31341 et seq.]. Veverica v. Drill Barge Buccaneer No. 7 (5th Cir. 1974) 488 F.2d 880, 883

Stevedore's lien against freights of vessel extends to freights that vessel expects to earn during particular voyage for which services rendered. Schirmer Stevedoring Co., Ltd. v. Seaboard Stevedoring Corp. (9th Cir. 1962) 306 F.2d 188, 192

[4] Marshal's Costs

28 U.S.C.S. § 1921 prohibits federal magistrate in admiralty foreclosure action from precluding federal marshal from selling vessel at foreclosure sale simply to avoid payment of marshal's fee for conducting sale. Bank of Am. v. M/V Executive (9th Cir. 1986) 797 F.2d 772, 774

[5] Tariff Freight Charges

Private cause of action by carrier against shipper to collect tariff freight charges is impliedly provided for by former Shipping Act of 1916 [now see 46 U.S.C.S. § 40101 et seq.]. Sea-Land Serv., Inc. v. Murrey & Son's Co. Inc. (9th Cir. 1987) 824 F.2d 740, 741 n.1, 742-744

[2] Use of Form

This complaint may be used for an action in federal district court by a shipowner or charterer seeking limitation of liability for claims surrounding a maritime accident or disaster. The complaint must be filed in a United States district court [46 U.S.C.S. § 30511(a)]. In addition, the shipowner may assert the federal limitation of liability statute as a defense in state court proceedings, but usually all claims arising from an incident cannot be settled satisfactorily by defending in state court [see Providence & N.Y. S.S. Co. v. Hill Mfg. Co. (1883) 109 U.S. 578, 594-595, 3 S. Ct. 379, 27 L. Ed. 1038] .

[3] Venue

The complaint must be filed in any district in which the vessel has been attached or arrested to answer for any claim for which plaintiff seeks limitation of liability. If the vessel has not been attached or arrested, the complaint may be filed in any district in which the owner has been sued with respect to a claim. When there has been neither attachment of the vessel nor a suit against the owner, the action may be instituted in the district where the vessel is located. The complaint may be filed in any district if no suit has been filed and the vessel is not located within any district [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule F(9)].

[4] Allegations

[a] Facts and Status (Paragraphs 2-8); Transfers and Liens (Paragraphs 10-12)

Paragraphs 2-8 are required by Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule F(2). Paragraphs 10-12 are mandated by the same rule when the plaintiff elects to transfer its interest in the vessel to a trustee instead of depositing a sum equal to the value of the vessel [see 46 U.S.C.S. § 30511(b)(2)].

A complaint in federal court must contain a short and plain statement of the court's jurisdictional base [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a)]. If a claim has another ground for federal jurisdiction, the complaint may use the language in brackets in Paragraph 1 to assure application of civil rules pertaining only to admiralty cases [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 9(h)].

[5] Notice to Claimants

After the complaint is filed and security posted, the court must issue notice to all persons asserting claims with respect to which the complaint seeks limitation, admonishing them to file their claims with the court clerk and to serve a copy on plaintiff's attorney on or before the date named in the notice. The date fixed in the notice must not be less than 30 days after issuance, but for cause shown the court may enlarge the time for filing claims [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule F(4)].

The notice must also be published in such newspaper or newspapers as the court may direct once a week for four successive weeks prior to the date fixed for filing claims. Not later than the day of second publication, the plaintiff must mail a copy of the notice to every person known to have made any claim against the vessel or the plaintiff [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule F(4)]. For an example of the required notice for publication, see § 522.151.

[6] Verification

Verification of a complaint for limitation of liability is not required [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 11(a)]. A verified complaint, however, may be substituted for an affidavit as the basis for granting a preliminary injunction [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 65].

An _____ [application and verified complaint or affidavit and complaint] having been filed on _____ [date], by the plaintiff as the owner of the American merchant vessel, _____ [name], claiming limitation of liability in connection with the _____ [describe event causing damage, loss, or injury, e.g., grounding] of the vessel at _____ [specify place of event] on _____ [date], and plaintiff having deposited approved security for the benefit of claimants, and having given security for costs; and

1. The claimant, _____ [name], is enjoined from further prosecution of the action in the _____ [name and district or county of court], entitled _____ vs. _____;

3. Notice of this injunction will be given to claimant, _____ [name], by serving a copy on his/her attorney.

[2] Use of Form

This injunction may be obtained by the plaintiff to enjoin further prosecution of any action or proceeding with respect to a claim subject to limitation [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule F(3)]. Supplemental Rule F(3) provides only that the court "shall enjoin" another action on application of the plaintiff. The general Federal Rules of Civil Procedure also apply, except to the extent that they are inconsistent with these Supplemental Rules [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule A]. Thus, a verified complaint can support the issuance of a preliminary injunction [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 65].

[2] Source of Form

This form is, in part, modeled after Official Federal Forms 2(d) (allegations of jurisdiction), 9 (negligence), 14 (negligence under FELA), and 15 (complaint under Jones Act), exemplar forms officially prepared to accompany the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure [see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 84 (official forms sufficient under the rules); see also Moore's Federal Rules Pamphlets (Matthew Bender)].

[3] Use of Form

The complaint may be used in a federal district court when a seaman is suing for both personal injuries resulting both from the shipowner's negligence and from the unseaworthiness of the vessel. The same type of complaint for a California state court is illustrated by the form in § 522.171, which may be consulted for alternatives in pleading, including more specific damages allegations and a prayer for relief. For discussion of claims for injury or death of seamen, see § 522.31.

[4] Jurisdiction

See § 522.11 for a discussion of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction in the federal courts.

[5] Pleading Admiralty Claims in Federal Courts

Cases cognizable in admiralty are governed under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure in the same manner as other cases except when special procedures have been provided [see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 1]. A pleading that sets forth a claim for relief must contain a short and plain statement of the grounds of jurisdiction, a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief, and a demand for judgment [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a)].

When a claim for relief within the admiralty and maritime jurisdiction is also within the United States District Court jurisdiction on some other ground, it may contain a statement identifying the claim as an admiralty or maritime claim for the purposes of Fed. R. Civ. P., Rules 14(c) (certain third-party practice), 38(e) (unavailability of trial by jury), 82 (not treated as "civil action" for purposes of venue), and the Supplemental Rules for Certain Admiralty and Maritime Claims.

If the claim is cognizable only in admiralty, it is an admiralty or maritime claim for those purposes whether so identified or not [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 9(h)]. Typically, a party may join against an opposing party, either as independent or as alternate claims, as many claims as he or she may have, including maritime claims [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 18(a); see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(e)(2)].

Because an action under the Jones Act clearly falls within a federal court's admiralty jurisdiction, the additional bracketed information regarding Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 9(h) need not be included in Paragraph 1 of the complaint if the complaint is based only on the Jones Act. If a claim has another ground for federal jurisdiction, the complaint may use the language in brackets to assure application of civil rules pertaining only to admiralty cases [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 9(h)].

[6] Costs

In all United States courts, seamen may institute and prosecute suits and appeals in their own names and for their own benefit for wages or salvage or the enforcement of laws enacted for their health or safety without prepaying fees or costs or furnishing security therefore [28 U.S.C.S. § 1916]. For discussion of the conflict between this provision and the statute mandating payment of marshal's fees [28 U.S.C.S. § 1921], see § 522.72[5].

[7] Demand for Jury Trial

Any party in federal court may demand a jury trial of any issue triable by jury by serving a written demand on the other parties any time after the commencement of the action but not later than 10 days after the service of the last pleading directed to that issue. The demand may be indorsed on a pleading of the party [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 38(c)].

The Jones Act specifically provides for jury trial on demand of the seaman/plaintiff [46 U.S.C.S. § 30104]. However, the defendant may not demand a jury trial on the claim [Craig v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (9th Cir. 1994) 19 F.3d 472, 476 ; see Fed. Rules Civ. Proc., Rule 38(e) (rules pertaining to jury trial otherwise may not be construed to create right to trial by jury of issues in admiralty or maritime claim); see also Fed. Rules Civ. Proc., Rule 9(h)].

If a federal court has an independent basis of jurisdiction over cases involving admiralty claims, such as diversity of citizenship, both the defendant and the plaintiff have a right to demand a jury trial under the Seventh Amendment of the United States Constitution, so long as the suit is one that could traditionally have been brought at common law [Craig v. Atlantic Richfield Co. (9th Cir. 1994) 19 F.3d 472, 476] .

A jury may be demanded by either party to a case of contract or tort in admiralty or maritime jurisdiction involving a vessel of substantial size engaged in traffic along the coasts or interior lakes and waters [see 28 U.S.C.S. § 1873].

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in a California court when a seaman is suing for personal injuries resulting from the shipowner's negligence under the federal Jones Act [see 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104]. It is joined with a second cause of action for unseaworthiness, a tort arising out of the general maritime law that is frequently coupled with the negligence count. There may, however, be instances in which a recovery would more easily fit under the doctrine of negligence or of unseaworthiness, and certain instances in which it might be had under one but not the other concept. A form for bringing the same types of causes of action in a federal court is set out in § 522.170.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges in the first cause of action: (1) identity and capacity of the defendant (Paragraph 1); (2) fictitious names of any unknown defendants (Paragraph 2); (3) description of the maritime nature of the setting of the injuries on the defendant's vessel, with possible specification of California contacts (Paragraph 3) [see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal]; (4) plaintiff's employment as a seaman (Paragraph 4); (5) the defendant's negligence (Paragraph 5); (6) plaintiff's resultant injuries (Paragraph 6); (7) damages to plaintiff (Paragraphs 7-9) [see 46 U.S.C.S. § 30104]; the complaint alleges in the second cause of action: The unseaworthiness of defendant's vessel, resulting in plaintiff's injuries (Paragraph 11) [see Baptiste v. Superior Court (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 87, 99, 164 Cal. Rptr. 789] .

[4] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case in the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[5] Pleading Alternative Cause of Unseaworthiness

It is common and acceptable practice for a plaintiff to plead both the Jones Act and the unseaworthiness doctrine and place both causes of action before the jury, although there is but one recovery. The distinctions between the two remedies have become largely obliterated; after several years of confusion in the courts, the two counts have come to be regarded as inseparable causes [Baptiste v. Superior Court (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 87, 99, 164 Cal. Rptr. 789] . For discussion of the Jones Act and unseaworthiness, see § 522.31.

On or about _____ [date], plaintiff was ordered by the master of the vessel to, and pursuant to such order did, proceed to the office of _____ [stevedoring company], who were the owners and operators of Pier No. _____, in the Port of _____ [specify]; while plaintiff was so proceeding, the _____ [stevedoring company] by and through its agents, servants, and employees, carelessly and negligently _____ [describe negligence, e.g., owned, operated, maintained, and controlled a fork lift on the pier, so that the fork lift was caused to back into and strike plaintiff with great force and violence].

This allegation may be substituted for Paragraph 4 of the form in § 522.170 or Paragraph 5 of the form in § 522.171, if the seaman sues the shipowner under the Jones Act for personal injuries which occurred off the vessel.

Defendant refused and neglected to furnish plaintiff with proper and necessary medical attention or assistance, and plaintiff was unable to obtain medical attention or assistance from any other source during the course of the vessel's voyage from _____ [specify port] to _____ [specify port]. As a proximate result of defendant's failure to so provide a seaworthy vessel, plaintiff's injuries, as described above, were seriously aggravated, and he/she was forced to suffer great pain and inconvenience all to his/her further damage in the sum of $_____.

This allegation may be added to the form in § 522.170 or the form in § 522.171, if the seaman sues the shipowner for personal injuries on the additional ground of unseaworthiness due to failure to furnish adequate medical attention during the voyage [*see Trovatten v. AS A SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE, defendant alleges:

Plaintiff and defendant never entered into a contract of employment, nor in any way created an employer-employee relationship and did not maintain any such relationship during the time of the accident alleged in the complaint. Therefore, defendant is not liable for the alleged damages from plaintiff's _____ [injury or death].

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be used in an answer to a complaint brought by a seaman for personal injuries under the Jones Act or for unseaworthiness. It is for use by a defendant who maintains that a true employment relationship did not exist between the parties. In certain instances this defect to the cause of action may be obvious from the allegations of the complaint, in which event the point should be raised by demurrer [*see Code Civ. [1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)] to Action by Seaman--Nonownership of Vessel by Time Charterer

AS A SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE, defendant alleges:

At the time of the accident alleged in the complaint, defendant _____ [name] was not the owner of _____ [name, nationality, registry number, or other designation of vessel]; there was no demise of the vessel to defendant; defendant was merely the time charterer of the vessel and as such neither possessed, managed, maintained, operated, nor controlled the vessel; and the master, officers, and crew of the vessel were employed by its owners. As a consequence of the foregoing, defendant owed no duty to plaintiff with respect to the matters and things alleged in the complaint [and in each cause of action thereof].

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be used in an answer to a complaint brought by a seaman for personal injuries under the Jones Act or for unseaworthiness. It is for use by a defendant who claims that he or she is not the shipowner but only a time charterer of the vessel in question.

[3] When Charterer Has Liability

Under a demise charter, the charterer is considered as having the duties of an owner in possession and could be held liable to certain maritime employees. A time charterer, in a sense, merely rents cargo space and does not have a corresponding liability. The charter for the particular leasing privileges involved may indicate which type of responsibility is to be imposed. Normally, a demise charter is not present if the owner retains control over manning, navigating, equipping, and maintaining the vessel [see Apodoca v. Schiffahrtsgesellschaft De Vries & Co. (1962) 199 Cal. App. 2d 605, 608-610, 18 Cal. Rptr. 869] . This principle is also recognized under the federal Limitation of Liability Act, which provides that a charterer who mans, supplies, and navigates a vessel at his or her own expense, or by his or her own procurement, is to be deemed to be the owner of that vessel under the act [46 U.S.C.S. § 30501].

[2] Use of Form

This complaint may be used by an employer in an action for personal injuries to an employee longshoreman or harbor worker against a shipowner or other third party responsible for the employee's injuries. With appropriate modifications, it may be used in a claim of relief filed in federal court by such an employer plaintiff.

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges: (1) plaintiff's business as a stevedore, ship builder and repairer, or similar enterprise, and its employment of the employee who was injured (Paragraph 3); (2) plaintiff's engagement to render its services to a particular vessel, and its employment of the injured employee in that operation (Paragraph 4); (3) the negligence of the defendant that led to the injury--if the defendant is the shipowner, alleging the same standard of negligence as is alleged when the employee sues the shipowner [see 33 U.S.C.S. § 905(b); see § 522.171]; otherwise, alleging the negligence of another third party who either rendered services or sold supplies to the vessel or provided like matters to the plaintiff who used them in rendering services to the vessel [see § 522.177]; and in either instance, the resultant injury to plaintiff's employee (Paragraphs 5, 6); and (4) issuance of a compensation order on behalf of the employee and the employee's acceptance of the award and failure to sue defendant, which resulted in an assignment of the employee's claim to the plaintiff employer (Paragraph 7) [see 33 U.S.C.S. § 933; see also § 522.32[6][a]].

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(b)(2)] of Shipowner to Complaint for Injuries by Longshoreman or Harbor Worker or Employer Thereof [33 U.S.C.S. §§ 905(b), 933]--Negligence of Fellow Servants

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

_____ [Plaintiff was employed by defendant to provide _____ (stevedoring or shipbuilding or ship repair) services or an admission to the same effect made earlier in the answer may be substituted for this allegation]. The injury of which plaintiff complains was caused by the negligence of other persons engaged in providing the same services to the vessel as plaintiff was providing, in that _____ [describe fellow servants' fault, e.g., although all stevedores had been strictly cautioned by defendant not to stand on cargo cartons, several of those stevedores working with plaintiff insisted that he/she stand on certain crates in order to accomplish his/her work and caused him/her to do so, as a result of which the injury described in the complaint occurred].

This affirmative defense may be used by a shipowner in an answer to a complaint for personal injuries filed by a longshoreman or harbor worker [see § 522.176], when the basis for defending is the negligence of fellow servants. With appropriate modification, this defense may be used in answer to a claim for relief brought in federal court by a longshoreman or harbor worker against a shipowner for personal injuries.

[3] Defense of Fellow Servants' Negligence

Under the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, when a vessel (including its owners or representatives [see 33 U.S.C.S. § 902(21)]) is sued by a longshoreman or harbor worker for negligence, the vessel may resort to certain defenses denied to the employer. If the plaintiff was employed to perform stevedoring services, the action is not permitted if the injury was caused by the negligence of another stevedore. If the plaintiff was employed to provide shipbuilding, repairing, or breaking services, and the employer was the owner, owner pro hac vice, agent, operator, or charterer of the vessel, no action is permitted directly or indirectly against the employer in any capacity, including that as owner [33 U.S.C.S. § 905(b)].

Defendant thus failed to exercise ordinary care under the circumstances _____ [to have the ship and its equipment in such condition that decedent's employer, as an expert and experienced stevedore, would be able by the exercise of reasonable care to carry on its cargo operations with reasonable safety to persons and property or in not warning decedent's employer of hazards _____ (on the ship or with respect to the ship's equipment) that were known, or should have been known, to defendant in the exercise of reasonable care, and that were likely to be encountered by decedent's employer in the course of its cargo operations, but were not known by such employer and would not be obvious to or anticipated by it as a stevedore reasonably competent in the performance of its work].

[OR, if injury caused by negligence of third party other than shipowner]

9. On or about _____ [date], defendant independently provided _____ [services to the vessel or decedent's employer with certain equipment and supplies with which to render services] consisting of _____ [describe, e.g., a boom for loading and unloading cargo]. [1. This action is instituted under the provisions of Section 30301 of Title 46 of the United States Code Service, commonly known and designated as the Death on the High Seas Act, over which the United States District Court has jurisdiction pursuant to Section 30302 of Title 46 of the United States Code Service. (This is an admiralty or maritime claim within the meaning of Rule 9(h) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.)]

[3. Capacity of plaintiff. See § 522.181, Paragraph 2.]

4. Plaintiff brings this action in admiralty under Section 30302 of Title 46 of the United States Code Service, known as the Death on the High Seas Act, for the exclusive benefit of the decedent's _____ [spouse or parent or child or dependent relative] for the death of the decedent, which was caused by a wrongful act, neglect, or default occurring on the high seas, against the responsible _____ [person or corporation].

[5. Identity of surviving relatives. See § 522.181, Paragraph 4.]

7. Defendant, as a common carrier for hire, agreed to transport the decedent from _____ [specify port] to _____ [specify port]. Pursuant to that agreement decedent became a passenger on the vessel on or about _____ [date].

8. On or about _____ [date], while the vessel was on the high seas _____ days out of _____ [specify port], [at _____ longitude, _____ latitude,] and while decedent was on board the vessel as a passenger, _____ [state facts showing marine disaster or accident, e.g., so far as is known, the vessel met with some disaster at sea as a result of which the vessel was lost or destroyed].

9. As a proximate result of the disaster, decedent was _____ [killed or so seriously injured that he/she died at the time of the disaster or shortly thereafter] [, together with _____ (all the or many) other persons on board the vessel].

[10. A quantity of the wreckage from the vessel was recovered floating on the waters of the _____ Ocean, _____ (at approximately _____ latitude and _____ longitude or _____ miles from _____ (nearest land), or more than three nautical miles from the nearest land) (, including various articles that had been in the possession of decedent). _____ (Neither the body of decedent nor that of any other person on board said vessel at the time of said disaster was recovered or Although various crew members and passengers of the vessel were rescued from the deck and surrounding waters, the body of decedent was not recovered).]

11. The death of decedent was caused proximately by the wrongful acts, neglect, or default of defendant, through its agents, servants, and employees, in causing or permitting the above-mentioned disaster. Such act, neglect, default, or carelessness would have entitled decedent, if he/she had not died, to maintain an action against and to recover damages from defendant in respect thereto.

[12. Dependency of relatives on decedent. See § 522.181, Paragraph 12.]

This complaint may be used in an action by the personal representative of a ship's passenger against the shipowner under the Death on the High Seas Act (DOHSA). This form may be adapted for use by the personal representative of a maritime employee as an alternative to the actions provided for in the forms in §§ 522.181 and 522.182.

The action may be brought in either federal district court or in a California state court, as federal court jurisdiction is concurrent with state jurisdiction to hear DOHSA actions, making available to DOHSA beneficiaries a convenient forum for the decision of their wrongful death claims [46 U.S.C.S. § 30308(a); Offshore Logistics, Inc. v. Tallentire (1986) 477 U.S. 207, 221, 232, 106 S. Ct. 2485, 91 L. Ed. 2d 174] . However, DOHSA preempts state statutes whenever it applies [Offshore Logistics, Inc. v. Tallentire (1986) 477 U.S. 207, 232, 106 S. Ct. 2485, 91 L. Ed. 2d 174] .

If the death did not occur on the high seas but instead occurred within 3 nautical miles from shore, a wrongful death action based on state law may be brought in state court [46 U.S.C.S. § 767; Offshore Logistics, Inc. v. Tallentire (1986) 477 U.S. 207, 221, 106 S. Ct. 2485, 91 L. Ed. 2d 174] .

For discussion of recovery for wrongful death, see § 522.34. For discussion and forms relating to state actions for wrongful death, see Ch. 181, Death and Survival Actions .

[3] Allegations

This complaint alleges: (1) the bringing of the action under the federal Death on the High Seas Act (Paragraph 4); (2) defendant's role as a common carrier of the decedent (Paragraph 7); (3) the ship's disaster at sea (Paragraph 8); (4) the resultant death of the decedent (Paragraph 9); (5) the debris evincing a shipwreck and/or the failure to recover decedent's body (Paragraph 10); and defendant's responsibility for the injury and death (Paragraph 11).

If the form is used to bring an action in federal court, it must allege the court's jurisdiction (Paragraph 1) [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a); see Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 9(h) (allegation of admiralty jurisdiction when action combined with nonadmiralty claims)].

[2] Use of Form

This form of complaint may be used by a shipowner to prosecute an action for breach of contract for freight in state court. Because contracts of affreightment and bills of lading are maritime contracts, the action falls within federal admiralty jurisdiction and can also be brought in federal district court [Intagliata v. Shipowners & Merchs. Towboat Co., Ltd. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 365, 371, 159 P.2d 1] .

Some attorneys prefer to proceed in federal court so that an in personam action based on contract can be combined with an action in rem against the cargo to enforce the shipowner's maritime lien for freight [see § 522.201]. Such a proceeding would fall within the exclusive admiralty jurisdiction of federal courts [Madruga v. Superior Court (1954) 346 U.S. 556, 560-561, 74 S. Ct. 298, 98 L. Ed. 290 ; Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule C].

Whether the action is maintained in state or federal court, the substantive rules of federal maritime law will determine the rights of the parties [Intagliata v. Shipowners & Merchs. Towboat Co., Ltd. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 365, 371, 159 P.2d 1] . State law would apply to fill the gaps in admiralty law, but only to the extent that it did not render changes in the maritime law [Madruga v. Superior Court (1954) 346 U.S. 556, 561, 74 S. Ct. 298, 98 L. Ed. 290] .

[3] Allegations

[a] In General

The complaint alleges (1) defendant's identity and capacity to be sued (Paragraph 1); (2) the existence of unknown defendants, if any (Paragraph 2); (3) the existence of the written contract (Paragraph 3); (4) the performance of all conditions by plaintiff (Paragraphs 4, 5); (5) the breach by defendant (Paragraph 6); and (6) the resulting damage to plaintiff (Paragraph 7) [see Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377 ; Acoustics, Inc. v. Trepte Constr. Co. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 887, 913, 92 Cal. Rptr. 723] . Paragraph 3 of the complaint notes that the parties' contract is written. If it cannot be ascertained from the pleading in contract actions whether the agreement is written or oral, the defendant may object by demurrer or answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g)]. For additional discussion of contract actions, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

[b] Identity and Capacity of Defendants

The complaint alleges an action against a corporate defendant, which may be sued as provided in the Code of Civil Procedure [Corp. Code § 105]. When the defendant is not a natural person, the complaint should allege the defendant's identity as an existing entity against which the court's judgment will operate such as a corporation, a partnership, an unincorporated association, or a governmental agency [see Tanner v. Best (1940) 40 Cal. App. 2d 442, 445, 104 P.2d 1084] . For additional forms of pleading and a discussion of actions against defendants in other capacities, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used .

Conceivably a shipowner involved in a complicated action for freight may need to proceed against defendants who are unknown at the time of filing. The lack of knowledge must be stated in the complaint and the pleading amended on discovery of the defendant's name [Code Civ. Proc. § 474]. For further discussion and appropriate forms, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used (alternative forms of allegations for use under Code Civ. Proc. § 474) and Ch. 21, Amended Supplemental Pleadings

The caption must reflect the fact that a defendant is designated by a fictitious name [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.40]. For appropriate forms of captions, see Ch. 108, Captions and Introductions .

[c] Venue Facts

Paragraph 1 alleges venue in the county where defendant has its principal place of business. Corporations may also be sued in the county where the contract is made or is to be performed or where the obligation or liability arises, or the breach occurs [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.5]. Venue need not be specifically pleaded, although often it is better practice to do so. The defendant always bears the burden of objecting against improper venue [Code Civ. Proc. § 396b]. Venue in actions against unincorporated associations is similar to venue for corporations [Code Civ. Proc. § 395.2].

[d] Specification of Damages

In an action to recover damages, other than for personal injury or wrongful death, the complaint (or cross complaint) must state the amount of damages demanded [Code Civ. Proc. § 425.10(b)].

[4] Recovery of Interest

Federal maritime law differs from state law on the issue of interest on damages for breach of contract. An admiralty court has discretion to award or deny prejudgment interest [The Albert Dumois (1900) 177 U.S. 240, 254, 20 S. Ct. 595, 44 L. Ed. 751 ; Van Nievelt Goudriaan Co's Stoomvart Maatschappij, N.V. v. Cargo & Tankship Mgmt. Corp. (2d Cir. 1970) 421 F.2d 1183, 1185] . When damages are liquidated and based on breach of contract, the general rule favors allowing interest [Van Nievelt Goudriaan Co's Stoomvart Maatschappij, N.V. v. Cargo & Tankship Mgmt. Corp. (2d Cir. 1970) 421 F.2d 1183, 1185] . An award depends on the circumstances in each case [Gardner v. Calvert (3d Cir. 1958) 253 F.2d 395] .

In California, interest would be recoverable from the date of breach if the damages are certain or capable of being made certain [Civ. Code § 3287(a)]. Damages for unliquidated claims may not include interest for a period earlier than the date an action was filed [Civ. Code § 3287(b); for additional discussion of interest in state court actions, see Ch. 177, Damages].

The circuit courts of appeal differ on the issue of postjudgment interest. Federal statutory law provides for the right to interest in civil cases at a rate allowed by state law from the date of entry of the judgment [28 U.S.C.S. § 1961]. In at least two circuits, courts have ruled that this rule applies in admiralty cases as well as in traditional civil litigation [Gele v. Wilson (5th Cir. 1980) 616 F.2d 146, 148 ; Kotsopoulos v. Asturia Shipping Co., S.A. (2d Cir. 1972) 467 F.2d 91, 95] . These cases were decided after the admiralty and civil procedure rules merged in 1966. Previously, the Third Circuit ruled that the federal statute's use of a state's interest rate did not apply in admiralty cases because Congress had not created the same provision for maritime matters [Gardner v. Calvert (3d Cir. 1958) 253 F.2d 395, 402-403] .

Plaintiffs filing in state court on a maritime contract in which the damages are liquidated should request interest from the date of breach. Although the issue is not absolutely settled, the cases provide adequate grounds for the request.

[5] Verification

The form of verification shown here complies with the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 446 and 2015.5. Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case in the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial even in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[Verification. See § 522.150.]

CAUTION:
The complaint in an action in rem must be verified on oath or solemn affirmation [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule C(2)].

This form of complaint may be used for an action in rem and in personam in federal district court. Federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction over admiralty in rem actions against cargo, vessels, or other property [Madruga v. Superior Court (1954) 346 U.S. 556, 560-561, 74 S. Ct. 298, 98 L. Ed. 290] . Attorneys who wish to rely on the shipowner's maritime lien against the cargo as the basis of an action for freight must therefore proceed in federal court. The existence of an in rem cause of action does not, however, deprive a party of the alternative right to an action in personam based on the contract or debt [see, e.g., F.T. Rounds v. Cloverport Foundry & Mach. Co. (1915) 237 U.S. 303, 307-308, 35 S. Ct. 596, 59 L. Ed. 966 ; Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule C(1)]. Frequently, attorneys combine actions in rem and in personam in a federal court proceeding, instead of choosing between one or the other. For additional discussion of admiralty jurisdiction and the choice of state or federal forum, see Ch. 100, Boats and Boating .

A person proceeding in rem may alternatively proceed in personam with process of maritime attachment and garnishment [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule C(1)]. Essentially the same provisions apply to both types of action. Process of attachment cannot be used against a defendant's goods or property, however, unless the defendant cannot be found within the district [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule B(1)].

[3] Venue

An action in rem must be filed in the district where the property that is the subject of the action is located [see Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rules C(2), E(3)(a)].

[4] Allegations

[a] In General

A complaint in rem must state the circumstances from which the claim arises with such particularity that the defendant or claimant will be able, without moving for a more definite statement, to commence an investigation of the facts and to frame a responsive pleading [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(2)].

A complaint in federal court must contain a short and plain statement of the court's jurisdictional base [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 8(a)]. Because an in rem action falls within exclusive admiralty jurisdiction, the paragraph's additional, bracketed information regarding Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 9(h), need not be included. If a claim has another ground for federal jurisdiction, the complaint may use the language in brackets to assure application of civil rules pertaining only to admiralty cases [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 9(h)]. For additional discussion, see § 522.170.

[c] Identification and Capacity of Parties (Paragraphs 2, 3)

In federal court, it is not necessary to state the capacity of a party to sue or be sued, except to the extent required to show the court's jurisdiction [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 9(a)]. The complaint alleges plaintiff's ownership of the vessel to show plaintiff's right to the maritime lien on the cargo.

The capacity of a corporation to sue or be sued depends on the law under which it was organized [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 17(b)]. Calfornia authorizes corporations to sue and be sued in accordance with the Code of Civil Procedure [Corp. Code § 105].

Attorneys should be very cautious about naming fictitious or unknown defendants in a federal court complaint. The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure neither authorize nor disapprove of such practice, but the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled against the procedure on several occasions [Craig v. United States (9th Cir. 1969) 413 F.2d 854, 856-857 ; Sigurdson v. Del Guercio (9th Cir. 1956) 241 F.2d 480, 482] . The court's primary objection has been the difficulty of determining the defendants' residences for purposes of jurisdiction in diversity cases [Molnar v. National Broad. Co. (9th Cir. 1956) 231 F.2d 684, 685-687] . Alleging "Doe" defendants has also been considered "dangerous" in federal question and admiralty cases [Sigurdson v. Del Guercio (9th Cir. 1956) 241 F.2d 480, 482 ; California Stevedore & Ballast Co. v. Pan-Atlantic S.S. Corp. (9th Cir. 1961) 291 F.2d 252, 253 (admiralty case in which court alludes to obstacles in naming fictitious defendants)]. On the other hand, one district court approved of the practice in admiralty suits because of the traditionally liberal pleading rules [Phillips v. United States (N.D. Cal. 1955) 127 F. Supp. 912, 914-916] .

In California state courts, plaintiffs are allowed to sue defendants who are unknown at the time of filing [Code Civ. Proc. § 474]. The state's permissive rule has not made federal courts more inclined to approve the procedure [Molnar v. National Broad. Co. (9th Cir. 1956) 231 F.2d 684, 685-687] . For additional discussion of the California rule, see § 522.200.

[e] Presence of Property Within Judicial District (Paragraph 5)

The complaint for an action in rem must state that the property being sued is located within the district or will be there during the pendency of the action [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule C(2)].

This form of complaint also states that the cargo will be delivered within the jurisdiction of the court to a bailee. Usually in actions against cargo for freight, the plaintiff will already maintain possession or some form of control over the goods, thereby facilitating execution of process on the property. For a discussion of process, see §§ 522.201[5], 522.201[6], and 522.202 -522.205.

[f] Description of Goods (Paragraph 6)

The complaint in an action in rem must describe the property that is the subject of the action with reasonable particularity [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule C(2)]. The complaint should state what the property is and where it can be found, such as "1,000 bushels of wheat as cargo of The Magnate moored at pier 87 in Oakland, California."

[g] Breach of Contract for Freight

Paragraphs 6, 7, and 8 contain the allegations essential in a breach of contract action: (1) existence of the written contract; (2) performance of all the conditions by plaintiff; (3) the breach by defendant; and (4) damage to the plaintiff [see Reichert v. General Ins. Co. (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 822, 830, 69 Cal. Rptr. 321, 442 P.2d 377 ; Acoustics, Inc. v. Trepte Constr. Co. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 887, 913, 92 Cal. Rptr. 723] .

[h] Existence of Maritime Lien (Paragraph 9)

An action in rem may be brought to enforce any maritime lien [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule C(1)]. The shipowner's lien against the cargo for freight arises when the owner takes possession for transportation unless it is excluded by the parties' agreement. Usually the bill of lading or contract of affreightment will contain a provision recognizing the lien and possibly preserving its existence beyond delivery if payment is not due until a later time [Bird of Paradise v. Heyneman (1867) 72 U.S. 545, 554-558, 18 L. Ed. 662] .

[5] Process Against Cargo

The prayer requests process against the defendant cargo and an in personam judgment against the individual defendant or defendants based on breach of contract.

The verified complaint and any supporting papers shall be reviewed by the court and, if the conditions for an action in rem appear to exist, an order so stating and authorizing a warrant for the arrest of the property that is the subject of the action shall issue and be delivered to the clerk who shall prepare the warrant and deliver it to the marshal for service. If the property that is the subject of the action consists in whole or in part of freight, or the proceeds of property sold, or other intangible property, the clerk shall issue a summons directing any person having control of the funds to show cause why they should not be paid into court to abide the judgment. Supplemental process enforcing the court's order may be issued by the clerk on application without further order of the court. If the plaintiff or the plaintiff's attorney certifies that exigent circumstances make review by the court impracticable, the clerk shall issue a summons and warrant for the arrest and the plaintiff shall have the burden on a post-arrest hearing under Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(4)(f) (relating to procedure for release from arrest or attachment) to show that exigent circumstances existed [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule C(3)]. Process in rem can be served only within the judicial district [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(3)(a)]. The marshal is required to execute process against tangible property by taking it into possession for safe custody, unless such action would be impracticable [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(4)(b)]. In such case, a copy of the process must be affixed to the property in a conspicuous place and a copy of the complaint and process left with the person having possession or his or her agent [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(4)(b)].

In actual practice, attorneys may be required to prepare and submit a warrant for arrest of the property [see § 522.202]. Service may be effected by any person, not a party, who is at least 18 years of age. At the request of the plaintiff, however, the court may direct that service be effected by a United States marshal, deputy United States marshal, or other person or officer appointed by the court specially for that purpose. Such an appointment is mandatory when the plaintiff is authorized to proceed in forma pauperis pursuant to 28 U.S.C.S. § 1915 or as a seaman under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1916 [Fed. R. Civ. P., Rule 4(c)(2)]. In some districts, attorneys must obtain service of process by the sheriff or other person authorized to execute process in state court actions, with the marshal's services being available only on court order. The court clerk should be consulted before filing to determine the appropriate local practice. For a form of proof of service, see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[6] Execution or Stay of Process

In an action for freight, the shipowner will usually retain possession of the cargo, turn it over to a bailee for safe keeping, or release it to the shipper in return for some other kind of security. Under these circumstances, execution of process will probably not be difficult. The plaintiff may want to have the issuance and delivery of process held in abeyance until the parties reach an agreement as to the immediate disposition of the property [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(3)(b)]. The parties may also stipulate to have process stayed or the property released pending resolution of the litigation [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(5)(a)].

After the clerk issues process, execution must be stayed or the property must be released if the defendant gives security in the form of a special bond. A special bond pertains to a specific in rem action and cannot be filed until after process in rem is issued [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(5)(a)]. In contrast, a general bond may be filed with respect to a vessel only, in anticipation of litigation. The defendant need not wait for issuance of process [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(5)(b); see § 522.204[4] regarding general bonds].

The parties may stipulate the amount and nature of the bond or security, or on their inability or refusal to do so, the court will set the terms [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(5)(a)].

Seized property may be released on approval by the marshal of a stipulation or bond signed by the party on whose behalf the property is being detained. Otherwise, that party must obtain a court order, which the clerk may grant as a matter of course on the giving of adequate security under the rules or applicable statute. In either event, all costs and charges for seizing and holding the property must be paid prior to its release [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rules E(4)(e), (5)(c); 28 U.S.C.S. § 1921].

[7] Relief From Arrest

[a] Prompt Hearing

Any person claiming an interest in arrested property shall be entitled to a prompt hearing at which the plaintiff shall be required to show why the arrest should not be vacated or other relief granted consistent with the rules [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(4)(f)].

[b] Immediate Sale of Seized Property

Under certain circumstances the arrested cargo may be sold immediately and the proceeds paid into the registry of the court for disposal [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(9)]. The rule provides for such action under any of the following conditions: (1) if the property is perishable; (2) if the property is liable to deterioration, decay, or injury by being detained pending resolution of the action; (3) if the expense of keeping the property is excessive or disproportionate; or (4) if there is unreasonable delay in securing release of the property [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(9)].

[8] Verification

In an action in rem the complaint must be verified on oath or solemn affirmation [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule C(2)].

[2] Use of Form

This form of stipulation for release of cargo may be used in actions in rem against cargo for freight. The form may be used in conjunction with the form in § 522.201, a federal in rem complaint against cargo for freight.

By stipulation, the parties can stay execution of process and agree for the posting of a bond as security by the defendant. Use of this stipulation in a shipowner's action against cargo will facilitate the proceedings because the marshal will not need to actually serve process on the goods and the defendant can obtain immediate possession from the plaintiff. If the property has already been seized, the parties may stipulate as to its release or the defendant individually may secure the property by posting security [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(5)].

If the property is not released within 10 days after process is executed, the plaintiff must give public notice of the action in a newspaper of general circulation [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule C(4)].

Furthermore, if the parties wait until after the marshal has taken custody of the property before stipulating as to its release, all costs and charges of the court and its officers must be paid prior to the release. Otherwise, release may be obtained by court order (as a matter of course by the clerk) if security for costs is posted [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(5)(c)].

[3] Contents

The form states the elements necessary to bring the property before the court for purposes of the judicial proceeding and to release it to defendant to facilitate commerce. It provides for waiver of execution of process (Paragraph 1), release of the cargo (Paragraph 2), posting of security (Paragraph 3), and the conditioning of security on answering the court's judgment (Paragraph 4) [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(5)(a)]. Finally, the stipulation protects the plaintiff's lien for freight and the defendant's claim to the cargo by noting that the release does not prejudice these rights (Paragraph 5).

CAUTION:
The complaint in an action in rem must be verified on oath or solemn affirmation [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule C(2)].

[2] Use of Form

This complaint may be used for an action in rem and in personam for damages against a vessel and its owner or owners in federal district court. If prosecuted in state court, the action based on a collision could only be brought in personam because of the exclusive federal admiralty jurisdiction over in rem actions [Madruga v. Superior Court (1954) 346 U.S. 556, 560, 561, 74 S. Ct. 298, 98 L. Ed. 290 ; see § 522.200[2]].

This complaint should be used in conjunction with the form in § 522.152, a warrant for arrest of the property being sued. As written, the form in § 522.152 pertains to the arrest of a vessel's cargo. It can be converted for use in an action against a vessel by merely replacing references to "cargo" with the words "vessel, including gear, engine, tackle, apparel, and furniture" or simply "vessel," as appropriate.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges: (1) admiralty jurisdiction (Paragraph 1); (2) identity and capacity of plaintiff and defendant(s) to the extent necessary to show the court's jurisdiction (Paragraphs 2, 3); (3) the existence of unknown defendants, if any (Paragraph 4); (4) the presence or future arrival of the vessel within the district (Paragraph 5); (5) the fact of collision (Paragraph 6); (6) the countries under which the vessels operate, for purposes of determining applicable law (Paragraph 7); (7) the absence of fault on the part of plaintiff's vessel (Paragraph 8); (8) the negligence of defendants, including statutory violations (Paragraphs 9, 10); (9) causation between defendants' negligence and plaintiff's damage (Paragraph 11); and (10) damages to the plaintiff (Paragraph 12) [Ishizaki Kisen Co., Ltd. v. United States (9th Cir. 1975) 510 F.2d 875, 879, 880 ; States S.S. Co. v. Permanente S.S. Corp. (9th Cir. 1956) 231 F.2d 82, 86-88] .

[4] Process Against Vessel

Process against a vessel proceeds in much the same manner as execution against cargo. The vessel owner, however, may file a general bond which protects the vessel from seizure in all or any actions that may be brought thereafter. The amount of the bond must be at least double the aggregate amount claimed by plaintiffs in all actions begun and pending and remain at that amount in order to protect the vessel from execution of process [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(5)(b)].

Thus the amount of the bond must be increased as additional claims are presented. The special bond or security discussed above in relation to an action against cargo applies only in a specific action after process is issued, in contrast to the general bond. If a special bond is given in a particular case, the liability on the general bond shall cease as to that case [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(5)(b)].

[b] Costs of Seizure

The Supplemental Rules for Certain Admiralty and Maritime Claims do not alter provisions of the United States Code Service relating to the expenses of seizing and keeping attached or arrested property [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(4)(e)]. When the plaintiff in an in rem action against a vessel seeks execution of process, the United States Marshal must be paid in advance a deposit to cover initial expenses for storage, moving, keeping, and other costs. Additional amounts must be paid as necessary during the course of the litigation [28 U.S.C.S. § 1921]. The plaintiff can avoid or reduce the marshal's fee by substituting another custodian, such as a boatyard [see § 522.205].

Before any seized property can be released under a stipulation or special bond, all costs and charges of the court and its officers must be paid [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule E(5)(c)]. Thus in order to save costs, plaintiff and defendant should attempt to stipulate as to disposal of the property pending a resolution of the dispute before process is executed. The form in § 522.203 is a stipulation providing for the release of cargo in an action in rem. It can easily be converted for use in an action against a vessel by replacing references to "cargo" with the words "vessel, including gear, engine, tackle, apparel, and furniture" or simply "vessel," as appropriate.

[5] Prejudgment Interest

The complaint requests interest from the date of the collision forward. An award of prejudgment interest in admiralty cases is discretionary with the trial judge, but the discretion must be exercised with a view to the right of interest, barring exceptional circumstances. In collision cases, prejudgment interest is not a penalty but an element of compensation for the period after destruction when the owner has lost the use of the vessel. Exceptional circumstances justifying denial of interest include unwarranted delay by counsel and the absence of evidence proving loss of use [Alkmeon Naviera, S.A. v. M/V "Marina L" (9th Cir. 1980) 633 F.2d 789, 797, 798] .

[6] Federal Statutes

United States marshal's fees. 28 U.S.C.S. § 1921

[7] Decisions

Law of common flag applies when both ships are of same registry. Alkmeon Naviera, S.A. v. M/V "Marina L" (9th Cir. 1980) 633 F.2d 789, 793

Law of place of collision applies when collision is in foreign territorial waters. Ishizaki Kisen Co., Ltd. v. United States (9th Cir. 1975) 510 F.2d 875, 879

CAUTION:

In the Northern District of California, each notice of motion must be accompanied by affidavits or declarations under penalty of perjury sufficient to support any material factual contentions, by an appropriate memorandum or brief, and by a copy of a proposed form of order [U.S. Dist. Ct., No. Dist. of Cal., Rule 220-2]. In the Southern District, a brief and complete memorandum of points and authorities must be served and filed [U.S. Dist. Ct., So. Dist. of Cal., Rule 220-8(a)].

[2] Use of Form

This form of motion may be used in any in rem action against a vessel. The substitution of a private boatyard or marina may save the plaintiff a portion of the marshal's fee for maintaining custody of the vessel [28 U.S.C.S. § 1921 (requires advance deposit to U.S. Marshal for seizing and maintaining custody over vessel); see § 522.72[5]].

Local rules of court in both the Northern and Southern Districts of California permit this motion. If the order is presented before execution of process against the vessel, it could preclude costs of the initial seizure. The local rules do not expressly provide for a pre execution motion, but merely state that the notice must be given to the marshal and all parties who have appeared [U.S. Dist. Ct., No. Dist. of Cal., Rule 610-2(b), U.S. Dist. Ct., So. Dist. of Cal., Rule 310-2(b)(1)].

[3] Contents of Form

The form states (1) the amount to be charged by the new custodian (Paragraph 1); (2) the adequacy of the new custodian's facilities, supervision, and insurance coverage (Paragraph 2); (3) the necessity of moving the vessel and insurance coverage for the move, if a move is involved (Paragraph 3); and (4) release of the marshal from liability for custody of the vessel. The court's order allowing transfer of custody must fix fees to be charged and provide for their payment to the marshal in advance. If a move is involved, the judge may require the insurance referred to in Paragraph 3 [U.S. Dist. Ct., No. Dist. of Cal., Rule 610-2(b), U.S. Dist. Ct., So. Dist. of Cal., Rule 310-2(b)(1)].

[2] Use of Form

This complaint may be used in a state court in personam action for damages to a tow during towage. The tow owner may also maintain an action in rem against the tug in federal district court. The complaint could easily be adapted for use in federal court by adding allegations of admiralty jurisdiction and the presence, or expected presence, of the tug within the judicial district during the pendency of the action [see §§ 522.201 and 522.204 regarding complaints in rem and in personam against cargo and a vessel].

Regardless of where the action is filed, the substantive rules of federal maritime law will govern the rights of the parties [Intagliata v. Shipowners & Merchs. Towboat Co., Ltd. (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 365, 371, 159 P.2d 1] . State law will apply, but only to the extent that it does not render changes in maritime law [Madruga v. Superior Court (1954) 346 U.S. 556, 561, 74 S. Ct. 298, 98 L. Ed. 290] .

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges: (1) defendant's identity and capacity to be sued (Paragraph 1); (2) the existence of unknown defendants, if any (Paragraph 2) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 474]; (3) defendant's ownership of the tug and the agreement to tow plaintiff's barge (Paragraphs 3, 4); (4) damages to plaintiff's barge during the tow (Paragraph 5); (5) defendant's negligence which proximately caused the damages (Paragraph 6); and (6) the amount of plaintiff's damages [Stevens v. White City (1932) 285 U.S. 195, 200-202, 52 S. Ct. 347, 76 L. Ed. 699] .

[2] Use of Form

This complaint may be used to bring a state court action in personam against a shipowner or carrier for cargo damage or loss. Generally, the rights of the parties will be controlled by the Carriage of Goods by Sea Act [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note] or the Harter Act [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 et seq].

An attorney may also file an in personam and in rem action combined, or either one individually, in federal district court. A complaint in rem against the vessel must be filed in federal court because of the exclusive admiralty jurisdiction over actions in rem [Madruga v. Superior Court (1954) 346 U.S. 556, 561, 74 S. Ct. 298, 98 L. Ed. 290] . The forms in §§ 522.201 and 522.204 are examples of federal complaints in rem and in personam. The form in § 522.204, an action against a vessel in rem for damages arising out of a collision, can be adapted for use in a federal court action for cargo damage or loss by substitution of the factual allegations of loss or damage in this state court complaint for the factual allegations of negligence from collision in the form in § 522.204. The allegations, in the form in § 522.204, of admiralty jurisdiction and presence of the vessel within the judicial district, should be included in the cargo damage or loss complaint without changes.

For additional discussion of admiralty jurisdiction and choice of state or federal forum, see Ch. 100, Boats and Boating .

[3] Allegations

[a] Delivery of Cargo for Transportation (Paragraph 4)

The complaint alleges that the cargo was delivered to the defendant in apparent good order for transportation, as evidenced by the bill of lading. The bill of lading is both the receipt for delivery and the parties' contract when issued by a common carrier. The bill will note the condition of the cargo when received by the carrier [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 3(3); 46 U.S.C.S. § 30703(b), 1303(3)]. For additional discussion of the nature of bills of lading, see § 522.71.

Owners of cargo, as parties to bills of lading, had a relationship sufficient to support an in personam claim against the vessel owners, even though the owners did not deliver cargo to the vessel and did not receive bills of lading from the vessel, when the cargo was delivered to non-vessel-operating common carriers (NVOCCs), which delivered the cargo in containers to the vessel and received nonnegotiable bills of lading, and when the bills of lading did not name any individual parties as "the Merchant," and "Merchant" was defined only as "includ[ing] the shipper, consignor, consignee, owner and receiver of the Goods and the Holder of this Bill of Lading" [All Pac. Trading, Inc. v. Vessel M/V Hanjin Yosu (9th Cir. 1993) 7 F.3d 1427, 1433] .

[b] Damage or Loss (Paragraph 5)

Plaintiff's prima facie case will be established by showing that the cargo was damaged when discharged from the ship after being received for transportation in apparent good order [Nissho-Iwai Co. Ltd. v. M/T Stolt Lion (2d Cir. 1980) 617 F.2d 907, 911, 912] . Therefore, Paragraph 5 contains the allegation of loss or damage on discharge.

[c] Notice of Loss or Damage (Paragraph 6)

Paragraph 6 is optional because plaintiff need not give notice of the loss or damage in order to prosecute an action. If notice is not given, however, removal of the goods shall be prima facie evidence of delivery as described in the bill of lading [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 3(6)]. Thus if the cargo was in apparent good order when delivered to the carrier and no notice of loss or damage was given on removal after discharge, the bill of lading's statement would be rebuttable evidence of good order on discharge from the ship [Blasser Bros. v. Northern Pan-Am. Line (5th Cir. 1980) 628 F.2d 376, 381] .

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense by Shipowner to Action for Damage to or Loss of Cargo--Exoneration From Liability When Damage or Loss Caused by Fire [46 U.S.C.S. app. §§ 182, 1304(2)(b)]

AS A [_____ (if more than one, specify number, e.g., FIRST)] SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE [if more than one cause of action alleged, state TO THE _____ (specify, e.g., SECOND) CAUSE OF ACTION], defendant alleges that:

1. The _____ [damage or loss] enumerated in plaintiff's complaint resulted from a fire which occurred without the design or neglect of defendant. Defendant is exonerated from any and all liability for the alleged _____ [loss or damage] in accordance with Section _____ [30504 and/or 30701 note, § 4(2)(b),] of Title 46 of the United States Code Service.

[2] Use of Form

This affirmative defense may be used by the defendant in answering a complaint for loss or damage caused by fire. The fire statute [46 U.S.C.S. § 30504] exempts a vessel owner from liability for fire loss or damage unless caused by the design or neglect of such owner. The Carriage of Goods by Sea Act (COGSA) relieves the carrier and ship from responsibility for loss or damage arising or resulting from fire, unless caused by the actual fault or privity of the carrier [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 4(2)(b)].

Although these two statutes provide essentially the same benefit, the fire statute pertains to vessel owners, while the COGSA encompasses carriers. In order to rely on either exemption, the owner must exercise due diligence to make the vessel seaworthy and properly manned, equipped, and supplied as required by the COGSA [In re Liberty Shipping Corp. (9th Cir. 1975) 509 F.2d 1249, 1251, 1252] . Furthermore, the burden of showing the exercise of due diligence falls on the carrier [46 U.S.C.S. § 30701 note, § 4(1)]. If the carrier's failure to exercise this obligation causes damage by fire, the fire exemptions cannot be invoked [Sunkist Growers, Inc. v. Adelaide Shipping Lines (9th Cir. 1979) 603 F.2d

[3] Decisions

Carrier's obligation under COGSA to exercise due diligence applies to master and those who manage ship, as well as to owners or charterers personally or those who act for them in a managerial capacity. Sunkist Growers, Inc. v. Adelaide Shipping Lines (9th Cir. 1979) 603 F.2d 1327, 1341

Provisions of fire statute and COGSA's fire exemption have essentially same meaning. Asbestos Corp. Ltd. v. Compagnie de Navigation Fraissinet et Cyprien Fabre (2d Cir. 1973) 480 F.2d 669, 672

3. On _____ [date], plaintiff furnished the _____ [specify name, nationality, registry number, or other designation of vessel], docked at _____ [port], with _____ [materials and/or supplies and/or equipment] consisting of _____ [describe]. The _____ [materials and/or supplies and/or equipment], with an agreed value of $_____, were furnished to defendant vessel at the request of _____ [name], _____ [specify job title, e.g., master] of the vessel.

4. Defendant vessel is indebted to plaintiff in the total sum of $_____, which remains due and owing [, although plaintiff has demanded payment].

5. Plaintiff claims a maritime lien against defendant vessel, her engines, tackle, boats, apparel, furniture, and cargo under Title 46, Section 31341 et seq., of the United States Code Service and under general maritime law.

WHEREFORE, plaintiff prays:

1. For issuance of process against defendant vessel, her engines, boats, tackle, apparel, furniture, and cargo according to this court's practice in admiralty and maritime cases;

2. For condemnation and sale of defendant vessel to pay the amount due and owing to plaintiff with interest and costs; and

3. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

[Verification. See § 522.150.]

CAUTION:
The complaint in an action in rem must be verified on oath or solemn affirmation [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule C(2)].

[2] Use of Form

This complaint may be used for an action in rem against a vessel in federal court. Federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction over admiralty actions in rem against vessels or other property [Madruga v. Superior Court (1954) 346 U.S. 556, 560, 561, 74 S. Ct. 298, 98 L. Ed. 290] . In the alternative, a plaintiff may file an action in personam against the person who ordered the supplies. The existence of the lien and an action in rem does not preclude an action in personam [Fed. R. Civ. P., Supp. Rules for Certain Admiralty & Mar. Claims, Rule C(1); see 46 U.S.C.S. § 31305]. If an attorney doubts the validity of the lien for any reason, he or she should combine an action in rem against the vessel with an action in personam against its owner or person authorizing the supplies. For examples of combined actions against cargo and against a vessel, see §§ 522.201 and 522.204.

[3] Allegations

The complaint alleges: (1) admiralty jurisdiction (Paragraph 1); (2) the presence or future arrival of the vessel within the district (Paragraph 2); (3) the furnishing of supplies, materials and/or equipment on the order of the vessel's officer or agent (Paragraph 3); (4) the failure to pay, as agreed, for the goods furnished (Paragraph 4); and (5) the existence of plantiff's lien against the vessel under 46 U.S.C.S. § 31341 et seq. (Paragraph 5) [Point Landing, Inc. v. Alabama Dry Dock & Shipbuilding Co. (5th Cir. 1958) 261 F.2d 861, 867] . It is not necessary to allege or prove that credit was given to the vessel [46 U.S.C.S. § 31342(a)(3)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

46-524 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 524.10

§ 524.10 Governing Law

[1] Generally

Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 is the general section governing extensions of time. Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a) governs extensions of time relating to answers and demurrers. Code Civ. Proc. § 1005 governs extensions and shortening of time relating to notices of motion and Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 provides for extensions of time when papers or notices, other than notices of motion, are served by mail, facsimile transmission, or overnight delivery. In the case of electronic service of a notice, Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6(a)(6) governs the extension of time. Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1 governs extensions when an attorney of record is attending the Legislature while Code Civ. Proc. § 595 governs postponements when an attorney, party, or witness is attending the Legislature.

California Rules of Court, Rules 2.20 and 3.1300, govern shortening and extension of time before the trial courts. California Rules of Court, Rule 8.50 et seq. , governs shortening and extension of time before the California Supreme Court and courts of appeal.

[2] Trial Court Delay Reduction Act

[a] Policy Against Continuances

The trial courts in all California counties are required to implement delay reduction programs for limited civil cases [Gov. Code §§ 68605.5, 68607, 68620(a)]. Under Gov. Code § 68607 the trial judge is given the responsibility to maintain control over the pace of litigation. This responsibility includes the duty, consistent with statute, to adopt and use a firm, consistent policy against continuances, to the maximum extent possible and reasonable, in all stages of the litigation [Gov. Code § 68607(g)].

[b] Limit on Stipulations to Extend Time

The Trial Court Delay Reduction Act expressly allows the parties to stipulate to extend the time to serve responsive pleadings by an additional 15 days after service of a complaint [Gov. Code § 68616(b)]. The act also allows the parties, within 30 days of service of the responsive pleadings, to stipulate to a single continuance not to exceed 30 days [Gov.

Code § 68616(d)].

Otherwise, local rules may provide that the parties cannot stipulate to extend deadlines except as expressly permitted. For example, a rule may provide that the parties cannot stipulate to modify, extend, or continue any deadline without the written approval of the judge [Orange Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 453].

[c] Minimum Time Periods Allowed

Trial court delay reduction rules cannot require shorter time for service of notice of motion and other papers than is provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005 and 1013, and cannot shorten the time to plead after service of summons beyond the period provided under Code Civ. Proc. 412.20. These periods may only be shortened as provided in those sections [Gov. Code § 68616(c); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 412.20 (time to plead after service of summons), 1005(b) (time for service of notice of motion and supporting and opposing papers), 1013 (time for service of papers other than notice of motion)].

Chapter 524 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

§ 524.11 Computation of Time

The time in which any act provided by law is to be done is computed by excluding the first day and including the last, unless the last day is a holiday, and then it is also excluded [Code Civ. Proc. § 12]. If the last day for the performance of any act provided or required by law to be performed within a specified period of time is a holiday, then such period is extended to and including the next day which is not a holiday [Code Civ. Proc. § 12a].

The term "holiday," for purposes of computation of time, includes every Saturday and Sunday and most holidays specified in Gov. Code §§ 6700 and 6701 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 10, 12a]. One holiday listed in Gov. Code § 6700 but excluded from the meaning of "holiday" under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 10 and 12a is September 9, known as "Admission Day" [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 10, 12a, 135; Gov. Code § 6700]. Insofar as the business of any city, county, state, or public office other than a branch office is concerned, any day when the office is closed for the whole day is considered a holiday [Code Civ. Proc. § 12b].

For extensive discussion of distinguishing between calendar days and court days, computation of time, and effect of filing papers on certain days, see § 518.33.

Chapter 524 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

46-524 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 524.12

§ 524.12 Shortening of Time

[1] By Noticed Motion

The court, or a judge thereof, may prescribe a time shorter than the 16 court days required for written notice of hearing on a motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b)].

A court cannot shorten the 75-day notice period required for a motion for summary judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 437c(a)], but the statute doesgives trial courts authority to shorten the 60-day period after the opposing party's general appearance to file the motion, and to shorten the 30-day period before the trial date for the hearing on the motion [McMahon v. Superior Court (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 112, 115-118, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407] .

Any order obtained at a hearing of which insufficient notice has been given is void if the adverse party was not at the hearing [Svistunoff v. Svistunoff (1952) 108 Cal. App. 2d 638, 641, 239 P.2d 650] . However, any objection to the timeliness of notice is waived by an adverse party who appears at the hearing (and argues anything other than the sufficiency of the notice) [Lacey v. Bertone (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 649, 651, 203 P.2d 755] .

[2] By Ex Parte Application

Although it is technically possible to obtain an order shortening time pursuant to a noticed motion, the very nature of the order sought usually dictates that there will not be enough time to give 16 court days notice for the motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005]. Therefore, of necessity, an order shortening time is usually obtained by an application for an ex parte order [for forms, see §§ 524.54 -524.56]. An application for an order shortening time must be supported by an affidavit or declaration showing good cause for the order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(b)].

[3] Under Other Provisions

There are also statutes providing for shortening time periods relating to other procedures. For example, the Civil Discovery Act [Code Civ. Proc. § 2016.010 et seq.], provides for shortening time periods relating to various procedures such as notice required before a deposition [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2025.270], time for responding to interrogatories [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2030.260(a)], time for responding to requests for production or entry [see Code Civ. Proc. §

2031.260(a)], and time for responding to requests for admissions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2033.250(a)].

The required time periods for service of documents related to subpoenaing the personal records of a consumer or employment records may also be shortened [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(h), 1985.6(g)]. For further discussion, see Ch. 195, Discovery: Inspection of Tangible Evidence and Ch. 535, Subpoena .

Chapter 524 SHORTENING AND EXTENSION OF TIME
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

46-524 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 524.13

§ 524.13 Extension of Time

[1] In General

When an act to be done, as provided in the Code of Civil Procedure, relates to the pleadings in the action, the preparation of bills of exceptions, or of amendments to them, or the service of notices other than of appeal and of intention to move for a new trial, the time allowed therefor, unless otherwise expressly provided, may be extended, on good cause shown, by the judge of the court in which the action is pending, or by the judge who presided at the trial of that action. The extension must not exceed 30 days without the consent of the adverse party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1054].

The times provided in the Bond and Undertaking Law (Code Civ. Proc. § 995.010 et seq.), or in any other statute relating to a bond given in an action or proceeding, may be extended pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1054 and 1054.1 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.050].

[2] On Stipulation

In all cases set out in Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 (see [1], above), an extension must be granted when all attorneys of record of parties who have appeared in the action agree in writing to the extension. Any extension granted pursuant to a stipulation by all attorneys of record of parties who have appeared in the action is not included in the computation of the 30-day limitation on extensions of time allowed by the court or judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 1054].

[3] When Available

The court may grant an extension only during the period of time within which the act must be done. An order extending time made after the statutory time for action has passed is void [Coast Electric Service, Inc. v. Jensen (1931) 111 Cal. App. 124, 126, 295 P. 346] . However, when the time for performance is not jurisdictional, as in the filing of a cost bill, relief may be granted for late filing under Code Civ. Proc. § 473(b), based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect [San Francisco Unified School Dist. v. Board of Nat'l Missions (1954) 129 Cal. App. 2d 236, 243, 276 P.2d 829] .

[4] To Plead

The court may, in furtherance of justice, and on such terms as may be proper, enlarge the time for answer or demurrer and may, in its discretion, after notice to the adverse party, allow, on such terms as may be just, an answer to be made after the time limited by the Code of Civil Procedure [Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)]. In the absence of a court order, a late answer or demurrer may be filed if no default has been entered, but it is subjectto the court's discretionary power to strike it on motion [Buck v. Morrossis (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 461, 464-465, 250 P.2d 270] .

[5] Length of Extension

An extension pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 for an act relating to the pleadings may not be granted for more than 30 days without the consent of the adverse party [Code Civ. Proc. § 1054]. Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a) contains no limit on the length of an extension to answer or demur [see Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a)]. However, other sections of the Code of Civil Procedure that provide for extensions, without limitations on the length of the extension, have been interpreted to be limited to the length of extension permitted by Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 [see Lewith v. Rehmke (1933) 217 Cal. 563, 565, 20 P.2d 687 (interpreting former Code Civ. Proc. § 650 regarding extensions to prepare bills of exceptions); see also Thelander v. Superior Court (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 811, 813, 26 Cal. Rptr. 643, 376 P.2d 571] . Therefore, it appears that the Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 limit on the length of an extension to perform an act relating to the pleadings would apply and would limit the length of a permissible extension to answer or demur under Code Civ. Proc. § 473.

An order extending time to plead more than 30 days without the adverse party's consent is void, although reliance on this void order can be urged as grounds for relief under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [Kennedy v. Mulligan (1902) 136 Cal. 556, 557, 69 P. 291] .

When all attorneys of record of parties who have appeared in the action agree in writing, the court must grant the extension [Code Civ. Proc. § 1054]. When the extension is pursuant to agreement, there evidently is no restriction on the length of the extension.

[6] Good Cause

Code Civ. Proc. § 473, although not requiring a showing of good cause for an order enlarging the time to answer or demur, does require that the order be in furtherance of justice. Code Civ. Proc. § 1054, on the other hand, does require a showing of good cause for an extension. Therefore, it is strongly recommended that an application for an order extending time under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 as well as under Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 include a declaration setting forth facts constituting good cause for the order [for a form including such a declaration, see § 524.52].

A precise definition of what constitutes "good cause" for an extension has not been dealt with in cases under Code Civ. Proc. § 1054. However, good cause in general has been defined as calling "for a factual exposition of a reasonable ground for the sought order. The good cause may be equated to a good reason for a party's failure to perform that specific requirement from which he seeks to be excused" [Waters v. Superior Court (1962) 58Cal. 2d 885, 893, 27 Cal. Rptr. 153, 377 P.2d 265 (good cause for relief from requirement of service of notice of deposition on unserved defendants)].

[7] Not Usually a General Appearance

An application to the court or a stipulation by the parties for an extension of time to plead is not a general appearance by the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(d)]. However, a stipulation extending the time "within which to appear" has been held to be a general appearance [RCA Corp. v. Superior Court (1975) 47 Cal. App. 3d 1007, 1009-1010, 121 Cal. Rptr. 441] . A stipulation that, in addition to extending time, also accepts service of the summons and complaint is held to be a general appearance [General Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 449, 452-453, 124 Cal. Rptr. 745, 541 P.2d 289] . For further discussion, see Ch. 212, Dismissal .

[8] Under Rules of Court

Unless otherwise provided by law, a court may extend or shorten the time within which a party must perform any act under the California Rules of Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.10(c)].

[9] By Service by Mail

In case of service by mail of notices or other papers, any period of notice and any right or duty to do any act or make any response within any period or on a date certain after the service of the document, which period or date is prescribed by statute or rule of court, is extended by the following periods when service is by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a)]:

- Five calendar days, if the place of address and of mailing are both within California.
- Ten calendar days if either the place of mailing or of address is outside California but within the United States.
- Twenty calendar days if either the place of mailing or of address is outside the United States.

These extensions apply unless a specific exception is provided by statute or rule of court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a)]. By the terms of Section 1013, the extensions do not apply to the time for taking the following actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a)]:

- Filing notice of intention to move for new trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 659].
- Filing notice of intention to move to vacate judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 663a.
- Filing notice of appeal.

Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 extensions do not apply to notices of motion that are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1005 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a) (listing motions subject to Section 1005)]. However, Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) requires a similar, although not identical, extension of the 16-court-day notice period when a notice of motion is served by mail. For discussion of extensions under section 1005(b), see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

Service by mail is complete when the notice or other paper is deposited in a post office, mail box, subpost office, substation, or mail chute, or other like facility regularly maintained by the United States Postal Service, in a sealed envelope, with postage paid, addressed to the person on whom it is to be served, at his or her office address as last given by him or her on any document that he or she has filed in the cause and served on the party making service by mail [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a)]. The addressee incurs the risk of the mail failing to reach him or her [McKeon v. Sambrano (1927) 200 Cal. 739, 741, 255 P. 178] . However, if the envelope containing the document to be served is improperly addressed, the result is the same as if no document were ever sent [Triumph Precision Products, Inc. v. Insurance Co. of North America (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 362, 365, 154 Cal. Rptr. 120] .

[10] By Service by Overnight Delivery

In case of service by Express Mail or another method of overnight delivery, any period of notice and any right or duty to do any act or make any response within any period or on a date certain after the service of the document, which period or date is prescribed by statute or rule of court, is extended by two court days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(e)].

This extension applies unless a specific exception is provided by statute or rule of court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(c)]. By the terms of Section 1013, the extensions do not apply to the time for taking the following actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(c)]:

- Filing notice of intention to move for new trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 659].
- Filing notice of intention to move to vacate judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 663a.
- Filing notice of appeal.

Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 extensions do not apply to notices of motion that are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1005 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a) (listing motions subject to Section 1005)]. However, Section 1005(b) provides for a two calendar day extension. For discussion of extensions under section 1005(b), see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

Service by Express Mail is complete when the notice or other paper is deposited in a post office, mailbox, sub-post office, substation, or mail chute, or other like facility regularly maintained by the United States PostalService for receipt of Express Mail, in a sealed envelope, with Express Mail postage paid, addressed to the person on whom it is to be served, at the office address as last given by that person on any document filed in the cause and served on the party making service by Express Mail, otherwise at that party's place of residence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(c)].

Service by another method of overnight delivery is complete when the notice or other paper is deposited in a box or other facility regularly maintained by the express service carrier, or delivered to an authorized courier or driver authorized by the express service carrier to receive documents, in an envelope or package designated by the express service carrier with delivery fees paid or provided for, addressed to the person on whom it is to be served, at the office address as last given by that person on any document filed in the cause and served on the party making service, otherwise at that party's place of residence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(c)].

[11] By Service by Facsimile Transmission

In case of service by facsimile transmission (fax), any period of notice and any right or duty to do any act or make any response within any period or on a date certain after the service of the document, which period or date is prescribed by statute or rule of court, is extended by two court days [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(e)].

This extension applies unless a specific exception is provided by statute or rule of court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(e)]. By the terms of Section 1013, the extensions do not apply to the time for taking the following actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(e)]:

- Filing notice of intention to move for new trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 659].
- Filing notice of intention to move to vacate judgment pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 663a.
- Filing notice of appeal.

Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 extensions do not apply to notices of motion that are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 1005 [Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(a) (listing motions subject to Section 1005)]. However, Section 1005(b) provides for a two calendar day extension. For discussion of extensions under section 1005(b), see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

Service by fax is permitted only when the parties agree and a written confirmation of that agreement is made [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(e)]. Service is complete at the time of transmission of the notice or other paper to a fax machine maintained by the person on whom it is served at the fax machine telephone number as last given by that person on any document which he or she has filed in the cause and served on the party making the service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(e)].

[12] For Legislator

When an act to be done in any action or proceeding in any state court or before any state administrative agency, as provided by law or rule, relates to the pleadings in the action, the preparation of bills of exceptions, or of amendments to them, or the service of notices (other than of appeal, of intention to move for a new trial, and of intention to move to vacate a judgment), and when the act is not a motion for a judgment notwithstanding the verdict, the time allowed for the act, unless otherwise expressly provided, must be extended to a date certain when an attorney of record for the party applying for the extension is a member of the State Legislature and the Legislature is in session or in recess for less than 41 days or if the attorney is a member of a legislative committee that is meeting or is to meet within a period not exceeding the time reasonably necessary to enable the attorney to reach the committee meeting by the ordinary mode of travel. Any extension granted for this reason also extends, for the same period, the time for any ruling or proceeding or for the performance by any party of any act affected by the extension [Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1].

The times provided in the Bond and Undertaking Law (Code Civ. Proc. § 995.010 et seq.), or in any other statute relating to a bond given in an action or proceeding, may be extended pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1 [see Code Civ. Proc. § 995.050].

Whenever a member of the California Legislature is a party, principal witness, or attorney of record, the trial of any civil action or proceeding in a court, or of any administrative proceeding before a state board, or commissioner, or officer, or the hearing of any motion, demurrer, or other proceeding must be postponed to a date certain under circumstances and conditions similar to those specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1 [Code Civ. Proc. § 595]. For a discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 595, see the Introduction to Ch. 136, Continuances.

The extension under Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1 or the continuance under Code Civ. Proc. § 595 must be to a date certain. The length of the extension or continuance depends on such factors as the date of final adjournment of the Legislature or the commencement of a recess of more than 40 days, the date of adjournment or recess of a committee meeting, or the place of trial or hearing relative to the place of the committee meeting [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 595, 1054.1].

Although by their own terms Code Civ. Proc. §§ 595 and 1054.1 require mandatory extensions unless a right to relief pendente lite in a paternity action or a right to invoke a provisional remedy would be abridged, they have been interpreted to allow the court discretion in determining whether its processes and order of business should be delayed. In exercising its discretion the court should consider the nature and urgency of the rights involved, whether the party seeking delay has or can secure other counsel to represent him or her for the particular step in the proceedings thenbefore the court, and whether the attorney who is a member of the Legislature was employed for no other purpose than to attempt delay [Thurmond v. Superior Court (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 836, 839-840, 59 Cal. Rptr. 273, 427 P.2d 985] .

[13] Procedures for Obtaining

Although it is technically possible to obtain an order extending time pursuant to a noticed motion, the very nature of the order sought usually dictates that there will not be enough time to give 15 days notice for such motion. Therefore, of necessity, an extension of time is usually obtained pursuant to stipulation or ex parte order.

An application for an ex parte order extending time must be made to the judge before whom the matter is pending. It must disclose the nature of the case and any previous extensions by stipulation or court order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.20(a), (b); for a form including these statements, see § 524.52]. After obtaining the order, it must be filed immediately and served within 24 hours or within such other time as may be fixed by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.20(c)].

Prior to making an application for an ex parte order, counsel should always check local court rules for additional requirements.

[14] Appeals

[a] Filing Notice

The time for filing a notice of appeal is jurisdictional and no court may extend it, unless there is an appellate emergency declared under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.66, in which case the Chair of the Judicial Council may extend additional time ranging from 14 days to 60 days depending on the scope and duration of the appellate emergency [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.104(b), 8.308(a)]; see Schisler v. Mitchell (1959) 174 Cal. App. 2d 27, 29, 344 P.2d 61] . The time for filing an appeal is automatically extended, however, if a motion for new trial or a motion to vacate a judgment is pending, if an appeal is filed by another party, or if the last day to file the appeal falls on a holiday [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 8.108, 8.60, 8.752, 8.767; for further discussion of extensions for filing notice of appeal, see Ch. 42, Appeal: Notice of Appeal].

[b] Filing Briefs

Appellant's opening brief must be served and filed within 30 days after the record is filed in the reviewing court; the respondent's brief must be filed within 30 days after the appellant's brief is filed. By a stipulation filed with the reviewing court, the parties may extend each of these periods for not more than 60 days, and thereafter the time may be extended only bythe Chief Justice or the Presiding Justice, for good cause shown [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.216(a)].

An application for an extension of time to file a brief must be served and filed, although the Chief Justice or presiding justice may excuse advance service. The application must state facts showing good cause--or exceptional good cause, when required by the California Rules of Court--for granting the application, and must identify any previous application filed by any party [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.50]. For discussion of extensions for filing briefs, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs, § 50.16[4]].

[1] Discretion of Court to Extend Time

Extensions of time to plead under Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 as being within sound discretion of court. Lucci v. United Credit & Collection Co. (1934) 220 Cal. 492, 495, 31 P.2d 369

Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 as giving court power to extend time to file cost bill. Davis Lumber Co. v. Hubbell (1955) 137 Cal. App. 2d 148, 151, 290 P.2d 33

[2] Extension for Answering

Court as having power under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 472 and 473 to impose terms as condition of answering after expiration of time to do so. Hayes v. Butler (1914) 25 Cal. App. 743, 745, 145 P. 553

[3] General Appearance May Result From Extension

Written agreement extending time to plead and disclosing intent to submit to jurisdiction constituted general appearance. General Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 449, 452-453, 124 Cal. Rptr. 745, 541 P.2d 289

Seeking extension to plead as not constituting general appearance. Busching v. Superior Court (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 44, 51, 115 Cal. Rptr. 241, 524 P.2d 369

Stipulation with defendant's insurance carrier extending time to plead and not challenging service precluded dismissal under former Code Civ. Proc. § 581a (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.110 et seq.). Knapp v. Superior Court (1978) 79 Cal. App. 3d 799, 803, 145 Cal. Rptr. 154

Stipulation with defendant's insurance carrier extending time to plead was insufficient to constitute general appearance.

Woodruff v. McDonald's Restaurants (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 655, 657-658, 142 Cal. Rptr. 367

[4] Service by Mail as Extending Time

Extension of time under Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a) is not applicable to Lab. Code § 1160.8 (time limit for filing petitions for review of ALRB orders); section 1013(a) by its terms deals only with case of service by mail whereas Lab. Code § 1160.8 requires that petition be filed within 30 days of issuance of board decision. Mario Saikhon, Inc. v. Agricultural Labor Relations Bd. (1983) 140 Cal. App. 3d 581, 583, 189 Cal. Rptr. 632

Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 as not extending time to file action under Tort Claims Act following deposit in mail of rejection of claim against public entity. Smith v. City & County of San Francisco (1977) 68 Cal. App. 3d 227, 231-232, 137 Cal. Rptr. 146

Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 as extending time to petition for mandate to review denial of motion to quash when denial of motion mailed to petitioner. Shearer v. Superior Court (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 424, 426, 138 Cal. Rptr. 824

Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 broadly interpreted as extending time to move for further responses to interrogatories served by mail. California Accounts, Inc. v. Superior Court (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 483, 487, 123 Cal. Rptr. 304

Code Civ. Proc. § 1013 as not extending time to file notice of appeal. Nu-Way Associates, Inc. v. Keefe (1971) 15 Cal. App. 3d 926, 928, 93 Cal. Rptr. 614

When service of notice properly made by mail pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1013, risk of failure of mail is on addressee. Meskell v. Culver City Unified School Dist. (1970) 12 Cal. App. 3d 1, 824, 90 Cal. Rptr. 381

[5] Shortening Time

Court may not shorten the 75-day notice period required for a motion for summary judgment, but the statute does gives trial courts authority to shorten the 60-day period after the opposing party's general appearance to file the motion, and to shorten the 30-day period before the trial date for the hearing on the motion. McMahon v. Superior Court (2003) 106 Cal. App. 4th 112, 115-118, 130 Cal. Rptr. 2d 407

§ 524.40 Checklist for Party Seeking Extension or Shortening of Time

NOTE:

In actions conducted pursuant to the Trial Court Delay Reduction Act (Gov. Code § 68600 et seq.), local rules may restrict the shortening and extension of time. For further discussion, see § 524.10[2].

[1] Preliminary Determinations

1. Determine necessity of extension or shortening of time. If service was or will be by mail, add the appropriate number of days if Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) or 1013(a) apply.

a. If seeking extension, ascertain last date on which act can be performed.

b. If seeking shortening, ascertain when you need act performed.

2. Determine feasibility of extension.

The time to file certain notices and/or motions cannot be extended, for example, notice of appeal, notice of intention to move for new trial [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 659, 1054, 1054.1].

3. Determine if opposing counsel will stipulate.

4. Determine necessity of seeking order shortening or extending time through ex parte application or noticed motion.

An extension must be obtained during the period within which the act for which the extension is sought must be performed [Coast Electric Service, Inc. v. Jensen (1931) 111 Cal. App. 124, 126, 295 P. 346] .

[2] By Stipulation

1. Obtain agreement of all opposing counsel to stipulate to extension or shortening [see Code Civ. Proc. § 283 (power of attorney to enter into stipulation)].

2. Either confirm the agreement by letter to all counsel or prepare stipulation [for forms of stipulations, see § 524.50, 524.51; for general discussion of and forms for stipulation, see also Ch. 533, Stipulations].

3. Have stipulation executed by all opposing counsel.

4. Prepare proof of service [see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

5. Serve copies of stipulation and proof of service [see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

6. File original stipulation and proof of service in court in which action is pending.

[3] By Ex Parte Application

NOTE:
Check local rules for possible additional requirements for obtaining ex parte order.

1. Prepare necessary papers including the following:

a. Application for ex parte order [Forms: §§ 524.52, 524.54].

b. Supporting declaration [Forms: §§ 524.52, 524.54], including the following:
(1) Statement of nature of case,

(2) Showing of good cause, and

(3) Statement of any previous extensions by stipulation or order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.20(b), 3.1300].

c. Supporting points and authorities, if desired [see California Points and Authorities , Ch. 212, Shortening and Extension of Time].

d. Proposed order [Forms: §§ 524.53, 524.55, 524.56].

e. Any other necessary documents, for example, proposed notice of motion for which order shortening time is being sought, points and authorities, and, if appropriate, declaration supporting the noticed motion.

2. Present all necessary papers to judge before whom matter is pending [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.20(a)].

3. File the order immediately [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.20(c)].

4. Serve endorsed, filed copies of all documents, with copies of proof of service attached, on all other counsel within 24 hours or within such other time as fixed by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.20(c); see also Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers].

5. File original proof of service.

[4] By Noticed Motion

If counsel has adequate time and wishes to seek an order shortening or extending time through a noticed motion, follow the procedures for noticed motions set out in Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by the parties to an action or proceeding to stipulate to an extension of time to a date certain to perform an act specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1054(a) (authorizing the court to grant extensions not exceeding 30 days) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1054(b) (extension of time for acts specified in section 1054(a) by stipulation of attorneys of record for all parties); Gov. Code § 68616(b) (stipulation to 15-day extension to respond to complaint); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 283(1) (attorney's power to bind client)]. The acts specified in Code Civ. Proc. § 1054(a) are those relating to the pleadings, preparation of bills of exceptions, or of amendments thereto, and to the service of notices other than a notice of appeal or of intention to move for a new trial.

CAUTION:

Neither an application for nor a stipulation granting an extension of time to plead is a general appearance [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(d)]. Similarly, a stipulation extending the three-year period within which summons must be served to avoid mandatory dismissal does not constitute a general appearance in action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.210(a), 583.220(a), 583.230(a)]. However, any additional language in the stipulation inconsistent with a special appearance, for example, an agreement to accept service of the summons and complaint, may constitute a general appearance [see General Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 449, 453, 124 Cal. Rptr. 745, 541 P.2d 289 ; Busching v. Superior Court (1974) 12 Cal. 3d 44, 51, 115 Cal. Rptr. 241, 524 P.2d 369 ; for a discussion of general and special appearances and their effect, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal].

Although the form is designed for use under Code Civ. Proc. § 1054(b), it may be used to extend time for the performance of an act to a date certain whenever a statute authorizes the parties to agree or to stipulate to an extension of time for performing a specific act.

[3] Stipulations by Parties to Extend Time

In all cases in which the court or judge is authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 1054(a) to grant an extension of time, the extension of time shall be granted when all attorneys of record of parties who have appeared in the action agree in writing to the extension [Code Civ. Proc. § 1054(b); for what constitutes an appearance generally, see Code Civ. Proc. § 1014; for the kinds of appearances and their effect, see discussion in Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal]. Any extension of time grantedby stipulation of all the attorneys of record of parties who have appeared in the action is not included in the computation of the 30-day limitation on extensions of time allowed by the court or judge under Code Civ. Proc. § 1054(a) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1054(b)].

In addition to Code Civ. Proc. § 1054, a number of other statutes authorize extensions of time on stipulation of one or more of the parties [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.230 (stipulation extending time for service of process), 583.330 (stipulation extending time within which action must be brought to trial to avoid dismissal)].

The form of stipulation in [1], above, is for use by the parties (1) to grant a defendant or cross defendant an open extension of time to file an answer or otherwise plead to the complaint or cross complaint, and (2) to waive any right the defendant or cross defendant might have or acquire to have the action dismissed under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.110-583.430 for failure to prosecute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 583.140 (principles of waiver and estoppel not abrogated or otherwise affected by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.110-583.430]; General Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 449, 452-456, 124 Cal. Rptr. 745, 541 P.2d 289 (decided under former Code Civ. Proc. §§ 581a, 583 [now see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.110-583.430])]. For a form of stipulation granting an extension of time to plead to a date certain, see § 524.50.

Use of this form may not be appropriate in many actions. The Trial Court Delay Reduction Act gives the judge responsibility to assume and maintain control over the pace of litigation [Gov. Code § 68607]. Local rules may operate to preclude any open extension of time by requiring orders extending time to include a specific deadline. Other local requirements may also come into play. For example, in San Diego, if a party cannot make a timely general appearance within the time required by the Code of Civil Procedure, or within 15 days thereafter if the parties have stipulated to extend that time [see Gov. Code § 68616(b) (allowing for 15-day stipulation)], the responding party must file a Certificate of Inability to Respond, which constitutes a general appearance [San Diego Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Div. II, Rule 2.1.6].

Moreover, many attorneys do not grant open extensions because they prefer to have a date calendared for receipt of a responsive pleading. However, when the plaintiff or cross complainant does grant an open extension of time, it is suggested that this form, with its waiver provisions, be used to obviate the possibility that the extension might give the defendant or cross defendant an opportunity to make a motion to dismiss for want of prosecution under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.110-583.430. The stipulation need not be filed, but if it is not, it must be brought to the court's attention if relevant to a dismissal motion [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 583.230(a), 583.330(a)].

CAUTION:

Neither an application for nor a stipulation granting an extension of time to plead is a general appearance [Code Civ. Proc. § 418.10(d)]. However, any additional language in the stipulation inconsistent with a special appearance, for example, an agreement to accept service of the summons and complaint, may constitute a general appearance [see General Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1975) 15 Cal. 3d 449, 453, 124 Cal. Rptr. 745, 541 P.2d 289 ; for a discussion of general and special appearances and their effect, see Ch. 323, Jurisdiction: Personal].

For further discussion of stipulations extending time, see § 524.50[2] et seq.

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for general use in making an ex parte application to the court for an extension of time under Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 or 1054.1. The order sought by this application is set out in § 524.53 and may be integrated into this form along with a supporting memorandum, all of which would then be listed in the caption [for supporting memoranda see California Points and Authorities , Ch. 212, Shortening and Extension of Time]. Extensions of time to plead under Code Civ. Proc. § 1054 are within the sound discretion of the court [Lucci v. United Credit & Collection

Co. (1934) 220 Cal. 492, 495, 31 P.2d 369] .

Code Civ. Proc. § 473(a) also provides the court with authority to extend the time for answer or demur. The court also has the power of to extend the time for performance of any act required or permitted by the California Rules of Court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 5.15 (family law rules), 1.10(c)]. This form may be adapted for use under those authorities.

Applications for extensions are to be heard by the judge before whom the matter is pending. [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.20(a)]. Judges may grant orders and writs on ex parte application in chambers [Code Civ. Proc. § 166]. Local rules should be consulted for the time and place to present ex parte applications [see, e.g., San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 9.0].

[3] Time to Apply for Extension

The application for any necessary extensions should be made during the period within which the act may be performed. The court has the power to grant an extension only during this period [see Coast Electric Service, Inc. v. Jensen (1931) 111 Cal. App. 124, 126, 295 P. 346 (time for serving memorandum of costs)]. An application made after that time would be subject to the requirements of Code Civ. Proc. § 473 [see Cornell Univ. Medical College v. Superior Court (1974) 38 Cal App. 3d 311, 314-315, 113 Cal. Rptr. 291] .

[4] Length of Extension

If proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 1054, counsel should not seek an extension exceeding 30 days without the consent of the adverse party. Such an order would be void [Kennedy v. Mulligan (1902) 136 Cal. 556, 557, 69 P. 291 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1054(a)].

[5] Extensions for Attorney Legislators

The Supreme Court has decided that Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1 is directory and not mandatory. It is to be applied subject to the discretion of the court as to whether its process and order of business should be delayed. Among the factors to be considered are [Thurmond v. Superior Court (1967) 66 Cal. 2d 836, 839-840, 59 Cal. Rptr. 273, 427 P.2d 985] :

- The nature and urgency of the rights involved.

- Whether the party seeking delay has or can secure other counsel to represent him or her for the particular step in the proceedings then before the court.

- Whether the attorney who is a member of the Legislature was employed for no other purpose than to attempt delay.

If proceeding under Code Civ. Proc. § 1054.1, the attorney-legislator may wish to add additional facts to the declaration to convince the court that these factors outlined in Thurmond, are not present.

[6] Contents of Form

Applications for orders extending time must disclose the nature of the case andwhat extensions, if any, have previously been granted by order of court or stipulation of counsel (Paragraphs 2, 4) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.20(b)].

If seeking an extension pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1054, a statement of facts showing good cause for the extension must also be included (Paragraph 3) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1054; for discussion, see § 524.13[6]].

It is good practice to clearly specify the act to be performed, the reasons supporting the application and to specify the last day and hour by which the act is to be performed.

A party making an ex parte application for an order must notify all parties no later than 10:00 a.m. the court day before the ex parte appearance, absent a showing of exceptional circumstances [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1203(a)], and the application must be accompanied by an affidavit or by declaration establishing one of the following [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1204(b)]:

- That, within the applicable time period under Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1203, the applicant informed the opposing party when and where the application would be made; or

- That the applicant in good faith attempted to inform the opposing party but was unable to do so, specifying the efforts made to inform the opposing party; or

- That for reasons specified, the applicant should not be required to inform the opposing party.

If there has been an earlier application that was refused in whole or in part, any subsequent application of the same character or for the same relief, although made on an alleged different state of facts, must include a full disclosure of any previous applications and the court's actions [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1202(b)].

For further discussion of and general forms based on Rule 3.1200 et seq., see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[7] Accompanying Papers

An ex parte application must be supported by a memorandum [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1201(4)]. One exception to the memorandum requirement is if the application is made to extend the time to serve pleadings and the application is filed on Judicial Council Form CM-020 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1114(a)(2); for form, see § 524.53A].

Any request for judicial notice must be made in a separate document listing the specific items for which notice is requested and must comply with the production and notice requirements of Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1306(c) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(m)].

[2] Use of Form

The application illustrated in [1], above, is a reproduction of a form adopted by the Judicial Council for use in making an ex parte application for an extension of time to serve a pleading. The form includes an order if the time is granted. Use of this form, when applicable, is optional [see Gov. Code § 68511; Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.35; Judicial Council Form CM-020].

While an ex parte application generally must be supported by a memorandum [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1201(4)], filing of this application on the Judicial Council form negates the supporting memorandum requirement [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1114(a)(2)]. If it would further the interest of justice, the party may submit, or the court may order, a supporting memorandum; and if so it must comply with Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1114(b)].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

For additional discussion on notice requirements of an ex parte application to extend time, see § 524.52. [2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for general use when applying to the court for an ex parte order shortening time for service of notice of a motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) (authority of court or judge to shorten time for notice of motion)]. The moving party normally attaches a proposed order [for a form, see § 524.55], the notice of motion, and supporting papers to the application. This form can be modified to seek an ex parte order shortening time for proceedings other than notice of motions.

Paragraph 3 of the Declaration sets out facts concerning ex parte application notice procedures required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1200 et seq. [For discussion, see § 524.52[5].

An application for an order shortening time in law and motion proceedings must be supported by an affidavit or declaration showing good cause for the order [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1100, 3.1103(b), 3.1300(6)].

This form refers to notice under Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b), but may be adapted for use to shorten other periods [see, e.g., Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3(h) (order shortening time for service of subpena duces tecum); Code Civ. Proc. § 2025.270(d)) (extension or shortening of time for notice of taking deposition)].

[3] Local Requirements

Local court rules should always be checked before preparation and presentation of ex parte applications [see Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.9; San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 9].

§ 525.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses and contains allegations for use in complaints alleging that the negligence of the owner, possessor, or architect of particular premises was the proximate cause of personal injuries plaintiff received in a slip and fall accident. It contains forms of specific allegations [see §§ 525.50 -525.58] for use in an action against an owner or possessor of premises who has created and/or failed to discover, correct, or warn of a dangerous condition on the premises which caused plaintiff to slip and fall. It also contains a form of allegation [see § 525.59] for use in a complaint against an architect and/or designer for the negligent design and/or supervision of the construction of the structural condition which caused plaintiff to slip and fall.

[1] Reasonable Person Test

In accordance with Civ. Code § 1714(a), the proper test to be applied to the liability of the possessor of land is whether, in the management of his or her property, the possessor has acted as a reasonable person in view of the probability of injury to others. Although the plaintiff's status as a trespasser, licensee, or invitee may, in the light of the facts giving rise to such status, have some bearing on the question of liability, the status is not determinative [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561 ; see also Peterson v. Superior Court (1995) 10 Cal. 4th 1185, 1196-1197, 43 Cal. Rptr. 2d 836, 899 P.2d 905 (reiterating general principles of Rowland and other cases regarding negligence liability, while rejecting strict liability for injuries caused by latent defects in premises)].

The statutory standard of care required by Civ. Code § 1714(a) is the same as the standard of care traditionally required in cases where the plaintiff's status was that of an invitee [Beauchamp v. Los Gatos Golf Course (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 20, 25, 77 Cal. Rptr. 914] . Therefore, those decisions delineating the duties of a landowner or possessor toward his or her invitee are not abrogated by Rowland v. Christian [Beauchamp v. Los Gatos Golf Course (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 20, 25, 77 Cal. Rptr. 914] .

The possessor of land has a duty to correct or warn of known dangerous conditions [Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 119, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561] . The possessor also has a duty to make a reasonable inspection to discover dangerous conditions which are not known, and a plaintiff may use evidence of the lack of inspections within a reasonable length of time to prove circumstantially that the possessor had constructive knowledge of the defect with sufficient time to correct it [Ortega v. Kmart Corp. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 1200, 1212-1213, 114 Cal. Rptr. 2d 470, 36 P.3d 11 (jury question whether, considering all circumstances, lack of inspection is sufficient to support liability)]; [Bridgman v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 443, 447, 2 Cal. Rptr. 146, 348 P.2d 696] . However, the possessor is not required to warn of obvious dangers [Curland v. Los Angeles County Fair Ass'n (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 691, 695, 258 P.2d 1063] .

The court of appeal has specifically rejected the argument that a store may be liable if the store's use of a particular business model creates a greater risk that a particular hazard will arise more frequently, even though the store does not have knowledge or constructive knowledge of the dangerous condition that actually caused the injury. In that case, for example, a department store was not liable to a patron who slipped on a french fry merely because the store leased space to a fast food restaurant and allowed patrons to take food and drink from the restaurant into the department store, absent a showing that the store knew or should have known of the french fry in time to prevent the injury [Moore v. Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (2003) 111 Cal. App. 4th 472, 478-479, 3 Cal. Rptr. 3d 813] .

[2] Floors

An owner or possessor of property has the duty of keeping floors dry [Tuttle v. Crawford (1936) 8 Cal. 2d 126, 133-134, 63 P.2d 1128 ; Lamb v. Purity Store, Inc. (1932) 119 Cal. App. 690, 692, 7 P.2d 197] and free from foreign substances [see Ahern v. S.H. Kress & Co. (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 691, 699, 218 P.2d 108] so that they are reasonably safe to traverse. The question of reasonable safety is closely related to the type of person expected to traverse the floor. It has been held that even the mere waxing of a floor may be negligent in some cases [Cagle v. Bakersfield Med. Group (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 77, 81, 241 P.2d 1013] . Whether a floor is so negligently maintained as to render the person responsible for its condition liable for damages is a question of fact [Tuttle v. Crawford (1936) 8 Cal. 2d 126, 130, 63 P.2d 1128] .

[3] Carpets and Floor Mats

The owner or possessor of property is liable for injuries resulting from unreasonably loose carpeting [Sharpless v. Pantages (1918) 178 Cal. 122, 124, 172 P. 384] or unsafe floor mats [Blumberg v. M. & T., Inc. (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 226, 229, 209 P.2d 1] .

[4] Stairs

The owner or possessor of premises is liable for injuries caused by dangerous or defective stairs [Megee v. Fasulis (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 94, 103, 150 P.2d 281] . Among the conditions found to be unreasonably dangerous are slippery stairs [see Donohue v. San Francisco Hous. Auth. (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 658, 665, 20 Cal. Rptr. 2d 148 (wet concrete stairs without skid-resistant treads); Rau v. Redwood City Woman's Club (1952) 111 Cal. App. 2d 546, 551-552, 245 P.2d 12] , unlighted stairs [see Ralph v. Clifton's Brookdale, Inc. (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 574, 576-577, 193 P.2d 511] , stairs with different height steps [King v. New Masonic Temple Assn.(1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 512, 515-516, 125 P.2d 559] , and defective bannisters [Trainor v. Maus (1954) 126 Cal. App. 2d 295, 299, 271 P.2d 957] .

[5] Sidewalks

Despite the existence of a statute requiring a property owner to keep adjacent sidewalks in repair [Sts. & Hy. Code § 5610], the courts have held that the property owner is not liable for injury caused by dangerous conditions that are not created by the owner's positive acts [Jones v. Deeter (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 798, 803, 199 Cal. Rptr. 825 ; Schaefer v. Lenahan (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 324, 326-332, 146 P.2d 929] . However, if an abutting owner created the dangerous condition [Lay v. Pacific Perforating Co. (1944) 62 Cal. App. 2d 233, 237, 144 P.2d 395] , or if the dangerous condition was created for the special benefit and convenience of the abutting owner [Daly v. Mathews (1942) 49 Cal. App. 2d 545, 548, 122 P.2d 81] , the owner will be liable.

[6] Distinction Between Owner and Possessor

Common law holds the possessor of property primarily responsible for its safe condition. Possession is equated with occupancy plus control [Low v. Sacramento (1970) 7 Cal. App. 3d 826, 831, 87 Cal. Rptr. 173] . Control over property is defined as the power to prevent, remedy, or guard against the dangerous condition [Fuller v. California (1975) 51 Cal. App. 3d 926, 947, 125 Cal. Rptr. 586] . Thus, in determining liability and alleging a cause of action for slip and fall injuries, a crucial consideration is which party had control over the area where the accident occurred [

Schwartz v. Helms Bakery Ltd. (1967) 67 Cal. 2d 232, 239, 60 Cal. Rptr. 510, 430 P.2d 68] . Generally, this will be the party in possession of the property.

In limited circumstances, an owner not in possession may be liable for injuries on his or her premises. Thus, a landowner may be liable for injuries resulting from his or her failure to warn a tenant of a latent dangerous condition of which the owner had notice [Hanson v. Luft (1962) 58 Cal. 2d 443, 445, 24 Cal. Rptr. 681, 374 P.2d 641] , for breach of a convenant to repair [see McNally v. Ward (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 871, 884, 14 Cal. Rptr. 260] , for violation of a statute [Finnegan v. Royal Realty Co. (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 409, 423, 218 P.2d 17] , or for injuries occurring on a part of the property over which the owner retains control [Sockett v. Gottlieb (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 760, 766, 9 Cal. Rptr. 831] .

Thus, a slip and fall plaintiff would normally include the possessor of the property as a defendant, and, where there is a separate basis for liability, an owner not in possession of the property.

§ 525.12 Res Ipsa Loquitur Is Generally Unavailable

The Supreme Court has stated that experience teaches that slips and falls are not so likely to be the result of negligence that a presumption tothat effect is justified. The Court was unwilling to go so far as to say that res ipsa loquitur can never apply to a slip and fall, but noted that a slip and fall caused by a slippery object permits a res ipsa loquitur instruction only if the evidence shows that the object had been there long enough that the owner of the premises should have discovered and removed it [see Brown v. Poway Unified School Dist. (1993) 4 Cal. 4th 820, 826-827, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 679, 843 P.2d 624 (res ipsa presumption inappropriate when delivery person slipped, and piece of luncheon meat was found on bottom of shoe; possible explanations that did not involve negligence were equally probable as those involving negligence)].

§ 525.32 Decisions

[1] Architects

Architect was liable for wrongful death resulting from failure to mention presence of high-voltage line in plans that called for excavation of footings. Mallow v. Tucker, Sadler & Bennett, Architects & Eng'rs, Inc. (1966) 245 Cal. App. 2d 700, 702-703, 54 Cal. Rptr. 174

Architect who plans and supervises construction work has duty to exercise ordinary care for protection of persons who foreseeably may be injured by architect's failure to do so, even though injury may occur after work has been accepted by person engaging architect's services. Montijo v. Swift (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 351, 353, 33 Cal. Rptr. 133

Architect was liable for negligent supervision of construction of sun deck. Pieri v. Rosebrook (1954) 128 Cal. App. 2d 250, 257-258, 275 P.2d 67

Architect who negligently supervises construction has liability that is separate and distinct from liability of party who negligently performs actual construction. Alexander v. Hammarberg (1951) 103 Cal. App. 2d 872, 879-880, 884, 230 P.2d 399

[2] Basis of Liability

Common law distinctions as to duty owed to guests, invitees, and trespassers abolished and liability predicated on ordinary negligence under Civ. Code§ 1714, which is civil law, not common law principle. Rowland v. Christian (1968) 69 Cal. 2d 108, 112-120, 70 Cal. Rptr. 97, 443 P.2d 561

Joint liability of city and adjacent landowner for injury caused by landowner's creation of dangerous condition of sidewalk. Peters v. City & County of San Francisco (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 419, 429, 260 P.2d 55

Janitorial service was not liable for slip in parking lot because service contracted by owner to sweep lot and evidence showed that contract was performed to owner's satisfaction. Cacciaguidi v. Elliott (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 261, 264-265, 114 Cal. Rptr. 93

Abolishment of attractive nuisance doctrine in California. Smith v. Americania Motor Lodge (1974) 39 Cal. App. 3d 1, 7, 113 Cal. Rptr. 771

Trial court committed reversible error in refusing to instruct on general rule for liability for negligence pursuant to Civ. Code § 1714 in tenant's action against landlord for injuries sustained in fall off stairway when handrail broke. Brennan v. Cockrell Invs. Inc. (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 796, 800-802, 111 Cal. Rptr. 122

Propriety of jury instruction on safety order set forth in California Code of Regulations in personal injury action by boy who tripped over edge of uncompleted parking lot structure; persons consensually on premises to which safety order applies also came within its protection; defense of assumption of risk was inapplicable because action based on violation of safety law intended to protect class of which plaintiff was member. Cappa v. Oscar C. Holmes, Inc. (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 978, 981-984, 102 Cal. Rptr. 207

Liability of grandmother in case in which 4-year-old boy ran out from underneath robe rack in store and tripped woman in lingerie department. Costello v. Hart (1972) 23 Cal. App. 3d 898, 900-901, 100 Cal. Rptr. 554

[3] Floors

Duty of store proprietor to inspect, discover, make safe and/or warn of dangerous condition on floor. Bridgman v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 443, 446-447, 2 Cal. Rptr. 146, 348 P.2d 696

Liability of owner of office building for injury caused by unsafe floor mats. Blumberg v. M. & T., Inc. (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 226, 229, 209 P.2d 1

Necessity of proprietor's exercising care to keep floors and aisles safe was increased because attention of persons shopping at markets is attracted by displays of products. Tuttle v. Crawford (1936) 8 Cal. 2d 126, 130, 63 P.2d 1128 ; Sparks v. Allen Northridge Mkt. (1959) 176 Cal. App. 2d 694, 699-700, 1 Cal. Rptr. 595

Liability of theater for injury caused by loose carpets. Sharpless v. Pantages (1918) 178 Cal. 122, 125, 172 P. 384

In case involving plaintiff's slip on metal bracket left on store floor, trial court did not err in giving special jury instructions derived from valid case law, because instructions did not impose on defendant any duty other than reasonable care and did not negate plaintiff's comparative fault; instruction that store owners have duty to exercise ordinary care as not "unnecessarily to expose patron to danger or accident" did not permit jury to infer that owner may only avoid liability when exercising ordinary care to do what is necessary. Craddock v. Kmart Corp. (2001) 89 Cal. App. 4th 1300, 1306-1308, 107 Cal. Rptr. 2d 881

Plaintiff who fell while dancing on floor on which soap flakes had been applied and not thoroughly swept away was not barred from recovering for injuries from owner of premises and sponsor of dance; secondary assumption of risk applied because, despite risk of falling inherent in activity of social dancing, defendants had duty to use due care not to increase risk by making floor too slippery. Bush v. Parents Without Partners (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 322, 329, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 178

Obviousness of danger (planks, together with other equipment and supplies of painting contractor, stacked neatly in corner of hotel lobby) negated foreseeability of injury by defendant necessary to establish negligence and established negligence on part of plaintiff who tripped and fell. Dixon v. St. Francis Hotel Corp. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 739, 741, 77 Cal. Rptr. 201

Store owner not liable to patron for slip and fall caused by broken bottle on floor because store owner had neither actual nor constructive knowledge of dangerous condition. Romeo v. Jumbo Mkt. (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 817, 824, 56 Cal. Rptr. 26

Duty of storekeeper not to wax floor so as to make it slippery enough to be dangerous to patrons. Clayton v. J. C. Penney Co. (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 1, 6-7, 8 Cal. Rptr. 712

People are not expected to constantly look at floor for possible dangers. Shipman v. Norton (1957) 154 Cal. App. 2d 90, 93, 315 P.2d 906

Duty of plaintiff to look where he or she is going, to observe that which is in plain sight, and to avoid obvious danger. Curland v. Los Angeles County Fair Ass'n (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 691, 695, 258 P.2d 1063

Negligence was established by slip and fall caused by vomit on floor adjacent to seat because exercise of ordinary care would have revealed its presence to theater; amount of time substance had remained on floor, clear visibility with flashlight, and frequency of vomiting in theater were factors indicating that ordinary care in maintaining safe conditions had not been exercised. Travis v. Metropolitan Theatres Corp. (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 664, 668, 205 P.2d 475

Slip and fall on theater restroom floor caused by water and paper towels was negligence because manager had knowledge of dangerous condition and provided neither remedy nor warning to plaintiff who had no knowledge of condition. Newman v. Fox W. Coast Theatres (1948) 86 Cal. App. 2d 428, 432-433, 194 P.2d 706

Duty of store owner to find and remove puddle from floor. Ahern v. S.H. Kress & Co. (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 691, 699, 218 P.2d 108

Whether defective condition at grocery store existed long enough that it would have been discovered if owner exercised reasonable care was question forjury. Bridgman v. Safeway Stores, Inc. (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 443, 447, 2 Cal. Rptr. 146, 348 P.2d 696

Ordinance requiring abutting landowners to maintain public sidewalk created duty only to city, not to pedestrians; trial court's instructions on negligence per se doctrine were error. Selger v. Steven Bros., Inc. (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 1585, 1590-1591, 272 Cal. Rptr. 544

Owner of sidewalk dedicated to city was not liable for pedestrian's injury due to dangerous condition caused by roots of trees habitually maintained by city. Jones v. Deeter (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 798, 803-806, 199 Cal. Rptr. 825

Sts. & Hy. Code § 5610, which requires landowner to maintain abutting sidewalks, does not create duty to party injured because of failure to maintain sidewalk. Schaefer v. Lenahan (1944) 63 Cal. App. 2d 324, 327, 146 P.2d 929

§ 526.10 Governing Law

Small claims court proceedings are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 116.110 et seq. and by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.2100 et seq. In addition, the small claims division of a superior court appears to be subject to the statutes governing civil actions generally [Code Civ. Proc. § 307 et seq.] to the extent those statutes are not inconsistent with Code Civ. Proc. § 116.110 et seq. The Judicial Council has provided forms for use in small claims court proceedings [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen. A].

Appeals of small claims cases to the appellate division of the superior court, including practice and procedure on appeal and the time and manner in which the record on appeal is to be prepared and filed, are governed by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.710-116.730, 116.750-116.795, and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.950 et seq.

Chapter 526 SMALL CLAIMS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Provisions

46-526 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 526.31

§ 526.31 Organization and Purpose of Small Claims Courts

In each superior court there is a small claims division (known as small claims court) in which small claims may be tried [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.210]. Small claims courts were created by the Legislature to hear cases involving small amounts of money in order to reduce wasteful and expensive litigation, to minimize the costs of trial, and to dispense speedy justice [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.120(b); Hughes v. Municipal Court (1926) 200 Cal. 215, 218, 252 P. 575 ; see also Leuschen v. Small Claims Court (1923) 191 Cal. 133, 138, 215 P. 391]. The small claims court functions informally and quickly. Normal pleadings other than claim and notice are not required [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.310], and hearings and dispositions are informal [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.510]. There are no juries in the small claims court, and formal findings are not made on the issues [see Sanderson v. Niemann (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 563, 573, 110 P.2d 1025]. Small claims courts must operate to ensure that the convenience of individual parties and witnesses prevails, as much as possible, over the convenience of any other parties or witnesses [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.120(d)]. The Judicial Council has issued a form of information for plaintiffs in small claims actions, which summarizes the purpose of and procedures used in small claims court [see § 526.150].

The Legislature and courts have by statute and rule encouraged litigants to take advantage of the informality and expeditious nature of small claims proceedings [but see Discover Bank v. Superior Court (2005) 36 Cal. 4th 148, 156 (individual small-claims litigation is not adequate substitute for class litigation to vindicate substantive consumer rights in context of credit-card issuer's alleged scheme to cheat cardholders by overcharging late fees)]. Thus, the court in a limited civil case has the discretion to deny to a prevailing plaintiff all or part of the costs to which that plaintiff would otherwise be entitled to recover, when the plaintiff recovers an amount less than the maximum jurisdictional amount of the small claims court, and the plaintiff moreover could have filed the action in small claims court but did not do [Code Civ. Proc. § 1033(b); for further discussion, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.10 et seq.; for discussion of costs in small claims actions, see discussion in § 526.71[5]].

A cause of action for malicious prosecution is not allowed to be based on the institution of small claims proceedings, since this could frustrate an informal means of resolving small disputes, inject elements of time, expense, and complexity that the small claims process was established to avoid, and require a prudent claimant to consult with an attorney before making use of a supposedly attorney-free method for settling disputes over small amounts [Pace v.

Hillcrest Motor Co. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 476, 479, 161 Cal. Rptr. 662].

Chapter 526 SMALL CLAIMS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Provisions

46-526 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 526.32

§ 526.32 Subject Matter Jurisdiction

[1] Monetary Limits on Claims

[a] In General

A small claims court generally has jurisdiction over any action for the recovery of money in which the demand does not exceed $7,500 if the action is brought by a natural person, or $5,000 if the claimant is other than a natural person [Code. Civ. Proc. §§ 116.220(a)(1), 116.221]. Lower monetary limits may apply if the defendant is a guarantor or if the plaintiff who has already filed, within the current calendar year, two small claims actions demanding more than $2,500 [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.220(a)(1), (c), 116.221, 116.231(a); see [b], [e], below]. The small claims court's jurisdiction exists regardless of whether an action for the recovery of money is based on tort or on contract [see Leuschen v. Small Claims Court (1923) 191 Cal. 133, 215 P. 391].

The small claims courts also have jurisdiction over the following particular types of actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(a)], and retain jurisdiction until full payment and performance of any judgment or order in these actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(b)]:

- Claims to enforce payment of delinquent unsecured personal property taxes in an amount not to exceed $5,000, if the legality of the tax is not contested by the defendant and with the exception provided under Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(c) (discussed in § 526.32[2]) [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(a)(2)].

- Actions in which the plaintiff seeks a writ of possession under Civ. Code §§ 1861.5 and 1861.10 (providing for the issuance of a writ of possession pursuant to an innkeepers' lien), if the amount of the demand does not exceed $5,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(a)(3)]. For discussion and forms relating to an application for writ of possession under Civ. Code § 1861.5, see Ch. 297, Hotels and Motels .

- Actions to confirm, correct, or vacate a fee arbitration award not exceeding $5,000 between an attorney and client that is binding or has become binding; or to conduct a hearing de novo between an attorney and client after nonbinding arbitration of a fee disputeinvolving no more than $5,000 in controversy, pursuant to Bus. & Prof. Code § 6200 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(a)(4)]. For discussion of attorney-client fee arbitration, see Ch. 72, Attorney Practice and Ethics, § 72.430 et seq.

- Actions for injunctive or other equitable relief only if a statute expressly authorizes a small claims court to award that relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(a)(5)].

The small claims courts also have express jurisdiction in actions under Civ. Code § 1950.5 (for return of security deposit for rental of residential property) if the damages claimed, whether actual, statutory, or both, are otherwise within the jurisdictional amount of the small claims court [Civ. Code § 1950.5(n) (citing Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.220, 116.221)]. For discussion and forms relating to actions under Civ. Code § 1950.5, see Ch. 334, Landlord and Tenant: Damages Claims .

Claims exceeding the jurisdictional amount may be brought when the excess amount is waived [see discussion under § 526.32[1][d]]. On the other hand, certain filing restrictions apply to larger monetary claims [see § 526.32[1][e]].

The small claims courts no longer have jurisdiction over unlawful detainer proceedings [see Stats. 1992, ch. 8, § 1]. For discussion and forms relating to unlawful detainer proceedings in general, see Ch. 333, Landlord and Tenant: Eviction Actions .

[b] Exception for Claims Against Guarantors

An action brought by a natural person against the Registrar of the Contractors' State License Board, as the defendant guarantor, is subject to the same $7,500 small claims jurisdictional limit that applies to other actions brought by natural persons [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.220(c)(1), 116.221]. Special jurisdictional limits apply to other actions against defendant guarantors. Thus, for any action against a defendant guarantor (other than the Registrar of the Contractors' State License Board) that does not charge a fee for its guarantor or surety services, the small claims court has jurisdiction only if the amount of the demand does not exceed $2,500 [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(c)(2)]. For any action brought by a natural person against a defendant guarantor that charges a fee for its guarantor or surety services, the small claims court has jurisdiction only if the amount of the demand does not exceed $6,500 [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(c)(3)]. For any action brought by an entity other than a natural person against a defendant guarantor that charges a fee for its guarantor or surety services, or against the Registrar of the Contractors' State License Board as the defendant guarantor, the small claims court has jurisdiction only if the amount of the demand does not exceed $4,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(c)(4)].

[c] Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies Required for Claims Against Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation or Division of Juvenile Facilities

Notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(a), in any action filed by a plaintiff who is incarcerated in a facility of the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation [see Penal Code § 5055], the small claims court has jurisdiction over a defendant only if the plaintiff has alleged in the complaint that he or she has exhausted his or her administrative remedies against that department, including compliance with Gov. Code §§ 905.2 and 905.4 (requiring presentation of written claim against state). The department's final administrative adjudication or determination of plaintiff's administrative claim may be attached to the complaint at the time of filing in lieu of that allegation [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(e)]. The department's representative [see discussion under § 526.34[2][d]] is not required to appear personally to challenge the plaintiff's compliance with the pleading requirements, but may submit pleadings or declarations to assert that challenge [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.541(b)].

In any action governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(e), if the plaintiff fails to provide proof of compliance with that section (i.e., exhaustion of administrative remedies against the department), the judicial officer must, at his or her discretion, either dismiss the action or continue the action to give the plaintiff the opportunity to provide such proof [

Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(f)].

For purposes of Gov. Code § 116.220, "department" includes an employee of a department against whom a claim has been filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 116.110 et seq. arising out of his or her duties as an employee of that department [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(g)].

For full discussion of procedures for filing pre-litigation claims against the State of California, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

[d] Waiver of Excess Amount of Demand

In any case in which the lack of jurisdiction in small claims court is due solely to an excess in the amount of the demand, the excess may be waived, but any waiver shall not become operative until judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(d)].

Once the plaintiff has elected to bring an action as a limited civil case, the action may not thereafter be transferred to the small claims court, even if the plaintiff waives any amount in his or her claim in excess of the maximum jurisdicitional amount of the small claims court [see Rosenberg v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 860, 869, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 365 and discussion in § 526.32[6]].

[e] Filing Restrictions on Claims Exceeding $2,500

In general, no individual may file more than two small claims actions in which the demand exceeds $2,500, anywhere in California within any calendar year [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.231(a)]. If any demand exceeds $2,500, the party making the demand must file a declaration under penalty of perjury attesting to the fact that not more than two small claims actions in which the demand exceeded $2,500 have been filed by that party in California within the calendar year [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.231(b); see § 526.151].

However, the above limitation on bringing small claims actions does not apply to filings in which the claim (the amount of the demand) does not exceed $5,000 that are filed by a city, county, city and county, or other public entity prescribed by statute [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.231(c), (d)].Nevertheless, if any small claims action is filed by these public entities pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 116.231, and the defendant informs the court either in advance of the hearing by written notice or at the time of the hearing, that he or she is represented in the action by legal counsel,the action must be transferred out of the small claims division [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.231(d)]. This exception to the general filing limitation was enacted after a pilot project demonstrated the "efficacy of the removal of the limitation on the number of actions public agencies may file in the small claims courts on claims exceeding $2,500" [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.231(c)].

[2] Effect of Joinder of Claims by Multiple Plaintiffs

Generally, if there is a voluntary joinder of several plaintiffs who join separate claims against the defendant that arise out of the same transaction and if each claim is within the monetary limit of the court in which the action is filed, that court will have jurisdiction, even though the aggregate of the claims exceeds the monetary limit of the court [Winrod v. Wolters (1903) 141 Cal. 399, 403, 74 P. 1037 ; Colla v. Carmichael U--Drive Autos, Inc. (1930) 111 Cal. App. 784, 111 Cal. App. Supp. 784, 791-792, 294 P.378]. Applying this rule to actions in small claims court, if there is a joinder of plaintiffs, each with a separate claim against defendant that does not exceed $5,000, the case is within the jurisdiction of the small claims division even though the total of all the plaintiffs' claims exceeds that amount [City and County of San Francisco v. Small Claims Court (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 470, 477, 190 Cal. Rptr. 340].

Nevertheless, if two or more plaintiffs claim a joint interest in the amount recovered, the total amount claimed by all the plaintiffs must not exceed the jurisdictional limits of the court [see Frost v. Mighetto (1937) 22 Cal. App. 2d 612,

615-616, 71 P.2d 932].

[3] Effect of Splitting Cause of Action

[a] In General

A single cause of action arising from the same set of facts should not be split to bring it within the jurisdiction of the small claims court, since, if the plaintiff attempts to bring another action for the balance of his or her claim, the defendant may plead the first action in abatement of the subsequent action [see Wulfjen v. Dolton (1944) 24 Cal. 2d 891, 894, 151 P.2d 846 ; see also Purcell v. Colonial Ins. Co. (1971) 20 Cal. App. 3d 807, 813, 97 Cal. Rptr. 874 ; Ch. 3, Abatement of Actions]. The defense, however, is not jurisdictional and may be waived if not asserted [Williams v. Krumsiek (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 456, 460, 241 P.2d 40].

[b] Effect Of Insured's Small Claims Action on Later Subrogation Action by Insurer

A policyholder's small claims judgment against the tortfeasor bars the insurance company from pursuing its subrogation action because the latter action is precluded by the res judicata effect of the rule against splitting a cause of action. Neither the insured nor the subrogee-insurer may sue again, notwithstanding the insured tort victim's failure to recover for all damages suffered in the first action [Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 904-905, 913, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151]. In Allstate, for example, a buyer purchased an automobile from a dealer who had negligently repaired the vehicle's cigarette lighter. The buyer submitted an insurance claim after the vehicle caught fire, and the insurer, declaring the vehicle to be a total loss, paid the buyer $14,583.93 under the policy. The buyer subsenquently sued the dealer/seller in small claims court for the value of personal items lost in the fire that were not covered by the policy. A subsequent action against the dealer/seller, by the insurance company seeking subrogation for the amount paid to the buyer was barred by the buyer's small claims action [see Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 905, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151].

When a tortfeasor's single act causes the plaintiff to suffer both personal injury and property damage, there are two causes of action. Thus, some jurisdictions have found that there is no impermissible splitting of a cause of action when an insurer brings an action to recover the amount it paid the insured for property damage and the insured brings a separate action for personal injuries [Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 909, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151 (citing authority from other jurisdictions)]. A separate cause of action does not arise, however, for each separate item of property damaged as a result of one tortious act [Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 909, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151 ; see Holmes v. David H. Bricker, Inc. (1969) 70 Cal. 2d 786, 789, 76 Cal.Rptr. 431, 452 P.2d 647]. Thus, an insurer's subrogation claim for property damage to a vehicle may be barred by a prior small claims action for property damages to personal property within the vehicle [Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 909, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151].

An insurer may, however, include in its contract with the policyholder a clause prohibiting the policyholder from impairing the insurer's subrogation rights. In such a case, the insurer has the obligation to reiterate and explain this condition to the policyholder when it pays his or her insurance claim. The insurer may then agree to seek recovery of the policyholder's uninsured losses for him or her in connection with its subrogation claim, or require that the policyholder coordinate his or her action with the insurer's future legal action. If, despite this clear advisement, the insured pursues a small claims action, the insurer could resort to an action against the insured for impairment of its subrogation rights [see Allstate Ins. Co.v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 913, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151 ; State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co. v. Davis (1981) 122 Cal. App. 3d Supp. 23, 176 Cal. Rptr. 517]. If an insurer does not want to risk having to sue its insured or does not want to prevent him or her from recouping her uninsured losses in an expeditious and inexpensive small claims court action with a clause prohibiting the policyholder from impairing the insurer's subrogation rights, the insurer could file an action as a prophylactic measure at the time it reimburses the policyholder for his or her insured losses and then give the third party tortfeasor an open extension of time in which to respond to the complaint. By doing so, it creates circumstances requiring the third party tortfeasor to object to the splitting of the cause of action at the time that policyholder files the small claims action. This is because the insurer's action provides a forum in which the claims could be consolidated or coordinated [Allstate Ins. Co. v. Mel Rapton, Inc. (2000) 77 Cal. App. 4th 901, 913, 92 Cal. Rptr. 2d 151].

[4] Incidental Equitable Relief and Conditional Judgment

In any action seeking relief authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(a)(1)-(4) (discussed in [1][a], above), the court may grant equitable relief in the form of rescission, restitution, reformation, and specific performance in lieu of, or in addition to, money damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(b); see generally Ch. 488, Reformation of Instruments , Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution , and Ch. 528, Specific Performance]. In addition to equitable relief, the small claims court has authority to issue a conditional judgment in these actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(b)].

Aside from actions described in Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(a)(1)-(4), a small claims court may grant injunctive or other equitable relief only if a statute expressly authorizes the court to award that relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(a)(5)].

[5] Jurisdictional Transfer to Small Claims Court Not Authorized

Once a case is filed in superior court, it may not be transferred to small claims court, even if the plaintiff seeks the transfer and voluntarily agrees to waive damages in excess of the jurisdictional limit on small claims [see Rosenberg v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 860, 869, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 365]. Although Rosenberg was decided in the context of a case filed in municipal court prior to the creation of unified superior courts [Rosenberg v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 860, 868 n.3, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 365 ; see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 23 (abolition of municipal courts and unification within superior courts)], the result should be the same when an action is filed in superior court.

The only type of small claims transfer specifically authorized by statute is a transfer from small claims court to another court of competent jurisdiction, on the instigation of a defendant whose cross claim exceeds the small claims jurisdictional limit (generally, $7,500 if action is brought by natural person, or $5,000 if claimant is other than natural person) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.390; see also Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.220(a)(1), 116.221 and discussion in § 526.53[3]]. Thus, there is no statutory authorization for a transfer from superior court to a small claims court. Under Code Civ. Proc. § 396, a transfer is permitted only when thetransferring court lacks subject matter jurisdiction. A superior court, however, does not lack subject matter jurisdiction over a claim merely because it also happens to be within the jurisdiction of the small claims court. Thus, a claimant may elect to seek recovery of an amount within the small claims court's jurisdiction by filing a case in either superior court or small claims court, but the superior court is not empowered by Section 396 to transfer the case to small claims court [see Rosenberg v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 860, 867, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 365] .

In addition, although courts have inherent power to transfer cases and otherwise control their own calendars and dockets, this inherent power does not permit the transfer of a case from superior court to small claims court. The small claims court is not simply another division or department of the superior court for purposes of transfer, and the power of transfer is not absolute. A transfer must further the ends of justice, and justice is not served when an actively litigated superior court case is transferred to a small claims court [see Rosenberg v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 860, 867-868, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 365] . The purpose of small claims--speedy and low-cost resolution--is accomplished only when a claim is initially filed in small claims court and is immediately subject to the abbreviated small claims procedures. Filing and litigating the claim in superior court first has the effect of preventing the kind of quick resolution for which small claims court is designed. Once a small claim has been litigated in superior court, it is impossible to go backward in time and process the claim through quick and informal means [see Rosenberg v. Superior Court (1998) 67 Cal. App. 4th 860, 867-868, 79 Cal. Rptr. 2d 365] .

A limited civil case may be reclassified as an unlimited civil case, and vice versa, on grounds of subject matter jurisdiction [see Code Civ. Proc. § 403.010 et seq.]. There is, however, no statutory authorization for a jurisdictional reclassification of a limited civil case as a small claims case, just as there is none for the jurisdictional transfer of a limited civil case from superior court to a small claims court.

§ 526.33 Venue

The venue of the action filed in the small claims court is the same as for other civil actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.370(a)] and is governed generally by Code Civ. Proc. § 392 et seq. (discussed in Ch. 571, Venue). Local court rules may prescribe the proper court locations for small claims actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.370(a)].

A defendant who wishes to challenge venue or court location may do so by writing to the court and mailing a copy to all parties without personally appearing at the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.370(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.2106]. If the court denies the challenge and the defendant is not present, the hearing must be continued to another appropriate date, and the parties must be given notice of the venue determination and the hearing date [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.2106].

In all cases, including those in which the defendant does not either challenge venue or court location or appear at the hearing, the small claims court must inquire of the parties facts sufficient to determine whether venue or court location is proper and must make its determination accordingly [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.370(c)]. If the court determines that the action has not commenced in the proper venue, the court, on its own motion, must dismiss the action without prejudice unless all defendants are present and agree that the action may be heard [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.370(c)(1)]. If the court determines that the action was not commenced in the proper court location, the court may transfer the action to a proper location pursuant to local rule [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.370(c)(1)].

If the court determines that the action was commenced in the proper venue and court location, the court may hear the case if all parties are present. If the defendant challenged venue or court location, and all parties are not present, the court must postpone the hearing for at least 15 days and must notify all parties by mail of the court's decision and of the new hearing date, time, and place [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.370(c)(2)].

Chapter 526 SMALL CLAIMS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Provisions

46-526 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 526.34

§ 526.34 Parties

[1] In General

Any person who is at least 18 years of age, or legally emancipated, and mentally competent may be a party to a small claims action [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.410(a)]. For this purpose "person" includes an individual (or natural person), corporation, partnership, limited liability partnership, limited liability company, firm, association, or other entity [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.130(e), (f); see also discussion § 526.130[7]].

A person who is a minor or who is not competent may nonetheless appear by a guardian ad litem appointed by a judge of the court in which the action is filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.410(b); see Fam. Code § 6500 (minor is person under age 18); see generally Ch. 291, Guardians ad Litem].

Specific restrictions on the appearance by assignees, corporations, or other entities are discussed in § 526.34[2]. For discussion of when a party may appear by a representative at the hearing, thereby waiving personal appearance, see § 526.70[7].

[2] Restrictions

[a] Assignee

The small claims statute prohibits the filing or prosecution of a claim by an assignee; only the original creditor may file or prosecute a claim in the small claims court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.420(a)]. But an action may be filed or defended by (1) a trustee in bankruptcy in the exercise of the trustee's duties as trustee, or (2) the holder of a security agreement, retailinstallment contract, or lien contract subject to the Unruh Act (Civ. Code § 1801 et seq.) or the Rees-Levering Motor Vehicle Sales and Finance Act (Civ. Code § 2981 et seq.) purchased by the holder for his or her portfolio of investments, provided the holder is not an assignee for the purpose of collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.420(b)]. For discussion of the Rees-Levering and Unruh Acts, see Ch. 89, Automobiles: Sales and Financing Under the Rees-Levering Act and Ch. 90, Automobiles: Vehicle Leasing Act].

In addition, the statutory prohibition on filing or maintaining a claim in small claims court by an assignee of the claim does not prevent the filing of a claim by a local government that is self-insured for purposes of workers' compensation and is seeking subrogation pursuant to Lab. Code § 3852 [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.420(c)].

[b] Corporation

A corporation generally may appear and participate in a small claims action only through a regular employee or a duly appointed or elected officer or director who is employed, appointed, or elected for purposes other than the exclusive representation of the corporation in small claims court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(b)]. In addition, if the corporation is an association created to manage a common interest development [see Civ. Code § 1351], it may appear and participate in a small claims action through an agent, a management company representative, or a bookkeeper who appears on behalf of that association [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(b), (i)].

Any individual representing a corporate plaintiff at the hearing of a small claims action is required to submit a declaration stating (1) that the person is authorized to appear for the corporation, (2) the basis for the person's authorization, and (3) that the person is not employed solely for the purpose of representing the corporation in the small claims court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(j)].

If a corporation is a party to an appeal from a small claims action, the corporation may also appear before the superior court through an attorney at law [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.770(c)].

[c] Other Entity

An entity that is not a natural person or a corporation may appear and participate in a small claims action only through a regular employee or a duly appointed or elected officer or director, or, in the case of a partnership, a partner, engaged for purposes other than solely representing the party in small claims court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(c)].

The representative of a plaintiff entity that is not a natural person is required by the court to submit a declaration stating (1) that the individual is authorized to appear for the entity, (2) the basis for that authorization, and (3) that the person is not employed solely for the purpose of representing the entity in the small claims court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(j)].

[d] Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation or Division of Juvenile Facilities

Notwithstanding Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540 or any other provision of law, the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation [see Penal Code § 5055] or the Department's Division of Juvenile Facilities [see Penal Code § 6001] may appear and participate in a small claims action through a regular employee who is employed or appointed for purposes other than solely representing that department in small claims court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.541(a)].

At the hearing of a small claims action, the court must require any individual who is appearing as a representative of the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation [see Penal Code § 5055] or the Department's Division of Juvenile Facilities [see Penal Code § 6001] under Code Civ. Proc. § 116.541(a) to file a declaration stating (1) that the individual is authorized to appear for the party, (2) the basis for that authorization, and (3) that the individual is not employed solely to represent the party in small claims court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.541(c)]. Nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 116.541 operates or may be construed to authorize an attorney to participate in a small claims action, except as expressly authorized in Code Civ. Proc. § 116.530 [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.541(d); see discussion under § 526.35].

The foregoing provisions pertaining to the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation and the Department's Division of Juvenile Facilities also apply to any employee of the Department or Division against whom a small claim has been filed arising out of his or her duties as an employee of the Department or Division [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.541(e)].

[3] Vexatious Litigants

An order entered pursuant to Code Civ Proc. § 391.7 prohibiting a vexatious litigant from filing any new litigation in state courts without prior court approval does not apply to actions filed in small claims court, because small claims court is not a court of record [Banks v. State of California (1993) 14 Cal. App. 4th 1147, 1149-1150, 18 Cal. Rptr. 2d 127 (construing Code Civ. Proc. § 391(a) definition of "litigation," which only refers to actions in a court of record); see also Ch. 573, Vexatious Litigants].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Provisions

46-526 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 526.35

§ 526.35 Legal Assistance

[1] Restriction on Attorneys

No attorney at law or person other than the plaintiff and the defendant may take any part in the conduct or defense of a small claims action [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.530(a), 116.540(a)]. This rule does not apply if the attorney is appearing to maintain or defend an action (1) by or againsthimself or herself, (2) by or against a partnership in which he or she is a general partner and in which all the partners are attorneys, or (3) by or against a professional corporation of which he or she is an officer or a director and of which all other officers and directors are attorneys at law [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.530(b)].

This prohibition does not prevent an attorney from (1) providing advice to a party to a small claims action, either before or after the commencement of the action, (2) testifying to facts of which he or she has personal knowledge and about which he or she is competent to testify, (3) representing a party in an appeal to the superior court, and (4) representing a party in connection with the enforcement of a judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.530(c)].

[2] Legal Advisors

[a] Individual Assistance Available to Litigants

Each county must provide individual assistance to small claims court litigants and potential litigants at no additional charge [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.260]. Within the legislative guidelines set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 116.940, each county must establish its own particular advisory service. The advisors may be volunteers, but must be members of the State Bar, law students, paralegals, or persons experienced in resolving minor disputes and must be familiar with small claims court rules and procedures. The topics that individual personal advisory services may cover include preparation of small claims court filings, procedures, including procedures related to the conduct of the hearing, and information on the collection of small claims court judgments [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.940(b)(1)]. Advisors may not appear in court as advocates for any party [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.940(e)] and are not liable for any advice provided as a public service [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.940(f); Gov. Code § 818.9].

In addition to the small claims advisors, the clerks of the small claims court are also available to assist individual litigants. A clerk is required to provide small claims forms and pamphlets, materials from the Department of Consumer Affairs, when available, and information about the small claims advisory service. The clerk must also answer the litigant's questions about filing and service of the claim, designation of the parties, scheduling of hearings, and similar matters [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.2110].

For discussion of when the court may appoint someone to assist a party present a claim or defense at the hearing, see the discussion in Assistance in Presenting Claim or Defense, below.

[b] Notice of Availability

The small claims court clerk is required to inform the parties orally or in writing (1) that an advisor is available to assist small claims litigants at no additional charge as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.260 and 116.940, and (2) of the provisions of Gov. Code § 818.9 (nonliability of advisors for advice given) [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.2120(a)].

[c] Qualifications of Advisors and Conflict of Interest

All small claims advisors must receive training from the county sufficient to ensure competence in the following areas: small claims court practice and procedure; alternative dispute resolution programs; consumer sales; vehicular sales, leasing, and repairs; credit and financing transactions; professional and occupational licensing; landlord-tenant law; and contract, warranty, tort, and negotiable instruments law [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.2120(b)]. In addition to this training, each county may establish additional qualifications for small claims advisors [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.2120(c)].

A small claims advisor is required to disclose any known direct or indirect relationship he or she may have with any party or witness in the action and must not disclose information obtained in the course of his or her duties or use the information for financial or other advantage [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.2120(d)].

Chapter 526 SMALL CLAIMS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Commencement of Claim

46-526 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 526.50

§ 526.50 Commencement of Action

[1] Filing of Claim

A plaintiff may commence an action in small claims court by filing a claim under oath with the clerk of the small claims court in person, by mail, by facsimile transmission if authorized by statute, or by electronic means as authorized by statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.320(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.5 (facsimile); Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6 (electronic filing)].

[2] Content of Claim

The claim must set forth the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.320(b)]:

- The name and address of the defendant, if known.

- The amount and basis of the claim. If the action is to enforce the payment of a debt, the claim must separately state the original debt, each payment credited to the debt, each fee and charge added to the debt, each payment credited against those fees and charges, all other debits or charges to the account, and an explanation of the nature of those fees, charges, debits, and all other credits to the debt, by source and amount [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.222].

- That the plaintiff, when possible, has demanded payment and, in applicable cases, the possession of the property.

- That the defendant has failed or refused to pay and, when applicable, has refused to surrender the property.

- That the plaintiff understands that the judgment on his or her claim will be conclusive without right of appeal.

As required by Code Civ. Proc. § 116.320(b), the Judicial Council has approved of a form of claim and order for general use in small claims cases [see § 526.151]. Other requirements concerning the contents of plaintiff's claim are set out in the Comments to see § 526.151.

[3] Fees

The plaintiff must pay a filing fee. If the plaintiff has filed 12 or fewer other small claims in California within the previous 12 months, the amount of the fee depends on the amount of the claim. The filing fee is $30 if the demand is for $1,500 or less, $50 if the demand is for more than $1,500 but not more than $5,000, and $75 if the demand is for more than $5,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.230(b)]. If, after filing a claim and paying the required fee, the plaintiff files an amendment or amended claim that increases the amount of the claim to a level that would have required a higher filing fee had the full claim been presented initially, the plaintiff must pay the difference when filing the amendment or amended claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.230(d)]. However, if an amendment reduces the plaintiff's claim to a level that would have required a lower filing fee than the plaintiff actually paid, the court will not reimburse the plaintiff [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.230(d)(4)].

If the plaintiff has filed more than 12 other small claims in California within the previous 12 months, the filing fee is a flat $100, regardless of the amount of the demand [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.230(c)]. The plaintiff must file a declaration with the claim, stating whether he or she has filed more than 12 other small claims within the previous 12 months [Code Civ. Proc. § 1116.230(e)].

In addition to the filing fee, the plaintiff must pay the court clerk a fee of $10 for each defendant to whom the clerk mails a copy of the claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.232; see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.340].

[4] Designation of Parties

[a] Individual

An individual party should be designated by his or her first name, middle initial, if any, and last name. A husband and wife may be designated as such.

[b] Partnership

A partnership may be designated by the name that it has assumed or by which it is known [see Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(a)].

[c] Unincorporated Association

An unincorporated association may be designated by the name of the association [see Code Civ. Proc. § 369.5(a)].

[d] Minor or Incompetent

A mi nor or incompetent is designated by the name of the minor and the name of the guardian, for example, "John Doe, a minor, by Jane Doe, his guardian ad litem," or "general guardian," depending on the circumstances [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 372, 373].

[e] Public Entities

A public entity is designated by its full name. The term "public entity" includes the state, the Regents of the University of California, a county, city, district, public authority, public agency, and any other political subdivision or public corporation in this state [Gov. Code § 811.2]. An action may be brought against a public entity after a claim has been filed and disallowed [Gov. Code § 945.4]. Generally, an action against a public entity must be commenced within six months after the claim has been acted on or rejected by the governing body of the public entity if written notice is given, or within two years from the accrual of the cause of action if written notice is not given [Gov. Code § 945.6; see Gov. Code § 913; see generally Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act].

[5] Obtaining Hearing Date

When a claim is filed in small claims court, the clerk must schedule the case for hearing in accordance with the time requirements listed below and issue an order directing the parties to appear at the scheduled hearing with witnesses and documents to prove their claim or defense [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.330(a)]. The case must be scheduled for hearing no earlier than 20 days but not more than 70 days from the date of the order [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.330(a)].

In lieu of the method of setting the case for hearing described above, the clerk may do all of the following: (1) cause a copy of the claim to be mailed to the defendant by any form of mail providing for a return of receipt; (2) on receipt of proof that the claim was served, issue an order scheduling the case for hearing in accordance with the time requirements set out in the foregoing paragraph and direct the parties to appear at the scheduled hearing with witnesses and documents to prove their claim or defense; and (3) cause a copy of the order setting the case for hearing and directing the parties to appear to be served on the parties by any form of mail providing for a return receipt [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.330(b)].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Commencement of Claim

46-526 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 526.51

§ 526.51 Fictitious Business Name

[1] Declaration of Compliance With Laws

If a plaintiff operates or does business under a fictitious business name and the claim relates to that business, the plaintiff must file with the claim a declaration stating that the plaintiff has complied with the fictitious business name laws by executing, filing, and publishing a fictitious business name statement as required [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.430(a)]. The declaration of compliance must be filed in each case the plaintiff files [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.2100(a)]. For the purposes of this requirement, "fictitious business name" means that which is described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17900, and "fictitious business name statement" means that which is described in Bus. & Prof. Code § 17913 [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.430(c)]. For a discussion of the fictitious business name laws, see Ch. 20, Allegations Commonly Used, §§ 20.34 -20.36.

The clerk must make the declaration of compliance available to the claimant in any one of the following ways: (1) the declaration may be on a separate form approved by the Judicial Council [see § 526.155]; (2) the approved Judicial Council form may be placed on the reverse of Plaintiff's Statement to the Clerk or on the back of any Judicial Council small claims form with only one side; or (3) the precise language of the declaration of compliance that appears on the approved Judicial Council form may be incorporated into the Plaintiff's Statement to the Clerk [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.2100(b)].

An action filed by a party who has failed to comply with the applicable fictitious business name laws by executing, filing, and publishing a fictitious business name statement as required shall be dismissed without prejudice [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.430(b)].

[2] Correct Legal Name of Defendant

Whenever a claim that is filed against a person operating or doing business under a fictitious business name relates to the defendant's business, the court shall inquire at the time of the hearing into the defendant's correct legal name and the name or names under which the defendant does business. If the correct legal name of the defendant, or the name actually used by the defendant, is other than the name stated on the claim, the court shall amend the claim to state the correct legal name of the defendant and the name or names actually used by the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.560(a)].

Plaintiff may request the court at any time, whether before or after judgment, to amend the claim of the plaintiff or the judgment to include both the correct legal name and the actually used name or names of the defendant. On a showing of good cause, the court will amend the claim or judgment to state the correct legal name of the defendant and the name or names actually used by the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.560(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.630].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Commencement of Claim

46-526 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 526.52

§ 526.52 Service of Plaintiff's Claim and Ordering of Defendant's Appearance

[1] In General

Service of the claim and order on the defendant may be made by substituted service [see discussion under § 526.52[2]] or by one of the following methods [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.340(a)]:

- The clerk may cause a copy of the claim and order to be mailed to defendant by any form of mail providing for a return receipt.

- The plaintiff may cause a copy of the claim and order to be delivered to defendant in person.

- Instead of serving the claim and order at the same time, the clerk may first have the claim served on the defendant by any form of mail providing for a return receipt. On receipt of proof of service by mail, the clerk may issue the order scheduling the hearing and have it served by any form of mail providing for a return receipt [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.330(b), discussed in § 526.50[5]].

Generally, service must be made within California to be valid [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.340(e)]. An exception is provided for the personal service of a complaint relating to real property in California on the owner of record of that property, by any of the methods described above, when the owner resides in another state and has no lawfully designated agent in California for service of process [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.340(f)].

[2] Substituted Service

Service of the claim and order on the defendant may be made by substituted service, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(a) or (b) (substituted service of summons and complaint), without the need to attempt personal service on the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.340(a)(3)]. Even though Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b) requires that the plaintiff first use reasonable diligence to effect personal service on the defendant, no due diligence is required in a small claims court action [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.2100].

Substituted service consists of any of the following:

- Leaving a copy of the claim during usual office hours in the defendant's office with a person who is apparently in charge, and then mailing another copy of the claim by first-class mail, postage prepaid, to the defendant at the place where the copy of the claim was left [see Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(a)]. If the physical address of the defendant's office is not known, substituted service may be made by leaving a copy of the claim at the defendant's usual mailing address (other than a United States Postal Service post office box) with a person at least age 18, who must be informed of the contents of the delivery, and then mailing another copy of the claim by first-class mail, postage prepaid, to the defendant at the place where the copy of the claim was left [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(a)].

- Leaving a copy of the claim at defendant's dwelling house, usual place of abode, or place of business or usual mailing address (other than a United States Postal Service post office box) in the presence of a competent member of the household or a person who is apparently in charge and who is at least 18 years of age and has been informed of the contents of the claim, and then mailing another copy of theclaim to the defendant at the place where the copy of the claim was left [see Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(b)]. For these purposes, substituted service may also be made at the office of the sheriff or marshal, who will deliver a copy of the claim and order to any person authorized by the defendant to receive service, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 416.90, who is at least 18 years of age, and thereafter mail a copy of the claim and order to the defendant's usual mailing address [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.340(a)(3)].

- If the defendant is a business organization of unknown form, leaving a copy of the claim during usual office hours with the person who is apparently in charge of the office of that business organization, and thereafter mailing a copy of the claim by first-class mail, postage prepaid, to the person to be served at the place where the copy of the claim was left [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.95(a)]. Service in this manner is not valid, however, for a corporation with a registered agent for service of process listed with the California Secretary of State [Code Civ. Proc. § 415.95(b)].

For further discussion of substituted service of a summons and complaint under Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(a) and (b), see Ch. 518, Service of Summons and Papers .

[3] Service on Nonresident Motorist

Service on the Director of the Department of Motor Vehicles, and notice to the defendant if made by any of the methods described in Code Civ. Proc. § 116.340, must satisfy the requirements of Veh. Code § 17450 et seq. regarding constructive service on a nonresident owner or operator of a motor vehicle involved in an accident in California [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.340(e)]. For further discussion and forms relating to these service requirements under the Vehicle Code, see Ch. 83, Automobiles: Bringing the Action .

[4] Service on Principal in Suretyship Action

In any action against a principal and his or her guarantor or surety under a guarantor or suretyship agreement, a reasonable attempt must be made to complete service on the principal. If service is not completed on the principal, the action must be transferred to the court of appropriate jurisdiction [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.340(h)]. For further discussion of suretyship contracts, see Ch. 538, Suretyship, Bonds, and Undertakings .

[5] When Service Is Deemed Complete

Service by either of the alternatives presented in Code Civ. Proc. § 116.340(a) (discussed under § 526.171[3][a] above) is deemed complete on the date that the defendant signs the mail return receipt, on the dateof personal service, or as established by other competent evidence, whichever applies to the method of service utilized [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.340(d)].

When substituted service is made as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 415.20 or 415.95(a), it is deemed complete on the tenth day after mailing [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.340(d), 415.20, 415.95(a); see also discussion § 526.52[2]].

Service of the claim and order on defendant must be completed at least 15 days before the hearing date if defendant resides in the county in which the action is filed, or at least 20 days before the hearing date if defendant resides outside the county in which the action is filed [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.340(b)]. Proof of service of the claim and order scheduling the hearing must be filed with the small claims court at least five days before the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.340(c)]. For a form of proof of service, see § 526.153.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Commencement of Claim

46-526 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 526.53

§ 526.53 Defendant's Pleadings

[1] Answer Not Required

A defendant may appear and oppose the plaintiff's claim without filing an answer [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.310(a)].

[2] Filing of Responsive Claim

The defendant may file and serve a claim in the same small claims action in an amount not exceeding the jurisdictional limit stated in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.220, 116.221, and 116.231 (discussed in § 526.32 above) [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.360(a)]. The claim does not have to relate to the same subject or event as the plaintiff's claim [Code Civ Proc. § 116.360(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.2104]. The claim must be filed and served in the same manner provided for filing and serving a claim of the plaintiff under Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.330, 116.340 (discussed under § 526.171[3][a] above) [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.360(b)]. The defendant must cause a copy of the claim and order to be served on the plaintiff at least five days before the hearing date, unless the defendant was served 10 days or less before the hearing date, in which event the defendant must cause a copy of the defendant's claim and order to be served on the plaintiff at least one day before the hearing date [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.360(c); see § 526.158].

[3] Cross Claim for More Than Jurisdictional Amount

[a] When Transferred

If the defendant has a claim against the plaintiff for an amount exceeding the jurisdiction of the small claims court and the claim relates to the contract, transaction, matter, or event that is the subject of the plaintiff's claim, the defendant may commence an action against the plaintiff in acourt of competent jurisdiction and request the small claims court to transfer the small claims action to that court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.390(a)]. At or before the time set for the hearing of the action in small claims court, defendant may make the request by filing with the small claims court in which the plaintiff commenced the action a declaration stating the facts concerning the defendant's action against the plaintiff with a true copy of the complaint so filed by the defendant against the plaintiff. The defendant must cause a copy of the declaration and complaint to be personally delivered to plaintiff at or before the time set for the hearing of the small claims action [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.390(b); see § 526.159].

In ruling on a motion to transfer, the court may (1) render judgment on the small claims case prior to transfer, or (2) not render judgment on the small claims case and transfer the case, or (3) refuse to transfer the small claims case on the grounds that the ends of justice would not be served [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.390(c); see § 526.160]. When the small claims court orders the action transferred, it must transfer all files and papers to the transferee court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.390(d)]. If the small claims action is transferred before judgment, both actions must be tried together in the transferee court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.390(c)].

If the plaintiff in the small claims action is a health care provider and the defendant has a counterclaim of malpractice that exceeds the jurisdictional amount in small claims court, the defendant has a right to a continuance of the small claims trial if it would be necessary to ensure compliance with Code Civ. Proc. § 116.390 and with Code Civ. Proc. § 364, which requires a 90-day notice period prior to filing a complaint for professional negligence [Clark v. Superior Court (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 865, 869, 169 Cal. Rptr. 898].

[b] Payment of Fees if Action Is Transferred

The plaintiff in the small claims action is not required to pay to the clerk of the transferee court any transmittal, appearance, or filing fee unless plaintiff appears in the transferee court, in which event plaintiff is required to pay the filing fee and any other fee required of a defendant in the transferee court. Nevertheless, if the transferee court rules against the plaintiff in the action filed in that court, the court may award to the defendant in that action the costs incurred as a consequence of the transfer, including attorney's fees and filing fees [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.390(e)].

Formal discovery procedures are not permitted in a small claims action. If the defendant appeals an adverse judgment [see discussion in § 526.94], discovery is not permitted in the trial de novo in superior court [*Bruno v. Superior Court (1990) 219 Cal. PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Hearing and Judgment

§ 526.70 Hearings

[1] Informal Nature

The hearing and disposition of small claims actions are informal, the object being to dispense justice promptly, fairly, and inexpensively [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.510].

[2] Temporary Judge

[a] Court-Appointed Temporary Judge

With the consent of the parties who appear at the hearing, the court may order a small claims case to be heard by a temporary judge [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.240(a)]. If the court has appointed and assigned an attorney to serve as a temporary judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.816(a)], the court must give notice to each party of the following before the swearing-in of the first witness at the hearing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.816(b)]:

- A temporary judge will be hearing the matters for that calendar.
- The temporary judge is a qualified member of the State Bar.
- The name of the temporary judge.
- The party that has a right to have the matter heard before a judge, commissioner, or referee of the court.

The court may give the foregoing notice by either of the following methods [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.816(c)]:

- A conspicuous sign posted inside or just outside the courtroom, accompanied by oral notification or notification by videotape or audiotape by a court officer on the day of the hearing.

- A written notice provided to each party.

After the foregoing notice has been given, a party may sign a written stipulation agreeing that the matter may be heard by the temporary judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.816(d)(2)]. Even without a written stipulation, however, a party will be deemed to have stipulated to the attorney serving as a temporary judge if the party fails to object to the matter being heard by the temporary judge before the temporary judge begins the proceeding [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.816(d)(1)].

The temporary judge is sworn and empowered to act until the final determination of the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.240(a)]. A party may, however, move to withdraw his or her stipulation to have the matter heard by the temporary judge if there is good cause for withdrawing the stipulation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.816(e)]. A ruling by the temporary judge based on error of fact or law does not constitute good cause for withdrawing a stipulation [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.816(e)(2)].

The temporary judge must be an active or inactive member of the State Bar [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.240(a)]. To qualify for appointment as a temporary judge, an attorney generally must have been admitted to practice as a member of the State Bar of California for at least 10 years before the appointment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.812(a) (for good cause, attorney who has been admitted to practice for at least 5 years may serve as temporary judge)]. The appointee must not have any disciplinary action pending; must not have been convicted of, or pled guilty or no contest to, a felony; must have satisfied certain educational and training requirements [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.812(c), 2.813(a)-(c)]; must have completed a application form [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 10.744]; must subscribe the oath of office; and must have satisfied any other conditions imposed by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.812(b), (d), (e), (g), 2.814].

Prior to serving as a temporary judge in small claims court, on and after July1, 2006, and at least every three years thereafter, each temporary judge must take a course of study offered by the courts on ethics and substantive law under rules adopted by the Judicial Council [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.815]. The course must include, but not be limited to, small-claims procedures and practices; state and federal consumer laws; vehicular sales, leasing, and repair; professional and occupational licensing; landlord-tenant law along with any applicable county-specific rent deposit law, credit and financing transactions, including the state and federal Fair Debt Collection Practices Acts, the federal Truth in Lending Act, the federal Fair Credit Billing Act, and the federal Electronic Fund Transfer Act; warranty law; tort law, contract law, including defenses to contracts and defenses to debts; negotiable instruments law; and other subjects deemed appropriate by the presiding judge based on local needs and conditions [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.240(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.812(c)(3)(A), 2.813(c)]. On substantive law, the courts may receive assistance from the Department of Consumer Affairs to the extent that the department is fiscally able to provide that assistance [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.240(b)].

For detailed coverage of court-appointed temporary judges in actions other than small-claims cases, see Ch. 317, Judges

[b] Temporary Judge Requested by Parties

The parties may request that the court designate a temporary judge selected by the parties to hear their small-claims case [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 21]. The qualifications and procedures applicable to court-appointed temporary judges [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.810 et seq.; see also [a], above] do not apply to temporary judges designated by the court at the parties' request [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.810(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.8(a)]. However, any temporary judge requested by the parties must be an active or inactive member of the State Bar [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.810(a)].

To request that an attorney be designated by the court to serve as a temporary judge, the parties must submit a written stipulation stating the name and office address of the member of the State Bar agreed on [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.831(a)]. The designation of a temporary judge by stipulation of the parties in a small-claims case is subject to the same requirements that apply to the designation of temporary judges generally [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 2.830 et seq.

]. For detailed coverage of those procedures, see Ch. 317, Judges .

[3] Evidence

[a] Witnesses and Documents

The parties have the right to offer evidence by witnesses at the hearing or, with the permission of the court, at another time [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.520(a)]. On request, the clerk may issue subpoenas for the witnesses or documents plaintiff needs at the hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985, 1986; see also § 526.150 (under What Happens at the Trial?)]. The requesting party must provide a declaration supporting the issuance of a subpoena duces tecum to compel the production of documents at the hearing [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985, 1987.5]. For a form of subpoena for use in small claims actions, including a declaration for use when the subpoena seeks to compel the production of documents or things in addition to the witness' appearance, see § 526.156. For further discussion and forms for use in compelling the attendance of witnesses and the production of physical evidence, see Ch. 535, Subpoena .

[b] Use of Hearsay Evidence

Hearsay evidence is generally admissible at the hearing. It is excludable only if it is not relevant [see Evid. Code § 350], its prejudicial effect outweighs its probative value [see Evid. Code § 352], or it is subject to anevidentiary privilege [Houghtaling v. Superior Court (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1131, 1137-1138, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 855].

This rule applies even on a trial de novo in the superior court [Houghtaling v. Superior Court (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1139, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 855], as discussed in § 526.70 et seq.

[4] Investigation by Court

In a small claims action the court may consult witnesses informally with or without notice to the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.520(c)]. The court's authority does not extend to authorizing another person, such as the clerk, to hear evidence [see Thompson v. Municipal Court (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 676, 678-679, 328 P.2d 514].

[5] Assistance in Presenting Claim or Defense

If the court determines that a party cannot properly present his or her claim or defense and needs assistance, the court may in its discretion allow another individual to assist that party [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(l)].

[6] Assistance by Interpreter

If the court determines that a party does not speak or understand English sufficiently to comprehend the proceedings or to give testimony and needs assistance in so doing, the court may permit another individual (other than an attorney) to assist the party [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.550(a)].

Each small claims court must make a reasonable effort to maintain and make available to the parties a list of interpreters who are willing and able to aid the parties in the small claims court for no fee, or for a fee that is reasonable (considering the nature and complexity of the claim involved in the small claims court). The list must include interpreters for all languages that the court determines will require interpretation [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.550(b)]. Nevertheless, failure to comply with these requirements will not invalidate proceedings before the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.550(c)].

If a court interpreter or other competent interpreter is not available to aid a party, at the first hearing of the case the court must postpone the hearing one time only to allow the party the opportunity to obtain another individual (other than an attorney) to assist that party. Any additional continuances are at the court's disrection [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.550(d)].

If the party is indigent, the court may appoint an interpreter at public expense [Gardiana v. Small Claims Court (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 412, 423-424, 130 Cal. Rptr. 675].

[7] Appearance by Representative

[a] For Proof of Account

If a party is an individual doing business as a sole proprietorship, the party may appear and participate in a small claims action by a representative and without personally appearing if the following conditions are met [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(d)]:

(1) The claim can be proved or disputed by evidence of an account that constitutes a business record as defined in Evid. Code § 1271 (writing as a record of an act, condition, or event) and there is no other issue of fact in the case; and

(2) The representative is a regular employee of the party for purposes other than solely representing the party in small claims actions and is qualified to testify to the identity and mode of preparation of the business record.

Any individual representing a party under Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(d) is required to submit a declaration stating (1) that the person is authorized to appear for the party, (2) the basis for the person's authorization, and (3) that the person is not employed solely for the purpose of representing the party in the small claims court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(j); see § 526.157].

[b] For Military Plaintiff

A plaintiff is not required to appear in person, and may submit declarations to serve as evidence supporting his or her claim or to allow another individual (other than an attorney at law) to appear and participate on his or her behalf if (1) plaintiff is serving on active duty in the United States armed forces outside California, (2) plaintiff was assigned to his or her duty station after his or her claim arose, (3) the assignment is for more than six months, (4) the representative is serving without compensation, and (5) the representative has appeared in small claims actions on behalf of others no more than four times during the calendar year [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(e); see also Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(m)].

Any individual representing a party under Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(e) is required to submit a declaration stating (1) that the person is authorized to appear for the party, (2) the basis for the person's authorization, (3) the representative is serving without compensation, and (4) the representative has appeared in small claims actions on behalf of others no more than four times during the calendar year [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(j); see § 526.157].

In the same proceeding, the defendant may file a claim in an amount not to exceed the jurisdictional limit of the court, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.220, 116.221, and 116.231 [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(e); see discussion in § 526.53].

[c] For Incarcerated Party

A party who is incarcerated in a county jail, a facility of the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation [see Penal Code § 5055] or the Department's Division of Juvenile Facilities [see Penal Code § 6001] is not required to appear in person, and may submit declarations to serve as evidence supporting his or her claim or may authorize another individual to appear and participate on his or her behalf if that individual is serving without compensation and has appeared in small claims actions on behalf of others no more than four times during the calendar year [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(f); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(m)].

Any individual representing a party under Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(f) is required to submit a declaration making the same statements as required of a person representing a plaintiff in the military [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(j); see § 526.157; see also discussion of declaration requirements § 526.70[7][b]].

[d] For Defendant Nonresident Owner of Real Property

A defendant who is a nonresident owner of real property defending a claim relating to that property is not required to appear in person, and may submit (1) written declarations to serve as evidence supporting his or her defense, or (2) may allow another individual (other than an attorney at law) to appear and participate on his or her behalf if that individual is serving without compensation and has appeared in small claims actions on behalf of others no more than four times during the calendar year, (3) or both [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(g); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(m)].

Any individual representing a party under Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(g) is required to submit a declaration making the same statements as required of a person representing a plaintiff in the military [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(j); see § 526.157; see also § 526.70[7][b]].

[e] For Owner of Rental Real Property

A party who owns rental real property may appear and participate in a small claims action through a property agent under contract for management of that property if (1) the owner has retained the agent principally to manage the rental of that property and not principally to represent the owner in small claims court, and (2) the claim relates to the rental property [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(h); see § 526.157].

[f] For Spouse

A husband or wife who sues or who is sued with his or her spouse may appear and participate on behalf of his or her spouse if (1) the claim is a joint claim, (2) the represented spouse has given his or her consent, and (3) the court determines that the interests of justice would be served [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(k); see § 526.157].

[8] Postponement

Any party may submit a written request, in either letter form or on a form adopted or approved by the Judicial Council, to postpone a hearing date for good cause [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.570(a)(1) (Judicial Council has not adopted or approved a specific form for this procedure); see Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d) (stay of proceedings while plaintiff or defendant is on military service)]. The request must be filed at least 10 days before the hearing date, unless the court determines that the requesting party has good cause to file the request at a later date [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.570(a)(2)]. On the date of making the written request, the requesting party must mail or personally deliver a copy to each of the other parties to the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.570(a)(3)]. The court must provide a prompt response by mail to the requesting party [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.570(a)(5)].

If the court finds that the interests of justice would be served by postponing the hearing, the court must postpone the hearing and notify all parties by mail of the new hearing date, time, and place [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.570(a)(4)(A)].

On one occasion, on the written request of a defendant guarantor, the court must postpone the hearing for at least 30 days, and the court must take this action without a hearing. This does not limit the court's discretion to grant a postponement in the interests of justice under Code Civ. Proc. § 116.570(a)(4)(A) discussed, above [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.570(a)(4)(B)].

If service of the claim and order on the defendant is not completed within the number of days before the hearing date required by Code Civ. Proc. § 116.340(b) (15 days if defendant resides in county in which action was filed; 20 days if defendant resides outside county) and the defendant has not personally appeared and has not requested a postponement, the court must postpone the hearing for at least 15 days. If such a postponement is ordered, the clerk must promptly notify all parties by mail of the new hearing date, time, and place [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.570(b)]. The court also has inherent power to order postponements of hearings in appropriate circumstances [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.570(c)]. A fee of $10 is charged for the filing of a request for postponement and rescheduling after service, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 116.340, has been made on the defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.570(d)].

Chapter 526 SMALL CLAIMS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Hearing and Judgment

46-526 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 526.71

§ 526.71 Judgment

[1] In General

The court must give judgment for damages or equitable relief, or both damages and equitable relief, within the jurisdictional limits of Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.220, 116.221, and 116.231(see discussion in § 526.32) and may make such orders as to time of payment or otherwise as the court deems just and equitable for resolution of the dispute [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.610(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.210]. If specific property is referred to in the judgment, whether it is personal or real, tangible or intangible, the property must be identified with sufficient detail to permit efficient implementation or enforcement of the judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.210].

[2] Continuance for Resolution by Alternative Means

The court may, at its discretion or on request of any party, continue the matter to a later date in order to permit the parties to attempt resolution by informal or alternative means [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.610(b)].

[3] Multiple Parties

If the defendant has filed a claim against the plaintiff or if the judgment is against two or more defendants, the judgment, and the statement of decision if one is rendered, must specify the basis for and the character and amount of the liability of each of the parties including, in the case of multiple judgment debtors, whether the liability of each is joint or several [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.610(d)].

In an action against several defendants, the court may, in its discretion, render judgment against one or more of them, leaving the action to proceed against the others, whenever a several judgment is proper [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.610(e)].

[4] Notice of Judgment

When the court renders judgment, the clerk must promptly deliver or mail notice of entry of the judgment to the parties by first-class mail and must execute a certificate of personal delivery or mailing and place it in the file [Code Civ. Proc.

§ 116.610(h); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.130(k) ("mail" defined); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.954(b)]. The notice of entry of judgment must be on a form approved or adopted by the Judicial Council [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.610(i); §§ 526.164, 526.164A (alternative mandatory forms)].

[5] Costs

The prevailing party is entitled to recover most of the costs of the action, including the costs of service of the order for appearance of defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.610(g)(1)]. However, the prevailing party may not recover any increment in the filing fee that was imposed as a result of that party having filed 12 or more small claims in the previous 12 months [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.610(g)(2); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.230(b), (c); see also § 526.50[3]].

[6] Default Judgment

If the defendant fails to appear, the court must nevertheless require the plaintiff to present evidence to prove his or her claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.520(b)]. If the plaintiff is able to do so, the judge is to render judgment in favor of the plaintiff. The provisions governing small claims proceedings do not indicate any further requirements for entering a judgment against a defendant who did not appear at the hearing. However, small claims proceedings are subject to the general requirement that a default judgment cannot be entered unless the plaintiff has filed a declaration under penalty of perjury setting forth facts showing that the defendant is not in the military service [Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(a); see 50 U.S.C. App. § 521(b) (Servicemembers Civil Relief Act)]. Local rules may establish guidelines for compliance with this requirement. For further discussion, see Ch. 205, Defaults and Default Judgments .

[7] No Collateral Estoppel Effect

Generally, neither a small claims court judgment nor a superior court judgment on appeal from a small claims court judgment has any collateral estoppel effect in a subsequent action or proceeding [Rosse v. DeSoto Cab Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1053, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680 ; see Sanderson v. Niemann (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 563, 573-575, 110 P.2d 1025]. The courts have reasoned that collateral estoppel ordinarily cannot be given to such judgments because of their informality and the absence of a transcribed record, formal findings, or a statement of decision, which ordinarily makes it impossible to determine which issues were actually litigated in the small claims action [see Sanderson v. Niemann (1941) 17 Cal. 2d 563, 573-574, 110 P.2d 1025 ; Rosse v. DeSoto Cab Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1051-1052, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680]. However, collateral estoppel may apply to prevent a small-claims plaintiff from relitigating an issue that was decided in small claims court, if the small-claims record is sufficiently clear to enable a court in a subsequent action to determine that the issue was actually litigated and expressly decided against the plaintiff in the small claims action [Pitzen v. Superior Court (2004) 120 Cal. App. 4th 1374, 1378-1388, 16 Cal. Rptr. 3d 628].

For full discussion of the doctrine of collateral estoppel or issue preclusion, see Ch. 491, Res Judicata .

Chapter 526 SMALL CLAIMS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
D. Hearing and Judgment

46-526 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 526.72

§ 526.72 Judgment Resulting From Motor Vehicle Accident

[1] In General

The judgment creditor may file with the Department of Motor Vehicles a notice requesting a suspension of the judgment debtor's privilege to operate a motor vehicle if a small claims judgment (1) was for $750 or less;(2) resulted from a motor vehicle accident occurring on a California highway caused by the defendant's operation of a motor vehicle; and (3) remained unsatisfied for more than 90 days after the judgment became final [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.880(a)]. The department must then suspend the judgment debtor's privilege to operate a motor vehicle for up to 90 days, absent satisfactory proof that the judgment has been satisfied [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.880(c), (e); Veh. Code § 16370.5].

Veh. Code § 16250 et seq. (regarding the suspension of the judgment debtor's privilege to operate a motor vehicle for failing to satisfy a judgment) applies if the judgment (1) was for damage to property in excess of $750 or for bodily injury to, or death of, any person in any amount, and (2) resulted from the operation of a motor vehicle on a California highway by the defendant or by any other person for whose conduct the defendant was liable, unless the liability resulted from the defendant's signing the application of a minor for a driver's license [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.870]. For discussion of the procedure under Veh. Code § 16250 et seq., see Ch. 87A, Automobiles: Post Trial .

[2] Determination Regarding Motor Vehicle Accident Required in Judgment

The small claims court judgment must include a determination whether the judgment resulted from a motor vehicle accident on a California highway caused by the defendant's operation of a motor vehicle, or by the operation by some other individual of a motor vehicle registered in the defendant's name [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.610(c)]. The parties then receive notice of this determination as part of their notice of entry of judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.610(c), (h); see also §§ 526.164, 526.164A].

[3] Filing Notice With Department

The notice filed by the judgment creditor with the Department of Motor Vehicles must state that the judgment has not been satisfied and must be accompanied by (1) a fee set by the department, (2) the judgment of the court determining that the judgment resulted from a motor vehicle accident occurring on a California highway caused by the judgment debtor's operation of a motor vehicle, and (3) a declaration that the judgment has not been satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.880(b)].

At the time the notice is filed, the department must give the judgment creditor a copy of the notice, indicating the filing fee paid by the judgment creditor and including a space to be signed by the judgment creditor acknowledging payment of the judgment by the judgment debtor. The judgment creditor must mail (by first-class mail) or deliver a signed copy of the acknowledgment to the judgment debtor once the judgment is satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.880(d); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.130(k) ("mail" defined)].

[4] Notification of Suspension

On receipt of a notice given pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 116.880, the Department of Motor Vehicles must attempt to notify the judgment debtor by telephone, if possible, or else by certified mail that his or her privilege to operate a motor vehicle will be suspended for 90 days, beginning 20 days following receipt of notice by the department from the judgment creditor unless satisfactory proof, as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 116.880(e), is provided to the department before that date [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.880(c); for discussion of proof under Code Civ. Proc. § 116.880(e), § 526.72[5]]. If the proof is not received within this time, the department must suspend the judgment debtor's privilege to drive [see Veh. Code § 16370.5].

[5] Termination of Suspension

The Department of Motor Vehicles shall terminate the suspension of the judgment debtor's privilege to operate a motor vehicle at the end of 90 days [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.880(e)(5)]. The department shall otherwise terminate this suspension, or the suspension proceedings, on any of the following occurrences [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.880(e)]:

> (1) Receipt of proof that the outstanding small claims judgment filed against the judgment debtor has been satisfied, either (A) by a copy of the notice filed with the department, signed by the judgment creditor acknowledging satisfaction of judgment (discussed under § 526.72[3] above), or (B) by a declaration of the judgment debtor stating that the judgment has been satisfied;
> (2) Receipt of proof that a court-ordered payment schedule is being complied with by the judgment debtor;
> (3) Proof that the judgment debtor had insurance covering the accident sufficient to satisfy the judgment; or
> (4) A deposit with the department of the amount of the unsatisfied judgment if the judgment debtor presents proof satisfactory to the department of inability to locate the judgment creditor [see also Veh. Code § 16377(d)].

When the suspension has been terminated under one of the foregoing conditions, the action is final and may not be reinstituted [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.880(f)]. Whenever the suspension is terminated, the judgment debtor is required to pay a fee for reissuance of the license [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.880(f); Veh. Code § 14904].

[6] Immunity of Public Agency

No public agency is liable for any injury caused by the suspension, the termination of suspension, or the failure to suspend any person's privilegeto operate a motor vehicle as authorized by Code Civ. Proc. § 116.880 [Code Civ. Proc. §

116.880(g)].

§ 526.90 Motions Generally

A "motion" within the context of small claims actions means a party's written request to the court for an order or other action. The term includes an informal written request to the court such as a letter [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.130(h)]. For a form of notice of motion and supporting declaration, see § 526.171.

Some common motions in small claims court that are discussed below, include a motion to vacate judgment brought by a party who has failed to appear [see § 526.170], a motion to correct error [see § 526.171], a motion for attorney's fees and costs for frivolous appeal [see § 526.173], and a motion for sanctions for willful failure to file debtor's asset statement [see § 526.175].

§ 526.92 Motion to Vacate Judgment

[1] Incorrect or Erroneous Legal Basis for Decision

Any party may file a motion to vacate a judgment on the ground of an incorrect or erroneous legal basis for the decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.725]. A motion to set aside and vacate a judgment on the ground of an incorrect or erroneous legal basis for the decision may be made by the court on its own motion at any time, or by a party within 30 days after the clerk mails notice of entry of judgment to the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.725(a)]. Each party may file only one motion to correct a clerical error [see § 526.93] or to set aside and vacate the judgment on the ground of an incorrect or erroneous legal basis for the decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.725(b)]. For a form of request to correct or vacate a judgment, see § 526.168.5.

Code Civ. Proc. § 663 authorizes such motions generally for civil actions. For discussion of motions pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 663, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial .

[2] By Plaintiff Who Did Not Appear

A plaintiff who did not appear at the hearing in the small claims court may file a motion to vacate the judgment with the clerk of the small claimscourt. The motion must be filed within 30 days after the clerk has mailed notice of entry of the judgment to the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.720(a)]. The clerk must schedule the hearing on the motion to vacate for a date no earlier than 10 days after the clerk has mailed written notice of the date, time, and place of the hearing to the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.720(b)]. For a form of motion to vacate a small claims judgment following plaintiff's failure to appear, see § 526.170.

On a showing of good cause (circumstances sufficient to justify the requested action), the small claims court may grant the motion. If the defendant is not present, the court shall hear the motion in the defendant's absence [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.720(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.130(j) ("good cause" defined)].

If the motion is granted and if all parties are present and agree, the court may hear the case without rescheduling it. If the defendant is not present, the judge or clerk must reschedule the case and give notice in accordance with Code Civ.

Proc. § 116.330, which governs setting and notice of hearing after original filing of claim in small claims court (see discussion in § 526.50[5]) [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.720(d)].

[3] By Defaulting Defendant

[a] Lack of Appearance

A defendant who did not appear at the hearing in the small claims court may file a motion to vacate the judgment with the clerk of the small claims court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730(a); see Mil. & Vet. Code § 402(d) (reopening of judgment entered against defendant while on military service)]. This is the defendant's sole avenue of challenging the judgment because a defendant who did not appear at the hearing has no right to a direct appeal to the superior court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.710(d)]. If the small claims court denies the motion to vacate, however, the defendant may appeal the denial to the superior court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730(e)]. Then, if that limited appeal is successful, the superior court may immediately hear the claims of all parties [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730(f)]. For discussion of appeal from denial of a motion to vacate, see § 526.92[3][c].

The motion to vacate must be filed within 30 days after the clerk has mailed notice of entry of the judgment to the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730(a)]. For a form of motion to vacate a small claims judgment after a defendant's default, see § 526.170.

The defendant must appear at any hearing on the motion, or submit written justification for not appearing together with a declaration in support of the motion (see § 526.170) [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730(b)].

On a showing of good cause (circumstances sufficient to justify the requested action), the court may grant the motion to vacate the judgment.If the plaintiff is not present, the court must hear the motion in the plaintiff's absence [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730(c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.130(j) ("good cause" defined)]. If the motion is granted and if all parties are present and agree, the court may hear the case without rescheduling it. If the plaintiff is not present, the judge or clerk must reschedule the case and give notice in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 116.330 [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730(d)].

[b] Improper Service

If the defendant was not properly served as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 116.330 (see discussion in § 526.50[5]) or by Code Civ. Proc. § 116.340 (see discussion in § 526.52[1]) and did not appear at the hearing in the small claims court, the defendant may file a motion to vacate the judgment with the clerk of the small claims court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.740(a)]. This is the defendant's sole avenue of challenging the judgment because a defendant who did not appear at the hearing has no right to a direct appeal to the superior court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.710(d), discussed in § 526.92[3][a]]. The motion must be accompanied by a supporting declaration and must be filed within 180 days after defendant discovers or should have discovered that the judgment was entered against him or her [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.740(a)]. For a form of motion to vacate a small claims judgment, see § 526.170.

The court may order that the enforcement of the judgment shall be suspended pending a hearing and determination of the motion to vacate the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.740(b)].

On a showing of good cause (circumstances sufficient to justify the requested action), the court may grant the motion to vacate the judgment. If the plaintiff is not present, the court must hear the motion in the plaintiff's absence [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.740(c); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.130(j) ("good cause" defined), 116.740(d) (Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730(d)-(f) applicable to motion to vacate for improper service)].

[c] Appeal From Denial of Motion

If the motion to vacate the judgment is denied, the defendant may appeal to the superior court only on the denial of the motion. The notice of appeal must be filed with the clerk of the small claims court within 10 days after the small claims court has mailed or delivered notice of the court's denial of the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730(e)].

If the superior court determines that the defendant's motion to vacate the judgment should have been granted, the superior court may hear the claims of all parties without rescheduling the matter provided that all parties are present and the defendant has previously complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 116.710 et seq., which contain the requirements for bringing a direct appeal of a small claims judgment to the superior court, as wellas with the requirements for making a motion to vacate the small claims judgment in the small claims court. Alternatively, the court may order the case transferred to the small claims court for a hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730(f)]. For discussion of the procedure for bringing an appeal, see § 526.94[1].

§ 526.93 Motion to Correct Error

A party who discovers a mistake in the judgment as entered may file a request or motion to correct the clerical error [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.725]. A motion to correct a clerical error in the judgment may be made by the court on its own motion at any time, or by a party within 30 days after the clerk mails notice of entry of judgment to the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.725(a)]. Each party may file only one motion to correct a clerical error or to set aside and vacate the judgment on the ground of an incorrect or erroneous legal basis for the decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.725(b); see § 526.92[1]]. The time for filing a notice of appeal is not extended by the filing of a request to correct a mistake or by virtue of any subsequent proceedings on the request, except that a new period for filing a notice of appeal begins on the delivery or mailing of notice of entry of any modified judgment [Code of Civ. Proc. § 116.750(c)]. For a form of motion to correct error and supporting declaration, see § 526.171.

46-526 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 526.94

§ 526.94 Appeal by Defendant or Cross Defendant

[1] Availability

The defendant, with respect to plaintiff's claim, and a plaintiff, with respect to a claim of the defendant, may appeal the judgment to the superior court in the county in which the action was heard [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.710(b)]. With respect to the plaintiff's claim, the insurer of the defendant may appeal the judgment to the superior court in the county in which the matter was heard if the judgment exceeds $2,500 and the insurer stipulates that its policy with the defendant covers the matter to which the judgment applies [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.710(c)]. An appeal from a judgment in a small claims action is taken by filing a notice of appeal with the clerk of the small claims court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.750(a); see discussion under § 526.94[2]].

A defendant who did not appear at the hearing has no right to appeal the judgment, but may file a motion to vacate the judgment in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730 or 116.740 (discussed under § 526.92[3][a] above), and also may appeal the denial of that motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.710(d) (discussed in § 526.92[3][c])].

The plaintiff in a small claims action has no right to appeal the judgment on the plaintiff's own claim, but a plaintiff who did not appear at the hearing may file a motion to vacate the judgment in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 116.720 (discussed under § 526.92 above) [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.710(a)].

[2] Notice of Appeal

[a] Time for Filing

A notice of appeal must be filed no later than 30 days after the clerk has delivered or mailed notice of entry of the judgment to the parties. A notice of appeal filed after the 30-day period is ineffective for any purpose [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.750(b)]. The time for filing a notice of appeal is not extended by the filing of a request to correct a mistake or by virtue of any subsequent proceedings on that request, except that a new period for filing notice of appeal shall begin on the delivery or mailing of notice of entry of any modified judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.750(c)].

If the notice of appeal is filed before the judgment is entered but after it is rendered, the notice of appeal is valid and deemed to have been filed immediately after entry of the judgment. A notice of appeal filed before the judgment was rendered but after the judge has announced an intended ruling may, in the discretion of the reviewing court for good cause, be treated as filed immediately after entry of the judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.954(c)].

When a notice of appeal is filed, the clerk of the small claims court must promptly mail a notification of the filing of the notice to each other party at the party's last known address or to their attorneys of record [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.954(b)]. The notification must state the number and title of the action or proceeding and the date the notice of appeal was filed. In the event a party dies before the court gives notice, the mailing is a sufficient performance of the clerk's duty. The failure of the clerk to give notification of the filing of the notice of appeal does not extend the time for filing notice of appeal and does not affect the validity of the appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.954(b)].

[b] Contents

A notice of appeal must be signed by the appellant or by the appellant's attorney. It is sufficient if it states in substance that the appellant appeals from either a specified judgment or, in the case of a defaulting defendant, the denial of a motion to vacate the judgment. A notice of appeal must be liberally construed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.954(a)].

For a form of notice of appeal, see § 526.172.

[3] Abandonment of Appeal

At any time before the file has been transmitted to the court assigned to hear the appeal, the appellant may file a written abandonment of theappeal, or the parties may file a stipulation for abandonment, in the office of the small claims court clerk [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.963(a)]. The filing of either document operates to dismiss the appeal and return the case to the small claims court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.963(a)]. If an appellant files an abandonment of appeal, the small claims court clerk must immediately notify the adverse party or parties of the filing [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.963(d)].

[4] Record on Appeal

Within five days of the filing of the notice of appeal and the payment of any fees required by law, the clerk of the small claims court must transmit the file and all related papers, including the notice of appeal, to the clerk of the court assigned to hear the appeal [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.957; see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.770(f)].

[5] Filing Fee

The appealing party must pay a $75 fee for filing a notice of appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.760(a)]. A party who does not appeal will not be charged any fee for filing any document relating to the appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.760(b)].

[6] Setting for Trial

The clerk of the superior court must schedule the hearing for the earliest available time and mail written notice of the hearing to the parties at least 14 days prior to the time set for the hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.770(e)]. Continuances of the trial in the superior court may be granted for good cause. A request for a continuance may be presented by one party or by stipulation. The court may grant a continuance not to exceed 30 days, but in a case of extreme hardship the court may grant a continuance exceeding 30 days [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.960].

[7] Dismissal of Appeal

[a] By Request or Stipulation

The superior court may dismiss an appeal filed in that court if the appellant files a written request or the parties file a stipulation with the clerk of the superior court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.963(d)].

The clerk of the court assigned to hear the appeal must immediately notify the parties of any order of dismissal or of any judgment for defendant made by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.963(d)]. The clerk must also transmit to the small claims court a copy of the order of dismissal and all original papers and exhibits that had been transmitted to the court assigned to hear the appeal. The small claims court will proceed with the case as if no appeal had been taken [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.963(e)].

[b] For Delay in Prosecution

The superior court may dismiss the appeal if the appealing party does not appear at the hearing or if the appeal is not heard within one year from the date of filing the notice of appeal with the clerk of the small claims court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.795(a); see discussion under § 526.94[10]].

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.963(c), provides guidance to the court in determining whether or not to dismiss the appeal after the one-year deadline. A dismissal cannot be ordered, nor judgment entered, if a written stipulation was in effect extending the time for trial or if the appellant shows that he or she exercised reasonable diligence in attempting to bring the case to trial [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.963(c); for discussion of how the "reasonable diligence" standard is applied to dismissal of ordinary civil actions, see Ch. 212, Dismissal]. If, however, the case is not brought to trial within three years after the appeal is filed in the superior court, dismissal is mandatory [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.963(c)]. Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.963(c), also requires mandatory dismissal if the case is not brought to trial within three years after the most recent order for a new trial is entered in the superior court. Apparently, however, the superior court has no power to grant a motion for a new trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.780(a) ("final" judgment), discussed in § 526.94[13]].

The clerk of the court assigned to hear the appeal must immediately notify the parties of any order of dismissal or of any judgment for defendant made by the court [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.963(d)]. The clerk must also transmit to the small claims court a copy of the order of dismissal and all original papers and exhibits that had been transmitted to the court assigned to hear the appeal. The small claims court will proceed with the case as if no appeal had been taken [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.963(e)].

In addition, for good cause and when necessary to achieve substantial justice between the parties, the superior court may award a party to an appeal reimbursement of up to $150 in attorney's fees and costs, and up to $150 for loss of earnings and certain other costs, actually and reasonably incurred in connection with the appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.780(c); for further discussion of costs on appeal, § 526.94[12]].

[8] Plaintiff's Motions

When a defendant has appealed a small claims judgment to superior court, the plaintiff may not move in superior court to dismiss the small claims action. The superior court has no jurisdiction to grant such a motion [Acuna v. Gunderson Chevrolet, Inc. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1467, 1473, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62].

In addition, the plaintiff may not move to transfer and consolidate the appeal with another action pending in the superior court, although the defendant may make such a request if the defendant has commenced anaction against the plaintiff in the superior court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.390(b); Acuna v. Gunderson Chevrolet, Inc. (1993) 19 Cal. App. 4th 1467, 1472-1473, 24 Cal. Rptr. 2d 62].

[9] Compromise by Minor or Incompetent Person

Whenever the guardian of a minor or of an insane or incompetent person seeks approval of a proposed compromise of a case on appeal in which a new trial has been ordered, the court assigned to hear the appeal may hear and determine if the proposed compromise is for the best interest of the ward [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.963(f); for discussion of order for new trial, § 526.94[13]].

[10] Hearing of Appeal

[a] Informal Procedures Apply

The appeal to the superior court must consist of a new hearing before a judicial officer other than the judicial officer who heard the action in the small claims division [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.770(a)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 116.510 et seq., governing hearings in small claims court, apply to hearings on appeal in the superior court, except that attorneys may participate [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.770(c); see also discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 116.510 et seq. § 526.70].

The hearing on appeal must be conducted informally, the pretrial discovery procedures described in Code Civ. Proc. § 2019(a) (Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.010 operative July 1, 2005) are not permitted, hearsay evidence is admissible as in small claims court [Houghtaling v. Superior Court (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1139, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 855 ; see § 526.70[3][b]], and no tentative decision or statement of decision is required [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.770(b)]. The court may allow parties, or attorneys representing parties, to conduct direct and cross examination, subject to the court's discretion to control the manner, mode, and duration of examination in keeping with informality and the circumstances [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.966].

[b] Scope of Hearing

[i] Generally

The scope of the hearing must include the claims of all parties who were parties to the small claims action at the time the notice of appeal was filed. The hearing must include the claims of a defendant that was heard in the small claims court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.770(d)].

[ii] Cross Claims

The courts are split regarding the scope of the trial de novo in "criss-cross" cases in which both the plaintiff and the defendant assert claims.

The Third District court of appeal held that when the defendant has filed a claim against the plaintiff in the same action and lost to the plaintiff on both claims, the defendant cannot be awarded any affirmative relief on appeal, either directly or indirectly. The defendant may, however, be awarded an offset of the amount the defendant was unable to recover on his or her own claim [Township Homes, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1587, 1589, 1594-1595, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 852 (Third Appellate District, noting that 1990 amendments to small claims statutes abrogated contrary rule in Anderson v. Superior Court (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 698, 700, 276 Cal. Rptr. 18)]. In Township Homes, Inc., a buyer filed a defendant's claim, alleging seller's failure to complete warranty repairs. The small claims court awarded seller $1,000 on its claim but ordered that buyer take nothing on hers. Buyer appealed and the superior court made an award in buyer's favor for $3,319, offset this award by $2,681 buyer owed seller for repairs, and made a net award to buyer of $638. Thus, the buyer/appellant, who had lost both her claim and the seller's claim and owed $1,000 in small claims court came out $638 ahead because she appealed for a trial de novo [see Township Homes, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1587, 1589, 1589-1590, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 852]. In the court's opinion, to allow affirmative relief to a party who had not prevailed on its claim at the small claims hearing would "impermissibly negate the plain language of sections 116.130 and 116.710," (denying a "plaintiff" a right to appeal, and defining "plaintiff" as including a defendant who has filed a claim against a plaintiff).

The First District, on the other hand, held that if both sides have filed claims, either may appeal the other's claim and the superior court will fully retry all claims [Linton v. Superior Court (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1097, 1103 & n.7, 1106, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 202 (First Appellate District, criticizing Township Homes, Inc., above, as applying "a rule with no statutory basis")]. In Linton, plaintiff tenants filed a small claims action against their landlord and the defendant landlord also filed a claim against the tenants. The small claims court entered judgment for $1,000 plus $21 costs for the plaintiffs, and an identical judgment for the defendant. The plaintiffs appealed, but the defendant did not. After trial de novo on the appeal, the superior court entered judgment of $1,000 plus $21 costs in favor of the plaintiffs on their claim and judgment in favor of the plaintiffs on defendant's claim against them. The court emphasized the language of Code Civ. Proc. § 116.770(d) enjoining the court "rehear the claim of a defendant" [Linton v. Superior Court (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 1097, 1102 & n.6, 1104, 62 Cal. Rptr. 2d 202 ; see also Universal City Nissan, Inc. v. Superior Court (1998) 65 Cal. App. 4th 203, 207-209, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 910 (Second Appellate District; agreeing with the court in Linton and noting that the Legislature, by its amendments to Code Civ. Proc. § 116.770, apparently intended to clarify its intent, misconstrued by courts such as that in Township, to permit full review of an unsuccessful claim or counterclaim)].

PRACTICE TIP:

Advising Small Claims Litigants of Possibility of Rehearing. Counsel should try to ascertain the position taken by the superior court in his or her county on the scope of claims to be examined when where there is an appeal in an action involving claims by both the plaintiff and defendant.

Until the disagreement by these courts on this fundamental issue is resolved by the Legislature or Supreme Court, in light of Linton v. Superior Court, above, counsel may wish to err on the side of caution, by advising clients that the filing of a cross claim may result in the rehearing of all claims in a superior court trial de novo when at least one of the parties appeal.

[iii] No Right to Jury Trial

There is no right to a jury trial in a de novo proceeding in superior court on appeal from a small claims action at law for money damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.770(b); Crouchman v. Superior Court (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 1167, 1171-1178, 248 Cal. Rptr. 626, 755 P.2d 1075 (also holding that there is no such right to a jury trial under either Cal. Const., art. I, § 16, or Code Civ. Proc. § 592)]. Nevertheless, prior to the 1992 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220, which removed unlawful detainer from small claims jurisdiction, there existed a right to a jury trial in de novo proceeding in superior court on appeal from a small claims action for unlawful detainer, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 592 and 1171 [Maldonado v. Superior Court (1984) 162 Cal. App. 3d 1259, 1262-1269, 209 Cal. Rptr. 199 ; see also Crouchman v. Superior Court (1988) 45 Cal. 3d 1167, 1178-1180, 248 Cal. Rptr. 626, 755 P.2d 1075 (strictly limiting decision in Maldonado to its fact situation)].

[iv] Tentative Decision and Statement of Decision Not Required

On conclusion of the trial, the superior court is not required to give either a tentative decision or a statement of decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.770(b)].

[11] Judgment on Appeal

Except as specified in § 526.949[12], below , Code Civ. Proc. § 116.610 et seq., which provide for the contents, notice, satisfaction, and amendment of judgments rendered in the small claims court, apply to judgments of the superior court after a hearing on appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.780(b); for discussion of these statutes, see § 526.131[6]].

A superior court judgment on appeal from a small claims court judgment has no collateral estoppel effect in a subsequent action or proceeding [Rosse v. DeSoto Cab Co. (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 1047, 1053, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680 ; see discussion under § 526.71[7]].

[12] Award of Costs on Appeal

[a] Fees and Expenses

The party who prevails after the hearing on appeal is entitled to the costs of the appeal [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.780(b) (Code Civ. Proc. § 116.610(g) applies to judgments after hearing on appeal)]. In addition, for good cause and when necessary to achieve substantial justice between the parties, the superior court may award a party to an appeal reimbursement of up to $150 in attorney's fees and costs and up to $150 for loss of earnings and expenses of transportation and lodging, actually and reasonably incurred in connection with the appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.780(c)]. For discussion of cost awards in ordinary civil actions generally, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.10 et seq. For discussion of the award of costs to a prevailing party on appeal in an ordinary civil action, see Ch. 53, Appeal: Remittitur and Costs on Appeal .

[b] Bad Faith Appeal

If the superior court finds that the appeal was without substantial merit and not based on good faith, but was intended to harass or delay the other party or to encourage the other party to abandon the claim, the court may, following a hearing on the matter, award the other party (a) attorney's fees actually and reasonably incurred in connection with the appeal not exceeding $1,000, and (b) any actual loss of earnings and any expenses of transportation and lodging actually and reasonably incurred in connection with the appeal not exceeding $1,000 [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.790].

The "without substantial merit" standard appears to be easier to satisfy than the standard applicable in ordinary civil appeals. Sanctions for a frivolous appeal under Code Civ. Proc. § 907 are authorized if the appeal was prosecuted to harass or delay or if any attorney would reasonably agree that the appeal was totally and completely without merit [see In re Marriage of Flaherty (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 637, 650, 183 Cal. Rptr. 508, 646 P.2d 179 ; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.276]. Nevertheless, Code Civ. Proc. § 116.790 appears to require that the party seeking costs demonstrate both that the claim was without substantial merit and that the appellant acted with bad intent, whereas Code Civ. Proc. § 907 only requires that either one or the other test be met [see San Bernardino Community Hosp. v. Office of Statewide Health Planning & Dev. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 457, 470, 231 Cal. Rptr. 673 (award was justified because sole purpose of appeal was delay, even though appeal presented colorable claim)]; for further discussion, see Ch. 49, Appeal: Sanctions .

For a form of motion for an award of attorney's fees for prosecution of a bad faith appeal, see § 526.173.

[13] Review of Superior Court Judgment

The judgment of the superior court on appeal is final and may not be appealed [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.780(a)]. By this legislative mandate, the judgment is immune from virtually any postjudgment attack. In a proceeding designed to be a speedy resolution of disputes over relatively minor amounts of money, this immunity is the cost of finality [ERA-Trotter Girouard Assoc. v. Superior Court (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1851, 1854, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381].

Although certain rules of court governing small claims procedure contemplate the availability of a motion for new trial in the superior court after appeal from a small claims decision, these rules conflict with the "final judgment" provision of Code Civ. Proc. § 116.780(a). Therefore motions for a new trial and motions to vacate the judgment are prohibited [ERA-Trotter Girouard Assoc. v. Superior Court (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1851, 1853-1854, 1856, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381 (First Appellate District, criticizing contrary opinion in Adamson v. Superior Court (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 505, 508-509, 169 Cal. Rptr. 866 (Fourth Appellate District) ; see also Eloby v. Superior Court (1978) 78 Cal. App. 3d 972, 975-976 ; 144 Cal. Rptr. 597 (First Appellate District, interpreting former Code Civ. Proc. § 118.1); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.963(c), (f) (referring to order for "new trial")].

Absolute finality does not exist, however. Whether a specific kind of procedure for review of a judgment is permitted depends on whether the small claims legislation was clearly intended to prevent it. For example, the superior court may entertain a motion for rehearing after a trial and judgment on appeal, on the ground that the court had made mistakes of law or of fact, because to do so is speedier and more economical than review by certification to the court of appeal or by extraordinary writ [Adamson v. Superior Court (1980) 113 Cal. App. 3d 505, 506-509, 169 Cal. Rptr. 866].

In addition, ERA-Trotter Girouard Assoc., above, assumed without deciding that a judge could entertain a motion to vacate or reconsider a judgment based on fundamental questions of fraud on the court or the court's action in excess of its juridiction [ERA-Trotter Girouard Assoc. v. Superior Court (1996) 50 Cal. App. 4th 1851, 1857, 58 Cal. Rptr. 2d 381].

Because statewide precedents can only be created by appellate courts, an appellate court is not foreclosed from reviewing important issues of law by utilization of an extraordinary writ [Davis v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 164, 167-168, 162 Cal. Rptr. 167 ; see also Green v. Superior Court (1974) 10 Cal. 3d 616, 640, 111 Cal. Rptr. 704, 517 P.2d 1168 ; Calvao v Superior Court (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 921, 922 n.1, 247 Cal. Rptr. 470]. For example, a defendant in small claims appeal who is denied a crucial defense by the superior court may petition for a writ of mandate to entertain the defense if the superior court has abused its discretion [Schweiger v. Superior Court (1970) 3 Cal. 3d 507, 517-518, 90 Cal. Rptr. 729, 476 P.2d 97]. For discussion and forms relating to petitioning for a writ of mandate, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[1] Execution and Abstract of Judgment

A judgment of a small claims court and a judgment of the superior court after a hearing on appeal may be enforced through ordinary proceedings pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 680.010 et seq. (enforcement of judgments generally) and 674 (abstract of judgment) [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.820(a); for discussion of enforcement of judgments and abstract of judgments, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments , and Ch. 318, Judgments]. An appeal from a postjudgment enforcement order of the small claims court must be taken to the appellate division of the superior court [General Elec. Capital Auto Fin. Servs., Inc. v. Appellate Div. of Superior Court (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 136, 138-145, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 552 (in absence of specific provision pertaining to postjudgment orders of small claims court, small claims case treated as limited civil case); see Code Civ. Proc. § 904.2(b) (appellate division of superior court has appellate jurisdiction to review postjudgment enforcement orders in limited civil cases)].

The clerk of the small claims court must charge and collect all fees associated with the enforcement of judgments [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.820(b)].

The prevailing party in any action is entitled to the costs of enforcing the judgment and accrued interest [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.820(c)].

[2] Automatic Suspension Pending Appeal

Enforcement of the judgment of a small claims court, including the issuance or recording of any abstract of the judgment, is automatically suspended, without the filing of a bond by the defendant, until expiration of the time for appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.810(a)].

If an appeal is filed as provided in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.710-116.750 (discussed in § 526.94 above), enforcement of the judgment of the smallclaims court is suspended unless (1) the appeal is dismissed pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 116.795 (one-year statute of limitation) or (2) the superior court determines that the small claims court properly denied the defendant's motion to vacate filed under Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730 or 116.740. In either of these events, the judgment of the small claims court may be enforced [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.810(b)].

The scope of the suspension of enforcement under Code Civ. Proc. § 116.810 and, unless otherwise ordered, of any suspension of enforcement ordered by the court includes any enforcement procedure described in Code Civ. Proc. §§ 680.010 et seq. (enforcement of judgments generally) and 674 (abstract of judgment) [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.810(c)].

[3] Asset Questionnaire

[a] Duties of Judgment Debtor

At the time judgment is rendered or notice of entry of judgment is mailed to the parties, the clerk must deliver or mail to the judgment debtor a Judicial Council form containing questions regarding the nature and location of any assets of the judgment debtor [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.830(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.830(e); see also § 526.174]. The judgment debtor must complete the form and cause it to be delivered to the judgment creditor within 30 days after the clerk has mailed by first-class mail notice of entry of judgment unless the judgment has been satisfied [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.830(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.130(k) ("mail" defined)]. In the event a motion to vacate the judgment or a notice of appeal is filed, a judgment debtor must complete and deliver the form within 30 days after the clerk has delivered or mailed by first-class mail notice of denial of the motion to vacate or notice of dismissal of or entry of judgment on the appeal, whichever is applicable [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.830(c)].

[b] Sanctions for Willful Failure to File

In the event of a judgment debtor's willful failure to complete and deliver the asset questionnaire in accordance with the foregoing requirements, the judgment creditor may request the court to apply sanctions (including arrest and attorney's fees) as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 708.170 on contempt of court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.830(d)]. For a Judicial Council form for use by the judgment creditor to make this request (Application and Order to Appear for Examination, SC-134), see § 526.175. For futher discussion of Code Civ. Proc. § 708.170, see Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcement of Judgments .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
F. Enforcement of Judgment

46-526 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 526.111

§ 526.111 Satisfaction of Judgment

[1] Payment to Judgment Creditor

The judgment debtor must pay the amount of the judgment either immediately or at the time and on the terms and conditions, including payment by installments, that the court may order [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.620(a)].

The judgment debtor may pay the small claims judgment directly to the judgment creditor [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.840(a)]. If full payment of the judgment is made to the judgment creditor or to his or her assignee of record, then, immediately on receipt of payment, the judgment creditor or the assignee of record must file an acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.850(a)]. Any judgment creditor or assignee of record who, after receiving full payment of the judgment and written demand by the judgment debtor, fails without good cause (circumstances sufficient to justify the action) to execute and file an acknowledgment of satisfaction of the judgment with the clerk of the court in which the judgment is entered within 14 days after receiving the request is liable to the judgment debtor or the judgment debtor's grantees or heirs for all damages sustained by reason of the failure and, in addition, the sum of $50 [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.850(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.130(j) ("good cause" defined)].

At the judgment debtor's request, the clerk shall enter a satisfaction of judgment if the judgment debtor either (1) establishes a rebuttable presumption of full payment under Code Civ. Proc. § 116.850(d), or (2) establishes a rebuttable presumption of partial payment under Code Civ. Proc. § 116.850(d) and complies with Code Civ. Proc. § 116.860(c) [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.850(c)].

A rebuttable presumption of full or partial payment of the judgment, whichever is applicable, is created if the judgment debtor files both of the following with the clerk of the court in which the judgment was entered [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.850(d)]:

(1) Either a canceled check or money order for the full or partial amount of the judgment written by the judgment debtor after judgment and made payable to and endorsed by the judgment creditor, or a cash receipt for the full or partial amount of the judgment written by the judgment debtor after judgment and signed by the judgment creditor; and

(2) A declaration [see § 526.168] stating that (A) the judgment debtor has made full or partial payment of the judgment including accrued interest and costs; (B) the judgment creditor has been requested to file an acknowledgment of satisfaction of the judgment and refuses to do so or refuses to accept subsequent payments, or the present address of the judgment creditor is unknown; and (C) the documents identified in andaccompanying the declaration constitute evidence of the judgment creditor's receipt of full or partial payment.

[2] Payment to Small Claims Court

In lieu of paying the small claims judgment directly to the judgment creditor, the judgment debtor may opt to make payment to the court in which the judgment was entered [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.840(a)]. A judgment debtor who desires to make payment to the court in which the judgment was entered may file a request to make payment, which must be made on a form approved or adopted by the Judicial Council [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.860(a); see § 526.165].

On the filing of the request to make payment and the payment to the clerk of the amount of the judgment and any accrued interest and costs after judgment, plus a $20 fee to cover administrative costs [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.860(h)], the clerk must enter satisfaction of the judgment and shall remit payment to the judgment creditor as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 116.860(b) [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.860(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.860(f) ("costs after judgment" consist of only those costs itemized in a memorandum of costs filed by the judgment creditor or otherwise authorized by the court)].

If partial payment of the judgment has been made to the judgment creditor and the judgment debtor files the declaration [see § 526.168] and evidence of partial payment described in Code Civ. Proc. § 116.850(d) (see discussion under § 526.111), the clerk shall enter satisfaction of the judgment on receipt by the clerk of the balance owing on the judgment, including any accrued interest and costs after judgment, and the fee required by Code Civ. Proc. § 116.860(h) [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.860(c)]. If payment is made by means other than money order, certified or cashier's check, or cash, entry of satisfaction of the judgment shall be delayed for 30 days [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.860(d)].

The clerk shall notify the judgment creditor, at his or her last known address, that the judgment debtor has satisfied the judgment by making payment to the court. The notification shall explain the procedures that the judgment creditor has to follow to receive payment [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.860(e)].

Payments that remain unclaimed for three years will go to the superior court [see Gov. Code § 68084.1].

The board of supervisors shall set a fee, not to exceed the actual costs of administering this section, up to a maximum of $25, which shall be paid by the judgment debtor [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.860(h)].

[3] Installment Payments

The court may at any time for good cause (circumstances sufficient to justify the requested order), on motion by a party and notice by the clerkto all affected parties at their last known address, amend the terms and conditions for payment of the judgment to provide for payment by installment. The determination must be made without regard to the nature of the underlying debt and without regard to whether the moving party appeared before entry of the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.620(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.130(j) ("good cause" defined)].

In determining the terms and conditions of payment, the court may consider any factors that would be relevant to a claim of exemption under Code Civ. Proc. § 703.010 et seq. [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.620(c)]. For a form of request to pay a judgment in installments, see § 526.167. For a response to the request, see § 526.167A; for an order on the request, see § 526.167B.

Appellate division of superior court has appellate jurisdiction to review postjudgment enforcement orders entered by small claims court. General Elec. Capital Auto Fin. Servs., Inc. v. Appellate Div. of Superior Court (2001) 88 Cal. App. 4th 136, 138-145, 105 Cal. Rptr. 2d 552

Superior court has jurisdiction to award defendant who appeals small claims judgment in plaintiff's favor on both plaintiff's and defendant's claims an offset against plaintiff's award on appeal. Township Homes, Inc. v. Superior Court (1994) 22 Cal. App. 4th 1587, 1589, 1594-1595, 27 Cal. Rptr. 2d 852

[2] Assignment

NOTE:

The following case was decided before 1994 legislation clarified that Code Civ. Proc. § 116.420 does not prevent the filing of a claim in small claims court by a local government that is self-insured for purposes of workers' compensation and is seeking subrogation pursuant to Lab. Code § 3852 [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.420(c)]. However, this statutory change appears confined to self-insured local governments only, as opposed to worker's compensation insurers in general.

Workers' compensation insurer is assignee within meaning of former Code Civ. Proc. § 117.5 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.420) and therefore unable to sue third-party tortfeasor in small claims court to recoup benefits paid to injured employee. Allianz Insurance Co. v. Municipal Court (1981) 126 Cal. App. 3d 1043, 1046, 179 Cal. Rptr. 334

[3] Assistance to Parties

Consultation with attorneys and other legal advisors and meetings to discuss strategy by group of individuals consolidating their small claims actions is constitutionally protected activity and as not violating former Code Civ. Proc. § 117.4 (now see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.530; prohibiting attorney or other outside participation in filing or litigation of small claims actions). City and County of San Francisco v. Small Claims Court (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 470, 478-479, 190 Cal. Rptr. 340

Lay litigant in small claims court not expected to know to move for consolidation of two separate small claims actions against him and as not having waived right to make that motion. Lekse v. Municipal Court (1982) 138 Cal. App. 3d 188, 192, 187 Cal. Rptr. 698

Prohibition against appeal of decision of small claims court by plaintiff also prohibits issuance of extraordinary writ to review the judgment. Parada v. Small Claims Court (1977) 70 Cal. App. 3d 766, 769, 139 Cal. Rptr. 87

Defendant unschooled in law against whom default judgment entered and who may have been inadvertently misled by printed form or advice of clerk that appeal, rather than attempt to vacate default, was proper procedure as establishing right to relief from default. Burley v. Stein (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 752, 761, 115 Cal. Rptr. 279 (decided under Code Civ. Proc. § 473; now see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.710)

Prohibition against appearance of attorneys to litigate matters in small claims courts is constitutional since parties wishing to appear by attorney may bring suit in higher court. Prudential Ins. Co. v. Small Claims Court (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 379, 381-382, 173 P.2d 38

[4] Enforcement of Judgment

Although small claims debtor examinations often occur informally, in hallway outside courtroom or in adjacent room, debtor examination is public, not private, proceeding from which public may not be excluded; judgment creditor may seek to have debtor examination conducted before court or appointed referee, that is, licensed attorney. Nebel v. Sulak (1999) 73 Cal. App. 4th 1363, 1369, 87 Cal. Rptr. 2d 385

[5] Jurisdiction

Small claims court has jurisdiction to hear cases involving complex issues; legislative intent that small claims courts hear "minor civil disputes" as referring to monetary amount involved. City and County of San Francisco v. Small Claims Court (1983) 141 Cal. App. 3d 470, 474-475, 190 Cal. Rptr. 340

Superior court is without jurisdiction to consider appeal by defendant on his or her own cross complaint. Davis v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 164, 170, 162 Cal. Rptr. 167

Workers' Compensation Appeals Board has exclusive jurisdiction to fix fees of medical witnesses in matters before board; small claims court has no jurisdiction over doctor's suit for additional compensation for consultation and hearing appearance service. Workmen's Comp. Appeals Bd. v. Small Claims Court (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 643, 645-647, 111 Cal. Rptr. 6

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative reproduction of Cal. Judicial Council Form SC-100-INFO, adopted by the Judicial Council for mandatory use [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen. A]. The purpose of the form is to explain the rules and procedures for bringing a small claims action and to provide general information about small claims court.

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

Each county must provide free assistance in small claims cases [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.260, 116.940]. To assist in publicizing the availability of assistance services, the final paragraph of this form contains a blank space for the court to insert information about its local advisory program.

[4] Information for Defendant

Information for the defendant is provided in Cal. Judicial Council Form SC-100, Plaintiff's Claim and ORDER to Go to Small Claims Court. For an illustrative reproduction of that form, see § 526.151.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a reproduction of Cal. Judicial Council Form SC-100, Plaintiff's Claim and ORDER to Go to Small Claims Court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen. A]. The form is for use by a plaintiff to commence a small claims court action for monetary relief pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(a); it sets out the event or transaction giving rise to plaintiff's claim and directs the defendant to appear at the hearing if he or she does not agree with the claim [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.320(b) (authorizing adoption of form)]. The jurisdictional limit for monetary relief in small claims actions is generally $5,000 ($7,500 for an action brought by a natural person), with specified exceptions [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.220, 116.221; for further discussion, see § 526.32].

Use of this form is mandatory [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This form, under "Instructions for the person suing," contains an outdated reference to former Cal. Judicial Council Form SC-150 for general information about the plaintiff's rights in small claims court. Effective July 1, 2010, general information for the small claims plaintiff is provided in Cal. Judicial Council Form SC-100-INFO; for an illustrative reproduction of that form, see § 526.150[1].

[3] Filling in Form

[a] Title of Court

The blank space near the top of the form is for the title, that is, the name and address, of the court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(3)]. This information may be preprinted on the forms provided by the small claims court clerk. But, if it is not and the space is blank, the name and address of the court should be typed in.

[b] Naming Parties

Paragraphs 1 and 3 of the form require the names and addresses of up to two plaintiffs and two defendants. If there are additional plaintiffs or defendants, they should be listed on the form entitled Other Plaintiffs or Defendants (Cal. Judicial Council Form SC-100A), which is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, and which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

If the plaintiff operates or does business under a fictitious business name and the claim relates to that business, the plaintiff must also provide the business name statement number on this form and attach Cal. Judicial Council Form SC-103 [see § 526.155].

[c] Statement of Claim

Paragraph 3 requires the plaintiff to state the amount and basis of the claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.320(b)(2)]. If the action is to enforce the payment of a debt, the claim must separately state the original debt, each payment credited to the debt, each fee and charge added to the debt, each payment credited against those fees and charges, all other debits or charges to the account, and an explanation of the nature of those fees, charges, debits, and all other credits to the debt, by source and amount [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.222]. For discussion of amounts that may be claimed in a small claims action, see § 526.32.

[d] Demand for Payment

If the plaintiff has not demanded that the defendant pay the money claimed, Paragraph 4 requires the plaintiff to explain why a demand was not made [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.320(b)(3), (4)].

[e] Venue

The venue of actions filed in the small claims court is governed by the same statute as other civil actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.370(a); see Ch. 571, Venue]. Local court rules may prescribe the proper court locations for small claims actions [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.370(a)]. Although there is no statutory requirement that the plaintiff's claim show that it is filed in a proper court, Paragraph 5 of this form does require that plaintiff indicate the basis for venue.

[f] Attorney-Client Fee Dispute

If the claim is about an attorney-client fee dispute, the plaintiff should so state in Paragraph 7. Also, if the fee dispute has been arbitrated, the plaintiff should attach Judicial Council Form SC-101 [see § 526.152].

[g] Claim Against Government Agency

If the claim is against a government agency, the plaintiff must state in Paragraph 8 that the requisite written claim was presented to the agency first. For further discussion see § 526.50[4][e]. For more detailed discussion and forms relating to tort claim procedures against public agencies, see Ch. 464, Public Entities and Officers: California Tort Claims Act .

[h] Number of Previous Small Claims

Paragraph 9 requires the plaintiff to state if the plaintiff has filed more than 12 other small claims within the preceding 12 months. This information is necessary for the calculation of the filing fee [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.230].

[4] Signature and Declaration

By dating and signing the claim, plaintiff declares under penalty of perjury that all the statements in the claim are true and correct [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.320(a), 2015.5].

[5] Availability of Equitable Relief and Conditional Judgment

In any action brought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(a)(1)-(4), the court may grant equitable relief in the form of rescission, restitution, reformation, and specific performance in lieu of or in addition to money damages [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(b); see generally Ch. 488, Reformation of Instruments , Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution , Ch. 528, Specific Performance]. The small claims court also has authority to issue a conditional judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(b)].

Aside from actions described in Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(a)(1)-(4), a small claims court may grant injunctive or other equitable relief only if a statute expressly authorizes the court to award that relief [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(a)(5)].

[6] Service and Filing

The action is commenced by the plaintiff filing the form with the clerk of the small claims court and paying the filing fee [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.230, 116.320(a)]. Filing may be accomplished in person, by mail, by facsimile transmission if authorized by statute, or by electronic means as authorized by statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.320(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.5 (facsimile); Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6 (electronic filing)]. For the manners in which the form may be served on the defendant, see § 526.52.

[2] Use of Form

This form is a reproduction of the Judicial Council Form SC-101, Attorney-Client Fee Dispute (Attachment to Plaintiff's Claim) [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen. A]. The form is for use by a plaintiff as an attachment to Plaintiff's Claim and Order to Defendant [see § 526.151] in those cases in which plaintiff seeks to confirm, correct or vacate an attorney fee arbitration award not exceeding $5,000 that is binding or has become binding [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(a)(4)]. It may also be used in cases in which plaintiff seeks a hearing de novo after a nonbinding attorney fee arbitration award not exceeding $5,000 [*Code Civ. In either situation, the form is used following arbitration of a dispute between an attorney and his or her client concerning fees and costs charged to the client by the attorney for professional services rendered. [2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative, filled-in reproduction of Cal. Judicial Council Form SC-107, Small Claims Subpoena and Declaration [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen. A], which is for use by a party to a small claims action to compel the attendance and testimony of a non-party witness at a small claims hearing, or to compel the production by that witness of documents or things, or both [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985, 1986 and discussion in § 526.70[3][a]; for detailed discussion and forms relating to subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum generally, see also Ch. 535, Subpoena].

Use of the form is mandatory [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. [3] Issuance of Subpoena

The subpoena may be obtained from the clerk of the court [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985(c), 1986(a)].

[4] Filling in Form

[a] Identification of Court and Parties

For the manner of filling in the name and address of the court, and the names of the parties, see the Comments to see § 526.151.

[b] Order to Appear or Produce Documents or Things (Paragraph 1)

The name, address, and telephone number of the witness, to the extent known, must be filled in under "THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA, TO."

Paragraph 1 directs the witness to appear at a particular time and place unless the appearance is excused under Paragraph 4(b), discussed in § 526.156[4][e], or the witness makes an agreement otherwise with the person named in § 526.156[4][c] [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985(a), 1985.1].

[c] Agreement With Subpoenaing Party (Paragraph 2)

In Paragraph 2, the subpoenaing party must fill in his or her own name and telephone number. This paragraph is included to comply with thenotice required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.2, to inform the witness that, in lieu of appearance or production at the time and place specified, he or she make an agreement with the subpoenaing party for some alternate means of complying with the subpoena [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.1].

[d] Witness Fees (Paragraph 3)

Paragraph 3 is designed to satisfy the requirement that any witness subpoenaed in a civil or administrative action must be given written notice that he or she may be entitled to receive witness and mileage fees [see Code Civ. Proc. § 2065]. For further discussion regarding these fees, see Ch. 535, Subpoena, §§ 535.18, 535.19.

[e] Appearance or Production of Records in Lieu of Appearance (Paragraph 4)

Paragraphs 4(a) and 4(b) are mutually exclusive, and only one is to be checked by the subpoenaing party. Paragraph 4(a) is checked when personal appearance by the witness or custodian is required.

Paragraph 4(b) is checked when, alternatively, the subpoenaing party does not require personal appearance but only that the witness or custodian of records mail or deliver copies of all the records described in the attached declaration (page two of the form), in compliance with Evid. Code § 1560 et seq. Paragraph 4(b) provides the witness or custodian with instructions for delivering the required copies. For detailed discussion relating to the procedures relating to the production of records or copies of records in lieu of appearance by the witness, see Ch. 535, Subpoena, § 535.20[1].

[f] Supporting Declaration When Documents or Things Are Sought

A subpoena duces tecum, or a subpoena that seeks to compel the non-party witness to produce documents or things in addition to appearing and testifying, must be accompanied by a copy of an affidavit or declaration that shows good cause for the production of the matters and things described in the subpoena duces tecum and that sets forth their materiality to the issues involved in the case [Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(b)]. The declaration on page two of the form is provided for this purpose.

In Paragraph 1 of page two, the subpoenaing party states his or her role in the action by checking the appropriate box. In Paragraph 2, 3, and 4 of page two, the subpoenaing party must, under penalty of perjury, specify in detail the documents or things over which the witness has possession or control and which are to be produced, specify their materiality to the issues involved in the action, and provide reasons that establish good cause for their production [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1985(b)]. The documents or other things should be described with such certainty that the person producing the records is reasonably apprised of what is required [see McClatchy Newspapers v. Superior Court (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 386, 398, 159 P.2d 944 ; Nelson v. Superior Court (1937) 9 Cal. 2d 729, 732, 73 P.2d 232]. Identification may be considered inadequate when the books and documents sought are designated by or included within an "omnibus description" [see Pacific Auto. Ins. Co. v. Superior Court (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 61, 68-69, 77 Cal. Rptr. 836] . For further discussion, see Ch. 535, Subpoena, § 535.16.

[5] Notice to Custodian of Consumer or Employee Records

Paragraph 5 on the first page of the form provides notice to the witness that, if he or she is the custodian of consumer or employee records sought under Code Civ. Proc. § 1985.3 or 1985.6, and he or she has been served by the consumer or employee with a motion to quash the subpoena or with an objection, then the witness is not to produce the records unless and until directed to do so by a court order or agreement between the parties, witness, and consumer or employee [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1985.3(g), 1985.6(f); for detailed discussion and forms relating to the procedures for production of consumer or employee records, see Ch. 535, Subpoena, §§ 535.21[7], [8], 535.69, 535.74].

[6] Disobedience of Subpoena

A notice at the bottom of the first page of the form states that disobedience of a subpoena may be punished as contempt [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1991] and that the person disobeying the subpoena will also be liable for a $500 penalty and all damages resulting from his or her failure to obey [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1992].

[7] Proof of Service

Page three of the form contains a proof of service to be filled in by the server after service is made.

This form is an illustrative reproduction of Cal. Judicial Council Form SC-109, which is a declaration by a person who is appearing in a small claims action on behalf of another person or entity. Generally, a plaintiff or defendant in a small claims action must appear personally [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(a); Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen. A]. However, as indicated by the options presented in this form, the following persons and entities may under certain conditions appear through a representative: a corporation, a sole proprietorship, a government agency or other public entity, a serviceperson on active duty outside California, an inmate, a nonresident owner of California real property that is a defendant in small claims court, and an owner of rental property [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(b)-(i)]. Also, a married person who has been sued jointly with his or her spouse may consent to be represented by the spouse if the court finds that to be in the interests of justice [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(k)]. Finally, the court has discretion to allow a nonparty to assist an individual party who cannot properly present his or her claim and needs assistance [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(l)].

The statutory authorization for representation in small claims court generally does not permit representation by attorneys. An attorney may appear in small claims court only if (1) he or she is a named party; or (2) he or she is representing a legal partnership or corporation of which he or she is a general partner, officer, or director, and then only if all of the partners, directors, and officers are also attorneys [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.530(a), (b), 116.540(m)].

Generally, a person who is appearing in a representative capacity must file a declaration stating (1) that he or she is authorized to appear for the party, and (2) the basis for the authorization. The declaration must also set forth the prerequisites required by statute for the person to represent the particular party involved [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.540(j)]. This form reflects the appropriate statutory requirements for representation of each kind of party.

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative reproduction of the Judicial Council Form SC-120, Defendant's Claim and Order to Go to Small Claims Court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen. A], and is for use by a defendant to file a cross claim within the jurisdictional limit of the small claims court against the plaintiff in a pending small claims action [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.360]. Note that the compulsory cross complaint statute (Code Civ. Proc. § 426.30) is not applicable to small claims actions [see Code Civ. Proc. § 426.60(b)].

For the discussion of the procedure the defendant may follow if his or her claim is for an amount in excess of the jurisdiction of the small claims court and the defendant does not wish to waive recovery of the excess of the claim, see discussion in § 526.53[3]. For a form of declaration that defendant files in the small claims court if he or she files an action on his or her claim against the plaintiff in a court of competent jurisdiction, see § 526.159.

Use of this form is mandatory. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

This form, under "Instructions for the person suing," contains an outdated reference to former Cal. Judicial Council Form SC-150 for general information about a claimant's rights in small claims court. Effective July 1, 2010, that general information is provided in Cal. Judicial Council Form SC-100-INFO; for an illustrative reproduction of that form, see § 526.150[1].

If there are more than two plaintiffs or two defendants, they should be listed on the form entitled Other Plaintiffs or Defendants (Cal. Judicial Council Form SC-120A).

[3] Contents of Cross Claim

The required contents of the claim are prescribed by Code Civ. Proc. § 116.320(b), (c) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.130(a)]. That is, the required contents of the defendant's claim against the plaintiff are the same as those of the plaintiff against the defendant. Thus, contents of the foregoing form are substantially the same (except for the statement of venue) as those of plaintiff's claim set forth in see § 526.151. For the manner of filling in the form and the defendant's representations to the court, see § 526.151.

[4] Service and Filing

The defendant files the form with the clerk of the small claims court in person, by mail, by facsimile transmission if authorized by statute, or by electronic means as authorized by statute [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.320(a), 116.360(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.5 (facsimile); Code Civ. Proc. § 1010.6 (electronic filing)]. The defendant must serve a copy of the claim and order on the plaintiff at least 5 days before the hearing date, unless the defendant was served 10 days or less before the hearing date, in which event the defendant must serve a copy of the defendant's claim and order on the plaintiff at least one day before the hearing date [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.360(c)].

Service of defendant's claim and order is accomplished by (1) the clerk mailing a copy to the plaintiff by any form of mail providing for return receipt; (2) the defendant causing a copy to be delivered to the plaintiff in person; (3) the defendant using substituted service as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 415.20(a) or (b) without the need to attempt personal service on the plaintiff; or (4) the clerk's mailing a copy of the claim to plaintiff by any form of mail providing for a return receipt and, on receipt of proof that the claim was delivered, issuing and serving an order on the plaintiff by any form of mail providing for a return receipt [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.330(b), 116.340(a), 116.360(b); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.130(a), (b) and discussion in § 526.52[1]]. No answer by plaintiff to defendant's claim is required.

[5] State Statutes

Judgment of small claims court as conclusive of defendant's claim. Code Civ. Proc. § 116.710(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.130(a).

[2] Use of Form

This form of declaration is for use by a defendant in a small claims action to request the small claims court to transfer the action to another court of competent jurisdiction in which defendant has filed a related claim [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.390(a), (b)].

[3] Request to Transfer Claim

[a] By Filing Declaration

If the defendant has a claim against the plaintiff in an amount exceeding the court's jurisdictional limit (generally, $7,500 if the defendant is a natural person, or $5,000 if the defendant is other than a natural person), or has brought more than two claims over $2,500 in one calendar year, and defendant's current claim relates to the contract, transaction, matter, or event that is the subject of the plaintiff's claim, the defendant may commence an action against the plaintiff in a court of competent jurisdiction and request the small claims court to transfer the action to that court [*Code Civ. The form also contains on its reverse side information as to the postjudgment rights and obligations of the parties and of additional procedures that may be available to vacate or cancel or to enforce the judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.710-116.860].

[3] Acknowledgment of Satisfaction of Judgment

The Acknowledgment of Satisfaction of Judgment on the reverse side of the form of Notice of Entry of Judgment is to be filled out by the judgment creditor or his or her assignee of record and filed with the clerk of the small claims court immediately on receipt of full payment of the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.850(a)]. The satisfaction of judgment form, however, is to be used only if an abstract of judgment has not been filed. If an abstract of judgment has been recorded, acknowledgment of satisfaction of the judgment by execution or other means must be filed in the manner provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 697.400 and must contain the information required by Code Civ. Proc. § 724.060 or 724.100. For further discussion of these provisions, and a Judicial Council form of acknowledgment of satisfaction of judgment for use where an abstract of judgment was recorded, see Ch. 318, Judgments .

As an alternative to the Acknowledgment of Satisfaction of Judgment appearing in this form, the judgment creditor may use Cal. Judicial Council Form SC-290 to acknowledge satisfaction of the judgment [see § 526.164B].

[4] Penalty for Failure to File Acknowledgment of Satisfaction of Judgment

Any judgment creditor or assignee of record who, after receiving full payment of the judgment and written demand by the judgment debtor, fails without good cause to execute and file an acknowledgment of satisfaction of the judgment with the clerk of the court in which the judgment is entered within 14 days after receiving the request is liable to the judgment debtor or the judgment debtor's grantees or heirs for all damages sustained byreason of the failure and, in addition, the sum of $50 [*Code Civ. [1] FORM Request to Pay Judgment to Court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.860; Cal. Judicial Council Form SC-145]

[2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative reproduction of the Judicial Council Form SC-145, Request to Pay Judgment to Court [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen. A]. It is for use by a judgment debtor to pay a small claims judgment directly to the court in which the judgment was entered and thereby to obtain a satisfaction of judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.860].

Use of the form is mandatory [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31]. This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Accompanying Payment

The judgment debtor should mail or deliver to the court the completed form, together with an estimated payment that includes the amount of the small claims judgment, a $20 fee to cover administrative costs, and interest accruing at an annual rate of 10 percent from the date the judgment was entered [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.860(b), (h); see Code Civ. Proc. § 685.010 (interest rate)]. The court clerk will calculate and fill in the total payment owed on page two of the foregoing form. If the judgment debtor does not receive a notice of satisfaction of judgment within a reasonable time, he or she should contact the court to determine whether his or her payment was sufficient to satisfy the total payment owed as calculated by the court.

When payment is made by any means other than money order, certified or cashier's check, or cash, entry of satisfaction of judgment will be delayed for a period of 30 days [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.860(d)].

[4] Partial Payment

If the judgment debtor has already paid a portion of the judgment to the judgment creditor, the debtor should fill out Paragraph 5 and submit the balance owing on the judgment, plus costs, interest, and the court fee [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.860(c)]. The debtor must also attach to the foregoing form copies showing both sides of the check or money order with which he or she made partial payment to the judgment creditor or showing a dated cash receipt signed by the judgment creditor [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.850(d)(1)]. Additionally, the judgment debtor must file a declaration [see § 526.168] in order to raise the required rebuttable presumption of partial payment to have a satisfaction of judgment filed by the clerk [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.850(d)(2), 116.860(c)].

[5] Notification and Payment of Judgment Creditor

On receiving the form, together with the judgment debtor's payment of the total owed to the judgment creditor, the clerk will mail the form to the judgment creditor, indicating that the judgment debtor has satisfied the judgment by making payment to the court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.860(e)]. The judgment creditor will receive the funds after mailing or delivering to the court clerk the Judgment Creditor's Request for Funds that appears at the end of the form.

A], and is for use by either the plaintiff or the defendant to move to vacate a judgment entered after the moving party failed to appear at the hearing of plaintiff's claim [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.720-116.740].

Use of the form is optional [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.35]. [3] Motion by Plaintiff

A plaintiff who did not appear at the hearing in the small claims court may file a motion to vacate the judgment with the clerk of the small claims court. The motion must be filed within 30 days after the clerk has mailed notice of entry of the judgment to the parties [see §§ 526.164, 526.164A]. The clerk must schedule the hearing on the motion to vacate for a date no earlier than 10 days after the clerk has mailed written notice of the date, time, and place of the hearing to the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.720(b)].

On a showing of good cause, the small claims court may grant the motion. If the defendant is not present, the court must hear the motion in the defendant's absence [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.720(c)].

If the motion is granted and if all parties are present and agree, the court may hear the case without rescheduling it. If the defendant is not present, the judge or clerk shall reschedule the case and give notice in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 116.330 (see discussion in § 526.52) [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.720(d)].

[4] Motion by Defendant

[a] No Appearance After Proper Service

A defendant who did not appear at the hearing in the small claims court may file a motion to vacate the judgment with the clerk of the small claims court. The motion must be filed within 30 days after the clerk has mailed notice of entry of the judgment [see §§ 526.164, 526.164A] to the parties.

The defendant must appear at any hearing on the motion or submit written justification for not appearing together with a declaration in support of the motion [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730(b)].

On a showing of good cause, the court may grant the motion to vacate the judgment. If the plaintiff is not present, the court must hear the motion in the plaintiff's absence [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730(c)]. If the motion is granted and if all parties are present and agree, the court may hear the case without rescheduling it. If the plaintiff is not present, the judge or clerk shall reschedule the case and give notice in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 116.330 [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730(d)].

If the motion is denied, the defendant may appeal to the superior court only on the denial of the motion to vacate the judgment. The defendant must file the notice of appeal with the clerk of the small claims court within 10 days after the small claims court has mailed or delivered notice of the court's denial of the motion to vacate the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730(e); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.710(d); see also § 526.172].

If the superior court determines that the defendant's motion to vacate the judgment should have been granted, the superior court may hear the claims of all parties without rescheduling the matter, provided that all parties are present and the defendant has previously complied with Code Civ. Proc. § 116.710 et seq. Alternatively, the court may order the case transferred to the small claims court for a hearing [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730(f)].

[b] No Appearance After Improper Service

If the defendant was not properly served with plaintiff's claim [see § 526.151] as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 116.330 or 116.340 (see discussion in § 526.52[1]) and did not appear at the hearing in the small claims court, the defendant may file a motion to vacate the judgment with the clerk of the small claims court. The motion must be accompanied by a supporting declaration, and shall be filed within 180 days after the defendant discovers or should have discovered that judgment was entered against him or her [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.740(a); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.710(d)].

The court may order that the enforcement of the judgment must be suspended pending a hearing and determination of the motion to vacate the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.740(b)].

On a showing of good cause, the court may grant the motion to vacate the judgment. If the plaintiff is not present the court must hear the motion in the plaintiff's absence [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.740(c)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730(d)-(f) also apply to this motion by defendant [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.740(c); see § 526.94].

[5] Filling in Form

[a] Title of Court and Case

For the manner of filling in the name and address of the court and the names of the parties, see the Comments to see § 526.151.

[b] Notice

The name of the opposing party should be typed in to the right of "NOTICE TO (Name)," since that is the party being notified that review of the judgment is being sought.

[c] Date, Time, and Place of Hearing (Paragraph 1)

This information is normally filled in by the small claims court clerk at the time the notice of motion is filed.

[d] Motion (Paragraph 2)

The motion is for an order vacating the judgment and is set forth in layman's terms in Paragraph 2. This paragraph also sets forth the matters on which the motion (request) is based.

[e] Date Judgment Was Entered (Paragraph 3)

The date the judgment was entered should be set forth.

[f] Date Party Learned of Entry of Judgment (Paragraph 4)

The date the appealing party learned that judgment had been entered should be set forth. This date is normally the date on which the party received the clerk's notice of entry of judgment.

[g] Ground of Motion (Paragraph 5)

The box in Paragraph 5a should be checked and the reason for the failure to appear typed in. The box in Paragraph 5b should be checked when a ground other than the party's failure to appear exists for vacating the judgment. The facts establishing the ground should be set out.

[6] Representations to Court (Paragraph 6)

The moving party is required, by signing the form, to declare under penalty of perjury that he or she understands the things that must be brought to the hearing on the motion to support the granting of the motion.

The clerk will collect a $20 fee for the filing of a motion to vacate [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.745].

[3] Filing Notice of Appeal

An appeal from a small claims court judgment is taken by filing a notice of appeal with the clerk of the small claims court [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.750(a)]. The notice must be filed no later than 30 days after the clerk has delivered or mailed notice of entry of judgment. A notice of appeal filed after the 30-day period is ineffective for any purpose [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.750(b)]. The time for filing a notice of appeal is not extended by the filing of a request to correct a mistake or by virtue of any subsequent proceedings on that request, except that a new period for filing notice of appeal shall begin on the delivery or mailing of notice of entry of any modified judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.750(c)].

The notice must be signed by the appellant or by the appellant's attorney and is sufficient if it states in substance that the appellant appeals from a specified judgment or, in the case of a defaulting defendant (discussed below), from the denial of a motion to vacate the judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 8.954(a)].

[4] Defaulting Defendant

A defendant who did not appear at the small claims hearing may not file a notice of appeal, but may file a motion in the small claims court to vacate the judgment [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.710(d); see also § 526.170]. In that event, a notice of appeal (appealing the denial of the motion to vacate only) may be filed within 10 days after the clerk has mailed or delivered notice of the court's denial of a motion to vacate the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.730(e)].

[5] Insurer of Defendant

With respect to plaintiff's claim, the insurer of defendant may appeal the judgment to the superior court in the county in which the matter was heard if the judgment exceeds $2,500 and the insurer stipulates that its policy with the defendant covers the matter to which the judgment applies [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.710(c)].

[6] Filing Fee

The appealing party must pay a $75 fee for filing a notice of appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.760(a)]. A party who does not appeal will not be charged any fee for filing any document relating to the appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.760(b)].

[7] Procedure

The procedure for (1) filing the record on appeal; (2) setting for trial; and (3) dismissal, abandonment, and judgment are covered generally by Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.750-116.795. The appeal in the superior court consists of a new hearing before a judicial officer other than the judicial officer who heard the action in the small claims division [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.770(a)]. The trial is conducted informally except that attorneys may participate [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.770(b), (c); see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.510]. Neither a trial by jury nor the pretrial discovery procedures described in Code Civ. Proc. § 2019(a) (Code Civ. Proc. § 2019.010 operative July 1, 2005) are permitted [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.770(b)]. The judgment of the superior court is final and is not appealable [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.780(a)]; however, it may, in an appropriate case, be reviewed by extraordinary writ [see § 526.94[13]]. Code Civ. Proc. §§ 116.610-116.630 (small claims court judgments) applies to judgments of the superior court after a hearing on appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.780(b)], except that, for good cause and when necessary to achieve substantial justice between the parties, the superior court may award a party to an appeal reimbursement of up to $150 in attorney's fees and costs and up to $150 for loss of earnings and expenses of transportation and lodging, actually and reasonably incurred in connection with the appeal [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.780(c)].

[8] Decisions

Right of appeal by plaintiff from adverse judgment on cross claim. Skaff v. Small Claims Court (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 76, 79-81, 65 Cal. Rptr. 65, 435 P.2d 825

No right of appeal by defendant from adverse judgment on cross claim. Davis v. Superior Court (1980) 102 Cal. App. 3d 164, 168, 162 Cal. Rptr. 167

SUPPORTING MEMORANDUM

[Add memorandum supporting motion.]

[2] Use of Form

This notice of motion and supporting declaration is for use by a party who seeks to recover attorney's fees and expenses incurred as a result of the other party's bad faith appeal of a small claims judgment. The superior court may award the party attorney's fees of up to, but not exceeding, $1,000 and loss of earnings and transportation and lodging expenses up to, but not exceeding, $1,000 if the court finds, following a hearing, that the appeal was without substantial merit and not based on good faith but was intended to harass or delay the other party or to encourage the other party to abandon his or her claim [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.790].

A memorandum in support of the motion must be filed and served with the notice of motion [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a); see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1005(b), 1010]. Counsel should use the memorandum to demonstrate that the defendant's legal grounds for appeal had no substantial legal merit [see Code Civ. Proc. § 116.790]. For further discussion of the showing required to justify an attorney's fees award, see § 526.94[12].

[3] Notice Requirements

Code Civ. Proc. § 116.790 does not specify any requisite notice period. If the notice is given by a noticed motion, the notice period specified by Code Civ. Proc. § 1005 should be followed [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b) (effective January 1, 1005, at least 16 court days' notice required for most motions)]. For discussion of notice of motions and motions in general, see Ch. 372, Motions and Orders .

[4] Written Statement of Reasons for Resulting Order

Although Code Civ. Proc. § 116.790 does not expressly require that an order awarding attorney's fees recite in detail the circumstances justifying the order, due process apparently requires a statement of reasons justifying the sanctions [see Hearst v. Ferrante (1987) 189 Cal. App. 3d 201, 204, 234 Cal. Rptr. 385 (written reasons are required to support award of attorney's fees after setting aside default based on mistake, inadvertence, surprise, or excusable neglect under Code Civ. Proc. § 473)].

Within 30 days after the clerk has mailed notice of entry of the judgment, unless the judgment has been satisfied, the judgment debtor shall complete the form and cause it to be delivered to the judgment creditor [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.830(b)]. In the event a motion is made to vacate the judgment or a notice of appeal is filed, the form must be completed within 30 days after the clerk has delivered or mailed notice of denial of the motion to vacate or notice of dismissal of or entry of judgment on the appeal, whichever is applicable [*Code Civ. [2] Use of Form

This form is an illustrative reproduction of Cal. Judicial Council Form SC-134, Application and Order to Produce Statement of Assets and to Appear for Examination. When a judgment debtor willfully fails to pay the judgment or file the Judgment Debtor's Statement of Assets [see § 526.174] as required by Code Civ. Proc. § 116.830(b) or (c), the judgment creditor may use this form to make the request provided for under Code Civ. Proc. § 116.830(d), that is, request that the court apply the sanctions provided for in Code Civ. Proc. § 708.170 (discussed under § 526.175[4]). The use of this form in making a request under Code Civ. Proc. § 116.830(d) is mandatory [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.31; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Appen. A].

This form is available in an interactive, electronic format in LexisNexis(R) Automated California Judicial Council Forms, which may be accessed at www.lexisone.com for an individual or monthly charge. A noninteractive version in PDF format also is available at www.lexisone.com at no charge.

[3] Completing and Serving the Form

To make this request under Code Civ. Proc. § 116.830(d), the judgment creditor fills out the application portion of the form, presents the form to the clerk and pays the fee. The clerk sets a hearing date in the order portion of the form, and returns the original and one copy to the judgment creditor. The judgment creditor must then have the form served personally on the judgment debtor by a sheriff, marshall, or registered process server at least 10 calendar days before the hearing date, and file proof of service with the court [see the Instructions for Judgment Creditor, printed as page two of the form (note that the page two, containing only these instructions, need not be filed and served)]. For a proof of service form, see § 526.153.

[4] Order and Hearing

The order portion requires that the judgment debtor do either of the following:

- Pay the judgment, with costs and interest, before the hearing date set by the order.

- Appear with a completed Statement of Assets (see § 526.174), and explain why the Statement of Assets was not completed within the required time and otherwise answer questions about income and assets.

If the judgment debtor does not pay the judgment before the hearing date, the judgment creditor must attend the hearing [see the Instructions for Judgment Creditor, printed as page two of the form].

If the judgment debtor fails either to pay or appear at the hearing, the court may issue a warrant to have him or her brought before the court to answer for the failure to appear, and may punish the judgment debtor for contempt, or the court may issue a warrant for the arrest of the judgment debtor [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.170(a)(1); see Code Civ. Proc. § 1993].

If the judgment debtor's failure to appear is without good cause, the court must award the judgment creditor reasonable attorney's fees incurred in this examination proceeding. This award against the judgment debtor becomes a part of the principal amount of the judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 708.170(a)(2); see also discussion in Ch. 254, Executions and Enforcements of Judgments, § 254.180 et seq.]. Thus, when the judgment creditor attends the hearing, he or she should be prepared to present to court a memorandum detailing any attorney's fees incurred in the proceedings, to provide the court with a basis for an award of fees under Code Civ. Proc. § 708.170(a)(2) if it should later determine that the judgment debtor's failure to appear was without good cause.

The following statutory definitions apply to terms used in this chapter:

- "Aid" means financial assistance provided to or in behalf of needy persons under the terms of Welf. & Inst. Code § 10000 et seq., including direct money payments and vendor payments [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10052].

- "County department" means the county agency designated by the board of supervisors, or by such other authority as may be provided in the county charter, as responsible for the administration of public social services [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10058].

- "County director" means the director or other chief executive of the county department [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10059].

- "Public assistance" and "public assistance programs" mean those public social services programs provided for in Welf. & Inst. Code § 11000 et seq. [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10061].

- "Public social services" means those activities and functions of state and local government administered or supervised by the State Department of Social Services or the State Department of Health Services that are involved in providing aid or services, or both, including health care services and medical assistance, to those people of the state who, because of their economic circumstances or social conditions, are in need of and may benefit by that aid or those services [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10051].

- "Regulations" include, but are not limited to, standards of eligibility for aid and services, procedures necessary for the proper and efficient administration of public social services, and standards regarding conditions that must be met by agencies or individuals subject to licensing or supervision by the State Department of Social Services or the State Department of Health Services [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10060].

"Services" means those activities and functions performed by the social work staff and related personnel of the State Department of Social Services and county departments with or in behalf of individuals or families that are directed toward the improvement of the capabilities of those individuals or families to maintain or achieve a sound family life, rehabilitation, self-care, and economic independence [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10053].

A "state hearing" is a hearing pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 before either the State Department of Social Services or the State Department of Health Services, available either to a recipient of public assistance prior to suspension, reduction, discontinuation, or termination of assistance [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950; 45 C.F.R. § 205.10(a)(6)(i)(A); see also Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 267-271, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 ; In re Darlene T. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 929, 939, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 119] or to an applicant for public assistance on denial of assistance [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950; 45 C.F.R. § 205.10(a)(5)]. Prior to its 1991 amendment, this hearing was known as and referred to in both statutory and case law as a "fair" hearing [see former Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950; see also § 527.32[1]]. Effective January 1, 1992, the hearing is statutorily denominated a "state" hearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950, as amended by Stats. 1991, ch. 820, § 6]. State hearing procedure is discussed under § 527.30 et seq.

Chapter 527 SOCIAL SERVICES
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Principles Related to Administration of Social Services

46-527 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 527.12

§ 527.12 Relationship of Federal and California Law

The federal Social Security Act provides federal funds for various public assistance programs [see 42 U.S.C. §§ 601 et seq. (grants to states for aid and services to needy families with children and for child-welfare services), 42 U.S.C. §§ 1381-1383c (supplemental security income for aged, blind, and disabled), 42 U.S.C. §§ 1396-1396s (grants to states for medical assistance programs), 42 U.S.C. §§ 1397-1397e (grants to states for services)].

The California public social services acts were adopted or amended for the purpose of operating in harmony with the federal system in order to obtain federal assistance in providing aid to needy persons [Pearson v. State Social Welfare Bd. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 184, 214, 5 Cal. Rptr. 553, 353 P.2d 33 ; Newbold v. Social Welfare Bd. (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 844, 847, 174 P.2d 482] .

Since the state assistance programs involve federal subsidies, they are subject to reasonable federal regulations. Under both the federal and state acts, administrative boards are empowered to promulgate rules, regulations, and administrative interpretations affecting these programs. These regulations should be harmonized, whenever possible, within the statutory limits established, in order to carry out the cooperative public purpose and law of both sovereigns [Pearson v. State Social Welfare Bd. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 184, 215, 5 Cal. Rptr. 553, 353 P.2d 33] .

It is the public policy of the state to establish and maintain conformity between the state law and the requirements of the federal act to facilitate the receipt of grants-in-aid in support of the state public assistance program [Pearson v. State Social Welfare Bd. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 184, 189, 5 Cal. Rptr. 553, 353 P.2d 33] . Thus, if the United States Department of Health and Human Services issues a formal ruling that any section of the Welfare and Institutions Code relating to public assistance cannot be given effect without causing California's plan to be out of conformity with federal requirements, that section becomes inoperative to the extent of its nonconformity with federal requirements [Welf. & Inst. Code § 11003].

A. General Principles Related to Administration of Social Services

§ 527.13 Types of Aid

[1] Public Assistance Programs

Aid is provided to needy persons in California under the aid and medical assistance programs provided for in Welf. & Inst. Code § 11000 et seq. These programs receive federal funds and must therefore be administered in conformity with federal regulations [see Vaessen v. Woods (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 749, 751, 756-764, 200 Cal. Rptr. 893, 677 P.2d 1183 ; Pearson v. State Social Welfare Bd. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 184, 189, 5 Cal. Rptr. 553, 353 P.2d 33 ; see also discussion under § 527.12].

Public assistance programs for which the federal government defrays a large portion of the cost, such as those provided for in Welf. & Inst. Code § 11000 et seq., which are administered by the county under the supervision of the state, are sometimes referred to as "categorical" assistance programs [see Rogers v. Detrich (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 90, 99, 128 Cal. Rptr. 261] .

Benefits under the State Supplementary Program for the Aged, Blind, and Disabled [Welf. & Inst. Code § 12000 et seq.] are paid through federal, rather than state, administration [see Rogers v. Detrich (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 90, 94 n.3, 128 Cal. Rptr. 261] . For detailed discussion and forms relating to the federally administered Supplemental Security Income program (S.S.I.), see Social Security Practice Guide, ch. 25, Supplemental Security Income (Matthew Bender).

[2] County Aid

Every county is required to relieve and support all incompetent, poor, and indigent persons and those incapacitated by age, disease, or accident, who lawfully reside in the county and are not supported and relieved by their relatives or friends, by their own means, or by state hospitals or other state or private institutions [Welf. & Inst. Code § 17000]. Aid provided by the counties through county funds is referred to as "general assistance" [see Mooney v. Pickett (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 669, 671, 94 Cal. Rptr. 279, 483 P.2d 1231 ; Watkins v. County of Alameda (2009) 177 Cal. App. 4th 320, 329, 98 Cal. Rptr. 3d 847].

No state or federal funds are provided for this purpose, and the counties are not required to grant any specific type of relief or to pay any specific amount of money [County of Los Angeles v. Department of Social Welfare (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 455, 458, 260 P.2d 41] . The county has a broad discretion to determine eligibility for, the type and amount of, and conditions to be attached to indigent relief [Mooney v. Pickett (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 669, 678, 94 Cal. Rptr. 279, 483 P.2d 1231 ; County of Los Angeles v. Department of Social Welfare (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 455, 458, 260 P.2d 41; Alford v. County of San Diego (2007) 151 Cal. App. 4th 16, 32, 59 Cal. Rptr. 3d 596 (flat income cap eligibility standard that does not consider individual's ability to pay all or part of subsistence medical care is not permitted)] .

Despite this broad discretion, to determine the level of general assistance to be paid, counties must conduct studies of what is needed for minimum subsistence, because the general assistance level must be justified by and based on evidence of the actual cost of minimum subsistence in the county. Minimum subsistence, at the least, must include allocations for housing, food, utilities, clothing, transportation, and medical care [Scates v. Rydingsword (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1085, 1089, 280 Cal. Rptr. 544 ; Whitfield v. Board of Supervisors (1991) 227 Cal. App. 3d 451, 457, 460-461, 277 Cal. Rptr. 815 ; Boehm v. Superior Court (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 494, 499-502, 223 Cal. Rptr. 716 (appeal after remand)].

However, the requirement for conducting studies of what is needed for minimum subsistence appears to have been limited. Welf. & Inst. Code § 17000.5, which sets 62 percent of the federal poverty level as a sufficient standard of aid, has been held to be the legislative equivalent of repealing the requirement for a factual study of what amount is needed for minimum subsistence (Boehm study). Any county that meets the 62 percent requirement has by definition provided minimum subsistence needs [Oberlander v. County of Contra Costa (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 535, 542, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182] . In addition, the effect of Welf. & Inst. Code § 17001.5 has been held to permit a county to reduce general assistance aid to groups of unrelated adults living together, and so long as reductions do not exceed percentages set forth in the statute, the county need not conduct a Boehm study as to the sufficiency of its aid levels [Oberlander v. County of Contra Costa (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 535, 543, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 182] .

Furthermore, to be valid under the general relief statutes, the county's regulations must be consistent with the statutes and reasonably necessary to effectuate the statutory purpose [see Nelson v. Board of Supervisors (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 25, 31, 235 Cal. Rptr. 305] .

The Department of Social Services and the Department of Health Services have no power to supervise or control the administration of indigent relief provided by the counties and have no jurisdiction to consider complaints relating to the adequacy of the relief [see County of Los Angeles v. Department of Social Welfare (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 455, 459, 260 P.2d 41 ; Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 (state hearing procedure not applicable to recipient of aid exclusively financed by county funds); see also discussion in § 527.13[2]].

Because no federal funds are provided to the counties for general assistance, federal regulations are not applicable to the administration of county aid. However, the procedures established by the counties must satisfy the constitutional requirements of procedural due process [see Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 269-270, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 ; Griffeth v. Detrich (9th Cir. 1979) 603 F.2d 118, 120-122 , cert. denied, 445 U.S. 970] . These constitutional requirements are discussed in § 527.15.

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. General Principles Related to Administration of Social Services

46-527 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 527.14

§ 527.14 Administration of Public Social Services

[1] Supervision by State

The State Department of Social Services is designated as the single state agency with full power to supervise every phase of the administration of all public social services except health care services and medical assistance, for which grants-in-aid are received from the United States government or made by the state in order to secure full compliance with the applicable provisions of state and federal laws [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10600].

Similarly, the State Department of Health Services is designated as the agency with the same supervisory power over health care services and medical assistance [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10740].

Each single state agency responsible for administering federal funds can delegate specific responsibilities to other state agencies through interagency agreements, provided these plans are approved by the federal government (i.e. the state controller's office has performed Medi-Cal audits for the California Dept. of Health Services) [RCJ Medical Services, Inc. v. Bonta (2001) 91 Cal. App. 4th 986, 1008, 91 Cal. App. 4th 986] .

The State Department of Social Services must advise public officers regarding the administration of public social services by public agencies throughout the state, and must supervise the administration of state public social services, except health care services and medical assistance, to all persons receiving or eligible to receive state public social services [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10603]. The State Department of Health Services must perform the same functions with regard to health care services and medical assistance [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10742].

In administering any funds appropriated or made available for disbursement through the counties for welfare purposes, the State Department of Social Services must do both of the following [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10604]:

- Require, as a condition for receiving grants-in-aid, that the county bear the proportion of the total expense of furnishing aid that is fixed by relevant law.

- Establish lawful regulations fixing statewide standards for the administration of all state or federally assisted public social services, except health care services and medical assistance, that define and control the conditions under which these public social services may be granted or refused. All regulations established by the department are binding on the boards of supervisors and the county departments.

The State Department of Health Services must similarly establish regulations relating to health care services and medical assistance, which are also binding on the boards of supervisors and the county departments [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10743].

The Director of the State Department of Social Services and the Director of the State Department of Health Services may invoke sanctions against counties that fail to comply either with code provisions or department regulations relating to public social services [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 10605, 10744].

[2] Administration by County

Subject to the provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 11050 (contract for state administration) and 12000 et seq. (federal administration of state supplementary program), the administration of public social services in each of the counties of the state is a county function and responsibility, and therefore rests on the boards of supervisors in the respective counties pursuant to the applicable laws, and, in the case of public social services for which federal or state funds are provided, is subject to the regulations of the State Department of Social Services and the State Department of Health Services [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10800].

For the purpose of providing for and carrying out this function and responsibility, the board of supervisors of each county, or any other agency that is otherwise provided by county charter, must establish a county department, unless otherwise provided by the county charter. The county department is the county agency for the administration of public social services and for the promotion of public understanding of the public social services provided under the Welfare and Institutions Code and the problems with which they deal [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10800]. The county department must carry out its responsibilities in accordance with the regulations of the State Department of Social Services and the State Department of Health Services [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10809].

For a discussion of the powers of the county in the administration of general assistance, which is financed solely by county funds, see the discussion under § 527.13[2].

§ 527.15 Availability of Regulations and Information

The Director of the State Department of Social Services and the Director of the State Department of Health Services are authorized to adopt regulations, orders, or standards of general application to implement, interpret, or make specific the law enforced by their respective departments [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 10554, 10725]. The regulations need not be printed in the California Code of Regulations or California Administrative Register if they are included in the publications of the department [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 10554, 10725].

The State Department of Social Services and the State Department of Health Services must publish and make available, at no cost to the public, all of their respective rules and regulations relating to the government of the department and any form of public assistance or health care services or medical assistance for which state aid is granted to the counties or over the administration of which the department has supervision [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 10606, 10745].

Each department must also provide, at no cost, any subscription service that is necessary to assure prompt receipt of all additions and amendments to the rules and regulations [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 10606, 10745]. The State Department of Social Services must also provide a similar subscription service for the digests of state hearing decisions compiled under Welf. & Inst. Code § 10964 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10606].

Copies of all laws relating to any form of public social service for which state aid is granted to counties, and over the administration of which the State Department of Social Services or State Department of Health Services has supervision, and copies of all bulletins and rules and regulations of each department must be made available to the public and for public inspection during regular office hours at each county office administering such aid and in each local or regional office of each department [Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 10608, 10747].

The board of supervisors of each county, or any other agency authorized by county charter, must adopt standards of aid and care for general assistance provided to the indigent and dependent poor of the county [Welf. & Inst. Code § 17001; see Pettye v. City And County of San Francisco (2004) 118 Cal. App. 4th 233, 243-248, 12 Cal. Rptr. 3d 798 (voters may amend general assistance standards through initiative process)]. The standards for general assistance promulgated by a county pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 17001 must be open to public inspection under the provisions of the California Public Records Act [see Gov. Code § 6250 et seq.; 55 Ops. Cal. Att'y Gen. 67 (1972)] .

§ 527.16 Due Process Requirements

[1] Pre-Termination Hearing

Under the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, a recipient of welfare benefits under either state or federal law is entitled to an evidentiary hearing before his or her benefits can be terminated [Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 269-270, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 ; Wheeler v. Montgomery (1970) 397 U.S. 280, 281-282, 90 S. Ct. 1026, 25 L. Ed. 2d 307 ; McCullough v. Terzian (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 647, 654, 87 Cal. Rptr. 195, 470 P.2d 4] .

Procedural due process includes the following requirements [Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 267-271, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287] :

- Timely and adequate notice detailing the reasons for the proposed termination.
- An opportunity for the recipient to confront and cross-examine adverse witnesses.
- An opportunity to present arguments and evidence orally.
- Allowing the recipient to retain counsel.
- An impartial decisionmaker.
- A statement by the decisionmaker indicating the reasons for his or her determination and the evidence relied on in making that decision.

The pre-termination hearing need not take the form of a judicial or quasi-judicial trial if a statutory fair hearing procedure provides a full administrative review [see Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 267, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 ; McCullough v. Terzian (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 647, 656-657, 87 Cal. Rptr. 195, 470 P.2d 4] . Furthermore, no preliminary hearing is necessary if the state continues to pay benefits until after the fair hearing is concluded [

Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 267 n.14, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287] .

These due process requirements are now included in federal regulations which set forth standards for hearings provided to recipients of benefits under federally assisted state programs [see 45 C.F.R. § 205.10]. Under these regulations, if the recipient makes a timely request for a hearing, assistance may not be suspended, reduced, discontinued, or terminated (but is subject to recovery by the agency if its action is sustained) until a decision is rendered after a hearing, unless a determination is made at the hearing that the sole issue is one of state or federal law or policy, or a change in state or federal law, and not one of incorrect grant computation [see 45 C.F.R. § 205.10(a)(6)(i)(A); see also 45 C.F.R. § 205.10(a)(16) (final administrative action to be taken within 90 days of request for hearing)].

Fair hearing procedures in California are governed by Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 et seq. These provisions are discussed further in Part B, § 527.30 et seq.

[2] Hearing on Denial of Application for Aid

An applicant for aid under federally assisted state programs is also entitled to a state hearing if his or her application is denied [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950; 45 C.F.R. § 205.10(a)(5); see § 527.30 et seq.].

The Welfare and Institutions Code does not provide for a hearing for an applicant whose application for general assistance, which is not federally funded, has been denied [see Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 10950, 17001 et seq.]. However, a federal court of appeal has held that an applicant for general assistance has an expectation of benefits that is a property interest under U.S. Const., amend. XIV, and that county procedures regarding applications for general assistance must therefore satisfy due process requirements established by the United States Supreme Court [Griffeth v. Detrich (9th Cir. 1979) 603 F.2d 118, 120-122 , cert. denied, 445 U.S. 970] . For a discussion of these due process requirements, see [1], above.

§ 527.30 Procedures Do Not Apply to County or Federally Administered Aid

The discussion in this Subpart relates to the procedure for state hearings before the State Department of Social Services or the State Department of Health Services, based on requests for such hearings by applicants for or recipients of public social services.

The statutory procedures do not apply to the state supplementary program for the aged, blind, and disabled [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 12000 et seq.]. This Supplemental Security Income (S.S.I.) program, adopted pursuant to Title XVI of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. § 1381 et seq.), is federally administered. For detailed discussion and forms relating to S.S.I. benefits, see Social Security Practice Guide, ch. 25, Supplemental Security Income (Matthew Bender).

These procedures also do not apply to applicants or recipients of aid exclusively financed by county funds or of aid under the state supplementary program for the aged, blind, and disabled [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950]. Aid exclusively financed by county funds is administered in accordance with procedures established by the county [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 17000 et seq.; see also § 527.13[2]].

§ 527.31 "Department," "Director," and "Recipient" Defined

Statutory definitions relevant to this Subpart include the following:

- "Department" means the State Department of Social Services [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10054].

- "Director" means the Director of Social Services [Welf. & Inst.Code § 10055].

- "Recipient" as used in this part means an applicant for or recipient of any public social service, except aid exclusively financed by county funds (see § 527.13[2]) or aid administered pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 12000 et seq. (S.S.I. program for aged, blind, and disabled; see § 527.13[1]) or aid administered under Welf. & Inst. Code § 18350 et seq. (state-funded payments to residential care providers for 24-hour out-of-home care for seriously emotionally disturbed children) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950].

Additional statutory definitions that may apply, e.g., "state hearing," are set out in § 527.11.

§ 527.32 State Hearing Procedure

[1] Opportunity for State Hearing

An applicant for or recipient of public social services who has filed a request for a state hearing with the state department that administers the service must be accorded an opportunity for that hearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950; see In re Darlene T. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 929, 939, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 119].

The "state hearing" was, before 1992, known as a "fair hearing" in statutory and case law [see former Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950; see also, e.g., County of Santa Clara v. Support, Inc. (1979) 89 Cal. App. 3d 687, 704, 152 Cal. Rptr 754] . "Fair hearing" was a term of art set forth in former Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 with roots in federal welfare law governing the procedural aspects of the termination of public assistance benefits [see Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 257 n.3, 266-267, 267 n.14, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287 ; McCullough v. Terzian (1970) 2 Cal. 3d 647, 650, 87 Cal. Rptr. 195, 470 P.2d 4] . Effective January 1, 1992, the "fair" hearing was statutorily renamed as "state" hearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950, as amended by Stats. 1991, ch. 820, § 6]. For the statutory definition of "state" hearing, see § 527.11.

Regardless of whether the hearing is known as a "fair" hearing or a "state" hearing, the procedural due process requirements of Goldberg v. Kelly [Goldberg v. Kelly (1970) 397 U.S. 254, 267-271, 90 S. Ct. 1011, 25 L. Ed. 2d 287] still apply. These requirements are discussed in § 527.16.

Hearings under Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 are not available to an individual who is neither a current recipient nor a current applicant for welfare benefits and who is seeking to contest child support determinations by a district attorney's office rather than contesting welfare payment determinations by a county welfare department [Pereira-Goodman v. Anderson (1997) 54 Cal. App. 4th 864, 865-866, 63 Cal. Rptr. 2d 197] .

[2] Filing Request for Hearing

A request for a state hearing may be filed under any of the following conditions [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950]:

- The applicant or recipient is dissatisfied with any action of the county department relating to his or her application for or receipt of public social services.

- His or her application is not acted on with reasonable promptness.

- A person who desires to apply for public social services is refused the opportunity to submit an application and is dissatisfied with the refusal.

The request for a state hearing may be filed in person or through an authorized representative, without filing a claim with the board of supervisors [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950]. Forms for requesting a state hearing and for designating an authorized representative may be obtained from the county department.

There is no right to a state hearing in either of the following cases [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950]:

- State or federal law requires automatic grant adjustments for classes of recipients, unless the reason for an individual request is incorrect grant computation.

- The sole issue is a federal or state law requiring an automatic change in services or medical assistance that adversely affects some or all recipients.

If rights not determined at the time of death accrue to the estate of an applicant or recipient, the legal representative or an heir of a deceased applicant or recipient may file a request for a hearing in behalf of the decedent's estate [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10965].

A request for a state hearing must be filed within 90 days after the order or action complained of [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10951].

[3] Setting Hearing and Giving Notice

The department must set the hearing to commence within 30 working days after the request is filed and, at least 10 days prior to the hearing, must give all parties concerned written notice of the time and place of the hearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10952].

Those cases in which aid is not being provided pending the outcome of the hearing must be given priority when setting and deciding cases. However, the priority may not be construed to permit or excuse any failure to render decisions within the time allowed by federal and state law [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950].

[4] Position Statement

If regulations require a public or private agency to write a position statement concerning the issues in question in a state hearing or if the agency chooses to develop such a statement, not less than two working days prior to the date of a hearing provided for pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 et seq., the agency must make a copy of the agency's position statement on the forthcoming hearing available, at the county welfare department, to the applicant or recipient requesting a state hearing. The agency is required to comply with these provisions only if the agency has received a 10-day notice of the date and time of the scheduled hearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10952.5].

If the agency does not make the position statement available within the two-working-day time period, or if the agency decides to modify the position statement, the hearing must be postponed on the request of the applicant or recipient, provided that an applicant or recipient agrees to waive the right to obtain a decision on the hearing within the deadline that would otherwise be applicable under regulations. A postponement granted because the agency has not made the position statement available within the two-working-day time frame is deemed a postponement for good cause for purposes of determining eligibility to any applicable benefits pending disposition of the hearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10952.5].

For the purposes of Welf. & Inst. Code § 10952.5, "public or private agency" does not include the State Department of Health Services.

[5] Person to Conduct Hearing

For the purposes of administering health care services and medical assistance, the State Director of Health Services has those powers and duties conferred on the Director of Social Services by Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 et seq. to conduct state hearings in order to secure approval of a state plan under the applicable provisions of federal law. The State Director of Health Services may contract with the State Department of Social Services for the provision of state hearings in accordance with Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 et seq. [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950].

The hearing must be conducted by administrative law judges employed by the department, unless the director orders that the hearing will be conducted by himself or herself [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10953]. The director may, however, contract with the Office of Administrative Hearings to conduct hearings [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10953].

The director has authority to appoint the department's administrative law judges as provided in Welf. & Inst. Code § 10555 (appointment of department assistants and employees). Each administrative law judge must be admitted to the practice of law in California, and must possess any other qualifications prescribed by the State Personnel Board. Anyone in the office of the chief referee who was employed by the department as a hearing officer prior to the effective date of Welf. & Inst. Code § 10953.5 (July 17, 1986) is deemed to be an administrative law judge [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10953.5].

The director or administrative law judge, in conducting the hearing, has all of the powers and authority conferred on the head of a state department by Gov. Code § 11180 et seq. for conducting investigations and hearings, such as the powers to administer oaths and to subpoena witnesses [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10954].

Gov. Code § 11500 et seq. (administrative adjudications) does not apply to hearings under Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 et seq. [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10953].

[6] Conduct of Hearing

[a] Appearance by Applicant

At the hearing, the applicant or recipient may appear in person with legal counsel of his or her own choosing, or in person without counsel [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10955].

[b] Appearance by County

The county may appear with legal counsel. The county's legal counsel can be either the county counsel or the district attorney, even in a county in which there is a county counsel. The district attorney's participation at the hearing does not exceed his or her prosecutorial functions and, in fact, is in aid of and auxiliary to the enforcement of the criminal law [Rauber v. Herman (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 942, 949-952, 280 Cal. Rptr. 785] . Furthermore, the presence of the district attorney at the hearing as the county's legal representative does not, in and of itself, have a chilling effect on the assertion of an applicant's or recipient's rights so as to deprive the applicant or recipient of due process of law [Rauber v. Herman (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 942, 952-953, 280 Cal. Rptr. 785] .

When appropriate, it appears that the county may be represented by counsel other than the county counsel or the district attorney [see Rauber v. Herman (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 942, 949, 280 Cal. Rptr. 785] .

[c] Recording of Proceedings

The proceedings at the hearing must be reported by a phonographic reporter or otherwise perpetuated by mechanical, electronic, or other means capable of reproduction or transcription [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10956].

[d] Testimony, Procedure, and Evidence

All testimony must be submitted under oath or affirmation. The person conducting the hearing is not bound by the rules of procedure or evidence applicable in judicial proceedings [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10955]. However, communications between an applicant or recipient and the representative authorized by Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 are confidential and privileged, even if the representative is not an attorney [Welfare Rights Organization v. Crisan (1983) 33 Cal. 3d 766, 772, 190 Cal. Rptr. 919, 661 P.2d 1073] .

[e] Impartial and Informal Hearing

The hearing must be conducted in an impartial and informal manner in order to encourage free and open discussion by the participants [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10955]. Conducting the hearing in this manner does not, however, require a nonadversarial, confidential setting in which the applicant or recipient need not anticipate any strong challenge or opposition to his or her story or assertions of fact. Each party is, for example, permitted to confront and cross examine witnesses [Rauber v. Herman (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 942, 953, 280 Cal. Rptr. 785] .

[f] Issues to Be Determined

The issues at the hearing must be limited to those issues that are reasonably related to the request for hearing, or other issues identified by either party that they have agreed, prior to or at the hearing, to discuss. All of those issues must be addressed in the hearing decisions [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10958.1].

At the time of the hearing, the recipient has a right to raise the adequacy of the county's notice of action as an issue. If the administrative law judge determines that adequate notice was provided, the recipient must agree to discuss the substantive issue or issues, or the case will be dismissed. If the administrative law judge determines that adequate notice was not provided, the case will be postponed unless the recipient waives the adequate notice requirement, and agrees to discuss the substantive issue or issues at the hearing. If the notice was not adequate, and involved termination or reduction of aid, retroactive action must be taken by the county to reinstate any aid that is pending [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10967].

[g] Continuances

On good cause shown, the person conducting the hearing may continue the hearing for a period no longer than 30 days. When the refusal of a county to accept a signed application for aid or services is an issue, the director may require the county to accept the application, and may continue the case until the results of the investigation have been reported to him or her [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10957].

[h] Commencement of Payments

In any case in which aid is awarded by the director or his or her designee, the payments must commence at the time indicated by the director or his or her designee [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10957].

§ 527.33 Equitable Estoppel

An applicant for or recipient of public social services may raise the defense of equitable estoppel in a state hearing, and the Department of Social Services may consider the defense when it is raised [see Lentz v. McMahon (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 393, 402-404, 261 Cal. Rptr. 310, 777 P.2d 83] . Administrative application of equitable estoppel in a state hearing does not constitute a prohibited exercise of judicial power within the meaning of Cal. Const., art. III, § 3, or Cal. Const., art. VI, § 1 [Lentz v. McMahon (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 393, 406, 261 Cal. Rptr. 310, 777 P.2d 83] .

The defense may be available if a county welfare official has made a representation to the recipient or applicant that the official knew or should have known to be false and the recipient has relied on this representation to his or her injury [see Lentz v. McMahon (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 393, 398-399, 261 Cal. Rptr. 310, 777 P.2d 83] .

In determining whether to apply equitable estoppel, an agency balances the injustice that would result from a failure to uphold an estoppel against the effect on public interest or policy that would result from the raising of an estoppel [see Lentz v. McMahon (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 393, 400-401, 261 Cal. Rptr. 310, 777 P.2d 83] .

Estoppel against a county welfare agency may be appropriate, for example, when a government agent has negligently or intentionally caused a claimant to fail to comply with a procedural precondition to eligibility, and the failure to invoke estoppel would cause great hardship to the claimant [Lentz v. McMahon (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 393, 401-402, 261 Cal. Rptr. 310, 777 P.2d 83] .

The existence of estoppel is largely a question of fact, although the policy concerns that must be conducted in a case of estoppel against the government are in part a question of law [Lentz v. McMahon (1989) 49 Cal. 3d 393, 403, 261 Cal. Rptr. 310, 777 P.2d 83] .

§ 527.34 Process of Decision

[1] Decision by Administrative Law Judge or Director

[a] Filing of Proposed Decision

If the hearing is conducted by an administrative law judge, he or she must prepare, in writing and in a format that may be adopted as the director's decision, a fair, impartial, and independent proposed decision [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10958]. The administrative law judge is not required to set forth any specific findings in the decision [Oldham v. Kizer (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1046, 1070, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 195 ; see Welf. & Inst. Code § 10958].

The absence of a requirement that findings be set forth extends to decisions in hearings to determine eligibility for Medi-Cal benefits, even though Medi-Cal is administered in accordance with the plan set forth under Title XIX of the Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. § 1396 et seq., and even though Social Security Administration policy requires that findings be set forth in decisions in hearings to determine eligibility for Social Security benefits. Because the policy is not contained in a statute made applicable to state programs under Title XIX, it does not preempt state law governing practice and procedure in the administration of entitlement programs. Courts have declined to impose a findings requirement on decisions in state hearings under Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 et seq. precisely because there is no state or federal statute or regulation requiring findings. Judicial preference has been to leave it to the Legislature, the Department of Social Services, or the Department of Health Services to promulgate such a requirement [Oldham v. Kizer (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1046, 1069-1070, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 195] .

On approving the hearing decision, the department's chief administrative law judge must file a copy of the proposed decision with the director within 75 days after the conclusion of the hearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10958].

[b] Action on Proposed Decision by Director

Within 30 days after the department has received a copy of the administrative law judge's proposed decision, the director may do any of the following [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10959]:

- Adopt the decision in its entirety.

- Decide the matter himself or herself on the basis of the record, including the transcript, with or without taking additional evidence.

- Order a further hearing to be conducted by himself or herself or another administrative law judge on behalf of the director.

Failure of the director to adopt the proposed decision, decide the matter himself or herself on the record, or order a further hearing within the 30 days is deemed an affirmation of the proposed decision [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10959].

A further hearing is a new hearing on all or some of the issues raised in the previous hearing. The further hearing can include the introduction of new evidence or can be limited to a reconsideration of the evidence presented at the previous hearing. The term "further hearing," as used in Welf. & Inst. Code § 10959 since the 1986 amendment [see Stats. 1986, ch. 415, § 8, effective July 17, 1986], is interchangeable with the term "rehearing" as used in Welf. & Inst. Code § 10959 before the 1986 amendment [Oldham v. Kizer (1991) 235 Cal. App. 3d 1046, 1061, 1 Cal. Rptr. 2d 195] .

Welf. & Inst. Code § 10959 places no limitation on the number of further hearings the director can order after receiving an administrative law judge's proposed decision. Furthermore, Welf. & Inst. Code § 10959 does not set standards defining when the director can order a further hearing [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 10959; see also Chatterjee v. Kizer (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1348, 1359, 283 Cal. Rptr. 60] . Therefore, the statute allows the director to repeatedly order further hearings in a search for an administrative law judge who would rule adversely to an applicant or recipient, such as by denying an application for benefits [Chatterjee v. Kizer (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1348, 1360, 283 Cal. Rptr. 60] . However, the fact that Welf. & Inst. Code § 10959 effectively permits the director to go on a fishing expedition for administrative law judges who will write decisions denying benefits has been held insufficient to render the statute unconstitutionally violative of due process.

The statute has withstood attack on due process grounds for two reasons. First, the lack of restrictions on the number of further hearings that can be ordered, or the reasons for ordering them, does not confer on the director any additional power to reject an administrative law judge's decision than the director already has, inasmuch as Welf. & Inst. Code § 10959 empowers the director to reject an administrative law judge's decision and decide the matter himself or herself. Second, it appears that the director's repeated ordering of further hearings and failure to render a decision within a reasonable time would be subject to judicial review by administrative mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5. Thus, Welf. & Inst. Code § 10959 does not delegate unlimited power to the director without any means for review of the exercise of that power [Chatterjee v. Kizer (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1348, 1360-1361, 283 Cal. Rptr. 60 (affirming trial court's denial of application for Medi-Cal disability benefits)].

[2] Delegation to Administrative Law Judge to Adopt Final Decision

In addition to any other delegation powers granted to the director under law, the director may delegate his or her powers to adopt final decisions under Welf. & Inst. Code § 10959 et seq. to all administrative law judges within specified ranges in the department, in the types of cases deemed appropriate by the director. The authority to adopt final decisions must not be contingent on the outcome of the judge's resolution of the case or issue, or on the identity of a particular administrative law judge. The defined areas of delegation must be published by the department after interested groups, such as the Coalition of California Welfare Rights Organizations, legal aid societies, and the County Welfare Directors Association, have had a reasonable amount of time to review and comment [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10966(a)].

Notwithstanding any other provisions of Welf. & Inst. Code § 10959 et seq., decisions rendered by the administrative law judges under the authority of Welf. & Inst. Code § 10966 must be treated, for all purposes, as the decision of the director. The affected county, recipient, or applicant has the right to request a rehearing pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code §

10960, and the right to petition for judicial review pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10966(b)].

If the director chooses to exercise the authority to delegate his or her powers to adopt final decisions to administrative law judges, the delegation must be in writing. Any delegation instrument must be a public record available at all times, including the time of hearing, from each administrative law judge to whom the authority was delegated. The written delegation instrument must include both of the following [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10966(c)]:

- A specification of the administrative law judges that are authorized to render final decisions on the director's behalf, including the effective date of the authorization.

- A specification of the types of cases or issues that are subject to the director's delegation of final authority.

The written delegation may include any other implementation instructions that the director determines are necessary for the effective implementation of Welf. & Inst. Code § 10966 [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10966(c)].

Decisions rendered by administrative law judges pursuant to Welf. & Inst. Code § 10966 must be fair, impartial, independent, in writing, and in a format prescribed by the Chief Administrative Law Judge [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10966(d)].

If the director decides the matter, a copy of his or her decision must be served on the applicant or recipient and on the affected county [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10959]. If the director's decision differs materially from the proposed decision of the administrative law judge, a copy of that proposed decision must also be served on the applicant or recipient and on the affected county [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10959]. If a further hearing is ordered, it must be conducted in the same manner and within the same time limits specified for the original hearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10959].

The county director must comply with and execute every decision of the director [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10963].

§ 527.35 Request for Rehearing

Within 30 days after receiving the proposed decision of an administrative law judge adopted by the director, a final decision rendered by an administrative law judge, or a decision issued by the director, the affected county, applicant, or recipient may file a request with the director for a rehearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10960].

The director must immediately serve a copy of the request on the other party to the hearing. Within five days after the service, the other party may file with the director a written statement supporting or objecting to the request. The director must grant or deny the request no earlier than the 5th nor later than the 35th working day after receiving it. If the director grants the request, the rehearing must be conducted in the same manner and subject to the same time limits as the original hearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10960].

The decision of the director need not specify the amount of the award to be paid unless the amount of the award is in issue. If the decision is in favor of the applicant or recipient, the county department must pay to the applicant or recipient the amount of aid the director finds he or she is entitled to receive pursuant to the director's decision, or must grant the services that he or she is entitled to receive, without establishing present need [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10961]. Payment must commence as of the date the person was first entitled to aid [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10961].

The award must be determined no later than 30 days following the date the hearing decision is received by the county or 30 days from the date the additional information needed for compliance with the decision is provided to the county. After the award is made, the county and the claimant must be notified by the department of its determination regarding the county's compliance with the decision [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10961].

§ 527.50 Petition for Writ of Administrative Mandate

With regard to "state hearings" discussed in Subpart B, § 527.30 et seq., the applicant, recipient, or affected county, within one year after receiving notice of the director's final decision on the state hearing, may file a petition for writ of administrative mandate with the superior court, under the provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, praying for a review of the entire proceedings in the matter, on questions of law involved in the case [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962; see In re Darlene T. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 929, 939, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 119 ; for a form of petition, see § 527.90; see also § 527.31 (defining "director" and "recipient")].

Such review, if granted, is the exclusive remedy available to the applicant, recipient, or county for review of the director's decisions.

The director must be the sole respondent in the proceedings [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962]. Immediately on being served, the director must serve a copy of the petition on the other party entitled to judicial review. That party has the right to intervene in the proceedings [*Welf. & Inst. 46-527 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 527.51

§ 527.51 Standard of Review

[1] In General

Both Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 and Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962 leave to the courts the establishment of standards for deciding which cases require independent judgment review and which require substantial evidence review [Frink v. Prod (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 166, 180, 181 Cal. Rptr. 893, 643 P.2d 476 (application for benefits; overruling and disapproving cases cited therein to the extent they are inconsistent with the opinion); Cooper v. Kizer (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1291, 1296, 282 Cal. Rptr. 492] .

For further discussion of both the independent judgment and substantial evidence standards of review, see Ch. 474 et seq., Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions.

[2] Independent Judgment Test

The proper standard for the trial court's review of the administrative decision denying an application for or terminating a recipient's receipt of welfare benefits is the independent judgment test [Frink v. Prod (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 166, 180, 181 Cal. Rptr. 893, 643 P.2d 476 (application for benefits); Harlow v. Carleson (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 731, 734, 129 Cal. Rptr. 298, 548 P.2d 698 (termination of benefits)].

The proper standard for the trial court's review of the administrative decision denying an application for Medi-Cal disability benefits is also the independent judgment test [see, e.g., Chatterjee v. Kizer (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1348, 1357-1358, 283 Cal. Rptr. 60 ; Cooper v. Kizer (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1291, 1299, 282 Cal. Rptr. 492] . The independent judgment test is the appropriate standard of trial court review because the right to receive welfare and disability benefits is a vested, fundamental right [Frink v. Prod (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 166, 180, 181 Cal. Rptr. 893, 643 P.2d 476 (application for benefits); Harlow v. Carleson (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 731, 734, 129 Cal. Rptr. 298, 548 P.2d 698 (termination of benefits); Cooper v. Kizer (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 1291, 1298, 282 Cal. Rptr. 492 (application for benefits)].

In the case of an applicant's right to receive benefits, the degree to which the right is vested may not be overwhelming, but the degree to which the right is fundamental is overwhelming. Nevertheless, the court is required only to weigh the degree to which the right is vested and fundamental [Frink v. Prod (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 166, 180, 181 Cal. Rptr. 893, 643 P.2d 476 (application for benefits)].

The independent judgment test requires the trial court to reconsider the evidence and make its own independent findings of fact [see, e.g., Harlow v. Carleson (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 731, 734, 129 Cal. Rptr. 298, 548 P.2d 698 ; Chatterjee v. Kizer (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1348, 1358, 283 Cal. Rptr. 60] . Abuse of discretion is established if the trial court determines that the findings are not supported by the weight of the evidence [Anthony v. Kizer (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 990, 993, 281 Cal. Rptr. 516] .

[3] Substantial Evidence Rule

On appeal, the appellate court's review of the trial court's judgment is governed by the substantial evidence rule. The appellate court is thus required to determine whether the findings and judgment of the trial court are supported by substantial, credible, and competent evidence. All conflicts in the evidence must be resolved and all inferences drawn in favor of the judgment. However, the appellate court is not bound by the trial court's determination of questions of law. On questions of law, the appellate court can make its own independent determination of whether the correct legal principles were applied in the trial court [Chatterjee v. Kizer (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1348, 1358, 283 Cal. Rptr. 60 ; Anthony v. Kizer (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 990, 993, 281 Cal. Rptr. 516] .

§ 527.52 Award of Attorney's Fees

If, on review, the applicant or recipient obtains a decision in his or her favor, he or she is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees and costs [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962].

However, it has been held that Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962, which provides a means by which welfare applicants and recipients may enforce their rights, does not contemplate an award of attorney's fees in a case in which review of a ruling in favor of the recipient is sought in order to obtain a more favorable legal precedent [Le Blanc v. Swoap (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 741, 743, 129 Cal. Rptr. 304, 548 P.2d 704] .

For example, when the director files a petition with the Supreme Court solely to adjudicate an abstract legal question regarding the applicable scope of review after the recipient has prevailed in the court of appeal, the recipient is not entitled to attorney's fees, since the purpose of Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962 would not be served by an award of attorney's fees to a recipient whose rights were already secure [Le Blanc v. Swoap (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 741, 743, 129 Cal. Rptr. 304, 548 P.2d 704] .

In such a case, the recipient is also entitled to an award of prejudgment interest at the legal rate from the time each payment became due [*Tripp v. Swoap (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 671, 685, 131 Cal. 46-527 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 527.60

§ 527.60 Administrative Remedy Unavailable or Inadequate

A dissatisfied individual applicant or recipient of public social services is provided with an administrative remedy through the statutory state hearing procedure [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 et seq.; see also § 527.30 et seq.].

Administrative mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 is the exclusive remedy by which an applicant or recipient dissatisfied with a state hearing decision may obtain judicial review [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962; see In re Darlene T. (2008) 163 Cal. App. 4th 929, 939, 78 Cal. Rptr. 3d 119 ; see also discussion under § 527.50].

Thus, for example, if an invalid welfare regulation is applied or enforced in a statutory state hearing, the individual applicant or recipient may seek judicial review only by administrative mandamus pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 [see Woods v. Superior Court (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 668, 682, 170 Cal. Rptr. 484, 620 P.2d 1032 ; Granneman v. Myers (1981) 115 Cal. App. 3d 846, 849, 171 Cal. Rptr. 583] .

However, if the administrative state hearing procedure with judicial review by administrative mandate as provided by Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 et seq. is unavailable or inadequate, an action to obtain judicial relief may be brought by persons dissatisfied with public social services without exhausting an administrative remedy [Ramos v. County of Madera (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 685, 691, 94 Cal. Rptr. 421, 484 P.2d 93 ; Diaz v. Quitoriano (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 807, 812, 74 Cal. Rptr. 358] .

For example, recipients of public assistance properly filed a class action seeking injunctive and declaratory relief for the class and damages for individually named plaintiffs and did not fail to exhaust their administrative remedies, since the state hearing procedure [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10950 et seq.] contemplates grants of aid or services to individuals but does not provide for class relief or damage claims [Ramos v. County of Madera (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 685, 691, 94 Cal. Rptr. 421, 484 P.2d 93] . A proceeding in administrative mandate would also be available [Chatterjee v. Kizer (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1348, 1360, 283 Cal. Rptr. 60 (noting availability of remedy and positing its applicability to review hypothetical case in which director repeatedly orders further hearings under Welf. & Inst Code § 10959 and fails to render state hearing decision within reasonable time)].

Additionally, although the rights of a particular individual applicant or recipient may be determined by a state hearing decision or by judicial review of a state hearing decision by administrative mandate, the determination has no binding effect on the rights of other applicants or recipients. A class action, on the other hand, may yield a decree that can be availed of by every member of the represented class, present and future [Diaz v. Quitoriano (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 807, 812, 74 Cal. Rptr. 358 ; see § 527.61, Relief Available to Class, below].

Interested persons who are not entitled to state hearings because they are neither applicants for nor recipients of public social service benefits, but who otherwise have standing to complain, still may challenge invalid regulations by traditional mandamus pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 or by an action for declaratory relief pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1060 [Woods v. Superior Court (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 668, 682, 170 Cal. Rptr. 484, 620 P.2d 1032 ; see California Association for Health Services at Home v. State Department of Health Services (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 696, 705-707, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 102 ; Gov. Code § 11350 (action for declaratory relief by interested person challenging validity of administrative regulation); California Homeless & Housing Coalition v. Anderson (1995) 31 Cal. App. 4th 450, 458-459, 37 Cal. Rptr. 2d 639] .

C. Judicial Proceedings
2. Judicial Actions Related to Administration of Social Services

46-527 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 527.61

§ 527.61 Relief Available to Class

A class action by welfare applicants or recipients should request whatever type of relief is necessary to enforce or protect the rights of the class in light of the facts of the case. Therefore, an action may seek declaratory [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060] or injunctive [Code Civ. Proc. § 525] relief, mandamus [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085], or a combination of remedies [see, e.g., Vaessen v. Woods (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 749, 753-754, 764, 200 Cal. Rptr. 893, 677 P.2d 1183 (writ of mandate and injunctive relief); Ramos v. County of Madera (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 685, 94 Cal. Rptr. 421, 484 P.2d 93 (declaratory and injunctive relief); Oliva v. Swoap (1976) 59 Cal. App. 3d 130, 130 Cal. Rptr. 411 (declaratory and injunctive relief and writ of mandate)].

A petition for writ of traditional mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085 is often an appropriate device by which a class of welfare applicants or recipients may enforce their rights existing under state or federal law, since this type of mandate may be used to compel state or county welfare officials to act in accordance with state or federal law [see, e.g., Committee to Defend Reproductive Rights v. Myers (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 252, 172 Cal. Rptr. 866, 625 P.2d 779 (mandate to bar enforcement of unconstitutional budget act provisions restricting Medi-Cal funding of abortions); Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256 (mandate to compel deduction of certain expenses in calculation of benefits in accordance with federal law and to obtain retroactive relief for benefits wrongfully withheld); Mooney v. Pickett (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 669, 94 Cal. Rptr. 279, 483 P.2d 1231 (mandate to order county director not to deny general assistance on sole and exclusive ground of employability); Lowry v. Obledo (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 14, 169 Cal. Rptr. 732 (mandate to compel recalculation of benefits in accordance with state and federal laws); Rogers v. Detrich (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 90, 128 Cal. Rptr. 261 (mandate to order county directors to determine eligibility for and amount of general assistance in accordance with state statute and to make redeterminations and retroactive payments)].

This remedy should be distinguished from a writ of administrative mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, which is used to inquire into the validity of a final administrative order after completion of the administrative appeals process [Lowry v. Obledo (1980) 111 Cal. App. 3d 14, 25, 169 Cal. Rptr. 732] . A writ of administrative mandate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 is the appropriate mechanism to use in having a state hearing decision set aside [see Welf. &

Inst. Code § 10962; see also discussion under § 527.50].

A writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1085, on the other hand, provides the traditional mandamus action to compel the performance of an act that the law specially enjoins as a duty resulting from an office. Both forms of mandate may be sought in the same action when an individually named plaintiff seeks an administrative writ for review of his or her adverse state hearing decision and a traditional writ on behalf of a class [see, e.g., Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256] .

For a general discussion of these forms of relief, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief , Ch. 303, Injunctions, and Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

For a form combining a complaint for declaratory relief and a petition for a writ of traditional mandate, see § 527.92.

§ 527.62 Jurisdiction

[1] State Court

The proper court in which an action challenging public social service legislation, regulations, or practices should be brought depends on the relief sought. For example, an original action for declaratory relief must be brought in superior court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060]. Injunctive relief may be granted by the court in which an action is brought, or by a judge of the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 525].

Superior courts also have general equity jurisdiction to grant provisional and permanent injunctive relief since they have original jurisdiction in all causes except those given by statute to other trial courts [see Cal. Const., art. VI, § 10; Code Civ. Proc. § 525].

A writ of mandate may be issued by any court, except a municipal, to any inferior tribunal, corporation, board, or person [Code Civ. Proc. § 1085; see, e.g., Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256 (appeal of judgment in class action for writ of mandate and declaratory relief brought in superior court); Mooney v. Pickett (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 669, 94 Cal. Rptr. 279, 483 P.2d 1231 (original action in mandamus in Supreme Court); Rogers v. Detrich (1976) 58 Cal. App. 3d 90, 128 Cal. Rptr. 261 (petition for writ of mandate brought in court of appeal)].

[2] Federal Court

Persons who litigate issues involving public social services may also be able to invoke federal court jurisdiction [see, e.g., Griffeth v. Detrich (9th Cir. 1979) 603 F.2d 118 , cert. denied, 445 U.S. 970 (class action by general assistance applicants under 42 U.S.C. § 1983); Bracco v. Lackner (N.D. Cal. 1978) 462 F. Supp. 436 (suit by Medi-Cal beneficiaries under 28 U.S.C. § 1331 and 42 U.S.C. § 1983)].

Although the Federal Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. § 301 et seq.) affords no private right of action against a state, 42 U.S.C. § 1983, which provides that anyone who, under color of state law, deprives another of rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws shall be liable to the injured party, encompasses violations of federal statutory as well as constitutional law [State of Maine v. Thiboutot (1980) 448 U.S. 1, 100 S. Ct. 2502, 65 L. Ed. 2d 555, 559-560] . A suit alleging a violation of constitutional or federal statutory law may therefore be brought in federal district court, if the jurisdictional requirements are satisfied, under 28 U.S.C. § 1331 (federal question jurisdiction) or 28 U.S.C. § 1343(a)(3), (4) (jurisdictional counterpart to 42 U.S.C. § 1983). For further discussion, see Ch. 265, Federal Courts: Jurisdiction and Removal .

For a discussion of actions involving the deprivation of civil rights brought under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 and other Post-Civil War civil rights statutes, see Ch. 113, Civil Rights: The Post-Civil War Civil Rights Statutes .

§ 527.76 Decisions

[1] Public Social Services

[a] Federally Assisted Programs

Food Stamp Act provision, that no household is eligible to participate in program during time that any member of household is on strike or to receive increased allotment of food stamps because of decrease in income of striking member, is constitutional. Lyng v. Automobile Workers (1988) 485 U.S. 360, 108 S. Ct. 1184, 99 L. Ed. 2d 380, 386-393

Pursuant to 24 C.F.R. § 882.209(d)(1), governing period of time in which eligible family must find suitable private housing and landlord willing to rent it under rent-assistance program established under 42 U.S.C. § 1437 et seq. and providing that certificate of family participation expires after 60 days unless, within that time, family submits request for lease approval, 60-day period is tolled when timely request for lease approval is submitted to public housing agency and remains tolled until notification that request is approved or denied. Baggett v. Housing Authority (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 383, 385, 389-390, 240 Cal. Rptr. 640

Welf. & Inst. Code § 11250.4, prohibiting strikers from collecting AFDC benefits, applies to joint federal-state program and not state-only program, which provides aid to all families with unemployed parents (former Welf. & Inst. Code § 11201(a)(2)). Reyna v. McMahon (1986) 180 Cal. App. 3d 220, 226, 225 Cal. Rptr. 405

[b] Public Assistance Programs

Program for aid to needy families with dependent children as created by Welf. & Inst. Code § 11200 et seq. to participate in federal funding authorized by 42 U.S.C. § 601 et seq.; program is thus conditioned on compliance with applicable federal statutes and regulations, although state retains broad discretion in determining eligibility for and amounts of aid. Vaessen v. Woods (1984) 35 Cal. 3d 749, 754-755, 200 Cal. Rptr. 893, 677 P.2d 1183

California public social services acts were adopted or amended for the purpose of operating in harmony with the federal system in order to obtain federal assistance in providing aid to needy persons. Pearson v. State Social Welfare Bd. (1960) 54 Cal. 2d 184, 214, 5 Cal. Rptr. 553, 353 P.2d 33 ; Newbold v. Social Welfare Bd. (1946) 76 Cal. App. 2d 844, 847, 174 P.2d 482

CalWORKs "completion rule" [Welf. & Inst. Code § 11253] violates the Americans with Disabilities Act [42 U.S.C. § 12101 et seq.], when it is applied to cut off assistance to disabled children who, due to their disability, may not be reasonably expected to complete high school by the age of 19. Fry v. Saenz (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 256, 261, 120 Cal. Rptr. 2d 30

Emergency payments under Welf. & Inst. Code § 12500 et seq. to Supplemental Security Income recipients for "unmet shelter needs" are not available unless shelter needs result from special circumstances created by some nonrecurring event or change in circumstances. Thornton v. Carlson (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1256, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 375

Equal protection clause of California Constitution (Cal. Const., art. I, § 7) does not require that needs of undocumented alien children be taken into account when determining amount of initial public assistance grant to family units in which citizen children reside with their undocumented siblings. Blanco v. McMahon (1988) 198 Cal. App. 3d 473, 475-479, 243 Cal. Rptr. 736

In absence of statute imposing liability, public assistance recipient is free from liability for repayment of grants legitimately obtained. Webb v. Swoap (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 191, 195-197, 114 Cal. Rptr. 897

[c] General Assistance Programs

County has broad discretion to determine eligibility for, type and amount of, and conditions to be attached to indigent relief. Mooney v. Pickett (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 669, 678, 94 Cal. Rptr. 279, 483 P.2d 1231 ; County of Los Angeles v. Department of Social Welfare (1953) 41 Cal. 2d 455, 458, 260 P.2d 41

Los Angeles County's Home Call Visitation Program as a prerequisite to receiving welfare benefits is constitutional and does not conflict with state law. Smith v. Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors (2002) 104 Cal. App. 4th 1104, 1115-1124, 128 Cal. Rptr. 2d 700

Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 10000, 17000, 17001 do not require counties to adopt regulations setting written standards governing waiting times for receipt of medical care provided to indigents by counties. Tailfeather v. Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles County (1996) 48 Cal. App. 4th 1223, 1227, 56 Cal. Rptr. 2d 255

Welf & Inst. Code § 17300 limits scope of "legally responsible relatives" to spouses and parents of minor children, therefore, resolution of county board of supervisors that establishes lower general assistance payments for parents who live with their adult children and adult children who live with their parents exceeded the board's authority. Freitas v. County of Contra Costa (1994) 28 Cal. App. 4th 163, 173, 33 Cal Rptr. 2d 406

Minimum-subsistence-needs study (Boehm study) is not required prior to reduction or termination of emergency assistance that is separate from general assistance. Scates v. Rydingsword (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1085, 1102-1103, 280 Cal. Rptr. 544

Federal lump-sum rule, requiring that lump sum received by family be treated as income, does not apply to families receiving federal AFDC-FG benefits. Shaw v. McMahon (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 973, 979, 982, 268 Cal. Rptr. 535

Former Welf. & Inst. Code § 5709 imposes absolute limit on county mental health obligations, notwithstanding duties of county, under Welf. & Inst. Code § 17000, to provide hospital and medical services to indigent residents and, under Welf. & Inst. Code § 10000, to provide services promptly and humanely to needy. Board of Supervisors v. Superior Court (1989) 207 Cal. App. 3d 552, 559-563, 564, 254 Cal. Rptr. 905

State is permitted to adopt and apply different eligibility standards for state-only and federal recipients of AFDC without violating equal protection clause of Constitution; status of person qualifying under state eligibility standard is different from that of person qualifying under federal standard, and, thus, those persons may be treated differently without violating equal protection. Shaw v. McMahon (1987) 197 Cal. App. 3d 417, 429, 243 Cal. Rptr. 26

County violates mandatory duty to support indigent residents under Welf. & Inst. Code § 17000 by denying general relief benefits to any recipient not obtaining valid address within 60 days. Nelson v. Board of Supervisors (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 25, 32, 235 Cal. Rptr. 305

State is required to continue payments of Medi-Cal benefits to terminated AFDC recipients pending state's determination of recipients' eligibility for Medi-Cal benefits under nonautomatic categories. Edwards v. Myers (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1070, 1076, 213 Cal. Rptr. 737

[d] Medi-Cal and Medicaid Generally

A county may seek reimbursement from the Commission on State Mandates under Cal. Const., art. XIIIB, § 6, for costs of providing health care services for medically indigent adults who are excluded from Medi-Cal coverage by action of the legislature. County of San Diego v. State of California (1997) 15 Cal. 4th 68, 75-76, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 134, 931 P.2d 312

California participates in the federal Medicaid program thorough the Medi-Cal program. The State Department of Health Care Services is the state agency charged with administering Medi-Cal in accordance with the state plan. Mission Hospital Regional Medical Center v. Shewry (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 460, 474, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 639

Medicaid is a program through which the federal government provides financial assistance to qualified participating states for furnishing medical assistance to the poor. California participates in Medicaid through the Medi-Cal program. When a provider provides services to Medi-Cal beneficiaries it is reimbursed for its allowable costs, including indirect costs such as certain employee health benefit payments. Oroville Hospital v. Department of Health Services (2006) 146 Cal. App. 4th 468, 471-472, 52 Cal. Rptr. 3d 695

A treating physician's determination that a particular drug is medically necessary is a factor that the State Department of Health Service must consider in reviewing treatment authorization requests, although it is not controlling. The Department may place appropriate limitations on the use of medications, but it may not ignore the physician's determination just because the prior authorization criteria do not list it as a factor. Paleski v. State Department of Health Services (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 713, 738, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 28

State Department of Health Services published prior authorization criteria for drugs provided by Medi-Cal were exempt from requirements of Administrative Procedure Act. Paleski v. State Dept. of Health Services (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 713, 729, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 28

Writ of mandate issued pursuant to Code of Civ. Proc. § 1085 directing the Department of Health to adopt and implement procedures to ensure that Medi-Cal recipients entitled to reimbursement for covered services obtained during the retroactivity period are promptly reimbursed. Conlan v. Bonta (2002) 102 Cal. App. 4th 745, 753754, 764, 125 Cal. Rptr. 2d 788

Legislature has by statute authorized coverage for durable medical equipment, and the Department of Health Services lacks the authority to restrict the scope of that coverage. Blue v. Bonta (2002) 99 Cal. App. 4th 980, 990993, 121 Cal. Rptr. 2d 483

Statutes of limitation under Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a) do not apply to administrative determinations by Department of Health Services as to monetary amounts of reimbursement paid to hospital for medical assistance provided to patients under Medi-Cal program. Little Company of Mary Hospital v. Belshe (1997) 53 Cal. App. 4th 325, 328-329, 61 Cal. Rptr. 2d 626

Department of Health may require applicants for restricted Medi-Cal benefits to declare under penalty of perjury whether they are United States citizens or nationals and whether they have satisfactory immigration status, under Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 14007.5(e), 14011.2. Crespin v. Coye (1994) 27 Cal. App. 4th 700, 707, 34 Cal. Rptr. 2d 10

Under Medicaid Act (42 U.S.C. § 1396 et seq.), states as having considerable discretion in designing their Medicaid programs, and as being authorized to establish standards for individual physicians to use in determining what services are appropriate in particular case. Ruth v. Kizer (1992) 8 Cal. App. 4th 380, 386, 10 Cal. Rptr. 2d 274

Welf. & Inst. Code § 14100.2 as not entitling hospital to inspect county health department's records relating to patient's eligibility for Medi-Cal benefits. Department of Health Services v. Superior Court (1991) 232 Cal. App. 3d 776, 782-783, 283 Cal. Rptr. 546

Director of Department of Health Services lacks authority to eliminate Medicaid coverage for specific services enumerated in schedule of benefits (Welf. & Inst. Code § 14132) on basis of fiscal considerations. Jackson v. Stockdale (1989) 215 Cal. App. 3d 1503, 1515-1516, 264 Cal. Rptr. 525

State Department of Health Services is required to follow federal regulations governing termination, suspension, or reduction of Medicaid services. Frank v. Kizer (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 919, 920, 261 Cal. Rptr. 882

Requiring prior authorization, that is, approval by a department consultant of a specified medical service in advance of the rendition of that service based on a determination of medical necessity (Welf. & Inst. Code § 14133(a)), is consistent with federal law, which specifically allows individual states to place appropriate limits on a service based on utilization control procedures (see 42 U.S.C. § 1396a(a)(30); 42 C.F.R. § 440.230(d)). Cowan v. Myers (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 968, 983, 987, 232 Cal. Rptr. 299

State is permitted to place generic limit on Medicaid services based on judgment as to degree of medical necessity for those services, so long as it does not discriminate on basis of specific medical condition that occasions the need. Cowan v. Myers (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 968, 979-980, 232 Cal. Rptr. 299

Federal Medicaid Act (42 U.S.C. § 1396 et seq.) requires participating states to provide qualified individuals with financial assistance in five general categories of services: (1) inpatient hospital services, (2) outpatient hospital services, (3) laboratory and X-ray services, (4) skilled nursing facility services, and (5) physician services (42 U.S.C. § 1396d(a)). Cowan v. Myers (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 968, 973, 977, 232 Cal. Rptr. 299

Medi-Cal provisions limiting health services to those "medically necessary to prevent significant illness, to alleviate severe pain, to protect life, or to prevent significant disability" (Welf. & Inst. Code §§ 14059.5, 14133.3) are consistent with federal law. Cowan v. Myers (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 968, 973, 980, 983, 232 Cal. Rptr. 299

Two levels of judgment as to medical necessity exists in statutory scheme: (1) macrodecision by Legislature that only certain kinds of medical assistance are deemed sufficiently necessary to come under coverage of its plan, and (2) microdecision of physician that condition of patient warrants administering type of medical assistance made available by that plan. Cowan v. Myers (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 968, 973, 980, 232 Cal. Rptr. 299

[e] Construction and Enforcement of Statutes

Laws governing welfare programs are required to be liberally interpreted and actively enforced. Thornton v. Carlson (1992) 4 Cal. App. 4th 1249, 1258, 6 Cal. Rptr. 2d 375 ; Robbins v. Superior Court (1985) 38 Cal. 3d 199, 208, 211 Cal. Rptr. 398, 695 P.2d 695 ; Hansen v. Department of Social Services (1987) 193 Cal. App. 3d 283, 291, 238 Cal. Rptr. 232

Even though state is not required to participate in AFDC program, once it chooses to participate, state is required to administer state plan in conformity with federal laws and regulations governing program; state regulations are invalid and unenforceable to extent they conflict or are incompatible with federal regulations governing program. Morales v. McMahon (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 184, 186, 189, 272 Cal. Rptr. 688

[f] Promulgation of Regulations

Emergency regulations may properly be adopted without following rulemaking procedures otherwise mandated by Administrative Procedure Act in order to implement immediately controlling provisions of Personal Responsibility Act (16 U.S.C. § 1601 et. seq.) that prohibit disbursement of welfare benefits for prenatal care for illegal aliens. Doe v. Wilson (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 296, 312, 313, 67 Cal. Rptr. 2d 187

Department of Health Services is required to follow rulemaking procedures set forth in Administrative Procedure Act (Gov. Code § 11340 et seq.); rule not adopted in substantial compliance with these procedures is unenforceable. Union of American Physicians & Dentists v. Kizer (1990) 223 Cal. App. 3d 490, 496-497, 272 Cal. Rptr. 886 ; Grier v. Kizer (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 422, 431-432, 268 Cal. Rptr. 244

[g] Interpretation of Regulations

Proviso or clause in regulation beginning with word "unless" means exception or condition subsequent rather than a condition precedent. Baggett v. Housing Authority (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 383, 389, 240 Cal. Rptr. 640

Interpretation of regulation, like interpretation of statute, is question of law and, although agency's interpretation of its own regulation obviously deserves great weight, ultimate resolution of such legal questions rests with courts. Baggett v. Housing Authority (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 383, 387, 240 Cal. Rptr. 640

[h] Due Process Requirements

When mass change in Food Stamp Program occurs, notice requirements to recipients are met by individual notice informing them of change; notice of precise impact of change on individual recipient is not required. Atkins v. Parker (1985) 472 U.S. 115, 105 S. Ct. 2520, 86 L. Ed. 2d 81, 91

Nursing homes' decisions to discharge or transfer Medicaid patients to lower level of care does not involve state action and thus does not violate rights secured by Fourteenth Amendment due process clause. Blum v. Yaretsky (1982) 457 U.S. 991, 102 S. Ct. 2777, 73 L. Ed. 2d 534, 551

State law exempts the State Department of Health Service's published drug criteria from the APA [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 14105.395(a), (c)] but requires compliance with the Medi-Cal Act's notice and comment provisions [Welf. & Inst. Code § 14105.395(b), (c)]. Paleski v. State Department of Health Services (2006) 144 Cal. App. 4th 713, 717-723, 51 Cal. Rptr. 3d 28

Before issuing order conditioning future AFDC benefits on participation in workfare program or initiation of job search, court is required to provide AFDC recipient with timely notice of family law procedure through which recipient's benefits may be reduced or lost; court's failure to provide timely notice is violation of recipient's due process rights. Anderson v. Superior Court (1989) 213 Cal. App. 3d 1321, 1331, 262 Cal. Rptr. 405

County's failure to provide knowledgeable caseworker in attendance at pretermination hearing involving general assistance recipients' alleged failure to comply with work program constituted denial of recipients' rights of confrontation and cross examination. Jennings v. Jones (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 1083, 1091, 212 Cal. Rptr. 134

[2] State Hearing Procedure

Welf. & Inst. Code § 10959 does not unconstitutionally violate due process for allowing director to order unlimited further hearings after receipt of administrative law judge's proposed decision and for failing to set standards defining when further hearings can be ordered. Chatterjee v. Kizer (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1348, 1358-1361, 283 Cal. Rptr. 60

Code § 10950 et seq.* are consistent with federal due process right of AFDC recipients to evidentiary hearing before benefits are terminated or demand for restitution of overpayments is made. *Rauber v. State regulation requiring that request for hearing be filed within 10 days of date notice of discontinuance or reduction in aid is mailed in order to avoid termination or alteration of benefits pending administrative hearing is invalid insofar as it requires that request for hearing must occur at any time sooner than effective date of contemplated action in order to ensure aid being paid pending hearing, in view of definition of "timely notice" in 45 C.F.R. § 205.10, which focuses on date action becomes effective, and fact that under state regulation recipient of aid has 90 days from date of notice to make request for hearing. Ortiz v. Woods (1982) 129 Cal. App. 3d 672, 674, 676-680, 181 Cal. Rptr. 209

[3] Judicial Proceedings

[a] Judicial Review of Administrative Decisions

[i] Exhaustion of Administrative Remedies

Exhaustion requirement is inapplicable to class action filed by welfare recipients seeking injunctive and declaratory relief for class and damages for individuals. Ramos v. County of Madera (1971) 4 Cal. 3d 685, 691, 94 Cal. Rptr. 421, 484 P.2d 93

Code § 10950* is denied because sole issue is federal or state law requiring automatic change in services or medical assistance, even when change adversely affects some or all recipients. Cowan v. Myers (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 968, 975-976, 232 Cal. Rptr. 299

[ii] Standard of Review

Independent judgment test is proper standard for trial court's review of administrative decision denying application for welfare benefits. Frink v. Prod (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 166, 171-180, 181 Cal. Rptr. 893, 643 P.2d 476 (overruling and disapproving cases cited therein, to degree inconsistent with opinion)

In reviewing agency action under enabling statute, court may find abuse of discretion when: (1) administrative action under attack has, in effect, altered or amended statute or enlarged or impaired its scope; (2) there is failure to exercise discretion; or (3) agency has engaged in unjustified, unreasonable delay in implementation of statutory commands. Grimes v. State Dept. of Social Services (1999) 70 Cal. App. 4th 1065, 1073, 83 Cal. Rptr. 2d 203 (trial court erred by affirming agency denial of request by close friend of physically handicapped person for family member licensing exemption under California Community Care Facilities Act)

While trial court exercises its independent judgment in reviewing decisions concerning grant or denial of treatment authorization request for Medi-Cal coverage of prescription medication, appellate court as confined to inquiring whether trial court's finding are supported by substantial evidence. Holmes v. Kizer (1992) 11 Cal. App. 4th 395, 400-401, 13 Cal. Rptr. 2d 746

Substantial evidence test is proper standard for appellate court's review of trial court's judgment, except for resolution of questions of law when facts are undisputed. Chatterjee v. Kizer (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1348, 1358, 283 Cal. Rptr. 60 ; Anthony v. Kizer (1991) 230 Cal. App. 3d 990, 993, 281 Cal. Rptr. 516

[iii] Attorney's Fees

Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962 does not contemplate award of attorney's fees in case in which review is sought of ruling in favor of recipient only in order to obtain a more favorable legal precedent. Le Blanc v. Swoap (1976) 16 Cal. 3d 741, 743, 129 Cal. Rptr. 304, 548 P.2d 704

Public assistance recipient is entitled to attorney's fees on appeal from denial of writ in mandamus proceeding to compel county's compliance with state hearing decision of Department of Benefit Payments because enforcement of appellant's rights confers important benefit on general public. *Blackburn v. Interested persons who are not entitled to state hearings because they are neither applicants for nor recipients of public social service benefits, but who otherwise have standing to complain, may challenge invalid regulations by traditional mandamus pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1085. California Association for Health Services at Home v. State Department of Health Services (2007) 148 Cal. App. 4th 696, 705-707, 56 Cal. Rptr. 3d 102

Code § 17000*, because "aid" as in Welf. & Inst. Code § 17000.5 does not include medical care. Gardner v. County of Los Angeles (1995) 34 Cal. App. 4th 200, 204-205, 40 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271

Swoap (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 671, 685, 131 Cal. Rptr. 789, 552 P.2d 749* (overruled on other grounds in Frink v. Prod (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 166, 180, 181 Cal. Rptr. 893, 643 P.2d 476); *Ferreira v. [2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use by an applicant for or recipient of public social services to obtain judicial review of a final state hearing decision in a mandate proceeding in the superior court [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962]. Local practice regarding mandate proceedings varies. Therefore counsel should check with the superior court clerk regarding local practice in the county in which the writ is sought.

The petition must be accompanied by proof of service of a copy of the petition on the respondent; however, the court in which the application is filed, in its discretion and for good cause, may grant the application ex parte, without notice or service of the application [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; for discussion of method of serving petition, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition].

[3] Allegations

The form alleges:

- The petitioner's capacity as either the applicant, recipient, or affected county (Paragraph 1) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962].

- The Director of the State Department of Social Services or the Director of the State Department of Health Services as the sole respondent in the proceeding (Paragraph 2) [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962].

- The action or intended action that caused the petitioner to request a state hearing (Paragraph 3).

- That a state hearing on that matter was requested and held (Paragraph 4), since judicial review is available only after a final administrative decision has been rendered [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962].

- Since the petition must be filed within one year after receiving notice of the final decision [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962], the petition should also specifies the date on which the petitioner received notice of the respondent's final decision (Paragraph 5). If a rehearing was requested [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 10960], allegations regarding the request and the disposition of the request should be included.

- The petition should set forth the questions of law on which review is sought (Paragraph 7) [see Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962; see also discussion under [10], below].

- That a copy of the record is attached, if that is true (Paragraph 6).

- That the appropriate remedy is being sought in that there is no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law, and a petition for a writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5 is the exclusive remedy for review of a state hearing decision (Paragraph 8) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086; Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962].

[4] Verification

A petition for a writ of mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

[5] Filing of Petition

No filing fee is required for the filing of a petition for review of the director's decision [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962]. Any such petition to the superior court is entitled to a preference in setting a date for hearing [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962]. No bond is required in the case of any petition for review, nor in any appeal there from [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962].

[6] Attorney's Fees and Costs

If the applicant or recipient obtains a decision in his or her favor, he or she is entitled to reasonable attorney's fees and costs [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962].

[7] Interest

A recipient of public assistance who is adjudged entitled to a retroactive payment of benefits is also entitled to an award of prejudgment interest [Tripp v. Swoap (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 671, 685, 131 Cal. Rptr. 789, 552 P.2d 749 (overruled on other grounds in Frink v. Prod (1982) 31 Cal. 3d 166, 180, 181 Cal. Rptr. 893, 643 P.2d 476); see discussion in § 527.53].

[8] Filing of Record

The record may be filed with the petition or with the respondent's points and authorities, or may be ordered to be filed by the court. Except when otherwise prescribed by statute, the cost of preparing the record must be borne by the petitioner. When the petitioner has obtained a waiver of fees pursuant to Gov. Code §§ 68630-68641 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.50 et seq., and when the transcript is necessary to a proper review of the administrative proceedings, the cost of preparing the transcript must be borne by the respondent. For discussion of waiving court fees because of a person's financial condition, see Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees, § 174.110 et seq.

When the party seeking the writ has proceeded pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5 (in trial court no alternative writ sought, and petition not accompanied by proof of service), the administrative record must be filed as expeditiously as possible, and may be filed with the petition, or by the respondent after payment of the costs by the petitioner when required, or as otherwise directed by the court.

If the expense of preparing all or any part of the record has been borne by the prevailing party, that expense is taxable as costs [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a); see also discussion under [5], above].

[9] Memorandum

A supporting memorandum is not required by statute, but may be required by local court rule or customarily filed as a matter of local practice. However, since the respondent is specifically authorized to file points and authorities in opposition to the granting of the writ [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1107; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(a) (record may be filed with respondent's points and authorities)], it is recommended that a memorandum of points and authorities be filed with the petition.

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to review of a final administrative adjudicative order or decision pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, see California Points and Authorities, ch. 195, Public Administrative Law (Matthew Bender).

[10] Scope of Review

When a writ of mandate to review an administrative decision is issued, the inquiry extends to the questions of whether the respondent has proceeded without, or in excess of, jurisdiction, whether there was a fair trial, and whether there was any prejudicial abuse of discretion. Abuse of discretion is established if the respondent has not proceeded in the manner required by law, the order or decision is not supported by the findings, or the findings are not supported by the evidence [Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5(b)].

For a discussion of the appropriate standard of review of a decision denying assistance to an applicant or terminating assistance to a recipient, see § 527.51.

For further discussion of the powers of the court in a proceeding for a writ of mandate under Code Civ. Proc. § 1094.5, see Ch. 474, Availability of Judicial Review of Agency Decisions , et seq.

Plaintiffs,	)	CLASS ACTION COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY RELIEF AND PETITION FOR WRIT OF MANDATE
vs.	)
_____ [name(s) and title(s)],	)
Defendant(s).	)

Plaintiffs allege:

FIRST CAUSE OF ACTION
(Declaratory Relief)

1. Plaintiffs _____[names] ("Plaintiffs") are _____ [applicants for or recipients of or both] _____[name of assistance program] under Welfare and Institutions Code Sections _____. They reside in _____ County, California.

2. Defendant _____[name] ("Defendant") is, and at all times mentioned herein was,

_____ [specify, e.g., the Director of the State Department of Social Services of the State of California], who is authorized under the provisions of Welfare and Institution Code Sections _____ to _____ [specify, e.g., promulgate regulations for the administration of _____ (name of assistance program)]. _____[Allege capacity of other defendants, if any].

3. Plaintiffs complain on behalf of themselves and all other persons who are _____ [specify, e.g., recipients of assistance under _____ (name of assistance program)]. Such members of the class are readily ascertainable from the books and records of _____[name of department(s) administering assistance program], but are so numerous as to make joinder impracticable. There is a well-defined community of interest in the questions of law and fact involved affecting the parties to be represented, and the representative parties will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class.

4. On _____[date], Defendant _____[name] promulgated Regulation _____, [specify] , a copy of which is attached hereto as Exhibit A and made a part hereof. The regulation, since its promulgation, has been and now is in full force and effect and is enforced by Defendant(s).

5._____[Allege facts, in consecutively numbered paragraphs, explaining the application of the regulation by defendant(s) to plaintiffs' applications for assistance or to plaintiffs' grants and the effect of the regulation].

6._____ [Cite and describe state statute, federal statute, federal regulation, or constitutional provision with which regulation must comply, e.g., Pursuant to Title 42 of the United States Code Section _____, in determining a recipient's need, the state agency must take into consideration _____ (specify statutory requirements)].

7. An actual controversy has arisen and now exists between Plaintiffs and denfendant(s) as to their respective rights and duties. Plaintiffs contend that Regulation _____[specify] is invalid and unenforceable for failure to comply with _____[cite state statute, federal statute, federal regulation, or constitutional provision] in that _____[specify noncompliance]. Defendant(s) dispute(s) Plaintiffs' contentions and maintain(s) that regulation _____[specify] and its application to Plaintiffs are valid.

8. Plaintiffs desire a judicial determination of their rights and a declaration as to the validity of regulation _____[specify]. A judicial declaration is necessary and appropriate at this time and under the circumstances so that Plaintiffs may ascertain their rights. The enforcement of regulation _____ is causing a burden to Plaintiffs because _____ [specify, e.g., its enforcement results in the reduction of Plaintiffs' monthly assistance grants].

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
(Peremptory Writ of Mandate)

9. Plaintiffs refer to Paragraphs 1-8, inclusive, of their First Cause of Action and incorporate them herein by reference.

10. Pursuant to _____[cite state statute, federal statute, federal regulation, or constitutional provision], Defendant(s) _____ [has or have] a clear and present duty to _____[specify requirements of state statute, federal statute, federal regulation, or constitutional provision].

11. Plaintiffs have a clear, present, and substantial right to the performance of this duty because _____ [describe right, e.g., Plaintiffs' monthly grants should be calculated pursuant to the requirements specified above].

12. Plaintiffs have a beneficial interest in the issuance of a writ of mandate in that _____ [describe interest, e.g., the failure of Defendant(s) to comply with _____ (cite state statute, federal statute, federal regulation, or constitutional provision) has resulted in a reduction of Plaintiffs' monthly grants].

13. Plaintiffs have no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law in that _____ [specify, e.g., the administrative hearing procedure provided by the Welfare and Institutions Code does not afford class relief].

14. The failure of Defendant(s) to perform the duty described herein has damaged Plaintiffs, in an amount to be determined at trial, because _____ [specify, e.g., Plaintiffs have not received monthly grants in the amount to which they are entitled].

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs pray for judgment as follows:

1. For a declaration that regulation _____[specify] is invalid and unenforceable for failure to comply with _____[cite state statute, federal regulation, or constitutional provision] in that _____[specify];

2. For issuance of a peremptory writ of mandate commanding Defendants to _____ [specify duty, e.g., calculate Plaintiffs' eligibility for assistance and benefit levels in accordance with Title 42 of the United States Code Section _____, which requires that _____ (describe requirements)], and pay to Plaintiffs the retroactive benefits wrongfully withheld through the enforcement of regulation _____[specify], together with interest thereon;

3. For reasonable attorney's fees and costs incurred herein; and

4. For such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

_____ [typed name]
Attorney for Plaintiffs _____ [names]

[Verification. See § 527.90.]

[2] Use of Form

The form in [1], above, is for use in a class action by welfare applicants or recipients to have a state or county welfare regulation declared invalid and to obtain a writ of mandate to compel the payment of benefits which have been and are being withheld pursuant to the invalid regulation. Local practice regarding mandate proceedings varies. Counsel should therefore check with the superior court clerk regarding local practice in the county in which the writ is sought.

The petition must be accompanied by proof of service [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107].

When only a peremptory writ is sought pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5, however, the action may be filed and served in the same manner as an ordinary action [Code Civ. Proc. § 1107]. In a trial court, proof of service need not accompany such an application at the time of filing, but proof of service of a copy of the filed petition must be lodged with the court prior to a hearing or any action by the court [Code Civ. Proc. § 1088.5].

[3] Caption

Local court rules should be consulted regarding requirements for captions for class actions. For example, all complaints for or against a class party filed in San Francisco Superior Courts are required to include in the caption the designation CLASS ACTION [see San Francisco Uniform Local Ct. Rules, Rule 402]. Even if not specifically required, counsel may want to include the words "Class Action" as part of the description of the character of the action or proceeding that must appear below the case number in the caption of any complaint or petition [see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(6)].

[4] Allegations

[a] Class Action

The complaint should allege an ascertainable class and a well-defined community of interest in the questions of law and fact involved affecting the parties to be represented (Paragraph 3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 382]. For further discussion, see Ch. 120, Class Actions .

[b] Complaint for Declaratory Relief

After alleging the capacity of the plaintiffs and the defendants (Paragraphs 1, 2), the complaint should allege:

- Facts showing that an actual controversy exists (Paragraphs 4-7), since an action for declaratory relief may be brought only in cases of actual controversy [Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

- That plaintiffs desire a declaration of their rights and should state why a judicial decree is necessary and appropriate at this time (Paragraph 8) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1060].

For further discussion, see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief .

[c] Petition for Writ of Mandate

The petition should allege:

- The duty of the defendants that the plaintiffs seek to have enforced (Paragraph 10).

- The plaintiffs' right to have the duty performed (Paragraph 11).

- The plaintiffs' beneficial interest in the issuance of the writ (Paragraph 12) [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086; but see Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 145, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256 (public right/public duty exception to beneficial interest requirement)].

- Facts showing that the plaintiffs have no plain, speedy, and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of law (Paragraph 13) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

- The damage sustained by the plaintiffs by the defendants' failure to perform the duty described (Paragraph 14) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1095].

For further discussion, see Ch. 358, Mandate and Prohibition .

[5] Verification

A petition for a writ of mandate must be verified [Code Civ. Proc. § 1086].

[6] Jurisdiction

Although a writ of mandate may be issued by a superior or an appellate court [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1085], an original action for declaratory relief must be brought in the superior court as an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 86(a)(7), 1060].

[7] Statute of Limitations for Ordinary Writ of Mandate

The statute of limitations for an action for a writ of mandate is determined not by the remedy prayed for but by the nature of the underlying right or obligation [Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 141 n.10, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256] . The obligation of a governmental entity to pay welfare benefits pursuant to law is a debt due to the recipient as of the date he or she first became entitled to the benefits [Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 141, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256] . Therefore, since a class action for mandate to recover benefits wrongfully withheld seeks to enforce a liability created by statute, it is subject to a three-year limitations period [Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 141 n.10, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 338(a)].

[8] Amount of Recovery

A court issuing a writ of mandate has the power to order the retroactive payment of benefits with interest [Tripp v. Swoap (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 671, 677, 685, 131 Cal. Rptr. 789, 552 P.2d 749] .

Each deficient payment constitutes a separate violation triggering the running of a new period of limitations, so that only those payments which accrued within the limitations period preceding the filing of the complaint may be recovered [Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 141, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256] . However, if it is shown that a disproportionate clerical and financial burden would result from an order requiring retroactive payments to a class for the entire period, it is in the discretion of the trial court to fix a more realistic starting date for the payment of retroactive benefits to class members [Green v. Obledo (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 126, 142, 172 Cal. Rptr. 206, 624 P.2d 256] .

[9] Award of Attorney's Fees

Although attorney's fees are specifically provided for by statute in a proceeding for administrative mandamus [Welf. & Inst. Code § 10962; see § 527.52], attorney's fees are not expressly provided for by statute in an ordinary mandamus proceeding [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1021 (attorney's fees as matter of agreement)]. However, fees may be available to successful litigants in ordinary mandamus and declaratory relief proceedings under other statutory provisions [Woods v. Superior Court (1981) 28 Cal. 3d 668, 681, 170 Cal. Rptr. 484, 620 P.2d 1032 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 1021.5 (fees recoverable when important public interest right is vindicated); Gov. Code § 800 (fees recoverable against public entity where its action is arbitrary or capricious)].

For further discussion of the right to recovery of attorney's fees, see Ch. 120, Class Actions , and Ch. 174, Costs and Attorney's Fees , § 174.40 et seq.

[10] Points and Authorities

For a discussion of the submission of a memorandum of points and authorities with a petition for a writ of mandate, see § 527.90[9].

For memoranda of points and authorities relating to petitions for writs of mandate pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. §§ 1085, 1086, see California Points and Authorites, ch. 150, Mandate and Prohibition (Matthew Bender).

§ 528.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses the basic elements of a cause of action for specific performance and situations in which specific performance will and will not be granted. It contains a general form of complaint for specific performance [see § 528.130], including forms of complaint for quasi-specific performance of a contract to make a will [see §§ 528.131 and 528.132]. It also contains a form of complaint for a temporary restraining order, preliminary injunction, and permanent injunction enjoining the breach of a personal services contract [see § 528.133]. Finally, the chapter includes forms of affirmative defenses for use by a defendant in an action for specific performance [see §§ 528.134 -528.137].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Overview

46-528 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 528.11

§ 528.11 Specific Performance Defined

[1] Equitable Remedy

Specific performance is an equitable action [Schaefer v. United Bank & Trust Co. (1930) 104 Cal. App. 635, 641, 286 P. 723] to procure the performance of a contract by the defendant [Patterson v. Reddish (1922) 56 Cal. App. 197, 202, 204 P. 565] . The specific performance of a contract may be compelled except when provided otherwise in Civ. Code §§ 3384-3395 [Civ. Code § 3384].

An action for specific performance of a contract is usually by the buyer against the seller in situations involving a sale, although the remedy is technically available to the seller as well [see Civ. Code § 3387; Laske v. Lampasona (1948) 89 Cal. App. 2d 284, 287-288, 200 P.2d 871 ; see also Goldsworthy v. Dobbins (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 802, 808, 243 P.2d 883 (antideficiency statute [Code Civ. Proc. § 580b] does not prohibit remedy of specific performance to seller of real property)]. However, when the property involved has already been transferred to a buyer who has not paid the purchase price, the results of an action for specific performance and an action for damages are essentially the same--a judgment for the purchase price [see Powell on Real Property, Ch. 84, Inter Vivos Transfer of Land Otherwise Than by Deed, § 932 (Matthew Bender); California Real Property Sales Transactions, § 12.48 (Cal. C.E.B. 1981)].

[2] Quasi-Specific Performance

An action for quasi-specific performance is an action for the specific performance of a contract between a deceased person and the plaintiff. It is not truly for specific performance since a deceased person cannot be compelled to execute a contract. However, if the court determines that the plaintiff is entitled to receive what was promised in the contract, the court may declare a constructive trust on the property in the hands of those who have succeeded to the estate. This is the equivalent of specific performance since it accomplishes the result of enforcement of the contract [Estate of Brenzikofer v. Schwartz (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1467, 57 Cal. Rptr.2d 401 ; Ludwicki v. Guerin (1961) 57 Cal. 2d 127, 130, 17 Cal. Rptr. 823, 367 P.2d 415 ; Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 468, 472, 46 Cal. Rptr. 173] . Equitable relief in the form of quasi-specific performance is not available, however, if the plaintiff has an adequate legal remedy [see, e.g., Wilkison v. Wiederkehr (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 822, 832-833, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 631 (plaintiff could not maintain action for quasi-specific performance--seeking to impose constructive trust on proceeds of home sale--when he had claim for damages for breach of written agreement to bequeath property)].

Although the relief in a quasi-specific performance action differs from that in a traditional specific performance action, the requisites for relief are identical [Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 468, 473, 46 Cal. Rptr. 173 ; see § 528.14 et seq.].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Overview

46-528 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 528.12

§ 528.12 Award of Damages Incidental to Specific Performance Decree

[1] In General

When a person has a cause of action for specific performance, damages incidental to the specific performance decree, such as damages for delay in performance, may be awarded [see Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 219, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7] . For example, a party to a contract for the purchase or exchange of land who is entitled to a decree of specific performance is also ordinarily entitled to a judgment for the rents and profits from the time the party was entitled to a conveyance [Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 219, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7] . The amount awarded is, in reality, a form of compensation due the buyer for loss incurred because of the delay in receiving title [Greenstone v. Claretian Theological Seminary (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 21, 29, 343 P.2d 161 , disapproved on other grounds, Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7] .

A court cannot award incidental damages, however, unless a cause of action for specific performance has been established [Paratore v. Perry (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 384, 388, 48 Cal. Rptr. 682 ; Rose v. Lawton (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 18, 21, 29 Cal. Rptr. 844] .

Confusion has existed in the area of incidental damages because of the informal use of the term "damages" in connection with such an award. Compensation, however, neither constitutes damages as contemplated in an action for breach of contract, nor implies legal damages. The award of incidental damages is based on the theory that a court of equity, once it obtains jurisdiction of an action for specific performance, should adjust the rights of the parties and equalize any losses occasioned by the delay by offsetting them with money payments [Greenstone v. Claretian Theological Seminary (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 21, 29, 343 P.2d 161 , disapproved on other grounds, Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7] .

[2] Pleading

No specific pleading appears necessary to implement enforcement of the contract and to allow the award of incidental damages in addition to the prayer for specific performance and the general prayer "for such other and further relief as the court may deem just" [Greenstone v. Claretian Theological Seminary (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 21, 32, 343 P.2d 161 , disapproved on other grounds, Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206] .

[3] Calculation of Damages

The guiding principle in calculating damages incident to the decree of specific performance is relation of the performance back to the date set in the contract. Thus, since timely performance of a contract for the sale of real property would result in the buyer's receiving the rents and profits of the land but losing the use of the purchase money, a buyer who seeks to recover rents and profits must permit an offset for his or her use of the purchase funds during the period that performance was delayed [Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 220, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7 (trial court erred in not permitting offset of interest against profits); Addiego v. Hill (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 453, 461, 95 Cal. Rptr. 151] . Interest is offset only against the accumulating profits that the purchaser acquires with his or her purchase. Consequently, when the contract is for the sale of corporate stock, any adjustment to the purchase price to offset interest on sums retained by the purchasers of the stock during the pendency of an appeal should not exceed the increase in the proportionate net worth of the corporation attributable to the stock in question by reason of the business transacted by the corporation during that period [Addiego v. Hill (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 453, 462, 95 Cal. Rptr. 151] . An offset of interest against profits is not permitted when the purchaser, with notice to the seller, has set aside money toward the purchase price in such a manner as to realize no use or benefit from it [Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 221, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7] .

When a seller is awarded specific performance, the seller is only entitled to the purchase price, plus interest. Damages for operating losses and loss of income while obtaining specific performance are not recoverable [BD Inns v. Pooley (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 289, 295-296, 266 Cal. Rptr. 815] .

Chapter 528 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
A. Overview

46-528 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 528.13

§ 528.13 Injunctive Relief

[1] In General

Specific performance is generally granted to compel the performance of an affirmative obligation in a contract. When the obligation is negative, an agreement not to do something, an injunction may be granted [see Long Beach Drug Co. v. United Drug Co. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 158, 170-171, 89 P.2d 386 ; Smith v. Mendonsa (1952) 108 Cal. App. 2d 540, 542-544, 238 P.2d 1039] . An injunction can also be granted to prevent the breach of an affirmative obligation. In the latter situation, injunctive relief is very similar to granting specific performance of the contract [see Witkin, California Procedure, Vol. 6, Provisional Remedies, §§ 308-311 (4th ed. 1997)].

An injunction, however, cannot be granted except in certain limited situations to prevent the breach of a contract which is not specifically enforceable [Civ. Code § 3423(5); Civ. Code § 3423(e); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5); Steinmeyer v. Warner Cons. Corp. (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 515, 519, 116 Cal. Rptr. 57 ; see discussion in § 528.45[1]; but see discussion in § 528.13[1]].

Even when a contract contains both affirmative and negative stipulations, equity will not interfere to prevent a breach of the negative covenant when the affirmative covenant is of such a nature that it cannot be specifically enforced by a judicial decree. Although this doctrine is contrary to the rule of the Restatement of Contracts, § 380, it is the settled law of California because of the express statutory provisions of Civ. Code § 3423 and Code Civ. Proc. § 526 [Long Beach Drug Co. v. United Drug Co. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 158, 168-169, 89 P.2d 386 ; Anderson v. Neal Institutes Co. (1918) 37 Cal. App. 174, 178-179, 173 P. 779] .

[2] Nonprofit Cooperative's Contract With Member

An exception to the rule that an injunction cannot be granted to prevent breach of a contract that is not specifically enforceable allows the granting of an injunction to prevent the breach of a contract entered into between any nonprofit cooperative corporation or association and one of its members or stockholders with respect to any provision regarding the sale or delivery to the corporation or association of the products produced or acquired by the member or stockholder [Civ. Code § 3423(e); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5)].

[3] Part Performance

If the plaintiff has altered his or her position so that the denial of specific performance would operate as a fraud on the plaintiff, equity will regard plaintiff's past performance as a substantial performance and indirectly decree specific performance by defendant by enjoining him or her from breaching the contract [Poultry Producers etc. v. Barlow (1922) 189 Cal. 278, 294, 208 P. 93] .

46-528 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 528.13A

§ 528.13A Effect of Contractual Stipulation for Equitable Relief

As a general matter, if the parties have stipulated in the contract as to the nature or amount of a remedy, it is proper for the trial court to honor the parties' agreement unless the court finds that to do so would be contrary to a rule of law or public policy. In determining the lawfulness of a stipulation that contemplates an equitable remedy, the court should take into account the special nature of equitable remedies. Given their extraordinary nature, equitable remedies are usually unavailable when the remedy at law is adequate, as when damages are quantifiable. A court must reject a stipulation contemplating an equitable remedy that is contrary to law or public policy, as in a case in which the evidence shows that an aggrieved party actually has an adequate remedy at law; otherwise, the court should honor the parties' agreement and enforce the stipulation [DVD Copy Control Assn. v. Kaleidescape, Inc. (2009) 176 Cal. App. 4th 697, 725726, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 856] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Requirements

46-528 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 528.14

§ 528.14 Security for Performance

[1] Scope of Mutuality

Under former California law, neither party to an obligation could be compelled specifically to perform it unless the other party thereto had performed, or could be compelled specifically to perform, everything to which the former was entitled under the same obligation, either completely or nearly so [see former Civ. Code § 3386 as enacted in 1872]. Over the years, this doctrine of mutuality of remedy was so qualified as to be of little, if any, value. Many authorities noted that the only important consideration in deciding to grant specific performance was whether or not the court of equity in which the case was brought was able to assure that the defendant would receive the agreed performance from the plaintiff [Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 215, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7] . Consequently, Civ. Code § 3386 was amended in 1969 to provide that a court may compel specific performance, even though the agreed counterperformance is not, or would not have been, specifically enforceable, if (1) specific performance would otherwise be an appropriate remedy; and (2) the agreed counterperformance has been substantially performed or its concurrent or future performance is assured or, if the court considers it necessary, can be secured to the court's satisfaction [see Bleecher v. Conte (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 345, 352-353, 173 Cal. Rptr. 278, 626 P.2d 1051 (seller's waiver of right to specific performance in liquidated damages clause did not preclude buyers from compelling specific performance of land-sale agreement); Rest Contracts, §§ 372, 373].

[2] Enforcement of Contract Signed by One Party

A party who has signed a written contract may be compelled specifically to perform it although the other party has not signed the contract, if the latter has performed it, or offers to perform it, on his or her part, and the case is otherwise proper for enforcing specific performance [Civ. Code § 3388].

The requirement of security for performance is satisfied when the non-signing plaintiff brings suit since by suing the plaintiff binds himself or herself to abide by the court's decree and empowers the court to decree specific performance against him or her. The commencement of the action is his or her offer to perform [Harper v. Goldschmidt (1909) 156 Cal. 245, 251, 104 P. 451 ; Riverside Fence Co. v. Novak (1969) 273 Cal. App. 2d 656, 664, 78 Cal. Rptr. 536 (option contract to sell real property)]. Although these cases were decided prior to the 1969 amendment of Civ. Code § 3388 which deleted the mutuality of remedy requirement and substituted a security for performance requirement, the cases should still be applicable since, by bringing suit, the plaintiff's performance can be ensured.

Chapter 528 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Requirements

46-528 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 528.15

§ 528.15 Adequacy of Consideration

[1] In General

Specific performance cannot be enforced against a party to a contract unless the party has received adequate consideration for the contract [Civ. Code § 3391(1); [Drullinger v. Erskine (1945) 71 Cal. App. 2d 492, 495, 163 P.2d 48 (option contract to purchase real property)]. Inadequacy of consideration is in itself sufficient to deny the granting of specific performance [Cornblith v. Valentine (1930) 211 Cal. 243, 246, 294 P. 1065 (consideration as inadequate for agreement to exchange real property when plaintiff's equity had value of $4,100 and defendant's equity had value of $6,200); Paratore v. Perry (1966) 239 Cal. App. 2d 384, 387-388, 48 Cal. Rptr. 682 (consideration inadequate when property worth $50,000 sold for $36,000)].

Adequate consideration, as used in Civ. Code § 3391, does not necessarily mean the highest price obtainable, but a price that is fair and reasonable under all the circumstances [Chalmers v. Raras (1962) 200 Cal. App. 2d 682, 689, 19 Cal. Rptr. 531 ; Cushing v. Levi (1931) 117 Cal. App. 94, 100-101, 3 P.2d 958] . Moreover, adequacy of consideration does not mean equality of price or a consideration measuring the value of the property to the fullest extent [Schader v. White (1916) 173 Cal. 441, 446, 160 P. 557 (consideration adequate when total value of property involved was $20,000 and disparity in value of respective properties was $1,000)]. In determining adequacy of consideration, the relationship of the parties and their love, affection, and regard for each other, as well as the object to be attained by the contract, must be considered, insofar as these factors amount to consideration [Johnson v. Servaes (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 392, 402, 26 Cal. Rptr. 733 ; see Berkeley Lawn Bowling Club v. City of Berkeley (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 280, 290, 116 Cal. Rptr. 762] .

The adequacy of the consideration in an action for specific performance is a question of fact for the trial court and should be left to the trial court's discretion if it is substantially supported by the evidence [Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 468, 475, 46 Cal. Rptr. 173 ; Ferguson v. Fajardo (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 119, 123, 27 Cal. Rptr. 72] .

[2] Waiver of Claim of Inadequacy of Consideration

The acceptance of the agreed consideration is a waiver of any claim of inadequacy and hence a waiver of any cause of action for specific performance [Peters v. Binnard (1933) 219 Cal. 141, 150, 25 P.2d 834 (inadequate consideration claim waived when parties who wanted to purchase notes enjoyed benefits of another person's efforts in obtaining notes at agreed price but refused to pay that party for money he advanced); Westwood Temple v. Emanuel Center (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 755, 759, 221 P.2d 146 (dismissal of action brought for declaration of rights of parties valid consideration and acceptance of dismissal waiver of claim of inadequacy of consideration)]. However, the mere giving of a check does not ordinarily constitute payment nor does the mere acceptance thereof raise a presumption that such acceptance constitutes payment. A check is not payment until cashed; a party attempting to prove payment by mere delivery or acceptance must in addition prove that it was agreed that such delivery and acceptance was to be accepted as payment [Mendiondo v. Greitman (1949) 93 Cal. App. 2d 765, 767, 209 P.2d 817] . The parties, however, can make an agreement that acceptance of a check constitutes payment, which obviates the rule stated above [Beazell v. Kane (1954) 127 Cal. App. 2d 593, 596, 274 P.2d 224] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Requirements

46-528 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 528.16

§ 528.16 Just and Reasonable Contract

[1] In General

Specific performance cannot be enforced against a party to a contract if the contract is not just and reasonable as to that party [Civ. Code § 3391(2); Berkeley Lawn Bowling Club v. City of Berkeley (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 280, 290, 116 Cal. Rptr. 762] . Consequently, equity will not enforce a contract which on its face is so manifestly harsh and oppressive as to shock the conscience. Specific performance will be refused when a contract is unfair, one-sided, unconscionable, or affected by any other inequitable feature, and when specific enforcement would be oppressive on the defendant, would prevent the enjoyment of his or her own rights, or would work injustice in any other manner [Jacklich v. Baer (1943) 57 Cal. App. 2d 684, 693, 135 P.2d 179 (contract unfair and unreasonable since defendant was required to pay plaintiffs 15 percent of net proceeds from defendant's boxing contests until $13,500 was paid and 10 percent thereafter for five years, plaintiffs received almost $33,500, and plaintiffs could extend contract for five more years for $5)].

A challenge on the basis that the contract is not just and reasonable as to the defendant must be considered in view of the entire circumstances, including the object to be obtained by the contract and the relationship of the parties [Berkeley Lawn Bowling Club v. Berkeley (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 280, 290, 116 Cal. Rptr. 762] .

Fairness and reasonableness is determined from the circumstances that existed at the time the contract was made. Thus, a mere change of circumstances that makes performance more difficult or more expensive is not a bar to specific performance of the contract [Ellison v. Ventura Port Dist. (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 574, 582, 145 Cal. Rptr. 665] . A prenuptial agreement under which the surviving spouse was to receive a life estate in decedent's residence was enforced despite the fact the decedent died unexpectedly a few months after the couple was married. The prenuptial agreement was fair and reasonable at the time it was made because at that time, the couple surely anticipated more time together than the few months they enjoyed [Hall v. Hall (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 578, 588, 271 Cal. Rptr. 773] .

[2] Unconscionable Contract

California has recently enacted an unconscionable contract provision that is almost identical to that of the Uniform

Commercial Code [see Civ. Code § 1670.5; U.C.C. § 2-302]. However, since the Legislature put Section 1670.5 in the Civil Code, it apparently applies to all contracts, not just to contracts for the sale of goods.

Under this provision, if a court finds, as a matter of law, that a contract or any clause of the contract was unconscionable at the time it was made, it may refuse to enforce the contract, may enforce the remainder of the contract without the unconscionable clause, may so limit the application of any unconscionable clause as to avoid any unconscionable result [Civ. Code § 1670.5(a)]. The basic test is whether or not, in the light of the general background and the needs of the particular case, the clauses involved are so one-sided as to be unconscionable under the circumstances existing at the time of the making of the contract [Assembly Legislative Committee Comment to Civ. Code § 1670.5].

A contract will not be specifically enforced if the defendant's assent was given under the influence of mistake, misapprehension, or surprise, except that when the contract provides for compensation in case of mistake, in which case a mistake within the scope of the provision may be compensated for, and the contract specifically enforced in other respects, if such enforcement is proper [*Civ. § 528.18 Remedy at Law Inadequate

[1] In General

Specific performance will be decreed only when no other adequate relief is available to the plaintiff. Equity will not assume jurisdiction when the plaintiff may be adequately compensated in money [Morrison v. Land (1915) 169 Cal. 580, 586, 147 P. 259 ; see Palo Alto-Menlo Park Yellow Cab Co. v. Santa Clara County Transit Dist. (1976) 65 Cal. App. 3d 121, 133, 135 Cal. Rptr. 192 ; see also Wilkison v. Wiederkehr (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 822, 832-833, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 631 (plaintiff could not maintain action for quasi-specific performance when he had adequate legal remedy in form of claim for damages)]. The question, in determining the adequacy of plaintiff's remedy at law, is not whether he or she has some remedy at law apart from the contract, but whether the remedy at law on the contract itself is sufficient [Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 468, 474, 46 Cal. Rptr. 173 ; see discussion in § 528.45[2][b]].

[2] Personal Property

The general rule is that equity will not decree the specific performance of contracts relating to personal property when the articles concerned do not have a quality which gives them special value to the contracting party and when the recovery of damages will enable the plaintiff to purchase others in the market of like kind and quality. Thus a presumption prevails in the case of contracts for the transfer of personalty that money damages will provide adequate compensation for a breach. However, this presumption is rebuttable, and when the articles are of such a rare or sentimental value that they cannot be duplicated, specific performance may be granted [Wehen v. Lundgaard (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 610, 613, 107 P.2d 491 ; see Gilfallan v. Gilfallan (1914) 168 Cal. 23, 25, 141 P. 623 (allegations in complaint for specific performance of contract to sell plaintiff oil company stock as sufficient against demurrer when stock had no fixed, ascertainable market value and would have no such value until oil was discovered); Com. Code § 2716(1) (specific performance permitted when goods are unique and in other proper circumstances); for discussion of Com. Code § 2716(1), see Ch. 501, Sales: Sales Under the Commercial Code].

If part of the subject matter of the contract consists of land and the other part consists of personal property, specific performance of the entire contract may be decreed even though compensation in money would be an adequate remedy for the promisor's failure to perform that part of the contract calling for the transfer of ordinary chattels [Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 468, 473, 46 Cal. Rptr. 173] .

[3] Real Property

There is a presumption that the breach of an agreement to transfer real property cannot be adequately relieved by monetary damages. In the case of a single-family dwelling that the buyer intends to occupy, the presumption is conclusive. In all other cases, the presumption affects the burden of proof [Civ. Code § 3387]. By establishing a rebuttable presumption with respect to property other than a single-family dwelling, the Legislature left open the possibility that damages can be an adequate remedy for breach of a real estate contract. The rebuttable presumption shifts the burden of proof to the breaching party to prove the adequacy of damages. Thus, the Legislature intended that a damages remedy for a nonbreaching party to a commercial real estate contract is the exception rather than the rule [Real Estate Analytics, LLC v. Vallas (2008) 160 Cal. App. 4th 463, 474, 72 Cal. Rptr. 3d 835 (seller, who was breaching party, did not overcome presumption against adequacy of damages merely by showing that buyer's purpose in acquiring property was to earn profits from developing or reselling it)].

Civ. Code § 3307, which specifies the detriment caused by breach of a real property contract and allows a seller to recover consequential damages and interest, does not eliminate the seller's ability to seek specific performance. The seller has a choice of remedies, and may pursue damages or specific performance [BD Inns v. Pooley (1990) 218 Cal. App. 3d 289, 295-296, 266 Cal. Rptr. 815] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Requirements

46-528 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 528.19

§ 528.19 Fraud and Misrepresentation

A contract cannot be specifically enforced against a party if that party's assent was obtained by the misrepresentation, concealment, circumvention, or unfair practices of any party to whom performance would become due under the contract or by any promise of that party that has not been substantially fulfilled [Civ. Code § 3391(3); Cornblith v. Valentine (1930) 211 Cal. 243, 247, 294 P. 1065 (specific performance of agreement to exchange equities in properties denied when defendants had been induced to enter agreement because of false and fraudulent representations knowingly made by plaintiff that plaintiff's equity was equal in value to defendants', that plaintiff would convey to defendants all furniture in one house, and that designated mortgage was only encumbrance against plaintiff's property); Boas v. Bank of America (1942) 51 Cal. App. 2d 592, 597, 125 P.2d 620 (specific performance refused if plaintiff's conduct in obtaining contract or acting under it has been unconscientious, inequitable, or characterized by bad faith); for further discussion of fraud in contractual situations and for related forms, see Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake].

The misrepresentation does not need to cause damage. When an intentional misrepresentation is made for the purpose of deceiving the defendant and is relied on by the defendant, who was deceived by the misrepresentation and who would not have entered into the contract but for the fact of the deceit, the fraud is a defense to an action for specific performance. A misrepresentation is considered material by an equitable court although not accompanied by damage [Kelly v. Central Pac. R.R. Co. (1888) 74 Cal. 557, 561, 16 P. 386 (specific performance of contract in which railroad agreed to convey land to plaintiff denied since agent conveyed land because plaintiff had claimed that he had settled on land when in fact he had not done so and when land was being settled by another party, which plaintiff knew); Restatement of Contracts § 367 comment a]. Even if the defendant had the means and opportunity to detect the fraud by the exercise of ordinary prudence, a court of equity will not enforce a contract obtained by fraud [Brandt v. Krogh (1910) 14 Cal. App. 39, 51, 111 P. 275 (executory contract)].

Chapter 528 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Requirements

46-528 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 528.20

§ 528.20 Contract Terms Required to Be Certain

[1] In General

A contract cannot be specifically enforced if the terms of the contract are not sufficiently certain to make the precise act which is to be done clearly ascertainable [Civ. Code § 3390(5); Crail v. Blakely (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 744, 753-754, 8 Cal. 3d 744, 754, 106 Cal. Rptr. 187, 505 P.2d 1027 ; Carlson v. Richardson (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 204, 206-207, 72 Cal. Rptr. 769 (agreement to convey realty incomplete if it lacks definite description of land to be conveyed)]. Many courts have stated that the material terms of a contract must be significantly more certain when a plaintiff demands the remedy of specific performance than when he or she seeks the traditional legal remedy of damages [Larwin-Southern Cal., Inc. v. JGB Inv. Co. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 626, 636, 162 Cal. Rptr. 52 ; see Long Beach Drug Co. v. United Drug Co. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 158, 164, 89 P.2d 386] .

In determining whether the material terms of the contract are sufficiently certain for the contract to be specifically enforced, the modern trend of the law is to favor the enforcement of contracts, to lean against their unenforceability because of uncertainty, and to carry out the intentions of the parties if this can feasibly be done. Neither law nor equity requires that every term and condition of an agreement be set forth in contract. The usual and reasonable terms found in similar contracts can be looked to, unexpressed provisions of the contract may be inferred from the writing, external facts may be relied on, and custom and usage or other extrinsic evidence may be resorted to in an effort to supply a deficiency if it does not alter or vary the terms of the agreement [Larwin-Southern Cal., Inc. v. JGB Inv. Co. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 626, 641, 162 Cal. Rptr. 52 ; Okun v. Morton (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 805, 819, 250 Cal. Rptr. 220 ; see King v. Stanley (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 584, 588-589, 197 P.2d 321 , disapproved on other grounds, Patel v. Liebermensch (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 344, 351 n.4, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 366, 197 P.3d 177 (in contract for sale of property, only four terms are essential: who is seller, what property is being sold, who is buyer, and what is price)]. For example, a court has held that a contract was not fatally uncertain although the contract did not articulate the precise definition of qualified subcontractors or the exact number of bids to be taken, thus making the pricing mechanism uncertain. The court stated that the custom, usage, and trade within the real estate development industry and other relevant extrinsic evidence could be looked at to determine the requisite factors [Larwin-Southern Cal., Inc. v. JGB Inv. Co. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 626, 644, 162 Cal. Rptr. 52] .

Moreover, the fact that a contract does not indicate the time for performance does not necessarily render the contract so uncertain that it cannot be specifically enforced. When a person promises to will property to another individual in exchange for services of a peculiar nature involving the assumption of or continuation of a close family relationship, but dies without executing the will, although in such situations the contract generally does not specify a certain time for the promisor's performance, the courts will nonetheless decree quasi-specific performance by impressing a constructive trust on the particular property in favor of the promisee if the contract is otherwise specifically enforceable [Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 468, 477, 46 Cal. Rptr. 173] . Specific performance should be refused only when extrinsic evidence fails to remove any ambiguity or uncertainty [Okun v. Morton (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 805, 819, 250 Cal. Rptr. 220 ; Crescenta Valley Moose Lodge v. Bunt (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 682, 689, 87 Cal. Rptr. 428] .

Only when the uncertainty or incompleteness of a contract prevents the court from knowing what to enforce does the defense of uncertainty have rationality [Henderson v. Fisher (1965) 236 Cal. App. 2d 468, 477, 46 Cal. Rptr. 173] .

Moreover, the fact that part of a contract is not sufficiently certain for specific performance does not require a court to in validate the entire agreement. The court can order specific performance of the certain or definite part of the contract [Lawrence v. Shutt (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 749, 763, 75 Cal. Rptr. 533] .

However, a party to a contract cannot erase uncertainty from the contract by waiving the uncertain clause or term and thereby restore its contractual validity [White Point Co. v. Herrington (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 458, 469, 73 Cal. Rptr. 885] , although a contracting party may waive provisions placed in a contract solely for the party's benefit [Doryon v. Salant (1977) 75 Cal. App. 3d 706, 712, 142 Cal. Rptr. 378 (plaintiffs waived any condition precedent to performance and defendants were contractually assured of obtaining full purchase price in cash when plaintiffs obtained $51,000 loan although their offer was subject to obtaining $52,000 loan)].

[2] Term Subject to Future Agreement

When an important item is reserved for the future agreement of both parties, however, the promise generally cannot give rise to a legal obligation until the parties reach the agreement. Since either party, by the very terms of the promise, may refuse to agree to anything to which the other party will agree, it is impossible for the law to affix any obligation to such a promise [White Point Co. v. Herrington (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 458, 468, 73 Cal. Rptr. 885 ; Magna Dev. Co. v. Reed (1964) 228 Cal. App. 2d 230, 238, 39 Cal. Rptr. 284] . However, when the contract provides for an objective method of ascertaining the term left to future agreement, such as the price, the contract will not be construed as too indefinite to enforce [Larwin-Southern Cal., Inc. v. JGB Inv. Co. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 626, 643, 162 Cal. Rptr. 52] . Conduct of the parties in performing under the agreement before the controversy arose may provide an objective indication of what the parties intended as performance of the terms left for future agreement [see Okun v. Morton (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 805, 819-820, 250 Cal. Rptr. 220 (investment agreement providing that plaintiff could participate in future restaurants "in a manner mutually agreeable in the same ratio which we currently hold stock")].

[3] Use of Extrinsic Evidence in Ambiguous Situations

Specific performance should be refused only when extrinsic evidence fails to remove any ambiguity or uncertainty [Okun v. Morton (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 805, 819, 250 Cal. Rptr. 220 ; Crescenta Valley Moose Lodge v. Bunt (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 682, 689, 87 Cal. Rptr. 428] . Conduct of the parties in performing under the agreement before the controversy arose is one type of extrinsic evidence that may be considered [Okun v. Morton (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 805, 819-820, 250 Cal. Rptr. 220] .

Parol evidence and extrinsic evidence concerning custom and usage are properly admissible to clarify otherwise ambiguous terms [Larwin-Southern Cal., Inc. v. JGB Inv. Co. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 626, 645, 162 Cal. Rptr. 52] .

The evidence is admissible to identify the subject matter of the contract from the written description, explain the meaning of ambiguous, abstruse, or technical expressions, and assist in interpreting the expressed intentions of the parties in the light of circumstances existing at the time of execution [United Truckmen, Inc. v. Lorentz (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 26, 34, 249 P.2d 352] . Even when the contract is uncertain as to the precise act to be done, extrinsic evidence is admissible to determine what the parties intended. Only when the extrinsic evidence fails to remove the ambiguity is specific performance refused [Larwin-Southern Cal., Inc. v. JGB Inv. Co. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 626, 645, 162 Cal. Rptr. 52 ; Crescenta Valley Moose Lodge v. Bunt (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 682, 689, 87 Cal. Rptr. 428 (extrinsic evidence admissible even when uncertainty extends to precise act to be done); White Point Co. v. Herrington (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 458, 468, 73 Cal. Rptr. 885 (ambiguous contract not specifically enforceable when parol evidence fails to remove ambiguity)].

However, although custom is admissible for the purpose of interpreting the contract or agreement of the parties, or for furnishing details not expressly covered thereby, it is not admissible to establish a contract [White Point Co. v. Herrington (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 458, 468, 73 Cal. Rptr. 885] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
B. General Requirements

46-528 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 528.21

§ 528.21 Performance of Conditions Precedent

[1] In General

A condition precedent is one which is to be performed before some right dependent thereon accrues, or some act dependent thereon is performed [Civ. Code § 1436; for further discussion, see Ch. 140, Contracts]. Specific performance cannot be enforced in favor of a party who has not fully and fairly performed all the conditions precedent on that party's part to the obligation of the other party, except when the party's failure to perform is only partial and either entirely immaterial or capable of being fully compensated, in which case specific performance may be compelled on full compensation being made for the default [Civ. Code § 3392; Crail v. Blakely (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 744, 754, 106 Cal. Rptr. 187, 505 P.2d 1027 ; Lifton v. Harshman (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 422, 433-434, 182 P.2d 222 , disapproved on other grounds, Pao Ch'en Lee v. Gregoriou (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 502, 326 P.2d 135 ; for discussion of pleading requirements, see Comments to § 528.130].

Often one party's approval of the documents, or in real estate transactions, of preliminary title reports and inspections, will be a condition precedent to that party's performance [see, e.g., Realmuto v. Gagnard (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 193, 205, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 569 (seller's failure to deliver transfer disclosure statement--a nonwaivable condition precedent to buyer's duty to perform in sale covered by Civ. Code § 1102 et seq.--precluded action against buyer for specific performance and breach of contract)]. If the party whose approval is required expressly and unequivocally disapproves, the contract is terminated and cannot be revived by later "waiver" of the condition [Beverly Way Associates v. Barham (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 49, 51, 56, 276 Cal. Rptr. 240] .

[2] When Performance or Tender of Performance Not Required

[a] Repudiation of Contract and Excuses for Nonperformance

When a party unequivocally repudiates a contract and indicates that he or she is not bound thereby, a tender of performance is unnecessary since the law does not require the performance of an idle act. A formal tender of performance is excused by the refusal in advance of the party to accept the performance owing [Beverage v. Canton Placer Mining Co. (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 769, 777, 278 P.2d 694 ; Greenstone v. Claretian Theological Seminary (1959)

173 Cal. App. 2d 21, 33, 343 P.2d 161 , disapproved on other grounds, Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7 ; see Kossler v. Palm Springs Developments, Ltd. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 88, 102, 161 Cal. Rptr. 423] . In these circumstances, commencement of an action for specific performance in itself constitutes sufficient demand for performance [Heinlen v. Martin (1879) 53 Cal. 321, 345-346 ; Greenstone v. Claretian Theological Seminary (1959) 173 Cal. App. 2d 21, 33, 343 P.2d 161 , disapproved on other grounds, Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7] .

Additionally, under the terms of Civ. Code § 1511 (excuses for nonperformance of contract), plaintiff's performance or tender is excused if it was prevented by defendant's conduct [see Towne Dev. Co. v. Lee (1965) 63 Cal. 2d 147, 152, 45 Cal. Rptr. 316, 403 P.2d 724 (plaintiff excused from performing when it attempted to tender money but could not do so because escrow company had gone out of business and defendant suggested that parties go to different escrow company but agreed to wait until rezoning report was received before opening another escrow)].

Thus an incomplete performance is not a defense to an action for specific performance when there has been substantial performance and full performance was prevented by the other party [Ambrose v. Alioto (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 362, 369, 150 P.2d 502 (plaintiff substantially performed and defendant prevented full performance when master of boat had operated it as required but defendant discharged him, preventing him from making enough profits with boat to pay off debts)].

[b] Rule Not Applicable to Unilateral Contracts

The rule that repudiation of an executory contract by one party relieves the corresponding obligor from the necessity of tendering performance as a prerequisite of maintaining a suit to enforce specific performance does not apply to unilateral contracts. Until the plaintiff accepts the offer, there is no contract obligating him or her in any way. Plaintiff can signify acceptance only in accordance with the terms of the contract and subject to all, not part, of the conditions imposed by the contract [Marsh v. Lott (1908) 8 Cal. App. 384, 393-394, 97 P. 163] .

[3] Time of Performance

The general rule in equity is that time is not of the essence unless it is made so by express terms or is necessarily so from the nature of the contract [Katemis v. Westerlind (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 799, 804, 299 P.2d 383 ; see Civ. Code § 1492]. Valuable contractual rights should not be surrendered or forfeitures suffered by a slight delay in performance unless such an intention clearly appears from the contract, when specific enforcement will work an injustice after a delayed tender, or when delay is inexcusable [Katemis v. Westerlind (1953) 120 Cal. App. 2d 537, 541-542, 543, 261 P.2d 553 (plaintiffs as entitled to bring action for specific performance although their check for remainder of purchase price for real property arrived late when it arrived Monday after Saturday it was due and escrow office was closed on due date); see Becker v. Becker (1950) 36 Cal. 2d 324, 327, 223 P.2d 479] . When the contract shows time was not deemed to be of the essence, equity may decree specific performance although the act was done after the date fixed in the contract [Katemis v. Westerlind (1956) 142 Cal. App. 2d 799, 807, 299 P.2d 383 (time as not of essence when contact provides for performance within reasonable time)].

When time is expressly made of the essence, a delay which is not considered excusable in an action for damages at law will also prevent an action for specific performance in equity, except that equity gives relief if the result would otherwise be a severe forfeiture. Relief from forfeiture is justified when defendant would receive all the advantages of plaintiff's performance, without suffering any damage because of the delay, whereas plaintiff would lose all consideration for the work done and costs paid by him or her [Selby v. Battley (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 659, 663-664, 309 P.2d 120] .

Even when time is of the essence of a contract, the provision with respect to time may be waived by the parties' conduct [Pease v. Brown (1960) 186 Cal. App. 2d 425, 428, 8 Cal. Rptr. 917 (sellers as acquiescing in buyers' delay in depositing purchase price)].

When a specified time for performance has been waived by a party, that party must, in order to put the other in default, not only give notice that strict compliance will thereafter be required but must allow the other party a reasonable time within which to perform [Kossler v. Palm Springs Developments, Ltd. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 88, 98, 161 Cal. Rptr. 423] .

§ 528.22 Seller Required to Have Good Title

An agreement for the sale of property cannot be specifically enforced in favor of a seller who cannot give to the buyer a title free from reasonable doubt [Civ. Code § 3394; King v. Stanley (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 584, 589-590, 197 P.2d 321 (vendor as having duty of furnishing good and marketable title); see § 528.137]. Although the statute does not specify a particular kind of property, most of the cases involve real property [see, e.g., King v. Stanley (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 584, 589-590, 197 P.2d 321 , disapproved on other grounds, Patel v. Liebermensch (2008) 45 Cal. 4th 344, 351 n.4, 86 Cal. Rptr. 3d 366, 197 P.3d 177 ; Lansburgh v. Market Street Ry. Co. (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 426, 427, 220 P.2d 423] . The term "reasonable doubt," in the context of real property contracts, refers to dubious defects, encumbrances, outstanding claims, or color of title in others, which if upheld would prove the title defective at the time of performance [Lansburgh v. Market Street Ry. Co. (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 426, 430, 220 P.2d 423 (presence of provisional map in public works department office and authorization for bonded debt for street extension project as not sufficient to create reasonable doubt of seller's title)]. The time when the condition of the title must be free from reasonable doubt is the time fixed for performance by the contract [Lansburgh v. Market Street Ry. Co. (1950) 98 Cal. App. 2d 426, 430, 220 P.2d 423] . Thus, the vendor does not need to have title at the time of the contract if, when the time for performance arrives, the vendor will be able to furnish the title he or she contracted to convey [Wheat v. Thomas (1930) 209 Cal. 306, 316, 287 P. 102 ; see Leiter v. Eltinge (1966) 246 Cal. App. 2d 306, 317, 54 Cal. Rptr. 703] .

When the vendor has no title or interest in the land to be conveyed under a contract for the sale of real property, a decree of specific performance will not be awarded since a court will not attempt to require what is impossible to do [Farnum v. Clarke (1906) 148 Cal. 610, 618, 84 P. 166 ; Weisberg v. Ashcraft (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 225, 232, 14 Cal. Rptr. 817 ; see discussion in § 528.41 et seq.]. If, however, the vendor is the equitable owner and has the right to call for the legal title, specific performance will be decreed. Moreover, if the vendor has any interest in the property that he or she has contracted to convey, although the interest is not as complete as the one agreed to be conveyed, the vendee, at his or her option, may enforce the contract with respect to whatever interest the vendor possesses and may also receive compensation for the deficiency in performance [Miller v. Dyer (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 526, 528-529, 127 P.2d 901 ; Weisberg v. Ashcraft (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 225, 232, 14 Cal. Rptr. 817] .

If the property is owned by a trust and the contract of sale was made by the beneficiary who had complete control over the disposition of the trust property, the buyer can obtain specific performance against the trust even after the beneficiary has died [Walgren v. Dolan (1990) 226 Cal. App. 3d 572, 578-580, 276 Cal. Rptr. 554] .

§ 528.40 In General

Specific performance of a contract may be granted unless otherwise specified [Civ. Code § 3384] when the requirements discussed in § 528.14 et seq. are met. The Legislature, however, has specified that the following obligations cannot be specifically enforced [Civ. Code § 3390; see discussion in § 528.20]: (1) an obligation to render personal service; (2) an obligation to employ another in personal service; (3) an agreement to perform an act which the party has no power lawfully to perform when required to do so; (4) an agreement to procure the act or consent of the wife of the contracting party, or of any other third person; and (5) an agreement, the terms of which are not sufficiently certain to make the precise act which is to be done clearly ascertainable. Courts have delineated other situations in which specific performance will not be granted. Particular contracts and circumstances under which specific performance will or will not be granted are discussed below.

46-528 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 528.41

§ 528.41 Inequitability, Impossibility, and Illegality of Performance

Specific performance will not be granted when a contract's enforcement would be inequitable. Thus, a contract to convey land cannot be enforced against an intervening purchaser who had no actual or constructive notice of plaintiff's claim to the property and who purchased it for valuable consideration [Crittenden v. Hansen (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 56, 59, 138 P.2d 37] . Similarly, circumstances under which enforcement of the contract would impose a great burden on the defendant, with a slight or no corresponding benefit to the plaintiff, or under which enforcement would be detrimental to the public interest, warrant the denial of specific performance [Herzog v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe R.R. Co. (1908) 153 Cal. 496, 500, 95 P. 898 (specific performance as denied when enforcement would be oppressive or inequitable); Stanley v. Robert S. Odell & Co. (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 521, 531, 218 P.2d 162 (contract whose object is performance of acts against sound public policy as not specifically enforceable)].

The difficulty or impossibility of enforcing a contract is also a ground for denying specific performance [Anderson v. Neal Institutes Co. (1918) 37 Cal. App. 174, 176, 173 P. 779 ; see Crittenden v. Hansen (1943) 59 Cal. App. 2d 56, 59, 138 P.2d 37 ; for discussion of impossibility, see Ch. 140, Contracts]. Even though the objects sought to be accomplished by the agreement are lawful and proper, if there are no means available for its accomplishment, the agreement cannot be specifically enforced [Dulin v. Pacific Wood & Coal Co. (1894) 103 Cal. 357, 364, 37 P. 207] .

Impossibility is determined at the time the matter is tried. If the defendant did not have the power to perform when the contract was breached and the action was commenced, but its performance is possible at the time of trial or entry of judgment, the court may award specific performance [Stevens Group Fund IV v. Sobrato Development Co. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 886, 894-897, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 460 (sale of real property; loan that could not be prepaid matured before trial; thus, impossibility of conveying "free and clear" title was removed]. The court is not required to award specific performance because the impossibility has been removed, but must reevaluate all the equitable considerations [Stevens Group Fund IV v. Sobrato Development Co. (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 886, 897, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 460] .

For example, a court stated that specific performance of a contract was not proper when its enforcement would have required the court to order the defendant to prepare medical remedies used in the treatment of patients at any institutes that might be established by plaintiff for the treatment of alcoholics and drug addicts [Anderson v. Neal Inst. Co.

(1918) 37 Cal. App. 174, 176, 173 P. 779] . Similarly, a court refused to enforce an agreement among stockholders to elect a certain person president for two years and to pay him a specified salary since there was no means of forcing the stockholders to vote for a particular person [Dulin v. Pacific Wood & Coal Co. (1894) 103 Cal. 357, 364, 37 P. 207] .

An agreement to perform an act which the party does not have the power lawfully to perform when required to do so cannot be specifically enforced [Civ. Code § 3390(3)]. A court will not lend its aid to give effect to a contract that is illegal, whether it violates the common law or a statute, either expressly or by implication [Kreamer v. Earl (1891) 91 Cal. 112, 117, 27 P. 735] . Thus, the assurance of a county superintendent that retroactive unpaid leaves of absence could be granted for a period during which employees were on strike was not specifically enforceable since the superintendent did not have the authority to make the promise under the pertinent regulations [Social Workers Union Local 535 v. Los Angeles County (1969) 270 Cal. App. 2d 65, 76-77, 75 Cal. Rptr. 566] .

Furthermore, a vendor who has no title or interest in the land that he or she contracts to convey will not be required specifically to perform. Equity will not compel the vendor to obtain title [Miller v. Dyer (1942) 20 Cal. 2d 526, 528-529, 127 P.2d 901 ; Weisberg v. Ashcraft (1961) 194 Cal. App. 2d 225, 232, 14 Cal. Rptr. 817 ; see discussion in § 528.22]. A destruction of a material part of the subject property without the fault of either party before title or possession has passed excuses the vendor's performance and entitles the purchaser to the return of any consideration paid. Therefore, the purchaser is not entitled to specific performance with an abatement for the damage [Dixon v. Salvation Army (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 463, 467, 191 Cal. Rptr. 111] .

Chapter 528 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Specific Situations

46-528 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 528.42

§ 528.42 Penalties and Forfeitures

[1] Denied Specific Enforcement

Specific performance cannot be granted to enforce a penalty or forfeiture in any case, nor to enforce a penal law, except in the case of a nuisance or otherwise as provided by law, such as in a case of unfair competition [Civ. Code § 3369; see Bus. & Prof. Code § 17202(unfair competition)].

[2] Determination of Penalty

In determining whether a contractual clause is an agreement for a penalty, two things must be considered: (1) whether or not the parties to the contract intended that the sum fixed as damages for the breach of the agreement by either party should be a penalty; and (2) whether or not the agreement is, in the nature of things, a penalty regardless of the language of the agreement declaring it to be liquidated damages. If a provision is actually a penalty, no expression in the agreement that it should be regarded otherwise is controlling, since the parties cannot by their agreement change something which is by nature a penalty into liquidated damages. Liquidated damages not reasonably related to actual damages are unenforceable and void as penalties, except when a sum is agreed to be paid for doing or failing to do an act with respect to which damages are uncertain and cannot be readily ascertained [Pogue v. Kaweah Power & Water Co. (1903) 138 Cal. 664, 667-668, 72 P. 144 ; Sybron Corp. v. Clark Hosp. Supply Corp. (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 896, 900, 143 Cal. Rptr. 306 ; Wright v. Rodgers (1926) 198 Cal. 137, 141, 243 P. 866 ; Sybron Corp. v. Clark Hosp. Supply Corp. (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 896, 900, 143 Cal. Rptr. 306 ($28,000 penalty for delay in payment of $30,000 as bearing no rational relationship to amount of actual damages suffered and as unenforceable)].

A penalty does not need to take the form of a stipulated fixed sum. Any provision by which money or property would be forfeited without regard to the actual damage suffered would be an unenforceable penalty. For example, an amount equal to the net benefits conferred by part performance bears no rational relationship to the purpose of the penalty. It not only fails to take into consideration the degree of culpability, but its severity increases as the seriousness of the breach decreases. Under such a penalty, a party who breached his or her contract before he or she paid the other party any amount would suffer no penalty, whereas one who had almost completely performed his or her contract would suffer the maximum penalty [Freedman v. St. Matthias Parish (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 16, 22, 230 P.2d 629 ; but see Smith v. Allen (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 93, 95, 65 Cal. Rptr. 153 P.2d 65 (above-stated rule as not applicable to executed contracts to convey real property since such contracts are governed by foreclosure statutes)].

[3] Enforcement of Contract Imposing Penalty

In a situation in which a penalty is imposed or the damages for the breach of a contract are liquidated and the party in default is willing to pay the penalty or damages, the contract itself may still be enforced if it is otherwise specifically enforceable [Civ. Code § 3389; Glock v. Howard & Wilson Colony Co. (1898) 123 Cal. 1, 9 ; Johnston v. Blanchard (1911) 16 Cal. App. 321, 325-326, 116 P. 973 (whether or not sum specified in contract is liquidated damages or penalty as immaterial under Civ. Code § 3389since in either case plaintiff may waive action at law and seek specific performance)]. This rule does not require the court to decree specific performance of any contract containing a liquidated damages provision merely because it contains such a provision. Even though a contract is specifically enforceable, the party may elect to accept the liquidated damages amount instead of seeking enforcement of the contract [Morrison v. Land (1915) 169 Cal. 580, 589, 147 P. 259 ; for discussion of liquidated damages, see Ch. 177, Damages].

[4] Relief From Forfeiture

[a] Compensation of Other Party

Equity will not enforce a forfeiture but, to the contrary, will grant relief from it. Whenever, by the terms of an obligation, a party to the agreement incurs a forfeiture, or a loss in the nature of a forfeiture, because of his or her failure to comply with its provisions, he or she may be relieved therefrom, on making full compensation to the other party, except in the case of a grossly negligent, willful, or fraudulent breach of duty [Civ. Code § 3275; Ebbert v. Mercantile Trust Co. (1931) 213 Cal. 496, 499, 2 P.2d 776] . For example, a court may relieve a tenant from forfeiture of a lease and restore the tenant to his or her former estate, in the case of hardship, when an application for such relief is made and on the condition that the rent due is paid or the conditions or covenants of the lease are fully performed, as far as is practicable [Code Civ. Proc. § 1179]. The equitable powers of the court exist to insure that the ultimate obligation imposed on the defaulting party is not unreasonable in proportion to the original obligation and the seriousness of the default [Sybron Corp. v. Clark Hosp. Supply Corp. (1978) 76 Cal. App. 3d 896, 903, 143 Cal. Rptr. 306] .

[b] Partial Performance When Time Is of the Essence

Whenever the conditions of Civ. Code § 3275 are satisfied, the courts have granted relief to a defaulting party even though time was made of the essence of the contract involved [Barkis v. Scott (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 116, 118, 208 P.2d 367 (defendant's failure to meet obligation by issuing checks with insufficient funds as not grossly negligent and willful but simple negligence in management of checking account); Valley View Home of Beaumont, Inc. v. Department of Health Services (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 161, 168, 194 Cal. Rptr. 56] . Forfeiture is not favored, and if possible, a contract and any conditions in the contract are to be construed to avoid forfeiture. When an express condition cannot be avoided by construction, and there is an express condition making time of the essence, even a party who has violated that express condition may have its compliance excused and be granted equitable relief against its enforcement if the facts and equities are balanced in favor of granting relief from forfeiture [Valley View Home of Beaumont, Inc. v. Department of Health Services (1983) 146 Cal. App. 3d 161, 168, 194 Cal. Rptr. 56] .

If the defaulting party has partially performed, the degree of default, even when serious and prolonged, must be weighed against the degree of part performance. When part performance is substantial, it will outweigh the degree of default, particularly when the court is able to determine and award damages to the innocent party for any detriment he or she has suffered by the default [Scarbery v. Bill Patch Land & Water Co. (1960) 184 Cal. App. 2d 87, 104, 7 Cal. Rptr. 408 (although time was of essence, when more than three fourths of obligation had been paid and $60,000 had been spent in capital improvements, part performance as outweighing default)]. Under an installment land sale contract, if there has been substantial part performance or if the vendee has made substantial improvements in reliance on his or her contract, permitting the vendor to terminate the vendee's rights under the contract and keep the installments that have been paid results in the harshest kind of forfeiture. Accordingly, relief will be granted whether or not time was made of the essence [Barkis v. Scott (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 116, 122, 208 P.2d 367] .

[c] No Reasonable Relation to Damage

Civ. Code § 3275 is not the exclusive source of a right to relief from forfeiture [MacFadden v. Walker (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 809, 813, 97 Cal. Rptr. 537, 488 P.2d 1353] . Even when a breach is willful so that a party does not qualify for relief under Civ. Code § 3275, a court may grant specific performance under certain circumstances. The courts have interpreted the prohibition of punitive damages for breach of contract [Civ. Code § 3294(a)], the strict limitations on the right to provide for liquidated damages [Civ. Code §§ 1670, 1671], and the provision that specific or preventive relief cannot be granted to enforce a penalty or forfeiture, as establishing a policy that precludes any forfeiture that does not have a reasonable relation to the damage caused by the breach [MacFadden v. Walker (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 809, 813-814, 97 Cal. Rptr. 537, 488 P.2d 1353] . Note that MacFadden is no longer the preferred method of giving buyer's relief for breaches of installment land sale contracts [see Petersen v. Hartell (1985) 40 Cal. 3d 102, 116-117, 219 Cal. Rptr. 170, 707 P.2d 232 (establishing right of redemption)].

§ 528.43 Procuring Act or Consent of Spouse or Third Party

[1] In General

An agreement to procure the act or consent of the spouse of the contracting party, or of any other third person, is not specifically enforceable [Civ. Code § 3390(4); see Casady v. Modern Metal Spinning & Mfg. Co. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 728, 731, 10 Cal. Rptr. 790 ; see § 528.134]. Note that the precise language of Civ. Code § 3390(4), which dates from 1872 and has not been amended since 1961, refers to an agreement to procure the act or consent of the "wife" of the contracting party. However, Civ. Code § 3390(4) in fact applies with equal force to either spouse, since the husband clearly falls within the category of "any other third person" even though not otherwise specifically mentioned in the statute.

Civ. Code § 3390(4) does not bar specific performance of a contract to convey real property although the contract was entered into by a tenant in common without the consent of the other tenant in common. If a vendor has any interest in the property he or she has contracted to convey, the vendee may at his or her option enforce the contract with respect to whatever interest the vendor possesses and may also receive compensation for the deficiency in performance, a contract entered into by only one tenant in common may be enforced as to that party's interest in the property [Milkes v. Smith (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 79, 81-82, 204 P.2d 419] . Nevertheless, if a co-owner of real property contracts to convey the property and signs the name of the other owner to the contract without the authority of the co-owner, who subsequently refuses to perform, the court will not order specific performance of the contract by the signing co-owner of his or her part of the property. Compelling performance in such a situation would force the defendant to perform a contract which he never made or intended to make [Olson v. Lovell (1891) 91 Cal. 506, 508, 27 P. 765 ; Jackson v. Torrence (1890) 83 Cal. 521, 538, 23 P. 695 (husband and wife)].

The necessity of securing the approval of a governmental agency to the complete performance of an agreement does not bar the granting of the specific performance of the agreement [Bleecher v. Conte (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 345, 354, 173 Cal. Rptr. 278, 626 P.2d 1051 ; Kaneko v. Okuda (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 217, 232, 15 Cal. Rptr. 792 (consent of Commissioner of Corporations required)]. In such a case, the primary contract is the promise to convey property. The governmental approval is a condition precedent to the duty to perform, to close escrow [Bleecher v. Conte (1981) 29

Cal. 3d 345, 354, 173 Cal. Rptr. 278, 626 P.2d 1051] . However, the condition of approval and the implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing create a duty on the part of the party whose performance is conditioned on the approval, whether it be the approval of a governmental agency or of the board or shareholders of a corporate party to the contract, to seek that approval in good faith and in a timely manner [see, e.g., Jacobs v. Tenneco West, Inc. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1413, 1417-1418, 231 Cal. Rptr. 351 ; Moreland Development Co. v. Gladstone Holmes, Inc. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 973, 977-978, 186 Cal. Rptr. 6 ; Jacobs v. Freeman (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 177, 190, 163 Cal. Rptr. 680 ; see generally discussion in § 528.21]. If approval would have been given if sought, failure to seek approval excuses the condition of approval and specific performance may be granted [Jacobs v. Tenneco West, Inc. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1413, 1417-1418, 231 Cal. Rptr. 351] . If approval would not have been given if sought, failure to seek approval is excused, and the party whose performance was conditioned on approval is not required to perform. This excuse for nonperformance is an affirmative defense, burden of proof of which is on party claiming it [Jacobs v. Tenneco West, Inc. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1413, 1418-1419, 231 Cal. Rptr. 351] .

[2] Consent of Partner

Under the Uniform Partnership Act (applicable until January 1, 1999, to partnerships formed before January 1, 1997), the case of a contract for the sale of partnership property that was executed by fewer than all partners, whether or not the contract may be specifically enforced depends on whether the performance of the contract would make it impossible to carry on the ordinary partnership business [Corp. Code § 15009(3)(c)]. If the partnership is in the business of operating a motel, the contract is one for the sale of that motel, and specific performance would result in the sale of all the partnership assets, the contract cannot be specifically enforced [Patel v. Patel (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 6, 9-11, 260 Cal. Rptr. 255 (buyers' right to partial specific performance with reduction in price was not considered because it was raised for first time on appeal)]. If a partnership is a "trading" partnership, that is, one in the business of buying and selling property, and the contract executed by fewer than all the partners is one for the sale of only part of the stock held for sale, the buyer can have specific performance [see Owens v. Palos Verdes Monaco (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 855, 865-866, 191 Cal. Rptr. 381] .

The issue is further complicated if record title to the property that is the subject of the contract is only in the names of the partners who executed the contract for its sale. Corp. Code § 15010 provides that the partners in whose names a property stands may convey it, but that the partnership may recover the property unless the partners' act binds the partnership under the provisions of Corp. Code § 15009(1) (every act of partner to carry on business of partnership binds partnership), or unless the property was conveyed to a bona fide purchaser for value without knowledge that the partners, in executing the contract, exceeded their authority. Faced with a conflict between Corp. Code § 15009(3) and Corp. Code § 15010, at least one court of appeal has held that when the purpose of the partnership is to operate the asset contracted to be sold, the interest protected by Corp. Code § 15009(3) should prevail and denied specific performance [Patel v. Patel (1989) 212 Cal. App. 3d 6, 10-11, 260 Cal. Rptr. 255] .

Under the Uniform Partnership Act of 1994 (applicable to partnerships formed on or after January 1, 1997), partnership property held in the name of the partnership may be transferred by an instrument of transfer executed by a partner in the partnership [Corp. Code § 16302(a)(1); see Corp. Code § 16303 (statement of partnership authority)]. Partnership property held in the name of one or more partners or one or more persons other than the partnership may be transferred by an instrument of transfer executed by the persons in whose name the property is held [see Corp. Code § 16302(a)(2), (3) (statement of partnership authority)]. For a discussion of rights relative to partnership property, see Ch. 402, Partnerships: Actions Between General Partners or Partnership and Third Parties .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Specific Situations

46-528 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 528.44

§ 528.44 Series of Continuous Acts

Generally, a court should not decree specific performance unless the subject matter of the decree is capable of being embraced in one order that is immediately enforceable [Long Beach Drug Co. v. United Drug Co. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 158, 171, 88 P.2d 698, 89 P.2d 386 (exclusive sales contract was not specifically enforceable because it would entail unfeasible supervision by court)]. However, in some cases, a contract has been specifically enforced by requiring a succession of acts by a party or performance extending for some time. Examples include the following:

- Plugging abandoned oil wells, with creation and monitoring of a schedule for doing so [Union Oil Co. v. Greka Energy Corp. (2008) 165 Cal. App. 4th 129, 136-137, 80 Cal. Rptr. 3d 738].

- Periodically dredging a shipping channel [Ellison v. Ventura Port Dist. (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 574, 580-581, 145 Cal. Rptr. 665].

- Installing water pipes in a tract subdivision [Bakersfield Country Club v. Pacific Water Co. (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 528, 539, 13 Cal. Rptr. 573].

- Permitting occupancy of premises for the duration of the occupants' lives, when no other specific acts or services were required [Magee v. Magee (1917) 174 Cal. 276, 281, 162 P. 1023].

However, other cases have followed a rule, which has been called archaic and has been "soundly criticized" [Okun v. Morton (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 805, 820-821, 250 Cal. Rptr. 220], prohibiting specific enforcement when enforcement would entail protracted supervision or direction by the court and the exercise of special knowledge, skill, and judgment by the party performing the acts. Application of the rule generally has been limited to construction contracts and distribution or sales-agency agreements. Examples of contractual obligations held not to be specifically enforceable under this rule include the following:

- Sale of automobiles by a dealership [Thayer Plymouth Center, Inc. v. Chrysler Motors Corp. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 300, 303-305, 63 Cal. Rptr. 148].

- Operation of a rock quarry [Whipple Rd. Quarry Co. v. L.C. Smith Co. (1952) 114 Cal. App. 2d 214, 216, 249 P.2d 854].

- Sale of real property and construction of a staircase [Moklofsky v. Moklofsky (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 259, 262-263, 179 P.2d 628 ; but see Gale v. Seymour (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 727, 728, 205 P.2d 752 (decree required paving of parking lot; Moklofsky distinguished)].

- Sale of mining claims [Lind v. Baker (1941) 48 Cal. App. 2d 234, 247, 119 P.2d 806].

- Drilling for oil [Sheehan v. Vedder (1930) 108 Cal. App. 419, 427-428, 292 P. 175 ; but see Pub. Res. Code § 3301 (specific performance of agreement for cooperative development of oil and gas)].

- Sale of all eggs produced [Poultry Producers of S. Cal., Inc. v. Barlow (1922) 189 Cal. 278, 289-291, 208 P. 93 ; but see Poultry Producers of Cent. Cal., Inc. v. Murphy (1923) 64 Cal. App. 450, 454, 221 P. 962 (decree required signing of agreement under which defendant would sell and deliver all eggs produced; Barlow was distinguished because agreement was signed by all parties in Barlow but defendant had refused to sign in this case)].

- Construction and operation of a railroad [Pacific Elec. Ry. Co. v. Campbell-Johnston (1908) 153 Cal. 106, 113, 94 P. 623];

- Preparation of land for development of a citrus grove [Moore v. Tuohy (1904) 142 Cal. 342, 347-348, 75 P. 896].

- Opening and development of mining property [Stanton v. Singleton (1899) 126 Cal. 657, 665-667, 59 P. 146].

Chapter 528 SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND
C. Specific Situations

46-528 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 528.45

§ 528.45 Contracts for Personal Services

[1] Generally Denied Enforcement

The general rule is that contracts to render personal service and to employ another in personal service will not be specifically enforced [Civ. Code § 3390(1),(2); Lyon v. Goss (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 659, 670, 123 P.2d 11 (contract to perform unique personal sales services); Barndt v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 397, 404-405, 259 Cal. Rptr. 372 (contract for appointment to position of physician specialist in cardiology; see Herman v. County of Los Angeles (2002) 98 Cal. App. 4th 484, 488-489, 119 Cal. Rptr. 2d 691 (finding statute inapplicable to contract providing for transfer of county police officers to sheriff's department)], either directly by means of a decree directing the defendant to perform it, or indirectly by an injunction restraining him or her from violating it [Civ. Code § 3423(e); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5) (no injunction to prevent breach of personal services contracts; exceptions)]. This rule is followed especially when the relation between the parties to the contract is one of mutual confidence, and the contract stipulates for acts that require special knowledge, skill, or ability, or the exercise of judgment, discretion, integrity, and like personal qualities [Poultry Producers etc. v. Barlow (1922) 189 Cal. 278, 288, 208 P. 93 ; Coykendall v. Jackson (1936) 17 Cal. App. 2d 729, 731, 62 P.2d 746 (contract for entire output in which other party agreed to devote entire time to selling and distributing output); Barndt v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 397, 404-405, 259 Cal. Rptr. 372 (contract for appointment to position of physician specialist in cardiology); but see Civ. Code § 3423(e); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5) (exceptions, discussed § 528.45[2][c])].

Some courts have based the rule against specifically enforcing personal service contracts on the fact that it would be an invasion of one's statutory liberty to compel a person to work for or remain in the personal service of another, since it would place that person in a condition of involuntary servitude [see Barndt v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 397, 404, 259 Cal. Rptr. 372] . Another reason for the rule, according to some authorities, is that, in view of the peculiar personal relation that results from a contract of service, it would be inexpedient, from the standpoint of public policy, to attempt to enforce such a contract specifically. When one of the parties is to act as the confidential agent of the other, it is necessary that there should be entire harmony and a spirit of cooperation between the contracting parties [Barndt v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 397, 404, 259 Cal. Rptr. 372] . A third reason is that it is inconvenient, or impossible, for a court of justice to conduct and supervise the operations requisite for and incident to the execution of a decree for the specific performance of a contract involving the rendering of personal services [Poultry Producers etc. v. Barlow (1922) 189 Cal. 278, 288-289, 208 P. 93 ; Barndt v. County of Los Angeles (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 397, 404, 259 Cal. Rptr. 372] .

When a contract to render personal services, other than a contract of apprenticeship as provided in Lab. Code §§ 3070-3097, is specifically enforced, it may not be enforced against the employee beyond seven years from the commencement of service under the contract [Lab. Code § 2855]. Moreover, a valid contract to perform or render service of a special, unique, unusual, extraordinary, or intellectual character, which gives it peculiar value and the loss of which cannot be reasonably or adequately compensated in damages in an action at law, cannot be enforced against the person contracting to render the service for a term exceeding seven years from the commencement of service under it [Lab. Code § 2855; see De Haviland v. Warner Bros. Pictures (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 225, 230-232, 153 P.2d 983 (seven years as calendar years and not years of actual service)]. This seven-year limitation cannot be waived by the employee [De Haviland v. Warner Bros. Pictures (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 225, 237, 153 P.2d 983] .

An employee cannot invoke the seven-year protection of Lab. Code § 2855(a) with respect to a contract to render personal service in the production of phonorecords [see 17 U.S.C. § 101] unless he or she has first given written notice to the employer in accordance with Code Civ. Proc. § 1020, specifying that the employee from and after a future date will no longer render service under the contract by reason of Lab. Code § 2855(a) [Lab. Code § 2855(b)].

[2] Exceptions

[a] Substantially Performed

A court may, however, order specific performance of an obligation to perform personal services when the services have been fully or substantially performed [Stone v. Burke (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 748, 756, 244 P.2d 51] .

[b] Inadequate Remedy at Law

In specific performance actions involving contracts for personal services, the services usually were bargained for and rendered as the consideration for the promise sued upon. When enforcement of the promise is sought, specific performance may be denied because the services rendered are adequately compensable in money. However, when a plaintiff shows the inadequacy of the legal remedy in that a money payment would not adequately compensate for the services, relief has been granted. In particular, an agreement in consideration of personal services is subject to specific performance if the services are of such a peculiar, extraordinary, or exceptional character that it is impossible to estimate their value by any pecuniary standard or to adequately compensate for them in money [Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 670, 676-677, 68 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

In most of the cases granting quasi-specific performance of a contract to devise property, the services rendered as consideration for the agreement are menial or otherwise commonplace, but they are peculiar because, typically, by reason of a family or other close relationship between the contracting parties, only the promisee can perform them [Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 670, 677, 68 Cal. Rptr. 210 (allegations that promisor wanted promisee daughter-in-law to live in San Francisco so promisor could be near his grandson after promisor's son died as alleging rendition of peculiar, extraordinary, or exceptional services); De Hermosillo v. Morales (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 819, 829, 304 P.2d 854] .

However, services in a menial or other wage-compensable sense are not a sine qua non of the consideration which will support a contract to bequeath or devise property. Quasi-specific performance of a contract has been granted when the promisee-plaintiff had agreed to and did live near the promisor and furnish her with companionship without performing services as such; and when the promisor, although in his last illness, desired none of the usual services of a nurse or housekeeper and received from the promisee only comfort, care, and consolation [Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261

Cal. App. 2d 670, 675-677, 68 Cal. Rptr. 210 ; see also § 528.46].

[c] Injunctive Relief When Services Have Special Value

A contract to render personal services generally cannot be specifically enforced [Civ. Code § 3390(1),(2)], nor can the breach of such a contract usually be enjoined except in cases falling within the exception provided for by Civ. Code § 3423 and Code Civ. Proc. § 526 [Long Beach Drug Co. v. United Drug Co. (1939) 13 Cal. 2d 158, 168, 89 P.2d 386 (plaintiff as not entitled to prohibitory injunction for breach of contract under which plaintiff was defendant's exclusive agent for sale of drug products)]. Those exceptions provide that an injunction may be granted to prevent breach of a personal service contract if the promised services are of such a special, unique, unusual, extraordinary, or intellectual character, that they have peculiar value, the loss of which cannot be reasonably or adequately compensated in damages in an action at law, and the contract calls for compensation within the financial parameters set forth in the statute [Civ. Code § 3423(e); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5)]. The issue of enjoining personal service contracts frequently arises in situations involving athletes and star performers [see MCA Records, Inc. v. Newton-John (1979) 90 Cal. App. 3d 18, 22, 153 Cal. Rptr. 153 ; Foxx v. Williams (1966) 244 Cal. App. 2d 223, 235, 52 Cal. Rptr. 896] . An injunction which forbids an artist to accept new employment may be a harsh and powerful remedy. The monetary limitations in Civ. Code § 3423(e) and Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5) are intended to serve as a counterweigh in balancing the equities. Conversely, the rationale underlying the enforcement of negative covenants in contracts involving the unique personal services of star performers and athletes is that the employer has contracted for the exclusive right to display the "star" for a given period. That no other entrepreneur may display that star during the period contracted for is part of the right for which the employer has bargained and has compensated the star [Lemat Corp. v. Barry (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 671, 678, 80 Cal. Rptr. 240] . However, fairness precludes enforcement of a contract clause similar to those employed by the record companies in response to Foxx and MCA, which gives the company the right, at any time during the contract, to agree to pay the artist the statutory minimum compensation. The practice was a way for a company to hedge its bets on the success of its artists; the company would only exercise its option if the artist was making a substantial sum of money for the company. A performer will not be enjoined from rendering personal services to another unless the performer is guaranteed the requisite minimum annual compensation under that contract, and a clause giving the employer the option to pay that amount does not satisfy the minimum compensation requirement for injunctive relief [Motown Record Corp. v. Brockert (1984) 160 Cal. App. 3d 123, 135-140, 207 Cal. Rptr. 574] .

An employer that is prohibited by Civ. Code § 3423(e) from enjoining a performer from performing for another company cannot enjoin the other company from hiring the employee/performer [Beverly Glen Music, Inc. v. Warner Communications, Inc. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 1142, 1145, 224 Cal. Rptr. 260] .

[3] Compensation Criteria

[a] Contract Formed Before 1994

If the personal services contract was entered into or or before December 31, 1993, and provides for minimum compensation at the rate of $6,000 per annum, its breach may be enjoined [Civ. Code § 3423(e)(1); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5)(A)].

[b] Contracts Formed in or After 1994

If the personal service contract was entered into on or after January 1, 1994, one of two alternative compensation thresholds must be met in order for breach of the personal services contract to be enjoined [Civ. Code § 3423(e)(2)(A),(B); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5)(B)(i),(ii)].

The contract must provide for minimum compensation at the rate of $9,000 per annum for the first year of the contract, $12,000 per annum for the second year of the contract, and $15,000 per annum for the third to seventh years, inclusive, of the contract [Civ. Code § 3423(e)(2)(A)(i); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5)(B)(i)(I)].

In addition, after the third year of the contract, there must actually have been paid for the services through and including the contract year during which the injunctive relief is sought, over and above the minimum $15,000 specified in subclauses (i) and (I), the $15,000 per annum during the fourth and fifth years of the contract, the $30,000 per annum during the sixth and seventh years of the contract. As a condition to petitioning for an injunction, amounts payable under this clause may be paid at any time prior to seeking injunctive relief [Civ. Code § 3423(e)(2)(A)(ii); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5)(B)(i)(II)]. For a chart showing how quickly these sums accumulate, and for discussion of other statutory parameters to these minimum compensation criteria, see Comments to § 528.133.

§ 528.46 Agreement to Make Disposition of Property by Will

A contract to make a will or devise or other instrument, or not to revoke a will or devise or other instrument, or to die intestate, if made after 2000, can be established only by one of the following [Prob. Code § 21700(a)]:

- Provisions of a will or other instrument stating the material provisions of the contract.

- An expressed reference in a will or other instrument to a contract and extrinsic evidence proving the terms of the contract.

- A writing signed by the decedent evidencing the contract.

- Clear and convincing evidence of an agreement between the decedent and the claimant or a promise by the decedent to the claimant that is enforceable in equity.

- Clear and convincing evidence of an agreement between the decedent and another person for the benefit of the claimant or a promise by the decedent to another person for the benefit of the claimant that is enforceable in equity.

A contract to make a will or devise, or not to revoke a will or devise, or to die intestate, if made in 1985-2000 [see Prob. Code § 21700(c)] can be established only by one of the following [former Prob. Code § 150(a) (repealed eff. Jan. 1. 2001)]:

- Provisions of a will stating material provisions of the contract;

- An express reference in a will to a contract and extrinsic evidence proving the terms of the contract; or

- A writing signed by the decedent evidencing the contract.

Although former Prob. Code § 150(a), cited above, expressly provided that a contract to make a will or devise could be established "only" by the three methods listed above, courts have repeatedly held that the language of that section, notwithstanding use of the word "only," did not preclude application of equitable estoppel in appropriate cases [Estate of Housley v. Haywood (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 353-354, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628 ; Estate of Brenzikofer v. Schwartz (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 401 ; Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 897, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588] . In Juran v. Epstein, the leading case on this issue under former Prob. Code § 150(a), the court held that an oral promise not to revoke a will could be enforced under the doctrine of equitable estoppel [Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 897, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588] . The court found that while generally former Prob. Code § 150(a) provided the sole means under which a party could establish an agreement not to revoke a will, in enacting that section the Legislature did not express an intent to abolish the use of the equitable estoppel doctrine in appropriate circumstances [Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 897, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588] . Subsequently, in Estate of Housley v. Haywood, it was held that equitable estoppel principles were available under former Prob. Code § 150 (or its predecessor, former Civ. Code § 1624(6)) to enforce a testator's alleged oral agreement to leave all of his property to his son if the son cared for him during the testator's lifetime [Estate of Housley v. Haywood (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 358, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628 (date of alleged agreement as before or after 1984 was not ascertainable)]. The court, following Juran v. Epstein [Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 897, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588] , stated that nothing in the express language of former Prob. Code § 150 distinguished between cases in which the promisor was alive and cases in which the promisor was dead [Estate of Housley v. Haywood (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 354-355, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628] . For further discussion, see § 528.131.

A party may be estopped from asserting the statute of limitations as a defense to an untimely action to enforce an oral promise to make a will. In a case in which the one-year statute of limitations set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2 applied because the promisor had made an inter vivos transfer of property covered by the contract, the court followed the reasoning of Juran v. Epstein, discussed above [Battuello v. Battuello (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 842, 847-848, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548 ; see Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 897, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588] . It held that while Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(b) (at the time designated as Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(a)(2)), clearly shows that the Legislature intended that the one-year statute of limitations could not be "tolled" or "extended," the statute says nothing about equitable estoppel. The court concluded that in the absence of any such language or legislative history suggesting that was what the Legislature intended, the doctrine of equitable estoppel still applies [Battuello v. Battuello (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 842, 847-848, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548 (appellant alleged sufficient facts to come within doctrine of equitable estoppel to application of statute of limitations)].

A contract to make a will or devise, or not to revoke a will or devise, or to die intestate, if made on or before December 31, 1984, can be established under the law applicable to the contract on December 31, 1984 [Prob. Code § 21700(c)]. The statute applicable to such contracts is former Civ. Code § 1624(6). Under the applicable laws a contract to make a particular disposition of an individual's property may be breached by not making a will disposing of the property as provided for in the agreement, or by revoking a will providing for the specified disposition, contrary to anagreement not to revoke [Goldstein v. Hoffman (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 803, 812, 29 Cal. Rptr. 334] . One of the remedies available to the promisee if the contract is breached is an action for equitable relief in the form of quasi-specific performance [§ 528.92[14]], in which equity gives relief equivalent to specific performance by impressing a constructive trust on the property which the decedent promised to leave to the promisee [Goldstein v. Hoffman (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 803, 812, 29 Cal. Rptr. 334 ; see Brown v. Superior Court (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 559, 563-564, 212 P.2d 878] .

The execution of a joint will or mutual wills does not create a presumptions of a contract not to revoke the will or wills [Prob. Code § 21700(b)]. In fact, joint and mutual wills are now disfavored [see California Wills and Trusts, Ch. 60, Joint and Mutual Wills (Matthew Bender)]. Nevertheless, the following discussion of the older law is retained for use with older agreements. When two persons had made a joint will pursuant to an oral agreement to leave their entire property to the survivor and on the death of the survivor to named beneficiaries, and one person performed the agreement by failing to revoke the will prior to his death, and the other party, having received the benefit of the agreement, then executed a new will in disregard of the agreed-on disposition, equity has granted quasi-specific performance of the oral agreement and imposed a constructive trust on the property in favor of the original beneficiaries. This remedy presumes that a constructive fraud has been practiced on the first decedent by the second decedent to the detriment of the original beneficiaries, and it hypothesizes that the newly designated beneficiaries of the surviving testator will be unjustly enriched if the oral agreement between the decedents is not enforced. Under such circumstances, the newly designated beneficiaries become derivatively estopped to plead the statutory requirement of a written agreement to make a will [Stahmer v. Schley (1979) 96 Cal. App. 3d 200, 203, 157 Cal. Rptr. 756 ; see Notten v. Mensing (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 469, 474, 45 P.2d 198] .

Before 1985 there did not need to be an express agreement not to revoke mutual wills in order to enforce a contractual obligation to leave property to designated persons at death. Every contract contains an implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing that neither party will do anything which injures the right of the other to receive the benefits of the agreement. When the parties contract to make a particular disposition of property by will, the agreement necessarily includes a promise not to breach the contract by revoking the will and failing to dispose of the property as agreed. Although a will may be revoked under Prob. Code § 23 and the parties contract with knowledge of this fact, the obligation to make the agreed disposition may still be enforced [Brown v. Superior Court (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 559, 564-565, 212 P.2d 878 ; Goldstein v. Hoffman (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 803, 812, 29 Cal. Rptr. 334] .

The right to enforce a contract to make a particular disposition of property on death is not restricted to the promisee. When two parties agree to make mutual wills, each promising to dispose of his or her property to the other, or if the other is dead, to certain third persons, and one of the parties performs by leaving his or her property to the other, the intended devisees and legatees are entitled to enforce their rights as beneficiaries under the agreement. The contracting party who survived is estopped from making any other or different disposition of the property, and his or her obligation under the agreement becomes irrevocable and enforceable against him or her when he or she has availed himself or herself of the provisions of decedent's will in his or her favor and accepts substantial benefits thereunder [Brown v. Superior Court (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 559, 564, 212 P.2d 878] .

§ 528.49 Contract for Sale of Corporate Stock

Specific performance of a contract for the sale of corporate stock ordinarily will not be granted because damages are an adequate remedy, especially when the stocks are publicly held [Treasurer v. Commercial Coal Mining Co. (1863) 23 Cal. 390 ; see Fleishman v. Woods (1901) 135 Cal. 256, 260-261, 67 P. 276 (contract to transfer water stock was specifically enforceable since enforcement was essential to adequate relief for respondent)]. However, a court will decree specific performance of such a contract when the stock has a peculiar value and cannot be compensated for by damages [Korabek v. Weaver Aircraft Corp. (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 32 (specific performance of contract to transfer corporate stock granted since stock was of undeterminable value and many conditions were attached before stock was marketed); see Kaneko v. Okuda (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 217, 233-234, 15 Cal. Rptr. 792 (specific performance of stock option as proper since reasonable value was tendered, shares had peculiar value, could not be acquired on open market, and were acquired as part of business program, and damages were inadequate remedy)].

For example, a court will order the specific enforcement of a contract to sell shares of stock in a closely held corporation which are not traded in the market and which have no established market value [Capaldi v. Levy (1969) 1 Cal. App. 3d 274, 281, 81 Cal. Rptr. 629] . § 528.55 Deed of Trust

An action may be brought for specific performance of the provisions of a deed of trust, authorizing the beneficiary to take possession of the property after default and to collect the rents, issues, and profits, applying them toward payment of the indebtedness [Santacroce Bros. v. Edgewater-Santa Clara, Inc. (1966) 242 Cal. App. 2d 584, 585-587, 51 Cal. Rptr. 613 (appointment of receiver to enter on, and take possession of, property for purpose of collecting rents is proper); see Title Guar. & Trust Co. v. Monson (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 621, 624-625, 81 P.2d 944 (enforcement of provisions of deed of trust as governed by terms of trust deed and hence not by general rules regarding specific performance)]. Moreover, every express executory agreement in writing whereby the contracting party sufficiently indicates an intention to make particular property a security for a debt or other obligation creates an equitable lien on the property so indicated, which is enforceable against the property in the hands of the original contractor or his or her purchasers with notice or encumbrancers with notice. Thus a promise to give a mortgage or a trust deed on particular property as security for a debt will be specifically enforced by granting an equitable mortgage [*Coast Bank v. Minderhout (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 311, 313-314, 38 Cal. Rptr. 505, 392 P.2d 265 , disapproved on other grounds, Wellenkamp v. Bank of America (1978) 21 Cal. 3d 943, 953, 148 Cal. § 528.70 Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of an action for specific performance [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10].

The governing statutes do not expressly specify whether or not an action for specific performance can be a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86, 88]. Specific performance is an equitable remedy [see § 528.11[1]], and since it is not included in the list of cases in equity that are limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)], an action for specific performance will be an unlimited civil case unless it comes within one of the categories of cases in equity that are specifically designated as limited civil cases. These categories are the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)]:

- Cases to try title to personal property when the amount involved is not more than $25,000.
- Cases when equity is pleaded as a defensive matter in any case that is otherwise a limited civil case.
- Cases to vacate a judgment or order of the court obtained in a limited civil case through extrinsic fraud, mistake, inadvertence, or excusable neglect.

Additionally, the small claims division has jurisdiction to grant equitable relief in the form of specific performance, in lieu of or in addition to money damages, in any action brought for the recovery of money within the jurisdiction of that division [Code Civ. Proc. § 116.220(a)(1)-(4) (small claims division has jurisdiction of claims up to $5,000, with some exceptions)].

Because of the distribution of jurisdiction for equitable actions, a plaintiff should be very careful to meet all pleading requirements. Failure to do so might mean that the court in which the action was brought lacks jurisdiction of the action [see Reardon v. Melbourne (1942) 53 Cal. App. 2d 257, 259-260, 127 P.2d 618 (court did not acquire jurisdiction over action when plaintiff added allegations of nonexistent specific performance cause of action to complaint to recover real estate broker's performance)].

The proper county for trial of an action for specific performance of a contract to sell personal property is the county in which defendant's obligation is to be performed, in which the contract in fact was entered into, or in which the defendant resides at the commencement of the action [Code Civ. Proc. § 395(a)].

When the action is for specific performance of a contract to sell real property, the proper county for trial is the county in which the real property, or some part of it, is located [Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1); Grocers' Fruit Growing Union v. Kern County Land Co. (1907) 150 Cal. 466, 473, 89 P. 120 (action for specific performance of contract for conveyance of land as governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1) since it seeks determination of right or interest in real property)]. However, an action in which the relief sought is personal, and title to, or possession of, real property is only incidentally involved, is transitory and not local. Thus, actions by a vendor for the purchase price of land or for specific performance of a vendee's contract to purchase land are governed by Code Civ. Proc. § 395, not Code Civ. Proc. § 392(a)(1) [Marcacci v. Continental Baking Co. (1962) 202 Cal. App. 2d 224, 226-227, 20 Cal. Rptr. 567] .

§ 528.72 Statute of Limitations

The period of limitation for an action for specific performance is four years for a written contract [Code Civ. Proc. § 337(1); see Estate of Brenzikofer v. Schwartz (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1468-1469, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 401 ; Ludwicki v. Guerin (1961) 57 Cal. 2d 127, 133, 17 Cal. Rptr. 823, 367 P.2d 415 (period of limitation for quasi-specific performance of written contract to make will as four years)] and two years for an oral contract [Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1)]. The period of limitation for an action for specific performance of an installment contract accrues when the last installment is due and not until that time [Tahoe Pines Co. v. Newman (1922) 59 Cal. App. 186, 190, 210 P. 445] .

A contract for the sale of land cannot be taken out of the statute of limitations governing contract actions by converting the action into one for the recovery of real property through the application of the doctrine of equitable conversion. Thus the five-year period of limitation provided by Code Civ. Proc. § 318 for the recovery of real property can not be made applicable by the theory that under a contract for sale, the purchaser is deemed to be the equitable owner of the property and the seller is considered the owner of the purchase price [Reiner v. Hermann (1947) 79 Cal. App. 2d 543, 546, 180 P.2d 385 (promise to convey real property if promisee married promisor)].

An action for quasi-specific performance of a written agreement is barred if not brought within the four-year period specified by Code Civ. Proc. § 337(1) or 343 (period of limitation for actions not otherwise provided for) [Ludwicki v. Guerin (1961) 57 Cal. 2d 127, 133, 17 Cal. Rptr. 823, 367 P.2d 415] . When the action is based on an oral contract to will property, the action is not governed by the two-year period of limitation set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 339, but instead may be brought within four years when the property involved is impressed with the qualities of a resulting trust in the hands of the defendants [Potter v. Bland (1955) 136 Cal. App. 2d 125, 134, 288 P.2d 569] . Since a contract to make a will is breached only if it has not been complied with at the time of the promisor's death, the cause of action for the breach does not accrue or the period of limitation commence until the promisor dies [Estate of Brenzikofer v. Schwartz (1996) 49 Cal. App. 4th 1461, 1468-1469, 57 Cal. Rptr. 2d 401 ; Ludwicki v. Guerin (1961) 57 Cal. 2d 127, 130-131, 17 Cal. Rptr. 823, 367 P.2d 415] .

A complaint may allege inconsistent theories of a cause of action in the alternative. Thus a plaintiff may seek specific performance of an agreement or, in the alternative, damages for the breach of that agreement. The court may award damages if the plaintiff is not entitled to specific performance [Foreman & Clark Corp. v. Fallon (1971) 3 Cal. 3d 875, 883, 92 Cal. Rptr. 162, 479 P.2d 362 ; Brandolino v. Lindsay (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 319, 324, 75 Cal. Rptr. 56 ; see Lynn v. Knob Hill Improvement Co. (1917) 177 Cal. 56, 61, 169 P. 1009 (complaint alleging causes of action for specific performance and for recovery of purchase money as defective since plaintiff did not separate two inconsistent causes of action)].

However, the remedies of damages for breach of contract and specific performance are inconsistent so that a plaintiff cannot receive both. Thus, when one is chosen, the other is considered to be abandoned if a change of remedy would injure the other party [Buckmaster v. Bertram (1921) 186 Cal. 673, 678, 200 P. 610] . Counsel's oral acknowledgment, at a hearing on a motion for summary judgment, that plaintiff is no longer seeking specific performance of the contract, but only damages, has been held sufficient withdrawal of that claim to support the court's order dismissing the cause of action for specific performance [Tri-Continent Internat. Corp. v. Paris Savings & Loan Assn. (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 1354, 1358-1359, 16 Cal. Rptr. 2d 508] .

On the other hand, if a plaintiff is mistaken and seeks a remedy to which he or she was never entitled, this does not prevent the plaintiff from subsequently availing himself or herself of a remedy that he or she is entitled to under the facts of the case if the defendant is placed in no worse position because of the unsuccessful prosecution of the first action [McGibbon v. Schmidt (1916) 172 Cal. 70, 75, 155 P. 460 (when nonsuit entered in action for recovery of purchase money, plaintiff is permitted to bring subsequent action for specific performance)]. If a plaintiff recovers under one theory, however, he or she cannot recover under the other. A party cannot receive money damages, and at the same time enforce the contract [see Boshes v. Miller (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 332, 337, 259 P.2d 447] .

There is no right to a jury trial in an equitable action for specific performance. In specific performance actions involving both legal and equitable issues, however, there is a right to jury trial on the legal issues [Gregory v. Hamilton (1978) 77 Cal. App. 3d 213, 219-220, 142 Cal. Rptr.563] . Therefore, on amendment of the pleadings in an action for specific performance to include a legal cause of action for damages, the plaintiff is entitled to a jury trial on the issue of damages [Farnsworth v. Hunter (1938) 11 Cal. 2d 27, 31-32, 77 P.2d 840] . Additionally, when the complaint pleads a purely equitable cause of action such as one for specific performance and the defendant cross complains for legal relief such as damages, the parties are entitled to a jury trial on the legal issue [Connell v. Bowes (1942) 19 Cal. 2d 870, 871-872, 123 P.2d 456] .

[1] Adequate Consideration

Allegation that property is reasonably worth certain sum is averment of fact; when sum appears to be no greater than price agreed on for sale, plaintiff is fully complying with obligation to show by averment of appropriate facts that consideration for contract sought to be specifically enforced is adequate. W.G. Reese Co. v. House (1912) 162 Cal. 740, 745, 124 P. 442

Allegation of making of contract, setting it forth in haec verba and allegation that consideration named therein was, at time of contract's making, fair and reasonable value of property as sufficient allegation that contract was just and reasonable and consideration was adequate. Friedrich v. Roland (1950) 95 Cal. App. 2d 543, 547-48, 213 P.2d 423

Allegation that property is reasonably worth certain sum was averment of fact and when such sum appears to be no greater than price agreed on for sale, plaintiff was fully complying with obligation to aver appropriate facts showing consideration was adequate. Friedrich v. Roland (1950) 95 Cal. App. 2d 543, 547-548, 213 P.2d 423

Averment that consideration named in agreement is fair and reasonable value of property was sufficient allegation of adequacy of consideration. Boro v. Ruzich (1943) 58 Cal. App. 2d 535, 540, 137 P.2d 51

When complaint sets out contract in haec verba and further states that purchase price of property stipulated in contract was fair and reasonable value of property at time contract was made, allegation that purchase price was fair and reasonable taken in connection with terms of contract is sufficient allegation that contract is fair and equitable. Minaker v. Sunset Bldg. & Real Estate Co. (1914) 25 Cal. App. 771, 773, 145 P. 542

[2] Adequate Remedy at Law

Injunction is not granted when monetary damages afford adequate relief and are not extremely difficult to ascertain. Thayer Plymouth Center, Inc. v. Chrysler Motors Corp. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 300, 306, 63 Cal. Rptr. 148

Contract for sale and delivery of garbage by defendants to plaintiff for feeding plaintiff's hogs was not specifically enforceable since plaintiff had adequate remedy at law in damages because substitute garbage was available at higher price. LeMoyne Ranch v. Agajanian (1932) 121 Cal. App. 423, 425, 8 P.2d 1055

[3] Conditions Precedent

Delivery of transfer disclosure statement is nonwaivable condition precedent to buyer's duty of performance in sale covered by Civ. Code § 1102 et seq., and buyer of covered real estate has no duty to perform unless seller complies with disclosure requirements and buyer chooses not to exercise right of rescission; therefore, seller's failure to deliver required disclosure statement precluded action against buyer for specific performance and breach of contract. Realmuto v. Gagnard (2003) 110 Cal. App. 4th 193, 205, 1 Cal. Rptr. 3d 569

If approval would have been given if sought, failure to seek approval excused condition of approval and provided basis for specific performance. Jacobs v. Tenneco West, Inc. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1413, 1417-1418, 231 Cal. Rptr. 351

If approval would not have been given if sought, failure to seek approval was excused, and party whose performance was conditioned on approval was not required to perform; this excuse for nonperformance was affirmative defense, burden of proof of which was on party claiming it. Jacobs v. Tenneco West, Inc. (1986) 186 Cal. App. 3d 1413, 1418-1419, 231 Cal. Rptr. 351

When buyer expects to produce funds for purchase through loan, buyer is required to establish that prospective lender has ability to supply funds and is legally bound by contract to do so. C. Robert Nattress & Associates v. CIDCO (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 55, 65, 229 Cal. Rptr. 33

To establish ability to pay for property, buyer is not required to prove lender legally bound to lend; sufficient to find that buyer commanded adequate resources. Henry v. Sharma (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 665, 670-672, 201 Cal. Rptr. 478

Condition of approval and implied covenant of good faith and fair dealing creates duty on part of party whose performance is conditioned on approval to submit contract to party's board of directors for approval, and duty on part of board to confer and decide whether to approve contract. Moreland Development Co. v. Gladstone Holmes, Inc. (1982) 135 Cal. App. 3d 973, 977-978, 186 Cal. Rptr. 6 ; Jacobs v. Freeman (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 177, 190, 163 Cal. Rptr. 680

Agreement that is subject to approval of board of directors of one party is not illusory; approval is condition precedent to party's duty to perform, not to formation of contract. Jacobs v. Freeman (1980) 104 Cal. App. 3d 177, 187, 189-190, 163 Cal. Rptr. 680

Deposit of $450 in escrow by buyers accompanied by demand that $700 which was amount of rent received by seller for lease of land be credited to buyers was insufficient performance on buyers' part to warrant specific performance when agreement required deposit of $1150 into escrow, since buyers' right of possession to land and claim to rents were contingent on payment of specified sum. Evarts v. Johnston (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 6, 9, 206 P.2d 633

Trial court's conclusion that plaintiff purchaser was not entitled to specific performance was erroneous when plaintiff's failure to pay installment under contract was not unlawful, grossly negligent, or intentional. Williams Plumbing Co. v. Sinsley (1975) 53 Cal. App. 3d 1027, 1034, 126 Cal. Rptr. 345

Finding that buyer seeking specific performance of contract has ability to purchase is supported by proof that buyer commanded resources on which he or she could obtain requisite credit. D-K Inv. Corp. v. Sutter (1971) 19 Cal. App. 3d 537, 546, 96 Cal. Rptr. 830

[4] Employment Contracts

Lab. Code § 2855, prohibiting enforcement of employment contracts extending over more than seven years, is applicable to term of employment of minors under contracts specified in former Civ. Code § 36 (now Fam. Code § 6750 et seq.) (contracts for necessities, artistic or creative services, or professional sports services). Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. v. Brodel (1948) 31 Cal. 2d 766, 775, 192 P.2d 949

[5] Forfeiture

Doctrine of relief from forfeiture under Civ. Code § 3275 was unavailable to allow optionee to recover price increment under new and more costly contract it was forced to negotiate because of its own failure to exercise option within time called for. Bekins Moving & Storage Co. v. Prudential Ins. Co. (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 245, 253-254, 221 Cal. Rptr. 738

Plaintiff was entitled to specific performance of contract to convey real property on ground of relief from forfeiture when his performance was delayed although time was declared to be of the essence, since otherwise defendants would receive advantages of plaintiff's performance without suffering damage because of delay whereas plaintiff would lose all consideration for work done and costs paid by him. Selby v. Battley (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 659, 664, 309 P.2d 120

[6] Injunctive Relief

[a] When Injunction Proper

Issuance of permanent injunction preventing health insurer from interfering in internal management of health maintenance organization that was originally set up and funded by insurer was proper, despite conflict between original article of incorporation and amended bylaws eliminating corporate members; article was unlawful as applied. Health Maintenance Network v. Blue Cross of So. California (1988) 202 Cal. App. 3d 1043, 249 Cal. Rptr. 220

Injunction was proper to restrain owner from utilizing policy preventing more than four persons from occupying three-bedroom apartment in publicly assisted complex; Civ. Code § 3423 was not applicable since regulatory agreement provided that city could compel owner's performance by mandamus or other legal or equitable proceeding. Zakaria v. Lincoln Property Co. (1986) 185 Cal. App. 3d 500, 510, 229 Cal. Rptr. 669

Injunctive relief aws proper to enjoin defendants from permitting trees on their property to exceed certain height and to overhang plaintiff's property in violation of contract aimed at protecting plaintiff's property from shading when purpose of contract was to prevent very damage that ensued from breach, damage would recur each year, and damage would increase as trees grew. Smith v. Mendonsa (1952) 108 Cal. App. 2d 540, 544, 238 P.2d 1039

Injunction was proper remedy to prevent revocation of agency coupled with interest, whether or not contract could be specifically enforced. Lane Mortgage Co. v. Crenshaw (1928) 93 Cal. App. 411, 431, 269 P. 672

Defendant who was salesman for plaintiffs and who quit their employ, went into same business, and used plaintiffs' lists to solicit customers for himself was properly enjoined from further use of customer lists. Gordon v. Wasserman

(1957) 153 Cal. App. 2d 328, 328-329, 314 P.2d 759

Enjoining continuing trespass of defendants who were occupying and using gas station in manner prohibited by contract under which defendants were to sell plaintiff's products exclusively on property leased from plaintiff was proper. General Petroleum Corp. of Cal. v. Loughead (1933) 218 Cal. 554, 555, 24 P.2d 457

Injunction to restrain defendants from selling products and displaying advertising other than plaintiff's under lease which stated that plaintiff should have exclusive right to use all space for advertising purposes and to keep or store gasoline and plaintiff gave defendants right to use leased premises for sole purpose of reselling plaintiff's products together with one other brand was proper. Associated Oil Co. v. Myers (1933) 217 Cal. 297, 302-303, 18 P.2d 668

Agreement to transfer stock of peculiar value was specifically enforceable so that breach may also be enjoined. Steinmeyer v. Warner Cons. Corp. (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 515, 519, 116 Cal. Rptr. 57

[b] When Injunction Not Proper

Preliminary injunction to prevent termination of exclusive distributorship contract was properly denied when effect of injunction would require manufacturer to entrust marketing of its products in wide area to distributor with whom relationship of confidence and cooperation had been rendered impossible due to pendency of lawsuit. Thayer Plymouth Center, Inc. v. Chrysler Motors Corp. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 300, 304, 63 Cal. Rptr. 148

Permanent injunction prohibiting manufacturer from breaching contract with distributor was not proper when effect of injunction would be to specifically enforce dealership agreement requiring manufacturer to sell its products to dealer over indefinite term inasmuch as decree would impose on court impossible task of supervising continuous performance by parties. Thayer Plymouth Center, Inc. v. Chrysler Motors Corp. (1967) 255 Cal. App. 2d 300, 304, 63 Cal. Rptr. 148

[c] Personal Service Contracts

Rationale underlying enforcement of negative covenants in contracts involving unique personal services of star performers and athletes is that employer has contracted for exclusive right to display "star" for given period. Lemat Corp. v. Barry (1969) 275 Cal. App. 2d 671, 678, 80 Cal. Rptr. 240

[d] Terms of Contract

All terms and conditions of proposed agreement were not required to be set forth in contract in order for injunction to be granted since usual and reasonable conditions of agreement are, in contemplation of parties, part of contract. Nadell & Co. v. Grasso (1959) 175 Cal. App. 2d 420, 425, 346 P.2d 505

[7] Just and Reasonable Contract

Contract for sale of realty as not just and reasonable was to defendant vendors within meaning of Civ. Code § 3390 when contract provided nothing but plaintiff's good faith and business judgment to insure that they would receive anything for conveying their land. Handy v. Gordon (1967) 65 Cal. 2d 578, 582, 55 Cal. Rptr. 769, 422 P.2d 329

Allegation that contract is just and reasonable without allegations as to actual value of land and other circumstances showing that it was just and reasonable or that consideration was adequate is insufficient. Salisbury v. Yawger (1921)

184 Cal. 783, 795, 195 P. 682

Purchase of stock at value placed on it by both parties to be paid for by canceling seller's present debts and by advancing part of price to meet expected obligations of seller which she otherwise could not pay was fair and reasonable. Gilfallan v. Gilfallan (1914) 168 Cal. 23, 27, 141 P. 623

Requirement that specific performance can be granted only if contract is for adequate consideration and is just and reasonable is sufficiently satisfied for purpose of stating cause of action when complaint alleges contract price, that it is reasonable market value, and that contract, as to defendant, is just and reasonable. Burrow v. Timmsen (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 283, 290, 35 Cal. Rptr. 668

Mere allegation that agreement is just and reasonable as not precluding examination of agreement's terms as pleaded and allegation is permitted to be overcome if agreement itself, as matter of law, is unjust or unreasonable. Burrow v. Timmsen (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 283, 290, 35 Cal. Rptr. 668

Agreement pursuant to which plaintiff company had option to repurchase inventory of equipment at cost less 10 percent annual depreciation was unjust and unreasonable. Beatty Safway Scaffold v. Skrable (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 650, 655-656, 4 Cal. Rptr. 543

[8] Option Contracts

Doctrine of substantial performance was not applicable to extend term of option so as to allow exercise after expiration of stated term. Bekins Moving & Storage Co. v. Prudential Ins. Co. (1985) 176 Cal. App. 3d 245, 251-253, 221 Cal. Rptr. 738

When optionee had to pay rent for two years while obtaining judgment for specific performance from optionor-landlord, optionee was entitled to recover rent from date he should have had possession. Erich v. Granoff (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 920, 930-931, 167 Cal. Rptr. 538

Exercise of option within time specified by contract was sufficient to bind optionee so that specific performance could be granted. Smith v. Bangham (1909) 156 Cal. 359, 363, 104 P. 689

Option contract was fair when optionor received $10 for privilege of selling stock within two years with automatic extensions for successive periods of same duration, optionor was not overreached and thereby induced to sell, and he consciously and knowingly agreed to sell shares. Glascock v. Sukumlyn (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 587, 591, 281 P.2d 90

[9] Partnership Agreements

One remedy for wrongful repudiation of partnership or joint venture agreement under which partner or joint venturer converted assets of partnership or joint venture to own use and benefit was action for specific performance of partnership or joint venture agreement including remedy of judicial dissolution and accounting, and, if necessary, imposition of trust on partnership or joint venture property. Gherman v. Colburn (1977) 72 Cal. App. 3d 544, 564-565, 140 Cal. Rptr. 330

[10] Part Performance Avoiding Statute of Frauds

Mere rendition of services is usually not such part performance of verbal agreement as to relieve contract from operation of statute of frauds, but when services are of such peculiar character that it is impossible to estimate value by pecuniary standard and plaintiff, after performing services, could not be restored to situation he or she was in prior to rendering services, part performance as sufficient to remove oral contract from operation of statute of frauds. Walker v. Calloway (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 675, 678, 222 P.2d 455

Contracts that violate statute of frauds are specifically enforceable when there has been part performance by party seeking relief. Johnson v. Servaes (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 392, 398, 26 Cal. Rptr. 733 (action for specific performance of oral agreement to cancel note and release deed of trust)

[11] Penalties

Agreement to waive payment in default of making improvements under contract was not penalty or invalid provision for liquidated damages when specified payment was stipulation as to enhancement in value which would accrue to property if contemplated improvements were made within specified time. Stevens v. Los Angeles Dock & Terminal Co. (1912) 20 Cal. App. 743, 748, 130 P. 197

[12] Personal Service Contracts

Lease requiring that lessees keep gas station open 24 hours a day and conduct all business under lease in efficient manner did not require performance of personal services so that specific performance of lease is proper. Pike v. Hayden (1950) 97 Cal. App. 2d 606, 613, 218 P.2d 578

Rights of employees under Lab. Code § 2855, which states that contract to render personal service may not be enforced against employee beyond seven years from commencement of service, as created in public interest and was not waivable by employee. De Haviland v. Warner Bros. Pictures (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 225, 234-235, 236, 153 P.2d 983

Extensions of plaintiff actress's contract due to her suspensions for refusing roles and for illness was not binding plaintiff on beyond seven calendar years specified in Lab. Code § 2855 as maximum period personal services contract can be specifically enforced. De Haviland v. Warner Bros. Pictures (1944) 67 Cal. App. 2d 225, 234, 153 P.2d 983

Contract of joint enterprise under which defendant was to furnish necessary money and plaintiff was to contribute his services in purchase of properties and in their upkeep, maintenance, and repair as specifically enforceable although plaintiff was required to contribute services since contract was not one of employment. Harms v. Reed (1946) 73 Cal. App. 2d 853, 861-862, 167 P.2d 747

[13] Procuring Act of Third Party

Agreement for sale of real property containing clause under which deferred portion of purchase price had to be secured by mortgage executed by buyers and wives, but wives did not execute contract, was specifically enforceable although clause itself would have been unenforceable since mortgage would have been due three years after delivery of deed, that time had elapsed, and court decree did not require giving of mortgage. Wheat v. Thomas (1930) 209 Cal. 306, 316, 287 P. 102

When father made agreement with daughter that, if daughter conveyed property to mother, mother and father would convey part of property to daughter's husband on daughter's death, compelling mother to carry out agreement was not proper, but since she accepted property, she had to comply with terms on which benefits were bestowed and had to convey part of the property to daughter's husband or convey all of property to daughter's estate. Simons v. Bedell (1898) 122 Cal. 341, 348, 55 P. 3

Agreement to convey real property later found to be community property was not specifically enforceable when agreement was made by husband and wife did not sign it. Waldeck v. Hedden (1928) 89 Cal. App. 485, 488, 265 P. 340

[14] Quasi-Specific Performance

[a] In General

Probate decree distributing property free of any restrictions was not conclusive of rights of promisee or intended beneficiary of contract to make particular disposition of property by will. Brown v. Superior Court (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 559, 565, 212 P.2d 878

Plaintiff could not maintain action for quasi-specific performance--seeking to impose constructive trust on proceeds of home sale--when he had adequate legal remedy in the form of a claim for damages for breach of written agreement to bequeath property. Wilkison v. Wiederkehr (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 822, 832-833, 124 Cal. Rptr. 2d 631

Allegation in original complaint that plaintiff had filed claim that was disallowed against estate for money for services did not preclude plaintiff from alleging in amended complaint that services were of exceptional character and could not be estimated in money. De Hermosillo v. Morales (1956) 146 Cal. App. 2d 819, 830-831, 304 P.2d 854

[a] Joint Wills

Evidence showing that couple had consistently pooled their assets during 38-year marriage and wife had made substantial contributions to accumulation established that reciprocal will agreement was supported by adequate consideration. Estate of Cates (1971) 16 Cal. App. 3d 1, 14, 93 Cal. Rptr. 696

[15] Relief Granted by Court

When specific performance is ordered, decree is required to order performance as nearly as possible in accordance with terms of contract. Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 220, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7 ; Ellison v. Ventura Port Dist. (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 574, 583, 145 Cal. Rptr. 665

Court of equity is not required to either enforce contract completely or not at all, so that when substantial justice may result by adjusting equities between parties, court is permitted to grant relief; if plaintiff does not complain that relief granted is less than agreement called for, defendant as not permitted to complain that obligation required is not what it could have been. Ellison v. Ventura Port Dist. (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 574, 583, 145 Cal. Rptr. 665

[16] Sale of Corporate Stock

Specific performance of contract to sell corporate stock was proper when complaint alleged that corporation had only forty acres of oil land, no oil had been discovered thereon and its value was speculative and uncertain, stock had no actual or market value and its value could be ascertained only on discovery of oil, stock was owned by only a few people, its value was fluctuating and dependent on oil market conditions, and plaintiff could not obtain same amount of stock elsewhere. Gilfallan v. Gilfallan (1914) 168 Cal. 23, 26, 141 P. 623

Specific performance decree was not inequitable because it requires purchaser to pay reasonable value of corporate stock without concomitantly directing sellers to perform conditions precedent when record established sellers had performed each and every condition of contract and had been excused from performing any acts after certain date because of purchaser's breach. Capaldi v. Levy (1961) 1 Cal. App. 3d 274, 283, 81 Cal. Rptr. 629

Contract for sale of shares of bowling alley corporation was specifically enforceable since shares had peculiar value to plaintiff in that they could not have been purchased on open market, could be acquired only from individual defendants, were acquired by plaintiff as part of his business program, and therefore defendants' failure to deliver could not have been compensated by money. Kaneko v. Okuda (1961) 195 Cal. App. 2d 217, 233-234, 15 Cal. Rptr. 792

[17] Separation Agreements

Separation agreements other than those relating to alimony and support are enforceable by specific performance unless provisions violate public policy or specific performance is unwarranted by facts and circumstances, such as when assent of third person not party to agreement is required. Casady v. Modern Metal Spinning & Mfg. Co. (1961) 188 Cal. App. 2d 728, 731, 10 Cal. Rptr. 790

[18] Time of Essence

Trial court's conclusion that buyer was entitled to specific performance of time-of-essence contract for sale of real property was erroneous when buyers had not deposited balance of purchase price or provided notice of loan approval within escrow period required in contract. Fogarty v. Saathoff (1982) 128 Cal. App. 3d 780, 786-787, 180 Cal. Rptr. 484

Vendee otherwise entitled to specific performance of installment land sale contract in which time declared to be of essence does not forfeit right to that remedy because of willful failure to make installment payments when due after there has been substantial part performance of contract. MacFadden v. Walker (1971) 5 Cal. 3d 809, 811, 97 Cal. Rptr. 537, 488 P.2d 1353

When contract required plaintiff to deposit balance due within 90 days of date of writing, failure to do so precluded action for specific performance although defendant's title to property was clouded since plaintiff was not induced by defendant's word or act not to deposit balance within time specified. Pitt v. Mallalieu (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 77, 81-82, 192 P.2d 24

[19] Unavailability of Specific Performance

When redevelopment agency had no power to levy assessment or development fee on subsequent developer in order to refund option deposit of developer who engaged in unsuccessful negotiations with agency, specific performance of provision requiring assessment and refund was properly denied. Price Dev. Co. v. Redevelopment Agency (9th Cir. 1988) 852 F.2d 1123, 1126-1127 (applying California law in diversity action)

[20] Uncertain Contract

Oral agreement by spouses to leave their property to surviving spouse on condition that survivor leave combined estate to their children is sufficiently certain to sustain equitable relief. Crail v. Blakely (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 744, 753-754, 106 Cal. Rptr. 187, 505 P.2d 1027

Contract for sale of unbuilt home on lot in unapproved subdivision was sufficiently definite for enforcement because terms of agreement were ascertainable from properly admitted extrinsic evidence of developer's tract map, site plans, standard home-feature sheets, floor plans, and elevation plans. Blackburn v. Charnley (2004) 117 Cal. App. 4th 758, 766-767, 11 Cal. Rptr. 3d 885

Contract is not uncertain when it defines with sufficient legal certainty types of improvements contemplated by parties, includes objective method to determine improvement costs, and provides for use of objective third parties (qualified subcontractors) to determine costs. Larwin-Southern Cal., Inc. v. JGB Inv. Co. (1980) 101 Cal. App. 3d 626, 643-644, 162 Cal. Rptr. 52

Terms of escrow and written agreement for sale of corporate stock are specifically enforceable when contract provided that exact nature and extent of security for promissory note was to be determined and record disclosed that specific parcel of real property had been proposed as security at about time agreement was executed and land had been inspected and approved by sellers. Capaldi v. Levy (1969) 81 Cal. Rptr. 629

Use of word "contiguous" in contract renders contract uncertain since word, as used in contract, placed sellers of property in position where they could be deprived of all their choice land without adequate protection that they would be compensated by buyer for remainder. Lawrence v. Shutt (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 749, 761, 75 Cal. Rptr. 533

[21] Waiver

Seller's waiver of right to specific performance in liquidated damages clause did not prevent buyers from compelling specific performance of land sale agreement as long as buyers discharged their contractual duties. Bleecher v. Conte (1981) 29 Cal. 3d 345, 354, 173 Cal. Rptr. 278, 626 P.2d 1051

Contracting party may waive conditions placed in contract solely for that party's benefit. Sabo v. Fasano (1984) 154 Cal. App. 3d 502, 505, 508-509, 201 Cal. Rptr. 270

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

46-528 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 528.110

§ 528.110 Plaintiff's Checklist

A. Determine the potential defendants in an action for specific performance, including the following:

1. All persons having a claim in the subject matter of the contract.

Whenever an obligation regarding real property is specifically enforceable against a particular person, it may be enforced against any other person claiming under that party by a title created subsequently to the obligation, except a purchaser or encumbrancer in good faith and for value and except that any person may exonerate himself or herself by conveying all his or her estate to the person entitled to enforce the obligation [Civ. Code § 3395; see Caras v. Parker (1955) 131 Cal. App. 2d 141, 142, 280 P.2d 226 (specific performance against vendor's grantee as authorized by Civ. Code § 3395 when grantee has actual or constructive notice of prior rights of buyer)].

2. All beneficiaries or heirs at law of deceased person who breached contract [see §§ 528.131 and 528.132].

3. Beneficiaries under joint and mutual wills when surviving party made new will leaving the property to others [see § 528.132].

4. Administrator or executor of deceased person who breached contract [see comments to § 528.132].

5. Assignee of contract from breaching party.

6. Assignor of contract to breaching party.

7. Seller, buyer, or manufacturer of unique chattel.

8. Seller or buyer of real property.

9. Escrow officer.

10. Corporate owner of real property.

11. Any combination of the foregoing.

B. Ascertain the following facts relating to the potential cause of action:

1. Oral or written nature of contract.

2. Plaintiff's interest in obligation, e.g., party to interest, third party beneficiary, assignee, or other interest.

3. Date and place instrument was executed.

4. Subject matter of instrument.

The attorney should note that an action for specific performance cannot usually be brought to enforce (1) an obligation to render personal service, (2) an obligation to employ another in personal service, (3) an agreement to perform an act which the party has no power lawfully to perform when required to do so, (4) an agreement to procure the act or consent of the wife of the contracting party, or of any other third person, or (5) an agreement the terms of which are not sufficiently certain to make the precise act which is to be done clearly ascertainable [Civ. Code § 3390]. For further discussion of these agreements, see § 528.40 et seq.

5. Terms of instrument.

The terms of a contract must be express and definite in order to grant specific performance. If there is any doubt as to the terms, specific performance will be denied [see Civ. Code § 3390(5)].

6. Any consideration received by plaintiff from defendant pursuant to the contract.

7. Any consideration given by plaintiff to defendant pursuant to the contract.

Specific performance cannot be enforced against a party to the contract if he or she has not received an adequate consideration [Civ. Code § 3391(1)]. For further discussion, see § 528.15.

8. Intention of contracting parties.

A written contract may be revised to express the intentions of the parties when through fraud or mutual mistake of the parties or mistake of one party, which the other at the time knew or suspected, the contract does not truly express the parties' intentions [Civ. Code § 3399]. As revised, the contract may be specifically enforced [Civ. Code § 3402]. For discussion of reformation, see Ch. 488, Reformation of Instruments .

9. Plaintiff's conduct in securing other party's assent to contract.

Specific performance cannot be enforced against a party to a contract when the party's assent was obtained by the misrepresentation, concealment, circumvention, or unfair practices of any party to whom performance would become due under the contract, or by any promise of such party which has not been substantially fulfilled [Civ. Code § 3391(3)], or when the party's assent was given under the influence of mistake, misapprehension, or surprise. When the contract provides for compensation in case of mistake, however, a mistake within the scope of the provision may be compensated for, and the contract specifically enforced in other respects, if specific performance is proper [Civ. Code § 3391(4)]. For further discussion, see § 528.17 and § 528.19.

10. Plaintiff's criticisms, if any, of the conduct of the contracting party who refuses to perform.

11. Plaintiff's notification, if any, to defendant of his failure to perform.

12. Nature and extent of plaintiff's performance and excuses for nonperformance, if any, pursuant to the contract.

Specific peformance cannot be enforced in favor of a party who has not fully and fairly performed all conditions precedent on his or her part to the obligation of the other party, except when the failure to perform is only partial, and either entirely immaterial or capable of being fully compensated, in which case specific performance may be compelled on full compensation being made for the default [Civ. Code § 3392]. For further discussion, see § 528.21.

13. Nature and extent of defendant's performance, if any, pursuant to the contract.

14. Unilateral rescission, if any, of contract by plaintiff.

. If the contract has been effectively rescinded, it cannot be specifically enforced.

a. If plaintiff attempted to rescind, did he or she notify the defendant of the rescission?

b. If plaintiff attempted to unilaterally rescind, did he or she restore, or offer to restore, the consideration received from the defendant?

c. Did defendant return, or offer to return, consideration received from plaintiff after notification of plaintiff's unilateral rescission?

To effectively rescind a contract, a party must promptly, on discovery of the facts entitling him or her to rescind, restore to the other party everything of value which he or she received from that party under the contract, or offer to restore such items on the condition that the other party do likewise, unless the latter is unable or positively refuses to do so [Civ. Code § 1691(b)].

For further discussion of rescission, see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution .

15. Unilateral rescission, if any, of contract by defendant.

On what ground was rescission attempted and what did each of the parties do with respect to the rescission?

16. Nature of defendant's breach or anticipatory repudiation of the contract.

17. Damages, if any, incurred by plaintiff as result of defendant's breach.

C. Obtain relevant documents, including the following:

1. Contract sought to be enforced, if written.

2. Papers related to contract, if any.

3. Amendments to, or modifications of, contract or related papers.

4. Any written communications between the parties relating to the contract or subject matter of the contract.

5. Outstanding leases of real property, if relevant.

6. If a party is incorporated, a copy of its articles of incorporation and bylaws, and any corporate documents relating to the contract or its subject matter.

D. Make the following determinations:

1. Whether a valid and binding contract exists.

2. Whether the contract is subject to specific performance.

Contracts which are specifically enforceable include the following:

a. Contract for sale of real property.

b. Cooperative marketing association contracts.

c. Contract for sale of unique goods.

d. Contract for sale of corporate stock.

e. Agreement to arbitrate controversy.

f. Collective bargaining agreements.

g. Satisfaction of accord.

h. Escrow agreement.

i. Contracts to convey patent rights.

j. Deeds of trust.

k. Agreement not to revoke will.

l. Agreement to make specific provisions in will.

For further discussion of these contracts, see § 528.40 et seq.

3. Whether or not the contract terms are sufficiently definite to be specifically enforced [see Civ. Code § 3390(5)].

4. Whether or not the contract is fair and reasonable as to the defendant [Civ. Code § 3391(2)].

5. Whether or not the defendant received adequate consideration for the contract [Civ. Code § 3391(1)].

6. If the remedy at law is sufficient.

It is presumed that the breach of an agreement to transfer real property is not adequately compensable by money [Civ. Code § 3387]. Breach of a contract for personal property can be adequately compensated at law unless the property is unique [Wehen v. Lundgaard (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 610, 613, 107 P.2d 491] .

7. If plaintiff has adequately performed all his or her conditions precedent to the contract and, if not, if his, or her failure was caused by the defendant or excused for some other reason [see Civ. Code § 1511].

8. If the contract is oral, whether or not any factors negative the defense of the statute of frauds.

For discussion of the statute of frauds, see Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds .

E. Consider possible counts and causes of action, such as the following:

1. Specific performance of contract with or without damages [see §§ 528.130 -528.132].

2. Specific performance of contract and injunction [see § 528.133].

3. Injunction of breach of contract [see § 528.133].

4. Damages for breach of contract [see Ch. 140, Contracts].

5. Reformation of contract and specific performance, or damages for breach of contract as reformed [see Ch. 488, Reformation of Instruments].

6. Restitution based on rescission of contract [see Ch. 490, Rescission and Restitution].

7. Cancellation of contract [see Ch. 107, Cancellation of Instruments].

8. Declaration of rights of parties under the contract or of the validity of the contract [see Ch. 182, Declaratory Relief].

9. Action for damages for fraud [see Ch. 269, Fraud and Deceit].

PART IV. PROCEDURAL CHECKLIST

46-528 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 528.111

§ 528.111 Defendant's Checklist of Defenses

NOTE:
The following list sets forth some defenses that counsel for defendant may want to consider.

Affirmative defenses can be raised by answer or by demurrer when they appear on the face of the complaint or from matters of which the court must or may take judicial notice.

Possible affirmative defenses to an action for specific performance include the following:

1. Assent obtained by misrepresentation, concealment, circumvention, or unfair practices.

Specific performance cannot be enforced against a party to a contract if the party's assent was obtained by the misrepresentation, concealment, circumvention, or unfair practices of any party to whom performance would become due under the contract, or by any promise of such party which has not been substantially fulfilled [Civ. Code § 3391(3)].

For discussion of this statutory provision, see § 528.19.

2. Assent given under mistake, misapprehension, or surprise.

Specific performance cannot be enforced against a party to a contract if the party's assent was given under the influence of mistake, misapprehension, or surprise, except that when the contract provides for compensation in case of mistake, a mistake within the scope of that provision may be compensated for, and the contract specifically enforced in other respects, if such enforcement is proper [Civ. Code § 3391(4)].

For discussion and forms for use when assent was given by mistake, see Ch. 215, Duress, Menace, Fraud, Undue Influence, and Mistake .

3. Contract for personal services.

Neither an obligation to render personal service [Civ. Code § 3390(1)] nor an obligation to employ another in personal service [Civ. Code § 3390(2)] can be specifically enforced.

For further discussion, see § 528.136.

For a discussion of when an injunction can be obtained for the breach of a contract for personal services that meets certain requirements, see § 528.92[6].

4. Contract for unlawful act.

An agreement to perform an act which the party does not have the power lawfully to perform when required to do so cannot be specifically enforced [Civ. Code § 3390(3)].

For a form of defense based on illegality, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

5. Impossibility.

Impossibility is a ground for denying specific performance [Anderson v. Neal Institutes Co. (1918) 37 Cal. App 174, 176, 173 P. 779] . If there are no means available for the accomplishment of the objects of the contract, the agreement cannot be specifically enforced [Dulin v. Pacific Wood & Coal Co. (1894) 103 Cal. 357, 364, 37 P. 207] .

For a form of defense based on impossibility, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

6. Contract to procure act of third person.

An agreement to procure the act or consent of the wife of the contracting party, or of any third person, cannot be enforced [Civ. Code § 3390(4)].

For a form of defense based on procuring the act of a third person, see § 528.134.

7. Seller's title in doubt.

An agreement for the sale of property cannot be specifically enforced in favor of a seller who cannot give the buyer a title free from reasonable doubt [Civ. Code § 3394]. This defense is generally used in situations involving the sale of real property. For discussion of contracts for the purchase and sale of real property, see Ch. 569, Vendor and Purchaser . For a form of defense based on doubtful title, see § 528.137.

8. Contract requires series of acts.

A contract that requires a succession of continuous acts necessitating protracted supervision and direction by the court with the exercise of special knowledge, skill, and judgment by the parties performing the acts will not be specifically enforced [Ellison v. Ventura Port Dist. (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 574, 580, 145 Cal. Rptr. 665] .

For further discussion, see § 528.44. For a form based on this defense, see § 528.135.

9. Statute of limitations.

The period of limitations for an action for specific performance is four years for a written contract [Code Civ. Proc. § 337(1)] and two years for an oral contract [Code Civ. Proc. § 339(1)]. Counsel should ascertain when the contract was executed to determine whether or not the period of limitations had run prior to the time the complaint was filed. If it has run, counsel should raise the defense by demurrer if the defect appears on the face of the complaint [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(e)]. If the defect does not appear on the face of the complaint, counsel may raise the defense by a motion for summary judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 437c] or by answer [Code Civ. Proc. § 430.30(b)].

For further discussion of the period of limitations in the context of specific performance, see § 528.72. For further discussion of the limitation of actions in general and a form of defense based on the statute of limitations, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions .

10. Laches.

The defense of laches may be raised when the plaintiff has delayed prosecuting the action, although the statute of limitations has not yet run. However, the defendant or some other person must be prejudiced by the delay, or the lapse of time must be such that prejudice may reasonably be supposed to have occurred if the defense is to be allowed [McGibbon v. Schmidt (1916) 172 Cal. 70, 74, 155 P. 460 ; Marsh v. Lott (1909) 156 Cal. 643, 647, 105 P. 968 ; see Jones v. H.F. Ahmanson & Co. (1969) 1 Cal. 3d 93, 120, 81 Cal. Rptr. 592, 460 P.2d 464] .

For discussion and a demurrer based on laches, see Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions .

[2] Use of Form

This complaint for specific performance is for use in an action in which plaintiff seeks to compel the defendant to perform a contract executed by both parties.

[3] Essential Allegations

The complaint alleges:

- The making of a written or oral contract that is sufficiently definite and certain in its terms to be enforced (Paragraph 3) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 430.10(g) (defendant as permitted to object by demurrer or answer on ground that one cannot ascertain from pleading whether contract is written or oral)].

- That the consideration was adequate and the contract just and reasonable as to defendant (Paragraph 4).

- That plaintiff has performed his or her side of the agreement (Paragraph 5).

- That any event that must happen before defendant's duty of performance accrues has occurred (Paragraph 6).

- That defendant has failed to perform his or her part of the contract (Paragraph 7).

- That plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law (Paragraph 8).

- That the defendant is estopped from relying on the statute of frauds if the contract was oral (Paragraph 9) [for discussion and allegations showing avoidance of the statute of frauds, see Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds].

These pleading requirements are discussed further in the remainder of this comment.

Since it is presumed that the breach of an agreement to transfer real property cannot be adequately relieved by pecuniary compensation [Civ. Code § 3387], Paragraph 8 is not necessary when this complaint is used to compel the specific performance of a contract to convey real property.

[4] Pleading Certainty of Contract

A contract cannot be specifically enforced if its terms are not certain [see Hennefer v. Butcher (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 492, 500-502, 227 Cal. Rptr. 318 ; Hastings v. Matlock (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 826, 838, 217 Cal. Rptr. 856] . Thus, the party pleading an ambiguous contract must set forth the meaning of the writing and the meaning attributed to the agreement must be one to which it is reasonably susceptible. When a pleaded agreement, because of the uncertainty of the language in which it is expressed, is susceptible to more than one construction as to its nature or as to the purpose intended by the parties to be attained by it, the construction of the party pleading it should be accepted, if the construction is reasonable when the pleading is attacked by a general demurrer [Connell v. Zaid (1969) 268 Cal. App. 2d 788, 794-795, 74 Cal. Rptr. 371 ; see Durkee v. Cota (1887) 74 Cal. 313, 315, 16 P. 5] .

[5] Pleading Just and Reasonable Contract and Adequacy of Consideration

A complaint does not state a cause of action for specific performance if it does not allege that the defendant has received adequate consideration and that the contract was just and reasonable as to the defendant [Young v. Matthew Turner Co. (1914) 168 Cal. 671, 675, 143 P. 1029 ; Rose v. Lawton (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 18, 19, 29 Cal. Rptr. 844 (plaintiffs as not entitled to judgment for specific performance even though taken by default when complaint did not allege adequate consideration and that contract was just and reasonable as to defendant)].

To allege merely that the contract was just and reasonable and that the consideration was fair and adequate is not sufficient; the complaint should also allege facts supporting the conclusion that the contract is fair and the consideration adequate [Lifton v. Harshman (1947) 80 Cal. App. 2d 422, 434-435, 182 P.2d 222 , disapproved on other grounds, Pao Ch'en Lee v. Gregoriou (1958) 50 Cal. 2d 502, 326 P.2d 135 ; W.G. Reese Co. v. House (1912) 162 Cal. 740, 745, 124 P. 442 (allegation that $2,400, mentioned in option, is, and at all times since agreement's execution was, fair and reasonable value of property as sufficient allegation of consideration's adequacy); Conway v. Moore (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 166, 173, 160 P.2d 865 (allegation that agreement between tenant and plaintiff buyers of property was that tenant was to occupy house for 19 months rent-free in consideration of $190 payment by her and attachment to complaint of contract between plaintiffs and property owners showing purchase price of $510 as sufficient to show that contracts were fair and reasonable and that consideration was adequate even though property was assessed at $1,500 and appraised at $2,500)]. An allegation of the ultimate fact that the consideration named in the contract was the fair and reasonable value of the property at the time of the agreement is a sufficient allegation of the adequacy of the consideration and of the fairness and reasonableness of the contract [Beverage v. Canton Placer Mining Co. (1955) 43 Cal. 2d 769, 778, 278 P.2d 694 ; Friedrich v. Roland (1950) 95 Cal. App. 2d 543, 547-548, 213 P.2d 423 (allegation of making of contract, setting it forth in haec verba, and allegation that consideration named in contract was, at time of agreement's making, fair and reasonable value of property as sufficient allegation that contract was just and reasonable and consideration was adequate)].

[6] Exceptions to Pleading Requirement

Fairness and adequacy of consideration do not need to be alleged when an agreed consideration has been accepted, since the acceptance itself constitutes a waiver of any claim of inadequacy [Beab, Inc. v. First W. Bank & Trust Co. (1962) 204 Cal. App. 2d 680, 685, 22 Cal. Rptr. 583 ; Conway v. Moore (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 166, 174, 160 P.2d 865] .

When the facts are sufficiently pleaded, there is no necessity of expressly alleging that the contract was supported by adequate consideration and is, as to the defendant, fair and just [Johnson v. Servaes (1962) 210 Cal. App. 2d 392, 399, 26 Cal. Rptr. 733 ; Conway v. Moore (1945) 70 Cal. App. 2d 166, 173, 160 P.2d 865] .

[7] Pleading Plaintiff's Performance

In order to state a cause of action for specific performance, plaintiff must allege his or her performance, offer of performance, or sufficient excuse for nonperformance of the contract terms and conditions to be performed on his or her part [Cockrill v. Boas (1931) 213 Cal. 490, 492, 2 P.2d 774 ; Reyburn v. Young (1936) 11 Cal. App. 2d 478, 479, 54 P.2d 86] . A general allegation that plaintiff has duly performed all conditions on his or her part is usually sufficient [Code Civ. Proc. § 457; Lynn v. Knob Hill Improvement Co. (1917) 177 Cal. 56, 60, 169 P. 1009 ; Gilfallan v. Gilfallan (1914) 168 Cal. 23, 32, 141 P. 623] . However, a general allegation of performance is insufficient to allege the performance of an expressed condition necessary to the enforcement of an option [Estes v. Hardesty (1944) 66 Cal. App. 2d 747, 749, 152 P.2d 772] . Moreover, when time is made of the essence of an agreement to pay money, an allegation that the promisor was at all times ready, willing, and able to make the payment is not the equivalent of an allegation of payment and thus is insufficient to allege performance of conditions precedent [Pitt v. Mallalieu (1948) 85 Cal. App. 2d 77, 84, 192 P.2d 24] .

[8] Excuse For Nonperformance

Although performance may be alleged generally, excuse for nonperformance must be pleaded specifically [Nelson v. Specialty Records, Inc. (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 126, 141, 89 Cal. Rptr. 540 (plaintiff intending to raise estoppel against defendant must plead facts on which estoppel was predicated); see Hobbs v. Davis (1914) 168 Cal. 556, 561, 143 P. 733 (complaint did not state cause of action when facts alleged as excuse for nonperformance are intended to show that defendants prevented plaintiff from performing but fail to show that plaintiff was unable to pay small amount of money due or that defendants prevented plaintiff from paying)]. Moreover, although an unqualified repudiation by the promisor may excuse tender or performance of conditions precedent before suit, a party is not excused, when seeking specific performance, from pleading and proving at trial that he or she is ready, able, and willing to perform the contractual conditions [Dotson v. International Alliance etc. Employes (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 362, 372, 210 P.2d 5 ; Buckmaster v. Bertram (1921) 186 Cal. 673, 678, 200 P. 610 (positive repudiation of sales contract by vendor excuses vendee from formal tender of price as condition precedent to specific performance action but does not obviate necessity of stating in complaint that he is ready, able, and willing to pay amount due); Ray Thomas, Inc., v. Cowan (1929) 99 Cal. App. 140, 146, 277 P. 1086 (when vendor has repudiated agreement to sell, vendee's allegation that vendee is ready, willing, and able to perform vendee's part of contract is sufficient pleading of performance)].

If a condition precedent imposed by the contract is an event which must happen before the defendant's duty of performance accrues, a specific allegation of the happening of the condition must be pleaded. For example, when the defendant's obligation or promise to pay money is conditional on his or her ability to pay or on the existence of a fund from which payment is to be made, the plaintiff must allege that the condition has been satisfied [Byrne v. Harvey (1962) 211 Cal. App. 2d 92, 112-113, 27 Cal. Rptr. 110 (quoting Witkin, California Procedure, vol. 2, Pleading, § 261 (2d ed. 1970))]. Similarly, when it is essential to the cause of action that the plaintiff should have actually requested that the defendant perform the contract, that request must be stated in the complaint [California Canneries Co. v. Great W. Lbr. Co. (1919) 44 Cal. App. 69, 71, 185 P. 1008 ; see Colm v. Francis (1916) 30 Cal. App. 742, 748-749, 159 P. 237 (complaint not subject to demurrer on ground that condition precedent to defendant's performance was not alleged since no condition precedent to that performance existed)].

[9] Pleading Inadequate Remedy at Law

A plaintiff seeking specific performance of a contract must allege facts showing the inadequacy of the legal remedy of damages. An allegation merely that the legal remedy is inadequate or that the breach cannot be adequately compensated by damages is insufficient because it is a conclusion of law; the plaintiff must also allege facts showing the inadequacy of the remedy at law [Wait v. Kern River Mining Etc. Co. (1909) 157 Cal. 16, 24, 106 P. 98 ; Korabek v. Weaver Aircraft Corp. (1944) 65 Cal. App. 2d 32, 40, 149 P.2d 876 ; see Gilfallan v. Gilfallan (1914) 168 Cal. 23, 25, 141 P. 623] .

Since it is presumed that the breach of an agreement to transfer real property cannot be adequately relieved by pecuniary compensation, an allegation of the inadequacy of the legal remedy is not required in an action for specific performance of a contract to transfer real property [Civ. Code § 3387].

[10] Avoiding Statute of Frauds

When the contract is oral and within the statute of frauds, the complaint also must allege that the defendant is estopped from relying on the statute of frauds [Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 670, 675, 68 Cal. Rptr. 210] . For discussion of and forms for use in avoiding the statute of frauds, see Ch. 530, Statute of Frauds .

[11] Action to Enforce Installment Agreements for Sale of Real Property

Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.10 provides that no person or legal entity may maintain an action in any court in California to enforce the terms of a real property agreement as defined in Civ. Code § 2985(a) or a conditional sales contract on a mobilehome subject to local property taxation and subject to Health & Safety Code § 18000 et seq. providing for a change in ownership of the real property or mobilehome subject to local property taxation until the agreement is duly recorded by the county recorder or the change in ownership statement required by Rev. & Tax. Code § 480 has been filed. This requirement is only applicable when the agreement that allegedly transferred ownership was entered into after January 1, 1986 (alternative Paragraphs 10) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1062.10; see Gov. Code § 27288 (contract must be acknowledged before recording)].

[12] Verification

Although verification of this complaint is not required [see Code Civ. Proc. § 128.7(a)], verification will require any answer to be verified in an unlimited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446]. Verification will also preclude a general denial in an unlimited civil case, and will preclude a general denial in a limited civil case when the action is a claim assigned to a third party for collection [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion see Ch. 26, Answers .

[13] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of an action for specific performance [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10].

The governing statutes do not expressly specify whether or not an action for specific performance can be a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86, 88]. Specific performance is an equitable remedy [see § 528.11[1]], and since is not included in the list of cases in equity that are limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)], an action for specific performance will be an unlimited civil case unless it comes within one of the categories of cases in equity that are specifically designated as limited civil cases. These categories are the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)]:

- Cases to try title to personal property when the amount involved is not more than $25,000.
- Cases when equity is pleaded as a defensive matter in any case that is otherwise a limited civil case.
- Cases to vacate a judgment or order of the court obtained in a limited civil case through extrinsic fraud, mistake, inadvertence, or excusable neglect.

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

[14] Decisions

[a] Adequate Remedy at Law

Specific performance was proper remedy in action to enforce contract to include plaintiff in screen credits of film when legal remedies available for damages from future exhibitions of film were too difficult to assess and overly speculative, and when exhibitions would constitute continuing breach of contract creating danger of numerous lawsuits. Tamarind Lithography Workshop, Inc. v. Sanders (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 571, 575, 193 Cal. Rptr. 409

[b] Principles Governing Relief

Availability of remedy of specific performance is premised on showing by plaintiff of inadequacy of legal remedy, underlying contract that is reasonable and supported by adequate consideration, existence of mutuality of remedies, sufficiently definite contractual terms, and substantial similarity of requested performance to that promised in contract. Tamarind Lithography Workshop, Inc. v. Sanders (1983) 143 Cal. App. 3d 571, 575, 193 Cal. Rptr. 409

[c] Relief Granted by Court

[i] In General

In action by former shareholder for specific performance of buy-sell agreement by which corporation conveyed shareholder all its rights to engage in stainless steel flatware import and sale business, plaintiff was entitled to accounting of profits made by defendant on business ordered conveyed to plaintiff, plus interest on those profits, during period injunction was stayed pending appeal. Palmco Corp. v. Superior Court (1993) 16 Cal. App. 4th 221, 224-226, 19 Cal. Rptr. 2d 682 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 916 (stay during pendency of appeal)

Specific performance of plaintiff's right under investment agreement to participate in future ventures held proper when agreement was clear that defendant handled day-to-day management and plaintiff's participation was only financial. Okun v. Morton (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 805, 820-821, 250 Cal. Rptr. 220

Appellate court may correct judgment containing obvious clerical error by modifying judgment; in specific performance action, when findings of fact set forth in statement of decision clearly show amount of purchase price payable and amount of and reasons for several offsets, mathematical error in judgment is clerical error. Hennefer v. Butcher (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 492, 506-508, 227 Cal. Rptr. 318

[ii] Attorney's Fees

Attorney's fees properly awarded to party granted specific performance of oral settlement agreement rescinding contract which included attorney's fee provision that did not limit attorney's fees to particular forms of action involving contract. Hastings v. Matlock (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 826, 840-842, 217 Cal. Rptr. 856

Award of attorney's fees reversed when person against whom specific performance decreed not party to any contract providing for attorney's fees. Glynn v. Marquette (1984) 152 Cal. App. 3d 277, 280-282, 199 Cal. Rptr. 306

[iii] Compensation for Delay

Purchaser entitled to compensation for carrying costs during period of delay and for costs of having to reobtain governmental approvals which expired during delay wrongfully caused by vendor; vendor who does not raise issue in trial court not entitled to offset for lost interest on purchase price; question of entitlement to offset is not pure question of law but as requiring equitable accounting that involves factual and legal issues. Hennefer v. Butcher (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 492, 499, 505-506, 227 Cal. Rptr. 318

Party awarded specific performance is also entitled to compensation for increased costs resulting from breaching party's delay; such compensation not limited by foreseeability but required to be reasonable and based on equitable principles. Bravo v. Buelow (1985) 168 Cal. App. 3d 208, 213-215, 214 Cal. Rptr. 65

[iv] When Specific Performance Is Denied

Defaulting purchaser who was denied specific performance of contract for sale of real property held entitled to restitution of reasonable value of services rendered by it which benefitted land owner, but not to enhanced value of property attributable to those services because that would amount to windfall. Lesny Development Co. v. Kendall (1985) 164 Cal. App. 3d 1010, 1022-1025, 210 Cal. Rptr. 890

[d] Right to Jury Trial

No right to jury trial in action for specific performance of oral settlement agreement rescinding contract. Hastings v. Matlock (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 826, 835-836, 217 Cal. Rptr. 856

[e] Uncertain Contract

Law favors carrying out parties' intentions through enforcement of contracts and disfavors holding them unenforceable for uncertainty; parole evidence is admissible to resolve ambiguity; required terms in contract of sale of real property are parties, price, terms of sale, and identity of property. Hennefer v. Butcher (1986) 182 Cal. App. 3d 492, 500-502, 227 Cal. Rptr. 318

Agreement certain enough to be specifically enforced when reasonable time to pay is implied by law; hardship to seller not established just because value of house had risen at time of specific performance decree against seller. Hastings v. Matlock (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 826, 838-840, 217 Cal. Rptr. 856

For discussion, see § 528.131[8].

[2] Use of Form

This complaint for quasi-specific performance of a contract to make a will is for use when plaintiff and a decedent entered into a contract by which decedent was to devise property to plaintiff in return for acts or services of the plaintiff. The action should be brought in a court of equity, not in a probate court [Ludwicki v. Guerin (1961) 57 Cal. 2d 127, 130, 17 Cal. Rptr. 823, 367 P.2d 415 ; Estate of Mullins (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 924, 928-932, 255 Cal. Rptr. 430] . If the agreement was made in 1985-2000, it will be subject to the statute of frauds requirements imposed by former Prob. Code § 150(a); see § 528.13[7]].

[3] Probate Court Jurisdiction

The probate court in which the administration of the estate is pending does not have jurisdiction to grant quasi-specific performance of an oral agreement to make a will, even if phrased as a petition for instructions pursuant to Prob. Code § 17200, when some of the property that is the subject of the promise is held by a trust [Estate of Mullins (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 924, 931-932, 255 Cal. Rptr. 430 ; cf. Stewart v. Towse (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 425, 430, 249 Cal. Rptr. 622 (when petitioner was both trustee and beneficiary of trust, all interested parties were before probate court, which had jurisdiction under Prob. Code §§ 17000, 17001, and could give instructions amounting to enforcement of oral promise regarding disposition of estate)]. Prob. Code §§ 82(b)(1) and 15003(a) make it clear that the probate court has no equitable jurisdiction under the 1986 enactments to impose constructive trusts. The probate court's jurisdiction under Prob. Code § 17200 is limited to matters concerning the internal affairs of the trust, while an action to impose a constructive trust to carry out an oral promise does not affect the internal affairs of the trust but is a contractual claim adverse to the beneficiaries of the trust [Estate of Mullins (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 924, 931, 255 Cal. Rptr. 430] . The action to impose the constructive trust must be brought as a civil action, separate from probate proceedings, in superior court [Estate of Mullins (1988) 206 Cal. App. 3d 924, 928, 931, 255 Cal. Rptr. 430] .

The superior court has jurisdiction of an action for specific performance [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10].

The governing statutes do not expressly specify whether or not an action for specific performance can be a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86, 88]. Specific performance is an equitable remedy [see § 528.11[1]], and since is not included in the list of cases in equity that are limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)], an action for specific performance will be an unlimited civil case unless it comes within one of the categories of cases in equity that are specifically designated as limited civil cases. These categories are the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)]:

- Cases to try title to personal property when the amount involved is not more than $25,000.
- Cases when equity is pleaded as a defensive matter in any case that is otherwise a limited civil case.
- Cases to vacate a judgment or order of the court obtained in a limited civil case through extrinsic fraud, mistake, inadvertence, or excusable neglect.

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

[4] Essential Allegations

The elements that must be pleaded in an action for quasi-specific performance of an agreement to make a will are the same as those necessary for specific performance of any contract [see Porporato v. Devincenzi(1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 670, 675, 68 Cal. Rptr. 210] . Thus, the plaintiff must allege the following:

- A contract sufficiently definite and certain in its terms to be enforced (Paragraph 3).

- That the contract was just and reasonable and was supported by adequate consideration (Paragraph 4).

- That the plaintiff has performed his or her side of the bargain (Paragraph 5).

- That the decedent promisor failed to perform his or her part (Paragraphs 6 and 7).

The plaintiff must also allege that his or her remedy at law is inadequate (Paragraph 8) and, if the contract was oral and would otherwise be banned by the statute of frauds, that the defendant is estopped from reliance on the statute of frauds because failure to enforce the agreement would result in either unconscionable injury to the plaintiff or unjust enrichment of the defendant (Paragraph 9).

Since the relief given is in the form of imposing a constructive trust on the property in the hands of the defendants, the plaintiff also must meet the requirements of alleging a constructive trust [see Ludwicki v. Guerin (1961) 57 Cal. 2d 127, 130, 17 Cal. Rptr. 823, 367 P.2d 415] . Consequently, the plaintiff must plead facts constituting the cause of action, such as breach of the promise to devise property (Paragraph 7) and specifically identifiable property (Paragraphs 3 and 6) [see Ehret v. Ichioka (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 637, 642, 55 Cal. Rptr. 869] .

[5] Parties

In an action for quasi-specific performance, since the action is against the distributee personally and not against the estate, the heirs, devisees, and legatees, neither the executor nor the administrator are necessary parties to the action [Estate of Hoffman (1968) 265 Cal. App. 2d 135, 142, 71 Cal. Rptr. 230 ; see Ludwicki v. Guerin (1961) 57 Cal. 2d 127, 130, 17 Cal. Rptr. 823, 367 P.2d 415] . All beneficiaries under a will are interested in the issues and subject of the action and can properly be joined, but they are not indispensable parties. A plaintiff may litigate his or her claim against the appearing beneficiaries alone and obtain a decree which binds them alone. Any absent beneficiaries, not being before the court, will not be bound by the judgment, whether favorable or unfavorable, and their property interests will not be affected [Bank of California v. Superior Court (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 516, 519, 524-525, 106 P.2d 879 (trial as proper even though summons served only on executor and residuary legatee)].

The executor may properly be made a party defendant for the purpose of restraining him or her from distributing the property without regard for plaintiff's interests [Ludwicki v. Guerin (1961) 57 Cal. 2d 127, 132, 17 Cal. Rptr. 823, 367 P.2d 415] .

[6] Claim Against Estate

The complaint for quasi-specific performance of an agreement to make a will does not need to show that, before its filing, the plaintiff presented a demand or claim for the property to the executor. Since the relief sought is equitable and plaintiff is not asserting a claim against the estate, the presentation of a claim is not a condition precedent to the maintenance of the action [Walker v. Calloway (1950) 99 Cal. App. 2d 675, 683, 222 P.2d 455] .

[7] Agreements Made In 1985-2000

Agreements to make a will or devise, or not to revoke a will or devise, or to die intestate, if made in the years 1985-2000, are governed by former Prob. Code § 150 (repealed Jan. 1, 2001) [Prob. Code § 21700(c) (validity of pre-2001 agreements determined under law in effect at time agreement was made)]. Under former Prob. Code § 150, a contract to make a will or devise, or not to revoke a will or devise, or to die intestate, if made after December 31, 1984, can be established only by one of the following:

- Provisions of a will stating material provisions of the contract;

- An express reference in a will to a contract and extrinsic evidence proving the terms of the contract; or

- A writing signed by the decedent evidencing the contract.

The language of former Prob. Code § 150, standing alone, would appear to preclude any enforcement of oral agreements not referred to in a will or in a writing. The courts, however, have held that while former Prob. Code § 150 generally provides the sole means under which a party can establish an agreement not to revoke a will, the Legislature, by enacting that section, did not express an intent to abolish the use of the equitable estoppel doctrine in appropriate circumstances [Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 897, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588] . Thus, equitable estoppel principles were available under former Prob. Code § 150 (or its predecessor, former Civ. Code § 1624(6)) to enforce a testator's alleged oral agreement to leave all of his property to his son if the son cared for him during the testator's lifetime [Estate of Housley v. Haywood (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 358, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628 (whether agreement was before or after Dec. 31, 1984, was not ascertainable)]. Equitable estoppel generally may apply to avoid the statutes of fraud and to make an oral agreement enforceable if (1) the promisee detrimentally relied on the agreement and would suffer an unconscionable injury if the oral agreement were not enforced, or (2) the promisor would receive unjust enrichment if allowed to retain the benefit of the promisee's performance without abiding by the promisor's obligations under the oral agreement [Estate of Housley v. Haywood (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 359, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628] . The language of optional Paragraph 9 of this form alleges detrimental reliance. It may be expected, however, that the availability of equitable estoppel will depend on the facts of each case.

A party also may be estopped from asserting the statute of limitations as a defense to an untimely action to enforce an oral promise to make awill. In a case in which the one-year statute of limitations set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2 applied because the promisor had made an inter vivos transfer of property covered by the contract, the court followed the reasoning discussed above [Battuello v. Battuello (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 842, 847-848, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548 ; see Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 897, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588] . It held that while Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(b) (at the time designated as Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(a)(2)), clearly shows that the Legislature intended that the one-year statute of limitations could not be "tolled" or "extended," the statute says nothing about equitable estoppel. The court concluded that in the absence of any such language or legislative history suggesting that was what the Legislature intended, the doctrine of equitable estoppel still applies [Battuello v. Battuello (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 842, 847-848, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548 (appellant alleged sufficient facts to come within doctrine of equitable estoppel to application of statute of limitations)].

[8] Agreements Made After 2000

Former Prob. Code § 150 was repealed in 2000 and replaced by Prob. Code § 21700, effective Jan. 1, 2001. Under Prob. Code § 21700, a contract to make a will or devise or other instrument, or not to revoke a will or devise or other instrument, or to die intestate, if made after 2000, can be established only by one of the following [Prob. Code § 21700(a)]:

- Provisions of a will or other instrument stating the material provisions of the contract.

- An expressed reference in a will or other instrument to a contract and extrinsic evidence proving the terms of the contract.

- A writing signed by the decedent evidencing the contract.

- Clear and convincing evidence of an agreement between the decedent and the claimant or a promise by the decedent to the claimant that is enforceable in equity.

- Clear and convincing evidence of an agreement between the decedent and another person for the benefit of the claimant or a promise by the decedent to another person for the benefit of the claimant that is enforceable in equity.

The first three methods are carried over from the predecessor section, former Prob. Code § 150. The last two methods are new. Legislative analysis indicates that these additions were intended at least in part to codify the equitable basis for establishing such a contract that previously had been recognized by case law [see Bill Analysis, Senate Judiciary Committee, AB 1491, 1999-2000 Regulsar Session, pp. 12-13 (March 28, 2000); Bill Analysis, Assembly Committee on Judiciary, AB 1491, 1999-2000 Regulsar Session, p. 4 (Jan. 11, 2000)]. However, evidence of the agreement must be "clear and convincing."

The execution of a joint will or mutual wills does not create a presumption of a contract not to revoke the will or wills [Prob. Code § 21700(b)].

[9] Lis Pendens

If the property sought to be reached is real property, or has been invested in real property, counsel should file a lis pendens to preclude the possibility of a third party purchaser or encumbrancer acquiring an interest from defendant which would be superior to plaintiff's [see Coppinger v. Superior Court (1982) 134 Cal. App. 3d 883, 891, 185 Cal. Rptr. 24 (action for constructive trust on real property as supporting filing of lis pendens)].

[10] State Statutes

Agreement that by its terms is not to be performed during promisor's lifetime required to be in writing. Civ. Code § 1624(e)

Party who gains thing by wrongful act is involuntary trustee of thing gained. Civ. Code § 2224

Promise to devise or bequeath property may be required to be in writing. Prob. Code § 21700(a)

[11] Decisions

[a] Agreements Made Before 1985

Party estopped from relying on statute of frauds (Code Civ. Proc. § 1624(6); now Code Civ. Proc. § 1624(e)) to invalidate oral agreement to dispose of property by will when unconscionable injury would result from denying enforcement after one party was induced to seriously change position in reliance on contract or when unjust enrichment would result if party receiving benefits of other's performance is allowed to invoke statute. Redke v. Silvertrust (1971) 6 Cal. 3d 94, 101, 98 Cal. Rptr. 293, 490 P.2d 805

When daughters sued step mother's estate and beneficiaries of step-mother's estate to impose constructive trust on property stepmother inherited from their father and had promised to leave to them, daughters were not engaged in contest within meaning of no contest clause in their father's will and could not be required to return to his estate distributions therefrom. Estate of Watson (1986) 177 Cal. App. 3d 569, 574-575, 223 Cal. Rptr. 14

Although promisee may have constructive trust imposed during promisor's lifetime if specific property is subject of promise to make will and promisor has no right to consume that property for maintenance and support or otherwise dispose of it during his or her lifetime, general promise was operative only was to property owned at date of death. Westbrook v. Superior Court (1986) 176 Cal. App. 3d 703, 711-715, 222 Cal. Rptr. 317

Promise was unenforceable when writing expressed only appreciation and intention to devise property to plaintiff, not actual promise to do so, and insufficient facts existed to estop application of statute of frauds; writing relating to claimed life estate created only agency and right to occupy rent-free during lifetime of principal. Lombardo v. Santa Monica Young Men's Christian Assn. (1985) 169 Cal. App. 3d 529, 537-542, 215 Cal. Rptr. 224

Even though case law contains two conflicting lines of authority on issue of inadequacy of legal remedy as condition precedent to equitable relief for breach of contract to make will, remedy at law is inadequate when action at law would merely mark time pending development of probate administration. Thompson v. Beskeen (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 292, 296, 35 Cal. Rptr. 676

[b] Agreements Made in 1985-2000

Doctrine of equitable estoppel precluded application of one-year statute of limitations set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2 to untimely action to enforce father's oral promise to make will leaving vineyard to son; while statute could not be "tolled" or "extended," it did not mention equitable estoppel and in absence of statutory language or legislative history to contrary, doctrine of equitable estoppel still applied. Battuello v. Battuello (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 842, 847-848, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548

Testator's alleged oral agreement to leave all of property to son if son cared for him during testator's lifetime was enforceable under equitable estoppel principles; following holding in Juran that use of equitable estoppel doctrine not abolished [see Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 897, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588] , court found that nothing in former Prob. Code § 150 distinguished between cases in which promisor was alive and cases in which promisor was dead. Estate of Housley v. Haywood (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 354-355, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628

Oral agreement between husband and wife not to revoke will was enforceable by stepdaughter under doctrine of equitable estoppel after wife (plaintiff's mother) died and stepfather (defendant) revoked original will; while former Prob. Code § 150(a) generally provided sole means under which party could establish agreement not to revoke will, Legislature did not intend to abolish use of equitable estoppel doctrine in appropriate circumstances. Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 897, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588

Prenuptual agreement to leave life estate in residence was not promise to devise or bequeath property so as to be governed by former Prob. Code § 150 when spouses contemplated that conveyance of life estate would be accomplished by modifying trust instrument; specific performance proper. Hall v. Hall (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 578, 583, 587-588, 271 Cal. Rptr. 773

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use by a plaintiff against beneficiaries of a decedent's will executed in violation of an agreement between plaintiff and decedent whereby decedent agreed to devise certain property to plaintiff in return for acts or services of the plaintiff, and decedent executed a will devising the property to plaintiff, but subsequently executed a second will revoking the previous will and devising the property to beneficiaries other than plaintiff. The complaint seeks to impose a constructive trust for plaintiff's benefit on the property [see Civ. Code § 2224]. The complaint is adapted from the facts in Thompson v. Beskeen (1963) 223 Cal. App. 2d 292, 35 Cal. Rptr. 676 .

[3] Essential Allegations

This complaint alleges the following:

- That plaintiff was the beneficiary under the decedent's first will (Paragraph 1).
- That defendant or defendants is or are the beneficiary or beneficiaries under decedent's subsequent will (Paragraph 2).
- That plaintiff and decedent entered into a contract under which decedent would make a will favorable to plaintiff and the contract's relevant terms, and did not in fact make such a will (Paragraph 4).
- That the contract was just, reasonable, and supported by adequate consideration (Paragraph 5).
- That plaintiff performed all of his or her obligations under the contract (Paragraph 6).
- That decedent subsequently executed a second will, revoking the first and devising his or her estate to a beneficiary or beneficiaries other than plaintiff (Paragraph 7).
- That plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law (Paragraph 8).

This complaint assumes that the first will executed by the decedent incorporated provisions contemplated by the agreement between the parties. Even if the agreement is oral, its existence may be established, in accordance with former Prob. Code § 150 (for agreements made during 1985-2000) or Prob. Code § 21700 (for agreements executed after 2000), by provisions of a will or other instrument stating the material provisions of the contract [see former Prob. Code § 150; Prob. Code § 21700(a); see also Prob. Code § 21700(c) (applicable law)]. For discussion regarding the general validity and proof of oral agreements to make or revoke a will, or to die intestate, see § 528.131[4], [7], and [8]. The form in § 528.131[1] also contains provisions that may be used when the existence of the agreement is to be established in some other manner.

[4] Jurisdiction

The superior court has jurisdiction of an action for specific performance [see Cal. Const. art. VI, § 10].

The governing statutes do not expressly specify whether or not an action for specific performance can be a limited civil case [see Code Civ. Proc. §§ 85, 86, 88]. Specific performance is an equitable remedy [see § 528.11[1]], and since is not included in the list of cases in equity that are limited civil cases [see Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)], an action for specific performance will be an unlimited civil case unless it comes within one of the categories of cases in equity that are specifically designated as limited civil cases. These categories are the following [Code Civ. Proc. § 86(b)]:

- Cases to try title to personal property when the amount involved is not more than $25,000.

- Cases when equity is pleaded as a defensive matter in any case that is otherwise a limited civil case.

- Cases to vacate a judgment or order of the court obtained in a limited civil case through extrinsic fraud, mistake, inadvertence, or excusable neglect.

In limited civil cases, the caption must identify the case as a limited civil case [Code Civ. Proc. § 422.30(b); Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(10)], and the first page of the paper must state whether or not the demand exceeds $10,000 [Gov. Code § 70613(b); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 2.111(9) (statement regarding amount of demand must appear "below the character of the action or proceeding")].

[2] Use of Form

This complaint is for use in obtaining a temporary restraining order, preliminary injunction, and permanent injunction to prevent the breach of a contract for personal services [Civ. Code § 3423(e); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5); see discussion in § 528.45[2][c] and § 528.45[3]].

[3] Essential Allegations

This complaint alleges:

- Plaintiff's capacity (Paragraph 1).
- Defendant's capacity (Paragraph 2).
- A contract between plaintiff and defendant, pursuant to which defendant was to perform special, unique, unusual, extraordinary, or intellectual services for plaintiff (Paragraph 3).
- The compensation plaintiff agreed to pay defendant, and that the compensation, and payments already made, exceeded the minimum prescribed by statute (Paragraph 4) [see Civ. Code § 3423(e)(2); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5)(B) and discussion in [4], below].
- If defendant has partially performed, his or her partial performance of the contract (Paragraph 5).
- That plaintiff has performed on his or her part all conditions precedent to the contract and is willing to continue performance of the contract (Paragraph 6).
- That defendant has contracted with a third party to render services substantially similar to those promised to plaintiff or that defendant has refused to perform the requisite services or that defendant has notified plaintiff that he or she will not continue to perform those services for plaintiff (Paragraph 7).
- If the contract is for personal service in the production of phonorecords and the seven-year period under Lab. Code § 2855 has passed, that defendant failed to give written notice as required by Lab. Code § 2855(b) and Code Civ. Proc. § 1020 that he or she would no longer render service after a certain date (Paragraph 8).
- If plaintiff has spent considerable time and money training defendant, that he or she has done so, and that plaintiff's financial stability is dependent on defendant's performance, and that plaintiff will suffer great and irreparable injury if defendant is not enjoined from performing his or her services for another party (Paragraph 9).
- That plaintiff has no adequate remedy at law (Paragraph 10).

[4] Calculating Required Compensation

In addition to the other statutory criteria, injunctive relief for breach of a personal services contract is available only if the minimum compensation requirements specified in Civ. Code § 3423(e)(2) and Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5)(B) have been met. The statutory minimum compensation requirements (applicable to contracts entered into on or after January 1, 1994) are listed in the following chart:

(1) Year of contract in which injunction is sought	(2) Minimum rate of compensation	(3) Aggregate minimum compensation required to be specified in contract through and including year in which injunction is sought	(4) Additional compensation that must actually be paid through and including contract year during which injunction is sought	(5) Total minimum compensation required for injunctive relief
1st	9,000	$ 9,000	_____	$ 9,000
2nd	12,000	21,000	_____	21,000
3rd	15,000	36,000	_____	36,000
4th	15,000	51,000	15,000	66,000
5th	15,000	66,000	15,000	81,000
6th	15,000	81,000	30,000	111,000
7th	15,000	96,000	30,000	126,000

A personal services contract that does not meet the foregoing criteria still can be specifically enforced if it meets the alternative criteria of Civ. Code § 3423(e)(2)(B) and Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5)(B)(ii), which provide that injunctive relief may be granted if the aggregate compensation actually received for the services provided under a contract that does not meet the criteria of Civ. Code § 3423(e)(2)(A) and Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5)(B)(i), is at least 10 times the applicable aggregate minimum amount specified in clauses Civ. Code § 3423(e)(2)(A)(i) and (ii) and Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5)(B)(i)(I) and (II) through and including the contract year during which the injunctive relief is sought. As a condition to petitioning for an injunction, amounts payable under these alternative minimums may be paid at any time prior to seeking injunctive relief [Civ. Code § 3423(e)(2)(B); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5)(B)(ii)].

Compensation paid in any contract year in excess of the minimums specified in Civ. Code § 3423(e)(2)(A) and (B) and Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5)(B)(i) and (ii) apply to reduce the compensation otherwise required to be paid under those provisions an any subsequent contract years [Civ. Code § 3423(e)(3); Code Civ. Proc. § 526(b)(5)(C)].

[5] Verification

Verification [Code Civ. Proc. § 446] is required if plaintiff seeks a temporary restraining order or a preliminary injunction on a complaint instead of on affidavit (or declaration under Code Civ. Proc. § 2015.5]) [see Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a)]. If relying on a verified complaint instead of affidavits (or declarations), counsel must plead evidentiary facts that would entitle plaintiff to the relief sought [see E.H. Renzel Co. v. Warehousemen's Union (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 369, 373, 106 P.2d 1 ; Finnie v. Town of Tiburon (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 1, 15, 244 Cal. Rptr. 581] . For discussion, a procedural checklist, and additional forms necessary in order to obtain a temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

Otherwise, verification is not required, but verification of the complaint requires the defendant to file a verified answer [Code Civ. Proc. §§ 92(b), 446] and precludes use of a general denial [Code Civ. Proc. § 431.30(d)]. For further discussion of the effect that verifying a complaint has on the answer, see Ch. 26, Answers .

[6] Certification re Notice

When a temporary restraining order is sought without notice to the opposite party, the applicant or the applicant's attorney must certify to the court under oath that either (1) within a reasonable time prior to the application he, she, or it informed the opposing party or the opposing party's attorney, if any, at what time and where the application would be made, (2) he or she in good faith attempted to so inform the opposing party and his or her attorney but was unable to do so, and specify the efforts made to contact them, or (3) for reasons specified he or she should not be required to so inform the opposing party or his or her attorney [Code Civ. Proc. § 527(a); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rules 3.1150 (procedure for obtaining TRO), 3.1203(a) (requiring notice of ex parte applications absent exceptional circumstances)]. For detailed discussion and additional forms for obtaining injunctive relief, see Ch. 303, Injunctions .

[7] Los Angeles County Practice

All applications in the Superior Court of Los Angeles County for the issuance of temporary restraining orders and preliminary injunctions are assigned to Writs and Receivers Department [see Los Angeles Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 2.5(i)].

The procedure that counsel must follow to obtain provisional injunctive relief in Los Angeles County Superior Court is specified in great detail by Los Angeles Co. Super. Ct. Rules, Rule 9.32. Counsel seeking such relief in Los Angeles County should pay close attention to those sections.

[8] State Statutes

Grounds for issuance of injunction. Civ. Code § 3422; Code Civ. Proc. § 526

and therefore injunctive relief is available. Leach v. Drummond Medical Group, Inc. (1983) 144 Cal. App. 3d 362, 369, 192 Cal. Rptr. 650

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Contract to Procure Act of Third Person [Civ. Code § 3390(4)]

AS A SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE, defendant alleges:

The contract between plaintiff and defendant is not subject to specific performance because it is an agreement to procure the act or consent of _____ [specify name of wife of one of the contracting parties or of a third party].

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of affirmative defense is for use by defendant in an answer to a complaint for specific performance of a contract when the contract calls for procuring the act or consent of the wife of a contracting party, or of any third person [Civ. Code § 3390(4)].

Although *Civ. Code § 3390(4)*specifically mentions the wife of the contracting party and does not make any provision for the husband of the contracting party, it appears that an action involving an agreement to procure the act or consent of a husband could also be defended on the ground that the husband was a third party.

§ 528.135 Affirmative Defense--Contract Requires Series of Acts

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Contract Requires Series of Acts

AS A SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE, defendant alleges:

The agreement entered into between plaintiff and defendant is not subject to specific performance because the contract requires a continuing series of acts that cannot be consummated in one transaction so that performance of the contract would require protracted supervision and direction by the court and the exercise of special knowledge, skill, and judgment by the parties.

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of affirmative defense is for use by a defendant in an answer to a complaint for specific performance when the contract requires a continuing series of acts that would call for protracted supervision and direction by the court.

Although California follows the rule against the specific performance of contracts that stipulate a succession of continuous acts which require protracted supervision and direction by the court [see Ellison v. Ventura Port Dist. (1978) 80 Cal. App. 3d 574, 580, 145 Cal. Rptr. 665] , defense counsel should note that a number of cases that seem to involve a series of continuing acts have been specifically enforced [see Bakersfield Country Club v. Pacific Water Co. (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 528, 539, 13 Cal. Rptr. 573 (installation of water pipes); Gale v. Seymour (1949) 91 Cal. App. 2d 727, 728, 205 P.2d 752 (paving parking lot); for further cases, see § 528.44]. One court distinguished the situation before it, the periodic dredging of a channel, on the basis that the act was not as complex as those involved in the contracts for which specific performance had been denied and no cooperation between the parties was required [Ellison v. Ventura Port Dist. (1979) 80 Cal. App. 3d 574, 581, 145 Cal. Rptr. 665] .

[1] FORM Affirmative Defense--Contract for Personal Services [Civ. Code § 3390(1), (2)]

AS A SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE, defendant alleges:

The contract that plaintiff and defendant entered into was a contract to _____ [render or employ another in] personal services in that _____ [plaintiff or defendant] promised to _____ [perform the following services for _____ (defendant or plaintiff): _____ (specify personal services to be performed) or employ _____(defendant or plaintiff) in personal service to perform the following services: (specify personal services to be performed)]. Therefore, pursuant to _____ [Section 3390(1) or Section 3390(2)] of the Civil Code, the obligation cannot be specifically enforced.

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of affirmative defense is for use by a defendant in an answer to a complaint for specific performance when the contract which plaintiff seeks to specifically enforce is one to render or employ another in personal service [see Civ. Code § 3390(1), (2)].

For a discussion of when personal service contracts can be specifically enforced, see § 528.45[1]. For a discussion of when injunctive relief may be granted in situations involving personal service contracts, see § 528.45[2][c].

AS A SEPARATE AND AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE, defendant alleges:

The contract between plaintiff and defendant cannot be specifically enforced in favor of plaintiff seller since the plaintiff cannot give defendant buyer a title to _____ [specify property involved in contract] that is free from reasonable doubt in that _____ [specify reasons, e.g., seller conveyed title to the property to a third party bona fide purchaser who had no notice of the contract between seller and buyer].

[2] Use of Form

The foregoing form of affirmative defense is for use by a defendant buyer in an action for specific performance when the plaintiff seller is seeking to enforce a contract of sale but the seller cannot give defendant title free from reasonable doubt [see Civ. Code § 3394]. The defense will most likely be used in situations involving contracts for the sale and purchase of real property. See the discussion in § 528.22.

Chapter 529 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART I. SCOPE

46-529 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 529.01

§ 529.01 Scope of Chapter

This chapter discusses procedures for obtaining a statement of decision that is issued by the court after a nonjury trial. It includes forms for:

- Requesting a statement of decision [see § 529.60].
- Proposals as to the content of the statement of decision [see § 529.61].
- A proposed statement of decision [see § 529.62].
- A notice of motion, declaration, and order that the statement of decision be deemed waived [see §§ 529.63 -529.65].
- Objections to the proposed statement of decision [see § 529.66].
- An ex parte application for an order for a hearing on proposals or objections to the statement of decision [see § 529.67].
- A notice of motion, declaration, and order excusing noncompliance with required time limits for procedures relating to the statement of decision [see §§ 529.68 -529.70].

This chapter includes in the Introduction and Research Guide some case law decided prior to the 1981 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 632, which replaced findings of fact and conclusions of law with the statement of decision. This prior case law has been included for guidance in areas not expressly covered by the new statute and rules governing statements of decision. For discussion of the effect of case law under the former findings of fact and conclusion of law procedure, see § 529.10.

§ 529.10 Governing Law

Code Civ. Proc. § 632 governs the procedure for requesting a statement of decision and the content and form of a statement of decision. Procedures for making proposals or objections to the statement of decision, preparing a proposed statement of decision, and waiving a statement of decision are governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590.

Cases on findings and conclusions decided under former Code Civ. Proc. § 632 may be applied by analogy to determine issues raised under present Code Civ. Proc. § 632 [see McCurter v. Older (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 582, 591-592, 219 Cal. Rptr. 104 , disapproved on other grounds, In re Marriage of Arceneaux (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1130, 1137, 275 Cal. Rptr. 797, 800 P.2d 1227] . Older cases, of course, are not relevant if a provision of the statute material to the decision has changed [see In re Marriage of Arceneaux (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1130, 1137, 275 Cal. Rptr. 797, 800 P.2d 1227] .

46-529 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 529.11

§ 529.11 Statement of Decision in Trial Courts

Findings of fact and conclusions of law are no longer required on the trial of a question of fact by the court, but, on the request of any party appearing at trial, a statement of decision is required to be issued [Code Civ. Proc. § 632].

Because a statement of decision is only required on trial of a question of fact, a statement of decision is unnecessary when the only issue tendered to the trial court is one of law. If there is no factual dispute, there is nothing to inform the appellate court about except the law and, on questions of law, the reviewing court must decipher the law for itself [Enterprise Ins. Co. v. Mulleague (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 528, 539-540, 241 Cal. Rptr. 846 ; see Earp v. Earp (1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1008, 1012, 283 Cal. Rptr. 43 (interpretation of lease)].

§ 529.12 Request for Statement of Decision

[1] Time for Making Request

Any party appearing at trial may request a statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632]. If the trial is concluded within one calendar day or in less than eight hours spread out over more than one day, the request must be made before the matter is submitted for decision [see In re Marriage of Gray (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 974, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271 (request in court trial concluding in less than eight hours filed after tentative decision filed was untimely)]. If the trial is longer than that, the request must be made within 10 days after the court announces a tentative decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 632; see Earp v. Earp(1991) 231 Cal. App. 3d 1008, 1012, 283 Cal. Rptr. 43 (no error in denial of statement of decision as to issue tried separately and before trial of other issues when trial lasted less than a day and party did not request statement of decision before submission of issue; request at subsequent trial of remaining issues was untimely as to the issue tried separately); Posey v. Leavitt (1991) 229 Cal. App. 3d 1236, 1243 n.3, 280 Cal. Rptr. 568 (request for a statement of decision six days after the trial court's denial of opposing party's motion to reconsider is timely)].

In deciding how long trial lasts in application of Code Civ. Proc. § 632, Code Civ. Proc. § 581(a)(6) applies to determine when trial commences [Bevli v. Brisco (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 820, 212 Cal. Rptr. 36 ; for further discussion, see § 529.13[2]]. Judicial time off the bench does not count in determining how long a trial lasts [Gorman v. Tassajara Development Corporation (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 44, 61-63, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 152] .

The 10-day period for making the request commences at the time the clerk mails the copy of the minute order or decision [Hutchins v. Glanda (1990) 216 Cal. App. 3d 1529, 1531, 265 Cal. Rptr. 596 ; see also Staten v. Heale (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1084, 1088, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35 (when service of tentative decision is by mail, 10-day period, as extended by Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a), normally commences on date it is deposited in mail, pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 1013a(4))]. In determining whether a request is "made" within the statutory 10-day period, the court refers to the date the request is received and filed, as distinguished from the date it is mailed [Staten v. Heale (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1084, 1090-1091, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35] . For discussion relating to determining the length of trial, see § 529.13[2].

If counsel makes a timely request for the statement, the court's failure to prepare the statement is reversible error [Social Service Union, Local 535 v. County of Monterey (1989) 208 Cal. App. 3d 676, 681, 256 Cal. Rptr. 325 ; In re Marriage of Ananeh-Firempong (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 272, 282, 268 Cal. Rptr. 83 ; for further discussion, see § 529.23].

[2] Contents of Request

The request for a statement of decision must specify the controverted issues for which a statement of decision is requested [Code Civ. Proc. § 632; for form of request, see § 529.60]. The trial judge is not required to sift through a host of improper specifications in search of a few arguably proper ones. While a party cannot be prevented from using the request as a way of arguing with the court rather than clarifying the grounds of its decision, a party who makes that choice is not entitled to rely on the resulting document to insulate the judgment from the presumption of correctness [Yield Dynamics, Inc. v. TEA Systems Corp. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 547, 558-559, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1 (only three of 32 questions approximated nonargumentative specifications of factual issues, and it was doubtful that three even raised principal controverted issues)].

When there has been a request for a statement of decision, the statement of decision may be limited to only those issues specified in the request if less than all material issues are specified [Harvard Investment Co. v. Gap Stores, Inc. (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 704, 709 n.3, 202 Cal. Rptr. 891] .

A party waives any objection on appeal based on the trial court's failure to file a written statement of decision when trial lasts less than one day and that party fails to make an oral request, and when language in that party's points and authorities that were alleged to be a written request was not specific, but merely asked court to find in her favor [Martinez v. County of Tulare (1987) 190 Cal. App. 3d 1430, 1434-1435, 235 Cal. Rptr. 851] .

[3] Effect of Failure to Make Request

If no statement of decision has been requested, the reviewing court is required to presume that every fact essential to the judgment was proved and found by the trial court. Review in these circumstances is limited to a determination as to whether there is any evidence, contradicted or uncontradicted, to support the judgment [Agri-Systems, Inc. v. Foster Poultry Farms (2008) 168 Cal. App. 4th 1128, 1134-1135, 85 Cal. Rptr. 3d 917]

Although a failure to request a statement of decision may be fatal to an appeal if the record contains no explanation of the final judgment, absence of the statement is not fatal to appeal if the judgment sets forth reasons for the award [In re Marriage of Seaman & Menjou (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1489, 1494 n.2, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690] .

For discussion of preparation of a proposed judgment when a statement of decision is not requested or is waived, see § 529.18.

Chapter 529 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

46-529 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 529.13

§ 529.13 Length of Trial Affects Form and Procedure of Statement

[1] In General

In addition to affecting the time within which a request for a statement of decision must be made [see § 529.12[1]], the length of trial also determines the form (that is, oral or written) in which the statement of decision may be made and the procedure relating to determining the statement's content.

If a trial is concluded within one calendar day or in less than eight hours over more than one day, the statement of decision may be made orally on the record in the presence of the parties [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]. When a trial is completed within one day or in less than eight hours over more than one day, a request for statement of decision must be made before the matter is submitted for decision and the statement of decision may be made orally on the record in the presence of the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(n)].

If the trial is concluded after a longer period of time, the statement must be in writing unless the parties appearing at trial agree otherwise [Code Civ. Proc. § 632].

For discussion relating to preparation of a proposed written statement of decision and motion for order that statement of decision be deemed waived, see § 529.15.

[2] Determining Length of Trial

Whether a trial lasts more than one day depends on when it commences and when it concludes. A nonjury trial is deemed to commence at the beginning of the opening statement of any party or party's counsel or, if there is no opening statement, at the time the oath or affirmation is administered to the first witness or the first evidence is introduced [Code Civ. Proc. § 581(a)(6)].

The introduction of evidence signaling the commencement of the trial in a petition for writ of administrative mandamus has been held to be the time the judge begins reading the administrative record, thereby considering the evidence, even though the parties did not formally stipulate to the introduction of the record into the superior court proceedings until the following day. Conversely, the reading of briefs prior to the appearance of counsel does not constitute the commencement of the trial [Bevli v. Brisco (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 820-821, 821 n.3, 212 Cal. Rptr. 36 ; but see Milligan v. Hearing Aid Dispensers Examining Com. (1983) 142 Cal. App. 3d 1002, 1004 n.3, 191 Cal. Rptr. 490] .

The trial court's preliminary review of evidence may not be included in the calculation of the length of the trial unless its time spent in doing so is documented in the court record [Kearl v. Board of Medical Quality Assurance (1986) 189 Cal. App. 3d 1040, 1051, 236 Cal. Rptr. 526] .

If a party requests a statement of decision, the court must, within 30 days of announcement or service of the tentative decision, prepare and serve a proposed statement of decision and a proposed judgment on all parties that appeared at the trial, unless the court has ordered a party to prepare the statement. A party that has been ordered to prepare the statement must, within 30 days after the announcement or service of the tentative decision, serve and submit to the court a proposed statement of decision and a proposed judgment [*Cal. If the proposed statement of decision and judgment are not served and submitted within the time prescribed in *Cal. 529.19 Extension of Time

The court may extend, by written order, any of the times prescribed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590. The court may also make a written order excusing noncompliance with any of the time periods prescribed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590. In addition, in a limited civil case the court may extend the time within which any act prescribed in the California Rules of Court is required to be done [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.10(c)]. 529.20 Bifurcated Trial

When a factual issue is tried separately and before other issues, the judge conducting the separate trial must announce his or her tentative decision on the separate issue and must issue a statement of decision regarding the separate issue if requested to do so by a party. However, the court must not prepare any proposed judgment until the other issues are tried, except when an interlocutory judgment or separate judgment may otherwise be properly entered at that time [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1591(a)].

If the other issues are tried by a different judge or judges, each judge must perform all acts required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590 as to the issues tried by that judge. The judge trying the final issue prepares the proposed judgment [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1591(b)]. A judge may proceed with the trial of subsequent issues before the issuance of a statement of decision on previously tried issues [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1591(c)].

A motion for a new trial following a bifurcated trial must be made after all the issues are tried and, if the issues were tried by different judges, each judge must hear and determine the motion as to the issues tried by that judge [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1591(c)].

Chapter 529 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

46-529 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 529.21

§ 529.21 Contents of Statement of Decision

[1] Explanation of Factual and Legal Bases for Decision

Code Civ. Proc. § 632 requires that the statement of decision explain the factual and legal basis for the court's decision as to each of the principal controverted issues at trial [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632].

There is an essential correspondence between the "factual and legal basis" of a decision and the "findings of fact and conclusions of law" given by the trial court under former law. One court has stated that case law on findings and conclusions under former law may be applied by analogy to determine issues arising under the current statute [see McCurter v. Older (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 582, 592, 219 Cal. Rptr. 104] . Thus, the distinction between ultimate facts, which must be stated, and evidentiary facts, which need not be stated, is still pertinent [see Ingredient Communication Council, Inc. v. Lungren (1992) 2 Cal. App. 4th 1480, 1497, 4 Cal. Rptr. 2d 216 ; McCurter v. Older (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 582 ; Republic Indemnity Co. v. Empire Building Corp. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1163, 1167, 213 Cal. Rptr. 787 ; Wolfe v. Lipsy (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 633, 643, 209 Cal. Rptr. 801 ; In re Cheryl E. (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 587, 599, 207 Cal. Rptr. 728 ; see also § 529.21[2][a], [b]].

Consistent with this view, reviewing courts have held that a trial court, in its statement of decision, need not address all of the legal and factual issues raised by the parties. It need only state the grounds on which the judgment rests without necessarily specifying the particular evidence considered by the trial court in reaching its decision [Peak-Las Positas Partners v. Bollag (2009) 172 Cal. App. 4th 101, 112, 90 Cal. Rptr. 3d 775 ; Muzquiz v. City of Emeryville (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 1124-1125, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 579 ; Haight v. Handweiler (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 85, 89-90, 244 Cal. Rptr. 488]. The trial court need only set out ultimate findings rather than evidentiary ones [In re Marriage of Balcof (2006) 141 Cal. App. 4th 1509, 1530-1531, 47 Cal. Rptr. 3d 183] ; findings of ultimate facts necessarily include findings on all intermediate evidentiary facts necessary to sustain them [Muzquiz v. City of Emeryville (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 1125, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 579 ; In re Cheryl E. (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 587, 599, 207 Cal. Rptr. 728] .

The statement is required to be in writing unless either of the following applies [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]:

- The parties stipulate otherwise; or

- The trial lasts less than one calendar day or less than eight hours over a period of more than one day.

In these situations, the statement may be made orally on the record in the parties' presence [Code Civ. Proc. § 632].

Appellate courts frown on the use of any shorthand method designed to avoid the mandate of Code Civ. Proc. § 632 requiring a statement of decision that fairly discloses the court's determination of all material, factual issues involved in the action. For example, a trial court was in error when, after counsel requested a written statement of decision, the court concluded that the oral proceedings and the reporter's transcript would suffice [Whittington v. McKinney (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 123, 126 285 Cal. Rptr. 586 (reviewing court held, however, that counsel had waived right to written statement of decision in earlier proceedings)].

In other cases, it has been stated that a trial court must make findings on "material subsidiary issues of fact" if a party makes such a request or informs the court of its failure to do so [Midwest Television, Inc. v. Scott, Lancaster, Mills & Atha, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 442, 457, 252 Cal. Rptr. 573 ; see Code Civ. Proc. § 634, discussed in § 529.22]. A material issue of fact is one that is relevant and essential to the judgment and closely and directly related to the trial court's determination of the ultimate issue in the case [Midwest Television, Inc. v. Scott, Lancaster, Mills & Atha, Inc. (1988) 205 Cal. App. 3d 442, 457, 252 Cal. Rptr. 573 ; see McCurter v. Older (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 582, 591-594, 219 Cal. Rptr. 104 (reversing for failure of court to find on "material" issue)]. These cases suggest that the focus should now be on whether or not a fact is material more than on whether it would previously have been labelled as evidentiary or ultimate [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632].

For discussion of case law prior to the 1982 amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 632, see § 529.21[2][a].

For a trial court's refusal to explain the factual and legal basis for a decision to constitute error, the request for a statement of decision must be timely [In re Marriage of Katz (1991) 234 Cal. App. 3d 1711, 1718, 286 Cal. Rptr. 495 ; see § 529.12[1]].

[2] Case Law Under Prior Statute

[a] Ultimate Facts and Conclusions of Law

Pursuant to case law decided prior to the amendment of Code Civ. Proc. § 632 effective in 1982, findings of fact were required to state ultimate facts only [see Bulmash v. Davis (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 691, 700-701, 157 Cal. Rptr. 66, 597 P.2d 469 ; Seeley v. Combs (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 127, 132, 52 Cal. Rptr. 578, 416 P.2d 810] . Subsequent cases continue to refer to this rule [see McCurter v. Older (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 582, 592, 219 Cal. Rptr. 104 ; Republic Indemnity Co. v. Empire Building Corp. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1163, 1167, 213 Cal. Rptr. 787 ; Wolfe v. Lipsy (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 633, 643, 209 Cal. Rptr. 801 ; In re Cheryl E. (1984) 161 Cal. App. 3d 587, 599, 207 Cal. Rptr. 728 ; People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 524, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164 ; see also [1], above].

Under that rule, although the ultimate facts found might have involved conclusions of fact, they did not include conclusions of law [see Hayward Lbr. & Inv. Co. v. Construction Prod. Corp. (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 1, 3, 241 P.2d 1054] . The test in determining whether the findings stated ultimate facts rather than conclusions of law was the same as that applied in determining the sufficiency of the pleadings [see D'Andrea v. Pringle (1966) 243 Cal. App. 2d 689, 695, 52 Cal. Rptr. 606] .

Although the distinction between an ultimate fact and a conclusion of law is not an easy one to draw [Hayward Lbr. & Inv. Co. v. Construction Prod. Corp. (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 1, 3, 241 P.2d 1054] , generally, if, from the facts in evidence, the result can be reached by that process of natural reasoning adopted in the investigation of truth, it is an ultimate fact. If, on the other hand, resort must be had to the artificial processes of the law in order to reach a final determination, the result is a conclusion of law [Levins v. Rovegno (1886) 71 Cal. 273, 278, 12 P. 161 ; Ball v. American Trial Lawyers Assn. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 289, 306, 92 Cal. Rptr. 228] .

For example, a finding that a particular item of property was held in constructive trust [see Efron v. Kalmanovitz (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 187, 195, 57 Cal. Rptr. 248] , or a finding of unfairness or fraud when it is imposed by law without regard to the actual intention of the defendant [see Ball v. American Trial Lawyers Assn. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 289, 306, 92 Cal. Rptr. 228] is not a finding; it is a conclusion of law since it is reached by the artificial processes of law based on other subsidiary findings of fact.

For the same reason, findings in terms of statutory language may also be considered conclusions of law. Thus, a finding in an equity action to set aside a default judgment under Code Civ. Proc. § 473 that the entry of the default judgment was due to an extrinsic mistake of fact is a conclusion of law [see Lieberman v. Aetna Ins. Co. (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 515, 530, 57 Cal. Rptr. 453] . However, it was generally held sufficient to make findings in statutory language in cases in which the rights and liabilities of the parties were defined by statute [see California Shipbuilding Corp. v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 270, 271, 188 P.2d 27 (in workers' compensation case involving award of increased compensation under Lab. Code § 4553, finding of ultimate fact of serious and willful misconduct in language of statute as not fatally insufficient in form because of generality of language); Kahn v. Gordon (1967) 249 Cal. App. 2d 722, 726, 57 Cal. Rptr. 725 (sufficiency of findings in language of Civ. Code § 2334 holding principal liable for misrepresentations made by ostensible agent)].

[b] Intermediate Evidentiary Decisions

Because ultimate facts are reached by a process of natural reasoning, they are deduced from certain primary facts that are evidentiary in character [Hayward Lbr. & Inv. Co. v. Construction Prod. Corp. (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 1, 3, 241 P.2d 1054] . Any probative or evidentiary facts that have been relied on by the trial court to support the ultimate facts were not required to be stated nor were they a proper part of the findings [Seeley v. Combs (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 127, 132, 52 Cal. Rptr. 578, 416 P.2d 810 ; Beaupre v. Nave (1971) 13 Cal. App. 3d 402, 407, 91 Cal. Rptr. 473] . Thus, the trial court was not required to show the intermediate, specific determinations that it made on every conflict of evidence in deducing the ultimate facts found [see Moreno v. Jessup Buena Vista Dairy (1975) 50 Cal. App. 3d 438, 447, 123 Cal. Rptr. 393] . In other words, a court issuing a statement of decision is required only to state ultimate rather than evidentiary facts [McCurter v. Older (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 582, 593, 219 Cal. Rptr. 104] .

Chapter 529 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

46-529 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 529.22

§ 529.22 Effect of Ambiguous or Insufficient Statement of Decision

If a statement of decision is ambiguous or does not resolve a controverted issue and the record shows that the ambiguity or omission was brought to the court's attention prior to entry of judgment or at the time of a motion for new trial or motion to vacate judgment, it may not be inferred on appeal or on the motion after trial that the trial court decided in favor of the prevailing party as to those facts or that issue [Code Civ. Proc. § 634; see In re Marriage of Weinstein (1991) 4 Cal. App. 4th 555, 571 , 5 Cal. Rptr. 2d 558].

The clear implication of this provision is that, if a party does not bring the deficiencies to the trial court's attention, the party waives the right to claim on appeal that the statement was deficient in these regards, and, thus, the appellate court will imply findings to support the judgment. Furthermore, Code Civ. Proc. § 634 refers to a party's need to point out deficiencies in the trial court's statement of decision as a condition of avoiding such implied findings; merely having requested a statement initially as provided in Code Civ. Proc. § 632 is not adequate [In re Marriage of Arceneaux (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1130, 1133-1134, 275 Cal. Rptr. 797, 800 P.2d 1227 (disapproving McCurter v. Older (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 582, 594, 219 Cal. Rptr. 104 , and Employers Casualty Co. v. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Group (1980) 109 Cal. App. 3d 462, 474, 167 Cal. Rptr. 296 , to extent they suggest that a party who fails to bring omission or ambiguity to trial court's attention may nevertheless avoid presumption in favor of judgment)].

§ 529.23 Effect of Trial Court's Failure to Issue Statement of Decision

The issuance of a statement of decision after a timely request pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 632 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590, is mandatory, and a trial court's total or material failure to comply with the statute's requirements constitutes reversible error per se [Miramar Hotel Corp. v. Frank B. Hall & Co. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1126, 1129 , 210 Cal. Rptr. 114 ; Bevli v. Brisco (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 822, 212 Cal. Rptr. 36 ; see In re Marriage of Reilley (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1119, 1126, 242 Cal. Rptr. 302] . For example, if a final judgment is entered after the issuance of a mere minute order, despite the appellant's timely request for a statement of decision, the court of appeal will reverse the judgment and remand for the issuance of a statement of decision [Miramar Hotel Corp. v. Frank B. Hall & Co. (1985) 163 Cal. App. 3d 1126, 1129 , 210 Cal. Rptr. 114].

§ 529.24 Amendment of Statement of Decision by Trial Court

[1] Motion for New Trial

In an action tried without a jury, on a motion for new trial made pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 657, the court may, on such terms as may be just, change or add to the statement of decision, modify or vacate the judgment in whole or in part, and grant a new trial on all or part of the issues. Alternatively, in lieu of granting a new trial, the court may vacate and set aside the statement of decision and judgment and reopen the case for further proceedings and the introduction of additional evidence. In so doing, the effect would be the same as if the case had been reopened after submission to the court but before the filing of a decision or the rendering of a judgment [Code Civ. Proc. § 662]. For further discussion and procedures, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial, §§ 357.60 et seq. and 357.90 et seq.

[2] Motion to Vacate Judgment

On a motion to vacate a judgment, when the judgment is set aside and vacated and a different judgment entered on the ground that there is an incorrect or erroneous legal basis for the original decision not consistent with or not supported by the facts, the statement of decision must be amended and corrected [Code Civ. Proc. § 663]. For further discussion and procedures, see Ch. 371, Motions After Trial, § 357.90 et seq.

§ 529.25 Amendment of Statement's Factual Determinations by Appellate Court

In all cases in which trial by jury is not a matter of right or in which trial by jury has been waived, the reviewing court may make factual determinations contrary to or in addition to those made by the trial court. The factual determinations may be based on the evidence adduced before the trial court either with or without the taking of evidence by the reviewing court. The reviewing court may take additional evidence of or concerning facts occurring at any time prior to the decision of the appeal and may direct any judgment, and make or give any order as the case may require [Code Civ. Proc. § 909].

Code Civ. Proc. § 909 must be liberally construed to the end, among others, that, when feasible, cases may be finally disposed of by a single appeal and without further proceedings in the trial court, except when in the interests of justice a new trial is required on some or all issues [Code Civ. Proc. § 909].

For further discussion and forms relating to requests that an appellate court make additional fact determinations or take additional evidence under Code Civ. Proc. § 909, see Ch. 50, Appeal: Briefs .

Chapter 529 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

46-529 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 529.53

§ 529.53 Decisions

[1] Amendment of Statement of Decision

Trial court properly amended statement of decision to provide prejudgment interest, when trial court could not abrogate parties' statutory rights to object to court's statement of decision by alternative procedure without making this absolutely clear when it sought parties' approval of its proposed alternative procedure, and trial court did not clearly state parties would be precluded from submitting objections to court's statement of decision, but court stated parties would have three days to "look over" statement of decision and proposed judgment "as to form" so that plaintiff may have reasonably concluded alternative procedure to which it had agreed did not preclude it from objecting to absence of prejudgment interest in decision; and when statement of decision issued by court could not automatically constitute final decision for purposes of entry of judgment, so that trial court had inherent power to amend statement of decision to award prejudgment interest. Bay World Trading, Inc. v. Nebraska Beef, Inc. (2002) 101 Cal. App. 4th 135, 138-141, 123 Cal. Rptr. 2d 632

Reviewing court may not disregard trial court's written statement of decision and base its determination of error on trial court's own oral explanation of decision when trial court did not modify statement of decision in accordance with oral pronouncement. Rainier Credit Co. v. Western Alliance Corp. (1985) 171 Cal. App. 3d 255, 262, 217 Cal. Rptr. 291

[2] Construction of Statement of Decision

Fact that trial court failed to mention issue in its oral statement does not preclude it from including that issue in its written statement of decision. Wurzl v. Holloway (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1740, 1756, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 512

Under doctrine of invited error, party is not permitted to challenge particular determination of issue that he or she proposed; however, this doctrine does not apply to preclude challenge to language that party proposed only because he or she believed that it accurately represented court's reasoning on an issue found in other party's favor. Estate of Davis (1990) 219 Cal. App. 3d 663, 670 n.13, 268 Cal. Rptr. 384

Trial court's oral announcement of tentative decision is not binding and does not preclude inclusion in statement of decision of bases for decision that was not mentioned in oral announcement. Neptune Society Corp. v. Longanecker (1987) 194 Cal. App. 3d 1233, 1245, 240 Cal. Rptr. 117

[3] Death of Trial Judge Before Statement of Decision Filed

[a] In General

Presiding judge of superior court properly signed and entered judgment in conformity with "Intended Decision" of trial judge who died before hearing on objections to intended decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 635] when there was no indication that deceased judge had contemplated any modification of decision and when proposed statement of decision provided complete and adequate basis for appellate review. Leiserson v. City of San Diego (1986) 184 Cal. App. 3d 41, 48 n.8, 229 Cal. Rptr. 22

[b] Failure to Make Statement of Decision

Statement of decision is not required when the trial court is not adjudicating questions of fact, but is sitting as a reviewing court scrutinizing an administrative decision. Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. City of Vernon (1995) 41 Cal. App. 4th 209, 221, 48 Cal. Rptr. 2d 661

Failure of trial court to render statement of decision after timely request has been made is reversible error. In re Marriage of Reilley (1987) 196 Cal. App. 3d 1119, 1126, 242 Cal. Rptr. 302

Improper failure of trial court to support its decision by written statement of decision requested pursuant to Code Civ. Proc. § 632 requires reversal of judgment. Bevli v. Brisco (1985) 165 Cal. App. 3d 812, 822, 212 Cal. Rptr. 36

[c] Objection to Statement of Decision

Court erred in signing judgment and statement of decision without granting party opportunity to object, but error was cured when court vacated prematurely signed judgment, considered party's objections, and issued minute order accordingly. National Secretarial Service, Inc. v. Froehlich (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 510, 523, 258 Cal. Rptr. 506

[4] Request for Statement of Decision

For purposes of determining whether trial was concluded within one calendar day or in less than eight hours over more than one day, judicial time off the bench is not included. Gorman v. Tassajara Development Corporation (2009) 178 Cal. App. 4th 44, 61-63, 100 Cal. Rptr. 3d 152

Plaintiff's request for statement of decision was not proper under Code Civ. Proc. § 632, and trial court's statement supported presumption of correctness of judgment, when only three of plaintiff's 32 questions approximated nonargumentative specifications of factual issues, and it was doubtful even three raised principal controverted issues and when statement of decision, while going well beyond recital of ultimate facts found by court, clearly and adequately disclosed that it had decided plaintiff's claim. Yield Dynamics, Inc. v. TEA Systems Corp. (2007) 154 Cal. App. 4th 547, 558-559, 66 Cal. Rptr. 3d 1

Trial court properly denied request for statement of decision as untimely in marital dissolution court trial conducted over more than one day, when request was filed after final paper and court's tentative decision were filed, when party requesting statement of decision failed to show trial court erred in making express finding that trial lasted less than eight hours, and no legal authority required courtroom clerk to keep track of time of trial in minutes. In re Marriage of Gray (2002) 103 Cal. App. 4th 974, 977-980, 127 Cal. Rptr. 2d 271

Although failure to request statement of decision may be fatal to appeal if record contains no explanation of final judgment, absence of statement is not fatal to appeal when judgment sets forth reasons for award. In re Marriage of Seaman & Menjou (1991) 1 Cal. App. 4th 1489, 1494 n.2, 2 Cal. Rptr. 2d 690

When there is no request for statement of decision, reviewing court is required to presume that every fact essential to judgment was proved and found by court and review is limited to determination whether there is any evidence, contradicted or uncontradicted, to support judgment. Gibbs v. American Savings & Loan Assn. (1990) 217 Cal. App. 3d 1372, 1375, 266 Cal. Rptr. 517

Denial of request for statement of decision in personal injury action in which liability was admitted and only issue concerned damages requires reversal of judgment; failure to distinguish between general and special damages in award of lump sum prevents effective review of judgment. Gordon v. Wolfe (1986) 179 Cal. App. 3d 162, 167-168, 224 Cal. Rptr. 481

[5] Special Proceedings Not Requiring Statement of Decision

Requirement of statement of decision on request under Code Civ. Proc. § 632 as not applicable to mandamus action testing validity of administrative decision, since trial court is limited to review of substantiality of evidence received by administrative body, which is not factfinding process; advisability of findings regardless of applicable scope of review as satisfied by court's peremptory writ of mandate setting forth basis of its decision. City of Carmel-By-The-Sea v. Board of Supervisors (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 229, 237, 227 Cal. Rptr. 899

Hearing of application for preliminary injunction, even on declarations, is not a trial for purposes of requiring statement of decision under Code Civ. Proc. § 632. People v. Landlords Professional Services, Inc. (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 68, 72, 223 Cal. Rptr. 483

[6] Sufficiency and Content of Statement of Decision

In employment discrimination action on basis of age, trial court's statement of decision did not adopt erroneous burden of proof or fail to resolve material issues of fact, when court addressed ample evidence of employee's poor job performance in context of discussion of central issue of whether employer had discriminated on basis of age, and when statement of decision clearly addressed ultimate issue, which was whether employee had borne burden of proving employer's stated reasons for eliminating her position were pretextual and actually motivated by age discrimination; trial court adequately set out its express determination that employee failed to prove pretext, together with the ultimate facts supporting that determination and the legal basis for its decision. Muzquiz v. City of Emeryville (2000) 79 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 1125-1126, 94 Cal. Rptr. 2d 579

Trial court is not required to make express finding of fact on every factual matter controverted at trial, as long as its statement of decision sufficiently disposes of all basic issues in the case. Bauer v. Bauer (1996) 46 Cal. App. 4th 1106, 1118, 54 Cal. Rptr. 2d 377

Trial court is not required to make in its statement of decision detailed findings of evidentiary facts as to each piece of evidence relied on. People v. Dollar Rent-a-Car Systems, Inc. (1989) 211 Cal. App. 3d 119, 127-128, 259 Cal. Rptr. 191

Under Code Civ. Proc. § 632, trial court in issuing statement of decision is not required to address each question listed in party's request; statement that provides explanation of factual and legal basis for court's decisions regarding principal controverted issues listed in request is sufficient. Nunes Turfgrass, Inc. v. Vaughan-Jacklin Seed Co., Inc. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1518, 1525, 246 Cal. Rptr. 823

Failure of trial court to make finding on particular matter is harmless error if judgment is otherwise supported; however, failure to make finding on particular matter is error when there is sufficient evidence to sustain that finding in favor of complaining party and that finding would countervail or destroy other findings. Nunes Turfgrass, Inc. v. Vaughan-Jacklin Seed Co., Inc. (1988) 200 Cal. App. 3d 1518, 1525, 246 Cal. Rptr. 823

Statement of decision need do no more than give reasons that state grounds on which judgment rests; statement of ultimate findings are all that is required. Haight v. Handweiler (1988) 199 Cal. App. 3d 85, 90, 244 Cal. Rptr. 488

Fact that statement of decision did not state that trial court considered deposition testimony or other extrinsic evidence did not imply that trial court failed to do so because nothing in Code Civ. Proc. § 632 requires that statement of decision specify particular evidence considered by trial court in reaching its final determination. Aviointeriors SpA v. World Airways, Inc. (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 908, 913, 914, 226 Cal. Rptr. 527

Fact determination is required to be on inference drawn from evidence rather than on mere speculation regarding probabilities without evidence. California Shoppers, Inc. v. Royal Globe Insurance Co. (1985) 175 Cal. App. 3d 1, 45, 221 Cal. Rptr. 171

Trial court rendering statement of decision under Code Civ. Proc. § 632 is required only to state ultimate rather than evidentiary facts. McCurter v. Older (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 582, 593, 219 Cal. Rptr. 104 ; Republic Indemnity Co v. Empire Builders Corp. (1985) 167 Cal. App. 3d 1163, 1167, 213 Cal. Rptr. 787

Court is not required to provide specific answers to questions by requesting party so long as findings in statement fairly disclose court's determination of all material issues. People v. Casa Blanca Convalescent Homes, Inc. (1984) 159 Cal. App. 3d 509, 525, 206 Cal. Rptr. 164

Chapter 529 STATEMENT OF DECISION
PART III. RESEARCH GUIDE

46-529 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 529.54

§ 529.54 Decisions Under Prior Law

CAUTION:

In 1981, Code Civ. Proc. §§ 632, 634, 662, and 909 and Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232, were amended to replace findings of fact and conclusions of law with statements of decision. Many of the following cases were decided under prior statutes and rules, and these refer to procedures relating to findings of fact. Cases decided under prior law are mentioned, not as binding authority, but as persuasive authority only, which may be useful in providing guidance in areas not expressly covered under the amended statutes and rules [see McCurter v. Older (1985) 173 Cal. App. 3d 582, 591-592, 219 Cal. Rptr. 104 , disapproved on other grounds, In re Marriage of Arceneaux (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1130, 1137, 275 Cal. Rptr. 797, 800 P.2d 1227] . Older cases are, of course, not relevant if a provision of the statute material to the decision has changed [see In re Marriage of Arceneaux (1990) 51 Cal. 3d 1130, 1137, 275 Cal. Rptr. 797, 800 P.2d 1227] .

[1] Amendment of Findings

Trial court as afforded final opportunity to adjust form and contents of findings through ruling on motion for new trial. Vogelsang v. Wolpert (1964) 227 Cal. App. 2d 102, 129, 38 Cal. Rptr. 440 (decided under prior law)

Appellate court as having power to amend findings where findings conflicting as result of inadvertence due to clerical error. Johndrow v. Thomas (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 202, 207, 187 P.2d 681 (decided under prior law)

Only mode by which findings may be disturbed by trial court after they have been filed and judgment entered, except in cases of clerical error or misprision, as by granting of new trial, since entered judgment terminates power of trial court to change findings. Hole v. Takekawa (1913) 165 Cal. 372, 375-376, 132 P. 445 (decided under prior law)

Purpose of former Code Civ. Proc. § 662, permitting court to change or add findings in ruling on motion for new trial, as to give to court on denying motion for new trial broad power to change its findings and to modify its judgment, thereby avoiding necessity of new trial. Spier v. Lang (1935) 4 Cal. 2d 711, 714, 53 P.2d 138 (decided under prior law)

Findings of fact as not permitted to be amended to correct judicial error after judgment becomes final. People v. A.T.L., Inc. (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 152, 153, 309 P.2d 552 (decided under prior law)

Findings of fact as permitted to be amended to correct mere clerical errors after judgment becomes final. Williams v. Koenig (1934) 219 Cal. 656, 658-659, 28 P.2d 351 (decided under prior law)

[2] Construction of Findings

[a] In General

Findings of fact as required to be liberally construed to support judgment. Johndrow v. Thomas (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 202, 207, 187 P.2d 681 (decided under prior law)

Substantial conflicts in findings as required to be resolved in favor of prevailing party and all legitimate and reasonable inferences indulged in to uphold findings if possible. Richter v. Walker (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 634, 640, 226 P.2d 593 (decided under prior law)

Where findings of fact support conclusions necessary to judgment, absence or omission of proper specific conclusion as not availing to defeat judgment. Roberts v. Graves (1969) 269 Cal. App. 2d 410, 419, 75 Cal. Rptr. 130 (decided under prior law)

Where findings are inconsistent, judgment as not permitted to be set aside unless conflict is clear and material and findings are incapable of being harmoniously construed. Richter v. Walker (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 634, 639, 226 P.2d 593 (decided under prior law)

Inconsistent finding that supports judgment as disregarded as surplusage when correct finding also supports judgment. Zinn v. Fred R. Bright Co. (1969) 271 Cal. App. 2d 597, 604, 76 Cal. Rptr. 663 (decided under prior law)

When difference exists in sum of damages between findings and judgment, findings as controlling. Jen-Mar Constr. Co. v. Brown (1967) 247 Cal. App. 2d 564, 570, 55 Cal. Rptr. 832 (decided under prior law)

In absence of indications to contrary, general finding as including finding of all special facts necessary to sustain it. Albonico v. Madera Irrigation Dist. (1960) 53 Cal. 2d 735, 741, 3 Cal. Rptr. 343, 350 P.2d 95 (decided under prior law)

Mixed findings of fact and conclusions of law in interpretation of instrument as not relieving appellate court from exercising its independent judgment in construing terms of instrument. Estate of Page (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 702, 709, 62 Cal. Rptr. 740 (decided under prior law)

[b] Antecedent Expressions of Trial Court

Memorandum opinion or other antecedent expression of the court is usable to explain its formal written findings. Chapple v. Big Bear Super Market No. 3 (1980) 108 Cal. App. 3d 867, 874, 167 Cal. Rptr. 103 (decided under prior law)

Court's memorandum of intended decision does not impeach findings of fact containing conclusions on all questions of fact submitted for decision. Bulmash v. Davis (1979) 24 Cal. 3d 691, 701, 157 Cal. Rptr. 66, 597 P.2d 469 (decided under prior law)

No antecedent expression of judge, whether casual or cast in form of opinion, can in any way restrict judge's absolute power to declare his or her final conclusion by filing findings of fact and conclusions of law. Strudthoff v. Yates (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 602, 616, 170 P.2d 873 (decided under prior law)

Opinion of trial court cannot be substituted for nor used to modify findings or judgment since findings of fact embody conclusions of trial court on all questions of fact submitted to it for decision. Strudthoff v. Yates (1946) 28 Cal. 2d 602, 615-616, 170 P.2d 873 (decided under prior law)

Findings and conclusions are final deliberate expression of court, and expressions of judge during trial cannot be considered for purpose of contradicting deliberate findings and conclusions that he or she subsequently makes and files. Martin School of Aviation v. Bank of America (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 689, 695, 312 P.2d 251 (decided under prior law)

Oral or written opinion by trial judge is not itself decision of court of judgment and cannot be used to challenge judgment or express findings. Dairyman's Cooperative Creamery Assn. v. Leipold (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 184, 188, 109 Cal. Rptr. 753 (citing Witkin, California Procedure (2d ed.), Vol. 4, Judgment, § 5) (decided under prior law)

Memorandum decision cannot be relied on to fill interstices in findings and conclusions left void by failure to find pursuant to special request for findings. Morris v. Thogmartin (1973) 29 Cal. App. 3d 922, 930, 105 Cal. Rptr. 919 (decided under prior law)

Memorandum of decision is superseded by judgment under former Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 232(a) [now see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(a)], and is not in itself appealable. Burgess v. Board of Education (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 571, 582, 116 Cal. Rptr. 183 (decided under prior law)

Memorandum opinion can be resorted to, to ascertain grounds of its decision, to learn process by which court reached its decision, to ascertain court's theory of decision, or to ascertain basis for conclusion of law when conclusion gives no explanation for ruling. Estate of Russell (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 758, 763, 95 Cal. Rptr. 88 (decided under prior law)

[c] Findings Prepared by Counsel

Where findings are prepared by counsel designated by court, and counsel was at liberty to use own judgment as to text of findings, no claim of insufficiency of findings can be entertained on appeal from judgment. Snow Mountain Water & Power Co. v. Kraner (1923) 191 Cal. 312, 325, 216 P. 589 ; Johnson v. Rich (1957) 150 Cal. App. 2d 740, 747, 310 P.2d 980 (decided under prior law)

[d] Proposed Findings and Conclusions

Proposed findings and conclusions prepared by respective parties prior to signing of findings and used in settlement thereof are of no legal significance, have no value as evidence, and cannot be used in determination of appeal. Howard v. Howard (1953) 119 Cal. App. 2d 122, 124, 259 P.2d 41 (decided under prior law)

[3] Construction When No Findings Required

In absence of findings of fact and conclusions of law, every intendment is in favor of judgment or order appealed from and every fact or inference essential to support or order and warranted by evidence found by court is presumed. Reid v. Valley Restaurants, Inc. (1957) 48 Cal. 2d 606, 609, 311 P.2d 473 ; Estate of Rule (1944) 25 Cal. 2d 1, 10, 152 P.2d 1003 (decided under prior law); Schubert v. Reynolds (2002) 95 Cal. App. 4th 100, 104, 115 Cal. Rptr. 2d 285

Appellate court is required to assume that trial court found all necessary facts to support judgment where no findings and conclusions are requested. Dairyman's Cooperative Creamery Assn. v. Leipold (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 184, 188-189, 109 Cal. Rptr. 753 (decided under prior law)

[4] Entry of Judgment Without Required Findings

Entry of judgment without findings when findings are required and not waived is material error in procedure. Petroleum Midway Co. v. Zahn (1944) 62 Cal. App. 2d 645, 652, 145 P.2d 371 (decided under prior law)

Judgment entered without findings when findings are required is nullity and is superseded by subsequent judgment based on findings. Ohio Cas. Ins. Co. v. Northwestern Mut. Ins. Co. (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 204, 207, 94 Cal. Rptr. 586 (decided under prior law)

Dismissal of appeal from judgment rendered void by entry of valid judgment containing required findings and conclusions. Supple v. Luckenbach (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 319, 323, 84 P.2d 52 (decided under prior law)

Appeal is dismissed when no findings and conclusions made as required. Larson v. Thoresen (1951) 36 Cal. 2d 666, 670, 226 P.2d 571 (decided under prior law)

Failure to make findings of fact when required in mandate proceeding does not affect validity of judgment so much as right to appeal therefrom. International Asso. of Fire Fighters v. Palo Alto (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 295, 300, 32 Cal. Rptr. 842, 384 P.2d 170 (decided under prior law)

Proper procedure when judgment entered without required findings and conclusions is reversal of judgment with directions to enter findings and conclusions rather than dismissal of appeal, since dismissal affirms judgment or order appealed from. Doty v. Doty (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 672, 678, 125 Cal. Rptr. 153 (decided under prior law)

[5] Failure to Make Findings

[a] In General

Denial of defendant's request for findings under former Code Civ. Proc. § 632 is reversible error when requested findings were both material and essential to determine whether defendant was entitled to allocation of costs under Code Civ. Proc. § 998(c). Harvard Investment Co. v. Gap Stores, Inc. (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 704, 708-713, 202 Cal. Rptr. 891 (decided under prior law)

1968 amendment to Code Civ. Proc. § 632, changing its provisions to require findings and conclusions only on request, did not change prior case law as to effect of failure to make findings when findings are required. Williams v. Williams (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 560, 566 n. 1, 92 Cal. Rptr. 385 (decided under prior law)

Trial court's depriving litigant of right to findings and conclusions by filing judgment or order unsupported by findings was improper. Doty v. Doty (1975) 52 Cal. App. 3d 672, 678, 125 Cal. Rptr. 153 (decided under prior law)

When findings are essential, final judgment may not be rendered until findings signed and filed. Supple v. Luckenbach (1938) 12 Cal. 2d 319, 320-321, 84 P.2d 52 (decided under prior law)

Judgment entered without findings when findings required is nullity. McBride v. Alpha Realty Corp. (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 925, 928, 123 Cal. Rptr. 270 (quoting Ohio Cas. Ins. Co. v. Northwestern Mut. Ins. Co. (1971) 17 Cal. App. 3d 204, 207, 94 Cal. Rptr. 586) (decided under prior law)

Judgment rendered without findings on all material issues must be reversed. Weisz Trucking Co. v. Emil R. Wohl Constr. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 256, 263, 91 Cal. Rptr. 489 ; Anderson v. Southern Pac. Co. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 230, 235, 70 Cal. Rptr. 389 (decided under prior law)

When material issue raised by pleadings and evidence and party desiring findings on issue submitted proposed findings, failure of court to make findings is reversible error. Williams v. Williams (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 560, 566, 92 Cal. Rptr. 385 (decided under prior law)

Failure to find on issue is not ground for reversal when record discloses no evidence on which finding favorable to complaining party could properly be made. Kalashian v. Fresno County (1973) 35 Cal. App. 3d 43, 52, 110 Cal. Rptr. 429 (decided under prior law)

[b] Prejudicial Error Required

Appellant could not complain of failure to make finding which necessarily would have been adverse to him. Santoro v. Carbone (1972) 22 Cal. App. 3d 721, 730 99 Cal. Rptr. 488 (decided under prior law)

Failure to find on issue is not ground for reversal when no substantial right of appellant is prejudiced thereby. Kerr Land & Timber Co. v. Emmerson (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 200, 223, 43 Cal. Rptr. 333 (quoting from Eastman v. Piper (1924) 68 Cal. App. 554, 559, 229 P. 1002) (decided under prior law)

[c] Reversal

When judgment must be reversed for failure to make required findings and record does not indicate any purpose to be served in ordering new trial, proper procedure is to remand case with directions to trial court to make adequate findings based on evidence before it, to draw proper conclusions, and to enter judgment accordingly. Weisz Trucking Co. v. Emil R. Wohl Constr. (1970) 13 Cal. App. 3d 256, 264, 91 Cal. Rptr. 489 (decided under prior law)

Appellate court has jurisdiction to reverse judgment when findings not made when required since appeal may be taken from judgment or order notwithstanding fact that it is void. Petroleum Midway Co. v. Zahn (1944) 62 Cal. App. 2d 645, 652, 145 P.2d 371 (decided under prior law)

[6] Preparation

Judge may prepare own findings. Estate of McCormack (1969) 2 Cal. App. 3d 492, 501, 82 Cal. Rptr. 651 (decided under prior law)

Time for service and filing of findings and conclusions, as subject to time extension provisions of Code Civ. Proc. § 1013(a). McBride v. Alpha Realty Corp. (1975) 49 Cal. App. 3d 925, 929, 123 Cal. Rptr. 270 (decided under prior law)

Failure of trial court to read findings prepared by prevailing party on controverted facts was improper and constituted irregularity under Code Civ. Proc. § 657(1) related to motions for new trial. Chung Sing v. Southern Pac. Co. (1920) 182 Cal. 609, 609-610 (decided under prior law)

[7] Purpose of Requiring Findings

Purpose of findings is to answer questions raised by pleadings and to make case more susceptible to review by disclosing exact grounds on which judgment rests. Estate of Pack (1965) 233 Cal. App. 2d 74, 78, 43 Cal. Rptr. 361 (decided under prior law)

Duty of trial court to make findings on all material issues in order that parties and appellate court may determine factual basis for court's decision. Green v. City of Los Angeles (1974) 40 Cal. App. 3d 819, 835, 115 Cal. Rptr. 685 (decided under prior law)

Function of trial court as normal and primary finder of facts is uniformly recognized. Hicks v. Barnes (1952) 109 Cal. App. 2d 859, 863, 241 P.2d 648 (decided under prior law)

[8] Requirements and Sufficiency of Findings

[a] Findings Required to State Ultimate Facts

[i] In General

Trial court must find ultimate facts; that is, court as required to find those facts to which legal consequences attach. London v. Guberman (1963) 214 Cal. App. 2d 215, 219, 29 Cal. Rptr. 279 (decided under prior law)

Ultimate facts as logical conclusions deduced from certain primary facts evidentiary in character. Hayward Lbr. & Inv. Co. v. Construction Products Corp. (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 1, 3, 241 P.2d 1054 (decided under prior law)

Findings of fact as not excluding conclusions of fact, only conclusions of law. Hayward Lbr. & Inv. Co. v. Construction Prod. Corp. (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 1, 3, 241 P.2d 1054 (decided under prior law)

Finding of ultimate fact of serious and willful misconduct in language of statute as not fatally insufficient in form merely because of generality of language. California Shipbuilding Corp. v. Industrial Acci. Com. (1947) 31 Cal. 2d 270, 271, 188 P.2d 27 (involving award of increased compensation in workers' compensation case) (decided under prior law)

Plaintiff as having no prescriptive or other right to receive water from canal at any other level than bottom of canal as ultimate fact. Weidenmueller v. Stearns Ranchos Co. (1900) 128 Cal. 623, 625-626, 61 P. 374 (decided under prior law)

Plaintiff as having not rescinded sales as ultimate fact. Hollenbach v. Schnabel (1894) 101 Cal. 312, 317, 35 P. 872 (decided under prior law)

Finding that property owned by married person is separate property as finding of ultimate fact. In re Marriage of Knickerbocker (1974) 43 Cal. App. 3d 1039, 1042, 118 Cal. Rptr. 232 (decided under prior law)

[ii] Conclusions of Law Distinguished

If, from facts in evidence, result can be reached by that process of natural reasoning adopted in investigation of truth, result as ultimate fact and not conclusion of law. Levins v. Rovegno (1886) 71 Cal. 273, 278, 12 P. 161 ; Ball v. American Trial Lawyers Assn. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 289, 306, 92 Cal. Rptr. 228 (decided under prior law)

If, from facts in evidence, resort must be had to artificial processes of law in order to reach final determination, result as conclusion of law. Levins v. Rovegno (1886) 71 Cal. 273, 278, 12 P. 161 ; Ball v. American Trial Lawyers Assn. (1971) 14 Cal. App. 3d 289, 306, 92 Cal. Rptr. 228 (decided under prior law)

PART IV. FORMS

46-529 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 529.60

§ 529.60 Request for Statement of Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]

[1] FORM Request for Statement of Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)	NO. _____
vs.	)	REQUEST FOR
_____ [name],	)	STATEMENT OF Defendant.	)	DECISION

_____ [Specify party, e.g., Plaintiff], who appeared at the trial of the above-entitled action, hereby requests that the court issue a statement of decision explaining the factual and legal bases for its decision regarding the following controverted issues:

1. _____ [Specify controverted issue, e.g., Whether or not defendant breached a duty of care owed to plaintiff].

[Set forth additional controverted issues. State and enumerate each issue separately.]

Dated: _____.

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Use of Form

This form of request for statement of decision is for use by any party appearing at trial. The request must specify the controverted issues that the requesting party wishes to be included in the statement of decision and must be made within 10 days after the court announces a tentative decision or, if the trial lasts less than one calendar day, or less than eight hours over a period of more than one day, before submission of the matter for decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 632].

The 10-day period commences at the time the clerk mails the copy of the minute order or decision, and the request is timely "made" when it is received and filed during this period [see Staten v. Heale (1997) 57 Cal. App. 4th 1084, 1088-1091, 68 Cal. Rptr. 2d 35] . It appears that the statement of decision may be limited to only those issues specified in the request, when less than all material issues are specified [see Harvard Investment Co. v. Gap Stores, Inc. (1984) 156 Cal. App. 3d 704, 709 n.3, 202 Cal. Rptr. 891] .

Procedure relating to the statement of decision is governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590. For discussion, see § 529.15.

46-529 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 529.61

§ 529.61 Proposal as to Content of Statement of Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]

[1] FORM Proposal as to Content of Statement of Decision [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]

SUPERIOR COURT OF CALIFORNIA,
COUNTY OF _____

_____ [name],	)
Plaintiff,	)
vs.	)	NO. _____
_____ [name],	)	PROPOSAL AS TO CONTENT OF STATEMENT
Defendant.	)	OF DECISION

_____ [Specify party, e.g., Plaintiff] in the above-entitled action hereby makes the following proposals as to the content of the statement of decision:

1. That the factual and legal bases for the court's decision regarding the controverted issue of _____ [specify controverted issue to be included in statement of decision] be explained as follows:

a. The court based its decision on the following facts: _____ [set forth factual determinations explaining court's decision].

b. The legal basis for the court's decision is _____ [set forth legal determinations explaining court's decision].

[Set forth any additional issues to be included. State and enumerate each issue separately.]

Dated: _____.

Respectfully submitted,
_____ [firm name, if any]
By: _____ [signature]
_____ [typed name]
Attorney for _____ [party's status and name]

[2] Use of Form

This form is a proposal for the content of a statement of decision for use by any party [Code Civ. Proc. § 632]. If a party requests a statement of decision, any other party may make proposals as to the content of the statement of decision within 10 days after the date of request for a statement of decision [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(e)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 632 does not expressly define "proposals as to the content of the statement of decision." Therefore, it is unclear whether "content" refers to the issues to be included, to the explanation of the court's decision, or both. Because any party may specify which controverted issues should be included when that party requests a statement of decision, it would seem that once a request is made, any other party would also be allowed to propose what issues will be included in the statement of decision [see Code Civ. Proc. § 632, 634]. Thus, counsel may wish to propose both the issues to be included and a statement of the factual and legal bases for the court's decision.

Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590, refers separately to proposals as to the content of the statement of decision and the proposed statement of decision, although it does not indicate whether there is a distinction in form between the two. If it is determined that there is no distinction in form, counsel may wish to attach a proposed statement of decision, such as the one set out in § 529.62, to the caption and introduction of this form, as an alternative to setting out the proposed contents as done here. Counsel should consult local practice to ascertain what form of proposals and proposed statement of decision will be accepted by the court.

[3] Distinction Between Factual and Legal Bases for Decision

Code Civ. Proc. § 632 requires that the statement of decision contain the factual and legal bases for the court's decision. Formerly, findings of fact and conclusions of law were presented separately, suggesting that perhaps the factual basis and the legal basis for a court's decision should each be presented separately within the statement of decision, as in the foregoing form. In addition, Code Civ. Proc. § 909 provides that in a nonjury trial a reviewing court may make factual determinations contrary to the factual determinations made by the trial court. In these cases, at least, the factual basis for a decision would apparently be treated separately from the legal basis for a decision.

Nevertheless, prior to the elimination of findings of fact and conclusions of law, courts held that the distinction between conclusions of fact and conclusions of law are difficult to make [Hayward Lbr. & Inv. Co. v. Construction Prod. Corp. (1952) 110 Cal. App. 2d 1, 3, 241 P.2d 1054] . In addition, appellate courts treated factual determinations by trial courts as findings of fact, whether a trial court presented them as findings of fact or conclusions of law [Rees v. Department of Motor Vehicles (1970) 8 Cal. App. 3d 746, 749, 87 Cal. Rptr. 456 ; San Francisco Boys' Club, Inc. v. County of Mendocino (1967) 254 Cal. App. 2d 548, 562-563, 62 Cal. Rptr. 294] . Courts also held that conclusions of law, although mentioned in former Code Civ. Proc. § 632, were a relatively useless appendage to findings of fact, since the important conclusion of law is the judgment [Mayes v. Sturdy N. Sales, Inc. (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 69, 82, 154 Cal. Rptr. 43 ; Estate of Grimble (1974) 42 Cal. App. 3d 741, 750, 117 Cal. Rptr. 125].

These opinions suggest that courts have considered the distinction between findings of fact and conclusions of law as meaningless or unclear, which may have been one factor resulting in the elimination of findings of fact and conclusions of law in favor of the statement of decision as a single unit. Therefore, in a statement of decision, stating a legal basis for the court's decision separately from the factual basis for the decision may be unnecessary. Counsel may wish to modify this form, to state the factual and legal bases for a decision together. It is as yet unclear, however, whether the preferred form of statement of decision will be one in which the factual and legal determinations are set forth together or one in which they are set forth separately.

[4] Timing of Proposals

The time within which to submit proposals as to content of statement of decision is governed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(e). For discussion, see §§ 529.14 and 529.15. When a trial is completed within one day or in less than eight hours over more than one day, a request for statement of decision must be made before the matter is submitted for decision and the statement of decision may be made orally on the record in the presence of the parties [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(n)].

ORDER FOR HEARING
[Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(k)]

Proof having been made to the satisfaction of the court that the application by _____ [specify party, e.g., defendant] for an order for a hearing ought to be granted,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that a hearing on _____ [proposals as to content of the statement of decision or objections to the proposed statement of decision or objections to the proposed judgment] be held on _____ [date], at _____ [time], or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, in the courtroom of [_____ (Department or Division) _____ of] the above-entitled court.

Judge of the Superior Court

[2] Use of Form

This form of ex parte application for an order for a hearing is for use by any party when counsel for any party seeks a hearing on proposals as to content of the statement of decision or objections to the proposed statement of decision that have been submitted or filed by that party or by any other party. It may also be used to seek a hearing on objections to the proposed judgment when a statement of decision is not requested or has been waived [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(k); see Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(h), (i)]. The application should be presented to the judge for signature on the portion of the form that constitutes the order granting the hearing.

Neither Code Civ. Proc. § 632 nor Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(d) expressly requires that a proposal as to content of the statement of decision be served and filed or served and submitted. Therefore, if a hearing on the proposal is requested by ex parte application, it is not required that the proposal be served on the other parties, although it is better practice to do so.

Objections to either the proposed statement of decision or the proposed judgment must be served and filed [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(g), (j)]. There are no requirements for serving or filing the proposal as to the content of the statement, but they would be submitted to the court. Therefore, if counsel is filing any objections concurrently with submitting the ex parte application, he or she should remember to serve the objections also.

Counsel should consult local court rules and procedure for requirements for ex parte applications.

[2] Use of Form

This form of notice of motion is for use by any party who has failed to comply with one of the time limits prescribed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590 [for discussion of those time periods, see § 529.15[1]]. At any time prior to the entry of judgment, the court may, for good cause shown and on such terms as may be just, excuse a noncompliance with the time limits prescribed for doing any act required by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(m)].

Depending on the circumstances, it may be necessary to shorten the 16 court-day minimum notice period required by Code Civ. Proc. § 1005. In such a case counsel should submit an ex parte application for an order shortening time for notice of motion [see Code Civ. Proc. § 1005(b); see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1300(b) (requiring supporting declaration showing good cause for shortening time)]. The ex parte application, a supporting declaration, proposed order, and a memorandum in support of the application must be submitted to the judge along with the form. For discussion and forms of ex parte application, supporting declaration, proposed order, and order shortening time for service of notice of motion, see Ch. 524, Shortening and Extension of Time .

Counsel may also move for a written order extending any of the time limits prescribed by Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590 [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1590(m)]; see also Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 1.10(c) (extensions of time generally)].

[3] Supporting Memorandum

A supporting memorandum must accompany notices of motion in law and motion proceedings [Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1113(a)]. Although the proceeding in which this form would be used does not fall within the definition of law and motion proceedings in Cal. Rules of Ct., Rule 3.1103(a), it is nevertheless recommended that this form be accompanied with supporting memoranda. § 530.10 Governing Statutes

The basic statute of frauds, requiring certain types of contracts to be in writing, is Civ. Code § 1624. In addition, numerous other statutes require that other types of contracts be in writing. Some of these statutory requirements overlap. For a list of these statutes, see § 530.31.

Personal property leases first effective between the parties on or after January 1, 1990, are governed by Division 10 of the Commercial Code (Com. Code § 10101 et seq.), which is discussed in Ch. 413, Personal Property Leases , not by Civ. Code § 1624[Civ. Code § 1624(g)].

Chapter 530 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

46-530 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 530.11

§ 530.11 Purpose of Statute of Frauds

Some contracts are declared to be invalid unless the contract, or some note or memorandum of it, is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged or by his or her agent. The requirement of a writing is imposed by a number of statutory provisions dealing with various kinds of contracts [see, e.g., Civ. Code § 1624; Fam. Code § 1611]. The primary kinds of contracts that are required to be in writing are discussed in § 530.12.

The purpose of the statute of frauds is to prevent fraud and perjury with respect to certain agreements by requiring more reliable evidence of those agreements in the form of a writing signed by the party to be charged in order to enforce those agreements [Seaman's Direct Buying Service, Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 764, 206 Cal. Rptr. 354, 686 P.2d 1158 (overruled on other grounds in Freeman & Mills, Inc. v. Belcher Oil Co. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 85, 88, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 420, 900 P.2d 669); Riley v. Bear Creek Planning Committee (1976) 17 Cal. 3d 500, 509, 131 Cal. Rptr. 381, 551 P.2d 1213] . The purpose of the statute of frauds has been described as evidentiary in nature, to prevent the enforcement of promises or contracts that were never in fact made, but not to justify repudiation of promises that were in fact made [Seaman's Direct Buying Service, Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 764, 206 Cal. Rptr. 354, 686 P.2d 1158 , (*overruled on other grounds in Freeman & Mills, Inc. v. Belcher Oil Co. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 85, 88, 44 Cal. [i] Statement of Rule

An agreement that by its terms is not to be performed within one year from the making of the agreement is invalid unless it, or some note or memorandum of it, is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged or his or her agent [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1)].

If a contract is silent as to its duration, but is implied by law to be for a reasonble time, the contract falls within the statute of frauds if the trier of fact determines that the reasonable time amounts to a period in excess of one year [San Francisco Brewing Corp. v. Bowman (1959) 52 Cal. 2d 607, 615-619, 343 P.2d 1 (exclusive distributorship)].

A contingency that may extend a contract for more than one year, such as an option to renew for the succeeding year that is exercisable prior to the end of the current year, does not bring a contract within the statute of frauds [Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 759, 161 P.2d 217 (employment contract)].

[ii] Real Property Leases Are Governed by Two Provisions

Leases of real property for a period of longer than one year are required to be in writing by other statutory provisions, in addition to Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1) [see Civ. Code §§ 1091, 1624(a)(3); Code Civ. Proc. § 1971, discussed in [4], below]. There is no distinction in the manner in which these overlapping requirements are applied to leases, however [see Fisher v. Parsons (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 829, 837, 29 Cal. Rptr. 210 (no distinction between Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1) and (3)); but see Bed, Bath & Beyond of La Jolla, Inc. v. La Jolla Village Square Venture Partners (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 867, 875-877, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 830 (finding distinction and holding that agreement to lease real property for term exceeding one year is within Civ. Code § 1624 regardless whether agreement provides that it may be canceled or terminated within one year of date of its making and prior to commencement of the lease term)].

[iii] Possibility of Performance Within One Year

Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1) applies only to those contracts which, by their terms, cannot possibly be performed within one year [Foley v. Interactive Data Corp. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 654, 674-675, 254 Cal. Rptr. 211, 765 P.2d 373 (employment as long as employee's performance was satisfactory); White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 343, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345 (not applicable to contract for permanent employment for indefinite period); Hollywood Motion Picture Equip. Co. v. Furer (1940) 16 Cal. 2d 184, 187, 105 P.2d 299 (not applicable to agreement not to make castings from plaintiff's patterns exclusively for plaintiff, with no reference to time)]. For a contract to be within Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1), there must not be the slightest possibility that it can be fully performed within one year [Foley v. Interactive Data Corp. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 654, 674-675, 254 Cal. Rptr. 211, 765 P.2d 373 ; White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 343 n.2, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345 ; Fisher v. Parsons (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 829, 837, 29 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Contingency Could Occur Within One Year. A requirements contract for office space provided that the lease would be effective so long as the lessee was in business and required space and so long as appropriate space was available. Did the lease come within Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1)? No, contingencies could terminate the contract in less than one year [Fisher v. Parsons (1963) 213 Cal. App. 2d 829, 837, 29 Cal. Rptr. 210] .

Application of this rule provides that if a condition terminating a contract may occur within one year of its making, the contract is performable within a year and does not fall within the scope of the statute of frauds. This is true even though performance of the contract may extend for longer than one year if the condition does not occur [Foley v. Interactive Data Corp. (1988) 47 Cal. 3d 654, 673, 254 Cal. Rptr. 211, 765 P.2d 373 ; Abeyta v. Superior Court (1993) 17 Cal. App. 4th 1037, 1045-1046, 21 Cal. Rptr. 2d 680] . Thus, an employment contract for an indefinite period is not brought within the statute of frauds merely because the compensation is measured by annual gross sales or the value of the services to the employer over a period of more than one year [White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 343-344, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345 ; see also Gray v. Superior Court (1986) 181 Cal. App. 3d 813, 821, 226 Cal. Rptr. 570 (following White Lighting Co. but noting contrary authority)]. Similarly, an oral contract of employment that is terminable only for good cause is not within statute of frauds because it good cause may exist within one year of formation of the contract [Jenkins v. Family Health Program (1989) 214 Cal. App. 3d 440, 445-446, 262 Cal. Rptr. 798 ; Steward v. Mercy Hospital (1987) 188 Cal. App. 3d 1290, 1296, 233 Cal. Rptr. 881 ; accord Robards v. Gaylord Bros., Inc. (9th Cir. 1988) 854 F.2d 1152, 1155] .

[b] Computation of One-Year Period

In computing the one-year period referred to in Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1), the day on which the agreement is made is excluded; the period begins on the following day and ends at the close of the anniversary of the day on which the agreement was made [Columbia Pictures Corp. v. DeToth (1945) 26 Cal. 2d 753, 759, 161 P.2d 217] .

ILLUSTRATION:

One-Year Contract Commencing After Contract Is Made. A contract is limited to a one-year period, but that period is to begin in the future and not on the day following the making of the contract. Does the statute of frauds require that contract to be in writing? Yes [Kraft v. Rooke (1930) 103 Cal. App. 552, 555, 284 P. 935 ; see also American Trust Co. v. Kindsfater (1960) 187 Cal. App. 2d 735, 737-739, 9 Cal. Rptr. 840] .

[c] Exception for Qualified Financial Contracts

[i] Terms of Exception

Notwithstanding the general requirement regarding agreements not to be performed within one year [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1); see discussion in [a], above], a "qualified financial contract" [see Civ. Code § 1624(b)(2); see also discussion in [ii], below] that is valid in other respects and is otherwise enforceable is not invalid for lack of a note, memorandum, or other writing and is enforceable by way of action or defense, if either of the following conditions are satisfied [Civ. Code § 1624(b)(1)]:

- There is sufficient evidence to indicate that a contract has been made [Civ. Code § 1624(b)(3); see discussion in [iii], below].

- The parties have agreed by means of a prior or subsequent written contract to be bound by the terms of the qualified financial contract from the time they reached agreement (by telephone, by exchange of electronic messages, or otherwise) on those terms.

"Qualified financial contracts" that meet the requirements of Civ. Code § 1624(b) also are excepted from the statute of frauds contained in Com. Code §§ 1206 and 2201 [Com. Code §§ 1206(3), 2201(4)]. For an allegation of a qualified financial contract meeting these criteria, see § 530.61.

[ii] "Qualified Financial Contracts" Defined

A "qualified financial contract" means an agreement as to which each party is other than a natural person and that is for any of the following [Civ. Code § 1624(b)(2)]:

- The purchase and sale of foreign exchange, foreign currency, bullion, coin, or precious metals on a forward, spot, next-day value or other basis.

- The purchase (other than the purchase of a commodity for future delivery on, or subject to the rules of, a contract market or board of trade), sale, or transfer of any commodity or any similar good, article, service, right, or interest that is presently or in the future becomes the subject of a dealing in the forward contract trade, or any product or byproduct thereof, with a maturity date more than two days after the date the contract is entered into.

- The purchase and sale of currency, or interbank deposits denominated in United States dollars.

- A currency option, currency swap, or cross-currency rate swap.

- A commodity swap or a commodity option (other than an option contract traded on, or subject to the rules of, a contract market or board of trade).

- A rate swap, basis swap, forward rate transaction, or an interest rate option.

- A security-index swap or option, or a security or securities price swap or option.

- Any other similar transaction relating to a price or index (including any transaction or agreement involving any combination of the above, any cap, floor, collar, or similar transaction with respect to a rate, commodity price, commodity index, security or securities price, security index, other price index, or loan price).

- An option with respect to any of the above.

[iii] Evidence Sufficient To Establish Qualified Financial Contract Was Made

Evidence of an electronic communication (including the recording of a telephone call or the tangible written text produced by computer retrieval), admissible in evidence under the laws of California, sufficient to indicate that in the communication a contract was made between the parties, is sufficient evidence that a contract has been made [Civ. Code § 1624(b)(3)(A)].

If a confirmation in writing sufficient to indicate that a contract has been made between the parties and sufficient against the sender is received by the party against whom enforcement is sought no later than the fifth business day after the contract is made (or any other period of time that the parties agree in writing) and the sender does not receive, on or before the third business day after receipt (or the other period of time that the parties agree in writing), written objection to a material term of the confirmation, there is sufficient evidence that a contract has been made [Civ. Code § 1624(b)(3)(B); see Civ. Code § 1624(b)(4) (communication of confirmation or objection by electronic signals)].

Furthermore, there is sufficient evidence that a contract has been made if the party against whom enforcement is sought admits in its pleading, testimony, or otherwise in court that a contract was made [Civ. Code § 1624(b)(3)(C)]. Finally, a note, memorandum, or other writing sufficient to indicate that a contract has been made, signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought or by its authorized agent or broker, constitutes sufficient evidence that a contract has been made [Civ. Code § 1624(b)(3)(D)].

[2] Promise to Answer for Another's Debt

[a] General Requirement and Exceptions

A special promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another is invalid unless it, or some note or memorandum of it, is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged or by his or her agent [Civ. Code §§ 1624(a)(2), 2793]. Exceptions to this rule exist when the promise to answer for the obligation of another is deemed an original obligation of the promisor, and thus need not be in writing, in any of the following cases [Civ. Code §§ 1624(a)(2), 2793, 2794]:

- When the promise is made by one who has received property of another on an undertaking to apply it pursuant to that promise, or by one who has received a discharge from an obligation in whole or in part, in consideration of that promise.

- When the creditor parts with value, or enters into an obligation, in consideration of the obligation in respect to which the promise is made, in terms or under circumstances which render the party making the promise the principal debtor and the person in whose behalf it is made, his or her surety.

- When a promise to answer for an antecedent obligation of another is made in a consideration for the promisee's canceling the antecedent obligation and accepting the new promise as a substitute, or in consideration for the promisee releasing the property of another from a levy or his or her person from imprisonment under an execution on a judgment obtained on the antecedent obligation.

- When the promise is given for a consideration beneficial to the promisor, whether moving from either party to the antecedent obligation or from another person.

- When a factor undertakes, for a commission, to sell merchandise and act as surety in connection with the sale.

- When the holder of an instrument for the payment of money, on which a third person is or may become liable to him or her, transfers it in payment of a precedent debt of the holder or for a new consideration and, in connection with the transfer, enters into a promise respecting that instrument.

ILLUSTRATION:

Examples of Promises Benefitting Promisor. Assumption of a chattel mortgage may render the promisor the principal debtor [Parrish v. Greco (1953) 118 Cal. App. 2d 556, 561, 258 P.2d 566 ; see Civ. Code § 2794(2)]. A sale made on the promisor's promise to pay with delivery to a third party may render the promisor the principal debtor [Merz v. Poole (1927) 82 Cal. App. 12, 14-15, 254 P. 914] . A promise to indemnify the sheriff for any damage to property attached in a suit brought by the promisor and delivered to the promisor by the sheriff rendered the promisor the principal debtor and the promise outside the statute of frauds [Burr v. Cross (1906) 3 Cal. App. 414, 415-416, 86 P. 824] .

In determining whether or not a promise is given for consideration beneficial to the promisor, so as to take the promise to answer for another's debt out of the statute of frauds pursuant to Civ. Code § 2794(4), if the leading and main object of the promisor is not to become surety or guarantor of another but to serve the promisor's own purposes or interests, the promise is not within the statute, even though its effect may be to pay the debt or discharge the obligation of another [Schumm v. Berg (1951) 37 Cal. 2d 174, 187, 231 P.2d 39 (promise to support child on consideration of mother's forbearance from paternity suit was not within statute)]. Under this test, for example, the promise of the majority shareholder of a corporation to pay the corporation's debt to a supplier in consideration for the supplier's continuing deliveries to the corporation may be an original obligation of the shareholder under Civ. Code § 2794(4) [Michael Distrib. Co. v. Tobin (1964) 225 Cal. App. 2d 655, 664-666, 37 Cal. Rptr. 518] . The consideration usually is, but does not need to be, pecuniary [Farr & Stone Ins. Brokers, Inc. v. Lopez (1976) 61 Cal. App. 3d 618, 622, 132 Cal. Rptr. 641 (benefits to children's welfare and economic venture and to own business reputation were sufficient)]. An incidental or secondary benefit is insufficient, however [Seneca Communications, Inc. v. International Bank of California (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 541, 550-551, 163 Cal. Rptr. 176 (applying Code Civ. Proc. § 1974; bank's desire to keep customer was insufficient benefit in relation to representation regarding customer's account)].

If the promise to pay another person's debt is made to the debtor rather than to the debtor's creditor, there is no contract to answer for the debt of another within the statute of frauds [King v. Smith (1948) 33 Cal. 2d 71, 74, 199 P.2d 308] .

[b] Guaranty on Face of Commercial Paper

The obligation of a guarantor of a negotiable instrument or the obligation of an accommodation party (one who signs as maker, drawer, acceptor, or indorser for the benefit of another) may be enforced notwithstanding any statute of frauds and whether or not the accommodation party receives consideration for the accommodation [Com. Code § 3419(b); see Com. Code § 3419(d) (when collection rather than payment is guaranteed)].

[c] Personal Representative's Promise to Pay Estate Debt

No personal representative is chargeable on a special promise to answer in damages for a liability of the decedent or to pay a debt of the decedent out of the personal representative's own estate unless the agreement for that purpose, or some memorandum or note of that agreement, is in writing and is signed by either the personal representative or by some other person specifically authorized by the personal representative in writing to sign the agreement or the memorandum or note [Prob. Code § 9604; see also Ch. 456, Probate: Management of Estate Assets].

[d] Nonprofit Association Member's Promise to Pay Association Debt

A member, director, or agent of a nonprofit association is not liable for a debt, obligation, or liability of the association solely by reason of being a member, director, officer, or agent [Corp. Code § 18605; see Corp. Code § 21200 (nonliability of members of unincorporated association that is organized as medical society)].

A member of a nonprofit association is not liable for a contractual obligation of the association unless one of the following conditions is satisfied [Corp. Code § 18610]:

- The member expressly assumes personal responsibility for the obligation in a signed writing that specifically identifies the obligation assumed.

- The member expressly authorizes or ratifies the specific contract, as evidenced by a writing, except when the member authorizes or ratifies a contract solely in the member's capacity as a director, officer, or agent of the association.

- With notice of the contract, the member receives a benefit under the contract; in this case, liability is limited to the value of the benefit received.

- The member executes the contract without disclosing that the member is acting on behalf of the association.

- The member executes the contract without authority to execute the contract.

In any event, a member or person in control of a nonprofit association may be subject to liability for a debt, obligation, or liability of the association under common law principles governing alter ego liability of shareholders of a corporation, taking into account the differences between a nonprofit association and a corporation [Corp. Code § 18630].

[e] Representation Regarding Another's Credit

No evidence is admissible to charge a person on a representation as to the credit of a third person unless the representation, or some memorandum of it, is in writing, either subscribed by or in the handwriting of the party to be charged [Code Civ. Proc. § 1974]. Code Civ. Proc. § 1974 bars any cause of action in which proof of the oral representation is essential, including actions for negligent and fraudulent misrepresentation of a third party's credit [Seneca Communications, Inc. v. International Bank of California (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 541, 547-548, 163 Cal. Rptr. 176 (bank not liable to creditor for false oral representation concerning existence and amount of debtor's account)].

Code Civ. Proc. § 1974 is a statute of frauds provision and is to be applied consistently with Civ. Code § 1624(a)(2) [Code Civ. Proc. § 1974; see discussion of Civ. Code § 1624(a)(2) at [2][a], above]. The requirement that Code Civ. Proc. § 1974 be applied consistently with Civ. Code § 1624(a)(2) is intended to make construction of Civ. Code § 1624 applicable to cases under Code Civ. Proc. § 1974. Thus, Code Civ. Proc. § 1974, like Civ. Code § 1624(a)(2), is inapplicable in cases in which the representation is made under circumstances involving an estoppel to assert the statute of frauds, a fraud by a fiduciary on his or her principal, or a benefit received by defendant himself or herself [see Seneca Communications, Inc. v. International Bank of California (1980) 103 Cal. App. 3d 541, 548-549, 163 Cal. Rptr. 176] .

For a form for a complaint for damages for misrepresentation of the creditworthiness of another, see Ch. 95, Banks, Deposits, and Checks .

[3] Prenuptial Agreements

Premarital agreements executed on or after January 1, 1986 are governed by the Uniform Premarital Agreement Act (Fam. Code § 1500 et seq.) [Fam. Code § 1601]. Agreements executed prior to that date are governed by the prior law [Fam. Code § 1503; see former Civ. Code §§ 1624(3), 5134]. Premarital agreements are discussed in Ch. 359, Marriage .

The Uniform Premarital Agreement Act requires a premarital agreement to be in writing and signed by both parties in order for it to be enforceable, although no additional consideration is required [Fam. Code § 1611; see Hall v. Hall (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 578, 585, 271 Cal. Rptr. 773 (oral agreements are not enforceable outside Act despite single "throw away" legislative committee comment to contrary)]. Agreements within the Act are specifically limited to agreements between prospective spouses [Fam. Code § 1610(a)]. Thus, the Act does not govern agreements relating to the disposition of property between parties who live together without marrying [see Marvin v. Marvin (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 660, 673-675, 134 Cal. Rptr. 815, 557 P.2d 106] . Agreements by persons not contemplating marriage are discussed in Ch. 387, Nonmarital Cohabitation , and in Kirkland, Lurvey & Richmond, California Family Law Practice amd Procedure, 2nd ed., Chs. 2, 200 (Matthew Bender)

The Uniform Premarital Agreement Act (Fam. Code § 1500 et seq.) does not specifically make reference to any of the traditional exceptions to the statute of frauds. However, it does not preclude them either. A court of appeal has held that traditional exceptions do apply to Fam. Code § 1611 [see Hall v. Hall (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 578, 587, 271 Cal. Rptr. 773 (oral premarital agreement made in spring of 1986 enforceable under partial performance exception, discussed in § 530.18[3])].

[4] Agreement to Transfer Real Property Interest

An agreement to sell real property or an interest therein, or to lease it for a period exceeding one year, is invalid unless the agreement, or some note or memorandum of it, is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged or his or her agent. In addition, such an agreement, if made by an agent of the party sought to be charged, is invalid unless the authority of the agent is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3); see, e.g., Elias Real Estate, LLC v. Tseng (2007) 156 Cal. App. 4th 425, 430-434, 67 Cal. Rptr. 3d 360 (three brothers, who with a fourth brother owned parcel of real property as tenants in common, were not bound by fourth brother's acceptance of offer to buy, because that brother's authority, if any, to act as agent for others was not evidenced by any writing that others had signed)].

Agreements to convey an interest in real property, within the meaning of Civ. Code § 1624(a)(3), include, for example, the following:

- A conveyance or an agreement to convey water rights [Stepp v. Williams (1921) 52 Cal. App. 237, 253, 198 P. 661] ;

- An option to purchase real property [Pacific S.W. Dev. Corp. v. Western Pac. R.R. Co. (1956) 47 Cal. 2d 62, 68, 301 P.2d 825 (Civ. Code § 1624(a)(4)); Ganiats Constr., Inc. v. Hesse (1960) 180 Cal. App. 2d 377, 383-384, 4 Cal. Rptr. 706] ; and

- Agreements restricting the right to alienate real property [Estate of Baglione (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 192, 197, 53 Cal. Rptr. 139, 417 P.2d 683 ; Pellerito v. Dragna (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 85, 89, 105 P.2d 1011] .

A borrower-buyer's oral promise to grant a lien on real property in return for the loan of money with which to purchase that property is severable from its promises to repay principal and to pay interest and fees on the loan. A borrower to whom a loan is made in that situation will be required to grant the lien on the basis of estoppel and part performance [Landes Constr. Co., Inc. v. Royal Bank of Canada (9th Cir. 1987) 833 F.2d 1365, 1370 n.1 (applying California law and decided before enactment of Civ. Code § 1624(a)(7), discussed at [10], below)].

Similarly, an agreement to share the profits from a transaction involving real estate is not required to be in writing. Thus, although an agreement assigning a fractional interest in the minerals produced under an oil and gas lease is a transfer of an interest in real property that must be in writing, an agreement giving an interest in the net profits realized under an oil and gas lease is not required to be in writing [Dutton v. Interstate Inv. Corp. (1941) 19 Cal. 2d 65, 69-70, 119 P.2d 138] .

A partnership or joint venture agreement may be oral even though one party's contribution to the partnership or joint venture consists of real property [James v. Herbert (1957) 149 Cal. App. 2d 741, 748, 309 P.2d 91] .

[5] Transfer of Real Property Interest

An estate in real property, other than an estate at will or for a term not exceeding one year, can be transferred only by operation of law, or by an instrument in writing, subscribed by the party disposing of the estate or by an agent authorized by writing [Civ. Code § 1091; but see Estate of Stephens v. Williams (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 665, 677-678, 678, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358, 49 P.3d 1093 (conveyance signed by amanuensis ["one who copies or writes from the dictation of another"] performing a mere mechanical function in signing rather than exercising judgment or discretion deemed valid as a deed under Civ. Code § 1091)]. No estate or interest in real property, other than leases for a term not exceeding one year, or any power over or concerning it or in any manner relating to it, can be created, granted, assigned, surrendered, or declared, except by operation of law, or a conveyance or other instrument in writing, subscribed by the party creating, granting, assigning, surrendering, or declaring the estate or interest, or by the party's lawful agent authorized by writing [Code Civ. Proc. § 1971; see also Prob. Code § 15206 (validity of trust in relation to real property)]. However, Code Civ. Proc. § 1971 is not to be construed to abridge the power of any court to compel the specific performance of an agreement, in case of part performance [Code Civ. Proc. § 1972(a); see § 530.18[4]]. Moreover, Code Civ. Proc. § 1971 does not affect the creation of a trust under the Trust Law (Prob. Code § 15000 et seq.) or prevent any trust from arising or being extinguished by implication or operation of law [Code Civ. Proc. § 1972(b); see Prob. Code § 82 (definition of trust within meaning of Trust Law)].

For a discussion of what constitutes an interest in real property, see [4], above.

[6] Mortgages and Deeds of Trust

A mortgage may only be created, renewed, or extended by writing, executed with the formalities required in the case of a grant of real property [Civ. Code § 2922]. Likewise, a power of attorney to execute a mortgage must be in writing, subscribed, acknowledged, or proved, certified, and recorded in the same manner as powers of attorney for grants of real property [Civ. Code § 2933].

An agreement by a purchaser of real property to pay an indebtedness secured by a mortgage or deed of trust on the property purchased, unless assumption of the indebtedness by the purchaser is specifically provided for in the conveyance of the property, is invalid unless the agreement, or some note or memorandum of it, is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged or by his or her agent [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(6)].

A borrower-buyer's oral promise to grant a lien on real property in return for the loan of money with which to purchase that property is severable from its promises to repay principal and to pay interest and fees on the loan. A borrower to whom a loan is made in that situation will be required to grant the lien on the basis of estoppel and part performance [Landes Constr. Co., Inc. v. Royal Bank of Canada (9th Cir. 1987) 833 F.2d 1365, 1370 n.1 (applying California law and decided before enactment of Civ. Code § 1624(a)(7), discussed at [10], below)].

An unsigned agreement by which a lender agreed to forbear from exercising the right of foreclosure under a deed of trust securing an interest in real property came within the statute of frauds. Although the forbearance agreement did not create, renew, or extend the note and deed of trust, it did modify them, and an agreement to modify a contract that is subject to the statute of frauds is also subject to the statute of frauds [Secrest v. Security National Mortgage Loan Trust 2002-2 (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 544, 553, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 275]. The fact that the borrowers made a down payment pursuant to the agreement did not estop the lender from asserting the statute of frauds [Secrest v. Security National Mortgage Loan Trust 2002-2 (2008) 167 Cal. App. 4th 544, 555, 84 Cal. Rptr. 3d 275]. The court of appeal therefore affirmed the trial court judgment declaring valid the lender's notice of default and election to sell under the deed of trust.

[7] Employment of Real Estate Broker

An agreement authorizing or employing an agent, broker, or any other person for compensation or a commission to purchase or sell real estate, to lease real estate for a period exceeding one year, or to procure, introduce, or find a purchaser or seller of real estate or a lessee or lessor of real estate when the lease is for a period exceeding one year is invalid unless the agreement, or some note or memorandum of it, is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged or by his or her agent [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(4)]. A contract to pay an unlicensed person a finder's fee for merely introducing a buyer and seller is also required by Civ. Code § 1624(a)(4) to be in writing [Tenzer v. Superscope, Inc. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 18, 25-27, 216 Cal. Rptr. 130, 702 P.2d 212] . For further discussion of Civ. Code § 1624(a)(4) and grounds for avoiding its effect, see Ch. 103, Brokers .

[8] Promise to Be Performed After Death

An agreement that, by its terms, is not to be performed during the lifetime of the promisor is invalid unless it, or some note or memorandum of it, is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged or by his or her agent [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(5)]. If it is possible that a contract may be performed during the lifetime of the promisor, it is not barred by Civ. Code § 1624(a)(5) [Roy v. Salisbury (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 176, 182, 130 P.2d 706] . For example, a contract to care for a dog if the owner was unable to do so or if the owner died was not required to be in writing because that contract could have been performed in decedent's lifetime if the dog had died first [see Roy v. Salisbury (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 176, 182, 130 P.2d 706] .

[9] Promise to Make Will

[a] Promise Made After 2000

A contract to make a will or devise or other instrument, or not to revoke a will or devise or other instrument, or to die intestate, if made after 2000, can be established only by one of the following [Prob. Code § 21700(a)]:

- Provisions of a will or other instrument stating the material provisions of the contract.
- An expressed reference in a will or other instrument to a contract and extrinsic evidence proving the terms of the contract.
- A writing signed by the decedent evidencing the contract.
- Clear and convincing evidence of an agreement between the decedent and the claimant or a promise by the decedent to the claimant that is enforceable in equity.
- Clear and convincing evidence of an agreement between the decedent and another person for the benefit of the claimant or a promise by the decedent to another person for the benefit of the claimant that is enforceable in equity.

For discussion of equitable enforcement of contracts to make wills, see [b] and [c], below, and Ch. 528, Specific Performance.

The execution of a joint will or mutual wills does not create a presumption of a contract not to revoke the will or wills [Prob. Code § 21700(b)].

[b] Promise Made in 1985-2000

Under former Prob. Code § 150 (repealed eff. Jan. 1, 2001), a contract to make a will or devise, not to revoke a will or devise, or to die intestate, if made in 1985-2000 [see Prob. Code § 21700(c)] can be established "only" by one of the following [former Prob. Code § 150(a) (repealed eff. Jan. 1, 2001)]:

- Provisions of a will stating material provisions of the contract.
- An express reference in a will to a contract and extrinsic evidence proving the terms of the contract.
- A writing signed by the decedent evidencing the contract.

The execution of a joint will or mutual wills does not create a presumption of a contract not to revoke the will or wills [former Prob. Code § 150(b)].

Notwithstanding the statement in former Prob. Code § 150 that a provision to make a will can "only" be established by one of the three methods listed above, the courts have held that an oral promise not to revoke a will may be enforced under the doctrine of equitable estoppel [Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 897, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588] . The court in Juran v. Epstein found that while generally former Prob. Code § 150(a) provided the sole means under which a party could establish an agreement not to revoke a will, in enacting that section the Legislature did not express an intent to abolish the use of the equitable estoppel doctrine in appropriate circumstances [Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 897, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588] . Equitable estoppel principles subsequently were held to be available under former Prob. Code § 150 (or its predecessor, former Civ. Code § 1624(6)) to enforce a testator's alleged oral agreement to leave all of his property to his son if the son cared for him during the testator's lifetime [Estate of Housley v. Haywood (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 358, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628 (whether date of alleged agreement was before or after 1985 was not ascertainable)]. The court, following Juran v. Epstein, stated that nothing in the express language of former Prob. Code § 150 distinguished between cases in which the promisor was alive and cases in which the promisor was dead [Estate of Housley v. Haywood (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 354-355, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628] . For discussion of the doctrine of equitable estoppel to assert the statute of frauds generally, see § 530.19. For application of the doctrine in an action for quasi-specific performance of a promise to make a will, see § 530.20 [see also Ch. 528, Specific Performance , Form 2 and Comment]. The related issue of part performance of an agreement to make a will is discussed in § 530.18[5].

A party also may be estopped from asserting the statute of limitations as a defense to an untimely action to enforce an oral promise to make a will. In a case in which the one-year statute of limitations set forth in Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2 applied because the promisor had made an inter vivos transfer of property covered by the contract, the court followed the reasoning of Juran v. Epstein discussed above [Battuello v. Battuello (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 842, 847-848, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548 ; see Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 897, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588] . It held that while Code Civ. Proc. § 366.2(a)(2) clearly shows that the Legislature intended that the one-year statute of limitations could not be "tolled" or "extended," the statute says nothing about equitable estoppel. The court concluded that in the absence of any such language or legislative history to the contrary, the doctrine of equitable estoppel still applies [Battuello v. Battuello (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 842, 847-848, 75 Cal. Rptr. 2d 548 (appellant alleged sufficient facts to come within doctrine of equitable estoppel to application of statute of limitations)].

A promise to leave another an interest in property is not necessarily a promise to devise or bequeath property so as to be governed by former Prob. Code § 150. In a case involving a promise made in contemplation of marriage to leave the prospective spouse a life estate, the agreement was held to be governed by Fam. Code § 1611 of the Uniform Premarital Agreement Act (discussed in [3], above). When the agreement was made, the property was held by a trust and it was contemplated that the conveyance of the life estate would be accomplished by modifying the trust instrument. Also, the promise was made prior to marriage, and the return consideration was the prospective spouse's promise to stop working

[c] Promise Made Before 1985

An agreement to devise or bequeath property or to make any provision for any person by will, if executed on or before December 31, 1984, is governed by former Civ. Code § 1624(6). Under this former statute, such an agreement is invalid unless it, or some note or memorandum of it, is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged or by his or her agent [former Civ. Code § 1624(6); see Estate of Baglione (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 192, 197, 53 Cal. Rptr. 139, 417 P.2d 683 (reciprocal agreement between spouses that property would go to other spouse on death); Palmer v. Phillips (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 291, 293-295, 266 P.2d 850 (promise to make will providing for person who acts as companion and manages affairs)]. However, case law permitted enforcement of oral agreements in equity under the doctrine of equitable estoppel in appropriate circumstances. For discussion, see Ch. 528, Specific Performance , Form 2, Comments; see also [b], above.

[10] Commercial Loan Commitment in Excess of $100,000

A contract, promise, undertaking, or commitment to loan money or to grant or extend credit, in an amount greater than $100,000, not primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, made by a person engaged in the business of lending or arranging for the lending of money or extending credit is invalid unless it, or some note or memorandum of it, is in writing and subscribed by the party to be charged or by that party's agent [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(7)]. For purposes of Civ. Code § 1624(a)(7), a contract, promise, undertaking, or commitment to loan money secured solely by residential property consisting of one to four dwelling units shall be deemed to be for personal, family, or household use [Civ. Code § 1624(a)(7)].

It was the intent of the Legislature in enacting Civ. Code § 1624(a)(7) that judicially and legislatively recognized defenses and exceptions to Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1)-(6) also apply to Civ. Code § 1624(a)(7) [Stats. 1988, ch. 1096, § 3].

[11] Sale of Personal Property in Excess of $5,000

A contract for the sale of personal property is not enforceable by way of action or defense beyond $5,000 in amount or value of remedy unless there is some writing that does all of the following [Com. Code § 1206(1)]:

- Indicates that a contract for sale has been made between the parties at a defined or stated price.
- Reasonably identifies the subject matter.
- Is signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought or by his or her authorized agent.

Com. Code § 1206(1) does not apply to any of following [Com. Code § 1206(2), (3)]:

- Contracts for the sale of goods [Com. Code § 2201; see discussion in [12], below].
- Contracts for the sale of securities [Com. Code § 8113; see discussion in [12][f], below].
- Security agreements [Com. Code §§ 9201, 9203; see discussion in [12][g], below].
- Qualified financial contracts [Civ. Code § 1624(b); see discussion in [1][c], above].

[12] Sale of Goods in Excess of $500

[a] In General

Except as otherwise provided in Com. Code § 2201, a contract for the sale of goods for the price of $500 or more is not enforceable by way of action or defense unless there is some writing sufficient to indicate that a contract for sale has been made between the parties and signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought or by his or her authorized agent or broker. A writing is not insufficient because it omits or incorrectly states a term agreed on, but the contract is not enforceable under this provision beyond the quantity of goods shown in the writing [Com. Code § 2201(1)].

Under Com. Code § 2201(1), there are only three definite and invariable requirements for the memorandum [Lockwood v. Smigel (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 800, 803, 96 Cal. Rptr. 289] :

- It must evidence a contract for the sale of goods.

- It must be "signed" (any authentication identifying the party to be charged) [see Donovan v. RRL Corp. (2001) 26 Cal. 4th 261, 276-278, 109 Cal. Rptr. 2d 807, 27 P.3d 702 (car dealership's name in printed newspaper advertisement was "signature" within meaning of Com. Code § 1201(38) sufficient to satisfy statute of frauds; when advertisement reasonably justifies recipient's understanding that communication was intended as offer, offeror's intent to authenticate his or her name as signature can be established from face of advertisement)].

- It must specify a quantity.

A memorandum evidencing a requirements contract is sufficient if it indicates that there has been a real transaction for the sale of output or for the purchase of requirements [Seaman's Direct Buying Service, Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 762-764, 206 Cal. Rptr. 354, 686 P.2d 1158 (overruled on other grounds in Freeman & Mills, Inc. v. Belcher Oil Co. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 85, 88, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 420, 900 P.2d 669)].

[b] Written Confirmation of Contract; Notice of Objection

Between merchants, if a writing confirming the contract and sufficient against the sender is received within a reasonable time and the party receiving it has reason to know its contents, it satisfies the requirements of Com. Code § 2201(1) against the receiving party unless written notice of objection to its contents is given within 10 days after it is received [Com. Code § 2201(2)]. A reasonable time for taking any action is determined by the nature, purpose, and circumstances of that action [Com. Code § 1204(2)].

ILLUSTRATION:

Letter of Credit as Confirmation. A buyer instructed its bank to issue an irrevocable letter of credit in favor of a seller. The letter of credit contained all the essential terms of the transaction and was signed by the buyer's bank, not by the buyer. Is the letter of credit a sufficient memorandum of confirmation under Com. Code § 2201(2) to allow the buyer to recover damages for the seller's breach of the contract? Yes. The letter of credit it was "sufficient against the sender" because the buyer's instruction to its bank to issue the letter of credit amounted to its adoption of the bank's signature as its own within the meaning of Com. Code § 1201(39) [now see Com. Code § 1201(38)]. In that limited sense, the bank was the buyer's agent, and most important, the buyer was bound by the letter of credit [Procyon Corp. v. Components Direct, Inc. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 409, 412-413, 249 Cal. Rptr. 813] .

[c] Estoppel

A California court of appeal has held that under Com. Code § 1103], equitable principles survived enactment of the Uniform Commercial Code in California. Thus, the doctrine of equitable estoppel is available to bar assertion of the statute of frauds to prevent enforcement of a contract for the sale of goods under the Commercial Code [Allied Grape Growers v. Bronco Wine Co. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 432, 442-443, 249 Cal. Rptr. 872 (commenting that Com. Code § 2201(3)(c), discussed in § 530.12[12][i], amounts to a codification of one aspect of equitable estoppel), disagreeing with Ninth Circuit's contrary conclusion in C. R. Fedrick, Inc. v. Borg-Warner Corp. (9th Cir. 1977) 552 F.2d 852, 856-858]. The majority of other jurisdictions apply the doctrine of estoppel to overcome the Commercial Code statute of frauds. As in other contexts, the doctrine of estoppel is proven if one party will suffer an unconscionable injury if the statute of frauds is asserted to prevent enforcement of an oral contract. Unconscionable injury results from denying enforcement of an oral contract after one party is induced by another to seriously change its position in reliance on the oral agreement. It also occurs in cases of unjust enrichment [Allied Grape Growers v. Bronco Wine Co. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 432, 444, 249 Cal. Rptr. 872] .

ILLUSTRATION:

Estoppel in Contract for Sale of Goods. In a situation involving an oral agreement for the purchase and sale of 850 tons of grapes, plaintiff had negotiated its way out of another contract for those grapes in order to enter the oral contract with the defendant. Then, defendant refused to schedule delivery of the grapes, at a time when there was a glut of grapes on the market and heavy rains were causing the grapes to rot in the field. Was plaintiff's change in position in reliance on the contract and resulting injury sufficient to bar the application of the statute of frauds on the basis of estoppel? Yes [Allied Grape Growers v. Bronco Wine Co. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 432, 444-445, 249 Cal. Rptr. 872] .

General principles for estoppel to assert the statue of frauds are discussed in § 530.19, below.

[d] Effect of Admission of Contract's Existence in Pleading, Testimony, or Otherwise

A contract that does not satisfy the requirements of Com. Code § 2201(1), but that is valid in other respects, is enforceable if the party against whom enforcement is sought admits in his or her pleading, testimony, or otherwise in court that a contract for sale was made. If an admission is made, the contract is enforceable to the extent of the quantity of goods admitted [Com. Code § 2201(3)(b)]. A question exists whether enactment of Com. Code § 2201(3)(b) would change the earlier result in Isaac v. A & B Loan Co. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 307, 247 Cal. Rptr. 104 , in which it was held that the fact that a defendant made a declaration in another action and referred to "an agreement" with plaintiff in that declaration did not bar the defendant from asserting the defense of the statute of frauds in the action on the contract [Isaac v. A & B Loan Co. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 307, 311-312, 247 Cal. Rptr. 104] .

[e] "Sale or Return" Transactions

Unless otherwise agreed, if goods that are delivered primarily for resale may be returned by the buyer even though they conform to the contract, the transaction is termed a "sale or return" [Com. Code § 2326(1)(b)]. This provision applies to contracts for the sale of goods to merchants who would buy only if the seller agreed to take back the goods in lieu of payment if the goods are not resold [UCC Comment to Com. Code § 2326]. Any "or return" term of a contract for sale is treated as a separate contract for sale within the statute of frauds provision of Com. Code § 2201 [Com. Code § 2326(3)].

[f] Sale of Securities

A contract or modification of a contract for the sale or purchase of a security is enforceable whether or not there is a writing signed or record authenticated by a party against whom enforcement is sought, even if the contract or modification is not capable of performance within one year of its making [Com. Code § 8113]. For a discussion of the sale of securities, see Ch. 163, Corporations: Transfers of Shares .

[g] Security Agreements

A security interest that is subject to Division 9 of the Commercial Code (which concerns personal property and fixtures as collateral) may be enforceable even if not created by a specific writing that was signed by the debtor [see generally Com. Code § 9201 et seq.]. The general rule is that a security interest is enforceable against the debtor and third parties with respect to the collateral when (1) value has been given, (2) the debtor has rights in the collateral or the power to transfer rights in the collateral to a secured party, and (3) any of four alternative conditions has been satisfied [Com. Code § 9203(b)]. Only one of those conditions requires a signed specific security agreement [see Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(A)]; the others require an agreement but not necessarily a signed or specific security agreement [see Com. Code § 9203(b)(3)(B)-(D)]. Moreover, the generally applicable provisions of Division 9 are subordinate to numerous other provisions of law, both apart from the Commercial Code [see Com. Code § 9201(b), (c)] and within it [see Com. Code § 9203(c)], that could apply in a particular transaction and might or might not require a signed writing. For further discussion of security interests and security agreements under Division 9, see Ch. 503, Sales: Secured Transactions, § 503.20 et seq.

[h] Goods Being Specially Manufactured for Buyer

A contract that does not satisfy the requirements of Com. Code § 2201(1), but that is valid in other respects, is enforceable if the goods are to be specially manufactured for the buyer and are not suitable for sale to others in the ordinary course of the seller's business, and the seller has made either a substantial beginning of their manufacture or commitments for their procurement before notice of repudiation is received and under circumstances which reasonably indicate that the goods are for the buyer [Com. Code § 2201(3)(a)].

An oral contract for the sale of goods that is enforceable because some of the goods are manufactured specially for the buyer and are not suitable for sale to others in the ordinary course of the seller's business may also be enforced as to other goods included in the oral contract, even though the other goods are normally saleable to others in the seller's course of business [Distribu-Dor, Inc. v. Karadanis (1970) 11 Cal. App. 3d 463, 468, 90 Cal. Rptr. 231] .

[i] Goods Which Have Been Accepted or Paid for

A contract that does not satisfy the requirements of Com. Code § 2201(1), but that is valid in other respects, is enforceable with respect to goods for which payment has been made and accepted or which have been received and accepted [Com. Code § 2201(3)(c); see Com. Code § 2606]. Receipt and acceptance of goods by a third party, to whom the goods were delivered at the buyer's request, excepts the contract from the statute of frauds pursuant to Com. Code § 2201(3)(c) [Dairyman's Cooperative Creamery Assn. v. Leipold (1973) 34 Cal. App. 3d 184, 188, 109 Cal. Rptr. 753] .

Part payment makes a contract enforceable only as to the portion of the goods for which payment has been made, when the goods are apportionable. The purpose of the rule is to avoid disputes over the quantity of goods claimed to be covered by the contract. If, however, a buyer claims that the contract is only for the sale of one indivisible unit, such as a single automobile, part payment will allow an oral contract to be enforced, because the part payment provides evidence of the contract and of the party to be charged and there can be no dispute over quantity when only one indivisible unit is claimed under the contract [Lockwood v. Smigel (1971) 18 Cal. App. 3d 800, 803-804, 96 Cal. Rptr. 289] .

[13] Agreement Waiving or Tolling of Statute of Limitations

An acknowledgment or promise is not sufficient evidence of a new or continuing contract to take a case out of the operation of the statute of limitations unless the acknowledgment or promise is contained in a writing signed by the party to be charged. However, any payment on account of principal or interest due on a promissory note made by the party to be charged is sufficient acknowledgment or promise of a continuing contract to stop, from the time such payment is made, the running of the time within which an action may be commenced on the principal sum or on any installment of principal or interest due on the note, and to start the running of a new period of time. Such a payment by itself will not revive a cause of action once barred [Code Civ. Proc. § 360].

For discussion and forms for allegations relating to revival of an obligation barred by the statute of limitations, see Ch. 385, Negotiable Instruments , and Ch. 345, Limitation of Actions .

Chapter 530 STATUTE OF FRAUDS
PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

46-530 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 530.13

§ 530.13 Agent's Authority: The Equal Dignity Rule

[1] Scope of Rule

Authority for an agent to enter into a contract required by law to be in writing can only be given in writing [Civ. Code § 2309]. This is sometimes called the "equal dignity rule." Exceptions to the equal dignity rule include the following:

- Authority of an executive officer of a corporation need not be in writing [Jeppi v. Brockman Holding Co. (1949) 34 Cal. 2d 11, 17-18, 206 P.2d 847 ; Monteleone v. Southern California Vending Corp. (1968) 264 Cal. App. 2d 798, 806, 70 Cal. Rptr. 703] .

- Written authorization is not necessary when the agent merely performs the ministerial act of signing his or her principal's name to a contract whose terms have already been agreed on, an act not involving the exercise of discretion [Ellis v. Mihelis (1963) 60 Cal. 2d 206, 214, 32 Cal. Rptr. 415, 384 P.2d 7 ; Dufresne v. Elite Insurance Co. (1972) 26 Cal. App. 3d 916, 923, 103 Cal. Rptr. 347] .

- An agent need not have written authorization to exercise a right that is only required to be in writing by agreement of the parties, rather than by law [Ripani v. Liberty Loan Corp. (1979) 95 Cal. App. 3d 603, 610, 157 Cal. Rptr. 272 (oral authority sufficient to exercise option required by lease to be in writing)].

There is no spousal exception to the requirement that authorization to enter a contract within the statute of frauds must be written. Thus, a spouse who gives oral consent to his or her spouse to enter a contract within the statute of frauds is not bound by the contract [O'Banion v. Paradiso (1964) 61 Cal. 2d 559, 563, 39 Cal. Rptr. 370, 393 P.2d 682] , but may ratify it [see Cano v. Tyrrell (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 824, 830, 64 Cal. Rptr. 522 (husband's oral agency ratified by wife)].

The "amanuensis" rule has been invoked successfully as an exception to Civ. Code § 2309. In a case in which a father orally instructed his daughter to sign his name to a grant deed conveying property to himself and to his daughter as joint tenants, the California Supreme Court held that because the daughter acted as a mere "amanuensis" ("one who copies or writes from the dictation of another"), performing a mere mechanical function in signing the deed rather than exercising her judgment or discretion, the conveyance was deemed valid even though the signing took place outside the father's presence and the daughter was the sole beneficiary of the transfer [Estate of Stephens v. Williams (2002) 28 Cal. 4th 665, 674-676, 678, 122 Cal. Rptr. 2d 358, 49 P.3d 1093 (holding that although signing of grantor's name by interested amanuensis must be presumed invalid, daughter met burden of showing that signing of grantor's name was mechanical act in that grantor intended to sign using that instrumentality)].

The equal dignities rule does not bar enforcement of the agency agreement itself. Thus, an agent who had only oral authority may recover indemnification from its principal after a third party recovers damages from the agent for breach of a contract within the statute of frauds [Sunset-Sternau Food Co. v. Bonzi (1964) 60 Cal. 2d 834, 839-843, 36 Cal. Rptr. 741, 389 P.2d 133] .

[2] Estoppel and Ratification

A principal will not be estopped to rely on the equal dignities rule unless he or she causes the third party to believe that the agent either has or does not need written authority, or the principal orally authorized the agent and, with complete knowledge of the circumstances, receives the benefits resulting from the oral authorization. This rule applies even when the principal would be estopped to rely on the statute of frauds provision that applies to the agreement with the third party [McGirr v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 246, 257-258, 115 Cal. Rptr. 902 ; see Kerner v. Hughes Tool Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 924, 934, 128 Cal. Rptr. 839] .

A contract entered into by an agent with only oral authority when written authority was required by Civ. Code § 2309, may be ratified by his or her principal by a subsequent writing [Cano v. Tyrrell (1967) 256 Cal. App. 2d 824, 830-831, 64 Cal. Rptr. 522 ; see Civ. Code §§ 2307, 2310].

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

46-530 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 530.14

§ 530.14 Memorandum

[1] Sufficiency of Memorandum

A written memorandum sufficient to satisfy the statute of frauds is merely evidence of an oral contract and usually does not contain all its terms [Crowley v. Modern Faucet Mfg. Co. (1955) 44 Cal. 2d 321, 323, 282 P.2d 33 ; Lamle v. Mattel, Inc. (Fed. Cir. 2005) 394 F.3d 1355, 1361-1362 (finding genuine issue of material fact as to materiality of terms that were omitted from writing but agreed upon at meeting); Kerner v. Hughes Tool Co. (1976) 56 Cal. App. 3d 924, 934, 128 Cal. Rptr. 839] . To be sufficient, the memorandum must contain all essential elements of a specific, consummated agreement. What is essential depends on the agreement; and failure to express that which is clearly implied does not render the memorandum deficient [Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 773, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116, 152 P.3d 420 (extrinsic evidence properly considered to locate properties identified only by street address); Seaman's Direct Buying Service, Inc. v. Standard Oil Co. (1984) 36 Cal. 3d 752, 762-763, 206 Cal. Rptr. 354, 686 P.2d 1158 , overruled on other grounds in Freeman & Mills, Inc. v. Belcher Oil Co. (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 85, 88, 44 Cal. Rptr. 2d 420, 900 P.2d 669] . The writing must state all of the following with reasonable certainty [Ontario Downs, Inc. v. Lauppe (1961) 192 Cal. App. 2d 697, 702, 13 Cal. Rptr. 782 ; Rivers v. Beadle (1960) 183 Cal. App. 2d 691, 696, 7 Cal. Rptr. 170] :

- Each party to the contract.

- The land, goods, or other subject matter to which the contract relates [see, e.g., Alameda Belt Line v. City of Alameda (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 15, 18, 5 Cal. Rptr. 3d 879 (trial court improperly held on summary judgment that option to repurchase real property in written contract was not sufficiently certain to be enforceable; parol evidence coming into existence after execution may be considered in order to satisfy statute of frauds and to render agreement sufficiently certain to be enforceable)].

- The terms and conditions of the promises constituting the contract.

- By whom and to whom the promises are made.

Because the memorandum itself must include the essential contractual terms, it is clear that extrinsic evidence cannot supply those required terms [see, e.g., Friedman v. Bergin (1943) 22 Cal. 2d 535, 537-539, 140 P.2d 1] . However, extrinsic evidence can be used to explain essential terms that were understood by the parties but otherwise would be unintelligible to others. If a memorandum includes the essential terms of the parties' agreement, but the meaning of those terms is unclear, the memorandum is sufficient under the statute of frauds if extrinsic evidence clarifies the terms with reasonable certainty and the evidence as a whole demonstrates that the parties intended to be bound. Conflicts in the extrinsic evidence are for the trier of fact to resolve, but whether the evidence meets the standard of reasonable certainty is a question of law for the court [Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 767, 771, 55 Cal. Rptr. 3d 116, 152 P.3d 420]

The time of performance of an act required for the sale of property subject to the statute of frauds may be implied under Civ. Code § 1657. For example, in one case the statute of frauds did not prevent an agreement to transfer church property from being specifically enforced, even though the agreement contained no time of performance. The court implied a reasonable time for performance, and the agreement was enforceable with the implied term [House of Prayer v. Evangelical Assn. for India (2003) 113 Cal. App. 4th 48, 52-54, 7 Cal. Rptr. 3d 24] .

For a discussion of the contents required in a memorandum of a contract for the sale of goods, see § 530.12[12]. For discussion of the parol evidence rule and interpretation of contracts generally, see Ch. 140, Contracts .

[2] Memorandum May Be Contained in More Than One Document

The statute of frauds may be satisfied by more than one writing when the writings, viewed together in light of the conditions and circumstances of the parties at the time they were written, show unmistakably that they relate to the same matter, even though there is no express reference between the writings. Parol evidence is admissible to establish the connection between the writings [Rader Co. v. Stone (1986) 178 Cal. App. 3d 10, 24, 223 Cal. Rptr. 806 (two brochures and registration statement); Addiego v. Hill (1968) 268 Cal. App. 2d 280, 286, 73 Cal. Rptr. 901] . Multiple papers may be considered together as a memorandum of the contract even though the party to be charged has signed only one of the papers [Seck v. Foulks (1972) 25 Cal. App. 3d 556, 568, 102 Cal. Rptr. 170 ; Karl v. Je Bien (1965) 231 Cal. App. 2d 769, 772, 42 Cal. Rptr. 461] .

[3] Signature

The necessary signature need not appear at the end of the memorandum [Cal. Canneries Co. v. Scatena (1897) 117 Cal. 447, 449-450, 49 P. 462] . Additionally, the signature need not be manually affixed, but may be printed, stamped, or typewritten. An e-mail signed with a party's name was held to have satisfied the statute of frauds, assuming that a binding oral agreement existed and that the e-mail included all the material terms of that agreement [Lamle v. Mattel, Inc. (Fed. Cir. 2005) 394 F.3d 1355, 1362-1363 (applying California common law); Civ. Code § 1633.7 (signature may not be denied legal effect solely because it is in electronic form)]. In any case, however, it must appear from the face of the document that the party to be charged placed or adopted the name on the document with the intention of authenticating the writing [Marks v. Walter G. McCarty Corp. (1949) 33 Cal. 2d 814, 820-821, 205 P.2d 1025 (letterhead held not to have been adopted as signature); Skirball v. RKO Radio Pictures, Inc. (1955) 134 Cal. App. 2d 843, 863, 286 P.2d 954 (typewritten name at end of document adopted by initialing memorandum)]. The essential element is an intent to appropriate the name as a signature; it need not be a full handwritten signature to qualify. Thus, even initials may qualify [Poag v. Winston (1987) 195 Cal. App. 3d 1161, 1179, 241 Cal. Rptr. 330] .

§ 530.15 Modification of Written Contract

[1] Permitted Methods of Modifying Written Contract

Contracts in writing may be modified as follows [Civ. Code § 1698(a)-(c)]:

- By a contract in writing.
- By an oral agreement to the extent that the oral agreement is executed by the parties.
- Unless the contract expressly provides otherwise, by an oral agreement supported by new consideration [see Marani v. Jackson (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 695, 704-705, 228 Cal. Rptr. 518 (contract provision prohibiting modification except in writing precluded modification by executed oral agreement)].

An obligation that a party is required to perform under the written contract is not consideration that will support an oral modification [Marani v. Jackson (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 695, 704-706, 228 Cal. Rptr. 518 ; see also Malmstrom v. Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp. (1986) 187 Cal. App. 3d 299, 314, 231 Cal. Rptr. 820 (no consideration found)]. If the modification is by an oral agreement supported by new consideration, the statute of frauds must be satisfied if the contract, as modified, is within its provisions [Civ. Code § 1698(c)].

Nothing in Civ. Code § 1698precludes the application of rules of law concerning estoppel, oral novation and substitution of a new agreement, rescission of a written contract by an oral agreement, waiver of a provision of a written contract, or oral independent collateral contracts [Civ. Code § 1698(d)].

Personal property leases first effective between the parties on or after January 1, 1990, may be modified in accordance with Com. Code § 10201 et seq., which is discussed in Ch. 413, Personal Property Leases .

[2] Burden of Proof of Oral Modification of Written Contract

The burden of proof for oral modification of a written contract is a preponderance of the evidence. It is error to require oral modification to be proven by clear and convincing evidence [Liodas v. Sahadi (1977) 19 Cal. 3d 278, 289 n.6, 137 Cal. Rptr. 635, 562 P.2d 316 ; Barrett v. Bank of America (1986) 183 Cal. App. 3d 1362, 1370-1371, 229 Cal. Rptr. 16 (disapproving Coldwell Banker & Co. v. Pepper Tree Office Center Associates (1980) 106 Cal. App. 3d 272, 165 Cal. Rptr. 51 , to extent that it requires clear and convincing burden of proof)].

46-530 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 530.16

§ 530.16 Effect of Statute of Frauds

An oral agreement within the statute of frauds is voidable at the election of either party, and each party assumes the risk of the other party withdrawing [Goldstein v. McNeil (1954) 122 Cal. App. 2d 608, 611, 265 P.2d 113] . An oral agreement within the statute of frauds is not invalid in the sense that it is void, however, because the statute of frauds relates only to the remedy and not to the validity of the oral contract [O'Brien v. O'Brien (1925) 197 Cal. 577, 586, 241 P. 861] . Whatever the form of action may be, if proof of a promise or contract within the statute is essential to maintain it, there can be no recovery unless the statute is satisfied [Beard v. Melvin (1943) 60 Cal. App. 2d 421, 426, 140 P.2d 720] . However, because the contract is only voidable, and not void, it may be taken out of the operation of statute by certain circumstances, such as part or full performance of the contract, estoppel to assert the statute of frauds, or waiver of the statute by failure to assert it in court [see discussions at §§ 530.17-530.19 and 530.24].

46-530 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 530.17

§ 530.17 Fully Performed Agreements

A fully executed oral contract is not voidable for failure to satisfy the statute of frauds, and cannot be assailed by either party or by third persons on the ground that it is not in writing [Realty Corp. of America, Inc. v. Burton (1958) 162 Cal. App. 2d 44, 57, 327 P.2d 948 ; Freitas v. Freitas (1916) 31 Cal. App. 16, 19, 159 P. 611] . This principle has been applied in cases in which only one party has fully performed, on the ground that it would be inequitable to allow the other party to set up the statute of frauds [Prince v. Varona (1956) 144 Cal. App. 2d 673, 676, 301 P.2d 512] . It has also been held, without reference to equitable considerations, that the statute of frauds does not apply when a contract has been fully performed by one party and nothing remains to be done except the payment of money by the other party [see Blaustein v. Burton (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 161, 185, 88 Cal. Rptr. 319 (producer revealed idea for motion picture to defendants); Nesson v. Moes (1963) 215 Cal. App. 2d 655, 657-659, 30 Cal. Rptr. 428 (four-year employment contract)]. Similarly, the statute of frauds does not apply to a unilateral contract, that is, when a promise is given for an act rather than for another promise [Blaustein v. Burton (1970) 9 Cal. App. 3d 161, 184-185, 88 Cal. Rptr. 319] .

A valid deed--one that is executed by the grantor and delivered to the grantee--is an executed contract [Civ. Code §§ 1040, 1054], and the statute of frauds provides no basis for invalidating an alleged oral contract to make the conveyance [Lee v. Lee (2009) 175 Cal. App. 4th 1553, 1557, 97 Cal. Rptr. 3d 516] .

An oral prenuptial contract that has been fully performed by both parties may not be avoided even though it does not satisfy the statute of frauds [Estate of Dokoozlian (1963) 219 Cal. App. 2d 531, 535, 33 Cal. Rptr. 151 ; McComsey v. Leaf (1939) 36 Cal. App. 2d 132, 141-142, 97 P.2d 242] . An oral prenuptial agreement that property shall be community property is taken out of the statute of frauds if confirmed by acts and conduct of the parties after marriage [Handley v. Handley (1952) 113 Cal. App. 2d 280, 283, 248 P.2d 59 ; see Estate of Piatt (1947) 81 Cal. App. 2d 348, 351, 183 P.2d 919] .

Although a transfer of property after marriage pursuant to an oral prenuptial agreement may execute the agreement completely, and thus preclude the parties to the agreement from asserting its invalidity under the statute of frauds, such a transfer is voluntary, and may be set aside by creditors if the other elements of a transfer in fraud of creditors are present, because the unexecuted oral agreement to transfer the property cannot be specifically enforced [Sudbrock v. Kroener (1934) 136 Cal. App. 624, 631-632, 29 P.2d 435] .

PART II. LEGAL BACKGROUND

46-530 California Forms of Pleading and Practice--Annotated § 530.18

§ 530.18 Part Performance

[1] Elements of Doctrine

Before a party can be estopped to assert the statute of frauds due to the other's part performance, it must appear that a sufficient change of position has occurred so that the application of the statutory bar would result in an unjust and unconscionable loss, amounting in effect to a fraud. Payment of money is not sufficient part performance to take an oral agreement out of the statute of frauds because a party paying money under an invalid contract has an adequate remedy at law [Anderson v. Stansbury (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 707, 715-716, 242 P.2d 305 ; but see Com. Code § 2201(3)(c) (Commercial Code exception for goods being accepted and/or paid for, discussed at § 530.12[12][i]].

If a party pays money or renders services under a contract that is unenforceable under the statute of frauds, and the other party does not perform voluntarily, the performing party may recover the money paid or the value of the services rendered in an action for assumpsit [see Fuller v. Reed (1869) 38 Cal. 99, 110 ; see discussion and forms in Ch. 121, Common Counts] or by common count in quantum meruit [White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 346, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345 ; for discussion and forms relating to quantum meruit, see Ch. 121, Common Counts]. In such an action, the oral agreement, though unenforceable under the statute of frauds, is admissible as evidence of the reasonable value of the services [Offeman v. Robertson-Cole Studios, Inc. (1926) 80 Cal. App. 1, 13-14, 251 P. 830 (quantum meruit)].

The acts relied on to establish part performance must refer unequivocally to the oral contract [Baker v. Bouchard (1932) 122 Cal. App. 708, 711, 10 P.2d 468] . For discussion of Com. Code § 2201(3)(a), the Commercial Code exception for goods being specially manufactured for buyer, see § 530.12[12][h].

[2] Partially Performed Agreement Not to Be Performed Within One Year

When the parties to an oral contract that is not to be performed within one year have partly performed it, neither can avoid its obligations as to past transactions on the basis of the statute of frauds, and the contract is enforceable to the extent it has been performed [Roberts v. Wachter (1951) 104 Cal. App. 2d 271, 281, 231 P.2d 534 ; see Macmorris Sales Corp. v. Kozak (1968) 263 Cal. App. 2d 430, 442, 69 Cal. Rptr. 719 ; but see Gressley v. Williams (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 640-641, 14 Cal. Rptr. 496 (mere rendition of services usually not sufficient part performance to avoid statute of frauds; action apparently seeking only to recover compensation under contract for amount due based on services performed)].

Part performance by the parties does not take the unexecuted portion of the contract out of the statute of frauds, and it remains unenforceable [Long v. Long (1912) 162 Cal. 427, 431, 122 P. 1077 ; Kraft v. Rooke (1930) 103 Cal. App. 552, 555-557, 284 P. 935] .

[3] Partially Performed Prenuptial Agreements

Premarital agreements executed on or after January 1, 1986, are governed by Fam. Code § 1611 in the Uniform Premarital Agreement Act (Fam. Code § 1600 et seq.) [Fam. Code § 1601]. As under the prior law [see former Civ. Code §§ 1624(3), 5134], the traditional exceptions to the statute of frauds, including the doctrine of partial performance, still apply [Hall v. Hall (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 578, 585-587, 271 Cal. Rptr. 773] . As under the prior law, the marriage itself and payment of money from one spouse to, or on behalf of, the other spouse is not sufficient to take the agreement out of the statute of frauds on the basis of the partial performance exception [Hall v. Hall (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 578, 586-587, 271 Cal. Rptr. 773 ; see Betty v. Knapp (1935) 5 Cal. App. 2d 512, 517, 43 P.2d 325 (marriage alone insufficient); Stevenson v. Pantaleone (1933) 131 Cal. App. 401, 404-408, 21 P.2d 703 (marriage and designation of spouse as beneficiary under insurance policy as insufficient)]. The spouse seeking to enforce the oral agreement must have irretrievably changed his or her position in reliance on the oral agreement [Hall v. Hall (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 578, 586-587, 271 Cal. Rptr. 773] . In Hall, an irretrievable change of position was established by the spouse's giving up a job and applying for Social Security at age 62 so both spouses could spend most of their time together [Hall v. Hall (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 578, 586-587, 271 Cal. Rptr. 773] .

The acts relied on to establish partial performance sufficient to take the oral agreement out of the statute of frauds must be unequivocably referable to the contract. Acts that, although done in performance of the contract, admit to an explanation other than the contract (such as performance of husbandly or wifely duties) are not generally acts of part performance that will take the agreement out of the statute of frauds [Hall v. Hall (1990) 222 Cal. App. 3d 578, 586, 271 Cal. Rptr. 773 ; Trout v. Ogilvie (1919) 41 Cal. App. 167, 171, 182 P. 333 (marriage and payment of spouse's debts held insufficient)].

[4] Partially Performed Real Property Transactions

Equity will enforce an oral contract for the sale of real property that has been taken out of the statute of frauds by part performance. Mere payment of money is not enough, but taking possession in reliance on the oral agreement, if the possession is actual, visible, notorious, and exclusive so that it furnishes evidence of the agreement between the parties that is as good as a writing, is sufficient to take the agreement out of the statute [Francis v. Colendich (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 128, 130-131, 14 Cal. Rptr. 56 (payment, survey, and fencing in of parcel sufficient); Davis v. Judson (1910) 159 Cal. 121, 131-132, 113 P. 147 (payment, visiting vacant lots insufficient)]. Taking possession and making valuable improvements may be sufficient to take the contract out of the statute of frauds, but trivial expenditures are insufficient [Harrison v. Hanson (1958) 165 Cal. App. 2d 370, 376-377, 331 P.2d 1084 (employment of consultants to make development plans as technical possession at most, and expenditures were trivial)]. To constitute part performance, the possession must be taken with the vendor's knowledge and consent [Wolfsen v. Hathaway (1948) 32 Cal. 2d 632, 642, 198 P.2d 1 , overruled on other grounds, Flores v. Arroyo (1961) 56 Cal. 2d 492, 497, 15 Cal. Rptr. 87, 364 P.2d 263 ; Stark v. Byington (1937) 21 Cal. App. 2d 642, 648, 69 P.2d 995] . Continuing in possession under a purported oral agreement after having made rental payments on the same property may constitute part performance when coupled with other acts. Thus, for example, part performance was sufficient when purchasers made a substantial down payment, increased their monthly payments to equal sellers' mortgage payments, reimbursed sellers for property taxes, and made numerous improvements to the property [Sutton v. Warner (1993) 12 Cal. App. 4th 415, 422-424, 15 Cal. Rptr. 2d 632] .

For an allegation of part performance of an oral contract for the sale of real property, see § 530.60.

[5] Partially Performed Promise to Make Will

Execution of a will in accordance with an oral agreement does not constitute part performance of the agreement, and does not take it out of the statute of frauds when the will does not expressly refer to the agreement [Shive v. Barrow (1948) 88 Cal. App. 2d 838, 848, 199 P.2d 693 ; Zaring v. Brown (1940) 41 Cal. App. 2d 227, 232-233, 106 P.2d 224 ; see also discussion at § 520.12[9][a]].

The mere rendition of services does not constitute part performance of an agreement to leave property by will in return for the services sufficient to take the agreement out of the statute of frauds [Riganti v. McElhinney (1967) 248 Cal. App. 2d 116, 121, 56 Cal. Rptr. 195] . However, it may be possible to avoid the statute of frauds by an action for quasi-specific performance to impose a constructive trust on the property, or in an action to recover the reasonable value of the services. For a discussion of these theories, see § 530.20[1], below.

§ 530.19 Estoppel to Assert Statute of Frauds

[1] Application of Doctrine

Estoppel to assert the statute of frauds is applied to prevent fraud that would result from refusal to enforce oral contracts in certain circumstances. Such fraud is inherent in the unconscionable injury that would result from denying enforcement of the contract after one party has been induced by the other to seriously change his or her position in reliance on the contract or in the unjust enrichment that would result if a party who has received the benefits of the other's performance were allowed to rely on the statute [Monarco v. Lo Greco (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 621, 623-624, 220 P.2d 737 ; see Byrne v. Laura (1997) 52 Cal. App. 4th 1054, 1068-1069, 60 Cal. Rptr. 2d 908 (citing Monarco and finding reliance on representations to be classic case for applying equitable estoppel doctrine); McGirr v. Gulf Oil Corp. (1974) 41 Cal. App. 3d 246, 253, 115 Cal. Rptr. 902] . Both unconscionable injury and unjust enrichment may be present in some cases [Monarco v. Lo Greco (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 621, 624, 220 P.2d 737 (son, in reliance on contract that property would be left to him, devoted years to work on family property, giving up opportunity for education and to acquire own property, and value of property enhanced by his work)].

Estoppel is an equitable remedy and will only be applied to avoid injustice. In addition, when estoppel is claimed by a person having a fiduciary relationship with the party against whom the claim is asserted, the underlying agreement must be fair and reasonable [Tenzer v. Superscope, Inc. (1985) 39 Cal. 3d 18, 30-33, 216 Cal. Rptr. 130, 702 P.2d 212 (finder's fee claimed from corporation by corporate director)].

Estoppel to assert the statute of frauds does not require that there have been any representations with respect to the requirements of the statute indicating that a writing is not necessary or will be executed or that the statute will not be relied on as a defense, because a party's change in position may be made in reliance on the promise that the contract will be performed and because acceptance of the benefits of the contract results in unjust enrichment regardless of whether the representation related to the statute of frauds or to performance of the contract [see Monarco v. Lo Greco (1950) 35 Cal. 2d 621, 625-626, 220 P.2d 737 ; see also Civ. Code § 1623, discussed at § 530.21]. However, a defendant is not estopped to rely on the statute of frauds and the oral agreement will not be enforced merely because nonenforcement of the agreement would permit the defendant to assert the statute and thus avoid the parol obligation [Estate of Baglione (1966) 65 Cal. 2d 192, 198, 53 Cal. Rptr. 139, 417 P.2d 683] .

[2] Nature of Acts Constituting Change of Position

Estoppel to assert the statute of frauds may be based on a change in position resulting from an act that does not constitute part performance of the oral contract, such as giving up a job that was terminable only for good cause after trial in order to accept employment under an oral contract that is unenforceable under *Civ. Code § 1624(a)(1)*because it could not be performed within one year [see Seymour v. Oelrichs (1909) 156 Cal. 782, 794, 106 P. 88 , overruled in part by Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 770-771 , (unconscionable injury established by that change in position), disapproved on other grounds, Sterling v. Taylor (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 757, 770]. When acts in part performance of a contract are relied on as a basis for estoppel to assert the statute of frauds, unjust enrichment or unconscionable injury due to a change in position, similar to the requirements of the doctrine of part performance, must be shown [see Anderson v. Stansbury (1952) 38 Cal. 2d 707, 715-716, 242 P.2d 305 (part payment of price not sufficient change or injury for estoppel); Oren Realty & Development Co. v. Superior Court (1979) 91 Cal. App. 3d 229, 234-236, 154 Cal. Rptr. 97 (part payment of price and loss of opportunity to purchase other land were not sufficient to establish unconscionable injury); see § 530.18, above].

Unlike the doctrine of part performance, the doctrine of estoppel does not require that the change of position relied on refer unequivocally to the oral agreement [see Carlson v. Richardson (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 204, 208-209, 72 Cal. Rptr. 769] .

[3] Doctrine of Judicial Admissions

A species of estoppel to assert the statute of frauds is referred to as the doctrine of judicial admissions. That doctrine imposes the rule that a defendant who is sued on an oral contract within the statute of frauds and who admits the contract in the answer but does not raise the statute of frauds as a defense is held to have waived the protection of the statute of frauds [Burt v. Wilson (1865) 28 Cal. 631, 638 ; Isaac v. A & B Loan Co. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 307, 311, 247 Cal. Rptr. 104 ; see also § 530.24[1]]. Nevertheless, testimony that admits the existence of an oral contract does not waive the statute of frauds. Thus, the fact that a defendant made a declaration in another action and referred to "an agreement" with plaintiff in that declaration does not bar the defendant from asserting the defense of the statute of frauds in the action on the contract [Isaac v. A & B Loan Co. (1988) 201 Cal. App. 3d 307, 311-312, 247 Cal. Rptr. 104] . Note that under Com. Code § 2201(3)(b), if the contract is one for the sale of goods for a price of $500 or more, it is not enforceable beyond the quantity of goods admitted [see discussion at § 530.12[12][d]].

[4] Pleading Estoppel

The party pleading estoppel must allege the facts giving rise to estoppel. A conclusory pleading that the other party is estopped from asserting the defense that the contract is invalid under the statute of frauds is inadequate [Gressley v. Williams (1961) 193 Cal. App. 2d 636, 640-641, 14 Cal. Rptr. 496 ; see Carlson v. Richardson (1968) 267 Cal. App. 2d 204, 208, 72 Cal. Rptr. 769 (estoppel sufficiently alleged)].

§ 530.20 Quasi-Specific Performance

[1] Agreement to Make Will in Return for Services

In an action for quasi-specific performance to impose a constructive trust on property that was to be left to plaintiff by will pursuant to an oral agreement to make a will, the defendant will be estopped to assert the statute of frauds if plaintiff will suffer unconscionable injury or defendant will be unjustly enriched [Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 670, 675, 68 Cal. Rptr. 210] . A testator's alleged oral agreement to leave all of his property to his son if the son cared for him during the testator's lifetime was held to be enforceable under equitable estoppel principles, notwithstanding former Prob. Code § 150 (or its predecessor, former Civ. Code § 1624(6)) [Estate of Housley v. Haywood (1997) 56 Cal. App. 4th 342, 358, 65 Cal. Rptr. 2d 628 ; see §§ 520.13[9] and 530.18[5]]. The rendition of services that are compensable in money cannot be the basis for estoppel because there is an adequate legal remedy in the form of quantum meruit [Palmer v. Phillips (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 291, 295-296, 266 P.2d 850 (no estoppel if plaintiffs performed services of both impersonal and intimate nature); see Kennedy v. Bank of America (1965) 237 Cal. App. 2d 637, 647-648, 47 Cal. Rptr. 154 (no estoppel if plaintiff performed services of domestic servant and gasoline station assistant)]. However, when the services rendered are of such peculiar, extraordinary, or exceptional character that it is impossible to estimate their value in money, an estoppel arises [Ward v. Wrixon (1959) 168 Cal. App. 2d 642, 655, 336 P.2d 640 (unjust enrichment and unconscionable injury found when plaintiff gave up home to live with decedent, performed heavy construction work, and was companion, all without compensation); see Porporato v. Devincenzi (1968) 261 Cal. App. 2d 670, 678-679, 68 Cal. Rptr. 210 (unconscionable injury when plaintiff performed no services but only agreed to live near decedent who wanted to be near his grandchild, plaintiff's son)]. For discussion of and forms of complaint in actions for quasi-specific performance, see Ch. 528, Specific Performance .

If the plaintiff cannot meet the requirements of a suit for quasi-specific performance, plaintiff may recover the reasonable value of the services rendered in an action in quantum meruit. To maintain such an action, however, plaintiff must first file a claim for the value of his or her services against the estate of the deceased promisor [Palmer v. Phillips (1954) 123 Cal. App. 2d 291, 299, 266 P.2d 850 ; for discussion and forms relating to quantum meruit, see Ch. 121, Common Counts].

[2] Mutual Wills

The mere fact that wills are reciprocal or contain similar or identical provisions, or that they were executed at the same time and before the same witnesses, is not of itself sufficient evidence of an oral agreement to make a particular disposition of property by will [see Former Prob. Code § 150(b) (repealed eff. Jan. 1, 2001) (discussed at § 530.12[9][a])]. If such an agreement is proved by full, clear, and convincing evidence, however, it will be enforced. When mutual wills have been made pursuant to such an agreement and one party has died before either will has been revoked, if the second party accepts the benefits of the will of the first party, but subsequently revokes his or her will and executes a new will in violation of the agreement, the intended beneficiaries of the mutual will may bring an action for quasi-specific performance to impress a constructive trust on the persons claiming under the new will. In such an action, the persons claiming under the new will are estopped from asserting the statute of frauds, because a constructive fraud has been worked on the first decedent and the beneficiaries of the mutual will [Juran v. Epstein (1994) 23 Cal. App. 4th 882, 897, 28 Cal. Rptr. 2d 588 ; Crail v. Blakely (1973) 8 Cal. 3d 744, 747, 751-752, 106 Cal. Rptr. 187, 505 P.2d 1027 ; Notten v. Mensing (1935) 3 Cal. 2d 469, 473-477, 45 P.2d 198] .

For discussion of and forms for complaints in actions for quasi-specific performance, see Ch. 528, Specific Performance .

§ 530.21 Fraud Preventing Writing

When a contract that is required by law to be in writing is prevented from being put into writing by the fraud of one party to the contract, any other party who was led by that fraud to believe that the contract was in writing, and who acted on that belief to his or her prejudice, may enforce the contract against the party perpetrating the fraud [Civ. Code § 1623].

Similarly, a representation that one intends to sign an agreement in near future is basis for estoppel, preventing the party who made the representation from asserting the statute of frauds [Wilk v. Vencill (1947) 30 Cal. 2d 104, 107-108, 180 P.2d 351 ; see also § 530.19].

§ 530.22 Severability of Unenforceable Promises

When a promisor makes two or more oral promises that can easily be distinguished and separated by the court by reference to the agreement, only the promise which falls clearly within the statute of frauds is unenforceable [White Lighting Co. v. Wolfson (1968) 68 Cal. 2d 336, 345, 66 Cal. Rptr. 697, 438 P.2d 345 (oral promise to repurchase stock for $15,000, pay moving expenses, severance pay, and share of gross receipts in return for plaintiff's resignation enforceable except for purchase of stock)]. Similarly, when an oral contract contains two promises which are in the alternative, rather than being merely divisible, and only one is within the statute of frauds, recovery may be had on the promise that is not within the statute, even though performance of that promise may also constitute performance of the promise that is within the statute [Roy v. Salisbury (1942) 21 Cal. 2d 176, 183, 130 P.2d 706 (contract to take care of decedent's dog if owner unable to do so or if owner should die enforceable when performance began under first alternative)].
